is an exhibition of direct ingratitude to this free land, and of itself is a sign of hostility which will perpetually prejudice the people who love the Republic against them, and will, as they increase in numbers and become a disturbing balance of power, lead to just such troubles as they experienced before they were forced to turn their backs upon civilization and seek a place of rest behind the ramparts of a double chain of mountains and with the desert for a defense in front. It is childish for them to declare that the men of the United States are their enemies. know very well that among all the nations of the earth the people of the United States are the most generous. It is child-ish for them to say that there are bad men here who seek to despoil them, for they know that it has been in their own power any day for years, without any other sacrifice than to come within the laws, to silence every voice of complaint and at the same time to double the value of their They know further own possessions. that the complaints have been just, so just that had they the same power to execute their edicts that the United States Government has, they would pursue such defiance on the part of others as they have manifested against necessary laws, with confiscation, banishment and death. But this is neither here nor there. The present is to be dealt with, and with a directness that can no longer be turned aside, the question of what to do is presented to them. We tell them in all kindness that their only hope of retaining either prestige or power is through throwing off that which in their creed is a menace to the Nation's peace and a reproach to American homes. If they do not, their organization will be torn in sunder and crushed from without. They owe it to the innocent men, women and children of Utah to either make the surrender bravely or to submit the question to a free vote of their people. In the meantime, men involved as was Bishop Sharp, should reflect that there is nothing between them and their God except their own consciences, and that there is no duty so high as that they owe to their country, and that the second highest duty is to their families, and they should act accordingly.

—Salt Lake Tribune.

THE SLAV OUTBREAK.

THE situation of affairs in Eastern Europe is critical. The sick man's symptoms are decidedly worse. Surface indications point to his approaching demise and a speedy administration upon his property. The complication in which he has become involved through the union of Bulgaria and Roumelia is now still further increased by an uprising of Albanians against his authority, a movement of the Servians to get back their old territory, and an agitation in Macedonia which may lead to revolt. Greece is looking for an extension of her territory to the northward and Austria is about ready to annex the Provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina over which she has maintained a protectorate since the the meeting of the Berlin Congress.

The nucleus of all this agitation is the union of Roumelia and Bulgaria. It was in every respect a natural one. The majority of the people of Roumelia are Bulgarians and Christians. Identical in race, religion, and language, it is not strange that they have at last come together. There was also a sympathy between them born of common suffering at the hands of "the unspeakable Turk." Both provinces suffered terribly during the war with Russia. Their villages were burned, thousands of them were massacred, hundreds of their women were outraged by the Turks, and thousands more fled from the country to escape their brutalities. The success of the union will arouse all the other provinces, and unless the Great Powers intervene, Turkey will either have to give up a large portion of her territory or fight Bulgaria, Roumelia, Servia, Albania, and Greece,

She has already appealed to the signatory Powers, but will they help her? Clearly enough the treaty has been disregarded in this union. The thirteenth and fifteenth articles read as follows:

"There is formed to the south of the Balkans a province which will take the name of Eastern Roumelia, and which shall remain under the direct military and political authority of his Imperial Majesty, the Sultan, subject to conditions of administrative autonomy. It shall have a Christian Governor-General.

"His Majesty" the Sultan shall have the right to provide for the defense of the inland and maritime frontiers of the province by raising fortifications on these frontiers and by keeping troops there. Internal order shall be maintained in Eastern Rou-melia by a native gendarmerie, assisted by a local militia.'

The sixteenth article also authorizes the Sultan to send troops into Roumelia to protect his authority from external or internal attack, after making a statement of the reasons to the Ambassadors of the Powers. The Sultan has already done this, and, it is now announced, will endeavor to retake the province by force of arms. Will the Powers intervene? Russia certainly will not, as there can be no doubt that she is behind the scenes and arranged the revolution. Germany is not likely to, for the Prince of Bulgaria is German in his sympathies and a nephew of the Grand Duke of Hesse. England is not likely to. If the Tories should favor such a policy they would be overwhelmingly defeated at the forthcoming election, especially since the recent rejection of the English proposition for an alliance by the Turks. It is not likely that France will take any position favorable to Turkey unless the other Powers do. Again, if Russia, Austria, and Germany decline to help Turkey enforce her rights under the treaty, it is improbable that England will do anything. If the Powers therefore leave the matter alone, Turkey will lose her provinces. She can not stand up against the combination that would be made against her. The affair, however, is one which can not admit of much delay, and we shall soon see how much binding force there is in the treaty of Berlin, which at the time was considered such a triumph for Disraeli. There may be some formal protests, but it looks as if the power of the corrupt and brutal Turk had been at last broken.

THE HABIT OF FRETTING.

"Power works easily, but fretting is a perpetual confession of weakness," is a perpetual confession of weakness, quotation I shall never forget, as it was repeated to me years ago, when in a moment of childish discouragement, I began to fret and fume over a trival matter.

The idea of being considered a weak minded woman was very repulsive to me, and by a desperate determination I conquered the tendency to fret, and thus prevented what might have become a life long annoyance to myself and my friends.

But I believe there are cases in which it is almost impossible to overcome this evil. I allude just now to cases where fretting is constitutional, having been inherited. from a weak father and mother.

I also believe that fretting is induced in infants by improper management, even where there is no hereditary tendency. The least fretful children I have ever seen are those who have been trained to regular habits of eating, sleeping and outdoor exercise. By having their regular hours they knew just what to expect, consequently did not worry and fret. I have seen babies in arms who knew just as well when their dinner hour had arrived as if they had been able to tell the time by the clock, and if their wants were then by any means overlooked, they would soon begin to fret, and justly, too.

To the men and women who fret I would suggest that your occupation may be utterly unsuited to you, perhaps beyond your power; if so, choose something humbler that can be done without the friction that is wearing you out. Overwork also causes a tendency to fret. Depression of spirits and lack of courage often follow over exertion, and a habit of fretting is soon established. A fretful, peevish invalid will make a whole household uncomfortable.

"Fretters are generally workers," I heard some one remark the other day. Yes, but they are not the most effective workers; they make a great fuss over the work they do, while a person who goes calmly and sensibly to work will accomplish better results, to say nothing of the comfort he gives to those around him. I have frequently noticed that fretting and over neatness are quite likely to accompany each other. I have a case in mind in which the mother of a family was so excessively neat that her children were not allowed to sit anywhere except in the kitchen, lest they might disturb the precise order of arrangements, or soil the immaculate curtains and tidies in the parlor; indeed, she scarcely allowed herself to enter the sacred precincts except to make them more immaculate. But she was a champion fretter. Indeed, it would not be unjust to call her a virago. Beginning with nothing especial to fret about, she soon had something, as her husband and sons went to ruin about as quickly as ruin is generally accomplished.

Frettuiness is generally conceded to be a feminine quality exclusively. Most women are employed in domestic duties which teem with details, in themselves despicable for their littleness, but which can not be neglected without involving the great whole. Indeed, I firmly believe that it requires greater strength of brain to conduct (without friction) the machinery of a household than is required in many great business enterprises. There are few houses where the domestic machinery works without friction, hence the fretfulness of many women.

But a fretful man! Can anything be worse? It is so belittling for a man to fret; it detracts so much from his dignity, that we can not respect or excuse him. One never knows where to be for him. If he rises ill natured in the morning some one must be the victim of his spite, and an innocent person is generally the one selected. An hour after, perhaps, he is good nature itself, and is wonderfully suave in his manner. If every victim of such a specimen of humanity would require an apology before being friendly with him again, I believe that such conduct would soon be stopped; but instead, the wronged one accepts the altered manner as a proof of sorrow, and the matter is overlooked.

But, on the subject of fretful men I can speak from personal observation and suffering. I once bought a cottage in a charming little village; the location was healthful, the neighborhood to all appearances good, and the cottage in prime order and for sale at a bargain. I had not been installed in the house twenty-four hours before the cause of its cheapness was apparent. I had a fretful neighbor, a near neighbor, too. This time it was not the woman of the house, but the man.

I entreat anyone who has fallen into this distressing habit to break it off immediately. If fretful words rise to the lips, check them before they are uttered. If you are tired, rest; if in ill health, consult a physician; if you are in debt, curtail expenses and discharge the debt.

But if you must fret, fret to yourself; it may wear you out sooner, but that would be better than the other course—to relieve yourself and wear out your friends.

Conserence Minutes.

SOUTH-EASTERN ILLINOIS.

The above district conference convened at Pleasant Ridge School-house, in the Dry Fork Branch, on Saturday, September 5th, 1885. I. A. Morris, president, J. F. Thomas, clerk. Branch reports.—Brush Creek 88, five added by baptism; I. A. Morris, president, J. W. Morris, clerk. Dry Fork 30; J. F. Thomas, president; R. Lappin, clerk. Tunnell Hill 81, 1 baptism, 2 died; E. Webb, president, W. A. Kelley, clerk. Elders' reports -T. P. Green, H. Walker, J. F. Hensen (baptized 2), G. H. Hilliard (baptized 3), E. Webb, I. M. Smith, I. A. Morris (baptized 3), M. R. Brown, J. F. Thomas. The above were all present, and report encouragingly that the prospects were never better for the spread of the work. Bro. J. W. Stone reported by letter. Preaching on Saturday evening by E. Webb, assisted by T. P. Green. Sunday forenoon preaching by I. M. Smith. In the afternoon sacrament meeting, in charge of Brn. Webb and Thomas; at the close of this meeting we listened to Bro. Hilliard on the temporal affairs. Preaching in the evening by Bro. Hensen. Adjourned to meet at Springerton, Illinois, the Friday night before the third Sunday in December, 1885.

FAR WEST.

Conference of the above district convened with the Delana Branch, Missouri, August 29th, 1885. J. T. Kinnaman in the chair; J. S. Constance and W. Kelly, secretaries. The president reported that the Starfield Branch expressed a desire to go on, so they were not disorganized. Elders J. T. Kinnaman, T. T. Hinderks, W. Lewis, J. D. Craven, D. E. Powell, J. H. Merriam (by proxy), T. Worrel, J. Drown, W. Summerfield, R. L. Ware, A. J. Seeley, J. H. Snider and E. W. Cato, reported. Priests A. W. Head, C. P. Faul, W. Kelley (baptized 1), D. R. Baldwin; and Teacher W. Wells, reported. Branch reports:-German Stewartsville 59; received by letter 2. Delana 72; received by letter 1, removed by letter 7, expelled 1. Pleasant Grove 51; expelled 2. Stewartsville 72; removed 1. Starfield 29; died 2. Stewartsville City referred back for correction. Center Prairie sent by mail, but failed to arrive. Other branches, no reports. Committee on names of Stewartsville Branches reported. On motion, the committee were continued, with instructions to report at the next conference. The appeal of F. W. Curtis was taken up, and referred to a court of three, appointed by the body as follows:

J. H. Snider, E. W. Cato and A. J. Seely, with instructions to report during this conference. Their report sustained former action. Resolved, that when this conference adjourns it does so to meet with Stewartsville City Branch, the last Saturday in November, (28th), 1885. A petition was presented by two sisters of the Eureka Branch, soliciting aid for the erection of a church. On motion a committee of two were appointed to assist the sisters in soliciting means. Preaching in the evening by R. L. Ware. Sabbath morning prayer meeting, in charge of D. E. Powell and A. W. Head. Preaching in the forenoon by Wm. Lewis, Sacrament meeting in the afternoon. Evening preaching by W. Kelley.

NODAWAY.

Conference convened at Sweet Home, Nodaway county, Missouri, September 26th, 1885. J. W. Gillen chosen to preside pro tem.; A. J. Moore, clerk pro tem. Branch reports: Ross Grove 22; 1 baptized, 1 received, 2 removed, 1 died. Platte 74; 7 received, 8 removed. Objections were made to one of the above (H. W. Smith) not being entitled to a letter, and A. B. Moore, James Thomas and Ole Madison were appointed to examine the case. They brought in a decision that giving him a letter before his making proper restitution for wrong done was premature, and requesting the Independence Branch not to receive said brother till he does do so. This was adopted. Official reports: Elders Ole Madison, J. Thomas, Wm. Powell (baptized 2), C. Christensen, A. B. Moore; Priest A. Jensen; Teacher C. Nelson. Bro. W. Hawkins sent in his resignation as president of district. It was accepted, and thanks for his services were voted; also the district clerk was authorized to issue Bro. Hawkins a letter of removal. J. Thomas was chosen as president, and J. Flory sustained as clerk of district. Preaching Saturday evening by A. B. Moore. On Sunday forenoon J. W. Gillen preached a funeral sermon. Prayer meeting in the afternoon. Preaching in the evening by J. W. Gillen. Adjourned to meet at Ross Grove, on Saturday and Sunday before the full moon in February, 1886.

Miscellaneous.

The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

DIED.

Gregson.—At Gregson's Springs, Deer Lodge Valley, Idaho, September 11th, 1885, Adell, daughter of George and Sarah Jane Gregson. She was born October 19th, 1882.

We laid our darling down to sleep,
B neath the valley sod;
With hearts that break, and eyes that weep,
Commend her soul to God.
We strive to hope the time may come,
Our darling we may meet,
And feel her ours, again at home,
In happiness complete.
But vain our hope, unless above,
The high and great unknown,
Shall see the sadness of our love,

And give us to our own.

NEEDHAM.—At Wheeler's Grove, Iowa, Elsie, infant daughter of T. N. and E. E. Needham, September 14th, 1885; aged one year and seven months. Funeral sermon by Elder Henry Kemp, Thou art gone, dear Elsie, to thy beautiful home,

To dwell with bright seraphs so fair; May God give us grace, that we may endure And meet with our dear one there.

HARDY.—At Plum Hollow, Iowa, May 10th, 1885, of consumption, Sarah Ella, daughter of Bro. Isaac and Sr. Amanda Jane Hardy, aged 13 years, 5 months. She bore her afflictions patiently till the last. Funeral sermon by Henry Kemp.

> Thou has left us lonely and sad, But thou art gone to rest; As we mourn, our hearts are made glad, Knowing that thou art blessed.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN MISSION.

The situation in the Rocky Mountain Mission, and especially in Utah, is to some extent differerent from all other mission fields. The labor to be performed lies at present mostly with those who have accepted the latter day work. Those who have received the work and the spirit of it, with its broad and liberal principles, would at once conclude that it would be an easy matter to meet and reason with such a people, even if they have incorporated other principals in their system which are in direct opposition to moral culture and spiritual advancement in the divine life.

We are laboring in the midst of a people who claim to be the chosen of the Lord, the leaders of whom are looked upon as the "Lord's anointed," who hold "keys" by which the portals of life may be entered, or by turning the "key," the way of life is closed, and as a consequence none can enter in. It is written of the Jews "that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea. And did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual rock that followed them; and that rock was Christ." But afterwards the priests caused the people to err. "Ye have caused many to stumble at the law: ye have corrupted the covenant of Levi, saith the Lord of hosts."

Gideon made an Ephod, and put it in his city Ophrah, and all Israel went thither a whoring after it;" and it became a snare to Gideon and his people. Latter Day Israel, in the "mountains of Ephraim," have set up an abomination, and it has turned the people from the path of life and peace, and led them into a snare. They have corrupted the covenant of life; the sunshine of heaven has become darkened; the still small voice of the Master is no longer heard in the land; they no longer drink of that "spiritual rock;" their vision is closed, and they are walking in the night. They have transgressed the laws of the land, and "broken the everlasting covenant." As the gospel message of "peace on earth and good will to men" was proclaimed to the Jews, so is our mission to this people. That they again may be led back to the light of the glorious gospel of the Son of God, that by hearing and reading they may seek for the "old paths and walk therein." The main object and desire now is to reach the ear by all legal methods.

Therefore, we appeal to all the Saints that can and will aid us in this good work, to do so. Let all that have friends or relatives living in the vallies of the mountains subscribe at once for the Advocate, Herald, or Expositor, -one or all of them, -as they may feel able to do, and send them to every city, hamlet and settlement, especially in Utah, Arizona and Idaho; and let the Scandinavian Saints do the same with Sanhedens Banner, and they will be like angel's visits just now. They will open doors for the Elders, and prepare the people to walk out of darkness and the twilight, into the coming day. It may be urged that many will not read them. I grant that; but very many will. Let us not be fearful; but trusting. The brighter and better day is now dawning on our work in Utah, after experiencing a long and dreary night; while the fierce tempest is raging without, we anxiously wait for the coming day. We have watched the storm-clouds gather, and expend their forces, while we stood almost helpless, waiting for the calm, that we might arise and at once repair the breach, and as the dark clouds break and roll away we hail the omens with joy and gladness. To-day the Reorganized Church is rising out of that spiritual tempest that has so long been like a pall; from all parts of the mission fields the light is going forth, giving cheer and gladness to the Saints; and when the soul-destroying system of polygamy and its kindred evils have been suppressed, then we shall possess the "key" to evangelize the world. Brethren, send the silent messengers, and let them go to your kindred and friends,-the cost will be but little, and great and glorious will be the result. In this way you will aid the mission and bless the people.

R. J. Anthony,

In charge of Rocky Mountain Mission. Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 28th, 1885.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE -) BY THE (-

Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church, at their Publishing House in

LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,

And sent Free of Postage at prices named.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

This is the official paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. It is explanatory of the faith of the Church, and promulgates the teachings of original Mormonism in contradistinction to Utah Mormonism. It contains correspondence from different parts of the world, giving accounts of the great progress of the Church, and setting forth the dealings of God with his people. Published every Saturday, sixteen large pages. Price, $2.50 per year. Joseph Smith, Editor.

THE SAINTS' ADVOCATE.

Published monthly in the interest of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, and in the special interest of the Utah Mission of said Church. W. W. Blair, Editor. Terms 50 cents per year in advance, unless otherwise provided for. Subscriptions earnestly solicited; subscribe for yourselves and for friends deceived by the latter day apostasy.

FORSCUTT AND SHINN DISCUSSION.

J. Shinn affirms "The Bible Teaches the Coming of Christ to Judge the World is now past." M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible Teaches the Literal Resurrection of the Body from the Grave." Paper covers, 194 pages.... 35

mp A Cons
No. 1.—Mountain of the Lord's Hou	se, 8 pages; 15c.
a dozen, 100 for	doz., per 100 1 50
No. 2.—Iruth Made Maniest; 200. a No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd No. 4.—Epitone of Faith and Doctri and the Kirtland Temple Suit; 56 per 100, 10c. for 250, $1 for 500, per 1 No. 5.—The Gospel; No. 5.—The "One Baptism;" its Pre-Requisites, and Design.—and minister: 16 vase: 25c. per dozen.	5c. a doz., 100 40
No. 4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctri	ne of the Church
per 100, 10c, for 250, $1 for 500, per 1	. per dozen, zoc. .000 1 75
No. 5.—The Gospel;	price same as No. 4.
No. 6The "One Baptism;" its	Mode, Subjects,
minister: 16 page: 25c per dozen	per 100 1 75
No. 7 Who Then Can Be Saved; 50	. a dozen, 1001 75
minister; 16 page; 25c. per dozen, No. 7.—Who Then Can Be Saved; 5c No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; 9 No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a S	25c. a doz., 1001 75
No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Spoint; 20 pages; 30c. per dozen, pp. No. 10.—The Narrow Way; 8 p.; 15c. No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; 30c. No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; 25c. a No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Origital Church; 20c. a dozen, per 100	er 100
No. 10The Narrow Way; 8 p.; 15c	. a dozen, 100 for 1 10
No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; 30c.	a dozen, 1002 25; 25c. a doz., 100 1 75
No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; 25c.	dozen, 100 for . 1 75
No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; 5c. a c	lozen, per 100 40
Church: 20c, a dozen, per 100	nai Tenet of the
No. 17 The Successor in the Prop	hetic Office and
Presidency of the Church; 25c. a d	ozen, 100 for1 75
No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; 15. No. 20.—The "One Body:" or the Cunder the Apostleship and unde 12 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for	Church of Christ
under the Apostleship and unde	r the Apostasy;
12 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for
12 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for No. 21.—Truths by Three Witnesses No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; 15c. No. 23.—Baptism; 10 pages; 20c. a d	; 3c. a doz., 100 15 a dozen, 1001 10
No. 23.—Baptism; 10 pages; 20c. a d	ozen, 100 for 1 25
No. 24.—The Kingdom of God; 5c. a No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; 5c. a	dozen, 100 for 40 lozen, 100 for 40
No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's Ho	ise: 4 pages: 5c.
a dozen, per 100	40
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; 20c No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection	. a doz., 100 for1 40
trine and Covenants; 5c. a dozen,	100 for 40
trine and Covenants; 5c. a dozen, No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mor	mon; 15 cents a
No. 39.—Origin of the Book of Mor dozen, per 100. No. 31.—What is Truth? and True an Evangelical Church? Also, the ple Snit. Per dozen 5c., 100 for ; 500 for $1, 1000 for. No. 32.—Which is the Church? 5c. No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-E dozen, 100 for	Orthodoxy9 and
an Evangelical Church? Also, th	e Kirtland Temple Suit. Per dozen 5c., 100 for	25c., 250 for 50c.,
No 32 — Which is the Church 9 5c
No. 36 The Spaulding Story Re-E	xamined; 20c. a dozen, 100 for
A Memorial to Congress; 8 pages; 1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Rest	5c. a dozen, 1001 10 crrection: 32 ns-ges; 6c. each, per dozen Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100.
ges; 6c. each, per dozen. Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100. An assortment of Tre COMPLETE SET OF	TRACTS.
Round is Limp Cloth turned in
NI COLTANDO	ITO:
MISCELLANEO The Problem of Human Life, Here	and Harasttar hw
A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in c	loth boards1 50
A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in c Universalism Against Itself, by A.	Wilford Hall; in cloth boards, 336 pages Josephus, complete in I vol., librar, Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the cloth boards, 5 vols.	vleather 350
Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the	Roman Empire,
cloth boards, 5 vols.
Baldwin's Ancient America. (Illust)	ourds, 2 vois4 Od
Mosheim's Church History, cloth b Baldwin's Ancient America, (Illustra Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in	one, leather 4 00
The Koran, library leather. Gieseler's Ecclesiastical History, fre cloth boards, 5 vols	A.D. 1 (111 1894) 10 M
cloth boards, 5 vols. The Ecclesiastical History of Eus- Bishop of Cæsarea, in Palestine Cruden's Complete Concordance of The Bible Text Book Apocryphal New Testament.	ebius Pamphilus,
Bishop of Cæsarea, in Palestine	cloth boards 2 00
The Bible Text Book	ыне Биоге, слоти. 1 78 1 00
Apocryphal New Testament	1 68
Brown's Concordance of the Bible .
Brown's Concordance of the Bible. Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald siz Five Quires of Note Paper, 120 shee five Quires of Note Paper. better of	ts
Five Quires of Note Paper, better of	ıvalit y
JOSEPH SMITH THE PROP PROGENITOR	HET, AND HIM
Muslin Boards, 312 pages, by Lucy S	o. Smith 71
Leather Binding
HESPERIS.
Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pa	ges, fancy cloth, gilt edges
VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMIT
Discoveries of Ancient American Re	cords and Relics.
with the statement of a Conve others; paper covers, 48 pages	rted Jew, and of paper corers, to pages	Δ

LIFE OF JOSEPH THE PROPHET, HISTORY OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH, AND AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF JOSEPH SMITH.

In Clotb, full gilt finished, very handsome 2 20
This book contains 827 pages of large, clear reading matter; also, three very fine Steel Engravings, and a fac simile of the Autograph of Joseph the Prophet and Emma, and of Joseph Smith; also, Steel Engraving of Hyrum Smith. A complety history of the Church up to 1880.

TRACTS IN GERMAN.
Tracts in the German Language may be had of Bro.
Ad. Richter, Burlington, Jowa: The Baptism, 5 cts.; the Repentance, 5 cts.; the Principles of the Gospel, 6 cents;
the Epitome of Faith, 2c; the Sixth Trumpet, a fity-four page pamphlet, 25c. These prices include postage.

100	CERTI	FICATES	AND R	EPORT	s.
Branch St
Annual St
Branch Fi	nancial	Reports, 1	oer dozen			. 80
Certificate
Certificate	of Ren	toval, per	dozen			. 20
Marriage	Certifica	tes, per de	ozen			· 25
and the second		CONCE	OB 7103	·τ

By T. W. Smith, 40 pages, 10cts each, per dozen..... 1 00

www.LatterDayTruth.org

HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith the Prophet Sheep or Library binding	* #1 0 5
RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also, a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth	10
CONCORDANCE TO BOOK OF COVENANTS. An enlarged new edition; paper covers, 32 pages 1	0
BOOK OF MORMON. Roan, sprinkled edges	- 25 50
DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS. Sprinkled Sheep, or Library	- 25 90
THE SAINTS' HARP—HYMN BOOK. lmitation Morocco, marbled edges	ام ان ان
BRANCH RECORDS. Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages 2 C	- 100
DISTRICT RECORDS. Printed and bound similar to Branch Records3 (- ю
Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with	25 25
No. 496.—pack of 96 for	25 20 10 70 25
MANUEN A DADONER

WANTED A PARTNER

With fifteen hundred or two thousand dollars, to buy one-half interest in a well established and paying business. None but reliable men who can give good recommendations need apply. I prefer a brother in the church. Address, with your own hand writing, Robert Johns, 605 Illinois Avenue, Peoria, Illinois. 3oct4t

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L. F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville, Mo., and have always found it fair: square and honest in all its transactions:

T. T. Hinderks, Thomas McKee,
G. W. Wilcox, Alexander McCallum,
S. L. Blake, James L. Blake,
W. N. Boothe, Robert Jones,
The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men who-e recommendation are worth something.

Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands. showing lands.

COME AND SEE OUR PAPER ALL

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS. Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Hansen & Walker's Drug Store.

A book of 100 pages.

A book of 100 pages.

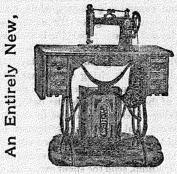

The best book for an advertiser to consult contains lists of newspapers and estimates of the cost of advertising. The advertiser who wants to spend one dollar, finds in it the information he requires, while for him who will invest one hundred thousand dollars in advertising, a scheme is indicated which will meet his every requirement, or can be made to do so by slight changes easily arrived at by correspondence. 149 editions have been issued. Sent, post-paid, to any address for 10 cents. Write to GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU, (10 Spruce St. Printing House Sq.), New York.

J. H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

THE HOWE MACHINE CO. AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

EASY - RUNNING - SEWING - MACHINE.

-IT HAS-

The Most Room under the Arm.
The Best Self-Setting Needle.
The Largest Bobbin. The Easiest Shuttle to Thread.

The Most Perfect Tension.

The Most Reliable Feed,

The Most Perfect Take-Up.

The Best Bobbin Winder.

-IT IS

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME.

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

Agents Wanted by Robert Johns

(Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in

INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL, AND PASTELL.

Also, manufacturer of

BED SPRINGS.

THESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or wish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Catalogue, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fail for those who will work diligently.

IF YOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue, anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handlings Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 1026s when packed) for only 97c.. IRON-HEATER included for $1.30. to any one who will act as a gent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3.50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a

Outfit, Picture

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait. (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only $8c. Catalogue free.

Address ROBERT JOHNS,

PEORIA, ILLINOIS. (Successor to Johns & Ordway.) In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY JOHN SHIPPY, DR.

Dental Surgeon,

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Rallroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Gov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison or Kansas City. It traverses all of the six Great States,

IOWA, ILLINOIS. MISSOURI.

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO With branch lines to their important cities and towns. It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver, Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis, Chicago and Dubuque Chicago and Sloux City, Peoria and Council Bluffs, Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omáha. St. Louis and St. Paul, St. Louis and Rock Island, St. Louis and Chicago, Kansas City and Denver Kansas City and St. Paul, Kansas City and Omaha, Kansas City and Burlington.

Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points ith Through Trains to and from points located on its hands, Italia to aid non points located on the branches.

At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada.

It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

HENRY B. STONE, PERI Ass't Gen'! Manager, CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass, Agent,

>BUSINESS≪ = The Davenport Business College

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught. Bookeeping, by single and double entry; Business Arithmetic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circulars address

DUNCAN & HAWKS. Bayennard. Low.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed David Dancer, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANGER; communications and articles to the EDITOR.

THE SAINTS' HERAL

"Hearken to the Word of the Lord: for There Shall Not any Man Among you Have save it be One on the Concubines He Shall Have None."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"We Believe that One Man should have One Wife, and One Woman but One Husband: Except in Case of De." when Either 18 AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 32.—Whole No. 650.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 24, 1885.

No. 43.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success. Entered at the Post Office at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa, as second class matter.

Joseph Smith W. W. BLATR

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Lamoni, Iowa, October 24, 1885.

BRO. JOSIAH ELLS

Of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, peacefully departed this life in Wheeling, W. Va., at 5:43 p.m., on the 15th inst., after a somewhat protracted illness. This we learn by telegram from Bro. R. S. Salyards, to whom we have written for items, and in due time we trust a suitable obituary notice will appear in these col-A good Saint is gathered to Christ and the spirits of the just.

THE PRESS.

ONE of the causes why Bishop H. B. Clawson and others took the course they did when arraigned before the United States Court for an infingement of the law against the practice of polygamy, is found in the following sentence in his statement to the judge, when pleading guilty to the charge of unlawful co-habitation, September 28th, 1885.

"If I make my promises, so far as regards the future, I am astracised. I am looked down upon. I am dishonored in the community among my brethren that I respect and honor-and among all honorable men."

The promises here referred to, those which he declined to make, were that he would obey the law himself, and not counsel others to break it; precisely the same promises Bishop John Sharp made upon his arraignment before the same court for a similar offense.

Bishop Clawson knew the nature of the upon him. It had already manifested it-self as the associated power of redemption self in the case of Bishop John Sharp. It was presented in the Descret News, whose chief editor had run from the prosecution which he left Bishop Sharp, Clawson, and his own associate in the editorial rooms of the News, J. H.- Nickolson, to meet and endure. He knew the men who shaped the public opinion of the church to which he belonged. He knew the scorpion's whip that they wielded. He knew the character of the men with whom he was associated, and the code by which they measured honor. But when he presumed to say that he would be "looked down upon" and "ostracised" by "all honorable men," he spoke of what he did not know. His compeer in the Bishop's office, John Sharp, may be presumed to know as well what honorable conduct in such an emergency would be, as Mr. Clawson did; and his action was different. His thought concerning honorable action was of a different sort. The estimate placed upon the opinion of their brethren was either not the same, or the courage of the one was much superior to the other. The one dared to do what his judgement told him was the best to be done, the other dared not face the opinion of those who would ostracise him. The same course was open to both. Both had the same, or similar opportunities to know what might be thought of what they did elect to do. Both had similar reasons to expect censure or commendation from the same persons, and the same public opinion; yet how different their action. one elected to obey the laws of his adopted country, and promise future obedience on his own part, and his counsel to others not to break the law. The other will not promise either of these things.

The News, it is to be presumed, is the exponent of the opinion and temper of the church to which both these men belong. Each has had opportunity to learn alike the principles taught by the public and private teachers of the church. Each has had time to examine and determine upon those things from which public opinion is formed. How then shall those withostracism that would be brought to bear out, and to whom the church presents it- church, which that paper is supposed to and salvation to men, estimate the treatment meted to these men by their associate churchmen. To those without the conduct of the man the church organ denounces is more correct and honorable than that of the one that organ applauds. Both plead guilty to the charge of having violated the law; one admits the guilt and promises to observe the law he had broken; the other admits the guilt but refuses promise to obey in future.

There is but one final outcome to this whole affair. Obedience to the law will be secured; either by the return of the people to the principles of the church as those principles prevailed at the first, in which correct obedience to the law was enjoined, and a consequent abandonment of that which has caused disregard and breaking of the law; or by the continued prosecution and punishment of offenders.

It is time that the large percentage of men in the Utah church who are not now and those who have not been inculpated in the practice of polygamy, together with the lawful wives of those who are inculpated, and who desire freedom from its thralldom, should insist that this factious minority shall cease from the pursuit of that which has brought naught but disaster in its train.

The effect of the diatribes of the church organ, and the fulminations of the church pulpit, against those who have acknowledged their guilt and who promised to heed the laws hereafter, has been to send men before the court in undue dread of the party scourge; the pen of the press. The men who have, up to date, been in charge of the News, editorially, are both polygamists; hence bitter against the law and its administrators. They belong to the "two per cent" number of the population, and not to the great majority; and it is a rough comment upon the common sense of the greater number, that so small a part of the community should be so long permitted to lampoon the larger and more conservative portion.

If the News Publishing Company would best serve the interests of the have been designed and continued to represent, it would select as successors to the men now controlling its editorial department,—one of whom is away from his post to avoid arrest, and the other under conviction for crime,—men from that portion of the church membership who are not liable to arrest, whose lives, irrespective of their belief, are not contaminated with the practice of plural marriage; and whose judgments, for that reason, might be uninfluenced by the knowledge of implied guilt at least. Men who might possibly hold kindlier feelings towards those who differed from them in opinion and practice. The practical polygamic element in the Mormon Church has so long held the reins and the whip that they have crowded the institution to the verge of ruin; and unless from within or without, arise those who will stay the mad driving, desperate ruin must inevitably ensue.

In this connection it is perhaps as well to notice what Judge Zane asserts in his remarks at the time Mr. Clawson was sentenced to a fine of three hundred dollars and costs of suit and six months' imprisonment in the Penitentiary; he said:

"You state, as a reason for your present course, that you formed the relations for which you are now to be punished thirty years ago, and that you then believed it was right.

"A man's beliefs do not justify a wilfull violation of the law. It appears to be the opinion of at least some of the members of the sect to which you belong, that polygamy was lawful previous to the Edmunds Law and the law of 1862. There never has been a time in the United States, anywhere, that polygamy was lawful. Probably the greatest commentator upon the common law who has ever lived, more than a hundred years ago, in commenting upon the common law (which has been in force in this Territory since it has been acquired by the United States), after referring to the disabilities which prevent the contract of legal marriage, used this language:

"The first of these legal disabilities is a prior marriage-having another husband or wife living-in which case, besides the penalties consequent upon it as a felony, the second marriage is, to all intents and purposes, void: polygamy being condemned, both by the law of the New Testament and the policy of all States, especially in these northern climates,' and then refers to a remark of Justinian condemning polygamy. And, it is believed that under the laws of Mexico, before this Territory was ever acquired by the United States, polygamy was not recognized. It was unlawful, and at the time you state you formed these relations the law prevented you from doing it. When you formed them they were utterly void—as if they had never been contracted. The second wife in the eye of the law, was nothing more than a concubine, and the children borne of these relations were bastards, The law condemned it and principle has condemned it in the United States."

at no time has polygamy been a lawful | practice within the jurisdiction of the United States. The Territory acquired from Mexico, of which Utah was a part, was up to the time of its acquisition by the United States under the institutions of the Mexican Government, which in the domestic relation came from their foster mother, the Catholic Church, and were monogamic. There could have been no appreciable interim between the occupation of the ceded territory by the Mexican Government and that of the United States; in which even citizens of a neutral nation could have acquired independent rights, to say nothing of citizens of either of the contracting nations acquiring such rights. The moment the Mexican flag was lowered, that moment the stars and stripes were flung to the breeze, and the genius of American institutions began its rule over the ceded lands, and the common law, the principles of which had been adopted by the States acquiring the new territory, must have become by a priori reasoning, the law obtaining there. The plea that there was no law against the practice of plural marriage at the time Mr. Clawson and others entered into it, and prior to the law of 1862, is an absurd one. To admit such a plea is to admit that in the transition state of the Territory into which these men moved, citizens of the United States, as they were, the functions of all law ceased; both those from under the operation of which the territory came, and those under which it passed. That in this transition state, practices and customs became law and rights accrued to citizens of the United States, and to these citizens who so plead especially, not in accord with the laws and usages of the United States. Such an admission is fatal to all claims for the supremacy of government.

Besides this, and we urge it as we have done for twenty-five years, these very men were associated together in church relationship, under a profession of faith accepted as emanating from the Supreme Being, the direct provisions of which in regard to marriage were monogamic and that only; the church having been "regularly organized and established agreeably to the laws of our country, by the will and commandments of God;" the rule of the church concerning marriage having been given with direct reference to the then existing laws under which it was designed that church should be developed and flourish.

If then the rules of the church founded in the revelations of God, made provision Here the statement is broadly made that against plural marriage, and there has been reorganization by President Young could no time in the United States when plural marriage was lawful, those who entered into the contracts which such marriage presumes, entered into them in contravention of law and those contracts are therefore void in fact, and should receive neither sanction nor aid to their observance from the courts of the United States.

If we did not believe that the expressed will of God under whose commandment the church was organized in 1830 had specifically defined what should be the rule in regard to the institution of marriage and that it was monogamic, and that such defined rule was intended to be as final as the character of God is unchangeable, we should never have raised a voice in reference to it, neither in the valleys of Utah nor elsewhere. But at every time and in every place when God has uttered his will regarding the institution of marriage prior to 1843, such utterance has been of a similar nature to the statement in Genesis: "For this cause shall a man leave father and mother and cleave unto his wife;" which statement is qualified beyond a peradventure by its repetition by Christ, as stated in Matthew and Mark, with the addition of the words, "and they twain shall be one flesh." For this reason we have ever averred that when the claim was made that a change had been made in the institution of marriage by a revelation in 1843, such revelation was not from God, and could not and never did supercede the rule originally given.

Had not the church in the Utah valleys made the claim that it was the church as originally instituted in 1830, and persisted in that claim, notwithstanding the reorganization begun by Brigham Young, Orson Hyde and others at Winter Quarters, Iowa and Nebraska, in December, 1847, and continued by Pres. Young after such beginning had been effected by reorganizing the First Presidency, then the Twelve, by a complete rebaptizing of all, and the rearranging and reorganizition of all the quorums, abrogating the powers of some and enlarging those of others; we might not have felt any inclination to meddle with them and their beliefs. But as we were a member of that original church, as organized in 1830, having been baptized by one holding authority and high office in it, receiving the rite of confirmation for the seal of the Spirit, giving us right to the completest membership in said church; of which right we could not be divested by any official act of the church, without personal transgression on our part; the not affect those rights. Hence, as a member of that original church, we have the right, and we believe it to be a duty, to protest against the efforts of the reorganized church under Presidents Brigham Young and John Taylor, to fasten the doctrine of plural marriage upon the members of such original church, either singly, or as a body, as having originated such doctrine, or that it was a legitimate and incidental growth of said original church.

If the Utah church will content itself with declaring its belief in the system of patriarchal, or plural marriage, avowing it as a creation of the church as reorganized by Brigham Young, dating its birth from the time of its apparent necessity to cover manifest departures from the rule at first given to the church of 1830, it will remove largely from the field of controversy much that is vexing on either side. Until this is done and the original church relieved from the implied blame for the introduction of plural marriage, we expect to continue protesting on behalf of the innocent and the suffering, and our own as well, by every lawful means in our power. Nor are we inclined to evade any issue which this determination may force upon us.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 7th, 1885.

WE clip the following from the leading editorial of the Utah Deseret News for October 6th, 1885. It is in reference to a jury empanelled in the Third District Court of Utah, for the United States, to try a member or the church for a breach of the Edmunds law. The regular panel had been excused from service for incompetency under the law, and the jury written of in the extract were secured on an open venire served by the marshal:

"And then, if those readers can stand a little more in the way of temporary astonishment, we will further advise them that the excluded were strictly unbiased and the accepted were not; that the former did not have an idea what their verdict would be until the evidence and the law were placed before them, the latter had; and if more in the way of bristling information is desired, we will state that it was well understood before a witness was sworn or the Court had imparted a line of law, that the verdict would be guilty, and that the catch-as-catch-can jury was herded in and boxed up for that special purpose and no other! Now take a rest."

Did such a denunciation come from a secular newspaper in an eastern city, as a criticism upon the administration of justice in a Federal Court, it would seem to be much, very much out of place. If it was well understood that a verdict of guilty was to be the result, some of those outside, to whom the presentation is made, must conclude that the guilt of the person arraigned was, also "well understood." What other conclusion could any one not included in the list of partial readers of the News come to.

If Judge Zane does not feel the strictures published in the News, and uttered from the stand by the unwise speakers who assume the task, he would be scarcely human; and if he shall not, now and then give place to impatience he will do well. The duty imposed upon him, to enforce the laws as given in the acts of Congress, is burdensome enough without the charge of undue animosity against the people among whom his duties lie. If it is the intention to exasperate the judge into making some mistake that will disqualify him totally to sit on the bench of the Third District Court, it may be done by a repetition of such strictures as the one above given, and the irritating denunciation of apostle H. J. Grant, on Sunday, October 4th, in the Tabernacle.

GALLAND'S GROVE REUNION.

From the second to the twelfth inst. the associate editor was away to the Galland's Grove Reunion, and this may account for delays in correspondence with parties writing us during that time. We intended to have been away from the office only five days, at most, but were so urgently pressed to remain till the close of the session that we thought it best to vield to the wishes of the Saints. The meetings were excellent from Saturday the third instant up to and including Saturday the tenth. After services that night rain began falling and continued on with slight intermissions during the following Sunday and Sunday night. Immense congregations were expected the last Sunday, and had the weather been favorable it is probable there would have been the largest gathering then ever seen in Galland's Grove. As it was, there was "a feast of fat things," in a spiritual way, from first to last, in all the exercises and in the fraternal greetings, that made the Saints feel joyful in the Lord and gave them a rich foretaste of the joys of the world to come. All seemed very happy. Twenty-six were baptized, others came forward, and it is propable twenty or thirty more would have been added to the church had the weather been favorable the last Sunday.

We have never before witnessed a greater degree of unity, zeal, and steadfastness, in so large an assemblage of Saints. Judging the Galland's Grove and Little Sioux present, we think their future is full of promise in respect to the progress of the Lord's work entrusted to their care. We remembered with gratification how those districts have grown from the "seed sown" in the hearts of only a few in those regions in 1859-60, till now they number very near two thousand, and that their strength and prospects were never so great as now. Rising from obscurity and poverty and lowly conditions, they have become a great power in the land, commanding the attention and respect of all honorable people. It should be a source of gratification to the Saints when they note the progress made, especially when they take in account the numerous obstacles and perplexing difficulties thrown in their way by the heresies and evil practices of many who professed to be Saints. Thank heaven, the Reorganized Church is being heard at home and abroad in respect to its doctrines and deeds, and fine results are following. She is emerging from under the dark shadows cast over her pathway by the various smoky isms and ites and divisions which have arisen in the name of "Saints," and her principles, practices and progress are carefully noted by the observing ones. The power and grace of God so richly displayed in the spiritual gifts and signs during the late Reunion were clear evidences that the people were the Lord's, for he says-"So my Spirit remaineth among you; fear ye not."—Hag. 2:5.

THE RESULT.

THREE of the Grand Jurors empanneled for the Third District Court for Utah were discharged by the Judge of the Court, before the close of the term as unworthy to serve longer, because they refused to find bills of indictment under the instructions of the Court upon the law and the evidence.

The reason assigned by these men is that they believed that the instruction of the Judge and his construction of the law were unconstitutional, and therefore they would not find indictments in accordance with them.

If such decision of jurors sworn to the specific duty of inquiring into alleged departures from the law were correct and their action permitted to obtain as a rule of procedure in the courts, where would the line finally be drawn between the courts and the citizen. The Court is the result of long experiment and application of principles of right put into practice. By steady advancement from rule to rule the Districts by the ministry and membership present methods of administration have obtained. Under them it has been found that the best interests of society have been conserved; and all citizens must not only be subject to them, but must conform to them in their own action when called into positions where they may be applied.

If the citizen as a grand juror may pass upon questions of law and the constructions of the courts concerning their practice under the law, and decide for himself as to the constitutionality of both law and the rendering of the court, then is the citizen as such superior to the law, and courts may be abandoned. Pursue this to its conclusion, and the same principle must apply to all classes of citizens, and every man in every class, and the idea of supreme authority in the land by which laws are made and administered is a thing of the past.

While the citizen may determine his own action in any given case he does so at his peril. The natural rights which may have been his without an organization of society have merged into his relationship to that society, and he can not at will return them to himself. He must exercise only those which are completely in harmony with his citizenship in society; or if he assumes to do otherwise he must take the consequence.

We are of the opinion that Judge Zane ruled correctly and within the just exercise of his office when he discharged those jurors from the panel.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

PRES. J. SMITH writing from Malad, Idaho, September 29th, says they had full and interesting congregations there.

Bro. Warren Turner, of Clinton, Iowa, informs us that Aaron Benson and wife, from Jamestown, Nebraska, is in Clinton, and that they claim to be members of the church, and to have certificates of baptism, but they declined uniting with the branch there. Bro. Turner also charges that Elder Jobe Brown teaches against the sacred books of the church. (This is sustained by the testimony of Elder R. Etzenhouser). Those in charge of the district or branch where this occurred should look to it at once, and take the needful steps to purge out the evil.

Sr. Mary Rowe writes from Grass Valley, Cal., October 5th, saying they wish some Elders would come and preach there. Her husband is not yet a member, but loves to read the HERALD, and would be baptized if an opportunity offers. Let those in charge of that field attend to this call.

Bro. John W. F. Livings writes under date of September 27th, from DeLisle, Harrison county, Miss., saying they would like to have an Elder come there and preach. There are four members, adults, at that place.

Bro. Henry Smart writes us under date October 7th, from Oplis, Kansas, and tells of his earnest desires for the spread and triumph of the gospel of Christ. He says the young Elders are leading out in the ministry nobly, and that prejudice is being rapidly removed.

* Bro. Kelly of Stewartsville, Missouri, writes that Elder D. S. Crawley utterly overthrew the arguments of the Adventist, Elder Cairns, in their debate of late at that place, and that Elder Cairns deported himself very worthily as a disputant and Christian gentleman.

Bro. M. R. Scott of Galena, Indiana, writes that the Methodists of that place have excluded him from Christian courtesies, though with some others he finds favor, and at Edwardsville, was invited to address an assembly of near one thousand at a Union Sunday School celebration. He wishes to obtain a good work against Atheissm.

Bro. H. L. Holt sends us the Fergus Falls (Minn.), Journal, containing a continued article from the pen of Mr. Chauncey Whiting, on the "The Pioneers of Ottertail," among whom were some "Cutlerite" and "Josephite" Latter Day Saints. We have not yet had time to examine the article extensively. May do so soon.

An excursion is contemplated for the Ohio people living in Iowa, to the Buckeye State, the 10th of November next, to leave the various towns throughout the State on that date, so as to reach Chicago the morning of the 11th, and have a grand reunion there for one day, to become better acquainted with each other before separating to visit the different points in Ohio. The tickets will be secured from the local ticket agents. For particulars, address J. P. Bushnell, Des Moines, Iowa.

Sr. M. A. Christy in a letter dated at Akron, Iowa, October 12th, says:—I "can not do without the Herald, Hope, Advocate and Expositor, as they are my only preachers, and are freighted with so much good reading that is meat and drink to me."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

President Joseph Smith says by letter from Salt Lake City, the 9th inst.:

"We closed meetings last night until Sunday, when Bro Luff will speak in the afternoon and I in the evening. Three were baptized by me at Warm Springs here last Tuesday,—three young women; one a daughter of Sr. Ward, formerly of Denver, Colorado. At nearly every meeting new faces appear."

A brother in Kansas writes of late, saying:

"Don't stop my Herald, for it is all the preacher I have, and I am using it as a tract. I have quite a number interested, and hope some of them will obey the gospel. They are anxious to have an Elder come here, (Twin Falls, Kansas) but I think it a little premature, as I have some tracts and the Book of Mormon, which I keep going, and as soon as they manifest a desire to accept the gospel plan of salvation I will write to some of the Elders in this district to come and attend to the ordinances."

HIRAM B. CLAWSON'S SENTENCE.

On the 29th of September last, Mr. Clawson was sentenced as below, for unrepentant violation of the law. It should be remembered that he was the favorite sonin-law of the late Brigham Young, and one of th favorites of the Utah Mormon people. This may serve to explain the final course of Mr. Clawson in not accepting, as did Bishop John Sharp, the clemency of the court.

"Judge Zane addressed the prisoner as follows:
"Mr. Clawson, it becomes the duty of the Court now to pronounce the sentence of the law against you.

"You state, as a reason for your present course, that you formed the relations for which you are now to be punished thirty years ago, and that you then believed it was right.

"A man's beliefs do not justify a willful violation of the law. It appears to be the opinion of at least some of the members of the sect to which you belong, that polygamy was lawful previous to the Edmunds law and the law of 1862. There never has been a time in the United States, anywhere, when polygamy was lawful. Probably the greatest commentator upon the common law who has ever lived, more than a hundred years ago, in commenting upon the common law, (which has been in force in this Territory since it has been acquired by the United States), after referring to the disabilities which prevent the contract of legal marriage, used this language:

"'The first of these legal disabilities is a prior marriage-having another husbander wife living-in which case, besides the penalties consequent upon it as a felony, the second marriage is. to all intents and purposes, void; polygamy being condemned, both by the law of the New Testament and the policy of all prudent States, especially in these northern climates,' and then refers to a remark of Justinian condemning polygamy. (1 Blackstone's Com. 435) And, it is believed that under the laws of Mexico, before this Territory was even acquired by the United States, polygamy was not recognized. It was unlawful, and at the time you state your formed these relations the law prevented you from doing it. When you formed them they were utterly void-as if they had never been contracted. The second wife, in the eye of the law, was nothing more than a concubine, and the children born of those relations were bastards. The law condemned it, and principle has condemned it in the United States.

"The fact that you claim it to be your religion (and I infer that you think because that is so you ought not to be punished) is no defense. The law does not attempt to regulate the internal relations of a man, so to speak; that is to say, his faith, his beliefs, his feelings. He can exercise his faith, he can exercise his belief, but when that belief and those feelings become external and attack the institutions upon which society rests, the law takes hold of it, and it is not protected.

"A man may believe and worship as he pleases." Religion, that part of it at least that the law protects is internal-it consists of faith, feeling and worship. When a man, however, claims that the formation of relations, such as you profess to believe in—when he forms such relations as you have formed, then the law acts upon it; it does not allow the institutions upon which society rests to be attacked by religion any more than by any other means. So that is no defense. The framers of the Constitution so understood it. The Supreme Court of the United States has so interpreted it, and the Congress of the United States. in the law which you have violated, have so interpreted it; and your faith is no justification for your unlawful acts.

"The American people, and the whole civilized world, with the exception of this sect and probably some other few-such as free-love organizations-believe in the monogamic marriage, and repudiate the polygamous marriage, and repudiate polyandry-the marriage of one wife to a number of husbands.

"Besides, this institution which you profess to believe in is an unjust one. Marriage is looked upon in the eye of the common law as a contract. If it is like all other contracts, it should be equally enforced. Now, if a man and a woman make a contract relating to property or to services, the law enforces that contract equally against both. To say that it could be enforced against the woman, and that the man might divide whatever might be the consideration of the contract between a number of other women would be unjust. When a man and a woman enter into the marriage relation, all there is to that relation besides the feeling of love and devotion to each other, consists in the duties and obligations which they owe in consequence of that relation; and if the woman is held to it, and the man may say, 'These duties I owe you I will distribute among a hundred;' or, if you please, a much less number--- 'two or more'--- if the law sanctions that, it is unjust. It makes it a binding contract upon the woman and not upon the man. Or, if you say that neither is bound by it, then this institution of marriage is a rope of sand that binds nothing. This institution upon which the family rests, upon which the welfare of the community and its progress, as we trust through all ages, depends, means nothing. If the woman, notwithstanding this marriage, may go and contract and associate with a dozen men as though they were her husbands, and a man may do likewise, then the institution of marriage is broken down and destroyed. The civilized world believes that that is the most important pillar in the great fabric that shelters and protects humanity and all that is good and virtuous in it; and no sect nor creed will be allowed in the United States to overthrow it.

"You and your followers and those who believe with you had just as well submit to the laws of your country as good citizens, because obedience to the law is the highest duty of a citizen. I understand you to profess to be a citizen of the United States, and yet you say you will not promise to obey and respect its laws; and that you will not promise not to persuade others to disregard and defy the laws of your county. Thousands of as brave men as ever lived have died in defense of those laws and that Government, and it does not do for you to stand up in this court, or anywhere, and treat those laws with contempt, and that Government with contempt which shelters and protect us all. As a man, I have nothing to say whatever against you. I I regret that you have not the courage and the manhood to stand up in defiance of a sect, and say that you will obey the laws of your country, and that you will advise other men to abide by them. This timidity and cowardice is not becoming to an American citizen. You seem to acknowledge that in your second reason, because you say that you would be ostracised and would become an outcast if you were to obey the laws of your country—if you were to promise to obey them; though many good men have died-not become ostracised, but died, in their defense. That reason constitutes no justification.

"In view of the fact that you propose, as I understand, to continue your polygamous relations, to continue your adulterous connection with women who are not your legal wives; however much I may respect you as an individual, my duty, representing as I do a great and a glorious Government, will not allow me to indulge in any personal feelings; but the discretion which I possess must be so used as to strike down these crimes of polygamy, and unlawful cohabitation. When men will not agree to obey the law, my duty, as the judge of this court, requires that the extreme penalty be imposed upon them.

"You will be sentenced, therefore, to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of six months and to pay a fine of $300 and costs, and be confined until the term of your imprisonment has expired and the fine and costs are paid."

REFERRING to the Epistle of Presidents John Taylor and G. Q. Cannon to the Utah Mormon conference which convened in Logan, Utah, October the 3d, the Salt Lake Tribune has the following in which allusion is made to President Joseph Smith and his work. We repeat what has been often said, that, if the Utah Mormons had faithfully inquired into the calling and teachings of President Joseph Smith in 1860, and since, all the evils which now curse that people and threaten their utter ruin might have been averted.

President Smith has never sought the leadership of the Utah Church; but he has diligently striven to reach and redeem that people from their errors, evils, and "bondage." It remains with them as to whether he shall succeed in that direction. They are "agents unto themselves" yet. He has labored against great odds; he has had and hosts of deep-seated prejudice to over-Success has attended his efforts thus far, in the Master's cause. He has "grace and favor" with those who know him; his integrity is unquestioned, and his moral character above suspicion. Nation and its authorities can and do trust him, and he will "set in order the house of God" to the joy and satisfaction of the true Saint everywhere. The Tribune says:

"THAT LAST LETTER.

"When one reads carefully the last address of Messrs. Taylor and Cannon, it is clear that a great fear sat like a nightmare upon the hearts of the writers while they prepared it. It is plain that a mighty pressure has been brought upon them, and, though they have resisted it thus far, the effort has shaken their nerves tremendously. Is it not just possible that the fear is caused not more through Federal pressure than through the thought that if they were once to surrender polygamy their followers would say, "Very well; then the revelation was a fraud, or it does not count. Our duty then is plain. The head of the Josephite Church is hereditary heir to his father's kingdom; we will send for him, for he is manifestly our President. Under him there could be no polygamy and the accursed, rigid slavery which holds its chains upon this people would dissolve at once; we would be Americans, would take our places among men, and there would be no reproach upon us.

"Is it not quite possible that the two Englishmen who signed that address have in their hiding been haunted and worried lest they might, by giving up polygamy, lose their power over this people, and that the rule might be given to the son of the prophet, the gentler rule which exists without antagonizing every community where it is known? We think the foregoing is a reasonable suspicion. In the course of the address the thought is expressed that there is nothing in the [Utah] Mormon faith or in [Utah] Mormon practices, that injures any people who do not subscribe to the faith of the Saints. This can not be passed by in silence, for that would be a partial confession that those who oppose the two objectionable features of the creed, are actuated only by selfish or sinister motives. For thirty-six years, in this Territory, the Mormon priests-including the two who signed the address-have taught that it was the mission of their creed to overthrow this Republic, and that laws passed merely by men are not binding upon Saints. If that does not mean that the purpose has been, and is, to substitute in the place of a government by the people, the government of a one-man despotism, it does not mean anything. In pursuance of the same idea, Mr. Cannon, one of the signers, only a few months ago, declared in the Tabernacle that the adage, vox populi vox Dei, must be changed and revised, and made to read vox Dei must be vox populi. All points to an absolute despotism, to exactly what has strewn all the shores of the old world with the wrecks of nations. It is an insolent attempt through enslaving people's reasons by superstitious fears, to blot free government from the face of the Western continent. Would that wrong no one? We mountains of false doctrines to remove, see one hundred thousand hard-working Mormons living in poor homes; their children growing up without education or comforts, because they pour all the profits of their work into the maw of the church to be used without accounting by these high priests; we see these chiefs absorbing this wealth and ruling with a real serfdom this people, and yet from their hiding places we hear them cry out that they are wronging no one. Again, because of polygamy, the sacredness of a thousand homes in Utah has all been taken away; in many places the people live more like animals than men, and the laws of consanguinity are being so outraged that, if left alone, the most deplorable results would follow both to the minds and bodies of the people, and yet these men with an affectation of surprise, can not see why the world has turned against them, inasmuch as they are wronging no one. They would be banished from any other land in civilization, and that fact they understand thoroughly well. If their lives could be extended to a thousand years they could not make reparation for the wrongs they have done other people."

METHODISTS ON POLYGAMY.

At the late session of the Rock River, Illinois, conference of the M. E. Church, the following action was taken in respect to Utah Mormonism:

"The report of the Committee on Mormon Polygamy, which was adopted, was as follows:

"I. As a body of Christian ministers we are committed to the defense of the sanctlty of the home.

"2. We hold that certain crimes should be a bar against citizenship, and that no polygamist should be invested with the privileges of elective franchise.

"3. We are opposed to the admission of Utahas a State until the question of polygamy ceases to be a factor in politics.

"4. We are much pleased with the manner in which President Cleveland and Judge Zane are dealing with polygamy, and we pledge to them our support in their efforts to make honorable the laws of the land by removing this great scandal from our Nation's otherwise good name.

"5. We pity polygamists. They are bringing upon themselves the wrath of God. We would therefore pray and work for their deliverance; and, as there seems to be a providential opening in their behalf by the execution of civil law and through the waning influence of the Mormon priesthood, we would ask the church to give such thought and attention to polygamous Mormons as their condition demands.

"S. M. Davis, Chairman."

Correspondence.

PLANO, Illinois,

October 15th, 1885.

Bro. Blair:—Since writing you last, I have been making another effort in Chicago, trying to hold up the gospel banner. Sunday, October 4th, I occupied the stand at the Saints' meeting place, No. 213 West Madison street, were I addressed a fair sized audience; after which the sacrament was administered, and a spiritual time enjoyed. Lack of means prevent us from renting other halls in the city, so we have to content ourselves by doing what we can for the present with the available means. On Sunday, the 11th, inst, Bro. Hilliard being in the city, occupied the stand by request and gave us a good spiritual discourse on practical Christianity. On Sunday evening I was permitted the privilege of lecturing before the Liberal League, (Ingersoll infidels), at their hall, No. 181 West Madison street. At the close of the lecture, six of their members occupied ten minutes each in criticising; after which I was allowed ten minutes to reply. It was quite a breezy time; "grape and canister" were flying around freely, yet we came out unscathed, and the congratulations we received at the close from strangers, and even their own members, led us to believe that our side of the argument had met a favorable reception with all except the unconvertible.

Bro. Foss is expected in the city next Sunday. There are quite a number of the members who have not yet concluded to comply with the act of General Conference, and unite with the branch. The few who have are getting along well. I go soon to attend conference at Mission Branch. Still working for the success of the cause, I remain your brother in gospel bonds,

John S. Patterson.

Nambucca, N. S. Wales, September 2d, 1885.

Bro. Blair:-I am just through a visit to this place. We had some excellent meetings here. I never felt greater force and power of the Holy Spirit in preaching and attending to the duties of my office than here. I was permitted also to baptize six willing subjects into the kingdom of our God. The Saints here are good, honorable brethren, striving to do the Master's will, but have felt the want of missionary labor with them. We are quite well, and are on our way southward; will be in Victoria soon. The winter is nearly over, and we expect soon to feel the sweltering force of the summer's sun. I am striving to be faithful, and noting the signs of Zion's redemption. Hope to be among the redeemed. Yours,

J. F. Burton.

DECKERVILLE, Michigan, October 7th, 1885.

Dear Bro. Blair .- I have not written to you for some time past, and am thinking a few lines from this part of the vineyard of the Lord would not be amiss. Should you think this, or any part thereof, worth inserting in that much-loved paper, the Herald, you have my consent. Since last April I have been busily engaged in the great latter day work, for such it is to me. I have preached but little in the branches amongst the Saints, or in any place where much preaching has hitherto been done, but have opened up several new places, and have done much preaching and baptizing in almost all those places; and I find a pretty good interest everywhere I go. Sometimes it is hard to get started in new places, but after the work is started it is hard to get away. If there were twenty Elders now right here in Sanilac and Huron counties, they would have all they could do for one year. I have many calls to go to other places, but why spend time and money in running around here and there so much? I feel sure that then, there will not be half so much accomplished.

Well, Bro. Blair, I must tell you, (in as short a way as possible), some of the remarks made at our debate with Mr. Sims of Bay City. He is well educated, and can talk fast, and can make a great spread in the public. Some two years ago, or thereabout, he came around this part of the country preaching the doctrine of the Christadelphians, and challenged all the Preachers, Apostles, Prophets, Priests or Kings, to come out and meet him! I was in the saw-mill at that time, but went one night to hear him. That night he gave the Mormons quite a rough one, and challenged all the Mormons, or the world generally, to meet him, and he would show up their sandy foundations, etc. After his meeting was over I arose and said that I helped to make up this world, and was a part of it, and I would accept his challenge; being a firm believer in the doctrine taught by the Saints, and was also a minister of the same. Arrangements were made for two or three evenings from that time. The time came, and we met, as agreed upon. I tried to arrange for a chairman, but he refused to debate with one; so rather than to let the people go home without hearing the truth, I consented to it.

He occupied the first hour, and I commenced on the second hour; but before I had spoken long I was interrupted by him seven or eight times; and before I could get half through, he broke the meeting up, and he and a few others claimed he had the victory.

I made up my mind that that was the last time I would debate without a chairman. However, this summer Mr. Sims came back and commenced preaching again, and went on with the same abuse against the Saints, declaring how he had whipped Cornish, the Mormon, and dared "Joe Smith and all his Apostles," etc. Hearing of this I wrote out a notice and had it posted up in the Post Office, right close to where he had made his blow, stating that he had not whipped out the Saints, and furthermore, that he could not.

The next Saturday about three p.m., I got a letter from my wife, saying that on Sunday (the next day) there was to be a debate between Mr. Sims and Cornish, and asked me if I knew anything about it. I was at this time twenty miles from the railroad, and about sixty miles from where the debate was to be, with appointments for the next day. About sundown a brother came up with a team for me, and we soon got ready; left word that there would be no meeting there for Sunday, telling them the reason: everything was all right. We started and got there in time; but hungry, tired, and sleepy. We met on the grounds, shook hands with the giant, both went upon the stand, and Sims said: "We have met to discuss the points of Mormonism. Mr. Cornish will now commence and occupy an hour in defense of Mormonism; I will occupy the next and root it out," etc.

I replied: "Ladies and gentlemen, I have come here against my will to debate upon the Sabbath day, and my opponent has given it out without my knowledge or consent; but having arrived, I am here to defend the doctrine of Christ as taught by the Latter Day Saints. And furthermore, it is very necessary that we have a chairman."

Sims.—"I object to having a chairman" saying, "We are both Christian ministers; I will keep order when Cornish is talking, and I hope he will be man enough to keep quiet when I am talking."

To this I replied: "Gentlemen; Mr. Sims talked just the same way two years ago, and then interrupted me half a dozen times before I had spoken ten minutes. And a man who will misrepresent before a congregation of about two hundred people, will do so hear before this people of about eighteen hundred or two thousand, for the same purpose. We must have a chairman."

Sims said he would not debate if a chairman was appointed. Turning around for his hat, the people then cried: Coward! Coward!

Sims then said, "Well then I will preach an hour or so, and then leave it with you."

"No you don't," I replied; "I am not here just to hear you preach. You have challenged me to discuss points of Mormonism. By announcing in an underhanded way, you sought to get advantage in that I was to meet you to-day, and I over sixty miles away, and knew nothing about it until yesterday in the afternoon. Let the people appoint a chairman."

A member of Mr. Sims' church was then appointed to the chair, and Mr. Sims led off for an hour, and his manner was fair. But after we had each spoken an hour, then he let off his tirade on "Joe Smith, Brigham Young;" after the old, old style; and as Bro. H. C. Smith says: "It was the same old song, to the same old tune."

Well, the closing was, in short, as follows:

S.—"And now, show me a sign. It is said 'these signs shall follow;' etc. I want one."

C.—"It is against the order to show signs. Christ says they 'shall follow them that believe.' They do not go ahead to make believers."

S.—"I am determined to have a sign; 'they shall take up serpents.' I will give five hundred dollars for one, to see him take it up."

C.—"You should not seek for signs, friend. Christ called them a wicked people in his day when asking them."

S.—"I wish I had poison here, I'd make him drink it. Show me a miracle, you hypocrite."

C.—"Well now, the devil was the first one to ask for a sign, and you are another one. Jesus says there is a certain class of people who are of their father, the devil, because they would do the work of the devil; and to-day you are doing his work."

S.—"O you blasphemer;" d—— hypocrite; do something; stop my tongue."

C.—"Ladies and gentlemen. It is contrary to the order of God to show signs, but my opponent is determined to have one, so I will step outside of the order for once to convince him, and I will have to perform it on him, then he will be sure it is done. Just cut off your right arm above the elbow, and see if I can't put it on again." (Cheers)

S.—"O you hypocrite! you blasphemer! you child of the devil! raise the dead you —— hypocrite! Cast the devil out of me!"

C.—"There might not then be any thing left but your clothes." (Three loud cheers).

After that a few words passed in which he called me a liar, ——liar, &c., put on his duster and hat and started. I said "Stop; don't go away mad; let us shake hands over it, and part good friends;" and offered my hand. But he said "No; I'll never shake hands with such a ——hypocrite and blasphemer," etc. (Three more loud cheers, and we parted).

By the way, let me here tell my dream or vision of the matter. It must have been an open vision, for I don't think I was asleep. The night after we arranged for the first debate with Mr. Sims, I stopped over at Bro. H. Campbell's, and waking up in the morning, I was thinking about the debate that was soon to come off. I then saw the following: I was walking along in a beautiful green pasture, clear of stumps, shrubs or anything else, except one large beautiful tree, clear and tall, with a beautiful shaped top. When I came within about eight feet of it I saw a large snake, its tail coiled around one of the limbs near the top, and its head touched the ground. I looked around for a stick, and at my right I saw one about three feet long. At one end it was about three inches through, the other end about half that size. I took it by the small end, and as the snake raised its head I struck it. Its head dropped. I watched it. Presently it raised up its head again, and opened its great mouth and hissed. With both hands hold of the stick I struck it with all my might. The tail let loose the limb, and the snake fell, making a great noise. There it lay in a heap, with its head stuck out a little from the body. I struck it again on the head; smashed it open, and then went off and I think when I struck him first, was at the first debate. It did not hurt him very badly. The second debate was when he fell. What was done then finished him.

There were over two hundred and twenty-seven teams counted. And it is supposed there must have been about two thousand people present. I am glad it happened, for many came out to hear who would not go before. I received many a warm hand-shake from those who were once our enemies. Much good was done. Some two weeks after that, in Gore, after preaching a few times I delivered a lecture on Mormonism. In that place there was much prejudice against the Saints, more especially with the so-called Christians. One man, a Baptist, spent three days with his team running around to get his preachers out to upset Mormonism; and this, too, right in the midst of harvest. The time for the lecture came. It was a fine evening and there was a large congregation. This Baptist man came with two of his preachers. I gave the history of the rise of the latter day work, the apostacy, and of the present work, etc.; after which I gave the privelige to any one to ask any questions upon what had been said, for further information, stating that I did it because sometimes something might have been said through the discourse that would need a further explanation, and also to leave people without excuse. For often in the past we have had people to say,-"If they had given me a chance to speak I could and would have upset the whole thing." One of the ministers arose and said he was glad he was there, for he had learned much; had nothing to say against it; etc. I left the next morning for another place, and two days from then I received a letter stating that that same preacher had given out an appointment for Thursday night to lecture against Mormonism and upset the whole thing. Several unmanly tricks like that has been played on the Saints this summer; but as it has happened, I have been able to get there every time and meet the effort, and it has always turned out to the good of the great work.

I have another debate to take place in Canada; this time with a Rev. Mr. Steeples of the United Methodist Church of Canada, on the following: Resolved, That the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is in harmony with the doctrine of Jesus Christ taught eighteen hundred years ago, both in respect to doctrine and organization. I affirm. He affirms as much for his church, word for word. The articles are signed by both parties. I expect to have another here soon, with a Disciple minister, on spiritual gifts and the Book of Mormon. The press and the preachers are opposed to the work; but it is onward! There is great excitement here. I have baptized forty-one since last April. I would like to say more about the work, but this is too long now. May God bless his Saints.

John J. Cornish.

San Bernardino, Cal., October 8th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—As I am traveling most of the time over this southern district, I thought a a line from me would be read with some interest. Our conference held at the Covena Branch, in Los Angeles county, was a good one, the Saints all feeling encouraged because of the manifestation of God's Spirit. By it His servants were exhorted to warn the people, and prepare for the many changes that would soon take place among latter day Israel, etc.

In company with Bro. E. J. French I preached four discourses at San Gorgonia, which is situated on the summit in the pass between San Bernardino and San Jacinto mountains. Having been refused the Presbyterian Church, we rented a Hall, paying five dollars for four meetings, after which the proprietor said: "Come and hold all the meetings you please, free of charge." We think good was done there, at least, in the way of removing prejudice. We are expecting Bishop Blakeslee and company in a few days. We hope to be then set in good working order. As his agent I have been preaching and collecting tithing since June. The Saints, generally, accept of the principle.

I love to see the work prosper, and hope and pray for its ultimate triumph.

Yours in the gospel of peace, J. R. BADHAM.

> ELDORADO SPRINGS, Mo., October 4th, 1885.

Dear Herald:-It may be that some of your readers would like to hear a word from this part of the wide, busy world, though I might sav this immediate vicinity is not over run with a great amount of business, but plenty of work for those that want, and will work. The Saints here are doing very well temporally and spiritually. We met together this afternoon and were greatly blessed, the Spirit of the Lord cheering us, and telling us to trust in Him; that we would be tried, and that if we only would be faithful in our duty, how great would be our reward. Dear Saints, how thankful we should be to our blessed Savior for not only the promise of, but in reality having the Comforter to speak to us and encourage and strengthen us when our life is almost a burden with temptations, cares and troubles.

I am a young man, but have met with many sore temptations; and this I bear testimony to, that when I did try and do my duty, God did bless me and has answered my prayers many times. Dear Saints, I know I am engaged in the true work of God, and have a firm determination to work out my own salvation; to work, watch, and pray; and my prayer is for all Saints, that God may bless them.

Bro. C. M. Schroder, our Branch president, and Bro. A. Loyd, is preaching at a school house five miles north of here. Aside from that there has been no ministerial labor performed here since last February, Bro. F. C. Warnkey came down from Independence and preached three times, once to the Saints—which was an eye opener, "just grand," on tithing, and twice in the Campbelite Hall in Eldorado Springs, to large and attentive congregations. And it was said by many to be the best sermons they ever heard. We would like to have him come again and stay longer, and I think he would baptize some.

I have circulated some tracts that I think has done some good, for some of the Elders of the Christian Church took care to tell their flock that laying on of hands was done away! Dear Saints; pray for us here. That God will bless all his people is my prayer.

E. W. LLOYD.

PITTSBURG, Kansas,

October 12th, 1885.

Bro. Blair:—Since I last wrote, Bro. J. M. Richards baptized one at Galesburg, Missouri, and Bro. J. Thomas baptized one at Pleasant View Branch.

On the nights of the 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th inst. the debate at Opolis came off between Elder Peak of our church and Elder Lewelyn of the First Day Adventists, or "Restitutionists," and ended in as complete a victory for the truth as I ever witnessed. Propositions discussed were, 1st: That the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is the same in faith, ordinances, organization, and blessings, as the Apostolic church. 2d: That the Adventists are the same in faith, teachings, ordinances, &c., as the Apostolic church.

Bro. Peak affirmed the first and Elder Leewelvn the second. You will notice that "organization" is left out in the second proposition, for the reason he would not affirm it. They claim no church. What a sound doctrine! Our opponent did his work with a good degree of fairness all through, except the second night, at which time he patternafter Clark Braden. In fact, he had the "Braden Kelley Debate," and used the Braden part to ridicule the Book of Mormon and Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and challenged "any Mormon to defend them," and said if he "could not overthrow them he would take down his shingle," etc. He confessed that he had never read the books, but used Braden's part as he would "Cruden's Concordance" to find a piece, and then would tell it off with a sneer. At the close I took occasion to tell him that we would fix up that challenge for him, and give him a chance to fulfill his promise, or we would pull all the "shingles" from the roof of his Advent house. It appears that this sect, like others, form a theory (form of godliness) and then go to the Bible to bend it to the theory, and if they can not bring the English version to it, they will turn to the Greek and give it their theological twist or two. Put the "Grecian bend" on and let it go-vou know how funny they look! He denounced all existing churches as "human institutions—and no more;" denied the spirit part of man and of Christ: affirmed the restoration of Israel and all things, but spoiled this good point with the doctrine of annihilation, &c. The man was "smart," and a good scholar; but his ground was poor,hence not productive of good. Bro. Peak is a promising young Elder of a little over a year's standing, and made a brilliant effort, both defensive and offensive. The people are greatly stirred up, and all agree that "victory is for the Saints;" hope they will obey as they profess to see. At the close we presented the following propositions: 1st: Are all existing churches and denommations human institutions and no more? 2d: Are the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants in their doctrinal parts, in harmony with the Bible? 3d: Are the above name books in their prophetical and historical parts, as far as the subject matters are equally or partially related, in harmony with the Bible? 4th: Is the book called "God's Plan of Salvation" in harmony with the Bible? Elder Leewelyn to affirm the first and fourth, Elder E. A. Davis to affirm the second and third.

You are aware, undoubtedly, that the 4th involves one of their books which gives a fair view of their belief. When the friend was asked to sign the propositions he hesitated to attack all churches, and was not prepared to defend their own book, and was not prepared to attack our books just in that form—that would bring forth the contents of the books, and not where they came from. When he refused, we told him to take down his shingle, and he did. Nearly every body would rather investigate how the Book of Mormon came and where from than what it contains; yet they pretend to know where it came from. And if they don't happen to know, they have plenty of uncles and aunts that do know, or at least ought to know. These make affidavits to assure everybody of the facts in the matter, and still they want to investigate that part more than what the book contains. The fact is they want some means of ridicule, and they think they can find it there. I heard one man say that he knew that it was fished out of a canal in New York. I thought he "knowed" that because Spaulding Manuscript is now found. What next in the way of invention? Still he wants to investigate.

All are well. I go to Webb City next Sunday; then west. In bonds,

J. T. Davis.

GLENDALE, Douglas Co., Oregon, September 25th, 1885.

Friend Herald:-Perhaps a few lines from this part would interest some of your many readers. I arrived at this place the 3d of October, 1884; have spent the most of my time in Douglas county. At the present I am on a ranch, located on Cow Creek. This country is best adapted for stock raising, such as cattle, horses, hogs, and sheep. For cattle it is second to none that I know of. The price of cattle is about twenty-five per cent. less than in Iowa and Nebraska. Horses are very cheap; sheep can be bought for $1 per head; stock hogs two and a half cents per pound. There is some Government land here yet, where stock can find range, and by clearing the land of timber good farming land can be had. Wheat, oats, and barley are generally good crops here. This year, from drought we have but half a crop, something very unusual. Times are very dull here; no work can be had for love or good looks. Indolence seems to hold sway to a great degree. Morally, people here will compare well with those east. The health of the country is good, yet some sicken and die. The climate is very mild, some rain in the winter; seldom have a day without sunshine. We have plenty of deer, elk, bear, and panther. We have some churches of the different sects, and a very few Saints here. Generally we are known as Mormons of the Utah stripe. I wish some able Elder could visit these parts, I think some good could be done. Should any of the Saints come this way, be sure and stop with the Mormon on Cow Creek. They will be welcome. We feel very lonesome out here, have no Saints to visit with, no church to attend such as we had east. When I read in the Herald of the many camp-meetings, I often wish I could help swell their congregations and enjoy the company of the Saints as I once did. Dear Herald; I wish to say through your columns that I have not grown weary of the latter day work; and with one of old I can say, "It is the power of God unto salvation." May I ever live humble God unto salvation." May I ever live humble and serve my Master to the end. Then all will be well.

Your brother in Christ,
OLIVER HANSEN.

WHEELING, W. Va., October 14th, 1885.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in the Lord:—Our aged brother Ells is still living, but is very low at present, He can not last much longer, but he leaves this world with a bright hope, and we, if we live faithful until the end, will meet him where there is no sickness, nor pain, nor death. This latter day work is grand and glorious. It gives us a hope and a knowledge that passeth all understanding, and blessed are they that die in the Lord, for theirs is eternal life. Bro. Ells is at Bro. Griffiths' home.

I write these few lines with grief and sadness to tell you that Bro. and Sr. Griffiths are going to move away from here. It seems that I do not want to see the day come that I will have to say to them "goodbye;" for he has done a good work in this part of God's vineyard, which I will never forget. It was he that brought the glad news of the gospel. It was like bread to my weary soul, and it was in and through him and our Heavenly Father that we have our little chapel to worship in. I often think of how few it is that come in at the "straight gate." Reading in the Book of Mormon, 1 Nephi, chapter 3, verse 48, we discover that when Nephi was carried away in the Spirit, the angel of the Lord showed him many things that would come to pass, and he says: "And it came to pass that I beheld the church of the Lamb of God, and its numbers were few because of the wickedness and abominations of the whore who sat upon many waters; nevertheless I beheld that the church of the Lamb, who where the Saints of God were also upon all the face of the earth, and their dominions upon the face of the earth were small." Therefore we ought not to get discouraged at our small congregations, for so it was to be. I love the Book of Mormon. It confirms the Bible in all things. The more I read it the better I love it. Well, I must close, hoping that if we are not permitted to meet in this life, it will be our happy lot to meet in the world to come, where we will never part. Ever praying for the redemption of Zion and the welfare of all, I am ever for truth MARY S. GILL.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for Contributions solicited.

TO KNOW GOD.

"TESUS answered them and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."—John 5:16, The leading thought here suggested is, the knowledge of God, which we wish to consider under four heads, as follows: (1) Is the knowledge promised, actual and absolute in character? (2) Who may be the recipients of this knowledge? (3) The condition upon which it is promised. (4) How it is imparted?

The first proposition we affirm for sundry reasons. First, the nature of the case demands absolute certainty. If the Christian religion is not of sufficient force and vitality to secure to its recipients this, its deficiency is apparent, as the whole superstructure rests upon doubt and uncertainty. That which purports to be a savior of the soul, in the very nature of things, must not be ambiguous in character. Furthermore the gospel trumpet does not give an uncertain sound. Its facts, terms, and promises are positively asserted. The auxilises are positively asserted. The auxiliaries "may" and "can" are seldom, if ever, used. It is urged by some that the verb "know," as used in Job 19:25 and elsewhere, is to be taken in a modified or relative sense. Doubtless in some instances, it should be; but as it occurs in our text, we think not; from the simple fact, if no other, that the clause in which it stands contains a promise hinged upon a consideration before specified, which of itself involves all that could possibly be implied by this verb, used in a relative sense. "Know," relatively used, implies firm faith, implicit confidence, &c., all of which is essential in doing "the Father's will;" and upon this condition is promised—What? A repetition of the foregoing conditions? Certainly not. But just what we should desire, and have a right to expect-knowledge, in the full acceptation of the term. Not that its reception discloses to us all the mysteries of God's universe, nor the complete riches of his grace; but, "having tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come," we can gladly, truly, understandly say, "Abba, Father," "I know my Redeemer liveth; "and to know God and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent, is life eternal;" the gospel being "the power of God unto salvation."

And here allow me to say that the crowning virtue of the fulness of the gospel, and its supremacy over the various systems inaugurated by human wisdom, reside in the fact, that while the latter may do good by creating embryo faith in God, leading, -though imperfectly it may be,-men up the mental and moral pathway, heavenward, the former does all this, and more; it places its happy beneficiaries as the "house built upon a rock," so they are "no longer tossed to and fro by every wind of doctrine."

As regards the second proposition, who may become the recipients of this knowledge? The Savior's answer is "any man." The promise is limited only by the condition upon which it is made, and extends to "whosoever will," coupled with the earnest entreaty, "Come all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my voke upon you and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls; for my yoke is easy and my burden is light.'

The conditions upon which it is promised, in epitome, are, "to do the Father's will." This necessitates the removal of sectarian bias, repudiates every phase of worldlyism, condemns sin of every character, and leaves Jesus, our mediator, as prime expounder of the "perfect law," the exemplar of his Father's will, and the grand prototype of human perfection

The gospel genius as exemplified by this glorious personage is, that its participants should not only be honest, one with another; but each must be willing to suffer that others may be blessed. The righteousness of men is to pay what you owe, and defraud not; the righteousness of God is, "to bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." "Do," implies not only a proper exercise of the mind and condition of heart, but a faithful, voluntary discharge of every incumbent duty, a consistent and continued effort to please God.

We are not to become automatons, to be moved upon, but "new creatures," "lively stones," to act voluntarily. Passiveness is essential, nevertheless we must reserve judgment. (See 1st Cor. 14: 29; and 1st Cor. 10: 15). We are saved "by grace," but not in slothfulness, nor rebel-lion. "Grace" implies that God is pleased. "Enoch had their testimony, that he pleased God;" the secret of which was, he sought to serve him. Jesus was a beneficiary of "grace," because "he always did those things that were pleasing in His sight."

How the knowledge of God is imparted, is the next consideration. position assumed by some is, that knowledge of the existence of anything, animate or otherwise, can only be communicated through the medium of the five senses, that is, we must see, hear, taste, smell, or feel a thing, in order to be apprised of its existence. Granted that these physical faculties constitute the media by which the soul is brought in contact, and holds converse with its surroundings, it will be acceded that each and all of them are subject to deception. We aver, that it is not within the province of these faculties, to convey the absolute knowledge of God; and if men are dependent upon them alone, as a means of knowing and communing with Him, they will ever remain in com-parative ignorance with regard to his character. It matters not in this issue, Elife," it makes us "free from the law of whether He is corporeal, or "without body or parts;" "in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom knew not God;" and "by the foolishness of preaching," men are saved. In and the are saved. In and through the gospel, then there are means, if not foreign to, that are not comprehended by the world, with its combined wisdom, by which we are saved through the knowledge of God. over, the physical senses afore mentioned, are faculties belonging to the "natural man," and their powers do not range in proportion to the spirituality of those who possess them. Indeed, it often occurs that those of the most dissolute character, are highly endowed with all these senses, and yet the knowledge of God, and the purity of the gospel are matters as foreign to their comprehension, as the remotest star in the universe is beyond their gaze. And why? Because "the natural man comprehendeth not the things of the Spirit of God, neither can he know them, for they are spiritually discerned."—1st Cor., 2d chapter.

Paul here takes liberty to introduce an additional faculty, as the means, and the only means by and through which the knowledge of God can be gained. And in preceding verses he tells us, that "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, the foremost physical faculties], neither hath it entered into the heart of man, [through natural media], the things which God hath prepared for those who love Him. But He hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit; for the Spirit searches all things, yea the deep things of God. For what man knoweth the things of man, save by the spirit of man which is in him? Even so; the things of God knoweth no man, but [by] the Spirit of God. Now, we have received not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God."

When the prophet forecast the character of the coming Messiah, his excellence as "judge" was due to the fact that he should "not judge after the sight of his eyes, nor the hearing of his ears; but with equity,—such as the Spirit and wisdom of God inspires, should he judge for the meek of the earth." Right or wrong, Job seems to have cherished the idea of spirit intuition, and based his knowledge of God upthis principle. He speaks thus: "I know that my Redeemer liveth." "There is a spirit in man, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding." Yes, the direct impact of spirit upon spirit, constitutes a means by which knowledge, pure and reliable, may be, and is imparted; and without this, the purity and true worth of the gospel, are hid to all men. "If our gospel, [Paul believed in revelation], is hid, it is hid to them that are lost," because "the God of this world hath blinded the minds, [not the eyes], of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ * * should shine unto them."

The gospel is not a dead letter to follow after, but that which we may and must participate in, else we are not materially benefitted. Being "the law of the spirit of sin and death," in that it gives to us the knowledge of God, through the revelation of its own will. The world, if full of error and extremes, (and theology is not without its share of them), unfortunately for them, we think, some suppose the Spirit of God is embodied in the written word, and is set fast, so to speak, in the volume called the Bible; and for proof we are referred to the Savior's statement, with others, "my words are spirit," &c., thus making the gospel simply a ceremonial law, to follow after, instead of a joyful experience to participate in. The gift of the Holy Ghost, promised to all true followers, is the New Testament. Though claiming to receive the Spirit "through the word," its office work, (which is to enlighten the minds and purify the hearts of men), is virtually denied, while intuition is regarded as a fantasy of misguided brains.

This extreme, for so we conceive it to be, has its origin, we think, in a labored effort to meet its opposite; which is to "get religion" suddenly, through a spasmodic effort of self and kindred spirits, by an entire or partial disregard of Bible precedents and commandments, making loud claims to all the felicities which the Holy Ghost is supposed to bring; and all this is realized by these modern Christians, without works or baptism, while Jesus, the head and chief, Paul, Peter, James, John, and all their contemporaries, "wrought out their salvation with fear and trembling," through a strict obedience to every require-ment of the "perfect law." Of the honesty and sincerity of all we have naught to say. "God hath appointed a day, in which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man [Christ] whom he hath ordained." Facts and principles are the things with which we have to do. The gospel does not teach or encourage either one of these extremes. Like a mirror in which we see reflected our own image, gospel light discovers the imperfections of that which is placed in juxtaposition with it. It teaches that while the letter of the law is essential, demanding strict obedience to all its requirements, without the luster and brilliancy of the Spirit, it is dead. "The letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life."

Paul, as well as Timothy, was "acquainted with the Holy Scriptures, which were able to make him wise unto salvation," and evidently he had heard the gospel preached by the chosen servants of God; yet "he received it not of man, neither was he taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." It will not detract from the merits of the Bible, to the candid, thinking mind, to say that this book never gave to any man the knowledge of God. If simply reading its contents grants this knowledge, then we argue friend Ingersoll and his compeers have it. "But" says one, "Ingersoll don't believe it." No. But suppose he did, would that give to him the knowledge of its contents, or would it secure to him a knowledge of God? The Bible, when understood, and its precepts are appreciated and obeyed, is the happy as those who receive chaff for wheat. Again, to claim to have reached the end, though ignoring the only legitimate means given to this end, is ambiguous, to say the least. Paul prayed that his Ephesian brethren might "receive the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of God." Jesus declared that none "knew the Father but the Son, and him to whom the Son would reveal him." When he made flesh his tabernacle, and dwelt among men, his entreaty was: "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me;" yet, those who should have been the most conversant with these Scriptures failed to recognize in this meek and lowly personage, "God manifest in the flesh." They had eyes to see, and ears to hear, with other senses unimpaired, yet these "things" were "foolishness to them, because they are spiritually discerned." Oh, why will men content themselves with chaff, when the sweet bread of life is so near at hand? "The Spirit and the Bride say come." Oh come, ye, and drink the water of life. G. S. HYDE.

A DIALOGUE

RESPECTING THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN THESE LAST Days, the Church of Christ in Former Days, and the Churches of so-called MODERN CHRISTIANITY.

BETWEEN DR. TWINETEXT AND ELDER D. PART SECOND.

Elder D .- Good evening, Dr. Twinetext. As you so kindly proposed to renew our conversation on the the subject of the Church of Christ in former days, and also of the Church of Latter Day Saints, together with so-called modern Christendom, I thought I would visit you that we might the more fully investigate the matters in question, and, if possible, come to a better understanding of the subject.

Dr. Twine-text.—I am glad you have come, and I trust your mind will be open to conviction. Be seated, and we will at once enter upon the subject. Let us see; what were the points at issue when we parted?

D.—The possibility of the Church of Christ departing from the faith.

T.—That is true. Well, I must insist that when our blessed Lord uttered that memorable declaration, "Upon this rock will I build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it," he meant that it would not be possible for the gates of hell to prevail against it; and that the church should never depart from the order as established by him.

D.—My friend, in teaching the word of God it is always best to read it in the light of its own recorded truths, and not according to our imaginations of its meaning. The promises of God are conditional, whether made to individuals or to the whole body of believers; and so long as the conditions are complied with by those to whom the promises are made, God is bound by his unchanging word to fulfill his promises. Here is a promise in point:

shall be done unto you." (John 15:7 Suppose they did not abide in him, would he be bound to hear their prayers and grant their requests?

T .- Not in that case; but the promise to which I refer is unconditional.

D.—Unconditional promises of blessings, nor unconditional threats of cursings would either encourage virtue, nor discourage crime, (the very purpose for which blessings are promised, or threatenings uttered), and would be manifestly unjust and would frustrate the purpose for which God has revealed His will to man, viz, the elevation of man to an infinitely higher plane of goodness, happiness and glory.

T.—Your reasoning there is correct; but you forget that Christ, through His foreknowledge, saw that His church would remain true to Him in all ages, and hence the divine assurance was given, "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

D.—If you mean that Christ foresaw that the church organized in that day would maintain, in its individual membership, or as a whole, the integrity of the truth, and the order established by Him, you are wrong, from the fact that the Scriptures declare the unfaithfulness of many, and contain many severe rebukes such as Paul delivered to the Romans, Corinthians, Gallatians, etc., and John, on the Isle of Patmos, was commanded to write to the seven churches of Asia, warning them of their sins, and commanding them to return to their "first love." Moreover, Christ predicted concerning his church that during the persecutions it would pass through, as set forth in Matt. "And then shall many be offended and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another. And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold." (Matt. 24: 10, 11). And then by way of encouragement to faithfulness, He adds:-"But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved," thus confirming His word—"The gates of hell shall not prevail against it,"—and this upon the condition of faithfulness.

T.—I must confess that there were many who departed from the faith even in the Apostles' days; but surely the whole church could not have departed from it, or how could those words of Jesus to Peter be true?

D.-My friend, that assurance had reference to the final outcome of the people of God, and not to their immediate struggles or trials, and teaches that the church would ultimately prevail, and be crowned with eternal victory over all the powers of hell. And here it will be well to remember, that the Church of Christ was a body of true believers, accepting him as their head, and organized after the pattern ordained by Him, the description of which may be found in the sacred word, (1 Cor. 12 chapter, also Eph. 4: 1-16), and abiding in His doctrine, (2d John 9). Now, so long as as the body of true believers are found, with the same organic pattern, teaching and practicing the same doctrine, observmeans to a joyful end; but when people "If ye abide in me, and my words abide ing the same ordinances, and enjoying the mistake the means for the end, they do err, in you, Ye shall ask what ye will, and it like blessings, as found in the Church organized by Christ, so long it is Christ's Church and can claim the immutable promise that the victory shall be hers. But whenever such a body departs from that holy order, and changes its organic form as given it by Christ, and introduces for "doctrines the commandments of men," then it ceases to be the Church of Christ. But this fact does not impair the promise to those who have lived and died in God's Holy order, nor to those who shall in the future, live and die in the same-"The gates of hell shall not prevail against them."

T.—Do you know of any scripture which directly declares that the people of God would, at all, be prevailed against?

D.—Please read Daniel, chapter 7, and you will find a prediction of events dating from Daniel's day to the coming up of the "Little Horn" whom your historians and commentators all recognize as the Papal power which came into existence after the establishment of Christ's church; and in verse 2 Daniel says, "I beheld, and the same horn made war with the Saints, and prevailed against them, until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the Saints of the Most High, and the time came that the Saints possessed the kingdom." As the Ancient of days has not appeared yet, final victory has not yet crowned the church.
T.—I beg pardon; Christ was the Ancient of days, and when he came did he not give the kingdom to his church? and has not his church retained possession unto this day? And is not its dominion spreading day by day?

D.—Who is the personage to whom the appellation "Son of Man" is applied?

T.—Generally to Jesus Christ. D.—Thank you. Now notice, that in verse 13 of chapter 7 after the prophet says, "I saw in the night a vision, and behold one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days." Here then two distinct personages meet face to face. One is "the Son of Man," the other is "the Ancient of days." Hence you are wrong in your conclusion that Christ was the "Ancient of days." Moreover, as Christ existed eternally in the bosom of his Father, he may be properly termed one of the Ancients of eternity! existing befor days were measured unto man, while the term "Ancient of days" would more properly apply to the first man who existed in time, or since time has been measured unto man.

T.—But, do you deny that Christ gave the kingdom to his church when He was here upon earth?

D.—The terms "Church," and "Kingdom," mean the same thing in some instances, but not in all. The term Church is in some instances limited to the body of believers in Christ organized according to the pattern, described by Paul to the Corinthians and Ephesians, as yet in the state militant, struggling to overcome the powers of darkness; while the term "kingdom," as used by Daniel 7: 14, 18, 22, 27, and also by Jesus and some of the and refers to the same church of Christ, in her triumphant state, who by faithfulness to her great captain will be given the victory, which victory embodies "dominion," or governing power, both civil, physical and spiritual. I deny that Christ gave the kingdom in this latter sense, to His people in that day; but He did tell them, by way of encouragement to faithfulness, "Fear not little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."-Luke 12: 32.

T.—I confess that, according to Daniel's vision, the people of God were to be prevailed against until the Ancient of days should come; but even this does not prove the apostacy of Christ's church. And I admit the truth of your former statement that if she had departed from the true order as established by Christ, then she would cease to be the Church of Christ; but I deny that such has been the case, and can not conceive the possibility of it. You must remember that, although the "little horn" might prevail, it does not follow that the church would prove unfaithful to her trust.

D.—It is refreshing to hear you confess that there is a possibility of the powers of evil prevailing, in a temporary sense. That is all I ask; for I verily believe that God will give the victory, ultimately, to His church. But I am astonished that you should doubt the possibility of a departure of the church, as a church, from God. Doyou admit the possibility of individual members forsaking God? If not, why all the warnings, cautions and promises to the believers; and even the foreshadowing of the doom that awaits those who may depart from Him?

T.—I have thought it was not possible for believers to fall from grace, nor do I believe they will as long as they remain believers; but I now perceive the possibility of them losing their faith and falling into darkness.

D.—Thanks for your frankness. Since, then, the members constitute the body, if one member falls, may not another, and another, until the whole body has fallen into sin? And when all have thus departed, what becomes of the organized body or Church of Christ?

T.—In that case it would be no longer the Church of Christ.

I have already shown that Christ predicted, as one result of persecution, that "Then shall many be offended and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another, and many false prophets shall arise [from among them undoubtedly], and shall deceive many. And because iniquity shall abound the love of many shall wax cold." This, then, establishes the possibility of a departure from God. Please read Paul's admonition to the elders of the Ephesian church. Acts 20: 28-31; 2 Thes. chapter 2; also 1 Tim. chapter 4; 2 Tim. chapters 3 and 4; Tit. 1: 9: 10; and 2 Peter chapter 2. You will find in these unerring words of prophecy confirmation of the words of Jesus respecting the great apostacy that would take place, showapostles, has a much wider signification, ing that it arose, as it must do to be apos- cities that astonish travelers by their vast-tacy, among the Christians themselves. The facts of history establish these predictions as true. On page 42 of Mosheim's history, he declares that even in the first century "the system of corrupting the plain words of Holy Scripture was adopted." And on page 60, he, in speaking of the second century says, "The ministry changed their humble tone and sought dominion and authority." Again, on page 69, "A number of innovations were introduced in administering the ordinance of baptism;" also that in this the second century, "the church was divided into various sects." On p. 72, he charges that "In the third century divine justice was provoked to diminish his gifts, because some did not scruple to use them for mercenary purposes." Limborch in his "History of the Inquisition," says "several corruptions of doctrine were introduced in the first century;" and that "these corruptions were increased during the second." Further, "Mysteries were introduced." "Christian pastors obtained a power they did not rightly apply." He further testifies that Ascetics arose in the church in the second century." "And in after times a multitude of puerile observances were introduced which first beclouded, and then almost extinguished every Christian doctrine." Of the third century he says, "Ceremonies were increased, and alterations were made, in the manner of celebrating the Lord's Supper." Then speaking of the "union of church and state, he says, "The first effect appears to have been that of producing a great degree of pride among the clergy, who knew no bounds to their ambition. These testimonies are but the confirmation of the words of Christ and his apostles, and prove that even in the first century of the church's existence, the great apostacy had begun. Volumes might be given, and ten thousand facts presented, that would prove not only the possibility of apostacy, but the actual departure from the true order as ordained by Christ. your mind will be open to conviction" be-fore we get through. We will continue this subject when we meet again, which I trust will not be long, and then we will examine the church as established by Christ, its form, doctrines and ordinances, Farewell. and blessings.

ORIGIN OF ALL THINGS .- No. 20. BY S. F. W.

ONE half of the descendants of Noah must have lived on this continent, or else Noah was not the progenitor of all. Did God then after making known his purposes to Noah and the patriarchs, thereafter keep his eye on only one half of this infinitesimal globe, losing sight of toiling millions of his children, descendants of the patriarchs, heirs of the promises, and subjects of the threatenings made to them? "God shall enlarge Japhet and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem, and Ham shall be his servant." This is the situation—Noah a This is the situation-Noah a prophet, the parent of all; and half of his descendants living on this continent in ness, and whose number is not known, filling a land not yet explored. Again, What think ye of Christ? Does God indeed notice the sparrows when they fall? Does he hear the young ravens when they cry? Are the hairs of your heads all numbered? We can not philosophize without the idea of God in the mind. If God made man, taught him through patriarchs for many generations, pronouncing bless-ing and cursings reaching throughout all time, confounded their language and scat-tered them "abroad" upon all the face of the land, and unto every quarter of the earth, did he not keep trace of man's wanderings? Who were the builders of the ancient cities of America? Let the Bible answer-Children of Noah, those for whom Christ died, akin to us by blood and adoption, born of woman as we and as We can not remove the ancient Americans from the providence of God without robbing him of his dominion, restricting his plan of salvation and belittling his character. What! one half the globe unknown to God? One half the race unknown to God? One half left out the calculation?

Again.—If any man lack wisdom let him ask of God who giveth liberally and upbraideth not. The words "any man" shows that James thought that all men were much alike, and God's relation to them much the same.

God, before the flood, way back in that other world, made himself known to man -Enoch walked with God. After this he still communicated freely with men—Melchisedec, Abraham, Jethro. They were men of like passions as ourselves, like passions as those who lived on this other side of the water. The sea is not in God's way; it can not be supposed to separate him from men.

How probable then, in this view, that God knew all about the scene that Stevens looked upon in wonder. Again, taking another text: "Christ is the light of every man that cometh into the world." Did all those millions die, and Christ their light know nothing of them, nor they of him? Our Christianity ought to be more comprehensive. Our faith ought to be more full. The discovery of half a world makes necessary as a logical sequence the discovery of new facts in theology to apply to it; or a readjustment of the religious knowledge already possessed. If a new dispensation of the gospel is to ever be given to man, a seeming fitting time is when a new continent is being revolutionized, a continent whose past ages are a wonder, but whose annals are unknown. A dispensation is promised, called "the dispensation of the fulness of times," when all things are to be gathered in one.

The gospel is not cramped. We are to believe much, hope much, love much; love all men, all generations of men. hearts of the children are to be turned to the fathers. It is a Christian grace to take an interest in the races that have lived before us.

Christ's sacrifice was for the sins of the fact to suppose that half the world never knew anything of that sacrifice till within these few hundred years? Christ's gospel was to be preached throughout the world; if the prevalent conception is right, the words should have been throughout half the world. The Catholic missionaries to Mexico believed that St. Thomas crossed the sea and preached on this continent. It is still more reasonable to suppose that the Lord had prophets and apostles on this continent, independent of those on the eastern continett. The world consists of two great continents—hemispheres. Shall we believe that a universal plan of salvation applied to one side only? What are seas to God? What to angels? aye, what to prophets and seers? When the angels sang above the shepherds of Judea were there no choristers on this side of the world over which they watched? If a star was seen in the east why not in the west? and when the sun was darkened did the enlightened nations on this continent have no intimation of the meaning? A standing objection of infidels is that the gospel confines the operations of the great God to this little infintisimal world, the objection gains force if we admit but one half of the world into the consideration.

Now that this other half of the world has been discovered and peopled by a new race of thinking, intelligent men, is it not time to begin to query about the relations of God to this country—what are his designs concerning it? What were his designs in bringing us upon it? What relation have we as a nation to him and to his general designs? and what have been his designs in former times? We find to our amazement that this continent has been peopled, as it is now, at a time we know nothing of. Cities as great as our own, are hidden from sight beneath forests thousands of yearc old! Nations have lived and perished here on this land where now God rules! Did they have any God? What was their fate? What shall be ours? Who were they? What relation did they sustain to God and to us?

I have been trying to meet these questions by showing the probability that as they were human they were like us, and being human the gospel plan applied to them, and this with their descent from patriarchs, makes it probable they had a knowledge of the plan of salvation. I have further hinted that they may have had covenant relations with God.

"God hath made of one flesh all nations of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitations. That they should seek the Lord if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us."

The former of these verses is positive and plain and must be admitted to sustain the position of these papers or denied altogether; the second is not so plain because it referred to spiritual experience, but it is equally direct, and equally applicable, if its full meaning be admitted. It means that God can be realized by any man in gree. All the known ancient forms of faith have much truth in them, and must have been given by direct revelation, or obtained by tradition from the times of Noah. We know of one remarkable case of inspiration and divine guidance of persons who were not Israelites, and not within the covenant; viz., the three wise men who were directed to the infant Jesus by a star, and warned to avoid Herod by a dream. This single instance is proof of the text, and of the position that the ancient inhabitants of America were within the purview of this declaration. If we admit revelation at all, we must believe that the first settlers of this land, after the flood, had correct traditions. With those traditions, and with the strong faith peculiar to the early times, it becomes highly probable that they had knowledge of God by revelation. Surely man is adapted by nature for intimate relations with his Maker, and his Maker ever proclains his willingness to give liberally to them that ask; so it must be taken as granted that such relation existed between God and the ancient Americans, unless it can be shown that they had forfeited that right. We know they were civilized, for their works prove it. None but highly enlightened men could have made the grand structures that still amaze the traveler in those wild regions. Amid all the teeming thousands of those lands, who cultivated the earth, and navigated the waters, and reared temples, and palaces, and tombs; who reared children, married wives, and mourned departed friends, were there none who reached out by faith to God? None? Ah! then they were not like us! not like the ancients of Judea, Arabia, Persia; and if they did so reach out, and God did not answer them, then he is not our God as revealed to us. But if God fixed the bounds of the habitations of the ancients, and if they were like the patriarch from whom alone they could have sprung, God could have made himself know to them, and surely would have done so. Would he have peopled this great continent and withheld from it a knowledge of himself, and his designs in Christ? It belittles our conceptions to suppose so. He made the world, and made man, and made him capable of receiving instruction from him; appointed him his place to dwell, and by our text actually led or scattered men to all parts; and yet to all who came to, and grew upon this whole half of the globe, denied a knowledge of himself, and a knowledge of the plan of salvation made before the earth was formed,—Christ the lamb slain from the foundation of the world—preposterous! Such a belief is unworthy of God; is only half belief. We ought to rejoice in the thought that God is the "God of all the earth;" and we ought to rejoice in the thought that the ancient Americans were dear to God. We are commanded to love all men, why not love them, and feel an interest in them. Is it not a dictate of the Spirit of God to have a feeling of sympathetic interest in those who preceded us on this land that whole world. Is it consistent with that some sense; the question only is as to de- we love. And if by chance there were prophets among them, would not they look forward to our day? Would not they be interested in their posterity? and if there should arise a seer among them, or a kindred posterity, would not he be likely to be united by faith with them, and have a knowledge of them? Is there a communion of Saints? Are there guardian angels; and a cloud of witnesses above us?

Do we know the full meaning of the text, "They without us can not be perfected?" or of the promise, "He will turn the hearts of the fathers toward the children and the hearts of the children toward the fathers?" All this reasoning is based upon the claims of common humanity; but there is abundant proof in the Scriptures that the ancients of this continent had covenant relations with the Almighty. It is not my purpose to repeat these proofs now, but to rely upon reason as to the probability of the fact. The greater scope we give to God's covenants the more dignity and importance they assume. If we find the millions of this land in close relationship by covenant, with God, it enlarges our conception of the promise to Abraham, that "blessing I will bless thee, and multi-plying I will multiply thee." If Abraham's seed are to be as the sands of the sea, we as true believers should rejoice in evidence of the literal and spiritual fulfillment of the promise. If one particular family or branch is to become a multitude of nations in the midst of the earth, as true believers we should rejoice to find the promise true. We ought in fact, seek to confirm all the promises of God, for if we do not know that they are true we can not profit by them. If those that do not directly refer to us are not true, we can not rely on those that do apply to us. We can not afford to give up to the infidel any promise of God, for if a breach is made all may fall to the ground together. We ought to be jealous of God's honor, and when he has made a covenant and confirmed it with an oath, and repeated it often, we ought to have confidence enough in him to reverently hold him to his word, and regard with favor those who are ready to maintain that he has kept his obligations, and that his oath is sacred, and his promises not forgotten, and not revoked, and not disregarded or violated. is too plain to need emphasizing. should persist in maintaining that his covenants are enduring and far reaching, and that his designs are vast, and his revealed purposes are great; that one age does not exhaust his resources, nor one hemisphere limit his operations, and that the plan of salvation is comprehensive. God is great and we need to enlarge our conceptions of his dealings with men.

THE END.

It is said that there were twice as many lynchings as legal hangings in the country last year—a fact which shows that the failure to reach the ends of justice in our criminal courts is undermining reverences for law and initiating a mode of vengeance at war with the safety of society.

Who would venture on the journey of life if compelled to begin at the end?

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

Selections.

HOW A LITERARY MAN OUGHT TO LIVE.

THE business of health, for a literary man, seems to me to depend largely upon sleep. He should have enough sleep, and sleep well. He should avoid whatever injures

This means that the brain should not be excited or even worked hard for six hours before bedtime. Young men can disregard this rlue, and do; but as one grows older he finds it wiser to throw his work upon the morning hours. If he can spend the afternoon, or even the evening, in the open air, his chances of sleep are better. The evening occupation, according to me, should be light and pleasant, as music, a novel, reading aloud, conversation, the theatre, or watching the stars from the piazza. Of course, different men make and need different rules. I take nine hours for sleep in every twenty-four, and do not object to ten.

I accepted very early in life Bulwer's estimate that three hours a day is as large an average of desk-work as a man of letters should try for. I have, in old newspaper days, written for twelve consecutive hours; but this is only a tour de force, and in the long run you waste your strength if you do not hold every day quite closely to the average.

As men live, with the telegraph and telephone interrupting when they choose, and this fool and that coming in when they choose to say, "I do not want to interrupt you; I will only take a moment," the great difficulty is to hold your three hours without a break. If a man has broken my mirror I do not thank him for leaving the pieces next each other; he has spoiled it and he may carry them ten miles apart if he chooses. So, if a fool comes in and breaks my time in two, he may stay if he wants to. He is none the less a fool. What I want for work is unbroken time. This is best secured early in the morning.

I dislike early rising as much as any man; nor do I believe there is any moral merit in it, as the children's books pretend. But to secure an unbroken hour, or even less, I like to be at my desk before breakfast, as long before as possible. I have a cup of coffee and a soda biscuit brought me there; and in the thirty to sixty minutes which follow, before breakfast, I like to start the work of the day. If you rise at a quarter past six there will be comparatively few map peddlers, or book agents, or secretaries of charities, or jail-birds, who will call before eight. The hour from will call before eight. 6:30 to 7:30 is that of which you are most sure. Even the mother-in-law or the mother of your wife's sister's husband does not come then to say that she should like some light work with a large salary, as matron in an institution where there is nothing to do.

I believe in breakfast very thoroughly, and in having a good breakfast. I have lived in Paris a month at a time, and detest the French practice of substituting for breakfast a cup of coffee, with or without an egg. Breakfast is a meal at which much time may be spent with great advantage. People are not apt to come to it too regularly, and you may profit by the intermission to read your newspaper and lecture on its contents. No harm in spending an hour at the table.

After breakfast, do not go to work for an hour. Walk out in the garden, lie on your back on a sofa and read; in general, "loaf" for an hour, and bid the servant keep everybody out who rings the bell, and work steadily till your day's stent is done. If you have had half an hour for breakfast, you can make two and a half now.

It is just so much help if you have a good amanuensis; none, if you have a poor one. The amanuensis should have enough else to do, but be at liberty to attend to you when you need. Write as long as you feel like writing; the moment you do not feel like it give him the pen and walk up and down the room dictating. There are those who say that they can tell the difference between dictated work and work written by the author. I do not believe them. I will give a share in the Combination Protoxide Silver Mine of Gray's Gulch to anybody who will divide this article correctly between the parts which are dictated and those which are written with my own red right hand.

Stick to your stent till it is done. If Philistines come in, as they will in a finite world, deduct the time which they have stolen from you, and go on so much longer with your work, till you have done what you set out to do.

When you have finished the stent, stop. Do not be tempted to go on because you are in good spirits for work. There is no use in making ready to be tired to-morrow. You may go out of doors now; you may read; you may, in whatever way, get light and life for the next day. Indeed, if you will remember that the first necessity for literary work is that you have something to say before you begin, you will remember something which most authors have thoroughly forgotten or never knew.

This business of writing is the most exhausting known to men. You should, therefore, steadily feed the machine with fuel. I find it a good habit to have standing on the stove a cup of warm milk, just tinged in color with coffee. In the days of my bouyant youth I said, "of the color of the cheek of a brunet in Seville." I had then never seen a brunet in Seville, but I have since; and I can testify that the description was good. Beef tea answers as well; a bowl of chowder quite as well as either. Indeed, good clam chowder is probably the form of nourishment which most quickly and easily comes to the restoration or refreshment of the brain of man.

If this bowl of coffee, or chowder, or soup, is counted as one meal, the workingman who wishes to keep in order will have five meals a day, besides the morning cup of coffee, or of coffee colored with milk, which he has before breakfast. Breakfast is one; this extended lunch is another; dinner is the third, say at halfpast two; tea is the fourth, at six or seven; and, what is too apt to be forgotten, a sufficient supper just before bedtime is the fi th. This last may be as light as you medical gentlemen please, but let it be sufficient. A few oysters, a slice of hot toast, clam chowder again, or a bowl of soup. Never go to bed in any danger of being hungry. People are kept awake by hunger quite as much as by a bad conscience.

Remembering that sleep is the essential force which the whole scheme starts, decline tea or coffee within the last six hours before going to bed. If the women-kind insist you may have your milk and water at the tea-table colored with tea; but the less the better.

Avoid all mathematics or intricate study of any sort in the last six hours. This is t'e stuff dreams are made of, and hot beads, and the nuisances of waking hours.

Keep your conscience clear. Remember t! at because the work of life is infinite you can not do the whole of it in any inited period of time, and that, therefore, you may just as well leave off in one place as another.

Reading this over, I see that at the proper place I have not said that no work of any kind should be done in the hour after dinner. After any substantial meal, observe, you need all your vital force for the beginning of digestion. For my part, I always go to sleep after dinner, and sleep for exactly an hour, if people will only stay away; and I am much more fond of the people who keep away from me at that time than I am of the people who visit me.

Pardon me that I have used so often the first person singular in giving this advice, but your letter asks me what my habits are and does not ask for those of the Empress Semiramis. Believe me, dear sir, very truly yours,

EDWARD E. HALE.

THE LATTER DAY SAINT.

"LAST Sunday, Sept. 20th, 1885, Elder J. A. Robinson, of Peoria, Illinois, and a teacher of the Latter Day Saint orthodoxy, delivered three sermons in the Christian Church in our city; one in the morning, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. In the morning sermon the Elder assumed that Christ died for all who had lived upon this earth since the creation of Adam, or who will live until the end of time, and that they will all be saved. He also showed when a man is saved, and affirmed that many will be lost who were once saved. That the man who nad the testimony of Jesus, (Rev. 19: 10,) confirmed in him, is saved, is elected, is ipreordained, and remains so just so long as he lives according to the principles of salvation, election and foreordination, (which, he claimed, are the principles of the gospel of Christ,) and no longer; and 👗 pointed out what was the sin against the pendence District, and report at next conference.

Holy Ghost. That Christ went and preached to the spirits in the prison. Bridged the gulph between the rich man man and Lazarus, and proved that there were three distinct heavens, typified as heaven No. 1, the glory of the sun; No. 2, the glory of the moon; No. 3, the glory of the stars. The afternoon sermon was a continuation; but the evening sermon was on the "Signs of the Times," and was full of interest and surprising statements, upheld and believed by the Latter Day Saints. As, for instance, he quoted one place in Isaiah, [Nahum.—Ed.] in which that prophet says that in the days when the Jews are to be restored to their own country the chariots would rush through the streets with flaming torches, that they would jostle together, and run with the speed of the lightning. The Elder claims that time is now being fulfilled, and the chariots there mentioned means our railroad trains. The above is only an idea of the many statements made, which were all interesting, and were proven up by the scriptures according to their way of think-"The Elder is a very rapid talker and it took the closest attention to keep up with his line of thought, and many complained that they did not get all of the sermons on hat account."—Sangamon Valley Times.

Conserence Minutes.

INDEPENDENCE

The Independence District Conference convened at the Saints' Church, in Independence. Missouri, October 3d, 1885. F. C. Warnky in the chair; T. W. Chatburn, secretary. Branch Reports: Independence 406; 5 baptized, 1 received y certificate of baptism, 4 received by letter, 3 lied, 3 marriages; F.G. Pitt, president; S. Crum clerk. First Kansas City Branch 18; James Tankard, president, L. A. Schmutz, secretary. Armstrong, report referred back to branch for correction. T. W. Chatburn, J. W. Brackenbury, J. Curtis, J. H. Lee, F. G. Pitt (baptized 1), J. B. Tignor, H. Faulk, J. C. Foss (baptized 6), B. Myers, S. G. Mayo, J. T. Clark, S. Maloney, S. Crum, F. C. Warnky (baptized 5), T. E. Lloyd, W. Smith (baptized 5), E. Harrington, C. A. Bishop, (baptized 4); Priests A. Munn, H. Etzenhouser, J. J. Vickery, G. Harrington and R. May; Teachers J. Scott, W. Barbee and F. Gerber. Whereas, Bro. C. St. Clair has for about one year been under the ministerial silence imposed upon him by the president of this mission; and whereas, we believe that justice has been satisfied in his case and the law magnified; and whereas, the conduct of Bro. St. Clair has been such as to assure our confidence in his integrity and entitle him to our sympathy and Christian fellowship. Therefore, be it resolved, that we hereby request the president of this Mission to remove the disability of silence now resting upon Bro. St. Clair, that he may thrust in his sickle and reap. Bro. E. Curtis recommended for ministerial labor was referred to General Conference. Brn. John Brackenbury, S. Maloney and T. W. Chatburn, were appointed to determine the boundary lines of Inde-

Bishop's Agent A. White reported cash received $115.85; paid out $110; on hand $5.85. Election of Officers resulted in the election of F. C. Warnky president; T. W. Chatburn, secretary and treasurer; Bro. T. E. Lloyd appointed assistant president. Preaching on Sunday morning by Williard Smith. Saints' meeting in the afternoon; evening preaching by F. C. Warnky. Adjourned to meet at Independence, Missouri, on Saturday, the 13th day of February, 1886, at ten o'clock.

MOBILE.

The Mobile District Conference convened at the Three Rivers Branch, Jackson county, Miss., October 3d, 1885; F. P. Scarcliff in the chair, John Robinson, clerk pro tem. Reports.—Elders John B. Porter and F. P. Scarcliff; and Priest G. W. Sherman, reported. The president of the Mission, Bro. George Montague, was requested to labor some in this district if practicable. Bro. F. P. Scarcliff was sustained as president of the district and Bishop's Agent. The secretary of the district, Washington Boone, was released, and Bro. John Robinson appointed. Sunday forenoon a prayer meeting held, in charge of Bro. Warren Sherman, followed with preaching by F. P. Scarcliff. Preaching in the evening by John B. Porter and F. P. Scarcliff. Adjourned to meet at the call of the president of the district.

WYOMING VALLEY.

Conference of the above district convened at Hyde Park, Penn., August 29th and 30th, 1885. J. J. Morgan in the chair; H. S. Gill, secretary protem. Branch reports: Nanticoke 13; baptized 2, received by letter 5. No report from Dansville. Hyde Park 30; 3 baptized, 2 expelled. Elders D. Griffiths (baptized 4), J. Baldwin (baptized 2), J. J. Morgan (baptized 2), H. S. Gill and J. Edmonds; Priests J. Williams and J. D. Eckert; Teacher W. Harris, reported. Bishop's Agent reported $6 10 in hand. J. J. Morgan sustained as district president, J. D. Eckert as district secretary. Saints' meeting in the afternoon. Preaching in the evening by Jacob Balwin in English, David Griffiths in Welsh. Adjourned to meet at Nanticoke, Pa., November 29th, and 30th, 1885.

KENT AND ELGIN.

Conference of the above district convened at Blenheim, Kent county, Ontario, October 3d, 1885. John H. Lake, president; Richard Coburn clerk. Branch reports: Petrolia 28; 6 baptized. Ridgetown 21; I received by letter, I expelled. Baddertown 25; I received by letter, I removed by letter. Blenheim 38; 1 died. James Robb, Bishop's Agent, from January 1st, 1885, received $84.79; paid out $62; balance on hand $22.79. The above report was audited and found correct by J. H. Tyrell, S. Brown and Arthur Leverton. Elders J. N. Simmons (baptized 4), A. Leverton (baptized 1), B. Blackemore (baptized 5), T. Badder, J. H. Lake, S. Brown, J. Robb and R. Coburn; also Priests John Taylor, A. McKenzie and James H. Tyrrell, reported. The committee appointed at last conference on the Lindsley Church, reported that they had got it repaired, fenced, and seated; and all that they would ask the district to pay for would be the chairs to seat it, the amount being $22.30; the work and the rest was furnished by the Saints and neighbors in that vicinity. H. Leatherdale, P. McBrayne and A. Vickery, committee. The report was received and adopted, and the committee discharged. The clerk was authorized to draw up a subscription list, and if possible get enough subscribed to pay off the indebtedness. C. Badder, P. McBrayne and A. McKenzie, were appointed to define a new boundary line for the district, the old one not being satisfactory. After consulting the map they recommended that the counties of Essex, Kent and Lambton, constitute the Kent and Elgin District. The clerk was requested to notify the London District in regard to the boundary line. Bro. J. Robb tendered his resignation as Bishop's Agent, whice was accepted by the district, and R. Coburn recommended to the Bishop in his stead. Resolved that we tender Bro. Robb a vote of thanks for his services as Bishop Agent of the district. By request of the district president, Samuel Brown and Richard Coburn were appointed a Court of Elders to settle difficulties in the Howard Branch. Bro. J. H. Lake to be our delegate to represent the district in the General Conference; also, that it is the wish of this district that Bro. J. H. Lake be returned as president of the Canada Mission. Arthur Leverton was sustained as district president, and R. Coburn as clerk. Sunday morning prayer and testimony and sacrament meeting; preaching in forenoon by J. N. Simmons; in the afternoon by Arthur Leverton; in the evening by J. H. Lake. Before preaching in the evening two that had been baptized were confirmed. Adjourned to meet in the Zone Branch, on the second Saturday in June, 1886.

Miscellaneons.

The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

FIFTH QUORUM OF ELDERS.

On the 23d day of Novmber, the six months provided in notices of Heralds of May 23d and July 4th, expires; at which time, by act of the Quorum, delinquents, such as have not been heard from are dropped. There are now twenty who are still without License; nine of these have not been heard from at all. All have been written to personally by me, except Jacob S. Goble and Elisha McEvers, whose addresses, as also Robert Fuller's, are wanted. Please send them once, anybody. The quorum was organized April, 1884. Good soldiers should be ready for work in one and a half years. We want the delinquents to bestir themselves, and get in rank if they purpose to. Let us all diligently occupy the winter months, that the work and we be benefitted, while God is honored, and his purposes brought about.

R. Etzenhouser, Pres. of Quorum. Box 58, RHODES, Marshall Co., Iowa.

QUORUMS OF ELDERS.

To the eldership composing the several Quorums of Elders, greeting:-Referring to the action of the Second Quorum, to-wit: "Resolved, that we request Bro. R. M. Elvin, president of the First Quorum of Elders, to call a general council of the Elders' Quorums at our next Annual Conference; and that notice of the same be given through the Herald." (See page 298 of Herald, May 9th, 1885.) Shortly after the publication of the above, I wrote to some of the officers of the several Elders' Quorums, upon the question of calling such a council, but up to date have received no reply. I therefore give due notice, that unless I obtain concurrence of the officers of the several quorums, I shall not feel at liberty to comply with the request of the Second Quorum. However, be it understood that I favor every means available for the increase of our mutual usefulness and unity of action in aid of preaching the gospel. We owe it to ourselves and the church, to make progression in our ministry, to improve upon the talent granted unto each of us. God hath been mindful of his church, in providing "governments" (1 Cor. 12: 28), and "organizations" (D. & C. 117:12), that every one who is interested, by ordination, in any capacity to represent the church, shall be enrolled in one of the quorums provided. We therefore seek unity in compliance with the law. The contemplated call rests with those to be called.

In the priesthood covenant,

R. M. ELVIN,

Oct. 10. Pres. First Quorum of Elders.

A REQUEST.

By an examination of the last report of our quorum, you will see that the secretary and president were authorized to prepare "a circular letter," and as the initial step to complying with your instructions, I herewith make this personal request of each individual member of the First Quorum of Elders, that immediately upon the reading of this request, you send me your address. Your brother in Christ,

Oct. 10.

ROBT. M. ELVIN, Box 60, Nebraska City, Neb.

MARRIED.

FRYMAN-GOULD.-In Liberty Township, Holt county, Missouri, on Sunday, October 4th, 1885, by Elder Joseph Flory, Mr. Frank Fryman and Sr. Fannie Gould, both of Holt county, Missouri.

BRACKENBURY-CHATBURN.-At the Saints' Church, Independence, Missouri, July 5th, 1885, Bro. J. A. Brackenbury to Sister Myra Chatburn, Elder F. G. Pitt officiating. The church was duly decorated and many valuable presents received.

BROCKETT-PARK.-At the residence of Mr. James Park, Runnels, Iowa, October 10th, 1885, Mr. William S. Brockett to Sister Clara Park, Elder William C. Nirk officiating.

HYLTON.—At the house of Mr. Milton Davis, at Vacaville, Solano county, California, May 19th, 1885, Bro. Alfred Hylton, aged 24 years, 4 months and 19 days. The decision of the coroner's inquest was that death was caused by sunstroke. He had been in the employ of Mr. Davis but one day. His father first heard of the death in the newspaper. Bro. Alfred was baptized by Elder T. W. Chatburn; was a young man of good reputation, and a member of the Platte River Branch, Southern Nebraska District.

Soule.-In Little Compton, Rhode Island, October 2d, 1885, of dropsy, Ephraim Soule, aged 66 years. At his request when living, his funeral service was conducted by Elder John Smith. He never embraced the faith, yet when the writer visited that place with the gospel eighteen years ago, and was made the butt of ridicule by other Christian worshippers, he took an interest in the cause by circulating tracts, books, and notices of meetings, and did much in his way in removing the prejudice from his neighbors. Previous to his death he seemed conscious of his end, and gave himself to much prayer, and confessed that we had the truth, and if his life was prolonged he would try and make a cleaner page for eternity. He was not a member of any church. I shall never forget his kind hospitality to me when laboring in the ministry. His was a generous and liberal soul. There was a lady present at the service who had vowed she would never listen to an Elder of this church, vet she paid great attention to the service. "Man proposes, but God disposes."

PAYTON .- At Glen Alpine, Antelope county, Nebraska, October 5th, 1885, of inflammation, Charles A., infant son of Bro. G. W. and Sr. M. E. Payton, aged fifteen days. Funeral services by R. H. Wight.

MAY-At Alymer, Elgin County, Ontario, September 26th, 1885, Sr. Annie May, aged 27 years, 4 months, and 12 days. Her remains were conveyed to Blenheim, Kent County, on the 28th, and on the 29th to the Saint's Church, where Bro. Samuel Brown preached her funeral sermon to a large audience of Saints and friends, thence to Evergreen Cemetery where her body was consigned to the tomb, to await the resurrection of the just.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

-) BY THE (-

Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church, at their Publishing House in

LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,

And sent Free of Postage at prices named.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

This is the official paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. It is explanatory of the faith of the Church, and promulgates the teachings of original Mormonism in contradistinction to Utah Mormonism. It contains correspondence from different parts of the world, giving accounts of the great progress of the Church, and setting forth the dealings of God with his people. Published every Saturday, sixteen large pages. Price, $2.50 per year. Joseph Smith, Editor.

THE SAINTS' ADVOCATE.

Published monthly in the interest of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, and in the special interest of the Utah Mission of said Church. W. W. Blair, Editor. Terms 50 cents per year in advance, unless otherwise provided for. Subscriptions earnestly solicited; subscribe for yourselves and for friends deceived by the latter day apostasy.

PROPHETIC TRUTH.

Confirmed in the appearing of the Book of Mormon, an Israelitish Record of a Fallen People; paper
....each PROPHETIC TRUTH.

HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith the Prophet Sheep or Library binding 1 Imitation Morocco, gilt edges 2 Full Morocco, gilt edges 2 New Testament, Inspired edition	50 00
RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also, a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth	40
CONCORDANCE TO BOOK OF COVENANTS. An enlarged new edition; paper covers, 32 pages	10
BOUK OF MORMON. Roan, sprinkled edges	25 50
DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS. Sprinkled Sheep, or Library	25 50
THE SAINTS' HARP—HYMN BOOK. Imitation Morocco, marbled edges	25 50
BRANCH RECORDS. Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages	2 00
DISTRICT RECORDS. Printed and bound similar to Branch Records	3 00
LICENSES, NOTICES, &c. Elder's, Priest's, Teacher's, and Deacon's Licenses, each, per dozen. Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub. 35 for	12 50 25
*SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES. Sunday School Engineer and Record Book. Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 1000 for 16c. 16c. 16c. 16c. 16c. 16c. 16c. 16c.	25 20 40 70 70 2 25
THATTED A DADONED	37. d

WANTED A PARTNER

With fifteen hundred or two thousand dollars, to buy, one-half interest in a well established and paying business. None but reliable men who can give good recommendations need apply. prefer a brother in the church. Address, with your own hand writing, Robert Johns, 605 Illinois Avenue, Peoria, Illinois. 3oct4t

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L. F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville, Mo., and have always found it fair, square and honest in all its transactions:

Wm. Lewis,
T. T. Hinderks,
G. W. Wilcox,
S. L. Blake,
W. N. Boothe,
The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men whose recommendation are worth something.

Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands.

COME AND SEE OUR PAPE ALLL

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS.

Bottom Prices on all Goods. Hansen & Walker's Drug Store.

Abook of 100 pages. The best book for an advertiser to consult, be he experite contains lists of newspapers and estimates of the cost of advertising. The advertiser who wants to spend one dollar, finds in it the information he requires, while for him who will invest one hundred thousand dollars in advertising, a scheme is indicated which will meet his every requirement, or can be made to do so by slight changes easily arrived at by correspondence. 149 editions have been issued. Sent, post-paid, to any address for 10 cents. Write to GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU, (10 Spruce St. Printing House Sq.), New York.

J. H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store.

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

LATEST SUCCESS.

New Entirely An Easy - Running - Sewing - Machine.

—IT HAS

The Most Room under the Arm. The Best Self-Setting Needle.
The Largest Bobbin.
The Easiest Shuttle to Thread. The Most Perfect Tension.

The Most Reliable Feed.

The Mest Perfect Take-Up.
The Best Bobbin Winder.

IT IS

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI JOWA Agents Wanted by Kobert Johns

(Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in

INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL, AND PASTELL.

Also, manufacturer of

B E DSPRINGS.

THESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or wish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Catalogue, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fail for those who will be sent free. There is no such word as fail for those who work diligently.

FYOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue, anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handlin Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

... WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 10 ms when packed) for only 97c., IRON-HEATER included for $1.30, to any one who will act as a gent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3 50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a Picture Outfit.

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait. (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only 98c. Catalogue free.

Address ROBERT JOHNS, PEORIA, ILLINOIS.

(Successor to Johns & Ordway.) In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY. DR. IOHN SHIPPY.

Dental Surgeon,

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Gov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison of Kansas City, It traverses all of the six Great States, IOWA. MISSOURI. ILLINOIS.

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO With branch lines to their important cities and towns. t runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver, Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis, Chicago and Dubuque Chicago and Sloux City, Peoria and Council Bluffs Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omáha St. Louis and St. Paul. St. Louis and Rock Island, St. Louis and Chicago,

Kansas City and Denver,
Kansas City and St. Paul,
Kansas City and Omaha,
Kansas City and Burlington. Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points ith Through Trains to and from points located on its

At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada. It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

HENRY B. STONE, PEHL Ass't Gen'l Manager, CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass, Agent,

⇒BUSINESS∜ The Davenport Business College

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught. Bookeeping, by single and double entry; Business Arithmetic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circulars address

DUNCAN & HAWKS, Davenport, Iowa-

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed David Dancer, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANCER: communications and articles to the Editor.

THE SAINTS: HERALD.

"HEARREN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG TO SAYE IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCURINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBA.D: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, Sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 32.-Whole No. 651.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 31, 1885.

No. 44.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success. Entered at the Post Office at Lamont, Decatur county, Iows, as second class matter

The Saints' Henald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR

- EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 31, 1885.

THAT EPISTLE.

An Epistle from John Taylor and George Q. Cannon, to the late conference, held at Logan, Cache County, Utah, and dated Salt Lake City, Utah, October 6th, 1885, was read before the people on Wednesday, October 7th. We have read this Epistle carefully, and have made the following extracts from it, believing it to be a public document when thus given to the public, and as such subject to examination and comment and criticism, whether such criticism be friendly or adverse. In order to place the matter treated of in shape so that our comments and criticism may be fairly understood, we insert the extracts in mass, numbering them, and referring to them afterwards by numbers.

1.-"All forms of vice, if not directly encouraged by those who are charged with the duty of administering the Edmunds law, are at least viewed by them with indifference. They appear to have no care as to the most flagrant sexual crimes, if they are only committed by non-'Mormons,' or outside of the pale of matrimony, "Mormons" also, under the present administration of the law, may do what they please with women, be guilty of the foulest injustice to them and their offspring, if they will only disown them as wives. The war is openly and undisguisedly made upon our religion. To induce men to repudiate that, to violate its precepts, and to break its solemn covenants, every encouragement is given. The man who agrees to discard his wife or wives, and to trample upon the most sacred obligations which human beings can enter into, escapes imprisonment and is applauded; while the man who will not make this compact of dishonor, who will not admit that his past life has been a fraud and a lie, who will not say to the world: 'I intended to deceive my God, my brethren and my wives by making covenants I did not expect to keep,' is, besides being punished to the full extent of the law, compelled to endure the reproaches, taunts and insuits of a brutal judge."

2.- "Well-meaning friends of ours have said that our refusal to renounce the principle of celestial marriage invites destruction. They warn us and implore us to yield. They appeal to every human interest and adjure us to bow to a law, which is admitted on all hands to have been framed expressly for the destruction of the principle which we are called upon to reject. They say it is madness to resist the will of so overwhelming a majority. They say they see the gathering clouds, that they hear the premonitory mutterings of the resistless tempest which is about to break in destructive fury upon our heads, and they call upon us to avert its wrath by timely submission. But they perceive not the hand of that Being who controls all storms, whose voice the tempest obeys, at whose flat thrones and empires are thrown down-The Almighty God, Lord of heaven and earth, who has made promises to us and who has never failed to fulfili all His words.

"We did not reveal celestial marriage. We can not withdraw or renounce it. God revealed it, and He has promised to maintain it and to bless those who obey it. Whatever fate, then, may threaten us, there is but one course for men of God to take, that is, to keep inviolate the holy covenants they have made in the presence of God and angels. For the remainder, whether it be life or death, freedom or imprisonment, prosperity or adversity, we must trust in God."

8.—"Speaking concerning law, the Lord, in a revelation given through the Prophet Joseph, August 6th, 1883, says: 'And now, verily I say unto you concerning the laws of the land, it is my will that my people should observe to do all things whatsoever I command them; And that law of the land which is constitutional, supporting that principle of freedom in maintaining rights and privileges, belongs to all mankind, and is justifiable before me; Therefore, I, the Lord, justify you, and your brethren of my church, in befriending that law which is the constitutional law of the land; And as pertaining to law of man, whatsoever is more or less than these cometh of evil.'"

4.—"We are expressly commanded, and it becomes our duty, to uphold and sustain every law of the land which is constitutional; we have always had a strong desire to obey such laws, and to place ourselves in harmony with all the institutions of the country.

