By decision of last conference, I was appointed to ascertain how many subscriptions could be secured for the Harmony, at $1.25 per copy. The coffers of the Church are not in danger of bursting from repletion, and the monetary wisdom of the Church says, Before we agree to publish the Harmony, we ask the popular American question, Will it pay? The answer must determine our action.

Now Saints, young and old, poor and rich, what say you. How many of you will agree to take the Harmony at $1.25 per copy, paying for it when called upon to do so? Please ascertain in all organized branches, and send to me the lists. Those who live where there is no organized branch, and those who are teaching music, please correspond with me too, as soon as practicable, and tell me what you will do.

Neither you nor I want the work to fall to the ground now, after so much is accomplished; but I tell you frankly that it will, unless we come up an army brave and strong to the rescue.

Those wishing answers from me, will oblige by enclosing stamp or postal card. I am here on a mission to the world, and have not money enough to conduct my friendship correspondence. I am sure therefore that you will not ask me to conduct this Church business correspondence. Fifty persons writing me and enclosing a stamp for a reply, divides the amount, and makes only a three cent expense to each; to me it would be $1.50. This is only a gentle hint, and only in reference to a business matter in which you are equally interested with

Your brother in Christ,

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

FLORIDA DISTRICT.—The conference of the Florida district will convene with the Perseverance Branch, Baldwin county, Alabama, at ten a.m., August 7th, 1880. Brethren Jesse Reader and John H. Givins were appointed to select the location for the conference, and Bro. Reader writes that they have decided that the Elijah Ard place, in the fork of Negro Branch and Blackwater, is the most eligible place, and hence conference will be held there. It is desirable for all who can attend to do so; and as there are but two or three families of Saints in this neighborhood, I wish to direct attention to the fact that it will be better for all who can to go prepared with food and lodging to camp on the ground.

I shall be very glad to meet brother Crawford or Scarecliffe at this conference. The point where it is to be held is some twenty-five miles from Point Clear, west side of Mobile bay.

L. F. WEST.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA DISTRICT.—Notice is hereby given that the Northern California District Conference, for the purpose of organizing said district, and to transact such other business as may properly come before it, is hereby appointed to be held at the city of Oakland, Alameda county, California, on the 4th and 5th days of July, 1880, commencing at half-past nine on the morning of Sunday, the 4th.

H. P. BROWN, President
Of San Francisco Sub-District, with the consent of majority of Sub-District Presidents.

NORTH-EAST MISSOURI DISTRICT.—The next Quarterly District Conference will be held at Oak Ridge School-house, Middle Fork township, Macon county, Missouri, commencing the 13th day of August next, at two o'clock p.m.

JOHN TAYLOR, President.

HUGHES.—At Manchester, England, April 2d, 1880, to Bro. and Sr. Hughes, a daughter; name, Harriet; blessed April 18th, 1880, by Elder Joseph Dewsnup. This is a grand-daughter to Bro. and Sr. Mathers of Nebraska City, Neb.

DIED.

LEE.—At his home near Sandusky, Sauk county, Wisconsin, April 4th, 1880, Elder John Lee, aged 52 years, 7 months and 15 days. He leaves a wife and four children. He was baptized by Reuben Newkirk, July 12th, 1868, and was ordained an Elder soon after.

Father's gone; but we would not recall him To sorrow and sickness and pain, For we know that if faithful we'll meet him, When the Saints with the Savior shall reign. JENNIE E. LEE.

GITTINGS.—At Cheltenham, St. Louis county, Missouri, April 17th, 1880, of pneumonia, Bro. William Gittings, aged 70 years. He was born in England in 1810, was baptized in 1842, emigrated to America in 1844, went to Utah in 1854, became dissatisfied with the doings and teachings there, returned in 1855, was baptized into the Reorganized Church in 1864, and remained a faithful member and Elder until his death. He was the presiding elder of Cheltenham branch for fifteen years. He was at meeting, Sunday, April 11th, and bore a faithful testimony of the work he was engaged in. In six days after he was dead and gone, and left children, grand-children and many friends, to mourn his loss. His funeral was largely attended by relatives and friends, by whom he was highly esteemed as a Christian and a friend. Funeral discourse by A. W. Reese.

HERNDON.—At Independence, Mo., April 29th, 1880, Sr. Delia Herndon, aged 28 years. She was baptized by Elder F. C. Warnky in 1872; lived a faithful life, and died with a bright hope of a part in the resurrection of the just. She leaves a husband and two children. Funeral discourse by Elder F. C. Warnky.

COX.—At Independence, Mo., May 18th, 1880, Jeneta, infant daughter of Andrew and Cynthia Cox. "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Funeral services by Elder F. C. Warnky.

GOULD.—At Silver Lake, Otter Tail county, Minnesota, April 7th, 1880, of membranous croup, Nora Etta, only daughter of C. G. and Ellen D. Gould, aged one year and two weeks.

Little Etta now is sleeping in the cold and silent ground, But her spirit is rejoicing while the angels gather round; Yes, with her blessed Savior, from this earth she's called away.

Oh, may we prepare to meet her at the resurrection day.

SPURR.—At Devenport, England, January 12th, 1879, Elder Stephen Spurr, aged 71 years.

NEWKIRK.—Bro. David Newkirk died at Elizabeth, Jo Daviess county, Illinois, March 9th, 1880, from an injury received while he was mining for lead, by the falling of a rock, which caught and crushed his left foot, rendering an amputation necessary, erysipelas ensued, which resulted fatally. He died in the full assurance that he was saved. He took an affectionate leave of his family, charging each to live faithfully, and meet him in heaven. In answer to the question, Are you afraid to die? He said, I am not. He was then asked, Have you any doubts, whatever? He said, No; I know I am saved. Bro. Newkirk was one among the first in the reorganization of the Church in Wisconsin, and was at one time a member of the Quorum of the Twelve, being chosen to fill a vacancy that occurred shortly after its organization. Although living apart from the Church for a number of years, he never doubted the truth of the latter day work, nor ceased to take an interest in its welfare. May the Lord God comfort and console his family and aged parents in this sad bereavement is the prayer of, Reuben Newkirk.

Principles and Men.

THE enemies of the system nicknamed "Mormonism" have never tired in their efforts to destroy its influence for good or stay its progress. The advent of a Mormon elder in any new neighborhood is the sure signal for a united effort on the part of hitherto rival churches to exterminate a common foe. The question of the real merit or demerit of his religion is seldom considered. Occasionally, however, an indignant shepherd is compelled by a combination of circumstances to step to the front and accept an invitation to "discuss the question." He first satisfies his voracious appetite by associating with "Female Life among the Mormons." With smacking gusto he then slakes his thirst at the fountain of "Life in Utah," after which he sallies forth and gives evidence to all thinkers, of the emetic he has just taken, by vomiting forth a disgusting tirade of abuse against the whole system of truth he has come to combat. The first "spill" is intended to make the character of Joseph Smith appear filthy, and thus constitute a supposed ground for attack. The more educated the man, the more bitter and unscrupulous has been the effort, at least it has been so in the writer's experience. When an attempt is made to prove that truth is independent of men, and that every attempt to condemn it because of the frailties of its advocates, would be equally scathing on the work of ancient scripture worthies, but is in reality the clearest evidence of weakness on the part of those seeking shelter under such worse than childish notions; we are informed that our reference to Bible characters is slanderous, and our attempt to defend Joseph Smith is evidence of our sympathy with his misdeeds, and that Mormonism is but the synonym of corruption.

The lives of ten thousand holy men and women, members of the Church—are not demonstrative evidence sufficient on our side to counteract the evil, or redeem the Church from the odium of one man's sin. The testimonies of this vast company that their religion has made them what they are—honest, upright and virtuous followers of the meek and lowly Jesus—can not be admitted as evidence in defense, when such overwhelming contrary statements are found in the works of novelists and speculators, whose chief object is to get gain, or in the mouths of avowed enemies of the system, concerning one man, whom they never knew, but whom they declare was a scoundrel, and his religion is but the outgushing of the foulness that was within.

We shall not attempt to disprove the charges made against the character of Joseph

Smith, for this has been successfully done at different times, but will try by the virtue of a comparison with other societies, and allow all men to conclude as they think proper, only advising them to be consistent in their attempt to pass judgment.

We refer our christian friends to the life of John Knox, for an exhibition of vindictive, harsh, unchristian feelings or acts—the very opposite pole from the disposition of Jesus Christ, as indicated in the history given in the New Testament. The smoke ascending from the funeral pile of Servetus was a witness of the stain upon the character of John Calvin that all the special pleading of men can not remove. The followers of Calvin or Knox forget to tell the world that the former burned Servetus. The Presbyterian of to-day would quickly resent the insult offered his faith, were we to tell him that Presbyterianism sanctioned murder. He would suddenly discover that individual unholy acts did not condemn the doctrines held by the transgressor, unless they were the legitimate consequence of them.

From Hale's "History of the United States, from their first settlement as colonies, to the close of the war with Great Britain in 1815," published in 1830, and for which a premium of four hundred dollars and a gold medal, worth fifty dollars was paid, because of the justness of its facts and principles, the purity of its style, &c., we glean the following, (page 106):

In 1786, John Wesley, a celebrated Methodist, made a visit to Georgia, for the purpose of preaching to the colonists and converting the Indians. Among the former he made some proselytes, but more enemies. He was accused of diverting the people from labor, of fomenting divisions, of claiming high and unwarranted ecclesiastical authority. His conduct towards the niece of one of the principal settlers was highly resented by her friends. Thirteen indictments for alleged offenses were found against him; but before the time of trial, he returned to England, and there, for many years, pursued a successful and distinguished career of piety and usefulness."

We copy the above verbatim, from the book, now before us. In it we find implied nearly all the serious charges made against Joseph Smith. Alas for Methodism, its foul corruption when compared with Mormonism is made manifest. But who, among the Methodists, would allow their church or doctrines to be judged by Wesley's acts on that occasion. If we attempted to condemn them in this wise, the epithet of "fools" would be hurled at us. We therefore turn and beg the Christian world to be consistent, and judge Mormonism as they would have Methodism or Calvinism judged. Let doctrines be examined distinct from men. Let principles be investigated apart from their advocates. Neither the conduct of Wesley nor Smith will save any portion of mankind; but the truths that either of them enunciated are eternal and demand our admiration. Let our wisdom be manifest in righteous discrimination between principles and men.

JOSEPH LUFF.

A Testimony.

BRO. JOSEPH:—Permit me to say to the people of every land and clime where the Herald circulates, that on Monday, April 26th, 1880, I received a positive knowledge of the truth of the latter day work, so that I can testify to it as I can testify that the sun shines. And what seemed singular, it did not seem to come through the medium of either of the five senses. I have felt the change that the orthodox experience in "getting religion." I was daily for years more or less under influence as a spirit medium. But this knowledge came not like either of these. I had years ago received a testimony of the truth of the Book of Mormon, but this would depart upon my refusing or neglecting to bear testimony; but I insisted that everything, every principle either of truth or error, must be tried by that fallible standard known as "human reason;" and I often wished that I could be infidel; but now I have no such desire. My first duty now, a duty far exceeding every other, is to bear testimony to this knowledge I have received. Does any one ask how I received it; I can not tell. If they ask what peculiar sensations I experienced, I simply reply, none. It was the gift of God. It became part of my being. It is more like receiving a new sense, making six senses instead of five, than anything else I can think of. I might name it the sense of knowledge; but I suppose it is what Paul calls the "Gift of knowledge." It is what I needed, and I feel grateful for it. I can say with Bro. Job, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Though not elated, as I often have been in days that are past, I envy no person, high or low, any bliss they enjoy, for my wealth is greater than that of all the kings of earth who possess not this knowledge. O, brethren, pray for me that I may never prove unworthy (though I can not see why the Lord has counted me worthy to hold) this, the choicest of heaven's blessings to me; and from a sense of gratitude as well as of duty, permit me to testify that the latter day work is true, as God its author is true. The prophets of this latter-day dispensation did not receive the fullness of the everlasting gospel from man, neither by the will of man, but from God; and this is the testimony I wish to bear to my friends, my neighbors, my brethren, and I also wish this testimony to go, with that of the thousands of others who know the truth, to the ends of the earth.

Your brother in the new covenant,
H. S. DILLR.

THE DEFRAUDED SOUL.

"There is no crime, alas! so common,—no sin against God so black,—no outrage which beautiful Nature so adhors,—no human wrong which the angels so deplore, as pre-natal infanticide."—Dr. O'Leary.

It is a Lady richly dight:

Why walketh she in the pale moonlight?
Wide open are her eyes of blue;
She gathers her robe, for through and through Pierces the cold wind, heavy with mist,
And stirs the grass as a serpent hissed—
Hissed through the brake and through the brier,
And under the dead oak scorched with fire;
She gathers her robe across her breast,
But may not smother its wild unrest.
Ah! what doth she, a Lady bright,
Out and alone in the cold midnight?

Her yellow locks are all outspread,
Curbless alike by bodkin or braid;
Her dainty feet unsandaled press
The gritty sand of the wilderness;
But she moveth stately with even tread,
Of the night and the darkness hath no dread,
And straight before her with open eyes
She looketh as one who onward spies
A purpose that may not be put aside—
With eyes that see not, though open wide:
She sees not the rock, she sees not the tree,
But shunnoth both right carefully.
Hoots the owl from the blasted pine,
The lurking dog doth wheeze and whine;
But she hath no dread, she hath no fear—
The outward eye, the outward ear
Lie dead in sleep, but a deeper life
Comes to their aid in this mortal strife.

Oh! pale are the hands that grasp and clutch
The silken robe: no dainty touch
Of jeweled fingers on dainty fan
Is mingling now with the Lady's plan;
But her diamonds gleam from fingers white,
Gnomes of the mine, in the cold moonlight.
Onward she moves with an even tread,
Like one by an unseen spirit led,
Who hath ceased to strive, for he knoweth well
He must yield himself to the mighty spell.
O Jesu! forbid that any sin
So lovely a shape should lurk within.

Why doth the baby moan and cry
As the lovely Lady passeth by?
Why doth it clutch at the mother's breast,
Who sleepily lulls it again to rest,
And wonders what the cause may be
That he stirreth and moaneth so eamilly?
The nesting bird, its close winged fits,
And a cold blast over the fledgelings drifts.
The hanging bat on leathery wing
Skirrs on the air—'tis a kindred thing;
The owlets hoot, but the silent stir
Of the old owls' wing is unheard by her,
As she onward moves, unable to break
The spell that the child and the bird awake.
A black cloud moves athwart the sky,
Dimming the moon's pale, downward eye.

And now the Lady in weary plight,
The sleeping Lady so richly dight,
By a span-long grave is bending low;
And a gusty wind is rising slow,
Stirring the grass so damp and sear,
Rocking the moldy churchyard bier;
And a span-long Babe, with sobs and cries,
Into her bosom creeps and lies.—

"Suck little one! O suck your fill!
Though never a drop my veins distill.

"Why dost thou call me—call me low?
Why do I hear thee, when I know
That thou art dead, beneath the sod,

*And thy dear Soul at rest with God?
I hear thee sobbing, under the sod,
And I thought thy Soul at home with God."*—
Oh! it was a weird, weird sight
To see that Lady, in mournful plight,
Holding the Babe so blue and thin—
A span-long Babe, of bones and skin;
And it looked in her face, and moaned and sobbed:
"O cruel Mother! my soul is robbed—
Robbed of the Life that mine should be—Robbed of the Soul God meant for me:
I lie in the grave, and weep and sigh—
Alas that an Unborn Babe should die!"

"Now hold thy peace: how should it be
That I have wrong-ed aught in thee?
Oh! cease to call me through the gloom—
Lie down and rest in thy little tomb."—
—"I may not rest—I may not sleep;
I have no Soul, dear God, to keep;
I have no sin to be forgiven—
I have no sin to bar from Heaven.
I sit me down at Heaven's gate,
And for its opening watch and wait;
I see young children passing through,
And but for thee I might pass too!
An Earth-child now, by wild winds tossed,
Oh! give me back the dear Soul lost!"

"Ah! thou wilt go to Heaven's gate,
Where such as I must watch and wait;
And the pure Angels, seeing me,
Will know the sin that blackens thee,
I have no Soul—I knew no Life—
Unwilling Mother! faithless Wife!
And all my comfort, all my rest,
Are thus to lie upon thy breast;
And I must call thee, call thee here,
If I perchance may win a tear—
A Mother's love—a Mother's kiss—
In place of heaven's eternal bliss.
Hark! lay me in my damp, cold bed;
I hear the bird sing overhead,
And I must into darkness creep,
And with the glowworm wake and sleep."

Then wofully, in piteous plight,
Uprose that Lady, fair and bright,
And pressed her lips upon the sod;
"Oh! be Thou merciful, dear God!
*We are so slow the right to find—
We are so weak—we are so blind!"*—
Then homeward turn her weary feet,
To couch her limbs in snowy sheet.
"O God!" she cried, "the mystery!
The mystery we little see,
Nor half our Motherhood implies,
Which we so wantonly despise;
The sacredness that round us lies;
The sacredness of all our Life;
The sacredness of Mother—Wife;
The foretaste in a holy love
Of God's sweet tenderness above!
Can fast and prayer, at any cost,
Retrieve the Unborn Soul that's lost?"

"Occupy Till I Come"

THESE words although uttered many years ago sound in my ears to-day with thundering tones, saying, "I have given you a talent, and a mind, the greatest work of God. Then why not occupy and improve upon them?"

The tiny flower, hidden from all eyes, sends forth its fragrance of full happiness, and the mountain stream dashes along with a murmur of pure delight; the object of their creation is accomplished. Then shall not we, "creatures only a little lower than the angels," and who through the gospel, have the promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come, fill the measure of our creation? Then why grovel? Why crawl when we can soar? Why not ascend the lofty heights of wisdom, and obtain great treasures of knowledge, even hidden treasures, by living by every word that proceedeth from the mouth of God. Awake!

Saints, awake! There are exceeding great and precious promises given to those who live to the honor and glory of God.

Then let us not waste our time in idle dreams or golden fancies, but remember that we have talents unexercised, capacities undeveloped, and a victory to win. Arise! shake off the dull slothfulness, and let us call upon God in mighty prayer, and so occupy our time and talents that, when our Chief Shepherd shall appear, we may hear joyful tidings; "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make the ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." ### Consecration.

A FEW months after his baptism, three years since, the writer of this article was present at the organization of what we term a district of the Church of Latter Day Saints. At that time there were three meagre branches included in the territory comprising the district which reported a membership of fifty-six persons. Since that time it has been my privilege to observe the sacrifices made, and the trials and obstacles suffered and surmounted by those who have been employed by the said district as the special ministers of the gospel, while it has steadily increased to several times its original membership. Wishing to see this prosperity continue, and fearing that some who have been instrumental in the hands of God in building it up may be lost from the cause, is the reason why I offer this for publication; for it has been a privilege to me, as well as a duty I owe to the Church and my brethren who are richly gifted by God with ability to labor successfully in the ministry of the gospel, to endeavor to derive a knowledge of what the God-ordained duty of myself and others actually is, relative to the temporal support of such as spend their time in preaching the gospel. The subject introduced may be an unpleasant one to some, yet why should it be avoided when no class of christians believing in the New Testament can, we believe, reasonably charge the Church of Latter Day Saints with exorbitant expectations from its members. It is evident that there is a necessity for material and temporal assistance in the Church to carry forth the gospel by which we have been blessed, and if there is any revealed rule founded in equity and designed as a law for the careless and indifferent and a limit for the generous, the salvation of souls doubtless depends on a proper understanding of it in the Church. After a search through the Bible and Doctrine and Covenants, as well as the pages of profane history, I have wondered at the amount of evidence found that the only system of consecrations to the church that God has ever directed man to submit himself to, is a system of tithings, or tenths of the annual productions of the earth.

This system observed by Abraham was delivered to the children of Israel as the absolute law of God, and was observed by them for centuries. Since the establishment of it by the prophets of old, we also believe that Christ himself caused to be transmitted to all generations his own endorsement of the same, giving validity to the Mosaic law of consecrations by his own authority:

"Woe unto you scribes, Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tith of mint, and anise, and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy and faith; these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone."—Matt. 23 : 23.

If then God has a law of this kind by which he makes use of those whom he has graciously vouchsafed the knowledge of immortality and eternal life to aid in providing for the support of those whom he has commanded to preach the gospel, how important it is that the proper construction be placed upon it. Surely the evil must be great should a wrong and unjust interpretation be placed upon any system upon which the progress of the church and the preaching of the gospel may so greatly depend. How many of the Saints have felt their faith to waver in a perfectly reasonable and just system by which much good might be done, when they have listened to the interpretations placed upon section 106 of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; and especially would they feel so should hasty and inconsiderate opinions on the same be preached by the Elders. Let no rash or unwarranted statement of mine ever influence any one in regard to the mysteries of the kingdom of God, the building up of Zion on the earth, surplus properties, inheritances, covenants and deeds which can not be broken, etc., as referred to in the Book of Covenants.

Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, page 954, says of the children of Israel that, "one tenth of all the increase of the earth was exacted to be paid to the tribe that was set apart by revelation to officiate in the ordinances of the house of God for their support." Josephus, Book 4, chapter 4, par. 3, says that, "Moses commanded the Hebrews according to the will of God, that when they had gained possession of the land of Canaan they should assign forty-eight of the good and fair cities to the Levites; and besides this, he appointed that the people should pay the tithe of their annual fruits of the earth both to the Levites and the Priests." Mosheim's Ecclesiastical History, part 2, sec. 2, says, speaking of the Quakers of the seventeenth century, "They also refused obstinately to take the oath of allegiance to their sovereign and to pay tithes to the clergy, hence they were looked upon as rebellious subjects." Mal. 3:10: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now therewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it; and I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes," etc. Verse 16: "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another: and the Lord hearkened and heard it: and a book of remembrance was written before him for those who feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels."

Such was the ancient order of consecrations, given by commandment of God, as we find it recorded in the Bible as well as the histories quoted. We also have in modern times a worthy example before us, in the Church of England; which for centuries has grown in influence and power, as well as numbers, while at the same time she has had this old and divinely appointed law in constant operation; her communicants at the same time showing a remarkable degree of confidence in her time-honored institutions. What reason have we as Latter Day Saints to complain of a law by which the most enlightened government and church on earth derive their support. We receive from our own prophet the mild injunction which we believe to be a revelation from the Almighty. "Behold, now it is called to-day; (until the coming of the Son of man); and verily it is a day of sacrifice and a day for the tithing of my people."

The histories quoted above and the Bible prove to us the observance of this law for about four centuries; [from the inception of the christian Era—Ebs.]; hence, if we did not have any later intimations from God concerning it, have we not reason to believe it as a good and proper principle. Why is it any more exorbitant now than it was in any former century? Where can we find that God has ever repealed it? Some who have submitted themselves to it find a satisfaction in doing the same, and believe that they have been greatly blessed in making the consecration; so much so, that besides rendering the tenth part of that which they produce annually, like Abraham of old, they pay tithes of all they possess, believing that if God requires them to make any sacrifice under the law of the gospel that they surely should render the same tribute from the net productions of years, spent perhaps in sin and wickedness. If it is a righteous requirement that we pay a certain part of our year's net productions to the church, should we not pay the same from the fruit of any other year's increase? I know that we are unauthorized by those in the church having direction of these matters, to represent it to be a duty to tithe the accumulation of years spent while living under no law of such a nature, and not questioning the propriety and wisdom of leaving that question to be settled by the mind and conscience of every individual, let us not shrink from any principle by which old earth itself would be caused to render back to its Maker a reasonable part of its annual fruitfulness and wealth, to be applied to works of righteousness therein. This is what the law of tithing is calculated to accomplish. The wealthy farmer, miner, or manufacturer, whose gross annual earnings would be reduced perhaps ten thousand dollars by the payment of the wages of his laborers, the teacher, the preacher, and other necessary expenses, would perhaps feel not less keenly the sacrifice of one-tenth of the net balance than would they whose meagre salaries the ten thousand dollars went to pay. Thus all, with no exception, not even of the minister himself, or the laborer, would be making, we believe, a just, uniform, and, we hope, an acceptable sacrifice to God in such a proportion as would make it indeed a sacrifice to each of them.

When I survey the sacrifices made by noble christians of all ages, of friends, money, and all the ties of earth, and even life itself, for the gospel's sake; and then survey God's present church and people, the former with its laws and regulations for the latter to observe, having a mutual object in view, which we believe is glorious enough to have attracted the sympathy of angels as well as good men, I conclude that if the principles and doctrine alluded to above be just and true, and men can honor and heed the same without causing themselves or others needless distress, that they will be blessed by God in making the sacrifice.

Might there not be found in any church uneasy, restless, or ambitious men, either prone to contention, or eager for place or power; or, on the other hand, listless, indifferent, or indolent in temporal or spiritual affairs; whom, if they were zealously engaged in a legitimate effort to sacrifice as God required of them, would save themselves from woe and misery and the church from shame and reproach. Let this system of sacrifice be universally observed by us, and those of us who do not devote our entire time to the church direct our efforts in the proper channel, mutually to build up and sustain it temporally, through obedience to its laws which we profess to believe, would we not ourselves be elevated morally and spiritually, the church be prepared for her coming Lord, the wants of the poor relieved, Zion redeemed and her people blessed. Who can contemplate the amount of "toil without recompense" performed by those striving to build up the kingdom of God, without believing that that God who made "heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of water," can and will bless the same with productiveness to those who obey his commandments. What a happy reflection it may be through life if we have done all we should do for the things pertaining to eternity, and through eternity shall we not be happier if in our record is found one effort, or one sacrifice that some adornment may be added to the glorious bride while being arrayed for the last time to meet her coming Lord.

I write this to the Herald, hoping that it may attract the notice and consideration of the Saints in the North-West Kansas District, especially, and that they may be actuated by that continued kindness of heart which careth for the things of God, that we may not lose from our midst any of the three or four active laborers under whose ministrations our numbers have been increased, so that a half-dollar contributed quarterly from each would probably enable them to continue the noble work so well begun. With hope and faith that the principles above referred to, as well as some which affect the ardent hopes of many of the Saints; eventually to be gathered together to be blessed of God in righteousness, which have been so closely questioned by some, will together add to the great balance of truth in our favor in the infinite triumph.

A Stormy Sunday.

It is always in order to go to church on Sunday, for those who can get there. Modern invention has made it practicable for those who make a vigorous effort to reach the sanctuary on the most stormy Sunday. Rubber comes to the aid of devotion. Formerly the only protection against the weather was the umbrella. The December storm laughs at this bit of furniture, turns it inside out, rips its cover from its frame-work, and lands the scattered remains in widely different places on the opposite side of the street. Not so with the gossamer wrap, which the wearer winds tightly around the person. The rain may descend and the wind may beat on the light rubber garment, only to make it cling more closely to the owner. Men and women and little girls and boys gloomily glide along the streets in these garments, and face the storm with all the bravery of old-fashioned sea captains. Shod and capped and girt about with rubber goods they bid defiance to the rain and to the endeavors of old Satan to keep them from the house of prayer. Arriving at the vestibule, those who have umbrellas put the ends of the ribs thereof down the backs of the necks of all the people they can reach. Pleasant rivulets thus course their way down the spines of a great many of the worshippers. This promotes their comfort while sitting in the pew, and enables them to give better attention to the voice of the minister. As for the minister, he has it all his own way. He is under no special contract to preach a new sermon. If he choose, he can produce his oldest and driest, because the day is so moist. He can in effect say to his congregation that because so few of them have come he will give them a discourse which is not particularly worth listening to. But if he is smart, and knows what is best for him and his people, he will not do this. Rather will he reward the braves who have pushed through the tempest by giving them the brightest and freshest and most cheery sermon of his life. They deserve it, and they will thank him for doing the fair thing to them, when they have done their best for him and for the Master he serves.

"Go Thou and Do Likewise."

THUS spake the Lord unto the Lawyer who, it seems, had considered it a matter of doubt, in reference to whom the word neighbor applied. It is commonly used in reference to those who live near by us. But it is sometimes the case that men know and care as little about the wants and woes of their poor, unfortunate and suffering neighbors, as they do of strangers at a distance; and should they by some unforeseen circumstance chance to see or hear anything that would seem to call for compassion, or pecuniary aid, instead of making further enquiry, or of approaching nearer to the victim of distress, take more steps to shun it; by passing "by on the other side."

Knowing this fact, the compassionate Savior of mankind introduced this lesson of instruction, for the benefit of all who would do as they would be done by, and especially under such circumstances, as when a neighbor, or a stranger, or a sojourner, falls into the hands of such men as regard not the laws of God or of their own country. In order to get the force of this lesson impressed upon our mind, it is well to mind every word which fell from the Savior's lips, as he related the story. For both the priest and the Levite were from the same town and neighborhood from whence this robbed man had taken his journey down to Jericho, where they were eye witnesses, not of the previous tragedy, but of his suffering condition. And it is not very likely that they so much as mentioned it, lest they should be reproached for not doing anything for him as one of their own brethren, a Jew and of Abraham's seed, and a worshiper of the same God. But the Samaritan who showed such human sympathy, was the Jew's enemy.

The Samaritans were of the Assyrian nation, and as little thought of by the Jews as before they were planted in Samaria, after the king had carried away the ten tribes, and planted them in the cities of the Medes. But now, when this circumstance happened concerning this robbery of the Jew, although they might be considered as neighbors according to the common acceptation of the term, yet they had no more dealing together than the most distant of heathens. When this heathen saw the Jew in distress, he did not, like the priest and the Levite who were his near neighbors, pass him by uncared for; but went unto him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil, and wine, and set him upon his own beast, and took him unto an inn, and told the host to take good care of him, and he would pay the bill on his return, or when he came again.

Now who among us, whether Jews or Christians, will follow the example of that man, and thus obey this command of Jesus Christ, who still says, "Go thou and do likewise." And remember, also, that though once dead, he still lives; and speaketh the same things to all. No party spirit, or sectional differences, to excuse any man from making himself a neighbor to whomsoever he may find in need of help; even were such an one his enemy.

This word "neighbor" covers more ground than that of a brother, or member of the same family, church, or nation. No man or woman can follow this example, and do "likewise," whose deeds of charity are confined within the narrow limits of denominational prescriptions. True "Charity, like the sun, brightens every object on which it shines." "God sends his blessings on the evil as well as on the good." His children should be like him in character. True charity never says to one in need of human assistance, "Affiliate with the flock, and then demand care." Had the Samaritan said this much to the Jew, who was indeed already affiliated with a flock of another kind of religion, it is probable he might have been left in distress. For it is evident that men have died for their religion, whether Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Heathen. But few indeed are they who would exchange one of their own lives to save a whole nation. But who will save his soul from death; who would withhold his money, or his hand, to save his neighbor in distress? What justice or propriety could there be in saving such a soul in heaven among the blessed, who has less regard for the welfare of his fellow man than for his own perishable property. Love is the fulfilling of the law, whether it be found in the heart of a Heathen, Jew, or Christian. And, while it is admitted that "the love of money is the root of all evil," it must also be admitted that the love of God and man is the root of all good, and the foundation of all righteousness. And the Lord says to us all, "If ye love me, you will keep my commandments." And this one of which I am now speaking is one of no small consequence. For it is next unto the greatest commandment in the law, as said the Master, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

This case which I am now considering, is a very plain one, and easy to be understood by all who are willing to do by others as Christ told the enquiring lawyer, to take for his example the compassion and generosity manifested toward that enemy of his nation, whom he had so kindly treated, "Go thou and do likewise." Thou lawyer, priest, and Levite! thou Christian of every name, elime and color, who among you will regard this command, to "go and do" as that man did, and thus make of yourself a neighbor to such as have been wronged and robbed of their rights, as citizens of the commonwealth. You can not be excused for want of opportunity, for we live in a land of robbers, where the priests and Levites, or such as are often seen and heard at church among the proud officials, "pass by us on the other side," without so much as enquiring of us why we are lying here in this humble condition. And if the cry of our suffering chance to reach your ears, seldom, if ever, does it affect your hearts further than the sight affected those men, who, when they saw it, passed by on the other side.

Well may it be said of this generation:

"Broad is the road that leads to death,
And thousands walk together there;
But wisdom shows a narrow path,
With here and there a traveler."

Little do they consider that some day the same measure which they mete to others in this life will be justly meted back, by and by, to every man. For thus saith the Lord: "He that turneth away his ear from the cry of the needy, shall cry himself, and not be heard." As one of the "watchmen," I see the sword coming upon this state and nation, for the robberies and wrongs done against their own citizens and neighbors; and the cry of the sufferers is made in vain, before governors and law-makers, and there is no power put in execution for those robberies and murders which have been done openly before the public, so that the criminals are known, and the vengeance of God will be speedily visited upon the guilty. Where is the good Samaritan to show kindness to these, that all the priests and missionaries "pass by?"

"Do good to all men, especially to the household of faith."—Gospel word.

No doubt there are many ways of doing good. But one way is to pity the poor and needy, by relieving or helping. And to this important duty I propose to cite attention.

The Lord has said, in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 99, verse 2, third edition, what shall happen to the man who neglects his duty towards the poor and needy by refusing to impart of his substance for their benefit, as any one may read in that revelation; viz., "he shall with the wicked lift up his eyes in hell, being in torment." This duty, then, is one that can not be dodged or omitted without fearful consequences. The Holy Scriptures, of both Old and New Testament, are full of lessons upon this subject, but none more pointed and plain than this one through the Martyr, Joseph Smith, Jun. But one quite similar may be seen and read in the gospel, by one who held the keys of the kingdom, when he said, "Whoso hath this world's goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion toward him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" And again it is said in the same gospel, "If any man love not our Lord Jesus Christ, let him be accursed." And lest any one should think of dodging this duty, or the penalty, by saying, "He is not my brother," let him look at the law, which says, "If thy brother be waxen poor, or fallen in decay with thee, thou shalt relieve him by supplying his need;" or "If he be a stranger or sojourner," the same duty is required, as toward a brother, for the mercy of God is over all the work of his hands. (Read Leviticus 25:35).

What I have said is enough to remind any Latter Day Saint of his duty as it regards imparting of his substance a portion for the supplying of their need, "according to the law of the gospel." No man can plead ignorance upon this point of duty. He who loves his earthly substance above his neighbor, or more than he loves his brother in Christ, is not worthy of the name of a saint. Remember the sentence of the great Master of assemblies, who has said of such delinquents, they "shall," whether one or more, "lift up their eyes in hell, with the wicked, being in torment."

The Lord has made known his purpose to provide for his saints. He says, "It must needs be done in my own way." And then tells us what his "own way" is, as any one may read in that revelation to which I have referred, viz., after telling us what all must admit, that he "stretched out the heavens, and built the earth as a very handy work," etc., seeing all things belong to him, and he has made men to be stewards of what they possess; therefore, God's way is, "that the poor be exalted, in that the rich are made low." He could make a poor man suddenly rich, independent of any man's help, if he should choose to do it in that way. But that is not the way which he has spoken of in this revelation; neither is it the way by which he doubled Job's possessions, when he "turned his captivity." But his way was then, as now, by moving upon the hearts of such men as ought to consider his needy condition, and lay to a helping hand, by imparting of their substance for his temporal benefit. And the Lord heard the prayer of Job when he said, "Have pity upon me, have pity upon me, O ye my friends; for the hand of God hath touched me." They did so, and got well paid for it, through Job's prayers. Go thou and do as they did, or likewise.

A Buried Race in Kansas.

It is well known that the wrought-stone implements found in the ancient river gravels of California prove conclusively that during or before the glacial period the Pacific coast was inhabited by man. In a report on archaeological explorations in Kansas, Judge E. P. West, of that State, presented a large amount of evidence to show that at an equally remote period that region was peopled by a race compared with which the mound-builders must be accounted modern.

The geology of the region is simple. Prior to the drift-epoch the river channels were deeper than now, and the river valleys were lower. Subsequently the valleys were filled by a lacustrine deposit of considerable depth. In or beneath this last deposit the remains of an extinct race occur.

Such remains have been found at various depths in seven different counties along or near the Kansas Pacific railroad, namely, Douglas, Pottawattamie, Riley, Dickenson, Marion, Ellsworth and Lincoln counties. With one exception, the remains have all been found on the second bottom or terrace of streams, and consist of stone implements, pottery, human bones and bone implements. In most cases they were struck in digging wells at a depth of from twenty to thirty feet below the surface. In view of the fact that there is not more than one well to the square mile in the counties named, and the area of a well forms but a very small fraction of a square mile, Judge West thinks the evidence already obtained not only sufficient to prove the existence of the buried race, but to prove that they were very numerous. We can hardly assume that chance has directed the digging of wells only where human remains are buried.

Whether the race existed before the glacial epoch or immediately after it is too early to determine. Judge West is inclined to fix their time of occupancy as after the glacial epoch and prior to the deposition of the Loess. In calling upon the local newspapers of Kansas to lay the facts before the people, and urging the propriety of saving such remains when found, and noting carefully the conditions under which they occur, the Judge says:

"Here we have a buried race enwrapped in a profound and startling mystery—a race whose appearance and exit in the world's drama precede stupendous geological changes marking our continent, and which, perhaps, required hundreds of thousands of years for their accomplishment. The prize is no less than determining when this mysterious people lived, how they lived, when they passed out of existence, and why they became extinct."—Scientific American.

Universal Salvation Refuted.

SOME of our Elders dwell so much upon the doctrine of universal salvation, and so many articles having appeared in the Herald in which it is positively stated that "all men will be saved," that I thought to give a few quotations upon that subject, from the Book of Mormon, which, to my mind, perfectly settles that question.

In the 3d paragraph of the 12th chapter of the 2d Book of Nephi, we find this language: "And behold, others he flattereth away, and telleth them there is no hell; and he saith unto them, I am no devil, for there is none; and thus he whispereth in their ears, until he grasps them with his awful chains, from whence there is no deliverance. Yea, they are grasped with death and hell; and death and hell, and the devil, and all that have been seized therewith, must stand before the throne of God, and be judged according to their works, from whence they must go into the place prepared for them, even a lake of fire and brimstone, which is endless torment"

I know I may be told that endless torment is God's torment, or, in other words, that "endless punishment is God's punishment." Now if we can find what is God's punishment, then we can find what constitutes endless punishment.

Alma, speaking upon this subject, in the 12th paragraph of the 19th chapter of the book of Alma, says:

"And thus we see that all mankind were fallen, and they were in the grasp of justice; yea, the justice of God, which consigned them forever to be cut off from his presence. And now the plan of mercy could not be brought about, except an atonement should be made; therefore God himself atoneth for the sins of the world, to bring about the plan of mercy, to appease the demands of justice, that God might be a perfect, just God, and a merciful God also. Now repentance could not come unto men, except there were a punishment, which also was eternal as the life of the soul should be, affixed opposite to the plan of happiness, which was as eternal also as the life of the soul. * * * But there is a law given, and a punishment affixed, and a repentance granted; which repentance, mercy claimeth: otherwise justice claimeth the creature, and executeth the law, and the law inflicteth the punishment; if not so, the works of justice would be destroyed, and God would cease to be God. But God ceaseth not to be God, and mercy claimeth the penitent, and mercy cometh because of the atonement; and the atonement bringeth to pass the resurrection of the dead: and the resurrection of the dead bringeth back men into the presence of God; and thus they are restored into his presence; to be judged according to their works; according to the law and justice; for behold, justice exerciseth all his demands, and also mercy claimeth all which is her own; and thus, none but the truly penitent are saved."

This is the testimony of Alma, by which we learn that God's punishment is as enduring as the life of the soul. But lest some may say that Nephi and Alma were but men, and might possibly be mistaken, I will introduce the testimony of the Lord Jesus, when ministering to the Nephites on this land, after his crucifixion and resurrection from the dead, as recorded in the last paragraph of the 12th chapter of the book of Nephi, in the latter part of the Book of Mormon where he says:

"And it shall come to pass, that whoso repenteth and is baptized in my name, shall be filled; and if he endureth to the end, behold him will I hold guiltless before my Father, at that day when I shall stand to judge the world. And he that endureth not unto the end, the same is he that is also hewn down and cast into the fire, from whence they can no more return, because of the justice of the Father."

With these testimonies before me, I prefer believing the word of God rather than the vain imaginations of men. Some may think these paragraphs conflict with the vision in the Book of Covenants, but upon examination, they will find they do not. The vision, speaking of the sons of perdition, says:

"These are they which shall go away into the lake of fire and brimstone, with the devil and his angels, * * * they shall go away into everlasting punishment, which is endless punishment, which is eternal punishment, to reign with the devil and his angels in eternity, where their worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched, which is their torment, and the end thereof, neither the place thereof, nor their torment, no man knows."

One writer in the Herald argues that because the term end is used in the last quotation, that necessarily there must be an end to their punishment. That expression, to my understanding, is precisely of the same character as those used in the last chapter of Revelations, where the Lord says: "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end." "The first and the last," &c. I can not think for a moment, that any brother will conclude, from the foregoing quotations that there will be an end to the existence of the Lord; therefore I am a firm believer in the never ending punishment of the sons of perdition.

EBENEZER ROBINSON.

Crawford and Dunham Debate.

In Rock Creek township, Hancock County, Illinois, the Latter Day Saints are getting to be quite famous for their religious discussions, and again it has been the battle ground in "a war of words," this time between Bro. J. A. Crawford and the Rev. Joshua Dunham of the United Brethren.

The debate opened Tuesday morning, February 17th, 1880, the following proposition being under discussion:

Do the Scriptures teach that immersion is the mode of water baptism.

J. A. Crawford affirmed; Dunham denied.

Three days, of two sessions each day, were used in the discussion of this question; and one day, of two sessions, was devoted to a consideration of the following:

"Do the Scriptures teach water baptism is for the remission of sins, and essential to salvation?"

Crawford affirmed; Dunham denied:

The Rev. gentleman would not meet our brother and use King James' translation as a standard of evidence, for he had been informed that Bro. Crawford knew nothing about the languages. So he must needs, wise man that he was, go back to the original. But he had counted without his host, for Bro. Crawford demonstrated to the satisfaction of all honest minds present, that Rev. Dunham did not know the first principles of the languages for he routed the Reverend from his Greek fortifications, and turned his own guns upon him, and poured in such a hot fire from the standard lexicons and grammars of both Greek and Latin, that he never mentioned Greek after the close of the second day; yet, our brother, when opportunity offered, continued to use his own guns upon him to the close of the discussion.

Rev. Dunham attempted to carry off the honors, by a system of sharp ridicule, withering sarcasm; but here, he was again met by Bro. Crawford, a little more than half way, so that system of defence failed him.

On the first question Bro. Crawford founded six arguments, which Rev. Dunham failed, utterly failed to shake or move. On the second question our brother founded nine arguments, which the Reverend never attempted to remove. So, all told, it may indeed be considered that Bro. Crawford successfully affirmed both questions, and fully routed all the assaults, his opponent made on his position.

At the close of the debate on the second question, Bro. Crawford publicly challenged Rev. Dunham to a four day's discussion on the church question; the Reverend declined stating he would accept if he only had the time; then our brother challenged him again, offering to accompany him home and discuss the question there; he declined the invitation.

Elder Richard Lambert of Rock Creek, and the Rev. Bushnell, of Blandensville, were the moderators chosen; and good order was maintained throughout the discussion. Great interest was manifested, and the audiences were very large, despite the unfavorable condition of the roads. The faith of the Saints was greatly strengthened, and they were altogether satisfied with the results of the discussion; while we have no doubt but that many "outsiders" saw very clearly the weakness of the position held by the Rev. Dunham.

Bro. Crawford has another discussion arranged to begin the 10th of March, his opponent then will be Professor Palmer, an infidel, to be held in the Rock Creek Church. We think Bro Crawford to be an able defender of truth, and very capable of defending the cause he is laboring for; and pray that God may send forth more laborers like unto him. Your brother in the gospel,

Mother of Harlots.

THERE has been and still is much speculation as to the origin of the organization spoken of in Revelations denominated Babylon, or Mother of Harlots. What makes it difficult of satisfactory solution is, to find who she is, when she was, and if still in existence, where she is to be found. It is generally acknowledged, that the Mother of Harlots spoken of in Revelations has reference to some religious organization. Some, however, think Babylon, (which appears to be another name belonging to her), is the world of mankind. That portion of the religious world, known as Protestant, opposed to the Roman Catholic Church, denominate that church, the Mother of Harlots. It is this assertion that I propose to stop and examine. It appears from reading the revelation concerning her, that whatever organization she represents, whether religious or otherwise, the devil is the prime mover of, and in it; and with which the God of heaven has nothing to do. If we say it represents an organization making claim to religious pretensions, we do well to remember, that she is called mother, which signifies that she has posterity; and her posterity, necessarily partake of her nature, and would represent religious organizations also; for her children are called harlots, which is in the plural number.

But that we may make an impartial test, let us take the ground, that the Mother of Harlots is personified in the church of Rome. History would seem to confirm the claim, that the church of Rome had its origin in the Church of Christ, which was established by the Apostles of Jesus Christ. And if it is claimed that the Church of Christ apostatized, and thereby lost its identity, and subsequently became the Mother of Harlots; we do well to remember that the woman spoken of in another place in Revelations, as being clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, with a crown of twelve stars, is claimed to represent the true Church of Christ, by all Christian denominations. It is said that she fled into the wilderness, where there was a place prepared of God for her; showing that God had a care for her. And if fleeing into the wilderness means apostacy, whereby she became the "whore of all the earth," then God prepared a place, where she could successfully carry on her soul destroying business: a claim which I think no one would dare to make. The word mother, implies posterity, or children, to which of course she is closely allied, or attached; and if Mother of Harlots, means religious organizations, we must look for religious organizations, not Roman Catholic, but which are closely allied to her. And since she, (the church of Rome), holds as a vital principle that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, so her posterity will be found to have incorporated in their religious platforms, as an essential vital principle, the same claim. If we pursue this course, it brings us to notice, that the religious, Christian denominations of this kind, were organized by those who came out from the church of Rome; and consequently are her offspring, however much they may have become estranged from her. And, while it may be claimed, that the daughters are not as bad as the mother, still they are called harlots. Besides, the communicants of the church of Rome might claim, that the mother could be pure and chaste, while her daughters may have strayed into paths of vice. So that in order for the Protestant Christian world to be free from any stigma of this kind, they will have to find some other organization to wear the title. Again. To say the church of Rome is of the devil, and that the other Christian churches, are the outgrowth or offspring from her, is to overlook or deny the fact, that through their instrumentality, mankind have been raised to a higher moral standing. And many a poor forsaken, besotted, sin cursed soul, has been saved to his family, his friends and community, as also to future happiness. Besides, it is generally acknowledged that this country as well as the old, owes to some extent at least, a peace and prosperity, to the existence of these organizations, the church of Rome not excepted. And to say, they are of the devil, is to accord more goodness to him than appears in the record. Let us therefore see if we can discover what this mother was to do, and then perhaps we may be able to decide, if she were religious, or otherwise.

The Christian, religious world, through their instrumentalities, seek to bless and make happy in this life and in the next, those with whom their influence is felt; while in a pecuniary way, a large share are not improved. But, with this other organization, the kings and those who trade by land and sea, are made rich in the things of this life; are enabled to possess all manner fine twined linen, gold, silver, all manner of precious stones and wood; are enabled to enjoy the nicest delicacies and luxuries, to enjoy all the gay, dashing splendor that the talent, wisdom and toil of man can produce: to occupy lucrative positions of rule and trust; thereby wielding an influence for good or ill, as the case may be. But not a word said about bettering their condition morally, or spiritually; or making them an honor to the Creator, by becoming assimilated more to the character of God. To still cling to the generally accepted theory, would be to rob God of the honor due, for all the good referred to in the foregoing paragraph; and credit his satanic majesty with blessing mankind, instead of seeking to destroy, of honoring God instead of rebelling against him.

If we are referred to the declaration of Nephi, in the Book of Mormon, "that there be, save two churches only;" viz. the Church of God and the church of the devil; let it be remembered, that this was said in a time anterior to the birth of Christ. Lehi, Nephi's father, left Jerusalem in the first year of the reign of Zedekiah, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, made king over the remnant of Israel in Jerusalem: and he reigned eleven years; after which, Cyrus king of Persia carried Israel into captivity seventy years, making a period of at least eighty one years. And what Nephi said of the churches, must have been sometime within that period; which was a long time before the birth of Christ, and before the church of Rome was known. And to apply Nephi's statement to this present time would be about as inconsistent as it would be to say, there is only the church of Rome and the church of Luther, which claim to be Christian; which once might have been true, but which it is apparent to every one would not be true to-day. Another evidence of the correctness of this position, is the declaration of John in saying, "I heard another voice from heaven saying, come out of her my people, (meaning the Mother of Harlots), in which God acknowledged as his people, some of the human family, who are found to be members both of His Church and the church of the Mother of Harlots at the same time. Now every one knows that no one can be a Latter Day Saint, and retain their membership in any of the other churches; nor can they identify themselves as members of any other church, and be recognized as Latter Day Saints. But by the revelation, it appears that some of God's people sustain a two fold membership; and will, until a revelation is given from heaven, calling upon them to come out of her. Nor does the revelation declare that they can not still continue this two fold relation; providing, they are willing to receive of her plagues; for it would seem that the call was to enable God's people to escape terrible disaster, more than to classify their relation with God or Satan.

Our mission as Saints of God, is to freely give to others that which we have so freely received, and in the possession of which we are made so unspeakably happy. But how can we give, if we can not approach the objects to whom our offering is made; and if we make ourselves obnoxious by word, or deed to those around us, then the more we try to approach them the farther off they go from us; thereby lessening, if not altogether destroying our chances of success. I think no declaration of the Saints can be better calculated to destroy in the different religious sects, that feeling of tolerance and kindness towards us as a people differing so widely from them as we do, than to make the statement that they belong to the church of the devil. I do not object to the Saints declaring the truth, and the whole truth; but even that should be spoken in wisdom. But when the brethren and sisters in a condition of over-zealous anxiety to do good, speak unwarrantedly and unwisely, then the good they wish to do, and which undoubtedly they might have done is lost. In the Doctrine and Covenants we read, "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness," etc. But if we say harsh things to them or of them, we have no just claim to their friendship. At this present time, the mere fact that we differ from the religions world in our claim of present revelation, has diminished to a very diminutive size, since we in common with them, hold that Jesus is the Christ, and with them are endeavoring to spread the principles of his gospel in all the world. If the brethren and sisters will cultivate a spirit of tolerance, forbearing to make offensive speeches, or in any way to speak disrespectfully or lightly of other people's religious views; but to the contrary show a respect for their honesty and sincerity; no one can tell how soon, nor how often our Elders may be welcomed to offer the fulness of the gospel to their congregations. As Latter Day Saints, we need to grasp every friendly hand offered, and hold that grasp as long as is possible without sacrificing truth or principle.

If in the attempt to prove that the Church of Rome is not the Mother of Harlots, (which I believe to have been shown me by the Spirit), I shall have persuaded any to be more careful in the future, then are my efforts rewarded.

Discoveries in Palestine.

FOR several years past the Holy Land has been the field of careful topographical research, conducted by the British and American exploration societies,—the one operating west, the other east of the Jordan. In the former district there are to be identified perhaps 600 scriptural localities; in the latter not more than sixty. Yet the difficulties to be encountered in each case are substantially the same—Arabs and malaria being the most serious. In the face of these and other obstacles Dr. Selah Merrill has been conducting his operations on behalf of the American society, of which the Rev. R. D. Hitchcock is president for the last two years, and now returns to report his achievement. Indeed, for want of funds, his work is practically cut short at a point where the discoveries made promise of the largest results. His operations near the Dead Sea leave no doubt in Dr. Merrill's mind that he is on the track of the lost Cities of the Plain. The popular belief that these were submerged by the waters of the Dead Sea, he maintains, is altogether erroneous. At a point near the northern end of the sea, where certain rebuilt cities exactly correspond in number and location to those that were destroyed, he caused some excavations to be made. Here, underlying the mud huts of the Arabs he found three buried cities one below the other. The uppermost dated back to the Roman period; under that appeared ruins of a Hebrew character; and, last of all, at a depth of thirty to forty feet, relies were unearthed of a still earlier epoch and more primitive architecture. It may be that the evidences are not strong enough as yet to identify these beyond question, as the remains of Sodom and Gomorrah; but it is, obviously, in that neighborhood and by such methods that their vestiges are to be sought. The determination of this fact alone would be an adequate return for all the money and pains which the society has expended.

The value of this class of discoveries can hardly be over-estimated. They revise our notions of Scripture events. When we read of the wonderful capacity of the Holy Land for fertilization, we cease to wonder at the old figurative notion of its flowing with milk and honey. When stories are told to us of vast architectural ruins, of the remains of irrigating canals, of Roman roads extending up and down the country five hundred miles, we realize that it was once, whatever it may be now, a land worth possessing and worth developing.

One Mis-step.

ONE step may shape a character and destiny. If it be a right step, the character and destiny will be rightly shaped. If a wrong step, a mis-step, then the character and destiny will be wrongly shaped.

Liberty or bondage; prosperity or adversity; joy or sorrow; life or death, are suspended on a single step! We often hear it said, "Why it was only one mis-step!" True, only one mis-step; and yet see what results! How the mind has been clouded by it, the conscience defiled, the moral sensibilities stupefied! Only one mis-step, and yet the Spirit is grieved, and the prospect of eternal life obscured. One mis-step often leads to others—to a succession of mis-steps. Once let the individual leave the beaten path, by a single step, and he may wander on in darkness, and never find the narrow road again.

Only one mis-step! What is it! "Why, I only gave way to a little ill-temper." But see the result! The children observed it. Children are sharp-eyed. They are close watchers. They are quick to mark the mis-step, and they have tenacious memories. Long after the occurrence which you call a "little thing," has passed from your recollection, they have it vividly in remembrance. The poison has entered their young minds. They see in the mis-step a departure from the Christian faith, and they are unfavorably effected. For years perhaps, possibly forever, that one mis-step may hold them from the cross.

Only one mis-step! What is it? Why, simply a careless word affecting some one's character," say you. True, but remember, the poison of asps is under a careless tongue. "Behold what a great matter a little fire kindleth!" That careless word is repeated. It runs from one to another. An innocent person suffers loss in point of reputation. The mischief sweeps through the community like a sirocco-breeze. Alas! for the deadly power of that careless word.

Only one mis-step! What was it? "A slight deviation from the rule of rectitude in a business transaction—a very little thing, hardly noticeable," you say. Yes, but it was observed by the other party to the trade. He is not a Christian, but he knows you make the profession. He can not reconcile the transaction with the Christian character. It rankles in his heart. He had serious thoughts about seeking Christ—those serious thoughts are now dispelled. Satan, ever ready to seize upon such advantages, weaves his net-work more thoroughly around his soul, and that soul drops into perdition, the eternal victim of a single mis-step!

How we need to walk circumspectly, to "set a watch at the door of our lips," and "Be ever standing on our guard,

And watching unto prayer."

It will invariably be found that the most censurable are the most censorious; while those who have the least need of indulgence are the most indulgent.

Winter, which strips the leaves from around us, makes us see the distant regions they formerly concealed; so does old age rob us of our enjoyments, only to enlarge the prospect of eternity before us.

Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.
HENRY A. STEBBINS, ASSISTANT.

Plano, Illinois, July 1st, 1880.

BRO. CHARLES A. WICKS, one of those appointed by Conference, last April, to the Texas Mission, and who went directly to his field of labor, after the adjournment, made Taylor, Red River county, Texas, his centre of labor. We have before noticed the fact that some of the citizens of that part of the country, feeling aggrieved that Bro. Wicks was there, ordered him to leave. After this, some fifteen of them waited upon Bro. Wicks and another brother at work upon a building of some sort for another of the Saints, and waking them from their sleep in the night, compelled Bro. Wicks, on peril of death if he refused, to agree to leave the place. Promises made under duress are not binding either in law or morals; so Bro. Wicks and others of the Saints determined to try for protection, and appealed to the courts. The arrest of the ring leader was effected, and the day for the trial set. An effort was made to maneuver the brethren out of court; this was frustrated, when the parties implicated sued for a settlement, and a compromise was effected, by which the matter was to be dropped, but Bro. Wicks "must go," (what a word in American polity). This accomplished, Bro. Wicks went about his affairs; but the desperado who was the leader, a Mr. Wilkins, having been arrested for some other offense, while in the custody of the sheriff and waiting the making out of a bond for his appearance for trial, made an attack, with two of his associates, upon Bro. Wicks in the court house. Bro. Wicks, however, backed into a corner and succeeded in avoiding serious hurt, till the sheriff and a bystander interfered and relieved him.

Prior to all this, Bro. Wicks and a man by the name of Worley, had agreed upon the terms of discussion, time and place agreed upon also. This man though seemingly fair, was one of those who arranged the "treaty" by which Bro. Wicks was to go; and when the whole affair was over, he wished Bro. Billingsly to agree that Bro. Wicks should promise not to publish the affair but keep still about it. This Bro. Billingsly refused to do without consulting Bro. Wicks, and when Bro. Wicks was appealed to, he very properly declined to make any such promise.

Indeed, mob a man out of a place, where he was peacefully prosecuting a legitimate and honorable calling; or suffer it to be done, by neglecting or refusing to defend the person being driven out, and then ask that the one so shamefully maltreated shall pocket the affront and conceal the outrage. No, citizens of Clarksville, be it known to you, and all the other cities of this wide land, that Clarksville, Texas, shall not be deprived by silence on our part, of the honors due her for thus outraging the right of an American citizen to be "heard for his cause." No, Clarksville, Texas, must be added to the "Bull-dozing" towns of the South, where the "shot gun" policy is relied upon to meet the approaches of the gospel of restoration.

Bro. Wicks left the place, for Oenaville, Bell county, where he will join Bro. Bozarth and Thompson, where it is to be hoped he may find a better reception. Surely, if Bro. Wicks, being a young man, lacked experience, as it was urged in Conference against his appointment, he is getting that essential qualification rapidly. We pray for Bro. Wicks' success in his labor of love to man.

On the 14th of June, 1880, we received at the office a letter from Bro. D. J. Phillips, presiding Elder of the branch of the Church at Oaklands, California, enclosing a letter from Hiram P. Brown, to him, tendering his resignation of membership, and asking a dismissal from communion, giving as his reason for so doing that he did not believe in the "dogma taught by said Reorganized Church that the First day of the week commonly called 'Sunday,' is the Christian Sabbath and binding upon said church to keep."

The letter is couched in respectful language and expresses the wish that "we all may see eye to eye when the Lord brings Zion." The Saints will, therefore, for these reasons, bear in mind that from the date of Elder Brown's letter, May 31st, 1880, he is not authorized to act as an officer, or minister of the Reorganized Church, or to officiate for said church. We also received a letter of a similar import from Elder Brown, dated June 7th, 1880.

We sincerely regret this step of Elder H. P. Brown's; but, as every man must answer for himself, we do not wish to dictate for him the course he should pursue. We hope that he may ultimately return to the Church, and that we may all indeed see aright. We counsel all Saints to think and deal kindly and courteously with Elder Brown, and all others who may choose to do as he has done.

The Saints of the District in California, over which Elder Brown was to have oversight, until the action of Conference was had dividing the Mission, will please be patient, and assemble as promptly on July 4th as practicable, and choose such person to preside as may be acceptable to them.

On the 7th June, we received a letter from Elder Joseph A. Crawford, of Farmington, Iowa, lately appointed to the South Eastern Mission, containing his license as an Elder, and the certificates of himself and wife, with the request that his name be dropped from the roll of Elders, and dropped or erased from the Church Record; assigning bad treatment from the membership of his locality to his wife and himself as the reason for such request. The Saints will, therefore, take notice that from and after May 31st, 1880, Elder Joseph A. Crawford is not authorized to act as an officer of the Reorganized Church, or officiate in the name of said church. The Saints of the South Eastern Mission will report to Elder F. P. Scarcliff, Moss Point, Mississippi, and to Elder J. H. Hansen, Farmington, Kentucky, until further notice.

We have had great regard for Elder Crawford, and hope that this unfortunate affair may terminate well for the Church and himself in a return to its fold. We further counsel courtesy and good will to all concerned; as we do not hold the consciences of any, nor dictate their course. Bro. Crawford does not charge fault to the faith or to the officers of the Church.

Do not order any more Abbreviated Harps—they are out of print.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

SENDING communications without signing the name of the writer will not secure their insertion in the HERALD or HOPE. The publication of the name is not necessary but the Editors need to know who the persons are who write.

Bro. E. Harrington, London, Ontario, mentions their having had an excellent conference at their last session. Bro. C. Scott and G. T. Griffiths were present.

Bro. David J. Powell writes from Stewartville, Missouri, that the branch there was doing well. They have a meeting house nearly finished two and a half miles north of town.

Bro. E. Penrod writes June 9th from Elko, Nevada. He is just home from the mines. He is expecting to be a loser by a bank failure of M. P. Freeman, of some thousands of dollars.

Bro. J. J. Kaster writes from Independence, Missouri, May 26th, stating that they had a good conference, compromising upon the meeting house affair in such a way that the house will be finished and the Saints have time to extricate themselves from their financial trouble. We now advise the dropping of all hostile, or unfriendly opposition by all hands and a strong pull all together in friendship and the bonds of peace.

Bro. J. J. Cornish is to meet Rev. William Ellerthorp in discussion June 19th, 1880, on the following propositions: "Resolved, that the Doctrinal part of the Book of Mormon is as much inspired as is the Bible," (King James version). Bro. Cornish affirms: "Resolved that the like gifts and blessings as were enjoyed by the Saints in the days of the Apostles, are done away, and are not necessary in these days or age of the world." Ellerthorp affirms. The Bible and Book of Mormon to be the standards of evidence on the first; and the Bible only in the second proposition.

Bro. J. O. Stewart writes from Taylor, Red River county, Texas, June 2nd, that persecution is pretty strong there. Bro. Charles Wicks had been ordered to leave the country and fear were entertained that some of the Saints would be badly treated. Bro. Stewart was proposing to make a tour into the Indian country to preach there. We wish him ample success.

Bro. Jobe Brown is again at Maquoketa, Iowa, and is doing good service. He says, I held ten protracted meetings, from two to six days in duration, and have had favorable and profitable hearings. The different denominations where I have labored; dwelling houses, school houses and churches have been thrown open to me; and when I was through, hearty invitations to come again have been extended to me; and the future use of their houses has been tendered, with one exception. At the district conference I was invited to spend most of my time in this district as an Evangelist, with the promise of temporal support, which I have tried to do, and my wants thus far have been supplied. I am living by faith for the future. I have baptized three since I was there; one a Methodist preacher of about forty years standing. He is a man of ability, experience, and good report. Two days or protracted meetings June 19th, 20th, at Amber, Louisa county, Iowa, June 26th, 27th at Monticello, as Bro. Grey may arrange, July 3d and 4th Clinton, Iowa; July the 10th, 11th, at the Anderson school house, Iowa."

Bro. Elias Land, residing in Thornton, Texas, waked up a queer sort of revival down there and this is how he did it. He sent to the office for a lot of tracts; and he and his wife working together put the tracts into envelopes and sent them to the women folks of the neighborhood, with the following result: "Since which time I have seen no peace, for the husbands of these ladies have been charging upon me, and so many orders and commands that it is impossible for me to obey; (if I was inclined to); charging us with polygamy and other damaging doctrines, such as are taught by the Salt Lakers. "Why do the heathen rage and people imagine a vain thing?" I can only answer, because they are ignorant of the doctrine of Jesus Christ.

Bro. Joseph Luff wrote from Provo, Utah, June 7th, that the meetings being held there by him were largely attended, and he anticipates the organization of a branch there. His letter is bright and cheerful and he is full of confidence regarding the future of the Reorganized Church and of its mission to Utah, if effective men are sent into it and kept there or replaced by those equally suited for that field. On the 9th he went to Springville and on the 10th baptized two persons, thereby increasing that branch (lately organized) to nineteen members.

Bro. L. R. Devore wrote from Bridgeport, Ohio, June 21st, that it was not considered possible then for Sr. Eliza Ellis to recover from her long illness, in fact she was considered to be not far from passing away to the other world.

Sr. C. Hendrickson sends us a copy of Pure Religion, published at Shellsburg, Iowa, by the Evangelists.

The challenge that was some time since published in the Drych, as given by an elder of the Brighamite persuasion there, seems to have been neutralized by Bro. Derry and Luff, who both have been there and offered the gage of battle. It is a little like the expression of a brother, who a few days ago in the stand said: "I suppose the rest of the Saints are like me in some respects. I find that I have the most patience when I need it the least." So with this man; he sounded a tocsin in Welsh, but it found an English echo, and our brethren are there and in the field.

Sister S. A. Rose of Graysville, Ohio, laments the removal to Missouri of the officers of the branch whereof she is a member, so that no meetings are held, and those left feel alone. May they be sustained in faith and confirmed daily by the divine power manifest.

Bro. George H. Graves wrote from St. Thomas, Ontario, June 21st, saying that he would start that day for the South-Eastern Mission, to which he was appointed at the last April General Conference. He leaves his wife and child at St. Thomas. We wish Bro. Graves a safe journey, a cordial reception in Alabama and other states where he expects to minister, and also good success in his efforts for the conversion and salvation of souls. He will labor in that mission in association with Bro. F. P. Scarcliff.

Bro. Blair, writing from Provo, Utah, June 16th, says: "Last night I preached here, in Methodist Church, on the prophetic mission of your father, to a large and attentive congregation. At the close Rev. Jayne, the pastor, replied; but he did himself and church much harm. Daily we are receiving assurances favorable to our work. The "heaven" is working finely. By card this a. m., Bro. Derry tells me he will attend the Malad Conference, June 20th and 21st. I shall go to the city on the 18th or 19th inst., and may remain there for a few weeks.

Bro. Blair writes from Springville, Utah, June 14th: "We are having crowded congregations here and at Provo. Some are coming forward for baptism." From Provo, same date, 2 p. m.: "Bro. Joseph Luff baptized three here yesterday, and two more—an intelligent young Danish missionary and wife—have given their names. More are near. One man is to be baptized at Springville this afternoon. The outlook is excellent.

Bro. John Eames wrote from Sheep Mountain, a new mining camp, June 2d, on a board running in between and supported by the spokes of his wagon. He was in the bustle of a new mining excitement, but had the gospel and its presentation uppermost in his mind. He was trying to build a meeting and school house.

Bro. W. W. Belcher writes from Hearn, Robertson county, Texas, that their eight members have been increased to twelve by four baptisms, and he feels that they are alive in the work of the Lord.

One writing over the signature of E. D. B. relates that the Des Moines Valley Branch in Iowa, (consisting of about forty members), enjoys the blessing of the Holy Spirit when they meet, and thereby they are confirmed and strengthened, though differences trouble the waters some. A two-day's meeting held there June 12th and 13th was a good one and people were awakened. Bro. I. N. White, Stamm, Lloyd and Nirk were there, and effective sermons were preached. The writer bears witness to the joy and peace received in the gospel.

Bro. Henry and Sr. Mary Ann Peterson write from Lander City, Wyoming, how that they left their native land for the sake of the gospel. Their children have grown up and left them; so that now they have no one left to read the HERALD to them, and therefore they wish it printed in the Swedish language. We wish we were able to print it in that and other languages as well; but as we can not, we must wait.

We thank the following for papers received: Brethren J. M. Leland, B. F. Boydston, Thomas Henning, H. J. Hudson, J. A. Forgeus, Thomas Bradshaw.

Bro. R. H. Wight of Soldier, Monona county, Iowa, says that he is doing all the good he can. He writes: "We have a Union Sunday School here. It is composed of Materialists, Infidels, Baptists, Methodists and Lutherans, with a Latter Day Saint as Superintendent." Well, doubtless he does them all some good, and he will not rust out in a place like that.

Bro. S. I. Smith sends Detroit Post and Tribune, with local notice of the Hall dedication in Chicago.

Bro. T. W. Smith wrote from Boston, June 19th, saying that the interest in our meetings there is good and the hall where services are held is well filled on Sundays. Bro. Smith had just come from Fall River, where he preached the funeral sermon of the only child of Bro. John Gilbert and wife.

Sr. Cynthia Lanphere writes a pleasant letter from Mondamin, Iowa, dated June 21st, 1880. She joined with the Church a year ago, and since then her family have followed, for which she feels grateful and earnest.

A letter from Bro. Derry to Bro. Blair, dated Ogden, June 16th, contains good and cheering news concerning the outlook in that region. Bro. Blair's letter accompanying that of Bro. Derry and dated June 19th also brings good news.

Sister Annie Flower, at Pinckneyville, Perry county, Illinois, one of the lone ones, yet living only about sixty miles from St. Louis, says that very much would she like to hear the gospel preached again and she wishes an Elder would come there.

Bro. Joseph C. Clapp wrote from Brownsville, Oregon, May 30th, (received June 11th), that he baptized another that day, a sincere and useful man, late of the United Brethren church. Several more were expected to follow soon. Bro. Clapp says that he has found a man who claims to have heard Joseph Smith preach polygamy in the temple at Nauvoo eight years before his death. That would make the time of his preaching it in the year 1838, when this man heard him. But there are several difficulties in the way of there being any truth whatever in the man's evidence. First,—there was no such town, village or city as Nauvoo in 1838. Second,—Joseph Smith did not come to the site of what was afterwards Nauvoo till 1839. Third,—the erection of the temple was not begun till 1843 or 1845, and no services were held in the building till 1846, the second year after Joseph's death, and then it was in an unfinished condition. It is strange that some people do not have a little more method in their manufacture of falsehoods than the above and many other specimens of the art show.

Bro. G. T. Griffiths writes from London, Ontario, that he learned on his arrival there that a registered letter sent there by some one before he arrived had been forwarded to the dead letter office, so that he did not receive it, which fact the sender will please note.

The minutes of the Kewanee, Illinois District, for August 31st and September 1st, 1878, were sent to the office, but for some reason were mislaid until too late for publication. The late session of their conference requested the publication of either the minutes entire, or the following resolution then passed; we think the latter the most advisable. "Extract from conference minutes of the Kewanee district conference held at Buffalo Prairie, September, 1878: Resolved that in the absence of any charges against Bro. H. C. Bronson we hereby consider him exonerated from past detrimental rumors and pronounce him free to labor in the ministry. Carried."

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT.—We notice that a large number of citizens in Wakefield, Mass., have signed a petition to the school committee of that town, against the abuse of whipping children by the school teachers, as practiced in the Franklin School there. The barbarous practice should be abolished from all schools and never ought to be allowed. No good ever came of whipping children or dumb animals, we won't except a vicious mule even, and no really good person will whip either. It would seem that in the present advanced state of civilization, that modern education should be conducted on a higher plan of discipline, than that animating the lowest brutes of creation.

One great and kindling thought from a retired and obscure man, may live when thrones are fallen, * * and like an undying fire may illuminate and quicken all future generations.

News Summary.

June 10th.—The funeral of the Empress of Russia took place at St. Petersburg yesterday. There was much ceremony and pomp, and noise of cannon and bells.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin has telegraphed the Mayor of every city in the United States and Canada as follows: "I regret to say that funds are still needed for the relief of distress in Ireland. In many places the pinch is now equal to any previous time. The distress is much felt by farmers who dread the workhouse, but can get nothing else until their crops come in."

Nearly thirty thousand emigrants left Liverpool for America during the month of May.

Greek pirates have been ravaging the coast of Asia Minor recently. One town has been entirely sacked by the marauders.

11th.—The Peruvian port and city of Arica has been captured by the Chilean forces.

Twenty-one persons were killed by a fire-damp explosion in a mine in Germany on the 9th.

A cyclone visited Pottawattamie county, Iowa, night before last. About Wheeler's Grove and the Osler settlement was the greatest destruction. About twenty persons were killed and many others were injured. Farm houses, barns and all other buildings in its track were carried away or destroyed by the great wind. The scenes of ruin and woe were terrible to behold, fathers, mothers and children weeping over their dead ones.

At a later hour of the same night a hail storm visited Sioux City, Iowa, breaking a great quantity of glass in windows, and the rain that accompanied flooded stores and dwellings.

A cyclone struck Winona, Minnesota, yesterday. Houses were blown down, roofs thrown off, and large trees torn up by the roots. Two men were struck by lightning and one of them instantly killed, and the other severely, though not fatally, injured. The neighboring village of Trempealeau also suffered heavily.

Also at La Crosse, Wisconsin, a heavy wind, with large rain fall, blew down hundreds of trees, and did other damage.

Yesterday about 100,000 persons witnessed the Union Veterans' procession at Milwaukee, in which some 40,000 soldiers of the late war participated. The procession was a mile in length. Gens. Grant and Sheridan, who rode in the procession in a carriage, were enthusiastically cheered along the whole line of march.

12th.—At seven o'clock yesterday morning the lightning struck a twenty-thousand-barrel iron tank of kerosene oil, that was situated on a hill above Titusville, Pennsylvania. The oil took fire, and then another tank was ignited by the first, and by noon the burning oil overflowed and ran down the hillside, consuming everything in its course. The Octave Refinery & Acme Oil Works, one of the largest refineries in the world, is now burning. Oil ran into Oil Creek and threatened the destruction of a large amount of property in the city. Persons residing in the neighborhood have gone to places of safety. At five o'clock the fire was still increasing, having reached Franklin and Washington streets, and threatening the destruction of the railroad bridge. The Fire Departments from Corry, Oil City and Weaver are in the city, in answer to a telegram from the Mayor for aid, acting with the Fire Department of Titusville. At seven o'clock the buildings along both sides of Breed street were burning, and about 100,000 barrels of oil.

An organization of citizens 3,000 strong has been formed at Leadville, Colorado, for the purpose of protecting the working miners against the strikers.

Four men have been lynched at White Rancho, Brown county, Texas. They were suspected of being concerned in stealing cattle from the farmers in the vicinity.

The central departments of Cuba were visited by two severe shocks of earthquake on the 4th inst.

An attempt to serve processes of ejectment on some tenants residing in Galway, Ireland, was stubbornly resisted yesterday. The Sheriff's posse were driven off, the police were then called in, but the tenantry still resisted and a fierce fight ensued, during which many on both sides were wounded, some, it is believed, mortally. The district in which the riot took place has suffered greatly during the prevailing distress of last winter and spring, and the attempt of the landlord to evict the tenants in question is denounced as heartless and wanton cruelty.

Russia and China appear to be steadily drifting towards war, and so rapidly that any day may bring tidings of the outbreak of hostilities. Ostensibly the recovery of the lost province of Kuldja is the cause of war, but back of this is a cause which has been in operation for three centuries, and that is the fear of the Chinese of Russian aggrandizement along the great mutual frontier of 4,000 miles, north and west, and their bitter hostility to the growth of Russian trade.

The Convention of the Greenback or National Party, which met in Chicago this week, on yesterday nominated General J. B. Weaver, an Iowa Congressman, as their candidate for President of the United States, and Colonel B. J. Chambers, of Texas, for Vice-President.

14th.—The Chinese have attacked the Russian outposts on the Kuldja frontier and seem bound to make trouble.

The chiefs in Northern Afghanistan are again trying to stir up the people against the British.

The rebellion in Burmah has ended.

The Relief Committee of Ireland have received so much aid that they have now eighty thousand dollars on hand.

Commander Gorringer has sailed from Alexandria, Egypt, for New York, with the Egyptian obelisk in tow, all in good order.

On Long Island Sound, New York, the night of the 11th, one steamer collided with another, then caught fire and burned till she sunk. About three hundred people were on board, and about one-third of these are supposed to have perished, perhaps more than that. The officers were not attending to their duties in sounding the whistle, and were otherwise deficient.

15th.—The trade between India and Great Britain is reported to be decreasing every year now, while that between India and the United States is increasing rapidly. This is according to the records kept at Calcutta, India.

Over thirty persons who attended the Free Methodist camp-meeting being held near Elgin, Illinois, were poisoned Sunday evening by eating canned corn beef.

The wheat harvest in Southern Illinois and Southern Indiana has commenced, and the hearts of the farmers in those regions are made glad with the greatest abundance with which they have ever been blessed.

One man was instantly killed and another fatally injured by the explosion of boilers in a Milwaukee brewery yesterday. The explosion was caused by the small quantity of water in the boilers being suddenly converted into steam. The building was damaged $25,000 worth.

The brick-moulders of Denver to the number of 160 struck work yesterday for an increase in wages. They have been paid $3 per day. They demand $3.50.

Martial law has been proclaimed at Leadville, Colorado. Persons are warned not to leave their houses after ten o'clock p. m., the liquor saloons have been closed, assemblages in halls or in the streets are not permitted, and none but militiamen are permitted to bear arms.

A tornado swept over the country two miles north of Shelbyville, Indiana, last evening about six o'clock, doing much damage to farm property. Several dwellings were destroyed. A very heavy rain fell at Indianapolis last evening. The cellars and even the ground floors of many houses were flooded, and much property injured. A rather severe wind and rain storm prevailed throughout Western Pennsylvania Sunday, doing considerable damage to the crops. The upper Mississippi and its tributaries are full of water. At St. Paul there is fourteen feet of water in the channel which usually has five, and the flats on the west side of the river are nearly covered by water. Many houses can only be reached by boats. In Minneapolis over one hundred families have been driven from their homes on the flats by rising water. The St. Croix at Stillwater is very high and part of the town is flooded. Many million feet of logs have gone out of dams in the Chippewa, Red Cedar and Eau Claire rivers. Great destruction of property has also resulted from the overflow of the Upper Wolf River. Several bridges have been swept away, and nearly the entire log crop has been set afloat and is drifting in every direction.

16th.—From Stevens Point, Grand Rapids and Eau Claire, Wisconsin, comes further news of the great destruction by floods in the rivers. Not only logs, but saw, shingle and flouring mills, tanneries, offices, dwellings, bridges and other property have been swept away, a few people drowned and many made homeless.

About Cincinnati and throughout south-western Ohio the winds and floods have also done much damage. It is said that "the rain fall was unparalleled, the winds were fearful and the lightning was terrific." At Glendale two churches, one college, one school-house, several costly dwelling houses and other buildings were wrecked or badly damaged. A tornado at Cicero, Indiana, destroyed one church and greatly injured another, also wrecked or damaged many houses, and wounded about twenty-five persons, some of them fatally. Crops and fruit-trees were completely destroyed in many instances, and large timber lots were swept bare of trees. Near Frankfort, Indiana, great destruction was done and fifteen people were more or less hurt. Great storms are also spoken of in dispatches from Lafayette, Marion, Muncie, Knightstown and Rushville, Indiana. At Wheeling, West Virginia, railroad and other bridges were swept away, as well as a great deal of other property.

A current item of news says that on the sixteen thousand chapels owned by the Methodist Episcopal Church there is owing the sum of seven million dollars, an average of four thousand dollars each.

17th.—Full details are given in to-day's paper of further cyclones and great storms in Indiana this week. There has been great destruction of public and private property in a number of counties and some lives were lost, and many other people were injured.

Resistance to eviction has taken a new phase in Ireland. The tenants resist the Sheriff's officers to the last extremity, and when finally turned out they come back and occupy their old quarters under cover of the night.

A locust plague has inflicted enormous damages in that portion of Asiatic Turkey lying south of the Caucasian Mountains. Over 20,000 men are employed in endeavoring to destroy them.

Gen. A. H. Terry, at military headquarters in St. Paul, has received a telegram from Fort Keogh announcing that eighty lodges of Sioux Indians had appeared at the post and expressed a desire to surrender. The Indians are desirous of making peace, and negotiations were in progress yesterday. The military authorities insisted upon a complete surrender, including the transfer of all their guns and powder.

18th.—It is now generally thought that Turkey will defy the great powers of Europe concerning the Berlin treaty, to the items of which they have been trying to bring Turkey to observe, as agreed in the treaty. The Greeks consider that a war by them with Turkey is "unavoidably necessary." England is free to express belief that Russia is moving Turkey to resist the other Powers as far as possible.

19th.—The Spanish government having received many petitions from religious orders about to be expelled from France, has issued a circular to the civil authorities declaring that no order, college, or religious establishment will be permitted in any province near the French frontier, and in the rest of the peninsula only after due authorization from the Government, and after their petitions and motives have been investigated.

Dispatches from Dublin state that the land agitation is dangerously increasing in all parts of Ireland. The peasantry are reported to be very much excited by the shooting, the other day, at Leitrim, of Mehan, by Henry B. Acheson, the landlord, on his farm near Ballinamore.

From information received from different parts of Asiatic Turkey it appears that the distress there from famine is growing worse. The famine will probably be mitigated with the appearance of the new crop, but the emergency requires effective treatment at present.

21st.—A dispatch from Dublin says that the famine-fever of the most dangerous type prevails in parts of the west and south of Ireland.

It is believed that Victoria and his troublesome band of hostiles are recuperating in the Mexican State of Chihuahua, preparatory to another incursion upon American territory.

22d.—Some of the Jesuits expelled from France have found refuge in Prague, Bohemia.

The Galena river has risen to a flood in the city of Galena, Illinois, and buildings are being flooded and other damage done. Also at Dubuque, Iowa.

One-sixth of the town of Adams, Mass. were prostrated on the night of the 15th inst. by a disease of a cholera character, apparently taken because of the dense miasmatic odor of a heavy fog that prevailed at the time. The smell was like that from a cellar or other underground place long closed up. None have died, but hundreds were very sick.

To-day the Democratic party meet in convention at Cincinnati, to make their choice for President and Vice President of the United States.

23d.—The names of seventeen candidates are given as being before the Cincinnati convention for choice in the nomination for President of the United States by the Democratic party.

A recent terrible storm of rain at Lauban, near Breslau, Prussia, destroyed 105 houses and killed fifty-six persons.

24th.—In the Democratic convention at Cincinnati, yesterday, six men were nominated, from whom to make choice of one as the man of the party for President of the United States; namely, Hancock of Pennsylvania, Bayard of Delaware, Thurman of Ohio, Field of California, Morrison of Illinois, and Hendricks of Indiana, and the balloting stood in the above order at adjournment. To day by telegraph comes the news that General Hancock has received enough votes to make him the nominee of the party.

Bradlaugh, the noted socialist and daring free-thinker of England, who was recently elected to the House of Commons, refused to take the required oath, in which is included an affirmation of belief in God; and so, by vote of the House, day before yesterday, he was refused a seat therein. On yesterday he presented himself at the Speaker's desk, but was requested to withdraw. This he refused to do, and, by vote of 326 to 38, the speaker was authorized to enforce his withdrawal. Then the Sergeant-at-arms removed and confined him in the clock tower of the House of Commons.

Correspondence.

PLEASANTON, IOWA,
June 15th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith.—On May 6th I went to Doud Station, Van Buren county, and four miles from there I commenced holding meetings and continued for some time. Although the evenings were short and the farmers were very busy yet there was a goodly number out to hear the word, and the interest increased until the cry was heard from other parts, "Come over and let us hear the strange news." And I went and preached in three other school houses, and set the leaven working. Much prejudice was removed, many friends were raised up for the truth, and May 13th I baptized Joseph Benjamin and his wife, two noble souls. I continued preaching in their school house, and on May 28th I baptized two more, Mrs. Roush and Mrs. Bowen. Their husbands are believing, and I trust ere long will obey.

June 1st I started for Decatur county, and at Davis City met Bro. B. V. Springer. Bro. Alex Smith was there for Bro. Springer to go home with him, I went. Bro. Alex said that his horse and buggy were at my service to visit the brethren and the different parts of the country that I wished to see, for I had come to see the country and get acquainted with the brethren. I had not come to spy out their liberty, nor to carry away their grapes, but to qualify myself to answer the many questions asked me about Decatur county and the Order of Enoch.

Bro. Springer and I went on Sunday to the Saints' meeting house, and at 10 a.m. I attended their Sabbath School. It was pleasing to see the parents and children take such a lively interest in the school. At 11 o'clock the house filled with Saints. Their worthy president, H. C. Smith, called on me to speak, and, for the first time, I preached to the Saints in Decatur county. And I assure you, dear brother, that the Spirit of the Lord was there to enable me to instruct and comfort the Saints, and their faces seemed to reflect the gladness and cheerfulness of their hearts. At 4 p.m. we met at the house of Bro. Harris in the village of Lamoni, for a prayer meeting, but the Saints requested me to preach, and I did so with good liberty. I was afterwards told by the president of the branch that it was the first sermon ever preached in the town of Lamoni.

Bro. Springer and I went to Bro. Alexander's and remained all Monday. Bro. Snively started to take me to Pleasanton, for I intended to leave the country, but when we were about four miles on the road, the buggy broke and we were obliged to return. Bro. Snively then went to Lamoni, and he, as the president of the district, and Bro. Henry Smith as president of the branch thought it best for me to hold a series of meetings in Lamoni, so I commenced on Wednesday night and continued every night until Saturday evening, and on Sunday I preached in the Saints' meeting house. When I returned to Lamoni Bro. Wm. Hall, of this place, was there after me to come here. And now I am advertised to hold meetings in this town, commencing Wednesday evening in the Methodist church, to continue over Sunday. I am requested to remain and attend the conference of this district, on the 26th inst., at Davis City, and I have consented to do so. Then I expect to go into Illinois.

In conclusion I will say that my visit to Decatur has been a pleasant one, and I hope I have done some good to others. I visited many of the Saints at their houses, and I found them comfortable and happy, and seemingly trying to serve God in spirit, and to get their temporal bread by the sweat of their brows. May the Lord enable them to lead peaceful and quiet lives, shall ever be my prayer for the Saints of Decatur and the regions around. I hope all Saints that may feel to come to these parts may not come in haste, but, have all things prepared, that they may fall into the peaceful line of march unto eternal perfection, and help to make the place holy by holy living; and if they will do so I have no fears of the result. Your brother,
J. H. LAKE.

JACKSON, Jackson county, Ohio,
June 7th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph.—I am still laboring in South-eastern Ohio District. It will soon be nine months since we (wife and I) left home in West Wheeling. During that time I have filled one hundred and three appointments, baptized twenty, organized one branch, (Liberty Branch, in Jackson county), ordained one elder, one teacher and one deacon. I recently visited the Syracuse and Lebanon branches in Meigs county. Bro. Thos. Beatty conveyed us there, and we found Saints who are worthy of the name, for, "by their fruits ye shall know them." We were privileged to spend several days with Bro. and Sr. Spann, near Reedville. They are strong in the faith, and had sown the good seed in the hearts of some of their neighbors, and I had the pleasure of baptizing six while there; and on my way to Syracuse I baptized a very promising young man by name John H. Woodward. I spoke three times in the Duett's Run school house—old stamping ground of Bro. J. C. Foss, who still lives in the memory of numbers there, and who would hail his return with gladness. While he was there the Saints began to build a church, laid the foundation, and lumber was brought upon the site to erect it, but lacking energy, they left off when Bro. J. C. left. They say, "Had he remained awhile longer the house would have been finished." May showers of blessings from the hand of God fall upon the Saints in Meigs for their kindness to us exhibited in many ways. We heard brethren Edmund Thomas and Thomas Matthews preach; they are men of God, and I would rejoice to see them in the field constantly. The Church needs more such noble men; their hearts are in the work, but their hands are tied like many others having families.

On my way from Syracuse to Jackson I was accompanied by Bro. Thomas Matthews, and Bro. Moore of the Lebanon Branch, as far as Morgan Centre in Gallia county, where appointments were announced for us some time before. Commenced meeting on Saturday night, May 22d, Bro. Matthews and I speaking alternately, until Monday night when Bro. Beatty took the stand. Very large assemblies present, and many professed to believe the doctrine. On Tuesday morning Bro. Matthews and Moore left for home, and Bro. Beatty and I held meeting that night. I spoke upon the second coming of Christ, and the "signs of the times." I thank the Lord for the liberty given on that occasion; two were baptized by Bro. Beatty; one a man aged fifty-one whom the doctrines of the sectarians could not reach; the other, a lady, a sister of Bro. Beatty's wife. We entertain a hope that if that place is not neglected there will be a branch raised up within a year.

Bro. Beatty, though but young in the work has been preaching—and is destined to be a "polished shaft" in the hand of the Lord in spreading truth; he is so gentle, mild and pleasant in his manner that he wins the esteem of nearly all. Your brother in hope of eternal life,
L. R. DEVORE.

FREMONT, Steuben Co., Ind.,
June 8th, 1880.

Ye Editors.—We took the farewell hand of the aged parents, and other much loved ones, the middle of last March, and passed direct to Independence, and held forth in the Court-house. Next came to St. Louis and labored in that district. Their conference was a royal feast to my soul; but reluctantly and sadly I bade the assembly good by, on that memorable Sunday evening, hastened down the street to board one of Nahum's wagon's, and "swift messenger" it to Plano. Pleasing reminiscences of the Jubilee sittings are sacredly stored away in the chambers of my memory. The tender forbearance, the profound wisdom, the reverential earnestness, the approximate unity and the divine power that characterized the sessions, bring grateful reflections.

When the love of God burns all through the bones, purifies the heart and illuminates the mind, the favored recipient can feel for the suffering and benighted of all time and every realm. Heavenly grace brings its possessor over the narrow, dark, selfish, serpentine ruts of sectarian bigotry into the Edenic fields of redeeming charity. The everlasting Jehovah that thundered forth from Sinai, that reigns in the universe hath established Zion. Her stones are variegated with brilliant colors, her walls rise majestically from the debris of Babylon, her battlements begin to radiate and the heralds are sounding the glad tidings over the lofty mountains and wide oceans. The Lord will build it up, through human agencies, appear in power and great glory and dwell within her precincts henceforth. Let all that have named the name of Christ redouble their diligence.

Let the spiritual and visible, or temporal departments receive due prominence by all. I think that every member, all over the world, should be thoroughly instructed in the law of tithing, and taught to observe it faithfully. If they say they have nothing to pay tithing on, let them take nothing for a basis to begin with, and then pay one tenth of their increase annually. If they are not increased they honor the law and are not out any, but when their substance is increased they well can afford to pay back to the Lord one tenth. A person might have one, ten, or a hundred thousand dollars, and still decide that they had no surplus to begin with, inasmuch as they could use said amount to a good advantage; but they should take a careful, honest inventory, and periodically take stock and pay one tenth of their increase. Ancient Israel was blest in all the temporal departments of life when they remembered the various commandments and observed them. They "robbed" God; then the devourer came, touched their fair fields and delicious vineyards, emptied their larders, shut the windows of heaven, and then they became a reproach among the nations, a hiss, a taunt, a proverb, a by word, scattered, peeled and forsaken. I would like to see the moneyed men, that are high in authority, take the van, and then say "Come on," if they are not wholly engaged that way at present.

It is more blessed to give than to receive; and besides, that whirlwind of the Lord that Jeremiah mentions, will fall with pain upon the head of the wicked.

Bro. C. Scott was to go to Canada last week and Bro. Heman C. Smith into northern Michigan. I look for Bro. Griffith or Kelley, or both, down from Coldwater, Michigan, to-day. We are to hold forth in Ohio again to-night. The weather is very wet but the people turn out and listen attentively. I feel happy and hopeful, as usual, in the mission, but long to see the purling streams or the silvery lakes, troubled with other than anglers, spearmen, or wool washers. I think quite a number are halting between two opinions. God grant that they may choose the better part. The Saints are living down all disdainful reproach in these parts. I have labored considerably in several counties in Michigan.

I sat as Bro. Scott's moderator during a six evenings' discussion with a Saturday Adventist in Allegan county. Elder Kenyon was a learned gentleman, but Columbus dealt withering, rapid, deathly blows against his Edenic Sabbath for all men, and also, able and firmly maintained the conscious spirit question. Bro. Scott is a courteous companion, a lucid reasoner, an humble disciple and an eloquent orator. He returned after about three weeks time, finished the Spirit question and affirmed the first day for the Christian Sabbath. I am credibly informed that the last debate was all that could well be desired in favor of the truth.

I will now speak of my labors at a place near Hartford called Stoughton's corners. The meetings were largely attended and no insults were given or received. I was treated with marked kindness and fancied that I was regarded with due esteem.

After Bro. Scott and I had gone elsewhere, then a hurtful notice appeared in regard to our labors, in the Hartford Day Spring, as follows:

"For some time past various preachers have been advocating the Mormon doctrine in a mild form, in one of the school districts in this township, which in its mild form was not really pleasing to the people, but still they tolerated it until last week, Thursday evening, when one Short held forth and plastered Mormonism on so thick that some of the boys thought it would bear a few rotten eggs, and gave him such a dose that he needed at least nine wives to clean him up ready for his next appointment. The people in this vicinity are not yet ready to adopt Utah customs."

I never had an egg thrown at me in my knowledge. I have no sympathy for Utah customs hinted at, and am nix as yet on the wife question.

You can publish this notice with my communication if you desire. With good will to all men and love to God I am "Christian at work."

M. T. SHORT.

UNIONTOWN, El Dorado Co., Cal.,
June 7th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph and Henry:—Our little band is still trying to serve the Master with all their hearts. We have a branch organized here, Bro. C. H. Grube, Priest. We have Sacrament meetings every Lord's day, and have been greatly blessed. I rejoice to say that seven out of our family of ten have obeyed the gospel. One of my sisters had been nearly blind for eight months, and, after she was baptized and confirmed, she was administered to by Elders Lowell and Daley. Her eyes were healed immediately, and have been stronger since than they ever were before. Another of my sisters was very sick a few weeks ago. She asked to be administered to, and, after a short prayer, Bro. Lowell anointed her with oil and laid hands on her and prayed for her. She was healed instantly.

We have preaching here every few weeks by the Elders. Bro. Lowell preached twice here two weeks ago on Sunday. The result of those two sermons were that one was baptized the same day, and three the next day. The people of Coloma and Placerville are very anxious to hear more of this doctrine. I know there are a great many honest souls in Placerville who would obey if the way was clear, and I believe that a branch will be raised up there before long, for all who seek the Lord earnestly and humbly will find him, and he will teach them the way as he has taught me. My heart is filled with great joy when I think of my heavenly Father's goodness towards me. I ask the prayers of the Saints, that I may be humble and submissive to his will, and be ready to do whatever my hands find to do in helping this cause along. I pray that all the honest in heart will be gathered in soon, for the time is coming when none but the very elect will be able to stand through the trials and scourges that will pass over the earth. A few of the evil minded about here are saying all they can against this work and those engaged in it, but the more they oppose this gospel the faster it spreads. We have nineteen members here now, and more are inquiring the way to life eternal.

Your sister in Christ,

MARY E. BEEBE.

ELIMVILLE, Ontario,

June 18th, 1880.

Editors Herald: On the 3d inst, Bro. Griffiths and I left Coldwater, Michigan, and came to Canada. Stopping first at Bro. Traxler's we received a hearty welcome, which we appreciated. We attended the Kent and Elgin Conference, which convened with the Wellington Branch on the 5th. It was well attended by the officers of the Church in the district, as also, by Saints and friends, and was quite a success. Bro. Cleveland, Leverton, Cornish and Griffiths did the preaching, and unity prevailed.

Passing through London, we stopped with the brethren there and met in worship with them two evenings. June 12th, 13th, and 14th we attended the London Conference held at Osborne, in the new chapel recently erected by the Saints of that branch, and, though a small house, it is a credit to the cause in that community. The conference was a good one and much business was transacted.

Bro. Leverton presides over the Kent and Elgin District, and Bro. R. Davis over the London District. Yours in the work, in weakness,

C. SCOTT.

Provo, Utah, June 7th, 1880.

Bro. Henry A. Stebbins:—I am in much better health than at last writing, and feel well. I have crowded houses at Provo, in the Methodist Church, and I find in the minister one of the most liberal-minded and fair dealing men that it has ever been my lot to meet in that society. He plays the organ, leads the singing, and conducts all the preliminaries for us, when invited so to do. Interest runs high, apparently, and good will result, or my feelings deceive me. I have to go to Springville on the 9th to baptize some. I preached there on Sunday morning and here at night. As the result of about three weeks actual labor there we have a branch of seventeen members, with a sensible and tried old-time Elder as its president. Bro. Gordon Deuel and myself did the preaching, Bro. Deuel the baptizing, except three, and Bro. Derry afterwards visited them and organized as above. We will soon have a branch here, I believe. I instructed the clerk at Springville to furnish you with all items. They have a pretty perfect record. I am feeling splendid with regard to the situation of the work here at present. I baptized two more in Salt Lake City last week, and others at the door.

I hope that the future will reveal clearly to the world, the genuineness of our faith, the purity of our conduct, and the real secret of our power. I seem to catch a glimpse, occasionally, of the coming triumph, and I verily believe that, if we can succeed in effectually "solving the Utah problem," we will have sounded the key note to our future glory among men. It is certainly a very desirable thing. I hope, therefore, that heaven will direct the appointing of men for this field. If men can be found, who are judicious, full of love, yet not over susceptible to influences, and men who have never been connected with Brighamism, the success of this mission is but a matter of time. I never felt more liberty (if as much) and never was more favored by heaven in spiritual matters. I know God is in the movement. I expect to leave so as to be home a few days before the Fall Conference, so that I may go to it with a clear understanding as to how home matters will justify my future mission work. The brethren are all well. I find more true pleasure in the work than ever in my life before. With much regards, I am, as ever, your brother,

JOSEPH LUFF.

TAYLOR, Red River County, Texas,
June 5th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph and Henry:—We have been badly treated since Bro. Wm. T. Bozarth came back here. The world has turned against us, and the times resemble Paul's day, for, when they are brought before the courts of justice they will swear any way against us. But, in order to gain their purpose they will come to us to compromise in order to blame us with the fault. I went to the authorities myself and talked with them, and saw that they were afraid to do anything for us, on account of being accused of being friends to that unpopular church, which they say, call themselves Latter Day Saints. Then when they are brought before the courts the voice of the people is against us, then, in order to keep it from going out to the world that they may be accused of being wrong, they send men that are on half way ground to compromise with us, and ask the president to vouch that no more trouble comes up, as much as to say that we are the cause of all the trouble. When the president says he will only vouch for all that will say to him that they will have no more to do with the suit, they have as good a thing as they want. Then they say, We don't want you to teach that doctrine here among us ignorant people; for this is our country. So they have told the truth through a mistake, for they think they are smart, or wise. Very well, God has said that the wisdom of this world was foolishness to him. Now, as for Saints appealing to the courts of this world, it is of no use, for this reason. Bro. Charles Wickes, James Coker and I were at work together; a crowd of lawless men and boys came on us at midnight, with pistols and guns, contrary to the law of the land, (with the world, but with us anything is lawful). I went to the authorities for counsel, and they said, "As for your doctrine, we don't have any use for it in this country, and my advice is for you to go back, and if they order you off, you had better go, for they will kill you." My advice to Saints who are living in such places as this, is to go to God for advice, who will give liberally to all who will come humbly and honestly. The time has come when we must be tried, as God has said that he would have a tried people. Now, if we can not bear these trials we are none of his. Hope we may live better and be worthy of being called the people of God.

Your brother in Christ,

J. O. STEWART.

MIRACLES.

Dear Herald:—I hope it will not be out of place to offer a few thoughts touching a matter that I think I am acquainted with; at least, so far as my missionary work has extended. I was induced to write this by noticing an article in the last Herald. I think that as a people we should be cautious how we talk, whether from the pulpit or in our arguments outside the pulpit, about our miracle working power; for whether we know it or not, it is true, that instead of inspiring awe or respect for either ourselves or our faith or both, we sometimes become laughing stocks for our enemies to jeer at. Because they not only never see any of the things we boast of, but in six cases out of ten at least, when sick we are apt to run for a doctor, and apply it to the use for which we have been so loud mouthed in another direction. An upright, straitforward life and conduct will win the good opinion of even our enemies, more effectually and quicker than all the talk we can produce, where the life fails to correspond to the profession.

I do not admire constant boasting, only in Christ, and I know that he is able to do all that he has promised; but he no where gives us the privilege by either the word or the Spirit, to be continually boasting of something that we are not in possession of. Our enemies laugh in their sleeves when we are worsted in an argument, or in debating with some champion of another faith, if he brings us to bay by some of his strong negative arguments. Perhaps we say that we are the true Church. An objection is raised, a challenge thrown out, which is soon picked up, and we not half as well posted as we should be, or could have been; but miracles have been our hobby, and the enemy comes off triumphant, at least in the estimation of those opposed to us. And if this is not humiliating, what is? Wherever we go, we hear of a defeat and it is a source of vexation. Now let us try it and see if we can't satisfy every reasonable man and woman, that we are honest in our faith; by living humble. If we do so, as Franklin said of the pennies, "the dollars will take care of themselves," so will the miracles. Your brother in Christ,

T. F. STAFFORD.

FT. GARLAND, Colorado,

June 7th, 1880.

Dear Herald:—Being anxious to meet Bro. Adamson at Coal Creek before his departure for Missouri, I managed to arrive there on May 25th. Commenced preaching on the same evening. The Sunday afternoon following, at per request, held a private interview with Mr. W. Howels (or Howell). Mr. H. is verging into manhood, quite intellectual, tall, and well proportioned, somewhat prepossessing, easy, and rather fascinating in conversation. He soon informed me that he was a free-thinker, and became very denunciatory of the Bible, deploring the evils and misery (as he claimed) it had caused and was causing in the world, and was anxious that I should publicly discuss with him the merits of that book. Thereupon the following question was presented and agreed upon, the discussion to come off on the following Tuesday, each speaker to speak twice alternately each speech of thirty minutes duration, but one evening agreed upon, "Resolved that the Bible contains the word of God," I to affirm, and he to deny.

Quite a congregation convened, said to be large for the place, and as respectful and quiet as any audience I wish to see. I thought, while talking and arranging with Mr. H. for the discussion, that his object was to get and to impart good, and that the investigation was to be prosecuted in a friendly and manly manner, but he had scarcely opened his mouth in his first speech before I was convinced that his only object was an onslaught on the Bible, which was accomplished with the utmost of his abilities by using some of the oldest infidel arguments. He had nothing original, save a few slang phrases, which were nothing to his credit as a professed gentleman and a fair controversialist, though they pandered to the feeling of those like proclivities, of whom there were not a few present. If credit is due to a disputant for failing to notice, or attempting to disprove the arguments of his opponent, very much was due to Mr. Howell; for in each of his speeches, as every unbiased person present could readily see, he studiously avoided even noticing, much less did he try to disprove any one of my arguments, except in one instance, which, by the way, was somewhat significant. Referring to my argument he inadvertently (I believe) said there was too much prophecy, having in my defence claimed that prophecy was proof of the Bible containing the word of the Lord, etc. I wonder these great men who call themselves free-thinkers don't manufacture a new edition of objections against the Bible, for it has stood all the old ones and proved invulnerable, like the mighty rocks of the ocean, against which the waves continue to dash, but only give evidence of their impotency to break or move them. There is such a sameness in the objectionable arguments of these free-thinkers (infidel) that, even with the burning eloquence of an Ingolsol, they soon become monotonous, and no true Latter Day Saint need be disturbed thereby.

Having heard some speculative talk from Sunday to Tuesday, as to the result of the discussion, I was at its close made glad in raising my hands to know that my scalp was all right; and, as I emerged from the hall, and gazed into the blue vault of heaven, I praised God anew for the precious truths contained in the Bible, and with Bro. H. C. Smith I felt that the Infidel had nothing I wanted.

One additional item might be added: I had arranged to travel with Bro. Adamson to Pueblo, forty miles, to start on Tuesday, and we therefore were anxious to have the discussion on Monday night, as every day's delay added to Bro. Adamson's expenses. But my antagonist said he must have two days to prepare. So Mr. —, being anxious for the discussion, promised to pay Bro. A. the expense incurred by staying another day. But, alas! Bro. Adamson got out of the county without being pursued by an official for debt, nor his pockets loaded by a fulfillment of the promise.

In hope,

JAMES CAFFALL.

BRO. HENRY A. STEBBINS,

Church Secretary, Plano, Illinois:

In Conference Minutes Supplement, of June 1st, 1880, there appears quite an error in what purports to have been my language, and I desire the publication of this correction. I have no complaint to offer against the conference secretary or clerks, for it must appear evident to all, that if not actually reported in full, such must occasionally happen; yes, often. It only argues that we ought to have a short-hand reporter among the list.

As to the publication, I remember of having called the attention of the conference at the time to the fact that those words were not used by me. This occurred by reason of a remark made by the speaker following me on the temple matter.

What I did say was this: "That notice was given all parties interested, in accordance with the laws of the state where the property was located; residents by personal service and non-residents by publication."

Afterwards, upon inquiry as to whether I had mailed a paper containing notice to Bro. Forscutt, I replied that I was not then positive. There is a wide distinction between that act and notice, which will be readily seen without comment. As to what follows in the minutes as Bro. Forscutt's speech on the subject, I must say, with all due deference to the reporters, that if a great part of it was ever spoken I am guilty for once of being "asleep on guard;" certainly I never heard it. There is one other thought however, which demands the attention of all interested by reason of the publication; and which may at once relieve the charge as to moral force made in the speech.

The notice on Bro. Forscutt is by publication, and he was a non-resident and the subject matter of suit real property. Now, a non-resident defendant served by publication only, in such cases, may come in and put in his defence any time within two years after judgment. If Bro. Forscutt had any actual interest and rights in this matter, they still may be adjusted, and no one will be more glad to see him file his claims and have them adjudged than counsel in the case. We were in this case desiring invaded rights rectified, not in any way interested in invading others.

The idea conveyed to me by all with whom I conversed on the subject, and by remarks in the conference the year prior to the suit, was, that this temple property was conveyed for the payment of taxes to Joseph Smith and Mark H. Forscutt for the reason, that at the time, the former was President of the Church and the latter Church Secretary. That whatever of repairs were put on the Temple by Bro. Huntley were intended for the church in fact and not to either of these parties individually.

If this view is the correct one, Bro. Forscutt never had any right to encumber the property except as he might assign his tax interest, were all the other questions of title exemplified. If this statement of the matter is erroneous, the status has been misrepresented to me. As to the amount claimed for repairs, it does seem to me, after particularly examining the property twice, that the one half claimed, is more than the building is worth entire, from foundation to capstone. Desiring simple justice in the matter to all parties, I remain,

Yours in peace,

E. L. KELLEY.

NAUVOO, Ills., June 14th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Last evening I closed our series of meetings in Montrose, Iowa, giving in all fourteen lectures, enjoying throughout good liberty. Had large, attentive, intelligent, appreciative audiences. Many became interested who were never before as thoughtful of religious matters. The young friends who composed our choir and the young lady, Miss Lena Reeves, the organist, did nobly for us. The branch tendered them a vote of thanks for their services. Nothing is ever lost by showing a liberal feeling toward those not members of the Church, as in the instance of these young people. Some of them were not interested in religion, that became so at our services. "He who would have friends must show himself friendly," is very true. Too many, I am sorry to say, who call themselves Saints are too narrow minded and bigoted. If we claim there is narrow mindedness in the religious world, let us be careful that we are not too much tainted with it ourselves.

There are those who object to music in the church, having an organ, etc., but we read that, when Solomon's temple was dedicated, as the singers and those with "stringed instruments" and "organs," &c., stood about the altar, while the music was going on, that the glory of the Lord so shone around them that for a time the priests could not approach the altar. In the New Testament there is not one word condemnatory of instrumental music being used in God's house, neither in the Book of Mormon, nor yet in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants. Saints who have had visions of Paradise have seen musical instruments there.

To speak for myself, if none other, I would say that I am a great lover of instrumental and vocal music. I love the beautiful flowers in all their varied forms, tints, and fragrance. I love all that is beautiful in nature. Then take me from earth to a heaven where there are no organs, violins, harps, pianos; no flowers, birds, &c., O, what a dreary heaven for me! I crave no dwelling in such a place; let me remain here.

I spent a very pleasant time at Montrose, and as I "took the parting hand," I heard "Hope we may have the pleasure of seeing and hearing you again." Nothing preventing, I leave here for Rock Creek, on Tuesday, to commence meetings on Friday evening. All well. Saints send kindest regards.

Yours in the truth,

J. FRANK McDOWELL.

WESTON, Iowa,

June 11th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—This Spring has been very hard on the farmers of this western country, there has been so much wind and dust. The like is not in the memory of the oldest settler. Wheat and other small grain will not be more than a half crop. The corn looks bad at present. Last Saturday evening there was a severe wind and rain storm, and whipped the corn so badly that it looks as if there had been a heavy frost or a fire had run through the fields; three or four inches of the blades are all dead. Frost, wind, and hail have well nigh left us without fruit, and the bugs are spoiling the potatoes. Yet men curse God and fight against fate, as if they could win, while the spoiler is abroad in the land. Last Sabbath, I was permitted to baptize two into the fold. Short nights, the busy season, stormy weather and a lack of interest on the part of the people, make Summer preaching tedious work. Still my desire is to continue, and when the end has come, may the closing page of life be, "He proved faithful to his trust."

Yours in Christ,

ROBERT M. ELVIN.

OENAVILLE, Bell Co., Texas,

Brn. Joseph and Henry:—I received your kind letters and the book you sent me, for which please accept my thanks. This is Sunday night and I am almost worn out. I have preached nine times since last Sunday morning, besides teaching and singing with the Saints. Last Friday evening I had the pleasure of baptizing eleven precious souls, nine of them heads of families, and the other two are grown people. I organized a branch here of thirteen members, Bro. H. L. Thompson, president. The good work still goes on, thanks to God's Holy name. Bro. Thompson will keep all things straight here. I am very proud of those I have baptized, for they are of good report. I will try and keep all things in as good order as possible while I am here. Bro. Wicks is at Hearn fifty miles from here, and will come here soon. He had to leave Red River county at last, as I was satisfied he would. We will start to San Antonio in the morning, if all is well. Will be gone about four weeks, then return here to continue the work. Any counsel or words of encouragement from you or Bro. Joseph will always be thankfully received by me. Please remember us in your prayers. Love to all. My address for a time will be San Antonio, Texas. Yours in hope,
W. T. BOZARTH.

COLDWATER, Michigan,
June 23d, 1880.

Editors Herald:—Our conference, held at Clear Lake, Steuben county, Indiana, 29th to 31st of May, was quite well attended; and, although it rained every day of the session, it was a success. A large number of the Saints were in attendance, and Brn. Short, Griffith, J. Smith and C. Scott of note among the ministry, were present also. Saturday was devoted to business which assumed tedious routine but finally closed on Monday morning satisfactorily to all. We find that as we grow in numbers and the business of the conferences increases, it is essential to apply the rules of business more strenuously, that order, tact and facility may characterize our meetings. Some have hesitated about studying the rules of order and applying them, but experience will teach, if nothing else will, that order in the transacting of business is as essential as prayers, and must be adhered to.

Sunday was devoted to preaching. In the forenoon the church building erected by the Clear Lake Saints was formally dedicated to the Lord, as a place of worship. President J. Smith preached an interesting and appropriate discourse, which was listened to by a large assemblage of people; a hymn was then sung and the services closed with prayer offered by Bro. W. H. Kelley. The Clear Lake Saints have built their church at some effort and sacrifice, in order that they might have a place of convenience and of their own in which to worship. Some, not of the faith, cheerfully assisted; for it is known that the Saints hold to a free pulpit; and this sentiment meets with approval among the thinking and advanced classes everywhere. May the Saints of Clear Lake enjoy the labor of their hands. Bro. C. Scott preached in the afternoon to a large audience, in his usual forcible manner; and in the evening Bro. H. C. Smith presented some of the facts of the faith in a terse and argumentative way that was both interesting and convincing.

The Clear Lake Saints and friends extended a generous hospitality to those in attendance, those living near the church having the greatest care by reason of inconvenience in going far on account of the rains; but they met the emergency with good cheer. How pleasant it is to live near the church!

This conference will be remembered with satisfaction and pleasure. May we continue to grow wiser, better, and more useful by experience had at our several meetings, so that our last conference shall always be more wisely directed, orderly, and characterized with a greater proportion of enjoyment, confirmation, spiritual power and peace than any previous one.

The new laborers in the mission, Brn. G. T. Griffiths, M. T. Short and H. C. Smith were cheerfully sustained by unanimous vote, each having done a good work since the April conference. With this force united with others, within the present year we are sanguine of much good being done for the cause.

Since the conference Brn. Scott and Griffith went to Canada to labor during the summer. Bro. Short remained preaching in Steuben county and vicinity; and Bro. H. C. Smith, after a short stay at Coldwater, returned home to remain until fall by special request of his mother, whom he has not seen for near three years.

On the 16th instant, assisted by Bro. Bootman, I preached the funeral discourse of Bro. Jesse Webster, at Hartford, Michigan. A number of the Saints and sympathizing friends and neighbors were present. Bro. Webster was a soldier in the late war; leaves a wife and one child. He was in good repute among his neighbors. The Hartford paper made mention of him as an excellent citizen. In the Hall at evening, and at Croton's Corners on the evening of the 17th, I preached to small audiences, on the faith of the Saints. The 20th, I spent with the Saints at the Nauvoo school-house and preached twice to not very large but attentive audiences.

In the faith,

W. H. KELLEY.

MOSS POINT, Jackson Co., Miss.,
June 7th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—I have preached seven times since coming here, in the Saints' houses. Not very many unbelievers out, but they seem interested, though most are very much prejudiced. The Saints are trying to build them a meeting house, which when done, will help the work; for people are backward about coming to private houses. There is talk of sending off for two Baptist preachers to debate with me, but have heard nothing definite about it yet.

I am to go to the branch across the river on the 9th, and will preach there two weeks or so. The Saints here are endeavoring to keep the faith, and are earnest and prayerful.

Yours in the hope of eternal life,

FRANK P. SCARCLIFF.

LOUISVILLE, Ontario,
June 7th, 1880.

Editors Herald:—I left Bevier, Missouri, March 23rd, and went to Hannibal, where I tarried some three days, during which I met with the Saints twice, and preached once. While here, I was joined by Bro. Bozarth, who spoke once, and who accompanied us to the April General Conference.

We visited Bryant, Illinois, where my sister and a few other Saints reside, and enjoyed ourselves for two or three days. Passing on towards Canton we called by the way on our excellent brother, T. F. Stafford, with whom, and his excellent wife, we enjoyed ourselves. Our week's stay at Canton was made doubly pleasant, in visiting from house to house among old-time friends. Space forbids a lengthy description of the many pleasant seasons spent there.

Bro. J. A. Crawford having now joined us, we proceeded to Plano to attend conference, where I formed the acquaintance of many brethren and sisters, whom it had not been my privilege to meet before. This made the conference all the more pleasant to me. Conference concluded, it was with some reluctance that I said good by to my genial co-laborers, Brn. Crawford and Bozarth, they to carry the gospel to the "sunny South," while I am away here in the dominion of Queen Victoria.

Leaving Plano April 16th I went to Galien, Michigan, where and in vicinity I labored five or six weeks, some of the time with excellent liberty, and with acceptance to the people; also had the privilege of baptizing eight persons. I remember with pleasure, the kindness of the Saints and friends there, as there I labored under some affliction. I trust those recently baptized, with all others there, will prove faithful and receive the blessings of the heavenly Father. May 29th attended the Michigan conference, which was a fair one, held in the Saints' chapel, in Steuben county, Indiana. With Bro. C. Scott I left Michigan, June 4th, and came to this Dominion. Had the pleasure of attending the Kent and Elgin conference on the 5th and 6th inst. The conference was a good one; peace, unity and the Spirit were enjoyed. Expect to attend the London district conference, which is to be held at Usborne branch, June 13-15.

Have been blessed in the mission so far; like the Saints out here very much. Am improving in health and feeling strong in the faith. I sincerely request the Saints to pray for us while in the mission. Our address is London East, Ontario.

Yours in Christ,

GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

Conference Minutes:

PACIFIC SLOPE MISSION.

The General Conference of the Pacific Slope Mission met at San Bernardino, California, Tuesday, April 6th, 1880; J. F. Burton, presiding; H. L. Holt, secretary.

Elders J. F. Burton, (had baptized 14), G. Sparks, E. Prothero and M. McKenize reported, also Priests H. L. Holt and A. E. Jones, and Teachers R. Allen, Sen., and Ed. Ridley. Elders Wm. Anderson, E. H. Webb and John Carmichael reported by letter.

DISTRICT REPORTS.

J. F. Burton reports Los Angeles Sub District in good condition, except Newport Branch, which is laboring under an attack of false doctrine; thinks it will soon be freed from it. There are 171 members in branches, including 1 High Priest, 11 Elders, 7 Priests, 4 Teachers, 3 Deacons. There are also 9 members not belonging to any branch. At the district conference, held at Newport, March 6th and 7th, the appointment of a President of the Pacific Slope Mission was left to the First Presidency. Laguna Branch had 12 at last report, 15 now; 3 baptized, 3 ordinations.

San Francisco Sub-District conference minutes were read, and the resolution was noted wherein that district asks the General Conference direct, as well as this conference, to take immediate action in dissolving the mission and dividing it into four distinct districts, and it also asks conference to request the different districts to convene as early as possible, for the purpose of completing and perfecting the district organizations. Oakland Branch stood 44 at last report, has 41 at present; gain of 2 by letter and loss of 5 by letter. San Francisco 29; 2 removed by letter.

Santa Cruz Sub-District: John Carmichael, president, reports it as being in as good condition as the several districts usually are; some difficulties exist, but means are being taken to settle them.

Wednesday, 7th.—A. Whitlock, E. Prothero and G. Sparks were appointed as a court of Elders to try or enquire into any cases that may be presented to this conference for settlement.

Resolved, that, in accordance with the expressed desire of our brethren of the mission, and by the voice of this conference, we do hereby divide the Pacific Coast Mission into four distinct and separate districts, viz., Oregon and Washington Territory to compose one; Nevada, one; Northern California, one; Southern California, one.

That the president of this conference send at once the following telegram, to wit: "Mission divided, Oregon, Nevada, Northern California, Southern California. Endorse. Sent by conference authority. Answer by telegraph," to the General Conference at Plano, that our action in reference to division may be endorsed or not, so that we may act immediately.

Report of John Roberts, Bishop's Agent, for the year ending April 7th, 1880:—"Church Cr., Aug. 3d, 1879, Elizabeth Swarthout 50c., Lydia Van Luven 10c.; Nov. 23d, 1879, Emma Burton $2.25; Jan. 1, 1880, R. Allen, Sen., $46.65; Jan. 4th, Mary Rolfe $9; March 22, Adaline Boren $5; March 28th, Hannah Lytle $10, Jans Morse $1; March 29th, Mary James $50; April 4th, Eliza Humphrey $5; April 6th, May Rolfe $5; April 7th, Edward Ridley $10. Cr. total—$144.50.

"Church Dr., March 8th, 1879, Balance due R. Allen, Sen., $49.50; April 6th, paid J. F. Burton, of the ministry $12.32; sent to H. A. Stebbins $82.23; expense sending the same 45 cts. Total $144.50." Report accepted.

At 7:30 preaching by J. F. Burton.
Thursday, 8th.—At his request Bro. R. Huntley was released from the presidency of the San Bernardino Sub-District, and a vote of thanks was tendered him for past services.

Resolved that we sustain Joseph Smith as President of the Church of Jesus Christ of L. D. S., in all the world, in righteousness.

That we sustain J. C. Clapp as president of the Oregon Mission.

The following sub-district presidents were sustained:—H. P. Brown, of the San Francisco Sub-District; J. F. Burton, of the Los Angeles Sub-District; J. B. Price, of the Sacramento Sub-District, B. Robinson, of the Humboldt Sub-District, and John Carmichael, of the Santa Cruz Sub-District.

Adjourned to Saturday.

Saturday, 9th, 10 a.m.—The following telegram was read and accepted: "Division of Mission as made is endorsed by General Conference. Henry A. Stebbins, Secretary."

Resolved that "Oregon District" consist of the State of Oregon and Territory of Washington; the "Nevada District," of the State of Nevada; the "Southern California District," of the following counties in the State of California, viz, San Diego, San Bernardino, Los Angeles, San Buenaventura, Kern, Santa Barbara, Tulare, Inyo and San Luis Obispo, and that "Northern California" consist of all the remaining counties of the State of California.

That the presidents of sub-districts in each of these four districts are hereby requested to call a conference in each of their respective districts, to complete the district organizations.

That the secretary of this conference send copies as soon as possible from the minutes of this conference of all the resolutions passed; also telegrams in reference to division of this mission, and resolution requesting sub-district presidents to call conferences to organize districts.

Court of Elders reported that they can not try the case presented in behalf of P. Canavan, because of distance from and absence of principals and witnesses, but they recommend that the case be referred to the Northern California District, in which most of the parties reside, for immediate adjudication.

In reference to Bro. J. Carmichael's appeal, the court decided that they could not give a decision for lack of testimony, and they recommended that it be referred to the Santa Cruz Sub-District for settlement.

The report was accepted, and the recommendations to refer were adopted in both cases.

Sunday, 11th.—Upon recommendation of the San Bernardino Branch, Priest Hiram L. Holt was ordained to the office of an Elder.

Resolved that we sustain Bro. Abednego Johns as president of Nevada District.

After some remarks by J. F. Burton we partook of the sacrament.

At 7:30 p.m., Elsie L. Fabun, Mary A. Prothero and Sarah Wixom, who were baptized by J. F. Burton during intermission, were confirmed, after which H. L. Holt preached.

Adjourned sine die.

SANTA CRUZ SUB-DISTRICT.

A conference convened at Watsonville, California, March 13th, 1880; John Carmichael in the chair; J. H. Lawn, clerk pro tem.

Branch Reports:—San Benito 19; much scattered; no change. Jefferson 20; much scattered; no change. Watsonville last report 60, present number 44; 1 received and 17 removed, 1 marriage.

Report of District Treasurer, John M. Range: "On hand March 7th, 1880, $18.50."

Elders J. H. Lawn, Daniel Brown, L. S. Hutchings, John Carmichael, Orrin Smith and P. Canavan reported; also Priest I. A. Tuck, Teacher L. E. Hutchings and Deacon I. F. Kingsbury reported.

At 7:30 p.m., preaching by J. H. Lawn.

Sunday, 14th, 10 a.m.—A resolution was adopted favoring the division of the Mission, and that California be divided into two, it also being requested by this conference that the line of division be so designated as to leave this sub-district in the southern portion of the Northern District.

At 11 a.m., preaching by John Carmichael; at 2 p.m., sacrament and testimony meeting; evening, preaching by Orren Smith and John Carmichael.

Adjourned to meet at Bro. J. H. Lawn's, San Benito county, at 10 a.m., Saturday, September 18th, 1880.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA DISTRICT.

A conference convened at Nebraska City, April 18th, 1880.

At 10:30 a.m., preaching by Henry and George Kemp; at 2:30 p.m., prayer and fellowship meeting; at 7:30 p.m., preaching by R. C. Elvin.

19th.—President Anthony and Secretary Elvin reported concerning the district work and statistics.

Bishop's Agent's Report:—"On hand January 1st, 1880, $9.72, tithing received $42.66, offerings $5.50, total $57.88; sent to the Bishop $50.20, exchange 26 cents, to the ministry $7.40, total $57.86; March 31st, 1880, bal. on hand 2 cents. J. W. Waldsmith, Agent."

Delegate to General Conference stated his inability to go.

Elders Henderson Fields, James Cazier, James Thomsen, (baptized one), R. C. Elvin, J. Armstrong, J. W. Waldsmith and R. M. Elvin, (preached thirty-eight times, held one discussion, baptized five), H. Kemp, P. C. Petersen, George Kemp; Priests Alex. Buchanan, Martin Cain; Teacher Nicholas Trook and Deacon J. W. Spurgeon reported; also Priest F. L. Tucker by proxy.

Branch Reports:—Nebraska City, last report 104, present 105; 1 baptized. Palmyra, last report 40, present 40; no changes. Platte River, last report 34, present 34; 1 baptized, 1 died. Blue River, last report 34, present 36; 2 received. Clear Creek, (organized February 15th, 1880), present number 11, including 1 Priest, 1 Teacher. Moroni and Plattsmouth, no report. Plattsmouth and Moroni branches were referred to the district president and secretary.

Resolved that Elder James Thomsen be sustained in his mission, and he is privileged to use his own discretion as to what language he shall preach in, or what color of people, so that the branch meetings are not interfered with.

An hour was spent in free discussion on the following: "Who has the right to give revelation to govern the Church, District or Branch?"

Preaching at 7:30 p.m., by Levi Anthony, followed by prayer meeting.

Adjourned to meet at Bro. J. B. Gouldsmith's grove, near South Bend, Cass county, Nebraska, August 15th, 1880, at 10:30 a.m.

Pleasant Grove, at last report 23, present 25; 4 received, 2 removed by letter. Starfield 31; no changes. St. Joseph, at last report 89, present 89; 1 received by letter, 1 expelled.

Elders Reuben Phillips and J. C. McIntyre reported by letter, and D. J. Powell, Wm. Lewis, L. W. Babbitt, F. M. Bevins, S. Butler, R. A. Marchant, (baptized 2), T. J. Franklin, D. E. Powell, (baptized 2), Jacob Snyder, L. L. Babbitt, A. J. Seeley, (baptized 1), J. T. Kinnaman, (baptized 2), G. C. Smith, J. C. Graham, L. W. Booker, J. D. Flanders, T. Hinderks, (baptized 3), J. M. Terry in person, also Priest J. H. Merriam, and Teachers J. Dempsey, Thos. McKee, G. W. Robley, G. Fox and M. F. Beebe.

D. E. Powell, S. Butler and A. J. Seeley were appointed a committee to revise the "Order of Business."

[Some two day meetings were appointed. The following are yet to be held: One in the German Stewartville Branch, July 10th and 11th; Pleasant Grove, 24th and 25th; Starfield, 31st and

August 1st; Far West, August 7th and 8th; Centre Prairie, 14th and 15th. Elders in charge, in the order given above, are: Brn. Kinnaman and Bevins; Terry and Flanders; Booker and Snyder; L. W. and L. L. Babbitt; Summerfield and D. E. Powell.—Eds.]

A former resolution to sustain an Elder in the district, to give his time to the ministry, was rescinded.

Resolved that the Sabbath be devoted to worship, excluding all business on that day.

Bishop's Agent reported:—"Received $44.20; paid out $39.95; balance $4.25. J. D. Flanders, Agent."

Met Sabbath morning at 9:30 for prayer; at 11 o'clock J. M. Terry preached; at 1 p.m., had sacrament and testimony meeting; at 7:30, Bro. Wm. Lewis preached.

The attendance on Sabbath was the largest ever known in that place, and the Saints also gathered renewed strength.

Adjourned to Delana, August 21st and 22d, 1880.

EASTERN IOWA DISTRICT.

A conference was held in Maquoketa, Iowa, May 22d, 1880; E. Larkey, president; E. Kelsall, clerk pro tem.

Branch Reports:—Buffalo 21 members; 2 baptized. Butternut Grove 33; 2 baptized. Jackson report referred back for correction. Davenport not reported.

The district secretary resigned, on account of leaving the district, and Charles Alford was appointed in his place.

Resolved that Brn. Jobe Brown and — Turner be received into the district.

Elders Boice, Kelsall, Brown, Reynolds, Bradley, Larkey and Ruby reported, also Priest Turner.

Whereas, this district being in need of ministerial labor; and Whereas the Saints in this district are willing to sustain one or more Elders in said district; and Whereas the Church treasury is depleted by the demands for foreign missions, therefore be it Resolved that we ask the Bishop for permission and order to use nine-tenths of the tithing collected in this district by the Bishop's Agent, and that but a tithe of the tithes be sent to the Bishop by his Agent, and that until this request be granted we severally agree to pay to the Bishop's treasury such tithes as a tenth of all that God gives us, for the support of one or more Elders as Evangelists in the district, and the money be paid to the order of one of the presidents of the branch, or of the district.

A committee was appointed to examine the books of the Bishop's Agent, and their report was accepted.

Resolved that Brn. Jobe Brown and J. Ruby be sustained in laboring most of their time within the limits of this district.

A series of protracted meetings was provided for, the president to appoint Elders to carry on said meetings.

Adjourned to the Jackson Branch at the call of the president.

CENTRAL KANSAS DISTRICT.

A conference convened at Centralia, Kansas, May 22d, 1880; David Williams, president; James Buckley, clerk pro tem.

Branch Reports:—Atchison, 31 members. Netawaka 20. Good Intent 20. Scranton 17; 1 baptized. Centralia 11; 4 baptized. Fanning 14. White Cloud not reported.

Elders Alma Dodd, J. Jones, Daniel Munns, David Williams, Griffith George, Wm. Hopkins, Henry Green reported in person, James Jarvis by letter. Priest Joseph McDougal reported.

Bro G. Wolverton was ordained a Deacon.

Saturday evening, preaching by David Williams.

Sunday, 10 a.m., preaching by Henry Green. At 2 p.m., prayer and testimony meeting.

Conference adjourned to meet at Good Intent, August 14th, 1880.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICE.

To the Saints of the Nauvoo and String Prairie District:—Love, mercy, peace and joy in the truth to you be multiplied.

We would admonish you to continue in well doing, and faint not by the way. Be strong in the Lord and the power of his might. Let the truth dwell in you richly, that you may be established in that which will purify your hearts, and make you better and righteous. Should there be in any of the branches any hardness of feeling, animosity, envy or strife, or any such like things, let them be put away from among you, that the love of God may develop in your souls. Speak not evil one of another. Repeat to others no failings of a brother or sister, but let us remember that we too are fallible. Abide in righteousness, truth, love, goodness, and be gentle and of longsuffering one toward the other, that God's divine approval may rest upon you all.

Remember your president in your prayers, that he may be upheld before a throne of mercy, that he may preside over you in righteousness and Christlike love; that he may rule in wisdom and with much discretion. Remember the interests of God's work in the district.

J. F. McDowell, President.

WANTED.

William Wallace, of Elvaston, Hancock county, Illinois, wants some woman of industry and integrity to keep house for him. Brother Wallace is a widower with two children to care for, the youngest being eleven years old. The young lady that was keeping house for him died last winter. Her sister is with him now, not able to do much. Further particulars furnished on application. Address as above.

QUESTION ONE THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED AND ONE.

Dear Herald: Please request some one to answer the following question through your valuable paper: Who was uncle to Abraham's great grandfather, on his mother's side? Any one answering the above, will confer a favor on the modern style of International Lessons, and otherwise. t.s.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice.

DIED.

MEYER.—At Nebraska City, Nebraska, June 7th, 1880, Mary, infant daughter of Bro. Cornelius and sister, M. K. Meyer, born May 31st, 1880. "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

CRAW.—At San Bernardino, California, May 10th, 1880, Sr. Jane Ann Crow, aged 64 years, 7 months and 17 days. Her testimony was to the last, "I know the latter day work to be of God."

SIMPSON.—At Miller Township, Illinois, at the house of Elder Andrew Hayer, Feb. 14th, 1880, Sr. Thelga K. Simpson. She was born at Tilmark, Norway, Sept. 17th, 1794. She died in hope.

CASTINGS.—At Pleasantville, Marion county, Iowa, May 16th, 1880, after four weeks sickness by teething, Emma, youngest daughter of brother and sister Castings, departed this life, aged 1 year, 7 months and 5 days. She is missed, it is true, but our loss is her gain. Funeral services by Elder Joseph P. Knox.

THOMSON.—At his home in Mottville, St. Joseph county, Michigan, August 5th, 1877, Bro. Andrew Thomson, in the 87th year of his age. He was an old time Saint, and after the Saints were scattered he always contended the right to lead was in Joseph's seed, never having any chance to unite with the Reorganization; but three years ago expressed a desire to do so, to his daughter Jemima, Sr. Kerstetter, now deceased, while on a visit to her father, he thus expressed himself, and wished some Elder to come that way that he might unite. On her return she told me. I immediately wrote to Bro. W. H. Kelley, at Berrien, Michigan; but he, being at that time in Southern Indiana, did not get my letter in time. When he did, he wrote up and got the news of his death. It has been neglected since, but I now wish an insertion, as he has done more than most others in that part of the vineyard in tithing and freewill offerings. He was at the time of his death in his eighty-seventh year, and bade fair to live quite a number of years; but for the misfortune of getting hurt by a large gate falling on him sometime in May previous to his death, from which he never recovered.

GRIFFIN.—At Collingwood, Ontario, April 12th, 1880, Sr. Sarah Faith Griffin, aged 23 years. Sr. Griffin was born in Shutford, England, November 24th, 1856; was baptized by the writer, in Toronto, Canada, May 26th, 1878. Her whole life was exemplary, and the two years of her experience in the Church were said by her to have been the most joyful she had known. Her last hours of sickness were spent in exhorting those around her to embrace the gospel while in health. Her suffering, though severe, was borne without a single murmur; and, looking upward, not long before her death, she exclaimed, "My Savior calls, I am going to a better place—to a happier home." In answer to enquirers she said, "I am not afraid to die." She requested her parents to read the hymn, "Tis a glorious thing to be in the light of God," and passed away calmly and peacefully to her rest. Her end was a complete triumph.

"My Savior calls, I can not stay,
Or longer dwell within this clay—
Farewell, farewell, I homeward fly,
Weep not—'tis glorious to die."

JOSEPH LUFF.

ROSS.—In the Ross Grove Branch, Holt county, Missouri, January 18th, 1880, Sr. Rosa Ross, aged 15 years, 2 months and 21 days. She was born in Lewiston, Trinity county, California, November 24th, 1864; baptized April 12th, 1879, by Bro. Thos. Nutt. Funeral services by Elder Thomas Nutt.

KERSTETTER.—Sister Jemima Kerstetter, wife of George Kerstetter, departed this life on the morning of 5th inst, at a quarter past three. She joined the Church in 1841; was baptized by G. E. Deuel. She lived a consistent member till after the death of Joseph and Hyrum, when the Saints were scattered. She took the advice of her father as to who should lead the Church, which he said was in the Martyr's seed. Not hearing any of the Reorganization, she united with the Christian Church, in Douglas county, Nebraska, in the winter of 1867-8, but on hearing Brn. Z. S. Martin and B. V. Springer, on March 14th, 1874, she united with the Reorganization, by re-baptism by Bro. George Hatt. She was 55 years, 2 months and 29 days old. When God called her, he also saw fit to call two infant sons of Bro. James and Sr. Delia J. Perkins, to accompany grandmother while waiting the resurrection. They were born at about six and one-half months, were both alive when born, the first being born almost at the instant of the grandmother's death; the other an hour or two later. It occurs to us that God called the two angels to accompany her, as they were laid one in each arm with heads resting on her shoulders in one coffin. It was a sad sight indeed, yet beautiful, looking at it in the light above mentioned. The children were named Joseph and Hyrum.

HOOVER.—At Pecatonica Illinois, near midnight, May 31st, 1880, Alice L., daughter of George L. and Elma L. Hoover, aged 19 years, 8 months and 24 days. Alice was the joy and pride of her parents; modest in manner, pure in character, innocent in life, and as gentle and kind as she was beautiful in person. Therefore she was loved by many friends, and mourned by all when she passed away. Fair and lovely in all ways as a child, she more and more evinced, as she grew towards and developed into womanhood, those gracious and noble qualities of heart and mind that adorned her life so well. During her two months illness she became still more patient and lovely in her character; but, being weary with failing powers and long confinement, she desired to rest in the New Jerusalem, as she said. At evening on the last day, being lifted up to take a parting view of earth, she exclaimed: "This world is beautiful, but I am going to one that is far more beautiful." She said that she was not afraid to die, for she loved God; and, to comfort her parents and friends, she quoted the words of Christ: "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." Thus she passed peacefully and happily away, having for many years blessed the lives of those into whose charge she was given, and thereby, we trust, together with her death, aiding to sanctify their lives to better and truer purposes here and hereafter, as in the providence of God, we devoutly pray may be the case.

BARNES.—At Hingham, Massachusetts, May 22d, 1880, of consumption, Sr. Beuna V. Barnes, aged 33 years. She was baptized November 5th, 1879. She realized the presence of the Holy Spirit, enabling her to endure more patiently her great sufferings.

LAWSON.—At Boston Highlands, Massachusetts, May 25th, 1880, of heart disease, Sr. Elizabeth M. Lawson, aged 31 years. Baptized Nov. 19th, 1876. She lived about twenty minutes after being attacked. Said, "I do not fear to die; I have been prepared for this for some time."

PARROTT.—At Boston Highlands, May 25th, 1880, Sr. Annie Parrott, aged 55 years. This sister had been a sufferer for years. Her last sickness was very severe, living only a little over a week. She received a manifestation of God's love and her acceptance, and saw in vision the abode of the blest. Sister Parrott was baptized Nov. 14, 1875.

WEBSTER.—Jesse Webster deceased at his home in Hartford, Van Buren county, Michigan, June 15th, 1880, aged 34 years, 10 months, and 20 days. He had been a member of the Church about one year, and died in hope of a rest with the good. Services by Elders Wm. H. Kelley and C. M. Bootman.

NOBLE.—At Amboy, Illinois, March 27th, 1880, Elder Charles Noble, aged 55 years and 3 months.

Honest and courageous people have little to say about either their courage or their honesty. The sun has no need to boast of its brightness, nor the moon of her effulgence.

God has promised forgiveness to your repentance; but he has not promised a to-morrow to your procrastination.

Necessity is the argument of tyrants; it is the creed of slaves.

An angel smiled as a youth's slight arm
Supported a falling brother,
For in love, and in charity divine,
Earthly ones uphold each other.
A starving child gave a portion of bread
To a beggar in his way;
When the angel gathered a fallen crumb,
It sparkled with purest ray;
And the angel saw through the passing years,
That the life of self-denial
Made many a beautiful, golden day,
For faith glorified each trial.

In all human language there are no wiser words than those of the Savior in the golden rule, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them." Were it to prevail among all people there would be no more theft, no more violence, no more murder, no more slavery, no more war. Instead of the many evils which now prevail as a result of breaking the golden rule, love, kindness and peace would fill all hearts and all lands. But unhappily, many people, both young and old, prefer wrong to right, and evil to good.

"Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit earth."

ONLY A JEW.

"Only a Jew!" What a strange remark;
 With his coal black eyes, and his skin so dark;
 With his curly locks and his Roman nose,
 And his quiet air with friends and foes.

"Only a Jew!" So the scornors say;
 And only a man of an other day,
 Who on the earth hath no dwelling place,
 But maketh his homo with every race.

"Only a Jew!" Say the Gentile world;
 And the head is tossed and the lip is curled;
 And, only a man for close, sharp gain—
 Is the Gentile free from this common stain?

"Only a Jew!" True, true, my friend;
 But, to evil ways he will seldom bend.
 A father kind, and a husband true
 To his marriage vows, is this wandering Jew.

"Only a Jew!" One never meets
 A Hebrew sot in the crowded streets;
 And a Jewish brawl is a thing scarce known
 As the months have passed, and the years have flown.

Hail to the Merchant Princes bold,
 Of Jewish faith, and wealth untold;
 And the busy Hebrews, one and all,
 Our brethren, let us henceforth call.

"Church of the Devil."

A discourse delivered in Salt Lake City, February 18, 1866, by Elder Thos. Job, of the Reorganized Church.

"For if a church be called in the name of a man, then it be the church of a man. But if it be called in my name, then it is my church; if it so be that they are built upon my gospel. And if it so be that the church is built upon my gospel, then will the Father shew forth his own work in it; but if it be not built upon my gospel, and is built upon the works of men, or upon the works of the devil, verily, I say unto you, they have joy in their work for a season, and by-and-by the end cometh, and they are hewn down, and cast into the fire, from whence there is no return."—Book of Nephi chap. 12: 3.

The church alluded to here in the words "my church," is the Church of Jesus Christ, by which I shall understand a certain society or body of people bound together in the same covenant with him through his officiating servants, to obey the laws and keep the commandments revealed to them by him in his everlasting gospel, as conditions for them to obtain salvation upon, from the thralldom of sin, by the plan he offered through the merits of his atonement.

The gospel of Jesus Christ contains a certain system, or form of government, which is called the Kingdom of God; and certain divine organization and legal appointment of executive powers and authorities which is called the priesthood, according to the holy order of God. Though the laws and principles of the gospel of Christ were revealed over again in this generation with the greatest purity, simplicity, clearness, and punctuality, through Joseph Smith, the martyred prophet of Almighty God; yet, as it is surprising to me, the people here in the vallies of the Rocky Mountains, who style themselves the living priesthood of God, and purport to have come right from under the voice of the great Prophet; are even now more depraved, more corrupt, more enthusiastic, bigoted, traditional and superstitious, than any other so called Christian denomination now extant on the face of the whole earth.

The primacy that Brigham Young usurped in this, so called, living priesthood, endowed him with authority to enforce his tyrannical priestcraft upon his dupes, or subjects, so as to delude the simple, ignorant, and unwary, to regard the words of revelation as a thing of naught, by teaching to them the diabolical plan of doing as they are told by him, and ask no questions, as the only safe way to salvation. I embraced the gospel soon after the death of Joseph, and emigrated unto this place, knowing but very little of what is written in these books of the revelations of God, having read the testimony of Joseph concerning the plates and received the testimony of Jesus for my confirmation. But I had not been here very long, before I became thoroughly convinced of the great apostasy of the church under the presidency of Brigham Young, from the pure principles of the gospel of Christ; chiefly from the great advantages that were exercised over the poor by the oppression and tyranny of the authorities to their own aggrandizement of wealth and power; and from the secret combination of murder, theft, castration, robbery and assassination, which were sanctioned and countenanced in the Church. I concluded that their religion was a humbug, and that their church was only a counterfeit, the Lord was not at the helm, and that the prophet with his Zion did not answer the expectations of the Saints.

These reflections induced me to diligently search the Scriptures with a view to find out the reason of these great disappointments, and I soon became satisfied that the saints by whom I was surrounded were the outcast of Zion, for transgression and rebellion against the Lord and against his servants, and that they were not of the seed of Ephraim to whom the promises were made; but that the Lord included them in darkness and unbelief, and that Brigham Young had neither claim to, nor qualification for the presidential chair of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Under sense of the forlornness of my position I turned unto the Lord, and in humble prayer I asked for knowledge to myself, and the Lord vouchsafed to give me an answer. In a clear vision he shewed me the person, and gave me the name of Joseph Smith the second, and I was made to understand that he would soon come and be the president of the true Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. But, my dear brethren, that vision is not my guide, but the law and the testimony are my test. But it did me good. I was saved from the contamination of that endowment house, and from the secret combination and abominable covenants which are contracted there with the man of sin.

I made the assertion that your church here in the Rocky Mountains is not the Church of Jesus Christ, now I shall proceed to give you my reasons for it, and to prove to you to whom it belongs. We learn from the text that there are different kinds of churches; for there is the Church of Christ, the churches of men, and the church of the devil. This devil's church must also exist in these latter days, or else the Lord would never give charge to the Latter Day Saints, saying, "Contend against no church save it be the church of the devil."—B. of C. 43: 4.

Now, my text declares that if a church be called in Jesus Christ's name, then it is his church; if it so be that they are built upon his gospel. Well, quoth you, is not our church built upon the gospel of Jesus Christ? And do we not call it by his name. "The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints?"

If your church is built upon the gospel of Jesus Christ, the text declares that the Father of Christ shows forth his own works in it. But, where is the Father's work in the church under Brigham Young? I can't find the first trace of it. Show me the works of the Father and it will be sufficient.

The Lord declared by the mouth of his servant that he never does anything but that he reveals the secret of it to his servants, the prophets. Therefore, where there is no prophet of God, there is no work done by him. Now who is God's prophet in that church under Brigham, to whom he reveals the secret of his works? You say, Brigham is the prophet, and the mouthpiece of God to all nations; but I will prove unto you that he is no prophet but a false one, and that he is no seer but a blind one; and when you sustained him as your prophet, seer, and revelator, he had nothing to say himself, but, "If I am so to this people I thank God for it."

But as a test to prove your great prophet by, I shall read to you the rule laid down by the Lord through the instrumentality of his prophet Moses. Deut. 18: 20-22: "But the prophet which shall presume to speak a word in my name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or who shall speak in the name of other Gods, (as Brigham does in Adam's name), even that prophet shall die. And if thou say in thine heart how shall we know the word which the Lord hath not spoken? When a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing that the Lord hath not spoken; but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously, thou shalt not be afraid of him." No, not even if he was to curse me.

"Well," quoth you, "what of that. Did Brigham Young ever speak any thing in the name of the Lord, and the thing did not follow, nor come to pass?" Yes, I say, he did, many things, which I could now refer you to, or remind you of, and none of them followed, nor came to pass. I call your recollection to four or five particular prophecies of his that have been extensively published and are well known unto many of you, which all failed to come to pass. First, that a rail-road would be completed from the Missouri River to Salt Lake, by the year 1861. Secondly, that the Mormons would never have again to bow under a Gentile yoke, or have Gentile governors, or judges. Thirdly, that the United States troops would never live to come inside of the Rocky Mountains. That Echo Canon would cave in on them, and that the earth would swallow them all up as it did Core, Dathan and Abiram. Fourthly, that President Buchanan would be transformed into a wild buck, and chased over Vermont, to feed on grass amongst the bucks of the prairie. The fifth, and last I shall now mention is, that Brigham Young should be elected to the presidential chair of all the United States, in the year 1864, or if he should not like to hold that office himself that he would have authority to call on whosoever he would please to fill that important station.

Now, my friends, these are the words which the Lord hath not spoken, and Brigham is the prophet that spoke them presumptuously in his name; and the Lord said that that prophet shall die, now you Danites that are here, since you are so anxious to serve the Lord by your bloody deeds, there is a job for you.

I did not intend to move you to laughter, for I now have something of great importance to impress on your minds, which demands your most scrutinous attention, and the thing that I was driving at is this. Since Brigham young is no prophet but a false one; and since the Lord does no work but what he reveals to his servants the prophets; and since Jesus Christ says, that no church can be his Church, and built upon his gospel unless the Father will show forth his own work in it; therefore, that church which hath Brigham Young for its prophet, can not by any means be the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. This is a demonstrative truth, it is a syllogism; if not, I would wish to know wherein the fallacy lies. Now, since the church under Brigham Young is not the Church of Jesus Christ, there is only one alternative left, for it must be either the church of a man, or the church of the devil. As to which of these is it, you may ascertain by the works that are manifested in it; if they are the works of man, then it is the church of a man, but if they be the works of the devil, then the church of the devil.

The Church of Jesus Christ is built upon his gospel, it is guided by his revelation, and governed by the priesthood according to his holy order. In it does the Father show forth his own work, his act, his strange act in the establishing of truth in the earth, in the redeeming, and building up of Zion, in subduing all powers to respect his laws, and in restoring the earth and every thing in it, to answer the purpose for which they were ordained.

The churches of men are those that are built upon the works of men, they adhere to the precepts, execute the plans, carry out the designs, and are called by the names of, or those invented by, their reverend founders.

The Campbellian Church adheres to Campbell; they acknowledge his authority, and execute his mandates. The Lutheran Church was founded by Luther, and they execute the measures, sanction the designs, acknowledge the precepts, and it is called after the name of Martin Luther. After the same manner the Calvinistic, the Wesleyan, the Arminian, and the Socinian churches are severally denominated.

But as to the church of the devil, it is far more abominable in the sight of God, more awful in its consequences, and more destructive to the true Church of Christ than any other of the churches; so the Lord gives charge to all Latter Day Saints to contend against no church save it be the church of the devil. The church of the devil, hear the voice, execute the will, and perform the works of the devil upon which are they founded, and they finally partake of his fate, and reap of his reward. "They are hewn down and cast into the fire, from whence there is no return." While the churches of men, unless they sin against the revealed will of God and light of heaven, will have their part in the first resurrection and enjoy their glory in the terrestrial kingdom of God. (B. C. 92: 6). And, even if they will not receive the light of heaven, they will come forth in the second resurrection, and be heirs of salvation in the celestial kingdom of glory. B. C. 92: 7.

But how are we to know the church of the devil? What is its name? After whom is it called? And how is it organized? Is the devil's church called after his name? No, we don't find that in the text, but the Lord says that the church of a man is called after the name of a man, and that his Church is called after his name, but what says he about the church of the devil? How is it called? He don't say that it is called after the devil's name. No, what about it then?

Paul, when alluding to those pretended saints in the latter days, who would perform the works of the devil, says, that they have the form of godliness, but deny the power thereof. Therefore the church of the devil has the form, or pattern of the true Church of Christ; the same form of organization as the Church of God. They have their apostles, prophets, pastors, evangelists, high priests, elders, &c. They must also have the name of the true Church of Christ to fill up the pattern of godliness. It would not suit the devil to call by any other name, more than to organize it after any other form; for his purpose is to deceive. Yes, if it is possible, even the very elect. Hence, the church of the devil must necessarily be called the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints."

So the church of the devil has the form of godliness, but denies the power thereof. This includes that they have been once in possession thereof, but they don't need it now. It don't suit them now that they have outgrown it. It is but a boy's coat to them now. They have been once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and the powers of the world to come; but have fallen away. They have not got it now, but they claim a form. "They are proud and haughty, speaking oppression and revolt, despising the poor, speaking ill of dignities; they can commit all manner of sin and iniquities under the form, name, or pretense of godliness; they can commit murder, theft, fornication adultery, whoredom, and idolatry, they can practise all kinds of falsehood, covetousness, priestcraft, divorcecraft, slavery, and oppression under the pretence of serving the Lord; wherefore, all the Latter Day Saints are requested of the Lord to come out under full armor to contend against them. There is no need for any man, or body of men to wear the cap unless it fits them.

"Yes," says one "but I don't see any church left for the devil but this our church in the Rocky Mountains, and of course it must be the church of the devil, because it is the church you always contend against. A fine way indeed, for an apostate to justify himself for his rebellion."

Well, let us bring the question to test. If your church here is the church of the devil, the devil shows forth his own works in it, and for my life, I can not find any work manifested in the church under the presidency of Brigham Young, save it be the work of the devil, for which I feel sorry, and grieved to the heart; but to the proof. You must all admit that to worship an idol is a work of the devil, for we read in the Book of Mormon concerning idolaters, that the devil of all devils rejoices in them; and our text shows that the devil only has joy in his own works; therefore, idolatry must necessarily be the work of the devil. But idolatry is a maxim in the Brighamite church, for they worship Adam the creature instead of God the creator; for Brigham proclaims to all that father Adam is the true God, and the only God with whom they have any thing to do, and that all nations must, sooner, or later, come to this acknowledgement. The conclusion, therefore, must naturally follow, that a church which manifests such a work must necessarily be the church of the devil.

Secondly, Brigham Young does not only teach his dupes to indulge in the abomination of idolatry, but also to commit adultery and whoredom, under the pretense of godliness; that unless they have many wives and concubines under the disguise of a celestial marriage, that they can never be saved in the celestial kingdom of God; and that this is the celestial law, and the new and everlasting covenant; while the Lord teaches us in the Book of Covenants that the celestial law is, for a man to have one wife, and to cleave unto her and none else, and that he that looketh on any other woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith and shall not have the spirit, as the Brighamites have done. See B. C. Sec 7 and 13.

Brigham also grants his Mussulmen the indulgence of putting away their wives whenever they please, and to marry others as often as they desire; and those that are put away are married to others again in an honorable manner; which is another operation of the old boy, for the Lord says that it is the committing of adultery; what Paul classes among the works of the flesh and of the devil.

Another column yet built by the old boy is human sacrifice; and this is a pillar in the Brighamite church, for he teaches the members of it to commit the most heinous murders against those who will not obey his counsel, sustain his doctrines, or worship his God; all under the disguise of saving their souls and serving the Lord. For, quoth they, "It is done out of pure love, for the salvation of your souls, your blood must be spilt on the earth to atone for your sins, the blood of Jesus can not wash them, and the waters of baptism will never do to cleanse them, for they are of too deep a dye, therefore go brethren and help them, let the earth drink their blood, and so you will be saviors on Mount Zion." Human sacrifice is murder. It is from the devil, and the generation of the devil are those that indulge in it, for the work of their father, the devil, they do; for he is a manslayerer from the beginning. O! how completely is your church built upon the works of the devil, and how manifest does the devil shew forth his own works in it! Shall I ask you, O, Brighamites, is murder a chief maxim in your church? Is it a principle of salvation in your creed? Will you pretend to save a sinner by cutting his throat, and call yourselves saviors on Mount Zion, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. O! what a preposterous blasphemy, shame to humanity! Pollution to the holy Mount of Zion! Disgrace to the name of the Holy One of Israel! O! what a doleful noise, methinks, salutes my ears! what grievous groans enfloat the vast expanse! The blood of innocent souls cries from the ground, piercing the veil that separates time from eternity; with doleful agony seeking access unto the audience of the Lord God of Sabaoth, "How long, O Lord, Holy, and true, dost thou not judge, and avenge this blood on them that dwell in the salt land, and tyrannize over thy honest saints!"

O! Secretary Babbitt, O! Margetts, and scores of others, shall I now invoke your shades, and hear your stories? Will you inform me of what heinous, what atrocious deeds you were not guilty of, when your fair forms had to fall to the ground, by a train of blazing balls, from those infernal guns, revolving in the bloody hands of traitorous villains; your mangled bodies left to be torn by wolves and carrion crows; and your bones to bleach forever among the rocks of the mountains? Or shall I rather call up the wealthy Bowman, or the Mountain Meadow camp! Or rather, you, the Parishes, of Springville. For you, I heard, were saved unto celestial glory by having your throats cut, and your bodies mangled by a dozen deadly wounds at once, until the road was sown with flesh and flowed with blood! But I refrain. I'll let you rest. I shudder! I can not stand such apparition's sight. I know you all, and know you were honest men, and that you were never slain for any thing evil that you did; but for the things you knew, and for your wealth you died. You were disaffected and too dangerous to go away; but rest, rest now in peace.

My friends, these are specimens of the works on which the Luciferian church is built, oppression, murder, theft, and tyranny, idolatry, whoredom, rape and adultery, kidnapping and slavery, &c. &c.

You may accuse me of using harsh language and hard words, but I can not help it, for I can not find a soft word to describe villainy, or crime, neither a mild language to identify those that perpetrated them. It takes ugly words to describe the works of an ugly devil. I am naturally a very modest man. My grammar teaches me that words are signs of ideas. Well, this is all I want, to give my ideas the proper significations, so that you can not mistake them.

The Brighamites deny the power of godliness. The gifts of the Holy Ghost they have no need of. They say that Brigham Young had brought them to such a high pitch of perfection as not to need any more manifestations of it, and that all the gifts have an end in Brigham, even as the law of Moses had an end in Christ. But the true reason is, because they can not get into the church, and how can they when they foster a spirit which is not the Spirit of Christ, countenance a work which is not the work of the Father, and worship a god which is not the God of miracles. There is no friendship between God and Belial; so the works of the Father can not be manifested in the church of the devil. Now mark my words; does the reporter copy these important truths. (Reporter, "I haven't got another sheet"). Well, cry out then, writings are signs of words, but words are signs of ideas; and loud words are as good as large letters. Report then. with the reports of thunders, let these everlasting hills to their foundation quake, let there be not a soul in these extensive dales but what must feel your echoes to reverberate from hill to hill, and from mount to mount. Cry aloud, spare not, say that the Luciferian church is found, that the Beelzebubian fraternity is disclosed; that the Son of Perdition is revealed, with all the secrets of the Devil's church over which he presides, and by a pure mathematical demonstration proved.

Call all good Christians to come out. Tell them, the omnipotent charges them to put on the whole armor of God, and bravely contend against this abominable church, truth for a girdle, righteousness for a breast-plate, the preparation of the gospel for shoes, faith for a shield, and salvation for a helmet. Let them keep all these armor bright and shining, and especially the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God. Keep that bright and sharp, and always close at hand, it is the chief weapon in this warfare, therefore stand and tear, charge, contend, and conquer; be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might; for we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, and against spiritual wickedness in lofty places.

It is always profitable and well spent time to search the Scriptures, for "there is a promise in the Bible for every want, and trial, and difficulty."

I went for consolation to the sea,
Hoping its song my grief might cure;
But all the waves there said to me,
"Was this one word, 'Endure.'"
Then to the woods in haste I went—
Pain from my heart they oft would lure;
The trees were by a tempest bent,
They bowed to me and said, "Endure."

They conquer who endure.

"Shall We Know Each Other There."

WHILE sitting in deep thought about the future world, and perusing the Saints' Harp, my eyes fell on the 895th hymn "Shall we know each other there?" Then I felt impressed to write something in regard to it, for I feel desolate and almost alone and wish to converse with the brethren. Still I know that if I am true to God while in my state of loneliness, I will know those who are dear to me when these trials are over. Yes, we shall know each other there. Lazarus was known in heaven; Abraham was known there. Pastors will know their flocks, we shall know our friends at the bar of Jesus.

The perfect fellowship of Saints implies a knowledge of each other, and friendly spirits will make those known to us whom we did not know on earth. All human beings have certain distinctive marks by which they are known. And will these be lost in the world to come? Will our knowledge of each other be less perfect in a world of perfection than it is in this imperfect state? The angels that carried Lazarus to the bosom of Abraham knew him perfectly well. They had seen him in abject poverty, covered with sores, and shamefully neglected. They saw him in the hour of death, and they saw him in glory; and if he were known to them when advanced to the heavenly feast, and clothed with honor, was he not known to others? Abraham knew him, mentioned his former name, and stated his sufferings on earth.—Luke 16:25. He was greatly changed, but still appeared as the identical person who lay at the gate of the rich man. And the rich man, though in hell, knew both Lazarus and Abraham, who were in heaven. For it is expressly said, "He seeth Abraham afar off and Lazarus in his bosom."—Verse 23. This is a deep mystery, but a real fact.

"Why," says one, "if we had the knowledge of the banishment of our relatives and acquaintances from Christ's presence it would fill us with grief. Hence we would not be altogether happy. I reply that we shall then have such views of the equity of the Judge that nothing will distress or molest us that is done by Him. All His works and ways will appear fit and proper, and we shall say "It is the Lord; let him do what seemeth him good."—1 Sam. 3:18. We shall know those holy persons who lived in former ages and distant climes. "How?" The answer is easy. Intelligent spirits who know them well will make them known to us in friendly conversations. In the heavenly world it may be said to us, This is Job; that is Abraham, and there is Daniel, and also all those Saints who once made known to us will be known forever. If we were to travel to any civilized, but to us unknown region of this world, would we not be introduced to the inhabitants by a friendly person who might know them? And are Saints less courteous in the heavenly world than men on earth?

So also do I believe and feel that we shall know our present relatives and friends in that world of perfection, where one will ever be ready to teach another, and all will rejoice in the acquisition of knowledge. The mind of every one will be enlarged, truth will be unfolded, and all will be innocent and holy. The joy arising from a knowledge of each other will be mutual, and, to know and to be made known, will produce pleasure that can not be expressed. But, if former things were to be forgotten, and if we were to remain strangers to each other, our bliss would be imperfect, and all the peculiar enjoyments of friendship would be abridged. Brethren, let us pray to know each other where peace and pleasure never end.

M. O. HOWARD.

How Shall We Gather?

NOTWITHSTANDING the much that has been written upon the gathering, judging from the enquiries that come in, there still exists a necessity for something to be said. This only shows that the minds of those interested are not settled—at rest—with reference to the mode of procedure, or work to be done in that direction.

Is now the time for gathering? Where will we go? When will we go? Is it required of us to sell out, and move and locate with the Saints? These are questions of daily occurrence. Some are anxious to go; others are fearful that there is some requirement of that kind. Should they move anywhere in the West, to be with those of a kindred faith, some of their neighbors would say they had gone off with the "Mormons," and that would be literally awful—turn their faith into a lie and blast all their hopes for future happiness. Naughty neighbors to talk so. It so wounds our pride. Why did not Jesus make his religion popular with our neighbors? But then he didn't; so we will have to bear it, and settle with him by and by, just about the time that he settles with our neighbors for slandering and lying about us.

The idea has gone abroad that Decatur County, Iowa, has been selected as a gathering place; and, although this mistake has been corrected several times, the impression is still left upon the minds of many that it is emphatically a place appointed for the gathering of the Saints. To further correct this error, I will repeat in substance, what others have expressed, that "there is no place appointed to which the Saints are commanded to gather now." Permission is granted by authority of Revelation of 1873, to gather in the "regions round about." Decatur County, Iowa, and adjacent counties in that State, and Missouri, have been selected by some of the brethren as favorable places for settling and making themselves homes, by reason of the natural advantages afforded in that section of country. Lands being excellent in quality and cheap, the climate good, with other advantages, there are inducements for people who are seeking homes, or who desire to better their condition in life, to go there and settle. The industrious, although poor, have a chance to procure for themselves homes, and become independent.

Many of the brethren, both of the rich and poor, have gone there and settled. They have gone just like people go to any new country, to better their condition temporally; not in search of sacred ground or holy atmosphere, by the treading upon and breathing of which a purer, higher and more heavenly life may be infused into them, thus rendering them, at once, Saints indeed—almost angelic—and that without conscious effort upon their part. No holier ground or purer atmosphere (save there may be less malaria in the air) is claimed for that place more than for others. Like most new countries, it has many advantages, so I am told, is a part of God's creation upon which he designed people to dwell of the race of man, (see Acts 17:26), hence they move in and begin to subdue the country.

But I am asked, "Is not the society of the Saints a sufficient inducement to influence the Saints scattered abroad to move into that country at the sacrifice of property and comfort?" I answer, No. The circumstances as regards surroundings would need to be of a very grave and aggravating nature that would demand any such a move.

It is a mistake which all will learn, if put to the test, that one patch of ground is more peculiarly adapted to serve the Lord upon than another; or, that being associated with any class of men and women, whoever they may be, will relieve them from all anxiety and care; protect them from the temptation of the devil, the influence of their own passions and the wiles of the evil-designing, to the extent that the road to heaven will be so smooth, easy and placid, that not a trial or ripple will cross their pathway. Vexations, trial, disappointment, sacrifice, tears, temptations, heart-aches, &c., are as natural to this world as air or water, or the weeds that grow. All experience proves it. The fiat in the outset was, man shall toil and sweat. It is folly to expect a reverse of these things, until there is a new decree made by Him who holds the fate of things in His own hand. We can ameliorate, that is all. By effort, we obtain the bread that perishes with the using, by fighting weeds, briars, thorns and thistles; by effort we walk the narrow way, cultivate the virtues, chase away the devil and gain heaven.

The moral atmosphere of any place rises no higher than that possessed by the people who dwell in it—they produce it; and it is said, that when the "sons of God came together, Satan also appeared," as a dark spot in the feast of the sanctified. An isolated believer, filled with the Spirit and love of Christ, carries with him an ennobling spiritual aura that sanctifies all places, so far as he is concerned, whether in palace or dungeon, amid riches or poverty; in the temple of the Lord, or the noisy din of busy life; it is in, and around about him—surrounds his home—shines out in his good works—felt by others—seen of men—known by the angels—recognized of God. If in Sodom, heaven regards him; if in old Babylon, the spirit of peace and consolation follow wherever he goes. Lot was a Christian while in Sodom, despite the accursed ground under his feet, defiled by the sins of man—or his unsanctifying, vexatious surroundings.

But the interrogation comes, "If you lived in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Canada, Wisconsin, Minnesota, &c.; would you not sell out and go to Decatur county, Stewartsville or Independence?" Not, solely, to be with the Saints, or as an attempt to carry out any revelation now extant. "What would influence you to go to any of those, or adjacent places?" you ask. Almost solely to better myself financially, if at all. "It would seem that you have an eye for money making," you are ready to exclaim. Yes, I have an eye to do for the best with what I have, get what other I can honestly, with reasonable exertion, and render myself as comfortable and happy as the nature of things will permit, doing all the good I can under the circumstances in which I am placed; and I think any sensible Saint will do the same. All of this is contemplated in the sentence, "See that all things are prepared before you."

Still we hear the enquiry, "Does not the revelation of '73 say, 'Let them gather into the regions round about, and let the counsel of the elders guide?' What does it mean?" It means for all Latter Day Saints to settle down in a sensible way, make for themselves homes, form communities, build villages, towns, cities, churches, school-houses, and inhabit them; wherever they can do best for themselves, in Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana, &c., not to get too far off, letting their faith act as one incentive to the formation of settlements and the choice of locations. In order to succeed, they should trust in God, lean upon their own judgments and the counsel of the elders; not forgetting that in the multitude of counsel there is safety.

"Why, don't you believe that the counties contiguous to Jackson county, Missouri, constitute the 'regions round about,' referred to in the revelation of '73?" you exclaim. No; I do not believe in any such a narrow contracted notion, expressive of the meaning of that revelation, as a little pent up gathering place, circumscribed to a few counties, down in Missouri. I believe in "regions round about" commensurate with the magnitude, dignity and grandeur of this great latter day work, for Saints to dwell in. I believe in the Saints inheriting the earth, not a little spot.

But, I imagine that some of the enthusiastic are shocked at this, and are ready to exclaim, "O! I thought we were all a going direct to Jackson or Decatur counties, or those adjacent, all huddled together so thickly that it would be difficult to tell one from the other—scarcely being able to find ourselves; where pumpkins would grow as large as cartwheels, seven heads of wheat would be produced on one stalk and a gill of wheat in a head; corn would hang down the size of flour barrels; beets, turnips, radishes, &c., would have to be extracted from the ground with the aid of stump-pullers, by reason of size; while potatoes would require to be rolled out of the hole with a cant-hook; and all else that heart can wish would be proportionately increased. Bro. Joseph would be there to preach for us, and we would have nothing to do but to eat and drink, and bask our lazy bones in ease and pleasure—sing doxologies—all the remainder of our days; don't you believe in that?" No, I don't believe in any such nonsense; nor anything bordering on it. Anything of a miraculous kind will be such a rarity—change and increase so imperceptibly different from that of other places, that the great world without will scarcely notice the change. Nature will still be herself, yielding her bounties by dint of effort upon the part of those who expect her riches.

If you have a good home, stay where you are, let your light shine, be industrious—live your religion, and when you think you can do better elsewhere, then move. Wait until the culmination of events render it certain that the path you wish to tread is sufficiently plain to enable you to walk, at least, by good strong faith; so that when you make a change of locality that every time it thunders you will not be ready to conclude that it is the loudest you ever heard; or if it rains hard, snows, fogs, the wind blows, it grows muddy, frost comes early, the hogs take the cholera, the cattle the murrain, the wheat sprouts in the shock and stack, the baby chances to get sick, the wife has the fever, &c., &c., you will not begin to sadden, sour, and repent that you ever made the change—never saw such a miserable country—had such bad luck in all your days, and nothing will do but to get out of the accursed country and surroundings, and leave you will, at all hazards; notwithstanding, when the truth is known, you have been accustomed to just such, and worse, all your life before.

I have known families to move all over Iowa, portions of Nebraska, Illinois, Missouri, the Rocky Mountains, Utah, California, and never could find a country fit to live in. The last I heard of them they were still moving; still in search of their beau ideal of a country worthy the abode of man. Others live, do well, and are happy where they have skimmed over and could find nothing attractive or a place fit to dwell. It thundered too loud, rained too hard, the streams were too full, it was too dry, too sickly, not enough timber, too much timber and no rock, coal scarce, the people did not suit them, and thus a thousand faults and things were surmised, which formed sufficient incentives to keep them moving. Yes, I have known people to go to Iowa and could find no place to live; to Decatur county, Missouri, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Kansas, Illinois, and could find no place to live; nothing but a bad report to give of country and people; yet it is acknowledged by sensible, thinking, observing men, that this region is the paradise of the western world. These same hard-to-please fault-finders, I have known to select some stony point, yellow hill, or soil where sassafras, briars, thistles, sickly looking vegetables and corn would be about all you could see struggling for existence where they lived. But what does this show? Why, that you can not depend upon these roving, restless, fault finding, gypsy-like wanderers' report of any country or place.

"But, though our surroundings are peaceable, would it not be better to go west and dwell with the Saints?" I am asked. Yes; if you can better your condition. "How better our condition?" In this way. If you have a small farm in some of the older States, and can sell it for $40, $50, or $100 per acre, you can take that means and purchase a much larger tract of land with half the money in the West, and by the change increase your wealth, secure a home, and live with the Saints. Town property owned in large cities might be sold at high prices, and the money invested in western interests with profit and the securing of excellent homes. People must depend upon themselves, their own means or effort, in the securing of homes and the things that sustain life, even among the Saints.

"Does it make any difference what part of Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas, Illinois, &c., a person goes to settle? Is it all good alike?" No, there are some districts much better than others; there is a choice in them all.

"What would be the best course to pursue, in order to find a locality the most suitable for one to live in?" Go and see for yourself—do not be in a hurry—visit a number of places—compare and then select.

"But can we not trust the judgment of our leading men to make a proper selection?" Yes, they will tell you what they think according to their judgment of things; but your judgment might be different, and much the best for you. You should consult them, and lean somewhat on your own understanding of things. Then if you do not make a wise selection, or one that pleases, you will have the privilege of blaming your dear self, at least, in part, for it. Leading men, who know enough to be leading men, are not going to ask you to move into any locality on their judgment, solely. They will tell you of various localities, the advantages of each, inducements, &c.; and then leave it with yourself. They would not take hold of you and push you into paradise; they would point the way, tell of the good to be derived from being there, and leave it with you whether you would enter in or not.

"But if our leading men have the Spirit they should know better than others, make better selections, indeed, know all about it." Bosh! Nonsense! Inspired men are frequently less successful, and know less about practical affairs of life than others. How do they know whether you want to build a mill, carding factory, go into the mercantile business, buy a farm, live in the country, town or city; or which of these you may be successful in? Jesus said, "The children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light." Wise men trust to their own judgment so far as may be possible, in such things, rather than others. Zion's children are all supposed to be wise enough to have an opinion of their own; and if not, they should learn to have. The time has past when a nation will move at the nod and dictum of one, or a multitude of men, in temporal and spiritual things. The days in the past have been too evil. There is a better way. Self-improvement, self-government, self-confidence in one's own concerns; acting by the light of one's own reflections, experience, and the counsel of the wise; self-goodness, self-appreciation of the rights, liberties, interests and privileges of others are all essential attainments to good citizenship in Zion. Her inhabitants, though acknowledging leaders, want no lords to rule over, domineer and dictate to a set of imbeciles; cowardly, cringing serfs and nobodies, to be spurred up by the whip and jerked about by the coat collar. True principles of manhood, religion, practical life, self-reliance, love of right, are the elements to be imbibed to place one on the road to success and usefulness. Enlightenment, goodness and self-control are fundamental elements to combine in the forming of communities in the "regions round about," to give assured success and lead ultimately to promised inheritances. Believers might just as well begin the exercise of this self-reliance, self-government—following enlightened judgment in the selection of homes as anything else. Go and see; counsel with the wise—do not be in a hurry to buy when you get there—do for the best.

"What is the best part of the Western States?" In my judgment, Southern and South-western Iowa; Northern and North-western Missouri; Eastern Nebraska, portions of Kansas and Illinois, Southern Minnesota and Wisconsin. There is a choice in all of them. Crops grow abundantly over the vast area. Any one who will work can live, and have plenty and to spare.

"Are there Saints scattered over this vast region?" Yes, lots of them; but not near as many as should and will be. Converts are being made every day, and many are moving in.

"Can they be depended upon to divide with and keep individuals a good deal of the time who do not like to help themselves." Horror of horrors! No! They are unmercifully down on the lazy, the idler, the shiftless, whining, shirking, sponging hordes. That class had better begin to say their prayers before starting to that country, for starvation or the poor-house will be their certain doom. Go any other direction than west; to lie around, shirk about, and take it easy, in expecting to be worshipped because you have a few more $s to jingle than your neighbor. Everybody counts one out there. Indeed, it is simply no man at all who wants some other man to make a living for him or his. The theory of Latter Day Saints is reform and progress—a going forward in the right, learning duty and doing it. Zion's borders are no places for the proud, bigots, the haughty, shirks, swell-heads, loungers, spongers, idlers, tattlers, mischief-makers, the envious, jealous, filthy, dirty, unregenerate—and such like; but true men and true women, trusting in the Lord and doing all possible good for themselves, for humanity, the triumph of truth and the right. People going there should take their religion with them; if not, they will find they will have none when they get there. It will be difficult to borrow it of their neighbors. They will have none to spare. If you get it before you go, you will be sure of it, if you do not lose it on the road.

When you go, go to stay; do yourself and others good. Do not forget to pay your tithing—let others see in you the true Christian virtues, and if you are never gathered in this world, you will be in the next, and that will be by far the safest, and perhaps soon enough.

"Hold, brother!" somebody exclaims, "you seem to speak lightly of the gathering. Don't you believe in it?" Yes, in the Lord's own time and way; when that shall be, he will bid us move. Till then we are to tarry, prepare and wait. I have no patience or sympathy with that extravagant notion of gathering that some seem to have; for a handful of individuals to rush together without preparation, and that ample, in some nook or corner—narrow compass—and begin to do something that in the very nature of things must be a failure. Concentrate together to bite and devour each other—act the fool generally—bring down the displeasure and wrath of the Almighty upon them, become a laughing stock to all sensible men and a disgust to themselves. I believe in a sensible gathering at the proper time—after proper preparation, with proper controlling and directing influences, and in no other way.

There will need to be numbers, power, wealth, wisdom, order and goodness, to gather home to Zion. Till then all is preparation, in living, in doing, in sending the truth abroad, stepping into the regions "round about"—sacrificing, with tears pleading the cause of injured innocence—holding up holy hands, until the great God moves at the head of the armies. He has forbidden us to fight; then he must fight, if there are to be any victories won, and we must wait his time. It is simply fanatical and disgraceful to talk about gathering with an insignificant handful, with not enough Church funds on hand to send the few missionaries into the field who are now qualified to go.

Decatur County, Stewartsville and Independence are all, doubtless, advantageous, desirable, excellent locations; but there are hundreds of others in the great "regions round about," just as good, as sacred, with as many advantages, and where the Saints may dwell in peace, increase their wealth and live and enjoy their religion.

This is written to stimulate thought that will lead to right conclusions. Some one has said, "I delight in plainness." It is the best way. It deals in facts, not fancies. This is as I think. VIDE.

Word of Wisdom.

BROTHER JOSEPH:—I notice, in an article in the Herald of April 15th, page 119, headed "A Testimony on Tobacco," this saying, "I have heard some of the old-time Saints, in speaking of the 'word of wisdom,' say that the brother through whom that word was given said that it was not given for the aged but for the young."

I am led to infer, from the above saying, that the impression has obtained, as I have heard it expressed, that the "word of wisdom," instead of being given through Joseph, the Seer, was given through another brother. If such is the impression, I wish to correct it. In the summer of 1835, I was engaged in the printing office, in Kirtland, Ohio, and boarding in the family of Joseph, the Seer, your father. In those days the brethren lived very frugally, as they were straining every nerve for the completion of the temple, and it was not an uncommon thing to have scalded bread and milk for our meals. Martin Harris, W. W. Phelps and some other brethren were boarding there at the same time, and on one occasion Martin Harris remarked at the table, "that it was just as much a violation of the 'word of wisdom' to eat scalded or hot bread and milk as it was to drink tea or coffee." To this, brother Joseph, your father replied, "I know better, I am the one to whom the Lord gave the 'word of wisdom,' and I know that he meant tea and coffee, and the Saints will find it out in a day to come, when the nations get to poisoning those articles."

That those articles are poisoned, is so clearly set forth by the testimony of those who are not members of our Church, that it needs no evidence from me. Thus his prediction, in this respect, is literally fulfilled.

That tobacco "is not good for man," is a truth so self-evident, that I am surprised to see so many professing to be Saints, who, by their actions, seem to say they do not believe it. My experience is, that all both old and young, who strive to keep the "word of wisdom," in all its parts, receive great blessings from the Lord. EBENEZER ROBINSON.

The heart, like the earth, would cease to yield good fruit were it not watered by tears of sensibility, and the fruit would be worthless but for the sunshine of smiles.

"After Death."

FOLLOWING the above caption, was an article published in the Herald for February 1st, 1880, page 36-7, signed "Ace," and the general impression gained by the readers of the Herald was that the author designed it understood that, between death and the resurrection, no spirit ever did or would return to earth. For one, I have no particular ambition to gain notoriety as a controversialist, neither do I wish to appear in the defense of Diabolism, that "Ace" is writing against so stoutly.

The opening and closing of the article is very emphatic that, during the separation, the spirit does not visit the earth. Where the conclusion is obtained is more than I can see. Certainly not from the texts cited. I. Thess. 3:13-18, instructs not to be ignorant as to those that are asleep, for by the word of the Lord have we the promise that, when Christ shall come, "the dead in Christ shall rise [be resurrected] first," and with these words are we to comfort one another. Rev. 20, promises the reign of Christ a thousand years upon the earth with his people, and at the opening of that millennial reign, the first resurrection will take place. Acts 1:11: The two angels promised the apostles that the same Jesus who went up to heaven should return. Acts 3:21: Peter states that the "heavens must receive" (retain) Jesus "until the times of restitution." As Jesus is not now reigning upon David's throne, I conclude that the first resurrection has not taken place, but is one of the future accomplishments in the great work of God.

Now for visitors from the other side. Matt. 17:2: "There appeared unto them Moses and Elias, talking with him." These were not resurrected, for Jesus was "the first fruits of them that slept." Rev. 19:10: A fellow servant of John gives revelations of things in heaven and on earth also. Are we expected to tell the people, either by word or pen, that the "fellow-servants" with John have enjoyed the first resurrection, when that event is taught by the Elders as yet in the future? Bro. Moroni, of the Nephite nation, is made to tell us that he is going to rest in the paradise of God, "until my spirit and body shall again reunite." "Ace" seemed to be positive that Moroni will remain in the paradise of God till his resurrection. It would be in order for "Ace" to give the date of Moroni's resurrection, so that the Church might have this glorious light. Doctrine and Covenants (Kirtland edition) Sec. 50:1: Moroni is sent to Joseph Smith, Jr., to reveal the Book of Mormon. John the Baptist is sent to ordain Joseph Smith, Jr., and Oliver Cowdery, to "this first Priesthood." Peter, James and John were sent to ordain Joseph Smith, Jr., and Oliver Cowdery, to be apostles. Have all these men been resurrected? If so, where is the proof?

Many other names might be given that have work to do during the times of restitution. It is a very unsafe proposition for us to make, that all God's servants who have been called since the morn of creation until the present, rest unemployed from the time of their departure from the house of clay till their resurrection. Rather let me indulge the thought, that as Christ labored in the interim between his crucifixion and resurrection, we also may be employed. To this end Jesus promised, (John 11:26), "And whosoever liveth, and believeth in me, shall never die." Was Joseph imbued with this ever living idea, when he wrote to J. A. Bennett, (Times and Seasons, vol. 4, p. 374), "Shall I, who hold the keys of the last kingdom;" with the knowledge that these keys should not be taken from him either in this world or in the world to come. Wherein are we to be benefited by the keys, unless they are in use? Surely, there is no death, but all is activity with God and his servants. Should "Ace" again write, may it be trump, and I will endorse the truth.