"We repeat that we desire that all men should be aware of the fact that we have been the upholders of the Constitution and laws enacted in pursuance of that sacred instrument.

"We still entertain the same patriotic disposition, and propose to continue acting in conformity with it to the last. Neither have we any desire to come in active conflict even with statutes that we deem opposed to the Constitution both in letter and spirit. Whatever opposition has been offered in that line has been only of such a character as is justified by the usages and customs of this and all other civilized countries, and such as the laws and institutions of this nation provide Nor have we the least desire to shun the consequences of our acts in their lelationship to the laws to which we refer, providing there were any assurance that our cases would be submitted to a fair and just adjudication. Events of the past few months give no ground for hope that such treatment would be accorded. It must be contended, however, that, as stated elsewhere, connected with this disposition to have or conduct passed upon as provided by law administered in the genius of justice, there never can be any hope of our yielding up, under any circumstances, a principle of conscientious or religious conviction. Were we to make such a surrender our conduct in that respect would not be in harmony with the guarantles of the constitution, which we are in duty bound to uphold."

5.—"This and other laws-notably the Edmunds act—inflict disabilities upon those of our people who are not in any way associated, by their acts, with polygamy. Thus probably about ninetenths of our community are punished for alleged offences for which they are in no way responsible, and in which they have taken no part."

6.—"Upwards of forty years ago the Lord revealed to his church the principle of celestial marriage. The idea of marrying more wives than one was as naturally abhorrent to the leading men and women of the church at that day as it could be to any people. They shrank with dread from the bare thought of entering into such relationships. But the command of God was before then in language which no faithful soul dare disobev.

"For, behold, I reveal unto you a new and an everlasting covenant; and if ye abide not that covenant, then are ye damned; for no one can reject this covenant, and be permitted to enter into my glory. * * * And as pertaining to the new and everlasting covenant, it was instituted for the fulness of my glory; and he that receiveth a fulness thereof, must and shall abide the law, or he shall be damned, saith the Lord God.'

"Damnation was the awful penalty affixed to a refusal to obey this law. It became an acknowledged doctrine of the church; it was indissolubly interwoven in the minds of its members with their hopes of eternal salvation and exaltation in the presence of God."

7.—"By the circulation of endless slanders and falsehood concerning us and our marriages, wrath and indignation have been aroused against us in our nation. The ignorance of the people concerning us and our doctrines and system have been taken advantage of. Constant attempts have been, and still are being made to induce the world to believe that our motive in espousing patriarchal marriage has been the gratification of gross sensuality—that our belief in and practice of the doctrine had its origin in licentiousness, and that the sanction of religion is merely invoked to furnish greater license for the indulgence of base passions and devouring lust."

8.-"Is there any necessity for lustful men and women in this age and nation to suffer martyrdom to gratify their passions? Whoever heard of a people preferring imprisonment and all manner of cruel treatment for the indulgence of appetites which they could gratify to the fullest extent in popular ways," especially when the judges upon the bench, the prosecuting attorneys at the bar, the juries who bring in verdicts, point out the way in which marriage obligations can be discarded and sensuality be gratified without risk or without punishment? The press and sectarian pulpits also echo the advice. The universal voice is: Put away your wives, cease to support them and their chiedren; be as we are, and you need not be put under bonds, be fined or be incarcerated in prison.

"Foul desire opens wide her arms and invites all to her lecherous embrace by easier paths than honorable marriage and the begetting of numerous children to be carefully trained and educated and made respectable and useful citizens."

9.—"Respecting the doctrine of celestial marriage, we could not, however much we might be disposed to do so, teach it to or enforce it upon, others not of our faith, without violating a command of God. We do not stand in the attitude of propagandists of polygamy. We never have believed or taught that the doctrine of celestial marriage was designed for universal practice. The Lord has made this clear, and recent events among us have also made it clear. 'Strait is the gate,' says Jesus, 'and narrow the way that leadeth unto the exaltation and continuation of the lives, and few there be that find it.'

"There appears to be a fallacious idea abroad regarding this doctrine. It has been asserted that there was a design to propagate it outside of our community, and thus introduce into the United States an element opposed to the Christian views of this and other nations. On the contrary, our Elders have been instructed not to introduce the practice of that principle any where outside of the gathering place of the Saints; and they do not preach it abroad to any extent even in theory, except on occasions when it is called for, or when they are assailed on account of it. At such times they respond by defending it as a doctrine of the Bible and not inconsistent with the laws of nature. It should also be understood that the practice is not generally admissible even among the Latter Day Saints. It is strictly guarded, the intention being to allow only those who are above reproach to enter into the relationship. The practice of the doctrine is not for extension beyond the church, and is even limited within its pale. The idea, therefore, that plural marriage is a menace to the general monogamous system is without foundation. This fallacy is further exhibited by the fact of the popular antipathy with which it is regarded, people outside of our church exhibiting a disposition the reverse of favorable to its establishment in other communities, making the extension of its practice abroad impossible. Furthermore, being strict believers in free-will, you Latter Day Saints know that no man or women has ever been coerced into obligations of that kind, much less would we desire to enforce it upon any other class of people."

10.—"The Lord will not be mocked. He will not bear with hypocrites; but they will be spewed out. If all who call themselves Latter Day Saints were true and faithful to their God, to his holy covenants and laws, and were living as Saints should, persecution would roll off from us without disturbing us in the least. But it is painful to know that this is not their condition. There are secret abominations practiced by those who are called Saints, which the trials we are now passing through will reveal in a manner terrible to them. Open sins are also winked at and condoned by Presidents, Bishops, Teachers and parents in a manner offensive to God and grievous to man."

11.—"Marriage was encouraged, vice was repressed. Women were free to form connections with the opposite sex to suit themselves, so long as these connections were sanctified by marriage. But what a change we now behold! A tide of evil surges around us. It threatens to overwhelm us and to reduce us to ruin. The flood-gates of vice are opened upon us, and not content with the rush of this filthy stream into our cities and settlements, those who hate us would do more. They would invade our dwellings; they would destroy our families; they would loosen every bond which has held society together; they would array wife against husband, child against parent, friend against friend; they would make every man, woman, and child a spy, an informer and a betrayer; they would sap the foundation of faith, confidence and honor, and make every one distrust his fellow."

12.—"But, Superintendents and Teachers of of Primary Associations and Sunday Schools, and Presidents of Young Men and Young Women's Associations and Relief Societies, remember this, that God will never bless an unvirtuous people, and while a flood tide of corruption, destructive of all true morality and virtue, is sweeping over the land, we must erect barriers to stop its contaminating influence."

13.—"The only thing that ever disturbs our serenity is the report of wrong-doing by those who are called Latter Day Saints."

The Epistle as a whole we think will prove to be an unsatifactory document. The fact that it was penned by men who dare not or will not permit themselves to be subjected to the test of faith to which they exhort their followers to submit, will militate against its force as well as against the sincerity of the men who so evade the test. Taken in some of its features, such as we present in these extracts, it can not fail to give dissatisfaction.

r. The statement here made that officers of the United States either encourage vice, or are indifferent to its existence, is a foolish and idle charge. The police regulations of Salt Lake City, as well as all, or nearly all of the larger settlements in Utah, are under the control of the church members, and not the outside element. If the social evil, or the vice of drunkenness and brutal violence resulting from it, are not suppressed, or punished when discovered, it is not so largely the fault of those charged with the enforcement of the Edmunds law, as it is of those who are in charge of the municipal power.

It is true that persons who should live in the repute and habit of marriage, in the territory, who are not Mormons, might be punished for such lascivious living under the Edmunds law. If any such are known to the leaders of the Mormon church, those men should at once lodge information with the Grand Jury, or with the commissioner of the district in which those persons are living, and have them punished to the extent of the law. If the leaders have no personal knowledge of such transgression, then should they give public and direct instruction to the church, officers and members, that they if possessed of such information as will bring those offending to justice, to make the necessary complaint before the proper tribunal.

Besides this, if the statement made by these men in retirement is indicative that there is such a state of sexual vice existing within the domain of their spiritual supervision, as to be a subject of just complaint against the officers of the Federal Court for not prosecuting the offenders, whence comes it. The presidents of the church have long been the directors and moulders of the popular thought, the shapers of manners and customs, the reprovers of what they thought to be wrong. The outside element has been in the minority hopelessly so, in the ratio of one to ten in the city, and more than that elsewhere, down to the place where the voice of one is not heard. Nor is that outside element now sufficiently large or strong, as to prevent punishment by local and municipal authorities, of offences against the public morality and well being of the community.

The war is not made upon the legitimate religion of the people. No judge or jury asks a single man of the entire church to repudiate his faith in God, or his trust in Jesus Christ. No man is asked to break or disregard any obligation or covenant which he could legally make. Not one is asked by the courts to violate a single article of the faith upon which the church was founded, and within the exercise of which it existed and flourished for years. No man is asked to discard or turn away the wife of his bosom, whom he had the legal and God-given right to marry. Nor is any man asked to dishonor any covenant he can lawfully keep.

It is doubtless hard for men to say or do what may be construed into the admission that their past life has been a mistake; that they erred both in precept and example. But the Elders of the Utah Church have been industriously asking men in the world, both in and out of religious circles, to make this admission; they have and are now asking them to admit that the covenants of marriage made by them in the world, were and are made null and void by the "new and everlasting covenant of marriage," commonly called "plural marriage." They ask that men shall so demean themselves in token of their willingness to do what they believe to be right, and because it is manly and honorable to retrace ones steps when a mistake has been made. This is all that the courts have asked.

2. Some of the friends of the people of Utah see the ruin impending, and invite those holding to "celestial marriage" to abandon its practice, not because the law to which obedience is demanded has been "framed for the destruction of the principle;" but because they realize that such principle is contrary to the law of God as given to the church, and also contrary to the law of the land, which law the church was commanded to keep. These friends who ask that the practice of plural mares riage be renounced, does so because they see in the measures adopted by the makers and administrators of the law of the land, not the persecution of enemies to the people of God, or their righteous faith; but the tokens of God's displeasure against a people who have broken his laws expressly given; a people who have refused to hearken to the voice of the faithful and true teachers of the gospel covenant, and have heard and heeded those who have counselled them to wrong courses. These friends see in these efforts of the officers of the Government to stop the practice of plural marriage, an effort permitted by the Lord to enforce by rule what he commanded as a spiritual precept: "He that keepeth the law of God hath no need to break the law of the land." They do not look upon these measures as persecutions of the people of God for righteousness' sake; but as a scourge permitted, and possibly ordained of God, to stop transgression in Zion, to restrain and overcome evils against which the true Israel of God have cried in vain, for the punishment of which they held no right and no power.

It is the wrath of God, not the wrath of man that these friends who advise submission to the law would avert. They fear the fearful result which must ensue to Israel if longer continuance in this departure from God's holy law is persisted in.

It is because they do perceive the hand of "that Being who controls all storms, whose voice the tempests obey." It is because they see the hand that holds the rod and fear Him who can and will punish transgressors, and who has promised that wickedness shall not flourish in Zion. It is for this that they advise and implore a departure from practices that are unlawful and a submission to the law, while yet the many may be saved from the tempest, though the few may be "tried so as by fire," or lost in the storm which themselves have invoked.

No power but the power of God could have given the Elders of the church the open doors and the prosperity of preaching unto conquest that they enjoyed for the first fourteen years of ministerial labor; and no power but that of God, or that exercised by his permission and knowledge for an end designed of him, could have closed the doors against the Elders of the plural marriage philosophy, as those doors have been and are being closed at home and abroad. And it is seeming folly to conclude and teach that it is but to try the faith and constancy of the few who are polygamists in practice that God is permitting those doors to be so closed. Those few are standing in the way of the onward sweep of the gospel of the Son of God in its simplicity, grandeur and power. "Judgment must needs begin at the house of God;" and until these men who are by precept and example bringing trouble upon the Israel of the Lord, do renounce that which is the cause of that trouble, the guilty and the innocent who uphold them in their guilt may expect to continue under that displeasure. Presidents Taylor and Cannon may not have revealed celestial marriage, but they are largely responsible for its continuance.

3. The "principle of freedom in maintaining rights and privileges" which belong to all mankind, is misapplied in any attempt to maintain a right, or a privilege that can appertain and belong only to a few. Any right or privilege which is not open to the acquirement and enjoyment of all who come under the constitutional law referred to in the passage quoted, can not be claimed by a few, exclusively, under that law, and be justified. The constitutional law of the land "belongs to all mankind;" and is enacted for their benefit and in their interest. The words "supporting that principle of freedom in maintaining rights and privileges," is a parenthetical one, and ought not to be construed as defining the intention of the lawgiver to set up any other tribunal to decide and pass upon the constitutionality of law, than the one provided for by the constitution itself. Hence, when Presidents Taylor and Cannon presume to arrest as unconstitutional the execution of a law of the land, which the Supreme Court has decided to be according to that instrument, they assume a prerogative not belonging to them, the exercise of which is pernicious.

4. All that can be made of this extract is, that those who wrote it have had and now have a desire to observe the law; but that they have in the past offered opposition to such laws, and that there is no hope that they will yield any religious conviction, "under any circumstances," by reason of which they have heretofore disregarded those laws, or shall hereafter do so. The sentiments expressed in the quotation are, that while they who wrote it wish to be understood as having a great desire to observe and obey constitutional law; but that themselves must be the judges both as to the constitutionality of the law and their action under it.

The statement at the start that the Presdency of the Utah church has a "strong desire to place themselves in harmony with all the institutions of the country;" must strike the popular mind strangely, when it is considered that the same parties "desire all men" to take cognizance of it. Especially must it strike strangely when it is considered that these men elsewhere state that it is not intended by them, or the people whom it is supposed they are representing in this epistle, to "introduce into the United States an element opposed to the Christian views of this and other nations."

The writers have mixed their meaning fearfully in the sentences here quoted, or it is intentionally a combination of words "fearfully and wonderfully made." As it stands without further explanation it means, We have not obeyed the law against polyga ny heretofore, and we do not mean to hereafter.

5. This is a plea for mercy for the active participators in polygamy as against the enforcement of the Edmunds law; because of the distress and punishment inflicted upon the rest of the community not in its active practice. But it is a long and well established principle in law that he who aids and abets a crime, or misdemeanor, and that he who screens, hides and sustains a criminal, is guilty with the perpetrator. Hence, while the nine-tenths of the community for whom these apologists for polygamy claim immunity from the disabilities of the Edmunds law, uphold and sustain the one-tenth in actual practice of plural marriage, they are accessories by public endorsement to the violation of the law, and ought not to complain of the punishment. It would be far more consistent and in accord with the principle of gospel self-abnegation, that the one-tenth should cease the practice that is bringing disabilities upon the great majority and let that majority go free, especially as it is admitted that they are "punished for offences [committed by others,] for which they are no wise responsible, and in which they have taken no part."

An inquiry should at once be made as to what are the disabilities that men not in polygamy are laboring under; and if they do not in by far the larger part result from the imposition of spiritual and temporal burdens imposed by these very men of the "one-tenth" part, then should there be some weight given to this plea for immunity, but if they do let those who bear them ask relief from the source whence their difficulties rise.

6. It is this very feature in this celestial marriage theory that gives the contradiction extraordinary to all the doctrine before taught in the church upon the subject involved. It also renders void the statement of Christ, "Whoever believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Besides this the Book of Mormon is called the new covenant; and the gospel the new and everlasting gospel. The apostle Paul taught the Corinthians that "the gospel which they had received, and in which they stood" was that also "by which they were saved," unless had "believed in vain." This celestial marriage covenant was not in that gospel that the Corinthians had received, nor was it in that confided by the angel to Joseph Smith when the "fulness of the gospel" was given. By the terms of this alleged new covenant, whoever does not obey it is to be visited with the "awful penalty" of "damnation." It is very singular that Messrs. Taylor and Cannon can so coolly write such a sentence as that when they know that they had already stated that only one-tenth of their own people had obeyed that dogma. They knew then and know now that it is an impossibility for all the men of the church to obey it. They must know that God knew and knows that all can not obey it; that the Almighty himself had made it impossible for all to yield obedience to it, by so ordering his laws called natural laws, that there were more men than women born into the world. They knew that men of common capacity everywhere must understand the nature of this physical barrier to the practice of this so-called celestial law, and the fact of its impossibility brands it as not emanating from the Divine Being. It is not compatible with the attributes with which he is invested by men for him to give a law to men which he has made it impossible for them to keep, or command what men can not obey.

7. It is very unfortunate for this statement that the developments made in the trials of those arrested for infraction of the Edmunds law; the number of cases of plural marriage where unworthy men have more than one wife; the facility with which men and women are sealed for time and eternity, and are divorced from each other by ecclesiastical edict, thus removing the eternal obligation, shifting it from eternity to time; the ease with which one set of marital ties are cast off and new ones contracted, all give grave cause for suspicion that but few, if any, marriages are contracted in plurality that do not rest for their motive in the desires of the flesh. This forces the conviction upon its observer that such was its origin also. The argument is not hurt by the admission that there may be honorable exceptions, but they are exceptions only. The principle must be judged by its general operation and not by exceptional cases.

8. The fling at the one wife principle prevailing outside of Utah in this paragraph is pitiable, coming from the men it does. God gave his church the one wife rule in Book of Mormon times, and commended the class of men that practiced it as being more righteous than their brethren who practiced plural marriage. It is also a stricture upon the nine-tenths of the men of the Mormon church itself, if the statement made by Messrs. Taylor and Cannon be true, for that number is given as not being plurally married, and in no wise in fault for its existence. If monogamy outside of Utah, where chastity, virtue and the sacredness of the marriage covenant is as earnestly taught and insisted upon as they are in Utah, is such a corrupting and terrible thing, how is it any better in Utah. Divorces outside of Utah are matters of public record, and can not be obtained from an ecclesiastical court, nor of one man, where no record is kept and no public examination into the causes for which decree of separation is asked for is made.

The last clause is an unfortunate one, for the statistics of births in Utah must show that there are no more children born to one hundred women in polygamy, than to the same number in monogamy. The men who wrote seemed to have forgotten that the possible number of children in a community must be determined from the number of mothers in that community and not the number of fathers; that in a community where the sexes are equal as they are in Utah, if one-tenth of the men absorb three-tenths of the women as wives and mothers, then two-tenths of the men are without wives and can not be fathers in honorable marriage nor even have the love and help of one wife; and while there are no more wives and no more children, and consequently no greater increase of the kingdom in that community, there are fewer fathers, and more men to be cast adrift upon society as "superabundant" male material to brood over their lonely condition, and to plot and execute mischief when opportunity offers. In this connection it is pertinent to urge that if the absence of men in those places where the females are in excess, as in Massachusetts. Connecticutt and other manufacturing states, is conducive to the existence of the social crime, as has been much insisted upon by Utah polygamists in the discussion of the question, it is because of the disparity of numbers resulting from local causes, which unsettles the conditions as fixed by the Creator; and it is certain that a similar unsettling of the even balance of numbers between the sexes resulting in an excess of males must also be conducive to the same social evil, and for similar reasons. The history of Utah when fully known will discover this conclusion to be correct; as it is but the history of other settlements along the frontiers.

9. Presidents Taylor and Cannon have certainly forgotten the statement made by the Elders when first presenting celestial marriage. For instance, George Q. Cannon preached a sermon, October 9th, 1869, in the Tabernacle at Salt Lake City, in which he said:

"If there were no books in existence, if the revelation itself were blotted out, and there was nothing written in its favor, extant among men, still I could bear testimony for myself that I know this is a principle which, if practiced in purity and virtue, as it should be, will result in the exaltation and benefit of the human family."

—Journal of Discourses, vol. 14, page 207.

On January 8th, 1871, the same man said:

"I fully expect to see the progress of this work in the future much more rapid than it has been in the past. I see the providence of God laboring to bring this about. Not to build up a people distinct from all the rest of the earth; not to build up some little, narrow sect or denomination; but this work and gospel is to embrace within its fold all Earth's children, every son and daughter of God on the earth. That is its mission, and it will accomplish it."—Journal of Discourses, vol. 14, page 28:

President John Taylor, December 17th,

1871, in the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, said:

"We live in a purer atmosphere, we breathe a purer air, we worship another God, we have another religion, one that is very willing and liberal enough to extend to all the rights that all men want."

Lorenzo Snow, in a sermon in the same Tabernacle, January 14th, speaking of the design of God, said:

"God loves his offspring, the human family. His design is not simply to furnish happiness to the few here called Latter Day Saints. The plan and scheme he is now carrying out is for universal salvation; not only for the salvation of the Latter Day Saints, but for the salvation of every man and woman on the face of the earth. It is for the salvation of every son and daughter of Adam."

And further of the future popularity and prevalence of polygamy, Brigham Young, the very man who forced it upon an unwilling people in Utah, August 29th, 1852, without even seeking their "common consent," then taught and predicted as follows:—

"The principle [polygamy], spoken upon by Bro. Pratt, this mornfng, we believe in. And I tell you—for I know it—it will sail over and ride triumphantly above all prejudice and priestcraft of the day; it will be fostered and believed in by the more intelligent portions of the world, as one of the best doctrines ever proclaimed to any people. Your hearts need not beat; you need not think that a mob is coming here to tread upon the sacred liberty which the constitution guarantees to us, for it will not be."

And then speaking of some not of the Mormon Church, he said:

"They are not ignorant of what we are doing in our social capacity. They have cried_out, 'Proclaim it;' but it would not do a few years ago; everything must come in its time, as there is a time to all things. I am now ready to proclaim it. This revelation has been in my possession many years, and who has known it?"—Mill. Star, Supplement, vol. 15, p. 31.

The same man said, Feb. 18th, 1855:

"Whether the doctrine of plurality of wives is true or false is none of your business. * * * Our doctrine is a Bible doctrine, a patriarchal doctrine, and is the doctrine of the gods of eternity, and of the heavens, and was revealed to our fathers in the earth, and will save the world at last, and bring us into Abraham's bosom, if we ever get there."—Jour. Dis., vol. 2, p. 187.

In regard to women being coerced into plural marriage, it is a curious statement, in view of the fact that the most strenuous efforts of the Elders of the church have been constantly put forth to compel a belief in the dogma, and to prevent the women from "breaking the chain cable of the church," as Jedediah M. Grant long ago declared that they would if they could. There needed to have been no more dreadful coercion exercised than has been to terrorize women to crucify their repulsion to the doctrine and "overcome self," which meant the revulsion of the womanly instincts in them by force of submission.

ro. Were any one else, outside of the people whom these men are identified with, to allege that the Saints of Utah were guilty of the things of which their presiding officers here charge them openly, he would be decried by those same presidents as liars trying to defame an innocent people and incite their enemies to persecute them. If the allegations made in this extract are true and prosecutions before the courts are falling upon the ones who are guilty, why should those prosecutions be complained of by these absent but accusing leaders.

11. It does not appear that honorable marriage, where one companion only for each contracting party was contemplated, has been persistently taught; but in many instances this sort of marriage has been displayed, and plural marriage extolled to the discouragement of the one wife idea. Leading men have ridiculed the idea of men having but one wife; and an apostle has lately stated that the "man who was unworthy to have two or more pure women as his wives, was unworthy to have one." While it may be possible that a man who could not treat honorably three wives, might mistreat one, the inference seemingly intended to be conveyed was that an honorable and worthy man ought not to content himself with one wife, though she might be the "wife of his youth."

12. The statement here made challenges belief and acceptance. God will not indeed bless an unvirtuous people; and the environments now being thrown around the people of these valleys in the mountains, if permitted to culminate as it now appears they will, ought to admonish the great majority, who are not responsible for the incoming of the theory, that the Epistle from which these extracts were taken was written to enforce upon the minds of those to whom it was sent, should be satisfied that the accusations made in extract No. 10 by the writers are true, and that out of their own mouths they have convicted themselves. This majority should therefore take such measures as will be adequate to remove the evils that they may not be justly subject to the punishment sure to follow.

13. What wrong doing is it reports of which are disturbing the serenity of these absent shepherds. If they are full believers in the theory that God will punish wrong doing in those called to be Saints as well as the wrong doers among the wicked, why should they be moved by reports of such wrong doing. It would be far more to the purpose if the acts of wrong doing had been specifically named, the places where they occurred, and direction given by which they could have been either punished, or avoided in the future.

One thing seems to be quite certain, and that is, if the people should be held to endure the purifying of their faith by bonds and imprisonments, and these are to be inflicted by the officers of the United States Courts as they now exist, it is hardly commensurate with fairness for the leaders of that people to refuse to be tried before those courts because they fear that justice will not be done them, and yet exhort and direct that their followers shall submit to the same alleged unjust courts. Consistency is indeed a jewel.

THE "MANUSCRIPT FOUND."

Now that the "Manuscript Found" of the Rev. Solomon Spalding is printed and on sale at this office, we think it should be noted that when Mr. E. D. Howe of late demanded this manuscript of Mr. L. L. Rice of Honolulu, Hawaii, he thereby admits it to be the very one he received from D. P. Hurlbut and Mrs. Spalding (Davison)—the notorious "Manuscript Found" so often and persistently cited by by anti-Mormons as the origin of the Book of Mormon. And it also should be noted that the endorsement by D. P. Hurlbut on said Manuscript identifies it as the very one, and the only one, which "Aron Wright, Oliver Smith, John N. Miller and others" are made to say by Howe and Hurlbut, that they heard Rev. Spaulding read so often to them, for they testify that they are "the writings," etc. This being true, it is certain that Howe and Hurlbut either manufactured or remodelled and corrupted the statements of Wright, Smith, Miller and others, where they make them say, in their "History of Mormonism," that they perceived a similarity in plot, names, praseology, and special statements, in both the Book of Mormon and the said manuscript; for all who read the two will see they are not alike in any of these respects. The Book of Mormon describes what occurred under two distinct civilizations in successionthe first coming out from the Tower of Babel about 2247 years before Christ; the other, Israelitish, coming out from Judea about 600 years before Christand both locating and flourishing in the northern part of South America, in Central America, and in the southern part of North America, chiefly; while the scenes of the "Manuscript Found" are located mainly in those limited regions adjacent to the upper Ohio river and tributaries, the chief actors in them being a few shipwrecked Romans and the Indians.

That Mr. Howe, and his fellow did change, and thereby corrupt the statements they published in their "History of Mormonism," may be further rendered probable, from the fact that, on page 288 of their book they say the manuscript they obtained from Mrs. Davison, the widow of Spalding, contained "about on quire of paper;" and now that we have that very document, well attested, we find it contains over 174 pages of foolscap, instead of a quire—twenty-four sheets!

Writers who will thus misstate facts of which they well know-and which they evidently intend others shall not knoware likely to manufacture any statement they may think will suit their theores and their purpose. Whoever reads this Manuscript Found and the Book of Mormon, will readily perceive that the author of the first was mentally, morally, religiously, and in point of essential learning, utterly incapable of writing the Book of Mormon, or anything like it. These, "the writings of Solomon Spaulding, proved by "Aron Wright, Oliver Smith, John N. Miller and others," whose testimony is witnessed by that chief of anti-Mormons, D. P. Hurlbut, furnish us the full measure of their writer in respect to his abilities, tastes, and qualifications, enabling all to see the falsity and the wickedness of the claim that Mr. Spaulding's "Manuscript Found" furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the leading and chief material for the Book of Mormon. All fair-minded persons will accede to this when they examine the matter. Dr. Hyde, whose article appears in this issue, concedes this point. The enemies of the Book of Mormon will in the future hardly use this self-refuted "Manuscript Found" theory. But their inventive genius is likely to evolve some other-and probably just as false and foolish. We shall see.

We see by the Logan Journal of October 10th, that Apostle F. D. Richards said in the late conference at Logan, Utah:

"I want it understood that there was no law against this [polygamy] feature of our belief when it was adopted."

If this be so, why does he and his kind claim that it was a doctrine of the church in Nauvoo, Illinois, in 1843, and after? For it is a certain fact that polygamy, or anything of that kind, was prohibited by law, and punished as a crime, in Illinois, at that time, as it was also in Iowa. If any man practiced polygamy in Illinois in 1843, and after, he violated the law of that State. And if he practiced it in Iowa, he there violated State law.

But if polygamy was not adopted by the Utah Mormons till 1852, in Utah, as Mr. Richards seems to claim, still there was law against it—the law given to the church in the Book of Mormon (see Book of Jacob 2:6-10), and reiterated in the revelation given to the church, February 9th, 1831, in Doctrine and Covenants; the laws of the various States and organized Territories of the United States, which owned and governed the whole territory of the nation; and also "the common law" of all enlightened nations.

This view has been held by President Joseph Smith from the first, and is now held by the United States Courts. Whenever and wherever the Latter Day Saints have taught and practiced polygamy, they have violated written laws of both God and man.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. R. J. Anthony writes us from Ogden, Utah, Ocother 13th, en route to Plain City, and thence to Albion, Cassia county, Idaho, to labor in that region for a season, saying:

"Last Sunday night Joseph preached the best discourse in Salt Lake he has delivered in Utah; so I think. We are bound to win. All goes fairly; but the clouds continue to gather over the polygamists."

Bro. J. J. Cornish writes from Manistee, Michigan, October 20th:

"Our conference is just over. It was a grand one, and we were much blessed. One was baptized. I came here last night and intend visiting the Saints in this region. There are many scattered through these parts, and they seem to be sound in the faith. We are growing."

Bro. M. H. Forscutt, in a letter dated Cheltenham, Mo., October 17th, says:

"I have been preaching here two nights, preach to morrow in St. Louis again. Next week go to Pittsburg, Pa. Love to you and all in the office."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE Utah Journal claims that the Brighamite Church "occupies a very conspicuous place among the people of this earth." Yes, it does; but not to its honor, nor to the honor of the work of Christ. Paul predicted (2 Tim. 3:6-9) that a certain class in "the last days" would "creep into houses, and lead captive silly women, laden with sins, led away with divers lusts, ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth," * * * and that such would "resist the truth; men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith. But they shall proceed no further; for their folly shall be manifest to all men." This is now rapidly coming to pass, and the end thereof is drawing nigh.

Bro. John Pett writes us from Dow City, Iowa, October 15th, that on Sunday, the 11th, there were no services held at the Galland's Grove Re-union, but that a subscription paper was circulated, and $122 was subscribed toward the purchase of a wall tent suitable to seat one thousand to fifteen hundred persons, for conference and re-union purposes in the Little Sioux and Galland's Grove Districts. This is a most commendable work, and if carried forward with zeal and prudence, it will result well both in respect to the health and comfort of the people, and will also tend to call out some noble ones who are too aged or delicate to brave the rain and cold.

Sr. H. B. Emerson, whose pen has frequently edified the readers of the Herald, has come to spend a few months at least among her relatives and the Saints and friends at Lamoni. She is now with her brother, (and our brother), S. F. Walker and family. We wish her a most happy and prosperous sojourn, and would be glad indeed to know that she will become a permanent resident here.

Bro. J. R. Cook, writing from Sacramento, Cal., October 12th, says of the Herald: "I think it is the best paper, I ever saw." The endorsement of able and efficient ministers like Bro. Cook is gratifying and encouraging.

Bro. Jesse Mason of this place, an oldtime Saint, says he heard Brigham Young say, after they had crossed over into Iowa from Illinois, in 1846, that the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, were no longer of force with them; that they were "like a little boy's clothes for a man—they had out grown them;" and that "all past covenants and contracts were no longer of force."

We call attention to the article of Dr. Hyde, taken from the Boston Congregationalist, on the Solomon Spaulding "Manuscript Found," and its reputed connection with the Book of Mormon. Read it.

Bro. R. D. Coburn writes, the 10th inst., that the late Kent and Elgin (Ont.) conference was good, and that a pleasant and profitable time was had, the spirit of peace and love prevailing.

Bro. O. H. Brown writes from Omaha, Nebraska, under date of October 10th, that he goes out preaching in his district, finds many calls, has a large degree of the Spirit of the Lord, and hopes to continue to work zealously for the Master for all time to come.

Bro. S. O. Foss, writing from Jonesport, Maine, October 1st, 1885, that he is not aware of any meeting having been held until daylight, in the district. There was one held until about two in the morning, upon the occasion of the dedication of the chapel at Kennebec. Bro. Foss thinks that Bro. Sheehy may have been misinformed, and that his informant probably spoke without due thought, when referring to the late hour of holding meeting, in calling it daylight. Bro. Foss had not heard that the Maine Saints were taught that unless members had received the gift of tongues or prophecy they had not received the Holy Ghost, until he saw the statement in Bro. Sheehy's letter. He reports the Saints feeling bad over Bro. Frank's letter, and thinks some one ought to be sent who will aid the branches to a better condition of things. He thinks Bro. John Foss could help them, as he is well acquainted with the feelings of the people.

A BAD KIND OF "WILLING" ONES.

We clip from the Expositor for October, the following, and premise that "the other" willing ones mentioned are not fit for the kingdom of God. Jesus says of that class: "It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill; but men cast it out."-Luke 14: 35. The noble and good of earth, both in and out of the church of Christ, have patiently and cheerfully labored for the good of others in all proper ways. And no one is worthy of a place in the church in this world, nor in the world to come, who will not aid what that they can, wisely, to build up the church in its work to bless and save man-

"There are two kinds of 'willing' people in this world: one of them is willing to do, to labor and spend their time and money for the cause of Christ, and the others are willing they should. One is willing to sacrifice the comforts of life to sustain the work, and carry the gospel to those who are starving for the bread of life; and the others are willing they should. One is willing 'to face a frowning world' to benefit their fellow man; the other is willing they should. One is willing to suffer for the necessaries of life that the gospel may be supported; the other is willing they should. One is willing to visit the poor and needy, assist them to food and raiment, pray for and administer to the sick and afflicted, to watch over them and comfort and cheer them up; the others are willing they should."

ADDRESSES.

Presiding Bishop: G. A. Biakeslee, Galien, Mich.
Elder Joseph Luff, Box 307, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Elder Peter Anderson, Editor of "Sandhedens Banner," Box 1123, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Joseph C. Clapp, Bozeman, Gallatin Co., Montana.
Elder Alexander Hale Smith, care William Anderson, 1009
Broadway, Oakland, Cal.
Pres. Joseph Smith, Box 307, Salt Lake City, Utah.

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

Correspondence.

Box 427, Santa Rosa, Cal., October 11th, 1885.

Dear Herald:-It has been a long time since I wrote you, so I thought a few lines from this part of the Lord's vineyard would not be amiss. I take this opportunity of writing to let my friends know where I am and what I am doing. Circumstances, which were unavoidable on my part, have prevented me from doing much for the cause of the Master since I returned from Hollister; but prospects look brighter, and more encouraging at present than they have for two years past. There is a better state of feeling existing among the Saints here than I have seen for a long time; and I pray earnestly it may continue and that there be no more such coldness as there has been in the past.

Bro. E. L. Kelley was with us from September 28th to October 2d; held three meetings, encouraging and strengthening the Saints and enlightening their minds in regard to the law of tithing, which was meat in due season. The Saints were well pleased with Bro. Kelley, and would be very glad to see him again. They were disappointed in not seeing Bro. Alexander H. Smith, and hope he will not return east without visiting us.

During Bro. Kelley's stay there was a business meeting held, in which I was chosen to preside over this branch, and now we hold regular meetings. We have succeeded in getting a small hall on the Main street, known as Klute's Hall, Fourth street, opposite the Hall of Records, where we will meet every Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Prayer and testimony meeting at my house, Thursday of each week, at 7:30 p.m. We will be glad to have the Elders in the distsict meet with us as often as they can, as this is a hard battlefield, and we need help. By the help of the Master we will try and do what we can to lead others into the kingdom; and we ask the prayers of all Saints in our behalf. I have spent with the Saints of the Watsonville, San Benito and Jefferson branches, some of the happiest moments of my life, and with the latter branch I attended one of the best sacrament and testimony meetings that it was ever my lot to enjoy. Ever praying for the redemption of Zion, and that I may always be found with my armour on and battling for the cause of truth.

Yours in gospel bonds, C. W. HAWKINS.

CABOOL, Mo., Oct. 12th, 1885.

Bro. Blair: - I am sad that it is my lot to have to pen to you the los of our only daughter. Yet when I reflect on what she would say to me, I should not grieve. She often told me that Christ could heal her, but He didn't wish to. She saw a vision of angels in heaven-all girls about her size, playing music on instruments of gold. She said all that she desired to stay here for, was to help me. She said: "Ma; I must go; something draws me away." She dreamed she flew away up so high and looked down here. She said she could see all of us; but we couldn't see her. She had this dream after death was pictured on her face. I was all alone when she died, in her chair. It happened just as she wished. She told me frequently not to let any be near her but me when she died, as she could not bear to see them weep. She died praying. Her last words to me was: "Ma don't cry!"

> Your sister in gospel bonds, MARY A. ATWELL.

> > GRAND RAPIDS, Nebraska October 10th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:-It is with pleasure that I write to you of the welfare of the Saints in this part of God's vineyard. The Saints are but few, yet they seem to be good soldiers in the cause of Christ. We have been blessed with the presence of brother Caffall, who has been laboring with us, and I think his labor will result in good. We regret his departure from our midst, for it seems good to listen to one of God's servants. We have a branch of ten members hear. It is Grand Rapids Branch. May God's blessing rest upon us here. We ask the Saints to remember us in their prayers. I write these few lines to let you know that we are still striving to advance the Yours in the one faith, cause.

P. W. PREMO.

San Francisco, California, October 10th, 1885.

Dear Bro. Blair: - We have just held our district conference, which I am happy to say was one of the best ever held on this coast. We enjoyed much of the Spirit of God during the session, particularly on the Sabbath, when it was present in much power, making all rejoice in the glorious hope of the gospel.

Apostle A. H Smith, Bishop Blakeslee and his counsellor E. L. Kelley, were present with us, giving advice, instruction and encouragement; driving many doubts from our minds, and explaining and making clear many points never before understood, and showing us our duties which had been long neglected through lack of an understanding of them. Many have made new vows for the future, and if the spirit that was with us on those occasions abide with us, you will hear better reports from us hereafter.

We are all thankful for the visit those brethren have paid us, and the good they have done in this district alone was worth the sacrifice. Many hearts have been made glad by the wonderful words of wisdom they delivered, energized by the Spirit of God. As far as I know we are all in harmony now concerning the law of tithing, a position we never occupied before. And now we all feel to say, God bless the brethren for the good they have done us, and the good spirit they brought with them. We had preaching by A. H. Smith, Bishop Blakeslee, E. L. Kelley, and H. P. Brown. Bro. Kelley spoke Sunday morning, and his discourse seemed to be specially suited to every member and stranger present. He truly was led by the Holy Ghost as was Peter on the day of Pentecost, for many were "pricked in their heart" while they listened to his calm words of instruction and reproof. Had he known the private feelings and the doings of all, he could not have rebuked and chastised more thoroughly; and had he not had the Holy Spirit, he could not have done it so kindly. It was just the instruction we needed, and all received it meekly.

In the afternoon there was a sacrament and prayer meeting, a time to be ever remembered by the Saints. How our hearts bounded within us as we listened to the testimonies of each, of the goodness of God to them! and how we rejoiced while listening to those who spoke in "unknown tongues," and in the interpretation of them; and to the promises made through them! Several times during the afternoon we were all melted to to tears by the sweet hallowed influence that rested upon us, and seemed to thrill through our very souls, while we listened to the experience of one another, and united in singing our soul inspiring hymns. The meeting lasted three hours, and we then regretted having to close. Several sick were administered to, and prayers offered for others.

Our branch is in a good condition. We hold services every Sunday. One was baptized during conference. Our faith is strong; our hopes bright; and we are determined to hold on until the end.

Yours in the faith,

Geo. S. Lincoln.

OBEWAING, Michigan, September 28th, 1885.

Eo.tor Iterald:—My wife and I are all the Saints there are in this place; we have had two sermons since I have lived here; Brn. Edward Delong and Levi Phelps spoke to the people. I would like to have a Book of Mormon, but am not able just now. I had one of your best copies that I got from the Office in exchange for one of the Palmyra edition; but I gave it to an outsider, who expressed a desire to have it, and I hope and pray that he may read it, and do him good. We are trying to hold on to the rod of iron. Ever praying for Zion's weal, I remain yours in the faith,

JOHN Cox.

CURRINSVILLE, Oreg., October 8th, 1885.

Editors of Herald:—I received a letter from J. C. Cox about a month and half ago, wishing me to drop him a card to Portland, or meet him there myself. I did both, and could not find hair nor hide of him; he was to come from southern Oregon here, and open the Bible and tell the people what Christ and the apostles preached to the people in their day. Now then if anyone else wishes me to meet them there, I will try it over again, twice, seven, and eleven. Who will come?

E. C. Dobson.

"MANUSCRIPT FOUND."

We now offer for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spalding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. This book of 144 pages 8 mo., is now in the hands of the binder, and orders for it are solicited. Single copies, in cloth 45 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 40 cents each; in paper, single copies 25 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 20 cents each. Liberal discount to dealers.

REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.

We have now on sale at this office, in pamphlet form, containing 48 pages, the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of plural marriage." Price, post paid, single copies 10 cents; 75 cents per dozen to one address.

Selected Poetrn.

A APEEL FOR ARE TO THE SEXTAN OF THE OLD BRICK MEETINOUSE.

BY A GASPER.

The following lines, which originally appeared in the Detroit Tribune, were published over thirty years ago, but the philosophy they contain is just as good and applicable now as then. While the writer was seemingly rather a poor speller, he was evidently in earnest and possessed keen wit:

O sextan of the meetinouse, which sweeps And dusts, or is supposed too! and makes fires. And lites the gas and sumtimes leaves a screw loose, in which case it smells orful—worse than lampile; And wrings the Bel and toles it when men dyes to the grief of survivin pardners, and sweeps pathes: And for the servases gits $100 per annum. Wich them that thinks deer, let em try it; Gettin up befoar star-lite in all weathers and Kindlin fires when the weather is as cold As zero, and like as not green wood for kindlers; I wouldn't be hired to do it for no some-But o sextan! there are I kermoddity Wich's more than gold, wich doant coast nothin, Worth more than anything exsep the Sole of Mani mean pewer Are, sextan, i mean pewer Are! O it is plenty out o doers, so plenty it doant no What on airth to dew with itself, but flys about Scaterin leaves and bloin men's hatts; in short, jest "free as are" out doers. But o Sextan, in our church its scarce as piety. scarce as bank bills wen agents beg for mischuns, Wich some say purty often (taint nothin to me, Wat I give sint nothin to nobody) but o sextant u shet 500 mens wimmen and children, Speshally the latter, up in a tite place. Some has bad breths, none aint 2 sweete, Some is fevery, some is scriffins, some has bad teeth, And some haint none, and some aint ovar clean; But every 1 on em breathes in & out and out and ln, Say 50 times a minit, or I million and a half breaths an hour.

Now how long will a church ful of are last at that rate. I ask you, say 15 minits, and then wats to be did? Why then they must breathe it all over agin. And then agin, and so on, till each has took it down, At least 10 times, and let it up again, and wats more The same individible don't have the privilege of brethen his own are, and no one's else: Each one mus take whatever comes to him. O sextant, doand you know our lungs is bellusses, To blo the fler of life, and keep it from goin out; and how can bellusses blo without wind. And aint wind are? i put it to your conseens. Are is the same to us as milk to bables. Or water is to fish, or pendlums to clox-Or roots & airbs unto an injun Doctor, Or little pils unto an omepath, Or boys to gurls. Are is for us to breethe. Wat signifies who preeches if I cant breethe? Wats Pol? Wats Pollus? to sinnners who are ded? Ded for want of breth? why sextan, when we die Its only coz we cant brethe no more-that's all. And now, O sextan let me beg of you 2 let a little are into our church. (Pewer are is sertan proper for the pews) And do it weak days and Sunday's tew-It aint much trouble-only make a hole And the are will come in of itself: (It luvs to cum in where it can git warm;) And o how it will rouse the people up And sperrit up the preacher, and stop garps, And yawns and figgits as effectooal As wind on the dry Boans the Profit tells of.

The petrified body of an alligator, or some other monstrous amphibious creature, was found near Bismarck, Dak., August 12th, by a farmer named Chapman. The jawbones of the petrefaction measure over two feet, and the whole length about thirty feet. This is considered another of many proofs of a past tropical existence here. It is by far the finest discovery of the kind ever made in this country.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

JOSIAH ELLS.

It is with many regrets that we are required to communicate to the church the sad news of the loss it has sustained in the death of our aged and beloved brother, Josiah Ells, which occurred at the residence of Elder G. T. Griffiths, Wheeling, W. Va., Thurday, October 15th, at 5:45 in the evening.

While our sorrow is great by reason of the fact that we are now deprived of his genial presence and wise counsel, we are nevertheless comforted in the thought, nay, in the knowledge, that the time of his departure was at hand, and that though a prince and a mighty man in Israel has fallen, yet his work was fully completed, and that he went down unto death with a hope and assurance that utterly forbade the presence of a fear. The subject of our brief sketch was born in the county of Essex, England, March 4th, 1806. In early life he came to America with his wife and children, locating in the state of New Jersey, where, with that zeal for righteousness and truth that was an early characteristic of his life, he zealously sought for spiritual light and progress in the Primitive Methodist Society.

The writer well remembers hearing him narrate how that during that religious connection, the Spirit of God spoke plainly to him, indicative of his future life, that he should yet "ride upon the high places of the earth and be fed with the heritage of Jacob." His first acquaintance with the latter day work was brought about through the labors of Elder Benjamin Winchester, of the old organization, with whom he held a public discussion, in which he recognized the voice of the Master and the fold of Christ. Entering into the great work, he earnestly espoused its active interests, traveling extensively and preaching the gospel in various localities. Locating finally in Nauvoo, he and his companion were witnesses of those trying scenes incident to the martyrdom of the Prophet and Patriarch, the church dispersion, etc.

He often related the incident of his accompanying Joseph and Hyrum while enroute to deliver themselves to the state authorities. Riding on horseback, Joseph turned to Hyrum and the others, as the party stopped at a spring of water to quench their thirst, remarking: "Well, brother Hyrum, we must go and lay our heads upon the sod. The mob want blood, and blood they will have. And if they do not have ours, they will kill our women and children." To brother Ells and others he said: "You, brethren, need not go further and expose yourselves to useless

danger."

In his strong faith in the latter day work, and while passing through the dark and cloudy day, he was markedly blessed with divine manifestations pointing to the successorship to the presidency of the church, many of which we would relate did space permit. Suffice it to say that his connection with the Reorganization was early made, [1860.—Ed.], and that he with others was largely instrumental in its establishment and progress. Being early commanded, prior to 1860, "to preach to, and baptize all that would come to him, he actively engaged in that work at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, at which place he established a large and important branch of the church, which for the past twenty-five or thirty years has been of great and lasting assistance to the church at large, becoming as it did the nucleus from which a large and successful district has grown, and from which others have been formed and the word proclaimed to many, adding hundreds of precious souls to the church. At various times he was sent on extensive and important missions, of which we mention the following where his effective and beneficent labors are remembered by many: England, Wales, Utah, Maine and the Eastern Mission.

During the past ten years he did not travel extensively; yet, though passed the allotted age of man, he continued to journey during the mild seasons of the year, strengthening and building up the Saints in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia, also attending the General Conferences, and aiding by his presence and wise counsel in many of the important deliberations of his quorum.

The days of our brother, as promised him through the Patriarch, were "lengthened out," and were "many." His sickness covered a period of six weeks, and was borne with a patience that was remarkable. His death was like a calm sleep, so gradual and peaceful was the transition. Retaining to his last moments his strong mental powers, he gave full directions concerning the details of his funeral, selecting the Scriptural texts for the services.

Yielding at last to the inevitable, he pointed upward and said: "Father, into thy hands I commend myself."

By his request, Bro. Gomer T. Griffiths conducted the funeral services at the chapel of the Wheeling Branch, in the presence of a large concourse of Saints and friends. The interment was made in the city Cemetery at Bridgeport, Belmont County, Ohio, where resting beside the remains of his sainted companion, who five years ago preceded him, he awaits in glorious assurance the appearance of the great Judge of the quick and the dead. His last injunction was, in effect, that in the memorial services he should not be too highly extolled, saying, that all that he was, or had been, was by the mercy of God, and giving as texts for such services, Rev. 14: 13; Titus 3: 5. With this lofty sentiment of humility, there closed a life rich in wise and grace of our Heavenly Father and his son Jesus Christ, to whom be all the

From the lesson of his life may we be strengthened to live the sentiment he so frequently repeated during his illness, viz: "For our conversation is in heaven from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord, Tesus Christ."

Did your space permit, I could narrate many items of interest concerning the spiritual and temporal experiences of our dearly beloved brother and sister Ells, who were always towers of strength to all the Saints in this section of country, and our brother a veritable Patriarch in our midst.

They ever held dear to them the memory of their early acquaintance and connection with Joseph the Seer, and always retained an abiding testimony and confidence in his personal character and divine mis-I well remember hearing sister Ells tell how that during the prevalence of so many factions that arose from the scattered elements of the old church, the voice of the Spirit to them was, "Be strong in the truth as delivered unto you by Joseph the Seer." And so they continued, expectantly looking forward to a reorganization of the church and the final triumph of the faith, with a confidence born of the Holy Spirit and constantly nourished by a faithful life of duty, nobly performed.

The death of Bro. Ells leaves a great void among the Saints in this section. We are comforted, however, in the knowledge that it is well with him; and as he expressed himself shortly before his demise-"I praise God that the work I have tried to do seems to have borne fruit and remained."

In hope of the gospel, Yours respectfully, RICHARD S. SALYARDS.

THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN:

OR, "THE STONE CUT WITHOUT HANDS." No. I.

BY ELDER T. W. SMITH.

"And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces, and consume these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever."-Dan.

There are three important points or propositions in this text that demand our careful and candid consideration. 1st, The period of time in the world's history, referred to by the word's "in the days of these kings." 2d, The nature or character of the "kingdom" to be "set up" by the God of heaven. 3d, The everlasting state of the kingdom when "set up."

In the vision of the "great image" seen by Nebuchadnezzar and by Daniel, and interpreted by him, we are clearly informed that the "image" represented events that should happen or "come to pass hereafter" (verse 29), and that God designed to make known what should be "in the latter days." One fact that affects the whole case must not be lost sight of in the examination of words and good deeds that reflect the love the matter, but should be always kept in the "image," and destroys it, does not appear until the "image" is seen fully developed in all its parts; and that the smiting is done upon the feet, and not upon the legs, belly, breast or head, of the image; and again, as the stone does not become a kingdom until after it smites the image on its feet, it follows of necessity that the God of heaven does not set up his kingdom until the entire image is developed from head to feet. And again, the phrase "these kings," or the "days of these kings," clearly shows that there must be at least two kingdoms, if no more, existing at the same time, and in the case of the kingdom represented by the "head of gold," the one represented by the "breast and arms of silver;" the one called the kingdom of brass were each an universal kingdom, and only one of necessity existed at the same time; so the kingdom of heaven could not be set up in the days of either of these kingdoms, for there was but one existing at the same time. Not until the kingdom was developed that was represented by the two legs could the language apply, "in the days of these kings." So for these reasons it is folly to talk of Christ setting up the kingdom, eighteen hundred years ago, by the organization of his church, either by John the Baptist, or by Peter on the day of Pentecost, or at any time previous to the division of the fourth or iron kingdom into two divisions, represented by the legs. And again, instead of Christ or the church of Christ smiting the image on its feet at that time, (when there were no feet in existence), the iron kingdom smote him and put him to death, and smote and scattered the church everywhere, killing the Apostles, and slaying men and women and children of the church, by the thousands. And the persecution and destruction did not cease while the church remained true to the doctrine, laws, and fellowship of Christ; but when it had so far departed from the faith, as to be no longer the bride of Christ, it became a corrupt church, under the figure of a harlot, and is seen by John the Revelator ruling this very iron kingdom, called by John a scarlet colored (blood colored because blood covered) beast. I repeat that the iron kingdom (Rome its capital and Roman its name) persecuted the church of Christ, so long as she remained pure and true; but when she became fallen and corrupt, she married her former persecutor, and very properly assumed his name, (as every woman takes the name of the man she marries), and she glories in that name till to-day.

mind, and that is, the "stone" which smites

Whether the church as organized by Christ and the Apostles remained loyal to her marriage vows-or in other words "kept the faith," and preserved the form or order that God gave her, and retained her beautiful garments, and her costly ornaments, we will shortly see. We affirm that she did not, and no one can prove that she did. But let us see first what the various kingdoms were, as represented by the head of gold, the breast and arms of silver, the belly and thighs of brass, and legs of iron, and feet and toes of iron and clay (miry clay) mixed. Daniel in giving the interpretation of the dream or vision, declared that the "head of gold," represented the kingdom of Babylon, over which Nebuchadnezzar reigned. He then declares that another kingdom should arise after Babylon, inferior to it, as silver is to gold. History informs us that this was the Median and and Persian kingdoms combined-represented by the breast and arms, -one arm representing Media, the other Persia. Then there was to arise a third kingdom, represented by the brass part of the image, which-third kingdom was that of Greece. After this a fourth kingdom, represented by the legs of iron, which was the Roman Empire, divided in time into Eastern and Western Rome, or two kingdoms, as the legs indicate. The Capitol of the Eastern Division was Constantinople, named after the Emperor Constantine, who ruled over the Roman Empire before it was divided. The Western Division had for its Capitol the City of Rome. Thus far these several kingdoms were represented by a single metal: gold, silver, brass and iron, neither of them mixed with any other substance, showing that whatever the character of the government—whether political or religious-it was unmixed, that is, not a religio-political government; and history clearly shows that each of the four were purely political. But we find that a change comes over the fourth kingdom, in two particulars: first, it is sub-divided, as represented by the toes; and secondly, that the toes with the feet to which they were attached is found to be mixed, or formed of iron and miry clay—miry clay you will observe. The iron element, representing the political part of the government, and the miry clay an opposite and unadhesive principle, something that in its nature does not mix with iron; this element we understand to be a religious one, and as it is miry clay, it must be a corrupt or impure religion. Now these two contrary elements are joined or married as it were, and even if they do not agree, they still form one kingdom, as a man and a woman of conflicting tastes, habits and inclinations, may become "one flesh."

The time would come then, as seen by the prophet Daniel, when the Roman kingdom, sub-divided, would become a combination of Church and State, or a religious and political government, or number of governments. The fcet were mixed as well as the toes, so it would appear that Eastern and Western Rome, would be composed of Church and State, and we find it to have been so, and both Church and State were Roman-known as the Church of Rome, as well as the Kingdom of Rome. In time the church divided, the eastern part called itself the Greek Catholic Church, and the western part called itself the Church of Rome, or Roman Catholic Church. Both were united to the political element, and if the church that Christ and his Apostles established at this time, it had married another husband than Christ, and hence was living in adultery, and would of course be rejected by the Savior. It was no longer the "Lamb's wife," or bride of Christ; but just as John the Revelator saw her, a harlot seated on a scarlet colored beast (see Rev. 18). But we will look at that subject more fully after a while. After the division of both Church and State into two great divisions, as we have seen, there was to be a subsequent sub-division into smaller governments, but still political and religious, or Church and State united; each subdivision having a national religion, sustained by the government.

The territory occupied by the two great divisions, Eastern and Western Rome, must be found therefore to be occupied by a number of kingdoms of iron and miry clay—or composed of politics and corrupt religions combined. The territory once occupied by these two great divisions of the Roman Empire was Europe, Western Asia and Northern Africa. But before we examine that feature of the case, we should understand that fragments would break off from the religious element, as well as from the political part; so we find different churches growing out of the Roman Church, and of course carrying with them some, at least, of the traditions, practices, and forms of worship found in their "mother church." If she was properly represented as "miry clay," they of course would partake of the same nature. All the authority they have to preach, baptize, ordain, &c., they have drawn directly or indirectly from that source, and yet they denounce the "mother church" as being corrupt in practice, wrong in doctrine, unscriptural in name, and unapostolic in organization. But if so, inasmuch as that church has not changed for the past five hundred years at least, all of this was as true of her before, and at the time they left her bed and board, or forsook their mother's house, as it is now; and if she was rejected of Christ, and had lost all the priestly authority that she had ever received from the Apestles, how could they re-ceive any? Take nothing from nothing, and nothing remains, if nothing could remain.

It is certainly unbecoming for children to curse the mother who brought them in to being, and gave them all the energy and vitality they possess. But if she was a "harlot" as they say, and if she is one now, she was when they were born, and if her legal spouse, the Lord Jesus, had repudiated her centuries before they were born, we simply ask, if the Church of Rome was their mother, who was their father? But we must look at these "toes" of the image, or the sub-divisions of the Eastern and Western Roman Kingdoms. What has grown out of these kingdoms? Let us see. Russia and Greece with the Greek Catholic faith; Turkey with the religion of Mohamet; Servia and Bulgaria with Armenianism as the ruling religion; while Romanism, Lutherism, Church of Englandism, German Reformed, and Calvinist doctrine prevails in Europe. In Spain, France, Austria and Italy, the Roman Church rules. In Germany the Lutheran faith. In Great Britain the Church of England faith. In Belgium and Holland the German Reformed faith, In Switzerland, Calvinism.

In parables or figures like the "image," it does not necessarily follow that every part of the figure must have a corresponding substance. Some leading characteris-tics are to be noticed only. The feet of the image were divided as represented, by toes. It does not follow that there were to be just ten divisions. But we find that the legs of iron represent two great political divisions of the Roman Empire; that the feet represent a mixture of politics and religion-or iron and miry clay mixed, and that a number of sub-divisions (and they are certainly not less than ten) have grown out of the feet, and the territory once occupied by the Roman Empire is now covered with fully ten kingdoms, and with fully ten different faiths existing in them, which have grown out of either the Roman or Greek Catholic faith.

The question now is, When shall the God of Heaven set up his kingdom? The answer is, in the days of these kings." What kings? Clearly the kings or kingdoms represented by the toes of the image. But when were they developed? We are told, "somewhere about the year four hundred of the Christian era;" but that could not be, for the various barbarian hordes that overran the Roman Empire at that time were all of them purely political governments, and not iron and clay, or politics and religion mixed. And at this poriod of time it can not be shown that the church which Christ organized, existed, which church consisted of Apostles, Prophets, Evangelists, Pastors, Teachers, &c., and possessing various spiritual gifts: such as faith, wisdom, knowledge, prophecy, miracles, healings, tongues and interpretation of tongues. (See i Cor. 12. Eph. 4: 10. Rom. 12: 6-8. Mark 16: 15, 16.) We repeat that it can not be shown that at the time when these barbarian tribes from the north of Europe invaded the Roman territory—about the year 400 A.D., that this church of Christ was in existence, much less did it smite the image, and become a great mountain, and filled the whole earth, as the "stone" was to do when it smote the image.

John Wesley, the founder of the Methodist Church, declares that about the time that the Emperor Constantine embraced what was called Christianity, these spiritual gifts, or gifts of the Holy Spirit, (which of course embraced the apostolic, prophetic, and all other offices), were lost, or no longer found in the church, and that the church had "turned heathen again," and had "lost the Spirit," and had "but a dead form left." What a hopeless and helpless state for the church to be in, for Paul shows (1 Cor. 12: 27, 28) that the church was formed of Apostles, Prophets, Teachers, and the various spiritual gifts, just as a human body is formed of various members, and a child can see that if a human body lost its eyes, ears, tongue, arms, legs, and perhaps other members and organs of the body, it would be a useless, helpless mass, unworthy the name of a body; and above all, if the Spirit had forsaken the body, we all know that the body would die, and become corrupt, and turn to dust. Now Wesley affirms in positive terms, that the church (before the year four hundred) had "lost the Spirit," and as the Apostle James said, the "body without the Spirit is dead," referring to the human body and spirit, so the church which was the "body of Christ," having turned heathen again, and "lost the Spirit," became a "dead form," or a corpse, a "dead body," and this occurred before the time when the ten toes were developed by various tribes of savages, or barbarians—called Goths, Vandals, Franks, Huns, Visigoths, Herulii, &c., overran the Roman Empire. So it is folly to look for the setting up of the kingdom of heaven at this time, for in fact the "stone" was not in existence at the time, or in other words, the church of Christ had disappeared, having become united with, and formed a component part of the very image (or the iron part at least) which the stone was destined to destroy. The Roman legs had absorbed the church, or had married her, and gave her its name.

No; we must look for the church or kingdom of heaven at a time when the Roman kingdom,—divided into a number of kingdoms, composed of Church and State,—should be found; and such is now the case, as we have seen, in Europe and Western Asia to-day, which was once the territory of the Roman Empire. "In the days of these kings," therefore, will the God of heaven set up a kingdom.

To be continued.

APOSTACY.

WHAT a terrible thing it is to depart from the faith of Jesus Christ! And yet, men of excellent qualifications to do good among their fellow men have done so; and it would not be remarkable if others should share a similar fate. Can it be that intelligent beings will turn from the love of God and trample under feet the mercies of a loving Savior? Is it possible that some who have "tasted of the good word of God and the powers of the world to come," and who have borne a faithful testimony of the truth as it is in Christ, will be overcome and deny the faith! Alas, though sorrowful to contemplate, and ten thousand times more bitter in its reality, we must admit that such has been, and may again be the case.

How is it that men and women who once loved the truth, rejoiced in its beneficence, and glorified in the sweet hope of eternal life, can so change in their desires, and altogether become perverted in their purposes and general make up so as to lose their love for the gospel that once had made them free! Does the memory become so beclouded, and the mind so darkened as to lose sight of and forget the joys of the past? This seems impossible; nevertheless we sometimes see those who in times past have willingly suffered for the truth's sake and cheerfully borne the persecution of a sin-cursed world because they deemed the reproach of Christ as greater riches than the treasures of earth, walking as though they never knew the light of God and the illumination of the Holy Spirit. How terribly significant are the facts of man's agency and accountability to God! And what a strange mental phenomenon that men will testify against themselves!

I apprehend that the day of judgment will be one of serious reflection. Oh, the responsibilities and importance of that day which will surely come when the Great Judge shall pronounce the sentence which determines our eternal fate! We shall then know that as we have lived and labored, so will our happiness be.

What is there in the faith of Christ from which men can justly apostatize? Is there one precept that will not bear the test of reason? Is there aught but what appeals to the finer qualities of the soul? Is there anything required of men difficult to perform, or that any should deem too great a sacrifice? Is not the prize offered the gift of eternal life-God's greatest gift to man? Then, can anything which we may do, or any sacrifice that we may make, weigh with proper comparison to this inestimable gift of God? Surely not. Honesty of heart, purity of desire, holiness of purpose, and energy to accomplish, will secure to us the precious boon. And all along the pathway of life will be given the needful aid, the coveted assurance, and sweeter consolation, as "helps" to the tree of life.

Wandering pilgrim, as thou journeyest To a land of perfect bliss. Do not falter by the wayside, Tempted by a world like this.

Jesus Christ. our Lord, was tempted, But he ne'er gave o'er to sin! When hi- work was fully finished, Angels bade him then "come in."

Shall we then become unstable, Wafted as the waves of sea? Shall we wander from our shepherd Who is pleading "Follow me?"

Oh. the joy of faithful tried ones, As they enter through the door! Blessed Jesus! Golden City! Joy awaits them evermore!

G. S. HYDE.

Selections.

BOOK OF MORMON.

Now comes the Rev. Dr. C. M. Hyde, of the North Pacific Missionary Institute at Honolulu, H. I., who in his correspondence to the Boston Congregationalist, of July 30th, last, makes the question the text of his whole letter, which we present as follows:

WHO WROTE THE BOOK OF MORMON?
SOLOMON SPAULDING NOT ITS AUTHOR.
BY REV. C. M. HYDE. D. D.

Just now many inquiries have come to Honolulu in regard to a manuscript in the possession of Mr. L. L. Rice, who came from Ohio to this city in 1870, to reside with his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Whitney. Mr. Rice was at one time editor of the Painsville (O.) Telegraph, having, in connection with his partner, Mr. P. Winchester, in 1839, bought that newspaper, with all the appurtenances of the printing office in connection with it, from Mr. Eber D. Howe, the former proprietor. In the mass of material turned over to Mr. Rice was a small parcel that was labeled in pencil, "Manuscript Story-Conneaut Creek." The parcel never had been opened till last summer, when Mr. Rice was looking over his papers, in search of memorabilia, in in regard to the early anti-slavery movements in Ohio, in which he had actively engaged. He then found that it was the story written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, who, it has been claimed, wrote the "Book of Mormon," which Joseph Smith, Jr., published as an inspired translation of certain records, in regard to the American Indians and their connection with Christianity, engraved on golden plates, and found by him on the top of a hill in Palmyra, N. Y. In the rubbish of a printing office that manuscript of Mr. Spaulding's for which diligent search has hitherto been made in vain, has been as effectually lost as if it had been entombed in some forgotton Indian burial cave, to be strangely resurrected in these islands out in the Pacific Ocean.

When President Fairchild of Oberlin College visited Honolulu last summer, he had the opportunity of examining this manuscript. In the Bibliotheca Sacra for January, 1885, he inserted a brief paragraph, expressing the opinion that this was not the original of the Book of Mormon. The Mormons came to the Hawaiian Islands in 1846, seeking proselytes, and have now on Oahu quite a settlement, with fifteen "missionaries." They are anxious to secure and publish the manuscript, as the best refutation of the claim that has been made that Rev. Solomon Spaulding was the real author of the Book of Mormon. The statement of a few facts, however, will be convincing proof enough to any unprejudiced mind, both that this manuscript can not be the original of the Mormon Bible, and that Rev. Solomon Spaulding has no valid claim to have written any such book. It was through an article by Rev. D. R. Austin in the Boston Recorder for 1839, that the claim was made for Mrs. Matilda Davidson, of Monson, that the Book of Mormon was written by her former husband, Rev. Solomon Spaulding.

The facts in regard to Mr. Spaulding are briefly these: He was born in Ashford, Conn., in 1761; graduated at Dartmouth, 1785; was pastor of a church in Connecticut, 1787, but left the ministry and went into business with his brother Josiah, in Cherry Valley, N. Y. In 1809 he removed to Conneaut, O., and thence, in 1812, to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he resided two years. Thence he removed to Amity, Pa., where he died in 1816.

Conneaut and Painesville are in the northeastern corner of Ohio, not far from Kirtland, where, in 1831, Joe Smith established the Mormon Zion. He professed to have been told of the existence of the plates in 1823, but did not obtain them till 1827, nor was the translation finished till 1830. Then the first Mormon church was organized April 6th, 1830, of six members. In October four Elders set out on a mission to the Indians in the far West, and on their way, at Kirtland, O., made 130 coverts to the Mormon faith, the number being increased the next spring to 1000. This was largely through the influence of Sidney Rigdon, formerly a Campbellite preacher, then residing at Kirtland, and an acquaintance of Parley P. Pratt, one of the four Mormon Elders, who gave him a copy of the Mormon Bible that had then just been printed. Early in 1831 Rigdon visited Joe Smith, and, in consequence of his representations, Smith removed to Kirtland.

Mr. Howe published, in 1834, from the office of the Painesville Telegraph, a book called Mormonism Unveiled, in refutation of the pretensions of Joe Smith. book was prepared by Dr. D. P. Hurlbut, now or lately residing in Sturgis, Mich. He had been at one time connected with the Mormons, but had left them and wrote this expose of their foolish and absurd notions. It was in this book that it was first claimed that Rev. Solomon Spaulding was the real author of the Book of Mormon. The claim seems to have originated in the statement of Henry Lake of Conneaut, at one time a partner of Mr. Spaulding. Mr. Lake, on hearing the Mormon Bible read, exclaimed that it was the same story that Spaulding had read to him twenty years before from his Manuscript Found. John Spaulding testified that his brother Solomon, about the year 1812, was writing a book called the Manuscript Found, showing that the American Indians are descendants of the Jews. "Their arts, sciences and civilization were brought into view, in order to account for all the curious antiquities found in various parts of North and South America. [After their battles] they buried their dead in large heaps, which caused the mounds so common in this [section of the] country." His wife corraborates this testimony and says: "The names of Nephi and Lehi are yet fresh in my memory as being the principal heroes of his tale." These testimonies are confirmed by Messrs. Aaron Wright, Oliver Smith, Nahum Howard, Artemas Cunningham, John N. Miller and others, and also, as has been said above, by the widow of Rev. Solomon Spaulding.

After Mr. Spaulding's death this widow removed to her brother's, Mr. Harvey Sabine, Onondaga Hollow, N. Y. In 1820 she married Mr. Davidson and removed to Harwick, N. Y., removing thence, 1832, to Monson, Mass., to reside with her daughter, Mrs. Dr. McKinstry. She had up to this time in her possession a small trunk with some manuscripts of her husband, but left it, in 1832, with Mr. Jerome Clark, in Harwick. At Mr. Sabine's solicitation, she authorized Dr. Hurlbut to examine this trunk, and take the manuscripts he might find for comparison with the Book of Mormon. Only one manuscript was found, which purported to be a short unfinished romance, deriving the origin of the Indians from Rome, by a ship driven to the American coast while on a voyage to Britain, before the Christian era.

It is this manuscript which, through the purchase of the Painesville printing office, fell into Mr. Rice's possession, has been kept by him all these years in ignorance of its character, and is now brought again into public notice. On the last leaf is written: "The Writings of Sollomon Spalding. Proved by Aaron Wright, Oliver Smith, John Miller and others. The testimonies of the above gentlemen are now in my possession. D. P. Hurlbut." The paper on which the manuscript was written is of poor quality, yellowed and softened by age, six and a half inches wide by eight inches long. One hundred and seventy-one pages are numbered and written out in full, but the threads which kept them together are broken, and pages 133 and 134 are missing. On the back of page 132 is the beginning of a letter in different handwriting. "Hond Parents I have received 2 letters this jan 1812."

The story has not the slightest resemblance in names, incidents or style to anything in the Book of Mormon. Its first nine chapters are headed: Introduction; An Epitomy of the Author's Life, and of his Arival in America; an account of the Settlement of the Ship's Company; Many Particulars respecting the Natives; A Journey to the N. W.; A Discription of the Ohons; Discription of the Learning; Relion; An Account of Baska, Government and Money. The Introduction begins thus: "Near the west Bank of the Coneaught River there are the remains of an ancient fort. As I was walking and forming various conjectures respecting the character, situation and numbers of those people who far exceeded the present race of Indians in works of art and inginuety, I hapened to tread on a flat stone." This is then described as being the cover of an artificial cave, eight feet deep. In the side of this cave a recess is seen, in which an earthen jar is found, containing twentyeight parchment sheets, "written in an elegant hand, with Roman letters and in the Latin Language." Then follows what purports to be a translation of one of these sheets, relating the adventures of Fabius, a young Roman sent by the Emperor Constantine from Rome to Britain, but driven by a storm to the coast of America. The wanderings of the shipwrecked party to the west are next described, and account given of the people, the Ohons, then living in the interior, with their manners and customs, and their wars with King Bombal and the Kentucks, Hadoram, king of Sciota, the Emperor Labmak and the allied nations under Habosan, king of Chianga, Ulipoon, king of Michegan, etc. Here is a specimen of the style: "While Labauko was engaged in conflict with another chief, Sambol thrust his sword into his side. Thus Labauka fell, lamented and beloved by all the subjects of Kentuck. His learning, wisdom and penetration of mind, his integrity and courage had gained him universal respect and given him a commanding influence over the emperor and his other counselors."

There is no attempt whatever to imitate Bible language, and to introduce quotations from the Bible, as in the Book of Mormon. On the contrary, Rev. Solomon Spaulding seems to have been a man who had no very high regard for the Bible. There are two manuscript leaves in the parcel of the same size and handwriting as the other 171 pages of manuscript. A few sentences will show the views of the writer. "It is enough for me to know that propositions which are in contradiction to each other can not both be true, and that doctrines and facts which represent the Supreme Being as a barbarous and cruel tyrant can never be dictated by infinite wisdom. But, notwithstanding I disavow my belief in the divinity of the Bible, and consider it as a mere human production, designed to enrich and aggrandize its authors, yet casting aside a considerable mass of rubbish and fanatical rant, I find that it contains a system of ethics, or morals, which can not be excelled on account of their tendency to ameliorate the condition of man." It would seem improbable from such avowed belief that Rev. Solomon Spaulding was an orthodox minister, who wrote the Book of Mormon in Biblical style, while in poor health, for his own amusement. The statement is more probable that he wrote this Manuscript Found, with the idea of making a little money, if he could find some one to print it for him.

It is evident from an inspection of this manuscript, and from the above statements that whoever wrote the Book of Mormon, Solomon Spaulding did not. The testimony of the Conneaut people after the lapse of twenty years, as to their knowledge of the contents of Spaulding's story, the Manuscript Found, is not to be relied upon, imperfect and contradictory as it is. The supposition that Spaulding wrote another story, which he carried with him to Pittsburgh, to the office of Patterson and Lambdin, to be printed; that he left it there, where it was found in 1822 by Rigdon when he worked in that office, and that Rigdon took this manuscript with him and published it through Joe Smith in 1830 as the Book of Mormon, is a most violent supposition, unsupported by any evidence whatever; Rigdon, in fact, having never met Smith till after the publication of the Mormon Bible. That Spaulding ever wrote any other romance seems to be disproved by the date, 1812, found in the latter part of this manuscript, and by the correspondence of its contents with what it was found Spaulding had actually written. While, on the contrary, all that is known of Joe Smith, his money-digging, his religious ranting, his schemes for getting a livelihood, corroborate the belief, in view of all the facts of the case, that he, and he alone, is the author of the Mormon Bible, and the founder of the Mormon Church.

THE ANTI-POLYGAMY BOOM.

THE Saints in Utah apparently have decided to defy the Government and to refuse to obey the anti-polygamy law. The official organ of the church recently printed an address by its leading Bishops, Taylor and Cannon, affirming their devotion to celestial marriages, saying that they could not abandon them as they were matters of divine revelation, and hence, according to their logic, they would be exposed to everlasting damnation if they confined themselves to one wife—an assumption, by the way, of the knowledge of divine punishment which is not very complimentary to the Christian world in general.

The annual Mormon conference which has just closed, took the same position. Indeed, Bishop Taylor and Cannon, who for several months have been hiding to escape from Government officials, came out from under cover and urged their views upon the conference. They were followed by several other Bishops and Apostles, who exhorted the Saints to keep their wives and live up to them and thus hold fast the covenants of the church and the illuminations which have come to it through alleged revelations. Those who were worthy to enter into celestial marriage were assured, upon the old doctrine, we presume, of strength in numbers, that the Government was not strong enough to put down Mormonism, and that it would eventually triumph over all the earth. Those who are not worthy enough or wealthy enough to set up a celestial harem will probably have to be content with one wife, though they will have the consolation of reflecting that a man with one wife at home is better off than a man in the penitentiary with any number of wives outside of it. Measures of ostracism were also adopted, and methods of punishment for those who agree to obey the law, though if the law is enforced it is not exactly plain how the leaders can ostracize or punish any one after they themselves have been put in striped suits. Under the circumstances, the most that the Saints can do is to go to the penitentiary as martyrs rather than reduce the number of their wives. They can not be any more willing to go than all honest, virtuous, law-abiding people will be to have them go, and the more of them the merrier. It would be a time for millennial jubilee if all other violators of the law were equally sensible and could feel the same want of regrets in separating themselves from the community. The Government and the courts should promptly avail themselves of the willingness of these polygamous convenanters to go to the penitentiary, even if it requires an enlargement of legal facilities and an increase of prison area and accomodations. As a Salt Lake dispatch says: "In one year just closed there has been more accomplished towards breaking up the vile practices of Mormonism than in the ten years prior. The Mormon leaders have done more foolish things in this time than ever before, and their acts are causing a gradual disintegration which is working ruin to the church." It only needs now prompt action on the part of the courts and the perfection of the system of rapid transportation to the penitentiary to crack the church from top to bottom. Before the prisons are halffull the Bishops and Apostles will experience a new revelation that will illuminate their souls and bodies and convince them that a house with but one wife in it is a well-spring of pleasure. The multiplex ties of matrimony are not strong enough to make martyrdom attractive very long.—Chicago Tribune.

The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

Conserence Minutes.

LONDON.

A conference of the above district was held in the Corinth Branch, Elgin Co., Ontario, in the Saints' Church, October 10th and 11th, 1885. J. H. Lake presiding; S. Brown, clerk. Branch Reports.—Usborne 28; 1 died. Egremont 49; 3 baptized, 2 received by certificate of baptism, 1 expelled. St. Thomas 14. Corinth 29; 1 baptized, 1 removed by letter, 2 died. Cameron 55; 3 baptized, 2 died. London, Carlingford, Alliston, Walsingham, McKillop and Riverview, no reports. Your committee appointed to take into consideration the matter referred to this conference by the Cameron Branch, beg leave to report as follows:-The ordinations previous to May 2d, 1885, we consider them duly or legal ordinations, but the four ordained on May 2d, 1885, we consider their ordinations premature, for the following reasons: (1) It was contrary to a resolution of the conference. (2) There being a sufficient number ordained in the branch to form a quorum or grade of officers, for the government of said branch. (3) If such officers refuse to act, and the president of said branch was not capable of getting them in order, he should of so reported to the president of the district. We therefore recommend that the officers previous to May 2d, 1885, take charge of the branch until further instructed by the president of the mission, or president of the ditrict. The report was received and adopted. Bishop's Agents Report: Moneys received from January 1st to October 10th, $132.57. paid out $120.07; balance on hand $12 50. Examined and found correct. Elders William Jenkins assisted C. Pearson in holding two grove meetings in Houghton, also reports branch labor. S. Brown preached in St. Mary's, Ellice, McKillop and Blenheim; preached one funeral sermon, baptized 2, confirmed 1, blessed 2 children. J. McKenzie, no labor done. R. C. Evans preached at Cameron, St. Mary's and London; baptized 4, blessed some children. Priests C. Pearson labored in Corinth and Houghton. G. Hanley reported local labor. A request was read from the Kent and Elgin District Conference: "At our conference held here a committee was appointed to determine a boundary line between the Kent and Elgin and the London Districts, and the following conclusion was arrived at: The counties of Essex, Kent and Lambton, to constitute the Kent and Elgin District. If this meets your approval, please forward the same to me, and I will lay the matter before the district conference." The request from the other district was received and adopted. 'The funeral sermon of Sr. Jennette Pearson was preached by A. Leverton, to a large and attentive audience of Saints and friends, who anticipated meeting with her at the conference, and though deprived of the privelege in this life, are assured that she has gone to meet with faithful ones gone before. She stood faithful to the gospel of Christ for over forty years through many scenes of trial and persecution. Her remains were interred in the cemetery at Corinth, by the side of five of her children, to await the resurrection of the just. The Carlingford Branch being in a scattered condition it was disorganized for the purpose of organizing into two branches. Part of the members constitute a branch in St. Mary's. The balance to constitute a branch in Ellice. S. Brown was sustained as president of the district; R. C. Evans vice-president; S. Brown Bishop's Agent and district secretary. On Sabbath morning prayer and sacrament meeting in charge of brethren Lake and Leverton. Preaching in the forenoon by S. Brown; in the afternoon by A. Leverton; and in the evening by R. C. Evans. It is the wish that General Conference place Bro. Lake in charge of the Canada Mission again. Adjourned to meet at Usborne, on the 3d Saturday and Sunday in June,

NORTHERN NEBRASKA.

Report of district conference held at Platte Valley, Nebraska, September 18th, 1885. W. M. Rumel, president, I. Sylvester, secretary. Evening session was devoted to prayer and testimony; a good spiritual feeling was manifested. Branch Reports.-Platte Valley 35. Lake Shore 26; 1 expelled. Omaha 95; 1 baptized. Elders N. Rumel, Sen., J. Gilbert, O. H. Brown, J. Brown, and W. M. Rumel, reported. Bishop's Agent had on hand at last report $20; received since, $49.50; total, $69.50; paid out $5. Balance on hand, $64.50. The district president's action in disorganizing the Plattford Branch was endorsed. The president to appoint a committee to investigate the charges preferred against Aaron Benson, who subsequently reported finding ample cause for severing him from the church, which was done. N. Rumel, Sen., to labor in North and South Omaha. O. H. Brown and E. Boulson to labor any where in the district that the Spirit may direct. W. Rumel, president, and I Sylvester, clerk of the district, were sustained the coming quarter. The spiritual and temporal authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Preaching on Sunday morning by O. H. Brown; collection $4.75. Sacrament service in afternoon; collection $2.66. Preaching in the evening by Wm. Rumel. Adjourned to meet at Omaha, Nebraska, December 18th, 1885.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

The above district conference convened at Griswold's Hall, Covina, Los Angeles county, California, September 19th, 1885. D. S. Mills, president; W. M. Gibson, assistant; N. W. Best, clerk; J. R. Badham, assistant. Official Reports. -High Priest D. S. Mills, Elders W. M. Gibson, J. R. Badham, D. L. Harris, S. L. Crane, A. W. Thompson, John Houk and R. R. Dana; Priests W. P. Pickering, S. H. Eye and D. E. Landers, reported. Branch Reports.-Los Angeles 35; 1 died. New Port 120; 12 removed by letter, 1 died. Laguna 39; 2 baptized, 5 received by letter, t received by vote on evidence of membership in first organization. Covina 12. Santa Maria 15; 9 scattered. San Bernardino 200; 12 baptized. Bishop's Agent reports received $223.05; expended $36 30; balance on hand $186 75. J. R. Badham, Bishop's Agent. The district president was requested to hold services at Green Meadows and Los Angeles, or see that it is done, the first Sunday in each month. A. W. Thompson was requested to preach at New Port Branch the first Sunday of every month. Bro. D. S. Mills was requested to meet with the San Bernarding Branch the fourth Sunday of every month, or see that the appointment is filled. That this conference appoint Bro. D. L. Harris to labor in and around San Bernardino as circumstances permit. D. S. Mills was sustained as district president, W. M. Gibson as assistant, and N. W. Best as clerk. The Bishop's Agent was requested to pay to W. M. Gibson any deficiency that may be necessary, and in case of the agent failing to do so, the district will be responsible. The evening preaching by J. R. Badham. On Sunday morning a prayer and testimony meeting. Preaching in the forenoon by D. S. Mills. Sacrament meeting in the afternoon. Preaching by D. S. Mills in the evening. Adjourned at the call of the president as to time and place.

KEWANEE.

The above district conference met at the Saints' Chapel, Millersburg, the 19th September, 1885. J. W. Terry, president; J. L. Terry, clerk. Kewanee Branch 70; 1 died, 1 expelled. Peoria 19. Elder J. A. Robinson, as president of the branch, requested that conference should take steps to disorganize the branch, as the members had become scattered, which was by vote declared disorganized, and the district secretary authorized to issue letters of removal to the members thereof. Bishop's Agent reported, and his report was referred to an auditing committee. Elder J. A. Robinson reported by letter. Elders M. T. Short, D. S. Holmes, J. T. Kinnaman, I. B. Larew, J. D. Jones, E. T. Bryant, J. W. Terry, J. L. Terry, and J. L. Adams, reported in person. The district president and D. S. Holmes were authorized to visit Henderson Grove Branch, and if possible adjust the trouble existing. The agents of the Bishop's Agent in the different branches were requested to report to the Bishop's Agent one week prior to the setting of each quarterly conference. Elder J. F. Adams gave notice to conference that he wished to appeal his case to General Conference; the appeal was granted. Preaching in the evening by Elder D. S. Holmes. The morning prayer and testimony meeting was conducted by Elder J. W. Terry. The forenoon preaching was by Elder J. T. Kinneman. At noon the ordinance of baptism was administered to an aged sister, by Elder D. S. Holmes. Met in the afternoon for prayer and testimony, conducted by Elder J. D. Jones. Preaching in the evening by Elder M. T. Short. Adjourned to meet at Kewanee, Illinois, the 19th December, 1885, at half-past ten o'clock.

Miscellaneous.

GALLAND'S GROVE RE-UNION.

On the 3d inst., there began to assemble on the grounds of Bro. Benjamin Homer, in Galland's Grove, Shelby Co., Iowa, many from different localities to attend the Anual Re-union of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints. Services were held in the afternoon and evening, but the campers were too busy in getting settled to devote time thoroughly to religious services. The weather was dry, cold and crisp, making warm tents and heavy appearl necessary. The following minutes, as amended, were taken chiefly from the Council Bluffs Daily Nonpareil.

On Sunday, the 4th, the regular services opened at 10.30 a.m., Elder J. W. Chatburn presiding, and Elder E. C. Brand preaching the morning sermon from the epistle of James, on the esseniality of good works. At the close, Elder W. W. Blair having arrived was chosen permanent president, with Elders J. W. Chatburn and C. Derry assistants. John Strauss, Geo. Saulsberry, Benj. Crandall, Bradley McCord, Jas. Emerson, Luther McCord, Geo. Young, David Lane, and A. M. Newberry were chosen and sworn in, to preserve order and prevent mischief on the grounds.

At two p. m., Elder C. Derry delivered an earnest and excellent discourse to a large and very attentive congregation, from Isaiah 55: 6-11.

Oct 5.—Prayer service at nine o'clock, John Hawley presiding. The morning was cool, but quite a general attendance was had at the service.

At eleven o'clock there was a large audience, President Blair was speaker, He said he should not sermonize, but talk to them in a conversational way. He urged the necessity of history, testimony, etc., being dealt with at times, and then began to present the prophetic utterances of the Bible, relative to God's great work of this dispensation; spoke of the unlettered boy of Palmyra, N. Y., his bringing out the Book of Mormon under the inspiration of God, the various missions of the Reorganized Church, prominently that of Utah; how Brigham tried to repulse the men sent there, and how they persevered and were successful in gathering many from the evils taught there.

The closing years of Joseph Smith's career at Nauvoo was narrated and abundant proof brought from the record, showing that Smith understood the crafty character of Brigham; mentioned Joseph's charge to his bosom friend, Wm. Marks, that at the downfall he saw would come, he should keep as many together as he could, and move up north.

Mr. Smith told his wife to remain where she was, or go to Kirtland. At his departure from his family, he told them he should never see them again. Elder Blair did not claim for Mr. Smith infallibility, but that the doctrines taught by him were of the good, noble, and true, and that of polygamy, as his writings abundantly show him opposed to polygamy.

Elder J. S. Roth was speaker, Matt. 7:21, 22 was read as text. The speaker averred that those who say "Lord, Lord" were not all Christians, and neither can it apply to any but professors. Elder Roth said that the penitent thief on the cross was a baptized believer, for he realized that Jesus was the Christ, which, according to 1 Cor. 12:5, he said was through the Holy Ghost, and that was to be had subsequent to baptism. He also averred that since Christ made the utterance of St. John 3:5, it could not be otherwise, as Christ there said no man could enter the kingdom without baptism, and he did not believe Christ would stultify his record.

At seven p. m., Elder J. F. McDowell was speaker. His theme, "Indoctrinated Christians." Text, Roman 6: 17. Elder McDowell said it was common to say everybody should belong to some church, and that then the question very naturally rises, Is it not possible that some church would be outside the pale of the church. Then would it not be better to be in quest of the church rather than some church? Paul's charge, "Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith," was urged, and that it was applicable to preacher as well as people; to those who had been on the way one year, or scores of years. Numerous citations were made in proof of this. Elder McDowell urged that there was no variance in the teaching of those of the time of Christ, and that Paul had written that "all scripture was for doctrine, reproof, correction, instruction in righteousness." How there could be a mincing of matters, accepting or rejecting at their pleasure, he could not see. Elder McDowell showed clearly that Christians should be thoroughly indoctrinated with the Christianity of the kind found in the Bible.

Oct. 6th.—At nine a. m., prayer service was held, E. Curtis in charge. At the close of this service some sick were administered to.

At eleven a. m., Elder J. C. Crabb preached the sermon. Text: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." He urged that freedom was desirable, and that those nations who had it, made best development, but that it was freedom within the law. The fowls, the fishes, and all animate nature were said to be within the law ordained for their existence, and that any change worked disastrously. How various societies could maintain only a portion of God's truth and yet hope for eternal life, the speaker could not see; but that all would certainly be safe by getting on the exact platform given by Christ.

The dinner hour in the Cotton City to-day was pleasant, the air being quite balmy.

Intoxicants having found their way onto the ground, several arrests were promptly made and the parties await trial under guard, in the absence of bail.

Good order is being maintained, although as at all out-door doings there are those who would disturb the quiet if allowed.

At two p. m. President Blair, as speaker, began by urging the interest there should be taken in Christianity; that God had implanted in man a longing for a better condition of being. It is manifest in all the departments of nature that progress is ordained by Diety. This attached to the race of man pre-eminently, for they are found at the lowest possible plane of helplessness, the helpless infant, being more dependent than any other of the animated species. The wonderful achievements of man were arrayed, and the high privileges God had endowed man with in his development from infancy to manhood. As development from the nothingness of childhood to the acme of human greatness is by self-denial and perseverance, so of the divine life. In this the individual is blessed, as also the society and the race. The tangibility of the future home of the blessed, the speaker urged, was one of the most scriptural facts. Promises had been made that the "meek should inherit the earth." History is now just the reverse; the proud, haughty and warlike had depopulated, but in God's providence the meek should be more fortunate in the future state, and occupy the earth.

Elder Blair has been editing the Saints' Advocate, specially devoted against the evils of Utah, and is a pleasant speaker.

Oct. 7th.—At the morning prayer service four children were blessed by the Elders after the pattern set by our Savior.—Matt. 19: 13-15.

At eleven o'clock Elder J. C. Crabb preached an able and practical sermon from Matt. 28: 18-20; and at 2: 30 p. m. Elder J. F. McDowell interested a large and attentive congregation from the text—"But seek ye first the kingdom of God." At 7: 30 p. m., Elder M. T. Short spoke with force and acceptance on Romans 6: 1-6, showing the relation and conection between water baptism and the resurrection.

Oct. 8th.—At the morning prayer and testimony meeting the Spirit of God was present in great power; three persons spoke in tongues, the interpretation of which was encouraging and edifying. Many bore testimony to the truth of the latter day work, for it had been confirmed to them by the promised signs following the belever. At the prayer meeting the day before it was predicted that the Spirit would be poured out upon the Saints in the camp to a great degree. Twelve baptized previously, were confirmed.

At two p. m., Elder J. F. McDowell preached the word from John 3: I-12. He held that men of sense engaged in business pursuits felt the need of knowing they were secure in their work, and were building rightly and safely; and that this same principle should apply when serving God and seeking for life eternal. God has promised this security and confirmation to every faithful believer; hence the fact and the necessity of the promised signs following the gospel believer. In the evening, Elders C. Derry and J. C. Crabb occupied the stand acceptably.

October 9th.—At the morning prayer service there were nine prayers, one prophecy and thirty testimonies.

At ten a. m., by vote a committee of three—P. Cadwell, D. Hall, and J. C. Crabb, were appointed to locate the place, fix the time, and make all the necessary arrangements for a Re-union in the Fall of 1886, and to call to their aid others to assist, if they shall need; they to have full control of the grounds, and to see that no nuisance of any kind be allowed on or near the place of meeting; also to negotiate with the railways for rates to said Re-union, and report to the next Spring conference, at Lamoni, Iowa.

At 2: 30 p. m., Elder J. S. Roth addressed the assembly in a spirited and instructive discourse on the literal resurrection of the dead, arguing that God who made man was quite able to effect his resurrection.

The evening sermon was preached by Elder E. C. Brand, from Acts 17: 26, as his text, "And God hath made of one blood all nations and hath set the bounds and times of their habitations." Mr. Brand observed that the Latter Day Saints were not time-setters, never having once set the time for Christ to come, yet he believed that God worked by figures. Reference was made to the four hundred years of captivity shown to Abraham; the seventy years of Babylonish captivity, also several others, where special times were set and worked to by God himself. The peopling of this land was at a set time of the Lord. The coming forth of the work the speaker represented, he argued from Isaiah 29, and Joel 2, was just before the return of fruitfulness to Palestine, which was shown to have taken place in the year 1852 and since, there now being two and three crops per year. The exile and oppression of the Jews was dwelt upon, as also the present prominence they enjoy. The Rothchilds are now consulted by the eastern world, especially in case of war, on finances. From Isaiah 29, and Ezekiel 37, Elder Brand argued the coming forth of a record, the Book of Mormon, not to supplant the Bible, but to be a companion to it. He made a fine defense of the Book of Mormon.

Saturday, 10th, opened with a strong wind rustling through the forest. The camp now had one hundred and eight tents pitched, besides a goodly number of covered wagons, also booths for refreshments, etc. The prayer service was hindered some by a few tedious testimonies, yet the participants were numerous, several persons of seventy years and more giving an experience that reached back through the dark and cloudy days since the martyrdom of the Smiths. It is interesting to see the fervor that these old veterans manifest. No reasonable person can be in their assembly and not feel that with them is the true spirit of worship, though they have long been maligned as fanatics and a deluded people. Acquaintance with them presents just the reverse.

Elder P. Cadwell requested the Saints to pray for President Joseph Smith, that he may have the blessings and tender care of the Lord in his mission to plead the cause of God in Utah, in calling the Brighamites back to the law of the Lord and the fulness of the gospel.

At two p. m. hymn 835, "Asleep in Jesus," an impressive prayer by Charles Derry, and hymn 864, "Sister thou wast mild and lovely," ushered in the funeral service of Martha Ellen McIntosh, wife of Cornelius G. McIntosh. President Blair, pronouncing the sermon, read first the history of the sister, which was fraught with interest as one that had seen the hard fortunes that persecution of Mormonism afforded in Missouri and Illinois.

Elder Blair said that the present abode of the departed faithful one was a matter of interest to the relatives, friends, himself and the auditors. The question whether the state of the departed spirit was that of a conscious, contented, happy one, was of interest, and he would try to satisfy them it was from Bible and other testimony. He asked, Why not believe the living witnesses of day as quickly as those of other years? He related the apparent death of a lady of his acquaintance. who when dead, as was supposed, awoke, and after taking nourishment related that she had been absent from her body, had seen the sanctuary of the redeemed, but was told that she could not then enter. On her descent she saw her body as plainly as in her natural state she could see another. "Paul's seeing a man in Christ above fourteen years ago, whether in or out of the body," was stated as a parallel. He explained that Paul was conscious that a man could be taken to paradise in the body, or without it, and have a view of the future state. Elder Blair here related a similar experience of another acquaint-

President Joseph Smith was next referred to, he having lost a daughter just a year ago, having left her well when starting to the reunion and finding her dead at his return. After bearing the pangs of sorrow for several days, prayed, and in answer was permitted to see and converse with her. The anguish was removed, as also the desire for her to return, as he was conscious of her happiness. Mr. Smith's credibility, Elder Blair said, would not be challenged by either friend or opposer, among those who know him. The longing that is in man calls for a future, and God, who created man with that longing, had not left an aching void, but prepared that it be satisfied. The three Hebrew children in the flery furnace, and the fourth, "like unto the son of God" that appeared there, Mr. Blair urged, was in proof of the fact that the people in those times believed in spirit existence in the form of man. Socrates and other philosophers were referred to as conscious of such satisfactory fact relative to the future. Jesus' testimony referred to—the rich man and Lazarus. Mr. Blair observed that the record put them far apart, the rich man conscious of his sad condition, and Lazarus of his rest and joy. Moses, Christ and Elias appearing on the mount, was related. There were many testimonies that Moses died, (Num. 20:24, 28, with 27: 13, 14; Deut. 32:48-52; 34:5, 6, 7; Josh. 1:1, 2); and Christ had not been crucified and resurrected, hence the appearance of Moses in a spirit-conscious state, the intermediate between death and resurrection.

The service was concluded with hymn 896, "O how sweet is the soul cheering thought,"

There is rest for the pure and the good," and benediction.

The entire service was a most excellent one.

At seven p. m., Elder R. Etzenhouser preached an able and instructive discourse on the antiquities of America in connection with the Book of Mormon.

Sunday the 12th.—The rain began falling heavily in the night, and morning opened dark and stormy.

A council covened in the tent of Bro. John Pett, and resolved, that Presidend Blair appoint a committee of four—two from the Galland's Grove District, and two from the Little Sioux District—for the purpose of soliciting aid and purchasing a tent for the use of reunions and other camp meetings in these districts, said tent to be owned and controlled by said districts. W. C. Cadwell, James Putney, J. W. Chatburn, and John Pett were appointed said committee.

A vote of thanks was tendered the committee appointed to locate the site of the present reunion; to the friends and Saints for their k ndness to those attending these meetings; to the police, and all the officers of the reunion, for their services; to the C. & N. W., and C. M. & St. Paul R. R., for reduced fares, and that the secretary be authorized to send each of them a copy of said resolution.

Resolved, that the minutes of the reunion be published in the Herald, and that the minutes so published be sent to the Council Bluffs Nonpareil, Omah Herald, and such other papers as may see proper to publish them.

One more was baptized and confirmed, after which the reunion on vote, stood adjourned sine die. This was a most excellent and profitable meeting, and will be joyfully remembered by those in attendance.

John Pett, Chas. Butterworth, Secretaries.

MARRIED.

TRUMAN—BUCKINGHAM.—On September 13th, 1885, at the Saints' Chapel, Lamoni, Iowa, by Elder J. P. Dillon, assisted by Elder H. A. Stebbins, Bro. George Truman and Sr. Victoria A. Buckingham. The marriage ceremony was performed at the close of the afternoon service when the bride and bridegroom entered the chapel attended by the bridesmaids, Anna Buckingham and Eliza Bently, and the groomsmen Isaac Monroe and Frank Dillon, and friends. At the altar, the happy couple were made one. After the usual congratulations and good wishes of their many friends, invited guests accompanied the bride to her home, and there partock of a bounteous feast. Suitable presents given. It was the first marriage performed in the new chapel, and the marriage bells rang joyfully.

> Oh may constancy of heart. Be like their Master's whom they serve, Nor aught in life ill thoughts impart To cause them from this bond to swerve, Lord keep and lead them by thy hand; Uphold them by Thy mighty arm, Till in thy courts they joyful stand, Called to the marriage of the Lamb.

DIED.

ATWELL.-Departed this life, October 6th, 1885, at Cabool, Texas county, Missouri, of consumption, sister Lilly May, the beloved daughter of Bro. B. A. and Sr. M. A. Atwell, aged 15 years, 1 month, 3 days. She was baptized in the spring of 1884, at Edenville, Iowa, by Elder J. F. McDowell. She died in the full assurance of the first resurrection. Below are words she left for a memoriam.

Afflictions sore long time I bore, Earthly help it was in vain, Till God did please my soul to take, And ease me of my pain. Mourn not, dear parents, that my life is spent, I was not given, but only lent. The Lord he gives and takes away; We shall meet again at the judgment day, Farewell, dear triends and schoolmates all; Prepare to meet me when you are called. Evil shun, and all its train; Goodness seek, then life is gain.

Mother; you are tired, I know, Watching o'er me night and day; Mother, mother, do not weep; Kiss me as I fall asleep.

BELCHER.-At Wilmott, Ray county, Missouri, October 16th, 1885, Sr. Belcher, wife of J. B. Belcher. She was born March 1st, 1843, and was bap ized and confirmed by Elder W. C. Kenyon, Decembe 17th, 1870. A devoted wife, a kind and loving mother. She leaves a husband and seven children to mourn her departure. Funeral services were conducted by Elders David Powell and E. W. Cato.

EDWARDS .- At Llanelly, Wales, July 12th, 1885, brother Henry Edwards, aged 20 years. He was a Teacher in the branch, and a good, virtuous young man. Our great expectations of him were clouded through his early death.

HUGHES .- At Carnaervon, North Wales, July 29th, 1885, Elder William Hughes, aged 62 years. He was a liberal, kind-hearted man.

WILLIAMS.—At Llanelly, Wales, September 10th, 1885, Elder William Williams, president of Llanelly Branch, aged 49 years. Bro. Williams was not a great speaker, but a solid, useful, godly man. We deeply mourn the loss of these three good men, but not without a bright hope of seeing them at the first resurrection.

T. E. JENKINS.

COME AND SEE OUR PAPER

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS. Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Hansen & Walker's Drug Store.

BRANCH RECORDS.

DISTRICT RECORDS.
Printed and bound similar to Branch Records3 00

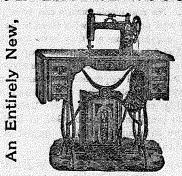

H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

Easy - Running - Sewing - Machine.

--IT HAS-

The Most Room under the Arm. The Best Self-Setting Needle.
The Largest Bobbin.
The Easiest Shuttle to Thread.
The Most Perfect Tension.
The Most Reliable Feed.

The Mest Perfect Take-Up.
The Best Bobbin Winder.

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME.

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

Agents Wanted by Robert Johns (Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in

INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL, AND PASTELL.

Also, manufacturer of

BED SPRINGS.

THESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or swish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Cathlogue, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fall for those who will work diligently.

IF YOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue, anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handlings Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 10 hs when packed) for only 97c... IRON-HEATER included for $1.30, to any one who will act as agent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3.50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a

Picture Outfit,

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait. (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only 98c. Catalogue free.

Address ROBERT JOHNS PEORIA, ILLINOIS.

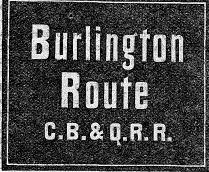

(Successor to Johns & Ordway.) In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY JOHN SHIPPY, DR.

Dental Surgeon,

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Cov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison or Kansas City. It traverses all of the six Great States.

ILLINOIS, IOWA, MISSOURI,
NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO
With branch lines to their important cities and towns.
It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver, Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis, Chicago and Dubuque, Chicago and Sloux City, Peorla and Council Bluffs, Peorla and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omaha, St. Louis and St. Paul, St. Louis and Rock Island,
St. Louis and Chicago,
Kansas City and Denver,
Kansas City and St. Paul,

Kansas City and Omaha, Kansas City and Burlington.

Direct Connection made at each of its junction points ith Through Trains to and from points located on its with Through Trains to and from points located on its branches.

At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada.

It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

HENRY B. STONE, PERI Ass't Gen'l Manager, CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass, Agent,

⇒BUSINESS∜ The Davenport Business Gollege

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught. Bookseping, by single and double entry; Business Arithmetic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circulars address

DUNCAN & HAWES, Davenport, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed David Dancer, Box 82. Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANGER; communications and articles to the EDITOR.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCUBINES

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE IT BE HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXC. OF 18 AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 830, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4 Case of Death, when Effren

Vol. 32.—Whole No. 652.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 7, 1885.

No. 45.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

The Saints' Herald.

W. W. BLAIR

ASSOCIATE EDITOR:

Lamoni, Iowa, November 7, 1885.

FACTS AND CONCLUSIONS.

GEORGE Q. CANNON is credited with delivering a discourse in the Assembly Room, Salt Lake City, Utah, Sunday afternoon, March 30th, 1884, in which he stated:

"Plural marriage must in the nature of things, be limited in its operations. We do not believe in its universality; it is not possible to be practiced universally."

"We do not believe that every man is entitled to more than one wife. The very fact of numbers prevents this."

"Statistics prove that the number of men and women in the world is about equal, and as more women are to be saved than men, it is necessary that we have this system of plural marriage, in order that these women may receive the highest exaltation."

It is not many years since Elder Orson Pratt, and others of the Utah polygamous elders, maintained that one of the chief reasons why plural marriage was instituted was that there were a great many more women than men born into the world; therefore, in order that these women in excess might attain the object of their creation, it was necessary that men be allowed to marry two, or more. Now that Orson Pratt is dead and his logic of numbers is silent, the prosaic intellect of chief apostle Cannon admits a fact, easy of proof, that the men and women are about equal. He might as well admit what may as easily be proved, that in Utah the men are in excess. Solid fact has shouldered that much of Utah sophistry out of the way.

What next? Why, that plural marriage is necessarily limited in its operations. Yes; only a few, about one in ten of the men of Utah have more than one wife-that is-only one in ten of the men folks among the Saints of Utah is worthy to have more than one wife; worthy to be thus exalted; worthy of such celestial salvation. The men and women being equal in number; but one man saint in ten only being worthy to have more than one wife, this one worthy gets two; then there are eight who may have one each, because worthy of no more, and one is so unworthy he can not get any, because worthy number one has got her! Or if the one worthy man has five wives, then five others are worthy of but one each and four are unworthy, and have none!

But it "is not and can not be universal." Just so. And this is one of the strongest arguments that can be made against the practice and the divinity of the so-called revelation claimed as the authority for its institution. For all the offers of salvation and exaltation made in the gospel of Jesus Christ are of such a nature that they are universal in their results to all who choose to accept of that gospel. Neither God, nor Christ, ever authorized an addenda to that gospel, the addenda to which "in the nature of things" is limited in its application, or operation.

One thing more ought to be told us by Elder Cannon, and that is, who is it that declares which one of the ten is worthy, and decides the rate of his worthiness, whether two, five, or ten wives; thus deciding the other nine, four, or one other of the ten to be unworthy? And what are the qualifications of worthiness?

How does Mr. Cannon know what he so broadly states: that "more women are to be saved than men?" Whence comes this idea? Where and with what teacher did this theory originate? If we gather the idea correctly it is, that in the world to come there will be more women than men who have been saved; and for this reason Mr. Cannon, Mr. Taylor, and some others, one man in ten is to be designated by somebody as being worthy to have more than one woman as wives, in order that, in the happy land beyond death, these women may have a husband. If the statement was not intended to convey that idea, is it to be understood as stating that there are more women than men in the world to whom salvation is to be offered, or that the proportion of women needing salvation is larger than that of men? If so, what means the inexplicable logic of the fact that God has made the sexes equal?

Elder Charles W. Penrose also made a speech on the same occasion, from the report of which speech we excerpt the following expressions, illustrative of the beauties (?) of a system that calls for such Speaking of the religious defences. character of their Utah marriage system, he said:

"God performed the ceremony for Adam and Eve when they were immortal beings before the fall, and it was for eternity, and not for time. It was in no sense a civil contract."

The church in 1835, in an article specially prepared to present the attitude of the church on this very point, declared that marriage is "regulated by laws and ceremonies" "in all civilized countries;" and that all "legal contracts of marriage made before a person is baptized into the church, should be held sacred and fulfilled;" thus recognizing marriage as a civil contract. Whence comes this flat statement then, that "marriage is in no sense a civil contract."

Mr. Penrose further said:

"Eve was a daughter of God, and he gave her to Adam. He had a right to a voice in this union of the sexes which was to have eternal consequences."

"When we join a man [to a woman-Ed] for time and eternity, they should look upon it as a sacred rite, and one to last for eternity. The woman should give her whole heart to the man, and he should cling to her forever. It is because we are of the earth earthy, that we do not always act up to this principle, and descend to the practices we do. Ours is the good old way that God has ordained."

"The great majority of men marry for improper purposes. You listen to the conversation of the Gentiles when one of their number is married. Their conversation is of a lascivious and lustful character, and they judge us by themselves. I won't say what some of us do under like circumstances. I am not going to judge or criticise our people on this point."

"It is not bigamy that we practice. The essence of bigamy is the fraud contained therein. There is no fraud in our marriages. We get the consent of the first wife, and the second woman and the officiating clergyman is not deceived."

"But our marriage is a part of our religion. We don't take it from the Bible." "It would not be right for an inhabitant of India to come here and offer up human beings as a religious sacrifice, because it would be interfering with the rights of others. Just as soon as men interfere with our right to take plural wives, they interfere with our right to the pursuit of happiness."

If God performed the ceremony that united Adam, the first created man, with Eve, the first created woman, it is evident that he fixed the status of that union to suit himself; that in fixing it according to the right to a voice in the matter which he undoubtedly had, as stated by Mr. Penrose, he did not consult the whims, caprices, "notions and vagaries of men;" nor "adopt the customs and forms which the people choose to invent." He fixed the conditions of that union to be two persons only in the marriage bond, and for time and the earth only.

Why Mr. Penrose should go out of the record to make the statement that this first marriage was for eternity only, when the command was to "multiply and replenish the earth," and not heaven; and to fleshly bodies, not spiritual; the whole earth, and not the Garden of Eden the sphere; and the added condemnation for transgression, "I will greatly multiply thy conception, and in sorrow shall thou bring forth"—showing clearly that the institution was for time, and the purposes of time,—is like some other crotchets of his eccentric brain,—something difficult to account for.

For the celestial character of that union between Adam and Eve, Mr. Penrose may plead; but the record is clear, that if it was the type, that God fixed it, then it must have been in accordance with the spiritual law of its design; hence shows but two, one of each sex in celestial marriage. And if it was fixed by God upon his own idea and notion, and not to suit the notions of men, for time; then the plan of God for time is two persons in the union, one of each sex. So let Elder Penrose take either the celestial or the earthly horn of the dilemma into which his appeal to this first marriage under God's supervision plunges him, he is hopelessly stranded in his argument.

Mr. Penrose strives very assiduously to convey to his hearers that the marriages solemnized by the Utah priesthood are indissoluble, are "celestial," for "eternity," "forever and forever." He affirms that the woman should give herself to the man unreservedly; her whole heart;" and that the man should "cling to her forever." We give Mr. Penrose the benefit of the statement, that if the so-called revelation on plural marriage confers any authority, it is the authority to marry; but none is conferred to divorce. Hence, if it is not to the Bible that polygamists look for sanction to marry a plurality of wives, but to the revelation; they are not entitled to the Bible provision for divorce, but must abide the terms of the revelation to which they appeal. The man who marries one wife under the Bible law and revelations of 1831, may be divorced, or obtain a divorce; but he who marries celestially, marries plural wives, can not be divorced. But Mr. Penrose, Mr. Cannon, nor Mr. Taylor will dare to state that there was not in President Young's time, and is now, the most continuous divorcing. Mr. Taylor himself stated publicly that he divorced two wives from a man who had been everlastingly married to them. Only a few, says Mr. Penrose, are worthy to receive plural wives. When men are decided to be worthy and they receive the gracious boon,-privilege to marry the second, third, or fortieth wife,—he is married for eternity. What business then has John Taylor, or any body else for that matter, to claim and exercise a right to disannul that everlasting bond? Mr. Penrose, however, unwittingly admits that the eternal nature of this celestial marriage business claimed by him, is not observed, when he states: "it is because we are of the earth, earthy, that we do not always act up to this principle and descend to the practices we do." To what practices does he here refer? Can they be other than those attaching to the "earth, earthy?" How much better are those practices in Utah Saints than in Gentile sinners. "Ours is the good old way that God has ordained!" Which, Mr. Penrose, your celestial theory, or your "earthy" practices?

Is it not true, Mr. Penrose, that hitherto and now, persons who have been known to be unworthy have received permits to plurally marry?

Is it true as once affirmed by you that any one is at liberty to marry more than one wife, if he can support them? Is wealth a qualification of worthiness? Is it not true that men of standing in the Utah church have married more wives thau they could support? Is it not true that Heber C. Kimball stated that his wives were self-supporting? Is it not not true that men of the church all the way from Pres. B. Young down to an Elder, have divorced wives by an appeal to Pres. Young, or John Taylor, and for which divorces a money consideration passed to President Young, which wives so divorced afterwards married other men? Is it not true, that as plural marriages were not and are not sufficiently sacred and binding to be observed for the term claimed for their duration, but are broken at the will of the parties, that such marriages in practice are for time and the flesh only.

Mr. Penrose knows that in a great many instances the consent of the first wife has not been obtained before the marriage to a second or third woman was consummated. He knows that there are plenty of instances in which men have taken the second wife where the first wife has not only not consented, but has refused, absolutely, to do so. He knows that there are cases, and not few either, where men have been married to the second, or third, unknown to the first; and the fact of such marriage kept from the first wife, until it was necessary for the husband to account for his absence from the side of his lawful wife.

DIVISIONS.

PAUL said, "Mark them which cause divisions and offenses contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned, and avoid them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ."—Rom. 16: 17, 18. And John the Divine said, -"Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed: For he that biddeth him God speed, is partaker of his evil deeds." Those who endorse or encourage lawless teachers, help the evil work of division and heresy. If Latter Day Saints had heeded these instructions and had steadfastly adhered to those sacred books which God gave to the church through that man whom He says was "a choice seer," and like unto Moses," "like unto" Joseph in Egypt, esteemed highly by God's Israel, who would also be mighty in "convincing" God's Israel of His word, (evidently through personal preaching, teaching, and sending his word all abroad by other ministers), and of whom the Lord further says, "And I will make him great in mine eyes; for he shall do my work;" if the Saints had heeded those teachings, there would have been no hateful, hurtful apostasy. The various issues which have sprung into existence would never have been.

Besides this, if these teachings were heeded by the Saints now, they would be at rest, and would flourish, progress, and prevail. But so long as they will permit those whom God has not appointed, to fill their ears with guesses, rumors, surmises, evil reports, private interpretations of Scripture, light speeches and damaging tales concerning those whom God called and sent to introduce and build up his work, just so long they will be darkened in mind, disturbed in spirit, and divided in their faith and service toward God. And if this is persisted in, such parties will wander away into utter disbelief and eternal ruin.

Why is it that after all the instructions, admonitions, and examples of the past, some who once knew the way of truth will allow themselves to be seduced and ensnared by fault-finders, busybodies, and those who in effect profess to know more, and to be wiser and better than those whom God has chosen to lead in building up his "great and marvelous work?" Has God made a mistake in his choice? Will his promises fail? Is not his choice, his judgment, and his endorsement of his chosen ones far better than the cavillings, dark insinuations and fault-findings of conceited, restless, lawless ones? One man is as good as another, if he does as well; but yet God has reserved to himself the right to choose whom he will to be his servants; and the bickerings of envious, self-conceited ones will not change his will, nor frustrate his designs. And when Saints murmur against God's chosen ones, they dishonor God's wisdom and goodness, disturb the church, distract themselves, and destroy those who follow their evil ways. Those who undertook to correct and dictate Moses and interfere with his work, (Numbers 16:2-11), met a just fate for attempting to thus obstruct the Lord's purposes. Those who opposed and withdrew from Christ (John 6:60-66), because his sayings were not in harmony with their notions, have ever been objects of condemnation and pity. They assumed to know more than him whom God had sent.

Those misguided and misleading ministers who arose in the church during and after Paul's time, who determined to carry out their own peculiar notions, "Speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them," (Acts 20:30), did harm to the church, corrupted the faith and destroyed the hope of many, and left a dishonored record to succeeding generations. History repeats itself among the Saints in these times, and it is surprising that the admonitions of the past will not deter them from yielding to the "cunning craftiness" of those who "lie in wait to deceive."

There are signs by which these "blind guides" and "false teachers" may be known; for they begin their evil course, usually, by privately, and in an insinuating manner, attacking such doctrines and principles as they dislike, and also by "privily" attacking the character and work of God's chosen servants. This they continue till detected, or until they think their position is sufficiently strong and popular to resist conflict and investigation—they "privily shall bring in damnable heresies"—(2 Pet. 2: 1;—and "creep into houses" with their corrupting theories. Paul has wisely said, "avoid them, for they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus." Will the Saints heed this?

PASSED AWAY.

A TELEGRAM from Bro. Richard S. Salyards, Wheeling, West Virginia, announced that on Thursday, October 15, at 5:45 in the evening, the spirit of Bro. Josiah Ells, of the Twelve, passed peacefully away from the earthworn frame. A card from Bro. Richard states: "So peaceful was the transition that it was scarcely more than like a calm sinking to sleep."

Bro. Iosiah Ells was one of the earliest members of the church in the rise of the church, and came to Hancock county soon after the Saints began their settlement in that county. He was a trusted Elder, a physician skilled in his profession, a careful, kind man. At the death of Joseph and Hyrum, he returned east to his old home; associated with Elder Sidney Rigdon for a time, but soon withdrew, and was ready to accept and welcome the Reorganization. He was called into the quorum at the Conference of April, 1865, and served the church in that capacity faithfully. He filled a mission to England, and one to Utah, besides having charge of the work in his immediate neighborhood, and further east for many years. His home was at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, until the death of his wife, a few years ago; since which time he has been at Wheeling, Benwood, and other places in Ohio and Pennsylvania, among the Saints, though his permanent home was at Pittsburg, with his son Josiah, a practicing lawyer of that city.

Bro. Ells was in his eightieth year at the last April session, but was vigorous in intellect, and sufficiently strong in body to attend all the sessions of Conference and the meetings of his own quorum. His place in the active duties of the ministry may be filled by another, but his bishopric and stewardship are his forever. He served the Master, who never forgets his faithful servants. In conversation with him at the Conference, in the sitting room at Bro. Joseph Luff's, Bro. Hiram Rathbun and myself being present, he said, "Bro. Joseph,

I can not expect to live much longer. My days have been lengthened out beyond my utmost expectation. But, thank God, I have been permitted to see the church in a position far in advance; and I have been able to aid a little, though but little, in the work. My time of usefulness is now past, and I am ready to go when it may please the Lord." We suggested to him that he might live several years to still bless with counsel the Elders of the church. "No," said he, "I do not flatter myself with that thought. I know that the great God could prolong my days; but it is hardly for the best. I am willing to stay; but I have no fear to go."

The record of such a life is fitly closed when attendant watchers can say: "It was like a calm sinking to sleep."

ANOTHER REASON.

ONE strong reason why the Utah dominant Church should stop and seriously consider the abandonment of the plural marriage system is the fact that the rapid settling of the lands in Utah available for agriculture, is now making it decidedly impracticable and inconvenient, if not impossible for men to obtain and occupy land in sufficient quantity to maintain large polygamous families, as may have been done when there were fewer people in the Territory. It is not to be thought of, that the system will be permitted to spread into States and Territories when statute enactments already exist against it. Presidents Taylor and Cannon, have in their last Epistle admitted that it is not so intended; therefore its practice must be confined to Utah, and here its limits must necessarily become more and more confined, as the population increases. Besides this, some of the influx of settlers on the public domain is from the monogamous hosts of the United States, and this portion must make the practice of what is unlawful by existing statutes more and more precarious and dangerous; the inevitable result of which must be to put it out of fashion and countinance, and hence out of public confidence, and into final disuse; or it will drive it into the perilous confines of darkness and secrecy, with other crimes against society and its laws.

THE Committee of the Cincinnati Noon-day Prayer Meeting, has sent us a circular to the following effect:

"The Christian people of Cincinnati, represented by the Members of the Noon-day Prayer Meeting Committee of that city, send forth to the Christian world, a request for their prayers for Cincinnati, its ministers and people."

ALWAYS UNLAWFUL.

WHEN I. B. Nash, A Bijorn and A. Peck were arraigned before the United States District Court at Blackfoot, Idaho, October 21st, for a breach of the Edmunds law, their lawyer pleading to the jury stated that "polygamy was not a crime until the passage of the Edmunds law." Judge Hays, presiding, stopped him, and said he wished no attorney to claim before a jury in his court that there ever was a time when polygamy was not a crime.

This would indicate that Judge Hays rules that plural marriages were never lawful in territory belonging to the United States. Judges Zane of the Third and Powers of the First Districts of Utah rule in the same way.

President Joseph Smith has always held and taught the same, as may be seen in his reply to Orson Pratt on polygamy, and in other of his writings. His pulpit utterances, when treating of that matter, have been accordingly. It is gratifying to know that his views, expressed long before these matters were brought before Congress and the Courts, are now found to be in exact accord with their action in the premises. It must be allowed that, if there was no divine inspiration enlightening him, then his practical judgment or legal ability is found to be all right.

As to polygamy being a crime and having been a crime before the laws of 1862, and 1882, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, as early as 1835, in its article on marriage, denounced it as a crime. The Book of Mormon, in the second chapter of Jacob, denounces it as a gross "crime." President Smith is in good company on this topic, and is amply sustained in his position by the word of God, the covenants of the church, the common law of the enlightened world, the acts of Congress, and the decisions of the Courts. Is this the result of destiny, superior sense, legal acumen, or the inspiration of the Almighty!

DISAPPOINTING.

THE Utah Mormons built high hopes of relief from national censure and legal prosecution for polygamy and its like, on the incoming of the present administration. The following from a late Washington letter going the rounds can but add to their disappointment already exhibited.

"Hon. S. S. Cox, in Turkey, not only does not assent to the religion of that country, but belongs to a political party, which, in its National declaration of principles, denounces polygamy and every custom akin to it in emphatic terms, and is committed to an extermination of it under the law."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Charles Alford writes of late saying:

"Please insert in the Herald that we have moved to Worthington, Minn., and should any of the Saints happen in said place, would be glad to have them call at Azom Forbes', lumber dealer, and inquire for us.

Bro. Justus Minthorn writes us from Gaines, New York, October the 16th, inst., he says:

"We don't see how we can get along without the Herald. It is our only preacher. We have not seen but two Latter Day Saints for over ten years, Brn. Lanphear and Whitehead. We want a smart Elder sent here, one full of the Holy Ghost. Prejudice is strong here."

We thank Bro. Minthorn for apples and quinces sent to the employees of the Herald Office. The apples raised here are far superior to those sent, but we thank the brother for his generosity just the same. And in this connection we may say, that this region bids fair to be a very good fruit region, for both large and small fruits, such as are suited to this latitude. Though not very abundant, there has been a fair supply, and very sound and healthy at that.

WE glean from the Deseret News of October 16th, the following:

"It is well known that locusts, in alarming numbers, have recently made their appearance in this and the adjoining Territories. They came too late to do any general injury to crops this year, although many fields of lucern and other green stuff were devoured by the ravenous insects, before laying their eggs. Unless something unusual happens to prevent the eggs hatching out, we may naturally look for myriads of the "ironclads" to devastate a large area next year."

"Drouth, etc., in Arizona.—A correspondent writing to us from Tempe, Maricopa county, Arizona, says: 'The health of the people is generally good and all are moving on in the even tenor of their way, trying, to the best of their ability, to live their religion. Not a great deal of stir on the outside; court sits on the 19th inst., when brother Leavitt will appear before the court on a charge of unlawful cohabitation. The segregating principle is somewhat talked of by lawyers, and our brethren who have served a term in Yuma are again threatened, and the end is not yet; neither is the judgments of God.

""The country is drying up, and there is a good prospect for a long siege of drouth. No rain has fallen since last March, except in spots here and there, which was no material benefit. The river is nearly dry, and should it fail to rain in the next two months, next season's crop will be a failure; there is but little grain being sown so fais and should the drouth continue, breadstuff will have to be shipped into this valley inside of eighteen months, as our last season's wheat crop was nearly a failure. Wheat and barley have already advanced fifty per cent. since harvest. Let the people of Utah take warning and save their grain. The Indians for the first time since our advent in this country are gathering hay for stock."

WRATH IN UTAH,

The tribulations the Utah Mormons are now suffering, and those they are menaced with, are very great, and should cause them to seek for the root of these evils. That they are under the wrathful, chastening hand of God, is evident. Will they profit by it? There is not one calamity that is upon them but what is the result of their treating lightly the Sacred books endorsed by the church in the days of Joseph Smith, the Seer, and the end is not yet. Had they carefully read and heeded the teachings of those books, they would never have gathered to the mountain-desert regions of the west; they would not have practiced or taught polygamy; they would not have disobeyed the laws of the land, nor evaded and resisted the officers of these laws; they would not have allowed their leaders to mix Church and State affairs; they would never have accepted and endorsed Brigham Young as the President of the Church of Christ; and, in fine, they would not be "as salt that has lost its savor, * * * good for nothing, only to be cast out and trodden under feet of men." (Rev. D. C., Dec. 16th, 1833). But they would enjoy the "grace and favor" of the people, and would "rest in peace and safety," while "the army of Israel becomes very great," (Rey. D. C., June 22d, 1834), and the "gospel of the kingdom" be sent speedily and successfully to the nations to gather the Israel of God and prepare the way for the second and glorious advent of our Lord Jesus Christ. Must that people "learn obedience" to God's written word by the things they suffer? We greatly wish they would learn without the suffering.

THE Utah Christian Advocate (Methodist) has this to say of President Joseph Smith:

"Joseph Smith, son of the famous Joseph Smith who was murdered, delivered an excellent gospel sermon at the Josephite Church on the evening of October 6th; and afterwards, with the Elders, anointed with oil and laid hands on a sick lady. At the same service three young women were confirmed by the laying on of hands by the Elders. The government has no battle with the Josephites."

DR. STORRS, at the great missionary gathering at Fremont Temple, Boston, Mass., October 14th, says as follows concerning Utah polygamy:

"Polygamy will go from the regions which it defiles as surely, perhaps as suddenly, also, when the time has come, as Slavery went."

Of this we have never had a doubt, and it now seems imminent.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

"Braden Unmasked" is the title of a pamphlet sent us of late. It is the production of Rev. L. L. Luse, who with Mr. Braden proposed to make a full end of Mormonism at Wilber, Neb., and after that at Kirtland, Ohio. If Mr. Braden is one-tenth as bad as Mr. Luse paints him, he should repent speedily and thoroughly if he can. Why did not Mr. Luse learn of Mr. Braden's badness earlier?

By letter from Bro. J. T. Kinnaman, Stewartsville, Mo., we learn that himself and wife had of late been to Aledo, Illinois, to attend the funeral of his wife's father, Bro. J. Bear, and that while east he did some preaching, and would go to St. Joseph, Missouri, October 30th.

A Mr. Charles Wells, of Kane, Greene Co., Illinois, is anxious to have "the right kind of a preacher" call and labor there. Let those Elders near see to it.

We note that Charles J. Strang, editor of the Charlevoix (Mich.) Journal, has been appointed postmaster at that place.

President Joseph Smith wrote from Pleasant Grove, Utah, October 21st, saying he spoke in the Opera Hall, in Lehi, the evening of the 19th, and "had a most excellent audience. Hall full to overflowing. I also had most excellent liberty, and I spoke plainly, or tried to. Bro. Luff gave us a stirring discourse here last night. It was a searcher. I will try tonight."

Writing from Downs, Kansas, October 26th, Bro. A. H. Parsons says: "The work is onward in this Western Kansas."

The Associate Editor made a Sunday call at Saint Joseph, Mo., on the 25th ult., preached in the morning and evening to fair congregations in the Saints' Hall, enjoyed largely the light and liberty of God's Spirit, also the fellowship of the Saints. Two promising young men were baptized by presiding elder, E. T. Dobson. May heaven bless the church at Saint Joseph.

We have devoted much space to articles on Utah affairs in this issue. The wrath of heaven and of the nation has fallen upon the misguided people there, and it is well for the Herald readers to know the causes and cure of the evils existing there. Though unpleasant and painful in some respects, the information offered here will prove of great value to the thoughtful ones.

Bro. John Shippy has returned of late from Michigan, bringing his wife with him, and they have settled down here with a view to making this their permanent home. Bro. Shippy intends to practice dentistry here, and in all this region, as occasion serves. His card will be found in another column.

Much solid improvement has been made thus far this year in and around Lamoni. And now it is proposed to have the village duly organized with mayor, etc., etc.

MISSED THE POINT.

In every question there is a point to seize which is to determine the question. The News of Wednesday discussed at length the grand jury matter, but it missed the point. The point in the grand jury matter was not whether certain men should be re-indicted and whether the grand jury could be packed so as to accomplish such re-indictment, but was whether or not the power to say what was the law and what was not, appertained to the grand jury or the Judge. That was the main point. The other was whether the Judge had power to remove three jurors who refused to accept his interpretation of the law as being incompetent and issue an open venire to fill their places after they had been removed as incompetent. The three grand jurors undertook to say what was the law in defiance of the construction of the Judge, and they were so indiscreet as to openly claim that right if their object was to prevent the re-indictment of certain men. Had they chosen to rely upon their right to decide whether or not the evidence was sufficient to warrant the finding of an indictment, no person on earth could have compelled them to bring such indictment. It was folly for them to assume to say what the law was or was not, but it was the greatest indiscretion in the world tor them to assign the reason they did for their non-action. Truly, discretion is the better part of valor. The grand jury discharge certain functions in the administration of justice, and in some of the States their functions are discharged by the prosecuting Attorney. Would any one assume to say that the Prosecuting Attorney can bring an information regardless of the Court's interpretation of the law? The chief point in the grand jury matter was as to whom belonged the right to construe a law, the Court or the grand jury? Common sense and the authorities say to the Court,

There is published in Salt Lake City a newspaper called The Democrat. This paper is edited by Mr. Alfales Young, a son of Pres. B. Young. The ostensible object had in view in establishing the paper was the separation of Church and State in Utah, and the creation of such conditions of moral and political sentiment as should be conducive to the admission of Utah into the sisterhood of States.

The Mormons are Democrats as a rule, and hence the natural outgrowth from such a party in Utah, would be the Young Democracy as a conservative political party. This party is represented by the Democrat. The choosing of Alfales Young, a son of the former president of the Mormon Church in Utah and first Governor of Utah, as editor of the organ of the new party, may have been a stroke of policy; but we believe that it was for the reason that he was of the progressive element, and had talent fitting him for the place at the time.

An editorial in the issue for October 17th, we give above, because we conceive that Mr. Young sees the real point at issue in the controversy now going on between Judge Zane, representing the United States in the Territorial Court, and the News, the organ of the church in Utah. The point involved in the discharge by Judge Zane of Messrs. Moritz, Davis and others from the Grrnd Jury was not whether these jurors would find verdicts according to the evidence produced, or indict any way; but was as to whether the jurors as individuals and citizens, or the courts were the proper judges of the law by which they were empaneled, and under which they acted, whether the Supreme Court of the United States was the proper tribunal to examine, and determine the constitutionality of the laws of the United States, or John Taylor, G. Q. Cannon, Moritz, Davis, and every other citizen as such. This point the News, the church organ, and the Elders who so loudly denounce the court and Judge Zane, fail to see; but the Democrat sees it clearly, as is shown in the extract.

If every man is to be permitted to decide as to the constitutionality of the laws of the State, or Nation and determine his action, whether to regard and obey, or deny and disobey, without inquiry and without penalty, then is law a nullity and courts a burlesque too dearly paid for.

Should the Government recede from the stand taken in the passage of the law of 1862, and the Edmunds law, and the attempt to enforce them, it does not require much of the spirit of prophecy to predict that the statement made in the epistle of President Taylor and Cannon that "it "should also be understood that the prac-"tice is not generally admissable even "among the Latter Day Saints. It is "strictly guarded, the intention being to "allow only those who are above reproach "to enter into the relationship. The prac-"tice of the doctrine is not for exten-"sion beyond the church, and is even "limited within its pale" and that it can never be a "menace to the monogamic institutions of the United States," will be revised, and a bold aggressiveness in presenting it will be insisted upon on the part of the itinerant ministry of the Mormon Church. For these leading men will then assume that the retirement of Government from the contest concedes the point of constitutionality; and hence all States and Territories alike must be open to popogandists of the dogma of polygamy.

By the Columbus (Nebraska) Democrat we see that Bro. H. J. Hudson, for a long time postmaster at that place, has been succeeded in that office by Mr. H. N. Hensley, of them the editor remarks:

"While we rejoice in the fortune of Mr. Hensley we can not but regret that we shall miss the cheery beaming face of our genial friend, H. J. Hudson from the place, where smilingly he distributed us the mail."

Correspondence.

Boston, Massachusetts, October 8th. 1885.

Editors of Herald:-I left home September 17th, to visit the Saints of the East. By the request of Bro. G. T. Griffiths I called at Wheeling, West Va., to see father Ells and spend a Sunday with the Saints of that place. Three pleasant meetings were held on the Sabbath, the 20th, though the audiences were not large. A good interest is kept up there, and Brn. Griffiths, Salyards and others are bravely supporting the cause. The brethren expressed confirmed confidence and contentment in the faith. Bro. Ells was better, or at least seemed so-sat up the most of the day-and we left him with the impression, judging from appearances, that he was out of immediate danger. Taking into account his advanced years, it would be quite easy to be misled in this regard, however. But the old soldier was firm in the faith of the gospel, and wept and rejoiced as we conversed together about the great latter day work and its prospective success and triumph. May God be with him and the Saints there.

On the 22d I joined Bro. C. Scott at Buffalo. New York, and after scanning the wonders of the great Niagara Falls we proceeded eastward. arriving in Brooklyn in time to attend the Saints' meeting at the house of Bro. Squires, on the evening of the 23d, Bro. Potts in charge. The Saints expressed themselves as in the faith; yet, like others, they have some discouragements to contend against, but are hopeful for the future. They exhibited an excellent spirit. We did what we could to cheer and comfort them, and listened with interest to their view of the needs and demands of the work there. It will be a most gratifying thing when we can have proper men to labor constantly in every place where there are urgent demands for them.

In this great commerial metropolis, of course, the "green ones" from the west had to take in some of the sights of the city, that they might be wise thereafter; so spent the 24th, mostly, contemplating the marvelous achievements of inventive genius and wonders environed in this modern Babel. The mammouth suspension bridge, elevated railroads, beautiful parks, statues, the Egyptian obelisk, high towers, magnificient buildings, Castle Garden, the big ships, fine harbor, islands and forts, were all objects of attraction and great interest to a "Hoosier" and "clodhopper." We walked about, looked, craned our necks, and scanned the scene with gleeful interest, endeavoring to take in the whole thing in a few hours. Visited Bedloe's Island, and climbed upon the top of the pedestal, then being built, upon which is to rest the great Bartholdi statue—"Liberty enlightning the world." A fine view is had from this point. It was upon this little island, in war times, that the writer had the opportunity of preaching to a large assembly of soldiers, who listened with intense interest, and was so favorably impressed that the speaker was transferred from "hard tack" and salt pork to the cook-house, and served with beef steak, apple sauce, baker's bread, &c., and withall it secured him a berth in the great transport ship that conveyed us from that place to the fort near Savanna, Georgia. It is historic ground to us.

The morning of the 25th found us in Providence, R. I., where we met with a cordial reception at the house of Bro. M. H. Bond, soon to be assigned to Bro. Wm. H. Blood's as our home during the conference; fortunate again. The Saints soon began to arrive, so that by two p. m., Saturday the 26th, a large number had convened from various parts, to participate in the business of the conference. It did us good to see them flock in with such manifest interest and devotion to the great cause of God. Among the chief workers in the ministry of various grades noted. and who reported mostly in person, and "seemed to be somewhat," were presiding officer John-Smith of excellent memory, E. N. Webster, Cyriel Brown, G. S. Yerrington, John Gilbert, M. H. Bond, John Potts, H. H. Thompson, Charles Coombs, Thomas Whiting, Frank Potter, Joseph Woodward, John Holt, Albert Nickerson, Joseph Pierce, J. Halstead, A. O. Tripp, A. J. Perry, Frank Steffe, U. W. Green, Hiram Robinson of New Jersey, T. H. Moore, the Brn. Ames, Talbot, J. C. Hoxie, Wellington Bearse, Nehemiah Nickerson, Wm. Bradbury, E. O. Toombs, N. C. Eldridge, J. F. McKenna, Erwin Perthel, Geo. Fisher, Henry Arnold, Wm. H. Blood, Geo. Ruemart, Geo. A. Yerrington, A. W. Glover, Geo. Lovell, John Potts, Thomas Andrews, Brn. Moore and Soule, Frank M. Sheehv, etc. Some of these have had a greater experience, and are much abler than others, as teachers and present helps, but all are doing something to help sow "the good seed of the kingdom" and give permanence and stability to the work. These, with the noble band of brethren and interested and devoted sisters who stand by and encourage them, are marching along and making some conquests; so that the Massachusetts District seems to have become the great "light-house" of the work east, so far as we have visited. Promising young Saints are growing up who may be of great benefit to the church yet, if contented to let patience, trial, and effort, have their perfect work.

The business, social, sacramental and preaching sessions of conference were well attended, and a deep interest manifested in all that was done. A good spirit with unity of action prevailed throughout. Seven or eight were baptized. In a word, the conference was a great success, and the Saints returned home pleased, comforted, cheered and confirmed in the faith to go on in the good cause. The district officials are men of experience, and worthy of trust. They take delight in seeing the work prosper. There is no friction existing between the general church authorities and the district and other local authorities here, but all work together in unity, each esteemed in his place, to the attainment of the one great end, the conversion of the world and the triumph of the cause, according to the rules of law and order. This condition is attributable, doubtless, to the good sense and love of order, in a great degree, of the chief workmen, which might be imitated with great benefit to the cause, and would be most becoming in many other localities. The work is gaining, and the prospects of success, good.

Wednesday evening the 30th, I met in prayer meeting, at the house of Bro. Toombs, with the Saints at Providence. This was a remarkable meeting in some regards. The house was full to its utmost seating capacity, and a most excellent spirit prevailed. The gifts of tongues, interpretation, and prophecy, were manifest in an orderly and beautiful manner, and was comforting and assuring. All present seemed to be illuminated and reassured in their faith. It is pleasant to remember such seasons. The following day I separated from my genial companion, Bro. C. Scott, leaving him in the hands of the Saints in general, and Bro. Bond in particular, to make a tour of the district, and then called on Bro. John Gilbert at his home, and in company with him and his very pleasant family went to New Bedford, where we were kindly entertained by Bro. John Smith and his industrious and worthy household. We stayed two days, tried to serve the Saints, but not very effectually; had a pleasant visit with the brethren and their families and had to move Sunday, October 4th, I was at Bro. E. N. Webster's, in Boston, and preached twice in the Saints' hall, there, with good liberty and seemingly excellent effect on the hearers. There are few places where we have felt better, and more at home, than in Boston. Long live the work there! On the evening of the 7th I attended a most excellent and cheering prayer meeting at Bro. E. N. Webster's. He takes great pride in the work in Boston. The good Spirit was present. and every one seemed to catch the heavenly fire, and wished to take part. Brothers and sisters talked like skilled preachers, and were not tedious. This meeting was most comforting. I am indebted to Brn. Webster, Mortimer, Raynor, Glover, and Steffe for kind care while in the city. Thanks. God speed the work. More anon.

W. H. KELLEY.

East Delavan, Wis., October 18th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair: - A word of consolation always comes acceptable to the Saints of God, therefore I will say in regard to the work here in this branch, that I believe the Saints are united, and the most of them are prayerfully and zealously working for the cause, and trying to let their light shine so that others may see their good works and be led to see the gospel plan as it is in Christ Jesus our Lord. It is a little over a year since I received my ordination as a minister of the gospel of Christ, and during that time there has been eight souls added to our number. and I believe many more are near the kingdom. Brother John S. Patterson has been with us some. and has helped to remove a great deal of prejudice, for which I am truly thankful, both to him and my Heavenly Father. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I remain your brother in the one HENRY SOUTHWICK.

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, October 21st, 1885.

Dear Herald: - Since my last writing I spent three evenings with the Saints and friends in the vicinity of Palmyra, Nebraska. The people turn out well there. Brn. Joshua Armstrong and Thos. Nutt has kept the work moving there during the summer months. I visited Lincoln; some few are quite anxious for meetings, but the prospect is not very encouraging, as the want of funds forbids an effort there. Attended a part of the confierence at Wilber; full house Saturday evening. Sunday meetings were well attended, considering that it rained all day. During the business session I was summoned by telegraph to preach the funeral sermon of Bro. Eber S. Wilcox's little girl. We know not what a day may bring forth; but we should be ready and prepared for every change, and this is accomplished by our keeping all of God's laws.

In bonds of peace, ROBT. M. ELVIN.

WESTON, Pottawattamie Co., Iowa, October 18th, 1885.

Bro. Blair:-I have just been reading Bro. Anthony's appeal to sustain the Advocate, Expositor, and Banner, for distribution in the Rocky Mountain Mission. I realize this is of the greatest importance, and trust it will be responded to by the Saints, for we ought to esteem it a privilege to help forward the cause of truth. Right now is a golden opportunity to cast in our mite, for I am satisfied that these silent messengers, if distributed freely among the people, will do much good in bringing light and truth to many souls who would not, for fear of priestly rule, go to hear our Elders. This seems to be the very time when those led astray by the latter day apostasy should be made acquainted with the doctrine of the Reorganization, that those who love truth and peace may be made free from bondage through the unchangeable gospel of Jesus Christ. The price of Sandhedens Banner has been reduced to fifty cents a year, not because of a surplus of money in the treasury, but to make it as cheap as any paper of the kind, trusting that those who have so willingly sustained it in the past, will not slacken their willingness to help the cause, either by donations or by subscribing for several copies themselves, relatives, and friends. Let all who can, help to make it a "Banner of Truth" indeed; and let it go forth for the deliverance of the pure in heart. There are thousands of Danish people in Utah who can not read English, who are totally ignorant as to the work of the Reorganized Church and church history. They have been led to believe the United States is their enemy, and they blindly follow their "blind guides" in transgressing and defying the laws of the Nation. The Banner is only fifty cents per year, we trust many can and will help in sending it out, and surely the little cost will return in tenfold blessings. It is due Bro. Andersen to say, that though when he commenced the editorial work of the Banner he was both young and inexperienced in that kind of work, he has made rapid progress, and he is giving us a paper of which we need not be ashamed. Others who can write, ought to assist more by furnishing articles for publication. The work in our district is moving only slowly; we need laborers who can spend their time in the work. I am trying every Sabbath to tell the good news of the gospel, and have more calls than I can fill. There have been two elders from Utah preaching in Council Bluffs and neighborhood. I have not met with them, but sent them word by one of their friends that if they had any good things to tell us they could have our meeting house, and I would see that they had a stopping place if they came; but as yet I have heard nothing from them.

Your brother,

H. N. HANSEN.

PLEASANT GROVE,

October 19th, 1885.

Bro. Blair: - Bro. Luff and I reached here at 9: 10 this morning. Our meetings in the city yesterday, were characterized by good feeling, though the audience at two was slim; yet at night it was much larger. The attention was good. Bro. Luff spoke in the afternoon to good effect from the text: "Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." His discourse was a close contrast between the claims of faith and infidelity. The listeners were chiefly Saints, and we listened with profit. I spoke in the evening, from the text. "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed." The congregation was a mixed one, and I tried to leave no false impression as to how I stood on the main question. A great many faces were new to me. Elder Thomas Job was present, I was told; but he went out before I could get a chance to speak to him. Mr. Benedict, the doctor's father, and Mrs. Benedict were present; Ezra Pettit, also. I saw Delos Nicholson in the crowd, but did not get a chance to say good by.

There is an appointment at Lehi, in the hall you and Bro. Anthony debated in, we are informed, for to-night. We will go down this afternoon. How long we will stay depends upon our reception, of course. Bro. Anderson left for Provo this forenoon. He baptized two here. We go to Provo about Wednesday or Thursday. Thence to Springville.

Joseph Smith.

Angus, Boone Co., Iowa, October 28th, 1885.

Editor Herald:—May I ask the favor of a few lines in the letter department of the Herald. I wish to speak for a few lonely Saints of Angus and vicinity. There are some five or six families, parts of which are identified with us. We are holding church service at private residences each Lord's day. Bro. J. Batt is our speaker and he is just one of those good, old time, immovable pillars, whose preaching has the right ring. We earnestly ask the ministry to call on us whenever it is convenient for them and give us a helping hand. Nearly every one of us have very severe trials, and not the least of encouragement from without, but shall persevere.

GEO. M. JAMISON.

Plano, Ill., Oct. 28th, 1885.

Bro. Blair:—I have just returned from Mission where we held a profitable conference on the 17th and 18th inst., after which I remained a week, and held some preaching meetings; and on last Sunday three more precious souls were added to our numbers by baptism. Bro. Thomas Hougas officiating. I am feeling well in health and spirits, and shall move soon again in the interest of the Lord's cause. I learn with much regret the departure of our much loved brother, Joslah Ells. May he rest in peace. More anon.

Yours in bonds,

JOHN S. PATTERSON.

Sonora, Hancock Co., Illa., October 22d, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair: Since our departure from home on the 22d ult., I have been able to do something for the advancement of the cause we love so dearly. During the progress of the "Reunion" at Montrose, I spoke four times. I am satisfied that good will result from the effort at Park Bluff. The Saints were confirmed and blessed, and others had an opportunity of hearing the word. I spoke five times in the Chapel at Rock Creek, and felt well in declaring the word. How cheering it is to find even a few who are willing and anxious to serve God in his appointed way. I spoke twice in Keokuk, lowa, and once in Burnside, Ill. Have spoken twice in the Union Church at this place, and am to speak again to-night. Had good turn out last evening. To-morrow we expect to go to Burlington to remain over Sunday, and then on home, I love the work of God, and am confident that that work is represented by the Reorganized Church. But it makes my heart ache to know that some of long standing in the church will bite and devour each other instead of living together in peace and love.

Yours in hope, J. R. LAMBERT.

Снісадо, Illinois, October 19th, 1885.

Brother Blair:- I arrived here last Saturday, to labor in Northern Illinois for the Winter. I spoke here yesterday in the hall, to a small congregation. At the close of the meeting I was invited by Mr. S. Townsend and his estimable lady to their dining room, 205 Washington Boulevard for refreshments. He has brought many to our hall to hear the gospel, although he and wife have not yet obeyed it. I was invited to call at any time. I learn by the Saints here, that he serves all the Elders that way. May our God bless and prosper him. I have not seen the president of the branch yet, he being away. I hope to meet with brother Patterson ere long and learn where the most good can be done, as he is acquainted in this district. I baptized two September 27th, and five more October 4th. I feel myself happy in the cause of Christ, and hope to make myself useful.

Yours truly,

J. C. Foss.

AVENNE CITY, Andrew Co., Mo., October 11th, 1885.

Dear Herald:—I have been made to rejoice many times by reading the testimonies of the Saints in different parts of the world, and I wish to add my testimony to the truth of this latter day work. I know that the God the Latter Day Saints worship is a God worth serving and a God that does hear and answer the prayers of his people, and that when we ask in faith believing, we will receive. About two years ago one of my children was taken with inflammatory sore eyes, and they were so bad that many times she could not see, and had to be led about from one room to another. She was administered to many times and her eyes would get better, but not well. They would get better, then worse for over a vear. At times she could not see anything; but her faith was in God, and her parents' faith also was in God. We prayed God to heal her eyes; and we concluded to take her to St. Joseph and have her administered to. We went there, and to sister Eldridge's house to stay all night. Sister Eldridge sent for Elder Dobson who came and anointed my child's eyes with oil, laid his hands upon her head and prayed God to heal her. The result was that she could look at the sun that evening, and could see anything she looked at. When brother Dobson went to anoint her he asked her if she could see him. She said no. But we can truly testify that this blind child received her sight that very day, and we know it was God that did heal her eyes; and to him be all the praise. We think brother Dobson ought to be encouraged when God bestowed so great a blessing through his administration, that even the blind receive their sight. The child can now see as well as she ever could. May God continue to bless His people, is the prayer of your sister in Christ. ARTILLA HAILEY.

> PERRY, Dallas Co., Iowa, October 21st, 1885.

Bro. Blair: -- I desire to say through the Herald that if any of the Saints desire to visit us now, that we live a few rods north of the switch which has just been finished between Woodward and Perry, on the C. M. & St. P. R. R., on the line extending from Marion to Council Bluffs. The name of this station is Bouton. The Adventists are stirring up the people a little at Woodward, so I hear. Perhaps now would be a good time for the Latter Day Saints to make an effort to show the people the true gospel. Our fall term of school will close the 30th of this month. The winter term commences the 7th of December, I think. I mention this so the Elders can know what chance there will be to get their appointments circulated. I believe we ought to make an effort here once more. Please, Bro. Nirk, meditate and pray for this far-off corner of the district. I don't know as we can get a house in Woodward, yet I do think we ought to try. This is for any one who wishes to come to see us, the Saints and friends as much as the Elders: now don't all come at once.

> Your sister in the one faith, SARAH E. BOUTON.

HERSEY, Mich., 28th Oct., 1885.

Bro. Blair: A mistake occurs in Herald in my late letter. The "two men" appointed served in the debate: one was a Methodist, the other Mr. Sims' member. "Five hundred dollars" should have read five dollars. I have just visited Manistee, delivered six discourses in Sherman Branch. One more baptized.

J. J. Cornish.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE
For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also,
a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth...

Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth 4	0
CONCORDANCE TO BOOK OF COVENANTS. An enlarged new edition: paper covers, 32 pages 16	0
BOOK OF MORMON. Roan, sprinkled edges	- 5 0
DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS. Sprinkled Sheep, or Library
THE SAINTS' HARP—HYMN BOOK. Imitation Morocco, marbled edges

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

PRES.W. W. BLAIR:—I am pleased to see the quotations from the Book of Mormon which you occasionally publish in the Herald. It is impossible to say too much in favor of that blessed book, or to present its glorious truths too repeatedly or too often before the public. The children of men will find, in the great day of accounts, that it contains the sacred truths of heaven, the fulness of the everlasting gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. It contains within itself evidences of its truthfulness, which carry conviction home to the hearts of those who read it prayerfully with honest motives, as will be seen by the following statement:

Sister Phebe Corlis, who died near Lamoni, Iowa, on the 15th of June, 1878, at the advanced age of 73 years, 2 months and 3 days, obeyed the gospel in Canada in 1834, started for Missouri in 1836, and when as far as Coldwater, Michigan, heard of the trouble of the Saints and their persecutions, settled in Michigan and lived there through the dark days of the church, remaining firm in the faith. She was impressed at one time to take the Book of Mormon to a lady friend of hers, and ask her to read it. She went as directed, and the result was four precious souls were ready for the waters of baptism before there was any Elder there to administer the ordinance of baptism to them. When an Elder came, these four persons were baptized and rejoiced in the precious liberty of the gospel of peace.

This aged sister has gone to her rest, and how great must be her joy in contemplating the salvation of those loved ones. As the Lord said to Oliver cowdery: "If a man should spend his whole life and be instrumental in saving but one soul, how great will be his joy in the eternal world with that soul!" Her joy must be fourfold. Respectfully you brother,

E. Robinson. Davis City, Iowa, October 22d, 1885.

THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN;

OR, "THE STONE CUT WITHOUT HANDS."

No. II..

BY ELDER T. W. SMITH.

BEFORE we proceed to consider the question, what is the character or nature of the kingdom the God of heaven was to "set up," we wish to dispose of a position assumed by some, that the "kingdom" represented by the "stone" is the future kingdom of Jesus Christ, which will be, (we are told) the earth when made new, and restored to its Edenic purity, and Paradisaical condition. We would ask the advocates of this doctrine, this simple question;

What is to become of the ten kingdoms, or the kingdoms represented by the toes of the image, when Christ comes to set up His kingdom? They answer us: "They are all to be destroyed, they will cease to exist as kingdoms of the world, and become the kingdoms of Christ." Very true, and so we believe; but we ask them, how can Christ set up his kingdom, in the days of these kingdoms of the world, if they are all destroyed at the day of his coming? and if he comes from heaven to a new earth—which they say is his kingdom? "In the days of these kings," does not mean after their days have ended, by any means. An event that occurred during the presidency of Arthur, certainly did not occur after his term of office expired. The words of the prophet are clear: "And in the days of these kings will the God of heaven set up a kingdom. Sometime, therefore, while these king-doms—represented by the toes, or the iron and miry clay kingdoms, the church and State governments of Europe exist, or in their days will the God of heaven set up a kingdom.

We call attention to an indisputable fact, and that is, that in every case the kingdom that superceded and destroyed the kingdom existing before it, began its existence in the days of the kingdom which it destroyed, as it must of necessity have done; one kingdom can not overturn another unless it exists contemporary with it. If the "stone" represents a kingdom, as all must admit that it does, then for the stone kingdom to smite the image on its feet, it must exist before the smiting is done, or in the days of these kings. It will be noticed that Daniel plainly states that the God of heaven would set up a "kingdom," and that this "kingdom" would break in pieces all these (other) kingdoms; and thus we agree that as the prophet says, the God of beaven will set up his kingdom "in the days of these kings."

Again, the "stone" became a "great mountain and filled the whole earth." after it smote the image. And the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of Christ when he comes again (Rev. 11-15), or at that time the stone becomes a great mountain and fills the whole earth. smiting is done by the "stone," and not by the "mountain;" in other words, the image is destroyed while the "stone" is a stone, whatever it may represent. The idea of the stone rolling and rolling, increasing continually, until it fills the whole earth, is an error, and a big one at that. When the stone becomes a mountain, it fills the earth; but as before remarked, the image is smitten by the "stone," as a stone, and not by the mountain. The stone is not a mixture of opposite elements, as the toes and feet of the image are; it is not a Church and State organization; it is a stone, simple and pure, just as the head was of gold, and gold only; the breast and arms were silver, and silver only; the belly and sides (margin) were brass, and brass only; and the legs were iron, and only iron; so the stone was a stone, and that alone. Therefore, the organization in Utah, or a church controlling the political power of the territory, is not the "stone cut without hands;" but is clearly of the same composition as the feet and toes of the image; the clay part of the Utah mixture being miry enough to suit anybody. The point we wish to establish is, that the stone remains a stone; or the kingdom, a kingdom; just as God set it up, or cut it out of the mountain. It does not change its form or character; a kingdom is a kingdom, large or small; a republic is a republic, whether composed of one state or one hundred; a church is a church, when lawfully organized, whether located in one spot, or scattered over the world in local organizations. We will now endeavor to learn what this kingdom "set up in the days of these kings" is. As it can not be a kingdom of Christ, for that is to be established when He comes to earth, in the clouds of heaven, with power and great glory, and the kingdoms of this world become his. It can not be heaven for obvious reasons. It can not be the kingdom of the Father, or the kingdom that Christ delivers up to God, the Father at the end of the Millennium (see 1 Cor. 15: 24). There is but one other institution that can be called a kingdom, and it is called so repeatedly in the New Testament, and that is the church of Christ. For proof of this statement, see the following passages of Scripture, among others: Matt. 13: 24-59. Matt. 11: 12; 16: 19; 20: 1-16; 25: 1-30. Mark 4: 26-32. Luké 16. Col. 1: 12, 13. Rev. 1: 9.

From these portions of Scripture it is evident that the church of Christ is meant by the terms: "kingdom of God," kingdom of heaven," "kingdom of his dear Son," "kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ."

We have given abundant reason for not accepting the doctrine that this church was "set up" in the days of these kings, eighteen hundred years ago; or that it smote the image on its feet, for they were not developed at the time Christ organized his church; and beside this, the Roman Empire absorbed the church after she had fallen from her virgin and wifely condition, and by the time the "feet and toes" were developed she had ceased to be the church of Christ, and had become a harlot, or the wife of a political power, and that power had always been a hater of and persecutor of the church of Christ. The setting up of the church of Christ was to be done "in the days" of the feet and toes of the image, or sometime after the toes were developed; and as all students of history concede that it was between the middle of the fourth and fifth centuries that the toes were brought to light, and not earlier; it is evident therefore that it must be sometime since that period that the kingdom of heaven must be set up, and that it could not have reference to the church in the days of Christ and the Apostles of the former day.

Now the most important matter to settle at this stage of our examination, is to learn what were the distinguishing features or characteristics of the church of Christ eighteen centuries ago, for if God who is an unchangeable being, formed that church, clothed her with suitable apparel, and adorned her with jewels, we can decide then whether she has been on earth for the entire eighteen hundred years past, or if not, and she has been brought to light on earth again; whether she is the same beautiful virgin-bride or not. That she has not been seen on earth during many hundred years past is evident from the plain statement that "in the days of these kings (the divided Roman kingdom into sub-divisions) will the God of heaven set up a kingdom." For what necessity could there be for God to set up a church at any period of time that had already been set up by him for centuries, and had never been overthrown or destroyed? A setting up of a thing can mean either a creation of the thing for the first time, or a restoration or revival of what had been up set, or overturned. In this case it is a restoration, or a setting up of what had fallen down.

But right here we are met by an objection from a certain quarter, that the "gates of hell" were to never "prevail" against the church (See Matt. 16:18).

So the question now is, did Christ mean that the gates of hell should not prevail against the church. If he did, then the church as He and his Apostles organized it, with all the officers, ordinances, doctrine, gifts, &c., which God gave to or put in the church, must have been found on earth during the past eighteen hundred years without the loss of a single officer or gift; without any change in doctrine, ordinance, or form of worship. She must remain unchanged in form or feature; but who that is at all informed on the subject will claim that such has been the case. The Protestant portion of the religious world will not assume that ground for a moment, for they know that it can not be sustained, as it is absolutely untrue. Did Christ mean that the church would remain true to him, and hold fast the faith and form of doctrine he gave her? If he did mean that, then either he or Paul and Peter were led by a false spirit, for they teach contrary doctrine to that, as we will hereafter see.

But if they were of the same spirit, inspired by the same Holy Ghost, they could not teach conflicting doctrine; therefore, Christ could not have meant that the gates of hell would not prevail against the church, if by the gates of hell is meant the power of Satan exhibited, either in persecuting the church, or by change of tactics, in instilling corrupt doctrine and practices into the church, till the leaven of error leavened the whole lump. Grammatically considered, the prunoun "it" can refer as well to the "rock" on which Christ said he would build the church, as it would to the church, and theologically considered it would much better apply, for whether the "rock" be the Holy Spirit, or the principle of revelation, or truth, or the knowledge of the truth as imparted by the Spirit, in the very nature of the case, the gates of hell could not prevail to their over-throw; but against the church as an organization, the gates of hell have prevailed, remains a sad and certain truth, If Peter was the "rock," as some vainly assert, the gates of hell prevailed against him; for the agent of hell, namely, the Roman power, put him to death. But let us see "the Bride, the Lamb's wife, before she yields to the embraces of the "kings of the earth," or before she bacame a harlot, and seated herself upon the scarlet colored beast.

THE CHURCH AS THE BODY OF CHRIST, OR THE "LAMB'S WIFE."

The apostle Paul in I Corinthians, twelfth chapter, represents the church as a body or human form, and as the church is the bride of Christ, as a woman we will consider her. Her form is perfect, for God made her; he placed every member of her body "in the body as it pleased him"; and as everything that God has made is perfect and beautiful, so of this work of his creation. "Every member" of her body is placed as it "pleased" God, and who can improve His work by adding members to her body, or by taking some away? Not erring, weak, and fallible man, surely. Is God an unchangeable being? If so, has He ever become dissatisfied with the form He was once pleased with? Never; and if any change has been made in her form or features, God has had no hand in the work. Well; what were the members of her body? What are they called by Paul? Hear him addressing the church; he says: "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular. And God has set some in the church, first Apostles, secondarily Prophets, thirdly Teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues. 1 Cor. 12: 27, 28. In Ephesians, Paul mentions Apostles, Prophets, Evangelists, Pastors and Teachers, as being given to the church; elsewhere we read of Elders, Bishops and Deacons. Others may think as they please, but the writer believes that the Evangelists spoken of in Ephesians were what we call Seventies, for the term comes from the same root as the word "gospel," and it signifies ministers of the gospel, and will apply especially to that class of men who are to be on the move continually.

This bride is to be clothed with the "robe of righteousness"-and Paul says that "righteousness" is revealed in the gospel. She is "arrayed in fine linen, clean and white, for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints."—Rev 19:8. Various are her jewe's, the "gifts" of the Holy Spirit, such as faith, wisdom, knowledge, prophecy, healings, miracles, tongues and interpretation of tongues. Such is the New Testament description of the bride, the Lamb's wife. She had passed through the "washing of regeneration" (Titus 3:5), and had received the "anointing"—the "unction from the Holy One."-1 John 2: 20,27. Thus beautiful in form and features, clad in fine and costly garments, ornamented with precious gifts or jewels, cleansed and perfumed, is the church of Christ. Has she remained so during the past eighteen centuries? Nay. Is she visible now? If so; where? Let the reader ponder well the question. Where is the church to-day with the officers, gifts, ordinances, form and faith, of the church eighteen centuries ago, as the New Testa-ment exhibits her? What was her name then? What should be the name of a wife? That of her husband, certainly. What was her name then, as the wife of Jesus Christ? What else but "the church of Jesus Christ." His name is neither Jesus only, nor Christ only, but Jesus Christ, or Jesus the Christ. (See Acts 2:38; 6:6; 4:10-12; 7:12; 8:37; 28:31.) Among the blessings of the church at Philadelphia, (Rev. 3: 8), the Lord said, she has "kept my word," that is the gospel, and "hast not denied my name." Now when a woman calls herself by the name of Brown, or Jones, while her husband's name is Williams, and takes pleasure in these other names, and especially when she prefers the ideas, and delights to follow the principles of Brown or Jones instead of her husband's, her fidelity to her marriage vows may well be questioned. And so with a church which so acts toward Christ; it makes no difference whether her name is that of England or Rome, of Calvin, Luther, Wesley, Campbell, or Mormon, or any other man, or the name of a principle, or form of government, or a simple truth, such as baptism, or a congregation, or the unity of the Godhead, or the universal salvation of mankind, or the second advent of Christ. The name and the only permissable name for the church, or the "Lamb's wife," is that of the church of Jesus Christ. The term Latter Day Saints at the best is only definitive of the character of the people who compose the church, and of the period of time in which they live. It is no part of the name. We say "Mrs. Blair, an upright lady of Lamoni, would any one say that the phrase that follows the words "Mrs. Blair" is a part of her name? As the people themselves are Latter Day Saints, or as that is the character of the woman (the church) and the time in which the lives, it can not be the name of her husband.

Now a church with Jesus Christ's name, clothed with the robes he gave her, even the fulness of the gospel; (for she must not be scantily clothed); and with all the members of her body placed and shaped as God designed, with all of her ornaments, is the church of Christ, and that she only is. Christ is not a polygamist, and has not a hundred or more wives, and especially not wives of all shades of color, of all shapes, and conditions, and some superabundantly clothed, others not half enough on, or of too thin a texture entirely, and those with sufficient garments on, have them made of the wrong material, or cut in some unorthodox style. Nay, he is not a polygamist, or even a bigamist, and if there are two churches who call themselves after the name of Jesus Christ, one must be a rejected or divorced wife, and hence forfeited the name, or else is a mere pre-tender to the name. As for the so-called Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Utah, it was rejected of Christ for disobedience and transgression, and has no legal right to the name. She has thrown her robes away—that is, the gospel, and covered herself somewhat with a "new covenant." Her members are corrupt or diseased—through frequent fornications—and have lost their vitality, and her ornaments have faded and perished; and having lost the "unction" or "anointing" from on high, she is dead, although she claims to be alive, it is merely galvanic vitality.

To be continued.

A DIALOGUE.

RESPECTING THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN THESE LAST DAYS, THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN FORMER DAYS, AND THE CHURCH OF SO-CALLED MODERN CHRISTIANITY.

BETWEEN DR. TWINETEXT AND ELDER D.

PART THIRD.

DR. Twine Text.—Elder, when we parted the other evening you thought you had proven the fact that a departure from the true order as established by Christ was possible on the part of the church. I now wish to call your attention to the last great and immutable promise made by our Lord to his disciples. You will find it in the last chapter of Matthew and last verse. "Lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world. Amen." Nothing can be more conclusive than this, that since Christ would be with his church to the end of the world, that church must exist to the end; hence no possibility of a departure from the true order by the body as a whole.

Elder D.—I see you still want to destroy the agency of the individual members, which agency you have already admitted, and the whole tenor of Scripture abundantly proves. But you must destroy that before you can establish the impossibility of a departure by the entire body. For, if the members individually are not infallible, how can the body as a whole be infallible? Every member being fallible, the whole body must be so, of necessity.

T.—But did not Christ give them the Holy Ghost: and that being infallible, would it not render them infallible?

D.—The Holy Ghost was indeed given, but upon conditions of obedience: "Whom God hath given to them that obey him."-Acts 5: 32. And nothing less than continued obedience would secure the continued presence of this divine guide. Paul admonishes the Ephesians thus: "grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption." (Eph. 4: 30). In 1 Cor. 6: 19, He says: "What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" And, 1 Cor. 3: 16, 17. "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defileth the temple of God, him shall God destroy." From these and many other parts of God's word it is evident that every individual member is held responsible, and hence may so live as to cause the Holy Spirit to leave them; and, we repeat, if one member posesses this power, every member does; and certainly the body entire may exercise it even to the total destruction of itself. For further proof read John, chapter 15. If the agency of the church is destroyed, as pertaining to the individual members, or to the whole body, then the preaching of the gospel is rendered unnecessary; for the term obedience has no meaning to him or them who have no power to disobey. And your vocation as a preacher is a useless one so far as the people are concerned, whether in the church or out.

T.—I am not to be driven from my position by your sophistry. Come to the text. Did Christ promise to be with his people to the end of the world? Could he be with them, if, as a church, they ceased to exist?

D-Be calm, Doctor; a cool head and a calm mind are indispensible in the search for truth. I cheerfully concede that He did make that promise; but I insist the conditions must be considered. Let us read them. He is giving them the great commission, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen. The first part of this duty was to "go and teach all nations, baptizing them" etc. The second was, "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." If they failed to "go and teach all nations." they could not claim his presence. If they failed to baptize them as directed, they could not claim it. And when the people were baptized, if they, the apostles, had failed, or if the church at any period should fail to teach "all things whatsoever he had commanded them," they would forfeit their right to His divine presence. Not only must they refrain from teaching their own imaginations, or the doctrines of men, but they must see to it that they do not omit a single item, or truth, which He had commanded them. It is not enough that they should use pious phrases, or sanctimonious expressions; but they must "declare the whole counsel of God; neither adding to nor taking from His holy word. Nothing less than the full compliance with this command could secure the Divine presence. I now demand of you to show that these conditions have been fulfilled from the days of the apostles until the present. But bear in mind the admissions of your historians.

T.—I think it can be established that the church has maintained its integrity, and faithfully performed the duties enjoined upon it, and that it exists to-day in greater glory even than in the days of the apostles. In those days the church consisted of but a few thousand; and with few exceptions its ministers were unlearned men. Now that church numbers its hundreds of millions, and the mightiest minds of the world are within its pale, and do homage at its shrine. The learning of the nineteenth century, which may be fairly said to combine the wisdom of all ages and of all lands, is concentrated around the sacred altar of the church; and at her nod goes forth to extend her borders still further—into every land, proudly bearing aloft the gospel banner and proclaiming the unspeakable riches of Christ to a dying Look at our Missionary Societies, our Bible Societies, and our Sabbath Schools. Consider our seats of learning, our temples of worship towering to the skies, and remember that in all these God is worshiped, Christ in glorified, and the Holy Spirit's power is magnified and en-These are the tangible evidences of a true church, a pure doctrine, and a faithful observance of all things whatsoever the Lord has commanded, from the beginning until the present day. D.—I must acknowledge your eloquence, if not the truthfulness of your assertions. I do not deny your sincerity, but I question your understanding, and am satisfied that when we have examined the matter more thoroughly by the light of God's word, you will be less ready to magnify and applaud the nondescript thing, (composed of contradictory creeds, vain imaginations, and human dogmas), called Christianity, or, as you would term it, the church of Christ, than you are now. Your boast reminds me forcibly of a religious power whom John saw would "glorify herself, and live deliciously," saying in her heart "I sit as a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow." But her doom was, to be burned with fire. (Rev. chapter 18). But the emptiness of your boast, and the falsity of your reasoning, will be better seen by examining the church as organized by Christ, and comparing your system with that, if indeed anything can be called a system that is so destitute of any established order, and so conflicting in its creeds and practices as so-called modern christendom is. In order to get a correct view of the ancient church we will read Paul's description of her in his day. are aware that the word church, signifies "that which is called out." God called out a people to be "a peculiar people," (Titus 2:14). "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should shew forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light." (1 Pet. 2:9). Again, Paul compares it to the body of a man; "for as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office. So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another." (Rom. 12: 4, 5). "For we being many are one bread and one body." (1 Cor. 10: 17). "For as the body is one, and hath many members; and all the members of that one body being many are one body, so also is Christ. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body. * * * For the body is not one member, but many." (1 Cor. 12: 12, 13, 14).

"There is one body and one Spirit." (Eph. 4:4). You now see that Paul recognizes but "one body;" and he declares that the church is the body of Christ. (Eph. 1:22, 23). This establishes the fact that that body, or church, can have but one organic form, and one rule of faith and doctrine. Hence, if we find two churches, or more, differing in their organization and form of government, we may know they are not both Christ's church. Indeed, neither of them can be, unless the precise form and order which he established, be found in them. Now, let us examine the particular form of Christ's church as described in the sacred record. "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular. And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers. After that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues." (1 Cor. 12:27, 28). The verb "set," signifies put, placed, appointed, established; and God is the one who appoints. Paul tells us what purpose they were set in the church for. After declaring that Christ ascended up on high," he says, "and he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ: that we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness whereby they lie in wait to deceive; but speaking the truth in love, may grow up unto him in all things; which is the head, even Christ." (Eph. 4:8-15). The above, then, was the organic form of the Church of Christ in Paul's day, and the purpose to be answered by it is plainly stated by the apostle. Do the Holy Scriptures contain any account of a change being made by the All-wise organizer? Or is there any intimation that such a change would be made by his authority? If not, would man, unauthorized by God, have any right to make a change? And would not an authorized change render additional revelation necessary? And since all Christendom denies that any revelation has been given since the present scriptures were written, and since they repudiate in loudest terms the idea of any more revelation, is it not evident that God has never authorized any change, but remains true to his eternal and immutable character? Since God has neither made nor authorized any change, if no church can be found bearing the form described above, is it not evident that there has been a departure, on the part of those claiming to be the church of God, from his established order?

T.—Our learned divines do not understand that apostles and prophets were to continue in the church in all ages; but that apostles were the first in the order of time, and after them prophets were to fill their places in the church. You will remember the apostles were the first called to the ministry. After prophets had answered the purpose for which they were called, then evangelists, pastors and teachers were to succeed them, and by these latter the work was to be carried on to the end.

D.—If your view was correct, that this arrangement was one of rotation in time, that is, that when one order died out the next mentioned should succeed them, until first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, etc., had all filled their times, then after the apostles had passed away the prophets would begin their work, viz., receiving and declaring additional revelations. But you declare, and all Christendom with you, that when the Apostle John had finished the Apocalypse that closed the sacred canon of scripture, and that there was to be no more prophesying, no more visions from the Almighty. It you are right in the view you have just expressed, you must be wrong in denouncing all revelations that should be received after the death of the apostles. A prophet without a prophecy, or vision, or revelation from God, would be a strange thing in the earth. You must either renounce your order of time theory, or believe that God has spoken through prophets since the apostles passed away. But that is not the only dilemma your order of time theory gets you into. After the teachers have succeeded the prophets, (in your view), then comes miracles, and after miracles "gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues"—of course, succeeding each other in the order of time, according to your theory. You not only de-nounce revelations, but you also loudly declare that the age of miracles ceased with the apostles, and yet you have these things coming long after the apostles and prophets are dead.

T .- I confess I never thought of that. It does appear that if these were placed in the church, as succeeding each other in the order of time, then prophesying must take place after the apostles' days; and then teachers must succeed the prophets, for they come thirdly. After that miracles then gifts of healings, etc., that would bring "helps" (in the divine life) and governments, (means of governing the church) at a very late period, and "diversities of tongues" last; whereas miracles, gifts of healings and diversities of tongues were all in the apostles' days; and surely the church could not be left without the divine aids, or helps; and without government all would be anarchy and confusion. And as you have quoted, "God is not the author of confusion." I must abandon my theory as to these things coming in rotation, or succeeding each other in the order of time: for I still believe that miracles, healings and tougues ceased in the early ages of the church, and that revelations ceased with the close of the apocalypse.

D.-Doctor, I am glad you are beginning to see a little light and have the courage to acknowledge your mistake. Now let us take the inspired view of the matter. "God hath set," (not will set, in future times), "some in the church, first apostles," etc. Here you will see that all these orders of the ministry, as well as the miracles, healings, helps, governments, and diversities of tongues, were all set in the church in Paul's day. They were not to succeed each other in the order of time; but the language used indicates the rank, or order they were to occupy in the church; and he compares these various officers to the eye, ear, hand, foot, etc., of the human body; and signifies that they occupy similar positions in the Church of Christ that the eye, hand, etc., occupy in the human body, and that all are dependent upon one another. And if the eye, ear, hand, foot, etc., of the human body are essential to the perfect form and well being of the same, and as their absence renders the body imperfect, and as these members are so closely connected with the body as to form parts of it and are at the same time dependent in their turn upon it for the continuation of their existence and usefulness, so the eye, ear, hand, foot, etc., of the church, (apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, etc.), are essential to the perfect organization of the church, and to its well being. And as they, like the physical members, grow out of and form parts of the church, they are indispensible to the perfect organization of that spiritual body. Moreover, as no substitutes have ever been found that could take the place and perform the duties of the members of the physical body, so no substitute can take the place and perform the duties of the members whom God shall set in the church. To take these out is to destroy the church, or render it a helpless, crippled trunk, without means of growth or progress, subjecting it to the impositions of men and demons, and making it incapable of filling the position God has assigned to it. As to miracles, etc., ceasing with the days of the apostles, if they did, then either the church rendered herself unworthy of those gracious favors, or God was unfaithful to his promise; for these were among the things that He "set" in the church. (1 Cor. 12: 28). And they were to continue "till we all come in the unity of the faith," etc. (Eph. 4: 8-16). You will not charge the Almighty with falsehood; hence you must admit that at whatever time these blessings ceased, those who should have enjoyed them had become unfaithful to their trust, and departed from the true order of God.

T.—Well, I must take more time to consider these things. I see you have studied these matters more deeply than I have. The hour for my appointment has come, I must bid you farewell.

(Continued.)

Selections.

THE following very able sermon was pronounced by Henry Ward Beecher in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, New York, October 25th, and contains so many points in harmony with the doctrines taught by Joseph Smith the Seer, from 1830 forward, that we have deemed it wise to give it to our readers that they may see how men of research, untrammeled by creeds and going directly to the teachings of the Master, are coming nearer and nearer to the light as revealed through the "choice seer." His remarks concerning the sorrow of Jesus over the self-doomed city of Terusalem are very beautiful, but in point of pathos and power they fall far below the following in Enoch's version of the sorrow in heaven over the self-procured punishment of the wicked,

"And it came to pass, that the God of heaven looked upon the residue of the people, and wept; and Enoch bore record of it, saying, How is it that the heavens weep, and shed forth their tears as the rain upon the mountains? And Enoch said unto the Lord, How is it that thou canst weep, seeing thou art holy, and from all eternity to all eternity? And were it possible that man could number the particles of the earth, yea, and millions of earths like this, it would not be a beginning to the number of thy creations: and thy curtains are stretched out still, and thou art there, and thy bosom is there; and also, thou art just, thou art merciful and kind for ever: Thou hast taken Zion to thine own bosom, from all thy creations, from all eternity to all eternity; and naught but peace, justice, and truth is the habitation of thy throne; and mercy shall go before thy face and have no end. How is it that thou canst ween? The Lord said unto Enoch, Behold, these thy brethren, they are the workmenship of mine own hands, and I gave unto them their knowledge in the day that I created them. And in the garden of Eden gave I unto man his agency; and unto thy brethren have I said, and also gave commandment, that they should love one another; and that they should choose me their Father. But, behold, they are without affection, and they hate their own blood; and the fire of mine indignation is kindled against them; and in my hot displeasure will I send in the floods upon them; for my fierce anger is kindled against them. Behold, I am God; Man of Holiness is my name; Man of Council is my name; and Endless and Eternal is my name also. Wherefore I can stretch forth my hands and hold all the creations which I have made, and mine eye can pierce them also. And among all the workmanship of my hands there has not been so great wickedness as among thy brethren; but, behold, their sins shall be upon the heads of their fathers; Satan shall be their father, and misery shall be their doom; and the whole heavens shall weep over them, even all the workmanship of my hands. Wherefore should not the heavens weep, seeing these shall suffer? But, behold, these which thine eyes are upon shall perish in the floods; and, behold, I will shut them up; a prison have I prepared for them, and that which I have chosen has plead before my face; Wherefore he suffereth for their sins, inasmuch as they will repent, in the day that my chosen shall return unto me; and until that day they shall be in torment. Wherefore for this shall the heavens weep, yea, and all the workmanship of my hands."—Insp. Trans., Gen. 7: 35-46.

Mr. Beecher's conclusions in respect to the moral agency of man, the undeviating justice of God, the absolute immutability of God's laws, all stand forth in much clearer view and in more pronounced terms, in the translations, revelations, and teachings of the Seer. The dawn of the latter day dispensation is scattering its beautiful, saving truths on many souls, and the Sun of Righteousness is enlightening the world preparatory to his glorious appearing.

WHY THE SAVIOR WEPT.

Mr. Beecher's text comprised Matthew 11: 20-24, and Luke 19: 41-44—the lament of Christ over Chorazin, Bethsadia, and Capernaum, and his sorrow over Jerusalem.

It would seem to the superficial observer, said Mr. Beecher, as if the weeping over Jerusalem stood in sharp opposition to the denunciation of Capernaum and Chorazin. But they are part of one and the same thing. The denunciations of our Savior were not loud, harsh, and red-faced. There is nothing in the text which prevents as mild an impression connected with one as with the other. The compassion of Christ is for a self-destroyed city, is breathed just as much in the heart and meaning of woe as his compassion for Jerusalem while he wept over it. midst of the popular acclaim, as he stood looking toward Jerusalem and beheld the city, its history and the memory of the fathers came to his mind, and with a sudden gush of feeling to which He was subject, for the waves broke high on Him after, he broke into tears and with struggling words said:

"If thou hadst known! if thou hadst known."

It was a lament, it was sorrow, and it was irremediable sorrow; for the doom was pronounced, and the day was not far distant when it was accomplished. are to bear in mind the state of heart which Christ had toward those who had injured him and were about to destroy him. It was in Jerusalem that he had been rebuffed more than any where else. In fact, he was exiled, for though it does not lie directly upon the face of Scripture, it may be clearly shown that there was a conspiracy formed in Jerusalem in this last visit of Christ there, and it had been determined that he should be put to death. He was therefore marked, and knowing it he withdrew to the eastward. He was now returning, for he knew that his time was come, to this city that had murderous thoughts against him, where the shouts: "Crucify him!" were awaiting him, which had persecuted the prophets and covered itself with guilt—it was in view of all this that he felt such a movement of compassion that he could not repress tears, and he beheld the city without one emotion of wrath; with the full consciousness of doom, and with a sympathy with these wicked men and this great community stained with the blood of the saints.

GOD'S INNER FEELINGS REVEALED.

In such circumstances He made manifest his compassion in words that will to the end of time be a revelation of the inner feelings of God. We are to consider, if we are believers in the essential divinity of Christ, that while the accidents of time and its limitations are not to be transferred, the voluntary life of the Savior represents substantially the thoughts, feelings, and conduct of the Father-God. And it is not by any violent stretch, therefore, that we say that we perceive in this experience of Christ not earthly weakness, but supernal exaltation; and we have a right to say that God is sorry, for those who are hopelessly lost. There have been men who have so far forgotten the sympathy and compassion of God that they have represented Him as stern, vengeful, looking upon the destruction of the wicked with as much composure as the shambles look upon that of flocks and herds. It has been taught even that there will come a time in the other life when parents will be so lifted up into the admiration and glorification of the Divine nature that they shall be able to look down into Hell and see their children damned there, and rejoice and glorify God; so brutalized may men become. For if any man standing in Heaven can find anything in the character of God that shall enable him to look upon wife damned, and children damned in Hell, he ought to go to Hell himself and be damned. But where, in the whole economy of Divine government as made manifest in Scripture, is there anything that justifies such a thought of God, even when looking upon men that are sinful and lost in their sinfulness? The voice of the Old Testament is, "I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth." "Why will ye die?" "Let the unrighteous forsake his unrighteousness, and let him come to me. Though your sins were as scarlet, they shall be made white as snow." Only repent, only take yourself out of the stream of consequences which inevitably bears men down, step by step, to fate and death. We have the better reading of the Divine nature in the example of Christ, when he drew near to Jerusalem and wept, and said: "O, if thou hadst known the things which belonged to thy peace!" It was yearning, heart-breaking sorrow. "Now they are hid from thine eyes." It is not far to see that the Divine nature is one that yearns over men that have destroyed themselves, and whose destruction is irremedi-

THE REVENGE IN THE FUTURE.

Whatever may be the future, whether men may drop into annihilation-and there are large numbers and learned men of the Church of Christ in our day who believe that immortality is the gift of God through faith in Jesus Christ and not the natural economy of the world, and that men unstained by this power of grace in them die as the animals die-or if you regard the other life as one in which men enter upon a probationary period again, and through spiritual evolution work their way up by and by to a higher standard and to admission to glory—in whichever way you look upon the condition of the future, one thing is certain: There is no revenge there; no wrath, no smoke of indignation, and no heartless hating, rejoicing over the sufferings of any creature. A being that can look upon intense suffering which has no remediable power in it—suffering without any other end than that they shall suffer —a being that could look upon that and snuff it up as a sweet incense, ought never to be called God. It is cruelty, it is the embodiment of the very hatred and bitterness which are forbidden by the whole teaching of the Bible; and calling such character and such conduct by the Divine name does not make it Divine. It is ab-horrent to every element and every conception of the Divine nature. For, as Christ wept over Jerusalem when there was no chance for it, you may very well understand that God looks upon men, too, and sorrows for them when there is no remedy.

Christ recognizes, then, the certainty of law; that things will follow the lines laid down for them from the beginning. The certainty of moral law is just as great as the certainty of physical law. We know perfectly well that certain courses pursued in regard to the bodily health will terminate in a certain way; that if men do not repent and turn from violation of physical law, the result is inevitable. And the tendency of moral law is just as certain. Men that live through appetites and passions and to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption. If he sows selfishness, pride, and passion, he is putting himself under the ban of those great laws established from the beginning. Christ recognized that there were irremediable conditions. Why did he not convert Jerusa-

MAN AS A FREE MORAL AGENT.

If you will take notice, there is not in the whole history of Christ's miracles one single instance in which he wrought a miracle to change a man's mind. He had control of the physical laws by which he changed their bodily conditions, but in no single instance did he work a miracle that should change the will or the purpose of men's hearts. That he never invaded or touched. There are a great many instances in which he influenced and incited, but never once in which he overthrew a man's free choice, his own agency and care of himself. So we are not to suppose that at any time on earth there will be such an intervention of the Divine will as will prevent the legitimate consequences of the violation of great spiritual and natural laws in the moral kingdom. We can of our own experiences come into some comprehension of this state of the Divine mind. We mourn for and have compassion for friends whose every step is downward, whom friendship, household love, business prosperity, nor any motive of pride or selfrespect can hold back. Have you never felt such compassion for one that you knew to be doomed? And what must be the feeling of compassion in the Divine mind when that process of destruction is going on in many, and for generations and centuries!

God is called the long-suffering God. How much has he had to suffer? He is declared to be a Father. What a household He has had! And, while we urge the sternness of the law, the inevitableness of the penalty that surrounds human life and society, over and above it all is the spirit of Christ. He knew that Jerusalem was doomed. He wrought no miracle to change it; nevertheless He poured out His heart in sorrow over the inevitable. And it is such a one as that that men sin against!

We might defy arrogance and rude wrath, but to defy the tenderness and lov-ing kindness of a Savior that rather than that men should perish, was willing to offer up His own life-how heinous is transgression against such a love!

when one may judge god's works.

God influences, but does not compel, moral states. The question is often put by men: "If God can do anything, why does He leave the world as it has been left, to work out its own destruction? Why does he not compel things to be right?" This is simply unsolvable, because no man can tell what a machine is by seeing the scattered wheels lying around. No man can tell what a picture is going to be by seeing the canvas and the mere ground rubbed in. No man can tell of this world, which is a part of God's universe, what relation it holds to other worlds: and it is the completed administration of God over the whole universe, when all the various beginnings-the genesis in this world, and in that world, and in the other world—when all these various colors and development of the power of the soul shall have been marshalled and become together, and you see the totality of the administration of God, then perhaps a man may be in such a position that he can form some judgment why God did or did not. But one thing is certain; that, so far as the world is concerned, there are certain great laws that lead to righteousness, to safety, and to happiness, and certain great laws that lead through transgression to dishonor, disgrace, and suffering immeas-

Why does not God interfere? ou can not tell, nor I. When it is said that God can do anything, that is an extravagant phrase. If you take it literally, God can not do everything.

My brother Charles and I were profound theologians when we were about ten years old, and we used to discuss that very question: "God can do anything." I held high grounds, until Charles said one day: "God can't make a sheet of paper with only one side to it." It seems very foolish, but it is no more foolish than the discussions that have been held in books and sermons. In the very nature of things impossibilities can not be done. To be in a place and not to be in it at the same time that can't be. To be at one and the same time entirely loving and entirely hating—that is impossible. God can do anything according to those great outlying laws which He has Himself imposed upon the universe, and under which He Himself acts and moves, and it is a mere wanton declaration, "God can do anything, therefore why don't He?"

LAWS THAT ARE UNCHANGED.

We see how physical laws are conducted, the laws of winter and summer; they are never changed; and the laws of society. There are certain great outlaying tendencies, and great laws, and they are permitted to run on because in the long sequence in the everlasting history, when it shall be gathered up—it will be seen that that was the way of wisdom, the way in which the power and wisdom or God were made glorious in the apprehension of all beings that are pure and holy. But one thing we do know; that God will not, by violence, change men's courses and careers. By influence, if he can; by violence, never. Therefore, if men enter upon an evil course, they may change, and God in that case may help them; but the result is inevitable if they do not thus rectify the evil which they are pursuing. In this life in part, and by analogy in the life to come, these great careers must run out in their own nature and to their own final results. It is the testimony of God's work and of human experience and observation.

There has been preached in days gone by the doctrine of reprobation, and as that has been stated it would seem as though every man of honor should reject it with scorn and indignation. But there is a reprobation foreshadowed in this history of Jesus Christ—namely: men that set themselves apart to do evil will go on until they come to a period in which the resiliency of their moral nature is lost, the moral stamina on which all change takes place is gone, and while there are outward health and physical prosperity they are corpses inside, with only an external animal life, and they are on courses that certainly lead to destruction. There is no mercy that is imperative and absolute in God to change men. The tears of Christ had no power. The sorrow of Christ had no power over corrupt Jerusalem. She was made a heap of desolation, and knowing this, still Christ lingered over her and wept.

Are there no persons among you over whom Christ might weep? Who have given themselves up to sin and hate? They are reprobate. While we do not deny that God may snatch men as brands from the burning—that is, that there may come influences that may snatch John Newton from being a slave-trader, and bring a man out from the depths of intemperance and make him a reformer—yet the exceptions are so rare that the great probabilities move on with giant strides, and when a man has given himself over to a career of vice and spiritual wickedness, and has held it through the years against the influence of friends, church, and the strivings of God's Spirit, there is a fearful probability that he is reprobate, given up; and I think sometimes I almost hear God saying to the angels of mercy: "Cease your beneficence, it is wasted; why should there be dew falling on the rock? It can not make it sprout and grow." But even in their perishing God's heart is grieved, and God is sorry, not only for sinners at large, but for those that are doomed irrevocably.

Behold the tender mercy of your God. May he give you grace to be wise in time; for the wise man foreseeth the evil and hideth, fools pass on and are punished.

"MANUSCRIPT FOUND."

We now offer for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spalding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. This book of 144 pages 8 mo., is now in the hands of the binder, and orders for it are solicited. Single copies, in cloth 45 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 40 cents each; in paper, single copies 25 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 20 cents each. Liberal discount to dealers.

REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.

We have now on sale at this office, in pamphlet form, containing 48 pages, the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of plural marriage." Price, post paid, single copies 10 cents; 75 cents per dozen to one address.

Conserence Minutes.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.

The semi-annual conference of this district convened at San Francisco, Cal., October 2d, 1885. Elder A. H. Smith, president; Elder T. J. Andrews, secretary. Branch reports.—San Francisco 48; received by letter 3, baptized 1. Stockton 62; baptized 18. Uniontown 18. Spruce Grove 22. Sacramento 95. Santa Rosa 63. Oakland 107; baptized 4. Elders' reports .- W. Potter, president of district, found an inquiring spirit among the people, and was extremely sorry that more Elders could not be sent into the field; had baptized 4. Thomas Daily baptized ten in Stockton, found the people willing to investigate our doctrine, and quite anxious to hear preaching. W. Anderson, D. J. Philips, G. S. Lincoln, A. Haws, J. H. Parr, S. Robinson, J. Nightingale, G. W. Harlow, J. R. Cook, J. B. Price, A. Nethercott, J. Roberts, Thos. J. Andrews and H. P. Brown, reported their respective labors. Bishop George A. Blakeslee delivered an instructive address upon the obligation all members had assumed upon entering into the solemn covenant of the gospel. Elder E. L. Kelley reported his travels through the district; had visited the various churches, and everywhere found the great need of an active ministry. Had endeavored to present the temporal law in the manner as understood by the Bishopric, and had not found any one individual who was not satisfied with the views as now held by the church. In the evening Elder E. L. Kelley discoursed from 1 Cor. 12: 28, ably defending God's method of salvation, showing that apostolic and prophetic privileges and duties are gifts to the church, unto which men are called, qualified, and empowered to act, and are as essential now in the church as at any other time, when Christ had a church. At the morning session a resolution prevailed, directing the Bishop's Agent to present an itemized report to our district conferences. Elder Thomas Daily was appointed president of district. In the evening preaching by Elder H. P. Brown from Matthew 9: 23, Inspired Translation. The parable of new wine and old bottles was ably used to prove the utter incompetency of the unregenerated mind to entertain the new and Divine word of God. Preaching by E. L. Kelley on Sunday morning, from Matthew 5:20. The discourse was replete with wise instruction to the members of the church, showing beautifully the distinction and force of Christ's words, "My kingdom is not of this world." That whilst the civil governments of the world was intended to govern and restrain man in his unredeemed and carnal character, the kingdom of God was sent to train up the heart in the precepts of the living God, that we might be like him, and share in the glories of the world to come. Resolution prevailed that all members moving from one branch to another must take letters of removal, before they unite with another. The request of San Francisco Branch to be granteo: Priest C. A. Parkin be ordained an Elder, and Richard Webber, a Deacon. On Sunday afternoon Bishop Blakeslee offered prayer, and delivered an opening address on the importance of the Sacrament. Bro. C. A. Parkin was ordained an Elder by E. L. Kelley, and Bro. Richard Webber a Deacon by A. H. Smith. Sr. Phylanda Bradbury was confirmed a member of the church by E. L. Kelley. Subsequent to the Sacrament, many earnest and devout testimonies from young and old were given in the power and demonstration of the good Spirit, creating a perfect time of rejoicing and joy in the gospel of peace toward all men. On Sunday evening preaching by Elder A. H. Smith. Conference adjourned to meet in Stockton, on the first Friday of the full moon in March, 1885.

CENTRAL NEBRASKA.

The conference of this district met on Saturday, September 26th, 1885, at the Saints' Chapel, near Clear Water, Nebraska, president G. S. Hyde in the chair; J. H. Jackson, chosen secretary pro tem. Elders B. Kester, O. Bebee, W. S. Barbee, G. S. Hyde, J. Caffall, present, reported. Elders C. Brindley, H. J. Hudson, J. B. Williams, O. A. Richey and R. H. Wight, reported by letter. Priests J. H. Smith, J. Smith, C. H. Derry and M. Cain reported in person, and C. No Hutchins, by letter. Of the Teachers: J. H. Jackson, J. Mill and A. Hollenbeck reported in person. Bro. G. S. Hyde was sustained as president of the district for the next three months, and Levi Gamet as secretary. Saturday evening and Sunday morning, Elder J. Caffall dispensed the word to attentive audiences. The afternoon session was devoted to prayer and testimony; a pleasant and peaceful waiting was had. On Sunday evening Bro. Hyde spoke to the few who ventured through the rain to the church. Adjourned to meet with the Clear Water Branch, Nebraska, December 26th and 27th, 1885.

Miscellaneous.

THE EXPOSITOR.

If you will allow me through the columns of the Saints' Herald to address the Saints upon the subject of continuing the Expositor another year, you will confer a favor. There remains now two more numbers to be issued to complete the first volume. The amount of good the Empositor has accomplished on this coast can not be estimated: but all know that it has been of great benefit to the cause, in placing the Reorganized Church properly before the world, and showing the difference between us and the polygamous Utah Mormons. This Pacific Slope Mission has more people in it, probably, who have come in contact with the polygamous Mormons, than any other part of the United States; and consequently there is more prejudice and bitterness against the name of Latter Day Saint, or Mormons, than any other place in our country, and therefore a harder field to labor in than any other. It has taken a long and laborious work to show the people here, that we are not of the Utah Church, and that we are opposed to the doctrines characteristic of that people.

The Expositor has done much in the past year in educating the public on that subject, and in showing the difference between us and them, and yet there are thousands who from lack of opportunity to know and understand this difference, or from prejudice, have failed to put forth the requisite amount of inquiry to know, are today as ignorant of our true position, doctrines, and work as though we never existed. Our people have kept and honored the laws of the Government in which we live, and therefore have not because conspicuously notorious for evil doing; and the people have been led to believe that the Utah Polygamous Church was the embodiment of the Latter Day Saint Church, and that there were not enough of any others to notice; while the facts are, that the Reorganized Church numbers nearly twenty thousand communicants, while many thousands more of old time Saints who could not brook the Utah doctrine and leaders, like the children of Israel at the Red Sea, are "standing still to see the salvation of God."

By the efforts of the Expositor, newspapers on this coast now give us favorable notice; Christian Churches and private houses and halls are now opened to our Elders; the Macedonian cry "Come over and help us," is heard on every side, and we have not ministers enough now to fill the places where preaching would be listened to with deference and respect.

The question now is, Shall the Expositor now go down from lack of energy and patronage?

The Board have turned the paper over to us, and we propose to keep it going if sufficient encouragement is accorded us. If the oid subscribers will all renew their subscriptions, either by forwarding the cash for volume two, or pledging their word where they can not immediately remit the money, that they will soon remit a year's subscription, and send it forward to us as soon as the first day of December, we will commence volume two, on the first of January, 1886. A little economy and self-sacrifice on the part of the Saints and we can publish a good paper on this Coast, to the great benefit of the work here. As we shall have given one years's labor in the current volume, we do not feel able to take the risk of publishing another volume unless we shall receive sufficent pledges which are tangible to justify the undertaking.

Subscribers for volume two will say so in their orders, and send them to me at my office, 859 Broadway, Oakland, California. Those sending for volume one must send to Bro. Geo. S. Lincoln, 1801 Polk street, San Francisco, California. Dear Saints, let me hear from you early.

H. P. BROWN, Editor Empositor.

NOTICES OF APPOINTMENT.

The Saints of the Central California District of the Church of Jesus Christ, will please take notice that Elder John M. Range, of Hollister, is the duly appointed agent of the Bishop, and empowered to act as such in said district, in the place of Bro. Daniel Brown, resigned.

Also the Saints of the Kent and Elgin District, Canada, will take notice that Bro. Richard Coburn, box 72, Blenhem, Kent County, Ontario, is the duly appointed agent, and he is empowered to act under his instructors as such for said district, in place of Bro. James Robb, who has resigned. Praying ever for the spread of the gospel work, I am truly in hope.

G. A. Blakeslee, Bishop. Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 22d, 1895.

BRANCH REPORTS AND RECORDS.

According to the published minutes of the District Conferences some branch reports have come into the hands of District Clerks during the past spring and summer which have not yet been forwarded to me for placing upon the General Church Record. I would therefore like to urge upon the district officers that they will kindly send all reports to me and continue to do so as fast as received, after recording in their District Records. If they will please bear it in mind and attend to it I will be greatly obliged.

H. A. STEBBINS,

Church Sec. and Recorder.

LAMONI, Iowa, October 29th, 1885.

A CARD.

Whereas, it has been reported that I, F. W. Curtis, have used language, which has been either misunderstood or misconstrued, whereof some members of the church have taken offense; therefore, I do humbly ask one and all, in the name of Jesus of Nazareth, to forgive me, as I have no desire whatever to injure or offend any one. My greatest desire is to live my religion, and do unto all people as I would have them do unto me, love my neighbors, and pray for my enemies, if any I have. Asking for mercy and peace, I remain, Yours truly, F. W. Curtis.

MARRIED.

Brown—Lain.—At Boonesboro, Boone county, Iowa, by Elder J. F. McDowell, on Thursday, October 22d, 1885, Bro. Fulton A. Brown and Sr. Lyda D. Lain, both of Boonesboro, Iowa.

DIED.

WILCOX.—At Shenandoah, Iowa, October 18th, 1885, of membraneous croup, Clara Hattie Belle, only daughter of Bro. Eper S., and Sr. Clara A. Wilcox, aged 6 years, 5 months, 2 days. The departed was only ill twenty-four hours. A little time before dying she said she "felt so good," and was going to "die and go home." Funeral from the Saints' Church, Elder R. M. Elvin officiating. There was a large attendance, and the service was solemn and impressive. One more is added to the redeemed host on the other shore.

PEARSON.—At Corinth, Ontario, Canada, October 8th, 1885, Sr. Jannet Pearson, aged 60 years, 2 months and 18 days. She was born August 21st, 1825; was baptized into the original church in March, 1844, by John Shippy; afterwards came into the Reorganization August 25th, 1863, having been baptized by George Cleveland, after which she stood alone amid all the trials and evils that surrounded her, which were many, for six years; at the end of which time her prayers prevailed with God, and her sister Rebecca was baptized, and they together have stood the storm, and have lived to see that dark day of persecution roll away, and in the place where once the mob stalked defiantly, peace prevails, respect is tendered, and now a flourishing branch of the church exists, and worship held in a neat little church erected at considerable sacrifice, dedicated free; and now after a noble and consistent Christian life of over forty-one years, she returned to the world of spirits, departing this life peacefully, leaving many friends both in and out of the church. She was looking joyfully forward to the time appointed, October 10th, when the Saints were to meet in Conference within a few rods of her home; but her fond hope was not to be realized. Two days previous to the convening of conference she was summoned away to meet in the conference of the spirits of the just. The funeral services were conducted with profound respect, and great credit is due, and was tendered to Mr. Connor for his management. The funeral sermon was preached by Elder Arthur Leverton, who seemed to be filled with the Holy Spirit, and a strain of humble, deep felt sympathy, amounting to pathos, accompanied his effort, which was edifying, comforting, and instructive to all. Many outsiders expressed a desire to hear more from Bro. Leverton. Sr. Jannet Pearson leaves a wide circle of sorrowing friends and brethren, sorry to lose the companionship of our sister, yet glad to know that she lived and died a saint. Her husband bears testimony that many times he has entered the house when all seemed quiet, but as he passed from room to room to see if any one was there, he would often hear the voice of his wife in secret prayer pleading with God.

"Asleep in Jesus! far from thee Thy kindred and their graves may be: But thine is still a blessed sleep, From which none ever wake to weep."

J. A. McIntosh.

BOOTH.—Near Davis City, Iowa, November 28th, 1884, Sr. Phebe Booth, wife of Bro. Robert Booth, aged 75 years, 9 months and two days. Sister Booth was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Christ, on the 30th day of April, 1863, at Little River, Decatur county, Iowa, by Elder W. W. Blair. She was a faithful wife, a loving mother, a good neighbor, and very kind to the poor. Funeral services by Elder Z. H. Gurley.

BOOTH.—Near Davis City, Iowa, July 26th, 1885, Bro. Robert Booth, aged 76 years, 3 months and 14th days. Brother Booth was baptized into the Reorganized Church on the 30th of April, 1863, at Little River, Iowa, by Elder W. W. Blair. Both himself and wife were members of the old church. He was a firm believer in the Book of Mormon, consequently never could endorse the doctrine of universal salvation; it always grieved him to hear it preached. He maintained his integrity to the last. Funeral service by Elder E Robinson.

CLARK—At Davis City, Iowa, September 12th, 1885, of membraneous croup, Mildred H., youngest daughter of brother and sister William H. Clark, aged three years and seven months. Little Mildred was a special favorite with all who knew her. They loved her for her sweet and pleasant ways. She has gone home to mingle with the angels, and be with Jesus, who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Funeral services by Elder Z. H. Gurley, assisted by Elder J. R. Lambert.

BALDWIN.—Tudie, daughter of John J. and Margaret N. Baldwin, died October 18th, 1885, in Butler county, Alabama, of bilious fever; aged about 4 years.

Baldwin.—October 23d, 1885, in Butler county, Alabama, of bilious fever, Bro. John J. Baldwin, aged 49 years; was baptized November 30th, 1873, by G. T. Chute. Dr. Baldwin was born in Lumpkin, Stewart county, Georgia. He leaves a wife and six children to mourn his loss; He was highly respected by all who knew him; was a firm believer in the great latter day work; a faithful and kind husband and father. The church feels his death deeply. Prayer was offered at the house, and a short discourse at the grave, where a number of Saints and friends had G. T. CHUTE. gathered.

ADDRESSES.

Mark H. Forscutt, care 138 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Bai Presiding Bishop: G. A. Blakeslee, Gallen, Mich. Elder Joseph Luff, Box 307, Salt Lake City, Utah. Elder Peter Anderson, Editor of "Sandhedens Banner," Box 1123, Salt Lake City, Utah. Joseph C. Clapp, Bozeman, Gallatin Co., Montana. Elder Alexander Hale Smith, care William Anderson, 1009 Broadway, Oakland, Cal.

Pres. Joseph Smith, Box 307, Salt Lake City, Utah.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L.F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville. Mo., and have always found it fair. square and honest in all its transactions:

T.T. Hinderks,
G. W. Wilcox,
S. L. Blake,
W. N. Boothe,
The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men whose recommendation are worth something.

Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands.

COME AND SEE OUR ALL PAPER,

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS. Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Hansen & Walker's Drug Store.

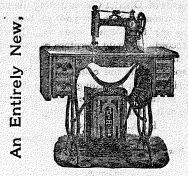

J. H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

EASY - RUNNING - SEWING - MACHINE.

——IT HAS-

The Most Room under the Arm. The Best Self-Setting Needle.
The Largest Bobbin.
The Easiest Shuttle to Thread.
The Most Perfect Tension.

The Most Reliable Feed. The Mest Perfect Take-Up.
The Best Bobbin Winder.

-IT IS-

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME.

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

Agents Wanted by Robert Johns (Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in

INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL, AND PASTELL.

Also, manufacturer of

B E DSPRINGS.

THESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or wish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Catalogue, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fall for those who will work diligently.

IF YOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue. anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handling Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 10 hs when packed) for only 97c.. IRON-HEATER included for $1.30, to any one who will act as a gent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3 50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a

Picture Outfit,

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait, (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only 98c. Catalogue free.

Address ROBERT JOHNS,

PEORIA, ILLINOIS. (Successor to Johns & Ordway.) In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY JOHN SHIPPY. DR.

Dental Surgeon,

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Gov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison of Kansas City. It traverses all of the six Great States, ILLINOIS, IOWA, MISSOURI.

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO With branch lines to their important cities and towns. It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver. Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis, Chicago and Dubuque, Chicago and Sioux City, Peoria and Council Bluffs, Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omaha St. Louis and St. Paul, St. Louis and Rock Island, St. Louis and Chicago, Kansas City and Denver, Kansas City and St. Paul, Kansas City and Omaha, Kansas City and Burlington.

Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points ith Through Trains to and from points located on its

Dranches,
At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada.
It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

United States ...
I'ENRY B. STONE, PEKI Ass't Gen'l Manager, CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass, Agent,

⇒BUSINESS∜ The Davenport Business Gollege

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught. Bookeeping, by single and double entry; Business Arthometic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circulars address

DUNCAN & HAWKS, Davenport, Iowa-

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed David Dancer, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANCER: communications and articles to the EDITOR.

THE SAINTS'

ONE WIFE, AND "HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 32.—Whole No. 653.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 14, 1885.

No. 46.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR

EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Lamoni, Iowa, November 14, 1885.

NO LAW, NO TRANSGRESSION.

"WHERE there is no law, there is no transgression,"-Romans 4: 15.

The Utah Saints have utilized this saying of the apostle Paul "with a vengeance," to use a trite saying. For, proceeding upon the hypothesis that the territory where they had pitched their tents after the exodus from Illinois and Iowa was a land unknown to law, they enacted laws and set up statutes thereon. In these statutes there were no provisions declaring who might and who might not contract in marriage, nor who might celebrate the rite; no re-enactment of the Mosaic declaration concerning consanguinous marriages; no statement of what incest was, and providing for its punishment. Rape and the crime against nature only were recognized as deserving of punishment.

An act providing for proceedings in cases of separation for divorce was passed: but in this act, marriage with another is not given as a just cause for separation. And a provision in another act by which the time-honored right of dower accrued to the wife, is made void; thus making the tenure of the marriage bond more and more insecure to the wife legally taken, the wife being left without legal claim upon the properties to which her youthful service and her child-bearing have entitled

In the absence of clauses in the statutes defining the age at which persons might lawfully contract in marriage, children all the way from eleven years upwards were taken to wife, not in one or two instances, and in one or two localities only, but in many instances and in various localities.

By reason of there being no clause defining the degree of consanguinity within which marriage is forbidden, men took to wife: mother and daughter; sisters, two or more; and in one instance at least, a man took his own half sister to wife, having children by her. The design seems to have been to so leave the laws that acts elsewhere unlawful were permissable, because there was no law against them.

A SUM IN NUMBERS.

IT is now currently reported about Pleasant Grove and Provo, that Joseph F. Smith, one of the now absent presidents of the Utah Church, taught and preached that unless a man had at least three wives, he could not be saved with a celestial salvation,—could not enter into the celestial kingdom and obtain celestial glory.

If this teaching is true, with reference to the Utah Saints, not to make an attempt to apply it elsewhere, it must follow that as the sexes are equal in Utah, only three men in every ten can possibly hope to attain unto that celestial salvation. Three men in ten, each having three wives, leaves seven men and one woman to fail of salvation, one of the men with one wife only, and six without any! But as it is said that John Taylor has had ten, and Joseph F. Smith has four, (though it is thought that he has married three since), in the ten from which they are numbered there would be eight men wifeless; and four women would be taken from the ten next in numeration to supply the fourteen which these two men have. This would leave eighteen men out of the twenty with six women only, to wed; and if two out of the eighteen were lucky, or wise, or smart enough to get these six, three to each, it would leave sixteen men who could not hope to attain to the celestial glory—and yet this institution does not interfere with the rights of any, to life, its blessings and its home, peace and happiness! What do these monopolists of the wife-supply suppose these sixteen wifeless "fellow men" and brethren are made of? Have they the affection and desire for home, the joys of companionship, the love for children and their endearing ways, the ambition to be saved in the highest and best that God offers to man, celestial salvation. How are they affected by the logic of numbers as stated

CURIOSITIES.

Apostle Franklin D. Richards, of the Utah Mormon Church, in an "elaborate discourse on law and the Constitution," before the conference held at Logan, Utah, October 8th, 1885, among other things said: "When celestial marriage was re-"vealed there was no law against it. Con-"gress had passed laws to entrap the "Saints, who had no desire to break any "constitutional law of the land."

This extract is taken from the report of the conference proceedings published in the Deseret Daily News for October 8th,

Did the Apostle forget, or did he think other folks did not know, or would not remember, that July 12th, 1843, is alleged to be the date of the receipt of the so-called revelation; that the Saints did not leave Illinois till 1846, nor Iowa for a year after that date; that it was not till July 24th, 1847, that the pioneer corps reached the banks of City Creek in Salt Lake valley; that it was not till 1852 that the said revelation, claimed to have been given in 1843, was presented to the people; that both in Illinois and Iowa, from which States the church did not remove until as late as 1847, there were strict laws declaring it to bigamy and unlawful for a man to have two or more wives living at the same time? When and where did the Apostle wish his hearers to understand celestial marriage was first revealed?

In the report of the same day's proceedings, published in the News of the 9th October, the same Apostle is reported to have said:

"It had never been held against us that we violated any law save one, a law framed especially against our marriage relations. Wherein, he asked, consisted our crime? Before the revelation on marriage we were married according to Sectarian rites, until death did us part. At the proper time, the Lord told his servant Joseph that all old covenants should be done away, that they were not of binding force is His sight; and as the people became prepared for the doctrine it was revealed to us of God; that the marriage covenant was eternal; as we were eternal, and we were commanded to receive the new and everlasting covenant, and govern ourselves accordingly."

Contrast this with what apostle Orson Pratt said in a sermon preached in the city of Salt Lake, October, 1869, as reported and published in pamphlet form:—

"God created man, male and female. He gave to man, whom he created, a help-meet—a woman, a wife to be one with him, to be a joy and a comfort to him. . . In the early rise of this church, February, 1831, God gave a commandment to its members. . . . Wherein he says: 'Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else.' . . . It was given in 1831, when the one wife system prevailed among this people."

Then read the word of the Lord in regard to the institution of marriage in the church:—"I say unto you, that whoso for-biddeth to marry, is not ordained of God, "for marriage is ordained of God unto "man; wherefore it is lawful that he "should have one wife, and they twain "shall be one flesh, and all this that the "earth might answer the end of its crea-"tion; and that it might be filled with the "measure of man, according to his creation "before the world was made."—Revelation of March, 1831.

Was all this commanded of God, according to "Sectarian rites," Mr. Richards?

On the same day, and at the same meeting, October 8th, 1885, another apostle, Francis M. Lyman, addressed the assembly, and his remarks are reported thus:

"The speaker spoke of marriage and the sanctity of the marriage covenant; he dwelt also upon the worthiness of men to engage in the marital relations, and said that a man that was not worthy to be the husband of two or more pure women, was not worthy of a single wife; and, should his just deserts be meted out to him, he would be deprived of entering the married state at all."

One who was worthy (?) of more than one, Edward Brain, lately arraigned before the Courts of the United States for a violation of the provisions of the Edmunds law, had had three beside the first wife given him. Of these two had left him, as he stated to the Court: "They abandoned me, I did not abandon them." One of those who thus left him had married another man since leaving Brain. Another worthy man, John Daynes, had two given him; and he, to show his worthiness, when convicted and promising to obey the law, proposes to abandon his first and lawful wife, and live with his plural, or unlawful one, the one for living with whom he was Another, because his two arraigned. daughters by his lawful wife were subpænaed before the Grand Jury and testified as honest witnesses should do, turned the girls out of doors, and when they took refuge with their grandmother, succeeded in turning them out of that refuge; and but for an aunt, a Mrs. Erhard, the young women would have been homeless. Another still. In the Third District Court, Utah, (Salt Lake), Mary Swain sues for a decree of divorce from her husband, Robert Swain, whom she married in January, 1866. She alleges in her plea that they have been members of Mormon Church, and residents of Salt Lake City. That ten years ago her husband was married (or sealed, Ed.) to Julia Johnson, and two years after took Julia's sister, Sophia Johnson, also, to wife. That she had borne to Swain four children, Julia Johnson had borne him eight, and Sophia three. That for more than five years, last past, Swain has neglected to provide for her the common necessaries of life, and has compelled her to work and support herself and family, and educate her children. This is a "worthy" man it is to be presumed, or no permit would have been given him to have more than one wife. He is under indictment for a breach of the Edmunds law.

All this is very curious. But this apostle stated to the conference two instances where unworthy men did not get certificates entitling them to have extra wives. One succeeded in getting the consent of the first wife and that of the parents of the girl whom he wanted as a reward for his worthiness; but on his way to consummate the contract it was discovered that he had not paid his tithing and had sent his children to a Gentile school; so his wife, that was to be, "had to apply to the priesthood to have her agreement to marry this unworthy man made void. The other man could not get a certificate because he "had not paid his tithing and had not treated his other two wives properly. How he was known to be worthy of these two wives whom he mistreated is not stated.

DEFENSIVE.

Bro. Z. H. Gurley, by the following letter to the Deseret News, the chief organ of Brighamism, has forced upon us a duty absolutely painful, and one we would most gladly avoid, if the interests of the Church of Christ would permit.

Why he should fly to aid a journal which has done more to blind and mislead the masses of Utah, and to forge fast the chains now galling them to the very vitals, is a matter the reader must judge of for himself. The motives which prompt men are usually seen in what they say, and do. We expect to be measured and judged after this manner. Others will be.

He berates us for what we quoted and wrote in "A Timely Warning" in respect to Utah affairs, in the HERALD for last September 19th, and he charges that the article we quoted, and our comments thereon, tended to incite an "outbreak," a "mob," against the Utah Mormons. To this we reply that no such thing was intended, and furthermore, that neither the quotation complained of nor our comments can be twisted or tortured into meaning any thing of the kind. The extract from the Salt Lake Tribune advises the Mormons to "make terms with the authorities here while yet they can, for there will come a time when the people will rise up behind the Government even as they did in 1861," etc. Certainly, there is nothing in this that can be distorted to mean an "outbreak"—a "mob;" for when the people rose up "behind the Government" in 1861, to crush out the rebellion, it was a lawful, orderly, national movement, and proved eminently successful. And yet it did "smash" not only what was bad in the rebel States, but also much that was good.

While we endorsed the views expressed in the Tribune extract, we remarked that its words were "harsh," and we then said we had looked "since 1865 that the time would come when, if the Utah leaders did not put away polygamy and church rule in affairs of State, that the Nation (not a mob) would crush it out in hot wrath." We would remind brother Gurley that, our "Nation" is not a mob, neither was it in 1861; and further, that when we said "the Nation would crush out" polygamy, etc., he had not the slightest reason for charging that we meant anything but the Nation. It is cruelly unjust to say we fan "the flame of mobocracy" by the warning given in the article complained of. We never penned an article, and never preached a discourse, in which we said anything calculated to excite mobocracy. Our efforts, in word and deed, as many thousands who will read these articles will bear us witness, have ever and always been to remove the errors and evils complained of by moral suasion, and by the force of truth as contained in the sacred books of the church. And while we have fervently advocated this, we have felt assured "the Nation" would yet assert the majesty of its authority and compel obedience to its laws in Utah. That is all. As for the prophecy we cited, given in Crescent City, about 1860, in respect to some of the wicked leaders of the Utah Mormons fleeing to the mountains and becoming the Gadianton robbers of the last days, it was delivered by Elder E. C. Briggs, in the presence of hundreds, in the Odd Fellows' Hall. Elder Briggs, at the late Wheeler's Grove Reunion, September 5th to 11th, inquired of us to know if we remembered the prophecy, and suggested that its fulfilment was at hand. Very much seems to tend that way now.

If we were to retort on Elder Gurley in kind, we have ample grounds for doing so; for in an address in Kirtland, Ohio, April 6th, 1883, in a popular assembly of Saints and others, he said as follows, (and some things much worse, which Pres. Joseph Smith dropped from the Press Reports when republishing them in the HERALD): "All those who give countenance to the doctrines of Utah, are giving aid to the foulest system that ever cursed the race; so I say, and wish to be understood and go upon the record; for I do not propose to handle that thing any longer with gloves, it must and shall be stamped out, and if we so labor, the people of this State, and these United States, will seal it with a loud Amen. * * * I would rather my child should die an infidel, than to accept the doctrine of Mormonism as taught in Utah." These remarks, and some far more cutting than these, sent a thrill of pain throughout the Conference, which found expression in many words of regret; for though the Saints deplored the evils of Utah, they thought the remarks untimely and uncalled for. But none, not even the editors of the HERALD, either said or thought that Elder Gurley intended to incite an "outbreak," a "mob;" neither did they nor do they say such words would fan "the flame of mobocracy" in Utah, nor that the "inspiration" of them is "that of ruffianism."

President Joseph Smith, who never speaks harshly of any one, and who always deprecates grievous words and ways, has been in Utah much of the time the past summer, seeking by words of Christian kindness and truth to persuade the Utah Mormons to obey the laws both of God and the Nation, and so escape further tribulation and distress. Elder Gurley should know that such letters as his to the Deseret News will have the effect to create prejudice, incite hatred, and blind the minds of the Utah Mormons against President Smith and his fellow missionaries there, aud that they strengthen the hands of those who mislead and oppress that people, and that in many ways they will obstruct the work of reforming the misguided ones. We do not charge that Elder Gurley intends to effect these hurtful, deplorable ends, but we simply point out the results which will naturally come from his letter. And now, in order that Elder Gurley and all who read may see the exact state of the case, and see that neither the Tribune extract nor our comments can be made to encourage or to even allude in any way to mobbing the Utah Mormons, we print below the article he so ruthlessly denounces, and then what he has to say of it in his letter to the Descret News, and thus leave all to judge for themselves. Here is our article:

"A TIMELY WARNING.

"THE Salt Lake Tribune of the 28th ult., utters these harsh words in respect to Utah Mormonism:

"'The Mormons should remember * * and make terms with the authorities here while yet they can, for there will come a time when the people will rise up behind the Government, even as they did in 1861, and smash not only what is bad, but what is good in Mormonism. Church rule and polygamy are two things which will never be accepted, and will not long be tolerated by the American people.'

"We have been thoroughly impressed since 1865 that the time would come when, if the Utah leaders did not put away polygamy and Church rule in affairs of State, that the nation would crush it out in hot wrath. And since 1869, and more especially since November, 1879, we have been convinced that wrath would be visited upon Utah with heaven's approval, and that the abominations complained of would meet with desolation and destruction. We remember distinctly that, as early as 1860, at Cresent City, Iowa, it was foretold in great power and with much assurance, that fierce judgment would overtake the Utah leaders, that many of the wicked among them would flee to the mountain fastnesses for refuge, become the Gadianton robbers of the last days, and be a scourge to this nation. Some who heard this at the time are still living. We have pondered these things, and watched with painful anxiety the approaching storm for the past years, and it now appears nearly ready to burst forth with terrible and resistless fury, sweeping down 'not only what is bad,' but much that is good among the Utah Mormons.

"The storm gathers force and volume daily, and the course of the Utah leaders in hiding, skulking, evading, resisting, boasting, threatening and advising their followers to violate national law, serves only to widen and deepen the gulf that lies between them and the Government. They are daily making reconciliation less and less possible—their every act for the past thirty years has tended in this direction—and now the indications are that they have reached a point beyond which they can not count on the nation's forbearance, and that unless they make a complete surrender to 'the powers that be,' the worst will come, and with it much harm to ignorant innocence and the fanatically blind. Utah seems blind to the fact that this is the day of her visitation. She must abide the results for the good and the bad."

And here is the letter of Elder Gurley, which so utterly misstates and misrepresents both what we said and what it is manifest we intended to say:—

"Editor Deseret News :- In the Saints' Herald for the 19th ult., I notice a clipping from the Salt Lake Tribune, in which it predicts a time when the people will rise up behind the government, even as they did in 1861, and smash not only what is bad, but what is good in Mormonism,' etc. Now it is just possible that some religious and irreligious fanatics in Utah might project just such an outbreak, just such a mob; but I am fully satisfied that they would get but very little, if any, assistance outside of that Territory, as all who live far enough removed from Utah to allow time to think before acting, would understand and know that all such conduct would be punished by law, and that it would receive the indignant censure of almost the entire populace of the Republic. However, the Herald tells us that 'now the indications are that they (the 'Mormons' of Utah) have reached a point beyond which they can not count on the nation's forbearance, and that unless they make a complete surrender to the 'powers that be,' the worst will come, and with it much harm to ignorant innocence and the fanatically blind.' If the editor means by this, to convey the same idea contained in the Tribune by which the 'bad and good in 'Mormonism' is to be smashed!' then without hesitation I undertake to say that he is profoundly ignorant of the will and intention of the government, The idea that the government, ('nation') might or would tolerate a mob to rise up in Utah and destroy not only the fruit of many years of hard toil and privation, but the lives also of helpless women and children is preposterous in the extreme, and the inspiration which fans such a flame is that of ruffianism and not of Christ.

"No, gentlemen that will not do, crime in Utah must be punished by law, as in other Territories, all being equal under it, and the government can not afford to, and I have good reason to believe never will allow the people to rise up to perform any such work, the courts and the law being the only proper mediums and power by which it should be effected, for in seeking to have criminals brought to justice in Utah, let us be sure that the innocent be protected not only in life, but in their property.

"I for one have opposed Utah Mormonism because I believe it in error, and shall continue so to do, but I will not encourage any sentiment knowingly, nor fan any flame which looks to the extirpation of Mormonism (practices growing out of it) by any means other than that which is legally right, And when I say this I believe I but voice the sentiment of a very large majority to the citizens of the Republic, and that I but repeat, in part, the statements of many members of Congress made during the discussion of the Edmunds law.

"The law and the courts may finally solve the problem, but religious fanatics and bigots never; and when the editor of the Saints' Herald tells of the strange prophecy which makes 'Mormons' of Utah become 'the Gadianton robbers of the last days,' and how he has 'watched with painful anxiety the approaching storm,' and that now it appears nearly ready to burst forth with terrible and resistless fury, sweeping down 'not only what is bad, but much that is good among the Utah 'Mormons' (which things probably could only occur through the violence of an armed mob). I think after thus emptying his vials of wrath that he had better bathe his feet in warm water and cool his head with the proper lotions, for such talk but fans the flame of mobocracy and is very much in the way of a peaceful and proper solution of the 'Mormon' problem, for, we all ought to know that peaceful and kind words will as a rule avert the storm of wrath while inflamitory speeches invariably stir it up, and to those of the experience of years there is no excuse. Before courts or some proper authorities hot speeches may be tolerated, but for a Christian paper to use them in the above mentioned way, seeking at the same time to reclaim the erring, to my mind it is entirely out of joint.

"Desiring the right to prevail I am sir,
"Very truly etc.,

"Z. H. GURLEY."

PLEASANTON, Iowa, October 15th, 1885.

BISHOP SHARP.

In the following purported statement Bishop John Sharp is made to say he don't think the issue between the Utah Mormons and the Nation will be satisfactorily disposed of until representatives of the United States and the Mormon Church meet and discuss the matter, etc.

We ardently hope this may be done, if it be thought for the best by those having charge of "the great issue." There has been quite enough of bitterness and scandal engendered by it. Had the Utah leaders proposed this step with the Reorganized Church any time in the past thirty-five years, or had the Utah Mormons carefully investigated the doctrines of the Reorganization, and had not rejected and repulsed them, "the great issue" would have faded away into clear skies and peaceful progress.

"Bishop Sharp of Utah, who passed through Omaha, Neb., November 8th, en route East, said excitement over the prosecutions of the polygamists is deep and spreading. Although the trials for this term of court are over with, the Grand Jury is still taking evidence. Bishop Sharp says that it is true, that his course in pleading guilty and paying a fine and promising to obey the law, has gained for him the enmity of the elders of the church and his former friends. Friends with whom he has associated for a lifetime, and men with whom he has long been linked on church work, have turned against him.

"'I am now comparatively ostracised,' said he, 'but I acted according to the dictates of my conscience, and just as in all wisdom I should have acted. My letter, which I published at the time, explained my position exactly. I do not renounce my religion, or any part thereof. I simply give up the practice of polygamy because the United States laws forbid my indulging in it any longer. As long as I am a citizen of the United States I do not see how I can do otherwise. If I were unwilling to comply with the statute, I would be at liberty to go outside the United States' limits and continue the practice of polygamy. I think in due time there will be a reaction, and people will see I have pursued the best and wisest course. If those who are so bitter against me could be induced to read the letter which I wrote, they would, I think, see the wisdom of my pleading guilty, as I did; but they do not read it. As to any serious results from the present trouble, I am unable to predict anything. There is some rebellious muttering in certain quarters, though others are inclined to acquiesce. The Mormons are stubborn, but when they are threatened with the penitentiary, as I was, it is reasonable to suppose they will come to their senses. The Edmunds law is a severe law; but it does exactly what it was intended to do. It sends men to prison who refuse allegiance to the United States, in declining to give up polygamous practices. I don't think this great issue will be satisfactorily disposed of until representatives of the United States and men of the Mormon Church meet and discuss the matter, as men of wisdom and justice should, to devise some means of solving the question in as speedy a manner as is possible."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

CONTRIBUTORS to our church papers should bear in mind that we may not publish everything sent us for the press. The Editors, and the members of the Board of Publication, are charged by the church with the duty of choosing what shall and what shall not be published. No one else has this responsibility, and no one else should attempt to dictate in the premises. Contributors who fail to see their articles in print soon after they send them, need not conclude that their articles are rejected. We have now on hand manuscript sent here many months ago. Some of it is not yet timely, and some has been crowded out by more important matter. In selecting articles we shall seek for the greatest good to the greatest numbers; and we must be left to follow our own judgment and not the judgment of those who have no direct authority in such matters. Send us well digested, clearly defined, and plainly written articles on timely and important subjects, and then be patient.

We visited Lucas, Iowa, last Saturday, remained over Sunday, preached twice, attended Sunday School and sacrament meeting, and was well refreshed with the society of the Saints and friends. Church interests there are onward.

The Associate Editor was called by telegram on the evening of the 5th inst., to Galien, Michigan, Sr. G. A. Blakeslee being very ill. His daughter-in-law, the daughter of Bro. and Sr. Blakeslee accompanied him.

We thank Bro. Thomas McKee for a box of large, nice, tasty apples, raised we suppose, near Stewartsville, Missouri. In respect to size, they are superior to any we have seen this year, and they are fair in meat and also in flavor.

By letter from Elder Joseph Dewsnup dated Manchester, England, October 21st, we learn that their late district conference was an excellent one and "bespeaks much good in the future."

Bro. J. W. Johnson writes us the 1st inst., saying he has located permanently in McFall, Gentry county, Missouri, and is pleased with his new home. He says there is not so much prejudice there against the Saints as in some other places, and hopes to see a branch of the church there shortly, and would be pleased to have some of the Saints locate there. He would like to hear from some of the district officials soon. He thinks there are good opportunities to purchase homes at easy rates.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Watson Chapman writes from Mansfield, Pennsylvania, the 29th ult., and says:

"The Spirit has visited us often, and we find we have to be very watchful and prayerful. Our branch numbers about fifteen white and colored members. We would like to have a conversation with that colored sister in Clinton, Iowa."

MOSES THATCHER vs "YOUNG JOSEPH."

WE herewith present our readers with the sermon of "Apostle Moses Thatcher" on "Young Joseph" and the Reorganized Church. While it will be evident to the careful reader that many of his statements are incorrect, and much of his logic bad, yet they will perceive that he exhibits a spirit of fairness and manliness quite in contrast with his former file-leader, Brigham Young, who said of dissenting A. A. Smith and others, in Salt Lake City, March 29th, 1853,—"I say, rather than that apostates should flourish here, I will unsheath my bowie knife, and conquer or die. [Great commotion in the congregation, and a simultaneous burst of feeling, assenting to the declaration]. Now, you nasty apostates, clear out, or judgment will be put to the line, and righteousness to the plummet. [Voices, generally, "Go it, go it." If you say it is right, raise your hands. [All hands up]. Let us call upon the Lord to assist us in this, and every good work."- Journal of Discourses, vol. 1, page 83. But Mr. Thatcher advises his people to let "young Joseph" perform his mission in Utah in peace." This advice is well; but it is a pity there is need for such to professing children of God, and especially with reference to the eldest son of the "choice seer," who claims to have a mission touching the peace and salvation of the Saints in these times of peril and distress

Mr. Thatcher charges that a "scheme" was planned by "young Joseph" and his fellows in 1869 to invade Utah and attack Utah Mormonism. Here he is mistaken; for it was planned as early as 1863, and began to be carried into effect by two missionaries—Elders E. C. Briggs and Alexander McCord; and they went armed with the word of God as contained in the Bible, Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, the history of the church, aided and enlightened by the Spirit of God. As for the "Godbeite movement," Joseph had nothing to do with it, rejecting it from the first.

Brother Tullidge hit it when he said, "The Nation will trust young Joseph," etc. Egypt and its rulers trusted the other Joseph who was despised, hated, and opposed by his brethren, yet who in God's providence, by means of his favor with that nation, proved to be the Savior of his father's house of despisers and many others. The Persian nation trusted Ezra and Nehemiah who by reason of this fact saved restored Israel to their former sacred institutions and to their lands of promise. Daniel and his brethren were trusted by the nation where they were taken and held as captives. And why should it be thought a thing incredible, or even strange, that our nation, founded in the special providence of God to shield and favor His "marvelous work," should trust God's servant Joseph, when professing to build and carry out that work! When the nation trusts and favors him, is it not good evidence that God is overruling it thus for great and wise and good purposes? We think so. The work of God founded by Joseph the Seer needs the favor, and not the hatred; the confidence, and not the rod of our great nation. And Bro. Tullidge hit the mark again when he said: "I verily believe that Grant would have given them [Utah Mormons] the sword of justice had we not committed to the vice president, before he left the city, * * * this great Mormon schism in the name of young Joseph Smith; for strange as it may now seem, all was done, and our movement organized, in young Joseph's name." And thus it was that the very name and prospective work of young Joseph probably saved the Utah Mormons from the sword of President Grant and the nation in 1869, and this on the ground that they knew he maintained the teachings of the sacred books of the church as to marriage, loyalty, and good citizenship.

The Utah Mormons should be thankful for this, and should note the fact that the fruits of Joseph's influence and work tends to their salvation and peace. When Mr. Thatcher says young Joseph was "prominently mentioned as an anti-Mormon agitator," he misstates the facts, and misleads those who follow him. Joseph was mentioned, and prominently too, as an anti-polygamy agitator, and as a warm advocate for the supremacy of our Nation's laws, while he at the same times and in the same places advocated and maintained the doctrines of the church as set forth in the sacred books of the church. Mr. Thatcher should state the facts as they are. and say that Joseph sharply opposed polygamy, and at the same time defended his position on that subject and the faith of the church by appealing to the accepted books and the authoritative writings of the church. He should be fair and honorable, if he does differ with Joseph. Mr Thatcher denies that the Saints were commanded to obey "all the laws that should be passed after that revelation was given which says -"Let no man break the laws of the land, for he that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land;" and vet the very next clause of that revelation proves that it was designed of God, that the Saints should obey all the then future "laws of the land," for it says: "Wherefore, [because keeping the laws of God does not lead to breaking the laws of the land], be subject to the powers that be until He [Christ] reigns whose right it is to reign, and subdues all enemies under his feet." Christ has not yet subdued "all enemies." He does not yet reign. It therefore follows that the Saints are now under that command of God to "be subject to the powers that be"-namely-the "laws of the land" administered by civil rulers. There is no evading this. God has set the limits, and has demanded that His Saints shall "be subject to the powers that be until" Christ subdues all enemies under his feet and reigns as Lord and King. In this same connection the Saints are commanded to hold the laws of God, simply as "the laws of the church," and not as laws opposed to or conflicting with the laws of the land, and concludes by saying,-"Behold, here is wisdom." Will the Utah Mormons see this "wisdom" and profit by it? Yes, Mr. Thatcher; God did "mean to bind His people by instructions to obey any and all laws which might be passed in the future," That is precisely what He has done; and He foresaw that herein was "wisdom" for His Saints. The case of Daniel and the three Hebrew children has no more to do with this matter than the hewing of Agag to pieces by Samuel has to do with the conduct of God's servants in this age, or than the polygamous practices of David and Solomon would justify the Nephites in the same crimes. The Saints are under specific command to "be subject to the powers that be, until" Jesus comes; and this should be an end of all controversy to all and by all who profess to be Latter Day Saints.

Mr. Thatcher thinks the anti-polygamy laws are unconstitutional. But who are authorized by the Constitution itself to judge of such matters? Certainly it is no one person; no quorum; no church; no Congress; but only, and solely, the Supreme Courts. The Constitution itself has placed this power and prerogative in these Courts, and in these Courts alone: and when Mr. Thatcher or his church opposes this, and assume the duties and powers of these Courts, are they submitting to "the powers that be?" Are they honoring and sustaining that Constitution? Certainly not. Those who violate the laws, and especially such laws as are decided by the Supreme Courts to be Constitutional, are violating the Constitution itself in one of its most essential provisions. We most sincerely wish Mr. Thatcher and his kind may soon see this, and profit

Mr. Thatcher exhibits how little respect he has for God's written word when he says as follows:-"When a man comes claiming to have revelations and then goes to the books for confirmation, I have my doubts about the source from whence came the inspiration." If this be so, why don't he doubt the inspiration of Jesus? He claimed to be sent of God, and to teach the word of God, and yet he appealed to "the books" for confirmation of His claims, and He rebuked the Jews and reproved his disciples for not believing what the books said of him and his work. To the Tews he said—"There is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust. For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me; for he wrote of me. (John 5: 45:46). And to his disciples he said: "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken; * * * and beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself."-Luke 24: 25, 27. And when the Savior was assaulted by Satan, He maintained himself by an appeal to God's written word, (See Matt. 4: 4, 6, 7, 10). The Apostles had it revealed to them that Jesus was the Messiah and Savior, and yet they appealed to "the books" for confirmation of their teachings: See Acts 2: 16-36; 3: 18-24; 7: 1-53; 10: 42, 43; 13: 26, 27, 29, 32-35; 15: 14-17; 17: 2, 3. The angel Moroni had his mission to the "choice Seer" given him of God, yet he appealed to the Scriptures for confirmation. Joseph the Seer had his call and mission revealed to him, yet he appealed to the sacred books for confirmation of his work. The Elders in these latter days have had revelations as to the truth of the gospel and God's "marvellous work and a wonder," and yet they give confirmation by appealing to the sacred books. And now young Joseph comes and claims to be sent of God, and, like all of God's servants before him, he appeals to the books for confirmation, when, lo! the Utah leaders question and condemn such appeals! "Surely, the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." "Young Joseph's work is founded in and sustained by God's "sure word of prophecy." Young Joseph is in good company; for, when a servant of God is well sustained by "the books" given of God, he is safe. But what must we think of those professing to be servants of God, who contemn the confirmation of God's written word?

If Brigham Young spoke with "the voice of Joseph" the Seer, it was of itself first-class evidence that he then was not inspired of God, but of an opposite power; for none but mimics or spiritual mediums pretend to speak with the voices of the dead. Satan transforms himself, and causes others to appear as those dead did when living, and to act and speak as such. This work of impersonation is not of God, but of men or false spirits.

Mr. Thatcher says, "the scorn and contempt and persecution which they [the Utah Mormons] have always borne is a testimony" that they were God's special favorites. Mr. Thatcher ought to know that the calamities which came on Israel from Moses to their dispersion after Christ, and from then till now, was the result of their disobedience to God's written word, as predicted in Leviticus, chapter 26; Deuteronomy, chapter 28; and by all the prophets, including Jesus of Nazareth. He ought to know further, that the wrath that has come upon the Latter Day Saints from the first has been very largely the result of their folly, disobedience to God's word, and the crimes of some against the laws of the land. If he does not know it, he should read the last revelation in August, 1831, those of August 2d, 1833, December 16th, 1833, June 22d, 1834, July 23d, 1837, January 19th, 1841, all found in the Doctrine and Covenants. There he will learn that persecution, tribulation, driving, etc., frequently is an evidence of the wickedness of the people suffering such, and that peace, rest, favor, and prosperity are the promised blessings of God to those who keep his commandments. It is a pity Mr. Thatcher and his kind have not more confidence in the teachings of the sacred books they profess to revere; for the light they contain would dispel the fog and darkness in which he and his fellows are walking.

Mr. Thatcher says, "If Joseph Smith organized that kingdom, it did not need any reorganization." Why then did Brigham Young seek to reorganize it in 1847? (See Millennial Star) for that period). And why was it predicted November 27th, 1832, that God would send "one mighty and strong," to "set in order the house of God?" And why the promise of God, February 24th, 1834, that He would raise up a man to lead the Saints "like unto Moses" and deliver them from "bondage?" Why all this if a reorganization is not needed?

The church was broken and scattered upon the death of Joseph the Seer, and it remained for God to send a man to lead His people out of bondage and reorganize His church on its original and unchangeable basis—in other words "set in order the house of God;" and that is just what "young Joseph" has been doing and is doing now. His work in this respect is in exact fulfillment and accord with the promises and pattern in God's written word, and consistent with the accomplished facts of history.

Mr. Thatcher finally concludes that, under certain conditions, he could accept "young Joseph" as their leader."

In the first place, young Joseph has never given the least intimation that he desired or expected to ever lead the Utah Mormon Church, as such. In the next place it does not belong to Mr. Thatcher and his fellows to provide the conditions upon which "young Joseph" shall lead the church of God. These are matters which heaven arranges, and it remains for the Utah people to either accept or reject them, and abide the consequences. The signs of the times are full of fearful portent to Brighamism, and those within its pale should examine themselves and see whether they are in the true faith or not, and see whether God is "working with them," or against them. We have no hesitancy in saying that if the Utah people would faithfully and prayerfully read the sacred books endorsed by Joseph the Seer and the Saints in his lifetime, all the tribulations and doubts and darkness and unrest of the Utah Saints would vanish as the darkness before the light. "Young Joseph" is laboring in the love of Christ, in purity of purpose, in gentleness, in meekness, and in long suffering, to do the Saints of Utah good, and to deliver them from "bondage." That is all. Will they receive him?

Here is Mr. Thacher's discourse:-

"My brethren and sisters: I desire this afternoon to speak briefly upon a subject which may be of some interest to the most of you; and, in order to reach what I feel desirable, I will have certain extracts read from a little magazine entitled the Saints' Advocate, published in Lamoni, Iowa. It is a periodical of the Josephite or Reorganized Church. When certain things were published in that paper six years ago, from the pen of Edward W. Tullidge, with whom a great many are acquainted, and whose facile pen has touched upon almost every subject within reach. his expressions I thought but the expressions of a visionary mind; but recent events which have transpired show connection with his writings of six years ago, revealing clearly the whole programme. From these extracts I desire to show you the reason for the presence in this Territory of young Joseph, son of the prophet Joseph Smith. You will all remember that exspeaker and Vice-President Colfax visited Salt Lake City in 1869, and that he came with the Book of Mormon, expecting to turn the Saints from their religion by their own books. Now 'brother' Tullidge says: 'But what a terrible shame that the American nation, herself, through her vice-president, with Grant seen behind with the sword of justice drawn, should have offered the Utah Apostles' judgment upon the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants (and this mind you was the terms of defense) as they did in 1869.' I will now ask brother Carlisle to read a few extracts:

them the sword of justice had we not committed to the vice-president, before he left the city, the secret of our intended schism. The blood of Vice-President Colfax was boiling with indignation and quick justice; but he took carriage with Stenhouse and drove out of the city to hear from him of this great Mormon schism in the name of young Joseph Smith; for strange as it may now seem, all was done, and our movement organized in young Joseph's name. * * *

"The Vice-President thus learned that there was secretly forming a revolution of Mormon Elders, headed by W. S. Godbe, Henry Lawrence, Kelsey, Shearman and Harrison; and that the Utah Magazine would prepare the way and open action while the Telegraph should sail in the wake of this new ship of Zion; besides the Walkers, Chislett, and the merchants and Gentiles generally, would all rally to break the backbone of the terrible hierarchy, and polygamy would go by the board. But better than all was the fact that it was to be in the name of 'young' Joseph Smith,' who was expected in due time to make his advent to consummate the movement to be begun by Godbe and his compeers. The Vice-President was satisfied. The name of Joseph Smith prevailed. He could appreciate that a genuine revelation from Joseph to do away polygamy was better than a false one from Brigham Young; and he knew that under such home leaders as Godbe, Harrison, Lawrence, and others, the movement would be potent, and might be trusted by the Government. In fine, Vice-President Colfax pledged his word that the Mormon leaders should not be allowed to send the Mormon people to the shambles for the slaughter, to preserve their miserable and guilty selves; (this is substantially Colfax's own words); troops should not be sent in any crusade to force the issue, but the mildest possible should be preferred. Moreover, to make this still surer, Mr. Godbe went to Washington, and obtained a similar pledge from President Grant; at the same time we forwarded to him a well digested and lengthy budget on Utah affairs.

"'Grant and Colfax nobly kept their word. * * "'The historical consistency of 'young Joseph' and the Reorganized Church for the last twenty years is most admirable, and the policy pursued wonderfully sound and sagacious. I will give it as explained to me by Joseph himself, and also by the presiding Bishop, Israel L. Rogers, of Sandwich, Elder Mark H. Forscutt, and President Blair, and it just accounts for what we in Utah have not been able to understand. We have all well known that 'young Joseph' (as he is still called) could at any moment, if backed by his people, conquer Utah and overthrow polygamy. For instance—to make the case pungent—supposing the Josephities were to direct an emigration for that given purpose to Utah, to be turned back again, if they so pleased, when that purpose was accomplished. Can there be a doubt as to the result? Thinking men in Utah have never doubted it; for Joseph's force, combined with the Gentiles and those whom we generally style 'out-coming Mormons' could redeem Utah at the polls without the conversion of a single soul from the Utah Church; but it is just as certain that such a result would give the Reorganized Church fifty thousand converts. But we have not comprehended the wisdom, the integrity, and the personal pride of these Josephite leaders. They have been literally wiping out the stain from their own names and Church,stains made by others, and not by themselves, and yet cruelly attaching to them by the very integrity of their faith; for Mormonism was divine though Utah had been ten times deeper dyed! Thousands of us in Utah have felt this just as keenly as Joseph and his brethren-nay, perhaps not as keenly as Joseph, but, O, God, keenly enough!-and we have felt that Joseph, as the son, at the head of his father's church, had duties toward us. And we were right; but his first duties were towards his own-"the remnant" who would not follow the Twelve in their exodus-and duties towards the integrity of the Church as founded by his father. This was truly wise; for in proving that integrity, and the monogamic purity of the Latter Day Saints in the States by the righteousness of a twenty years' probation, he has not only redeemed his own Church, but made it worthy in the sight of God and man to redeem even Utah, whose sins are as scarlet; and to be worthy enough is to be potent enough.

"The nation will trust Young Joseph' Smith to solve the Mormon problem and to give the people of Utah the word of the Lord to do away with their polygamy. He will be there in his place to receive that national trust, and to execute God's judgment in righteousness.

"'The first commandment that will go forth from your Prophet, Oh, Israel, will be—'OBEY THE LAW OF THE LAWD! OBEY THE LAW THAT YOU MAY BE SAVED BY THE LAW.'

"'This is not my wording. It seems to be the ruling axiom of Joseph Smith's philosophy of church government, that the Saints must obey the law that they may be saved by the law."

Here Mr. Thacher resumes his discourse.

"In these extracts we have revealed the plans of young Joseph as he is still frequently called. When I first read the scheme as here mapped out, I did so with a smile, as over other writings of the author; but noting now its gradual development, I desire to direct your attention to the fact that the scheme written out six years ago is being worked with a precision that bespeaks method.

"Without any disposition to cast reflections or say anything that would in the least degree disciscredit a son of the greatest prophet since the days of Jesus, I deem it nevertheless to be my duty to note a few things, and among them the fact that those most bitterly opposed to the Saints here, fell weeping, as it were, on the neck of young Joseph, where he reached Salt Lake City a few days since. I have never seen him to my knowledge, and only form opinions regarding his character from a few of his written productions which I have read, and from remarks said to have been made by him. When at Chicago just before the Edmunds law was passed by Congress, I remember that Joseph was prominently mentioned as an anti-Mormon agitator, and if the Chicago Times and Tribune correctly reported remarks made by him in Farwell Hall, if I remember correctly, he said harsh and untruthful things about our people for which, under no circumstances, could he find warrant. Still, as this is considered a land wherein is guaranteed free speech, I suppose he and others might feel to use it without restriction or limit against this people, and especially against their leaders. But I do not wish to refer further to these, but rather to the text read at the Salt Lake Opera House a few evenings since by young Joseph, and which would seem to indicate in the reading the fulfillment of that part of the programme written out six years ago. I will now read the text found in Sec. 58, Book of Doctrine and Covenants, Liverpool edition page 219, paragraph 1: 'Let no man break the laws of the land, for he that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land; wherefore be subject to the powers that, be until He reigns whose right it is to reign, and subjects all enemies under his feet. Behold the laws which ye have received from my hands are the laws of the church, and in this light ye shall hold them forth. Behold here is wisdom.'

"Now then we acknowledge these to be the words of inspiration; we acknowledge them to have come from God through His great Prophet

Joseph Smith, but does it signify that the Lord meant that we should obey all the laws that should be passed after that revelation was given? God mean to bind His people by instructions to obey any and all laws which might be passed in the future? For if our law makers have authority to enact laws in reference to marriage and fixing limits thereto, they may pass laws prohibiting any marriage at all. And if they have that power they may also pass laws prohibiting the taking of the sacrament of the Lord's supper. God never meant to bind his people thus; he referred to the laws that were then in existence only. But for the sake of brief argument let us suppose, as it seems young Joseph's mind is led to think, that it did have reference to the future as well as to laws then existing, and that in the book of Doctrine and Covenants there is thus a direct commandment of God for us to obey all the laws on the statute books to-day, including that law which restricts the eternity of the marriage covenant. If the revelation applies to the future it must also apply to the past, leaving those guiltless who entrapped Daniel under the enforcement of a special law. God having according to young Joseph's interpretation commanded Daniel to obey the laws of the land, acted, it would seem, inconsistent in delivering him from the lions. It was contrary to law to pray in the way that Daniel prayed, when he knew that the edict of the king was made like unto the laws of the Medes and Persians, unchangeable. If God designed to bind past and future generations in obedience to human enactments, regardless of the rights of conscience, was not closing the mouths of lions to save a law breaker, an act inconsistant? And so in reference to the three Hebrew children delivered from the fiery furnace, who also were violators of the law of the land. In a similar manner we find scores of instances when obedience to God had been disobedience to "Taking another view of the subject, who is there here to-day ignorant of the rule of jurisprudence that has obtained for centuries, and is acknowledged among all intelligent people that an old law conflicting with a new or later law, is repealed by implication in all its conflicting parts by the later enactment. If it were otherwise, confusion and chaos would result.

"Now then, looking at it in this light, you will readily comprehend the wisdom and forsight displayed by the Amighty in frusterating the designs of Satan. God comprehending the pressure that would be brought to bear on Congress by religious bigots for the passage of special laws with which to entrap His Saints in this day, as the wicked sought to entrap Daniel and others anciently, repealed portions of the law which was read to you this afternoon, by enacting another in which there are certain defined conditions governing obedience to the laws of the land. In order to make this entirely clear, I must give you the date of the two revelations. The first, the one from which I have read, was given August 1st, 1831—the second was given August 6th, 1833, two years and five days later. This revelation reads as follows: Doctrine and Covenants, section 98, paragraph 4, page 342, 'And now verily I say unto you concerning the laws of the land, it is my will that my people should observe to do all things whatsoever I command them, and that law of the land which is constitutional (mark the amendment), supporting the principal of freedom in maintaining rights and privileges, belongs to all mankind and is justified before me; therefore, I the Lord justify you and your brethren of my church in befriending that law which is the constitutional law of the land.' The first act is modified by the second. God foresaw, as George Washington feared, that in the latter times the degenerate sons of noble sires would override the Constitution of the United States, using the weapons with which traitors destroy free govern-

"This nation is ruled to-day by an expedient which is called public opinion. Christ was crucicified under public opinion. The blood of Joseph the great prophet of the latter days was shed in Carthage Jail because public opinion demanded it. Public opinion drove the Saints into the wilderness barefooted and half starved. Public opinion to-day is driving the best people we have either into exile or prisons. Public opinion in the shape of car-loads of petitions inspired by religious bodies caused the Edmunds law. Public opinion in the courts of Utah to-day, permits the Government to prove sexual commerce for the sake of the prosecution, but denies the right to disprove it for the sake of the defense. Public opinion has always been wrong, except when it has been inspired by God. The motto of this great and mighty nation is vox populi, vox dei; the motto of the Latter Day Saints is vox dei, vox populi, that is to say, the nation says the voice of the people is the voice of God. We transform it and say that the voice of God should be the voice of the people; that is the difference. If young Joseph has a mission, let him in peace perform it. I can not bid him God speed, for I think him in the wrong, but, in his stay in Utah, for the sake of his noble father whose blood sealed the testimony that has cost us so much, let him be treated with kindness and courtesy. If there are any Latter Day Saints in Utah who want to cast their lot with the Reorganized Church, let them go; it is their prigilege. You in these mountains are a free people in these matters because God has made you free; and if you do not at this stage know upon what rock you have builded, sorry is the day for you. I have read some letters of 'young' Joseph which are inconsistent, but somewhat touching. When a man comes claiming to have received revelations and then goes to the books for confirmation, I have my doubts about the source from whence came the inspiration. Burn all the books there are in this world, consume them, and I would still know Mormonism to be true, and I know that Brigham Young was the lawful successor of Joseph Smith, the Prophet. There are hundreds in the world to-day who can bear testimony before God, men and angels, that when he stood in the presence of the people as their leader, they saw in him Joseph, they heard the voice of Joseph, with that same chear ring that they had been accustomed to, and the testimony of the people was that the mantle of Joseph had fallen on the shoulders of Brigham. But we do not need that testimony; the history of this people, the scorn and contempt and persecution which they have always borne, is a testimony of the truthfulness of the words of Jesus Christ. They will hate you 'because you are not of the world.' If they loved you and spoke well of you, as they do of the Reorganized Church, it would be an evidence that you are not of God. Oil and water do not mix. God and Belial are not one, never have been and never will be. Remember this, my brethren and sisters.

"You can send to the office for Nos. one and two of the Saints' Advocate, and read if you choose the history of the Reorganization, and draw your own conclusions. I do not wish now to make any comments on it. I will say this, however, that the Prophet Joseph Smith had the authority to organize this Church, because John the Baptist, who was the forerunner of Jesus Christ, came in person and conferred upon him with his his hands the Aaronic Priesthood: because Peter, James and John, came and conferred upon his head the fullness of the Melchesidec Priesthood, the Apostleship. Joseph Smith was, and is, the Prophet of the dispensation of the fullness of times, because Moses the prophet of God, came and gave to him the keys of the gathering dispensation. Joseph Smith will stand at the head of this dispensation, because Elias came to him and gave him his keys; because Elijah came and gave him authority to turn the hearts of the children of their fathers. Joseph Smith had in his hands all the keys combined that others held in generations past. Not a few of them, but all of them, centering in him. Do not forget the statement. And when he had these keys he organized the kingdom of God which Daniel saw typified by the stone cut out of the mountain without hands, a kingdom which should never be thrown down nor given into the hands of another people. If Joseph Smith organized that kingdom it did not need any reorganization. If Joseph did not organize that kingdom, then there could be no reorganization, and the whole religious world is a fraud, including Mormonism. But it is not a fraud. It is the kingdom of God, and it is growing and increasing. It is in the mountains, thence to roll forth and rule; and long before this scheme to which I have referred today, and which originated in the brain of Joseph or Edward W. Tullidge, I know not which, shall be accomplished, the Kingdom of God will stand as the head, and the light of Zion will shine to the whole earth, illuminating the south, the north, the east and the west, until it redeems this continent and fills the whole world with its divine destiny. Once more, for the sake of the memory of the great modern prophet, I desire to express none but kindly feelings toward his son to whom I would do good, if I could. In my feelings I can go even further than that and say; If the Lord should hereafter bring young Joseph into the straight gate and narrow way, showing him things as they are, and indicating to the Saints that the mantle of the Prophet Father has fallen on the shoulders of the son, making him the successor of President John Taylor, as Brigham Young became the inspired successor of the Prophet, we will gladly follow young Joseph as our leader. But when that day comes, if it ever should come, Joseph, the son of the Prophet, will have ceased to teach false doctrine, stand at the head of a Reorganized Church, or be the recipient of the plaudits and love of the world. Amen."

PROPHETIC TRUTH.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Correspondence.

SPRINGVILLE, Utah, October 29th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair: - At Provo we held three meetings in the M. E. Church, the use of which was kindly permitted us by Mr. Lincoln, Pastor in charge. The first meeting was on Sunday afternoon, October 25th, and was quite well attended. On Monday and Tuesday evenings, there was not so large an audience present, though the attention and interest were equally good. Bro. James Goff, seventy-eight years of age, was sick when we reached the place; but being administered to on Sunday morning, he was helped to such a degree that he was able to attend the meetings; and on the day of our departure from Provo, he walked down to Bro. Gammon's to bid us "God speed."

My cousin, Mrs. Martha Harris, was presen on Tuesday evening, and was much displeased with the way I treated the main question in dispute. Some others present were pleased; or at least so stated. My text was, "God is no respecter of persons" &c. Bro. Peter Andersen had held some meetings already, and had arranged for others for Friday the 30th, and for Sunday evening November the 1st. He expects to baptize, also.

We came to Springville yesterday at noon. Found that "Uncle" William Huntington, as he is familiarly called, had been attacked by hemorrhage from the nose, some two weeks since; and yesterday evening he had a fainting spell. He sent for me, and I went at once to see him. He was pleased to see me; and though he could not talk much, owing to weakness and fear of exciting the flow of blood, I was glad that I had called. Bro. Luff and I called again this morning and found him better. We did not stay long, as my presence seemed to cause him to make exertion to talk that was not beneficial to him. I am in hopes that he will recover so that I can have a talk with him; he desires it very much.

Elder Roberts, the one who went to Tennessee and brought back the bodies of the Elders killed there two years or so ago, lectures here to-night and to-morrow night. We thought best not to attempt meeting until after that; but have arranged for Saturday night, Sunday three services and Monday night, in the City Hall. There is great curiosity in the place, and it is thought that the attendance will be large. Of that further on.

The District Court is in session at Provo, Judge Powers presiding. Four or five indictments have been found, but it is not known who they are against. Yours in bonds,

JOSEPH SMITH.

PEMBROKE, Potter Co., Dakota, October 26th, 1885.

Dear Herald:-I take this opportunity to inform your many readers of the progress of this glorious latter day work in this out of the way corner of the vineyard. Brn. Charles Sheen and Gomer Reese came up from Highmore and organized us into a branch, to be known as the Pembroke Branch, with Bro. J. Cook as Teacher, S. Lovett as Priest, and your humble servant as Elder of the branch. Bro. Sheen held forth in the afternoon service, dwelling most particularly on authority. Had fair attendance considering the short notice. The effort was well received and many have asked me when the Elders are coming again. In the evening, house was crowded. We had prayer and testimony meeting—a real spiritual feast. Eight of those I baptized last Spring were confirmed. We now number twelve. The Saints feel greatly indebted to Brn. Sheen and Reese for their effort on our behalf, having come seventy miles by team. When the last hand-shake was given, we felt sad.

When we asunder part,
It gives us inward pain;
But we shall still be joined in heart,
And hope to meet again.
Yours in gospel bonds,

W. Sparling.

Excelsion, Richland Co., Wis., October 12th, 1885.

Dear brother Blair:-Your reply was received some time ago. If you understood me to mean that I desired an appointment now, I did not so intend. I only wanted to learn what the prospects would be by the time we could dispose of our crops. Bro. A. V. Closson and I have a fine crop of tobacco, (now cured and beyond danger from shed-burn or pole-rot), which we can not market before January, besides corn, and other farm produce to dispose of. Present prospects bid fair. I have one year's provisions ahead to support my dear ones. My object in writing to you was first, to get myself in a position to give my time unreservedly to the work of the Lord; secondly, for two years past Saints in Illinois and Wisconsin have continually insisted that I should be in the field, and expressed the belief that an appointment could be had from General Conference, or from you and brother Joseph Smith. I am satisfied as it is: for I doubt not but there are those whose abilities excel mine, who can not labor extensively because of financial disability, both at home and in the church. I shall be content in doing all I can according to my circumstances and feeble ability to do. Though engaged very busily upon the farm since Spring, I have not been idle upon the Lord's day. I have alternated local Sabbath efforts with Bro. W. A. McDowell, besides holding a discussion of five Sabbaths' duration with Elder Bell, (Independent), and made other efforts at Excelsior and Eagle's Corners. A discussion was published in the Richland Rustic during the winter and spring upon the question, "Does the literal interpretation of the Bible teach that God is the author of evil?" Infidels, Independents, and Spiritualists upon the affirmative, Catholics and Protestant ministers upon the negative. The debate "waxed hot," and Elder Bell, desiring to come to closer quarters, published a challenge to discuss orally with any minister arguing the negative of the question. I accepted his proposition, and he broke down during the forenoon session of the fifth Sunday of debate, under the pressure of twenty unanswered negative proposition, and twenty-seven self-evident contradictions. Rev. Stamp, the Pastor of the M. E. Church, attended whenever his appointments would permit; besides, a number of other preachers were present, during the debate. The Infidel element disappeared at an early stage of the debate. The preachers all complimented me at the close, and by request, and the vote of the people, I remained and preached in the afternoon upon the mission of Christ. Mr. Stamp invited me to preach in his pulpit, which liberal invitation I have fulfilled, and he has since then invited me to return. Elder Keepers (Christian) invited me to occupy his pulpit any Sabbath convenient. The committee of arrangements invited me to deliver the oration at Port Andrew, this county, July 4th. I responded to the best of my ability, and was liberally compensated by the committee for the effort, besides being invited to preach the gospel in a half dozen different localities. The request to preach at Eagle's Corners was accepted; but subsequently on going there, we found the Christian Church locked, through the warning influence of the Pastor of the church; but not by the will of the people. But the big hearted, liberal people of the place had seated and lighted in good shape a large tobacco house, where we preached to a fine attentive audience. Upon our departure they said "Come again; we will see whether the will of the people will triumph, or Elder Mark's manifest bigotry." recent card from a Mr. Drew informs me that the will of the people has prevailed, that at a recent "big" meeting held at the "Corners," Marks made a motion to exclude the Mormons the privilege of the church, but it was voted down by a heavy majority; preachers and members voting in the negative. At present we have appointments at that place for the 24th and 25th inst. I have also been invited a number of times to speak at Soldiers' Reunions, in different parts of the county; but the construction of a large tobacco house, and the time necessary to harvesting our tobacco, has made it difficult to comply.

In conclusion, Bro. Blair, I would love to see you, and talk with you upon two things which trouble and perplex me more than all of the Bradens, Beadles, or Howes, who ever pronounced against Mormonism. I mean conflicting, spiritual manifestations, and the scores of inefficient ministers who throng the Church. The former strikes at the very life of the brightest witness Saints can claim—the Spirit of God. Issues are made by them, and parties confirmed in their conflicting ideas by these manifestations are as fixed in their purpose, and opinion, as they are fixed in the knowledge of the truth of the work. They make a dead-lock among Saints, which may end in disruption, spiritual decay, dismemberment and death. Such incongruities can have no higher claims to divinity than can Spiritualism. To me, spiritual gifts from God must unify and build up the Saints-a glorious temple in which Jesus dwells by his Spirit,fashioning their lives for the mansion he has gone to prepare.

As to the latter, there are many brethren who are the best of men, yet can not preach. They desire to preach the gospel, for they have been called, possibly by supposed revelation, and they feel it their duty. They are put upon trial, make effort after effort; the Saints pronounce them failures, and so does the world. What can intelligent men and women of the world think of such preachers and of the religion they represent, which claims that "No man taketh this honor upon himself except he be called of God as was Aaron." And what can even Saints think of the revelation by which they were called? Praying God's richest blessings to rest upon you in all your labors, and upon his people.

I remain in Christ your brother,

F. M. Cooper.

[IT does not necessarily follow that all who are called to be Elders should be attractive preachers. Elders are needed for many other purposes. The church has ever been warned to beware of spurious gifts, anciently and modernly.—ED.]

Hastings, Neb., October 26th, 1885.

Bro. D. Dancer: I could not do without the papers; they are all the preachers I have, now that I am away from the church; and truly they are a good one, always laden with sound doctrine and precious truths which fills the soul with gladness and love, for the work and the workers of the last days. I often go to other churches, and pick up other religious papers, but no where else do I find that spirit which characterized the Saints of old. Truly, this is a great and glorious work. I realize more and more the need of sacrifice and work going hand in hand, that its precious truths may spread until the "honest in heart" everywhere may be led to see and accept it. I know you are a man of prayer and strong faith, therefore I ask that I may be remembered by you at the "throne of Grace," that I, in my weakness, may be instrumental in doing some good in this great work, surrounded as I am by the world's people. May I live worthy the profession I make, and let the light of Christ shine, that some one with whom I associate may be led to investigate and obey. My prayer is for wisdom, as well as knowledge, that in all things I may be directed and led aright. I do not know of any Saints in this city, (and I miss them very much), but I hope the time is not far off when there will be some. I have loaned several books and the papers.

Yours in the gospel,

MARY J. CAZALY.

CONNEAUTVILLE, Pa., October 30th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair: The Herald is all the preacher or preaching we have here. We can not afford to do without it. We would be glad to have some of the Elders come this way, for the gospel of the dear Savior is precious to those that believe and understand it. You do not know what needy creatures those of us that believe in the great latter day work are. We do so much need some one to teach us. We have faith to believe we will be visited yet by those that carry the glorious news abroad to those who are famishing for the bread of life. We need something to comfort us that the world knows not of; for I am left alone in my old age. My husband died the 20th of January last, in his seventieth year. He was a firm believer in the gospel as taught by the Latter Day Saints. I am left to mourn the loss of a kind husband, and my children a loving father; but our loss is his gain. God has said ne will be a father to the fatherless, and the widow's hope. So, dear brother, I ask an interest in your prayers that I may prove faithful and be saved in the kingdom of God, where there is no more parting. I did not intend to write so long a letter when I commenced. Excuse the liberty I have taken. May the work of God prosper, is the desire of your friend and well SUSAN TYLER. wisher,

No. 205 Park Ave., Council Bluffs, Ia.,

October 28th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—On the 28th ult., I was called to Boone, Iowa, to attend to the spiritual wants of Elder Pegg, an Adventist, who had been challenging most everybody on the immortality and seventh-day questions; but he backed out. Then many friends desired a course of lectures in reply, and arrangements were made for my return on the 12th inst. On the 5th inst., in company with others I went to the Galland's Grove Reunion, where I remained four days, and you know what a feast we had—

"How sweet communion is on earth,
'With those who've realized the birth
Of water—who the Spirit's powers
Receive, in genial quick'ning showers."

In that grove were we not in a comparative wilderness? and did not "the Lord spread a table" there for us? Oh! how the manna fell all over the camp; and how our hungry souls received it! I have some of it yet. How rich, how blessed, and how lasting! O, I would God's people all hungered and thirsted after righteousness. No man craves food unless he's hungry. No man craves water unless he's thirsty. I sometimes fear we're not hungry enough, else we would eat more. God desires his children should be well fed-and they may be. Covetousness is only excusable in one sense-"covet earnestly the best gifts!" Let every soul ask God what is best for them, and then earnestly desire it, pray for it, seek for it, knock for it. I sometimes think there are too many Saints standing, waiting for something good to come. Jesus said-"Ask, and ye shall receive; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." Here then is something to do ere the blessings come! I can say-

"T've found a Friend; oh, such a Friend!
He bled, He died to save me;
And not alone the gift of life,
But His own self He gave me.
Naught that I have, my own I call;
I hold it for the giver:
My heart, my strength, my life, my all,
Are His, and His forever!

God asks for love like this—"Thou shalt love the Lord the God with all thy heart, with all thy strength, with all thy mind"—all or none.

"When I survey the wondrous cross, On which the Prince of Glory died,"

I feel to love him more and more. As a young friend wrote me recently: "One word from heaven, one glimmer of light from that higher sphere, should be sufficient for a life's resistance of the most fascinating temptations." True; but how many have received more, and have fallen by the way! The blessed word we preach, given of God from heaven by the ministry of holy angels, is exceedingly precious and should be by us retained pure and true, and we being blest of God, prove worthy of its rich promises and blessings. His truth should be fully proclaimed; and all his truth lies not in the first principles alone—and should not be so narrowly restricted. Doctrine should be taught; and the doctrine of Christ is not narrowed down to six principles: (See Titus 2: 1-10. 2 Tim. 4: 1-4. 1 Tim. 1:9, 10). And I have found in my travels those who apply the language of "sound doctrine" not being endured by the sects; that some of our people do not care to endure the sound doctrine spoken of by Paul to Titus. And we have them in the west who have "heaped to themselves, teachers, having itching ears, and they shall turn away their ears from the truth and be turned unto fables." This can not apply to the sects, but to a people who once had inspired teachers, but who now "heap up teachers to themselves." They could not turn away from that which they possessed not-but these have "turned away from the truth unto fables," or falsehoods. God's word is broad, high, and deep. The first principles are the nucleus around which gather all the divine expressions of God's will. That grand, central unit of truth, from which and toward which diverge and converge the rays of divine light, and glory, and power. They are the initiatory principles, after which a life of earnest devotion to God is to be led; a constant looking after the spiritual interests, and moral, and social, and intellectual interests of the soul. (See 1 Tim. 6:3-5; 2 Tim. 3:1-6; Titus 11:1-8; Rom. 6: 11-14; Eph. 4: 20-32.

All departments of God's word should be treated of, and "shun not to declare the whole counsel of God." His word should dwell in us richly. The saving efficacy thereof should be manifest in our lives. We should allow it to exercise its benign influence upon our souls every day, and everywhere; letting it abound in us.

We should be in close communion with God; have fellowship with Him; hear Him inly speak; give heed to the whispers of His word; follow in the way of peace and life; seeking His guidance, instruction, warning, admonition, and all that is calculated to build us up, establish, strengthen, and firmly fix us in the faith of our blessed Master.

Now I come to the 12th inst. Went to Boone; commenced lectures the same evening, delivering in all eleven. Six on "Soul-sleeping," or "The immortality of mind." The rest on the "Seventh and First Day" question. Had good audiences, attentive and appreciative. A couple of Advent ministers were present nightly. Interrupted a little when positions were pressed rather tightly! Felt blessed of God in speaking in favor of his truth. The Saints I think felt encouraged and edified. I examined the questions from various points of view.

Yours, for the gospel, J. F. McDowell.

RENICK, Mo., October 27th, 1885.

Dear Herald:-As I have been greatly blessed since I united with the church, I thought I would drop you a few lines that the Saints may know how the work is going in this part of God's vinevard. Myself and wife were baptized on Sunday, September 20th, were confirmed on the 24th. and I was called to the office of a Priest, the week following, and was ordained on Sunday, October 4th. At night I preached to a large audience in the Town Hall, and have preached in the same hall every Sunday evening since. On Sunday evening the 25th, I preached upon the subject of my reasons for leaving the Christian Church, giving Bible reasons, and I was greatly blessed. The Spirit rested upon me in power, and for just one hour I stood before a crowded house. I never had better liberty. From the congratulations that I have received since, I think the people were well satisfied with my reasons, for all of which we give glory to God, claiming nothing upon our own merits.

But lest I weary you, I will hasten to a conclusion, and say to the Saints that I have had many testimonies of the truth of the latter day work. I have had some beautiful dreams and a glorious vision came before me on the night of October 23d, between the hours of ten and two o'clock. I saw a golden stem rise up out of the ground to the height of six feet and six inches; and there was a glorious light blazing out of the top of this stem of gold; and just half way from the ground to the top a branch stem came out on each side, but they arose not to the height of the main stem. There was also a very bright light blazing forth out of each of these branches, and they were also pure gold. I thought that I took hold of the main or center stem with my right hand, and as I stood, the light was very brilliant as it shone upon my head. Bro. R. R. Jones came up and took hold of the branch of the stem at my right hand, and Bro. Vincent, one of our Elders, came and took hold of the one at my left hand. I then saw Bro. Joseph, the seer, prophet, and martyr. He walked directly to me, neither looking to the right nor to the left, and when he stood just in front of us, he raised both of his hands and placed them upon my head, and said some words "in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ." Then he turned and did likewise to Bro. Jones, and also to Bro. Vincent. Then he waved his right hand towards the heavens, and then out over the earth, with a mighty sweep, seeming to cover the whole earth. He then gently folded his arms upon his breast, and calmly walked away.