The Engle Automatic Clock.

MR. STEPHEN D. ENGLE, a watchmaker of Hazleton, Pa., after twenty-one years of hard labor, has recently completed a mechanical wonder more marvelous than the famous Strasbourg clock. He was his own pattern-maker, molder, figur-carver and machinist, and depended entirely upon text-books and photographs of the Strasbourg clock for his knowledge of astronomy and the arrangement of mechanical representations of the heavenly bodies.

The new clock stands eleven feet high. The lower section is four feet nine inches high, eight feet wide and three feet deep. The centre contains the weights and a revolving horizon, twenty six inches in diameter, giving the apparent motion of the constellations in the Zodiac from east to west. In the centre of this dial is a six-inch terrestrial globe, representing the earth, and around this a smaller globe representing the moon. At the lower part of the dial the stars pass behind a fixed sun and twilight, showing what constellations are not visible at certain periods. Above this base, in the centre, arise the clock and Apostolic towers. In front of this section, at the base, on either side, are dials; the left one represents the tides, and the right one represents the seasons and inclinations of the earth's axis. In the centre between these dials is a revolving cylinder representing the day of the month. Above this is the large dial representing minutes, hours and the phases of the moon, with revolving cylinder at the right showing the day of the week, and another at the left showing the month. Above this is an oval niche, where youth, prime of life and old age appear during the hour. In the right of this is an alcove which contains "father Time," and on the left is an other alcove, containing the figure of Death. The top section, near the base, has an open court, and on either side and beyond in the centre are doors where Christ and his apostles appear, and Satan also. On either corner are two gilt columns, and on the right, at the top of the column, stands the cock. On the left is the figure of justice with scales. Above the figure of the Savior and the apostles is a balcony, with folding doors leading into it. On either side of this are two windows with shutters, where Satan appears. Above this is a battlement roof containing a Roman soldier, who paces his beat continually.

When the hour-hand approaches the first quarter, father Time reverses his hour-glass and strikes one on a bell with a scythe, a bell inside the clock responding, and Youth appears. Three minutes previous to the half-hour a bell strikes, followed by the music of the organ. At the half-hour Time again reverses his glass and strikes two on the bell, a bell inside responding, when Youth passes and Manhood appears.

One minute after this a chime of bells is heard, when a folding-door opens in the lower porch and one at the right of the court, and the Savior comes walking out. Then the apostles appear in procession, Peter in the centre and Judas in the rear. As the first one approaches the Savior, a folding-door above in the balcony opens, and three Marys come out, walking in single file—Mary, the sister of the virgin, on the left; the Virgin Mary in the centre. and Mary Magdalene on the right, viewing their friends. As the apostles come opposite the Savior they turn toward him, when the Savior in return bows to them, except Peter, who turns in the opposite direction; then the cock on the right flaps his wings and crows; Satan also appears above, and justice raises her scales. Judas as he advances, does not look upon the Savior, because the devil follows immediately after him on foot, and goes back the same way he came, but stays long enough to see that Judas is all right, returns again for fear, and disappears to appear again above at the right window. At the third quarter, father Time strikes three with his scythe and turns his hour-glass, when three bells respond. Then Manhood passes and Old Age comes into view. Three minutes previous to the hour the organ peals again, and, as it arrives, death strikes the number with a human thigh-bone on a skull. One minute after, the procession of the apostles again takes place.

At the right of the clock stands a second tower, four feet three inches high, built in two sections, the lower one containing an organ which plays during the apostolic march. From the upper section appear two figures, Orpheus and Linus, representing music, who appear with harps and pipes, when music is heard, and disappears as it ceases. At the left stands a third tower of corresponding height, containing a mechanical life. From the upper section appear twenty life-like figures, typical of the "spirit of '76." The background presents a woodland scene, and while the life plays a melody, the Continentals march to the Battle of Monmouth, and Mollie Pitcher appears, bearing her memorable water-keg, and turning to cheer the soldiers as she follows her husband to the field of conflict. The clock produces forty-eight moving figures, or twenty-six more than any clock in the world.

A Trifling Preacher.

A CLERGYMAN once preached a very awakening sermon. A young man in the congregation was much impressed, and finding that the clergyman was to walk some distance home, joined him, in hope of having some conversation as to how to be saved. The clergyman was walking with several others, and instead of conversation turning on religious matters, it was light and even indecorous.

Some years afterward, the clergyman was called to see a dying man in an inn. As he entered the room, the dying man started. "Sir," he said, "I have heard you preach." "Thank God for that!" "But, sir," continued the man, "I have heard you talk, and your talking has ruined my soul. Sir, do you remember the day I heard you preach? That sermon brought conviction to my heart. But I sought conversation with you, and I walked home with you, hoping to hear something about my soul's peace; but you trifled—trifled—TRIFLED! Yes, you did; and I went home believing that you knew all the solemn things you said in the morning were lies. For years I was an infidel; but now—now I am dying—I am one no longer. But I am not saved! I will meet and accuse you before the bar of God!" And so the man died.

The Moslem Temple.

THERE is a belief of long standing among the Greeks of Constantinople that the church of Sancta Sophia—now a mosque—shall be restored to Christianity. This grand building, which covers about 70,000 square feet—more than one and a half acres—was erected by Justinian in the sixth century. It was eight years in building, and when at last it stood complete it appeared so marvelous in the eyes of all who saw it that it was generally believed not only that an angel had given the plan, but that heaven had rained gold and gems for the express purpose of its construction. The noblest temples of Greece and Asia were despoiled, and pillars of the most precious marbles were brought to Constantinople. Ephesus, Pergamos, Baalbec gave up their treasures; and masses of Egyptian porphyry and of syenite, which centuries before had been hewn for the honor of Zeus and of Artemis, took their places in the great Christian Church. It was the boast of Justinian that he had excelled the Temple at Jerusalem. "I have surpassed thee, O Solomon," he exclaimed as he gazed on the completed building, and it is said that he caused a statue of Solomon to be erected opposite the church, "with a sad expression, as though grieving at the vast size and beauty of Justinian's work." Earthquakes shook the church within a few years of its completion. The great dome fell, and was restored by a younger Isidorus, nephew of the "mechanician." Repairs were made to the fabric by successive emperors; but the design was never altered, and there were no additions. Then came the fatal May of 1453. At the high altar of St. Sophia, Constantine received the Holy Sacrament during the night before the great assault (May 29), in which he fell. As the news spread that the Mohammedans had made their way into the city, the old awe and veneration which had spread a sort of mystery round St. Sophia returned. Senators, priests, monks and nuns hastened to take refuge within its walls, recalling an ancient tradition that an angel would descend at the moment when the infidels were advancing toward the column of Constantine the Great, and, putting a sword into the hand of a certain man who would be sitting at the base of the column, would order him to avenge the people of God; whereupon the Turks, seized with a panic, would take flight to the borders of Persia. But no such heavenly aid came to the twenty thousand people who crowded St. Sophia. Mahomet on entering the city rode straight to the great church. Men, women and children were divided among the soldiers as slaves; and all the furniture, plate, and ornaments disappeared so quickly that, in the words of Finlay, "the mighty temple soon presented few traces of having been a Christian Church." Mahomet himself was, it is said, greatly impressed with the rich marbles and general splendor of the place. He caused the muezzins who were with him to summon the troops to prayer; and his own prayer-carpet was spread on the high altar. There the "Son of Iniquity," as the Christian Ducas calls him, announced that an orthodox Greek Empire was extinct; and from that time the church of Justinian has served as the chief mosque of the city. The various Christian emblems were covered, with plaster and thin coats of paint, and mosaics, which could have offended no one, were afterwards treated in a similar manner. Large and heavy exterior buttresses, rendered necessary it is asserted, by the shock of earthquakes, were added by Selim II., and Amurath III.; but what might be considered a fortunate neglect was more or less the fate of St. Sophia until 1847, when it was placed in repair by the Italian architect Foscati, at the instance of the Sultan Abdul Mejid. His work lasted through two years, and was completed under great difficulties. Only the zeal of Reschid Pasha, it is said enabled him to bring it to a successful end.

Anger.

OF all the passions flesh is heir to, anger is one of the most terrible. Carried away by its power men and women have done deeds of horror. How easily is it aroused; not so easily subdued. A few words spoken thoughtlessly, what bitter feelings surge up. Quench that spirit that prompts you to make cutting speeches. Do not tease one who can not calmly endure it. Would anger come, if not sought? Jealousy and envy are the two great stepping-stones to anger. You that are parents, or rulers of young children, be careful not to raise the jealousy or envy in the heart of a child. Do not make distinctions. Be as ready to caress one as another. If little Ally looks delicate, fragile, do not let sturdy little Bessie feel herself neglected, steal time to embrace Bessie as well as Ally. Let there be no cause for bitter feelings between children. Envy is an ugly monster and grows so quickly. Let there be union among you. Do not take every light word as a slap at yourself. Do not let anger keep top-most place in our hearts. Let it sink and love take its place. May love for our Almighty Father, for his dear Son and the great good work he so mercifully brought us, grow in our hearts and be our ruling passion for Jesus' sake. Amen.

FACTS AND FAITH.—Men feel and know that pain is a fact, although it is unseen: they need to learn that peace of mind is a fact, and comes by a well-ordered soul; that reverence is a fact, and brings us near to God; that elevated sentiment is a fact, and raises us into a higher society than earth; that sober faith is a fact, and gilds the horizon of our being with a heavenly glory. In the absence of this faith, we read the barrenness of soul there is in the world.

It is said, when an earthly babe is born,
A beautiful angel prays,
For the boon to cherish and love through life,
And to garner its precious days,
To weave in a crown for the child to wear,
When heaven has opened its portals fair.

Life is an April day, sunshine and showers.

Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.
HENRY A. STEBBINS, ASSISTANT.

Plano, Illinois, July 15th, 1880.

WHAT assurance have the Saints that personal ambition, or personal transgression, may not again carry the leading minds of the Church away from the paths of rectitude, and thus the Saints be led astray again?

The Saints can have no positive assurance that any man in their association may not and will not fall into personal transgression, or become the prey of personal vanity and ambition, through which he may make the attempt to lead disciples after him. But that the Church will suffer any serious loss by the Saints being led away after him, depends whether the laws by which the liberties and safety of the body are secured are correctly known, and there be found men of courage to see them rightly administered; as there is ample assurance give to the Church that they may not be led away after false doctrines, by which their liberties shall be lost.

Before any new and false doctrine, though advanced by the presiding elder of the Church, could be accepted to any great extent, to the subversion of the faith of the many, thus endangering the leading away the Church, it is subject to challenge from any one who may deem it important, and then must pass the ordeal provided in the Church articles.

There are three bodies of judges who may pass upon the matter: the Presidency, the Twelve and the Seventy; and while these quorums are filled with reasonably fearless and independent thinkers, there is little danger of any serious schism, by reason of ambitious leaders.

But under the supposition that the dangerous element lies lurking in the body first named, the Presidency, there remains the other two bodies, consisting of a larger number of men, where, as a matter of course there is less probability of collusion and wrong doing as a body, from either of which a check may come, and before the one supposed to be seeking to subvert could make a successful beginning, either one or the other of these larger bodies must agree, thus forming a majority of two-thirds of three holding concurrent deciding authority.

If these bodies, the Twelve and Seventy, understand the law, and comprehend the value of the guarantee given by this three-fold concurrence of deciding power, they would need to be weak as men, if any serious falling away, because of ambition to command by new laws and doctrines, could occur.

But are these quorums composed of weak men, in the sense implied—that of submission to dogmatic assumption, the domination of authority? Those who know the men composing the leading quorum of spiritual authorities in the Church, know full well that a body of men more unlikely to yield in tame submission to what they deemed radically wrong, it would be difficult to find. Ten more fearless, independent thinkers, are not found grouped together in one body than the apostolic quorum. While, perhaps, not loud nor boisterous, each one in methods of thought and power of decision, stands alone; rules of law and right their guides, and acknowledging but one Master—the Christ. In dealing with their fellows, revering worth, integrity, merit; but worshiping none—fearing none. From our knowledge of these men, and fortunately for the Church we know all of them, we can not conceive it possible that they could be made tools for some ambitious, aspiring man; or dupes to a gross deception; or even silent, passive, stolid lookers on when vaulting, craving minds might essay to mislead. All of them know how to speak, and that effectively, when it is necessary to speak. They are impervious to bribery where place and power are likely to be offered; not sufficiently covetous to be open to the allurements of wealth; not fearful enough to be afraid of man's wrath, and not weak enough to be cajoled and flattered; and from these considerations we can see no likelihood that the Twelve can be made a party to the enslaving the Saints, should such a thing be attempted.

We have written of them collectively, and with no desire to be misunderstood, and no intention to flatter any one of them. But from a consideration of the thought that if the facts in the case and the character of these men were comprehended there would be less fear among the Saints that the ambition of some one would again take the Church captive.

What we have said of this first body of spiritual laborers and advisers, is true of the second—the seventy; though not to the same marked degree, except in individual instances. Therefore, before such a doctrine as polygamy could become rooted and grounded as a dogma of the Church, or any other equally at variance with the good sense of the Church, and the law already given to govern it, there would need to be collusion between two of these three bodies, in which the entire number would have to acquiesce; and not till then would there be grounds to apprehend danger. Such a contingency is so remote a possibility, that we deem the liberties of the Saints tolerably safe. The reasoning is equally good if it be supposed that the questionable and dangerous philosophy of doctrine or practice originate in either one of the three bodies referred to.

It is said that in the lifetime of Joseph and Hyrum, an additional council of fifty was instituted, and the men appointed thereto; to which council all revelations were to be submitted to be tested; and if they passed the test it could be proclaimed as the word of the Lord; if it did not, there was a necessity for an inquiry. We know of no law permitting the reorganization of this council of fifty; and hence, conclude that until a privilege or command authorizes it, the Church may safely rely on the rule of law governing and the integrity of the men whose prerogative it is to determine.

ELDER JOSEPH BYOUS, presiding Elder of the Clear Creek Branch, Nebraska, writes us June 17th, and states that Mr. Bevins, who wrote the account of the Dungan—Elvin debate for the Christian Standard which account was reproduced in the Herald clearly misstated several prominent things in regard to said debate. One of these is that constant challenges have been given by our folks there thus irritating the Christian people. This Bro. Byous states is not so; but that upon the occasion of one of their Elders preaching there; whose meeting the Saints attended. At this meeting the Elder taught the setting up the kingdom on the Day of Pentecost. This was by an Elder Earnshaw, and apparently in reply to a sermon by Bro. Elvin on the setting up of the kingdom. At meeting some conversation occurred, after which Bro. Elvin left the challenge.

Bro. Byous further states, (what, from our experience we can readily believe), that Elder Dungan's chief effort was directed against the character of Joseph Smith. But, we care little about such an argument as that; the truth of the gospel can and will be made plain to the sincere inquirer, as it is God's work, not the work of man.

Several other corrections are made by Bro. Byous, not necessary to detail.

Bro. Elvin is a fair, candid reasoner, courteous and gentlemanly; not easily angered, or thrown off his guard in debate; and what is greatly to his credit, is not likely to present for the consideration of a congregation an argument or conclusion, of the correctness of which he is not himself fully persuaded.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Is the house referred to in Second John, tenth verse, a house of worship or dwelling house, and how are we now to understand and use the instruction there given?

It may apply to both. By preventing the evil influence of false doctrine from affecting either the body, the Church, or individuals, by a firm reliance upon and adherence to the doctrine of Christ.

Is it right for Latter Day Saints to catch young mocking birds, raise them, and keep them in cages for pets, or for to sell?

We see no more harm in this than to restrain the liberty of any other animal. It is a trade, and does not necessarily involve cruelty. It is not right to treat even birds with cruelty.

Do Latter Day Saints teach baptismal regeneration?

Only so far as Paul designates it the "washing of regeneration." They teach baptism as necessary to salvation, the evidence of a desire for regeneration, the door into the Church.

Is there any law in the Church governing members being organized into a branch? Or, is it lawful for members to be organized into a branch that have their names enrolled in another? If not; does the same law apply to the traveling Elders, who have their names enrolled in another branch?

Persons whose names are enrolled on the records of a branch should secure letters of removal or commendation before either uniting with another branch or becoming charter members of one newly organized. This rule is subject to exceptions for good cause shown. It applies to all alike.

Can any one be chosen an officer of a branch who does not belong to it?

Yes; where it is clearly an emergency, or wise that it should so be.

What is the connection or relation between the sixth verse and those following, in the seventeenth chapter of Luke, and what is the lesson taught?

The connection is the same as that between any other injunction to hear instruction, and the instruction given. The lesson is that vengeance and the punishment of men for wrongs inflicted upon Saints, are withholden from them, and remain with the Judge of all the earth.

How shall we understand the coming of the Son of Man as spoken of in Matthew 10:23?

We understand it thus: Go ye about the business upon which I send you; and, although ye shall flee from persecution, ye shall not have exhausted the number of cities, until the power of your deliverance shall be fully come.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

By a card received July 3d, from Bro. F. P. Scarcliff, we learn that he arrived at Garland, Butler county, Alabama, June 29th, from Moss Point, Mississippi. He was pushing ahead, on foot and in any way to further the mission-work entrusted to him. We rejoice that he is so minded, and trust that he will be made able for every emergency, and have courage and strength to do all that is required of him unto a successful work for the Master of life. Bro. Geo. H. Graves also arrived in Butler county, Alabama, from Canada, about the same day that Bro. Scarcliff did. He found the country quite different from what he expected, and felt some discouraged by the low condition of the work thereabouts. Doubtless, however, he and Bro. Scarcliff will strengthen each other and work in harmony, so that a union of strength will bring a union of power and effectiveness, consequently of courage also, to meet whatever trying circumstances may attend and be around their special field and its duties. We pray that they may be so directed and blessed by the Spirit of God as to speedily rejoice in seeing that His hand is with them and that their work is before them to be accomplished according to His will.

Bro. J. F. McDowell had delivered discourses in the chapel of the Saints at Rock Creek, Hancock county, Illinois, Friday and Saturday evenings of June 18th and 19th, and on Sunday at 10:30 and evening to good audiences. Was the guest of the gospel veteran, Father Richard Lambert.

Bro. J. F. Burton wrote June 24th from Newport, California, that he had just finished preaching a course of sermons at Tustin, in Los Angeles county, and was then on his way to Laguna. He seems to keep busy in the work, and we hope will aid much in keeping it and the Saints alive. Success attend him.

Sister R. M. Bradley writes from Webb City, Jasper county, Missouri, that the Center Creek Branch meets often, and two more have been added to them by baptism at Joplin recently. She says that Father Short is much improved in health. Bro. A. J. Cato has been preaching at Oronogo, and some people are investigating. Each of these items contains good news in brief space.

Bro. Silas M. Rogers, Piper City Branch, Ford county, Illinois, says that their little band rejoices in the truth and in God's goodness to his people, notwithstanding they have trials and are also persecuted for their profession in Christ the Lord. Being shut out from the school house they hold meetings in their own houses, as Christ's disciples of old were wont to do. May the Lord bless all their affairs and their service.

A card from Bro. C. M. Fulks, Weir, Kansas, announces that Brn. A. J. Cato and J. T. Davies would be laboring together for a time this summer.

Bro. George W. Crouse writing from Frederick City, Maryland, June 27th, is anxious that some Elder shall visit them there. Himself and four married daughters, two of whom are quite favorably impressed with the work, would make a minister comfortable while there, and he thinks a hearing would be given the preaching of the word. He is seventy-eight years old, and seemingly still vigorous. Who goes, enquire for David W. Young, South Market St., opposite the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, Frederick City, Maryland.

Bro. Charles Wickes writes from Hearn, Texas, as follows: "The enemy is raging in all quarters, and seems to have almost complete control over this land. I expect to meet bitter persecution before I leave Texas, and shall be surprised if I escape without at least a whipping, and may get worse; but I shall try to bear it patiently for the gospel's sake. It would be utterly useless in most places to try to get justice. The neighbors of Bro. Elias Land, of Thornton, have threatened him with violence if he does not stop distributing tracts; but he proposes to persist."

Bro. T. J. Bell, Davis City, Decatur county, Iowa, writes of the conference gathering there June 26th and 27th. Bro. Bell has charge of the branch, and desires to be able to do well in his duties, as we hope that he will, and have reason to rejoice also in the Spirit's witness to his work.

Sister Mary A. McBeath of Uniontown, Eldorado county, California, bears witness to her knowing that the gospel of Christ, as believed and obeyed by her, is true. She has also been twice healed of disease and pain, through the ordinances of God's house, as promised in James 5:14, therefore she rejoices. She has also seen others healed, and has plain evidence that the gifts of the gospel are indeed with God's people. The branch there numbers nineteen members, and they have good meetings. Two years ago only one member was there, Sr. Mary Plumtree, but the fruit of her labor came at last, and Brn. Daley and Lowell baptized eighteen. May the Holy Spirit continue to abide with them all.

Bro. G. F. Weston is laboring for his support and preaching on Sundays at Shabbona Grove, DeKalb county, Illinois, and we think that good is being done that will grow and bring forth fruit. He is alive and zealous in the work, and we trust and believe is laying a foundation for future usefulness. So may it be.

Bro. Geo. S. Yerrington wrote from Providence, Rhode Island, June 20th, concerning his labors in the ministry since the April General Conference. He tarried at Chicago ten days with Elder Forscutt and the Saints of that city, and next called at Savannah, Wayne county, New York, where Bro. Jesse Seelye arranged for meetings in several places, but only two services held, as Bro. Yerrington was called home because of the illness of his wife. He thinks that much good could have been done there had he remained, for so the prospects were among the people. After his return home his son was taken ill and his wife has not yet recovered her health, but he has not been idle, for he has preached in Providence and in surrounding places. He feels that he never before had so much liberty of the Spirit as he has had since the April General Conference, and feels determined to do all that he can for the cause. The Providence Saints are having excellent meetings and the work moves on there. Bro.

H. H. Thompson presides there now. Our prayers are for Sr. Yerrington's recovery at an early date, that she may once again care for her household and do good in the gospel cause.

Bro. Francis Burnham writes from Gagetown, Tuscola county, Michigan, that he believes something good could be done there for the salvation of men, if a gospel minister would come. He is alone and has not heard a sermon nor seen a member of the Church for a long time.

By letter from Bro. J. S. Patterson to Bro. I. L. Rogers dated at Braidwood, Illinois, June 28th, we learn that he had seven persons engaged for baptism, ceremony to be performed on the 30th. A funeral sermon preached by Bro. Patterson on the 27th seems also to have awakened much thought and caused much conversation in the place concerning life, death and the future state of man.

Sister M. A. Christy, Portlandville, Plymouth county, Iowa, in a good letter shows that she has a lively hope and a deep interest in the gospel of Christ and in its progress among the people. Few Saints and no ministers are in that region. For her assurances of confidence and for her sustaining prayers in behalf of the Church authorities we feel grateful and desire to be worthy.

We thank the following for papers received: Sr. Dorinda Dawson and Brn. D. W. Thomas, John Taylor, John Gilbert, W. R. Calhoun, John Gallup, D. F. Coombs Elmer A. Fay and M. T. James, the latter of Plymouth, England.

Brn. Frank Lofty and Peter Devlin, formerly of the Braidwood Branch, Will county, Illinois, have located in Osage county, Kansas. Bro. Lofty has been preaching in Scranton and baptized one, and intends to continue as he has opportunity.

Bro. James P. Hunter writes from Braidwood, Illinois, July 6th: "Brother John Patterson is stirring the people up to hear and think for themselves, in Braidwood. The Christian Church was opened to Bro. Patterson to preach the funeral sermon of Bro. Kelso; the people and Saints packed the house full to the doors; some standing outside hearing. The people seemed interested in the sermon. Bro. Patterson baptized five persons in the Kankakee River. I feel well in the great work of God in these last days. May the blessing of the Spirit rest upon all his Saints is my prayer."

Bro. T. J. Beatty, living in Jackson county, Ohio, relates how last December he was led by the preaching of Bro. L. R. Devore and by the Spirit of God to obey the gospel of Christ, in the knowledge of which he has rejoiced ever since. Being ordained he has endeavored to preach as he had opportunity, and he expresses the hope that he may never neglect his duty nor bring any reproach upon the cause. His wife was baptized at the same time that he was, and together they worship God in Spirit and truth. Since their uniting nine others have obeyed the same commandment, and others seem to be nearly ready. May all these abide faithful.

Bro. Jobe Brown wrote from Clinton, Iowa, July 3d, giving an account of his labors. On June 11th, he went to Maquoketa, and thence on the 12th to Iron Hill, where he preached that night to a good sized audience, also on Sunday, the 13th, three times to earnest listeners. He found there quite a number who seem almost persuaded to obey the gospel, and also others who are friends. At Bro. Larkey's, Bro. Brown enjoyed their free hospitality. On the 15th he went to another neighborhood and preached at night, having a good hearing. Mr. Miller, a true friend of the Saints and their doctrine, took Bro. Brown and cared for him well, after which he returned to Maquoketa. On the 17th, went to Amber and held meeting that night, and on Sunday, the 20th, preached twice at another place, and once at Bro. Bradley's. The 21st he baptized three, one of them being Frederick, son of Bro. Charles Sheen, of Decatur county. The 23d, to Monticello and spoke four times. Two there gave their names for baptism. Sunday, the 27th, he preached both at Monticello and Amber, and returned to Clinton the 29th. He bears testimony to the healing of several in that region lately, by the prayer of faith. Bro. Warren Turner keeps faithful charge at Clinton when Bro. Brown is absent, as the latter has been chosen by the Eastern Iowa District as their traveling minister. In a previous letter Bro. Brown reported from May 25th to June 10th, namely, his meetings at Clinton, Maquoketa, Iron Hill, Monticello, Amber and various school-houses and meeting-houses, as well as in Jackson Branch. Any in those regions wishing for Bro. Brown's help may address him at Clinton, Iowa, his home.

Bro. P. S. Jolly writes a good and feeling letter from Milton, Kentucky, June 28th. He was away from the Saints, but rejoicing in the hope of everlasting life. He has heard no one preach the faith since Bro. Jenkins was through that country, some years ago.

A new supply of District and Branch Records received and on hand, for sale; at from $2 to $3 each. Two sizes of Branch Record, large and small, prices stated above. Only one size District Record.

BRO. A. J. HINKLE, son of Elder George M. Hinkle, writes from Gravel Ridge, Manitoba, June 10th, about this way:

"I have been advocating your organization to this people. Some are not favorable to it, though others are. For my part, I want to work while the Lord is working. There are twelve members here belonging to Sidney's [Sidney Rigdon.—Ed.] organization; and there are outsiders favorable to the gospel. We looked for them to come in; but since Bro. Post [Stephen.—Ed.] died, they stand back. If it could be that an Elder could be sent here, the chances are favorable to build up a branch here. If one should come, let him come to Dominion City, there take the gravel train to the bridge, and that will take him within five miles of my place, where he will be welcomed when he comes. We are holding meetings regularly every Sunday. I am still acting as presiding Elder."

Truly the Lord is remembering the seed of the Church; for here are a few who went into Manitoba following the fortunes and leadership of Elder Rigdon, after whom the Spirit is feeling. We certainly feel thankful for the evidence thus given.

SISTER GEORGE H. GRAVES wrote from St. Thomas, Ontario, June 21st:

"I am in the gospel and desire to continue in it until Christ shall come again, if it should be his will. Pray for poor, unworthy me, that I may be able to reign with him a thousand years. I am now left alone, as my husband has gone South on his mission. I am but young in the cause, and have many things to lead me astray; but my heart is to do God's will and fulfill the covenant that I made at the waterside."

We do indeed pray that sister Graves may be sustained, comforted and blessed, her spiritual and temporal wants be supplied, and that, through their sacrifices she and her husband may lay up great treasures in heaven.

THE following, copied from the Saint Louis Christian, and sent us by Bro. T. F. Stafford, Lewistown, Illinois, adds an item of information respecting Elder J. A. Crawford; which many will regret to learn.

"CANTON, Mo., June 9th, 1880.
"On Monday morning last, I assisted Bro. Grissom, of Illinois, in ordaining a Bro. Crawford, a talented young Mormon preacher, and a highly educated young man, considered a big gun among the Mormons; he resides at Farmington, Iowa. His wife also united with us. Bro. C., and I will commence a protracted meeting next Friday evening, at which time he will give his reasons for renouncing Mormonism.

J. A. HICKMAN."

THE following is cut from a Morning Call, San Francisco, California, of June 27th, 1880, sent us by Bro. Wm. Anderson.

THE JERUSALEM OF TO-DAY.

It will be a pleasant item to that portion of the Jewish race which turns its eyes wistfully toward Jerusalem as a possible place in which the scattered tribes may yet be gathered together, to hear, as reported by Mr. Schick, surveyor of buildings for the Holy City, that many ruins have been restored many new buildings erected, and that the streets are kept in a remarkable state of cleanliness for a city of Palestine. The town is lighted, too, and watered by the restoration of the aqueduct from the pools of Solomon. Tan-yards and slaughter-houses have been moved outside of the city limits, and the sanitary department is in charge of a German doctor. Bethlehem and Nazareth and other towns are also brushing up and dusting off and making themselves fit for moderns to live in. Nazareth is even getting some windows put in. There is a steady, though not very large, emigration to Jerusalem. The case would be different were it once in Jewish possession and under Jewish control, as it possibly may be, before many years. Turkey is just now in a very sickly condition, and if partition takes place, as is threatened, the Powers would no doubt feel willing to let Palestine go in the direction where it is so much coveted.

Jews Summary.

June 25th.—The army of the Argentine Republic has made a desperate effort to capture Buenos Ayres, but after three days' fighting has been obliged to retreat.

The Russian troops are reported to have been defeated with heavy loss in a recent encounter with the Turcomans.

Memphis, Tennessee, has laid more than twenty miles of sewerage and thirty miles of tile drain since the close of the last epidemic, and its citizens are confident that yellow fever will not find lodgment there.

The mine owners and the miners at Leadville, Colorado, have arrived at a compromise, and the latter have resumed work. The militia has been disbanded.

A St. Louis dispatch says that the arrival there of colored refugees from the South is very large, and every available space in and about the relief headquarters were crowded with the immigrants.

Lately the troops in Cabanas fortress, at Havana, revolted because their wages were not paid. Six of the ring leaders were shot and the remainder were speedily subdued.

Silver City, in New Mexico, is threatened with famine, owing to the destruction of wagon trains by Victoria's Indians.

At Cincinnati on yesterday Gen. W. S. Hancock was made the nominee of the Democratic party for President of the United States, by 705 votes out of 738, and Senator W. H. English, of Indiana is the choice for Vice-President. Hancock is a Pennsylvanian, and served in the late war as a Major General of the Union forces. He is now in command of the Department of the Atlantic, with head quarters at New York. His military record has been a good one.

Bradlaugh has been released from the watch-tower of the House of Commons. His constituents have held an indignation meeting at Northampton. They protest against his exclusion from the House, and he contends for his legal rights. Some expect that the present Parliamentary oath will be amended and modified.

The famine-fever is spreading in Ireland. The population of Chicago at this census is found to be 500,000; St. Louis about 375,000.

26th.—Oleomargarine is a word of recent origin, from the French Oleum, Latin oleum, oil, the thin, oily part of fat, and from margarine, a pearly-like substance, extracted from vegetables, oils and animal fats. The butter flavor comes from mixing milk, cream and unsaleable butter with colored tallow and other unctuous ingredients. The lard may come from car-loads of dead hogs, or suet from cattle that may have died in overcrowded cars, or animals that have died of disease, or even more questionable sources, like some of the oil extracted from soap-grease collections from the city, exported to the West, whence comes the ladle-packed butter.

The Irish landlords are alarmed at the prospect of being obliged by law to compensate evicted tenants for the permanent improvements which they have effected on their lands. At a meeting held in Dublin yesterday, a memorial was adopted asking Mr. Gladstone to withdraw the bill.

Bradlaugh, elected to the British House of Commons, is an avowed Atheist. He publicly declares his belief that there is no God. He believes in no higher power, no future existence of the soul. He opposes all religion as an injurious and senseless superstition. He is diligent and persistent in his efforts to proselyte others to his utter want of faith. He comes before the bar of the House of Commons to take the oath of office and is confronted with the charge that he is an Atheist, and that with him an oath would have no binding force. He desires to be admitted upon his simple affirmation, and a fierce discussion arose between the members, resulting thus far as stated above. The matter will be further debated on the 28th.

28th.—London dispatches say that the British Cabinet favor the House of Commons rescinding the vote by which it refused to permit Bradlaugh to affirm instead of taking the oath. Such an action would be a wonderful precedent for the English Government to establish.

A dispatch from Paris, France, says that some Jesuits have left for England and Norway. Four nunneries have asked the French Government for legal authorization and recognition as religious bodies.

A dispatch from Constantinople says there is no security there for life and property. Assassinations and robberies are of every-day occurrence.

Of the two hundred and seventy-four deaths in New York City, yesterday, many were caused by the excessive heat.

29th.—At five o'clock p. m. yesterday another horrible sea disaster occurred. A boiler explosion occurred on board one of the Long Island Sound steamers, and although she was run on shore as quickly as possible, about fifty people perished in the flames or by jumping overboard and drowning.

In a recent debate in the English House of Lords the condition of Armenia was brought under consideration, and several speakers, irrespective of party, pressed the matter upon the Government, and urged the necessity of immediate help to rescue the people from their awful plight, arising from Turkish cruelty, misrule and oppression. The picture presented by the various speakers was horrible in all its details. Nothing in all the history of Turkish misrule can equal it, though that history is stained with injustice, oppression, and brutality from the first page to the last. There is not a people on the earth to-day whose condition is as dreadful and pitiful as that of the Armenian Christians, though the Great Powers two years ago demanded that Turkey should institute reforms immediately. Pestilence and famine have made horrible ravages among them. Corpses lie in the streets of these peaceful villages, and the starving, despairing victims of famine, urged by the pangs of hunger, feed upon them. Meanwhile the Turkish tax-gatherers are stripping the people of money and homes. Assassinations are frequent. To kill an Armenian Christian is of no more moment than to kill a dog. The only one of the Powers which takes a practical view of the situation is Russia, who has suggested the sending of a strong naval squadron to Constantinople to enforce the reform business. The proper way is to take the power out of Turkey's hands altogether. She long ago forfeited every right to be considered as an independent power; she has forfeited the respect and sympathy of the civilized world.

The peasantry of Hungary, among the poorest and most degraded in Europe, have turned their faces towards this country, and are emigrating in such numbers that the Hungarian Government is becoming alarmed and is considering measures to stay the exodus. In some districts the people seem to be leaving in masses, over 3,000 having gone from a single county.

30th.—At Dubuque, Iowa, the Mississippi River has receded to its old level, so that the railway tracks under the bluffs and on the flats are no longer covered. However, at Warsaw, Illinois, the levee has broken, and 18,000 acres of land is overflowed, destroying corn and other crops. The farmers drove their cattle to the uplands. Some cattle and five people have been drowned. The loss to property is estimated at one million dollars. A break below Quincy is expected, and trains do not run on the river roads.

Another excursion steamer had a narrow escape yesterday. She run into a barge and a hole was made, but the officers and crew returned speedily to the dock, and landed all the passengers safely before she sunk. About one thousand children and adults were on board, going to a Sunday-school picnic, from New York City.

A fierce wind and hail storm did considerable damage to the crops and fruit-trees in the neighborhood of Mendota, Illinois, yesterday.

Serious disturbances have occurred at Haifa, in Asiatic Turkey, between the Christians, and the Mohammedans. A British gunboat has been dispatched to the Syrian coast to protect the Christians.

The locust plague in the neighborhood of Astrakhan, in Asiatic Russia, is so great as to defy all efforts to eradicate it. So says the Russian Minister of the Interior.

The Bradlaugh case still continues to excite the English people. About 20,000 persons gathered in Trafalgar Square, London, Monday night, to protest against the exclusion of the agitator. After the meeting was over some 4,000 persons surrounded the House of Commons, and it required the intervention of the police to make way for the members to the seats.

July 1st.—The French authorities moved in force yesterday upon the Jesuits. Some of the establishments yielded readily, and others resisted and had to be broken open. Some magistrates and deputies so sympathized with the priests, openly, as to hinder the work, and their places were filled by others. The other religious orders will be given further opportunity to organize under the law. The Government does not feel confident enough to enforce its decrees against them.

The ambassadors of the great Powers of Europe, who are at Constantinople, have warned Turkey that the nations are in earnest, and that a reform must begin in her affairs and government by her keeping the stipulations of the Berlin treaty, and the conditions of the late conference of the Powers.

The riot near Mount Carmel recently was between some German settlers and Bedouins. Many were killed on both sides.

The prospect of war between Russia and China increases. Russia is sending more war vessels and men to the borders.

At Olean, Pa., yesterday, the lightning struck a thirty-five thousand barrel tank of oil and set it on fire. Five other tanks are near by and may burn.

Peace has been restored at Buenos Ayres. The insurgent forces have laid down their arms, and Dr. Tejedos has withdrawn his pretensions to the Presidency of the Argentine Republic.

A portion of Portland, Oregon, is flooded on account of a rise in the Columbia River. Some other places along the river are also submerged, and the damage will be about $100,000.

The Sioux Indians are said to be much dissatisfied with their Chief, Spotted Tail, on account of his granting the right of way to the Northwestern Road through their country.

A meteor of large size appeared to the people around Macon, Georgia, Tuesday evening.

The cotton-spinners of England claim that, owing to the condition of the cotton market, they can not afford to pay their operatives even the present rate of wages. An extensive strike is threatened in consequence.

2d.—Bradlaugh has won his case in the House of Commons, the action refusing him admission upon his affirmation having yesterday been rescinded by a considerable majority, and he will be allowed to take his seat. Premier Gladstone favored his doing so, and a motion was adopted by which any who will may affirm their allegiance, etc., instead of taking the regulation oath.

In France forty-nine magistrates have resigned rather than execute the decrees against the Jesuits. The Government goes ahead unflinchingly. Thirty-nine establishments were broken up day before yesterday. The remaining thirty, being educational ones, are allowed to exist till August 25th. Other religious bodies than the Jesuits say that they will submit to the law.

The cotton-weavers in the Mosley District, England, have struck work. They demand more wages. The value of coin turned out by the United States Mints for the year ending June 30th, is $84,057,144. Of this sum $27,933,750 were standard silver.

Intense heat still prevails at New York. Seventy-nine cases of sunstroke occurred between noon Wednesday and the same time Thursday.

Over 1,500 German, Scandinavian, and Bohemian emigrants arrived at Baltimore yesterday morning for the West.

Later advices of the defeat of the Russians by the Chinese state that the Russians were defeated while marching from Khokand via Oshand Gulcha, en route to Kashgar. The Chinese were completely masters of the situation, and defeated them, and compelled them to fly to Osh, capturing their entire convoy. The Chinese are now at Gulcha.

The boiler of an excursion steamer on Lake Minnetonka, Minnesota, exploded yesterday. Four persons were killed and seven wounded. The boiler was known to have been weak before the accident, but the authorities did not see that it was examined and condemned.

3d.—Bradlaugh affirmed and took his seat yesterday.

There was a passionate discussion in the French chamber of deputies, yesterday, on the expulsion of the Jesuits. One of the opponents of the Government bitterly assailed the mode of proceeding.

Great sympathy for the exiled French Jesuits is shown in Spain, and numerous applications for permission to establish monasteries and colleges have been granted.

Two deaths from yellow fever have occurred at the New York quarantine station.

A Jersey City woman, sick and destitute, killed her three children. She said she wished them to go to heaven and not starve.

Below Quincy, Illinois, by the break in the levee over one hundred thousand acres of cultivated land has been covered with water, destroying the crops on an almost innumerable number of farms.

A terrible storm of rain and hail occurred yesterday north of Indianapolis, Indiana. Crops were destroyed, all windows on the exposed side of buildings were demolished, shingles were torn off and trees were broken down.

5th.—The first railway in Syria has just been completed. It is a steel-track T. rail tramway, on the American plan, with cars built in the American style by a Birmingham firm. The cars externally are the American street cars, with an iron staircase and seats on the top for twelve.

The winter wheat harvest has commenced earlier than usual in Wisconsin, and the crop will be large and the quality fine. The outlook for spring wheat is also very promising. Bountiful harvests seem to be almost the rule in the United States this season. Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Kansas dispatches all mention the prosperous condition of things, with only a few exceptions, caused in some regions by drouth and in others by floods and heavy rains.

General Grant was at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, yesterday, and leaves to-day on a special train, for a tour through Colorado and New Mexico.

6th.—The Russians continue to deny that they have met with any reverses in China.

The Cuban insurgents under General Garcia have been sorely defeated and scattered by the troops of Spain.

An earthquake in Switzerland, and many buildings injured.

Many accidents occurred yesterday throughout the United States, the day being observed for the Fourth more than the 3d was. On a lake near Saint Paul, Minnesota, a boat containing fourteen men and women capsized and seven were drowned. In Chicago a young man accidentally shot his father through the heart with a pistol which he had been practicing with. By many other accidents with pistols men and boys were wounded, some severely so, in various parts of the body, head, face, legs, and hands. Near Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and at Sagetown, Illinois, murders took place at or after picnic festivities. They occurred because of difficulties and ill-feeling between parties.

7th.—Several explosions of the gas mains on Tottenham Road, London England, day before yesterday, resulted in the wounding of a few people and in great injury to hundreds of shops, stores, residences and public buildings.

The boiler of a steam thrasher at Dunkirk, Ohio, exploded yesterday, doing deadly work, seven men being killed and eight wounded, three of whom died afterward, increasing the number of dead to ten. It was a terrible accident.

The great Mississippi flood has reached Saint Louis, and north of the city the water covers the low lands on both sides of the river, so that if the rise continues much damage will be done. As it now is the lumber business has been suspended, and several families had to desert their houses.

Other 5th of July powder accidents are reported, and many other kinds of accidents by which people were killed or severely wounded.

Favorable weather prevails in Ireland and a very large potato crop is anticipated.

At a gathering at Troy Mills, Linn county, Iowa, a general fight occurred, participated in by about one hundred men and lasting for an hour, fists, clubs and rocks being used. Twenty-five persons were seriously injured and several may die. Many others were hurt.

8th.—The prospect for war between Turkey and Greece increases, and both powers are enlisting and mustering in men, and getting guns and ammunition ready for the fray.

Some riotous strikers in England have been arrested and sent to prison.

There are very few men in the world, even among the Saints, who would be willing to confess the worst thoughts that ever hurried through their minds. The difference between the good man and the bad is that while evil knocks at the doors of both, it finds a welcome in the house of the one and is so uneasy and out of place in the house of the other that it stays but a little while and then hurries off to a more congenial fireside.

HEAR BOTH SIDES.—Never condemn your neighbor unheard, however many the accusations which may be preferred against him. Every story has two ways of being told, and justice requires that you should hear the defence as well as the accusation; and remember that the malignity of enemies may place you in a similar predicament.

The sum of our enjoyment is made of little things. As off the broadest rivers are formed from smallest springs, By treasuring small waters the rivers reach their span, So we increase our pleasures enjoying what we can. There may be burning deserts through which our feet must go. But there are green oases where pleasant palm-trees grow. And if we may not follow the path our hearts would plan, Let us make all around us as happy as we can.

Correspondence.

ALBORG, Denmark, No 18 Norregade,
June 14th, 1880

Brn. Joseph and Henry:—Brother Odin Jacobs arrived here May 28th, and he stayed here till June 8th. He then started for Norway, and in good spirits. June 6th I baptized the heads of a family. Bro. Jacobs assisted in confirming them and we were blessed by the Holy Spirit. One of their sons, about fifteen years of age gave in his name yesterday for baptism, to be attended to next Saturday. May the Holy Spirit be the director concerning the Church of Christ. Remember us before the throne of grace. Yours in the gospel bonds, PETER N. BRIX.

THE UTAH MISSION AND ITS NEEDS.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah,
June 10th, 1880.

Editors Herald:—I have no doubt the readers of the Herald are interested in the Utah Mission, and read with pleasure all the good that can be said of it. In some senses it may be said to be the great mission of the Reorganized Church. Not that souls are any more valuable here than in any other portion of the world, nor that the men employed in it are better or more fitted for the work than other Elders of the Church. In fact, I believe, better talent and men, at least as good in every other way, are employed outside of this mission than are to be found in it. But the object of this mission is a direct appeal to wandering Latter Day Israel; pointing out to them the steps of this great departure, and inviting them to return from idolatry, the gratification of lust, the deeds of blood, and system of oppression and wrong, to the pure gospel of Christ, to the religion of love,—the practice of righteousness, which is by faith in Christ Jesus. It is made the first duty of this Church, as it was the duty of the Church in the days of Christ, to go to the "lost sheep of the house of Israel." But what a task is before us! How similar to that of Christ! "He came unto his own and his own received him not." Neither are we received. But, like him, we are viewed with suspicion. Barriers are placed in our path. Our histories are scrutinized, not to learn any good from our past, or to trace any virtues in our present lives, but to discover, if possible, any dark spot, any stain, be it ever so small, by which they can defame our characters, blast our influence, and destroy our usefulness. It requires all the little stock of patience and charity we may have laid up in store, and I confess I often feel mine giving out, but duty demands we should exercise these virtues and seek an increase of the precious store.

Great pains are taken to impress upon the people the idea that we are "apostates," wolves in sheep's clothing," "rebels of the deepest dye," even charging us with "imbruing our hands in the blood of the Martyrs, and seeking to take their lives." Every effort is made to close houses against us, and to entirely shut us out from every privilege of free speech. It is not three weeks since Father Smith and myself, of Union Fort visited the Bishop of that place to request the use of the school house, at a time when they were not using it. That worthy prelate told us, "If the Wesleyan Methodists, or any of the other sects want that house they can have it; but I do not want you people to have it." Sometime ago Father Thorn applied to the trustees of his settlement, between Brigham and Willard cities, for the use of the school house for the writer to preach in, but it was denied him.

Permit me now to name a few of the bands that bind this people together as slaves to the priesthood. While passing down the street the other day, a grey bearded man was pointed out to me as a Swede, a scientific man who had been caught in the "toils," and, by Brigham's direction, brought from his native land here, to serve the purposes of that professed prophet. As soon as he came he reported himself to that worthy oracle. "Now Bro. E——n," said Brigham, "the first thing for you to do is to take another wife." The new comer obeyed, and soon found his mistake, but he was in the "toils," and there was no escape. He is to-day a wanderer, stripped of his faith in God, and in humanity, but he remains in Utah to curse his deceivers. Polygamy is the grand cable chain of Utah's thralldom.

But there are others, such as endowment oaths, fearful in their nature and strong as adamant to the unsuspecting mind. Then comes the "United Order," into which they seek to baptize the people with their wives and children and all that they possess or ever shall possess, thus giving themselves with their families and all their property into the hands of those men who claim to be the oracles of God.

Next comes the "Female Relief Societies," no less than three divisions; one for the so called mothers in Israel, another for young women and another for little girls. These relief societies have a species of "priesthood" with presidents, counselors, teachers, etc. They hold their meetings in every ward and also quarterly conferences. They visit from house to house under the pretense of seeing that none are suffering from want, but in reality to ascertain if they are strong in the faith, and encourage and teach it as a duty to go into polygamy. This is taught by young and old, and even little children are trained to believe in it, thus preparing them for the net as soon as they are thought of proper age to enter it.

I will here say that the "Female Relief Society" is one of the strongest powers for binding the cable, polygamy, around this people of any that they have. It is the most insidious in its workings, and the most crafty in its approaches to the unsuspecting victims. But its charitable spirit dissolves away or hardens into cruel neglect, the moment the visitors find that their former dupe has begun to think for herself. One special instance came before me last winter that I now call to mind; a poor woman told me that she believed our position was a correct one, "but, Bro. Derry, what am I to do? I am dependent, and if I join your Church I could get nothing at all from this people, and I must remain as I am, or want for bread." Does true charity thus treat the supposed erring ones?

But I started to tell of the prospects of this mission and its needs. In the majority of places our success appears small at present, but perhaps we can not estimate the amount of good done. It may not all appear at present. Elder Duell baptized fourteen in Springville. Three had been baptized before, and I organized them into a branch, numbering seventeen. Elder Luff had preached there and the writer has used the laboring oar there-too. Also at Provo Elder Luff had preached, and I followed him, with good attention from the people. I was earnestly invited to stay, and at least one hearty "God bless you" reached my ear, but I could not stay. I urged the return of Elder Luff, whose field it was. He returned and was gladly received, and soon had to call for help, so Elder Blair, feeling like a giant ready for the war, went to his aid, and they are doing noble battle for the cause of truth, and soon I expect to hear of a number of honest souls bursting their bands and stepping out into the liberty of the sons and daughters of God. I am doing my best in this city, but, perhaps the little good I do, may only be known in the great hereafter. Elder Duell is further south; Elder Anthony was in Malad when last I heard from him, but found himself among a people who seemed to care but little for the truth of God.

This mission needs meeting houses, or means to rent halls. The Methodist minister in Provo, kindly offered the use of their church when they were not using it. May God reward this kindly act. This mission needs men against whom these people can raise no just cause of complaint; men firm in the faith of Christ, experienced in declaring the word, capable of defending it; men full of charity, patience and forbearance; men who love truth better than all things else; men who can do and dare to do right though all hell oppose; men who will not make the Church or the gospel ridiculous by absurd and foolish utterances and clownish actions; men who will not trail the gospel standard in the dust, either to gratify their own propensities or to please others. I have faith that there are in the Church hosts of such men, those who are young, strong, and brave to endure, and whose eyes and hearts will be single to God's glory. I am not sanguine of any great immediate success, but I do believe that this giant evil will be uprooted, and that the honest in heart will be brought back. And I believe "the remnant" whom God hath called will be the chief means in His hands of doing this work. But, let every man who engages in the sacred task, make up his mind to meet obstacles and contend with difficulties not met with elsewhere. There are some noble souls here who have acknowledged the truth, and who give all the aid they can to the glorious cause. In the foremost rank of these stands Bro. T. N. Hudson, who is a noble pillar in the house of God.

Hoping, praying, and laboring for the success of God's truth, here and every where, I remain a humble but unworthy follower of Jesus Christ,
CHARLES DERRY.

MOSS POINT, Jackson Co., Miss.,
June 21st, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—I have just returned from my trip to the Bluff Creek Branch, about twelve miles from Bro. Porter's, where I write this. I spent twelve days with them, preaching nine times in the Union church, and once to the colored people in their church near by. The colored people would like a call from the colored preacher who was appointed by General Conference. Where is he? They would give him a friendly treatment. I also think that he would do a good work. If he wants to come and work, there is a great demand for laborers, and fair wages are paid for the same. However, it is of that character peculiar to charcoal burning and logging.

I think that my labors in that locality were not in vain, and that the seed sown by Bro. Heman C. Smith will continue to result in good. Many are anxious for me to return and preach to them again, and there are two or more calls a few miles from that place. But I am receiving word from brethren in other parts of the mission, to "Come and help us." How great the call, and I all alone in this large mission, not having heard from Bro. Crawford since starting from Plano, over two months ago. Sometimes my helplessness and my inability to meet the demands made upon me, almost overwhelm me.

My health, though much better than when I started out, is not such as will permit of my making the efforts that I would like to make. However, I preach four or five times a week.

Brethren and sisters in Israel, breathe a prayer for this weak laborer, that he may receive the promise of the Lord, and obtain strength and the spirit of his mission. I shall remain in this State for a few weeks yet and try and fill some of the many calls.

As ever, yours in the hope of eternal life,
FRANK P. SCARLETT.

RICHMONDVILLE, Michigan.

Bro. Joseph:—Bro. Willard Smith and I left Michigan for Ontario, June 1st, and visit some of the branches in the Kent and Elgin District. Their conference was held in the Wellington Branch, on the 5th and 6th. Brn. C. Scott and G. T. Griffiths from abroad were present. I believe all of the Elders were present and a number of friends, although the weather was wet and the roads muddy. Peace and harmony prevailed, and we enjoyed ourselves well.

On the 7th, went to London and spent three or four days, visiting all of the brethren and preaching in their Church. My heart rejoiced to be with them once again. I had been instrumental in the hands of God of bringing the most of them into the Church. Five or six more have been baptized since last conference. On the 11th we started for the Osborne Branch. Found that the brethren had made great preparations for the conference. They have reared a splendid little frame church. It was neatly done, and painted inside and out. They have paid for it without the aid of necktie parties, kissing bees, dances, &c. It was dedicated by Bro. C. Scott, on Sunday, June 13th. Sunday, 13th, was devoted chiefly to preaching. Hundreds of people were in attendance; Brn. Scott, Griffiths and myself preaching. Strange were my feelings when I first stood up to speak to them, a people I have been well acquainted with for years, for I was born in that region. I preached to my school mates, Sunday School teachers, &c. Some looked upon me with wonder and amazement; others (who knew me and my learning) that there was more power than my own, and they believed that power must be of God. Many remarks were made by those who came to see and hear what the Saints had to say. Some spoke as follows: "Well, I never had the pleasure of meeting with a people that I have enjoyed myself with so well as I have with the Saints," "I could sit and hear them talk all night," "Why were we so prejudiced as to not come and hear for ourselves before," "Why were we always told that they had no smart men, and as a general thing the Saints were ignorant people, but I never saw a more intelligent community in my life than they are."

By the above you can see a great change with the people, and more especially, when you call to mind the history of the past, when myself with others were chased from one place, and having no certain dwelling place to abide in safety, because of the cruelty of this people. Once, at midnight, one of our Elders was routed out of bed and chased by a mob with their faces painted black, coats inside out, and otherwise disguised, having with them lots of whiskey and weapons such as pitchforks, axes, guns and bayonets, declaring they would have his life, and that never should another Elder preach there. But he is alive yet, and has preached there, as well as a number of others. Myself and two others one cold winter night were taken by fifteen or twenty of the same class of men, two of whom were my uncles, and were thrown into a sleigh and taken two or three miles further than we wanted to go, then taken into the woods, just to see a can of tar containing about twenty pounds. They had a fire under it to soften it ready for use, and they said we had to leave the country and quit preaching that "hellish Mormonism," or else take a coat of tar. We declared that we knew the work was true, and could prove it by the Bible, and could not give up our faith. They quarreled amongst themselves, and, after some time, we were set at liberty. Now we are made welcome to almost every place. We see the change and are glad. I received a warm shake of the hands from some who were my enemies because I obeyed this work, but who are now my friends again, and I trust will be friends forever. And may they obey His teachings, and become friends to God, and fellow citizens with the Saints, determined to live in faith to the end, and reign with Jesus when he comes.

Bro. Scott defended well the Reorganization, showing a difference between us and the Utah people, declaring that that little church stood as a witness to them that we were a separate people of the mountains. We would like to have stayed longer with the Saints in Ontario, but we had to return to our debate in Jeddo, Michigan, which took place on the 19th. On our arrival we found that prejudice ran high. My opponent, and the minister who calls himself "the Elephant," and others, had been busy lecturing against us for the past three weeks, and I guess all the histories that could be found were brought forward, with a pretended letter from the president of the United States, and another from S. Colfax, once Vice President, and living testimonies, &c. And it seemed to take root with some of the people. But we preached to a large congregation the night previous to the debate, also the evening following the debate, and I think we have made some of the honest ones to see different.

We met according to appointment, but found that different arrangements had to be made or no debate; the resolutions were changed a little, and then he would not debate unless I would give him sixty minutes to my thirty. As hundreds of people were present, from far and near, I thought it best to accept it. I knew I would have no trouble with the last proposition, but expected to have a harder one on the first.

I believe it will turn out for our good. After it was over, one man told me to announce to the people that he was now thoroughly convinced of the doctrine, and on the morrow (Sunday) he would be baptized. I did so, and preached that evening, and on the beach on Sunday I preached to a multitude, and baptized three, with the promise of more, perhaps before long. So we have made a start after all in St. Clair county, and the end is not yet. I have many friends there now, and the Justice of the Peace, Mr. Wing, said that his place should be a stopping place for me, or any other Elder. That family with their relatives and others have cared for us continually, and declare that they will. We return our kind thanks to them, and may their faith never grow less in the latter day work.

I am yours in bonds,

JOHN J. CORNISH.

DOW CITY, Iowa, June 26th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—Our conference closed on Sunday the 20th. We had a most enjoyable time. The attendance was unusually large and the preaching excellent. The speakers were Heman C. Smith, D. H. Bays, Eli Clothier and J. W. Chatburn. One lady was baptized at the close. Bro. Bays reported the organization of a branch on the Maple, where he had been laboring last winter and this spring, and the probabilities are that another branch will be organized in Poca-hontas county, Bro. Clothier having gone there from conference for the purpose of holding a series of meetings, and so the good work wins its way.

Our meeting house is enclosed, and is now ready for the inside finish. It is a good, substantial building, plenty large enough for present purposes, but I fear too small for future use.

We have had some heavy rains lately, consequently high water in the smaller streams, resulting in the washing out of most of the bridges, damaging fences, &c., but doing an incalculable amount of good to vegetation generally. The crops never looked better or more promising for a good yield than now. My daughter writes from Osborne county, Kansas, that the crops there are almost a failure from the excessive drouth. We are all well, and busy working in the field. With our kind love to you and yours I remain yours in the gospel,

JOHN PETT.

WINTERPORT, Waldo Co., Maine,
March 20th, 1880.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:—As so many have urged me to write to them, and as I have so little time to write, and wish to show no partiality, I take this method of addressing you. With my companion I am in Winterport, which is a village situated on the west bank of the Penobscot River, and is about thirteen miles from Bangor, one of the principal towns of Maine. The steamers Katahdin and Cambridge from Boston to Bangor stop here, twice a week each way. And the City of Richmond comes from Portland, Maine, once a week. The first named boats, do not go up the river farther than here, because of the ice. There is a Narrow Gauge rail road on the eastern side of the river, which runs from Bangor to Bucksport, five miles below here. There are three churches here, Congregationalist, Methodist and Baptist. The first two have nice buildings, the last, have left theirs to decay. They have no meetings in it, and the windows are all broken out. The parties who own it, will neither sell it nor repair it, so that others might use it. We have held thus far three meetings in the "vestry" of the Congregationalist's, a small but neat building, used for social meetings, sewing circles, &c. Mr. Smith has an appointment for Wednesday night; how much longer we can have the use of it we can not tell. We came here from Brooksville Branch last Saturday, being brought here by Bro. Edward B. Gray, teacher of the Brooksville Branch. We came in a sleigh, and it was difficult to get along in some places, even that way, for in places the snow was drifted four to five feet deep, and often from fifty to a hundred yards long. The road was broken only the day before, as the storm occurred on Wednesday and Thursday, and it was not possible for the men to clear the roads till Friday. The roads are in a bad condition now, because in many places the wind blew the snow off the roads for many rods, while it drifted it in other places so that it is neither fit sleighing, nor good wheeling. There are but two families here who profess the faith, or but one family and a part of another. Bro. Otis Eaton, and wife and a daughter, and Sr. May Mansfield. There are some few interested in our faith here, and some in the country have felt inclined to accept our views.

I reached Deer Isle on the 6th of March, having left Boston on the evening of the 5th and went to by cars to Portland, and from there to Deer Isle by steamboat. I was glad to get away from the trouble and care that I had to endure for three months in Philadelphia in helping to take care of a sick woman; for while I felt it to be my duty to assist my sister in this thing, yet I could not get to the meetings all the time, and I can feel to sympathize with those who are living isolated, and where they have no brethren and sisters to converse with, and no meetings to attend. I enjoyed myself however, in Philadelphia with the Saints, when I could get out to meetings, and I remember with pleasure the excellent meetings we had in the Hornerstown branch, New Jersey, and in Providence, Rhode Island, and in Boston, and I would here express my gratitude to the dear Saints in Providence, and Boston, and Hornerstown and vicinity, and in Philadelphia for their kindness in ministering to my wants, and to those in Pittsburg who so kindly sent me so many beautiful and valuable presents by the hand of my husband last fall. And indeed in all places where we have been, I have been cared for, and blessed by the kindness of the Saints, who will please accept my heartfelt thanks for the same.

The field of labor here in the Western Maine District in some places is anything but pleasant, owing to the ill-feeling, contention, fault finding and distrust seen among some. Truly when iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold, as Jesus said. I am not surprised that no more join the Church, for they would see and hear so much that would dishearten and discourage them, that they might fall away and become worse than before. A fearful account will these who breed and sustain broils and confusion and hard feelings in the Church, have to give in the day of judgment. As the Apostle James said, "the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity;" and again, it "setteth on fire the course of nature, and is set on fire of hell;" and again, "the tongue can no man tame, it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison;" and again he says, "where envying and strife is, there is confusion and every evil work."—James 3rd chapter.

We may be here about a week longer, and then go to Deer Island and neighborhood for about a week, and then go to the Eastern Maine District. Hoping to have the prayers of the Saints, that we may be enabled to do our duty here, and have grace to bear the many discouragements to be met with in the gospel fold.

Your sister in the gospel,

HELEN P. SMITH.

DUDLEY, Stoddard Co., Missouri,
June 27th, 1880.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins:—I am here making railroad ties. Will be here some months. This is quite a wild region. Very little, if any, regard is paid to Sunday. I think of telling the gospel story if opportunity presents. 'Tis said that one preacher was run out. Perhaps I might meet with as good success, and I presume it will make me an object of much comment, but in all probability I will make the attempt.

Yours in bonds,

D. D. BARCOCK.

TABOR, Iowa, July 3d, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—I was taken down sick on May 20th. Am slowly recovering, but very weak, hardly able to write, but hope to recruit so as to start on time, last week in August, or first week in September at the latest for Rocky Mountains. I ask an interest in your prayers. I have never felt so greatly the necessity of every worker working during the day, for truly the night hastens. I read of the laying down of the armor of two able champions, and I ask myself, Did they ever attain to the knowledge of the Son of God, and if so where is my security? Will I stand the trying day? and I say, O Lord, help me. I realize the weakness of all flesh. Your brother in bonds.

E. C. BRAND.

EDENVILLE, Marshall Co., Iowa,
June 18th, 1880.

Brn. Joseph and Henry.—The labor of Bro. I. N. White and self has been incessant from the first, not a Sabbath passing without two or more services, and a number on week-day evenings. The most of the labor has been in the form of two-day meetings, and part of these were grove meetings with basket dinners. One of the last named was held in Poweshiek county, May 23d, 23d, where Bro. I. N. White held a discussion with the Rev. Hedrick (of the Christian Church) who favored us with his presence. They gathered in from all quarters, some coming twenty miles. On Sunday there were six hundred or more on the grounds. The attention was extraordinary, and good liberty in speaking was enjoyed. We had the assistance of Ern. Nirk, J. X. Davis, D. C. White and others.

While holding the last meeting the Rev. P. T. Russel, one of the most prominent and able defenders of the Christian Church, (as he claims to have held thirty-two successful discussions), stormed the fort three miles west of here to the extent of eight lectures. On his journey hither said there had been enough of such misrepresentations preached to the people, and he was going to clear up matters in the true light. Judging from appearances one would have thought he was paying the last tribute of respect to Mormonism. I think it was his last in that vicinity as the matters were too well examined afterwards.

One big task that he undertook was to prove that the present Book of Mormon is very different from the original, so much so that it would seem a different book entirely. But, as an original one was produced and examined, it was too much for his empty assertions. There was a representative out during the entire eight lectures; and at the last one, Bro. I. N. White spoke by permission several minutes and denied what had been said, and he challenged the combined powers of the Christian(?) society. As the Rev. Russel did not accept, Bro. White announced that he would reply. A two days' meeting occurring at the time appointed. I missed hearing the answer, but the brethren tell me it was one of the ablest efforts they ever heard. Doctrinal points and the Book of Mormon were the grounds of dispute.

We held another grove meeting June 12th and 13th in the Des Moines Valley Branch. Brn. Lloyd, Nirk, Stamm, D. C. White, Knox, Longbottom and others were there. The first audience numbered sixty, and the last one three hundred people. On Sunday I baptized a young lady, (making eight in all), sister Clara J. Park who bravely went forth before over two hundred people. Her father and an older sister do not obey, but have been convinced for several years. Much of the Spirit was enjoyed throughout the entire services, and the best of liberty to speakers. On Sunday night Bro. I. N. White spoke, and near the close, a volley of eggs were thrown through the trees over our heads. We contemplate going there again, despite the eggs and a few rocks and sticks.

The grove meetings have been a complete success, Saints and friends doing their part in preparations and in serving bountiful dinners. This is our means of procuring the moral prestige spoken of at the late General Conference. Your brother in the gospel,
R. ETZENHOUSER.

OENAVILLE, Bell County, Texas,
June 18th, 1880.

Dear Herald.—Bro. Bozarth arrived here about two weeks ago, and at the close of twelve or fourteen discourses he had persuaded eleven to follow the example of our blessed Lord. Others are "almost persuaded." Bro. Bozarth has used the "sword of the Spirit" with both skill and power, and at least a few of us feel that we appreciate the self-sacrificing spirit and devotedness to Christ's cause which enables such men to leave their homes and families to come and "beard the lion in his den," as his reception in Red River county proves. To some the tidings he brings is both new and strange, but to others he is only another witness, testifying of the truth of that which we had been forced to accept as a fact. After partially organizing us into a branch he has gone on a tour into southern Texas, accompanied by my father, H. L. Thompson, expecting to conclude our organization on his return. I wish to say to all honest inquirers after truth, that, after two years close reading of every thing I could get, either for or against this so called delusion, carefully comparing the same with the Bible for evidence, I found that I had lived a life of delusion; and, after all, was only a blind victim of "blind leaders." And now I realize that an over-ruling and merciful providence has irresistibly guided me into the "straight and narrow way." Will the Saints pray for our little band here. Already do we hear the mutterings of the coming tempest and the raging of the foe without. May it not intimidate us, but serve to drive us nearer to God, so that we may outride the storm and anchor safely beyond the darts of the foe. We expect Bro. Wickes soon. Your sister in Christ,

R. S. McMANS.

FROM AN ELDER IN THE FIELD.

Henry.—I find the struggle sometimes very hard, though I have been greatly blessed. One of the hardest things to bear is a dearth of the Spirit. A few times when I have not had good liberty it has seemed as if it would almost kill me. I would argue thus: Here I am, a thousand miles from home, weak in body, without money, and now, alas, destitute of the Spirit, without God. Bro. Henry, to be pinched with hunger, to be tired and sore-footed, to sleep upon a hard board with the stars for a canopy, is nothing, even when the brain is racked with physical pain, compared to being without the Spirit. Sometimes it seems as if I was good for nothing; then again I take courage. It is God's work. If he has any thing for me to do he can strengthen me for the battle; but, Oh! as old Jacob said to Pharaoh, "Few and evil have the days of the years of my life been." The hope of the "rest that remains for the people of God" alone sustains me; the earnest of our inheritance. But such is life; now is toil and pain, but in calm and beautiful peace lies the glorious beyond. I am not desirous of giving up the struggle, only chastened and tried. Kind regards to all. Your brother, FRANK.

MONMOUTH, Illinois, June 22d, 1880.

Brn. Joseph and Henry.—I hired Temperance Hall in this city four nights for Bro. J. F. McDowell to speak in. At his lecture "Mormonism Exposed," there was a pretty fair audience, but not nearly so many as the hall would hold. The people in this city are very much afraid of us. Bro. McDowell spoke twice on the street on Sabbath afternoon at five o'clock on two Sabbaths; better congregations than in hall. He spoke once in Second Baptist Church, colored, they being more liberal with us than our white brethren; he also spoke twice in another hall, so you see he was kept going pretty well while here; what has been accomplished time must tell. I am persuaded to think however that the brother has awakened some new thoughts within the hearts of some of our citizens.

L. M. SOLLENBERGER.

COLTHARP, Houston Co., Texas,
June 10th, 1880.

Brethren Joseph and Henry: I am still trying to preach the gospel of Christ. It has put some of the people in this part of the country to searching the scriptures. Some believe, and some will not endure sound doctrine; their ears are turned away from the truth, and turned to the History of Maria Ward. If this history had not been brought to this country, my work would have prospered before now. I believe that the Lord will be with me and break the cloud and let the true light shine in upon the souls of some in this country. I advise them to get the Book of Mormon, read it, and cast aside all prejudice. Search the scriptures and see whether the things they find in the History of Maria Ward be so. Mr. W. O. McKinney has given me money to send for the Book of Mormon for him.

I preached to the Cheeseland Branch last Sunday, June 6th, and baptized Stephen Sowell. He was born March 13th, 1818, at Pulaski county, Georgia. I am young in the cause, and want Bro. A. J. Cato, or some other good Elder to come and help me. The Saints at the Cheeseland Branch are trying to be faithful in all duties to God and men. I feel happy, and will press on and do all I can in the cause of my Master.

Your brother in Christ,

HENRY GRIM.

LEVERINGS, Knox County, Ohio.
June 20th, 1880.

Mrs. Thurston, Dear Friend.—I was made glad by the receipt of your letter, and one from Mr. Stebbins. That was an unexpected pleasure, for which I thank you, also for the little book I received. It is very plain and comprehensive, and I think contains the truth. Some things in it suggest some questions to my mind, which I will mention hereafter.

A number of papers called the Evangelist (published in Chicago) have been sent me. They contain articles on "Mormonism" by D. R. Dungan. I have read them carefully, and out of his own mouth I judge him. He has much to say about Joseph Smith's inspired translation of the Bible. I could not but wonder if he had forgotten the translation by Campbell, Doddridge and McKnight, of which one of their own ministers (Arthur Crichfield) once wrote as follows:

"Or does our light shine out from those emendations, The tapers suspended in Bethany's Shop, The notes and critiques, and close linked alterations, Of which there's no prospect they ever will stop? My Lord, the books made up of scraps, and of patches Of other men's labors whose sect you despise, With here and there put in (so notified) batches Of new fashioned words that do all modernise, And such is the book you have purchased and paid for, And yet will not carry, nor from it will treat; It might be a puzzle to tell what 'twas made for, That has in half an age become obsolete."

I asked one of their ministers why they do not use their own translation of the Scriptures. He said that the book was good authority among themselves, but they do not use it in their ministry, because the public have not the faith in it they have in the old version, and that they do not claim that its translators were divinely inspired in its translation. No wonder it has become "obsolete" in half an age; wonder it lived so long. And what presumption to teach as the word of God that which they do not claim to be his word. They only claim that Campbell & Co. have given a better rendering of the original Greek and Hebrew. If that is all, the learned will differ about it; the people have a right to accept or reject it as they please, which they have not of anything claiming the authority of God.

Mr. Dungan says that he "would not be the Disciple of Christ if men could find that he [Christ] was of doubtful dealing." Mr. Dungan rejects the testimony of the neighbors and enemies of Christ, yet he greedily accepts all that the neighbors and enemies of Joseph Smith say of him. I am tired of that old rehash of vile slander; it has been served up so often that it is disgustingly stale. I wonder how any one having any respect for his own honor and integrity, can repeat the stuff to an intelligent audience,—one can not work at coal-heaving and not become smutty. If any one can prove by the word of God that Joseph Smith was an impostor, I would like to see it done, but if they can not prove it they had better be silent,—their arguments amount to nothing. With love and respect,
MARTHA E. KEARNEY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.,
June 8th, 1880.

Editors Herald.—I left the Hospital of San Jose on the 4th inst., and came to Washington Corners that day, and staid at Bro A. Haws', and Bro. Joyce's till Sunday, and came to Oakland, to my own branch. I am poor in this world, like my Master, but am rich as Lazarus in Abraham's bosom; and I have challenged Catholic priests, and others, to discourse with me, because I wish to defend my Master's doctrines; and have to-day the same Spirit which I had when I was baptized, And by the will of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ I shall be able to overcome all the cunning craftiness that is laid before us to deceive. I am not yet well, but hope to get health soon. I ask all the good and humble Saints to pray for me that I may also be able to overcome the power of darkness, I thank those worthy Christians who sent me letters and Heralds to San Jose Hospital. They are, one Lightowler, a Sr. from Contra Costa county, California, Sr. Emily Seigrist, Bro. Rudolph Seigrist, Providence R. I.; Sr. Maggie Wingate, West Oakland, California; and Bro. H. Burgess, has also comforted me in San Jose City. All the Saints that helped me may expect my thanks and prayers. I should not forget the Saints at Washington Corners, namely, Brn. Joyce, Haws, and their wives and the young sisters. That our Father may bless them all, shall be my earnest prayers. When I get time and some work for my support, I shall write an article concerning Peter, Pope, and the rock. Believe me, your humble servant in Jesus Christ. Amen. J. A. STROMBERG.

BOSTON HIGHLANDS, Mass.,
July 2d, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—The interest here is quite good. I baptized three on last Thursday, a brother and sister Higgins from the Utah Church, and a Bro. Crawford, an elderly man. On Wednesday Bro. Webster baptized a young man, who will also be a help to the work here. Some half a dozen Hollanders attend our meetings regularly and seem to be much interested. It is strange that, with all our advertizing in the papers and by handbills, so few come out to hear, out of a population of between three and four hundred thousand inhabitants. The Saints have a neat hall, number 2373 Washington Street, Highlands, and hold meetings on Sundays 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. on Sundays, and on Thursday nights. I think some few more will obey soon. We will be here about two Sundays more, and whether we shall return to Maine, or go to Providence, Plainville, Douglas, &c., I can not as yet determine. Your brother in Christ,

T. W. SMITH.

MAQUOKETA, Iowa,
June 25th, 1880.

Bro. Stebbins: Our district conference was a very pleasant reunion of our brethren and sisters, and resulted in good to the cause. Since the conference I have visited all the branches in the district, and in most places find a good feeling prevailing among our people, and prospects good for future work. The next conference for the Eastern Iowa District will be held August 7th and 8th, at Amber, Jones county, at the Jackson branch. Strangers may inquire for James Bradley. Yours in the gospel,

EDWARD LARKEY.

Conference Minutes.

MANCHESTER DISTRICT, ENGLAND.

A conference was held at Manchester, England, March 27th and 28th, 1880; Joseph Dewsnup in the chair; James Baty and J. H. Newstead, clerks. Pres. Dewsnup reported in the case of Bro. Austin of Sheffield, (referred to him by last conference), saying that he had written to Sheffield, but had no reply.

Elders Robert Baty, William Armstrong, Henry Greenwood, Peter Jackson, James Baty, Henry Boydell, J. McCue and Joseph Dewsnup, reported in person; and J. W. Coward by letter. Priests J. H. Newstead, James Eckersley, Isaac Gerrard, Henry Jackson, in person; and S. Spargo by letter. Teacher Edward Parry in person, and Dawson by letter.

Manchester, last report 52; 2 baptized, 1 received, 1 expelled; present 53 [Error of one.—Eds.] Farnworth, last report 32; 3 baptized, 1 received, 1 died, 8 expelled; present 27. Sheffield, no report. The Manchester branch was reported by Elder J. Dewsnup as in excellent condition; Farnworth by Elder Henry Boydell as in fair condition; Sheffield, no report.

Resolved that the Secretary of the district be instructed to communicate with Elders Woolston and Booth, and Priest B. O. Mellard of the Sheffield Branch, and express unto them the unqualified disapprobation of this conference of their conduct in not forwarding the branch report and their personal reports and licenses for the endorsement of the conference; and that they be informed that, in consequence of such neglect, they have disqualified themselves from acting as district officers until the next district conference.

H. C. Crump, Henry Greenwood and J. McCue, were appointed a committee to consider and report upon the following recommendations for ordination: Martin Haywood of Leeds, John Austin of Sheffield, and John Barler of Farnworth, to the office of Priest; William Spargo and Thomas Livesey of Farnworth, to the office of Deacon.

James Baty was appointed District Treasurer, and J. H. Newstead, financial Secretary.

Resolved that the branches of the district be requested to take up collections on behalf of the District Fund, the same to be forwarded to the District Secretary.

The licenses presented were read and ordered to be endorsed with the exception of that of Bro. Eckersley's, of Farnworth.

President Joseph Smith and the authorities of the Church in America were sustained by vote; also, T. Taylor and his secretary, and J. Dewsnup and his secretary, in all righteousness.

At 8:15 p. m. the committee on ordinations reported, recommending brethren Haywood and Austin as Priests, and W. Spargo as Deacon. Report adopted and committee discharged, and brethren Haywood and Austin were ordained by Elders H. C. Crump, H. Greenwood and W. Armstrong.

Resolved that a copy of the report of the committee on ordinations be forwarded to the Farnworth branch.

That this district apply to the ensuing Annual Conference of the English Mission to take into consideration a revision of the boundaries of districts.

28th.—At 2 p. m. a fellowship meeting was held, and it was truly a time of refreshing from the Lord. At 6 p. m. the meeting was addressed by Elder H. C. Crump. All expressed themselves as highly edified by the discourse.

There was a marked unanimity in the business portion of this conference which was pleasing to observe, and it may be said that this was the best conference ever held in the Manchester District.

Adjourned subject to call of the president.

INDEPENDENCE DISTRICT.

A conference convened at Independence, Missouri, May 21st, 1880; F. C. Warnky presiding; C. M. Schroder, clerk.

Elders C. C. Frisby, S. O. Waddel, S. M. Mayo, J. W. Brackenbury, E. B. Brackenbury, S. W. Hogue, G. W. Pilgrim, J. J. Kaster, W. P. Brown, C. M. Schroder, F. C. Warnky, George Hayward, J. V. L. Sherwood, E. W. Cato, W. B. Tignor and Frederick Campbell reported in person, and C. G. Lanphear by letter. Priests Andrew Cox, Henry Scarciff, W. P. Brents, R. May, William Clow, G. E. Herrington, Luther Allen, H. Etzenhouser, J. T. Clemenson and J. Vickery, reported in person; also, Teachers J. T. Wild, John Parker, Isaac Bailey, P. J. Hole and Chas. Clemenson; Deacon, J. Munson.

Bishop's Agent, J. J. Kaster, reported: "On hand last report $1.75, from Sr. Emma Pilgrim $2; paid Bro. Anderson $4."

The petition of the Kansas City Branch for disorganization was granted, letters to be given to the members by the clerk of the branch.

A motion that none but the Elders shall move or second resolutions, was lost. Then a motion was made that as the law requires that the Elders shall do the business which may come before them in conference, therefore,

Resolved that we conduct the conference according to the law as written. This was also lost.

Preaching at 8 o'clock by Bro. Cato.

May 22d, prayer meeting at 9 a. m., in which a goodly portion of the Spirit was enjoyed.

At 10 a. m., the building committee reported the walls completed to the eaves; $2 paid out since last conference for lumber. Bro. F. C. Warnky reported as having obtained subscription for about $100 to pay off the indebtedness on the church.

Bro. J. J. Kaster, as treasurer of the district, reported $60.10 in cash, with subscriptions enough to make $100 (including $60 paid in).

Whereas, we find in Herald of May 15th, page 152, that our representative states this conference sent him to get money of the Church, and that according to our understanding there has been a mistake made, as we do not think this district meant to call on the Church for help; we thought he would ask help of individuals as they would donate, and by stopping at the branches on the way to and from conference, the resolution in Herald, April 1st, 1880, page 110, not being duly considered; and, whereas, it is necessary and we do desire that the Church at large may know that we had no thought of calling on our worthy Bishop for help, knowing well the many other calls for the same purpose; therefore, Resolved, that we rescind said resolution as found in Herald of April 1st, 1880, page 110, conference minutes. Lost.

A resolution was adopted, giving Bro. F. C. Warnky credit for his expenses and time to General Conference, which he donated to the Church.

Resolved that we rescind the resolution of last conference, which made the Bishop's Agent treasurer to receive funds to pay off the indebtedness on the Church, and that the business be placed back into the hands of the building committee.

Branch Reports: Belton 10; no changes. Independence, last report, 129, present 139; 3 baptized, 1 received by letter [Error of 6.—Eds.]. Wyandotte, last report, 19; no changes; 16 resident, 3 non-resident. Holden, no report.

The resignation of F. C. Warnky as one of the building committee was accepted; also, as president of the district, and a vote of thanks tendered him for his services. Bro. J. J. Kaster was elected president in his stead, and F. Campbell to fill vacancy in the building committee.

Licenses were granted to W. P. Brown (Elder), Henry Scarciff (Priest), and a letter to F. M. Sheeby, non-resident member of Kansas City branch now disorganized.

The Bishop's Agent was appointed Trustee in trust for the Independence District, to receive the title of the Church lot and all other property belonging to the Independence District.

Sunday Services: Prayer meeting at 9 o'clock, J. J. Kaster presiding; preaching at 11 a. m. by F. C. Warnky; sacrament at 3 p. m.; preaching at 7:30 p. m. by Bro. J. V. L. Sherwood.

The Independence Sunday School reported. Adjourned to meet at Independence, at 2 p. m. August 20th, 1880.

PHILADELPHIA DISTRICT.

A conference was held at Philadelphia, Pa., convening May 23d, 1880; John Stone, president; J. A. Stewart acting secretary, in the absence of Bro. Wm. H. Brown.

Branch Reports:—Philadelphia 50 members; Hornerstown 19; Brooklyn not reported.

Elders William Small, J. W. Chalfant, J. A. Stewart, John Stone reported in person, and Joseph Squires and B. O. Herbert by letter.

Resolved that the president of the Brooklyn Branch be requested to notify all the Elders of that branch to show cause why they did not report to this conference, as per resolution of last conference, the secretary to notify Bro. Squires.

That the license of Bro. Elias Lewis be received, and that his request to have his name taken off the Church record be referred to the branch to which he belongs.

Adjourned to meet at Hornerstown, N. J., at 10 a. m., Sunday, August 22d, 1880.

POTTAWATTAMIE DISTRICT.

A conference was held at Downsville, May 30th, 1880; C. G. McIntosh, president; Frederick Hansen, clerk.

Branch Reports.—North Star 56; 1 received. Crescent City 46. Council Bluffs 129; 2 expelled, 1 marriage.

Elders H. N. Hansen, Hans Hansen, R. M. Elvin and C. G. McIntosh reported.

Report of Andrew Hall, Bishop's Agent:—"On hand last report $2.95, received $20.65, total $23.60; paid to district clerk $2, to sister Caffall $14.72, total $16.72; on hand $6.88."

Financial Report of North Star Branch:—"Received from John Downs $1, Fred. Hansen 50 cts, John Carlile $2, Henry Gatrost $1, Hans Hansen

$2, Oliver Hansen $1; total $7.50, all paid to fr. M. Elvin."

A special conference was ordered to be held June 26th and 27th, to make preparation for the Semi-Annual Conference, which is to convene in September, in the vicinity of Council Bluffs, and the branch presidents were instructed to report to that special conference what their branches can and will do towards defraying the expenses of said conference.

H. N. Hansen was chosen to preside over the district the coming quarter.

Preaching by R. M. Elvin.

Adjourned to Wheeler's Grove, at 10 30 a. m., August 28th, 1880.

KEWANEE DISTRICT.

A conference convened at Henderson Grove, Knox county, Illinois, June 5th, 1880; J. A. Robinson, president; John Chisnall, secretary pro tem.

The secretary was instructed to keep from the record a resolution omitted from the action of last conference in regard to silencing Elders from missions, said resolution to stand rescinded. He was further instructed to hereafter enter the statistical reports of branches in full on the minutes.

Branch Reports.—Kewanee 109 members. Buffalo Prairie 85. Peoria 29. Millersburg 51. [No gains or losses reported.—Eds.]

Financial Reports.—Kewanee—Disbursements for six months, $255.23; balance on hand $4.75. Peoria—Disbursements for six months, $10.48; balance on hand 9 cents. Millersburg—Disbursements $32.50 for six months.

R. S. Benjamin, Bishop's Agent reported:—"Received during six months, $24.98; disbursed $24.50; balance 48 cents."

Elders T. F. Stafford and V. S. Patterson reported by letter, and J. M. Terry, D. S. Holmes, I. B. Larew, J. L. Terry, Wm. Grice, J. Chisnall and J. L. Adams reported in person.

Bro. Chisnall reported the Kewanee Branch as improving both in spiritual and temporal matters. Bro. J. M. Terry reported the Buffalo Prairie Branch as doing the best they could under existing trials. Bro. J. A. Robinson reports the Peoria Branch as in good condition. Bro. Robinson also reported the condition of the district, and regretted that he was not able to spend more time in district labors. He suggested that good would result if some one could be found who will spend all his time in the district as president.

Report of Kewanee Sabbath School:—"Number of scholars on record, 60; average attendance 45. Regular distribution of Zion's Hope 50 copies. Collections $15 82, disbursements $10.55, balance on hand $5.27. James Martin, superintendent; John Chisnall, assistant superintendent; Eliza France, secretary." Peoria Sabbath-School was reported by assistant superintendent, Sr. Gaither, in person, showing an increasing interest in Sabbath-school work in the branch.

Missions were appointed to T. E. Stafford, I. B. Larew, S. S. Adams, D. S. Holmes and J. L. Adams.

Resolved that the Bishop's Agent be requested to purchase a suitable book for conference minutes.

At 7;30 p. m., a prayer and fellowship meeting. Sunday: At 10:30 a. m., John Chisnall preached; at 2 p. m., J. A. Robinson preached, after which the sacrament was administered. Meeting in charge of D. S. Holmes. Evening, preaching by J. A. Robinson.

The conference was blessed with a unity of feeling throughout, and the preaching was listened to attentively by the people.

Adjourned to Buffalo Prairie, Aug. 21st, 1880.

WYOMING VALLEY DISTRICT.

Miscellaneous.

INVITATION.

To the Saints in the String Prairie and Nauvoo District, and the Saints in Eastern Iowa District.

I hereby extend to you the compliments of the Kewanee District, and invite you to meet us at our fall conference, to be held at Buffalo Prairie, Illinois, Saturday, August 21st, at 10 o'clock a. m.; as many of the Saints wish a reunion, and many a first acquaintance. This is a grand opportunity for meeting together. Many of you live on the river, both up and down and could come very cheaply by boat. Buffalo Prairie Conference boasts that it is the largest gathering of Saints and friends of any quarterly conference in the Church and as to numbers on Sunday, will lead the Annual Conference. The Saints are hospitable, the church and grounds beautifully located, and we promise you a good time. Come to New Boston by boat, take the Galva and Keithsburg road to Joy, a short distance from New Boston. The brethren will meet the different trains on Friday and Saturday morning to conduct you to the homes of the Saints. Get up excursion parties from Keokuk, Montrose, Burlington, Buffalo, Davenport and Rock Island. I also extend a personal invitation to Bro. Jobe Brown to be present. The Kewanee Saints are also requested to muster in force and come with teams, as also all the branches in the district. Let us have a jubilee. Remember the date, Saturday, August 21st, at the fall of the moon. Very respectfully, yours in gospel bonds,
J. A. ROBINSON, Pres. Dist.
PEORIA, ILLS.

DES MOINES DISTRICT.

Two-day meetings will be held in the Des Moines District, at the following times and places:

July 17th and 18th, near Pleasantville, Marion county; 24th and 25th, at Taylor's Grove, Warren county; 31st and Aug. 1st, at Des Moines City. The first session will commence on Saturday, at 2 30 p. m. Basket-dinner, on Sabbath. Hope there will be a general attendance by the Saints of our District. Any traveling Elders coming this way will please call, and their help will be graciously received, and we will send them on their way rejoicing.

Bro. Etzenhouser and I hold a two-days meeting south of Marshalltown, Iowa, on the 26th and 27th of June. This is an entirely new place, and in the neighborhood of Bro. B. Brush, an old-time Saint.
I. N. WHITE.

WANTED.

Bro. George Masters wishes to say through the Herald that he is in need of a housekeeper. And if there is a sister in the Church who is a widow without children, or with two or three children, and a good housekeeper for a farmer, that would like such a position; or would marry, he would like to correspond with them at their convenience. Address, George Masters, Newman's Grove, Madison county, Nebraska.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice.

BORN.

MATHES.—At Nebraska City, Nebraska, June 22d, 1880, to Bro. David and Sr. Christiana S. Mathes, a son. Mother and son doing well.

ANDES.—Elmira, Mitchell county, Kansas, June 25th, 1880, to Bro. and Sr. S. C. Andes, a daughter. Mother and child doing well.

MARRIED.

ADAMSON—ALLEN.—By J. P. Brown of Oakland, California, Isaac Newton Adamson, and Belle Allen, both of Petaluma, California.

All is well as a marriage bell,
Although the time has come,
When Newton came, his bride to claim,
The two are now made one.
May Newton protect and cherish her,
And love through future life,
And Belle forever be to him,
A true and loving wife.

COPELAND—HALLIDAY.—At the residence of the bride's parents near Samison, Shelby county, Iowa, on Thursday, June 24th, 1880, by Elder P. Cadwell, Mr. Isaac J. Copeland to Miss Mary E. Halliday, daughter of Bro. Henry Halliday. About seventy-five friends and relatives of the contracting parties were gathered to witness the ceremony and partake of the bounteous feast prepared for the occasion.

DIED.

COOPER.—Andrew Cooper died June 2d, 1880, aged 78 years. He was the father of sister Matilda Burnham of Tuscola county, Michigan. He never heard the gospel preached in its purity.

ROUSCH.—At Morgan Centre, Ohio, June 23d, 1880, sister Catherine Rousch; who was born in Gallia county, Ohio, July 22d, 1839. Funeral services conducted by Elder Thomas Matthews, text, Job 19: 25-26.

GOODWIN.—Near Crockett, Texas, May 5th, 1880, by falling from a heavily loaded wagon and being run over by the same, Zachary, son of Bro. Burrell Goodwin, aged six years old. After he was hurt, Bro. Henry Grim and Goodwin carried the little lad in a blanket nearly two miles to the house of a Mr. Gossett; just before getting there he asked how far it was, Bro. Grim answered that the house was in sight; he then said "I wish grandma and sister were there." He did not live more than a minute or so after reaching the house. Services by Bro. H. Grim.

SMITH.—At Delaven, Clay county, Kansas, 1 o'clock a. m., June 6th, 1880, Emma Ethel, only child of Bro. Mahlon and Sr. Mary Smith. Aged 1 year, 2 months and 2 days. Funeral services same day, 4 o'clock p. m., by Elder Alma Kent.

"On her pure and guileless breast,
We folded her little hands,
And gently closed her eyes in death,
To open in that better land.
Oh! may we live that when we die,
To us it may be given,
To meet our Ethel in the skies
And dwell with her in heaven."
H. E. HARDER.

RESTORATION OF THE GOSPEL.

AIR.—"I hear thy welcome voice."

The glorious days have come,
By prophets long foretold;
The Church of Christ appears again,
Like as in days of old.

CHORUS.—

Come with honest hearts,
Hear the glorious news,
Come, ye nations near and far,
Accept the gospel truths.

In darkness we have been,
For lo, these many years,
Until the Lord in latter days
Did chose the promised seed.—Cho.

This kingdom of the Lord,
Set up in latter days,
The ensign from the mountain's top,
Proclaims Jehovah's praise.—Cho.

Rejoice, ye Saints, rejoice,
The glorious day is near,
When Christ, himself, will be revealed,
To reign a thousand year.—Cho.

Future Punishment.

"Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves."—2 Cor. 13: 5.

This advice would never have been given if man were not prone to wander from the truth. It is as applicable in these days as in the days of Paul. I wish to examine the scriptures in regard to the above named subject, and see if some who are in our own ranks have erred or not. If I am wrong I wish to be set right. I claim to be a searcher after the truth, not to dictate what is true doctrine. But in my search, and in the statement of my own convictions of what is truth, I expect to run counter to the opinions of some who perhaps are better, wiser, and more competent to decide on what is the truth than myself; but at the same time, I wish to be heard in my view of the question. I expect to quote only from the Inspired Translation of the New Testament, Doctrine and Covenants, and the Book of Mormon. I expect to prove from these three books that there will be some who will never be saved with any kind of salvation, but on the contrary will be lost forever and ever.

"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned."—Mark 16: 15.

One condition is put squarely in opposition to the other; one is saved, and the other damned or not saved, therefore lost. We particularly understand here that the unbeliever is damned, not saved. The Celestial, Terrestrial, and the Testalial glories I understand to belong to those who will be saved, and those glories will be given to them according as they are conditioned to receive them. We read in Matt. 13: 29:

"Let both grow together until the harvest, and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the wheat into my barn; and the tares are bound in bundles to be burned." 39th verse. "The harvest is the end of the world, or the destruction of the wicked." 41st verse. "As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire, so shall it be in the end of this world, or the destruction of the wicked."

We see no hint here of any kind of a salvation for the wicked, but they are to be destroyed, burned in the fire, damped, or condemned, they all mean the same thing being synonymous or interchangeable terms.

"Again the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind, which, when it was full, they drew to land, and gathered the good into vessels; but cast the bad away. So shall it be at the end of the world."—48th and 49th verses.

Cast the bad away; they were not saved then in any sense of the word, condemned as worthless. They put the good fish into vessels, (plural) and it is to be so at the end of the world, different qualities of fish are put into different vessels, (glories as they are found worthy to receive). I sometimes hear the quotation from 1 Tim. 4: 10; "For therefore we labor and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, who is the Savior of all men especially of those that believe," and claim that as God is the Savior of all men that consequently all men, every one without any exception will be saved. But if we are to put so strict a construction as that upon that passage, it will squarely contradict other passages that are as plain as that. How then are we to harmonize this passage with others? God has given a plan whereby all mankind may be saved if they will; either in this state of existence or another. I do not understand that man can be saved except by obedience to that plan, and that is the gospel plan. "For there is none other name given under heaven whereby we must be saved." We believe that some will receive the gospel in the prison, and that man is a free agent in the prison as well as in this life, because if they were not, Peter was wrong in 1st Peter 4: 6, when he says that, "Because of this is the gospel preached to them who are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live in the spirit according to the will of God."

What then becomes of those who reject the gospel in the prison? Let us examine John the Revelator a little; before we close with his testimony we may get light on it:

"Blessed and holy are they who have part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power. And the devil that deceived them (the nations) was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night forever and ever."—Rev 20: 6, 10.

The false prophet. I have yet to hear of the prophet, true or false, that was not a human being some time or other. Then we have an instance of one person whose place is in the lake of fire and brimstone, in the same condemnation and will be tormented with the devil and the beast forever and ever; no cessation, no let up from that punishment forever and ever. This seems terrible to us. But has not God said so? And who shall disannul it? We read 12th verse: "And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the Book of Life; and the dead were judged out of the things which were written in the books, according to their works." 13th verse. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged every man according to their works." 14th verse, "And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire, this is the second death." 15th verse, "And whosoever was not found written in the Book of Life, was cast into the lake of fire." Here we find that all are to be judged according to their works, and those that were not found written in the Book of Life were cast into the lake of fire. Then these surely are not saved for they are condemned.

We read in the context that the heavens and the earth had already fled away at the time of this judgment; no other judgment was to follow it for any purpose that I have read of, and not one word here would in the least imply that there was to be any reprieve from this judgment. Then it must be final. Again we read in Rev. 21: 7: "He that overcometh shall inherit all things and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." But on the other side of the picture we find, 8th verse, "But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and sorcerers, and idolaters and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone; which is the second death." They and those others that were sentenced to the same place are all in the same condemnation, and are consequently to be tormented day and night forever and ever.

I might stop here and consider the case made out that I started to prove, that is; that there are some that never will be saved. But I wish to have more than one witness, for, "By the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established." Let us now examine a few passages in the Doctrine and Covenants. We will first read, 28: 12, "But behold I say unto you, that I, the Lord God, gave unto Adam and unto his seed, that they should not die as to the temporal death, until I, the Lord God, should send forth angels to declare unto them repentance and redemption through faith on the name of mine Only Begotten Son; and thus did I, the Lord God, appoint unto man the days of his probation; that by his natural death he might be raised in immortality unto eternal life, even as many as would believe, and they that believe not unto eternal damnation, for they can not be redeemed from their spiritual fall because they repent not, for they love darkness rather than light, and their deeds are evil, and they receive their wages of whom they list to obey."

Having listed to obey the devil will God give them their wages? Not according to that. But we have seen that God will place them in the same condemnation with the devil; and being with him forever and ever, the devil having all power over them can give them their wages. This seems clear.

"Stop," says one, "you are altogether too fast. Though they can not be redeemed, or forgiven they can pay the debt. Do we not read so in Matt. 5 : 27, 28? and Matt. 18 : 23, 34?"

No, my brother. I do not understand it so. In both those quotations I understand the reference to be to those who are cast into prison, or hell. Well, we have read that hell gives up its dead to be judged, and certain ones are sentenced to the lake of fire, to be tormented day and night forever and ever. Then those who can pay the debt must do so in the prison where they are to be preached to, to obey or not as they may list to obey, so that they can receive their wages accordingly.

We now proceed to Sec 76 : 4, 23 line :

"And this is the gospel, the glad tidings which the voice out of the heavens bore record unto us, that he came into the world, even Jesus to be crucified for the world, and to bear the sins of the world, and to sanctify the world, and to cleanse it from all unrighteousness; that through him all might be saved whom the Father had put into his power, and made by him; who glorifies the Father, and saves all the works of his hands, except those sons of perdition who deny the Son after the Father hath revealed him. He saves all except them; they shall go away into everlasting punishment, which is endless punishment, which is eternal punishment, to reign with the devil in eternity, where their worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched, which is their torment, and the end thereof, neither the place thereof, nor their torment, no man knoweth; neither was it revealed, neither is, neither will it be revealed unto man, except to them who are made partakers thereof."

Here is evidence that some will never be saved, but are to reign with the devil in eternity, and the fire is not to be quenched, thus showing that it is at the general judgment they will receive their final sentence. What can be plainer than the above, that some are never saved. The Son saves all except those sons of perdition &c. And if the Son does not save them who does, when there is no other Savior but him? Moreover we learn at the beginning of this quotation that this doctrine is the gospel. Let us then be careful what we teach lest we be found teaching another gospel or a perverted gospel.

We now proceed to Sec. 85 : 5; 4th line, "For he who is not able to abide the law of a celestial kingdom, can not abide a celestial glory, and he who can not abide the law of a terrestrial kingdom can not abide a terrestrial glory; he who can not abide the law of a telestial kingdom can not abide a telestial glory; therefore he is not meet for a kingdom of glory. Therefore he must abide (not saved in) a kingdom which is not a kingdom of glory." What kind of a kingdom is it, if it is not a kingdom of glory? As we have seen in Sec. 76 : 4, it is the kingdom of the devil, after he is cast into the lake of fire.

We are now prepared to understand what follows after the resurrection to the three glories spoken of in Sec. 85 : 6; last part, "And they who remain shall also be quickened; nevertheless, they shall return again to their own place to enjoy that which they are willing to receive, because they were not willing to enjoy that they might have received." We learn by the context that all are to be quickened; some to the celestial glory; some to the terrestrial glory, and some to the telestial glory, while from the text we learn that those who remain are to be quickened and return to their own place. Where is that? We have seen that they are to be condemned to reign with the devil in eternity. That is their kingdom that is without glory. I should think so, for they are to be tormented day and night forever and ever. I have no desire to enjoy that. If this is being saved, what is being condemned?

Let us now turn to the Book of Mormon and see if we can glean some additional proofs that some will never be saved. The first witness I call upon is the aged Lehi as we find his words recorded in 2d Nephi 1 : 4; 7th line. "And now that my soul might have joy in you, and that my heart might leave this world with gladness because of you; that I might not be brought down with grief and sorrow to the grave, arise from the dust, my sons, and be men, and be determined in one mind, and in one heart, united in all things, that you may not come down into captivity; that ye may not be cursed with a sore cursing; and also, that ye may not incur the displeasure of a just God upon you, unto the destruction, yea, the eternal destruction of both soul and body." Lehi evidently did not believe that all mankind would be saved, or he would not have made so positive a remark as that I feel sure. He evidently thought that if they were condemned to the lake of fire and brimstone at the last great day of accounts that they never would be saved; he considered it the destruction of soul and body, and I think so too. 5th verse, "And by the law no flesh is justified; or, by the law, men are cut off. Yea, by the temporal law they were cut off; and also by the spiritual law, they perish from that which is good, and become miserable forever." The temporal law I understand to be the law of Moses; and the spiritual law I understand to be the gospel law. Disobedience to the temporal law brought death to the body. Or we might say that disobedience by Adam to God's first law to him brought death to the human race. Either view of that will do; but I understand that disobedience to the gospel law brings spiritual death; thus they become miserable forever. 6th verse, "And because of the intercession for all, all men came unto God; wherefore, they stand in the presence of him, to be judged of him, according to the truth and holiness which is in him. Wherefore, the ends of the law which the Holy One hath given unto the inflicting of the punishment which is affixed, which punishment that is affixed is in opposition to that of the happiness which is affixed, to answer the ends of the atonement; for it must needs be that there is an opposition in all things." Here we find that the punishment and the happiness are squarely in opposition to each other. Then by this view of the case we understand that one is coequal with the other. If one ends, so does the other; if one lasts forever and ever, the other does the same. I can come to no other conclusion in the premises. 8th verse, "And I, Lehi, according to the things which I have read, must needs suppose that an angel of God, according to that which is written, had fallen from heaven; wherefore he became a devil, having sought that which was evil before God. And because he had fallen from heaven, and had become miserable forever, he sought also the misery of all mankind, * * * for he seeketh that all men might be miserable like unto himself." When we quoted from Rev. 21 : 7, 8, we found that some were placed in the same condemnation, and consequently would be like miserable with him. 2d Nephi 6 : 4, 7th line, "And this death of which I have spoken, which is the spiritual death, shall deliver up its dead; which spiritual death is hell; wherefore, death and hell must deliver up their dead, and hell must deliver up its captive spirits, and the grave must deliver up its captive bodies, and the bodies and the spirits of men will be restored, one to the other; and it is by the power of the resurrection of the Holy One of Israel." 5th verse, "O, how great the plan of our God! For on the other hand, the paradise of God must deliver up the spirits of the righteous, and the grave deliver up the body of the righteous, and the spirit and the body is restored to itself again, and all men become incorruptable, and immortal, and they are living souls, having a perfect knowledge like unto us, in the flesh; save it be that our knowledge shall be perfect; wherefore we shall have a perfect knowledge of our guilt, and our uncleanness, and our nakedness; and the righteous shall have a perfect knowledge of their enjoyment, and their righteousness, being clothed with purity, yea even with the robe of righteousness." 6th verse: "And it shall come to pass that when all men shall have passed from this first death unto life, inasmuch as they have become immortal, they must appear before the judgment seat of the Holy One of Israel; and then cometh the judgment; and then must they be judged according to the holy judgment of God, and assuredly as the Lord liveth, for the Lord God hath spoken it and it is his eternal word, which can not pass away, that they who are righteous shall be righteous still, and they who are filthy shall be filthy still; wherefore they who are filthy are the devil and his angels; and they shall go away into everlasting fire, prepared for them, and their torment is as a lake of fire and brimstone whose flames ascendeth up forever and ever; and has no end." That is, the torment has no end.

Who are the angels to the devil? Let us see. We have found that there is an exact opposition of the happiness of the righteous to the misery of the wicked; then as they who obtain the first resurrection are equal to the angels, and are as the angels of God, they really are the angels of God; then we may reasonably conclude that the wicked that John the Revelator say have their part in the lake of fire are the angels of the devil, and as we can discover no law by which they can be redeemed from that condemnation, we must conclude that they remain filthy still. Let us read the 9th verse:

"And if they will not repent, and believe in his name, and be baptized in his name, and endure to the end, they must be damned; for the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel, hath spoken it; wherefore he has given a law; and where there is no law given, there is no punishment."

Well, we read here that certain ones must be damned on certain conditions; if they are damned that is just the opposite of saved. Let us read further in this 9th verse.

"And where there is no punishment there is no condemnation; and where there is no condemnation the mercies of the Holy One of Israel have claim upon them, because of the atonement."

If the mercies of the Holy One of Israel have claim upon all men, why was it especially specified those mercies have claim on particular ones? Taking the above passage to guide me, I am bound to conclude that the mercies of God have no claim upon one some of the human race. Who are they? Read again. "Where there is no condemnation, the mercies of the Holy One of Israel have claim." Then those who shall stand condemned at the judgment bar of God in the last great day, have no claim upon his mercy; but must remain filthy still, being the sons of perdition. We now come to the 12th verse, last part:

"And, in fine, we unto all those who die in their sins: for they shall return to God, and behold his face, and remain in their sins."

Just so; they remain filthy still.

We will now read a few words of King Benjamin. Book of Mosiah, 1:16:

"And now, I have spoken the words which the Lord God hath commanded me. And thus saith the Lord: They shall stand as a bright testimony against this people, at the judgment day; whereof, they shall be judged every man, according to his works, whether they be good, or whether they be evil, and if they be evil, they are consigned to an awful view of their own guilt and abominations, which doth cause them to shrink from the presence of the Lord into a state of misery and endless torment, from whence they can no more return: therefore they have drunk damnation to their own souls. * * * Therefore mercy could have claim on them no more forever."

Here then we find that they can never leave that torment, and mercy can never have claim upon them forever. Now, if this is being saved, what is being damned? Brethren of the universal-salvation persuasion, think a moment and "prove yourselves, whether ye be in the faith;" that one faith that was once delivered to the saints, even the saints of former days. What stronger, plainer language is it possible to use to impress upon the minds of men this fact, that some would never be saved, and it commences with, "Thus saith the Lord," and the last line in the verse is, "Thus hath the Lord commanded me. Amen."

But we will continue our search after the truth of the matter. Mosiah 2:3, last part:

"But I say unto you, O man, whosoever doeth this, the same hath great cause to repent: and except he repenteth of that which he hath done, he perisheth forever, and hath no interest in the kingdom of God."

Well, then, if he has no interest in the kingdom of God, his part is just in the opposite kingdom, for those who are saved will be saved in some part of the kingdom of God, one of the glories, either the celestial, terrestrial or telestial.

Hear the prophet Abinadi. Mosiah 8:8:

"And now it came to pass that after Abinadi had spoken these words, he stretched forth his hand and said, The time shall come when all shall see the salvation of the Lord; when every nation, kindred, tongue, and people shall see eye to eye, and shall confess before God that his judgments are just; and then shall the wicked be cast out, and they have cause to howl, and weep, and wail, and gnash their teeth; and this because they would not hearken unto the voice of the Lord; for they are carnal and devilish, and the devil has power over them; yea, even that old serpent that did beguile our first parents, which was the cause of their fall; which was the cause of all mankind becoming carnal, sensual, devilish, knowing evil from good, subjecting themselves to the devil. Thus all mankind were lost; and behold, they would have been endlessly lost, were it not that God redeemed his people from their lost and fallen state. But remember that he that persists in his own carnal nature, and goes on in the ways of sin and rebellion against God, remaineth in his fallen state, and the devil hath all power over him. Therefore he is as though there was no redemption made, being an enemy to God, and also is the devil an enemy to God."

Abinadi says that all shall see the salvation of God, but he expressly says some will never receive such salvation, but they will be as though there was no redemption made, but will be enemies to God, and that the devil is also an enemy to God, thus putting them in the same category. Very suitable to each other, as they are to receive their wages from him, because they listed to obey him, and that is the reason he has all power over them. And again, as they are not to be redeemed in the redemption the Savior made for his people, how is it possible for them to be saved? Can they save themselves? Certainly not; for if they could save themselves, then all could save themselves, and there would have been no need for the Lord of glory to have left the realms of the blessed and suffer the shame, and ignominy, and scorn of the world to be heaped upon his devoted head, and at last die a shameful death to do what man could do for himself.

We now come to the book of Nephi 11:7, 6th line:

"And he did expound all things, even from the beginning until the time that he should come in his glory; yea, even all things which should come upon the face of the earth, even until the elements should melt with fervent heat, and the earth should be rolled together as a scroll, and the heavens and the earth should pass away, and even unto the great and last day, when all people, and all kindreds, and all nations and tongues shall stand before God to be judged of their works, whether they be good, or whether they be evil; if they be good, to the resurrection of everlasting life; and if they be evil, to the resurrection of damnation, being on a parallel, the one on the one hand, and the other on the other hand, according to the mercy, and the justice, and the holiness which is in Christ, who was before the world began."

Nephi says that the resurrection to everlasting life and the resurrection to damnation are on a parallel with each other. Now this being the case, let us reason. If it be possible that all those fearful and unbelieving, and others that John the Revelator speaks of, that are to have their part in the lake of fire, are to come out from there and be saved, then it is equally possible that those that received the celestial glory can be taken out and placed in some other glory, or, those that have received the telestial glory may be placed in some other glory, and nothing would be permanent in the judgments that God would make at that great day of settlement of all accounts. The judgments that God renders then will be just, and He can not change, neither will his decisions that are rendered then change; but if one can be changed, then all his decisions are liable to be changed. Book of Nephi 12:3, 26th line:

"Verily I say unto you, that ye are built upon my gospel; therefore ye shall call whatsoever things ye do call in my name; therefore if ye call upon the Father for the church, if it be in my name, the Father will hear you; and if it be so that the church is built upon my gospel, then will the Father show forth his own works in it; but if it be not built upon my gospel, and is built upon the works of men, or upon the works of the devil, verily, I say unto you, they have joy in their works for a season, and by and by the end cometh, and they are hewn down and cast into the fire, from whence there is no return, for their works do follow them, for it is because of their works they are hewn down."

We understand from this that those who are cast into the fire at the end, are the same that John the Revelator says are to be cast into the lake of fire and brimstone after the general judgment; because those that are confined in the prison, or hell, are to come out from there to be judged; but in this case Jesus says, they are not to return "from whence;" i. e., from the fire they are condemned to. This is very emphatic that they can not come out of the place they are condemned to. How then can they be saved? To make it, if possible, more positive, the language is repeated in the next verse. Fourth verse, 4th line:

"And he that endureth not unto the end, the same is he that is also hewn down and cast into the fire, from whence they can no more return, because of the justice of the Father, and this is the word which he hath given unto the children of men."

What right then have the children of men to say that they can return (be saved) and thus render the justice of God nugatory? Clearly none.

Let us now sum up the evidence, and see what is proved. 1. That those that are saved are in opposition to those that are damned; then certainly they are not saved if they are damned. 2. That those that are damned are to be burned. I understand that those who are saved will be saved from the burning;

3. The good fish are put into vessels, (plural, signifying the different kinds of salvation), but the bad are cast away; not saved at all we observe. 4. We have proved that the devil, and the false prophet, and those whose names are not written in the Book of Life at the general judgment are all in the same condemnation in the same place, and that they are to be tormented day and night forever and ever. John also specifies what kind of sinners it will be that will receive that great condemnation, i.e., "The fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and sorcerers, and idolators and all liars." They are to have their part in the lake of fire; and as that is to take place after the final judgment, and as we have no prophecy that reaches beyond that time, how can it be said that they shall be ever able to come out of that place of torment. That is the part they are to have. 5. We find that they can not be redeemed from their spiritual fall, because they repent not. 6. Jesus saves all the works of his hands that the Father hath put in his power, except the ones that deny the Son after the Father hath revealed him. 7. Lehi warns his sons not to incur the displeasure of a just God, that they may not be destroyed both soul and body. He also tells them that if they perish from that which is good they become miserable forever. 8. We also learn at the same time that the happiness of the saved is exactly in opposition to the misery of those that are damned; if one has an end so does the other. 9. Those who are righteous at the final judgment are to remain righteous, and those who are filthy then are to remain filthy (wicked). Neither party will ever change after that time. 10. That the mercies of God have no claim upon those that are damned, no not forever; and they can never return, or King Benjamin was mistaken, and he said that the Lord said so. 11. The devil is to have all power over those in condemnation with him. Then he will certainly keep them there where the mercies of God will never reach them. 12. We discover there is a parallel between the happiness of the saved and the misery of the damned, the one on the one hand, and the other on the other hand; one is as great and enduring as the other. 13. Jesus said that those that will be hewn down and cast into the fire can never return, because of the justice of the Father; and that this is the word that he hath given to the children of men. Query. Has God given any word to the children of men that is contrary to that sentence? If so, which is true? Will God contradict his own word? Let us live by every word (doctrine) that proceedeth out of the mouth of God, and let all fanciful theories go. The rod of iron is the only sure guide in the road to our home. Reason is well in its place and it is a great endowment, but God never gave us reason to use in opposition to his word.

There are some who try to reason in this manner: If God would condemn the children of men to a punishment of fire forever, he is not a God of justice, but of cruelty. Such a God would be a monster of cruelty, and we are taught that he is a God of love and mercy. Those who reason so, forget that God does not see as man sees, and that man's judgment is fallible, and God's judgment is infallible, and we all ought to remember that God will judge righteous judgment; and because he has told us in his word how that judgment will be rendered, we have no right to find fault with it and call our Father hard names. After his judgments are rendered all mankind will acknowledge that God is right. All the thoughts and the motives that actuate mankind will be known, all will be brought to light in that day.

Social Extravagance.

It is the opinion of competent observers that social extravagance prevails to a greater extent at present than during any previous period in the history of the Republic. Common attention will convince one that the evil is keeping pace with the revival of business prosperity, and that all classes of society are more or less permeated by it. Splendid equipage and dress, the costliest furnishings of house and lands, ostentatious displays of wealth, are faults of the rich; expensive imitation, the danger of the poor. The old rule of keeping expenses inside of the income-account is but seldom thought of. Released from the restraints of the long business depression, people are rushing wildly into expenditures, neither thinking nor caring for the day of reckoning. There is not a department in household economy where the old maxims of self-denial and simplicity are allowed to assert themselves. The giving of a social dinner, unless it is accompanied by a resplendence of taste and fashion, is more likely than not to be criticized as ill-bred and vulgar. Women and children must be dressed with a splendor that bespeaks a court instead of the plain and solid character of the old Republic. The evil is not confined to the rich. The poor, whose earnings at best are small, find or invent means for imitating the extravagance of the higher classes. The moral enervation of this course is disastrous. Poverty has never done so much injury in the world as unwise and lavish expenditure of money. A people struggling for existence will be stronger, morally more wholesome, than one surrounded with every luxury that wealth can control. Not but that money, when rightly used, is one of the most beneficent agencies in the world, for it is. But if it is to sink men in luxury it is a fatal possession. What is needed more than anything else is the restoration of the old habit and practice of economy. The founders of the nation were rigidly plain and simple in their course of life, and imitation of their example must be urged in every way and shape. The time has come to call a halt in the social extravagance of the period. Greater simplicity must be had, less display made, and the virtue of economy inculcated and practiced.

THE OFFICE OF SORROW.—There is some thing about deep sorrow that tends to wake up the child feeling in all of us. A man of giant intellect becomes like a child when a great grief smites him, or when a grave opens at his fireside. I have seen a stout sailor—who laughed at the tempest—come home when he was sick and let his old mother nurse him as if he was a baby. He was willing to lean on the arms that never failed him. So a Christian in the time of trouble is brought to this child feeling. He wants to lean somewhere, to talk to somebody, to have somebody love him and hold him up. One great purpose in affliction is to bring us down to the everlasting Arms. What new strength and peace it gives us to feel them underneath us! we know that far as we may have sunk we can not go any farther. Faith is just clinging to those arms, and nothing more.

Checking Perspiration.

A BOSTON merchant, in "lending a hand" on board of one of his ships on a windy day, found himself at the end of an hour and a half pretty well exhausted and perspiring freely. He sat down to rest. The cool wind from the sea was delightful, and, engaging in conversation, time passed faster than he was aware of. In attempting to rise, he found he was unable to do so without assistance. He was taken home and put to bed, where he remained two years; and for a long time afterwards, could only hobble about with the aid of a crutch. Less exposures than this have, in constitutions not so vigorous, resulted in inflammation of the lungs, "pneumonia," ending in death in less than a week, or causing tedious rheumatisms, to be a source of torture for a lifetime. Multitudes of lives would be saved every year, and an incalculable amount of human suffering would be prevented, if parents would begin to explain to their children, at the age of three or four years, the danger which attends cooling off too quickly after exercise, and the importance of not standing still after exercise, or work, or play, or of remaining exposed to a wind, or of sitting at open window or door, or pulling off any garment, even the hat or bonnet, while in a heat. It should be remembered by all, that a cold never comes without a cause, and that in four times out of five, it is the result of leaving off exercise too suddenly or of remaining still in the wind, or in a cooler atmosphere than that in which the exercise has been taken.

The colder the weather the more need is there, in coming into the house, to keep on all the clothing, except india-rubber or damp shoes, for several minutes afterwards. Very few rooms are heated higher than 65° when the thermometer is within 20° of zero, while the temperature of the body is always 98°, in health; so that if a man comes into a room which is 30° colder than his body, he will rapidly cool off, too much so often, even if the external clothing is not removed.

It is not necessary that the perspiration be visible; any exercise which excites the circulation beyond what is natural, causes a proportionate increase of perspiration, the sudden checking of which induces dangerous diseases and certain death every day.—Hall's Journal of Health

COUNSEL.—Meditate daily on the things of eternity; and by the grace of God do something daily which thou wouldst wish to have done when the judgment comes. Eternity fades quickly from sight, amid the mists and clouds of this world. Heaven is above our heads, yet we see it not with eyes fixed on the earth.—Dr. Pusey.

Calvinism Repudiated.

A FEW weeks ago the Rev. Myron Adams, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church of Rochester, N. Y., delivered a sermon which created no little stir in religious circles throughout the State. The sentiments uttered were regarded as extremely radical coming from any quarter, but emanating from the pastor of one of the most prominent Congregational churches in the country, it was something like a bomb-shell in the camp of the Evangelical Christians. At the time of its delivery a brief synopsis was telegraphed by the Associated Press. The local press endeavored to procure the manuscript in order to give the full text, but the preacher was unwilling at the time to have it published, as he deprecated the excitement and opposition it would be likely to stir up among the evangelical clergy of Rochester and elsewhere.

But notwithstanding his reticence in this respect the excitement has been very great and widespread. Letters have poured in from all sections of the country, the great majority of which contain assurances of profound sympathy with and thankfulness for such a vigorous and outspoken utterance.

The Tribune's Rochester correspondent had seen only the brief synopsis of the sermon in the papers (not being present to hear it delivered) until a few days ago, when he was permitted to read the original manuscript, and he begs leave to say that it so far exceeds the very meagre report, both in power and radicalism, that he at once determined to secure the sermon if possible for publication. After some persuasion and argument Mr. Adams consented.

The sermon made an exceedingly profound sensation, and since its delivery has formed the theme of numerous discourses by parties in Rochester and elsewhere. The Rev. Henry Austice, D. D., of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, of Rochester, and the Rev. Edward P. Adams, of the First Presbyterian Church, of Dunkirk, N. Y., brother of the Rev. Myron Adams, have also renounced the Calvinistic belief in the doctrine of hell and eternal punishment.

Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil.—Rom. 12:9.

If a man should profess to have a character of love and at the same time should practice manifest cruelties, we might well conclude that his love is simulated and unreal. His acts speak louder than his words; acts always do speak louder than words.

Suppose we say of God that He is holy, just, and good; and then declare in unmistakable terms that it is in his heart to practice cruelties,—cruelties that are even of infinite extent and duration. Virtually, then we say of cruelties that they are holy, just and good. But in that way we deify something that is evil. Now we are authoritatively instructed by the apostle not to deify evil, but to abhor it, and no matter what place it may have in popular thought or religious literature, all the same are we to abhor it.

A question now much discussed pro and con is this: Is Christianity in a state of decadence? It is easy for the assailants of Christianity to say "Yes," and it is easy for the apologist of Christianity to say "No; and it is considered not difficult to gather statistics in support of either answer. It can be most eloquently asserted that Christianity was never in so healthy and prosperous a condition as it is to-day. But the notion has taken some hold of many thoughtful people, in the church and out of it, that such eloquence is a sort of whistleing to keep up courage in the dark. Figures gathered from a partisan standpoint are very dubious means of enlightenment, and people suspect that there is more rose-water than arithmetic or substantial fact in those statements, so commonly and even earnestly made, that Christianity as now expounded is marching steadily and swiftly to the conquest of the world. While, on the other hand, the assailants of Christianity are credited with an animosity toward it which strains their calculations out of anything like true proportions.

Let us first premise that there is nothing shocking (necessarily) or anti-Scriptural, or which need offend or stumble any earnest Christian, in the idea of the decadence of Christianity, as its doctrines are now popularly taught. Indeed it is prophetically announced in the New Testament that the day—or the time of moral and intellectual light, or, in other words, the Kingdom of God—shall not come except there be an apostasy first, which falling away or apostasy seems to have occurred very early in the Christian history.

Moreover, let it once be settled in mind that genuine decadence can, under the wise Divine government, only happen to that which is unsound and untrue, inherently, and all cause of apprehension is removed. If any Church or other institution is suffering by reason of apostasy from its original right principles, its decadence follows as a matter of course,—and its decadence is its relapse from an error, giving thus a very desirable opportunity for reformation in itself. Now, such a decadence, in the opinion of many in the Church and out of it, is at present in progress.

Says Edward White,—whose book, "Life in Christ," has made him celebrated in both hemispheres, and who has been mainly instrumental in formulating the newly named doctrine of "Conditional Immortality": "Those whose professions enable them to acquire ample information on the state of opinion in Europe are unanimous in affirming the existence of a widespread unsettlement of the very foundations of religious belief." And Canon Liddon, a man more widely known, says: "Never, since the first ages of the Gospel, was fundamental truth denied and denounced so largely and with such passionate animosity as is the case at this moment in each of the most civilized nations."

This state of things may be accounted for in one or two ways: First, the world is always hostile to truth,—has a deep and unconquerable aversion to it, gendered by inborn depravity of nature. The human heart hates God and goodness, loves darkness and sin, and every evil way, and that is the cause of the difficulty. Or, second, the cause of the decline is to be found in the Church. Stephen declared to Israel at the time of his martyrdom: "Ye do always resist the Holy Spirit," so locating the trouble in the very bosom of Israel, which was the "orthodox" Church of that period, and therefore skepticism is not confined to the outer world, but it has invaded the Church, and the Church is honeycombed by it, and the Church is the cause of it outside its own limits.

Now it is the way with many to flatter themselves that all is well and moving on toward the expected victory, and in sugared phrase to say so. They are saying "Peace and safety," when the almost unanimous intelligence of the thoughtful in the world is disturbed. The most sagacious minds of all parties are united in the opinion that a revolution is impending which threatens the life of the Church, and it does not require extraordinary insight to discern that the cause is in the Church.

Were the Church pure in doctrine, and pure also, even to a moderate degree, in practice, it would be unassailable. Christendom as a whole, in its statements of belief and in its concurrent testimony of life, has presented to the world a Deity whose reputed character is not, according to the common sense of humanity, good. He is neither just nor merciful, and that is, as we may learn, the real stumbling-block.

And the Church has rigidly excluded all investigation of the matter, and all argument except upon one side, casting into the outer darkness of the "unevangeliicals" all who dared to seek to retrieve the character of God from the deep disgrace heaped upon it by its assumed friends.

"Many preachers of the gospel declare," says a clergyman of the Church of England, "that God will keep multitudes of his own creatures alive to all eternity for the sole purpose of torturing them, knowing perfectly well all the time that it can never do them one particle of good. Is the representation which this gives of the character of God to be accepted without discussion? Is it more injurious for men to try and love such a God, if they can, and, if they can not, to be driven into infidelity, or for them to inquire whether there may not be some mistake in the common interpretation of the four or five passages that are thought to attribute such an intention to the Creator?"

If we can not even discuss this question except upon one side, how unhappy is our state!

Now, if a man were to keep any creature alive for the sole purpose of torturing it, say for a year, would not the whole civilized world with unanimous voice declare that man an unutterable monster? Would not mankind recoil from him as from a fiend? He might try to justify himself on the ground that the creature was very bad; but would that make a particle of difference? You could not say a worse thing of a human being than to say that he would do such a thing as that.

Society might forgive a man for being a liar, or a thief, or even a murderer, but it could only abhor one who should keep alive a creature a year for the sole purpose of torture, and that without the possibility or remotest expectation of doing any good.

Yet we have been able to hear it said of God, repeatedly, that it is his intention to take the majority, the vast majority of the human race, and keep them alive forever and ever, for the sole purpose of torturing them, and that without any regard to their circumstances, and moreover that He so decreed and devised ages ago, just because it pleased Him so to do.

There are a few passages which are interpreted in that way, and the whole character of God is made to hang upon that interpretation. And then we wonder that the gospel does not make progress! Why, there can be no gospel under the auspices of such a Being as that. If I say that God is good, and then add that He proposes to torture the vast majority of men endlessly; that He foreordained the countless victims for such exhibition of His cruelty, then a man with any humanity in him will say, "If that is goodness, I prefer badness!" That is according to the constitution of mind.

And it is not difficult to see that wherever there is preaching or teaching this doctrine of the historical Church (which, by the way, some of the greatest of the Church fathers—Origen, for instance—did not believe) stands directly in the way of genuine progress. A constitutional principle of the mind that is active, and in any extent free, stands against it. Men may be moved by fear and by considerations of personal safety to seek to propitiate so dreadful a Being, but it is not possible they can love Him.

Now, this is fundamental; and the opinion of Mr. John Stuart Mill is gaining ground everywhere "that so monstrous a Being [as he expresses it] as the God of the old European theology is a chimera of disordered imaginations."

Moreover, it is seen to be a repulsively arbitrary notion when we reflect that the great majority of people have never had any chance, and under this scheme never will have any chance. All this revolts the reason and conscience of mankind. It is the representation of an Infinite Enemy, and not of an Infinite Friend.

Of course, then, the attacks that are made on the Bible and on Christianity are full of force, even though they may be very crude and unlearned. They appeal to something in man to which he is forced to listen, and the result is that multitudes are pushed into a skepticism as contemptuous as it is bitter.

There is not a Christian in the world, I suppose, who has any earnestness of character, who will admit for one moment that God is cruel or unjust. But it is possible that many a Christian will stoutly maintain that God will do things which, if they were attributed to any one whose character we did not know, all men would unite in calling them fiendish. We often use words from force of habit, without thinking of the real meaning of them. We certainly do so when we say in one breath that God is good and that He will do the most hateful things.

It is entirely conceivable that God will punish, will deal in severity and wrath with men,—will consume their pride and naughtiness of heart. It is entirely certain that He will not always permit His government to be trampled upon. It is conceivable also that souls which are radically unfit for the kingdom of righteousness might be permitted to lapse out of existence,—because the eternal life is the gift of God, and everlasting existence is not a necessary fact to a bad being,—but that the Infinite Being of Infinite Love can inflict torture for billions of centuries upon rational beings, is not conceivable, especially if no possible good can ever come to those beings in the remotest future. It looks very like an infinitesimal slander and misrepresentation of God, which the Church has been too busy to examine into,—and it depends upon the arbitrary mistranslation of a few words in the New Testament and a flagrant misinterpretation of the whole spirit and tenor of it.

Let us now glance at the notions which men prefer to this notion of the Romish Church, which has also been engrafted on Protestantism. You may put together all the current atheisms, pantheisms and materialisms which centre in a sort of dark nucleus of nihilism, and they form the protest of thinking minds against the darker notion of an arbitrary and cruel God. These form the reaction against the "perverse theisms" of the past. They take the Bible to be what it has been represented to be by its professed friends, the exponent of a cruel and arbitrary government, and they lay it aside, ignore it as a mere specimen of mythology, and thus they lose it, and the precious treasures of Divine wisdom are closed to them. And who must bear a share, at least, of the reproach of it? As I believe, the Church, which has so distorted the character of God. And in the Church a reformation must begin,—a radical reformation, as it seems, so deep and so thorough that no one will think of falsely accusing the goodness and severity of God, even by the implication involved in arbitrary inflictions. We might lop off a few of the topmost branches by way of reform, but that would be of little worth so long as the radical error remains,—an error which dishonors God more than all the violence of his open and avowed enemies. The time has come for personal convictions in place of priestly teachings.

It is enough to say that if the wail of unspeakable misery is to ascend unceasingly and forever from countless multitudes, it seems impossible that any one who has learned to love his neighbor as himself can have any joy or any peace. His heart must respond to that wail and echo it. His sympathies will go down into the woful depths, and he himself, in the exercise of a real suffering pity, will find no heaven, no rest, no home. If they are his enemies the same law which has compelled him to love them on earth will compel the continuance and enlargement of that love, and he will wail with those that wail by the very compulsions of his reborn nature. But where did he get that nature? Who planted the great love in him? It is God who has commanded, and where do we find the command abrogated? These are no fancied difficulties. They have suggested themselves over and over again to those who seek to obey that command of Jesus: "Call no man on earth master [or teacher] for One is your teacher."

It is true we have the concurrent testimony of all the Christian centuries to the doctrine that God is arbitrary and tortures everlastingly not for the good of the creature, but for the gratification of some feeling in himself. We have the agreement of the "evangelical standards." It is hard to break away from the trammels of these things. But the incisive words of Jesus in regard to those who dishonor God by their traditions are in point here.

Clouds and darkness have come between the face of man and the Father in heaven, but they are clouds of false opinion and the darkness of misrepresentation. They have blotted out hope for many; they have fostered and contributed to Night on the earth. Through them to many a frightened soul the dim image of a Gigantic Divinity of Moloch-like proportions has loomed up portentous and forbidding in the heavens.

And we can not discuss these things in an evangelical pulpit!—except on one side. Or, if we have come to believe in a God of matchless, inexpressible love,—all love, through and through,—doing nothing except out of the original motive of love, His very wrath and vengeance, and the fire of his anger being all the energies of his love,—then we must whisper it under our breath.

I stand upon the New Testament, believing in the fullest extent that it, with the Old Testament, is the Word of God; and upon the pains-taking examination of these passages, I believe Christendom has misrepresented the character of God and soiled the white purity of it, and that the Christian Church suffers in consequence, as Israel of old suffered, when idolatrous, when it made its children to pass through the fire.

In a thoughtful, keen-eyed age its influence abates, and its energies paralyze; its members drift away from it into the prevailing forms of unbelief and atheisms. If it proclaims the love of God, the proclamation is treated as an empty formula; if it speaks of salvation there is meagre response, and salvation is not understood to be a radical and permanent renovation of character, but a safeguard against the endless flames. And so it has come to be a present and momentous fact in the history of the Church, as God by an Apostle has said; "The letter [and especially the mistranslated letter] killeth."

My friends, there are said to be snares of the Devil. Now a snare is made to look as much as possible like a harmless, or even a desirable object and thus the unwary are entrapped. But there is one thing which no Christian, or any person who desires to be right ought to do. He ought not by any persuasion, or by any pressure, to permit himself to dishonor God, by attributing to Him a character which is evil, and which conscience, if freely listened to, teaches is evil. It is a Satanic snare. He who is the traducer, the slanderer of God, has somehow got into the minds of men to crook and twist their thoughts, and to make one of their cardinal doctrines virtually teach that God is cruel, vindictive, and that he will please himself all eternity long with the groans of the suffering, who for a brief moment here on earth,—many of them not knowing their right hands from the left,—have incurred his displeasure. It is the merciless dogma of men who believed in fire, and burned their enemies. It may, and I think eventually will, be seen to be a doctrine of devils. From it the Church will one day rise as from a horror of great darkness, and learn not to blaspheme! and be prepared to bless mankind with a pure Gospel, whose exponent it shall then become.

But it is objected to these views that God is just, and has Divine justice to maintain in His universe; to maintain at whatever cost, and we are bidden not to forget that. Well, that is the very thing I am endeavoring to bring to remembrance. Justice! O, what burdens of horrors that word has been forced to carry. Corrupt as we are here on earth, we do not think of maintaining justice by torture. And we execrate the memory of those who have become infamous by their employment of torture. We do not torture, because we know it is cruel to torture judicially. And yet we dare to declare that God will never cease torturing in order that He may maintain justice!

But what sort of justice is it? Where did we pick up the idea of it? Is it just to do an unjust thing? Is it just to torture people forever? Why, all the hosts of heaven would be down on their knees supplicating God upon the throne with flowing tears and anguish to cease to be just, if that were justice. But it is not. To think that God could annihilate the suffering millions—to say nothing of His power to rescue and heal them—and would not, would spoil Heaven for any one but a savage.

But by all these suppositions we assail the character of God. We do most deeply dishonor Him, we reduce His law to no effect, we make His Gospel a farce, and thoughtful men drift away into atheistic conjectures hoping for nothing beyond, but not fearing anything except the pains of death. Leslie Stephens, an English writer, voices the current opinion of the thinking minds of his country who are outside of the Church and out of sympathy with it: "If this be the logical result of accepting theories, better believe in no God at all."

Clearly, then, if the Church has disfigured the love and the justice of God, if it has enthroned in His place a Being who is capable of torturing forever the children of men, or a portion of them, that sufficiently explains why God can not come to His temple, which is the Church, because it is occupied by another Being. "What agreement hath the temple of God with idols?" asks the Apostle Paul significantly; and it is a question we do well to ask also.

Canon Farrar, a distinguished clergyman of the Church of England, uses somewhat strong language on this subject, with which I close:

"Here I declare, and call God to witness, that if the popular doctrine of Hell were true, I should be ready to resign all hope, not only of a shortened, but of any immortality, if thereby I could save not millions, but one single soul from what fear, and superstition, and ignorance, and inveterate hate, and slavish letter worship have dreamed and taught of Hell. * * * Unless my whole nature were utterly changed I can imagine no immortality which would not be abhorrent to me, if it were accompanied with the knowledge that millions, and millions, and millions of poor suffering wretches, some of whom on earth I had known and loved, writhing in an agony without end or hope."

Sunlight and Health.

Sunlight, says the Cottage Hearth, is even more necessary to health in summer than in winter, for one among other reasons, that disinfectants of all sorts are more necessary in summer than in winter. The rays of heat quicken the vital powers, the chemical rays exert their mysterious and potent influence, and the illuminating rays independently of the others, as has been recently proved by Mr. Crooke to the satisfaction of the ablest scientists, communicate motion. The exhalations from our bodies in warm weather are more copious than they are in cold weather, and if we shut out the light from our houses we remove the most efficient of all agents in destroying what is unwholesome. The noxious vapors which free admission of air and light would remove, are absorbed by carpets and upholstery, and become productive of disease. Those who are accustomed to the darkness and dampness of close rooms may not consciously suffer therefrom, but that they sustain real injury is evident in their pallid faces, their flaccid muscles, and nerveless movements. The contrast between them and those whose lives pass in the open air is too evident to need comment. It may not be necessary to expose during the day every room in the house to the direct rays of the sun, but there should be frequent opening of doors and windows, so that the solar beam may perform its beneficent office. Bedrooms and other rooms in constant use should receive most careful attention in this respect. Sick rooms especially require thorough sunning and ventilation, and if possible should always have a southern aspect. More patients die on the north side of hospitals than on the south side; there are more deaths on the shady side of any street than on the sunny side. A notable southern housekeeper, observing strictly the following rule during the summer months, kept her house perfectly sweet and cool and dry from May to October: Until ten o'clock in the morning all the doors and windows were opened wide; then they were closed until four in the afternoon; then opened again till night-fall. This rate might not do for all localities, but such a use of it as would secure free access of light and air to every part of the house at least once a day could but be productive of good results.

BRO. WILLIAM ANDERSON, of Oakland, Cal., sends us a San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle, of June 20th, from which we clip the following:

PRESENT CONDITION OF THE CHURCH.

The Philadelphia Presbyterian is distressed over the present condition of the Church, which it thus describes: "Never were the lines of right and wrong in the Church's relations to the world so vague and merged. There is no dividing line. Professing Christians who once had the power to see where conformities to the demands of fashion would lead in the end, and as carefully avoided them, now can see nothing but the glammers and enticements of these tempting seductions. For their children, many act as if the dancing-school was of greater present moment than the prayer-meeting, and indeed are more frequently represented in the former than the latter. * * * The theater, once recognized as the uncompromising enemy of the Church, and the Church as uncompromising in its hostility to it, is now put, by some strange metamorphosis, in the list of its friends." The Presbyterian proposes as a remedy for this bad condition of things that religious teachers should give up their "spiritual love-making and coquetting," and "preach an uncompromising gospel, with a hell in it for transgressors."

THE NEED OF A DEVIL AND A HELL.

According to the Baltimore Catholic Mirror, "weak and debased human nature" has long revolted against the doctrine of a personal devil and a literal hell: "In our days there is a literature that springs from this cause and a pulpit that is raised by it. The voice of that literature and that pulpit is crystallized on Colonel Bob Ingersoll's complaint about theology. He wishes the world to 'drive the devil out of theology.'" The evident object aimed at by Ingersoll, Beecher, Farrar and others in getting rid of hell and the devil, the Mirror observes, is, "because they want the reign of the passions, the reign of debauchery, intemperance and violence." They want "a free field for crime." "The French communists, who were so many Bob Ingersolls in fact, drove the devil out of theology, and they killed the priests because they did not want them. They made the day hideous with their murder and rapine, and the night dreadful by their orgies of lust and crime." Destroy the belief in a personal devil and a hell of eternal torment, the Mirror says, and "purity would be a myth, honor a folly, and rapine the normal condition of existence."

A CLERGYMAN ENDORSES INGERSOLL.

The Chicago Alliance, Rev. Prof. Swing's paper, fully indorses the position taken in Colonel Ingersoll's lectures, that there is an irreconcilable difference between the record of the creation given in the first chapters of Genesis and the established teachings of modern science. It says: "The simple fact, which there is no use in trying to wink out of sight, is that it is impossible to harmonize the statements of Genesis with geology and astronomy as at present understood. Apparently the writer of Genesis thought that the heavens were 'hammered out,' that the earth was the most important fact in the universe, and that the sun and moon and the innumerable stars were made solely to give light to our insignificant planet. In the account of creation in Genesis, plants and fruit trees are represented as flourishing and bearing before the sun was created without whose life-giving beams, we believe nothing ever grew on this earth."

Happiness.

The idea has been transmitted from generation to generation that happiness is one large and beautiful precious stone, a single gem so rare that all search after it is vain, all efforts for it helpless. It is not so. Happiness is a mosaic, composed of many smaller stones. Each taken apart and viewed singly may be of little value, but when all are grouped together, and judiciously combined and set, they form a pleasing whole—a costly jewel. Trample not under foot, then, the little pleasures which a gracious Providence scatters in the daily path, and which, in eager search after some great and exciting joy, we are so apt to overlook. Why should we always keep our eyes fixed on the bright, distant horizon, while there are so many lovely roses in the garden in which we are permitted to walk? The very arid of our chase after Happiness may be the reason that she so often eludes our grasp. We pantingly strain after her when she has been so graciously brought nigh unto us.

The bright spots of a man's life are few enough without any blotting out; and since for a moment of mirth we have an hour of sadness, it were a sorry policy to diminish the few rays that illumine our chequered existence.

The greatest man is he who chooses right with the most invincible resolution, resists the sorest temptations, bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully, * * who is calmest in storms, and whose reliance on truth, virtue, and on heaven is unflinching.

There are two things that will make us happy if we attend to them, first never vex ourselves about what we can not help, and the second never vex ourselves about what we can help.

Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.
HENRY A. STEBBINS, ASSISTANT.

Plano, Illinois, August 1st, 1880.

THE reasons why men apostatize from the Church are so various, and sometimes so contradictory and inconsistent that we thought to give a few for the sake of the argument offered in them to an exhortation to abide in the faith.

An individual was received into the Church several years since who was persuaded in his own mind that Saturday was not only the seventh day of the week, but was the identical Sabbath of the Lord, the Jewish Sabbath, and should be kept by all who revered the Jehovah and his word. At the time that this man connected himself with the Church he knew that the Sabbath question was not a dogma in either of its branches; that the Church did not teach the keeping of the Sabbath, in its absoluteness; neither the Seventh nor the First day of the week; but that the Church did observe the First day as a rest day, the Christian's Lord's Day, with a degree of unanimity in its observance as to keep it reasonably inviolate; and, further, that no attempt was made to ostracize or find fault with any who believed that Saturday was the Seventh Day Sabbath. He knew all this; and that the Church was ready, at any time that the Lord should state that the day commonly called Saturday, (Saturn's Day), was the Seventh Day Sabbath of his ancient covenant people—the Jews, and that it was his will that it should be kept as that people kept it, to do what he would so command. No such expression of his will has ever come, and there is no evidence of a positive and direct character connecting the disasters that have fallen upon the Church from time to time with a failure to keep the Sabbath in any form. But, at length this Elder concluded that the Church is under the dire displeasure of God, on this question, and so he withdrew from their communion, asking an honorable letter of dismissal, stigmatizes the entire body in its ministry and membership as transgressors before God, and takes himself away from them upon this question of Sabbath keeping alone. Is this a consistent action? Let us see. If during his connection with the Church, at any time, the authorities of the Church to whom the belief of this Elder on this question was known, had cited him before a tribunal of the Church for heresy; and upon a confession of such belief contrary to the observance of the Church, he had been found guilty as an heretic and disfellowshipped as a spiritual transgressor against the law of God, the charge of cruelty, dogmatism, proscription and inconsistency would have been made against the Church.

Again: an individual unites with the Church, and falls under the displeasure of other members, for reasons supposed by them to be sufficient; and because of those reasons this person is subjected to inquiry, fault-finding, animadversion, and possibly personal abuse and persecution from these members. He fails to put himself right with them, or to bring the matter to an examination before church authorities, either because he dislikes the controversy, or other reasons; and to get rid of the persecution of these members, right or wrong, he withdraws from the Church; asks that his name be dropped from the records.

What is the motive for such a departure? Where the moral courage men should look for in those who profess a belief in Christ as he is shown in the New Testament?

Again: a person was baptized some years ago into the Church—a married man. After his reception he parts from his wife for scriptural cause; which the Church acknowledges is good cause; after this he is separated from the Church for a number of years, marries another woman, and returning to the vicinity of the Church, asks to be received. To this objection is made unless he comes in at the door; so he offers to renew his covenant by baptism; but here a new difficulty occurs. It is discovered that he has no divorce from his first wife, and the authorities of the Church are asked the question, whether, under these circumstances he may be received in baptism. They answer that he may, by vote of the branch where he resides; that they see no good reason why he may not, and that as he was morally free from his first wife, for scriptural cause, all that the Church could rightfully ask of him is that he should as soon as practicable obtain a legal divorce, that he may appear blameless before the law of the land, thus honoring that law. Under this opinion the man is received in baptism at a conference of Elders and Saints; and thereupon, a number of the members of the Church where this man resides take alarm and withdraw from the Church because, as they allege, it, the Church, by baptizing this man is sanctioning and teaching polygamy, and as they can not subscribe to that dogma, they will not fellowship the Church. Is that a consistent and good reason for departing from the Church?

Let us see. This man had good cause to depart from his wife, he acknowledged the cause, and did leave her, "put her away." He was then free. He had a moral right to marry again, this he did; but did not secure a legal recognition of that right to marry again, though married according to the form of law the second time. Now had he two wives? Was he a polygamist? Was there any polygamy in the case? He did not live with these women as his wives, at one and the same time; nor at any time recognize her from whom he had separated as his wife; and hence we can not see that he was a polygamist.

But because of this opinion, and the baptism of this man the Church is charged with the doctrine of polygamy. The Church as a body did not order the man baptized; nor was a doctrinal confession of faith involved in his baptism; it was an official reception into the Church of a wanderer, who desired to lead a new life, and sought this way to make covenant with God. This is objected to by some, and because of this objection they go out of the Church.

Suppose that one is presented for baptism who has been a thief, has indeed been convicted of theft, and once punished for it; but is free before the law of God to repent and forsake his propensity to steal; when presented to be baptized some one objects because of this theft; but he is received upon the opinion of the elders that he may be; and when so baptized, these who so protest at once accuse the Church of sanctioning theft, and therefore thieves, and they withdraw for that cause. Suppose the same in case of repentant liars, swearers, drunkards, men of lustful desires, haughty, self-willed, transgressors, all of whom are seeking the way to live, of what avail would it be to preach repentance, and a washing away of sin; because no such person must be baptized, or some would depart from the Church, for the alleged reason that the Church by baptizing such persons sanctioned, thus teaching such crimes. Is that a good reason? We think not.

In each of these cases, suppositious or otherwise, the idea of self-protection against personal loss, respectability or standing, or the danger of dogma, or creed, causes the person to leave what he has avowed to be the cause of truth; and in two of the instances the separation is on the account of real or alleged belief, tenet, or teaching, a sort of "I am holier than thou" sentiment.

We hold it to be the right of every man to be the arbiter of his own choosing and election, by his choice of action; and for this reason denounce no man as vile, or devilish, who may change his opinions, and with that change of opinion his fellowship; but we think it likewise proper that when a man does change in such a way, that the reasons he gives for it, if any, should be fairly consistent, at least.

The Church has spoken, and that positively in regard to polygamy; and neither her ministry nor her laity have right to teach or practice it, nor will any number of cases like the one we have cited make a case against the Church; the undue fear of timid ones notwithstanding. We do not censure any one for the carrying into execution the well settled purpose of deliberate consideration and decision; but where we believe such action to be erroneous, the result of wrong thinking, we may not be silent in regard to it, however much respect we may have for the men.

We have always believed that where men engaged in an association together for the carrying on and success of which they are mutually held, discover errors and weaknesses in their order and organization that need emendation, the best and proper place to accomplish such amendment is within the pales of the association itself; and that no man should voluntarily resign his right to attempt to bring to pass the correcting of those things deemed wrong by him, by removing himself from such society; whether it be political, beneficial, or religious. If he is compelled to go out, let it be because the society turns him out. It would be a very strange society indeed that, convinced of the uprightness, virtue and integrity of a man, would turn him out for consistent and earnest endeavors to cleanse the order from wrong. Cowards and hirelings, leave their posts when danger threatens; but brave men go down with the trust honestly conferred faithfully kept.

There may be that in the Church which should be eliminated; and that it will be when discovered, we have no doubt; some things fading out by lapse of time and disuse, others by reason of fair and impartial examination and discussion. And whatever may be the absolute and abstract right in regard to the Sabbath question, we do not believe that the supposed disabilities under which the Church is laboring is chargeable to a failure to observe the Saturday Seventh day, as the Jewish Sabbath; or for observing Sunday the First day, as an Holy day—a rest day, and a day for the assembling of the Saints for the "preaching of the gospel," which is "the power of God unto salvation."

Persecution from individual members of the body as a reason for departing the Church is a frequent one; and one and perhaps the only prominently good thing in such a reason is the one commonly given, that they do not want to associate with such people here; or "if such people go to heaven, I do not want to go there," a most egregiously foolish saying when looked at closely. This is finding a Mordecai at the spiritual gate to mar ones peace hardly compatible with the Savior's word, "He that endureth unto the end shall be saved." It is, to put it in a very mild form, an exceedingly lame reason for departing from the faith.

THE "Gospel Monitor," published by J. J. Cranmer at Hannibal, Missouri, is sent us. This paper, like its publisher, is a curiosity. It contains four pages the size of the present HERALD, three columns to the page. Its editor and proprietor is radically opposed to infidelity, and attacks B. F. Underwood, a noted infidel, in a book, part of which has been published in the Monitor, called "Death to Infidelity."

He is also opposed to the Reorganization; but professes a belief in the Bible and Book of Mormon, though denying the Doctrine and Covenants. In one of the last numbers reaching us is an epitome. In many points it is similar to the one published by us.

In a former number is a series of articles and statements from which we infer that the organization of which the Monitor is the organ and champion, is to have David Whitmer, one of the witnesses to the Book of Mormon, to be its leader. The argument by which it is claimed and defended that Elder Whitmer is the man thus to lead is about as follows:—1. He was a witness. 2. A witness is (theologically) an apostle. 3. He was a witness, therefore an apostle.

It is further stated in the same article that he was commanded to withdraw from the Church; this withdrawal was accomplished by being "mobbed out of it"—a very queer way to withdraw.

The editor attempts to prove that Elder Whitmer was mobbed out of the Church by publishing a letter written by us to him; which publication was an unwarranted liberty on the part of the editor of the Monitor, as he used the letter without permission in an improper manner for an improper purpose. Our letter is as follows, and proves nothing, as we personally knew nothing, and only stated our understanding or impression concerning the matter named:

"It is my understanding of the matter that Elder David Whitmer, with others, became parties to an opposition to Joseph Smith and the Church with him; and that by vote the entire number were disfellowshipped; that there was not a formal laboring with and formal cutting off as provided for in the law. How he stands now, I don't know. I believe he claims to hold the priesthood. Of course we can not accept his claim, for obvious reasons. Of the man himself I have nothing to say. I do not know him except by reputation, which is good. Yours, J. Smith."

This, a private letter to an individual, is stated by him to be an "official document, showing that there was foul play in the Church," and much more of a similar import.

The fact is, personally we know nothing about the disruption that occurred in Kirtland, except what we glean from the scattered items of history; and that gives us to understand briefly that for some cause, said to be good by one side, and bad by the other, a division occurred, some of the Whitmers, David one of them, F. G. Williams, Sylvester Smith and some others being of the opposition to Joseph and Hyrum Smith and the Church; that it assumed such proportions, that it became a matter to be decided which party would predominate, the decision fell on the side of Joseph and the Church, to the saving of the life of the Church, as we now fully believe. The Whitmers (John and David) may have believed that they were right in the controversy, and may have retained their integrity. F. G. Williams died a few years after the split occurred; Sylvester Smith lost his faith in man and God, as we know by personal conversation held with him in Council Bluffs, Iowa, where he lately died an old man. Whatever the causes that led to the antagonism of those men, resulting finally in their disfellowshipping, the methods adopted by them to secure the ends aimed at by them if for reform were ill advised, as we have some reason to believe; and whatever authority to act David Whitmer may now hold he has by reason of a call and recognition of that call, through and by reason of rules of Church order and government given through Joseph Smith, whom the editor of the Monitor seeks now to defame and blacken, in order to build up this same man David Whitmer.

We have no personal quarrel to urge against Elder Whitmer; he is said to be a good man, and bears a faithful testimony to the angel's message and the Book of Mormon; but we can assure him that if the editorial in the Monitor for April, 1880, is a fair specimen of the argument by which his right to advise Latter Day Israel as a leader, is to be maintained, he will have reason in time to conclude that even good men may make mistakes, and the selecting of such a champion is one of them; for he will surely do his cause harm.

The Monitor is pursuing a similar course to the one pursued by the Truth Teller, published at or near Bloomington, Illinois, by Granville Hedrick and others, and will suit the same class of men. It is the course pursued by Sidney Rigdon and his followers, Post, Stanley and others, in the Appeal. To blacken and vilify the character of Joseph Smith, and present to the world at the same time the Book of Mormon as a revelation of God to Man through him, is such an anomalous thing that shrewd thinkers unable to swallow both, believe neither. We wonder that so sharp and pungent and witty a man as the editor of the Monitor would evidently have men believe that he is should not perceive the incongruity of such a course and abandon it—it is the vinegar of argument, and catches no flies.

We thank J. J. Cranmer for sending us the Monitor.

We publish in the first half of this issue a sermon preached in Rochester, N. Y., by Rev. Myron Adams, which for its rarity and the raciness of the points made, we reproduce for the especial benefit of the elders in the field and the thoughtful saints everywhere. The reverend gentleman is evidently conscious that sooner or later the weakness of the defenses of popular sectarianism must and will be fully exposed, when neither courage nor hardihood will avail to the maintaining them; and he is strongly inclined to admit now, as he and others should have been at the start, that a return to the gospel of the four evangelists is essential to the further and successful life of Christianity.

With what persistency the elders of the Church, from the little band of thirty, meeting at Seneca, New York, to the latest convocation of representative thousands, have told the world, religious world, that they must return—return—return. But that world has derided, outraged and spit upon the tale that was told them; but the things predicted are coming to pass, and men are compelled to see and hear them. They have refused to listen to the elders sent of the spirit; perhaps they will hearken to those of their own number, who are driven by sheer necessity to see and feel the shaking of the citadels. Well, we have been waiting and watching and praying for the Lord to bring again Zion, and if there must come a falling away first, let it come. But that falling away; is it, will it be as Rev. Adams said, a falling away from the errors in the church,—let us hope that out of it all there may arise Joshuas to lead the Lord's people—the remnants that shall be left. May many of the pastors yet see as does this one, that the Christ of the New Testament must be our Christ if we would save the world from its sin.

FROM letters received from brethren T. J. Andrews, D. J. Phillips and William Anderson, we learn that the session of conference held at Oakland, California, July 4th, for the northern division of the Pacific Slope Mission, according to the division made by the last April conference at Plano, passed off quite harmoniously; and with but little difficulty a president was chosen, the choice falling upon Bro. John Carmichael, of San Benito, a very worthy and excellent man; calm, considerate, and tried. We are glad of this; and hope that each of the other districts will succeed as well, and make as good selections as this of Bro. Carmichael seems to be.

Lars Peterson, living at Independence, Missouri, is out lately in a pamphlet and a leaflet, signed "The Mission of Baurak Ale." He proposes to give the "New Covenant key to the resurrection." This key he presents to be the abstaining from marriage and conjugal companionship. Young and unmarried people are not to marry; and those who are, to be as if they were not. It will be nothing strange if he gets followers, and if he does, we sincerely hope, for the sake of consistency, that they will practice what they teach.

Bro. Joseph Luff writes July 7th, 1880, from Salt Lake City: "Baptized three more here yesterday; more at the door here, at Provo, and at Springville. The interest increases at the two last named places, and continues here."

Bro. J. M. Lisenbee writes from Carrollton, Illinois, that Bro. D. J. Wetherbee and himself had been holding a series of meetings in a school house near there, and met with such success that the school-house was closed against them; but they changed their base and held meetings in two other school-houses, notwithstanding they were forbidden to hold meetings even in Bro. Lisenbee's own house. This is a good indication of energy and will to spread the work in ones own neighborhood.

Sr. Thyrza Jackson, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, now an inmate of an asylum, wishes to warn the Saints from tampering with spiritualism. In her behalf and for her, Sr. S. C. Harvey states that Bro. Joseph F. McDowell, while at Kirtland, warned Sr. Jackson of her danger in following after spirit mediums, and told her that if she continued it they would bind her body and soul. She now perceives that he was right, complains of the darkness that surrounds her, and desires that the Saints will pray for her, that the trial may pass, and she be released. Certainly the Saints ought not to cultivate nor seek to them that "peep and mutter," or "have familiar spirits."

Bro. G. W. Squire writes from Wheatville, Wisconsin, July 5th, giving an account how the Saints there enjoyed the Fourth. They had a very pleasant time in a prayer meeting and feast at the house of Bro. Whitaker.

The Sunday School and some of the Plano Saints had a picnic on the 3d of July, in the grove of Mr. William Henning, near town, and enjoyed it well.

Sr. Eliza J. Leeson writes again from Tollgate, Ritchie county, West Virginia, that many there are anxious to hear the preaching of our ministers, having read the HERALD and been interested by her teachings and explanations of the faith of the Saints. We have hope that Elder L. R. Devore, now of Jackson county, West Virginia, may go to the rescue. Sr. Leeson says that her husband, mother, brothers and sisters, as well as others, desire to hear our doctrines presented. May they soon be able to do so, and the Spirit confirm the truth to their hearts, we pray.

Bro. E. R. Lanpher writes from Sioux City, Iowa, that he finds that the promises of the Lord are verified to the obedient believer, and he rejoices in the certainty of these things, and in the Holy Spirit's testimony to him. He labors to teach his neighbors the excellency of having the full truth. He is holding meetings in private houses at Sioux City, and the poor among men listen to God's word. May he be steadfast and wise, and accomplish good unto the joy of his heart.

Those of the Saints wanting tracts and the Book of Mormon in German, can get them by sending to Ad. Richter, Burlington, Iowa. See advertisement in HERALD.

Bro. John Eames writes from Mill Creek, Colorado, July 9th. He is preaching among the miners, as the way is presented before him.

Bro. John H. Lake is at Bevier, Missouri, where he is engaged for the Master.

Bro. C. T. Orr, near Breckenridge, Missouri, says that there is plenty of chance for the Elders to minister in that country, and they would like some there to labor. The work moves slowly, and he says that not a HERALD is taken among the twenty-five members of the Grand River Branch. Brethren, this ought not to be so.

Bro. J. M. Pickens wrote from the Butler Branch, Butler county, Alabama, of the cause there. Much good was being done by steady work and Christian living. Press of matter crowds the letter out.

Bro. Thomas Daley wrote July 11th from Florin, Sacramento county, California, saying that he had baptized fifteen since last December; but is now compelled to labor otherwise for a season, yet he hopes to go into the ministry again as soon as possible, as he desires in his heart to do.

Bro. Joseph R. Lambert was at Lemars, Iowa, July 9th, suffering from inflamed eyes, but preaching as he could. He thinks the work at Grand Prairie, Minn., prospering finely. Much good is evidently being done there.

Bro. Chas. Wicks wrote from Oenaville, Texas, July 8th, in good spirits. Bro. H. L. Thompson and W. T. Bozarth were absent on a tour to San Antonio, but would be back in a day or two. Bro. Wickes states that Bro. Bozarth was much liked as a speaker. He certainly has the making of an able man in his make up.

Bro. James Houston, at Staunton, Macoupin county, Illinois, feels cheered and confirmed more and more by the blessed influence of the Holy Spirit that directs his mind and his way towards righteousness and peace. As he desires to do his duty so may he be able in all things to accomplish it. Any of the ministry who can call at his house will be welcome indeed, as he assures us.

Sister Rosetta Gould, living at Vassar, Tuscola county, Michigan, is alone there, but holds to the faith and desires the prayers of the Church that she may be able to continue. She expects and hopes for the coming of Bro. Edward Delong to preach in that neighborhood and establish God's work among the people.

Bro. Hiram Robinson writes encouragingly of the work in Bradford county, Pa. He left there July 10th and went to Hyde Park, where he baptized two on the 18th. He feels well in the work and was to go to Danville the 23d.

Bro. F. P. Scarcliff can be addressed at Milton, Santa Rosa county, Fla., for an indefinite time. If distant from there in other parts of the State his mail will be forwarded.

Bro. Jacob Stanley writes that the branch at Streator, Illinois, meets three times per week, and they hope to walk in the light steadfastly.

Bro. Charles Livingstone writes from Mount Morris, Michigan, saying that he is alone, but loves the faith of Christ and hopes to abide.

We are in receipt of some papers called the Stumbling Stone, published by Lyman H. Johnson, sent by Sr. D. M. Rood, from Lapeer, Mich. The tenor of its articles so far as we are able to discover is to cast off sect and denominational lines, for a spiritual or intellectual belief in Christ; and is especially intended to reclaim the Free Methodists from wildness and fanaticism.

Bro. Ebenezer Robinson writes from Pleasanton, Iowa, under late date: "I am informed that our late conference, held at Davis City, made a more powerful impression for good than any series of meetings we had hitherto held in that place. Zenas has more calls for preaching in new places than he can fill. His Fourth of July oration, delivered at Pleasanton on the 3d inst., will be published in the Decatur County Journal.

Bro. T. F. Stafford wrote on the 20th July that he had good audiences at his services in the country about his home, Lewistown, Illinois.

Bro. J. H. Lake writes from Bevier, Mo., that a much more satisfactory condition of things exists there now. The past difficulties are disposed of amicably, and peace now prevails. Our word of advice now to these Saints, is under no circumstances to renew the old grievances. If any new cause occurs, let it stand by itself. Do not bring up the old ones. Do not revive them in any way, not even to talk about them. If you do, you will be sure to stir up misunderstanding, and dispute will be sure to ensue, and all will be renewed. Wise men do not get entangled in the same meshes of difficulty the second time. "Who is a wise servant." We certainly congratulate the Saints, and pray that their usefulness and peace may increase. Four were baptized during the stay of Bro. Lake at Bevier. He thinks the prospect good if the Saints remain at peace. We should think a year of distress would be enough.

We thank Joseph Hammer, M. T. James, William Street, C. M. Fulks, A. M. Wilsey, H. Boydell and others, for papers received.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Is it right for a Deacon to preach?

Yes; if opportunity offers, or the absence of other officers of the branch leaves the Deacon in charge; or in case the officer in charge of the meeting may request the Deacon to speak.

Please state through the HERALD what is the true application of the scripture, Doctrine and Covenants, section 83, last clause of par. 11?

Our understanding of the clause referred to is that Saints should avoid boasting, or telling in a boastful way of the possession of the power by which those things named in the paragraph are done, before anybody, much less before the world. It is a very unwise policy to be continually telling of this or that marvelous thing in the presence of the world; it is an offer to them to test the boaster. We are decidedly of the opinion such things should be talked of but little, and that not boastfully before the world, either in preaching or in Saints' meeting.

Does the Word of Wisdom have any reference to tea and coffee; I have heard some say it had not?

It refers to all hot beverages, and tea and coffee are included; and it does mean them.

Is it lawful for any officer who is qualified to administer the ordinance of baptism to baptize any one who may apply for baptism, before the person desiring baptism has asked the permission of the branch? Or are we to understand by paragraph 7, of section 17, of Doctrine and Covenants, that a person desiring baptism must first get the consent of the branch before he can be baptized?

Paul said that to him all things were lawful; but all were not expedient. It is lawful for an officer authorized to baptize, and to baptize those who desire to be baptized; but where there is a regularly organized branch, it is manifestly inexpedient and improper for an officer of the Church who is not an officer of the branch, to baptize any one without the knowledge and consent of the officer or officers in charge of the branch. That the one making application must first apply to the Church in public assembly and a vote taken before they can be baptized, would seem to be a forced construction of the passage quoted, and might do violence to the spirit of the law. Our own opinion is that an application to the Church in open assembly, where opportunity is given, or to the presiding branch officers is virtually "making manifest their desire to the Church," and should be so considered; and he or they knowing the one applying and the circumstances under which the application is made may determine the proper course to be pursued in each case. It is bad policy to construe any specific clause of law in such way as to defeat the general object of the whole law.

BRO. W. CHAMBERS wrote from Spring Creek Branch, Iowa, that he had been in correspondence with parties in Birkenhead, England, and what with his letters and tracts that he had sent, the one to whom he sent them writes, among other things, as follows:

"Dear friend and brother: It is with great pleasure that I write to you. I received your letter and the tracts which you sent me. I am thankful to God that you sent them in time, for they have convinced me of the truth as it is. I should have gone to Salt Lake if I had not had them from you; so I am thankful to you for them. May the God of heaven bless you for it. I am on the right way for the kingdom."

This man's name is Samuel Bennett; his address is No. 14 Oliver street, Birkenhead, England. Can not some of the Saints visit him? Bro. Chambers thinks it might do good.

News Summary.

July 9th.—Latest dispatches say that Russia has tendered the use of twenty thousand soldiers to Greece to aid against the Turks. Bulgaria is also inclined to help the Greeks in case of war.

A St. Petersburg newspaper laments the sad condition of that country, which it says will be made so much worse by another war (with China) causing an increased drain "upon its already exhausted resources." For several weeks the Russian papers have been full of complaints of ravages by locusts, flies, beetles and worms; the hunger and poverty among the peasantry; the rapid increase in the price of everything; the increase of the cattle plague; the large spread of disease, etc.

Thirty buildings in Tyrone, Pa., were destroyed by fire yesterday; loss $125,000.

A village in Cuba has been destroyed by fire.

A dispatch from Pittsburgh, Pa., says: The glass trade here is at a stand-still. Of the forty-seven glass houses of all kinds on the South Side not one is in operation. The last of them was closed for midsummer vacation to-day. About 15,000 men and boys are idle in consequence of the suspension. The iron trade is also dull.

In the House of Commons, Premier Gladstone said the news of a Russian defeat by the Chinese was not confirmed, and was not believed, either by the Chinese or Russian representatives.

10th.—Four men (all colored) were hanged yesterday, one each in Ohio, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

Violent wind and rain storms are reported from Toronto, Canada, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Detroit, Michigan. At Toronto, on Lake Erie, much damage was done to shipping, also some at Detroit.

During June nearly fourteen million bushels of grain was shipped from New York City to foreign countries.

The country in the vicinity of Clinton, Illinois, was visited by a severe wind and rain storm yesterday, which did much damage to the crops, and almost totally ruined the fruit trees. The loss caused by the storm is placed at from $15,000 to $20,000.

Capt. Payne, at the head of 300 settlers, has evaded the vigilance of the United States troops, and invaded and taken possession of a tract of land in the Indian Territory, contrary to the proclamation of the President. It is stated that Payne courts arrest, in order to determine whether the Territory is open to settlement.

Three transport ships, with seven battalions of troops, and ordnance and ammunition, have left Constantinople for the Albanian coast. Great secrecy was maintained, but it seems probable that Turkey does not intend to cede any territory to Greece and Montenegro, as the Powers demand, without a little fighting first.

12th.—England and France advise Greece to postpone calling out reserve troops till an answer to their note is received from Turkey. The Turkish Minister of the Interior urges his Government to accept the demands of Europe, but the Sultan says that he can not surrender Moslem territory except he is compelled to do so.

There were five cases of sunstroke at Milwaukee yesterday. The thermometer ranged in that city from 100 to 105.

13th.—Gen. Gonzales has been elected President of Mexico to succeed President Diaz.

A book-keeper of the Treasury Department died yesterday from the effects of heat and overwork.

14th.—Last Sunday the armies of Albania and Montenegro engaged in battle and the former was victorious. Some sharp fighting in other places is also reported.

The Russian Government forbids the exportation of grain from that country this year. That will be a great disappointment to Germany and other countries that have depended on Russia for their grain supplies.

By a fire at Berlin, Germany, forty thousand volumes of books were destroyed, a valuable library of scientific and historical works, collected from all parts of the world.

The Chillians have landed their troops at Callao, which is eight miles from Lima, the Peruvian Capital, which they will then lay siege to. The capitulation of the town is expected in a few days.

Two sailors on board the bark Excelsior, now lying at the New Orleans Quarantine station, have been taken sick with the yellow-fever. It was on this vessel that the fatal case occurred Sunday.

Mrs. Van Cott, the woman evangelist, has retired from the field, probably forever. Her nervous system is broken down. And no wonder. During the fourteen years of her ministry she has traveled 143,417 miles, has preached 4,294 sermons, besides conducting 9,333 other religious meetings, and writing 9,853 letters.

Memphis was enlivened by an earthquake shock about nine o'clock last evening. The motion continued several seconds. No damage is reported.

Yesterday was a hot day all over the United States, perhaps the hottest since the heated term in July, 1878. In Chicago the thermometer reached 95, and in some quarters of the city it is claimed that it ranged even higher. [Hands were toiling in the Herald office, at Plano, with the thermometer at 99.—Comp.] There were thirty-three cases of sunstroke, of which thirteen were fatal. The victims were workmen who incautiously exposed themselves, or persons who indulged too freely in intoxicating liquor. Other places fared no better than Chicago. At Fort Wayne the thermometer reached 102; at Washington and Baltimore, 99; at Decatur and Galena, in this State, 96; at Pittsburgh, 95; while in New York the temperature was only 87. Several cases of sunstroke are reported from those places.

15th.—General Pope, commanding the military Department of the Missouri, has been ordered by telegraph from Washington to enter the Indian Territory at once, and to arrest and hold for trial all whites who have taken part in the invasion of the Territory. All who are found guilty of the second offense of invasion will be punished to the full extent of the law.

A dispatch from Denver, Colorado, says that by storms on the 12th and 13th, ten miles of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad was washed away between Pueblo and Colorado Springs, and every bridge, culvert and cattle guard for a distance of twenty-one miles was more or less injured. Bear Creek, a mountain stream emptying into the Platte River, was also flooded by the terrific storm, hailstones falling to the depth of from two to three feet. No lives lost.

Seven Cuban insurgents, recently made prisoners by the Spanish authorities, have been put to death. The victims were all sick when captured.

16th.—Another terrible explosion occurred in a Welsh coal-mine yesterday morning, by which it is thought that one hundred and nineteen lives were lost. The scene among the wives, mothers and children at the mouth of the pit after the explosion, is described as being woful and heart-rending in the extreme. In 1860 an explosion in the same mine caused the death of one hundred and forty-five persons. The explosive gas issues from a black seam in the mine, and, when dense enough, it takes fire from the lamps.

Three oil-tanks in the region around Bradford, Pa., were set on fire by lightning yesterday, and the loss which resulted is estimated at $115,000. The Bradford region has had many visitations of the same character during the past few months.

Captain Halstead, owner of the steamer Mary, whose boiler recently exploded on Lake Minnetonka, causing the death of four persons, was arrested, yesterday, on charge of having, through criminal carelessness, been the cause of the terrible accident.

A coal mine at Excelsior, Pa., burned yesterday, causing the loss of $25,000, and throwing 300 men and boys out of employment.

An attack has been made by the Turks on the Montenegrin outposts, on the River Zeta. One of the posts was taken, and ten men of the garrison made prisoners, and afterwards beheaded.

Seventy-two children died yesterday in New York from the effects of the intense heat.

A violent wind storm swept over the country in the vicinity of Chester, Pa., yesterday. In South Chester thirty-five houses were unroofed, seven partly-finished houses were blown down, and many trees and barns were leveled with the ground. Two men were seriously injured.

A whirlwind played havoc with the barns, orchards and fences in the vicinity of Hanover, N. H., yesterday.

Another series of oil fires occurred at Bradford, Pa., yesterday morning. Three tanks were ignited by lightning, and notwithstanding the efforts to draw off the oil the tanks and contents were entirely destroyed. It is estimated that 160,000 barrels of oil have been consumed during the two days.

Forest-fires have been raging in New Brunswick since Tuesday night, and all efforts to get them under control have been so far unavailing.

Yesterday a family of six persons (colored) was discovered in an apartment ten feet square at St. Louis. Three other members of the family had died in the apartment of scarlet fever.

An extensive land swindle has been discovered in Marshall county, Kansas. Forged abstracts of title have been furnished to unsuspecting purchasers. The operators have not been arrested.

Captain Payne, who has been invading the Indian Territory with a body of squatters has been arrested by the army officers.

19th.—A Constantinople dispatch reports that some Christians have been massacred at Adana in Asia Minor.

The Montenegrin question is reported to have been amicably settled. Turkey awaits consent of the Powers to the arrangement.

Between 1,300 and 1,400 Utes are receiving supplies from the Government at the Southern Ute Agency, Colorado, and they are said to be peaceably disposed and likely to continue so unless hostilities are precipitated by the whites. Their reservation is ninety miles in length and fifteen miles in width, comprising excellent grazing and hunting grounds. They do not take kindly to agriculture, and will probably never do much as farmers.

20th.—An excursion train was wrecked yesterday in Indiana, by reason of a rail breaking, six cars being thrown from the track. One passenger was killed and many were wounded, several of whom will die.

A cyclone swept in a south-westerly direction through a part of Monroe county, Michigan, Sunday night, totally destroying the corn and grain crops of a district seven miles long and about three-fourths of a mile wide. The loss is estimated at $20,000.

The Sioux Indians object to the Milwaukee & St. Paul Rail Road Company laying tracks through their reservation. The savages have driven the engineers and surveyors of the road out of their country.

An Indian party has raided the grazing district near Dodge City, Kansas, driving off several herds of horses and cattle. A herder was shot at by the savages, and had a horse killed under him, but he managed to escape.

The steamer Dessouk, with the Egyptian obelisk in tow, has arrived at New York. The obelisk will be placed in one of the city parks.

21st.—Turkey is making extensive preparations for a war with Greece. Russia warns Turkey to let Montenegro alone and not assist the Albanians against the Montenegrins.

An earthquake has occurred on the Philippine Islands, the city of Manilla suffering especially. These Islands are in the Pacific, east of the China Sea, and are owned by Spain. Full particulars of the destruction and distress not yet known.

Severe and destructive storms are reported from Cumberland and Luzerne counties, Pennsylvania, buildings, crops and cattle being destroyed by wind, rain and lightning.

Dispatches from Milford, Contocook and Manchester, New Hampshire, mention earthquake shocks at those places last evening. Buildings trembled, and dishes, pictures, etc., were shaken.

Utah has a population of 144,000, being an increase of sixty five per cent in ten years. Of the population, 112,000 are said to be Mormons.

The village of Remus, France, has been burned. Ninety eight houses were destroyed.

The French nobility, irrespective of party, are arranging for a caucus to favor the Government alienation of France from her Church, upon the ground that the alliance is provocative of interminable feuds, disasters, and is subservient to the enemies of the Government.

Correspondence.

BEVIER, Missouri,
July 21st, 1880.

Henry A. Stebbins, Dear Brother:—At the close of Brother John H. Lake's labors here, Brother Springer having left here on the 10th inst., it becomes proper that I should review them to you, and note their results, because of the correspondence previously held between us, and because I know that you, in common with myself and all who love order, peace, harmony and the successful workings of the Spirit of God, will be thankful to learn how good a work has been accomplished here, through the joint efforts of brethren Lake and Springer. To God be the glory.

July 3rd Bro. Lake arrived here, in time to participate in a Fourth of July picnic, gotten up by the Saints. He entered with a zest into the enjoyments of the day, delivering also a most appropriate address, from a gospel standpoint, and before night he was established on a familiar and friendly footing with all. In the afternoon of the 5th Brother B. V. Springer arrived. The two brethren spent a few days in friendly intercourse with the Saints, delivering also several discourses suited to the occasion and purposes of their mission. They investigated carefully and prayerfully the situation, its leading causes, present surroundings and past circumstances, and, in a spirit of love and kindness, rendered their decision, which was accepted and adopted by concurrent resolution of the Saints.

It may be stated in brief, that, without disturbing matters prior to, and transactions of, the meetings held February 19th and 20th, 1880, they decided that the subsequent acts of disorganization and reorganization, with appointment of officers and other acts connected therewith, were illegal, and consequently null and void, and that the Saints reunite as one body, recommending a general re-union of hearts by forgetting the past, and with one accord forgive each and all, fully and freely, and thereby at one blow effectually crush out the spirit of evil, and let the Spirit of God take full possession of their minds and hearts, and thus commence anew the race for eternal life.

At a subsequent meeting these resolutions were reaffirmed by unanimous vote, and a resolution was added, the more effectually to bury the past in oblivion, that a new record be purchased. Bro. Lake has since delivered several most appropriate discourses, awakening a new interest in the latter day work, which I pray God may widen and deepen, until every honest soul here may become a member of his kingdom. Bro. Lake baptized four yesterday, and there are more to follow. Thus has the Master set his seal of approval upon the work of his servants. It was my privilege to accompany Bro. Lake to the Salt River Branch, where, after several discourses to attentive listeners, he baptized three. Thus the good work goes on. Thanks to God.

The term of former president (Bro. G. T. Griffiths) having expired by limitation, Bro. Charles Perry has been elected to fill the vacancy in the Bevier Branch. Thus has dawned a new era, which I pray may conduce to God's glory, and result in the present and eternal happiness of every Saint in Bevier Branch. Bro. Lake sends kind regards to you; he goes to Hannibal tomorrow (22d).

Yours in the gospel,
EDWARD L. PAGE.

Editors Herald:—It gives me real pleasure to notice the freedom and spirit exhibited in the columns of our noble Herald in publishing articles pro and con. This is the great weeding hoe of the vineyard, if well handled. Let me commend the author of The Mother of Harlots, in the last issue. Some one may inquire if this is not the Church of Rome what is it? Rome has seven hills and the seat of the church is there. This is a mistake. The woman sits upon seven mountains; these are not hills; and if we believe the mountain of Israel to be the tribe of Israel, and mountain of Ephraim to be the people of Ephraim, we can not take this term for a literal hill, or mountain. These are nations and tribes, and the beast is their head. This woman sits, first upon the waters, then upon the beast, and the angel explains what the waters mean; that they are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues. Thus it seems that she is amongst all nations; and mark, her name is Mystery, and she sits as a queen, the great city that beareth rule over the kings of the earth. What a powerful woman. If she is mysterious she is not exhibited publicly as a church is; therefore her mysteries are hid, and the kings of the earth must come bending to her.

Let the Saints not drink out of a cup that they know not the contents thereof, that they may not drink of the wrath and indignation that will surely come upon this woman; let us walk in the light and let her mysteries perish.

CLAY CENTER, Clay Co., Kan.,
July 4th, 1880.

Bro. Stebbins: We are all well, although a severe storm shook many houses down on July 2d. All the Saints are trying to live so as to receive the blessings of heaven. I think we are well blessed with health, crops, rain and friends; and, greater, we have the gospel preached, also the written word to study. The Goshen Branch numbers eighteen members; two were baptized last Sunday, by Bro. Alma Kent. I live in the city of Clay Center—the gospel was never preached here. The branch is ten miles north. The Court-house can be had for preaching in. Some here have read our works. I go to hear all, and reason with them. I have sent the revelation on the rebellion to the editor of our county paper. To-day the Presbyterians congregated with the Methodists, as their church was nearly blown down. Four persons were killed in the storm, July 2d. I think that Bro. I. N. Roberts will preach here this Fall, and I will help him. Till he comes I will talk and scatter tracts, books, &c. We have a big truth to tell, and it is time we were at it.

Your brother,
W. D. MCKNIGHT.

SHACKLEVILLE, Butler Co. Ala.,
July 12th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—Thursday, July 8th, Bro. G. H. Graves gathered the first fruits of his labors in his southern field baptizing one. Through the kindness of Bro. G. T. Chute, Bro. Graves and I came to the district conference held here. The brethren seemed very well satisfied with the conference. Sunday evening two presented themselves for baptism. I feel that my love and zeal for the cause are increasing, although my way at times seemed to be hedged up, but I am hopeful of victories in the future. Brethren, pray for this mission.

Yours in Christ,
FRANK P. SCARCLIFF.

LAMONI, Iowa,
July 6th, 1880.

We were recently favored with a visit from Bro. John H. Lake; through whose labors we were instructed and comforted; and with whom we were loth to part. Brethren Briggs Alden and S. Longbottom paid us a visit, also leaving encouraging testimonies with us. Lamoni is quiet just now; the railroad branching off two miles east of us, and a prospective town at that point is the probable cause of the lull in business. The Saints are dropping in, one by one, and making purchases, however; and we have confidence that all is working to our good. We are now being favored with a neat little church-house, 24 x 36 feet, standing just west of the town, which we class among the rich blessings conferred by our Heavenly King. This favor is proffered through the kindness of Sr. Dancer. Some rich testimonies are being borne by the Saints in this part, and the Master by his Holy Spirit is working with us. Our District Conference (just closed) was considered one of the best ever held in the district; and we believe that good was done to those without. Our worthy district president (Bro. J. Snively) is alive to his duties, and the effect of his labors are already seen and felt.

HENRY C. SMITH.

CASEY, Adair Co., Iowa,
July 9th, 1880.

Dear Herald:—We have only those of the world to mingle with here, therefore we often feel lonesome. If it were not for the Herald, Hope and Advocate, I do not know what we would do. We would like to see Bro. James Caffall's address in the Herald. He spent a few days with us once, and they were happy ones. We never regretted parting with any one so much as we did him. What a good influence true Latter Day Saints can carry with them. God will bless all such. We desire an interest in your faith and prayers. It is hard to be deprived of the society of God's people. Bro. Stamm paid us a visit in April. We enjoyed his company. I think he tries to serve the Master. People here are very much opposed to our doctrine, but that need not prevent any Elder from calling to see us. We will make them welcome, or any of the Saints.

On the 7th a very severe storm did much damage to crops. When I look around and see the pride and wickedness I think how it must vex the Lord. If any Saint has a little girl to spare, from seven to ten years of age, we should like to take her. Address, W. N. Ray, Casey, Adair Co., Iowa.

Praying that God will bless all who love him and keep his commandments, I am your sister in the gospel,

NEW CANAAN, Fairfield Co., Conn.,
July 18th, 1880.

Bro. Stebbins: If I am allowed to call you so, for I am not a member of your church, but I believe in truth and righteousness. I obeyed the gospel in London, England, in December, 1848, in Eli B. Kelsey's time of presidency of the London Conference. I enjoyed the teachings, and was blessed times out of number. I lived at the office, 43 Florence street, Islington, in 1866, the time of the French Exhibition, when N. H. Felt and C. W. Penrose were over the London Conference. That time I could see more than ever. John W. Young, Brigham Young, Jun., and wife, Pratt, Thurber, Roberts, and others that have slipped my memory, were there. Still I thought it was but the weakness of human beings, for most of them were good men; but John W. and Young Brigham, I did not think much of. I loved the truth, as I do still, and that brought me and my family to this country in 1871. On the 9th of May we landed at New York, from the steamer Wisconsin. Came here to Connecticut; stayed till September, 1877; started for Zion, arrived October 6th, 1877, in Salt Lake; went to Conference on Sunday, 7th. I felt good, and thankful to God; but I could not feel as good as I did in the conferences in England. I could not account for it; thought it was my fault perhaps. I prayed, but could not feel as I should like; was baptized into the fourteenth ward branch, and was made assistant Teacher; but I could not feel as I should like.

At length, in the Fall of 1879, I heard of the Josephites, as they call them; but I call them the true Latter Day Saints, for they have the laws of the Church that Joseph the martyr taught, and I believe practice the same. So should all good, honest, truthful men and women. Now I do not wish to try to deceive you, nor young Joseph Smith; but according to the ancient rule, I believe Young Joseph is in his right place as president of the Church that his father set up, or that God set up through his father. So, hearing of the Josephites, and knowing some of them, I thought I would go and prove for myself. At length Elder Luff, Elder Blair, and several others came along; but the proofs that Elder Luff gave began to satisfy my mind that they were the true Latter Day Saints. My feelings was more like the time when I first joined the Church. Like Elder Luff I was a Methodist, and in 1840 I was in ignorance. I, like his rest, signed a petition to put down the teachings of the elders in England; but the Lord knows the heart of man. I would like a list of your branches, for I would like to attend if I could. If there is one in New York; I go there sometimes.

Yours respectfully,
STEPHEN STONE.

ST. THOMAS, Ont.,
May 21st, 1880.

Bro. Joseph: I left home on the 4th of March; went north to Gray county again, in company with Bro. T. A. Phillips; made two more new openings, and Bro. Phillips baptized two; others are waiting till we go back, to be baptized. I expect to return there. Since October 10th, 1879, I have preached 123 times; held one debate; blessed 11 children; baptized 20; confirmed 24; traveled 1,287 miles, considerable portion on foot through mud; held and attended 15 prayer and testimony meetings; administered to 10 sick, with good results in every case; ordained one Teacher; held three public discussions, and three business meetings.

Since returning home I have written to Bro. Stebbins a complete detail of the district for recording, so far as I was able to obtain particulars; besides keeping up a newspaper war in Grey county ever since, as the preaching of the gospel in that part has stirred up the holy ire of several; I manage to keep introducing the doctrine through that medium. The editor, Mr. John McLaren, being very liberal and impartial.

I expect if I am permitted to return there again, to open a series of meetings in Mount Forest—the principal town in that part. There are also several other important towns between here and there. I need your prayers to aid me. Now that I have had a taste of the work and the enjoyment of the Spirit during the active work, I am getting a little rusty, and perhaps morbid by not being engaged much, except temporarily, for I am working with my hands to try and get things set to rights so that I can be clear again.

Yours in the covenant,
J. A. McINTOSH.

BLUE RAPIDS, Kansas,
July 7th, 1880.

Editors Herald:—When I wrote last to the Herald I supposed it would be the last I should write, but it has pleased the Lord to lengthen out my days far beyond my expectation; and, having a little leisure, I devote it to pen a few lines to my spiritual children and many friends, who would like to know if I am living and where I am, and how occupied. This city, called North Blue Rapids, is my settled home, and I expect it will be till I die, unless the Lord should command his Saints to gather before that time. I have performed the last mission, it is probable, I ever will in this state of existence. I left here early in April and returned the last of June. I preached in Southern Nebraska and Western Iowa. In all my administrations I was greatly blessed of the Lord; and I rejoice to say that, as a general thing, and so far as I had a chance to know, the Saints I saw are aware of the importance of living their profession in all their dealings with men. This is as it should be, as an Elder can preach with confidence and with a sure hope of doing good where the Saints are famed for honesty.

I have been called by revelation to preside over this branch, of which office I feel very unworthy, but I can do all that is required if the Lord strengthens me; and, by his help I will strive to magnify the office. If I do it will occupy all my time. Since our February conference there have been added to the branch by baptism about 17 or 18 souls, and yet they come, for one more is to be baptized next Sunday. And we enjoy a good degree of the Lord's Spirit. The gifts are enjoyed in our meetings; there are crowded congregations, even in our prayer and testimony meetings.

To all who are interested in the glorious work of the last days, I will say that this is the forty-third year I have been engaged in presenting this gospel of the kingdom, and if I had a hundred years more to live I would spend them all in the same way; because I know this work is of God. Precious Saints, even all who love this cause, I beseech you to be faithful and diligent in keeping the commandments of God, that you may be entire, wanting nothing. We want to hear Him say, "Well done good and faithful servant." If we are so, he will give us the credit which is our due. If not faithful we can not expect commendation from one so just as he. And if there is anything which we can mend, let us continue to improve until we become perfect as our Father in heaven is perfect, and so fulfill that command of Jesus recorded in Matthew 5:15, Inspired Translation. It is essential to our salvation, or we would not be so commanded by one who is perfect in knowledge. Dear children, secure your salvation, even if it should be at the loss of all things else. My prayer is, May the Lord redeem Zion, and gather his people together as a hen gathers her chickens under her wings.

Your brother in the Lord,
JOHN LANDERS.

SALEM, Marion Co., Oregon,
July 2d, 1880.

Bro. Henry: I have just closed a discussion in Scio, Linn county. It was to have lasted six days, but my opponent got tired of it, and wanted to close on the fourth day. The three propositions that we engaged to discuss were: "Resolved that man is unconscious in death, having no conscious existence independent of physical organism." "Resolved that Christ has never set up a kingdom on earth, neither will he until after the resurrection of the dead." "Resolved that the canon of scripture is not full, but that God, by his Spirit, will reveal his will to man, from time to time, until the second advent of the Lord."

The first two propositions were affirmed by Elder Sherrell of the Church of God, (so called), and the last by your humble servant. The result of the debate may be guessed from a remark made by a constant attendant, "Soul sleeperism is dead in this place, and it never can revive again." We made many friends and removed much prejudice, and I think it quite possible that good will come of our controversy.

I have more calls than I can attend to in this part; but I must go across the mountain, and do my work over there before it gets too late in the season. I am anxious to see all the Saints in Oregon this summer, so I may be able to make out a report of the mission; but I do not know whether I shall be able to make anything like a correct report or not; for the Saints are so scattered that they can not get together. I wrote you that I was going to try to reorganize the Sweet Home Branch, but I have made no attempt yet, for there is no suitable material to organize a branch out of, which is the general complaint in this part of Oregon. There are some very excellent Saints in Oregon; but those that would aid the Church spiritually, are not gifted in that way, and those that would aid it temporarily have not the means to do so. There is but one Elder preaching in this State, that is Bro. John Buckingham, of eastern Oregon. He is a sound preacher, and a zealous defender of the faith; but his age and circumstances will not allow him to travel far from home. He also presides over the Prairie City Branch.

I can not say that prospects are as bright in Oregon as I would like to see them, yet I see some indications of good being done for the cause. I have enjoyed a great deal of the Spirit lately in preaching, which is a good omen. The temporal outlook for Oregon was never better. Unless the grain is struck with rust or blight, or something of that kind, they will have the biggest crop ever known in Oregon. The State Fair in progress now in Salem is the center of attraction. People are suffering from high water along the Willamette and Columbia rivers. Some of the principal streets in Portland can be traversed by boats, and the end is not yet; for there is yet over twenty feet of snow in the Cascades, and if the hot weather continues a great deal of damage will be done on the low lands.

July 11th.—Since writing the above I have been up into Linn county and baptized two more, a gentleman by the name of Thomas and his wife. May the Lord seal them heirs of glory. There are others in that place not far from the kingdom. Love to all.

As ever your brother in Christ,
J. C. CLAPP.

KEOKUK, Iowa,
July 9th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—I left Montrose to-day; will remain here over Sunday, and next week go to Vincennes and String Prairie; thence to Farmington, &c. Some other adults of "good report" at Montrose are "almost persuaded." We had a hallowed time on Sunday afternoon last. Some say it was the best meeting had in Montrose for many years. The Holy Spirit was manifested in tongues, interpretation and prophecy. A feeling of humility prevailed, and touching prayers and testimonies ensued. I have baptized six there and others are nigh the kingdom. God bless the honest hearted in Montrose and elsewhere.

Yours in hope of ultimate triumph,
J. FRANK McDOWELL.

NEWPORT, Los Angeles Co., Cal.,
July 6th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—We had a very pleasant Fourth at Laguna Canyon. Brethren from Newport Branch, and El Monte friends, met with the Laguna Branch. Surf bathing was the order of the day Saturday and speechifying by young and old in the afternoon. Sunday three meetings; and we had the pleasure of baptizing another young man in the afternoon. That branch is trying to live right and God is blessing them.

Yours respectfully,
JOSEPH BURTON.

Evening: Preaching by Joseph Smith.

Sunday: At 10:30 a.m., a dedicatory sermon was delivered by President Joseph Smith. Afternoon, preaching by Columbus Scott. Evening, by Heman C. Smith.

Monday, 31st: The committee on report of Bishop's Agent reported it as being correct.

The petition of the Forester Branch, asking for the organization of a district in the north-eastern part of Michigan, was considered, and it was resolved that, as some in that region desire to be set off into a separate district, but as this conference is not in possession of information showing the necessity or expediency of such a separation, and believing that the wisdom and propriety of favoring such separate district could be better determined by a conference held in the vicinity where said district is proposed to be formed, with the parties present who are to compose the proposed district, therefore, Resolved that a further consideration of the question be postponed until a conference may be held there, and that such a conference be held at such time and place as may be agreed upon, between the district president and the parties desiring such a separation, and that due notice thereof be given through the Herald.

Elders M. T. Short, Columbus Scott, Heman C. Smith, Gomer Griffiths, G. A. Blakeslee and Wm. H. Kelley reported in person, also Norman Smith.

A resolution was adopted providing for the organization of a branch at Galien, if deemed practicable.

One confirmed by Joseph Smith and G. T. Griffiths.

Adjourned to meet at Coldwater on call of the president.

Adjourned to Addison, September 18th, 1880.

PITTSFIELD DISTRICT.

A conference convened at the North Bend School House, Pike county, Illinois, June 19th, 1880; Jackson Goodale, presiding; Emma E. Johnson, clerk.

Branch Reports:—Pittsfield 43; 1 baptized. North Bend, as last reported. Alma and New Canton not reported.

Elders J. Goodale, C. Mills, D. Wetherbee (baptized 5), and Priest H. Wetherbee reported.

At 8 p.m., preaching by C. Mills.

Sunday, 20th: At 9 a.m., prayer meeting. Enjoyed a pleasant season until 10:45, when a short recess was taken, before preaching, at 11, by Bro. J. Goodale. Met again for preaching by Bro. Goodale, after which baptism was administered to one. Adjourned to Pittsfield at call of the president.

LITTLE SIOUX DISTRICT.

A conference convened in Little Sioux, Iowa, June 5th, 1880; J. C. Crabb, president; P. Cadwell, assistant; Wm. C. Cadwell, secretary; J. F. Mintun, assistant.

Brn. Hugh Lytle, John Thomas, J. M. Putney, Branson Lewis, and others, spoke on the past history and present experiences of the Church, and the present and future needs of the work.

Branch Reports:—Spring Creek, last report 46, present 47; 1 received. Union Centre 89; no changes, 3 ordinations. Evening Star, last report 29, present 30; 3 baptized, 2 removed, 2 ordained. Pleasant View, last report 20, present 20; 1 baptized, 1 removed. Magnolia 146; no changes. Little Sioux, last report 130, present 133; 4 received, 1 died, 1 ordained. A new branch, called Maple Landing Branch, was reported as having been organized with 7 members, but report was referred back to branch for correction. No reports were received from Unionburg and Six Mile Grove branches.

Spiritual condition of branches was reported as follows; Union Center by J. M. Putney, Evening Star by Levi Gamet, Pleasant View by J. F. Mintun, Magnolia by J. C. Johnson, Little Sioux by J. H. Condit, and Maple Landing by Franklin Price.

Sunday school reports were received from the Evening Star, Magnolia and Little Sioux branches, and by resolution all the Sunday Schools in the district were requested to report quarterly, after having submitted such reports to and having them approved by their respective schools.

Official Reports: Elder David Chambers and Priest Benj. Kester by letter, and Elders Hugh Lytle, J. F. Mintun, J. C. Crabb, Wm. C. Cadwell, John Thomas, J. W. Wight, Levi Wilson, Phineas Cadwell, D. M. Gamet, G. W. Conyers, John Conyers, Branson Lewis, R. Cobb, Donald Maule, Henry Garner, Isaiah Bellville, E. R. Lanpher, Z. S. Martin, J. B. Lytle, J. M. Putney, G. R. Outhouse, J. H. Condit, and Priests B. M. Green, M. Dougherty, G. W. Conyers, J. C. Johnson, Franklin Price, Wm. H. Bradford, Levi Gamet and Andrew Ballentyne, and Deacon Elisha McEvers in person.

Elders Harvey, Johnson and Mintun were appointed to investigate the case of Bro. Shaw, ascertain the facts in the case, report the same to the presidency and clerk of the district, who, if they shall deem his offence sufficient to demand a trial, shall notify him to appear at the next quarterly conference for hearing.

Committee on case of Bro. J. S. Oliver reported that they had seen and labored with the brother; had found him guilty of the charges, by his own confession, but, inasmuch as he seemed sorry for what he had done, they recommend that he be forgiven by this conference, provided he make a public confession and proper restitution, and be recommended to the mercies of God. J. M. Harvey, Henry Garner and W. C. Cadwell committee. Accompanying this report was an acknowledgment, over Bro. Oliver's signature, of the charges made against him, and asking the forgiveness of the conference, promising better for the future, and expressing faith in the work.

Committee's report was received and they were discharged, and it was Resolved that we forgive Bro. Oliver and extend to him our prayers.

Bishop Gamet reported: "On hand at last report $21.26, received $17; paid out nothing; on hand $38.26."

Missions were appointed to E. R. Lanpher, Z. S. Martin and J. F. Mintun.

In answer to a question by the president, Bishop Gamet stated that, under the instructions of Bishop Rogers, he had a right to pay any monies in his hands to Elders in the field or their families, if necessary.

Sunday: At 10:30 a. m., preaching by J. C. Crabb, and afterwards three were baptized by Phineas Cadwell, and at 2 p. m., they were confirmed (with one other baptized by Geo. Montague), by Brn. Gamet, Martin and Thomas, followed by preaching by Z. S. Martin.

Milton Dougherty appealed from the action of the Pleasant View Branch, and, on motion, the presidency of the district were appointed to investigate the matter.

Adjourned to Magnolia, August 28th, 1880, at 10 a. m.

Levi Gamet was ordained an Elder by J. C. Crabb, Z. S. Martin and J. F. Mintun, by request of Evening Star Branch.

At 7:30 p. m., a prayer and testimony meeting was held, and God's Spirit was manifest in a great degree, especially by way of prophecy.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA DISTRICT.

A conference convened at San Bernardino, May 8th, 1880; S. Gardiner, president; J. F. Burton, assistant; Hiram L. Holt, clerk.

Resolved that we accept the "Rules of Order," to govern us in all our deliberative assemblies.

That J. F. Burton be the president over this district.

That all members shall have the privilege of voting on all questions coming before this conference.

That this conference is as a court of appeal, and that no branch business shall be presented to it except on an appeal.

That Bro. R. Allen is authorized to procure a book to keep conference minutes upon.

Sunday.—At 11 a. m., preaching by J. F. Burton; at 2 p. m., sacrament meeting; at 8 a. m., preaching by P. M. Betts.

Adjourned to Newport, California, November 13th, 1880, at 11 a. m.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICES.

TO THE SECOND QUORUM OF ELDESS—You are hereby respectfully reminded of the approaching Semi-Annual Conference, and according to previous resolution of the Quorum, every member is requested to report previous to convening of Conference; so that the secretary may be enabled to make a full report of the labors of the quorum. The brethren are requested to report past labors performed—when and where; and our present willingness to labor for Zion's cause; also, if acting as district or branch officers. May we be able to make an excellent record in our behalf, by our earnest endeavors in the gospel, and may the peace of the Lord and the power of his Holy Spirit be and abide with you, brethren, is the prayer and desire of yours in gospel bonds. Address Donald Maule, secretary, Magnolia, Harrison county, Iowa, or Wm. Chambers, Nephi, Harrison county, Iowa. Please send in your reports on, or before the 25th day of August 1880.

WM. CHAMBERS, Pres. of Quorum.

JULY 8th, 1880.

EASTERN IOWA DISTRICT.—The quarterly conference of the above district will be held in the Jackson Branch, August 14th and 15th, instead of the 7th and 8th.

EDWARD LARKEY, District President.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA DISTRICT.—The several branch presidents and clerks, and the priesthood bearing members of the Southern Nebraska District are respectfully requested to forward to my address, at South Bend, Cass county, Nebraska, all reports or other conference business, that will not be personally presented. Would also like to hear from the scattered Saints living in the District.

ROBERT M. ELVIN, Secretary.

WARNING—Understanding that William Pond, late an Elder and member of the Saint Joseph Branch, has been representing himself as still an Elder of the Church, notice is hereby given that he was disfellowshipped, August 17th, 1879, and therefore is not entitled to the privileges of the Church, as either an Elder or member.

JOHN C. MCINTYRE, President; ROBERT WINNING, Clerk of the St. Joseph Branch, Far West, Mo., District.

ERRATA.—In the Pacific Slope Conference minutes as received here it was stated that Brn. John Roberts and Richard Allen, Sen., each made reports as Bishop's Agents. The former's report was on a separate sheet, and the latter's was copied into the minutes by the conference secretary in California. As Bro. Robert's annual report to Bishop Rogers had already been printed with other annual reports of Agents, it was not necessary to publish the items again in the California minutes, but it should have been published that he reported and the Herald Supplement have been referred to for items; but, in some way, the name of Bro. Roberts was left in the minutes attached to the report really made by Bro. Allen, and the latter's name was left out. All will therefore please take notice that in the Pacific Slope minutes in Herald of July 1st, Bro. Richard Allen's name should appear in the place of Bro. John Roberts' in connection with the itemized report there published. We are very sorry that the mistake occurred at our hands and hereby apologize therefor.

WANTED TO KNOW.

Please insert in the Herald that Charles Tyler, of No. 8, Raglan Road, Smethwick, near Birmingham, England, wants to know the whereabouts of Thomas P. Tyler, native of Herefordshire, England, who the Herald in the latter part of '79 said was blind. It is important that he write to this address at once.

DIED.

GILBERT.—On June 16th, 1880, at the age of 5 years and 4 months, Frederic W. only child of Bro. John and Sr. Elizabeth Gilbert of Fall River, Massachusetts, who feel deeply this loss, as does also the household of Bro. and Sr. McKee, grand parents of the child. His death was quite sudden, being taken with convulsions, while he was apparently recovering from measles. Services were held in the house. Sermon from Eccles. 12:7, and 1 Thess. 4: 13-18, by Elder T. W. Smith. This is the second time Bro. and Sr. Gilbert have been thus bereaved. Doubtless their loss is the child's gain, and the separation is but for a short season.

Dear brother and sister take courage, Though sorrow your hearts overflow; The land were Freddie now dwelleth, No sickness or suffering can know; The plant that was so tenderly nourished, By human, yet willing hands here; In Paradise soil is now blooming, Cared for by angel hands there.

NORTON.—At 17 Arthur Road, Stoke Newington, London, England, April 21st, 1880, of dropsy, sister Florence Jane Norton, aged 10 years, 5 months and 25 days. She was born at London, England. A sweeter spirit it has never been the lot of the writer to meet. A holy instinct seemed ever to cause her to be on the alert for a trial or care, or toilsome labor that she might lighten the trials of others with the loving sympathy of her pure soul. The ordinary duties of the household became nothing less than a source of delight, and her cheery presence helped more than merely physical aid can, and she associated herself in such a way with every household object that the eye can not rest anywhere, but they speak of dear "Florrie." Gratitude and never ceasing praise be unto our God and his Christ, for the glorious hope which alone can reconcile us to his wise will in this thing. She was baptized early in 1878, by her grand-father, Bro. C. D. Norton, and though young in years she was a woman in knowledge and lived according to the gospel. Funeral sermon by Elder R. Kendrick.

CORBLY.—At Reese Creek, Montana, June 1st, 1880, Mrs. V. Corbly. Deceased leaves a husband and six children to mourn her loss, who have the sympathy of a host of friends. Mrs. Corbly was a devoted wife and a loving mother, and respected by all who knew her, and we believe that had she lived she would have embraced the gospel. Funeral services by Elder A. B. Moore.

BRIGHOUSE.—At Chicago, Illinois, July 1st, 1880, of cholera infantum, Harry William, son of James and Charlotte Brighthouse, in the seventh month of its earthly life. Buried July 2d, in Graceland Cemetery. Funeral services by Mark H. Forscutt. Its body laid away among the flowers, its spirit at peace; of such is the kingdom of heaven.

FULLER.—At her residence near New Boston, Mercer county, Illinois, May 18th, 1880, of sinking chills, sister Salome Fuller, wife of the late Elder Joseph Fuller, aged 41 years, 8 months, and 26 days. Funeral discourse by Elder D. S. Holmes, from Rev. 14: 13.

MASTERS.—At Newman's Grove, Madison Co., Nebraska, June 27th, 1880, sister Emily, wife of Bro. George Masters. Sister Masters was born at New Haven, Huron county, Ohio, October 3d, 1843; was baptized at Swan Creek, Saginaw county, Michigan, July 30th, 1876, by Bro. Robt. Ochring. A few short months ago she left her home and kindred in Michigan to come West, where she became the wife of Bro. Masters, on the 6th of August, 1879. She died in the faith. May her rest be glorious. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. H. J. Hudson, and sermon preached by Bro. Heman C. Smith.

CALEY.—July 10th, 1880, Dolly daughter of James H. and Mary J. Caley, aged 11 months and 26 days. Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

JENSEN.—At Nebraska City, Neb. July 10th, 1880, from the effects of the measles, Frank, son of Brother and Sister Niels H. and Fanne Jensen, aged 1 year, 1 month, 7 days. Funeral sermon by Robert M. Elvin; text Luke 18: 16.

I LOVE TO TELL THE STORY.

I love to tell the story,
Of how an angel came Unto the prophet Joseph,
The gospel to proclaim,
To every tongue and people
That on the earth doth dwell.
And while I live to tell it,
The story I will tell.

CHORUS.—I love to tell the story;
I'll give to God the glory;
That e'er I heard the story
Of Jesus and his love.

I love to tell the story,
And show salvation's plan;
How God, the righteous Father,
Reveals his will to man;
And worketh mighty wonders,
As in the ancient days;
The same God (never changing)
Now, yesterday, always.

I love to tell the story;
How wonderful it seems;
That God should send his people
Gifts, visions, tongues and dreams;
And plant so firm within them
A hope that will not fail,
And cheer them by his Spirit,
Though erring, weak, and frail.

I love to tell the story,
Because I know 'tis true;
I have not guessed, nor learned it,
I tell the truth to you.
And all may have this knowledge,
Who will the call obey,
And strive to gain the kingdom
In God's appointed way.

I love to tell the story;
I'll tell it o'er and o'er.
Had I the tongues of angels,
I'd tell it evermore.
I'll always tell the story,
Till Christ shall come to reign;
God help me by Thy Spirit,
I tell it not in vain.

Letter From Elder D. H. Bays.

THIS letter came too late for reporting to April Conference, and we therefore improve the opportunity to give it a first-half insertion. It contains interesting matter:

Editors Herald:—Since my report to the Semi-Annual Conference, last fall, I have preached in Bell, Bandera and Bexar counties, Texas, with comparatively good results. The protracted drouth in that country at the time, was of such severe character, it was thought by the most ardent lovers of the cause there, to be impracticable for us to remain longer in that field. Accordingly we started, October second, with Bro. O. D. Johnson, of Bandera, and traveled by team to our home in Iowa, a distance of some eleven or twelve hundred miles. At this season of the year it was considered risky, but still it was thought to be more tolerable than to remain with a large family in a drouth-stricken country, without means of support. I never gave up a field more reluctantly, from the fact that the preceding year had been one of success in the ministry, which rendered all who were interested in the mission sanguine that it would be one of benefit to the Church. Such however are the reverses and disappointments incident to this life.

We arrived at Bro. H. L. Thompson's, in Bell county, October 12th, where we remained several days, preaching, and waiting in the hope to receive some intelligence respecting the action of conference upon my releasement, as well as to receive some word from Bro. Rogers. Disappointed in these expectations, we were compelled to move on. Being without money, Bro. Thompson kindly loaned me money to take me to Kansas, for which act of kindness he has our thanks.

On the seventh of November we arrived at Bro. Charles Bird's, near Weir City, Kansas, where by arrangement of the Pleasant View Branch, I spoke twice the Sunday following. Resuming our journey, we moved slowly northward, through intervals of rain, mud, cold and snow, till we arrived at our home in Galland's Grove, Iowa, on December 1st, after a hard, tedious journey of two months. Thus ended the most trying, the most toilsome, and I may, with some propriety add, the most fruitless, of all the missions I ever performed.

After a few weeks for rest and preparation for the winter, I again began active work in the ministry. By urgent request I went to Maple Valley, in Ida county, some forty miles distant, and commenced preaching on January 9th, and continued till the 14th, when I spoke on the "Sabbath and the Law." My old friend and opponent, Mr. Bartlett, with whom I had held two public discussions, had, but a short time previously concluded a four-weeks' meeting; and, as usual, his hobby was the "Sabbath" and "Sleep of the Dead." We spoke on the Sabbath question by urgent and repeated solicitations of the people. This somewhat excited the Advent element, who sent for Mr. Bartlett to return, which he did a few days after my departure for home, and reviewed me from notes taken by one of his friends. It was thought by many that he misrepresented our views of the question, and he was asked to meet the writer in public discussion on the points at issue. He agreed to do so, and the next day a messenger came to inform me of it. Accordingly, arrangements were made for the debate to commence on Tuesday, January 27th. The following are the propositions discussed. 1. The Scriptures teach that the law enjoining the observance of the seventh day of the week, or Saturday, as the Sabbath of the Lord, is binding in the Christian dispensation. 2. Does the first day of the week, or Sunday, receive the sanction of the New Testament, as a holy day, or weekly Sabbath of rest. 3. The Scriptures teach that there is a spirit in man that survives the death of the body in a conscious state, and that this spirit is immortal.

The debate on the Sabbath question continued four nights. Mr. Bartlett had boasted, in his lectures, of having demolished every man he ever met on this Sabbath question, and especially "Elder Bays." In view of this, the people asked to have the matter settled by vote of the congregation. To this Mr. Bartlett objected, on the ground that the prejudice existing against him was so strong that the public mind was not capable of doing him justice. To this a member of the congregation replied, that no man had ever come into the community with a stronger prejudice to meet than had we; he therefore thought the objection rather flimsy. Notwithstanding Mr. B's objections, the vote was taken, and ten thus declared that Mr. Bartlett had sustained his proposition by scriptural argument, while the entire remaining portion of the audience voted negatively, or in favor of Sunday, the Lord's day, as being the day on which Christians should worship.

One evening only was spent on the immortality of the soul. Not time enough to do justice to the subject, but enough, quite to satisfy the great majority of the people that the Bible declares that man has a spirit, or soul, that lives on after the dissolution of this mortal tenement of clay. Thus was a glorious victory won for the cause of divine truth, as the results clearly show. And to the Lord Omnipotent, and not to us, belongs all the honor and glory.

The discussion closed on Saturday, and I spoke Sunday night on the "Apostasy," and Monday night on the "Return to Primitive Christianity," with excellent liberty, to large and attentive audiences. The interest had become wide-spread and deep. Monday night five came forward. At this juncture I thought I should have to return home to provide for the wants of my family; but friends of the gospel declared the work must not be left thus. They accordingly provided the "things needful," and sent their "generosity," to the loved ones at home, by means of which I was enabled to remain with them, and continue the work.

Upon invitation of the Rev. H. P. Dudley, pastor of the M. E. Church, then engaged in a protracted effort at Battle Creek, some six miles away, I agreed to speak in the church in his place, on Tuesday evening following, which was to close their meeting. Accordingly the announcement was made, and the intelligence soon reached the remotest bounds of "Hell's Bend," as the settlement where we had been holding meetings was euphoniously called. And not only so, but the good people of the village soon learned that the "Latter Day Saint preacher," was going to preach in the church, Tuesday night, February third.

The time came, and we were on hand early. About three p.m., the minister came and informed me that the affair had caused a great disturbance in camp. Some of the "leading members," including a local preacher, thought it would "work a great injury to the church;" and told him frankly that he had no right to invite me to preach there, and especially as it was the last night of their meeting; and that he must withdraw his consent to the arrangement. He came reluctantly and performed the duty (?) thus imposed upon him. To make some amends for this breach of courtesy, he insisted that I should be present and take some part in the meeting, assuring me that it was no fault of his that things had taken this sudden change.

On entering the house at an early hour we noticed groups of people in different parts of the building, earnestly engaged in conversation. It was observed that the minister and the "leading members" were in consultation. The house now was densely crowded. I was seated in the farther end of the building from the pulpit. Presently the preacher walked leisurely down the aisle to where I was sitting, and informed me that they had been "talking the matter over," and had discovered that the congregation would be "seriously disappointed," and had concluded, therefore, it would be better to let me preach. We declined, informing the brother that we were not driven to the necessity of begging opportunities to preach the gospel, and that we could not afford to be made the "cat's paw" for the occasion, to keep their chestnuts from burning; adding that it was not out of any respect for either me, or the church I represent, that they made the offer, but to save themselves from the inevitable consequences of their prejudice and folly. I finally consented to go forward and assist in opening the meeting. The opening services over, I returned to my seat in the congregation, evidently to the surprise of the audience, who supposed that I had consented to occupy the stand. Bro. Dudley offered an apology, and tried to preach, and did quite well, considering the circumstances under which he labored. I really felt sorry for him, for I do not think him at fault. He was forced to what he did by others. I believe him to be a candid, honest young man, and hope he may yet be freed from such manacles. The disappointment was so great that the citizens of the village and vicinity procured the Town Hall and asked me to give a series of discourses, which I agreed to do.

From this point I returned to the "Bend," and resumed meetings at that place on the following Friday. Several others were added at the close of the meeting on Wednesday, the 11th. On the 12th, we commenced the promised meeting in the hall at Battle Creek, and continued over Sunday. A profound interest was manifested throughout. It was said we had the largest audience on Sunday night of any that ever assembled in the place. We confess we felt somewhat flattered and very much encouraged.

From this point we returned to the "Bend" on Monday, to close up the work, and return home. On this occasion we gave a brief account of the rise and progress of the latter day work, (including a brief sketch of the Brighamite apostasy), the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, including some of the anti-quarian evidences of its divinity, &c. I seldom have better liberty in speaking than on this occasion. We also had the largest audience, it was said by many, of any that ever assembled at this place. Five more came forward at the close of this meeting.

There being no water for baptismal services near to any house, and the weather being cold, we had to defer the baptism to some other time. Quite a number of those uniting with us being working members of the Methodist Church, including a class leader, an intellectual, zealous man, desired to continue their prayer meetings and Sunday School. So we enrolled the names, sixteen in number, and proceeded to effect a kind of temporary organization, by electing a president and secretary. These duties fell upon Brn. H. Lampman and Wm. Foster, respectively. Thus they await my return to them sometime in April or May, when the ordinances of the Church will be administered to them, and a branch organized. Returned home on the 18th, after an absence of nearly four weeks.

In company with Bro. N. Booth, of Harlan, I went to the north east corner of Shelby county, holding several meetings. On Sunday, March 7th, we had the pleasure to baptize four precious souls into Christ.

I attended the quarterly conference of this district, at Harlan, and upon the whole, it was a very pleasant session.

Since my return from the Texas mission, I have been constantly engaged in trying to build up the Master's cause, and it is a source of gratification to know that my feeble efforts have not been wholly unsuccessful.

United They Stand.

THE Swedish colony in Aroostook county, Maine, celebrated its tenth anniversary last week. The colony began its settlement July 23, 1870, having the aid of the State until it could get fairly settled. A township of land was allotted to it; twenty-five log houses had been built and twenty-five clearings of five acres each made before the colonists arrived. The people were hardy and industrious, and their numbers were recruited from time to time. The first colony comprised fifty-one persons; the whole number now in the settlement is 777. The progress of the colony in ten years is thus set forth in the anniversary address:

These Swedes have cleared 4,406 acres of forest. They raised last year 971 tons of hay, 1,304 bushels of wheat, 5,287 bushels of rye, 1,605 bushels of buckwheat, 8,129 bushels of oats, 24,162 bushels of potatoes. They own 166 horses and 661 cattle, besides sheep and swine. In 1879 they made 2,000 pounds of cheese and 13,869 pounds of butter. The value of their farms, live stock, and farming implements and machinery is estimated at $120,000, and the value of their farm products last year at $24,000, where not a dollar was produced ten years ago. The settlement numbers 163 dwellings and 151 barns. Besides the Capitol, there is a church and five school-houses. Eleven miles of road have been turnpiked and 31½ miles have been grubbed and are made in a passable condition with the swamps corduroyed. From the founding of the colony to January 1, 1880, there had been 65 deaths and 216 births in this community.

The River Jordan.

Dear Herald:—Doubtless some of your readers have been met with the objection to baptism by immersion that I have; and on one occasion came near getting the worst of the argument in regard to it, simply because I was not informed enough to refute their assertions. The assertion was made and pretended authors referred to, to prove that the river Jordan was a little, narrow stream, (what we would call a ravine or rivulet), that it was dry, or nearly so, in many places, a great part of the year; and that it was physically impossible for the apostles to baptize three thousand at, or near Jerusalem in one day, by immersion, for the want of sufficient water to immerse in. This objection was made with such earnestness and zeal; with such apparent honesty and sincerity that when I referred to John's baptizing in Aenon, where there was much water, he also made use of that text to prove his first position concerning the scarcity of water in the river Jordan; that it was necessary for John to go where there was plenty of water, where the multitude who flocked to his meetings could find water to drink, do their necessary cooking, and water such animals as they had with them. Be this as it may, my purpose is to do away with the objections. I do not design to treat upon the mode of baptism, its necessity or purpose, but to learn what we can concerning the river Jordan. I quote from the Golden Censer of July 3d, 1880, page 77:

"THE JORDAN.

"This river has become noted for the many historic incidents that attach to it. Its many springs gush out from the mountains of Lebanon, and culminate in Lake Merom, and run out southward in a very rapid stream down through a rugged country of swamps and thicket, until it empties into Lake Genesareth—the Sea of Tiberias, or Galilee, where it gathers depth and volume as it winds through the undulating country and wilderness, until it empties into Lake Asphilites, or the Dead Sea, from the north, near Bethabara, and the mountains of Nebo, in the country of the Ammorites, with the land of Benjamin on the west, nearly opposite the city of Jerusalem. The distance from its source in straight lines is one hundred miles; viz., thirty miles from its principal source to Lake Merom, which is four miles in length; ten miles between this lake and the Sea of Galilee, which is thirteen miles in length, and sixty-four miles between this sea and the Dead Sea, into which it enters. Though the distance on a straight line is sixty-four miles, yet the river in its meanderings travels two hundred miles in running from its source to its mouth, and plunges over twenty-seven rapids. * * * The Jordan has inward and outward banks. The water is deep up to the inner banks, the bed of the river is generally deep, and [the water—Eds.] runs rapidly, and the stream is about one hundred feet wide, but widens out at the mouth. The outward banks have been washed out by the frequent overflows of water, which usually took place in the time of the harvest, in the latter part of the month of March. * * The Jordan no longer rolls down into the sea so majestically as in the days of Joshua, yet its ordinary depth is still about an average of ten feet, so that it was not passable at any place but at the fords."

We have here a river over a hundred and twenty miles long, passing through several lakes, or seas as they are sometimes called, a rapid stream, gathering depth and volume, plunging over twenty-seven rapids; the water deep up to the inner banks, in a stream one hundred feet wide, with an average depth of about ten feet, and only passable at the fords; and yet not water enough to baptize by immersion! Is that so?

As the above objection has been urged especially in regard to baptizing the three thousand on the day of Pentecost in the River Jordan, let us learn what we can about the condition of this river at the time of Pentecost. Jesus was betrayed at the feast of the Passover. (Matt. 26:17-25, 27, 49). The feast of the Passover began on the fourteenth day of the first month. (Exodus 12:6-11, 13, 18). This feast was in the time of the harvest. (I. Chron. 12:15). At this time the river was full, "For Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of the harvest."—Josh. 3:15. These feasts lasted seven weeks and one day, or fifty days. (Lev. 23:4-8, 15, 16). This brings it to the day of Pentecost, for after Christ had laid in the tomb three days he tarried with his disciples forty days. (Acts 1:3). They then went forth to witness his ascension. (Verses 9, 10) After which they returned to Jerusalem and entered their chamber, or upper room, and continued in prayer and supplication, until endowed with power from on high. (Verses 12-15. Luke 24:49. Acts 2:1-4). So if the Passover commenced on the fourteenth day of the first month, the time of their feasts lasting seven weeks or fifty days, (the number of days they tarried in their upper room we are not told), would bring the close of their feasts on the day of Pentecost, the third day of the third month. (Thirty days for a month). Then, if these feasts were in and during the time of the harvest, and the River Jordan overflowed all his banks during all the time of the harvest, was there not water enough in this river to baptize by immersion three thousand souls on the day of Pentecost, or at the end of their harvest time?

In reviewing this subject we have made no use of the many little lakes (or seas as they are sometimes called) and pools with which that country is dotted, but have confined our investigation to the river Jordan, for the benefit of those who may chance to meet with the same objections that the writer has often met.

Letter to a Friend.

MAGNOLIA, Harrison Co., Iowa,
July 8th, 1880.

Friend H—:—I agree with you about the little tract in verse that you sent. ("Walking with the World.") It does tell about the straight of the matter.

The same truth is set forth in prose by the Rev. Henry C. Fish, of Newark, N. J., in a "Premium Essay," entitled "Primitive Piety Revived." He says:

"The early churches . . . became lukewarm, and the Savior was ready to spew them out of his mouth. Sensible of their powerlessness, the next step was to seek aid in state support, and therefore they gladly allied themselves to worldly governments, by the overlaying of which the little life that remained was quite smothered to death. The simple rites of primitive times, as we are told, were amplified and adorned, and the holy and self-sacrificing spirit of apostles and martyrs took its flight. Christianity ascended the throne of the Cæsars, clothed herself in barbaric splendor, fared sumptuously every day, and became a proud, bloated carcass, splendid to the eye of man, but corrupt and offensive to the eye of God. Anti-christ arose; and then formalism and bigotry were enthroned in the professed church of Jesus Christ."—P. 189.

Again he says: "It is high time, as has been remarked, to inquire from how much of that enormous system (the Papacy) we have been rescued. For just so much of it as still clings to us, by just so much are we effectually disabled from doing the first works and emulating the first days of the Christian Church. Now, judging from the past, it is added, we should say, that the Reformation rescued us from only one-half of the evil."—P. 202.

Again he says: "The thoughtful, praying disciple, who has long waited for the glorious day predicted of old, will almost invariably exclaim: . . . Where is the more than trumpet breath that, with the thunders of the skies, and the voice of eternal truth, shall break in upon the slumbers of a luxuriant and unbelieving church! When shall another Luther rise up to reform us from our worldliness, even as the first delivered us from Popery!"—P. 233.

Soame Jenyns, in his "View of the Internal Evidence of the Christian Religion," well and truly says: "If it be asked, Why should not the belief in the same religion now produce the same effects? the answer is short, Because to so great an extent it is not believed. The most sovereign medicine can perform no cure, if the patient will not be persuaded to take it."—P. 82.

The illustrious John Wesley, of Oxford, England, preferred to believe the Scriptures rather than the opinions of uninspired men. In his ninety-fourth sermon, on the "More Excellent Way," (1 Cor. 12:31), he says:

"The cause of this [the disappearance of the extraordinary gifts had in the primitive church] was not, as has vulgarly been supposed, because there was no more occasion for them, because all the world had become Christians. This is a miserable mistake. Not a twentieth part was nominally Christian. The real cause is because the love of many waxed cold—the Christians had no more of the Spirit of God than the other heathens.—The Son of Man, when he came to examine his Church, could hardly find faith on the earth. This is the real cause why the extraordinary gifts of the Holy Ghost were no longer to be found in the Christian Church because the Christians were turned heathens again, and had only a dead form left."

All this agrees with the Book of Mormon which says:

"All these gifts of which I have spoken, which are spiritual, never will be done away, even so long as the world shall stand, only according to the unbelief of the children of men.

And now I speak unto all the ends of the earth, that if the day cometh that the power and gifts of God shall be done away among you, it shall be because of unbelief. And we be unto the children of men if this be the case; for there shall be none that doeth good among you, no not one. For if there be one among you that doeth good, he shall work by the power and gifts of God."—Moroni 10:1, 2, B. M.

The Rev. Charles G. Finney, of yesterday's generation,—bitterly opposed, belied, and unpopular in his time, but now, (as "distance lends enchantment to the view"), canonized as "the sainted Finney,"—relates in his "Memoirs," that he once received a revelation from God; concerning which he says:

"I can never feel how, or why, the Spirit of God made this revelation to me. But I knew then, and I have no doubt now, that it was a direct revelation from God to me."—Memoirs of Charles G. Finney, p. 114.

Again, John Wesley did not agree with those of our time who pretend to be his followers and to reverence his memory, for he believed that the promises recorded, Mark 16:16-18, were for those of modern as well as primitive times—who believe. In his Journal, from which the following instance is copied, he relates many cases of healing and other manifest answers to prayer:

"May 8, 1741.—My bodily strength quite failed, so that for several hours I could scarcely lift up my head. On Sunday 10th, I was obliged to lie down most part of the day, being easy only in that posture. Yet in the evening my weakness was suspended while I was calling sinners to repentance. But at our love feast that followed, beside the pain in my back and head, and the fever which continued upon me, just as I began to pray, I was seized with such a cough that I could hardly speak. At the same time came strongly through my mind, "These signs shall follow them that believe." I called on Jesus aloud, to increase my faith, and confirm the word of his grace. While I was speaking, my pain vanished away; the fever left me; my bodily strength returned; and for many weeks I felt neither weakness nor pain."

Those who are the declared followers, and who reverence the memory of the reformer Martin Luther, are just as inconsistent as the followers of Wesley. In conversation with a staunch Lutheran, I once introduced the subject of the Scripture promises, and insisted that they were for our time if we would live for them, and told him that I knew men who declared they had been healed by the power of God through the laying on of hands and prayer. But he frowned me down at once, and declared that he "would not believe that if told it by one who had been healed."

Yet it is related of Luther, that on a certain occasion Philip Melancthon, his co-laborer, lay at the point of death, at whose bedside Luther "wrestled with God in prayer," "with great fervency upward of an hour for his friend's recovery;" and he revived and soon got well, contrary to all expectation. "When Luther returned home, he said to his wife with joy, 'God gave me my brother Melancthon back in direct answer to prayer,' and then added, with patriarchal simplicity, 'And God, on a former occasion, gave me you back, Kata, in answer to my prayer also.'"—Present Conflict of Science with the Christian Religion, p. 152.

We see, then, that to some extent the gifts and power of godliness enjoyed of old and promised to "them that believe," were believed in and exercised by the reformers.

But it is now the "commonly received opinion" of those who pretend to follow and reverence the doctrines and memory of Luther, Wesley and Finney, that "the day of miracles is past," and that there has not been any direct revelation from God to man for many centuries, since "the canon of scripture is full;" and never will be again; and that all these things were only to follow the apostles, to establish the church, and then ceased because no longer needed; that the promise of these things in the last chapter of Mark extended no further than apostolic times. Though having a "form of godliness" they thus "deny the power thereof." And Paul says, "from such turn away." (2 Tim. 3:5).

"The church is fallen, the beautiful church,
And her shame is her boast and pride."

But read the promises given in the last chapter of Mark, and notice that the promise of these things is given in connection with the promise of salvation, and is no more limited, and is no less extended. If the promise of one does not extend to our time, what assurance have we that the other does?

And again, the grammatical construction of the promises of Christ recorded in the last chapter of Mark, shows the fallacy of supposing that the signs were only intended to follow the apostles:

"Go [Christ was the first person, speaking] ye [apostles—second person, being spoken to] into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned. And these signs shall follow them that believe." The believer here, whom the signs are to follow, is in the third person, being spoken of.

The "orthodox" churches seem to have become stereotyped or petrified, by their uninspired creeds, traditions, and opinions, so far as receiving any more of the doctrine of the Scriptures is concerned. They seem to have fallen into the groove occupied by the Jews in the time of Christ. Smith's Dictionary of the Bible says of the most popular sect and party of the Jews, that their traditions and opinions, through which they made the word of God of none effect, were "honored above the law."

And "it was a greater crime to offend against them than against the law. The first step was taken towards annulling the commandments of God for the sake of their traditions."

As H. Clay Trumbull truthfully says: "Theological wisdom and denominational prudence are only a curse to a man if they hide from him the fresh revelations which (are breaking) continually from the Bible to those who come to study it and to trust like children."

H. W. Beecher says, in his lecture on the "Wastes and Burdens of Society," that "young men come out of seminaries sworn to defend the creed and the confession of faith which belong to their sect."

This lack of growth in grace and the knowledge of Scripture truth and doctrine, and unwillingness to receive any more light,—this stereotyped condition, was seen and lamented as long ago as 1620. The Rev. John Robinson—"the father of modern Congregationalism"—upon the departure of the Pilgrim Fathers from Holland for America, being their beloved pastor, preached a farewell sermon in which he said to them:

"I charge you before God and his blessed angels, that you follow me no further than you have seen me follow the Lord Jesus Christ. If God reveal any thing to you by any other instrument of his, be as ready to receive it as you were to receive any truth from my ministry; for I am fully persuaded, I am very confident, that the Lord has more truth to break forth out of his holy word.

"For my part, I can not sufficiently bewail the condition of the reformed churches who are come to a period in religion, and will go at present no further than the instruments of their reformation. The Lutherans can not be drawn to go beyond what Luther saw. Whatever part of his will our good God has revealed to Calvin, they will rather die than embrace it; and the Calvinists, you see, stick fast where they were left by that great man of God, who yet saw not all things.

"This is a misery much to be lamented, for though they were burning and shining lights in their times, yet they penetrated not into the whole counsel of God; but were they now living, would be as ready to embrace further light as that which they first received. I beseech you to remember that it is an article in your church covenant, that you shall be ready to receive whatever truths shall be made known to you from the written word of God."

Prof. Austin Phelps, D. D., of Andover, quotes (in an article in the Congregationalist, entitled "Rights of Believers in Ancient Creeds") that part of the above which relates to more truth breaking forth from the Bible, and calls it John Robinson's imperial message." He also says that the great creeds and confessions are symbols "of a blind reaching after unknown discoveries. They are landmarks of a line of march, of which the final fortress is not yet reached. . . . Their reverent authors seeming as if hearkening for the voice of new revelation. They evidently believed more than they have recorded for our instruction. They were men of progress. They had unspoken visions. Had they lived to our times, they would have received more truth, and proclaimed it authoritatively. They would have proportioned and balanced and shaded Christian doctrines more architecturally. . . . The drift of their teaching necessitates the admission of more truth, like the discovery of Neptune through Leverrier's foresight."—Congregationalist, February 6th, 1878.

Yours truly, C. W. L.

A Just Defense.

IN ITS issue for June 11th, 1880, a copy of which is sent us by sister Dorinda Dawson, the San Francisco Bulletin says some very just words regarding Mormonism, so called; and for setting up such a proper defense the Saints of the Reorganized Church can truly thank its editor. He draws the distinction that many editors do not present to the reading public, though we are very glad to say that the number who both recognize and record the difference is constantly growing larger. Justice and right can not always be withheld even by this grudging world, whose good-will goes by favor, and usually in extremes, in showers of laudation or in scanty drops of stunted measure. Hear the editor state the case in the extracts we give below:

The Presbyterian General Assembly at its recent session, voted to petition Congress for the extinction of Mormonism. That is rather a sweeping proposition. When once the ex-crescence of polygamy is cut out there is nothing in Mormonism to call for any interference. It is not to be forgotten that polygamy was something grafted on to Mormonism long after it was established. If this ex-crescence should disappear, Mormonism would probably flourish as much as ever. The proposition to extinguish Mormonism is an absurdity, as much as it would be to extinguish Presbyterianism or Congregationalism, or any other denominational organization. The Federal Government has nothing to do with religious politics any further than they teach disobedience to the laws and encourage communities to live in open rebellion to authority. If there were no polygamy among the Mormons there would be nothing calling for interference. If any fanatical sect were to arise teaching the doctrine of the Thugs, or that robbery was a cardinal virtue, the Government would be called upon to suppress the crime. So the Government may, and is properly called on to suppress polygamy, because it is a crime. But it is not called on to suppress Mormonism, because that can exist without polygamy.

When the Mormons teach that polygamy is a principle to be obeyed, and do obey it, in violation of the laws of the country, that is the overt act of fanaticism which calls for a wise but firm interference. The recent Republican National Convention went no further than to denounce polygamy. There was no proposition to extinguish Mormonism. * * *

There is a whole generation in Utah, which are the fruits of polygamous marriages. It is a difficult matter to deal with. One or two persons have been convicted and sent to the Penitentiary. But that institution would not hold all such criminals if all were convicted.

The truth is the Federal Government temporized with the question for a quarter of a century, and when called to deal with it honestly, could find no better plan than that of executing the law against polygamy. Yet that plan does not necessarily involve "the extinction of Mormonism."

Justice is a science which is only well taught by virtue.
Misfortune does not always come to injure.

Letter From Texas.

Bro. Joseph:—April 29th, I bade farewell to the many dear Saints of Plano, whose names and faces have grown so familiar during my three years' sojourn among them, and took the train for Texas, at the Master's bidding.

As I stood alone upon the rear platform, as we sped away in the gloaming, looking back upon the fast receding objects, known so well, my thoughts flew back to the time when I first visited Plano to obey the gospel. My life as it then was, with all the wasted years of the past, stood out clearly before me, a dark, unpleasant picture. Then came the memory of that bright summer day when I was "born into the kingdom;" the quiet life which followed, marred only by the struggle with the tempter, lightened and made joyous by constant and sweet communion with the Saints; the months of steady growth as the Spirit led me out from thick darkness into the "marvelous light" of truth; then the call to the work, as foreshown by previous prophecy; the struggle with pride, ambition, and love of social enjoyment; the triumph of the Spirit, and then the years of ceaseless strife and pain to come. Was it unmanly that the blinding tear drops would start, as these and other tumultuous thoughts flashed in rapid succession through my mind? But this was no time for regrets, so, with a prayer to the God of Saints for strength, audible only to the angels of his presence; I turned my face resolutely toward the west and banished, once for all, these useless longings, and nerved myself for the work before me.

After a warm and tedious night ride, I landed in Burlington, Iowa, in the early morning, and was kindly welcomed by Bro. Johnson and family. I stopped over Sunday in Burlington, partaking of the sacrament with the Saints, and preaching to them twice. I was blessed with the Spirit, and my stay was made pleasant by the Saints. On May 5th, I bade them a regretful farewell and took train for the south. Visited Nauvoo and Montrose that day, in company with Bro. Curwen, of Plano, parting with his pleasant company in the evening at Fort Madison, he returning to Burlington.

I shall not attempt to describe my emotions as I walked through the deserted streets of the once beautiful "City of the Saints," for pen can not paint them; neither can language describe the scene, associated as it is with the memories of the past. But one must see for himself the unfinished ruins of the Riverside Mansion, walk over the deserted plain, dotted here and there with some imposing structure of solid masonry, the mournful relics of the past, which alone tell the tale that here a crowded thoroughfare once teemed with busy thousands. Or one must stand alone upon the spot where the temple of Jehovah reared its beautiful proportions heavenward from the lofty hill overlooking the peaceful city slumbering in the broad and beautiful valley of the grand old Mississippi, which sweeps like a crescent of silver round the city and its environs. But now, alas! how changed the scene. Not one stone remains to mark the site of the once majestic structure, while the neighboring pavements and the walls of rudely constructed adjacent buildings, show that vandal hands have been at work, despoiling the ruins of the once beautiful temple of God. The deserted city still sleeps on, a peaceful silence brooding over hill and plain and rolling river; a silence and repose so complete that it becomes oppressive, and one walks as if in a dream, expecting to awake to find that he has indeed been walking in the enchanted realms of dreamland. This effect is heightened rather than dissipated when one returns to the Iowa side of the river and looks back upon the distant scene, reposing in the silent sunlight. A very silence of death seems to pervade the place, and I was constrained to say within my heart, "It is well. This is the penalty of disobedience, and may it remain a deserted 'waste' until the Lord shall give his Saints command to return and rebuild the 'waste places' of Zion." This would seem to be his purpose, for, though the location is one of the finest in the world for centralizing the trade of a nation, and men, perceiving its natural advantages, have made organized efforts to establish a commercial city here, yet they have failed most signally.

The next day I visited the Saints at Farmington a few hours, taking the afternoon train for Belfast, where I was cordially welcomed by Bro. and Sr. J. W. Matthews, who first drew my attention to the gospel, while I was boarding with them, in 1876. I passed a very pleasant day with them, which will not soon be forgotten. From thence I went to Keokuk, visiting the kind Saints there until the next evening; going thence to St. Louis, arriving Sunday morning, May 8th. I partook of the Lord's supper with the Saints in the afternoon, and preached to them in the evening, enjoying the aid and comfort of the Spirit.

I shared the hospitality of Brn. Burgess and Anderson until Wednesday morning, when I began the last stage of my journey to this southern land. During all my stay at these various places, I met with invariable kindness and courtesy at the hands of the Saints, and was made to realize that it is indeed "good to be a Saint of latter days." Brn. Curwen, of Plano, Nicholas, of Burlington, and Burgess, of St. Louis, each gave me substantial tokens of their interest in the cause, for which may the Lord amply reward them.

After a ride of nearly thirty-six hours through the continual forests and swamps of southern Missouri, Arkansas and northern Texas, I arrived in Red River county, Texas. Visited the Saints of the Shawnee Branch, and found them in a disorganized condition, few in number, and surrounded by enemies, yet most of them striving for the "faith once delivered to the Saints."

On Saturday, May 15th, I went to Taylor, the location of the Red River Branch, for the purpose of joining Bro. Bozarth, but found on my arrival, that he had left, sans ceremonie, at the order of a mob, as noticed in the Herald. I preached there the next day, and visited among the Saints the following week. The next Sunday I went to a neighboring school-house to preach, but found one Wilkins, the author of Bro. Bozarth's "ticket of leave," there before me, with about fifteen "brave" followers at his back, declaring that I should not preach there, if they could by any means prevent it. After a fruitless attempt to reason with them, I told the Saints to gather in the house and I would preach to them; or, if they feared the mob, to retire to the house of Bro. Brannon, near by. After a short delay they gathered at the latter place, and I preached twice that day, without being molested. The next day, being out of means and needing some clothes, I went to work with Bro. John Stewart, building a house about eight miles distant, leaving an appointment for the next Sunday, but the "best laid plans of mice and men" oft go wrong as was fully demonstrated by my case; for, on Wednesday evening, at eleven o'clock, the same crowd of chivalrous lovers of liberty and equal rights called on us, and presenting pistols at us as we lay in bed, telling us "not to move," demanded to know if "that Mormon preacher" was there, and finding that he was they proceeded to exact a promise from him to "leave within three days," saying they would kill him if he did not. So on Saturday afternoon I went to Clarksville, the county seat, where court was in session. thinking, surely, under the shadow of the halls of justice that I would be protected; but, like many of the Saints in similar cases, I made a mistake. On Monday evening I preached in the court house, and on Tuesday was challenged to debate with one of the "great guns" of that county and of course accepted. I will give my opponent credit for acting in an honorable manner throughout, and also a few others who became our friends from principle, both at Taylor and Clarksville, but they were powerless to assist us as the mob spirit became as bad in Clarksville as at Taylor.

We brought suit against the leaders of the mob, hoping thereby to check them and obtain justice and protection; but it became apparent that all hope of this was lost, for while in the Court House, under arrest, Wilkins and two of his associates made an assault upon me, trying to surround me and give me a pommeling, but when I backed into a corner and stood on the defensive, they backed out without having scratched me. No notice was taken of the affair, and when the day of trial came it was plain to be seen that the authorities did not intend to act in the case. A compromise was effected between the mob and the Saints, before the hour of trial came, the latter agreeing to drop the matter and send me away, while the former were not to molest the persons or properties of the Saints. All this in a "free and sovereign state" of the United States of America, and not a pretense of a charge brought against us save that we were "Mormons," and they "had enough of that" around there.

Elder Worley, the Baptist with whom I was to have discussed, agreed to withdraw the debate, and thus left me free to go, so on Saturday I took train for "more congenial climes."

While enduring this persecution and subsequent farce of law, I realized as never before, the true position occupied by the Saints during the disgraceful and fiendish persecutions incident to the coming forth of the work and the settlement in Missouri, and the duty of a Saint and the necessity of submissive endurance for His name's sake.

I came directly to Hearne, where I have since enjoyed the hospitality of Bro. Belcher, preaching there and in Burleson county, and this is dated on the eve of my departure for Bell county. Bro. Bozarth has gone to San Antonio and vicinity with Bro. Thompson, and are expected to return July 15th.

Before leaving Bell county Bro. Bozarth baptized eleven members and organized a branch, and still the work is onward in that vicinity, and many are enquiring after the gospel. May the Lord speed the gospel plow until error is uprooted, and the honest in heart are redeemed. My faith in the work grows stronger day by day, and I only regret that I have not greater power to convince men of the gospel.

Saints, everywhere, remember this mission in your petitions, that the hands of the laborers may be strengthened, and the work successfully continued.

CHARLES WICKS.

HEARNE, Texas, June 23d, 1880.

Gospel of the Kingdom.

"And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come."—Matt. 24: 14.

This gospel commenced its onward course under the divine hand of God's dear Son. And was attended with power, and under every possible advantage as being operated by the one only, who above all that had ever been before, knew what was most needed and best adapted to the same. Many prophets and wise men in the ages that had preceded the gospel age, had borne testimony, faithful and true, that in the future from their time a person divine in his very nature, would step forth and illuminate the world with a light to which all others would be as but tapers. Our Savior told his disciples that many prophets and even kings had desired to see what they saw, but died without the sight. And again, he said, "I am the light of the world."

The glory of God was revealed in and through the same Jesus of Nazareth that said that the gospel of the kingdom was to be preached in all the world for a witness, and that it should begin at Jerusalem. And instead of changing in any period of the world's history after the coming forth of this gospel, the man, or angel even, that dared to change it should be accursed. Eighteen hundred years have passed away since its beginning at Jerusalem. Many, very many doctrines differing widely from the plan of Christ have been born and have passed away. Some, of course coming nearer to the prescribed rule than others; but as far from the gospel of the kingdom in every department, as the east is from the west, from the time of Constantine. We will date from that period the decline of true piety; because it is a time prominent in the Church's history. Although heresies had been creeping in, even from Paul's day, but marking time from the entrance upon it of Constantine, and the amalgamation of Church and State under his rule, we have from his time to that of the reformation, all the different doctrines of every hue with their accompanying evils, clearly stated by able historians. And, O, such darkness. At times it would seem that there was not one ray of the Sun of Righteousness to be seen, and worst of all was, that they were not satisfied with bringing into existence false doctrines, but with the sword and faggot and every engine of destruction that man could invent, their theories were forced upon those who would if they dared have lived nearer to God. So it was, from bad to worse, until Luther's time, when the shackles were to all appearances broken, and the mind, like an uncaged bird, or one that had been caged and let loose, set at liberty, and in defiance of the power that had caged it so long, soared aloft and wended its way far and near, proclaiming the ushering in of a new era. A new era? Yes, a new era. One of liberty of conscience. A time when men and women could think for themselves. Freedom in a great measure from bondage of the worst type. And a freedom that would extend over nearly every part of the world. A joy that the world had not felt for ages; and which is to this day spoken of by all that are interested in the Christian religion with pleasure.

But, in all that has been said in the preceding portion of this article, little has been said of the gospel of the kingdom. And in all the good accruing from the reformation, the great object that which always was and which Christ intended should be for the good of mankind, was almost lost sight of; and pages have been buried under the isms of men. Luther was no doubt a good man. All the reformers were good at heart perhaps, and all should be willing to yield to them a certain amount of credit for what they have done in restoring liberty of conscience. Could it always have been so since the reformation, we should continue to eulogize the reformers and their followers. But, alas, for man's frailty, liberty of conscience, so called, is one thing, but possession is another. The man that dares to preach, in these days of great wisdom, the gospel of the kingdom as it was propagated by our Savior and his followers, is in as much danger of persecution as the first. Rome thundered her bulls of destruction at the heads of the Reformers. The same is done to day, by the followers of those Reformers to the men preaching the gospel of the kingdom; until we are forced to the conclusion that liberty of conscience is only a thing to be talked of, but not to be allowed to exist in fact. Luther started one system, Zuinglius another, Calvin another; and so on, till at the present day from small beginnings, a thousand and one different theories are presented to mankind to subscribe to; but the gospel of the kingdom in its purity is not there. But we thank our heavenly Father, that out of all this turmoil and darkness the Sun of Righteousness has lighted the world, and men and women are living under the blazing light of truth and the gospel; and the kingdom, with the fruits of the same, are manifest and will remain with the faithful till Christ comes again. And may the time speedily come when we shall have occasion to sing, "Give us room that we may dwell." Zion is on the war path with the gospel of the kingdom. Her valiant soldiers are waging a fierce war against wickedness in high as well as in low places; traversing the hedges and highways, gathering precious souls into the fold of Christ. God bless them; and may his Spirit ever be with them in the glorious work, is the heart's best wish and prayer.

Expect nothing from men who are profuse in their promises.

If we make no promise we will break none;
It is better to not vow than to break one.

Suppressing the truth is suggesting a falsehood.

A Viking's Ship.

REMARKABLE ANTIQUARIAN DISCOVERY
IN NORWAY.

A RECENT antiquarian discovery of a most remarkable nature has put the scientific world of Scandinavia in commotion, and is attracting the general attention of the Scandinavian nations, fondly attached to their venerable history and ancient folk-lore, and full of devotion for the relics of their great past. In age this discovery can not cope with the treasure-trove brought forth by Schliemann from Ilian or Grecian soil, nor even with the excavations conducted by German savans at Olympia; it only carries us back to a period distant a thousand years from our time, but still it initiates the modern time in the life and customs of bygone ages, and vivifies the cycle of old Northern poems and sagas as fully as the "Iliad," is illustrated by the excavations at Hissarlik, or at Mycenæ, or the Pindaric odes by those of Olympia.

In the south-western part of Christiania Fjord, in Norway, is situate the bathing establishment of Sandefjord, renowned as a resort for rheumatic and nervous patients. The way from this place to the old town of Tonsberg conducts to a small village near Gogstad, near which is a tumulus or funereal hill, long known in the local traditions under the name of King's Hill (Kongshaug). In the flat fields and meadows stretching from the fjord to the foot of the mountains this mole, nearly 150 feet in diameter, rises slowly from the ground, covered with green turf. A mighty King, it was told, had here found his last resting place, surrounded by his horses and hounds, and with costly treasures near his body; but for centuries superstition and the fear of avenging ghosts had prevented any examination of the supposed grave, until now the spirit of investigation has dared to penetrate into its secrets. The result has been the discovery of a complete vessel of war, a perfect Viking craft, in which the unknown chieftain has been entombed.

The sons of the peasant on whose ground the tumulus is situate began in January and February this year an excavation; they dug down a well from the top, and soon met with some timber. Happily they suspended their work at this point, and reported the matter to Christiania, where the "Society for the Preservation of Ancient Monuments" took up the task, and sent down Mr. Nicolaysen, an expert and learned antiquary, to conduct the further investigation. Under his able guidance the excavation was carried on in the months of April and May, and brought to a happy conclusion, revealing the whole body of an old Viking vessel seventy-four feet long between stem and stern, sixteen feet broad amidships, drawing five feet, and with twenty ribs. This is by far the largest craft found from the olden times. In 1863 the Danish Professor Engelhardt dug out from the turf moor at Nydam, in Schlesvig, a vessel forty five feet in length, and in 1867, another was found in Tune, in Norway, forty-three feet long; but neither of these can in completeness or appointment be compared with the craft now excavated at Gogstad. The tumulus is now nearly a mile distant from the sea, but it is evident from the nature of the alluvial soil that in olden times the waves washed its base. The vessel had consequently been drawn up immediately from the fjord, and placed upon a layer of fascines or hurdles of hazel branches and moss; the sides had been covered with stiff clay, and the whole been filled up with earth and sand to form the funeral hill. But the craft is placed with the stem towards the sea. It was the grand imagination of the period that when the great Father of the Universe should call him, the mighty chieftain might start from the funeral hill with his fully appointed vessel out upon the blue ocean.

In the stem of the ship, first disclosed to the eye, several interesting objects were found. A piece of timber proved to be the stock of the anchor; it was perforated to hold the iron, but of this no more was found than a few remnants. In the bottom the remains of two or three small oaken boats of a very elegant shape were placed over a multitude of oars, some of them for the boats, others twenty feet long, for the large craft itself. The form of these oars is highly interesting, and very nearly like that still in use in English rowing matches, ending in a small, finely cut blade, some of them with ornamental carvings. The bottom deals, as well preserved as if they were of yesterday, are ornamental with circular lines. Several pieces of wood had the appearance of having belonged to sledges, and some beams and deals are supposed to have formed compartments dividing the banks of the rowers on each side from a passage or corridor in the middle. In a heap of oaken chips and splinters was found an elegantly shaped hatchet, a couple of inches long, of the shape peculiar to the younger Iron Age. Some loose beams ended in roughly carved dragons' heads, painted in the same colors as the bows and sides of the vessel—to-wit, yellow and black. The colors had evidently not been dissolved in water as they still exist; but, as olive oil or other kinds of vegetable oil were unknown at the time, it is supposed that the colors have been prepared with some sort of fat, perhaps with blubber.

As the excavation proceeded, the whole length of the vessel was laid bare. All along the sides nearly from stem to stern, and on the outside, extended a row of circular shields, placed like the scales of a fish; nearly one hundred of these are remaining, partly painted in yellow and black, but in many of them the wood had been consumed and only the central iron plate is preserved. From the famous tapestry of Bayeux it is well known that the ancient fighting-vessels had these rows of shields along the freeboard, but it was supposed that they were those used by the warriors in the strife, and only placed there for convenience. It is now clear that they had only an ornamental purpose, being of very thin wood, not thicker than stiff pasteboard, and unable to ward off any serious hit from a sword. In the middle of a vessel a huge oaken block, solidly fastened to the bottom, had a square hole for the mast, and several contrivances show that the mast was constructed for being laid down aft. Some pieces of tow and a few shreds of woolen stuff, probably the mainsail, were found here. In this part of the vessel was built the funeral chamber, formed by strong planks and beams placed obliquely against each other and covering a room of nearly fifteen feet square. Here, just as expectations were raised to the highest pitch, a bitter disappointment awaited the explorers. Somebody had been there before them. Either in olden times when the costly weapons of an entombed hero tempted the surviving warriors, or in some more modern period when the greediness for treasure was supreme in men's minds, the funeral hill has been desecrated, its contents pilfered and dispersed, and what has been left is only due to the haste and fear under which the grave-robbers had worked. A few human bones, some shreds of a sort of brocade, several fragments of bridles, saddles, and the like, in bronze, silver, and lead, and a couple of metal buttons—one of them with a remarkable representation of a cavalier with lowered lance—are all that has been got together from the heap of earth and peat filling the funeral chamber. On each side of it, however, were discovered the bones of a horse and of two or three hounds. In the fore part of the ship was found a large copper vessel, supposed to be the kitchen cauldron of the equipage, hammered out of a sole piece of copper, and giving a most favorable proof of that remote period's handicraft. Another iron vessel with handles, and with the chain for hanging it over the fire, lay close to a number of small wooden drinking cups. The detailed account of all these objects would claim too much space.

It was originally the intention to dig out the whole craft from the hill and transport it to the Museum at Christiania. A large proprietor of the neighborhood, Mr. Treschow, offered to pay the expense. But on closer examination and after consultation with one of the constructors of the navy, it was considered unsafe to attempt such a dislocation. It is now the intention to leave the craft where it was found, and to protect it against the influence of the weather by building a roof over the hill, only carrying to the Museum at Christiania the smaller objects. The Government has at once consented to defray the expenses necessary for the purpose.

As to the time when the tumulus was thrown up, there is no doubt among the antiquarians that it dates from the period termed the "younger Iron Age," distant from our day nearly a thousand years, or a little more. We shall have to carry our thoughts back to about the year 800, when Charlemagne was crowned Emperor at Rome, but when Norway was still divided between the wild chieftains and sea-kings vanquished toward the close of the ninth century by the great Harold the Fair-Haired, the founder of the Norwegian State and Nation.

Restoration of Israel.

AMONG the projects which Mr. Goschen is said to be likely to recommend for the Sultan's acceptance is that of forming into a united Jewish colony the districts of Galaad and Moab, which extend to about six hundred thousand hectares, and are at present inhabited only by a few nomad tribes. The Ottoman government would retain its suzerain rights over this territory, which was formerly the part of the promised land set aside for the tribes of Gad, Reuben and Manasseh, and would receive in return for its concession, in other respects a respectable number of millions from certain capitalists, who have undertaken that they shall be forthcoming. Sir Moses Montfiore and several other wealthy Israelites greatly interest themselves in this plan, which, on the other hand, does not appear very repugnant to the Sultan. The new colony would be subject to the authority of a prince of Jewish race and religion, and would serve as a nucleus of a second kingdom of Israel. So soon as the Turkish government has given its consent to two railways, the one running from Jaffa to Jerusalem, the other from Haifa to the other side of Jordan, will be commenced at the same time as a canal going from the Mediterranean to the Gulf of Akaba.

"O, Jerusalem!"

A MR. FULLER, of the "Age to Come" people, has been to Palestine and returned, and on July 15th, 1880, that people were to hold a tent meeting in Boston, at the Highlands, for the purpose of hearing Mr. Fuller's report, and adopt some measures for furthering the project to colonize part of the Holy Land. It is evidently to be an enthusiastic attempt to hasten the Lord in his time for re-peopling the ancient waste places of Zion.

George J. Adams, and others from Indian Point, Maine, tried the same thing some years ago, and were aided home by private charity, and Governmental aid, the colony proving a dead failure, bankrupting nearly all in money, and many in faith. We hope no such disaster will follow in this case.

An Age-to-Come, Extra, of July 8th, was sent us by Bro. T. W. Smith, from which we quote the closing paragraph; which is a broad appeal to the enthusiastic to rush away in headlong haste to "restore the kingdom of God" in Palestine. This appeal will doubtless prove effectual to induce many to sacrifice time, means, possibly life itself, to convince their leaders, each other and the world, that they are really in earnest in their belief in the restoration of the waste places.

"Nothing but impossibilities should prevent those who are really seeking the kingdom of God before everything else, from attending to anything that will in any way advance the interests of that kingdom. Shall we now give the lie to what we have for so many years professed, by neglecting to act at a time when help is so greatly needed? A movement like ours must necessarily, to a great extent be offensive as well as defensive. To profess faith in the movement; and then refuse, or even neglect to support it by word and deed is a more withering blight to the cause than all the opposition that can be raised against it by its open enemies. Who are willing to give aid and comfort to the enemies of Christ's cause and kingdom, (for all who oppose the restoration of the kingdom of God to Israel in the land of Palestine are enemies to the cause), by neglecting to act earnestly and boldly to advance the truth at a time like this, though it may require of them a sacrifice of ease, property and friends?"—Age to Come, July 8th.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.
HENRY A. STEBBINS, ASSISTANT.

Plano, Illinois, August 15th, 1880.

ELDER DUNGAN AND MORMONISM.

BRO. E. J. FRENCH of Tustin City, Los Angeles county, California, sends us a page from the July 10th issue of The Evangelist, published at Chicago, Illinois, by the Christian order. It contains an article from Elder D. R. Dungan of said society, the man with whom Bro. R. M. Elvin held a debate in Nebraska, last April.

From what we have heard of him we think that he must be one who has a malicious desire to harm, if possible, the cause of God and His truth, no matter how false the words, or how base the fabrications or statements that he makes or accepts from others as argument against Christ's word and work.

And, after reading the page referred to, we do not wonder at the language of a lady in Ohio, concerning Elder Dungan and his co-workers everywhere, in their efforts against the truths of heaven. This lady is not a member with us, but she has been desirous of knowing the truth, and praying much for God to enlighten her. Then He gave her a vision that aided her spiritual sight, and by reading the word of God she has continued therein, the Lord giving the Holy Spirit to seal the truths to her heart as she read them. A letter from her on the subject has already been published by us, and another will be found in our correspondence columns. It will be seen that she refers to Elder Dungan in no flattering way, as to his fairness or honesty. She is prepared to give a just opinion, for she has thoroughly investigated the books, pamphlets and papers, issued against our cause, as well as the defense, to see for herself the truth or falsity of the charges and assertions of those who seemed to know so much but really knew so little of the subject; and she is forced by truth to say that she has never found in all her researches and study "anything that so fully discloses the weakness and wickedness" of our opponents "as have the series of articles by D. R. Dungan." She had before given them all credit for honesty, but can not now do so.

Later.—Another letter from the lady, dated July 31st, is at hand, and will be found with the other one in another column. We publish by her permission.

ELDER L. D. HICKEY, of Coldwater, Michigan, an Elder of the Church under James J. Strang, and who has not yet accepted the Reorganization, writes us under date of July 13th, that he attended the conference, heretofore noticed to be held in Wisconsin, and that they had a peaceable time. He states that there are in that region about one hundred who "identify James as all that he claimed to be, as well as Joseph." He states, also, that if we would try as hard as he would, that the people might be one. This is a very pretty sentiment, and aptly stated, and would seem to throw the blame of their failure to be one upon us,—a very deft way of making another responsible for one's failure to do, &c. But there is a clause added to this statement that spoils its symmetry—"But we shall not deny James, on no conditions."

That is the same as to say to us, You shall be made responsible if you do not try to get these people to be one; but in order to make them one be careful, do it according to their own belief, i. e., you can make them one if you become one on their platform. We shall certainly feel absolved from all responsibility in the premises just so long as the terms of their acceptance and oneness are to be prescribed by them. This makes them the arbiters of their own fate, and relieves us immensely; for we should really feel sad if we thought the salvation of any depended on our trying to save them, and we did not try.

One thing, however, that we have learned is, not to argue with a man who advertizes us at the start that it does not matter what we say, he will not change his opinion, and that we can not change his views. And so in this case, we shall feel no distress of mind if these people referred to are not one while that sentence remains that prescribes the method of our trying. If we should go to the edge of a pit into which some one had fallen and offer to throw them a rope, and while ready to do so should be told by him in the well not to throw our rope if it was made of manilla, as they would not take hold of it; or they should insist upon fastening the stones in the bottom of the pit to the rope for us to pull up with them, we should feel no blame if we did not pull them out.

REV. EDWARD PAYSON ADAMS, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Dunkirk, New York, has been suspended from his office for heresy. This heresy consists in disbelieving in the eternal punishment of the wicked. His statement of belief is as follows:

"I was disposed to accept, if God seemed to teach it, but how glad I was to find that really He did not teach it." "I solemnly affirm that I do not believe any such real strong love is possible in the case of one who holds firmly to the doctrine of endless punishment for some and a better fate for himself. The doctrine of punishment for other people and escape for ones self is no doctrine of love. There is no distinction between saints and sinners on which the doctrine of retribution is grounded, and which is insisted on in the Confession of Faith. It [a genuine love] will never see in self an elect child of God, and in a fellow-man a non-elect and cursed. I throw away forever the distinction between saints and sinners, for I can not find that the Bible has anywhere distinguished men in these two classes."

Upon being cited to trial he pleaded "formally guilty." This did not satisfy, so he said that "He was not guilty of teaching anything contrary to the Holy Scriptures, but did teach contrary to the statutes of the Presbyterian Church."

The sermons in which the statements complained of were uttered were delivered May 2d and June 6th, respectively. Surely the brethren did well to suspend him for so flagrantly denying the truth of the creed; and now, how will he get out of it?

This E. P. Adams must be some relation to Myron Adams, of Rochester, whose sermon we republished an issue or two since; at least he may be one of the family. In this connection the following may be news to some HERALD readers:

"Presbyterianism is said to be losing ground in the South. The Louisville, Kentucky, Christian Observer reports a considerable reduction in numbers since 1873, and a steady decrease of theological students every year. And the Interior tells its readers that there are nine fewer churches in Chicago to-day than there were ten years ago, while Cincinnati is in a worse condition than it was thirty years ago, and New York is said to be only three thousand better off in communicants than it was three decades ago. Rationalism, worldliness, and indifference to religion are charged with producing this laxity and loss."

We received on August 2d, a short letter and exhortation from James Hutchins, accompanying a pamphlet headed "What I say unto one, I say unto all, watch." This pamphlet is a general screed upon the need of salvation, the gospel, and the covenant; and professes to give a copy of "The New and Everlasting Covenant."

We quote from it so far as the pledge goes, that the Saints may see what these covenanters demand:

"In this covenant is comprehended the keys of mysteries of the church and kingdom of Jesus Christ that were set up and organized by Joseph Smith, the prophet and seer, under the directions of high heaven in the year of our Lord, the 6th day of April, 1830. Therefore, we the saints of the church of the first-born and servants of the most high God, do in consideration of eternal peace and happiness, through faith unto the sanctification of our earthly tabernacles that we may enter into life everlasting. Therefore, we do herein and hereon mutually enroll our names to show, and to witness unto each other of us in this covenant and to our God in heaven; that we have each one of us by vow come into this covenant with our God forever. Yea, into his new and everlasting covenant wherein he hath promised to gather the scattered tribes of the house of Israel. We vow to him to keep all of his commandments inviolate and live by every word that proceedeth from his mouth that we may be one in spiritual things as our Lord and his Father and our God are one. We also live to the rule of humanity and law of our God in relation to temporal things. Therefore, on coming into this covenant with God and our brethren, we consecrate unto God all of whatsoever we have of temporal valuables to be placed in his store-house in charge of his bishop to be used jointly for the good of all those belonging to this covenant being ruled and governed by the laws of our God and his Christ.

"We all of this covenant live with our wives or virgins and they with us spiritually as wise virgins, having no sexual intercourse with each other, neither with any others in the line of cohabitation whatever, for the gratification of the lust of the flesh, knowing as we do that carnality is offensive to our God. We love, nourish and cherish our virgins, notwithstanding, knowing that the man is not without the woman, neither is the woman without the man in the Lord, (or in the millennium and celestial world), for unto this result were we created; so saith the voice of the spirit of our Lord and our God. Amen."

There are several commandments in the Doctrine and Covenants which would seem to us to be seriously in the way of a successful keeping of this covenant of celibacy. One of these is found in section 49 of the Plano edition, 65 of former editions, and purports to have been given with direct reference to this doctrine of celibacy:

"And again, I say unto you, that whoso forbiddeth to marry, is not ordained of God, for marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation; and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made."

The whole tenor of the Church articles and covenants is indicative that the relations of husband and wife, parent and child, were considered and provided for in the law. So do the doctrine and teaching of the Book of Mormon and the New Testament scriptures. The Savior himself gave the sanction of his presence at a marriage, and the force of his word, "they twain shall be one flesh." It is, therefore, not reasonable to believe that now, the same divine author of those commands denies and neutralizes them. We believe just what the section quoted states, that those who forbid to marry "are not ordained of God."

They may say, "we do not forbid to marry." But when defining their position on page two of this pamphlet, they state, "Now put this with what the Savior said, and it leaves the case clear that men and women should cease multiplying any longer on the earth." This decidedly denies what is stated in the quotation from section 49, for there the avowed purpose of marriage is that the earth might answer the end of its creation and be filled with the measure of man.

This pamphlet is written and signed by the "Lord's Servant." We believe that James Hutchins is the writer of it, judging from the phraseology and general features of the article. We have no possible objection to these disciples believing what they choose on this question; but we believe that they have devised a snare for their own unwary feet, and will be taken in it sooner or later.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE are still waiting for full answer to our prayer for a special providence press. Only about four hundred dollars, out of some thirteen hundred needed, are sent us. There ought to be somebody with the love of the work in their hearts, and money in hand, or in prospect, who could, with or without undue sacrifice, endow the office with a press. If any one will do it, we will guarantee to make that press sing a song of redemption for fallen man, in tracts, books and pamphlets, filled with the truth. See what sums may be raised for such purposes among the various churches. Thousands of dollars devoted by the willing hearts of devotees for what they believe to be the good of man. Is our work less precious to us than theirs to them? Surely not. We shall continue to pray.

The HERALD lists continue to increase; the HOPE remains about the same. When the new crops come in send us renewed and increased lists. We want all the Elders to get subscriptions for the HERALD; send them in. Don't delay.

Bro. Blair wrote July 25th. He would go to Bozeman, Mont., by 30th, for a time. Prospects in Utah seem better. It is conceded that the sectari-ans can not capture Mormonism. Pres. John Taylor's presidency is an improvement upon Brigham's. His policy is evidently more liberal than was President Young's, and the people feel freer. We are glad to learn this, and may the good work go on. We do not want to hurt or destroy, but to reform; and hence with pleasure hail every proof that points to improvement.

We have on hand and for sale writing pads made of fine manilla paper, ruled on one side only, which we offer to the elders, secretaries of districts and clerks of conferences and branches, at the following rates.

For size	5½ x 8½	prepaid	25cts.,
"	6 x 9	"	30cts.,
"	8½ x 11	"	40cts.

These pads will be splendid for those writing for the HERALD, on business, or for publication. Use the ruled side only. The paper is light and postage will be saved by using it.

Bro. Jobe Brown reports two baptized at Monticello, and one at Amber, Iowa, lately.

A sister signing herself H. E. A. writes us from Logan, Utah, anxiously asking that the powers of good may be moved for the deliverance of the oppressed of that land, speaking for herself. We feel that there will come freedom by and by to all who wish for it, the dawn of peace is appearing. We are crowded for space, and must leave this letter and many others out of this HERALD, much as we regret it.

Mr. Henry Evans, at Pleasant Hill, Cass county, Missouri, says that he wonders that none of our Elders come there to preach. The trouble is that we have not enough Elders to go around, to anywhere near answer the calls. And also not enough funds are given to aid the men who can go, to keep them at it all of the time. Mr. Evans sends for some copies of the HERALD, and seemed anxious to hear more of our doctrine. He says that Bro. Brackenbury was there once, but scarcely any one knew of it till he was gone again. He adds: "A good preacher, with sufficient notice, could get a good hearing, and I do not think that he would lose by coming." Will some of the ministry try it again? The encouragement is good.

Bro. Hiram Robinson wrote from Danville, Pa., August 1st, that he had been holding meetings there; was to start for Wisconsin the 2d. He sends a National Record, which contains an announcement of his meetings.

Bro. J. D. Bennett writes of the organization of a branch at Cuba, Republic county, Kansas, having now ten members. The prospect for a good work being done thereabouts is considered by Bro. Bennett to be good, as the Saints are gaining friends, and former opposers of the work are among them. All the members are adults, and each capable of doing good. We hope that they will grow in favor with God and men, and increase in membership.

Through brethren J. G. Bauer, of Stewartville, Missouri, and Ad. Ritcher, of Burlington, Iowa, we have made an acquaintance with F. W. A. Riedel, A. M., the editor and publisher of the Echo of the Present and Spirit of the Times; a German paper, Das Gegenwart und Zeitgeist; with whom we have agreed to exchange the HERALD. He has sent us several copies of his paper, containing notices of the Reorganized Church. Those of our readers who may wish to see this paper can obtain it by writing to the editor, care lock box 247, New Albany, Indiana.

Bro. D. K. Dodson writes us another letter from Leadville, Colorado, and sends a copy of the Democrat published in that young but enterprising mining city of the Rocky Mountains. We see by it that seven religious societies hold services in their respective buildings, but with how much success we do not know. Bro. Dodson feels anxious that the honest among that fluctuating, restless, money-seeking people should be saved by the whole gospel truth as held by us.

Bro. James R. Jones, Salem, Fulton county, Arkansas, writes that seven of them, formerly at Springerton, White county, Illinois, settled in Arkansas three years ago, and have heard no preaching during that time. They greatly desire that some of the ministry should visit them, and say that some have promised, but have not come. We earnestly hope that some one will go and do them good. Bro. Jones writes, "We are not able to help an Elder much, but we will pay his expenses and do all we can for him." That is a good offer. The wife of Bro. Jones is ready for baptism, and the Saints circulate the tracts and pamphlets so that they believe the foundation has been laid for a good work by preaching. We wish success to them and the cause in that region.

Brother and Sister Oscar Hudson, at Ionia, Jewell county, Kansas, write feelingly of their interest in the gospel, and they seem to be earnestly engaged in endeavoring to enlighten the people around them concerning our faith in Christ. That they may see their reward we earnestly pray. They are thirty miles from a branch of the Church, but they hope to be visited by some faithful Elder whenever one can come. Till then they strive to live the profession they teach, that some may be won to Christ when the word is preached to them.

Bro. James Perkins, of Kansas, writes that his health is some better, and that he has engaged to begin preaching near Riverton, Webster county, Nebraska, August 1st. He intends to continue if his health permits, and afterwards go to Guide Rock, same county. Let the Church uphold him by prayer, that he may be able in body, as well as in spirit, to work for the Lord of the vineyard.

Advices from Bro. W. W. Blair, July 20, 21, and 22. Six had been baptized at Springville and Provo. Brethren Derry and Luff expect to return home this Fall; Deuel and Anthony will remain till in the winter. Bro. Blair expected to start for Bozeman, Montana, July 25. He thinks the prospects are good as to the missionary labors there.

The M. E. Church has dissolved their Rocky Mountain Conference; it has not been a success.

Bro. J. S. Patterson was advertised to preach in the Court house at Joliet, Will county, Illinois, July 25th, at 2:30 p.m.; so states the locals of the Daily News for July 23d, 1880. Bro. John called here on his way home, July 28th, and stopped over and preached in Sandwich on the 1st of August.

Bro. John Eames wrote July 19th, from Jack Creek, Colorado. He had baptized one in the wilderness.

The work seems to be prospering in Chicago. Bro. Forscutt still preaching and occasionally baptizing believers. Some additions of late of quite excellent persons has been made.

An empty treasury makes a perplexed Bishopric and a depressed ministry. Let the zeal of the Saints awake to this fact.

Brother and Sister Rohrer, formerly of Woodbine, Iowa, have removed to Caldwell, Sumner county, Kansas, to better their fortunes. Sr. Rohrer is desirous of having the gospel preached in that place, and will aid financially if some one will come to establish the work there. We hope that some one can go. Caldwell is on the Santa Fe railroad.

Sister Ruth A. Turner, of Montrose, Iowa, says that they are having good times in that branch, and the faithful ones are trying to live worthy to receive the crown of life. Bro. J. F. McDowell's late labors were productive of good, and some intelligent citizens of Montrose are investigating.

Bro. P. U. Johnson writes from Taylor, Red River county, Texas: "There is a little band of Saints here. We have much to contend with, for we are persecuted on every hand, though not so badly as when brethren Bozarth and Wicks were here. Bro. J. O. Stewart recently left us; we pray for his success. As I feel that I am among the weakest of all Saints, I need and ask an interest in your prayers."

From indications, some of which we have laid before our readers, the Presbyterian Church will need to revise its creed at no distant day, and cut out a good many of the bluest parts, or disintegration must ensue. The image smashers are abroad, and idols must fall. Let the ruin come; if God be true, good men will have no need to fear.

A brother writes from Pittsburgh, Pa., that the prospects for the gospel cause there are excellent, and that the brethren are working earnestly. Bro. Parsons had been very sick, but was getting better.

Bro. Gomer T. Griffith wrote July 24th from London, Ontario. The labor was rendered irksome by unpleasant things; but he was going to St. Thomas, soon. He had baptized three. He thanks the Saints at Louisville, London and elsewhere for their kindness to him. Thinks some little laxity of rule has hindered the work some in the mission; but gives the Saints much praise for goodness and love for the cause.

Bro. J. Scott and Sr. Emily Hutchen write from Scottsville, Floyd county, Indiana. It seems from their letters that the gift of vision and dreams is exercised there to quite an extent.

Bro. James Buckley of Centralia, Kansas, mentions that the Saints of the Good Intent and Netawaka Branches recently visited those of Centralia, and they together enjoyed a happy time in spiritual things. Bro. Buckley says that he reads and studies all the things published that he can afford, desiring to be well instructed in the things of the kingdom. That is just right, and to study the profitable things, and let the speculative ones alone, and the theories on the prophecies where plainness is not apparent, together with the teachings of the Spirit as to their value and necessity for our work.

Sister Jennette Lilley writes from New Tabor, Kansas, of the pleasure that she experiences in again being numbered with a branch of the Church, one having been organized there by Bro. J. D. Bennett, the same one we suppose that he mentions, as noted elsewhere by us. Sr. Lilley with spiritual feeling writes about the work of the Lord, and says that prejudice is being removed in that country now that people find how just and scriptural the doctrines of the Latter Day Saints are. Some are investigating. Brn. Bennett and G. W. Beebe preach regularly on the Sundays. Bro. and Sr. Lilley and family formerly lived in Braidwood, Northern Illinois District.

Bro. William H. Kelley writes from Coldwater, Michigan, July 19th, 1880: "Brethren Short and Scott are in Steuben county, this week. I tried to preach to a good audience in the Court-house, last evening. A two day's meeting is to be held here in two weeks. Saints well. It rains to-day. July 20th.—Grove meeting one week from Saturday next, north of Bro. Lockerby's."

Bro. W. J. Currie wrote from Pike county, Missouri, August 6th, that Bro. D. J. Wetherbee had been there and preached, finding much prejudice, also great ignorance among the people as to who the Latter Day Saints are. Bro. Wetherbee preached his last sermon in Bro. Currie's house, July 11th, he returning home to Illinois, and dying August 2d, as noticed elsewhere. Bro. Currie speaks of him in words of eulogy as to his goodness as a man and a saint.

Bro. G. H. Graves wrote from Butler county, Alabama, August 2d: "I began preaching the next evening after I arrived, and I have traveled 210 miles on foot and 50 miles by wagon, and have baptized one person at Garland and five at Butler Springs. The prospects look good here. I have had much trouble, but the Lord has given me power to overcome." Bro. Graves suffers both because of his faith and his color, but we hope that he will continue in the work that he seems to have started in so well, as regards conversions, and that he will be victorious in the true spirit of the Master, enduring the cross bravely, that he may wear the crown. May it be well with him.

In the last quarterly report of Bishop Rogers the names of James and Margaret Davis spoken of as being in Michigan should have been as in Missouri, an error in copying.

Letters are received from the following, which for want of room we are obliged to omit: William Anderson, Oakland, Cal.; Henry Boydell, Farnworth, England; Alma N. Bishop, Llanelly, Wales; Briggs Alden, Fontanelle, Iowa; Uncle William B. Smith, Elkader, Iowa; Thomas Revel, Nauvoo, Ill.; R. S. Salyards, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Sr. E. J. McCoy, Haven, Iowa; L. M. Sollenberger, Monmouth, Ill.; Josiah Curtis, Montserrat, Mo.; J. H. Lake, in the field.

We thank brethren D. K. Dodson, John Taylor, William Alden and C. D. Seeley, for papers received.

News Summary.

July 22d.—The Hudson River Tunnel, being excavated under said river between New York City and Jersey City, for the use of a railroad line, was broken through yesterday, while twenty-eight men were working in it, and twenty-one were overtaken by the waters and drowned, seven escaping into the air-lock and thence out of the tunnel. It has created a great sensation in that city.

Gen. Gonzales has been elected President of Mexico by a large majority, but it is a land of revolutions, and an attempt has already been made to assassinate Gonzales. Two or three parties have also risen, who are ambitious for notoriety or power.

The earthquake at Manilla, Luzon, Phillipine Islands, threw down the cathedral and barracks. The troops went outside the city and camped, and the people fled into the country. The earth also opened, and ejected ashes and hot water. The islands are largely of volcanic origin and the volcanoes are now active.

Again it is announced that Russia and China will not fight, and that the Marquis of Tseng will be cordially received at St. Petersburg.

Diplomatic relations between France and Mexico, which ceased at the death of the ill-fated Maximilian, will be resumed in October.

A plague of locusts has greatly damaged the crops in some of the Mexican provinces.

Gen. Grant will soon take up his residence at New York. He has been offered and has accepted a lucrative position which will necessitate his residence in that city. His trip to Colorado and New Mexico is said to be in connection with the affair. He was offered the Presidency of the De Lesseps Canal Company at a salary of $25,000, but he declined.

The storm in Monroe county, Michigan, last Sunday, damaged the vineyards and the corn crop $140,000 worth.

Dr. Tanner, who is demonstrating to wondering New Yorkers that it is not necessary to eat in order to live, still holds out. Indeed, he has been increasing in weight on a simple diet of cold water. He walks, rides, talks, laughs, and is as bright and cheery as the best fed man on Manhattan Island. His survival over twenty days without food has set at nought all the wisdom of the doctors.

There arrived at Castle Garden yesterday 2,278 emigrants. Among them were 758 Mormons, nearly 600 of whom are Swedes and Norwegians; there were a few Danes and five English families. They were in charge of twenty elders, under the leadership of Elder R. A. Rasmussen. They leave for Salt Lake City to-day by a special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad.

23d.—In the examination of the Hudson River Tunnel affair it is apparent that the dreadful accident occurred through gross carelessness and blunders on the part of the engineers and constructors of the tunnel. Also the iron cylinder was too light to bear the weight that would be upon it. It is another of those lessons on incompetency, parsimony, and the cheapness of human life.

The London Times comments on the Tay Bridge disaster, Scotland, and the report of the investigating committee. The following words sum up the criminal responsibility: "The Tay Bridge, it appears, was simply blown down by a violent gale of wind while a train was passing over it. This is the net result of the enquiry when disengaged from its technical details. The bridge was not strong enough to bear the strain imposed upon it, and it gave way in consequence of the inherent weakness and defects of its structure."

A shock of earthquake was felt at Ottawa, Canada, yesterday.

24th.—Another shock of earthquake lasting fifty-five seconds occurred at Manilla, Phillipine Islands, the 22d. Several buildings, including the public edifices and a convent which was built three centuries ago, were destroyed. All the inhabitants have fled the city.

Another awful disaster on the water occurred last night, one of many this season, due to criminal carelessness on the part of owners, officers and engineers. Near Detroit a pleasure yacht was run into by a steamer, and ten boys and six adults were drowned and the yacht sunk. The officers of both boats seem to have been careless in the extreme.

Peace negotiations between Russia and China are about to be re-opened.

26th.—At noon yesterday Dr. Tanner entered upon the twenty-seventh day of his voluntary abstinence from food, with the probabilities strongly in favor of his surviving his proposed fast of forty days. He has reduced his allowance of water, taking only five ounces during the twelve hours ending at noon yesterday. One pound per day is his average loss of flesh since his starvation experiment.

The first earthquake at Manilla, on the Island of Luzon, proves to have been a terrible visitation. Three hundred persons, including two hundred Chinamen were killed, and nearly every family on the island was rendered homeless. Another shock (the third) occurred the 24th. No particulars yet.

An eruption by Mount Vesuvius and a sharp shock of earthquake combined to disturb the quiet of the Sabbath at Naples yesterday.

A dispatch from Dublin, Ireland, says: The weather continues to be very fine. Hay is being cut and saved. All crops are maturing at unusual rapidity.

27th.—England's Afghan policy, as announced by Lord Hartington in the House of Commons, is such as to put Afghanistan completely into the grasp of the British, allowing her to have "no relations with any other power," and the Ameer to have rule only over the single province of Cabul.

The German Government has expelled from the country Mormon Missionaries making proselytes.

A row boat was run down by a steamer on the Thames yesterday and four persons were drowned. Sixteen lives were lost by the capsizing of a pleasure steamer on Lake Brienz, Switzerland.

The army worm has made its appearance in a corn-field near Pittsburgh. Its presence is also reported in Eastern Ohio.

Yellow fever has broken out in a West Indies steamer now at Havre, France. Three persons died during the passage of the vessel, and twenty-one in all were stricken with the disease.

An English bark has arrived at Mobile, having on board several persons stricken with yellow fever. Two men have died with the disease. The second mate is very sick now, and all on board but three have been down with the dread contagion.

A planing-mill at Warren, Pa., seven houses adjacent, and 800,000 feet of lumber, were destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is $33,000, and the insurance only $10,000.

28th.—Suffering from famine is increasing in Armenia

That Queen Victoria has written a personal letter to the Sultan advising him to a conciliatory course, is generally credited on the Continent.

Three men were killed by black damp in a coal shaft near Pottsville, Pa., Monday night.

Nearly the entire upper portion of Empire City, Oregon, was burned down Monday. The loss is placed at $50,000.

The Chilians are preparing to bombard the city of Lima, Peru.

29th.—The Afghans have had a battle with a body of English troops, and sorely defeated them.

At Quincy, Illinois, yesterday, a planing-mill and five buildings were destroyed by fire; loss $100,000.

A hailstorm passed over the country near Stevens Point, Wis., the 26th, completely destroying all the crops, and killing several cattle and a great number of hogs, fowls, and sheep. The district damaged is about ten miles long and four miles wide, and the loss inflicted is said to be about $75,000. Some of the hailstones which fell weighed five ounces.

The Turkish Government is willing to cede Dulcigno to Montenegro, but not one jot of territory to Greece without war, and the Great Powers of Europe are not satisfied.

30th.—Turkey makes partial concessions in the case of Montenegro, but not enough to satisfy the Powers.

Smyrna and Barnova, in Asiatic Turkey, were shaken by an earthquake yesterday. Several houses in the latter place are reported to have been wrecked.

A riot occurred in Brazil during the elections, and soldiery, police and people had a fight, in which twenty were killed and many wounded.

It is announced that the famine in Ireland is ended. Abundant crops are in prospect, both of grains and vegetables.

Buffalo, New York, has been visited by fire. Several planing-mills and an immense amount of lumber were destroyed. Loss about $300,000

The corn-fields in the vicinity of Ridgeville, Ohio, were much damaged by a violent storm Wednesday night.

Dr. Tanner started on the thirty-second day of his fast yesterday noon. He appears to be failing rapidly.

The Commissioners to arrange a treaty with the Utes are yet laboring to induce them to sign the treaty agreed on at Washington in the spring, but so far their labors have been fruitless. The Indians dislike to surrender their territory, even on favorable terms.

31st.—British troops are moving in Afghanistan toward the scene of the disaster at the hands of the Afghans. That enslaved country has no hope in the hands of England.

Heavy rains, lasting six hours, fell in the south of England yesterday, doing irreparable damage to the wheat crop in that region. The Thames and its tributaries have in many places overflowed their banks, doing much injury to the grazing lands and destroying the hay.

A terrific hail-storm, accompanied by a water-spout, visited Cape Cod yesterday. The damage to the crops is very great, every green thing being stripped to the ground by the hail.

Gen. Connor, the old-time enemy of Brigham Young, is a candidate for United States Senator in Nevada.

August 2d.—Indian contractors, it is well known, are not without guile. At Fort Yates, the Agent drilled holes into the iron weights used for weighing cattle bought by the Government, and filled the spaces with cork. At Crow Agency a contractor had his flour put up in double bags. The outside bag was branded by the Inspector, taken off in his absence, and then the same flour offered to him and branded in the second bag. The contractor thus had an extra supply of empty bags, already branded, to be used for any dishonest purposes he might wish to put them to. At the same Agency the Inspector found that in the barrels of so called mess pork, the heads, shoulders, backbones, and tails of the hogs were packed, with the trimmings from the bones.

Dr. Tanner had frequent vomiting fits yesterday, and was in very feeble condition. The physicians say the coats of his stomach are inflamed, and his collapse may be expected at any moment. He finished his thirty-fourth day at noon yesterday.

At Jonesboro, Georgia, some white men broke in the door of an aged colored man and beat him and his wife to death and shot his daughter and son. The cause appears to have been nothing but hatred of the race and revenge because the law had arrested and fined one of the mob for beating the old man some time before without cause.

3d.—The notorious Bender family who murdered so many travelers in Labette county, Kansas, in 1872 and 1873, and then fled, fearing detection, has been captured in Nebraska. They were traveling, and the old man asked such questions and talked so about the Bender affair that they were suspected, arrested, and the old lady has confessed.

There were fifty-one deaths from yellow fever and thirteen from small-pox in Havana last week.

A seaman belonging to the Havana steamer Niagara died of yellow-fever at the Quarantine Hospital in New York harbor yesterday.

The last of the Cuban insurgent chiefs have signified to the Government of the island their intention to leave it, if permitted. They will be allowed to go.

4th.—It seems that the body of British troops, nearly annihilated by the Afghans, was overpowered and borne down by an immensely superior force, well armed and disciplined, and having plenty of cannon and cavalry. The natives are said to be preparing for another battle.

Crop reports are very discouraging to the British farmer, and to the landlord also. An English paper says that the latter will have to reduce their rents fully forty per cent this year. The same journal advises the division of the large farms.

The ironworkers of Lanarkshire, Scotland, to the number of 6,000, have resolved to strike for an advance of one shilling per day.

About $300,000 worth of timber was destroyed by the recent forest fires in New Brunswick.

Seventy houses in Ugni Novgorod, Russia, were burned down yesterday. The fire was the work of incendiaries.

Five murders took place in the state of Kentucky, last Monday, the 2d.

5th.—The European Powers give Turkey three weeks to settle with Montenegro as agreed upon by the Powers in conference, or else surrender the Albanian sea-port town of Dulcigno to Montenegro. A telegram says that Turkey will settle.

The British lost largely in officers in their late battle with the Afghans, as well as in privates. Gen. Burrows is censured for going so far from the base of operations with so small a force. More troops are leaving England for India and Afghanistan.

Premier Gladstone of England has been ill with lung fever for several days, but is pronounced out of danger now.

Another colliery explosion in Wales; eight men killed.

The Chilians are doing horrible butcheries in Peru; killing men, women and children, also the wounded and the prisoners.

Thirteen hundred and twenty-seven persons died in Chicago during July, and over nine hundred of them were children under five years.

Chicago papers are complaining of the prevalence of thieves and thugs.

Colorado has been unusually dry this year, and flocks and herds have suffered.

Western Kansas is dry as dust, and many are leaving.

6th.—The British Government fearing that troubles in Ireland will be renewed, has decided to send reinforcements of troops there.

Great storms have occurred the past week in Silesia and Bohemia, Austria. Some towns have been submerged, and crops and other property destroyed throughout a large territory.

One-half of a village in Spain destroyed by fire yesterday.

Of the British defeat in Afghanistan, the Chicago Tribune remarks: "It is the most serious calamity that has befallen the English since the massacre in 1842, and involves either the abandonment or another long war—a war that must cost many lives and pile up the frightful bill of expense which has already bankrupted India, and left an enormous deficit, the result of reckless financial as well as military mismanagement. In this miserable muddle there appears to be but one paper in England that has taken a common-sense view of the situation, and that is the Pall Mall Gazette, which urges that England should get out of Afghanistan, bag and baggage.

7th.—The English Government says that it finds that the Irish are arming themselves, and that the supplies come from America, through the Irish-American secret societies existing in the United States.

Heavy rains in the Carpathian Mountains, Germany, have caused the River Oder to overflow. Great damage has been done to property, and traffic is interrupted.

A rain-storm in the Spanish province of Murcia has caused destructive inundations.

Dr. Tanner finished his forty days' fast this noon in safety, and, as soon as the time was out, he began to take nourishment and was doing well at last dispatches.

9th.—Gales and heavy rains did considerable damage in Great Britain yesterday and Saturday. The crops in Ireland do not promise as well as they did two weeks ago.

Between 1:30 a. m. yesterday (Sunday) morning, and 11 p. m. at night, Dr. Tanner, the forty-days faster at New York, ate over four pounds of solids (mostly beef) and drank nearly eight pounds of liquids, beef tea, milk and wine, or, altogether, just twelve pounds of nourishment in twenty four hours.

Correspondence.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Europe,
July 3rd, 1880.

Dear Brethren Joseph and Henry:—My journey across the Atlantic was good, no stormy weather at all; the only thing complained of was cold, cold, and seasickness which every time I cross makes its appearance. We passed once between two icebergs. The one to the left was about a mile off and we judged it to be about four or five hundred feet long and one hundred feet high above the water; the other one to the right was so far off that we could not judge its size, but it must have been a very large one, several times larger than the one to the left. The steamer was loaded with flour, the steerage full of it and a part of the intermediate, which caused that all the steerage passengers could remain in the intermediate, which was certainly more agreeable and comfortable.

The Saints in Brooklyn furnished me bedding, and some other necessities for the steamer, and Bro. Joseph Squires accompanied me to the steamer. The journey across the continent of Europe through Paris was also pleasant till I reached my native land. As soon as my arrival was known persecution arose among the lower class of people. They are so degraded the greater portion of them, that they will listen to nothing, neither investigate anything to see if it is true or false, but commence their persecution, calling me by open daylight and on the main streets all manner of vile and abominable names, declaring that I have six wives in America. My life is threatened by the mob, and after dark I would not feel at liberty to be out of doors. Once I was waylaid in ambush at night time, where I could not help and a shower of stones was flying around me, as large as two men's fists together, but I made good my escape. Then was the house stoned where I stayed, and so wherever they know where I stay over night, the mob surrounds the house, damaging the same and calling all manner of vile language. One day as I passed through this town where they threaten me so, one hallooed after me about one o'clock at noon and called me a whore monger. That very night the house he lived in burnt up; and so I am satisfied that the judgment of God will reach many who persecute the servants of God without a cause. Since my arrival I have preached every Sabbath in a private house not belonging to any of the Saints, with good attention of those who listened, and I have to say not to my honor, but to the honor and glory of God, that I felt every time the power, influence and assistance of the Holy Spirit, as I never felt it before; I am also again master of the language, which I first thought would hinder me considerable in preaching. The Methodists are increasing in number, but many becoming dissatisfied also. It costs a good deal to be a Methodist member here, as their priests have to be supported; as they started here they were greatly persecuted also, but now their number is large and persecution ceased, still they are despised of those who belong to the State church, and of the roughs.

There is a good many who believe the doctrine and would like to come and hear the word preached, but they are afraid of persecution and therefore keep back; and to have meetings in the night time is out of the question, so it is easy to be understood; they are afraid in the day time to be seen like Nicodemus, but he had a chance to converse with Christ at night, but here they have not, as the mob is on the alert in the night time. I have not seen all the Saints yet; some are cold and did not meet yet with us, mostly out of fear. On the twenty-seventh of June I led two into the watery grave, the first fruits since my arrival here this time. I have also to mention the death of our aged sister, Katharine Schmid. She was born on the 22d of June, 1802, in Benzenhweil, Canton Argau, Switzerland, was baptized into the Brighamite church 1861, was baptized by me into the Reorganization on the 21st of September, 1874, and was a faithful member till her death, which occurred on the 18th of April, 1880, after a sickness of several months. Her last desire was to live till she could see my face once more, then she would willingly die, but the Lord called her to rest before I reached my native country. Peace may be with her and a glorious resurrection may she receive on the morning thereof.

Times are very hard here. The farmers are complaining greatly. The outlook for this year is not flattering neither; breadstuff is very high, and wages are low; hard, hard for the poor.

I have worked in good weather for farmers but have not received one cent yet, and then the work is generally hard, they take out all the strength of a man and then afterwards complain that a person has not worked enough to entitle him to his wages, so it happened to me I worked for a man two days in the potatoes and two days in haying, and had to work like a tiger, now he blackens me of not performing enough and wants to give me twelve cents a day. But there are others who say that he is a liar, that wherever I have labored yet, that I labored hard and performed more labor than a good many other men. Now brethren in America, what would you think if you had to labor with all your might in these long summer days for twelve to fifteen or twenty cents a day, at the highest; and this only when the weather is good and the farmer needs some one, yet I have to work hard for one or two days to stamp a few letters to America, and there are so many that requested that I should write to them; those who wish me to write to them please send me word and enclose a dollar bill in the letter. I can exchange it very well, and I would like to hear from the Saints in America, (not for the dollar's sake), but reason teaches us that where outlay is and no income it will have an end.

I got the Epitome of Faith printed here, one thousand copies for sixteen francs, (three dollars and twenty cents), in larger letters than in our own printing, which I distribute among the people. I can get the Plan of Salvation printed, one thousand copies for fourteen to fifteen dollars, in a small printing office, where I got the above printed, but they have no plates; so I went to Zurich in a larger establishment; there they asked me twenty dollars for the printing and about fourteen dollars for the plates. Tracts I must have, there is no question, and be therefore kind enough to send me means to get some tracts printed, and I believe the Plan of Salvation is one of the best we have, I have the translation yet. It was preserved here, so please make no delay about it, if the work has to be prosecuted, and send me the means at once. I can exchange greenbacks very well here, better than gold.

The Herald, the welcome messenger, comes regularly; O, if only the Saints here could read the same, it would encourage them greatly, but everything has its time.

I hope and trust that my children are all well, and ask all the Saints for their faith and prayer for the welfare of my little ones; and also for the success of your servant in a dark, benighted and far off land. I will be very glad to receive words of encouragement of any of the Saints and give also my love to all for Christ's sake.

J. L. BEAR.

My address till further notice is J. L. Bear in care of T. T. Bear, Seidenfarber, Affolten, Canton of Zurich, Switzerland, Europe.

TUSTIN, California,

July 16th, 1880.

Editors Herald:—A few words from a small branch on the shores of the grand old Pacific, and beyond the bounds of the "lasting hills" might be of interest. And, as we are blessed with love and unity, we would like the Saints everywhere to know of our progress. Laguna Canyon Branch was organized about ten months ago with a membership of twelve and it now has eighteen members, and others are enquiring. Under the leadership of Elder Harvey Hemingway the good work goes on, and we have the promise that still others will join us. There are in this canyon only eight families, and, considering this, our progress has been marvelous, and the Lord has blessed the labors of his people.

May the work everywhere go nobly on, and may all the world soon hear the word and be ready for the judgment, is the prayer of your brother,

E. J. F.

BRIDGEPORT, Belmont Co., Ohio,
July 30th, 1880.

Editors of Herald:—A brief mention in the Herald some weeks since of the protracted illness and low state of my wife's health, caused some inquiry regarding her condition.

Permit me to say she is entirely confined to her bed, although appearances now indicate she may recover, which none who are conversant with her case, herself not excepted, expected. At two several times she appeared about to pass away. Upon one of these occasions life seeming near its last ebb, being free from all pain, she described her sensations as delightful, and in her heart desired its consummation, but it was otherwise ordered. Her condition as in the past will account for my non fulfillment of appointments and ministerial duties. Neither does it appear probable that I shall be able to leave home very soon, myself considerably broken by near five months' attendance and watching by night and by day. Praying that mercy and peace may abide with all whose hope is in Israel's God.

Respectfully,

JOSIAH ELLS.

COLDWATER, Michigan,

August 7th, 1880.

Bro. J. Smith:—The work is progressing quite well here. Notwithstanding the hot weather, the most unfavorable time for preaching, Brn. Short and Scott have done the cause excellent service here. Our two days' meeting held with the Clear Lake Saints in Steuben county, Indiana, on the 24th and 25th of July, was largely attended and a great interest was manifest to hear the word preached. Five were added to the Church at that place. The interest is widening and intensifying there and others are near the kingdom. The Saints are well and their interest in the work increasing.

Our grove meeting held ten miles from this place on the 31st of July and 1st of August was one of the pleasantest gatherings that we have had. The weather was fine, the grove a nice one, and about five hundred in attendance. The best of order prevailed and profound attention was paid to what was said. Brn. Scott and Short were with us and the preaching was with power and excellent effect. The major part took their repast in the grove, which was an agreeable and delightful change from the monotonous routine of constantly eating and drinking at home and in doors; all enjoyed it. We are advocates of grove meetings out here, for health, for a change, to render church going a pleasure; and for the good of the cause. We are to meet again to-morrow, at the same place, if all is well, for morning and afternoon services. In the evening again at the Court House in Coldwater.

The present week we have been holding meetings in Butler and Gerard, occupying a Baptist church in the former place and a school house in the latter. At the close of meeting on Tuesday evening last at the Baptist church enough opposition was manifest against us using the church longer to remind us that the devil hates truth as inveterately now as ever before, yet the spirit of freedom was strong and notwithstanding threats that the church would be closed the next evening against us, when we arrived at the place we found the door opened and a respectable number in attendance.

Last accounts Bro. Griffith was doing a good work in London, Canada, and J. J. Cornish and a Methodist preacher had been trying to settle theological questions at Jeddo, Sanilac county, Michigan, which resulted favorably for the gospel side.

July the 26th, I preached the funeral discourse of Sister Catharine Smith, thirty miles east of here. She embraced the gospel at Clear Lake, Indiana, being one of the first to entertain the elders and encourage the work in Steuben county. She is held in honorable remembrance by all who knew her. Having attained the ripe age of seventy-five years she went to rest. A good opening is made there for further preaching of the faith.

Crops are good in Michigan this year. The laborer is made to rejoice over the fruits of a rich harvest, and the Saints intend to use some of it to help move the cause of Zion the coming Fall and Winter. We are hopeful that a greater work than any yet done in this mission will be accomplished the coming season; and with proper aid we think this will be a certain achievement.

Brn. Short and Scott expect to start for the west next week, Bro. Short not to return. With Bro. Scott returned we have but five constant laborers in this mission embracing an area of six hundred miles square. Who is fearful that too many elders are concentrating in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Canada! We are encouraged, hopeful and confident that the truth will wind its way to accomplish results favorable for Zion. We want more laborers.

WM. H. KELLEY.

SHACKLEVILLE, Butler Co., Ala.,
July 20th, 1880.

Bro. Henry A. Stebbins:—Your kind and comforting letter was received yesterday. I had just returned from preaching at a new opening, some twelve miles from here, preaching twice Sunday 18th, to intelligent congregations. I have appointments ahead which I must fill, and I have thought it best and necessary that I should travel over the mission assigned me. This is one of my sorrows, to have to turn away and leave the ripening grain. There are those in congregations sometimes the very looks on whose countenances is a touching appeal for help, spiritually hungering for the bread of life, and my prayer is, "Merciful Father, give me power to feed thy sheep, that I may lead some into the fold of the tender shepherd."

Whilst I hope to increase, (and I thank God for the hope), I always expect to do my part, to study, to labor, and to do all in my power. But my poor health greatly prevents my studying. Still perhaps it is better for me to progress slowly. The bane of my past life has been its extremes, and, whilst I feel a hungering after knowledge, yet I can bide my time. I have fasted and prayed at different times since entering upon this mission, for wisdom, knowledge and understanding, and think God has blessed me measureably in that respect. I believe, as you say, that "God is moulding me," and I have prayed for it, worked for it, and wept for it. It is the foundation that I desire to see laid, a loving heart, pure and holy desires, true and proper motives, the issues of such a life I know must be good, and I am encouraged to endure.

Last Tuesday, July 13th, we gathered at the water's edge to baptize two and there another presented himself, and upon the 15th we admitted another into the kingdom. I had a talk with Bro. Graves to-day. He is feeling better; preached Sunday and has some fifteen or twenty ready for baptism, and calls in every direction for preaching. I am sorry to have to leave him, but it seems necessary. He is thinking of sending for his family. I believe there is a great work for him to do here, and that he is the right man in the right place.

Dear Herald:—I have been to Sacramento three months, during which you got the blues, while I had first rate times with the Saints. Brn. Cook and Daley had been to new fields picking up new sheaves, and came with some to Sacramento. It was refreshing to see how they were affected at seeing the gifts manifest. Bro. Daley was asked to preach. He said "I am come to hear and learn, being so young in the cause; but as I am called upon I will try to rid my garments of the blood of this generation," and looking up, said, "God is my strength." I was delighted to hear Father Sloan, who is president of the branch, standing up, trembling with age, saying, "I know as a positive fact that the power of God was with Brn. Joseph and Hyrum to a miraculous degree, what I have seen with my own eyes, when traveling with and being their clerk." It was a feast of fat things to me.

Come along, dear Herald, I will try and do better. How any Saint can do without you I have yet to learn. The Saints in Oakland are doing well, except a few who need some peculiar nursing or something. They are very smart in finding something wrong, and in trying to put it right get so wounded that they deprive themselves of spiritual life, which makes all feel bad, more or less. When shall we get wise? But I suppose only half is to be so. The net must fill the bill and catch all sorts of fish. I feel well and determined to overcome myself. I am beginning to realize that what is done in the name of Jesus, having authority, is the same as though he did it in person; especially in administering to the sick. O, for wisdom to keep humble and do right. Ask your readers to pray for me.

Yours truly,
J. W. VERNON.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins:—Last night I returned from the south, where I baptized five, four at Provo and one at Union Fort. I have two or three more to baptize here this week. I have baptized thirty-two in all since coming here. I do not feel satisfied, but the field has been pretty well labored in, and indications in some places favor a crop ere long. I am rather weak in voice and lungs. Have been preaching to large congregations in Provo, Springville and Bingham, also to a small gathering at Union Fort. Our only chance to reach the people at this season is through the medium of printed matter, except in cities; for the people are busy attending to agricultural pursuits throughout the week, and (of course) on Sundays they dare not leave their own meetings to attend ours, and we must be content with what surplus interest may be possessed by them at other times.

I feel good concerning this mission, and without doubt the prospect (in some places) is good. I hope wisdom, and special revelation, if need be, will direct the appointment of men for this field. Address me at Independence, Missouri.

With love, your brother,
JOSEPH LUFF.

Mr. H. A. Stebbins:—Your letter of the 6th inst is received. For some months I have been occupied in the investigation of the doctrine of your Reorganized Church and have read and compared everything, pro and con, which I could obtain, proposing to reject all that had not a "thus saith the Lord" to sustain it. I must acknowledge that I find your teachings far more consistent with the word of God than I had supposed; and I find little to reject on a thorough understanding of the subject. But in applying this rule to the other side or sides of the question, I am astonished to find how little of it can really be sustained. Yet in all my reading and research I have never come across anything that has so fully disclosed the weakness, not to say wickedness of your opponents as have the series of articles by D. R. Dungan, in the Evangelist. I had before thought that they all were at least honestly sincere in their opposition, but, after reading said articles, I could not help entertaining a suspicion somewhat the reverse.

Your letter is very plain, and I think I comprehend your meaning. "The foundation of the apostles and prophets" is not the truths they taught, but the spirit of revelation whereby they learned those truths. In that light the subject seems clear enough, and I think consistent. I am slowly emerging out of the shadows. As I write that, the thought occurs to my mind are those figures and shadows, among which I have so long dwelt, not the very "shadows of death" which the Bible so often mentions.

I could write a great deal from a very full heart, but knowing how precious time is to you, I will not weary you to read or answer. But, thanking you for your kindness in answering my inquiries, and hoping I shall see all the way very clear, and be enabled to walk in the light.

July 31st. I have read another or two of Elder Dungan's articles on the "Mormon Priesthood" and "Book of Mormon." I had intended to write a few thoughts on those but have not had time. I received a letter from a lady in Highland county, Ohio, in response to my letter in the Herald. She is a believer, but has not been baptized. She desires to be, but she is alone in the faith there, as far as she knows.

I received those tracts and read them and lent them to others. For myself I will say that I can not contend any longer. I am satisfied that you have the truth once delivered to the Saints.

I remain, with good wishes and respect,
MARTHA E. KEARNEY.

CLINTON, Iowa, July 21st, 1880.

Brn. Joseph and Henry:—I returned to the Anderson school house to my appointment. I was made welcome at the home of friend Miller, whose daughter was healed at our previous visit. This is a notable case, and almost every one in the neighborhood, friends and foes, admit that a notable miracle has been done in their midst, and have given us an open door to present the truth, which I did from Saturday the 10th until Sunday the 18th. We had with us an old and experienced Christian preacher of over twenty years standing. He assisted in the opening service, and gave several stirring exhortations. He consented to every position we took, and I only wonder, more and more, where and what Elder Crawford's new light is.

Paul says, "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they that preach the gospel shall live of the gospel." Any gospel that does not do this is so far imperfect. God's plan is a perfect one. "The man of God is thoroughly furnished." But we are in the condition that Paul states in 1 Cor. 9:12; "Nevertheless we have not used this power, but suffer all things, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ." Now the gospel is being hindered by this indulgence, and the time is come that judgment upon this subject, as well as others, must begin at the house of God.—1 Peter 4:17. The cleansing of the sanctuary is now due, spoken of in Daniel 8:14, and the great day of his wrath is come, spoken of by John, Rev. 6:17. The same thing was spoken in our April Conference by the Spirit of the Lord in prophecy through Bro. Bear, "That these calamities that are now being poured out shall never cease until the wasting of the nations." And again, the mouth-piece of the Church, on Sunday, at the close of his excellent sermon stated some of his personal convictions, and among them this, "That all that were not filling their offices in righteousness would be shaken out of them, and that very soon." I then understood and do still understand that those declarations were spoken in and by the Spirit, for the instruction and warning of the great mass of the ministry, there and then convened; and its fulfillment is already being seen, and there is more to follow. The sooner the sanctuary is cleansed the better; for it must be done, either by reformation or by purging and shaking, and the time is at hand. My prayer is that it may be by reformation. Let schemers take warning, for the gift of discerning of spirits, (even of men), is set in the Church, for its protection.

I do not write this in a spirit of fault finding, but I am trying to remedy these evils wherever I find them, by standing by the authorities of the Church, districts and branches, wherever I am; for I know that it is the true Church of Jesus Christ restored to earth again. There is no telling how much good that discourse in the last Herald on the Devil's church did me, and will many others. There has not been enough effort to make known the difference between them.

Yours in Christ,
JOSE BROWN.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins:—I commenced meetings here on Tuesday eve, 20th inst. Continued four evenings; also on Sunday morning and evening, and Monday and Wednesday evenings. Have had good audiences of intelligent hearers. Baptized an intelligent lady on the eve of the 26th. Others seem almost persuaded. We have had the "Temperance choir" to sing, Miss Anderson playing the organ for us. Have had a pleasant and profitable time. Have been feeling quite ill with severe pain in my head, but every time

I have spoken, the kind Father has removed it until I would deliver the message. I go from here to-morrow to Des Moines District, by request. Pray for us.
Yours,
J. FRANK McDOWELL.

OENAVILLE, Bell Co., Texas,
July 25th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—At my last writing we were preparing to start south to San Antonio, to look after the interest of the cause there. We arrived at the Oak Island Branch in Bexar county, June 19th; held a few meetings, but owing to sore eyes being prevalent, and some sickness, our meetings were not largely attended. On the 23d went with Bro. Thompson into Atascosa county, some thirty miles east, and held a few meetings of considerable interest. On the 25th went thirty-five miles farther east, which brought us to the Stockdale Branch. Here the Disciples were holding a protracted meeting. However we gathered the few Saints together and gave the bread of life to them. Here we baptized a very promising young man. We then returned to Atascosa county, but by this time I was suffering severely with sore eyes, and I was otherwise unwell. The friends wanted to hear more of the doctrine, but, as one of my eyes was swelled shut, and the other one sore, I tried to beg off. But all in vain, so I preached one evening, and, though during more than half of the discourse I had my eyes closed, and was in pain, yet the Lord was with me and blessed me greatly with the spirit of my calling, so that at the close of the meeting some said, "Well, if he can preach that way with his eyes shut, and sore, what would he do if he could see?" But they did not know from whence the power came. But what the suffering, afflicted missionary could not do that night, God could and did. Truly I felt to praise him. July 1st we returned to the Oak Island Branch; preached here until Sunday night. On Monday came to San Antonio, and while waiting for Bro. Thompson to join me, I received a partial sunstroke while going to the office. I got so blind and sick that I could not see my way, but sat down on the sidewalk to recover. For a time I thought that I would have to be taken to some place for care, but I lifted my heart in prayer, and the Lord heard me. I recovered by evening so as to be able to walk around.

The 7th we started for Bell county, one hundred and seventy-five miles. Having appointments there for the 11th we were compelled to travel almost day and night. Finding on Saturday evening that we were yet behind, we took supper and continued to travel all night, arriving at our appointment Sunday morning, just time enough to wash, dress and rush away to the church to meet a waiting congregation, to whom I again tried to tell the old story. Bro. Wickes preached that night, as I was afraid to undertake it, lest I would go to sleep; for we had traveled one hundred and seventy-five miles, and heavily loaded, in four days and nights, and we only slept about nine hours on the trip.

Thus ended our trip south; whatever good was done time can tell. We continued our meetings here the balance of the week, every night, and the Sunday following. Took one night's rest, then started again north to Hill county, distance sixty miles, by team. But, as we were somewhat disappointed there, we returned here last evening. We thought to take a few days rest, but three hours after our arrival had out appointments for to-day and night, to-morrow and next night. Then we expect to start for Hearne, sixty miles. O, what good long rests we do get! So it goes.

As ever, yours in the truth,
W. T. BOZARTH.

MONDAMIN, Iowa,

Bro. Henry:—After an absence of about four months, I am once more enjoying the society of those dear to me by the ties of nature. I look back upon my labors in Central Nebraska with a degree of pleasure, and with a feeling of gratitude to Him in whose service I labored. With Bro. Smith I visited the Deer Creek branch. The members are badly scattered, hardly enough together to hold meetings; had no branch meetings for some time. We preached alternately at Deer Creek and Goodman school-houses; a fair degree of interest was manifested. Opposition began to show itself by way of one Mr. Williams, a minister of the Methodist church, and the people desire to hear a discussion, but the gentleman refused to meet the issue. He continued to talk about "another Bible," "text couldn't be found in theirs," "contradicts himself," &c. I continued meetings at Goodman and adjacent school houses, and the interest increased. One evening I gave liberty for others, and Mr. Williams (being present) was called upon to respond. He came forward, fired a few shots at "Joe Smith," "Book of Mormon," &c., terrified (?) us by quoting Rev. 22:18, and finally denied having said (what several testified that he did say) that our text on a former occasion couldn't be found in King James' Translation of the Bible. We mildly replied to some of his arguments and closed the meeting. The result is that Mr. Williams has lost his best friends, and "the truth" begins to shine. June 26th and 27th conference at Newman's Grove. It was a good one. The branches were well represented and the Saints seemed happy and hopeful. One circumstance saddened our hearts; the sickness and death of our beloved Sister Masters. But it is cheering to think that she departed this life in hope of a glorious resurrection. By request of the people I returned to the Goodman neighborhood and preached four times through the week, in as many different places, and twice on Sunday, July 4th. Afterwards baptized two in Elkhorn River, one of them, a Mr. Jackson, is the head of a well ordered and intelligent family. His noble hearted wife is very near the kingdom. May God bless her for her kindness to me. The other was a Mrs. Roberts. She was formerly a member of the Christian Church, and subsequently united with the Presbyterians, but never found the peace and happiness that her soul longed for. At the confirmation meeting I explained the nature of the ordinance of "laying on of hands;" that, as God had promised through the ordinance of baptism (administered by proper authority) to remit the sins of the sincere candidate, so, in like manner was the ordinance of the imposition of hands instituted for the reception of the Holy Spirit. After confirmation in answer to the question, "How does it seem to be a Latter Day Saint, Sister Roberts replied, with countenance beaming with joy and heavenly light, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Well might the apostle denominate the gospel as "the perfect law of liberty;" "perfect" because it accomplishes the purpose for which it is given, that is, to bring the honest in heart to a knowledge of their God. I expect to spend the rest of the time between this and the Fall Conference in Iowa. I have lost none of my zeal. I love the work. Every experience serves to ground my faith deeper in the gospel of Christ. The gospel of Jesus Christ is my theme, and it teaches me to have sympathy for all, realizing that I, too, may err. I thank the Saints and friends of Central Nebraska for their kindness, hospitality and liberality.

Your brother in the gospel,
G. S. HYDE.

Conference Minutes.

LONDON DISTRICT.

A conference convened at Usborne, June 12th to 14th, 1880; Columbus Scott chosen to preside pro tem; J. A. McIntosh, secretary.

An hour was employed in social meeting, and some very encouraging testimonies were given.

At 2 p. m., minutes of June, 1879, read, corrected and adopted; minutes of November, 1879, not accepted till corrected.

Of seven branches in the district three reported correctly. London referred back to the branch for correction. Carlingford and Toronto, no report. Egremont, (first report), 32 members. Usborne 25; no changes. St. Thomas, last report 22, present 20. Bayham, last report 26; no changes.

Elders' Reports:—J. A. McIntosh (from Oct. 4th, 1879, to June 11th, 1880, baptized 20), T. A. Phillips (baptized 2), E. Harrington (baptized 3), S. Brown (baptized 3), G. Mottashed (baptized 2), W. Jenkins, J. J. Cornish (baptized 1), C. Scott, (baptized 5), and R. Davis (baptized 7) reported; also Priests C. Pearson, E. Sparks and J. Batten, and Teacher J. Cornish.

Bishop's Agent's Report:—"Report of last committee not correct. Instead of $11.50 I received $5 75. Receipts since last report $21.97, total $27.72. Paid out $27.43. Balance on hand June 12th, 1880, 29 cents." Report accepted.

J. J. Cornish and R. Davis were appointed as a court of Elders on St. Thomas affairs.

Resolved that all members hereafter baptized in the various branches shall receive certificates of baptism and confirmation from the one officiating; also those who have been baptized are to receive like certificates from the branches to which they belong.

That all Elders, Priests and Teachers, or Deacons, who refuse to labor in their official calling are hereby requested to tender to this conference their licenses at its next sitting.

That, after its next session, this conference be held quarterly.

At 7:30 p.m., J. A. McIntosh resigned the clerkship of the district, and S. Brown was chosen to succeed him. Robert Brown was chosen as district book agent.

Sacrament was administered at 4 p.m., Sabbath, by Robert Davis and J. A. McIntosh.

Preaching by J. J. Cornish at 10:30 a.m. C. Scott preached at 2:30 p.m. At the conclusion of his discourse a prayer was offered by J. J. Cornish, dedicating the Saint's new chapel to the Lord's service. G. T. Griffiths preached at 7 p.m.

Monday, 14th:—Resolved that J. A. McIntosh labor in the district until next conference.

That branch presidents lay before their respective branches the necessity of sending means to the Bishop's Agent, to enable the district president to visit and labor with Toronto Branch.

C. Scott was released, and thanks were voted to him.

Adjourned to London, September 18th and 19th, 1880.

DECATUR DISTRICT.

A conference was held at Davis City, Iowa, June 26th and 27th, 1880; J. S. Snively, presiding; O. B. Thomas, clerk.

In last minutes the case recorded as Culver and Lyle should have read Lyle and Culver, and the Little River Branch should have been reported 92 instead of 90.

Branch Reports:—Davis City, last report 46, present 43; 4 received and 7 removed by letter. Lucas, at last report 97, present number 96; 2 received, 1 expelled, 2 died.

Hope, 18, including 1 Apostle, 2 Elders. Branch organized in Colfax township, Harrison county, Missouri, June 6th, 1880, all the members having letters from the Lamoni Branch.

Lamoni, at last report 256, present 243; 7 baptized, 10 received and 29 removed by letter.

Greenville (newly organized) 14, including 1 Seventy, 1 Elder, 1 Priest; 2 joined on certificate of baptism, 11 by letter from other branches, 1 by vote on evidence of membership.

Little River, at last report 92, present 87; 4 removed by letter, 1 died.

Allendale, at last report 39, present 36; 3 removed by letter. Allendale report was referred back to the branch for the names and dates of those removed by letter.

Official Reports: Apostles J. H. Lake and A. H. Smith in person, and Z. H. Gurley by letter; High Priests D. Dancer, J. Anderson, J. Morse and E. Robinson; of the Seventy, C. H. Jones, I. A. Bogue, S. Ackerly (baptized 3), G. Rodger and B. V. Springer; Elders J. Snively, H. C. Smith, R. Lyle, Wm. Cunningham, A. W. Moffett, J. Johnston, J. P. Dillen, S. J. Madden, A. Himes, G. W. Bird, C. Sheen, O. B. Thomas (baptized 3) reported in person, and I. P. Baggerly by letter; Priests E. H. Gurley (baptized 2), M. Turpen (baptized 2), T. J. Bell, and L. Fowler.

Bishop's Agent Reported, term ending June 25th, 1880: "Balance due Agent March 26th, 1880, $156.87. Paid W. C. Lanyon $11.65, Sr. B. V. Springer $42.79, Hugh Snively $17.50; received nothing; due Agent $228.81. Respectfully submitted, David Dancer."

Report accepted, and W. Hudson, A. H. Smith and O. B. Thomas were appointed to audit the Agent's books."

A recommendation of the Lucas Branch for the ordination of Bro. J. S. James to the office of an Elder, was presented, and referred to the district president.

In the case of Lyle and Culver, A. H. Smith, C. H. Jones and J. Johnston were appointed to hear Bro. Lyle's grievances.

Resolved that we recommend that the several branches composing this district do establish a fund to be known as a District Fund, and that said fund be sent to the Bishop's Agent quarterly for the benefit of the officer and his co-laborers. Affirmative vote 17, negative vote 5. Bro. James Anderson wished his name recorded as voting in the negative.

Those appointed to hear Bro. Lyle's grievances, reported that the discharge of a former court on the case was premature, and recommended that a court of Elders be appointed to try the case. The report was adopted, the committee was discharged, and O. B. Thomas, P. Harris and I. A. Bogue were appointed said court.

The appointment of two-day meetings was left with the president, and the brethren were requested to labor at his call. The chair asked for volunteers to assist in these meetings, and also to answer a special call for preaching in the vicinity of Loraine, Harrison county, Missouri. A number responded.

Adjourned to Little River, at 10 a.m., Saturday, September 4th, 1880.

Sunday: At 9 a.m., prayer and testimony meeting. At 11 p.m., preaching by Z. H. Gurley. At 3 p.m., prayer, testimony and sacrament meeting. Some powerful and cheering testimonies were given.

A vote of thanks was given to Mr. Clark for the kind and gratuitous use of the church for these meetings.

At 7:30 p.m., preaching by J. H. Lake. Report of auditing committee on books of Bishop's Agent was received, and committee discharged.

CENTRAL MISSOURI DISTRICT.

The conference met with the Valley Branch, June 5th 1880; J. D. Craven in the chair.

David Powell, J. V. Sherwood and Josiah Curtis were appointed as an adjudicating committee.

Branch Reports.—Grand River, last report 24; present 25; 1 baptized, 1 ordination.

Waconda, (for 12 months), at last report 31, present 40; 4 baptized, 7 received, 2 removed by letter. Carrolton report referred back for correction.

The appeal case of Elder Aaron Young was referred to the adjudicating committee.

Elders J. D. Craven, J. W. Johnson, C. W. Prettyman, R. L. Ware, Andrew Johnson, F. M. Miller, Joseph Westwood, M. A. Trotter, Josiah Curtis, Thomas Pettigrew, E. W. Cato, Samuel Crum, David Powell, Emsley Curtis, J. V. Sherwood and F. W. Kaiser reported; also Priests Cosselman and Huddleston.

Letters of removal were ordered for Bro. A. C. Inman and sister Nancy Inmann.

David Powell and R. L. Ware were appointed to canvass the district and solicit subscriptions for the building of a house of worship to be built in the Waconda Branch.

The adjudicating committee reported in A. Young's case, that an agreement had been made between the Carrolton Branch officers and Bro. Young that he shall confess before the branch, agreeably to the decision of the Elders' court in the branch, and the committee recommend that the case be referred back to the branch. Report was received, and committee discharged.

Adjourned to the Waconda Branch, Ray county, Saturday, September 4th, 1880.

PITTSBURGH DISTRICT.

A conference was held in Pittsburgh, Pa., June 13th and 14th, 1880; James Brown, presiding; G. W. Henderson, clerk.

Branch Reports:—Pittsburgh, at last report 99, present 101; 1 baptized, 1 received by letter.

Lampsville, at last report 19, present 18; 4 baptized, 5 removed by letter.

Belmont, at last report 23, present 26; 3 received by letter.

West Wheeling, last report 29, present 27; 2 removed by letter.

Elders Garrett and Hamilton reported in person, and Sutton, Eberling, Yocum and Devore by letter.

Resolved that the president call a court of Elders to investigate the trouble in the Mansfield Branch, and report at the next conference.

On account of his removal from the District, Bro. L. R. Devore sent in his resignation, both as district clerk and treasurer of the Elders' Fund. He was released from both, and the money in his possession was donated to him. Bro. Frank Criley was elected as treasurer, but the choice of a clerk was deferred.

Preaching on Sunday evening by Bro. Garrett and Brown.

Adjourned to Lampsville. [No date given—Eds.]

Miscellaneous.

SEMI-ANNUAL GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The Semi-Annual General Conference will be held on the grounds of Mr. Parks, adjacent to Parks' Mill, two and a half miles east of Council Bluffs. Hay and wood will be sold on the grounds at fair prices.

Committee,
ANDREW HALL,
J. D. HAYWOOD

RESOLUTION TO CONFERENCE.

The brethren of the Church, and especially the Elders, are hereby notified that the following preamble and resolution will be presented to the General Conference, at its Semi-Annual session, to be held in September next, at Council Bluffs, Iowa, for the consideration and definite action of that body, viz :

Whereas, there exists a diversity of opinion among the Elders respecting the foundation of the Church; some maintaining it to be revelation, (Matt. 16:17, 18), others believing it to be apostles and prophets, with Jesus Christ as the chief corner stone, (Eph. 2:20), while still another class believe it to be Christ Jesus (1 Cor. 3:11). And Whereas, it is believed to be of paramount importance that the Church should be a unit on questions of such magnitude; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Jesus Christ, in his divine character, is the foundation of the Church.

D. H. BAYS.

QUORUM OF TWELVE.

To the Quorum of Apostles, Greeting: May grace, mercy, love, and the fellowship of Christ our Lord, ever be and abide with you., Amen. Dear brethren in the cause of our blessed Redeemer: Feeling a burden resting upon me, by reason of your choice as President pro tem., I write you. To me there seems to be a necessity for the early convening of our quorum, that there may be a more complete unity of feeling and purpose; also, that we may organize and meet the crisis that seems to be upon us in the present existing affairs of the Church. I therefore issue this call, and earnestly request the several members of the Quorum of Apostles to convene at the time and place of the convening of the Semi-Annual Conference of the Church of Christ, i. e., 12th of September, 1880, Council Bluffs City, Iowa. And that God may bless this convention of the quorum, and enable his servants to establish his truth and vindicate injured innocence, let us ever pray.

Your brother in Christ,
ALEXANDER H. SMITH,
President pro tem. of Quorum of Twelve.

SEE! SEVENTIES, SEE!

In the Herald for June 1st, 1880, appeared a notice to a certain number of Seventies. From all that number I have received but one letter of response. Do not take offense at this; but I wish to ask once more of all those who have seen or heard of that notice and not responded, to please do so ere September 12th. I know of certain ones who can if they will; all who are physically alive can. We are doing business for God, and we want to try and do it honorably. Do you? Any saints who are or may have been acquainted with any who may now be dead, would confer a favor by sending me a card concerning the same. All who have read that notice, and those who have heard of it and have not responded, to you it is a shame. What do you wish to have done with your names, brethren? Shall the quorum stand so, or shall we get the record in better shape! Let us hear!

J. F. McDOWELL, Plano, Illinois.

NAUVOO AND STRING PRAIRIE DISTRICT SAINTS.

Please let there be a good representation of officers at the conference. Let us have a good time. Do not come to be benefitted by the conference altogether, but come to benefit. Bring peace and quietness with you, and a godly portion of God's Spirit.

J. F. McDOWELL.

SPRING RIVER DISTRICT.

The quarterly conference of the Spring River District, Kansas, will be held at the Mound Valley Branch, commencing Friday, August 20th, 1880, at seven p.m. All branches are requested to send reports.
JAMES DUTTON, Clerk.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice.

BORN.

FROST.—Near Bennett, Nebraska, March 21st, 1880, to Bro. and Sr. W. H. and Anna Frost,—a daughter; blessed July 21st, by the name Evelyn, by Elder Robert M. Elvin.

BURNHAM.—To Bro. and Sr. Burnham, Gage-town, Tuscola county, Michigan, August 4th, 1880, a daughter.

MARRIED.

REESE—BROWN.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Gill Hall, Snowden township, Allegheny county, Pa., July 14th, 1880, by Elder W. H. Garrett, Bro. Frank J. Reese, of Pittsburgh, and Sr. Anna May Brown. Their many friends unite in invoking the blessing of the Most High upon this happy union, and wishing for them life-long happiness, prosperity and usefulness, in the service of the Master.

DIED.

CULVER.—At his residence in Chicago, of diphtheria and pneumonia, Franklin J. Culver, husband of Mrs. Lillie R. Culver, and son of Bro. E. G. Culver. Born January 1st, 1849, and dying July 27th, 1880, the deceased passed away in his comparative youth, in the glow of an early manhood. He leaves an affectionate wife, and a beautiful child fifteen months old, a Pearl by name, in complexion, and in sweet gentleness. [The child died afterwards, August 6th.] The deceased and his beloved and bereaved wife were to have been baptized on the Sunday following his death, had he lived. He went, he rests in peace, beloved by all who knew him; for to know him was to love him. Funeral sermon by his friend, Elder M. H. Forscutt, before a concourse of people, of whom little more than one half could gain admittance for want of room. God bless the loving and beloved left behind.

EVANS.—At Bevier, Missouri, two children of John and Hannah Evans: David who died July 30th, 1880, aged 2 months and 8 days, and Eddie, (child by adoption), August 5th, 1880, aged 1 year, 4 months and 16 days.

PRICE.—At Bevier, Missouri, July 8th, 1880, Alice, daughter of Howell and Jane Price, aged 10 months and 26 days.

SMITH.—Near Jonesville, Michigan, July 24th, 1880, Sister Catherine Smith, aged 75 years, 11 months and 14 days. She never belonged to any religious denomination until she united with the Saints six years ago. She died in the hope of attaining a rest with the saints.

WETHERBEE.—At Salem, Pike county, Illinois, August 2d, 1880, after an illness of only a few days, Elder Darius J. Wetherbee, aged 50 years. Bro. Wetherbee was blind from his birth, never knew the blessing of sight; but was a good man, and quite spiritual, of an excellent spirit. He died as calmly as going to sleep, writes Bro. J. H. Lake, by whom his funeral sermon was preached in the M. E. Church at New Salem, from which the funeral took place. So passes a good man to his rest.

STEVENSON.—At Rock Creek, Hancock county, Illinois, May 1st, 1880, Elizabeth, wife of William Stevenson; was born March 20th, 1836, and was at the time of her death 43 years, 9 months and 11 days old; was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints by David H. Smith, August, 1863. May we meet in the morn of the First Resurrection; may our lives and daily walk insure it.
R. R.

THOMAS.—At Farmington, Kentucky, January 31st, 1880, of consumption, Sr. Mary Catherine Thomas. She was born in Henry county, Tenn., June 26th, 1846; baptized in 1878, by Elder John H. Hansen. She was noted for an exemplary life, and died strong in the faith. Shortly before her departure she spoke firmly of her faith and hope in the gospel. Funeral services by Elder John H. Hansen, from Rev. 14:13, the text selected by her before her decease.

CHALFANT.—At Philadelphia, Pa., on Sunday, July 18th, 1880, Elder Jesse W. Chalfant, in his 70th year. Funeral service by Joseph A. Stewart, from Rev. 14:13. Bro. Chalfant was an Elder in the Church in the days of Joseph the martyr; and during the trying times that came upon the Church after the death of Joseph, he stood aloof waiting, but held fast to that which he knew to be true; and last Summer, after learning of the Reorganization, he came to this city and united with us, and has now passed away with a blooming hope of eternal life.

BOYNTON.—At Wilton Center, Will county, Ills., March 19th, 1880, Sr. Harriet C. Boynton, aged 74 years, 1 month and 3 days. Her last illness was only four days; but she suffered a great deal until within a few minutes before she died, and then she passed quietly away. She loved the cause and suffered for it, and has gone after a long earthly pilgrimage to a happy and worthy rest before the resurrection.

TOLLE.—At Santa Ana, Los Angeles county, Cal., July 12th, 1880, William Owen Tolle, aged 23 years, 3 months and 26 days. He was sick only a few days, and it was not supposed by his friends that his death was so near. His mother, Sr. Finnegar of Oakland, was telegraphed of his sickness and immediately came by cars, but did not arrive until an hour after his departure. It was a sad scene indeed. He had not joined the Church, but had stated his intention of soon doing so. He was of unexceptionably good moral character, a favorite with his associates, and beloved by all who knew him.

GOING HOME TO ZION.

TUNE.—Going Home To-morrow.

Our Savior's coming draweth nigh,
We hear the prophet's crying;
Then let us work and humbly trust,
'Till we go home to Zion.

We are going home! We are going home!
We are going home to Zion.
We are going home! We are going home!
We are going home to Zion.

He says He's now just at the door,
Then why should we be sighing;
We'll cleanse our minds and gird our loins,
'Till we go home to Zion.

O, blessed hope, that now ere long,
By humble, faithful trying;
We all may turn our wandering steps,
And join our praise in Zion.

Then, brethren dear, be of good cheer,
And worldly lust denying;
Be watchful, prayerful, 'till we reach
Our blessed home in Zion.

Though parted far, and scattered wide,
Still on our Lord relying;
We'll sing His praise and keep His ways,
'Till we get home to Zion.

O, bless the day while now we may,
Stance God by grace supplying,
Has called us to this glorious hope,
Of a bright home in Zion.

Put on the armor, well we may,
For see, the time is flying,
And we might fail of this blessed hope,
Of a bright home in Zion.

J. V. L. SHERWOOD.

Tithing.

MANY times when reading the Herald, I have noticed urgent requests from remote places for Elders to be sent. In some cases we are told that years have passed without the privilege of hearing a single Latter Day Saint sermon. The question naturally arises, If this is the true Church of Jesus Christ, why should this be? Can it be possible that so few are found able and willing to preach the gospel? Then again, we find that a printing press in England is very desirable, and we would all rejoice to have a weekly instead of a semi-monthly Herald. Many things, in fact, are needed to further the spread of the precious truth; but for all of them, funds are lacking. I have been a member of the Church but a few months, and may therefore be deemed somewhat presumptuous for attempting to give an opinion on this matter; yet there seems to me a way to meet all these difficulties, so simple yet so effectual that I feel impelled to mention it; and since it is nothing new, but just one of the good old ways taught us in God's own word, I do it in all fearlessness and singleness of heart. We find Abraham giving a tenth of all that God had given him; and on through the sacred book we are taught both by example and by precept that the offering of a tenth was required by the Lord, and that when this was complied with, blessings were promised and bestowed. The first verse of the book of Malachi reads: "The burden of the word of the Lord, to Israel, by Malachi." And truly it was a burden of complaint about the shortcomings of His people. If we read on to the third chapter, 8-12 verses, we find written, "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house; and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the Lord of hosts."

Brethren, sisters, here is the elucidation of these pecuniary difficulties. Simple obedience to this requirement, in faith that God will certainly perform his part of the compact, if we are faithful to ours. It is not sufficient that we obey God's laws in some points, we must strive to render obedience in all. Some may argue that Christ did not teach tithing. I think he did, for he says, "Render unto Caesar the thing that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's;" and in the passage quoted from Malachi, God complains that his people have robbed him.

Because the leaders of the apostasy in Utah have wickedly abused and imposed upon the people with regard to this law, shall we of the Reorganized Church fold our hands and do nothing in the way of tithing? Shall we profess to believe in God as a God of truth, whose word can not be broken, and then not show our trust by obeying him, and thereby proving him. Let us remember the thousands who are sitting in darkness who might receive the glorious light of gospel truth were the tithes taken unto the storehouse. Many good, efficient men are willing, yea longing to be in the field, deterred only by uncertainty as to whether their families will be properly cared for. What a shame to the Church of Christ that this should be!

If men are willing to leave their homes, if mothers will give up their sons, wives their husbands, children their fathers, for the love of Christ, shall we withhold the ten cents in the dollar which justly belongs to God for his work?

I am only a sister in the Church, and feel my inability to write on a subject so important; but I have ventured to do so, in the hope that it will rouse the attention of others who are more competent. I have felt fearless, even while realizing my weakness, because I know it is right, and being unconnected by a single tie of kindred with any Elder in the Church, no selfish motive can be laid to my charge. It seems to me that the simple reminder of a plain duty should be sufficient. God grant his grace that it may be so, is my earnest, heartfelt prayer.

The Facts in the Case.

A FEW THOUGHTS ON THE GATHERING, BY A PUZZLED ELDER.

Dear Brethren:—I feel desirous of saying a few words on this important subject, but being an Elder, (though perhaps an unworthy one), I am puzzled to know how to act in the case, and I will tell you plainly why I am placed in the awkward and perplexing position I occupy. In the month of April, 1876, the General Conference passed a preamble and resolution, at the close of its last session, by nearly unanimous vote, which reads something like this: "Whereas, conferences in the past have affirmed that there is no place to which the Church is commanded to gather, therefore, Resolved that any Elder teaching contrary to the resolutions of Conference is censurable." Now, no one desires to subject himself to censure, by so high and important a body as a General Conference. "Well, then," says some one, "do not teach contrary to its resolutions." But there is where the chief feature of my perplexity is revealed, for I behold the strange spectacle of a prominent Elder of the Church disgraced, to the extent of being rejected from his lot in his Quorum, (so far as the body so acting can reject), not for teaching contrary to the resolutions of Conference, but for being found in harmony with the same; which fact his own Quorum saw and recognized in April, 1878, and from which position they have not receded; at least, they have not publicly so informed us. This brother had openly avowed his unbelief in a gathering, either to "the center place," "a stake," or to "the regions round about." He assumes yet, and logically, and justly, that there can be no commandment in force requiring a gathering, when there is "no place" to gather unto, and who could sustain the position that there is such a commandment, and yet there is no place to gather to? Does not the idea of a gathering, as applied to a people scattered all over the United States and Canadas, and in other parts of the world, imply, nay, make necessary the selection of a place, city or village, township, county, state or country, for the gathering forces to congregate and settle upon? And who is so dull of understanding that he can not see that there can be no force, nor even propriety in a commandment to gather, and yet no place on earth appointed or selected for the people thus appointed to gather unto?

Now what further perplexes me, is that the brother referred to was punished, more than censured, (yet we read of people falling into their own pits; dug, however, for others), for teaching contrary to the faith of the Church, as taught in the "Books."

This his own Quorum admitted was the fact, and upon this admission, or finding, the Conference proceeds to condemn and punish. I am puzzled here. 1. His Quorum decides in 1878 that his position (on the gathering) was in harmony with the expressed faith (or unbelief) of the Church, as declared by resolution in 1876. 2. It finds him guilty of being in antagonism with the faith of the Church as taught in the "Books;" hence, if their position is a consistent one, (and I humbly submit that it is), the case stands thus: The brother stands justified by resolution of 1876, and condemned by the "Books" in 1879.

If this is consistent, I can not see it, for while the action of Conference in the fall of 1879, practically ignored that of 1876, yet, according to well known rule and parliamentary usage, the resolution of 1876 stands unrepealed, and hence the inconsistency (to say the least) of the decision and punishment of 1879.

After a careful survey of the field, the writer will now risk the danger of a censure by virtue of the very resolution of 1876, by occupying precisely the ground taken by the "conferences of the past," and by standing by what they have truly affirmed. If the conferences prior to April, 1876, affirmed that there was, or is "no place" "at present" for "a gathering," then I am liable to censure, but if they have not affirmed any such thing, if they have not said, there is not now or "at present no place of gathering," then the resolution does not state the facts in the case in its true light; in other words misrepresents the case.

The author of the 1876 resolution may assume that by the words "no place" he meant "no stake." If that be the case, and it means no more, then we have no controversy on that point. But we have to do with the resolution as it reads. While a stake is a place, yet there may be many places, yet not stakes, and it is to observe that very fact that your attention is now solicited. The resolutions of "conferences of the past," present the case thus: 1. In 1863, one of them affirmed that "There is at present no stake to which the Saints on this land are commanded to gather, but that the Saints of other lands are commanded to gather to this land, preparatory to the re-establishment of the Church in Zion."

Here the statement is, that there is no "stake" appointed, but that a commandment is expected, which would authorize a gathering to and re-building, or a re-inheriting of Zion, which, of course, could not have been understood by that conference as being rejected of God as a place, even the center place to which a gathering is expected to be commanded. I can readily comprehend how that a place can be appointed of God for a gathering to take place upon, and the time not yet be for that gathering to be accomplished.

In apparent, nay, in evident harmony, is the resolution of another of the "conferences of the past," based upon the revelation of God, authorizing a gathering. In April, 1873, the Lord said it was not "expedient" that any "stakes" should be appointed, and when they became necessary he would appoint them. By the words "no stake" did he mean "no place"? Hearken. "Let the commandments to gather into the regions round about, with the counsel of the Elders of my Church, guide in this matter, until it be otherwise appointed of me." Both decisions of Conference say there is no stake; both indicate that God will yet speak and command additionally, or give further commandment on the subject.

When it becomes necessary he will appoint a stake, or stakes. He has told us when that necessity would occur. Sec. 98, par. 4, Doctrine and Covenants. Beside this, and as a necessary or preliminary step, he would give a commandment to gather to, and re-inhabit Zion, or the center spot.

Well now, how stands the case? Thus: 1. There are no stakes appointed to gather to. 2. The commandment has not yet been given to gather to and re-build, restore, or re-inhabit the center place, viz., Zion. 3. But a commandment is in force, (does a commandment merely permit, does it not require obedience?) authorizing a gathering, and why attempt to conceal, ignore, or be oblivious to the fact, ye who profess to believe that Joseph the Martyr was, and his son, "young Joseph," our respected and worthy President, is, a prophet of the Most High, that a gathering is authorized in these words: "Let my commandment to gather into the region round about . . . guide in this matter," &c.?

Now, had God ever given any such commandments? He said in 1873 that he had, but is there any record of the fact? There is, and while we turn and read that record, let our enlarged views of the extent of the territory designed of God be held in abeyance, and believe that God knew what he was talking about, that he "said what he meant, and meant what he said." What commandments had he given prior to 1873 in respect to the regions round about? And regions round about what? Regions round about Missouri? Round about the United States? Nay. But, however, let us read. "Observe the commandments which I have given concerning these things." What things? "Whichsaith, or teacheth, to purchase all the lands by money, which can be purchased by money, in the region round about." Round about what? "The land which I have appointed to be the land of Zion." What, the United States, or even the State of Missouri? When, and where did God ever command the Saints to purchase all the lands round about Missouri, or round about the United States? Look closely now. "The land which I have appointed to be the land of Zion, for the beginning of the gathering of my Saints." Pray tell us where was the gathering to begin? At the place where the temple was to be built, the "center." See D.

and C., sec. 83, par. 2. But let the Lord define his position on this point, and let our opinions about the extent of the region take a back seat for the present. "All the land which can be purchased in Jackson county, and the counties round about."

O, "No pent up Utica is ours." Indeed! A church of twenty thousand members, cramped for room in a county containing already a city of over 60,000 inhabitants, and that does not occupy all the townships I believe. If one fifth, or 4,000 members, would locate in a town, in the town, 15,000 could certainly find space for a few hills of potatoes, and beans, and a pumpkin vine or two in the rest of the county, but if not, then there are the "counties round about." Will some of our friends who are so afraid of lack of room please take the trouble to calculate the number of acres in Jackson county, and tell us whether there would not be enough to give every member a farm of at least eighty acres, and not trouble the "counties round about."

We are told that one of the counties alluded to at that time (December 1833) reached up into what is now part of Iowa, including Fayette township, wherein is located Lamoni. This being so, would give quite a scope of country, (and a better will be hard to find), ten times more land than the Church would need, if all were farmers, which is far from being the case. If the commands given in December, 1833, and in June, 1834, are in force, and God says they are, by the revelation of 1873, then the territory included at that time is the land referred to, and it does not matter whether the counties referred to, have been sub-divided, or new counties formed therefrom, all of the territory embraced then, is included in the command now.

It appears to me that the question that concerns us is not whether some other part of the United States is not as suitable, is not as convenient, &c., but has God, or has he not commanded—yes, that is the word—not permitted us, but requires an observance of his word, his commandments given concerning certain "regions round about," and given prior to 1873? This is the rule, the order, the law of heaven, affecting this Church, called the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, even to "gather into the regions round about." I endorse heartily all that has been said about the monetary, or financial preparation necessary, and concerning the sort of people who only should gather. But the counsel not to be in haste, in view of the fact that these commandments have been in force for the past forty-seven years, and particularly so, to this Church for seven years now.

Haste, indeed! The Lord has found fault because the Church was "slow to hearken," and threatened what they have since realized, "a sore and grievous chastisement, because they did not hearken altogether to the precepts and commandments which I gave unto them." And this applies to us as well as to them. "But inasmuch as they [the Saints] keep not my commandments, and hearken not to observe all my words, the kingdoms of the world shall prevail against them." "Who am I that made man, saith the Lord, that will hold him guiltless that obeys not my commandments? Who am I, saith the Lord, that have promised and not fulfilled? I command and a man obeys not. I revoke, and they receive not the blessing; then they say in their hearts, This is not the work of the Lord, for his promises are not fulfilled. But wo unto such, for their reward lurketh beneath, and not from above." Will all who read, pause and reflect?

The Elders were to counsel in this matter, in harmony, of course, with the commandments; and only as their counsel is in harmony with them are they of force, or of any worth; and the attack, open or covert, upon this order of heaven, should be disregarded by the Saints, to say the least.

Whether the Church censures such as do it, it matters but little, there is one who declares that "He that breaketh the least of my commandments, and teacheth men so, shall in no wise be saved in the kingdom of God."

The Church must be gathered as wheat into the barn (must there not be a barn first to be gathered into?) before the Lord comes.

Their duty is, as the way opens, and circumstances permit, to obey the commandments referred to, in the revelation of 1873. Then when God commands further, as respects the center, &c., obey that, and when Jesus comes, and not till then, will the earth as a whole, or "the kingdom and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven be given to the people of the Saints of the Most High." Then when the kingdoms of this world become the Lord's, will be time to discover whether some other State or part of the earth will be as good a place to live in, as the "regions round about."

My excuse for writing this article is that I consider it my duty to defend the faith of the Church from attacks open and manly, and from every effort to treat lightly the things that God has revealed, and that as a watchman upon the walls of Zion, I claim the right through the columns of the Church organs, to let my light shine, and to warn the people of their danger, as I may see "the sword coming." In the language of the worthy and faithful President of the Church I will say, "The command to gather into the regions round about is binding, and will be blessed." If these sentiments are censurable, or, "If this be treason, make the most of it."

Read and Reflect.

THE Apostle James, to my understanding, asks two very important questions, "What profit is it, my brethren, for a man to say he hath faith, and hath not works? Can faith save him?" James 2:14, Inspired Translation.

These questions are important, because they pertain to our eternal interest. We see fathers and mothers, and even the children themselves making great preparations to live comfortable and happy here; and yet they know they have but a short time to stay here, in comparison to the life beyond the vale, yet there are many who would rather enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season, than to dwell with Christ forever. We think they will be like Solomon, when death comes they will say, "All is vanity and vexation of spirit." We will let James answer the questions. "Even so faith, if it hath not works is dead, being alone." James 2:17. Then there is no profit in saying, "We have faith," if we do not manifest our faith by our works; for Jesus says, "He that believeth on me, the work that I do shall he do, also, and greater works shall he do, because I go unto my father." John 14:12. And again, James says, "therefore wilt thou know, O, vain man, that faith without works is dead and can not save you. The devils believe and tremble; thou hast made thyself like unto them, not being justified." We might ask ourselves this question. And if so, we should commence to work, and by so doing save ourselves and others. To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin. In the first epistle of Peter, 1st chapter, 22nd verse, he says, "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit, unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently. Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up. Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law. But if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge." James 4:10, 11. It would seem from these quotations and others, that there were some in ancient times that seemed to be very cold and distant, one to the other, and always ready to publish the faults and imperfections of the brethren; and the good deeds would be left unnoticed. They were not always content with telling what they knew perhaps, but would often tell what they heard, or what they surmised; and in doing this would not consider the trouble and harm that it might do, and often instead of love, harmony and peace being continued, hatred and strife, and often from a little match a great fire is kindled. In consequence of this, the Savior and his servants had to warn the Saints against it. When they were doing this they were not manifesting their faith by their works; not the faith they professed, at least.

I will give one wholesome quotation from 1st Peter 2:19-23: "For this is thank worthy, if a man for conscience towards God endure grief, suffering wrongfully. For what glory is it, if, when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently; but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God. For even hereunto were ye called, because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps, who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth. Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered he threatened not, but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously."

We should bear in mind when we follow Christ's steps, that he stepped farther than into the waters of baptism. He kept himself unspotted from the world. This is very necessary, inasmuch as we claim to be a light unto the world we should bring our light out, where they can see it, as well as hear tell of it; they will be more apt to believe, and by works our faith will be made manifest.

WE extract the following from Mr. Fuller's report of his visit to Palestine, made to the Age-to-Come-Herald, Boston, July, 1880:

Plains of Palestine.

From the Mediterranean Sea back to the foot-hills, varying in distance from eight to sixteen miles, the plains of Sharon north of Jaffa, and the plains of Philistia on the south, are similar to the rolling prairies of our Western States. There are numerous sand-hills on the coast, and a few sandy knolls, or tells farther back. With these exceptions the soil is rich; but better adapted to the raising of grain, such as wheat and barley, than for corn or potatoes, or even grass. Alfalfa [which grows finely in California, somewhat resembling clover,] might do well there, but I saw none. The streams of water have cut their channels through the level plains, in some places at least, to the rock-bed; and you are not aware of approaching a river until you come to its bank, except in some places you may ascertain its location at some little distance by a line of tall grass growing on either side.

The small plains of the Jordan and Jericho were also beyond my instructions, and would be very undesirable places for Americans to locate at present, being too far from the Mediterranean Sea, and beyond the high elevation of hills running through the centre of the country from north to south, between the Mediterranean and the Jordan. And besides their distance from the sea, and the difficulty of reaching them over this backbone ridge of Palestine without roads, they are low, and consequently too hot to be desirable. The Sea of Galilee is 650 feet below the level of the Mediterranean, and the Dead Sea 1300 feet below—some say 1381. Thus the small plains around the Sea of Galilee, and down the Jordan to the Dead Sea, including the plain of Jericho, are from 600 to 1300 feet below the Mediterranean level, and in some places the soil is barren. It would be folly, therefore, however productive some portions of these localities may be, for Americans or Europeans to locate on any of these low lands at present, especially if they intend to do out-door labor themselves. So far, then, as the plains of Palestine are concerned, emigrants from any western country should not look beyond the Plains of Sharon and Philistia for suitable localities. Understand me; I do not say they should not look beyond the plains of Sharon and Philistia for desirable locations; for there are desirable localities elsewhere; but if they wish to locate anywhere on the plains of Palestine, these plains bordering on the Mediterranean are far preferable, in my opinion, to any others in the country, for any western or northern people, at this early date in the work of restoration.

Between the plains of Sharon and the higher elevations are what may properly be called foot-hills. They are, however, not very extensive. In some cases they are occupied by people who cultivate the plains, living generally in little villages upon the sides of these hills, where they have a full view of the plains to the west of them for a great distance. The soil of these hills is good, especially in the valleys; but they are in some places quite rocky. From the fact that the inhabitants often locate their dwellings upon these hills, when it would seem that localities on the plain would be more convenient, it has been conjectured that the plains are unhealthy; but I do not believe this to be the fact. Through these sparsely settled sections of the country, it has been the custom, even for tillers of the soil, to live in villages, instead of each one building his dwelling upon the land he cultivates, as is done in this country. This has afforded them better protection against marauders, who have heretofore infested the country more than at the present time. Besides this, the site of their villages on these elevations gives them a better outlook over the plains for inspecting their property and observing whatever may be going on around them, especially upon the plains below; and as objects can be discerned there with the naked eye at a much greater distance than here, this is a matter of no small importance to a people living as they do. I see no reason why the plains bordering on the Mediterranean Sea should not be healthy. There may be some advantages in locating on the foot-hills, but I think the advantages upon the plains would be far greater.

All the mountains and high hills have a whitish appearance, being of limestone formation, which is the principal rock of the country. There are terraces on their sides, which I concluded were mostly natural. These terraces are partly covered with shrubbery; and some are cultivated. Among the high hills is some very good land, and desirable localities for settlements. But this would depend upon ready means and the kinds of business the settlers might wish to engage in.

Some of the streams are quite formidable rivers; others are mere brooks, which are dry through the Summer season. In many places where streams are laid down on our maps, there are no streams at all; and I found splendid soil, covered with beautiful wheat and barley, ripe for the sickle, where the maps have located marshes. The accounts given of these marshes has been greatly exaggerated. There is something connected with them which should be explained particularly.

The sand-hills along the shore, which in some places rise nearly a hundred feet, have been formed by sand blown in from the sea-shore by high winds. In the hot season the mouths or outlets of the streams which have become dry are sometimes dammed up with this sand, and when the wet season comes on, they have no outlet; and if the current is not sudden and strong enough to break through these sand-bars, pools of water are formed, which, of course, become stagnant. When the water does break through the sand, it is quite as likely to make a new channel as otherwise, which would not drain the old bed above the bars, and perhaps it might not drain other low places. This in time has created marshes in such places. But an enterprising people, and a complete return of the rains which have been so long withheld, will soon remedy all this, and cause the waste places to "rejoice and blossom as the rose." The scarecrow about marshes on the plains of Sharon need not, I think, frighten any one.

The Aujeh river, issues at its head from a large, steady fountain, called Ras El Ain, which means head fountain of the river. This fountain is about fifteen miles from the sea, as you follow the course of the river. It is at the foot and on the north side of quite a little hill, upon which stands an old dilapidated castle, said to have been built by the crusaders, and is the very head of the river, as its name indicates. The river has no tributaries of much consequence; none at all above the castle and the fountain, as laid down on the maps. There is a bog for some half-mile below the fountain, and about one-fourth of a mile wide, where evidently arises many large springs; and the river is doubtless fed by other springs in its bed, as it flows on to the sea. It never overflows its banks; and I had it from good authority that it was never any lower than when I was there. Thus this river is not dependent upon the rainy season or tributary streams for its large, steady flow of water from these springs and the wonderful fountain at its head. It is from twenty-five to fifty feet wide, and its banks are from six to eight feet above the water. The current is not rapid, but deep and strong. A chip thrown upon its surface proved that its waters were moving much faster than I had supposed.

There are three sets of grist-mills upon this stream. Starting from its mouth at the sea, about five miles up you come to three small stone buildings, with eleven run of stone for grinding grain. They use no bolters nor screens. The whole arrangement is very simple and rude. The upper stone is fastened to an upright shaft, with floats in the bottom, which the water falls against as it runs over the ledge. There is neither dam, flume nor gate. To stop the stone, a pole is run down among the floats; but the water keeps running just the same, as there is no gate to shut.

Between four and five miles further up the river, there is another set of grist-mills, with nine run of stone, like the first. They were not all running, but the water was running all the same. Further on towards the fountain some three or four miles, you will find another mill with eight run of stone, making twenty-eight run of stone in all on this short river, with no dams and but one bridge, too narrow for carriages. The last mill is within one mile and a-half of the fountain at the head of the stream.

These distances were measured the usual way of measuring in Palestine, and that is, by the time it takes to travel the distance. My watch, no doubt, kept the time correctly; but you will have to depend upon my judgment for the speed we made. Mr. Thompson says it is not over ten miles from the fountain to the sea; but I judge it to be more, if you follow the course of the river which I did.

They have no system of measurement of land. They pile up rocks for boundaries, and then guess at the amount by walking across it. Of course, lines can be run and land measured there with compass and chain, as well as here, when you have men with the means, and the opportunity of doing it.

There is no lumber in the central part of Palestine; neither is there much in any other part of it. If lumber is used, it must be imported from other countries, which can be done and sold there at a trifle above its value in Boston.

I would build all kinds of buildings entirely of stone, which is abundant in that country. It is soft, and easily worked when first taken from the quarry; but grows harder and better with age. Timber and boards may be used for flooring and roofs, if you prefer; but pillars and arches, making the buildings really fire-proof, would be better. There are olive-trees on the hills; and there are olive, orange and lemon-trees in the gardens, and some date-palm trees.

The farmer must give to the Government one-tenth of all his crops. Upon buildings the tax is merely nominal; say thirty or forty cents on buildings valued at $1000. The manufacturer has no tax to pay, if he sells his goods at the shop or factory where they were made. Whoever puts them into market pays the tax.

Mount Ararat.

THE mountain, divided into two peaks called Great and Little Ararat, forms an elliptical mass of about twenty-five miles in length from north-west to south-east, and about half that width. Little Ararat is an elegant cone or pyramid, rising with steep, smooth, regular sides into a comparatively sharp peak. Great Ararat is a huge, broad-shouldered mass, more like a dome than a cone, supported by strong buttresses, and throwing out rough ribs or ridges of rock that stand out like knotty muscles from its solid trunk. The latest mark which Nature has set upon this mighty mountain was made in 1840, and the story is a pathetic one. Near the mouth of the great chasm, with its crown of tremendous precipices, there formerly stood a pleasant little Armenian village, of two hundred houses, named Aghurri. The dwellers there were a pastoral people like their forefathers, who fed their flocks in the Alpine pastures and cultivated a few fields which were watered by the glacier-bore. They claimed that the vine which bore these delicious grapes was Father Noah's own, and that the ancient willow, the pride of the village, had sprung from one of the plants of the Ark. The little monastery of St. Jacob had for eight hundred years stood just above the village, on the spot where the legend had appeared to the monk. With the exception of the wandering Kurds, the inhabitants of Aghurri were the only dwellers on the mountain; in their village the traditions centered, and there they were faithfully preserved. Thus Mr. Bryce relates the fate of the happy mountain village: "Towards sunset in the evening of the 21st of June, 1840, the sudden shock of an earthquake, accompanied by a subterranean roar, and followed by a terrific blast of wind, threw down the houses of Aghurri, and at the same time detached enormous masses of rock with their subjacent ice from the cliffs that surround the chasm. A shower of falling rocks overwhelmed in an instant the village, the monastery, and a Kurdish encampment on the pastures above. Not a soul survived to tell the tale. Four days afterwards the masses of snow and ice that had been precipitated into the glen, suddenly melted, and, forming an irresistible torrent of water and mud, swept along the channel of the stream and down the outer slopes of the mountain, far away into the Aras plain, bearing with them huge blocks, and covering the ground for miles with a deep bed of mud and gravel. * * * Since then, a few huts have again arisen, somewhat lower down the slope than the site of old Aghurri; here dwell a few Tartars, who pasture their cattle on the sides of the valley, which grass has again begun to clothe. But Noah's vine and the primeval willow, and the little monastery where Perrot lived so happily, among the few old monks who had retired to this hallowed spot from the troubles of the world, are gone forever; no Christian bell is heard, no Christian service said upon the Mountain of the Ark.

“Mother of Harlots” Reviewed.

IN the subjoined criticism on the above named article, as published in the Herald, vol. 27, p. 202, it is not the intention of the writer to take up cudgels for controversy, nor to criticize in a fault finding spirit, but a love for the truth, and a desire that all may see it as it is, prompts me to refute what I deem to be erroneous teaching. I think that none can successfully deny that the woman spoken of in the twelfth chapter of Revelations, is the Church of Christ, and that the man-child represents the power of the priesthood, which was caught up from the earth because of transgression. I deny that the woman ever lost her identity, but affirm that she ceased to be the bride of the Lamb, because of her adultery. It does not follow that she did righteously, because she had a “place prepared of God;” for “they,” not God, should feed her there a thousand two hundred and three score days. This agrees with Dan. 12:7; 7:25. Rev. 12:14; 17:12-13. John was carried into the wilderness and there he saw the woman as she then appeared. See Rev. 17:3-6. That this is the Roman Government, we think can be shown beyond the possibility of reasonable doubt. First, read Dan. 2:31-45. Notice that the toes coming out of, and being a part of the feet and legs of the image, represent ten kingdoms, which in the last period shall arise out of the fourth and last great kingdom of the earth. Dan. 7:7-8, shows the same power more plainly, typified by a beast. In the interpretation given in the same chapter, 23rd to 25th verses, the character of the beast is plainly shown; also that it shall divide into ten kingdoms. Another king, represented by the little horn, shall arise and subdue three kings. The Pope of Rome wears a triple crown to-day, commemorating that event as fulfilled by one of his predecessors. The same king was to speak great words against the Most High, wear out his Saints, change times and laws, and they shall be given into his hand until a time, times, and dividing of time (or half a time), the same period shown in Rev. 12:5-14 verses. The Popes have arrogated to themselves the power and honor of God upon the earth, have worn out the Saints, and the remnant of the seed of the woman to the extent of slaughtering eighteen millions (18,000,000) of them, in round numbers, as computed by competent authority. They have changed the calendar year so that it begins in January instead of April, and it is needless to refer to the multitude of changes they have made in the laws of Christ's kingdom.

Rev. 12th and 17th chapters, show the same beast again; and John said, in the year A.D. 96, that these ten horns, which are ten kings, have received no kingdom as yet, as indeed the first of them did not receive a kingdom until nearly three centuries later. But they did finally establish what are now known as England, France, Russia, Prussia, Austria, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Greece and Belgium, and every one of them has given its power unto the beast. See Rev. 17:13). Part of them have fulfilled the 16th verse literally, in sacking and burning Rome, dividing her territory among them, and finally in the year 1800, Napoleon Bonaparte forced the Pope to become subject to the temporal power of the civil government; thus ending the period of 1260 days or years of the supremacy of the church over the state, which virtually began in the year 540. The angel tells John in the 9th verse of the 17th chapter of Rev. that the seven heads are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth. Rome is noted in all history as the City of the Seven Hills upon which the ancient city was built. In the 18th verse of the same chapter he says, “The woman is that great city which reigneth over the kings of the earth.” Rome is the only city that could possibly make any such pretensions at that time, and she did reign supremely over them all.

It may be urged that the kingdoms or civil governments of the earth are the harlots, but I would answer, that the kingdoms sprang out of, and were a part of the beast itself, which beast was a great civil government, upon which the Mother of Harlots sat, and as this woman was once the Church of Christ, clothed with the sun, the moon under her feet, the crown of twelve stars, representing the apostles, upon her head, we may look for her offspring to be a degenerate species making claim to the same name, or family; and if, as our brother argues, the mother might be pure, while the daughters strayed in vice, what means the statements in the 2nd, 4th and 6th verses of Rev. 17, that the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, that in her hand was a golden cup full of abominations and filthiness of her fornication, and that she was “drunken with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus.” I fear the “communicants of the church of Rome” would be compelled to produce a better argument than that, to convince me that she was chaste.

That the religious sects of the world to-day did spring from the Roman church can not be denied, nor can it be denied that they all partook more or less of her nature, as circumstances made it possible for them, in grasping after political power, and persecuting each other as fendishly as they had before been persecuted by their mother; and we are not making idle assertions in this either, for many of them have not purged themselves of these characteristics yet, as many Latter Day Saints have good cause to know.

To claim that God prepared a place for this woman where her kings should feed her, and where she should accomplish all her wickedness, is but to claim what he said was true, and that he did fulfill other prophecies declaring the same thing. (See Dan. 7:25, 8:24.) I do deny the statement (not fact) that the United States, or the world, owes its peace or righteousness to the Roman church, or any of its offspring. It is true that now there are so many powerful factions, each opposed to all others, they hold each other in check, but give them the power which Rome once held, or which good Queen Bess once wielded, to say nothing of Calvinism, or Brighamism, or Presbyterianism when in power, and then tell us how long a hated heretic might live. Let our missionaries answer this. Where do you meet with kind and courteous treatment as a rule, and who prevents you from being mobbed out of many places by those who make loud profession of religion, and they must admit it is the independents or free thinkers of our time. Who have been foremost in the ranks of enlightenment in our own country, securing to American citizens the boon of freedom and righteous laws, which the Almighty promised should be found here in the last days. A host of mighty champions of right pass before us, and we find the vast majority are those at whom the sectarian world has hurled the stigmatizing title of Infidel. True, in the “region round about,” where the gathering and final triumph of God's people shall be, we do not find the spirit of intolerance so rife, but the careful observer traces this back to precisely the same cause, the free thinkers, who compose the majority of the land, and we see in this the fulfillment of God's promise, “you shall find favor in the eyes of the people,” and this is not the result of sectarian influence.