I pondered this very seriously and prayed that the meaning might be made known, of this vision or dream, I can not say which, yet I am sure I was awake when the scene came before me. I came to myself just in time to hear the clock strike two. I was very anxious to know the meaning of it, so at our testimony meeting on Sunday following, I related what had happened to me, and while I was speaking the Spirit of God filled the whole house, and rested upon all present, and the Spirit of prophecy came upon Bro. Griffiths, our presiding elder, and he spoke in great power, calling Bro. Jones and myself to the office of an Elder. Then we had something like a Pentecostal shower. I never, in all my life, witnessed such a demonstration of the power of God; for all which we give glory to God. Then, let us with the poet say:

"My hope is built on nothing less,
Than Jesus' blood and righteousness;
I dare not trust the sweetest frame;
But wholly lean on Jesus' name.
On Christ, the solid rock I stand;
All other ground is sinking sand,
All other ground is sinking sand."

Your brother in Christ, W. H. BYBEE.

DELOIT, Iowa, Nov. 2d, 1885.

Dear Herald:—It has been a long time since I wrote you, yet I love to glean from your pages the truth therein written, and learn of the progress of the work. We are well, and feeling well, both spiritually and temporally. Bro. Etzenhouser has been administering "the bread of life" here. He is an able and efficient minister, and has made some grand efforts in setting forth that which is good, noble and true, and we highly appreciate it. He held his audiences in rapt attention, and has made many and lasting impressions for good on the minds of Latter Day Saints, and the world. We had one accession to the church, and many more were almost persuaded. We have been cheered, edified, and instructed in the ways of the Lord; and we feel grateful to Bro. Etzenhouser, for we know that it was good for him to be here. We hope that by and by he will return. Yours in bonds of the everlasting covenant.

KATE TURNER.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for Contributions solicited.

IN SCHOOL.

DEAR HERALD:-In this Government there is placed within the reach of every child, if they will strive for it, the privilege of becoming acquainted with and in possessing the knowledge of this world, which if obtained, and rightly used, will secure them this world's highest attainments, emoluments and rewards.

The youngest scholar, as well as those farther advanced, has it in his power, by steady perseverence and industry to become a useful member of society. Such may attain to the position of Chief Executive of the Nation; or a Legislator who makes the laws to govern the same; or a Governor of a State; or may fill the thousand and one offices of trust that exist in the Government. All may not attain to all or either of these positions, but they are free for all; all are eligible to these distinctions. But in every government there must be those who are governed, as well as those who govern; hence all do not attain to the position of Governors in this brief life, yet as the rulers are chosen from among the people to fill offices according to their capabilities to act in the same, all may, if they will, educate themselves up to the standard of those capabilities, and have a chance to be chosen to fill said offices.

To secure this knowledge, schools are established where children are instructed in all the different branches of the same, from initiation to valediction. Competent teachers are chosen to impart this knowledge,—one Principal, and others under his direction. Advancement to this desired goal will depend on many circumstances. It will require on the part of the student, strict attention, close application, perseverance, a due regard for the teacher's authority, and confidence in his ability to impart the required instruction. If a person goes to school for the purpose of fun, as the writer has heard some remark, or for any other purpose foreign to the desire to acquire knowledge, he may gain his object, but at what expense does he do it! At the expense of that which would fit him to associate with those who have the power to mould and regulate the affairs of government, instead of being "a hewer of wood, and a drawer of water," to those fellow-students who paid attention to their studies and acquired useful knowledge.

We have thus noted in a brief manner, some of the privileges and emoluments that may be obtained under a free government, especially the one in which we dwell-to the writer's mind the best form of government extant. It represents, to a certain extent, the kingdom of heavenall may come, of every nation, and be adopted as citizens, enjoying the privileges Under its and blessings of the same. broad banner, all, of every nation, may find protection from tyranny and oppression. It is the asylum of the oppressed and down-trodden of every clime.

The kingdom of God, established on the earth, may be compared to a school, or college, where the elementary, as well as some of the higher branches of spiritual knowledge are taught.

Every child born into the world can enter this great school, when they arrive to the years of accountability-none are exempt. They can if they strive for it, obtain a knowledge, the practical use of which will secure to them eternal life, which God has said is "the greatest gift" He can bestow on mankind.

Men and women, as also children arrived at the aforementioned stage, are eligible of every class, of every clime, black or white, bond or free, to enter this great school and strive for the prize. "All that will come, may come and partake of the waters of life freely."

To enable students to secure this desired knowledge, teachers are appointed, the greatest of which is the Holy Ghost: "For He shall teach you all things," etc. But in the economy of God He hath chosen that this teacher should not dwell in bodily form on earth; but that He should have the power to choose as many teachers as he saw would be necessary to carry on the work of instruction in this institution, and separate them to what office he saw fit. "And the Holy Ghost said, separate me Barnabus and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." "Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with the laying on of the hands of the presbytery." "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." We perceive then that from time immemorial, the Holy Ghost has done his own choosing and separating men as he saw fit, to fill the various offices in this great school. "And God hath set in the church, first Apostles, secondarily Prophets, thirdly Teachers, after that miracles, helps, governments, diversities of tongues.

God separated them, through the agency of the Holy Ghost! all these officers, gifts, and helps, God has thought necessary to carry on this divine institution of learning. The institution, fully organized according to the will of God, advertises to the world, and agents are sent out with power to offer unto all who have arrived at the age to understand, the terms of matriculation, viz., faith in God and in His Son Jesus Christ; repentance, or turning away from all sin, from the service of Satan unto that of God; baptism in water for the remission of sins, laying on of hands by the teachers of the institution, for the reception of the Holy Ghost. These agents are authorized to say to all who graduate in this school, that they will receive the reward of eternal life, which embraces the life with God and Christ, and will partake of all the felicity consequent thereto,

The necessity of entering the kingdom, or becoming identified with the people of God in an organized form known as the church or kingdom of God, in order to obtain salvation, is made apparent by the Savior's sayings: "To you it is given to know the myteries of the kingdom of God, but to them that are without it is not given." "And I will pray the Father, and He shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever, even the Spirit of truth, whom the world can not receive." "And this is life eternal, that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom Thou hath sent." Paul says, I Cor. 12—"No man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost." Jesus says, John 8: 19.—"If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also."

In the foregoing language of the Savior and the Apostle, it is plainly taught: (1.) To obtain eternal life, a knowledge of the Father and the Son is requisite. (2.) To gain that knowledge it is necessary to obtain the Holy Ghost. (3.) To obtain possession of that Spirit of truth, a man must come out from the world, (for the world can not receive it), and be adopted into the family, kingdom, or church of God; and then he is entitled to a knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God, which he would not be entitled to if he stayed out of that kingdom.

This seems to be a refutation of that oft repeated assertion,—"It mattereth not what church I belong to, if I am sincere; or whether I belong to any church, so that I live a good moral life."

After entering the kingdom of God, all are alike-babes in the work-and "have received the kingdom as little children, being born again, and as such have to be fed (taught) with such food as is adapted to their powers and capacity to understand. All have to learn the a'phabet, which is faith and obedience. As in the secular alphabet, the letters separate and alone, convey no knowledge; but when put together they form words replete with wisdom and understanding; so also in the spiritual alphabet; when the characters are used alone, either faith or works are of none effect in acquiring the knowledge and blessings of God; for, says the Apostle, "Faith without works is dead, being alone."

The standard books used in this institution are the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the book of revelations of God to his people in these days. Says the Savior, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of God." The apostle says, "The just shall live by faith;" and putting the two sayings together, we perceive that the children of God, who have become members of this institution, are to live by faith in every word of God. The words of God have been given, as recorded in these books, by commandment, admonition, and instruction, so that we may know how to act in this life of probation, and overcome that which is obnoxious in his sight, and grow in every grace, thrive in every virtue, increase in the knowledge and wisdom of God, be made perfect men and women in Christ Jesus, becoming Godlike, and fitted to dwell eternally in his

From incipiency to perfection there is a vast distance; but he who has entered into the service of God with a determination to succeed, keeping his eye steadily fixed on the prize at the end of the race, can by God's help span that distance.

In the secular alphabet are twenty-six letters, with the use of which we can transact any business in this life, no matter of what character. But we can not think one solitary thought; solve any problem in mathematics; nor descant upon the beauties of heaven or earth without them. Audiences may be captivated and carried away by eloquent discourses, either on politics, religion, or any other subject; and no matter how many changes are rung on the letters in the words used by the speaker to convey his thoughts, all is the result of the combination of those twenty-six letters.

Mathematical problems may be executed with figures, extending ad infinitum, and still the calculations depend on the use of those letters, although figures are used to represent them, yet those figures are the result of their combination, for the figures can not be pronounced without their aid, as one, two, three, &c. So in the spiritual alphabet; every blessing obtained, or that shall be; every promise realized, or in abeyance; in short, every thing enjoyable in this world, or in the next, has been, and will be, the result of the combination of faith and obedience.

Our first parents, according to the record, lost their exalted position in Eden through doubt and disobedience; although Paul says, that Adam was not deceived, but the woman was.

Eve believed the subtile enemy who taught contrary to the commands and sayings of God, consequently doubted what God had said, and reached forth her hand in disobedience, partook, and offered to Adam, who partook also of that forbidden; the consequence was they were driven out from God's presence, disinherited, became aliens, outcasts and wanderers upon the face of the earth. Their posterity being on the same level, inherited all the effects consequent upon their parent's fall.

God in his infinite mercy hath devised means by which mankind may regain their relationship with Him, becoming sons and daughters by adoption.

We have presented the means in the terms of matriculation in this great school. Faith in and obedience to those means are required. Doubt and disobedience made men aliens; faith and obedience make men sons.

But having been adopted, the foundation only has been laid; we have to build thereon; or, as the Apostle says, "go on unto perfection." And in this work of perfecting ourselves we progress step by step in proportion to our faith and obedience. One of the ancient teachers in this school commenced wisely we think, with those under his charge, who had just entered school. He commenced with the elementary principles—a sum in simple addition, viz; "add to your faith virtue, to virtue knowledge, to knowledge temperance," &c., and then says,—"If these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of God."

It is this spiritual knowledge, that we as students in this spiritual school are striving to obtain, until "we know as we are known." As no problem in mathematics can be wrought without the simple rule of addition being used in some of its parts; so we can not solve the great problem of life without the use of Peter's rule of addition being applied to our every act when in pursuit of eternal life. And as no example in arithmetic can be solved correctly and correct answers obtained without observing the rules laid down in the books governing the working of such examples, so we can not in our spiritual life obtain the answer of a good conscience, in working those spiritual examples contained in the standard books, without we observe strictly the rules laid down in those books. If a student in a secular school when working an example shall add, multiply, or divide incorrectly, he will have to go over his work and search very diligently to see where the deviation from the rule occurred, and correct the error before the correct answer is obtained. If a student in the spiritual school should deviate in the least from any of the rules laid down in the books governing his working those spiritual examples, he can not obtain the required answer. As, for instance; one of the rules laid down for our government is,-"Thou shalt not speak evil of thy brother, nor do him any harm."

Now we may attend all the means of grace, and be anxiously and earnestly engaged in the service of God, be working part of the example nearly correctly, but this deviation from the rule prevents the required answer of a good conscience before God. This may serve to illustrate the rest of the examples to be wrought. It is folly to think to advance in the acquirement of either natural or spiritual knowledge, and leave any previous examples unanswered. It is laying the foundation for trifling with all the rules, if we neglect or trifle with one, and hence the object in entering school will not be obtained. And though we may continue to have a name and place in the school, when the examination day comes we will fall in disgrace, and it may be said of us,—"How came you in here not having on the wedding garment? bind him hand and foot and cast him into To graduate in this outer darkness." school, to gain the knowledge requisite to eternal life, will depend upon our diligence in learning what the word of God is, then our faith in and close application of that word, persevering to the end in its observation, then will be applied to us, by the great Judge at the examination day, "Well done good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." May God grant that this may be said to you and I, dear reader, is the prayer of

E. STAFFORD.

LAMONI, June 21st, 1885.

THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN;

Or, "THE STONE CUT WITHOUT HANDS."
No. 111.

BY ELDER T. W. SMITH.

But we promised to examine the predictions concerning the falling away of the former day church of Christ. The Devil might not be able to push her off the rock where Christ had placed her; but if she chose to slide off herself, to eat of some forbidden fruit, out of curiosity to know what "knowledge of good and evil" meant, she could do that, and admitting the poison of evil into her system, she would, and did find herself sickened unto death. Not content with the "knowledge of the truth" she fain would learn the "traditions of men' and turned her ears "from the truth," and turned them "unto fables." Not content with communion with Christ, she desired the embraces of the "kings of the earth." Her ornaments, whose brilliancy and worth depended on the impress of the Holy Spirit soon faded, and decayed when the Spirit forsook the corrupted tabernacle of her flesh. Instead of being satisfied with the names and offices that Christ gave her members, she fain would change both, and call them Cardinals, Nuncios, Archbishops, Prelates, Deans, Curates, Rectors, Class Leaders, Stewards, &c., names unknown to the early church; but above all is the rejection of the name of Jesus Christ, and the casting away of her wedding garments. and her adulteries with men and devils. Now was this course of sin and shame revealed by Prophets and Apostles? Did Christ foresee her downfall? Hear what Isaiah says:

"The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant."—Isa. 24: 5.

Future events as they appear in vision before the prophets, are frequently described as if already occurred, or were occurring. Christ said:

"And then shall many be offended, and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another. And many false prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many. And because iniquity shall abound the love of many shall wax cold."—Matt. 24: 10-12.

24: 10-12.
"Nevertheless, when the Son of Man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth."—Luke 18: 8.

Paul said:

"For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them."—Acts 20: 29, 30.

Again:

"Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition. . . For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth [or hindereth] will let, [or hinder], until he be taken out of the way."—2 Thess. 3, 7.

Again:

"And the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times, some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils."—I Tim. 4: I.

"This know also, that in the last days perilous."

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof; from such turn away. . . . But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived."—2 Tim.

3: 1-5, 13.

"For the time will come when they will not after their own lusts, endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts, shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables."--

2 Tim. 4: 3, 4. "They profess that they know God, but in works they deny Him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate."—Titus 1: 16.

"They went out from us, but they were not of us, for if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us; but they went out, that they might be made manifest that they were not all of us."—I John 2: 19.

"But there was talse prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of. And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandize of you; whose judgment now of a long time lingereth not, and their damnation slumbereth not."—2 Peter 2: 1-3.

Please read the words of Christ to the Seven Churches of Asia, and it will be seen that the "mystery of iniquity," was already at work before the year 90 of the Christian era, and the spirit of apostacy was largely developed, in the lifetime of some of the apostles, and after their death, the evil steadily grew, until as Wesley writes, the "Christians had turned heathens " and had "lost the Spirit," and had again, but a "dead form" left.

Now with the word of prophecy before us, and its fulfilment vouched for by credible historians, it is evident that the kingdom of heaven, was not in a position to smite anything by the time the toes were developed—or the time understood by many writers, namely, about the year A. D. 400, so we dismiss that idea as altogether untenable. But as the division of the Roman kingdom in its religious character, into different forms of religion has occurred since the so-called Reformation under Luther, it is evident that the restoration of the kingdom of heaven must be subsequent to that time, and what could be more fitting than that God should reestablish his own church himself after men had tried to reform the Church of Rome for several hundred years, with the only authority to do that work, received from her hands, which she very naturally and properly withdrew from them, when they forsook her communion and fellowship. For if she had the authority to ordain a ministry, she had equal authority to declare that ordination, for cause, to be null and void. If she was the church of Christ, her priesthood had power to bind on earth, what God would acknowledge to the extent of binding in heaven, also of loosing on earth, what would be loosed in heaven. And whosoever sins they remitted through the application of the ordinances of the gospel, would be remitted in or by the authorities in heaven. Now in the exercise of this power (if she possessed it) the Church of | the Savior. The fact remaining that

Rome could declare Luther's ordination as a minister, and his membership in the church null and void, and the same would be true of all dissenters, and deserters from her faith and ranks, and if she possessed this power, and exercised it, what then? Simply that Luther, and others, were entirely without authority to officiate in any of the ordinances of the gospel, and of course could not organize the Church of Christ. But suppose that he did have authority, and organized the Church of Christ anew, in all its perfection, why then has Calvin, Wesley, Knox, Campbell and others, been tinkering at her ever since? If not fully and scripturally, or rather evangelically, organized by Luther, what members of her body, or what article of clothing, or jewel, or ornament, did she lack that these creators have added to her? But if authorized of God, as the former "master builders" Paul, Peter, John, James and others were, would Luther or any of these modern Jack of all trades have left anything unarranged properly belonging to the bride, the Lamb's wife? But were they divinely commissioned to reform the church? They do not claim it, and of course we are not required to concede or dispute the point. But let us look at this idea of Reformation. What was wrong with the Church of Rome to which Luther belonged? Did he discover and proclaim that she was not acknowledged of Christ as his bride, or that she was not the church of Christ? or did he merely seek to remedy some evils that he had discovered, some disease in her system, or some disarrangement or her apparel, or that she had lost some of her ornaments? His defenders say that he at first only intended to reform abuses in her mode of life, to redeem her character from some stains that had fallen upon it; but why or on what ground we ask did he essay this task? This only, that he considered her the true church of Christ. He finally left her, and she of course excommunicated him. But why did he forsake her if she was the church of Christ, even if somewhat under a cloud, and not altogether untainted? He could not reform her if he left her. But if she was the church of Christ why should he after establish another? Has Christ two or more brides? But what does the whole Protestant world affirm concerning the Church of Rome, this, that she is "Mystery Babylon, the mother of harlots," &c. They call the Papacy—the "Man of Sin," and the "Son of Perdition." Well, if this be so, then she is not in any sense the Church of Christ, and if not now she was not when Luther and his associate reformers belonged to her communion. Well then, what does the Reformation mean with this fact before us? A reformation of the Church of Christ, but why re-form what was not disorganized, or overthrown, or destroyed? If the Church of Christ needed re-forming-then our argument must be accepted; namely that there had been an apostacy, a falling away; a disorganization of the church because of transgression, and departure from the faith and order of the church as established by Protestants declare that the Church of Rome is a fallen, apostate, and rejected church, and what she is now was true of her, in and long before the days of Luther and other so-called Reformers, so that if a reformation was demanded at all, (the Church of Rome being the organized body claiming to be the Church of Christ), it was a complete re-formation or reorganization of the church, to be built on the "rock" that Christ designe i, and on which the original church was built,—and it must be of the same form, made of the same materials, and in all things an exact counterpart of the church in the days of Paul. But instead of finding such an organization as the result of their effort at re-formation -the "rock" itself on which the church must stand—and without which it can not possibly stand, even the "knowledge of the truth" obtained by revelation through the Holy Ghost, is as a principle rejected by all these "Reformers" and their followers. Further, the very first, the chief, the most important members of the "body"the "Apostles and Prophets" are declared to be unnecessary, and of course they do not have any in their Reformed (?) Church. Teachers, the third, in God's order—according to Paul (1 Cor. 12: 28) are unknown. (Of course they call their Pastors, Elders, Class Leaders, &c.—all Teachers, but they are not gifts of the Spirit as in Paul's day). Gifts of miracles, healings, helps, governments, and diversities of tongues-form no part of their experience, order, and organization. The robe of righteousness—the gospel in its fulness is not preached, nor believed. Baptism by immersion for remission of sins, the order of laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Spirit, are not received as being institutions in the church, and without which entrance into the church can not be obtained; for Jesus said, "Except a man be born of water, and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God."—John 3:5. Those who believe in baptism by immersion for remission of sins, do not accept the doctrine of the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Those who believe the latter, do not believe or practice the former. Why, says one, we believe in being baptized of the Holy Ghost, or of being born of the Holy Spirit; but we ask when do you believe in being baptized of the Spirit, before or after the application of water, called by you, erroneously, baptism? O, before baptism by water, of course. Well, then you reverse the order of Christ, who under the figure of a birth, very properly presents the receiving of the Spirit of life after emerging out of the womb of the water, not as the modern idea of the birth of water and Spirit would necessitate, namely, the child receiving the breath of life before it is born into the world, and without which it could not be born—as they argue the necessity of the baptism of the Spirit to precede the water baptism.

And again Paul teaches that we are baptized into Christ, and Christ teaches that he is the "door" into the sheepfold, and so we enter into the door (Christ) by the baptism of water administered by the servants of God, and such, Christ baptizes (not man) with the Holy Ghost, and what follows? Why this: Paul says, "By one Spirit are we all baptized into one body"-–the church. But if we are baptized by the Holy Ghost before we are baptized by water into Christ, why of course we get into the sheepfold or church by another way than by the "door," and are therefore not sheep; and if we then are baptized into Christ, he being the door, and we being already inside, if we pass through the door, we must go outside of the church, and therefore by human disarrangement of God's order they would have people get into the church in another way than the door, and then passing through the door by baptism of water, they get them out of the church. But as we are baptized into the "body" or church, by the Spirit, it is after we have passed into the door (Christ) by baptism of water.

Christ, in John 3: 5; John the Baptist, in Matt. 3: 11; Peter, in Acts 2: 38; Paul, in Titus 3:5; teach the baptism of water to be followed by the baptism of the Spirit, or in substance, that the child receives the spirit, or breath of life, after it leaves its mother's womb. But in other matters that we have not space to enumerate, the co-called Reformers have utterly failed to fashion their work after the church that Jesus built. Well, the reason is obvious, Christ was inspired of God; He did what His Father sent him to do, and he that is sent of God, speaks the words, and does the works of God; but these "Reformers" do not claim to have been sent of God to rebuild his church, and it is fortunate that they do not claim it, for they have sadly failed to do a work of that kind; they have not made anything that resembles that church, any more than a cob-house resembles the capitol building at Washington. The church they undertook to amend, at the first presents a much better imitation than any they have yet made. But what else could be expected, for our text says that "in the days of these kings will the God of heaven set up a kingdom; and as these Reformers say that God has not spoken—for the past eighteen centuries, either by the mouth of his Son, or by angels, or Prophets, or by Apostles, or by vision, or by dream, or by Urim and Thummim, he therefore has not called or commissioned any one to do anything, especially has he not authorized them to re-form the church of Christ. But as the whole Protestant world agrees that there was necessity for a reconstruction of the kingdom of heaven, and as neither Luther, nor Calvin, Wesley, nor Campbell, were commissioned from on high to do the work, how shall it be done, for the "God of heaven" is to do it?

John the Revelator evidently comprehended the plan of heaven, for he said:

"And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth; and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people."—Rev. 14:6.

Now let it be borne in mind that when John wrote this, the gospel had been on earth for fully sixty years, and was taught by John the Baptist, by the Savior, and by the Apostles, including John himself, and had been many years before the time that John wrote, preached in all the world. (See Paul to the Colossians, 1:23). It is evident, therefore, from this fact, and from the connection that the verse above stands in, that it is an event to take place after John's day, or in the latter times. The event is to occur in close proximity to the downfall of Babylon, and when the hour of God's judgment had come, and when the harvest of the earth had come, and Jesus says the harvest is the end of the world. (Matt. 13:33-43).

THE BOOK OF MORMON, on the resurrection, immortality,

AND SECOND DEATH.

"O now great the goodness of our God, who prepareth a way for our escape from the grasp of this awful monster; yea that monster, death and hell, which I call the death of the body, and also the death of the spirit. And because of the way of deliverance of our God, the Holy One of Israel, this death of which I have spoken, which is the temporal, shall deliver up its dead; which death is the grave. And this death of which I have spoken, which is the spiritual death, shall deliver up its dead, which spiritual death is hell; wherefore death and hell must deliver up their dead, and hell must deliver up its captive spirits, and the grave must deliver up its captive bodies, and the bodies and the spirits of men will be restored one to the other; and it is by the power of the resurrection of the Holy One of Israel."

"O how great the plan of our God! For on the other hand, the paradise of God must deliver up the spirits of the righteous, and the grave deliver up the body of the righteous; and the spirit and the body is restored to itself again, and all men become incorruptible, and immortal, and they are living souls, having a perfect knowledge like unto us in the flesh; save it be that our knowledge shall be perfect; wherefore, we shall have a perfect knowledge of all our guilt, and our uncleanness, and our nakedness; and the righteous shall have a perfect knowledge of their enjoyment, and their righteousness, being clothed with purity, yea, even with the robe of righteousness,—2 Nephi 6:4, 5.

righteousness.—2 Nephi 6:4, 5.

Here Nephi declares that all men become incorruptible and immortal, and they are living souls. All men includes all, both the righteous and the wicked. And if incorruptible and immortal, they are deathless; the spirit and body can never again be separated, for they are living souls. Let us see what Amulek and Alma say concerning it.

"Now, there is a death which is called a temporal death; and the death of Christ shall loose the bands of this temporal death, that all shall be raised from this temporal death; the spirit and the body shall be reunited again in its perfect form; both limb and joint shall be restored to its proper frame, even as we now are at this time; and we shall be brought to stand before God, knowing even as we know now, and have a bright recollection of all our guilt. Now this restoration shall come to all, both old and young, both bond and free, both male and female, both the wicked and the righteous; and even there shall not so much as a hair of their heads be lost; but all things shall be restored to its perfect frame, as it is now, or in the body, and shall be brought and be arraigned before the bar of Christ the Son, and God the Father, and the Holy Spirit, which is one eternal God, to be judged according to their works, whether they be good or whether they be evil."—Alma 8:10, near end of verse.

"Now, behold, I have spoken unto you concerning the death of the mortal body, and also concerning the resurrection of the mortal body. I say unto you that this mortal is raised to an immortal body; that is from death; even from the first death unto life, that they can die no more; their spirits uniting with their bodies, never to be divided thus the whole becoming spiritual and immortal, that they can no more see corruption."—11th v.

Alma says in 9:2, that Amulek had spoken plainly concerning death, and being raised from this mortality to a state of immortality and being brought before the bar of God to be judged according to our works. Alma speaks of the wicked, of the justice of the judgments of God, and of the second death, which is a spiritual death. "Yea, he shall die as to things pertaining unto righteousness." He tells of the terribleness of this spiritual death, and concludes thus: "Then I say unto you, they shall be as though there had been no redemption made, for they can not be redeemed according to God's justice; and they can not die, seeing there is no more corruption." On 314th page, Alma declares that the soul can never die; and Nephi says that in the resurrection they are living souls. Section 18 and verse 11 of Book of Covenants makes this subject very plain: "Wherefore it came to pass that the devil tempted Adam, and he partook the forbidden fruit and transgressed the commandment, wherein he became subject to the will of the devil, because he vielded unto temptation; wherefore, I, the Lord God caused that he should be cast out from the garden of Eden, from my presence, because of his transgression, wherein he became spiritually dead, which is the first death, even that same death, which is the last death, which is spiritual, which shall be pronounced upon the wicked when I shall say, Depart ye cursed.'

Let none put off the day of repentance and obedience; for now is the accepted time; now is the day of salvation; soon the day of probation will be past, and the door be closed.

B. N. WEBSTER.

Maj. Powell, Chief of the United States Geological Survey, has just returned from his first inspection of the cliff dwellings near Espanola. He reverses the opinion of other scientists, and concludes these caves were used by the Santa Clara Indians at a much more recent period than is generally supposed as a means of refuge from the annual raids of the Navajos and Apaches. The last time they were occupied was about 200 years ago, according to Santa Clara traditions.

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

Conserence Minutes.

ALABAMA DISTRICT.

This conference was held at Pleasant Hill Branch, Butler county, Alabama, 17th and 18th October, 1885. A. J. Odom, president; G. T. Chute, clerk. Branch Reports.—St. Joseph 24; 1 baptized; Perry Booker, president. New Hope 15; J. M. Patrick, president; A. M. Vickery, clerk. Lone Star (reorganized) 26; M. Harp, president; W. R. McKinley, clerk. Elders W. J. Booker, J. G. Vickery (baptized 1), G. R. Scogin (baptized 1), G. T. Chute (baptized 2), A. J. Odom; Priests J. M. Patrick, W. Allen, T. Minion; and Teachers Anderson, Vickery and W. S. McPhearson, reported. Bishop's Agent had $16 on hand. J. G. Vickery was sustained as Bishop's Agent, A. J. Odom as president of this district. George Montague, in charge of South-Eastern Mission, was sustained. A committee was appointed to draw up a petition to General Conference, asking that a missionary, resident here, be appointed to labor in this part of South-Eastern Mission. Preaching in the evening by W. J. Booker. Committee reported: -That whereas there is a great and growing interest in the great latter day work in this part of the South-Eastern Mission, the demands of the work here require that some one or more be constantly engaged in the ministry. We are not able to support an Elder's family by our free-will offerings without the aid of the Bishop, or his agent. We believe, however, that ample means will be paid into the Bishop's Agents hands here, as tithing and free-will offerings, to support an Elder's family if an Elder is appointed by General Conference to labor in this part of the mission. We further petition that Elder G. T. Chute be appointed to labor in the mission, under the direction of and in harmony with whomsoever your honorable body shall place in charge. We are satisfied with the present incumbant, Bro. George Montague, and ask that he be continued. Elder G. T. Chute is well acquainted all over this country, and has the interest of the work at heart. He has the love and esteem of the church here, and the confidence and respect of those not of the church. Preaching on Sunday morning by G. T. Chute; one came forward for baptism. Preaching in the afternoon by G. R. Scogin. Saints' fellowship meeting at night. Ajourned to meet at Butler Branch, on Saturday before the third Sunday in January, 1886.

SPRING RIVER.

Conference of the above district convened at the Columbus Branch, Kansas, September 18th-20th, 1885. E. A. Davis, president; W. Peek, clerk. Columbus 41 members, Pleasant View 94, Center Creek 21, Keighley 18 and Mound Valley 45. Official reports.—J. T. Davies, W. S. Taylor, W. Westerbilt, C. Ryan, E. A. Davies (baptized 2), J. M. Richards, W. Peek, E. E. Wheeler, Hinkles, Frances; Priest W. Lee; Teachers R. Bird, O. P. Sutherland, E. Lewellen, W. Martin; and Deacon Barmore reported. J. T. Davis was sustained as missionary in the district, E. A. Davis as president, and W. Peek as clerk. J. T. Davis and

J. M. Richards to examine the Bishop's Agent's books next conference. Preaching by J. M. Richards, Ĥinkles, E. A. Davis and George Hicklin, assisted by E. E. Wheeler. Prayer and sacrament meeting in the afternoon; three children were blessed. Three baptisms. Adjourned to meet at the Pleasant View Branch, December 18th, 1885.

TEXAS CENTRAL.

The above district conference convened with the Elmwood Branch, Texas, the 17th and 18th of October, 1885. Bro. H. C. Smith was called to the chair. Elias Land, secretary. Branch Reports.—Elmwood 54; 18 added by baptism, 1 by certificate of baptism, 2 ordinations. Texas Central 29; i added since last report. Elders' reports: H. L. Thompson, Elias Land, I. N. Roberts (baptized 10), H. C. Smith (baptized about 14), W. G. Allen; Priests E. D. Thompson, S. R. Hays; Teachers C. A. Norwood, J. L. Dotson; and Deacon S. W. Simmons. Bishop's Agent's report: on hand last report $11.19, received $14. 80; paid out $26.28; due agent 29 cents. The General Church authorities were sustained. H. L. Thompson was sustained as the president of the district, and E. Land as secretary. H. C. Smith was sustained as Bishop's Agent for the next three months. Preaching in the evening by H. L. Thompson, assisted by S. W. Simmons. Sunday morning prayer meeting in charge of Elder Heman C. Smith, preaching in the forenoon by Bro. I. N. Roberts, assisted by E. D. Thompson. Sacrament and prayer meeting in charge of H. C. Smith. The evening preaching was by Elder Heman C. Smith, assisted by Bro. C. A. Norwood. Adjourned to meet with the Texas Central Branch, 16th and 17th January, Miscellaneous.

BORN.

HARRINGTON.—At Armstrong, Kansas, September 4th, 1885, to Bro. George E. and Sr. Mary E. Harrington, a son; named George Leonard. Blessed by Elder Edgar Harrington.

Jamison.—At Angus, Iowa, July 30th, 1885, to George M. and R. J. Jamison, a daughter; named Ursula Pearl.

MARRIED.

THE following marriage notice should have appeared last spring, and the parties interested will please pardon any seeming neglect.

ALLEN—WELD.—At the home of the bride's parents, Mission, LaSalle county, Illinois, March 29th, 1885, Bro. Edwin S. Allen of Chicago, to Sr. Phoebe Ann Weld, of Mission. Elder Thos. Hougas officiating.

May wisdom guide both groom and bride, To do each earthly duty; And gospel love drawn from above, Adorn their lives with beauty. DIED.

James.—Near Creston, Iowa, October 15th, 1885, of consumption, Sr. Ada F. James, aged 22 years and 9 months. She was a daughter of Bro. and Sr. Albert Bullard, embraced the gospel at the age of fifteen years, and remained firm in the faith until death. She realized from the first of her sickness that she had not long to live, but was resigned to the will of God. She leaves a husband, father, mother, four sisters and one brother, to mourn her death; but not as those without hope, for if we live faithful, we have the glorious hope of meeting again. Funeral services by the Congregational minister of Creston, to a large audience of relatives and friends.

Myers.—At Philadelphia, Penn., Septemb 2 29th, 1885, Sr. Clara Myers, aged 27 years. Funeral sermon by Elder Hiram Robinson.

Robison.—Little Johny and Bessy Robison, of membraneous croup, some two weeks apart. Johny passed quietly away on the 6th of October, and little Bessy followed him on the 22d. The baby was born June 28th, 1884; Bessy was born January 18th, 1880. This was a severe blow on Bro. and Sr. Robison. Bro. Batt preached baby's funeral discourse; and Rev. William Gibson, of the M. E. Church, preached Bessy's.

Oh! cruel grave, to hide those sweet babes away, But as Bessy said, "I will not long there stay;" May God's Spirit heal the parents' broken hearts, And help them to meet where they will never part.

COBB.—Charles Elijah Cobb, born November 18th, 1830, in the town of Gerry, Chatauqua Co., New York; baptized in April, 1864, at Preparation, Harrison county, Iowa; was ordained an Elder at Council Bluffs, Iowa; was president of the Little Sioux Branch of the Reorganized Church at the time of his death. He departed this life after two weeks' illness, at his own home in Little Sioux, Harrison county, Iowa, on Sunday morning, October 25th, 1885. The disease was called by the doctors, functional derangement of the liver. Brother Cobb was a tender, faithful, and loving husband and father, a firm believer in the gospel of Christ, an earnest advocate for the same, a patriotic citizen, a brother indeed, and to the needy an ever willing friend. His hand was never closed against the honest poor. No weary pilgrim of the gospel ever sought his shelter in vain, nor went empty away from his hospitable home. Not alone the "cup of cold water," but the best his means afforded was cheerfully given. He was loved by all his neighbors and acquaintances. His noble qualities made him friends on every hand, and those who knew him best loved him most. His death is a misfortune to the community and to the church, and an irreparable loss to his patient, faithful wife and loving children. His sterling worth was testified to by the presence of a vast audience of weeping mourners at his funeral, while many returned sadly home for lack of room in the church, the drenching rain making it impracticable for them to listen outside. He leaves behind him a true and faithful wife, one married daughter-Sr. Lois Silsby-and four younger daughters, all members of the household of faith. They are blessed with the comforting hope of a blissful reunion at the resurrection of the just. Funeral took place on the 27th inst. at Little Sioux, Elder P. Cadwell conducted the services. The sermon was delivered by Elder C. Derry from the words, "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."-Job 1: 21. C. DERRY.

NOTICES.

To whom it may Concern: By resolution of the Independence District Conference, I am requested to remove the silence placed upon Bro. C. StClair, about one year ago. As I have known but little of the conduct of Elder StClair since the silence was imposed, and as the district is supposed to have good and sufficient cause for the passage of said resolution, I do hereby comply with the request of the district, and for the present leave the responsibility with those who assume to have received sufficient evidence of the brother's fitness to represent the cause of Christ.

J. R. LAMBERT, Missionary. LAMONI, IOWS, Nov. 1st, 1885.

Omaha, Nebraska, September 29th, 1885. To the Saints of the Northern Nebraska District. We, the undersigned, hereby give notice that we intend to present a petition to the next conference to be held at Omaha, on the 18th day of December, 1885, asking said conference to repeal the laws of representation. Signed: O. H. Brown, Jane Maning, Nelie McKnight, Annie Broun, Hestor I. Broun, Peter I. Broun, Emma M. Smith, Rosie Huston, Suanna Angenstein, John Angenstein, Joseph Gilbert, John Avondet.

The conference of the Fremont District will convene at Shenandoah, Iowa, November 21st and 22d. Elder Charles Derry will be with us. Let all attend who can make it convenient.

HENRY KEMP, Dist. Pres.

To the Saints of the Kent and Elgin District: I was authorized by the last conference to procure enough means by subscription to pay off the indebtedness on the Lindsley meeting-house. I have $14.75 signed, and $12.75 paid in. The amount we required was $22.30; and this leaves $7.55 yet unprovided for. All intending to help, please forward the aid to me as soon as the 15th of November, as the note falls due on the 19th.

R. COBURN, Dist. Sec'y. BLENHEIM, Ont., 29th Oct.

The Sisters' Union Mite Society of Lamoni, Iowa, well serve a dinner on Thanksgiving day for twenty-five cents per person, and will also have for sale, on that day, quilts, tidies, mitts, &c. Place to be announced hereafter.

M. A. WHITE, Sec.

FARM FORRENT.

Eighty acres, 11/2 miles from Lamoni; 53 acres of plow land, the balance in meadow and pasture. Good new house of six large rooms and four closets; also a small house. Stable for two teams, large Crib, two Wells. To be rented for one or more years, cheap for cash, to a good, responsible party. Possession given 1st of March. MRS. W. H. CURWEN, Box, 94, Lamoni, Iowa.

FARM FOR SALE.

I have Sixty Acres of Land for sale: 37 acres in Grass, 17 acres in new Timber Land, about 3 acres of Standing Timber, and two acres of Orchard; a good Spring Well on the place, a House, Barn, and Granary.

Price: Six Hundred Dollars, Cash Down. The land is situated north of Jeffersonville, Wayne Co., Illinois. Apply to

MRS. F. P. MOLLOY, Cleveland, Iowa.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L. F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville, Mo., and have always found it fair, square and honest in all its transactions:

T. T. Hinderks,
G. W. Wilcox,
S. L. Blake,
W. N. Boothe,
The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men whose recommendation are worth something.

Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands.

COME AND SEE OUR PAPER,

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS. Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Mansen & Walker's Drug Store.

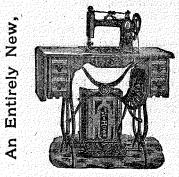

H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

EASY - RUNNING - SEWING - MACHINE.

--IT HAS-

The Most Room under the Arm. The Best Self-Setting Needle.
The Largest Bobbin.
The Easiest Shuttle to Thread.
The Most Perfect Tension.

The Most Reliable Feed.

The Most Perfect Take-Up. The Best Bobbin Winder. IT IS

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME.

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

Agents Wanted by Robert Johns (Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL,

AND PASTELL. Also, manufacturer of

BED SPRINGS.

THESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or swish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Catalogue, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fail for those who such word as fail for those who will work diligently.

IF YOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue, anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handlings Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 10 hs when packed) for only 97c.. IRON-HEATER included for $1.30, to any one who will act as a gent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3.50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a Picture Outfit.

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait. (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only 98c. Catalogue free.

Address ROBERT JOHNS, PEORIA, ILLINOIS.

(Successor to Johns & Ordway.)
In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY. DR. JOHN SHIPPY,

Dental Surgeon,

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Gov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison of Kansas City. It traverses all of the six Great States,

ILLINOIS, MISSOURI IOWA,

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO With branch lines to their important cities and towns. It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver, Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City,
Chicago and Topeka,
Chicago and St. Louis,
Chicago and Dubuque, Chicago and Sloux City, Peoria and Council Bluffs, Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omaha St. Louis and St. Paul, St. Louis and Rock Island, St. Louis and Chicago, Kansas City and Denver, Kansas City and St. Paul,

Kansas City and Omaha, Kansas City and Burlington. Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points with Through Trains to and from points located on its Dianches.

At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada.
It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

HENRY B. STONE, PER Ass't Gen'l Manager, CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass. Agent,

⇒BUSINESS∜ The Davenport Business College

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught: Bookeeping, by single and double entry; Business Arithmetic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circles and Advantage and Actual Business Practice.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed DAVID DANCER, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANCER: communications and articles to the EDITOR.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 0.
"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: "FIN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, p. .. 4.

Vol. 32.—Whole No. 654.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 21, 1885.

No. 47.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

The Saints' Menald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR - EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 21, 1885.

UTAH FREE SPEECH.

THE following clipping from a letter to the Daily Commercial of Chattanooga, Tennessee, and republished in the Descret News of the 30th ult., claims very much for free speech in Utah and the liberty extended to ministers to occupy Mormon houses of worship. When our readers reflect how few have been such opportunities for President Joseph Smith and other of our ministry, they will think the party who penned, and those who copy and endorse it, are sadly in need of godly conversion:

"Relative to free speech. We open our church doors to all denominations, or those of no denomination, and we have had Methodists, Baptists, Catholics, Infidels, Pagans, and a great variety of all classes speak from our public rostrum, and if G. C. C. has a man that he thinks can show us the error of our ways, Christian or Infidel, Deist or Atheist, Jew or Pagan, I will guarantee him the use of the Tabernacle at Salt Lake, and in addition to that, the use of four hundred other church buildings with a seating capacity of from 300 to 3,000, and good treatment while he sojourns with us. No danger of mobs or mob violence; not even traduced nor vilified, but treated as sensible, intelligent people should treat each other. Now, come on with your strong reasons, and show us the error of our ways."

THE ROCK.

Much has been said in respect to what Jesus intended by that word when he promised to build his church on a certain "rock"—what meaning did he place upon that word? The term rock sometimes applies to God, metaphorically; (Deut. 32:15; Ps. 18:2, 31; etc.); to Christ; (1 Cor. 10:4); to Abraham; (Isa. 51:1, 2); to the revealed word of God; (Matt. 7:

24, 25); also to the hard, impenitent heart of man; (Luke 8:6).

As to the meaning of that word in the text mentioned, we think the explanation given by Oliver Cowdery is correct, and that his opinions should be weighty with the Saints, for the reason that he was "the second elder" of the church, and was "spokesman" to the "choice seer," whose duty it was to teach the things of God to his people. (2 Nephi 2:2, 3). The "seer" and his "spokesman" are God's foreknown and foreordained teachers, and have God's appointment and guarantee in the clearest terms. Here are President Cowdery's teachings on the point.

"TO W. A. COWDERY, ESQ.

"Dear Brother:—I received of late, several communications from you, containing several questions. Not long since you wished me to express my mind, either publicly or privately, upon a few remarks of the Savior, as recorded in Matt. 16: 16, 17, 18. 'And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, and Son of the living God. And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say also unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.'

"It is plain that the Savior never did, nor never will build his church upon any other foundation, or sustain it upon any other principle, than he there represents to Peter, viz: of revelation from the Father that he was the Christ. Erect a church upon any other foundation, and when the storm comes it must fall. And the only reason why his church was not always on earth is, that men ceased to obtain revelations from heaven. And the only reason why they were deceived in time past, and will be in the last days, is because they do not know that Jesus is the Christ!

"Men say they believe that Jesus is the Christ; but the Lord said to Peter that the Father had revealed it to him, and upon that Rock he would build his church, and the gates of hell should not prevail against it. For if men know that Jesus is the Christ, it must be by revelation. To be sure, we may say that the apostles testify of him, and that we believe they tell us the truth; but will this save a people from destruction, when the cunning arguments of the adversary are leveled as a mighty shaft to shake man from the foundation? No; he must have an assurance. The salvation of man is of that importance, that he is not left to a mere belief, founded upon the testimony or say-so of another man! No; flesh and blood can not reveal it—it must be the Father.

And query: If the everlasting Father reveals to men that Jesus is the Son of God, can they be overthrown? Can floods or flames, principalities or powers, things present or to come, heights or depths, swerve them from the foundation—the ROCK? No; said our Lord, the gates of hell can not prevail. There is an assurance in the things of God that can not be obliterated! There is a certainty accompanying his divine communications which enables the mind to soar aloft, and contemplate—not only contemplate, but mingle with the blessed in the blessed mansions, where all things are pure! It is this, then, which constitutes a certainty.

"There can be no doubt but that the true church did exist after the Lord's ascension; but the query is, how shall we reconcile this point, when we say that it did not exist on earth for a number of centuries, and yet say that the gates of hell did not prevail against it? To the answer:

"You will see above that I have plainly contended that the gates of hell could not prevail against a man or society of men while they hold communion and intercourse with heaven.

"I will now suppose a case, or propose a question: If Elijah had been the only individual on earth who kept the commandments of the Lord, he would have been all the church then upon earth. And you know that any and every people ceasing to keep his commandments, are disowned by him. If these points are admitted, I proceed:

"When Elijah was taken up to heaven, did the gates of hell prevail against the church of God? Did they overcome the holy priesthood? No; neither. Had Elijah been the last righteous man, and his enemies prevailed over his natural body, and put him to death, would the gates of hell have prevailed against the church? No; the holy priesthood would have been taken to God, and the gates of hell would have been as unsuccessful as in the case of his translation.

"In the church, said Paul, God has placed 'apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, miracles, gifts of healings, helps, governments, and diversities of tongues; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. But did that church exist? Are the fruits of that priesthood now to be found, or have they been among men from the apostles to the present? Where are the individuals who will pretend that this has been the case? And yet they say that Christ's church has continued on earth, and that the gates of hell have not prevailed against it! Here seems to be a trouble—To admit that the authority of administering ordinances on earth, has been taken away, would admit at once that they have no authority. This places men under the necessity of saying that the church of God has and does exist, in all these variegated forms and colors, scattered over the world—no more resembling the ancient church than the ancient church does that of the Hindoos.

"It is revelation which constitutes the church of Christ; for this was the declaration to Peter, that the Father had revealed to him, and upon that principle his church should exist. Show me any other, and I confess that you will show me a something, the pattern of which I have not found in the holy scriptures, as coming from heaven!

"You will begin to see my mind upon this matter. It is, that when men ceased to bring forth the fruits of the kingdom of God on earth, It ceased to exist on earth; and when it ceased to exist on earth, he took the authority to himself, and with it the holy priesthood. The gates of hell did not prevail against the church of God; and the decree of our Father is, that they shall not; but no man will pretend, (if he does it is in vain), that the pure church, as it existed in the days of Paul, and for a length of time afterward, has continued. If so, according to his theory, the gates of hell have prevailed against it; for he can not trace its existence here. He may trace a supposed authority through a succession of Popes and Bishops; but if the authority was there, where is and where was the fruit?

If we look into the twelfth chapter of John's Revelation on Patmos, we shall see the church represented in a striking figure, so plainly shown to be taken from the earth, that it is impossible his beautiful vision should be misunderstood.

OLIVER COWDERY.

SR. MARKS vs. ATWOOD.

Last summer an Elder Atwood, a Utah Mormon Elder, tarried here and in this vicinity a few weeks, and shortly after his return to Utah the following report, said to have been given by him to the Descret News, was published in that paper for August 29th. It says:—

"A RETURNED MISSIONARY.-We had the pleasure yesterday of meeting Elder W. H. Atwood, who returned a few days since from a mission to the States. . . . On coming to Iowa he visited Lamoni, where the Josephites are congregated, and attended one of their meetings, at which, on requesting it, he was allowed the privilege of speaking a short time. He took occasion to testify that patriarchal marriage is a divine requirement, and was both taught and practiced by the Prophet Joseph Smith, which assertion was sustained by the private admissions of several of the members subsequently, who belonged to the church in the Prophet's day, among whom was a Mrs. Marks, who was formerly a plural wife of William Smith, married to him by his brother Joseph.'

We thought the report was of doubtful character, and so inquired of Bro. Hogue if Sr. Marks was properly reported, and he said, promptly, No! We then procured the following statement, which makes the News' report look decidedly queer:—

"We were at Bro. Harris' at supper, in the presence of Bro. and Sr. Harris, Bro. and Sr. Hogue, Bro. and Sr. Rew, and Sr.

Lathrop. Mr. Atwood said—'Sr. Marks, I want to ask you a question, and want you to answer me correctly.'

"I said, 'Of course I shall answer you correctly, if I answer it at all. What is your question.'

"'Did you ever hear polygamy taught in Nauvoo.'

"'Yes, Sir; but not by Joseph Smith,' with much emphasis. Whereupon Bro. Hogue raised up and said, 'Good! good! That is just what I wanted to hear.'

"I then said,—'Perhaps you would like to know who I did hear teach it.'

"'No, no; that is all I wanted to know,' with decision.

"After which I told him I heard Heber Kimball teach it, and not until after Joseph's death.

"As to my saying that I was a plural wife of William Smith, it is simply a false-hood. I never was a plural wife to any one; and the name of William Smith was not mentioned at all.

J. A. MARKS."

MRS. DAVISON'S TESTIMONY.

On page 429 of The Family Magazine, published in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1839, occurs the following article in respect to the Book of Mormon having been manufactured out of Rev. Solomon Spaulding's "Manuscript Found." And now that this identical document, hidden away since 1834, after it went into the hands of the said "Dr. Philastur Hurlbut," who placed it with E. D. Howe of Painesville, Ohio. has lately been found and placed in the library of Oberlin College, Ohio, a copy of which is now published at this office, it seems fitting that the said article be given to our readers, that they may the better judge as to the reliability of these anti-Mormon witnesses.

Mrs. Davison, the widow of Rev. Spaulding, is here made to testify to the excellent character, refined culture, profound learning, and godly sentiments of her late husband-Rev. Spaulding. And now that we have the said "Manuscript Found," all can by a careful reading and consideration of its contents form a correct opinion as to just what Mrs. Davison's testimony is worth. Rev. Spaulding's pretended learning, moral culture, intellectual capabilities, and religious excellence, are thoroughly refuted by his "Manuscript Found." Mrs. Davison says it "fell into my hands and was carefully preserved;" and, that she put it into the hands of Dr. P. Hurlbut, to use against the Book of Mormon. Hurlbut, in turn, put it into the hands of E. D. Howe to use against the Mormons, and the latter sold it, unknowingly, to R. R.

Rice, who, unaware of its character, kept it with other papers and documents he bought of Howe, for forty-six years, when he in turn, placed it in the hands of Pres. J. H. Fairchild of Oberlin College, Ohio, where it now is.

Yes; we can now judge, by means of this manuscript, just the kind of a writer Mr. Spaulding was, and also just how much credit should be given to the testimony of his widow and her fellow-witnesses, and further, just what the opinions, conjectures, theories, and arguments of the opposers of the Book of Mormon are worth. The "Manuscript" reveals their folly, and worse. Here is the article referred to:

"THE MORMON BIBLE.

"The Boston Recorder of April 5th, 1839, contains the following singular development of the origin and history of the Mormon Bible. It accounts most satisfactorily for the existence of the book, a fact which heretofore it has been difficult to explain. It was difficult to imagine how a work containing so many indications of being the production of a cultivated mind, should be connected with knavery so impudent, and a superstition so gross, as that which must have characterized the founders of this pretended religious sect. The present narrative, which, independently of the attestations annexed, appears to be by no means improbable, was procured from the writer by the Rev. Mr. Stow, of Holliston, who remarks that he has had occasion to come in contact with Mormonism in its grossest forms.' It was communicated by him for publication in the Recorder.

"As this book has excited much attention, and has been put up by a certain new sect, in the place of the sacred scriptures, I deem it a duty which I owe to the public, to state what I know touching its origin. That its claims to a divine origin are wholly unfounded, needs no proof to a mind unperverted by the grossest delusions. That any sane person should rank it higher than any other merely human composition, is a matter of the greatest astonishment: yet it is received as divine by some who dwell in enlightened New England, and even by those who sustained the character of devoted Christians.

"Learning recently that Mormonism has found its way into a church in Massachusetts, and has impregnated some of its members with its gross delusions, so that excommunication has become necessary, I am determined to delay no longer doing what I can to strip the mask from this monster of sin, and to lay open this pit of abominations: Reverend Solomon Spaulding, to whom I was united in marriage in early life, was a graduate of Dartmouth College, and was distinguished for a lively imagination and a great fondness for history. At the time of our marriage he resided in Cherry Valley, N. Y. From this place we removed to New Salem, Ashtabula County, Ohio; sometimes called Conneaut, as it is situated upon Conneaut Creek. Shortly after our removal to this place, his health sunk, and he was laid aside from active labors. In the town of New Salem there are numerous mounds and forts, supposed by many to be the dilapidated dwellings and fortifications of a race now extinct. These ancient relics arrest the attention of the new settlers, and become objects of research for the curious. Numerous implements were found, and other articles, evincing great skill in the arts. Mr. Spaulding being an educated man, passionately fond of history, took a lively interest in these developments of antiquity; and in order to beguile the hours of retirement, and furnish employment for his lively imagination, he conceived the idea of giving an historical sketch of this long lost race. Their extreme antiquity, of course, would lead, him to write in the most ancient style, and as the Old Testament is the most ancient book in the world, he imitated its style as nearly as possible.

"His sole object in writing this historical romance was to amuse himself and neighbors. This was about the year 1812. Hull's surrender at Detroit, occurred near the same time, and I recollect the date well from that circumstance. As he progressed in his narrative, the neighbors would come in from time to time to hear portions read, and a great interest in the work was excited among them. It claimed to have been written by one of the lost nation, and to have been recovered from the earth, and, assumed the title of 'Manuscript Found.' The neighbors would often enquire how Mr. S. progressed in deciphering 'the manuscript;' and when he had a sufficient portion prepared he would inform them, and they would assemble to hear it read. He was enabled, from his acquaintance with the classics and ancient history, to introduce many singular names, which were particularly noticed by the people and could be easily recognized by them. Mr. Solomon Spaulding had a brother, Mr. John Spaulding, residing in the place at the time, who was perfectly familiar with this work, and repeatedly heard the whole of it read. From New Salem he removed to Pittsburg, Pa. Here Mr. S. found an acquaintance and friend in the person of Mr. Patterson, an editor of a newspaper. He exhibited his manuscript to Mr. P., who was very much pleased with, and borrowed it for perusal. He retained it a long time, and informed Mr. S. that if he would make out a title-page and preface he would publish it, and it might be a source of profit. This Mr. S. refused to do, for reasons I can not now state.

"Sidney Rigdon, who has figured so largely in the history of the Mormons, was at this time connected with the printing office of Mr. Patterson, as is well known in that region, and as Rigdon himself has frequently stated. Here he had ample opportunity to become acquainted with Mr. Spaulding's manuscript, and to copy it if he choose. It was a matter of notoriety and interest to all who were connected with the printing establishment. At length the manuscript was returned to its author, and soon after we removed to Amity, Washington County, Pa., where Mr. Spaulding deceased in 1816. The manuscript then fell into my hands and was carefully preserved. It has frequently been examined by my daughter, Mrs. Mc Kenstry, of Monson, Mass., with whom I now reside, and by other friends. After the 'Book of Mormon' came out, a copy of it was taken to New Salem, the place of Mr. Spaulding's former residence, and the very place where the 'Manuscript Found' was written.

"A woman preacher appointed a meeting there, (New Salem) and in the meeting read and repeated copious extracts from the 'Book of Mormon.' The historical part was immediately recognized by all the older inhabitants, as the identical work of Mr. Spaulding, in which they had been so deeply interested years before. Mr. John Spaulding was present, who is an eminently pious man, and recognized perfectly the work of his brother. He was amazed and afflicted, that it should have been perverted to so wicked a purpose. His grief found a vent in a flood of tears, and he arose on the spot and expressed in the meeting his deep sorrow and regret that the writings of his sainted brother should be used for a purpose so vile and shocking. The excitement in New Salem became so great, that the inhabitants had a meeting, and deputed Dr. Philastus Hurlbut, one of their number, to repair to this place, and to obtain from me the original manuscript of Mr. Spaulding, for the purpose of comparing it with the Mormon Bible, to satisfy their own minds, and to prevent their friends and others from embracing an error so delusive. This was in the year 1834. Dr. Hurlbut brought with him an introduction and request for the manuscript, signed by Messrs. Henry Lake, Aaron Wright, and others, with all whom I was acquainted, as they were my neighbors when I resided in New Salem. I am sure that nothing could grieve my husband more, were he living, than the use which has been made of his work.

"The air of antiquity which was thrown about the composition, doubtless suggested the idea of converting it to purposes of delusion. Thus an historical romance, with the addition of a few pious expressions and extracts from the sacred scriptures, has been construed into a new Bible, and palmed of upon a company of poor deluded fanatics, as divine. I have given the previous brief narration, that this work of deception and wickedness may be searched to the foundation, and its author exposed to the contempt and execration he so justly deserves.

"MATILDA DAVISON.

"Reverend Solomon Spaulding was the first husband of the narrator of the above history. Since his decease, she has been married to a second husband by the name of Davison. She is now residing in this place; is a woman of irreproachable character, and an humble Christian, and her testimony is worthy of implicit confidence.

"A. ELY, D. D., Pastor Cong. Church in, Monson.

"D. R. Austin, Prin. of the Monson Academy. "Monson, Mass., April 1st, 1839."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WITH this issue closes the excellent article of Elder T. W. Smith, "The Stone Cut Without Hands." Those who will re-read the entire article will be well repaid.

"Elder D" is getting "Dr. Twine Text" into close quarters, and it is now probable that he will convert him by and by.

Lamoni is likely to have a secular newspaper shortly. We hope the effort may prove successful every way.

Bro. E. Morrison says: "Bro. Dancer, you will find enclosed five dollars, which I send for the best paper in the world—the HERALD." We shall strive to make the HERALD merit commendation.

Bro. E. T. Dawson thinks the editors of the HERALD were wise twice—"once when they printed so much of the Spaulding Romance, and twice when they printed no more of it."

An interesting letter on Utah affairs from President Joseph Smith, will be found in the letter department. Read it.

In the Southern Utonian of the 6th inst., we see President Joseph Smith and Elder Joseph Luff were to begin meetings in the Methodist Church, Beaver, on the 8th inst.

Bro. L. D. Ullom, of Benwood, W. Va., writes that he feels "strong in the service of the Lord." It is about three years since he joined the church, and he says, "The Lord has blessed me much with his Spirit." He aided well in building their new chapel.

Bro. D. Bowen writes from Friend, Nebraska, the 2d inst., and says: "We are all well and trying to hold up the banner of truth until Bro. R. M. Elvin comes."

Sr. Abbie A. Horton in a late letter informs us that Bro. J. C. Foss was holding protracted meetings at Plano, Illinois, and had large attendance, though the weather was cold and wet.

Bro. J. W. Johnson of McFall, Gentry county, Missouri, wants a partner in the boot and shoe business.

On our leaving Galien, Michigan, the 9th inst., Sr. Blakeslee was much better, and we trust will soon enjoy complete restoration to good health.

Sr. Columbus Scott and boy reached this place on Tuesday last, and will remain with her father and mother, Bro. S. M. Bass and wife, till next April.

Bro. Peter Muldrup and family, once of Plano, Illinois, but recently of Minden, Nebraska, have located here with a view to become permanent settlers. He will engage in his business as wagon and carriage maker and repairer. We wish him abundant success.

Our church papers should be in the hands of all our church members, and be read also by all who will read them. If the ministry, and such members as can, would rally around and get new subscribers, they would do a great good in many ways. Let all who read this try it, and see if they are not blessed in the effort. Patient, presistent effort wins, and now is the time to work.

Elder F. B. Moyers of Conejos, Colorado, asks the Saints to pray for the recovery of Sr. Humphries, who is sorely afflicted in on of her limbs.

Bro. R. J. Anthony writes from Malta, Idaho, the 7th inst., that he was just starting for American Falls and Oxford; also that Sr. Addie Condit, who had been very low, was now recovering. Her many friends will be glad to know this.

We are glad to know that Elder I. N. White is again in God's great harvest field. Ministers of his make-up will preach, subdue prejudice, and convert hundreds, while wiseacres, hair-splitters, grumblers, and intermeddlers who profess to represent the Church of God, but who are most anxious to simply represent themselves, are worse than idling away the Lord's time, and heaping the cup of their own condemnation. Work! work!! work!!! This should be the watchword of every minister of Christ, and they should see to it that the Lord's work is done. The bickerings of self-conceited ones lead them and those who listen to them into the ways of idleness, darkness and ruin. All honor to honest workers.

Elder E. T. Dobson of St. Joseph writes that Bro. J. F. McDowell has began there a series of meetings, and they intend to circulate tracts and leaflets until the city has full notice of their work. Bro. John Burlington telegraphed for 10,000 tracts—making 30,000 pages—one half of which were sent on next train and the balance the day after.

Elder W. H. Bybee, now the district president of the North-East Missouri district asks that Elders in his district to correspond with him at Renick, Randolph County, Mo., on church affairs. See his letter in another place.

Bro. O. A. Richey writes from Hay Springs, Sheridan county, Nebraska, the 1st inst., saying to those wishing lands in Nebraska, that there is a good country where he is, that "the land is rich, plenty of timber and water, with some land subject to homestead and pre-emption privileges. It is known as the Pine Ridge country, and is 300 miles west of the Missouri river and near the line of Dakota." Parties wishing further information can address Bro. Richey as above.

Orders for the "Manuscript Found" are now coming forward, and can be filled on short notice.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

2.—Did the spirits of all who are permitted to take bodies on this earth keep their first estate, or did any of them sin little or much?

A.—Put Jude 6 with John 8:44; 2 Pet. 2:4; Rev. 12:7-9; the vision in Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 76:2; 2 Nephi 2:8; 6:3; Moroni 7:2; and we are led to conclude that disobedient spirits were not permitted to enter upon this earthly estate—second estate—and have tabernacles of flesh as did Adam and his posterity, including Jesus. Joseph, the "choice seer" said:

"All the spirits that God ever sent into the world are susceptible of enlargement"progression. This can not apply to Satan, nor to his fellow-rebels. The seer further said: "The devil rebelled against God and fell, and all who put up their hands for him."—Times and Seasons, vol. 5:615, 616. To those who accept the Book of Abraham as authority, we offer the following, which we think explains and renders more intelligible those passages already cited and quoted: "And they who keep their first estate, shall be added upon; and they who keep not their first estate, shall not have glory in the same kingdom with those who keep their first estate; and they who keep their second estate shall have glory added upon their heads forever and ever." See Life of Joseph, p. 311, and Book of Abraham in Pearl of Great Price, and in Times and Seasons vol 3, p. 719 to 722. This earthly estate is man's second estate; and he can keep this estate in holiness, and be "enlarged" and "added upon." Satan and his fellows can not enter upon this earthly estate, first, for the reason they "kept not their first estate;" second, because they can not receive "enlargement" and "be added upon." The chief thing Saints should be careful about is, to be faithful to God and his righteousness in this their second estate. This done, and all is well. God will take care of the other matters.

2.—Why is it that the Elders do not preach from the Book of Mormon and our standard church books instead of the King James' version of the Bible?

A.—Some do preach from them, and give them the preference. The ministry are authorized to use them when and where wisdom shall dictate and opportunity offer.

2.—Where the preaching of an Elder causes division among the Saints what is the proper thing to be done?

A.—If it is serious, the Elder should seek another field of labor, and the matter be put in the hands of his presiding authorities.

2.—Does Sec. 59, Doctrine and Covenants, teach the same as Isaiah, chapter 58, in respect to fasting?

A.—Yes; in all essential points. Read and consider them.

Q.—Is it right for a minister to teach that we can never enter the celestial kingdom by our good works?

A.—If our good works are those which God has ordained for us to do, then they are necessary in order to such salvation. See Eph. 2: 10; John 5: 17; Phil. 2: 12; I Thess. I: 3; James 2: 17, 18, 26; Rom. 2: 7; Rev. 22: 12, 14.

A SPICY PICTURE OF CHURCH GOING.

THE Rev. Dr. Mark Trafton, a well-known Boston Methodist clergyman of pronounced views, appeared at the Methodist ministers' meeting and made a plea for non-church-goers. He took the ground that the seeming falling off in attendance in Protestant churches in Boston was due largely to the increase of the Catholic population and the increase also of Hebrews. The rapid growth of suburban cities—the bedrooms for Boston also took away thousands of church-goers from the city churches. High pew-rents were another bar to large congregations, the speaker said, and he cited Tremont Temple and the People's Church (both free) to prove his assertion. "Let me start out, now, to go to church to worship God," he went on. "At home we have had our private devotions. We come to the church door —I'm saying what took place, exactly—and we see plenty of vacant seats. We ask one of the young snipper-snappers, with a rosette in his bottonhole, for a seat. He says, 'You wait awhile, and I'll see.' By and by when the bell stops tolling, the man savs: 'I guess you can find a seat in the gallery.' In the gallery you see four young persons talking and laughing. Suddenly the organ starts, and then as suddenly the four grow solemn, jump up and begin to squall. You can't understand a word they say. They sing a hymn you never heard before, and never want to hear again. You can't sing with them. Call that singing God's praise! It's not only folly, but its blasphemy. You've no business to introduce such trash as that and call it devotion. Well, it was at last over and then the man read the Bible. Here the speaker read in imitation in a monotonous, low and "sing-song" way a passage from the Scriptures]. Now, I said to myself: "What a fool you are to think that reading the Bible in that way has any other effect than to create disgust. There is a way to read the Scripture by which you can fix the attention of the people.'

"Then our hymns," continued Dr. Trafton. "We read them so carelessly that the people don't get the sense of the words. Then the prayer-in the old times the minister used to pray, to supplicate, to implore, just as if he expected something would come, and something did come. Now, this brother who prayed delivered a homily, an address to the people, a strained effort. It wasn't praying. I confess it didn't touch me at all. I kept saying to myself; 'O, nonsense, fiddlesticks.' I say this ought not to be. We ought not to go away disgusted, as I do. I won't say that; I ought not to. There is too much caste in our churches. What we want is the real old fashioned sociability; that will reach the people."-N. Y. Tribune.

The foregoing is most earnestly commended to the reading of the Saints. If the faults of the ordinary pulpit practice and choral and song service pointed out by this radical divine are found among us, let us amend them; for removing faulty fashionable devices from our religious service, will more likely be hearty and attractive rather than sensational. If formality is injurious to spiritual enjoyment, indistinct reading and speech either in prayer or sermon, and unintelligible song are destructive to spiritual growth.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Correspondence.

No. 205, Park Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa, November 7th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I have received excellent word from St. Joseph, as to prayer service of last Monday eve, when a young man who had been seeking God's way, received witness in "astonishing power" relative to the church. He had purposed leaving the city on Tuesday, but remained for obedience' sake. Bro. Eli. T. Dobson had a series of prayer services this week for God's presence to attend our preaching and "revival" meetings. Pray for us!

The proposed meetings for Council Bluffs I have made a matter of special and daily prayer, and feel blessed in it. May the meetings truly prove to be a reviving of God's work here. By the blessing of our Master, whom we profess to love and serve, we purpose doing our part.

Yours, hopefully,

J. F. McDowell.

Springville, Utah, November 3d, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair: Last night Bro. Luff and I closed a series of five services, beginning Saturday evening last, in the City Hall, a large and very pleasant place for meetings, in this city. The attendance was large, with one exception, that of Sunday forenoon. The evenings of Saturday, Sunday and Monday, the house was full, two nights packed. The attention was excellent and the interest seemed good. We had to pay Twenty Dollars for the hall for the five services; but the people paid the amount within sixty cents, in donations at the door, to brethren Grange and Burt. I have been kindly treated by all, and have had a pleasant visit and hearing.

Yesterday, an old-time Saint by the name of William Wadsworth, accompanied by Bishop Nephi Packard and O. B. Huntington, came to see me, and we had a long and pleasant conversation. I tried to answer all the questions that were asked me as best I could. They, at parting, expressed themselves as being pleased to have met us and conversed together. The feeling, so far as I could discover, was a pleasant one; I am sure it was on my part.

Last night I spoke upon the redemption of Zion, the fact and the methods, &c.; had quite fair liberty.

One thing has marred the pleasure of our visit here. Uncle William Huntington has been very ill. It was at first thought he would hardly survive; but hopes are now entertained that he will recover. He has had a strong desire to converse with me; and I was also anxious to learn from him of the past by seeing him face to face, as a man "talketh with his friend." I have called to see him frequently since I have been here. He seemed glad to see me, and I was equally well pleased to meet him. I knew him well when I was a boy, and remembered him well. He has lived here long and is familiarly called "Uncle Will."

I think I wrote you about listening to Elder

B. H. Roberts, the one who went to Tennessee and secured the bodies of those elders that were killed there, and brought them back to Utah to their homes. He spoke in the meeting house here, and did excellently well the night I heard him; few could have excelled him. I write of things as I see them. His discourse was upon the evidences of the mission of Joseph Smith.

We have found the little band of brethren here standing steadfastly for the truth, in fair unity, and with some prospect of increase in numbers by additions. Brethren Thomas Burt and Joseph Grange took the burden of working up the meetings, and were successful.

We expect to go from here to Beaver, calling at Nephi on the way. I have met a number of Nauvoo acquaintances here.

As ever in Bonds,

JOSEPH SMITH.

316 Capitol Avenue, LANSING, Michigan, October 10th, 1885.

Rev. W. H. Kelley, Dear Bro:-Your card of the 6th inst. came to hand last night. I had just come home from Webberville, where I had been laboring for two weeks-had sacrament last Sabbath, one child blessed, and a good time in general among the Saints. I think others will come in soon at that place. After three requests at different times, I called upon one Mr. Thomas Horton, a merchant in Williamston. He is a man of good appearance. By permission he spoke after preaching, at three different times in Webberville. In and about Williamston where he has been a merchant for twenty years, I made special enquiry, and found him to sustain a good religious reputation. He has quite a strong influence for good. I saw one man who had worked for him for four years, who spoke of him in the highest terms. As a business man, he is a successful and well-to-do merchant. In religious faith, he is a Latter Day Saint and nothing else. He was baptized by Elder Goodenough, and by him and Elder Wait was ordained an Elder, about the time of Joseph's death, or a little after. About the time of the scattering and going to Salt Lake, he having lived in Michigan, chose to go up to Beaver Island where Mr. Strang was, but could not indorse him, and so went to the State of New York, until something over twenty years ago he came back to Michigan, and soon set up his present business, and continued there in the same up to the present time. The question,-Is he eligibie, and would it be right, all things considered, to receive him into the church not only as a member, but also as an Elder? I was at Bro. Kelley's to-day. All well To-morrow we go to Dimondale to spend the Sabbath. Brother George Weston had a dream, and saw a school-house where they wanted him to preach; and he was told in his dream that the name was Bush School-house. He saw me and told me his dream, and asked if I knew of any such a place. I told him I did, and gave him directions to the place. He wanted me to go with him, but I could not at that time. He dreamed he would have good success. He went and commenced, and is having a good hearing right along, continuously. It is only about three miles from Lansing. O, I do pray God to bless brother George! I am sorry to tell you that I have lost three Sabbaths, from sickness. If the Lord is willing, I shall start next week for the conference at Clear Lake. I am sorry you could not be there. If only Bro. Scott could be there it would then have been all right. They will be so disappointed! But then, there is a God in Israel; in him we trust; and it is said, "He doeth all things well."

Your brother in the faith, HIRAM RATHBUN.

> Plano, Illinois, November 9th, 1885.

Dear Bro. Dancer:-We are having very interesting meetings. Bro. John C. Foss is with us, and has preached ten discourses to date, and will be with us for some time yet. I wish we had more like him in the field. I had the pleasure of taking two more precious souls down into the waters of baptism yesterday, young men. They are commencing to serve the Master in their youth, and if they shall continue unto the end of the journey, great will be their reward. We feel encouraged to go on in the good work of the latter days. It is a great comfort to me to be able to do something for the master, and I hope to do more, for this is indeed the work of the Lord. Asking an interest in the prayers of all Saints,

I am yours in bonds,

W. VICKERY.

SHERMAN, Mason Co.. Mich., Nov. 6th, 1885.

Bro. Blair: I have not seen a letter from our branch in the Heraid, so I thought I would write. I would like to have you know our branch is prospering. There are twenty-three members. We have preaching every other Sunday by Elder Shelly, and prayer meetings every Sunday. We can not meet oftener, for we live a good ways apart, and the roads are very bad in the fall. Elder Cornish was here two weeks ago, and we had a feast. He is a good man, and he came in just the right time. He baptized one, and left a good many believing. We all want him to come again soon. Last Sabbath we gave up our school-house to the Wesleyan Methodists to hold their quarterly meetings in, and four or five of us went to hear the sermon. It sounded rather dry after hearing Bro. Cornish. After meeting, one of our brothers asked their preacher Bliss a question. He put the brother off, and said he would make it all clear for him in the evening if he would come. So a few of us went out to hear him explain it, but he only went for "Joe Smith" and his followers, as he called us, and said he knew all about them at Nauvoo, and advised his people to stand by their preacher, spiritually and financially, and hastily closed his meeting. Brother Shelly arose and wanted to call the house to order, and asked him if he would come the next evening, that he would like to review his sermon. But no; he would not. So the boys in the crowd began to call Bliss a coward, and even called him a devil. There was no order after that. You could hear the noise a half a mile away. Some of the lady members of his church began calling "Joe Smith; chicken thief." But the rough ones in the crowd gave it back. One little fellow sprang upon Brn. Bogue and Gulembo, striking at them and calling them the worst names he could think of; but they just pushed him off and kept quiet, and it ended by doing them a great deal of hurt, and our side a great deal of good; for the outsiders say that they can see which side is for the truth. I am sure our branch will number a great many more before long. We know that when we stand for the right, victory will be ours. Our cause is gaining ground, and things look brighter all the time.

Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I am your sister in the one faith,

MRS. ETTIE GULEMBO.

NORTH BROOKSVILLE, Maine, October 29th, 1885.

Dear Herald:—Will you permit me to speak through your columns again? I have often desired to, and now ask, if some one of your readers can and will explain Ezekiel's vision of the wheels?

When at the conference held at Bro. Frank Carter's, September 19th and 20th last, I met for the first time Sr. Martha Murry, of Rockland. I had heard that she had been healed of a cancer, and on inquiring learned the following: "When a mere child," said the sister, "I had a cancer form near my eye, and had it drawn out. Years later I had one form in the side of the bowels, near the hip bone. It pained me continually for years. Much of the time the pain was severe. At length I made up my mind to have that one drawn out. For eleven days the suffering was almost unendurable. I did not have one hour's refreshing sleep for that time-merely an occasional disturbed drowse. When out, it took just the size of a cracker to cover the wound. A few years passed by and another began to gather in my right breast. In time that began to be in constant pain. I showed it to a physician and he said the whole breast must be taken off. If I submitted to such an operation, I must necessarily be etherized, which I feared would result in death. I thought the matter over and made up my mind to submit my case to the Great Physician, believing that I had faith to be healed. I had been healed several years before of a spinal trouble which the doctor had pronounced incurable. Accordingly I made preparations to go to conference held at Queen's Landing, in the summer of 1883. I had acquaintances there, besides friends-for Latter Day Saints are friends to one another as soon as they meet-so I was cordially welcomed. I called for administration from the hands of Brn. Wm. G. Pert, Frank M. Sheehy and W. H. Kelley. The pain ceased and on the following morning I lifted my hand and combed my hair, which thing I had not been able to do for two weeks. The thought of the trouble seemed to be taken from me as well as the pain and soreness. In a few days I examined and found it had rapidly diminished, and in one week's time it was entirely gone, I thought I had faith to be healed, and as it was so quickly done I had no chance for doubt to arise. I don't know how it would have been if I had been obliged to wait for the blessing. There is no one that has more reason to praise God than I have."

O what a blessed thing it is to have a physician free from charge, and so skilled as to perform cure without the aid of ether, lancet, or pain, was the language of her heart. I would ask here, which requires the greatest faith on the part of the individual, to be healed instantly, or gradually? O how it gladdens our hearts to know by His wonderful works among his children, that he is the same omnipresent, omniscient and omnipotent God that was adored by the humble children of the earth eighteen hundred years ago; and that Jesus the Mediator, is the same Great Physician sent by that same loving Father to bless through the instrumentality of his servants that he has called and commissioned, all who will believe in his word. That is, will fully believe in the fulness of the gospel as taught in his Word,-if ye believe ye will obey. Many believe that he has power to forgive sin, and in consequence receive forgiveness, but will stoutly fight against the idea of his healing. But if we believe one, why not both? One is as plain and as strong as the other; and one is needed as much as the other. We believe he will do all he has promised when the applicant meets all his requirements, if it is for his or her best good. If our trust is perfect, all will be well, whether we live or wheth-SR. ALMIRA M. SNOW. er we die.

> CLINTON, Missouri, November 10th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I have labored both early and late, preparing a home for my family, and arranging my affairs so I can be in the ministry. Again I am ready for the work! To those that have asked: "Why don't you go and preach?" My response is: To support a family of nine children and preach "without purse and scrip—'self sustaining," is no child's play. I am glad that I was born in the White family, where there is plenty of "grit."

"Tis well for those, dear brother Jim, With time and cash to spare,
To lift their hearts and hands to Him
In everlasting prayer."
But prayer alone won't win the fight,
In spite of Holy Writ;
"Tis acts that tell, or wrong or right,
And actions call for 'grit."

I've seen some fellows in my time,
Good, noble men, and strong,
With hearts less human than divine,
Who couldn't get along.
No matter where you place them, Jim,
They didn't seem to fit:
They couldn't win, or sink or swim—
They didn't have the 'grit.'

I've seen in trial tests of speed,
The horse that balks or breaks,
Although he sometimes takes the lead,
He never wins the stakes.
While 'sure and steady on the stride,'
Though slower on the bit,
Is often on the winning side,
Because he's got the 'grit.'

Amid the countless ills of life,
Its pleasures and its woes,
The strongest factors in the strife
Are steady licks and blows;
And though we may not always win,
We never will submit;
But still wade in, dear brother Jim,
And die like men of 'grit.''

We hope to profit by past experiences and cautiously, fearlessly and wisely move on the forts of error and prejudice until the battle is won.

The Herald, Advocate and Expositor, are just "booming" with ability and news. I either have a better faculty of appreciation, or the spiritual cogs of the Church are grinding closer. The news from Joseph and other Utah missionaries, is read with interest. Those in western Missouri desiring our labor can address me at Clinton, Henry county, Mo.

Truly, yours in the work,

I. N. WHITE.

Corning, Iowa, November 7th, 1885.

This great state is traversed with bands of steel upon which Nahum's chariots telescope space. The agriculturalist has a rapid and safe transit for the surplus products to mercantile centers; manufacturing districts; the seaboard and foreign ports. Here, too, seminaries of learning, and the district school, soften the asperities of the western home. The benign influences of a liberal education are self-evident. Intellectual labor is both a buckler and shield; whereas stupid brute force walks in a thorney, crooked path. The hardy sons of toil, by times, ought to rest the nerve and relax the muscle in the bowers of science, or their well selected libraries. Fires, suicides, murders, failures, roguery and other crimes; politics, gossip and personalities, locals, wit and romance, &c., should not engross our golden moments. We can but give them a passing notice and forget them with the dying day, or the outgoing week. Our memory becomes impaired thereby, and our relish and taste for solid facts, and grave realities is vitiated, becomes torpid, and oftentimes dead. How and what to study at leisure intervals, are questions of vital import. We should never read for mere diversion, or to simply kill time. We can well afford to touch quite lightly upon fashion and style; and give sickly sentimentalism a good letting alone.

When we study aright the discretion is refined, the judgment is sharpened, the vocabulary is enlarged, the recollection is strengthened, and the range of real knowledge is widening. Oh Lord, teach us how to tread the gold-paved paths of wisdom, and the flower-girt avenues of understanding; knowledge, power, and authority are wonderfully closely allied. This beautiful triplet, with wisdom to superintend, could vanquish the aliens, subdue the captives, and redeem the world. Yea, more; this holy trinity might destroy death, happify the heavenly inhabitants, and glorify the august Judge. These abstract principles want to affiliate and co-operate with material beings. Let us strive to be their willing mediums, or concordant vehicles of thought and action, purpose and design; and then the most happy and praiseworthy results will crown the efforts with ineffable jov.

I hardly thought to pen an eulogy on the powers of the mind, or the march of intellectual progress, on taking my seat; but the theme of learning fascinates and charms.

"Honor and fame from no condition rise; Act well thy part, there all true honor lies."

An educator proper is a generator and originator of thought, instead of a sheer copyist, or a mere echo. To commune with great minds, however, will suggest parallel, or kindred ideas, that may justly be called your own. The latent powers of comparison will be aroused; thought will be crystalized and systematized, and individuality will mount the throne of reason.

However desirable these human attainments may be, if they are not subservient to the Divine Mind, they but defeat the aims of life. It is a high prerogative to be taught of God; but that boon is within the reach of all. It is a burning shame to be wholly destitute of the knowledge of God. His word and his work, his grace and his power, his love and his justice, are open to view and accessible to the feeblest. Ye Saints, remember that your bounden duty is to illuminate the moral horizon of a benighted world.

Seek the Lord for aid, and he in turn will be found at hand to come. Help yourself, and the deficiency will be forthcoming. Work in earnest, and your weaknesses will be duly supplemented. Pray fervently, ardently, and ever, and the shroud of darkness and the band of death will dissolve. To the clergy I would kindly suggest, that seven days of each week, and twenty-four hours of every day, must be dedicated to the upbuilding of the kingdom of God in the world. The laity have no more right to be lazy, careless and indifferent, than the ministry. The Maker's works have no end; therefore we must work or do without salvation. There is plenty to do, and work for all. The field of charity is all unbounded. The solar system is both warmed and animated by the central orb. He travels forth to bless innumerable worlds, nor murmurs ever. The sacred heart of the blessed Jesus pulsates through the universe, and happifies his affianced bride. The sun will not shine in a cave, neither will the Son of Righteousness illumine the soul and vivify the heart, unless his gospel has free access and undisputed sway. As the pent up forces of the fiery earth struggle beneath the mountains, and under the sea, for earthquake expansion, or voicanic vent, so should the inmost soul seek to shake the very foundations of Paganism and blow up the walls of Babylon. The "untempered mortar" is crumbling, and cracks and fissures will contain enough of the dynamite of truth to blow out a worse "Hell Gate" than there was in New York harbor. The world is growing old, and is ready to vanish away or change. Uneasy and feverish brains are under the crowns, while republics are swayed by wire-working politicians, and rotten-hearted demagogues. European civilization requires more armed men to watch one another than in any age of the past. Scientific, beer-drinking Germany, is a nation of indifferent infidels. France is given to fashion, pride, and revelry; while indolent Spain is infested with land pirates. America is the theater for land sharks, railroad princes, and worshipers at the shrine of the almighty dollar. A saving feature to this glorious Union is, that we have no national creed; but honorable competition is vouchsafed to all decent institutions. Here then the Church of Christ can arise and gain a recognition. Here it can incorporate, flourish, spread abroad, and find sympathy and support. That this is a heaven-favored land and nation, is pleasingly apparent, for all which we should let the incense of gratitude arise from the altars of true devotion. The horn of plenty is teeming into the lap of swarming millions, while intelligence and industry are hovering over the "land shadowing with wings."

God's provident goodness, long-suffering, and mercies are around, above, and beneath. But amid bursting elevators and the seat of letters the people need the bread of life and the treasures of wisdom. God is so gracious and great, while man is often parsimonious and small. The field is far stretching, but the ardent, earnest, zealous, constant, consistent laborers, are both "few and far between." The wicked are honored, the profane and the drunkard are respected, and I fear the heathen are beginning to call in question the whereabouts and power of the Lord Most High.

At all events, I long to see the truth vindicated more thoroughly, and spread and subdue more rapidly. Since the last April appointment I have baptized more than I ever did in the same length of time. Several had been associated with the latter day movement, in one way or another, others were the children of Saints, and most all were the fruit of others' labors. While I was playing the role of an Apollos, I sowed, or tried to, with a liberal hand. Let us hope and pray that the blade, stalk, and solid grain will appear in due season. I became the gospel-parent of one twice my own age, Frances D. Piddington, who was born in Cudington, Buckinghamshire, England, June 15th, 1803. Owen W. Jones, a Welshman, who used to mine coal, wishes to be kindly remembered to his numerous friends in Illinois and elsewhere. Some time since he left off the use of intoxicants and "the weed," and now he is an innocent child, scarce a week old. I will enumerate in my annual report, for it does not appear fair to count more than once. I am returning to my field of labor, and feel happy in the conflict, and zealous for the overspreading of everlasting life. Ever supplicating for a broadening and deepening of gospel influences, the peace and prosperity of the Saints, the discomfiture and dismemberment of the wilfully wicked, the redemption of Zion and the glory of Israel, I remain steadfast,

Your co-laborer, friend and brother, M. T. Short.

Buchanan, Tenn.,

November 3d, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—The work here is making progress slowly. Some interest at Foundry Hill, and I believe some additions will be made ere long. Late letters from Bro. Chute of the Alabama District represent the work there as in fair condition. They are calling for help both in Alabama and Mobile Districts. I have heard nothing from the Florida District, although I have written Bro. West twice, so I can say nothing of their condition. I am here without any means or prospect of getting any, and so far as I can see, will have to remain here all through the Winter, and it may be for the best, I do not know. Oh! how we need laborers in this mission.

GEORGE MONTAGUE.

ELVINA, San Benito Co., Cal November 2d, 1885.

Bro. Blair:—It has been three weeks since our conference convened. Brn. G. A. Blakeslee, A. H. Smith, and E. L. Kelley, were present. We were truly blessed and encouraged by the good preaching and instructions they gave us. After conference Brn. A. H. Smith and E. L. Kelley preached at Hollister for a week, and I think much prejudice is allayed; and I do hope ere long many will be added to the church, for I long to see the honest in heart accept the gospel, that they, too, may have the same privileges as we do; for we do know that the blessings and gifts promised in the gospel do follow them that believe.

And now to be faithful in bearing my testimony to the Saints and the world, I will tell of a beautiful vision I once had in a Saints' meeting when I arose to speak of God's goodness and mercies shown to me. I had not spoken but a few words when, instead of seeing the congregation, I saw a valley, and through this valley lay, as represented to me, a straight and narrow path. It looked very much like a railroad track, with the exception of the ties and rails, for it was perfectly smooth on the top, so that any one could walk with perfect ease, if they would stay in this path; but on either side of this raised path or road, there were stumbling blocks of all sizes. And it appeared that one could not walk there without stumbling; and if they should try to go far, they would fall. While I was beholding this, there was a great deal conveyed to my mind, more than I can express. But it was impressed upon my mind that, as long as we stay in the path that leads to life everlasting, and not turn either to the right or left, there would be nothing in our way. So my prayer is that we may keep in the straight and narrow path, and not get out where the stumbling blocks are. I remain your sister in the one faith,

RHODA A. LAWN.

Provo City, Utah,

November 8th, 1885.

Bro. Blair: It affords me much pleasure to write these few lines to you from Utah, to tell you how we are getting along in the latter day work. In one of the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants the Lord says "after many days" he will feel after the Twelve, and if they harden not their hearts, he would "heal" and "convert" them, clearly showing that they would apostatize from the original faith as revealed to Joseph Smith the prophet. Now, the whole secret of the gospel is to get the Holy Spirit, and to keep it, and walk by its dictates, and to know for yourself, day by day, if the course you are pursuing is right before God. If we do this we shall never be troubled with false principles, nor have to shun the laws of the land through the practice of things that are not sustained by the Lord. Any one can soon convince themselves that they make God a changeable being, by turning to the last Utah edition of the Doctrine and Covenants, for in February, 1831, he gives a revelation for the government of the church, and tells the Saints they should have "but one wife" and to "cleave to her and none else," and it is claimed that in 1843 he gave another one commanding men to take plural wives or be "damned." There seems to be a great mistake some where, and it becomes very necessary for every one to have the Spirit of the living God to know for themselves, and not to be led by "every wind of doctrine;" for the books say those that received the celestial salvation are those who take the Holy Spirit for their guide, and are not deceived; which they could not be. This is the gospel-faith, repentance, baptisms, and laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Spirit, and to keep it and walk by its dictates.

Yours,

JAMES GOFF.

Braidwood, Will Co., Ill., November 5th, 1885.

Dear Herald:—I thought I would pen a few lines for your pages. Many times I have read your pages with joy and happiness, seeing how God has bestowed his marvelous blessings upon his people in this our day. I have felt sad to see how our church and people have been misrepresented by those who ought to know better. Their is a day of retrubution coming, and is not far distant when our church will be seen clear as the sun, fair as the moon and terrible as an army with banners. May our heavenly Father bestow his grace upon his people, so that we might all be able to stand purifying and scourging. The Lord has said that he will begin first at his own house. I am thankful that I have been brought to a knowledge of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. I still have the desire to go on, to abound more in wisdom and heavenly things. May the Lord bless the efforts of brother Joseph and his co-laborers. Dear Herald; much wise and timely instruction I have received from your columns. May you ever shine bright, and be to the people as a beacon is to the mariner out on the ocean.

Sister Maggie Kelso.

ARMSTRONG, Kansas,

October 29th, 1885.

W. W. Blair, Deor Brother: -After a long time I again take my pen in order to write a few lines to let you know my whereabouts, and what I am doing. I left Bevier on the 14th of July and came to this place, where I found a nice little band of Saints, and I have tried to make myself at home with them. Some are coming in now and again, and it looks as if the good work is onward in this part of the vineyard. Bro. Willard 1. Smith is the president. He is a good man and does well. I am thinking of moving my wife here as soon as I can, and I must say that I am sorry to have to leave the work in the North-East Missouri District, as I had opened up a good field of labor there. But I can not help it. When my wife can be cared for I am ready and willing to take the field again at any time, for I love the work of God. It is all to me. I pray that the Lord will open up the way for me to do the work I should be doing in the church, that is in preaching the gospel, which I know is my

Your brother in Christ, GEORGE HICKLIN.

> Buffalo Prairié, Ill., November 2d, 1885.

Dear Herald:-You are a welcomed guest to me. Often you have caused my heart to rejoice and lift my voice in praise to God, the Eternal Father, for the blessings and gifts that pleases him to bestow upon them that live worthy. Dear Saints, truly we are a blessed people and surely we have reason to rejoice. I thank God that through his mercies and blessings, that I can say as many of you have said before me, I know that my Redeemer liveth. And further, that the doctrine and faith as taught by the Latter Day Saints is in harmony with that of Christ and his disciples, and if we live worthy, we shall receive the same gifts and blessings that was enjoyed of old-the gift of prophecy, revelation, healing, vision, divers tongues, interpretation of tongues, &c. I am thankful that we as a religious denomination are not placed in the circumstances as many of our Christain friends are, but that we can be made to realize the fulfillment of the teachings of Jesus, -"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God." I have been made to feel how willing God is to bless weak humanity, if they will humble themselves and come before him as he has commanded; for I know that through faith and by the laying on of hands, and through that only I have been raised, almost instantly from a bed of severe affliction. Bro. and Sr. H. C. Bronson can bear their testimony with me, as they and my parents were all that were present on the occasion.

Dear brothers and sisters: it stands us in hand to be on our guard continually. There is no rest in the path of life, but the mandate is 'Onward!' But often, under the heavy burdens and trials of life, we feel to give up in despair. Oh, how forgetful! Our trials may seem almost unendurable, and sufferings great, persecution and the finger of scorn may face us on every side; but have we any to compare with the sufferings, trials and persecutions of that meek and lowly Lamb. Will you for one moment reflect back to the garden of Gethsemane; or can our imagination extend so far as to realize the sufferings all along the path in which our Savior trod? My earnest prayer is that we may not grow weary in well-doing; but that we may press our way onward, and run with patience the race that is set before us, and receive the welcome applause,-"Come unto me, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Your sister in Christ,

MINA EPPERLY.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN;

OR, "THE STONE CUT WITHOUT HANDS."
No. IV.

BY ELDER T. W. SMITH.

IF the Spirit had forsaken the church, and she had but a dead form left, according to the founder of Methodism, then what could be more appropriate than for the gospel to be restored by an angel sent from heaven, where the authority to preach it alone could emanate, none existing on The statement is that the angel was seen "having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth." Not that he was to preach it personally, but that he brought it to be preached; but nevertheless he would preach it by agents whom he might appoint. The gospel as recorded has been on earth in written or printed form since the record was written. but the authority to preach it, and to baptize and confirm those who may hear and believe it was not on earth, for if so, then there must of necessity have been baptized believers (or the church) on earth at the same time, for if the officers of a government exist and exercise their functions, the government must exist of course. fact of an angel being sent with the gospel to be preached to all nations is in itself a sufficient argument that it was not being preached at the time when the angel brings it, for it would be altogether unnecessary to bring what was already here, and in full That the church as organized by Christ and the Apostles of the first age, has come down unchanged in form or uncorrupted in doctrine, or unaltered in appearance, or in full possession of all her form and features, apparel, and ornaments, is not a fact; it is not true. But on April 6th, 1830, the church was revived, and the work of reformation begun. Like a grain of mustard seed, it was small when planted, but grew to be a great tree; it grew like a plant eighteen hundred years ago, and again in the last days. Organized with six members, it grew in fourteen years, or at the death of Joseph Smith, to number some one hundred and fifty thousand mem-As soon as there was sufficient material, and the Spirit made choice, Apostles, Seventies, Bishops, Elders, Pastors, Teachers, Deacons, were ordained, God gave the gifts of prophecy, faith, knowledge, wisdom, miracles, healings, tongues and interpretation of tongues. All these came because of the Holy Ghost being given; the Holy Ghost was given because that the people had received the laying on of hands, and that they had been baptized for remission of sins, and they received baptism, and the laying on of hands, because they believed the gospel, and they believed that because it was preached by men who were authorized to preach it, and that that authority came from heaven, by virtue of the angel seen by John having come and brought the commission necessary. Angels are "ministering spirits sent forth to minister to them who shall be heirs of salvation." (See Heb. 1:14.) This heirs their labor, who sends them? Christ Jesus, for all power and authority is given him of the Father. God the Father through his Son created the heavens and the earth, and through his Son did he build the church eighteen centuries ago, and by his Son has he set up the kingdom of heaven in these days, even "in the days of these kings," as foretold by Daniel the prophet.

That such must be the case, that is, that the church must be set up before the second coming of Christ, is clear from what the revelator John says. After telling of the downfall of Babylon in the eighteenth chapter, he speaks thus in the nineteenth:

"And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to him; for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white; for the fine linen is the righteousness of Saints. And he saith unto me, Write, Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb. And he saith unto me, These are the true sayings of God."—Rev. 19: 6-9.

Another interesting fact is brought forth in connection with the downfall of Babylon, and that is, that in her, or on her garments, is "found the blood of prophets and of Saints," and that God calls upon "apostles and prophets" to rejoice for God has avenged them on Babylon (Rev. 18: 20, 24). Now what "apostles and prophets" has Babylon persecuted and slain? Not the early apostles-such as Peter, James, John, Paul, and others, nor any of the prophets of either New or Old Testament times. But she reverences them and names her churches and schools after them. Babylon did not exist while the apostles and prophets of the New Testament church were living, and according to Protestant writers, she did not come into existence prior to the year 500 of the Christian era; so accepting their conclusion, it follows that some time since the year 500-or 400 years after the apostles of the primitive church were dead, Babylon finds apostles, prophets and saints on earth, and kills some of them at least. That is to say that the church of Christ, and Babylon, are on earth at the same time; this is easily understood, when we comprehend that the church or kingdom of heaven is set up before Babylon is destroyed, as is clearly seen from Revelations, fourteenth chapter.

Who or what is Babylon? She is called the "mother of harlots." Is she a woman? Nay; but a church, and if so, who are the daughters, called harlots? Churches of course. Protestants declare that the Church of Rome is "Babylon." have churches sprung from her? can deny that such is the case? and where are they found? There can be but one answer, and that is, in the person of the many Protestant churches. Why are they called harlots? Not because their female members are unchaste, for doubtless the purest and most honorable of women are found by the tens of thousands in the Protestant churches, and in the Church of Rome too, for that matter; but as these churches are called after the names of men, and are human institutions, believing and practicing to a large extent the doctrines and traditions of men, as organizations, they are spiritually adulteresses, or harlots; they have not the name, organization, or form; neither the apparel, nor jewels of the church of Christ, and there can be but one church or bride of Christ anyhow; and the church of Christ is not divided, nor can it be, and stand; a kingdom divided must fall, so Jesus taught.

The same charge is made by the Spirit against the daughters as against the mother-they are harlots, born of her, they resemble her, and partake of her spirit. Babylon signifies "confusion," and if a mixture of a little of the doctrine of Christ with a good deal of the doctrine of men, and a union of Church and State, and the assuming of men's names, &c., is not confusion, what is? Now, has Babylon slain any apostles, any prophets, any saints, within the past fifty years? Let the blood shed in Missouri, in Nauvoo and Carthage, Illinois, answer. But those that slew them did not consider them to be apostles of Christ, nor prophets of God, nor Saints of the Most High, say the defenders of these murderers. True, nor did the Jews believe that Jesus was the Christ, or the true Messiah, but rather an impostor. Nor did the enemies of Paul kill him because they considered him a good man. Paul in his time thought (but in vain) that he was pleasing God in persecuting those whom he considered the enemies of God; but who nevertheless were the children of God. That men do not know the true relation that some other men sustain toward God, is no proof that the relation claimed does not exist. The world did not know Jesus, and he said as it knew him not, it would not know his disciples. So it does not follow that because men did not, and do not believe that other men who claim to be apostles and prophets as such in fact, that their unbelief invalidates the fact. The Eternal Spirit declares that Babylon's garments are stained with the blood of apostles, prophets and saints, and whether the men slain in Illinois and Missouri were apostles and prophets or not, the fact remains that she has killed, or will yet kill them, and that they could not be any of the former apostles and prophets and saints is a fact that no one who understands the history of the past eighteen hundred years will denv.

The kingdom that the God of heaven was to set up was never to be destroyed, nor to be left to other people. A disorganization of the church in a measure took at, and shortly after the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in June, 1844. Brigham and his coadjutors forsook the land of their inheritance, and having departed from the Lord, they went to and inhabited a land that before irrigation was adopted, was truly "a parched place in the wilderness." and was then and is now a "salt land." This, Jeremiah, by the Spirit foresaw and foretold. (See Jeremiah 17: 5, 6.) But the death of Joseph and Hyrum, and the apostacy of Brigham Young's faction, did not destroy the church. The priesthood which held the power of binding on earth, and loosing on earth, what would be acknowledged in heaven; the ministry which had the authority to preach, baptize, confirm, ordain other ministers, and whose work it was to execute the laws of God given to the church, remained; and organized branches remained, with all the officers necessary to constitute a church, fully as much so as that established on April 6th, 1830; and when the reorganization, or rearranging of the church began in 1852, the people who effected that work were those who formed part of the first organization. The kingdom of heaven was not destroyed, nor was it left to "other people." The kingdom of Israel was overturned, and overturned, and overturned, and finally destroyed. So the kingdom of heaven might be in a measure disarranged, but it was not fully disorganized, much less destroyed. God could reject as unwothy of office, Apostles, Seventies, Elders, Bishops, Teachers, &c., even so many as to disarrange them as classes in organized capacity; yet such Apostles, Seventies, Elders, &c., who were steadfast in the faith, upright in life, and true to their calling, would be acknowledged of God in their respective offices. And that there were numbers of such men after Joseph's death, and after Brigham's desertion of the land of inheritance, and departure from the Lord and his truth, can not be denied.

There is one very singular fact connected with the restoration of the kingdom of heaven in these latter days, and that is, the angel who brought the gospel, revealed to Joseph Smith a record hidden for ages, which contained the fulness of the gospel, and that this record was engraven upon plates of metal, and they were enclosed in a stone chest or box, near the top of a high hill, or as it might be called a "mountain." The discovery of this record, and its translation by the Urim and Thummim, which was also found in the stone box, was the foundation, or beginning of the work of setting up of the kingdom of heaven. The prophet Daniel saw the "stone cut out of the mountain without hands" become a great mountain and fill the whole earth. The church of Christ was to be built on a rock. The rock is truth revealed by the Holy Ghost. The stone box contained the revelations of God; it contained the word of God, which is "truth;" and "truth" was seen by the Psalmist to "spring out of the earth." (Psalm 85: 10, 11). And as the church is founded on revealed truth, such as the stone chest contained, the prophet may have seen the stone receptacle and its contents, when he said that the stone from the mountain smote the image on its feet, and became a great mountain, &c. And the Book of Mormon found in the stone chest, has been a "stone of stumbling," and "rock of offence" to the world for the past fifty years and over, and ever will be.

Every possible plan has been devised, and all possible efforts made to invalidate the claim that it was revealed by angels, and translated by divine power, and to prove it to be a romance written by a pious Presbyterian clergyman, that fell into Joseph Smith's hands in some surreptitious manner, and that the Book of Mormon is nothing more or less than this novel written by a man whose business should have been to preach "the truth as it is in Christ Jesus," instead of writing what he knew was a batch of lies. But as God has pre-pared a hot bath for all who love and make a lie, we will leave him in the hands of God.

The "stone" will become "a great mountain and fill the whole earth," is the declaration of heaven; and whosoever will fall on it shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder. God will hurl the "stone" at the feet of the "image" in his own time and way. It is not to attack worldly powers, for it is not a kingdom of the world, and Jesus' servants are not to fight. But as sure as God has spoken, the kingdoms of this world must fall, and at the coming of Christ,—become his kingdom; and the "stone" or church,—which term of course includes its foundation, and all its principles and attributes,—will become heirs with Christ to the world, and will be made kings and priests, and will reign on the earth. For "the kingdom, and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, will be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him."—Daniel 7:27.

"When the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit on the throne of his glory." (Matt. 25:31). "I will declare the decree: the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel. Be wise now, therefore, O ye kings; be instructed, ye judges of the earth. Serve the Lord with fear, and rejoice with trembling. Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and ye perish from the way, when his anger is kindled but a little. Blessed are they that put their trust in him."—Psalm 2:7-12. "And the Seventh Angel sounded, and there were great voices in heaven, saying, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign for ever and ever." (Rev. 11:15).

In conclusion we would say, that we do not understand that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, composed of Latter Day Saints, although the kingdom of heaven, and set up by the God of heaven in accordance with the prediction of Daniel the prophet, is to destroy these kingdoms of the world by force of arms; for Jesus declared that his kingdom was not of this world, or not of a worldly character, or else his "servants would fight;" and while not of the world, but of heaven, yet it is on earth, and in the world. Jesus said that he was not of the world, and that his apostles were not of the world, (John 17: 14), yet he was in the world, or on the earth at the very time. The smiting of the "toes and feet," and destruction of the entire image, will take place at Christ's second coming; or when he comes "in the clouds of heaven, with power and great glory," and when "he shall sit upon the throne of his glory," and the kingdoms of this world, will become Christ's kingdom. The territory and the subjects of the kingdom of Bahylon, were not destroyed by Media and Persia, nor the land and people of Medo-Persia by Greece; nor did the kingdom of Rome destroy the territory or subjects of Greece; but on the other hand, the territory of each preceding kingdom became the territory of its conqueror, and the subjects of the conquered kingdom became the subjects of the conquering one; but the government was overturned or destroyed, so at the coming of Christ, the land occupied by the "image," in any and all its parts, will form part of the territory of the kingdom of Christ, and the people will become the subjects of the kingdom, while the "stone," or the church will become the government, for they are to be made "kings and priests," and are to "reign" with Christ, (Rev. 20: 6; 2 Tim. 2:12) and are to sit with him upon his throne (Rev. 3:27), and "the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdom, under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the Saints of the Most High." All earthly or worldly governments will be destroyed at the coming of the Messiah, and "the Saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom and possess the kingdom forever, even for ever and ever." (Dan. 8:18). The "stone" then becomes a "great mountain," and fills "the whole earth." "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth." (Matt. 5:5). "Hearken, my beloved brethren, Hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he has promised to them that love him." (James 2:5). "The Saints shall judge the world." (1 Cor. 6:2). love him." Because the disciples thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear—Jesus gave a parable (Luke 19) in which he represents himself as a nobleman going into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return; and before he went, he gave his servants talents to improve upon; and when he returned to take possession of his kingdom, he reckoned with his servants, and gave them positions of honor and power in his kingdom according to their merit. Jesus has gone into a far country (heaven) to receive his kingdom from the Father, and to wait till the time comes to take possession of the kingdom; he is not a king yet, but a prince—an heir apparent to the throne of God. He gave to his servants before he went to heaven, the keys of the kingdom of heaven, he bestowed talents, (offices and gifts), and gave them charge over his property (which he held as a nobleman), and after a while he will return from heaven to take possession of his kingdom on earth (See Matt. 25:31), then will he give power and authority in his kingdom to such of his servants as have magnified their calling, and exercised their gifts, and improved their talents; and they shall rule over such portions of his kingdom as he shall appoint. The church is his property-and his Apostles, Prophets, Seventies, Bishops, Elders, &c., are his servants, and they have charge over his property; after a while, when he comes, the faithful ones will be made kings and priests, and reign with him on the earth. Jesus is not yet king, but a nobleman, or a prince. Peter says, "He is exalted to be a Prince and a Savior." Jesus declares that he is seated on his Father's throne. After while he will take his throne, that of his father David, and reign in Zion and in I-rusalem, and over all the earth, and will then give to his church to sit with him in his throne, and will say, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." It is written, and will surely come to pass, and men and devils can not prevent it, that "The Saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom forever, even forever and

"We're all poor and humble now;
Bnt. O, we'll be rich you know,
When Jesus comes in glory," and
When his banner is unfurled
O'er the kingdoms of this world,
And Satan from his throne be hurled,
Then we'll rest at home."

"Jesus shall reign where'er the sun
Doth his successive journeys run;
His kingdom stretch from shore to shore,
And wicked men shall rule no more.

T. W. SMITH.

AVATORU, Rairva, Paumotus, May, 1885.

SERMON BY A LATTER DAY ELDER.

Quite a large congregation gathered at the old church at West Mansfield, Mass., last Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, to listen to the remarks of Elder Columbus Scott of Michigan, a representative of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The discourse was an able one, and people seemed well pleased.

His subject was the "Kingdom of God." The speaker showed from the Bible what the kingdom was in the time of Christ, and that, through the tradition of men, the gospel preached to-day by the sectarian world was very different. He said the seeking of this kingdom was of first importance, and for two reasons: First-It is taught in the Bible; secondly—It embodies the principle by which Jesus Christ saves men. He believes that the Kingdom of Heaven is in its elementary state this side of the second coming of Christ and the resurrection of the righteous dead; after that it would be in its perfection.

The speaker said that the Kingdom of God consisted of four things: First—A king over it; second—A law to govern it; third-Commissioned officers to carry out this law; fourth—Subjects to be governed. He spoke of the importance of our entering into this kingdom to day through the door of faith in God and the Lord Jesus Christ, repentence from dead works; baptism for the remission of sins; and laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. He said the great mistake men had made from the time of Boniface first, of the sixth century up to our day, was that men had made laws and creeds to suit themselves. He showed what the officers of this kingdom were from the texts in 1 Cor. 12, and Eph. 4.

He preached again at seven o'clock, in the Plainville Chapel, on the subject of "Adoption," to the satisfaction of all present.

______ A DIALOGUE.

RESPECTING THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN THESE LAST DAYS, THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN FORMER DAYS. AND THE CHURCH OF SO-CALLED MODERN CHRISTIANITY.

BETWEEN DR. TWINETEXT AND ELDER D. PART FOUR.

DR. T.-Elder, when we parted last evening I began to consider the subject of our conversation more thoroughly than ever before; indeed you presented the church to me with its various members in such a light, that I saw a beauty and a glory in it that I had never conceived. And in searching the scriptures, I find your beautiful presentation in perfect harmony with the record; and I confess it looks like a revelation of order, beauty, glory and fitness, and I wonder that I had never understood it in this light before; but such an order could only have been for the establishment of God's eternal truth in the world, and when that was fairly established, and the church fairly grounded on the rock, then, at least, apostles and prophets, together with miracles, etc., could be done away with,—they having answered the end of their existence. Had this order of things been established for all time they would be in the church to-day; and this not being in the church is ample proof that that order of things was not intended to continue beyond that day.

ELDER D.—Doctor, I am pleased that you are making some progress; but you are not out of the woods yet. Your conclusions are not consistent with the admiration excited by the "revelation of order, beauty, glory, and fitness," you see in the church as established by Christ. Nor are your conclusions in harmony with the divine record, for that declares they were given "For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ; till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God; unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." You claim that all christendom are the saints or people of God. Are their conflicting creeds an illustration of that "Unity of the faith?" If so, tell us what is confusion, division, strife, and anarchy! The fact that after eighteen centuries the so-called church of Christ is a hundred times more divided, conflicting, and at variance with itself than was the church when this divine order was established, is at once indubitable evidence of the absolute necessity for such an order as that described by Paul, to continue through the ages to each successive generation; and also of the utter inability of human wisdom to bring man to that unity of the faith contemplated in the divine economy. Again: has christendom come to the knowledge of the Son of God, or has any part of it? Holy writ declares this knowledge can not be obtained only by revelation (Matt. 11:27; Luke 10:22; 1 Cor. 2:9-11; 12:3). You deny present revelation, and christendom has denied it for nearly seventeen centuries; and if no man can know the Father or the Son, but by revelation to him or them, how is it possible for them to know either of these Divine Beings without it? And as Jesus declares that to know God and Jesus Christ is eternal life (John 17:3), then ignorance of them must tend to death; hence the imperative necessity for the means which God ordained to bring us to that life-giving knowledge. And still more, "unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." Did you ever consider the standard that God has set for his childern to attain unto? Christ is that standard; his life of untainted purity, with all its wealth of boundless love; its incomparable meekness, and humility; its all-embracing and clinging faith, and unshaken confidence in the power that sent him,-the ever willing submission in life's darkest hour, rendered doubly dark by the withdrawal, in the hour of death, of the face of him whose smiles alone he prized, and whose fatherly hand had hitherto graciously sustained him. His stern, unyielding resistance to the tempter's wily and flattering arts on the mountain's top, and on the temple's pinnacle, at a time when nature in her weakness might be most easily flattered and led astray. His firm adherence to the plan marked out by the unerring hand, when all the powers of earth and hell were arrayed against him to turn him aside from duty's path,-His matchless patience under the most distressing and annoying circumstances that humanity could be surrounded with.-His unequalled forbearance, not only with weak and faithless followers, but with the bitterest and most deadly foes. His steady perseverance and untiring diligence in doing good, and in seeking to accomplish the highest, grandest good for all—friends and foes; and add to this, the unmixed cup, that while he bore the sorrows and woes of all mankind, and endured the pains of hell and death, that humanity might be redeemed, those whom he came to bless spurned him from their presence, spat their rage upon his divine form, and cried, Away with him! Crucify him! insulting his departing spirit with vinegar and gall, to render, if possible, his end more bitter than death, with their fiendish rage, could make it. Yet no word of revenge, no look of scorn, no thought of retribution in his heart, but the words of pity, love and forgiveness, such as the world has never heard or seen before, nor since, and which might well astonish angels, who dwell only in the atmosphere of love divine. "Father for give them, they know not what they do." Here is a character that the world could never conceive, and now can not understand, because it is so immeasurably higher than humanity in its noblest mood. Yet this character is the standard. This is the measure of the fulness to which we must all come. That the fulness of his divine excellencies may be found in us. Can unaided humanity reach this standard? Without it we can not dwell in the presence of God. Then how essential it is that God should provide a means whereby we may attain to this excellent glory! He has demanded nothing of us more than he has provided means for us to accomplish. Hence He gave these gifts unto men; set them in the church, that mankind may be brought to "The measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." This is the "end of the exist-ence" of these "helps," "apostles, proph-ets," etc.; and until all the children of God, of every nation, kindred, tongue, and people, are brought up to this glorious standard, these God-appointed means can not be dispensed with. It was not enough merely to establish the church on the earth eighteen hundred years ago. The children of God in every age need the same means to bring them up to the same perfection; and God has appointed no other order. Modern Christianity has long since done away with them, and boast that they can reach this glorious standard by their own means, and instead of the "One Body" marching steadily, but surely on, to "the mark of the prize of their high calling," led by divinely appointed and divinely inspired apostles and prophets, etc., we see a thousand different bodies, claiming no membership with each other; led by teachers filled with worldly wisdom, but ignorant of the counsel of God; inspired by a burning thirst for fame and gold, to tickle the itching ears of a world whose god is their belly and whose glory is their shame, and who love not the ways of righteousness, but follow the devices of their own hearts, until that which you call "the church" is tossed about on the ocean of doubt and superstition, "With every wind of doctrine, by the sleight and cunning craftiness of men, whereby they lie in wait to deceive," and is drifting further and further from the one goal and the true haven of oneness, love, purity, meekness, faith and truth, as found in the character of our dear Redeemer, and pattern. My friend, when the church declared herself independent of those divine "helps" she committed moral suicide, and forfeited the divine protection, by her desertion of her Lord, and her abandonment And instead of the Fair of his laws. Bride of the Lamb, clothed in the spotless robe of righteousness, adorned with the priceless jewels which her triumphant Lord bestowed when "He ascended up on high, and gave gifts unto men," wearing the girdle of truth, "the shield of faith," the diadem of meekness, and the "helmet of salvation," we see the "Mother of Harlots," drunken with the blood of the Saints, and a motley, antagonistic crew of contending daughters, clothed in filthy habiliments, full of haughtiness and pride, yet exhibiting their own shame, clinging to their vain imaginations, and the flattering falsehoods of the prince of evil. And this latter you call the church of Christ. Is there any "beauty, order, glory, and fitness" in such a contradictory and contending mass of isms as is now presented to our view?

T.—I confess that you have presented the ancient church in a beautiful light; but the picture you have drawn of the church in modern times is truly a deplorable one. I know she has dispensed with the gifts and blessings; prophets and apostles no longer lead her; and while she claims to preach the gospel, she does not believe that some ordinances are essential to salvation; and as to commandments, she believes that Christ has done all for man, and that all that is left for us now to do, is to believe in him as the Savior of the world. I know, too, that she is rent by contentions and divisions; but this is a natural consequence, because it is impossible for us all to see alike, and we believe that God and Christ never intended for his people to see eye to eye, or to be one in religious matters. Why, men are divided upon all questions. The most skillful scientists differ. There are scarcely two mechanics that ever take the same precise method in the manufacture of the same kind of article. There are not even two blades of grass alike; no two men are alike in their mental or physical natures, and it would seem impossible for all men to understand the word of God alike; and notwithstanding the darkness of your picture, great blessings result from these divisions in spiritual things. If they do cause different churches to arise, each church feels the burden of its mission, and impelled by the spirit of emulation, they each seek to extend their borders and win converts to their respective faiths; and who shall tell the vast good effected, or number the millions of souls saved yearly by these conflicting churches, each contending for salvation in its own way.

D.-Since the Scriptures set forth but one "way" of salvation, it follows that God has ordained but one; and it is difficult to see how these "conflicting churches" can "save souls," or lead to salvation by their conflicting ways; for although man may change, God is unchangeable, hence he has but one way of salvation, and that way admits of no difference of interpretation, but must be accepted as God has given it (2 Pet. 1:20). Your argument against the children of God seeing eye to eye, as being one in sentiment, is a rope of sand. It is true that in all the physical and mental world there is great variety, yet no man has ever proved that "there were no two blades of grass alike," nor even two hu-man beings alike. It is a hackneyed phrasewithout any known foundation; but I grant you there is great difference in human judgments, arising partly from different circumstances, such as difference in capacity, education, etc., yet it has not been proved that it was impossible for all men to see alike in temporal things; it is only proved that they do not see alike, but bring all under the same influence, let them be educated by the same teachers, taught the same lessons in the same way, and it is highly probable they would understand them alike. But in spiritual things it is impossible for any man to have a correct understanding unless he is taught of God, as we have before proved from Holy Writ. This fact God has declared, and in order that all mankind might come to a correct understanding of those things, He has instructed by revealing his will, and he has promised one guide, one teacher unto all who will come and learn and practice what they learn (John 14, 15, 16). This teacher, the Holy Ghost, will guide into all truth, by teaching all the same lessons and in the same way, by revelation. If you claim that some have not the capacity to receive, the Holy Ghost will enlarge that capacity which they possess, until they can drink in the fulness of God's truth, until all can see eye to eye, sufficient to obtain eternal life, by the application, on their part, of the great lessons of life he will teach them. Now for the confirmation of Holy Writ. Jesus is represented as engaged in solemn prayer to God, not for himself alone, but for others. Will he ask aright? Does he know their wants? Will his Father yield to "His Beloved Son" the blessings he seeks? (John 17:11). "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou gavest me, that they may be one, as we are." Do the Father and Son see eye to eye? Are they one in sentiment, in teaching, in understanding, and in practice? Then these for whom he offered this prayer were to be one in the same sense, "as we are." Listen further to this sublime petition, (verses 20, 21, 22), "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one, as thou, Father art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us;" "that they may be one even as we are one: * * * that they may be made perfect in one." From this prayer we learn that it is the privilege of all the children of God to become one. The fact that the churches of the day are not one in any scriptural sense, as God's children, is evidence that either they don't accept the teachings of the Holy Ghost, and hence have departed from God, and consequently are not his church, or God has failed to hear and answer the prayer of His "Beloved Son." But he did hear and answer, upon all who were willing to accept the conditions upon which this inestimable blessing of oneness was to be received. And to aid in this great work of bringing us all "In the unity of the faith," etc., he gave the heavenly gifts spoken of by Paul; and among these he gave Aposties and Prophets, etc.; and so long as the church followed the teachings of that infallible guide, they were drawing nearer to this oneness, and as many of its members as endured faithful to the end of their lives, they became enabled to "see as they were seen, and know as they were known," and attained to "the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

To be continued.

MUTUAL AND BENEFICIARY SOCIETIES.

"And whatsoever thing persuadeth to do good is of me, for good cometh of none save it be of me."—Book of Mormon.

All associations or compacts have some specified object in view, the carrying out of which object all the rules and regulations of each are intended to accomplish. The more perfect the mind of him or them who originate those laws or regulations, the more perfectly will they, when executed, effect the object intended; but however perfectly they have been devised for the effecting of any object, unless they are perfectly executed, the effect sought to be obtained by them is not obtained, and the whole body, and especially some of its membership, suffer loss, and the association, as such, is judged by those not acquainted with its object, or will not believe the expressions of the association as to what its object is, by the effect produced by unexecuted laws, on the part of the body or individual members of the body.

The association above all others which should bear marks of its perfection, and does in every case where the laws and regulations given by the founder are strictly executed, is the Kingdom of God. In it there are laws given especially for the spiritual or mental advancement of its membership; and when perfectly executed they effect that for which they were given; but when not rightly executed, the blessings promised are not received, and as before argued, the association is judged by those who do not know the effect of the laws and regulations when perfectly executed, or those who do not wish to know the association for good, as not as represented, because that which is promised by it as the object of its existence is

While all the laws given of God may be called spiritual, yet because of the object to be effected by some, they are called temporal; the effect promised by them being more especially for time. These relate to the physical and financial advancement. Tis true all these laws more or less affect the spiritual advancement,—for when we receive the blessing promised by having kept them, our faith is increased or confirmed. And the adherence to those special spiritual laws effect our advancement in present or temporal affairs, either in an additional accumulation, or a superior appreciation of the amount already obtained. But unless the laws denominated temporal are faithfully executed by God's people to whom they have been made known, the object for which they were given is not enjoyed nor in any wise made manifest, only by promise.

When the Kingdom of God is in existence, there is especial need of those laws being executed which are for the present mutual advancement of each member in it; first, because God has given them, and second, because they (the members) are generally separated from the world, or cast out from the necessary mutual friendship before obtained while in the world, by their change of position. The world becomes estranged from them, and the privileges present and beneficiary, some of which were really necessary to enjoyment of life, are somewhat curtailed, and hence the need of the privileges promised, by virtue of the temporal laws of the church being perfectly executed, without which the blessings which are really needed to advance the interests of the church are not enjoyed, and its membership suffer

Those who are called to teach and execute the laws of the Kingdom of God, and who are sent out by the church for this purpose, and the poor of its membership, are dependent upon the execution of certain duties by those who form the church. to a great extent. God has ordained certain means for their support, which means if unexecuted become void, the expected result fails of accomplishment, and those blessings God has ordained shall be thus enjoyed, are not received. Those who should be sustained are not, and they fail to perform the duties assigned them, not because God is not true, but those to whom he has given the means by which this result shall be effected, have proven unfaithful to their trust. Those who should have thus been sustained are not, and hence must suffer loss and look to some other source for assistance; the aged, infirm and poor to beneficiary institutions founded by men, and the ministry to some source for employment, and cease their expected duties, besides suffering loss, all because the laws of the church are not faithfully executed. If they were, it would be otherwise; for God hath spoken it. We hence see the necessity of the instruction of Christ, appreciated by those who have felt its need, and received of its benefits: "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations." In what way this friendship is to be gained is not stated, but this must we know, it must be in harmony with that which is good. Some have sought it by speculative means, in the purchase of lands or stock, with an expectation of their value being enhanced, or with the expectation that by the use of them they may be profited; others have entered into partnership arrangements for the purpose of manufacturing articles for sale, or for the sale of such manufactures, in which partnership there were certain secrets, for the purpose of protection, in a "partisan" way, and an altogether legitimate way as Those who thus seek to make "friends of the mammon of unrighteousness," have had time and ability to thus seek; but had their time been occupied in an altogether charitable work, this could not have been done. And if those upon whom God had intended that they should depend for assistance to sustain them and those who depended upon them, would not or did not comply with those laws by which they were to be thus ministered to, they must be the sufferers, and they remain subject to a very unpromising condition unless in some way they have made, "friends of the mammon of unrighteousness," upon which they must to some extent depend while in this present state, and especially when support fails through unfaithfulness on the part of those through whom it is to be given.

Every association holds the sacred right to be heard in its own defense before judgment is rendered, and to advocate the object to be effected by its existence. And for those who have not accepted the rules governing the association, or for one not adopted into the association to judge of the association and its effects contrary to the advocated privileges of the association through its books, periodicals, or representatives, is but base assumption, and contrary to the "golden rule, given by the Master of all that is good." Even should one judge by what is said by those who have been members of an association, and because of motives of antagonism, or when we do not know what their motives were, have separated themselves from an association, of the object of the association, we would many times mistake in judgment, especially when their statements were contrary to those made by those whom we know to be upright and truthful men and women, who have as good or better privileges of knowing of what they speak, and an exercise of the judgment based upon this principle will bring, and has brought sad consequences to some, and especially to those not members of the Kingdom of God, when thus judging concerning its Object.

This manner of judging and basing extreme antagonism against that judged, has brought much unnecessary trouble to individuals, and even to whole bodies of people, especially when that antagonism has been sustained at the expense of good feeling and sacred obligations resting upon them in sustaining the advancement of that body which they had made a sacred covenant to sustain, where much expense has been incurred; when had the same amount been expended in accordance with the law of the church, more love would have been manifested towards God's work, and would have been assisting to promote the benefits of said work; while now time is employed manufacturing excuses—we say manufacturing them, for God has not given them-for not complying with the tithing and free will laws God has given, while at the same time some are giving free-will offerings to antagonize that against which the church has not taken any measures, and need not, only to fully execute the laws of God to His church; for then, those who enter into the church and see such a power manifested as God promises to make manifest to his people when faithful, the little benefit to be obtained in any way contrary to the principles of truth, or that would in any wise hinder them from a perfect compliance with all principles that would advance their interest in the kingdom of God, or advance a cause so beneficiary, would fade into nothingness, and their love for their former ties for mutual benefit would become as though they had not been. But when the object or present benefits of the laws of the church,—such as ministering to the orphans and widows, the aged and infirm, and others in need, are not obtained as perfectly as in mutual associations organized by men, there is nothing to show that the good done by the church is equal to the good done by the associations of men; and when men in these associations do the good intended to be done through the church, who can say but that God has had something to do in thus persuading them to act, especially when the incentive to their thus acting are portions of instruction as recorded as having been given by Christ for the benefit of mankind. And then the incentive to the organizing of these beneficiary societies, whether they be secret or not, is a desire to do good on the part of those organizing; and ask the many sick and mourning ones, the orphans and widows, and those in straitened circumstances, who have been ministered to through the means, if these societies have not done good, and if they have not been led to praise God for the good done, which praise to God these teach to be practiced for blessings received. I am fully persuaded that that which leads men and women to praise God is not very bad, or at least of the devil. The gospel and the kingdom of God, when in perfect operation, comprehend all that is good or beneficial; but when some of the principles of truth are put into effective operation through other organizations than the church, when those organizations have been established for that purpose, can it be said that they are "against us?" The Good Master says. The Good Master says, "He that is not against us is for us."

Much that is done by the children of God to benefit their fellow men if done more secretly and not exploded so much to the world, would effect a greater advancement of the work of truth. If alms are given to the glory of God, it is not to be seen of men. Too often it is the case that when alms are given it is published "from Dan to Beersheba." Many times the person to whom the gift has been given is injured far more than benefitted by such operations.

In whatever way men can be persuaded to do good, I shall never feel justified in condemning. I believe it to be too much of the dog in the manger policy,—will not practically seek to bring about the good intended in the gospel, nor let others alone who are seeking to bring about that good.

As we have before asserted, the gospel, if it is put into practice in all its parts, will cause to be enjoyed in the earth and in heaven all that is necessary; but until it is put into that position, there will be other means sanctioned for the carrying out of such principles as will be for the mutual advancement, even if they be altogether human in their origin; and if it be concluded that because of wickedness and deception those ways must be protected by secrecy, I am sure no objection should be made especially by those who are reaping the benefits of protection through a nation which is more or less sustained by legalized organizations of police and detective forces for the protecting an overthrow of the government by such secret combinations as spoken of in the Book of Mormon in terms of condemnation, (see pages 305, 382, 383, 397, 408, 434, 435, 514,) which were organized for the purpose of "robbery," "plunder," "murders" and "getting gain." In such societies as these last named, against which governments, and sometimes individuals are compelled to protect themselves, organized for the purpose of "getting gain," etc., without being restricted as all mutual secret organizations of which I am acquainted are, by doing "unto others as you would that others should do unto you," but left with a license to do anything that will accomplish the object in view—"getting gain," there is nothing to entice good people to sustain them; and I am persuaded that all good people are opposed to them, by virtue of the object and effect of such societies. The advocated object for which they are organized is antagonistic to good, or persuading men to do good; and for this reason those who wish good brought about, must protect themselves against the possibility of these organizations accomplishing their object, even though they do so by organizations in which are such secrets as will protect or assist them while thus acting, or while protecting others against such intrusions. We see a vast difference between these two classes of secret com-The object and result of one is the mutual benefit of all in that which is good, with no desire for the injury of any; while the other is desire of "gaining" in power or wealth, whether at the expense of others or not. Gain is the sole object, to be attained without any moral restrictions, upon the principle that "the end justifies the means."

There are then three kinds of organizations, which are secret in some sense, whether called secret or not. First, the Kingdom of God and all organizations that in any wise pertain to it, such as quorum meetings, Elders' Courts, etc., and we might include here the marriage relationship; second, the beneficiary societies organized by men which have certain secrets for the purpose of protecting their membership from being intruded upon in the dispensing of certain benefits and privileges to them by virtue of their compliance with the laws of the association; and third, secret combinations having for their sole object "getting gain" at the expense of others, having secrets only to protect them in carrying out their wicked devices, and in dividing plunder and spoils, with regulations inciting their membership to do evil, hence from the devil. (See Book of Mormon, Moroni 7: 1, 2.) In the Kingdom of God we must understand that what is withheld from one and revealed unto another is for the good of all; and it is with this intention that this order has been accepted by organizations of men; that is for the good of all concerned.

Against the third class mentioned only, do I understand God has spoken condemnatory, and against such the church is now exercising herself when opposing the Endowment House, Nihilism, Socialism, Communism, and secret societies with like objects; and when opposing evil in all phases, and against such are we as children of God instructed to act, and thus by so doing advance the interests of truth and right in the church and in the nation. But as for those associations of men whose object is to persuade men to do good, to be law abiding, upright, and truthful citizens, and to believe in the Great Creator of the universe, we have to conclude that they "are not against us," and thus we should act, remembering that "whatsoever thing persuadeth men to do good is of God." J. FRANK MINTUN.

Conserence Minutes.

NORTH-WEST KANSAS.

The thirteenth quarterly conference of the above district was held with the Twin Creek Branch, Kansas, August 29th and 30th, 1885 Pres. A. H. Parsons in the chair, H. R. Harder, sec. Blue Rapids 62; Twin Creek 22; 4 received by letter. Elmira 31; Prairie Home 21. Official report.-Elders James Caffall, John Landers, A. H. Parsons, G. W. Beebe, G. W. Shute, M. Smith, Jemison, R. Hoyer, G. W. Lush, A. Sears, J. D. Bennett, by letter; Priests B. H. Case, H. R. Harder, and Bro. Jemison. Resolved, That we receive the recommendation of the Goshen Branch to ordain Bro. Harder an Elder, and that action be deferred until next conference. The ministry to labor under the direction of the district president. Adjourned to meet at Blue Rapids, December 12th, 1885, at half-past ten o'clock.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA.

The above district conference convened as per appointment of president, with Jefferson Branch, October 9th, 1885. J. M. Range in the chair. I. F. Kingsbury, secretary. The Bishop and his counselor were requested to take part in the conference. Elders J. M. Range, D. Brown, J. H. Lawn, R. Smith, Pres. I. F. Kingsbury, J. B. Carmichel, J. Twitchel, Teacher Levi Alexander, and Deacon A. Page, reported. The secreretary reported the district as containing five branches, whose aggregate official strength consists of seven Elders, five Priests, five Teachers, one Deacon. D. Brown, Bishop's Agent, reported having received $12.50. The district treasurer reported on hand at last conference $5, received since $11.35, making $16.35. Paid J. H. Lawn for missionary work $12, on hand $435. J. H. Lawn elected president, and J. M. Range as associate, I. F. Kingsbury sustained as secretary, for next six months. Branch reports.-Watsonville, 34; 1 died. Daniel Brown, president; J. F. Kingsbury, clerk. San Benito, 33; J. H Lawn, president and clerk. Lone Branch 13; E. L. Burton, president; Mary A. Twaddle, clerk. Long Valley and Jefferson Branches not reported. Preaching during during conference by A. H. Smith, E. L. Kelley and G. A. Blakeslee. Saturday was given to the Bishop and his counselor, in which to explain the tithing law. Sunday afternoon sacrament meeting, in charge of Bro. Blakeslee; the Saints enjoyed the Spirit, and were strengthened and comforted. Adjourned to meet at Hollister, the first Friday after March 20th, 1886.

WESTERN WISCONSIN.

The above district conference convened at the Wheatville Branch, Crawford county, Wisconsin, October 17th and 18th, 1885; A. L. Whiteaker, president; W. A. McDowell, clerk. Branch Reports.—Excelsior 18. Wheatville 13. No report from other branches. Elders A. L. Whiteaker, W. A. McDowell, V. Closson, F. M. Cooper, J. W. Whiteaker, and J. S. Whiteaker reported. A. V. Closson Bishop's Agent, reported on hand last report $5.85, received $3.60; total on hand $9.45. A. L. Whiteaker and A. V. Closson, committee to visit delinquent members, report: "Our temporal affairs has been such that we could not visit them; but if continued will try and visit them soon."-Continued. A. L. Whiteaker was sustained as president, and W. A. McDowell as clerk of the district; together with all of the spiritual authorities of the church in righteous. Preaching in the evening by Bro. F. M. Cooper: in the forenoon by W. A. McDowell and A. V. Closson. In the afternoon sacrament and testimony meeting, in charge of J. W. Whiteaker and F. M. Cooper. Preaching in the evening by A. L. Whiteaker and W. A. McDowell. Adjourned to meet at the Excelsion Branch, Richland county, Wis., January 9th and 10th, 1886, at ten o'clock.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS.