I am aware that when the Saints read these lines, many of them will hold up their hands in horror, and think that Bro. Wickes is about to apostatize. But you much mistake, dear Saints, I simply wish to give God the honor which men would rob him of, and in the truths which I have written I see a warning for the Saints. When the time shall come that the Saints possess the kingdom, let them see that a like spirit of intolerance finds no place among them.

Unfortunately for our brother's argument touching the doings of this Mother of Harlots, it appears from history that the kings of the earth were made rich by this same power, and both civil and ecclesiastical potentates revelled in luxury and lived on the fat of the land, being made rich by the merchandise of this beast, during the hours in which they gave their power unto it, and especially did the clergy excel in grasping positions of trust and power. And, startling as it may seem, the same kind of business is still proceeding with vigor in every nation which has not hurled both the mother and her daughter from its secular throne.

As to the statement of the angel to Nephi, in 1 Nephi 2:46, I must confess surprise that a Latter Day Saint can not see that, though it was written about 600 years before Christ, yet it is plainly shown to be a vision of the last days, and we would remind the brother that the Church of Christ did not exist upon the earth at that time, in which Nephi wrote. Regarding the two-fold membership which our brother claims, we can but say, it seems to us like “straining at a gnat and swallowing a saw-mill” (camel).

The Devil, Christ says, is the prince of this world. The dominion of the Mother of Harlots, as shown to Nephi, extended over all the earth. The Lord has appointed a place for his people to gather unto, and the voice has come from heaven, calling his people out of her territory, that they be not partakers of her plagues. See Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 58, par. 12; and sec. 63, par. 8; sec. 98, par. 9, and sec. 102, par. 7. It will not do to say these are of no effect to us, for the revelation given in April, 1873, says, “Let my commandment to gather into the regions round about, . . . guide in this matter until it shall be otherwise given of me." A citizen of the United States may be on English soil, and yet not be a member of the English Government.

Now I do not understand that the difference between us and the sectarian world is so slight as our brother would have us believe, and I should object to yielding one principle of truth, to effect a compromise with them. There can be no affinity between the work of God and the work of Satan, and we must occupy one position or the other. If not, then I for one am willing to let all men take care of themselves, and I will do the same by myself. I do not approve of unwise speeches any more than the brother, and would deem it the height of folly to trying to convert the world by accosting every man I met, introduce myself by saying, "Sir, you belong to the church of the Devil, and I to the Church of God," but, nevertheless, if we can not prove this to every man, in a reasonable manner, what is the use of pretending that we have the church of God. It would be absurd to attempt to convince men of the necessity of a change, by telling them they are "all right any way;" and if they are not all right they are all wrong, so far as relates to the kingdom of Christ; and you must convince a man of his wrong, if you wish to right him. True, you can not convince an angry man, but there are only a few whom the gospel will not anger at the best, and it must be preached in plainness to reach that few. We have at least one consolation. If the dose is a bitter one, none but the truly brave and honest will have courage to take it, and in time of need one brave man is worth a score of cowards.

Now, in bidding farewell to all kind readers, let me say that my object is truth. If my conclusions are erroneous, it will be made manifest in time, and I hope to always be open to conviction. If my ideas are crude, and rudely expressed, please charge it to my youth and inexperience. May the Spirit of truth lead us into all truth, and keep us in the bond of peace.

The Promise Proved.

A POOR traveler called upon a certain good man named Fenneberg, to borrow three dollars; this was the whole amount of money possessed by this modern Nathaniel; but, as the poor traveler asked for it in the name of Jesus, he lent him all he had, even to the last penny.

Some time after, being in absolute want himself, he remembered the fact while at prayer, and with child-like faith and simplicity, he said: "O Lord, I have lent Thee three dollars, and thou hast not given them back to me, though Thou knowest how urgently I need them; I pray Thee to return them to me." The very same day a letter arrived containing money, which Gossner delivered to the good man, with these words: "Here sir, you receive what you advanced." The letter contained two hundred dollars, which were sent to him by a rich man, at the solicitation of the poor traveler to whom he had lent his all. Fenneberg, quite overcome by surprise, said in his child-like way: "Oh, dear Lord, one can not say a single word to Thee, without being put to shame."—Life of Pastor Gossner.

The Bible—Is it True?

THE following is an essay delivered before the Western Literary Association, by Mrs. Daniel Jones of Webster, Nebraska, in reply to an Infidel's attack on the Bible:

Kind hearers: I do not deny that there are difficulties, many and great, connected with the Bible, and I admit them all in their number and greatness; but maintain that the connection of these difficulties with the Bible constitutes no argument against it. For is there any science within the range of our investigation wherein difficulties are not found? Some of these can not be explained on any known principles, and are perfectly incomprehensible to the human intellect. Are there no difficulties in medicine; in law; none in philosophy; or in daily life? None can deny but what there are, and yet man is not so irrational as to declare there is no truth in medicine, in law, or in philosophy because there are depths in them which the human mind is unable to fathom.

The Bible claims to be a book revealing the character of an infinite God. It tells of his plans and purposes. These run back to the depths of an eternity. God's character could not be what the Bible tells it is if there were not many things about it which we can not understand more than a child can understand the deep principles of political economy, of philosophy or astronomy. The Bible claims to be a revelation from God. In denying the Bible we must believe that God has left our world without any revelation of his will, or any knowledge of himself. Where did the first idea of God come from, without a revelation? There is no idea of God in the human mind unless the mind has been taught it. Left to itself a child will never have any idea of God.

But the question is asked, Where do such ideas come from? We must certainly be taught them. We receive them from our parents, and they are handed down from one generation to another, and thus we can trace these ideas of a Supreme Being back to the time of our first parents. Adam and Eve must have been taught that idea from God, and he must have made a revelation of himself. But reject the Bible and it is impossible to account for the idea of a Divine Being which we find among our race. If God revealed himself to man, is it not probable that he revealed the way in which to worship and serve him? God certainly would not leave men without some guidance to promote his happiness in the world to come, and I claim this revelation is the Bible; for in it we find where man first had an idea of God; also where God made provisions for man's temporal necessities, and means for his temporal guidance through life. It must be admitted that God has provided bountifully for man's necessities so far as his bodily wants are concerned. But if we deny the Bible then the soul, that spark of immortality, the crown of man's creation, is left without any provision. How inconsistent the Infidel's theory, to promulgate the idea that the "All-wise Maker" has provided so bountifully for our bodily wants, and has left us neither chart nor compass to provide for our soul's welfare. Then if we throw aside the Bible we have no authentic account of the creation, but must depend for evidence of the creation upon speculations of such men as Huxley, Darwin and others. In rejecting the Bible we are obliged to take the ground that God has never made a revelation of himself to man, and you will have to admit that one nation will have no natural advantages over another in regard to the point before us.

Now let us compare the nations that receive the Bible with those that reject it. Look at the Greeks and Romans in the days of Homer, Plato, Socrates, when they did not accept the Bible, and we would expect to see an exalted system of theology. But alas! it was not the case. Mercury, their god, was a thief; and because he was an expert thief he was enrolled among the gods. Bacchus was a drunken sensualist. Venus was a miserable harlot, and there was not one lust that nestled in the human heart that was not deified and worshipped as a god. Then let us look at modern nations,—the Hindoos and Chinese. They also reject the Bible, and we all know how degrading the terrible idolatry of these people is. Turn now, if you please, to the nations that accept the Bible, and see what an exalted idea they have of God. They worship him as a pure and holy Being; as a God of love and mercy; and the teachings of the Bible are moral, although Infidels contend they are not. For we see that God always punished the wicked. How absurd an idea it is to think that holy men of old ought to have been perfect, when my friend can not show me under the broad canopy of heaven a perfect being. Then the nations that accept the Bible have the only idea of a Divine Being worthy to govern the universe. Accept the Bible, and it is all very plain; reject it, and it is an impossibility to solve the problem.

Now my friends, you all know that the most impossible of all impossible things is for man in his feebleness to undertake to foretell the future. To undertake this would be to overwhelm man in confusion. Yet this is just what was done by holy men of old. Their predictions run through centuries. You may take their predictions in the Scriptures, and you may lay the facts of history side by side, and you will see in an instant how these fulfilled prophecies agree with history, although the fulfillment of them occurred many years after they were predicted.

The first thing I will show is how the Old and New Testament harmonized. Now the New Testament was not acknowledged by the Jewish church, and therefore the Jews would not endeavor to make it agree with the Old Scripture. Turn to Micah 5:5, and you will read, "But thou Bethlehem, Ephrathah; though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall one come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been of old, from everlasting." Now compare that with Matt. 2:6. "And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Judah art not the least among the princes of Judah, for out of thee shall come a governor, that shall rule my people Israel." Compare these two, and you will see how minutely this was predicted hundreds of years before Christ came, and it shows that both the Old and New Testaments are true. Time will not permit me to take the predictions of the Old Testament one by one as they refer to Christ; the nature of his teachings, his miracles, his suffering, his death, and compare them with the New Testament.

Another strong argument that the Bible is true, is the fulfillment of prophecy concerning the Jews, the prophecies being uttered centuries before they came to pass. Amos predicted in Amos 9:9, the universal dispersion and yet the certain preservation of the Jews, and in Hosea 3:4, we find another prediction concerning them. We all know they have been despised, oppressed and persecuted everywhere, and yet preserved through all ages a distinct and peculiar people; a parallel which can not be found in the history of the world. In every country we find a Jew. It is not so, it has never been so with any other race. Empires have fallen, but the Jews to-day are a living monument of indestructibility and of the truth of the Bible. So my friends, every Jew that walks the earth is a living testimony to the divine origin of the Bible, more powerful than all sermons written against it. Deny the Bible and how can you explain Israel's preservation under circumstances in which no other people have ever been preserved? Admit the Bible is true, and it is plain to any candid mind.

Another argument for the Bible is the foretelling of the destruction of the Jewish temple in Jer. 26:18, and Matt. 24:2, which came to pass A. D. 71, when the Romans razed it to the ground. In Ezek. 26th, 27th, 28th chapters we read how Tyre was to be destroyed. And when Alexander the Great besieged the city, years after the prophecy was given, we read in history that the main land was soon captured and that the rubbish was carried to the sea, and a road forced to the island, which was foretold by Ezekiel, who says, "They shall lay thy stones and thy timber, and thy dust in the midst of the water," which is another argument that the Bible is the word of God. In Isaiah 22:35, we read the prophecy concerning the city of Jerusalem, and it says at the destruction of that city the dead shall be buried in Tophet till there be no place to bury them. This prophecy was written six hundred years before Christ, and Josephus informs us that when Titus conquered the city there was not room in the valley of Tophet to bury the dead.

Again in Micah 3:12, it tells us, "Zion shall be a ploughed field, and Jerusalem shall become ruins," which we know has been fulfilled. Hundreds of years before Christ appeared the pen of inspiration writes thus of Egypt: "And I will make the land of Egypt desolate in the midst of the countries." Gaze at Egypt to day, my friends, and see the fulfillment of that prophecy. It has been claimed by some that the New Testament was written before the Old Testament, and consequently these prophecies were written after they transpired. We will look to profane history and therein we find the Jews governed by the laws of Moses and accept the Old Testament, and were governed by its teachings centuries before Christ appeared. And Josephus, their historian, informs us that the Jews as a people did not accept Christ as the promised Redeemer, and therefore they discarded the New Testament. This is strong proof that the Old Testament was written long before the New, and that these prophecies were written long before the events transpired, which overthrows that theory.

I have brought forth ample proofs to show that the Bible must be the inspired word of God, for man himself could not have had the foresight to have seen all these things long before they were fulfilled.

In conclusion I will say that the Bible contains laws by which nations are governed; it is the king's best model; the housekeeper's best guide; and that which crowns all is that the father is without partiality and hypocrisy. In view of what the Bible has passed through, it justly deserves our confidence, for it is a true saying, "Truth crushed to earth will rise again." My friends, compare the Infidel's creed with the Christian's creed, then decide which looks the most sensible.

Creed of the Infidel: I believe there is no God, but that matter is God, and God is matter, and that it is no matter whether there is a God or not. I believe the world was not made, but that it made itself. I believe that man is a beast; that the body is the soul, and after death there is no soul. I believe there is no religion, that natural religion is the only religion; and that religion is unnatural. I believe not in the Apostles, but in Paine, Voltaire, Tyndal, &c. I believe not in the Bible, I believe in Socrates. Lastly, I believe in all unbelief.

Contrast this with the sublime creed of the Christian: I believe in God the Father, Almighty maker of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ his only son. I believe that the Bible is the inspired word of God.

My friends, which creeds looks the most sensible? Which is the most elevating and satisfying? Which is the most suitable to the wants of erring man? Which is the most worthy of a wise God?

Land of the Hittites.

READERS of the Bible are familiar with the mention of the Hittites; but, perhaps, if any thought has been bestowed upon them, it was generally of the nature of a vague conjecture that they were simply a fierce and troublesome tribe of ancient heathens, who offered the stoutest opposition in their power to the policy which was working itself out in connection with the children of Israel. None save the most recondite of scholars ever dreamed that they were a persistent race, whose very name was once "a power and terror to the nations in the East." Attention has been called to their place in history by a valuable article in the London Times. Very little was known concerning them until certain explanations brought their position to light, and at the same time dispelled some false conclusions at which eminent scholars had previously arrived. It is interestingly suggestive that the title Kirjath Sepher, given to Debir, the capital of a Hittite tribe which inhabited the south of Palestine in Patriarchal times, to the west of Hebron, means "Book-town." It is shown that the Hittites were civilized and powerful enough to threaten Assyria on one hand and Egypt on the other, and to carry the arts and the culture of the Euphrates to the Euxine and Ægean Seas, so that there actually starts up before our vision, from the remote past, a powerful, a somewhat cultured and an important race, who formed a considerable factor in the policies and doings of that dim old world. They appear on the monuments of an Egyptian monarch in the sixteenth century before Christ. The two centers of their power, we are told, were Carchemish on the Euphrates, and Kadesh, the "Holy" City, on the Orontes. The rulers of Egypt had always to reckon with them when they advanced upon Palestine. Fourteen hundred years before Christ, Rameses II., the Sesostris of Greek historians, was confronted by a "widespreading confederacy of Asiatic Nations, who all owned the supremacy of the Hittite Princes of Carchemish and Kadesh." The flag of a Hittite monarch waved over a league of Asiatic warriors, who stood forth boldly to dispute the advance of the great Egyptian King. Kadesh, one of the capitals, eventually passed into the hands of the Syrians, and Carchemish remained as the sole center of the various Hittite tribes. "Situated as it was on the Euphrates, it commanded the high road of commerce and war, which led from Babylonia and Assyria into Asia Minor on the one side, and Palestine on the other."

It ultimately became the seat of an Assyrian Governor; but it was not until the eighth century before Christ that the last Hittite monarch was defeated and slain. The life of this old-world city long remained a difficult question among scholars. Mr. Skene, British Consul at Aleppo, made the discovery which has settled the question, and the late George Smith, the Assyrian decipherer, verified the discovery. On the western bank of the Euphrates, overlooking a ford traversed by caravans, there is a huge mound of earth, covering a large area, within which are found the remains of the old Hittite capital. Excavations are at present being carried forward under the direction of Mr. Consul Henderson. Two of the monuments discovered may now be seen in the British Museum. Strange to say, that ancient city held so important a position in the world that it was the center from which the art, the religion and the civilization of the East may have been carried westward through Asia Minor to the Ægean, and thence to Greece. Its inhabitants had invented a system of writing, in part primitively pictorial, and in part but faintly resembling the objects originally denoted. The literary character of the Hittites is referred to in the Egyptian monuments; and we have seen that one of their cities was called "Book-town." Discoveries have established the fact that these people had really pushed their influence far and wide; and much in art and culture which had been attributed to other sources is now felt to be due to them. "The old legends which brought Pelops and his riches from the banks of the Pactolus, had, after all, a grain of truth at their bottom." Much still remains to be learned concerning them from the explorations which are in progress; but evidently a considerable and remarkable race is being brought into notice, whose influence, upon the earliest civilization possesses an interest investing such studies with the charm of romance, and at the same time an importance which can not be measured by the computation of our present knowledge.—Christian World.

Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.
HENRY A. STEBBINS, ASSISTANT.

Plano, Illinois, September 1st, 1880.

THERE are two young men, members of the Church, who have canvassed the question of tithing between them, or separately, and the result has been that during the months of work this busy season, they have regularly divided their gross earnings and have paid the tenth to the Bishop, as their duty to the Church.

Both of these young men declare that they have felt blessed in doing this, and seem to believe that this is a practical and easy solution of the question; and so do we.

Of course we know that some declare that the Church authorities are grasping, and that it is the fleece, not the good of the flock, that they want, and that the tithing is the instrument of torture that they intend using in the name of the Lord. But the history of these same church authorities for the last twenty years fails to make this statement good. The only thing developed by an investigation into the monetary affairs of one wing of the army of occupation, that could be reasonably complained of, was partial mismanagement; and there are few human establishments of any considerable magnitude, or length of standing, in which close scrutiny with the added wisdom that years and experience brings, might not discover mismanagement. The monetary affairs of the Church are under the personal control and inspection of a quorum of men, who are so far as they can be removed from suspicion of domination by the spiritual heads of the Church. Besides this the three leading quorums of the spiritual authorities, hold as we have elsewhere shown, independent supervision of its own affairs, with the right of inquiry, and should be by reason of their position, free from suspicion of desire to dominate the monetary arm of the service. But, were it even otherwise, the care and vigilance of the Church in conference assembled, in requiring the Bishopric to make public by report, the current account of the Treasury, show that the chief expenditures are in the direction of supporting the ministerial service appointed by the Church itself. This system of reporting keeps the condition of the finances constantly before every reader of the HERALD; and we can not see how any one in, or out of the Church is justified in alleging fraud, deceit, or abuse in the conduct of the funds.

The Presidency is not a charge upon the general Treasury for support. One of them is almost constantly in the field and takes the chances of sustenance for himself and family with all other Elders in the same field, thus giving a full equivalent for all that he receives. Another is at work with his hands and head in the service of the Publishing department; and if he is not giving an equivalent for what he receives, it is a subject for inquiry by the Church. Of the third one it is hardly needful that we write.

While the above is true the law of the Church contains provisions for the support of the presidency, the Bishopric and other chief officers of of the Church, including the Elders in the field; but requiring them to use commendable economy, and to be industriously engaged in the work. Yet neither the Presidency, the Bishopric, nor the other chief officers of the Church have been Church charges, some of the latter having received not enough over their absolute necessities, when receiving anything while in the field to clothe them appropriately to the dignity of their calling and the body. By this we mean just what an eminent economist once said, "To be well dressed is to be clothed in such a way that one escapes observation and criticism, either for the richness or poverty of ones apparel."

These thoughts have all been called out by the few lines at the beginning of this screed about the rendition of the law by two young members, who by plain, practical common sense cut the Gordian knot of difficulty, and solved the problem of how to do it in such a way that the treasury and the work are materially benefitted.

We see by a discourse delivered by Orson Pratt in the Tabernacle, Logan City, Utah, November 1st, 1879, and published in the Deseret Evening News, July 31st, 1880, that he still believes that the Saints will gather back to the region of the States, Missouri being the nucleus; and he says that when there is a temple built, "God has promised that he would raise up a man like unto Moses. Who this man will be I do not know; it may be a person with whom we are entirely unacquainted; it may be one of our infant children; it may be some person not yet born; it may be some one of middle age."

In this statement, is clearly stated, that while the speaker admitted the force and validity of the gathering, he also admitted that they did not know who it was that should be the one to lead in the work. The speaker further admitted that "We have a standard in the Doctrine and Covenants," and that "forty-seven years ago it was necessary to purchase the lands," in that region where the gathering was to be; and that, "It may be necessary for us in times to come, and probably will be necessary for us to purchase that whole region of country." The army and fighting, the desolation, weeping and wailing business to get possession by driving out the Gentiles inhabiting the land of Zion and "regions round about," seems to be in danger of abandonment, and we are of the opinion that it should have been long ago.

One other idea we suggest to this reverend apostle of Utah, and to all others through him; the practice of whatever is out of harmony with the Doctrine and Covenants, the "law that was suitable" to the Church in its condition at the time it was given and in the "New Jerusalem," and at variance with the organic law of the territory where the New Jerusalem is to be developed, can not and will not be permitted to become any part of the polity of that land. This clearly excludes polygamy. Nor will any amount of peculiar pleading change this decree of law. One of the strong arguments used by Elder Pratt in his defense of the Rocky Mountain Zion, was that there the institution of heaven could flourish without the perverting influence of a corrupt Congress. But now so changed is the policy and the tone, that the thoughts of true devotees of the early faith are turning towards the early promises; and truth, pure truth, long crushed beneath the weights that cruel ambition has heaped upon it, is rising in beauteous habiliments to claim the places whence it was driven.

Go on Elder Orson Pratt, and it will not be long ere those who have beguiled you from your purity of faith and principle, will ostracise you from their councils; and that cruel despotism of a debasing creed of which you were made the foster brother, will acknowledge your disenfranchisement, and you, among the remnant, may lift unshackled hands to a patient Lord with repentant and thankful heart, that your long captivity to the servitude of sin is ended.

May God hasten the day when the Spirit of Him who is altogether mighty and strong, may dissipate the clouds and shine in upon our day, the Sun of Righteousness and peace forever.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

OUR quarterly conferences should, so far as it is consistent with surrounding and attendant circumstances, be made seasons of rejoicing in Christ, as well as places of business. So probably, think the Saints of Michigan, who held their conference as a basket meeting—a regular picnic meeting—pleasant and agreeable. Sunday, especially, should be made a day for the preaching of the word. Very little is ever gained by working in secular employment on the Lord's day; and while it may be quite legal to do the business of the conference on the Sunday, it is not nearly so pleasant nor profitable to the general membership as devotional exercises on that day. In addition to this, Sunday is a bad day to stir up the strife that resolution and counter resolution, debate and counter debate sometimes stirs up, although some may say "the better the day the better the deed." This saying can only apply to good deeds; for bad deeds are not sanctioned by being done on Sunday. We think with our Michigan Saints that we can "and we will" make the worship and business of our conference a pleasure as well as a duty, rather than an irksome and tiresome labor. We ought to be able to afford one day per quarter for the Lord's work, other than his day.

The Senior Editor was in Chicago, Sunday, August 15th, and occupied the desk in Castle Hall, both morning and evening. There were nine baptized on the first and two the second Sunday of the month. Bro. Mark is doing an excellent work there, as it appeared to us on this visit. A good audience met us at both services. A bright, intelligent and cheerful array of faces greeted us as we spoke to them. Others endorse the work there; an excellent feeling prevails, and every body says "continue Bro. Mark." We saw the grand parade of the Knights Templar, reckoned at 25,000 in line.

We attended the conference of the Kewanee District, held at Buffalo Prairie, August 21st and 22d, and met several of the Elders; among them Brethren John Chisnall and J. H. Hopkins, of Kewanee; Hiram C. Bronson and J. A. Robinson, of Peoria; and Jobe Brown and — Johnson, of Clinton, Iowa. There was a large gathering on Sunday, and we have seldom listened to a finer effort than was made in the afternoon by Bro. Columbus Scott. Bro. M. T. Short was there, also, but was so happy and contented in his newly contracted marriage with Sr. Viola Ver non, of Millersburg, Illinois, that he was excused from preaching, as he calculates to make his home for the present in Millersburgh, and will work in the local field as extensively as he can. He will prove of great good to the cause there, as he is a worker, and disposed to push the conquests of the cross.

Dr. Tanner's extraordinary fast has demonstrated that where a man undertakes to do a thing with a will to do it, he is very likely to do it. A forty days' abstaining from food is a terrible thing where one is compelled to do it; but the doctor did it voluntary, for apparently no other purpose than to show that it could be done. At all events he has done it. This will dispose of the objection to the fast recorded of Christ, that it was impossible, by establishing the fact that a man could have done it. From the 28th of June till the 7th of August the doctor kept his fast, in the presence of watchers, and at the close broke the bread of physical life to such good purpose that in the thirty hours succeeding his first meal he gained eight pounds. The Chicago Tribune of the 9th August states that it is perhaps the only case in the world's history.

Bro. D. D. Babcock, noticed before as laboring at or near Dudley, Stoddard county, Missouri, has done as he then thought of doing, namely begun preaching to the people there. He says; "I preached my first discourse here on July 25th, and one week later I spoke twice. When it became known that I was a preacher I was solicited to address the people. They gave good attention, and treated me kindly. I was also invited to go four miles into the country and preach, but when the time came I was too ill to go, as I was also last Sunday. I am now getting better. I suppose that I am the first to sound the gospel in these parts; but I hope to find friends for it here. And may the HERALD readers pray for me, and the cause."

From our constantly increasing correspondence, we are obliged to leave a great number of letters unpublished, or even without editorial notice. In doing this we have no desire to neglect any one, nor to disparage any by our selection of those that go in; and we have a right to expect that no offence will be taken. No one could get more into the HERALD than we do; some might, and would change in that they would exclude some things that we admit, and admit some that we exclude; and that might be an advantage. Of that we can not state, however, as we only know of what exists; the results of what has not been tried can only be conjectured.

By a Pittsfield, Illinois, paper, we learn that on Saturday night, August 14th, several stores were burned in that place, and among them, we are sorry to see, was that of Bro. H. R. Mills. However, he was insured for $2,000, and we hope it covered his loss.

The ministry who are under General Conference appointment, but who do not expect to attend the September session, will confer a favor by sending their reports to Joseph Smith, or Henry A. Stebbins, care C. A. Beebe, Council Bluffs, Iowa, so as to reach there, if possible, by September 10th or 12th. Those who intend to be present would also oblige by either sending their reports in advance, or else handing them to the Secretary very early in the session, to present and read with the others, and to prepare for early mailing to the Herald Office for putting into type. Do not make reports too lengthy.

The Christian Union, a Baptist paper, published at Dexter City, Missouri, in its issue for Aug. 7th, 1880, contains a notice of a visit by the editor of that paper to Dudley, Missouri, where he preached July 25th. We extract the following from his remarks about Bro. D. D. Babcock: "The people of that place were also addressed Sabbath evening by Rev. D. D. Babcock, an able speaker, though he differs with us in some things; he offered many good remarks however. Mr. Babcock is a man of the Latter Day Saints' faith."

Bro. Solomon J. Salisbury, of Fountain Green, visited Wooster, Jefferson county, Iowa, August 9th, and preached in the Christian Church there; and in a school house three miles south of the village. Bro. Thomas Wellington, living there, is striving to tell the gospel story each Sunday, and Bro. S. reports favorably of his efforts there. An invitation was given Bro. Salisbury to go to Fairfield, Iowa; this he wishes to accept, and would like if Bro. J. H. Lake could go with him at the close of September. Will Bro. Lake please to correspond with Bro. Salisbury in regard to it.

Bro. William Harris wrote that Bro. Hiram Robinson preached on August 14th and 15th, in Columbia, Union county, Pa., and to good sized congregations. Bro. Harris sends a copy of the Evangelical Messenger, published at Cleveland, Ohio, which contains another untruthful statement as to the origin of the Book of Mormon. It would seem that many editors take pleasure in making misstatements, though it may be nothing more than ignorance in many cases, but willful ignorance sometimes.

Bro. C. Wickes writes from Cook's Point, Texas, that by some changes in the moral kaleidoscope, the mob which forced him out of there had begun to change front; prejudice was being allayed and he thought of returning to Taylor, Red River county, again. He had been requested so to do. It is to be desired that the same result may follow in all the places where the soldiers of the cross are used despitefully. We certainly wish Bro. Wickes an excellent hearing.

Brother and sister John Davidson, of Terra Cotta, Ellsworth county, Kansas, formerly from Greenbush, Michigan, wrote August 5th, and are anxious that the Elders visiting that section shall call on them. Bro. Davidson wishes the brethren in Utah to enquire for his father, George N. Davidson; he would like to hear from him. Mrs. Emaline J. Davidson writes with them, and seems impressed with the correctness of the views of the Church.

We were agreeably surprised the other day by a letter from Bro. D. S. Mills, of Santa Ana, California; and, though there was nothing of special importance in the letter, it was pleasant to be reminded of our acquaintance in 1876, while a sojourner in the Golden State.

Bro. Odin Jacobs wrote from Stavanger, Norway, July 9th. He was trying to get places to speak in, but none were to be had. The priests hold control of the school houses, and the people were afraid to permit him to preach. He had been on five different Islands, but had not been able to do anything for the cause. He had distributed three different kinds of tracts, which was all that there seemed opportunity to do. Hard, very hard to get a hearing.

As, by the action of the General Conference, statistical reports are only required annually, (that is at the April sessions), from the districts and missions, it will be unnecessary to send any to the September sessions; but it is hoped that branch and district officers will increase in the perfection of the annual reports, so that a full knowledge of our loss and gain may be had each year.

Sisters Sallie Rye, E. M. Jones and Catherine Jones, write from Warm Fork, Oregon county, Missouri, that they have not heard the gospel preached for five years, and are athirst and hungering for the bread and water of the Word of God. They ask where the laborers are, and want one to visit them. Who will respond to this call? Oregon county is near the Arkansas line.

Bro. William Potter writes from San Francisco, California, that he deems the work in places practically dead, but thinks a revival may ensue after awhile. He was about to start on the mission assigned him. He also objects to much representation on paper, and in the HERALD, of work done in California, of which the residents through the district know nothing.

We met Bro. M. H. Bond, of Cadillac, Michigan, in Chicago, on the 15th, and had a pleasant visit with him during our stay. He was in the city on business, but enjoyed a visit with the Saints, and the worship in the Hall, as Saints isolated from the daily company of the Church usually do, with zest. He is a pleasant, companionable man.

Bro. George F. Weston holds meetings at Shabbona and Steward, in DeKalb county, Illinois. He also intended at last writing to do some preaching in the town of DeKalb. At Steward lives one of the sons of Aunt Roxy Fuller (an old-time Saint, well known to many of the Church), who cared for the brethren who went there, and with his family made them feel at home.

Bro. George Hicklin wrote from St. Clair county, Illinois, August 10th, that he was laboring for the Master in that region. He has recently preached the funeral sermons of two of the sisters in the Caseyville branch. He also baptized three into the Church there. May the Spirit bless the labors of Bro. George.

Letter from Bro. Z. H. Gurley, August 14th, from Pleasanton, Iowa. He suggests the publication of the Vision in D. and C. as a tract, without comment, and that it be sent to such men as Rev. Adams and others, to help them out of their dilemma. It is a good thought, and we think to adopt the idea.

Bro. D. S. Crawley, of Kansas has been quite ill, as heretofore noticed by Bro. J. T. Davies, but on Sunday, August 8th, he began preaching again. We sympathize with Bro. and Sr. Crawley in the loss of a child recently.

Bro. G. S. Hyde wrote, August 21st, that he was holding meetings at Six Mile Grove, Iowa, and the interest was good.

Card from Bro. Jobe Brown, from Lyons, Iowa, indicates that he still feels the progress of the work necessary to his final welfare; so he keeps trying. He has baptized another, since our last notice. Clinton, August 10th, three more were baptized. There would be an organization of a branch soon.

Bro. H. J. Hudson of Columbus, Nebraska, mentions having received pleasant and interesting visits from brethren Charles Derry and Herman C. Smith. He was expecting one from Bro. James Caffall about August 20th. Bro. Hudson has been doing some preaching recently. We are glad to hear from him.

Bro. T. H. Moore wrote from Providence, R. I., August 8th, stating that Bro. T. W. Smith had been there and had done a good work; especially teaching the benefit arising from keeping the word of wisdom. Many were induced to prove its efficacy.

Bro. Saleda D. Shippy of the Hersey branch, Michigan, writes: "The Lord blesses us with the gifts of the gospel, and comforts us in the hours of trial. The Saints are in the faith; pray for us that we may continue faithful." So we do, and that God's peace and blessings may be with them.

Bro. I. N. Gore writes from Farmington, Kentucky, and assures us of the kind dealing of the Father with him, in healing him when severely hurt. He thinks prospects discouraging for the work; but believes that good may be done by and by.

Letter from James F. Clemenson, from Independence, Missouri, who says: "On the whole I think the members do pretty well." He renews his subscription for HERALD, and seems to be well grounded in his hope.

We received an excellent letter from Bro. J. H. Hanson, Farmington, Kentucky, August 18th. He had devoted the month of July entire to labor in the ministry, baptized one.

Our thanks to brethren D. D. Babcock W. Harris, J. Macauley and H. R. Mills, for papers received; also, to unknown parties for two copies of the Deseret News.

Brethren Clow and Conners from St. Thomas, Ontario, stopped with us a day and a night, or from one day to the afternoon of another, and returned to their home by the way of Chicago.

Bro. Wm. W. Blair wrote from Willow Creek, Montana, August 9th. Things were going fairly well in that region. He, Bro. B., expected to be at Salt Lake by August last or September first.

Bro. M. T. Short, lately laboring in Michigan, passed through Plano on the 13th and 14th August, en route for Millersburg, Illinois, and home. He was in apparently good health and spirits.

Bro. I. L. Rogers arrived home August 23d, after an absence of four weeks. He was visiting his kindred in Chenango and Onondaga counties, New York.

Bro. J. D. Flanders wrote August 10th, that he and Bro. J. M. Terry were then preaching in Grundy county, Missouri. The prospects were good that some souls would be won to Christ.

Bro. J. S. Patterson mentions that Bro. Columbus Scott preached twice at Kewanee and Bro. M. T. Short once, on Sunday, August 15th.

Bro. T. W. Chatburn writes that he is again holding a series of meetings at Marne, Cass county, Iowa.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

How are we to understand that the abominable church took the plain and precious parts of the gospel from the Bible; as recorded by Nephi in his vision?

By securing to the clergy, or priests, the sole right to read and interpret the meaning of the word; and when this was done, by putting a strained spiritual meaning upon what otherwise was plain, thus mystifying and covering up the true light. A part of this covering of mystery Babylon remains over the word to-day.

THE following is a specimen letter, which we reproduce after we have pruned it, just to give our correspondents an idea of how much useless labor, time and postage, some of them waste over words that do not convey information.

WHITEVILLE, July 16th, 1880.

Dear Brethren Joseph Smith and Henry A. Stebbins:

I seat myself and take up the pen to let you know how we are getting along in this part of God's moral vineyard. As I see nothing from these parts in the Herald, I take pleasure in writing to you; and I can truly say that my heart rejoices in the great latter day work. Elder Jones has been laboring in the ministry and preaching here for some few days; and on last Sunday, I had the pleasure of seeing seven more precious souls baptized into the Church and Kingdom of God, set up for the last time in these latter days. I can truly say that my faith is increasing, and that I am willing and anxious to help spread the work in my feeble way; until all the honest in heart shall be gathered.

Your unworthy brother and co-worker
For Zion's cause,

JOHN SIMMONS.

Now there is nothing really harmful in this letter; but below are all the points in it:

WHITEVILLE, July 16th, 1880.

Brethren Joseph and Henry:

I take pleasure in writing you that my heart rejoices in the work. Elder Jones has been preaching here; and last Sunday baptized seven. My faith is increasing. I will help the work on till the honest are gathered.

Your brother,

JOHN SIMMONS.

The specimen contains one hundred and fifty words, the copy fifty-two. There are many words that people write from routine, and because they have seen them in letters similar to their own. Some of them are in the specimen above. The opening sentence is one of them. Of what use is it to tell brethren and Joseph and Henry that you take your pen, or pencil, to write to us. If we get the letter, we suppose that you intended to write to us; and we are certainly able to tell sufficiently sure whether it was written with pen or pencil, and we are not particular whether you took your own pen or pencil to write with, or whether you borrowed one. Again; if you had not wanted us to know how you were doing, you would not have written; and it is unnecessary to state that you can "truly say." If you can not truly say, don't say; and don't throw suspicion on what you are going to write, by swearing to it beforehand. "I can truly say," is in man or woman just what "upon honor," "deed and double deed," are among children; and almost intimates that the statement about to be made is liable to be doubted from its character.

Again: It is supposed that when persons are baptized that they are baptized into the Church; and the simple statement that they were baptized is all that is necessary. Besides this, to say that Elder Jones baptized seven into the Church, permits the inference that he baptized some that he did not baptize into the Church. Again: All souls are supposed to be precious; and when Bro. Simmons writes that Elder Jones baptized seven, it may be presumed that they were precious; and to put the words "precious souls" in, permits the inference that Elder Jones may have baptized some who were not precious, but that these seven are.

Do not write yourself down "unworthy." However feeble you may feel you may be, do what you can and sign yourself, "your brother," or "your co-worker," or some similar wording, your worthiness or unworthiness will be found out by and by. Do not be offended at this, readers of the HERALD; but take heed, and mend your ways.

THE following is received from the Saints in England, and we commend it to the consideration of the Saints on this side of the water. It is a circular letter, intended for distribution among the branches to see how well a periodical would be sustained; and to get the thing started:

Beloved.—Your Committee, authoritatively elected at our last mission conference for the purpose of publishing a periodical (as a representative paper) in the interest of the Saints in Britain, beg to call your attention to this fact, A venture so important can not be brought to a successful issue without a necessary fund, and as many small straws will make a strong band, so will many small sums given by the Saints, create a fund that will enable your committee to carry out their appointed duty. With that fact before us, we feel every confidence in the Saints that they will readily respond to our appeal; and to the best of their ability cheerfully assist in the creation of such a necessary fund.

With such assistance from you we will soon launch into the literary world; an auxiliary so powerful as the "Saints' Guardian" will be in the dissemination and defence of those holy principles the Saints so dearly love. We also hope to be able to order the proceedings of our next annual conference to be published in our own paper. Praying such may be the issue of this our endeavor, we beg to subscribe ourselves, your dear brethren in Christ,

News Summary.

August 10th.—Under fear of the Great Powers of Europe the Sultan of Turkey has decided to obey the decrees of the Berlin Conference of the nations, held two years ago. Dulcigno will be given over to Montenegro.

The Afghans have captured some of the baggage of a wagon train belonging to the British, and in a skirmish defeated those in charge, compelling a retreat with some loss.

The London Times says of Ireland: "There will be no popular rising where there are troops ready to repress it." That is just about how it is in poor Ireland, and England does not intend to lessen her hold on it. But some rioting is taking place, resulting in several deaths, among them an officer of the Crown.

The floods in Germany, previously mentioned, destroyed twenty villages and millions of dollars worth of grain. In Silesia four hundred and eighty square miles of country is under water.

Reports from forty-nine Russian provinces show that the harvests are generally poor.

England and Austria are at disagreement about the navigation of the Danube.

Rain has fallen for the past ten days throughout North Carolina. The streams are swollen, bridges and fences have been swept away, and much damage has been done to the crops.

There were forty-three deaths from yellow-fever and three deaths from small-pox at Havana last week.

Among the 1,134 immigrants who arrived at New York yesterday were forty-seven Sicilians and fourteen Turks.

Dispatches from Oregon say that there is considerable restlessness among the Indians in the upper country. The soldiers and scouts are on the alert, though open hostilities are not expected so late in the season.

11th.—The British in Candahar, Afghanistan, have thirty days provisions, and think they can stand a good siege. Gen. Roberts and ten thousand English and native troops are on the long march from Cabul to relieve Candahar from danger.

It is now stated that on taking the alleged Bender family to Kansas they proved not to be the ones, and why they should claim that they were no one knows.

12th.—By a railway accident in England yesterday seven persons were killed and twenty wounded.

Several thousand workmen in the Tyne shipyards have struck for an advance of wages.

The weapons abandoned by the rioters in Ireland prove to be English rifles of English make. It is stated that fourteen hundred rifles have been sent from Dublin into the country this summer. The Government has stopped the sale of them. In Western Ireland Fenianism is flourishing and the people are drilling, so reported, to resist the land-laws.

Greece has purchased fourteen hundred calvary horses for her army.

The Candahar garrison are skirmishing with the surrounding Afghans.

A severe storm did damage at Pittsburgh, Alleghany City and Washington, Pennsylvania, and at Liverpool, Ohio, yesterday. Several persons killed by lightning, and numbers injured or stunned.

13th.—At Queenstown, Ireland, a band of Irishmen went out by night to a Norwegian vessel, imprisoned the officers and crew, searched the ship and took away forty old-fashioned muskets. They stated that they expected to find a stock of breach loaders on board and were disappointed. The British Government has arrested some men suspected of taking part in the affair.

From Athens, Greece, comes the tidings that volunteers are being enrolled everywhere, and recruits are drilling, preparing for war with Turkey.

Albania has declared her independence of Turkey.

Revolution is rife in Mexico, a combination of generals against President Gonzales.

A terrible railway accident in New Jersey. A train of thirteen hundred excursionists was divided into two sections, and the rear one run into the forward one, causing great loss of life by crushing and scalding; eighteen are already dead, and over forty wounded ones still live.

By an accident on another New Jersey road, (rail breaking), eighteen people were injured, some seriously, but none killed.

A band of Indians attacked the mail-coach on the road between El Paso and Davis, Texas, recently, and took possession of the mail matter and the stock. In the fight the mail-driver and three men were killed. The route is infested, and troops have been ordered forward to protect passengers.

Capt. Payne, the leader of the raiders into the Indian Territory, has been turned over by the military authorities to Marshall Dell, of the Western District of Kansas. Payne and his lieutenant, Joseph Hows, will soon be placed on trial.

Three sailors from Havana are sick with yellow-fever at New York Quarantine Hospital.

14th.—The Afghans are said to be preparing to attack Candahar in force. The British are not having it all their own way in stealing a nation.

A physician of Lyons, France, tried to fast fifteen days, but gave it up after a week's trial. Whether any one with the will-power of Dr. Tanner will arise remains to be seen.

Another political crisis in Buenos Ayers, on ministry affairs.

By a railway accident in Indiana, yesterday, seven men were wounded.

16th.—Siege works are being thrown up around Candahar by the Afghans. It is stated that Ayoob Kahn has 12,000 infantry and cavalry, and 37 cannon. English reinforcements continue to leave Britain by steamers for India.

In 1862-3, the first year that petroleum oil was exported from America, there was sent out only one hundred and fifty-five thousand gallons. But each year the amount grew largely, until during the year ending June 30th, 1880, four hundred and thirty-five millions of gallons of it was taken to foreign lands. In 1866 the average export value per gallon was forty-eight cents, and now it is only about eight cents.

It is estimated that from 50,000 sets of croquet, 200,000 base-ball bats, and 250,000 base balls will be made for this season's trade by a single firm in Chicago.

It is estimated that the shipment of peaches from Delaware this year will reach 3,532,000 baskets.

17th.—In the great battle of the 27th of July in which the Afghans were victorious, the British lost sixteen hundred in killed, wounded and missing, half of them native allies. The Afghans are besieging Candahar. The general opinion in India is that the action of the British Government in withdrawing troops from Cabul is very unwise, and that the sending of Gen. Roberts to the relief of Candahar is rash in the extreme.

A cyclone of two minutes duration demolished twenty-five houses and injured five persons at Goliad, Texas, yesterday.

A case of arms, shipped from Milford, Wales, to parties in Cork, Ireland, was seized by the officers yesterday.

Pleuro-pneumonia has attacked the cattle on fifteen farms in Lancashire, England.

At the great triennial assembly of the Masonic order of Knights Templar, now being held at Chicago, it is estimated that at least 25,000 of these so-called knights are present, some think not less than 40,000 of them. From 15,000 to 25,000 were in the great parade yesterday that occupied some four hours time. Their camp of tents extends for about a mile along the shore of Lake Michigan, from the Exposition building southward. More than 100,000 other people are there from without the city, and these with the citizens and the Templars are making a great crush in that city these few days,—all for show, excitement and, we may well say, vain display at vast expense, and to no benefit. It only pleases the love that mankind has for pomp and noise, and proud array.

Over 13,000 persons left Liverpool for the United States in the month of July. There was an increase in the total immigration from the port for the month, of 5,000, over July, 1879.

The Apaches are becoming restless. Near Santa Fe yesterday they killed two Mexicans, and drove off some cattle.

19th.—In England there exists a very disturbed feeling in regard to Ireland. It is believed that a plot exists to blow up the barracks of the Government soldiers at Cork. At Dungannon on Sunday the 15th a riot occurred. Many of the police were wounded and in return they killed a few and wounded many of the people.

The British troops in Afghanistan that are marching to the relief of Candahar are suffering greatly with the heat, so that many are disabled.

Great floods in the provinces of East and West Prussia and Silesia have destroyed the crops. In some parts rain fell daily for three weeks.

Relations between Russia and China are said to have been broken off again.

Ole Bull, the world renowned violinist, died at Bergen, Norway, this week, aged 70 years. A few days ago Adelaide Nielson, the famous actress died at Paris, France.

A rail way accident in East Tennessee; one person killed and eighteen wounded.

Six Sioux Indians, who stole seven horses and killed a white man, have been surrendered to the United States officer at Fort Randall, by Spotted Tail.

Cholera is said to be causing fifteen deaths daily in one of the Roumanian villages.

A storm in Dakota unroofed houses, killed three people and seriously damaged the wheat crop.

A $300,000 fire in St. Louis; a $60,000 fire on Long Island, and a loss of $1,000,000 by fire in Eureka, Nevada.

20th.—The floods of Germany mentioned yesterday have destroyed the crops on hundreds of thousands of acres. Much suffering among the people will result.

The Chilians have a force of 30,000 soldiers around Lima, Peru, while the Peruvians have but 10,000 to defend it with.

21st.—The Brownsville Cosmopolitan, Texas, gives account of what it calls "one of the most terrible hurricanes" that ever visited that section. "The wind blew with increasing violence and rain fell in torrents, flooding the streets of Brownsville and Metamoras. When the storm had abated Metamoras looked as if it had stood a week's bombardment." Buildings were wrecked, and rent, and torn to pieces, "at least three hundred of them," say the Cosmopolitan, and great damage by rain, and wind and wave was done to all kinds of property; likewise at Brownsville, Santa Cruz, Point Isabel, and elsewhere on the Gulf coast.

A dispatch from Washington states that fourteen hundred Sioux Indians have surrendered themselves to the Government, or to General Miles, who is in command in Montana, these Indians having crossed back from British America to the United States.

23d.—Disastrous wind and rain storms are reported from various portions of France; cattle and crops destroyed.

The harvest in Ireland progressing and is very satisfactory.

The Afghans hope to succeed in keeping off the British relief column from Candahar, as well as to capture the place.

At Coffeyville, Mississippi a riot occurred the 21st, caused by political differences between the Democratic and Greenback parties of that place, and two men were killed and two wounded.

Dispatches from various points in the Northwestern States tell of continued damage to corn from the protracted drought. This is especially true of many of the counties of Illinois, where the absence of rain has caused great injury to late planted corn.

24th.—The British relief column for Candahar has had one successful brush with the Afghans.

Two Circassians have killed an American missionary and his servant in Turkey.

A very large fire occurred at St. Paul, Minnesota, yesterday, the loss on buildings and merchandise being about seven hundred thousand dollars.

Correspondence.

LONGTON, Elk Co., Kansas,

August 11th, 1880.

Dear Herald:—Since the quarterly conference of this district, held in May, I have, with the exception of about three weeks, spent the time with Bro. J. T. Davies, the president of the district. I spent about three weeks at Oronogo, Webb City, and Joplin, preaching as circumstances would permit. From Oronogo I went to Galesburg, where I met Bro. Davies. Since we met we have visited Pleasant View, Columbus, Mound Valley and Indian Creek branches. We found them all in fair condition except Galesburg. We started on the 9th inst. to return to Mound Valley, but at the urgent request of the town of Longton for us to remain a few days it was decided that I should stay and deliver a series of discourses, and Bro. Davies to proceed to fill appointments that had been sent to Mound Valley. The people at this place seem very much interested, and some have stated that they believe what we teach. I was never more kindly received than we have been by the people of Elk county, Kansas. Bro. Loar, who is presiding Elder of the Indian Creek Branch, has done a great work here, and is liked by the people. He is a zealous, and I believe, a good man. Pray for us.

I am as ever, yours in Christ,

A. J. CATO.

DAVIS CITY, Iowa,

July 23d, 1880.

Dear Herald: Things spiritual and temporal here are in statu quo. We are all full of good intentions and, Micawber-like, waiting for something to turn up. And it may be that the something might be easily turned up, if we would but take hold of it aright, in the faithful discharge of duty, and many seeming obstacles would be removed, and mountains would be but as mole hills. O, that we could fully realize our true position and the relation we sustain to God, to the world, to each other, and to eternity.

Having been authorized to go with Bro. Lake into the South-east Missouri District to set in order things pertaining to the Church there, I left home July 1st, with Bro. A. H. Smith, who was going to Cameron. We staid that night with Bro. I. P. Baggerly, and the next day arrived in the Delana branch, where on Sunday, brethren Baggerly, A. H. Smith and the writer, preached. Next morning (5th) I went to Bevier, found Bro. Lake, and we entered immediately on our duties, prefacing all our actions and deliberations with prayer to God for divine aid, and at the close we felt that we had done all that we could do in the premises in order to accomplish the desired end. In Bro. J. H. Lake I found a genial companion, a wise counselor, and a humble, faithful servant of God. I indulged in the wish that I could always be with him. The Saints of Bevier treated us as only Saints can, and we shall long remember their kindness.

On the 10th I left for Cameron. I had sent a card to Stewartville, asking some of my old associates to meet me at Cameron, and I was delighted when Bro. J. M. Terry met me at the train and said that they had responded to my request by the wagon load. Notice that I would preach had been circulated by newspaper and otherwise, and I found a good company awaiting me. I was glad to grasp once more the honest hand of Bro. J. T. Kinnaman, whose goodness of heart is proportionate with the length of his body. His wife and children also were there, and Bro. and Sr. J. H. Meriam. I thought that this joyous meeting of loved ones, all at once, paid for years of struggle and toil. And these scenes act as an incentive to push on to the victory, until we shall meet with all earth's loved ones, to part no more. I spoke with good liberty that evening, and three times next day. No wonder I had liberty, with such surroundings, such kind-hearted, devoted Saints, such prayers and such singing. There was inspiration in the very atmosphere. I expected to leave immediately for home, but the Stewartville Saints put a veto on that, and took possession of me. And to Stewartville I went, and a good time I had. I would like to mention the names of all the Saints I met, but space will not permit, and I would like to tell how the good sisters fixed me up with a new coat, shirts, nice ties, etc.; how Sr. Meriam and Sr. Bettie Smith engineered the job, and all the rest helped; but perhaps they do not wish me to say anything about it. One thing is certain, he to whom all this kindness was shown has an appreciative heart, and will, with God's help, strive to retain the confidence of all the people of God. I enjoyed my stay in the country and in town. Visited Bro. Kinnaman, who has a beautiful home, one mile west of town, and I seemed to live over the past, rejoicing in the present prospect before us if we are only faithful.

On the 14th, Bro. Kinnaman and I visited relatives and Saints at St. Joseph, and I spoke in the Opera Hall there to a good audience, and had good liberty. But I fear that I damaged the prescribed rules of etiquette, for as the evening was very warm and sultry, after speaking a short time I drew my coat, laid it on a window-sill; next my hypocritical neck-tie came off, and found a place of safety on the stand; next my stand up collar took its flight out of a third story window. But I hope that etiquette will survive the shock. The Saints have showed me great kindness, which will long be remembered. Back to Stewartville, preached twice on the 18th, partook of the emblems with the Saints, and felt to rejoice. On Monday, 19th, I left there and arrived at Lineville, Iowa, at 9 p.m., suffering with neuralgia; staid over night where I shall not stop again if I can help it. And now while I think of it, if any who see this ever come to Lineville, and want hotel accommodation, call at the Iowa House, J. Lovett, proprietor. A tri-weekly hack runs from Lineville, via Pleasanton, to Leon. I came to Pleasanton by hack; took dinner at Sr. Allen's; then on foot to Davis City; found all well. I understand that Sr. Henry C. Smith of Lamoni, is very sick. I intend going there to-day. I expect to start east, to my field of labor, about August 10th. Love to all.

Yours in the gospel,

B. V. SPRINGER.

BRO. JOBE BROWN writes a ringing letter from Clinton, August 7th, 1880, read it, and it will do you good:

CLINTON, IOWA, August 7th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—I have just returned from administering to Sister Myers, at Savannah. Bro. Williams, her son-in-law, and her daughter, all seem to be honest, earnest Saints, and are striving to live right. But there are some hindrances there as well as elsewhere, on account of inconsistent fault-finding professors. There is no organization, and therefore can be no application of discipline.

Your cheerful letter did me a world of good. We see in theory the necessities of the Church supplied; and we will see it in practice if the same liberty, and encouragement of those in authority, are continued to me in the future as in the past, and the favor of God continues as it has been with us thus far in giving us acceptance and prosperity with the Saints and the people generally. I may have to locate, but shall not do so as long as righteousness, duty, and the cause I have embraced demand my efforts in the field; and I can possibly and consistently stay in it.

The old Methodist preacher whom I baptized some time ago, will preach to the Saints in our hall to-morrow at 10:30. Bro. Turner is as true as steel and alive in the work, and succors and defends the cause nobly in my absence; and feels confident that our success here is only a matter of time. There are quite a number on the very eve of obeying the gospel. I have Bishop Rogers' permission to regulate our local financial matters either by tithes or free-will offerings. It would be much the easiest to arrange it by, or with free-will offerings, both for myself and for the district; but that would not result in the good to the general Church treasury that I desire. For if each branch will, or can be induced to pay a portion of their increase equal to one tenth of it for the support of the Elders that serve them, and the poor in their midst. This seemed to meet the approbation of the great majority of the Saints, as each locality would have the disbursement of their own funds and not support inefficient Elders or unworthy poor. Thus every locality would be self-supporting, and the one-tenth of all thus raised in each and every branch will afford a much greater general church fund. And thus every locality will be supplied with an Elder, and every Elder thus employed will be supported, and "Zion will arise and shine."

I wish to say one word in regard to one-tenth of the increase. Increase does not mean surplus. After we have purchased every thing heart could desire, and gratified every craving that a perverted appetite might crave, and paid every debt that may have been contracted to enlarge our estate—who has a surplus in such a case? None. But the increase to be tithed is the amount realized after the actual expense of production is defrayed, not counting his own expense or labor; for that he has nine-tenths, and for the support of the Lord's house and the poor he sets apart one-tenth, after paying the actual outside cost of production. I would rejoice to see those in authority move forward in this thing; but if they refuse, God will raise up a Gideon, or a Nehemiah, or a David; for "every jot and tittle of His word must be fulfilled" though heaven and earth pass away; as well as the opinion of wealthy and would-be great men.

Yours as ever in hope,

JOBE BROWN.

BOTNA, Shelby Co., Iowa,

August 10th, 1880.

Bro. Henry: Last Sunday I baptized a Mr. and Mrs. Gunsolly, the parents of a large and orderly family; also, a daughter of about thirteen, and a niece of the same age. They are those of good report, and will have a good influence in their neighborhood. They reside about seven miles east of Galland's Grove; there are no Saints nearer than the grove. I am well, and generally enjoy good liberty in preaching. My heart is often made glad by a realization that my sins are forgiven. How kind is our God, and how precious is the gospel. When I think of those able men that have fallen away, I think "Am I not just as liable to be overcome as they?" And then I try to be more humble, if possible, than before; for I do know that God has set his seal to this cause. I want to spend my life for its advancement. I am well pleased with Brother Joseph (I know of no other name that seems to express the nature of his calling any better) as a leader of the Church; not but what I think he may have faults, like other men, but because he manifests the Spirit of Christ in his actions and teachings.

GEORGE S. HYDE.

POINT CLEAR, Baldwin Co., Ala.,

August 9th, 1880.

Bro. Henry: I wrote last from Butler county. Since that I have visited the Lone Star and Flat Rock branches; also, preached in Munroe county. On August 3d I left the scenes of my five weeks' labor among the Saints in the Alabama District. There are noble men and women in this district, who are endeavoring to walk in the light. Dark and gloomy at times has seemed the way to them, but the hand of Providence has been over the faithful, and as lights which could not be hid, they have stood blessed of the Lord, and a blessing to others. May union, peace and harmony prevail, and the clouds that hang over them flee away. With a grateful heart I acknowledge their many acts of kindness and love. I found them fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, and left them with regret.

The night of August 3d, I stopped at Sr. Jones', being met at the train by her husband. Upon the 4th, I started with Bro. L. F. West for the District Conference, which convened upon the 7th. Quiet and peaceful meetings were enjoyed by fair congregations. I am now staying at Father Odom's, who is eighty years old, but active and in the faith.

Your brother in Christ,

FRANK P. SCARLIFF.

LONGTON, Elk Co., Kansas,

July 29th 1880.

Brethren Joseph and Henry:—On the 22nd inst. myself and Bro. A. J. Cato arrived at this place, which is about a hundred miles from home. We started meetings the next night, and continued ever since every night and Sunday, in the neighborhood of the Indian Creek Branch. We enjoy good liberty and have good attention from crowded houses. To-morrow night we intend to open meetings in this town, and continue over Sunday, then to go to Howard City, and also to Fall River, if the Lord will open up the way before us, and return to Mound valley Branch to attend our conference August 20, 21, 22. The Saints are kind hearted, and the work done in this locality reflects great credit on them and Bro. W. S. Loar, their presiding Elder. About the time I was here before I baptized four at the Columbus Branch, the fruit of others' labors. Since then Bro. Cato and myself have labored in the eastern part of the district, and all the way here. At the Mound Valley Branch Bro. R. H. Davies has baptized two. Bro. D. S. Crawley was to have a debate with an Elder of the Christian order in a few days after our departure, at the Pleasant View Branch. From what I have heard since, his efforts were crowned with success. This man has been driving at the character of Joseph Smith for some months; he told the people that he was going to oppose the Saints to the "bitter end." I told him that the worst trouble he would find in that was that our religion had no bitter end to it.—It is the "sweet bye and bye," with us.

In the one hope,

J. T. DAVIES.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah,
August 19th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—My recent trip to Montana was tedious and expensive, yet it will result in good to that district, I trust, as by personal contact with the people I learned better than I could have done by correspondence just what kind, and how many ministers are likely to be needed in that district for the next year or two.

I found many excellent Saints and friends, and prospects are good for an increase in different places in the district. The Saints there are liberal in subscribing for Church periodicals and books, and in aiding the Rocky Mountain Mission and the general Church treasury. Their reward is sure.

The work in Utah is moving on, and there are many favorable indications for its future progress. Bro. R. J. Anthony brings encouraging tidings from Provo Valley, and feels zealous and trustful. There has been six added in this city in the past three weeks, also four at Provo, and two at Springville. The "stone" is rolling. Many are believing. I am constantly reminded that great changes for the better are occurring all over this territory.

The bands of priesthood are gradually weakening, the ruling priesthood are losing their grip on the people, and the masses are exercising their rights of private judgment and personal liberty to a greater degree than ever heretofore. The Spirit of God bears witness that good is coming to Utah, and that the Lord will make bare His arm for the deliverance of the oppressed.

The Reorganized Church has now the opportunity of demonstrating her faith and charity, in seeking to save erring ones. May she rise up to her privileges and her duties in this matter. Our missionaries have done well thus far in filling the hearts and homes of the Utah people, where they have gone, with the gladness and joy of Christ's gospel, and heavenly power attends their efforts.

W. W. BLAIR.

GRAND PRAIRIE, Minn.,
July, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—When Bro. Lambert visited us a year ago he could not give a very favorable report of us, but thought there was salt enough to save us. We have passed through fiery trials and peace and unity now prevail. We have been blessed with the gifts of the gospel, the gifts of prophecy and tongues, interpretation; and some have been healed by the power of God; to His name be all the praise. Since the 3rd of last February I have baptized thirteen. Our branch now numbers thirty-one. Some that have been baptized are heads of families, and among the best citizens we have in this part of the country. I have preached all that I could since New Year, in Osceola county, Iowa, and Nobles, Rock, and Pipestone county, Minnesota. In all of those places a good interest manifested. Bro. Lambert has visited us this summer and cheered us on in the work.

Praying for the success of God's Church everywhere, I remain a follower of Christ,

JOHN SPAULDING.

STOCKDALE, Wilson Co., Texas,
August 3d, 1880.

Joseph and Henry: Having just arrived from Gonzales county, I will drop a few lines to the Herald once more. I gave a talk to the people at Pilgrim Lake on last Sunday; there seemed to be many interested. They are wanting a traveling Elder to come out and visit them. I think that there is a good chance for a great work to be done in this portion of Texas. Brethren Bozarth and Thompson visited us last June, but their stay was very short. There was one joined the Church, and others interested.

Sr. Laura Cobb requests me to write to the Herald for her. She has a son about eighteen years of age, just recovering from a severe spell of sickness. It seemed to affect his mind very much, and he is very delirious. She requests the prayers of all the Saints for him.

Yours in gospel bonds,

JOHN A. CURRIE.

LEADVILLE, Colorado,
July 24th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—I yet feel an interest in the latter day work. I have been very busy the last three months prospecting. Have seen a good deal of this country and of its people, and find even here, where men come to seek their fortunes, that there are noble men and women who never heard the gospel, or felt its saving influence, those who feel that it is more pleasure to do right than to do wrong. I have some very good prospects, and feel that when I leave this country my labors will not be in vain, financially.

I received a card from Bro. James Kemp, inviting me to attend a conference to be held at Hutchinson, but I can not attend, being too far off. Also received a letter from Bro. James Caffall, stating that he would like to come to Leadville, but had not the money. It takes money to travel in this country.

I saw a house advertized here, "The Mormon House." It is one of those low dens of infamy, where they act out the scenes of Brigham Young's family affairs. This is the way that Mormonism is represented here. Sometimes I think that if the Brighamites could see their own acts as others see them, they would hide their faces in shame. It is a sad thought that a people that once had the true light of heaven should become a by-word among the wicked, and their acts of crime be famous among the low, so that even the city authorities of Leadville put a stop to the exhibition. If this letter should reach those in the mountains, let me say to those people there, Shame, shame, why will you pollute the Church of God. Repent and wash yourselves, and the blood of Christ is able to make you clean. I have many friends and acquaintances in Utah. The record that I made in that country I am not ashamed to meet at the bar of God.

Ever praying that God may bless you, I am your brother,

D. K. DODSON.

ST. THOMAS, Ontario,
August 16th, 1880.

Brother Henry:—I left London on the 14th; found the Saints here all well. I am enjoying very good health at present. At London I enjoyed much of the Spirit in preaching. I also baptized nine person into the kingdom. I hope that they will continue faithful all the days of their lives. The Saints at London were very kind to me; they could not have done better. I leave here on the 19th for Corinth. Pray for me. I feel very weak at times, and have a great deal to overcome.

Yours in truth,

G. T. GRIFFITHS.

HANNIBAL, Missouri,
August 20th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—Just returned from our district conference, held at Salt River. We had a time long to be remembered, and the Saints at Salt River made it comfortable for all. Bro. John H. Lake was there doing good. We left him there; God bless him in his useful labors.

JOHN TAYLOR.

Conference Minutes.

NORTHERN NEBRASKA DISTRICT.

A conference was held at Platte Valley, Nebraska, June 26th, 1880; Thos. J. Smith, president; H. Nielson, clerk.

Statistical Reports:—Platte Valley, no change except 1 ordination. Pleasant Grove, 2 marriages solemnized. Omaha (English), last report 64, present 62; 2 received, 3 removed, 1 expelled. Omaha (Scandinavian), last report 31, present 30; 1 removed by letter. The Lake Shore Branch was received into the district. It numbers 30 members, including 1 Elder, 1 Priest, 1 Teacher and 1 Deacon.

Elders N. Brown (baptized 3), and Thos. J. Smith reported.

The latter said that the aid received from the brethren was insufficient to keep him constantly in the field.

The committee on horses and wagon reported that they had received $3 50, and N. Brown, had paid for the wagon. P. Brown was released from the committee and J. Stowers appointed in his place. The committee was continued and instructed to turn over the harness and wagon to the district president, and that the same be left at his disposal until otherwise provided for.

The president reported that he had visited J. T. Thygesen, who refused to come to terms without a trial. The president was then authorized to appoint a court of Elders to try the case.

N. Brown was continued in his present field, and all other Elders and Priests to labor as circumstances permit.

Notice was given to the conference by G. Medlock, G. Hatt and W. Ballinger, that they would take an appeal from the decision of the district conference to the First Presidency, to be investigated at the Semi-Annual Conference to be held at Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 12th, 1880.

H. Nielson resigned as book agent and T. J. Smith was chosen in his place.

T. J. Smith was appointed to represent the conference in the investigation of G. Medlock, G. Hatt and W. Ballinger cases.

Resolved that T. J. Smith be sustained with our means.

An amusing discussion followed as to what our means amounted to, and the president was asked how much money was needed per month to keep him in the field. He answered, and straightway about $100 was subscribed, some to be paid right away, some in three and some in six months.

N. Brown and E. Boulson, the committee on J. P. Thygesen and J. Christensen's case reported that the charge could not be sustained.

Contribution for the ministry $5.05.

Prayer meeting and preaching was had Sunday forenoon, and also preaching in the afternoon and evening by E. Rannie and T. J. Smith.

Adjourned to the Douglas Branch, September 25th, 1880, at 2:30 p.m.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT.

A conference was held at West Belleville, St. Clair county, Illinois, on Sunday, July 4th, 1880; A. W. Reese, president; George Hicklin, secretary.

Branch Reports:—St. Louis, present 190, last report 230; 1 died, 1 received by letter, and 17 scattered members; scattered members to be published and moved from the St. Louis Branch record, 23.

Belleville 68; 1 baptized, 7 received. Alma, last report 56, present 53; 3 removed by letter to Belleville, 11 scattered members, 5 of them being Bro. Wm. Kinghorn's family. They are in Salt Lake City. We would like Bro. Blair to see them.

Caseyville, at last report 40, present 39; 1 removed by letter.

Gravois 53; no changes. Whearso 17. Alton, Cheltenham and Boone Creek not reported.

Sunday School Union of the District reported as in a fair condition; three schools attend the district meetings. St. Louis, Cheltenham and Gravois not reported.

Resolved that the next School Convention be held at Cheltenham. Wm. Jaques, president; J. E. Betts, clerk.

Zion's Hope Sunday School made a statistical and a financial report.

At 1 p. m., the court of Elders on the difficulties in the Caseyville Branch reported. It was adopted. Bishop's Agent had no report.

Resolved that Bro. Wm. Still's license be returned to him.

Abraham Reese was elected as president of the district, Wm. Anderson and J. E. Betts, Sen., as his counselors, and J. E. Betts, Jr., clerk.

Further business was deferred and a session of testimony was held.

At 6 p. m., Elders A. Reese, Geo. Hicklin, John Beard, Stephen Blackie, James Houston, D. W. Davis and J. E. Betts reported; also Priests J. W. Thorpe (baptized 1) and Alex. Fyfe reported.

Preaching by Bro. Reese, for about one hour, and then to business again.

Resolved that all moneys for the ministry be paid into the hands of the Bishop's Agent.

That there be a separate fund to pay the expenses of the Elders in the district.

Adjourned to Sunday, October 3d, 1880, to meet at St. Louis.

CENTRAL NEBRASKA DISTRICT.

A conference was held at Newman's Grove, Madison county, Nebraska, June 26th, 1880; G. W. Galley, president; Heman C. Smith, secretary, pro tem.

The Rules of Order were adopted to govern our assemblies.

Elders G. W. Galley, Charles Brindley, Hyrum O. Smith, Geo. S. Hyde, Robert Oehring, and Chauncy Loomis reported, also Priests Moses Welch, Charles Hutchins, C. H. Derry and J. H. Smith.

Branch reports:—Deer Creek, 18; 2 received. Columbus, 41; 1 removed. Cedar Creek, 17; 1 received, 1 ordained an Elder. Clear Water, 8; 1 ordained a Priest.

Bro. Heman C. Smith was requested to labor in the district, as also were Brn. G. S. Hyde, H. O. Smith and J. H. Smith; and all others are asked to labor all they possibly can.

The President was authorized to audit the secretary's books, and to enquire if his circumstances will admit of his attending more fully to his duties.

Brn. Charles Brindley, Chauncy Loomis, C. H. Derry and J. H. Smith were sustained as presidents of their respective branches.

Adjourned to Cedar Creek, October 2nd, 1880.

A prayer meeting was held at 8 p. m. Licenses were granted to Elders Robert Oehring and Hyrum O. Smith, and to Priest James H. Smith.

Bro. H. J. Hudson reported not having been able to preach much; would have to await God's own time to lift his voice in defence of the truth. He loved to think of his experiences along the way.

Bro. George S. Hyde preached, followed by Bro. George W. Galley.

At 2 p. m. Bro. Hyrum O. Smith preached, and Bro. H. J. Hudson spoke impressively, followed by Bro. G. S. Hyde. At 8 p. m. Bro. Heman C. Smith preached.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS DISTRICT.

A conference convened in the Mission Branch, LaSalle county, Illinois, June 19th, 1880; I. L. Rogers, president pro tem; J. S. Patterson, clerk pro tem.

At 7:30 p. m. preaching by Heman C. Smith. Saturday 19th, 8:30 a. m. prayer meeting.

At 10 a. m. Elders Ira Goff, Benan Salisbury, B. F. Wicks, David Delivergne, Franklin Rudd, John Rudd, D. H. Bays, J. W. Chaturban and John Pett reported.

Bishops Agent's report:—"On hand March 18th, 1880, $23.32, received since $105.75; paid out $83, balance $46.07. John Pett, agent."

At 2 p. m. Priests Joseph Seddon, (had preached 25 or 30 times in the Little Sioux district), John Dobson and Cyrus Dobson reported. Teachers James Turner, Newton Brogden, David Hain and Geo. Salisbury reported.

A petition was presented by Robert R. Montgomery (expelled) stating that the action of the Mason Grove Branch in his case was illegal, and asking the conference to take the matter under advisement that justice might be rendered him. A committee was appointed to consider the objections stated in the petition, and they reported that the objections were not sufficient to warrant any action of the conference.

All who were appointed missions at the last conference were continued in their present fields, with a request that all Elders, Priests and Teachers not appointed, labor as much as they can.

A series of two-days meetings were appointed. At 7:30 p. m. preaching by Bro. Clothier.

Sunday 20th, 8:30 a. m. prayer meeting. At 10:30 a. m. Bro. D. H. Bays preached, in the afternoon Bro. Heman C. Smith, and in the evening Bro. Jonas W. Chatburn. The discourses throughout were edifying and instructive, the congregations large, and the attention all that could be desired.

Notice of appeal was given by the Mason Grove branch, from the decision of the Galland's Grove conference, to the Semi-Annual Conference of 1880, in the case of John D. Newcomb.

Adjourned to Galland's Grove, Friday, October 15th, 1880, at 10:30 a. m.

SALT LAKE DISTRICT.

A conference was held at Liberal Institute, Salt Lake City, July 3d and 4th, 1880; W. W. Blair, President; Joseph Luff, clerk.

Union Fort, no material change since last report.

Elders James Stevenson, Wm. P. Smith, T. N. Hudson, W. W. Blair and Joseph Luff reported in person, and Charles Derry and Robt. J. Anthony by letter.

T. N. Hudson was sustained as president and Joseph Luff as clerk of the district.

Adjourned to Salt Lake City, Oct. 6th, 1880.

An interesting and profitable testimony meeting was conducted by W. W. Blair at 10:20 a. m., on the 4th, and preaching by W. W. Blair, James Stevenson and Joseph Luff, later on the same day.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA DISTRICT.

A conference assembled at Oakland, at 9:30 a. m., July 4th, 1880; John Carmichael, temporary chairman; and Wm. Potter, clerk pro tem.

Prayer by A. Haws, followed by a prayer meeting till 11 a. m., and then preaching by J. B. Price. At 2 p. m., sacrament and testimony meeting. Had a time of rejoicing, and the gifts of the Spirit were manifested, and many strong testimonies were borne. At 7:30 p. m., prayer by Wm. Anderson, and preaching by John Carmichael.

July 5th:—Prayer by John Roberts. John Carmichael was chosen as president, D. J. Phillips as vice-president and Wm. Potter as secretary of the district.

Missions were appointed to Wm. Potter, A. Haws, Wm. McClean, and all others requested to labor as circumstances admit.

Resolved that we adopt the "Rules of Order." That all members of the Church residing in this district are requested to join the nearest branch to which they reside.

Adjourned to Washington Corners, at 10 a. m., October 6th, 1880.

KENT AND ELGIN DISTRICT.

A conference was held in the Wellington Branch, Canada, June 5th, 1880; Columbus Scott, president; R. Coburn, clerk.

Branch Reports:—Wellington, at last report 12; no changes.

Zone, at last report 35, present 34; 1 removed by letter.

Buckhorn, last report 55, present 58; 5 baptized, 2 removed by letter.

Resolved that we sustain Brn. C. Scott and Gomer Griffiths as missionaries from the General Conference.

The district clerk was allowed $1.50 for expenses to and from conference.

Resolved that Brn. Scott, Leverton and Shaw compose a court of Elders to settle difficulties in the Buckhorn Branch.

Sunday: At 9 a.m., prayer and testimony meeting, in charge of Chas. Badder and Jas. Robb. At 10 a.m., preaching by J. J. Cornish. At 2:30 p.m., preaching by G. T. Griffiths, after which the sacrament was administered.

Adjourned to Buckhorn, October 2d, 1880.

Miscellaneous.

APPOINTMENTS IN FLORIDA.

Pond Creek, in Bro. T. A. Johnson's neighborhood, August 28th and 29th; Santa Rosa Branch, September 4th and 5th; Hinote Branch, 11th and 12th; Pleasant View Branch, 18th and 19th; Eureka Branch, 25th and 26th. Bro. F. P. Scarcliff will be with me in these meetings, and an invitation is extended to the Elders, Saints and friends to attend. And if any of the Elders or Saints in Alabama can attend these meetings, they are cordially invited to do so.

L. F. WEST.

FIRST QUORUM OF ELDERS.

Dear Brethren, Greeting:—As the meeting of the Semi-Annual Conference will very soon take place, and as the demand for faithful and true workers for Christ was never more urgent than at the present, and there are many unfilled calls, I earnestly request that every member will report to me at Council Bluffs, Iowa. I shall be pleased to meet as many of the members as can possibly make it convenient to attend, and hope that all will report themselves. The field is widening every day, and it is for us to occupy, that we may obtain the Father's richest blessings.

Yours in Christ,

ROBT. M. ELVIN,

President of the Quorum.

QUESTIONS.

I would like some one to tell me, and by telling me it would be general, in the columns of the Herald, who was it that Christ referred to when he told Pilate that he could have no power against him, except it was given him from above, "therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath the greater sin." Pilate said he had power to crucify him and power to release him. I would like to set some one to work at just such a question.

T. F. STAFFORD.

The last of the Apostles in connection with the "Catholic Apostolic Church," died in the Christmas last past. If the churches who profess to be descended from the one inaugurated on the day of Pentecost declined in Spiritual grace, for the want of apostolic power among them, how will that Catholic Apostolic Church succeed in retaining her Spiritual equilibrium? I would like to read an answer from one of her chief ministers to this question.

HENRY CHAS. CRUMP.

REQUESTED TO REPORT.

The scattering and absent members of the Stewartsville (formerly called the DeKalb) Branch, of DeKalb county, Missouri, are earnestly and urgently requested to write to the branch officers of their present whereabouts, so that the branch may be acquainted therewith, and know of your faith and interest in the latter day work. If near other branches in Missouri or other States, letters should be applied for to join said branches, according to the law of the Church. Address,

B. B. SMITH, Stewartsville, Missouri.

STOCKHOLDERS ATTENTION.

The stockholders of the First United Order of Enoch will hold their annual meeting September 14th, 1880, at or near Conference grounds, Council Bluffs, Iowa. By order of president.

ASA S. COCHRAN, Secretary.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Mr. J. Fisher wants to find his brother Robert's family, that left England in 1833, and settled in Paterson, New Jersey. Or some of his wife's folks, Mr. John Harker's family, as he wishes to correspond with them. Direct Third Ward, Salt Lake City, Utah.

JAMES FISHER.

APPEAL TO PITTSBURG DISTRICT.

As treasurer of the Elders' Fund appointed by the district conference, I hereby appeal to you to whom this paper may come that you give us your assistance in this good work.

A constant missionary effort is very necessary and sadly needed in our district, and the only way to accomplish this is by an organized, systematic effort, to be made by us as members of the district. Tens of thousands have not yet heard the glad tidings, and yet others that have heard and obeyed, but do not belong to an organized branch, have no opportunity of hearing the Word of God preached to them and are starving for spiritual food. Are we to look on indifferently and see these honest hearts perish without making any efforts to save them? By neglecting this opportunity we cannot even save ourselves; for to the laborer will belong the sheaves when the harvest time shall come. Here is an opportunity to put our shoulders to the wheel and push all together. Give what you can, if it be only a few cents, or if it be more,—only whatever it may be let it be given regularly each month.

In this manner one or more Elders can be sustained and constantly kept carrying the good news around through the district, and their families be provided for in their absence. If this can be done the seed can not only be sown, but watered until it bears fruit; and who can tell what the harvest will be? If there is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, what think you will be the reward of those that give of their means to send the message of Repentance and Life to many honest souls? It is written, "Cast thy bread upon the waters and it shall return to you ere many days." Do we believe it? Yes. Then let us to work with the promise of our great reward in view. Let us not faint, nor be weary by the way. Now is the day,—the night cometh when no man can work. In this is our Father glorified that we bear much fruit. If we can do but little let us do that little well, and lo! when the morning of Life shall come, we shall see the bread cast upon the waters so long ago returning to us as gems that will shine in our crown of life. "In the morning sow thy seed in the evening withhold not thy hand."

We may not live to see the fruits of our labor, but we can at least lay the foundation, that others seeing may build upon it to the honor and glory of God. And this much is indeed a noble work for which we will receive the promised reward, if it is done through faith.

The question is, Have we faith enough to carry us through. "Faith comes through hearing, and hearing by the word of God." So faith is confidence in God's word. Have we confidence in his word? If we have we will show it by our works, as faith without works is dead being alone. We are first commanded to believe, second to obey, and, with a more hearty obedience to the will of God, unbelief will vanish like a dream. We often desire and pray for the faith once delivered to the Saints. Now let us see how we can receive it. It is written that Abraham's faith was a perfect faith. He showed forth his faith by his works, and by works made his faith perfect. Faith to be perfect must be mutual. Abraham by his works placed himself in such a position that he exchanged mutual confidence with God. This is "the faith" once delivered to the Saints that we so much desire; and it is your privilege and mine to receive it by faithful obedience to all of God's commandments. Now let us show, by our works and willingness to build up his Church and Kingdom in this district, untiring diligence and faithfulness that we may, through his grace, acquire at least a portion of "the faith."

I therefore present the following subscription list for the consideration and action of every individual member of the district.

"We, the undersigned members of the Pittsburg District of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, do hereby agree to pay the sum attached to our names to the "Elders' Fund" for the purpose of keeping one Elder, or more, constantly in the field in the district, said sum to be paid monthly to the treasurer appointed by the district to receive it, or to such agents as he shall appoint to receive it to be remitted to him."

Scattered members who are removed from any branch, can remit any stated amount by corresponding with me. Donations will be thankfully received from any who are friendly to the cause.

Your brother in Christ,

F. CRILEY,

Treasurer of Elders' Fund.

Address: Care No. 33, Fifth Avenue, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice,

BORN.

WEST.—To Fannie E. and L. Frank West, July 1st, 1880, a girl, name Luella Helen; child and mother doing well.

DIED.

BABB.—At Hastings, Iowa, July 31st, 1880, Elizabeth Sweet, only child of Bro. John W. and Sr. Elizabeth S. Babb, aged 1 year, 2 months and 21 days. Funeral sermon by Bro. D. Hougus.

"Like the rosebud she faded,
With life just begun,
And angels, bright angels,
Escorted her home."

CRAWLEY.—At Cherokee, Kansas, July 23d, 1880, of inflammation of the bowels, Daisy, child of Bro. and Sr. D. S. Crawley, aged 1 year and 9 months.

TROBAUGH.—At Richland Center, Wisconsin, Sunday, July 25th, 1880, after a few days illness, sister Jane, wife of Bro. M. N. Trobaugh. Her remains were interred at the Spring Valley Cemetery, C. W. Lange officiating at the grave.

Sister Jane was the daughter of John and Frances Gregg, and born on the 11th day of February, 1820, in Campbell county, Kentucky, and therefore 60 years, five months and 14 days old at her demise. She was a true wife, an affectionate mother, a devout Christian, beloved and respected by all who knew her, and who will cherish her memory with never fading freshness, greatly feeling the loss they have sustained. She died as she had lived, a strong believer in the latter day work, feeling assured of coming forth in the first resurrection, to live with Christ a thousand years upon this beautified earth, and in the golden city forever hereafter.

ROBINSON.—At Lamoni, August 15th, 1880, of cholera-infantum, Joseph M., son of Bro. and Sr. Ebenezer J. Robinson, aged 8 years, 11 months and 12 days. His death was very sudden, terminating an illness of about eighteen hours. His parents feel that they are bereft of a dutiful son, but seem to say by their acts and emotions, "Thy will be done, O God."

LONG.—Sister Anna Long died at Lexington, Mich., July 5th, 1880. She was baptized by Elder Robert Davis, and confirmed by the same, May 28th, 1878. She was born at King, Ontario, Sept. 16th, 1843. Her testimony to the last was, "I know the latter day work to be of God." She much desired the conversion of her husband and children. Pray for them. Funeral by Daniel Wilkie, Priest, from Rev. 14:13.

PETTIGREW.—At Braidwood, Illinois, August 20th, Elizabeth Adeline, daughter of James and Margaret Pettigrew, with inflammation of the lungs, aged 11 months and 7 days. Funeral services conducted by Bro. John S. Kier.

CHAPIN.—At Columbus Nebraska, July 24th, 1880, Elder Adolphus Chapin. Born November 10th, 1799, at Chicopee, Hampden county, Mass.; united with the church in 1838; emigrated to Utah, but became dissatisfied with the discipline and practices of Brigham's admirers, and in 1866 was baptized by Elder James W. Gillen; left Utah with his family in 1868, and settled in Columbus. He honored his profession by industry and honesty, and was a ready advocate of the truth of the latter day work as offered through the Reorganization of the Church. A large gathering of his friends and neighbors were present at the funeral exercises, conducted by Elder H. J. Hudson, at deceased's request. He was laid to rest in a beautiful grove of his own planting, on Sunday, August 9th. Bro. Heman C. Smith was with us, and by request preached a memorial sermon in the Saints' Meeting House. Another veteran has laid down the armor of truth, and, although palsied in body for a number of years, his mind to the last moment was calm and clear. H.

CULVER.—At the residence of her loving and so lately bereaved mother, 696 Jackson street, Chicago, on August 6th, Pearl May, only child of Franklin J. and Lillie Culver. The beautiful little one was blessed but a few Sundays before, and solemnly dedicated to God. On the 27th of July, her father, who had agreed with his beloved wife that they would be baptized into Christ on the following Sabbath, passed away from earth-life to the life beyond. A loving and young widow of twenty-one was left with her lovely babe; but in ten days more her child was called too. True to her promise, though burdened with grief, she gave herself to God in baptism on the Sunday following her excellent husband's death; and, before another Sunday came, her child was called and laid away in the cold earth. I, as best I could, performed the sad rites of the occasion. I ask for our afflicted sister, the prayers of God's dear people. M. H. FORSCUTT.

STEPENICK.—At New Tabor, Republic county, Kansas, August 8th, 1880, Jesse Eugene, infant son of Mr. and Sr. Stepenick, aged 11 months and 5 days. Funeral services by Elder J. D. Bennett, from the words, "I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me."—2 Sam. 12:23.

WILLIAMS.—At St. David's, Fulton Co., Illinois, August 20th, 1880, Catharine, daughter of Bro. D. D. and Sr. Eliza Williams, aged 1 year and 18 days. One by one, the lambs are taken.

BACON.—At Philadelphia, Penn., July 19th, 1880, Sr. Rachel H. Bacon, wife of Bro. Hosea H. Bacon, aged 29 years. She leaves no children. Funeral sermon by Elder John Stone, assisted by Elder J. A. Stewart.

JONES.—At Bevier, Mo., August 9th, 1880, Thomas, son of William and Elizabeth J. Jones, aged 14 months.

MORGAN.—At Bevier, Mo., August 18th, 1880, Anna L. Morgan, aged 61 years, 2 months and 14 days. She left four children to mourn after her. She was born in Glamorganshire, Wales, and was baptized into the Reorganized Church at Bethlehem, Penn., August 25th, 1872, by John Stone.

WILLIAMS.—At Bevier, Mo., August 19th, 1880, Alma, son of William and Mary Williams, aged 1 year, 2 months and 29 days.

ADAMSON.—Bro. Jacob Adamson, after a long and painful illness, (consumption), fell asleep on the 27th of June, 1880; aged 62 years, 7 months, and 20 days. He was born in Lawrence, Tenn., November 7th, 1817, joined the Church in 1849, in Washington county, Iowa, emigrated to Utah in 1850, remained in a dissatisfied condition until 1854, when he moved to California, lived near Sacramento three years, from there located his family in Sonoma county, near Petaluma, where he died. He joined the Reorganization, under the ministrations of Elder E. C. Brand, in 1864, was soon after ordained to the office of an Elder, and has since remained one of the Church's faithful members and Elders. During his sickness he had oft-times expressed his desires to live longer with his family, but a week before his departure an angel appeared unto him; and the day before his demise he weeping and joyfully told his faithful wife that his Savior, accompanied by another holy messenger had appeared to him, giving him an assurance of welcome, and that he was called home. In his last hours he said he was reconciled to go. He selected two hymns to be sung at his funeral and retained his consciousness to the last. To his children he said, "The religion of Christ would do to live by and also to die by." And so passed peacefully away one more of the good and faithful. His funeral was largely attended by friends and neighbors for miles around, and many and beautiful were the floral tributes by their hands. All who knew him can testify of his true and sterling qualities.

And, whereas, Elder Jacob Adamson was a member of the Santa Rosa Branch, and by this demise of our brother, we feel sensibly the great loss which our branch as well as the Church has sustained by the removal from his well established sphere of usefulness of so noble a saint and true-hearted; therefore be it resolved, that having grateful remembrance of the late Elder Adamson, we take this means of perpetuating the memory of this faithful husband and kind father.

Resolved that we sympathetically present our condolence to the bereaved widow and children, and assure them that if their grief can be lessened, by being universally shared, we would be the foremost to assuage it.

Resolved that this action be spread upon our record of the branch, and a copy sent to the Herald for publication.

JEREMIAH ROOT, President.

IF WE KNEW.

If we knew the cares and crosses
Crowding round our brother's way;
If we knew the little losses,
Sorely grievous day by day,
Would we then so often chide him
For his lack of thrift and gain,
Leaving on his heart a shadow,
Leaving on our life a stain?

If we knew the silent story
Quivering through the heart of pain,
Would our manhood dare to doom them
Back to haunts of guilt again?
Life hath many a tangled crossing,
Joy hath many a tale of woe,
And the cheeks tear-stained are whitest,
This the blessed angels know.

Let us reach into our bosoms
For the key to other lives,
And with love toward erring nature,
Cherish good that still survives;
So that when our disrobed spirits
Soar to realms of light again,
We may say, "Dear Father, judge us
As we judge our fellow men."

Politics, Religion and Science.

Dear Herald:—Your New Year's number came to us, as we thought, very much improved. Not only in its reading matter, but in the exquisite brightness of its paper and type-work. If the brethren and sisters in the office, whose handiwork is there seen, would not consider it an intrusion upon their collective modesty, we would not hesitate to pronounce it as most creditable to their genius and care.

After reading carefully Elder Joseph Crawford's sermon, so lucid and full of pleasant and unanswerable argument, that seemed to bring us so near the divine presence that we almost imagined we could see our God and his Christ at his glorious right hand, in their place of abode, we fell to admiring the general merits of the number, which soon led us away into other fields, where we thought we found some very excellent material out of which we determined to weave up an article for your columns.

The thought that seemed, persistently above all others, to crowd itself upon our attention, inspired us with a sentiment something like this: Well! at last the latter day work has developed a feature that the unbeliever can not but admire. Our periodical, as touching its compositors and general good workmanship is, as it strikes me, a very creditable "institution;" to which, it seems to me, no legitimate exception could be taken by saint or sinner. We were about to say, No! nor to the cause in whose interest it is engaged; however, we will qualify the thought by saying, there is an excusable justifiableness when it is done as it is unadvisably, but we do not hesitate when we predict a time coming when the whole world, Political, Scientific and Religious, will be in full harmony with it.

When its founder in his primitive weakness introduced what is now generally known as "Mormonism," and defined by himself as a work of "more good" to the world, it was considered by all conditions of humanity who heard of it as the very embodiment of stupidity, ignorance and fanatical folly. Its doctrines carried with them a strange and uncertain sound; at once so strange and inharmonious with existing theological chimes, that had rung so long and loud as to lullaby the world into a deep sense of spiritual security and rest, that it completely electrified the slumberers into violent activity against the feeble, yet strong man. His whole life from that time is but a full written page of trial and bitter sorrow; so bitter was the relentless strife waged against him by those who considered his whole theory "as sheer fanaticism and a lie." He stood alone as it were battling against the united bigotry and superstition of the world. Never swerving, never yielding, but persistently declaring to the last moment of his life that a new era of light and truth had dawned upon the world, that would in its progressive developments sweep it of bigotry, priestcraft and every idle, speculative theory; and ultimately fill it with a full knowledge of God.

As a system, claiming as it does to be standing upon the certain and sure foundation of the ancient prophets and people of God, immediate revelation, which opens up new channels of thought and power, developing immeasurably profounder views, and which brings mankind infinitely nearer to the great object of the religious and scientific for the last six thousand years; in fact, a system of these pretensions that dare to declare the utter impossibility of human research ever being successful in attaining its object with its present means of information and discovery; at once assumes a position that could not but prove objectionable at its introduction to those of opposite views.

These are its pretensions; and it remains to be proven whether it is or will yet be in the future entitled to take rank above the countless human institutions of every name and character that are now existing, or that may yet be floated in upon the world. Its ultimate triumph we do not doubt. We are looking forward, having promising signs for our encouragement, that its broad views will yet be largely entertained. Yes! we believe they will in process of time be universally entertained as the only rational and sure solution of the problem of God and his works, that has ever been, now is, or ever would be problematical to human research.

The fiftieth anniversary of this strange work has recently been commemorated, and during that period of its existence, who, we may ask, is not conscious that the wonderful events and changes that have occurred in that time mark the period as a strange and exceptional one from all others. That there is a progressive development everywhere visible, none can deny. Men are everywhere cutting loose from the absurd superstitions that have hampered and chained humanity so long, and inaugurating vigorous campaigns of thought upon both old and new subjects, in a manner that entirely discards the narrow contracted lines that governed a century ago, both in religious and scientific efforts. The conclusions arrived at and pronounced sound then, are now set aside as weak and positively absurd to a demonstration; in fact, the world seems to have been suddenly imbued with a restless enquiring spirit, exhibiting an unsatisfied and unconquerable thirst for hidden knowledge, quickened into activity by a consciousness of the ignorant past, and by the hope of a marvelous future yet to be revealed. In all this we fancy we can discover a very rapid advance toward a belief in the elementary truths of the strange latter day work.

As a theology, "Mormonism" is an exception to all others. Especially so in its bold doctrine of immediate revelation. In some respects it seems in perfect harmony with other religious systems. One in particular, in which it entertains as the central idea of its faith, the true and living God. The line of demarcation may be drawn and defined thus: The former rests its faith upon a class of proofs, or evidences that are constantly emanating from Deity, that are unmistakable in their character and ineffably convincing. Whereas, the other builds, or attempts to build its faith upon doubtful tradition or dead letters, or the testimony of dead men.

When its founder first made this declaration, it met with a similar reception as all preceding declarations of like character have met with. Immediate revelation—humanity was never prepared to receive as a present truth for itself. The doctrine of revelation from the Deity in a preceding age, given to another people, humanity as a whole have never opposed; but have willingly accepted as good as true. The lives, opportunities and privileges of those who have stood in this happy relation to God, have ever been considered by them as proper themes for gladness and admiration.

Jesus Christ must be admitted as the most important revelation that ever saluted humanity. Yet humanity at that time, notwithstanding the abundant evidence he offered it to prove his pretensions, proved itself true to its ever fatal error of rejecting present truth, by rejecting him and clamoring in their short sighted folly for truths revealed through Moses and the prophets. How little they knew about Moses or the prophets! When they deliberately rejected the living truth presented to them in the person and character of Jesus Christ, they preferred to identify their personal and national interest and safety with past truths, that time had made impracticable and useless to them. They rejected him in whom was vested perfect safety, or present and eternal ruin. "Ye shall die in your sins unless ye believe that I am he," was the import of that present truth to the Jewish nation; of more infinite importance to it as present truth, than all the past truths that ever came to their fathers through Moses, or the prophets. Oh! erring humanity. As exemplified above, humanity has no aversion whatever to revelation. It ever was conscious, and is particularly so now, of the fact that in it is found an immeasurably superior method over all others for acquiring information upon all those subjects upon which humanity has and now is bending its best efforts.

Immediate revelation as a present truth inspires the human mind with a vivid, restless dread. The fear, the thought alone of being brought into such a close and solemn relationship with that matchless embodiment of perfection and power as implied in the name, God, seems too much for the credibility of incredulous humanity to desire or believe.

Important as we believe the mission of Joseph Smith to be, and fraught as it might be with consequences of weal and woe to the whole world, humanity when brought face to face with it, proved itself again to be true to the ever fatal error that has engulfed whole nations; yea! a whole world in ruin. As before, it now prefers to identify its interest with past truths; those that come through Christ and his immediate followers. It also shrinks at the thought of immediate revelation. Like ancient Israel it fears being brought into such solemn nearness to God. But unlike Israel who declined to hear his voice personally, they were willing that Moses should hear it for them. Now they not only refuse to be brought near to him, but decline his word through a prophet's instrumentality.

In the words of prophets uttered thousands of years ago they make pretensions of belief, blind to the fact that every portion of law and commandment embraced in the plan of salvation as recorded in Scripture, to-day, to humanity, is dead and inoperative in its application without the renewal now of that vital principle that once gave the same form, life and power to the Jews. Without it, what is it. From Adam to Moses it was preached. The record of its ministry possessed by the Jews at the appearing of Christ to continue it, was simply a record of past truths, dead and impracticable as such. But warmed into life and application, created a present truth by the advent of Christ and the authority he brought with him and committed to others to administer in his name.

Just so in our day. What Christ and his apostles did were present truths to the Jews.

To this age, the Scriptures are but a record of their acts and of past truths only; and must receive now, as then, the living principle of power and thus be made binding and practicable to humanity now as present truths. This living principle that giveth life and force to God's saving, present truths, is an immediate revelation of power, a living prophet to hold the oracles of God.

When the founder of Mormonism presented himself in that capacity it was a new thought; quite so, absolutely foreign to all existing theories. But although it came in the midst of so many unfavorable surroundings, we believe it has achieved a glorious and permanent success. In what? says one. Why successful in originating a campaign upon new thoughts that are turning the world upside down, as we hope presently to show.

Where in the history of the world can we find a period when human thought was centered in and exercised upon those vital questions that more than all others should have been and are perpetual studies for the human mind, than during the last fifty years? We mean the Deity, man's origin, and his hereafter. We do not deny that these questions have ever been fruitful themes of inquiry. The cosmogonies accredited to the various nations from the remotest historical period down to the nineteenth century, prove how earnestly mankind has studied for a solution of those interesting, but at the same time perplexing problems. We say problems, for who can say, even at this late day, that they are not equally as problematical now as when man first conceived a conception of them.

We feel conscious and safe in our position. Especially so when we compare the cosmogonies of antiquity with those of modern production. In the former we find the elements of grand and imposing spiritual thought; and though in them we find much that is absolutely frivolous and monstrously absurd, there is that approximation to probable truth that is admirable, for what may be termed the dark ages of man. What more can be said by one than this after examining the cosmogonies of the present age? In them we also find much that convinces us of what deep and earnest thoughts have been expended in the effort to find out God and his works. There, too, we find an approximation to what we believe to be the truth. The ideas there found, though grand and imposing, unfortunately are not all new productions of modern human thought, simply a rehearsal of the old; a returning to the old schools of philosophy, implying that even modern intellects are no more towering, nor expansive in their conceptions upon these questions than those of the antiquated writers.

While we are conscious that the Egyptians, Phœnicians, Greek, Hindoo, and other cosmogonies contain much that is grotesque and absurd, amounting to the ridiculous, modern ones regarding Deity alone, contain much that to our mind is equally absurd and puerile, that would more than exhaust our vocabulary to describe. After six thousand years of the most devoted study to those subjects the aggregate result may be found embodied and expressed in a few short lines from a sublime verse of the "Veda" upon the same theme, one of the oldest relics of Hindoo cosmogony.

"Who knows! the secret, who proclaimed it here,
Whence! whence! this manifold creation sprang?
The gods themselves came later into being,
Who knows! from whence this great creation sprang?
He, from whom all this great creation came?
Whether his will created, or was mute,
The Most High Seer, that is in the highest heaven,
He knows it, or perchance, even he, knows it not."

Humanity has struggled faithfully and long to find out God and his works. What victory has it achieved but that of doubt and indecision, as expressed in the above. How can it be otherwise than this, with such a fruitless reward for so much toil? Is it not a source of wonderment that humanity persisted so long? Is it always to continue building up these useless and absurd cosmogonies; never able to come to a certain knowledge of the truth? Must it ever be doomed to feed perpetually upon the idle speculations of the past, ever failing to achieve the sure and certain victory of a perfect knowledge of God? We hope not. We believe not. We wish to see it emerge from the speculative fields of human philosophy and reach a sublime result as shown in the cosmogony of the prophets. They saw God and heard his voice; and through his revelation to them became quite conversant with his works and humanity's future destiny. We hope yet to see this pre-eminent knowledge become universal. But no human research can fathom its depths. Is it not declared that human wisdom can never find out God! Nothing short nor less than a revelation from God can scatter the dismal, heavy cloud of ambiguity that has clothed it in deep mystery so long, and shut out God and his wondrous works from human understanding.

Before the world is ready to receive such, what a vast undoing; what a radical change of view and thought must be effected before such a redemption as this can come. Ah! already we can see a convincing, conquering power at work in all the ramifications of mankind, a perfect undoing of the past; a reaching out into new fields of light and knowledge, a perfect avalanche of discoveries that are grand and useful and startling, pouring in upon the world; at which humanity stands aghast, exclaiming, "Marvelous age! unto what destiny is the world ultimately to arrive!"

When the commencement of the new dispensation was announced, standing upon the foundation of new revelation, it was accompanied with the statement that it was to be universal in its application and consequences, as obedience to or rejection of it might determine. That it came in power and much assurance to the obedient and to the disobedient in its progressive development, would prove a demonstration of terrible majesty to the convincing of the skeptic, and all non God fearing, and otherwise in the world. That God is a fact. That the world is his own, and that he now intends to redeem it to himself, and make it an everlasting possession for all that fear him and obey his laws.

In the Book of Mormon, page 107, we read concerning the ushering in of the present dispensation. "And it shall come to pass, that the Lord God shall commence his work among all nations, kindreds, tongues and peoples, to bring about the restoration of his people upon the earth."

The prophetic character of these words is to us a very significant key to the immense preparatory work that is to be done before the work it indicates can be accomplished. It is called the Lord's work. Invisible, unknown, and doubted as he may be to and by the nations with whom he is operating his sovereign will, we may readily infer that his invisible, silent forces are at work compelling humanity in every character and condition upon the world's great stage of life, to carry out his bright designs by contributing according to his individual capacity as he may exercise in position and ability to the great work implied.

Some prophetic sayings in the Bible seem to imply a connection with the work in question. Isaiah says, "Behold the Lord maketh the earth empty and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof." John the Revelator says, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ." Daniel says, "And the kingdom and dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the Saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." This passage seems to foreshadow a momentous crisis for the world. And to locate them properly, passing events would seem to justify this application to our present day. We shall assume it at least and proceed with the proofs. While we make no pretensions to scan clearly the whole field of God's providences in so mighty a work of preparing to redeem the world to himself, or that we can make a direct application of every unfolding event as a link in the great chain of events that is to accomplish so much; yet there are some signs with which we are acquainted that more than convince us that we are in the midst of this vast revolution, that must in time work out the fulfillment of those prophetic declarations.

This revolution to us appears in three aspects and may be named and reviewed in this order. Political, scientific and religious.

POLITICAL.

The civilized political world presents itself to us in a condition that furnishes much food for thoughtful reflection. If we view it nationally, there is scarcely an exception but what is troubled with influences that are very inharmonious and perplexing, jeopardizing the peace, prosperity and safety of the state. The comparatively certain tenure of national life and character of the past, seems to have rapidly ripened into that of uncertainty. Grave questions of home and foreign interest are constantly coming to the surface, demanding adroitness and dispatch from the most astute statesmen of the age. So constantly are they recurring, that decided policies are decidedly out of the question. That conceived to-day to be exactly suited to present surroundings is completely unsuited and made void for tomorrow, from the intriguing conduct of its near neighbors. The jealousy and mistrust of each other are painfully apparent among the nations, actuated as each one is, by a covetous spirit of territorial aggrandizement and general self-interest and preservation. The most unusual and strange combinations are entered into by the nations of the old world; confederating themselves into powerful compacts, having fearful forebodings of danger and terrible wars soon to come. The natural result of such is the present immense armaments for defense. Immense resources are required for their creating and support, entailing unbearable taxation, which rests like a heavy incubus upon the various communities and their industries.

Another result flowing from the war clouded horizon, is the rapid waning of enterprise and consequent withdrawal of the money medium from the ordinary channels of trade. This absenteeism is one of the most destructive influences operating at present, disturbing the communities of the world. So great is the demand for money for the various national uses, that capitalists prefer withdrawing it from business pursuits and receive a national guarantee in the shape of a bond, with a small guaranteed interest; thus sparing themselves the perpetual cares and anxieties of business pursuits, made extremely precarious and uncertain by the disturbed and unsettled relations of the world. It needs but a casual observer to discover the immediate results that flow from such action. A depression of labor, and of all the countless industries of a community. The safety and well being of all nations are endangered with the existence in their midst of a large surplus of unemployed labor, unless there is a healthiness and vigor imbued into all industries by which it can be employed, dangerous agitations must necessarily follow. The depression of the last decade when industries have waned to such a deplorable condition that many communities were reduced to positive destitution, have produced their sure results. They can be seen in the violent agitation, the feverish and unyielding dissatisfaction, the thirsting for innovation, the rabid denunciation of governments and clamorings for immediate changes in administration and law.

The most appalling sign that marks the idea that the world is rapidly drifting towards a dangerous crisis is the immense and constantly increasing national indebtedness. The constantly increasing national needs arising from actual wars and rumors of wars, famines, scourges, and the multitude of other causes that are constantly occurring, and that make earnest demand upon national exchequers, baffles the most astute financiers. Their abilities are being constantly exercised to the utmost to provide revenue to meet these pressing demands. The only recourse is to taxation. Although that has already reached a grievous and most distressing point, there remains no other alternative but to further increase it. The tendency everywhere, not only in a national capacity, but in every city and municipal government is to increase indebtedness by assuming new obligations. Loans are contracted, bonds are issued, taxation is increased and collected by inexorable law that knows no denial nor gives one moment's consideration to deplorable surroundings and inability to pay. To us it seems but a rational conclusion that unless the statesmanship of the various nations is found competent to arrest the pernicious tendency, and readjust the finances by elaborating a system of corresponding relief and general prosperity, sooner or later the inevitable fate of bankruptcy must overtake it. Already we hear it termed a bankrupt world. Who can contemplate its vast indebtedness, scarcely within the bounds of computation, but will know it to be approximating the enormous figures of fifty thousand millions of dollars, and nearly all contracted within the present century, and say it is not in that condition already? Who can think for one moment that it is possible, or desirable that such gross incompetency can possibly continue to govern the world? Who is there among mankind whose heart does not throb with a pang of pity and alarm at this sad, sad spectacle of incompetent human government and not desire a change. Sooner or later it must come. But how can it be brought about? From whence shall this transcendent wisdom flow capable of arresting this violent wrong to humanity?

Oppressed humanity in every land feels the mighty infliction, and is earnestly pleading for reform. This intense desire is created in the mind by a consciousness that merciless despots are ruling, and are constantly increasing their burdens. It is this that makes the Nihilists of Russia, the Socialists of Germany, and the Communists of France, and agitators in every land. It is this fact, indelibly impressed upon the mind that prompts the mighty upheavals of popular indignation in every land; fills the world with violence and hatred toward each other, in their varied attempts at reform, until we might compare it to a slumbering volcano that will soon vomit forth its fury, working general ruin with things that do now appear.

The purport of the political aspect to us is this. That human wisdom has ruled the world its allotted time; that influences are at work making its incompetency glaringly apparent; that the distresses arising from it have a tendency to make humanity dissatisfied with its workings, and everywhere we hear the cry of reform; and "sovereign panaceas" are offered for humanity's amelioration, by human wisdom still. The only sovereign remedy to us is this. That God alone with his inscrutable wisdom is capable of working out a system of relief. This work we believe he has commenced, and every condition of the political world at the present time is a detail of the great work now in progress. In the progressive development of such a scheme, it will not lack the positive proof necessary to convince mankind that God is directing it, and the revelations of his power exhibited in the general overturning and changing of human affairs will be so much to convince mankind that there is a God on high, and will help to bring on that glorious period when "the knowledge of God shall cover the earth as the waters cover the great deep."

SCIENTIFIC.

Enough can not be said in praise of scientific effort, and the success that has attended it in the discovery of so many of the hidden forces and powers of nature. Its efforts have been most untiring in the great laboratory. Step by step it has continued its course in search of the hidden mysteries, that at last a degree of prominence has been reached that reflects imperishable renown upon its professors in the past; and an inviting field of research is still open to those that may follow after.

It has been said "That much that is called science is nothing more than mere bundles of theories, or facts, connected with more or less of exactness, but which a fresh discovery may any day untie."

If this is true, as we believe, where shall we draw the line between truth and error in all that is called science. In the physical, or natural sciences, such as astronomy, geometry, geology, and others that might be named, much phenomena are seen that long observation and positive demonstration have placed immeasurably above the possibility of being disputed or overthrown by any that may subsequently appear. In this field of exact science, wonderful discoveries have been made that might be safely termed truths. It is here where it has been so successful, and merits praise. The scientist from his success in his legitimate field has become bold in his enterprising research, and has sought in other fields for demonstrative phenomena, but in vain; at least, success has not crowned his efforts thus far, and the probabilities are strong that he never will, nor can be successful.

It is in this new field, where science has built up its speculative philosophies that are called bundles of theories, although each one may contain facts of more or less of exactness, that all are subject to complete overthrow by future discoveries.

Suddenly the scientific world has added to its long list of subjects, grand and imposing as it is, that of nature's God and man's origin. The proofs adduced from the natural, or exact sciences are abundant and conclusive to him that preceding all that vast array of sublime truths displaying so much power and inscrutable design, there must have been an intelligent first cause of the universe. They have carried the research back so far, as one writer expresses it, "That they have carried back in the succession of things to the point of contact with the Divine Will, which was the original cause of all." And at this point their labors seem to have come to an end. Here a barrier confronts them beyond which they can not go, nor hope to pass. It is at this point where the bundles of theories are made, and speculative philosophy steps in and weaves her mysteries. The confessions of some of the brightest modern naturalists are, that they here are at fault and science falls prostrate in its exhausted research, and frankly admits that nothing short of a revelation from the great cause itself can unlock the great mystery of a supposed existing, living and true God.

The purport of what we have written upon scientific effort is told in a few words, That although it has acquired a vast deal of knowledge about God's works, they are confessedly brought to the point that man by his own wisdom and understanding can not find out their author. We are of the opinion that where so much has been acquired, the desire and effort would never be less in man to find out his maker so long as left to himself to find him out, as he is at the present time. But here we find him at a point where we believe God has designedly brought him, to ultimately show him that he is the greater, and like the political world so will the scientific be called to witness in the present dispensation, the mighty revelations of power and greatness that will be manifested in order to fill the world with the full knowledge of God.

RELIGIOUS.

What a vast display of outward endeavor has and now is being made in the same direction, having the same object in view by the religious portion of mankind. To the religious, God becomes at once the grand, central object of their research. Unlike the scientist that has successively from one conclusion to another led himself to conceive the possibility of a God, the religious individual arrives at the conclusion intuitively that God does live, and that "in him we move and have our being." This assumed fact, (though we believe it to be an abstract truth), it can not be more, for in what can the man of religion be better qualified to determine the fact than the man of science? The latter builds up his conception as he slowly pulls himself through his laborious research, where he sees by his natural eyes and mental vision in nature a marvelous array of proof in majestic power, sufficient in themselves to arouse the innate consciousness within him of the fact. Yet with it all before him, he hesitates to determine, and willingly confesses that more, much more proof is wanting, and must be had to enable him to satisfactorily determine the fact and its true character.

What we ask, Has the religious man more than this to enable him to know? Nay! he can not say that he has these proofs to assist him in his conclusions. His belief, and it is no more than a belief, rests solely upon the tradition of his fathers, and his innate consciousness that persuades him to believe. We fail to see that the religious person has a single proof more to sustain him in his affirmation of God than the scientist has, who will not affirm. In more modern days the conviction is winning its way into the hearts of thinking religious men that a due regard to positive facts is better than fanaticism; and these have discovered that there is much in the assumption entertained by religious individuals concerning God that is much more of a fanatical than of a positive character. There seems to be a gradual awakening towards this point of consideration, until the whole christian world is confronted with the inquiry, How much does it actually know about God? It rests its assumption on arguments something like the following. "The universe, when contemplated as the work of a creative intelligence, becomes a convincing argument that there is a God." This probably is as strong an argument as can be brought forward by theologians; and there are probably millions who by it determine the existence of a living God.

The matchless beauty, wisdom and power everywhere manifested in the universe, are in themselves proof quite sufficient to arouse into active life the innate consciousness which every human mind, more or less, enjoys, that confirms the hereditary tradition about God, that has successively come down to the present age. But to us there is a vast difference between an abstract idea of an existing, living God, and the positive knowledge of that God. The human being never lived that was not more or less convinced of the existence of a supreme power, in some shape or other, but the great difficulty with humanity has ever been how to define it. The conception is as old as humanity itself, but few indeed have ever attained to a more excellent knowledge. God himself planted that conception in the human mind, and from the beginning it has been a constant incentive to think, to act, and to worship. Ignorant of the fact of a personal deity, it has inspired humanity to erect their absurd mythologies containing innumerable idols, to which it has bowed down in humble and submissive reverence. This is exemplified in the Greek mythology, particularly. Ignorant of the true and living God, they personified every phenomenon in nature, from a tree to a blade of grass, and worshipped it until they numbered in the catalogue thirty-two thousand gods. They worshipped them because they saw a genius and a wisdom there excelling anything that mortals were capable of putting forth, and because they were ignorant of anything greater. They also had their God's to whom they appealed in times of distress and scourges. It was so when St. Paul visited them. They had bowed down to them to stay the ravages of the scourge that was devastating their city, and still it prevailed. The thought occurred to them that perhaps there was another God, unknown to them, that possessed the power. To him they raised the column and wrote thereon the inscription, "To the unknown God." "This same God," said Paul, "I declare unto you." Here we have an instance where the line is clearly drawn between the conception and the actual knowledge of God, and here is a lesson that all humanity might learn. What enabled Paul to say so? What enabled Peter to declare "Thou art the Christ." The true and living God had revealed himself unto both, and all that ever knew God, or ever will, must know through the revelation of his will.

The scientist admires the created universe; sees its glories and its splendors. He has the conception also that he feels it, and confesses to the conviction of a creative intelligence. Yet with it all, ask him, What it is? He will frankly tell you that he knows it not. So also with the most rabid Infidel that ever clamored against the extravagant and puerile philosophies of the Greeks. He feels it. Thomas Paine felt it, and so does Underwood and Ingersoll. And all that evert ried to be Atheists have confessed it; but from lack of the proper evidences they declare it an incomprehensible matter to them. They also search for the fact with the greatest perseverance, and have traced back successively its marvelous work to the infinitesimal protein, or primary molecules, where it must have connection with the will power, and there also is an end to their research.

If much that is called science can be termed "mere bundles of theories," what may not be said of much that is called religion. Admitting a great depth of sincerity in it all, its character is theoretical and speculative in the highest degree. Notwithstanding a profession of Christ is made and an effort is made to walk in all that he has commanded, modern religious thinkers are awakening to the fact that their present systems are lamentably deficient in the grand elementary features that belonged to the original one.

One calm, deliberate thinker, after painfully viewing and vividly describing the divisions and strifes in the religious world, and praying for the invisible Spirit of Christ to settle the many, quick, subtle, and formidable questions which are at present stumbling their thousands and embittering their millions, bows in penitent submission to the solemn truth that one accredited messenger or prophet from heaven with a, "Thus saith the Lord, would exert more authority in that work than all the convoked wisdom of the world." Another says, "The greater part of the clergy, both of the Catholic and Protestant Churches, are substantially infidels." "And," says he, "there never was a time when worse errors were taught under the name of Christianity than at present; or bolder assaults made in, or out of the church, on the foundation of morals and religion; and when the principles of infidelity were taught on such a scale under the guise of biblical learning; or a doubt or denial of the inspiration of the Scripture was so slight a barrier to admission to the ministry. Christianity can make no progress, or even maintain its ground against its formidable enemies without a special interposition from heaven."

We might quote almost indefinitely the sayings of great thinkers and writers upon the condition of modern religions, and thereby prove that confidence in them is fast declining; and that men are rapidly approaching the condition of thought that will admit the introduction of a new dispensation of light and power, that shall dispel the ambiguous, dismal cloud of mystery that hangs over present religious effort to find out God and his work.

Having proceeded thus far we will conclude by expressing our views upon modern religions.

The various systems, or creeds called religious, have much about them that demands our admiration; above all is that they act as restraints, and in a great measure as correctors of the great flood of crime that has ever flowed from humanity. We have no doubt, and must confess to the axiom of truth, that "All that is good cometh from God;" so must acknowledge the divine hand in all the good they have effected in the world. When we consider the great tendency to crime and gross immoralities that humanity has ever exhibited, and the powerful influence religion has ever exerted in its arrest, we hesitate not in blending the divine connection with it all. Without it who is capable of estimating the condition of the world at the present moment. Blending ancient with modern attempts to serve God in all the diversified manners in which it has been made, we look upon it all as the natural outgrowth of that conception that our Maker has indelibly inscribed and made part of our natures of himself. If men have erred in their cosmogonies, and bowed down to strange idols and extravagancies, it was because they lacked the true light of their Maker that alone enables humanity to worship God aright. We readily bow to the divine economy that has denied so large a large a portion of the human race the light and privilege that another portion has had and enjoyed; and feel consoled to know that a merciful Maker in those dark, benighted periods, winked at the ignorance and folly of his creatures.

When the latter day dispensation was ushered in, the true light of God came also; and this exposed to view the absurd fallacies that belong to much that was called religion. whereas humanity sanctions and approves diversified effort in worshipping God; it declares for an exclusive effort in that direction, as follows: Faith in God, created by revealed evidences, as anciently promised to all believers by Christ himself. An exclusive church organization, having a ministry of prophets and apostles, evangelists, teachers and pastors; declaring the doctrine of repentance and baptism for the remission of sins; the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost; the doctrines of the resurrection and eternal judgment. These doctrines, since their introduction to the world, have proven the leaven that is rapidly "leavening the whole lump." One by one, here a little, and there a little, they are beginning to be understood by Bible students and lay members of every denomination, as essential elements in the plan of salvation; and as rapidly as they win their way into the human understanding, they engender deep thought and desire to learn the whole counsel of God.

At no previous time in the history of religion, can we find so dismal and discouraging surroundings as at the present. The reason is this: The light of revelation, God's only light, is now sending out its rays of enlightenment into every heart that desireth to worship God aright. It gives men minds to think energetically, and to understand properly; and to all who read, hear and enquire, the superstitions and glaring fallacies that have lived, and lived securely until now, are made manifest with precision and clearness. Everywhere we now hear men, religious men of thoughtful mien, deploring the short comings and failures of religion. These not only exhibit a lack of confidence in them, but show a positive yearning desire to leave them and return to the Apostles' creeds; casting aside men's creeds as ineffectual, and wanting in that redeeming power that must bring the world to God. So searching and convincing are the truths of the Apostles' creed, as we have quoted them, that they not only reach and take possession of the religious thinker; but readily find their way to all conditions of men. The earnest skeptic, and violent Atheist, have heard and received them as effectual weapons in their warfare against modern creeds. We once heard a debate between a skeptic and one of the most successful and popular religious leaders of the age, when the former used the doctrines of the apostles' creed in such a way as to completely discomfit his opponent, who gladly evaded the issue.

To us, human creeds have entered upon their decadence, and are disintegrating rapidly; and will ultimately fall to rise no more, as fast as the new light of modern revelation shall scatter broadcast its transcendent truths. Thus we see the world in its religious, as well as in its scientific and political aspect unconsciously being impelled onward to the same grand luminous future. Arcady! Now! In the first decades of the awful preparation they are being rapidly schooled into a condition of dissatisfaction with all things human. God purposes it shall be so. He is winning the world to himself. It has already partaken of his fullness, and as his work of preparation shall develop, revealing its astounding proofs, it will fully realize that the veritable messenger as a prophet has come with the "Thus saith the Lord" unto all men. The world shall be filled with the knowledge of God.

We will conclude with the opinion of a celebrated divine of the church of England upon passing events, as an appendix.

"Again we are led to conclude that all human affairs and the great work of redemption are approaching a crisis. The lines of providence seem fast converging and great events thicken upon us. Events which were wont to occupy centuries are now crowded into less than decades of years. All I can say in this place is, that I am most firmly persuaded that we are living in that awful period designated in Scripture as the last time and last days. Every succeeding year seems to increase the evidences on this head, and to give clearness and precision and intensity to those signs which already have been noticed by commentators. Even worldly men are so affected by the signs of the times as to feel seriously persuaded that some tremendous crisis is at hand."

The Condition of Europe.

AN American, who has traveled two years in Europe, affirms that the general state of society there is of a volcanic character, ready to break out and run riot on occasion. He found that the prevailing impression among very many of the thinking men of Europe is that society there is being undermined by certain irresistible influences. He says:

"In the first place, it is honey-combed by the widespread and still widespreading infidelity. The Christian religion is no longer a supreme influence over the minds and consciences of the masses. The leaders of thought, the scholars of England, France and Germany, have popularized unbelief, and in France it has passed into a current remark that only women and children are any longer to be seen at church. In the second place, there is great restlessness among the masses in regard to the inequalities of society. Why should the few be so very rich and the many so very poor? is the burden of their inquiry, and also their conversation one with another. The undertone of discontent is visibly growing, and is finding expression through channels that are unsettling the foundation stones of the whole social fabric in Europe. Socialism in Germany, Nihilism in Russia, Communism in France and Chartism in England, are all at work, and the masses are being leavened with these principles. Their aversion to kingcraft and priestcraft borders upon revolution. The whole of Europe is volcanic at this time. Immense standing armies are all that repress the outburst. But while they repress it, they afford the grievance on which revolution grows and spreads, and becomes more and more irresistible for the final reckoning. It is believed by many of the most sagacious minds that the day of upheaval is not far off."

Wisdom and truth are immortal, but cunning and deception, the meteors of the earth, after glittering for a moment must pass away.

The trials which befall us are the very trials which we need.

Limits to Church Authority.

I AM fully aware that there are diversities of opinions in regard to the real authority and power that vest in the body and Church of Christ, even among those that recognize the announcement of the angel's message, and the raising of the Ensign of Peace preparatory to the second advent of our blessed Lord. I do not desire to antagonize the opinions of any, nor do I wish to ventilate my own; but a desire that a proper understanding may obtain, that our position upon all subjects within the scope of our holy religion may be sound and impregnable, induces me to give vent to a few irregular thoughts upon the topic as indicated by the above caption. Permit me the indulgence of a few queries, in order to present a few of the many self-evident truths.

Is there any limit to the authority of the Church? Is she infinite in her power? To which we would reply: If there be no limit to its power and authority, then of necessity, whatsoever the Church does must be right, and there can be no appeal from any decision that may come from any one of its different tribunals.

The existence of "The Rock that is higher than I," before which we shall all be called upon to appear, the Great Judge to whom we are responsible for our individual, and our united conduct and action; the revelations of his will as the law, and "lamp to our feet and light to our pathway," show most unmistakably that the Church is limited in its rights, powers and authority, that it is not infallible. If we adopt the dogma of infallibility, as a mere act of consistency we should reverse wheels, down with the brakes, ignore most of all that we have taught, and accept Catholicity.

Is the Church a law unto itself? What rights, if any, does the body acquire in consequence of organization?

The Church is not and can not be a law unto itself, as is fully demonstrated by our personal responsibility for our life and manner of life, unto the Lord our God. "A law unto itself," which, even if Deity were acknowledged, would place the I AM as having "neither part nor lot in this matter," and the church would to all intents and purposes be beyond the authority and jurisdiction of God.

All bodies require a rule of action—law. The church must ever be guided by that rule and revelation of righteousness which came from God, whose kingdom it is. Its rights are those which are defined by the law, in the exercise of truth, virtue, forbearance, wisdom and charity.

By organization, the right to deal with offending members—those that violate wantonly the law governing the body; and thereby the protection of the body from the reproach arising from laxity and unchristian conduct, is acquired. Inasmuch as the faith of the body is formulated agreeably unto the law or word of God, the right is acquired to use such measures as shall best preserve peace and harmony, and subserve the cause of truth and the welfare of souls; but in no case has the church a right to deal with a member simply because that person differs with some other person or persons upon matters that have never been defined by the church, and are not clear in the law.

It acquires the right to say, under God, who shall labor ministerially within its fold; and more specifically in branches, districts and mission fields in the general church; but in all things must its enactments be conformable unto the law; for the fiat of God has gone forth: "Thus far shalt thou go, and no farther, and here shall thy proud waves be stayed." The law is contained in general principles, and a "written law," or enactments by quorums and conferences, wherein there is no specific revelation upon the matter, must be in consonance with general principles, so that it will be but a provision contemplated by the law; and right here let me say that the right to such enactments is acquired by organization in pursuance of law. An individual has no right whatever to ignore such an enactment; even though he may not see wisdom and utility therein; but as an humble follower of Christ he should always recognize the legitimate workings of legitimate authority, "the powers that be."

There is no authority on earth that can make right that which God by his law makes wrong, and vice versa. We must also come to this conclusion, that a decision of a deliberative body may be strictly lawful, and yet in many instances unwise and injudicious; and right there is where good, solid, common sense can and should assert itself for the benefit of all concerned. I would not say that sound judgment, commonly called common sense, would in any way contravene or contradict any revealed principle of law; but there are matters of church polity, that are purely discretionary with the body, that could be decided either one way or the other, and still have the same legality.

By organization no right is acquired to defeat the end of justice; to curtail the defined powers of the various officers of the priesthood; to remove Zion; to compel the adoption of a doctrine not clearly revealed—to do violence to conscience and reason. "Authority intoxicates and makes mere sots of magistrates." Authority is a necessity; but it should be wisely used; for men may be led, but they can not always be driven.

No one man knows all that is worth knowing, nor does a combination necessarily possess the fulness of knowledge, and wisdom, and the seeing of things "face to face," for that is reserved for the perfect day. The limit to the authority of the organized body in its decisions upon matters of doctrine and faith, can only comprehend that found in the revelations of God; beyond that it can not go without doing violence to personal liberty, and becoming the engine of oppression.

And now we come to an important question: Has a member in Christ any rights that are beyond the control of the organized body? Yes. He has the right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," with all that is there implied; to differ from every other person upon geology, astronomy, (even to the believing that the earth is not a ball revolving with terrible celerity in the air), politics, literature and science. He can attend service in the congregation of the Saints; have a voice in conferences; speak with untrammelled liberty in all parliamentary discussions—else the liberty of discussion is but a misnomer—without jeopardy to spiritual standing and position in the church. He has a perfect right to ask no man for what he shall say, to express, or leave unexpressed, his own opinion upon any and all subjects not clearly revealed, and not interdicted by the general body, authoritatively. Personal liberty can not dominate over the lawful decisions of quorums, councils and conferences; nor can quorums, councils and conferences, and dignitaries dominate and trample under feet the inalienable rights bequeathed as our common heritage, by the Giver of all good. There should be no conflict between the rights arising from organization and those of individuals; and where any may occur, it will be because of the want of an understanding of the law, by which all our rights are guaranteed and made secure.

If "the body of believers" constitute an infallible authority in its decisions and enactments, then I confess that we were wrong in not following the quorums of church dignitaries to the "land of salt and sage-brush," and to abide their dictates, notwithstanding they transcended and violated fundamental and organic law, subverted and denied the principles of truth, equity and justice. Vox Dei, vox populi, was the argument used by dangerous and false leaders, to squelch any opposition given by the lovers of the "old paths." Alas! for those that placed their trust in the acts of quorums and councils! How much better would it not have been, if they had only consulted the written law, as contained in the revelations of God, and have dared to think and act for themselves.

It is the solemn duty of the individuals that compose the body to carefully examine all enactments and proceedings of the deliberative bodies, that truths may be preserved in their simplicity and power. We should profit by history. The true foundation is broad and deep, and is not endangered by thought, examination and investigation.

"A little learning is a dangerous thing,
Drink deep or taste not the Pierian spring;
For shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking deeply sobers us again."

Truth ever invites an honest handling, and is never injured thereby; whilst sophisms and fanciful speculations are tattered and torn into shreds assunder, when put to the critical test of investigation and analysis.

The Church can not afford to act in haste upon any supposed infringement of her rights; for sometimes "A moment of time is a monument of mercy," and a sober second thought may have much to do in restoring amity and proper relations. The law and its lash should be the dernier resort, not used for trifles; but when all else have failed, then, and not till then. "Come, let us reason together," saith the Lord. Yes, reason in the love of God; not to enveigle; not to spring a question in some deliberative assembly and thus invite parliamentary discussion in order that you may be enabled to place a thorn in your brother's side; or to impair his influence and usefulness; but reason and invite a comparison of notes, for the development of truth and the better understanding of each other. Let your motto and watchword be, "For the glory of God and the benefit of humanity."

Conferences and councils should not legislate eternally, nor fetter the body with an unnecessary load of restrictions and enactments; for in so doing truth is trammelled, and oft times the liberty of the gospel is seriously impaired. Too much law is as injurious as too little.

Keep it before the people that our liberty is by the law—that law which is perfect and has

God for its author; that we should act in its letter and spirit, observing the rights that inure to the body in consequence of organization, and also the rights that pertain to each of us as individuals of the common brotherhood of man, for in so doing the purity and power of the institutions committed to our trust will be preserved.

Trusting that the brethren may learn to be magnanimous in their bearing one towards another, that they may put into practice the golden rule: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them," and learn to tolerate difference of opinion, and thus demonstrate that charity that the gospel enjoins, I am, gentle reader, your friend,

THOS. E. LLOYD.

Our Privileged Classes.

We were slightly amused to notice an election ticket proposed by one of the great political organizations in New York city, upon which, as it was printed in one of the daily papers, there was not one single name of a native American citizen. In an American city, in the population of which natives of the country of course predominated largely both in number and influence, this party organization proposed to elect a board of officers, every man of whom was foreign-born.

Something similar to this may be observed in the distribution of the licenses by which men are permitted to engage in the selling of intoxicating liquors. Of course no man has a right to deal in these dangerous beverages, in any civilized or well-regulated community. As a rule this business is regarded as one of those dangerous occupations which can only be pursued by persons who are licensed to do so. We do not think of licensing men to sell corn, or wheat, or beef, or beans, or butter; but strong drink men are licensed to sell;—that is, a special privilege is granted to some that is denied to others. The same rule applies in the case of gunpowder, and other dangerous explosives; persons must be licensed in order to engage in their sale, especially in cities.

It has occurred to us that if this privilege of selling intoxicating beverages be of pecuniary value, it should naturally be conferred upon deserving people, as a favor or reward for special services which they have done. It might be granted as a privilege to invalid soldiers who, having toiled and fought and bled and been disabled in their country's cause, would thus be placed in a position to make a comfortable living without severe labor; or if these men, remembering their experiences with drunken generals and drunken captains and surgeons, should conclude that they had had enough to do with strong drink, perhaps the privilege of selling rum might be conferred upon the aged and worn-out ministers, whose long lives of active efforts in behalf of humanity might be regarded as entitling them to some special consideration and to peculiar privileges of this kind. If they should decline the favor of dealing out liquid damnation, it might be conferred upon worn-out school teachers or upon poor widows. At the least a business so vast and so lucrative, should be wisely administered, and bestowed, if at all, only upon the most deserving persons.

Instead of this what do we see? Who are the men who have the control of the liquor business in the United States? It is stated that of 61,265 wine and liquor shops in the United States, 27,312 are kept by Irish and Germans, more than half of the balance are kept by other foreigners, only about 11,423 being kept by native Americans. In the United States are 33,991,142 native born citizens. There are 5,567,229 foreigners. Of these, 3,360,074 are Irish or German. From this it appears that a little handful of Irish and German foreigners, numbering not one-tenth of the entire population, do about one-half of the United States liquor business; while other foreigners do more than half of the other half.

In the city of New York there are 8,034 dram shops. Over 5,000 are kept by German and Irish, not one in forty of the 8,034 is kept by Americans. Among these dram sellers are 2 Chinamen, 18 Italians, 140 Spaniards, 160 Welsh, 205 Americans, 265 Africans, 285 French, 497 Scotch, 568 English, 2,179 Germans, 3,041 Irish, and 674 whose nationality is unknown.

There are 3,696 dram shops in New York city, kept by women. Of these women one is an American, 3 are Africans, 3 Spanish, 4 Welsh, 10 English, 13 French, 1,104 Germans, 2,548 Irish, 396 unknown.

What is the character of the places where these strong drinks are dealt out? Of the 8,034 places, half are saloons and bar rooms, the rest are gambling hells and brothels. These are the places where men carry on this nefarious traffic.

What is the personal character and history of these 8,034 liquor dealers in New York city? 2,004 of them have been in State prisons, 2,645 of them have been in county prisons, 1,769 of them have been confined in police stations. Of the 8,034, only 1,616 have hitherto escaped the clutches of the law. These then are the men to whom this nation grants the special privilege of dealing out these burning drinks which madden and destroy those who taste them. These men and women, State prison convicts, jail birds, ignorant foreigners who have left their country for their country's good, gamblers and keepers of brothels,—these are the men who are authorized to deal out strong drink to multiply crimes, to treble our taxation, to curse our land with misery and pauperism, idiocy, insanity and death. These are the men who are let loose upon the nation, and who in their haunts of iniquity and dens of crime plot to destroy and blot out the image of God in the souls of men, to bring them down through all the nameless horrors of a drunkard's life to the unutterable anguish of a drunkard's death and the drunkard's final doom. And this great, prosperous, intelligent nation trebles its taxation and wrecks its dearest interests, that Dennis O'Mahoney and Teddy O'Donahue, Hans Guzzellager and Bridget McSpalpeen, and a lot of other beer swilling Germans and whiskey-loving Irishmen, instead of doing honest hard work, may be permitted the privilege of getting an easy living by selling liquor, causing riots and broils and crimes and casualties and conflagrations, all at the expense of honest, hard working, tax paying, sober members of the community, who are forced to earn the money and pay for the wreck and ruin caused by these foreigners who have invaded the land and saddled themselves upon the community, and claim that as this is "a free country" they can do what they like and it is none of our business, and we have nothing to do about it.

This idea we regard as a mistaken one. If we must support these persons, we can do it cheaper in prisons and alms-houses than to have them in rum shops scattering fire-brands, arrows and death throughout the land. And every man who toils to pay his taxes, or seeks to guard his home from ruin and desolation, has a right to say something about this villainous traffic.

Liquor selling not only causes pauperism, but those races that sell most liquor furnish the most paupers. Eight-tenths of the liquor dealers of Chicago are Irish and Germans; and the records of the "Relief and Aid Society" in 1874, showed that of the 12,938 who were cared for by that society, 10,040, or nearly eight-tenths, were Irish and Germans.

It must of course be remembered that ignorant foreigners are not so responsible in a moral point of view as others might be. They are natives of lands where whiskey and lager beer are as common as milk; and their sale is deemed as respectable. They stand in a position somewhat like that occupied by the dram-selling deacons and church members of America a hundred years ago. Hence it is our duty as Christians to enlighten them. But it is the duty of the State to protect itself against ignorance and crime, and to crush out this terrible traffic which has fastened itself upon the vitals of the nation, and which wrecks and desolates everything which it touches. Let Christian men and patriots see to it that they labor with heart and soul to restrain and eradicate this dire and deadly evil.—Selected.

You who eat bread made from wheat, just treasure up the following.

The History of Wheat.

It is difficult in the present day to realize the fact that wheat was at one time unknown in America; yet prior to the discovery of this continent by Columbus there was no cereal in America approaching in nature to the wheat plant. It was not, observes the American Miller, until 1530, that wheat found its way into Mexico, and then only by chance. A slave of Cortez found a few grains of wheat in a parcel of rice and showed them to his master, who ordered them to be planted. The result showed that wheat would thrive well on Mexican soil, and to-day one of the finest wheat vallies in the world is near the Mexican capital. From Mexico the cereal found its way to Peru. Marie D'Escobar, wife of Don Diego de Chauves, carried a few grains to Lima, which were planted, the entire product being used for seed for several successive crops. At Quito, Ecuador, a monk of the order of St. Francis, by the name of Fray Jodosi Bixi, introduced a new cereal; and it is said that the jar which contained the seed is still preserved by the Monks of Quito. Wheat was introduced in the present limits of the United States contemporaneously with the settlement of the country by the English and Dutch.

Bustle is not industry any more than impudence is courage.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.
HENRY A. STEBBINS, ASSISTANT.

Plano, Illinois, September 15th, 1880.

WE have the following question from Bro. T. W. Smith, and give it place, with our answer; because we, like himself, deem it a matter of very grave import:

Is it a sin for women in a pregnant condition to produce abortion, either by medicine or instruments? If a sin, what is the nature and degree of the wrong, and what effect should be expected to follow?

We answer that it is a sad thing to think that there is ground for such a question. 1. It is beyond controversy a sin. 2. The nature of it is murder; its degree, a high one, for it is deliberate and willful. 3. The effects of such crime are, and of right should be, the severest punishment; nor is that punishment long delayed, for not infrequently the crime is followed by detection which brings shame, and death. And in all instances, with scarcely an exception, while the innocent are destroyed, the guilty ones who destroy receive what they merit:—entailed weakness; continued and persistent ill health, both of mind and body, if they survive the cruel methods of the murder they commit. We also believe that there will be for such transgressors against the law, "Thou shalt not kill," the surest and direst punishment that the spirit can be made to endure.

We have no language sufficiently expressive of the utter pity, contempt and condemnation in which all good men and women should regard such a heinous crime; and as for Saints, if any should be found guilty, the letters L. D. S. should for them mean "latter day sinners," for infanticide is a sin of the latter days, and is half sister, nay the intimate hand-maiden in deviltry of the spirit of adultery, which it is reported that Joseph Smith declared should be poured out upon the world. Much as we have said against Salt Lake Mormonism, and the crime of polygamy, we very much doubt if they of the mountains are guilty of this base and abominable wickedness of child murder. It is a fashionable crime, but must inevitably meet an unfashionable damnation.

WE have been advertising for sale for some months past, at intervals, a farm in Decatur county, Iowa; and it may possibly have occurred to some of the Saints that Bro. Joseph was using the columns of the HERALD rather freely to thus advertise his land for sale. To correct this idea, if already obtained, and prevent others from obtaining it, we state that the farm in question is one that was bought by the Board of Removal, or committee on location, some three years ago, to secure a possible plat for a town location in case the railroad through Decatur county missed the lands already held by Saints there. The railroad passed through the lands of the Saints some five or six miles from this farm, and the Board of Location then determined to sell the farm and use the money for locating as soon as practicable; therefore, they used the HERALD to advertise it for sale. Bro. Joseph owns a small farm of forty acres near to the town of Lamoni, which is not for sale, and so he has not used the HERALD for his own benefit in the matter.

The farm,—consisting of 153½ acres of good farming land, house, barn, wells, fences, and small orchard, with 40 acres of wood lot,—is still for sale; and the committee would be very thankful to effect a sale, as it would help to dis-embarrass the Herald Office to quite an extent. The price is $25 per acre for the 153½, and $5 per acre for the 40 acres; one-third down, and good terms with bond for deed for the rest of the purchase money.

The Saints need feel no alarm about the offer, for every man in the Church has as much personal, money interest in this farm as Bro. Joseph has.

"In my travels when presenting the question of tithing to the brethren, I find some who object to pay tithing, and state as an objection that the tithing is wrongly used when the priesthood use it for paying traveling expenses, on either foreign or home missions, saying they should go without purse or scrip, and the tithing is now used wrongly for railroad, steamboat, or vessel fares; consequently they will not pay until a change in this matter is effected."

What say you to this, Bro. Smith?

The policy of the Church has been this, that where Elders were appointed to missions, wisdom directed that they be sent directly to their fields of labor, that they might enter at once upon their ministerial work. It has been deemed poor policy to permit an Elder to foot it miles, few or many, to reach the field where he was to labor, and the rule has been, where it could be safely done to send them through. But in cases where time permitted, or wisdom directed, the Elders have gone without provision for traveling fees; and many important missions both in this country and elsewhere have been undertaken by Elders without burdening the funds of the Church.

Our own opinion is that the law which provides that the moneys in the treasury are to be used for "the work of the ministry," warrants and justifies the spiritual authorities of the Church, including the Bishopric, to expend such sums in sending the Elders to their fields of labor as may by them be deemed wise, politic, or necessary. That there may have been some mistakes made in this regard, we would not deny; and that some of the Elders thus sent to their fields have abused the trust reposed in them, by failing to labor faithfully and well, we will not deny; but why any one should make the objection referred to as an excuse for not aiding the Church treasury, is to us a strange thing. Only a portion at most of the funds expended by the Bishopric, is for this purpose of paying fare, &c., and the rest, by far the larger part is paid for the support of Elders' families; but this objection virtually says, We will give no moneys to the Bishop for the families of our brethren in the field, because if we do, the Bishop will spend a part of it to pay for sending those Elders to their fields. As for instance, an Elder is sent by the Church to Australia, but he must go to Australia without purse or scrip; and for fear he should get any money for the purpose of speeding him on the way, we will not give a penny to the Bishop or his Agents. If that is not a penny wise and pound foolish argument, we never saw one. Thank God, all Latter Day Saints are not cast in that mould; for a policy such as that shown forth by the objection in our question would be an effectual stop to all kinds of ministerial labor. The Elders ask for nothing for themselves, when in their fields of labor; but they do ask, common sense and profound wisdom, as well as the dictation of the spirit of the law and the Spirit all demand, that when a minister is sent by the Church to a field, he be put into that field with the least possible delay, and with the least possible personal embarrassment, that the preaching of the gospel be not hindered. And no one can surely take justifiable shelter behind such a proper and wise expenditure in refusing to aid the general treasury.

We believe that where there is a will there is a way, and he who wants an excuse need not go far to find one; hence those who object to the Elders having their fare to their fields paid, and for that reason do not pay any tithing, can very easily obviate the force of their objection by giving to the families of the Elders while they go without purse or scrip to preach, and thus help the work onward, at the same time keeping their conscience void of offense under the law.

We have not said that we understood all law and all perfection; and therefore, to be told that we do not understand this law of tithing does hurt us. We are only waiting to be led into the truth, and hope to be willing to follow the leading of the Spirit of Truth in this as in all other things. We have pointed out the most feasible plan as yet offered, and remain content to learn a better when offered.

BRO. WM. ANDERSON sends us from Oakland, California, a Sunday Chronicle of August 15th, 1880, containing an article, with diagram, on the "Perihelion Periods," in which the present year and the next two are stated to be fated for strange and continued disastrous phenomena within the circuit of the earth's existence, the cause of which disturbance is to be the influence of the several powerful planets brought to bear upon the earth together; as for instance, if a person were to fasten a number of horses to a circular wagon at irregular intervals around it, and all facing away from it, then he should endeavor to start them and they should all pull away from the wagon each in his own direction, of course one would pull against another and the wagon would not be moved; but if he kept on trying to drive these horses, and in their endeavors to get away from his whip, the horses should all get round upon one edge of his circular wagon and all headed one way, they would pull it out of its place, and possibly run away with and dash it to pieces. The planets referred to are getting into a line opposite a common point of the earth's surface, and the influence that they severally exercise upon the earth by way of attraction, will be combined by their coming into line, and the earth may "be removed out of her place like a cottage."

Our advice to the Saints is, build your houses and inhabit them, with such integrity of purpose and honesty of action, as if you intended to stay here not only while the earth stood, but after it was turned upside down and inside out, for the righteous shall surely remain, and "Zion shall not be moved out of her place," and do not be afraid.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Don't forget, brethren, to make ready to subscribe for the HERALD this coming Fall and Winter, and get your neighbors to subscribe for it too. We want to double it up again. New Year's day; and will, if we get names enough. If we don't have charge of it then, some one else will, and they will make it a live paper. It is the only one of the kind in the United States, and ought to be kept going. Send us the names, send them.

The "Vision," in tract form, four pages, now in print and on hand, at the same rate as other four page tracts. It is intended as an answer to queries concerning the resurrection. Eight cents per dozen, sixty cents per one hundred.

Bro. Blair writes, August 31st, as follows: "We have excellent tidings from Lehi. Brethren Anthony and Gibson are getting a good opening there, they think. All our evidences are favorable to a great and decided change in the Utah Church affairs at an early time."

We made the acquaintance of D. D. Palmer, a noted bee keeper of Mercer county, Illinois, at the late conference at Millersburg; and after our arrival home, received from him a copy of an expose of the Mott, Memphis, Missouri, spiritist imposition, written by Mr. Palmer himself, who in company with his wife visited the Mott family and so far tested the alleged spiritual manifestations as to be satisfied that so far as Mr. Mott was concerned, the people were being grossly deceived and imposed upon. Mr. Palmer is a believer in spirit manifestation and philosophy, but does not hesitate to call the Mott seances, celebrated though they be, an arrant swindle. Mr. Palmer is a genial gentleman, and appeared to enjoy the Saints' meetings and association. He and his family were present all day on Sunday. Price of book twenty-five cents; address New Boston, Illinois.

Bro. David Brand, in charge of Marengo Branch, Illinois, says that they meet on the Sabbath, and enjoy blessings such as God gives to them.

Bro. J. D. Bennett baptized another in Republic county, Kansas, August 15th, the mother of Sr. Jennet Lilley.

Bro. H. R. Mills informs us that his loss by the recent fire at Pittsfield, Illinois, was about $800 or $900, but the Insurance Company only paid him $650. However he is again settled at business, and is glad it was no worse than it was.

Quite a number of letters came to us along in the latter part of April, and in May that we could not get place for in the HERALD, among them one from Bro. C. Derry, one from Bro. James Caffall, one from Bro. John D. Jones, of Kewanee, Illinois, and a number of other good brethren whom we apologize to, giving our reason for their letters not appearing as above.

Bro. W. W. Blair wrote from Salt Lake City, August 30th, in fine spirits. Their meetings were not largely attended, yet there was an excellent feeling pervading the enquirers present. He feels that great changes are impending. There was an attempt made to organize a new political party, enrolling the liberal element in the territory in one.

Bro. Deuel had baptized five lately, and had a good prospect at San Pete. Bro. R. J. Anthony was still south of the city.

Card from Bro. John Eames, August 29th, 1880, dated at Laramie City, Wyoming. He had been permitted to address a Baptist Sunday School and was feeling well. Note from Bro. E. Penrod, from the mines, seventy-five miles from Elko, in good health and spirits.

Bro. J. V. L. Sherwood mentions doing some preaching in Independence and Richmond, Mo.; at the latter place baptizing an old-time Saint and Elder; also visiting David Whitmer.

Bro. L. F. West wrote August 15th, from Milton, Florida, of baptizing an old and respected citizen of that place, Thompson by name, a man who has been investigating Christ's doctrine for years past. The truth with the exemplary lives of some of the Saints won him to obedience, and Bro. West says that others are being likewise made favorable by these good things, so that some more will probably obey soon. Bro. West was expecting Bro. Scarcliff, and both were to engage in the two-day meetings planned for.

Bro. William Anderson of 1007 Broadway, Oakland, California, sends us a Morning Call with an account of a vision of the North Pole by a clairvoyant child, for which paper we thank Bro. William, but see nothing extraordinary in the vision.

Bro. D. K. Dodson sent us a paper containing a story of the discovery of a cavern, in which was found a ship of ancient build, by two miners. When the story is verified, we will be pleased to tell it. At present it is too much like some private stories, "all true, but don't you tell anybody." It would not be very astonishingly surprising if the ark was found somewhere shut up in, or on some mountain preserved of God to confound unbelievers by its discovery one of these days.

Bro. Nicholas Stamm wrote from Des Moines, Iowa, August 24th, that he and Bro. Knox had been sent for to administer to Mr. John Wallace of Pleasantville, Marion county, who was seriously ill of bloody flux. They went, administered as requested, received an excellent promise of recovery, and did recover. Bro. Stamm remained a week at his house, and left Mr. Wallace up and out of doors. He was not a member of the Church, but friendly to the cause. Bro. Stamm states that the Spirit was felt in great power in administration. The Saints at Des Moines were doing the best they could, holding a hall in the east part of the city, in which they meet on Sunday. Bro. Stamm was feeling well, at work hard for the bread that sustains the body, and preaching what he could.

Bro. M. R. Scott writes from New Providence, Indiana, a card stating that they had a good conference at Olive Branch, and good was done. He held meetings at Fairview, in company with brethren H. Scott and V. Baggerly; and at Hall's Ridge and the Union School-house. There was great demand for the preaching of the word. May it ever increase.

Sr. Casandra Hendrickson writes from the Council Bluffs, Iowa, poor farm, that she feels that the time for the fulfillment of Daniel's ninth chapter, where the close of the seventy years is referred to, has not yet come. She expresses the thought that she would rather give to the Lord's store-house than to take from it.

Bro. Blair notifies us by letter that he will need aid from renewed subscriptions for Advocate to continue it. He has been using the paper as a tract pretty freely in the Utah Mission, and he thinks has been productive of good as such. Subscription price fifty cents.

Bro. W. R. Calhoun writes from Cortland, De Kalb county, Illinois, commendatory of the effort of Bro. George F. Weston at De Kalb, on the 22d of August.

August 24th, Bro. J. H. Lake was still at Bevier, Missouri, and had baptized four at that place and two at Salt River, making thirteen in all since he went there.

Bro. J. W. Thorpe wrote from Belleville, Ills., August 23d, that he had been away from his home every Sunday for three months, trying to tell the story of the gospel of Christ. He often found it a thankless task; but he continues to rejoice in God and in his truth.

Letters from Bro. W. W. Blair, dated from the 18th to the 26th August, are received. He is glad that some of the efforts made in the Utah Mission have been telling for good, to the general interests of the Church. Brethren Derry and Luff have returned home; but brethren Anthony, Deuell, and Blair remain still at work there. Bro. James Caffall is also returned from Colorado to his home. It is expected that these brethren will attend the Fall Conference.

Bro. Clarence Saint Clair of Chicago, wrote from Braidwood, Illinois, August 25th, that he was traveling among the branches some, to prepare himself better for work in the ministry.

It is not according to the law of the Church for a Priest to bless children, administer to the sick except in prayer, or to confirm by the laying on of hands. His duties are prescribed in the seventeenth section of Doctrine and Covenants, and do not include the above.

Some one sends a clipping from the Macon County Republican, the reading of which is, leav- out its political animus, significant of the fact that the facts of those terrible persecutions endured by the Saints in Missouri are forcing themselves to the front, and men of the world are acknowledging them. The Saints were driven out. Men then said that "It served them right." But, no matter now by whom it was done, men say that it was wrong, cruel, and unjustifiable.

Sr. Catharine Whittaker writes from Augusta, Wisconsin, August 22d, that upon two occasions she has been healed by the administration of the laying on of hands, as provided in the gospel; Elder M. F. Cooper of North Freedom, Wisconsin, being the one who officiated in the ordinance. Praise to Him whose power is over his people to bless.

Bro. Forscutt baptized two more at Chicago, Sunday, August 29th.

Bro. George H. Graves, colored, laboring in Alabama, writes from Lampsville, that he has baptized five more, and organized a branch of ten members. He writes as if he were full of courage and the prospect was good for more to come in. May the Lord bless his laborers every where.

Bro. I. L. Rogers returned home from a visit to New York state, on the 23d August.

Sr. Eliza E. Mitchell says that they have removed from Gainesville to St. Augustine, Florida, the ancient Spanish city, and they have prepared an opening for preaching by Bro. G. H. Graves, on the St. John's river, not far from St. Augustine, when he shall come that way.

Bro. W. W. Belcher says that the Texal Central Branch is alive to the work of the Lord. Bro. C. Wickes was there when he wrote, August 23d.

Bro. B. V. Springer wrote from Davis City, Iowa, that he had baptized nine persons since he last wrote us, and was preaching regularly there. He has had constant calls, and has been laboring in the ministry most of the time since his return from Indiana and Ohio last April; but owing to financial scarcity in the treasury and elsewhere, he intended when he wrote to go to his trade, or at any work that he could get, to support his family. We wish that it were otherwise with him, and with all the laboring ones of the Seventy.

Bro. L. R. Devore wrote August 25th from Jackson county, Ohio, that he was still engaged in preaching, and had baptized three within a month. He was corresponding with Bro. D. L. Shinn and Sr. Leeson, both in West Virginia, concerning visiting and preaching in their neighborhoods, if finances permitted. Bro. Devore reports the cause as progressing in Eastern Ohio.

Bro. E. H. Boulson, of the Platte Valley Branch, Nebraska, mentions the pleasure felt by the Saints there in hearing Bro. Caffall preach. He stopped off there on his way home from Colorado.

Bro. F. W. Burnham wishes Bro. J. J. Cornish to come to his place and preach some. He lives six miles north-east of Gageton, Tuscola county, Michigan, and seven miles north of Cass City. It may be that a good opening could be made there.

Bro. James Caffall wrote from Council Bluffs, Iowa, August 27th, that he arrived at home the day before. His health was fair, and in spirits he felt well, although his mission had been a trying one among the mountains and valleys of Colorado. Doubtless it is a relief and pleasure to Bro. James to see the familiar home country, but we hope that his labor in Colorado accomplished enough for all the sacrifices and discomforts.

Thanks to Brn. D. K. Dodson, T. R. Hawkins and John Taylor and to Sr. E. Rohrer for papers received.

EMMA HARDINGE BRITAIN, Spiritualist, in a lecture delivered in New York, attempted to account for Dr. Tanner's success in his long fast, by alleging "the magnetic," and other influences of the city. Dr. Tanner happened to be present and took the force out of her theory directly in the following manner:

"She asserted that the density of population, the magnetic influence of the multitude, the aroma of food, made his feat possible in this city, while if attempted in the keen air of the country and in solitude, the body would soon be exhausted by the vigorous and consuming oxygen. At the close of her remarks a well-dressed, sharp-eyed man arose and obtained permission to address a question to the speaker, who introduced himself as the subject of the lady's remarks. All eyes were turned in surprise upon Dr. Tanner, who said: 'If I had continued my fast in Clarendon Hall without the aid of the air in the park, I could not have continued twenty days. Indeed, the bracing air of the Minnesota prairie made it possible for me to continue forty-two days once without food. My experience in this city was attended with far greater difficulty; therefore, my experience is not in accordance with your theory of magnetic forces.'"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Is it right for an Elder, who is clerk of a branch, to stay away from meeting for fifteen months, then refuse to give up the branch records, and leave in the night, with his honest debts unpaid, and take the records with him, and go to Decatur, Iowa, the Saints' home? No.

News Summary.

August 25th.—The Baptists in the United States number 2,133,044 this year, against 2,102,034 last year, showing an increase of 31,010. There are 1,095 associations—increase of 20; 24,794 churches—increase, 295; 15,401 ordained ministers—increase, 447. The additions by baptism were 78,924, a falling off of upwards of 33,000 from last year. The exclusions numbered 20,580.

The Afghans around Candahar have suffered one defeat from the British, who made a sortie from the city on the east side, but they lost heavily in men and officers. The Afghans threw shells into the city, and have good sharpshooters and keep up a good fire. Gen. Roberts' relief force is nearing the place.

In the English House of Commons the Radicals and Conservatives are having a war of words over governmental affairs, particularly about Ireland.

Albania is preparing to resist the cession of Thessaly and Epirus to Montenegro, as demanded of Turkey by the Powers of Europe. Turkish officers and troops at Dulcigno, supposed to be there to aid in the transfer to Montenegro of the territory, do not seem anxious or in haste to have it done, and the Moslems at Constantinople are violently opposed to the cession, so that the Porte is between two fires in his efforts to accede to the demands of Europe.

The Russian harvest is said to be the worst since that of 1873; which was followed by a famine in some parts.

The Egyptian cotton crop will be twenty-two million pounds less than it was last year.

26th.—The ambassadors of the Powers are laboring with Turkey to keep the treaty of Berlin in regard to Montenegro, but the Porte now says that they ask more than was included in the treaty.

Bulgarian insurgents are pillaging Roumanian villages.

Gen. Grant arrived at Galena, Illinois, yesterday, just home from his trip to Mexico, New Mexico and Colorado.

The great heat was followed on yesterday by a heavy wind and rain storm along the Atlantic coast. It did great damage to property and there was considerable loss of life. Nine persons were sunstruck in New York city yesterday forenoon.

27th.—The latest news from Afghanistan is very alarming to the English Government. Telegrams from Bombay to London say that Ayob Kahn's forces have increased rapidly since the successful battle with the British, and it is now stated that he has 100,000 men around Candahar. They are also harassing Gen. Roberts' force, and appear to be able to destroy both his army and that within Candahar. Gen. Roberts is now said to be three weeks march yet from Candahar. The Afghans are increasing their bombardment of it.

A terrific hurricane swept over the Island of Jamaica Wednesday night. Crops of all kinds were destroyed, trees were uprooted, houses leveled with the ground, and thousands of people rendered homeless. The military barracks at Kingston were demolished, as were many churches there and elsewhere. Three wharves were torn away and forty vessels were wrecked in the harbor. So disastrous has the storm been that it is feared that, unless assistance is sent forward immediately, several thousands will perish of famine.

Iron huts are being constructed on some estates in the west of Ireland, where policemen may be stationed so as to be on hand to assist the landlords in evicting tenants.

The recent warm weather has told on the babies in New York City. The mortality among the little ones has been something startling. Cholera infantum and other infant diseases have visited nearly every tenement house and carried off some victim.

It is now probable that Victoria and his murderous band of Apaches have escaped through the failure of the Mexican troops to do their part.

28th.—Sitting Bull is being deserted by his warriors at what must be to him an alarming rate. About 1,000 of the Sioux have already surrendered at Fort Keough, and are being sent to the Cheyenne River Agency. Report comes from Fort Peck that about 1,000 others are coming into that post, and now the doughty Indian warrior has only about 150 fighting men. The reason for the wholesale desertion is not because they love Sitting Bull or freedom less, but because the buffalo herds are gone south of the Missouri River, where hostile Indians cannot hunt them.

A party of the British who made a sortie from Candahar were compelled to return by finding superior forces. They lost heavily but also inflicted much loss on the Afghans.

The citizens of Dulcigno, Albania, threaten to burn the place if it is ceded to Montenegro by Turkey, according to the Berlin treaty agreement. Apparently the Turkish commander at Dulcigno, can do nothing with the Albanians.

In Georgia two white men attempted to break into the house of a negro to whip or kill him, but he shot both dead. He was arrested, but cleared, having shot in self defense.

Ouray, the Ute Chief, lies dangerously ill at the South Ute Agency, and is not expected to live. He has not yet signed the treaty presented by the Indian Commissioners now at that point, and it is feared he will not.

A furious storm prevailed at Fort Mojave, Arizona, Sunday. The military quarters were badly damaged, the officers quarters and hospital and storehouse being almost wrecked, and three of the soldiers killed.

Specie continues to pour into this country from Europe. Two German vessels brought $575,000 yesterday, and another which sailed from Hamburg, brings $400,000. Some $500,000 was withdrawn yesterday from the Bank of England for shipment to New York, and about $1,000,000 was shipped from Paris.

A cyclone visited Dodge Center Minnesota, the 26th, demolishing the new Baptist church, a steam grist-mill, and unroofing the railway depot and many residences and business houses.

30th.—Telegrams say that Gen. Roberts wishes to give battle to Ayob Khan, but his supporting columns do not move up rapidly enough.

Premier Gladstone is visiting Ireland. A waterspout in Switzerland killed several persons and destroyed much property yesterday.

Violent gales and heavy rains in Spain the past week have done much damage. Railway and other property destroyed.

A steamer was burned on Lake Huron yesterday. One hundred to one hundred and fifty people on board; twenty-five lives lost.

Five boys in stealing a ride on top of a train in Massachusetts were swept off the car by a bridge, and all of them were killed. They were fifteen to seventeen years old.

Another large oil tank in Pennsylvania was struck by lightning, and twenty-six thousand barrels of oil was consumed. Other property in the same field was struck.

At Providence, R. I., a Presbyterian church and two or three other buildings were struck by lightning yesterday.

Some cases of what is supposed to be yellow fever have appeared on the southern Mississippi. The physicians are watching the symptoms.

31st.—Gen. Roberts is slowly approaching Candahar with his troops, numbering about fifteen thousand men. They are said to have plenty of supplies still.

In Connecticut an excursion train ran into an express train yesterday. Several people killed.

Other mishaps by explosions, crushings, being caught in machinery, being run over by trains, etc., etc., are recorded to about the usual number daily, as well as many murders and other terrible crimes are published.

Turkey declares that she will make no further concessions on the Greek question, as to change of boundaries, etc.

Owing to the prolonged drought, the crops in eighteen counties in Northwestern Kansas are very scanty. Some of the farmers in that locality have put in seed three times but without result. The corn crop, which is scanty at best, has been attacked by a worm similar in appearance to the army worm and almost completely destroyed. It is stated that fully 25,000 people living in that section, are in absolute want of the very necessities of life.

Attorney-General Devens says that the reports received at his office indicate a condition of lawlessness in some of the Southern States akin to anarchy. No attention is paid to the State or local officers, and even the Federal officers find great difficulty in enforcing the United States laws.

Sept. 1st.—To-day's dispatches say that Ayooob Khan and his army have taken up a position between Candahar and Gen. Roberts' approaching relief force.

Over one hundred Indians have died of small-pox at Upper Gatineau, Canada. The red men are moving north in small parties, leaving the dead unburied.

A furious rain-storm visited Richmond, Va., on Monday night, flooding the lower part of the city, and doing a great deal of damage to property.

In Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, there have been during the present summer, about twenty murders.

The Chicago health department made a raid on the rotten-fruit vendors, yesterday, and seized, about three hundred baskets of the stuff which had been offered for sale on the streets.

2d.—Gen. Roberts' army arrived at Candahar August 28th, and are preparing to give battle to Ayooob Khan if he wishes an engagement, though the dispatch says that he seems inclined to avoid one. It seems remarkable that with all his army he did not intercept Gen. Roberts and take his chances in making a defense of his country on the field of battle, before they reached Candahar.

3d.—In Spain, while some troops were crossing a bridge over a river it broke under them and sixty-eight soldiers were drowned.

The Utes have signed the new treaty with the Government, which provides for their removal from their present reservation in Colorado. This is the treaty which was framed at Washington last Winter and endorsed by the late chief Ouray. This, it is believed, will end all further trouble with them. When fully consummated the commission will proceed to the enumeration of the Indians, the payment of money and the location of lands.

The protracted rainy and clammy weather seems to extend over the entire West. The effect upon the still unsecured wheat crop of the far Northwest is disastrous, while in Illinois the corn and pastures are being benefited, but the farmers who are waiting to thresh their stacked wheat and oats, are beginning to feel anxious.

A Paris dispatch states that the harvest throughout France, Baden, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Holland, South Russia, Servia, and Egypt will be fully up to the average; that in Upper Italy, Roumelia, Bavaria, Swabia, South Italy, Hungary, Poland, and Belgium it will be from five to twenty five per cent above the average; but that in Great Britain and Ireland, Saxony, Northern and Rhenish Germany, and Central Russia it will be from ten to forty per cent below the average.

4th.—Gen. Roberts has had one engagement with the Afghans and defeated them, taking twenty-seven cannon.

The steamer Vera Cruz, which sailed from New York the 25th ult. for Havana and Vera Cruz, was wrecked in the recent terrific gale off Florida, and all on board, including twenty-nine passengers and the captain and fifty sailors, were lost. The gale or cyclone during which the vessel went down was terrific. Portions of the cargo, including the mailbags, of the missing ship were washed on the Florida shore, and some bodies also.

In consequence of the low rate of wages paid the cotton operatives of Lancashire, a movement in favor of emigration to this country has been inaugurated among them. At Blackburn, which, next to Manchester, is the largest cotton manufacturing town of England, a vote was taken yesterday as to whether emigration or striking was the best course to pursue, and the result was that the employes of fifty factories were in favor of emigration and those of thirty in favor of a strike.

Several large fires yesterday. At Hart's Falls, New York, the opera house and other buildings burned; loss $150,000. At Washington Corners, California, a grain warehouse and 50,000 sacks of wheat and barley destroyed; loss $250,000. At Norwalk, Ohio, an organ factory burned; loss $75,000. At Falmouth, England, a $150,000 fire.

On railroads yesterday several accidents. In New York a freight train ran into a construction train. In Massachusetts a passenger train collided with a freight train. In New Jersey forty coal cars broke away from the train on a grade. In New York an engine went off the track and took twelve freight cars. Near Plano, Illinois, two freight trains ran into each other, one coming east the other going west. All told not many injured, but big damages.

Great uneasiness is felt by the citizens of Troy, New York, on account of the alarming spread of small pox in their city. Fifty cases were reported last evening. Two deaths have already occurred, and many patients are hopelessly ill of the fell disease. Great efforts are being made to check its spread.

6th.—More detailed accounts are at hand about the defeat and flight of Ayooob Khan's army from about Candahar. The cavalry pursued its broken remnants for fifteen miles, and so the Afghan cause seems a lost and hopeless one.

Fourteen of the vessels of war of the European nations have arrived at Ragusa, Sicily, and others are coming, all for the purpose of frightening Turkey into keeping the stipulations of the Berlin Treaty. England, France, Germany and Russia have joined in this naval demonstration to show Turkey that they are in earnest.

President Hayes started across the continent last week and yesterday arrived at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Three murders in California yesterday, and several others, in other states of the Union.

DAVIS CITY, Iowa, Aug. 1st, 1880.

Editors Herald:—The world moveth; and so do the men and things therein. And one of the (to me) pleasing features thereof is that men in and out of the Church are beginning to rise up and assert their manhood, by bursting the bands of mental and moral bondage, shaking off those old crude ideas that have been so long cherished as the only means of salvation. Men are beginning to see that the present state of affairs in the religious world is not the result of divine appointment, but are attributing it to its legitimate cause, apostasy. To my mind there is quite a chance for improvement among the Elders of Israel in that respect, judging from an article in the last number of the Herald and also one in a recent number on eternal punishment. The same old sulphurous smell that drove me into infidelity in my younger days; the same that is driving thousands of thinking men into atheism to-day. Query? Are the claims we make to the world as to the restoration of the primitive gospel true; the grand central idea being a true conception of the God we worship? Do we mistake in our views as to his character and attributes? Will the Savior make a signal failure in the consummation of his mission? Will that big-horned, cloven-footed devil that has so long lived in the deranged imaginations of theorists finally triumph, thereby thwarting the plans of the Almighty; making void the fiat that went forth that there should be no more death? Do these advocates of eternal punishment take time to think that the term "eternal" is without beginning. It will apply to God, to intelligence, to light, to Spirit, to matter, but it will not apply to the punishment of the human race after death. Credit to whom credit is due, and therefore, Right Reverend Myron Adams; strike it again. I trust that the Saints in their growth in grace and knowledge of truth will ere long give God all the glory and the devil his due, but not the ascendancy. The more I learn of the being and attributes of my Heavenly Father, the more I love him, and the more desirous I am to introduce him to my fellow men. And while I live I shall labor with might and main to remove the stigma that has been attached to his character by modern theorists. I had thought to write quite a lengthy article on the subject of eternal punishment, but, O, body of Moses, I am too much interested in the present to write for the generation to come, and will desist, with the hope that the Elders will find something more attractive to write about than a defense of the dogma of eternal punishment. Dear Brethren Joseph and Henry:—The only apology I have to offer for the remarks herein contained is found in an editorial contained in the August 1st, 1880, number of the Herald, upon the reasons why men apostatize from the Church. Viz; "We have always believed that where men engaged in association together for the carrying on and success of which they are mutually held, discover errors and weaknesses in their order and organization that need emendation, the best and proper place to accomplish such amendment is within the pales of the association itself. * * * Cowards and hirelings, leave their posts when danger threatens." The above are my sentiments. I write nothing in malice, but only with the hope to assist in correcting what I conceive to be an error of judgment, and earnestly pray that what may be written may be done under the guiding influence of that Spirit of Truth which has made us free, for the earnest desire of my heart is that Zion may never more suffer reproach "through the sins wrought in her name." And right here I wish to say that those who have been so foolish as to withdraw from the Church for the reasons mentioned in the editorial referred to need take no unction to their souls from any remarks herein made, as I most assuredly place them in that class mentioned in the last clause of my apology. The particular part of the article referred to for my apology, and to which I wish to draw your attention is the case of the third person mentioned. It is stated that upon his offer to renew his covenant by baptism a new difficulty occurred, "It is discovered that he has no divorce from his first wife," but had married again without, and the legality of such a baptism is inquired into. The answer is "that he may (be baptized) by vote of the branch where he resides; that they (the authorities) see no good reason why he may not, and that as he was morally free from his first wife, for Scriptural cause (fornication I presume as I know no other) all that the Church could rightfully ask of him is that he should as soon as practicable obtain a legal divorce, that he may appear blameless before the law of the land, thus honoring that law." It is to this rendering that I object, and shall endeavor to show that it and the reasoning which follows are both untenable. I read in the Doctrine and Covenants, section 58, paragraph 5, "Let no man break the laws of the land, for he that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land; whereupon be subject to the powers that be." In 1 Thes. 5:22 we are also commanded to "Abstain from every appearance of evil." I am not going to claim that he was a polygamist, or that the Church by its action in the case can rightfully be accused of countenancing polygamy as it is claimed that, "He did not live with these women as his wives, at one and the same time, nor at any time recognize her from whom he had separated as his wife." But in living up to the quotation given above we must be very careful that we do not even squint at it. I am however going to contend that he was not morally free after his separation from his first wife, although it were for Scriptural cause. Free he was from her, but not free to marry another until lawfully divorced by the law of the land, which recognizes him as having two wives until that is done. And just so soon as he did marry without a divorce from the first, he committed a breach of the law, which declares him a bigamist, subject to arrest, trial and conviction under the law, and was still a bigamist subject to the law at the time he was received again into the Church, which I believe to have been an error. It is said he was "morally free," and "he had a moral right to marry again." To my mind both are inconsistent so far as his right to marry again is concerned. The law does not recognize his entire freedom from his first wife until divorced, and if he marries again without that divorce, the law of the land calls him a bigamist, a subject for the penitentiary. The law of God does not recognize his freedom to marry another without first being divorced by the law of the land, for it declares "Let no man break the law of the land * * * wherefore be subject to the powers that be." He should first have brought forth fruits meet for repentance before baptism and not afterwards, lest it should be said the Church set at naught the law of the land. "Abstain from every appearance of evil." The divorce should have been the first requirement, second remarriage, then he would have been indeed free under both laws, otherwise to my mind he was not in a fit condition to renew his covenant. But further on a comparison is made, "Suppose that one is presented for baptism who has been a thief, has indeed been convicted of theft, and once punished for it, but is free before the law of God to repent and forsake his propensity to steal." From the standpoint which I occupy I can see no parallel between the two cases. The latter was a thief before the law, was convicted for the offense under the law, and was punished by the law, and was therefore free from the law so far as that crime was concerned, therefore was free indeed to repent and enter into covenant with God that he would steal no more, and would hereafter keep all his laws and commandments. The first was a bigamist before the law subject to arrest and punishment by the law at any time, had neglected to do that which would have freed him from the law, was still living in transgression of the law, and if the law of God had been strictly complied with, should have been turned over to the authorities of the law by the Church, unless he had gone forthwith and commenced his suit for a divorce, which when obtained, and his second woman remarried, for they were certainly living in adultery until the law should be complied with, which would set him free indeed from his first wife, which in the eye of the law she certainly was until that law should be satisfied. He would then have been indeed free like the thief who had paid the penalty of his crime, and in a fit condition to have renewed his covenant with the promise that he would never again get too much married. By such a course no stigma could have been rested upon the Church, and those brethren who became offended and took the foolish course, would have had no excuse for offence. This may not be written in a scientific style, but it expresses my views. I have not written for publication unless you see proper and fit, and if my views and conclusions are wrong I shall be pleased to have them corrected, my sole desires are to soon behold a redeemed Zion, which can not be unless we purify ourselves. Trusting this may give none offence, I subscribe myself your brother in hope.

To All Saints:—I have been an invalid and cripple now for three years nearly, and for the purpose of helping myself a little, I am going to lecture this Fall on "Life in an Insane Asylum," where I have been four different times and in ten different Halls, from which I was delivered by the power of God, and by the same favor I have lived in continued enjoyment of my reason the last four years, which blessing I am assured I shall possess as long as I continue faithful. Now, believing that true charity consists in placing a person in a condition to help themselves, I ask the Saints to thus help me, by at least procuring me a place in their neighborhoods where I may lecture. I shall place the price of admission down to ten cents, so for a small pittance one can learn much of what transpires in an asylum, which they can not otherwise learn without the dread alternative of a living death. None, without being insane can penetrate the asylum veil. Now then those Saints that wish me to lecture in their districts please drop me a card, also stating at the same time what I will have to pay for a house to lecture in; and if I do not have to pay too high a price will send an appointment, with hand bills for circulation. Please state if you have any particular preference for any certain night, and I will accommodate if possible; preference will be given to rural districts till I get a little used to the work. As soon as my finances will allow, shall stand ready to accept any call from this, or adjoining states. Shall be ready to fill appointments after the first of September.

Bro. Henry A. Stebbins:—I enclose minutes of Conference and think, all things considered, that it has proven the best one I have attended since the organization of this district. Brother Lake's presence and teachings have been attended with the happiest results. Two were baptized immediately after conference, and there were indications that more would obey. He has the happy faculty of gaining the hearts of the people, while his earnest and logical exposition of the word, with that liberty of the Spirit which he is blessed with, carries conviction to the minds of his hearers. I had been much with him, and parted from him with regret. On our route here we staid over night at Grandma Califf's, who, at the age of seventy-seven years, is hale, hearty and cheerful, a true Saint. She is absorbed in this work, and has the best memory of any woman of her age I remember to have met with. She is a compendium of the latter day history, her experience extending through the Missouri and Illinois persecutions. She converses most intelligently on the gospel, and is highly esteemed by the surrounding community. You would be gratified to meet her. Her husband, (also in the Church), is eighty-three years of age, and quite infirm. We go in a few days to Bevier, and thence after a short tarry, to Hannibal. God bless you and yours, is the prayer of your brother in the gospel,

President Joseph Smith:—I arrived home on the 16th inst, from my mission to Utah. I thank my Heavenly Father that I was permitted to meet my family in the enjoyment of health, and in comfortable circumstances. I heartily thank the dear Saints in Utah, Idaho and elsewhere who aided me to return. I shall always appreciate their love and generosity as marks of approval of my efforts among them, and an endorsement of my course on that mission. I was received by them in the spirit of kindness, and I am satisfied that I left them with that love increased toward me, as was evident from their regret at my departure. For this I thank God. My labors with my fellow workmen have been of the most agreeable nature. We labored in harmony together, and I feel myself more closely endeared to them, for their unselfish demeanor and manifest love. Some of us have broken up the fallow ground, some have scattered the seed, and some have watered it, but I trust God has given the increase, be it ever so small. Our President has borne with us, and cheered us; and has become, if possible, more endeared to us by his kind and wise counsels. I know of no cause for regret while on the mission, except that I was not able to do more good. I endeavored to maintain the principles of the gospel of Christ as he revealed them. I felt my weakness, but never lacked for aid from his Almighty hand. It is true, if the good done through me as his instrument is measured by the number I baptized, it will appear small, for I baptized only one; but I have the consciousness that there were souls enlightened and comforted under my ministrations wherever I went, and I give to God the glory. I was oftentimes grieved to find how the people were bound up in their gross, sensual superstitions, their trust placed in so called apostles and prophets, fettered by the will of their leaders, yet imagining themselves free. Many of them are ignorant of the Scriptures of divine truth, and when we tried to enlighten them it was painful to hear them say, "Well, if I am deceived I don't want to know it." Again, "If you take polygamy from Mormonism there is nothing left." Thus evincing the fact that they are willing dupes to a superstition that panders to their lusts. I confess I am not as sanguine of any successful results as some are. I have tried to form a correct estimate. My travels among them have perhaps been more extensive than any of this present band of missionaries. I am aware that in some localities things seem hopeful, but generally they do not so appear to me. It may be that my discernment is at fault, but I write as I see, and I believe my brethren do the same. I earnestly pray that the most sanguine expectations may be realized. To this end I shall ever pray, God bless the Rocky Mountain Mission.

Yours in hope,

CHARLES DERRY.

Dear Herald:—It will be remembered that my name appeared in the Herald of May 1st, as being ready for a mission. In regard to my work in the ministry I have nothing to boast; not having been assigned any special field in which to labor, it became my duty as an Elder to labor locally. This I have been doing, having labored in this and Harrison county, speaking in all seventeen times, losing two appointments by rain. This will doubtless be considered a very poor report, which indeed it is. Yet taking into consideration the fact, that on the Sabbath day is the only time that the working class, especially farmers, can be got together, it will be seen that I have labored nearly every Sabbath. Of the effect of my labors I am not prepared to say. As regards preaching the gospel I can say I love it. To be in communion with Saints is the greatest pleasure that I have ever experienced outside of the influences of the Holy Spirit. To try to compare the pleasures of the dance, with its kindred amusements, to such pleasures as these, is like comparing the stagnant pool to the bright and sparkling waters. But don't think for a moment kind reader, that my few months' experience as an Elder has been naught but such pleasures as these. If you do you are thinking far from right; for I have passed through trials that were grievous to be borne. Yet these trials have been to me a witness of the truth of the gospel. Expecting to ever stand as a witness for the truth of the gospel and to be prepared to take the field assigned me by the coming Semi-Annual Conference, I remain as ever,

Yours for truth,

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Enclosed is a clipping from a paper, concerning the judgments of the last days, which I think would be of interest to the readers of the Herald. I think it deserving of study, inasmuch as it comes from those not of our faith, and it certainly bears testimony to the spirit of prophecy, which is in the Church, and to the revelations already given by the Spirit of the Lord concerning the things which shall befall the people in the last days. It also contains an admonition to the drinker of wine, by showing that he shall be the greatest sufferer, and it should cause every God fearing man and woman to admire the goodness of the Lord in giving the "Word of Wisdom," whereby a means is provided to escape from the snags and suffering which are entailed upon man by following the evil and pernicious habit of taking strong drink.

It is certain that there is a blessing in the keeping of the "Word of Wisdom" for those who observe it. Remember, therefore, the word of inspiration and let us "watch and be sober;" the voice of God speaketh in many ways.

Yours in Christ,

JOHN SMITH.

Dear Herald:—I remained a few days at Galien, Michigan, preaching, and baptized a Bro. Reese, whose conversion is due to the labors of Bro. W. H. Kelley. May 18th I went to Coldwater, where I remained until the 29th. It is said that Bro. E. C. Briggs bore the burden of the work here when it was first established, and he still lives in the hearts of the people. If this is the kind of an influence he leaves may it be my lot to follow him in other fields. May 29th and 30th was spent with the Saints in conference at Clear Lake, Indiana. I was favorably impressed with the Clear Lake Saints. The 31st I returned to Coldwater, preaching twice Sunday, June 6th. The 10th I took train for Chicago over the Michigan Central. Thus ended my short stay in the mission assigned me last Spring. My stay was too short to form a correct estimate, but I was favorably impressed. I left Chicago at noon of the 10th, and found myself, early on the morning of the 11th, at Dow City, Iowa. I visited with Bro. J. R. Lambert until afternoon, when I rode with Bro. Chauncy Williamson to Galland's Grove, the home of my boyhood, where I visited for a week, and tried to preach twice.

June 18th, 19th and 20th was spent with the Saints of Galland's Grove District in conference at Deloit. We had a pleasant time, and I enjoyed it very much. On the morning of the 21st, before taking my departure, I had the privilege of administering the ordinance of baptism to Sister Anna Randall, of Carroll City. May God grant her strength to endure. After the baptism I turned my face westward, stopped the night of the 21st with Bro. Tuck, of Dunlap, and the next morning proceeded on my way, and at dark found myself at Oakdale, six miles from home, where I remained all night. Early on the morning of the 23rd I started for home where I found all well. But, O, how changed. Since I was here my father has been called to rest in the Paradise of God.

June 26th and 27th I met with the Central Nebraska District in conference, at Newman's Grove. We had a very pleasant time, but the last hours of conference were saddened by the death of Sister Masters, who died at nine o'clock p.m., the 27th, and the next day we laid her away to rest.

I had been repeatedly told since coming from the South that I was entitled to a rest; so, for six weeks I rested; during which time I visited Newman's Grove, Columbus, Clear Water and Deer Creek, traveled about two hundred miles, preached ten times, and helped my two brothers harvest about fifty acres of grain.

So feeling quite refreshed, I again bade adieu to home and loved ones, (having had the pleasure of meeting with them but one Sunday,) and am off again on another tour, which will likely terminate at Semi Annual Conference, and who can tell when I shall be at home again, or what may be the changes ere I meet with them again. Oh were it not for our hope in Christ how could we endure the trials of life. August 6th my brother Hyrum took me to Columbus, where, on Sunday the 8th, I performed the sad duty of preaching a commemorative sermon on the death of Father Chapin, who died near Columbus, July 24th.

I remained at Columbus until the next Wednesday, visiting with the Saints, during which Bro. Charles Derry arrived on his return from his mission to the Salt Land. Central Nebraska is languishing for want of laborers. Bro. Galley as president, has labored faithfully, Bro. G. S. Hyde and my brother Hyrum have labored some with good effect of late. August 15th and 16th found me engaged with the Saints of Southern Nebraska District, at South Bend. The attendance was small, but everything passed off pleasantly. Three were baptized by Bro. R. M. Elvin. On the 17th, in company with Brn. Levi Anthony and R. M. Elvin came to this place and at night Bro. Robert spoke to a large audience at Stove Creek school house. The next day the brethren passed on en route for Blue River, and I have been preaching to full houses ever since. I think good has been done. Last night a Christian minister by the name of Alton reviewed me, and O, such a review! Only a rehash of what we have heard so much, and would be uninteresting to your readers. We were nearer like them than any other church, but were trying to deceive the people. I will reply to him to-night.

I regretted very much to hear of the action of Elder J. A. Crawford, both for his sake and the mission to which he was assigned, but he has gone out under circumstances which will test his honesty. He had just received money from the Bishop to take him south, and if he is an honest man, and has honestly changed his opinion, he will return it. I am anxious to see the result.

I will go from here to visit my uncle at Rockport, Missouri, via Nebraska City, thence to Semi Annual Conference, and then—. I am interested in the cause, and am ready to cast in my little mite wherever the Master calls. Praying that God may inspire his people with greater devotion and zeal for the cause, I am as ever,

HEMAN C. SMITH.

TAYLOR, Texas,

Dear Herald:—In 1858 I embraced the gospel in all good faith with a people calling themselves Christians. I remained with them until 1877, when I began to see that we were not taking the word for the man of our counsel, and when I went to our learned men about the matter, they told me that the gifts and blessings as promised in the Word are not necessary to this people; and with many other unreasonable and unscriptural arguments, they tried to satisfy me; but all in vain. In the latter part of 1878, Bro. A. J. Cato made his appearance in our country, preached a series of discourses, baptized three and passed on South. In the year 1879, Bro. Bozarth came, preached several times, baptized quite a number, organized a branch of fourteen members; since then there have been others baptized, amounting in all to twenty-five, of which two have been expelled leaving twenty-three to bear testimony. We meet twice a week for worship, and it pleases the Father to bless us with the blessings as promised in the Scriptures, such as the gift of tongues, interpretation of tongues, the spirit of prophesy, the gift of healing, and when we have had our names cast out as evil and denied the privilege of worshipping in a house that is as much ours as any ones, "we have been able to count it all joy;" and thank the Lord for the light which is revealed through the gospel of the Son of God; which leads men from darkness to light. May God bless all who have taken up their cross, that they may bear it meekly and endure to the end.

Your brother in hope,

B. L. BILLINGSBEY.

Bro. Henry:—Some months ago I asked the prayers of the Saints through the Herald for my brother Edwin. I wish to thank all who prayed for him, for he is perfectly recovered in body and mind, and is at home. There are five members of the Church here. I am a priest, and we meet to worship God. We enjoy much of the Spirit in our sacrament meetings, and each one strives to be valiant in the testimony of Jesus. (Doctrine and Covenants, Sec. 76, page 214.) I have purchased a little home here, and as soon as I can get it payed for I will go and tell others the good story, as it was told to me, and especially by Bro. D. S. Crawley, who preached the first Latter Day Saint sermon that I ever heard. His text was 1 Cor. 12:21-23. I thank God that I went to hear, for now I have a knowledge that this work is of God. The many manifestations of his power and love that I have witnessed in the five years of my membership would make a large book. My heart is in the great work, and I long to help show the honest the great jewel of truth and the love of God. Pray for me that God may give me wisdom and understanding.

Your brother in the covenant,

WM. N. DAWSON.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins:—I inform you of my labors since our May conference. I have traveled through Schuylkill, Dauphin, Northumberland, Carbon, Columbia, Montour, Luzerne and Lackawanna counties, endeavoring to find out the scattered and strayed members. I found some of the old-time Saints, who showed me every respect, but who do not at present fell any desire to return. I set before them the sad position they are in, and tried to persuade them to renew their covenant, and some promised to take the matter into consideration. I also distributed many tracts, and I pray that honest souls may be led to obey the gospel. I have traveled on foot over a rough and mountainous country, one hundred and sixty-seven miles. I have baptized four, and think to baptize two more soon. Numbers are investigating, and I hope they will be led to do what is right; I leave the matter in the Lord's hands, knowing that in his own time all things will be accomplished. I am glad to inform you that this district is improving, and in a much better condition than for some time, both officers and members trying to do their duty. I am on my way to conference.

Your brother,

JOHN EDMUND.

President Wyoming District.

ELKADER, Iowa,

August 23rd, 1880.

Joseph:—Some of the points of your welcome letter I will note in brief. As I have said: The office of Patriarch is an appendage to the Priesthood. If such were not, why was this office appointed by revelation through your father in the church organized by him. That the Book of Mormon, or the New Testament is silent on this question is no evidence that this office does not belong in the Church of Christ. All the truisms in the world are not found written in the Book of Mormon nor in the New Testament. Yet in the New Testament this evangelical order is spoken of; see Ephesians. Joseph, the prophet, said that an evangelist was a patriarch. This order of the ministry can be traced down from Adam to the apostles' days; but I do not deem it necessary in this writing, as modern revelation and example do not require it. If there are any in the Church who could have premature pain over the introduction of this office in the Church, it would only prove that such persons might not be of the true "faith of God's elect," and although the Book of Doctrine and Covenants may not be explicit in command to appoint this office in the Church; there is no law of God written that commands procrastination in organizing a gospel church; especially where the means are on hand to do it with as in the present case. You say further, "That there has not been much talk about blessings." To this I reply, faith becomes by hearing the word of God. The world for thousands of years would have been ignorant of the gospel if it had not been preached to them; and unless this subject of the Patriarchate is agitated in the Church, who can tell when these blessings might be called for, "To-day is the day of salvation, and not to-morrow." So the Good Book says, and there is no time in the Church when blessings from God are not in order. 1st. Now, as to the duties and prerogatives of a patriarch. It is his duty to bestow blessings upon the Church, as he shall be dictated by the revelation of the Spirit of God. It is by this means that those who received their patriarchal blessings are told from what tribe in Israel they have descended; whether of Judah, Joseph, Ephraim, Manasseh, Reuben, Levi, or Dan. For all Israel are to receive their inheritance by lot, when Christ comes to dwell on the earth in the midst of his Church and people. The preaching of the gospel, and the placing all of the officers in the Church in order, is a preparatory work to Christ's coming. 2nd. As to the prerogatives. A patriarch holds no prerogative that is not subject to the council of the First Presidency of the Church. He is a kind of auxiliary to the presidency and can be called upon to sit in council at any time when deemed proper so to do, on all questions affecting the general interest of the Church. 3rd. As a High Priest, his locality would be with them unless otherwise appointed by special command from God. 4th. The duties of this office of patriarch partakes much of the nature of an itinerant minister, as he is patriarch to the whole Church, hence may travel among the Saints, everywhere performing his duty, confirming the Saints in the faith of this latter day work; preaching, teaching and expounding the scriptures to them, as the Spirit of God might direct. If there are any in the Church who hold high positions, that should oppose the patriarchal order, I hope that they will not be so unthoughtful of their former allegiance as to charge falsehood and humbug upon the patriarchs, Joseph and Hyrum Smith, who held this office in the Church that was organized by Joseph Smith, the Martyr.

I have now written all that I deem important at present, and should the occasion require it; if I write again, I shall examine this question more closely. I will remark also, that I desire much to hear from the ministry of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints on this question, and if I am in error, I will be glad to see the light. My belief is that this office of patriarch is an office that belongs in the Church of Christ, and without it the Church is not perfected in its organization.

Most respectfully,

WILLIAM B. SMITH.

CORLAND, Ills., August 24th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph.—Sunday last my heart was made to rejoice while listening to two able discourses upon the first principles of the gospel, delivered in DeKalb by Bro. G. F. Weston, assisted by Bro. Warby of Shabbona. Bro. Weston had good liberty, being assisted (as I believe) by the Good Spirit in both his efforts. Congregation on each occasion some forty-five or upwards, with first-rate attention; and I trust that good was done. At any rate the cause of Christ has suffered nothing from Bro. Weston's labors in DeKalb. To God be all the praise. In our evening meeting we were honored with the presence of the Baptist clergyman in charge of a congregation in the city, and by the attention that he paid I think that he got some things to meditate on. He is counted a very able man, and I think a zealous and good man; and may the Good Spirit that aided Bro. Weston seal the conviction of what was said in defense of the glorious gospel of Christ upon all the honest in heart. Yes, and may the same Good Spirit be and abide with Bro. Weston till the end of his ministerial labor on earth, is the prayer of

W. R. CALHOON.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 25, 1880.

Bro. Stebbins.—I left home on August 21st, for Hornerstown, New Jersey, to attend our district conference, and to my surprise and delight met with Elder J. C. Foss from Maine. We placed him in the chair and proceeded with our conference business, and at 2 p.m. we held a sacrament and testimony meeting. We had a rejoicing season together; all present bore testimony to the truth, and the spirit of prophecy was in our midst. At 3 p.m. Elder Foss preached an excellent sermon, also another at 7:30 p.m. Those people are a good people and willing to do right; may God bless them in so doing. Our next conference will be held at Brooklyn, New York, November 27th and 28th.

Love to you and all in the office.

JOHN STONE.

PLYMOUTH, Pa., Aug. 31, 1880.

Brethren Joseph and Henry.—Our conference of August 28th and 29th was a refreshing time to us. The Spirit of the Lord was with us. Bro. Hiram Robinson has led another through the waters of baptism, a good man. Bro. Robinson is beloved by all the Saints, and all speak of him as a humble, earnest servant of the Lord. When we were weak he has helped to make us strong, and we pray that the Lord will give him strength to endure the great trials and temptations the servants of the Lord are called to bear.

Your sister in the gospel,

MARY A. JONES.

Conference Minutes.

ENGLISH MISSION.

A conference was held in Manchester, England, May 15th and 16th, 1880; Thomas Taylor, president; C. H. Caton, secretary.

District Reports.—Birmingham, John Seville, president, stated that some parts of the district are in good order and doing a fair amount of labor; in other parts there is a lack of energy. He hoped to continue to labor in the Master's cause. Manchester, Joseph Dewsnap, president, stated that the district was not in so good a condition as he could wish; there is a lack of duty on the part of branch officers, though the brethren for the most part, are going on in a very fair manner. London, by Bro. C. D. Norton, president, stated that the district is in an excellent condition. The difficulties that existed in London have given place to a better feeling, and peace and concord reign throughout the district. Some young men who are able to present the gospel of Christ in a proper manner, are doing good service.

A letter from Bro. G. Chambers, president of Penston Branch, was read, also one from J. R. Gibbs, president of Welsh Mission.

Committee of investigation into an ordination in the London Branch reported that, from the evidence, they concluded that the ordination in question took place by order of the branch, and according to the rules and order of the Church, and it was therefore valid. This judgment they delivered to the London Branch, who accepted it and followed out certain suggestions made by the committee, with good results. C. H. Caton, H. C. Crump, Jos. Dewsnap, Jos. Gilbert, C. H. Hassall.

Report received and committee discharged. Brother Thomas Taylor vacated the chair in order to give a verbal report of the Publication Committee, and Bro. John Seville was called to preside.

Brother Thomas Taylor, chairman of the committee, spoke of the difficulties in the way, as well as the misfortunes they had met by reason of sickness in the family of one of their number, and the return to America of another, (Bro. Gilbert); also another one had attended but two meetings of the committee. Estimates of cost had been made by several printers, but there were difficulties connected with even the most favorable of the propositions received. He had endeavored to call a meeting three weeks before the conference, but some of the committee had thought it useless and so no meeting was had. Personally he did not see the way clear to publish a periodical in this mission at present, and therefore could not advise embarking in the undertaking, although had the committee, as a whole or the majority of them, taken other steps he would have assisted them.

Brother H. C. Crump, of the committee, said that he was sorry that the committee had done nothing towards publishing. Like the others he had also been at considerable trouble, had interviewed printers and obtained estimates, had obtained a list of the type necessary, and had also written an appeal and a prospectus. He was sorry that they had not continued, and hoped that the conference would go on with the work.

Brother C. H. Caton said that he had, so far as possible, actively engaged himself in getting information; had obtained estimates, and, having had some experience in such matters he knew something of the details in getting a periodical started and established; and, after investigation, and having gone carefully through the plans presented and proposed, he had come to the conclusion that the whole scheme was premature. For, while acknowledging the necessity for such a publication, he considered it to be impracticable at present, and if the conference desired to go on with it he wished to be released from the committee.

Several questions were asked and answered by the committee, through the president, and the statements of Brn. Taylor, Crump and Caton were received as an informal report of the committee, and the committee was discharged.

Conference proceeded to consider the report, and opened the whole question of a periodical.

After several unsuccessful attempts to dispose of the matter the following prevailed:

Whereas this conference is of the opinion that the time has arrived for the publishing of a representative paper in the interest of the English Mission, it is hereby Resolved that a committee be appointed to take into consideration the best means of establishing such periodical; and that the committee be empowered to commence its publication as soon as they deem it advisable.

The following brethren were appointed as the committee: H. C. Crump, Jos. Dewsnap, — Newstead, C. D. Norton, Thos. Bradshaw, C. H. Hassall and G. S. Greenwood.

The Mission secretary's report was presented and received.

Report of Thomas Taylor as Bishop's Agent, as sent to Bishop I. L. Rogers up to March 1st, 1880, (see the Bishop's accounts in the Herald), was presented and received.

A report was received from the Birmingham Dorcas Society, showing that the sisters of that branch are doing a good work. They organized July 22d, 1879, and had done a great amount of sewing, resulting in both temporal and spiritual good to the members. They have also made and presented to the branch four baptismal costumes, two for ladies and two for gentlemen. Sister T. Taylor, president.

Three propositions from the Manchester Branch were not considered because of lack of time, but will be brought forward at the next conference.

Authorities of the Church in America, in their proper order and offices, were sustained.

In the afternoon Brn. C. H. Caton and G. S. Greenwood occupied the stand, and in the evening Brn. H. C. Crump and C. D. Norton. There was a fair attendance and good attention.

Adjourned sine die.

FLORIDA DISTRICT.

Miscellaneous.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA DISTRICT.

Dear Saints, greeting:—In the love of Christ our Master do we greet you in gospel bonds. Having passed over the entire district, and carefully noted the spiritual condition, we have a few words of encouragement and advice to give. We most earnestly request of all those who shall visit Plattsmouth, that they hold nor attempt to hold any meetings, till they first consult the president of said branch. We believe that this rule would work for good throughout the district. By observation and enquiry we learn that much of the ill feeling in branches, and the cause of their lukewarmness is the result of a non-interchange of views upon the part of the branch officers; therefore let us in love plead and urge upon all officers to get into a deeper and closer union, one with the other. Be free to counsel and advise with each other, for your own and the Saints' best weal.

"Keep back no words of knowledge
That human hearts should know."

Be one in action for the best interest of truth's cause, and the Lord, who is rich in blessing, will not pass you by.

And to all the Saints, let us advise moderation in your talk about one another, for a word may wound so deep that it may take years to heal the suffering one, if still not worse the result of harsh and unkind expressions prove. "A mild answer turneth away wrath." Some of the Saints are guilty of running after the follies and vanities of the world, thereby lessening our and their influence for good, causing great loss to themselves, viz., the loss of the Holy Spirit, for the light of God will not abide with those whose minds are filled with and craving for the trashy amusements of the ungodly world. Again, it is a financial loss both to the Saints and the Church; it is a shame for Saints to spend their money, time and the use of teams, in satisfying vanity, and then excuse themselves that they are too poor to take the Herald, or to give anything to keep the Elders. We hope the time is not far distant, when it can be truthfully said, "Wisdom is justified of her children." For your salvation and the fair name of the Church, be wise and prudent, sacrifice the desires of the heart, crucify the will of the flesh, that the divine life may grow and increase, unto the unfolding of eternal life shall be your sure reward.

The prospect for accomplishing a good work in the district was never better. Many new and inviting openings in almost every county in the district, some Saint lives, and the people are willing to hear; therefore we request you to seek the good of the work in this portion of the vineyard, that the word may be declared in every opportune place; and if you will manifest your works by your faith, the result will be glorious. Consecrate unto the Church as the Lord has blessed you in the earthly possessions, it mattereth not whether it be little or much, give freely, and see if the Lord will fulfill his promise. (Mal. 3:10). Send your (tithes) freewill offerings to Bro. J. W. Waldsmith, Nebraska City, Nebraska, and we can assure you that your means will be wisely used for the best interest of the work. And in conclusion, we humbly pray that God in his mercy may guide you into wisdom's path, that peace, unity and love may continue and abide. Amen.

LEVI ANTHONY, President,

ROBT M. ELVIN, Secretary.

WILBER, Neb., Sept. 1st, 1880.

KENT AND ELGIN DISTRICT.

A conference of the above district will be held in the Buckhorn Branch, convening at 10 o'clock, on Saturday, October 2d, 1880. All the branches in the district are respectfully requested to report their standing. All the officers and members are respectfully invited to attend. Come, bringing the Spirit of love and peace with you; so that all may work harmoniously together for the good of the cause of Christ. RICHARD COBURN, Dist. Clerk.
ROND EAU, Ontario, August 23d, 1880.

PITTSBURG DISTRICT.

The next quarterly district conference will be held at Lampsville, Belmont county, Ohio, commencing October 2d, 1880, at 2 o'clock p. m.

JAMES BROWN, President.

NOTICES.

The Red River Branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints wishes to know the address of Bro. J. O. Stewart, and request that he correspond with Bro. B. L. Billingsley, immediately on seeing this request.

B. L. BILLINGSLEY, President of Branch.

ADDRESSES.

Josiah Ells, Warnock, Belmont county, Ohio.

THERE are two or three Latter Day Saints at Beaver who have placed their names on the Hancock list, thus endorsing the party who in 1838 sent the militia to Far West. The Mormons of the eastern portion of the country had concentrated there and entrenched themselves in a mill and blacksmith shop, where the militia numbering one hundred and twenty-five, attacked them. One militia man was wounded and eighteen Mormons killed, some of them after surrender, and their bodies thrown into a well. Some of the Mormon leaders were tried for various offences—those tried were acquitted, and the indictments dismissed against all the others. In connection of the removal and according to the terms of surrender, there were many terrible scenes. Many of the Mormons were poor, and had invested their all in lands, from which they were driven. Valuable farms were traded for an old wagon, a horse, a yoke of oxen, or anything that would furnish means of transportation. In many instances, conveyances of land were demanded and enforced at the muzzle of the pistol or rifle. Yes, they were driven from Missouri by Democrats who were then in power. The Saints went to Nauvoo, Illinois, where they built a beautiful temple. In 1844 the Democrats of Illinois drove them out, destroyed their temple and city, murdered their prophet; men, women and children had to cross Iowa as best they could in winter, their line of march could be traced with blood and graves, at last they reached Council Bluffs, where some of them have stayed to this day, from there they went to Utah. When we read this history is it not a wonder to see any of the Saints Democrats? Take your names off, gents, for consistency is a jewel.—Macon Republican of Aug. 26.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice.

BORN.

GOULDSMITH.—Near South Bend, Cass county, Nebraska, February 16th, 1880, to Bro. Joseph B. and Sr. Emma Gouldsmith, a son. Blessed Aug. 16th, 1880, by Elder Robert M. Elvin; and named Alma.

DIED.

MORGAN.—At Bevier, Missouri, August 18th, 1880, of cholera morbus, after nine days of suffering, sister Ann Morgan, aged 61 years, 2 months and 14 days. She first obeyed the gospel at Aberdare, Wales, in 1849; emigrated to Pennsylvania with her family in 1863, intending to go to Utah, but reaching Council Bluffs she became disgusted with what she learned and saw of the deeds of the Utah people, and returned to Pennsylvania, where, in 1864, she was baptized into the Reorganized Church, by Elder W. W. Blair. But, being away from the fellowship of the Saints for ten years afterwards, she felt in her conscience to be re-baptized, which was attended to by Elder John Stone, at Bethlehem, Pa. She lived the life of a Saint; the cause of Christ was hers always. Funeral sermon by Elder J. H. Lake.

Oh! mother, dear, we miss thee,
Since thou hast gone to rest,
To wait the resurrection,
And gloriously be blest;
When Christ and his disciples,
On this terrestrial ball,
You with his own will hail him,
And crown him Lord of all.

ELLIOTT.—At Jefferson Creek, Park county, Colorado, August 11th, 1880, John Elliott, son of Silas and Sr. Elizabeth Elliott, of inflammatory rheumatism. His remains were buried at Hutchinson, Jefferson county, on Friday, 13th. Service by Elder James Caffall. His parents had fondly hoped a continuance of his life, and are sorrow-stricken through the loss of their darling boy. He lived in mortality and suffered much for upwards of ten years, and doubtless rests with the just.

BUXTON.—At Caseyville, Illinois, July 29th, 1880, sister Alice, wife of Bro. James Buxton. She was born August 22d, 1845, in the town of Marshallfold, Cheshire, England; came to America September 17th, 1871; was baptized April 25th, 1877; by D. W. Davis. Her age 35 years, 3 months and 4 days. She leaves a husband and four dear little children. She was a kind wife and mother, and a good member of the Church of God. We mourn her loss. She gave her testimony a few moments before she departed, that the work was true. Funeral sermon by Elder George Hicklin, from Rev. 14: 13.

LEWIS.—At Caseyville, St. Clair county, Illinois, July 22d, 1880, sister Ann Lewis, aged 63 years, 4 months and 9 days. She was afflicted for many years, but she died firm in the faith of God's work. She was the wife of Bro. Morgan Lewis, who was killed in a coal mine nearly seven years ago. She was a good sister. The family are three young men. Funeral sermon by Elder George Hicklin.

SALISBURY.—At Fountain Green, Hancock Co., Illinois, Friday, August 20th, 1880, of wounds received from a knife in the hands of Thomas Duff, Bro. Alvin Salisbury, son of Aunt Catherine Salisbury, oldest surviving sister of Joseph and Hyrum. He was born in Missouri, June 7th, 1837, and was at his death forty three years old. He was buried by the Life Insurance Association, of which he was a member, Elder Walker pronouncing the funeral discourse. He leaves a wife and children.

EDDLEMAN.—On July 25th, 1880, Sr. Eva V., wife of J. J. Eddleman, Esq., died in the city of Santa Barbara, Cal., after a painful and lingering illness of more than two years. Sr. Eddleman was born in San Jose, Santa Clara county, of this State, on the 11th of November, 1853, her parents John and Rachel Austin, being among the pioneers of this state. She received her education partly in the State of Texas and partly at Castorville, in Monterey county. On the 23d day of September, 1869, she was married to her present bereaved husband. Their married life was one of unclouded happiness. In the latter part of the year 1873, she and her husband removed to Guadalupe, in this county, and it was there she was best known and most highly appreciated; and her death leaves a place in the society of that village never to be filled, and until memory fails the people of that community, she will hold a place in their brightest and happiest recollections. Sr. Eddleman was a lady of more than ordinary culture, especially in music, and ever held an enviable position in which she moved. She was ever willing to devote her time and talents to any commendable object, and many of the social organizations of Guadalupe owe their existence and prosperity to her genius and energy. She has left the world with the proud satisfaction of its being better by her life, and sadder by her death.

JONES.—Sister Mary Jones, wife of Bro. David I. Jones, at Mottsville, Nevada, after a lingering illness, June 12th, 1880, aged 59 years; born in Glamorganshire, Wales; baptized September 20th, 1868, by W. W. Blair. God has given her the desire of her heart, a peaceful rest in Jesus.

THOMAS.—At his home, Lucas, Iowa, at 1 p m, June 6th, 1880, of hemorrhage of the lungs, Thomas T. Thomas. He was born at Pontybarwm, Carmanthanshire, South Wales, July 2d, 1837. He went to Utah in 1867, but returned from there in 1871, and united with the Reorganized Church, and ever bore a faithful testimony. He leaves a wife and six children.

ELLS.—On the morning of the 26th of August, passed from mortality to mingle with the spirits of the just, Eliza, the wife of Bro. Josiah Ells; born in England, June 7th, 1806. She was baptized in the Fall of 1838, in upper Freehold township, Monmouth County, New Jersey, by Elder Benjamin Winchester, was among the first fruits of his labor. She received the work gladly, and in reading the Book of Mormon, and the visions in the Doctrine and Covenants, the manifestation of the spirit in evidence of their divinity, was of that vivid and positive character that amid all the tribulations of life and the Church, she never doubted the evidence she at the first received, nor the divine authenticity of the latter day work. Quiet and studious in her demeanor, she became thoroughly acquainted with the latter day doctrines, and whenever opportunity presented she was unflinching in their advocacy, as the gospel of salvation by Jesus Christ. And in the spirit with which she urged their claims few persons for the moment could resist. She retained her consciousness to the last, and without a struggle or a groan she fell asleep. JOSIAH ELLS.

Salvation for All.

ESSAYING to write upon this subject, I deem it no small task. Should I step over the bounds, would I be tried for heresy? Is it heresy to believe in the greatness of God's love, mercy and justice? What soul is there among us so small, so wonderfully contracted and wrapped up in self, as to exclude everybody from God's kingdom but their "blessed self?" O, self! who art thou? I deem it a difficult and tangled concern to cry "heresy," in this "age of reason." If any person can not agree with this article, we are open to conviction.

"Repeat the story o'er and o'er,
Of grace so full and free;
I love to hear it more and more,
Since grace has rescued me."

Jesus said: "But I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."—Jno. 12: 32.

All men will be saved. The blood of Christ cleanses no man from sin, save those who comply with the conditions upon which said forgiveness was promised. We hear an expression made use of, and thrown out among sinners like this: "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son will cleanse you from all sin." This is an improper way of handling God's word. John says this, in writing to the church: "If we walk in the light, as he [God] is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of his Son Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin." The gospel of Christ is a means established by which mankind who comply therewith may receive pardon for their sins, escape future punishment, and be saved in the "highest glory." "Through his name should remission [forgiveness or pardon] of sin to be preached unto all the world." His "blood was shed for the remission of sins for many"—not all, you notice, but many. A man may believe, repent, [reform], then be baptized for remission of sins. This is the means. The sins are pardoned, cancelled in the act of baptism; not that baptism is the only means of pardon, but it becomes the means, by virtue of Christ's blood—it was "shed for the remission of sins."

Here we notice the wisdom and propriety of this plan. A person might be baptized an hundred times, yet "without the shedding of blood, there is no remission." Again, the blood was shed for the remission of sins, nevertheless baptism must be complied with, and that authoritatively, ere the promise of cancelled sin can be granted. Hence, baptism must be administered in the proper way as the grand symbol of the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus. For as the blood was shed for sin's remission, so must we emblematically die unto sin. Baptism becomes the sign of the covenant made between one's self and God, to the effect that you are entitled to the cleansing efficacy of the "shed blood of Christ." Laying on of hands is the finality of the matter, the seal affixed to the covenant by which the whole act is made valid, and a person receives full title to the rights and privileges of the kingdom. We claim, therefore, that there is no blood of Christ to smuggle a man's iniquity under, as some skeptics assert.

Moreover, aside from this, every individual who complies not with the conditions, must suffer punishment for all his transgressions of God's holy laws. The "blood" does not affect them, only the resurrection of Christ and his conquering of the prison's power of retention.

THE PRISON, OR PIT.

"They shall bring thee down to the pit." "I made the nations shake at the sound of his fall when I cast him down to hell with them that descend into the pit."

Where is the pit? "For as Jonah was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." "Now that he ascended, what is it but that he also descended first into the lower parts of the earth."

PRISONERS TO BE VISITED BY CHRIST AND OBTAIN COMFORT.

"And they shall be gathered together * * * and shall be shut up in the prison, and after many days shall they be visited." "Pharaoh shall see them, and shall be comforted over all his multitude." Some people tell us there is no sign of comfort in hell, no hope for any good thing. I do not believe it; for here is Pharaoh comforted in the prison. We are told there are no good nor holy thoughts enter the minds of the condemned, yet we read of the rich man giving expression to a most noble desire, and offering a prayer in hell. God said of Jesus: "I the Lord have called thee * * * to open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison-house." "That thou mayest say to the prisoners, Go forth; he hath sent me to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound." "They that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light [of Christ] shined."

DID CHRIST GO?

"Hell from beneath is moved for thee, to meet thee at thy coming: it stirreth up the dead [departed spirits] for thee." "For Christ also hath suffered for sin, the just for the unjust, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit, that he might bring us to God; by which [Spirit and power] also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison." "For, for this cause was the gospel preached also them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, and live in the spirit according to the will of God."

We ask the question why was this done, viewing the matter further? "That at the name of Jesus every knee should [shall] bow, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." "For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God."

Inasmuch as there are people who have never heard of the name of Jesus, and there also have been millions in the past who never did, we ask with Paul: "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe on him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher?" Inasmuch as men will be condemned (placed in a lower glory) for not believing in Christ, and millions have never heard of him authoritatively, consequently could not believe, how could God, in justice, condemn them without having given them an opportunity? Hence the goodness of God in sending the spirit of Jesus, while Jesus' body was in the tomb, to preach to those spirits in captivity. The Psalmist prophesied of Christ and his mission to the prison: "Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive, thou hast received gifts for men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them." Paul tells us of the fulfillment of this: "Wherefore, * * * when he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts to men." One says he received them for men, the other states that he, faithful to his mission, gave the gifts away.

We hear people say that Christ conquered death, hell and the grave. In order to do so, Christ must die, spirit and body, separate and reunite; his spirit must go to the prison or hell, and open its doors, break its power to retain the spirits; and this is why hell was moved to meet Christ at his coming, for Satan well knew the mission of Jesus, and that he would enter the portals of hell as its last great conqueror. Had Satan the power to have retained Christ's spirit the plan of salvation could not have been carried out. Had he power to retain in hell the spirits therein, the resurrection of millions could not have taken place. But, thank God, Jesus conquered hell, death and the grave; coming out of hell, lifting his body from the tomb, reuniting spirit and body, he gloriously and most wondrously gained the victory. Hence, in the judgment day every man shall be rewarded. Every one who obeyed not the gospel will be punished for their sins by confinement in God's great prison. when the demands of divine justice are satisfied the prisoner must and shall be released, and receive his reward in a glory-world. Jesus has the way opened for all, every person in their sphere and order. Jesus came to destroy the works of the devil; and it matters not where those words are to be found, for so far must Christ's redeeming power extend, otherwise his mission will have proven a failure, as many believe it already has.

Punishment in the future can not be eternal in its duration. We must take into consideration how certain terms are used, and their proper application and all connected with them. A certain ordinance established in Israel, we are told should be an "everlasting statute;" yet it ended when Christ came. (Lev. 17:34). Exodus 21:6, only lasted a natural life time. Jonah said that the bars of the earth compassed him about "forever;" and it was only three days and nights. Jude said that Sodom and Gomorrah suffered the vengeance of eternal fire," yet I do not suppose the conflagration lasted a half day. In Ps. 9:17, we read of the wicked being turned into hell, but it does not say they shall remain there absolutely forever, nor "forever;" for we read in Rev. 20:13, that hell delivers up its dead, and then death and hell also are to be destroyed, and we do not read that God was to make another hell; and just so surely as hell ever possesses one soul "forever" in the strictest sense, then just so surely will the mission of Christ have proven a failure in part at least; notwithstanding the all important fact that the Bible says he went to set them free, every one of them, and to destroy Satan's power. We read that some shall be cast into everlasting punishment, we nowhere read that they shall eternally stay there. Jesus said, "In my Father's house are many mansions." Paul speaks of three in 1 Cor. 15:40, 41. These mansions, or worlds, are for some use. They are glory worlds for all earth's children. Thank the Lord for a "perfect salvation."

"And oh, what rapture it will be,
With all the host above,
To sing through all eternity
The wonders of his love."

An Answer.

ANSWER to Mr. T. F. Stafford's question, as found in the Herald of September 1st, 1880.

The Lord Jesus referred to King Herod, as the man who "had the greater sin." Both Pilate and Herod were guilty, for neither of them had found any fault in him; but inasmuch as Christ was known to be a Galilean and belonged to Herod's jurisdiction, and had been previously sent to Herod by Pilate for trial, and Herod, instead of acquitting him as he should, "mocked him with his men of war," by arraying him in a gorgeous robe and sent him again to Pilate. "And in that same day Pilate and he were made friends; for before they were at enmity." Pilate knew he would have no power to crucify or release Jesus, only as the power was given into his hands by one who held jurisdiction above him. If Mr. S. would ask why the greater sin belonged to Herod, the answer would be, Because he did not set him at liberty, instead of sending him thus gorgeously arrayed to Pilate for another mock trial. And this, too, for the low purpose of settling one of his own difficulties.

Who can not see it to be a greater sin, after Pilate had sent him to the king for trial, finding no fault in him, nor yet Herod, as Pilate afterwards stated? What excuse had he for sending him back to Pilate, the Governor? Shame on such a ruler!

But a still greater sin will rest on those priests and elders who insisted on his crucifixion, after both of those rulers had found no fault with him worthy of death; and therefore resolved to set him at liberty. The minds of the great mass of the people had become infuriated by the current of prejudice put afloat by the instrumentality of those religious teachers, whom the Savior had reproved as a set of hirelings that cared not for the sheep. Those were they who, "wagged their heads," saying, "He saved others, but himself he can not save." This idea was their great hobby. "He saved others." As much as to say he was an impostor or false prophet. The hireling priests of modern times are quite like them. If these do not openly beat the drum at the head of mobs; behind the curtain, they may be seen blowing the bellows. These are they who "have gone in the way of Cain," as Jude says, "ran greedily after the error of Baalam," and must finally perish "in the gainsaying of Korah." And what was that but the denying of all priesthood, save such as men assume; by taking the honor to themselves, as the man Korah once before set the example, and went suddenly down alive into hell, with all who followed him. And who now will imagine that no such danger awaits these present day Cainites, Baalamites and Korahites; whose whole number, when included in one body, counts 666, the "Antichrist, or man of sin." "Let the mind that hath wisdom count the number of the beast, for it is that of a man." Yes, that very man without the wedding garment. J. S. C.

Tithing.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE HERALD,

Dear Sirs:—Whereas it seems impossible to get the majority of the Saints to see the necessity of abiding the tithing law; hence the stagnation of the work. We see the most of our most efficient Elders compelled to leave the field to supply the wants of those that are, or should be most near and dear to them. Now, to evade to some extent this embarrassment, I wish to submit the following ideas for your consideration; to wit. I propose to organize a life protective association, to be known as the Latter Day Saints' Protective Association, to be organized into divisions of one thousand each, each member to pay a fee of five dollars, and if found practicable I think there could be at least five divisions in the Church; which would make a capital stock of $25,000. Let this be invested in land, as cheap as possible, near some location of the Church and all put into cultivation with suitable buildings for tenants; then let brethren that are now renting of the world have the land at a reasonable rent; that rent to be put into the hands of the Bishop to be used in lieu of tithing for the benefit of the Church. By this means a good many poor brethren would be furnished with permanent homes and a large sum for the ministry would be raised from the rents. Now as an inducement to carry this plan into effect, I propose in the event of the death of any members of the association to pay to their family or friends, the sum of $1,000; to be raised by a direct tax on each member of the division to which they belonged, which would not exceed $1.10 to each member, if each division was full. And should there be a deficiency from any cause in raising the required amount, let it be paid by the Bishop from the rents of the aforesaid lands. By this plan the friends of all deceased members would be made comfortable and no one would feel their loss, making it the cheapest life insurance ever got up; and no one to speculate from it. Every dollar invested would be retained in the Church, which we are by the laws of nature and the covenant bound to assist, bringing us as near on an equality in this respect as anything that I can devise.

Now should this meet your approval, make such disposition of it as you may think best to carry it into effect. Respectfully yours,

W. C. MATHEWS.

Review of "B."

RAIN, mud and water, have kept me from attending a two day's meeting, as previously arranged. I have concluded to improve a portion of the day, by reviewing a portion of a sermon, that I heard preached not long since, and which does not agree with the teachings of the Holy Scriptures. The preacher I will call "B.," read a portion of the twelfth chapter of Revelations. He said that the "woman clothed with the sun, etc., was the church of God; that she was persecuted because of the power of the priesthood that was in her; that this was what caused her pains; that she was delivered of the priesthood, (which was the cause of her pains), for God took it (the priesthood), to heaven."

At the very first of this chapter it says, "And there appeared a great sign in heaven, in the likeness of things on the earth." And in the seventh verse we have an explanation of the "woman and the man child that was to rule all nations with a rod of iron." "And the dragon prevailed not against Michael, neither the child, nor the woman which was the church of God, who had been delivered of her pains, and brought forth the kingdom of God and his Christ," which thing the Church is now laboring to do.

I fail to find in any of the books that God ever had, or ever declared that he would take the priesthood from the earth; but, to the contrary, it is declared in the Doctrine and Covenants, section 81, paragraph 3, "Therefore, thus saith the Lord unto you, with whom the priesthood hath continued through the lineage of your fathers, for ye are lawful heirs, according to the flesh, and have been hid from the world with Christ in God:—therefore your life and the priesthood hath remained, and must needs remain through you and your lineage, until the restoration of all things spoken by the mouths of all the holy prophets since the world began." Also, Doctrine and Covenants, section 83, paragraph 2, "Which priesthood continueth in the church of God in all generations."

Neither do we learn that the gospel has ever been taken from the earth, or ever shall be. "And thus all things were confirmed unto Adam by the holy ordinance; and the gospel preached; and a decree sent forth that it (the gospel), should be in the world until the end thereof; and thus it was. Amen."—Gen. 5:45.

"B." also said that the things that John saw as recorded in this chapter were in the future from the day that John saw them. Now, I would ask "B," or any one else that knows, when it was that the great battle therein spoken of took place, and when was it that the devil and his angels were cast into the earth? "And his angels were cast out with him." It does appear from sacred history that the devil has been on the earth since the fall of Adam. Profane history also gives us a record of some of Satan's doings for a few thousand years past.

I do hope and pray that the time will speedily come when the school of the prophets will be established, that the watchmen in Zion may see eye to eye; and all the quorums of the Church be full, and truth and righteousness prevail over all the earth. W.

Was Joseph Smith a Prophet of God?

AS MANY have taken in hand to set forth the evidences of his being a prophet, we concluded to set forth our views on the question.

As to the general opinion of those who have read the works of Joseph Smith, we know that, if honest in their study, they have closed the books satisfied that he was all that he claimed to be; and we feel to say of those who have not that proof in hand, it is only their own tardiness that has kept them behind their fellows. His call, ordination and his general administration as clearly show him to have been a prophet of God, as the call, election and general administration of George Washington, prove him to have been President of the Republic, though we ask no man to take his administration and general character as proof that he held the office of prophet, seer, revelator and translator. His subsequent life, whether good or bad, has nothing to do with the question as to whether he held the presiding priesthood over all the earth, under the Father, Son and Holy Spirit. We claim that he held the presidency and prophetic power over the Church and whole earth by virtue of an anointing and ordination, which he received, which was according to the constitution of God's kingdom and government in heaven and on earth.

There was nothing new, mysterious nor marvelous about his call and ordination. It was all done as it had been done before in ages past. And all the student has to do is to study the constitution of God's government, (the Bible) in order to see the prototype. There was no need of any excitement or persecution on the part of the people. No occasion for crying false prophet, and the work of God were so plain that the common people as well as the educated classes, could all comprehend it from first to last. We don't propose to pay any attention to his revelations and the fulfillment of them in this article; that is, we shall not bring them up as proof. "But," says one, "did not Mr. Smith claim to predicate his claim on his signs and miracles which he performed?" He did not, and no man was further from such a philosophy. His motto was, "Freedom and reason." His logic was, intelligence based on the principles of Almighty God. No magic wand; no sooth-saying; no rapping or thumping phenomena had he any use for. Intelligence, based upon principles of law, were the books and tools used by him to elevate man. The intelligence and the law both were from God, and not of human origin. It was the hidden wisdom of God, which was ordained before the world was, that Joseph Smith preached, and nothing else. We state all this in candor and meekness, knowing what we affirm. His writings, his sermons, his teachings now extant, all go to show our statement true. So that the opinion, which to a limited extent has gone forth, that he claimed to do wonders—miracles—was got up by his enemies, not by his friends. In his appeals he aimed to address the judgment, the understanding of men, and not their sympathy. He considered his mission was to teach the world, not to coax, hire, or drive them into the fold of Christ. His doctrine was "It's man's free will to believe, it was God's free will him to receive." That is, "Twas all free grace, and all free will." The very hymns he adopted to be sung by his people only tell his faith in the divine economy. So that all this cry about Joseph Smith's being a false man to good doctrine, good sense, good society, good government, was false and wrong.

Now let us take his views as given to the world on the rule of accepting prophets and revelations. He says, "We do not consider ourselves bound to receive any revelation from any one, man or woman, without their being legally [that is lawfully] constituted [that is made] and ordained to that authority and giving sufficient proof of it."—Joseph Smith in 1844.

The reader can see from this rule the people must first have proof that he is made a prophet, before they can accept his revelations, so that the proof does not turn on the operation and fulfillment of it. The question is, Was he a lawfully made prophet of God? We have said in this letter already, he was. The question may be set up, How do we know? We know him to have been a prophet of God, because he claimed to have been called and ordained according to the letter and spirit of the law by which God has in ages past made his prophets.

We identify our mayor, alderman and all other municipals in their respective offices, only as they are elected by the rules of our law. We, as Latter Day Saints, sustain High Priests, Elders, Priests, &c., only as they are ordained by the law of the Church. So with Catholics and all Protestants, in all their church rules. No man is allowed to officiate until duly set up in the office he officiates in. So with all military camps, and in all fraternities; no man can officiate until duly elected, &c. Then instead of Joseph Smith rising up and claiming to be a prophet, and demanding of the people that they endorse him in ignorance, and we accept not revelations as of God, before he proves up his authority; he stands forth and tells the people to first prove him to be sent of God, and then accept of the revelations which he gives, and not until then. But says one, "It is a hard matter to tell who is and who is not, there are so many." Yes, it may be hard to you; but if it is, it is because you do not study the law on the order of calling and constituting prophets.

But says one, "Please tell us how Joseph was made a prophet." "There has been so much said, I don't know what to think," says another. It is just as easy to know how a prophet is made, as to know how a president is made—only take the books; believe that they say what they mean, and mean what they say.

There was a great cry when Joseph Smith died, about who, and where is the successor, while several set up claims, thousands were fooled also, just because they did not read and believe the law on that question. God fixed it all plain, and set landmarks so that the people need not fall out in bad ways, but instead of reading and looking to the law, they looked to certain men, and took their notes and comments as did the Jews.

I shall not in this article show how, when and where Joseph Smith was made a prophet of God. But we have the proof in hand, and we hold him to have been all that he claimed to be, by virtue of an ordination under the hands of angels, and not by virtue of the hands of any mortal being, or beings; though mortals were, and might have been, commanded to lay hands on him (Joseph) to answer the law of the land only. Priesthood is not bestowed by commands or edicts alone; but by the anointing and interposition of the hands of those above, and not below, the one to be set up, &c.

I will not ask you to publish this, yet I would like to give my testimony to the world again in these matters. If you think it only fit for the basket or the stove, please send it to our address, and we will pay the postage back to you. I send $1.00 on my paper, (Herald).

Respectfully,
COLDWATER, Michigan.

Immense Antiquity.

THE accuracy of scientific conclusions as to the great antiquity of man has received a serious shattering, in respect to the discoveries alleged to have been made in the famous Brixham Cave, Devonshire, England. It was asserted by some scientific men, that the remains and the tools found in this cave proved beyond question that man was on the earth anterior to the existence of the cave bear. But a later and more thorough examination of the cave discoveries, now placed in the Christy Museum, has been made, and the report presented to the Victoria Institute by N. Whiteley, honorary secretary of the Royal Institution of Cornwall. Among the blunders as to the facts, Mr. Whiteley notices: (1) naturalists now generally conclude that the skeleton found in the cave does not belong to the ancient cave bear, but the modern brown bear; (2) that the tool said to be found was not close to the bear's leg, but twelve feet from it, and further, that the tool can not be found in the museum; (3) that cases and copies of a very perfect flint knife, which were sold widely over England as a copy of one from the cave, were really copies of one found in Ireland; (4) that pictures of tools, showing a chipping on the edges, and alluded to by scientific men as due to human hands, are, in fact, counterfeit, for the chipping can not be found on the flints, nor in the original photograph of them; (5) that the "scraper tool" and the "rod of ivory" are not in the original list, nor to be found in the museum; and finally, (6) that the "fine tools" in the cave are precisely like those which abound in Wind-mill Hill, above the cave, and which are conceded to be formations by the action of natural causes, and not human implements at all. Some of these may have been washed into the cave, and hence the "evidences" turn out to be a series of scientific mistakes, not to say blunders. Sir Charles Lyell, who used the remains of the Brixham Cave among his evidences of his "Antiquity of Man," has in a late edition quietly dropped these "proofs" as of no special help to his argument on that subject.—Sel.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD.

The Church and the World walked far apart,
On the changing shore of time;
The World was singing a giddy song,
And the Church a hymn sublime.
"Come, give me your hand," cried the merry World,
"And walk with me this way;"
But the good Church hid her snowy hands,
And solemnly answered, "Nay,
I will not give you my hands at all,
And I will not walk with you;
Your way is the way to endless death,
Your words are all untrue."
"Nay, walk with me but a little space,"
Said the World with a kindly air;
"The road I walk is a pleasant road,
And the sun shines always there.
Your path is thorny and rough and rude,
And mine is broad and plain;
My road is paved with flowers and dews,
And yours with tears and pain;
The sky above me is always blue,
No want, no toil, I know;
The sky above you is always dark,
Your lot is a lot of woe.
My path, you see, is a broad, fair one,
And my gate is high and wide;
There is room enough for you and for me
To travel side by side."
Half shyly the Church approached the World,
And gave her hand of snow;
The old World grasped it and walked along,
Saying in accents low,
"Your dress is too simple to please my taste;
I will give you pearls to wear,
Rich velvets and silks for your graceful form,
And diamonds to deck your hair."
The Church looked down at her white robes,
And then at the dazzling World,
And blushed as she saw his handsome lip,
With a smile contemptuous curled.
"I will change my dress for a costlier one,"
Said the Church, with a smile of grace;
Then her pure white garments drifted away,
And the World gave in their place
Beautiful satins and shining silks,
And roses and gems and pearls;
And over her forehead her bright hair fell,
Crisped in a thousand curls.
"Your house is too plain," said the proud old World;
"I'll build you one like mine;
Carpets of brussels and curtains of lace,
And furniture ever so fine."
So he builds her a costly and beautiful house,
Splendid it was to behold;
Her sons and her beautiful daughters dwelt there,
Gleaming in purple and gold,
And fairs and shows in her halls were held.
And the World and his children were there;
And laughter and music and feasts were heard
In the place that was meant for prayer.
She had cushioned pews for the rich and great,
To sit in their pomp and pride;
While the poor folks clad in their shabby suits,
Sat meekly down outside.
The Angel of mercy flew over the Church
And whispered, "I know thy sin;"
Then the Church looked back with a sigh, and longed
To gather her children in.
But some were off at the midnight ball,
And some were off at the play;

And some were drinking in gay saloons,
So she quilly went her way.
Then the sly World gallantly said to her,
"Your children mean no harm,
Morely indulging in innocent sports,"
So she leant on his proffered arm,
And smiled and chatted and gathered flowers
As she walked along with the World,
While millions and millions of deathless souls
To the horrible gulf were hurled.

"Your preachers are all too old and plain,"
Said the gay World with a sneer;
"They frighten my children with dreadful tales,
Which I like not for them to hear;
They talk of brimstone, and fire and pain,
And the horrors of endless night;
They talk of a place which should not be Mentioned to ears polite.
I will send you some of another stamp,
Brilliant and gay and fast,
Who will tell them that people may live as they list,
And go to heaven at last.
The Father is merciful, great and good,
Tender and true and kind;
Do you think he would take one child to heaven
And leave the rest behind!"
So he filled her house with gay divines,
Gifted and great and learned,
And the plain old men that preached the cross
Were out of her pulpits turned.
"You give too much to the poor," said the World,
"Far more than you ought to do,
If the poor need shelter and food and clothes,
Why need it trouble you?
Go take your money and buy rich robes,
And horses and carriages fine,
And pearls and jewels and dainty food,
And the rarest and costliest wine.
My children they dote on all such things,
And if you their love would win
You must do as they do, and walk in the ways
That they are walking in."
Then the Church held tightly the strings of her purse,
And gracefully lowered her head,
And simpered, "I've given too much away,
I'll do, sir, as you have said."
So the poor were turned from her door in scorn,
And she heard not the orphan's cry,
And she drew her beautiful robes aside
As the widows went weeping by.
And the sons of the World and the sons of the Church
Walked closely hand and hand;
And only the Masters, who knoweth all,
Could tell the two apart.
Then the Church sat down at her ease, and said,
"I am rich and in goods increased;
I have need of nothing, and naught to do
But to laugh and dance and feast."
And the sly World heard her and laughed in his sleeve,
And mockingly said aside,
"The Church is fallen, the beautiful Church,
And her shame is her boast and pride."
The Angel drew near to the mercy seat,
And whispered in sighs her name,
And the saints their anthems of rapture hushed,
And covered their heads with shame.
And a voice came down through the hush of heaven
From him who sat on the throne:
"I know thy works, and how thou hast said,
I am rich, and hast not known
That thou art naked and poor and blind,
And wretched before my face,
Therefore from my presence I cast thee out,
And blot thy name from its place."

Sincerity does not always consist in speaking your mind on all occasions, but in doing what we believe to be best and right when silence would be excusable.

God asks not the aid of our vices. He can overrule them for good, but they are not the chosen instruments of human happiness.

The weariest heart in the world may find something to be thankful for. The weakest a reason to hope and strive.

True religion inspires us with pity for the faults of mankind.

What you can not avoid, learn to bear.

Prophecy.

WHAT IS GOING TO HAPPEN FROM 1880
TO 1887.

THE following extraordinary prophecy originally appeared in the Tri-weekly Gleaner, published in Kingston, Jamaica, in September, 1879. It was written by Prof. C. A. Grimmer, and is re-published by request:

THE PLANETS.

It is pretty well understood that the perihelion of the four great planets—Jupiter, Uranus, Neptune and Saturn—will be coincident in 1880. Astrology to day is ridiculed by many so-called scientists. After 1880 astrology will be taught by many who reject it now. Bacon says "the world opposes what it does not understand." In the case of astrology this is pre-eminently so. I have no desire to discuss the verity or falsity of astrology; I simply state the effects the approaching perihelia produce according to astrological deduction. The effects which this conjunction will produce are momentous. From 1880 to 1887 will be one universal carnival of death. No place on earth will be entirely free from the plague. The Pacific coast will not suffer anything in comparison to any other portion of the globe. The coincidence of these planets in perihelion will always produce epidemic and destructive diseases. Three of these planets are malifices, and Jupiter, although a benefic, produces evil through association; or, technically, by conjunction with the others. Diseases will appear, the nature of which will baffle the skill of the most eminent physicians. Every drop of water in the earth, on the earth, and above the earth will be more or less poisonous. The atmosphere will be foul with noisome odors, and there will be a few constitutions able to resist the coming scourge; therefore, prepare ye that are constitutionally weak, and intemperate, and gluttonous, for "man's last home the grave." From the far East the pestilential storm will sweep, and its last struggle will end in the far West. In 542 and 1665 three of the planets, two of which were malifices, (Mars and Saturn) were in perihelion, and Jupiter, though a benefic, brought evil through association. Now 542 and 1665 were the worst plague eras of which the world has any record. From 542 to 546 it was estimated that from 75,000,000 to 120,000,000 victims suffered death by the plague. ("Gibbon's History," vol. iii, chap. xiv.; also "Cousin's History of Rome," vol. ii, p. 178).

MARS AND SATURN.

In 1870, Mars and Saturn were in perihelion and in the sign Virgo, and 52,000 out of 75,000 inhabitants died in the city of Marseilles in less than five weeks. In 554, 10,000 died each day in Constantinople. Alexandria, (Egypt), lost in 542, 50,000, and in 543, 80,000 of her inhabitants by the plague. But as bad as were those times, they will only approximate the horrors of seven years many of us are doomed never to witness. All the weak and intemperate are sure to die. There is no escape from the inexorable fiend. Fortunate indeed are those whose blood is pure and free from any taint or weakness, for they alone will survive the wreck of the human family. The intemperate and weak will join hands and go down to their graves in tens of thousands. Ancient races will be blotted from the face of the earth. Asia will be nearly depopulated and the islands that border on Asia will suffer dreadfully from the scourge. The countries that join the northeastern portion of Asia will suffer the ravages of the plague. Russia will be the first European nation that will suffer. Unless correct sanitary measures are taken before 1880 the plague will be found devastating cities on the Atlantic coast of America. America will lose more than fifteen millions of inhabitants if the sewers of her cities are as imperfect in 1880 as they are to-day.

WHAT TO EXPECT.

The perihelia will bring other inflictions upon the inhabitants of the earth, over which mankind can exert no restraining influence. There will come storms and tidal waves that will swamp whole cities; earthquakes that will swallow mountains and towns, and tornadoes that will sweep hundreds of villages from the face of the earth; mountains will tremble, totter and fall into sulphurous chasms; the geography of the earth will be changed by volcanic action, mountains will toss rocky heads up through the choicest valleys; valleys will appear where mountains stood; skillful mariners will be lost in the ocean, owing to the extraordinary variations of the compass; navigators will grow pale with alarm at the capricious deflexions of the needle; volcanoes that have been dormant for centuries will awaken to belch forth their lava with more violence than when in their pristine vigor, rainfalls will deluge valleys and mountain streams will enlarge their beds and become mighty torrents; fires will start spontaneously and devastate whole forests; great fires will occur in many cities, and some will be totally destroyed; there will be remarkable displays of electricity, frightful to witness; wild beasts will leave their natural haunts and crowd into populous cities, timid and harmless; suffocating fumes of sulphur will escape from the earth, to the great dread of many; an unprecedented number of ships will be shattered in fragments by running on mighty rocks and small islands that are not down on the navigator's chart; islands will appear and disappear without any apparent cause; the navigator's charts will prove almost a detriment instead of an aid, owing to the sudden changes of ocean currents, temperature and surroundings; the birds of the air, the beasts of the field, and even the fish in the sea, will be diseased; billions of fish will die and be cast upon the seashore, to fester in the sun and impregnate the atmosphere with their foul emanations. No fish nor animal food should be eaten from 1880 to 1885, for the flesh of nearly all the animal kingdom and the finny tribes that inhabit the rivers, streams, lakes and ocean will be diseased, and therefore those who partake of the flesh shall poison their blood and be taken away shortly after.

FAMINE AND FARMERS.

The poison that enters the system by eating diseased meats is just as deadly as to be inoculated with the plague. Farmers will be so stricken with fear that they will cease to till their farms, and wanton famine will step in to make human misery more wretched; fanaticism will spring up in many places, and bloodshed will result therefrom; murderers and robbers will ply their hellish work with impunity, for there will be little or no law; everybody will be absorbed with the trying task of keeping alive; people will be buried in deep trenches uncoffined; the judge will be stricken from the bench, the pleader at the bar, and the merchant and the customer will be seized with the fatal malady while trading; death will come slow and lingering in some cases, but in most it will be swift and terrible. In seaboard towns thousands will be buried in the bays and harbors, the law to the contrary notwithstanding.

COUNTRIES DESERTED.

In many countries vast districts will be deserted, and even in Europe some portions will be so near that condition as to appal the traveler. One may walk whole days over hundreds of farms without seeing a living thing. On all the large tracts of land that once were so animated with animal life, not a vestige will be seen. The houses on the deserted farms will show signs of disarrangement and negligence that plainly tells of the hurried departure of the owners to the populous cities. Let a traveler pursue his way till he comes to the small villages, many of which will not contain a single living thing. Let him look into the houses; let him pass through the doors that stand ajar and witness the sickening spectacle of whole families dead. Let him still wander if he have courage, through the country stricken with the black death, and in the fields, on the hillsides, and in the dark canyons of the mountains, and he will see every phase of this terrible malady, till the culminating point of death is reached—the end of all attacked with this incurable disease.

The country people will flee to the crowded cities for aid, but unless they are rich the physicians will give them but little, if any attention. The poor will die by tens of thousands, without a ministering hand to soothe their dying agonies. The doctors will be in universal demand, and extortionate in charges for their services. Bear in mind, no medicine or doctor can give you any more aid than you can yourself. The disease can not be cured; but unless your system is too weak or impure, copious draughts of warm water and a vegetarian diet will prevent the disease from poisoning the blood in the process of digestion. Animal food will poison those who continue to use it. Fine cotton or sponge, dipped into spirits of camphor and kept in the nostrils and frequently changed will prevent the blood from being poisoned through the organs of respiration. Many people will think that the total destruction of animal life will occur during this era of the plague. After the black death there will be two years of fire which will rage with fury in all parts of the world from 1885 to 1887. The fires will be the means of annihilating every germ of disease. In fact, every city or portion of city in which the plague appears should be burned to the ground. This will destroy the scourge. Nothing but fire can do it.

THOSE WHO LIVE THROUGH IT.

Those who pass through those terrible years of woe will have great capacity for the enjoyment of the pleasures of earth. The earth will yield twice as much as formerly. All the animal kingdom will be more prolific and life more prolonged. The average duration of life is said to be thirty-three years now; after the year 1887 it will be just twice as long, or sixty-six years. The reason of this remarkable prolongation of life will be owing to the healthy electricity or magnetism that surrounds this globe. From 1880 to 1887 the electricity of the earth will be deadly, owing to the malific influence of Saturn and Uranus upon our atmosphere. During the black death the most wonderful celestial phenomena will be seen. For weeks the sun will appear as red as blood, and terrible convulsions will appear in that great body. The sun will discharge oceans of flaming hydrogen gasses, that will roll in tumultuous billows hundreds of thousands of miles from its center. The moon's action on the tides will be spasmodic and irregular. Tremendous showers of meteors will fall to the earth, and remain in an incandescent state for hours. Dense black clouds will veil the sun for days, and the moon will not shed as bright or as steady a light as before those dreadful days. The whole heavens and earth will tremble at the awful and continuous reports of thunder—being frequently for hours; blinding flashes of lightning will illumine the black sky; people will scream with horror at the fantastic shapes the lightning will assume; thousands will go insane with fear of the celestial phenomena; all modes of egress from the cities will be stopped on the prairies, in the mountains and valleys, and their occupants will die in them with disease and starvation; steamships and sailing craft will rot on the oceans with their dead human freight, drifting where the winds and waves way drive them.

GOOD TIMES AFTER 1887.

Stout will be the hearts that will not despair in those dreadful times. Fanatics will arise and cry out that the hand of God is against mankind, and religious frenzy will be rampant in all the large cities; so called prophets will incite their followers to deeds of blood and rapine, but they will not hold sway long; insanity from religious causes will predominate in those times; the mortality in cities where sewerage is defective will be appalling; everything that is ate or drank should be boiled well before being used; no cooked food or water should be partaken of if allowed to be exposed to the air for even a quarter of an hour; food must be eaten as soon after being cooked as possible; every kind of animal food should be eliminated from the table; even fish and game should not be used; milk, butter, eggs, fats and oils (excepting vegetable oils) should be prohibited; vegetables, grains and fruits that are produced in each country should be used. The electric condition of everything on earth will be changed; therefore the products of the soil in our immediate vicinity are the best to keep the human system in a positive state. When the human organism is in a positive condition it is practically impossible to contract disease. All persons in a negative state to their surroundings will be the first to fall victims to the scourge. The flesh eater and the alcoholic imbibor will go hand in hand to the grave, for their blood will become impure and inflamed and therefore in a negative state, and necessarily unable to combat disease. Bear in mind, no part of the world will be exempt from the ravages of the plague. The frigid homes of the Esquimaux will be invaded by the demon of death, and desolation will be as apparent in that frozen land as in the sun-scorched sands of Africa. It will penetrate alike the jungles of India, and the civilized homes of America. The Mongolian race will suffer most, for it is without doubt the most ancient. Races are like empires—they have their rise, decline and fall.

POOR CHINA.

China will be depopulated, or nearly so, and when the plague breaks out in 1881 in their country [hordes of Asiatics will crowd their ships and flee their country, to spread the loathsome horror over every land they turn to. Every island in the Pacific will be swarming with Mongolians, and they will at last reach the Pacific States, and then America must suffer a destruction of life without a parallel in the annals of her history. I say that the inhabitants of the plague-stricken districts will reach there unless more vigilance is used with preventive measures to keep them back. I am not actuated by any feeling of prejudice against any particular race, but the voice of the hosts of the heavens should be hearkened unto, and if by a mathematical scheme we can deduct certain facts, portentous to the caucasian race, they should be given and followed. In mortality the East India country will be next in order of magnitude to China, Africa next, Europe next, and America next. The Atlantic States will suffer more than the Pacific, South America more than North America, and California will be the last and least to suffer of this most malignant plague era that the world has ever known. The plague is not only what the perihelia brings us, but it will be accompanied by war, discord, civil strife, floods, inundations; and in seven-tenths of the world drouth; and unless extraordinary provision is made to quell great uprisings, anarchy, with all its horrors, will reign from 1880 to 1888.

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM.

In 1887 the "Star of Bethlehem" will once more be seen in "Casseopia's Chair," and it will be accompanied by a total eclipse of the sun and moon. The star only makes its appearance every 315 years. It will appear and illumine the heavens, and exceed in brilliancy even Jupiter, when in opposition to the sun, and, therefore nearer to the earth and brightest. The marvelous brilliancy of the "Star of Bethlehem" in 1887 will surpass any of its previous visitations. It will be seen even by noonday, shining with a quick flashing light the entire year, after which it will gradually decrease in brightness and finally disappear, not to return to our heavens till 2202, or 315 years from 1887. This star first attracted the attention of modern astronomers in 1575. It was then called a new star. It was no new star, however, for this was the star that shone so brightly 4 B. C., and was the star that illumined the heavens at the Nativity of Christ. It has reappeared every 315 years since, and every educated astrologer is certain that it will appear in August, 1887. The appearance of this star, accompanied, as it will be, by solar and lunar eclipses, together with the baleful influence that follows the positions that Mars and Saturn will occupy, will cause an universal war and portentous floods and fearful shipwrecks. North America will be involved in civil strife, and a reign of terror will prevail in the Atlantic States, unless a Napoleon arises to quell it. There will be a war of classes—the rich will array themselves against the poor, and vice versa everywhere.

Seven Hundred and Fifty Millions.

SEVEN hundred and fifty million dollars! That is America's grog bill for one short year. We spend that immense sum for indulgence of a habit more hurtful to us than plague, famine or war. The scoffers at our holy religion—the learned as well as the unlettered—are tauntingly asking us how it is that the Christian Church makes so little progress in turning from sin to Zion so few of the race. Fellow-workers, the explanation is to be found in the black bottle, the demijohn and cut-glass decanter. We hold the minister of the gospel and the educated professor of religion who use intoxicating drinks as a beverage, responsible for this sinful malady. One respectable (shall we say good?) man taking his wine moderately helps along thousands on the road to poverty and ruin. It were well for the world if some supernatural power would open the eyes and quicken the consciences of those who know not the power of example and seem to forget that they are their brothers keeper. There was once a very excellent man—a favorite of heaven—who said that if eating meat made his brother to stumble, he would forego its use. Once more we hold up the text for consideration to these divines who see no danger in an occasional drink. About two years ago an eloquent minister of the Episcopal Church became crippled and hobbled with the accursed appetite. First he was moderate, soon he was immoderate. After a year's effort at total abstinence he broke out afresh, fell from a sailing boat with a black bottle in his pocket, and went up in middle age, intoxicated, to judgment. One such case ought to answer as a warning for a thousand years. God help us all to fight more valiantly for this glorious cause.

It is not enough that we are ourselves safe. On every side of us our neighbors are perishing for the want of a helping hand. With money and voice we must better equip ourselves for the work. There is not a family but is touched directly or indirectly by this terrible sore. It is not enough that we comprehend the disease. We must with greater enthusiasm engage in the blessed Christian and patriotic work of curing it. By line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little, we must push on the works till the rum citadel topples down. We need thousands upon thousands of workers like Cuyler, Moody, Dow and Murphy, to dry up this plague stream which is everywhere hindering the progress of the church, and degrading families.

One post office and fifteen taverns in a given town. Examine briefly these establishments. How comes it that so few good papers and valuable books are received through the post office? The explanation is that the farmers around will drop too many dimes at the tavern. Will you not, dear reader, make up your mind at once to help drive intemperance from this favored land? You desire to do some good as you journey through life. There are evils and burdens to be removed. Enter upon the work. It is expected of you that you will leave the world better than you found it. Chisel out a monument for yourself. Make the name you bear an honored one by being an indefatigable worker for the things which make the world blossom as the rose. Heaven expects us to do our duty. Christ came to show us the way. Let us learn and practice the lesson whole-heartedly. Some grand workers finish their course with a multitude of redeemed ones following them to glory. Let us join the glorious band and do all the good we can in the name of Jesus. In this sign we shall conquer.

Signs.

"AND he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved; but he that believeth not, shall be damned. And these signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."—Mark 16: 15-18.

"These signs shall follow them that believe." Does this promise refer to the apostles, or to the believers? Let us examine this passage grammatically, historically and logically.

Grammatically. The word "them" refers to some antecedent in the place of which it is used, and with which it is identical in meaning: "Pronouns agree with their antecedents in gender, number and person." This rule is found in all grammars. In the light of this rule we will seek for the antecedent of the word "them" in the above passage. Christ is the speaker, (first person). He says, "Go ye," party spoken to, (second person), "preach the gospel to every creature." "Every creature," is the party spoken of, or about, (third person). We also have the words "he that believes," and "he that believes not," both spoken of; hence also, (third person). Now, the word them must agree with one of these antecedents in person. "Them" is the third person. It does not agree with Christ, (third person); nor with "ye," (second person), in the phrase "go ye;" but it does agree with "creature," (third person), in the phrase "every creature." Both are of the third person; therefore, the word "them" refers to "every creature," and consequently not to the apostles, so far as person is concerned. It must also agree in number. "Them" is in plural number; the noun with which it agrees should also be plural. The phrase "every creature," is plural in sense. We know that the apostles were expected under this term to preach to more than one person. Yet, technically, it is singular. Here then seems to be a difficulty which quibblers may take advantage of; and argue that as "ye" is of the plural number, "them" agrees with it in number. This we admit, but reply; "ye" is of the second person, therefore it can never agree with it in person, and it must agree in number and person both. "Them" can not refer to the apostles then. But while "creature" is singular in form, we have shown that it does refer to more than one, therefore is plural in sense. The words "them," "ye" and "creature" are all of the common gender; so "them" agrees with both in gender. "Them" is in the common gender, third person and plural number. "Every creature" is the same, in gender and person, and number also, in sense. Therefore "them" refers to "every creature" and not to the apostles. But instead of the phrase "every creature" in the King James translation, we have "the whole creation" in McKnight, Doddridge and Campbell's; a collective noun which may be referred to by either a singular, or plural pronoun. Benjamin Willson, in his translation has it, "The whole creation," and in his interlinier translation "all the creation." Taking either of these translations the agreement is perfect. That this translation is correct is seen in Mark 10:6, and 13:19, Romans 1:20, and 8:22, 2d. Peter 3:4, Rev. 3:14, in each of which cases the same Greek word, "ktisis," which is rendered "creature" in our text, is rendered creation in the same translation; and in Romans 8:22, we have the full phrase "pasa he ktisis," rendered in Mark "every creature," but here "the whole creation." In Donnegan's Lexicon, the same word is rendered "construction, creation, institution," but not "creature." Hence the word "them" agrees with the word "ktisis," rendered "creature" or "creation," in person, number and gender; but does not agree with "ye" under any construction, or hypothesis, nor do we ever say they in speaking to any one. Let us try it. Go they into all the world. The construction is too awkward to need comment.

Logically. The matter is plain. Christ had already given this power to the twelve. (See Matt. 10:8). It would be superfluous to give it to them again. He might refer them to the promise before given, but he would not make it as a new one. But as he had not made any such promise in person to the believers it was necessary to make it to them.

Historically. Here we answer the signs were not confined to the apostles, but were enjoyed by the believers in general. Stephen worked miracles. Annanias healed the sick. Agabus and the daughters of Philip prophesied. The members of the Corinthian Church had the gifts. (See 1st. Cor. 12th to 14th chapter). The promise then was enjoyed by the believers generally, therefore it must have been designed for them.

JOHN HANSEN.

Sabbath Morn.

THE halo of a summer Sabbath morn is a something which pervades nature, like the aroma of a flower. The aspiring mind grasps at the hidden mysteries, which are felt but not visibly revealed. Silently the soul comes en rapport with the voice of nature, giving to the spirit an inspiration for thoughts divine which have an elevating tendency, banishing the cares and troubles of external life, and causing the soul to drink from a fountain ever flowing and full.

How grand these foothills appear at break of day on this autumn Sunday morn! Quietness reigns supreme. Nature and man seem resting and recuperating from active labor. The voices of nature are never silent. The crash of storm and tempest sometimes appall the strongest heart; again, the subdued stillness speaks of peace, creative love and wisdom. How vast God's cathedral appears in the presence of nature in her rugged grandeur. Temples of stone and mortar appear only as the creations of finite workmanship; while the Infinite is represented in every leaf, flower or distant prospect. We may worship reverently in this grandest of temples in the absence of man-made tabernacles, so we may be the better prepared to fulfill life's many requirements at home and abroad. In imagination we list to the music of the city church bells. We follow the worshipers to the house of prayer. The melody of song ascends to mingle with spirit voices in the celestial kingdom. We hear the sound of supplication and instruction, and the benediction warming the heart and enlarging the affections. The better are we able to resist temptation and prepared for entering the higher domain of "life eternal."

Again, we follow the young, as they meet for instruction in the principles of life and its responsibilities. How inspiring is the echo of their young songs of praise, as it mingles in the universal jubilee for present blessings and opportunities for improvement. 'Tis a sunray illuminating the darkness and ignorance of a by-gone age, and an earnest of the future peace and glory of our peace-loving land. We love to follow the footsteps of the young, when directed in paths strewn with flowers of love. The heroic age has departed; the sword should now be turned into a plowshare, spears into pruning hooks, and our motto be, "The Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

Seven days of the week would then constitute a Sunday. The mornings would speak of "love Divine;" the evenings would crown the labors of the day by songs and supplications from thankful hearts. Fraternal greetings would cheer the desponding and afflicted, banishing from the haunts of men the present feverish desire for the acquisition of that gold which perisheth.

How I love reflection in this quiet solitude, communing with nature and nature's God—the forest songsters the only choir; the grand old rugged mountains the only visible cathedral; the purling brook an anthem full, while, towering stately and grand, stands the old oak tree.

An Ancient Manuscript.

THE GOSPELS OF ST. MATTHEW AND ST. MARK DISCOVERED IN ITALY.

THE general feeling of scholars in regard to manuscripts of ancient writers is that almost all have been discovered that there is any hope of discovering. This feeling, however, has been happily disappointed in several cases. The recent find of a manuscript of Clemens Romanus and other early ecclesiastical writers in Constantinople gave an agreeable surprise to students of church history. In no department have such discoveries been more surprising and more valuable than those in connection with the New Testament. Tischendorf, in his wanderings among libraries in all parts of the world, came upon many leaves of old New Testament manuscripts, and crowned his investigations by unearthing in the Sinaitic monastery the most complete manuscript of the New Testament in existence belonging to an early date. The issuing of a trustworthy edition of the "Codex Vaticanus" in our age may also be deemed a real discovery. In this way the two manuscripts which will be held in future as most valuable in determining the text of the New Testament, have become known to scholars only within the last twenty years. We have now to record the discovery of another manuscript of a portion of the New Testament, written at a very early period. The merit of the discovery is due to two German scholars, Oscar V. Gebhardt and Adolf Harnach, whose edition of the "Apostolic Fathers" has deservedly received the warmest commendation. These scholars were enabled through the munificence of the German Government and an endowment attached to the Leipzig University, to make a journey in March of this year to Southern Italy and Sicily, in which they resolved to search for manuscripts. Their attention was specially directed to notices of a monastery at Rossano, near the Gulf of Tarentum, in which important manuscripts were said once to have been. They could find no traces of the monastery, but they heard that there was a very old book preserved in the palace of the Archbishop of Rossano. Accordingly they asked permission to see it, and to their great joy found that it was a very valuable manuscript of the Gospels of St. Matthew and St. Mark. They now issue an account of it in a volume just published, "Evangeliorum Codex Græcus Purpureus Rossanensis (E) Litteris Argenteis sexto ut videturesæculo scriptus picturisque ornatus, saine Entdeckung sein wissenschaftlicher und Kunstlerischer Werth dargestellt von Oscar V. Gerhardt und Adolf Harnach. (Leipzig: Giesecke & Devrient)."

The leaves of this manuscript are made of purple parchment, and the material used throughout in writing is silver, except in the first three lines of each Gospel, where the letters are golden. There is only one other manuscript of this kind in existence containing any portion of the New Testament, and it is in a mutilated condition, four of its leaves being in London, six in Rome, two in Vienna, and thirty-three have been more recently discovered in the Island of Patmos. The present volume, on the other hand, consists of 188 leaves, and contains the whole of the Gospel of St. Matthew and the Gospel of St. Mark down to the middle of the fourteenth verse of the sixteenth chapter. All the criteria used in judging of manuscripts indicate the end of the fifth or beginning of the sixth century as the date of this. The manuscript is written in uncial characters, with two columns in each page. There is no separation of words, no breathing, no accent, and only the slightest attempt at punctuation. There are capitals double the size of the uncials, the Ammonian sections are indicated, and the Eusebian canons must have been given, for it contains a portion of the letter of Eusebius to Carpianus, and there is good reason for conjecturing that this was followed by a table of the Eusebian canons. The letters bear the closest resemblance to those occurring in manuscript of the fifth and sixth centuries. The editors reserve their remarks on the nature of the text until they publish it in full. All that they state now is, that it bears a striking resemblance to that found in the other manuscript of purple parchment, that it contains some unique readings, and that it rather goes with the later manuscripts where the Sinaitic and Vatican differ from them. Considerable interest attaches to this manuscript from the circumstance that it contains a number of painted miniatures illustrating the life of Christ. These are among the earliest works of this kind that are extant. The editors have prepared outlines of them, and discuss their merits. The subjects are the "Resurrection of Lazarus," the "Entrance into Jerusalem," the "Purification of the Temple," the "Wise and Foolish Virgins," the "Last Supper" and "Washing the Feet," the "Distribution of Bread and Wine," "Christ in Gethsemane," the "Healing of the Blind," the "Kind Samaritan," "Christ Before Pilate," "The Repentance and Death of Judas," "The Jews Before Pilate," and "Christ and Barabbas." In all of them the grouping is done very artistically, and on the whole the figures are well drawn, with much animation and expression. Some of them are interesting from a historical point of view, as that which portrays the distribution of bread and wine at Eucharist. All of them throw light on early Christian art, and Harnach thinks that he sees a closer connection between these works and Giotto than between later miniatures and that artist. Besides the New Testament scenes there are forty heads of prophets and one or two other subjects.—Edinburg Scotsman.

Meditations.

THE doctrines of Tom. Paine and Bob. Ingersoll might have taken well enough several hundred years ago, in the dark ages, but it does seem strange that there are so many now who believe them, when there are so many bright evidences, flaming proofs, and strong reasons in favor of these days being the latter times spoken of by different men in different ages of the world, those who claimed to be sent and inspired of God. The wonders shown in the heavens above, and on the earth beneath; the signs in the sun and in the moon, and in the stars; the wonderful fulfillment of various prophecies of both the Old and New Testament, are sufficient to my mind to leave any without excuse for disbelieving the same, those who are capable of understanding and reasoning, and who have the privilege to read, hear, see, and know of these things being true, both from events of the present and past. Surely the Scriptures in the main were given of God, and a punishment awaits the willful unbelievers, a peaceful rest with Christ on the earth when evil will not abound, and suffering not be found will soon be enjoyed by the poor, despised, yet meek and humble. INFERIOR.

THE NECESSITY AND POWER OF PRAYER.

Prayer is the earnest desire of the soul. God has promised us no blessing without prayer. "Ask and ye shall receive," "Pray without ceasing," that is, live in the spirit of prayer. "Watch and pray, lest ye enter into temptation." It is by faith and humble prayer that we resist the devil; he can not stand before the weakest saint when he prays. Nature itself teaches us to pray. Never yet did a traveler find a nation that did not pray to something they call God. Professed Atheists have often been known to pray when in danger, but it does not follow that God will answer a prayer extorted by danger.

It is said that necessity is the mother of invention; but it would seem that there are some inventions to which necessity is made to be stepmother, decidedly against her will.

Economy and thrift, though usually harmoniously working together, are sometimes made antagonists by the intervention of necessity.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

In writing from Provo City, Utah, 13th September, Elder R. J. Anthony says: "All is going as well as we could expect here; prospects of additions at Lehi soon."

Bro. E. H. Gurley writes from Lamoni, Iowa, September 4th, 1880: "Conference to-day and tomorrow; sickness and death thick; yet God's grace is with us."

We call the attention of those writing to the Herald Office, on business connected with the Office, to the notice on last page of the HERALD. To insure prompt attention, all business communications must be addressed to Joseph Smith, Business Manager.

In ordering a change in post office address, do not fail to give the old, as well as the new address.

All persons ordering the book "Joseph the Prophet," will please remember $2 is the price of the book in the office. In all cases twenty cents additional for postage must accompany the order.

The following brethren have our thanks for papers sent to the office: Joseph Graham, William P. Brown, John Taylor, J. J. Cornish, Thos. Henning, H. R. Mills, William Anderson and M. Mansfield; also, to some one in England for three copies of the War Cry.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA,

September 15th, 1880.

Bro. John Scott:—I send you to-day some letters for entry on the books, sent to Henry, and some letters for HERALD, and a little editorial. It is not so easy for me to write while the bustle and change of the conference is in my brain and around me.

We are in the midst of a very pleasant session. The weather is almost perfect. After a long rainy time like we had, the sky is clear and the leaves yet untouched by the frost; the air is today balmy and gentle—one constant Sabbath in appearance. Our conference ground is most admirably arranged. Bro. Andrew Hall and J. D. Heywood, old veterans in the work, were put in charge, and they decided to exclude teams from the grounds on which the stand was placed. The result is, we have neither the sounds, sights, nor smells of an outdoor stable to annoy, vex and disturb the unity of worship; and as I write now, the voice of one of our young men is ringing out over the assembly grounds, in the discussion of a question on the resurrection, upon the occasion of the death of a child of a brother and sister, Stevens by name, after they had arrived in the camp grounds; the only thing transpiring to disturb the enjoyment of any, so far as has come to my knowledge. The feeling is excellent; and the enjoyment of the occasion seems to be fairly complete.

Eighteen have so far been baptized, and there is some evidence that there are others who will be ere the session closes.

Sept. 18th.—Rained last night, and the clouds are lying thinly over the woods and fields all around the camp ground of the Saints, threatening us with a sprinkling again; but we hope for the best. Yesterday's session was an extremely pleasant one. The weather was fine, the air was still, with now and then a gentle breeze to cool it, and the attendance was good. The business was quite important, as the minutes will show. There has been a constant coming and going, the number of those coming greater than that of those going, so that there are more now on the grounds than at any previous day of the session; and a fair promise of a very large attendance on Sunday, the 19th.

Some very marked improvements over the last session we held here in our outward surroundings; a much better degree of quiet about the eating and drinking stands is observed; two merry-go-round swings, which at first appeared upon the scene, folded up the apparatus and went away to more congenial places; the receipts were likely too small. There is not so much inattention and careless gathering into little groups around the edges of the congregation to converse during the session. The police regulations of the camp, under the personal direction of Sheriff Reels, the sheriff of the county, have been so far very effective in suppressing any undue improprieties of conduct, or disorderly proceedings, and we have felt safe from disturbances.

Yours,
JOSEPH SMITH.

He only is deserving of peace who is willing to put forth some effort to secure it. The idea that peace is to be forced upon a man, and all the turbulent elements of his nature, the riotous enjoyment of which is the opposite of peace, are to be overcome and taken out of his organization by power other than his, and without reference to his will, if it exists, is to our thinking a mistake. Peace is a condition of freedom from annoyance from things without, and cessation of fears within. And fear, real or imaginary, may be removed by an effort of the will; hence, it is reasonable to expect that the will should be consulted when anything of our nature is to be taken from us, or be overcome. If the will is consulted, it is fair to presume that it will put forth an effort in the furtherance of the object desired, and peace is greatly to be desired. This effort is frequently necessary to be made in the direction of sacrificing some affection of the heart, or desire of the mind, of less value to the real man than the greater blessing of peace; and it is in this direction that we fail more frequently than in any other. What the reason may be, each should settle for themselves. For us, as an individual, we have settled it to be an extreme unwillingness, amounting to an absolute withholding, to give up the minor pleasure for the greater. As an instance of this, we cite our tenacious hold upon our separate and distinct belief as contrasted with the belief of others, our own brethren included. We assert openly to their right to believe as they may choose; yet our peace is disturbed by the persistent tenacity with which they cling to their view, wrong, as we believe it to be. This distress of ours we would have removed by eradicating their wrong views; and how to do this is our inquiry. The shortest method is an appeal to authority. By invoking authority we overcome them, and our peace is assured. Is this a correct reasoning. We shall await a reply.

A COPY of the Stumblingstone for August, 1880, is sent us by Bro. H. S. Howell. This paper is published at Toledo, Ohio, by Lyman H. Johnson, and is devoted to an opposition to existing church organizations. Its spirit may be gathered from the following extracts from the leading article in the number before us, entitled, "Christ's Church":

"One has to accept the name and the particular society also, to belong to any existing denomination or church so-called. Although apostles did baptize with water, that did not make them Baptists as the word now means. There is no Baptist sect that will own a man as of their church merely because of his baptism or faith. He must also accept the name and the particular government and organism of that sect, or he is not a member. This was never done by apostles nor any others until recent date. The Bible is over eighteen hundred years old, hence not an existing denomination or church has Bible authority. They are every one human institutions."

"A local assembly of saints may become Antichrist by binding members contrary to true liberty to go and come and act for Christ as the Spirit leads. No saint can be obliged, except by his own convictions, to meet in one place, or to pay his money to a particular gathering or minister, or to any system got up by man, for this would be popery. Every member of Christ must be free to obey him, to go and come and meet as Christ bids him, or else the man of sin usurps Christ's place. The only authority any church or minister has, is to enforce truth and righteousness, to condemn and disfellowship for willful sin, for covetousness, idolatry, neglect of prayer and of frequent meetings with God's children, and of all works of love to God and man. Every child of God has authority in Christ to reprove sin, error, neglect of duty and all apostasy from Christ, and to labor for the purity and salvation of the whole church."

The fallacy of the fight that this new Stumblingstone is waging is seen in the next to the last sentence in which the authority to disfellowship members for "neglect of prayer and of frequent meetings with God's children." The authority to disfellowship implies unity, or oneness in the family, or assembly of God's children, and oneness of action is secured by organization. The word church as used in the sentence, "and the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved," carries the fact of organization with it. And the sentences, "ye who are chosen to feed the flock," "now ye are the body of Christ," teach organization clearly, so far as a convocation, assembly and association of the Saints is concerned. "Have I not chosen you twelve; and is not one of you a devil;" "He chose other seventy also and sent them;" both signify the ordaining of certain members of a body already organized to specific duties therein. Paul evidently so understood the matter when he wrote, "God hath set some in the church;" this church meaning the body of Christ.

The statement that the Church, body of Christ, can exist with accredited ministers laboring in the word, without organization, authority or association effected by laws agreed to by believers, and governed by rules which constitutes them an organic body, or body corporate by virtue of celestial clemency and divine will, is to say that the human body which is used as a symbol by Paul, is an existent, co-working organization without a bond of unity, or rule of organization by which all its diversified parts is not held together. To give individual authority to "reprove sin," and "apostasy," without making all individuals amenable to central law and organization is to make individual judgment superior to the Church, and destroys the idea of unity at once, for there can be no unity where none are subordinate to general rule and law.

It is true that men can not of themselves institute the Church of Christ; but it can not be true that Christ will not, if he has not already established his Church, or given the rules upon which it may be done, even commanding it to be done. When men strike down all organization, they may as well have done with talking about law; for law means power, and power means centralization, and centralization means delegated authority, by which law is enforced. The only argument worth anything as opposed to organization, is the fear of the abuse of power, and were the government of God and Christ subject to the influences that corrupt human morals and character, there might be good reason for decrying the church organization of Christ. But as the Church of Christ must be ever dominated by Christ's law, both in its individual and collective character, this objection against organization should be confined to the single fact of actual abuse of power. This of course, may be the case with even the Church, where men are in some things left to the exercise of their own wisdom. Especially may this be found to be true in the item of apostasy, apostasy meaning a departure from the faith. This departing from the faith can not be cured by a throwing away, the restraints of organization.

So much for the Stumblingstone. One thing more, however, the price of this paper is twenty-five cents for one year of twelve numbers; but the publisher says:

"We conscientiously repudiate all bargain and sale of the gospel, printed or preached, for money; but under the law virtually make the paper free by accepting only voluntary donations, and sending to all subscribers thus paid for. Ten dollars sent us by one man secures papers one year for forty subscribers, and so for each doner a proportionate number of readers are supplied. Thus all are free to aid the circulation of this paper as the Lord prospers them, and the paper is made free, yet subject strictly to the legal conditions of regular subscribers entitled to regular postage rates."

THE Chicago Times of September 4th, contained a statement that His Excellency, R. B. Hayes, refused by telegram to accept the municipal honors of Salt Lake City, Utah, tendered him by President John Taylor, and stated that while in Utah he would be the guest of Governor Murray.

The Times of September 6th, states that President Taylor found a way to give President Hayes a welcome, by going up to Ogden with his committee and having his special car hooked on to the President's train; and so had the President who rode part of the way in President Taylor's car, chatting with him; George Q. Cannon and some others making up the Mormon party. President Taylor also had the citizens and Sunday Schools turn out to give the President of the United States a welcome. The Times notice closes thus:

"The Gentiles are jubilant over their success in capturing the President, but are a little sore because Hayes paid some attention to the Mormons, while the latter are annoyed that they had to take a back seat in the reception business, but console themselves over the fact that had they not turned out the President would have been welcomed only by deserted streets."

We have heard of mutual admiration societies; but this seems to indicate mutual self-condolement for both sides.

News Summary.

Sept. 7th.—Ayooob Khan and the remnants of his scattered army are falling back to Herat, leaving the British masters of the situation.

The Albanians have attempted to fire their own city, Dulcigno, rather than that Turkey should surrender it to Montenegro. The Turks protect the city.

Another plot having been discovered to assassinate the Czar of Russia; great precautions are being taken to prevent it.

The Russian army, so long on the way, are advancing into Central Asia.

The Central American steamer, the San Salvador, is believed to have foundered at sea in a recent cyclone. She is long overdue and no tidings of her.

A whirlwind at Richmond, Va., unroofed buildings and did other damage there.

Famine is again threatened in some of the provinces of British India, where the rainfall during the months of June and July was from four to six inches below the average. The situation causes grave uneasiness in Government circles at Calcutta and London. There is a bare possibility that the dread visitation may be averted by a heavy rainfall during this month.

8th.—In London, England, a large dock and warehouses were burned yesterday; loss $100,000.

By fire in a village in Germany seventy-two houses were destroyed this week.

By the bridge disaster in Spain one hundred and ten soldiers were drowned, instead of fifty-seven, as previously reported. All the bodies were recovered and buried in two graves. King Alfonso headed the subscription list for their families with $6,000.

Dispatches from points on the Gulf report further disasters by the late cyclone. A Savannah telegram this morning reports the discovery of four additional wrecks on the Florida coast, besides a large ship dismantled in the breakers near St. Sebastian, with the crew on board.

A financial statement by the triennial committee of Knights Templar shows that the expenses of the late conclave in Chicago were $93,000, and that the receipts from all sources were $87,000. The shortage will be made good by the three local commanderies.

It is stated that soon a new treaty between Russia and China will be signed at Peking.

The number of recruits being added to the Greek army are said to average six hundred men daily. Whether she will have a war with Turkey is yet uncertain.

By a fire at St. Louis, Mo., $150,000 worth of property was destroyed. In a stove manufactory six thousand finished stoves were destroyed. Two firemen were killed and several others were wounded by falling walls.

9th.—Another terrible mine explosion in Great Britain, this time in the Seaham colliery, near Durham, England. A good many of the men have been brought to the surface in an exhausted condition who will be restored, but over one hundred are thought to have perished.

The city of Sofia, in Bulgaria, is on fire, and dispatches say there is danger of the entire place being burned to the ground. The flames first broke out in a poor Jewish quarter, which is already completely destroyed.

The fires which have raged for several days in the eastern counties of the province of Quebec, have made that once fertile and attractive region a desolate waste, and filled the neighboring villages with destitute refugees. More than one hundred and twenty farms have been swept over, and about fifteen hundred people rendered homeless. Eleven persons are missing who are believed to have perished in the flames.

Troops from Fort Cummings overtook the Indians, who on the night of the 6th, captured a mail-coach in New Mexico and killed the passengers, and had a short fight with them, which, as usual, proved a more serious matter for the blue-coats than for the Indians. Three of the former were killed, and several were wounded. The Indians then fled in the direction of Mexico.

Land-leaguers in Galway, Ireland, dug a grave in the door-yard of a cottage from which a family had been evicted, and left a note stating that the first man who leased the place would be buried in it.

A market building in New York City, one that covered an entire block, and having two hundred stands for business, caught fire and was burned on yesterday. The building cost over one million dollars, and the total loss to the occupants is also about one million dollars. Fifteen hundred cattle were slaughtered there each week towards supplying the city with meat.

In Camden, New Jersey, sixty people are down with the small-pox. The public schools have been closed in consequence.

A terrible hurricane passed over Bermuda Island, August 29th and 30th, said by all to have exceeded in destructive violence the historical hurricane of 1839. Four churches and many houses were blown down, and many boats and small craft were destroyed, also the entire fruit crop of the island. No loss of life reported.

The murderers of the American missionary, Dr. Parsons, and his servant, in Asia Minor, have been brought to Constantinople, and will be immediately placed on trial. The Sultan is quite anxious that the murderers may be punished, and has so assured Mr. Heap, the United States Consul-General.

The cotton crop of the South is unprecedentedly large, being estimated at 6,000,000 bales, of which, by the way, Texas will contribute 1,250,000 bales. The first cargo of the season was shipped from Charleston, South Carolina, for England, on yesterday, five thousand three hundred bales by steamer.

10th.—Sixty-six men were rescued from the Seaham coal mine, but one hundred and thirty are unaccounted for, and are given up as lost, especially as a fire has broken out in the mine, that renders exploration or escape (if any more were alive) impossible. Some say that one hundred and eighty are missing.

A water spout in France destroyed several houses and other property, and perhaps some lives.

The forest fires in eastern Quebec have not yet burned themselves out, but there is no longer any danger to human life. An area thirty miles long by fifteen miles broad has been laid waste.

11th.—Action has at last been taken by Turkey to effect the transfer of Dulcigno to Montenegro, but the Albanians resist the work.

Some of the religious orders of France are making their submission to the decrees of that government, whose action has been noted by us heretofore.

The explosion in the Seaham mine made seventy-six widows and two hundred and eighty-four orphans. Rather more of the victims were single men than married. One hundred and sixty-five bodies have been found.

The few survivors from the wrecked steamer, City of Vera Cruz tell terrible tales of the wild and awful scenes that night the great tornado swept over the seas and sent their boat down to the depths, leaving them and their fellows at the mercy of the mighty waves. It is a wonder that any lived to tell the story.

13th.—By a railway accident in England four persons were killed and thirty wounded.

A telegram states that six thousand Montenegrins, with eight cannon, are on their way to Dulcigno, prepared to fight for the position, if resisted.

Congress, this winter, will be asked to restore the old paper fractional currency. The advocates of this measure claim that ever since the withdrawal of the fractional currency from circulation, need has been felt of some substitute, not only in ordinary transactions of business, but more particularly for the transmission of small amounts through the mails. It was a great convenience to be able to inclose twenty-five or fifty-cent pieces of fractional currency in letters, but heavy silver coins of those denominations can not be made available. The late Mr. Middleton, clerk of the United States court, was a great admirer of the fractional currency, on account of its convenience for handling. When he foresaw that it was to be driven out of circulation by subsidiary silver coin, he went to the treasury and laid in a large supply of crisp little pieces of paper with the government stamp on them. Senators, members, and others around the capitol found this out, and were constantly calling on Mr. Middleton to exchange fractional currency for silver. The post-office department is every now and then in receipt of schemes proposing substitutes for fractional currency. Among other propositions is one that the post-office department should issue certificates representing fractional parts of a dollar. But, as remarked by a high official of the department, the only substitute for the old fractional currency is a new fractional currency.

14th.—The harvests in Great Britain are not up to the expectations.

There are forty-two thousand men under arms in Greece. The war minister has ordered winter garments for twenty-four thousand men. He has also opened a new credit of 1,800,000 francs for war material, and the minister of marine has ordered ten Krupp cannon for gunboats.

Two earthquakes occurred at Zermatt, in the canton of Valais, Switzerland, on Friday.

After a passenger train on the North-western railroad, running from Glasgow to London, had passed the village of Bury, yesterday, it was discovered that a large can of dynamite had been placed under the track, with the intention of blowing up the train, but the machinery by which the explosive was to have been discharged did not work. As the Grand Duke Constantine and several Russian officials of high rank were to have been on the train, it is supposed that the attempt to destroy it was made by Nihilists.

15th.—Labor troubles are again causing exciting interest in England, especially among the cotton districts. By the present move one hundred thousand operatives will be affected with the strike.

Inquiry leaves little doubt that the placing of the mine of dynamite under the rails of the London and Northeastern line was a deliberate attempt to wreck the express train to Scotland which passed over the rails two hours previous to the discovery of the mine.

16th.—Rev. E. P. Adams, the Dunkirk, New York, preacher who rejected the doctrine of everlasting torment, has been deposed from the Presbyterian ministry as a heretic.

The business portion of Seymour, Wisconsin, a village nineteen miles northwest of Appleton, has been destroyed by fire.

Heavy rains, gales, and floods have seriously damaged the unharvested crops in England.

17th.—Dispatches from South America state that there is a prospect of peace between Chili and Peru. England, France, and Italy are said to have convinced the first named nation that its conquests have gone far enough.

A vessel from Hayti has been towed into New York harbor, the whole crew being sick with the yellow fever.

Yellow fever in a mild form is said to prevail about seventy-five miles below New Orleans. The health authorities of the Crescent city are disposed to make light of the matter, but the national board of health is making a thorough investigation.

18th.—A dispatch from Vienna says that the Turks and Greeks have had a battle, and the Greeks retreated with a loss of thirty men.

By a powder explosion in Bridgeport, Conn., five men were blown to pieces, and the cartridge factory became scattered ruins.

The Albanians are entrenched in defence of Dulcigno, and there is a prospect of severe fighting in regard to that city.

In Asia Minor the Kurds have devastated thirteen Armenian villages.

19th.—The Albanians have full possession of Dulcigno, the Turkish troops having retired without resistance, showing where their favor was. So if Montenegro or the Powers want it they will have to take it in spite of the agreement of Turkey to cede it peaceably to Montenegro.

A virulent form of rinderpest has broken out in Volhynia—the principal cattle-raising district of Russia.

The agitation in Ireland has partially abated. Parliament is likely to have quite a battle over the situation in Ireland, and its causes, and what may cure its woes.

20th.—The steamer Aurora, from Oporto, Spain, to Southampton, foundered at sea in a heavy storm, and fifty persons were lost.

A fire at Las Vegas, New Mexico, Saturday, destroyed a large number of buildings nearly all of them of the small and cheap order, and rendered about 200 people homeless. The loss is placed at $100,000, which is a heavy sum for a town of that size.

The mining troubles at Corning, Ohio, yesterday, culminated in violence and bloodshed. The miners made a charge on the militia, in the belief that they had nothing more formidable than blank cartridges to fear; they discovered their mistake, receiving a volley which wounded ten of the rioters. This had the effect of throwing the mob into confusion, and made the troops masters of the situation.

The disagreement in the French Cabinet concerning the religious decrees has proved to be more serious than expected, and has resulted in the resignation of Premier De Freycinet, who yesterday notified President Grevy that the differences between himself and certain members of the Cabinet were found to be such that they could not be adjusted by mutual concessions, and that the only hope of bringing about unity and concord lay in his retirement. After due consideration President Grevy decided to accept De Freycinet's resignation, and Jules Ferry was intrusted with the duty of forming a new Cabinet.

A most atrocious assassination was perpetrated Saturday evening at Maryville, Missouri, Dr. P. P. Talbot was seated at a window reading, when some unknown person fired through the window at close range, the ball first cutting off two of his fingers and then passing entirely through his side, inflicting a wound from which he died yesterday. His son rushed to the door and fired, but without effect, and the assassin escaped.

A Ragusa dispatch says the naval demonstration has been postponed until the Christians can leave Dulcigno. A massacre is feared. Vessels will be unable to reach the station soon, as Autumn storms will begin in a fortnight. Admiral Seymour, in a dispatch to Riza Pasha, informs him that he will be held responsible for the lives of Christians in his jurisdiction.

A band of three hundred Serbian brigands has crossed to the Hungarian side of the Danube. A battalion of troops has been ordered to bar their way toward the interior. Much alarm is felt among the traders of western Serbia because of the recent large increase of bands of robbers.

Last night the region of country about Dubuque and Clinton, Iowa, was visited by a heavy storm. Much loss of property by inundation, all the streams emptying into the Mississippi overflowing and farms being covered with water. Also several washouts of culverts and embankments on the railroad.

21st.—In consequence of the recent heavy rains destructive floods occurred Saturday at Bedford, Malton, Newbury, Seaton and Sheffield, and other English towns. Crops and other property have been much injured.

By sawing away the bars of the door, three men escaped from Murfreesboro, Tennessee, jail the day before yesterday. All three were under indictment for murder.

More than half the horses of Boston are suffering from a disease strongly resembling the epizootic, although a milder type. Veterinary surgeons say that every equine in the city will be attacked by the disease. It is feared that it will spread to other parts of the country.

A disastrous fire broke out at Green Bay, Wis., last evening, which resulted in the destruction of sixty of the best residences of that city, thirty barns, and the Presbyterian church. The loss is variously estimated between $150,000 and $175,000.

A family, consisting of six persons, living at Wilkesbarre, Pa., ate of some corn-meal in which arsenic had been mixed for the purpose of poisoning rats. Three of the parties have died from the effects; a servant, and three others will probably die.

The steamship Alsatia, which sailed from New York, Saturday, for London, returned yesterday. When about 250 miles out the coal in her bunkers was discovered to be on fire, and in a short time afterwards there was an explosion which did much damage to the vessel. The fire was not extinguished until the coal was nearly burned. No lives were lost.

"There is not one armed insurgent in the whole island," says a dispatch from Havana, Cuba, which also announces the surrender of one of the rebel chiefs and his followers. It is not too much to predict that Cuba will not be long denied the luxury of another outbreak and a plentiful supply of insurgents. It could scarcely get along without them.

Another South African war is not unlikely. Captain Carrington with seventy of the Cape Town Rifles was recently set upon by a force of 1,200 Basutos, and had a Lieutenant and two of his men killed. The Basutos were routed with considerable loss. The dispatch adds: "Captain Carrington is being reinforced." From which it appears that a renewal of hostilities is expected.

The results of thrashings in the midland and southern counties of England continue to be far from satisfactory to the farmers; the quality of the wheat is poor and the quantity is far below expectation. Prices in the London and in some of the provincial markets have risen in consequence. Heavy rains and floods have done much damage to standing crops in the north of Scotland.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the entrance of Victor Emanuel's soldiery into Rome, and it was celebrated by the people of the Eternal City with great rejoicing. The Italian Premier, Cairoli, and other distinguished persons made patriotic speeches at the Porta Pia. A procession, in which members of the Cabinet and of the City Council took part, was also one of the features of the day. Despite many obstacles and drawbacks the Italians have reason to be proud of United Italy.

The so called Liberal League, composed of free-thinkers and infidels, held a "Congress" in Chicago, the 18th, 19th, and 20th. Col. Ingersoll, one of the vice presidents, opposed a proposition of the body favoring the repeal of all laws against the transmission through the mails of obscene literature. He said that he did not wish to have the Government's mail-bags transformed into a medium for the unchecked distribution of a moral pestilence throughout the land. The "congress" nevertheless adopted the repealing proposition, whereupon Colonel Ingersoll resigned his office, and went out from among them. He certainly did one good thing there for his name and honor, even if his other teachings are infamous and many of them without sense or reason.

22d.—At Beverly, Massachusetts, yesterday, two persons were driving in a carriage across the railroad track when the train passed, demolishing the carriage and killing both occupants.

Yesterday was the 500th anniversary of one of the most important events in the history of the Christian world, the completion of translation of the Bible into English by John Wickliffe, who has not inappropriately been styled "the morning star of the Reformation." The event was celebrated by a convention of representatives of the Bible societies of New Jersey at Trenton.

A fire at Tell City, Indiana, destroyed $50,000 worth of lumber, a number of dwellings occupied by members of the Cabinetmakers' Union, and a large building owned by that society. The loss will reach $200,000. A $10,000 fire occurred at Murraysville, Pennsylvania. A stove and heading factory at Graystown, Ohio, was laid in ashes. The loss is estimated at $20,000. A $130,000 fire occurred in Boston.

Gen. Roberts, of Texas, and some other, prominent residents of that state have completed negotiations with the owners of the Great Eastern to run the mammoth ship between Galveston and London, touching at New Orleans. The vessel will bring out immigrants for Texas, and take back cotton. Arrangements have been made for the reception and location of the immigrants, and the Texans expect to derive many advantages therefrom.

The defaulting President of the Battleboro, Vermont, National Bank, was arrested at Omaha yesterday by United States Treasury detectives while hiding in a cellar.

Transatlantic vessels seem to have encountered much rough weather during the past fourteen days. Very few of them accomplished the voyage in the average time, and some casualties are reported. The steamer Thruasian, from Baltimore for London, lost two men during the voyage, and the City of Chester, for Queenstown, was three days overdue, and had her machinery seriously damaged. The steamer Thorngate, which collided with the Anglia off the coast of Newfoundland about a week ago, causing the latter vessel to sink, is now eight days overdue, and grave fears are entertained for her safety.

After considerable delay and subterfuges, the Porte has finally refused to peacefully cede any territory to Montenegro. This much is announced in a letter to the representatives of Turkey at foreign Courts, in which the Sultan says that he desired to cede the territory in order to prevent bloodshed, but that the naval demonstration is an exercise of armed pressure contrary to the rights of Turkey, and the Sultan therefore casts on the Powers the responsibility for any events which may result therefrom, and from the agitation excited by them among the Mohammedans. What the meaning of the latter statement may be is not plain, except that it foreshadows trouble to the European and Christian residents of Turkey.

Turkish troops at one place are dying at the rate of two hundred per day.

23rd.—By the capsizing of a ferry-boat near Bordeaux, France, yesterday, six persons were drowned.

An extensive fire occurred at Sherburne, New York, last evening. The Congregational church, grocery store, Whalen's Block, and six or seven dwellings were destroyed. The loss is about $30,000.

A genuine, live sea serpent has been captured in the Straits of Deharo, near the Island of Vancouver. It is about six feet in length, with a head like a panther, a mane, and pointed tail. The animal has been photographed. Its body will be preserved in spirits and sent to the Canadian Capital.

The Glasgow ironworkers who struck work some months ago agreed to resume last week on the former terms. Now come the iron masters and say that they have concluded not to relight their furnaces in consequence of the depressed condition of the iron industry. This is certainly rather rough on the strikers.

Battleboro, Vermont, is greatly excited over the arrest of their defaulting bank President, Mr. Waite. The defaulter's son says that the whole story of the causes which led to the defalcation will now be made public, and many persons, hitherto unsuspected, will be connected with the matter as co-conspirators with his father.

By a land-slip at a place called Naini Tal, in the Province of Bengal, British India, eleven British officers, fifteen soldiers, and eleven other persons were killed, and four persons injured.

About 150 British farmers have taken passage in the Teutonia, which left Liverpool yesterday. Their destination is Texas, where they intend to settle and engage in cattle-raising. Many more British farmers will have to leave England should the landlords refuse to make large reductions in rent, as the harvest has been even worse than last year.

Extensive preparations are being made in Tarrytown, and throughout Westchester County, New York, for the observance of the centennial anniversary of the capture of Major Andre. The event will be celebrated by a procession which will be participated in by several military organizations.

At a meeting of the cotton masters held at Manchester, Tuesday, and which was very largely attended by representatives, it was resolved to run the mills on short time. Notices have been already issued to the workmen that the short-time rule will go into operation about the 6th of October. The prospect before the cotton operatives is by no means a pleasant one.

A schooner which was discovered bottom upwards on the 19th inst. in latitude 41:30 north and longitude 64:30 west, is believed to be the Gladiator, which sailed from the Barbadoes for Falmouth, England, some time ago. The dead body of one man was found lashed to the schooner by a rope. The stench from the vessel was almost unbearable. As it was almost in the direct path of the transatlantic vessels, the crew of the pilot boat Pet, which discovered the vessel, bored a hole in its bottom and sunk it.

There can be no question that M. DeFreycinet's resignation of the French Premiership was due to the intrigues of M. Gambetta. The French press with great unanimity hold the latter gentleman responsible for the present crisis, and freely condemn his course. They demand that he shall take the Premiership himself, but Gambetta is too adroit to do any such thing, as he would then be responsible for any mistakes of policy, while under the present arrangement he can shelter himself behind his puppets.

Monday is the day fixed on for the naval demonstration against Turkey. There appears to be no probability now of a peaceable settlement of the Eastern question, but what shall be done when the naval demonstration is over is yet a matter of conjecture. One correspondent says that the Dardanelles will be blockaded, the Sultan deposed, and one more in consonance with the ideas of the Powers set up in his place. It is doubtful whether even such a course would result in any permanent settlement of the Eastern difficulty.

LEHI CITY, Utah,
September 9th, 1880.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—We held meeting last night at Bro. Clark's—good turn out and had fair time. Will hold services on Friday night. The people will be glad to see you. There is now strong talk of discussion. Last night they talked the matter over, and they think they can come to some agreement. The prime mover in it is a young lawyer. They proposed to affirm that the Bible sanctioned polygamy. I told them Latter Day Saints ought not to go back on their own books. They want us to affirm; and throw the burden of proof on us. They wanted me to affirm that the polygamy revelation was not of God, and they would give me the three books to produce my evidence from. I wanted to discuss succession as well, so as to take in all the important questions between us. They want to have two on a side. There is considerable excitement over it. This lawyer will force the authorities to discuss, if possible. If you could be here on Friday night, they may have made up their minds by that time. I told them the revelation was not of God; and rather than not get it before the people, I will affirm that it is not from God, according to the books. If you don't come I will let you know what they do, and send you the proposition, so you can give me some instruction. All is well.

Yours in Christ,
R. J. ANTHONY.

PROVIDENCE, Rhode Island,

President Joseph; Dear Brother:—We are having a good time. T. W. Smith is with us, and is teaching Tithing, and tells us we must keep it to obtain the blessing. I have made up my mind to keep it and all the laws of God, by his assistance. What a difference between this tithing and the Brighamite's tithing.

Yours in the gospel,
T. H. MOORE.

FERRIS, September 16th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—I am still in Zion's cause, trusting that truth will prevail, and righteousness be spread abroad in the land. Our District Conference convened at Keokuk, Iowa, September 4th and 5th; Bro. J. F. McDowell, president. We had a peaceful meeting on Saturday, and especially good upon Sunday, God's Spirit being with us. Five were baptized on Sunday. I was at Henderson Grove Branch in August, two Sabbaths. The branch hold meetings every Sabbath. The members are so scattered that attendance is generally small. I tried to interest them the second Sabbath by speaking. The Saints seem generally faithful, and desirous that Zion may prosper. I also visited Sr. Betsy Ames, she is eighty-six years old, living alone, but strong in the faith of our Lord; striving by circulating the Herald and such tracts as she can get, and by her testimonies, to advance the cause of truth. She is poor in this world's goods, yet rich in faith. Enclosed find $1.50, please send me one copy of Holy Scriptures.

Yours in truth,
L. U. PARSONS.

WEIR, Kansas, Sept. 2d, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—Bro. D. S. Crawley preached two splendid sermons on yesterday at our branch school house, four miles east. Brethren, we are daily made to rejoice in the latter day work, and for the Herald and Hope, we every day wish and pray that they may ere many a day become a weekly; for there are many good pieces not printed for want of room. May God help us to live by every word of God.

C. M. FULKS.

LONDON, Ontario,
August 31st, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—In order that my brethren in the ministry and the Saints may know my whereabouts, I write to inform them that I am well at present, for which I thank God, also that my faith is unshaken in the gospel of Christ. It is founded upon that rock which can not be moved. I have watched its progress with deep anxiety, and notwithstanding the powerful opposition of the world, and the combined efforts of the enemy of souls, and the many unwise sayings and doings of the Saints, my own with the others; yet it will triumph, and is progressing in the face of every opposition. My experience has taught me that it is only when I am living under the influence of the Spirit that I am able to minister the gospel with good effect to others. I have just returned from a tour among the various branches in the London District, over which I preside. At Toronto there are good Saints, strong in the faith, though some had been in darkness, but all seem now to be awake to their duty. I was kindly entertained, and my wants supplied at the residence of Bro. and Sister Haty. Bro. Neil Clark, who lives at Boston Mill, forty or fifty miles from Toronto, came to our meetings, and went away much encouraged. Sister Askins came thirty miles to attend. They also ministered to my wants. I preached once in the park in Toronto; had a large audience and good attention; baptized one. I left them in good spirits, promising to sustain their meetings in the future. I went to Collingwood, on Georgian Bay; baptized Thomas Griffin, formerly of the Brighamite Church. I believe he will be a useful man. I went to Gray county, where I baptized two; thirty-six baptized there within a year. Bro. Thomas Griffith, with good effects following his labors; may God bless and prosper him. Bro. McIntosh has done a good work there; also Bro. Scott and Bro. Phillips. Bro. McIntosh has just gone back there.

I came back by Carlingford, where all the Saints find a cheerful welcome. I baptized one there. I came to Osborne, where the Saints have a beautiful chapel, and are alive to the work and always willing to entertain. The Saints felt much disappointed at the sudden departure of Bro. Scott. The people in that vicinity were much taken up with his preaching, and wish him to return. Bro. John Cornish is active as the teacher of the branch, teaching both by his example and his means.

The St. Thomas Branch has only a Teacher to preside, but they are strong in the faith. The Bayham Branch (over which Bro. Christopher Pearson presides) I think is in the best standing of any in Canada. I never knew them to have an Elder's court, but always found them at peace with each other. The wife of the president and his excellent sister, Janet Pearson, are like mothers in Israel. They have stood the storm of persecution for something near thirty years, and suffered much affliction, but are still bright witnesses of the truth and of the power of God.

The Egermont Branch, Gray county, is only partly organized, presided over by a Teacher, the only one holding office in the branch, very zealous for the cause. Others will yet hold office, but the time has not come for their ordination. They are living in peace and unity.

The London Branch numbers more than any other branch in Canada, presided over at present by Bro. Edgar Harrington. There are probably as good Saints in the London Branch as can be found in any other, but there is a party spirit that may destroy that branch, if not subdued. I hope that Bro. W. H. Kelley will come to our conference and bring other Elders with him. After conference I expect to labor in northern Michigan for the winter, if not otherwise directed. Those who wish can address me at London East, Ontario, care of Edgar Harrington; after conference to Davison, Genesee county, Mich. Pray for me. My love to all Saints.

Yours in the gospel,
ROBERT DAVIS.

CHICAGO, Illinois,

Dear Herald: Please say to the Saints at Braidwood, Streator, Sandwich and Plano, that I arrived home on Thursday evening last, and found my wife able to be up. She is gaining rapidly. She joins me in sending love to all the Saints, and especially to the Saints at Streator, for to them we owe the greatest gratitude, not forgetting the dear Saints at Mission, who ministered greatly to our wants, as also at Sandwich. We love them all, and hope to meet with them soon again. The love of the Saints and of our Lord Jesus constrains me to be ever mindful of you all.

By-by,
CLARENCE STCLAIR.

MILTON, Santa Rosa Co., Florida,
September 6th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—I went from the district conference, held in Bro. Manning's neighborhood, home with Father Odum, where I spent nearly two weeks in profitable study, preaching once at Bro. Odum's house. Preached August 21st and 22nd at the residence of Mr. Levens, on what is known as Mud Flat. This gentleman is a friend to the cause, and he and his family are investigating the doctrine, as also are others in his neighborhood, who earnestly invited us to "come again." I preached near Bro. J. Reeder's, on August 24th. At the close one gentleman desired us to pray for him, feeling very much interested; and others were inclined to pronounce the doctrine good. In the evening preached at Bro. Reeder's house on Perdido River.

The 26th found me at Bro. Squire's. A considerable congregation had assembled, and I endeavored to teach them some of the words of eternal life. Saturday evening, 28th, preached about twelve miles from Milton, and upon the Sabbath urged that men should seek the kingdom of God. Bro. L. T. West was with me Saturday and Sunday. I had intended to hold a series of meetings during the following week, but after Monday night, the rainy weather prevented. There are only two families of Saints in this neighborhood, but a number are almost persuaded. I left a promise to come again. Saturday and Sunday, September 4th and 5th, attended two-days' meeting in the Santa Rosa Branch, and talked some to the Saints and people. May God bless you and all who are laboring for Zion.

Your brother in Christ,
FRANK P. SCARCLIFF.

STRETHROY, Ont.,
September 21st, 1880.

Bro. Joseph: Our conference is over; peace and harmony prevailed; had a good time; one was baptized. R. Davis still presiding over the district. G. T. Griffiths is still in Ontario, doing good. The district is in a moderate condition. R. Davis has been in it since last conference, but he will be in Michigan soon. Written on the train.

JOHN J. CORNISH.

EGREMONT, Grey Co., Ontario,
September 11th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—The Saints here are well, spiritually and otherwise. There are now thirty-six in this branch. Two more have offered for baptism. I open a new place in Mt. Forest (a hornet's nest) to-night; expect to continue in the region round here for this month, probably longer. Have been in the field since June 11th, except six weeks (harvesting). Pray send some one, or use your influence, as the demand here is very great. I wrote to Bro. W. H. Kelley, but have no word yet. I see that seven others besides himself were assigned to his mission, can not at least one of them come here. New fields are needed to be opened, and I never could have thought it possible that the call for Elders to come "our way" was so great until I came here. I made another new opening fifteen miles from here, on the way coming, at a town called Harriston, in Wellington county; am urgently requested to come again. This is two new places since June 11th; to-night will be the third. To-night's meeting is the talk of every one; expect a large turn out; have hired a hall.

Yours in the everlasting covenant,
J. A. MCINTOSH.

BOTHWELL, Ontario,
September 11th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—We baptized two a week ago last Sunday, and expect three or four more tomorrow. I went to hear a Free Methodist preacher, (a woman), the other day; she did very well for one who has not a knowledge of the truth; but it was most all Holy Spirit, the power, &c. Well, if those people enjoy so much Spirit-power and the like, I don't know where it enters them, for they seem to be sewed up with what few thoughts they have, and it appears to be impossible to lead them out on a conversation on the gospel. After trying to exchange a few thoughts with them, I was greeted with declaration that discussion did not reach the soul. I told them if such was the case the Savior did not set us a good example. Wishing your prosperity both spiritual and temporal,

I remain your brother,
ARTHUR LEVERTON.

BURCHVILLE, Michigan,
September 14th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—I have been preaching here and at Jeddo again, also a new place, seven miles from (north of) Port Huron. I have had liberty here. We have many friends and less enemies than when I was here before. The three that were baptized some time ago are strong in the faith. I am now on my way to London conference.

Yours,
J. J. CORNISH.

LAMONI, Iowa,
September, 1880.

Bro. C. Scott left this morning, 9th, and Bro. Short on yesterday, enroute for Conference. Each gave us a good preach. We feel well when we think of these young but able defenders of the truth; may they ever be humble that they may be useful always.

HENRY C. SMITH.

SAN FRANCISCO, California,
September 14th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—When visiting Decatur county, Iowa, one of the many things that we observed was the abundant growth of the rare plant Sumac, the most valuable of all plants containing tannin properties.

Tanning leather for domestic purposes is always one of the most profitable and permanent industries of permanent communities, and highly favored is that community where nature has bountifully supplied it with the elements of this industry that at once becomes a valuable factor in its wealth and independent character. Decatur, especially, seems to be thus bestowed; hence we suggested, believing as we do in the permanency and future standing of the colony, that this important industry should be duly considered by encouraging the growth of this invaluable indigenous plant.

We send a clipping upon the subject for the consideration of the colony, and in it we fancy we can see how it can be advantageously grown as an element of profit and picturesque beauty in Decatur.

We observed in our letter from there that it had a feathery, shallow, but rich soil, compact and lasting in its natural grassy chains, but subject to much washing, especially from its highest points and abrupt runs in times of heavy rains where broken for agricultural purposes.

All this it seems to me can be prevented if utilized for the growth of this plant, and what a delightful landscape picture Decatur would present with its highest points crowned with the rich and variegated foliage of this plant.

After the brethren in Decatur have read the clipping, we hope some one will see its importance, and devote a few acres of otherwise washable land as a nursery for the plant, and thus demonstrate its worth and practicability for Decatur.

In our opinion the land requires no breaking; with you, simply a preparation with the hoe or spade for the young plant or root, and once started the future cultivation or attention will be but nominal.

T. J. ANDREWS.

HERSMAN STATION, Illinois,
June 14th, 1880.

Editor Herald:—I have felt for some time that it was my duty to write to the Herald, as it might benefit some and help to build up the Church of Christ. I believe it to be the duty of every church member, woman or man, to write to the Herald. I was a believer but would not obey, when in the Fall of 1866, I was taken suddenly very sick. This was on a Friday before conference. The next day was Saturday and meeting began. By the help of the Lord I went to meeting that night, and Sunday, and Sunday night, when it seemed that the Lord would raise me from my seat to get up and repent. I would not. That spirit came to me, I don't know how many times; then another contending spirit would say No. I commenced growing sicker and sicker. I thought to reach home if it was possible; finally I got home, went to bed, next morning I lay there awful sick, and growing worse all the time. This remained for several days, when they wanted me to have the doctor. I told them I didn't want him. The five days I lay there the words of God were made known to me. "He that knoweth the will of the Father and doeth it not, shall be beaten with many stripes." I spoke to my sister-in-law, present, and told her: "Now, I have known the will of my Father and have not obeyed it. Then it was made known to me that if I wasn't baptized to-day I would not live to see to-morrow." I told her not to tell ma. Mother came in, sat on my bed, when I had to reveal it to her. It was afternoon then; a short time for a sick girl to repent and get to the creek when so sick that I couldn't walk alone, and no means of conveyance. The water was one half or three quarters of a mile off. O, brethren and sisters, I thought I must die before I could get in the water. But I got there, when I came out I could have got into the buggy alone. I went home and sat up a while, and then lay down to rest. For several days I didn't gain my strength as fast as I thought I might. I gained it slowly for several days when I thought that I wanted a drink out of the place where I was baptized; my sister by name, and in the Church, was made to know what I wanted; she went and got the water for me; I drank it, my raging thirst was quenched, my soul revived, my strength increased, and now I live in Him, and can bear my testimony that I have had no spell of fever since. I belong to the branch at North Bend. I am now somewhat afflicted with weak lungs and a bad cough, which will terminate in consumption if not prevented. I ask you to pray for me. I believe in the sending for the elders of the Church, but it is against my husband's will.

Your sister in the Church of Christ,
AMANDA WHEELER.

NEW CANAAN, Fairfield Co., Conn.,
September 4th, 1880.

Brother Stebbins:—I went to New York last week; stayed at Bro. Truman's. On Sunday saw Bro. Owen; went to meeting in the afternoon; had a good one. After meeting went with Bro. Joseph Squires and son to the water, and he baptized me and his son. There was thunder and lightning, and the rain fell fast, but the Spirit of God was with us, and I felt like a summer morning, calm and filled with peace and love. In the evening Bro. Owen gave an instructive sermon. I felt much edified and blest. I was then confirmed, and it was proposed that I should be ordained an Elder in the Reorganized Church. So I received these blessings under the hands of Elders Squires and Owens, on August 29th, 1880, in the Brooklyn Branch, New York.

Now, Bro. Stebbins, I feel once more that peace that passeth all understanding; thank God for his gospel; I love it and I pray that God will give me strength and integrity to do all the good I can, and no evil; for that mars the spirit of peace. No man on the globe but myself knows how I have felt in times past. Sometimes I wish I had come to Plano, but I suppose it is all right; God knows best. But then I would not have experienced what I have; for to be satisfied, people must go to Salt Lake and see the deception.

May God bless all honest-hearted men and women, and open the way for them that they may hear and see the truth, is my earnest prayer in the name of Jesus Christ; amen.

Yours in the gospel,
STEPHEN STONE.

LEWISTOWN, Ills.,
September 23d, 1880.

Bro. Joseph: Bro. J. S. Patterson has been with us about two weeks, doing some splendid good preaching; has now left for other parts of his field of labors. He spoke in one school-house six times, having good liberty and good attention.

Yours as ever,
T. F. STAFFORD.

The committee on the case of Bro. A. D. Moon reported, recommending that the brother be notified to appear at the next conference and show cause why his office should not be taken from him, and that the president of the district be ordered to silence him and demand his license, and that the Providence Branch be requested to take immediate steps in dealing with him as a transgressor. Their report was received and adopted.

Adjourned to meet at Fall River, Massachusetts, September 25th, 1880.

NORTH-EASTERN MISSOURI DISTRICT.

Conference met at Oak Ridge, Macon county, Mo.; president John Taylor in the chair; Edward L. Page, secretary. Brother Taylor wished Bro. J. H. Lake to preside, and a resolution was carried to that effect.

Branch Reports:—Hannibal, 27; no changes. A resolution was also passed by the Hannibal Branch thanking Bro. John Taylor for his past services as president of the branch, and of the district, and sustaining him in his presidency over them. Bevier, (six months), last report, 88, present 96; 4 baptized, 2 received and 1 removed by letter, 1 died, 1 Deacon ordained. Salt River, last report, 21, present 24; 3 baptized. It was resolved that the names of those baptized in the Salt River Branch, and which did not accompany present report, should be added thereto. Renick, last report, 15, present 16; including 1 baptized.

Elders Phillips and Foxall reported by letter, and Taylor, Thrutchley, Perry, Page and Priests Winn, Davis and Mussell in person, and Bro. Perry reported for Bro. J. T. Williams.

The Bishop's Agent said he would like to have something to report. He spoke of the negligence of the Saints in financial matters, and asked for instructions. Bro. Lake read an article found in the Herald, and gave instructions thereon.

Resolved that we sustain the Bishop's Agent with our temporal means.

Resolved that the clerks of the several branches be required to furnish the district clerk with the names and all information obtainable of those members whose names are not on record.

Bro. Perry asked where local officers should receive their appointments, and the president replied from the district conference.

President Taylor referred to his circumstances, and asked that this conference provide him with an assistant, and expressed a wish that Bro.

Ephriam Rowland be appointed, which was done. Evening. Bro. Lake occupied the stand and spoke upon the Book of Mormon. Reviewing the Solomon Spaulding story he showed from the book itself its inconsistency and untruth.

Sunday morning Bro. John Taylor preached, followed by Bro. Lake.

At 2 p. m. met in social meeting, and a peaceful and happy time was enjoyed, and the Holy Spirit was plainly manifest.

Evening services were conducted by Bro. Lake.

After a very pleasant and peaceful session, conference adjourned to Bevier, Saturday, 13th day of November, 1880.

EASTERN IOWA DISTRICT.

A conference was held at Amber, Jones county, Iowa, August 14th, 1880, with Edward Larkey in the chair.

Resolved that we ordain J. Johnson and Frederick Sheen as Elders. In the case of the last named it was thought best to call a branch meeting before ordaining him. J. Johnson was ordained under the hands of J. Brown and E. Kelsall.

Committee on Davenport Branch matters reported. Report received and the committee discharged.

Resolved that Richard Rowley be severed as an Elder of this district, until he sets himself right in the church.

Committee on J. D. Bennett's case reported by referring to minute book, pages 225, 229, 233, 240, 243, 248. Report accepted and committee discharged.

Bishop's Agent reported collections and disbursements for the quarter $10.16.

Elders E. T. Bryant, J. W. Terry, J. A. Robinson and John Chisnal, reported the condition of their respective branches, and D. S. Holmes, I. B. Larew and J. L. Adams, reported in person their labors in the missions assigned them, and J. S. Jones and J. S. Patterson by letter.

Report of Kewanee Sabbath School showed the number of scholars 62, teachers and officers 6; average attendance 40; disbursements during the quarter $16.46; distributed 300 Hopes. Eliza France, secretary.

Bro. Chisnal, in behalf of Committee of enquiry in the matter of the non-publication of conference minutes of August, 1878, made report fully exonerating the secretary from all blame, as said minutes were duly forwarded to the Herald Office.

Bro. Hopkins tendered his resignation as secretary of the district, which was accepted, and John Chisnal was chosen in his stead.

Committee on Bishop's Agent's book reported accounts all correct.

Elders D. S. Holmes, I. B. Larew, J. H. Hopkins, L. Adams and J. W. Ferry, were appointed to district fields.

Upon invitation, Pres. J. Smith addressed the conference upon the abundant harvest in view, the increased responsibility upon us in making a proper application of the proceeds thereof, and he urged the Saints to confidence in the practical application of the law of God, and also asked, of what use is it to testify our willingness to give all we have to the Lord when we could not give a tenth of it.

At 7 30 p. m., Elder Robinson preached.

Sunday: At 9 a. m., a fellowship meeting in charge of Bro. J. L. Adams. A very interesting time was had, many bearing testimony, and the Holy Spirit was manifest in tongues and interpretation. At 10 30 a. m., Pres. Joseph Smith addressed a large congregation from a stand erected out doors. A basket picnic dinner was spread upon the shaded grass by kind and liberal hands. A general feeling of peace and good will prevailed. At 2 p. m., Elder C. Scott addressed the assembly. Afterwards the Saints met in the house to partake of the Lord's supper. At 7 30 p. m., Pres. Smith preached. He gave warning against the seductive influences that will be brought to bear to ruin men, and cautioned the brethren against the spirit of division that will try and make an inroad among them for their destruction.

Adjourned to Kewanee, Dec. 5th and 6th, 1880.

Resolved that I. N. White go to the General Semi-Annual Conference as our representative, and that we recommend him to the Bishop's Agent of this district for means to pay his railway expenses to and from Conference.

Adjourned to meet at Newton, on Saturday, December 11th, 1880, at 3 p. m.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICES.

Thomas Tyler, son of John and Annie Tyler, of the county of Hereford, and last residence Aberdeen street, Birmingham, England, sailed for America in 1866. Present address: Lawrence, Douglas county, Kansas.

At a regular meeting of the Gallatin Branch, held at Reese Creek, Montana, August 17th, 1880, Elder John J. Reese, at his own request, was expelled from the Church of Jesus Christ.

J. E. REESE, President.
G. REESE, Clerk.

NOTICE TO APPEAR.

Bro. Wm. Shaw: you are hereby notified to meet the brethren of the Little Sioux District, in conference assembled at Magnolia, Iowa, Saturday, December 4th, 1880, to answer to the following charges: 1st. Desertion of wife and family without cause. 2nd. Not corresponding with them, so as to keep them informed as to your whereabouts. And that unless you appear to answer to the above charges at said time and place, on or before noon of said day, that action will be had in your case as though you were present. Given under our hands at Magnolia, August 28th, 1880.

J. C. CRABB, President,
Wm. C. CADWELL, Clerk.

TWO DAYS' MEETINGS.

There will be a series of two days' meetings held at the following named places in the Nauvoo and String Prairie District: Farmington, October 16th and 17th; Keokuk, October 23d and 24th; Rock Creek, October 30th and 31st; Montrose, November 6th and 7th; Burlington, November 13th and 14th. These services will convene at the usual hours for two days' meetings. Let them all be as well attended as possible. Let them be characterized by a spirit of peace and spiritual life, that they may prove beneficial to all. Any of the itinerant ministry who may be in the district at or during the time of these meetings will be welcomed.

One word to the resident ministry of the district, and those who may travel in it. We desire the pulpits in our district strictly guarded against any of the common "slang phrases" of the day, and any language not refined and pleasing to be heard. Throw around the pulpit the "rail of divinity." Shut out all unrefinement of expression. Let the pulpit be what it represents itself, and any who can not act properly in it had better remain out.
J. F. McDOWELL, President.

A two day meeting will be held at the School-house in Guilford, Michigan, October 30th and 31st, 1880. I hope Bro. J. J. Cornish will remember the date and also attend.
EDWARD DELONG.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice.

MARRIED.

BECKMAN—DIGGLE.—At the residence of the bride's parents in Unionburg, Harrison county, Iowa, on Thursday, September 2nd, 1880, by Elder Phineas Cadwell, Mr. John A. Beckman and Miss Mercy Diggle, daughter of Bro. Samuel Diggle, all of Unionburg, Iowa. About fifty friends and relatives were present on the interesting occasion; a bounteous feast was prepared and partaken of freely by all present, and a truly enjoyable time was had.

DIED.

ELDRIDGE.—Another veteran in the cause has closed his labors in this life, and gone to his rest. Elder Nathan Eldridge of Dennisport, Massachusetts, died at his home, August 31st, 1880, aged 67 years, 8 months and 27 days. He was conscious to the last, and fully aware of the change through which he was about to pass, and died firm in the faith of the gospel. He was a member in the old organization, and when the work of the Reorganization began in Dennisport, he became connected with it and remained true to the end. He was buried September 2nd, 1880. A large number of friends and Saints attended the funeral. Services by Elder John Smith, according to his request before death.

WILLIAMS.—Near Weston, Pottawatomie county, Iowa, September 17th, 1880, of typhoid fever, Cora D. Williams, aged 14 years, 11 months and 1 day. She was nigh unto death some eighteen months ago; but by the power of God, through the administration of Hans Hansen, she was raised up, and he afterwards baptized her. Funeral sermon by R. M. Elvin; text, John 11: 25.

GURLEY.—At Lamoni, Iowa, Thursday, June 17th, 1880, after a severe illness of brain fever from teething, Lois M, only child of Bro. E. H. and Sr. Mida Gurley, aged 1 year and 17 days.

TO MIDA.
God has taken little Lois,
He has taken her above,
And we hope to see her sometime,
See your darling little love,
How we loved your little Lois,
And we think of her each day,
And we know she is in heaven,
Where the angels always stay,
You nor Eddie need not sorrow,
She has gone no more to roam,
If we're faithful, we will meet her,
When our Savior calls us home.

DOLLIE RODGER.

YOHE.—At Mount Vernon, Jackson county, O., August 17th, 1880, Libby, infant daughter of John and Amanda Yohe, aged 11 months and 12 days.

ADAMSON.—At Scranton, Osage county, Kansas, June 22d, 1880, Sophia, daughter of Peter and Mary Adamson, aged one year, 9 months and 18 days. Sermon by Elder J. B. Jarvis.

BEARSS.—At Corinth, Ontario, July 2d, 1880, Thomas Arthur Bearss, aged 11 months and 18 days. Funeral sermon by Elder Arthur Leverton. in the M. E. Church, Corinth; the congregation numbering about four hundred.

ON SUMAC.

Editors Rural Press:—Your articles on sumac (Rhus coriaria) have sent me to all accessible authorities, and, without claiming special credit for anything besides a compilation, I forward a few notes on sumac in Italy, and also in our Southern States.

Sumac grows from two to three feet in a season in the ordinary soils around Palermo. Manure is never used. Stony soil will produce well. The plant does not bear much moisture, and does best on a hillside with a southern exposure. The soil is prepared as for potatoes, and young suckers, or pieces of the root, are planted in rows far enough apart to allow of cultivation. It can be grown from seed, which must be soaked well before planting. The planting time in Italy is during January.

In August, of the first year, the leaves are stripped from the lower branches, and in October the whole head is broken off. The second year, in June, the branches are again stripped, and in August the whole plant is cut down to within a foot of the ground. The branches are dried in the shade, and then beaten with a flail to separate the leaves from the wood, which has no value. The leaves are then ground by a stone revolving on its edge about a center, or by any simple arrangement with close rollers. The product is then sifted and packed for market. A sumac plantation will produce a good article for 10 years, and an inferior one 10 years longer, after which it must be grown on other land. Two thousand pounds of sumac per acre is considered a good average yield.

So much for the Rhus coriaria, or European sumac. In the United States R. glabra and R. typhina have been used for tanning. Since 1867 sumac has been gathered and prepared in the Southern States, and its quality is claimed to be superior. The "Agricultural Report for 1869," page 230, has an interesting report, from which I quote:

FINEST SICILIAN. (Lead Seal Pepero).		FINEST AMERICAN. (Virginia).
Tannin.....	23.65	Tannin.....	30.00
Sand.....	1.00	Sand.....	.50
Vegetable fiber.....	75.35	Vegetable fiber.....	69.50
Total.....	100.00	Total.....	100.00

Sumac ought to be tried, and on some soils will probably be of value. The proper adaptation of the land can be found by experiment. Take sulphuric ether and dissolve 100 grains of leaves, then draw off the ether by heat, and the deposit will be pure tannin. Cinchona may also be used as a test.

SEEKING FRUIT.

A master comes to his garden. He turns over leaves of pear and plum-trees, and he looks along the branches of the peach-trees. "Trees look very healthy, don't they, sir?" says the gardener, in a satisfied way. Then they pass into the orchard. "Nice trees these, sir," observes the gardener. "Very choice sorts, golden pippin and russet." Then they turn to the hot-houses: "Vines and pines look very promising," says the gardener, smiling complacently. At last the master speaks out, half angrily, "What in the world is the use of healthy trees, and of choice sorts, and of promising plants? I don't want green leaves and fine young wood only—I want fruit. And if you can't get it I must find somebody that can."

The Lord of the vineyard comes to us. He stands before us and looks underneath the leaves of our profession, searching for fruit. Good desires, good feelings, good endeavors, all our praying, all our believing,—everything else counts for nothing unless their be some fruit.

This is what our Master requires and seeks.

SENSIBLE SHOES.

Just how much agony—real agony—is endured by our young ladies, and old ones too, from wearing tight, narrow-soled shoes, will never be known, but evidently it is enormous. The fondness of American women for neat fitting shoes is proverbial, and as the feet of our girls are proverbially smaller than those of any other nation, Chinese excepted, it is not surprising that they feel inclined to show them to the best possible advantage.

The English girls have larger feet, and they are more sensible in the treatment of them. Narrow-soled shoes are to them an abomination. They avoid them as they would the pestilence, and shoes with thin soles are equally their aversion. The consequence is they are not, as a general thing, troubled with corns, and are therefore, always in good condition for walking, a recreation in which they indulge to a much larger extent than do our girls.

No sensible woman will wear a tight or a narrow, light-soled shoe, even though she thereby destroys somewhat the comeliness of her feet in dressing. The common-sense shoe is stout and broad in the sole, with low and broad heels and soft laced uppers. Thus shod, she is prepared for walking with comfort, which can not be done with the ridiculously narrow, high-heeled affairs generally worn in America.

HAVANA CIGARS FROM PAPER.

The straw paper manufacturers of the Chatham portion of Columbia county, N. Y., have for many years been aware that their product has nearly all gone South, and been used in Cuba as fillers of cigars. None of them manufacture specially with this end in view, although their paper is well adapted for "bogns" cigar making. The paper used for the purpose indicated is of the lightest weight it is possible to make. There is one mill in the county, located at Queechy, which manufactures the straw paper expressly for wrappers—not fillers. The Queechy Paper Company's paper mill is situated on a creek but a short distance below a lake, and being at the head of the stream, the water is of much greater purity, and hence their ability to produce the desired article of paper. The straw paper used in filling the Havana cigars is saturated with a decoction prepared from the stem and refuse of Havana seed leaf, mingled with which are extracts of liquorice-root, senna, etc. The paper is so skillfully stamped to resemble the tobacco leaves, the very veins of the leaf being perfectly imitated, that it can seldom, if ever, be detected from the genuine article.

DESPONDENCY.

The most perilous hour of a person's life is when he is tempted to despond. The man who loses his courage loses all; there is no more hope of him than of a dead man; but it matters not how poor he may be, how much pushed by circumstances, how much deserted by friends, how much lost to the world; if he only keeps his courage, holds up his head, works on with his hands and with unconquerable will determines to be and to do what becomes a man, all will be well. It is nothing outside of him that kills, but what is within, that makes or unmakes.

The Illinois Humane Society has erected and now maintains thirteen street fountains, which are located in various parts of Chicago, with a large fountain in each division of the city. Its fountain system furnishes facilities for watering 40,000 persons and 30,000 horses per day, to say nothing of dogs, etc. It is proposed to increase these facilities from time to time, until public drinking fountains shall be familiar objects upon all the business streets and promenades.

Daniel Webster penned the following beautiful sentiment: "If we work upon marble, it will perish; if we work upon brass, time effaces it; if we rear temples, they will crumble to dust; if we work upon human minds—imbue them with principles, with the just fear of God and love for their fellow men—we engrave upon these tablets something which will brighten forever."

MICHIGAN AND INDIANA CONFERENCE.

The conference for Michigan and Northern Indiana will convene on Saturday, October 23rd, at the Ball School-house, six miles north-east of Coldwater. Those coming by Railway will be met at the Coldwater depot on Friday, the 22d, at 1:30, and 2 p.m., as the trains pass east and west about that time. Should any come on any other trains, and arrive at different hours from those mentioned, enquire for Bradford Corless or William H. Kelley. Both reside on East Chicago Street. If the weather is favorable, we will have the light of the moon in returning from evening meetings. A full attendance is desired. A report from each branch in the district is expected. The several branches of the district should not forget to send in their reports in due time. Send some one to bring them, or address them to William H. Kelley, Box 596, Coldwater, Michigan.

Let us meet together for a common good; to serve the interest of the cause of truth, and comfort and build each other up spiritually; so that with faith increased, hope inspired, we may be rendered stronger, and encouraged to continue on in the service of the Master. Our cause is a great one. It is worthy of our time and consideration. It is worthy of our sacrifice and anxiety for its success. Let us do all we can to move it forward by being engaged every way possible to render it service. Come to conference, then, filled with faith, the love of God, joy and peace, singing the songs of Zion, and we will have a profitable and cheering meeting.

Pictures.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MINUTES.

SEPTEMBER 12TH TO 19TH, 1880.

The Semi-Annual session of the General Conference convened, according to appointment, near Council Bluffs, Iowa, at 10 o'clock, a.m., on Sunday, September 12th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith was called to preside, and Bro. Henry A. Stebbins to act as Secretary, he to choose his assistant. He chose Bro. Eli T. Dobson, and the choice was confirmed by the Conference.

At the opening session a hymn was sung and prayer was offered by John H. Lake, followed by the hymn, "Glorious things are sung of Zion."

A force of thirteen brethren was appointed as local police for the preservation of order in and around the camp; namely, Levi Wilson, G. E. Montague, G. C. Tripp, J. Dickey, G. W. Coffman, W. M. Goreham, Benj. Kester, L. McCord, G. W. Wight, O. Ballantyne, T. W. Chatburn, N. Booth and W. F. Lane.

Bro. Joseph Smith preached, taking for a text the words of Christ, "Occupy till I come." He said that the text did not mean a sitting down and occupying in idleness, but an active occupying, with the wise use of all our faculties and powers. We must exercise the forces at our command in a spiritual occupation. God says that all his laws are spiritual in their nature and tendency, and whether Zion is to be a temporal city or a spiritual one, it must be occupied by a spiritual and righteous people. The command to occupy has an individual and also a collective application to the people who are working and waiting till He who commands them to occupy till He come shall come. We have made progress, for the time was when many waited without occupying, or were as drift wood upon the stream of time; but in place of drift wood, we now have much timber towards building the great structure, or they may be called "lively stones," as Peter spoke of them in his day. I look to see much more done in the future than has been done in the past, for the work is gaining in permanency of character, though everything that can be shaken will be shaken, even all who do not become thoroughly identified with the spirit of the work, and such will be shaken aside, and will so find themselves in time. We have waited, and we could afford to wait; in fact we were the only people upon the earth who could afford to; that is we can if we only abide in steadfastness, and occupy in a faithful activity. We have been scourged, we have learned, and we must learn more still, and must occupy in the way God desires us to do. Men have said that we were too slow, and that we have forgotten the gathering, and temple-building, and the making of the city; but such have been anxious in mind only, and have not set at doing the required work that goes before, nor are they being prepared as lively stones in this waiting time. We are occupying spiritually, and ought to do so constantly, as under a spiritual law, and until He shall come who gave the command and the law, we are occupying for others as well as for ourselves. We are occupying for Christ, that he may come into his kingdom when he desires to; and we should be so identified with him as to be doing his work among the poor, the down-trodden and the oppressed of the earth, that they may be lifted up and made free. There are indications that God's Spirit is moving in the world, to call out men of enlarged and noble views, who may aid in the spiritual liberation of those whom we call the honest in heart. And we ought to welcome this advance on their part. Finally, whatever is pure and lovely and of good report, think upon these things, and thus occupy till He shall indeed come.

Bro. J. T. Kinnaman was called to have charge of the singing during the conference, and all the singers were invited to take special interest in these exercises. Bro. Almon Hougas acted as organist. A hymn was sung and the benediction was pronounced.

At 2 p.m., the hymn "Guide us O thou Great Jehovah," was sung, and prayer was offered by Bro. James Caffall, followed by singing the hymn, "Praise ye the Lord."

Bro. Columbus Scott preached, starting from the words in Jesus' prayer, wherein he asked the Father that all might be one in them and with them. He said that the state opposite to one of union was one of trouble, unrest and unhappiness. Man has never yet been able to invent a system of principles that would bring either union or salvation. Hence Christ, the perfect man from heaven, gave a combination and union of principles that will accomplish the object. And in the first century of our era, they did cause a unity among the early Christians that was glorious. I believe that the time is near when the conflict will be between those who believe in Christ, in his Messiahship, in his atonement, and those who deny his Sonship and his atoning power. Many admit now that he was a good man, a man of spiritual power, a good medium, etc.; but the vital question is, Was he indeed sent of God into the world as an offering for sin, in fact just what the Scriptures represent him to have been in his character and mission.

We seek to show that God formerly endowed his servants with the Holy Spirit, in order that they might teach a unity of gospel principles and faith, that they might all teach the same things. This continued for a time, but it did not last, for men began to use the agency that God gave them, and strayed from those pure and heavenly principles by which they had before been led into all truth. The Savior placed himself in complete harmony with God's will; for it is written, "I come to do thy will, O God." There is a desire among all men for happiness, but they seek it in many ways; and many of them seek it in perverted ways, and find no happiness at last, after all their seeking. Hence correct instruction is needed how to find true happiness. Without such instruction there is no satisfaction. David, the shepherd, the poet, the prophet, the king, said after all but these words, "I shall be satisfied when I wake in thy likeness." There is much credible testimony that Jesus was and is the Christ, the Son of God. Men try to negative it, but the affirmative was taken by those who claim to speak whereof they know, and from experience. They saw him and conversed with him, and their testimony stands yet. That testimony was given in the midst of trial and at the risk of their lives. They affirmed that they knew, but their opposers affirmed nothing only that the others did not know, that no one could know. Hence the testimony of the latter class was no testimony at all. The others testified of Christ's resurrection, and that they were eye witnesses of his majesty and glory; and they asserted this before a doubting world, under unfavorable circumstances, while their opponents asserted the negative under favorable and popular circumstances. Christ asks us to comply with the conditions, and he promises us a knowledge, such as will be irrefutable. But all our powers must be subject to the law of love, the law of charity and of peace. The law of love is the divine law by which Christ will subdue all things to himself. Though all other things fail, charity never faileth, but exists always and everywhere in the eternity of God.

After some appointments a hymn was sung and the benediction was pronounced by Bro. Charles Derry.

At 7:30 p.m., Bro. Z. H. Gurley preached, assisted by Bro. J. H. Lake. Bro. Gurley's text was, "I speak as unto wise men." His subject was concerning the Church of Christ in the past and in the present, that it and the gospel are unchangeable. He stated that, as a people, we offer what Christ and his apostles offered to the world; nothing more and nothing less. We preach that unchanged gospel of former days, with all its powers, privileges and blessings. It has been restored to men in these days by the Almighty, through the ministration of angels, as promised in his word. He referred to the experiences of men and women now living for testimony and witness that these things are so, whereof all may become acquainted by a like obedience to the truths of heaven, and by righteousness of life before God and men.

Bro. Joseph Smith preached in the chapel in the city.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 13TH.

The morning prayer meeting at nine o'clock was in charge of Brethren B. V. Springer and Henry Halliday. During the morning four persons were baptized by T. W. Chatburn. Also quorum meetings were held by the Twelve and by the Second Quorum of Elders.

At 11 a. m., Brethren C. Derry and Heman C. Smith occupied the stand, the former offering prayer and the latter preaching from the saying of Paul, that no one is crowned "except he strive lawfully." He appealed to the law of God for witness of what is necessary to constitute a lawful striving, and stated that only by adherence to it and its requirements can man be saved. He said that men had striven as earnestly and zealously as any one could, and yet have failed because they did not abide in the gospel and its principles; and so it will be with any of us who do not so abide and stand; for sincerity alone is no security. He further said that no man gave the Holy Ghost which is to confirm the truth to men's hearts. No priesthood can give it, nor any power on earth, but God only can give it, no matter how much power he give to men to aid in performing his work.

At 1:30 p. m., sung, "Go ye messengers of glory." Prayer was offered by Bro. Joseph Smith. The quorums were seated in their order, and were requested to so continue to seat themselves during the remaining sessions.

CHURCH SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The Secretary read the reports of the ministry in full, as presented by them, or sent by letter. Herewith is presented a condensed statement of the main and essential features of each report, namely as follows:

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Bro. Peter N. Brix, missionary to Denmark, writes from Aalborg, Denmark, that their hopes of help from America were not realized. Bro. Odin Jacobs came, but went on to Norway. Bro. Brix does not know how he is succeeding. He thinks that more attention should be paid to the ministry going out two by two to labor. He reports having baptized three since last conference, and had one more to baptize when he wrote. He again asks that the Church send some, one or more, to preach the gospel to the Scandinavian nations, for he feels the burden that rests upon him there alone; but he stands firmly in the faith of God and of Christ, and will submit to the will of the Church and of God concerning his labors.

Bro. W. W. Blair, of the First Presidency, writes from Salt Lake City, Utah, reporting as President of the Rocky Mountain Mission, mentioning the labors in Utah, Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Wyoming, of himself and Brn. Derry, Anthony, Brand, Luff and Deuel. He speaks of the difficulties that are in their way and the priestly intolerance that they had to endure at the hands of the Utah church authorities, with few exceptions. But, notwithstanding the obstacles, he considers that very considerable progress has been made during the past nine months in declaring the word of life, in distributing the printed matter, and in gathering in converts to the true faith of the Latter Day Saints, as presented by the Reorganized Church and its ministry. They have presented saving truths and taught civil and religious liberty, also loyalty to civil rulers, and have sought to correct the errors and sins of the apostate leaders of the Utah people. Promising fields are open all through the valley from Malad, Idaho, to St. George in Southern Utah; also in Montana and Nevada. He thinks that the masses are willing and anxious to hear our teachings, and many do hear and rejoice; but very many are kept in the bondage of fear by their leaders, and by their endowment oaths and covenants. But this bondage is passing away, and these evils will ere long be only in the past. In fact he believes that marvelous and gratifying changes are at hand, and it is for the Reorganized Church to rise up to its duty and privileges. About 150 persons have been baptized during their ministry there the past year, and thousands more have learned of our doctrines. God blesses the teachings of the Elders, and he is working through them for the reformation of the people and the redemption of the erring. In Salt Lake City the Church is indebted to Mr. H. W. Lawrence for the free use of the Liberal Institute. Also, in some places, the Methodist, Presbyterian, and Episcopal societies have given the use of their chapels and school-houses to us, and liberal souls have assisted in lighting and warming them. Bro. Blair says that they need a number of faithful and spiritual ministers to labor in the various parts of the mission, and they should be able to remain one or two years. He says that they need plenty of printed matter and tracts for free distribution, for these reach those who are afraid or ashamed to come out to hear. The mission has been somewhat expensive; but it is likely to become more than self-sustaining at an early day. Bro. Blair expects to return east in December next. He says there is a great inquiry for Bro. Joseph Smith; that he should come to Utah and preach, and thousands will joyfully hail his coming.

Bro. A. H. Smith, of the Twelve, (present), reports that the circumstances of inconvenience surrounding him have prevented his leaving home a great deal. He has visited portions of his mission twice, and when at home has been engaged in preaching on Sundays in the branch meetings. Has administered to the sick and attended to other duties of his calling as an Elder. Should the Church think well to continue him in the previous appointment he will do the best he can with his circumstances, and if the proper arrangements are made to sustain his family, he will be glad to spend his whole time in the field, which matter rests with the Church; for the progress of whose cause he ever prays.

Bro. James Caffall, of the Twelve, (present), reports his return from the Colorado Mission in August, after ten months' labor, traveling and proclaiming the gospel of Christ. He prosecuted the work under some difficulties, and found much prejudice, and some religious intolerance to face, as well as skepticism and infidelity. Also, more expense is made necessary in that field than in many others; but he was liberally aided by the Saints of Hutchinson and elsewhere to go on with the work. In Denver, however, the expense was too great to warrant doing much. The press showed them some favors, especially the Denver Tribune. In localities prejudice is considerably decreased and friends are increased, those who fully distinguish the difference between us and the Utah people. Five baptized since his last report, and others endorse our doctrines, so that the prospect for success has constantly increased by their persistence in overcoming the obstacles in the way. We may never be able to destroy certain prejudice that exists concerning our faith, but all should see to it that there is a harmony between their precepts and their practice. The toil, care and anxiety of a messenger of salvation is not always to be measured by the number he baptizes; nor should coaxing or over-persuading be resorted to in order to bring in those who are partially convinced. Bro. Caffall thinks that further efforts should be made in Colorado, notwithstanding the slow progress of the work there. He has labored some in Nebraska since returning from Colorado in August, and finds that many openings for preaching exist, and he thinks there is great room for diligence by the local ministry in direct duties, such as would lessen the discussion of abstruse and perplexing questions, whose consideration only tends to darken and bring dissension. He is willing to labor, and hopes to continue to the end.

Bro. J. R. Lambert, of the Twelve, (present), reports having traveled and preached in various parts in Minnesota and Iowa. He also was at Hudson and North Freedom, Wisconsin. Bro. D. G. McPherson assisted him a portion of the time, and in nearly all places visited they were received with kindness. Two of the branches in Minnesota are in the southern part of the State, and the other two in the north-western part. In that portion of Northern Iowa that is not supplied by district laborers, there are but few of our people, hence the neglect; but it is believed, Bro. Lambert says, that two "good Elders" could be and would be sustained in that field, if they wisely and properly dispensed their ministrations. The population of Minnesota is largely Scandinavian, and the Utah Elders have recently met with some success among them. Hence the true faith ought also to be heard by them. There is a large settlement of Welsh near Lake Crystal, and it is thought that an Elder speaking that language could do a good work among them. Bro. Lambert says that in some of the fields visited the outlook is quite encouraging. His personal labors were greatly hindered by ill health.

Bro. J. H. Lake, of the Twelve, (present), reports having preached in VanBuren and Decatur counties, Iowa, early in the summer, and with good liberty in the Spirit. He baptized four in the former county. Went to Bevier, Missouri, by appointment of the First Presidency, and with Bro. B. V. Springer aided in settling some difficulties there; also preached to the people. Also, preached in another branch, same region. He went to Pittsfield, Illinois, awhile, but by direction of the Spirit returned to Bevier, having promise that he should be blessed in so doing. The result was that he baptized five more at different times during his stay; also two at Salt River, in the same county. Afterwards he was at Keokuk, Iowa, and thence went to Shelby county, Iowa. He does not wish to cease the conflict till the Master says, Enough.

Bro. Z. H. Gurley of the Twelve, (present), reports that he has been engaged in the ministry as circumstances permitted. Has maintained regular appointments at places in Decatur county, Iowa, and also preached at others, more or less. Has enjoyed a good degree of the Spirit, and had attentive audiences. The interest to hear the word of life is increasing, and new openings, as well as the old ones, arise on every hand. The grace and favor promised of God are visible to all who look. He feels, therefore, like laboring where there are so many inviting fields, in preference to going to distant and expensive ones, where it seems necessary to buy our way. Marked blessing has attended some of his administrations to the sick. He is making his arrangements to give his entire time to the work, and hopes soon to make his family self-supporting that he may go.

Bro. E. C. Briggs of the Twelve, (present), gave a verbal report, saying that he had not labored much spiritually lately, as he had done formerly. His reasons for this he wished to give. He enlisted in this work not alone from being convinced by human reason and argument, but because of light and intelligence received from on high. He had not doubted the work since his acquaintance with it in 1842. In 1844 he saw the dark cloud settle upon the latter day work, but he heard also the divine statement, or declaration, that gave assurance of the divine calling of the present president of the Church. He went into the ministry when the Reorganized Church was poor in pocket and small in numbers. He thought that the Church now needed a defense from internal broils; but believed that no question was so knotty but what it could be solved by the pure in heart, and in good feeling and brotherly love.

Bro. T. W. Smith, of the Twelve, writes from Fall River, Massachusetts, that since his report from the Eastern Maine District to the April Conference, he has continued in the New England Mission, laboring in both the Eastern and Western Maine Districts; also, in the Massachusetts District. The branches in the Maine districts continued to improve during his stay among them, both in spirituality and in government. There are seven in the Eastern and five in the Western District. The Saints are noble and large-hearted, earnest in faith and doing what they can for the cause, or most of them. Some remarkable cases of healing have occurred, by God's favor to his people. Late in May, Bro. and Sr. Smith came to Boston and Providence, and they have been engaged in those branches and at Fall River since that time. He intends to visit other branches in that district and then work their way westward, via New Jersey, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Ohio, this Fall and Winter. Bro. Smith writes upon the subject of there being a General Assembly convened to decide on doctrinal and other matters of importance to the Church, that unity of teaching and government may be had. In this connection he mentions the proposed consideration at this session of the question as to what is the foundation of the Church of Christ, the "rock" upon which it is built, only an opinion upon which does he think the General Conference can give, not a decision, and he presents some of the obstacles that he thinks are in the way of reaching a satisfactory declaration of belief on the subject, with such a contrariety of views as now exist. Bro. Smith wishes to be continued in that mission as long as he feels it to be his duty to remain. He feels that he has tried to teach the whole counsel of God to the people, and has defended the latter day work and upheld the three books of our faith.

Bro. W. H. Kelley, of the Twelve, writes from Coldwater, Michigan, that that mission is about the same as it was at last report, although advancement is being made, especially in the parts that are supplied with constant laborers. Some effective preaching has been done this season by those appointed to that mission, and the Saints are zealous and growing in faith and usefulness. Among the people there is also an increasing desire to hear and to investigate, so that it is impossible to answer all the calls with the few laborers. He thinks that his field should receive serious consideration when the subject of missions comes up, for the work has been established and the attention of the people is being fixed upon it, so that good men and enough of them are needed to carry on the cause to further victory. Bro. Kelley says that the method of publishing itemized reports of the Bishop's Agents is very satisfactory in that field. The Saints are beginning to see the wisdom of keeping the law which points out the Bishop and his agents as the legitimate channels into whose hands the finances of the Church should go, and by them be apportioned out and a record thereof be kept. The obligation placed upon the people is to put their tithes and offerings where God says to put them.

Bro. Charles Derry of the High Priests, (present), reports briefly his work in the ministry in the field assigned him one year ago. He preached in Salt Lake City, Union Fort, West Jordan, Sandy, Provo, Springville and Wanship, in Utah, and in Malad and Soda Springs in Idaho. In Salt Lake City occasional additions are being made. In Provo and Springville good interest and a fair work is being done. In the other places named, not much interest in our work, except at Malad, Idaho. He feels that good has been done and that good will be done, if the mission is properly sustained. There are some earnest co-workers among the Saints in those regions. Money is needed to hire halls to do a more effective work.

Bro. M. H. Forscutt of the High Priests, (present), reports his labors, chiefly in the city of Chicago. On June 20th a branch was organized there that now numbers over forty members, and the prospect is still encouraging. Has baptized thirty-one persons. He presents himself as still being the servant of the Church, and is willing to go where the Master shall direct. He would like to remain under his present appointment if provisions are made for those dependent on him. Otherwise it will be necessary for him to leave the ministry and care for them. He is satisfied in the gospel, that it answers all the demands of his mental and spiritual nature.

Bro. Glaud Rodger of the Seventy, (present), reports his having been unable to fill the appointment to California by reason of circumstances, but he desires to go and hopes that the way may open so that he may go unless the Conference directs otherwise.

Bro. E. C. Brand, of the Seventy, (present), reports that since April Conference he has been afflicted with much ill health, but has labored all that he has been able, preaching at Shenandoah and elsewhere, besides in his own branch. He is thankful to God that he is restored to health sufficiently to take the field again.

Bro. J. C. Foss, of the Seventy, (present from Maine), reports that he has devoted all his time to the ministry since the April session, and has baptized nine. The feeling among the Saints in the East is good, and prejudice has greatly departed from among the people, many of whom call for something better and more scriptural than they have had, and are investigating the claims of Christ's revealed and established church. On his way from Maine west he called on the Saints in Boston, Providence, Fall River, Brooklyn, Hornerstown, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, in which branches he thinks the Saints are striving to promote the cause, and he was pleased with the spirit manifested. In all the districts he was invited to return and preach, but he thinks to make a home somewhere in the West, and also to preach in western fields, unless Conference orders otherwise. He says that he has never enjoyed better liberty of the Spirit than he has lately, especially since he started West.

Bro. Heman C. Smith, of the Seventy, (present) reports that, in pursuance of his appointment, he labored in Michigan and Indiana for two months. Then while on his way to Nebraska, he preached in Western Iowa. Arriving at home (Newman's Grove, Nebraska) he spoke at a number of places in that district and afterwards in the Southern Nebraska District. He feels firm and strong in the work and in its future triumph, and he has rejoiced in laboring for its advance. He presents himself as ready to go wherever the conference may direct, as he wishes to make it his life-work to preach the gospel. He has baptized two since April.

Bro. Columbus Scott of the Seventy, (present), reports having been constantly engaged in the work, chiefly in Michigan, but he also labored in Ontario, Canada, a few weeks, and intended to labor longer, but circumstances prevented. He never before knew of so many pressing demands for preaching as he found the past season in the fields he visited. There is need of more laborers, and he hopes that the Conference will send more to that field. He baptized one and confirmed three during the season.

Bro. M. T. Short of the Seventy, (present), reports his labors in Michigan and Indiana, and he confirms the statements of Brethren Kelley and Scott as to the needs of that mission and the demands for preaching. He baptized five in Indiana during his stay there.

Bro. Davis H. Bays of the Seventy, (present), reports that since his return from the Texas Mission, late in 1879, he has labored in Western Iowa, mostly in Ida county. Several have been baptized and others are now ready. During the Summer he has had to labor for his family's support, and also with the view of more fully prosecuting the work of the gospel the coming winter. He feels no fears concerning the success of the cause, and he wishes to labor and to sacrifice for it.

Bro. J. F. McDowell of the Seventy, (present), reports his ministerial work in Northern Illinois and Southeastern Iowa, the most of his time having been spent in the Nauvoo and String Prairie District, in which district he has baptized twelve. He says that he feels strong in the work and fully assured that it will be crowned with success and gather in the noble and true of the earth. He wishes to be continued in the present field.

Bro. William T. Bozarth, of the Seventy, (present), reports that, pursuant to his appointment, he started for Texas, May 5th last, and arrived the 7th in Red River county, where his work was closed soon by threatened violence from a lawless mob of opposers. He then went to Robertson county, where he preached, and baptized three. Thence to Bell county, preaching and baptizing; Bro. H. L. Thompson with him. Then to San Antonio and into Bexar and Wilson counties doing like work. Visited Hill county. Returned to Bell and Robertson counties, and baptized more. He returned to Missouri at the time he expected to. During his stay in Texas he organized one branch and visited five others, preached 68 times and baptized 18 persons. He asks the Conference to send some one there to stay longer, and desires himself to labor in Missouri for the next six months.

Bro. George S. Hyde of the Seventy, (present), reports that, agreeably with the instructions of the April General Conference, he has labored in Nebraska and Western Iowa, being measurably blessed in his preaching, and baptizing six. He says that he loves the cause of Christ, and that he desires to so live as to exemplify the fact that he does. He wishes to labor as the Church may direct.

Bro. James F. Mintun of the Seventy, (present), reports that he has acted as president and clerk of a branch and as assistant secretary of the Little Sioux District; has baptized one, preached eleven times, and administered to the sick. Feels that the gospel is indeed the power of God unto salvation, and that he should work for the Lord all that he can, although he can take no mission now, he hopes to be able by and by.

Bro. Robert J. Anthony of the Seventy, writes from Lehi City, Utah, that from April till July he traveled and labored in Idaho and Northern Utah. Afterwards he was with Bro. Luff at Provo and Springville, Utah, where a fine interest existed. He went August 6th to Heber City, and also spoke at Midway. When he wrote, September 1st, he was preaching at Lehi City to large congregations, about four hundred, and good order prevailed each evening, while the majority seemed to be earnest listeners. It was quite in contrast with the time when the Brighamite bishop threatened to drive Bro. Brand out with a club if he persisted in preaching the Reorganized Church to the people there. Bro. Anthony is confident that many of the dogmas and doctrines introduced by Brigham have lost their hold and power, are dead, and the people are ashamed of them. He also says that never before was there so good a time for the Reorganized Church to put forth a strong and lasting effort as there is now, for the Lord is working upon the hearts of the people to bring them out of their superstitions and bondage, that is those who will open their eyes to the truth, which many seem now to be doing. He does not expect to see hundreds coming in flocks, or any great immediate results, but certainly the Lord is working by his own power, and that signally in the way of houses being thrown open for the Elders of the Reorganized Church, and in the increased spirit of liberty seen throughout the territory. Bro. Anthony believes that President Smith ought to come to Utah soon, and believes that no house in any of the settlements would hold those who would come to hear him. Bishop Hatch of Heber City, offers their meeting house, and also the one at Midway was thrown open by Bishop Von Wagner. Bro. Anthony says that although the mission is not pleasant to him, yet he is deeply interested in its welfare and progress, and labors for its triumph.

Bro. J. S. Patterson of the Seventy, writes from Lewiston, Illinois, that he has labored all the time in the field assigned to him last April, and with fair success, preaching and administering the Church ordinances. In many places the prospects are very favorable. Has baptized and confirmed seven persons. Is now laboring in good fields, and intends to prosecute the work vigorously in all places.

Bro. John T. Davies, of the Seventy, writes from Cherokee county, Kansas, stating that he has been constantly in the field, doing duty as president of the district, and has preached with apparent success. He desires to remain in the same field.

Bro. John E. Hansen, of the Seventy, writes from Farmington, Kentucky, that some Elder ought to be sent to Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia, to labor this winter; the work demands it. He has been called to go to Tennessee, where he preached last summer, and some wish to be baptized. He will try to go for a little while, but he wishes to spend the winter in Western Iowa. After that he will go at the bidding of the Church elsewhere.

Bro. Isaac N. Roberts, of the Seventy, writes from Dickinson county, Kansas, that his temporal circumstances have prevented his traveling the past season, but he has preached every Sunday in various neighborhoods around his home, as well as served as Sabbath-school superintendent. He feels that the Lord has greatly blessed his labors. Has baptized three, and a good many more are near to the kingdom. He has labored with his hands by day to support himself and family and preached by night, and thanks God for having been able to thus advance his cause. Many calls for preaching, but he desires much to go to Virginia, to teach his kindred and friends the truths of heaven, and he hopes yet to do so.

Bro. Gomer T. Griffiths, of the Seventy, writes from Ontario, Canada, saying that he has been constantly in the field since the April Conference, having labored two months in Michigan and three months in Canada, in all of which ministry he has had some success by the favor of God, and also found many friends who ministered to his wants. He was holding a series of meetings at Walsingham when he wrote. Has baptized seventeen, confirmed twelve, and assisted in confirming nineteen others. He desires to continue doing what he can to advance the work of God.

Bro. James M. Waite, of the Seventy, writes from Binghamton, Wisconsin, that he is preaching every Sunday and is blessed of God in so doing. There are many calls and he can not sit still and see them starving for the bread of eternal life. He is advanced in years and also labors to support his family, as well as presides over the branch at Binghamton.

Bro. Joseph Luff, of the Elders, (present), reports, that since his appointment to Utah, one year ago, he has preached 85 times, baptized 35 persons, held one debate and performed other duties. Ill health prevented his doing more. The opportunities were very many, and the prospects in Utah are as good for the work as anywhere else, better than in many places, and he experienced more of the guiding influence of the Holy Spirit than he ever did before. He is sanguine of the ultimate success of the work in that field, if persistent and judicious labor is performed, in the spirit of meekness and charity. Such a work will result in the recovery of hundreds of Israel's wandering sons and daughters.

Bro. Gordon E. Deuel of the Elders, writes from Payson, Utah, that since the April Conference he has preached in Salt Lake, Juab, Utah, Millard, Washington, Iron and San Pete counties, and distributed many tracts from house to house. He considers that the shackles and galling yoke of priestly bondage are falling from the people, with the burdens wherewith they have been laden. In nearly every place he has been welcomed by some whose hearts yearn for the truth as it is in Christ. Others have lost their love for it by reason of false leaders and false teaching. He has baptized 31 since Spring, and preached 68 times. The spirit of freedom and of hospitality constantly increases in Utah, so that Elders of the Reorganized Church now have advantages not formerly had by them. The spirit of inquiry shows the signs of the times. He feels that the better day, the day of deliverance is drawing nigh, and rejoices in the progress being made.

Bro. Robert M. Elvin, of the Elders, (present), reports his labors in Iowa and Nebraska, having preached in eighteen places or neighborhoods in the latter State, and at five in the former, in all 101 times, baptized 17 persons and confirmed 14, besides administering to the sick and doing other services, including the holding of one debate with D. R. Dungan of the Christian Church. Has also assisted the president of the Southern Nebraska District in regulating branches. Sickness and lack of means prevented his going into Kansas and Missouri. Is still willing to labor and to sacrifice for God's work.

Bro. A. J. Cato, of the Elders, (present), reports having preached in the field to which he was assigned and with some success. Was associated with Bro. J. T. Davies part of the time. Preached 62 times and baptized one person. Has rejoiced in the measure of the spirit received by him, and though he believes that he could do a good work in Texas, yet will labor as the Church directs. He intends soon to go into the Indian Territory if continued in that field.

Bro. Frank P. Scarcliff, of the Elders, writes from Milton, Florida, that the outlook for the work in the South-eastern Mission is encouraging, though in some localities the spiritual condition is very low, yet he never was in a country where better attention was paid or a greater interest manifested in the preaching. Bro. Scarcliff urges that the necessities demand the presence of one or two more Elders in that field. Bro. L. F. West and a few others are doing something, but not accomplishing what they would like, as their labor for their families takes most of their time. Bro. George H. Graves, the minister to the negro race, sent by last Conference, has done and can still do a good work among the colored people. Bro. Scarcliff stands ready to do the will of God and the Church.

Bro. Hiram Robinson, of the Elders, writes from Pennsylvania, that he has labored to the best of his ability in that State. Has assisted in regulating affairs in branches and opened a number of new fields for preaching the word, as well as encouraged the Saints to go on in the work. He has baptized several, and the Spirit's presence has gladdened his heart so that he does not feel like giving up, but continuing. There are many calls and more laborers are needed in that country.

Bro. James W. Bryan, of the Elders, writes from Elkhart, Texas, that his bodily infirmities have kept him from traveling about much, but what he has done has proved effectual in removing prejudice and in making openings for future labor. He hopes to do considerable preaching this Fall and Winter among those who desire to hear the word of truth.

Bro. Joseph P. Knox, of the Elders, writes from Marion county, Iowa, giving an account of his mission to Pennsylvania, given him in April, 1879. He preached in the Pittsburgh District, and now feels drawn towards the same region and desires to labor in the Lord's vineyard if the Church shall so direct. He feels that the best days of his life were wasted in trying to find the true leader, and now that the Lord has shown him the true organization, he wishes to spend his remaining days in God's service.

Bro. Clarence St. Clair, of the Elders, writes from Chicago, Illinois, that since his ordination and appointment, he has preached a few times, and considers that the work in that city is progressing gloriously through the blessing of God upon the labors of Bro. Forscutt. Bro. St. Clair says he hopes to abide faithfully and to be made strong in the truth.

Bro. G. S. Yerrington, of the Elders, writes from Providence, Rhode Island, giving an account of his labors since April. On his way from Plano to the East he tarried awhile at Chicago and aided Bro. Forscutt in preparing the new hall for holding services in. At Savannah, Wayne county, New York, (where Bro. Jesse Seelye presides over a branch), he made appointments for preaching, but news of the dangerous illness of his wife caused him to hasten home. Though she has not yet fully recovered, he says that he has not been idle even one Sunday, but has preached in various places in Rhode Island, also in Massachusetts and Connecticut. He feels that he has been blessed in presenting the gospel of Christ, to a greater degree than heretofore. The calls for preaching in that region are more than can be filled by the ministry now there. The Saints are poor, but are striving for the inheritance to come. Bro. Yerrington asks the prayers of the Church in behalf of his wife. He desires to labor steadily, and will endeavor to do whatever may be appointed to him by the Church, for he rejoices in its work and progress.

Bro. Charles Wickes, of the Priests, writes from Limestone county, Texas, saying that since arriving there, in May, he has been actively engaged in the Redeemer's cause, and, though he has baptized none, he feels that he has aided in leading some to the knowledge of the truth. He has had trials and privations, but has also received of the comforting Spirit. As he desires to return North, he asks to be released by this Conference.

Bro. Rudolph Etzenhouser, of the Priests, (present), reports having assisted Bro. I. N. White, with whom he was appointed to labor, as called upon, and feels that he has been blessed of God in his work. Has baptized twelve, partly the result of his own labors, and partly that of others. He would like to be continued in the same field.

HENRY A. STEBBINS, Church Secretary.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION REPORT.

The report of the Board of Publication was read:

The Board of Publication respectfully submit the following report of the business of the Herald Office since the General Conference in April. There has been printed an edition of 500 copies of the Holy Scriptures (Inspired Translation). These have been bound and are now ready for sale at a considerable reduction in price, as compared with the former edition. There has also been printed an edition of 500 copies of the Harp, which are in the binder's hands. The work of setting and electrotyping the Life of Joseph the Prophet has been completed, and an edition of 1,000 copies printed and placed in binder's hands. The work on the binding is being urged forward as rapidly as possible, and it is hoped that a shipment of them can be made to conference before its adjournment. There have also been printed and bound 80 Branch and District Records, 150 copies of bound tracts, 500 copies of Joseph and his Progenitors, together with some 30,000 tracts of all kinds.

The reduction in the price of the Scriptures is due in a great measure to the acquisition of the book press, the Board being thereby enabled to do all the press work of this book as well as that of "Joseph the Prophet," which otherwise would have been done in Chicago, it being impossible to print those two books upon the old press. The saving in this one item amounting to $60, or 30 per cent. The press will also effect a saving in many other respects.

The total outlay on the Life of Joseph the Prophet to date has been $2,400, of this $1,400 has been paid out of the current receipts of the office during the past year. The Herald subscription list continues to improve; about 75 per cent of those taking advantage of the six months' credit offered in November last having paid up as the time expired. The circulation of the Herald is now about 3,000, that of the Hope 1,700.

The books of the Board of Publication were closed September 1st, showing a net gain as compared with the balance sheet of March 16th, of $1,083.05. A copy of the balance sheet and the financial report, showing the receipts and expenditures of cash during the six months ending August 16th, are herewith submitted. For the Board of Publication.

LAWRENCE CONOVER, Secretary.

It was moved that the financial statement in the report be referred to a committee of three, they to report next April, but this was defeated by a vote of 22 against to 18 for referring, and no further action was had upon the report, except the placing it upon record.

Certain papers and documents were presented and read, that the Conference might be prepared to consider and act upon such as require action or legislation upon during this session, namely:

A message from Bishop I. L. Rogers, which includes his request to be released as a member of the Board of Publication, and a wish that his Counselors may be allowed to nominate men to fill vacancies that may occur in the Board; another letter from Bishop Rogers concerning the finances of the Church and suggestions as to mission appointments; the resignation of Bro. David Dancer as a member of the Board of Publication; a resolution as to what is the foundation of the Church; a resolution concerning the ministry and their teaching as to the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants; a petition from Bro. Alexander Fyfe concerning a note that he holds; also petitions for special laborers to be appointed to or continued in certain fields, namely: one from Johnson county, Missouri, for Bro. Bozarth's presence in that region; one from Colorado for Bro. Caffall to be continued in charge of that mission; one from Chicago, Illinois, asking that Bro. Forscutt be returned to that city, and one from the South-eastern Mission requesting that Bro. Heman C. Smith be sent again to that field.

The letter from Bishop Rogers concerning Church finances and missions was read as follows:

SANDWICH, Ill., Sept. 9th, 1880.

To the General Conference, Greeting:—Not being with you in person, but feeling it to be my duty to express some of my views to you on financial matters, I do so by letter. I consider that the financial affairs of the Church are of great importance. I have served the Church as Bishop for over twenty years, or tried to do so. I have seen the work of the conferences, and the great interest felt by the Saints in the cause, but I believe that some very important things have been overlooked.

First, I believe that God made a law to govern his Church, and in an early day he told us that the Twelve should go first, and into all the world, to open up the work in all countries. Now I believe this, and I would like to see that plan carried out. Since the command came to loosen the hands of the Twelve I have paid out thousands of dollars to carry on the work outside of that command, and I believe that in some degree God is holding his blessings from us. But in order to prove this, let us seek for the old paths and walk in them.

I also believe that the greatest of care should be taken in the sending out of missionaries and ministers, namely, in seeing first if we are able to sustain them in their missions. Beloved brethren, you may not see the importance of this matter as clearly as I do, because you do not hear the cries that come up daily from the families for bread, or for aid to get it and the other necessities of life. And can we take husbands and fathers from their little families and let these suffer. No; God forbid. There are many things that I would like to say, but can not do so on paper, but will say in brief that my Counselors Henry A. Stebbins and David Dancer will be with you, and your gifts and offerings will be acceptable as though I was with you in person. Praying for the success of the latter day work, and that the blessings of the Holy Spirit will be with you in your deliberations, I subscribe myself your brother and fellow laborer in Christ's cause,

ISRAEL L. ROGERS.

The President requested that there be a greater promptness in assembling at all the meetings, and also in the conduct of the forenoon services for prayer and preaching.

It was announced that Bro. Forscutt would take names of subscribers for the "Saints' Harmony."

Appointments of quorum meetings were made, and for services this evening and tomorrow forenoon.

A hymn was sung and the benediction was pronounced by Pres. Smith.

At 7:30 p. m. J. H. Lake preached, assisted by R. M. Elvin. The text was: "In thee and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed," and the subject was the mission of Christ under the Abrahamic Covenant. The promise in the gospel of Christ is but a continuation of that to Abraham. The blessing comes to mankind by obedience to the law given by the seed to whom and through whom the promise was made to all nations, as stated in the text. By adherence to that law, men are made the inheritors of the promise in fullness, even eternal life upon the redeemed earth, the possession promised to Abraham and his seed by the Lord, and purchased by Christ through his atoning sacrifice.

At the chapel in the city, Bro. J. C. Fcsc preached, assisted by Bro. E. C. Brand.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14TH.

At 9 a. m., a prayer meeting was held, Brn. D. M. Gamet and S. S. Wilcox in charge.

At 10:30 a. m., preaching by Bro. J. F. McDowell, assisted by Bro. J. F. Mintun. The speaker said that only a system of religion founded upon the word of God can endure. During the last three centuries theology has changed very much in many respects, but true theology presents God's truth as a unit and can never change. The principles of the gospel of Christ can bring about a perfect condition among men, but only as they strictly conform to those principles. He spoke of the grand blending between the atonement of Christ, the truths he uttered, and his character. His divine mission was to destroy the works of Satan, and so far as Satan has had power to injure and destroy, so far will the atonement of Christ effect for restoration and relief. The infinite justice and mercy of God calls forth our fullest and deepest love. The speaker closed with an exhortation that the Saints should exhibit in their lives the love of Christ towards all men.

During the forenoon, quorum meetings were held by the Twelve, the Seventy and the First and the Third Quorums of Elders. Also at noon seven persons were baptized by Bro. J. R. Badham. Also during the noon intermission the stockholders of the Order of Enoch met and transacted their business, including the election of a Board of Directors for the ensuing year.

At 2 p. m., after singing a hymn, prayer was offered by Bro. C. Scott, and the minutes of the 12th and 13th were read by the Secretary. After that he read the reports of seven more of the ministry, a synopsis of which will be found with the others in yesterday's minutes.

President Smith laid the matter of the Board of Publication report and the resignation of Brethren Rogers and Dancer before the Conference. A motion was made to accept the resignation of Bro. Rogers, and it being called for, was read as follows:

SANDWICH, Ill., Sept. 8th, 1880.