Conference of the above district was held at Mission Branch, LaSalle Co, Illinois, October 17th and 18th, 1885; W. Vickery president pro tem., and F. M. Weld, secretary pro tem. The following charge against Bro. John S. Patterson was then presented: I hereby charge Bro. John S. Patterson as being the sole cause of the wrong done C. C. Frisby (by the conference held at Plano), by fraudulent missrepresentation, and charge him as unfit to represent the district as president, till he rectify the wrong done. Signed, John S. Keir. Conference refused to sustain the charge by resolution. Permanent organization: Bro. John S. Patterson, president; W. Vickery, secretary. The president made some very appropriate remarks at some length, in regard to our duties to God, the church, and the world. Branch Reports.-Braidwood reported verbally by Bro. J. S. Keir; 1 baptized. Burlington, Wis., 56; 5 baptized; H. Southwick, president. Streator 15; 3 received by vote; A. Farling, president. Mission, no change; Thomas Hougas, president. Plano 192; 4 received by certificate of baptism, 1 by letter, 3 removed, and 3 marriages; W. Vickery, president. First Chicago, no change; S. C. Good, president. Amboy, reported verbally by Bro. Patterson. Elder T. A. Philips reported by letter. Brethren Hougas and Vickery appointed last session to visit Streator, reported their labors as resulting in some good, in the removing some of the existing difficulties. Report adopted and committee discharged. Bro. Patterson reported his labors, which were confined to the district; had baptized 5 since last conference. W. Vickery had baptized 2. A motion to have the branches report by delegation hereafter was lost, with o for and 10 against. A letter was read from Bro. F. M. Cooper, for the consideration of the conference. Case of Bro. Richard Wolliscroft was presented by W. Vickery, after which he was restored to his former membership and office in the church. Bro. John S. Patterson was chosen president of the district for the next four months, and W. Vickery, secretary. The consider tion of Bro. Cooper's letter taken up, and the following resolution adopted: That we extend an invitation to Bro. F. M. Cooper to make his home in the Northern Illinois District, and labor in the ministry as he can. Case of C. C. Frisby which was appealed to General Conference from the Northern Illinois District. The appeal was withdrawn, and the Northern Illinois District so notified. Preaching in the evening by Bro. John S. Keir; on Sunday morning by Bro. Thomas Hougas: in the afternoon sacrament and fellowship meeting, in charge of brethern Thomas Hougas, J. S. Keir and G. Scheidacker; 32 bore testimony in the hour. Preaching in the evening by Bro. J. S. Patterson. Adjourned to meet at Plano, Kendall Co., Illinois, February 19th and 20th, 1886.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.

Conference of the above district was held in Wenn's hall, Wilber, Saline Co., Nebraska, Oct., 18th, 19th, 1885. Levi Anthony, president; J. B. Gouldsmith, clerk. Preaching by brethren R. C, and R. M. Elvin, and Thomas Nutt. Elders L. Anthony, R. M. Elvin (baptized 8), R. C. Elvin, J. M. Terry (baptized one), J. W. Waldsmith, J. Armstrong, T. Nutt, H. Fields; Teacher D. Broilliar and Deacon T. L. Rider, reported. Branch Reports.-Wilber, 99; no change. Nebraska City, 137; 5 baptized, 2 died. Plattsmouth, 34; removed 2, added by letter 2. Platte River, returned for endorsement by the branch. Palmyra and Moroni, no report. Bro. J. Armstrong was appointed to labor at Moroni and Plattsmouth, Bro. Nutt at Palmyra, Bro. R. C. Elvin under the direction of the District President. Bro. J. M. Terry, as circumstances permit. Bishop's Agent reported tithing received $15. paid out $75. Free will offering received $11,60, paid out $13.60. Adjourned to meet at Nebraska City, Neb., January 17th, 1886, at eleven o'clock.

CENTRAL MISSOURI.

The above district conference met at the Saints' Chapel, with the Wakenda Branch, on Saturday, October 10th, 1885. Elder J. B. Belcher presiding; M. A. Trotter, secretary. Wakenda Branch reported, no changes. No report from Carrollton or Alma branches. Elders J. D. Craven, A. J. Seely, R. Ware, E. W. Cato, Sen., J. B. Belcher, A. H. Herke, F. M. Miller, D. Powell, P. P. Powell, W. L. Booker and M. A. Trotter, reported in person; Elders J. Westwood, T. J. Pollard, by letter. Priests W. H. Nuckles and G. Carter, reported in person. D. Powell, district clerk, reported $3.20 on hand, and the Bishop's Agent $2 90 on hand. Preaching Saturday evening by Elder R. Ware; prayer and testimony meeting on Sunday morning, conducted by Elders A. H. Herke and F. M. Miller, The funeral sermon of sister J. B. Belcher was preached in the forenoon by Elder D. Powell, assisted by E. W. Cato, Sen. Sacrament, prayer and testimony meeting in the afternoon, conducted by J. D. Craven, assisted by E. W. Cato, sen. Adjourned to meet at the Saints' Chapel, Wakenda, on Friday, at two o'clock, before the third Sunday in January, 1886.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Conference of the above district met with Hersey Branch, October 17th, 1885. Elder George Cleveland, president pro. tem.; J. A. Carpenter, secretary. The forenoon was occupied in prayer and testimony; had an enjoyable time, the Spirit of God being enjoyed in power. Hersey, Sherman, Maple Valley and Forester branches, reported. All accepted except Sherman, which is only a partial report, and the branch secretary was requested to send in a full report to the district secretary. Elders' reports.-Levi Phelps (baptized 5), J. A. Carpenter (baptized 2), A. Barr, E. A. Shelly, Joseph Shippy, G. Cleveland; Priests Saleda Shippy, J. Emmett; Teacher S. Emmett. The motion of last conference to sustain J, J. Cornish in the field, was rescinded, and the Bishop of the church requested to sustain Bro. Cornish in the field, according to General Conference appointment. J. J. Bailey was sustained as Bishop's Agent, and J. A. Carpenter as district secretary. A. Barr was released as district president and J. J. Cornish appointed. Preaching by Elder E. A. Shelley in the evening. Met on Sunday morning for prayer and testimony; had a time of rejoicing, the Spirit of God being with us in power. Preaching in the forenoon by J. A. Carpenter; in the afternoon and evening by J. J. Cornish. One baptized. Adjourned to meet in Brown City, Sanilac Co., Michigan, next June according to call of the president.

MANCHESTER.

The above district conference convened at the Saints' Chapel, 113 Clarendon street, Hulme, Manchester, England, the 17th October, 1885. Joseph Dewsnup, president of district; James Baty, district secretary. Voice and vote in conference accorded to Elder C. H. Caton of the Birmingham District. Delegates' credentials from Manchester, Farnworth and Sheffield, examined. Sheffield rejected: the branch not having complied with the rule governing appointment of delegates from branches to district conferences. No delegates from Leeds or Wigan. President reported. Statistical, financial, and spiritual reports from branches read and accepted. Report of special committee in the case of Elder C. H. Hassall read. Committee discharged and report adopted. Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons, reports read and accepted. Ordinations recommended: Priests W. R. Armstrong of Manchester and Wm. Seekings of Leeds, to the office of Elder. Jos. Dewsnup, Jun., of Manchester and T. Roberts of Leeds to the office of Priest. Joseph Laycock of Wigan to the offices of Teacher. Endorsed by conference and ordinations ordered. Authorities of the church (general, mission and district) sustained. Conference adjourned to April, 1886. Present: Elder Thomas Taylor, president of the English Mission; Elder C. H. Caton, president of the Birmingham District; Elder Joseph Dewsnup, president of the Manchester District; Elders Henry Greenwood, James Baty, Joseph Ramsey, John Austin, Henry Hoole, William Spargo, John McCue. Sunday services.—Prayer meeting in the forenoon, in charge of President Taylor. Fellowship meeting in the afternoon; Elder C. H. Caton in charge. Preaching meeting in the evening, President Taylor in charge; sermon by Elder Caton, on the conversion and teachings of the Apostle Peter. There was a good attendance throughout, much interest manifested, and we believe good accomplished.

Miscellaneous.

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

RENICK, Randolph Co., Mo., November 11th, 1885.

Bro. Blair: Please say to the Saints through the Herald, and especially to the Saints in the North-east District of Missouri, that I would be pleased to correspond with them, as I have been appointed district president, and will at once enter into my field of labor. I would be glad if Elders of the branches would write to me and advise with me in regard to the work in hand. I ask an interest in the faith and prayers of all the Saints everywhere. There were two added to the church here yesterday, one by baptism and one upon former baptism. Our conference was harmonious, and we were greatly blessed. The Spirit was with us through the entire time, and it will be remembered by some of the Saints in Renick for many a day. Pray for me and mine. Yours in bonds, WM. H. BYBEE.

WANTED.

A sister, advanced in years, and a lover of the latter day work, capable of doing house work, and who would be an agreable companion to another aged sister, would find a pleasant home with Sr. Hannah P. Gamet, widow of the late Bishop Gamet, of Little Sioux, Harrison Co., Iowa. Any one applying must bring certificate of membership in the Reorganized Church. Address: H. P. Gamet, Little Sioux, Iowa. C. DERRY.

BORN.

MEYER.—At Nebraska City, Neb., October 10th, 1885, to Bro. Cornelius and Sr. M. K. Meyer, a daughter; blessed November 8th, by Elder R. M. Elvin, and named Emma.

DIED.

HILL.—At Foundry Hill, Tennessee, on the 8th day of October, 1885, Sr. Mary Hill, aged 65 years, 8 months and 15 days. Deceased was born January 13th, 1819, at Smithville, DeKalb Co., Tenn.; baptized and confirmed on the 13th of August, 1882, by Elder George Hyde, at Paris, Henry county, Tenn. Funeral discourse by Elder George Montague.

Bertelsen.—At Grand Ledge, Mich, October 29th, 1885, of acute peritonitis, Abraham Frederick Bertelsen, only son of Christian P. T. and Anne M. Bertelsen. He was born at Logan, Utah, February 5th, 1865; was baptized at Salt Lake City, February 8th, 1875, by Z. H. Gurley, and confirmed by Robert Warnock. He was the only son left out of six. In the spring or summer of 1876 he came to me one beautiful morning, and with his young face beaming with joy, said, Father, I am so glad this morning, because I have had such a nice dream last night. I dreamed that we had moved to Missouri and that some great desolation had passed over the land, because there were but few people living there. Suddenly there was a great multitude of people that came and settled down and filled up the whole country, and they were such a beautiful and good people. I asked you where those people came from, and who they were, and you told me that it was the ten tribes of Israel that had returned from the land of the North. When he had finished he asked whether there was such a people living as is called the ten tribes of Israel; when I opened the Bible and commenced to read and instruct him. I mention this as it came from the innocent lips of a child, who knew nothing at all about the history of the ten tribes. His character reflected honor upon himself and parents, and credit to the cause of God. Elder W. Rumel preached the funeral sermon at the Saints' Chapel, which was well fitted for the occasion; there were many strangers pres-C. & A. M. B.

"MANUSCRIPT FOUND."

We now offer for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spalding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. This book of 144 pages 8 mo, is now in the hands of the binder, and orders for it are solicited. Single copies, in cloth 45 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 40 cents each; in paper, single copies 25 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 20 cents each. Liberal discount to dealers.

REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.

We have now on sale at this office, in pamphlet form, containing 48 pages, the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of plural marriage." Price, post paid, single copies 10 cents; 75 cents per dozen to one address.

THE fact that a far larger percentage of conversion result from the labors of missionaries in foreign lands, than from the labors of the Christian churches in our own, is a bad showing for the churches. Other things being equal it is far more difficult to convert a heathen to practical Christianity than it is one educated under Christian influences. That those who are seeking the conversion of the latter should outstrip the former can only be accounted for by the fact that they are far more earnest and self sacrificing Christians. When our Christians at home awake to the greatness of their responsibilities, cut loose from the secret societies and unchristian associations-when the ball room, the lodge and the theatre shall be forsaken and Christian methods of philantrophy are adopted and persisted in, then will the home evangelization more than keep pace with that in heathen lands.

Good Hints.—If your seat is too hard to sit upon, stand up. If a rock rises up before you rool it away, or climb over it. If you want money, earn it. If you wish confidence prove yourself worthy of it. It takes longer to skin an elephant than a mouse, but the skin is worth something. Don't be content with doing what an other has done-surpass it. Deserve a success and it will come. The boy was not born a man: the sun does not rise like a rocket, or go down like a bullet fired from a gun: slowly but surely it makes its round, and never tires. It is as easy to be a leader as a wheelhorse. If the task be long, the pay will be greater; if the task be hard, the more compétent you must be to do it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.
Sunday School Engineer and Record Book	85
Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1	L 00
Good Behavior Tickets Same price.	199
No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class: 96 for	25
No. 496.—pack of 96 for	20
No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x21/2; 10 for 5c 100 for	40
No. 461.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for	70
No. 281.—Book Markers, 21/2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for	2 25
No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 21/4x4; 10 for 10c., 100	90
No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10
for 20c., 100 for	1 50
No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x41/4; 10 for 15c., 100	25
No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 21/2x4; 10 for 12c., 100	1 00
No. 385 -Autumn Leaves 3v6: 10 to 25c., 100 for	יי ה

FORSCUTT AND SHINN DISCUSSION.

J. Shinn affirms "The Bible Teaches the Coming of Christ to Judge the World is now past." M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible Teaches the Literal Resurrection of the Body from the Grave." Paper covers, 194 pages...... 35

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS. CERTIFICATES AND REPOWIS.

Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen

Annual Statistical Reports, two for Branch Financial Reports, per dozen

Certificates of Baptism and Membership, per dozen

Certificate of Removal, per dozen

Marriage Certificates, per dozen

SONGS OF ZION.
By T. W. Smith, 40 pages, 10cts each, per dozen.... 1 00

FARM FOR RENT.

Eighty acres, 11/2 miles from Lamoni; 53 acres of plow land, the balance in meadow and pasture. Good new house of six large rooms and four closets; also a small house. Stable for two teams, large Crib, two Wells. To be rented for one or more years, cheap for cash, to a good, responsible party. Possession given 1st of March.

MRS. W. H. CURWEN, Box, 94, Lamoni, Iowa.

FARM FOR SALE.

I have Sixty Acres of Land for sale: 37 acres in Grass, 17 acres in new Timber Land, about 8 acres of Standing Timber, and two acres of Orchard; a good Spring Well on the place, a House, Barn, and Granary.

Price: Six Hundred Dollars, Cash Down. The land is situated north of Jeffersonville, Wayne Co., Apply to

MRS. F. P. MOLLOY, Cleveland, Iowa.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L. F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville, Mo., and have always found it fair. square and honest in all its transactions:

T. T. Hinderks,
G. W. Wilcox,
S. L. Blake,
W. N. Boothe,
The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men whose recommendation are worth something.

Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands.

COME AND SEE OUR PAPER A L L

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS. Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Mansen & Walker's Drug Store.

H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

EASY - RUNNING - SEWING - MACHINE.

TT HAR

The Most Room under the Arm. The Best Self-Setting Needle.
The Largest Bobbin.
The Easiest Shuttle to Thread.
The Most Perfect Tension. The Most Reliable Feed.
The Most Perfect Take-Up.
The Best Bobbin Winder.

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME.

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

Agents Wanted by Robert Johns (Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in

INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL, AND PASTELL.

Also, manufacturer of

BED SPRINGS.

THESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or wish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Catalogue, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fail for those who will work diligently.

IF YOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue, anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handlings Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 10 Ds when packed) for only 97c.. IRON-HEATER included for $1.30, to any one who will act as agent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3.50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a

Picture Outfit,

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait. (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only 98c. Catalogue free.

Address ROBERT JOHNS,

PEORIA, ILLINOIS.

(Successor to Johns & Ordway.) In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY. JOHN SHIPPY. DR.

Dental Surgeon,

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Gov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison of Kansas City. It traverses all of the six Great States, MISSOURI. ILLINOIS. IOWA.

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO With branch lines to their important cities and towns. It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly aquipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver, Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs. Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis, Chicago and Dubuque Chicago and Sioux City, Peoria and Council Bluffs, Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omaha St. Louis and St. Paul, St. Louis and Rock Island, St. Louis and Chicago,
Kansas City and Denver,
Kansas City and St. Paul,
Kansas City and Omaha,

Kansas City and Burlington. Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points ith Through Trains to and from points located on its branches.

At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada.
It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

HENRY B. STONE, PER
Ass't Gen'l Manager,
CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass. Agent,

⇒BUSINESS∜

The Davenport Business College

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught. Bookeeping, by single and double entry; Business Arithmetic; Rapid Calculations; Business Wrifing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Talegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circulars address

DUNCAN & HAWKS, Davenport, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed David Dancer, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DARGER; communications and articles to the Editor.

THE SAINTS' HERAL D.

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCUEINES
HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFF, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 32.-Whole No. 655.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 28, 1885.

No. 48.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Menald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR

- EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 28, 1885.

COVERING FAULTS.

"And Shem and Japheth took a garment, and laid it upon both their shoulders, and went backward, and covered the nakedness of their father; and their faces were backward, and they saw not their father's nakedness."—Gen. 0:23.

There is a moral principle embodied in this text that clearly illustrates filial honor and integrity, the lofty humanities of which the soul is capable, and which stands in striking contrast with the low plane of depravity to which the unwise and degenerate may descend. The pure-hearted and noble of earth love and practice this while the foolish and the wicked trample it down with impunity.

Noah drank wine, became drunken, and "was uncovered within his tent. And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and told his two brethren without." Ham was not satisfied to have himself seen his father's sin and shame, but he must call the attention of others, and publish it abroad. He would publicly display the grievous faults of his father, spread the odium, and cover that father with reproach and shame. Ham is the type of a class, who, in every age, have dishonored themselves and brought their own curse, defiled the family, society, the church of God, and entailed a bitter curse on their own seed after them.

Noah was a chosen and honored servant of God; and notwithstanding his weakness and his sins the authority and power of God remained with him to both curse and bless; and it remained for God, and not man, to deal with him for his evils.

And when Ham, through his officiousness, violated his honor as a son and a man, when he failed to protect and preserve his father's reputation and fame, but rather sought to expose his errors and his evils, his brethren revolted at his wickedness, and with faithful steps they hastened to cover their father, and would not permit themselves to see his shame. Heaven witnessed these transactions; God resented and punished the sin of the intermeddling wicked Ham; but greatly blessed the purehearted and loving Shem and Japheth. The ages have witnessed the blessings of these upright ones, and the dishonor and degradation which overtook the corrupt busybody-Ham.

Under the gospel of "good will to man," Christ and his apostles gave special emphasis to this principle. Whatever had been the sins and follies of God's servants -Noah, Abraham, Jacob, Moses, Aaron, Saul, Samuel, Gideon, David, Solomon, and others—they never sought to uncover and expose them, but passed by them in silence, and thus sought to cover them. And while they would neither justify nor excuse the real weaknesses and evils of God's chosen servants, they studiously avoided giving publicity to them, and never mentioned imaginary ones. This was humane; it was noble; nay, more, it was divine; for "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliatio.n"-2 Cor.

When man is guided by the pure dictates of humanity, by the love of God and the Spirit of Christ, he will not greedily nor willingly seek to expose the follies and weaknesses of others, but will rather cover them from the public gaze. They who are, or who profess to be wofully troubled about a noxious weed in their neighbors' garden, are the very ones, usually, who have loads of them in their own. How would these officious parties take it should their neighbors set about hunting up and spreading abroad their past sins and vanities, both the real and the supposed ones? Would they not admire those who, Shem and Japheth-like, would seek to cover them and not even look upon them? The I great Peter taught the true doctrine when he said—"And above all things have fervent charity [love] among yourselves; for charity shall cover a multitude of sins."—

1 Pet. 4: 8. Genuine love, whether in children, parents, husband or wife, kindred, brethren in Christ, or upright people in any place or age—genuine love will ever seek to forgive and cover faults in others.

Those who seek to expose to the public the real or supposed sins and shame of others may well be suspected. Those anxious to pull the mote from their brother's eye, should first take the beam from their own. And those who profess to be disciples of Christ, who busy themselves in exposing the real or supposed failings and evils of others—living or dead—should read and ponder the text at the head of this article, and go and do as Shem and Japheth did with the weak and the erring.

Inasmuch as it pleased God when Shem and Japheth were mindful and jealous of their father's honor and reputation, will He not be pleased with His children in this age who are actuated by the same pure and lofty sentiments? Is it not pleasing in his sight that Joseph, the son of the great Seer, should vindicate the honor and defend the reputation of his murdered father? Think of it; you who read this article. Put yourselves in his place, and then ask yourselves if his efforts to shield his father's fame are not noble and godly! Shem and Japheth hid their fathers' manifest evil, and heaven loved and blessed them for it. And when Joseph is jealous of his father's reputation, and is zealous in its defense, so far as truth and right permits, will not leaven bless him

Some things are laid to his father's charge which he and others do not admit are true. And shall he be denied the effort to defend his father against these unsupported charges, while yet we honor Shem and Japheth when hiding the admitted sin and shame of their father, and also honor Christ, his disciples, and the early Christians for passing by in silence the sins and evils of God's chosen ones? Contrast the course of all these who have looked with sorrow and compassion on the sins of others and would hide them or keep silence in regard to them—contrast these with those who are active and greedy to throw discredit and disgrace upon those guilty of either real or supposed wrongs, and you have light and darkness, goodness and perversity, heaven and hell in contrast.

Reader; what do you think of those who seek to needlessly expose the weaknesses and evils of their fellowmen? And what do you think of those who actively seek to thus expose the real and surmised weaknesses and evils of .the household of faith? Let any one ask their own soul how they would take it, did some one rake up their sins, secret and public, and peddle them abroad. And how would they take it should these parties peddle abroad unsupported rumors? It is a grievous thing to circulate scandal against anyone, but especially against a servant of God. And it is worse to circulate evil reports which are not clearly established. Nothing makes politics so base as this wretched work. Under it, no person's reputation is safe. A wise writer has said -"He who steals my purse steals trash; but he that robs me of my good name takes that which enriches him none, but makes me poor, indeed!" The Seer said that on the night of September 21st, 1823, [sixty-two years ago] the angel of the Lord spake to him thus-"That God had a work for me to do, and that my name should be had for good and evil, among all nations, kindreds and tongues; or that it should be both good and evil spoken of among all people."-Times and Seasons, vol. 3, p. 753, and Life of Joseph the Prophet, p. 9.

Never was prophecy more literally fulfilled than this is being; for the young Seer's name has gone already to nearly all civilized nations, and to others also, and it is "had for good and evil" as foreshown. But how sad it is to think that some of the "all people" alluded to, are those called to be Saints! Yes, more—some who are or have been called to be ministers for Christ and his "marvellous work and a wonder!"

The law to the church says—"Thou shalt not speak evil of thy neighbor, nor do him any harm;" (D. C. 42:7); but there are those who speak evil of the Seer, and seek to harm his reputation. If they would but obey this humane, common sense, and truly Christian command, decent people would respect them, and heaven would love and bless them.

The writer has more then once heard Joseph, the Son of Joseph the Seer, say that he was taught to not speak evil of any one; and that, if he could say no good of others, to be sure and say no evil.

The wise man said—"Hatred stirreth up strifes; but love covereth all sins."—Prov. 10: 12. What shall we then say of those who seek to needlessly expose the weaknesses and failings of their fellow-men and brethren! And what shall we think of those who ruthlessly and needlessly expose the short-comings of the dead Seer! We think they need conversion to the letter and the Spirit of the gospel of Christ; for when they have that established in them, the pure love of God will move them to better things than to trifle with and trample upon the reputation of any one, especially that of the chosen and "choice Seer," of whom God has said—"I will make him great in mine eyes; for he shall do my work."-2 Nephi 2: 2. This is God's estimate of the Seer, and it is safe to say that all Latter Day Saints are wise only when they endorse it, and govern themselves accordingly.

There are other and better ways of reaching real or supposed errors and evils than by secretly or publicly sowing scandal and evil reports.

It is a noble and a truly Christian act to confess our own sins to those we have offended; but it is an evil thing to seek to confess the sins of others, living or dead. To expose the real sins and shortcomings of the dead often amounts to scandal only, and should never be done when it can be properly avoided, for the dead can not defend themselves; but the rumored—imaginary errors and failings of the dead should sleep, undisturbed, in the rayless night of oblivion. Guard well thy speech.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

A GENTLEMAN writing from Attleboro, Massachusetts, the 10th inst., suggests as a citizen of that place, that the letter of U. W. Greene in the HERALD for the 19th ult., should have mentioned the labors of Brn. Yerrington and Thompson as among the active ministers who had labored in that place, for they were the first of the Latter Day Saints to preach there, and that they met with success. He thinks their efforts would again be welcome. We think the failure to notice their work by Bro. Green was simply an oversight.

Don't forget the Thanksgiving Dinner at the Saints' Chapel, given by the Sisters' Union Mite Society. They need aid to help the poor and needy ones in town, and to pay a balance on the chapel bell. Come, and bring your friends, be filled and be happy.

Bishop G. A. Blakeslee writes from Galien, Michigan, the 14th inst., that he left San Bernardino, California, the 6th inst., and reached home the morning of the 11th, and found Sr. Blakeslee slowly improving. He left Bro. E. L. Kelley at San Bernardino. He says the Spirit of the Lord was with them in power in presenting the law of tithing, and that the Saints seemed willing to comply with that order. They perfected the titles to church properties, wherever they found defects. He says further: "We found a good, warm-hearted people, and had hard work to part with them. We had crowded congregations at every point."

The Lucas (Iowa) Recorder, owned and edited by Bro. Lorenzo W. Powell, is laid upon our table and we cheerfully number it with our exchanges. We wish it prosperity of long continuance.

Elder A. J. Moore of this place, has recently returned from a preaching tour in Nodaway county, Missouri. He reports the work reviving there, and he may again visit that region at an early time. He says he had large and attentive congregations, and thinks a fair increase may be had, if judicious, spiritual labor is continued there.

Sr. A. E. Morris, of Iowa City, wishes some of the Elders to call on Bro. John Williams, father of Sr. E. Rowlands, of Oakland, California. Bro. Williams lives at Stuart, Guthrie Co., Iowa.

In another place will be found a beautiful poem sent us by a lady of Springville, Utah, didicated to President Joseph Smith on his fifty-third birthday. Read it.

Mrs. Babcock of Leon is canvassing in this region for the sale of the Life of the late U. S. Grant. The work is elaborate, gotten up in fine style, and ranges in price from $7 to $18. Of its internal merits we can not speak, not having examined it.

Bro. W. H. Bybee, president of the North-East Missouri District, wishes it announced that he has appointed Bro. Thomas Griffiths of Renick, Missouri, secretary of said district.

A local secular newspaper the Lamoni Gazette, is to be issued here the 26th inst., and will be edited by Mr. King, a promising young gentleman recently from Redding, Iowa. We wish the enterprise abundant success.

In another place will be found the advertisement of Hansen and Walker, druggists and booksellers, of this place. Those wishing their goods will find them reliable and fair dealers, and we take pleasure in recommending them as such.

Bro. H. L. Holt writes from Girard, Minnesota, the 14th, that he had baptized four recently, and that "more are coming. The most of the Saints are striving to live their religion. "I am feeling well in body and mind—never felt stronger in the faith, and see many things to encourage."

The address of Nathaniel Finch is desired by Jacob Pickard of Fontanelle, Iowa. It is important.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

2.—What church is the church of the devil?

A.—All who practice and uphold sin: "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?"-Rom. 6:16. See also John 7:20; 8:44; Matt. 7:22, 23; 1 Nephi 3:46-50; Alma 3:5, 6; Moroni 7:2; Omni 1:12; Doc. & Cov. 83:16, etc., etc. Church organization alone is not what constitutes the church of Christ, or of the devil; character is the chief distinguishing feature. Persons may be Christ's "sheep" before they enter his fold; (John 10:1-16); and they may be his "fish" before they are gathered in the net-kingdom; (Matt. 13:47-49; 4:19; Jer. 16:16). Those who serve sin and Satan constitute the church of the devil, whether inside or outside of any church organization. No church organization is of God unless it is ordained of God.

2.—Is it proper for a minister to teach that our sins are not remitted by prayer, but only by partaking the sacrament—bread and wine?

A.—No; for Christ taught his disciples to pray for remission of sins thus: "And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us."—Luke 11:4; and I John I:9: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer or a righteous man availeth much."—Jas. 5: 16.

Ques.—Is it wrong for Saints to play a social game of cards?

Ans.—Card-playing leads to gambling, to idleness, to deceit, to lying, and to many other evils. "Shun every appearance of evil."—Paul.

Q.—If a person in this life never knew their parents, how can they know each other in the world to come?

A.—By the Holy Spirit—the power by which all things are and will be revealed.

See I Cor. 2:10-14; 13:12; John 16:13-15; Isa, 11:9; etc. etc.

2.—Who is the angel that shall stand upon the "sea" and "earth" and swear that there shall be time no longer?

A.—The "Seventh Angel," "Michael" — "Adam." See Doc. & Cov, 85:35, with 26:2, and 104:28.

2.—Should we be careful in our testimony meetings not to mention the Book of Mormon nor Joseph Smith as a prophet of God, except we give a full explanation?

A.—"There is a time for everything under the sun." Prudence must dictate in these and all other matters.

2.—Should children always be brought to the Elders in the congregation of the Saints to be blessed?

A.—If convenient, let them be presented to the Elders in meetings appointed for such purposes. If not, they may be blessed on private occasions.

THE CRISIS OF THE MORMONS.

Bishop Sharp, who has been ostracized by the Mormon hierarhy for renouncing polygamy, says "the Edmunds law is a severe law, but it does exactly what it was intended to do-it sends men to prison who refuse obedience to United States laws in declining to give up polygamous practices." He does not renounce his religion, he simply gives up the practice of polygamy "because the United States laws forbid my indulging in it any longer." He manfully admits that if he wishes to practice polygamy, the only honorable course for him is to leave the country, and he thinks his people will soon see that he has acted wisely. It is evident that the crisis has come in the Mormon Church, and if the Edmunds law is vigorously enforced, the Mormons of Utah will be compelled to abandon either polygamy or the country. The repulse received by Brigham Young, Jr., and Bishop Snow, when they went to Mexico a few months ago to purchase a tract of land for a Mormon colony, indicates that it will be very difficult for polygamous Mormons to find a new location, and the question is squarely presented to the Mormon Church whether the abandonment of the practice of the "celestial law of marriage" announced by Brigham Young in 1852 is not the best way to end the present crisis. Only a small part of the Mormons of Utah practice polygamy, and if the nonpolygamous Mormons follow Joseph Smith, Jr., in this attempt to abolish the practice from the sect they may soon end a conflict with the Government which must be disastrous, if long continued, and perhaps fatal to the Mormon Church. -Chicago Journal.

It is gratifying to see the wonderful change that has taken place in the minds and methods of journalists, jurists, statesmen, lecturers and book-makers, in respect to Mormonism in general, and Brighamism in particular. Until a few years ago it was next to impossible to get people to see that polygamy, disloyalty, and priestcraft were not always essential and inherent parts of the faith of Latter Day Saints. But of late this has been changing rapidly, so that now all well informed people perceive that these evils are not only no parts of Mormonism proper, but that they were and are reprobated in the plainest possible manner, and with the strongest terms by the sacred books of the church, as also by its rules and usages. It is now seen and admitted that these evils are but cancerous growths, poisoning the very life-blood of the Utah Church, and threatening its speedy overthrow, while it is also seen and admitted that the Reorganized Church, under the presidency of Joseph Smith, is quite free from those evils for the reason that it strictly adheres to the original and authorized faith of the church.

The Reorganized Church has been laboring for many years, and under most adverse circumstances, to gain this important position, and nothing has so greatly contributed to its attainment as the labors of President Joseph Smith and his fellows in Utah and the west this year. President Smith is prosecuting his work in the Rocky Mountain Mission in the loving, peaceful, forbearing spirit of the Master, and the quiet but potent influences of his labor are permeating Utah Mormonism and public sentiment abroad very generally. Zion is arising; and the Lord is making the follies and the wrath of men to praise Him. The great latter day apostacy will yet be overruled of God for good, as were the selling of Joseph to the Ishmaelites, the seventy years' captivity of the Jews, the scattering of the Christians on the martyrdom of Stephen, etc., etc. The times are ominous for "the desolation of abomination," and for the progress and glory of the church of Christ.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Pres. Joseph Smith writes from Beaver, Utah, that his congregations have been large, usually, and that a fair interest has been taken in his work there from the first. On the 13th inst., he wrote:

"I had the best audience last night, in point of appreciative attention, that I have had here. Bro. Luff gave us a pealing sermon Wednesday evening, on the negative proofs on the subject of polygamy."

A Mr. D. R. Pennell, of Elk Point, Union Co., Dakota, writes us under date November 15th, saying:

"I found a copy of the Herald in the road on election day, bearing date July 11th, 1885, and on examination found it contained an article on the Christian Sabbath by Elder D. H. Bays. Will you please send me the papers containing his articles on the Christian Sabbath, and I will pay you whatever the cost may be."

From this we should learn how important it is to get our printed matter into the hands of those who will investigate. The Saints should circulate their publications, wisely.

Bro. Henry Arnold writes from Providence, R. I., the 13th inst., and says:

"I desire all the Saints to know how interested I am in reading the Herald. I find we can learn a great deal from it, and I feel as if I could not do without it any more. Bro. C. Scott preached in Providence last Sunday, the 8th, a most excellent discourse."

Bro. Peter Anderson writes to Bro. John Scott from Moroni, Utah, the 15th inst., and said:

"I baptized one more at Provo, and expect to baptize one here to-morrow. The work is slow, but onward."

JUDGE HAYS ON POLYGAMISTS.

Polygamists meet with certain and swift punishment in Idaho, and judging from the temper exhibited by Judge Hays, they may look for no let up.

"Chief Justice Hays pronounced sentence upon eight Mormons, convicted of unlawful cohabitation under the Edmunds law, and on George C. Parkinson for hiding polygamous wives from the United States Marshal. The names of the unlawful cohabiters are Joseph M. Phelps, who has three wives and lives in Bear Lake county; Alexander Leatham, Alfred L. Blackburn, Andrew Bijorn, Nahum Porter, Arthur Peck, Isaac B. Nash and W. C. Garrison, who each have two wives, and are all residents of Bingham or Oneida counties, Idaho. The Court questioned each as to his future intentions in regard to obeying the laws, and with the exception of W. C. Garrison, all positively refused to make any promises, but said they would obey the laws of God as they understood them in the Bible. They believed that polygamy was from God, and they could not obey the laws of man. Garrison is an apostate Mormon and has honorably put away his extra women and promises to encourage all men to obey the laws. Phelps, Leatham, Bijorn and Peck each got six months and $300 fine, and each have to pay $160 costs. Blackburn got six months and $300 fine. Porter got three months and $150 fine, and will have to pay $100 costs. Garrison and Nash got three months each. Geo. C. Parkinson, who hid away polygamists, got one year and $300 fine and will have to pay $100 costs. The Judge in sentencing them, in substance spoke as follows: 'You claim the protection of the laws of your country, yet you refuse to obey the same; and after having been fairly tried and having the protection of all the safeguards which the laws throw around you, you were convicted, and come into court confessing the correctness of that conviction, yet claiming the right, as a religious duty, to disobey and defy the law. I am aware that you seek by every advantage and opportunity to defeat the law. I am aware that you hope to secure more friendly legislation and that your present policy is doubtless directed by that hope, and that some of you are base enough to think that this may be secured by a pecuniary consideration. In this you will be mistaken. It requires no prophetic power to foresee the result of your present mistaken policy, but only the power to reason from cause to effect, and I now say to you in kindness, yet in firmness, the laws must and shall be enforced, and if they fall heavily upon you it is the result of your crimes and not the fault of the law. Mistaken people; you little know the result of your present defiant course! It can lead to but one thing, and that is to arouse the American people and to kindle in their hearts a righteous indignation against your course and crimes. In time this will crystalize into law, and the enactments will be severe in proportion as the necessity of your crimes may require. You are but starting an avalanche that will crush you. A religion based on crime can not and will not stand. Perhaps some Divine power may be directing your course for the wise and holy purpose of working out your own destruction. Your present course must inevitably bring about that result. You have but this choice, either to be your own destroyers or else bow in submission to the law."-Tribune.

THE St. Joseph, (Mo.,) Daily Journal of the 12th inst., has this to say of the labors of brother J. F. McDowell in that city:

"AN EARNEST TOILER.

"Without blast of trumpets or aid of loud and blatant newspaper puffs, there came to this city the first of the week a modest, unassuming, but none the less zealous, worker in the Master's vineyard, a gentleman from Council Bluffs, who began a series of meetings in the pretty and cozy Saints' hall, over the State savings bank. The name of the gentleman is Rev. J. F. McDowell, and as a preacher he ranks very high, being a cultured and graceful speaker, a clean cut reasoner, happy in his illustrations, winning in his appeals, earnest in his ministrations, both in and out of the pulpit, and with a record behind him without stain or blot. He is, in a word, a scholarly, Christian gentleman, pleasant to meet socially, and wholly given to his high and holy calling.

"Mr. McDowell preaches the gospel in all its simple purity, and is as orthodox as the straightest of the sects. A Journal reporter heard him last night, and was at once struck with the earnestness of the man, charmed by the beauty of his rhetoric, and won by the sincerity which marked every statement of belief. The subject of the sermon was the 'Authority of Christ, as a teacher of the plan of salvation,' and with singular lucidness the speaker handled his theme. A lack of space forbids even a synopsis of the sermon, although notes for such were taken. Suffice it to say that Mr. McDowell is a most attractive speaker, and his fervor and zeal make him a restless toiler. He preaches to-night and every night this week, and the readers of the Journal are advised to go and hear him."

Below will be found an article on trees as lightning conductors, that, though rather unseasonable, should be read by all, and be made available where it can be. We have often noted the fact that tall, slim, pinniform trees were those most frequently stricken with lightning, and that those of soft texture are the least harmed. Read it, and then try and profit by it; for in these times when our atmosphere is so frequently surcharged with electricity as is exhibited in the fearful thunder storms, cyclones, tornadoes, etc., protection from their ravages should be known and used.

TREES AS LIGHTNING CONDUCTORS.

During the past few years great interest has been taken in England, France and Germany in trees as conductors of electricty. In the opinion of some, trees, afford much better protection against lightning than rods of any kind of metal that are attached to buildings. Trees have an advantage over rods in being cheaper and in ornamenting the ground about buildings, while rods of metal attached to buildings serve to disfigure them. The circumstance that lightning struck trees, probably suggested to Franklin the employment of metal conductors for the purpose of conveying the electrical discharge to the earth. All who have been in a forest during a thunderstorm have witnessed the pranks of lightning among the trees. An English engineer who spent several years in this country thus writes on the subject: During surveys in the forests of the United States, when I necessarily lived under canvas, I often had the opportunity of witnessing the effects of lightning on trees, and my experiences lead me to believe that trees are only destroyed by lightning when they have been previously wetted by rain. A sojourner in the woods, whether he is taken in pursuit of game or with the object of prospecting for timber, minerals, and land, is always careful to erect his tent under a short, thick tree, in order to escape the danger of lightning or of trees falling and bringing down others in their way on him; and it was often while thus situated I noticed after stormy nights, when lightning and thunder were accompanied by rain that many trees had fallen. The report of the snapping of the trunks would remind one of that of the firing of a cannon, and when lightning and thunder were not accompanied by rain, (in the immediate locality of our camp at any rate), no trees had been struck. I infer from the same observations that the lightning always strikes the tallest trees, whatever their species may be, for the taller white pines and poplars were most often seen destroyed, and the shorter maples, linden, birch trees, etc., rarely so; also that the sap between the wood and the bark of the tree does not increase the chance of its destruction.

A gentleman connected with the Kew botanical gardens suggests that the meteorological offices in different countries collect reliable data embodying the observations of different persons as to the particular circumstances attending thunder-storms during which more or less injury has been done trees. He states as the result of his own observation that certain kinds of trees are much more likely to be injured by lightning than others, which goes to show that they are very poor conductors of electricity. The condition of the tree in regard to age and vigor has also, in his opinion, much to do in making it a good or bad conductor. In a communication to a London paper he says: The comparative conductibility of different trees is not wholly, in my opinion, a question of species. The same species at different stages of growth, and growing under different circumstances, will exhibit widely different degrees of conductibility. Doubtless the hardness of the wood and the character of the grain, and also the character of the ramification, have much to do with that resistance to the electric fluid which results in damage to limbs or trunk. Hence, probably, why the oak, which is remarkable for the general closeness and hardness of its grain, and the ruggedness and contortion of its ramification, so frequently suffers, while soft-wood trees, like the poplars, escape. But younger oaks under the same circumstances might escape, while older and harder and drier trees would be broken by the electric fluid. A mistake commonly made is to speak of certain trees being "struck" by lightning, the word "struck" being only applied to those trees that are injured by lightning. Thousands of trees are struck during every thunderstorm that takes place over woody country; but, being struck noiselessly and without resulting injury, they are not noticed. It is doubtless the superior or inferior conductive power of a tree which subjects it to, or exempts it from harm, from lightning; but it is the greater or less moisture of the branches and trunk which regulates the conductive power. The form of a tree, has much to do with its exemption from hurtful strokes. The Lombardy poplar is about the best form, because its branches, pointed upward, are like so many lightning conductors. The oak is about the worst form, because its branches and limbs are nearly always (in those trees which are mostly damaged) placed athwart the course of the electric fluid. The Lombardy poplar also is of much moister and softer substance than the oak, and consequently gives freer passage to electricity.

The best conductors of electricity are not those that are "struck" by the discharge from a cloud, but those which silently convey it to the earth without being shattered or injured in any way. That many trees do this seems certain. In all probability trees whose leaves present many sharp points are the best conductors of electricity. Each point attracts electricity, and is the means of directing it through the branch and trunk to the earth. The amount conveyed by each is so small that no part of the tree sustains any damage. Leaves like those of the holly tree are admirably formed for attracting electricity. The points on the foliage of fir are of the desired shape to attract electricity, but the resin in the fir tree serves to make it a poor conductor. In a flat and nearly level country like our western prairies, lightning does not always "strike" the highest objects. It sometimes enters the side of a building instead of discharging itself on the chimney, the highest place on the roof, or other projecting points. The presence of suitable trees near a house, or at some distance from it in the direction toward the course of the prevailing thunder clouds, would serve to protect the dwelling. Trees that are better conductors than materials of which buildings are composed would protect them as well as metal

REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.

We have now on sale at this office, in pamphlet form, containing 48 pages, the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of plural marriage." Price, post paid, single copies 10 cents; 75 cents per dozen to one address.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Correspondence.

Plano, Illinois, November 19th, 1885.

Bro. Blair.—I arrived here twenty days ago, and by request of Bro. Vickery, the president of this branch, I have devoted my time in visiting the Saints and preaching. Have large and attentive congregations. Have preached sixteen sermons, and on Sunday, the 8th, Bro. Vickery baptized two; on Tuesday the 10th, I baptized two; on Thursday the 12th, Bro. Vickery baptized one more; and yesterday, the 18th, I baptized five more—making ten since I came here. I spoke last night to a large number; text, Acts 16:30—"Sirs; what must I do be saved." I think several more will be baptized on Sunday next.

Brother I. L. Rogers called on me to-day, and we made arrangements for me to commence a series of meetings at Sandwich, on Tuesday, the 24th. I am pleased to meet with such a good class of people as I have found in Plano. In last Tuesday evening prayer meeting, thirty testimonies and six prayers were offered. May God bless his people. Yours truly,

JOHN C. Foss.

HAVEN, Iowa, November 15th, 1885.

Bro. Blair: - Possibly some of the Saints would like to hear from the "Sheridan Branch;" however I can't tell them very much concerning the meetings, for I so seldom get to attend any of them on account of my business; but when opportunity offers I like to be with them. I find them to be quite different in every respect, from what I used to think. When I first made my advent into Iowa, some few years ago, almost, if not quite the first persons I met were "Latter Day Saints," (or Mormons as we used to term them). I was in Tama City, and as I had to go some five or six miles into the country, I asked and was granted permission to ride almost to where I was then stopping. But what was my surprise and horror, to find that these very persons with whom I was riding were "Mormons." I really felt at the time like making some excuse to get out and walk, not that I was afraid of being bodily injured, but I was brought in contact so suddenly with those horrible robbers and murderers! The gentleman asked me whether I ever heard of them? Oh yes! I knew all about the "Mormons." But when he asked me to tell what I knew, I found I knew nothing; for I had obtained my information from others, and from what I gathered from the secular newspapers. When I got out of the buggy, they invited me over to see them, however I promised them I really didn't know what the consequences might be without a body-guard. But inasmuch as they were Pennsylvanians, and formerly old neighbors of my parents, I concluded to risk it. On Saturday I went over, got acquainted with some other members of the family, and stayed over Sunday. Some way or other I "kind o' liked" them, and couldn't see so much difference between them and other people. On Monday morning I went back to where I first stopped when coming to Iowa. It was then that I heard some terrible things concerning those "Mormons." There was one of the family that I particularly liked from the first, and had she not been a "Mormon," I would have felt first-rate; but as it was I went back in a few weeks, and some how or another I began liking that one Mormon pretty well-so well, in fact, that I found some excuse to go to Dumbauld's about every two weeks, at farthest, and continued going there for about nine months, and found that I couldn't get along very well without this Mormon for a companion though life. But after we were married I couldn't "see my way clear." The idea of their asserting that they had the only true way, sounded like egotism and bigotry. I tried to "corner" my wife on arguments, but she would easily slip out, again. In fact I never had her cornered. I didn't know how it would terminate, but I ventured with my eyes open, for she gave me to understand, fully, that she could never change her views; and every argument I could produce, she would head me off every time. (Let me say right here, that if ever there was a dyed-in-the-wool Latter Day Saint she is one. Finally I came to the conclusion that I would see more of this "one faith," and so commenced to investigate, and the result was that I found it to be true; for hasn't Christ taught one Lord, one faith, &c. We have been trying, in our weakness, to live up to our profession nearer than we did-or at least myself-and find that he never forsakes us if we truly and earnestly trust him. We had some opposition to overcome when we first came here. Reports that I was a "schoolteacher," a "doctor," a "Mormon preacher," preceeded us; but we paid no attention to reports, went right ahead, tried to live our religion a little better, and tried to trust Him who never turns us away empty. One morning a gentleman (?) one of these "snake-in-the-grass men, called for some medicine, and said he heard I was a "faith doctor." I made no attempt to gain-say the report, but simply opened my vial-case and asked him whether that looked as if I were? I felt so much like telling him that I am in part, (and a great part) a faith doctor, but a different faith than to which he referred. Yes; I have faith, and have every reason to believe; in fact I know that God has made me an instrument in his hands to do a great deal of good, to non-Latter Day Saints. My daily prayer to him is, that we may have more of that kind of faith. We subscribed for the Herald for six months, and could hardly do without it. Long may it flourish and live. Yours in the one faith,

RAY AND MAGGIE.

Putnam, Allegheny, Co., Pa., November 16th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I have long wished to bear my testimony to this latter day work. I am trying to keep the faith, and I can say with many other Saints, that every day the gospel is dearer and dearer to me. The closer I live to Him, the more of God's love is manifested in my behalf. I am young, and there are many temptation in the path, and I ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints that I may be able to overcome all. We receive the Herald every week, and it is a great pleasure to us—I mean my father, mother, and myself. We have a branch here of sixteen members and have preacing every Sabbath; Bro.

J. Reese of Pittsburg is our preacher, and we all thank the Lord for him, for every time he comes we are blessed with the Spirit. He is a good faithful brother. We have our regular prayer meetings, and the Spirit of God is manifested, and the Saints are trying to be faithful.

Your sister in Christ, Lydia Jones.

Independence, Missouri,
November 12th: 1885.

- Brother Blair: - Our conference of this district was one of the best that has ever been held here. In nearly everything we all understood alike. The preaching was encouraging and instructive. Six were baptized by Bro. Foss. Since then we have had some very excellent prayer meetings. The Elders meet together often, and the spirit of harmony and love is visible. Many of the Elders are striving to magnify their calling. We have had an excellent visit here from Bro. and Sr. Brand. He preached for us a number of times, and I believe did us much good. The evening before they left quite a number of us were invited by Bro. A. Bishop to his home, who is nicely located opposite the temple lot, where a sumptuous supper was prepared for us, after which we rejoiced together in singing the songs of Zion, talking of the past and of the good things that await the faithful. As a whole we spent the evening, till a late hour, as only Saints can.

I have been preaching at different places in the district, and some good is being accomplished. I rejoice in seeing Zion put on her beautiful garments, and gathering up the honest in heart for the coming of our Lord. May God bless you in the office, and all faithful ministry.

Yours in Christ,

F. C. WARNKY.

Jonesboro, Maine, November 16th, 1885.

Dear Herald:-Having a desire to say a few words for the cause of Christ, I drop you a line. The Herald comes to us a welcome visitor, with its columns filled with the gospel of good news, and is like fire in our bones. I had the pleasure of talking with a Baptist divine, who took supper at my house. He said baptism was not a command, only a duty to get in the Baptist church. I told him his church was of more importance than the kingdom of God. He being learned, thought it wonderful that ignorant men should preach. I told him God chose the weak to confound the mighty. Another minister said it would not do to preach water baptism, for the people would not receive it. I told him that Paul said he "shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God;" and that he said if he "preached to please men, he should not be the servant of Christ. May the God of heaven remove the mists from their eyes, is my prayer, that they may accept the gospel Paul said he was not ashamed of, which is "the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth it, to the Jew first, and also to the Greek; for therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith. As it is written, the just shall live by faith."

I am trying to do all I can to keep the stone rolling; have opened new places where the people are interested in the truth. I had rather wear out than rust out, and expect to give account to the Master for my stewardship, I hope I may be the instrument in God's hand of sowing the good seed. Ever trying to contend for the faith once delivered to the Saints, and hope I may with the redeemed meet on the other shore. Had a call from Bro. W. H. Kelley and F. M. Sheehy. They stopped with me all night. Both are workmen. May God bless them for the good lessons they give.

Yours in the one faith,

John Benner.

CHICAGO HISTORICAL SOCIETY, 140-42 Dearborn Avenue, CHICAGO, Illinois, Nov. 24th, 1885.

REV. JOSEPH SMITH.

Editor of "Saints' Herald,"

Lamoni, Iowa;

Dear Sir.—It affords me much pleasure to inform you that full files of the "Saints' Herald" from January 1st, 1878, to August 22d, 1885, are now nicely bound into volumes and placed upon the shelves of this library for the free use of any who may wish to consult them. I will further add that the "Nauvoo Neighbor," "Times and Seasons," and several books and pamphlets generously presented by you are also bound into nice volumes and are likewise free for any one to consult.

I have lately received from Henry Asbury, Quincy, a very valuable lot of manuscripts including all the legal (?) papers such as "Articles of Accommodation, Treaty and Agreement" to leave Nauvoo, &c., &c., a rare and valuable lot, free for any one to see and read.

Very respectfully,
A. D. HAGER, Sec.

HIGHMORE, Dak., November 11th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—Last month father Sheen and myself visited the Saints it Potter county. We found a warm-hearted little band of Saints there. Brother Wm. Sparling has made a noble effort in that place, the little band of Saints there being the result of his labors. Bro. Sparling is full of zeal for the work, and bids fair to become a prominent minister. We organized a branch there, and I think the work is in good hands. We had a "blizzard" here the 6th inst., during which about 18 inches of snow fell. It came near snowing us in, but I managed to crawl out of the house the next morning between the eaves of the house and the snow drift. It looks, and feels considerable like winter.

Yours in the one faith,

GOMER REESE.

PRAIRIE SIDING, Ont.,
November 11th, 1885.

Editor of the Herald; Dear Brother:—As I have never written to the Herald, something seems to tell me to write a few lines-for our dear little paper, for such it is to me. There are not many Saints just around here, and we do not have preaching regular as there is not a branch, but we try and meet together every Sunday and have a prayer meeting. And I can truly say the Lord does own and bless us as his children. We ask all to pray for us, and we shall try and do what we can and keep our hearts in the interest of the work. We hope to have a branch here some time. There are only two of my family that belong to the church—my mother and myself. We were baptized and confirmed by Elder Arthur Leverton. I hope, if we are faithful, we shall see the day when all the rest will be with us. The work in this place moves very slowly. There is a great amount of prejudice. My prayer is that God will revive the work here, and that many may come to the knowledge of the truth of this latter day work. I ask the prayers of the of the Saints that we may be kept faithful, for it is those who will come forth in the first resurrection. Your sister in the true gospel,

MATTIE LIVELY.

Antwerp, Paulding Co., Ohio, November 17th, 1885.

Bro. David Dancer: - As my time is just out for the Herald and I live where I don't hear any gospel preaching only what I hear in the Herald, and it having been my regular visitor and preacher for over two years, I don't know how I could get along without it. How I love to read the letters from the dear brothers and sisters all over the world. And I find them all of the same faith, and that the truth meets with the same opposition here as elsewhere. I feel only glad if I am accounted worthy to suffer with them for the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. I had the pleasure of meeting in conference with the Saints of Clear Lake Branch in Steuben county, Indiana the 17th of October. We had a good time; stayed over a week and visited with the Saints. Four were baptized by brother E. C. Briggs, including my wife. I do wish a good Elder could spend a little time here, and I hope to see a branch here someday. I have been alone for over two years. Now there are two of us, myself and wife. I have found an old time Saint that I visit once in a while, about seven miles from here. I learned of him about two months ago; his name is John Keesler. He was baptized by Harvey Whitlock, or Edson Fuller, he does not nemember which, in Lorain county, this state, in 1831, and has a brother-in-law somewhere in Missouri who were Saints-Stephen Parsons and Mary Parsons. He is seventy-eight years old-quite feeble, but firm in the faith; says he believes Brigham led the church astray and into bad practices. I think, should he have a chance he would unite with the Reorganization, when he has investigated a little farther. I send him my Heralds, and I gave him some tracts which he told me pleased him very much. My second cousin used to work for you, he tells me at Lamoni. Perhaps you remember him-Coe Robinson is his name. He often inquires about you when I see him, and says the Saints were good people. Praying for the advancement of the truth, I am yours,

JOHN ERTER

McFall, Gentry Co., Missouri, November 13th, 1885.

Bro. Blair:—This town is on the Wabash Railroad, and has about eight hundred inhabitants. A man told me this morning that he had a good blacksmith shop, tools, &c., that he would sell cheap—a good stand for a smith. If any one wants a chance, let them write me, or come and see for themselves. We invite the Saints who want homes in Missouri to come and see us—good land, good water, and lots of timber. We are not more than forty or fifty miles from Lamoni, Iowa:

J. W. JOHNSON:

St. Joseph, Mo.,

November 18th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:-O, we have had blessed times here in St. Joseph, although none have been added-seed has been sown by God's blessing and power. Liberty in preaching "salvation" has been most excellent. Last Sunday we had six services as follows: special prayer and praise from 10 to 10:40. Sacrament 10:40 to 11. Preaching 11 to 12. Special testimony meeting, 3 to 4 p. m .it was a marvel. God most graciously blessed old and young speaking-and God's Spirit hovering over us like a mantle of peace-confessions, expressed determinations, renewal of covenants, etc., followed in quick succession. God spake to us also! Special prayer and praise 7 p. m. Preaching to an overflowing house at 7: 30-a fine intellectual assembly—excellent liberty; topic—"Test of Christianity." Our audiences have been good-attention splendid. Wish I could stay two or three weeks more. The papers have done well by us all along. The whole city is moved to inquiry.

The Council Bluffs branch have four special prayer meetings this week for God's blessing to attend our work there commencing next Sunday. Pray for us. O, I feel blessed in this great work—and seek daily God's blessing. My soul has been filled to overflowing since here with praise and gratitude; I know not how to express the sweet comfort and peace. My whole soul warms with love divine, Leave here on Saturday for Council Bluffs.

With kind regards, I am yours in the work,
J. F. McDowell.

RENICK, Randolph Co., Mo., November 17th, 1885.

Dear Herald:—I feel impelled to write to you again, at least a few lines. The Lord is blessing our labors here, and if we are to judge the future by the past so far, my work in this district is to be a pleasant one. There were two more added to the church here yesterday. I preached Sunday evening to a large audience, and Monday at two o'clock I baptized a man and his wife-young people-and there are others very near the kingdom. I preached Monday evening again to a crowded congregation, most all grown people. My subject was the divinity of Christ, and of course we had all the critics in the community present; also the sects were well represented, and were satisfied, so far as we have been able to learn. The Campbellites are threatening me with L. L. Norton, who, they say, will annihilate me, and the whole Mormon fraternity. But I am ready for the battle, if they desire it. I will preach here again to-night, and then go to Bevier for a week.

Yours in gospel bonds,

W. H. BYBEE.

HARROW, Ontario, November 10th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I write to say that ever since I read Brn. Glaud Rodger's and Charles Wandell's letters, when on their mission to Australia, and so took knowledge of our Tahitian brethren and sisters, I have felt the deepest interest in them, thinking how enduring they were, bearing such cruel persecution, and even holding together as branches so many years without seeing a missionary, as they had done when those brethren found them. My heart is grateful to God for calling those dear Saints away out there in that foreign land, and being warm with sisterly love toward them, I wish to help them on what little I can in the holy service of our glorious God. Therefore use sixty cents to either send them the books as desired or the Zion's Hope one year. And if reasonably possible please have these humble words of mine printed in a paper that will be sent to them and oblige, MRS. ANNA M. HALSTED.

ELKHORN, Nebraska, November 16th, 1885.

Bro. Blair:—I am having a good time, in company with Bro. Edward Rannie, in presenting the word. A good interest in some parts is manifested, which is encouraging. It is a pleasure to preach the gospel when we feel the presence of the Spirit, and have intelligent hearers to speak to. God bless his work.

In bonds,

W. M. RUMEL.

Selections.

DEMOLISHING THE BIBLE.

THE Bible is a book which has been refuted, demolished, over-thrown, and exploded more times than any other book you ever heard of. Every little while some body starts up and upsets this book; and it is like upsetting a solid cube of granite. It is just as big one way as the other; and when you have upset it, it is right side up still. Every little while somebody blows up the Bible; but when it comes down it always lights on its feet, and runs faster than ever through the world. They overthrew the Bible a century ago, in Voltaire's time-entirely demolished the whole thing. In less than a hundred years, said Voltaire, Christianity will have been swept from existence, and will have passed into history. Infidelity ran riot through France, redhanded and impious. A century has passed away. Voltaire has "passed into history," and not very respectable history either; but his old printing-press, it is said, has been used to print the word of God, and the very house where he lived is packed with Bibles-a depot for the Geneva Bible Society.

Thomas Paine demolished the Bible and finished it off finally; but after ho has crawled despairingly into a drunkard's grave in 1809, the book took such a leap that since that time more than twenty times as many Bibles have been made and scattered through the world as ever were made before since the creation of man.

Up to the year 1800, from four to six million copies of the Scriptures, in some thirty different languages, comprised all that had been produced since the world began. Eighty years later, in 1880, the statistics of eighty different Bible Societies which are now in existence, with their unnumbered agencies and auxiliaries, report more than 165,000,000 Bibles, Testaments, and portions of the Scriptures, with two hundred and six new translations, distributed by Bible Societies alone since 1804, to say nothing of the unknown millions of Bibles and Testaments which have been issued and circulated by private publishers throughout the world. For a book that has been exploded so many times it still show signs of considerable life.

I have heard of a man traveling around the country exploding this book, and showing up "the mistakes of Moses," at about two hundred dollars a night. It is easy work to abuse Moses at two hundred dollars a night, especially as Moses is dead and can not talk back. It would be worth something, after hearing the infidel on "the mistakes of Moses," to hear Moses on "the mistakes of the infidel." When Moses could talk back he was rather a difficult man to deal with. Pharaoh tried it, and met with poor success. Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, and it is said they found a grave in the Red Sea. Korah, Dathan, and Abiram tried it, and went down so deep that they have not yet got back. But now Moses is dead, and it is easy to abuse him. It does not take a very brave beast to kick a dead lion.

A WORD TO THE DISCOURAGED.

Instead of discouragement from failure, we should be pressed by it more closely to the heart of Jesus, sadder but wiser, and made more secure by the painful experience than ever before. Let the very same moment which brings the consciousness of trespass, bring also a sense of confession, pardon, and inward cleansing from the sin out of which the sinning sprang.

This instantaneousness of restoration is the Divine method of security from the repetition of failure. Look for a moment at the contrary course, as too often practiced by the Christian. He will, early in the day, we will say, fall into trespass by an unguarded word or unsubdued temper. It brings a cloud between him and God. Instead of an instantaneous confession, and the immediate restoration of full communion, he remains under the cloud. Satan always has some dominion over an unhappy child of God, though he can not conquer a rejoicing one. Soon this very consciousness of distance lays him open to a fresh failure, and by the time he comes to a season of special prayer, he is so far off that prayer is an effort, and coming to God a formal act, instead of the joyous natural rebound of his soul. Immediate restoration from the first trespass would have so fully brought again full communion that no other failure would in all probability have ensued.

We should commence each day in a sense of cloudless fellowship with God, with no shade, not the faintest shadow, between our soul and the great Father of our spirits. Should any cloud intervene, its instantaneous removal will restore to us that "walk in the light" which involves uniform victory.

It was the homely saying of the most successful modern missionary on record, when asked the secret of his constant communion with God and consequent power with men: "When I come to God to pray I do not have to clear away a great heap of rubbish first; I never let it accumulate, and so I live always in the presence of the King!"

The petrified bones of some enormous animal of prehistoric age was lately unearthed at Bullionvile, Nevada, at a depth of about twenty feet from the surface, by a couple of men who were getting out sand for the smelting company. The head was intact and measured three feet in width above the eyes, and the eyes judging from the sockets, must have been as large as a base-balls. We have in our possession a half-dozen of the animal's teeth, which are five inches in length and can be seen by calling at our cwelling.—Pioche Record.

The printed name on the colored label on your pa per gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

Original Poetry.

RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED

TO JOSEPH SMITH,

PRESIDENT OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

On the Fifty-Third anniversary of his Birth, Nov. 6, 1885.

BY A MOUNTAIN FRIEND OF UTAH.

To calmly view what we conceive A master-piece of Nature, anywhere, Is to adore the Great Cause, thanking Him For the various beauties covering the earth.

The lofty mountain wreath'd in gleaming snow, White as the robes we fancy angels wear, Outlin'd against the clear, cerulean height, And brilliant blossoms blooming at its base. Wakens admiration from her tranquil sleep, And peaceful thoughts of pleasure greet the mind Of those upon the em'rald plains below, As bowing reverently at Nature's shrine.

Tis joy to view A stately tree, King of the forest, spreading far away.

Whose grand old trunk the rugged traces bear Of scars received in tempests fierce and wild! When Hyems Æolus sent to sternly sound The storm's wild anthems o'er snowy earth, And groan'd the Monarch of the forest vast, 'Mid the violence of madly raging winds.

O, joy to view In golden sunshine, after storm has passed. The noble tree in em'rald verdure deck'd, And birds asinging on the trembling boughs; And round the gnarled old trunk a clinging vine Begemmed in flowerets like tiny stars-Such scenes awaken melodies sublime-Tunes the happy soul in praise of Nature's God.

And fair to view are crystal, murmuring streams, Flowing from springs like clearest jewels set In mystic hollows of mysterious hills, Where the lonely dove's notes echo far away When morn's bright blushes deck the eastern skies, And streams are kiss'd by tender carmine hues, Or when at eve a golden splendor gleams Upon the silver waters, gliding clear-The fair muse tunes her softly sounding shell, And gentle seraphs of the gleaming light Touch the shining strings of golden harps and sing In heavenly realms, our mortal ears to charm.

But deeper, holier the joyful thoughts, To view man-noblest workmanship of God, Inspired by Him,-directed by His power, To guide the wayward into better paths.

Thou,

By the pearly light around thee shone, Like an ethereal cloud surpassing fair, Lent to thy countenance a brighter hue Than crystal waters in the morn possess. And by the piercing rays of thine clear eyes Taught me when first thine presence I beheld, Thou wast inspired by Israel's Holy God. Yet humble in thine greatness, like a child, Unwilling to lose the smallest gems of truth, And ready to glean from lowly, obscure nooks. Jewels, tho' rough, to polish and make bright.

This day Completes the fifty-third year, since Thy spirit bright, to earthly flesh was given; And still thou stand'st at the helm to guide Those pledg'd with thee to live nearer to God.

Ah! could I now transform myself Into a spirit great and pure and bright, Methinks I'd waft thee peace, and strength impart, To bannish anxious cares from thy mind.

But pardon idle speculation; Well I know this puny, feeble power of mine Could ne'er render thee more holy joy Than the righteous exaltation ye possess.

'Tis thine to know The ripen'd golden grain from chaff, The gold from dross, the precious gem from paste, And thou wilt garner well the gleaming store, And God's bright light upon its wealth shall fall, May'st thou live to see the flaming spires From snowy domes of Zion's Temples shine! And glorious harvest-fields of Judah ripe For reapers to thrust their gleaming sickles forth; And Truth, the beauteous weapon of our Lord, Unite the severed tribes in peace again!

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

REJECTION OF THE CHURCH.

Was the church rejected? If not, then a "reorganization" is out of place; but if it was, then the Utah "church" is out of place and can not be of God. It becomes an important question between the two organizations, especially when one strives to convince the other of the fact. Gross misrepresentation, the villifying of names and characters, and evading certain and many things for unholy purposes, on either side, is no part of argument. Such would rather militate against the claims of either to be the Church of Christ.

Something like the following from Orson Pratt would be more consistent, and more in harmony with the spirit of Christ:-

"The great secret in obtaining favors from God, is to form, modify, and cultivate such characters and dispositions as will correspond in every respect with the teachings of the word and spirit of Christ.' 'Condescend to men of low estate;' despise not the poor because of his poverty; and when you prepare a feast, invite in the poor, the halt, the maimed, and blind; for they can not recompense you again in this life; but you shall receive your recompense at the resurrection of the just.' Feed the hungry, clothe the naked, administer to the widow and the fatherless in their afflictions, visit the sick; 'Let your love abound unto all men; endeavor to reclaim men from the error of their ways, by telling the plain unvarnished truth in meekness and with sobriety, remembering that you yourselves were once in gross darkness because of the traditions and false religions with which you were surrounded. Therefore, have compassion upon the millions of deluded beings who have deceived themselves with the pomp and vain show of modern christianity. Be upright and honest before all men. Practice virtue and holiness continually. Such should be the disposition and character of all the children of God, in order to qualify themselves for usefulness in this world, and to inherit eternal life in the world to come."

Did our Utah friends conduct themselves according to the platform of this, one of their chief Apostles, and champion of polygamy in the past? Did they try to "reclaim" the Reorganization? If they did, where and when? Did their "love abound" toward us and our missionaries, from first to last, when we knocked at their very doors, and desired investigation of the "plain unvarnished truth?" Did they open their doors and "feed" and "clothe" our "poor" and nearly worn-out brethren? Did they throw open their Tabernacles and Temples, meeting-houses and school-houses, and meet them to try to "reclaim" them? Did they "practice virtue and holiness continually?" If they did, what does it mean that so many of them wear "Uncle Sam's" coat of many colors in the Penitentiaries for "unlawful" cohabitation? And what made this very Apostle champion a dogma that is "nastiness" in th nostrils of all civilized nations, and an "abomination" before God? Did they always tell the "truth?" Can our friends afford to meet us according to the foregoing platform in the future? If they can, will not some of their missionaries soon be among us? And will not the doors of private and public buildings in Utah be thrown open to our missionaries. What will you say, friend? If you will, there will be greater "reformation" for good in the "vallies of the mountains" than in 1857. Will our Utah friends, in the Spirit of Christ, travel with us through the history and ever-changing circumstances of the past to find the truth concerning the "church," and to place "apostates" and apostacy where it rightly and truthfully belongs?

We will now proceed to view the subject in the following order:-1. What are we to understand by the "rejection of the church? The church is an advanced order of heaven, to unite the individual subjects of the kingdom of God into "one body"—the "body of Christ"—because Christ introduced the order and gave the necessary "gifts" to organize the church; that men, by the authority of heaven, may judge between man and man, and "regulate all the affairs" of the body. That such order existed anciently, and also from 1830 to 1844, there is no question. Paul gives the following: "God set some in the church (to compose the "body"), first Apostles, secondarily Prophets, thirdly Teachers, &c.

"And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues."-12: 28.

"For the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."—Eph. 4: 12, 13.

"Behold, thou hast a gift, or thou shalt have a gift if thou wilt desire of me in faith, with an honest heart, believing in the power of Jesus Christ, or in my power which speaketh unto thee; for behold it is I that speaketh; behold I am the light which shineth in darkness, and by my power I give these words unto thee."—D. & C. sec. 11, par f par. 5.

By the foregoing we can see that for-mation of the "body" (the church) came about by setting in the different "parts," and this by "gifts unto men," to qualify them to form these "parts" of the body, or church; thus the prophetic office, "gifts" to form the First Presidency, Apostleship; "gifts" to compose the Quorums of Twelve and Seventy, &c.; and so with all the "parts" or quorums, until the "body," or church, was complete, for these purposes: (1) "For the work of the ministry;" (2) "for the perfecting of the Saints;" (3) "edifying of the body of Christ." Now, to remove or "reject" the "parts" would mean nothing else than to remove and "reject" the "body" or church; for all bodies are necessarily composed of just so many "parts," and to remove the "gifts" that qualified the "parts," would be disqualifying and "rejecting" the "parts"—hence it could be no "body" or church, because it is rejected as a church in "the parts;" and thus the matter is left as at the beginning before the "gifts" were conferred—every man standing individually accountable to God, and not to any order, or "body" found among men. That this was the case on, and after 1844, is evident from what followed—the "gifts" taken from all; and it was the dissolving, and "rejecting" of all the quorums—hence no "body" or church —this order being for the time "rejected" of God; though perhaps claimed to be otherwise by men. In 1844 the Prophet Joseph and his brother, Hyrum, were "taken," by the ruthless hands of violence; and thus the First Presidency was dissolved, and a "gift" was lost in him that was a necessity to the existence of the organized church, and the qualifying of its President-"For the President of the Church must be a prophet, seer and revelator, having all the gifts of God, &c.

And now, this being the case, we will ask, who had the necessary "gift" to fill that position, or "part" of the "body," and maintain a church organization from that day to this? And what has become of the rest of the "parts" of the body? The sequal will show.

Brigham assumed the position, but did he have the "gifts of God" to qualify him to the office? If he did, or president Taylor after him, we ask where are their resvelations, etc.? Not one authentic one from the fall of the martyr to this day! A period of forty-one years! They could not pass a bogus one on polygamy without dating it back, and putting Joseph's name to it. Wonderful gift! It is like a mill-stone around their necks to-day.

Now to show the condition of affairs from 1844 to the time that Orson Hyde said he "felt the earth shake," etc., at Council Bluffs, Iowa, I will copy from my memorandum a conversation that took place between myself and Charles C. Rich. one of the Utah Apostles, at Merthyr Tydvil, Wales, in the fall of 1860; at which time I was first counsellor in the presidency of the Welsh Mission, and also presiding over the East Glamorgan Conference. Many of my old friends will remember that C. C. Rich and Amasa Lyman were over in that country on missions from Utah at that time; and from the nature of my position at this time, as well as others, I at different times met and became acquainted with nearly all the missionary force in the field, from time to time. This conversation will also serve to show the condition of my mind at the time, and the cause of my actions in after years. Rich was stopping at my house at the time.

THE CONVERSATION.

Davis.-Bro. Rich; I want to ask you some important questions; will you answer me in a straightforward manner, and truthfully as far as you know?

Rich.—Yes, Bro. John; any and everything, as far as my knowledge goes, and that without reserve—glad to do it.

D.—My first question is this—Are all Apostles, prophets?

R.—Yes; and all Saints that have testimony; for "the testimony of Jesus is the Spirit of prophecy."

D.—While I admit the "testimony" to be by the "spirit of prophecy;" I must say that it is not the "gift" that makes the prophet of the rank that we are talking of. I will put the same question in a different way: Were all the Apostles equal with Joseph in their gifts from God?

R.—Now you have got me; I say No! D.—Then Joseph had a gift that no one else on earth possessed at that time?

R.—Yes. D.—Was this gift a necessity to the existence of the church?

R.—Yes; could not exist without it.
D.—Was this gift conferred on any one else by Joseph before his death?

R.—No; not to my knowledge.
D.—Then we lost a gift in Joseph that the church could not exist without; hence we have no church? and Brigham can not be president: (1), because he has not the gift to make him Prophet; (2), there is no church for him to be president of?

R.—I never thought of it in that way, nor that your question would lead me this way when I agreed to answer; but I can tell you how it was. When Joseph and Hyrum were taken, we were in a terrible confused condition, and we all thought it was the duty of the Twelve to govern the church until God would raise up a man to fill Joseph's place! But in this we found out that our own duty abroad was neglected, and to remedy this we consulted together, and resolved to elect one of our number to take charge of matters at home, act as a kind of president until God would fill the vacancy, while the rest of us could go abroad to do our own duty; and so at Council Bluffs we elected Brigham Young.

D.—The vacancy has never been filled by the Lord, has it?

R.—No; it has not.

D.—Did you feel the earth shake when you elected Brigham, as Orson Hyde said? R.—No; that is little above the mark—

D.-Did not Brigham usurp more authority in after years than you intended for him at the time?

R.—Well,—rather that way.
D.—You still expect the Lord to fill Joseph's place?

R.—O, certainly; can't be otherwise. D.—Being that Brigham is no prophet, and can not be president, etc., how is it that we uphold him as such in all our conferences, and that you and others bear testimony that he is prophet, seer, and revelator, &c., and that "Joseph's mantle fell upon him." What is the use of all this deception, and what is it for? Why not clear up the matter before the Saints in a

God-like manner? And make the Saints free, and to understand the true situation before God and man?

R.—O, no; that would not do. It is a piece of policy for the time being to keep them ignorant of the real situation; for if they (the Saints) knew that Brigham is not a prophet, nor qualified by "gift" to be president, they would scatter to the four winds of heaven and the four quarters of the earth; and we [the precious Twelve] think that it is better to permit this little deception, and keep them together until God will raise a man to fill Joseph's place, and all will be right.

Now we have the remaining Twelve trying to put a blind head (not a seer) on the "body," and to deceive all the Saints with a piece a "policy." And thus the "parts" are removing. One of the first acts of these rejected "parts" at Council Bluffs, was to negotiate with the Government and sell for a stated sum the "flower" of the camp of the Saints to the Mexican war-this is substantiated by "legal documents" published in the "History of the Church" in the "Millennial Star," about 1873 or 1874. After this, with the price of blood, they started to the valley of Great Salt Lake, leading the Saints away from the "land of Zion;" and very soon they put the "priesthood" supreme above the books of the law, -Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, and the Bible,saying that they "are as useless as the ashes of a rye straw," &c., and that the Saints are to be led by the "living oracles" (which means "rejected" parts), and that they should do "as they are told"—"My soul for your soul if we (rejected parts) don't lead you aright." "Ask no questions, for it is none of your — business:" thus fulfilling the word of the Lord to the prophet Jeremiah:

"Thus saith the Lord: Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord. For he shall be like the heath in the desert, and shall not see when good cometh; but shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness, in a salt land and not inhabited."—Jer. 17: 5, 6.

The Seventy were greatly multiplyed we are told to a hundred quorums or over, —and if this is true, they are 93x70 beyond the limits of the Church or "body" of Christ. The number is limited to 70x7, and no more.-Doctrine and Covenants.

Now this multiplication is the work of the "rejected" Twelve and Seventies, and they are made "minute men," that is, tools to keep their "powder dry," &c. We will refrain from telling all the purposes, if we knew: but will conclude for the time being, that the heaviest part of the carcass is already over the fence, and the extremities are compelled to follow.

Now we will introduce a "Parable," composed by one of these men, to show the condition of a church when "rejected" of God, and how near he came of telling the fortunes and misfortunes of the "rejected" church in Utah.

THE PARABLE.

"A certain king, great and powerful, reigned over a numerous and happy people. His territories were situated in the most beautiful and delightful portions of the earth. The land abounded with the most valuable treasures, such as were unknown in any other country. Nothing could exceed the order, peace, prosperity, and happiness diffused throughout all his dominions.

"At a certain time the king sent forth ambassadors among all nations, to invite them to become subjects of his government, and in due time to emigrate to his happy country. These ambassabors were invested with power to legally administer the oath of allegiance, and all other laws and ordinances which the king had established for the purpose of adopting citizens into his own government. And the king said unto them, He that receiveth you and becomes an adopted citizen, shall, when he emigrates, receive an inheritance in my dominions: but he that is not adopted shall in nowise enter into my kingdom. These signs or tokens shall accompany the adopted citizens: in my name they shall carry a costly medal, enstamped with the great seal of my authority; they shall wear upon one of their fingers a choice jewel from my own dominions; they shall have a white stone upon which shall be engraved, in unknown characters, a new name known only to themselves. All these signs or tokens shall accompany them.

"The ambassadors went forth as they were directed, and many thousands in all parts of the world received the ordinances of adoption; and the signs or tokens of their legal citizenship were abundantly manifested. When the adopted citizens received the promised signs, they were greatly confirmed, and believed with much assurance that they should, after emigration, receive the promised inheritance.

"In process of time a great persecution Many of these adopted citizens were put to death. Many others began, through carelessness, to lose the precious signs and tokens of their citizenship. At length persecution began to abate, and the proclamation of the king was received more favorably. Many, on account of its increasing popularity, assumed the authority to administer the oath of allegiance and the ordinances of adoption, without either seeing or hearing from the king. For fear the people would question their authority, they flattered them with the idea that the king would no longer call ambassadors by revealing any new commissions, and that the whole work of commissioning and authorizing was left entirely to their own wisdom. But it was soon found that the signs and tokens of citizenship were no linger granted, although many petitioned the king very earnestly to send them, but their petitions were unheeded. The reason of this was, because no one was authorized from the king to administer the oath of allegiance and adopt citizens legally. Therefore the king would not give the tokens of citizenship. But these unauthorized usurpers, who had already made the people believe that it was unnecessary to receive a commission by any new revelation, next actually persuaded the people to believe that the signs and tokens of citizenship were also unnecessary. Popularity and age soon established these false traditions, insomuch that the people almost universally believed, in direct opposition to the promise of the king, that the signs of citizenship were unneces-

"They continued to emigrate in great numbers as was supposed to the promised land, where it was expected they would receive the promised inheritance. But as it was absurd, according to their traditions, to expect any communication from that land, they could not tell whether the emigrants were permitted to enter into the kingdom and receive their inheritance or not. Now the king was very angry with those who had usurped authority, and had administered the laws of adoption without being sent. He was also very angry with the people who had suffered themselves to be so grossly imposed upon, as to suppose that any could be sent without some communication from him. He, therefore, witheld from them the promised signs and also the promised inheritance, for none of them had been legally adopted. Though they obtained none of the tokens or signs, yet they vainly flattered themselves that they should get the inheritance. But as many as were found who had been deceived, and had not the promised signs of citizenship, were taken and bound as enemies and aliens, and cast into their own place; and great misery prevailed among themweeping, and wailing, and gnashing of

"And after a long time had passed away, the king sent forth from his dominions one mighty and strong, clothed with great power; and many other messengers were called and sent even according to the first pattern. And they were commanded to go unto every nation, kindred, tongue, and people, and to call upon men to come forth and be legally adopted, and take the oath of allegiance from such as were authorized to administer it, and from their hands to receive the ordinances of adoption. And the king again renewed his promise, and said that the signs and tokens of citizenship should again be enjoyed, and such should receive the promised inseritance.

"Now these messengers went forth according to the commandments of the king, and those who recived them were blessed with the signs, and had much assurance.

Now these unauthorized usurpers who pretended to be the servants of the king, and those whom they had deceived, when they saw the signs and tokens of citizenship again made manifest, were exceedingly angry, and sent forth all manner of wicked accusations and lies against the king's messengers, and those who had re-ceived them; and by these wicked means the people were stirred up to greatly persecute them, destroying many, and driving others from place to place, and from city to city. At length they were driven forth a great distance from among the nations; and there they were nourished until they became exceedingly strong: the king himself greatly strengthened them by additional tokens of his goodness.

"The king's messengers, notwithstanding the cruelties which they received from the people, continued to go from nation to nation, and the signs and tokens of citizenship began to shine forth with greater brilliancy, which enraged the pretended citizens who had not these tokens, still more; and they gathered together in multitudes upon all the face of the earth to fight against those who had the signs of citizenship. In process of time, after passing through many tribulations, the lawful heirs went out from among the nations with power and much glory, and gathered themselves in one. And it came to pass that they built a great city unto the king, and he came with all the mighty ones of his dominions, and dwelt among them; and those who had fought against his messengers perished; and all the earth came under the dominion of the great king."-Kingdom of God, by Orson Pratt, part 4, No. 5, pages 2, 3, 4.

We will not offer any comments on the foregoing, and will not offer any application-every man can make his own application and judge for himself. We will content ourself by asking our friends in Utah a few sober questions, appealing to their better judgment. Where are the "signs and tokens" of your citizenship? the "gifts" of the gospel? Lost except in a few isolated cases, where some have been true to their King—substituted by secret oaths and a class of dogmas that hang today like millstones around your necks; destroying your liberty and happiness, as well as that of your families. Where is the God of Joseph for the last forty years? Where is "Thus saith the Lord," for the same period of time?-substituted by "Thus saith the living oracles." O, Latter Day Israel; how long will you bow your fair necks to the yoke of your "task masters," who will not touch one of your burdens with one of their fingers? Where is your glorious gospel liberty that once put vou in the foremost ranks as defenders of the "unvarnished truth." Arise! like the prodigal son; spurn from you the enemies of your souls, and return, O return, to your Father's house, and He will clothe you once more with the robe of righteousness, and put the sign of sons and daughters on JOHN T. DAVIS. you.

KEIGHLEY, Buttler Co., Kan., Oct. 28th, 1885.

SHALL THE SAINTS EDUCATE.

Q.—Ought the ministers of Christ to be educated men?

A.-Why should they not be? and if they are not, why should they not seek to become so according as time and opportunity will allow?

Q.—But what use has a minister of Christ, as such, for education? Is he not to teach by the Spirit as he may be led?

A.—Is not a minister of Christ like other men, entitled to all the light he can get? and is there not light in education?

Q.—But what light is there in education? Does a minister of Christ have any more light by reason of his learning?

A.—Do we get the idea of light or darkness in the fact that an individual can read with a flow; can speak and write his own language correctly; can solve most of the problems in practical life by the rules of mathematics, and can read certain of the natural sciences understandingly?

Q.—But if our ministers become learned. may they not learn to teach by their learning to the neglect of the Spirit?

A.—Do those ministers who are considered learned teach without the Spirit any oftener than those do who are not learned? Does what we see and hear prove it?

Q.—But don't our sectarian ministers preach their own wisdom and learning, having not the Spirit?

A.—Does the Spirit fail to attend such ministers because they are learned? Or is it because they do not believe there is any Spirit for them? Will the Spirit attend a man in his preaching, let him be ever so learned or illiterate, so long as he does not believe there is any Spirit for such purposes more than his own?

Q.—But the minister who believes there is a Spirit for him to teach by, should he presume to teach by his learning, would not the Spirit desert him in that case?

A.—Does the Spirit attend those ministers of Christ who are not learned more certainly than it does those ministers of Christ who do make use of their learning? Or does that Spirit, the joy and delight of the Christian, have an aversion somehow to that minister who would presume to make use of his acquirements in his ministrations? What does observation teach in regard to this?

Q.—In the case of those ministers of the true church who are learned to a high degree—or who may become so learned—is there not a chance that they may boast themselves of their acquirements, and thus lose the Spirit?

A.—Is there any good thing known to men that they have not made and may not make a wrong use of? How often have the Saints made a wrong use of their profession, so holy, so glorious? Shall we therefore insist that none others shall make this profession lest they might abuse it? And what are the facts in the case? Do those ministers of better attainments boast themselves in their ability any more than others do in their supposed ability!

Q.—But if a minister is not already learned, why should he seek to become so, seeing he is to teach by the Spirit, and if he has it not, he is not to teach?

A.—May not a minister, like others, possess the Spirit to a greater or less degree? And when does he possess it to that greater degree? When he is diligent in his calling, or when he is not so? When he is trying to obtain that which will aid him in his work? Or when he is just letting the matter rest?

Q.—But is not the minister of Christ to have it given in the very hour what he shall say?

A.—Who would be the more apt to have his mouth thus filled, he who is diligent in searching up all matters that will aid him in his mission, or he who is not thus diligent? Who is the most worthy to have his mouth thus filled; he who is "seeking words of wisdom out of the best books, and learning even by study," or he who is waiting the occasion, and trusting the chances?

Q.—But in the case of those Saints who are not ministers, but who bethink themselves to become such, should they "educate for the ministry," as it is called?

A.—Shall the Saints build nests in which to hatch eggs that will only add to the brood of sectarianism? Suppose a certain one is prepared and presented, but on examination he is found not to possess any of the gifts and callings of God whereby he can be ordained to any thing in the holy priesthood? Shall we elect him? Shall we not rather turn him over to the old mother herself, and let her incubate him? Does he however possess the needful gifts and callings of God unto men though he be ever so illiterate? If so shall he not receive his degree?

Q.—Should the Saints educate? A.—Is there any good thing that the children of the heavenly King are not entitled to, so long as they make a proper use of it? "To be learned is good," says Jacob, "if they hearken unto the councils of God."—2 Nephi 6: 12. A. J. Mapes. Independence, Mo., Oct. 19th, 1885.

Conserence Minutes.

ST. LOUIS.

The St. Louis District conference convened in the Saints' Hall, No. 1447 North Broadway, St. Louis, Missouri, on Saturday afternoon, October 3d, 1885. C. J. Peat, president; J. G. Smith, clerk. Branch Reports.—St. Louis, 189 members; I died, I removed. Cash on hand June 21st, $28.88, received since $12.20, total $41.08; expended for hall rent $20; balance, September 20th, $21.08. Cheltenham 29 members; 1 died. Chester 12 members. Birkner, organized August 16th, with 13 members, 4 of whom were recently baptized by Elder N. N. Cooke. Elders C. J. Peat and N. N. Cooke; also Priests J. G. Cole and J. S. Parrish reported. Tract Agent's Report. -Cash on hand June 28th, $1.15, receivéd since $2.85; balance September 27th, $4. J. G. Cole, agent. An auditing committee of two, J. S. Parrish and F. Izatt, were appointed by the conference to examine the report and books of the Bishop's Agent who certified to the correctness of the report of September 30th, as follows:—received of the former agent, R. D. Cottam, June 27th, $6.65; from the sale of Caseyville Branch chairs, &c., $17; from the Alma Branch, free will offerings, $7.25; from the St. Louis Branch, free will offerings, $45.75; total $76.65. Expended $38; balance on hand September 30th, $38.65 N. N. Cooke, Bishop's Agent. A petition was received from the St. Louis Branch, praying the conference to release the committee appointed by the conference for the purpose of building a Meeting House in St. Louis, and that the St. Louis Branch be accorded the privilege of appointing a committee for that purpose; also that the committee appointed by the conference in July, 1884, be instructed by the conference to turn over all moneys collected by them for the purpose of building a Meeting House in St. Louis to the committee which may hereafter be appointed by the St. Louis Branch. Petition granted. Evening, met at the house of J. S. Parrish, No. 1445 Madison street, St. Louis, when some routine buisiness was disposed of. On Sunday morning, preaching by Elder Abraham Reese, of Pleasanton, Iowa. Sacrament and testimony service in the afternoon in which the Spirit of the Lord was copiously poured out, and the Saints were filled with joy. Preaching in the evening by Elder James Whitehead, of Alton, Illinois. Adjourned to meet in St. Louis, Missouri, on Saturday afternoon, January 2d, 1886, for business, and on the following Sunday for worship.

LITTLE SIOUX.

Little Sioux District Conference convened at the Saints' Meeting House, Magnolia, Iowa, at half-past ten o'clock on Saturday, September 12th, 1885; president of district, J. C. Crabb, in the chair. P. Cadwell and C. Derry associate presidents; Wm. C. Cadwell and J. F. Mintun, secretaries. President Crabb opened the meeting with some suitable and soul-stirring remarks with reference to the general scope of our work and our duties as laborers. Branch Reports.-Spring Creek 51; no changes. Magnolia 237; 14 have been received by vote, 2 by baptism, 1 on certificate of baptism, 2 by letter, 3 removed by letter. Little Sioux Branch report was received, and on motion returned for correction. Little Sioux Branch report showed a gain of 9 during the last three months. Owing to a misunderstanding as to the date of holding conference, the authorities at Sioux City were several days late in getting their report in. No. of memhers at organization 7; present number 8, including 1 Elder, I Teacher, and I Deacon. Changes 2 baptized, and 1 died. Martin P. Berg, president; Minnie E. Townsend, clerk. Official Reports.-J. C. Crabb, P. Cadwell and C. Derry, High Priests; J. B. Lytle and J. F. Mintun, of the Seventy; W. Chambers (by letter), H. Garner, Isaac Shupe, D. Maule, E. R. Lanpher (baptized 2), R. Farmer, and W. C. Cadwell, Elders; J. W. Merchant and B. M. Green, Priests; and E. Hunt and R. Chatburn, Teachers, reported. Bishop's Agent, P. Cadwell, submitted his report of moneys received and paid out to June 30th, 1885: On hand at last report $69.25, received from Bishop D. M. Gamet $1.55, tithing and freewill offering $92, total $162.80; paid out $75.25. balance on hand $87 55. Referred to a committee and found to be correct. Bro. H. O. Smith was associated with W. R. Davison as financial clerks of Missouri Valley Mission: Bro. C: Derry was continued in Correctionville mission, and Wm. C. Cadwell by his own request released from same. Bishop's Agent was requested to confer with presiding Bishop, with reference to paying the travelling expenses of missionaries in the district. C. Downs was appointed to labor at Twelve Mile Grove; E. R. Lanpher in his former mission, and David Chambers to labor in south-eastern part of the district as circumstances would permit. The notice given at last conference with reference to changing the time of holding our quarterly conferences, was by request of the brother giving the notice, on motion indefinitely postponed. President Crabb cautioned the Elders against encroaching on mission fields of other laborers, or on branch territory, without consulting with and getting consent of the brethren or branch officials in charge. A two days' meeting was appointed at Patton's School-house, commencing on the third Saturday in October; Bro. E. R. Lanpher in charge. Word having been received that some of the brethren of the Six Miles Grove Branch wanted that branch disorganized, the presidency of the district was appointed to visit the branch and see what was best to be done, with power to act. The following resolutions of condolence, as reported by Wm. C. Cadwell and J. F. Mintun, committee, was adopted: "God has seen fit in his providence to permit the departure from earth-life of Bro. George Washington Conyers, Sr., Bro. George W. Conyers, Jr., and Sr. Cynthia Hyde, all of the Little Sioux Branch of this district. By their departure many are caused to sorrow. We all feel lonely by their absence from our gatherings. Yet this sorrow and loneliness is not felt without the satisfaction of believing that their departure was to them a release, to rest, awaiting the resurrection of the just, when they will be crowned heirs of the kingdom of heaven triumphant, as they lived consistent and faithful members of the kingdom of God on earth. We, therefore, submit to our loss, and commit those near and dear to the departed by the ties of nature, to Him who doeth all things well, for comfort, for consolation and strength, to endure in patience their bereavement; praying God to be near them and bless as each may need." On motion it was decided that when this conference adjourns it does so to meet at Logan, on Saturday, the 17th day of December, 1885, and Brn. P. Cadwell, J. C. Johnson and David Kennedy, were appointed to make arrangements for the meeting. One child was blessed. An interesting prayer meeting was held Saturday evening, in charge of Bro. J. B. Lytle. Preaching on Sunday morning by Charles Derry; in the afternoon by J. C. Crabb, and evening by Charles Derry.

MICHIGAN SOUTHERN AND NORTH-ERN INDIANA.

Conference of the above district convened at the Saints' Church, Clear Lake, Indiana, October 17th to 19th, 1885. Bro. E. C. Briggs was chosen president. D. B. Teeters, secretary. Branch reports.—Galien 75; I removed by letter. Clear Lake 65; I died, 2 baptized. Coldwater 66; 4 baptized, I received by certificate of baptism, I expelled. Hopkins 18; I baptized. Bishop's Agent's Report: On hand at last report $12.37, received $80.21, paid out $79.65; balance due church $12.92. Elder's reports.—W. H. Kelley and C. Scott, by letter: H. Rathbun, present, has labored near Lansing and vicinity. Bro. Bootman reported his labors near home as circumstances would permit. Bro. W. H. Kelley was sustained as president of the district, and William Lockerby as Bishop's Agent, and D. B. Teeters as district secretary. The preaching by Brn. Briggs, Rathbun and Bootman, was most excellent, and the audiences large and interested. All things considered, it was the best conference ever held in the district. Five were baptized by E. C. Briggs, one a lady had come over one hundred miles. Adjourned to meet at Galien, subject to call of the president.

Miscellaneous.

REPORT OF SOCIETY ISLANDS MISSION.

TEMATERO, ANAA, 200 miles east of Tahiti, August 28th, 1885.

Bro. Foseph.—I think now that after a pretty general survey of the field, after nine months' experience, that I can state the condition of affairs here quite fairly; and I have felt for some time that it would interest the church to hear the case. I must necessarily be brief. It may be wise to say a few words about the mission before my advent here. In 1841 (I quote from memory) Benjamin Grouard, Addison Pratt and Noah Rogers, came to these parts. Pratt located at Papeete, and I think went to Tubuai, some two hundred miles south of Tahiti; and Grouard came here to Anaa, and came to this settlement first. From here he visited the Paumotus, which is a general name for a multitude of coral islands scattered over three hundred miles of water. He remained here and in the Paumotus till 1852, when, through persecutions from the Government, instituted by Jesuitical influences, he and Jacobs, and Hanks (Did any of our people ever hear of Henry Hanks?) left for America. Before this, the islands were under native rulers, and the people were Protestants. No opposition was shown while the native rulers held sway.

The Government is now more liberal. The President, in France, is a Protestant I believe, and the home Government is tolerant, and I am told that the Governor at Papeete is a Protestant. But be all this as it may, all that the Government demanded of me was compliance with the laws. That, I told them, was what was required by the rules of our church. It was part of our religion to respect the laws and honor the Government wherever we lived. Thus far we have not had any trouble with the authorities, but it is not because Jesuitical Priests have not tried to cause the same.

In 1852, Grouard, the founder of the work in these parts, went to America. He would probably have remained till now if persecutions had not driven him away. But few of his converts remain, perhaps not a dozen all told. Those who keep up his work are such as have joined under those whom he ordained. In the eleven years that he was here, he established branches at five settlements on this island, and on a number of the Paumotus. In the persecution that commenced in 1852, many, to escape bonds and imprisonment, joined the Catholics; and many who refused to do that, clung to their faith, and suffered in consequence. Several lost their lives, indirectly because of their faith; and a number were imprisoned for months. While they claim here that those who were killed, suffered because of their faith, I think none were put to death for their religion directly, but through trouble with government officials, which trouble arose on account of their religion. If I understand rightly, they killed a soldier because he was about to kill one of the Elders. They were greatly provoked, no doubt, by their persecutions. In the Panmotus, I do not think they suffered much, but this island was coveted; and it is not the first time that people have been persecuted when greedy, avaricious parties wanted their lands without paying for them.

None of the missionaries from Utah taught polygamy here, being only underlings they did not understand the purposes and practices of their leaders.

It is said an Elder Jacobs fold all around that you were stolen by the Indians when a little boy, and had never been heard of since, and that you were the only child your mother ever had. But I have thoroughly instructed them in all these parts, as to Brigham's movements and his abominable teachings and practices, and as to your right, call, and appointment, to your fathers place, and proved the identity of the old and the Reorganized Church. Brighamism could now do but little here. But they are not interested in getting these dark-skinned natives to Utah, to lead them into polygamy; and besides, they could not stand that climate. And as there is no money in coming here to stay; they for thirty-three years have neglected this field.

I knew that the gosped had been planted here as soon as I came into the church, for I read of it in the Times and Seasons and Millenial Star, and I felt interested in the mission then. At different times since I felt impressed that I had something to do with this field. In 1873, in December, by reason of their vessel putting into Papeete for repairs, Brethren C. W. Wandell and Glaud Rodger, men of excellent name in the church, and missionaries to Australia, discovered some Saints in and around Papeete, and batpized a considerable number, (some fifty-four I believe), and ordained a number of Elders. The work done by them had been outlined in vision before they had seen Papeete. There is an old Elder right here who was baptized and ordained by these brethren, and when he showed me his certificate of ordination, I felt it to be a pleasure and an honor to sign my name to it in token of approval of their work. This old Elder's name is Parata. When the news of the work of these noble brethren reached us, I remember that I was affected so that I was too full of utterance, and I then felt an assurance that I knew was from God, that I should be as a father to these islanders, and that I had a work to do among them, and although a number have spoken by what appeared at the time to be revelation of the Spirit, now and then during the past ten years, concerning my coming to this field, nothing influenced me so much as the manifestation of the Spirit to me when the news from these brethren saluted my ears. Some things spoken in the gifts have certainly proven true, and there is time yet to prove

Some think that as I desired so much to come here, and so long anticipated it, and have now got my desire, I should not murmut at my lot; at least some express themselves that way by letter.

I did desire to come, and yet I did not. I desired to come here, because I knew it was my duty, and that God required me to come, and I desired to do his will. I desired to see the land and people, as perhaps thousands in the church do this day; but my desire in that direction was not strong enough to induce me to sacrifice the conveniences and pleasures and profits of association with saints and enlightened people at home. I was not unaware of the inconveniences, discomforts, vexations and trials, to be expected here; for I informed myself of the country, and its inhabitants from histories written by those who have resided here for years, as well as by correspondence with William Nelson, when here as a missionary. But I am here, and the Lord sent me here; and I understood before I came that it would be a vexatious and troublesome mission, and full of trials. I know why I came, and I know that the Judge of all knows.

When I came here I found matters in a confused state, but this I understood, as you did, before I came. It appears that some seven years ago the church at Ziona (which included those now living in Papeete) cut off David Brown on the ground of drunkenness; after awhile William Nelson was sent here, and Brown was baptized (immersed I mean) by Nelson one night unknown to any of the officers or members of the branch. Brown confesses that he was not ordained to any office subsequent to this so-called baptism. I offered to give his case a re-hearing, as he claimed to have been illegally cut off; but he refused my offer on the ground that it was done so long ago. I told him that that was no excuse, if he was unlawfully dealt with, I was ready to see justice done him; but he refused to claim a re-hearing. But I determined to see to it any how, and when I asked him wherein the illegality of the cutting off came in, he said that he was not guilty of the sin charged; but that they cut him off on that charge as an excuse, while the real cause was that he preached Jesus Christ as the Savior, while all the rest preach Abraham. This was too proposterous for belief, and I soon learned that it was an atrocious falsehood, and his sin was abundantly testified to.

The church, supposing from the reports of his labors that he had made, and supposing him to be an Englishman, and truly an Elder, and capable of reading the works of the church, appointed him president over the Mission, and a most miserable failure he made of it. His very first step was (in harmony with his Indian nature) to take vengeance on Tehopea and Terohea. Soon he got a chance, for the celebration of the fall of the Bastile, July 14th, proved a snare to these men, for wine flows freely on this occasion; and he soon had them cut off. Some forty of the members refusing to lift up their hands were cut off-in this refusal they were wrong, for these men were guilty. But undue haste was taken in Brown's case and this one. I should not have allowed this case to go on without a re-examination, but I learned that the course of many, including these leaders, had been such since, and some erroneous doctrines taught and imbibed, that it would be best to have them start anew; and several other matters connected, which would take too much space to explain, influenced me in that decision It was fortunate that I came when I did, for Brown would have had the cause ruined here completely. So opposed were the people generally, that they would have either joined the Catholics or Protestants, or set up for themselves—anything to get away from Brown.

It was a wise thing for you to have re-called Nelson, and it was wise in the Twelve refusing to continue him as recommended. But if Brown had done his duty, he would have reported him a year before he did. He was on good terms with him then; but when he fell out, he was fast enough to denounce him. Yet it was immediately after Nelson's return here that he began his downward course.

I am now at Anaa, where there are five branches, of Benjamin Grouard's followers. Anaa is called the head of all the other branches of these people, and as it goes, so goes the others. There are branches at Fakarava, Faite, Makemo, Marikau, Takomi, Raroia, Takaroa, Hikuera, Niau, Ravahara, Nerigningo, Koatiu, Mitia, Tairaro, and perhaps others, with five here, Teimatahoa, Tekahora, Butuhara, Otepipi, Temaria and Tuhora, makes at least twenty branches who claim to receive the old organization. These I think will, without doubt, accept the following propositions: I, That you are the lawful successor to your father in his office and gifts; 2, That the proper name of the church is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; 3, To recognize my appointment, and my office; 4, To accept the revelations given to us-or in other words the Doctrine and Covenants as containing the law of God to us. They claim to receive the Book of Mormon, and the Bible, of course. I am willing to receive into the church those baptized by Benjamin Grouard and by Elders ordained by him, providing they are morally worthy. I shall give any the privilege of rebaptism if they desire it. I think if some of the leading men take that step, the rest will follow. While I do not think it essential to demand it, that is, that while I can not consider them outside the church, so as to require baptism, yet I believe it would be more satisfactory to themselves, and to others here; and for several reasons that I know of, and deem good ones, it would be better if they would do so. Yet, under the circumstances, I do not feel justified in insisting on it. Those who do not understand the case, or the peculiarities of these people, can not judge correctly on this point. I continually seek for wisdom from above, and I shall act as I consider to be the wisest and best way.

Beside these people, we have on Tahiti four branches; also one at Matea, one at Tikahau, two at Rairoa, two at Koukura, one each at Aputai, Manihi, Taroa, Tapoto, and Tubuai-or fifteen in all, fully identified with us. We have members at Tanga, at Hikuera, at Aputaki, and at Heu. Besides these, there are at Aputaki and at Hau, a people who endorse us fully; but who I shall insist on being re-baptized, because they were baptized by some who mixed some strange notions with the gospel. They called themselves the Church of Jesus Christ of the faith of Israel, believing that Abraham was the future judge of all. They misinterpreted some certain Scriptures. I do not blame them much under their circumstances. These people number about two hundred at Hau. About two hundred miles south-east of Tubuai, or probably about four hundred miles from Tahiti, I have lately heard that about two hundred people joined, through the labors of Elders from Tubuai. These must be seen to.

Now counting all these places as belonging to us, which we may safely do, there are not less than thirty islands, and at least thirty-eight or forty branches to look after. Now, it is utterly impossible for a man to visit them all in less time than a year, for then one man could give but about nine days with each. But when we have to depend upon some vessel to come along, which often would be a month and more to wait, it would take one man a year and a half to get around; for in most cases at least two weeks ought to be spent in a place. The Catholics, with not one-tenth the churches, maintain, outside of Tahiti, a Bishop, and at least four Priests; and they manage to be at each church once a month.

Now I ask that you will, with Bro. Blair, take this matter into prayerful consideration, and find not less than two young men, or middle aged ones for that, who can learn the language readily. I think that I can safely guanantee at least one hundred dollars to be raised to help pay their expenses here, and perhaps more. I can not possibly do one fourth the work needed to be done here. I affirm that any man who can resist the temptations thrown around him, while acting as a traveling Elder in America, can stand what he may meet here. But, because a man may or ought to stay here two or three years, and because it would be unjust to separate man and wife that long, it would be best to send a man and his wife. If any can help pay his own way, so much the better; but I must have help, and that, too, at once. The conference has given that power to you and the Bishop, and the missionary in charge. Not any sort of a man will do. No fastidious, over-dainty, self-important, rash, and over-zealous man will do. He must be "apt to teach," of good memory, and capable of learning the language. It is not at all difficult for any one with a good retentive memory. There are but few rules to learn. I can talk well enough to get along with them in conversation, but can not preach yet. But I have been compelled, because of the nature of the instructions to be imparted, to employ in every place an interpreter; and when I am not talking I am writing, either letters for the Herald, or on works to be translated, so that I have had no chance yet to take lessons from any one. Still I have grasped a great many words, and twice as many more that I do not. An Elder coming here then who had nothing to do but to preach, could have learned to speak by this time. I am literally worn out with work. I do not weigh as much as when I left California by fifteen pounds. I must have help, and two Elders at least. If the mission is not worth keeping up to that extent, it is not worth my efforts and time. The longer I stay, and the more branches I establish, the more is help necessary. Pray over this, I beseech you, and advise the church accordingly.

There are several native missionaries at work; but they are not where I want them, or where I would put them if I had the help of several white men. I would ask for four or five if I had any reason to even dream that they would be sent.

I am preparing a work in form of questions and answers, covering every subject connected with our faith. It will be of incalculable value to the natives. There are some of our tracts that ought to be translated, and a hymn book should be made; and, O, dear the work to be done in the translating line! I wish the Lord would put it into the hearts of several hundred Saints to send the Herald Office a dollar a piece, or that some two or three good souls would be prompted to give a hundred dollars apiece, to help us in that matter. This question-book I will sell, and send the money to the Herald Office, if the printing is done there. It costs so much here. We need a hymn book badly. These people are musical, and many of them are splendid singers, and many of their tunes are delightful. They have a good variety. Their singing is harmonious, and in no sense discordant. To convey the idea more clearly, they sing the original tune of "the Spirit of God like a fire is burning;" they sing "Lenox," "Come, come away," and a number of others. They will sing for hours if I want them to. If some Elder could come here who was a good teacher of music, and learn their language, he would do a vast amount of good here.

In regard to the field here, I would simply say, that with Tahiti in the south-west corner, there are some fifty or more islands stretching north and east, and all points between, and the farthest about four hundred miles from Tahiti. These are known as the Paumotus, Chain Islands, and Morea and Matea, these two are not Motus, but Mountainous; that is, Tahiti and Morea are. Matea is neither one or the other. It is an island with bluffs all around, perpendicular, two hundred feet high, and the top is nearly level. In some places the bluff is close to the water, in others a hundred yards back from the sea, here is where settlements are. This Island is distinct in its formation from the Paumotus, yet in many respects similar. We have been on the Paumotus and here since the 15th of March, except about three weeks on Matea. On the Paumotus only cocoanuts grow-no oranges, lemons, pineapples, viis, fees, and but very few bananas, and no vegetables, except taro in places; so we are not living on fruit and vegetables all the time. We get here fish, bread and potatoes, when a vessel brings some; but they will not keep but a few days in this climate. We will be glad to get back to Tahiti, that we may see a cabbage, and a beet, and a turnip, and other things of the kind. We can get canned fruit here for eighty cents for two pound cans, and this is fruit that is left over from last year in San Francisco. The sisters of Oakland sent us last spring some fresh canned goods, and they were good. We bought a can of Australian beef, called "Irish stew," which we found was the meat from a beef's head. But we have enough to eat, and in usual health. I was very sick lately, but am about as usual now.

There are a number of islands west of Tahiti, not under the French Protectorate, but under native kings and queens, that I would like to get a foothold upon; but the Protestant missionaries would do everything in their power to hinder us. It would be a good thing if we could establish our cause there. But I can not leave the forty branches in these parts, all clamoring for my presence, and I know that some need vastly more instruction than I can give them. I am sick at heart with the idea of the vastness of the work, and my inability to attend to but a small part of it, and I fear that I will not be able to stand the strain a great while without my health giving way. Why can not some of our rich brethren give five hundred dollars and send a couple of Elders with their wives out here? No one would be wise to bring children. I think Bro. Luther R. Devore and wife would do here, as they have no children. Bro. and Sr. Brand would do here first-rate. But there are others, whom you know better than I do. If Bro. Mahlon Smith and his wife will come, all right.

The way we are treated in going from island to island, and the way we manage, is this. In every place a comfortable house with two or three rooms is furnished us. Most generally a good bed of cotton, pillows, sheets, and covering. We carry, however, a couple of pillows, a blanket and quilt. We seldom use the blanket, except perhaps to put under us where no bed is furnished, and that was but once. These beds, pillows, &c., are very clean and comfortable. Chairs, tables, knives and forks, are furnished us; but we carry our own knives and forks and spoons and dishes; and we carry our own cooking vessels, although they would furnish them in every place. All these could be bought quite reasonably in Papeete. But knives, &c., could be brought along. Bread can be had in every place at ten cents per loaf. Taro, which is a kind of potato, can be got everywhere. It is liked by most white people. Potatoes from New Zealand and San Francisco can be frequently got. Chickens and fish and pork can be had, one or the other, all the time; but the latter I do not eat, nor have I offended any one by refusing, notwithstanding the predictions of some in America. No one need fear in regard to eating, drinking, and a place to sleep. I have never yet had to say with the Master, I have "not where to lay my head." Cooking is done out doors, or in a shed, in camp style. We have a cooking stove at home, in Ziona; but the natives have none. Plenty in Papeete, as every other convenience.

But no one need come here expecting to settle down in Papeete. I can not do it, nor need any one else expect it. They must keep on the move. In nearly every island, a missionary can get away to another point once a month, and in some of them, brethren have large boats sufficient to go in. Some vessels will take him free, others will charge five dollars, which is abundance for a meal or two and a place to sleep; but when the wind comes ahead, or dies out, and a vessel is three or four days in going a hundred miles, the ship does not make much. I wish some of our eastern brethren had a small schooner of thirty or forty tons trading among these islands. These vessels carry all sorts of goods, which they trade for pearl shells, such as pearl buttons are made of, and for bufa or copara—that is dry cocoa-nut -or old cocoa nuts, out of the shell, and quite dry. These are taken by large vessels to San Francisco and manufactured into cocoanut oil, soap, &c. Old cocoa-nuts in the shell are taken to San Francisco and shipped east for confectioners' use. Such are never used here to eat. Younger ones filled with water, are used. The water, which is clear and sweet, is very refreshing. I use no other drink. No one will want any other, except inveterate tea and coffee drinkers.

Whoever comes here might as well bring a good supply of summer clothing, for while every thing necessary can be bought in Papeete, it is fully double the price that it is sold for in the States. You may get your mail here on these islands once a month, or in two months, or in three, and perhaps at Hau, and a few others, once in four or six months. In Papeete, of course, it is regular—once a month. On some islands, like Matea, Rairoa, Aputai, Taroa, Koukura, Takarava, and Anaa it will be quite regular. But this is not a land of daily mails, telegraphs, daily papers, railroads, &c.; but it is not a wilderness, a desert, nor a barbarous country. The people are civilized, and dress in civilized costumes on Sundays, and when they go to meeting. Very seldom that women are seen without a dress and underskirt; and never without the pareu, or cloth which serves for a skirt. And on the appearance of a stranger, they quickly put on a dress, or throw another pareu over their should-

The people on the islands nearest Papeete are more careful in their personal appearance than those farthest off, where the Protestants bear rule, very little exposure of person is allowed. Where the Catholics rule, laxity in morals, and want of modesty is very marked. The Protestants are very strict. Among our people, the woman are quite modest, and are most always seen with their "Mother Hubbard" dresses on. They look fine in silk or satin dresses, lace shawls, and fine hats, (which they make themselves), and never with any shoes or stockings. Their dresses are long, with trails, and they cover up their feet. The men, or some of them, wear shoes and socks on Sundays, and when they go to meetings; but they get them off as soon as they can. That our sisters at home may judge whether love of fine clothes affects their olive-brown sisters here, I would say that a couple of Sundays ago, one sister had on a satin dress that cost sixtyfive dollars, with hat and jewelry to match. However, not one in fifty could dress like that; but lack of funds is the only reason. I wear shoes and socks, vest and coat all the time, and also a meduim cotton undershirt. I have worn the past weeks woolen pants and vest. It is not cool, yet I do not feel at all uncomfortable.

I believe I have said all that need be, to give an idea of this mission. I thought first I would merely give a history of the mission thus far; but I afterwards thought to write as I have, and so I have not been as brief as I intended. I hope that the Saints will not forget us in their prayers, and above all provide the Bishop with means, so that if suitable elders can be found to come here, they may not be kept home because there are no means to send them with. There are men in the church who could give a hundred dollars apiece towards it without any trouble. 1 do not think the church at home would be called upon to help. While I have nothing now, I have received enough for all our wants hitherto. I have not asked for any help from America. I sometimes see books that I need very much, advertized by Harper Bros. and Scribner and Co.; but if I had the money I could not send it from here, for there is no bank to get an exchange check with, no express office, and no money order or registered letter system. I would advise any one who may come here to bring ten or twenty dollars in American paper. Our good brother, J. A. Robinson, sent me a dollar bill, which I found convenient to send to the Chicago Inter-Ocean. And now when I read it, I remember his kindness. I am grateful, as is Sister Smith, to different friends for papers. We got all our mail for three months, two days ago. I say all, but I fear not; for I did not get any word from Bro. Joseph, and I do not wish to think that he neglects us that much, although I suppose he has had but little time to write.

I think that the forty branches here will average thirty members apiece. But I will, if possible, get all the names by next Spring conference. I will close for this time.

Your brother in Christ,

T. W. SMITH.

A DREAM.

As I walked in a room, there sat the Savior in a rocking chair. To his right sat a group of Elders, about a dozen in number. I knew them all at the time, and remember the names of Brn. J. R. Cook, J. Parr, T. Daley, G. Harlow, A. H. Smith, E. L. Kelley, A. Haws and Wm. Potter. I said to the Savior, "I want you to lay your hands on my head for the gift of the Holy Ghost." He waved his hand over the Elders and said, "Cook and Parr will lay their hands on your head for the gift of the Holy Ghost. You read the Book of Mormon." I walked through the house, and came to the Savior again, and said to him, "I want you to lay your hands on my head for the gift of the Holy Ghost. I have been baptized for the remission of my sins." Again he waved his hand over the Elders the second time, and said, "There are my Elders; they will lay their hands on your head for the gift of the Holy Ghost. You read the Book of Mormon." M. C. Spurgin.

RE-UNION FOR 1886.

Those wishing the Reunion (authorized by the church) held in their localities, will please write up their terms, and direct to P. Cadwell, Logan, Harrison county, Iowa, as to what will be charged for the use of the grounds; state their conveniences for wood, water, hay and grove facilities. Should they wish pay for the use of the grounds, terms must be agreed upon in the beginning, as the church proposes to hold full control of said grounds while the meetings are in progress.

P. CADWELL, DAVID HALL, J. C. CRABB,

NOTICES.

The Nauvoo and String Prairie District Conference will be held at Burlington, Iowa, December the 5th, at ten o'clock. The Elders and brethren will please try and get there Friday the 4th, so that we will not have to wait until Saturday afternoon in order to have enough present to transact business. The traveling ministry will please make it convenient when passing through to stop off and meet with us. Let all come rejoicing.

ELDER H. C. BRONSON, Pres.

This is to notify the Saints of the Philadelphia District, that by mutual agreement with the presiding Elder of the mission, Bro. W H. Kelley, I relinquish the mission so far as the Philadelphia District was concerned, and by his consent agreed to labor as circumstances permitted in the Massachussett District. I also take this method of thanking the Saints of Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Allentown and Hornerstown, with all others, for their kindness manifested toward me while with them. I would also recommend, as Bro. Hiram H. Robinson was elected presiding officer at their last district conference, if he has not already entered the field permanently, that he be placed there as early as can be done, as I believe him to be a good man, and one who tries to live by what he preaches. I trust prosperity may dawn upon JOHN GILBERT. the work there.

A conference for the Eastern Iowa District will convene at Clinton, Iowa, on Saturday, December 5th, at ten o'clock. All members of the church and all friends of truth are cordially invited to attend. The members of the church at Clinton have gone to work to build a house unto the Lord -a church. In this action they have given evidence of their faith, and have manifested a determination to merit success. Elder Warren Turner presides there, and is an earnest worker. Let all who expect to attend the conference try to carry up with them an extra dollar, or as much more as they feel able, as a contribution to their building fund; it will be thankfully received, and "the Lord loveth a cheerful giver." We expect Elder Etzenhouser to be with us.

JEROME RUBY, Pres.

The North-West Kansas District of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will convene in conference at Blue Rapids, Marshall county, December 12th, at ten o'clock. All are invited to attend, especially the priesthood of the district. There are so many good openings and calls for preaching that we want to know who can go out for the winter, so as to have them properly scattered throughout the district, in order to prosecute the work to the best advantage. Some of the ministry have neglected to make a report to conference for some time. We hope all will send in a report, if they can not be with us, so we can know what they want to do, what they can do, and what they have done the last three months. I pray that each one will feel the importance of A. H. PARSONS. the work.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

It has been decided to hold services in the new meeting house at Lamoni, on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 26th, 1885, at eleven o'clock. The Saints of the surrounding branches, and all friends of the occasion, are cordially invited to meet with those of Lamoni on that occasion, and to observe the day in a fitting manner with prayer and praise to the great Giver of all the mercies that have crowned the year with so many blessings to his people.

HENRY A. STEBBINS, Pastor.

After the services, the Sisters' Union Mite Society will serve a Thanksgiving Dinner in the basement of the new meeting-house. Tickets for dinner twenty-five cents each. They will have Quilts, Comforts, Tidies, Mittens, &c., for sale. The proceeds are for the relief of the worthy poor, and for the church bell fund.

MARY A. WHITE, Sec'y.

EXCOMMUNICATED.

SALT LAKE, Nov. 10th, 1885.

The following appears in to-night's Deseret News, signed by ten of the Apostles. Charges having been preferred against Albert Carrington, a full and patient hearing was had before the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, when the following decision was unanimously adopted, that Albert Carrington be excommunicated from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints for the crimes of lewd and lascivious conduct and adultery.

DIED.

SHERMAN.—At Clitherall, Minnesota, November 4th, 1885, Cutler Almon Sherman was killed. He was loading wood on the cars, his horses took fright, and in trying to stop them he was in some manner caught between the cars and wagon, killing him instantly. He was born December 6th, 1848, at Silver Creek, Mills county, Iowa; was baptized in 1875, by T. W. Smith; was ordained to the office of an Elder, August 23d, 1875. Bro. Sherman was a man highly esteemed by all who knew him, and greatly beloved by his brethren. He was an earnest worker; and his loss will be sadly felt in his branch. But we have good reason to believe our loss is his gain—that he has gone elsewhere to do the werk he earnestly desired to do, which circumstances seemed to prevent him from doing here. He leaves a wife and six small children to mourn his loss. He was a kind father, and a loving husband. The follow-Sunday, while speaking on the condition of the dead, the speaker stated that he supposed the departed brother was then preaching to the Spirits in prison, and at that moment a sister saw him in vision, standing with his right hand raised, preaching, and she seemed to hear his voice. Such thoughts and scenes are comforting to the sorrow-stricken ones. Funeral services were conducted by L. Whiting, and the discourse was preached by Hiram Holt, to a large congregation of Saints and friends, in the church at Clitherall.

He has gone, the brother we loved, But not without hope did we lay him away; Here, his work was done, his toils are o'er, And his faithful record's made. To the God who sent him, he has returned, To again perform his Master's will; Twas not his wish, but his Maker called, And he His summons did obey. Our Father, who hears the raven's cry, O'er his loved ones will surely watch, Until in glory they shall meet, And share in their heavenly joy.

Moses.—At Angus, Iowa, November 9th, 1885, of membraneous croup, Katie, infant daughter of Mr. John and Sr. Joan Moses. Funeral sermon by R. Etzenhouser, to a large and respectful audience. "Budded on earth to bloom in heaven," is the solace of the bereaved.

BOOK OF MORMON. Roan, sprinkled edges Imitation Morocco, gilt edges	1 25
DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS. Sprinkled Sheep, or Library Imitation Morocco.	1 25
THE SAINTS' HARP—HYMN BOOK. lmitation Morocco, marbled edges Imitation Morocco, gilt edges	1 25
JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET, AND	H18

HESPERIS. Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges.....

NEW BOOKS!

We have just added a full line of John B. Alden's books to our stock of Drugs and Notions.

We also carry full line of CHURCH PUBLICATIONS. Catalogues sent on application.

Books sent by Mail, prepaid, at regular piice. HANSEN & WALKER,

Druggists and Booksellers, LAMONI, Iowa.

NOTICE.

In the matter of the Incorporation of Lamoni, in Decatur county, Iowa.

Notice is hereby given to all parties concerned, that an election was held by the commissioners duly appointed for that purpose, within the surveyed limits of Lamoni, in Decatur county, and State of Iowa (plat whereof is now on file in this office) at which the question of the incorporation or non-incorporation of said territory was submitted to the legal voters therein; and it appearing, from the returns of said election now on file in this office, that due notice of the same was given, as by the statute required, and that at said election a majority of the votes cast were in favor of incorporation. It is, therefore, by reason of the result of said election, declared that said territory be hereafter known as the Incorporated town of Lamoni.

In witness whereof I hereunto affix my official signiture, this 18th day of November, A. D., 1885,

[SEAL]

E. J. SANKEY, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Decatur County, Iowa.

FARM FOR RENT.

Eighty acres, 11/2 miles from Lamoni; 53 acres of plow land, the balance in meadow and pasture. Good new house of six large rooms and four closets; also a small house. Stable for two teams, large Crib, two Wells. To be rented for one or more years, cheap for cash, to a good, responsible party. Possession given 1st of March.

MRS. W. H. CURWEN, Box, 94, Lamoni, Iowa.

FARM FOR SALE.

I have Sixty Acres of Land for sale: 37 acres in Grass, 17 acres in new Timber Land, about 3 acres of Standing Timber, and two acres of Orchard; a good Spring Well on the place, a House, Barn, and Granary.

Price: Six Hundred Dollars, Cash Down. The land is situated north of Jeffersonville, Wayne Co., Apply to

MRS. F. P. MOLLOY, Cleveland, Iowa.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L.F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville, Mo., and have always found it fair, square and honest in all its transactions:

T. T. Hinderks,
G. W. Wilcox,
S. L. Blake,
W. N. Boothe,
The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men whose recommendation are worth something.

Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands.

COME AND SEE OUR PAPER ALL

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also,

BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS, PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS.

Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Hansen & Walker's Drug Store.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE
For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also,
a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth

CONCORDANCE TO BOOK OF COVENANTS. An enlarged new edition; paper covers, 32 pages.....

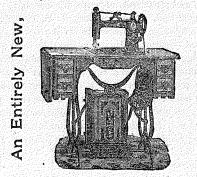

J. H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly.

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

EASY - RUNNING - SEWING - MACHINE.

IT HAS-

The Most Room under the Arm. The Most Room under the Arm.

The Best Self-Setting Needle.

The Largest Bobbin.

The Easiest Shuttle to Thread.

The Most Perfect Tension.

The Most Reliable Feed.

The Most Perfect Take-Up.

The Best Bobbin Winder.

IT IS SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME.

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

Agents Wanted by Robert Johns (Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL,

AND PASTELL.

Also, manufacturer of

B E DSPRINGS.

THESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or wish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Catalogue, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fail for those who will work diligently.

IF YOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue, anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handlings Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 10 hs when packed) for only 97c., IRON-HEATER included for $1.30, to any one who will act as agent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3.50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a

Picture Outfit,

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait. (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only $8c. Catalogue free.

Address ROBERT JOHNS,

PEORIA, ILLINOIS. (Successor to Johns & Ordway.) In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY. DR. JOHN SHIPPY,

Dental Surgeon,

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tition's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Gov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DEMVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison or Kansas City. It traverses all of the six Great States,

ILLINOIS, IOWA, MISSOURI,

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO
With branch lines to their important cities and towns.
It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver, Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City,

Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis, Chicago and Dubuque Chicago and Sioux City, Peoria and Council Bluffs, Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis,

St. Louis and Omaha, St. Louis and St. Paul, St. Louis and Rock Island, St. Louis and Chicago,
Kansas City and Denver,
Kansas City and St. Paul.
Kansas City and Omaha,

Kansas City and Burlington. Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points ith Through Trains to and from points located on its branches.

At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Ganada. It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico
For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

HENRY B. STONE,
Ass't Gen'l Manager,
CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass. Agent,

>BUSINESS &

The Davenport Business College

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught: Bookeeping, by single and double entry; Business Arithmetic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circles and Actual Business Practice. For circles and Actual Business Practice.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed David Dancer, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANCER: communications and articles to the EDITOR.

THE SAINTS' FIRALD.

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCUBINES
HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 32.—Whole No. 656.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 5, 1885.

No. 49.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Menald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

- EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 5, 1885.

UTAH DIVORCES.

ONE thing sure to result from the conviction of those arraigned for polygamy and unlawful cohabitation before the United States Courts in Utah, Idaho, and Montana, will be the putting into the possession of the first and legal wife, proofs by which she can procure a divorce from her particle of the much-married husband. For, no matter which horn of the dilemma the accused man may choose, whether he stands trial and is proved to be guilty, or pleads guilty and takes the sentence without other proof, the fact of conviction before the court is there; an evidence that every court in the land is bound to receive; a silent, but powerful witness that lies not for the hope of heaven or fear of hell; one that church discipline can not reach, or the ostracism of churchmen overawe; a friend to the wife in her sorest need, one that offers no advice, takes no fee, and makes no complaint after its work is done.

The calendar of the Third District. Utah, Judge Zane presiding, for October 16th, 1885, has the following record: "Mary Swain vs. Robert Swain: proceedings for divorce; court finds for plaintiff." Briefly explained it means, that Robert Swain was arrested for breaking the Edmunds law, in that he continued to live with their wives after the law said that he should not; and on trial was convicted. After his conviction his wife according to the law, went before the court and asked for a decree of divorce, setting up the fact of his unlawful conduct, and neglect of herself as a consequence of his unlawful life, and used the court proceedings as proof of her allegation. Is there a polygamist in Utah so purblind as not to see what this may mean?

LORENZO SNOW ARRESTED.

From various Utah papers and from other sources we learn that "apostle" Lorenzo Snow was arrested at Brigham City, Utah, for violation of the Edmunds law, and was taken the 2d inst., before U. S. Commissioner J. T. Black at Ogden, Utah, and placed under $1.800 bonds to appear and answer. Eight witnesses in the case were also placed under bonds to appear in due time, and testify in the case. The lightning is striking where it sends fear and consternation throughout the entire fabric of Brighamism.

If Mr. Snow had read considerately the sacred books he professes to believe—the Book of Mormon, Nauvoo Doctrine and Covenants, and the Bible—he should have known better than to teach or practice either polygamy or unlawful cohabitation; and should know that, as the God said to the polygamous Nephites: "They shall not lead away captive the daughters of my people, because of their tenderness, save I shall visit them with a sore curse, even unto destruction;" (Jacob 2:6); even so will the Lord do with latter-day polygamists except they repent. Mr. Snow and his like have been well warned. Let them repent, then all will be well.

KATE FIELD'S LECTURE.

WE print elsewhere the lecture of Miss Kate Field on Mormonism, delivered in Chickering Hall, New York, as reported in The World, the 22d inst. While her statements and style are very scathing on the Utah leaders, she makes a clear distinction between the Brighamite and the Reorganized Churches, and takes occasion to speak some words of truth and kindness in respect to President Joseph Smith. The character of her audience and the manner in which her lecture was received, give evidence of her popularity and power on the rostrum, and also of the deep interest taken by the leading minds of our nation in the subject she had under consideration.

Any one who has watched the indications of the popular will of our nation for a few years past in regard to Utah affairs can not have failed to see that the feeling has been rapidly gaining force and volume, that Utah's polygamy, priestcraft, and church rule in political affairs, must be given up willingly, or be stricken down by the nation's might. Kate Field's methods are potent in this direction, and it is well to know just what she is doing in the matter.

WHAT DOES THIS SIGNIFY.

Two persons, both in good standing in the Utah Church, have stated that the influence of the school in the city known as the University of Deseret, a Mormon school, tends to infidelity. By this, neither of the men meant that infidelity or unbelief was taught by either principal, or teachers; but that somehow, for some reason or other, the influence was toward infidelity.

Whether total unbelief was referred to as infidelity, or simply an unbelief in those tenets which more particularly mark the Utah faith, was what was meant, we can not say. Education is the ability to think, acquire knowledge, and use it; and it is possible that this is the "some reason or other."

CATCHING AT STRAWS.

THE Utah Journal, of Logan, Utah, for November 4th, 1885, has the following editorial.

"The Saints' Herald in its issue of October 24th, unwittingly concedes the point claimed by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, viz.: that the Lord revealed His will concerning marriage in the year 1843. The sentence from the Herald is as follows: "But at every time and in every place when God has uttered his will regarding the institution of marriage prior to 1843 such utterances have been of a similar nature to the statement in Genesis: 'For this cause shall a man leave father and mother and cleave unto his wife,' which statement is qualified beyond a peradventure by its repetition by Christ, as stated in Matthew and Mark, with the addition of the words, 'and they twain shall be one flesh.'" come to the conclusion from this statement that if the Lord did not reveal any different law prior to that time that in 1843 He (the Lord) did reveal another law. This is the idea conveyed by the language used, and it is in harmony with the truth because there are numbers of persons who can bear witness that the Lord revealed the celestial law. We are glad to know that the truth will creep into utterances of its opponents occasionally. It is a very difficult thing for error to combat truth. The shrewdness and skill of the able writer may endeavor to produce strong reasonings against it, but in vain."

This is a most contemptible and pitiful attempt to dodge an issue fairly made. Had the editor been as careful for the truth as he would have others be, he would have finished the paragraph in Saints' Herald from which he quoted. It is as follows, and we request the Utah Journal to just tack it to the next attempt it makes to commit us by implication. After making the statement which this overshrewd editor of the Journal so disingenuously twists into an "unwitting" concession of the claim for a change in the marriage law, we distinctly stated:

"For this reason we have ever averred that when the claim was made that a change had been made in the institution of marriage by a revelation in 1843, such revelation was not from God, and could not and never did supercede the rule originally given."

Does that look like an "unwittingly conceding the point," Mr. Editor? If there is any lack of wit on either side in this case, it is on the part of the Utah Journal, which has not the wit to be courteously honest in its statement of what an opponent has plainly written.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

PLEASE do not order any more of the Doctrine and Covenants at $1.25. We have plenty of those at $1.50 and can not print another edition now.

Bro. Etzenhouser is probably right when, in a letter in this issue, he imputes the non-appearance of a report of the late Park Bluff Reunion in this paper to a lack of a secretary. We know of no other reason. Read his letter.

Our letter department is well filled this issue, and among the letters is a very interesting one from Pres. Joseph Smith. General church interests were never more prosperous and promising than now. Reports from nearly all quarters are full of good tidings. The Lord's work is onward.

Mrs. Sarah L. McVay writes us of late asking that passing Elders call on them, on Main street, in Spickard, Grundy Co., Missouri.

Bro. J. C. Clapp writes us from Deer Lodge, Montana, that he is having good meetings there and in that vicinity, and that he has "enjoyed the Spirit of God in rich abundance of late."

Bro. H. A. Stebbins reports having had a very interesting time, ably assisted by Bro. A. J. Moore, in giving a series of sermons in the village of Wirt, Ringgold county, Iowa, the first opportunity had by our Elders in that place, though various brethren have preached in the schoolhouses around there with good effect. Bro. Stebbins also says that the prayer meetings and conversation of the few brethren and sisters living in that neighborhood has had a good effect, and the two baptized by him this time were those converted by the efforts of himself and others in the past. These last meetings were attended by many of the best people of Wirt and vicinity, night after night, and several are investigating earnestly, so it is likely that one or two others will be baptized soon, and probably more by and by. Bro. Stebbins has also baptized three lately here at Lamoni, two into the branch and the other his sister-in-law (Mrs. Jarvis) of Burlington, Iowa.

Among the many improvements going on in Lamoni is that of remodeling Bro. Peter Harris' mill. Bro. L. L. Wight, millwright, of Ridgeway, Missouri, has just finished his job of putting in a suitable bolting chest, so that now wheat, buckwheat, rye, as well as corn and feed can be ground rapidly and well. Bro. Wight informs us that the mill is making a very nice quality of flour and meal, and has a capacity for doing work rapidly. We trust it will be well patronized.

Bro. Wm. Baxter, of Empire City, Nevada, sends an order for books and tracts to be sent, for free distribution, to John Baxter, Christ's Church, Canterbury, New Zealand, in order to aid in introducing the work of the Lord in that region. Such casting of "bread upon the waters" will, we hope, bring good returns in the salvation of souls. This is faith and works combined, a making of sacrifice in a practical way, and an exhibition of love and zeal quite in harmony with the profession of a disciple of Christ.

Bro. R. J. Anthony, in a letter from Oxford, Idaho, just received, says he had baptized six there the day before he wrote, and that more were coming soon.

We are pleased to note that many new names are being added to the list of Advocate subscribers. This is well, for it is a potent helper in the Utah work, and in other directions also.

The "Mite Society" of Lamoni is a pattern of zeal, enterprise, and perseverance. They have aided the poor and needy largely, purchased a fine bell for the new chapel, and are moving steadily on to the accomplishment of other important purposes. Their receipts on Thanksgiving on tickets for meals and on sales of notions amounted to nearly $42, and they intend to increase this amount largely the next similar effort, as this was somewhat of an experiment. May success attend all such efforts, with them and others.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—May a Sister nominate a brother for the office of an Elder, claiming that the Lord had revealed to her that he should be so ordained.

Ans.—(1.) There is no specific law forbidding a sister to nominate officers for the churh; but the rulings of Saint Paul are not favorable to such practices. He says:-"Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to rule. * * * It is a shame for women to rule in the church."-1 Cor. 14: 34, 35. And in 1 Tim. 2: 12, he further says: "I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to us urp authority over the man." All this clearly relates to church government and ministerial authority; for Paul elswhere (Phil. 4: 3) says to certain ones:—"Help those women which labored with me in the gospel." The church is commanded by the revelation of February oth, 1831, paragreph 16, to honor, as church law, whatever had been given in the Scripture as such; therefore the writings of Paul should have some weight with us. It is evident that God, in view of the characteristic duties pertaining to womankind, has seen fit to graciously exempt them from the peculiar and trying duties which pertain to the ministry and to church government, and has not given them the privilege of teaching, directing, managing or controling in such affairs. Under the administration of Joseph the Seer, the ministry and they only, were charged with the duties pertaining to church government. (2.) It may be revealed to member that certain persons will fill certain offices; but it may not be expected that God will command the ministry, through any not ministers, in respect to matters of church government. God respects church authorities in the'r rank, from the greatest to the least.