To the Brethren in Conference assembled at Council Bluffs, Iowa, Greeting:—As I do not feel that it is actually necessary that I should attend the present session of the General Conference, I send this message of greeting and regard. I thank you for your confidence in me, as betokened by your sustaining me at your past sessions in my present relationship and duties to the Church of Christ, and among these for asking heretofore that I should continue as a member of the Board of Publication. But I desire that at this session I may be released from this obligation, and I therefore present this, my resignation, asking that it be accepted by you. Besides feeling that other men can better serve in this relationship than I can, I have other reasons which I will not here present. It is my wish, as Bishop of the Church, that the vacancies that may occur in the Board of Publication at this session may be filled by the nomination of men for those vacancies by my Counselors, who will be present with you; and I hereby ask the Conference to accept and endorse by vote this wish of mine, that men may be so nominated, and such as the Conference choose may be appointed as members of said Board, that the number may be kept full, according to the law of the Church.

ISRAEL L. ROGERS.

Discussion was had upon the legality of the Bishop delegating his authority to others to nominate members of the Board and if the Conference should ratify and endorse such nominations, whether it would be legal. A majority of the speakers seemed to hold that it would be legal. Being put to vote, the motion to accept the resignation of Bro. Rogers prevailed.

The resignation of Bro. Dancer was read, as follows:

To the General Conference, Greeting:—I hereby present my resignation as a member of the Board of Publication, and ask that this Conference release me from said office and responsibility. Living so far from the Herald Office as I do, I can not be present always at the meetings of the Board, nor can I see to the affairs of the office as is a part of my duty to do. For these and other reasons that I do not choose to name here, I make the above request. Respectfully yours,

DAVID DANCER.

Upon motion the resignation of Bro. Dancer was accepted. The following was moved:

Resolved that this Conference accept and endorse the recommendation of the Bishop that his Counselors nominate the persons to be voted upon to fill the vacancies in the Board of Publication.

This was spoken to by E. L. Kelley, D. H. Bays and R. M. Elvin in favor, and by J. M. Harvey, Solomon Thomas and Joseph Luff against. It was then adopted by a large majority vote.

On separate motions G. A. Blakeslee, W. W. Blair and Joseph Smith were sustained as members of the Board of Publication.

The Bishop's Counselors, Brn. Stebbins and Dancer, having consulted together, asked for further time, till to-morrow, before making the nominations to fill vacancies in the Board, as they wish if possible to choose men who can conveniently attend to the business and who may also be qualified for the duties that will be required of them. The time asked for was granted by vote.

The following preamble and resolution were moved and adopted, after remarks by J. W. Chatburn, J. M. Harvey, E. C. Brand, and E. L. Kelley, namely:

Whereas the Board of Publication has acted for the Church without cost or expense to that body, and during their management a small loss has accrued to the Church, for which the Church by resolution of the General Conference of April, 1880, held the Treasurer responsible; and

Whereas, there is no evidence of any intent or act on the part of the Board to use unjustly or fraudulently any moneys coming into their hands; therefore be it

Resolved that we do hereby release the Treasurer from the payment of such sum, named in the resolution of April, 1880.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Brn. Rogers and Dancer for faithful performance of duty as members of the Board.

Announcements were made for quorum meetings to-morrow morning, and appointments for meetings this evening and to-morrow. Bro. M. H. Forscutt announced that he had 250 names who promise to take the "Saints' Harmony" at $1.25.

A hymn was sung and the benediction was pronounced.

At 7 30 p.m., preaching by A. J. Cato, assisted by Daniel Hougas. Five of the seven baptized in the morning were confirmed under the hands of J. H. Lake, J. R. Badham, Thos. Nutt and R. M. Elvin.

The text of the speaker was, "Not every one that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven." He said that there could not be as many ways of entering into life as there are differences of opinion on religion. Emphatically Christ, taught but one way. It is a folly for us to think that our opinions are equal to the positive statements in the word of God. The speaker considered at length the mission of Christ, his humble obedience to God's law, his investing his disciples with power to preach the gospel and heal the sick, the shameful and cruel suffering that he was subject to, in order that he might gain power over death and give salvation to the people. He sent his ministers to all the world, and, after his ascension, gave the promised Comforter that they might be able to perform their work. In the resurrection our bodies are to be quickened by that Spirit, given upon the day of Pentecost. Upon that day Peter stated the conditions upon which it could be received by all people. He closed by speaking of the restoration of the gospel with the same conditions and promises.

There was preaching in the chapel at Council Bluffs by Columbus Scott, assisted by Jas. Caffall.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15TH.

During the early morning, seven more were led into the waters of baptism, six by Bro. Reuben Goreham and one by Bro. Milton Daugherty.

At 9 a. m. the Twelve met in council, as also did the High Priests' Quorum, the Quorum of Seventy, and the First, Second, and Third Quorums of Elders.

At the same hour the Saints convened for prayer and testimony, and selected I. N. White and Rudolph Etzenhouser to have charge. At the same meeting those baptized this morning were confirmed by Alfred White, A. W. Lookling, Henry Garner and William Chambers.

At 10:30 a. m. Bro. Thomas Nutt had charge of the services in assisting Bro. Joseph Luff, who spoke from the words of Paul, that in the latter times some should depart from the faith. He preached a discourse upon the evils existing and brought about through the apostasy of the Latter Day Saints from the true principle first given to the Church. He said that he had been combating these evil things for some months past in Utah. He felt that history repeated itself from age to age, in that always there seems to be a disposition on the part of man to fall away from the true faith as revealed from heaven, and to go into those practices that satisfy the lower passions of his nature. There has been a greater tendency to yield to destructive influences than to saving ones, or good ones. In Eden, in the Mosaic dispensation, and in the gospel dispensations, mankind seems to have been ready to turn back, and seemingly to long for the flesh pots of Egypt, for the house of bondage. The speaker gave quotations from the revelations in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and showed how the prophecies given through Joseph Smith had been exactly fulfilled, how they had come to pass according to the words spoken by the Lord to the Church before the death of Joseph. God warned and forewarned them of the tribulations to come, for lightly esteeming his counsel and the law by which they were to have been sanctified. God also promised that after the tribulations that should come upon the Twelve he would feel after them, and if they hardened not their hearts and stiffened not their necks, they should be converted and healed by his power. That revelation to Thomas B. Marsh and his brethren of the Twelve, exactly foreshadowed what eventually came to pass, and thus the people were bound with chains that they grew to consider as being but golden bands that united them to God. Bro. Luff said that one year ago at our General Conference some thought him too young and inexperienced to go to that field, and warned him of the danger of his faith being wrecked, but he feels that he has not only not been wrecked but instead has been more confirmed in the work of God by this experience than by any other of his life. He had felt the power of God as a mantle resting upon him every time that he had stood before the people in that land, and he was satisfied that God had ordained the Reorganized Church to bring the honest in heart out of Utah, and that he had held back the powers that be until this should take place.

At the noon recess there was a meeting of the Priest's Quorum.

At 1:30 p.m. sung "Behold what glorious grace." Prayer by Bro. M. H. Forscutt. The minutes of yesterday's session were read.

The counselors of the Bishop were asked if they were ready to make the nominations for filling the vacancies in the Board of Publication, and Bro. Stebbins presented the following names for a choice to be made from, as selected by himself and Bro. Dancer, namely, W. H. Curwen, Phineas Cadwell, J. W. Chatburn and J. M. Harvey.

The first name was taken up, and it was moved that the choice of Bro. W. H. Curwen be ratified by the Conference. After remarks from several, the motion was put upon its passage and carried. Then the name of Bro. Phineas Cadwell was presented, a like motion was made, and after remarks, this nomination was also ratified by the Conference and thus Brn. Curwen and Cadwell were chosen as members of the Board of Publication to fill the vacancies made by the resignation of Brn. Rogers and Dancer.

The reports of J. H. Hansen and Clarence St. Clair were read. Also written reports from twelve districts, as follows:

DISTRICT REPORTS.

As the statistical reports of districts are required but once a year, namely, at the April General Conference, the numerical changes are not given, but only the spiritual standing and situation in the districts that report. The following named report to this session:

Spring River District, Kansas and Missouri. J. T. Davies, president, reports by letter that this district is in fair working order. Considerable preaching has been done and some have been baptized. Three of the ministry are under General Conference appointment in that region and one under district appointment. Bro. Davies presents for the consideration of the Conference that he finds from the Bishop's Agent that only two ministers can be supported by district means, and he asks the Conference to appoint accordingly, unless the Bishop of the Church is able to furnish help for that field. They need for the work all the Elders they can have, if they can be supported.

Montana District, Gomer Reese, president, reports it by letter as being in a very fair condition, excepting as to one branch. Elders Blair and Brand, missionaries, have done the most of the preaching, the local ministry having done very little, but they have baptized quite a good number.

Southern California District. The president, J. F. Burton, reports by letter that there are many calls for preaching in the southern part of the district, and in the field outside of the branches the prospect is very encouraging. The northern and middle portions of the district he has not visited since its organization, but expects to do so immediately. He has devoted his time to the work of the ministry, almost exclusively so.

Far West District, Missouri, is represented by J. M. Terry in person, who says that the evidences presented at their last conference showed that the district was, with few exceptions, in a good and prosperous condition. The district petitions that A. H. Smith be continued in charge of the mission embracing that district.

Nodaway District, Missouri, is reported by Thomas Nutt in person as delegate, who says that it is in a good condition generally, and that peace and harmony prevails. By honorable living and dealing the Saints are making good impressions on the minds of the people. Some of the Elders are magnifying their calling in their local missions. He is the traveling preacher of the district, and finds that prejudice is fast giving way wherever the gospel is being preached, for they are made to understand the difference between the Reorganization and the Utah church. There are many calls for preaching, more than can be supplied. Many Elders in the district are of foreign birth and can not present the gospel readily in the English language, but they preach by example to good effect. Bro. Nutt expresses thanks to God for the light and liberty of God's Spirit that he has enjoyed, and he desires to help make the cause honorable.

Southern Nebraska District is reported by the president, Levi Anthony, in person. He says that the district is in a better condition than at last report, but there is room yet for improvement. He has visited all the branches, and done what he could, but the district covers a very large territory and there are many members scattered through it, and many openings for preaching which can not be supplied without more laborers. From all directions come calls for the bread of life, and Bro. Anthony asks the General Conference to send laborers into that field. The district desires R. J. Anthony to come if he is released from his present field; also that R. M. Elvin be assigned to that region.

Kewanee District, Illinois, reported by letter from its president, J. A. Robinson, who says that the cause in the district is not in a very flourishing condition. Chief among the trials in some branches is the humiliating fact that some of the Elders are quarreling with their brethren, and others have grown cold through the continual croaking of those who are harping about points of law. Yet, notwithstanding all this, there are a number of good, faithful, earnest men who are laboring for the redemption of Zion. Bro. Robinson expresses the hope that whenever the General Conference sends ministers there it will send such as will come and labor, not sit around among the branches or merely pass from one to another. He wants men who will push out and preach where there are no Saints; this is the kind of ministers they need in that district. Their branches are well officered, and hence these organizations are able to take care of themselves. If you have no men to send who will go out around, please do not send us any at all. But men of the right stamp will find a hearty welcome, and plenty to do.

Independence District, Missouri, reported by letter from J. J. Kaster, president of the district. He says that the spiritual standing of the district is only moderate, not as it should be, but yet better than when last reported. The chapel at Independence is enclosed and meetings are being held in it. The contention caused by erecting said building seem to have ceased, and better times are hoped for.

Pottawattamie District, Iowa, represented by H. N. Hansen, president, as not being in a good condition. However, he knows of no serious difficulty existing, and there are many good Saints who love the cause, and who rejoice in the work. There are good chances for preaching, but no Elder is among them who can spend all his time in the ministry, and but few preach on the Sabbath. R. M. Elvin has labored among them. Wherever the seed has been sown it has borne fruit to the glory of God.

Fremont District, Iowa. Considerable preaching has been done by J. R. Badham, Eber Benedict and others. Several baptisms have taken place, and there are many places where laborers are called for. Daniel Hougas, president; Wm. Leeka, clerk.

Little Sioux District, Iowa. The spiritual condition of some of the branches is good, but others are not doing as well as they might. The ministry are laboring as they can, and their conference has made a move towards keeping one or more ministers in the field, by supplying financial aid. At present there is no one who devotes all his time to the work in that district. J. C. Crabb, president.

Des Moines District, Iowa, reported by I. N. White, delegate, who believes that the situation in the district is still better than at last report, although many things are not altogether pleasant. Financially the District was never on so good a footing as it is at present. At their last conference there seemed to be almost an unanimous voice in favor of tithing or freewill offerings, and if the brethren will only put their resolutions into practice the work will flourish, for they say they "will do all they can."

The above are all the district reports submitted in writing.

HENRY A. STEBBINS, Church Secretary.

Bro. J. F. McDowell gave a verbal report of the Nauvoo and String Prairie District; Bro. Z. H. Gurley a verbal report of the Decatur District, and Bro. M. H. Forscutt a verbal report of the Northern Illinois District.

A recommendation from the Maple Landing Branch for the ordination of one of their number as an Elder was referred to the Little Sioux District, the said branch being in Monona county, Iowa.

The petitions for special laborers to be returned to or continued in certain fields, as read on the 13th, were all referred to the quorum of the Twelve for their consideration in connection with the subject of Missions.

The report of the committee appointed last spring in the case of Bro. A. G. Weeks was read as follows:

June 19th, 1880.—We, your court, decide as follows, wherein A. G. Weeks is the defendant and J. T. Kinnaman the plaintiff: After a careful and prayerful consideration we find that Bro. Weeks has taught in private as well as in public, doctrines which the Church as a body does not endorse, thereby causing divisions. We recommend that he cease from teaching said doctrines until the Church may decide on the truthfulness or falsity thereof.

Signed,

WILLIAM LEWIS,	}	Committee.
J. D. FLANDERS,
D. E. POWELL,

A motion was made and adopted whereby the report and the papers therewith were referred to the First Quorum of Elders, for their action, he being a member of that quorum.

The appeal of P. H. Reinsimar of Salt Lake City was referred to a committee of three, and the president appointed Hugh Lytle, J. C. Crabb and M. H. Forscutt as said committee.

The appeal of George Hatt, George Medlock and William Ballinger, was ordered also to be referred to a committee, and the President chose M. H. Forscutt, J. C. Crabb and Hugh Lytle.

In the case of Frederick C. Warnkey and the Colorado saints, a motion was made to refer it also to a committee of three; but by request of the president the motion was withdrawn. It was then moved to indefinitely postpone the subject, but by a subsequent action the matter was referred to James Caffall, the president of that mission.

It was moved and adopted that the resolution on what constitutes the foundation of the Church be made the special order for tomorrow afternoon.

The resolution from the Little Sioux District upon the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants was read, as follows:

Whereas, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, in conference assembled at Galland's Grove, Shelby Co., Iowa, in the month of September, 1878, did decide, "That the Holy Scriptures as translated, corrected and revised by Joseph Smith the martyr, the Book of Mormon, and the revelation as contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants be accepted as standard of authority on all points of doctrine in said Church," and whereas there was action taken at the Semi-Annual Conference held at Galland's Grove, Shelby Co., Iowa, in September, 1879, which we believe is not in harmony with the teachings of those books above referred to, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Little Sioux District of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, that we respectfully ask the Semi-Annual Conference to be held at Park's Mills, Pottawattamie Co., Iowa, to clearly define if any Elder can be a true representative of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and reject any of the revelations found in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants. If so, which and how many; if so, if any Elder can not reject all the revelations found in said book, and still be a fit representative of the Church.

I hereby certify that the above preambles and resolution are a true copy of the preambles and resolution adopted by the Little Sioux District of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, held at Magnolia, Harrison Co., Iowa, August 28 and 29, 1880.

WM. C. CADWELL,
Clerk of District.

It was moved to refer it to President Joseph Smith and the Twelve who are present at this Conference, for them to consider and report upon. President Smith called Bro. H. A. Stebbins to preside during the discussion of this question. The motion to refer was spoken upon, being favored by Brn. Crabb, J. W. Chatburn, Harvey and Nutt, and opposed by Brn. Brand and McDowell, who believed that it would be more satisfactory for it to be considered by the Conference as a whole. Then an amendment was moved that the members of the High Priests' Quorum who are present shall assist the two quorums before named in considering it. This was spoken upon; and a further amendment was moved that the Quorum of the Seventy be also added to that body, and this was followed by a substitute that the whole subject be referred to the General Assembly of the quorums of the Church when they shall be called by the President. This was favored by A. H. Smith, Joseph Smith and R. M. Elvin, and opposed by J. M. Harvey. Further discussion upon this matter was cut off by a motion to adjourn.

Announcements were made for preaching and for quorum meetings, and the session closed with the usual exercises.

At 7:30 p. m. prayer was offered by W. T. Bozarth, and J. M. Terry preached a discourse from the text in Malachi, "For I am the Lord, I change not." He spoke of the glorious perfection of the world, as it was finished by the great Creator, and when it was by him pronounced "very good." His crowning work, man, was placed in the garden of Eden and given dominion over the earth, and also his free agency, so much like God was he as to be endowed with it by Him. He knew nothing of sin and sorrow, but God gave him a chance to exercise his free agency in making a choice between evil and good, sin and obedience, punishment and happiness. He gave him permission to eat of all the trees but one, but this commandment not to eat of that tree was violated, and man became separated from God; this was the first death. But by the mercy of God, a space of time was granted to man to permit him to gain favor with the Almighty, by obedience to the laws of righteousness. He had first used his agency in choosing the wrong, he could now distinguish between the two, and might choose the right and enjoy its blessings. God looked with compassion upon man in his transgression and helplessness, and introduced a means of salvation, man still having his agency to accept or refuse, but if he obeyed it he could return to the presence of God. That law was perfect in the fullest extent of the term. The speaker's voice failed ere he was through, because of the extra exertion needed to speak in the open air, and Bro. Bozarth followed with remarks upon the unchangeability of God and his laws and promises.

At the chapel in the city, there was preaching by Joseph Luff, assisted by J. Caffall.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 16TH.

During the forenoon there were quorum meetings held by the Twelve, the High Priests, the Seventy, and the First, Second and Fourth Quorums of Elders.

At 9 a.m. the prayer meeting was in charge of William Jordan and John Hawley.

At 10:30 a.m. R. M. Elvin preached the funeral sermon of Bro. Caswell D. Stevens' child. J. T. Kinnaman offered prayer, and Bro. Elvin spoke from the words of the Psalmist, "As for me, I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness." He said that the entire history of the race had been one of sorrow, because that death is in the world—is with us constantly. However near and dear our friends may be, they are passing away. But we are assured that there will be a restoration of that which has been lost by death, and there will be a re-union. David rejoiced that he should yet see the face of God, and then he would be satisfied. The awakening shall come to all men by the power of God, and the gospel includes the promise of the resurrection from the dead, that man shall be brought out from an otherwise endless oblivion. The resurrection is a fact, proved by the rising of Jesus Christ. The perfect condition in that state will come to man by obedience to perfect laws. The speaker treated somewhat upon the glories to be given to the redeemed, according to their works.

After the discourse three were baptized by Levi Wilson.

At 1:30 p.m. the assembly sung "Welcome delightful morn." Prayer was offered by C. Derry. The minutes of yesterday were read. A motion prevailed limiting the time for speaking upon questions this afternoon to ten minutes each.

The preambles and resolution upon the foundation of the Church were read, as follows:

Whereas, There exists a diversity of opinion among the Elders respecting the foundation of the Church; some maintaining it to be revelation, (Mat. 16:17, 18), others believing it to be apostles and prophets, with Jesus Christ as the chief corner stone, (Eph. 2:50), while still another class believe it to be Christ Jesus, (1 Cor. 3:11). And,

Whereas, It is believed to be of paramount importance that the Church should be a unit on questions of such magnitude, therefore, be it Resolved, That, Jesus Christ, in his divine character, is the foundation of the Church.

D. H. BAYS.

A motion to adopt was succeeded by an amendment that there be added at the close of the resolution the words, "But not the rock referred to in Matthew 16:18." The amendment was favored by Brn. Hyde, Crabb, Nutt and C. Derry, and opposed by Brn. McDowell, Bays and Hawley, and being put to vote was adopted. Then a substitute was offered for the motion as amended, reading as follows:

Whereas this conference is not a body authorized to render a final decision upon points of doctrine, therefore be it

Resolved that the question now pending be referred to a General Assembly of the Quorums at the earliest practical convenience.

This met with favor and was adopted.

Then the business pending at the close of yesterday's session was taken up, and H. A. Stebbins was called to preside during its discussion. He read the action had on yesterday, and presented the substitute for further consideration. It was moved to strike out the words "General Assembly," and insert instead that it be referred back to this conference; but it being already the property of the conference till otherwise disposed of, the chair ruled that the motion was out of order. The question being called for, the substitute was adopted; whereby the matter was referred to the General Assembly.

President Smith took the chair.

The following report was presented by the High Priests' Quorum:

HIGH PRIESTS' QUORUM REPORT.

We, your brethren, members of the High Priests' Quorum, have had two meetings on the Conference ground, and considering it important that steps be taken to facilitate missionary labor, have decided upon, and herewith submit for your approval or disapproval, the following preamble and resolutions, as expressing our unanimous opinion on the question on which it treats:

Whereas, First, the revelations accepted by the Church make it the duty of the Church to liberate the hands of the Twelve and the Seventy; and

Whereas, Second, the Twelve and the Seventy, as the especial witnesses of the Church to the world, should first go as missionaries into all the world, and

Whereas, Third, we believe that the funds of the General Church Treasury should be first used to supply the families of the Twelve and Seventy, before the families of the High Priests, Elders or Priests are supplied, or money employed to send High Priests, Elders or Priests to distant fields of labor, therefore be it hereby Resolved, 1st, That no member of this, or of any quorum other than that of the Twelve and Seventy, should be sent out as missionaries under General Conference appointment, until all members of these two quorums shall have been sent, or shall have been excused for cause by proper authority, or shall have positively declined to go.

2nd, That the members of the Twelve and the Seventy should be all assigned to missionary labor, in harmony with the law; the funds of the Church be used for the prosecution of their missions, and the support of their families.

3rd, That if the number of the Twelve and Seventy are insufficient to supply demands for general ministerial labor, and there be funds to sustain other families than those of these quorums, then members of other quorums may be chosen and sent by General Conference, and their families also supplied from the Church Treasury, impartially, with the families of the Twelve and the Seventy. Respectfully submitted,

MARK H. FORSCUTT,
Secretary of Quorum.

The resolutions offered by the quorum were adopted as expressing the sentiments of this conference.

The report of the Quorum of Seventy was read:

QUORUM OF SEVENTY REPORT.

The Seventy hereby present that the quorum is in fair working order, but on account of the financial condition of the Church, is not as good as desired. Upon the record are the names of eighty members, who, so far as we know, are standing as Seventies.

It is or may be fair to say that the quorum is about full, if not altogether, though we entertain doubt as to some whose names remain upon record. Furthermore we respectfully submit for the consideration of the Conference the following:

Whereas the general church funds have heretofore been used in sending out Elders and Priests as missionaries, instead of sending those whom the law directs as the proper ones who should have precedence; therefore be it

Resolved that we recommend to this Conference that the funds for missionary purposes be used to release, first, the quorums of the Twelve and Seventy, who should, properly, be the general and leading missionaries of the Church to the world as the law directs. And we do hereby pledge ourselves to strive to magnify our calling as auxiliaries to the quorum of the Twelve, in carrying the gospel to all nations, if the Church will stand by and sustain us.

GLAUD RODGER, President.
J. F. McDOWELL, Clerk.

The resolution of this quorum was also adopted as expressing the views of this conference.

The president asked if there had been any collusion or agreement between these two quorums to both enact the same resolutions, and various testimonies showed that neither quorum was aware of the action of the other till it was read in conference.

The report of the First Quorum of Elders was read as follows:

FIRST QUORUM OF ELDERS' REPORT.

The First Quorum of Elders held meetings on the 14th, 15th and 16th, and transacted business. The case of J. D. Bennett was referred to Elders Alfred White, Henry Halliday and W. W. Gaylord for examination.

Elders Bond, Walker, Ellison, Pitt, Bennett, Waddel, B. B. Braekenbury, Yerrington, Oliver, J. Kemp, Jobe Brown and I. M. Smith reported by letter, and D. Hougas, C. Sheen, H. Hansen, W. W. Gaylord, S. Woods, A. White, Halliday, Badham and Elvin in person.

The case of J. A. Crawford was referred to Elders T. Nutt, D. Hougas and S. Woods for examination.

The resignation of F. G. Pitt as secretary of the quorum was accepted and J. R. Badham was chosen in his place.

Committee on the case of Bro. Bennett reported satisfactorily and he was received into the quorum again.

Committee on the case of J. A. Crawford reported, and upon considering it, a motion to drop his name from the record was adopted, he having departed from the faith.

A vote being taken upon what the rock is that is named in Matthew 16:18, the resolution prevailed unanimously that revelation is said rock, and it was resolved that revelation from God through the Holy Spirit is the sure foundation.

The case of A. G. Weeks was taken up, and certain correspondence between him and the president of the quorum was read. Also testimony was received from J. T. Kinnaman in person, and upon motion the name of A. G. Weeks was dropped from the record of the First Quorum of Elders.

James M. Stubbard and Jerome Ruby were received into the quorum to fill vacancies, thus filling the number to 96 again, as the law directs.

Submitted in behalf of the quorum,

R. M. ELVIN, President,

J. R. BADHAM, Secretary.

On separate motions the names of Elders Donald Maule and Eli Clothier were taken from the table, where they were laid at last April Conference, and it was moved that they be ordained High Priests. The propriety and necessity of such ordinations was discussed, and, in the case of the first named, the motion to ordain was lost, and in the case of the second, a motion to indefinitely postpone prevailed.

The report of the Little Sioux District was read, also a brief one from J. C. Crabbe concerning his labors in the ministry in said district the past year.

The following was moved and adopted:

Whereas, action has been had that moneys shall only be paid out of the Church treasury to members of the Quorum of the Twelve and of the Seventy; therefore, be it

Resolved that if there are any Elders laboring in distant fields who are not members of the above quorums, they shall receive, if necessary, aid to return home.

Announcements of quorum meetings were made, also of services to-morrow afternoon.

President Smith spoke upon the subject of sickness and disease being incurred by the Saints as well as others through the violation of law; also, concerning administering the ordinance to such. He warned the Saints of the danger, and exhorted them to abstain from using polluting things, and against doing evil against their natures by transgressing the laws that if observed would give them health and happiness.

Adjourned with a hymn and the benediction.

After the session four were baptized by Heman C. Smith, and the Fourth Quorum of Elders held a meeting to transact business pertaining to the quorum.

At 7:30 p.m. J. R. Lambert preached, assisted by G. S. Hyde and J. W. Wight. The six baptized during the day were confirmed under the hands of H. C. Smith, W. T. Bozarth, G. S. Hyde and Levi Wilson.

The text of Bro. Lambert was the words of Jesus, "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world as a witness to all nations, and then shall the end come." The speaker said there must be a time when the word of God will have a fulfillment. Christ was not only a preacher, but when he preached there were certain powers and blessings enjoyed, and he healed the sick. But we are not to believe that all were healed, for this would be opposed to the facts of history. Yet there were no diseases but those that the power of God could reach. And the gospel is unchangeable, and Paul marvelled that some in his days had departed from its simplicity. And the curse he spoke of was to be upon those who thus departed from or perverted that gospel. Hence there was great danger in taking such steps. There is but one Savior, Jesus Christ, and by him and through him is salvation obtained. There is a oneness of spirit to be obtained by obeying the oneness of the letter. John says that whosoever abideth in the doctrine of Christ (this unity of truth) hath both the Father and the Son, but whoso doth not abide in it, hath not God. This plan not only applied then, but it does so now also, and in all ages of the world likewise. Jesus spoke of "this gospel" of the kingdom, meaning a definite one, and he preached it; and he commanded his disciples to preach it in all the world. And the things which they preached were principles to be believed, commandments to be obeyed, and promises to be received; and these were and are immutable and unchangeable, the same in all ages. So also is the organization of the Church or Kingdom—the body of Christ, in which God set apostles, prophets, etc., as written by Paul to the Corinthians and Ephesians. Whenever this kingdom of God is established, then ambassadors are sent forth to teach and administer its laws. This kingdom must be founded, must be in existence in order for ambassadors to be sent forth among the nations, just as earthly governments can only be represented in foreign countries after being established as nations having power to appoint ambassadors to represent their claims and rights. And there are certain characteristics by which the gospel may be known whenever it is restored, and the kingdom when it is established. The fundamental principles are mentioned in Heb. 6:1-2, and their observance is required of those who desire salvation, and the promised gifts and blessings are given only on condition of righteousness. Faith, virtue, temperance, patience, godliness are necessary graces and qualities. If these are lacking we are yet in our sins. The restored gospel enjoins the same purity and righteousness, and the revelations in our day command the ministry to teach the same principles, gifts and graces as were taught in former days, in no way differing. And they are authorized to promise the same Holy Ghost from heaven as was formerly enjoyed. They are commanded to teach the gospel as found in the Bible and the Book of Mormon, which could not be done if the books did not agree as to God and his truth. These books condemn all sinful practices and crimes. Some say that the Latter Day Saints were a bad people in Missouri, but we know that whatever evil they did was because they did not give heed to the things they were commanded to do. Jesus promised a restoration of the gospel just prior to the end of the world or the destruction of the wicked, and it is now preached as a sign and witness of his second coming. In Rev. 14:6 we are told that it would be restored in the hour of God's judgments upon the world, and by angelic ministration too. And these words were fulfilled.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 17TH.

At 9 a.m. the usual prayer meeting was held, in charge of John A. McIntosh and G. W. Conyers, Senior.

During the forenoon, quorum meetings were held by the Twelve, the Seventy, and the Second, Third, and Fourth Quorums of Elders.

At 10:30 a.m. the exercises were as usual, with prayer by Charles Sheen, and Alfred White spoke concerning the new and everlasting covenant. He thought that there was a great responsibility resting on Christ's ministers in teaching this gospel covenant to the world. God's great mercy to the world is manifested by his act of giving an opportunity for man to return to him through Christ and that covenant. God made a covenant with Abraham, and because of the disobedience of Israel as to this covenant they suffered bondage. Christ became the mediator of a covenant of life and salvation, which was to be written on the hearts of men, and was to be given to all men, not alone to the Hebrew people. This covenant includes baptism of the water and the gift of the Holy Spirit, whereby man might know of his acceptance with God, and also that his sins are forgiven him by this obedience. Christ commanded his ministers to rejoice not in their spiritual power, but in the fact that their names were written in heaven. The knowledge that Jesus was the Christ came only by the revelation of God, the true God being one who declares that he will reveal himself to all who obey him, who repent, are baptized and who keep his holy commandments to the end, adding to their faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance and patience, and showing by their walk that they have received of the nature and spirit of Christ.

At 1:30 p.m. the hymn "Truth reflects upon our senses," was sung, and prayer was offered by Z. H. Gurley.

The report of the Third Quorum of Elders was read:

THIRD QUORUM OF ELDERS' REPORT.

The quorum have held three meetings during this session of Conference.

J. T. Kinnaman, president of the quorum, being one of the committee appointed to investigate the case of J. W. Johnson, stated that he had visited Bro. Johnson and had enquired into his conduct and was assured that he was at that time doing better, but that latter developments showed that the brother was in transgression and dishonoring the cause. The report was received and the committee continued for further investigation.

The president gave the members of the quorum some wholesome instructions in regard to duties. Josiah Curtis, J. C. McIntyre and John Chapman, Sen., were received into the quorum.

Geo. Kemp, John Goode and J. W. Waldsmith were appointed to investigate the conduct of J. V. Roberts, and requested to report to the president of the quorum, that he may take action.

Reports of labor were made by Brn. Hawley, Walling, Terry, Goode, Anthony, Waldsmith, Parker, Chapman, Whiting, Geo. Kemp, Booth, Goreham, Farmer, Chatburn, Charles Kemmish, E. T. Dobson and Kinnaman.

The following was unanimously adopted by the quorum: Resolved that we, as a quorum, in consideration of there being some doctrinal points on which there seem to be some division [of sentiment] feel it our duty, for the sake of cherishing and manifesting that spirit of unity which is characteristic of the gospel, to refrain as much as possible from discussion of such points, until such time when in the economy of God they may be definitely decided upon by the proper authorities of the Church.

Each member of the quorum is hereby requested to report either in person to the quorum or to the president by letter, at least once every year.

Motions were made sustaining J. T. Kinnaman as president of the quorum, T. W. Chatburn and J. M. Terry as his counselors, and E. T. Dobson as secretary of quorum.

The following appeal or petition from the Mason's Grove Branch was read:

The Mason's Grove Branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints hereby appeal to your honorable body from the division of the March session of the Galland's Grove District of said Church reversing the decision of said branch against John D. Newcom; a member thereof, and respectfully ask that the evidence in the case be considered by you or by a committee appointed by the Conference and representing them, and that a decision be had at its session referred to above. The Galland's Grove District has been notified that this appeal would be taken.

E. T. Donson,

In behalf of Mason's Grove Branch.

It was referred to William Leeka, A. J. Cato and J. C. McIntyre, as a committee of investigation.

By motion the hour for morning prayer meeting was changed from nine o'clock to eight o'clock.

The following was moved:

Whereas the financial affairs of the Church are not in as good condition as we would desire, and thereby the promulgation of the gospel is much hindered; and

Whereas, we have almost entirely departed from the law concerning missionary labor, the ministry almost invariably first making a call on the Bishop for money before they attempt to start out to preach; therefore be it

Resolved, that we recommend the ministry in the future to try and comply with the law, as far as practicable, which says, "Therefore let no man among you (for this commandment is unto all the faithful who are called of God in the Church unto his ministry) from this hour take purse or scrip, that goeth forth to proclaim this gospel."—Doctrine and Covenants, p. 228, new edition.

It was spoken upon by Brn. Harvey, Brand, Sheen, Chambers and Gurley, in favor; and opposed by Brn. McDowell, Lake and Lambert, and then by motion it was referred to the General Assembly of the quorums.

The following memorial was presented by J. W. Briggs:

MEMORIAL BY J. W. BRIGGS.

Memorial to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, in General Conference assembled:

BRETHREN: At the last Annual Conference your memorialist submitted a summary of the case prosecuted against him for the last three years, alleging therein that all the issues in the case were, by the report of the Quorum of the Twelve, and the adoption of the same by the Conference of September, 1879, disposed of, save one, to wit, that of the Gathering, and this allegation was not denied nor controverted by my accusers, but acquiesced in by the action therein being confined to the said remaining question; and upon this question your memorialist did in said summary distinctly accept the finding of the Quorum of the Twelve thereon, as his belief and position on that question, and alleging that this is the position of the Church, as shown by our acts in three General Conferences, to wit, that of 1852, 1863 and 1876, and this allegation was not denied by my accusers in their answer, and therefore must be deemed admitted. And further, your memorialist asked relief from the hasty and unjust act of the preceding Semi-Annual Conference. Upon which the late Annual Conference passed the following preamble and resolution—and proviso attached.

"Whereas in his letter to this Conference—appealing from the decision of last Semi-Annual Conference, a decision based upon the findings of the Quorum of the Twelve in his case, Bro. Jason W. Briggs concedes the position assumed by the Reorganized Church on the subject of the gathering, and whereas in so doing he virtually recedes from the position charged against him on this question, be it hereby "Resolved, that he be exonerated from the disability attaching to him now, as far as such disability results from the finding of the Quorum of the Twelve in his case and the action of the Semi-Annual Conference thereon, in which he was declared guilty of teaching contrary to the revelations of God and the faith of the Church on the subject of the gathering. Provided that he shall in express terms recede from the position the Quorum of the Twelve found him guilty of occupying, in antagonism to the Church."

Now I object to the statement in this preamble, that in conceding the position of the Church I virtually "recede from the position charged" as found by the Quorum of the Twelve, but instead I declared distinctly in that paper that the finding of the quorum is correct and that the position so attributed to me was the declared position of the Church as shown by its records upon this subject. And as I did not in that paper "virtually recede" from that position, I can not "in express terms recede" as required by the said proviso. I asked the Annual Conference to pass upon the issue and justify me or justify my accusers, and they gave me the foregoing—I asked for justice and was offered an inconsistency—"I asked for bread and was offered a stone." I therefore renew my petition for justice at your hands. To wit, to pass upon the remaining question which is, Is there now a place to which the Saints are commanded to gather—is there a law now in force requiring a gathering to any State or place? It is fast becoming apparent to all reflecting minds that have followed this case, that the Church has been misled by my accusers to the great injury of the faith of Saints and creating an insurmountable stumbling block to the honest inquirer after truth.

I therefore respectfully ask that you rescind the acts of the late Annual and the last Semi-Annual Conference complained of, and to re-affirm the act of the Annual Conference of 1878, upon clause four of the report of the Quorum of the Twelve upon the question of gathering.

Respectfully submitted,

J. W. BRIGGS.

WHEELER'S GROVE, IOWA, September 12th, 1880.

The following motion to refer was presented:

Whereas, we have resolved that we are not competent to definitely decide on matters of doctrine, and as we have already established a precedent by referring a similar resolution affecting the standing of others of the ministry in this matter, to the General Assembly of the Quorums of the Church when called by the President; therefore be it

Resolved that this memorial in connection with all matters and documents pertaining to the action or actions of the Church in the case of Bro. Jason W. Briggs be referred to the General Assembly whenever it shall convene.

It was discussed, and a motion was made that the resolution to refer be tabled, which was discussed, and the motion to table prevailed.

The following resolution was then submitted to the conference:

Whereas, the Church affirmed the report of the Presidency on the Decatur District resolution in Fall of 1879; and

Whereas, Bro. J. W. Briggs has expressed and still does express a willingness to stand with the Church upon said basis, and believing that injustice has been done him by the disability placed upon him by Conference, even after expressing a willingness to so endorse; therefore, be it

Resolved that he be now released from all disability placed upon him by acts of former conferences.

It was moved to amend by adding the words "When he makes such restitution as the Church will accept." The amendment was favored by Brn. Crabb, Harvey and Gallup, and opposed by Brn. J. H. Condit, Lake, Waterman and Short. The question being called, the amendment was put to vote and lost. A further amendment was moved to strike from the resolution the words, "And believing that injustice has been done him by the disability placed upon him by conference, even after expressing a willingness to so endorse." This was spoken upon in favor by Brethren J. W. Chatburn, Forscutt, Harvey, Crabb and Gurley, and opposed by Brn. Lambert, Caffall and Bays. Then the question being called, the amendment prevailed, as also did the motion as amended, which read as adopted as follows:

Whereas, the Church affirmed the report of the Presidency on the Decatur District resolution, in the Fall of 1879; and

Whereas, Bro. J. W. Briggs has expressed, and still does express his willingness to stand with the Church upon said basis; therefore be it

Resolved that he be now released from all disability placed upon him by acts of former conferences.

Announcements were made for preaching this evening and to-morrow, and then by resolution the conference itself appointed the speakers for the rest of the session. Various names were presented, but the choice fell upon Pres. Joseph Smith as the speaker for to-morrow evening, and on Sunday at 10:30 a.m.; for M. H. Forscutt on Sunday afternoon, and for Joseph Luff on Sunday evening.

A hymn was sung and the benediction pronounced.

At 7:30 p.m. prayer was offered by J. W. Chatburn. B. V. Springer spoke from the text, "What will this babbling say." He said that the subject of religion had always agitated the minds of men, and there has ever been a great variety of opinions concerning religion. One prime mistake has been in holding the idea that there is a great mystery in the Christian religion, but in fact it is not so. Man, the master piece of creation, received from God the power of reason, and his agency. Very soon after the law was given the devil came and said it was not so as God had said. And like men do to-day, they believed Satan then, and fell heirs to the ills that followed. Jesus as the Redeemer will place man back where he was, and God shall again say, "Good, very good." The gospel harmonizes with reason, for God in giving a law would give that which was comprehensible. True conversion consists of a change of life in obedience to the law of God. In his mortal state, as one without hope, he must apply that law to himself and his life, and lift himself up. Hence we preach the gospel to man everywhere, that he may recognize his condition, and seeing the benefit to be derived, may apply the divine remedy for sin and death incurred. Repentance and baptism as taught of God bring a change of condition. Some think that Christ's atonement finished the work for all men (if he accepts Christ) without anything for man to do, but such a belief is foreign to the law of God. Christ accepted the law, and showed where man might stand by it along with himself. Both earth and men were affected by the fall, and the atonement is to restore all that was lost to both. Jesus' mission will not be complete till it can be said that death has no longer any sting or any victory, when the grave can no longer hold us.

Glaud Rodger preached in the Chapel at Council Bluffs at the same hour, assisted by William Chambers.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 18TH.

At 8 a.m. the prayer meeting was placed in charge of J. M. Harvey.

At 10:30 a.m. I. N. White preached, assisted by George S. Hyde. The text of the speaker was, "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple." God's law is also said to be not only perfect but the "perfect law of liberty," and perfection can only be had by obedience to that law as it was given. Changes have been made but the question is, who made them? We fail to find the record that God has changed the law that was pronounced the perfect one. Christ preached this law and commanded his disciples to go into all the world and teach it, and he and they taught what to obey and to do, and the blessed consequences to follow obedience, as told in Mark 16th chapter. We have asked those who differ from the commandment and promises there given to show the chapter and verse where God abrogated or set aside these things, but none can answer, and we are compelled to search the history of the early Church for a reply as to how these changes came. The church of Rome, (the mother of all the reformed churches) answers by saying that in the year 533 the Emperor Justinian by a decree acknowledged the Pope and proclaimed him the supreme head over the church, and also put his empire under the dominion of the same power. In 606 Phocas confirmed the former decree of Justinian. Then indulgences were sold, and for certain sums men could commit various crimes and be forgiven by the priests. But by and by men rose out of the great darkness and apostasy and brought a reformation. But they only advocated a part of the principles of the gospel, as Luther taught faith alone as the only means and way of salvation, repudiating all the ordinances of the gospel. But from then down to D. L. Moody of our day, all who have sought to reform the world by less than the perfect law have failed. But it was promised (in Rev. 14:6) that an angel from heaven should restore the gospel, the "perfect law," and it has been done. Thus all the principles preached by the primitive Christians are now taught, and the endowment of the Holy Ghost is again given to the obedient, as on the Day of Pentecost, and to all the Church then.

At 1:30 p.m. a hymn was sung, and prayer was offered by Heman C. Smith.

Pres. J. Smith said that he had been authorized by Jason W. Briggs to state that he accepted the decision of the First Presidency, made last Fall, on the subject matter presented in the petition of the Decatur District, and that he is willing to stand with the Church upon that basis. He also accepts the action of the conference yesterday in regard to him. He was thereupon invited to sit with his quorum upon the platform, and did so.

The minutes of yesterday's sessions were read, and then the following report and recommendations from the Quorum of the Twelve:

REPORT OF QUORUM OF TWELVE.

The Quorum of the Twelve have held six meetings, and have rejoiced in the brightening prospects before the Church. They have expressed a willingness and determination to labor as the law directs, as soon as the Church is in a proper financial condition to sustain their families.

At their first meeting, Monday, September 13th, it was felt and expressed by all, that the Twelve and the Seventy should be the first to be placed and sustained in the field.

Missions recommended by the President and members of the Quorum of Twelve:

That J. W. Gillen be sustained in the Australian Mission, and that we regret that we can not now consistently send any one to assist him.

That Wm. Nelson be released from the Tahiti Mission, and that the Bishop loan him the money to return to San Francisco, as he has requested.

That David Brown have charge of the Tahiti Mission until other arrangements are made.

That T. Taylor be sustained president of the English Mission.

That J. L. Bear be sustained in Switzerland Mission.

That, while we are in favor of the Chicago Mission, we think that the Northern Illinois District should sustain M. H. Forscutt and family. And when the present obligations the Church has assumed to pay (rent for hall) shall have been met, they should also assist, if those of the Church of Chicago need assistance, to keep open a suitable hall for the presentation of the word.

That W. H. Kelly, T. W. Smith, J. Caffall, J. E. E. E. Lake and J. R. Lambert labor in present fields, the latter as health and circumstances permit. That A. H. Smith be appointed in charge of the mission composed of the State of Missouri, and that M. T. Short and W. T. Bozarth be associated with him.

Whereas E. C. Briggs is making efforts to liberate himself from financial difficulties, we recommend that he be placed in charge of South-western Iowa, laboring as circumstances permit.

That Z. H. Gurley labor as circumstances permit, until Spring, at which time, under God's blessing, he will take and occupy his entire time in the field.

That J. W. Briggs labor as circumstances admit and wisdom direct.

That C. Scott, G. Griffiths and B. V. Springer be associated with W. H. Kelley.

That Heman C. Smith have charge of the South-western Mission.

That J. F. McDowell labor in present field.

That G. S. Hyde labor in South-western Iowa and Nebraska.

That D. H. Bays labor in Western Iowa and parts of Nebraska and Kansas, as circumstances admit.

That J. C. Foss take charge of the South Eastern Mission, if practicable.

That W. W. Blair, R. J. Anthony, G. E. Deuel and E. C. Brand be sustained in the Rocky Mountain Mission.

That P. N. Brix be sustained in the Scandinavian Mission, and that J. H. Hansen be requested to take charge of that mission as soon as practicable.

That Glauod Rodger be sustained in his last appointment.

That F. P. Scarcliff be sustained in present field.

That John Thomas labor in the South-Eastern Mission.

That Josiah Curtis labor in Missouri as he requests, without expense to the Church.

That C. Wickes be sustained until December.

We recommend that all High Priests, Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons labor as circumstances permit, under mission, district and branch authorities, and make themselves actively engaged in the cause of Christ, and by their diligence show a worthiness to be appointed to various fields of labor as soon as the Church shall be in a condition to send forth more laborers. And we respectfully invite careful attention to the 7th, 8th and 9th paragraphs of the Principles and Rules published in the Herald for May 1st, 1878.

A. H. SMITH, President pro tem.
JAS. CAFFALL, Secretary pro tem.

The most of the afternoon session was spent in considering this report. The recommendation in regard to William Nelson was amended by inserting the word "send" in place of "loan" him the money, and by striking out the words "as he has requested."

In considering the Chicago Mission it was moved to strike out the words "Bro. M. H. Forscutt and family," and insert the words, "their own mission." It was inquired if the mission was the creation of that district, and Pres. Smith stated that it was not, but was established by the General Conference. Numerous other questions were asked and answered, and finally the proposed amendment was adopted by a vote of 34 to 23. It was then moved to insert the name of Columbus Scott in place of the words "their own mission," which was followed by a motion to substitute the name of Z. H. Gurley for that of C. Scott. Then it was moved to strike out all names and refer the matter to the First Presidency, but this did not meet with favor, and finally the whole question was laid upon the table.

In considering the recommendations to the Rocky Mountain Mission, it was moved to strike out the name of G. E. Deuel. This was because of the action of this conference concerning sending out only the Twelve and the Seventy, which was also one of the reasons urged for the release of Bro. Forscutt from a General Conference appointment. In deciding concerning Bro. Deuel, a standing vote was necessary, and there being a tie, President Smith cast the decisive vote that continued him in the field.

Upon reaching the name of Josiah Curtis, an amendment was adopted, by which he was recommended to his district for appointment.

The only other Elders besides Forscutt, Deuel and Curtis, who were upon the list and not of the Twelve or the Seventy, were P. N. Brix, Thomas Taylor and F. P. Scarcliff, whose missions were considered, and continued as recommended. Charles Wickes, of the Priests, was continued, but with permission to return North in December next.

Then the report of the Quorum of the Twelve was adopted as amended.

The report of the Second Quorum of Elders was read:

SECOND QUORUM OF ELDERS' REPORT.

The quorum have held three meetings during this session. Bro. John Smith, Reese, Parish, E. C. Brown, Butterworth, John Matthews, Falconer, Wilson, Bette, F. Hansen, Warnkey, Brittain, H. Palmer, B. F. Durfee, I. N. White, Gilbert, Church, Benedict, Shute, Vickery, Billings and Armstrong reported by letter, and J. H. Condit, Downs, Daniel M. Williams, Wm. Williams, Lockling, Davis, D. Chambers, Cadwell, Cook, Longbottom, Garner, Gamet, North, S. Thomas, T. Thomas, Wight, Maule, Henry Palmer and Wm. Chambers in person.

The names of Peter Ray and Wm. Hendricks were stricken from the quorum record no such Elders being known. A collection of $3.12 was taken up for a Record, and $2 50 paid to H. A. Stebbins for same.

John H. Condit, Levi Gamet, Egbert Bullard and Daniel M. Williams were received into the quorum. [Daniel M. Williams is already a member of the Third Quorum.—H. A. Stebbins, Church Secretary].

Resolved that the officers of the quorum urge both by the Herald and by letter, the great necessity of the members of said quorum reporting their labors every six months to the president or secretary.

Forty-two Elders reported of the ninety-six, twenty-two by letter and twenty in person. Of these, three are acting as district presidents, eight as branch presidents, the rest, excepting two or three, are actively engaged in local labor.

WILLIAM CHAMBERS, President.
DONALD MAULE, Secretary.

The report of the Fourth Quorum of Elders was read as follows:

FOURTH QUORUM OF ELDERS' REPORT.

The Fourth Quorum of Elders have held three meetings during this session of Conference, and hereby report the following business done:

James Ogard was released from the secretaryship of the quorum, and A. J. Cato was chosen to succeed him.

Elders Edward Boulson, W. H. Jordan, E. R. Lanpher, Caswell D. Stevens and Edgar Sherman were received into the quorum, thereby making the number full, even 96 members.

Elders Levi Wilson, W. H. Jordan, C. D. Stevens, J. Gallup, E. R. Lanpher, Henry Hershey, Dorman Lewis, Edgar Sherman, G. F. Waterman, Nelson Brown and A. J. Cato reported in person.

The president presented the name of Levi Wilson as his choice for ordination as his Second Counselor, and the quorum ratified the nomination, and hereby ask the General Conference to provide for his ordination.

Charges being preferred against A. W. Bullard concerning his teaching of doctrine, the case was considered, and a motion to silence him until he makes restitution and reforms, was adopted by the quorum.

By motion all members of the quorum are requested to report in person or by letter at the Annual Conference of 1881.

G. F. WATERMAN, President,
A. J. CATO, Secretary.

The request for the ordination of Levi Wilson was granted.

The report of the Priest's Quorum was read:

QUORUM OF PRIESTS' REPORT.

The Quorum of Priests respectfully submit that they have held one meeting, and in the absence of the president of the quorum, Henry A. Stebbins was chosen to preside.

The secretary read the names of the following who were elected members at the April meeting of the quorum and enrolled upon their assent by letter. John R. Nicholas, James F. Clemensen, John J. Vickery, David C. White, J. H. Merriam, James Buxton, Almon D. Hougas, Wm. Clow, Henry Roberts and Samuel Naiden. Twelve others who were written to have not yet given an answer, and at this meeting the following named priests were upon personal application, received into the quorum: Freeman S. Gilliland, John C. Tripp, Benjamin Kester, Milton Daugherty, Barnett M. Green, John C. Johnson, Elisha McEvers, Joseph B. Gouldsmith, Jacob Whiting.

Letters from a number of the quorum showed constant and diligent labor in the ministry since April Conference, with good results. Foremost among these are Brethren Rudolph Etzenhouser, Charles Wickes, G. F. Weston and Daniel McPherson. Others have labored diligently in their respective branches.

The president and secretary were authorized to issue licences to members of the quorum upon application.

It was decided to purchase a Record, and the members present contributed $2 to the treasury for expenses of Record and licenses. Balance on hand from former meeting $1.75 cents. The total number enrolled in the quorum is thirty-one, including the president, Bishop I. L. Rogers. The members are expected to be able to report active work, either in their respective branches or traveling generally, at the Spring Conference.

H. A. STEBBINS, Pres. pro tem.
E. L. KELLEY, Secretary.

The committee on the Omaha Branch matter made the following report:

Your committee to whom was referred the appeal of George Medlock, George Hatt and William Ballinger from the decisions of the Omaha Branch and the Northern Nebraska District, report as follows:

After examining the papers submitted to us, hearing the testimony of Bro. Wm. Rumel in behalf of the Branch and District, and of Bro. Geo. Hatt, in behalf of the appellants; after examining also what were certified to be copies of the record in the case, we have concluded and herewith submit:

That while the Omaha Branch acted hastily and unwisely in the meetings complained of, held March 27th and 28th, 1879, the action of the Branch was legal, and the consequences growing out therefrom binding upon the appellants in the case.

In view of these facts, your committee recommend that mutual concessions be made by the Branch and the appellants; by the Branch for its haste and precipitancy, by the appellants for their refusal to recognize, and their rebellion against legally constituted authority. Respectfully,

M. H. FORSCUTT,
J. C. CRABB, } Committee.
HUGH LYTLE,

The recommendation was adopted as the ruling of the conference in this case, and the committee was discharged.

The committee in the case of P. H. Reinsimar and the Salt Lake City Branch, reported as follows:

Your committee to whom was referred the appeal from the decision of the Utah Mission Conference by the Salt Lake City Branch, in the case of Bro. P. H. Reinsimar, report as follows:

Your committee have duly considered the evidence presented, heard statements and arguments made by Elder R. M. Elvin, counsel directly for Bro. P. H. Reinsimar, and indirectly for the Utah Mission Conference; also statements and arguments made by Elder Joseph Luff, counsel for the Salt Lake City Branch, the appellants in the case. Elder Zenas H. Gurley, minister in charge of the Utah Mission at the time the difficulty occurred, was also present, and gave in evidence before your committee. From these statements and evidences we conclude and submit:

1st. That there were circumstances known to the Salt Lake City Branch which justified them in withholding a Letter of Removal and recommendation from Bro. Reinsimar until an investigation into those circumstances could be had.

2d. That though the general rule is good that an individual should not be deprived of membership privileges without citation and trial, and though it appeared in evidence before your committee that the brother had no charges preferred against him at the time he applied for Letter of Removal, it also appeared that his absence from the city, and a consideration of mercy for him, alone prevented charges from being so preferred, as others implicated with him in the offense for which his certificate was withheld, were tried, and two of them were expelled.

3d. This being known or believed by the members of the Salt Lake City Branch, justifies, in our view, the unanimous action of that branch in refusing the Letter of Removal when called for; as by granting it they would have placed without their power the opportunity to correct the wrong they believed to exist.

4th. Your committee therefore recommend that the action of the Utah Mission Conference be reversed, and the Salt Lake City Branch be sustained in their action in the premises.

Respectfully,
HUGH LYTLE,
J. C. CRABB, } Committee.
M. H. FORSCUTT,

It was adopted as the decision of the conference, and the committee was discharged.

The committee in the case of J. D. Newcom and the Mason's Grove Branch reported:

We, whose names are subscribed below, being a majority of your committee to whom was referred the appeal of the Mason's Grove Branch, from the decision of the Galland's Grove District Conference, in the case of J. D. Newcom, report as follows:

We have duly considered the evidence presented, heard statements and arguments made by E. T. Dobson, counsel for the Mason's Grove Branch, the appellants in the case, also statements and arguments made by Elder J. W. Chatburn counsel for the Galland's Grove District. The individual interests of the brother, J. D. Newcom, being represented by D. H. Bays. From these statements and the evidence we conclude and as such majority submit:

That the action of the Mason's Grove Branch in the case of Bro. J. D. Newcom, in expelling him from the Church upon the charge of adultery was correct, and in harmony with the spirit of the law, from the fact that the individual with whom the crime is alleged to have been committed, testified to the guilt of the brother, while at the same time under the mortifying and humiliating necessity of testifying to her own guilt in connection therewith.

That the case under consideration does not come under the purview of that portion of the law which declares that in a case of this kind every word shall be established by two witnesses, as found in section 42:22, for this reason:

That to our minds it is conclusive that the clause referred to requiring two witnesses, applies only to cases where both the parties to the crime deny their guilt. That when either of the parties to the crime admit their guilt, the testimony of the one so admitting is to be taken, and considered as of equal weight with any number of witnesses in the absence of such admission. And from the further fact,

That in this instance one of the parties to the crime did so admit, and consistent with the admission of her guilt, made confession and restitution to said branch; and in view of the still further fact that corroborative evidence given by two other witnesses, members of the Church, sustaining the fact of what seemed to your committee to be imprudent relations of the parties toward each other.

We therefore recommend to this conference that the decision of Galland's Grove District in the case referred to be reversed, and that the action of the Mason's Grove Branch be sustained.

It is proper to state that Wm. Leeka, one of your committee, dissents from the finding of the committee, it not being in harmony with his conception of the case.

A. J. CATO,
J. C. McINTYRE, } Committee.

The recommendation in the report was adopted as the ruling of the conference in the matter.

The following letter from Alexander Fyfe was read, and by resolution was referred to the Bishopric for investigation, they to report at the next April session of Conference.

To the President and officers of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints:

On the 24th day of December, 1874, Bro. M. H. Forscutt gave me a note for one hundred dollars, payable when the Kirtland Temple was disposed of, as he claimed that he and Bro. Joseph Smith were joint owners at the time he gave me the note. And as I understand the Church has assumed ownership of the above property again, it is but reasonable to expect the Church proper to pay off all claims against said property.

Now I present this my claim, for your consideration, believing as I do that the Church authorities are willing to allow every just claim against it. I have been waiting to see what would be done by the General Conference about this note, as I expected the last Conference would decide in favor of my claim.

Hoping that the brethren will give this just claim due consideration, I remain your brother in the gospel of Jesus Christ,

ALEXANDER FYFE.

In behalf of the Committee on Representation, Joseph Smith stated that they had not yet finished their work and therefore were not ready to report. The committee was continued.

By resolution the authorities of the Church were sustained in their various callings.

Resolved that all of the ministry not appointed or sustained at this session, be and are hereby released from previous appointments.

Votes of thanks were tendered to the following parties: To Messrs Parks and Wells for the free use of the grounds upon which the camps were located; to Sheriff Reals and his deputy for their efficient aid in keeping order and protecting the camp; to the brethren forming the force of local police for their faithfulness; to the committee of arrangements for their active labors and wise judgment; to the Saints and friends of this vicinity for their kind aid towards making the Conference a success; to the owners of the Grangers' Hall for the use of that building in which were held quorum and committee meetings.

Also it was provided that the next session of Conference be held at Plano, Illinois.

Then a hymn was sung and the benediction was pronounced.

During the interval before evening service two more were baptized.

At 7:30 p.m., prayer was offered by M. H. Forscutt, and after it and the usual singing service, Joseph Smith preached a two hour sermon to the Saints. Some of the thoughts and ideas expressed were as follows:

It is said by philosophers that men who have attained middle age have already sown the seeds of dissolution that will finally result in their destruction, and what is true of individuals in this respect is true also of bodies and of kingdoms.

For years the question as to whether I should have anything to do with the latter day work was placed constantly before me, but in 1859 I became satisfied that I had something to do in it, and I was also convinced that if there was a correct organization existing it was the one at Zarahemla, Wisconsin. But I asked whether I might not give away my birthright. In regard to the people of Utah, where some thought my place was, I had a convincing experience. I saw a bright cloud above me that came down and enveloped me in a blaze, and a voice said to me, "The light where you now stand is brighter than theirs." I have ever opposed the dogma of polygamy, and I stand on the same platform to-day in this regard that I did in my youth. The work we have to do is to declare salvation to the people, and I fail to discover that any other duty has been placed upon the Elders. The Spirit is to bear witness of their work, and is to lead into all truth. It is not expected that we should know it all at once, nor necessary; and what we do not know of a thing, we should admit that we do not. Our work is to preach by example that men may attain to a condition where they may receive God's Holy Spirit. This work begun so long ago has developed upon us by divine direction. And while I do not believe that I was fore-ordained and named like Cyrus, yet I do believe that the work was destined to take me into it, it being in progress in my day, and I early discovered that there was no mental reservation for me in regard to it. If God has made no provisions for mental reservations in accepting this work and laboring for it, how can we make them. We can deny the work entirely, but I see no possible benefit to be derived from so doing. When I identified myself with it I did so to remain, either till its success or defeat. A lack of trusting to the ultimate workings of the Spirit sometimes causes dissolution. Members are often made dead ones by their failing to trust to the truth, and the knife is often used to sever when mercy should be shown. The work of the adversary is disintegration, ours is and should be a centralizing of power, a bringing of things into one. The saving power of the gospel of Christ is made apparent by the fact that it is saving us. We may not know what our future work may be, but we know that the Master of the work is moving this way, and when he comes it will be as the conqueror of our adversary. As a token of his near approach the world is being pleaded with by wars and famines and other fulfillments of prophecy. It grieves me that the condition of mankind makes necessary such pleading. Success will not be the attaining of present blessings, but the obtaining of final salvation and a right to the tree of life, and success can only be gained by untiring zeal and unflinching devotion. The power is in our possession. The seeds of dissolution may be in the body, but so also is the germ of life, and it devolves on us to succeed. I believe that the resistance unto blood is ended. David was a man of blood, and he was not permitted to build the temple. No man of blood will be; but the children of peace and meekness in the latter days will enter the borders of Zion and will erect the temple. One of the sorest interests among the Saints is the spending of money, but they have not a shepherd who wishes to be walled in from them, as one shepherd of latter days has been.

The speaker closed with a plea for the continuance of the Chicago mission, saying that that was a center from which should radiate light, and where we can bring the truth to thinking minds, but to prosecute the mission money will be necessary.

After the close of the sermon it was moved to reconsider the matter of the Chicago Mission, and the following was adopted:

Resolved that the Chicago Mission be continued as per order of last Conference, and that Bro. M. H. Forscutt labor there in charge.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 19TH.

At 8 a.m. the morning prayer meeting was held, J. W. Chatburn having charge.

At 10:30 a.m. prayer was offered by A. H. Smith, and Joseph Smith preached to the assembly of citizens and Saints. He said that in saying that Christ is the way, the truth and the life, it becomes us and all who say it to ask how he is the way, how he is the truth, and how he is the life. It can easily be answered that he became such because God appointed him. But men differ widely about the way, and as to how that truth is to be applied, and as to what the light emanating consists of. I see in the faces of listeners the love of truth expressed that comes from the heart. I expect that my salvation will be upon the exact truth of God. One reason why we differ is because of the different conceptions existing as to what truth is. Jesus became the way in a literal sense, for he was sent to do the work of the Father, and the doctrine he taught was that of Him who sent him. And we must follow him who walked in the way up to God, must walk in the way of the Lord that John the Baptist taught. As one sent to teach that way John preached the baptism of water for the remission of sins, and Christ went down into the water because it was the true way by which, if a man enters in, he should be saved. If one write the words, "Baptism is not for the remission of sins," let men bring all the testimony of the commentators that they please, and I will bring the three legal witnesses that the law requires, and more, to the opposite of the statement. Mark, chapter one, says that "John did preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." The second witness is Luke, and the third is Peter on the Day of Pentecost. The fourth was the Holy Ghost given on that same day. The fifth was Jesus Christ who said to John that thus it became men in order to fulfill all righteousness. The sixth was the voice of God who declared of Jesus after his baptism that he was well pleased with his obedience. I can not see how you can claim to believe the witnesses and yet deny baptism whereof they witness. But if we would follow Christ we must go that way, for it is the way of the Lord. Jesus said to the Father, "Sanctify them by thy truth; thy word is truth." John taught the word and the truth of the Lord and said that God sent him to baptize the people. The last proposition is the life. "He that believeth on him hath everlasting life." We believe that Christ has come and that he will come again, not only as the Son of God, but as the ruler over the earth also.

A collection to pay the sheriff and deputy and for other expenses was taken up, amounting to $52.68.

After the sermon Bro. Joseph Smith baptized nine persons, these making thirty-six in all during this session of Conference.

At 2:30 p.m., the nine baptized were confirmed by Brn. Gurley, Lambert, Lake and Caffall, who also ordained Levi Wilson as Second Counselor in the Fourth Quorum of Elders.

Prayer was offered by J. H. Lake, and M. H. Forscutt preached. He said that the object of the gospel is to bring men into a Christ-like condition, but sacrifices innumerable are demanded. He had heard men say that all their acts came from selfishness, but he argued against there being any selfish consideration in the gospel. There is nothing of this world's good to be obtained by affiliation with this latter day work. The purpose of the gospel is also to bring mankind into a higher state of existence. It is therefore good news to them, being God's plan for their salvation. But God does not destroy man's agency by compelling him to accept salvation, and thus be only a machine acted upon. We are saved not because of any inherent worth of our own, but because of the mercy of God. Salvation is for all men, and all men will be saved or will have been saved. Men can be saved from damnation and yet not be glorified. There is a difference between salvation justified and glorified. When Englishmen are naturalized here in America they receive the privileges of citizenship, but it does not make them judges, mayors or other official of the land. So we can be saved without receiving any glory or honor thereby.

Z. H. Gurley followed with a few remarks after Bro. Forscutt closed. He said that this earth is a battle field, and the fittest will survive till the great finale, and then they will continue. God, by the administration of justice, will give all men according to their works. As you sow, you will also reap; and you must make yourselves acquainted with God's law and live by it wisely. All should be prompted by love and actuated by the spirit of truth. And we should assist to lift up humanity. Stretch forth your hands to your fellow-men; let the love of God shine forth from your hearts as well as be within you and filling your homes.

The Hay Committee reported as follows :

We have paid for hay and other expenses $81.65, and received $99.00, leaving $17.35, which we will pay to such purpose as Conference may decide.

H. N. HANSEN, }
C. W. LAPWORTH, } Committee.

Upon motion it was ordered to be paid into the Church treasury, and thanks were voted to the committee for their services.

The following was moved and adopted :

Whereas, injury may result to the cause and perhaps also to individuals, in that the labors of some of the ministry may be lessened through misunderstanding as to the action of this Conference in regard to sending only the Twelve and the Seventy into the field, (unless sufficient means be in the Church treasury to do otherwise), therefore be it

Resolved that those of the ministry who were under General Conference appointment, but who are not named in the list of missions appointed at this session, neither have been individually released, nor otherwise provided for, are hereby recommended to district and mission authorities and conferences for appointment, either in those fields to which they were formerly assigned by the General Conference, or to other districts and regions where they may profitably work; and we also recommend such authorities or conferences to receive them in the same spirit as though they were sent by the General Conference; and furthermore we recommend that such districts and missions sustain such laborers with the necessary means, so far as is practicable and just, and this in order that the work of God may be prosecuted with no less vigor and success than has been heretofore. And we also recommend that all others who can labor to the benefit of the cause, be also in like manner appointed and sustained, according as the Spirit may direct and means and circumstances may justify or permit.

Adjournment was had till evening.

At 7:30 p.m. Joseph Luff preached. He said that he had been asked by different people to speak upon different subjects, and some desired that he should treat upon the people of Utah, as he had just returned from that land. He remarked that by going there he had learned things that he could not have believed without being there. He had not supposed that people could be so ruled by despotism that they could look upon the mire wherewith they were daubed and thank God for it, or that it was possible for a people who had been so enlightened to sink so low in degradation as many do under the religious system of Utah. In some of the writings of their leaders it is stated that our Lord Jesus Christ created Adam, but other teachings of theirs say that Adam came to earth and brought one of his wives, and that he was the father of Christ. Having been taught to obey counsel they are expected to close their eyes and not use their own judgment. The tithing of the poor there exceeds everything else under heaven as a systematic robbery. They take one-tenth of the grain, one-tenth of the young cattle and other stock, and then, when the remainder is grown to full size or fattened for selling, one-tenth of them is taken. After killing the swine one-tenth of the renderings is taken to the store house, and also one-tenth of the soap made from the refuse, or otherwise worthless scraps. Other religious bodies than the Reorganized Church are not able to cope with the errors of that people, from the fact that they meet them with many statements of story and book writers that are not true, and that people know it. But ministers of the Reorganized Church are able to fill the gap between the peoples, and he thought one sermon preached in Utah was worth ten preached outside. In God's hand the Reorganized Church will solve the problems there. A Methodist minister who had labored there ten years said that they could do nothing religiously for the people. Bro. Luff gave some excellent instruction to the Saints concerning their lives and conduct, and expressed his thanks for financial aid received by him.

After singing "Home, home shineth before us," the benediction was pronounced and the conference adjourned to meet at Plano, Illinois, at 10 o'clock a.m., Wednesday, April 6th, 1880.

JOSEPH SMITH, President,
H. A. STEBBINS, Secretary,
ELI T. DOBSON, Assistant.

I have only the names and items of the following baptized during the Conference.

Alma A. Chatburn, Martha A. Blake and Elizabeth Osborne baptized September 13th, by T. W. Chatburn, confirmed by Elvin and Bozarth. Joseph J. Hall, Lillie Johnson, Charles Cheney, Zebulun H. McCombs, Bessie A. Cobb, baptized September 14th, by J. R. Badham, confirmed by Lake and Badham. George M. and Merrett E. Kennedy, Ida E. Johnson and Ira A. Lytle, baptized September 16th, by Heman C. Smith, confirmed by Smith, Wilson, Bozarth and Hyde. Jane Stephens, (or Stevens), and John R. Palmer, baptized September 16th, by Levi Wilson, confirmed by same as above four. Cornelius and Sarah Jordan, baptized September 18th, by T. W. Chatburn, confirmation not stated. Henry B. Hardman, Hans H. Jaspersen, Thomas D., Carrie M. and Selina Cook, Siona Wood, Martha Avery, Henry Bishop and Damia Sellers, baptized September 19th, by Joseph Smith, confirmed by Gurley, Lambert, Lake and Caffall. Eleven names I have not, nor items of any kind. Those knowing them will confer a favor by sending to me, or the persons baptized can send names and items of birth, baptism and confirmation.

HENRY A. STEBBINS, Church Secretary.

Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.
HENRY A. STEBBINS, ASSISTANT.

Plano, Illinois, October 15th, 1880.

ON a recent visit to Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa, we found a very decided improvement in the state of the country. A town of over two hundred inhabitants; with stores and business houses; blacksmith, wagon, and harness shops; with an active grain and stock business; give an appearance of thrift and enterprise quite gratifying to those interested. We found a most excellent feeling prevailing in regard to the settlement of the locality, and active preparations being made for a further increase. Crops this year have been fair, though hurt some by dry weather; the absence of frost up to October 2d greatly aided in overcoming this, however, and corn matured well. There has been considerable sickness the past summer, chiefly bilious and typhoid fevers; but the approach of cooler weather seemed to have a beneficial effect on the people. The air on some days was clear and bracing, seeming to impart snap and vigor to the system.

The Saints, as a whole, were and are anxious to know when the press is to be removed into their midst; but we could not assure them as to the time and event. We believe that a better community would be hard to find; we quite fell in love with the people and the country. We spoke to the Saints at their meeting house, (old quarters), and also spoke at Davis City, in the Union Church, owned by Mr. John Clark, a pleasant man, past middle age, and so liberal in view as to have erected a house in which all may meet and worship, without regard to denominational name. Bro. Z. H. Gurley fills regular appointments in this church each two weeks, and the interest is good.

Bro. O. B. Thomas held a debate with one Elder Ryan, down in the edge of Missouri, while we were at Lamoni, and acquitted himself well for the cause, so at least says report. Two good rains fell during our stay, and we saw the country wet and dry.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE hope the Saints will please take notice that the farm heretofore advertised in the HERALD, and known as the Location Farm, is sold; Bro. Thomas France, of Kewanee, Illinois, having bought it on September 28th. So please do not write us any more inquiries about it. It is sold.

Bro. A. B. Moore, from Montana, has come in and is improving a farm west from the town of Lamoni, some five miles, and two and a half south.

Bro. Silas Rogers, of Ford county, Illinois, mentions that they have very good meetings in the Piper City Branch, and the Saints desire to keep the commandments of God. We hope that they will continue to press on.

Bro. I. N. White writes that he hopes to be actively engaged in the Des Moines District this winter.

In ordering a change in post office address, do not fail to give the old, as well as the new address.

Sister Susan Bourgoin, of St. Joseph, Missouri, expresses her thankfulness unto God for the blessings she enjoys, and especially in the thought and knowledge that the latter day work is true, and that the Reorganized Church is the Church of Christ. May she remain steadfast against all who would ensnare, and be comforted evermore in all her labors and trials.

Bro. George H. Box writes that the branch at Brooklyn, New York, is encouraged in the Lord's work. The Saints are teaching their neighbors the way of life and salvation.

Sister Rebecca Dayton, of Kirtland, Ohio, says that she abides in the faith and tries to do her duty, notwithstanding the loneliness. She thinks that place as worthy of labor being performed as any other, that souls might be saved. She is in her eighty-fourth year, and feels that her journey in this world is almost over. May her rest be a good one.

We call the attention of those writing to the Herald Office, on business connected with the Office, to the notice on last page of the HERALD. To insure prompt attention, all business communications must be addressed to Joseph Smith, Business Manager.

Bro. Frank Lofty wrote from Scranton, Kansas, September 27th, that he was preaching on the Sabbath days in that place. A good interest existed, and additions to the Church are expected.

Bro. John C. Foss wrote from St. Joseph, Missouri, September 28th. Had been preaching there and baptized one. Thence was going to Stewartsville.

Bro. E. C. Brown has baptized two more in Pocahontas county, Iowa.

Bro. D. F. Coombs, of North Dartmouth, Mass., mentions the good conference held in that district.

Bro. M. D. Scribner, Painesville, Ohio, says that he longs to hear another gospel sermon, but the few Saints have no minister, not even to preach their funeral sermons. But we pray, as will all Saints, that they may abide and be comforted by that promised heavenly teacher and comforter.

Bro. G. T. Griffiths wrote from London, Ontario, September 24th, that they had an excellent conference there the 18th and 19th.—God's gracious power was felt by all. He baptized some more at Walsingham after his report to the General Conference was written. He felt well in Spirit and in the faith.

We call the attention of those wishing a good article of note paper, to the price list on the last page. These papers are put up in packages of five quires each, sent postage paid for thirty-five and fifty cents per package. That for thirty-five cents is a hard, smooth paper, better in quality than you can buy in retail stores for twelve cents per quire. That for fifty cents is one of the best papers sold, and is usually retailed at eighteen and twenty cents per quire.

Bro. Joseph Smith has not yet returned from Iowa as we write (October 11th), but is expected soon. He has been in Decatur county since September 21st.

All persons ordering the book "Joseph the Prophet," will please remember $2 is the price of the book in the office. In all cases twenty cents additional for postage must accompany the order.

Bro. Henry Grim, of Houston county, Texas, says that he is still standing alone in that county, but has written for Brn. Bozarth and Thompson to come to his help. A Mr. McKinney has built a house for our Elders to preach in. We hope that it will yet have plenty of use that way. Bro. Bozarth has come North, but Bro. H. C. Smith will be in Texas soon to attend to that Mission, or so we expect.

Bro. George S. Hyde wrote from Mondamin, Iowa, October 8th, that he was laboring there in the Master's cause. He says, "There is neither happiness nor peace for me if I do not warn sinners to repentance. And it is not an irksome task, because, while teaching the gospel to others, I feel its saving power myself." Yes, that is the great consolation and comfort that is felt by every true and honest, zealous and faithful laborer for Christ, and there is no greater joy felt by mortal man than comes to him who preaches in Spirit and in truth.

News Summary.

Sept. 24th.—Strikes have penetrated Russia. Some 3,000 workmen employed in a factory near Smolensk, struck recently on account of a reduction having been made in their wages. They committed fearful excesses. The Governor of Smolensk, the Public Prosecutor, and the Chief of Police have gone to the scene of the strike, and troops are also being dispatched to the point.

It is stated that six of the best vessels of the Russian Pacific squadron have been ordered by telegraph to hold themselves in readiness to return immediately to the Mediterranean in the event of the Dulcigno affair taking a serious turn and a rupture occurring between Russia and Turkey. The remainder of the squadron would follow as needed.

25th.—Another earthquake in South America. A village destroyed and two hundred people killed.

The Montenegrins are preparing to enforce the cession of Dulcigno, and they expect to be supported by the European fleet.

A $250,000 fire in Brooklyn, New York. 27th.—It is stated that the allied fleets intend to move upon Dulcigno to force the Albanians to give it up to Montenegro; also it is said that the Turkish troops are ready for war to prevent it.

Another agrarian murder is reported from Ireland. Lord Montmorris, a small landowner in Ballinrobe was found dead with six bullet wounds in his body. He was on bad terms with his tenantry, and is presumed to have met the fate of Lord Leitrim.

Several boiler explosions throughout the United States yesterday. Two men killed and others wounded.

The Chicago Tribune says that in that city yesterday evening there were at least a dozen vicious assaults or robberies along Clark and adjacent streets between Randolph and Monroe streets. Cries for police were heard in all quarters, and the policemen had their hands full. And it was nearly as bad in other localities.

28th.—The Sultan of Turkey is also in a defiant attitude against the Powers, and war seems quite probable. For a sick man, Turkey shows considerable life and activity yet.

Fire broke out among a number of barges on the Neva at St. Petersburg yesterday. The barges which caught fire were loaded with hay, and at one time the whole shipping in the river was threatened with destruction. The police authorities, however, managed to float the burning vessels down the river and out into the bay.

The Mark Lane Express says that on account of the dull, and damp, and unfavorable weather, the harvest is not yet completed in the North of England and Scotland. The threshings continue disappointing to the farmers.

On account of the recent moist weather malarial diseases have broken out in many parts of Texas. To such an extent does the sickness prevail that in some plantations it is impossible to obtain enough men to harvest the cotton crop.

An immense swarm of grasshoppers passed over the country in the neighborhood of Jacksonboro, Texas, yesterday, destroying all the crops on the way, even eating up the cotton-leaves. The swarm approached from the north, and was so dense for a time as to obscure the sun.

29th.—The Powers have peremptorily demanded of the Sultan the immediate recall of Riza Pasha and the surrender of Dulcigno. Turkey replies by sending reinforcements into Dulcigno.

By an explosion of fire-damp in a mine in Germany eleven men were killed and as many more wounded.

30.—The city of Dulcigno is reported to be in flames, supposed to have been set by the Albanians.

Notwithstanding Ayooob Khan's crushing defeat by Gen. Roberts, all is not yet quiet in Afghanistan. Ayooob's victory over Gen. Burrows gave rise to a spirit of fanaticism which has since been fostered, and stimulated by the Afghan priests and some of the chiefs, and it is said that the tribes are only waiting for a favorable opportunity to give the English considerable further trouble.

Oct. 1st.—The report of the burning of Dulcigno is now said to be "absolutely unfounded." The rumor is again revived that Turkey will fulfill her promise and the conditions of the Berlin treaty and cede it to Montenegro, but little reliance can be placed on any of the rumors and surmises from that region.

Garibaldi, who has been taking a sort of political vacation at his old haunt in the Island of Caprera, is to visit Genoa Saturday. The Italian revolutionary societies have been quite active of late, and the government of King Humbert is said to be somewhat afraid of the revolutionary chief's influence, and is taking precautionary measures. Garibaldi will be closely watched while in Italy. Kings are no more merciful than Republics.

2nd.—Serious riots growing out of the opposition of the Catholics to the new Belgian Education act have occurred. A number of peasants attempted to prevent the Government Commissioner from carrying out the provisions of the law. The Commissioner called on the police, who fired at the mob, killing one man and wounding another.

There is a prospect of trouble between Belgium and Germany.

During the month of September 26,149 European immigrants arrived at New York. The number for September, 1879, was 14,770. Each incoming steamer continues to bring large numbers of immigrants, the German steamers bringing most.

There were sixteen deaths from yellow-fever and ten deaths from small-pox at Havana during the week ending September 24. Among the victims of yellow-fever was Luis Marengo, chief of staff to the Governor of Cuba.

The Government of the Mexican Province of Chihuahua has offered a reward of $2,500 for the scalp of Victoria, the Apache Chief.

Victoria has again outwitted the United States troops. He has managed to escape through the cordon which Col. Buell fancied he had drawn around him, and attacked Fort Cummings, Buell's headquarters, but he was repulsed.

The horse-distemper is rapidly spreading in New York City. About one-third of the equines owned by the street-car and omnibus companies are already suffering, and it is believed that nearly all of them will be down in a few days. Travel is greatly impeded in consequence. Business will be seriously interfered with also.

There were frosts in various localities of Virginia and North Carolina Thursday night. The damage done to the tobacco and cotton crops thereby is pronounced not serious. The frosts were very light.

The strike among the cotton-operatives of Lancashire, England, is spreading. Yesterday 900 weavers struck work at Wigan. This action will throw 500 others out of employment, and, should the strike continue, a number of spinners will have to be discharged also.

A reward of $5,000 has been offered for the apprehension of the persons who killed Lord Montmorris, the Irish land-owner. Two persons named Gannon and Sweeney are under arrest on suspicion of being concerned in the killing.

4th.—The Turks wish to settle with Europe, but to have their own way and not carry out the Berlin treaty stipulations.

The Chilean troops are plundering the Peruvian towns and committing depredations throughout the country, burning buildings and robbing the people everywhere.

Two boys in Cincinnati went out to smoke some cigars on the sly, and dropped the lighted stumps in some shavings, and the result was the destruction of property valued at $50,000.

Seven persons were poisoned at Milwaukee yesterday by eating wild parsnips for dinner. Physicians were called in as soon as the first symptoms of the poisoning became manifest, and all but two of the victims are now pronounced out of danger.

5th.—The members of the Greek Parliament are unanimously in favor of war with Turkey. About 40,000 Greeks are already under arms, and many more are flocking to join the patriotic army.

Over twelve million bushels of grain were shipped from this country to Europe during the month of September. There were three hundred vessels employed in the transport.

6th.—Great distress prevails in the interior provinces of Russia in consequence of the failure of the crops. The granaries are almost exhausted, and the prospect before the people is anything but pleasant.

A dispatch from Calcutta, India, says that heavy rains have caused disastrous floods in Bengal. Many lives have been lost and crops are much injured.

The epizootic is spreading in New York. About 4,000 horses belonging to the street-car companies, two-thirds of those belonging to the stage companies, more than half belonging to the express companies, as well as many trotting horses, have been badly attacked. No fatal cases have occurred as yet, but the veterinary surgeons predict that the distemper will assume a more virulent form, and that the loss among the equines will be very large.

7th.—In Ireland the anti-rent movement is daily gaining strength. A dispatch from Dublin says: "The agitation is no longer merely a land movement. It is becoming more far-reaching, and it would be difficult to conjecture the result. The Fenians hope for open rebellion; the Land-Leaguers firmly expect to obtain home-rule; and it would be idle to deny that if a general strike is made against rents, which becomes more and more possible every day, the movement will be well nigh irresistible, for the entire army of England could not evict the people, and if they could the landlords would be still deprived of rents, and would also be obliged to pay the cost of enforcing the law. What with Land Leaguers on the one side to keep the people inflamed, and secret societies on the other to intimidate, and occasionally an assassination, such a state of affairs has been created as no Irish rebel ever before contemplated. No Englishman at present realizes the direction which affairs are taking."

The town of Austin, Minnesota was only saved from total destruction by fire yesterday morning by the heroic efforts of the firemen and the admirable coolness and organized efforts of the people. As it was about $30,000 worth of property was burned.

Also at Minneapolis, fire destroyed $75,000 worth of property.

A dispatch from New York City says that twenty thousand horses are suffering with the epizootic there. The disease is coming westward and has reached Cincinnati and Indianapolis.

9th.—Four yellow fever patients were admitted to the Quarantine Hospital at New York yesterday.

England proposes to the powers that they jointly seize some island in the Greek Archipelago, and taking their fleet there, use it as a base of operations against Turkey should further action be required.

The Counties of Galway and Mayo, in Ireland, have been declared in a state of disturbance by the Government. This means that an additional force of soldiers and policemen will be sent into these counties. It was near the line between the two districts that Lord Montmorris was killed recently. Resistance to eviction and to the service of ejectment decrees, is almost general throughout both counties.

By a mine accident in Prussia on the 6th, fifty men were suffocated.

Correspondence.

DELOTT, Crawford Co., Iowa,
October 4th, 1880.

Editors Herald:—Bro. J. F. McDowell has been with us five days, at Dow City, speaking four times. His audience on Sunday night, September 26th, was large and attentive, but at his other meetings the attendance was small. From Dow City he came to this place, where he is preaching with good success. May the blessings of the Master continue with him.

I left home last Saturday with the intention of performing field labor, so long as the good Lord shall give me physical ability to continue. I spoke here twice yesterday, and to-morrow I go to Carrol City, expecting Bro. McDowell to follow me in a few days. I am generally sufficiently slow, but, believe me, I am becoming anxious to see the work move faster.

Yours in the gospel,
JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

KEMPVILLE, Alabama,
September 21st, 1880.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins:—I have had much opposition since I last wrote you, but in the midst of it the Lord has blessed me. I have also baptized two more, making six with those I baptized the 4th. I organized a branch consisting of these and five received by letter from the Lone Star Branch, eleven in all. We named it the St. Joseph Branch, at Kempville, Monroe county, Alabama.

The cotton crop is just getting ripe, and the people are very busy. If my wife was here she could make some money at school teaching, to help herself, and me too. She can not help me while she lives in Canada. There is a great call here for preachers, both white and colored ones. I have been preaching every night for three weeks in this place. I debated with a Methodist minister the 16th, and the people decided in my favor, as having the best of the argument. One woman gave her name for baptism. I know there is a great work to be done here, and I wish that I had some one to travel with me, for we could do a better work. Pray for me and God bless you all.

Editors Herald:—I submit a brief account of the doings of Laguna Branch which had its first anniversary on the 13th inst. Its members, one and all, thought it a fit time to have a special season of rejoicing, prayer and feasting, and so all gathered at the residence of its president, Elder Harvey Hemenway, and during the day we had a social feast, also a feast of the good things of this world. Harmony, peace, love and unity pervaded every heart, and in the evening there was prayer and rejoicing in very deed. The Spirit declared approvingly of us as accepted of the Master. We had expected Elder Burton and family to have been with us, but he was laboring in other fields for the Master, and our prayers went up for him and them. On yesterday another young man was baptized and numbered with us, and more are interested, so that good reports from us may be expected. On Monday next Elders Burton and Hemenway start on a work to last till November Conference. They are earnest laborers and their labors will be fruitful.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICES.

To the Saints and friends of Northern Iowa and the state of Minnesota, Greeting:—

May love, peace, knowledge, wisdom and zeal be multiplied unto you, that you may continue in the faith and work of the Lord Jesus Christ unto the saving of yourselves and others in the kingdom of God.

Having been reappointed to this field, I earnestly request the co-operation of the elders, priests, teachers and deacons, also the members, in the prosecution of the work. Let all labor as directed by the law of God, and there is no danger that any will do too much. The special and leading duty of the elders is to preach the gospel; and they must do it or come under condemnation. Doctrine and Covenants 50:4; 42:5. Revelations of 1865, par. 2. The priests, teachers, and deacons may and should preach and teach the principles of the gospel; but while the priests may travel and preach, teachers and deacons are standing ministers to the Church. Doctrine and Covenants 17:11; 83:22.

Any information that can be given by the Saints and friends relative to prospects and desires for labor, in their respective localities, will be thankfully received and duly considered. But you will please bear in mind, first, that my health is so poor that I may have to quit the field in a short time; second, I can necessarily reach but a few of the many places where preaching ought to be done, and third, I am under obligations, after learning what I can of the wants and needs of my field, to use my own judgment, and go where it is thought my presence is most needed. Elder J. W. Wight, a young man from Monona county, Iowa, is expected to labor with me in this field. We commend him to your care, and ask for him the same treatment that I have received from your hands. May God's mercy dwell richly with you that you may secure the crown.

Your co-worker for Christ,
JOSEPH R. LAMBERT,
Box 122, Dow City, Crawford Co., Iowa.

The South-Eastern Ohio and West Virginia District Conference will be held at Syracuse, Ohio, October 23d and 24th, 1880, commencing at three o'clock p.m.

T. M. MATTHEWS, President.

BISHOP'S AGENT APPOINTED.

Elder T. E. Jenkins having been recommended by the conference of the Welsh Mission as Agent in Wales, I hereby appoint him to said office and duty, hoping also that he will faithfully perform his duties by God's directing Spirit, and that the Saints there will impart of their means to sustain the work as well as sustain Bro. Jenkins by their votes in this office.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published SEMI-MONTHLY, at Plano Kendall Co., Illinois, by the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and is edited by JOSEPH SMITH and HENRY A. STEBBINS. $2.15 per year. All remittances, orders, and business communications intended for the office of publication, should be directed to Joseph Smith, Plano, Kendall County, Illinois. Money may be sent Draft on Chicago, Post Office Order on Plano, by registered letter, or by Express; but there is very little risk in sending small sums of money in an ordinary letter.

faith in him had been inculcated into their bosoms. Now note its effect; "And they said unto Peter, and the rest of the apostles, men and brethren what shall we do?" If the popular teaching of the nineteenth century be correct, there was nothing for them to do. They were already "converted," and had experienced the "change of heart." But here is a man that is sent and is duly authorized and qualified to preach the gospel. He is laboring in harmony with the instructions of the blessed Master, "teaching them to observe all things, whatsoever I have commanded you." Now, mark how he instructs these thirsting souls. "And Peter said unto them, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. * * * And with many other words did he testify, and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation." Again, mark the operation of faith inspired under the teachings of one who is sent. "Then they that gladly received the word were baptized, and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls." Here we learn that faith in Christ, as inspired under the teachings of those who are sent to represent him, first creates a desire to obtain the promised reward, and then inquiries for the means through which this happy result may be attained. This being made known, they gladly comply with the same. Says the writer of "The Acts," "Philip went down to Samaria and preached Christ unto them, and the people with one accord gave heed to those things which Philip spake." What Philip spake, and how they gave heed, may be learned by reading Acts 8:12-18. As in all cases where true faith exists, they were prompted to obey the gospel. They were baptized for the remission of sins, and received the imposition of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Under the direction of an angel of the Lord, Philip departs from Samaria and wends his way towards Gaza. While traveling he falls into company with an Ethiopian, who is reading the prophecies of Esaias, (Isaiah), which foretell the coming of Messiah. This opened the way for the presentation of the gospel. In answer to the question of Philip's, "Understandest thou what thou readest?" He said, "How can I, except some man, should guide me?" Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same scripture and "preached unto him Jesus." His labor was not in vain, for like the Samaritans the humble seeker after truth "believed," and gave heed to his teachings. Now, mark the result; "And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water, and the Eunuch said, See, here is water, what doth hinder me to be baptized? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thy heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the son of God." What volumes of meaning are couched in that simple sentence, freighted with the sentiments of a converted soul. And now, give ear, all ye seekers after truth; and learn wisdom you who would be their teachers, and profit by the example of those whom you profess to follow. "And he commanded the chariot to stand still, and they went down, both into the water, both Philip and the Eunuch; and he baptized him." The simple obedience of this man gives a lustre to the saying of Jesus, "Verily, I say unto you, except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." What is the means of admittance into the kingdom of heaven? "Except a man be born of water, and the Spirit he can not enter into the kingdom of God"—Christ.

The account given of some of the successful labors of Paul and his fellow laborers, furnishes us with some examples that are highly illustrative of the principle of "saving faith." This Apostle is said to be the author of the saying, "I am determined to know nothing among you save Jesus Christ and him crucified." The following citations will go to show what was comprehended in this declaration. "And on the Sabbath day we went out of the city by a river side where prayer was wont to be made, and we sat down and spake unto the women which resort thither. And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us; whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul, and when she was baptized, and her household," &c.—Acts 16:13, 14, 15.

Saving faith in Christ, and repentance and baptism in his name, are principles that are inseparably connected. In all cases when the former is taught by the true servant of God—those who are "sent"—and is received by the honest in heart, the latter is understood to be essential, while those who refused to comply with these requirements are accounted as unbelievers. John the Baptist taught "the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins," and that they should believe on him (Christ) who should come after. Again, the sixteenth chapter of Acts gives an account of Paul and Silas being cast into prison. God intercedes in their behalf; the prison is shaken by an earthquake; their bands are loosed, and the jailor is converted; the principle of true faith ever acting its part, the same important question springs from his lips that was uttered by those penitents at Pentecost, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved." "And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." What was understood to be belief in Christ by those worthies may be learned by the context. "And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house. And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes, and was baptized, he, and all his, straightway." And such were the teachings and practices of the faithful in Christ eighteen hundred years ago.

For other text proofs, we refer the reader to the case of Cornelius, Acts 10. Also Paul's conversion, Acts 9 and 22. What is accounted as faith by the Master is plainly revealed in the commission. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." They were to believe Christ's gospel as taught by his apostles, and as baptism was one of its fundamental principles, for any one to make a profession of faith in the gospel, and at the same time refuse to comply with its requirements would be the height of folly. Jesus said the publicans justified God, being baptized of John. "But the Pharisees rejected the counsel of God against themselves, being not baptized of him."—Luke 7:29, 30. This shows plainly that those who ignore the baptism of John (immersion for the remission of sins) are virtually "rejecting the counsel of God against themselves," for it is the Father's good will that none should perish, but that all might come unto him, in the way he has appointed, and have everlasting life.

GEORGE S. HYDE.

What Hath Christ Done for Thee?

"Go home to thy friends and tell them what God hath done for thee."—Jesus.

I have been reading the Bible to-day, and thinking of the many testimonies I have borne and heard others bear, that we know the work in which we are engaged is true; and as I think I write. Yes, it is true. The Scriptures and history, the discoveries of explorers, the commotions of nations, the signs in the heavens and the earth, and the every-day experience of our lives, all prove to us that the faith as taught by the seer of Palmyra is true. "Yes, it is true." So are winter, storm, snow and ice, plague, famine, pestilence and death, bold, solemn, awful truths. But is our faith good? "By their fruits [not their arguments] you shall know them," said the only perfect teacher. The tree that bears good fruits is good; and no matter what we think, or what we know, we can not unknow the fact that the tree that bears bitter fruit is bad. What has our faith done for us? Has it made us talkers, better writers, shrewder debaters, clearer logicians? What are these? Leaves, nothing but leaves. And after we have talked and written the same thing for the hundredth time, dry, withered leaves at that. Does it make us happy? So does wine the inebriate, good cheer the gormand, fame the ambitious, gold the avaricious; and the only perfect teacher was a man of sorrows, acquainted with grief; and died, humanly speaking, forsaken of God and despised of men. But has it made us better? Has it brought us near to God; near to each other; near to the throbbing heart of humanity; near to Christ? Has it made us better men and women; better husbands and wives; better parents and children; better neighbors, better friends, better Christians? If so, it has been good to us.

To me, my faith is a sweet, a tender, a solemn reality, interwoven with every fiber of my being, every blessing of the present, every tender memory of the past, every hope of the future. Without it life would be a useless waste; death a leap in the dark, and God too far away to be a present help in every, or any time of need. But has it made me better? Not better than some one else; for the man or woman must be bad indeed if no worse can be found, but better than I was before; better than I would have been without it? If it has, "Praise God for gift all price above." If it has not, no matter what I believe, or think I know, it is to me only a dream from which there will be a sad, perhaps a fearful awakening by and by.

Saints of Utah, what has your faith done for you? Has it given you the heroic spirit of a martyr, enabled you to take joyfully the despoiling of your goods; mobbings, stripes, imprisonment or abuse; removed all fear of death, and made you willing to sacrifice your all? 'Tis well, but many false faiths have done the same for their adherents. False gods are more arbitrary than the true one. If God accepts a broken heart and contrite spirit, it must be your own heart and not another's. If between you and the altar stands the wounded spirit of parent, neighbor, husband, wife, or child, God will not accept your offering, nor regard your prayers.

Saints of Plano, Nauvoo, Lamoni, and throughout the world, what has your faith done for you? Has it opened your eyes and ears; healed your infirmities; restored your sick to health, your dead to life? Has it taught you the lessons of mercy, justice, peace? Has it led you like the Master you profess to serve, to go out into the world to seek the lost, raise the fallen, extend the hand of mercy to the outcast, wipe the crimson from the brow of the Hagars, the Ishmaels the Magdalens; the victims of false faiths, false loves, false promises and false gods? If so, you have made one little spot of earth better for your having lived in it. But if, happy in your own escape from the meshes of sin, you wrap your robe of self-righteousness around you, close the door of mercy against weary souls struggling to be free, refuse to clasp the hands held out to you, as all of us reach out to Christ, remember, he who came to save them is your Judge. The mills of God grind so slowly that many forget the cause before the effect follows; but they grind exceedingly fine, and the retribution though slow is always sure.

Dear Saint, what has Christ done for you? Look over your past life and estimate its blessings if you can; but never until you are raised above the world, with the sunlight of God's great love thrilling your entire being can you understand what Christ has done for you; and then remember, part of what you owe to Christ, you can pay to those for whom he died. Go home to your friends; tell them what God hath done for you. Go to your neighbors; try to win them to Christ. Go to your enemies as Christ came to you. Forgive, as God has pardoned you. Strengthen the weak hands, as Christ strengthened you. Proclaim liberty to the captive, as Christ has made you free. Let your heart beat in sympathy with your fellows, as God's love flows to you despite your errors, or your sins.

Ye, whose faith imposes burdens grievous to bear, you are not serving God, but Baal; Christ's burden is light. Ye, who groan 'neath the yoke of oppression, are not serving Christ but hypocrites; his yoke is easy. Ye, who are smarting 'neath a sense of injustice and wrong, consider what had thy Master done to deserve the crown of thorns, the heavy cross, betrayed with a kiss, wounded in the house of his friends, mocked by his enemies, doubted by his brethren, forsaken by his disciples, misunderstood and misjudged by all,—he who drank the cup and bore the cross for you, can strengthen you to bear the same for him, and his.

"The purest streams of human love
Flow naturally never;
But gush by pressure from above,
With God's hand on the lever."*

*"Bitter Sweet,"—Dr. Holland.

MORMONIA.

To have enough charity to speak ill of no one, and to be clean in speech, tends to love of life and to see good days here and hereafter.

He who gives promptly gives twice as much.

Power of the Church.

It is conceded by all Latter Day Saints, that the Church of to-day is identical with the "primitive christian." Jesus delegated to the Church certain power to act in various ways, and a misuse of that power would be an abuse of the same.

Man has ever been prone to arrogate, and to so do he must deviate from the true standard, for arrogation invariably leads to the exercise of unlawful means or ways. That this was the case of the primitive church who will controvert? We wish to enter into an examination of the power given to the church, and ascertain its true character.

Jesus said to Peter: "And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven." Matt. 16:19. Again, in John 20:23. "Whosoever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whosoever sins ye retain, they are retained."

It is claimed on the part of many in the world, that Christ delegated to the Christian ministry the power to forgive sins. We read in Gen. Catechism, by John Hughes, Arch bishop of New York, p. 49-50. "What is confession? Confession is to accuse ourselves of all our sins to a Priest, in order to obtain absolution. How do you prove that the Priest has power to absolve penitent sinners? Ans. John 20:23."

Is it true that the power given was to be used in this manner, did Christ so intend? John says; "And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ, the righteous; and he is the propitiation for our sins." 1 John 2:1. The Psalmist said: "I acknowledge my sins unto thee; I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord." Psalms 32:5.

The saying of the Lord surely had a significance, but the use of the authority in the manner aforementioned is an abuse. Jesus said in speaking of offence being given by another, after relating the course of procedure: "But if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as a heathen man and a publican. Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven," &c. Matt. 18:17-18.

With the light of revelation we may understand it more clearly. In the Book of Covenants we read concerning the decision of the High Council in trying cases of transgressors, that if they retain the sin, or it is not pardoned by that council, there can be no appeal from the decision, it is final. In this sense only, can the authorities retain and forgive sin. From the reading of the New Testament it is all that Jesus meant in primitive times.

Another perversion of this power is in the granting of indulgences: "There are two kinds of indulgences, the partial and plenary." "The partial remits only a part of the temporal punishment due to sin." "Plenary, is the entire remission of the temporal punishment due to sin." Jesus never delegated authority to his ministry to do such things, it is a vile arrogation. Utah Mormon leaders killed men in order to save them from punishment due to sin.

It is claimed that the church is infallible in all she does, for Jesus said: "When he, the spirit of truth is come, he shall guide you into all truth." Hence, all that the christian should do would be infallibly right; for Jesus again said: "And, lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world." The conclusion is, that inasmuch as Jesus would "always" be with the 'church authorities,' the church could not err. We have been told that either this promise is true, or Jesus falsified. It must be remembered, that the promises of Jesus were always made upon condition. God never has been known to make promises otherwise; and if any persons profess to have any such, we should be inclined to doubt their authenticity. The promise here made in Matt. 28, was with the understanding that the ministry should "continue in the doctrine of Christ;" a diverging therefrom forfeited the promised favor. Hence, Jesus could withhold the promise and prove true to His word. Otherwise, it would be in contradiction to what had been said in former times: "Obey my voice, and I will be your God." Jer. 7:23. Moreover, all revelations given in subsequent times must correspond in essence or spirit with things given aforetime, otherwise truth is not infallible.

Power has been claimed to change the bread and wine into flesh and blood, called transubstantiation. This power to so do is claimed from the words of Jesus: "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you." John 6:55. Mark 14:24-5. "This is my body. This is my blood." This language was used at the sacramental board. Let us see further if after Jesus consecrated the emblems whether He meant it to be understood in a literal sense. "And they all drank of it. And he said unto them, This is my blood of the new testament, (covenant), which is shed for many. Verily I say unto you, I will drink no more of the fruit of the vine, until," &c.

"The Holy Eucharist is a sacrament which contains really and indeed the body and blood, the soul and divinity, of our Lord Jesus Christ under the forms and appearance of bread and wine." G. C., p. 75. "After consecration, nothing remains of the substance of bread, which is totally changed into that of the body of Jesus, and the substance of the wine is changed into that of his blood." P. 76. We are told that we must take it literally: "This is my blood. This is my body. Jesus, in passing the wine to the disciples said: "This is my blood * * which is shed for many." Is this to be understood literally? "Is shed;" was his blood then really and literally shed; had he been already crucified? "I will no more drink of the fruit of the vine, &c." It seems that after consecration it was yet "really" wine, "fruit of the vine." Jesus said: "This do in remembrance of me." Is the memorial the thing itself? A monument erected in memory of a noted man, is the monument the man? Or is it a memorial of the man? Which is it? If that language is to be understood literally then his blood was literally shed at that time, for he said "which is shed" &c.

Must we too take the following literally? "But the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up unto everlasting life." John 4:14.

Power is claimed to have been given to "canonize saints." These saints are supposed to be worthy of adoration and worship, and to help the church. Thus detracting from Christ full power to control the affairs of the church. "We may desire the saints and angels to pray for us. The saints and angels hear us, since 'there shall be joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth.'" There is no license or authority given in this language to pray to saints or angels; for Jesus said, "Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name," &c. "Ye shall pray unto the Father in my name." Jesus never authorized the church to do otherwise. "Let no man beguile you of your reward in voluntary humility and worshipping of angels."—Col. 2:18. "And I fell at his feet to worship him, and he said unto me, See thou do it not: * * * worship God."—Rev. 19:10. Any revelation given to the contrary is false and unwarranted, and dangerous to the church. Virgin Mary was set up as an object of adoration and worship. "Hail Mary, full of grace! the Lord was with thee; blessed art thou among women," &c. "Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners, now and at the hour of our death." "There are three parts to 'Hail Mary.' The angel Gabriel and St. Elizabeth made the first two parts; the third part was made by the church."—G. C. P., p. 33-4. Jesus never made any promise to the church that we should be aided by the prayers of any dead saints or living angels. It virtually detracts from the glory of the Christian system and dishonors God.

"Thou shalt not make to thyself any graven thing, nor likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or in the earth. Thou shalt not adore them nor serve them." "We are allowed to have relics, crucifixes, and holy pictures, with an inferior and relative honor."

God gave no license to honor, revere, nor adore any thing of the kind, as expressed in the first commandment. Any thing therefore tending in that direction is an intrusion. How far the primitive church wandered from God and his holy commandments delivered to it.

The church claimed power to impose penance on its members in case of transgression. This is not taught in the New Testament, neither did Jesus ever intimate any thing of the kind. All punishment for wrong doing in the church belongs unto God.

Again, it is claimed that Peter's successor decides and is to decide in all matters of doctrine. If this ruler issues any decree to the church universal, it is to be accepted by the church without question. If any thing in it seems difficult to understand, apparently contradictory to former things, entirely new, no one is to doubt, question, or criticize. If it seems not to harmonize with the Bible we must not disbelieve it, "for the church can not err." It seems that into this same terrible mistake the latter day apostasy fell. Obey counsel without question. Lay the books aside, hearken to the priesthood in all things. Do as you are told. What a semblance between the two apostasies. Adam is worshipped and adored as a deity. Apostates, heretics must be killed. Polygamy the power to save (?). Supplanting every pure principle of the gospel.

It is a remarkable fact that both apostate churches fell into divers snares and evil doings. That the priesthood was elevated to a superior plane than the books. That a non-reading of God's word was inculcated, thus producing ignorance, and ignorance was used to bind, lead and enslave the church in superstition, bigotry, fanaticism, duplicity and unswerving adherance to the every command and bidding of big I. Whenever any man lays aside God's written word, then will, or may that person be led here and there into all manner of absurdities in matters of religion. Let every one open the books—search their contents, no matter how high his position or pretensions as to authority or sanctity only so far as he unhesitatingly and truthfully and honorably follows Christ and "abideth in the doctrine of Christ." Stifle your good sense and reason in the face of the open books for no man.

The church observes "holy days," but Paul said to the primitive church the "holy days, new moons," &c., were a shadow of things to come. So when Jesus came all such old Jewish observances were abolished. The church has her members call certain officers of the church "father." But Jesus said: "And call no man your father upon earth; for one is your Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 23:9. Here are the marks of apostasy again. In A. D. 558 the church taught "Extreme unction," i. e. when a person is sick unto death, the priest is to anoint the person with oil, and is claimed to "give grace to die well." They quote Jas. 5:14. But there we read, "and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord will raise them up;" heal them. What a change! It was not instituted to "give grace to die well;" but to give a new lease of life, should they not be sick unto death. It was "for the healing of the sick," not for the death of the sick.

In A. D. 1000, the rite of baptizing bells was instituted; the privilege for so doing is claimed from 1 Tim. 4:4, 5. "Every creature of God is good, and nothing to be rejected that is received with thanksgiving; for it is sanctified by the word of God and prayer."—G. C. P. 94. In the context it will be noticed that Paul was talking about "meats," hence the use of the word "creature;" a bell is not a "creature of God." The argument is far fetched and untenable.

Clerical celibacy was taught and declared a tenet of the church in the year A. D. 1015. Paul spoke of a class that would "forbid to marry," and says it would not be of God. (1 Tim. 4:1-4.)

Confession was instituted A. D. 1215. If it was a doctrine of the church always, why delay to so late a date before so declaring. Transubstantiation was not declared as a doctrine of the church until the year 1000. The invocation of the Virgin Mary and saints was not declared a tenet and binding upon the church until A. D. 594. Thus we perceive a gradual departure from the early primitive standard established by Christ and the apostles. The doctrine of purgatory was not so declared as a doctrine until A. D. 593. And it is claimed that by the suffrage and alms of the faithful here, the spirits in purgatory may be relieved from their punishment. Jesus never so taught, neither is it anywhere so implied in the Scriptures. Every individual must pay the penalty of their transgressions themselves, and any doctrine or revelation teaching to the contrary is not in harmony with the written word already given; and truth will not conflict with truth. So we must reject all these things as impositions and intrusions upon the holy principles of divine truth taught by Christ and his holy ministry, who were so highly inspired and favored with the divine presence of Jesus. And we may rest assured that they "followed no cunningly devised fables," but stood by the honor of God and his truth, and were untiring and loving workers for humanity's good. They learned of Jesus all that was wholesome, good and pure.

The Kingdom.

"BUT seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Mat. 6:33.

We have a plain command to seek for the kingdom of God. The command, to seek, implies that there will be some difficulty in finding. We do not ask any one to seek for that which is plainly visible. The fact that Christ gave the command proves that he realized the difficulties which would surround those trying to find the way of life. But, if a man starts to seek for a thing, he must understand its leading characteristics; its form, size and color; that is, if it is a natural object. So, also, if a man attempts to find the kingdom of God; he must know its doctrine, ordinances, government and blessings; then he can examine all the various churches claiming to be that kingdom, and the one that corresponds in all respects he will not hesitate to pronounce the object of his search. On the other hand, if any church claims to be the kingdom, but does not correspond to the description, he will not hesitate to pronounce against it.

The first thing then is to obtain a true and reliable description of the church or kingdom of God. This can be found in the Bible, and while many differ on doctrinal points, all agree that it contains a true account of the church. But before we begin our search for a description let us learn whether there were to be any changes in the gospel. Are we to expect a new gospel or are we to stick to the ancient one, just as we find it recorded in the Scriptures? Paul says: "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you let him be accursed." Gal. 1:8.

Here we find a fearful curse pronounced upon those who shall teach a different gospel from the one taught by Paul and the other apostles. Again "And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book." Rev. 22:19.

Here is a curse pronounced upon those who shall take from his word. It is true that this is spoken with especial reference to the Book of Revelation, but it applies, no doubt, to all of God's words. There are two ways whereby man can take from the word of God; one is to boldly strike it from the Bible, the other is to disappreciate its value and force by professing great reverence for the Bible, and at the same time teaching that this little passage is not essential to salvation, and that doctrine is not needed now, and here is a principle which is done away. By such sophistry as this, word after word, doctrine after doctrine, and principle after principle may be taken from the Bible without arousing any suspicion against the corruptors of the word of God. Again, Christ says, "It is written, that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God." Luke 4:4. From these passages we learn that the gospel will never be changed; that we must not take away any part of the law of God; that we must live by every word of God.

In obtaining a description of the kingdom then, we must take it just as we find it in the Bible. We must find out just what the Saints of old believed, what ordinances they observed, what blessings they enjoyed and what kind of a church government they had. And having found this, we must take it for a pattern and look for a church like it. Our search may be difficult and tedious; we may be told that it makes no difference about the form, if the heart is right. Well if it makes no difference we may as well take the one that the Lord has given, to say the least of it. But I fancy, if a man should tell his servant to do a thing a certain way, and the servant should reply that some other way was just as good, that the man would think his servant was a little self-willed; and if the offence was repeated a few times he would discharge him. We should remember the saying of God to Moses. "See that thou make all things according to the pattern shewed to thee in the mount." Heb. 8:5. Naaman saw no difference between the waters of Syria and Judea. (See 2 Kings 5:12). But God did. So it always is. When God gives a law we must obey without murmuring, or receive the reward of the wicked. And we may add that that when the heart is right, man never seeks any new way, but takes the law of God just as he finds it.

We will now open our Testaments and see what were the teachings and practices of the early church. We notice first,

DUTIES.

"Now after that John was put in prison Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying the time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: Repent ye, and believe the gospel." Mark 1:14-15. Here we clearly see the doctrine of repentance and faith in the gospel taught. Peter says "Repent ye, therefore and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord." Acts 3:19. Observe that they are to repent and be converted that their sins may be blotted out; not that their sins are blotted out. Thus we see that repentance, faith, and conversion all precede the remission of sins. Second,

ORDINANCES.—BAPTISM.

Peter says, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Acts 2:38. Here baptism is clearly taught with the promise of the Holy Ghost after it, (baptism), and not before. Also "And as they went on their way they came unto a certain water; and the Eunuch said, See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?" Acts 8:36. These passages unmistakably teach water baptism. We will say nothing here about either the nature or purpose of it.

LAYING ON OF HANDS.

We read, "Now, when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John; who, when they were come down, prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Ghost, for as yet he was fallen upon none of them, only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost." Acts 8:14-17. Here we learn that the converts were first baptized and afterwards received the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Also "And when they heard this they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them, and they spake with tongues and prophesied." Acts 19:5-6. Here again we find the same ordinances and in the same order. Paul speaking of the doctrines of Christ, classes the laying on of hands among them in the following words: "Of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment." Heb. 6:2. It has been held by some that none but apostles could lay on hands; but the fallacy of this appears from the following passage. "And Ananias went his way, and entered into the house; and putting his hands on him, said Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared to thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Ghost." Acts 9:17. Here we learn that Ananias did lay on hands, and we know that he was not an apostle.

THE LORD'S SUPPER.

"And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. Likewise, also, the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you."—Luke 22:19, 20. This ordinance is plainly enjoined in the words, "This do in remembrance of me." Third,

BLESSINGS.

"But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge, by the same Spirit; to another faith by the same Spirit; to another the gift of healing by the same Spirit; to another the working of miracles; to another, prophecy; to another, divers kinds of tongues; to another, the interpretation of tongues; but all these worketh that one and the self same spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will."—1 Cor. 12:7-11. In this passage we are plainly told what the gifts are; that they are given to every man; that they are for his profit; that they are given as the Spirit directs. In the following passage the enjoyment of the gifts is more fully explained:

"How is it then, brethren? When ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation. Let all things be done unto edifying. If any man speak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the most by three, and that by course; and let one interpret. But if there be no interpreter, let him speak to himself, and to God. Let the prophets speak two or three, and let the others judge. If any thing be revealed to another that sitteth by, let the first hold his peace. For ye may all prophecy one by one that all may learn, and all may be comforted. And the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets. For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the saints."—1 Cor. 14:26-33. Here the manner of exercising the gifts is expounded. They are to be exercised in order, one speaking at a time; not a houseful in a confused uproar, some singing some praying, some speaking, some shouting. Now let us suppose two meetings, one conducted as Paul directs; another on the latter plan. Admit that the Spirit of God is poured out in both cases. In the first they speak one by one, in tongues, prophecies and revelations; all hear and are instructed and comforted. In the other they all speak at once, some shout, some pray, some speak, but the voice of one drowns out the other, and no one hears what is said, none is benefitted. We might be at such a meeting ever so long, yet would not learn anything. Now is it not reasonable that when God pours out his Spirit he does so to bless and instruct? Will not men speaking by the Spirit say something worth hearing? If so, you must admit that the course set forth by Paul is not only the scriptural but the best one. The blessings of the church, then, are tongues, prophecies, miracles, healings, and others as declared above. Fourth,

GOVERNMENT.

"And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondly prophets."—1 Cor. 12:28. Also, "And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers."—Eph. 4:11. From these two passages we learn what are the leading offices in the church, viz., apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers.

Let us recapitulate and see what the leading characteristics of the church are.

First. It teaches repentance, faith and conversion, as necessary conditions to be complied with before entering the church.

Second. To those thus qualified it administers water baptism, laying on of hands, and the Lord's supper.

Third. To those who have complied with the above conditions it promises the various spiritual gifts described above; as tongues, healings, miracles, prophecies, and others.

Fourth. This church has apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors as its ministers, whose duty is to feed the flock and watch over them, not as lords and masters, but as servants of God. Having now found a true description of the church, as it existed at a time when all admit that it was pure, and having found that it was not to be changed in any particular, let us "seek first the kingdom of God." We may have to look far and wide before we find a church that teaches all these doctrines, observes all these ordinances, enjoys all these blessings, and contains all these officers. But let us search far and wide, praying God to direct us, and if we do not become weary we will find it, for God is true, his church is true, his word is true, and if we are true we will receive his blessing, even eternal life.

Poverty a Blessing.

POVERTY is the nurse of manly energy, and heaven-climbing thoughts, attended by love, and faith, and hope, round whose steps the mountain breezes blow, and from whose countenance all the virtues gather strength. Look around you upon the distinguished men that in every department of life guide and control the times, and inquire what was their origin and what was their early fortune. Were they, as a general rule, rocked and dandled in the lap of wealth? No; such men emerge from the homes of decent competence or struggling poverty. Necessity sharpens their faculties; and privation and sacrifice brace their moral natures. They learn the great art of renunciation, and enjoy the happiness of having few wants; they know nothing of the indifference of satiety. There is not an idle fibre in their frames; they put the vigor of a resolute purpose into every act. The edge of their mind is always kept sharp; in the school of life, men like these meet the softly-nurtured darlings of prosperity as iron meets the vessels of porcelain.—Selected.

A Word About Debt.

DEBTS incurred for family expenses always amount to a much larger sum than if cash were paid down for every article, and the burden of its expense felt at the time. Every family who keep a pass-book at the grocer's and butcher's, or dry good's store, ought to know this fact; for it is very tempting to order this, that, and the other when the purse does not have to be taken out of the pocket to pay for the articles; and clothing is easily bought when the charges are only to be written down.

Merchants understand this fact most fully, and will delight to give your family credit if they hold a respectable station in society, and they are certain that the time of payment will eventually come.

Then they can also charge a higher price than if you paid down for your goods. A quarter of a dollar a yard is to be taken into consideration, if you are to pay for the article out of your purse; but if it is to stand upon the merchant's books for six months, it is a mere trifle not to be thought of.

All of us who firmly believe in and practice cash payments for everything connected with our households and farms, are forced to pay more for an article on account of the debts incurred by others, which may never be paid. The merchant charges us a profit upon his goods that he would not be warranted in doing did he expect to receive payment for all his sales, and so in the end the honest persons pay the debts of the dishonest ones.

The little debts that the boy is allowed to contract at the village store are often the commencement of his ruin, and the small debts which the young couple just starting in life owe, are the beginning of countless miseries, for persons who live always in debt doubtless suffer miserably, until their sensibilities become blunted, and they will perhaps declare that the world owes them a living, and they mean to get it out of it.

Women are made to feel the burdens of husband's debts most sorely. Many have lived always in debt, but a time for reckoning must come, and when the husband dies he leaves his wife and children penniless. The house, farm, and stock are all heavily mortgaged; scarcely enough is left to pay his funeral expenses, for all his belongings must go to pay his store debts.

Now, had there been no possibility of his running into debt, obtaining this, that, or the other thing upon credit, he might have supported his family decently, even comfortably, and have died possessed of a house, farm and stock, and left his family a home.

Debts are like stinging mosquitoes to honest men, and they poke their bills into their faces so often that they learn to give them a quietus, and never let them approach again; but to dishonest men they are the means of obtaining what is not lawfully their own, and thereby defrauding their neighbors and the community at large.

"You have outrun your fortune;
I blame you not that you would be a beggar;
Each to his taste! But I do charge you, sir,
That being beggar'd you shall win false moneys
Out of that crucible called debt." Selected.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.

HENRY A. STEBBINS, ASSISTANT.

Plano, Illinois, November 1st, 1880.

EXIT ELDER J. A. CRAWFORD.

THE Saints at Farmington, Iowa, some, or all of them feel that in the brief mention that we made of the defection and departure of Elder J. A. Crawford, we did them an injustice, and they are therefore aggrieved. If what we wrote about the matter had been read in the spirit in which it was written, no offense would have been taken, as we meant none. After our statement was made, one of the Elders wrote us, stating some things alleged as facts, damaging to Elder Crawford, and wished us to publish them. This we declined to do, because that we do not approve of retaliation in that form. We much regret the course adopted by Elder Crawford, as it could but eventuate in disaster and disgrace to himself; as wrong doing must inevitably come to grief. Elder Crawford alleged in his letter to us, as the moving cause to his action, an improper treatment by some at Farmington. In our notice of the matter we so stated, without reflecting upon the Saints, as we also stated that they supposed that they had reason for treating Elder Crawford as they had done, and referring to his lack of moral courage to get the matter righted, he being at the time presiding elder of the district, and in position to have it properly inquired into and adjusted, all of which he failed to do. All we thought to do was to give the position as alleged by either side without burdening the account with allegations and counter charges in terms. If we erred we ask pardon.

As a sequel to the affair, we are in receipt of copies of the Van Buren County Journal, published at Bonaparte, Iowa, of October 7th, and the Farmington Bee, published at Farmington, Iowa, of October 9th, containing the statement that Elder J. A. Crawford, W. H. Bybee, and a brother from Illinois, brothers-in-law to Elder Crawford, with the families of Crawford and Bybee, left Farmington in the night of October 5th, for Arkansas, leaving a number of debts unsettled; that when it was learned that they had so left, Messrs. Jonathan Bedell, A. E. Townsend, F. Hummelke and Felix Gesford to whom various sums were owed, started in pursuit; that they overtook the fugitives near Wayland station, Clark county, and insisted upon the payment of their claims; that a parley ensued and much bad language and threatening were indulged in by Elder Crawford and his party; but that upon the firm statement of a constable, Mr. Painter, who had papers to serve upon the absconding men, that he would summon a posse and take Elder Crawford to the jail at Kahoka, if the matter was not settled, Mr. W. H. Bybee paid the claims and the pursuers left amid the threats of vengeance of the pursued.

This statement in these papers, is, of course, "exparte;" we do not vouch for its correctness, though the names of the men of Farmington being given seem to guarantee the truth of it; but if true it gives color to the idea that the Saints at Farmington had just cause of complaint against Elder Crawford, that he had done that for which he should have been made to answer before the Church authorities, and probably would have been so made to answer. Certainly, the friends of Elder Crawford of the Campbellite, or Christian order can not but feel chagrined that so signal an exposure has followed the man whom they won from Mormonism.

Our hope is that this man for whom, even now, we have a tender feeling, may see the error and uselessness of such a throwing away of talents and life, and turn away from evil unto the ways of truth; repent of his wrong doing, retrace his steps, make restitution and acknowledge the power of God in a thorough reformation. The Saints in Farmington can not be seriously injured in influence or society by what has taken place; and for the wrong that we did them, if any, by our mention of the affair, we ask, and hope for their christian forbearance and forgiveness.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

ADVICES from Bro. W. W. Blair, dated September 15th and 22d, October 7th, 12th, and 13th, give encouraging accounts of the work there. Bro. R. J. Anthony was to baptize some at Lehi City, about September 15th. Bro. Blair and others, were extremely anxious that some one—yes, many elders, should have been sent from the Fall Conference to Utah; and we are sorry that such could not have been done. No one regrets this more than did we and others of the brethren at the Conference; but what we could not do consistently must remain undone. We had neither the men, nor the means to send them. They will make arrangements to secure the services of Bro. Joseph Luff in the Utah Mission, to which we are heartily agreed. We have seldom listened to so powerful a sermon on Utah, as was delivered by Bro. Luff on the Conference grounds last session, and believe him to have correct views of the work there. We endorse their request made in Conference for his return.

Bro. B. T. St. John writes from Manchester, Red River county, Texas, that he had been blessed with a testimony of the work. They were persecuted to some extent. Notices are stuck up at cross roads threatening the Saints, if an Elder visits them to preach; and that too by men who say they "want a free country, with free speech and a free press."

The name of Bro. John S. Patterson, of the Seventy, seems not to appear in the published minutes of the Semi-Annual Conference, it having been omitted by some error. His name was mentioned, and his present field assigned to him; and the Saints will hereby be notified that he is requested to labor in that field until further notice, or the sitting of the April Conference, 1881.

Bro. Thomas Whiting, of Fall River, Mass., after stating what a good time was had at their late conference, writes: "Our little branch still strives to uphold the banner of truth in this place, and the efforts of the brethren are rewarded by souls being added to the kingdom of God. May we all prove faithful that we may be accounted worthy when Christ comes, is my prayer."

Bro. H. J. Hudson sends us a Columbus Journal, (Nebraska), in which his candidacy for Representative from Platte county, Nebraska, to the Legislature is announced. We sincerely hope Bro. Hudson may be chosen as he is an excellent man and will make a faithful representative of his county. The state of Nebraska owes him something of honor for his efficient aid in preventing legislative robbery of the state years ago.

Bro. L. R. Devore wrote from Clarksburg, W. Va., October 19th, as follows: "Father Ells and I reached this place on the 14th, and met with a number of the Bickerton Order. No spirit of opposition to our claims was manifest, worthy of notice. On Sunday, the 17th, I baptized four; Bro. D. L. Shinn and wife, Bro. Wilber Wigner and wife. On yesterday the 18th, four more were baptized; Bro. Geo. Pritchard, Mary J. Agner, and two daughters of Bro. Shinn, Margarette and Maud. On last evening Bro. Ells ordained Bro. D. L. Shinn to the office of Elder; he was chosen president of the branch. Bro. Ells will remain a few days yet, and instruct them in the order of the Church. I leave here this evening for Toll Gate in order to visit Sr. E. J. Leeson. You will hear soon from Bro. Shinn, and also from Bro. Ells. I baptized one on the 10th, at Belmont, Ohio, Abner B. Vernon, of this place, formerly of the Bickerton Order."

Bro. L. M. Sollenberger of Monmouth, Illinois, will spend three or four months in Pennsylvania, and would like to have Bro. Hiram Robinson, and Bro. John Edmunds write to him immediately; address L. M. Sollenberger, White House, Cumberland county, Pennsylvania. Bro. Sollenberger is a staunch defender of the faith, and would like some one to aid him at his home in speeding the gospel plow. Bro. James Brown, of Gill Hall, Pennsylvania, will please notice his call for correspondence; also Bro. C. N. Brown, of Providence, Rhode Island, if still at Washington, D. C.

The Saints are indeed a curious, a "peculiar people." To show that the wrongs suffered by the Church in their expulsion had been thought of and recognized as wrong and evil in the very land whence the Church was driven, we quoted an article clipped from a Missouri paper, Macon county, making an exception to its political bias at the time. The insertion of that article is taken by several as opening the columns of the HERALD to political articles, and of course, strife; one even sending us an extract from a violent, partisan, campaign document, asking us to insert it. This we decline doing, publishing the letter, however, together with another, and here the matter of politics for the HERALD will stop; for, while we have a political opinion, and preference between the parties and the candidates in the election now pending, we have never obtruded our political preferences upon the readers of the HERALD, nor do we now intend to deviate from that rule. Politics is not our avocation, nor trade. If any ask our opinion in a private and personal way, we may give it, but shall not advocate it offensively to brethren.

Bro. T. W. Smith wrote from Providence, Rhode Island, lately, (note not dated): "We had a most excellent conference at Fall River, last Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Few present ever saw such a time. After all the excitement and care of business was over, a season of prayer and testimony was had, and the many powerful and convincing prophecies, and stirring exhortations, and earnest testimonies, with the immediate relief of a number of sick, with increase of unity, love and peace, are all remembered with joy to-day by all who partook thereof."

Sr. Kate Curry, writes from Oak Island, Texas, September 10th, but not very encouragingly; branch troubles are causing distress there. Sr. Curry sends poetry for the HERALD, on charity; want of room will preclude our inserting it.

Bro. N. Stamm sends card dated October 5th, from Des Moines, Iowa. He has been preaching at Bro. Emsley's house in Story county, to attentive hearers, who seemed to wish to hear the word.

Bro. J. A. Stewart writes, October 14th, 1880, that Bro. Hiram Robinson had visited them at Philadelphia, and did good. He was going to Hornerstown when Bro. Stewart wrote.

Bro. G. F. Weston, wrote from Bridgman, Michigan, October 2d. He was doing well in the cause; was to speak in the Congregational Society, occupying the time of his father, who was a deacon in that society. May the Spirit attend our young brother.

Sr. Hawley, of Dow City, Iowa, lost or left a black leather satchel on the Conference grounds, at the Semi-Annual Conference; and would be obliged for information leading to its recovery.

Bro. Dana P. Brown, of Kinmundy, Illinois, Marion county, states that the Alma Branch, at that place, numbers thirteen, and meets Wednesday evenings for meeting; they will be glad to greet any of the traveling ministry.

We thank Brn. A. Haws for an Alameda Reporter with notice of Saints' Conference at Washington Corners in. Also thank the following for papers received: William Crick, for Columbus, Kansas, Times and Gospel Mirror; Joseph Flory, for Cincinnati Inquirer, September 15th, and 22d; Henry Charles Crump, for The Shield of Faith, containing a letter from himself defensive of the faith of the Church; J. A. Stewart, Philadelphia Inquirer, containing defense by Bro. Stewart to newspaper correspondent.

We commend to the captious and fault finding, Bro. C. Derry's manly statement respecting aid to pay for his home. We believe Bro. Derry's statement, though we can see no wrong in the act, if the Church had aided him, or any other good faithful man to a home. Bah! these carpers are enough to disgust a man with his race.

R. A. Beecher, at Cassia, Idaho, sends for the HERALD, a Scripture and the Advocate. He is alone with his family in a pleasant valley, good land, good water, and pleasant place to live. None of his faith about him; but willing to maintain the cause as he best can.

Bro. George E. Ward writes from Santa Fe, New Mexico, expressing feelings of regret for digressing from the way of the gospel plan, but also declaring the mercy of God in giving him strength to renew the conflict and engage anew in the christian race. May he indeed be strengthened, as a young soldier may need to be, from God.

Bro. S. P. Sherrill writes from Cook's Point, Texas, September 19th, 1880, that Bro. Charles Wickes and himself had been endeavoring to get an opening in Bureson and Lee counties, but that on account of a failure to sustain Bro. Wickes in a proper manner, he could not stay with them. In visiting Lee county they found the Baptists engaged in holding meetings, the continuance of which kept them from making an opening. Bro. Sherrill thinks Bro. Wickes an able speaker, as do several at Caldwell, county seat of Bureson county. Bro. Wickes when last he wrote to us was lying sick at Corsicana, Texas, waiting for means to come north. It is quite sickly south, Bro. Sherrill stating that a great many at Cook's Point had been down of malarial fever.

Bro. Charles Alford, clerk of the Eastern Iowa District, wishes us to say that in their minutes, published in HERALD of October 1st, the action concerning Bro. Richard Rowley should have read that he was silenced as an Elder not that he was severed as an Elder. We find that the original read "severed," but Bro. Alford says that it was an error in copying.

Thanks to Brn. H. J. Hudson, John Edmunds, and M. J. James for papers received, also to some one unknown for a copy of the Town and Country Journal, a forty-eight page paper published at Sydney, Australia.

Sr. Margaret Davis writes from Bevier, Missouri, September 21st, and states that the labors of Brn. J. H. Lake and B. V. Springer, have been followed by excellent results. Their district conference was a good one, and excellent feelings seemed to prevail. If only the Saints there will not let the demon of meddling, fault-finding, and official condemnation get any more foot hold there, it will be a good thing for them, and their peace will continue.

On the evening of September 16th, 1880, during the late General Conference at Council Bluffs, Iowa, Bro. M. H. Forscutt preached in the Saints' chapel in that city, a funeral discourse in memory of Sister Ellen A. Page, daughter of Bro. E. L. Page, of Hannibal, Missouri. This was done in accordance with her request that Bro. Forscutt should so do at some convenient time, which occurred as above. Sister Page died January 16th, 1880. Mention of the discourse was noted down by us, but through oversight, we failed to copy it in its proper place and hence it was not in the minutes. We regret the omission and hereby make reparation so far as we can.

Bro. Odin Jacobs wrote from Stavanger, Norway, August 15th. He had done all he could to get a fair open hearing, but with but little effect. He had been sick but was better when he wrote. He states that the people are told that the baptism of the Saints is like men wrestling in the water. The priests warn their people not to keep him over night, and prejudice is great against him. He tried to rent a hall in Stavanger but could not. Doors are closed against him. He has told the people that there are true Latter Day Saints in America.

Bro. E. DeLong writes from the east, Michigan I think, that he had been laboring in Ontario. At Genesee he was permitted to baptize three. Persecution raged some, but as Bro. DeLong says, "It don't matter much, it only adds to our number." The Saints are being comforted and cheered. Bro. DeLong had cornered a poor "man made preacher" by citing Peter's sermon on Pentecost, until the poor fellow admitted that he "was not sent to preach." Surely the coils are tightening round old Babylon's supporters. Bro. DeLong was preaching at Reese at his writing.

Bro. D. J. Phillips, of Oakland, California, writes, September 10th, as follows: "There are a few in Oakland Branch that hold fast to the iron rod, and always strive to do their Master's will. Bro. Carmicheal is in the field casting in his sickle; the harvest is ripe but the reapers are few in California. I hope after the Fall Conference there will be more means provided for the ministry.

Bro. Gomer T. Griffiths writes from Corinth, Ontario, October 8th, that the work in that part of Ontario is moving on slowly, but he thinks surely. He states that the Saints where he has been have provided for his necessities abundantly, and hopes that the Spirit may reward them bountifully. He found some doing not right, but states that the majority of the Saints are honest, upright, sincere people. He had baptized a family, and expected others to come. He would be at Corinth the 10th, and would be at work there.

Bro. R. Fish wrote from Walsingham, Ontario, that Bro. G. T. Griffiths baptized some there October 10th. He had baptized some previously, as before noted by us.

Bro. J. J. Cornish mentions having arrived at Bro. F. W. Burnham's, in Tuscola county, Michigan, and he and Bro. W. J. Smith were holding meetings over the line in Huron county. Politics was chief in the minds of most of the people and interest in meetings was not great, though there are honest and truth-loving people there whom they expect will hear the word of life and salvation. He is in need of tracts to distribute, as are many others of our ministers. Some have been baptized recently at Richmondville, and the work progresses there and elsewhere in Eastern Michigan.

All persons ordering the book "Joseph the Prophet," will please remember $2 is the price of the book in the office. In all cases twenty cents additional for postage must be sent.

We call the attention of those wishing a good article of note paper, to the price list on the last page. These papers are put up in packages of five quires each, sent postage paid for thirty-five and fifty cents per package. That for thirty-five cents is a hard, smooth paper, better in quality than you can buy in retail stores for twelve cents per quire. That for fifty cents is one of the best papers sold, and is usually retailed at eighteen and twenty cents per quire.

In ordering a change in post office address, do not fail to give the old, as well as the new address.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Can a Priest, Teacher or Deacon preside in a branch meeting when the presiding Elder is present, if he requests either of them so to do?

Ans.—Yes, decidedly so.

Bro. F. P. Scarcliff wrote from Florida, September 24th:—"The prospects for doing good are flattering. Also, God has blessed me spiritually, and many precious truths have been revealed to my understanding. But, alas! my poor weak body! Naturally the climate is worse for me than a more northern one would be. I have just had the worst time with the pain in my head that I have had since I left Plano, which is far from encouraging, but I do not feel like giving up. However, the people have reason, I fear, to say that the conference sent them the shadow, not the substance, when they sent me. My own weakness and unworthiness trouble me much." He has the right spirit; may he be made strong in body and rejoice in all things.

We thank Brn. Joseph Hammer, John Taylor, Thomas Henning and R. M. Elvin for papers received. Bro. Elvin sends a Cincinnati Commercial, containing the sensational sermon recently delivered by Dewitt Talmadge in Brooklyn, New York, on Utah Mormonism. He says that Sodom and Salt Lake City are synonymous, one was and the other is the capital of "most accursed impurity," while Utah itself, he says, is "Hell enthroned." Talmadge aims at being sensational and using strong language, no matter what he treats on, and hence he seeks subjects on which he can talk as badly as he pleases. He proposes a crusade, and the confiscation of enough property in Utah to pay the expenses of it.

We call the attention of those writing to the Herald Office, on business connected with the Office, to the notice on last page of the HERALD. To insure prompt attention, all business communications must be addressed to Joseph Smith, Business Manager.

A DAY OF REST.

THE rest-day is needful to humanity. The incessant worry and activity that attend the struggle for continued existence demand occasional and regular pause and cessation from labor; that overtaxed and strained energies may be renewed, and wasted vigor and strength be restored. This makes the rest-day, the Lord's day, a wise provision of the Creator; and so far as the exercise of the worshiping faculty in man is concerned, the rush of every day's battle must distract to a degree from its enjoyment, hence this recurring period of time to be devoted to that object fills the mind with pleasantness and peace.

The question as to the day which is the Sabbath day, does not affect the physical and moral necessities of man, and for this reason we do not in this essay take it into consideration; for we can not suppose from our estimate of the character of the Creator, that for the gratification of some affection solely within himself, he would impose a moral obligation upon man to keep a day by refraining from labor. And the fact that there are other considerations and attending conditions clustering round the command to keep the Sabbath, or Lord's day, is to us, strongly suggestive that the real purpose of that command was the benefit of man, to be derived from a re-gathering of wasted and worn energies and powers. This, with the later command to us as a people to gather together on a day to offer prayer and oblations, ceasing from labor, makes the thought easy that it was rest, peaceful rest, surrounded by associations and conditions that would invest that rest with the character of a duty. It is, we believe, a principle with the Saints, that there should be such an observance of the day of rest among them that the object of its design should be secured; and we should like to see a better degree of faithfulness and care exhibited in preventing loose habits of keeping the rest day. Health and happiness depend upon the right observance of what laws of life are known to us; and the proper care of life requires that rest for the body and the mind be secured at stated times, in harmony with all other laws of the Creator, which insure regularity and order everywhere, as witness the night of sleep and day of work and wakefulness, seed time and harvest, the storm and calm, sunshine and clouds; all of which are indicative of the purpose and design of equalizing the forces of nature, and all for the benefit of man.

RETURN OF AN ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

LIEUT. SCHWATKA of the United States army and party, who went to the Arctic regions over two years ago in search of relics and tidings of Sir John Franklin, arrived in Boston on September 23d, from Hudson's Strait. Among their experiences was a sledge journey of three thousand miles, occupying nearly a year's time, and during which they suffered from hunger as well as from cold. They established the fact that the precious records of Sir John Franklin's expedition, which perished there in the year 1848, were entirely destroyed by the Notchillik Esquimaux, who found them in a sealed tin box, which they broke open, and whose contents they scattered to the winds more than thirty years ago. The party have secured many interesting and valuable relics and identified the remains of Lieut. John Irving, third officer of the Terror, by a silver prize medal awarded to him by the Royal Naval College in 1830, which they found in his opened grave. During their return trip the search party encountered the severest cold ever experienced by white men, while traveling, and lived upon the same fare, such as raw or boiled reindeer meat, and fish, as did their native Esquimaux assistants.

On January 3d, 1880, the intense cold of 71 degrees below zero was experienced, and for sixteen days the average was 68 degrees; but, during most of the time, "the party prosecuted its journey without severe frost bites, and even in comparative comfort." They found the bones of from twenty to forty men who perished during previous expeditions, many of them being those of Franklin's men. These facts are thought to settle all the problems about that unfortunate expedition of 1847-8.

Now and then we receive questions from various places, that are not signed,—are anonymous. We have several times given notice that we should not notice such questions. We also decline to answer questions in the HERALD that are clearly personal in the application of the answers to them; it is so manifestly improper. We have quite a number of such questions that we must consign to the fragment box.

Writers for the HERALD and questioners will please take notice that articles and questions on the subjects deferred by Conference to the assembling of the quorums, will not be acceptable to us, and we shall try and exclude all such from the HERALD. Elders of every class will all do well if they bear in mind that it is unbecoming ungenerous, indiscreet and unwise, for them to take up and discuss before the several branches of the Church, where they reside, those questions referred to the assembling of the quorums; whether their views upon said subjects are correct, or incorrect; it does not matter, just let them alone, preach what you know to be the accepted theories, doctrines and tenets of the Church, according to the books—the gospel of salvation, and the Spirit will bless your labors. Pay heed to this council and you will have liberty; disregard it and you will be left of the Spirit to labor in your own strength; this is the voice of the Spirit to the Elders.

News Summary.

We have had quite enough of heresy pounding, and there is need now that we enjoy a season of peace and the preaching of the gospel, what men may believe unto salvation, and not so much what they must not believe unto damnation—our business is to save the world, not to damn it.

BRO. HARRY O. BRIGGS, of Davenport, Iowa, sends us a clipping from the Democrat, of that city, giving an account of a narrow escape of his father, Bro. M. O. Briggs. The accident occurred on Saturday, and on Sunday, Bro. Milo was administered to by Bro. Harson, of Rock Island, and on Tuesday of the next week he went to his place in the mills to work.

STARING DEATH IN THE FACE.

One of the most awful situations a man can be placed in and retain his senses, was encountered yesterday forenoon by Mr. Milo Briggs, 1st engineer at the saw mill of Paige, Dixon & Co. He went into a narrow space to repair a saw dust chain—and as there was a revolving shaft there, he buttoned his clothes and banded his shirt sleeves as closely as he could. The chain runs over a pulley, and while he was working at it, his left wristband was caught by a key of the shaft, and he commenced to struggle for life; but he was powerless to resist the power to which he had become fastened. A box covered all the shaft but the key space—and he was drawn down to the hole and across it; his clothing stripped from his person as he moved. He had little time to think, but he grew sick at the thought of being choked to death, for he believed the clothes would wind about his neck in a fatal coil. He was pulled so closely to the shaft-box that the breath was nearly squeezed out of him—and so quickly was this done that he could not cry for help. And when it came to stripping his vest and shirt, the clothes tore apart instead of twisting about him, and danger from choking was past. And there he lay close to that shaft—with the pulley rubbing him and the shaft holding him down until every bit of clothing save the shirt-sleeve on his left arm, and his shoe and sock on his right foot had been torn from him. The other shoe was literally torn in two. The clothing all pulled off, he was free—and just then the second engineer came running to the place, finding Mr. Briggs pale as death, entirely nude, with his breast, arms and legs bleeding and badly bruised, and he just able to whisper. Had not the shaft been boxed, there is little doubt he would have been killed, for there was just room enough to allow the machinery to do it. He will be very sore for some time. The shaft was making two hundred revolutions a minute at the time.

An honorable man is honorable in his methods of warfare; nor does he forget himself, though he finds himself in his dealings with dishonorable men. Success won by dishonorable means has no pleasure for him.

The highest rate of interest that we pay is for borrowed trouble.

Oct. 11th.—At one o'clock yesterday (Sunday) morning in the city of Pittsburgh, Pa., there occurred one of the most terrible railroad accidents on record. A heavy train, loaded with passengers who had been to the Exposition in that city and also witnessed a political torch-light parade in the evening, was divided into sections, and, while moving out of the city, one of these ran into the rear car of another and killed and wounded numbers. But the slaughter was made still worse by the boiler-head of the engine giving away, and the scalding steam rushing through the car, whereby many perished, scalded, or killed by inhaling the hot steam. The crowd on the rear platform of the car hid the red light from the engineer of the rear train. Twenty-four people have perished and about as many more are still living, wounded or scalded, many of them dangerously so.

A letter recently written from Ireland shows that while there is less want and suffering than there was a few months ago, the real cause of the evil has not been removed. It is said that many of the landholders are endeavoring to drive their tenants entirely off their lands, and were it not for the Land League organized there to protect the tenants there would be greater hardship and suffering than now. The state of affairs could scarcely be worse and no real remedy seems practicable yet.

At Nokomis, Illinois, a passenger train ran into a freight train on a side track, the switch being open, and the engine striking an oil tank on a car, overturned it. Then the oil running out, caught fire, and the train was soon in a blaze, so that the passengers barely escaped with their lives; all the cars, with the baggage and express matter burning up in a brief time. Loss $60,000.

12th.—The Mark Lane Express says that, in consequence of the continued wet weather in England, the remnant of the harvest left standing out has been rendered worthless. Wheat in stacks has also suffered somewhat, and thrashing has been suspended. In consequence there has been a slight advance in all kinds of grain. American wheat advanced one shilling per quarter, and showed an upward tendency.

It is stated on the authority of some clerical journals that the Papal Nuncio has opened negotiations with the French Government for the purpose of obtaining some modifications of the decrees against the religious orders.

The Kurds have made an incursion into the northern province of Persia, and as might be expected, have committed fearful excesses there. Four large villages have been plundered and their inhabitants massacred. The Persian Government has dispatched a large force to repel the mountain tribes. By the time the Persian troops have arrived on the scene the Kurds will have retired to their mountain fastnesses.

E. B. Armstrong, the contractor who built the grand stand on the Adrian (Mich.) fair-grounds, which gave away about a year ago, causing the death of seventeen persons, returned to his home in Adrian a few days ago, after an absence of a whole year, and was arrested on a charge of manslaughter. The officers have been looking for him for more than a year.

Spotted Tail, Chief of the Brule Sioux, has sent $332 80 to Secretary Schurz, that six young men of the tribe, who are to be tried for the massacre of the whites near the White River Agency, may secure the services of able lawyers to defend them before the courts.

At the General Conference of the Utah Church, last Sunday, October 10th, John Taylor, president of the Twelve, was chosen as president of the church. George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith were chosen as his counselors.

13th.—By a mine disaster in Nova Scotia, ten men were killed.

Turkey has finally surrendered Dulcigno to Montenegro, and so informs the Ambassadors of the nations, but its surrender is a small affair compared with the other demands on Turkey, made by the Berlin treaty of 1878. The Chicago Tribune says: "The Grecian question must now be settled. Instead of involving a single seaport, the cession to Greece will cover a large and valuable area of Turkish territory in Thessaly and Epirus, which the Turks are unwilling to give up, and which they will delay and stave off to the latest possible period. There is no doubt also that the Greeks will demand an immediate settlement. They were promised this territory three years ago as the reward for keeping out of the Russo-Turkish war when they were in a condition to have secured it as an indemnity for assistance to Russia. Their claim was conceded in the Berlin Congress to be just, and it was officially recognized. Two years have elapsed since the treaty was signed, but nothing has been done until now to secure the territory, and even now it is uncertain what the Powers will do in carrying out the promise. If they do not move in the matter, Greece will. Nor does the Grecian matter end the demands that must be made upon Turkey. The independence of Bulgaria must be secured so far as to release that territory from any further Turkish oppression, or all the countries south of the Balkans will unite under one government and raise the standard of revolt. And lastly, the reforms in Armenia so long promised and so often deferred must be put in operation."

The Kurds are reported to have wholly or partly destroyed and ravaged seventeen Persian villages. As soon as they secure booty they invariably send it across the line into Kurdistan, where it is hidden away among the mountains.

14th.—In consequence of the recent bad harvest in Russia, great apprehensions exist as to the prospects of the populace during the winter. Several municipalities have petitioned the Government to prevent the exportation of grain from the Azof and Black Sea ports.

The gap between the Roman Catholic ecclesiastics of Ireland and the people as represented by the Land League grows wider and wider each day. At a meeting of the League held in Dublin, yesterday, Dillon, Sullivan, and Sexton, members of Parliament, took strong grounds against the pastoral of Archbishop McCabe. Sullivan is editor of the principal Land League paper in Ireland, which circulates largely among the farmers and mechanics, and his denunciation of Bishop McCabe is very significant.

Up to last night thirty persons have died as the result of the Pittsburgh railroad accident. A number of those who were injured are still in the Pittsburgh hospital, and are not expected to recover. Mrs. Roup, one of the parties injured, has gone crazy. The flagman whose duty it was to warn the second train says that he was too excited and forgot to do his duty. It is probable that he will be held for manslaughter.

15th.—A steamer from Shreveport, Louisiana, with about 1,200 bales of cotton on board, burned near the mouth of the Red River, yesterday.

No preparations are being made by Turkey to complete the cession of Dulcigno to Montenegro, and it is thought that the Porte only sought further time by his previous concessions.

The French police are ejecting Jesuits who seek to return to their old colleges contrary to the law against these societies.

16th.—The epizootic has arrived in Chicago and a few horses have been attacked with the disease as a beginning of its work there.

The cotton crop of the South will not be so good as it was thought it would be a month ago. In consequence of the moist weather the yield has suffered 8 per cent, but in any case the crop will be better than that of last year. In the Atlantic States the yield will be far above the average, while in Mississippi, Tennessee, and Arkansas the crop will be from 10 to 20 per cent below that of last year.

American grain has penetrated to Switzerland by way of Rotterdam and Antwerp. The crop in Switzerland has not been up to the average this year, and the presence of the American product in their markets is very pleasant to the Swiss consumers. In this connection it is stated that it is probable the German Reichstag will reduce the tariff on imported grain, so that there is good reason to believe the American producers will find in Germany a large and profitable market for their surplus products.

The law officers of the Crown in Ireland, having determined on the form of prosecution against the Land-League agitators in Ireland, have submitted it to the Lord Lieutenant and the Privy Council, who have not as yet indicated their opinion. The agitators do not seem to be much frightened, and continue in the work of organizing large meetings, parades, and in the usual sort of speeches. An immense meeting will be held within the Archdiocese of Dublin, to-morrow, where Parnell, Dillon, and the most noted of the Land-League leaders are expected to speak. It is quite significant that the meeting is to be held in the province of Archbishop McCabe, who has recently denounced such gatherings and warned the members of his flock against participating in them.

In a Chicago distillery yesterday a steam cooker exploded and seven men were killed instantly, and four others were wounded.

The Pope has summoned the Irish Catholic Bishops to Rome to take into consideration the disturbed condition of Ireland. Should any hostile action toward the Land-League movement be determined on, it is not likely to have much effect. The feeling against the interference of the Bishops and priests in Irish politics is very strong just now, and any hostile action on the part of the Papacy against the land movement at this time would give rise to much hostility on the part of the people.

18th.—A great gale of wind began to blow on the night of the 15th, and continued the 16th and 17th with great fury throughout much of the West, and the mercury went down nearly to zero. On the great lakes immense damage was done to shipping and numbers of vessels went down; one heard of had eight men on board, all of whom perished with the ship. Other vessels were driven on shore and damaged, and some lives lost. It is feared that the passenger steamer, Alpena, went down, with all on board, between Racine and Chicago. This same storm was very violent along the line of the Minnesota Railroad. Trains were blocked by snowdrifts ten to twelve feet deep, and the passengers were only kept from starving by the arrival of trains with provisions. Cattle, horses, and other farm animals have perished in large numbers. At the last accounts the storm was still raging, and is pronounced the severest ever known in this region.

The Chilians have begun the bombardment of Callao, and they demand the surrender of the Peruvian vessels there. Their invading army of thirty thousand men is making Peru a desolation.

19th.—The priests and monks of the Carmelite and Barnabite Orders were expelled from their establishments in France, Saturday. There were demonstrations of sympathy with the expelled clericals at many places. At Montpelier the Roman Catholic Bishop denounced the expulsion proceedings, and informed the Prefect that he was excommunicated for his part in enforcing the laws.

Wheat planting is going on in England, and as the weather is very favorable a large area will be planted before the end of this week, and the greater portion of the crop will be sown by the 1st of November. There has been a very brisk demand for seed wheat of good quality, and the prices of the higher grades have advanced two or three shillings per quarter in consequence.

The English Government is proceeding with the evacuation of Afghanistan according to the promise made some time ago.

News comes by way of Lisbon that Buenos Ayres, where snow rarely falls, was visited by a terrific snow storm on the 18th of September. The damage consequent of the storm was very great. It is believed that 700,000 head of cattle, 500,000 sheep and 250,000 horses, perished in the storm.

Several roads in the Northwest, including the Southern Minnesota, the Iowa Division of the Milwaukee & St. Paul, and the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba, are blocked with snow and ice, and travel over them has been suspended since Sunday. St. Paul had been completely isolated for twenty-four hours last evening. The New York Central is blocked west of Rochester, and passengers for the West were detained all day yesterday at Poughkeepsie.

The epizootic is spreading among the horses in Chicago.

A fire in Charlestown, South Carolina, has destroyed two hundred thousand dollars worth of property, including a great deal of cotton.

20th.—The missing lake-steamer Alpena is proved to have gone down, as the Michigan beach is strewn with fragments of her, and the body of one woman has come ashore. Thirty-five passengers and thirty seamen were aboard. Her captain had been on the lakes twenty-five years. A great many other vessels and scows have foundered, driven ashore or dismantled. Of all the great lake storms this one was probably the worst that has been experienced since white men sailed these inland seas.

From Galveston, Texas, comes tidings that the Indian chief, Victorio, has been killed and also fifty of his warriors, and most of the others in the band captured. It was done by the Mexicans in a late battle. He has long been a terror on the Texas and Mexican border, and United States soldiers were hunting him as well as the Mexicans.

The Sultan of Morocco has, in consequence of the pressure of the European Powers, declared that all religions shall be respected throughout his dominions. Even the Moors have begun to think that the world moves.

21st.—A dispatch says that the negotiations between Turkey and Montenegro, for an amicable settlement of affairs between them, have failed. Dulcigno is not yet given up.

Trustworthy intelligence from the border land between Macedonia and Albania represents that the Christians are ripe for revolution. The Bulgarians and Mussulmans are armed, and assassinations on both sides are of common occurrence. Anarchy reigns supreme.

The woolen mills, anchor works, and other manufactories of Camden, Maine, have been obliged to shut down for want of water. The Meganticook River, which supplies the mills with water-power, was never so low. The people of the district would gladly have some of the rain which has fallen so plentifully in the Cotton States of late.

A terrible accident is reported from Cincinnati. A fire broke out yesterday in the shoddy factory of Benjamin Hay. At the time twenty-eight persons, girls and women, were at work in the third story. The girls all made their escape, but five of the women were burned to death. They might have escaped, but foolishly insisted on changing their clothing before they would leave the place where they were working. The victims were all advanced in years, and some of them were the only support of young families.

A collision on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad, at a place called Jones' Station, resulted in the serious scalding of fifteen passengers. The train while pulling into the side track was overtaken by another passenger train, whose engine ran into the rear car. The passengers were scalded by the escaping steam. No deaths have been reported so far.

A freight-train ran into a crowded excursion-train near Raleigh, N. C., yesterday, wrecking the engine of the freight train, several cars of the passenger train, killing three men, and wounding fourteen others, three, it is believed, fatally.

22d.—The crusade against the religious orders of France continues. Government inspectors entered the Jesuit establishments at Amiens yesterday and found twenty Jesuit fathers there. These men had been employed as Professors in the college. They will probably be expelled. The Franciscans at Avignon, having supplied themselves plentifully with provisions, have walled up their establishment, and defy the authorities to expel them.

There is a prospect of war between Egypt and Abyssinia. The latter Government has dispatched 16,000 troops to the Abyssinian frontier. Should the war occur, it will probably be of longer duration than the recent war between Abyssinia and England.

CRESTON, IOWA,
 October 2d, 1880.

Bro. Joseph and Henry.—According to my intentions, as expressed to you on the depot platform at this place, I soon after commenced a series of meetings in the country, in the neighborhood of Bro. A. M. Bullard. I have thus far held seven meetings with good liberty and fair attendance. One has given her name for baptism, and others are investigating. It is encouraging to see the gospel taking hold on the honest, and to see them falling in one by one. Bro. Bullard and family are about the only representatives of the faith here, and the prestige they have as Christians, as honest, straight forward neighbors, is enviable. It is a pleasure to labor where such Saints live. While here I have been much edified by visiting with Grandmother Bullard, an old-time Saint, and a new-time one too. I learned much from her of the history of the early days of the Church, of polygamy, and the martyrs' strong and positive opposition thereto.

I will here give an item of history, as it may be of interest to some. On one occasion, Brigham, Joseph, Emma, Mother Smith and others were in a room together, when Brigham said to Joseph, "Why can't we in this church have the same privilege that David and Solomon had, and have many wives?" Joseph told him such a thing would never do, it would ruin any church, &c. Brigham told him that he only talked so because Emma was present. She became disgusted and left the room, but her absence produced no change in the opinion of Joseph on the subject of polygamy. It was on this occasion that Joseph said, if Brigham Young ever led the Church he would lead it to hell.

On our way home to Cameron, Missouri, from this place we will stop at two points and hold a few meetings; one at Bro. Smith's, near Lenox, and the other in Worth county, Missouri, where lives my sister. At the latter place there has never been any preaching. I was greatly edified by attending the General Conference, and formed many pleasant acquaintances. I shall ever remember with gratitude Mr. John Clark and lady whose hospitable roof afforded us ample shelter, and their table the nourishment for the body; may the Lord bless them. I feel encouraged in the great cause, and determined to do all I can for its advancement. Yours,
 J. M. TERRY.

Bro. Stebbins.—It is lonely indeed, never to meet with any of like precious faith, or hear the sound of the blessed gospel. But I rejoice in the truth; for I know it is of God. How could one hold out and keep up a rejoicing spirit in a work that is not true and be constantly surrounded with evil? We could not. But, thank God, we know for ourselves that this work is true, and all that will embrace it and be faithful will receive great blessings in this life, and the great and final reward shall be life everlasting. Be faithful then, dear ones, and win the crown. I ask the prayers of all the Saints that I may be faithful and be able to stand firm and be clothed upon with charity as with a mantle, and watch and pray lest I shall faint when he comes.

Editors Herald.—Permit me to correct a report in circulation. It is known by some that prior to my going to Utah last Fall, I purchased a home. There is a report that the Church is helping me to pay for it. It is not true; I not only have not asked the Church, nor individuals to help me pay for it, but I also have not received anything from any source for that purpose. I hope to be able to pay what remains unpaid, at least I shall keep trying, without seeking Church aid. I believe the Lord opened my way to obtain it, in answer to prayer, and I believe He will help me honestly pay for it. So fear not that I am growing fat out of Church funds.

Truly yours,

CHARLES DERRY.

[This letter was received too late for Conference.—J. Smith]:

BIRMINGHAM, England,
September 1st, 1880.

To the President and Brethren in Conference assembled.—I have much pleasure in reporting to you that the work of the Lord in this part of the vineyard is in a fair condition. Peace and unity prevail. We keep adding a few to our numbers by baptism; all of whom receive the witness of the Spirit to assure them of their acceptance with God. The Saints generally are feeling well and rejoicing in the truths of the gospel; and all are desirous of seeing the work roll on. I have many good and energetic helpmates among my brethren; some of whom are good preachers and workers. Our meetings are well attended, and some are inquiring after our doctrine, who have become dissatisfied with their former creeds. We have supplied them with tracts and hope that good will result.

I noticed in the Herald of August 1st, a letter from a brother in Iowa, in which he mentions a gentleman of his acquaintance, a Mr. Samuel Bennett, of Birkenhead, England. I am happy to inform our brother that Mr. S. Bennett has been visited and labored with many times previous to that letter appearing in the Herald. He had been visited by our brethren who are residents in Birkenhead, Bro. J. W. Coward, and Bro. Joseph Bennett, who is a brother in the flesh to the person there spoken of; I am also happy to inform him, that Bro. Samuel Bennett has united with the Reorganization some months ago; and is now doing all he possibly can to make known the truth which he has embraced. May God assist him in so doing. I still have a desire to go on and do all I possibly can for the good of the work in connection with my brethren, and ask an interest in your faith and prayers to that end. Praying that peace may be with you through your session and that much good may be done.

Your brother in Christ,

T. TAYLOR.

[This also was received too late for Conference.]:

WELSH MISSION.

Dear Brethren assembled in Conference:—I present to you a report of this Mission, hoping that the Spirit of the Lord is with you, to guide you, to push forward the glorious work of the Latter Day. My chief work in the past was to visit the branches, to comfort the Saints, and try to bring those that have been led astray back to the fold of Christ; in the which we have been successful to a great degree, but some have been cut off. The Elders are more active at present, and the hopes of our prosperity are more promising. Our increase in the past six months was two baptized.

Yours for Christ,

JOHN R. GIBBS.

SYDNEY, September 9th, 1880.

Pres. Joseph Smith; Dear Brother:—I am well at this date, and am still trying to the best of my ability to roll on the work of God, but I must confess the progress is but slow. The branch at Wallsend is getting along nicely; the officers of the branch seem to take a lively interest in the work. Meeting every Sunday at Wallsend, every second Sunday at Hamilton, and every second at Teralba. Give my love to Henry, Brn. Scott and Dille.

J. W. GILLEN.

My address is J. W. Gillen, care R. Ellis, Catherine, St. Forest Lodge, Sydney, N. S. W., Australia.

Editors Herald; Dear Brethren:—The article by W. C. Matthews meets my approval, so far as I am concerned in the question at issue. I will become a member of the proposed "Protective Association," for I think a better plan could not be devised. I am confident that it will secure the end for which it is proposed. I now offer to pay the proposed fee of $5 whenever the necessary steps are taken toward the adoption and execution of the scheme by the Church, or the members thereof. I will also rent and cultivate land purchased for this purpose.

Truly yours,

D. L. SHINN.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah,
Sept. 24th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—The Lord is blessing his people in this region to the satisfaction of many hearts. During a recent trip to Provo, our young Swedish brother, Th. Christensen, told me that the Lord had given him, within the last eight weeks, the most satisfactory evidence of the divinity of the Reorganization, and that the testimonies he has received since uniting with us are far greater than what he received during his connection with the Utah Church. He was a missionary for that Church in Sweden many years. He is preaching on Sundays now, and hopes to be able to devote two or three months this Fall and Winter in the missionary work in Utah. His good wife is in hearty accord with him. When at Springville, Bro. Ether Blanchard assured me he had of late received the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire, as promised in the Scriptures, a blessing he never knew during his membership in the Utah Church, though he had sought it carefully for many years. His wife bears a similar testimony. Circumstances under which they received this heavenly endowment were rather singular. They were these: Both were sitting out on their front porch, and Bro. Blanchard was reading quietly "The Successor." When he was reading concerning your appointment as your father's successor, suddenly the Holy Spirit fell upon him and his wife, and he was filled throughout his entire being with the power of the Spirit, and, rising to his feet, broke forth in prophecy concerning the progress of the Lord's work, and the redemption of Zion, and both were filled with joy. His wife has had poor health from her girlhood, but is now rapidly gaining strength and flesh and she refers it to her baptismal blessing. Many others, both in Provo and Springville, are rejoicing in the goodness and power of God.

In this city the Lord is comforting His people, and many bear remarkable testimonies to the truth of the Lord's work. We feel well encouraged with the prospect in all this mission, and shall strive to make it successful toward the comfort and salvation of many souls.

W. W. BLAIR.

PRAIRIE CITY, Grant Co., Oregon,
October 4th, 1880.

Elder H. A. Stebbins; Dear Brother:—I have never felt better towards the cause of truth, nor more desirous of using the little ability that I have in pushing it forward than I do at the present time; and, though the fruits of our labor do not immediately appear, I feel that, in due time of the Lord, fruit will be gathered that will amply prove that the good seed has not been sown on barren ground, though I fear the day will be prolonged unless there is more united action on the part of the Saints. I have thoroughly warned the people of this place; I feel that I have done my duty, and that my skirts are clear. And now I am ready to enter a new field. Bro. J. L. Buckingham and I will start for Idaho next Wednesday for a circuit of near six hundred miles, trusting that the Spirit may direct and the Master be glorified.

Last Lord's day morning I went to hear the Methodist minister, who has lately been appointed to this "charge," but for some cause he did not appear, and, after some restless waiting the congregation began to get tired, and finally a Mr. Rigdon (nephew of the late Sydney Rigdon) arose and proposed that Elder Clapp address the audience, which we did with excellent liberty, for an hour and twenty-five minutes.

I very much desire that an active Elder be sent to this mission, and I know that it could be done if the Saints would do their duty; but it seems that some think that the Elder should make all the sacrifice and do all the work, and all they have to do is to look on with folded hands and occasionally find fault with the laborers and the way they are doing the work.

I notice in the last Herald that some object to paying tithing because "it is wrongly used." Now I consider this a very thin covering, or a very poor excuse to present before God. It may do for man, but God will not accept of such a quibble; for he has told us that the tithing is his. And men or women who have entered into covenant with him and yet withhold their tithing, are withholding that which does not belong to them, and God says it is "robbery" (Mal. 3:8). This was said then because they kept back what belonged to God, and they were cursed for doing so. A man that would rob his fellow-man, we would all denounce in the strongest terms, and what shall we say of those who rob God.

This is strong doctrine, but it is the doctrine of Israel's God; and we will all feel the force of it, sooner or later. If one would say, "I doubt this being the work of God, I therefore will not pay tithing." I would think there was really some excuse for that man, or woman; but it seems quite unreasonable that a person should be a Latter Day Saint and yet entertain fears that God would not do right with what belongs to him. Such people assume to dictate for the Almighty.

The Church has a spiritual head that God has acknowledged by revelation; also a financial head, into whose hands the Lord is not afraid to trust all the finances of his Church, yet we hear of members of the Church who are afraid to place in the hands that God appointed what actually belongs there. I wonder what would become of this work if it had only such narrow minds to defend it. O, Saints of God, when will you awake to the responsibilities that rests upon you! You desire to see the work of God roll forth, do you not? You desire to see darkness flee before the advance of our mighty truth, do you not? You desire to see the sons and daughters of men liberated from the bondage of superstition and ignorance, so that they may enjoy that freedom that the truth alone can bring, do you not? If so, I ask, in what way can this desirable end be brought about better than to loose the hands of the Elders and let them go to the oppressed and deceived and point them to the better way, and the work will be accomplished.

"Ah," says one, "we want them to go, but we want them to go on foot, 'without purse or scrip.'" I once heard a brother arguing this point, and he said, "If I was going on a mission I would go right, and if I came to a water course I would fold my mantle and smite the water, and, like Elijah, I would go over dry shod." Some years after this I had the pleasure of seeing that same brother take a mission; but, mark you, he went in a nice buggy, with two fine horses, and stop- at places where he had good accommodation, and made a pleasant visit. And in ten days he returned home in fine order. Great sacrifice (?). So I believe that the very ones who expect so much of the Elders would accomplish very little if they were in the Elders' places.

For one, I can say that I am constantly in the field, and am not soliciting favor; but there are Elders who are able and willing to labor, and we need one here in this mission, and if he can be sent here, not on foot, (that is too slow a way for this fast age), we will take care of him when he gets here. But excuse me, brother Henry, I was going to write you a newsy letter, and I got off on this subject. So I will defer news till another time.

J. C. CLAPP.

CEDAR KEYS, Florida,
September 15th, 1880.

Dear Saints:—I am yet strong in the faith of the Reorganized Church of Christ that it is the only way to salvation. I have been taught so by faith and by the Spirit, for how are we to know how to please God only by his power, and how are we to come in possession of this power? The Scripture says plainly that it is given by obedience to his laws, to the ordinances of the Church of Christ. In them we find that he was and is pleased by having Christ himself for the founder and builder of the Church. I am willing to believe the word of God as taught in the Reorganized Church, for since I obeyed I have been confirmed by both dreams and visions. While sitting and looking out on God's green earth there appeared to me a person arrayed in shining uniform. It was like that of a soldier, and on his left arm he held several shining swords. He stood about five feet from me. His features bore the marks of age. He was tall and stout. In appearing he made a noise like that made by a book when it is held open in the wind. He stood perfectly still, and I looked at him from head to foot, but he did not look at me, neither did he speak, and it withdrew from me.

I rejoice in God, for I feel that his Spirit is made manifest to me. I also have the assurance that we are right and have need of a prophet, and of the ministering of angels, and the gifts and powers that are given to the Church. In a dream I saw hanging in the heavens three large marble stones, all the same size, the length being about five feet, and the breadth two feet. There were words written on them, the middle one not having so much, not being full. The other two were full. I called my husband and pointed and said, "Look, look." And he said, "What is it," and I read these words to him, which were written on the middle stone, "Reverence the name of God. Come to God." The words on the others I did not try to read, for I believed that when I read the Book of Mormon I should read the same words. I was bidden to come to God and reverence him, and I believe the Book of Mormon to be the word of God, although I have never seen it.

I am all alone in the cause here, and bear much reproach for the sake of the cause. But I endure for I know that I do so not in vain. Some admit that I have been healed, and they come to see me on that account. They ask if I believe that I was healed by the power that is given from on high, through Jesus Christ to the Church. I answer, "Yes, I do believe just so." They contradict me, having a form of godliness, but deny the power thereof. Still I believe great good could be done here, for some seem to believe. While I was on a visit to see my relatives in Georgia a few weeks ago, some told me they would join if they had a chance to do so. If at any time an Elder will come he will find at my house a hearty welcome and a home as long as he will stay.

Your sister,
LOU HOLLISTER.

CAMERON, Missouri,
October 7th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph and Henry.—Since I left my home in Maine I have traveled two thousand four hundred and twenty miles, and I will just say here that, as I visited the Saints in Boston, Providence, Fall River, Brooklyn, Hornerstown, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Joseph and Stewartville, they felt that I was not a man of money to bear my expenses, and what I lacked they made up in giving, for which I extend my humble thanks. In all of the above places I was much blessed in the presentation of God's word. At St. Joseph, Missouri, I baptized William Raschke. While at Stewartville I was kindly received by all, and brother John Kinnaman took me around to see the beautiful country that God made for the children of men. Then, with Bro. Kinnaman, and two of his children, and M. T. Short and wife, I came to this place. Held meetings, and then with brethren Kinnaman, Short, and Flanders visited Far West. At Kingston we obtained the Christian church and M. T. Short addressed thirty-five people. Staid one night with Bro. W. H. Cadman. The next day went where Joseph the martyr lived. As we stood under the large Cottonwood there, I thought of him, and as the spirit rested upon me it brought to my mind what he suffered for the great latter-day work. I felt that I would like something to show of what was done by him, and I took two of the old trunks out of the frame put up by him. On the temple lot I stepped on the four corner stones. I took a piece of one and thought of the hard work that was done on the temple, but all is gone but a very few stones, may be a dozen. We saw also the place where the rebels lay in ambush for the Saints, and killed them. I felt to thank God that the same class of people are not now there to kill the people of God, but instead we had several invitations to come and preach.

I must say that my eyes never saw such a pretty country as this is; thank God for the choice he made for the gathering place of his people. I have traveled in the South and in the East, but no land like this. Because of the troubles upon this land in years gone by, the question may be asked, "Can any good come out of Missouri?" My answer is, Come and see. All Saints who come to this land (if they will mind their own business) will find true hearted friends. Land is from eight to twenty dollars per acre. Some may think that the land for eight dollars per acre can not be very good. Let me say that it is in thousands of places better. The price depends upon the locality. In a village place the land may not be so good, but you would pay twenty dollars or more because of its location.

I leave here on the morrow to attend a two-days meeting in the Starfield Branch, and then to Stewartville. From there I may leave for home, unless my wife has sold our place in the East, and is coming West. If she can not sell I shall be obliged to go back and fix up for winter quarters, before I go on the South-eastern Mission.

Yours truly,

J. C. FOSS.

CARROLL CITY, Iowa,
October 11th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith.—Since Conference I have labored at Dow City, preaching four times. At Deloit I delivered six sermons; had good audiences. Tried Denison with two lectures, had small audiences. Religious bigotry and superstitious intolerance, born of "fire and brimstone" dogmas, kept the people away. I told them on the last evening that we were not of the Utah abomination, and that if any man in Denison did not believe it, that wore a clerical garment, we would discuss the matter, or have some one else do so. I thought that among the several thousands of a membership we had at least six men who were quite intelligent, and there was a possibility of them being able to discuss any point of issue between us.

Came to this place last Friday, have spoken twice, and again to-night. While in Dow City I stopped at Bro. J. R. Lambert's. He preached twice at Deloit, and preceded me here. We have not had large audiences, but attentive ones. Have enjoyed good liberty, and felt well in declaring the word. Bro. Lambert is a kind, congenial, and amiable traveling companion for any man to be associated with. He is, as many should be who are not, tidy, cleanly, careful of his personal appearance and manner of speech; "sound in the doctrine of Christ;" void of superstitious theories, &c.

Mr. Editors, there is one thing in the Herald for October 1st, to which I object. Under the caption of "Meditations" I find these names, "Tom Paine" and "Bob Ingersoll." As Latter Day Saints we feel very tender and aggrieved when people say "Joe Smith," &c., and why any of us should speak so ungentlemanly of any man is more than I can understand; there is no cause for it. The Christian (?) world has called these men by such rowdy abbreviations because they despised them; it is an expression of narrow-mindedness born of undue religious fanaticism and intolerance. If "Inferior" will cease such an inferior use of men's names we might call him a progressive superior. As a Church of superior doctrines we should talk and act toward others in a superior manner than some act toward us.

I leave here to-night for Farmington. All well, and send kind regards. Am stopping at Bro. Bean's—good, kind folks.

Dear Brethren.—We feel we should be wanting in courtesy, did we not return our sincere thanks for the insertion of our appeal to the churches in your official organ, the Herald. We hope your recommend will induce those who can help us to do so, that we may perform so necessary a work as the publishing a paper, through which the churches on this side of the mighty Atlantic may be able to effectually defend themselves from the many aspersions heaped upon them, as a people, for their religion, by those who are aware we can not, except in very few instances, give only lip defense; which under the most favorable circumstances does not produce that effect which the printing press is productive of. We can assure those who may feel kindly disposed towards us, that whatever we received for the purpose named will be economically and judiciously spent, under the cognizance of our Bishop's Agent, Bro. Thomas Taylor, President of the Mission, in the production of a cheap, and, so far as our ability will allow, a useful periodical, for the spread of the truth. We will forward to your office our prospectus as soon as we find it necessary to issue one.

Signed on behalf of committee,

H. C. CRUMP.

Dear Bro. Joseph.—As I find that you have opened the columns of the Herald for political matter, I shall be much obliged if you will insert the enclosed; and as I know you believe in both sides of a question being displayed, I am sure you will accede to my request. Its insertion will doubtless bring forth a full supply of articles that will justify an issue of a supplement.

I preached here twice Sunday and yesterday. I go to-day toward Leland, then to Harlan, and then toward Council Bluffs and Omaha.

Yours in bonds,

E. C. BRAND.

SALT LAKE CITY,
October 9th, 1880.

Dear Bro. Joseph.—Our conference is ended, and truly a time of rejoicing was had, a time long to be remembered by all who assembled. Many expected to see you, but the presence of the Spirit of God and peace that seemed to be possessed by every soul present made up the deficiency. The timely remarks seasoned by the Spirit of God, that fell from the lips of President Blair, comforted all. The missionaries are quite contented and look happy, and well they may for the testimonies they hear, and the truths they utter would make any humble soul happy. The labors of Bro. G. E. Deuel are best appreciated by those who know him and can understand him best. It is not the outward appearance of a man that we should judge by, and Saints especially should endeavor to judge by the spirit of the man, and the intentions of the heart, if they can do this, if not it is better to wait until the time comes when the Saints shall judge the world, as it is high to be a judge. I for one shall not forget the reproof he has administered to me. I have felt rebuked, admonished and reproved, and God be praised for the afflictions I have endured which he has suffered to come upon me. Many have been the sorrows I have borne through the villianly of slander, deserved or not, and the wrath of such being poured out upon me; but God maketh the wrath of man to praise him, and the remainder he restraineth. I understand by this that God restraineth the angry man.

It is time that Saints awaked to righteousness, if there are any who have taken upon them the name of Saint, who have not been awakened already. And those who have been slandered should learn that lesson that "He who forgiveth not his brother his trespasses on him (that forgiveth not) resteth the greater sin." I am fully aware that some may and will differ with me, but may God bless such with wisdom of that good kind until all come to the unity of the faith, and until we that have murmured shall learn doctrine, and they that err in judgment shall come to an understanding. This is the kind of feeling that ruled in conference just past, and the sick were healed and like myself they felt their sins were forgiven. May the Lord give us grace to stand; endure in the faith to the end, and know why he is blessed whose sins are many and they are forgiven him. When we are willing to do these things we will be made to rejoice, and the difficulties that have arisen in Salt Lake City and other places, causing many to stumble, and the apparent mountains beautifully simmer down to molehills; then, if not till then, we shall know why Jesus Christ, Stephen, and other Saints as well as apostles, could say, "Father forgive them." Let us know this, for we can not help ourselves, that God will not save us in our sins, for he who saith he loveth God, yet hateth his brother, deceiveth himself; so when the cry goes forth, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh," the wise will leave us here below. If we will employ our minds in the study of these things we shall not be barren nor unfruitful, neither will the work of God be lacking anything. We will be willing to help with our hands and hearts, pay the tithes as we ought without a murmur. The Herald will soon become a weekly, the treasury will be filled and we will not be lacking anything, neither will we neglect the weightier matters. Then will the work of redemption in Utah, and all other places, be seen and felt. The weak shall say, "I am strong." There shall nothing be lacking. Good will displace evil; even the animals will partake of the spirit of their master; they shall feed after their manner; nothing shall hurt nor destroy. This spirit pervaded the souls of the apostles and saints of former days when they lacked not anything and even the devils were subject unto them. So can we rise in the majesty of the great God, even in these latter days, and one shall chase a thousand, and saviors will arise whom they that now sit in darkness shall call us blessed.

May God help us to put our shoulder to the wheel and cleanse our hearts, and lend a helping hand until wickedness is ended and the knowledge and power of God shall fill the whole earth, is the prayer of your brother and co-laborer,
WM. WORWOOD.

MILTON, Florida,
October 11th, 1880.

Bro. Henry:—Since I wrote last in company with Bro. L. F. West I have visited several localities, and we have preached the word to fair sized congregations. Considerable interest has been manifested by some, and requests to return and new calls are very numerous. Bro. Foss is very much needed in the mission assigned him. Bro. West thinks the condition of the district is better than it has been for several years. The Saints are being aroused, and the fire of God's Spirit is burning more brightly in their bosoms. On September 30th I baptized two, husband and wife, fruit of Bro. L. F. West's labors. On October 9th and 10th at the Coldwater Conference, God's Spirit was with us in power. Saints were made to rejoice, friends visiting were pleased, and the verdict of all was, "We have had a pleasant enjoyable time." May Coldwater have many such conferences in the future. We were glad to meet, but it was sad to part. Men whose hair had been whitened by the frosts of over eighty years, whose frames were tottering, and voices feeble, shook hands and murmured, "God bless you," perhaps for the last time, whilst tears which even the heavens can not withhold at times, coursed down those cheeks furrowed with many years. "We know we are of God, because we love the brethren."

Among those whom we were glad to meet, converse with, and visit, was Bro. Isaac Beebe. It would cause our hearts to rejoice to see this dear brother once again sowing and reaping for the Master. He is highly spoken of both by those in and those out of the Church.

I have been encouraged, strengthened, blessed with the Spirit, though I suffer a great deal from ill health. I have frequently asked the Lord to so bless me that my sickness should not materially interfere with my ministerial labors, and in a remarkable degree he has done so. I have risen from a bed of affliction and preached with the power of the Spirit, for which I thank Him. Brethren, pray for me. I can be resigned to affliction, but desire that the work shall not suffer thereby.

Your brother in Christ,
FRANK P. SCARCLIFF.

GUILFORD, Missouri,
August 31st, 1880.

Bro. J. Smith:—Friday, the 13th, we were made glad by seeing Bro. Thomas Nutt. My wife was near to death; the skill of the doctors had failed. Bro. Nutt came directed by the Spirit, he administered to her, and the pain left her, and she is well again. For this we give glory to God. Bro. Nutt spoke here several times with good effect.

Your brother and sister in Christ,
ROBERT NELSON.
MARIE NELSON.

PLANO, Illinois,
Oct. 13th, 1880

Dear Herald:—Sister Amanda Wheeler has asked an interest in our prayers on her behalf; she shall have my prayers ascend to the throne of grace, that she may be restored to health and strength, and may she be a true and honest worker in the latter day work. I testify of its truth for myself, for I can now say, as Job said, under all his afflictions, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." It has indeed made me a new woman in Christ Jesus, my Lord; and the silent prayer of my heart is that all strife and ill feeling and discord be banished from the Church, wherever it may be, and every Saint try and follow after the meek and lowly Jesus, for poor as we are, we have more than he had, for we read that he had not where to lay his head. O, then, dear Saints, let us try to follow in his footsteps, for time is short. We read in the papers about the judgments of God; it behooves us to be faithful, and make our calling and election sure. My prayer to my heavenly Father is that the work may prosper all over the world, and the time come when all denominations will see that we are right, and be ready to take us by the hand and go with us.

Your ever loving sister in the Christ,
ANN HEWITT.

EDENVILLE, Iowa,
Sept. 24th, 1880.

Home from Conference, and safe! Found all well and business O. K. I will take the field immediately and try my hand for another six months. Feel our Conference was a success. Think the work getting on better footing, and hope we will not feel to go to the extreme—the other way—while the yexed question seems to be settled about "liberty of thought and free speech." "Our opinion," never will convert the world, while the gospel will. I will content myself in preaching what I can plainly prove from the books and risk my chances in being called a "big preacher."

I. N. WHITE.

Conference Minutes.

NORTH-WESTERN KANSAS DISTRICT.

A conference was held in the Goshen Branch, Clay county, Kansas, August 27th and 28th, 1880; G. W. Shute, presiding; H. R. Harder, clerk.

Branch Reports:—Gaylord, last report 36, present 35; 1 died. Blue Rapids, last report 54, present 53; 1 removed by letter, 2 marriages. Elmira, last report 21, present 24; 5 received, 2 removed by letter. South Logan, last report 15, present 19; 3 baptized, 1 received. Pleasant Ridge, returned to the branch for correction. Goshen, last report 18, present 22; 2 baptized, 2 received. Prairie Home 11, (organized June 20th, 1880, by J. D. Bennett). Solomon Valley, not reported.

Elders John Landers, I. N. Roberts, (baptized 3), A. Kent, J. D. Bennett, (baptized 4), Hiram Noble, G. W. Beebe, Mahlon Smith, Jas. Perkins, (baptized 2), T. H. Himes and G. W. Shute reported, also Priests J. Goble, — Eye and Teacher S. C. Andes.

Whereas, there is a resolution on the district record requiring all Elders and Priests not connected with some branch, to report to the presiding elder of this district, giving satisfactory proof of their ministerial authority to administer in word and doctrine, therefore, Resolved that all those failing so to do be requested to cease to labor in the name of said church until such report has been made and accepted by the district president.

Resolved that we earnestly urge the following named persons, and as many others as may have found a residence within the limits of this district as may see this notice, to report promptly and without fail, by letter or otherwise, to the secretary of the district, (H. R. Harder, Clay Centre, Clay county, Kansas), that we may be able to know and report the actual numerical strength of the district: Oscar Ferguson, Marshall county; Charles Walker, Decatur county; J. W. Steel, Lane county; Leon Lenor and Oscar Beebe, Cloud county; Oscar Hudson, Jewel county, and Bro. Rohrer, Sumner county.

Resolved that the action of last conference in setting aside the recommendation of the Blue Rapids Branch to ordain Bro. J. S. Goble an Elder, was illegal.

Resolved that we rescind the resolution relating to the necessitating branches to recommend all ordinations to the district conference.

On motion, the matter of Bro. Goble's ordination was referred back to Blue Rapids Branch.

Resolved that the ministry labor under the direction of the district president, and as circumstances permit.

The president was authorized to organize a branch at Nobletown, out of the scattered members of the disorganized Nobletown Branch.

Resolved that hereafter the work of the ministry be made to appear in the minutes as reported by them.

Bishop's Agent's Report:—"Balance on hand last report $0.77, received $8.00; paid ministry $4 00, on hand $4.77."

Resolved that a branch of this district can not be declared disorganized, if there be six members in such organization who oppose its disorganization.

The committee to examine the legality of the decision of Elders' Court in the case Sr. Anna Crum, as entered by her in appeal reported, sustaining the action of said court.

Some two-day meetings were appointed. Adjourned to meet at Blue Rapids, November 11th, 2. p.m.

CENTRAL MISSOURI DISTRICT.

A conference met with the Waconda Branch, September 4th, 1880.

Branch Reports:—Waconda, at last report 40; present 38; 2 removed by letter. No reports from Alma, Valley and Hazel Dell branches.

The president appointed T. J. Franklin, A. J. Seely and David Powell as an adjudicating committee.

Committee on subscription for house of worship reported that they had succeeded in raising about $200.00, and the amount paid up to date is $97.15.

The adjudicating committee submitted the following resolution, which was adopted: "Resolved that we request the Carrollton Branch to rescind the motion cutting off Elder A. Young."

The Bishop's Agent reported: "On hand at last report $5.70, received $1.00; paid out $2.25; balance on hand $4.45"

Motion was made and sustained that a committee of Elders be appointed to assist Bro. Wright in his duties. E. Curtis, E. W. Cato and C. W. Prettyman were appointed to assist Bro. Wright to labor with Bro. James Johnson of Grand River Branch.

Elders Craven, Westwood, Johnson, Sherwood, Ware, E. Curtis, D. Powell, E. W. Cato, Frampton, Belcher, C. W. Prettyman and Franklin reported; also Priests Carter and Dravenstott, and Teachers Wright, Hawkins and Gerber.

At 8 p.m., Saints' meeting; good time enjoyed.

Sunday.—At 9 a.m., Bro. R. L. Ware was appointed as vice-president of the district, and the president and vice-president were appointed to select two Elders to hold a two-day meeting in each branch, the two to have entire control of the meeting.

Adjourned to meet at the Alma Branch, Dec. 4th, 1880.

FREMONT DISTRICT.

A conference was held at Ross School-House, Fremont county, Iowa, May 22d and 23d, 1880; D. Hougass, president; Wm. Leeka, secretary.

Branch Reports:—Plum Creek 93; 2 baptized. Farm Creek 32; 1 baptized. Mill Creek 29. Shenandoah 107; 4 baptized. 2 removed. Glenwood 14; 7 removed. Elm Creek 16.

Elders E. C. Brand, A. T. Mortimore, G. Kemp, J. V. Roberts, E. Benedict, J. Leeka, J. Goode, Henry Hershey, S. Dike, Wm. Leadingham, J. W. Calkins, D. Hougass, Wm. Gaylord, M. W. Gaylord, R. Castor, R. M. Elvin, J. R. Badham, Wm. Leeka, reported; also Priests J. M. Stubbard, J. T. Woolsey, B. W. Dempster, and Teachers Daniel Comstock, L. C. Donaldson and Simon Dike, Jr.

Bishop's Agent's Report: "Received $10 00; paid out $58.80.—Wm. Leeka, Agent."

Preaching Saturday evening by R. M. Elvin.

Sunday, May 23d, prayer meeting at 9 a. m.: preaching at 11 a. m., by D. Hougas; at 3 p. m., by R. M. Elvin; at 8 p. m., by M. B. Oliver.

Henry Benner, a brother of Elias Benner who was killed at Haun's Mill during the Missouri trouble, was baptized Sunday afternoon.

J. M. Stubbard was ordained an Elder by Elder E. C. Brand, in accordance with vote of conference, as per recommend of his branch.

Adjourned to Shenandoah, Iowa, November 13th, 1880, at 10 a. m.

POTTAWATTAMIE DISTRICT.

A conference was held at Wheeler's Grove, August 28th and 29th, 1880; H. N. Hansen, pres.; Frederick Hansen, clerk.

Reports of Branches:—Crescent City, 46; 9 baptized. North Star, 56; 2 baptized, 1 died. Wheeler's Grove, 85; 2 died. The spiritual condition of these branches was reported by Levi Graybill, H. N. Hansen and Hans Hansen.

Elders Hans Hansen, R. M. Elvin, H. N. Hansen and Daniel Hougas reported.

Hans Hansen was requested to labor as much as practicable among the Danish.

A financial report of the North Star Branch was received.

Preaching during conference by H. N. Hansen, Daniel Hougas and E. C. Briggs. Just before conference Hans N. Hansen preached a funeral sermon over Bro. Henry Winegar's child.

Adjourned to meet at Council Bluffs, November 27th, 1880.

SOUTHERN INDIANA DISTRICT.

A conference was held at the Olive Branch, August 14th, 1880; Harbert Scott, president; E. C. Mayhew, clerk.

Branch Reports:—Pleasant Ridge 45; 1 died. New Trenton 16. Eden 27.

Elders Wm. H. Chappellow and Columbus Scott reported by letter, and Harbert Scott, M. R. Scott and J. S. Christy orally; Priests Robert Eyers and G. F. Weston by letter, and V. D. Baggerly, orally.

The court appointed to adjust difficulty in the Low Gap branch was continued.

Bishop's Agent reported: "Balance $4 40; received $11.00; paid B. V. Springer $11.00; G. F. Weston $2.90; balance on hand $1.50."

M. R. Scott, D. O. Stites and V. D. Baggerly were appointed a committee of investigation.

The conference requested the president of the mission to send some Elders to this district as soon as convenient.

Members in the district not identified with a branch are requested to place their names on the record of the branch most convenient to them.

15th.—Committee on investigation reported sufficient grounds for calling a Court of Elders, and Harbert Scott and M. R. Scott were appointed as said court; E. C. Mahew, clerk; V. D. Baggerly, prosecutor; D. O. Stites, baliff. Charges were preferred against Bro. J. S. Christy and Sr. Jennie Victory for unchristian conduct.

Verdict by the court: "After examination of the case of the Olive Saints vs. Bro. J. S. Christy, we find the charges fully sustained, and we recommend that the conference demand of him a public confession to the Saints, and that he also deliver up to the district authorities his license until such time shall come that he can magnify his office and calling." Recommendation was accepted and complied with by the defendant. In the case of Sr. Jennie Victory, charges not fully sustained; recommended that she be required to make confession for unbecoming language. Recommendation accepted and complied with.

Bro. Christy said that he was satisfied that there were other cases that needed attention, therefore he moved that the committee be continued, which motion prevailed.

17th.—Committee preferred charges against Bro. E. C. Mayhew, Bro. Wm. Victory and Bro. John Miles for unchristian conduct. Verdict:—"After examination in the case of the Olive Saints against Bro. E. C. Mayhew we find that the said defendant has plead guilty in having talked too much about the troubles in the branch; therefore we recommend that the conference require of E. C. Mahew a public confession." Anna M. May-hew, same verdict as above. Wm. Victory plead guilty, in having abused his wife on account of troubles in the branch. John Miles plead guilty in getting angry at Bro. Christy and using unbecoming language. All confessed as required by the conference. The balance of the Saints were requested to confess if they felt it their duty.

A resolution passed to prevent renewal of old troubles.

Adjourned to meet at Eden Branch, November 13th, 1880.

LITTLE SIOUX DISTRICT.

A conference convened at Magnolia, Iowa, Aug. 23th, 1880; J. C. Crabb, in the chair; Wm. C. Cadwell, secretary, and J. F. Mintun, assistant.

Practical thoughts and suggestions were made by David Chambers, T. Galley (of Nebraska), Donald Maule and Magnus Fyrando.

Branch Reports:—Maple Landing was organized May 27th, 1880, with a membership of 6, including 1 Priest and 1 Teacher; disorganized August 23d, 1880. No changes reported during its existence. Little Sioux, last report 133, present 145; 12 baptized. Magnolia, at last report 146, present 150; 4 received by letter; 1 marriage. Spring Creek, at last report 47, present 47; 2 received and 1 removed by letter, 1 expelled. Pleasant View, at last report 20, present 19. (This report originally showed a membership of 20, and was so approved, but, as will be seen in the report of committee on case of M. Daugherty, the number was changed). Evening Star, at last report 30, present 31; 1 received, 2 ordained. (A report was received after the close of conference from Unionburg, showing a membership of 16.—W. C. C.)

That portion of the Pleasant View report having reference to the case of Bro. M. Daugherty, was referred to J. M. Putney, Wm. Chambers and J. M. Harvey.

James M. Mills reported the spiritual condition of Maple Landing Branch as good when disorganized; John H. Condit, that of Little Sioux Branch, as having greatly improved; Phineas Cadwell, Magnolia Branch, as improving; Wm. Chambers, Spring Creek Branch, in good condition; the Pleasant View Branch, by J. F. Mintun, as rather lukewarm; Isaac Ellison reported members of Six Mile Grove so scattered as to take but little interest in meetings, but knew of no difficulties existing; Geo. Montague reported Union Center as low spiritually, but no hard feeling; Evening Star, by E. McEvers, as not in very good condition, but improving.

The Sabbath-schools in the Little Sioux, Evening Star and Magnolia Branches reported to the conference.

Elders J. F. Mintun, Hugh Lytle, J. W. Wight, Henry Garner, Geo. Montague, David Chambers, Geo. S. Hyde, A. W. Lockling, Magnus Fyrando, Isaac Ellison, Lucius Merchant, J. M. Harvey, Donald Maule, Stephen Mahoney, J. B. Lytle, J. H. Condit, Wm. Chambers, Colby Downs, J. M. Putney, T. Galley, Phineas Cadwell, Wm. Cadwell, J. C. Crabb, E. R. Lanpher, Levi Gamet, and Priests Benj. Kaster, M. Daugherty, J. C. Johnson, W. H. Bradford, E. McEvers, and Teachers Wm. Fallon, R. Chatburn, Jas. M. Mills, O. W. Lockling, and Deacons John Chambers and W. H. Trosper reported.

Committee in case of Bro. Wm. Shaw reported, in substance, that they had investigated the case and taken some testimony in the same, and had concluded that the brother had deserted his family without cause, had failed to correspond with them, and had been guilty of conduct unbecoming a Saint in his relations with a certain young lady before leaving home, and recommended that he be cited to trial through the Herald. J. M. Harvey, J. C. Johnson and J. F. Mintun, committee.

Report was received, adopted, and committee discharged.

Committee in case of Pleasant View Branch reported that they had visited the branch, had found it in somewhat of a disorganized condition, owing to not being properly officered, and had left them feeling better, after having assisted them in the work of filling vacancies and giving them some good advice. J. C. Crabb and P. Cadwell, committee.

Report was adopted, and committee discharged.

The following resolution was then moved by J. M. Harvey and J. F. Mintun:

Whereas, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints assembled at Galland's Grove, Shelby county, Iowa, in the month of September, 1878, did decide, "That the Holy Scriptures, as translated, corrected and revised by Joseph Smith the Martyr, the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, be accepted as standards of authority on all points of doctrine in said Church;" and

Whereas, there was action taken at the Semi-Annual Conference, held at Galland's Grove, Shelby county, Iowa, in September, 1879, which we believe is not in harmony with the teachings of the books above referred to, therefore be it

Resolved, by the Little Sioux District of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, that we respectfully ask the Semi-Annual Conference, to be held at Park's Mills, Pottawattamie county, Iowa, to clearly define if an Elder can be a true representative of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and reject any of the revelations found in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants. If so, which and how many; and if so, if an Elder can not reject all of the revelations found in said book, and still be a fit representative of the Church.

After considerable discussion, the resolution was adopted, by a vote of 21 for, 13 against.

Committee in the case of M. Daugherty reported that they believed both meetings of Pleasant View Branch were legal, and that there were but nineteen members and three Priests, instead of twenty members and four Priests, as one person who was reported to be a member was not one. J. M. Putney, Wm. Chambers and J. M. Harvey, committee. Adopted and committee discharged.

Bro. Franklin Price was granted an extension of his mission, as per resolution of a former conference, by his request.

Motion as amended was adopted, constituting the presidency of district with the addition of three members, to be appointed by the chair, a committee on missions. Chair appointed as such additional members J. M. Harvey, David Chambers and Geo. Montague.

J. M. Harvey and J. F. Mintun offered the following resolution:

Whereas, it is inconsistent and contrary to the fulness of the gospel, as revealed in this the dispensation of the fulness of times, to use the Lesson Papers prepared by the, so-called, evangelical churches in Latter Day Saints Sunday-schools, and calculated to create wrong impressions on the minds of children, therefore be it

Resolved that we recommend that they be not used in Latter Day Saint's Sunday-schools in this district.

A vote being taken, resulted in a tie. Some objection being made to this vote another one was ordered. This vote was slightly delayed by a team breaking loose and running away, but when finally taken, resulted in 9 for and 16 against, and the resolution was declared lost.

A motion to reconsider resolution with reference to fit representatives of Church was also lost.

Sunday morning, preaching by Geo. S. Hyde. At afternoon meeting the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered, after which J. W. Wight preached.

Committee on missions reported some thirty-seven of the priesthood as having been appointed to work in some fifteen missions. Report was received, adopted, and committee discharged.

Charles Derry and Geo. S. Hyde were requested to labor in this district as much as consistent with their general missions.

Ordination of Bro. M. Daugherty, as laid over from last conference, came up, and it was decided not to ordain, by a vote of 8 for, 11 against.

Motion to ordain Bro. Kester to the office of Elder, was lost by a vote of nine to seven.

Whereas, there evidently exists a necessity for continued labor in this district, and as there are no elders who can give all their time to the work, and that the burdens of the work may be more equally divided and prosecuted with greater diligence, and we not be found wanting in the day of accounts, therefore be it

Resolved that the president of each branch in this district lay the matter before their respective branches, and see whether they are not willing to support by their means one or more Elders in the ministry.

Disorganization of Maple Landing Branch was accepted.

Resolved that we transact no business in any future conference in this district, except it be that that will harbor no discussion.

In the evening Charles Derry preached. Adjourned to meet at Magnolia, December 4th, 1880.

I. L. ROGERS, Presiding Bishop.

BISHOP'S AGENT APPOINTED.

In accordance with the vote of the Western Wisconsin District Conference, which has nominated Bro. C. W. Lange for appointment as Bishop's Agent in said district, of which I have been notified by Bro. W. A. McDowell, district clerk, I hereby so appoint, hoping that Bro. Lange may efficiently serve the cause, and that the Saints will place means in his hands for the benefit of the work there and elsewhere.

I. L. ROGERS, Presiding Bishop.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Information wanted of William Underwood, who was last heard from in November, 1874; he was then residing at Kaysville, Davis county, Utah. Any one knowing his whereabouts, would confer a favor by addressing R. C. Taylor, Douglas, Douglas county, Nebraska.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Southern California District Conference will convene at Gospel Swamp, Los Angeles Co., California, November 13th, 1880. It is hoped there will be a good attendance.

By order of President,
J. F. BURTON.

The Saints of the Nevada District will please take notice that the next quarterly conference will be held in Genoa, November 27th and 28th, 1880. All are invited to attend, and the presidents of the branches are particularly requested to bring or send correct statistical reports.

A. B. JOHNS, President.

The Eastern Maine and Nova Scotia District will hold their conference in the Saints' Chapel, at Kennebec, December 18th and 19th, 1880.

S. O. FOSS, President of District.

SOUTH-WESTERN MISSION.

To the Saints of Texas, Western Louisiana, Arkansas, and Indian Territory, Greeting:—As I was appointed by the last Semi-Annual Conference in charge of the South-Western Mission, and desire to know the condition of the work throughout the mission, I take this means of requesting all presidents of branches, elders, ministry, and scattered members, to write me immediately, and inform me of their whereabouts, and the need of labor in their respective localities. I would also like to know how many of the Elders and Priests are prepared to do missionary labor.

I come to assist you in the great warfare against sin and iniquity, and I trust I shall have your hearty co-operation, together with your faith and prayers. And while we make the promulgation of the gospel of Christ our paramount object, that we may have the guidance of the Divine mind, let us devoutly pray. And, dear Saints, allow me to exhort you to labor diligently in your respective places, by telling the good news, or helping the cause financially, as God shall prosper you; and I am assured that we will succeed in doing a good work for the Master, which will be accepted when he comes. Let all petty differences be buried with the past, and unitedly let us press on to victory and peace. And that God in his infinite mercy may abundantly bless you with the good things of this life, and the Holy Spirit to prepare you for a better life beyond, I shall ever pray.

Address me at Rockport, Atchison county, Missouri, in care of L. L. Wight; I will be there about October 25th, and remain a few days only.

Ever your brother and co-laborer for Christ,
HERMAN C. SMITH.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS DISTRICT.

Whereas our recent conference appointed two day's meetings to be held in such branches of the Northern Illinois District as should desire them, the president or secretary of each branch desiring such meetings is requested to inform me at once, that I may so arrange the appointments as will be convenient, and publish the announcements in the next Herald. These meetings may hold over two days, and as long as the interest shall seem to justify, if willing laborers can be found.

The first of the series will commence at Sandwich, Saturday evening, November 6th, continuing thence while the interest shall seem to justify. Come, brethren, let us rally together, and lift the gospel banner high.

M. H. FORSCUTT, Pres. of District.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA DISTRICT.

To the several Branches composing the Southern Nebraska District:—I once more appeal to you, and urge the necessity of you discharging the duty made obligatory by Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 17, par. 25, as the above imposes upon me a duty that I can not perform until you have done your whole duty. I trust that you will not longer hinder and cause me to appear as an unfaithful, slothful servant. And while I am thus kept back, Bro. H. A. Stebbins, the Church Recorder, is likewise retarded in his duties; therefore, let me beg of you to awake to the importance of leaving no labor unperformed. The poet has said, "While I wait, another waits for me."

And to the Elders: let me call your especial attention to par. 13, which requires your presence at the session of conference of this district. You have been very negligent in this respect. And as my hand records the transactions of the districts, and you are to be judged by the things written, let me plead with you to put on the whole armor of your calling, that your salvation and exaltation may be sure, and that no blur may appear on the fair escutcheon of the church entrusted to your care.

Let the Priests, Teachers, and Deacons, also, recognize the good of the cause, by faithfully and regularly reporting themselves to the quarterly gatherings of the district, that all the business may be done in order and "common consent," that unity, love, peace, and the Holy Spirit may abide.

Any business to come before our next conference in writing will be promptly attended to if addressed to me at Wilber, Saline county, Nebraska.

ka. I hope not to be disappointed in receiving full and complete reports from all the branches and Elders. Yours in Christ,

ROBERT M. ELVIN,
District Secretary.

KEWANEE DISTRICT.

To the Saints in the Kewanee District, Greeting: Dear Brethren and Sisters:—The Saints of Kewanee desire a change of time for the holding of our session of conference. Having counseled with other brethren, and finding no objection, I therefore appoint the meeting of the conference at Kewanee to be held on Saturday, the 11th, of December, at 10 o'clock, a.m. that being in the light of the moon. Come, bringing the spirit of peace, and with zeal for the onward march of the cause in the district and the salvation of our fellows. May peace abide with you in all your habitations.

PITTSBURGH DISTRICT.

I desire to call the attention of all Officers in Pittsburgh District to the "Appeal to the Pittsburgh District," published in the Herald of September 1st. I have no means of learning the addresses of Officers and Saints in the district but through the medium of the Herald. I need agents to assist me to make the Elders' Fund what it ought to be—a support to Elders in the district. If we are willing and diligent in doing our individual part in the matter, the work in this district will receive an impetus that will build it up, and push it through to a grand and ultimate success. I earnestly request every officer to take hold and act as an agent to collect money for the Elders' Fund, and remit it to me by money order. Every cent collected will be used for the district alone—not to financially assist any branch. Scattered members are also requested to do what they can themselves, and to solicit from others. I have received encouraging replies and offers from outsiders, who have only heard one sermon six years ago, and have waited the coming of an Elder, to be adopted into the Church. They offer us financial aid. Who can remain indifferent to such calls? Who will do all they can to help the financial movement? Let all who can, act as agents, and send me their addresses by mail, at once, and I will mail them printed circulars.

F. CRILEY,

Treasurer Elders' Fund, Pittsburgh District,
Care 33 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

SEMI-ANNUAL CONFERENCE EXPENSES.

I have settled the expenses of the conference, and report as requested. It cost me about $20 more than I expected. I paid Mr. Parks $3 damage to trees; hired the lumber hauled back to town, and cleaned off the ground where the horses stood, so as not to kill the grass. I received from the citizens and brethren in money, and for some lumber I sold $55.65, from the conference collection $51.50, total $107.15. Paid Sheriff Reals and deputy $26, for organ $3.90, for hire of Grange Hall $2, oil for lamps 55c., for fitting up and clearing ground, all expense $79.45, total $111 85
Total amount paid out. . . . . $111 85
Amount received . . . . . $107 15

Conference indebted to me. . . . . $4 70

To meet this I have about four hundred feet of lumber that was cut for the stand and out-houses. The bridge I will haul home and pile up, and keep till after next April conference; and if the Fall Conference is to be held here, and we occupy the same ground, we shall need it, if not we can sell it then. The bridge lumber cost $20. If I should sell it, I could not get more than ten or twelve for it, and have to pay $20 next Fall for lumber for another bridge. I did the best I could to serve the Church, and have charged nothing for my services. All I get is what little hay and wood was left on the ground.

ANDREW HALL, Committee.

ADDRESSES.

John H. Hansen, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice.

BORN.

COOK.—To Bro. Harris and Sr. Alice Cook, in Dover township, Pocahontas county, Iowa, April 7th, 1880, a daughter; name Luda Lizzie; blessed by Eli Clothier and Benan Salisbury, June 28th.

ATKINSON.—At Virginia City, Nevada, September 14th, 1880, to Bro. Levi and Sr. Susannah Atkinson, a son.

HARRISON.—At Philadelphia, Pa., May 18th, 1880, to Bro. William H. and Sr. Harriet Harrison, a son; blessed June 13th, by Elder John Stone, and named Alma John.

KEMP.—At Hutchinson, Jefferson county, Colorado, August 1st, 1880, to Bro. James and Sr. Fanny M. Kemp, a son.

ATWELL.—At Fall River, Greenwood county, Kansas, to Bro. and Sr. Atwell, August 31st, 1880, a daughter,—named Stell Augusta.

MARRIED.

HOUSEHOLDER—WARNICK.—On September 22d, 1880, by Elder Ephraim Thomas, at Temperance Hall, 67 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., Bro. John H. Householder and Sr. Maggie Warnick, both of Allegheny City. A large audience was in attendance, consisting of brethren and friends. Many wishes their peace and love to increase and abide.

A life of peace and full of joy,
The future will bestow
Upon your heads if you but keep
And honor the sacred vow.
May God his blessings on you add,
Who gave your hands in token
Of the "covenant" mote it be,
With bonds of love unbroken,
E. T.

CRICK—PARKER.—At Armstrong, Kansas, by Bro. William Clow, August 29th, 1880, Bro. William Crick, of Plano, Illinois, and Sr. Maggie J. Parker, of Independence, Missouri.

ERVIN—DODSON.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near Pleasanton, Decatur county, Iowa, by Elder James Anderson, July 1st, 1880, Mr. Thomas Ervin and Sr. Sarah C. Dodson, all of Decatur county.

DIED.

BRADLEY.—Near Sandwich, Illinois, September 10th, 1880, of consumption, Sister Lillian L. Bradley, aged 22 years, 10 months and 13 days. She was the grand daughter of Elder Zenas H. Gurdley, Sen., and the daughter of Horace and Julia Bradley. She endured her long illness in patience, and her hope in Christ and in his gospel grew brighter and stronger till she passed away. Funeral services were held at the house by Elder F. G. Pitt, on September 12th; and, in accordance with her wish, expressed some time before she died, her funeral sermon was preached by Elder H. A. Stebbins in the Saints' Chapel, at Sandwich, from the texts selected by her, namely, John 3: 5, 36. She also chose hymns 473, 835 and 866, which were sung, upon the funeral occasion, which was on October 10th, Bro. Stebbins having been absent at the General Conference at the time of her death. Thus went to rest one of the lovely in character, and pure in mind and heart, of the daughters of Zion.

JONES.—At Mottsville, Nevada, June 11th, 1880, Sr. Mary, wife of Bro. David I. Jones, born April 1st, 1821, in Lanham, Glamorganshire, Wales. She united with the Church in 1846, was married to Bro. Jones the same year. They emigrated to Utah, but were forced away by the taking of their home from them by one in authority there without payment therefor; to this they objected, and they were disfellowshipped for so objecting. They removed to Carson Valley, Nevada, and by industry and frugality, made themselves a good home. She united with the Reorganization in 1868. She was buried on the 13th; Elder George Smith preaching the sermon. She was respected by all.

JONES.—In Montana, August 20th, 1880, John P. Jones, nephew of Bro. D. J. Phillips, of Oakland, Cal. He was born at Stockton, Cal., May 15th, 1854, and was at his death aged 26 years, 2 months and 27 days. He believed the word, but had not obeyed, putting off his obedience till too late.

EATON.—At Independence, Missouri, September 26th, 1880, of malarial fever, William Eaton, husband of Sr. Mary, widow of John E. Page, aged 62 years. Sr. Eaton says of him: "He was a good man; was baptized into the old organization in 1845, by Elder Nickerson." We add: He had been for some years at Independence, holding with Mr. Granville Hedrick.

PEARSON.—At Corinth, Ontario, September 20th, 1880, sister Annie V. Pearson, aged 14 years, 7 months and 20 days. She was baptized August 31st, 1879. Her funeral sermon was preached in the M. E. Church—Elder G. T. Griffiths officiating. A large congregation was present, and listened respectfully and attentively.

KNOWLES.—At Cheltenham, St. Louis, Mo., September 8th, 1880, of apoplexy, Brother Joseph Knowles, aged 65 years, 3 months and 4 days. He was born in England and obeyed the gospel in his early days, and was a faithful member in the Preston Branch. He emigrated to America in 1843, and remained at Nauvoo for some time, and afterwards moved to the vicinity of St. Louis; was baptized into the Reorganized Church, April 18th, 1865, by Bro. W. Gittings, and ordained an Elder by Bishop James Anderson. Bro. Knowles was intelligent, and strong in the faith that was once given to the saints. He leaves a wife and two children and many friends to mourn his loss. Funeral discourse by Elder W. Smith of St. Louis.

BISHOP.—At Llanelly, Wales, September 2d, 1880, of inflammation of the brain, the youngest son of Bro. John and Sr. Eliza J. Bishop, aged 18 months. The funeral discourse was delivered by Bro. Thomas E. Jenkins.

HUGHES.—Another veteran has closed his labors in this life and gone to his rest. Elder Benjamin Hughes, of Newton, Iowa, died at his home, July 1st, 1880, aged 69 years. He was affected with palsy a long time ago, and died of that disease. He joined the Church at Kewanee, Illinois, some years ago, and was baptized by Elder J. D. Jones. He lived faithful to the end. A large number of friends and Saints attended the funeral. Services by Elders John X. Davis and George Walker. May his rest be glorious.

WARD.—On September 30th, 1880, in the city of Santa Fe, New Mexico, of rheumatic fever, followed by flux, Charles Lee, son of Charles R. and Sr. Sarah A. Ward. He was born in Denver City, Colorado, March 3d, 1868. He was ill for over three months ere our merciful Father called him home. His patience was remarkable, for though he suffered intensely all through his illness, he was never heard to complain. His thoughts were for the comfort of others, even to the last. God grant we who are left may never forget the example set us by our darling brother, that we may be found worthy to join him when our work is finished.

OSTRANDER.—At the residence of his nephew, John W. Ostrander, near Ellington, Michigan, May 30th, 1879, Elder Walter Ostrander, aged 70 years. He was ordained as one of the Seventy, at Amboy, Illinois, on the 8th of April, 1861.

THE DYING STRANGER.

He passed away in a distant land,
Far from mother and home;
His eyes were closed by a stranger's hand,
As his spirit crossed to the unknown strand.
Beyond death's angry foam.

But ere he passed, he recalled to mind
That tender mother's words,
Oft uttered in accents so divine
As she strove his young heart to incline
To the service of the Lord.

He thought of the wasted hours and days—
The empty pleasures past;
And the many evil words and ways,
All standing before his startled gaze;
As about to breathe his last.

Ah! what would he give to live again
That wasted life now o'er?
He'd cherish its sorrows, endure its pain,
From every evil thing refrain,
And every good adore.

He thought of the straight and narrow way—
The gate that opens there;
That leadeth on to the realms of day—
All who the gospel truths obey—
To a city bright and fair?

"My mother treads that heavenly path,
She entered through the gate;
But her hand can not avert the wrath
I now deserve by my want of faith,
O! is it now too late!

"Will God forgive all my sinful life?
Is the 'Gate Ajar' for me?
May I rise above this world of strife,
And enter into eternal life,
From my sins forever free?

"I would be washed in the cleansing wave,
And with my Savior lie
In the deep, cold, and watery grave,
And rise from thence a sinner saved,
Before I'm called to die."

He ceased, for the sands of life were run,
The silver bowl was broke;
His sorrow and toil on earth were done;
I gazed with awe on the dying one;
But not a word was spoke.

I thought of God and his boundless love,
His mighty power to save;
Of his Son who left the realms above
That man might his rich mercy prove,
Here and beyond the grave.

For him I breathed an earnest prayer,
Commending him to God;
That he might His richest mercy share,
And the angels his glad spirit bear
To yonder blest abode.

Adam and Eve.

IN his day he must have been a strange, grand being; at least so, if we are to be influenced in the formation of opinion by the speculations and fanciful theorizings of sophists and mystics; for fancy and a distended imagination ofttimes lead from facts and truth into the gauzy and aerial, whatever may be the subject under consideration.

As to his real nature and being there seems to be a great difference in opinions; some contending that he was purely mythical; others that he was created immortal, and yet died; and others claim that he was neither mortal nor immortal, but that his condition was a sort of a middle one; a compromise between absurdity and nonsense; while a large number aver that he was but mortal, and hence died. Webster defines the adjective, mortal, thus: "1. Subject to death. 2. Destructive to life; or causing or occasioning death. 3. Admitting death; accessible to death. 4. Hence affecting as if with power to kill; extreme. 5. Human; belonging to man, who is mortal." A consistent person will generally accept the results which naturally follow any doctrine that he may adopt; and inconsistency, vice versa.

The notion of original immortality went to seed in Brighamism; right there do we see its pernicious effects; for if he were immortal, and also his wife, marriage being a union for life, then it follows that it was an immortal and eternal union. Has marriage been changed? Did God ordain one kind of marriage for our first parents and another kind for all others? I think not. Is it reasonable to suppose that God would change a fundamental and divine institution? If a man marries a wife and she dies, and then he marries another, is he to be a polygamist in the resurrection? If our first parents were immortal at the institution of the marriage condition, then I think that marriage must endure for all time; and if a man's first wife dies and he marries again, seeing that the marriage condition with the second wife is the same as that of the former was, then in justice they must have an equal claim for the same husband in the resurrection; and that would be what the books so denounce—polygamy.

Again, a man marries a woman, and he dies, and she marries again, the condition of marriage being the same, the pledge the same, the union the same, what must the result be, if the old notion of immortality be true? A plurality of husbands—polyandry. Then as consequent upon this old vagary and exploded notion of Adam's immortality, we have polygamy and polyandry for the future state! If I did not believe in polygamy now, I would not think it would be right by-and-by.

From this unsound notion arose the incubus of "sealing," which has ultimated in the "crime of fornication and polygamy," so opposite to every revealed word of truth in the record of God's word. But if marriage were simply a union to the end of mortal life, then its end is subserved at death, and the future can provide for itself. In this view of the matter, the problem of polygamy is easily solved, so far as the future is concerned; and "Whose wife shall she be in the resurrection?" was fitly and truthfully answered by Christ when he said: "They that inherit that world through the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage." If then Jesus was right, then some folks have been greatly mistaken, in making calculations of their progeny to be in the resurrected or immortal state. We deduce this general truth from Christ's words, that immortals were not, and never will be given in marriage. If then we admit that Jesus was right, though others may have erred, then down tumbles the vagary of "eternal marriage," built upon the flimsy hypothesis of Adam's and Eve's immortality. The premises have been false, and hence the conclusions based thereon have been fallacious, even pernicious.

It has been boldly taught (and once or more, publicly, by the writer) that Adam prior to the fall was the type of a saved man, that salvation will be a restoration to his primitive estate.

If he were at the highest round of the ladder, or at what is termed the ultimate or saved state, he had no incentive to go forward, to act, to do; for he would not be able to achieve or gain any thing by so doing; such a thought must, being unreasonable, be unsound; for reward with human beings is the incentive to action, now, as also in the past.

That the "tree of life" was within their reach prior to the fall will not be denied; but that they ever partook of its fruit, could only be affirmed with presumption and unwarranted assumption; for had they eaten, they would have been made immortal—once, forever. The mortal, then would have "put on immortality," and eating again, could not have added one iota of time to an already immortal life. Is immortality susceptible of elongation? If so, surely an immortal (?) may die! That they had never eaten of the fruit of the tree of life, is evidenced from the fact, that after the fall, the Lord placed angels with flaming swords to prevent them so doing, lest they should eat and live forever. If not mortal, of what possible benefit could the fruit of the tree of life have been? Why then did they not partake? Simply because they were ignorant of its saving efficacy, until they had eaten of the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil; the light flashed upon their minds, and the angel-guards stood thereat to prevent.

They were made of the earth and were earthy; and hence the declaration: "Dust thou art and to dust thou shalt return." This was the first intimation that we have on record of their physical dissolution. Prior to the fall they lived as in the presence of God, nigh unto him as if by a union; but the fall brought a separation, a spiritual death, for death is but a separation, and a veil was drawn betwixt the creature and the Creator; and hence the warning threat: "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."

That day the veil was drawn, they knew evil; that day they were alienated from God—were separated from God—they died spiritually. Their physical life continued several hundred years, and they finally returned to dust at a ripe old age; and thus we conclude that the threat had no reference to physical dissolution; for if it had it certainly proved false.

If then God's word be true, the death must have come as predicted, on the very day. That form of speech, "death" spiritually, is found in many texts in the scripture; and as one to the point and covering the ground under inspection would be as good as more, one will suffice: "Wherefore it came to pass, that the devil tempted Adam and he partook of the forbidden fruit, and transgressed the commandment, wherein he became subject to the will of the devil because he yielded unto temptation; wherefore I the Lord caused that he should be cast out of the garden of Eden from my presence, because of his transgression, wherein he became spiritually dead, which is the first death."—Doc. and Cov., sec. 28:11. We think that this is so plain, that it should settle this matter with any and all that believe that Joseph Smith was a prophet; for a positive "Thus saith the Lord" should be the end of controversy.

The difficulty has been that people have believed that the death threatened was a physical one; and in this they have greatly erred, not knowing the scriptures; but to Latter Day Saints it is plain and clear, without justification for doubt or disputation, that it was only a spiritual death; for so God has said by the mouth of the "choice seer."

The nature of the death threatened being spiritual, and the self-evident truth that it was in no sense corporeal, the fact that he died, demonstrates beyond a reasonable doubt that he was created mortal. The utter absurdity of an immortal dying, is seen in the contradiction of terms. As well might we talk of black light, or a "topless throne," or a straight curve, as to talk of a man dying that was not mortal; or to believe for a moment in an immortality that did not endure, as duration itself.

A lively fancy has evolved the thought, in a truly Darwinian mode that Adam was neither mortal nor immortal! Liable to death, and yet not mortal! "Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel." There is an air of mystery attaching to such an idea, a condition only discovered of late, and even the wise men are slow to speak lest their great discovery (the fool's gold of Jamestown two centuries ago) should prove an ignus fatuus, a very boomerang to their own sorrow. This idea has also for its base the thought that the death threatened in connection with the forbidden fruit, was a physical one; but they attempt at better logic than to say that an immortal person died; but their error is substantially the same; the premises are false, and as a matter of logical sequence, the conclusions drawn therefrom can not be otherwise than faulty.

It is urged in support of the "what is it" condition, that if eating of the fruit of the tree of life would prevent a man from dying, that he could not have been mortal. This must be a tremendous eye-opener! Would it be possible for a person not "liable to death" or mortal to have any benefit from the use of an antidote to death? It would be as reasonable to think of shipping a lot of cod liver oil to the angels of heaven, to prevent the ravages of consumption, as to suppose for a moment that a person could be saved from a disease to which he was not liable.

I have yet to hear of that man that has perpetrated the downright folly of claiming that a mortal was one that even God's power would be insufficient to make immortal; for only by the Almighty power will the living be translated and the dead raised unto life everlasting. In letting the open books decide, we come to facts; and hence do not indulge in the building of air castles with material drawn from conjecture and imagination; for a positive "Thus saith the Lord," sets the matter beyond controversy. In the time of the end, in the "grand review," when thrones, empires and powers shall have tottered to ruin, when God shall be all in all, and the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters do the channels of the deep, we trust and fondly hope that we may be permitted to behold our grand old sire, the Ancient of Days, and our great mother Eve in the glory and station with which our God shall be pleased to endow them; and when joy and gladness shall fill all the earth, and sorrow and sighing flee away, and the earth be a "thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Christianity and Islamism.

THE following letter from an educated and traveled Turk to an English friend of his is taken from Blackwood's Magazine, and is worthy of being read by the thinkers, and of being preserved. He endeavors to show what he believes to be the effect of the contact of the Christians and their religion with Mohammedans and their faith and customs. And he also presents his views, as will be seen, concerning the great departure of the Christians from the religion established by Christ, their professed leader and law-giver. He writes:

"I have already said that in early life I became thoroughly dissatisfied with the religion in which I was born and brought up; and determined to discard all early prejudices, I resolved to travel over the world, visiting the various centers of religious thought, with the view of making a comparative study of the value of its religions, and of arriving at some conclusion as the one I ought myself to adopt. As, however, they each claimed to be derived from an inspired source, I very soon became overwhelmed with the presumption of the task which I had undertaken; for I was not conscious of the possession of any verifying faculty which would warrant my deciding between the claims of different revelations, or of judging of the merits of rival forms of inspiration. Nor did it seem possible to me that any evidence in favor of a revelation which was in all instances offered by human beings like myself, could be of such a nature that another human being should dare to assert that it could have none other than a divine origin; the more especially as the author of it was in all instances in external appearance also a human being. At the same time I am far from being so daring as to maintain that no divine revelation, claiming to be such, is not pervaded with a divine afflatus. On the contrary, it would seem that to a greater or less extent they must all be so. Their relative values must depend, so far as our own earth is concerned, upon the amount of moral truth of a curative kind in regard to this world's moral disease which they contain, and upon their practical influence upon the lives and conduct of men. I was therefore led to institute a comparison between the objects which were proposed by various religions; and I found that just in the degree in which they had been diverted from their original design of world-regeneration, were the results unsatisfactory, so far as human righteousness was concerned; and that the concentration of the mind of the devotee upon a future state of life and the salvation of his soul after he left this world tended to produce an enlightened selfishness in his daily life, which has culminated in its extreme form under the influence of one religion, and finally resulted in what is commonly known as Western civilization. For it is only logical, if a man be taught to consider his highest religious duty to be the salvation of his own soul, while the salvation of his neighbor's occupies a secondary place, that he should instinctively feel his highest earthly duty is the welfare of his own human personality and those belonging to it in this world. It matters not whether this future salvation is to be attained by an act of faith, or by merit through good work—the effort is none the less a selfish one. The religion to which I am now referring will be at once recognized as the popular form of Christianity. After a careful study of the teaching of the great founder of this religion, I am amazed at the distorted character it has assumed under the influence of the three great sects into which it has become divided—to wit, the Greek, Catholic, and Protestant Christians. There is no teaching so thoroughly altruistic in its character, and which, if it could be literally applied, would, I believe, exercise so direct and beneficial an influence on the human race, as the teaching of Christ; but as there is no religious teacher whose moral standard in regard to the duties of men towards each other in this world was so lofty, so there is none, it seems to me, as an impartial student, the spirit of whose revelation has been more perverted and degraded by His followers of denominations. The Buddhist, the Hindoo and the Mohammedan, though they have all more or less lost the influence of the afflatus which pervades their sacred writings, have not actually constructed a theology based upon the inversion of the original principles of their religion. Their light, never so bright as that which illumined the teachings of Christ, has died away till but a faint flicker remains, but Christians have developed their social and political morality out of the very blackness of the shadow thrown by 'The Light of the World.' Hence it is that wherever modern Christendom—which I will, for the sake of distinguishing it from the Christendom proposed by Christ, style Anti-Christendom—comes into contact with the races who live under the dim religious light of their respective revelations, the feeble rays of the latter become extinguished by the gross darkness of this Anti-Christendom, and they lie crushed and mangled under the iron heel of its organized and sanctified selfishness. The real God of Anti-Christendom is Mammon; in Catholic Anti-Christendom, tempered by a lust of spiritual and temporal power; in Greek Anti-Christendom, tempered by a lust of race aggrandizement; but in Protestant Anti-Christendom, reigning supreme. The cultivation of the selfish instinct has unnaturally developed the purely intellectual faculties at the expense of the moral; has stimulated competition; and has produced a combination of mechanical inventions, political institutions, and an individual force of character, against which so-called 'heathen' nations, whose cupidities and covetous propensities lie comparatively dormant, are utterly unable to prevail.

"This overpowering love of 'the root of all evil,' with the mechanical inventions in the shape of railroads, telegraphs, ironclads, and other appliances which it has discovered for the accumulation of wealth, and the destruction of those who impede its accumulation, constitutes what is called 'Western civilization.'

"Countries in which there are no gigantic swindling operations, no financial crises by which millions are ruined, or Gatling guns by which they may be slain, are said to be in a state of barbarism. When the civilization of Anti-Christendom comes into contact with barbarism of this sort, instead of lifting it out of its moral error, which would be the case if it were true Christendom, it almost invariably shivers it to pieces. The consequence of the arrival of the so-called Christian in a heathen country is, not to bring immortal life, but physical and moral death. Either the native races die out before him—as in the case of the Red Indian of America and the Australian and New Zealander—or they save themselves from physical decay by worshipping, with all the ardor of perverts to a new religion, at the shrine of Mammon—as in the case of Japan—and fortify themselves against dissolution by such a rapid development of the mental faculties and the avaricious instincts, as may enable them to cope successfully with the formidable invading influence of Anti-Christendom. The disastrous moral tendencies and disintegrating effects of inverted Christianity upon a race professing a religion which was far inferior in its origin and conception, but which has been practiced by its professors with more fidelity and devotion, has been strikingly illustrated in the history of my own country. One of the most corrupt forms which Christianity has ever assumed was to be found organized in the Byzantine Empire at the time of its conquest by the Turks. Had the so-called Christian races which fell under their sway in Europe during their victorious progress westward been compelled, without conception, to adopt the faith of Islam, it is certain, to my mind, that their moral condition would have been immensely improved. Indeed, you who have traveled among the Moslem Slavs of Bosnia and Herzegovina, who are the descendants of converts to Islam at that epoch, will bear testimony to the fact that they contrast most favorably in true Christian virtues with the descendants of their countrymen who remained Christians; and I fearlessly appeal to the Austrian authorities now governing those provinces to bear me out in this assertion. Unfortunately, a sufficiently large nominally Christian population was allowed by the Turks to remain in their newly-acquired possessions, to taint the conquering race itself. The vices of Byzantinism speedily made themselves felt in the body politic of Turkey. The subservient races, intensely superstitious in the form of their religious belief, which had been degraded into a passport system, by which the believer in the efficacy of certain dogmas and ceremonials might attain heaven irrespective of his moral character on earth, were unrestrained by religious principle from giving free reign to their natural propensities, which were dishonest and covetous in the extreme. They thus revenged themselves on their conquerors, by undermining them financially, politically, and morally: they insidiously plundered those who were too indifferent to wealth to learn how to preserve it, and infected others with the contagion of their own cupidity, until these became as vicious and corrupt in their means of acquiring riches as they were themselves. This process has been going on for 500 years, until the very fanaticism of the race, which was its best protection against inverted Christianity, has begun to die out, and the governing class of Turks has with rare exceptions become as dishonest and degraded as the Ghiaours they despise. Still they would have been able, for many years yet to come, to hold their own in Europe, but for the enormously increased facilities for the accumulation of wealth, and therefore for the gratification of covetous propensities, created within the last half century by the discoveries of steam and electricity. Not only was Turkey protected formerly from the sordid and contaminating influence of Anti-Christendom by the difficulties of communication, but the mania of developing the resources of foreign countries for the purpose of appropriating the wealth which they might contain, became proportionately augmented with increased facilities of transport—so that now the very habits of thought in regard to countries styled barbarous have become changed. As an example of this, I would again refer to my own country. I can remember the day when British tourists visited it with a view to the gratification of their æsthetic tastes. They delighted to contrast what they were then pleased to term 'Oriental civilization' with their own. Our very backwardness in the mechanical arts was an attraction to them. They went home delighted with the picturesqueness and indolence of the East. Its bazars, its costumes, its primitive old-world cachet, invested it in their eyes with an indescribable charm; and books were written which fascinated the Western reader with pictures of our manners and customs, because they were so different from those with which he was familiar. Now all this is changed; the modern traveler is, in nine cases out of ten a railroad speculator, or a mining engineer, or a financial promoter, or a concession hunter, or perchance a would-be member of Parliament like yourself, coming to see how pecuniary or political capital can be made out of us, and how he can best exploiter the resources of the country to his own profit. This he calls 'reforming' it.

His idea is, not how to make the people morally better, but how best to develop their predatory instincts, and teach them to prey upon each other's pockets. For he knows that by encouraging a rivalry in the pursuits of wealth amongst a people comparatively unskilled in the art of money-grabbing, his superior talent and experience in this occupation will enable him to turn their efforts to his own advantage. He disguises from himself the immorality of the proceeding by the reflection that the introduction of foreign capital will add to the wealth of the country, and increase the material well-being and happiness of the people. But apart from the fallacy that wealth and happiness are synonymous terms, reform of this kind rests on the assumption that natural temperament and religious tendencies of the race will lend themselves to a keen commercial rivalry of this description; and if it does not, they, like the Australian and the Red Indian, must disappear before it. Already the process has begun in Europe. The Moslem is rapidly being reformed out of existence altogether. Between the upper and the nether millstone of Russian greed for territory and of British greed for money, and behind the mask of a prostituted Christianity, the Moslem in Europe has been ground to powder; hundreds of thousands of innocent men, women and children have either perished by violence or starvation, or, driven from their homes, are now struggling to keep body and soul together as best they can in misery and desolation, crushed beneath the wheels of the Juggernaut of 'Progress'—their only crime, like that of the poor cross sweeper, I think, in one of your own novels, that they did not 'move on.' This is called in modern parlance 'the civilizing influence of Christianity.' At this moment the Russians are pushing roads through their newly-acquired territory towards Kars. I am informed by an intelligent Moslem gentleman who has just arrived from that district, that the effect of their 'civilizing' influence upon the inhabitants of the villages through which these roads pass, is to convert the women into prostitutes and the men into drunkards. No wonder the Mohammedan population is flocking in thousands across the frontier into Turkish territory, abandoning their homes and landed possessions in order to escape the contamination of Anti-Christendom.

"In these days of steam and electricity, not only has the traveler no eye for the moral virtues of a people, but his æsthetic faculties have become blunted; he regards them only as money-making machines, and he esteems them just in the degree in which they excel in the art of wealth accumulation. Blinded by a selfish utilitarianism, he can now see only barbarism in a country where the landscape is not obscured by the black smoke of factory-chimneys, and the ear deafened by the scream of the locomotive. For him a people who cling to the manners and customs of a bygone epoch with which their own most glorious traditions are associated, have no charm. He sees in a race which still endeavors to follow the faith of their forefathers with simplicity and devotion, nothing but ignorant fanaticism, for he has long since substituted hypocrisy for sincerity in his own belief. He despises a peasantry whose instincts of submission and obedience induce them to suffer rather than rise in revolt against a government which oppresses them, because the head of it is invested in their eyes with a sacred character. He can no longer find anything to admire or to interest in the contrast between the East and West, but everything to condemn; and his only sympathy is with that section of the population in Turkey who, called Christians like himself, like him devote themselves to the study of how much can be made, by fair measure or foul, out of their Moslem neighbors.

"While I observe that this change has come over the Western traveler of late years—a change which I attribute to the mechanical appliances of the age—a corresponding effect, owing to the same cause has, I regret to say, been produced upon my own countrymen. A gradual assimilation has been for some time in progress in the East with the habits and customs of the rest of Europe. We are abandoning our distinctive costume, and adapting ourselves to a Western mode of life in many ways. We are becoming lax in the observances of our religion; and it is now the fashion for our women to get their high-heeled boots and bonnets from Paris, and for our youths of good family to go to that city of pleasure, or to one of the large capitals of Europe for their education. Here they adopt all the vices of Anti-Christendom, for the attractions of a civilization based upon enlightened selfishness are overpoweringly seductive, and they return without religion of any sort—shallow, skeptical, egotistical, and thoroughly demoralized. It is next to impossible for a Moslem youth, as I myself experienced, to come out of that fire uncontaminated. His religion fits him to live with simple and primitive races, and even to acquire a moral control over them; but he is fascinated and overpowered by the mighty influence of the glamour of the West. He returns to Turkey with his principles thoroughly undermined, and, if he has sufficient ability, adds one to the number of those who misgovern it.

"The two dominant vices which characterize Anti-Christendom are cupidity and hypocrisy. That which chiefly revolts the Turks in this disguised attack upon the morals of his people, no less than upon the very existence of his empire, is, that it should be made under the pretext of morality, and behind the flimsy veil of humanitarianism. It is in the nature of the religious idea that just in proportion as it was originally penetrated with a divine truth, which has become perverted, does it engender hypocrisy. This was so true of Judaism, that when the founder of Christianity came, though himself a Jew, he scorchingly denounced the class which most loudly professed the religion which they profaned. But the Phariseism which has made war upon Turkey is far more intense in degree than that which he attacked, for the religion which it profanes contains the most divine truth which the world ever received. Mahomet divided the nether world into seven hells, and in the lowest he placed the hypocrites of all religions, but as none of them demanded so high a standard as Christianity, there has not been any development of hypocrisy out of them at all corresponding to that which is peculiar to Anti-Christianity. For that reason I am constrained to think that its contributions to the region assigned to hypocrites by the prophet will be out of all proportion to the hypocrites of other religions.

"In illustration of this, see how the principles of morality and justice are at this moment being hypocritically outraged in Albania, where on the moral ground that a nationality has an inherent right to the property of its neighbor, if it can make a claim of similarity of race, a southern district of the country is to be forcibly given to Greece, while, in violation of the same moral principle, a northern district is to be taken from the Albanian nationality, to which by right of race it belongs, and violently, against the will of the people, who are in no way consulted as to their fate, is to be handed over for annexation to the Montenegrins—a race whom the population to be annexed traditionally hate and detest.

"When Anti-Christian nations, sitting in solemn Congress, can be guilty of such a prostitution of the most sacred principles in the name of morality, and construct an international code of ethics to be applicable to Turkey alone, and which they would one and all refuse to admit or be controlled by themselves—when we know that the internal corruption, the administrative abuses, and the oppressive misgovernment of the Power which has just made war against us in the name of humanity, have driven the population to despair, and the authorities to the most cruel excesses in order to repress them—and when, in the face of all this most transparent humbug, these Anti-Christian nations arrogate to themselves, on the ground of their superior civilization and morality, the right to impose reform upon Turkey—we neither admit their pretensions, covet their civilization, believe in their good faith, nor respect their morality.

"Thus it is that, from first to last, the woes of Turkey have been due to its contact with Anti-Christendom. The race is now paying the penalty for that lust of dominion and power which tempted them in the first instance to cross the Bosphorus. From the day on which the tree of empire was planted in Europe, the canker, in the shape of the opposing religion, began to gnaw at its roots. When the Christians within had thoroughly eaten out its vitals, they called on the Christians without for assistance; and it is morally impossible that the decayed trunk can much longer withstand their combined efforts. But as I commenced by saying, had the invading Moslems in the first instance converted the entire population to their creed, Turkey might have even now withstood the assaults of 'progress.' Nay, more, it is not impossible that her victorious armies might have overrun Europe, and that the faith of Islam might have extended over the whole of what is now termed the civilized world. I have often thought how much happier it would have been for Europe, and unquestionably for the rest of the world, had such been the case. That wars and national antagonisms would have continued is doubtless true; but we should have been saved the violent political and social changes which have resulted from steam and electricity, and have continued to live the simple and primitive life which satisfied the aspirations of our ancestors, and in which they found contentment and happiness, while millions of barbarians would to this day have remained in ignorance of the gigantic vices peculiar to Anti-Christian civilization. The West would then have been spared the terrible consequences which are even now impending, as the inevitable result of an intellectual progress to which there has been no corresponding moral advance. The persistent violation for eighteen centuries of the great altruistic law propounded and enjoined by the great founder of the Christian religion, must inevitably produce a corresponding catastrophe; and the day is not far distant when modern civilization will find that in its great scientific discoveries and inventions, devised for the purpose of ministering to its own extravagant necessities, it has forged the weapons by which it will itself be destroyed. No better evidence of the truth of this can be found than in the fact that Anti-Christendom alone is menaced with the danger of a great class revolution; already in every so-called Christian country we hear the mutterings of the coming storm, when labor and capital will find themselves arrayed against each other—when rich and poor will meet in deadly antagonism, and the spoilers and the spoiled, solve, by means of the most recently invented artillery, the economic problems of modern 'progress.' It is surely a remarkable fact, that this struggle between rich and poor is specially reserved for those whose religion inculcates upon them, is the highest law—the love of their neighbor—and most strongly denounces the love of money. No country which does not bear the name of Christian is thus threatened. Even in Turkey, in spite of its bad government and the many Christians who live in it, Socialisms, Communisms, Nihilism, Internationalism, and all kindred forms of class revolution, are unknown, for the simple reason that Turkey has, so far at least, successfully resisted the influence of 'Anti-Christian civilization.'

"In the degree in which the State depends for its political, commercial, and social well-being and prosperity, not upon a moral but a mechanical basis, is its foundation perilous. When the life-blood of a nation is its wealth, and the existence of that wealth depends upon the regularity with which railroads and telegraphs perform their functions, it is in the power of a few skilled artisans, by means of a combined operation, to strangle it. Only the other day the engineers and firemen of a few railroads in the United States struck for a week; nearly 1,000 men were killed and wounded before the trains could be set running again: millions of dollars' worth of property was destroyed. The contagion spread to the mines and factories, and had the movement been more skillfully organized, the whole country would have been in revolution, and it is impossible to tell what the results might have been. Combinations among the working classes are now rendered practicable by rail and wire, which formerly were impossible; and the facilities which exist for secret conspiracy have turned Europe into a slumbering volcano, an eruption of which is rapidly approaching.

"Thus it is that the laws of retribution run their course, and that the injuries that Anti-Christendom has inflicted upon the more primitive and simple races of the world, which—under the pretext of civilizing them—it has explored to its own profit, will be amply avenged. Believe me, my dear friend, that it is under no vindictive impulse or spirit of religious intolerance that I write thus; on the contrary, though I consider Mussulmans generally to be far more religious than Christians, inasmuch as they practice more conscientiously the teachings of their prophet, I feel that teaching from an ethical point of view to be infinitely inferior to that of Christ. I have written, therefore, without prejudice, in this attempt philosophically to analyze the nature and causes of the collision which has at last culminated between the East and the West, between so called Christendom and Islam. And I should only be too thankful if it could be proved to me that I had done the form of religion you profess, or the nation to which you belong, an injustice. I am far from wishing to insinuate that among Christians, even as Christianity is at present professed and practiced, there are not as good men as among nations called heathen and barbarous. I am even prepared to admit there are better—for some struggle to practice the higher virtues of Christianity, not unsuccessfully, considering the manner in which these are conventionally travestied; while others who reject the popular theology altogether, have risen higher than ordinary Christian practice by force of reaction against the hypocrisy and shams by which they are surrounded—but these are in a feeble minority, and unable to affect the popular standard. Such men existed among the Jews at the time of Christ, but they did not prevent Him from denouncing the moral iniquities of His day, or the church which countenanced them. At the same time, I must remind you that I shrank from the task which you imposed upon me, and only consented at last to undertake it on your repeated assurances that by some, at all events, of your countrymen, the spirit by which I have been animated in writing thus frankly will not be misconceived.

"Believe me, my dear friend, yours very sincerely,
A TURKISH EFFENDI."

Not a Satisfactory Answer.

THAT answer of "J. S. C." to the question of T. F. Stafford in Herald of September 1st, Christ referred to neither Herod nor Pilate; but the High Priest and Elders. I would rather think that Judas was the person than Herod. For first of all to deliver Christ to his enemies was this Judas. In Matt. 26:15 we find him asking the Chief Priests what they would give him to deliver Christ to them. And he being one of the twelve, to whom Christ paid a higher regard than to either Herod or Pilate, because their calling was of a higher and nobler character than the two mentioned above. But I come to the chief priests as the ones referred to. For the Mosaic law was still in force, and those officiating in the capacity of Priests were higher in the eyes of our Savior than any such men as Herod or Pilate. All the kings of Israel were required to observe the law. They had no right to change the law, but to observe all its workings. I for one believe that from Moses down to the times of Christ the law of Moses was supreme; and kings and nobles were required to yield obedience. And also that the officiating high priests with their attendants, were more sacred in the eyes of God than any king. We notice kings paying particular attention to what the prophets and high priest said to them. Never attempting a war if they desired to be benefitted, or to gain a victory without first consulting God's oracle. In the Savior's day on earth, the chief priest or priests may have been wicked persons; and have perverted the law, which no doubt they did; but the Savior nowhere discountenances the office of high priest; but says to some of his poor on whom he worked miracles, "Go and show thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded." Never once mentions Herod only as a fox. Never mentions Pilate, but was always teaching obedience to the law. The Savior addressing his disciples on one occasion, tells them to observe and do whatsoever the Scribes and Pharisees commanded them. "That observe and do; but do not as they do; for they say, and do not."—Matt. 23:3. The observance of the law was the great object. No connection with earthly potentates. His kingdom was not of this world. No more was the church under Moses; only as men made it so. And for these, and other reasons that I could offer if space allowed, I take the ground that he that committed the greater sin, if not Judas, was assuredly the high priest and those elders with him. In kindness and good feeling, I offer these as an answer to "J. S. C.'s" answer.

Growing in Grace.

When a person stands up in a church or a meeting and says he is a "sinner saved by grace," I understand that person is saved by God's favor. The truth is that this is a matter of absolutely vital importance. Growth is impossible without gifts, and when the Church of Christ, through lack of liberality, ceases to grow, to make inroads for the territory of the outlying world, she begins to die. The one solid vindication of the Church's right to exist and prosper, is found in her ability and willingness to push the flag of conquest farther into the territory of the foe. To the delinquent subscribers to the Herald and the Hope I say, Do your best to pay up, if you have to sacrifice cigars, tobacco, concerts, parties, coffee or tea; for so long as the Herald and Hope publishing committee wants the money, it is wrong for subscribers to our periodicals to be in debt to the Church. This element of so called Christian piety overshadows and dwarfs the others, with a more legitimate dread, lest the sentence of the Master come ringing in the ears of our favored and beloved few, "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting."

How oft I have the Spirit grieved,
Since first with me he strove;
How obstinately disbelieved,
And trampled on his love.
How often have I sinned against the light,
Broken from his embrace,
And would not when I freely might
Be justified by grace.

But after all that I have done,
To drive him from my heart;
The Spirit leaves me not alone,
He doth not yet depart.
He will not give the sinner o'er;
Ready e'en now to save,
He bids me come as heretofore,
That I his grace may have.

I take thee at thy gracious word;
My foolishness I mourn;
And unto my redeeming Lord,
However late I turn,
Savior, I yield, I yield at last;
I hear thy speaking blood;
Myself, with all my sins I cast
On my atoning God.

Luther on Gallatians 3:27.

"For all ye that are baptized into Christ, have put on Christ."

"To put on Christ is taken two manners of ways; according to the law, and according to the gospel. According to the law, as it is said in the 13th chapter to the Romans, 'Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ.' That is follow the examples and virtues of Christ. Do that which he did, and suffer that which he suffered. And in 1 Pet. 3, 'Christ hath suffered for us, leaving us an example that we should follow his steps.' Now, we see in Christ, a singular patience and inestimable mildness and love, and a wonderful modesty in all things. This goodly apparel we must put on, that is to say, follow these virtues.

"But in the putting on of Christ, according to the gospel, consisteth not in imitation, but in a new birth and a new creation, that is to say, in putting on Christ's innocency, his righteousness, his wisdom, his power, his saving health, his life and his Spirit.

"We are clothed with the leather coat of Adam, which is a mortal garment, and a garment of sin, all sold under sin. There is in us horrible blindness, ignorance, contempt and hatred of God. Moreover evil concupiscence, uncleanness, covetousness, &c. This garment, that is to say, this corrupt and sinful nature, we receive from Adam, which Paul is wont to call 'the old man.' This old man must be put off, with all his works, (Eph. 4, Cor 1), that if the children of Adam, we may be made the children of God.

"This is not done by changing of a garment, or by any law of works, but by a new birth, and by the renewing of the inward man, which is done in baptism, as Paul saith, 'All ye that are baptized, have put on Christ.' Also according to his mercy hath he saved us by the washing of the new birth, and the renewing of the Holy Ghost to a heavenly righteousness, and to eternal life; there riseth in them a new light and a new flame; there riseth in them new and holy affections, as the fear of God, true faith, and assured hope, &c., there beginneth in them also a new will. And this is to put on Christ truly, and according to the gospel. Therefore the righteousness of the law, or of our own works is not given unto us in baptism, but in Christ himself is our garment. Now Christ is no law, no law-giver, no works; but a divine and inestimable gift, whom God hath given unto us, that he might be our justifier, our Savior and our Redeemer. Wherefore, to be appareled with Christ according to the gospel, is not to be appareled with the law nor the works, but with an incomparable gift; that is to say, with remission of sins, righteousness, peace, consolation, joy of the Spirit, salvation, life, and Christ himself. This is diligently to be noted, because of the fond and fanatical spirits which go about to deface the majesty of baptism, and speak wickedly of it. Paul contrarywise, commendeth and setteth it 'the washing of the new birth' and renewing of the holy Ghost. (Titus 3). And here also he saith, that all they which are baptized, have put on Christ. As if he said, Ye are carried out of the law into a new birth which is wrought in baptism. Therefore ye are not now any longer under the law, but ye are clothed with a new garment, to wit, with righteousness of Christ. Wherefore baptism is a thing of great force and efficacy. Now, when ye are appareled with Christ as with a robe of righteousness, and our salvation, then we must also put on Christ as the apparel of imitation and example. These things I have handled more largely in another place, therefore I briefly pass them over."

Extract from Martin Luther's Comments on Gal. 3d chap.

Evangelist.

IN the Herald for September 15th, 1880, I read a very interesting letter from the pen of William B. Smith, and as he desires to hear from the "ministry" of the Church, I essay this as an agitator upon this important question. My apology is a conviction, that we are ignorant and drifting away from the full priesthood organization that was contemplated in the revelations of fifty years ago. Webster gives the following definition of Evangelist: "one who preaches the gospel." The Christian world have accepted this definition to the exclusion of any and all other explanations of this officer, and many of our people are willing to endorse without examination, or consultation of God's law book, last bestowed. In Eph. 4:11, it is clearly seen that the office of Evangelist was a divine gift, and if the last sentence of the 12th verse is indicative of the duty, assuredly it is a very important and needed office in the Church at the present time, that we might all "see eye to eye" and in confidence trust the word. "I, the Lord, give unto them a promise that the destroying angel shall pass by them, as the children of Israel, and not slay them." 1 Tim. 4:14, Paul exhorts Timothy not to neglect the gift (office) which was given by prophecy and the laying on of hands by the presbytery (Elders). As the Elders can not ordain men to the office of Evangelist, therefore Paul puts Timothy "in remembrance of the gift [office] of God, which is in thee by the putting on of my [Paul the Apostle] hands."—2 Tim. 1:6. Paul's instruction, 2 Tim. 4:5, tells to what office Paul had ordained Timothy to. Nearly all our Bibles have Acts 6th chapter headed, "Seven deacons appointed." I have searched not only the Bible, but several Commentaries for satisfactory proof, and failed to find it, for the assumption of calling these men deacons. The qualification required by the Twelve, "men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom," would suggest a more important office; and Acts 21:8, clearly proves that Acts 6th chapter, should be headed, "Seven Evangelists appointed." There are several other reasons that could be furnished in favor of this last position. One is, Philip preaching at Samaria, wherein he had power to perform miracles, unclean spirits were cast out, the palsied and lame were healed, signs were manifested which caused Simon to wonder; also the potent fact of baptizing in the name of Jesus Christ. I give the following quotation from William Smith's Bible Dictionary, page 186: "Evangelist means the 'publisher of glad tidings,' and therefore seems common to the work of the Christian ministry generally; yet in Eph. 4:11, the Evangelist appears on the one hand after the 'Apostles' and 'Prophets,' on the other before the 'Pastors' and 'Teachers.' This passage accordingly would lead us to think of them as standing between the two other groups—sent forth as missionary preachers of the gospel by the first, and as such preparing the way for the labors of the second. The same inference would seem to follow the occurrence of the word as applied to Philip in Acts 21:8. It follows from what has been said that the calling of the Evangelist is the proclamation of glad tidings to those who have not known them, rather than the instruction and pastoral care of those who have believed and been baptized. It follows, also, that the name denotes a work rather than an order. The Evangelist might or might not be a Bishop, Elder or a Deacon. the Apostles, so far as they evangelized (Acts 8:25; 14:7; 1 Cor. 1:17), might claim the title, though there were many Evangelists who were not Apostles. If the gospel was a written book, and the office of the Evangelists was to read or distribute it, then the writers of such books were pre-eminently The Evangelists. In later liturgical language the word was applied to the reader of the gospel for the day."

Human wisdom and not the voice of the Father is all that is manifest in the foregoing. Imagination, supposition, and uncertainty, is the bulk of interpretation furnished by the would be wise upon the important questions of present and eternal salvation with the exaltation promised in the covenant of Christ. I herewith give the following from "Critical Commentary," vol. 4, page 144, by Rev. A. R. Fausset, A. M.: "The men who filled the office, no less than the office itself, were a divine gift. Ministers did not give themselves with the list here, 1 Cor. 12:10, 28. As the Apostles, Prophets, and Evangelists, were special and extraordinary ministers; so Pastors and Teachers are the ordinary stated ministers of a particular flock, including, probably, the Bishops, Presbyters, and Deacons. Evangelists were itinerant preachers like our missionaries, as Philip the Deacon, (Acts 21:8), as contrasted with stationary pastors and teachers, (2 Tim. 4:5). The Evangelist founded the church; the Teacher built it up in the faith already received; the Pastors had the outward rule and guidance of the church, the Bishop. As to revelation, the Evangelist testified infallibly of the past, the Prophet infallibly of the future. The Prophet derived all from the Spirit; the Evangelist, in the special case of the Four, recorded matter of fact, cognizable to the senses, under the Spirit's guidance."

Let me point out what, in my opinion, are the mistakes of this learned man. No office set in the church was a special gift. Evangelists are not itinerant ministers. It is the Evangelist's prerogative to build up and not found the church. And now for some evidence to usward in the latter dispensation; Doc. and Cov., section 104, par. 17: "It is the duty of the Twelve in all large branches of the church, to ordain evangelical ministers, as they shall be designated unto them by revelation." Par. 18, "The order of this priesthood was confirmed to be handed down from father to son, and rightly belongs to the literal descendants of the chosen seed, to whom the promises were made. This order was instituted in the days of Adam, and came down by lineage in the following manner."

We as a people believe that Adam and his associates had the gospel, and by the above an order of priesthood was instituted. This last word signifies a business transaction, so we turn to record of the first meeting of High Priests' Quorum. Par. 28, "Three years previous to the death of Adam, he called Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, and Methuselah, who were all High Priests, with the residue of his posterity, who were righteous, into the valley of Adam-ondi ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing." Thus we discover that the Lord established the evangelical order of priesthood with the High Priests, and that from their number by a revelation through the Twelve, are these ministers to be appointed in all large branches of the church. And why in the large branches? That their ministrations of the Lord's table (sacrament), to the sick, and in the blessing of the Saints, as at the establishing of the order, that the church may in all righteousness be confirmed, edified and united as to both practice and doctrine; that the welding in one of all things may be more fully understood, that the hearts of the children may be turned to the fathers, and the hearts of the fathers to the children. I am strongly of the opinion that at present there are no evangelical ministers in the church; but that this auxiliary is sadly needed to aid us in understanding the heavenly will, in developing and preparing for the Millennial reign of Christ.

I have tried to avoid any thing of a controversial or dogmatical character, and earnestly hope that we will as a church unitedly seek unto God in deep and humble contrition of heart, that he will by his own voice set in order and fill up the several quorums of the priesthood of the church. Between now and next April Conference there is room and time for much investigation and prayer. Therefore let us not be "laggards," but lively stones in the upbuilding of an holy faith unto the true and living God.

Character.

CHARACTER can be cultivated. It is a thing of growth. Its germ is principle—a knowledge and a purpose of the right. Day by day that germ can be expanded under the rays of the Sun of Righteousness, and the dews of heavenly grace. There can be progress in character through the exercise of its nobler qualities. The courage of convictions can grow stronger through persisting in the line of one's best convictions. "There are degrees of courage, and each step upward makes us acquainted with a higher virtue," says Emerson. "He has not learned the lesson of life who does not every day surmount fear," who does not come more and more to realize "that he is here for cause, that he was put down in this place by the Creator to do the work for which he inspires him." All the high qualities of the truest manhood and the truest womanhood may be nurtured and cherished in the inner soul, and matured and expanded in daily living. What progress are you making in character?

Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.

Plano, Illinois, November 15th, 1880.

On the 30th of October, just past, Bro. Henry A. Stebbins left the Herald Office for Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa, where he will engage in the grain and lumber business in connection with Bro. David Dancer and Asa C. Cochrane. In leaving the Herald Office and dissolving his connection with us as Associate Editor, Bro. Henry is acting upon the advice of friends, and his own good judgment with regard to his health, the long and close confinement and attention to office work, with his other duties, having worn upon him. He goes to his new field with our warmest friendship, and approval, as a man, brother and associate; and will take with him our best regards and wishes for his success.

Bro. Henry will continue to discharge the duties of Secretary and Recorder for the Church; and all having business with him in these relations, will please bear in mind that his address will be Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa. Also please remember that Herald Office business will be conducted at Plano, as heretofore, and all having business with the office must address Joseph Smith, Box 50, Plano, Kendall county, Illinois, to insure attention. Bro. Henry will doubtless take proper care of all office business belonging to the office that may chance to be sent him; but delay in transferring it from Lamoni to us will certainly occur, and we will not be responsible for that. All business designed for the Bishopric should be addressed to Bro. Israel L. Rogers, Sandwich, DeKalb county, Illinois. Some confusion of accounts may be avoided by remembering the above.

VALEDICTORY.

AFTER four years and a half of work in the HERALD Office I have decided to enter upon other business. And, although this change will in a measure take me aside from the direct service of the Church, yet I believe that I make it with good cause and for proper reasons, those justified by and accepted of God, notwithstanding the ideas of some that I am thereby forsaking my proper work and the cause of Christ together.

One of my reasons for making the change is that I have been too much confined to the desk during the five years past, to almost day and night work, and I need exercise and more air to breathe, particularly as my lungs have been affected for the past year and half. This fact would make necessary a change sooner or later, and I think best to make it now, and to an occupation in which I can be out of doors more. Yet I am grateful to God that he has made me able to endure as well as I have; and because my heart was in all my work and I loved it, have I been able to go on. But for this excessive extra labor I know that I would now have been in far better health in every way, as the Lord has witnessed to me, but I have neither regarded ease, rest, recreation nor health, so that I might accomplish the work set before me, both as to the HERALD Office duties and as to getting order and system and keeping them in the records of the Church and of the quorums, and other duties that I saw to be necessary, and whose value will some time be known.

Although for other reasons it is a pleasant relief for me to make this change, yet the one of health is the chief reason. And not any of them are because I would forsake the Lord's work for more paying business, nor because I wish to do or expect to do less for God and my fellow men, but that I may prolong my days in the land (if God shall so will) for the sake of those dependent upon me. And I also hope to do as much good in other ways as I have done where I have been, if indeed one so poor as I am can be of profitable value to God or his people.

And though by God's permission and consent, my time of special service to the Church may be over now, I shall hope to enjoy as much of his peace, his favor and his Holy Spirit as I have done heretofore, and I would like to have a much greater degree of these if it can be. I would like to be excused from labor in the ministry, because I feel my inability therein; but I still hope to be willing to do what I can and to have strength and grace given to me in this and in all ways, as labor may be demanded of me and circumstances and time may permit to do them.

For the present I retain my places as Church Secretary and Recorder, more especially by request of President Joseph Smith, though I do not know how much time I can at present devote to these duties, unless I labor as I have done in the past, which has been to the disadvantage of both my health and my well being otherwise, because of working at them when the regular day's work was over, often till eleven and twelve o'clock at night, and then rising at five in the morning and laboring till office hours came again, all this not for the trifle received for such extra labor, but, as I have said, because I loved the work.

I feel also that I have tried to faithfully and conscientiously do that which was put before me and those things that I saw were necessary, notwithstanding I have had my share of faults and have been as subject to errors of judgment as other men. I know also that I have suffered when others have merited what I received. And also some have sought occasion against me, or made one when they could not find sufficient already existing to build one on. But I thank the many for their true friendship and brotherly regard, as evinced by words of confidence and cheer to me, some from those whom I have never seen, but whose tokens of regard have come across States, Continents and seas to mingle with those from ones whose kind spirits I have had a personal experience with, and whose nobility and generosity I have enjoyed. All these have given me strength and comfort to bear the ills, to perform the labor and to endure that which came from those whose words and ways were not of the same kind and character, but the reverse. And I shall miss the letters that came to me in the HERALD Office, but will hope for occasional ones from those in the ministry and others whose names have grown so familiar to me during these years. And that these all may be faithful to the end, and that they may have grace, patience and strength to do all the righteous will of God concerning them, shall be my constant prayer.

To the Saints at Sandwich, over whom I have presided and to whom I have preached for three years past, I also bid a regretful farewell, not having been able to meet them before my departure. I have been blessed by their sustaining spirit, cheered by their words and deeds of confidence and kindness, and have been glad in their brotherly and sisterly regard and generous hospitality. I have sympathized with them in their trials, have been endeavored to comfort them in times of sorrow, have administered to them in sickness, and help them to lay away their dead when they have been thus bereft. Some are now upon beds of suffering and some are under severe trials. May God comfort and raise them up.

To the Saints of Plano I also extend like thanks for the same acts of kindness and good will with those of Sandwich, not forgetting the others throughout the district over which I presided for six years prior to entering the HERALD Office, who did me equal good when I was with them. To them all I would say, Be faithful and endure the days of trial and of service that you may gain the reward for so doing,—the crown of eternal life.

Hoping and laboring for the progress and prosperity of the Church I am your brother in the cause of Christ,
HENRY A. STEBBINS.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE are having an excellent sale for our history "Life of Joseph the Prophet," and feel pleased that we can commend it to the Saints. We have put the price within the easy reach of every man who has any energy, or vim in him; and have done this at a risk. While we have done this with a view to put into the hands of the Saints something of the history of the Church, by a known friend to Joseph Smith and Mormonism, as an offset in some measure to the many written by those at enmity, or indifferent to the just claims of both; we shall be sadly put about if we shall hear any Saint find fault with the price, or say that they can not afford it, if we shall know that those Saints are using tea, coffee or tobacco in any form; for these latter things are not essentials, but luxuries; and whoever indulges in them should be ashamed to urge poverty as an excuse for not improving their knowledge of the work. Saints must get acquainted with the work they love in all its varied phases, and should avail themselves of every means afforded them to do so.

We are still praying for special providences to help us pay for the press—don't forget us; when you count your increase, and rebuild your barns; send us a little of the mammon of unrighteousness, and we will help you to make friends of them who dwell in "everlasting habitations," so that when ye fail, they will "receive you." We shall continue to pray till we get it, and then—we will pray for something else.

Wanted 500 more to subscribe for HERALD. Keep that before the people.

Sr. Mary Jennings writes from Logan, Phillips county, Kansas, that they have had plentiful Fall rains, and the wheat crop looks splendid! She is the only one of her family in the faith, and is in hope that the Lord will permit the work to reach the rest.

Bro. G. L. Matthews writes from Sacramento, Cal., that he thinks that the branch there is improving. More love and unity exist. Also, under the presidency of Bro. John Carmichael the Northern California District flourishes.

The Independence, Missouri, District Conference minutes reached us without date of adjournment on them; and after our discovery of this lack, a correction in answer to card came after our HERALD for the 15th was made up, therefore too late for insertion in time to be of benefit to the district. Their conference meets November 19th, four days from our date of issue. They have almost completed their meeting house; have expended $867.09, and owe $515.52 which they propose to raise by mortgage on the building and lot. We hope that they will get through with it all right.

Bro. Joseph F. Burton writes from La Graciosa, California, of the reorganization of the Santa Maria Branch, with sixteen members, and with Bro. J. R. Jeffries as president. Bro. Burton had had a severe attack of cholera, but was helped by administration under the hands of Bro. Hemenway, and was well again. Was to speak at Pleasant Valley, for his next appointment.

Bro. John H. Hansen passed Plano, for home, stopping over with us from the 23d to the 25th with his wife and children. By invitation he spoke to our congregation in the Saints' Chapel, on Sunday evening the 24th. His sermon was an excellent one and well received. Bro. Hansen stated to us his willingness to go on the Danish Mission; but very much doubts the result, unless sufficient aid can be furnished to publish and issue suitable tracts. He thinks that those brethren who have gone there have been very indifferently sustained in this regard. He speaks plainly, but truthfully, that it seems to be and is a waste of effort. How can this be remedied? Let the wise men send in their advice.

We received a nicely written letter penned by Sr. Sarah A. Prettyman, of Indiana, in which she relates a curious and grave account of a sudden illness, and her deliverance from it by an administration under the hands of her father. We should give the letter a place in the HERALD but for its length and personal character, it relating mainly to herself.

Bro. Solomon J. Salisbury sends us a clipping from an Iowa paper, stating that he and Bro. Thomas Wellington have been preaching there. "A Mt. Pleasant divine preached at Glasgow on the 8th. Thomas Wellington delivered a telling sermon at the Congregational Church, Glasgow, Sunday night, the 15th. Solomon Salisbury, of Illinois, Latter Day Saint, preached at Wooster, the 8th, and at Grant's school house the 9th.

Bro. Charles A. Hall, of Ottumwa, Iowa, offers a copy of Bro. David H. Smith's Poems, Hesperis, as a prize to the one obtaining and sending to the HERALD Office the largest list of subscribers for the HORN for the year 1881.

Quite an interesting letter from Bro. Charles M. Fulks, Weir City, Kansas, October 25th, strongly advises the Saints of Kansas to avail themselves of the opportunity offered them this Fall to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in that State; from which we infer that one of the questions to be submitted to the decision of the ballot box this Fall in Kansas, is that of prohibition. This may be a good way to remove the evil from the State; but if the gospel has its proper effect upon men they will not drink that which intoxicates, if ever so much of it is made. Make it out of fashion to drink liquor, and it will not be sold; stop its sale, and the making of it is stopped, as a matter of course.

Bro. John D. Jones, formerly of Kewanee, writes from Lucas county, Iowa, in very encouraging terms of the prospects of the work. The Branch is under the rule of Bro. McDuffitt, "one of Zion's noble-hearted sons," as Bro. Jones calls him. The English and Welsh Saints unite in much harmony in preaching, prayer and testimony meetings. Differences may occur on discipline; but the love of the work and law of the Lord, still prevails. They are building a small chapel, 20x40 feet, and are hopeful for success. Bro. Jones writes at the close of his letter:

"Zion's cause is onward moving,
In this part;
Gathering in the true and loving,
Honest heart.
Keep the gospel trump still blowing;
Seeds of life eternal sowing;
Man his loving Maker knowing,
By the chart."

Read the letter of Bro. Joseph B. Rodger, the son of Bro. Glaud Rodger, and, when the tears well up to your eyes, prompting you to aid the missionary cause, do not wait for your tears to dry, your heart to grow hard again, and your purse strings to contract again; but just send the sum of your great-heartedness and sympathy to Bro. Israel L. Rogers, Sandwich, Illinois, to enlarge the Church coffers, and to be expended for the benefit of the brethren in the field.

Bro. C. G. Lanphear wrote a card from Monticello, Iowa. He had spoken there Sunday, October 31st, and had an appointment for the 7th November. Address care George George.

Bro. S. M. Bass, at Lawrence, Michigan, says that the work is onward in that region, though it does not move so very fast.

While at Conference at the Bluffs this last Fall, we received from the author and publisher, Bro. Edward W. Tullidge, a copy of Tullidge's Magazine, a large quarto of a hundred and fifty pages, issued quarterly and devoted to the interests of Utah, her men, resources, wealth and development. The first number is a splendid one, and would be read with interest by all who desire to become acquainted with Utah. The price per year is four dollars, or one dollar per number.

Sister Mansfield, of Maine, sends us a Watch Tower, an Adventist paper issued at Pittsburgh, Pa., devoted to the subject of Christ's Second Coming. It seems to be ably conducted, is an eight page quarto, and presents a fair appearance.

Bro. Joseph Lakeman sends us a Bay Pilot, published at St. Andrews, N. B., containing a bitter attack upon the Mormons by Rev. Talmage. Several other papers, also containing the same are sent us. Rev. Talmage is nothing if not sensational.

We have "Rollin's Ancient History," bound in one volume, half Russia, marbled edges, which we will send post paid at four dollars per copy. The opportunity of obtaining this valuable work at this low price is seldom offered. Remember we have but six copies.

Bro. Alma Dodd writes from Centralia, Kansas. He says that where he and his wife were once alone there is now a branch of nineteen members, and all of them rejoicing in the work. They also bless the name of the Lord for his favor and for the manifestation of his Holy Spirit, such as the healing of the sick. But they have no regular preaching and would like to be visited by the traveling ministry, as they believe that much more good could be done there. Plenty of school-houses are to be had about there.

Bro. William Lockerly, of Coldwater, Michigan, writes: "Our conference is just closed. There was a large attendance and good attention given to the preaching. We were blessed with God's Spirit in a goodly degree, and feel encouraged to press on in the good way and help in the onward march of the cause."

Dr. Nichols' Herald of Health, published in London, England, is sent us by some one, whom we thank. It has an article by the doctor on "The Gift of Healing," which is very fair reasoning from the doctor's stand-point.

We extend our thanks for papers sent; to Bro. J. Chissnal, for Kewanee Courier; Bro. C. M. Fulks for various Kansas and Missouri papers; some one for New York School Journal.

News Summary.

October 23rd.—A terrific hurricane swept over Denmark last Wednesday. Great damage was done to shipping in Copenhagen and other Danish harbors.

By a railway accident near Darmund, in the Prussian Province of Westphalia, yesterday, two persons were killed and twenty-six were wounded.

Europe demands of Turkey the fulfillment of her contracts, but she asks for more time about ceding Dulcigno.

It is stated that the British Government will proceed against the Irish land agitators for conspiracy against the peace and well being of that government, and troops and police are being sent to watch and to guard matters in Ireland.

25th.—Turkey again promises to cede Dulcigno to Montenegro.

About the close of the year, there will assemble at the City of Panama, a conference of vast importance to the future peace of South America. The Republics of Peru and Chili have accepted the mediation of the United States Government, offered for the humane purpose of putting an end to the fearful warfare that has raged so long between those countries, and will each appoint representatives to meet and arrange negotiations for a permanent peace. All questions of difference between Chili and Peru are to be submitted to arbitrators, and in the event of their failing to agree, the whole matter is to be left to the decision of the President of the United States, in whose integrity and fairness both nations appear to have unlimited confidence.

Emigration from Canada to the cheap farming lands of the United States continues unabated.

Snow fell yesterday in Albany, N. Y., and in some parts of Canada it came down to the depth of from five to twenty inches.

The town of Queensville Forks, in British Columbia, has been completely destroyed by fire, forty buildings having been consumed by the flames.

26th.—The Pope yesterday dismissed a number of the Vatican functionaries on account of his inability to pay their salaries. His Holiness made a short speech to the decapitated officials, in which he intimated that had he temporal sovereignty over the Ecclesiastical States things might have been different. He denounced the occupation of Rome by Italy and ended his discourse by again referring to his poverty and his consequent inability to combat the enemies of the faith. Should the collections from Peter's pence not improve, there is danger that infidelity and unbelief may increase.

Iquique, a small seaport town of Arequipa, South America, has been destroyed by fire. The town has about 1,000 inhabitants.

Cold, wintry weather has retarded the planting of the wheat crop in England, but the price of seed wheat continues high notwithstanding. The thrashings during the week show that the wheat has been damaged in the stacks by the exceedingly wet weather of the summer and autumn season, and every day gives proof of the inferiority and shortness of the crop. The price of American grain has an upward tendency in consequence.

Steamers arriving in New York report very stormy and heavy weather at sea, but no disasters yet reported.

27th.—A flood of rain at Cherbourg, France, destroyed much property and two children were drowned.

Persia is being overrun by the hostile Kurds.

A startling report comes from Afghanistan that Abdurrahman Kahn, the Ameer whom the English placed upon the throne of Cabul about the time that Gen. Roberts left that city for the relief of Candahar, has been murdered by the revolutionists, and that the city is in a state of anarchy. The report as yet lacks official confirmation, as no tidings at this writing have come from the Indian Office. Should it prove true, however, it will be one of the severest blows the English have yet received,—though their own forces are not involved,—since it overthrows English authority in Northern Afghanistan, and will necessitate another invasion and war if the Government is bent upon maintaining its influence there as against Russia. With this fresh calamity in Afghanistan, with a new outbreak of the savage tribes in South Africa against the authorities of the Colonial Government, with Ireland in a state of chaos, and with the Dulcigno business, of which England is the special champion, still unsettled, the burdens of the Liberal Government are rapidly on the increase.

Capital punishment has been abolished in Holland. Yesterday an effort to have it re-established was defeated in the Lower House of the Dutch Legislature by a vote of 41 to 20.

Between Saturday afternoon and Monday morning five different murders occurred at Danville, Virginia.

Great inundations in Brazil are reported and the loss of property is immense. A hundred houses, many mills, and all the bridges were destroyed, and crops carried away. Great distress prevails among the colonists. A few lives were lost.

28th.—Baron Von Haymerle, President of the Austrian Ministry, made a very important pronouncement on the Eastern question yesterday. Speaking to the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the Austrian Legislature, he said that the provisions of the Berlin Treaty with regard to the Montenegrin question should be enforced in their entirety. The surrender of Dulcigno, he said, would be carried out very soon, the present delay being a mere question of military etiquette as between Turkey and Montenegro. In reference to the Greek frontier question Baron Haymerle was not so decided, but he asserted that Austria favored the pretensions of Greece, while at the same time Austria would exert its influence for the maintenance of the Ottoman Empire in Europe. The Baron assured the Committee that Austria had acted in close concert with Germany throughout all the negotiations of the Eastern question.

A fire yesterday destroyed the Ansonia Watch and Clock Works at Brooklyn, New York. The works were the most complete of the kind in the United States. About 1,200 persons obtained employment in them. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000, and the insurance is about half that sum.

29th.—Mrs. Lincoln, widow of the martyr President, lies dangerously ill at the Clarendon Hotel at New York. She arrived in that city from France Wednesday.

The miners at Peru, Ill., struck yesterday for an advance of fifteen cents per ton, refusing a compromise of ten cents.

Two men whilst painting the outside of the Public Library Building at Cincinnati, yesterday, fell from a scaffold eighty feet above the sidewalk, and were killed. One of the hooks by which the scaffolding was held giving way was the cause of the accident.

Seven persons were killed by a railroad collision at Herstal, Belgium. Many others were injured.

At a meeting of the Federal Council of Prussia yesterday it was determined to enforce the Anti-Socialistic law. Under the provisions of the law all persons who are considered dangerous to the public peace or inimical to the established order of things must remove on the order of the Prussian police. The law will remain in force for one year.

Sitting Bull has made application to the War Department at Washington for terms of surrender. Gen. Terry is said to have been given full power to arrange the terms of the surrender, and to otherwise act in the matter.

On account of the great increase in trans-atlantic trade, several of the steamship companies are adding to the number of their vessels, and two new companies are projected.

During the nine months ending the 30th of September the value of the exports from this country exceeded the value of the imports by $73,760,430. Most of the imported articles are luxuries.

Gen. Charleite, at one time commander of the French troops sent by Napoleon III. to protect Rome against the Garibaldians, delivered a speech at a banquet, calculated to bring about civil war in France; for the utterance of which he will be prosecuted.

A terrific storm along the English and Irish coasts is reported, causing much damage at various points on sea and land. A schooner on entering Shields harbor foundered and all hands lost except the mate. Another vessel was dismantled and capsized and two lives were lost. Five other vessels are stranded and thirteen lives lost. The floods at Leeds have subsided, and hundreds of persons have been thrown out of employment. At Dublin fifty families were made homeless by the storm. Railroad traffic at Bradford was impeded by rain and snow.

Great excitement prevails in Dublin. It is stated that warrants have been issued for the arrest of members of the Land League.

Part of the stem and one of the arches known to have belonged to the lost Alpena were picked up a few miles south of St. Joseph, yesterday.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the Board of Trustees of the People's Church of Chicago, to extend a call to the Rev. H. W. Thomas, D. D. to preach for the above church, and a committee formed to issue the call, which with the reply, we give as follows: "Whereas, the Rock River Conference of the M. E. Church, at its late session at Rockford, Ill., after having passed your character, and by a majority vote, without just cause, requested you to withdraw from the church and ministry, thereby necessitating you, on your part, to ask for a supernumerary relation; therefore we, the Trustees, as authorized by the Board of Directors, extend to you a call from 'The People's Church of Chicago' to preach the Gospel upon such a broad and evangelical platform as to you may seem in accordance with the will of God and best promotion of His cause in the welfare of mankind." To which Dr. Thomas replied: "Having felt it best not to continue in the regular work during the pendency of the question of doctrinal differences with the Church, my relations to the Conference are such that I am free to engage in any form of ministry I may desire; and, being in entire sympathy with your broad evangelical principles and the work you propose to do, I cheerfully accept your offer of this date to become the pastor of the 'People's Church of Chicago.' Services will be held at Hooley's Theatre, and tickets for seats be for sale at the box office, at from $5 to $10 per year. It is expected the whole of the seats will be sold in two days.

A locomotive of peculiar construction has just been built which it is claimed will run ninety miles an hour, while the machinery will run no faster than that of an ordinary engine running sixty miles.

30th.—A mammoth safe deposit vault has been shipped to San Francisco, by the Diebold Safe and Lock Co., of Canton, O., which cost $100,000, and took forty cars to transport it across the continent. It was fourteen feet high, twenty-seven feet wide, and thirty-two feet deep.

A careful recapitulation of the ravages of the great storm of October 16th, on the lakes shows that upward of $500,000 damage was done to vessels and cargoes, and that ninety-three persons perished. There were seventeen total wrecks, involving a loss of $153,900, and in all sixty-six vessels were damaged to a greater or less extent.

A wholesale coffee and dried fruit dealer, of Buffalo, made an assignment yesterday. Liabilities $100,000. Preferred debts $23,720.

A colored man was hung at Liberty, Va., for murder; he maintained his innocence to the last.

Garibaldi's condition grows worse; he lies in a precarious state at Rome, and his death may be expected at any moment, as his constitution is completely shattered by his last trip from his island home.

The Chicago Exposition this year was visited by 400,000 people.

The Pacific coast whalers report an unusually large catch this season.

Egypt is dispatching troops to the Abyssinian frontier.

Fifty-five thousand emigrants, arrived in the United States during the month of September.

Eleven million francs in French gold reached New York on Wednesday, also enough German gold to make the whole shipment three millions of gold by one steamer.

Dr. Tanner, the faster, has made arrangements with Dr. Richardson, of London, to fast in that city.

The severe storm which recently prevailed along the Danish coast caused great loss of life and much damage to vessel property.

The king of Greece has issued a decree ordering the formation of fifty battalions of infantry of 960 men each.

The epizootic has reached Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and many cases are reported. Some of the horses bleed at the nose considerably. Only three cases are reported fatal.

A sugar factory at South Leavenworth, Kansas, was totally destroyed by fire; loss $100,000. Fifteen thousand gallons of syrup were lost. A flouring mill at Faribault, Minn.; loss $20,000. At Baltimore, Md., a furnishing goods house burned; loss $25,000.

Two passenger trains collided near Steubenville, O., killing five men and injuring two.

It is proposed by wealthy capitalists to establish a new line of steamers between Milford, in Wales, and New York. It is expected that some of the vessels will make the trip between Milford and New York in six days.

A fire at Bridgewater, Penn., destroyed two dwellings. An old lady eighty years of age, too feeble to help herself, was consumed in the flames. Two little boys, who were in the habit of carrying coal for the old lady, are missing, and supposed to have perished.

A citizen at Norwich, Conn., well known as a liberal giver for religious objects, has offered $25,000 for a new translation of the Bible in which the doctrine of baptism by immersion shall receive what he considers its just prominence.

A farm servant plowing near Rosenberg, in West Prussia, lately turned up an earthenware pot containing about 6,000 old coins. They were so-called "hollow pennies" of Teutonic knights, and belonged to the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries.

The remains of apparently an important Roman dwelling have been discovered in the woods of Lillebonne, near Folleville, in France.

An archaeological discovery is reported from Greece. It is the finding of some of the bodies of the Theban Holy Band, who, 300 strong, were annihilated by the Macedonians at Chaeronea B. C. 338. The bodies of the dead heroes are admirably preserved, and ranged in parallel rows of 40 each, the wounds which proved fatal to the gallant Thebans being clearly discernible in every case. The bodies are found about four metres under ground, beneath the ruins of a colossal memorial lion,—the lion of Chaeronea.

A new electrical street lamp lighter has been exhibited in Boston with marked success. In three circuits about three miles of wire are laid. In an instant every lamp connected with the wire is lighted.

The remains of an American elephant were discovered about four miles southeast of Noblesville, Ind., by some men who were digging a ditch.

The bones are in a good state of preservation, and are a wonderful curiosity. The animal inhabited the country a great many thousand years ago, and was much larger than the ordinary elephant.

There were seven hours continuous rain yesterday in the City of Reggio di Calabria, Italy. Seventeen persons were killed in two neighboring villages by the cottages being swept down.

The religious decrees were carried out to-day against the Capuchins at Perpignan and Marseilles, France. The police were obliged to force the doors. Several Legitimists, including the editor of the Citoyen, were arrested for abetting resistance to the decrees.

The war between the Basutos and kindred tribes and the South African colonists continues, and the disaffection among the tribes is spreading rapidly. Two Colonial Magistrates, have been murdered by the rebels, who seem to keep up a desultory war, avoiding engagements in the open field with the Colonial troops as much as possible. The Cape authorities claim victories for their troops, but the fact that they have called for 3,000 volunteers indicates that the situation is serious, and not so pleasing as they pretend to think.

The inhabitants of Dulcigno have determined not to surrender their town without a bitter contest, and will not allow Turkish troops to enter; armed men are posted at every available point to resist all who make the attempt, whether Turks or Montenegrins. Riza Pasha pretends he is trying to prevent communication between the people of the town and hill tribes, but he is not a very reliable person.

Correspondence.

NEBRASKA CITY, Nebraska,
October 20th, 1880.

Dear Herald:—This is my affirmation of an abiding faith and confidence in the principles of life and salvation, as couched in the promises of Christ, by the intelligence revealed through the administration of angels and the Holy Spirit, during the present and past dispensations. From the time of my last writing up to the sitting of the Semi-Annual Conference, I was constantly employed in preaching the word, and that with some degree of success, as I was permitted to lead fifteen into the water, and I trust that our heavenly Father, in his loving kindness, canceled their sins and gave the seal of acceptance. I had much to inspire and encourage, and a little of the opposite character. Only once did I find it necessary to ask for financial aid, and then I had to be satisfied with disappointment. From all the places where I was permitted to unfurl the ensign of the coming kingdom, I have received kind and pressing requests to return and minister more in word and doctrine; with some prospect of not only making friends, but of obtaining disciples. After a close canvass, and an impartial consideration, I can say that at no time during our history in this part of the vineyard has the opportunity been so good, or the demand so widespread as now. And my soul is so burdened that I am unable to find words adequate to express my feelings while thinking, how poor are and meagre are the provisions for sending the heralds of light into this vast field, already white for the harvest. Judging from the record of past labor, and my experience and knowledge, little or nothing can be expected from the local ministry further than an indubitable effort at keeping up the branch organizations.

The foregoing stricture is especially true of the district of which I am a member, and should any other think the thought expressed appropriate to their condition, I herewith grant my permission to its adoption, as there is no monopoly or patent secured. Had not this district such an "official largeness," this feeling of unrest would not be upon us so strongly; it is therefore necessary to formulate an excuse for the incompatibility between the labor accomplished and the numerous laborers periodically returned upon the statistical reports. Advanced age is an honorable plea for some; religious paralysis, which is a very obstinate, if not an incurable ill, has swept not a few from our working ranks; secular vocations, engaged in for a livelihood and otherwise, retards the usefulness of some. And thus the most important duty of all Saints, the proclamation of the gospel is not only crippled, but woefully neglected. I trust it will not always be so.

And now I write a few words upon a subject that has caused me pain of heart, for a considerable time, and more especially during the late Fall Conference. The expression was made in relation to the finance of the Church, that there was a "favored few," who ruled or controlled the affairs of the Church, and were the privileged ones (with their favorites), to receive help. I believe that the circulating of such words or expressions is detrimental to the unison contemplated in the revelations for the government of the Church; therefore I shall be very slow to admit, or believe that any favoritism, or chicanery has or can obtain a foothold in the Church. But on the other hand I asseverate without reservation, or compunction of conscience, that if with alacrity we comply with God's command: "Therefore, let every man stand in his own office, and labor in his own calling;" there will be no time for fault-finding; neither will "mole hills become mountains" to our eyes. To my view, the Church as seen in the divine kaleidoscope, is supremely grand in its symmetrical appointments, and this very fact is to me the best authority that it is not possible for man by his own wisdom to form and continue the church that God acknowledges from on high; but as the Author of eternal salvation said, "Man shall live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." And so will the Church be able to continue its life. However, this was said of spirit life, and not of the temporal life, and as said by one of our active Apostles, My family can not live on "wind-pudding," neither has the secret of Dr. Tanner's "medicated air" been divulged this far west. I, by the parental ties, must provide that the larder shall not be empty, lest I should be called worse than an infidel; and when I have discharged my duty to my family I will try to "occupy" faithfully for the Master. My harp shall not be hung upon the willow, but to the best of my ability shall the gospel clarion be sounded, until the camp fires of truth have been kindled throughout the fair land of Zion. Having no compromise with sin or its votaries, I desire to remain upon the watch-tower in behalf of the unchangeable plan of redemption,

Yours in Christ,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

Bro. Joseph Smith.—I have made a visit to the principal branches of the district, and have been received by all with respect. Baptized two at Santa Rosa, and blessed one child, all relations of Bro. Joseph Clapp. I find the district in a luke warm condition, some branches almost in a disorganized state, and very seldom coming together to hold meetings; and some I can not find in an organized condition at all, also much dissatisfaction towards Elders who have labored in the past, the cause you are aware of; and it will take time to heal wounds some have seemingly received.

But, if care be taken in the future to avoid all such, the trouble will be overcome. The district is not in as good a condition as I expected to find it. I do not pretend to judge the past, but it seems to me there has been too much jealousy among some, and too much fault-finding with others.

The prospect of the future in the district to me is not very flattering. To hear of so much contention in the past, and the indifference of the world to listen to the gospel, I must say I do not feel highly encouraged, although we have settled some of the troubles, and will try and adjust all others. Some justify themselves in their want of faith, thus: they say it is difficult for them to know what principles the Church will yet receive or reject, and they are going to wait until the Church sets forth its faith or belief in doctrines some in the Church have declared their unbelief in. All such know that the principles the Church has spoken upon are right, and that ought to satisfy them concerning the future.

There are also some that have great faith in the future prosperity of the work of the Lord, and are willing to do all they can to assist its advancement. We have not many traveling Elders in the mission at present. I am willing to do all I can to advance the work. We had a very quiet conference, all seemed satisfied with it; and I have been reappointed to the charge of this district. I do not know that I can accomplish all I would like, but I will do all I can to set things in order. If you have any advice to give I would be glad to hear from you. My family were well when last I heard from them. I remain your brother in the gospel covenant.

Bro. Joseph.—I am now preaching in Johnson county, Missouri, about sixty miles east of Independence. I came here by the pressing invitation of the people. Have been preaching out in country at a large church. The congregation has been steadily increasing, and last night I preached to the largest congregation I ever spoke to, except at the General Conference. The people seem to be interested, and I trust that good may be done in time, as I think it will take time to accomplish it here. The people told me last night to go on and preach as long as I wanted to, they would pay the expenses. But I have to close this week, as the Christian Church will use the house next Sunday. I am not well in body at present, but trust that God will bless us. Love to Joseph and all in the office.

Yours in hope,

W. T. BOZARTH.

ST. THOMAS, Ontario,

November 1st, 1880.

Bro. Joseph.—I have just returned from the field of labor. I left home on June 11th to attend the Osborne conference. From that I went to work with my hands for a few weeks, to get money to send to my wife, which I succeeded in. But during the time I was working, I employed every Sabbath in preaching, and at the end of which time I went forth into the ministry, calling first on the Saints at Egremont, in Grey county, where I tarried a few days, baptized three, preached many times there at Mt. Forest, a town of about 1700 inhabitants, where three of the Egremont Branch members are living. I received very many kind attentions from the Saints in Egremont, by giving me personal comforts, clothes, money, and, what is better, the love of Saints. From Egremont I visited Alliston, a town of 1660 inhabitants, in Simcoe county, where I found an old-time Saint, Mr. John McMullin, baptized by Bro. Lake in 1838 or '39 [1868 or '69.—Ed.], I need the particulars from Bro. Stebbins, if he has them. Also two old-time Saints, Bro. — Mooney and his faithful partner this many years in the gospel. They were baptized in 1840. A daughter of hers, I also found at this place, who belongs to the London Branch. I knew nothing of any certainty concerning them, but I found in them kind friends and worthy brethren, with whom I found a hearty welcome. They hired a hall for me to preach in, which I endeavored to do to the best of my ability, preaching thirteen times; the first night giving a distinctive outline between the Reorganized Church and the various factions of apostates; thereby removing a mountain of prejudice in a few words. In general the people know nothing of the Latter Day Saints but as Mormonism, meaning Brighamism and all the attendant curses attached to that "doctrine of devils." Ending my first night's discourse with a brief of the faith. The next three nights we labored to show the primitive apostasy of the early christians, followed by five discourses on the restoration, quoting the Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants and Bible freely. The remaining discourses were chiefly on the plan of salvation, particularly baptism and the latter-day apostasy; as it became apparent that one evening should be devoted to that subject to satisfy the enquiries of some, after proving the absolute total apostasy of the primitive Christianity. The result of the few evenings thus briefly devoted to the subjects was that nine were baptized, and several others say they will be; while as a general thing the feeling is very favorable. The best of attention was paid to all we had to say; a few questions of very little moment were asked and endeavored to be answered. The fire of love and zeal is kindled on the hearts of the Saints there, whom I left without any form of organization, exhorting them to meet often and pray much. I also received temporal benefits from them, for which I return them and the brethren at Egremont thanks, which words but poorly express.

Leaving Alliston I came to Wellington county, Garafraxa township, near Douglas village, on the Credit Valley railroad, preached five discourses and was equally as well treated by the kind friends here as if they were brethren. I might mention Mr. John Moffat, James Dyce, John Jordan and his kind old father and mother, his Uncle William and others, whom for want of space will excuse my not mentioning. These kind friends assisted me with means to take me homeward. Mr. John Moffat drove from his home the previous evening to be at the meeting and take me home with him, (four miles), and on the next morning drove me nine miles to Fergus station; from there I took railroad home; where on arriving my previous joy was saddened by the state of the branch here. Petty spite; the cause tattling, talebearing, busybodies in other men's affairs, envy and several kindred evils are the disturbing elements here at present, as well as with a few in London. As a general rule, this class will neither submit to be labored with, nor try to do right; always quoting scripture to try and justify their evil deeds. For example, the drunkard quotes Paul, "Use no longer water but wine for your . . . often infirmities." The liar dodges behind Abraham telling Abimileck that his wife was his sister; and as God blessed these men, they draw conclusions to justify their evil deeds, to-day. Such was Brighamism, that because reprobates perverted the law of God, and were permitted to live and prosper through God's mercy, by practicing polygamy, "Therefore," says Brighamites, "we have a right to do the same."

Now I wish to say in conclusion, that the cases referred to are the exception, and not the rule; but among all the other branches in the London District an excellent spirit prevails and peace abounds to the glory of God. The summary result of my year's labor, beginning October 10th, 1879, is as follows: Preached 164 times; led 21 prayer and testimony meetings, traveled 1866 miles; baptized 32; confirmed 34; assisted 6; blessed several children; held one debate; made 11 new openings; administered to several sick with good results, in nearly every case, some immediately; besides administering the sacrament on three or four occasions, and trying to cheer and comfort the Saints by such instruction as I was able to give; but lacked wisdom in many things myself. And now as I have not been sustained by the late district conference, I must desist for awhile from laboring, and try to provide for home. I have received from Bishop's Agent $3.50 during the nearly thirteen months labor; yet I have nothing to complain of, and much to rejoice for. May God prosper the work in this part, and raise in power what has been sown in weakness.

Yours fraternally in the gospel,

J. A. MCINTOSH.

Ed. Herald.—This writing finds me at Minersville, on the north line of Cloud county, with "Uncle Billy" and Sr. Williams, formerly of Scranton, Pennsylvania. Am on my way to fill the appointment assigned me by our late quarterly conference, i.e., assisting the Elmira Branch of Mitchel county in a two day meeting. Sr. Williams is a member of our (Prairie Home) Branch. Since last writing we have added three worthy adult members, and have organized a Sabbath School. I would suggest to brethren in mining localities farther east, that if they desire to try their fortunes in the west that here is a good demand for miners, and they would find a hearty welcome and remunerative employment along with Sr. William's family. But no one need come to this part of Kansas who have not one of these three requisites: will, muscle, or financial means. And if all three are combined, the road to prosperity is a wide one, if wisdom and integrity stand at the helm. Any miner looking westward, also a good blacksmith would do well. Address Uriah Williams, Minersville, Republic county, Kansas.

JOHN D. BENNETT.

LONDON, England,
September 30th, 1880.

Bro. J. Smith:—I have never seen your face, and probably shall never set foot upon the land so honorably distinguished as the birth place of one so signally honored of God as your father, whom, not having seen, I love as a young and unworthy brother in the same heavenly fold. Feeling much of the good Spirit from time to time, on reading the letters of many dear Saints in the Herald, it occurred to me that possibly you, in the land where this glorious latter day work goes forward so prosperously, would not despise to hear the testimony of one of your young and unworthy brethren in the old country; where, as yet, it is a hard and trying task to win even one over to the side of holiness and gospel truth, as laid down by our blessed Lord.

Being a Priest in the London Branch, No. 2, it may interest some to know how I first came to discover the light which I had always been taught had been quenched forever after the decease of the early apostles and martyrs of the Christian Church. I was a constant and regular attendant at the United Methodist Free Church, Canning Town, London East, of which place I was organist. On a certain morning in December, 1879, a brother, then a total stranger to me, called at my house, with a friend whom I knew, for the purpose of a walk and a talk upon the things of eternal interest. During our conversation, the brother broached the subject of baptism for the remission of sins, a doctrine which then excited considerable opposition on my part; but upon the brother remarking that the gifts of tongues, prophecy and interpretation of tongues were in the Reorganized Latter Day Saints' meetings, and that he himself had been healed of a paralytic stroke, while many others had received remarkable testimonies, the words of the Apostle Paul concerning these gifts occurred instantly to my mind, and I resolved to go to the meeting, at Hackney, and see for myself. Accordingly I went, and must testify truly, that a far greater power of God's Spirit was poured upon me than I had ever felt before, even to weeping.

But my surprise was turned into a deeper feeling, when, upon the Saints waiting upon God in silent prayer at the close of the meeting, a prophecy was given through a brother, addressed to my unworthy self, which told me not only scenes in my past life which no man knows, but actually followed out my thoughts one by one, even while they passed through my mind, and I can further testify, that all things prophesied concerning me in that revelation and in the many subsequent ones, have indeed come to pass, even to my enjoying of the holy gifts of God's Spirit, though but nine months have elapsed since that time; and never shall I forget the mighty outpouring of the Spirit when I first received the gift of prophecy, nor the subsequent aching of my neck and shoulders for three days and nights, which assured me that, contrary to the suggestions of Satan and even my own heart, the words were not the expression of my own thoughts, no such aching ever accompanying the speaking of my own ideas. This particular sensation has almost always accompanied me since then, in giving forth the words of the Lord, which is, itself, the fulfillment of a prophecy given to me some time back, that even my very bones should rejoice in the Lord my God, when He was pleased to speak through me. I have seen no less than seven visions since I have been in the Church. On one occasion I was ascending the stairs of an office in Leadenhall street, city, and when just about to enter an office, I saw, on the landing near me a very tall, dark individual looking at me with a very benevolent countenance, and at the same time I heard a short sentence in tongues, which I have since been informed through the Spirit, was a Nephite tongue; and on going to speak to this dear brother, he instantly vanished out of my sight.

On another occasion, having been with another Priest, trying to exalt the name of our gracious God and his true gospel in the open air, a very untoward circumstance happened, but it formed as great a testimony as I have ever had. The preaching place was at Shackelwell Lane, Stoke Newington, London, and during our preaching, a man kept on a course of violent opposition for a period of upwards of an hour. The Spirit then said to me, "Except this man repent of his opposing, I, the Lord, will visit him in wrath, and that speedily," or words to that effect; almost immediately the other brother said aloud the same words, almost word for word, without any communication of the words from myself to him; and in five minutes from that time the man was run over by a passing cart, and led away by his friends in the utmost agony. That same night, feeling much solemnized at this occurrence I asked the Lord for a token whether I was to understand this as a visitation from God, when I distinctly saw opposite me in a vision the same dark, tall man I have before mentioned. This makes no less than twenty-one separate and miraculous testimonies I have already received.

Praying that the light of divine truth may yet shine brilliantly in this beloved island by our humble means, I am your sincere brother.

Bro. J. Smith:—Our District conference convened on the 23d instant, as per announcement. A good representation was in attendance, and a most excellent feeling prevailed. I think there was not a jar of discord seen or felt during the session. Outsiders listened attentively, and the Saints were comforted and confirmed in the faith, at the preaching of the word. The Spirit was present at times, in much power, both in preaching and testimony, assuring us that the Lord is yet mindful of his people and work. This session will be remembered as one of the pleasantest that has been held in the district. The Saints returned home built up in the faith, renewed in spirit, and resolved to continue the Christian warfare—hold on to the "rod of Iron"—labor and wait, with patience and faithfulness, until their work is done or the Master comes to receive them home. Thank the Lord for the gospel of the last days.

W. H. KELLEY.

CLINTON, Iowa, November 2d, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—We baptized three more last Sunday and confirmed them Sunday evening, making fifteen here in Clinton altogether. We organized on the 5th of September, and are demonstrating practically the tithing system. Our first month's tithing amounted to $16.65, out of which we owe hall rent, fuel and lights, and for service of Elder, reserving one-tenth of all for general Church treasury—$1.67 per month. Carry out this system in all the branches in proportion to their number and financial ability, and every branch, district, and mission interest would be amply provided for. Why not do so. It is the Lord's plan, and he has promised a blessing upon it. Why do the Elders try to invent some other way? Can they possibly think that they can improve on the Lord's plan? If so others are not so much to be blamed after all for their attempted improvements and detractions of the doctrine and government of the gospel. For if the law of God is unchangeable, tithing certainly is unchangeable, for it is a very important part of the law. "Render unto God the things that are God's," is the language of Him who never made a mistake, nor corrected a sentence. We are all poor here and have our rents to pay, for we own no homes, and have our families to support; yet we can pay the Lord his dues, and feel blessed in so doing. We hope this may stimulate other to "go and do likewise."

The sympathy expressed in your welcome letter did me much good—still hold your humble brother up to a throne of grace, for we know that your prayers are of much avail; and we will "fight it out on this line." We fully indorse the retrenchment of the Semi-Annual Conference, for it is unjust to send Elders into the field, and then let their families suffer. I also enjoyed "the voice of the Spirit" to the Elders in last Herald. Let those vexed questions be settled in their proper places. It certainly seems presumptuous for any individual Elder to criticize and condemn the actions of courts, quorums, councils and conferences; and that too without access to the evidence in the case. And still more, the party so condemning not belonging to said quorum, court or conference. Let us remember, brethren, that "consistency is a jewel."

Bro. C. G. Lanphere was here last Sunday and gave us two good, sound, gospel sermons. Our young Saints here liked him and were edified by the word spoken. He is the first Elder visiting here besides the home ones.

Truly yours in bonds and love,
JOSE BROWN.

October 24th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—I have reason to rejoice over the peaceable conference we had at Washington Corners, October 6th and 7th. There was preaching in the evening of the 6th by Bro. Wm. Anderson, of Oakland, and Richard Smith, of San Juan; on the evening of the 7th, preaching by Bro. T. J. Andrews and G. Lincoln of San Francisco; large attendance both evenings, and good sermons preached. Business was transacted in an orderly manner, by President John Carmichael, who is continued in the District. Some trouble has been settled and the remainder of the troubles must be settled, because the word "cant" is not found in this District, any more. Bro. Carmichael has laid out the battle field, and has instructed the presidents of branches, that the Elders in their branches do not idle away their time on Sunday, if they can not devote their time during the week days; by this movement he means work.

I am desirous to discharge my duty in connection with Bro. Carmichael in this District. I have the Oakland Branch to look after. The branch is doing well, and consider what we have went through for this two years. I remember your advice, to keep a stiff upper lip. I did so, and through the help of the Spirit of revelation I have been able to keep the branch together thus far. The wolves are about in sheeps clothing; but I think there will be but few who will not hear the true shepherd's voice and keep within the fold. Pray for us that we come out victorious in the end, is the desire and prayer of your brother in the gospel of peace,

D. J. PHILLIPS.

MANCHESTER, Red River Co., Texas,

Dear Herald:—The Saints are tolerably well here, except one Sister Stuart, who is and has been for two weeks quite sick. We all feel that we are growing in the knowledge of the latter-day-work, and bear our testimony to its being the work of our heavenly Father. We are still persecuted, proscribed and evil spoken of, for Christ's sake.

Yours in the one faith,
B. T. ST. JOHN.

GALIEN, Michigan,
October 9th, 1880.

Dear Herald:—I notice in Herald of September 15th, page 290, an article headed "Address." This article denounces the democrats as bad men. A class of men under the name of Democrats might have committed wrongs at the time spoken of by the brother, but "What is a name; but a vain title of that which is not." I am classed with the Democrats, and hold there is as much integrity and justice administered by the Democrats as the Republicans.

I don't think it good to engage in political strife. Let every man act free and unbiased. I love my country, but God Almighty more. All governments from the time of the Patriarchs have been established by force of arms and human destruction. Imperfect governments—sooner or later they will fall by the same means by which they were established. If they were not imperfect there would be no need of the "kingdoms of this world becoming the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ." If the blood of one man cried to God from the earth, what must be the cry at the present day. Millions of human beings' hands, directly or indirectly, are stained with their fellow beings' blood.

"Every battle of the warrior is with confused noise and garments rolled in blood." "But the truth is with burning and fuel of fire." Now when we look at the political world as it is, I think the brother and I ought to engage in a higher calling than politics.

I hope I am your brother in the truth,
CYRUS THURSTON.

PORT SANILAC, Michigan,
October 23d, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I have been in the ministry some of the time this year, traveling with Elder John J. Cornish; and I thought it proper to state that we have done much good together. Also, that I have found out a little of what the Elders have to contend with while battling with the world. I visited Canada last Spring; also, went to London again this Fall; and I find the work is onward. On the 11th of this month, Elder Cornish and I went out to Bro. F. W. Burnham's in Tuscola county, found them in the faith; also found several glad to hear our views, some of whom I feel confident will soon obey. From there we returned home, Bro. Cornish to go to the two days meeting at Guilford, and I to prepare for the lumberwoods, to work for my financial affairs. And in the Spring, if the Lord is willing, I shall resume my labors in the field with Bro. Cornish again, for I like laboring with him, because of his integrity of character, uncorrupted principle, and exceeding earnestness in the great work of the latter days. Brethren, I rejoice in this work, and I want to spread it. I believe the time is not far distant when the great clock of time shall say, It is done, and we shall meet our Savior in the air. O, what a meeting that will be! Hearts shall rush to hearts, and hands to hands, and lips, long silent, shall press one another again. And what hallelujahs shall be caught up, by the pinions of the morning, as a voice speaks aloud: "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joys of thy Lord." Then, beloved Saints, let us be faithful; and with united efforts go forth, and promulgate the eternal principles of truth, that Zion's cause may prosper in the land, until the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our God and his Christ, and we shall reign with him through countless ages of eternity. Hoping and praying for the advancement of the cause, and the prosperity of Zion's children, I remain your brother in the gospel of peace,
WILLARD J. SMITH.

LAMONI, Iowa, Oct. 31st, 1880.

Dear Herald:—I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how I feel. I am getting along very well considering all things; but feel very lonely since my father left. I do not believe it is right for him to go from home now. My father left home when I was eleven years old, and was gone five years and seven months—a long while. Who is there that will go for so long a time. Tell me the man. They go, and some come home in six months, some in a year, others in one year and a half. Is it right? Do you think it is right? I don't believe it. I was small when my father left for Australia, and when he got back I could not realize that it was he; hardly knew him as a father. I had done for myself so long that I almost knew not what a father was. Now he has been home some over a year; he goes again, just as I begin to realize him a father and a friend, one to advise and talk with. I tell you it is hard. I have felt the loss of advice from a father while a boy; no kind words only from my mother, brother and sisters. Instead of this, I got, "Well, get along the best you can." I don't believe in so long missions. And now you want to send him back to Australia in the Spring,—ten thousand miles. It makes me mad when I think about it. It is so unreasonable. I don't believe in it at all. The rest of you can stay home with your families, and all is comfortable; but if you have to go, it is awful.

I don't like it. I feel to turn away and don't want to see any one. This morning I went home, opened the door and all was lonely. Then I went in, looked round, went out to the barn, then turned back; went into the house, I felt so bad I had to cry. No father was there; he went last Wednesday morning. I could not go to meeting, nor any place else, I was not contented. I spent the day with my folks and returned back here, where I work. I could not go to night meeting, I didn't feel like it, so I thought I would write a few lines this evening. You may never hear from me again in the Herald. I hope you will not send him to the islands of the sea again, for I am afraid it would break up the family, which would be wrong. Well, I must close, asking God to bless him in his travels that he may return home safe again. From
JOSEPH B. RODGER.

UNDER this date Elder J. S. Comstock writes as follows:

"Oct. 8th, 1880.—I desire that my name and request be published in the Herald, if the Editor thinks it proper to do so, as one who is willing to become a member of the body under the presidency of Joseph Smith, and to take the place of a private member, or any such part as may be thought my duty.

As to the hated question of polygamy, no one can say in truth any thing against me on that score. And this also may be made public, as my statement, if any desire it. I verily believe if it had not been for the slur of polygamy, Mormonism, as it is called, or rather believers in the Book of Mormon would have been far more numerous to-day. Prejudice is so strong that people generally are blind towards all that bear the name of Mormon, and deaf also. I am glad if by any means prejudice can be removed. And I know of no better way than what has been pursued by the Reorganization. Hickey owns that "Joseph has done well on the whole." I think so too. And now I hope for no more disputations nor contentions about it. All was well meant no doubt; let the time of this ignorance and folly be winked at, is my petition and my hope. Truth will stand upon its own basis. But some truth must be covered up or withheld from before the public gaze, for the people can not endure to look at it in its nakedness. It was for this plain unmasked truth as proclaimed by Jesus that they killed him to get rid of it. He called them all manner of bad names, such as thieves and robbers, liars, of their father the devil, who lied from the beginning; hypocrites, and whited sepulchers full of dead mens bones, and all manner of uncleanness.

Brother Joseph, I want you to know that the preceding pages of this letter were penned just before your very kind favor came, late last night. I was very glad to get it. Your reasoning is sound, and it ought to be perfectly satisfactory to every reasonable mind.

That point is now settled, and settled upon the sure foundation of God's word as contained in the Book of Mormon, together with your very plain exposition of that word. And by your showing I now see one more ray of light than has before ever dawned upon my mind. The shadows which troubled me are removed. Of all books, sacred and profane, the Book of Mormon is the only one by which polygamy can be shut out of the Church of God, and its adherents disfellowshipped. Not only, or rather I may say that by that book the fact is verily proved that the present is not the first and only generation in which no man could enter into the Church of Christ with more than one wife. No argument can be raised on the score of "multiplying," so long as adding two ones together is forbidden. "No man among you shall have but one." Of course if there is a prophet, priest, or king among us he is shut out by this commandment or law of God. That is so, and can't be dodged so long as this law is in force, and it must remain in force until it is countermanded or made void by a new revelation or command by Him made known, who gave this law. For so says the word. And as this law was given to the Church through its Oracle, or Chief Shepherd, so also must it be revoked, if ever it should be, in the same manner.

Hence it follows conclusively, that the present Chief Shepherd of Christ's fold is not bound to justify, or fellowship any man who abides not this law, until God himself gives the license."

Conference Minutes.

WELSH MISSION.

The quarterly conference of the Western District of the above mission was held at the house of Bro. Evan Davies, Llansamlet, September 26th, 1880; Alma N. Bishop, president; B. Davies, secretary. Prayer by Elder John Samuel. An opening address by Elder J. R. Gibbs.

Miscellaneous.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice.

MARRIED.

HARRINGTON—PARKER.—By Elder Joseph Luff, at the Saints' meeting house, Independence, Mo., on Sabbath, October 31st, 1880, Brother George Edgar Harrington to Sister Mary Ellen Parker; both of Armstrong, Kansas, and formerly of London, Ontario.

How sweet the union—here two loving hearts
Their mutual pledge declare,
While Heaven's silent messenger imparts
Rich fragrance to the air;
And all assembled seem to understand,
And own the felt impress—
That he who joined the heart now joins the hand,
And will the blending bless.

CAIN—ARMSTRONG.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near South Bend, Cass county, Nebraska, October 26th, 1880, by Elder Heman C. Smith, Brother Jacob A. Cain and Sister Mary A. Armstrong, both of Platte River Branch.

So far seeing was our Mollie,
That ere sixteen years had passed,
She procured a Cain to lean on,
When old age should come at last.
O may that Cain be firm and true,
Through all the storms of life;
And Mollie prove, through weal and woe,
A faithful, loving wife.

GRIFFITHS—EVANS.—At the bride's father's, Cleveland, Lucas county, Iowa, by Elder John Watkins, Brother John Griffiths and Sister Jane Evans; both of this place.

"Like the meeting of the waters
In the vale of pleasant streams,
In that fair and sunny Eden
That we sometimes see in dreams;
Like two threads of shining silver
Woven in a perfect cord;
These two lives, which hence forever
Are as one in Christ the Lord."

DIED.

COLE.—At Leland's Grove, Shelby county, Iowa, January 26th, 1880, of inflammation of the lungs, Zachariah Cole; born February 27th, 1826. He was confined to his bed one week. He was baptized at Florence, Nebraska, May, 1866; he leaves a wife who greatly mourns his death.

MICKELSON.—At Nebraska City, Neb, October 12th, 1880, of typhoid fever, Bro. Christian Mickelson; born at Hjøring, Wensysul, Denmark, October 4th, 1830. He leaves a wife and two children. Funeral discourse by Elder Knud Johnson, to a large concourse of saints and friends. He resided in this city sixteen years. His end was peace.

FROST.—At Bennett, Nebraska, August 27th, 1880, of cholera morbus, Bro. Charles Frost, aged 75 years, 3 months and 7 days. He was born at Nottingham, England, May 20th, 1805; obeyed the gospel in 1847; emigrated to Utah 1863; joined the Reorganized Church in 1864, and in 1865 returned to Nebraska with his wife and two sons. His two sons survive him. He passed peacefully away, after five days of sickness. Funeral service by Elder William Lane.

SHACKLETON.—At the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Welsh, in Platte county, Nebraska, September 7th, 1880, Bro. S. R. Shackleton. He was born December 26th, 1807, at Burnly, Lancashire, England; united with the Church in 1840; emigrated to Nauvoo in 1842, and went to Winter Quarters, or Kanessville, in 1857. He took a saw mill and grist mill to Genoa, in Nebraska, where a settlement was established for the relief of what was known as the hand-cart company, and at the breaking up of the settlement he returned to Florence, on the Missouri River. On October 16th, 1864, he united with the Reorganization, being baptized by Henry Halliday, confirmed by B. V. Springer, and ordained an Elder at the same time.

Bro. Shackleton was one of those rare specimens of God's handiwork,—an honest man, a sincere friend, and an unflinching adherent to the latter day work. Having been educated in the Roman Church, his deliverance into God's marvelous light, wrought in him a humble and thankful spirit. He endured intense bodily suffering for some months, and the release of the spirit came the more welcome, and, with calm assurance and trust, he passed away. Elder Henry J. Hudson preached the funeral sermon from 1 Thess. 4:14, by request made shortly before his death.

THOMAS.—At Bevier, Missouri, September 16th, 1880, Tommy, son of John and Jane B. Thomas, aged 3 years, 1 month and 14 days.

Whilst in this tomb our Tommy lies,
His spirit rests above;
In realms of bliss it never dies,
But knows a Savior's love.

GALLAN.—From the effects of a cut in the knee with a corn knife, Abel W. Gallan, at Deloit, Crawford county, Iowa, September 17th, 1880; age 24 years and 4 days. The deceased was raised in the Church and blest under the hands of the Elders when four or five years old, but never embraced the gospel. He was a young man of moral excellence, having a good reputation wherever known. Funeral discourse preached in the Saints' Chapel, at Deloit, October 3rd, 1880, by Elder Joseph R. Lambert.

KELSO.—At Braidwood, Will county, Illinois, June 26th, 1880, of cholera morbus, Bro. William Kelso, aged 36 years, 11 months and 5 days. Deceased united with the Church in May, 1879; was ordained a Teacher two weeks before his death; he lived a faithful and consistent life, and departed strong in the faith; he leaves a widow and six children, who, with the Church at Braidwood, mourn his departure. Funeral service by Elder J. S. Patterson; text, Job 14:14, "If a man die, shall he live again?" before a large and attentive audience, in the M. E. Church.

TWELLS.—At Sandwich, Illinois, October 11th, 1880, Sister Sarah Twells, aged 71 years, 2 months and 7 days. She was born in England in 1809, obeyed the gospel there and went to Utah; but with her husband, Elder Matther Twells saw the rightful leadership taught by the Reorganized Church and was baptized in Salt Lake City in 1869, by Elder D. H. Smith. Her husband dying some years afterwards. She came East in 1875, and was cared for by the Saints and the Church till her death. Funeral sermon by H. A. Stebbins.

PRICE.—Another Elder has closed his labors in this life, and gone to rest. Bro. Jesse Price, of Pittsburgh Branch, Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, died September 27th, 1880, at four o'clock in the morning, aged 79 years, 1 month, 19 days. He was born August 8th, 1801, in Bucks county, Pennsylvania. He was conscious almost to the last. He was baptized December 18th, 1839, by Elder B. Winchester, in Philadelphia, and confirmed by the same. He was ordained a High Priest at the General Conference held in Philadelphia on the 6th day of April, 1841, by Hyrum Smith. He left Philadelphia for Nauvoo, October 31st, 1841, and arrived November 24th, 1841, where he remained until after the death of the prophet Joseph and his brother Hyrum. He left Nauvoo on the 15th of April, 1845, and arrived at Pittsburgh, Pa., July 9th, 1845. He was baptized into the Reorganization, in Pittsburgh, September 13th, 1863, by Elder Josiah Ells, and confirmed by the same. He was a man beloved by all the Saints, and respected by all who knew him. I have often heard him bear his testimony to the truth of this work, both publicly and in private; and he always drew the attention of all who heard him to the sayings of Jesus in the 7th chapter of John, 16th and 17th verses: "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man will do his will he shall know of the doctrine; whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."

The following vision I have often heard him repeat, and with uplifted hand he has said, "As God is my judge it is the truth; and I know it." His son, Alma, wrote it from his mouth as he repeated it January 17th, 1879. He said: "On the morning of the 16th of January, 1841, about four o'clock in the morning, I saw the following manifestation, as I lay in my bed; what appeared like a ball of fire, which illuminated the room, my wife, daughter and myself slept in, so that every object in the room could be seen. My attention was drawn to the foot of the bed, when I beheld that an angel came and stood there. It seemed at this point that my spirit left my body, and went near towards him. I was satisfied it was an angel. He had on a white, flowing robe; the sleeves of which were so large that I could plainly see his arm. Prior to seeing this vision I had been praying to the Lord for a testimony to make known to me the truth of this work. I then asked the angel if this work was true; he raised his arm to heaven and said to me, 'Be of good cheer, and fear not. That it was of God.' During this time I felt well. I wanted to go with him; but the angel said 'Not now.' At this point something caused me to turn my head around, and when I looked again, the angel was gone. I had been in the habit of hanging my watch at the head of my bed, so when I arose in the morning to see whether it was time to get up to go to work, I saw the time by the watch, four o'clock in the morning. I saw my wife, and my daughter, and my body were in the bed. My spirit then entered into my body. This is my testimony." Funeral sermon at the Hall, by Elder Joseph Parsons.

NOTICE TO APPEAR.

Editor Herald:—I discover a notice in the Herald for October 1st, bearing the above caption and citing a brother to trial before the Little Sioux District. In connection with this I call your attention to a resolution passed at the Fall Conference of 1876, found on page 650 of Herald for that year, which reads as follows:

"Resolved, That the practice of citing members to trial, on their membership, through the Herald be discontinued."

This resolution has not been repealed; therefore the above notice was published contrary to said resolution, which is considered to be the law of the Church. I call your attention to this fact, because I think the practice is likely to work evil to the Church, by frequently leading to the condemnation of members who do not get the notice. It may also work evil by offending people, and so turning them further from the gospel, instead of reclaiming them, which should be the first aim in dealing with an offender; as there are none who like to have their shortcomings advertised.

JOHN H. HANSEN.

[We acknowledge the offense, and will try not to violate said resolution again. We thank Bro. Hansen for calling our attention to it.—Ed.]

QUESTION ANSWERED.

In reply to the question of Bro. T. F. Stafford, published in the Herald of September 1st, 1880, upon the words of Jesus to Pilate, (John 19:11), one of the Saints accepts the following interpretation of Dr. Adam Clark:

"It is a sin in thee to condemn me, while thou art convinced in thy conscience that I am innocent. But the Jews who delivered me to thee, and Judas who delivered me to the Jews, have the greater crime to answer for. Thine ignorance in some measure excuses thee, but the rage and malice of the Jews put them out of the reach of mercy."

She adds: "Unbelief at the present time prevents them, with all others from receiving the light of the gospel. The chief head, the Devil, worked in darkness, and to his own disadvantage. For had he been endowed with the knowledge of God he would never (I think and so do others) have crucified the Savior. Do you think, brother, that he knew all his mission? No doubt his mission will be all filled, or until a greater than he comes. Satan existed no doubt, and roamed from planet to planet, and though he thought he gained a good hold in causing Eve and Adam to become transgressors, yet many things were hidden before their day. He got the victory in part, and caused man to sin; but at the set time, when his work is accomplished, he will be bound with the chain, and made fast. But I present the subject for an abler writer.

Nobody."

THE GOSPEL LIGHT RESTORED.

As when creation from chaotic night
Emerged resplendently, and all was light,
Though myriad years of gloom had settled fast
Upon the earth, all was dispelled at last
By the grand fiat of the One supreme;
All honor and dominion be to him!

E'en so had darkness settled o'er the world
Of Christian preceptors, till God unfurled
The glorious banner of redemption's sign,
And on th' horizon rose truth's star divine,
As when at first He said, "Let there be light;"
And lo! fair earth emerges from Egyptian night.

The gospel taught by Christ to seeking men
Was simple, the wayfarer could not err therein;
"Repent ye from your sins and be baptized
For your remission," was the gospel prized,
Which Jesus preached; while gifts miraculous
Marked every where that gospel's conq'ring course.

Healing the sick, the blind restored to sight,
E'en dead ones raised, proclaimed its heavenly might,
While unknown tongues interpreted and given,
(With prophecy), by God the Lord of heaven,
All testified to this one gospel's truth,
In every land and clime, to age and youth.

But soon a darkness mantled o'er the scene
Which once was brilliant, in its truth serene;
For, ere three centuries had fully passed
Since he who, of the apostles, died the last,
When men, whose love to Jesus had grown cold,
Began to barter truth for gain and gold.

Since then, from errors great to greater, men have past,
Churches of various creeds meanwhile heap treasures vast
Of earthly store, but lost are all the signs
Which ever followed the true gospel's lines;
And, gathering earth's vain darkness in their hand,
Have lost the treasures of the Spirit grand.

But God, in pity for our dark estate,
Hath once again decreed, in mercy great,
"Let there be light" among the sons of men,
And my true gospel shine on earth again."
'Tis done, for he who spake the Almighty word
Himself hath both the gospel and its gifts restored.

Polygamy

NOT A DOCTRINE OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE MARTYR.

BY SIMON SMITH,

Who has Lived Twenty Years in the Territory of Utah, and Who for Six Years has been Bishop of Clarkston, Cache Co., in this Territory.

TEXT.—"Behold, David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, which thing was abominable before me, saith the Lord."—Book of Mormon, page 118, par. 6.

To those of the Church in Utah, and elsewhere, under the presidency of John Taylor, Greeting:—I emigrated to this Territory A. D. 1859, firmly believing at that date, and until a very short time since, that Utah was the gathering place for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

I believed also, from the teachings of the late Pres. Brigham Young and others of the presidency of said Church, that their right to said presidency was in accordance with the law of God and the divine will; but to my great disappointment, after careful and candid examination of that law, I found that nowhere did it sanction such claims; they are then, but assumptions.

Not only did I find their claims wrong, but their doctrines too. The law of God nowhere commands polygamy; on the contrary, its practice is denounced therein as wicked, and an abomination in the sight of God. On this subject I wish to treat.

The publications of the Church show that for sometime after the martyrdom of Joseph Smith, polygamy was proclaimed against as a false and corrupt doctrine. I have proven it to be so, and will give a very brief sketch of my life in support of this statement.

For several years previous to my emigration to Utah, trouble was in my family, caused by the doctrine of polygamy. My wife was bitterly opposed to it, from its first announcement to us. As an instance of this, she said once at a public gathering, "My husband wants me to go to Salt Lake to be queen over seven wives, and because I do not want to go, we live very unhappily." I state this to show that even before another wife has been taken, the theory of it makes the true wife unhappy; how much more the reality, when she sees and suffers from the practice. In my case, because my wife could not receive it, this strange doctrine led to our separation for eighteen long years. Nevertheless the hand of the Lord has been over us for some cause best known to him, and by his allwise providence, we have been brought together once more.

During the time mentioned, to do my duty, as interpreted by "the law of the Utah priesthood and the new and everlasting covenant of marriage," according to Pres. B. Young, I had to marry other wives, or I could not receive afulness of glory. Such was my confidence, and such my convictions at that time, that I did as I was instructed. Many others had, and some have such convictions yet, and so strong are they, that I am satisfied many would die "a martyr's death" rather than to deny, or be compelled to forsake the belief in, or practice of them.

But to return to my history. After my arrival in Utah, notwithstanding my wife was yet living, and in England, I was told by Pres. B. Young and others, that I ought to marry another wife, and be raising another family. The result was I married again. But what were the fruits, and what the final result of such a marriage? When my first wife and family came to Utah, to have peace in my house, I had to do like Abraham of old, I gave gifts and sent them away. Some of my brethren thought my act a wrong one, and said I ought rather to have put away my first wife, because she was opposed to polygamy. Yet, notwithstanding my family perplexities, and the admonition of my brethren of the priesthood, my faith in the divinity of the "revelation" (!) on plural marriage was as firm as ever.

A short time after this occurrence, a volume of the Times and Seasons was handed me. Reading this, was my eye-opener. Here for the first time I saw or read in any publications of the Church, with the signatures of Joseph and Hyrum Smith attached, a declaration against teaching or practicing the doctrine of polygamy. Here, to my great surprise, I read as follows:

"As we have lately been credibly informed that an Elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by the name of H. P. Brown, has been preaching polygamy and other false and corrupt doctrines, in the county of Lapeer, State of Michigan, this is to notify him and the Church in general, that he has been cut off from the Church for his iniquity."—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, page 423.

I also read on page 474, (dated March 8th, 1844, Ibid.) as follows:

"To the Brethren of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints living on China Creek, in Hancock county, greeting: Whereas, Bro. Richard Hewitt has called on me to-day, to know my views concerning some doctrines that are preached in your place, [meaning Nauvoo—S. S.], and states to me that some of your Elders say, that a man having a certain priesthood may have as many wives as he pleases, and that doctrine is taught here, I say unto you that that man teaches false doctrine, for there is no such doctrine taught here, neither is there any such thing practiced here. And any man that is found teaching, privately or publicly, any such doctrine is culpable, and will stand a chance to be brought before the High Council, and lose his license and membership also."

I also read on page 711 (Ibid.) an endorsement by the Editor, (John Taylor), acknowledging a certain communication received from a person who signed himself "An Old Man in Israel," in which communication occurs the following, page 715, (Ibid.):—

"The Saints of the last days have witnessed the outgoings and incomings of so many apostates, that nothing but truth has any effect upon them. In the present instance, after the sham quotations of Sidney and his clique, from the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants, to skulk off under the 'dreadful splendor' of 'spiritual wifery,' which is brought into the account as graciously as if the laws of the land allowed a plurality of wives is fiendish. Woe to that man or men who will thus wilfully lie to injure an innocent people! The law of the land, and the rules of the Church do not allow one man to have more than one wife alive at once, but if a man's wife die, he has a right to marry another, and to be sealed to both for eternity, to the living and the dead. There as no law of God or man against it. This is all the spiritual wife system that ever was tolerated by the Church, and they know it."

I also read as follows, on page 888, vol. 6: "For once let us say," [said your present President, John Taylor], that Cain, who went to Nod and taught the doctrine of a plurality of wives, and the giant who practiced the same iniquity, and Nimrod who practiced the common stook system, and the Jews who commenced crossing sea and land to make proselytes without revelation; and the Christian sects who have went all lengths to build up churches, and multiplying systems without authority from God, are all co-workers on the same plan. When the reward for every man's work is given, this will be the everlasting answer to all sects, sorts and conditions, from Cain down to Christian Israelites, 'I never knew you.'"

Such is the language, and such the testimony against the doctrine of polygamy, and that too by the highest authority of the church which practices it. The reading of it gave me cause for much thought and reflection; and the enquiry arose as to who could be the author of the reputed revelation on plural marriage. A candid and due consideration of this evidence against the doctrine of polygamy leads me to condemn it too, as a false and corrupt doctrine. According to this testimony, that pretended revelation commanding the practice of polygamy could not have come through, or been the production of Joseph Smith, or of those who thus proclaimed against it at that time. And, further, the record of those men indicates that they would not stoop so low as to be guilty of betraying the cause of God and bringing themselves into bondage by publishing a falsehood to the world, and certifying to the Church that such a doctrine was neither taught nor in practice by any one belonging to said Church. And if it was, they would be dealt with and be cut off from the Church.

Thus, when I read such declarations against the doctrine of plural marriage, as being a false and corrupt doctrine, and that it was not a doctrine of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and reflected upon it, I became conscious of the situation of those who were now teaching and practicing it, and I could not any longer conscientiously advocate or practice it. I must henceforth regard it only as a doctrine of evil, which, if practiced, would bring the displeasure and curse of God.

A few quotations from the Book of Doctrines and Covenants, (third European edition), the Book of Mormon and the Bible upon this subject, will show you that these books condemn the practice of polygamy.

First, see Book of Covenants, page 330, par. 2, also page 331, par. 4:

"Marriage should be celebrated with prayer and thanksgiving; and at the solemnization, the persons to be married, standing together, the man on the right, and the woman on the left, they shall be addressed by the person officiating, as he shall be directed by the Holy Spirit; and if there be no legal objections, he shall say, calling each by their names, 'You both mutually agree to be each other's companion, husband and wife, observing the legal rights belonging to this condition; that is, keeping yourselves wholly for each other, and from all others, during your lives.'"

This certainly forbids a man marrying more than one wife. Recollect you have to make a solemn covenant, both the man and the woman, that you are to keep yourselves wholly for each other during your lives.

Again, par. 4: "Inasmuch as this Church of Christ has been reproached with the crime of fornication and polygamy; we declare that we believe that one man shall have one wife; and one woman but one husband, except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again."

This declaration against the practice of polygamy in the church is very explicit. But polygamists in our day say, that that law on marriage, forbidding more than one wife, and its declaration against polygamy as being not a tenet of the church, was published to blind the outsiders. They further tell us that the plural law on marriage was understood as early as A. D. 1832, and that it was a true principle; vide Elder Orson Pratt's sermon on Celestial Marriage, Salt Lake City, October 7th, 1869. But this assertion of Elder Pratt's is in direct contradiction to the written law I have quoted, which says that polygamy is "a crime." Again, Joseph Smith, and others I have quoted, call polygamy a "false and corrupt doctrine. How can a false doctrine become a true principle?"

Again, B. of C., par. 1: "All marriages solemnized in the Church of Christ should be solemnized in a public meeting, or a feast, prepared for that purpose." What! All marriages of the Church of Christ to be solemnized in a public meeting, or at a feast where the marriage is published. Then any marriage solemnized otherwise than in the way provided, can not be a marriage belonging to the Church of Christ.

Again, to show that the one-wife system was the only one acknowledged and commanded through the martyred prophet, see B. of C., page 125, par. 7: "Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shalt cleave unto her and none else, and he that looketh on a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit, and if he repents not, he shall be cast out." This command, recollect, was expressly given to the church, to be a law to the church, to regulate the marriage relation, and he that broke that law was to be cast out of the church, if he repented not.

Again, B. of C., page 218, par. 3: "And again I say unto you, that whoso forbiddeth to marry is not ordained of God, for marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and THEY TWAIN shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation, and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made."

This quotation declares that it was lawful for a man to have one wife. If then it is lawful for a man to have one wife, would it not be unlawful for him to have more than one, unless in case of death, when he would be at liberty to marry another, as the law provides?

I will now refer you to the teachings of the Savior, as recorded by Matthew, 19th chap., 4th, 6th and 9th verses:

"Have ye not read that he who made man in the beginning, made him male and female. *** For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave unto his wife, and they twain shall be one flesh. *** If any man shall put away his wife, except for the cause of fornication, and shall marry another, he shall commit adultery." Here the Savior has shown clearly the order of marriage. Said he, "Have ye not read that He in the beginning made them male and female?" as much as to say, that was a pattern for all time to come, that one man should have one wife, and they two, or twain, shall be one flesh. In the ninth verse, it is said, if a man shall put away his wife, or, in other words, give his wife a bill of divorcement unlawfully, and marry another, he will commit adultery. Such an explanation by the Savior of the marriage relation, and and its order and design by the Creator, ought to be sufficient to all to show that if man will transcend its bounds by marrying a second wife, or more, while his first is legally his, and is alive, he commits adultery.

Again, see 1 Cor. 7:22: "Nevertheless, to avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife, and every woman her own husband." What do you say, Paul, "Every man to have his own wife?" Then, according to Paul's doctrine, none of the ancient apostles were polygamists, for every man should have his own wife. Polygamy was not a doctrine of the apostles.

Again, see Mal. 2:14, 15: "Yet ye say, Wherefore? Because the Lord hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, against whom thou hast dealt treacherously: yet is she thy companion, and the wife of thy covenant. And did he not make one? Yet had he the residue of the Spirit. And wherefore one? That he may seek a godly seed. Therefore take heed to your spirit, and let none deal treacherously with the wife of his youth." Malachi also teaches the same doctrine that others taught, namely, that in the beginning only one woman was created to be a help meet for man. Malachi (like the Savior) charged Judah with being transgressors in breaking the marriage covenant, for said he, "Thou hast dealt treacherously with the wife of thy youth." How like the account given in the Book of Mormon about the sorrow and mourning of the wives of the Nephites, whose husbands were polygamists.

Again, see Deut. 17:14-20: "When thou art come into the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, and thou shalt possess it, and shalt say, I will set a king over me, like as ather nations that are about me; *** neither shall he [the king] multiply wives to himself, that his heart turn not away; neither shall he greatly multiply to himself silver or gold. And it shall be when he sitteth upon the throne of his kingdom, that he shall write him a copy of this law in a book out of that which is before the priests the Levites. And it shall be with him, and he shall read therein all the days of his life; that he may learn to fear the Lord his God, to keep all the words of this law and these statutes to do them; that his heart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he turn not aside from the commandment, to the right hand, or to the left; to the end that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he, and his children in the midst of Israel."

I have been rather lengthy in this quotation, that I might show you how particular Moses was in giving his charge to the children of Israel, in regard to the law of marriage, and other statutes the Lord had commanded him to give unto his people to observe, and that the king should have a copy of them before him when he sat upon the throne of his kingdom, and that he should read therein all the days of his life, to learn to fear the Lord, that he might not turn to the right or the left from the commandments of the Lord, that his days and his children, might be prolonged in Israel. Then Moses actually commanded his people, especially the king, not to multiply to himself wives to turn his heart from the Lord. But how many kings have observed the strict law of God? The divine record tells us only a few. Some of our polygamist brethren have tried by misquotations and a misconstruction of the word of God, to prove that the Lord at different ages of the world has commanded the practice of polygamy. But, we discover that the law of God, from the beginning until now, proclaims against it, and the law that the Lord gave through Moses to the king, (when the people should say they wanted to be like other nations round about them, and have a king to rule them), he (the king) was forbidden to go into polygamy, because the Lord well knew if he did it would lead him astray, and hence he would become a transgressor of the law.

I will now refer you to the Book of Mormon, pages 115 and 116, par. 4: "And now it came to pass that the people of Nephi, under the reign of the second king, began to grow hard in their hearts, and indulge themselves somewhat in wicked practices, such as like unto David of old, desiring many wives and concubines, and also Solomon, his son." Here again we are told that it is wicked to do like unto David and Solomon, to pervert the law of God by practicing polygamy.

Again, page 118, par. 6, "And were it not that I had to speak unto you concerning a grosser crime, my heart would rejoice exceedingly because of you. But the word of God burthens me because of your grosser crimes. For behold, thus saith the Lord, this people begin to wax in iniquity; they understand not the Scriptures, for they seek to excuse themselves in committing whoredoms, because of those things which were written concerning David, and Solomon his son. Behold David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, which thing was abominable before me, saith the Lord: Wherefore, thus saith the Lord, I have led this people forth out of the land of Jerusalem, by the power of mine arm, that I might raise up unto me a righteous branch from the fruit of the loins of Joseph. Wherefore, I, the Lord God will not suffer that this people shall do like unto them of old. Wherefore, my brethren hear me and hearken to the word of the Lord; for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none. . . Wherefore, this people shall keep my commandments, saith the Lord of hosts, or cursed be the land for their sakes."

This quotation from the word of God ought to put an end to all contention concerning the doctrine of polygamy as to whether it was a principle approved of God or not. Certainly the Lord has forbidden the practice of polygamy through Jacob as he did through Moses, saying he had led forth his people from Jerusalem by the power of his arm for the very purpose that he might thereby raise up a righteous people, certifying to them that they should not do like unto them from whom they had come; but if they did, the land should be cursed. What? the land be cursed if they had more wives than one? Certainly. "Because, saith the Lord of hosts, ye shall not do like unto them of old." As though he had said, I gave my law through my servant Moses, but they observed it not. I have given it now to a branch of Israel, through my servant Jacob that I might from them raise up unto me a righteous people, but if ye will not hearken to my law ye shall be rejected also, and the land shall be cursed to you also, for you seek also to excuse yourselves in what is written concerning David and Solomon, not understanding the Scriptures.

Those polygamists who lived in Jacob's time are brethren with those who live in our day; for these say that David and Solomon, and all the prophets were justified in all their acts (in taking wives) excepting one; and further, that there is a clause in the paragraph I have quoted providing for a command in the future to be given to practice polygamy, and which is considered strong proof for their practices. But, like the Nephites, they understand not the Scriptures. The clause reads as follows: "For if I will, saith the Lord of hosts, raise up seed unto me, I will command my people; otherwise ye shall hearken unto these things." Jacob does not state what law the Lord would give to raise up seed. Hence the benefit of the doubt can not be considered in favor of polygamy, since we find by divine truth that such a doctrine is "a corrupt doctrine." But by reading farther on in the same paragraph, and the very next sentence, we discover that there is one good reason to believe the Lord would not give a polygamic command for his people to obey, for he says:

"Behold, I, the Lord, have seen the sorrow, and heard the mourning of the daughters of my people in the land of Jerusalem; yea, in all the lands of my people, because of the wickedness and abominations of their husbands, and I will not suffer, saith the Lord of hosts, that the cries of the fair daughters of this people; which I have led out of the land of Jerusalem, shall come up unto me against the men of my people, saith the Lord of hosts; for they shall not lead away captive the daughters of my people, because of their tenderness, save I shall visit them with a sore curse, even unto destruction; for they shall not commit whoredoms, like unto them of old, saith the Lord of hosts."

Also, page 119, par. 7: "And now behold, my brethren, ye know that these commandments were given to our father Lehi; wherefore ye have known them before; and ye have come under great condemnation. . . Ye have broken the hearts of your tender wives, and lost the confidence of your children, because of your bad examples before them, and the sobbings of their hearts ascend up to God against you."

Thus the Lord proclaims against such practices. Utah polygamists, this ought to be a lesson to you. The strict command of the Lord who changeth not against the practice of polygamy, is a sufficient reason why he would never give a commandment for its practice.

See also par. 9: "O, all ye that are pure in heart, lift up your heads and receive the pleasing word of God, and feast upon his love; for ye may, if your minds are firm, forever. But wo, wo, unto you that are not pure in heart; that are filthy this day before God; for except ye repent, the land is cursed for your sakes; and the Lamanites, which are not filthy like unto you, (nevertheless they are cursed with a sore cursing), shall scourge you even unto destruction. And the time speedily cometh, that except ye repent, they shall possess the land of your inheritance, and the Lord God will lead away the righteous out from among you. Behold, the Lamanites, your brethren, whom ye hate, because of their filthiness and the cursings which have come upon their skins, are more righteous than you; for they have not forgotten the commandment of the Lord, which was given unto our fathers, that they should have save it were one wife. . . . And now this commandment they observe to keep; wherefore, because of this observance, IN KEEPING THIS COMMANDMENT, the Lord God will not destroy them, but will be merciful unto them; and one day they shall become a blessed people."

What plainer language can be used to show that God dis approves of the doctrine and practice of polygamy? Jacob calls those who are not in polygamy the pure in heart, but those who have more than one wife he represents as being more filthy than the Lamanites, who had been cursed with a skin of blackness. For said Jacob to these polygamists, "Except ye repent, the Lamanites shall scourge you, and shall possess the land of your inheritance," and this too because they had not forgotten the commandment, that they should have but one wife.

And farther, I refer you to Mosiah, chap. 7, (page 167), par. 1: "And now it came to pass that Zeniff conferred the kingdom upon Noah, one of his sons: therefore Noah began to reign in his stead; and he did not walk in the ways of his father. For behold, he did not keep the commandments of God, but he did walk after the desires of his own heart. And he had many wives and concubines. And he did cause his people to commit sin, and to do that which was abominable in the sight of the Lord. Yea, and they did commit whoredoms, and all manner of wickedness. And he laid a tax of one-fifth part of all they possessed; a fifth part of their gold and of their silver, and a fifth part of their ziff, and of their copper, and of their brass and their iron; and a fifth part of their fatlings; and also, a fifth part of all their grain. And all this did he take, to support himself and his wives, and his concubines, and also, his priests, and their wives, and their concubines: thus he had changed the affairs of the kingdom."

On page 168, par. 5, we see the fruits. "And it came to pass that he [King Noah] placed his heart upon his riches, and spent his time in riotous living with his wives and his concubines; and so also did his priests spend their time with harlots."

This King Noah was the son of a righteous man; but, according to this extract, when he was made king he walked not in his father's footsteps; he changed the affairs of the kingdom. Abinadi, the prophet, warned Noah and his people that, unless they repented of their wicked practices, the Lord would cause destruction to come upon them. (Par. 8). To the very letter was this fulfilled. But those who repented of these practices, the Lord blessed, and he delivered them from destruction. Read the history of Alma in the Book of Mormon.

See also Book of Ether, chap. 4, par. 5: "And it came to pass that Riplakish did not do that which was right in the sight of the Lord, for he did have many wives and concubines, and did lay that upon man's shoulders which was grievous to be borne. *** And it came to pass that he did afflict the people with his whoredoms and abominations *** for the space of forty and two years." King Riplakish was a descendant of those who came from the great tower of Babel at the time the Lord confounded the language of the people; and although they had been a highly favored people, they became extinct through wicked practices, of which polygamy was one.

I have now shown from the revelations of ancient and modern times, the Book of Covenants, the Bible and the Book of Mormon, that polygamy is not a doctrine or principle of truth; nor one to be practiced by God's people in any age, or in any part of the earth. There is abundant proof. Man, in his carnal and selfish nature, practiced polygamy to gratify lust. Some have taken one ground for excuse, and some another.

Men in our own midst have not only misquoted divine truth in trying to establish the doctrine; but have sought to make it appear that even Jesus Christ and his apostles taught and practiced it. See Compendium, page 188, where the following is given as a quotation from St. Mark's record of the teachings of Christ. Chap. 10, 29th and 30th verses:—"There is no man that leaves houses, lands, wives, children, or friends, but what shall receive an hundred fold in this life." Let us now quote from the Bible. "And Jesus answered and said, Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's, but he shall receive an hundred fold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come, eternal life." Elder F. D. Richards has quoted it wives, instead of wife. That misquotation, no doubt, was intended to back up Jedediah M. Grant's sermon published in the Journal of Discourses, vol. 1, page 345, August 7th, 1853, as follows: "The grand reason why the Gentiles and philosophers of his (Celsus') school persecuted Jesus Christ, was because he had so many wives. There were Elizabeth, and Mary, and a host of others that followed him. After Jesus went from the stage of action, the apostles followed the example of their Master." Also on page 346, we read as follows: "A belief in the doctrine of a plurality of wives caused the persecution of Jesus and his followers." What an assumption! Jesus Christ and his apostles polygamists! Polygamy the cause of their persecution! Polygamy led to the crucifixion of the Savior! What a horrible presentation to sustain polygamy!

Elder F. D. Richards, no doubt intended by that misquotation to also patch up that reputed revelation of July 12th, 1843, and proclaimed by Pres. Brigham Young and Elder Orson Pratt, in the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, Aug.

29th, 1852. Pres. B. Young finally had this "revelation" published in the new 1876 edition of the Doctrine and Covenants, and left out the section defining the marriage rule of faith as established by Joseph the Martyr. The marriage rule so left out was the only one established by Joseph Smith. I will quote his own words on the matter from the Times and Seasons, vol. 3, page 939, October 1st, 1842, of which the Prophet at that time was Editor.

"We have given the above rule of marriage as the only one practiced in this church, to show that Dr. J. C. Bennett's secret wife system is a matter of his own manufacture; and further, to disabuse the public ear, and show that the said Bennett and his misanthropic friend, Origen Bachelor, are perpetrating a foul and infamous slander upon an innocent people."

In this quotation you have the Prophets direct declaration that he knew of no other rule of marriage than the one he referred to, which is the one that Pres. B. Young has set aside. Here is another instance, similar to that of Elder Richards; but greater in magnitude. Franklin left a fragment; but Pres. Young has destroyed the whole structure of marriage, as by God instituted, that thereby he might more fully establish his polygamic doctrine.

What deception has been resorted to, to deceive the honest and confiding who received the gospel in sincerity, here and in foreign lands. Believing that the Elders were advocating nothing but true and correct principles, as long as they held up before them the divine mission of Christ and of Joseph, and firmly believing that every principle they taught was the doctrine of Christ, polygamy was imposed upon them; "polygamy," which in the language of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, is a false and corrupt doctrine," and not the doctrine of Christ. We read, "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, hath both the Father and the Son."—2 John, 9th verse.

And farther, to prove that polygamy was not a doctrine of Joseph the Martyr, I will quote the testimony of his widow, (Emma), given a short time before her death, as published in The Saints' Advocate, October, 1879: "There was no revelation on either polygamy or spiritual wives. There was some rumors of something of the sort, of which I asked my husband. He assured me that all there was of it was, that in a chat about plural wives, he had said, 'Well, such a system might possibly be, if every body was agreed to it, and would behave as they should; but that they would not, and besides, it was contrary to the will of heaven.' No such thing as polygamy, or spiritual wifery was taught, publicly or privately, before my husband's death, that I have now, or ever had any knowledge of. He had no other wife but me; nor did he to my knowledge ever have."

This testimony of the prophet's widow is direct testimony both against the pretended revelation said to have been given by her husband, and against the charge that he had any wife beside her. Remember that such a doctrine as polygamy was never taught by him, either privately or publicly. Nor is the widow's testimony unsupported. It agrees almost to a word with that of Hyrum Smith's about three months before his martyrdom, when he published a notice to the church that no such doctrine as polygamy or of a man having many wives, was either taught or practiced in Nauvoo, and that if any was found teaching it, either privately or publicly, they would be treated as criminals.

Many other references might be given from holy writ, and from the standard works of the church published during the prophet's life time to prove that polygamy is not a doctrine of Christ, but I trust what quotations I have made will suffice. In the language of him you delight to honor as being the instrument in the hands of God to establish the kingdom of God for the last time on the earth, a martyr to the cause, "polygamy is a false and corrupt doctrine, contrary to the will of heaven." And in the language of those whose record he was the honored instrument (in the hands of God) of bringing forth to this generation, it is "an abomination in the sight of God." Why then should you contend for it? Why say that it is a true principle, which will tend to your salvation, when the teachings of the Savior and his servants all proclaim against it, and not one sentence in the divine records can be found wherein God has commanded it to any man. Take the admonition that Jacob gave to his brethren, after they had perverted the law of marriage and had thereby become transgressors.

"O, my brethren, hearken unto my word; arouse the faculties of your soul; shake yourselves, that ye may awake from the slumber of death; and loose yourselves from the pains of hell, that ye may not become angels to the devil, to be cast into that lake of fire and brimstone which is the second death."—Book of Jacob, chap. 2, par. 11.

In conclusion, I will state that I have written this address as a labor of love. I have been in your midst. I have taken part with many of you in helping to build up settlements. I have also wrought in the ministry with you. I am somewhat acquainted with your views and faith, and knowing that some of you, like myself, have been misinformed respecting the origin, the efficacy, and the truthfulness of the doctrine of polygamy, I have been anxious to show you its error beyond a doubt, and from what you and I recognize as reliable sources. That you may be able to comprehend your true position, and judge for yourselves between truth and error, that you may return to the pure doctrine of Christ, and no more be led and blinded through priestcraft, respecting the law of God in relation to marriage, is my prayer for you.

OGDEN, Utah Terr., April, 1880.

Many people are too apt to conceive that success, eminence in the various walks of life, may be gained at a jump; that it depends upon something else beside thought, study, endeavor. They start out with imperfect ideas of the obstacles before them, and fancy that a little of ingenuity, cleverness, of extra endeavor, will accomplish for them what it has quite failed to accomplish for thousands of others. This comes from hopefulness, the buoyant aspiration of inexperienced youth. Later, the hard fact presses upon them that all of the real success they have met in life has been due to study, observation—to hard work.

A cross neighbor may be made kind by kind treatment.

Doctrinal Sermons.

A DOCTRINAL sermon is nothing more nor less than setting forth the tenets or faith of a man or congregation by the minister in charge; so that all who may have been hitherto unacquainted with the belief of certain church members, or the faith upon which an assembly of religious people unite may be known. One body of people have adopted what they call, "The five points of fellowship;" another, "The thirty-nine articles, or the Westminster confession." A strict observance of these is considered as a necessary qualification in all, or any of the orthodox churches. Christ preached no doctrinal sermons, and yet they were all doctrinal. Peter surely must have preached the truth on Pentecost. But no mention of a doctrinal sermon is found. And if there be any difference between what may be called doctrinal, and a common-place sermon, it must be in the setting forth of a special faith, adapted to the people setting forth their particular faith in a manner that leaves no room for doubt as to the foundation upon which they build. Hence we hear of Calvinism, Wesleyism and Universalism. Each one claiming to be in the right; either from antiquity, with a few passages of Scripture to sustain them; or, as some remark, "a consciousness of right from an inward feeling," called the Spirit's evidence bearing witness with their spirit; amounting to an indisputable truth of the soundness of their belief.

As a people separate and distinct from all others, either orthodox or heterodox, our sermons are doctrinal; whether we speak upon the first, second, or third principles of the gospel of Christ; the resurrection or eternal judgment. They are doctrinal, because it is the doctrine that Christ taught and commanded his apostles to teach. And when our Savior remarked to the Jews, that if any man would do his will he should 'know of the doctrine; whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself,' we understand him to mean, that all the plan of salvation was doctrinal as he announced it. He committed to his apostles the same. So that, taking the words of Christ as a criterion, all sermons preached with a view to salvation are doctrinal.

We are aware that some of our Christian neighbors make it a point to preach what they are pleased to term a doctrinal sermon once a year, as a sort of memory refresher; lest some of the flock should forget what they had subscribed to, or what their creed contained. We, as Latter Day Saints, need no such revivers, if we do our duty. Our sermons are uniform the year round. We certainly differ widely from those other sects, in that we take the gospel plan for apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers; gifts, healings and all other blessings enumerated in the New Testament writings. We also differ from them, in that we believe that baptism by water constitutes a very prominent feature in the new birth; and that no man or woman can truly be called a son or daughter of God without the baptism of water. After the water baptism, then takes place the baptism of the Spirit, applied in the same manner as of old by the apostles of Jesus. We differ once more from our orthodox neighbors, in the manner of conferring the gift of the Holy Spirit, or Holy Ghost. While we respect them as men and women, and believe them honest in their views, we must be candid with them, and say to them in love, You have never been born again. The two elements, one water and the other Spirit, are as obligatory and as essential to the well being of all men and women that hear the gospel, as the spirit within man is essential to the body for life. "For as the body without the spirit is dead;" so also, is faith in Christ so called without baptism of water and Spirit, after faith and repentance have been manifest. This is doctrinal, we believe, and I subscribe to the same.

A Traveler in Utah.

THE Valley Virginian, sent us some time ago by Bro. O. E. Cleveland, contains a letter of correspondence from Utah, speaking of the faith of the Latter Day Saints as a body, the writer says:

"Remember that the revelations concerning polygamy were not "received" until July, 1843, and were not favorably received until some time after; so it can be said of the Mormons, they broke no civil or moral laws; they simply declared themselves to be believers in and followers of the new religion promulgated by Joseph Smith, and to receive at his hands instructions as to their daily walk and conversation. There was enough of superstition about it to satisfy those who are always groping after the mysterious. A direct result of the persecutions suffered by them was the development of the powers of endurance, and an intense determination to succeed. Like the little band which set sail in the Mayflower, oppression had made them brave enough to face danger and suffering, and they blindly followed their leader, their faith strengthened by every new persecution, their strange religion elevated into something sublime by the very abuse intended to destroy it.

"But the storm which commenced like a gentle rainfall, increased in strength until it descended like a torrent. Men were imprisoned, tried, acquitted for want of evidence, only to be again arrested and forced to revindicate themselves. At last a furious mob murdered Joseph Smith and his brother Hyrum, and their blood sealed firmly together these 'Latter Day Saints' who believed their leader a martyred saint.

"Then up rose Brigham Young—coarse, illiterate, but possessed of a wonderful will, and an unyielding tenacity of purpose, a farseeing, annalytical mind. Through terrible hardships he led this people out to their new home in the then far West. Societies were formed to execute the bidding of Brigham Young, and under the names of the 'Danites,' and the 'Destroying Angels,' these men committed crimes which will stain the pages of American history forever. Much that in this world stands charged to the Indians, will be found in the big book set down over against the names of these 'Destroying Angels,' and I shall not be surprised if Brigham Young's name leads all the rest.

"If any one chosen to do this bloody work, faltered, his life paid the penalty. Emigrants crossing the plains were shot down and plundered. Women and children, old and young, all had to die if the decree went forth from his immaculate highness. For every violation of law they found an excuse in the fact that they had suffered wrong, and the hands which trembled when they struck the first death-blow to a fellow creature grew strong and willing with bloody experience.

"However honest and pure may have been the motives of Joseph Smith, Brigham Young seemed to labor to accomplish only one object, to build up a kingdom, which, while he gave it the name of the 'Lord's Kingdom,' so far as dollars and cents and the luxuries they can purchase are concerned, the kingdom was his own. To accomplish this he had carefully to hide the cloven foot, while, under the guise of religion, he drew the net close about them, until there seemed to be but one will controlling the entire community.

"Were I to trace the course of these pioneers from the day their little band first halted in this valley down to the present time, it would seem like strangest fiction. The hardships endured by them; the desperate energy with which they fought to overcome all obstacles; the tenacity with which they clung to their new faith, even when starvation and death walked closely beside them; all these without one complaining word, are things which seem incredible."

WE published some part of Mr. Fuller's report to his Advent brethren, on his return from Palestine; but absence from home and a full HERALD each issue since, kept us from putting the rest in. We now condense from the Age to Come Herald for August, 1880.

"If you take a crotched limb of a tree, three or four inches in diameter, and cut one branch of this limb long enough to reach to the yoke, which answers both for a draught-chain and the plow beam, and cut the other branch quite short, say about one foot and a half long, tapering, with a nose piece of iron or steel fastened to the end to root up the ground, and then fasten aslant to the hind part of this a straight stick for a handle, with perhaps a pin in it, and you have a fair specimen of a Palestine plow. If a yankee farmer should break such a plow in his field, where there was a tree with a limb big enough, he would, I think, with an axe, and perhaps a hammar, make an entire new plow, (except the nose-piece,) in an hour, and proceed with his work, without the assistance of an experienced plow-maker. It is light enough to be carried over the farm upon the shoulder without difficulty. It does indeed lighten up the soil to the depth of three or four inches, better, probably, than many at first sight would suppose it could; but one of our common cultivators would do the work better, much faster, and with less fatigue to the plowman. The little furrow, as you will perceive, is turned both ways, as a cultivator tooth would turn it; hence they do not go round a "land," as we usually do with a common plow in this country, but drive back and forth upon one side, until the piece is finished.

"There is no necessity whatever that years should be required by people from this country in adopting our plows and style of plowing there. Carry plows with you, or manufacture them there, of the most improved patterns, and you may commence plowing at once with your most experienced laborers, as you would plow here. When you go to Palestine, carry the benefits of your education with you, in agricultural pursuits as well as in everything else. It will not be necessary to carry a stone in one end of your bag to balance your grain there, any more than it is here.

"In that rich soil on the plains, I think our light steel-polished plows would be preferable at first. They will be cheaper than heavier plows of the same quality, less team will be required in using them, and the crop for a few years, when you will more particularly need good crops, will probably be better.

"They have no harrows of any kind. Shovels I did not see, nor scythes. The hand-sickle with which they cut their grain, is similar to those in use here many years ago, but inferior in shape. Their hoes are like our bog-hoe, perhaps a little narrower.

"They tread grain out with cattle. The Germans take a stone, like a roller, about three feet long, corrugate it, and roll it over the grain instead of treading it out. It is drawn by horses. I could not ascertain that anything better was used for thrashing grain, than treading it out with cattle, and drawing this stone roller over it.

"I could not see any reason why everything—plows, harrows, shovels, hoes, iron bars, drills, (for putting in seed), planters, reapers, threshing-machines, mowing-machines, and all other farming tools used in this country, could not be used in Palestine as advantageously as here. Reapers and threshing-machines are specially needed by the farmers now. So also are good grist-mills, with bolters and screens.

"The farmers raise excellent wheat and barley now, with their present mode of cultivation. Rye and oats do not do so well at the present time. Not much Indian corn is raised; but evidently it might be profitably grown with proper cultivation. Sweet potatoes are good, but other kinds do not do as well, owing, in a great measure, evidently, to a lack of cultivation. They require that the soil should be stirred to a greater depth than wheat and barley. Peas, beans, millet, flax, tobacco, cucumbers, and various kinds of melons grow well. Onions, beets, cabbages, turnips, tomatoes, and all kinds of garden vegetables are abundant and good. Oranges, lemons, figs, grapes, olives, mulberries, and other fruits, are excellent. I think it is safe to say that nearly everything that can be raised in every other country, can be easily and profitably raised in Palestine; and probably in no other part of the world can a greater variety of products from the soil be produced.

"Ques.—What is now manufactured in Palestine?

"Ans.—Nothing of importance; except the common people make their own clothing, such articles as they use in farming, etc. Not much household furniture is required, except by the well to do classes; and that, with other things coming into use, is imported.

"Upon a small scale, the hides of horned cattle, donkeys and camels; and the skins of goats and sheep could be profitably tanned and made into boots, shoes, and horse-harnesses and the like. Wool, flax and cotton may be raised, or brought from Egypt and Syria, and manufactured into cloth and thread, and such articles as are usually produced from such commodities, where steam or water-power can be obtained. Coal from America will probably cost from three to five dollars per ton more in Palestine than in Boston; but as the raw material is so much cheaper there than here, woolen cloth, leather, and some other articles, could be manufactured cheaper. Wool is from twelve to fifteen cents per pound, and hides and skins can be purchased for one-third of their value in the Boston market.

"Wheat, barley, oranges, lemons, olives, and small quantities of wool and skins are exported.

"The horned cattle are about like ours in this country, except they are smaller. They are very well built, and I judge the oxen will make good workers, and the cows good milkers. Good ox-yokes should be among the first useful articles carried to that country, but not of the largest kind. I do not think it would be advisable to import cattle to Palestine at present, even improved breeds; for though the native cattle are small they seem to be well adapted to the country in its present condition. They are cheaper kept; less liable to disease than imported stock would be, and with proper care and feeding I have no doubt they would be greatly improved. As to the profit to be derived from stock, I think with the same outlay, more could be realized from the native cattle, than cattle from any foreign country.

"The horses are also small, and are not much used except for the saddle. They will make good drivers, however, and are heavy enough for plowing, and light draught work, such as staging, express business, and the like. It will not be desirable to import horses either, as the native horses are more suitable for everything that you would naturally wish to use horses for. In emigrating to that country I would not take any domestic animals, except, perhaps, a few extra sheep of some choice breeds, for an experiment.

"Compared with ours I can not call the sheep small, but common-sized. Their wool is rather coarse, but good; and their meat is equal to the mutton that we have here. Some of them have horns, and some have large flat broad tails. But they run with the goats just as they did in old Bible times, I mean when the Bible was written; and if the proportion of the human family who have fed and clothed Christ, and visited him in sickness and in prison, are to be estimated by the proportion of the sheep to the goats, in the flock that I saw, the company upon the "right hand" will be small indeed. The "flocks," as the sheep and the goats together are called, are mostly goats. They are pastured together, and yarded together nights, in what are called "sheep-folds in the Bible—open enclosures.

"The goats are not all of one species. Some are what I should call the common goat; others are larger, with longer hair, and nearly black. Goats' meat is good for food; especially the meat of young kids, which by many is called very delicate. Their skins are superior to sheep-skins for leather; and I should judge by the very large proportion of the goats to the sheep in their flocks, that the natives consider them more profitable than sheep. They are not subject to so many diseases, are not so easily affected by heat, are more robust, and eat almost everything without injury. Then as their milk and skins are so much better than the milk and skins of sheep, with the little use that is now made of wool, it is not strange that goats are raised in much larger numbers in Palestine than sheep. But let the manufacturer start his mill, and the farmers will soon improve and increase the wool-growing business, which will make sheep more valuable.

"Almost all articles of transportation are now carried upon the backs of animals, and the saddles now in use by the natives are well enough; especially as it is hoped that the mode of transportation will soon be changed from the backs of horses, camels, mules, donkeys, and the heads of women, to carriages. Such a change will make work for the laborers in building roads and making carriages and harnesses. But saddles and harnesses, ox-yokes and chains, as well as farming tools, household furniture, carpenter and machinist's tools, may profitably be carried there until they can be manufactured in the country, as they will be needed for immediate use before roads and carriages can be built."

Letter from M. T. Short.

THE last communication I penned for publication was in Steuben county, Indiana. Since that time my labor in the vineyard has not been slackened, though my experience has been diverse. My nine imaginary wives of Wolverine production were forever nonsuited by a fair one from the Garden State. She is a missionary's consort and imparts joy, courage and accelerated strength to our sphere, we fondly believe. My memory is transported to the pleasing scenes of Clear Lake, when the humble ones went down into placid waters and came forth, we trust, with new hopes, desires, aspirations and new divine natures. Our efforts in that pleasant field closed in Branch county, Michigan. Our last meetings were convened in the forest. Large concourses were present and the order and attention were extra good, while Brn. Kelley, Scott, and others dispensed the word of truth. We found Wm. H. Kelley a companionable, christian gentleman, a jolly associate and an aggressive maintainer of a full orb'd gospel. May health of body and great mental penetration long bless that polished shaft, for the very work's sake, we pray. I called at the hub city of the north-west, to visit a fleshy brother and replenish my apparel ere I would bring up in western Illinois. Bro. Columbus Scott joined in with me at Kewanee, where we had very enjoyable times. A short time after the Buffalo Prairie conference we called at Burlington. From thence we sojourned in the Decatur district, where we preached in several localities and attended a very happy conference, it being our first there. After the Semi-Annual Jubilee, we did service in towns and rural sections, too various to mention. Without naming, suffice to say that the Saints of the west are generous and kind.

The country within a radius of one hundred miles from Kansas City is actually the finest by nature in all the earth. After the war it could be purchased for the merest sum; but now its worth is known, and elegant modern improvements are quite common. Real estate has increased from ten to twenty per cent in the last two years. It fairly throbs with the great industries, and groans under falling nuts, ripening fruits, and golden grain. Flowers, grasses, vineyards, and artificial groves contribute to beautify and gladden many a happy home.