Q.—Is it right to discourage branch officers and refuse their counsel?

A.—No. The members should readily aid and encourage their branch officers, and respect all proper counsel.

Q.—Is it right for young Saints to meet at each others houses to pray and instruct each in all good things without asking the consent of the branch officers?

A—There is no written law against it, yet it is better for them to seek and follow the advice of those having the watchcare of the branch. "Let all things be done decently and in order."

2.—What constitutes the fulness of the gospel?

A.—The perfect and complete plan of redemption in Christ.

2.—Has it been given to the Church of Christ? and if so when?

A:—It is now given to the church, and was given in the Book of Mormon. See I Nephi 3: 7; and 4: 3; Book of Nephi 7: 4; and 9: 9, 10; also 12: 3, 4; see also Doc. and Cov. 1: 4; 17: 2; 26: 2; 42: 5; and Revelations of John the divine, 14: 6.

2.—When will the balance of the records of the Nephites be brought forth?

A.—Not till after "the day of the wickedness and abominations of the people" are passed:—2 Nephi 11: 17; not until the people accept the Book of Mormon:—Book of Nephi 12: 1; and not until the people excercise the same kind and degree of faith as the brother of Jared did:—Ether 1: 10, 11.

Q.—Is it lawful to cut off young members who have been found guilty of unchristianlike conduct, and who desire to be cut off?

A.—Yes, it is lawful; but it may not be wise to do so; for sometimes patience and forbearance may save them. Let wisdom and the love of God direct.

Q—Is it right for members to mimic the spiritual gifts and say they are of the devil?

A.—Certainly not. No one should rail at, or treat lightly and derisively what claims to be from God.

Q.—Is it right to be lightminded, and cause a disturbance in testimony meetings?

A.—No; nor in any other kind of meetings.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. R. J. Anthony writing from Oxford, Idaho, the 19th inst., says:

"I am having splendid success here, where I have been the past ten days. Have preached eight times, and several are ready for baptism. Will stay over next Sunday, and expect to organize a branch here. God speed the good work. Twelve persons so far have sent to the Bishop to have their names dropped from the Brighamite Church record, and more will go. Excitement is at fever heat. I was called a liar while speaking last night; but it missed its mark. We are gaining friends daily. We shall win the victory, in Christ."

Writing from Renick, Missouri, the 22d inst., Bro. W. H. Bybee says:

"The old ship Zion is sailing grandly here. I baptized three more this morning at ten o'clock, making five since last Sunday, eight in all added since conference; all of mature age, and five heads of families. Others are about ready to unite. We ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints everywhere. I go to Bevier the 24th inst., then to Salt River, and hope to reach the Hannibal Branch by December 15th."

Bro. James Mills writes from Streator, Illinois, the 24th inst.:

"We have good meetings here, and the Saints are united. We feel the Spirit of God in power, and are blest."

Bro. J. C. Foss, writes from Plano, Illinois, the 23d inst., as follows:

"Yesterday I spoke twice, and baptized eight more, making in all since I arrived here, eighteen. Others no doubt will obey soon. I like the Saints in Plano, for I feel they love the Lord, and are trying to keep his commandments. I commence a series of sermons at Sandwich on Tuesday evening next. May God bless his cause."

Bro. George W. Crouse, of Frederick, Maryland, says:

"I am in my eighty-fourth year, so that I can not write as I once could. I am still full in the faith of the Reorganized Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints. * * * I believe as firmly as I live that Joseph Smith was a true prophet of God, and I also have full confidence in his son Joseph being legally called and ordained to lead the church."

A LATE Richmond (Missouri) Democrat, has the following on the "Manuscript Found." The spirit of the criticism is very excellent, its treatment is fair and honorable, but with some of its conclusions we take issue.

When the editor says—"There is not a good thought or precept in the book [Mormon] that was not given to the world long before Joe Smith ever saw the light of day,-and given too in better language and more clearly and forcibly,"-when the editor says this, if found true, it is no proof that the Book of Mormon is not of divine origin; (1), for the reason that repetition of facts is no evidence against their divinity or truthfulness, for the four gospels, the teachings of Jesus, the prophets and apostles, as also common observation is proof of this. If one witness of a fact is good, many are better. As for the "language" in which the Book of Mormon is written, it is probably equally as good as that in which much of the Bible, especially the New Testament, was first written; for the apostles, in their speech, gave evidence that they were "unlearned and ignorant men." (Acts 4: 13, with 1 Cor. 1: 26-29; 2: 1, 4). Bishop Horne, a very eminent writer, says of the language in which the New Testament was written, "Very many of the Greek words, found in the New Testament, are not such as were adopted by men of education, and the higher and more polished ranks of life, but such as were in use with the common people. Now this shows that the writers became acquainted with the language, in consequence of an actual intercourse with those who spoke it, rather than from any study of books, and that intercourse must have been very much confined to the middling or even lower classes, since the words and phrases, most frequently used by them, passed current only among the vulgar." etc.—Introduction vol. 2: p. 22.

The various versions of the Bible give us, in a very large degree, the language, not of its first writers, but rather of its various translators. Therefore, the divinity of the Bible is seen, not in its language, but in its facts and sentiments.

The beautiful and forceful style of a statement is not evidence of its truth, whether found in the Book of Mormon, Bible, or elsewhere; and their absence is no evidence of falsity or want of divinity. The Democrat says:

"THE MANUSCRIPT FOUND."

This is the title of a little book of 144 pages, sent to us by the Saints' Herald, of Lamoni, Iowa, with a request that we review the same. In brief the book is the manuscript story of the late Rev. Solomon Spaulding, from a verbatim copy of the original now in care of President James H. Fairchild, of Oberlin, Ohio, College. The story is presented by the Church of the Latter Day Saints as proof positive that the charge is false that this Spaulding story was "the source, the root and inspiration, by and from which Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon wrote the Book of Mormon," the original manuscript of which is is now in possession of David Whitmer, Esq., of Richmond. For many years the opponents of the Book of Mormon have claimed that the plan, subject matter, including prominent names and localities, history of the origin of the aboriginal races of America, with their arts and sciences, civilizations and customs, were identical in this "Manuscript Found" and in the Book of Mormon. The little book before us proves conclusively the absurdity of this claim. We have not had time to go through it carefully, but a glance at its pages is sufficient to convince us that the Fook of Mormon was never founded on the absurd "Manuscript Story," which possesses no merit whatever in any direction.

We can say this much without expressing any belief whatever in the origin of the Book of Mormon, a book we have but causually glanced through. We can not for a moment believe with our brethren of the Saints' Herald that the Book of Mormon is of divine origin. There is not a good thought or precept in the book that was not given to the world long, long before Joe Smith ever saw the light of day,—and given too in better language and more clearly and forcibly. If the Book of Mormon was wiped out of existence and forgolten not one truth necessary to the welfare of humanity here or hereafter would be lost to the world. Why? Because every truth contained in the Book of Mormon is found elsewhere. It is not belief in books that the world needs but an acting out of the belief that must exist in every heart, that as we live here on this earth plane so shall we arrive on the shore of the land where no material body exists and where no need of such a body is felt. Dogmas, doctrines and creeds, are but useless appendages tacked on here by man. None of these are necessary to the soul's progress to a state of perfection and happiness on the other side. There we will find no such appendages. Salvation will indeed be free to all who will but open their eyes and recognize the life that is before them. In but a single precept there is enough religion for the whole world -that is, Do right and fear not, for in the heart that is true to itself and just to others there is no room for fear here and no thought of fear as to the result of the life that is to follow this. Let every soul rejoice in this precept and the awakening of that soul in the life beyond will be such as no mortal can picture and no human mind understand were it pictured in ever so plain a language.

Yet we would not take away from any one the Book of Mormon, or any book. If he or she feels the necessity of such a book let it be theirs to read and consider, and let those who read follow out the truths that branch off like tendrils from the one great central truth; Life is immortal and he who wishes to travel the paths of progressive spirits or souls in the second and lasting life must cleanse his life here of all impurities that would weigh down and retard the progress of the spirit, and make-it unfit for association with its companions whose earth lives have been passed with a view to this higher life in a world that knows no stopping to cavil and quarrel over doctrinal points that will not save or condemn any one.

Life is real, life is earnest, Let us live it best we can, For the life that lies beyond us Is not made by hand of man. But it is a glorious realm Brighter than man can conceive, And when once he enters there Doubt disappears, and all believe.

BRO. GEORGE W. CLARK writes us the 15th inst., from Kingston, Kansas. It appears he was educated by a pious mother, who died when he was young and to whom he made promise, on her death-bed, to live a Christian life. In the course of time he united with some religious denomination, but finally, not being confirmed by divine testimony in his then profession of religion, he vielded to temptation, drifted away from his church and its faith, and was caught in the whirlpool of infidelity. At length he sought God by prayer and asked to know which of the numerous churches was approved of God, and at length, when traveling with his team a voice spoke to him twice, bidding him be prayerful and faithful, and that presently he would find the true faith and be a minister thereof. This filled him with joy, but he vet did not know where to find the promised faith. About six years after this, when he moved to Labette county, Kansas, he learned of the Latter Day Saints, and after investigating their doctrine for near three years, he at length was assured they preached the fulness of the gospel, and this was confirmed to him by the power of the Holy Spirit, which made known to him that the church they represented was indeed the church of God, and was baptized by Elder R. H. Davis in the Mound Valley Branch. He desires to continue in faith and good works to the end.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

This is what a correspondent of Voice and Echoes, of Leon, Iowa, has to say of us. The judgment of others than ourselves is often of value when considering

It was our pleasure to go through the printing establishment of the Latter Day Saints, located at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa. We approached the front entrance, entered and passed upstairs to the composing room, in which were six typos, including the courteous and accommodating foreman, Mr. Scott, who kindly showed us the forms from which are printed The Saints' Herald and Zion's Hope, weeklies, and The Saints' Advocate and Sandhedens Banner, monthlies. The Saints' Herald is a sixteen page three column paper, published every Saturday. It has a very large circulation, going to every state and territory in the United States, (with the exception of the state of South Carolina), and has an extensive foreign circulation. It is edited by Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair. From the composing room we went to the room in which job work is done. Mr. Scott showed us some very fine wood cuts; and spoke of the steel plate of the prophet Joseph Smith, which he informed us cost $100, and of others which cost $75 each. From this room we passed into the mailing room, where they employ two stamping machines, which enabled them to label or address papers with incredible rapidity. A full sack of papers are sent to each of the following states: Iowa, Kansas, California, and the territory of Utah. From this he took us to the secretary and bookkeeper's room. This is a very pleasant room in the south-east corner of the first story, overlooking the town. This room is also the store room for their books, including those published by their own presses. Then we were shown into the editor's room, which was vacant, (as far as editors were concerned), but was pleasantly and conveniently furnished; is in the second story, and not as dark and dismal as the so-called sanctums of some of our editors. After satisfying our curiosity, as well as looking and listening would do it, we were taken to the engine and press rooms. They have an eight-horse power engine, which is used both in running the presses and heating the entire building. There are three presses in the press-room, two large cylinder presses and a small press for job work. One press has a capacity for 1,600 sheets per hour, and the other 1,000 per hour. There is counting machines attached to the presses, which denotes the number of copies printed; it works on the same principle as the tallying machine used by threshers to measure grain. They were at work on a job of 40,000 impressions to be bound in books. Their largest press prints one side of the Herald at a time. They showed us the stereotyped plates of two of their books. They do some stereotyping in the press-room. Their book-binding is done in Chicago, although they expect to have a complete bindery in their establishment soon. All the workmen take considerable pride in the work done, and it certainly is first-class in every particular. They use nothing but the best of material, and it is in the hands of expert printers. Statements have been made to the effect that this is the largest printing house in the state. They refute this statement, but are willing to acknowledge their work to be as good as that of any house in the state. A young man from Mt. Ayr., Iowa, is preparing to establish a local paper in Lamoni, and have the press work done by the Herald printing house.

ACHILLES.

Correspondence.

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

> NEPHI, Juab Co., Utah, November 21st, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair: Bro. Luff and myself reached Milford the evening of November 6th, where we found Bro. W. W. Hutchings from Beaver, and Bro. W. H. McGary of Milford, waiting for us. We stayed at Bro. McGary's that night, and the next day traversed the desert and canyon roads under the comfortable guidance and care of Bro. Hutchings. The road from Milford to Beaver is a pleasant and picturesque one; partly over the level plain, partly along the Beaver river through Minersville Canyon, and partly through Beaver valley. The way through the canyon is especially attractive, the mountain sides being colored and tinted with the brown and green of summer's foliage, and the rocks painted in Natures own wonder workshop.

At Beaver we found Bro. W. Thompson, Sen., who had arranged for the use of the Methodist Church for services on Sunday the 8th, morning and evening. We therefore began our efforts in the city at ten o'clock, on the 8th, with a fair attendance. In the afternoon, at two o'clock, Bro. Hutchings and myself attended the regular service of the Utah people in their meeting house. We were shown a good seat to hear from, and after their sacramental service was over, we listened to a sermon by counsellor Fotheringham,-he who has served a term in the Utah prison for his religion he says, but for breaking the laws of the land the Court says. His sermon was not particularly objectionable, except that he drew comparisons between the United States and the people of Utah that were not warrantable from the facts, and rather severely denounced the Government, predicting woe upon the inhabitants thereof. His text was from the Book of Mormon:-"That nation on this land that will not serve God shall be destroyed," &c. Bishop J. R. Murdock

In the evening the M. E. Church was crowded with curious and apparently interested hearers.

Bishop Murdock called on us at Bro. Hutchings' house after the afternoon service, and was very kind and pleasant, inviting Bro. Luff and myself to call on him at his home.

We held eleven meetings at Beaver, omitting Monday and Saturday evenings, from the 8th to the 18th inclusive. The attendance was good and the interest maintained to the close of the meetings. The attention was most excellent and respectful. The Pastor of the M. E. Church, Rev. Copeland, gave us the use of the church building cheerfully, and was present at several services—illness prevented his attending the others. The choir, with Miss Nellie Thompson at the organ, were most regular in attendance and sang for us at all our sessions, using Gospel Hymns for the selections. We were pleased and grateful with the attention shown us.

That we were able to set those who came to hear us thinking, we believe. The attention paid to the preaching was of a character that evinced interest. The good will expressed by many, in both word and deed, was indicative that a crisis in Mormonism was recognized, and men and women were determined to be informed upon those things which were in dispute.

Bishop John R. Murdock was liberal and kind. We visited him at his home, chatted with him and his wife, and ate at his table,—being treated kindly and courteously. We were respectfully met and treated by all, and neither saw a disrespectful act, nor personally heard a disrespectful word during our stay. We were not only not disturbed in our meetings, but had the best of order, and considering the fact that at our Sunday evening services the house was packed full, many even standing, the best of attention was had from first to last.

No blame can properly attach to Bishop Murdock that we were not permitted the use of their meeting house; his position, and the nature of his association with the dominant church in Utah. forbade that he should permit us the use of their church building. We recognized the position the Bishop was occupying, and personally exonerate him from feeling or censure because he could not grant the use of the building. He is well liked. and is accounted a liberal-minded man. His heart and hand are his, but his public services and his conduct as a church officer belong to the people with whom he is in church relationship; and it is his duty to obey those who, by virtue of church rule, control the houses of worship in the Territory. In this case, as in many others, we have no sort of doubt that it is the system, and not the man, that is in fault. As brother Peter Anderson has so pithily stated: "The people are better then their religion."

We take pleasure in stating that we enjoyed our visit and labors at Beaver very much. We were so kindly received and so patiently heard, that it will ever be a pleasure to remember the occasion of our stay.

The branch, though few in number, were all engaged, and with Bro. William Thompson presiding, attended all the services. We were the permanent guests of Bro. W. W. Hutchings, an old-time Saint; but were guests at many tables during our stay, the people seeming to be pleased to have us visit them in their houses.

At the close of the services on the evening of Saturday the 15th, Bro. Thomson took a collection, resulting in aiding us materially. Some of the citizens, under the management of J. Barraclough, Deputy Clerk of the Court, presented Elder Luff and the "Senior" with a purse of $31.50 in aid of our work, at the close of our services on the Wednesday before we left them. Neither of these acts of kind attention was solicited by us, and they were all the more acceptable because unexpected.

Being under the necessity to stay at Milford on the railway one night, Bro. Hutchings, in company with his wife and Bro. Thompson, took us to that station on Thursday the 19th. An appointment sent ahead of us to Bro. W. H. McGaay and Mr. Stoddard, resulted in filling the large dining room of Mr. Williams' Hotel, kindly offered for the purpose, with a good audience, to which we talked for an hour and a quarter with apparent interest to those who heard.

In this visit to Beaver and Milford we have been blessed with good liberty in addressing the people. We have tried to present our views and discuss the questions at issue between the Reorganized Church and the Utah Church fairly, and without abusing the people or their kindness in listening. At the same time we have spoken plainly, and so far as we could have discussed principles, their correctness and fruits, and not men; holding that the principle of any religious organization were subject to open examination and discussion. We have received decided encouragement from many. Among our congregation at Milford were a son of Erastus Snow, Mr. A. G. Campbell (former contestant delegate from Utah to Congress), and Mr. Jacob Bigler (of Bigler's Grove, Iowa, memory, an old-time Bro. Luff has gone on to Springville to stop over the Sunday, and I speak here to-night, if all is well.

JOSEPH SMITH.

PARRISH, Illinois.

Nov. 21st, 1885.

Bro. Blair: - Brother Hilliard and the writer came to this vicinity on Monday last, and we have had a very interesting time. The Methodists and Campbelites seem to have united for the purpose of opposing the truth. They have called on one Mr, Manan of the Campbelite Church to discuss the points of difference between them and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints with brother Hilliard. The discussion is now going on each evening. It appears to be very one-sided. Manan appears to be poorly prepared for the work before him. So far as the discussion has gone, truth has been victorious. Two young men were baptized by us on Sunday. Bro. J. A. Morris, administered. We will write you the particulars of our visit when we return Yours for the truth, home.

J. W. STONE.

Conejos, Colorado, Nov. 18th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—My compliments to you, and those who are identified with you in the good work, of furnishing the written word of God and the gospel of our Lord and Savior in that noble exponent of the only true faith, the Herald in its weekly visit. It is looked for with a great deal of interest, and when by any mishap it fails to arrive on time, you can imagine how badly disappointed I feel.

I understand that the Brighamites are to have another influx of emigrants here shortly from the Southern States; and if it proves correct, I would like to have Bro. Joseph, or some good debater, come and expose their sad condition, if they continue in the gross delusion of following after the teachings of their blind guides. I believe that if Bro. Joseph would come there are many who have not taken the horrid oaths of the Endowment House, who would turn from the Brighamite ways. One of the big Utah guns came last week, (J. W. Young). I guess he finds that there are other places more congenial than the great Salt Lake basin, for I understand he is booked here for an indefinite length of time, or at least until after their December conference.

One week ago I received three rolls of tracts, but no publications in the Danish language. You said in your card that you had sent a few Banners, and some books. I have not received but one "Manuscript Found," and no Banners. I would like to have those cheap Voice of Warnings if they can be had, as I wish them to go on a mission to the Southern States.

As ever, yours in gospel bonds, F. B. Moyers.

> Box 58, Rhodes, Iowa, November 25th, 1885.

Dear Herald: Blessed harbinger of peace! I have just been at Viola again; held five services with favorable indications; baptized a most excellent lady on 22d, a respectful group of seventyfive to one hundred witnessing. Some remarked, "How impressive;" others, "The Mormons will have a church yet!" Confirmation was largely attended at Mr. Hart's, and good feeling prevailed. Sr. Hellen Newlin, whom Montrose "Reunion Folks" will remember, had the satisfaction of a discharge of "tumor" in nature's way; is somewhat improved otherwise, and desires the fervent prayer of Saints for ultimate recovery. The Saints of Viola are all in the faith. Several others admit all we claim, but lack the courageamong them the "Jordan Friends" of Springville, who did much in behalf of Sr. Chopper, just baptized, as to her hearing the word.

While at Viola in August, I took occasion to visit the Iowa Penitentiary, and found among 281 convicts the following religionists—Methodist 72; Catholic 68; (children ahead, as usual now-a-days); Presbyterian 25; Baptist 24; Lutheran 16; Christian 11; Episcopal 9; Congregational 8; United Brethren, (all in one pen), 6; Reform 5; Evangelist 4; Protestant 3; Campbellite 2; In fidel 2; Advent 2; Jewish 1; Quaker 1; no religion 22; total 281. A Latter Day Saint couldn't be found. I was glad, and almost Hurrr-ahed. Some parties interested at Viola didn't hurrah when, in the Anamosa Fournal, of Aug. 27th, this appeared in the Warden's Bienniel Report.

Considerable disappointment is expressed in Eastern Iowa, that the Park Bluff 'Reunion' exercises did not appear in Herald, which was due evidently to the fact that no secretary was appointed. Having attended both, I can say that had Park Bluff the number of Saints that Galland's Grove had, it would have led the van. Was at Angus lately; the few Saints there struggle against great odds, but are in the faith. On the funeral occasion of Sr. Moses' child, a better feeling from without prevailed. Elders will do well to call there. Address Thomas Robinson, or John Batt, Angus, Iowa.

I have been busily engaged, though in the toils more than ever before. Am not yet discouraged enough to cease persevering. The other day, on train, met an Iowa Stock and Grain Dealer, whose acquaintance we chanced to make. As we sped along he said he was at the Galland's Grove Reunion, knew Elder Blair and others, and a number of the Galland's Grove District people. A certain Galland's Grove man had ministered the word in his locality acceptably to the people; then, he said, a straggler came whose talk would have been all right, if not spoiled by a reckless and damaging life at his home, which the people hearing him knew. "Epistles," other than those on paper, seem still to be "read," the ill ones more than the good. The part of his talk about the stragglers we did not enjoy; but assured the gentleman, that the Church deplored such work, and was trying to get rid of stragglers.

We have withheld names, and only written this as one item of how work is weighed by those watching the ministry, though not of the church. With Bro. Bozarth, I read "Washington's Vision "a few days since with profit, we think. The times seem portentions for the completion of its fulfillment. Will Gomer T. Griffiths send his address? Success to "Gritty Jim of Mo?"

In bonds,

R. Etzenhouser.

KEMPNER, Lampasas Co., Texas, November 21st, 1885.

Dear Herald:-As expected when I wrote you in September Bro. Cato and I took a tour into Young county. We first called at Rock Creek. where Brn. Jackson, Bennett and Nichols, with their families reside, all of them members of the church. Here we preached four discourses with good liberty, and had a good visit with the Saints and friends. Our next stopping place was in Tank Valley, near where Bro. and Sr. Hargrave reside. This place was first opened by Bro. George Montague, and many remember him with kindness still. Bro. Cato has done considerable labor there since. We began our meetings on Sunday, September 27th, and held seven meetings there and held two more at a house a few miles south. A Mr. Kriegar, a Campbellite preacher, was present at our meetings and made himself quite conspicuous; tried hard to be "the observed of all observers;" would run to one side of the house for paper, to another for pencil, then fix himself in some prominent place and frequently call to the speaker for references. One night he announced that when his school was out he would probable want to discuss the points at issue, some where in Young county. We told him we were not looking for debate, but when he was ready, if he would let us know, we would try to accommodate him. He then said he would meet us at Mr. Seddon's, Saturday morning, the 3d of October. On that day we were there, and remained until afternoon; but he did not come to make arrangements as expected. In the afternoon we repaired to the Brazos river where Bro. Cato baptized Bro. and Sr. Seddon, and Bro. Ash. The night of the 4th we were again at Rock Creek, where we held four more meetings; and then went on to Jack county, the scene of the recent debate, where we held two meetings. I was in Jacksboro on the oth, and met Mr. Mizell. county clerk, and a prominent member of the Christian Church, who informed me that Wilmeth had written him to make arrangements for our contemplated debate, but the church there had considered the matter and concluded, as their was no one in town who believed the Book of Mormon, so they had nothing to gain, and as some one would have to pay Bro. Wilmeth for his time, and they were not willing to, that they did not want a debate; and he had referred him to another church in the country. I authorized Bro. J. L. Ham to act for me if they in the future want any, and there the matter rests. The 10th Brn. Cato and Ham, and I drove to Whitt, in Parker county, where we had been invited to come by a Mr. Parsons. The Christian Academy was procured for us, and that night I spoke to a large audience with fair liberty; the next night Bro. Cato spoke, but the large building would not hold all those who came. Only one of the three elders who controlled the house was present, and he was not willing to take the responsibility of letting us have it longer, so announcement was made for the school-house for the night following. The morning of the 12th, Bro. Ham and I started for Weatherford, leaving Bro. Cato to hold the fort.

The 13th I left Bro. Ham, and was off for Bell county, to be at the district conference. Arriving at Temple I met Bro. Roberts, and learned he had had an excellent time in Lampasas and Burnett counties since I left him, and had baptized two more. Conference convened at Elmwood the 17th and 18th. We had a good conference. All who attended, I think, received spiritual strength and help. We continued our meetings for a week and baptized three more. One of them, Bro. Bates, was a prominent member of the Methodist Church, and to some extent has persecuted us, but is now one with us. He says when he became troubled about the matter, he went to the circuit rider and told him his condition, and asked him to help him out of the dilemma; but the reply was: "Bro. Bates, I am having a great deal of trouble of my own, and you will have to get out of this difficulty the best that you can." He went to another preacher, and his reply was: "Bro. Bates, you are like I am sometimes; you are bilious. When you get over that you will be all right." I hope Bro. B. will be a useful man in the kingdom of God. While at Elmwood, Bro. S. W. Simmons was ordained an Elder, and Bro. B. F. Renfreoe a Deacon. I trust these men will be valiant in the cause of Christ.

Nov. 14th.—I started in company with Brn. H. L. Thompson and B. F. Renfroe to meet "the giant," A. R. Miller of the Christadelphians, at this place. Arriving at Temple, we found Brn. I. N. Roberts and C. A. Norwood both sick with fever. We expected Bro. Roberts to go with us, but had to leave him. We met Bro. Oldham at Kempner, and by night were domiciled at Bro. H. B. Alexander's.

Sunday the 15th.—Bro. Thompson preached us a good sermon at eleven o'clock, and at night we went to Oakalla to hear our opponent, and "sized him up" in our mind, as we afterward found him.

The 16th, we met and adopted the rules of debate as found in "Braden and Kelley," with two exceptions, viz., first he would take no part in prayer, as he did not believe that public assemblies were the places to pray in, though he wanted it distinctly understood that he believed in prayer in its proper place. Second, he would not admit "that it is possible, therefore, that he may be in the wrong, and his adversary in the riight," claiming there was no possibility of being wrong himself. Well, we met at night and organized. I chose Elder John A Hall of the Christian Church, he, Dr. Arnold of the Baptist, and they chose Elder Owens of the Christian Church. Dr. Arnold attended but one session, and Mr. Coffee succeeded him. The first proposition, viz., "The Spirit of man is conscious between death and the resurrection," I of course affirmed. The argument and evidence brought against this position would not be new to your readers, as it was the same as usually used by Adventists, which they are familiar with.

This proposition lasted four hours. Then the second—"The kingdom of God will not exist until the second coming of Christ—was discussed for eight hours. His position was, that the literal kingdom, given to David was the only kingdom of God; and that as it was thrown down it could not exist until Christ should come and sit upon the thrown of David in Jerusalem. Starting out with the declaration that it was not possible to be wrong, he demanded that all of the parables of Christ and the plain statements of the word in regard to the kingdom should be interpreted to suit this theory, but utterly failed to make them apply when handling them himself. Some of them he failed to notice at all.

I have not space to give particulars, suffice it to say that, aside from their own members, the victory is unanimously accorded us so far as I have heard. I think it is complete so far as it goes, and will do us good in the community. Mr. Miller has a great reputation as a debater, and certainly has the entire confidence of his people. He was quite gentlemanly in his deportment, and corteous in his manners. The government of the debate was a grand success. The band of moderators was impartial, and well qualified for its duties, so all went off pleasantly. The debate closed on the 19th, and that night Bro. H. S. Thompson gave us a sound, logical gospel sermon. Yesterday the visiting brethren left me alone. I am to commence meeting tonight. I hope Bro. Roberts will be with me soon, as he was better at last report.

In hope of Zion's triumph,
HEMAN C. SMITH.

Plainville, Mass., November 23d, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair.—It has been the pleasure of the Saints of late to listen to the eloquence of our worthy brother in the gospel, Columbus Scott. As has been stated heretofore, he has preached in West Mansfield; and it was through the kindness of Mr. Lawrence Abbott that the gospel was first preached here. Bro. Bond has recently been at Plainville; he preached a powerful sermon at West Mansfield. We trust the good seed of the kingdom of God has been sown in the latter place and will bring forth fruit unto eternal life. I hope the Saints everywhere will try and make the pathway of our traveling brethren a little brighter, (as they have to sacrifice the comforts of home for the gospel's sake), by not keeping them up late at night asking questions; for I believe the officers of the various branches should be able to answer most of the inquiries of the Saints concerning the gospel. They should place before the Elders such food as the Lord can bless and would be for the health of the Elders.

I should be glad at any time to have the Saints send me papers regarding the advancement of this great and glorious latter day work, and I will do the same by them, as I try to keep the people posted in this vicinity through the columns of the press.

Pray for the Plainville Branch. The work is still onward in this place and the regions round about. Bro. U. W. Greene is holding the fort at Attleborough with good success. Bro. Potter, of Providence, R. I., spoke there yesterday, and also at West Mansfield. The good people of Plainville have decided that the best way to reject the truth we teach is to keep sweetly away, and thus they have banded together to do.

Yours in the faith,
ARTHUR B. PIERCE.

MANCHESTER, Red River Co., Texas, November 15th, 1885.

Dear Herald: As it has been some time since we have reported any thing from this place, I concluded to let the readers of the Herald know how we are getting along. Bro. Cato was up last week, but did not tarry with us but three or four days. He preached on Sunday at eleven o'clock, in the Saints' Chapel; also on Sunday night, and was blessed with good liberty. He left Monday morning for Silver Hill. Bro. Cato is one of those Elders that can get along with any body. He was the first to bring the gospel to the Red River country. He has many friends here with the world's people, as well as with Saints. We think his visit was a help to us. All were pleased with his preaching and instructions. We ask the Saints to remember us in their prayers, for we have a great deal of persecution; but by labor and prayer we may yet overcome evil with Yours in gospel bonds, good.

J. D. ERWIN.

Selections.

KATE FIELD ON MORMONISM.

A NATIONAL MARRIAGE LAW THE ONLY CURE FOR POLYGAMY.—UTAH SHOULD BE IN THE SAME CONDITION AS THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.—
"MAN IS NOT BORN TO VOTE."

MISS KATE FIELD, last night, gave at Chickering Hall, New York City, two hours and a half to the social and political crimes of Utah. There was a distinguished and brilliant audience assembled, and the speaker was greeted with warm applause when she made her appearance. With quiet dignity, an easy, colloquial manner, and a clear, soft voice that was distinctly heard in every part of the hall, she began her lecture by a succint history of anti-polygamic legislation.

THE ARGUMENT.

"Having passed two anti-polygamic laws without effect," she began, "Congress in 1882 passed a third, whereby all present and past polygamists of both sexes were disfranchised. Last winter, for the first time in the history of the Territory of Utah, a monogamic Legislature assembled,

"What was the result? John Taylor and his polygamic priesthood sat in the background and pulled the wires to which their minions danced while receiving pay from the United States Government. Latest advices received by me from Logan, the town in Northern Utah where the last Temple has been erected, and which is remote from the lynx-eyed reporters of the Salt Lake Tribune, state that the faithful Saints are coming from all parts of Utah and Southern Idaho to contract plural marriages within the so-called sacred edifice. But what would you do? ask covservatives. Special legislation is dangerous."

The speaker here came to the broader question of the marriage laws of the country.

"IT'S A DISCRACE."

"So far as the Anti-Polygamy law is concerned," she said, "it would be very easy to rob its opponents of argument by making a United States Marriage law. It is a disgrace that there is no such law. We call ourselves a nation, and yet the foundation of all society—marriage—is left to the sweet will of State legislation, whereby men and women are married in one State and very much the reverse in another. Congress inserts the Fourteenth Amendment into the Constitution, removing all disabilities of color or race. Here it is: 'All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States, and individual States are prohibited from making or enforcing any laws abridging the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States.'

"Now, how is this carried out? Frederick Douglass marries a white woman in the District of Columbia and walks the streets a law-abiding citizen. Shortly after Steven Brown is sent to jail in Mississippi and the negro Thornton is sentenced to four years in the State Prison of Indiana for similar acts. This is not a plea for miscegenation; it is a plea for the main-tenance of the Constitution. Do you not blush that such outrages can be committed in this free country? By all means, pass a national marriage law, and if Congress will not revise the Constitution in order to embrace the States, at all events it can pass such a law for all Territories and thus do away with a special anti-polygamy bill. And when Congress has thus done its duty, Utah will go on as before. then? What would any nation do with traitors? Deprive John Taylor's church of temporal power, and one-fourth of the Mormons would heave a sigh of relief. Mormons who remain in the Church for policy's sake-and there are a great many of them—would dare to show their colors.

"DO YOU NOT BLUSH."

"Mormons who believe in the religious elements of the church, apart from polygamy and despotism, would rejoice greatly. Timid souls would dare to act out their real natures. Young men ambitious of public life would gradually range themselves on the side of the National Government. The Church then would be powerless to punish such delinquents, for the doctrine of blood atonement is at present a dead letter, and temporal rewards, for which saints strive quite as much as sinners, would be on the side of the National Government. Loyal citizens of Utah ask not for anti-polygamy laws, not for the disfranchisement of women, not for the disfranchisement of a class, but for the disfranchisement of all men and women and the establishment of a legislative commission, composed not of carpet-baggers, but of loyal citizens of the Territory, whose interests depend upon the Territory's wellbeing. Such a commission governed the Territory of Florida from 1822 to 1829; it governed the Territory of Louisiana and also governed the North-western Territory, so there is ample precedent for it. Loyal citizens are so anxious that Utah should be put in harmony with the rest of the Union as to be willing to give up their right of suffrage and stand upon the same plane as their disloyal brothers and sisters. 'Unconstitutional!' is the cry that goes up from Mormon throats, and is repeated by certain Gentile authorities. Why is universal disfranchisement unconstitutional when, according to the Constitution of the United States, which the Mormon so dearly loves, 'Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the Territory or other property belonging to the United States?' What the Constitution declares the Supreme Court indorses: 'Congress has full and complete legislative authority over the people of the Territories and all the departments of the Territorial govern-

"What is the condition of Utah to-day? One hundred and thirty thousand souls who believe in a polygamous theocracy arrayed against 15,000 souls who believe in a republic; 130,000 souls who believe in John Taylor as the head of their government, 15,000 souls who believe that the President of the United States is the head of their Government; 130,000 souls. who believe that the laws of this country are to be broken whenever they conflict with John Taylor's commands; 15,000 souls who believe that defiance of the law is rebellion against the best government on earth; 130,000 souls who believe that the United States are to be destroyed to avenge the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and that on the ruins will be founded the Kingdom of the Saints; 15,000 souls who look upon this nation as the hope of the world and see in it perpetuated the gradual emancipation and enlightenment of all humanity; 130,000 souls that accept polygamy as the revelation from a just God; 15,000 souls who see in this practice a desecration of home, the prostitution of body and soul and the begetting of children under the malign influences of jealousy, hatred and unsatisfied longings.

"MAN IS NOT BORN TO VOTE"

"Why should nullifiers be given the ballot? Man is not born to vote; the best legal authorities have long since denied that the election franch se is a vested right. 'It is unrepublican to take from us the management of our local concerns,' cry the Saints. This comes with bad grace from a people avowedly hostile to national authority, and for these hierarchs to raise such a cry is like unto the legion of devils who, under protest, were cast out by the Savior, and by way of compromise were allowed to enter a herd of swine; even the swine felt so disgraced that they rushed into the sea and drowned themselves.

"Congress governs the District of Columbia and there is not an elector in it. The District of Columbia is in harmony with the rest of the country; it has no established church to foster, and therefore sends up no wail of anti-republicanism. I have always heard, and what I have heard has been verified, that self-preservation is the first law of nature. Does not the law of nature extend to the laws of man, or is it the duty of governments to sit still while rebels trample upon its honor and laugh at its commands? If a plague were to attack any portion of this country there would be no question as to the right of Congress to make laws, if necessary, for its suppression. Yet, a moral cancer is eating into the body politic, and it is unconstitutional to apply a remedy? If the United States Government is so impotent as to be unable to protect itself from internal disorders, the sooner the humiliating fact is admitted and the Stars and Stripes are withdrawn from Utah, the better.

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibit the free exercise thereof," cry the Saints. "We are persecuted for our religion." I deny it. The Josephites, now numbering twenty thousand, live in harmony with the Union. They have settlements in many States, and even have a settlement in Independence, Missouri, the very town from which the early Mormons were driven. They believe in Joseph Smith, the prophet; they believe in the Book of Mormon; they have at their head Joseph Smith, jr., the eldest son of the prophet, a good man and citizen. Why the difference? Because the Josephites repudiate polygemy; because they teach obedience to the laws of the land; because their President does not interfere with the people's political opinions. It is the temporal, not the spiritual part of Mormonism that is dangerous to this country. If treason and polygamy be a religion, why may I not invent a religion to morrow and offer up human sacrifice? Why should the Government say me nay? It is my religion to kill human beings, and a vastly better religion it is to kill bodies than to torture living souls, beget crime and undermine the Government. If Congress will make no laws respecting an establishment of religion, shall it be constitutional for a mere dependency, like a Territory, to establish a religion?

"SHAME ON THIS NATION."

"And what says our much perverted Constitution? 'The United States shall guarantee to every State in the Union a republican form of government.' Is a polygamous hierarchy a republican form of government? Saints and quibbling Gentiles, you are hoist with your own petard! Shame upon this nation for being so false to its trust!"

In the course of the lecture Miss Field sang a Mormon hymn, to illustrate the religious teaching of the Church. It began:

Old Sam has sent, I understand, A Missouri God to rule our land, and was after the style of an old negro song with a typical chorus. The effort was greeted with long continued applause. She then gave many specimens of the sermons she had heard in Mormon sanctuaries, replete with anathemas against the United States Government and couched in the vilest and most profane language.

At the conclusion, Miss Field was presenteded with a handsome basket of flowers. Among the many prominent people in the audience were Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Stedman, Mr. R. H. Stoddard, Mr. George Riddle, Mr. James Brown Potter, Mrs. E. A. P. Barnard, Miss Anna Dickinson, Mr. Roswell Smith, Mr. Lawrence Hutton, Mr. Algernon S. Sullivan, the Rev. Dr. J. H. Rylance, Mr. Logan C. Murray, brother of the Governor of Utah; Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt, Prof. Ogden Dormus, Mr. W. Winter, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, C. C. Buel, Henry Gallup Paine, Mr. and Mrs. George Edgar Montgomery, Mr. Frederick Baldwin, Mrs. Anna C. I. Botta and Mr. E. Lauterback.

Original Poetry.

ON THE DEATH OF ALMA SHERMAN.

Oh, why should death so instantly, So unexpected come
And bring such grief and sadness
To hover o'er our home!
Why should our hearts be broken
And with such anguish torn!
Oh, must this, our beloved one,
Unto the grave be born!

We know our God is gracious,
And to the uttermost
He saveth those who serve him
And in his mercies trust;
But though we bow before him,
And seek the Lord in prayer,
We feel almost forsaken,
This heavy cross to bear!

We can not see his happiness
In yonder heavenly sphere;
We only know our sorrow
And tribulations here.
We can not see his sure reward
Upon the other side;
We only feel our loneliness,
In this dark world—so wide.

We do not know the mighty work
That waited for him there;
We do not know his glory
In yonder mansions fair.
We only think how much there was
Depending on him here?
And we are grieved, and weeping,
O'er our loved one's early bier.

But God himself hath promised—
And His word can never fail—
To listen to the widow's cry,
And to the orphan's wail;
And He who knoweth all things,
And "doeth all things well,"
Hath taken him,—and we will trust
And try to serve Him still.

Emma L. Andersone

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

GOD'S GATHERING.

TO THE Saints who are still scattered abroad upon the earth, who are living in hope of eternal salvation, and of our gathering together unto God to worship him in Spirit and in truth, and to be with Jesus Christ when he comes to bring peace on earth and a full reward to those who are worthy to receive Him.

We must remember that many who have been called may not be chosen, and that only those who have been tried, and have overcome temptation and evil, will find rest. We have the experience of the past and the present,-as set forth in the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants,—telling us how God and man can meet together, and hold such converse as is the abiding pattern and rule of all divinely religious experience. For God never spoke a word to any soul that was not exactly fitted to the occasion, and the man. He spoke to the prophets, as the epistle to the Hebrews tells us in many parts and many ways. He spake to men as one speaks to tender weanlings (Isa. 28: 9), giving "precept upon precept, line upon line, here a little and there a little." God's word was delivered in the language of men, and is not exempt from the necessary laws and limitations of human speech. But the mind of God is unchangeable. His purpose of love is invariable from first to last. The gathering of a pure and holy people enters into the plan of redemption. At the beginning, when man sinned and went out from the dresence of God, and a vail of darkness came between God and man on account of disobedience and Sin, Jesus Christ entered into covenant with the Father that he would gather out a people from all nations, freed from sin. The vail was removed, and free intercourse with God restored. We find Adam restored, and Cain cast out. Enoch and his people were gathered out and taken from our world, to be restored to it again. Noah and his family were saved. Abram, at the call of the Lord, left country and kindred. Read the eleventh chapter of Hebrews for a few of those who believed God would prepare for them a city. When He brought Israel out of Egypt with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm Moses praised the Lord, and said prophetically: "Thou shalt bring them in and plant them in the mountains of thine inheritance, in the place, O Lord, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in; in the sanctuary, O Lord, which thy hands have established. The Lord shall reign for ever and ever." But they sinned, and worshiped the calf; "And God said, I will give unto them the law as at the first, but it shall be after the law of carnal commandments; for I have sworn in my wrath that they shall not enter into my presence, into my rest." Without holiness no people can get into that rest. Again God said: "Ye shall be holy unto me; for I the Lord am holy, and have severed you from the nations to be mine" (Lev. 2: 26).

But though the Lord had severed Israel from the nations, they never became a holy and pure people. The very foundation of revealed religion is the fact that man does not first seek and find God, but that God in his gracious condescension seeks out man, and gives him such an approach to himself as man could not enjoy without the antecedent act of divine self-communication. The true mark of each dispensation of revealed religion lies in the provision which it makes for the acceptable approach of the worshiper to his God. But God will not meet the impure worshiper. "When ye call I will not hear." The principle of holiness was a principle of separation. The religion of Jehovah could not be preserved while they lived amongst the heathen. Jehovah is a living God, a moral and personal being. He speaks to his prophets by a clear, intelligible word, addressed to the intellect and the heart. He, the prophet, is filled with might by the Spirit of Jehovah (Mic. 3: 8). Jehovah speaks to him as if he grasped him with a strong hand (Isa. 8: 11). The word is within his heart like a burning fire shut up in his bones (Jer. 20:9), forbidding Isaiah to walk in the way of the corrupt nation, and filling Micah with power to declare unto Jacob his transgression. Thus the essence of true prophecy lies in moral converse with God, and to learn his will.

The Lord Jehovah, Amos says, will not do anything without revealing his secret to his servants the prophets. But the prophets do not claim universal foreknowledge. The secret of Jehovah belongs to them that fear him, and he will make them know his covenant. There are personal relations between Jehovah and his people analogous to those of human friendship and love. Religion is to know Jehovah; to love him and obey his commandments as one knows, fears, loves and obeys a father. The prophetic theory of religion has nothing to do with the law of works. Religion, they teach, is the personal fellowship of Jehovah with his people, in which he shapes them to his own ends, and impresses his own likeness upon them by a continual moral guidance. Such a religion can not exist under a bare law of works. Jehovah did not find Israel a holy and righteous people. He has to make them so by wise discipline and loving guidance which refuses to be frustrated by the people's shortcomings and sins. He continues his love in spite of Israel's transgressions; he is not influenced by gifts and sacrifices; he chastises to work penitence, and it is only to the penitent that he can extend forgiveness. "Obey my voice and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people." Jehovah's love is never withdrawn from his people, even in their deepest sin; "How can I cast thee away, Israel? My heart burns within me; my compassion is all kindled. I will not execute the fierceness of my wrath, for I am God, and not man, the Holy One in the midst of thee."—Hos. 11:8.

"Gather my saints together unto me, those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice." "They that trust in the Lord, in Mount Zion, can not be removed, but abide forever." "The Lord is round about his people from henceforth, even forever." "Therefore the redeemed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion." "For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem." It is this continual, living instruction of the Lord, present with his people, which the prophets regard as essential to the welfare of Israel. No written book would satisfy the thirst for God's word, of which Amos speaks. The only thing that can supercede the law of God from the prophets, is the law written in every heart, and spoken by every lip. "This is my covenant with them, saith Jehovah, my Spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the Lord, from henceforth and forever."—Isa. 59:21. God's word and will, not in a book, but in the heart and mouth of his servants, is the ultimate ideal, as well as the first postulate of prophetic theology.

Moses said, "Would God that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his Spirit upon them."-Num. 11:29. But the trouble with Israel and with others, they claim the promise in an unconverted state. "Thus saith the Lord of Hosts, Hearken not unto the words of the prophets that prophesy unto you; they make you vain; they speak a vision of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the Lord. I have not sent these prophets, yet they ran; I have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied. But if they had stood in my counsel, and had caused my people to hear my words, then they should have turned them from their evil way, and from the evil of their doings." -Jer. 23:16-22. And when John came preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins, he said: "O generation of vipers; who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance, and say not, Abraham is our father; we have kept the commandments of God, and none can inherit the promises but the children of Abraham; for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham."-Luke 3:13. "The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force. But the day will come when the violent shall have no power." And how many are there in the world to-day, claiming by inheritance, or some other promise, that they are the children of the kingdom, and still living in sin and disobedience!

When we come to the Book of Mormon we find the same account—God separating families from the heathen nations and bringing them to this land that he might raise up a pure seed unto himself; but sin and disobedience came with them. And the knowledge of God was kept alive amongst them only by prophets pleading with them to repent and turn to God and work righteousness. And when Christ came to them he found more faith among them than in Jerusalem. But they turned again to sin, and God gave them up to destruction, and to lead a miserable life in darkness and unbelief. It has been the same all down through the ages of the past since the spirit of evil tempted man to sin. Only when the will of man is changed to love and work good with God, can His Spirit be received and retained. Paul said: "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or obedience unto righteousness?" But the gathering out of a people purified from sin, who will love and obey God and work with him for the redemption of mankind has been more clearly revealed to us through Joseph the Seer in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, than to any other people. Jesus Christ said: "If I had not come and spoken unto them [the Jews] they had not had sin; but now they have no cloak for their sin." This is upon the principle that to whom much is given, much will be required. In 1831, when the Saints were called to gather to Zion, the conditions were perfect if they had been obedient unto what was revealed to them. The land at that time was of little value, and not many inhabitants on it. And God said to them: "If you will receive wisdom, here is wisdom, that the land should be purchased by the Saints, and also every tract lying westward, between the Jews and Gentiles. Blessed is he that keepeth my commandments, whether in life or death; and he that is faithful in tribulation, the reward of the same is greater in the kingdom of heaven. Ye can not behold with your natural eyes for the present time the design of your God concerning those things which shall come hereafter, and the glory which shall follow after much tribulation. For after much tribulation cometh the blessing." "Blessed are they who have come up unto this land with an eye single to my glory. * * Wherefore I give unto them a commandment, saying thus, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy might, mind, and strength, and in the name of Jesus Christ thou shalt serve him. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Thou shalt not steal, neither commit adultery, nor kill, nor do anything like unto it. Thou shalt thank the Lord thy God in all things." And it pleases God to give all the good things of this world to man; for to this end were they created and made. And we are to confess God's hand in all things, and obey his commandments; this is the law and the prophets. And, we are to trouble God no more concerning this matter, but learn that "he who doeth the works of righteousness, shall receive his reward, even peace in this world, and eternal life in the world to come. I, the Lord have spoken it and the Spirit beareth record, Amen."

And this is a new and everlasting covenant, even that was from the beginning. "Man can not be saved by the law of Moses, neither by your dead works. Wherefore enter ye in by the gate as I have commanded, and seek not to counsel your God." "Truth will I send forth out of the earth to bear testimony of mine Only Begotten, his resurrection from the dead, yea, and also the resurrection of all men. And righteousness and truth will I cause to sweep the earth as with a flood, to gather out my own elect from the four quarters of the earth unto a place which I shall prepare, a holy city, that my people may gird up their loins, and be looking forth for the time of my coming. For there shall be my tabernacle, and it shall be called Zion, a new Jerusalem." This from the book of Doctrine and Covenants is plain and to the point, showing that the gathering is a law of God from the beginning, and none but those who have been redeemed from the fall and restored to communion with Christ by the Holy Spirit, can remain and be protected in Zion. Christ said to the Jews "How often would I have gathered you as a hen gathereth her brood under her wings, and ye would not." Brethren, will he have to say the same of us? Judge ye. We as a people must abide the law of rightousness which has been given unto us, that law which Jesus Christ came to teach and fulfil in the sight of men, which he displayed in his life and teachings, that perfect law of love which is God's. And he gave us "power to become the Sons of God," and to inherit the life that now is and that which is to come. Only in him and through him can we be gathered. We are the salt of the earth. If we have lost that preserving power, we are then fit only to be trampled under the feet of men. We must come out in the power of God. Whenever we are in a clear light of personal purity and unselfishness, then can we be gathered to the glory of God.

Yours in the hope of that gathering.

JOHN MCKENZIE.

THE WORD OF WISDOM.

"For Joseph truly testified, saying, a seer shall the Lord my God raise up who shall be a choice seer unto the fruit of my loins."— 2 Nephi 2: 2. And through this seer the Lord said:

"Search these commandments, for they are true and faithful, and the prophecies and promises which are in them shall all be fulfilled."—Doc & Cov. 1:7.

From the above we can understand the mission of Joseph Smith. He was to be "a choice seer," and the prophecies and promises given of God through him to the church, will all be fulfilled. The greatest difference between Latter Day Saints and other religious bodies is, that we believe in present revelation; and there is no principle we hold to that has been more bitterly opposed, and none more ably defended.

In examining the subject in hand we must remember these facts, and also that many times we have testified that we knew Joseph was a prophet, and that God does speak to his people in this age. Remember it is the doers of the word and not the hearers only who are justified.

"Behold, verily, thus sayeth the Lord unto you; in consequence of evils and designs which do and will exist in the hearts of conspiring men in the last days. * * * I have warned you and forwarned you, by giving this word of wisdom by revelation." Here is manifested the love of God. He looks upon this wicked world and knows what wicked men will do, and he warns his children of the evils. He tells us "strong drink is not good, neither meet in the sight of your Father, but for the washing of the body." The evils of strong drink are so great that it matters not which way we look, we can see its baneful effects.

When we examine it in the light of science, we find that in accord with God's word, it is not good for man. We will give a few quotations from O. S. Fowler's 'Human Science.' He has made the welfare of mankind a life study, and speaks from observation, and the word of God in the Doc. & Cov. 85: 36, says: "Seek ye out of the best books words of wisdom; seek learning even by study, and also by faith." And Alma says: "Every thing that is good comes from God, and everything that is evil, from the devil."

Fowler, on page 493-4 says: "All artificial exhilaration always and necessarily injures, because it draws greater drafts on the vital forces than it can honor without detriment. Nature always supplies all the action and ardor she can well endure. This is proved by the fact that our impulsiveness and zeal are greater or less as we are able to endure them." * * * "That reaction which always follows exhilaration, is its own condemnation." Reader, apply your own common sense to this class of facts. After intoxication the feelings condemn it, fearfully. Inebriation causes horrible feelings, because it has done terrible damage. All men should beware. They can not afford to trifle with life and health.

On page 495: "Delirium tremens caps this dreadful climax, and labels all intoxication with its terrific anathemas! What restlessness and fiery excitability! What awful feelings and horrible illusions, in which only devils and hobgoblins glaring with rage, or else fiendish delight in torturing, horrify the dreadful specter! Only nightmare bears any comparison with it in mental agony, and that but faint."

"On page 504: "Workman, you do not

"On page 504: "Workman, you do not need it, for it goes to the brain, not muscles, and is the laborer's great pall."

An eminent German chemist has said that—"All the food contained in one gallon of beer is equal to about as much flour as could be placed on the end of a knife."

The seeming strength derived from its use is the same as when a horse is weary and you urge him along with the whip. It does not make him stronger, but acts as a stimulant, and causes him to exert his exhausted body, which is overtaxed and needs rest. And so with man; he is tired and needs to rest his body, but he takes a drink of liquor and it stimulates him, and he is deceived with the thought that it makes him stronger, while it has only acted as the whip to the jaded horse.

On page 509 he says: "Tobacco, chewed or smoked, is a rank narcotic poison. Its effects on beginners, before the system becomes inured to its use, shows what its constitutional effects are on the organism. Can it turn the stomach at first without injuring always?" "Tobacco vitiates the saliva, finds its way to the stomach, and poisons the digesting food, and thereby the blood made from it. The odiousness of the breath of all its consumers condemns it as plainly as nature could condemn. It is most filthy. It manufactures right within you and in close proximity to the great labratory of life, just the most loathsome and very nastiest compound possible. What could tempt you to take into your mouth that most repulsive pool you have just disembogued from it! And yet it is no more utterly defiled now than before it was ejected.'

Thus we might continue, and introduce ten times as much evidence of the great evil of strong drink and tobacco on the human system; but sufficient has been said to establish it, all of which we know to be true, if we will but observe the examples before us.

And again—"hot drinks are not for the body or belly." And the church in Joseph's day understood such to mean tea, coffee, and other drinks of a similar nature

On page 508, (Human Science) it says: "They are powerful tonics, too bracing for any nervous person to endure with impunity. They impede sleep for five or six hours after they are drunk. All lovers of them strong, are nervous in the extreme. They do sometimes cure headache to-day, only to increase it for days afterwards. All inveterate tea and coffee drinkers suffer proportionally from headache, and usually sick headache. If they will stop drinking them six months, their headache will stop. Let inveterates in either discontinue their use six months, and they will barely begin to realize the damage they inflict by noting how much better they feel after they become once fairly weaned."

"We take the following from a newspaper:—"Only thirteen out of ninety-one samples of coffee analyzed during one month in Paris were pronounced pure. One specimen package is reported to have contained the following ingredients: red earth, flour, coffee grounds, carmel, talc, plumbago, vermicelli, sewohn powder, bean dust, carrots, bread crusts, acorns, saw-dust, red ochre, brick dust, ashes, mahogany shavings, and sand."

Sometimes the argument is used that, "It makes me feel good to have a glass of beer or brandy, or a cup of tea or coffee." Well, dear reader, I leave you to settle that matter with God. He says it is not good, only for certain things which is stated in the revelation. Which shall we believe; our appetites or his word through him whom we have testified we know was a prophet of God. Can we take our feelings as a guide and ignore the written word? If so, why claim superior light by present revelation, and disobey that which is revealed?

The second paragraph says: "It is pleasing unto me that they [flesh of beasts and fowls] should not be used only in winter and times of famine." This is also treated lightly, and like savages we eat meat every day of the year, making the same excuse as for beer—"It makes us strong,"—whereas, in the animal kingdom the elephant, camel and horse, can stand more fatigue than the lion, tiger, and other flesh-eating animals. Not only have we this example before us, but God says it should be used only in cold weather, or in famine; and also that "all grain is ordained for the use of man and beast," to be the staff of life.

In the third paragraph it points out the best use of the different kinds of grain, and we believe no person who has had experience in that line will dispute the truthfulness of the statement. It then closes with the promise: "And all saints who remember to keep and do these sayings, walking in obedience to these commandments, shall receive health in their navel and marrow in their bones, and shall find wisdom and great treasures of knowledge, even hidden treasures, and shall run and not be weary, and shall walk and not faint. And I the Lord give unto them a promise that the destroying angel shall pass by them."

Dear Saints; what a promise to us! What blessings! Where could we look for more! Are we willing to take God at his word, and show our faith by our works, and practice what we teach? "For I the Lord am bound when ye do what I say; but when ye do not what I say, ye have no promise."—D. C. 81: 3. Do we ever think how inconsistent we appear before the world, and what a weapon we place in their hand when we advocate present revelation, and yet fail to practice what has been revealed to us? Our experience is that we have been greatly blessed in keeping the "Word of Wisdom;" and we can say to all those who use tea and coffee, to cure the headache, we do not use them, and have never had it.

Edward Rannie, Jr.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

Organization may change or dissolve, but when parties cease to exist liberty will perish.

Affection blinds the judgment, and we can not expect an equitable award where the judge is made a party.

One effect of fear is to disturb the senses and make things not to appear what they really are.

Liberty consists in the power of doing that which is permitted by law.

At the gates of the forest the surprised man of the world is forced to leave his city estimate of great and small, wise and foolish. The knapsack of custom falls from his back with the first step he makes into their precincts.

Death adds perfection to the most perfect man. It renders him faultless to those who have loved him.

A DIALOGUE.

RESPECTING THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN THESE LAST DAYS, THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN FORMER DAYS, AND THE CHURCH OF SO-CALLED MODERN CHRISTIANITY.

BETWEEN DR. TWINETEXT AND ELDER D.

PART FIVE.

ELDER D.—Doctor; have you considered the purpose for which God organized his church, gave his spiritual gifts and set apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers therein, and the impossibility of degraded humanity attaining to such a height of excellence as is marked out in the great standard and pattern, Jesus Christ, without those divine aids and divinely appointed and inspired teachers?

Dr. T.—Yes, Elder; since our last conversation I have made it the subject of my meditations by day and night, and I must repeat it. There is a grandeur in the object, and a fitness in the means appointed by which the object is to be accomplished, that had never occurred to me before. But is it true that all mankind are expected to come to such a state of purity and excellence as that marked out in Christ's life? Was not this rather for the apostles and their co-workers of that day, in order that they might be enabled to perform the herculean task of establishing the church upon a sure basis?

D.—Permit me to answer by asking one or two questions. For whose benefit was the apostle writing? For that generation only, or for all generations? Is God a partial being?

T.—The whole of the New Testament was written for the benefit of all generations. God is no respecter of persons.

D .- Thank you. Then Paul in writing to "all generations" uses language that plainly implies that "all generations" were invited to struggle for, and attain to this great excellence of their "High calling of God in Christ Jesus." He says these means were set in the church "for the perfecting of the saints," etc., "Till we all come in the unity of the faith," etc. Moreover, the apostle Peter told the Jews on the day of Pentecost, that the promises of salvation, and of the Holy Ghost, (which latter was the medium through which the spiritual gifts were given), were to all that were afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." (Acts 2:39). And, as you have truly remarked that 'God is no respecter of persons," it must follow that he includes all that will love and serve him as being invited to the excellent glory of the Lord Jesus Christ, to be "heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ," (Rom. 8:17), to "be like him." (1 John 3:2). For "every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself even as he (Christ) is pure." Also "that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God." (Eph. 3:14 19 inclusive). Could we be "joint heirs with Christ" unless we are "like him?" Can we be like him unless we are pure as he is pure? Can we "be filled with all the fulness of God" if we fall short of the "measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ?" and lastly; I again urge, can we attain to that "fulness" without the means which God has provided?

T.—We have the means. The apostles, though dead, yet speak to us in the sacred volume. That volume is the result of their illumination; and it remains to bring all mankind to the unity of the faith, and will doubtless lead us to all the excellencies which God demands we shall attain unto. The apostles having finished their work, their presence is no longer needed. The church is established, once for all, "and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

D.—A moment ago you questioned whether all were to come to that standard. Now you take it for granted and say, "We have the means;" and you represent the Bible as that means. We have already shown that the purpose for which apostles, prophets, etc., were set in the church, is not and can not be accomplished until all the children of God are brought to the conditions mentioned; hence the work of those officials is not finished. Moreover, if God had intended that the sacred volume was to be the only means by which his church should "come in the unity of the faith, to the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ," he would doubtless have said so instead of setting in the church the order of things which Paul declared he had done. But it would be the height of absurdity to speak of the Bible as "the gift of tongues," the interpretation of those tongues, "gifts of healing," "discernment of spirits," miracles," "apostles," "prophets," etc. These, as we have shown, Paul declared God "hath set in the church." He does not say, "God will set them in the church," etc., whereas the sacred volume, which was the result of the illumination of the apostles, had not been written at this time, and some portions of it for many years after. Yet undoubtedly that volume, with every revelation which God has given, or shall give, performs an important part in that work. But it must be remembered that without the means referred to by Paul in 1st Corinthians 12th, 13th and 14th chapters, and Ephesians the 4th chapter, there could be no such revelation. These are the means through which the Holy Ghost manifests itself, and communicates its divine teachings to bring us to the "measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." Take these away, then operations of the Holy Spirit cease, and his children are thrown upon their own meagre and unaided resources, "groping as the blind for the wall." "And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch." Surely after admitting that Surely after admitting that all were invited to that perfect state, you will not charge God with making such ample provisions to prepare a few of his children for the glory of Christ, and with denying the countless masses the blessedness of the same glory. Such a course would give the lie to your soul-cheering quotation from Peter's lips, "God is no respecter of persons,"—and shut out every ray of hope from the hearts of a sin-stricken world

T.—I now believe that that glory is for all to enjoy; but it is not necessary that all should have the same supernatural aids. We live in an enlightened age. Knowledge is spreading its beauteous rays over all the earth. We can read the Bible in the languages in which it was written, drink heavenly wisdom from its streams of light, and this will fit us for the blessedness of which you speak, without any supernatural helps.

D.—I grant you that we live in an enlightened age as to the things of this world. but the wisdom of the world in this age no more comprehends the "hidden wisdom of God," than it did in Paul's age, when "the world by wisdom knew not God;" for "hath not God made foolish the wisdom of the world?" (1 Cor. 1:17-29). And while you can read the Scriptures in the original tongues, it is evident from the contradictory interpretations given by your learned expounders, from which have grown so many conflicting creeds and so many diversified churches, that you do not understand what you read; for after eighteen centuries, during which worldly wisdom has increased, no two churches, if any two expounders, have been able to read the sacred word with the same understanding. And to-day, doubt and uncertainty pervades every heart, and the creeds, which are the foundations upon which every church of christendom is built, have become more and more unsettled; and in fact are giving way before the advance and scrutiny of enlightned criticism, which criticism is the result of the restoration of that beauteous and divine order, whose progress you and your compeers are striving to impede and destroy. But the result must be that, as your foundations are being removed, the fabrics built upon them must fall, and the truly wise among mankind will be found seeking the true order of God with its supernatural aids, its divinely appointed ordinances, its God-given commands, and its everliving and faithful promises, as the only means whereby they can "come in the unity of the faith," and through that faith be brought to the "measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." One word more. Man is found to be the same, by nature, in all ages. The powers of darkness remain the same inveterate and implacable foe of the race as well as of the Creator. The enmity of the world against God and his children is unchanged; hence his children have the same evil natures to subdue, the same wily tempter to resist, the same deadly foe to conquer, the same ungodly world to overcome, the same God to serve, the same pure and holy Redeemer to follow in the "strait and narrow way," the same commands to observe, and the same goal of Christ-like perfection to attain unto, that we may gain the unfading crown, eternal Verily, if the ancient church needed these divine aids after sitting, as many sat, at the feet of the Divine Teacher, drinking eternal wisdom from his unerring lips, and witnessing the divine power in the wondrous works wrought through him, it would be vain, yea, more—unjust in God, to demand those living in after ages to come up to the same perfection, while left to their own unaided weakness, except a book that is interpreted in as many ways as it has readers, and at the same time deny them the right of heirship with Christ if they do not come to his standard. The fact that God set them in the church, is evidence of his purpose that they should continue therein so long as his church continued in the observance of "all things" which Christ had commanded.

T.—But is it not evident that God has done away or removed that order of things from the church, since the blessings promised are not, and have not been enjoyed for many centuries?

D.—No, sir! It is simply evidence of her departure and apostacy who was once the church of God, from the order which Christ established. Or, as Wesley said in his sermon on the more excellent way,—"Because the Christians had turned heathens again!" Your position, if correct, would make God appear a changeable, a very unjust being, and unworthy our confidence.

T.—My friend, I fear you lack that Christian charity without which you can not be a child of God. Why, your theory unchristianizes all the pious men and women of this and every age since that of the apostles. Does not John tell us that, "If we do not love our brethren whom we have seen, we can not love God whom we have not seen?"

D.-If it is Christian charity to keep back the saving truth of the gospel lest we offend our fellow men, or to shrink from the defense of God's established order lest we run counter to the contradictory systems of men, then let me be eternally branded with the lack of such charity; for as a wiser than I has said, "such charity is colder than polar ice." Master spoke in plainness, and was deemed a devil. Paul "shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God," and suffered persecution and imprisonment. strange to say, it was for the utterance of the same eternal truths I have now declared. And yet you claim they were the embodiment of charity! Your charge of "unchristianizing" is weak, and lacks consistency. Do you accept of every creed in christendom as being of God?

T.—No, sir; but I believe all are sincere, and will be saved because of their sincerity.

D.—Is it not likely that many of the Jews were sincere? Why did not Jesus tell Nicodemus his sincerity would save him without being "born again." Or Cornelieus, that his sincerity would be accepted without obedience to the requirements of heaven? If sincerity had been the standard of perfection, or even a sufficient qualification to salvation, why was Paul arrested on his way to Damascus? And why were the twelve disciples at Ephesus immersed again? Or Apollus "taught the way of God more perfectly?" Again; if sincerity in one form of error qualifies a man for salvation, why not in any and all other forms of error? And why do you send missionaries to the heathen who manifest a thousand-fold greater sincerity than professedly enlightened Christians? The heathen give themselves a willing sacrifice to their gods. The mother gives the infant of her bosom to the devouring Ganges, and calmly lays herself upon the burning pile to please the being she has been taught to worship. Surely, if sincerity in any form of error may be accepted as the "one thing needful" to entitle us to the saving mercy of God, the heathen world has merited it, and needs none of your efforts to save them from hell. But the testimony of God is against you. Nothing short of intelligent submission to his revealed will can entitle us to the salvation purchased by the precious blood of Christ. Hence it is the essence of charity to point out the errors of humanity. For this purpose God revealed his will and sent his Son to teach the way of life. For this, apostles and prophets were commanded to "go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." For this, his church was organized with all its glorious gifts and blessings, that his children might be educated and brought up to that condition requisite to their entrance into the presence of God, and to the joint heirship with his Son Jesus Christ.

T.—My friend, I must acknowledge the force of your reasoning, and I begin to fear that the position you take is a correct one. I confess my inability to avoid this conclusion. I can not deny that the church was established just as Paul has described it; and as you have justly remarked, we have no account of God's repealing that order of things, nor any direct intimation that he would repeal it. But it is evident that that order has not been in existence for many centuries, and I am at a loss to know how the change came about, persuaded as I am that there have been thousands of pious men and women during the centuries past. Yet I am impressed with the truth that "God is no respecter of persons." If the change was his work, then there must be another than the old way to bring us up to the standard of Christ, or else he has proved himself a partial being, shutting out with His own hand the masses of mankind from that perfect glory. latter I am not prepared to admit.

D.—Doctor; I deeply sympathize with you in your dilemma, and if you will be patient and accept of the evidence given in God's word, I can help you. I have already mentioned portions of Holy Writ which sheds light upon these things, but I will now refer to them more fully. You will remember that this kingdom, or church was offered to the Jews, the ancient covenant people of God, by Christ himself. But the powers of darknass knowing it was the purpose of God to set up His kingdom on the earth, and having obtained rule in the hearts of the children of disobedience, blinded their eyes that they might "not see when good cometh;" and thinking that if he could persuade them to reject the kingdom of God, no other people would receive it, and by this means he would frustrate the purpose of the Holy One. And to thus maintain his power over all the earth to the destruction of the human family, he persuaded them to reject the Lord of life and glory; hence it is written of Jesus, "He came unto his own, and his own received him not."-John 1:11. His twelve disciples were sent "to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." (Matth. 10:5, 7; 15:24). The seventy were sent on a similar errand. (Luke (Luke 10:1, 9). The Jews rejected the kingdom of God, and this decree fell from his lips, -"The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." (Matth. 21:43; Acts 13:46). You will not say that God was changeable or partial in this; or that there must be another way to do the work?

T.—No; he was justified by their rejection of his kingdom.

D.-Very good. Then the kingdom was given to the Gentiles. Now, if at any time they should prove themselves un-worthy, will not—must not—the same cause have the same effect?

T.—But is there any intimation that the Gentiles would prove themselves un-worthy? Does not our Lord say they shall "bring forth the fruits thereof?"

D.—Our Lord does say the same thing in effect, and they did for a time bring forth the fruits thereof; but our Lord does not say they shall always continue to do so. His apostle, Paul, in Romans 11th chapter, shows the Gentiles the cause for which the kingdom was taken from the Jews, and warns them thus: "Because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not high-minded, but fear; for if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee. Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God; on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off." Rom. 10;20, This warning proves emphatically that the question whether the kingdom of God should remain with the Gentiles, must be determined, not by any decree of the Almighty alone, but by their continuing to "observe all things whatsoever Christ had commanded." In their failure to do this, the same just being would take the kingdom, with all its power, authority, blessings, and organic form away from them. But if they remained faithful to the end he must fulfill His promise to them, and "be with them alway, even to the end of the world." You admit the organic form of the church has long since vanished; you utterly deny the existence of the gifts and blessings; you declare there is no need of visions and revelations to-day; and the very laws governing the church, you say, are no longer needed, and you trample them under your feet. Where, then, I ask, is the church of God? It is only conspicuous by its absence from among men, unless it is found among the very people whom you despise and denounce for declaring that God in his tender mercy has organized his church again with apostles, prophets, gifts, and blessings, with the same law of adoption, the same divine precepts for the government of the church, the same "measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ" for us all to attain unto. And the cause of its non-existence for so many centuries must lie with those to whom the kingdom had been given; it can not be imputed to the unchangeable God. They were unfaithful to their trust, and refused to be governed by "apostles and prophets," etc.; they could not endure the light of revelation shining upon their corrupt and ambitious designs. The gifts of the gospel required purity of purpose, and holiness of life, ere they could be enjoyed; and it was found easier to follow "their own pernicious ways" than restrain their evil desires; hence they claimed they were no longer needed. They ceased to seek counsel from the Lord, and they began to pervert the word of the Lord in order to apologize for their secret works of darkness, having "departed from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils." (1 Tim. 4:1).

T.—Can you point to any other scriptures foretelling such departure?

D.—Oh, yes; I will cite you to the 24th chapter of Isaiah, who in prophetic vision declared the events as they appeared to him, not as though they actually transpired then, but as they would transpire in the future. The vision does not refer to some small portion of the earth, but embraces the whole earth. And after declaring the woes that shall come on all the earth, he tells the cause in verse 5-"The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant." If the present state of the earth is not correctly portrayed in this chapter, then language, and the prophetic pen, must forever despair of giving even an approximate view of things as they shall exist, and it is vain to expect a fulfilment of that word of prophecy. Such an universal state of sorrow and destruction as is predicted in this chapter, could not in justice be brought upon the world for a crime or crimes that were only The crime justifying it must be universal. The great commission given to the apostles, after the Jews had rejected the kingdom, was,—"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." It was universal, or, more correctly speaking, it extended to all the earth. Paul tells us that the gospel "was preached to every creature which is under heaven."—Col. 1:23. "Yes, verily; their sound went into all the earth."—Rom: 10: And as we have already seen from Ecclesiastical history, this departure began in an early day, and gradually widened its extent until, as Wesley declares, "There was nothing but a dead form left." (Ser-The mon on "The more excellent way.") apostacy became general, until it embraced the whole earth; and, as a consequence, a state of corruption exists which has not had a parallel since the days of Noah. This is emphatically the time, and the condition, of the world, as portrayed by Jesus in verses 7 to 14 of Matthew 24. Paul foretold this apostacy in Acts 20: 28-30. It commenced under his own observation. (2 Cor. 11: 12-15; 2 Thess. 2d chapter). The Spirit declared "expressly" in 1 Tim. chapter 4 of that departure. And Paul foretold the "perilous times" that should be "in the last days" as a consequence of the same. (2 Tim. chapter 3). He further declared, "The time will come, when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." (2 Tim. 4: 3, 4). Peter foretells the same thing, (2 Pet. chapter 2 and 3). Other portions of God's word confirm these predictions, and the present state of society is lamentable evidence of the truthfulness of those inspired utterances.

T.—I know that corruption is in high and low places, and that it is eating as a cankerworm into the very heart of society; but in view of the fact of the great efforts being made for the evangelizing of the world, the scattering of the Bible into all lands and into every house, the formation of "Young Men's Christian Societies," Bible Societies, Missionary Societies, together with Temperance Societies and a hundred other Christian Associations, it would seem the world must speedily be redeemed from this state of corruption.

D.—There is where you and your coworkers are mistaken. God established one means for the evangelizing of the wor'd, and you have adopted many others. I will not say your motives are impure, but your mistake is a fatal one, and is only tending to increase the evils instead of lessening them. You declare, in effect, that God's way was only adapted to a semibarbarous age; that the learning and wisdom of the nineteenth century is better adapted to grapple with the evils of the world than the wisdom of God. And hence, instead of the apostolic order as established by Christ, a thousand and one conflicting orders are established by man. And, however well meaning their devisers may be, they can only result in covering with shame and confusion those who look to them as the means of redeeming the world. "For when they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them." (1 Thess. 5: 3.)

To be continued.

RULES OF ELIZABETH FRY.

THE following rules for the guidance of life are by the celebrated Mrs Fry:

- 1. Never lose any time. I do not think that lost which is spent in amusement or recreation every day; but always be in the habit of being employed.
 - 2. Never err the least in truth.
- 3. Never say an ill thing of a person when thou canst say a good thing of him. Not only speak charitably but feel so.
 - 4. Never be irritable or unkind to anybody.
- 5. Never indulge thyself in luxuries that are not necessary.
- 6. Do all things with consideration, and when thy path to act right is most difficult put confidence in that power alone which is able to assist thee and exert thine own powers as far as they Always write the Business portion of your Letter on a separate piece of paper, and let it be brief and explicit.

If you have anything to say to the Editor, or something you wish published, no nor write it on the back of a business letter. Business is Business, and must be done in a business-like manner.

Miscellaneous.

SECOND QUORUM OF ELDERS.

Dear Brethren and Fellow Laborers in Christ: I wish to thank those members of the quorum who have assisted me in preparing for the printing of a new Circular Letter, by sending me their report, and stamps. I have written personally to every member in the quorum and directed as best I knew, and have received proper information from sixty-six members. The following are the names of members from whom we have not, but desire a report:

Samuel Alcott M. F. Cooper O. C. Eaton William Hart Charles Howery D. F. Lambert Alvah North T. D. Reese George Wilson John Bierline
Colby Downs
David Evans
Henry Hart
Richard Hughes
C. W. Lange
Wm. Owens
Wm. B. Smith
James Woolams.

Wm. J. Cook, M. N. Eastman Thomas France M. Houghton G. Kinghorn S. Longbottom H. T. Pitt S. Thomas

Now, brethren, when you see this notice, please send me your address. If any of the above named members are dead, or have been expelled from the church, such information is solicited. If no information reaches us, their names can not be put upon the New Circular Letter, but other Elders will be selected to fill their places. Address me at Independence, Jackson Co., Missouri. F. C. WARNKY.

TO THE MISSION, DISTRICT AND BRANCH AUTHORITIES IN ENGLAND AND AUSTRALIA.

I wish to call the attention of the above officials to the fact that their records should be corrected as soon as practicable. To some letters that I have sent no replies have come, so I take this method of giving a general notification of how their records stand here, in order that they may correct them.

The majority of the English branches were corrected by Bro. Caton to Dec. 31st, 1883. These are as follows, the figures given with each being their net number on my record: Stafford 16; Birmingham 76; Farnworth 40; Hanley 51; Sheffield 24; Manchester 71; Burton-on-Trent 32; Summerfield 27; Wigan 19; Derby 12. The others stand as follows: Devenport corrected to Dec. 31st, 1882, has 11 members; Limehouse (65), Hackney (29) Enfield (8) corrected to December 31st, 1881, with numbers on my record as attached, while Clay Cross (29) has not been corrected since close of 1879. Of Walsall 18 names were recived April 4th, 1882, without any items of birth or baptism, so there is really no record of that branch. On reading the above the brethren in England will not wonder that my annual reports do not give their branch number as they have them, and if such will do their part to aid the Mission Secretary and General Church Recorder, they will confer a favor on those officers.

The Australian branches have not been corrected since it was done by Bro. J. W. Gillen. They stand as follows on my record: Bungwall 19; Nambuccra 39; Queen's Ferry 23; Sydney 19; Wallsend 27. Doubtless great changes have taken place and of all these it will be necessary that I have an account before I can correct my record. I will also write to Bro. J. F. Burton, missionary in charge, about these branches.

HENRY A. STEBBINS,

General Church Recorder.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 27th, 1885

NORTHERN NEBRASKA.

To the Deacons, Teachers, Priests and Elders, of the Northern Nebraska District, Greeting:-Forasmuch as your next district conference convenes at Omaha, on the 18th of December, we respectfully suggest that you so arrange your affairs, if possible, and come prepared to stop over Monday the 21st, and that that day be spent in general counsel and instruction touching labors, duties, rights, etc., of branch and district officials, that peradventure we may be better prepared to govern, so far as the gifts and callings of God to us authorize, and have all things right before the Great Master we are striving to serve. The dispensation of the fulness of times was not ushered in by thunders from Mount Sinai, nevertheless, the injunction to work according to the pattern is just as imperative. And we have no guarantee of God's favor, only in having, or doing all things right before him. There is nothing we can offer to God in lieu of faith, zeal, and fidelity leading to a cheerful and ready compliance with his prescribed conditions, to secure his favor. He is neither bribed nor intimidated, and there is much reason to rejoice in the thought that a faith and zeal shown by one clothed in rags (if rags are all he has), ascends as rapidly to heaven, as from one clothed in fine linen and living sumptuously every day. "Obedience is better than sacrifice, or to hearken than the fat of rams." said one of old. And we have found nothing in our recognized church discipline to conflict therewith, but much evil resulting from a failure in individuals, branches, and districts, to evidence such faith in our discipline, by works. If God is the author of the adjudicating method, as He is the method of adoption, it must follow that the enforcement of the former, when necessity demands, is as imperative as the latter. Hence we can not transcend, or stop short of the limits of recognized law and be justified in the eyes of him who is our Law Giver.

Do not, we pray you, brethren, mistake the nature of this suggested meeting, and have your expectations raised to soaring, delving, or flying over the sea to bring down, up, or from over the sea something new, or to the consumption of time in angry or heated discussions upon some abstruse or vexed question or questions, for the exhibition of bravado or a striving for the mastery, making the house of God as a bedlam or pandemonium, where order should obtain and peace reign.

To our shame too much precious time has thus been spent. We must therefore give evidence of a desire to let the time thus spent suffice, by making a gigantic effort to do better in the future. We therefore suggest that we come together with a full remembrance of the injunction, namely, "To agree upon his (Christ's) word, by the prayer of faith; thus we may know how to govern in Christ's Church, and have all things right before him; with a corresponding effort to understand the word that is near us, and should be in our mouth, and in our hearts, so as to become more efficient in word and doctrine, having a better understanding of present duties, and correspondingly labor to perform them, and with an increase of holy boldness, to the enforcement of law and order so far as we may be authorized. And so be prepared for what there is above, below, or over the sea. For whatever may be there, is not to qualify us to keep the law here; but keeping the law here is to prepare us for what there is there. Hence it is, that "The secret things belong unto the Lord our God, but those things which are revealed belong unto us and to our children forever, that we may do all the words of the law." Why don't we more thoroughly demonstrate our faith in this by practice?

We suggest that there be a general attendance. Let every official make a special effort. We want a revival—such a revival that a better understanding of our responsibility will bring. We live in perilous and trying times. We need to have our whole being thoroughly permeated with the belief that "that which is governed by law is preserved by law;" or else that clause of the law is useless, and without significance. But law is rigid, harsh, strict, and severe. So it is, and Christ is love, very true. But it is probable that to have convinced those who ran from the temple, smarting under the strokes that Christ laid upon them that he was such a loving being as others claimed, would have been a difficult task. Law is just, when making us wise and good; but when condemnatory of our procedure, then it is another thing. But if God reveals a law, or laws, we have no right to attempt to render them nugatory because of supposed severity; for he is able to take care of whatever issues may come from their enforcement.

Come on, and let the ushering in of the new year find us with the whole armor on, and fully equipped, moving as duty directs, in one solid phalanx for good.

JAMES CAFFALL.

W. M. RUMEL, District President.

MARRIED.

STERRETT—SORENSEN.—At Lehi City, Utah Co., Utah, by Elder John Brown, on Sunday, November 15th, 1885, Bro. C. E. Sterrett to Miss Helena Sorensen, both of Pleasant Grove, Utah Co., Utah.

DIED.

Brown.—Near Waterloo, Nebraska, Nov. 11th, the infant son of brother Nelson and sister Ann Brown, aged five days. Funeral services by Elder W. M. Rumel.

REESE.—February 8th, 1885, Sr. Sophia Reese, She was born June 12th, 1835, in Breckonshire, Wales, and was baptized May 15th, 1875, by Elder John S. Patterson.

REESE.—March 23d, 1885, Bro. William Reese. He was born May 4th, 1830, at Glamorganshire, Wales; and was baptized June 9th, 1877, by Elder Jacob Stanley.

IN MEMORIA.

DUNCAN.—Pleasing, yet sorrowful, reminiscences come marching over the dial-plate of my mind, as I reflect upon the life-work of our late sister, (and aunt), Margaret Duncan. She was born in Indiana, February 18th, 1829, and was married to her surviving consort, J. M., September 20th, 1846, in Mercer county, Illinois. They became the parents of seven children. Three sons are still living in Adams county, Iowa.

She embraced the faith, as held forth by Elder Hinkle, but was duly initiated into the Reorganization shortly after Joseph took his place. Her heart was willing, and her hand was always open to the great work of God. She walked in the paths of peace, according to the united testimonies of her neighbors, the saints, relatives, and all acquaintances. She had been affiicted with asthma quite a while, and the circulatory organs were all disordered at times; but neuralgia of the heart took her off, near Corning, Iowa, February 23d, 1885, about nine o'clock a.m. Her brief sojourn in Iowa was the prime cause of the gospel being proclaimed in the neighborhood, by Joseph R. Lambert. A well spent life of activity and fidelity, is both a blessing to a selfish world and a crown of glory to the happy possessor. Her smiling hope and kindly cheer soothed many a troubled toiler on life's highway. Her motherly counsel, tender care, and prudent example, will linger in the minds of her family until life's forces ebb away. All such speak through eventful careers, as their souls regale in the realms of delight. While sadness has touched the halls of home, they weep not as those who have no hope. Let us reverently pray that this bereavement may be sanctified to the good of the living and the glory of Him who doth not afflict willingly. The obsequies were largely attended in the district school-house, on the evening of November 6th, 1885, and the sad service was preformed by your humble servant, M. T. SHORT.

"MANUSCRIPT FOUND."

We now offer for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spalding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. This book of 144 pages 8 mo., is now in the hands of the binder, and orders for it are solicited. Single copies, in cloth 45 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 40 cents each; in paper, single copies 25 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 20 cents each, Liberal discount to dealers.

REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.

We have now on sale at this office, in pamphlet form, containing 48 pages, the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of plural marriage." Price, post paid, single copies 10 cents; 75 cents per dozen to one address.

PRAYER MEETING TONES.

When you speak in a social meeting, speak in a natural tone of voice—that is, a tone befitting the subject, and such as you would use for a similar purpose in any other company. Not much good comes usually even from good thoughts, if they are uttered in an unusual and unnatural voice. Those who hear know that it is not the manner of ordinary speech, and they are apt to infer that what is said does not belong truly to the man himself who is speaking; and that there is the putting on of something for the occasion. They are very apt to be partly right, too, in this opinion. For while these unnatural tones may sometimes be due to embarrassment, or to awkwardness, or to having accidently fallen into a bad habit; yet even then they indicate some separation between the manner of expression and the underlying state of mind, of a sort that does not exist, or that should not certainly be of long continuance.

If your religious beliefs and feelings are genuine and hearty, and if they have impressed themselves upon your common life, and have become with you as familiar things, you will express them in a simple and hearty way, without even the reality or the appearance of affectation. Put away then, your prayer meeting tones, if you have any. Get "unction," if you need it, in your daily life, and upon yourself; and then talk, wherever you are, after an honest and sensible and Christian fashion.—Congregationlist.

MILLWRIGHT.

I WILL Build, Overhaul, and Repair all kinds of work in Millwrighting; can make changes from BURRS to the ROLLER PROCESS in the latest improved style. Diagrams and Plans furnished free if I am employed to do the work; if not, I will furnish them reasonably. Work done by the day to suit times.

Yours in bonds, L. L. WIGHT, Ridgeway. Harrison Co., Mo.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church, at their Publishing House in

LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,

And sent Free of Postage at prices named.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

This is the official paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. It is explanatory of the faith of the Church, and promulgates the teachings of original Mormonism in contradistinction to Utah Mormonism. It contains correspondence from different parts of the world, giving accounts of the great progress of the Church, and setting forth the dealings of God with his people. Published every Saturday, sixteen large pages. Price, $2.50 per year. Joseph Smith, Editor.

THE SAINTS' ADVOCATE.

Published monthly in the interest of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, and in the special interest of the Utah Mission of said Church. W.W. Blair, Editor. Terms 50 cents per year in advance, unless otherwise

Terms 50 cents per year in advance, unless otherwise provided for. Subscriptions earnestly solicited; subscribe for yourselves and for friends deceived by the latter day apostasy.

HOL	Y SCRIP	TURES.
Inspired Translation	on by Jose	ph Smitl	ı the Pro	phet
Sheep or Library bine Imitation Morocco, gi	uing It edges	• • • • • • • • •	• • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • •	2 00
Full Morocco, gilt edg	es	••••••	•••••	2 50
New Testament, Insp	orrea earrio	n		(9

FORSCUTT AND SHINN DISCUSSION.

J. Shinn affirms "The Bible Teaches the Coming of Christ to Judge the World is now past." M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible Teaches the Literal Resurrection of the Body from the Grave." Paper covers, 194 pages..... 35

	DICE OF A
And Instruction	to all Peopl	le, on the	• Doctrine	eand History of the
in paper covers, se	even for $1.			each 15
In Limp Cloth tur	ned in			35
9/2/44/2008/09/09/09/09/09/09/09	(m)P, he (D)A (The Hayan	ij Brokelji, programa		ng ing pagalagan nang p

	CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.
Bran	h Statistical Reports, per dozen 50
Annı	al Statistical Reports, two for 10
Bran	h Financial Reports, per dozen 30
Certi	icates of Baptism and Membership, per dozen 20
Certi	icate of Removal, per dozen 20
Marr	age Certificates, per dozen
	CONCR OF WOR

SONGS OF ZION. By T. W. Smith, 40 pages, 10cts each, per dozen..... 1 00

TRACTS. No. 1.—Mountain of the Lord's House, 8 pages; 15c.
a dozen, 100 for
No. 3.—Voice of the Good Snepherd; Sc. a doz., 100 40 No. 4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temple Suit; 5c. per dozen, 25c. per 100, 50c. for 250, $1 for 500, per 1.000
No. 5.—The Gospel; price same as No. 4.
a dozen. 100 for. No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; 20c. a doz., per 100
minister; 16 page; 25c. per dozen, per 100
No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; 25c. a doz., 1001 75 No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; 20 pages; 30c. per dozen, per 100
No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; 30c. a dozen, 100
No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; 25c. a dozen, 100 for 175
No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; 20 pages; 30c. per dozen, per 100
Church: 20c. a dozen, per 100
Presidency of the Church; 25c. a dozen, 100 for1 75
No. 20.—The "One Body:" or the Church of Christ
12 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for
No. 21.—Truths by Three Witnesses; 3c. a doz., 100. 15 No. 22.—Faith and Repentance: 15c. a dozen, 100. 1 10
No. 23.—Baptism; 10 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for1 25
No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; 5c. a dozen, 100 for 40
No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House; 4 pages; 5c. a dozen, per 100 a dozen, per 100. 40 No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; 20c. a doz., 100 for 1 40 No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctine and Covenants; 5c. a dozen 100 for. 40
trine and Covenants; 5c. a dozen, 100 for dozen, per 100
an Evangelical Church? Also, the Kirtland Tem-
No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; 5c. a dozen, 100 for No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon; 15 cents a dozen, per 100. No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, the Kirtland Temple Suit. Per dozen 5c., 100 for 25c., 250 for 50c., 500 for $1, 1000 for. No. 32.—Which is the Church? 5c. a dozen, 100 40 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined; 20c. a dozen, 100 for 125.
No. 32.—Which is the Church? 5c. a dozen, 100 40 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined: 20c. a dozen, 100 for 125 A Memorial to Congress; 8 pages; 15c. a dozen, 1001 10 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection; 32 pages; 6c. each per dozen Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection; 32 pages; 6c. each, per dozen. 60 Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100. 15 — An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents. COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Linu Cloth, turned in 73
An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents. COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.
Bound in Limp Cloth, turned in
BRANCH RECORDS.
Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages
DISTRICT RECORDS. Printed and bound similar to Branch Records 3 00
LICENSES, NOTICES, &c.
LICENSES, NOTICES, &c. Elder's, Pricst's, Teacher's, and Deacon's Licenses, each, per dozen.
LICENSES, NOTICES, &c. Elder's, Priest's, Teacher's, and Deacon's Licenses, each, per dozen eacn, per dozen
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub 35 for each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stuh 35 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 20 No. 381.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. No. 371.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 55 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stuh 35 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 20 No. 381.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. No. 371.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 55 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stuh 35 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 20 No. 381.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. No. 371.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 55 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price, No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 20 No. 201.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 1 50 No. 439.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without,
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price, No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 20 No. 201.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 1 50 No. 439.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without,
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stuh 25 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 25 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c. 100 for 40 No. 261.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c. 100 for 70 No. 281.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 15 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stuh 25 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 25 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c. 100 for 40 No. 261.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c. 100 for 70 No. 281.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 15 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stuh 25 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 25 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c. 100 for 40 No. 261.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c. 100 for 70 No. 281.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 15 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stuh 25 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 25 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c. 100 for 40 No. 261.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c. 100 for 70 No. 281.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 15 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stuh 35 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—Pancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 40 No. 641.—Book Markers, 2x½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 40 No. 381.—Book Markers, 2x½; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½; 41 0 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 15 No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 12 No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 12 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life, Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in cloth boards 1 50 Universalism Against Itself, by A. Wilford Hall; in cloth boards, 336 pages 1 00 Josephus, complete in 1 vol., library leather 3 50
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub 35 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 40 No. 461.—Book Markers, 2x26; 10 for 8c., 100 for 40 No. 321.—Book Markers, 2x26; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 321.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100.—90 No. 321.—Book Markers, 2x26; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 321.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100.—90 No. 323.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100.—1 25 No. 489.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100.—1 25 No. 489.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100.—1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 End This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS The Problem of Human Life, Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in cloth boards, 1 50 Universalism Against Itself, by A. Wilford Hall; in cloth boards, 336 pages 1 50 Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 vols. 4 00 Mosheim's Church History, cloth boards, 2 vols. 4 00 Mosheim's Church History, cloth boards, 2 vols. 4 00 Mosheim's Church History, cloth boards, 2 vols. 4 00
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 406.—pack of 96 for 25 No. 406.—pack of 96 for 25 No. 406.—pack of 96 for 25 No. 406.—pack of 98 for 25 No. 306.—Flowers and Verses, 2x½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100 for 25 No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100 for 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100 10 No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100 10 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS.
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stub 35 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 20 No. 361.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 381.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 383.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 150 No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life, Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in cloth boards 1 50 Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 vols. dosheim's Ancient History, cloth boards, 2 vols. 4 00 Baldwin's Ancient History, vols. in one, leather 4 00 The Koran, library leather 4 00 Glesele's Ecclesiastical History, from A.D. 1 till 1854
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stub 35 for 98 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets 5cr Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 20 No. 381.—Book Markers, 2x5; 10 for 8c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 15 No. 439.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 2½xx4; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 2½xx4; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 499.—Flowers and Verses, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages. 35 Por This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life, Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in cloth boards. 150 Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 336 pages. 1 50 Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 vols. 11 Cloth boards, 5 vols. 11 Cloth boards, 5 vols. 11 Cloth boards, 5 vols. 11 Cloth boards
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub 35 for 8 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 40 No. 461.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 70 No. 321.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 100. 100. 100 No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 E This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life, Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in cloth boards, 236 pages 1 50 Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 536 pages 1 00 Badwin's Ancient History, cloth boards, 2 vols 4 00 Badwin's Ancient America, (Illustrated) cloth, 1 80 Rollin's Ancient History, from A.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols 40 The Ecclesiastical History, from A.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols 40 The Keclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Cæsarea, in Palestine, cloth boards 2 00
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub 35 for 8 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 40 No. 461.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 70 No. 321.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 100. 100. 100 No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 E This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life, Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in cloth boards, 236 pages 1 50 Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 536 pages 1 00 Badwin's Ancient History, cloth boards, 2 vols 4 00 Badwin's Ancient America, (Illustrated) cloth, 1 80 Rollin's Ancient History, from A.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols 40 The Ecclesiastical History, from A.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols 40 The Keclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Cæsarea, in Palestine, cloth boards 2 00
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with hisn's stuh 35 for 8 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 40 No. 461.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 381.—Book Markers, 2½x5; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 383.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 15 No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life, Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in cloth boards 1 50 Universalism Against Itself, by A. Wilford Hall; in cloth boards, 5 vols 40 Mosheim's Church History, cloth boards, 2 vols. 4 00 Baldwin's Ancient America, (Illustrated) cloth, 80 Glibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 vols 40 Mosheim's Church History, vols. in one, leather 4 00 The Koccelsiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Cæsarea, in Palestine, cloth boards 2 00 Cruden's Complete Concordance of the Bible 60 Apocr
each, per dozen. 12 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and 50 Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub 35 for 8 SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES: Sunday School Engineer and Record Book 35 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for 15c., 1000 for 1 00 Good Behavior Tickets Same price. No. 547.—Floral Tickets for Infant Class; 96 for 25 No. 496.—pack of 96 for 20 No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c., 100 for 40 No. 461.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 8c., 100 for 70 No. 321.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for 25c., 100 for 25 No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 2½x4; 10 for 10c., 100. 90 No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10 for 20c., 100 for 100. 100. 100 No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 3x4½; 10 for 15c., 100. 1 25 No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for 2 25 JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages 35 E This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Adventist Society, and is an important work to be in the hauds of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life, Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in cloth boards, 236 pages 1 50 Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 536 pages 1 00 Badwin's Ancient History, cloth boards, 2 vols 4 00 Badwin's Ancient America, (Illustrated) cloth, 1 80 Rollin's Ancient History, from A.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols 40 The Ecclesiastical History, from A.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols 40 The Keclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Cæsarea, in Palestine, cloth boards 2 00

BOOKS!

We have just added a full line of John B. Alden's books to our stock of Drugs and Notions.

We also carry full line of CHURCH PUBLICATIONS. Catalogues sent on application.

Books sent by Mail, prepaid, at regular piice.

HANSEN & WALKER,

Druggists and Booksellers, Lamoni, Iowa.

NOTICE.

In the matter of the Incorporation of Lamoni, in Decatur county, Iowa.

Notice is hereby given to all parties concerned, that an election was held by the commissioners duly appointed for that purpose, within the surveyed limits of Lamoni, in Decatur county, and State of Iowa (plat whereof is now on file in this office) at which the question of the incorporation or non-incorporation of said territory was submitted to the legal voters therein; and it appearing, from the returns of said election now on file in this office, that due notice of the same was given, as by the statute required, and that at said election a majority of the votes cast were in favor of incorporation. It is, therefore, by reason of the result of said election, declared that said territory be hereafter known as the Incorporated town of

In witness whereof I hereunto affix my official signiture, this 18th day of November, A. D., 1885,

[SEAL]

E. J. SANKEY, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Decatur County, Iowa.

FOR RENT. FARM

Eighty acres, 11/2 miles from Lamoni; 53 acres of plow land, the balance in meadow and pasture. Good new house of six large rooms and four closets; also a small house. Stable for two teams, large Crib, two Wells. To be rented for one or more years, cheap for cash, to a good, responsible party. Possession given 1st of March.

MRS. W. H. CURWEN, Box, 94, Lamoni, Iowa.

FARM FOR SALE.

I have Sixty Acres of Land for sule: 37 acres in Grass, 17 acres in new Timber Land, about 3 acres of Standing Timber, and two acres of Orchard; a good Spring Well on the place, a House, Barn, and Granary.

Price: Six Hundred Dollars, Cash Down. The land is situated north of Jeffersonville, Wayne Co., Apply to

MRS. F. P. MOLLOY, Cleveland, Iowa.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L. F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville, Mo., and have always found it fair. square and honest in all its trensactions:

T. T. Hinderke, Tromas McKee,
G. W. W. Hoox, Alexander McCallum,
S. L. Blake, James L. Blake,
W. N. Boothe, Robert Jones,
The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men whose recommendation are worth something.
Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands.

COME AND SEE OUR PAPER,

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS. Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Hansen & Walker's Drug Store.

TRACTS IN GERMAN.
Tracts in the German Language may be had of Bro. Ad. Richter, Burlington, Iowa: The Baptism, 6 cts.; the Repentance, 5 cts; the Principles of the Gospel, 6 cents; the Epitome of Faith, 2c; the Sixth Trumpet, a fifty-four page pamphlet, 25c. These prices include postage.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE
For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also,
a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth

CONCORDANCE TO BOOK OF COVENANTS. An enlarged new edition; paper covers, 32 pages.... 10

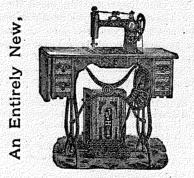

J. H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

EASY - RUNNING - SEWING - MACHINE.

—IT HAS

The Most Room under the Arm The Best Self-Setting Needle.
The Largest Bobbin.
The Easiest Shuttle to Thread.
The Most Perfect Tension.
The Most Reliable Feed.

The Most Perfect Take-Up. The Best Bobbin Winder. TT IS.

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

Agents Wanted by Robert Johns (Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in

INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL, AND PASTELL.

Also, manufacturer of

SPRINGS. BED

THESE are two of the fastest THIESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or wish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Catalogue, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fail for those who will work diligently.

IF YOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue, anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handlings Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 10 bs when packed) for only 97c., IRON-HEATER included for $1.30, to any one who will act as agent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3.50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a

Picture Outfit,

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait, (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only 98c. Catalogue free.

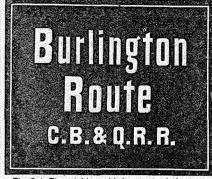

Address ROBERT JOHNS,

PEORIA. ILLINOIS. (Successor to Johns & Ordway.)
In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY. DR. JOHN SHIP*PY,

Dental Surgeon, Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Gov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison of Kansas City. It traverses all of the six Great States, ILLINOIS, IOWA. MISSOURI.

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO With branch lines to their important cities and towns. It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver. Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis. Chicago and Dubuque Chicago and Sioux City. Peoria and Council Bluffs, Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omaha, St. Louis and St. Paul. St. Louis and Rock Island, St. Louis and Chicago, Kansas City and Denver, Kansas City and St. Paul,

Kansas City and Omaha,
Kansas City and Burlington.

Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points with Through Trains to and from points located on its branches.

with infough trains to an incomposition branches.

At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada, it is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

Jaited States ... Philips Ass't Gen'l Manager, CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'i Pass. Agent,

≫BUSINESS∜

The Davenport Business College

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught. Bookeeping, by single and double entry, Business Arithmetic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; CommercialCorrespondence; CommercialLaw; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circulars address ulars address DUNCAN & HAWKS, Davenport, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publica tion of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed David Dancer, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANCER; communications and articles to the EDITOR.

"Hearken to the Word of the Lord: for There Shall Not any Man Among you Have save it be One Wife, and Concubines He Shall Have None."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 32.-Whole No. 657.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 12, 1885.

No. 50.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Yenald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR - - - EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 12, 1885.

PENROSE ON MONOGAMY AND BIGAMY.

Mr. Penrose charges that "the great majority of men marry for improper pursoses." This is a wholesale condemnation of men in the marriage relation, including those in and out of the Mormon Church. That he meant it to apply to all outside of that church does not affect the charge as it appears. His speech was in defense of the plural philosophy, his arraignment of monogamy, and in his zeal for the one eversteps the bounds of fact in regard to the other. He raises the presumption that those who do not accept the theory of marriage as held by himself and others in Utah, are in their thoughts, and the purposes of their marriages immoral. Hence if a man is not plurally married he is married for an improper purpose. But Mr. Penrose's conscience jogs him here and he admits by evasion that the conversation of himself and brethren upon the occasion of the marriage of one of their number, is no better than that of the Gentiles; though he feels quite competent to accuse and vilify the Gentiles, he will not criticise nor judge his "people on this point." If he ever heard Pres. Brigham Young and Hebet C. Kimball, in public and in private, he could have had wherewith to form a judgment, for if those who did hear them report correctly, neither of these men was a model of modest conversation. Besides this Mr. Penrose, by charging himself and his brethren with descending to practices that are of the "earth earthy," stigmatizes their manners of talk and conduct, as immoral in the same particulars and degree that he does the Gentiles. From the standing ground presented by Mr. Penrose in this statement, the entire number of men living in the practice of the one wife rule is condemned.

Mr. Penrose states that it is not bigamy that they practice in Utah. That the "essence of bigamy is the fraud contained therein." That "there is no fraud in their plural marriages." He further states that they get the consent of the first wife before the second woman is secured. Mr. Penrose knows that while this may be the theory, is has been notoriously disregarded from the first. He knows that in the socalled revelation upon the subject, there is a provision which has been so construed that the first wife, no matter how pure her regard for her rightful husband, and her love for her children by him might be, has been set aside as a perverse person, worthy of no regard or consideration in the matter. In instance after instance the lawful wife has been cruelly neglected to shift for herself, unaided and uncared for by the husband who contracted with her to love, cherish and protect her until life ceased. Before making this statement respecting the consent of the first wife, Mr. Penrose should have waited until the first wives of all the pioneer polygamists had gone where they could not testify in human courts.

TAYLOR AND CANNON CONDEMN THEIR BRETHREN.

Presidents Taylor and Cannon declare that there are "abominations practiced by those called Saints, which the trials" they "are now passing through will reveal in a manner terrible to them. Open sins are also winked at and condoned by Presidents, Bishops, Teachers and parents, in a manner offensive to God and grievous to man."

Undoubtedly one of these secret sins is the outrageous treatment accorded to the first wife, not only the lawful wife, but after her demise, the next in priority of right, in that her refusal of consent to plural marriage is ignored, and her rights diminished by such plural marriage when consummated.

POLYGAMY CONDEMNED BY UTAH LAWS.

One of the open sins of which Presidents Taylor and Cannon accuse their fellow Saints may be found in the statute books of the Territory of Utah. One enactment strikes the wife's right of dower out of existence. Another, and by far the most damaging, is found in chapter five of the Revised Code, 1876. This chapter was first enacted in most of its provisions by the Legislature of the State of Deseret; and when that embryo State failed to develop, the Territorial Legislature "covered in" to the Utah Code all "needful rules and regulations" to make Church rule dominant in the family relation. Sections 3 and 4 provide:

"And be it further ordained: That, as said Church holds the Constitutional and original right, in common with all civil and religious communities, 'to worship God according to the dictates of conscience;' to reverence communion agreeably to the principles of truth, and to solemnize marriage compatible with the revelations of Jesus Christ; for the security and full enjoyment of all blessings and privileges embodied in the religion of Jesus Christ free to all. It is also declared, that said Church does, and shall possess and enjoy continually, the power and authority, in and of itself, to originate, make, pass and establish rules, regulations, ordinances, laws, customs and criterions, for the good order, safety, government, conveniences, comfort, and control of said Church; and for the punishment, or forgiveness of all offenses relative to fellowship, according to Church covenants; that the pursuit of bliss, and the enjoyment of life, in every capacity of public association and domestic happiness, temporal expansion, or spiritual increase upon the earth, may not legally be questioned: Provided, however, that each and every act, or practice so established, or adopted for law, or custom, shall relate to solemnities, sacraments, ceremonies, consecrations, endowments, tithings, marriages, fellowship, or the religious duties of man to his maker; inasmuch as the doctrines, principles, practices or performances, support virtue and increase morality, and are not inconsistent with, or repugnant to the Constitution of the United States, or of this State, and are founded in the revelations of the Lord."

"Sec. 4. And be it further ordained: That said Church shall keep, at every full organized branch or stake, a registry of marriages, births, and deaths; free for the inspection of all members, and for their benefit."

This chapter was approved February 8th, 1851, "by the General Assembly of the State of Deseret," and was approved by the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah, October 4th, 1851. The organic act was approved by Congress, September 9th, 1850.

www.LatterDayTruth.org-

It will be seen from this that as soon after the passage or the organic act, by which the State of Deseret was changed to the Territory of Utah, as it could be done, the people called the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints" proceeded to re-enact the laws of the mythical State of Deseret, and declared themselves to be a corporate body with all the rights and privileges of other religious communities, and the jurisdiction of the marriage relation especially.

On October 4th, 1851, the following was passed:

"Resolved, by the Legislative Assembly of Utah: That the laws heretofore passed by the provisional government of the State of Deseret, and which do not conflict with the 'organic act' of said Territory, be, and the same are hereby declared to be legal, and in full force and virtue, and shall so remain until superceded by the action of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah."

The dates of all these enactments, including the one incorporating the church with its extraordinary jurisdiction over the institution of marriage, are previous to the promulgation of the so-called revelation on plural marriage. The "revelations of the Lord" received and acknowledged by the Church up to the date of the act of self-incorporation, and to which reference is made in the closing sentence of section 3, are all monogamous.

This also appears in section 1, of chapter 5, already quoted from.

In that section it is declared:

"That all that portion of the inhabitants of said State [Deseret], which now are, or hereafter may become residents therein, and which are known and distinguished as 'The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,' are incorporated, constituted, made and declared a body corporate, with perpetual succession under the original name and style of 'The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,' as now organized, with full power," &c., &c.

The words "as now organized" represent the character of the tenets, doctrines, dogmas, church rules and articles, marriage rites, ceremonies, and methods of celebration of the contract of marriage, as were the publicly accepted principles of the church. These were then acknowledged to be in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants. The section on marriage, and the revelations of 1831 clearly define the position of the Church on the point at issue existing at the time of these enactments by the State of Deseret and Territory of Utah.

There is no statutory declaration defining who may and who may not contract marriage; nor is there any specifying who may celebrate the ceremonies of marriage contracts, that we can discover in the statutes of 1876. If there are any they are so covered up that they are not found by reference to the table of contents, or index of subjects. None appears under the head of "contracts," none under "marriage," and none under "domestic relations." If the absence of such statutory provisions was to the intent and purpose that the common law institutions might prevail, it is competent to say that no plural marriages are recognized by that law. If the intent was that the rules and practices of the Church as founded in 1830, which rules were adopted by the same Church in 1835, and were continuously published and presented to the Church and the world by the same body of men incorporated as recited heretofore, in Utah, to as late a period as 1876, including the years during which the incorporation took place, to-wit, 1850-1851; then in that case there was no rule or practice of marriage published by said Church so incorporated, and upon which the words "as now organized," could have bearing, except that which was monogamic and against plural marriage.

In either case, if the act of incorporation was valid, whether the practice under the common law inured, or the rule and practice were defined in the then existing published articles of faith, &c., there was a law against polygamous marriages and an open sin was practiced upon the innocent and confiding men and women both, where they were inveigled into unlawful marriages. This sin has been "winked at by Presidents, Bishops, Teachers and parents."

POLYGAMY INTRODUCED.

No other order and practice of marriage than the one of 1830 and 1835 was publicly known to the Church in Utah till August 29th, 1852. At that date a copy of a document called a revelation from God, was read before the people; and without a chance to examine and compare it with the Statutes recognized of the Church up to that date as having been given of God, without having submitted it to any of the constitutional tests before the established tribunals in the Church, it was thrust into being as law by the denunciatory edict of the man presenting it, "You have got to believe it, or be damned." But, notwithstanding this, no publication of this revelation in the Doctrine and Covenants. the Church Articles, was made until 1876. the year that the compilation of the laws then in force was authorized and completed by direction of the Legislative Assembly by a committee consisting of A.O. Smoot, Silas S. Smith and Robert T.

Burton, whose statement in the preface is dated November 28th, 1876. In that year an edition of the Doctrine and Covenants, was issued from the Deseret News office, from which the declaration made by the Church in reference to its faith concerning marriage in 1835, and maintained intact from that date until 1876, was expunged and the so-called revelation inserted in its place. This was done, so far as we have been able to learn, without any authoritative action of the Church ordering it to be done; without an act of repeal, and without command of God.

These unwarranted acts, we protest against on our own behalf and in behalf of thousands of men and women in whose hearts the hope of life and salvation in Christ was begotten through the preaching of the Word, but to whom plural marriage never came with Divine endorsement. We protest against them by virtue of our membership in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, as that church was instituted by Christ in 1830. We protest against them by virtue of our right as the son of the one through whom, as human agent, the gospel was revealed and the Church organized. We protest against them by virtue of the manifestation of the Spirit to usward that they are "offensive to God and grievous to man." Here is wisdom, let him that is wise take heed thereunto.

The action of Congress in 1862 declared all the provisions of this Fifth chapter of the compiled laws of Utah and adopted by the Utah Territorial Legislature in 1851, which in anywise related to the subject of marriage, null and void; leaving other parts of the same Territorial law untouched, so far as any question raised thereon has yet been determined by the Courts. This action of Congress did not, however, affect the status of the chapter in regard to the rule existing from 1851 to 1862. And so far as the controversy may be urged between the Utah Church and the Reorganized Church, we think it clear that whether viewed from the secular and common law basis of examination, or from the ecclesiastical, the Utah Church is concluded by its own acts, and the acts of its members engaged as citizens in framing the laws found in the statute books of Utah Territory, from pleading in extenuation of their present opposition to the laws enacted by Congress and refusal to yield compliance to those laws in the future, the claim that prior to 1862 there was no law in force in the Territory which made plural marriage unlawful.

It has herein been shown that the provisional laws of the State of Deseret, which the later Territorial Legislature of Utah re-enacted, were framed, adopted and in force, (so far as the Utah Church was concerned), in February and October, 1851, and the Statute of Divorce, March 6th, 1852; all before the revelation claimed as the foundation and sanction for plural marriage was published and declared and therefore operative as a rule of marriage within the meaning of the statute, according to the words "as now organized." It has also been shown that by the enactment of a statutory provision declaring what would be lawful causes for divorce. and the absence of any provisions declaring who may and who may not lawfully contract in marriage, or defining who may celebrate the rite of marriage, the common law rule and construction are recognized, and the people of the Territory and the Church were existing under that law at such incorporation, and that rule is known to be monogamous.

It has also been shown that in case the common law view is successfully denied, the fact still remains that the "revelations of Jesus Christ," as made to the Church, and published by it at the time of the incorporation recited were monogamous; and that those revelations were embodied and published in the Church Articles from 1835 to 1876, long after the alleged change in the practice of the Church. It has been shown, also, that when such change in practice was made in the marriage rule it was without sufficient warrant, and in contravention of rules and regulations for such cases made and provided.

Joseph Smith.

Salt Lake City, Oct. 17th.

TRINE IMMERSION.

A BROTHER wishes to know what evidences and arguments we have against "trine"—"triple"—immersion, and we cheerfully furnish such as are at hand, which we think quite sufficient.

i.—Baptism represents death:—Man dies but once; Christ died but once; was buried but once; was raised up from death but once; was not buried face downward, nor raised up backwards—yet all of this occurs under "trine" or "triple" immersion. Hear Saint Paul:—"Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore. we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection."—Rom. 6: 3-5. Hear him again: "Buried with him in baptism, wherein ye are also risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." -Col. 2:12. We repeat it; Christ died but once; was raised but once; and furthermore, there were no three similar acts connected with either his death, burial, nor resurrection; neither was he buried face downward, nor raised up backward; hence "trine immersion" can not be made to represent being "buried with him in baptism;" neither can it be made to represent the candidates being raised up in their baptism "like as Christ was raised up from the dead."

2.—When the person is lawfully baptized he is raised up into "newness of life" -into the new "life;" he is "born of water;" he is "graffed into the good olive tree;" he is entered "in by the door into the sheepfold;" he is "adopted" into the family of Christ, and he enters into these conditions by one act, and not by three; he enters face foremost, and not the reverse, as trine immersion would make him to do. Baptism is the chief initiatory rite -the door-by which the individual enters into the visible body, church, or kingdom of Christ; and certainly he does not need to make three attempts-three acts -and then enter backwards! For, be it remembered, he enters the new life-the church, the family of God-not when he goes down into the baptismal waters, (for that is "death,") but only when he is "raised up" out of the water-(death-the grave). This done, he enters upon the new lifeenters the church, the "household of faith," "the house of God;" and a decent respect for the "household of faith" and for himself would require that he should enter in an orderly way, face foremost, and not otherwise.

3.—If it be said that the candidate must be baptized "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," and that, therefore, he must be thrice immersed; then we reply that, on that ground, the agent who performs a legal act for any firm of three members must perform that act three times—once for each member of that firm. Preposterous! When I perform a legal act for the firm of Gilbert, Prentiss, and Tuttle, I do so by one act, and not by repeating the same act three times.

When Paul says—"One Lord, one faith, one baptism," he thereby excludes the idea of "trine immersion;" for baptism is effected by immersion, or burial in water.

4.—As for the testimonies of church historians on the point, Tertullian, (born A. D. 145, converted from heathenism to Christianity A. D. 185, and made a "presbyter"—elder—about A. D. 190), while he advocates trine immersion, he also admits that Christ did not appoint it, and he thereby admits it to be of merely human origin. He says:

"To deal with this matter briefly, I shall begin with baptism. When we are going to enter the water, but a little before, in the presence of the congregation and under the hand of the president, we solemnly profess that we disown the devil. and his pomp, and his angels. Hereupon we are thrice immersed, making a somewhat ampler pledge than the Lord has appointed in the gospel. Then, when we are taken up (as new-born children), we taste first of all a mixture of milk and honey, and from that day we refrain from the daily bath for a whole week. We take also, in congregations before daybreak, and from the hand of none but the presidents, the sacrament of the Eucharist, which the Lord both commanded to be eaten at meal-times, and enjoined to be taken by all alike. As often as the anniversary comes round, we make offerings for the dead as birthday honors. We count fasting or keeling in worship on the Lord's day to be unlawful. We rejoice in the same privilege also from Easter to Whitsunday. We feel pained should any wine or bread, even though our own, be cast upon the ground. At every forward step and movement, at every going in and out, when we put on our clothes and shoes, when we bathe, when we sit at table, when we light the lamps, on couch, on seat, in all the ordinary actions of daily life, we trace upon the forefead the sign." [the cross]. -Ante-Nicene Fathers, vol. 3, pages 94, 95.

In the above it is seen Tertullian explains trine immersion to be "a somewhat ampler pledge than the Lord has appointed in the gospel." And by examining the quotation in respect to other usages then common in the church, it will be seen that in many things the then Christian Church was far "ampler" than what Christ had ordained in the gospel, and also to what a great extent the Christian had already become heathen. The apostacy of the Christian Church, foretold by the Lord and his apostles, was now very great; and it is most unsafe to rely upon doctrines, usages, and customs then endorsed by it which have not the clear support and sanction of the Holy Scriptures.

Dr. Schaff, in his "History of the Christian Church," vol. 1: p. 468, in a note on the "form of baptism," says as follows of "threefold immersion,"—"The Oriental and the orthodox Russian churches require even a threefold immersion, in the name of the Trinity, and deny the validity of any other. They look down upon the Pope of Rome as an unbaptized heretic, and would not recognize the single immersion of the Baptists. The Longer Russian Catechism thus defines baptism: 'A sacrament in which a man who believes, having his body thrice plunged in water in the name of God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, dies to the carnal life of sin, and is born again of the Holy Ghost to a life spiritual and holy.' Marriott (in Smith and Cheetham, I., 161) says: 'Triple immersion, that is thrice dipping the head while standing in the water, was the all but universal rule of the church in early times,' and quotes in proof Tertullian, Cyril of Jerusalem, Chrysostom, Jerome, Leo I., etc. But he admits, on page 168 Eq., that affusion and aspersion were exceptionally also used, especially in clinical baptism, the validity of which Cyprian defended."

It will be noticed that Tertullian is the first author quoted in proof by Marriott; and we have already seen that he admits that Christ did not appoint trine immersion, in the gospel. This, then, ought to forever disprove historically, the claim made by some that trine immersion is a gospel institution. The last quotation also proves that trine immersion existed in the church at the same time with "affusion and aspersion;" or, in other words, at a time when the so-called Christians had largely turned to heathenism and apostacy, having "transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant."-Isa. 24: 5.

Trine immersion is a chief and distinguishing ordinance of one of the great branches of apostate Christianity, as we have seen, and this is very damaging to its claims for divine origin. Every branch of the great apostasy seems to have "changed the ordinance" of gospel baptism in some way or another, and "trine immersion" is one of the many evidences of that fact.

Many of the journals to whom we sent the "Manuscript Story" of Rev. Solomon Spaulding, have given it a very fair and candid review. Here is one from the "Republican" of Harlan, Iowa.

"A book received at this office entitled 'The Manuscript Found,' will be interesting to our readers of the L. D. S. Church, and to others as well. It is the story, complete, which was written by one Rev. Solomon Spaulding about forty years ago, and which, it is claimed by some, the Book of Mormon was founded on, or rather was a copy of. The matter has been in dispute for several years, but the finding of the original manuscript in the possession of a Mr. Rice, who now lives in the Sandwich Islands, but who formerly lived in Ohio, and who bought the printing office in which the manuscript story of Rev. Spaulding was left, has enabled a comparison to be made between it and the Book of Mormon, and no real resemblance can be traced between them. The book giving this complete history and text of the 'Manuscript Found' is published at Lamoni, Iowa, by the Saints' Herald Publishing Co."

In the Utah Journal for the 28th ult., under "Oxford Items," a correspondent tells of the insult offered Bro. R. J. Anthony in one of his meetings at that place by a member of the Brighamite Church. In Bro. Anthony's letter in this issue his version of the affair is set forth. If Bro. Anthony secured, or aided in securing the reduction of the offender's fine as he claims he did, the Journal correspondent should have said so, if he knew of it. Half-truths are misleading. Elder Anthony is a large-hearted upright man and minister, and would scorn anything like retaliation for offenses offered.

The clipping below from the Salt Lake Tribune of the 25th ult., will throw further light upon the matter.

NOTES FROM OXFORD, IDAHO.

MANY GOOD BROTHERS AND SISTERS LEAVING THE POLYGAMOUS WRECK.

For the past two weeks Elder Anthony of the Josephite branch of the Mormon Church has been holding services at the public school house in Oxford and is doing a good work. He is an able expounder of his belief, and is convincing many of the Taylor branch that they have been following blind leaders these many years, and have sinned against their country's laws. He has particularly sought to show his hearers that polygamy is no part of the true Mormon faith; that Temple building for the purposes they are being devoted to, is wrong, and that the endowment ceremony is a device of the devil to bind slavish bonds upon all who pass through it. He is doing a good work here in making American citizens, and we recommend him to all Americans everywhere in the mountains as an earnest colaborer in the work of Christianizing this peculiar people of John Taylor's kingdom.

Several of the best members of Bishop Lewis' flock in Oxford addressed the following request to him last Sunday:

Bishop W. R. Lewis—SIR: We, the undersigned, wish our names taken from the church records, as we find the laws of God and the laws of our country strictly against polygamy, and we also believe that Presidents Brigham Young or John Taylor are not acknowledged of God to lead his people Israel, and taking the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the Doctrine and Covenants for our guide, we consider we have been led into transgression.

Very respectfully, etc.,

M. H. Harris,
Eliza Harris,
W. E. Gooch,
Ann Gooch,
John Hall,
Selina Hall,
Albert H. Hall.

Others are preparing and will follow suit very shortly, so that the seed sown is taking root and will bring forth a good harvest ere long.

Chas. Cushaw, one of the elders of the Taylor kingdom, following after the advice of his masters, called Elder Anthony a liar during the sermon Thursday evening. He was arrested and brought before Judge Boyle, who sentenced him to ninety dollars fine and costs for disturbing a religious meeting. Mr. Cushaw is an earnest brother, and outside of his fanaticism is a good citizen, but his zeal for his polygamous sect got the better of his judgment.

We learn that a large number of the brethren have withdrawn from the polyg church at Malad, and have joined the reform movement. Idaho will become Americanized after awhile if the good work goes on.

S.

Oxford, Nov. 22d, 1885.

EDITORIAL ITEMS. .

IT is a well established fact, that a strong solution of common salt is a most excellent thing with which to extinguish fire. A convenient way is to have it put up in bottles, tying two of them together. These, by dexterous throwing, can be "put where they will do the most good," very handily. It would be well to have some of these bottles on hand, especially in business houses, so that on the first appearance of fire this effectual extinguisher may be applied. Bro. T. F. Stafford, of Lewiston, Illinois, related to us, years ago, that his wife by throwing the brine in a fish "kit" into a fire set in their store by an exploding kerosene lamp, put the fire out almost instantaneously, and thus saved a very destructive conflagration. Salt water acts like a charm, it is claimed, in subduing fire by kerosene.

The Herald Office as well as householders has to have house cleaning times at certain periods. This week and next is our time; so if Herald and Hope subscribers who have recently sent in subscriptions do not find credit given them on their yellow label address receipt, do not think we have forgot you, or your money is lost. They will be corrected next issue. We will this week only make the credits on the Advocate and Sandhedens Banner lists

Elder R. J. Anthony writes from Pleasant Grove, Utah, the 30th ult., that he was called there by the severe illness of Sr. Sterrett, but that she was now recovering. He expects to return home the last of the present month to attend to some special business affairs. The Utah and Idaho districts will miss him greatly.

C. N. Caspar, No. 437, East Water St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin, will send catalogue of works in his "Book Emporium," free on application.

Dio Lewis' Nuggets for December is placed on our table. It is well filled with valuable matter. It is published at 69-71 Bible House, New York, for one dollar per year.

Blustering Boreas with his frosty breath came sweeping down from the far Northwest, on Friday the 4th instant; and our pleasant Indian Summer folded her beautiful robes and hied away to the sunny south for a season. South-western Iowa is rich in bright shining days, if she does put on unpleasant airs simi-occasionally.

Bro. C. Derry writes from his home, Magnolia, Iowa, the 27th ult, that when at Harlan, Iowa, a short time ago, he baptized one, and that others were believing.

Sr. Lizzie C. Wiper writes of late from Foreman, Sargeant Co., Dakota, and expresses ardent desires for the progress and triumph of the church. She is very anxious that a branch be raised up there, for at present the surroundings tend to loneliness and make the soul desire communion with the Saints.

Sr. R. McDonald, of Norborne, Carroll county, Mo., writes the 1st inst., that she was delighted to find brother J. Knipschild and wife living in the same place. She says further:—"Oh, how we would welcome a good Elder here! I don't think the word has ever been preached in Norborne."

Some person writing us from Manteno, Iowa, for information, failed to sign their name to their letter, and we do no know who to answer.

THE following items are from the Reporter of the 20th ult., published at Blackfoot, Idaho, and are added evidences that people of good sense and fair minds will readily see and allow the good there is in the original and true faith of the Saints when properly presented to them. What we ask and all we ask is to have a fair and full hearing. This we must labor for everywhere.

THE JOSEPHITES.

God bless the Josephites. We have long known of their sturdy loyalty and manliness in all that it takes to make good citizens, but never knew exactly until last week all the cardinal points of difference between them and the Brighamites. We had never contrasted their purity with the latter's condition of utter degradation before. It is probable that there are honest Mormons at this time who cry out in their despair: Would to God we had maintained our cleanliness.

The Josephite faith is pure and loyal. The Mormon, or Brighamite faith, or practices at least are impure, degrading and troublesome. How much misery, shame and trouble would have been spared to this fleeing multitude, had they avoided the lustful and pernicious teachings of the greatest profligate and slave driver of the nineteenth century—Brigham Young, the false prophet.

During last week at Oxford we had the pleasure of listening to some most brilliant, eloquent and touching discourses from R. J. Anthony, a Josephite missionary, who is engaged in that work among the Brighamites in Utah and Idaho. He is an eloquent speaker, and his manner is unadorned except by the logic of truth and conviction. He traces the history of the Mormon religion from its inception up to the present time. He lays bare the cancerous sores that began to take root when Brigham Young undertook, for his own vile lust and profit, to misguide the Mormon people. He proves conclusively the outrage that was practiced upon them, and he warns them that the day of judgment is at hand. No fair minded Mormon can listen to him without acknowledging the error of his way. He proves to them from their own revered "Book of Mormon" that the loathesome teachings of John Taylor and his herd are a lie and a cheat. He proves to them that when Brigham Young, by his carrion act, introduced polygamy and all the other attendent iniquities into the religion of Joseph Smith, he literally robbed the dead. He threw open the door and gave his hearers a peep into the polluted Endowment House, and reminded them that there at one time Brigham Young was wont to have been seated as God upon his throne, and that those who entered there, went with outstretched hands to receive the shackles, and that leaving, they left their freedom of body and soul behind them to enter upon a life of hopeless bondage. With the fire of eloquence that truth alone can cause to flash from the windows of the soul, he begged his people to take the knife of repentance and cut the strings of their accursed endowment robes. He urged upon them the utter hopelessness of their rebellion, the sinfulness of their treason, the cowardice of their Taylor and their Cannon, and the final downfall that was now at hand. We feel better for having heard Mr. Anthony, and we trust he will continue in the good work, and that success may attend this noble mission.

W. E. Gooch, one of Oxford's oldest and most respected citizens, has left the Mormon Church and joined Mr. Anthony's flock. He has been followed by quite a number of others, and more will doubtless begin to have their eyes open.

WE take the following from the Reporter, of Blackfoot, Idaho, the 27th ult., which further serves to show the work of Bro. R. J. Anthony at Oxford, of late:

OXFORD, Idaho, Nov. 23d.

Editor Reporter: I noticed your article last week on the Josephites, and all who are interested in the good work echo a hearty response to the sentiments expressed in it. The best evidence in the world that Mr. Anthony's efforts are beginning to have their effect is that, on last Wednesday evening while he was telling his audience some of the truths of which the Mormons can not help being ashamed, he was interrupted by Charles Croshaw, one of the most ignorant and fanatical members of the Church in the neighborhood, with the cry "You lie." Mr. Anthony, undisturbed by the serf's remark, continued his lecture. When he had concluded he remarked that if there was any one present who desired to express their views, there was now an opportunity, and he would listen respectfully to what they had to say. Croshaw arose and in choice cockney mumbled some unintelligible gibberish about prayer in secret. There was another very fresh youth from Ut ho endeavored enlighten the audience, but as his remarks would neither point a moral nor adorn a tale, and as I could not get the drift of what he did say, I am unable to give them. A complaint was promptly sworn out before Justice James Boyle next morning and Croshaw was fined $25 and costs for his little exhibition of ignorance and spite. Mr. Anthony has been the means of depriving the Church of eighteen of its members and one of them remarked to-day, "Thank God I am now an American citizen." A Josephite church will be established here and we look for many more converts.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. John Burlington of St. Joseph, Mo., under date of 24th ult., says:

"Please find inclosed fifteen dollars, being payment for tracts sent to our order here. We have scattered the good seed, and time will tell 'what shall the harvest be.'"

The St. Joseph Saints show their faith by their works, and it tells for good here and hereafter.

Bro. Willard J. Smith in a late letter says:

"I think every Latter Day Saint, especially the Elders, should have a copy of 'Manuscript Found,' that they may show the opposers of this great work the utter inconsistency of the idea that, Solomon Spaulding was in any way the author of the Book of Mormon."

Bro. A. Tabbut writes from Detroit, Minn., the 23d ult., saying:

"While the outer man may be perishing, yet the inward may be renewed day by day. I could not be content without the Herald. By it I hear from the Saints in all quarters, and it makes me glad when I hear that God is blessing his children."

Sister Elizabeth Lowrie, of Decoto, Cal., says:

"I am seventy one years old, and have not been able to attend conference for a long time. None of the Elders call to see me now. There are no Latter Day Saints living near me. I have a large family and am the only one who belongs to the church."

Bro. D. F. Crane, of Lake Crystal, Minn., in his letter of the 30th ult., says: "The Herald I must have,—can't get along without it. * * * It is a God-send every time it comes to us."

We wish there were many thousands more like brother Crane, and that like him they would "pay the printer" promptly.

"MANUSCRIPT FOUND."

We now offer for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spalding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. This book of 144 pages 8 mo, is now in the hands of the binder, and orders for it are solicited. Single copies, in cloth 45 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 40 cents each; in paper, single copies 25 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 20 cents each. Liberal discount to dealers.

REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.

We have now on sale at this office, in pamphlet form, containing 48 pages, the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of plural marriage." Price, post paid, single copies 10 cents; 75 cents per dozen to one address.

Correspondence.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

OXFORD, Idaho,

November 25th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:-I left Ogden the 19th of October for Malta, Cassia county, Idaho, and arrived in Kelton that night. Next morning took stage and rode twenty-five miles to Clear Creek Station, where I stopped with brother and sister Condit, and spent the afternoon and evening pleasantly with them. And although living in a wilderness of sage brush and isolated from society, yet the love for the gospel was still fresh and green in their memory. The next day brother Leonard took me over to Malta, where we met Sr. Sarah Condit-Secor and her husband, also Sr. Addie and Bro. D. S. Condit, who received us joyfully, and made us welcome and at home. Sr. Addie was just recovering from a severe illness, but suffering some from rheumatism in the foot, and was going about on crutches. They have all taken up land on Cassia Creek, and are struggling hard to make themselves good homes. They have plenty of land and water, and had a splendid prospect for a crop, but the rabbits made a raid on them and harvested twenty acres of fine wheat, taking it clean to the ground. This was a great loss to them, but they are not discouraged, but will go ahead improving their land, intending to "grow up with the country," which they will do if they continue. I held three meetings in their school-house, and on the Sabbath day went to Conner, eight or nine miles up the creek, and spoke twice. Monday morning Bro. D. S. Condit and I started on a "mission" to the Cove, sixteen miles from Conner. The "Cove" is almost surrounded by mountains, and is not far from Raft river. There is quite a little settlement there. We stopped with Mr. Jacob Paden. formerly from Little Sioux, Iowa. Our mission to this place was a failure, so far as preaching was concerned. We made an appointment to speak in the Alamo School house on Tuesday evening, and we rode through the settlement to announce the appointment. We called at the house of a Mr. Durfee and enquired for a brother Blackenbury who lived close up to the mountain. Mr. Durfee evidently took us for Deputy Marshals. He began pointing out the homes of different ones and telling their names while we sat quietly listening. He seemed to be somewhat excited, and asked us where we hailed from. I told him we were missionaries, and had come to preach to wandering and scattered Israel. At that he straightened up and said he could not believe any thing but "Mormonism." I told him we were believers in Mormonism, but did not believe in [polygamy. He said he was a preacher and held the "keys." I asked him what keys. He said "keys of the Seventy." I told him then he did not out-rank me, using an old army phrase, and invited him to come and hear me, and if I did not teach correctly he should correct me; but he declined, saying he had to work for a living, that thieves got along well enough without. I asked him what kind of a man the brother we were looking for was. He said he was nothing. A man, he said, that would drink tea and coffee, chew tobacco, drink whiskey and profane the name of Israel's God, was nobody; he believed in apostles and prophets that held the keys of the kingdom. I answered, "So do I." "But they are in Salt Lake and Logan," he remarked. I told him I thought not-the ones he referred to were hiding. That was too much; he "slopped over" and said "They will all be found when the Lord Jesus comes to give you fellows a shaking up." I remarked to brother Condit that we then would fall into good hands. We then left brother Durfee and returned to Mr. Paden's. At night when we went to the school-house the congregation consisted of three men, one lady, and seven or eight boys. We made a small talk and adjourned.

Wednesday morning, the 28th, Mr. Paden took us out to the City of Rocks, three miles from his home. It is rather an interesting sight. I shall not attempt to describe it. To me it looks as though the mountains had been angry, and had belched forth rocks of all conceivable shapes, and tossed them hither and thither, setting them up, some fifty feet high. He also showed us where a train of emigrants were massacred by Indians. This place is near his house. The earth-works are quite plain now, after a lapse of twenty-three years. When he related the circumstance, I remembered the occurence, being with the United States troops that rescued the few who made their escape. I thought over many incidents in my life while contemplating the scenes, and thought of the perils of other days, and shuddered when I saw where I once stood, stranded and lost, wandering in spiritual darkness, and I felt to examine myself. I felt now I could look out, and as I gazed upward could see clear and sunny skies giving cheer and hope to the wanderer of other days.

We left Mr. Paden and his pleasant family, after partaking of an early dinner, for Elba, on Cassia creek, where we had an appointment for that night. We held three meetings in all, stopping with Mr. Wm. Robertson, formerly of Little Sioux, Iowa. We spent a portion of the time with Mr. Beecher-all treating us with the greatest kindness. Mr. Robertson's mother is spending the winter with him. I was at home, and greatly cheered by them. We had good audiences at Elba, but what our efforts there will amount to, time will reveal. I did hear that a good old sister said it made her stronger in her faith-her "old man" is on a mission now to England. I spent the night of the 30th with father Ransford Beecher. We talked over many things, he being

On the 31st we rode over to Albion, met Bro. Albertson and his excellent wife and pleasant family. They made us welcome and happy. November first I preached in Messrs. Bascom and Robinson's Hall, kindly furnished us by them. Audience was good both at two o'clock and seven p. m. I tried to talk gospel to them, and felt free in doing so. While at Albion I visited brethren Jonas and John Chatburn. They own a fine ranch four miles below Albion, also a splendid flouring mill which they keep constantly running, and yet were three weeks behind their calls. Men go eighty miles to that mill. From appearances I should think the brethren were doing well, horses and cattle to graze upon a thousand hills, besides that many swine. They are getting along nicely, having ready sale for all the flour they make. We had a pleasant visit with them, for in the midst of their business the love of the gospel seemed firmly planted in their hearts, their good wives being full of faith and good works. I also visited sister Mahoney, spending a pleasant evening with her and her husband. They have a splendid and pleasant home. I very much enjoyed my visit with the Saints and friends at Albion.

November 7th brother Albertson took me to Malta, where brother D. S. Condit and sister Sarah and Addie live. We remained with them over the Sunday, and next morning left there with brother Condit for American Falls, a distance of fifty miles. May the Lord give strength to all these isolated ones, I pray. After a tiresome days ride we entered a little station on the Oregon Short line, at the Amrican Falls, on Snake River. It was too late for us to see the great falls, but we heard the sound thereof, and let that suffice. The "burg" consisted of one store, one hotel, and a saloon. Cow-boys were plenty and made the air a little sulphurous. They made plenty of warm talk, but Judge Hays' severe sentences—twenty-five years for horse stealing and other crimes in proportion—seemed to prove a terror to evildoers, and restrained them.

The next morning I took the train for Oxford. arriving at eleven o'clock. I was welcomed by brother W. E. Gooch, and kindly provided for. At night I held forth in the school house to a fair congregation. The next evening the congregation was larger. Our friends suggested the idea of getting the New West school room, as it was better seated; besides there was an organ, and Gospel song-books. It was thought singing and music would make the meetings more attractive, and the use of the house was procured, and it was filled to its utmost capacity. Having occupied the New West houses at other places, and believing there was no objection, I made other appointments there and occupied it the next night; but the teacher thought we were taking too much liberty, and refused us the use of the house for Sunday evening. At the hour appointed for the meeting several gathered at the house, to find the door locked. We all went over to the other school-room where we first occupied: everybody was in good humor; Mr. Strait had his organ brought in, and we had music and the sweet songs of Israel-all the same-Mrs. Dudenhouse presiding at the organ, and Mr. Strait leading the singing. The house was filled, and I preached to them the gospel. Mr. Bennett, Prosecuting attorney for this county, Dr. House, U. S. Commissioner, Mr. Eaton, Recciever at the Land Office, and I believe all the liberal element, with their ladies, were constant attendants at the meetings, aiding us in singing, and doing all they could to make our stay pleasant. I can't mention all who showed us kindness.

During our stay one unfortunate circumstance occurred. I was speaking on the "endowments," and read from Doctrine and Covenants and Book of Mormon. Then I referred to what one of their Elders had said in a discourse in the Brighamite meeting the Sunday before, when I was called a liar. This caused some excitement. The poor offender was arrested the next day, and a fine of ninety dollars and cost was imposed. The man felt he could not pay the fine, and proposed going to jail. He pleaded guilty to the charge, and confessed true repentance. I felt sorry for him, and told my friends I would not have him prosecuted—that I was not disturbed, and pleaded for him that he might go free. Finally the justice reduced his fine and cost to thirty-five dollars. I did not go before the court to plead, but with those that I believed could favor him. I wish now he had been let go free, on my account. But those in authority thought different. I found warm friends at Oxford, and they stayed with me during all my meetings, giving many words of cheer and encouragement, and from general expressions, I am led to believe the good people of Oxford are now persuaded that "Mormonism, as it is commonly called, is not a bad thing when properly understood-I mean the gospel, not Utah palygamy, etc.

During my stay at Oxford I baptized eighteen, six on the 22d and twelve on the 24th. I organized a branch to be known as the Oxford Branch; besides, I ordained two Elders and blessed four children. Brother John Hall was chosen to preside, and brother Wm. E. Gooch to act as Priest and Teacher for the present. Bro. Gooch is the clerk.

Yours in Christ,

R. J. ANTHONY.

PITTSBURG, Kansas,
December 1st, 1885.

Bro. Blair: - Since I last wrote to you, I have held meetings at Webb City, Missouri, Mound Valley, and Keighley, Buttler county, Kansas, one good, promising man was baptized there, brother Martin M. Turpen officiating. Bro. Warren Peak baptized two at Galesburg, Missouri. Brn. J. M. Richards, E. Wheeler, Warren Peak, J. Arthur Davis, E. A. Davis, J. Alfred Davis, J. Thomas, and others, are putting in splendid efforts through these parts, keeping up several constant appointments and putting in a week at a time in some place such as Pittsburg, Opolis, &c. Hope their efforts will be crowned with success. I have been confined to home for about three weeks by sickness in the family, but hope to be out soon again.

In gospel bonds,

J. T. Davis.

CABOOL, Texas County, Mo., November 26th, 1885.

Brother Blair:—I have just retured from Wright county, Mo., preached five times to attentive and fair-sized audiences. A year ago last summer they showed no interest in hearing our faith. I left them seemingly with quite an interest in the faith. While in Wright county, I stopped with brother and sister Metzger. They are quite old, poor in this world's goods, yet rich in the true faith.

Your brother in the one hope.

B. A. ATWELL.

KEIGHLEY, Kansas,

November 30th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I write to let you know how we are getting along. Bro. J. T. Davis was with us some time ago and gave us some good instructions, causing us to rejoice. He left a good impression with the people. One, Bro. G. W. Hobart, and two of Bro. S. J. Madden's daughters were baptized yesterday. We have regular meetings here, and keep trying to present the truth to the people, as time and opportunity offers. We feel encouraged as we read the news in the Herald of how the truth is winning its way to the honest in heart. I feel still more like holding on to the "rod of iron" until the end than ever. Hoping and praying for the final triumph of the gospel,

I remain yours in bonds,

M. M. TURPEN.

KIRTLAND, Ohio, November 30th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair: On the 24th of October we left Wheeling, W. Va., for New Philadelphia, Ohio, where we stayed two weeks, preaching, and visiting from house to house, also attending to duties that required my immediate attention. We found the little band of Saints strong in the faith. They contemplate building a house of worship to the Lord. They were also having excellent meetings. Truly, the Lord was with them in much power. The friends outside of the church are very anxious that the Saints build, and are giving liberally towards the project. I have no doubt but what they can easily accomplish the task, providing that they work together in the spirit of love, and so have our Heavenly Father to help them.

We next called at Diamond, and held meetings for two weeks at that place. There are many who believe the gospel, but seem to lack courage to comply with its requirements. There are only five saloons and one rink at Diamond! No church house, notwithstanding that there are no more than two hundred inhabitants, all told. This speaks very badly for the place. However, Christ came to save sinners, and not the righteous. Bro. and Sr. Stewart, and our friends, the Scotts, did all that was within their power to make our visit pleasant and enjoyable, which kind treatment we truly appreciated. On the 23d we left for Cleveland, and arrived at Kirtland on the 25th. The next day was Thanksgiving, and we had a grand time. Sister E. L. Kelley prepared a good dinner, assisted by Sr. W. H. Kelley, who with her family moved to this place some time ago. Bro. J. Gillespie of Pittsburg with his family arrived on the 26th, just in time for dinner. Altogether there were twentyone who surrounded the table to partake of the bounteous spread before them.

I commenced preaching on the night of the 27th and have continued every night since. Had a very large audience last evening, and a glorious Saints' meeting on yesterday. Brn. W. H. and E. L. Kelley are held in high esteem by the people of Kirtland.

You have no idea how much we miss Bro. Ells. *His death is a great loss to us in this district. It seems that we miss his wholesome counsel more and more, every day. He was truly one of God's noble characters, and if ever a man died in the Lord, Bro. Ells did. A few days before he died, he told a brother who came to see him, tell the Saints that the gospel of Christ was just as grand and glorious to him when dying, as when living. I feel encouraged to continue to fight the good fight of faith. Expect to leave this week for Conneautville, Pennsylvania, thence to Greenville, Pa., and Youngstown, Ohio.

Yours in gospel bonds,

G. T. GRIFFITHS,

Cameron, Missouri, November 26th, 1885.

Bro. Blair:-I have just been reading the first piece in the last Herald-"Covering Faults." I think it is splendid. I have felt impressed to try to write something on that subject for some time, but feeling unable to do justice to it I have refrained. I am thankful now that I have, for it will do far more good than I could possibly have done in my weakness. I fully endorse every thing you had to say on that subject; and I do hope and pray that all who read may profit by it. I honestly believe that there is no other sin (I can not help call it a sin) that causes as much hard feelings and trouble among the Saints as those you have mentioned in that article. May our kind Father continue to bless you with wisdom and understanding that you may be instrumental in doing much more good, is my earnest prayer.

Do you know why our Elders do not preach in Spanish Fork, Utah? Is it because there is no branch there? I felt so anxious for Bro. Joseph to preach on his way south, but it seems he did not. I have relatives there, and so has my husband. We lived there for nearly twenty years and feel very anxious to have some of our childhood friends hear and obey the true gospel. Perhaps I am too anxious, for I believe that Joseph will follow the directions of the Spirit, and will go where he can do the most good. O, I do wish the Utah people would go out and hear him. I feel continually to pray that God may bless every effort that is made to help the honest in that land to see the true light.

G. F. Simmons.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 1st, 1885.

Dear Heraid:—How welcome to me is your appearance every week! I don't know how I could do without you now. How often while reading the letters and testimonies of the dear Saints have I felt the influence of the Divine Spirit that inspired the writers of the same. What a calm sweet influence has often come over me while reading of goodness and love of my heavenly Father to those whose hearts have been made to swell with love to him in return, and find some expression in the pages of this herald of truth.

Yes; many times have I found answered questions that I have long pondered over; answered to my entire satisfaction, whose words have appeared to me "like apples of gold in pictures of silver," shining forth in bold relief to my heart's rejoicing. O, my brethren and sisters; do we fully realize what our privileges are to be in possession of such glorious and precious truths while the so-called Christian world are wandering in gross darkness? Let us awake as saints of the Most High, to righteousness. Let us not be sleeping while the Bridegroom tarries, but be up and doing while it is day.

And, O, my brethren and sisters, let us not forget the appeal of our brother from the Islands of the sea, T. W. Smith. Those who can assist by money, who have of this world's goods, let not this golden opportunity of putting your talent out to the Master's use pass by; for I did feel while reading that appeal that it was from the Lord; for I feel there are many precious souls there yet to be brought into the fold of Christ. And may those who can not assist by money, send up to our heavenly Father prayers of faith for the required aid; for his word declares that "the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

We have had Bro. Columbus Scott here preaching a series of discourses to good and attentive audiences. May the blessing of our heavenly Father attend his labors and the labors of all such faithful, earnest, and able representatives of the everlasting gospel, is the prayer of your brother in Christ,

RICHARD BULLARD.

CLITHERALL, Minnesota, December 1st, 1885.

Bro. Blair:—The work of the Lord is onward in this part of the land. The Saints are all feeling well in regard to the prospects. Bro. H. L. Holt is still laboring for the Master with good results. He baptized two more last Sunday and Monday; and there are others almost ready to obey the Master's call. May the good work continue to roll on and the honest-hearted be gathered in as soon as possible, is the prayers of the Saints.

Yours in Christ,

J. R. Anderson.

BLENHEIM, Ontario,

November 28th, 1885.

Bro. Blair:—Thinking news from this part would be interesting to some, I pen these lines.

It gives me much pleasure to read in the Herald of the progress of the work in different parts of the country. It is thirteen years ago this fall since I obeyed this gospel, and I seem to grow stronger in the faith each year. There has quite a number of changes taken place since you were here in 1877. Many of the Saints that were here at that time have moved away, and nearly all that are here now are those that have obeyed the gospel since. The people seem to be "joined to their idols," and do not have much desire to obey or hear the truth. At times, when there is a strange Elder here, or a conference, the people turn out pretty well; but generally only the Saints meet. Prejudice is giving way in many places, and Elders can find openings now where sometime ago it was impossible to get one.

Bro. Robb, formerly Bishop's Agent of this district, resigned this fall, and I was reccommended to the Bishop for appointment as Agent, and was so appointed. I purpose this coming writer (if the Lord will) to visit the branches in the district and instruct them as I am blessed, on the temporal law, and the duty they owe to God as Saints.

Jesus said this gospel should be preached in all the word for a witness unto all nations, therefore it is necessary that the Saints impart of their substance as the Lord has blessed or prospered them, for the spread of his gospel. There is no compulsion in this work—each one can give as much or as little as they chose. If every member of this church would pay something there could be a great many more Elders sent out than there is.

But many seem to think if thay can not pay in much they will not pay any at all, and the work of God in many places languishes for want of laborers.

It seems as though the Government of the United States are determined that their laws in regard to marriage shall be enforced in Utah. It is sad to see a people that once enjoyed the light and power of the gospel so steeped in iniquity and sin, and trying to justify their acts by claiming that they are obeying a law revealed from heaven.

I had a letter from brother J. H. Lake on the 25th. He had been preaching at Inwood and Petrolia with good liberty, and from there was going to Longwood, where the Rev. Pomroy had been lecturing on Mormonism. Bro. Leverton was at his lecture, but he would not give him a chance to say anything at his meeting. Bro. Leverton replied to his lecture, and the people seemed anxoius to hear more, and he wrote to brother Lake requesting him to go there.

Hoping that God may bless you and your colaborers, I remain yours in the one faith,

RICHARD COBURN.

BEAVER CITY, Utah, November 24th, 1884.

Bro. W. W. Blair:-It has been quite awhile since I wrote you and am thinking a few lines may be interesting at this time to the readers of the Herald. On this happyfying occasion I write to you. I went to Milford on the 6th of November and brought Brn. Joseph Smith and Joseph Luff to Beaver on the 7th. They held eleven public meetings, and one in the branch, in which the Saints were made to rejoice and render a tribute of praise to our heavenly Father for the comforts and cheer that was meekly and kindly divided out to the Saint and sinner by the one mighty and strong, and also by his co-laborer, who is a helper indeed. The people here never, no never, have had such a shaking up as they have had whilst the brethren were here. Their system of polygamy and concomitant evils were held up before their eyes in so plain a manner that hundreds who listened to them could see it so plain that they are holding up for brother Joseph's position, and are investigating. The M. E. Chapel was crowded to overflowing every service, with one exception. The M. E. minister gave us the use of the chapel free, and assisted in singing with his choir; and when he was absent his choir was at their post, and their selections were very appropriate. Such hand-shaking at the close of every service I never have seen since the work has been planted here. The brethren made their home with me, occupied the same room that you did when you were here, but were out to dinner every day but one. The longer they stayed the more and more invitations they had-more than they could fill—and truly the people, those that were interested felt to mourn their departure, as we all did, because of their meek and humble attitude, and the love they expressed, and their fervent desire, both in prayer and in speech, to bring the wandering ones back to the true fold and from bondage to perfect freedom. There are quite a number whom I think will unite with us in the near future. And what rejoices my soul most, my wife was baptized by Bro. Luff, and confirmed by Bro. Joseph Smith, the day before they left. For this I have prayed and waited for a long time, and I praise my Maker. For years

I have stood almost alone, although my wife has not opposed the work.

On the 19th I took the brethren to Milford, my wife and brother W. W. Thompson accompanying us, arriving at Milford, there we listened to another powerful and convincing discourse. Attention and influence were good. The heaviest list was gathered for our Church publications that ever has been from this Southern Utah, of which you have been made aware ere this. May the good work spread far and wide, until all that will may come and take of the water of life freely, so they shall never thirst again.

As ever in bonds, W. W. HUTCHINGS.

W. W. HUICHINGS.

WILBER, Neb., December 2d, 1885. Dear Herald:—At the time of last writing I was at Shenandoah, Iowa. At the request of the Saints I spent a week there and faithfully tried to tell the good old story of the gospel. Returning from there I spent a few days at home, and with the Moroni Saints. Came here the 14th ult., and have kept up a steady gospel fire ever since, in a school-house, two miles from the town. The house is full every night, and the order is good, and the interest was never better than now in this vicinity. I have for years been strongly in favor of a protracted effort, when the Spirit so directs and the people will attend. Much time and money is lost in unnecessary running about. Since my coming here, there have been several successful administrations to the sick. God truly is good, and none have more reason to praise him than your humble servant. Religious excitement and revivals are now rife, and the people being through corn gathering and the weather fine, a lively time may be expected till spring work begins. I wish ten or fifteen Elders who could stand roughing it, and preach seven days every week, would come and help us occupy this inviting, promising field. There is a rich harvest for the Church, if she will arise and send into this region, mainly Nebraska and Kansas, able and wise reapers. If there is a "set time," and a favorable time, now seems to be that golden opportunity, while the country is new and society is not bound with the chains of men's creeds and opinions. I expect to continue till my seedy clothes become a reproach to the cause. Bro. J. D. Bennett, of Cuba, Kansas, was here last Sunday, and spoke twice, which was a help in time of need. In haste,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

A FAT old man was spread out over four seats on a Texas train. At a small station a tall lady wearing a sunbonnet, entered the car. The old fat man pretended that he did not see her, but a gentleman just behind the fat man who took up so much room, politely removed his gripsack, and she sat down, thanking him for his attention. She did not say anything for a minute or so. Then she snapped her eyes and remarked to the gentleman who had given her a seat, at the same time glancing in the direction of the corpulent old gentleman:

"You can't rely on what you read in the farm journals nowadays."

"Are they so unreliable?"

"Yes," she replied, glancing over her-shoulder at the fat old man; "I read in one of them the other day that the average age of a hog is only fifteen years."

The old gentleman grunted.

Selected Woetry.

CONSCIENCE.

[Translated from Victor Hugo's "Legende'des Siecles."]

Cain fied before the Lord, and with him went His children, skin-clad, all with storm besprent. The evening fell. The sad man sought repose Where from the desert, a great mount arose. His wife, exhausted, and his sons, outworn, Slept on the ground, while he, the man forlorn, Sat thinking, sleepless, at the mountain's base. He raised his head, and right before his face, Staring, wide open, in the blackened sky, He saw regarding him a moveless Eye. "I am too near," he said, and shook with fright, Then waked the tired flock, and in the night He fled away into the nameless space, And thirty days and nights, with ceaseless pace, He marched and marched, and shivered as he went, Furtive and dumb, on every noise intent; No rest, no sleep. At last upon the strand Of ancient seas, where now is Syrian land, He stood. "Stay here. In this asylum sure, Here let us rest. The world goes on no more," And as he sat, there flamed upon the sky In that same far off spot, the changeless Eye. Ah, how he trembled in that Horror's grip! "Hide me," he cried; and finger on their lip, His sons gazed sadly on their father fierce. Cain said to Jubal, prince of those who pierce Deep in the desert with their tents of skin, "Pitch here thy tent, and fence me safely in." He did. He quick outspread the floating wall, Staying its corners with the leaden ball. "Dost see it now?" said Zillah, fairest child, The daughter of his son, like morning mild. "I see the Eye again," replied her sire. Jubal, the chief of those who strike the lyre And beat the drum amid the crowded street, And sound the horn, with silver note and sweet, Cried loud and long, "I swear to bar it out." He made a wall of bronze, and, scorning doubt, Placed Cain behind, who cried, "I see the Eye." Then Enoch spake: "Let us build towns high, So terrible that nothing will come near: Build up a city with a donjon drear. Then Tubal Cain, the father of the forge, Built up a city, horrible and large. And while he labored, in the plain beneath, His brothers hunted down the sons of Seth, Put out the eyes of all they took in war, And shot their arrows at the evening star. The tents gave place to walls of solid stone, Each block kept steady by an iron zone. The city seemed a very pit of hell. The walls were thick as mountains, and the swell Of monstrous towns made all dark as night. And on the door they carved in letters bright,
"God shall not enter here." When all was done They shut their grandsire in a town of stone, Haggard and sorrowful. Then Zillah sald, "It is no longer there, that Eye so dread." But he replied, "I see It now as then, Oh, close me in some subterranean den. Entomb me. As one dead, so let me be. I shall see no one. Nothing shall see me." They built a vault, and Cain said, "It is good," Descended, sat him down in happier mood. They walled the mouth, but it was all in vain, The Eye was in the tomb, and looked at Cain.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THOUGHTS ON ENVY.

Envy is "pain, uneasiness, mortification or discontent, excited by the sight of another's superiority or success, accompanied with some degree of hatred or malignity, and often or usually with a desire or an effort to depreciate the person, or with pleasure at seeing him depressed."

With this definition, it would seem strange that there should be so much envy among the people; nevertheless, as the blighting effects of this enemy of our peace are seen on every hand, we are forced to acknowledge that it invades all ranks and classes, withering and blasting the joy and hopes of men. Envy originates often from an inordinate desire to excel. Desire to excel is, to a certain degree helpful. It helps the scholar in his studies, the farmer in his field, the mechanic with his tools, etc. In fact, nearly all we do is done better because others do the same things, and we want our work done as well as theirs. But when it becomes inordinate, and we hate those who outstrip us, we call it envy. Now, is it not a fact, that if we are pained at another's success, we would hinder that success if we could? It must be. The man who is pained at his neighbor's prosperity would hinder that prosperity. The woman who is pained because her neighbor has a larger, nicer wardrobe than she, would curtail the supply of that wardrobe, were it in her power. The orator who is pained when another is applauded, would, at least, impair the talent that has brought forth that applause.

One singular fact concerning envy is, that it often exists among those who are, or should be, friends. Notice young ladies who grow up in the same neighborhood. They may even be bound together by the ties of kindred, as well as association, and they may seem to love each other, yet after awhile if fortune smiles on one of them more than others, her toilet is richer, the carriage in which she rides is costlier, and the home where she dwells has more worldly comfort, notice how her former friends will talk! Some will say, "I am glad her circumstances are better; that she has more of the comforts and luxuries of life;" while others will say—"Humph! isn't she stuck up though!" That apparel is only cheap stuff," etc. Observe young men, whose early years are spent together as friends, on about the same footing, and with equal opportunities. By and by, by dint of perseverance and the certain law of the survival of the fittest, one rises to a higher plane by accumulating more wealth. Does such a one ever escape some one's envy? How often do we hear charges of unfair dealing, and even groundless insinuations of dishonesty coming from those thought to be friends. Let it be remembered that whoever is so pained at another's success as to try to blast his reputation, and deprive him of that which is "rather to be chosen than great riches," would, especially if he could do it covertly, gladly blast that success!

Envy is often found among those laboring for a common cause. It is said that Napoleon was envious of some of his most successful generals. That man whose name is so conspicuous in our country's history, and who will be fondly remembered while the English language is spoken, had a flood-tide of envy to meet while battling with all his great soul for our liberties Amid a torrent of this envy, these sensible words were uttered: "Washington's success is our success" ington's success is our success."

I have been much pained at noticing the existence of this arch fiend among some of our ministers. How superlatively strange that one should give his life-work to the promotion of our holy cause and then experience pain because God's name is glorified under the ministration of another! Well might inspiration exhort: "Envying not one another."

L. F. W.

"A BATTLE WITH THE MORMONS."

In the December number for 1884, of The Stumbling Stone, a religious monthly published at Toledo, Ohio, by Lyman H. Johnson, under the caption above, is an unwarranted and malicious attack on the faith and teachings of the Latter Day Saints, and of the Reorganization, made by the editor, under the pretense of giving an account of three meetings which he held at Dimondale, Michigan, January 9th, 10th, and 11th, 1885, each of which I attended, and by his consent, offered some remarks at the conclusion of his sermons.

Mr. Johnson says:—"The subject of our controversy was on what constitutes Mormonism, its carnal commandments, earthly organism, and lastly, Jo Smith and his Bible which is the foundation and authority of this sect of Latter Day Saints as they call themselves."

Now there is not one phrase in this entire statement that contains truth, as the entire audience that was present can testify. The subject of the three sermons referred to, which lasted six hours altogether, was, whether the Church of Christ is a visible or an invisible organization, and whether the gospel of Christ enjoins any ordinances or not, and assuming the negative of these two proposition, Mr. Johnson spent six hours in trying to show from the Bible that the Church of Christ is an invisible institution to all intents and purposes, and that all ordinances of an outward or visible character were entirely out of the question.

To these positions we responded briefly each evening, endeavoring to show that the Scriptures teach the visibility of the organism of the church, and that the gospel requires us to yield obedience to the ordinances of baptism, the laying on of hands, and observance of the Lord's Sup-We disclaimed all relation to human creeds or disciplines whatever, and going direct to the Scriptural testimony, pleaded the claims of the original organization described in the Bible, viz.: "Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill can not be hid."—Matt. 5: 14. "Paul, called to be an apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, and Sosthenes our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours."—I Cor. 1:1, 2. And that to all in every place, with saints at Corinth, Paul taught "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular. And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healing, helps, governments, diversities of tongues."-12:

27, 28; also Eph. 4:8-14. And when the silly idea crept into the minds of the saints at Corinth that the body of Christ thus arranged by our Savior might be changed and rearranged, and all the officers and members be equal in official place and standing; or in other words, all the body get to be eve, hand, or foot. Paul corrects this notion thus-"Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles? * * * I show unto you a more excellent way."—1 Cor. 12: 17, 29, 30, 31. Again he says "All members have not the same office."—Rom. 12:4. This is the only kind of church organization authorized by the Bible. But because of the multiplied abuses of the principles of church organization now, and in the past history of the religious world, Mr. Johnson and his followers refuse to recognize its divinely authorized use, and so rejects all organization of the church whatever. And just so, too, with regard to baptism and the other gospel ordinances; and hence he classed baptism, instituted of God through the gospel, with the divers washings of the law of Moses mentioned in Heb. 9: 10. And the Lord's Supper, Luke 22: 19, 20; Acts 20:7; 1 Cor. 10: 16; 11: 20-33, is, with Mr. Johnson, simply the Jewish paschal lamb passover, and that these or-dinances, (of the gospel), were observed by the Jewish disciples only till about the time Paul received a dispensation of the gospel, and that then all outward ordinances forever ceased in the Church of Christ; and that all the gospel baptism there is, is that of the Holy Ghost!

According to this, when the Lord sent John the Baptist to preach the gospel, (Luke 3: 2-4; Mark 1: 1-4), and baptize in water for the remission of sin, (John 1: 25-33; Luke 3:3; Mark 1:4), the matter was not arranged just right, and the Lord afterward changed it. And, although our Savior said: "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he can not see the kingdom of God," and the wondering man asked, "How can a man be born when he is old?" "Jesus answered," (yet many refuse to accept Jesus' answer as final), "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God."—John 3: 3-5. And though Jesus says: "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away," yet Mr. Johnson will have the words—born of water—fail, and have men enter the kingdom who never have been "born of water" in obedience to the command of Christ by Peter "Repent and be baptized every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins.' Acts 2:38. Who are those who Jesus referred to when he says, "We speak that we do know," (that men can not enter the kingdom without being born of water), "and testify that we have seen, and ye receive not our testimony." ? v. II.

We believe and teach that wherever the gospel of Christ is preached and men believe it and are baptized, they shall be saved; and that baptism now also saves us, (Mark 16: 16; 1 Pet. 3:21), when accepted along with the rest of the gospel plan. We teach and believe with the apostle Paul, that men can not believe themselves into Christ, or repent themselves into Christ; but that "as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. Again: "Know ye not that as many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." Gal. 3:27; Rom. 6:3,4.) The pouring out of the Holy Ghost, or the shedding forth thereof on the believer in Christ, can in no sense represent the sinner as being buried or planted in the likeness of Christ's death, or of being raised up in the likeness of Christ's resurrection; therefore Paul taught among other gospel principles baptism by water; and because we believe this ordinance is to be observed as universally as the gospel is intended to be preached, (Matt. 28:19), Mr. Johnson, either through ignorance or willful perverseness, falsely accuses the Latter Day Saints of teaching that "None can enter heaven without it. All who die without it are lost; and not only so, but a Mormon must baptize them or their baptism is worthless. Hence all the millions since the Apostolic age down to Jo. Smith were lost until baptized by this prophet or his apostles."

This statement is entirely false. There is not one word to be found either in the Bible, Book of Mormon, or the revelations of Joseph Smith, that we are aware of, from which the faintest shadow of such a conclusion as this can be drawn. We believe the gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, and that God calls and authorizes men to administer it, with its rites and ceremonies now, as well as in former ages; that, "The harvest is great and the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth more laborers into his harvest." (Matth. 9:37, 38). We believe that "no man takes this honor to himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron." (Heb. 5:4). And we further believe, that this honor is not received of men, but that as Jesus said if one come in his own name, him ye will receive. (John 5:41, 42, 43). If God has not changed in the last 1800 years, he calls men to his ministry by revelation. This is the manner in which he called men to his work in all all past dispensations, so the Bible says. But Mr. Johnson objects to any further revelation than what is found in the Bible. Well, Lyman H. Johnson's name is not found in the Bible as having been called of God to preach, and, therefore, if God has not revealed to Mr. Johnson recently, that he is called as a minister, he is not authorized of God to preach, and I am under no obligation to receive him as such. But if he insists that God has called him, and as God calls ministers only by revelation, (as Aaron), and since such revelation to Mr. Johnson, of Toledo, Ohio, is not in the Bible, it is of necessity a new, latter-day revelation! Which horn of this dilemma will he take? If he insists further that he is called, and therefore authorized, he is as bad as the Saints, at least, and stands self-condemned. If he claims to be called by the Bible, because he reads therein the history of God's calling men in former dispensations, I reply that the claims of every other minister from the same source is equally valid with his own. If it says to Mr. Johnson "Go preach," it says as much to every other minister. But since the history of the calling of men to the ministry is not a call to other men, and never was in Bible times Mr. Johnson must admit present day revelation, or that he is attempting to run without tidings from God. There is just as much good logic in concluding that we will be saved because we read in Bible history that some were saved anciently as to conclude that we are called to preach because others were called anciently.

So far as the great apostasy after the apostolic age, complained of, and the consequent cessation of spiritual gifts is concerned, just one quotation from Mr. Johnson's own words on this point will sound just awful when compared with what he charges us with teaching, and is one of the points he uses with which to condemn the Saints. It reads: "There is no religion that is more idolatrous or false to the God of the Bible and his holy religion than every division of Christendom by setting up a religious system of its own, the work of man's hands, in place of the common universal religion and faith of the Bible and its Christ." See Stone, number for February, 1885. Since it is a fact that all Christendom is divided, and if, as you say, there is no more idolatrous religion than the church organizations and forms that every division of Christendom have set up; and since the Bible says all idolators are to have their part in the lake, (Rev. 21:8), it is plain to be seen you have condemned all Christendom to the hot country except the few who forsake this universal idolatry, and follow you! No hope for us, according to this sweeping statement, unless we are all made to see, by some means or other, just as Mr. Johnson does. But all can not see the law of God on this subject as Mr. Johnson does, and in the language of Mr. Johnson himself, "To judge a man by a law he can not see is just as unjust as those who burned the martyrs for their conscience. It is taking the place of God, the very sin of anti-christ."—Stone for February last.

Latter Day Saints believe that the ministrations of his servants, of gospel ordinances of other ages was just as valid as of those of this age, hence do not believe, as falsely charged, that all are ruined who have not received baptism at the hands of "Joseph Smith and his apostles." Nor do we teach, or believe, that the gates of hell prevailed against the rock on which the church was built. Mr. Johnson says: "The Mormon Elder sometimes denied the statement that all not baptized by Mormons will be lost." To this I reply, I did not deny any such statement at the meetings of Mr. Johnson at Dimondale, for the reason that there was no such statement made. The subject of such statement was not under consideration at those meetings, as Mr. Johnson and a hundred others know. Here is a statement of the subject of the six hours' labor of Mr. Johnson at those services, given in his own words: "Christ and his apostles were under the Mosaic law and kept all its outward rites as did all believers twenty-seven years after Pentecost. Water baptism and the Passover, the only supper Jesus ate with his disciples, twenty-one times called that, and only once called the "Lord's Supper," were Jewish rites required by the Mosaic law which Jesus and his apostles being Jews, kept with all other rites. See Stone, February, 1885. new creed of his. This I extract from this

But as this is the first time the opportunity has been offered us to deny the statement referred to, because we never heard of nor saw it till published, I now say the statement is not true, that all not baptized by Mormons have been lost. It is no part of the faith of the Saints. It contradicts, positively, their faith in the matter. The Saints recognize the fact that Saints of God lived during the reign of the little horn power of Daniel 7: 20, 21, and were persecuted and prevailed against by him, and by him were taken in hand and won out, for at least a period of 1260 years. And, as the church or kingdom of God was composed of Saints, and as the kingdom of God was to suffer violence, and the violent were to take it by force, it is thence that we argue the disorganization of the church as originally formed and visibly constituted; and, that we contend that it should be restored, (Dan. 2: 33-44), reinstated in strict accordance with Bible precedent and the gospel law as revealed by Christ and his apostles 1800 years ago. But such a work as this would involve the giving of administrative authority, the giving again, to men, the ministry as well as the word of reconciliation, and would involve the idea—divine idea of giving "some Apostles, and some Prophets, and some Pastors, Evangelists, and Teachers, for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying, (or building up) of the body of Christ—the church."—Eph. 4: 11, 12, 13.

Such men, divinely endowed, would be one of God's means of keeping his children from being "tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive." Such restoration of the church of Christ would involve the idea that such classes of men would be laborers together with God, in erecting God's building; I Cor. 3:9, 10; and such a work as this would knock the wind of doctrine of Mr. Johnson (that the gospel of the New Testament gives Gentiles direct to God by Jesus only, and not through any man, as a laborer with God), clear out of time. It would spoil his new gospel of "no visibility whatever to the Church of Christ." Its organism would be as visible as its members; but the spirit actuating it could only be recognized by its resultant actions or offices. Mr. Johnson charges us with teaching that for fourteen hundred years the world was without a Church of Christ, and hence without salvation of necessity. Oh, monstrous lie!

We do teach that the Church of Christ, as originally organized by him, as shown in 1 Cor. 12th chapter, and Eph. 4: 8-13, has not been in existence on earth for the last fifteen hundred years till the present century; but that now in fulfillment of numerous Bible prophecies it is being reestablished among men.

Such church organization as that described by Paul as above referred to is what he denominates an earthly organism; and he not only denies such as having existence in the past, but also the present. And if this is a monstrous lie, he is equally guilty with the Saints and the balance of the protestent world; and yet he proposes to perpetuate this monstrous lie by his continued opposition to the reinstatement of such church organization!

Mr Johnson falsely charges again, "lastly, Jo Smith and his Bible, which is the foundation of this sect of Latter Day Saints;" and he then proceeds to occupy most of his time battling this false assumption.

Latter Day Saints look upon Joseph Smith as having been a servant of Jesus Christ,—a minister of the gospel, who like Paul of old, had a vision of Christ; (Acts 22: 7-16; 26: 12-19); that he was not disobedient to the heavenly vision; that a dispensation of the gospel was committed to him, as to Paul, (Gal. 1: 6-11), and was foretold by Mal. 3: 1-6; Math. 17: 11, 12; 24: 14; Eph. 1: 8, 9; Acts 3: 19-21; Matt. 20: 6, 7; Rev. 14: 6; 18: 4. They believe that he received authority through the medium of the angel in revelations referred to, and others, and that God used him as an instrument in laying the foundation of this great latter-day work in the same sense that Paul was used among the Gentiles anciently. (Acts. 26: 16, 17, 18; Rom. 11: 13; 1 Cor. 3: 9, 10, 11). That as Paul was, by virtue of this authority enabled as a wise master builder to lay the foundation of God's work among the Gentiles, so now, among divided, distracted christendom, Joseph has been authorized to lay the foundation of a great work—the incipient stage of the restitution of all things, the ushering in of the dispensation of the fullness of times.

The Book of Mormon ("Jo's Bible)," contains the history, in part, of the multitude of nations that sprang from the tribe of Joseph of Egypt, as prophecied of by Jacob. (Gen. 48th chapter). The entire twelve tribes of Israel, have never become as yet but two nations on the eastern continent. (Eze. 37: 22, 23). It also records the fact of the establishment of the Church of Christ on this continent, after his resurrection, among the "other sheep" not of the fold at Jerusalem, which Christ recognized as belonging to him when he uttered the language recorded in John 10: 16. He was sent only "to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, so far as his personal ministry was concerned. (Matt. 15: 24). The Book of Mormon contains a record of the principles of the gospel of Christ as taught anciently on this land, such as the Messiahship of Christ, his atonement, essentiality of faith in him as the Savior, a godly sorrow for sin, a turning therefrom, baptism as a divinely instituted ordinance in the house of God, also laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Now, this teaching is identical with those "principles of the doctrine of Christ" taught by the "wise master builder" of other days in an other land, (1 Cor. 3: 9, 10, 11; Heb. 6: 1, 2; 1 Tim. 4: 14-16; 2 John 8: 9; 1 Tim. 6: 3-6). The Book of Mormon has come forth in these last days by the power of God, a joint witness with the Bible of the divinity of the gospel of Christ. Ezek. 37: 15–18). It is the "sealed book" spoken of by Isaiah the prophet, (Isa. 29: 9–12), read by the unlearned man, to aid those who "err in spirit" because of so many contrary, and antagonistic teachings, in coming to understanding; and that they who have "murmured might learn doctrine." Verse 24. The Book of Mormon contains "the truth" that David predicted should "spring out of the earth" in the latter days when "righteousness would look down from heaven," and the Lord should "give that which is good," and Palestine would yield its increase, and glory begin again to dwell in David's land. (Ps. 85; Isa. 29: 17; Joel 2: 21-23; Ezek. 36: 1-8. The book was published to the world in 1830. In 1846 to 1852 the former and latter rains began to be restored to Canaan again, after a drought of eighteen hundred summers. Already kings and queens are becoming the nursing fathers and mothers of the ancient covenant people, the Israelites, and they are already returning to their father-land; for the Lord has "set" and "lifted up his hand," "set up his standard," and "lifted up the ensign;" or, in modern words, he has revealed himself again for the accomplishment of the great latter day events. He has "set his hand again the second time" to gather the remnant of Israel. (Isa. 11:11, 12; 18: 3; 49: 22, 23. Ezek. 36: 8, 9; Jer. 30: 6).

The Lord "set his hand" the first time

The Lord "set his hand" the first time to gather Israel at the first advent of Christ; but they then refused to be gathered into the bond of the covenant. (John 1: 12; Matt. 23: 37-39; Rom. 9: 31, 32, 33; 11: 25). But when God "sets his hand the second time to recover the remnant of his people," at the fulness of the times of the Gentiles;—(Isa. 11: 11, 12; Ezek. 20: 33-37; 36: 7, 8; Jer. 31: 31-34; Matt. 23: 39; Rom. 9: 27, 28; 11: 25-27). All these citations show conclusively that the work predicted will be accomplished. "He will assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather the dispersed of Judah." "And so all Israel shall be saved."—Rom. 11: 26.

But does the setting of the hand of the Lord, away down here at "the fulness of the Gentile" times, to gather Israel, mean that he will reveal himself again to men? That is just what it meant when he lifted up his hand to bring Israel out of Egypt. (Ezek. 20: 5, 6.) That is just what it meant when Israel's Father set his hand to gather them eighteen hundred years ago!

The gospel was revealed to them at both these periods; but it did not profit them. They would not believe. (Heb. 4:2; Rom. 11: 20; Acts 13: 27, 47). It means that God will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth.—Jer. 33:6-8. "And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face, like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt. So will I plead with you, saith the Lord."—Ezek. 20: 35, 36. So we see plainly, that many events predicted by the prophets of old, some of which are now in process of fulfillment, can only be accomplished under the direct revealings and supervision of God, and the Bible be

But says Mr. Johnson, "The Bible contains every thing needful for our salvation, that the man of God may be perfect." Where is any such sentiment as that "the Bible contains every thing needful" written, save in the creed of mystery Babylon, of which Mr. Johnson complains so bitterly? But under the disguise of his false statement he cites a phrase of Paul's, written to Timothy, which if he will turn to and notice again, he will discover that Paul's statement there refers to the Old Testament only! For it is that with which Timothy had been acquainted from a child. Mr. Johnson can not show that Timothy had been acquainted with the New Testament at all from childhood. He can not show that Timothy had in his possession at that time any of the New Testament, save Paul's first epistle to him. If the Scriptures referred to in 2 Tim. 3: 15, contains "every thing needful for salvation," as Mr. Johnson asserts, the New Testament is not necessary at all. our Savior and his apostles did not know this!

It does not follow as a logical consequence that the Bible is a defective and spurious revelation," because it does not contain all the revelations God ever has, or will give. It makes no such claim for itself. It makes provision for latter-day revelations, as we have herein seen. Will Mr. Johnson tell us, according to his claim for the Bible, why the "many" writings referred to by Luke 1:1, are not in it? Of those we only have two-Matthew and Mark. John's gospel was not written when Luke penned the statement quoted. Why is Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians not in the Bible? See the so called first epistle to the Corinthians, 5:9. Where is the first epistle of Paul to the Ephesians? (Eph. 3:3). This epistle contained Paul's knowledge of the mystery of Christ, a subject of infinite importance, evidently. Can he tell us why Paul's letter to the Colossians, written "from Laodicea," (Col. 4:16), is not in the canon? Paul claims to be the inspired author of all three of these letters referred to. They were not spurious, nor is the Bible spurious because they are not found bound up in it as a part thereof.

Mr. Johnson, in a very reckless manner, gives utterance to a number of lengthy and bitter assertions in which he tries to make it appear that Joseph Smith's claim to a divine calling as a Christian minister and the translator of the Book of Mormon, is introducing new and added conditions in order to salvation; and he accuses us of being anti-Christian. He seems to be unable to see that Joseph's work, like that of Paul, or any other called minister, is to present to the people the conditions upon which Christ proposes to save mankind. God uses men, his law, and the agency of the Holy Ghost, in converting and saving man as the following conclusively show: "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free Spirit. Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee."—Psa.

"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul."-Psalm 19:7.

"How shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent?"—Rom. 10: 14.

Agencies are necessary to present to the people the conditions of salvation. A crew is necessary to man the life-boat. And Paul says Christ gave "apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers, for the work of the ministry;" (Eph. 4:8-13); and the Lord works with and through the ministry. (Mark 16:20). How long were such ministers necessary, Paul? "Till we all come into the unity of the faith." If God employed like agencies on the Western Continent anciently, as on the eastern, to administer to the people the conditions of gospel salvation, and the conditions were the same, as recorded in the Book of Mormon, and which that book claims, as Mr. Johnson knows if he has read it, it is hard to see how, or in what sense, the claims of the Latter Day Saints in this matter are antagonistic, or in the least contradictory to the claims of the Bible. The Book of Mormon tells how the people on this continent anciently were "led to Christ," and it is identical with the way pointed out in the Bible. The Book of Mormon came before the world in the year 1830, boldly committing itself in such a manner as that it could be scientifically detected and proven false if it had been a false record. But, strange as it is, not a scientific man has yet attacked the book from that standpoint, that we are aware of. It historically locates the great centres of ancient American commerce, also commits itself to the fact of its high state of civilization, locates their centers, testifies to the development of the arts and sciences, tells of the building of the great cities and temples, and speaks of their manner of worship, and bears witness to the fact of the gospel of Christ as it was taught on this land anciently. Scientifical developments, all the points here mentioned, as they have been brought to light by the scientist and the antiquarian, have backed up the pre-committed testimony of the Book of Mormon in such a way as to render it impregnable in its claims. The book contradicts, in many points, the various speculations in regard to Ancient America, prior to 1830. Scientific developments on this subject made since 1830, have corrected those former notions, and corroborate the statements of the Book of Mormon in its historical data. We are informed that Mr. Bancroft, a great American Historian and Scientist, in his elaborate work, The Native Races of the Pacifice States, cites several statements in the Book of Mormon, as agreeing with scientific discoveries made by him. We apprehend the Book of Mormon will serve a glorious purpose after all said and done against it, in these days of science, scepticism, and stubborn unbelief.

Mr. Johnson goes for the whole Christian world, denouncing them as "damnable sects," reminding one of a blind and mad man in a crowd, striking at random with a club, regardless of the consequences, making war on water baptism and the faith of believers in Christ generally, and finally condemns himself again in denouncing us for trying to follow the pattern of the outward New Testament church, thereby admitting all we claim for the visibility of the Church of Christ. If we are not to follow the visible pattern of Christianity, and copy in our work after him who said follow me, how can we tell whether we are of one Spirit with him? If we are not to follow the example described in the Scriptures given, then what must we follow? Whence and what is this new criterion? Who is this new Christ-or, rather, anti-Christ!

Away with him! Give us the Christ of Nazereth. "He that is of God heareth God's words."—Jno. 8:47. I know that his commandments are life everlasting.—

Jesus, Jno. 12: 49.

The Mormon at Dimondale denied that the Apostles or Jewish believers kept the law of Moses after Christ's assention, continues Mr. Johnson. We did no such thing. We showed that the Apostles understood that the law of Moses was to terminate or be fulfilled in Christ, and that, after that faith is come, they were no longer under the law; and that this question formed the basis of the controversy between a portion of the church and the Apostles and Elders; and that the Apostles and Elders tried to get the Jewish believers to cease keeping the law of Moses, and we cited Gal. 3: 25, 26; Rom. 10: 4, 5; Acts. 15: 9, 10, to show that they so understood and taught.

We also showed that Paul observed some of the rights of the law at times in order to place those he desired to reach with the gospel, that, if by any means he might save some. I Cor. 9: 20-22.

But the trouble with Mr. Johnson was, he could not show that the baptism commanded to be kept by all nations, (Matt. 28: 20; John 3: 5; Acts. 2: 38), was a Jewish right, nor could he show it to be the baptism of the Spirit, for the baptism of the Spirit is a promise, not a command; and besides, the Apostle never were commanded to baptize their fellow men with the Holy Ghost. This is what so enraged the editor of The Stumbling Stone.

Now, in conclusion, allow me to advise Mr. Johnson before he undertakes to do the work laid out by him in the P. G. to reply to us relative to the Book of Mormon, to arm himself with a little information on this important topic, and the manuscript now in the hands of President Fairchild, of Oberlin College, Ohio, who has lately been on a visit to Honolulu, and while there had the privilege of seeing the veritable old original "Manuscript Found;" the very one written by Mr. Solomon Spaulding himself; the identical one from which so many have supposed the Book of Mormon was conjured up, and the very one taken by Hurlbut to Howe. Yes, sir; wonderful as it may appear to you, this manuscript was in the hands of Editor L. L. Rice of Hanolulu, and Messrs. Fairchild and Rice say the story of the origin of the Book of Mormon as coming from that source "will not hold water." But then, you are opposed to "water" stories any way, even if the Savior tells them.

C. Scott.

DIMONDALE, Mich., Jun. 4th, 1885.

DEBTS DUE THE LORD.

In a late number of the Herald I find the following question and answer: "Is it right to pay tithing, or to send money to the church, if the sender is in debt?" "Yes; unless by sending such moneys the persons are prevented from keeping their engagements. Persons may owe debts and still be in a condition to aid the church. All members should deal conscientiously in the matter, and their duty will be plain to them."

While fully coinciding with the view expressed in the answer, I have thought that since there is diversity of opinion on this subject, a little discussion may be useful in aiding those disposed to "deal conscientiously in the matter" to arrive at a correct conclusion. It is important how we shall consider this "sending money to the church;" whether as an obligation assumed when we became members of the church, or as something to be done or omitted at pleasure; whether as "essential" or "non-essential." It seems to me that if we carefully consult the books—the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrines and Covenants—we can not avoid the conclusions that the temporal law of the church is just as binding as the spiritual law; and while, as has been well said, the temporal law is a law of sacrifice—has been a law of scrifice—of self-denial through all the ages of the past, and will be for all time to come, compliance with this law, in connection with the performance of other duties, not only brings its own reward in the consciousness of duty performed, but has the promise of temporal as well as spiritual blessings.

In this connection it may be well to ask ourselves why we became members of this church. It may be answered, because of a sense of duty towards God, and gratitude for the many blessings received at his hands. True; but was it not also that we might become recipients of the blessings, both temporal and spiritual, both in this world and in the world to come, which are promised to those who obey his Was it not, in part at least, that we, as individuals, might be benefitted? Are we not promised, as an inducement to | ed by its penalty.

the faithful performance of all our duties as followers of Christ, "an exceeding great reward?" and had not this a controlling influence in inducing us to join this church? And if we would secure for ourselves the promised blessings, must we not do our part? Are we not told that we must "work out our own salvation?" And is it not a part of each one's work to aid in the promulgation of the gospel? And is it not true that while, to this end, some may devote their whole lives to his service, others a portion of their time, the most of us can but watch and wait, trying faithfully to perform the more humble duties imposed upon us, and aiding as we may be able, to sustain those whom God has called to the work of the ministry?

To the ministry of the church the command is specially given, "go ye forth into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature;" and upon the church rests the responsibility of making such provision that the ministry may go forth unfettered by temporal cares, and without subjecting themselves to censure justly incurred by those who do "not provide for their own households;" and this can only be done by each of us giving—"sending money to the church"—as we may be

Some may be so poor as to be unable to provide even for their own households. Of such, of course, nothing is required. Of others, to whom little of this world's goods has been given, little will be required; while of those to whom much has been given, much will most assuredly be required; and this, if our position be correct, independent of the fact that we may or may not be indebted to others. only effect that this should have, as it seems to me, should be as to the amount which we should "send to the church."

It we are owing six debts, we do not feel justified in repudiating one because the other five are unpaid, or to postpone its payment until the other five have been fully paid, but rather would think it equitable to pay to each a portion of our indebtedness from time to time, until all was liquidated. If we are members of any association from which we have received or expect to receive benefit, we do not neglect to pay our dues because there are othpecuniary obligations resting upon us.

Civil governments are instituted for the good of the people. To carry on the machinery of this government and secure to the people the benefits intended, money is necessary, to obtain which taxes are levied. No intelligent person will claim that we should be exempted from the payment of our taxes because we may be indebted in other directions.

And so it seems to me that this temporal support of the church, this "sending money to the church," in such amounts as we may be able, is an obligation assumed upon our entrance into the church, differing from other obligations or debts only in this, that payment will not be enforced in this world, though it may be that wilful neglect of this duty may, as surely as the non-performance of any other, be follow-

But in this, as in all else, our service, to be acceptable in the sight of God must be free and voluntary. The questions of obligation and (that settled) of amount, must be decided by each for himself. That we may all consider this important subject carefully, conscientiously, prayerfully, is my earnest wish.

W. R. SELLON.

MISSIONARIES.

AT A recent missionary meeting in Chester, Pennsylvania, a superintendent of a Sabbath School surprised the congregation by saying that "Boston, the hub of America's éducation and civilization, sent out assorted cargoes to all parts of the globe. One of the ships bound to the Fejee Islands not long ago, had the missionaries in the cabins, the Bibles on deck, and the hold of the vessel filled with New England rum. Christian England freights her cargoes with missionaries, Bibles, tracts, and idols to India and China, at the same time. I do not understand, says he, this Christian way of doing things. But let us do our part well, and leave the rest with God, "Our Father who art in heaven."

It is stated on good authority that during the great civil war 3,000,000 copies of the Scriptures were circulated, 1,370,000 hymn books were given away, 8,300,000 flexible covered books belonging to the different denominations were distributed, besides 39,000,000 religious newspapers and periodicals, and millions of sheets of writing material; together with $2,500,-000 worth of comforts necessary for the sick and wounded. Sanctified wealth will always prove a blessing, both in the church and in the missionary cause; but unsanctified wealth, although it is poured in the church by the hundreds and by the thousands, never fails to corrupt and curse it. If the people of means will come of themselves and consecrate the part that belongs to God without reserve, it is almost incalculable to tell the instrumental good that can and will result to the cause of religion.

Look at the needless and sinful expenditures and the unnecessary thousands of dollars expended in building ornamental churches, with vanity-spires towering towards heaven to make a show and to gratify pampered pride. Look at the ornamental pulpits, pews, and cushioned seats, and fancy organs costing thousands of dollars, with salaried players and choirs as proud as Lucifer, and men and women proud and graceless as fallen angels, who would not speak to a Mormon should they fall on him, while thousands upon thousands are perishing for the bread of life as it is in Christ Jesus our Lord, and filling the infernal pit. Are not our responsibilities tremendously fearful? Oh for wealth to support the missionaries! to carry the gospel message in every city, town, and village in the United States?

Since the year 1830, there has been a vast increase of crime, a multiplying of gaols and prisons, and a great increase of misery and wrong doing all over the civilized world. Every spurious coin manufactured only makes the genuine coin more valued. Why? Because the counterfeit coin won't pass. There can only be one true religion, one pure gospel, one faith, one Lord, and one baptism. Every deviation from the truth must be a falsehood. The Salvation Army, concerning their zeal and perseverance, stands as a rebuke to the Christians belonging to the denominational churches. But the word of God stands as a greater rebuke to the Salvation Army. Why? Because they set the laws of the land at defiance, and preach without an authority from heaven. So you see, kind reader, you have the whole in a nutshell.

You perhaps say, "Their converts are plentiful, and their congregations large and prosperous." But how many of their converts are like the French physician, who came to this country a great many years ago in a Philadelphia ship, who upon his arrival found the Quakers were the richest part of the community, and so put on a buttonless coat, and a hat with a broad brim, became a Friend, and a preacher. For awhile nobody was so popular as John Marslock. However, after two or three years' harvest, and John having laid up plently of dollars, he determined to return home. Friends were in despair. At last the day arrived, and with several squeezes of the hand, and provisions to last him the voyage, he sailed down the Delaware, with several brother "Broadbrims." The latter returned by the pilot boat and before they were half a mile from the ship, John went down into the cabin, stripped himself of the Quaker garb, dressed himself in the habit of France, came on deck with a fiddle and played the Marseillaisse hymn.

The evil days of Christianity are those when it pays to be one. The best are those when it don't pay to be one; because the former way teaches men and women to be selfish towards their fellow creatures, and the later way is the one taught by our blessed Master; "take neither purse nor scrip." If the spreading of the Bible, and the distribution of religious literature throughout the whole world is going to convert it, what is the use of paying the 60,000 ministers with large salaries? believe that the religion of Jesus Christ, as taught in the New Testament Scriptures, will, if its precepts be accepted and obeyed, make men and women better in the domestic circle, better citizens in town, and country. We believe that God should be worshipped "in Spirit and in truth," and that such worship does not require a violation of the laws of the land.

The Bible, Book of Mormon, and Book of Doctrine and Covenants are true; for it would have been as easy for a mole to have written the life of Sir Isaac Newton, as for an uninspired man to have written any part of them. We ought to thank God more for his mercy and loving kindness; for his grace and benificence towards men. God has cherished us like children. But, oh! the ingratitude of a depraved, sinful heart! Oh, ye wanderers from God in the broad road of folly! Why will ye delay? Many of you have been raised by pious mothers (God bless them) who have taught you wisdom's ways and all its requirements, and you have become worse than infidels and atheists. Turn before it is too late. Death is claiming its victims by hundreds and by thousands, and the majority of them unprepared. If the people will not repent, what excuse can they have before that great tribunal before whom all people, of every nation, kindred and tongue, must stand and give an account of the deeds done in the body?

"We shape ourselves with joy or fear,
Of which the coming life is made;
And fill our future atmosphere
With sunshine or with shade.
The tissues of the life to be,
We weave with colors all our own;
And in the field of destiny,
We shall reap as we have sown."

DEATH OF JOSIAH ELLS.

WILLIAM STREET.

How ARE the mighty fallen? (not fallen in the estimation of the church) and regardless as we are of common death, shall not the fallen of the mighty affect us? A short time since, and he who is the occasion of our sorrow was an ornament of our beloved church. He stood on an eminence, and glory surrounded him. From that eminence he has fallen asleep; his intercourse with the living world is now ended; and those who would hereafter find him, must seek him in glory with Joseph and Hyrum and the glorified Saints—the good and the true of all ages. But what do idle words avail unless our hearts could speak? Now we are called to mourn the loss of one of God's chosen servants who has left this earthly tabernacle for a time. Cold and lifeless is the heart that just now was full of friendship; sightless is the eye once radiant and beaming with intelligence; closed now are those lips on whose persuasive accents we have so often and so lately hung with transport!

From the darkness which rests upon his tomb proceeds a light in which is clearly seen that those gaudy objects which men pursue are but phantoms. In this light how dim the splendor of worldly victory! How base the majesty of earthly grandeur! Again we see that much below the sun is vanity. True, the funeral eulogy has been pronounced; the sad and solemn procession has moved; and presently the sculptured marble lift its front, proud to perpetuate the name of our beloved brother, Ells. The badge of mourning has already been seen on the organ of the church; and at the name of brother Ells, how many hearts will thrill in remembrance of the happy, joyous words of encouragement which have been spoken by him. joyous words, oh, how they have lingered in our memory; how will the older Saints love to rehearse his virtues.

My brethren, we stand upon the borders of an awful gulf, which is swallowing up all things human. Is there amidst this universal wreck nothing stable; nothing abiding; nothing immortal, on which poor, frail, dying man can fasten? Ask the hero; ask the statesman whose wisdom you have been accustomed to revere, and he will tell you—tell you, did I say? he has already told you from his death-bed:

"Avoid my errors; cultivate the virtues I have remembered; choose the Savior; live disinterestedly—live for immortality. dly—live Your brother, C. St. Clair.

Conserence Minutes.

EASTERN MAINE.

This district conference convened at Indian River, Maine, November 7th, 1885. Elder W. H. Kelley, president; J. S. Walker, secretary. Olive Branch, Jonesport reported 45 members and 2 baptized. Elder Wm. H. Kelley made an encouraging and appropriate address. Elders, J. Benner, S. O. Foss, F. M. Sheehy, Joseph Lakeman. Priests: J. S. Walker; Teacher: B. O. Foss; Deacon: Ezra Ackley, reported. Bishop's Agent, J. S. Walker, reported: received since appointment, July 30, $97.50; paid out $61.-24; balance $36.26. Audited and found correct. F. M. Sheehey was sustained as missionary, J. S. Walker as Secretary and Bishop's Agent. Jos. Lakeman was released as president of district, with a vote of thanks for services, and S. O. Foss appointed. W. H. Kelley, F. M. Sheehy, S. O. Foss, Caroline Hall and J. Benner, were appointed delegates to next General Conference. Preaching in the evening by Elder F. M. Sheehy; on Sunday morning, afternoon and evening, by Elder Wm. H. Kelley. Saints enjoyed a season of testimony after preaching services in the afternoon. The preaching services were most excellent and instructive. Adjournment to call of president of the district.

MASSACHUSETTS.

This district conference was held at Providence, R. I., in Unity Temple of Honor Hall, September 26th, 1885. W. H. Kelley chosen to preside; John Smith assistant president; T. Whiting and F. A. Potter clerks. The presiding officer made some remarks in regard to rights of the members of the Quorum of Twelve to preside, as also other presiding officers. The privileges of the conference were extended to all visiting brethren. The president of the district made his report, stating his labors in the branches of the district. Elders F. M. Sheehy, J. Woodward, A. Nickerson, C. Scott, C. A. Coombs, G. S. Yerrington, J. Potts, J. Holt, H. H. Thompson, C. E. Brown, M. H. Bond, J. Gilbert, H. H. Robinson, E. N. Webster, N. C. Eldridge, T. Whiting, F. A. Potter, W. H. Kelley, W. Bradbury, E.O. Toombs; Priests J. Pearce, J. Halstead, A. O. Tripp, T. Andrews, A. J. Perry, G. Lovell, J. Steffe, U. W. Green, T. H. Moore, A. W. Glover; Teachers W. Moore, W. Talbot, H. Arnold, G. Robly, J. F. McKenna; Deacons A. Pierce, G. Ames, reported. J. A. Hoxie, R. Farnsworth, I. B. Ames, W. Bearse, and N. R. Nickerson, reported by letter. The financial reports of the Bishop's Agent, and the report of the district treasurer were read and referred to the committee on finance. The committee on printing made their report, which was accepted, and they were continued, and the sum of five dollars placed at their disposal. H. H. Thompson and G.S. Yerrington reported their labors in their respective missions. M. H. Bond was released from holding the immediate oversight of the Georgiaville mission. Sunday morning prayer and testimony meeting; the good Spirit was made manifest. Preaching in the afternoon by Elder C. Scott, and in the evening by Elder W. H. Kelley. The preaching was excellent; the audiences were large. The interest was all that could be desired. At one o'clock seven persons were baptized by Elder F. A. Potter. A very large assembly of people was present, and there was speaking by several of the brethren before the baptism was performed. Branches reported: Fall River, New Bedford, Plainville, North Plymouth, Dennisport, Boston, Brockton, Providence, Little Compton. The appeal from the Providence Branch was returned to the appellant. The appeal from the Elder's Court in the case of Bro. G. Moore was received and referred to a special committee, consisting of W. H. Kelley, G. S. Yerrington and C. Scott. The president and clerk of the district were appointed a committee to revise the rules of the order of business. John Smith was sustained as district president and T. Whiting as clerk. Thus passed a very good conference, which will long be remembered. Next conference to be held at Dennisport, Mass.; the time of meeting to be left with the District president.

SOUTHERN INDIANA.

Conference of this district met at Union Chapel, Jefferson county, Indiana, November 21st, 1885. S. Rector in the chair; L. Scott, secretary. Morning devoted to prayer and testimony, in which a majority of Saints took active part, and a goodly degree of the gentle Spirit was manifested in blessed though peaceful operations. Let the occasion be kindly and long cherished. Branch reports.—Eden, no change. Olive 21; baptized 1. Canaan 24. Union 36. Pleasant Ridge and New Trenton, not reported. Elders M. R. Scott, D. Scott, S. Rector, V. D. Baggerly (baptized 1); Priests T. E. Thompson, W. Burton, L. Scott; Teacher D. O. Stites; and Deacon J. Fewel, reported. The chair to appoint Court of Elders to adjust difficulties in the Olive and Union branches, which subsequently reported. Committee to adjust difficulties in the Canaan Branch reported. Bishop's Agent reported on hand last report $9.75, received $11.80; expenditure $5.70; on hand $15.85. Audited and found correct. Bro. Porter to be ordained a Teacher. D. Scott's license renewed. Licences granted: V. D. Baggerly, Elder; D. O. Stites, Teacher; J. Fewel, Deacon; J. Porter, Teacher. Adjourned to Eden, Indiana, pursuant to appointment by the District President.

NORTH-EAST MISSOURI.

The conference of the above district met in Renick; Mo., Saturday, November 7th, 1885. R. Thrutchley, president pro. tem.; Wm. Vincent, secretary pro tem. Branch reports.—Renick 23; 2 baptized, 1 received, 3 removed. Salt River 25. Elders R. Thrutchley, W. Vincent, E. Griffiths, C. Perry, and - Vaughn; Priests R. R. Jones, W. H. Bybee, reported. Bishop's Agent, Robt. Thrutchley, reported due him last report $9.40, received since $39.90, paid out $36.80; on hand $3.80. Audited correct. W. H. Bybee was appointed president of the district for three months. Bro. Thrutchley addressed the Saints on Sunday forenoon Sacrament and testimony meeting in the house of Bro. R. R. Jones was held in the afternoon. W. H. Bybee and R. R. Jones were ordained Elders. A good meeting was enjoyed under the power and influence of the Holy Spirit. On Saturday evening Bro. Bybee preached a soul-stirring sermon. Adjourned to first Saturday in February, 1886; the President of District to appoint place.

WESTERN MAINE.

The above district conference convened at the Green's Landing Branch, Hancock county, Maine, November 14th, 15th and 16th, 1885. W. H. Kelley, president; W. G. Pert, associate; E. H. Pert, secretary. Branch Reports.-Green's Landing 29 members; other branches not reported. Elders W. G. Pert, G. W. Eaton, S. S. Eaton; Priests J. B. Knowlton, L. C. Gray, reported. Bishop's Agent's report referred back for correction. W. G. Pert sustained as district president; E. H. Pert as clerk. W. G. Pert sustained as Bishop's Agent. The time and place of next conference to be left to the district president. Preaching by Wm. H. Kelley on Sunday morning and afternoon, and by F. M. Sheehy in the evening. Monday forenoon preaching by W. H. Kelley.

Miscellaneons.

DECATUR DISTRICT.

A conference of the above district will be held at Lamoni, on the 19th and 20th of December, beginning at ten o'clock on Saturday. It is hoped that each branch will send a statistical report,—Lamoni, Davis City, Pleasanton, Greenville, Lucas, Lone Rock and Allenville,—either by mail, or still better, by the hand of branch officials. We hope that all the brethren and sisters who can attend will do so, and that we may have an enjoyable time.

H. A. STEBBINS, Dist. Pres.

BORN.

FERRELL.—In Butte City, Montana, November 24th, 1885, to the wife of Mr. Charles Ferrell, a son. Sister Ferrell is the eldest daughter of Bro. and Sister E. M. Bowen. This is their first experience as grand parents. Mother and child doing well—grandpa is in a fair way to recover.

MARRIED.

CHAPMAN—SPANSWICK.—At the residence of Bro. John Chapman, Valley View, Iowa, on November 22d, 1885, by Elder Phineas Cadwell, Bro. Benjamin Chapman to Miss Thirza Spanswick, late of England.

DIED.

CONYERS .- G. W. Conyers, senior, died August 7th, 1885, at his home near Little Sioux, Harrison county, Iowa, aged 78 years. He was born in Murray county, Tennessee, in 1807. Was married to Sarah Bradford in 1830, by whose side he has pleasantly walked, through the sunshine and shades for fifty-five years. Sadly she misses him now, but mourns not as one without hope. Twelve children have gladdened their hearts and brightened their home; six of whom are now living, and rank among our best citizens. During the Blackhawk war, Mr. Conyers marched in the ranks of the Illinois volunteers. He served his time, received an honorable discharge, and a one hundred and sixty acre land warrant; meriting also our gratitude and esteem as the lawful claim of a gallant soldier. Mr. Conyers moved from Illinois to Tennessee in 1832. In 1835 he came to Iowa, where he remained until 1852. He then moved to Texas, but returned in about three years, to make Harrison county his permanent home; and for the thirty years that he has lived in this county, we have known him as a kind husband, a fond father, a good neighbor, and a faithful friend. He was a quiet, honest, peaceable man, without one enemy; but had very many warm friends, a goodly number of whom sadly followed him, last Saturday morning, to his silent home on the hillside. Mr. Conyers had been a member of the Church of Latter Day Saints for forty-four years,—a firm believer in the gospel of the Son of God. He lived as becometh a consistent Christian; he died peaceful and happy, full of the hope of a glorious resurrection.

Little Sioux Independent. CONVERS.—George W. Convers, junior, born September 25th, 1840, in Jefferson county, Iowa; baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ in the early days of the Reorganized Church, in Little Sioux, Harrison county, Iowa; and was united in marriage with Miss Jane Gordan, to whom eight children were born. Two years ago he went west for his health, but receiving no permanent benefit, he returned to his home on the Soldier, Harrison county, Iowa, where he died May 11th, 1885, in full faith of the gospel. His bereaved family and many friends deeply mourn his loss. He received sweet assurance through the voice of the Holy Spirit of a glorious reward, and a part in the resurrection of the just. The funeral sermon was preached at his home by Elder C. Derry, assisted by Elder George Montague.

Rest, Brother George, in that home of bliss, Which Christ in his love prepared For all who obey his commands in this, And the toil of the gospel hatn shared.

Thy generous heart and open hand,
And thy cheering smile, we miss;
Yet we would not call from that better land,
Thee back again to this.

We would labor and wait till we come to thee,
Where sin no longer can mar
The peace serene, we hope to see
With Christ as our guiding star. c. p.

Hodson.— November 11th, 1885, at Bolton, Lancashire, England, of bronchitis and ability, aged 63 years, sister Charlotte, the beloved wife of Bro. Robert Hodson. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord."

SPARGO.—October 31st, 1885, at Wigan, Lancashire, England, of bronchitis and debility, aged 16 months, Simon, infant son of Elder William Spargo, of the Wigan Branch. Funeral services at the Wigan Cemetery by Elder Jos. Dewsnup.

MILLWRIGHT.

WILL Build, Overhaul, and Repair all kinds of work in Millwrighting; can make changes from BURRS to the ROLLER PROCESS in the latest improved style. Diagrams and Plans furnished free if I am employed to do the work; if not, I will furnish them reasonably. Work done by the day to suit times.

Yours in bonds,

L. L. WIGHT, Ridgeway. Harrison Co., Mo.

It is impossible to govern the world without God. He must be worse than an infidel that lacks faith, and more than wicked that has not gratitude enough to acknowledge his obligation.

—George Washington.

If the God of love is most appropriately worshipped in the temple of religion, the God of nature may be equally honored in the temple of science. Even from its lofty minarets the philosopher may summon the faithful to prayer, and the priest and sage exchange altars without the compromise of faith or knowledge.—Sir Davd Brewster.

NEW BOOKS!

We have just added a full line of John B. Alden's books to our stock of Drugs and Notions.

We also carry full line of CHURCH PUBLICATIONS. Catalogues sent on application.

Books sent by Mail, prepaid, at regular piice.

HANSEN & WALKER,

Druggists and Booksellers, Lamoni, Iowa.

NOTICE.

In the matter of the Incorporation of Lamoni, in Decatur county. Iowa.

Notice is hereby given to all parties concerned, that an election was held by the commissioners duly appointed for that purpose, within the surveyed limits of Lamoni, in Decatur county, and State of Iowa (plat whereof is now on file in this office) at which the question of the incorporation or non-incorporation of said territory was submitted to the legal voters therein; and it appearing, from the returns of said election now on file in this office, that due notice of the same was given, as by the statute required, and that at said election a majority of the votes cast were in favor of incorporation. It is, therefore, by reason of the result of said election, declared that said territory be hereafter known as the Incorporated town of Lamoni.

In witness whereof I hereunto affix my official signi ture, this 18th day of November, A. D., 1885,

E. J. SANKEY, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Decatur County, Iowa.

FOR RENT. FARM

Eighty acres, 11/2 miles from Lamoni; 53 acres of plow land, the balance in meadow and pasture. Good new house of six large rooms and four closets; also a small house. Stable for two teams, large Crib, two Wells. To be rented for one or more years, cheap for cash, to a good, responsible party. Possession given 1st of March.

MRS. W. H. CURWEN, Box, 94, Lamoni, Iowa.

FARM FOR SALE.

I have Sixty Acres of Land for sale: 37 acres in Grass, 17 acres in new Timber Land, about 3 acres of Standing Timber, and two acres of Orchard; a good Spring Well on the place, a House, Barn, and Granary.

Price: Six Hundred Dollars, Cash Down. The land is situated north of Jeffersonville, Wayne Co., Illinois. Apply to

MRS. F. P. MOLLOY, Cleveland, Iowa.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L. F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville, Mo., and have always found it fair, square and honest in all its transactions:

T. T. Hinderke,
G. W. Wilcox,
S. L. Blake,
W. N. Boothe,
The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men whose recommendation are worth something.

Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands.

COME AND SEE OUR W PAPER. ALL

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS. Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Hansen & Walker's Drug Store.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE
For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also,
a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth

CONCORDANCE TO BOOK OF COVENANTS. An enlarged new edition; paper covers, 32 pages....

J. H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty.

Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

EASY - RUNNING - SEWING - MACHINE.

_IT HAS

The Most Room under the Arm. The Best Self-Setting Needle.
The Largest Bobbin.

The Easiest Shuttle to Thread. The Most Reliable Feed.
The Most Perfect Take-Up.

The Best Bobbin Winder.

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME.

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

Agents Wanted by Robert Johns (Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in

INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL, AND PASTELL.

Also, manufacturer of

BED SPRINGS.

THESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or wish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Catalogne, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fail for those who will work diligently.

IF YOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue, anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handlings Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 10 hs when packed) for only 97c., IRON-HEATER included for $1.30, to any one who will act as agent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3.50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a

Picture Outfit,

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait. (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only 98c. Catalogue free.

Address ROBERT JOHNS,

PEORIA, ILLINOIS.

(Successor to Johns & Ordway.)

In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY. JOHN SHIPPY. DR.

Dental Surgeon.

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Gov't to carry the Fast Mall.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, betweer

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison or Kansas City. It traverses all of the six Great States,

IOWA, ILLINOIS. MISSOURI.

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO With branch lines to their important cities and towns. It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver, Chicago and Omaha. Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis, Chicago and Dubuque Chicago and Sloux City, Peoria and Council Bluffs, Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omaha, St. Louis and St. Paul, St. Louis and Rock Island, St. Louis and Chicago.

Kansas City and Denver, Kansas City and St. Paul, Kansas City and Omaha,

Kansas City and Burlington.
Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points ith Through Trains to and from points located on its

with Through Trains to and from points located on its branches.

At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada.

It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

Jaited States of Carlot Branch PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass, Agent,

∌BUSINESS♠

The Davenport Business College

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught; Bookeeping, by single and double entry; Business Arithmetic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circulars address

DUNCAN & HAWKS, Davenport, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publica tion of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed DAVID DANCER, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to Dayid DANGER: communications and articles to the Epiron.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT WE'RE WIFE, AND CONCUEINES

HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 32.—Whole No. 658.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 19, 1885.

No. 51.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Penald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR

- EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 19, 1885.

KIRTLAND ENDOWMENT EVENTS.

A BROTHER asks to know whether women went into the Kirtland Temple during the endowment exercises.

To this we reply that they did at times, though, as we understand, not when the ministry were engaged in their ordinances and ministerial instruction. But male and female participated in some of the endowment meetings, and they together enjoyed the blessings and outpourings of the Holy Spirit similar to what the first Christians did on the day of Pentecost.

The same brother asks to know at what meeting a woman concealed her infant child on entering the Temple when the child praised the Lord with the assembly when shouting Hosannah.

We understand it was in a promiscuous assembly, on a Sabbath during the times of the endowment. The writer has heard it spoken of by persons present on that occasion, and we think Bro. E. Robinson, of Davis City, Iowa, was one of them, and that he related that event in the annual Conference of 1883, at Kirtland, Ohio.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

In the clipping below we see what President Cleveland has to say in regard to the Brighamite Mormons and the cure for the evils he denounces. His attitude is very decided and aggressive, and if Congress carries out his recommendations, Brighamism will be forced into extreme conditions at an early time.

The Utah leaders wheedled their people with the idea that in "the vallies of the mountains" they would find "the secret chambers of the Lord," in which would be found rest, peace, and perfect security, while at the same time the world outside would be destroyed to a great extent, and that even the princes of the earth, and the rich and great ones, would come to them for safety and for succor. But now some of these same leaders are dead, some are hiding from justice, others have fled the country, while the rank and file are likely to be disfranchised and lose their territorial form of Government for the reason that they persist in violating the nation's laws or sanction, uphold, aid, and give comfort to those who do, forgetting that those who bid the false leaders and teachers "God speed, are made partakers of their evil deeds."—2 John 1:11. President Cleveland says:

"In the Territory of Utah the law of the United States passed for the suppression of polygamy has been energetically and faithfully executed during the last year, with measurably good results. A number of convictions have been secured for unlawful cohabitation, and in some cases pleas of guilty have been entered and slight punishment imposed upon promise by the accused that they would not again offend against the law, nor advise, counsel, aid, or abet in any way its violation by others. The Utah Commissioners express the opinion, based upon such information as they are able to obtain, that but few polygamous marriages have taken place in the Territory during the last year. They further report that, while there can not be found upon the registration-lists of voters the name of a man actually guilty of polygamy, and while none of that class are holding office, yet, at the last election in the Territory all the officers elected except in one county were men who, though not actually living in the practice of polygamy, subscribe to the doctrine of polygamous marriages as a Divine Revelation and a law unto all, higher and more binding upon the conscience than any human law, local or National. This is the strange spectacle presented by a community protected by a republican form of government to which they owe allegiance, sustaining by their suffrages a principle and a belief which set at naught that obligation of absolute obedience to the law of the land which lies at the foundation of republican institutions. The strength, the perpetuity, and the destiny of the Nation rest upon our homes, established by the law of God, guarded by parental care, regulated by parental authority, and sactified by parental love. These are not the homes of polygamy. The mothers of our land, who rule the Nation as they mold the characters and guide the actions of their sons, live according to God's holy ordinance, and each, pure and happy in the exclusive love of the father of her children, sheds the warm light of true womanhood, unperverted and unpolluted, upon all within her pure and wholesome family circle. These are not the cheerless, crushed, and unwomanly mothers of polygamy. The fathers of our families are the best citizens of the Republic; wife and children are the sources of patriotism; and conjugal and parental affection beget devotion to country. The man who, undefiled with plural marriage, is surrounded in his single home with his wife and children, has a stake in the country which inspires him with respect for its laws and courage for its defense. These are not the fathers of polygamous families. There is no feature of this practice or the system which sanctions it which is not opposed to all that is of value in our institutions.

"There should be no relaxation in the firm but just execution of the law now in opperation, and I should be glad to approve such further discreet legislation as will rid this country of this blot upon its fair fame. Since the people upholding polygamy in our Territories are reinforced by immigration from other lands, I recommend that a law be passed to prevent the importation of Mormons into the country."

THE TEN VIRGINS.

A BROTHER writes requesting us to explain the parable of the ten virgins, and we present the following.

In the Doctrine and Covenants, 45:10, we find the following:

"And then shall the heathen nations be redeemed, and they that knew no law shall have part in the first resurrection; and it shall be tolerable for them; and Satan shall be bound that he shall have no place in the hearts of the children of men. And at that day when I shall come in my glory, shall the parable be fulfilled which I spake concerning the ten virgins: for they that are wise and have received the truth, and have taken the Holy Spirit for their guide, and have not been deceived, verily I say unto you, they shall not be hewn down and cast into the fire, but shall abide the day, and the carth shall be given unto them for an inheritance; and they shall multiply and wax strong, and their children shall grow up without sin unto salvation, for the Lord shall be in their midst, and his glory shall be upon them, and he will be their King and their lawgiver."

The "parable" alluded to here is evidently that found in Matthew 25: 1-13, and relates to the kingdom of Christ on earth as it exists just prior to Christ's second coming, and reads as follows:

"Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were wise, and five were foolish. They that were foolish took their lamps, and took no oil with them: But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps. While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept. And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him. Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are gone out. But the wise answered, saying, Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you; but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves. And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready, went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut. Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us. But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not. Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh."

The "ten virgins" represents the Saints, both foolish and wise ones (Doc. Cov. 63: 13). The "lamps" represent the revelations of God to his people (Ps. 119: 105; Prov. 6: 23; Ps. 19:8; 2 Pet. 1:19). The "oil" represents the Holy Spirit (Ps. 45:7; Acts 4: 27; 10:48; 2 Cor. 1:21; 1 John 2:20, 27; Rev. 3:18). And their "vessels" represents their bodies and spirits-their persons (Jer. 22: 28; Acts 9: 15; 1 Thes. 4: 4; 2 Tim. 2:21; 1 Pet. 3:7). The "bridegroom" represents Christ (Matt. 9: 15; John 3: 29; Rev. 21:2, 9).

Verse one of Matt. 25, with chapter 24: 14, teaches that these Saints would be duly notified by his ministry that Christ was soon coming. (For this notification see Doc. & Cov. 1: 1-7; 28: 1-7; 33: 1; 34: 4; 45: 2, 3, 4; 49: 4; 64: 5; 65: 1; 68: 1; 108: 3.) The last notification—the "midnight" cry-is not made by the church, or its ministry, but it comes to them, and is made by the angels (D. & C. 85:25; 1 Thes. 4:16; 2 Thes. 1:7). The tarrying time is between the first notification—that made by the ministry of the kingdom on earth-and that made by the angels. There is no tarrying after the last or midnight cry is made; for when that is made the "kingdom," the "virgins" and "saints" arouse and arise, and Christ comes speedily.

Let the Saints seek that holy condition mentioned in the first quotation in this article, and then continue therein, and all will be well. All who will carefully read the quotations and citations in this article can not fail to see the wonderful harmony existing between them, and how perfectly the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants explains the teachings of the Bible in regard to the second coming of Christ and dove-tails with their prophecies and promises. At the time these revelations were given, the young seer, Joseph Smith, was between twenty-five and twenty-seven years of age, was "unlearned" in human wisdom, and yet in the hands of God he solved the seeming mystery and adjusted the seeming discrepancies in the Bible in respect to that momentous event with such skill as only divine wisdom could give.

Dr. Cummings, Baxter, Miller, Thurman, Himes, and hosts of other leading Adventists, have rearranged and remodeled their advent theories many times, but the young seer's work in respect to the second advent has remained intact, and passing events in the nations, the churches, and, in the very elements of nature, fully support the theories given through and by him. All this proves that he was authorized and sent of God. Whatsoever the Lord doeth shall stand forever, and the ministerial work of the seer is clearly and wonderfully supported by the Holy Scriptures. From the first he "taught with authority, and not as the scribes," and his work endures the closest criticism with success.

MURDERERS NOT FORGIVEN.

A BROTHER writes that he fails to see how to harmonize the following passages:

"Wherefore I say unto you, All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men. And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come."-Matt. 12:31, 32.

"And now, behold, I speak unto the church. Thou shalt not kill; and he that kills shall not have forgiveness in this world, nor in the world to come. And again, I say, thou shalt not kill; but he that killeth shall die. * * * And again, every person who belongeth to this Church of Christ, shall observe to keep all the commandments and covenants of the church. And it shall come to pass, that if any persons among you shall kill, they shall be delivered up and dealt with according to the laws of the land; for remember that he hath no forgiveness; and it shall be proven according to the laws of the land."-Doctrine and Covenants 42:6, 7, 21.

The murderers alluded to in the Doctrine and Covenants are clearly those who may be in "the church;" and the leading idea is, that the church shall not forgive them, but shall deliver up such that they may be "dealt with according to the laws

Jesus, in Matt. 12: 31, speaks in a general way of the forgiveness of sin, but does not define when the wilful murderer may be forgiven. A church member who murders, and an ignorant person of the world who murders, present two widely different cases. Of "him to whom much is given, much will be required;" but of required. The condemnation of the transgressor depends largely upon the amount of light and favorable opportunities they may have. Paul who was an accessory to the murder of Stephen, (Acts 7: 58; 8: 1; 22: 20), found mercy, because he "did it ignorantly in unbelief." I Tim. 1:13.

On the other hand, David sinned against the light and knowledge which God gave him, and he had to suffer the bitter consequence. (See 2 Sam. 12: 13; 1 Kings 15: 5, Inspired Translation, with Acts 2: 27, 29). Joseph the Seer taught that he had to suffer in the prison till the second coming of Christ. It seems that the intelligent, wilful murderer, can not escape the punishment due his ruinous and awful sin. The Jews who wilfully murdered Jesus could not have their sins "blotted out" until Christ's second coming. (Acts 3: 19, 20).

And now, with added light and increased opportunities for knowledge, it seems but equal that the church member who murders should have at least the same extent and degree of punishment as David and the murderous Jews mentioned-hence the law given to "the church" as we have seen in the Doctrine and Covenants.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is it right for Latter Day Saints to get their living by raising tobacco when so much has been said by the Saints against the use of it?

Ans.—It would not be right to prohibit the raising of tobacco by the Saints because a bad use is made of it, to even a large degree. A bad use is made of wheat, corn, barley, potatoes, apples, peaches, grapes, etc., when alcoholic beverages are distilled from them and distributed to the people. A bad use is often made of various products of the mineral and vegetable kingdoms, but it would not be right to prohibit these products because of their frequent abuse. And yet we think the Saints should engage in producing that which is most likely to be used for the direct good of man, so far as is practicable.

2.-What kind of poor or we commanded to aid?

A.—We should use discretion in this matter, as in everything else. There are various kinds of poor, and the worthy poor must have the preference. The poor idler, whether man or woman, must "not eat the bread nor wear the garment of the laborer." God has ordained that the idler shall not have place among his people. Wilful and willing idleness should reap the fruit of their vice in the severe lashings of want. him to whom little is given, little will be Let chastisement do its work. The poor drunkards should be given into the hands of the civil authorities; for to give such persons means beyond immediate needs, is to place in their hands that which will most likely, but contribute to perpetuate their vice of drunkenness. We should not give aid to the poor, if we have good reason to think they will use it in any evil or hurtful way, or suffer others to get and use it for hurtful or improper purposes. If we give aid to the reckless, idle, or vicious poor, knowingly, or heedlessly, we may, and do, give aid and encouragement to that which is harmful and sinful. Such poor ones should be turned over to the laws of the land, for provisions are made for such by civil law. But the worthy poor—the unfortunate of every kind, the infirm, the aged-should be carefully remembered, and that, too, in a wise, timely manner; and all other kinds of poor should have wise provisions made for them, either by means afforded by the State, or by direct personal aid ministered with prudence and careful discrimination. Let wisdom direct. We should know how the means we put into the hands of others is most likely to be used. To give recklessly, and without due discrimination, is to encourage evil and foster vice. We are stewards in respect to our temporal possessions, and should so act as to be able to give a good report of our use of the "unrighteous mammon;" for every proper use of it makes God and Christ our "friends."

JUDGE POWERS ON NATURALIZING ALIENS.

THE following from the Plano (Ill.) Pivot of the 5th instant is a fair index of the sentiment of the American people in respect to naturalizing persons who will not honor and maintain the nation's laws.

When persons are too good (?) or too bad to respect and uphold the laws of this country, they are just the ones who should emigrate to other lands. Such are not fit to enjoy the rights and honors of citizenship, and are a dangerous and hurtful element in society.

The Articles and Covenants of the Church command all Latter Day Saints to keep "the laws of the land" till Christ comes. Joseph Smith the prophet said in May, 1844, in his "Views on the Government and Policy of the United States," as follows: "In the United States the people are the government; and their united voice is the only sovereign that should rule; the only power that should be obeyed; and the only gentlemen that should be honored at home and abroad, on the land and on the sea."—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 533. But the pretenders in Utah who claim to be his successors have taught and practiced the opposite of this; that is, they seek to make their "priesthood" "the government," and their file-leaders their "only sovereign;" and they hold that they are "the only power that should be obeyed, and the only gentlemen that should be honored," in all matters of law and government that they see fit to question and oppose. Joseph Smith's views on civil government, in 1844, and before that, are in perfect harmony with the general decisions of the Courts and the common administration of the law. Joseph the prophet was right; the nation's policy is right; and Brighamism having lifted itself up against both, is doomed and will perish. Nothing but speedy and radical repentance and a hearty return to "the old paths" will save it adherents.

This is what the Pivot says:

"A recent decision made by O. W. Powers, associate justice of the Supreme Court of Utah, has been widely commented on and approved, and yet we fear that these who approve would not, under certain circumstances, relish the full carrying out of the idea. This was a case where a man who applied for naturalization papers as a citizen, stated that being a believer in polygamy he could not as a juror convict a man charged with that crime. Judge Powers thereupon refused the application, and in doing so used the following words:

"I think that a man who is so firm a believer in the doctrine that a crime is a right, that applying for naturalization, he announces under oath that he would as a juror violate his oath and render a verdict of not guilty in a criminal case, when the proof showed the prisoner to be guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, is unfitted to become a citizen. It would, it seems to me, be a judicial farce to bestow the inestimable gift of citizenship upon such a man. Until I am convinced by reason or authority, or by the mandate of a higher court, that I am wrong, I must refuse to naturalize the present applicant, or any other person who convinces me that he is not attached to the principles of our government.'

"Perhaps our personal acquaintance with Judge Powers gives us more than usual interest in this decision, but we believe that it is important in two respects. The least is that it is from a democratic judge, and, tallying with previous decisions from the same bench, must put at rest all suspicions that President Cleveland would dally with this evil. It is not the decision itself, however, in its bearing upon either politics or polygamy, that is most commenable. Citizenship in our glorious country has come to be held in light esteem by courts and politicians, and granting its privileges to foreigners has been merely a form, apparently without thought of the fitness of the applicant. We do not remember to have ever heard of a refusal to issue papers to any one who asked for them. To our mind there are other things beside a belief in polygamy which should prevent the bestowal of the "inestimable gift of citizenship" upon men, and we hope that the wholesome ideas advanced by Judge Powers will find an echo in other courts. America is the asylum of the oppressed of all nations, but it will not be so long if we allow our ballot boxes to be controlled by those who do not realize the value of that asylum."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE papers are full of exciting statements in regard to Mormon and Gentile conflicts in Salt Lake City; but we have learned to "wait till the clouds clear away" before we decide as to what has been done. We do not believe the Mormon leaders or their followers will offer violent resistance to civil rule. There may be a collision between the few, but it will only be of the spasmodic kind, and will chiefly serve to make the Federal authorities more vigilant and exacting, and make the Mormons more submissive and powerless. The Utah leaders know too well the folly of permitting a popular outbreak by their people. They personally have too much at stake, and they well know the perils are too great for them to suffer it.

Write all your articles and all letters and other matter intended for publication, on only one side of the sheet. And write all your business matters on separate sheets, and so save us much work and also avoid losses and delays.

Bro. W. Vickery, of Plano, Ills., writes the 2d inst., and says: "I baptized one more, yesterday, which makes nineteen in all baptized since Bro. J. C. Foss came to our aid."

Bro. L. E. Hutchings, writing us from Woodland, California, the 26th ult., says the winter rains are very heavy there now.

Bro. G. T. Griffiths writes that his permanent address will be No. 6, North Second-street, Pittsfield, Mass.

Bro. J. H. Peters, of Midland, Michigan, writes the 8th inst., that he is pleased to read of the general advancement of the work, and hopes to do what he can to aid it forward. He sends for books and tracts to circulate among his acquaintances and says: "There are a few around here who are believing, and I think they will yet be baptized."

Bro. H. L. Holt writes from Girard, Minn., the 3d inst.,—"I baptized two more last Sunday. Had a splendid meeting in in the evening, the Saints felt blessed and encouraged."

We thank Bro. Wm. Street and others for sending us well selected papers.

By clipping from a late Utah paper we see that Bro. Gordon E. Deuel is in Beaver City, Utah, and that he with Brn. W. Thompson, Asahel Bennett, and W. W. Hutchings have invited the Utah Elders to discuss with them the relative claims of Brighamism and the Reorganization, the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants to be the rule of evidence. The Utah Elders will not accept the offer, if we read the signs aright.

In another place will be found the "Annual Invitation, for the week of united and universal prayer, from January 3d to 10th, 1886," sent out by the Evangilical Alliance. We cheerfully call attention to it, for never was there a time when sincere heartfelt and wisely directed prayers were more needed than now; and we would respectfully suggest to our readers to take the needed steps to comply with the "Invitation."

Correspondence.

THEEE RIVERS, Miss.,

December 3d, 1885.

Dear Brother Blair:—I have been laboring over here now about three months, and though I have not baptized many, yet I have gathered some precious fruit for the Master, and believe that I have sown seed that will yet bear fruit. It wing been obliged to labor to support myself and family, I have not done as much spiritual labor as I might have done had my hands been free. I have enjoyed the Spirit whilst thus doing double duty, and esteem it a great privilege to work for the Master.

I love the Herald. It is a friend to God and his truth. I have often exclaimed, "How blessed I am to receive its visits." May it long flourish. I have written but little for its pages, but feel indebted to those who have done more. I rejoice to be numbered among Zion's children, and rejoice in the thought that I have so many noble, faithful, working brethren in the ministry; and each day my heart goes out in prayer for them. Dear brethren, remember me that I too may soon be free to labor like you. I find the most enduring happiness in God's service.

This part of the mission needs help. The Saints need to be fed, and there are many opportunities to sow the precious seed upon good ground. There is no one laboring constantly down here, and but little local labor is done by officials of branches and districts. Ever praying for Zion's glorious cause,

Your brother in Christ, F. P. Scarcliff.

> PORT GREVILLE, Nova Scotia, November 30th, 1885.

Dear Herald:—It has been in my mind to write to you for some time. There has not been a voice from Nova Scotia for so long, I am afraid if we continue to keep silent we will be forgotten. We feel somewhat as though we were forgotten now. At the last Annual Conference we were in hopes that we would be provided with an Elder, one that could labor here all the time; for their labors are very much needed. And I think that in a short time, and perhaps now, this mission could be self-sustaining. It is true there are not many of us, and we are considerably scattered, but we are willing to do all in our power to help along the work; and I think if we could have an Elder sent us-one without a family—there would be very little doubt about him being cared for. If there were preaching here all of the time I believe we would see others coming in, and that is what we are all anxious to see. We are now living some twelve miles from where the discussion was held between F. M. Sheehy and Rev. McLean. We seem to be more fortunate than some of our brothers and sisters in Nova Scotia, for there is no difference shown us—we are used with as much respect, and are allowed the same privilege of speech as any other church members. I do not know how it would be if there was to be an Elder come among us. It would be very apt to make a difference with some; but we are perfectly willing to try the experiment. This is mostly a Methodist community, and there are some true, honest-hearted Christians among them

We are trying to do what we can ourselves. Perhaps we have not improved the opportunities as well as some could; but we have sought to do what we could, according to our abilities. We have talked with a good many, distributed a number of tracts and Heralds. The Voice of Warning has been read by one man since we came down here, and is still out. We have been living in the hope of a visit from Elders Sheehy and Kelley this fall, but as it is getting so late, and no word from them, our hopes are almost gone. We would all be glad to see Bro. Sheehy again, and feel that he ought to come again, if only for a short time, as some have said that he dare not come back. I think there is no doubt but he could get a place to preach, and an audidence to hear him, even in Parrsboro.

We take the Herald and we find much in it to encourage us. The prospects of the future for the church seems bright. May we all prove more faithful, is the prayer of your sister in the one faith.

IDA A. LAYTON.

Bozeman, Mont., November 30th, 1885.

Elder Biair.—I have just returned from Deer Lodge Valley, where I spent over three weeks with Saints and friends, "preaching the things of the kingdom." My preaching was mostly to the followers of Joseph Morris, and I can say I have not met a more honest and generous-hearted people than they appear to be. I had excellent liberty in presenting our views on "Presidency and Priesthood," at Race Track, where I had the use of their neat little chapel. Elder Hendrickson, the Elder in charge, treated me with much courtesy, and gave me to understand that we could use their chapel at any time when it was not in use by them.

In Deer Lodge City I had the use of the Christian Church, a very neat house of worship. I also spoke in a private house one mile out of town, to a small company of Morrisites.

At Stuart, I was the guest of Bro. Isaac Harris, and was kindly entertained by him and his excellent family. I spoke twice at Stuart and twice Willow Glen. At the latter place I met with quite a number of the Morrisites, or Canaanites, as they are called, and was well received by them. Father William James is their president. The old gentleman seemed much pleased with our remarks. At Willow Glen I had a pleasant visit with Bro. J. R. Eardley and his excellent lady, whom I had met years ago in California.

In Butte City I was the guest of brother and sister E. M. Bowen, who, I am happy to say, I found alive in the work: and notwithstanding their great rush of business, have not forgotten that a part of their time belongs to the Master. They manifest a willingness to help "bear off the kingdom." I spent two very pleasant evenings with Bro. Bowen and his excellent family, and left a promise that I would return in four weeks. I shall organize a branch, or perhaps two branches, when I return. I heard your name mentioned very often by both the Saints and the world's people, and it was always mentioned in love; and I am happy to say, Bro. Blair, that I have not had to spend any of my time apologizing for my predecessor in this mission-field. I feel a great desire to do what I can towards rolling on the work. I meet with little drawbacks occasionally, but I am determined to press on to the mark.

With much love to you and all Saints, I am yours in the kingdom,

J. C. CLAPP.

REEDVILLE, Mississippi, November 30th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair:-It has been some time since I have written to the Herald, and I thought some would like to hear from us again. We have had our spiritual strength renewed again by a visit from Bro. James Moler of Limerick, Jackson Co., Ohio. He preached here on the 21st and 22d, and on the 23d he and brother James Spann went nine miles to Silver Ridge Schoolhouse, and held two meetings with good liberty and good order. It was the first time the gospel was ever preached there. People were well pleased with it and want to hear more. We had to part with our worthy brother on the 26th. He was on his way to West Virginia. He expects to be gone two months; then we look for him back here again. He is well liked here by all. I am still trying to live as becometh a Saint, and am not tired of this latter day work, though I feel my weakness at many times. But since I was at our last conference I have felt more like living faithful than I ever did. I met such a noble band of Saints there in Limerick. They are all trying to live as Saints should. There are no "big" nor "little." All is love among them. I know the Lord is with them.

Your sister in the one faith,
MRS. ANNA E. SPANN.

RENICK, Mo., December 9th.

Bro. Blair.—I will drop you a few lines again, to let you know how we are getting along in the North-east Missouri District, and that the many readers of the best paper on earth may learn of the work here. I have just returned home from Bevier, Mo., where I have been for the past ten days, preaching the word of eternal life. There is a fearful state of affairs at Bevier. While I was in town there were several street fights between the white and colored miners, with firearms, resulting in the death of five negroes and one white man. A white lady was also slightly wounded by a ball fired into the house. The mob created such an excitement that it injured our meetings very materially; yet we had some large audiences, and under the circumstances I left Bevier very well satisfied. I shall return the r when quiet is restored. The church there is not in just as good working order as it ought to be, but I think that with patience all will be made right. The church there is about to take on as it were new life.

I arrived home on Saturday, the 5th inst., and on Sunday evening listened to Bro. John A. Robinson of Fort Madison, Iowa, whom I met at Macon City, when on my way home and invited to stop over Sunday with us at Renick and preach for us. We all felt very materially strengthened in the cause of Christ by his good effort.

Monday, the 7th, I baptized another sister, the wife of Bro. Lot Griffiths, who has been waiting my return home. That makes seven that I have buried with Christ in baptism in the past three weeks in Renick. And still there are more to follow.

Will start to Hannibal on Monday, the 14th, if all is well. Times are very hard here, and money matters is very close. But I pray the good Lord to still open the way for me that I may be able to continue in my labors.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

W. H. BYBEE.

St. Joseph, Missouri, December 9th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair :- On the 11th ult. I made my first visit to Des Moines, Iowa, and found the branch there in a most undesirable condition -divided into two parties-and they had been holding two sets of meetings. By the help of Brn. Nirk and Bozarth I succeeded in placing them in a much better shape, and when I left a better feeling prevailed, with possibly one or two exceptions. I am pleased to say this much for the Des Moines Saints; both parties submitted to correction nobly. This furnishes ground for hope. I found many kind friends, and a general desire for the good of the cause. I preached for them four times, and though my health was quite poor, I enjoyed good liberty in presenting the word.

I visited the Des Moines Valley Branch and spoke for them four times, twice in school houses and twice in Brown's Hall in the town of Runnells, and enjoyed good liberty with one exception. In this branch I met an old friend and gospel worker in the person of Bro. Samuel Longbottom. He is yet firm in the faith. The "Valley" Saints are doing as well as we would expect under the circumstances. We found them kind, as Saints always are. We met and visited with Bro. and Sr. D. W. Thomas, in Des Moines; and I am pleased to say they are firm in the faith, and doing well financially. I returned home on the 24th of November, and on the 27th took train for Stewartsville, Missouri, via St. Joseph. On the 28th and 29th attended the conference of the Far West District, and spoke twice on Sunday. My health was so poor on Saturday and Sunday that I was hardly able to be up and about. On the evenings of December 1st and 2d I spoke in the German Church, with fair liberty, and to good audiences. The German Branch is in fair condition at the present time. They have made progress in the work, and have been blest in temporal things. There is a bright future for them and all Saints, if they will keep the whole law of God, not neglecting to place their "tithes and offerings" in the Lord's storehouse, as that wise an I equitable law which God has given to his Saints demands. On the eve of December 3d I met with the Saints at the McKee church, and succeeded in getting them to drop the name "Stewartsville," and choose that of De Kalb. The contention about this name should now cease on both sides.

I came here last Saturday, commenced a series of meetings on Sunday which is designed to continue over the second Sunday. So far the interest is fair, but the attendance, excepting Sunday evening, rather slim. Inclement weather and slippery streets are against us.

Yours in bonds,
JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

PLYMOUTH, Luzerne Co., Pa., Decembert 3d, 1885.

Dear Herald:-I left home the 20th of November to visit different parts of Pennsylvania and preach the gospel as opportunity offered; met with the Saints in Philadelphia, found that the work seems to be reviving in this district. Spoke in the hall Sunday, morning and evening; left there the following Wednesday for Wyoming Valley, and arrived there in time for their district conference, which was held at Nanticoke on the 29th and 30th. I assisted them with the business of the conference, which was nearly finished on Saturday evening, so that we had the Lord's day for preaching and Saints' meeting. The Spirit was present to teach and strengthen us in the good work. The Saints have the free use of a small Union Church at Nanticoke. I will speak there next Sunday, and after that will visit other fields of labor. I have been kindly received by Saints and friends so far, and return thanks for the same. At present I am staying at the house of Mr. David Isaacs, the son-in-law of Sr. William Jones. She is now living with her only daughter, and feels very lonely after the loss of her husband and a daughter who were buried about one year ago. The Lord doeth all things well. If we can have the mind of Christ, we will all labor together for the advancement of this great work. Enoch and his people followed this example, and were enabled to know God and obtain eternal life, so that he and his people built a city, and were translated. May this be our happy lot, is the prayer of your brother in gospel bonds.

HIRAM H. ROBINSON.

TABOR, Iowa,
December 3d, 1885.

Dear Herald: I thought I would drop a line for your precious columns, to let your readers know we are still alive to the interest of this great latter day work. Our conference came off on the 21st and 22d of November, at Shenandoah. We had a good time, a joyous time that will not soon be forgotten. Elder Charles Derry and his amiable wife were with us, and met with many of their old friends and acquaintances that they had not seen for years. Bro. Derry done the preaching in his usual forcible manner, to the joy and satisfaction of the Saints, the comfort and consolation of all who love the Lord Jesus Christ. The pacific influence of God's Holy Spirit that rested upon us in our prayer and testimony meetings was ineffable, the love of God was in every heart, enabling all to look beyond the trivial things of this mundane sphere with sweet anticipations, and with bright hopes for the future rewards promised by him that is abundantly able to fulfill.

The work in the district is not in as flourishing a condition as we would wish, so far as numbers being added, but all the Saints feel well in the work, and express a determination to press on in the good cause. Our meetings are well attended throughout the entire district. Many are very favorable and manifest a strong belief in the gospel by working for the cause, defending the same both in word and deed. We have a host of warm hearted friends who truly favor the cause. May God bless them with all his Saints, is my daily prayer.

Bro. Springer and wife are here with us, and he has preached some in the Ross School-house, and has created quite a little stir, but his health is very poor. We have filled some of his appointments. He is taking a rest this week, and we pray that he may be blessed with health sufficient to enable him to talk to those that desire to hear him expound the word of God, and that he may be instrumental in bringing many souls into the true fold.

Father Goode, Bro. W. Gaylord and George Kemp are good auxilliaries to the work. They often take a trip with me, and are good helpers to the Saints, both in singing, praying, and exhorting to faithfulness. All the brethren are trying to do the best they can under the circumstances in which they are placed. Now, dear Herald, I pray for your success. You are a welcome visitor and instructor. I hear many speak very highly of you. May heaven inspire your pages in the future as in the past. May the noble and true children of Zion come to your aid and help spread the glorious principles of the gospel to earth's remotest bounds, that all may have the privilege of hearing the glad tidings of great joy contained therein is the earnest prayer of your unworthy brother, HENRY KEMP.

GALENA, Ind., Dec. 7th.

Bro. W. Blair:—I have just returned from conference, which was held at Union Chapel, Jefferson county, Mich, closed November the 26th, after which I, in company with Bro. Leonard Scott, went to Bro. James Porter's, who is alive to the interest of the work. Commenced meetings at his house, held meeting there near one week with good liberty and an increasing audience. You remember that I wrote you, that I siw an officer come to me when I was in a public highway, who called my name, who said: "We want men to stand by the laws as they are. And we must obey orders." And he then went his way rapidly.

Since then there has been a crisis in Southern Indiana. The work has been attacked all along the line of the Ohio River. This to me was timely warning. The enemy of this great latter day work is drawing near to battle. His pickets are firing through the New Albany Ledger, Louisville Post, Jeffersonville Democrat, and the Madison Herald. We have replied to two of these—the Democrat and Herald, and intend to reply to the others as opportunity permits. One of the reporters was ashamed to have his name accompany his glaring and willful misrepresentations. He says Mormonism in Southern Indiana is dead. If so, what means all of this firing along the lines by the enemy?

There never was such a waking up as there is now. Many came to our meetings from a great distance, who never heard the faith before; and the good people of New Marion sent for us to come to their place, which we could not respond to in person. Bro. Leonard Scott will hold the fort against those invaders from Battle Creek, Michigan-the Adventists, who challenge all denominations, ours not excepted. If terms are agreed upon, I expect to go there in a few days. In view of the demands for labor, and the interest manifested to hear, what is to be done? I am ready to devote all of my time in the field, if advisable. M. R. Scott.

> Angus, Boone Co., Iowa, December 4th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair: - A word of consolation always comes acceptable to the Saints of God, therefore I feel prompted to mail you a few lines in regard to God's work in this part of his vineyard.

The inhabitants of this place are getting aroused from their stupor at last. Elder J. S. Roth paid us a visit on Saturday, the 28th of last November, and left us Wednesday the 2d inst. During his stay with us he delivered four discourses, which were most excellent, and he has created a feeling of investigation into the work of God. And I feel that wheresoever such noble men of God as Bro. Roth sounds their voice in behalf of the gospel of Christ, darkness must flee. May God speed the day when we shall have a branch organized in this part of his vineyard, for I feel certain great good can be done in this place. During his stay with us he baptized eight. Several others are believing, and many are searching the divine writ. We had a large turn out, and a refreshing of the Spirit. And I am thankful that Bro. Roth has been an instrument in the hands of God of removing a great deal of prejudice from this place. May the Lord bless him and his ministerial labors in whatever part of God's vineyard he may be called to labor. Still praying for the welfare of Zion.

I remain your brother in the one faith, JOHN BATT.

WILBER, Nebraska,

December 4th, 1885.

Bro. Blair: I have held twenty-three meetings in a school-house near here. The interest and attendance are both upon the increase, and up to date the Spirit has not given me permission to leave for other points of equal import-In haste,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

EAST DES MOINES, Iowa. December 8th.

Bro. Blair:—As it has been some time since I wrote the Herald, I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know of the progress of the work in this part of the land. I think that the Des Moines District is on the advance. The ministry seem determined to put forth every effort this coming winter for the advancement of the great cause. Their conference has just closed here, and I can say it was a splendid one. There was a good amount of business done, and some of it of a very difficult nature. But the Elders I believe came praying and desiring to have a good time, and truly they did. After the conference was over I heard a number of them say that, considering the business done and the nature of it, they were really surprised at the order and love that prevailed throughout.

The Des Moines Branch has had its share of trouble and dark hours, but now I believe that, if they will only learn by the things of the past, and exercise wisdom in the future, and the officers learn their duty and attend to it carefully, a better day is dawning for them; otherwise they will suffer as in the past. There are many good Saints here, those who are willing to sacrifice for the cause. Since I have been in this dirtrict I have found many noble-hearted Saints who I believe are trying to adorn their profession becomingly, loving the cause that they have espoused. I want to say to the Saints that I heartily thank them all for their kindness to me while in their district. May God continue to bless them. I expect I will have to leave the field, at least for a while. I am afflicted with the asthma and sore throat so that I can not preach some times. Will you all pray for me.

Yours in love, W. T. Bozarth.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited

UTAH'S CURSE AND CURE.

HAVING a few leisure moments, and feeling a desire to put on record a few of my reflections with regard to Latter Day Israel, especially those residing in the valley of Utah, for I feel a strong desire to reach their hearts, and to call their attention to a few thoughts which I wish to present for their consideration. Having been associated with this church for over fifty years, and having been a resident of these valleys and Salt Lake City for over thirtyfive years and always lived at headquarters since I became a member of the church, every important movement that has taken place has in its time had its natural impressions on my mind and feelings at the time of its occurrence. And if I have indulged in prejudices I must say they have always been in favor of the church and in respect to the authorities thereof. There was always a pressure brought to bear upon the members of the church from the beginning, to uphold those who were in authority so long as they were retained in authority. This has been a traditional law from the beginning; and of late a very strong pressure is brought to bear to sustain their tottering power, even forbidding any right to its members to question anything that is said or done by the Priesthood. were an innocent and confiding people drawn from step to step by their leaders weaning them away from the truth, the word of God and the light of his Spirit into fraternal obligations, until they were entirely in the hands of the leaders and those who have served themselves of them. And the people are not conscious of their real condition to this day; but there is a secret something within them that tells them there is something wrong, very wrong, somewhere, and many are looking for some power to deliver them from out of this delemma, while the grip of the Edmunds law is sending their best men to a felon's cell, or sent them in hiding with the prospect of severe law being enacted, while every effort of defense only acts as a boomerang by showing their utter contempt for the laws of the land and the precepts of Jesus in the scriptures of truth which they profess to revere. Alas! they have no cloak for their sins. As it is written in the prophets, "their sins have found them out.

But we have some promises written by the voice of the Spirit which are comforting to those who are looking for the redemption of Zion, which we quote, Life of Joseph, page 578:

"Verily my people shall be redeemed, and my law shall be kept which I revealed unto my servant Joseph Smith, Jr., for I am God and not man, and who is he that shall turn me from my purpose, or destroy whom I would preserve? Wolves have entered into the flock, and who shall deliver them? Where is he that giveth his life for the flock? Behold, I will judge those who call themselves shepherds, and have preyed upon the flocks of my pas-ture." Here is a prediction showing a return to the law-that it was not kept-and of an effort to thwart the purposes of Jehovah and destroy the work of Joseph the Seer, and that to by those very men associated with him, which commenced on the earth in this dispensation. It was predicted by Joseph that ravening wolves would get into the flock, not sparing the flock. It was given to Joseph to know and predict what would take place after his departure, and here it was revealed by the Spirit in 1851. "And who shall deliver them!" "Where is he that giveth his life for the flock," is the grave question in Utah to-day. When they raised the cry of "wolf," when Pres. Joseph Smith arrived in this city, they went into hiding. Where now are the shepherds? Where! "Behold, I will judge those who call themselves shepherds and have preyed up-on the flocks of my pastures." This is just what is taking place in Utah to-day. And who so blind that they can not see the hand of God in .his thing! It was not manufactured for this occasion; but it was written thirty-four years ago, and was spoken directly concerning this people in Utah; and the facts testify to the truth. positively, both in what the shepherds have done here, and the judgment which has come upon them.

In this article I wish to briefly notice another point in this matter, which may be considered the cause which seems to lay at the foundation, or the starting point of this apostacy viz., that which is called "Celestial Law." This is a very curious thing, and is very repugnant of itself when we consider it in connection with the gospel revealed to Joseph by the angel, and also to Joseph and Sydney in the vision, there being no provisions in them for any thing of the kind. This is as much as to say that the fulness of the gospel is nothing of the kind. Is not "the fulness of the gospel" in the Book of Mormon? Does it not contain the fulness of the gospel? In sec. 52:5, Doctrine and Covenants, is the law to the church, and it says:

"The Elders, Priests, and Teachers of this church shall teach the principles of my gospel which are in the Bible and Book of Mormon, in which is the fulness of my gospel, and they shall observe the covenants and church articles to do them, and these shall be their teachings as they shall be directed by the Spirit."

In this same section is contained the marriage covenant, in precisely the same language that was afterwards inserted in the Article on Marriage. In that "celestial law" we find the same subtle reptile raising his head and rebuking the Almighty, setting aside the atonement and the power of Christ's redemption,—the same one who met mother Eve in the garden and who took the Savior on the mountain and the pinnacle of the temple, and showed him all the kingdoms of this world and the glory of them. It is the same power, and he was suffered to draw a few into his folds to fulfill the Scriptures—the predictions of Jesus, Paul, and others, who saw what "the mystery of iniquity would accomplish in the last days, and in the last dispensation before the coming of the Son of Man.

I wish to notice one point more concerning this "celestial law," that it was foreshadowed by the Spirit in 1851, to wit:—"Behold, that which you have received as my "celestial law," is not of me, but is the doctrine of Baalam; and I command you to denounce it and proclaim against it; and I will give you power, that none shall be able to withstand your words, if you rely on me; for my Spirit shall attend you." Who, that is acquainted with the Utah Mission, that can not bear testimony to the truth of these words? You can not find one Elder in the Utah Church that will meet in discussion one of the Reorganization Elders. They fully realize their weakness in this, and keep at a respectful distance. Yet who is so blind as those who will not see. Many will rather be destroyed in modern Israel than look, as it was in the days of Moses, when he lifted up the serpent in the wilderness.

SALT LAKE CITY. Utah, Nov. 26th, 1885.

WAS THE CHURCH REJECTED?-No. 2,

Whence came the thought of rejection? Must the dispensation be closed to bring it about? Evidently the thought is divine, and originated with God, and not with man, as we can see from the following from the Doctrine and Covenants:

"But, behold, at the end of this appointment [sufficient time] your baptisms for your dead shall not be acceptable unto me; and if you do not these things at the end of the appointment, ye shall be rejected as a church with your dead, saith the Lord your God."—Jan. 19th, 1844, sec. 107, par. 11.

Now, this ought to be conclusive with every Saint, as to three things: 1st, that the thought of rejection originated with God; 2nd, the posibility of bringing this to pass without conflicting with former revelations, for he is God and not man, and can not err; 3d, that the building and finishing of these two houses, (Temple and Nauvoo House) were positive conditions of rejection or acceptance. But that was not the only condition, as will be seen from par. 14:

"And it shall come to pass, that if you build an house unto my name, and do not do the things that I say, I will not perform the oath which I make unto you, neither fulfill the promises which ye expect at my hands, saith the Lord; for instead of blessings ye by your own works, bring cursings, wrath, indignation and judgments upon your own heads, by your follies, and by all your abominations, which you practice before me, saith the Lord."

This is condition No. 2. The question now is, how did it "come to pass?" Did the church fulfill their part in it? and did the Lord fail in His "oath and promises?" Not likely! Did they receive the "blessing" and not the "cursings?" If they did, how was it that they were "moved out of their place?" (see par. 13).

It is because they were in a condition to "pollute" the land—"mine holy grounds and mine holy ordinances and charters, and my holy words." The gathering and dwelling together was one of the blessings, and when "moved out," that was one of the cursings. Nowhere did they receive. Let Brigham answer from Utah—"We are here because we could not help ourselves." The effect was bad like the cause that produced it—a "cursing." Did the Lord fail to fulfill His part? No Saint will claim this—hence the church failed to fulfill this condition, and that alone, (whether they finished the two houses in the first condition or not), brought "wrath, indignation, judgment"—hence rejection.

"So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth; it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I send it."— Isa. 55: 11.

But the foregoing is not all. We will notice another condition, in par. 18:

"Therefore, let my servant Joseph, and his seed after him, have place in that house (Nauvoo House) from generation to generation, forever and ever, saith the Lord."

This we will call condition No. 3. And what has become of this? It was one of the conditions imposed upon the church, to see that "Joseph and his seed after him," be established in that house as "plants of renown for ever and ever." Don't everybody know that that church failed in this! Where is Joseph's "seed after him?" They are not to be found in that house any more, nor does the Utah church care for it. The "head" of Joseph's posterity is in Utah at the time of this writing, trying to remove the causes of their "cursings." Will they care for him in any other house? No! nor even favor him with their Tabernacle to teach the law of this offended God that once pleaded with them at Nauvoo. And thus they have lost the "plants of renown, and the watchman on Zion's walls" for ver, unless they repent and return

We will notice one point more, and call it condition No. 4. In par. 12 and 13 speaking of the Temple:

"Wherein you receive conversations, and your statutes and judgments, for the leginning of the revelations and foundation of Zion, and for the glory, honor, and endowment of all her muncipals, [which] are ordained by the ordinance of my holy house."

"And if my people will hearken unto my voice, and unto the voice of my servants whom I have appointed to lead my people, behold, verily I say unto you, they shall not be moved out of their place."

All the world knows that they were "moved out" of Nauvoo; and this fact is a positive proof that they did not "hearken unto the voice" of the Lord, but followed their own corrupt ways and were "rejected as a church." Another fact in this condition is, that the completing of the Temple, &c., was to be, in comparison with the past, "for the beginning of the revelations" to the church; but, instead of that, lo and behold, it was the end of all revelations to them, for they never had any more after Joseph and Hyrum were taken, and their "municipals" were not qualified by it, neither was there any need for it, for the very charter of the city—"their place"—was made null and void. If the church in Utah tells the truth when they say that they "done all their part" of the stipulated conditions, they make the God of the Saints a terrible being—one who enters into covenant with an "oath" to fulfill his part, and then neglects all his obligations and promises, and violates his oath to his innocent and virtuous people! But this is extravagant in absurdities—too many wives and "cursings" have followed that people for any one to believe it for one moment. But if all this is just as they claim, no wonder they put Him aside and took Adam in his stead! But the facts in the case are these: they wallowed in their "follies" and their "abominations," (The Book of Mormon says polygamy is an abomination), that they deserved not any of the "blessings and promises" stipulated in the many conditions of this revelation; for they violated each and every one of them and stood "rejected as a church" at the death of the choice Seer; and were entitled to nothing but the "cursings, wrath, indignation, and judgments," as predicted, and so inherited the same until the "salt lost its savor," and become good for nothing but to be "trodden under the feet of men." No "favor" and "grace" from the "kings" of the earth, and the "Gentiles," such as is promised in par. 1 and 2, but they have become justly, a "hiss and a by-word" because of their "abominations," transgressing the laws of decency, the laws of the land, as well as the laws of God, until many nations are enacting and enforcing laws against them. Of course, they claim that all this is persecution. We admit it; but it is not of the kind that the Saints are blessed for suffering-this is the "wrath, indignation, and cursings." Such are really and truly the "apostates" from the laws and commandments of God. But we do not intend by any means to say that all the body of innocent Saints are so involved, and will define as we proceed. We next will bring up a point concerning church officials that are "given," "promised," and to be continued, providing all the conditions of this revelation are honored; but if they are not, then "cursings," are given, and not these officials for a "blessing." In pars. 38 to 46 we have:—1, Patriarch; 2, First Presidency; 3, Twelve Apostles with their president; 4, High Council; 5, Presidency of the Quorum of High Priests; 6, Presidency dency of the Quorum of Elders; 7, Presidency of the Quorum of Seventies; 8, Presidency of the Quorum of Bishoprick; o, Presidency of the Quorum of Priests; 10, Presidency of the Quorum of Teachers; 11, Presidency of the Quorum of Deacons; 12, Presidency of the Quorum of the Stake of Zion. Now, here is all the material to constitute and continue church organization—all hanging on the thread of observing the conditions of this revelation; and all this just three years and four months before the death of Joseph and Hyrum, which was evidently the length of the "appointment" made; which was "sufficient time" to determine the future destiny of the church. And all these officials, as the nature of the case plainly shows, must stand or fall together; for they are the "parts" that compose the "body" or church; and hence, if the church is "rejected," these are also, as its officers.

We have proved, beyond a doubt, or the possible chance of a successful contradiction, that all the conditions of this important revelation were disobeyed, violated, and treated lightly. Hence, the church, "as as church" was rejected; and all its officers were either "taken" or put out of office, as organized church officials, and all fell back to their individual and original positions in the king dom before the organization of the church, as Elders, Priests, with authority to administer the gospel in righteousness; but if not righteous, then no authority whatever from God; for He will not uphold only in righteousness. "And—the deed is done!—the prophet of the Most High God, together with his brother, are murdered—the spirit of revenge has drank their blood, and they sleep the martyr's sleep. But is the church annihilated by the blow?-Editor Millennial Star, vol. 5, No. 4. We can afford to let every honest man judge from the foregoing and what will follow-Joseph and Hyrum were "taken," and the very stake of Zion is refused to the Saints—they are "moved out;" Sidney Rigdon has no right to act, according to his own testimony and that of the "twelve;" and he also says that these "twelve," nor the people at Nauvoo, "have been led of the Lord for a long time."—Mill. Star

vol. 5, No. 7.
We can see the emptiness of the claims of the Utah "rejected church," when one great fact proves our position correct, and we can risk the whole issue on this, in their case and the cases of all pretenders of this age and all former ages, and that is this the absence of present revelation through a choice Seer. This fact alone, ought to be sufficient proof to them, and all others, that they are "rejected as a church."

Now we will hasten to consider this second part of our proposition,-Must the dispensation be closed because of the rejection of the church? We answer, No; not by any means. To introduce this subject properly we will quote from Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 26: 3: "Unto whom

I have committed the keys of my kingdom, and a dispensation of the gospel for the last times; and for the fulness of times, in the which I will gather together in one all things," &c. This is the word of God concerning the "dispensation of the gospel," for the "last times"—never to be taken from the earth until all is fulfilled. Yet God knew that he could "reject" the church "as a church" organized, without violating these promises, and for this reason we must conclude that there is a difference between the church and the kingdom as at first introduced, for the kingdom may exist without the church, but the church can not exist without the kingdom, for the simple reason that the church is organized of material already in the kingdom. Truly, it is an advanced state of the government of the kingdom of God; and this may account for the mistakes of men in building up churches of materials that are not in the kingdom of God.

In support of this position we will offer a few thoughts:-John the Baptist baptized people, and unto what did he baptize them? not unto the church, for it was not yet organized; hence it must be into the kingdom that was "nigh at hand." also did Christ and his disciples in the early part of their ministry. Joseph Smith, O. Cowdery and many others, were baptized unto the kingdom before the church was organized in 1830. And thus we find that the kingdom did exist before the church, and if before, then why not after the church was "rejected?" Upon this principle only could the Lord, with consistency predict in one revelation the "rejection" of the church, while in another he assures us that the kingdom and the dispensation introduced for the "last times." We may suppose a number of citizens of the United States go out and settle on the public domain; they do so under what we term "squatter's rights," and often a time they extended the right of a territorial government. In all these conditions of government they are citizens of the United States, with sometimes more and sometimes less privileges as such; and if a State form of government was denied them for certain reasons, then as citizens they fall back to the territorial form; and if that is withheld, then as citizens they fall back to the original unorganized form again. We will now produce one more scriptural proof of this principle. In Rev. 12: 1-17 we find the figure of a woman representing the church, and this church goes into the "wilderness" and here, for our purpose, we quote verse 17:

"And the dragon was wroth with the woman (after she left) and went to make war with the remnant of her seed which kept the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ.'

This proves exactly our position, that all the Saints that kept the commandments of God, and had the testimony of Jesus Christ, were still in the kingdom of God after the church was "rejected." This was material ready for a reorganization at any time God saw fit. The history of the past will bear us up in this, we think. The first members of the Reorganization were of this class, (Young Joseph not excepted), beside the many thousands that have been gathered up since, and those who will yet be gathered from all factions and pretenders. This also will account for the presence of the precious gifts of the gospel among all the factions to some extent, that sprang up under different aspirants in and since those dark and terrible days of darkness and confusion; for many of this mighty host followed the different factions in the dark and cloudy days, but individually were honest, kept the "commandments," and had the "testimony of Jesus Christ."

Nov. 26th, 1885.

J. T. DAVIS.

MONTANA NOTES.

WHILE in Deer Lodge Valley I came in contact with two gentlemen, (father and son), by the name of Dove. Mr. Geo. S. Dove, the son of James Dove, claims to be a prophet, and the successor of Jos. Morris. I had quite a long talk with them, and I confess I was much astonished at their strange philosophy, and marveled at the "cheek" of this would-be prophet. He "cheek" of this would-be prophet. He was trying to carry Joseph Smith, the Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, Joseph Morris, and George Dove; but we crowded him in argument so hard that he had to unload some part of his burden; so as you might suppose, he dropped everything but Joseph Morris and George S. Dove, and he there exhibited his true colors.

I have met a great many frauds in the latter day work, but I have never met one so bungling, and so little to be feared as this Dove fraud. They had succeeded in baptizing two persons before I got to Deer Lodge, but for some cause they did not baptize any after I got there. I attended one of their meetings and heard the old gentleman talk an hour and a half. I suppose he was trying to make a point in favor of his sons's apostleship; but I hardly think any one knew just what he was trying to do, for it was so badly jumbled The young man then took the stand and delivered himself of a harangue that sounded more like the ravings of a maniac than a gospel sermon. He spoke very disrespectfully of the "Josephites," Canaanites, and all other ites but the Doveites. I listened to the young man a little over half an hour, and could wait no longer, as I had an appointment to fill. From what I could learn, the Doves are communists, and they must of necessity preach polygamy, for they preach the revelations of Joseph Morris as the "fulness of the gospel," and in one of his (Morris's) revelations, dated Feb. 3d, 1862, par. 3, we read that that doctrine (polygamy) belongs to the "fulness of the gospel." They claim that the gospel was restored to Joseph the martyr only in part; that the priesthood was restored only in part; that the church was organized only in part, and it was left for George S. Dove to bring in a perfect state of things. could admit, or be convinced that Mr. Dove's wisdom and faith were equal to his "cheek," I could believe that he could accomplish almost anything. But it takes something more than "check" and "gall" to accomplish anything that God will affix his "seal" to; and for that reason I conclude that all Latter Day Saints may dispense with the labors of the Dove's.

Reincarnation is one of their most essential doctrines. Were it not for that, Mr. Dove would only be Mr. George Dove, with rather a poor record to recommend him, (as I have been informed), but through reincarnation he appears as Melchisedec, a wonderful high priest, even greater than Joseph Morris! And Joseph Morris according to a revelation given by himself, June 7th, 1862, was superior to Jesus Christ! They claim that God the Father is a polygamist on a grand scale, he having 144,000 wives. But their is so much contradiction in their theory, or in their teachings that I defy anyone to get the head or tail of it.

I beg pardon, dear Herald, for writing so much upon so unimportant a matter.

J. C. Clapp.

[The following notice will further elucidate the "Dove" movement, and show what is thought of it by some of the Montana Morrisites.—ED.]

NOTICE. .
TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

Whereas, there have appeared in this county two men calling themselves "Doves," claiming to be Morrisites connected with those called by that name who have resided in Montana for many years, and who have always borne the reputation of honest, truthful, industrious and lawabiding citizens, generally minding their own business; and

Whereas, these same individuals, under the claim of being inspired ministers of the gospel, are preying upon the credulity of those endowed with slender judgment;

Therefore, we, the undersigned, hereby warn all persons to whom this notice shall appear, not to receive or encourage these prefenders by virtue of any connection they may claim with the Morrisites, so-called, organized in this county and Territory for many years past under the name of the "Church of the Saints of the Most High." We uterly repudiate their claims, teachings and practices. You can not gather "grapes from thorns, nor figs from thistles."

[Signed] WILLIAM M. JONES,
ANDREW HENDRICKSON,
JNO. R. EARDLEY.

A DIALOGUE.

RESPECTING THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN THESE LAST DAYS, THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN FORMER DAYS, AND THE CHURCH OF SO-CALLED MODERN CHRISTIANITY.

BETWEEN DR. TWINETEXT AND ELDER D.

PART SIX.

DR. T.—Good morning Elder, I am desirous of further investigation in the matter of Christ's Church. I frankly confess that you have destroyed all the confidence I had in modern Christendom. You have proved that it is nothing like ancient Christianity in spirit, in doctrine, or organic form; and I wonder that I never saw this discrepancy before. But I suppose it is owing, in a great measure, to the traditions in which I have been trained, and to the foolish, and, as I now see, unwarantable practice of letting some one else do my thinking. It is true I am looked upon as a teacher among men, but I have looked to my superiors for the moulding of my thoughts, as others have looked to me; and I have been willing to go where they led, without thinking of questioning their dogmas. I do not see how I could have done otherwise, for had I presumed to follow my own unauthorized opinion, it is likely I would have been as deep in the darkness as I would in following the opinion of others. It is true I should have been asserting my own manhood in thinking for myself; but even that would have been denounced as presumption, and I should have been declared a coxcomb, full of vain conceit. Moreover, as I belonged to and accepted holy orders in the Church, I had to accept its dogmas and be governed by its rulings; for to do otherwise I should have forfeited my right to its communion, its ministry, and its honors and emoluments; and this, my dear friend, requires great moral courage, and the strongest convictions of the erroneousness of the church dogmas and rulings, and the truth of my own, and I confess frankly that I lacked these convictions, even if I had moral courage. And now, as you have taken away my foundation and destroyed all my hope, I want to know if you have anything better to offer. But mark you, as this controversy has taught me the folly of accepting anything without the most rigid criticism; so I shall demand proofs—scripture proofs! and not mere assertions, even though they are backed by the creeds of a church.

ELDER D.—My reverend friend, it does me good to know that our conversation has had the effect of opening your eyes to see some truth, and at the same time has made some errors visible to your mind. I understand your situation, and can sympathize with you. As to my destroying your foundation and hopes, this is only another evidence that your foundation was not God, Christ, the Holy Spirit, nor His word. Had you been built on these, your hopes would not be a wreck, nor your house a mere "castle in the air," or crumbling ruins at your feet. But you cry for help, and I must do my part in aiding you, or prove unfaithful to my trust. In doing so I shall not offer the creeds of men, nor the vain traditions of the fathers, nor shall I present to you a church organized after any human pattern, nor seek to inspire hopes founded in human wisdom. "To the law and the testimony, if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." Let this rule be applied to me with all the vigor and force of the same; and for this purpose I ask you to follow me through God's word, and test my presentations by it.

First then, I present to you the Church of Christ, organized by His divine hand according to the pattern given by Christ and declared by his apostles, built on His unchangeable word as the rock, with the same everlasting gospel as the means of salvation to man—the rule of government for the church, and the great unchangeable standard by which the lives of the individual members of the church are to be governed; and that church is the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and that gospel is the very plan of salvation they are endeavoring, in their weakness, to preach. The loyal members of that church are living in the enjoyment of the glorious gifts which Christ gave to His church, and their hearts are filled with the same abiding hope, while their minds are drawing nearer "in the unity of the faith," and they are approximating nearer "to the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ" and hope through redeeming grace to become "complete in him."

T.—You must excuse me, Elder, I do not intend to offend, but I am not prepared to accept the Latter Day Saints' Church as the Church of Christ, not even upon your positive assertion. And permit me before giving my reasons, to just state that your emphatic and positive manner is distasteful to me, for it savors of assumption. You do not seem to admit of the possibility of error. It seems to me more becoming in a minister of the gospel to declare his belief, what he thinks, or what his church thinks or teaches. Such a course would be more in keeping with our poor weak human nature, and more Christ-like. Arrogance assumes to know everything, while meekness and humility hesitate to assert their superior wisdom.

D.—Your remarks will not offend, Doctor; for charity leads me to think you mean well, and often I have met the same rebuke. In fact, it is a common charge against us as a people. But let us test it. You know you threaten to be "very criti-Suppose you were employed as an agent for a firm, or as an ambassador for the Government. Would there not be a specific duty for you to perform, and a specific rule governing your agency, or ambassadorship? Would it not be your duty to make yourself acquainted with the message you were to convey, or the business you were to transact? Must you not understand the positive instructions of those who sent you? And if you do, is there any dubiety on your mind in regard to the legality of your appointment, or the positiveness of the instructions? Now, suppose you go as appointed, and you deliver your message in an uncertain tone, or in a doubtful manner, or even tell them that you think the power who sent you means this, or that; or, that you believe such and such is the intention of your principal? What confidence would you inspire in the minds of those to whom you were sent? further; when your Principal learned of your hesitating, uncertain, vacillating manner, you would be quietly recalled and the mission entrusted to more worthy and competent hands.

T.—That is true as to worldly things, but we are dealing with sacred things, and you would hardly presume upon as much certainty in sacred things as in those with which we are dealing in the business of life—I mean secular matters. The spiritual is a matter of faith—"We walk by faith and not by sight," says one Apostle. It is presumption to pretend to know more than the Apostles.