Far West is no more, as an existing village, and the former home of the great Palmyra Seer is crumbling away. The place for the Temple has never been plowed, or tilled, but the reason may be that the soil was removed to quite a depth and the massive corner stones laid. Fine fat cattle roam through rich pastures; the bleating sheep send charming sounds through hill, dell and glen; the swine look with favor upon forest and field, and all the bestial train appear to be in their element. Soil, wood and water, rock, climate and health, fruits, ores and schools, and, in fine, most everything that exalts, polishes and happiness civilized life is found in lavished profusion in this wonderful State.

When I think upon the weakness of man and the follies of modern Israel, when I see what she is, and reflect what she might have been, I exclaim, How art the mighty fallen! Alas, I weep, I wait, I trust and hopefully pray!

Kansas City is the famous railroad center of the west. Its packing department is of the largest in the world, its manufactories are grand and its commercial interests are growing immense. Wickedness is not without many representatives there, but we have not a single one. Many of the Saints of Independence district are poor, a trifle fanatical, and two trifles contrary, we are troubled to say. But most all want to do right, hence a brighter day is dawning. I arrived home and found the loved ones well and rejoicing in the liberty of the law. Bro. J. T. Davies was with us and intends to devote his time and energy to the ministry. Peace obtains, in the main, through this district and we confidently look for pleasing results to crown our work just after Garfield, or some one else, is elected. There is a great deal of poor whisky drank, but we suppose the government debt should be paid. We look for a large gathering at the conference next week. We feel well in body and mind, and courageous in the work.

Ever praying for more true laborers, and for a widening and deepening of gospel influences in our own hearts, I remain your never deviating friend and true brother in peace and love,

IS HE AN HERETIC.

THE Methodist Episcopal Church, North, has a touching case of heresy to deal with in the Rock River, Illinois, Conference, in the person of Rev. Hiram W. Thomas, a hitherto popular clergyman of that denomination, and resident in Chicago. The agitation began some three or four years ago, upon the utterance of some very latitudinarian doctrine, in a sermon or two preached by the Rev. Thomas upon occasions of peculiar character; one of which was that of the murder, in Chicago, of a wife, almost a child, by her husband, a man of brutal habits. In this funeral service the Doctor officiated, and in his discourse he hit one of the church dogmas a rap, by contrasting the probable condition after death of the victim, with that of her murderer, and denying that she, the child-wife, must be cast into hell, because unconnected with the church, while her slayer must be sent into Paradise, because of alleged repentance and conversion after the murder. At the time the reverend gentleman rather warmly denounced the dogma of hell for innocent but unconverted men, and heaven for professed repentants covered with criminal acts. It created quite a stir, and made Dr. Thomas quite popular with the mass, but drew the suspicion of the church upon him.

The writer of this told Elder Tibbals, then located at Plano, in charge of the M. E. Church there, that the time would come that they would oust Elder Thomas from the connection; that he was certainly growing too liberal for them, and they would have to deal with him. This was not long after the child-wife sermon; but Elder Tibbals then thought not; that it would take a different turn. But time grew apace, and the Doctor began lecturing, and by slow degrees grew broader in his views, and freer in his utterances, until it became apparent that there was trouble for either the elders, conference, or for him. Two years ago, the conference passed upon his character, but admonished him to be careful in his doctrine and the expression of his views. But the Doctor declared himself to be in accord with the church of which he was a member; and rather scouted the idea of his being a heretic. The pressure brought to bear upon him was, however, strong; and whether resentfully, or otherwise, he took occasion to preach a sermon in the Centenary M. E. church, in Chicago, October 10th, just before the session of the Elders' Conference at Rockford, in October last, in which he stated his position; which position for the benefit of the readers of the HERALD we give below, in extracts.

The points, as stated at the opening of the printed sermon, are "The Atonement, Eternal Punishment, and the Inspiration of the Scriptures."

"And now what is the substance of all my doubting? I have come to have the reputation with a good many of being the doubting preacher and the disturber of men's faiths. What have I doubted? Have I ever doubted the existence of God? Never. Have I ever doubted the Divinity of Christ or the immortality of the soul? Never. Have I ever cast a doubt in any possible sense upon what may be called the spiritual doctrines of the Church,—the doctrine of prayer, the doctrine of pardon and regeneration, the doctrine of the richness of the Spirit, the doctrine of holiness of heart and life? Never. You may read the hundred sermons that I have had published—I have not read one in ten of them since they were in print—and you will not find a syllable or a shadow of a doubt on any one of those questions, and I know it [murmur of assent], because I know doubt is not in me, and can not be there. Not being in me, it is not in the sermons.

"Well, then, what have I done? The points I specified in that paper submitted to the Conference related to three things that may be regarded as pivotal points in theology. They related to the doctrine of the Atonement, of Future Punishment, and to the Inspiration of the Scriptures; and now let me say that I believe in all these three, but I do not understand them as some others do. Possibly my explanation of these doctrines and my philosophy of them differ from the majority of Methodist preachers, but the doctrines themselves I believe.

"Now take the doctrine of the atonement. I believe it. But I do not believe the old penal butcher theory of the atonement, where you make Jesus Christ a sinner, and punish him for sin, and execute the penalty of a broken law upon a man who had never broken it, in order that those who had broken it could be pardoned. To me such a theory simply disturbs, unsettles, and undermines the very root-ideas of justice and morality. I do not,—I do not believe it. [Faint applause and a few hand-clappings]. Now, a good many of our people seek to believe it,—the majority of them,—in what I call the governmental theory, and I readily accept this if you will simply leave out of it this penal idea that Christ was punished. I accept it if you leave that out. I believe in God's great moral government over man, and I believe He came forth in Jesus Christ that He might further the ends of that government and bring peace and harmony among all His children as far as may be after the law, but I do not believe that any penalty was ever executed upon the innocent Jesus Christ. I have reached this moral view of the atonement after much thought, and after much mental suffering. I rest in it; I believe it is the gospel. I can not, and I will not preach anything else. I expect to live in it, and by it and die in it, and I am just as confident to-night that in its general features it will be the theology of the world in the future as I am that I stand before you. It loses nothing; it gathers up and saves everything; it is the great law of the vicariousness of love coming forth and seeking to save. It touches the very center of character, and before it unbelief stands in reverence and in silence, and the sinner rebuked by the tears of his father, and the wanderer is taken back, heartened and regenerated. The whole moral power of this view of the atonement is to make men like Jesus Christ, to fill the heart with ineffable love and sweetness, to fill it with sacrifice, to fill it with suffering for humanity. And believing this, I do not disfellowship others because they can not. I have not sought to obtrusively thrust it upon the people. I preached it in spirit and never gave it formal statement until the Conference asked me for my views, and I gave them without mental reservation.

"Another point on which there seemed to be a difference is the point of future punishment. And now let me say that I said to them, and say now, that I never doubted, nor do I now doubt, the fact of after-death punishment for men who die in their sins. I believe that the law that punishes sin is in itself essentially and strictly eternal. I believe that law abides everywhere in all places, and will abide forever. I believe it is rooted in the very nature of things, and in this or in any world, if one sins he will suffer loss, and if he stays on the side of sin forever he will suffer forever. I believe that there is a modified sense in which most persons—possibly all adults—may be said to suffer eternal punishment or eternal loss. None of us can be in this world without years of wasted life and neglected opportunities. What we might have been if we had lived those years right! I suppose that law carries over to the future in this modified sense. There may be persons,—and the vast majority may feel so,—there are scars that can not be worn away, memories that can not be obliterated, and results following our every sin that may never wholly be escaped. That may be, but it is consistent with a large amount of happiness in this same law as we find here when we pass away from the arena. Though not what we might have been, we come into the conditions of glory in the law of life. I believe this, but I do not believe the old literal, terrible ideas of a hell-fire in which the bodies of men and women shall be consciously tortured forever. [Applause, faint at first, but afterwards becoming loud and general]. I do not see how any man of good sense can believe it in this day. [Renewed applause and hand-clapping].

“There is a law against applause here, but as my time is out I guess that law is repealed with everything else. [Laughter and applause].

“John Wesley in his day believed in material hell fire, and he said it was just as reasonable to talk about material air and material water as material fire, and if there was fire at all it was material fire, and when the objection was raised that a material fire would certainly consume any substance that it burned eternally, John Wesley answered that by saying that the Lord had in mercy given them an example in the asbestos,—a kind of flax I think, that might be submitted to the most intense heat,—and there was an example of it in the museum, and yet it could not be destroyed. And he said that if it was not literal fire it was something worse. Dr. Williamson, of the First Church, preached a sermon a few weeks ago in which he deliberately announced that that is now the theology of Methodism, and that there are no important exceptions to it; there may be now and then some tender-hearted preacher, with a heart more tender than his Savior, who can believe it.

“Now, I pity a man that can talk that way, and I pity the church if that is the theology that we are to have in the future years. I neither believe that there is any such literal and severity as is meant by conscious burning in living fire forever. Nor do I believe much less with Mr. Wesley, that if it is not fire it is something worse. I tell you, my friends, such a word negates the thought of God. With the picture before you of vast numbers of those who have lived on this earth, men and women, forever suffering in such torment, you can not think of God, because to think of God you must think of supreme goodness, of supreme excellence, of untarnished justice, of everlasting mercy, and pure love. You can not think of God when you think of any being that is not as good as your highest ideal makes Him. If you think of God you must think of the best. Anything else is not thinking of God at all. And no man can look upon such a picture as that and not feel that somehow God ought to have done better. I tell you that if I believed that doctrine I should never smile again. If I believed it I could wish that I had never been born. If I believed it I could wish the race might perish from the face of the earth. If I believed it I could wish that star after star might pale its light till the heavens were veiled in utter darkness. If I believed it I could wish that God Himself were annihilated.

“I believe in the strength and integrity of God's government. I believe in His eternal and everlasting justice. I believe that He will appropriately punish the men or the souls who violate the laws of that government. But I don't, and I can't, believe in any such terrible conceptions of government under the thought of a God of goodness and love; and to preach it is to make infidels, and to make atheists, and to drive sensible men in disgust away from the Church. And yet these same thoughtful men and women are ready to believe in a reasonable God, and in a just government, and that sin will be properly punished.

“Now, as to the eternity of punishment, I expressed at Conference a doubt on that subject. I believe, as I have said, in the eternity—the literal endlessness of that law by which sin brings suffering. I believe it abides everywhere, and will always be active. And I believe, as I said, if souls stay on the side of sin they must stay on the side of suffering. But I believe that souls go out of this world free, and I can not affirm that any soul will forever stay on the side of wrong. I can conceive how that, in the infinite creations that will probably go on forever, there may always be persons touching the dark side and going into sorrow, and there may never be a time but what there may be the suffering of those who are passing through some period of drill or education. It may all be, but I can not affirm, nor will I, that I believe that any single individual soul will forever remain in sin, and forever remain, consequently, in suffering. The question is an immense one; it involves the destinies of countless millions who have died in the past, and died without going into what we call a degenerated state. And to quietly and positively affirm that there is no possible chance for improvement after the breath goes out of the body is to me a doctrine of despair for the past—despair for the past. Great God! Can there be no help for the past? If we could save every soul from this out—if the old doctrine is true—the universe had better, as I say, never have been brought into existence at all. It involves the destinies of the present and of the future generations. It involves the character of God. It involves questions of far-reaching influence. The question is so large that before it I stand in almost silence—the issues of God's purpose in a universal intelligence. I have looked into this question a good deal. I attempted to study it under a realization of what the subject was fifteen or twenty years ago. It was such a gloom upon my mind that I did not smile for years. I was not conscious of the state in which I was. I read all I could get. I could not settle the question in argument fully one way or the other. I got relief in prayer. God assured me that he was Father of all, and would do right. Of later years I have had access to literature that I did not have then, and, as I have examined this subject as best I could, I find that instead of it being a subject closed—no debate upon it at all—that, when I go back to the early Christian centuries, the first three, or four, or five hundred years after Christ, I find that this broader hope was the general faith of those new and tender centuries. I think Dr. Edward Beecher has made it plain that of the six sects of theology that existed in those centuries four of them were unqualifiedly Universalists. One of them was Annihilationists—taught the destruction of the wicked, and one, and only one, and that was the Latin one with the Latin Testament under the Roman law, taught the doctrine of eternal punishment. And I want to say to the memory of John Wesley that, on good Methodist authority, as John Wesley came to riper years he showed the hope of a better outcome for our humanity, and scouted the idea that there was not such a hope, or such a possibility. And I tell you another thing, my friends: there is not, I suppose, an orthodox divine of any note in Europe to day but believers in an after-death probation, and believers in it from the Bible, too. And I tell you again that a large part of the Church of England, that grand Church of patient scholarship, a large number of its clergy share the same opinion. And in the Protestant Episcopal Church of this country a great many of the clergy are right along in the same line, and they do not hesitate to say so, and they are not troubled in their churches or by their Bishops when they do say so. Now the question is, Has a man a right to be a Methodist preacher, and hold that broader hope—tell the truth as it is in literature, and speak the hope that is in him on this subject? That is the question. Well, the Articles of Faith in the Methodist Church have not one syllable on future punishment—nothing about Hell in any way. Nor is there anything in the Apostles' Creed on that subject, and I joined the Church under the Articles of Faith, and was baptized with the Apostles' Creed as a part of the Liturgy, and under those they can not touch me. [Applause.] Nor can they touch you. Of course I concede that the consensus of our theology has been that of belief in endless punishment. That has been the faith of the Methodist Church,—that was the faith of the theologians, but it was not in the Articles of Faith, nor in the Apostles' Creed. Our last General Conference added on a little to the machinery for heresy hunting,—a new rule that reads what should be done with any of our preachers, if they hold or disseminate in public or in private doctrines contrary to the Articles of Faith,—they have added, “or the standard authority.” That takes in, I suppose, John Wesley, and it takes in Richard Watson, and I say deliberately that I do not believe John Wesley's sermon on Hell, nor do I fully agree with Richard Watson. Richard Watson's theory of hell is that God undertakes to make law binding by making the penalty as severe as he can and the reward as great as he can, and hence attaches, as reward, nothing less than endless life, and as penalty nothing less than endless death. Now, I hardly think that God puts out all his energy and strength in making a sinner as miserable as he can. I don't like the philosophy, the standpoint, or starting point of his theory; nor do I suppose that he adds the greatest possible reward for well doing. I suppose that the other life, like this, lies between great extremes, and that there is a proper reward for virtue, and a proper punishment for sin. And I believe and I think that the Methodist Church made a great mistake in making so great a fuss over so little an affair. And I did not believe, and could not believe until it was done, that they would single me out and attack me for heresy, upon views so moderate as those that I hold. I have as good a right to my theory of the atonement as other men have, and I showed conclusively here a year ago that there was no settled theory in the Methodist Church,—that our leading men did differ in the philosophy of the atonement. We all believe in it, and that God has so come forth in the world that sin may be pardoned and men regenerated. I believe in future and proper punishment, and the integrity of God's government; and, in all reason, in an age that is so burdened with doubt, it ought to be enough.

“Another point on which I differed was that of the inspiration of the Scriptures. Now, I believe that the article of our Church of faith—on that subject, that the Holy Scriptures contain all that is essential to salvation. So that whatever is not taught therein, or can not be proved thereby, should not be regarded of any account. I believe that. I believe that God has spoken to us in the Holy Scriptures. I believe they contain a revelation of His will—a clear unequivocal law of human duty. I believe it. I believe implicitly in the teachings of Jesus Christ. I don't suppose that in all instances we have the exact words in which the Savior spoke. But I do suppose and believe this: that we have the consensus or substance—the spirit—of his teachings, so that we may know His mind, and know his life, and know the line of life and duty he would have us pursue. I believe that, and what I believe, that I believe. But I don't believe that all parts of the Scriptures are equally inspired. I don't believe that the Old Testament throughout, is critically and literally infallible, and I don't see how any man with the facts of literature before him can believe it. I don't believe in the literal verbal rule of inspiration, as applied to all parts of the Scriptures, and to apply that rule is simply to incumber ourselves with difficulties, and to attempt to prove what is utterly impossible—to burden ourselves in a way that we can not go forward, and to put clubs into the hands of infidels with which to break our heads. And I won't take positions that in my own mind are not in a degree rational and tenable, and I won't waste the balance of my little life standing out on picket lines, from which I know I must be driven in when the attack comes. But I will come back, and I have come back as far as I can into the great centers and strongholds of truth, and I stand there and I stand here with a faith immovable and a confidence that knows no weakness [applause]. Nor do I believe, my friends, that the influence of my preaching is to unsettle men and make infidels of them. My methods are different from some. I pursue as a rule, as you have all learned, the inductive method. I seek to lead the minds of those with whom I am talking, and I feel always that I am near—with my audience—talking with them, not standing off and talking at them, talking with them. I can lead them along to the standpoints where truth seems evident to them, and where I do not have to proclaim and cry out, Believe! believe! but where they see the truth and they want to believe, and they can't help but believe. I have no power to club men into an acceptance of my belief of truth. They are of precious little account if you get them in that way, and yet I have not one word to say against my brethren who pursue a different method—who pursue the purely dogmatic method, and who seek to overpower and compel, as it were, the intellect. They must do their work in the way they think best, as they best can, and I must do mine in the way that seems best to me, and as I can best do it. By our words and works at last we shall have to be justified or condemned.

“And now, my friends, this opens up one more point, and that is, what is to be the position of the Churches, and of the Methodist Church with the rest, and it in particular, now in relation to the questions of the growing thought of the age? I have been taught to believe from my childhood that Methodism was a great church of song, and of prayer, and of experience, and of holy life and living. I have been taught by Wesley himself that Methodism puts its emphasis upon heart and life, upon character, and experience, and conduct, and I have been taught, and I have been teaching it to other people in all sincerity, that Methodism stood out as one of the great liberal Churches, allowing men, in the language of Wesley, to think, inviting them to think, and I have hoped, and I hope yet, that Methodism is going to grow with the growth of the world, growing to be so broad that truthful men and women can come through its doors and altars with their heads on their shoulders. I hope that it is going to be so broad and so progressive as to keep up with the growth of theology, for theology has its growth, and it doesn't stop to say anywhere, “It is all fixed, and you must never budge from it or look for anything more.” Theology is growing and has to grow, my friends, with other things; and yet I count it entirely loyal to stand in this pulpit and say that the tendency of our legislation for the last year has been in the direction of narrowness and not of progress. Why, John Wesley made the simple condition of membership that men should want to save their souls, and lead a good life, and get away from the peril of sin, and from that day on until some twelve years ago there was never a test required of any one coming into full membership in the Methodist Church beyond the baptismal vow with the Apostles' Creed in that: but we have legislated—our General Conference has—until now no one can get into the Church—I have let a few slip by me here [laughter]—unless he affirms his belief in the whole twenty-five Articles of Faith—a most marvelous thing in ecclesiastical literature that a church which began so liberal has come out and made a condition that no other church in the United States, so far as I know, has made. I say I do not like legislation in that backward way, and I have a right to protest. It is the right of all citizens. Had I been a member of the General Conference, I would have had a right to make a speech against it, but, being the law of the Church, of course we have got to abide by it. We had nothing until last May, as I said, as the special basis of the trial of a preacher for heresy except the Articles of Faith. Last May they put in the standard authorities. They did not define who they were, but they took in the books, I suppose, appointed by the Bishops for the course of study; they include Wesley and Watson. I do not know how they are going to interpret that rule, or what the practical application of the law is to be; but, if they carry out that law literally and practically, and the ministers of the Methodist Church are honest, I can take it and turn out one out of every ten of the denomination. I believe I can do it and I will begin with Bishop Foster. [Laughter and applause] I mention his name because it is mentioned all over the country that he is not exactly sound, and when I was in Cincinnati some friends from New York called at my room at my hotel with papers all made out of extracts from his book. I read that book and was going to review it, but could not do it without seeming to be personal, because he had helped in that hauling over that I got, so I did not review his book. These men came to me and proposed to me to agitate that thing in the press of Cincinnati under any assumed name, so that there would be a pretext for bringing it up. I told them in hunter's phrase that they could scare up their own ducks if they wanted to shoot them, and when I attacked Bishop Foster or any other man I would do it at home, and I would do it under my own honest name. [Applause]

“Now, what is to be the course of the churches? It is not only the Methodist Church, but the Church of Scotland, the Presbyterian Church of this country, the Baptist Church,—all the churches almost, except the Liberal Church and the Protestant Episcopal Church of this country, that are in trouble on this very question. There are more heads of heresy sticking up than they have guns and ammunition to shoot. [Laughter.] What is to be their course? What are they going to do with all these men? Why, take the Roman Catholic Church. I am, I think, quite credibly informed that there are in this city alone 2,500 young men born and baptized in the Roman Catholic Church that never enters its doors at all. Are we as a Methodist Church—are the churches of this generation going to turn round and go back to the teachings of one or two or three hundred years ago, and put the yokes of that old time upon the people? Are they going to do it? If they do I fear there can be but one result, and that is to drive away intelligent and thinking men, and I might say, make a bid for ignorance or hypocrisy.

“You put the rule down strictly to the members of the Methodist Church—this particular congregation, especially since I got here,—and how many will agree with John Wesley's sermon on hell? They stay in the church and say they have a right to stay there, because of their character, and you will get no brother goose enough to put them out on the ground of their theology. Unless they make trouble they can stay in, but the trouble is to allow others to get in. Now, I believe, my friends, honestly, in opening the door to all sincere people who want to leave sin and want to do right. Give them the New Testament and let them come in. I tell you this step of legislation of our last Conference in bringing in the standard authorities is a step in the direction of ecclesiasticism, and is a step in the very direction that Rome traveled when she tied herself to traditions instead of the Bible and made the Reformation of the sixteenth century necessary.”

When the matter went up to the Conference, and Dr. Thomas' name was called his character was passed; but after much talk and debate the following preambles and resolution were introduced by Elder Tibbals and were passed, one hundred and seven yeas, forty-seven nays.

“WHEREAS, The Rev. Hiram W. Thomas, D. D., holds doctrinal views at variance with the historic theology of the Methodist Episcopal Church; and

“Whereas, The holding and promulgation of his peculiar views in the Methodist Episcopal ministry will be a source of continued irritation to himself and disturbance to the peace of our Church and injurious to the great house of evangelical religion; therefore, “Resolved, first, That, in the interest of peace and truth, we kindly but firmly request our brother, the Rev. Hiram W. Thomas, D. D., to withdraw from the Methodist Episcopal Church at this session of this Conference.

“Second, That in going out from us because he is no longer of us, we commend him to God, to the word of His grace, and to the guidance of that Holy Spirit who leads in all truth.”

To this Dr. Thomas replied, declaring himself to be in accord with the “doctrines of the church, and in the fullest sympathy with its spirit and work,” and that he declined going out. The conference then appointed Elders Axtell and Hatfield to prefer charges against the Doctor and directed his trial by the presiding elder of the conference to which he belongs; and he awaits trial.

The issue is fairly made, for the committee among other things declared:

“We cheerfully recognize the pure character and intellectual ability of Dr. Hiram W. Thomas; yet we can not resist the conviction that some of his views and methods of statement are destructive of the integrity of Methodism, and especially of the fundamental doctrines which we feel bound to conserve.

“Dr. Thomas has stated that he is in essential accord with the doctrines of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and desires to have it pointed out in what sense he is, in the judgment of his brethren, at variance with those doctrines. The committee is of the opinion that Dr. Thomas is essentially out of harmony with the doctrines of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and that this will appear whenever the issues may be fairly tested, and it is our judgment that such issue should now be made.”

That Dr. Thomas has a large circle of sympathizers and supporters in his views, is seen by the fact that a number of Chicago citizens met October 25th, and formed a church to be called the “People's church,” services to be held in Hooley's Theater. After the appointment of Trustees, a formal call to Dr. Thomas was tendered him, he having accepted a supernumerary relation, pending his trial. This call the Doctor accepted and his first services were held November 7th, and in five minutes after the doors were opened the seats were filled, and hundreds were turned away. Some seats were sold at extraordinary prices, voluntarily paid, and much enthusiasm shown.

What next? It is almost certain that there is a wide spread dissatisfaction among the ministers of the M. E. Church, in regard to Dr. Thomas' views, and his methods of church, or ministerial labor; and it seems to be equally certain that they will turn him out of the connection. Those who carefully read the extract of his sermon published by us, will see the reasons for this uneasiness on the part of the preachers; and the reason why they will expel him if they do it.

In this connection we copy from a letter by E. L. Wakeman, Chicago correspondent for the Louisville Courier Journal, and published in the Chicago Sunday Times, September 19th, under the caption “Too good a minister.” One of the ablest of Chicago's lawyers, a personal friend of Dr. Thomas, says:

“I intensely regret that our church doctrine, government, and customs give no latitude for just such sweet, grand men as Dr. Thomas is. He is certainly an injury to it, in it; I don't believe his influence will be so great out of it.”

An eminent Methodist clergyman said:

“He is a soulful, pure, honest man. He draws people to himself. When he leaves a people, the benediction of our Lord's work, through him, in some strange way, disappears.”

“A member of the Centenary church, with great reluctance” thus:

“Then of a sudden he undid the whole business by his sermon on ‘Doubt.’ We Methodists are not doubters. We don't want to be doubters. We are not Methodists if we are doubters. A chill came over everything. Great crowds flocked to the church and we tried to make ourselves believe that much good was being done to somebody, if it wasn't being done to us. But gradually the church life went out. While in numbers we are now apparently strong, we are to-day weak in real church strength. When Thomas leaves, these crowds will leave, and we will have to go to work in the good old way to rebuild our society and make it again a strong Methodist society. I don't know what to think about Thomas. I really feel as though the Methodist Church had no appropriate field for him. We love him as a man and a tender, spiritual Christian. We know him to be conscientious and pure and true. But in some way that I can not explain, however grand and noble his thought may have been, his influence has been disorganizing among us.”

Another, and a member of the church board, thus:

"He moves, breathes, and has his being in an atmosphere of all-pervading Christian tenderness and simplicity. Dear as that sympathy and tender purity is to me, bettering as is that sort of influence upon me, I always return to the sure knowledge that he unhinges me and sets me adrift from all my preconceived notions and fixed ideas. I do not believe there is a man who comes as a personal friend into so many lives that need just such tender friendship. But all this time, our healthful, staunch, old-fashioned church work goes to pieces, and we are all at sea. Ask us what we believe, we can not tell you. Ask us who we love, we promptly say, Dr. Thomas. But there is something in his ministry with us, and I find it true of all charges he has held, that is destructive to healthful church life."

To us this seems very singular. That a character so tender, pure and honest, as to make all love him, should be of such a dangerous nature to church work and church existence. We, who have bowed in absolute awe before the contemplation of the love that Christ held for "us and all mankind," and have held such constant and dread inquests over our feeble efforts to emulate that love, have never found that love, nor its reflection an element of weakness, but of strength; nor can we readily realize how such a character demonstrated in the life of such a man as Dr. Thomas is represented to be, could be destructive of the life of Christ's church. There is surely some great mistake here, and the Methodist church, as a separate identity, representing the popular phases of Protestantism, ought to pause, long and gravely, before ousting the reverend gentleman from their association. Should they disregard the caution which the situation must surely suggest to them, and thrust this "souful," "Christian-hearted" man out, there will be another occasion for a hundred thousand readers to see the lines written, in this case as in the one of Rev. David Swing, "In losing Dr. Hiram W. Thomas the Methodist church has lost a good gospeler; but the cause of Christ has gained a minister."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE want the Elders and Saints to remember that we want a thousand more subscribers for 1881. Who knows what the year may bring in. Just think of it; five cents a day for tobacco, that neither wife nor children shares in the luxury of, is thirty-five cents a week, and seventeen dollars and twenty cents a year; ten cents a day are thirty-four dollars and forty cents a year; five cents a day put at interest at ten per cent at the end of each year, will give in ten years two hundred and seventy-one dollars and seventy-six cents; and ten cents per day put at interest in the same way gives five hundred and forty three dollars and fifty-two cents. Save your tobacco money, send for the HERALD, HOPE, and ADVOCATE, yearly, and you will have plenty to keep good shoes on the children's feet, and good wheat flour bread on your table. The man, who is a user of tobacco, and who at the end of ten years of married life, (granting him ordinary health and freedom from misfortune), finds himself without even an ordinary house for self and family, has no business to grunt, complain, or whine about the unequal distribution of fortune's favors, or turn communist and clamor for common-division of wealth, for he has literally chewed and smoked himself and family out of house and home.

Bro. Andrew Hall, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes, November 7th, as follows: "When I made my report to you of conference expenses, I used 'I' when I should have used 'we,' so that it appears that I wished to take all the honor (if there is any) to myself. My intention was far from this; but I had no idea when I wrote that you would publish my letter, and so did not think the proper wording. Bro. J. D. Haywood was my equal in preparing the Conference grounds, and worked faithfully with me, and is entitled to the same credit as myself. Please set me right with the HERALD readers; and with Bro. Haywood, of whom I ask pardon for my want of thought." This manly letter from Bro. Hall has the true ring. He made a report to us because we asked him to; and we are sorry that we made him to appear in an improper light, as he evidently did not know when he wrote his report that it would go into the HERALD. We hope Bro. Haywood will accept our apology, as well as Bro. Hall's.

Bro. R. J. Anthony, writes from Lehi City, Utah, November 2nd: "Prospects are still favorable here for an increase. Our last service, Sunday night, was a most excellent one. We think prospects as fair as can be expected. I go to Camp Floyd to-morrow. Kind regards to all."

Bro. W. L. Booker, of Wilmott, Ray county, Missouri, sent card dated November 8th, 1880. "I start for the South to-day," Bro. Booker is expecting to preach, wherever the opportunity is presented. The Saints south will doubtless be pleased to welcome his labors.

Bro. Hiram Robinson writes from Plymouth, Pennsylvania. "I have visited the Saints at Philadelphia, Allentown and Brooklyn, and my heart was made glad and my faith strengthened in the work. They provided for my necessities for which I am thankful. Perhaps some of them would do well to heed the teachings of Christ in the 18th chapter of Matthew. I have commenced holding meetings here and will continue through the week."

Under date of November 6th, Bro. Josiah Ells wrote as follows: "As you are already informed, a branch was organized at Clarksburg, and Dexter L. Shinn, elected and ordained an Elder, October 18th, 1880, and Wilber Wiger, elected and ordained a Priest, October 24th, 1880. The father of Bro. D. L. Shinn was baptized by Elder Samuel James and ordained an Elder by him and Elder Ewings, in 1840; he has the License they then gave him. As he desired to unite with the branch, and as I learned he has always maintained his integrity, we received him on his original baptism, and will renew his License. He preached in the neighborhood until the rejection of the Church. His son says that his father told him one morning with tears in his eyes, after fasting and prayer that the Lord told him to "stand still, the light would be sent to him;" and in it he now rejoices. In view of the fact that a wide door seems to be opening in that region, I advised Bro. Shinn not to unite for the present with any district organization; the nearest district being Syracuse, Ohio. If anticipations are realized, a district organization can be effected in the course of time where the work has now begun. Bro. Shinn is a bricklayer, and the leading man in that line in that region, but has a large family which up to the present has not afforded him any assistance; but he has two sons who are now beginning to help, and he intends to devote as much of his time as practicable to the spread of the work. Bro. Devore intends to return to West Virginia, and to take his wife along; unquestionably she is a "Help"—an earnest, gifted woman. Bro. Devore can do the preaching, but she is needed with him to do the fire-side talking. I may remain here for several weeks, as the Saints desire it. I expect to make my home in Pittsburgh with my son, J. W. Ells, as he desires me to do so; but as long as I can be of any service in the work I feel a desire to work—it can not in the nature of the case be for any great length of time, but I feel stronger in body to-day than for several months past, for which I try to feel thankful."

Bro. Joseph Luff wrote from Independence, Mo., November 2d, that he was laboring in the ministry there and he believes that good will result. So we believe.

Bro. J. C. Foss wrote from Kansas City, November 4th, that he was going to St. Louis right away, on his course to the Southern States. We wish him good success.

Bro. Charles Wicks, who, at our last advices, was lying dangerously ill at Corsicana, Texas, put in an appearance at the Sanctum, November 11th, alive, but sadly worn and thin from sickness, and a long railway ride. He, like many a northern man when malarial fever set in, longed for the cool breezes of the north.

Sr. Lydia Bennett, of Santa Barbara, California, writes of the confirmation of her hope and the answer to her prayer for a gift, by the conferring of dreams, through which spiritual instruction has been given her.

Bro. Munroe E. Culver, writes us from Mendota, Illinois, and relates how he became acquainted with the work. It was by reading the Book of Mormon, at his father's house; and the light that he receives through reading of that book. He says, "My prayer to God is that he will bless that dear old father and mother for having that book in the house." If others of the Saints would read and "remember the Book of Mormon, and the former commandments," we should have less fault-finding and more prudence.

From a private letter from Bro. H. J. Hudson, of Columbus, Nebraska, we learn that he was beaten in his candidacy for representative; the reason for which was that on the Saturday before election, the cry of "Mormon Elder" was raised against him, and printed circulars containing the same cry were industriously sent among the religious rank and file through the county; and among the German and other foreign element, the cry that he wanted to shut up the saloons, and the result was a defeat by one hundred and thirteen majority. Well, it is very hard for a thoroughly good man to be elected to offices given by a fickle populace. We are, personally, in favor of an absolute refusal to allow intoxicating liquors to be sold in licensed saloons, and should we ever offer for any office in the gift of the people, or ever be requested to take the risk of an election, let it be written on, over, before and after our name, "he is against the sale of intoxicating liquors." To be counted out for a virtue is to be honored by defeat; and to be elected by unfair means is a dishonoring triumph, which will stain the character forever.

Bro. J. M. Spaulding writes from Sibley, Iowa, that the crops were never better in that grasshopper region than now. Weather cold, with some snow.

Bro. J. A. Stromberg, is badly afflicted with rheumatism in that wonderfully "healthy country," California. If there is a country under the skies as industriously lied about in praise as California, we would like to know the name of it. We sincerely believe that we can find more health to the square mile in the sucker State than in the Golden one; but Bro. Stromberg, sorely afflicted, writes to us cheerfully of his condition. He feels grateful to those who sent him the HERALD; but sees his time expiring without the means to renew it, and feels it no wrong to confess that he is unable to pay for it. Remember Bro. Stromberg when you pray.

We are informed by Bro. J. B. Jarvis, of Scranton, Kansas, that Bro. F. Lofty has baptized a man belonging to the Bickerton Order, on the 2d November, who "bids fair to be become a useful man in the kingdom."

Under date of November 5th, Bro. John Grimmett writes from Landers, Wyoming Territory, as follows: "I have received letters of late from old friends in Idaho, who are convinced that Joseph Smith is the man called of God to lead his Church, and I am going to pay them a visit, some four hundred miles distant."

Bro. L. R. Devore, under date of November 11th, 1880, writes from Graysville, Ohio: "After writing on the 19th (Oct.) from Clarksburg, I baptized two more there, making ten. The prospect is good at Toll Gate, where Sr. E. J. Leeson lives, for an ingathering. Bro. D. L. Shinn will visit that place soon."

Bro. Alma Nephi Bishop, writes from Wales, that they would be glad to welcome a good, brave, working Elder in that ancient commonwealth; and thinks that if the Church is low in funds, they might pay the fare of such an one over the water. Of this of course we can not judge; but as to the finances, the published statements of the Bishop show just what condition they are in. The Bishop is to-day paying out of his own pocket, whatever is paid to help on the missions, either to send or return Elders and Missionaries. How long this will continue we can not state.

Bro. E. C. Brand writes. His address will be Ogden, Utah "I left my home on the 24th of September, and preached in Magnolia, Shelby, Homestead, Omaha, Valley, and Elkhorn; and by the kindness of the Saints in these places was enabled to purchase my ticket for Ogden, on the 26th of October, and was made glad by seeing the genial face of Bro. Blair on my arrival. I preached in the Liberal Institute on Sunday, 7th; at Kaysville, Tuesday 9th, and Wednesday 10th; and have secured the M. E. Church here for 15th and following evening; what the results may be, the future must determine. With grateful thanks to all who assisted me."

"In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thy hand; thou knowest not which shall prosper, this or that," has been very aptly illustrated in the late experience of Bro. George C. Hodge, now of Pappillon, Nebraska, formerly of Plain City, Utah. The light of the truth reached him through the instrumentality of Bro. R. A. Beecher; and now Bro. Hodge notices the fact that Bro. Beecher has sent for some of the standard works of the Church, and he knows therefrom that his prayers for him have been heard. It is always thus, sincere and honest effort to aid others ever brings to the helper the grace of God.

A son of Bro. and Sr. Atwell, living at Fall River, Kansas, dreamed that "he saw a red lily rise in the south east; a black cloud cut it in two in the middle, the upper half died, but the lower half grew and reached to the skies. It came towards him; he saw Christ following behind the lily; when it came to him the temple of God was in the lily, and he saw his mother sitting in the temple, and said to her, 'Mamma, the millenium has not come yet, but soon will, and I will be with you.'"

Bro. Charles A. Hall, of Ottumwa, Iowa, offers a copy of Bro. David H. Smith's Poems, Hesperis, as a prize to the one obtaining and sending to the HERALD Office the largest list of cash subscribers for the HOPE for the year 1881.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is it in accordance with the spirit of the gospel for members of the Church to engage in the practice of giving music lessons on Sunday for remuneration?

Ans.—We think it quite inconsiderate for members of the Church to do so. There are other days for such work.

We received the following on the 15th of November; and should be particularly glad to be able send a smart preacher down into Maine; but for the same reasons that we can not send the same sort to hundreds of other places we can not send one there. Will Bro. Thomas W. Smith send his address to Bro. Coombs and oblige.

"Will you be kind enough to send us some one to preach to us, for we are in want. It seems that you have forgotten us down in Maine. There are plenty of anxious ones here that like to hear the gospel preached. You had better send some one that is smart, for that is what is wanted here. Please let me know where to direct to Bro. Thomas W. Smith. Send him this way if you can."

Bro. M. O. Howard writes a ringing letter from Gainesville, Florida. He is alone, but his feet are planted on "the Rock." He says:

"God bless the latter-day-work, to cherish, bless, strengthen, encourage, and enable the pruners of his vineyard to fully comply with the requirements of their missions. Brethren, grant me your prayers. I second the motion made by Bro. W. C. Matthews, concerning tithing; to organize an association to be known as the Latter Day Saints' Protective Association; and offer as an amendment, that each member who joins pay their $5.00 per year, and that there be printed certificates or receipts, sent on receipt of said $5.00, and in default of any of said members not complying with the requirements each year, the first or other certain appointed times in the year, his name be excluded; without a good and lawful excuse, and that he will pay as soon as possible."

News Summary.

November 5th.—The breaking of a portion of the hoisting apparatus of a mine, near Brussels, killed thirteen men, yesterday.

There is an increased demand for American breadstuffs in Russia. At St. Petersburg the price of bread has increased 100 per cent. The supply is wholly inadequate, and even the greatly increased importation of grain from this country fails to meet the demand.

An application was made to the French Tribunal on Conflicts on the part of the Jesuits to exclude the Minister of the Interior, from passing on the constitutionality of the law under which the religious orders were expelled. The application was refused. This foreshadows a decision against the Jesuits on all points. The expulsions of the members of the religious orders are being pushed with considerable vigor, and it is probable that before a decision is reached there will not be a single objectionable priest or monk in the country.

Eighty Socialists have been expelled from Hamburg, and twenty families have been obliged to leave Altona. Many families of Schleswig-Holstein have been notified that their residence in that Province is objectionable, and are preparing to leave. Two newspaper writers at Hanover have been sentenced to imprisonment for one year and seven months, respectively, for having written articles reflecting on the Emperor William.

Capt. Gaige, of the American steam-launch Isabel, has reported to the United States Consul at Payta that he and his crew were subjected to gross indignities by the Chilian seamen at that port. The United States flag was pulled down and trampled on, and the Chilian seamen cursed the people of the United States. The captain was taken before the Chilian commander, who caused him to be confined for twenty-four hours.

Ireland is still in a very unsettled condition. A magistrate was fired at, near Longford, last night. The Dublin Freeman's Journal has started a subscription for the defense of the Land Leaguers.

The Methodist Episcopal Board of Missions yesterday appropriated $10,868 for mission work in Central China; $2,000 for North China, and $5,000 for the establishment of a mission in West China.

6th.—Lord Lyons, the British Ambassador at Paris, has asked Minister Castans, to grant authorization to the English Passionists in Paris, and the English Benedictines at Douai, and M. Castans has consented.

At Sebastapool, near Pittston, Pa., yesterday, the ground over a coal mine caved some six feet, and several houses have been abandoned by the inhabitants.

The members of the Dominican, and of the Franciscan, and other unauthorized orders were expelled from their establishments in Paris yesterday. They offered only a passive resistance.

Intelligence has been received that the parties concerned in the murder of Rev. M. Parsons, in Asiatic Turkey, have been tried and condemned. One man was sentenced to death, and the others to long terms of imprisonment.

Through the carelessness of a switchman, a freight and a passenger train collided near Penn Horn Creek, N. J. Result: two men killed; switchman fled.

Two freight trains ran into each other near Moonville, O., killing the engineer and fireman. The accident is said to be due to the failure of the train dispatcher to notify one of the engineers that he should hold his train.

A party of 100 men went through the country in the neighborhood of Tralee, Ireland, Thursday night, and made the farmers residing there take oaths that they would pay no rent greater than the Government valuation.

The English Channel Squadron has been ordered to Ireland. The Government evidently anticipate trouble in the Green Isle. The Land Leaguers, however, have issued an address in which they declare their agitation to be thoroughly legal and peaceful.

Seventeen new cases of small pox were reported to-day, up to noon, at San Francisco, and much alarm is being felt.

Nearly 600 Chinese left San Francisco, yesterday, for China, amid a scene of great confusion and excitement.

8th.—A furious storm prevailed Saturday night and yesterday on Lakes Erie, Ontario and Huron, causing many shipwrecks and inflicting damages to vessels and cargoes. One vessel and five men lost.

Dr. Thomas occupied for the first time the pulpit of "The People's Church," in the auditorium of Hooley's Theatre, and the new departure was inaugurated with every indication of a great and gratifying success.

Pope Leo XIII. has been compelled to pay his own "help," a Pontifical turnout of some 600 people, because they were forbidden to take the oath of allegiance to the King of Italy. This vast inroad upon the sums donated by the faithful of the world has saddened his spirit, but has only embittered.

tered his hostility to the Government of Italy. In a speech to these Vatican domestics, made the 24th of last month, he gave utterance, for the first time, to those sentiments of opposition to the King which he was generally thought to have previously concealed.

Correspondence.

ELKADER, Iowa,
October 24th, 1880.

Respected Nephew:—Severe sickness in my family, of late, prevents my visit to Plano this Fall; as I mentioned in a previous letter. I am still hopeful, that if matters turn out as I could wish that I will see you before Spring opens, the Lord willing. I am well pleased while looking over the Herald to learn of the prosperity of the work in the different localities where the pure and unadulterated gospel is preached. Many missions, no doubt, might be better supplied if there was more means in the hands of the Bishop, to aid in the protection of the families of those Elders willing to invest their whole time and talents in the field of their labors. It is to be hoped that the truly faithful of God's people will awake to a sense of duty in this respect; to be observant of that law of love, which so materially helps the Bishop of the Church to untie the hands of the ministry for the work that appears to be opening, far and wide, all over the land. Some other matters I deem worthy of note. A few days since I was visited by two Elders from Utah, who were of the Brighamite order. They claimed that their call on me was mainly to see the brother of the martyr, Joseph Smith. To set an example of hospitality, I entertained them over night, gave them supper, lodging and breakfast; and might have entertained them longer had not my time been limited for conversation. The district court was in session at the time, and I was a member of the Grand Jury, and was obliged to be at my post, and could not therefore spend much time with them. I understand that they obtained a hearing in one of the adjoining neighborhoods, but did not make a very deep impression upon the minds of the people; as they had already been posted on the primitive doctrines of Mormonism, as taught by the Reorganized Church.

Your uncle,

WM. B. SMITH.

ZURICH, Switzerland,
October 27th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—I am still working for the cause of our Master, preaching every Sabbath in private houses; average attendance about twenty; good feeling prevails. Three again have covenanted with God, and rejoice in the gospel; some more are believing. Those who come to hear the word preached are astonished and surprised from where the knowledge and power comes that enables me to teach the gospel. I am thankful to God for the assistance of his Spirit; may he always be with me to lead and guide me in this great and glorious work. Persecutions have ceased to considerable extent; and some of the Saints were strengthened with dreams, which give them plainly to understand that I was a servant of God.

What I am greatly in need of is the printed word. Is there no possibility to have some of our tracts here printed in German? I am very thankful to those who remembered me in the far off land in sending me aid for my temporal support; may God bless them abundantly for the same, that they may receive a hundred fold instead. I shall never forget them in my prayers. I ask for the prayers of all true and faithful Saints in behalf of my children, in the behalf of this mission, and myself, that I may accomplish the work entrusted to my care for the salvation of many souls to the glory and honor of God.

Always praying for the success of Zion's cause, I am yours in Christ,

J. L. BEAR.

AN APPEAL.

I desire, Mr. Editor, to call the attention of the Saints to the letter of J. L. Bear in Herald of August 15th, and also to the following quotations from letter to me, dated September 8th, 1880, and ask them this question, "Brethren and sisters, is it not our duty to sustain our Elders?" A one, two, or five dollar greenback might be spared by many, and the giving of it for such a cause would bless the giver equally with the receiver. May God make willing the able. Yours for truth's triumphs,

MARK H. FORSCUTT.

ZURICH, Switzerland,
September 8th, 1880.

Mr. Mark H. Forscutt; Dear Brother:—Circumstances cause me to write you a few lines from this far off land, and the more so because we have been acquainted with one another for so many years, having passed through together so many fiery trials and hardships for the gospel's sake, and hope still to battle for truth and liberty among a wicked and unbelieving generation till our warfare is ended on this world.

My mission here is a hard one. "Brighamism" spoiled it. The name "Mormon" is a sink here among the nation. It is therefore with great difficulty that we can advocate our claims here. We have to work with great prudence; but some one will have to commence this work. With the help of God I will try to do my duty.

The silk and cotton manufacturing business is dull and duller. Perilous times are at hand for the poor, and still they will not humble themselves. A good many declare to me that I preach the truth, that they believe every word, and yet they have no power to obey the gospel, they have fallen in a deep sleep. Yet I hope and trust that the seed which is sown may yet bear fruit if not at present, it may sooner or later.

When once the Church here shall be separated from the State, I believe the gospel will be preached with more freedom, and many embrace the glorious truth. It is very difficult to reach the people without tracts, no church building, no hall to preach in. I trust the Church will not forsake me in respect to these things, but sustain me in such wise that I may get the printed word. I worked hard for farmers this spring and summer for about twenty days. I tried to get my wages from one by law. Now he says that he don't owe me anything, and to go farther in the law will bring me expenses, and therefore I let it drop. I have received for all my labor yet only one dollar. How much more I will get I do not know. So I came to the conclusion not to work any more for people who will not pay the laborer. I have received no support of any body since I arrived here, except of one sister, and she also is very poor; so you can see that I need means to live on. I hope to go to Germany this winter, but I ought to have the printed word to distribute and for an introduction. Without it, it is hard, yea, very nearly impossible to reach the people.

Emigration from this country to American home is on the increase, because the silk manufacturing business is decreasing. Our American people begin to manufacture those things themselves, and shortly they will not need to import them from this country; the consequence, the majority here will be breadless. This compels them to emigrate if they have means left to do so.

SOLON, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio,

November 7th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—I am now under great affliction. Our home is the home of mourning in regard to the death of my son, William Henry. He came to his death on the second of this month, whilst attempting to get on the cars running at the rate of fifteen miles an hour. He lost his hold and fell under the cars and was killed instantly. He was twenty years of age and was making his first trip, and within seven miles of home. I ask the prayers of the Saints; that I may bear my affliction, and as he is in the hands of a just God, in whom I trust, I feel to say "All his works are just and right."

Yours in gospel bonds,

J. LAMOREAUX.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa,

November 10th, 1880.

Dear Herald:—Labor attendant upon changing homes for my family, and accepting invitations to preach where by the legislative acts of the Conference I held no spiritual jurisdiction, has detained me longer than I expected from my anticipated tour through part of Kansas, and from thence to Colorado; and you will permit me to express my gratitude for the evidence of respect in these invitations received; and further to say nothing save a desire to be where appointed to labor, has prevented an acceptance of those invitations not accepted.

The openings for preaching are still plenteous. I do not know that we could ask for improvement in this particular. If the moral rectitude and zeal of the Church were as good, modern Babylon would begin to feel alarmed at the rapid strides of the latter-day-work, but in these there is evidently a lack. Look at it, if ten thousand members were to contribute five cents per week, in fifty-two weeks twenty-six thousand dollars would be brought into the Church coffers. This would not sustain many H. W. Beechers or R. G. Ingersolls, but would liberate quite an army of Elders, and do much towards helping the needy. And these two injunctions are imposed on the Church. But why could not this be doubled, and thereby fifty-two thousand dollars be raised. And what would hinder another double, making one hundred and four thousand dollars in a year. Now, this is a bit of practical religion; nothing puzzling about it. Now, whereas, that matter of a surplus of property being such a puzzler, would it not be well to stop puzzling for awhile and come at once to that which is so susceptible of demonstration; and try this simplest of all methods. It may savor of Methodism, but its effects will be glorious, nevertheless. And who knows but while this simple arrangement is being carried out, new light may break in upon us and our conceptions so brighten, creating a willingness to so use this world's goods, that the Church coffers, now deplete, or complete with emptiness, may be running over, until every Elder may be free to go and tell the wondrous story, and the hearts of the needy be made glad in the help received through a well and constantly replenished treasury. This would do more to move the gospel car than all the delving and soaring for mysteries that has, or can be done. Talk about a revival; this would bring just such a revival as we want, paying five cents a week! Why, this would necessitate the appointment of a treasurer in every branch. If a brother was not available, a sister might be appointed without involving any discussion on the woman's rights question. More than this, it would necessitate every member of the Church to go to meeting once a week, to see that he or she got credit for the offering; and this would be quite a revival, such a one as is much, very much needed. Besides we never ought to cry to the Lord for such a revival as we can or ought to bring about ourselves. We may and should ask his blessing in what we do and for that we can not do; but we should first exert ourselves.

I hope your readers will not be afraid of this financial question, or become apprehensive of being fleeced. The locomotive is a splendid affair, but useless, save for ornament, without a constant supply of fuel and water. Nor does a gift to-day always suffice; a constant renewal is needed. Nor ought the fear of policy or dishonest acts imposed upon a confiding people by unscrupulous men, always to exist; or a conclusion be reached that all are therefore scheming and unworthy of confidence.

I was made glad in visiting Crescent City, Iowa, to find the Saints therein active, peaceable, and striving unitedly for the good. They have a thriving Sabbath School, and intend that that noble institution shall still be sustained. It is cheering to know that young members, and those of riper years are striving to this end. And these efforts to sustain branch and Sabbath School, must have a salutary effect. There is no necessity for vexed or puzzling questions being dragged into the Sabbath School; and the lesson leaves may be used for the good they contain; and the error, if any, be shown and rejected and the scholars not injured. While we would not bring error, or seek to inculcate it into the minds, there is no use in trying to deny its existence; but seek to give a reason why it should be forsaken. More united efforts to sustain Sabbath Schools in the branches in the West are necessary.

I found the members of Spring Creek (Harrison county, Iowa) Branch, peaceful, zealous, and striving. And at Galland's Grove I was made glad to find some of the old timers still waiting, working and cheered by the blessed hope of the gospel. Adjacent to the old log meeting house, where so many happy hours had been spent, I saw looming up a new meeting house 26x40, with a sixteen foot ceiling, inclosed, fitly framed, and put together in a manner that proved that no stint of lumber or lack of mechanical skill. It awaits floor, plastering and seating—and with an acre or two of ground enclosed, leveled and sown to blue grass, shade trees, &c., it may be made a pleasant spot, and reflect credit upon the Saints in that locality.

Your in hope,

JAMES CAFFALL.

TOILGATE, Ritchie Co., W. Va.,

October 26th, 1880.

Editor Herald:—Bro. Devore was here and preached eight sermons. The people come out readily to hear him, and say they never heard better preaching—never heard the Scripture explained so clearly before. We stand in need of one of our preachers here right away; for there will be a chance for a branch here.

E. J. LEASON.

WALSINGHAM CENTRE, Ontario,

November 9th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Your letter of the 4th instant, received; the work is still onward in this place. I have baptized five since I wrote to you, one on the 31st of October, and four on the 7th of this month, all heads of families. I expect to baptize more before I leave here. Truly the Lord has blessed me in proclaiming the unsearchable riches of God's truth. I have been made to realize the words that you told me before I left Plano. You said I would be blessed greatly in this mission; that I would meet with friends and success. Such has been the case. I don't want to receive better treatment than I have from the Saints and friends in this mission. To God be the praise and the glory. And while I have been so abundantly blessed of God I have been greatly tried and tempted by the enemy of my soul. Were it not for the power of God there is no doubt but what I would have faltered by the way; but still I rejoice that I can say that the longer I am in this work the more I love it, and the more I feel like sacrificing to preach the same glad tidings unto fallen humanity. The baptisms mentioned by Bro. Fish were not of Walsingham; they live in Mossely. I enclose a piece clipped from the Spirit of the Age, edited at Port Rowan, Ontario. They have also made a mistake as to the baptisms, as there were seven baptized here. Yours in the truth,

GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

[The clipping is here given.—Ed.]

"THE MORMON PROPHET.—It may not be generally known that a Mormon preacher has been holding forth at Walsingham Centre, yet such is the fact, and was so successful in his labors as to secure a couple of disciples. On the evening that they were to be baptized, a couple of young men repaired to the water, Davis' pond, a little in advance of the candidates, and secreted themselves to witness the ceremony. None came, but to their astonishment there appeared on the bridge, Joe Smith, a tall, thin man, with a very wide white band on his hat. Whether it was the veritable Mormon prophet, or that other Joe Smith, deponent sayeth not."

[The Spirit of the Age is rightly named, and it is a lying spirit at that.—Ed.]

MARMATON, Bourbon Co., Kan.,

October 24th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—We are still alone in this part, among a prejudiced people, consequently have done but little preaching; only occupying the stand once this summer. I think I shall try for another hearing soon. I, with my children, attend a Union Sunday School. The prejudice against us is plainly seen there; but we bear it. We have raised enough by the "sweat of the face," if we use it with wisdom, for our temporal need; although the yield was middling light. An estimate was taken of all I possessed, amounting to one hundred and forty dollars; so you can see that I am among those who are limited in means. We still feel interested in the work, and ask that any passing this way will stop and see us.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah,

November 1st, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—Bro. Brand arrived here the 29th, ult., in good health and spirits. He will likely remain in this city this week and then go to labor in Ogden and Weber valleys, and their vicinities. Messrs. Moody and Sankey have been preaching and singing here daily and nightly, and their congregations have been large and attentive. Indeed, on last night, probably hundreds who sought could procure neither sitting nor standing room in the spacious church (Methodist) where they ministered. They dwell chiefly on salvation by faith, and use Scriptural texts, and incidents of every day life, to illustrate the importance and excellency of Christ's salvation. They have but little or nothing to say of the distinctive doctrines of Christ, except faith and repentance; and so of the ceremonies and gifts, and some of the peculiar promises of Christ, the apostles, and the prophets. Their labors will do much to liberalize the minds of many Utah

Mormons, and to point all to a high standard of morality, and to Christ as the Savior of those who will seek him. They are evidently sincere, though the methods they adopt, and the peculiar style of argument common in their sermons, songs and exhortations are, in many respects, to my mind, not warranted, not to say exemplified in the Scriptures. They promulgate, with great force the necessity for personal righteousness, and they use such texts of Scripture as are calculated to awaken the emotions, enlist the sympathies, and arouse the fears, of their hearers. Mr. Moody is not an orator—just an earnest, interesting, familiar talker. He is very natural and unaffected in his speech and manners. This disarms the criticism of his audience, and draws the people to him. His earnestness, enthusiasm and zeal, go far to answer for his want of rhetoric, and his poverty of genuine eloquence. Salt Lake City will be the better for the visit of the "Evangelists."

NEW JEFFERSON, Green Co., Iowa,
November 4th, 1880.

Dear Herald:—After the parting salutations of September 20th, we wended our way homeward, arriving safely on the 21st. Here we remained, preparing for the inclemencies of Winter, until October 18th, when, at 5 a.m., we parted with those near and dear to us, going by wagon—through the snow and cold, to the city of Dunlap. Here we took the parting hand of our only brother in the flesh, who had conveyed us to this place, and for the first time in life, had the privilege of trying the ease of Naham's "chariot." We arrived safely at our destination, (Glidden), at about 1 p.m., there to find Bro. J. R. Lambert in waiting. After some delay we rode out to North Coon with a Mr. and Sr. Hiron. If this ride were to be taken as an ensample of what we might expect while in the "field," we confess we would have but little taste for it indeed. Sitting in the back part of a buggy, drawn by a fiery team—through mud and slush—you can reasonably infer what kind of an appearance we were able to present when arriving at Bro. Salisbury's. Here, after a thorough drying, scraping and rubbing, we were once more able to put in a presentable appearance. While at North Coon—where we found warm-hearted Saints—we held three meetings. From thence we came to this place, where we have held meetings as follows: Pikes' Peak school-house, ten; Zellar, four; Anderson, one.

From this place Bro. Lambert goes to Boonesborough. Was to have gone to-day, but snow storm prevented. I am to remain in this neighborhood until his return, when we expect to commence a series of meetings at the Oak Tree School-house. Thence back to North Coon, from whence we expect to work northward. While at our present stopping place, (Bro. Hatcher's), I have worked part of the time at husking corn, that I might thereby have necessary incidental expenses. Hoping and praying for the weal of Zion, I am, your co-laborer for Christ,

J. W. WIGHT.

CHATHAM, Ontario,
November 8th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—Last evening I attended meeting in this town held by two men called Plymouth Brethren. Their gospel is all free grace without any works on their part before they are saved. You may guess how I felt listening to the two for at least one hour and a half. After I went to my lodging place, I preached a Mormon sermon, about one hour long, to a stranger who attended the same meeting, showing the contrast. The result was he asked for our Herald, and is here with me now to send his subscription for one half year. Please send it to Alexander D. Jammerville, Chatham, Ontario.

Yours in hope,

GEO. W. SHAW.

The greater importance we attach to our opinions, the greater our intolerance, which is wrong, even when we are right, and doubly so when we are in error, so that persecution for opinion's sake can never be justifiable.

Conference Minutes.

MANCHESTER DISTRICT—ENGLISH MISSION.

Minutes of district conference held at Manchester October 2nd and 3rd, 1880. Joseph Dewsnup, presiding; Jas. Baty, secretary.

Reports.—Manchester, last report, 53; baptized 1. Farnworth, last report, 27; baptized 2, received 2, removed 4, expelled 5. Sheffield, last report, 16; baptized 3, removed 1. Officers reported.—Elders: J. W. Coward, W. Booth, J. McCue, R. Baty, W. Armstrong, Hy. Greenwood, Jas. Baty, J. Dewsnup. Priests: S. Spargo, John Austin, Hy. Jackson, M. Haywood, Jas. Firness, Jas. Eckersley, J. H. Newstead. Teachers: Ed. Parry, Rob. Dawson. Deacons: Hy. Hoole, Wm. Spargo, John Foden.

Financial Secretary's report showed a balance due treasurer of £2. 15s. 9½d.

Committee Reports.—Your committee beg to report that in the case of Bro. J. Jackson, that there is not sufficient ground for the charges, and that the action of the branch is illegal, and they recommend that the said Elder Jackson be reinstated in his former position.

Case of Bro. J. Gerrard.

Your committee beg to report that in this case, the language of Bro. J. Gerrard was of an unchristian character; but that the action of the branch was illegal in cutting him off, as your committee find upon investigation that he had not been labored with in accordance with the Church laws, and your committee recommend that he be restored to his former position.

Resolved that this conference receive and endorse the recommendations of the committee.

The following recommendations for ordination were considered and sanctioned: John Austin, office of Elder; and Simon Spargo, office of Elder; Thomas Hobson, office of Teacher.

The conference took into consideration the action of the president and secretary of the district in suspending Elder Boydell of the Farnworth Branch. Action endorsed by the conference.

The endorsement of his license was then considered and the following resolution passed: That whereas the charges against Bro. Hy. Boydell have not been refuted by him, this conference can not sanction the endorsement of his license as an Elder of this Church until there is an acknowledgment of his error, and that he will therefore be silenced as an Elder from this date.

Resolved that in the future the conferences of this district be held quarterly, instead of half-yearly, as hitherto; and that no secular business be transacted on the Sunday, but that such conference Sundays be devoted exclusively to religious services.

Resolved that all district officers be requested to forward their reports as to standing and labors in writing to the district secretary, at least seven days before the holding of such conference; and that the Branch Statistical reports and officers' licenses be forwarded in the same manner.

Resolved that the licenses of the officers be endorsed, and the officers labor to the best of their ability in their respective callings.

Resolved that we sustain Elder Joseph Smith in all righteousness as President of the Church.

Resolved that we sustain the various quorums as at present organized in America, in all righteousness; and Thomas Taylor as President of the English Mission, with C. H. Caton as his secretary, and Joseph Dewsnup as President of the Manchester District, and James Baty as his secretary.

Resolved that the business session of this conference do now adjourn, to meet again on the 8th January, 1881.

On Sunday, meeting for fellowship at 10:30 a.m.; in charge of T. Taylor; 2 p.m., meeting resumed and the time was fully occupied until 4 p.m.; during these meetings some excellent testimonies were borne and a goodly portion of the Spirit was enjoyed to the comforting and edifying of all present.

During the afternoon session the Lord's Supper was administered, and we can truly say that these meetings were a foretaste of that good time coming, when we hope it will be the happy lot of all present to partake of that heavenly food dispensed by the Master's own hand.

In the evening a full attendance, amongst which were many strangers, had the pleasure of listening to an excellent discourse from Elder J. W. Coward, of Birkenhead, showing how prone men were to follow after other gods, the gods of the world—gold, etc., and warning them as to the consequences of such a course, and calling upon them to turn to the true and living God; pointing out to them the only way in which salvation can be obtained. The congregation was enraptured in attention, and seemed surprised when it was announced that the time had arrived to bring the meeting to a close.

There was a large attendance of the Saints from the Farnworth Branch. Each session was marked for unity and good feeling, and altogether a pleasant and profitable time was spent.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT.

A conference was held at St. Louis, Missouri, October 3rd and 4th, 1880. A. W. Reese, president; Joseph E. Bette, Jr., secretary.

James Whitehead addressed the congregation in the morning.

In the afternoon a Sacrament meeting was held, and many faithful testimonies were borne and the Spirit of God was made manifest by the speaking in tongues.

Branch Reports.—St. Louis 190, scattered members 17, total 207. Alma 53. Cheltenham 29; 2 deaths, 1 baptized. Belleville 68. Alton 28; 4 removed by letter. Gravois 53. Boone Creek 20. Whearso 17. Caseyville 41; 1 baptized, 5 received by certificate, 1 removed, 1 expelled, 2 died. Moselle 7 members, and wish a branch organized there.

Reported.—Elders John Beaird, Wm Smith, James Whitehead, George Thorp, A. W. Reese. Priest John W. Thorp.

Zion's Hope Sunday School of St. Louis, and Bethlehem Sunday School of Belleville reported as in good condition.

Whereas it has been reported to this conference that George Hicklin has been vilifying the character of some of his brethren, and left this district without either proving or retracting his assertions; therefore, it is hereby resolved that this conference silence him from acting in his office as an Elder, and that the Alma Branch is hereby instructed by this conference not to grant him any Letter of Removal until this matter be settled.

Resolved that the president of this conference have his expenses paid while traveling in the ministry.

Adjourned till the first Sunday and Monday January, [2nd and 3rd], 1881, in St. Louis, Mo.

WEST WISCONSIN DISTRICT.

A conference convened at the Wheatville Branch, Crawford county, Wisconsin, September 18th, 1880. Frank Hackett, president; W. A. McDowell, clerk; Wm. O. Closson, assistant clerk.

The resolution requiring all officials to report in writing was rescinded.

Elders Reports.—A. W. Brunson, Wm. D. Brunson, Jacob S. Whiteaker, A. L. Whiteaker (baptized 3), Frank Hackett, F. M. Cooper (baptized 2). Priest Wm. O. Closson, and Teacher J. W. Whiteaker, reported.

Branch Reports.—Webster 30 members; 1 died. Wheatville 24. Freedom 33.

Resolved that this conference authorize the president to appoint a Court of Elders to try the case of E. B. and F. Sanby. F. M. Cooper, A. L. Whiteaker and A. W. Brunson were so appointed.

Resolved that this conference rescind the appointment of Willis McDowell as Bishop's Agent, as he not being an Elder.

Preaching at 7:30 by A. W. Whiteaker.

Resolved that we recommend to Bishop I. L. Rogers the appointment of C. W. Lange as Bishop's Agent for this district.

Resolved that this district fulfill its obligations to F. M. Cooper.

Frank Hackett, as president, W. A. McDowell as clerk, and A. L. Whiteaker as traveling Elder in the district were sustained.

Preaching on Sunday morning by F. M. Cooper. Sacramento and testimony meeting in the afternoon, in charge of Frank Hackett and Jacob S. Whiteaker.

Preaching in the evening by F. M. Cooper. Adjourned to North Freedom, Sauk county, Wis., January 15th and 16th, 1881, at 10 a. m.

NODAWAY DISTRICT.

The above conference convened at Liberty School-house, Nodaway county, Missouri, Sept. 15th, 1880, at 10 a. m.; Wm. Hawkins, president; C. Christensen, clerk pro tem.

Branch Reports.—Platte, last report 47, (which should have been 48), present 51; 3 baptized. Ross Grove, Guilford and Oregon branches not reported.

Thomas Nutt reported by letter that he had baptized five: and had been assisted to the amount of $21.55. Report accepted, and he requested to travel as circumstances permit.

Report of the committee on perfecting the district record not finished, and more time wanted, which was granted.

Bro. Wm. Hawkins was elected president. J. Flory was sustained as book agent, with the request that he report at the next conference.

Auditing committee reported finding some errors in the accounts of the Bishop's Agent, which they corrected. Report received.

Preaching on Sunday forenoon by Wm. Woodhead and James Thomas. Saints' meeting in the afternoon. In the evening the following business was transacted before preaching:

A. N. Byargaard was sustained as Bishop's Agent, and who reported as having on hand May 24th, 1880, $23.45, received since $15.00, total $38.45. Sent to Bishop Rogers $36.00, paid Sr. Nutt $2.45, total $38.45. The Bishop's Agent was authorized to purchase a book to keep his accounts in, and to make an itemized report at each conference hereafter.

J. Flory was sustained as clerk of the district. After preaching by W. Hawkins and W. Powell, conference adjourned to meet at the Ross Grove School-house, in Holt county, Missouri, on the 15th of January, 1881, at 10-30 a. m.

Miscellaneous.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice.

BORN.

CULVER.—To Bro. and Sr. Monroe E. Culver, of Mendota, Illinois, at 6 45 a. m., November 4th, 1880; a boy; weight eight pounds. There is joy in the house; for "unto us a child is born; unto us a son is given."

MARRIED.

WILSON—BADHAM.—November 10th, 1880, at the residence of Mr. Milton Richards, Glenwood, Iowa, Bro. Charles M. Wilson, of Magnolia, to Sister Mary M. Badham, of Henderson, Iowa; E. L. Kelley officiating. The happy couple will reside in Magnolia.

DIED.

OTTO—James Otto, born in Pennsylvania, December 4th, 1796, died at Wheeler's Grove, Pottawattamie county, Iowa, March 3rd, 1869. He united with the Church at the June conference of 1863, under the hands of Wm. H. Kelley. He lived a consistent life, and died full in the faith.

OTTO.—Mahetttable Otto, born in Ulster county, Delaware, July 2d, 1803. She united with the Church some time in May, 1844, under the hands of Simeon Carter, in Franklin county, Ohio; died May 17th, 1880, at Wheeler's Grove, Pottawattamie county, Iowa. Funeral service by Elder D. Hougas. A large number of neighbors and friends followed her to her resting place to see for the last time the face of one who was so near to them. In her death the Church loses one of its most faithful members and untiring workers, and the people of her place a never-to-be-forgotten friend. She leaves a large family of children and grand children to mourn her loss; not only her own family, but a large circle of friends, to whom she has been a never failing help in all times of sickness and distress, will miss her loving ministrations. The whole of her life was devoted to the good of others. Her cheerfulness, her acts of kindness, her charity, and her unshaken faith in God, will be long remembered by all who knew and loved her. She died strong in the belief of the latter-day-work, and bore a faithful testimony to the last.

"Dearest mother, how we'll miss thee,
In our sorrows and our cares!
With thy helping hand and counsel,
We could all our trouble bear.
But tis 'God who hath bereft us,
And we say, 'Thy will be done.'—
He hath called thee to thy mansion,
Which thy faithfulness has won."

SURRIDGE.—At Bevier, Missouri, September 29th, 1880, of bowel complaint and cutting teeth William, son of Mark and Mariah Surridge, aged, 1 year, 3 months and 22 days. He was born at East Mill Creek, Utah, blessed by Elder Wm. Smith; traveled with his parents from Utah by team to Bevier in good health; was taken sick September 24th, and lived but five days.

Our Willie here lies under ground,
The dearest friend we ever found;
But, through the Lord's unbounded love,
We'll meet again in realms above.

BARMORE.—At Low Gap, Crawford county, Indiana, August 30th, 1880, Ine Isabel, daughter of Bro. James and Sr. Elizabeth Barmore, aged 12 years and 14 days. She was taken with a pain in her shoulder and only lived five days. On the 28th she sang

O! blessed, blessed Jesus,
Our great and heavenly King;
I will ever shout thy praises;
And will thy glories sing."

Then ceased my heart to mourn in vain;
Since my small loss, is her great gain;

MOTHER.

NELSON.—At Pleasant Ridge, near Harlan, Iowa, October 5th, 1880, Sr. Marian, wife of J. Nelson, and daughter of Bro. J. and Sr. E. Den, net, aged 19 years, 3 months and 19 days. Funeral sermon delivered by Elder J. W. Chatburn, assisted by Bro. N. Booth, to a large and attentive congregation.

Not in the house of weeping,
Not in the darkened room;
Not in the graveyard sleeping,
Not in the silent tomb.
Safe with the joys supernal,
Safe with the best'd to bow,
Safe with the Love Eternal,
Safe with the Master now.

CECILE.

MILLER.—At Galesburg, Missouri, May 8th, 1880, Susan M., wife of Simon Miller, aged 61 years, 8 months, 23 days. Services by Elder Stephen Maloney.

HEWITT.—From inflammation, the result of a hurt during a recent storm, Brother Lyman Hewitt, in the 75th year of his age. Brother Hewitt was born at Westford, Otsego county, N. Y., on May 31st, 1806, and died October 26th, 1880. He had lived with his now bereaved widow forth-seven years. They had three children. Two of these, daughters, remain behind; one, a son, had passed on before, in his 21st year. Our brother was a member of the High Priests' Quorum, and a member also of the High Council of the Church. His funeral sermon was preached in the Union Church, Rochester, Wisconsin, (where our brother lived and died), by Elder Mark H. Forscutt, on October 28th, the day of his funeral, assisted by Rev. M. G. Pett of the First Baptist Church. Living, our brother was beloved; departed, he is lamented.

WHITE.—At Council Bluffs, Iowa, August 15th, 1880, of cholera infantum, George Wineferd, infant son of Brother John W. and Ana A. White, aged four months.

WEBBER.—At her daughter's, Chicago, Ill., on November 12th, 1880, Sister Mary Webber, of old age and disability. She was born at Bowdin, Oxford county, Maine, March 3rd, 1799, and was therefore in her 82d year. She passed away in peace. One day before her death, she was received from the St. Joseph Branch into membership with the First Chicago Branch. She was first baptized by James Snow in August, 1837, in Littlebee county, Maine. What remains of our aged Sister lies interred in Forest Home Cemetery, Chicago; she is at rest. Her funeral discourse was preached by Elder T. A. Phillips, from John 14: 1-3.

NOTICES.

All members of the Fourth Quorum of Elders who desire licenses from said Quorum, and who were not present at Semi-Annual Conference, can have the same by sending their address and five cents in stamps (two and three cent stamps preferred) to pay mailing expenses, to me. ## CHRISTMAS-GIFT FOR THE HERALD.

Rosy dawn the Orient flushing,
Dews o'er purple flowers that flow;
Crimson wings of martyrs blushing
Like the blood ye shed below,
Yet in light celestial glowing,
Gems which pave Messiah's Hall;
Eden streams in music flowing,
Rills o'er opal rocks that fall;
Lambs of God careering o'er us,
Robed in more than regal sheen;
Sing aloud in pealing chorus,
"Hail, Babe-Star of Bethlehem."

Mary clasps the pretty lisper,
To her tender, virgin breast,
And bright cherubs round her whisper,
Angel armies round them rest.
'Tis the lip that to his mother,
Sweetly gives seraphic smiles,
Bids the tides of ocean vary;
Lights on high the starry isles.
Ye who from His Son's dominions
Gaze upon that heavenly scene;
Sing for harps with quivering pinions,
"Hail, Babe-Star of Bethlehem."

All ye spheres behold and wonder,
Sleeping on earth's bosom lies
Him whose word, in cloud and thunder,
Hurls you flaming through the skies.
Lord, thou sacred star of ocean,
Rise thou o'er the stormy brine,
Quell the passions' wild commotion,
Cheer and save us, Lord divine.
Round us while the tempest rages,
Let thy guiding luster shine,
And our song be through the ages,
"Hail, O, Star of Zion's Hill."

Warning the Slumbering.

THE celebrated and popular Dr. Talmage speaks emphatically about the condition in general of the church membership, throughout the religious societies of the present day, as follows:

"The church needs a change in the quality of its membership. One-half of the professing Christians amount to nothing. They go to church; they pay pew rents; they have a kind of regard for all religious institutions; but as to any firm grip of the truth, any enthusiastic service for Christ, any cheerful and cheering self-denial, any over-mastering power in prayer, they are a failure. One of two things these half and half people ought to do, either to withdraw their names from the church record, or else go so near the fire as to get warm.

"You profess to be living for Christ and for heaven, but all the world knows you are lying. Wake up! Do something before you are dead! Either help pull the Lord's chariot or else get out of the way. We want more old style holiness."

These are strong words, but they express what many feel to be the facts in this day of degeneracy, as some style it.

Also, that prominent religious periodical, The Churchman, has an article on the failures of the emotional types of religion, which have so long been supposed to be the very essence and perfection of religious life, and the embodiment of true zeal. It says that the testimony which comes from all quarters is, that the church is suffering a grievous falling away from the sturdy, old-fashioned, true hearted integrity that once characterized the lives and actions of men.

It thinks that emotional religion has greatly taken the place of true religion of the heart, and disclaims against it, hoping that the minds of men will be powerfully drawn to consider this evil and to understand the "tremendous mischief" there is in it. "Formerly," it says, "there was among all Christians an entire agreement in regard to the Christian life; for all who preached that life, preached the absolute necessity of three things that should be the distinguishing characteristics of the followers of the Lord Jesus Christ,—principle, duty and conscience.

"These things were ever on the preacher's lips, and were insisted on and were perpetually urged and constantly presented to men's minds, until these things entered into their ideas and conceptions as being necessary to the true christian life, the influence of which belief in its effect over the community, and over society at large was very great, as well as over the various denominations themselves, which have been supposed to constitute the Church of Christ."

Comparing even the recent past with the present status of society, as seen in the moral and spiritual condition of the nominal Christian world, and this contrast and change are very apparent to us all. It is acknowledged and understood by all classes, religious and moral as well as by the skeptic and the wicked.

The Churchman thinks that the present pleasing, free-and-easy method of having an emotional religion and life, in their present popular advocacy, has caused, to a great degree, the dropping out of these words, conscience, duty and principle, from the teaching and preaching now heard; the emotional element having taken the place of conscience, sentiment that of principle, and mere feeling that of duty; and, that it is this style of preaching "which has, to such an extent, supplanted the teaching of God's word." So says that journal. It also thinks that were these preached again as they once were and as they should be that men would be won back from the "cheap and very poor preaching" they have had.

It is increasingly evident that the effect of appealing to, and working upon the emotions, passions and feelings of mankind, to the exclusion of the nobler faculties, is evil and not good, and that this method is having a most baneful influence, especially on the young, who were never before thinking for themselves as they are now, and upon every topic from folly and vice up to religion, metaphysics and science; and bringing these others into play and into such prominence has correspondingly set aside the highest and noblest faculty of man, that of reasoning for himself upon this subject as well as all others, and of accepting a thing as a life maxim, or as a truth, only on the assent of this God-given and highly endowed faculty of the soul, instead of being blindly led at the will of others, or of their own lesser faculties and animal feelings.

But it would take a great awakening, Dr. Talmage and Mr. Churchman, to change the course that has become so easy, smooth and rapid in the pleasure of its descent towards the dread awakening at the final consummation of events, when the heavens and the earth shall join in proclaiming a sound that shall startle the world from its slumber, too late for work or for reform.

The rapid preparation for those events, as betokened by the present situation, outlined by the writers quoted, leaves no room to doubt the Scripture declaration of the frank confession to be made in that day when their religions will be thrown to the moles and the bats with their other idols and vanities, (see Isa. 2: 17, 20, and Jer. 16: 19, 20), and they will say: "Our fathers inherited lies, vanity and things wherein there was no profit."

And, while we write of this, we may as well remark that there is much food for thought in the words of Mr. Talmage and the Churchman, even for our own people; and perhaps matters about which we can ask ourselves some questions, as to the possible application to us of some of these points. In witnessing the powers that are so fast changing the face and form of society, in the financial, political, social, moral and spiritual relationship of the people to each other, we may question ourselves as to how far these things, or this spirit of change may affect us as a people, or as individuals. Or whether they have already done so, or if this moral slackness and spiritual indifference, now so wide spread in its influence, and so notably common, has blunted our perceptions of right or not. If they have made us covetous also, or enough so that we fail of duty to each other and to God; or if they prompt us to seek self first in all the affairs of life, and do it because others around us are practicing just that; and whether the quietness of the ministry and the elders, and the leanness of the treasuries, together with the "holding on feeling," which prevents on one side the needed means, and on the other the needed men, thus both being kept from acting conjointly, harmoniously—in fact with "a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together," is not the result of that same overmastering, powerful, cruel, selfish spirit now abroad; the one that tends to concentrate each within himself, and, in consequence, prevents that free, unselfish unity of action that would and should make a concentration of forces, spiritual and financial unto the accomplishment of the object so long prophesied of, preached about, prayed and longed for with the hearts and tears of all generations since the morn of time; a mighty, a grand, and a successful carrying on of the work before God, angels and men, unto full and complete triumph.

It is frequently said that this is a day of reforming, reform in all departments of the social and moral interests of the world; but it may more correctly be called a day of rapid change from the old to the new, of sudden upheaval of the various heretofore accepted grounds of principle and fact which have been so long supposed to be firm and enduring; a day of departure from even the best of customs, laws, and usages, or from anything else no longer wanted, by simply calling it ancient or "old," though it were of but recent growth and in highest favor yesterday, but to-day is unpopular through this love of change, which is so often incorrectly, and without consideration or consistency, called reform, and frequently change from good to bad or from bad to worse.

As a religious body, and as citizens, we are on the side of all just and true reform, and are praying for and seeking the advancement of truth's interests everywhere and among all peoples and nations, and for the progress of every good; yet we can not be radical upon very many things that are advanced under the name of reform and progress, nor very sanguine in regard to changes, supposed by some to be leading to wished for reform that wisdom and due caution, or divine guidance says may not bear the test of time and of examination.

Truth must and will prevail in due season, and to that time we look for the decision that will establish us, and that will fix the fact that we have not waited and hoped in vain, in watching soberly and prayerfully, not excitedly, for the coming of our Lord, when the true watchers shall say, "This is our God, we have waited for him."

And though we may now represent, with our unheeded or unpopular doctrine and teaching the idea of "truth crushed to earth," yet we are assured by Him who is the embodiment of truth, that, if faithful, we will be accepted representatives and living witnesses not only of the certainty that she "shall rise again;" but also that she has risen, no more to be crushed.

Everything will find its just position by and by, even if the popular, the eulogized, the great of to-day, the apparently mighty and invincible go down in the dust before the "Coming Man," even He whose right it is to reign, who shall place all things in the balances of justice and truth. Then the tried and the true, not the fresh and the new, shall be for the established paths of men, even "the old paths." (Jer. 6:16).

Then shall be the halcyon days of the world and the glory of all the earth when man is reinstated in the inheritance, denominated as that under the whole heavens. H. A. S.

The Indians.

THE annual report of the Indian Bureau for 1880 has been completed. It exhibits a continued steady advancement toward civilization on the part of nearly all the Indian tribes, and a very remarkable progress in many instances, especially among the Ogalallas and Brule Sioux. In Dakota and the Pacific Coast the Indians collected at the Yakima Agency. The demands upon the Bureau by the Indians of a large majority of the Agencies for implements with which to enable them to perform manual labor are far beyond the means at the disposal of the Department for that purpose.

The desire of the Indians to labor is steadily growing, and a large number are willing and anxious to engage in civilized pursuits and the improvement in their manner of putting in and caring for the crops raised, shows that the efforts of the past few years are gradually bringing them to a self-supporting condition. The number of Indians in the United States, exclusive of Alaska, is reported at 255,938, all of whom, except about 18,000, are more or less under direct control of agencies of the Government. The civilized Indians now in the Territory number 60,560, and the uncivilized 17,750. There are, in round numbers, 25,000 Indians in Dakota, 23,000 in New Mexico, 21,000 in Montana, 17,000 in Arizona, and 14,000 in Washington Territory. It appears there are upwards of 5,000 Indians in New York State, and more than 10,000 in the State of Michigan. The following table shows the substantial results of Indian labor during the year by Indians, exclusive of five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory:

Number of acres broken by Indians.....	27,283
Number of acres cultivated.....	170,847
Number of bushels of wheat raised.....	415,777
Number of bushels of corn raised.....	660,430
Number of bushels of oats and barley raised.....	222,439
Number of bushels of vegetables raised..	376,145
Number of tons of hay cut.....	56,527
Number of cattle owned.....	78,812
Number of sheep owned.....	864,137

BY FIVE CIVILIZED TRIBES.

Number of acres cultivated.....	314,398
Number of bushels of wheat raised.....	336,424
Number of bushels of corn raised.....	2,346,042
Number of bushels of oats and barley raised.....	124,568
Number of bushels of vegetables raised..	595,000
Number of bales of cotton raised.....	1,600
Number of tons of hay cut.....	14,000
Number of cattle owned.....	297,040
Number of swine owned.....	400,280

SCHOOLS.

During the year sixty boarding and 110 day schools have been in operation among the different Indian tribes, exclusive of the five civilized tribes in the Indian Territory, which have been attended by over 7,000 children, and taught by 316 teachers. The educational work of the Bureau could have been enlarged to a much greater extent but for the inadequate appropriations made by Congress for the support of the schools. Fifty thousand Indians at seventeen agencies have no treaty school funds whatever, and educational facilities must depend entirely on general appropriation for education. Among those tribes there are at least 7,000 children of school age. Reports from the schools on the various reservations are full of encouragement, showing increased and more regular attendance of pupils, and growing interest in education on the part of parents. In compliance with the appeals from neglected agencies, the Bureau has made arrangements for erecting eleven boarding-school buildings during the coming season, and for the establishment of thirteen new boarding-schools. These will be the first schools of any kind ever provided for the 8,000 San Carlos Apaches and Western Shoshones, and the first boarding schools opened for the 25,000 Indians at the nine other agencies. The day-schools have hitherto met with indifferent success and made little impression on the tribes among whom they were located. The condition of the Poncas in the Indian Territory continues to be prosperous. They have now seventy-nine houses, and since the 1st of January last over seventy families have moved into houses. Meddlesome persons are still endeavoring to induce the Poncas to abandon their present location and return to Dakotah, but the leading men of the tribe have frequently assured the Agent that they are satisfied and do not desire to return.

Our Love of Candor.

WE suppose it must be confessed that we relish the candor of candid persons when it is directed to our acquaintances. It is nearly always entertaining, frequently instructive, and entertainment combined with instruction can not fail of welcome. Addressed to ourselves, it appears different. It may be instructive, but it is never entertaining, and after awhile it becomes positively irksome. Strangely enough, candor never sounds the same when we are made its object; it has altogether another tone. We miss the freshness, sparkle, spice, and point which are so perceptible when it is exercised upon others. In our case it savors of envy, spite, malice, and then it is dull to a degree of tediousness. We wonder that the candid person who can be so bright and interesting should sometimes be so very spiritless and wearisome. It is unpardonable when he or she has so good a topic as we must invariably furnish. But then the cleverest folks can not be always clever; and we have no trouble in discovering that they droop and prose the moment they began to tell us of our defects.

The candid people most of us like, are those who are candid concerning our admirable characteristics, and uncandid, or at least reticent, concerning our blemishes or failings. It is easy and entirely natural to appreciate and enjoy the frankness which relates to the things we plume ourselves upon, though they be defects; but when we are told that we are what we don't want to believe we are, we secretly resent the freedom of speech, albeit we may be outwardly tolerant and affable. And when some weakness is pointed out that we have always been dimly conscious of though we have struggled to make it appear as a virtue deeply disguised, if we do not blaze out in irritation, it is a triumph of self-discipline. Many of us are undeniably sincere in saying that we admire candor. We do admire it, even when we abhor candid persons. We may even like them at first; we may relish hearing of our faults for a little while, but they will not long bear rehearsing. Unless the recital be plentifully spiced with insistence on our excellencies, it will surely offend us, and prejudice us bitterly against the reciter. No average mortal will consent to swallow aloes continuously if they be not copiously relieved with honey.

Fall of the Church of Christ.

CHRIST'S last and great commission to his apostles while on earth was: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned. And these signs shall follow them that believe; in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

This same idea is taught in 1 Cor. 12:6-11. Consequently if these gifts are not in the churches to day, we ought, as rational beings, to investigate the reasons they are not manifested in this century.

Again, in 1 Cor. 12:28 it reads: "And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily, prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healing, helps, governments, diversities of tongues." Also in Eph. 4:8-12, is mentioned the same thing; and yet we gaze around at the numerous denominations to-day and see none of these officers or wondrous gifts. Still we ought not to be surprised, for Paul says, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables."—2 Tim. 4:3, 4.

My dear friends, that is what the sect calling themselves Christians have done, for they have denied the gifts of the Holy Ghost, which would have guided them into all truth. In proving my subject in this article I will confine myself to profane history, and only use a few Bible quotations. It has been remarked, and with some truth, that the virgin purity of the church was never violated by schism or heresy before the reign of Trajan, or Hadrian, about one hundred years after the death of Christ. Hegesippus adds, "that up to this period the church had remained pure and immaculate as a virgin. Those who labored to corrupt the doctrine of the gospel worked as yet in obscurity."

About A. D. 323, the most learned of the fathers allowed the sophistry of the Gnostics to steal into the church, who had blended with the faith of Christ many sublime but obscure tenets, which they had derived from oriental philosophy. "As soon as they launched out into this vast abyss, they delivered themselves to the guidance of a disordered imagination; and as the paths of error are various and infinite, the Gnostics were imperceptibly divided into more than fifty particular sects, of whom the most celebrated was the Basilidians, Valentinians. Instead of the Four Gospels adopted by the church they produced a multitude of histories in which the actions and discourses of Christ and his apostles were adapted to their respective tenets." See Gibbon's Rome, vol. 1, page 521. Again he says, in substance, that the supernatural gifts were in the church after the apostles' time. What say ye, modern divines, who have claimed that they ceased in days of Christ? The knowledge of foreign language was frequently communicated to the contemporaries of Irenaeus. Irenaeus adv. Haeres Proem, p. 3. Gibbon says in A. D. 323, "The divine inspiration, whether it was conveyed in the form of a waking or sleeping vision, is described as a favor very liberally bestowed on all ranks of the faithful, on women as on elders, on boys as well as on bishops;" which corresponds with the promise in Acts 2:17, 18. It seems according to history that they had to prepare themselves by prayer and fasting to receive this gift of the Holy Spirit; and these visions were for the most part to disclose the future history of the church, or to guide the present administration; and I claim are needed to-day, to guide the church into the truth. The working of the Spirit is described by Justin Martyr, Cohort ad Gentes Tertulian advers Marcionit, 1, 4. Gibbon says the miraculous cure of diseases ought not to excite surprise, when in the days of Irenaeus, in the second century, the resurrection of the dead was not an uncommon event; that miracles were performed through fasting and prayer; and persons thus restored lived afterwards for years. In confirmation of this see Irenaeus adv. Haereses, l. ii. 56, 57, l. v. c. 6. Consequently we must admit that the second century was fertile in miracles. Every friend of revelation is convinced of a cessation of miraculous powers a few centuries after Christ, and the reason of it was because they changed the ordinances of God and he withdrew his Spirit from them. They presumed to alter the Holy Scriptures, to abandon the ancient faith, to form their own opinion according to the subtle precepts of logic, and they have corrupted the simplicity of the gospel by the refinements of human reason. Origen states that the Marcionites did alter the Gospels. The offices of Apostles and Prophets have ceased, and that clearly proves there has been a great falling away; for God put them in the church for the perfecting of the saints and the work of the ministry. But through the corruption of men they no longer exist in modern churches. Gibbon's Rome, vol. 1, page 555. "The want of discipline and human learning was supplied by the occasional assistance of prophets." "But these extraordinary gifts were frequently abused or misapplied by the prophetic teacher;" because the Spirit of God had left them. "As the institution of prophets became useless, and even pernicious, their power was withdrawn, and the office abolished."

So the church was like a ship at sea without a captain or pilot to guide it through the shoals and breakers of infidelity and apostasy. The miracles of the primitive church, after obtaining the sanction of ages, have excited the ire of the divines of our country, as well as those of Europe; for this reason, they are preaching a doctrine antagonistic to God's plan of salvation and they have none of the signs promised by our Savior in Mark 16:17, 18, 19.

Constantine is claimed by historians to be the first Christian Emperor and he was converted by a miracle. Gibbon's Rome, vol. 2, 266. After being converted Constantine gave the clergy security, wealth, honor, etc. Hilaricus contra Constant, c. 5, p. 1240, informs us how riches were heaped upon the church. But the crowning folly of all in this great apostasy was calling of the Nicene Council, and here it was that the doctrine of absolute creation from nothing was introduced. See Beaussohe, tom. 11, p. 165-215. The consubstantiality of the Father and the Son was established by the Council of Nice, and has been unanimously received as an article of Christian faith by the Greek, Latin, Oriental and Protestant churches; and many other articles of faith were introduced as blasphemous as the above. From that time God withdrew himself from them, and the blessings ceased, and they are now buried in idolatry and darkness. God has again restored the Church of Christ upon the earth, with all the gifts of the gospel. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, organized by Joseph Smith, the martyred prophet.

MRS. DANIEL JONES.

Marred by Pride.

BEFORE honor is humility; and when honor comes, humility must still hold its place. If under God's favoring, prospering hand, success and advancement are granted to us, we must wear our honors in lowliness of spirit, and still walk softly before our God. If when he has given us prosperity we still covet honors, titles, degrees, and the applause of men, we shall soon provoke the envy of those who are around us, and speedily be called to come down and sit in dust and ashes, and learn that greatness is to be ascribed to God alone.

Many a man has done good work in the days of his humility, but by going too fast and too far has ruined everything which was wrought beneath his hands. The gifts bestowed on such an one in his lowliness, are withdrawn from him in his pride; his stewardship is taken away, and through long years of bitterness, obscurity, and disgrace, he is called to learn the lesson taught by Him who is "meek and lowly in heart."

Why need we seek our own exaltation? Does a man know more, or is he better, because he can write Rabbi before his name, or a string of titles after it? And if he has coveted and sought for such distinctions, has he not degraded himself and revealed his own weakness and vanity? The man who in a private station might be honored for many excellent traits of character, when he aspires to official position is watched by jealous eyes, and every deficiency and frailty is marked and written down. Many a man who might have been a respected and acceptable Elder or Deacon in the Church of Christ, has had his usefulness ruined when he has put Reverend before his name, and a white cravat around his neck, and has undertaken to do a work to which God has never called him. Every short cut to honor, or emolument, or undeserved favor, is quite likely to prove the direct road to ruin. Many a man dates the beginning of his downfall from the day when he tried to be great. In chasing the empty bubble of fame and ambition, men go in dangerous paths, and tread on precipices which skirt the awful depths from which the fallen come not back.

The world is full of examples. To-day Haman exults in pride; to-morrow he swings from the lofty gibbet. To-day Golieth defies the armies of the living God; to-morrow he falls dead before the shepherd boy, with his sling and stone.

Our pride and display oft provokes the envy and the malice of foes whose shafts would never reach us if we would walk in lowliness before the Lord. The wrecks of the vain-glorious are all around us. In Church, in state, among the highest and lowest, we see instances where men have had their usefulness ruined and all their fair prospects marred, by seeking the glory of men and coveting the world's applause. "Let us not be desirous of vain glory, provoking one another, envying one another."

Scripture Exegesis.

"Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also."—John 14: 1-3.

The principal thought to govern us in an effort to comprehend the meaning of this portion, and indeed of all the teachings of Christ, and the apostles, and likewise of the prophets, is this, to understand (1) to whom the word is addressed; (2) by whom spoken, and (3) under what circumstances it was given. It is evident, according to this idea, that in this chapter, as also in the preceding one, and in the two following ones, the Savior was addressing the Twelve. A careful examination will convince any reasonable person that much of his language can not apply to any one else, nor was it designed to apply to others. As a church we have always made it a point to oppose the application of Christ's commands given to the Apostles, to others; for instance, "feet washing," recorded in the 13th chapter, and the command, "Go ye into all the world," etc. Mark 16.

We base our claim to forgiveness of sins, and reception of the Holy Spirit, not because Peter commanded repentance and baptism for the remission of sins, and promised as an apostle, or ambassador of Christ, the gift of the Holy Ghost, but because Christ has commissioned men to-day to declare a similar doctrine. In the case before us, I understand the promise of a "place" being prepared for them, and Christ coming back to earth in order that they might be with him, applies to the Twelve, and to them alone; that he was addressing the Twelve. (See Matt. 26: 20).

Now for our Exegesis. "Let not your heart be troubled;" he had been talking to them about going away from them, naturally they felt sad; to comfort them he gave them the assurance of his coming back to them, as is seen in the third verse. "Ye believe in God, believe also in me." Ye trust in the promises of God, in the prophesies contained in his word, believe now what I am about to tell you; trust in my promise: "In my Father's house are many mansions." Now as a mansion is defined to be "a large house," it is evident that the word "house" must be understood to mean something else than a building or a local dwelling place. Heaven, where God dwells, is supposed by some to be the "house," and that a "place" is to be prepared there for the children of God; but in the preceding chapter, in verse 38, he plainly told them that where he was going they could not come, and to heaven he designed to go, and did go.

We are told that God "is in the midst of all things," and that the light which "proceedeth forth from the presence of God," fills "the immensity of space," and "there is no space in which there is no kingdom." Again, "and there are many kingdoms." The Father's "house" is the Universe, and the "many mansions" are the "many kingdoms."

If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you." To prepare, means to make ready, arrange, order, to fix up.

"And if I go and prepare a place for you, [that is a kingdom] I will come again [that is return here, to the earth, and not only so, but to this place, Jerusalem—compare Acts 1: 11, 12, with Zech. 14: 4-11] and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there may ye be also."

Where will he be? "And it shall come to pass in the last days [the seventh thousand year, or millenium], that the mountain of the Lord's house [the capital of the kingdom, the 'City of the Great King'] shall be established [margin—"prepared"] in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills: and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths; for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."—Isa. 11: 2, 3. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end; upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice, from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this."—Isa. 9: 6, 7. "And the Angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary; for thou hast found favor with God. And behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and shall bring forth a son and shall call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever: and of his kingdom there shall be no end."—Luke 1: 30-33. "I will overturn, overturn, overturn it, and it shall be no more until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him."—Ezek. 21: 27. The kingdom of Israel was overturned (from this date, 593 B. C.) (1) by the Medo-Persians, (2) by the Grecians, (3) by the Romans, and by the latter was destroyed, i. e. became "no more," ceased to exist, and is to "be no more" till he come, i. e. Christ. It will then be "prepared," set in order, arranged, fixed up, etc.

"In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close the breaches thereof; and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in days of old."—Amos 9: 11.

Having thus seen that the kingdom of Israel was to be overthrown, and then restored, and that it belongs to Christ, and that he will come and take possession, it remains for us to show that he intends to share this kingdom with the Twelve, and if so, this is manifestly the "place," or kingdom that he has gone "to prepare" for them, for it was not prepared when he left them. That he will prepare it in time can not be doubted; that he is now preparing it, the rapid gathering of the Jews to the land of Palestine, the building up of Jerusalem, the restoration of the early and latter rain, the efforts of the Rotschilds and other rich Jews to obtain the ancient inheritance from Turkey, that these are facts, no one can gainsay. And when Jerusalem is "inhabited again in her own place—even in Jerusalem," when Gentile power over the land is destroyed, and their "times" end, and when Judah and Israel are united as "one nation upon the mountains of Israel, (see Ezek. 37) when Christ restores "again the kingdom to Israel," then the "place" for the Twelve will be prepared, and their place or position will be this: "Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations. And I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father has appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit upon thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Luke 22: 28-30. Will they therefore not be with him? "And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, [to that very spot, to Jertusalem] and receive you unto myself;" to "eat and drink at my table," and to sit upon my throne, to take part in my kingdom, to "judge" with me the "twelve tribes of Israel."

With this understanding it is evident that there is no conflict with this scripture and the 25th of Matthew, or, in other words, there is no need of applying the "kingdom prepared from the foundation of the world," to some party beside the Church, because it has been supposed that the place that Christ has gone to prepare, is to be the abode of the Saints in general. But when we see that this "place" is the "kingdom of Israel," and the promise was to the Twelve alone; then it will be no trouble to understand that the earth, as created or prepared at "the foundation of the world," is to be the reward of the Church in general. Or the "kingdom [not of Israel in particular, for that is for the Twelve] and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven," is to be given to "the people of the saints of the Most high," etc. And it must not be forgotten that this kingdom is to be given to the "sheep" who hear Christ's voice, and follow him, and belong to the fold or church. And that fact must not be lost sight of, in an effort to reconcile the idea of Christ's "brethren," and those who visit, feed and clothe them, being distinct parties. May not the Jews be Christ's brethren.

THE Rev. Dr. Cuyler says, in the Congregationalist, that a vital question is the small attendance at religious services. "It requires but half an eye to discover the alarming fact that this attendance is steadily falling off, both in the cities and in the country, both at the East and in the West. Forty years ago it was claimed that one-half of the population of the city of New York were either wholly or partially connected with some Protestant congregation. Now only one-fourth the population are even seen in any Protestant place of worship."

A man will not listen to truth told him by an enemy; and he rarely gets it from the mouth of a friend.

He lives most who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.

Letter From Elder D. L. Shinn.

Editor Herald:—You have been informed by Bro. Devore with regard to the work at this place. I further inform you that three others were added since his report, namely, my father, Samuel O. Shinn, who was received on his original baptism by Elder Samuel James, in the year 1840, at Shinston, Virginia, where he still resides; the other two were John M. Frum, of Flemington, West Virginia, and Sister Myrtle L. Pritchard, daughter of Bro. George W. Pritchard, of this place.

I would be glad to see many of those with whom I have formerly been associated, gathered up by the Church; and will write and circulate among them the reasons I have for uniting with the Church, in the shape of tracts, if I can have them printed at a price within my ability to pay. Would be thankful if the proper ones would inform me about the cost of such work in the Herald Office. Many of them will think I have taken a wrong step, by leaving "the Church," and joining the Josephites; but I think I am able to show them that I have left the factions, "ites," and joined the Church. My motto has always been to "follow the light," and go where the truth led regardless of what men may say or do. If men do wrong and suffer for it from God's judgments, and the penalties of his just laws, then it is evident that men are free agents. If men are to do wrong they could have done otherwise. Therefore if I neglect the right when I see it, then I am guilty of wrong doing. I see that all the organizations of Latter Day Saints but the one called "the Reorganization," have, Absalom-like, kissed the people and rebelled against their father. They have sought to change the organic laws of the Church as established by Joseph, and the ministers associated with him in order to set straight those acts and decrees which would seem to militate against their claims. Why did Elder Bickerton, and others, discard from their system the lineal priesthood, and the Book of Covenants? How many of them palpably contradicted themselves in stepping into Joseph's office, (presumptuously), because he was a true prophet, and then to get the law and the truth out of the way, argue that he turned false prophet, before such law and truth were given? How easy would it have been for an impostor to have disposed of much of the writings and sayings of Moses in the same manner. Moses sinned at the waters of Meribah. The history of this deed is not given by the enemies of Moses, but by his friends. Who has recorded the sins of Joseph? Not his real friends, but those who tried to flatter their way into office, and into the confidence and affections of those who believed in and loved the Martyr, and gave honor to his memory. These are some of the facts developed by a careful study of the whole case.

The very Joseph they say was a true prophet, though he is dead, "yet speaketh." And like Saul before Samuel they fall prostrate. That prophet is true until he speaks of a successor. The good things promised to "Sidney," though they be written in the Book of Covenants "are all right." But the moment the true prophet turned to the appointment of a successor, he is instantly transformed into "a fallen, or false prophet," and begins to give "corrupt revelations."

If Joseph was a true prophet, Bickerton is not his successor. But Joseph, (says Bickerton and others) was a true prophet. Therefore, Bickerton is not his successor as prophet and president of the Church. If Joseph was a true prophet, Bickerton was wrong; because he discarded the book containing all of Joseph's productions in the shape of laws and revelations. If Joseph was not a true prophet, Bickerton was wrong, because he deceived many of the people telling them Joseph was true, and that God had called him to be his successor. Therefore in either case it is evident that Bickerton was wrong.

This will suffice for the present in this letter. I give it as a sample of what may be expected on this subject from me in the future. By these reflections I have come to the truth, and to the true order of the Latter Day Saints. And I think such plain reasoning will convince many. God speed the right and save the honest. Amen. D. L. SHINN.

Letter From Heman C. Smith.

Dear Herald:—In my last, written from Elmwood, Nebraska, I spoke of a Mr. Alton reviewing me. I answered him that night, and after a little cross-firing we agreed to discuss the following propositions:

"Is the Christian (commonly called Campbellite) Church the church of Christ?"

"Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints the church of Christ?"

Mr. Alton agreed to affirm the first and deny the second.

After making this arrangement, I went to Nebraska City, staid a few days and spoke twice. Had an enjoyable time and was kindly received. Thence, I went and visited my uncle, Lyman L. Wight and family, who reside near Rockport, Missouri. I remained with them a little more than a week, having a splendid visit, and a rest from labor. This brought the time for me to start for Semi-Annual Conference, which I did in company with my uncle, three cousins and Bro. Thomas Nutt.

To speak of the Conference is unnecessary, only to say I enjoyed it. There I was assigned to labor in Texas, Arkansas, Indian Territory and Western Louisiana; but as the before mentioned debate had been arranged to commence October 18th, I could not start immediately for my field of labor, so I went to Galland's Grove, and remained over a week, preaching four times. I then went to the Crandall settlement, six miles south of the Grove, and spoke twice. Bro. Alma Newberry took me from there to Salem Branch, where I remained four days and preached six times. On October 7th Bro. David Hall took me to Shelby Station and gave me a ticket for Council Bluffs. I tarried for the night with Bro T. W. Chatburn, and the next day went to Omaha, where I spent a night with Bro. R. C. Elvin; thence on to Valley Branch and spoke four times; and at Clear Creek Branch once. Bro. Brown sent his team with me to Bro. Preston's, in Sarpey county, where I remained all night; and the next day Bro. Preston took me to Bro. Armstrong's; and on Sunday, the 17th, I was at Elmwood, ready for the contest. I preached Sunday night, expecting to begin the discussion Monday night. But Mr. Alton did not appear; nor did he appear until Wednesday night. (I continued preaching the while). Then to deny the proposition which he had agreed to before a large audience, he said that he did not belong to the Christian Church, or Campbellite; nor could I get him to define what he did belong to. He was willing, he said, to affirm this: "Is the church of which I am a member the church of Christ?" But would not define what it was! Query—Who would the pronoun I in the proposition refer to? Of course there was no discussion.

I continued to preach until the next Sunday night, securing valuable assistance from Brn. Armstrong and Anthony. We had large congregations. I think there is a good opening, and if some of the Elders of Southern Nebraska will follow it up, good will be done. I next visited Nebraska City and preached twice; then Bro. R. M. Elvin and I made a visit to my uncle Lyman's, and preached six times. Our congregation was at first small, but increased; the last night we had a full house. I find Bro. Elvin a genial companion, and I think a worthy brother.

I arrived at Atchison, Kansas, on the 9th inst., expecting to speak at night; but for want of a room to hold meeting in, no appointment had been announced. I staid all night with Bro. Thomas and the next day walked out here, and spoke last night. The Saints along the way have been kind and generous, for which I hereby return thanks.

I have not given up the mission, but my face is turned southward; and when you hear from me again, I hope to be in the South-western Mission, actively engaged. Will the Saints pray for my success? As ever,

HEMAN C. SMITH.

GOOD INTENT, KANSAS. Nov. 12th, 1880.

An Opportunity Lost.

It was Wednesday evening that, as per previous arrangement, I went to a public hall, rented by the ——— Branch to preach, arriving ten minutes before the time appointed for commencement of worship. Found Bro. ——— and a few others, the former's countenance rather fallen, the others not appearing so joyous as Latter Day Saints are wont to do when meeting for worship under favorable circumstance.

The mercury this evening was a few degrees above zero. The door leading into the hall was standing wide open, the inner blinds thrown back and the top sash of the windows let down to afford an outlet for the blinding smoke and choking gas, which had filled the hall to that extent as to preclude the possibility of seeing but a short distance before you. A coal fire had been started in the stove, and either the pipe or flue, or both, were clogged, and the pipe being minus a damper, which it would seem had been there in days of yore, left a vacancy from which the smoke escaped into the hall and from thence through the windows and door; but not all, for the hacking and coughing by the brother, the other few, and myself, gave evidence that a good share was being inhaled by us. By ten minutes after the time for worship, the hall was partially clear of smoke and gas, but far from being comfortable. The condition of the pipes or flue arose from the fact that the hall has been used by more parties than one; and each has in turn refrained from the labor attendant upon cleaning pipe, etc., lest they should do too much for the good of others. The Saints of the — Branch would have been entitled to sympathy, if the above had happened them through poverty or lack of opportunity to do better; but such is not the case. So far from this is it that they allowed an opportunity to secure a neat, cozy, respectable place of worship where they could have gone at pleasure, and worshiped without being molested or made afraid to pass. The terms of the above place, were easy and with a united effort, within their reach; but the opportunity was lost.

This is bad enough; but for them to remain in their divided condition, twitting and blaming each other for the loss, will be to make bad worse. Let them rather, as a whole, take the blame for the loss, and as a whole be admonished by the past, and stand shoulder to shoulder to do better in the future. The manufacturing and wearing pharisaical cloaks will eventually prove a profitless business for Latter Day Saints.

Roumanian Jews.

MAX SCHAMBERG, Austrian Consul in Pittsburgh, Pa., has been in Vienna for the past three or four months. The object of his trip abroad has been the subject of considerable speculation among his acquaintances and others. It transpired to-day that Mr. Schamberg went to Vienna to meet a deputation of leading Hebrews of Roumania, with a view to bringing a large colony of that people to the United States, where they can be free from persecution. Nothing is known here of the details of the matter, nor where the colony will be located, but it is thought a site will be selected somewhere in Western Pennsylvania, which may be permanent or not, according to circumstances. Some of the Hebrews in this city think the colonists will ultimately settle in one of the Northwestern States, probably Wisconsin, where they can engage extensively in agriculture. Should the negotiations prove successful, the first arrivals may be expected about the beginning of February or March. The colony will consist of several thousand persons. Mr. Schamberg is a Hebrew himself, and is known to take great interest in the welfare of his people. He is expected home in a week or two, when a full account of the scheme can be given.

DR CUTLER says that the increases of nervous diseases, decaying teeth, premature baldness, and general lack of muscular and bone strength are greatly due to the impoverished quality of flour now in use, the gluten being thrown away in order to make the flour white. He urges the use of unbolted flour and of eggs, milk and butter. He denies that fish is brain food or that Agassiz ever said that it was, and claims that butter, being nearly all fat, is a better kind of brain food than any other.

A South Carolina Baptist Church contains in its old records the mention of a woman being excluded from the church for "doing too much talking in the neighborhood." As no such case is recorded of late years, it is supposed that the race of such women is now extinct.

If you can not speak well of your neighbors, do not speak of them at all.

Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH, EDITOR.

Plano, Illinois, December 15th, 1880.

QUITE a financial calamity has befallen the village of Plano, Illinois, the town where the HERALD has been printed since 1863. The Marsh Harvester Works, established in 1867 with but a few men and small facilities, grew into shops furnishing labor for nearly 600 men, and making 10,000 machines yearly, have been removed to the City of Chicago, to swell the already enormous importance of that great emporium.

The works began under the administration of Messrs. Steward & Marsh, the first of Plano the latter of Sycamore, but drew in Messrs. Gammon & Deering of Chicago, the last named acquiring sole control in 1879. For reasons best known to himself, near the close of this year, 1880, Mr. Deering is removing these great works, for to such a village as Plano, they were great works, from the place; thus striking the village a financial blow that will take many a long year to recover.

No very energetic efforts were made to induce Mr. Deering to permit the works to remain, nor was it very definitely stated by him that he would remove them, until quite late; and not until the men and machinery were in absolute process of removal did the citizens wake up to the fact that he would desert the town.

Very many of the workmen were poor men, and had bought lots and erected houses making homes, depending upon their continued labor in the shops to pay for, beautify and adorn their homes. Now these hardy workmen have to desert the places they have built, and follow the fortunes of this great enterprise into the city, where Mr. Deering has built shops to accommodate 800 workmen; so it is stated.

Plano will soon be left to the contemplation of the fact that an enterprise which grew up in the place, until from its munificent remunerated coffers, there fell into the hands of its workers a monthly shower of dollars amounting to an average of $15,000; from which golden rain the main channels of trade and sustenance were filled and the town enriched.

The whistle no longer sounds to bid the clans assemble to their daily toil; the puff of the engine, the whir of machinery and the thud of the trip and ring of the workmen's hammers no longer fill the air with the music of industry. Plano mourns and will not be comforted.

To some it is the old expression of labor and laborers, by capital and capitalists; for Mr. Deering is already a rich man and is keeping up the manufacture of Harvesters to augment his wealth. But others see in this removal of shop interests to the great city an exhibition of business sagacity in concentrating within easier reach an enormous business having many radiating branches; and the gratification of pride in Chicago prestige.

As for us, while we are not materially hurt in a money sense by this removing of the shops from Plano, except as a possible loss in the price of real estate and the opportunity to sell is a hurt, we sympathize with the citizens in this common calamity to the immediate business interests of the place.

THE HERALD has been steadily increasing in its subscription list, but is not yet up to the size of a weekly. An idea of the work done in getting it and the HORE, and the ADVOCATE to the several readers scattered abroad, may be inferred from the following items of one day's work. November 29th, after the room had been warmed, for the mercury at daylight showed seven degrees above zero, only, five of the HERALD employes, including editor, secretary and superintendent, began the task of mailing at 8:30 a.m., and at 5 p.m. the last name had been run off the reel. During that time there had been put up in single wrappers to single addresses 1,899 packages, and to post office addresses 920 packages, containing from two to sixty papers each; making a total of 2,819 packages, about 6,000 copies of HERALD, HOPE and ADVOCATE. They were sent to the railway station in ten newspaper sacks, in numbers of packages divided as follows: To Chicago, 809 packages; to California and Nevada 326, to Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana, 225, to Iowa 437, Missouri, Texas, Colorado and Kansas 524, to Illinois 303, to Nebraska 152, to foreign countries 38. In these sacks were HERALDS directed to every territory, and all the states except Delaware, North and South Carolina and Louisiana. The weight was 360 pounds, and the postage on the home mail $6.84 and on the foreign $7.50, all prepaid. The mailing lists are kept in type, set in galleys, (flat pieces of brass of the thickness of thick card board, 8½ inches wide by 25 long), five columns of names, post office addresses and dates in a galley, the columns being 23 inches long. There are 17 of these galleys, (called double galleys), containing 77 columns. When ready to mail a copy of these columns of names is taken on colored paper, such as is seen in the labels on the wrappers, this copy is cut into strips, 77 in number; these strips are pasted together at the ends, consecutively, states and post offices arranged in alphabetical order, making a strip of paper 1¼ inches wide and 149 feet long. This strip of paper is cut in two, and half put on either of two small mailing machines, being rolled upon a small wooden shaft at one end of the machine. These machines are made of brass, and so arranged that the strip of paper passes out from the reel upon an endless rubber cloth belt; this belt runs over two wooden rollers, one inside the other out, at one end, leaving a loop of the belt to fall into a square cup in the machine, which contains thin paste, the loop being held in its place in the paste cup by a roller of lead; the other end of the belt runs over a small roughened cylinder of brass, through which a wire is run having a leaden wheel on one end, the surface made rough like a file so that the finger will not slip when pressing on it to revolve the cylinder. The belt is thus made to run whenever this cylinder is turned, causing it to come up out of the paste cup with its upper side covered with paste. To prevent too much paste being left upon the belt there are two thin slips of brass so fixed in the machine that one edge of them rubs closely upon the belt as it revolves; the one on the under side being smooth its entire length wipes all the paste off and lets it fall back into the cup, the other on the upper side of the belt has notches filed into it like the spaces between saw teeth, and thus wipes only a part of the paste off leaving enough to paste the under side of the slip of paper as it passes over the belt. At the end of the machine farthest removed from the roll of paper, is a small pair of steel cutters shutting together like a pair of shears, the lower one fast to the machine the other moving up and down on a joint like the joint of a pocket knife. The upper blade is kept up and the shears thus kept open by a spiral coil of wire forming a spring; but pressing down upon the machine or upon the blade by a thumb piece as the operator chooses, the shears are closed, and whatever passes between is cut. The slip of paper on which the addresses are printed is pressed down upon the upper side of the pasted belt, and the belt is revolved by rolling the little cylinder at the bottom, until the end passes under the up-lifted blade of the shears, in such position that the single label, containing the name of the subscriber, the post office address and the date at which subscription expires, may be cut off, the blade is then pressed down, either by pressing down with the machine, or with the thumb piece, and the label is cut off pasted side down upon the paper or package to be directed; and if the paste has been well made the label stays on that paper or package until it reaches its destination. The nearly 6,000 labels of our mail for November 29th, were cut and put on by Brn. William H. Deam and Henry Stahlle from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m., while the putting into and pasting the larger packages and the sorting into respective sacks were being done by the rest of the force.

At 6 o'clock the ten sacks of HERALD, HOPE and ADVOCATE had been weighed, carted to the depot and were waiting on the truck for the train; and at 6:52 were rolling away on "Billy's Train," to be thence taken from the centers at Mendota and Chicago to hundreds of homes in city, town and hamlet for the faithful, the careless and indifferent to read. Send us subscribers to make the list 300 feet long instead of 149, and we will not only pray for you but for 1,000 more just like you.

We have received of late, several letters enthusiastically commending a plan for helping the poor, proposed by Bro. W. C. Matthews, in a letter published in October 1st HERALD. The plan proposed by Bro. Matthews is a protective life assurance association, to be known by the name of The Latter Day Saints' Protective Association. The working details of this plan are about thus: the Saints are to be divided into classes of 1000 each, and each one is to pay the sum of $5 into the treasury of the association. The money so raised is to be expended by persons to be designated by the Association, for land; this land is to be rented to poor Saints, the rent to be paid into the Bishop's hands to be used as tithing, or in the place of tithing, for the general purposes of the Church. In addition to this, Bro. Matthews' plan proposes that when any one of these various classes dies, there is to be an assessment of $1,000 levied upon the particular class to which the person dying belonged while living, and this $1,000 so levied and raised is to be paid to the companion or friends of the dead classmate. Bro. Matthews, and those who have written us, see great benefits to accrue to the ministry and the poor among the Saints from the adoption of this plan. Why, "by this plan," says Bro. Matthews, "the friends of all deceased members would be made comfortable, and no one would feel their loss."

We have waited for some time watching a further development of Bro. Matthews' plan; thinking it possible that he and some others, who seemed impressed with the feasibility of it, would go forward with it. But as yet, no one proceeds with it. Twenty-five thousand dollars, (and Bro. Matthews thinks that such amount could be raised by organizing five classes, or divisions), would purchase and pay for five thousand acres of raw land at $5 per acre. If that much were bought, it must, to be available to renters, (poor Saints or poor any body else), be fenced and broken, with houses and barns built, and wells dug, unless running water is found on every farm. Who who will pay for these necessary improvements?

Or $25,000 will buy two thousand acres of partially improved land at $12.50 an acre; but these two thousand acres must be divided into farms; if we say farms of one hundred acres each, there must be twenty houses, wells, barns and sufficient division fences, before the twenty farms can be rented. Is it practicable to find that much land so divided and improved for the sum?

Or $25,000 would buy one thousand acres of fairly improved land at $25 per acre, ready for the plow; and if divided as farms usually are, might make ten farms of one hundred acres each, accommodating ten poor families, provided they were rich enough to have teams, plows and other farm tools, and breadstuffs to sustain them till a harvest came. Two thousand acres divided into fifty acre farms would make farms for forty families of poor Saints, if each farm had its proper equipments of house, barn, well, etc. Whence will come these necessary adjuncts to such farms?

One brother suggests the idea, and almost hints that the Church authorities ought to take hold of this scheme and carry it out. Now we belong to the class named as Church authorities, and we confess that we can not find a single proposition made by Bro. Matthews, named in the law of the Church; and hence do not apprehend in it any duty devolving upon us. It is to our mind one of those things permissible under the law, "men ought of themselves to be engaged to bring to pass much righteousness;" and if a duty devolves upon any body in the premises, it lies with those who discover the plan and the benefits to arise from it.

If it is urged that without the sanction of the Church authorities the plan would not meet with favor among the Saints, it is an admission that the virtue is in the sanction, not in the plan; for if the plan were manifestly a feasible and practicable one, the good sense of the Saints and the intrinsic merit of the plan itself should command its adoption and success. Besides this, there is a factor that must always be taken into the account, whenever we as a person are to be considered in connection with any of these peculiar schemes or plans, and that is, that the law provides no "wisdom in temporal things" for us; and these schemes are very closely allied to temporalities. For this reason, our approval, or disapproval, sanction or absence of sanction, can neither make nor mar really good and practicable plans, nor give success or disaster to really impracticable ones. We consent always to the brethren's efforts for good; we say, certainly,

Bro. Matthews, or brother James or John, certainly, go on, do what wisdom makes apparent to you; or present your views and let your brothers see them. It may be that you have hit upon the very thing; the light of examination will test it.

Now, frankly, while we say not one word commending nor condemning of the proposed plan, we have not the $5 to make the original payment; nor are we prepared in mind, purse and prospects, to bind ourself to pay our part of one, or one hundred possible yearly assessments of $1,000, each upon the class of one thousand to which we might belong in this Protective Association. Those who have the means and are prepared, who see the practicability and the benefits in it are the ones who should carry it out. Because, such an association would have to be organized under the incorporation laws of one or other of the States in which the Saints are living, or it could not do business as an organized company.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Our orders for the book "The Life of Joseph the Prophet," for the week ending December 4th amounted to nearly fifty copies. It is being appreciated. We did not praise the work at Conference nor press its sale. We heard it whispered that the Board of Publication were forcing the book upon the Saints, and therefore hesitated to urge its sale; until there was time and opportunity for the Saints to see what it was. We like the book, and believe it to fill a place long vacant; to supply a need long felt. We are sorry that we can not give them away, but we can not—though we sell them cheap. Many a family spend more money for the New York Ledger, Saturday Night, Police Gazette, and papers of that sort than would pay for this history over and over again. Mother Smith's History, Joseph Smith and His Progenitors is also selling well. The Saints as a rule are reading people, for which they are to be commended.

Read the commendation of "The Life of Joseph the Prophet," by Bro. John Smith, of New Bedford, Massachusetts. Some have gathered the idea that this work is the History of the Reorganized Church blended with Mother Smith's "Joseph Smith and His Progenitors;" but it is a mistake; they are two quite separate books. Mother Smith's History is 75 cents and $1.25 per copy; post paid. "Life of Joseph the Prophet" is $2, at the office, postage, 20 cents, to be added to price.

Bro. J. C. Clapp writes from Prairie City, Oregon, that he had found a number of old time Saints, in whom the ancient fire was latent; and that at the touch of the Spirit which accompanied the Word, it revived into life again. He was doing all he could as a lone reaper.

Bro. Wm. Grice, of Kewanee, had visited Chicago and passed a very pleasant day with the Saints in the charge of Bro. Mark Forscutt. He was impressed that Bro. Mark was doing an excellent work.

"We are still striving to live in the fear of God, and in obedience to his holy commandments, although we have but few meetings, on the account of living so far from any branch. There is one man ready for baptism as soon as there is an Elder comes this way." This is the burden of Sr. Anna C. Spann's letter of 11th November, from Reedsville, Ohio.

By letter from Bro. George N. Davison, we learn that three were baptized at Boston, on November 16th. May the Lord crown them with life.

Bro. Joseph Hammer, of Allendale, Missouri, sends us a Burlington Hawkeye, containing a business account of Worth county, which shows a wonderful increase and growth. The northern part of the state of Missouri is open for settlement. There are large tracts of unoccupied lands all through the northern tiers of counties. Bro. Dancer sagely remarked last Fall, while conversing about the work, "Our Elders seem to have liberty in preaching going south, but hardly get openings to the north."

On November 20th Bro. James Perkins, was lying at Bro. Nelson Van Fleets, Abilene, Kansas, sick, he fears unto death. He had been laboring as best he could in the district, but fell ill at Abilene. His wife is with him, and he is cared for by the Saints, kindly, as he writes.

Bro. Anthony wrote November 25th, from Lehi City, Utah. Bro. Blair and he were about to engage in a discussion with two young lawyers at Lehi. If it has not fallen through as was likely, we shall hear of them again.

A brother sends us a few dollars for the use of Bro. J. L. Bear in Germany and says: "I only wish I had a thousand dollars to spare; the Church should have it and welcome. All I desire to live for is the good of the cause. And hope soon to be able to do with my means as well as my mouth."

Bro. E. Delong writes from somewhere in Michigan, we take it, that Bro. W. H. Kelley had visited them, and they had been much strengthened by his visit. Bro. Delong had baptized four since November 10th, and was expecting other increase.

Bro. Jobe Brown wrote also that he had held a two days' meeting, that lasted ten days, at Iron Hill, Iowa, in Bro. E. Larkey's district. He was receiving a grand good welcome. May the Lord bless such laborers.

Mr. Albert Wilsey, son of Bro. Archibald M. Wilsey, of Millbrook, Illinois, has been chosen to the House of Representatives of the Nebraska Legislature, from the county where he resides. Mr. Wilsey removed from Plano to Nebraska a few years ago, and is fortunate in the choice of the people. We wish him a useful life in his legislative career.

From a letter of Bro. R. H. Wight, written at Soldier, Iowa, we copy as follows: "I endeavor to live so that my life may exemplify the principles that I teach. I also try to speak every Sabbath in defense of the truth. I do not defend it because my father did, or because my mother taught me to thus believe; but because I have the sweet assurance that the gospel is true. Had I not this God given knowledge, I would not be numbered with Israel's watchmen." May our brother prove a good "Soldier" of the cross, and a "Watchman" on the towers of Zion.

Bro. E. C. Brown, Fonda, Iowa, November 21st, writes: "Four more ready for the water in Clinton township, Pocahontas county. I am holding meetings there every two weeks, and will continue all winter if health and strength and weather permit, although it is thirty miles travel there."

While on his way to Keokuk, Bro. John H. Lake preached at Portlandville and vicinity for some time, with good liberty.

From a business letter of Bro. William Cook, Reese, Mich., of Nov. 22nd, we copy as follows: "The work is onward here. There were four baptized here last Sunday and two the Sunday before; the branch numbers forty-nine at present."

Bro. L. S. Staley, Leroy, Kansas, in a letter renewing his subscription for the HERALD and sending aid to the Church, expresses his thankfulness for his knowledge of the truth of the latter day work, and feels impressed to do all that he can, though poor in this world's goods. He is alone in the faith with his family.

Bro. George Wyman, Fontanelle, Iowa, expresses his joy and satisfaction in the work of the Lord; and in reading the many cheering letters in the HERALD, and testifies of the gifts of the Spirit he enjoys.

In writing from Lewiston, Illinois, the 29th November, Bro. T. F. Stafford says: "I am not preaching as much as I was in the summer, while the weather is so cold, as the appointments are too far off. However, I have only missed three Sabbaths since the last conference at Kewanee, and they were on account of stormy weather. I heard, though, on one occasion that quite a crowd had met, expecting me to come. They must think I am made of rubber."

We copy from a letter of Bro. Samuel Blatt, 347 Eighth Street, West Denver, Colorado, as follows: "If any of the brethren come out here, we will try and make them as comfortable as we can; and hope that the prejudice here will soon be removed."

Sister Caroline Y. Shearer, New Springfield, Ohio, in a letter renewing her subscription, says: "I have read the HERALD for six years, and it is my only preacher—and it is a great comfort to me. I long for the time when it will come every week."

Sister G. F. Simmons, writing from Cameron, Missouri, says: "O, how I love to hear of the prosperity of this glorious work, and often think that if I could only have the means, that I would be happy in giving to the Church, and I am willing to sacrifice many of the necessaries of life when I can see that it will be the means of helping some poor, honest soul to see the truth."

Bro. Thomas Connor, writes from St. Thomas, Ontario, relating a number of pleasing incidents that indicate the witnessing the Spirit to him in dreams and visions; by which he has been singularly instructed and benefited. One vision related by him is, of a series of bright clouds appearing, that upon approaching nearer proved to be angels, and these formed a connection in association with the Saints on earth.

BRO. ALBERT HAWS, of Washington Corners, California, writes from Soledad, that State, urging strenuously the use of the press, the newspaper press of the country, to counteract the prejudicial theory which connects us with the Utah Church. Bro. Haws, evidently, has not noted the efforts that we have made in this direction, or if he has, he is not quite aware of how hard a task it is. He suggests the setting apart a portion of Church means for the purpose of paying newspapers for inserting articles defensive of the positions that we occupy. It might be a good thing to subsidize the press, but it is rather expensive; rather too much so for our use at the present. Those who read the last report of the Bishop and remember it, ought to be able to tell how many columns of the New York Herald or Tribune; the Chicago

Times, or Tribune; the St. Louis Republican, or Globe-Democrat, we could hire for such use, with what we then owed that officer. The truth is like the pearl of great price; there may have been many pebbles in the field, but only one pearl, and that of great price. Errors and lies are plenty, and find constant receivers, while here and there only truth finds a place to abide. Again, Paul states that God choose to save the world by the foolishness of preaching,—I reckon Bro. Albert, you and I will need to keep pound- ing away for yet a little while.

We print the following extract from President R. B. Hayes' Annual Message, to Congress upon its re-assembling, Monday, December 6th.

"It is the recognized duty and purpose of the people of the United States to suppress polygamy where it now exists in our Territories, and to prevent its extension." Faithful and zealous efforts have been made by the United States authorities in Utah to enforce the laws against it. Experience has shown that the legislation upon this subject, to be effective, requires extensive modification and amendment. The longer action is delayed the more difficult it will be to accomplish what is desired. Prompt and decided measures are necessary. The Mormon sectarian organization which upholds polygamy has the whole power of making and executing the local legislation of the Territory. By its control of the grand and petit juries it possesses large influence over the administration of justice. Exercising, as the heads of this sect do, the local political power of the Territory, they are able to make effective their hostility to the law of Congress on the subject of polygamy, and, in fact, do prevent its enforcement. Polygamy will not be abolished if the enforcement of the law depends on those who practice and uphold the crime. It can only be suppressed by taking away the political power of the sect which encourages and sustains it. The power of Congress to enact suitable laws to protect the Territories is ample. It is not a case for half-way measures. The political power of the Mormon sect is increasing; it controls now one of our wealthiest and most populous Territories. It is extending steadily into other Territories. Wherever it goes it establishes polygamy and sectarian political power. The sanctity of marriage and the family relation are the corner-stone of our American society and civilization. Religious liberty and the separation of the Church and State are among the elementary ideas of free institutions. To re-establish the interests and principles which polygamy and Mormonism have imperiled, and to fully reopen to intelligent and virtuous immigrants of all creeds that part of our domain which has been, in a great degree, closed to general immigration by intolerant and immoral institutions, it is recommended that the Government of the Territory of Utah be reorganized.

"I recommend that Congress provide for the government of Utah by a Governor and Judges, or Commissioners, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate,—a Government analogous to the Provisional Government established for the territory northwest of the Ohio by the ordinance of 1787. If, however, it is deemed best to continue the existing form of local Government, I recommend that the right to vote, hold office, and sit on juries in the Territory of Utah be confined to those who neither practice nor uphold polygamy. If thorough measures are adopted, it is believed that within a few years the evils which now afflict Utah will be eradicated, and that this Territory will in good time become one of the most prosperous and attractive of the new States of the Union."

It should be remembered that when in 1866, we were summoned before the Territorial Committee, as a witness upon Utah affairs, we did not advise new and oppressive legislative enactments; but did recommend that crime in Utah should be treated as crime in any other section of the country was and ought to be treated; holding that it was not the severity, but the surety of prosecution and punishment that deterred men from the commission of crimes against the law. It was our opinion then, it is our opinion now, that so long as those transgressors escaped punishment from the venality, or weakness of executors of the law, just so long would polygamy survive. We are not now, we never have been in favor of official and legal oppression, or mob violence; but, under the genius of the inspiration that declared, "he that keepeth the law of God hath no need to break the laws of the land," we are in favor of the arrest and just legal punishment of those who willfully and persistently continue to violate law.

Our Utah religionists told their people in 1866, that we went to Washington to incite the Government to hostility to them. We now give them another opportunity to make the same statement because our offense now is precisely what it was then; and we can see that Pres. Hayes seems to be of the same opinion that we then gave, that certain punishment only, will be effectual to the suppression of that crime in Utah. In a late letter from Utah, Bro. Blair states that it is rumored there that the leading authorities of the Mormon Church are credited with saying: "We do not care for the efforts of Messrs. Moody and Sankey, or of the sects; but we fear that these Josephites will make serious inroads upon us." Cheer up, friends Taylor, Smith and company, to preach deliverance to the captives is the mission of these Josephites; and they propose to stand by the supremacy of the laws of God and the land. If ye begin to fear, please to remember that "fear is the beginning of wisdom." Our hope is that wisdom may follow before it is too late.

Whatever Congress may do in the premises under this recommend of Pres. Hayes', we trust that the language of the Book of Covenants may form the central idea of their legislation, wherein the subject with which they deal is clearly defined, "the crime of polygamy."

BRO. THOMAS W. SMITH writes from Boston Highlands, November 29th, as follows:

"I organized a little branch at Brockton, (formerly North Bridgewater), last Friday night. Six members. Isaiah L. Chase, presiding as Priest, Wm. B. Chase, No. 10, Cottage street, Brockton, Massachusetts, clerk. They all had letters from Dennisport Branch. Dennisport Branch, which had been without an Elder or Priest for months, was more fully organized while I was there, by Elder Wellington Bearse being chosen to preside, and Joseph Long ordained a Priest, and chosen as a Branch Priest. We left them in very fair condition. They had been in quite a low state spiritually.

"I have had some strange ideas about Kirtland recently. Among others, was the possibility of a General Conference being held there before a great while. And of an endowment of the Spirit being given the Elders of the Reorganization, before they went to any extent into distant fields. If a Conference was held in the early Fall, tents could be largely used, and some enterprising Bro. and Sr. could run a large boarding tent, or house made of rough boards. The Elders could be fed at a small figure, say ten cents per meal, by the Saints in Michigan and Indianan donating flour, meat, potatoes, cheese, etc., for that purpose. Dishes, etc., could be hired. And why should not the East have a Conference? I intend to stop at Kirtland on my way west. I think of going back to Brockton for a few evenings this week, if they can get a hall.

Give the ideas above referred to an attention, good readers of the HERALD.

THERE is quite a furore for heresy hunting just now in various religious circles, a few instances of which we give below:

"The Campbellite Church has a large membership in Indiana,—some 35,000,—some half or more of whom are said to be Democrats. One of its most influential members is the Rev. Dr. Burgess, of Indianapolis, President of the Butler University. Recently Dr. Burgess declared publicly his intention to vote for Garfield and Arthur, and against Hancock and English, as he had a perfect right to do; whereupon the Indianapolis Sentinel, the Democratic State organ, has opened a fire of billingsgate upon him of which the following is a sample: 'This Rev. Burgess, whose title blasphemes religion and insults Christ, professes to be an educator, a place for which he is as well fitted as Hell is for a powder-house. . . . The bigotry of Burgess is of the most infernal character. It corrupts his voice to a tiger's growl. It lights his eyes with the fires of Hell. Like the influences of a den of Louisiana liars, it blunts his perceptions of right or wrong; it develops his brutish nature until he appears more like a hyena than a human being. Prudence disappears under a load of impudence, and from the rotten wreck of a priest is born a monstrosity so hideous, so tattooed with the vengeance of the Almighty, that the very dogs bark at him. Burgess! The Rev. Mr. Burgess! What a caricature of humanity—what a burlesque upon religion!'"

"The Rev. Joseph Wassall has been pronounced by his ecclesiastical superiors to be unfit for the pastorate of the Congregational Church at Nora, Ill., because he does not believe in eternal punishment of the wicked. The Rev. Mr. Wassall holds that punishment for sins is not endless, but that all the wicked will be restored after they have undergone a certain amount of punishment. He also holds that certain portions of the Scriptures cannot be reconciled with other portions. As an instance, Mr. Wassall holds that the 109th Psalm is incompatible with the Sermon on the Mount. A majority of his congregation believes in Mr. Wassall and in his liberal interpretation of the Scriptures. The minority claim possession of the church edifice, and their right to it will be passed upon by the courts. In the meantime the inhabitants of Nora are all tore up over the action of the Congregational Council."

These clippings are from the Chicago Tribune, of October 6th, and indicate a lively time for the disciplinarians.

A New Orleans Democrat, for November 4th, was sent us by some good friend, from a marked editorial in which we quote an extract, as follows:

"What, then, must be the commercial future,—the relations and blended interest of that future—for New Orleans? Can one doubt that with each year it must draw us more closely to the great North-west, the natural and inevitable arena of our business destiny? The South has been jeered and reviled as being 'solid.' Our solidity has been the fruit of a common calamity of Radical spoliation, and a common fear of its renewal. It has sprung from no community of purpose, or sentiment, or interest with Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia, Maryland, or any of the Eastern Democratic states. We fully realize—the unwelcome facts our every day experiences have compelled us to realize—that in our march toward prosperity and development we need expect no sympathy or assistance there. The combination of the Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky railroads to prohibit New Orleans from competing for the trade of the Southern Atlantic states, and the consistent hostility shown by their representatives in Congress to every scheme for the improvement of navigation in the Mississippi river, or the reclamation of lands in the Mississippi valley—these witnessess have persuaded us by their eloquent testimony until we no longer have abiding places for our doubts. It is as clear to us as facts and reason and probability can make it that the destinies of Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi are inextricably interwoven with those of the ten great Western and North-western States, to whose splendid growth we have made reference. Our interests are identical; our sympathies must eventually become so; and soon the railroad will tear to pieces with its iron fingers the line between the North and South—that line which now makes enemies and strangers of those whom it divides. God speed the day!"

THE following, possibly represents a part of our case as a people, seen from an outside point of observation:

"I am not a member of any church of any denomination, but I pen you a few thoughts on Mormonism, so called. I see a great amount of time is spent in writing up the gathering in Jackson county, Missouri, which I think is detrimental to the Church. Some forty years ago, the Mormons commenced to proselyte in this county, and as soon as they got a few families converted to their faith they must pull up and go to the promised land. About eighteen years ago the same thing occurred, so there is but five left now to tell the tale in this county. If they had all remained here, there would no doubt have been as many hundred. Suppose you should convert the world; would you not have to enlarge your bounds? I think you would. B. V. Springer has preached for us; where is he? and what is he doing?"

E. C. BEEMAN."

WHIRESTOWN, Indiana, Oct. 30th, 1880.

REV. STEPHEN H. TYNG, Jr., gives the following terse opinion on miracles. The lines are closing in between infidelity and faith. We quote from the Chicago Tribune of November 23d:

"The Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, Jr., preached yesterday on the miracles at the Shrine of Loudres, France, and after recounting many instances of cures he had witnessed there, said: 'It will never do, in this generation, to deny these well-authenticated facts. The Roman Catholic Church is wise above all other societies of believers. I do not find it in my heart to impugn their motives, and, in my puny impotence, I am striving to attain to the same results. In this age of rationalism men make merry over miracles. Let us congratulate ourselves that God has left us some impenetrable mysteries. So long as there are facts that can not be explained by the present philosophy or present science, so long will there be little opportunity of the people being perverted from the faith that has held its place for so many centuries in human life.'"

BRO. W. W. BLAIR writes from Salt Lake City, Utah, November 24th, 1880, as follows:

"You will be pleased to know we have made arrangements to send two and perhaps three more Elders into our mission field. One of them is an intelligent young Swede, of Provo, who was once a missionary in Sweden and had charge of thirty others. All are excellent men. I have written to many of the Saints in the mission, asking their aid to thoroughly prosecute the mission work, and I am receiving some aid for that purpose. We are determined to push the work. Our prospects continue fair. We need tracts."

THE following, cut from a popular periodical, tells its own story:

"The Oneida Community, in New York State has taken a decided step lately toward disintegration. The former organization has been dissolved, and in its place a joint stock company with $600,000 capital has been formed. Members who brought as much as $1,000 to the Association get $500 worth of stock and pro rata, and there is a certain allotment to the children. Wages will be paid on the most equitable basis. But the main idea of the society is gone."

BLUE SPRINGS, Jackson Co., Mo.,
November 7th, 1880.

Dear Herald:—I am highly in favor with the subject proposed by Bro. W. C. Matthews, to set it in practice would perhaps be necessary to put the insurance to $500, in place of $1000. The latter sum, I believe, would cause too heavy a tax to be laid on the Association, but even $500 would be a great help to a poor widow with a house full of little children. The buying up of land for the society, would be the start to supplying a want long felt by the poor Saints of the Reorganized Church. I do hope that something will be done to help the poor; and especially when they can assist in helping themselves. Some may say it is no need for an industrious man to be poor in this country. We will see; suppose some young man in Scandinavian, or some other European country, received the gospel, under the administration of B. Young's elders. (Years back they had no better chance, and I am sorry to see, that not yet, more is done for the salvation of those precious souls of the old country.) But to my illustration. If this young man has any talent, he is soon ordained and sent out to preach. His mission may vary from one to six years; then he is allowed to emigrate to America; if he had any means, it would naturally be spent during his ministry; and now to get home with the Saints as they call it, he has to borrow of his friends. Of course, he never learned of any other gathering place than Utah. Well, arriving there, after six months of hard journey, yes, so hard that thousands have fallen by the wayside, he comes there, gets married, and commences to labor and toil in a hard and forsaken country. Four or five years pass; he has a little home and has about paid his emigration debt. During his stay he has learned that something besides the pure principles of the gospel of Christ are taught there; but as a loving Father, God desires to save all those who trust in Him; so out there in the Desert come the Elders of the Reorganized Church, with the pure gospel, and this missionary hears and obeys what he long has hoped for. He now with his family enjoys the blessing of the gospel, but he soon finds that the people there are great persecutors of those who differ from them; they are even more violent than the people in the old country. Well, he sees no other way than to sacrifice what little he has earned again, and go down to the states; coming there, he finds the Saints scattered all over, he knows not where best to settle. God has blessed him with a family, and realizing the responsibility of providing for them, he starts again; his few hard earnings have nearly been exhausted by his traveling expenses. What little is left he pays as part payment on a small home, and goes into debt for the balance, hoping by industry to meet the payment; he toils on a few years, but happens to have settled in a malarious district and the whole family gets sick; and besides, a little bad luck comes on, and when pay time comes he can not meet it and he loses all. His family increases, his strength decreases, and if he tries again and fails, his hopes do not get brighter. The only chance now left is to work for, or rent land of the Gentiles; they have the benefits, and he endures the rest of the time in poverty. Therefore when I saw Bro. Matthews' proposed plan, I felt to say, God bless it that it may succeed. It will give a chance for at least a few industrious poor who are now toiling for the Gentiles. I hope and pray that those whom God has blessed with means of this world, as well as others who have none, will take hold; and that the authorities of the Church would assist in this, or any other movement whose object is the welfare of the poor, and the blessings of God would follow the Church to a greater extent. There would be some place for those coming from afar to gather to, and they would call down the blessings of heaven on those who lent a helping hand. I desire to see the people of the Most High to be more united, and look to the welfare of each other.

Yours truly, S. O. WADDEL.

Dear Bro. Joseph:—Enclosed please find one dollar for further subscription for your ever welcomed Herald as our time expires this day. We delight to read its light-giving pages, and hear from the many we know, through its correspondence and reports. We pray for the spreading of truth and the suppression of darkness, error and superstition, vice and bigotry. We are isolated from any of our faith, but prayerfully and faithfully strive to wait until God our Eternal Father, may be pleased to send some faithful apostle to preach glad tidings to the many around about this popular country resort, who are ready to hear and receive truth or anything, beside the hollow pretensions of the various churches of men. We are in a place where the churches have but little, or no true spiritual life, and sin abounds. We are boldly striving to live to the light that God, in his great love, has revealed to us, but fall far short. We desire to live and glorify our Father in heaven though the world may frown and ignore our faith; though our past errors may be magnified and ever arrayed before us by a wicked and perverse generation; though cast out from all human organizations, the Lord our Savior, speaks peace to our souls, and gently tells us that "we can do all things through Christ who strengthens us." Mrs. Rogers, my wife, sends a pittance to the Church, hoping some time to do more. Her prayers and faithful, devoted life, evince a firm, unflinching faith in this the latter day work, though not as yet, allowed the privilege of making the necessary preparation for eternal bliss, and the gifts of the gospel on earth, through the covenant of baptism, and the laying on of hands. The evidences are frequent and conclusive of the Father's approbation, and that Christ died for the erring children of men, and has risen to intercede for us, and to reveal himself unto whom he will.

Yours in Christ, H. L. ROGERS.

BINGHAMTON, Wisconsin,
November 30th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—The Saints in Binghamton are well, some active and others lukewarm. Bro. Wait is one of the Seventy; send on money to make him go out and preach the year round, if health of him and his permits. If there is much money in the treasury, then send for me and make me go too. $200.00 per year is enough for me; and others are like me. Let families be self-supporting, at least in a measure. When I hear of Elders getting $400.00 and over per year, that goes out preaching just for their time, it makes me feel like our young brother, Joseph B. Rodger, very bad. There are families in the Church that are living fair, so they keep in good spirits and health, and get a fair education, where the father of three to six children does not earn $200.00 per year; but they have learned what living strictly economical and working according to strength means, and do it. I would have a great deal to write on this subject, but let this suffice; unless by some one a good criticizer, more is wanted; then more will come.

Yours in the faith, JOSEPH LAMPERT.

LEHI CITY, Utah,
November 15th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—Bro. Blair left us last evening. He spent a few days with the people here, profitably, we think. Prospects are favorable for an increase soon, judging from appearances.

Miss E. R. Snow and Zina D. Huntington were here a few days ago. The first spoke in tongues and Zina interpreted. The one who told me thought it was not very clear. There was something about Joseph, considerable concerning Brigham, and terrible judgments to be poured out upon the enemies of this people; and especially those that fight against polygamy. They both bore testimony to that principle; and the faithful ones say they appeared perfectly angelic. We thought of the kind Paul speaks of in 2 Corinthians, 11th chapter.

Last Sunday night, at this place, Bishop Smoot, of Provo, related a remarkable vision that Miss Snow and Z. Huntington had in the Tabernacle at that place. Joseph, Hyrum, Brigham and Heber, and others appeared in their midst. They, however, were the only ones permitted to see the vision. According to reports, Wilford Woodruff is highly favored with an abundance of the same kind; so, you see, this people are not in the dark according to their way of seeing. It appears a little strange to me that after seeing and conversing and being instructed by so many of those large-hearted and liberal minded men, confirming their principles, that they don't throw down the gauntlet of battle, open wide their doors and test the question with their enemies. It seems to us that they might "put to flight the armies of the aliens," while they are thus armed; but no, the counsel is, "Don't hear them. Keep away. They are our enemies." I think we have no reason to be discouraged in regard to this Utah Mission. We are making decided progress; though it is slow, it is sure. True, not so many are uniting with us as some would love to see; but the way is being prepared, and in time the Church will not regret the time or means that have been spent. Of course, we do not all see alike in regard to this matter; but my mind is that the Reorganized Church ought to stand out foremost in the ranks, fighting error in Utah.

We must by the purity of our teaching and example, subdue the evil, and present the Church a chaste virgin unto Christ. Whatever our labors may accomplish here, if good, they must be felt abroad. If we fail here, or fail to do our best, the stigma is only fastened the deeper on the latter day work. The longer I remain here, the more I see and learn of the history of the Church and its founders, the more thoroughly am I confirmed in its divinity; and that the evils that have cropped out through would-be prophets and apostles, must be met and opposed by firm, careful, prudent men, possessed of a true patriotic spirit; inspired with the same hope, the same desire and love for God and humanity that inspired its founders. Should we believe all the testimonies concerning your father and his teachings and practice, I would say, My God, preserve me from such an individual. I would say that the enemies to Mormonism have not presented the darkest page of its history yet. But when I take up his written history, I there find a soul breathing forth grand and heaven born principles. Liberty to all in its broadest sense; a full and free salvation to all the inhabitants of earth; and every sentiment in accord with the teaching of our Lord, and the good and noble men of this earth. I can then only receive such testimony as the former as false, coming from disappointed, corrupt and depraved minds. I believed at one time that he must have been ensnared by that soul-destroying system of polygamy; but, to-day, he stands revealed to my mind free from it, fair as the sun; and when the Reorganized Church comes up to its standard in Christ; when she has been foremost in the ranks throwing down the high towers of superstition, usurpation and idolatry; when she has plucked the honest, the just and the true from the tyrant's grasp, from carnality and lust, and established them in Christ in love; when her converts have exemplified Christ in their lives; when she is clothed in robes of righteousness, and the Spirit shall say to the Groom, Thy bride is prepared; then shall we see a man highly approved of God and man; and when the reproach is taken from the Church, so it will be with him. Our lot has been cast with the Reorganized Church; I love its doctrines; I love its government; I love its converts; I love its great head, Christ, our Savior. I have felt his power; I have tasted his love. All I now ask is, let me ever be found worthy to be called his servant, laboring for the cause of his truth with my brethren in love. My faith is not in man, it is in God my Savior; for him I hope to labor, watch and wait.

I may mistake; some may say I am deceived, or that I have not a proper conception of the latter day work, or of this mission. I consider it of the first and most vital importance to the Church, and could they see it in the light I now view it in, there would be an army of Elders prepared, by another Fall at least, marching up and down the valleys, calling on the wandering and erring ones, pouring forth the oil of gladness from souls filled with a Savior's love. And as Israel of old was called to look upon the brazen serpent, so call on them to turn and look upon their risen Lord and follow him on to the victory. Pardon me for writing so lengthily.

Yours in Christ, R. J. ANTHONY.

Dear Herald:—I have been one of your constant readers from October, 1861, and you have been a welcome visitor to me; I for one should be happy to see you every week. You tell your readers that there is a great call for more preachers to go and preach. You also tell them that money is wanted so that more Elders may go and preach. Well, dear Herald, I know an Elder that has been ready to devote nearly the whole of his time for the last five years; but is not allowed to go and preach. He has a horse and buggy of his own and can go without money from any one; and I think that all that is keeping him from going to preach is nothing but falsehood and deception. I think for the good of the cause it ought to be investigated and the dog put out of the manger so that the ox may eat the hay. One thing more I wish you to go and tell all of your readers, that there is a book for two dollars and twenty cents, the Life of Joseph the Prophet. I once asked a man what good tobacco was to him; he said it was food to the mind. If any of your readers are using tobacco for food to the mind, that book will be the means of more food to the mind than two thousand dollars worth of tobacco. Send your money and get the book.

Yours truly,
GEORGE HATT.

NEBRASKA CITY, Nebraska,
November 26th, 1880.

Dear Herald:—While political excitement was vibrating from the rock bound shores of Maine unto the "Golden Gate," and from the inland seas unto Key West, after discharging my duty as a citizen of the commonwealth, in company with the willing, faithful Heman, per train we glided south into the land of promise, and enjoyed the hospitality of Bro. Lyman S. Wight; we held six meetings, growing in interest until the close, with requests for our return. There was some talk of bestowing upon us a donation of eggs; their will was good, but their courage failed them, which was very satisfactory to us. Parting with my genial co-laborer of a week, returned home and thence west to Wilber, Nebraska, where our conference was held. There was a very slim attendance of visiting Saints; a good time was enjoyed, and a large attendance of those seeking the truth. Preached at three school-houses, and on the 22d cut a hole in the ice, and one was added to the "army of the Lord." Four others made application for baptism, but were delayed for cause. The prospect for an ingathering is good. Yours in Christ,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

GLENWOOD, Iowa,
November 21st, 1880.

Pres. Joseph Smith:—You will be glad to learn that there is yet a fervent determination on the part of the Saints in the Fremont District to publish the message of good tidings as delivered by Jesus. The spirit and feeling shown by those in attendance upon our district conference, held one week ago, cast hopefully for the permanent growth of the work. From the first, the inquiry by those present seemed to be, 'What measures can we adopt that will further the interests of the cause of truth in the district, and none seemed so extremely zealous, or jealous of his own little notions on the subject, but that he could candidly, and considerately, hear what his brethren had to say; indeed, the liberal, tolerant, self-denying, anxious, Christ-like spirit manifest was a high omen of the future good. The Saints met in their new church (now nearly finished) in Shenandoah, Bro. D. Hougas presiding, and Brn. Wm. Leeka and J. R. Badham clerks. There were present from other districts, Brn. Waldsmith, Daugherty and A. J. Cato, the last of whom will remain preaching in the district during the Winter. The usual interest was shown in the business transacted, and the desire generally manifest to aid the work more—by contribution either of labor or means—and to strive to build up and cement, rather than destroy all opportunity of effecting good by goring at each other. It was fully apparent that those present determined that henceforth, their light should shine for, and not against the truth. The voice of the true Spirit was present giving approval of the efforts in behalf of the work.

Ever wishing for the success of the Master's work, I am in bonds, yours,

E. L. KELLEY.

INDEPENDENCE, Missouri,
November 30th, 1880.

Editor of Herald:—In your paper of November 15th, in a letter from J. S. Comstock, he says that the Book of Mormon forbids polygamy in the Church of God, and that this law must remain in force until it is countermanded by a new revelation. I ask, Is it possible that Elder Comstock, or any other sane man or woman, can believe that God can contradict or countermand any law that he has given to his Church? After telling the Nephites that polygamy is abominable, to make his word so plain that none should be deceived, he says, "For if I will raise up seed unto me; I will command my people, otherwise," from those who practiced polygamy in the land of Jerusalem. This is apparent, for he had before said he had brought them here to raise up a righteous branch of the children of Joseph. Now can a people be righteous and break this plain law? All reflecting minds will say, No. And will not be deceived by a pretended revelation to the contrary. As Sister Emma wisely said, it must come from the devil. God has especially shown to us that he is unchangeable, by bringing forth his church in this land where the political law prohibits such vices. Those that practice them have to go into secret combinations, and build temples in which to perform their oaths and perverse sealings. In the Book of Ether, third chapter, last paragraph, the prophet says, "The Lord worketh not in secret combinations." This is a positive declaration, which must deter a true Saint from sustaining that in which the Lord does not work.

We left the popular churches of the day to join the humble church of God, because his word says he is unchangeable. The blessings, ordinances, and precepts of the gospel are alike in all ages of the world. Let us continue to serve the unchangeable God and praise him for his word so beautiful and plain.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Europe,

Bro. Henry A. Stebbins:—Your letter with the Post Office Order, I received the 5th of November; since that I went twice to the Post Office in Affoltern, a | A, and showed the order, believing to receive the money; but the Postmaster declared that he had nothing to do with this order; and that he could not pay it until he received the money, and that none had come; consequently this order does me no good. I am still preaching every Sabbath in private houses, but intend to start for Germany in about ten days and sow the gospel seed there. If I can not reap, another may in some future time, but the seed has to be scattered first, before there is a harvest. How to get means to open a new field there I do not know, unless the American Saints sustain me. Winter is at the door and I have no warm clothes, and the Saints here are poor. All that I have received from them till now is sixty-five cents; and only one dollar for my labors last Spring and Summer as yet; and two baskets of green beans. There is no show for getting employment, as the land is full of men that receive no labor. I was considerably sustained from one of the Saints till now, but can not do any more at present.

Should you send me money, send greenbacks in registered letter, and wrap the money in such a way that it can not be seen through the envelope and I will be sure to get it. I can use the United States currency here very well. You can address me either: J. L. Bear, in Kratz Hedingen, Zurich, Switzerland, or in care of I. I. Bear, Seiden faber, Affoltern a | A; Zürich, Switzerland. I receive letters either way.

I am your fellow laborer in Christ,

J. L. BEAR.

CANAAN, Jefferson County, Indiana,

Bro. Joseph Smith:—We are doing the best we can, and try to speak the truth as much as we can in our weakness. The district conference has just closed at the Eden Branch. We had a very good conference considering everything. I have been trying to warn the people in the district since last August, have spoken about thirty times and assisted the Elders in several meetings. The cause in the district is onward, prejudice is to a great extent give way to better judgment as things move onward. I have been greatly blessed in presenting the plan of redemption to the falling race of mankind, for which I desire to give God the glory. I feel my imperfection and my weakness, a weak man that I am. May God give me strength to endure my trials. Pray for us Bro. Joseph down here in Southern Indiana. We have many trials to encounter; but may God deliver us all and bring us through to obtain the crown at the end of the race. Yours
V. D. BAGGERLY.

NEWPORT, California,
November 16th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Our district conference, just closed, was a remarkably quiet, peaceable and harmonious one—so stated by several, and as Bro. P. M. Betts said, the best conference held on the coast since he came into the Church. In our testimony meetings we received strong testimony of the latter day work, and by the Spirit strong attestation of the position, office and calling of the President of the Church. How good and wise our Master is—how fitting such testimonies to us, among whom such heretical doctrine has been disseminated. And our hearts were made glad—hearing the voice of Bro. Mills again, as with great power, and in demonstration of the Spirit, he bore record and testimony of the divine calling of our leader. As for myself, while bearing my testimony as I received them in dream, and once in vision, of his calling, the Holy Spirit again bore record that no greater work has ever been done than that which may be done by our President. Several bore record also; and in tongues, interpretation and prophecy, we were encouraged, strengthened, and blessed. Thank God for the gospel of Christ our Redeemer. We hope to still enjoy the privilege of proclaiming it. There are many calls. The day after conference adjourned we baptized three—two women from Azusa, and one Bro. Best's boy—and we had an excellent confirmation meeting at my house in the evening. It seems a brighter day is dawning for us of Newport Branch, although more will probably go out from us. May God bless you, Bro. Joseph, with all the powers and privileges of your calling, is the prayer of your brother in Christ,

JOSEPH F. BURTON.

RUSHVILLE, Schuyler Co., Illinois,
November 26th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph:—I left Illinois last March, went to Pike county, Missouri; stayed three months, or probably four, did what I could, by having Bro. Wetherbee come and preach there; as I have stated before.

After leaving there went to Independence, and several times visited their church, and heard some good preaching. They have a very good church building; but it is not a wonder that Zion is not redeemed, when we see the divisions and strife that there are in some parts of the country. I was at church once in Athison, Kansas; they seemed to be at peace there, and enjoying the blessing. We stayed near four days at Bro. Page's, by the way, as we moved back here. I learned on the round that there are many weak Saints as well as myself, in the world. But there is much to learn before we get to perfection. The Saints here have had no preaching since last winter; but we are expecting Bro. Lake, as this is on his circuit. Yours in the love of truth,

WILLIAM J. CURRY.

NEW BEDFORD, Massachusetts
November 25th, 1880.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—The "Life of Joseph the Prophet," by Bro. Tullidge, is an excellent work, and should be in the home of every Saint. The reading of it is sufficient to convince any honest man of the divinity of the latter day work. It would be a good thing if the branches in cities would place one in the public libraries. Especially should every Elder possess one. It is certainly a very cheap book, and will commend itself to every reader, as a book worthy of a foremost rank in the literature of the Church. It appears to me that its value as a church history is inestimable, and I therefore take pleasure in recommending it to all who desire to become acquainted with the history of the latter day work. This tribute, the book certainly deserves, and it is at your pleasure. Yours,
JOHN SMITH.

Conference Minutes.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA DISTRICT.

The above quarterly district conference was held at the Castor School-house, November 14th and 15th, 1880; Levi Anthony, president; R. M. Elvin, clerk.

Preaching morning and evening by R. M. Elvin. Present: 3 Elders, 1 Priest, 1 Teacher.

Reports.—Elder Levi Anthony reported his labors as president; Elder Robt. M. Elvin, preached 30 times, baptized 6, confirmed 4, blessed 3 children; Priest John O. Savage expected to labor this winter. Reported by letter: Elder Heman C. Smith, J. W. Waldsmith and J. Armstrong, Priest Joseph Byous, and Elder P. C. Peterson.

Bishop's Agent's Report: "On hand $29.82, received $16.58, total $46.40. Paid to ministry $24.58, to Bishop $21.62, exchange and postage 20 cts., total $46.40. J. W. Waldsmith, agent."

Branch Reports: Nebraska City, last report 105, present 104; 4 baptized, 5 removed by letter. Blue River, last report, 36, present 39; 3 baptized. Clear Creek and Moroni, no change. Palmyra, Platte River and Plattsmouth, no report.

Recommendation from Clear Creek Branch for the ordination of Bro. Joseph Byous to the office of an Elder; upon motion, the ordination was provided for.

General church authorities were sustained, also district officers.

Adjourned to meet at Palmyra, Otoe county, Nebraska, February 13th, 1881, at half past ten.

CENTRAL NEBRASKA DISTRICT.

Conference called to order by electing H. O. Smith president pro tem; C. H. Derry, secretary pro tem.

The report of Deer Creek Branch was returned for correction. The clerk of conference was authorized to insert the items of confirmation and accept the report of Cedar Creek Branch. Cedar Creek 19; 2 received by letter. Clear Water 9; 1 received by letter.

Elders H. O. Smith, Chauncy Loomis; Priests C. N. Hutchins, J. W. Smith, C. H. Derry, J. H. Smith reported in person. G. W. Galley and G. N. Derry were sustained as district officers. C. Brindley, C. Loomis, C. H. Derry and J. H. Smith, together with the secretaries in their respective branches were sustained.

Resolved that after repeated admonition, those who dance, if they do not discontinue it, it will be made a test of fellowship in this district.

Preaching on Sunday by Chauncy Loomis, J. W. Smith and H. O. Smith.

Adjourned to meet at ten a. m., at Clear Water, Neb., January 8th, 1881.

LONDON DISTRICT.

A conference of the two branches composing this district was held at the Hall, Limehouse, England, Friday and Sunday, October 8th and 10th, 1880; Elder C. D. Norton, presiding.

Branch Reports:—Limehouse, present number 63, including 5 Elders, 4 Priests, 1 Deacon, and 53 lay members; baptized 3, removed 2, cut off 1. Upwards of thirty of the lay members are in a scattered condition and seldom, if ever, attend.

Elders Norton, Gerrard and Bradshaw; Priests Howarth, Tankard and Bradshaw; Teacher Furness reported. Book agent for branch reported £1 5s 4d, due to treasurer.

Lime Grove, (Hackney), present number 32, including 1 Elder, 4 Priests, 1 Deacon, and 26 lay members; baptized 1, excommunicated 1.

Priests W. Kendrick and T. Tubb reported.

Book agent reported £3 19s due T. Taylor.

Sunday.—The report of committee on ordination of Priest Kendrick to office of Elder, Bro. Joseph Kemp to office of Teacher, and Bro. John Kemp to that of Deacon, read and accepted. Verbal report of committee on ordination of Bro. Wm. Tankard to office of Deacon also accepted. Report of Sr. Penfold as superintendent of Sunday-school also accepted.

6 30.—Some excellent remarks were addressed to a good audience during the evening service, by Elders Norton, Gerrard and Bradshaw, Elder Millard from California, giving a very stirring and encouraging address.

Missions.—Priest Howarth was released from Southern Mission. Elder Bradshaw was sustained in Stratford Mission, associated with Priest Howarth. Wm. Kendrick (now Elder) and Priest Tubb were sustained in the Ponders' End, Enfield and Western Mission. Priest Crutchlow was sustained in the Eastern Mission. Elder Norton was sustained in the Southern Mission, to which he had been led of the Spirit. Priest Bradshaw was released from the Eastern Mission, to join his father in the Stratford one.

Resolved that we sustain Elder Taylor, of the European Mission, and the Presidents and Elders of both branches in London District, with the priesthood of the same in all righteousness.

After partaking of the sacrament, adjourned to the second Sunday in January, [9th], 1881.

CENTRAL KANSAS DISTRICT.

A conference convened at Fanning, Kansas, November 13th, 1880; Heman C. Smith, president pro tem; Daniel Munns, clerk pro tem.

Branch Reports.—Atchison 30 members; 3 removed by letter, 4 scattered. Centralia 20; 2 baptized. Good Intent 20. Soranton 22. Netawaka and Fanning not reported. White Cloud disorganized on account of removal of officers.

Elders Thos. Davis, G. George, D. Munns, Wm. Hawkins, Thos. Nutt and Heman C. Smith, and Priests H. Parker and J. Price reported in person, and J. B. Jarvis by letter.

Resolved, that Bro. Charles Herzog acted illegally in granting letters of removal to Bro. and sister B. B. Brackenbury.

Resolved that we in conference leave the matter in the hands of the Soranton Branch, provided that Bro. Jarvis receive a special witness of the Spirit as to the wisdom of ordaining the brother to the office of an Elder.

Bro. David Williams was sustained as president and Wm. Williams as clerk for the next three months.

Adjourned to meet at Netawaka, Kansas, February 12th and 13th, 1881.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS DISTRICT.

The above conference was held at Streator, La Salle county, Illinois, October, 16th and 17th, 1880; M. H. Foascutt, president; W. M. Walp, secretary, pro tem.

Branch Reports.—First Chicago, (first report), organized June 20th, 1880. Present number 44, including 2 Elders, 1 Teacher, 2 Deacons. Gain: by baptism, 30; by letters of removal, 13; by vote on membership in First Organization, 2. Loss: By letter of removal, 1. Ordinations: Teachers, 1; Deacons, 2.

Plano, 197; loss, by death, 1; married, 1. Misson 110. Streator 39. Ordinations; Priests 1, Teachers 1. Braidwood 79. Gain, by baptism, 5; loss, by removal, 4; by death, 2.

The Sandwich Branch was represented by I. L. Rogers; but no official report was received. From the following branches no word or report was received. If alive, they are requested to report at next conference; if dead, some who were witnesses of their death and its cause, are requested to send in an obituary notice, for the Church would not pass even its dead friends by unnoticed. These branches are Amboy, Pecatonica, Marengo, Batavia, Boone County and Leland, Illinois; Janesville and Burlington, Wisconsin.

The following brethren reported personally: I. L. Rogers as Bishop and locally; M. H. Forscutt as missionary and locally—had baptized 24 since last report. Seventies John S. Patterson—had baptized 5, and John H. Hansen, visiting brother from Kentucky. Elders J. S. Keir, J. Stanley and C. St. Clair. Priest A. Stewart.

The president urged the establishing and support of Sunday-schools, and presented the following resolution, which was spoken to by different brethren, and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that in the opinion of this conference, every branch, wherever practicable, should establish and sustain a Sunday-school, and report progress and standing to district conferences.

Resolved that this conference authorize the president to appoint to-days or protracted meetings in every branch that may desire them.

A vote of thanks was tendered J. S. Patterson for past labors, and he was requested to continue as circumstances may permit.

Committee appointed by Streator Branch reported engagement of the commodious Oriental Hall for services on Sunday, and the president declining to make appointments, conference by motion appointed J. H. Hanson to preach in Brunson's Hall, Saturday evening, John S. Patterson on Sunday afternoon, Mark H. Forscutt in Oriental Hall, Sunday morning and evening.

Conference adjourned to meet in Castle Hall, 619, West Lake Street, Chicago, February 12th, 13th and 14th, 1881.

Brethren visiting Chicago on business in early spring, are requested to try and make their visits at conference time, and join with us.

SOUTH EASTERN OHIO AND WESTERN VIRGINIA DISTRICT.

The above conference was held at Syracuse, Ohio, October 23d and 24th, 1880; Thomas Matthews, presiding; Edmund Thomas, clerk.

Branch Reports.—Syracuse, no change. Jackson Branch report was referred back to the branch for correction. Liberty Branch not reported. Lebanon Branch, no change.

Reports.—Elders Thomas Matthews, David Matthews, Sen., David Hopkins, Wm. T. Davis, John Harris, L. W. Torrence and Edmund Thomas; Priests Wm. T. Jones and Lewis Walters; Teacher Daniel Jones.

Bishop's Agent's Report.—"Balance last quarter 59 cents; received $1.65—total $2.24. Paid out $2.25. Balance due Agent, one cent." Thomas Matthews, agent.

After considerable discussion as to what are the rights of the Aaronic priesthood in a district conference, the following prevailed:

Resolved, that all officers be granted the privilege of free discussion on all questions coming before the conference; but the Aaronic priesthood to have no vote, only on the election of district officers.

L. R. Devore was elected district president. Edmund Thomas was continued district clerk.

Prayer and testimony meeting in the afternoon. Preaching by David Matthews, Jun., and David Hopkins, the former in the English, and the latter in the Welsh language.

7 30 p. m.—Resolved, that as a part of the Syracuse Branch violated the laws of the Church on the evening of July 19th, by placing an Elder to fill the Priest's calling, and a Priest to fill the Teacher's, to the entire exclusion of the rights of the Teacher, without showing any reason for so doing, such actions have a tendency to evil; therefore, this conference denounces such work, and orders that the laws be observed. (See Book of Cov. 17: 10, 11; 83: 21.)

Adjourned to Saturday, January 29th, 1881, at 2 p. m.

ALABAMA DISTRICT.

The above conference met at Pleasant Hill Branch, at 10 a. m., Saturday November 6th, 1880. The president being absent, F. P. Scarcliff by vote took the chair. W. D. Clark, clerk.

Branch Reports.—Butler 36; 4 baptized, 1 ordained. Flat Rock 17; 6 expelled. Lone Star, Macedonia and Pleasant Hill, not reported.

Bishop's Agent's Report.—On hand last report 25 cts. Freewill offerings received: Butler $16.25, Pleasant Hill $7.65—total $24.05. Paid to F. P. Scarcliff $11.25. Balance $12.80. Received on tithing $20.00. Total on hand $32.80. F. Vickery, Bishop's Agent.

Reports.—Elders G. T. Chute, J. F. McPherson, J. G. Vickery, F. Vickery, F. P. Scarcliff; Priest W. D. Clark; Teacher J. M. Pickens; Deacon A. Vickery. F. P. Scarcliff made a few remarks, giving a sketch of the labors of G. H. Graves among the colored race since last conference.

2 30 p. m.—Elder G. R. Scogin reported, also Priest W. Allen.

Resolved, that the Bishop's instructions to his agents are adopted as the law of this district.

Resolved that the Bishop's Agent give F. P. Scarcliff five dollars.

F. P. Scarciff, missionary, G. R. Scogin, president, W. D. Clark, clerk, and F. Vickery as Bishop's Agent, were each sustained; G. R. Graves was sustained as missionary to the colored race in this mission. At 6:30 p. m., Bro. G. R. Scogin feeling quite unwell, a prayer and testimony meeting was held.

Sunday, 11 a. m. and 2 p. m., preaching by F. P. Scarciff. At 6:30 p. m., prayer and testimony meeting.

Adjourned to meet at Flat Rock, Conecuh county, Alabama, February 12th and 13th, 1881.

WELSH MISSION.

The Semi-Annual Conference of the above mission was held at Aberaman, Wales, October 31st, 1880; J. R. Gibbs, president; B. Davies, clerk.

Book account from April 25th to October 28th, 1880, reported by J. R. Gibbs: Received from Llanelly branch £1 6s., Merthyr 16s., Aberaman 3s., E. Trimby 3s., on hand last report £11 3s 11½d.; total £13 11s 11½d. Paid D. Lewis for writing hymns 8s. Balance £13 3s 11½d.

Elders W. Morris, D. Williams, D. Davies, D. Meredith, D. Lewis, J. Griffiths, J. Morgans, R. Thomas, T. Smith, J. Lewis, D. Jenkins, P. Price, B. Davies, J. R. Gibbs, and Priest I. Evans, reported.

Officers present: 15 Elders, 1 Priest.

2 p. m.—The authorities of the Church in America were sustained; T. Taylor, president of the European Mission; T. E. Jenkins, of the Seventy and a Bishop's Agent; J. R. Gibbs, president of the Welsh Mission; A. N. Bishop, president of the Western District; J. E. Hughes to labor in North Wales; all the presidents of branches, with all the officers and Saints of the Mission.

Elder D. Lewis was then called to preach; after that the meeting was given free for testimony, when the Saints had cause to rejoice in the Lord.

5:30 p. m.—Brethren R. Thomas, B. Davies, P. Price and D. Jenkins bore their testimonies to the work of the Lord.

Adjourned to meet at Llanelly the last Sunday in April, [24th], 1881.

NORTH-EAST MISSOURI DISTRICT.

A conference met in Saints' Chapel, Bevier, Macon county, Missouri, November 13th, 1880. John Taylor and Edward L. Page, president and secretary, being absent, Robert Thrutchley was appointed president pro tem.; and David F. Winn, secretary pro tem., with Geo. Hicklin for assistant.

Branch Reports.—Hannibal 27; no change since last report. Bevier 109; baptized 5, received by certificate of baptism 1, received by letter 8, died 1. Salt River 30; baptized 6.

Financial Report.—“Balance on hand $138; received $560—total $698. Support of ministry $500; branch expenses 91 cents; balance $107.”

Report of Renick Branch sent back for correction.

Elders reported in person: C. Perry, D. D. Jones, J. F. Williams, E. Bennett, G. Hicklin, E. Rowland, (had baptized one), R. Thrutchley, (had baptized four); by letter: J. Taylor and J. T. Phillips. Priests J. Davies, F. Mussell and F. Winn. Deacon J. B. Thomas reported.

F. Winn and G. Hicklin were appointed a committee to examine Bishop's Agent's account and report thereon during conference.

Sunday, 9 a. m., met for prayer, and at 10:30 a. m. D. F. Winn occupied the stand for preaching and was followed by E. Rowland. At two o'clock p. m. met for prayer and testimony, the sacrament was administered, and the influence of the Spirit was enjoyed.

Committee to examine Bishop's Agent's accounts, reported as follows: “From March 1st to November 13th, 1880: Cash on hand $330, income since $41.65—total $449.50. Expended $33.85; balance $11.10.”

Report accepted and committee discharged.

G. Hicklin occupied the stand at one p. m., and preached with good liberty of the Spirit, on the resurrection.

Adjourned to meet at Bevier, Missouri, Saturday, February 12th, 1881.

Unless God be with you all your toil is vain.
Useful occupation is a pleasant pastime.

Miscellaneous.

OBITUARIES.—Obituary notices not exceeding one hundred words, about twelve lines, will be published free of charge; when exceeding one hundred words, five cents for each additional eight words (one line) will be charged; notices of prominent Church officials excepted. Money to accompany notice.

BORN.

WHITE.—To Bro. and Sr. D. C. White, of Newton, Iowa, November 1st, 1880, a son. “Out of the mouth of babes, the Lord has perfect praise.”

ROLLAND.—At Carbon, Wyo. Ter., March 10th, 1880, to Bro. Edward and Sr. Elizabeth Rolland, a daughter. She was blessed by Elder C. Derry, August 6th, 1880, and named Ida.

“God bless little Ida; while life shall endure,
May the angels encircle her round;
Keep her feet in the path of righteousness sure,
That her heart with His love may abound.
May His Spirit the spirit of Ida inspire,
His truth and salvation to know,
That her heart may be warmed with heaven-born fire,
And she serve him while here below.
When Ida has filled her number of days—
No matter if many, or few—
May she reign in the light of His glorious ray
And rejoice in the good and the true.”

DIED.

GRIMMETT.—Near Lander City, Sweetwater, county, Wyoming, October 3d, 1880, after a long and painful illness, Sr. Sarah, beloved wife of Bro. John Grimmert. Sr. Grimmert was born June 24th, 1818, at Twinning, Gloucestershire, England; and was baptized into the Church under Brigham Young in 1849, emigrated to Utah in 1855, where her sufferings and hardships were very great; but patiently borne as were all tribulations of her life. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church April 29th, 1877, by Elder Geo. M. Robinson, and has since been a faithful and consistent member. Her last moments were peaceful and her intellect quite active. She called her children around her and bade them all good bye; and after repeating a short prayer, she waited calmly for the end. Her life was such that she had no need to fear death, and when it came it found her ready. She was a true Latter Day Saint, a kind and loving mother, and a most excellent wife.

WARD.—On November 5th, 1880, in the city of Santa Fe, New Mexico, of rheumatic fever, Mamie, daughter of Charles R. and Sr. S. A. Ward, aged 17 months and 27 days. Funeral services by H. H. Hall.

BICKFORD.—At Wilton Center, Will county, Illinois, after an illness of only five days, Walter Stebbins Bickford, son of Bro. J. I. and Sr. N. M. Bickford, aged 7 years, 7 months, and 24 days.

MITCHEL.—At Reno, Nevada, October 9th, 1880, Bro. David, son of Sister Elizabeth Mitchel, aged 23 years. His death was caused by a fall while riding a fast horse. The horse stumbled and fell, falling upon him, and caused his death in a few hours. His body was brought to Carson City. He was well respected by all. Funeral service by Elder William Riddler.

ROGERS.—At Merthyr Tydvil, Wales, October 20th, 1880, very suddenly of disease of the heart, John Rogers, aged 56 years. He was the first that was baptized in the Reorganization in Wales, and his house was made a home for the first missionaries that came from America.

ALLEN.—At San Bernardino, Cal., November 9th, 1880, Bro. Richard Allen, Jun.; born January 20th, 1837, in Ireland. He came to this place from Australia in 1854; was baptized there, and re-baptized here in 1869, and ordained Teacher in 1870. He was noted for integrity and upright walk, and had thus gained a host of friends. He said he was entirely reconciled to depart, only that his friends wished him to remain; his “death was sweet,” as the Lord has promised to his people. His funeral was very largely attended; and on Sunday, 21st November, the occasion was improved by an appropriate and interesting discourse by Bro. D. S. Mills, from Rev. 14: 12, 13, to a very large and attentive congregation. Thus has passed to his reward another of Zion's sons.

DAVIS.—At Birmingham, England, August 8th, 1880, William Davis; a young, faithful and promising brother, left this vale of sorrow for a happier home. He is deeply lamented by his friends. May the Holy Spirit accompany his soul forever.

VANDRAN.—At Plano, Illinois, September 22d, 1880, of consumption, Bro. Lewis Vandran. He was born at Tiskilwa, Bureau county, Illinois, October 13th, 1851, and was at his death in his 29th year. He was a faithful, good man, conscientious and sympathetic, one who could be leaned upon as reliable to the extent of his ability. His funeral took place from the Saints' Chapel, Bro. F. G. Pitt preaching the sermon. He left a wife and one child.

BEAGLE.—At Independence, Mo., on the morning of November 7th, 1880, Sr. Sarah Jane, wife of Bro. Thomas Beagle, aged 27 years, 2 months and 23 days. Towards the close of her seven weeks' sickness, she expressed her complete satisfaction in view of approaching death, and in a short time, passed peacefully away to rest. Agreeably to her request, Bro. Joseph Luff preached the funeral discourse in the Saints' Chapel. Quite a number were present, and expressed their sympathy for the bereaved husband; may heaven comfort him, and all who with him mourn her loss.

NOTICES.

All members of the First Quorum of Elders desiring licenses, please enclose nine cents in stamps, and address J. R. Badham, Shenandoah, Page county, Iowa.

To the Elders and members of the Church of Jesus Christ comprising the Oregon and Washington Territory Mission:

Notice is hereby given, that a Conference of the Mission will be held at the Rann School House, in Grant county, Oregon, on the second Saturday and Sunday in February, [12th and 13th], 1881. All Saints belonging to this Mission are earnestly requested to report to me at that time, either in person or by letter, in order that a thorough organization of the Mission may be effected in time to be reported at the next General Conference. Address: J. C. Clapp, President of Mission, Prairie City, Grant county, Oregon.

To the Saints of the Massachusetts District:—Circumstances over which I have no control, render it advisable that the meeting of conference be changed from the third Saturday to the fourth Saturday in January, 22d, 1881, at Dennisport, Massachusetts, at 2:30 p. m. All the ministry are requested to be present, as the president will be prepared to report upon the practicability of selecting and maintaining a traveling Elder in the district. An effort will be put forth to have arrangements made with the Old Colony Railway Company to have those visiting conference to travel at reduced rates. The branches will be notified of the railroad terms as soon as possible.

Come, brethren and sisters, filled with the Spirit to do the Lord's work, for I am assured that a hearty welcome awaits you at Dennisport.

JOHN SMITH, District President.