-When God sent a message to Noah respecting the drowning of the world, was that an uncertain one? And when for one hundred and twenty years he raised the warning voice to that generation, did he deliver his message in an uncertain, hesitating way? or was it in the positive language of one who knew he had heard the word of God? Did the prophets use uncertain language when they were sent to Israel? Were they not commanded to "cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins.?" One of the distinguishing differences between Christ and the Jewish teachers was, "He taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes." (Matt. 7: 29). The scribes taught after the traditions of the Elders, but he spake of his own knowledge—that which his Father had cammanded him. And he declared: "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself." (John 7:17). Again: "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed, and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

Did he send his disciples with an uncertain message to the world? Read Matthew 28: 18-20; Mark 16: 15-20. In Matthew 16: 19, the seal of certainty is pledged, upon the faithful ministrations of his servants, as it is also in Matthew 18: 18; and John This was one purpose for 20: 22, 23. which the Holy Ghost was promised in John, chapters 14, 15 and 16, and that they might know the certainty whereof they speak. "If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle."-1 Cor. 14: 8. The Apostles, like Job, knew that their Redeemer lived. Like Jesus they could say: "We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen."-John 3: 11. God has revealhimself in the most positive manner, and and his character is of the most positive nature that it is possible for intelligence to conceive. And when you hear men who claim to be ambassadors for Jesus, talking in an uncertain manner, you may know that God has not sent them; or if he has, they do not believe the message entrusted to them. And in either case they are unfit to represent Christ and his gospel. Now for your reasons against the church

T.—I confess you have weakened one, but I have a host of others that you will find too hard for even you "Damascus blade." First, your church is of too obscure an origin. You claim as its founder, Joe Smith, a money digger, an ignorant youth, and an idle vagabond. Such a character God would not call as His messenger to man. Second you claim modern revelation as the authority for the foundation of the church, while the scriptures positively declare against any more revelation than that found in the Bible; and the last passage I shall quote even pronounces a curse upon the man who shall add more.

Third, you claim another Bible, which I represent.

Joe Smith pretended to find in a hill near Palmyra, New York, while all the world knows that he stole a manuscript from the Rev. Solomon Spaulding, or his widow, or from a printer's office, entitled "Manuscript Found," and then he pretended an Angel told him of its whereabouts, and that he translated it by the Urim and Thummim. This fable is really the foundation of your church, and this fulfills Paul's prophecy that "men should turn from the truth unto fables." These are some of my reasons for not accepting your church, and I have others which I will state in their time.

D.—I admire your frankness, but not your inconsistency in reproving me for my positive manner, for you make the most sweeping charges, and that, too, with a positiveness which seems not to admit the least possibility of error. But perhaps you think yourself justified in condemning, unheard, an individual or a community who differs from you in matter of faith. It is enough for you to know that they differ from you—this makes their condemnation just in your eyes. But let us examine your several indictments. "First, your church is of too obscure an origin." This is a serious charge; but let us see if it will not work equally damaging to Christianity in general. Need I refer you to the lowly babe in the manger at Bethlehem? the despised Nazarene? the reputed son of the carpenter? And then to his disciples—the grovelling fishermen of Galilee? It is true it was said that angels foretold and announced his birth, but no one saw or heard the angels but Mary, Elizabeth, Zechariah, Joseph, and the few simple shepherds who were watching their flocks by night. And did not the learned Rabbis conclude that this vulgar few had concocted the story, and then palmed it off on the ignorant multitude? How very like the origin of the church in the last days! Are you prepared to admit that the obscurity that surrounded Christ's birth militates against his divine calling, and the church of which he was the founder?

T.—Well—no—but you would not compare your church with that would you?

D.—Certainly. If it will not bear comparison in all things it can not be Christ's church.

T.—Well, what have you to say about Joe Smith?

D.—I have this to say, that gentlemen always call him by his proper name; and surely ministers of Christ can not do less. "By their fruits ye shall know them." This is not your only error. You say we claim Joseph Smith as our founder. Joseph Smith never made this claim for himself; and we would be unwise to claim more for him than he claimed for himself. We claim Jesus Christ as the founder of the church. Joseph Smith was simply an instrument in Christ's hands.

T.—Was not Smith a money digger? Do you think it likely that Christ would call such a man as that to such a sacred calling!

D.—Did not Christ call the fisherman Peter, and give him the keys of the kingdom? What more honorable is a fisherman's calling than that of a money digger?

If both are honestly pursued for the purpose of obtaining a livelihood, are they not equally honorable? Is it not considered a very honorable vocation to-day? If honorable now, where was the dishonor attaching to it in Joseph Smith's time, and in his case? Ministers have left their flocks to perish, in order that they might engage in the lucrative work of "money digging." And worse even than this, tens of thousands of ministers are preaching for money; and their love for the souls of men is measured by the amount of gold given to them for their services, while they well know that Zion has been ploughed as a field and Jerusalem has become heaps, because "The priests taught for hire, and the prophets divined for money." Micah. 3: 12. Thank God, you can not lay this charge at the feet of Joseph Smith.

T.—He was an idle vagabond; and idleness is an abomination to the Lord.

D.—This charge destroys your charge of his being a money digger. An idle man would make some one else dig the money, and then would carry off the spoil! If your former charge is true, the last is false, and vice versa. But let us ventilate this charge further. He was about fifteen years of age when he received his first vision, and thirty-eight when murdered in Carthage jail. You say he was a money digger. I will admit the charge for convenience sake, and add that to his labors in digging for money, he translated the plates of the Book of Mormon, consisting of over five hundred pages, into the English language, superintended the publishing of it in book form, organized a church with six members, presided over that church for fourteen years, preached the gospel and baptized many who came forward repenting of their sins, ordained many officers of various callings in the church, administered in all the ordinances of the gospel to thousands of people, received revelations for the government of the church, organized the Eldership into various quorums, instructed them in their several duties, compiled the revelations, comprising over three hundred pages, had the oversight of their publication in book form, was editor of a paper, founded many cities, (one of which contained sixteen thousand inhabitants), reared two temples, (one costing seventy-five thousand dollars and the other about one million), watched over the interests of the church both at home and abroad until that church, at his death, numbered one hundred and fifty thousand members—all this, together with carrying on a correspondence with church officials in various parts of the globe, acting as mayor of a city of sixteen thousand people and filling other offices of trust,all these duties nobly performed, forever destroy your charge of "idle vagabond," and prove him one of the most indefatigable and industrious men the world ever saw. So, if industry is one qualification for a servant of God, he proved himself worthy of the high and holy calling.

T.—Well, sir; you can not deny that he was ignorant. And do you think God would call an ignoramus in this nineteenth century?

D.—Keep cool, Doctor; I am only giving you facts. They should not hurt a minister. Now for your charge of ignorance. I grant you that he was an ignorant boy; but he did not glory in it. It was his misfortune, not his fault. Scholastic attainments when he was a boy were not as accessible as they are to-day. He deplored his ignorance and sought to remedy the evil by following the advice of the Apostle James, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God."—James 1:5. And the work he performed proves that he did not remain ignorant, but grew mightily in the wisdom of God and men. But your claim that God would not call an ignorant person, or one not learned in the schools, proves either that you do not read the Scriptures, or that you are not very observant of what you do read, and so the charge of ignorance may be found at your doors. Even Jesus had not the benefits of the schools of his day—"And the Jews marveled, saying, How knoweth this man letters, having never learned?"-John 7: 15. Of his Apostles it was said, "Behold, are not all these men Gallileans? and how hear we every man in our own tongue * * * the wonderful works of God?"— Acts 2:7, 12. "Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled."—Acts 4:13. "But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised hath God chosen, yea, and things that are not to bring to nought things that are; that no flesh should glory in his presence."—I Cor. 1:26-29. This is his plan and his purpose, nor will he change to please the caprice of the learned of the nineteenth century. He says, "I am the Lord, and I change not."-Mal. 3:6. Therefore, the hue and cry of ignorance against Joseph Smith, is equally applicable to God's servants in general, and is but the outburst of rebellion against God's eternal plan and purpose. His work standeth not in the wisdom of men, but in the hidden wisdom of the Almighty, and those who oppose it on the grounds you have opposed it on, should take heed lest they be found fighting against God. As for your charges of "obscurity of origin," "money digger," "ignorance," and "idleness," they fade away before the living facts as the dew before the morning sun; and your positive assertions dwindle down into idle "hear say" statements, and are such that you would be made ashamed of in a court of justice. Before we examine your other charges, let me beg of you to inform yourself, and so not prove yourself guilty of that which you deem a crime in Joseph Smith, namely, ignorance.

T.—That, I am told, is the way of you Latter Day Saints,—whenever any charges are brought against your prophet, you run to the scriptures and hunt up parallel cases and try to justify yourselves and him by the acts of others.

D.—I am sorry that you have to depend this time you would acquaint yourself with facts, and present them. It is unbecoming a gentleman of your profession and attainments to peddle hearsay statements. But perhaps you think "all means are fair in war," and such, I am sorry to say, is the practice of the clergy. We simply state in reply that no true Latter Day Saint will be found trying to justify wrong, either by the evil practices of men recorded in the Bible, or by wresting the sacred word. But we shall "run to the Bible" for evidences on doctrine, ordinances, precepts and promises, and to show God's method of working among men, and the instruments used. And if we find such means used by Him to-day, it is another proof of the immutability of his nature and wondrous working. Is God's word offensive to you, Doctor?

T.—No, sir; but I think it is a dangerous weapon in the hands of unskilled men.

D.—Such men should ask God for wisdom, as Joseph Smith did, and the promise is "It shall be given them." This, however, may render new revelation necessary, And now I remember, you stated that "The Scriptures positively declare against any more revelation than that found in the Bible." I plead guilty to being ignorant of any such scripture, and you will confer a great favor on me by citing a few passages that contain that declaration, directly or indirectly.

T.—Sir, I go farther; I assert that the Bible contains all the revelations that God ever gave to man, and that he will never give any more.

D.—Will you prove your assertion?

T.—Why, it is all there is! If any more had been given we should have had it. And the fact that we don't have it is evidence that there is not, and never was any

D.—Without stopping to criticize your bad logic, which even a child would scorn to use, I will ask you to read with me the following Scriptures. Joshua 10: 13,—"Is not this written in the Book of Jasher." Also 2 Samuel 1: 18,—"Behold, it is written in the Book of Jasher." Here are two events recorded in a book—"The book of the upright," as the word Jasher signifies. One of these events was the stupendous one of staying the sun in its course at the command of Joshua. To this book of the upright these sacred writers refer for evidence; and if we could read that book, undoubtedly it would dispel the darkness that hangs around the history of that transaction. The fact that it is referred to by these writers goes far to prove that record divine in its origin. It was preserved from the time of Joshua to the time of David at least; and how long before Joshua, and how long after David it existed, we have no data. It may have been a more complete history of God's dealings kept by the upright in the different ages, while the Bible contains very brief sketches, and is necessarily very incomplete. In In I Kings, 11:41, "The book of the acts of Solomon" is mentioned, and the book of Nathan the prophet, the prophecy of Ahijah the Shilonite, and the visions of upon what you are told. I thought by Iddo the seer, are mentioned in 2 Chron.

9:29; also the "Book of Shemaiah the prophet," in 2 Chron. 12:15, the story of the Iddo, chapter 13:22; the story of the book of the Kings, 2 Chron. 24; 27; "acts of Uzziah" written by the prophet Isaiah, 2 Chron. 26: 22; "book of Gad the seer," 1 Chron. 29: 29; "sayings of the seers," 2 Chron. 33: 19; "Law of the Lord;" 2 Chron. 36: 26; "Book of Jehu," 2 Chron. 20: 34; Jehu was a prophet, 1 Kings 16: Late and according to Lude Enoch was 1-7; and according to Jude, Enoch was a prophet, and Noah was also a prophet. There were many prophets among the children of Israel in the time of Moses and in Samuel's time. King Saul also prophesied. The inspired apostles Paul and Jude, wrote epistles to the churches in their day, that are not known now. See 1 Cor. 5:9; Jude 3. Many prophets and prophetesses lived in the time of the apostles. The wonderful works of God spoken by the Saints on the day of Pentecost are not on record in the Bible. Surely, all these visions, prophecies and books were essential, or they would not have been delivered or written. Here then we see that your reasoning is incorrect,-more revelations have been given, but we do have them, hence the Bible is not all that God gave to man.

Selections.

MORMON ELDERS.

THERE arrived in this city from Salt Lake on Saturday, a party of Mormons, consisting of four men and three women, en route to Honolulu, on a missionary tour of the Sandwich Islands. The leader of the party, Jacob F. Gates, of Provo, Utah, was seen yesterday morning by a Chronicle reporter in the Brooklyn Hotel, but was found so busy in making arrangements for embarking on the steamer for Honolulu, that only the merest outline of their plans and opinions could be obtained. In answer to inquiries he said that this was not his first visit to the islands, as he had spent three years there about six years ago. It was quite a mistake to say, as some of the papers did, that they were on their way to establish a Mormon colony in the Sandwich Islands. As a matter of fact, a very thriving colony, numbering about four thousand members, has existed there since 1852, and they are much respected by the inhabitants.

"Whatever may be said against the Mormons," continued Mr. Gates, "this much, at least, must be conceded—that they are a quiet, industrious people, and, from their own point of view, a moral people as well, and they have become in consequence very great favorites with the islanders. Their sugar plantation at Laie, on the island of Oahu, is very thriving, and King Kalakaua and members of his household pay frequent visits to those living there, showing them many marks of

"Do you go to remain there permanently?"

"I shall be there at least three years, and possibly more, engaged in the work of our church. The Kanakas, of whom we have twelve or thirteen at Salt Lake City, are taking very kindly to our doctrines and instructions, and there is every prospect of an excellent future for our work there. Mrs. Lucy B. Young and her daughter, Mrs. McAllister, who came to this city from Provo about three weeks ahead of us, will accompany us, to Laie, but only for a visit."

PERSECUTION AND POLYGAMY.

"Would you mind stating what is the position of affairs in Utah, and what are likely to be the results of the recent proceedings under the Edmunds act?"

"I am very unwilling to make any statement in this connection. Our opinions and utterances are so frequently distorted and misrepresented in the press that hardly any of our elders and missionaries care to be interviewed, and are, for obvious reasons, never willing to make any such statement as you ask for. One of the effects of what we call the persecution under the Edmunds act is to cause a stagnation of Everything is very dull in business. Utah, and what the further commercial results may be, if the persecutions continue, it is not easy to predict. Of one thing, however, we are assured, and that is, that with our trust in an overruling Providence, the religious freedom which we demand as our right will be given to us in the long The present persecution does not in the least weaken our faith in the ultimate triumph of the Church. Indeed, we have for years expected what we are now undergoing, and it is therefore no surprise to us.

"To what extent is polygamy practiced among your people?"

"By no means to the extent supposed. The vast majority of Latter Day Saints are monogamists, though every one of them believes in the principle of plurality of wives, or polygamy, as you call it. A Latter Day Saint, if he is to be a true and consistent one, must accept the doctrines as a whole or not at all. There is no room for compromise within the pale of our church."

THE JOSEPHITES.

"What do you call the body which we have in this city known as 'The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints?"

"We call them simply apostates from the Mormon Church. We have not, and can not have, any communion or fellowship with them inasmuch as they reject a cardinal tenet of our faith—plurality of wives. They are working hard in Utah with the avowed object of proselyting as many of our members as possible, but they are meeting with nothing but the most meager success. It is a very rare thing, indeed, for a Mormon to apostatize, and, when he does, he nearly always becomes an infidel, scarcely ever joining another church. I could not say exactly what is the reason that this is so, but it is."

"What was the meaning of the halfmasting of the Stars and Stripes on the Fourth of July in Salt Lake?"

"I can youch for it that there was not the slightest idea among our people of insulting the American flag or nation, but some allowance, if not excuse, must surely be made for them, for several of their most honored leaders were at that time languishing in jail, and the same fate was hanging over others."

"Where do you find the greater number of your recruits?"

We get them from all parts of Europe, but mostly from the more northerly countries, such as Norway, Sweden, Germany and the British Isles. We have numbers from all parts of England, a good many from Wales, and not a few from Scotland."—San Francisco Chronicle.

"I AM FREE AT LAST."

MANY people are in the habit of studying the last words of dying men, to see if they indicate in what channel the mind was running. Others, who have deep religious beliefs, study dying words to see if from them some glimpse into the profound beyond this life can not be obtained. Without following either path, it seems to us that the last words of Vice-President Hendricks were exactly the words which any old politician and statesman, or of any other overworked man of sixty-six would, could he send a message back from the other shore, return to this world. No more struggles; no more cares; no more defeats; no more empty triumphs; no more hollow honors; no more delayed hopes. "I am free at last; send for Eliza." In eight brief words the tired man, tired unto death, gave to the world notice that all its honors were as nothing; that the only thing on earth worth the final cherishing of a man, was home and the affections which make the real home a shrine. He must have felt that his supreme moment was at hand; that he was free; but he wanted one more glance at the face of the woman who has been all in all to him through so many years; the woman who has held up his arms a hundred times when he was ready to faint; who cheered him on; who, with abiding faith in her husband and in herself, has always believed that "the greatest was behind;" no wonder when the calm of the grave began to steal over him and he felt that he was "free at last," he wanted the brave wife near him. No thought of the honors that were his came to him then; no thoughts of the hard fights that he had lost and won; no thoughts of what might be, could life be spared to him for a few years more. Only over him stole the ineffable peace of the eternal rest into which he was sinking, and the only wish was that she who for forty years had been his better self might be near. In such a death the American home receives its fullest vindication, and the sacred name of wife takes on new dignity and new honor. Ambition may be satiated or outlived; the highest triumphs may lose their enchantment; the struggle for fame or gold may at last become a burden. Then there is nothing left except the sacred circle of home and the affections which give to home their charm It is only there that the tired man can turn and feel that he is free at last; the great world for him contracts to that little circle and there the miracle of babyhood is repeated for him as loving voices make a lullaby, in listening to which, unconsciously he sinks into his final sleep.

Salt Lake Tribune.

HOLY GHOST POWER.

THE church thus baptized will grasp every promise of revelation with the strength of God. If God says, "The kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ," that declaration settles the question and they look for it with absolute certainty. Faith, mighty faith, the promise sees and looks at this alone; laughs at impossibilities, and cries, It shall be done. Such, we believe, will be the effect of the Holy Ghost in the ministry and membership, on the laborers in home and foreign lands.

Before we see the conversion of the masses, the church of our Lord Jesus Christ must receive another Pentecostal baptism of the Holy Ghost, with tongues like as fire. All our places of worship should be shaken by the rushing, mighty wind, until they are all filled with the Holy Ghost. Then will a power go forth from the church which shall shake the world. No substitute will do. It is a power from heaven. With the Holy Ghost in us, it will be said of us, as it was of Alleine, who was infinitely and insati-ably greedy for the conversion of souls, and to that end he poured out his very heart in prayer and in searching. Possessed of this spirit, Matthew Henry said, "I would think it a greater happiness to gain one soul to Christ, than mountains of gold to myself." David Brainard could say, "I cared not how I lived or what hardships I went through, so I could but gain souls to Christ; the first thing I thought of, was the great work of saving souls." How often did John Smith cry out in the earnestness of his soul: "O, Lord give me souls or else I die!"

To what extent do these Christ-like yearnings touch chords of sympathy in the church of our Lord Jesus Christ. How far do they awaken responding echoes in the soul of those who bear the vessels of the Lord? O, let us be clothed with the mighty power of the Holy Ghost that soul, brain, heart and purse may be all for Jesus and the salvation of the world. The great need of our day is the Holy Ghost power.

DRY SUMMERS AND SEVERE WINTERS.

In the years 1303 and 1304, the rivers Rhine, Loire, and Seine ran dry. The heat in several French provinces during the summer of 1705 was equal to that in a glass furnace. Meat could be cooked by merely exposing it to the sun. Not a soul dare venture out of doors between noon and four p.m. In 1718, many shops had to close, and the places of amusement had to close for three or four months. Not a drop of water fell for six months. In 1773 the thermometer rose to 118 degree. In 1779 the heat at Bologna was so great that a great number of people were stifled. There was not sufficient air to breathe, and people had to take refuge under ground. In July, 1793, the heat again became unbearable. Vegetation and fruit dried upon the trees. The furniture and woodwork in the houses cracked and split up; meat went bad in an hour. The winters were more severe. Wine and spirits froze in their cellars and had to be cut up in blocks, and thawed. Carnivals were held on the rivers, and amusements were indulged in.

THE USE OF AN ENEMY.

ALWAYS keep an enemy on hand, a brisk, hearty, active enemy. The having one is proof that you are somebody. washy, empty, worthless people never have enemies. Men who never move, never run against anything; and when a man is thoroughly dead and utterly buried, nothing ever runs against him. To be run against is proof of existence and position; to run against something is proof of motion. An enemy is, to say the least, not partial to you. He will not flatter. He will not exaggerate your virtues. It is very probable that he will slightly magnify your faults. The benefit of that is twofold. It permits you to know that you have faults, and are, therefore, not a monster; and it makes them of such size as to be visible and manageable. Of course, if you have a fault, you desire to know it; when you become aware that you have a fault, you desire to correct it. Your enemy does for you this valuable work which your friend can not perform. In addition, your enemy keeps you wide awake. He does not let you sleep at your post. There are two that always keep watch, namely, the lover and the hater. Your lover watches that you may sleep. He keeps off noises, excludes light, adjusts surroundings, that nothing may disturb you. Your hater watches that you may not sleep. He stirs you up when you are napping. He keeps your faculties on the alert. Even when he does nothing, he will have put you in such a state of mind that you can not tell what he will do next, and this mental qui vive must be worth something.

He is a detective among your friends. You need to know who are your friends, and who are not, and who are your enemies. The last of these will discriminate the other two. When your enemy goes to one who is neither friend nor enemy, and assails you, the indifferent one will have nothing to say, or chime in, not because he is your enemy, but because it is so much easier to assent than to oppose, and especially than to refute. But your friend will take up cudgels for you on the instant. He will deny everything, and insist on proof, and proving is very hard work. There is not a truthful man in the world that could afford to undertake to prove onetenth of all his assertions. Your friend will call your enemy to the proof, and if the indifferent person, through carelessness, repeats the assertions of your enemy, he is soon made to feel the inconvenience thereof by the zeal your friend manifests.

Follow your enemy around, and you will find your friends; for he will have developed them so that they can not be mistaken. The next best thing to having a hundred real friends is to have one open enemy.—
Sunshine at Home, p. 96.

Conserence Minutes.

CENTRAL KANSAS.

Conference of the above district convened at the Good Intent Branch, November 21st and 22d, 1885. D. Williams, president; Griffiths George, clerk. Report of Branches.-Netawaka 32. Good Intent 27; 1 baptized, 2 removed by letter. Scranton 33; 3 expelled. Centralia, no report. Elders' reports.--H. Green, J. D. Jones, W. Hopkins, D. Williams, W. Gurwell, C. Herzing, G. George, D. Munns; by letter: J. B. Jarvis, J. Buckley. Priests H. Parker, J. Macdogle, J. Price; Teacher W. Thatcher. Hiram Parker, Bishop's Agent, reported on hand $1695. Elder Williams tendered his resignation as president; accepted, with a vote of thanks for past labors. Elder William Hopkins was elected president of the district for three months. Hiram Parker to be ordained an Elder. D. Munns and H. Parker were appointed to visit the Fanning members, with instructions to organize them into a branch. D. Munns to continue his labors in Atchison; all officers to labor as circumstances may permit. Preaching on Saturday evening by Elder Griffiths George; on Sunday forenoon by Elder Henry Green. Prayer and testimony meeting in the afternoon conducted by H. Parker and W. Hopkins. Sunday evening preaching by Elder D. Williams, assisted by W. Gurwell. Adjourned to meet at Netawaka, on the 20th and 21st of February, 1886.

FAR WEST.

The above district conference convened at the German Branch, Stewartsville, Missouri. Bro. Joseph R. Lambert was called to the chair; S. Butler, secretary pro. tem. Branch reports.—Far West 33; removed 1. St. Joseph 91; baptized 3, 5 received by vote on evidence of membership in first organization. German Stewartsville 59. Center Prairie 28; baptized three. Delano 78; baptized 4, received by letter 3, expelled 1. Stewartsville 71; received by letter 1, removed by letter 2. Stewartsville City 89; baptized 19, received by letter 35, removed by letter 9, expelled 3, died 1. Pleasant Grove 47; removed by letter 2. Elder's reports.-J. T. Kinneman, preached several times in Illinois, St. Joseph and Stewartsville; Wm. Summerfield preached nearly every Sunday; D. Craven (baptized 1); J. Snider (baptized 2); A. J. Seely and D. J. Powell, reported. D.S. Crawley labored in Stewartsville and vicinity, baptized 6; T. Worral and T. T. Hinderks preached several times; E. T. Dobson reported by letter. Bro. Hopkins, D. Munns, H. Parker, S. Smith, J. Drown (baptized 4), J. H. Meriam, W. Lewis and J. D. Flanders, reported. Priests W. H. Kelly (baptized 1), A. W. Head, F. Uphoff, J. Hardacre and D. R. Baldwin, reported. Teachers W. Wells, and Deacon C. Household, reported. Brn. S. Butler, Summerfield and Meriam, were appointed as a Court of Elders to investigate an appeal case of Sr. Cadman. Bishop's Agent's report for eleven months: money received $183.-

o6, expended $152.15; balance on hand $31.91. Audited by Brn. Butler, Niedorp and Head, and found correct. Committee report on Stewartsville Branch recommend that the country branch shall drop the name of Stewartsville, and take another, was adopted. J. T. Kinneman was sustained as president, -W. Lewis as vice-president, and C. P. Faul chosen district secretary. Wm. Lewis sustained as Bishop's Agent. Bro. D. S. Crawley preached on Saturday evening. Prayer meeting on Sunday morning. Preaching on Sunday forenoon by Joseph R. Lambert. Social meeting in the afternoon. Preaching by Bro. Lambert in the evening. Adjourned to meet at St. Joseph, Mo., the last Saturday in February, 1886, at ten o'clock.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICE OF MOTION TO AMEND ARTI-CLES OF REPRESENTATION.

To Whom it May Concern:-

We hereby give notice that at the General Conference to convene at Lamoni, Iowa, April 6th, 1886, we will introduce the following motion. "Resolved, That provision four of section three of the Articles of Representation which reads: 'Provided 4th, That no one delegate shall represent in the same conference more than one district,' be stricken out, and the following inserted in lieu thereof: 'Provided 4th, That no one delegate shall be entitled to cast, as representative, in the same conference, more than twenty votes.'"

HEMAN C. SMITH, E. L. KELLY.

DIED.

HUTCHINGS.—At Woodland, Yolo county, California, October 8th, 1885, Owen Lyman, only son of Bro. L. E. and Sr. Margaret I. Hutchings; was born February 27th, 1884. Eleven days before our little darling died he was poisoned by eating a mixture of honey and cobalt, which had been prepared and placed on the dining room table for killing flies. A few days after eating the poison a hard fever set in, and our little darling was taken from us; aged 1 year, 7 months, and 21 days; was blessed Sunday, April 5th, 1884, by Brn. W. W. Blair and John Carmichael.

Huston.—At Omaha, Nebraska, December 3d, 1885, Lillian Ethel, only child of W. J. and Sr. Rosa Huston, age 11 months. Funeral sermon preached by Bro. Oscar Brown.

"Sleep, dearest Ethel, and take your rest; God called thee home, he thought it best; 'Twas hard indeed to part with thee; But Christ's strong arm supported me."

A DREAM IN RESPECT TO CHARLES NUTT.

About twelve o'clock at night, in my dream my brother appeared to me, and I knew not where he came from. He was far above me in the air. I thought at the time he was standing on a high building, as he was so much higher up than I; yet I could not see the building. When I saw him I felt happy, for he stood before me just as natural as in life, with both of his arms. I was pleased to see him; but instead of a smiling countenance he had a grave and thoughtful one. This hurt my feelings, as I thought he was not glad to see me. He spoke and merely called my name—"Carrie." I looked up and said—"Oh, Charley! Charley!" and then let my eyes drop, as I seemed very much disappointed with the manner in which he greeted me. He made some response to my call, but I do not, nor did I at the time, know what it was, for I was in a great hurry to ask him something, thinking he would soon leave me. The first question I asked him was this—"Charley; are you happy where you are?" This was what I had desired to know from the time of his death. And something seemed to whisper to me, Now is your time to ask him.

His answer was like this—"Happy! Yes, Carrie; I am happy; but my happiness is far different from yours. The pleasure and enjoyment I see is not in laughing and enjoying myself as you do upon the earth. It is far different. Why, Carrie, I did not know I could be so useful. There is much work for me to do. I am at the present time preaching and pleading with the wicked in prison. And it is enjoyment for me to turn them from their erring ways. And you do not know what good you can do. I always thought I never could do any good, but I have found that I was mistaken. I can do more than I thought I could."

He seemed to be in a deep study, and paused for a while in his conversation; and then he said:

"Carrie, do you see those two bright stars?" pointing with his finger upwards as he spoke, using the arm that in life was amputated. Then I looked in the direction in which he pointed, and while we were both gazing at them, I answered: "Yes, Charley; what of that?" Then his eyes rested upon me, while he still kept pointing at the stars. "Why," said he, "one of those stars is going to fall; and when it does fall, it will be a wonder to me if it does not kill many, many." Then I said, "Do you think so?' And he said, "Yes; and there is one person it will kill almost instantly."

And before he got through speaking I saw one of the stars fall, making a bright light, and a roaring noise something like that of distant thunder. Then my brother turned and and looked in the opposite direction from where the star fell, and as I saw a smile wreath his face for the first time, I wondered what he was looking at. And, following his gaze, I saw my neice (Bro. Anthony's daughter) coming towards us with her little sister and baby brother. And when they came up to where we were, he said, smilingly to them: "There is little Pearl and Herman." Then he said, "How is darling little Pearl?" And he acted as if he wanted to ask my neice some questions about home, as a person would that had been away for a long time; but she heeded not his question, and instead of being pleased to see him as I had been, she dropped her head and wept in silence, Then we parted, she and I leaving my brother and the children together.

Your sister in Christ,

CARRIE NUTT.

SHELTER IN PASTURES.

In some sections of the country pastures are supplied with shade trees that serve as a shelter from the rays of a scorching sun and a partial shelter from the pelting of the merciless storm. When this natural provision does not exist some sort of shelter should be provided temporarily. This may be accomplished by erecting one or two sheds without any siding—a simple roof that while affording shelter also admits a free circulation of air. This of course for early spring or late fall shelter when storms prevail would not be as suitable as an enclosed structure. When pastures are so situated as to have no open connection with the barnyard or farm buildings to which the cattle can go for shelter from the storm, it would be well to erect a shed with large doors that may be thrown open in hot weather or kept closed for stormy weather.

"A structure of this kind need not be expensive nor so elaborate in construction but that any farmer of average capacity could erect it alone. The roof might be made of boards and replaced when worn or too badly warped. All the lumber that need be required would be two sills of the length of the building required, six by six inches, two of a length to correspond with the width of the structure; four or six posts of the same dimensions, six feet long, (as the shelter need not be high), two plates and two cross-beams, (or three if the length requires that the middle be tied) four by six inches; a ridge pole of the length of the building; two pieces four by four inches to serve as purlin plates, with which to form the roof of boards, putting them on up and down, and some short pieces to use for braces and to support ridge pole and purlins, and studding for the doors. The sills may be halved together, also the plates and cross beams, and the posts cut square and spiked. Such a structure twelve by twenty feet would require about 600 feet of timber and 1000 feet of boards and a few pounds of nails. Is there a farmer who is unwilling to do so little for the comfort of his animals?

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.

Beloved Brethren in Christ:—Never was a time, perhaps, when God's people had more need, with prayer and supplication and thanksgiving, to spread forth their hands towards heaven. We affectionately and earnestly invite you, whether singly or collectively, to lift up your hearts and voices to God during the Week of Prayer appointed for the ensuing year.

We live in wonderful days. Men go to and fro, and knowledge increases everywhere. Is it to be said that while the lightning encompasses the earth with its belt of wire, and while men have frequent, and almost instantaneous, communications with each other in far off regions of the globe, Christians make but feeble use of that more wonderful power of prayer, by which they communicate with heaven?

"At the beginning of the supplication the commandment came forth"—was the response conveyed by the angel Gabriel to Daniel's petitions. Not even need the instrument be set in motion; not one solitary moment of time is necessary. He who hears prayer has created the desire to pray; the disposition is from Him; He puts it into our hearts to summon you into that blessed communication with Himself, which is quicker than the lightning flash, and surer than the strongest cable. We may therefore humbly say, while inviting you to join in our Annual Week of Prayer, "The Lord hath heard us. God is with us!"

Hitherto the divine blessing has rested remarkably upon the Universal week of prayer. Year after year we receive (praised be God) renewed tokens of increasing interest in these gatherings. The zone of supplication and thanksgiving is ever widening, so that it encompasses more and more the peoples and the countries of the whole earth. Let us pray, pray on. Oh! when shall he come; when shall he reign amongst us, to whom the right belongs? When shall wars and rumors of wars cease? When shall vice and sin and misery no longer ravage or destroy? When shall the darkness of idolatry and superstition be turned into the eternal light? God in his mercy grant that our fervent and united prayers may, in the chain of his marvelous Providence, prepare the way for the conversion of the nations, for the more speedy manifestation of the kingdom of his dear son, and for the creation of all things anew in Christ.

We remain, in brotherly love, on behalf of the Evangelical Alliance,

Yours faithfully,

Committee.

TOPICS SUGGESTED FOR EXHORTATION AND PRAYER

Sunday, Jan. 3.—Sermons.—"Occupy till I come."—Luke 19: 13.

Monday, Jan. 4—Praise and Thanksgiving.—For the spirit of prayer vouchsafed to us; for all the bounties of providence; for God's long-suffering goodness in that He has not taken away His Holy Spirit from us on account of our little faith and many provocations; for His faithful promises in Christ Jesus; for continuing and multiplying opportunities of proclaiming His gospel of grace; for the progress of Christian missions among Jews and Gentiles, and the free course given to the word of the Lord, notwithstanding all the opposition of infidelity and abounding iniquity.

Tuesday, Jan. 5.—Humiliation and Confession. National sins; social sins; personal sins. Want of appreciation of the love of Christ; hardness of heart; unfaithfulness and slothfulness in service; false shame in confessing the name of Christ before men, and especially among our own class and kindred. Want of zeal in missionary work, both at home and abroad. Want of brotherly kindness and charity.

Wednesday, Jan. 6.—Home and Foreign Missions.—For the revival and increase of a missionary spirit in the hearts of all who believe; for home missions and evangelistic efforts—that more laborers, full of the spirit of love and power, may be sent forth, and that a great ingathering of souls may take place; for native Christians among the heathen—that they may be kept steadfast and zealous in seeking the salvation of their countrymen; for missionaries and teachers—that great grace and wisdom may be given to them; for God's ancient people, Israel—that they may be brought into the faith of Christ; and for the maintenance of religious liberty in all lands.

Thursday. Jan. 7.—The Church and the Family.—That the Church of Christ may be more united in the bonds of faith and love; that, holding fast the Head, it may grow with the increase of God; that it may be delivered from false apostles and wolves in sheep's clothing; that Christ may be all in all in its teaching; and that the grace and power of the Holy Spirit may rest more and more on Christian families; on all instructors and pupils in institutions of learning, on Sunday Schools, and on Christian associations of young men and young women.

Friday, Jan. 8.—Nations and Governments.—For rulers and all in authority; for the spread of justice and peace; for the defeat of malicious plots and conspiracies; for the manifestation of a Christian spirit between employers and employed; for the removal of all race and sectional prejudices; for the abolition of traffic in slaves, opium, and intoxicating drinks, and all other immoral trades and practices; for a favorable reception of Christian missions by heathen rulers and peoples; and for the coming of Christ in his Kingdom.

Saturday, Jan. 9.—The Christian Life.—For increase of faith, hope, and charity; for the deepening of our spiritual life in Christ and such conformity to him as may fit us for being more used for our Savior's glory; for more love to the Bible; for the better observance of the Lord's day and of family worship; for the success of efforts to prevent or cure intemperance, to relieve the sick, and to rescue the perishing; for benevolent institutions and Christian work of all kinds.

Sunday, Jan. 10.—Sermons.—"Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord."—Luke 12:35, 36.

EGYPT'S DEBTS.

EGYPTIAN finances still continue to monopolize public attention in Europe, and will, in all probability, continue to do so for months, if not for years, to come. For years past Egypt has been unable to pay her debts without borrowing money. She has borrowed largely and mortgaged her income to her creditors. Hence her present difficulties. If Europe had not come to her assistance she would, within the next two or three weeks, become bankrupt, and the bondholders would have to go short. But Europe has now backed up the bondholders by advancing $45-000,000 at 31/2 per cent interest, which Egypt, in addition to all her other liabilities, will have to pay. As most of the $45,000,000 of indebtedness has been brought about by British interference, Great Britain should, in justice, pay the money; or, at least, that country should pay the $25,000,-000 which is to be paid in the shape of indemnities for property destroyed by the bombardment of Alexandria. That bombardment was purely an English act. The Admiral who directed the bombardment has been made a peer and presented with a magnificent reward for his services. But Egypt-poor and defenseless Egypt-has to pay the piper to the tune of some $1,750,000 a year forever. This is another stone principally tied around the neck of the old mother of the world's civilization by British hands.-Chicago Fournal.

THE BIBLE AND GOD.

The Bible is the best book in the world.—John Adams.

There is a book worth all others which were ever printed.—Patrick Henry.

The Bible furnishes the only fitting vehicle to express the thoughts that overwhelm us when contemplating the stellar universe.—O. M. Mitchell.

All human discoveries seem to be made only for the purpose of confirming more and more strongly the truth contained in the sacred Scriptures.—Sir John Herschel.

The grand old Book of God still stands, and this old earth, the more its leaves are turned over and pondered, the more it will sustain and illustrate the sacred word.—Prof. Dana.

In my investigation of natural science, I have always found that whenever I can meet with anything in the Bible on my subjects, it always affords me a firm platform on which to stand.— Lieut. Maury.

ALL THE BAD GONE OUT.

THEY were going to whip a man at the public post at Glendale, Va., and three or four of us rode over from the Malvern Hill battle-field to see the operation. The culprit was a burley, big negro, and the audience, numbering about 500, was mostly composed of blacks. When we reached the scene the man was already triced up. They had his wrists lashed to a cross-bar on the post, his sleek and greasy back was bare, and he was trying hard to work his courage up to meet his fate like a white man.

"Hi! dar Moses—doan you wish you hadn't?" queried one of the crowd.

"Nigger, you go 'long!"

"I'll bet he'll squirm like an eel!"

"An' you'll h'ar him holler a mile away!"

He answered most of them gruffly, but one could see that he was "rattled." When the official finally appeared, strap in hand, Moses broke down and began to beg. Not one black person in that whole crowd seemed to pity him. Indeed, his own wife pushed into the front rank, her face covered with a grin, and called out:

"I dun tole ye, ole man! Reckon dey am gwin to tickle ye all over!"

The official laid on the strap and counted out one—two—three—and so on in a loud voice, and when he had reached thirty-nine old Moses was the worst licked darkey in Virginia. After the third blow he yelled and prayed and begged, and his wife sat down on the ground and waved her arms around and shouted:

"Jist you harken to him! He hain't got no mo' grit dan a boy fo' y'ars ole!"

After the licking one of our party inquired of Moses how he felt.

"I feel dat de bad has all gone outer me, sah."
"And you won't steal again?"

"No, sah. If you should lay a millyum dollars down dar in de road dis chile wouldn't never tech it. No, sah. He'd jump de fence an' make a break fur de woods!"

"This will be a warning to you."

"Yes, sah. From dis time out I ain't gwine to do nuffin' but git up camp-meetin's and show dese yere niggers de path to glory!"

A CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

A CORRESPONDENT writes as follows in relation to the sanitary power of a well known plant: "I have discovered a remedy for pulmonary consumption. It has cured a number of cases after they had commenced bleeding at the lungs, and the hectic flush was already on the cheek. After trying this remedy to my own satisfaction, I thought philanthropy required that I should let it be known to the world. It is the common mullen, steeped strong and sweetened with coffee sugar and drank freely. The herb should be gathered before the fifth of July, if convenient. Young or old plants are good, dried in the shade and kept in clean paper bags. The medicine must be continued from three to six months according to the nature of the disease. It is good for the blood vessels also. It strengthens the system, and builds up instead of taking away strength. It makes good blood, and takes inflammation from the lungs. It is the wish of the writer that every periodical in the United States, Canada and Europe, should publish this recipe for the benefit of the human family. Lay this up and keep it in the house ready for use."

"HOLINESS" AMONG SOUTHERN METHODISTS.

A PROMINENT Methodist layman said yesterdayi."You are going to see serious trouble come from the 'holiness' movement. I do not refer so much to its evil effects on individuals, which have already been great and will be worse, but to the disorganizing influence it will have on the church. The present spirited discussion among prominent ministers on the subject only foreshadows a severer contest that is bound to come in the councils of the church. I think those who profess the 'holiness' theory will be carried further and further in their peculiar notions, until some declaration of the doctrine of the Methodist Church on the question of sanctification will be made by the General Conference. There is hardly a possibility that any declaration by the sober sense of the church on this question will meet the views of the organized 'holiness' people. Many of them are so enthused with their dogma that they will never surrender it, and a schism in the church will be the result."-Atlanta Constitu-

WEARING ORNAMENTS.

Judson tells the following circumstances as illustrating the natural effects of Christianity among the Karens: "A Karen woman offered herself for baptism. After the usual examination, I asked if she would give up her ornaments for Christ. It was an unexpected blow. I explained the spirit of the gospel. I appealed to her own consciousness of vanity. I read to her the apostle's prohibition. I Tim. 2:9. She looked again and again at her handsome necklace: then with an air of modest decision that would adorn, beyond all ornaments, any of my sisters whom I have the honor of addressing, she took it off saying: "I love Christ more than this."

What think ye of this, ye Christian women of Christian America? You who bedeck yourselves with gold and precious jewels, as if it were your only work to advertise a jewelry store, or contradict the demands of of God. Will you lay off these things for Christ?

GT. Griffiiths, No. 6 North Second-st., Pittsfield, Mass.

WANTED A PARTNER.

I am a BOOT AND SHOE MAKER and have a good shop and good stand, and I want a partner with $200 or $300 at once, to go in with me at McFall, Gentry co., Mo. 19dec1t J. W. JOHNSON.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Problem of Human Life, Here and Hereafter, by
A. Wilford Hall; 524 pages, in cloth boards. 1 50
Universalism Against Itself, by A. Wilford Hall; in cloth boards, 336 pages 1 00
Josephus, complete in I vol., library leather. 3 50
Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire,
cloth boards, 5 vols. 4 00
Mosheim's Church History, cloth boards, 2 vols. 4 00
Baldwin's Ancient America, (Illustrated) cloth, 1 80
Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one, leather 4 00
The Koran, library leather 2 00
Gieseler's Ecclesiastical History, from A.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols. 10 00
The Ecclesiastical History of Ensebins Pamphilus,
Bishop of Cæsarea, in Palestine, cloth boards 2 00
Cruden's Complete Concordance of the Bible, cloth 1 75
The Bible Text Book. 100
Apocryphal New Testament 56
Brown's Concordance of the Bible 66
Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size. 85
Five Quires of Note Paper, 120 sheets. 40
Five Quires of Note Paper, better quality 50

MILLWRIGHT.

WILL Build, Overhaul, and Repair all kinds of work in Millwrighting; can make changes from BURRS to the ROLLER PROCESS in the latest improved style. Diagrams and Plans furnished free if I am employed to do the work; if not, I will furnish them reasonably. Work done by the day to suit times.

Yours in bonds.

L. L. WIGHT, Ridgeway. Harrison Co., Mo. 5decim

NEW BOOKS!

We have just added a full line of John B. Alden's books to our stock of Drugs and Notions.We also carry full line of CHURCH PUBLICATIONS.

Catalogues sent on application.

Books sent by Mail, prepaid, at regular piice.

HANSEN & WALKER, Druggists and Booksellers, Lamoni, Iowa.

NOTICE.

In the matter of the Incorporation of Lamoni, in Decatur county. Iowa.

Notice is hereby given to all parties concerned, that an election was held by the commissioners duly appointed for that purpose, within the surveyed limits of Lamoni, in Decatur county, and State of Iowa (plat whereof is now on file in this office) at which the question of the incorporation or non-incorporation of said territory was submitted to the legal voters therein; and it appearing, from the returns of said election now on file in this office, that due notice of the same was given, as by the statute required, and that at said election a majority of the votes cast were in favor of incorporation. It is, therefore, by reason of the result of said election, declared that said territory be hereafter known as the Incorporated town of

In witness whereof I hereunto affix my official signi ture, this 18th day of November, A. D., 1885,

E. J. SANKEY, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Decatur County, Iowa.

FARM FOR SALE.

I have Sixty Acres of Land for sale: 37 acres in Grass, 17 acres in new Timber Land, about 3 acres of Standing Timber, and two acres of Orchard; a good Spring Well on the place, a House, Barn, and Granary.

Price: Six Hundred Dollars, Cash Down. The land is situated north of Jeff rsonville, Wayne Co., Illinois. Apply to

MRS. F. P. MOLLOY, Cleveland, Iowa.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L. F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville, Mo., and have always found it fair, square and honest in all its trensactions:

T. T. Hinderks, T. Duras McKee, G. W. W. ICOX, Alexander McCallum, S. L. Blake, James L. Blake, W. N. Boothe, Robert Jones, The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men whose recommendation are worth something.

Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands.

COME AND SEE OUR PAPER,

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS. Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Hansen & Walker's Drug Store.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.	-
Sunday School Engineer and Record Book	35
	00
Good Behavior Tickets Same price.
	25
	20
No. 106.—Fancy Borders, 2x2½; 10 for 5c 100 for	40
No. 461.—Book Markers, 2x6; 10 for Sc., 100 for	70
No. 281.—Book Markers, 21/2 x6: 10 for 25c., 100 for2	25
No. 371.—Flowers and Verses, 21/4 x4; 10 for 10c., 100	90
No. 389.—Bronze Birds and Flowers, 3x5; pack of 10
	50
No. 373.—Flowers and Verses, 3x41/2; 10 for 15c., 1001	25
No. 469.—Flowers and Verses, 21/2x4; 10 for 12c., 1001	00
No. 385.—Autumn Leaves, 3x6; 10 to 25c., 100 for2	25
	-

J. H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store.

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

New Entirely

Easy - Running - Sewing - Machine.

IT HAS

The Most Room under the Arm. The Best Self-Setting Needle. The Largest Bobbin. The Easiest Shuttle to Thread. The Most Perfect Tension. The Most Reliable Feed.
The Most Perfect Take-Up The Best Bobbin Winder.

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

Agents Wanted by Robert Johns (Successor to Johns & Ordway)

PICTURES COPIED

In all styles, and finished in

INK, WATER COLOR, CRAYON, OIL, AND PASTELL.

Also, manufacturer of

B E DSPRINGS.

THESE are two of the fastest selling goods that Agents can handle, and it requires no experience to sell them. Hundreds all over the country are handling them, and report that it is a pleasure to sell them, because they give such good satisfaction. If you are out of employment, or wish to better yourself, send for my Illustrated Catalogue, which will be sent free. There is no such word as fail for those who such word as fail for those who will work diligently.

IF YOU ARE POOR send for Catalogue, anyway; it will tell you how to go to work without capital handlings Pictures, and with very little capital handling Springs.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

WORK FOR BOTH SEXES.

The offer still holds good to send one complete full size set of BED SPRINGS by express (weighs only 10 lbs when packed) for only 97c., IRON-HEATER included for $1.30, to any one who will act as agent, or try and get one where they are not sold. This price is for one set as a sample to introduce them, and much below the regular price. They retail for from $3.50 to $8 per set, according to locality. I will furnish a Picture Outfit.

Consisting of a fine Water Color Portrait, (without frame), also small picture from which it was taken, and envelopes and cards, by mail prepaid for only 98c. Catalogue free.

Address ROBERT JOHNS,

PEORIA, ILLINOIS.

(Successor to Johns & Ordway.)
In writing mention this paper.

DENTISTRY JOHN SHIPPY. DR.

Dental Surgeon,

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Gov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison Kansas City. It traverses all of the six Great States,

IOWA, ILLINOIS. MISSOURI.

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, COLORADO With branch lines to their important cities and towns. It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver, Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis, Chicago and Dubuque Chicago and Sloux City, Peoria and Council Bluffs, Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omaha, St. Louis and St. Paul, St. Louis and Rock Island. St. Louis and Chicago, Kansas City and Denver, Kansas City and St. Paul, Kansas City and Omaha,

Kansas City and Burlington.

Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points with Through Trains to and from points located on its branches.

At each of its several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada. It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

HENRY B. STONE, PEH.
Ass't Gen'l Manager,
CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass. Agent,

>> BUSINESS € 1 The Davenport Business Gollege

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught; Bookeeping, by single and double entry; Business Arithmetic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circulars address

DUNCAN & HAWKS, Davenport, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publica tion of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed David Dancer, Box 82. Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANCER; communications and articles to the EDITOR.

THE SON PURPORTY S' HERALD.

78)

"Hearken to the Word of the Lord: for There Shall Not any Man Among you Have save it be One Wife, and Concubines He Shall Have None."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 32.-Whole No. 659.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 26, 1885.

No. 52.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Henald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

- EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 26, 1885.

EDMUNDS BILL NUMBER TWO.

From the following clipping it will be seen that Senator Edmunds moves early and very sweepingly in presenting to Congress what he deems the needed remedy for the evils complained of in Utah Mormon affairs. Some of the legislation he suggests is decidedly severe, and it is deplorable indeed that there should be any occasion for it. Had the Utah Mormons studied their standard books-the Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants and the New Testament—the Nation would have no grounds to legislate against their practices. And had they studied the public teachings of Joseph the Seer, found in the "Morning and Evening Star," "Messenger and Advocate," and "Times and Seasons," the Nation would have had no cause for reproving them. But they have turned away from "the faith once delivered to the Saints," as found in these sacred records, and heaven is using our great Nation to rebuke and chastise them until they either repent and return to the faith as revealed at first, or rush on to utter ruin. As it was once said of David:-"Thou hast given great occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme" (2 Sam. 12:14)—so the Utah leaders have given great occasion for the Nation and the civilized world to reproach them and the work they profess to represent, but which they in fact have basely perverted and corrupted.

All who bear the name of Latter Day Saints, or Mormons, suffer in some measure the reproach and disgrace caused by the false doctrines and base practices of these "blind leaders of the blind," and we of right may speak against their hurtful heresies as did the faithful ministry anciently against the corruptions which then cursed the Christian church. Peter said of such:

"But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of. And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you: whose judgment now of a long time lingereth not, and their damnation slumbereth not."

History is repeating itself in the Church of Christ in this age, and that, too, in exact fulfillment of both ancient and modern prophecy.

We protest against the false doctrines which have been taught to the Saints. We protest against those practices which have made the name of Latter Day Saint a reproach, and which are bringing the wrath of God and the chastening rod of the Nation upon those who by overt act or by endorsement sustain the evil, and we feel prepared to see extreme measures used to rectify the evil, if milder means shall fail.

The scope and subject matter of the new Edmunds bill may be seen by the following from the Chicago Tribune of the 12th instant:—

"The President's suggestion that discreet legislation for the more effectual suppression of polygamy would meet his immediate approval, lends interest to the Edmunds bill No. 2, which has just been printed. A similar measure passed the Senate at its last session by a three-fourths vote, but failed of action in the House. It provides that polygamous wives may be compelled to testify, and that witnesses, who, there is good reason to believe, will seek to evade service of a subpœna, may be attached. It disfranchises the women voters of Utah. It annuls the law of the Territory which now enables the Mormon authorities to identify each ballot cast and to ascertain whether any member of their church has voted contrary to the dictates of the church authorities. It deprives the Mormon Probate Courts of Utah of their Jurisdiction over election matters and of everything else except the probate of wills and similar routine matters. But, most important of all, it divests the incorporated Mormon Church of all the vast political and temporal powers conferred upon it by the ordinance of the so-called State of Deseret-the original attempted Mormon State, subsequently merged into the Territory of Utah—and authorizes the President of the United States, with the consent of the Senate, to appoint fourteen trustees to exercise all the powers conferred upon the corporation, aside from religious matters. These trustees are to report to the Interior department. It annuls the Perpetual Emigration Fund Company, under which the constant influx of Mormons into the United States is maintained, and it re-districts the Territory for legislative purposes under the control of Federal officials instead of the Mormon Church."

DAVID WHITMER.

The following is from the Richmond (Mo.) Democrat of the 17th inst. We appreciate the kind feeling and honorable spirit in which it is written. The editor is ready to acknowledge and defend the good in all, irrespective of religious bias, and give credit to every one on their personal merit. The Conservator also of the same city has ever exhibited fairness in treating Bro. Whitmer's connection with Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.

"'Uncle' David Whitmer is lying very sick at his residence on east main street, and once or twice during the past week it seemed that the grand old man's last hour upon earth had arrived. But thanks to the watchful care of his relatives and his own wonderful vitality, he has each time rallied. The story of 'Uncle' David's life forms a wonderful chapter in the history of this country. He is, as most of our readers know, the last of the trio (Oliver Cowdery and Martin Harris being the other two) who attested to the truth of the divinity of the Book of Mormon, and were present and saw the angel from heaven deliver the golden plates, to Joseph Smith, from which the book was translated. He is the possessor of the original manuscript of the Book of Mormon and also the only authentic history of the Mormon Church from the time of its foundation up to the time of his location in Richmond in 1838.'

HYRUM SMITH ON POLYGAMY.

Below will be found a letter of inquiry as to whether Pres. Hyrum Smith "ever denounced polygamy," and following the letter we give, first, what Presidents Joseph and Hyrum Smith said of it, February 1st, 1844, not five months before they were murdered, and then what Hyrum said of it March 15th, 1844, only a little over three months before that time. These were the public utterances of those men and printed in the church organ in the same city where they lived, and under their immediate notice. If any testimony can be reliable as to what these men thought of that doctrine at that time, this that we find printed in their own papers, within a few rods from their homes, certainly ought to be. It is their last public testimony on the matter found on record. Read carefully what Hyrum says as to those who attain to celestial glory, and then remember that the Book of Mormon contains "the fulness of the gospel."

"FLINTVILLE, Wis., Dec. 12th, 1885. vou inform me through the Herald, or "Can you inform me through the Herald, or otherwise, as to whether or not Hyrum Smith ever denounced the doctrine of polygamy through the Times and Seasons, and if so, can you give me the number and date of the paper and oblige your humble servant,

"WM. FRANKLIN."

In answer to the above we give the following very direct testimony, what both Joseph and Hyrum said in their notices to the church.

"NOTICE.

"As we have lately been credibly informed, that an Elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by the name of Hiram Brown, has been preaching polygamy and other false and corrupt doctrines, in the county of Lapeer, State of Michigan, this is to notify him and the Church in general, that he has been cut off from the Church for his iniquity; and he is further notified to appear at the Special Conference, on the 6th of April next, to make answer to these charges.

"JOSEPH SMITH, Presidents of "HYRUM SMITH, said Church."
Times and Seasons, Feb. 1st, 1844.

"NAUvoo, March 15th, 1844. "To the brethren of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, living on China Creek, in Hancock county, Greeting:-Whereas, brother Richard Hewitt has called on me to-day, to know my views concerning some doctrines that are preached in your place, and states to me that some of your Elders say that a man having a certain priesthood may have as many wives as he pleases, and that doctrine is taught here; I say unto you that that man teaches false doctrine, for there is no such doctrine taught here; neither is there any such thing practiced here. And any man that is found teaching privately or publicly any such doctrine is culpable, and will stand a chance to be brought before the High Council, and lose his license and membership also; therefore he had better beware what he is about.

"And again I say unto you, an Elder has no business to undertake to preach mysteries in any part of the world, for God has commanded us all to preach nothing but the first principles unto the world. Neither has any Elder any authority to preach any mysterious thing to any branch of the church unless he has a direct commandment from God to do so. Let the matter of the grand councils of heaven, and the making of gods, worlds, and devils entirely alone; for you are not called to teach any such doctrine-for neither you nor the people are capacitated to understand any such principles—less so to teach them. For when God commands men to teach such principles the Saints will receive them. Therefore, beware what you teach! for the mysteries of God are not given to all men; and unto those to whom they are given they are placed under restrictions to impart only such as God will command them; and the residue is to be kept in a faithful breast, otherwise he will be brought under condemnation. By this God will prove his faithful servants, who will be called and numbered with the chosen.

"And as to the celestial glory, all will enter in and possess that kingdom that obey the gospel, and continue in faith in the Lord unto the end of his days. Now, therefore, I say unto you, you must cease preaching your miraculous things, and let the mysteries alone until by and bye. Preach faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, repentance and baptism for the remission of sins, the laying on of the hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, teaching the necessity of strict obedience unto these principles, reasoning out of the scriptures, proving them unto the people. Cease your schisms and divisions and contentions. Humble yourselves as in dust and ashes, lest God should make you an ensample of his wrath unto the surrounding world. Amen.

"In the bonds of the everlasting covenant, I am your obedient servant,
"Hyrum Smith."

Times and Seasons, page 474.

THE kind of preaching needed is that which is practical. Scientific, hair-splitting theories are worse than none and should be avoided. The people need "the sincere milk of the word" delivered in soberness, sincerity, and in demonstration of the Holy Spirit and power. The ministry should ever remember that the Spirit is given in answer to the humble, fervent "prayer of faith." They should study the needs of their hearers, and then preach and teach in plainness, in gentleness, in tenderness, in compassion, and in long-suffering, and be careful to suit their topics and their language to the capacities of the humblest and most illiterate hearer.

Joseph the Seer is reported to have said to the ministry-"Preach the gospel! and when you have done so, then continue to preach the gospel! And when you want something new to teach, just preach the gospel! Leave the mysteries alone, but preach and teach the saving truths of the gospel!" To an inexperienced minister who felt inadequate to fill the pulpit he said—"Can't you explain to the people how you became converted to Christ, and what your Christian experiences and testimonies are? If you can, this will be the best and most effective kind of preaching." The young minister saw the point, followed the line suggested, and soon laid the foundation for a large branch in Pittsburg,

Plain, practical, timely, and spiritual preaching, teaching, and exhortation, is very much needed. The minister should carefully watch the leadings and testimonies of the Holy Spirit. And when they have not the Spirit, they may know they are not approved of God, and that their ministrations are not indorsed of heaven;—"If ye receive not the Spirit ye shall not teach." Get where the Spirit is to be found, and then follow where it leads, and all will be well. The things of life and salvation in Christ should be handled with great care and humility. Those who honor God in these things, he will honor, enlighten and sustain.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. J. J. Cornish writes from Inwood, Ontario, the 14th inst., saying:

"Our debate is in full bloom. The books are being canvassed pretty well. Four nights have passed away on first proposition, and not through yet. We continue again to-night. Three have been baptized since the debate commenced, and others are beginning to believe. We have the Methodist class-leader for chairman. He has proved the gentleman thus far. I am feeling well."

Brother S. S. Wilcox, of Shenandoah, Iowa, had this to say of the "Manuscript Found:"

"I think the 'Manuscript Found' is a simple thing for an educated(?) man to write. I could hardly find interest enough in it to read it through. I have long told the people I was older than the story and knew it to be false. I was acquainted with Howe, who, with Hurlbut, got it to use in the book called 'Mormonism Unveiled,' but found it of no value to them, as it was too simple for their use."

DIVORCING AND MARRYING.

A BROTHER writes us in regard to an evil now very prevalent in the world, that of divorcing companions on slight pretexts, and for unjustifiable causes; and he says he thinks some in the church are faulty in this direction, and some for marrying persons improperly divorced.

These are matters which should be dealt with very carefully; for there is danger that proper vigilance and due wisdom may not be used, and in that way harm result to innocent parties and to the church. The law of the church on these matters is as follows:

"But I say unto you, that whosoever shall put away his wife, saying for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced, committeth adultery."—Matt. 5: 32.

"Behold, verily I say unto you, that whatever persons among you having put away their companions for the cause of fornication, or in other words, if they shall testify before you in all lowliness of heart that this is the case, ye shall not cast them out from among you; but if ye shall find that any persons have left their companions for the sake of adultery, and they themselves are the offenders, and their companions are living, they shall be cast out from among you. And again I say unto you, that ye shall be watchful and careful, with all inquiry, that ye receive none such among you if they are married, and if they are not married, they shall repent of all their sins, or ye shall not receive them."—Doc. & Cov., sec. 42, par. 20.

This law is very strict; but when we consider that the family is the source and basis of society, and that whatever is the character of the family, such will be that of the society it composes, then we see the necessity for a strict law, and its careful enforcement. But let it be borne in mind that the law quoted is "the law of the church;" and let it be held in this light and so administered.

THE following article from the pen of Joseph the Seer, written less than four months before his murder at Carthage, Illinois, breathes so much of the genuine spirit of the gospel, and this, too, in full view of the horrid treatment that himself and the church had suffered, that we have thought it good to present it to the reader for their instruction and emulation.

The person of intelligence, spirit, and high purpose, who passes through so many years of base persecution as did the seer, and then rises to the sublime heights indicated in this article, is of a very high order of both intellect, morals, and spirituality. Joseph had been bitterly denounced and shamefully maligned on account of his religious views and labors from 1820, when a boy but fifteen years of age, up to the time he wrote this article, and no where so badly as in Missouri, and now he gives in return the words of peace, of gentleness, and of love. Read what he says in "Times and Seasons," March 8th, 1844:

"A FRIENDLY HINT TO MISSOURI.

"One of the most pleasing scenes that can transpire on earth is, when a sin has been committed by one person against another, to forgive that sin; and then, according to the sublime pattern of the Savior, pray to our Father in heaven to forgive also. Verily, verily, such a friendly rebuke is like the mellow zephyr of summer's eve: it soothes; it cheers and gladdens the heart of the humane and the savage.—Well might the wise man exclaim: "a soft answer turneth away wrath;" for men of sense, judgment, and observation, in all the various periods of time, have been witnesses, figuratively speaking, that water, not wood, checks the rage of fire.

"Jesus said, "blessed are the peace makers, for they shall be called the children of God;"—wherefore if the nation, a single state, community, or family, ought to be grateful for any thing, it is peace. Peace, lovely child of heaven; peace, like light from the same great parent, gratifies, animates and happifies the just and the unjust, and is the very essence of happiness below, and bliss above. He that does not strive with all his powers of body and mind, with all his influence at home and abroad, and cause others to do so too, to seek peace, and maintain it for his own benefit and convenience, and the honor of his state, nation and country, has no claim on the clemency of man; nor should he be entitled to the friendship of woman, or the protection of government. He is the canker worm to gnaw his own vitals, and the vulture to prey upon his own body; and he is as to his own prospects and prosperity in life, a felo-de-se of his own pleasure. A community of such beings are not far from hell on earth, and should be let alone as unfit for the smiles of the free; or the praise of the brave. But the peace maker, O give ear to him! for the words of his mouth, and his doctrine, drop like the rain, and distil as the dew; they are like the gentle mist upon the herbs, and as the moderate shower upon the grass. Animation, virtue, love, contentment, philanthropy, benevolence, compassion, humanity, and friendship, push life into bliss, and men a little below the angels, exercising their powers, privileges and knowledge, according to the order, rules and regulations of revelation, by Jesus Christ, dwell together in unity; and the sweet odor that is wafted by the breath of joy and satisfaction from their righteous communion, is like the rich perfume from the consecrated oil that was poured upon the head of Aaron; or like the luscious fragrance that rises from the fields of Arabian spices; yea, more, the voice of the peace maker

"Is like the music of the spheres, It charms our souls, and calms our fears; It turns the world to paradise, And men to pearls of greater price.

"So much to preface this friendly hint to the State of Missouri, for nowithstanding some of her private citizens and public officers, have committed violence, robbery, and even murder, upon the rights and persons of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; yet, compassion, dignity, and a sense of the principles of religion, among all classes; and honor and benevolence, mingled with charity by high minded patriots, lead me to suppose that there are many worthy, people in that state, who will use their influence and energies to bring about a settlement of all those old difficulties; and use all consistent means to urge the state, for her honor, prosperity and good name, to restore every person, she or her citizens have expelled from her limits, to their rights, and pay them all damage! that the great body of high minded and well disposed southern and western gentlemen and ladies, the real peace makers of a western world, will go forth, good Samaritan-like, and pour in the oil and wine till all that can be healed are made whole. And after repentance, they shall be forgiven; for verily the Scriptures say: 'Joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repents, more than over ninety and nine just persons that need no repentance.

"Knowing the fallibility of man; considering the awful responsibility of rejecting the cries of the innocent; confident in the virtue and patriotism of noble minded western men tenacious of their character and standing; too high to stoop to disgraceful acts, and too proud to tolerate meanness in others; yea, may I not say without boasting, that the best blood of the west, united with the honor of the illustrious fathers of freedom, will move, as the forest is moved by a mighty wind, to promote peace and friendship in every part of our wide-spread, lovely country.

"Filled with a love almost unspeakable, and moved by a desire pleasant as the dew of heaven, I supplicate not only our Father above but also the civil, the enlightened, the intelligent, the social and the best inhabitants of Missouri—they that feel bound by principles of honor, justice, moral greatness, and national pride—to arise in the character of virtuous freemen from the disgrace and reproach that might inadvertently blur their good names for want of self preservation. Now is the time to shake off the monster, that, incubus-like, seems hanging upon the reputation of the whole state A little exertion and the infamy of the evil will blacken the guilty only, for is it not written, 'The tree is known by its fruit?'

"The voice of reason; the voice of humanity; the voice of the nation, and the voice of heaven seem to say to the honest and virtuous throughout the state of Missouri; Wash yourselves, make you clean, lest your negligence should be taken by the world, (from the mass of facts before it), that you are guilty! Let there be one unison of hearts for justice, and when you reflect around your own firesides, remember that fifteen thousand (once among you, now not, but who are just as much entitled to the privileges and blessings you enjoy as yourselves) like the widow before the unjust judge, are fervently praying for their rights. When you meditate upon the massacre at Hawn's mill, forget not that the Constitution of your State holds this broad truth to the world: That none shall 'be deprived of life, liberty, or property, but by the judgment of his peers, or the law of the land." And when you assemble together in towns, counties, or districts, whether to petition your legislature to pay the damage the Saints have sustained in your State, by reason of oppression and misguided zeal, or to restore them to their rights according to republican principles and benevolent designs-reflect, and make honorable or annihilate such statute law as was in force in your State, in 1838; viz: 'If twelve or more persons shall combine to levy war against any part of the people of this State, or to remove them forcibly out of the State, or from their habitations, evidenced by taking arms and assembling to accomplish such purpose, every person so offending shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a period not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months.'

"Finally, if honor dignifies an honest people; if virtue exalts a community; if wisdom guides great men; if principle governs intelligent beings; if humanity spreads comfort among the needy; and if religion affords consolation by showing that charity is the first, best, and sweetest token of perfect love, then, O ye good people of Missouri, like the woman in Scripture who had lost one of her ten pieces of silver, arise, search diligently till you find the lost piece, and then make a feast and call in your friends for joy.

"With due consideration I am the friend of all good men, JOSEPH SMITH.

NAUVOO, Ill., March 8th, 1844.

REDUCED RATES.

The C. B. & Q. R. R. will sell excursion tickets at one and one-third fare during the holidays to any point on their lines, not over one hundred and fifty miles distant. Tickets good from December 24th, 1885, to January 4th, 1886.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BISHOP BLAKESLEE and Elder C. Scott came here from Galien, Michigan, on the 15th inst. The Bishop looks hearty and rugged. Bro. Scott's health is not good; but we hope to see him vigorous in all respects at an early time.

The weather for the past few days has been delightful, and to-day, (17th inst.), though the earth is mantled with a few inches of snow, it is otherwise very springlike. The health of the community is excellent with but very few exceptions, and though times are dull and hard, the people in this region have but little if any just grounds for complaint.

Brn. Gomer Reese and Daniel Moore, of Highmore, Dakota, are visiting friends in and about Lamoni.

Bro. S. Eckersley writing from Richmond, Utah, says: "I feel it my duty to do what I can for so great a work," and sends for the church publications, showing his faith by his works. He is consistent and sensible.

Bro. John Pett, of Dow City, Iowa, under date of the 13th inst, writes that they have had quite a cold spell of late, and that the snow was about ten inches on the level. Pretty wintry for the time of

A letter from Bro. C. Howery of Salem, Dakota, of the 10th inst., requests that "a good faithful Elder" be sent to preach in that region. He thinks the gospel in its fulness has never been preached in that country, and believes good could be effected there. He lives one mile north and six miles west of Salem.

Bro. Hosea Sterrett of Pleasant Grove, Utah, writes of late that when Pres. Joseph Smith and Elder R. J. Anthony were there the 9th instant, they baptized one, and that they seemed to feel cheerful in their mission-work.

In the letter department will be found an interesting letter from Elder Joseph Luff. We well remember that when Bro. Luff was leaving Utah in 1883, he told us he should yet preach in Utah with Pres. Joseph Smith to crowded congregations of interested listeners, for God had shown that fact to him. He has seen this fulfilled the past six or seven months, at least in part. Verily, "There is a God in heaven who revealeth secrets."

Bro. R. M. Elvin writes from Wilber, Nebraska, the 9th inst., that his meetings in that vicinity continue to increase in size and in interest, and he hopes for an ingathering to the church in due time. He and the friends in that region are looking for Pres. Joseph Smith and Elder R. J.

Anthony the first of January next, and he intends to get them to preach in the Courthouse. Bro. Elvin says he has been greatly blessed of God in many ways.

Brn. J. W. Gillen and A. J. Moore took train on the 15th inst., for Sweet Home, Allendale, North-Western Missouri, and South-Western Iowa, to preach the word of life and salvation in all those regions as the way may be opened up before them. May heaven prosper them in their blessed Bishop G. A. Blakeslee came to our sanctum the afternoon of the 15th inst., and is in excellent health and spirits. He informs us that Sister Blakeslee is improving slowly, and, he thinks, steadily.

Yesterday (the 17th) an election for officers for the town of Lamoni resulted in choosing Dr. J. H. Hansen, Mayor; David Dancer, S. V. Bailey, Thomas Bell, H. L. Tilton, M. McHarness, and Wilson Hudson, Trustees; and V. White, Recorder.

We have letters from Pres. J. Smith up to the 13th inst. He was then in Salt Lake City and intended to go with Elder J. Luff to Ogden City, Plain City, and other points.

In another place will be found an editorial from the Chicago Tribune: - "Failure of the Iowa Prohibitory Law," and also a lecture on "Temperance in the South." Now that the questions of temperance and prohibition are rapidly becoming national ones, and because the Saints should be found on the side of temperance, it is essential that they should be well posted in the motives actuating, and in the measures used in carrying forward these movements. Read, and learn.

Correspondence.

No. 9, Wyndham Street, CARDIFF, Wales, Dec. 2d.

Dear Herald:-After reading in your pages the letters and testimonies from so many brethren and sisters, I thought a little news from this corner of the Master's vineyard would not be out of place. And I feel sure there are many dear ones in the land of the far west who will rejoice to hear of a little band of Saints working in the cause of truth in this immediate neighborhood. The branch here was only organized on the 15th of November last, and we do not number more than seven at present; but there are several hovering near to the waters, so we hope before long to have an increase.

I was baptized at Nottingham, on the 14th of May, 1884, by Elder George Potts, who is now in America, and from whom I would like to hear if this should meet his eye. I now rejoice to say that I know the gospel as taught in this church is the gospel of Christ. I have proved it, like one of old, to be "the power of God unto salvation." I am not ashamed to confess to the world that I know this is the work of God, and that I have not received that knowledge from man. I am still following on, hoping and rejoicing in that good old path which "shineth brighter and brighter unto the perfect day. There seems to be a good spirit of inquiry prevailing around, and everything seems to indicate a good future. God grant it may be so, and that many may be brought out of darkness into light is my prayer. GEORGE COPE.

> St. Joseph, Missouri, December 14th, 1885.

Bro. W. W. Blair: We closed our series of meetings here last evening, with a good congregation and good interest. I have preached nine times, and as a rule have been blest with liberty of speech and a good degree of the Spirit's presence. My health has been better than it was last week at Stewartsville, for which I am truly thankful to God, though at present I feel weak and worn, and were it not for peculiar and pressing demands in other parts, I would certainly return home at once. None have united with the church, but some are inquiring and investigating. The Saints have felt strengthened and confirmed in their faith and hope. Bro. McDowell did a good work here, and it is duly appreciated.

Your brother,

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

ST. Louis, Missouri, December 15th, 1885.

Bro. Blair: - For the past six months I have been laboring in Birkner, St. Clair county, Illinois, I think with success. The Master has been with me in presenting the word. You may know by report of the last district conference held here that Birkner Branch was added to the St. Louis District. The Saints there are trying to live their religion. They are greatly blessed with the Spirit, and I believe they are united to help on the cause we love, the Spirit bearing witness. I am satisfied that much prejudice is being removed from the minds of the people, and they are beginning to learn there is more truth in the gospel of Christ taught by the Latter Day Saints than some others of the Christian world. In administering to the sick, the Master has stood by his servant. To him be the glory.

Ever praying and working for the onward progress of the great latter day work, I remain your co-laborer in the true light, N. N. COOKE.

CANAAN, Indiana, November 3d.

Bro. Joseph:—Since the conference held at the Union Branch of the Southern Indiana District, Brn. M. R. and Leonard Scott have visited our place, near the Canaan Branch, held meetings a week in a private house, had splendid order, good attention, and several seemed to be seeking the truth. Audiences were not large but intelligent. Three infidels attended, and about twelve who never heard the gospel in its fulness before. I think it will have good results in the future. They were blest in the sermons, and the Saints were edified. My whole desire is that the Saints may understand their duties and try to live up to them. We should be a light to the world. May God bless all the Saints and enable them to see the truth and live better in the future, is my prayer.

JAMES D. PORTER.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 8th, 1885.

Bro. Blair: Brn. Joseph Smith and R. J. Anthony are at Springville. Our work is going to tell after a little. Many are thinking who never thought before. By Bro. Joseph's coming, the ears of many have been reached that were closed to every appeal before. I believe his mission has been a grand success, and I hope he will see his way clear to come out again after next Spring Conference. He is the best missionary we could have here, for the people will not throng to hear any other in such numbers, and none are better capable of informing them regarding the Reorganization. Truly, God has been with him in power and the demonstration of the Spirit, I firmly believe that for years the Government has been restrained by a wise and divine hand from crowding "this people," that God might, through the Reorganization, fulfil the promise to "feel after them." Now, that Joseph has come, after nearly twenty-five years' earnest work among them, and has made his wise, kind, and affectionate appeal, I am of the opinion that the prophecy is about complete; and no movement on the part of the Government against the obnoxious features of Utah Mormonism will be a surprise to me. I look for a speedy crushing out of polygamy and the discomfiture of all who persist in its advocacy.

Oh, that God may deliver the honest-hearted! My heart is pained when I think of the consequences. Numbers, whose faith in man has been shaken, will also lose confidence in God, and a pitiable condition of doubt, and perhaps atheism, will be the result. Thank God, we are not responsible for results if our work is performed faithfully. Yours in Christ, Joseph Luff.

LAMONI, Iowa, Dec. 15th.

Dear Herald.-During the past Fall I did considerable traveling among the branches of my district, not only preaching in them, but visiting and conversing with the Saints in their homes concerning the Lord's work and its revealment and establishment in this dispensation; and as to the prospects and promises of its continuance under the Lord's guidance till it shall accomplish all that the Master has caused to be written and spoken about it. I had, on the whole, an excellent time, particularly enjoying the association with the Saints and hearing their personal evidences. While I found those who were negligent of their duties at home and in the church, and others who must be looked after because of wrong doing, I can say that I found among the great majority a good feeling, and with many a lively interest in and prayerful solicitude for the advancement of the cause, and of course therewith a corresponding desire and effort to go forward themselves. And I did not find that disaffection that some have supposed existed; their ideas of it having been, I find, greater than facts by any means warrant. In this matter some have been misunderstood and probably in some degree misrepresented, unintentionally so, no doubt. A few have looked altogether too much on the dark side, letting the testimonies and the light that they have received in the past concerning the work itself be dimmed by the fault-finding of men in relation to men.

The great truth enunciated by Christ in the New Testament concerning the real source of light and intelligence should not be lost sight of, and the same truth is forcibly presented in the Book of Covenants, where the Lord says: "They who take the Holy Spirit for their guide shall not be deceived." If it said some man, it should be indeed rejected; but as it is, it leaves to the church an infallible guide, to each for himself, concerning the evidences of the work and of its leader under Christ, no man or woman being compelled to come except through the convincing of their own minds. Upon this great fact, of divine guidance and divine knowledge to each individual, rests the whole matter of security and certainty for all who are willing to seek for and receive such assurance.

And, in thinking of the position of the Reorganized Church and of the call of the present Joseph, the mind dwells upon the evidences received prior to and at the time the work of reorganizing begun. There was the revelation given to Bro. J. W. Briggs, November 18th, 1851, in which the Lord says: "In my own due time will I call upon the seed of Joseph Smith, and I will bring one forth who shall be mighty and strong, and he shall preside over the high priesthood of my church." Numerous other prophecies and manifestations of the same nature might be quoted, and they were fulfilled in "due time," as prophesied,-though for many years there was no prospect that they ever would be. So all the way down from that time has the Lord given eviden. ces of whatsoever constitutes the truth to all who sought in fervent humility, by prayer and fasting, for such evidences. And he has spoken again and again to the church, making things plain which could not otherwise be made so. Also he has promised to more completely reorganize his church in due time, and the evidences are accumulating among the Saints in all parts of the land, (particularly during the past few months), by visions, dreams, and the manifest voice of the Holy Spirit, that this word shall soon be fulfilled to the joy and gladness of them who shall abide.

In view of all these things it seems that the whole church should seek the law of the Lord at his mouth, and come to the next conference with prayers in their hearts and upon their lips that God will make all necessary things plain, and by His word settle those things that otherwise will come up for controversy and dispute, (and then be decided with dissatisfaction to more or less), whereas the word of the Lord will be "the end of controversy." And let this be in the hearts and minds of all from this time on, so that He may find a people ready to receive his word and to abide by it when it is given. It seem to me that the great work for the home ministry to do is to "feed the sheep," to try to instruct, to encourage, and to strengthen those who are already in, rather than to neglect to do so and to chiefly strive to bring others in who may have to do like many before them, stumble and stagger along by themselves, and be permitted to fall by the way if they have not strength to go on unaided, or with such as they can pick up. Yes, the work of caring for the sheep is of paramount importance, and I believe that it is greatly neglected by those who should be pastors of the flock, in branches and districts; and there is need that this part of the work be encouraged instead of discouraged, or slighted, and that men be set apart for and devote their time to it as earnestly and with as much sanction as those who go hundreds of miles away to preach, or abroad among the nations. "Feed my sheep" and "Feed my lambs" was the instruction of the great Shepherd, and it should be heeded, and not let them die or wander elsewhere for something to eat, or expect them to run alone before they have learned how. God will yet require of the church a better order and system in this matter.

In the faith, HENRY A. STEBBINS.

GARLAND, Ala., Dec. 12th.

Bro. W. W. Blair: We have held a number of protracted meetings in the branches of the Alabama District during the latter part of the Summer and Fall just past, with good effect. The meetings have been well attended by the Saints, A number have taken a greater interest than before in the progress of the work. Numbers of those not of the church have attended the meetwith marked interest. A few have been added. Some are investigating whom we hope ere long will go with us. There are some things in the district that are not as they ought to be; but we are happy to say that there has been a great improvement morally [and spiritually during the past year. There are a number that used to take a dram and thought it no harm, that have become total abstainers. Some have quit the use tobacco. We feel safe in saying that, on the whole, the cause is in a better condition than for a number of years, or than ever, and that the outlook is encouraging.

The Elders have been blessed with excellent liberty in preaching the word. A number that were sick have been healed through the ordinances; though some that we miss much have gone to rest, we believe, until the great trump shall sound, and the dead in Christ shall arise. There are many calls for preaching in this district, and the work, would spread far and wide if an Elder could be kept constantly engaged. The work has got a good foothold here, and all it needs is pushing. In some places prejudice is quite strong, but in the main the people are reasonable. We hope some day to see many branches raised up in Alabama. I should be glad to see the Herald in every family of the Saints here; for no one can keep thoroughly posted in church matters without it. May God enable his people to live nearer the cross, everywhere, is my prayer.

G. T. CHUTE.

Lower Lake, Cal., Dec. 6th.

Dear Herald:-It has been a long time since. I have have written to you, and we have not had the Herald for over two years. I thought it was about time that we were taking it again. We have been lost without it. We have not had any meetings for some time, on account of rain. It has been raining here for twenty-five days, constantly, so that the roads are almost impassable, and the Saints who belong to this branch are living rather scattered. There are five living in Lower Lake, and the remainder are living from two and a half to fifteen miles away; so that we do not all get together often.

I have not been situated for some time so that I could do anything toward the spread of the gospel, although I never fail to hold my banner aloft whenever I have a chance, and opportunity affords. Sometimes it is almost like throwing pearls before swine, or it seems so. But we can not always tell what good we have done or can do till we try. There is one thing sure, if we do our part, God will do His part. We may possibly sow some seeds that will bring forth fruit to the glory and honor of God.

Yours in gospel bond, J. Y. & E. C. GRAUMLICH.

Ponca, Dixon Co., Neb., Dec. 10th. Bro. Joseph:—It is with the greatest pleasure that I write to the brethren and sisters. I am alone here, and know of no one here that belongs to our church, still I am not cast down nor forsaken. God is my refuge. I have not heard a sermon for eight years. I have got a few Heralds from Bro. Wilcox of Sioux City, Iowa. They have been more than meat to me, to see the progress of the Church of Christ, and to read the letters of some that I used to fellowship with in the Glenwood Branch. If we never meet here, on the shores of time, may we so live that we may meet in "The sweet by and by." I ask the prayers of all Saints, especially of those who know me. I was baptized the 12th day of March, 1874, by Elder John Barman, in Glenwood, Iowa, confirmed by Bro. Caffall, received my letter from Bro. Wm. Brittain, clerk, November 15th, 1874. I will close, ever praying for the welfare of the work of our God.

Your sister in Christ,

M. J. Scott.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 8th.

Dear Herald:-I thought to make sacrifice of somthing else rather than to give up the Herald because of its good instructions and the many soul cheering thoughts I have received from its pages. It has become such a dear friend, that it seems impossible for me to live without it. I have reason to recommend it to every honest soul, and to the Saints especially. I see nothing the least discouraging in the great work which God has established in these latter days, but the more I meditate on God's plan, His goodness and mercies towards his children, the more I feel to go on living my religion by faith and good works, so that the good Master, when he comes to make up his jewels will find no cause to be ashamed of his humble servant. Anna Leckney.

> Norwich, Page Co., Iowa, December 12th.

Bro. Foseph Smith: - I take my pen in hand to drop you a few lines. We live eight and a half miles east of Shenandoah. There are a number of people around here that would like to hear the gospel, but are not situated so they can go quite so far to our church. I do not attend on account of the great distance, but would like to very much. My husband is not a member of any church. I have tried to explain to him as best I could, but am not fit to teach, but need to be taught instead. If we were able to, we would pay some Elder's expenses to get them to preach here, but our means are not our own until our debts are paid. We are very poor, although the Lord has blessed us with a living. If some Elder was coming to Shenandoah this winter, and would make arrangements to stay a week or so longer, we would go after them and keep them while here preaching, and take them back when

There is a Free Methodist preaching two miles west of us now. If an Elder will come, we would be very glad to have him come, and we will get a card from any one wishing to come if addressed to W. S. Newton, Norwich, Page Co., Iowa, and will go after them. We get our mail once a week. Well, I try to live as near right as I can under the circumstances, apart from the rest of the Saints. We will be here till the first of March, after that we will move four miles nearer Shenandoah. It is my desire that all may pray for me and mine. May the Lord bless his children in the name of Christ. I remain your sister in Christ,

MARY A. NEWTON.

ARMSTRONG, Kan., Dec. 14th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I am still in the land of the living and have made this place my home. I expect to be found trying to do something to help roll on this great latter day work. I have been told by the Spirit that the Lord has a work for me to do, and I must prepare myself for it. I am ready and willing to do so, and inasmuch as he will open up the way I will take the field, and I am willing to spend the rest of my days in preaching his gospel. He knows my heart and what I can and am willing to do.

Your brother in Christ,

GEORGE HICKLIN.

CLEAR WATER, Neb., Dec. 13th.

Editor and Readers of the Herald:—To-day the winged winds do blow and the billowy storm beats upon our earthly habitation, but within is peace and warmth and comfort. Winter, clad in his snowy vesture has come, and the cold waves of ether threaten with violence those who intrude upon their vast domain. Fierce and angry element from the bleak north have marshaled themselves to make war upon the sunbeams, and summer has fled. Joyous, happy, golden summer, tinged with the sunlight of the king of day! reluctantly we bid thee farewell and wait thy return.

Cold and warmth, light and darkness, tribulation and blessing, all seem to be the alternate conditions of this terrestrial sphere; but in the providence of God we see the precious promise of eternal day ushered in by the glorious appearing of the Lord to reign. O, joyous day! O blissful thought! Glorious triumph of our faith; ultimatum of our hope! Patient, faithful, trusting ones have not waited in vain. The righteous are exalted, and the poor in spirit are made glad. We praise thee, O God, for thy loving kindness and infinite watchcare. Help us to extol thy name, and to declare thy rightousness among the sons of men; that peace may be established in the earth, and truth extend her dominions to the remotest bounds of man's habitation.

Is it possible for man in this life to know God? Yes; is the generous response from thousands of regenerate hearts touched with the sacred influences of redeeming love. The soul made alive in Christ, essays, but in vain, to tell the glad experience that only kindred and obedient spirits can know, yet it is divinely conscious of its awakening to newness of life and the joy of its new relation. Is the golden orb of day conscious of his illumination! Does the queen of night bask in the mellow light of her luner rays. Yet they boast not, though "There is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world."—Psalms 19: 3.

Infidelity, like a sable cloud, hangs in dismal array, obscuring the golden sunlight of the love of God. Like a dread specter, it traverses every avenue of light, making war upon reason and besieging the purest sentiments of the human heart. As a demon it stands in the doorway of knowledge, forbiding entrance into the fair domain of truthful thought. It laughs to scorn the pure desire to worship implanted by the hand of God.

It urges, with the persistency of death, that our hope in Christ is vain, yet offers nothing in lieu of this cheering and comforting expectation. It says, boastfully, "I dare to do as I please yet fear no evil."

O, foolish phantom of distorted brain!
O, madness and folly intensified!
Your reasoning is foolishness;
Your ambition is vain!

I maintain that no intelligent plea can be made in favor of absolute infidelity. The corrupted forms of religious worship furnish no evidence that the Christian's hope is vain. The inconsistencies of men in this regard are clearly outlined in prophecy, described in history both sacred and profane, and are but the encroachments of erring humanity upon the divine service of God.

The facts and ordinances revealed to Adam went out with the increase of population with the tribes that inhabited the earth. Noah was a preacher of righteousness, and a prophet of God. Through his posterity was transmitted the traditions of God and his truth to succeedings generations, so that after the lapse of thousands of years we still may discover among all, or nearly all nations, degenerate though they may be, the tradition of God and the emblems of his worship.

The gospel of Christ imparts the highest moral and intellectual conception of life; enjoins the purest moral conduct; and is the only reflector of a perfect character. The example of Christ is unparalleled in the history of philosophers and great men of any age. The enlightenment of the world is due to the fact that God in his mercy has revealed his will to the sons of men. The vail of obscurity has been drawn, and the radiance of God and the light of his glory have shone upon the world, awakening human hearts to the glorious hope of immortality and eternal life. Blessed gospel of life and peace! Blessed Jesus whose unexampled love moved him to quit for a season the blissful realms above! Blessed unction of the Holy Spirit! Joyful realization of the forgiveness of sins and acceptance with God! "Let me live the life of the righteous and may my last end be like his!"

Yours in gospel bonds,

GEO. S. HYDE.

December 8th, 1885.

Dear Herald: I have been thinking of writing to our paper for some time, but I could not see that it would better my situation any. And then I felt so incompetent. I feel it is my chance and trusting all good composers of letters will excuse mine. I will in as few words as possible tell where I am, and what I want to know, and ask some one to write us a letter at once. We started from Lancaster county, Nebraska, June 25th and reached Bird City, Cheyenne county, Kansas, July 23d, to find the loveliest scope of country my eyes ever beheld, mostly at that time vacant land. The soil good. Every thing grew good that we saw planted, and the only thing that seemed strange about it was, why was it vacant? Why was it not taken before? We secured for ourselves a hundred and sixty acres of land, and put up necessary buildings, and commenced living on the claim. Then the question arose in my mind, where is the nearest branch of our church? And when I made some little investigation found none near. Where is the nearest branch from here? It put quite a damper on my spirits to think that, may be for years, I shall not see a Latter Day Saint's face. But will some one tell me the worst; and if there is none near, then we must have a minister of our church to preach here. Don't some of the traveling Elders pass here? Our nearest railroad station is Binkleman, Nebraska. Is there no help out of this difficulty? Best wishes to Saints and friends at Clearwater, Nebraska, Davis City, Iowa, and Stewartsville, Missouri, and other places.

Your sister in the gospel of Christ,
MRS. DIAN CARTER.

PARRISH, Ill., Dec. 16th.

Brother Blair:-I now write you concerning the discussion between brother Hilliard and the Rev. Mr. Mannon. It continued for six evenings and on the last one brother Hilliard spoke for three hours, the subject of his discourse being the divine calling of Joseph Smith, and the Divinity of the Book of Mormon. To this speech Mr. Mannon offered no reply. All things considered. I have no hesitation in saying the debate resulted in the most complete victory of truth over error. During our visit much prejudice was removed from the minds of the people of that vicinity. We expect quite an increase to our membership here in the near future. However, time will tell. I returned to this vicinity on Saturday last, have preached four discourses. Expect to return home this evening so as to meet with the brethren in our district conference which will convene at Springerton on the 18th instant. Ever praying for the success of truth, I am your brother in the Lord. J. W. STONE.

Dow CITY, Iowa, Dec. 13th.

Brother Blaur:—The little band of Saints at Dow City, Iowa, and vicinity, known as the Boyer Valley Branch, are rejoicing greatly in the Lord. Six were added to our number by baptism to-day, and next Sunday we expect one or two more. God has greatly blessed our branch with his Spirit of late.

The following verse was sung in tongues after the confirmation of the six members:

(Tune, Hold The Fort.)
Oh! my brethren, see the signal
Appeareth in the sky;
Jesus Christ our Lord is coming,
Victory is nigh.
Reinforcements now are coming—
Everywhere appear;
Onward to your duty hasten,
For the Lord will hear.

Yours in Christ,

CHAS. E. BUTTERWORTH.

HOLY SCRIPTURES. Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith the Prophet Sheep or Library binding
JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET, AND HIS PROGENITORS. Muslin Boards, 312 pages, by Lucy Smith
HESPERIS. Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges
VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER. Discoveries of Ancient American Records and Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew, and of ethers; paper covers, 48 pages

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

WAS THE CHURCH REJECTED?-No. 3.

"While our beloved president lived, mobs might assail, persecutions might be upon the Saints, apostates and traitors might seek to divide the church, yet her course was still onward, and her march triumphant. But, alas! the church has arrived at an important crisis! Toseph and Hyrum are gone to mingle in the councils above, and associate with their fellow servants who have won a martyr's crown. Their martyrdom has broken the quorum of the First Presidency, composed of Joseph and Hyrum Smith and Sidney Rigdon, their voices being no longer heard in the councils of the Saints, and their absence has opened a door for aspiring men to seek to fill the vacancy in the organized kingdom of God; therefore, it becomes every Saint to examine the foundation upon which they have built, and the principles they have embraced, and the order of the kingdom of God that they have subscribed to, with the objects which the church is endeavoring to obtain, that that they may be enabled to decide the great question, To whom must the Saints look for instruction and revelation for their guidance, lest they be carried about with every wind of doctrine, and the Church of Christ become extinct, and only live in remembrance among the heterogeneous mass of conflicting parties."—Reuben Hedlock in Supplement Mill. Star, Dec., 1844.

The above serves to show—1, How safe and prosperous, how full of confidence, and how triumphant the church was under Joseph; 2, The "crisis," and the multitude of aspirants to fill the vacancy at his death; 3, The "great question"—whom to receive revelations, &c.; 4, The great fear of the church becoming "extinct"—rejected.

Would to God that all the Saints at this time had promptly decided against all as-This writer, although telling some brilliant truth, is an advocate of the claims of the Twelve, which is the position held to so tenaciously by the Utah faction to this day. And he, like all the rest, cast reflections upon all other aspirants, and urges that the Twelve "are the next in authority" to the First Presidency. But in this he is mistaken, for in this case they are the next out of authority-they are one of the arms of the "body," and happen to be that arm that is stretched out to the Gentiles and Jews of all nations—the other being the High Council, which points to the work at home. The nature of this comparison to the human body will bear but one thought in this case, and that is, whenever the head is "taken," or severed from the "body," then all the remaining quorums are dead as far as that organization is concerned, and have no hope of life again, only by resurrection-reorganization. Every one knows that no other member of a body will answer for the head; for none of them can see, hear, nor speak the word of the Lord to the church; for they are not "appointed"—they are not endowed with the necessary "gifts," for that position in a live body—they might do for a dead "body," as the case has proved to perfection, or rather to corruption, in all these deformed bodies of all the factions of those terrible dark days, under the many blind guides that aspired to be the visible head of the church. No wonder they can not "see when good cometh." No wonder the honest Saints wept, suffered, and bled in the different by-paths they were led in by these blind tools of selfimportance and self-interest. Some went to Utah, some to Pittsburg and the north, some to Beaver Island, some to Northern Iowa, and some towards the tropics—in Texas—all to build their Zion in any and every part of the country, but the land, that which God had pointed out as the "land of Zion." And just glance at the success of Brigham Young—the amount of property, many millions, he left to his many wives, and still more num-erous children. He encompassed the continents and the islands of the seas, by his emmisaries, to collect this vast wealth from the poor Saints, that had to toil through the heat of summers, and the cold of winters, in many climes, to keep the wolf of hunger and cold from their doors, while he was scheming at home—"shaking the big toe!" O, latter day Israel! who will have compassion upon you? and whence will your deliverance come! Heaken to the voice of your God to ancient Israel under similar circumstances of apostasy. -Read Ezekeil, chapter 34-read all of the chapter and be benifited. And thus we dispose of this monstrous objection, raised and upheld by the leaders in Utah against our position, and the word of God. Another objection raised by the Utah faction, and some of the others, we will briefly notice, is this:

"Verily, verily I say unto you, that when I give a commandment to any of the sons of men, to do a work unto my name, and those sons of men go with all their mights, and with all they have, to perform that work, and cease not their diligence, and their enemies come upon them, and hinder them performing that work; behold, it behooveth me to require that work no more at the hands of those sons of men, but to accept their offerings; * * * Therefore, for this cause have I accepted the offerings of those whom I commanded to build up a city and an house unto my name, in Jackson county, Missouri, and were hindered by their enemies, saith the Lord your God."—D. C. 107:15.

Now the foregoing proves two points; I, that these brethren were "hindered" by their enemies, and that it was not their "own follies and abominations" that hindered. And for a proof, 2, the Lord came again, after their efforts, and spoke to them through his prophet, and commended their faithful efforts, accepted their "offerings," and told them so. But this Nauvoo outfit was treated with a good letting alone from that day to this. They were not worthy of a prophet, and what they have had ever since is the absence of revelation, which alone proves them in an apostate condition. So they had better let that part of this revelation alone, for there is nothing there that will justify them as they claim, but plenty to condemn them, as we claim. We will give parallel case or two: Matt. 21:43, "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, (Jews) and given to a nation, (singular) bringing forth the fruits thereof." And it is in that native for the life of the life of the life of the life. tion we afterwards find the kingdom of God, and the church organization; and all that was left to the Jews, was the absence of revelation—a famine for the word of God-to prove their apostate condition. God never spoke any more to their high priest, nor was their a prophet to be found among them-they were not worthy of them. But both the kingdom of God, and the church organization—"body" of Christ by "gifts"—in course of time "waxed in iniquity," and were divided, and many, Utah-like entered into polygamy "follies abominations" here?" amy, "follies, abominations"—hence "cursing, wrath, indignation," &c. See Rev. 2:5, "Repent and do the first works; or else I will remove thy candle stick"—"reject as a church," &c. Verse 6 commends, because they hated polygamy, etc., "which I (the Lord) also hate." (See also Buck's Theo. Dict.—Word Nicolaitans). Verse 9 condemns those who "say they are Jews, (or Saints) but are not, but are the synagogue of Satan." See also verses, 14, 15, 20, to 23. And in chapter 12, the vision shows the "woman," the church,—going into the "wilderness," but the kingdom still remained with the remnant of her (church) seed" that were left, who had the "testimony of Jesus Christ." For they (the seed) must have been in the kingdom after the church went into the "wilderness." But the dragonic power so pressed and persecuted, and put the Saints to death that none worthy remained, and the aspirants, the faction, Christian in name, all amalgamated with Pagan Rome and became one power-"the mother of harlots"—ecclesiastically. And then there was nothing left among the Popes, Cardinals, &c., of the new order, to prove their apostasy but the absence of present revelation. And thus we dispose of another objection.

We now turn our attention to the "testimony of Jesus Christ" that is dear to, and in the possession of every true and faithful saint of God, and consider the miserable and blasphemous misapplication that has been made of it. We have often heard, and so have others among these different factions, and especially in Utah, Saints bearing "testimony" that they "know" Brigham to be a prophet, seer and revelator, &c., while he himself knew and said differently, that he was "not a prophet nor the son of a prophet." So they apply the "testimony" to the rest, and they "know" -they know polygamy is right; and so on through the whole catalogue. they do anything mean, as they often do, like other people, they "know." But, wonderful as it may appear, they always "know it is right," and never "know" anything that is wrong, especially in the "authorities." Undoubtedly others have noticed this with other factions-all bearing "testimony" that they "know" the truth of the particular faction they are connected with. Now we happened to know how this is done up, not by the "testimony" however, but we have seen them play at this game, and we propose to tell you how it is done, and if possible open the eyes of some. We have, in common with many others, possessed the "testimony" of the Spirit and held it all the way through the "dark and cloudy day;" but we could not apply it in any such way. It led us to "know" this of the Reorganization-"This is my church;" and that is one of the main reasons we cast our lot with it. Now, in which case do you think the application is right? In the one that produces "Thus saith the Lord," or the one that leads to all manner of sin and confusion? Judge ye. And now to bring the above state of affairs to pass, after the "priesthood," or more properly, "the living oracles," were set above the law and became a law unto themselves; and, Pope-like, infallible in all their "counsels," it was necessary to establish what we call a dogma—not worthy the name of principle—perhaps more proper to call it a clumsy piece of folly—first, that the Holy Spirit is a kind of a flowing stream, coming down from God through Jesus Christ to the head, (B. Young), and through him to the rest in authority, dividing off through the "oracles" across continents and oceans to the extremes of the earth, and through presidents of districts and branches and finally to the Saints. Then, in a cunning manner, with what they call legal argument, they approach the Saints, and say, "Brother, (or sister), have you a testimony of the work?" "O yes; I know the gospel is true." "By the Spirit, is it not?" O yes." And now you see, the channel of the Spirit is through the priesthood, and that proves to you that Brigham is a prophet, &c., and that all the rest, in their respective positions are sustained by the Lord, or else the flow of the Spirit would stop; and now you know that you can not have salvation anywhere else -you must do all you are told by the priesthood or you will be damned,-no other chance for salvation, and you "know" it; all other factions are apostates; and the priesthood holds the keys of the mysteries of the kingdom of God-of your endowments and sealing to life everlasting; in fact, they are as Gods to us, and if they will lead wrong we are not responsibletrust all to them and it will be all right. The Saints yield, some reluctantly, others more willingly, until finally they bow and scrape before these dignitaries whom they are made to believe have their salvation in their hands, and the door is open for Adam-God, blood atonement, consecration, polygamy, violating the laws of the land-in fact, all that may come along from that source of corruption. And such tremble for fear of even the appearance of unfaithfulness, for their all is on the altar. This is one of the "hitching posts" where the chains of their bondage are hooked too. Then they become willing to apply the "testimony" they once had of the gospel to all that comes, and therefore say they "know;" and that is conclusive with them.

We do not mean to say that this was done individually in every case; but that this has been a general policy to bring the Saints into bondage. We also happen to "know"—they are in the clutches of the "priesthood" in Utah, and in "bondage;" and hence there must have been some ways to lead them there, and this is one of the many ways. Many were led to bear their "testimony" that they "knew" it was the will of God for them to venture the "handcart" scheme, and cross the plains to Zion, and their bones are strewn over the plains, and are monuments of their follies. They "knew" they would reach the valley. Many of them did not reach there, and the rest of them "knew" nothing about it, as their after actions testifies. No, not even the Utah Twelve, for Brigham sets to and cursed some of them to their faces in the Tabernacle; and as a matter of fact nearly all "knew" that the cursings were divine! But as it happened the accursed out-lived them who cursed, and they are happy among the faithful in the valleys today—and of course they "know" it.

Another "hitching post" of the chains of "bondage" is, to create an aversion to all nations and governments where the Saints dwell, and especially the United States, as not fit for Saints to live in, classifying all under the general term of "Babylon," saying Babylon was to fall, and that speedily. The constant presentation of these teachings with terrible consequences had the effect to raise great consternation, and a craze to gather, and Utah was held out as the place. The Saints were willing to make any and all sacrifices to go to the "secret chambers" to avoid the wrath to come; and they felt that the whole mass outside was to fall with a crash right on their heels; and of course they "knew" it. But, they did not happen to "know" that thousands of them would rue the day they left their homes and friends. They "knew" that they would be safely enclosed in their mountain fastness, while the "judgments, wrath, and indignation, would make desolate the United States and other nations; and they "knew" they would "step forth to build up gloriously on their ruins," &c. But, they did not happen to "know" that all this was a piece of miserable deception, for a purpose, and that various railroads would build the "highway of nations" through their territory, and bring the needs and comforts from these very nations, to better their miserable condition in life—a blessing unlooked for. They did not "know" that the United States would reck-They did not on up with them for their "follies and abomination;" they do "know" now that the leaders would run! O, ye Saints; "Who hath bewitched you, that you should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth."-Gal. 3: 1. The "testimony of the Spirit" is of the same nature as that that Peter had, Matt. 16: 16-"Thou art the Christ" -a revelation from God to prove this fact, given by the Spirit of truth—all truths are the "law of the Spirit of life." The Spirit will not bear "testimony" only to that which is according to law.

We have proven the Utah institution to be contrary to law in nearly all its claims; hence to apply the testimony of the Spirit to it, is a miserable misapplication, and a sin. Some will hold all these things, and many more, as the mistakes and follies of Mormonism. But this is not so; for they are but the mistakes and follies of the apostates from Mormonism.

JOHN T. DAVIS.

November 30th, 1885.

CONTRAST.

SAINT JAMES, the brother of our Lord, in his address to the twelve tribes used these very impressive illustrations:—"Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter? Can the fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries? either a vine, figs? So can no fountain both yield salt water and fresh." Whereas, those who are, in their own estimation, very wise, while they are engaged in the examination of our claim to be doing the will of God, make themselves quite free in the use of the above scriptural rule, it might not be amiss to so adjust the reflector that the light may shine upon the words of those who ask to be acknowledged as the oracles of the Divine Master. I therefore put in contrast the printed statement of two "Christian ministers." Please read with care in the light of "a house divided against itself."

CLARK BRADEN. "The Apostles were the constitutional convention of the church. I hope my opponent will not be so silly as to repeat: 'God gives the constitution not the Apostles.' The people through their delegates ordained our constitution. God through his chosen delegates ordained the constitution of the church."-Debate, pgs. 178-9.

A. H. NICHOLAS

"It will be admitted by all, that God has an organized government on the earth. This government is variously called 'the King-dom of God,' the Kingdom of Heaven,' 'Church of God,' etc. As respects its laws, it is truly a kingdom, an absolute monarchy. All its laws emanate from the king; and its subjects have no part in making them. There is no representative power connected with it. No council, convention or legislative assembly has power or authority to abolish, alter or amend them," —Plan of Salvation, p. 71.

Has these men complied with Paul's instruction,—"be ye like minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind?" But as each of them decline the light of the Holy Spirit and "take the Bible, and the Bible alone," placing each his private construction thereon, it is not strange that confusion ensues, and that we are permitted to draw the sharp contrast between the interpretations of these ministers of the same church. Were they mindful of what Peter wrote.—"Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the Scripture is of any private interpretation?" The safest rule of action to follow by those who would be the true servants of Christ, is to be zealous in "endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." For one, I subscribe to this last citation.

In gospel bonds, ROBT. M. ELVIN. NOAH'S FOLLY; GATHERING OF SAINTS.

WE are informed by sacred history that Noah became a husbandman, that he planted a vineyard, and in process of time he made wine and became drunken and lay naked within his tent. We have but one historical assertion as to the occasion upon which Noah drank of this wine. We have also the evidence that wine was used very anciently, in a religious manner. And when the Anointed came, we find him taking of the wine and blessing it, as also the bread. Previous to this, we find wine used upon religious occasions. Melchisedec made use of both bread and wine religiously. (Gen. 14:18). Moses and Aaron, with the Elders of Israel, came together to eat bread with Moses' father-in-law, Jethro. (Ex. 18: 12). This was nothing less than a religious ceremony, and finding bread used here, and wine previously used in connection with it, it becomes reasonable for us to suppose that wine was here used also. In the 9th chapter of 1st Samuel, we find the prophet eating bread with the people before God; and in the 20th chapter of 1st Chronicles we find the people both eating and drinking before the Lord. Therefore, we might suppose that after Noah's vineyard had come to bearing, and he had from the grapes, made wine, that he brought his family together that they might eat and drink before the Lord, as did others on occasions above mentioned; and Noah, overdrinking, became drunken. And as he lay naked within his tent his youngest son, Ham, saw his nakedness, and making light of it told his brethren without, who with greater reverence, took between them a blanket and going backwards, that they might not behold their father's nakedness, covered him within his tent. Gen. 9: 27, 28.

That this was indeed upon a religious occasion we have evidence from the language of Josephus, who says: "Noah, when after the deluge the earth was resettled in its former condition, set about its cultivation; and when he had planted it with vines, and when the fruit was ripe, and he had gathered the grapes in their season, and the wine was ready for use, he offered sacrifice, and feasted, and being drunk, he fell asleep, and lay naked in an unseemly manner. When his youngest son saw this, he came laughing, and showed him to his brethren; but they covered their father's nakedness. And when Noah was made sensible of what had been done, he prayed for posterity to his other sons; but for Ham, he did not curse him, by reason of his nearness in blood, but cursed his posterity. And when the rest of them escaped that curse, God inflicted it on the children of Canaan."—Josephus Antiquity of the Jews, b. 1, c. 6, p. 3.

Now when Noah had come to himself and learned what had been done unto him, and thus perceived the honor and respect his two elder sons had shown for him, and on the other hand, the irreverence and disregard his youngest son had shown not only for him, but also for the occasion upon which he was made drunken, with the spirit of prophecy resting upon him he pronounced a blessing upon his elder sons and their posterity, but upon the posterity of the other a cursing, for thus we read: "And Noah awoke from his wine, and knew what his youngest son had done unto him, and he said, Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren. And he said, Blessed be the Lord God of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant, and a veil of darkness shall cover him, that he shall be known among all men. God shall enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant. And Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years. And all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years, and he died."-Gen 9: 29-32.

يُرد هن لا ا

This we find to be the history of Noah's folly, and the occasion thereof, which seems very like the mistakes of some of the Saints. (See 1 Cor. 11: 21.)

Having in the above given the history of Noah's drukenness, we will make a brief observation of the gathering together of We notice first, That the idea, or Saints. principle, is nearly as old as the church itself. Second, The natural inclinations of those of like faith to assemble together, as much as possible in one locality. Now, with regard to the members of the church in the different dispensations from the beginning of the world, we find their gathering together to be a fact, whether from their own inclinations or in obedience to the commands of God. In the first dispensation, Enos, with the people of God, went forth out of the land called Shulon, ane dwelt in a land of promise, which he called Cainan. (I.T.Gen. 6: 15). Again; in the second dispensation, when the ark was completed, at the appointed time Noah and his family assembled at the ark, where also God gathered of the animal creation, that they might be preserved through the flood. In the third dispensation we observe the place of gathering to be in the land of Canaan, Melchisedec being king of Salem, in the land of Canaan. Hebrews 7: 2. His people were all righteous. Gen. 14: 34. He was, therefore, chief or ruler among the righteous, or saints; and Abraham as one of the saints respected his authority, in that he paid tithes to him of all that he possessed, and received a blessing under his hands. Melchisedec receiving tithes, signifies that he was chosen by the church, and acted in accord with God's appointment for that purpose. Salem was situated in the land of Canaan, unto which land Abraham and Lot were led out of Ur of the Chaldees by the command of God. Now by as close a chain of history as we can have, we notice the existence of Salem some thirty-seven years, at least, before Abraham left the land of Haran. Abraham was about seventy-five years of age when he, with his nephew Lot, arrived in Canaan, the land to which they had been directed by the Lord, and in which Salem was then already built. This is an evidence of the gathering of the Saints unto one land even in that dispensation; and it being a land of promise is an evidence that the Lord promised it unto them, and they gathered thither according to his direction, In the fourth dispensation, that committed unto Moses, we observe the Lord's people going out of Egypt unto the land of Canaan. In the prophetical, or fifth dispensation, when Israel had been scattered and the land made desolate, we find the Lord's people gathering out from Babylon and the various places to which they had been scattered, and going up unto Jerusalem.

When Jesus the Anointed dwelt among men, he gave his disciples instruction on this principle, the gathering of the Saints. See Matt. 24: 40; Mark 13: 30, 31, 44. Many of the Saints also of that time expected the Lord to come and gather them unto himself. 2 Thess. 2: 1-3.

Now the gathering of which the Lord spoke was to take place in the last—the seventh—dispensation. Acts 3:21. The dispensation of the fulness of times. Eph. 1:10. Therefore, when the dispensation is ushered in, and God speaking through his servant appoints the place, with "the regions around about" for the gathering of his people, we notice that it does not in any way disagree with the faith of the Saints in all past ages of the world, neither with the natural inclinations of man as a social and intelligent being.

The Lord's coming is not very far away in the future. Let us strive therefore, to walk in the light as it is our privilege to do, that his coming may not take us unawares, but that we may be able to abide his coming, and dwell in the land he has promised.

FRANCIS EARL.

Selections.

SAMARITANS AND JEWS.

DISCOVERIES ABOUT THE HISTORY AND BE-LIEFS OF THE ANCIENT SAMARITANS WHICH LEAD TO A NEW THEORY ABOUT THE TEN TRIBES.

IT would appear from the recently discovered cuneiform tables which are now under the investigation of Assyrian scholars, that while they substantially afford a remarkable confirmation of Biblical history, there are certain discrepancies in regard to the capture of Samaria and the carrying away of the Israelites into captivity which make it somewhat difficult to determine the exact date and nature of that The complete recovery of the records of Shalmaneser (IV.) who no doubt did besiege Samaria, will clear this up, and throw light upon the records of his successor, Sargon, who seems to have succeeded to the throne about the time of the capture of the city after a three years' siege, and who in that case would be the monarch who actually carried off the Israelites. If this was so, then, according to the date of his accession, the captivity must have occurred before the invitation which Hezekiah sent out through the country of Ephraim and Manasseh inviting Israelites to the passover at Jerusalem, where we are informed that large numbers attended it (2 Chronicles 30: 18) and it would put beyond a doubt what is in fact most probable, that Sargon in carrying away the Israelites captive did exactly what Nebuchadnezzar did not long after, when he carried off the tribes of Judah and Benjamin and left a large population of the poorer classes behind, who were not worth taking.

Indeed, when one comes to consider the population which we know to have inhabited Samaria and Galilee at this time, it seems incredible that any conqueror would have burdened himself with a host which must have numbered at the lowest estimate over a million souls and probably a great many more; and this conjecture is borne out by the fact that we read in Jeremiah 12: 5, that a deputation of four-score Israelties went to Jerusalem after its destruction, or more than a hundred years after That the the captivity of the Israelites. Israelites thus left intermarried with the colonists sent from Assyria on the adoption by these latter of the Jewish religion, under the instruction of a priest sent for the purpose, is extremely probable. The Samaritans themselves, however, deny all intermixture with the colonists, and maintain they are pure-blooded Israelites; and in confirmation of this, we may mention their marked Jewish type of countenance, their possession of an ancient text of the books of Moses, and their observance of the Jewish passover according to the most ancient forms of that rite.

The Samaritan account of their orginal composition is, as may be supposed, diametrically opposed to that contained in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah. They assert that at the time when the two tribes returned from the captivity, a large number of the ten tribes also returned to Samaria under Sanballat, called by Nehemiah a Heronite, but the Samaritans call him a Levite. The Samaritan account goes on to state that while the two tribes under Zerubbabel repaired to Jerusalem the rest of the congregation, three hundred thousand in all, besides youth, women and children and strangers, were led to Gerizim, where they established the temple. Then came the quarrels between the Jews at Jerusalem and the Israelites at Samaria about the building of the temple; and the accounts contained in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah and the Samaritan records are not very discordant. Making allowance always for the fact that the biblical books do not admit that the Samaritans were Israelites at all, though they admit that Sanballat's son was married to the daughter of Eliashib, the Tewish high priest, while this latter is stated to have allied himself with Tobia, who was a Samaritan priest. This caused great displeasure to Nehemiah, and increased the schism, but it goes too far to confirm the supposition that Sanballat and Tobia were

The Samaritans are indeed, in the peculiarities of their own doctrine, almost identical with the original Jewish party—the Karaite and Sadduceean sects. They are even called Sadducees in Jewish writings, and their denial of the resurrection was like that of the Sadducees based on the declaration that nothing was to be found in the law of Moses on the subject. Again, their version of the law is closely similar to that of the Septuagint, which was a translation authorized by a Sadduceean high priest from a text differing from that finally established by the Pharisees. It is often supposed that the Samaritans borrowed their doctrine from the Sadducees, but it seems more rational to admit that they were a sect originally identical, because originally Israelite. The animosity of Josephus, who was a Pharisee; the fierce denunciation of the Talmud, written by Pharisees; the destruction of the Gerizim temple by Hyrcanus-also a Pharisee—all combine to indicate that the Jewish hatred had nothing to do with any foreign origin of the race, but was rather roused by the religious differences of a people whom they knew to be of their own kith and kin.

If we adopt this theory the fate of the ten tribes is no longer a mystery. As we know that before the captivity they were addicted to strange gods and strange marriages, it is not improbable that a large proportion lost their tribal identity while in captivity by intermarrying with this people by whom they were surrounded, and became merged with them. It is also probable that a certain number (according to the Samaritan chronicle 300,000, but it need not be so large a number), returned from their captivity at the time when the two tribes received permission from Cyrus to return. It is also likely that others who still retained their religion did not return, and are the ancestors of certain Hebrew nomads still wandering in the desert. The Jews from Yemen, for instance, assert that they are the tribe of Dan, while there are Jewish shepherds in Mesopotamia whose ancestry seems not distinctly traceable to the two tribes.

The fact that those who returned to Palestine have dwindled numerically to so small a number is no reason why they should not have been at one time a considerable nation, as indeed we know they were from their subsequent history. They made serious revolts against the Romans at the time of Pilate and again during the reign of Vespasian and Severus, but under Hadrian they assisted the Romans against the Pharisees. In the sixth century they attacked the Christians and put the Bishop of Nablous, or, as it was then called, Neapolis, to death, being at that time spread over Egypt and the whole of Palestine, except the hills of Judea. Clinging to the unity of God, they hold Moses to be the one messenger of God, and Gerizim to be the earth's center, as it is the shrine of their faith. In this they are supported by the fact that, while blessings and curses are invoked on the two Samaritan mountains in the books of Moses, there is no mention in those books of Jerusalem.

They also believe in a state of future retribution, and of angels and devils as ministers of God in the unseen world. They look for a Messiah who is to be of the sons of Joseph, and they hold that he is now on earth, though not yet declared. His name is to begin with M. His titles are Taheb, "the restorer," and El Mahdi,

"the guide." Under his direction the congregation will repair to Gerizim. Under the famous twelve stones they will find the ten commandments, and under the stones of Bethel the golden vessels of the temple and the manna. After 110 years the prophet, who is considered inferior to Moses, is to die, be buried beside Joseph, whose tomb they show in the valley. Soon after, on the conclusion of 7,000 years from its creation, the world is to come to an end.

The Samaritans keep the feast of the passover on Gerizim, near the ruins of the ancient temple, here they pitch their tents, and at sunset they slay sheep and bake them for several hours in a huge oven in the ground, which is lined with stone. The men are girded with ropes, with staves in their hands, and shoes on their feet, as though prepared for a journey. They generally eat standing or walking. After the women have eaten, the scraps are burnt and a bonfire kindled and fed with the fat. The rest of the night is spent in prayer, and the following day in rejoicing. Besides this, the feast of the tabernacle is also held on the mountain, where they construct arbors of arbutus branches. The feasts of pentecost and purim and the day of atonement are also observed.

WHAT SHALL I READ?

It is as important to know what to read as it is to know what to eat. It is said that man is composed of three parts: first, the body; second, the mind; third, the spirit. We see that here is a body with hands, feet, eyes, ears, and other faculties that aid us in enjoying things by which we are surrounded, and assist us in securing food and preserving our lives. In the next place we have what is called the mind or intellectual faculty. It is that part of our being which thinks, reasons, and passes judgment on facts, and is one of the greatest distinctions between man and the lower animals. Without it, man degrades to a lower place than even the most common of our animals. There is still another faculty of our nature which leads us into moral paths, and the highest roads of a pure and righteous life.

Now, each of these parts of our nature must have some process by which it is built up and supported. The body with its members is supplied with food and exercise as the primary means to maintain life and health; and if these are not received at the right time or in the right manner, it must be injured. The mind depends on knowledge and excercise as means of its growth and strength. This food for the mind may be obtained from science, art and literature. With a proper amount of use of the mind it gains strength. Then the moral and spiritual faculties must have such a supply of precepts and examples, of right and wrong as to give them the highest conception of the moral quality of an action, the clearest view of right and wrong, that they may become healthy in their growth. We know that if a horse is poorly fed and sheltered, it will become farmer; so if he will have his team sprightly and in good health, he will feed it well and take care of it in every way.

If we would have healthy bodies we must not feed them on rotten meat, potatoes, or bread; and the mind is not unlike the body in this respect. If you, most of the time, read fairy tales, startling events, romance, real or ideal, murder, and the like, such as are found in many papers like the Police News, dime novels, or "Life of the James Boys," and similar books and papers, the mind is dwarfed and does not enjoy such reading as will improve the intellectual faculties. The Digger Indian, who lives on acorn bread and grasshopper soup, don't like beafsteak well done, nor pies, nor puddings, but it is because he has never been used to anything but a dirty, low bred living. Likewise the spiritual man, which is called also the inner man, has an identity or existence, and receives its growth and life from a supply of moral and spiritual food. As this part of man is the highest part of his nature, it must have the highest class of food, if it would have a healthy growth. Such food is anything that will give the conscience a proper exercise—religious readings, thoughts on the wisdom and goodness of God, association with the pious, frequenting religious meetings, singing devotional songs, Bible readings, with a constant effort to live such a life as would be honorable before men and acceptable to God.

There are thousands of instances where persons have neglected to improve the spiritual man, and on the contrary have spent their leisure hours reading improper literature, such as we have named, and the effect has been to so lower their morals as to make them the most depraved of humanity, seeking to rob and murder. They spurn all religious instruction and moral restraint, and thus have depraved lives, and can not speak pure words, but like the vulture that feeds on the carrion, it can throw up nothing else. Good books and papers are good company, but bad books and bad papers are bad company, and a person is known by the company he keeps. When you are in conversation with either old or young, you can soon learn what kind of company he has been keeping, whether men or book, good or bad; for "from the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." No impure fountain can send out pure water. The stream can not rise higher than its source.

So, my young friends, select good reading, and whenever you are in the company of a good book you are in good company. Your whole life will be shaped by your early training; besides, you will injure others to greater or less extent. You may cultivate a taste for good reading by taking the time to read, whether you want to or not. You may thus improve your mind and heart, and become better men and women. Because we have not the inclination to read good books and papers, is the very reason we should begin that class of literature, for, if we follow our inclination, we might not read the best kind of books and papers, and many times may feeble, and will be of but little use to the not select the best company.— J. Durham. FAILURE OF THE IOWA PROHIBI-TORY LAW.

THE exhaustive inquiries made by Senator Sutton concerning the enforcement of the Iowa Prohibitory law covered ninety-nine counties and extended to every town in the State of over 300 population. Exact figures were called for as to the number of open saloons in each place, and the replies prove beyond all contradiction that there are more doggeries in the State now than before the adoption of the Prohibitory law. The reports are made by responsible citizens of the various localities, many of them being extreme Prohibitionists, who, however, feel bound to state truly the facts, even though they contradict and explode the Prohibition theories as to the efficacy of sumptuary laws in coercing people into a change of habits. It is shown that there are 2,257 dramshops in Iowa now, as compared with 1,806 two years ago, before the adoption of the Prohibitory law. This statement, however, gives only a hint of the evils that have been wrought by inflexible prohibition.

In many of the smaller places the open traffic in liquor has been suppressed, but the dramshops have been transferred to the larger towns, where they now run free from all restraint. As a rule, prohibition is reasonably well enforced in the small villages—to the extent at least of closing the open saloons and compelling the drinkers to resort to the drug-stores or buy liquor by the jug in the larger places—but in the cities the law is a nullity, and operates only to increase the number of irresponsible doggeries. For instance, ex-Gov. Gear makes the following report as to Burlington: "Nearly 100 saloons, about twice as many as two years ago. Liquors are sold as openly as any merchandise. The liquor trafic should be controlled in some definit manner that will reach those engaged in it. I do not think anything is gained by enforcing prohibition on counties where the temperance people in those counties can not enforce it."

Dr. E. R. Hutchins, State Commissioner of Labor Statistics and Grand Master of the Iowa Good Templars, reports the following from Des Moines: "It is claimed we have 200 saloons all told, but we probably have 175. Our Mayor and our police are against us. We fought hard for awhile, but we couldn't fight against such odds. We had seventy saloons before the law."

After a brief trial of high-license taxation in Des Moines two years ago the saloons were cut down to sixty and were still disappearing when the Prohibitory law took off the tax and set them free. After eighteen months of prohibition, Des Moines now has 175 saloons, and some authorities put the number at 200! This, too, in a city where the Prohibitionists are exceptionally strong and active, and where the courts ruled rigidly in favor of the prohibitory law. Dubuque reports an increase of twenty-six open saloons and 100 secret. Davenport thirty, Keokuk thirteen, Sioux City twenty-five, and Ottumwa has dram shops "four times as many and ten times worse than before." When carefully scanned these figures reveal a significance not apparent at first glance, as they show that the only cities which have escaped a great increase of saloons are the ones engaged in a bold and open nullification of the State law by substituting license taxation for prohibition. Still, the efforts of the cities to protect themselves by taxation are often futile and ineffective, since all such attempts are in violation of the State law.

Waterloo, a place of 6,500 population, reports a reduction of saloons from twenty to sixteen, together with "less drunkenness, less loafing, less carousing;" but it is carefully explained that this is the result not of prohibition, but of an annual tax of $275 levied on the saloons without regard to law. Legally no saloon in Iowa can be taxed a dime, but some of the cities refused to accept the alternative of free whisky and instead put a penalty on the doggeries and collect it, law or no law. They feel bound to protect themselves even though in doing it they are compelled to resort to the deplorable expedient of nullifying the State law. In places like Des Moines and Burlington, where no attempt has been made to substitute license taxation for prohbition, the people are cursed with an unrestrained liquor traffic. The situation in Iowa is deplorable to the last degree. The cities which make no attempt to encourage the violation of the State law under the cover of illegal licenses are turned over to the rule of free whisky, bound hand and foot, while some of the rebellious places which have nullified the State law and substituted license taxation are still able to hold the doggeries in check. -Chicago Tribune, Dec. 11.

TEMPERANCE IN THE SOUTH.

PROF. A. A. HOPKINS delivered the following speech at a meeting in Prohibition Central Hall, in New York city, Tuesday evening, December 1st. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Prohibition Lecture Bureau:

The Southern situation, though complex in appearance, is rather simple in fact. Viewed from the Northern standpoint its elements differ in color, and are equally diversed in condition, character and purpose. How such diversities can harmonize may seem puzzling; and the more so when you add differences of politics to difference of race, and reverse what to a Northern man is the established order of political things. Stand here with me and look southward: What do you see? A master race and a subject race; social divergences the most pronounced; the Democratic party dominant through the whites; and the Republican party seeking domination through the blacks; the white Democrats arraying themselves largely against the saloon, and the black Republicans as largely arrayed in its favor. Seventy-five per cent. of the morality, and ninety per cent. of the respectability and social influence, in that party which North is thought least moral and least respectable; and that morality, respectability and influence believed to be in league against the morality, respectability, influence and loyality of the North to work out sinister ends in our Government, to achieve cherished sectional results. Such is the complex appearance. What is the simple fact?

THE RELATIONS OF THE RACES.

There are the two races, where they have been, together, these two hundred years. They know each other, they like each other. Each needs the other. The South needs both. They are interdependent. There they must, and they will remain. There they must agree on a basis of maintenance. There the morality and intelligence must dominate, for its own sake, for the sake of its opposite, for our country's sake, for the sake of all humanity and all civilization. It was a huge blunder of reconstruction, almost a stupendous sin, that put ignorance over knowledge, and made possible gross misrule through stupid misapprehension.

One reflects little upon the colored people when he says that morality and intelligence are found chiefly—not altogether, but mainly—among the master race. It was natural to the old status that ignorance should be, and that immorality should thrive under it. Then black ignorance was a necessity, and colored vice a profitable consequence, or so considered by the whites. Now, education of the blacks is imperative, admittedly, and vice a constant menace to the body social, the body politic.

SOUTHERN PROHIBITION IN SLAVERY DAYS PARTLY ACCOUNTS FOR THE SENTIMENT NOW.

And this, in part, explains the marvel of such widespread Prohibition sentiment at the South; this tells you why the ex-slaveowner, the once rich planter, whose hospitable ideas in former days included whiskey as naturally as food—Democratic as he is to the very core, and loyal as yet he is to a party which at the North believes in whiskey and boasts of it-is nevertheless a Prohibitionist in principle, and votes, every chance he can get, to suppress the saloon. He was always a Prohibitionist to the slave. Unto the black man he was a personal law of Prohibition. For him, the white, were white books and a black bottle. To the black slave, book and bottle signified liberty, were part of it. Free, he sought straightway the bottle and the book-the bottle commonly first; and while one was a great boon, the other grew a great curse. None saw this more quickly, more surely, than the ex-master; and on him scarcely less than upon the exslave fell that greater curse. "We must get rid of the bottle," he reasoned soon, "to get good from the book. For white and black alike the saloon is a growing peril, and in our common interest it must be put down."

It may be said with truth, I think, that a wise and far-seeing selfishness inspired the South first to accept and then swiftly to adopt in such large degree the Prohibition idea. Remember how the South was bankrupted by war and devastated by the tramp of conquering armies. It faced, at length, an uninviting future. Its fields were bare and barren. Its capital was wasted. Its labor was demoralized by new conditions, into which drink entered as the most demoralizing element; yet on that labor must the South depend for rehabilitation. By it must the naked fields be laid again under tribute, and brought to serve both white and black. Out of this labor, fitted for Southern needs, must be evolved Southern resources, if ever the South would again prosper and grow glad.

It was a very simple problem in political economy. Black labor, sober and slave, had once made the South rich. Could black labor, free and drunken, ever do the like? Manifestly not. But it might, if sober and free. In the sobriety of the black rested the South's material hope. Swift to grasp principles and to comprehend economic laws, the South saw this with sure vision. And the South saw, also, the painful contrast in productive power between labor under Prohibition and labor conditioned by the saloons. It recognized the colored man's native propensity to drink, his native indolence magnified by the influences of drink, and the utter failure to make him a profitable producing agent with the saloon in his neighborhood. It accepted the plain logic of facts. And its logical rejoinder was, "The saloon must go.'

PROHIBITION NORTH—A CONTRAST.

If the North had seen one hundred years of industrial activity and profitable production, with the saloon largely shut to its laboring classes, and if we stood to-day at the end of a decade thriftless and wasteful because of the saloon system, with this thriftlessness and wastefulness accentuated by such sharp contrast to which we could not blind ourselves, our verdict would be even more swift and emphatic than that of the South, "The saloon must go!" For we, too, would answer thus—we could not help but answer thus-to wise and far sighted selfishness, the self-concern which every great people ought to exercise in its own behalf for to-day and for all time. But with us the saloon system has been of gradual growth; and it has more and more affected our labor system without its effects being realized or plainly seen. And we lack the sharp contrast which the South has known. We do not comprehend the producing power of the North without the saloon system. We can not realize the demoralizing influence of that system on our labor interests.

In the North we support vast hordes of non-producers and consumers, multiplying every year, the legitimate fruit of our illegitimate liquor system; and, while the cost is enormous, its burden is less apparent, because so long increasingly borne. It is so diffused through our tax list that we are not staggered by it. It is so disguised under varied forms of appropriation that we fail to recognize it. It has so grown into the financial necessities that we do not think it obstrusive. But let it come upon us with swift suddenness, the startling growth of a decade or less, and we should think it appaling!

HAS PROHIBITION RELIEVED THE SOUTH of her burdens and increased her productiveness? While in Georgia, I learned of one county which had made $50,000 the first year of Prohibition, according to careful estimates, by merely agricultural production alone, as a directly traceable result. Another county claimed $100,000 gain in like manner. That the general results in Georgia are satisfying, one sees at once by the steady growth of Prohibition territory, and the constant spread of Prohibition ideas in that and other States.

Has Prohibition any advantages in the South peculiar to that section? Yes!

"PERSONAL LIBERTY" NOT A WATCH-WORD SOUTH.

1st. The South has a comparatively small per cent. of foreign born population. The beer watchword of "Personal Liberty" is alien there. It is not native to the black. While it may be and has been employed with colored voters successfully, it has not the weight South which it carries here in the North.

They are led, too, by their religious teachers, these colored men. The South has no large foreign element as has the North, drawn on toward Socialistic riot and ruin by dangerous revolutionary schemes, whose only shibboleth is "No Sunday, no God, and a Beer Garden!" Over the colored voter, the colored preacher has great influence. Whatever else the colored man may be, he is religious. Easily moulded by religious influences, if not steadfastly kept right; American by birth, and proud of his American birthright and freedom, the ignorant black man is less dangerous to this Government than the educated foreigner who deliberately attacks its most sacred institutions, and debases his acquired citizenship to serve alien appetite and atheism.

PROHIBITION LAWS RESPECTED SOUTH.

Then, the Southern people, as a whole, white and black, are more law-abiding than are the Northern people, as a whole. Let me not be misunderstood. There have been outbreaks in the South, I doubt not; the sacredness of law and of human right has been violated in many cases, beyond question; but laws are better observed south of Mason and Dixon's Line than north of it—the prohibitory laws in particular.

There is more deliberate, defiant, aggressive, organized, desperate and dangerous disloyalty in the Republican North, than the Democratic South. Loyalty is devotion to law; belief in and support of national institutions, national principles, and national ideas. According to Daniel Webster anything is revolutionary which overturns, controls, or successfully resists existing Constitutional authority. North our legalized liquor traffic defies, controls, and overturns the authority which legalizes it, and is revolutionary in spirit and in method to the last degree. Behind it there stands the alien element from which largely the South is free. problem how to assimilate that element, how to make it law-abiding and truly American, does not so terribly trouble the South. For which let the South thank God!

SOUTHERN RESPECTABILITY ENLISTED FOR PROHIBITION.

2d. The Prohibition movement in the South is largely directed by leading and influential men and women, manufacturers and their wives, or professional gentlemen of repute, and ladies who wield social power. There more generally than in the North, it has the prestige of respectability; it is popular, and a popular success. Just why this is so I will not now attempt to tell. But if original self-interest prompted those wealthier and more influential, at the outset of this movement, and capital but sought its own good—as I do not say -principle has stepped in nobly to maintain and carry forward the work. There are homes in the South to-day (and I have been a guest in such) where not long ago liquors formed part of the regular hospitality, and where personal Prohibition is now the domestic law.

SOUTHERN DEMOCRATS NOT SO HESITAT-ING AS NORTHERN REPUBLICANS.

3d. The Democratic party of the South is not so much opposed to the Prohibition movement as is the Rebublican party of the North. Analysis of this fact is unnecessary. The fact itself stands patent for all to see. More active sympathy with the prohibition idea, and more helpfulness in the enforcement of Prohibition laws, are found among southern Democrats than among Northern Republicans. Should it be urged that this is so bucause Southern Prohibitionists have not largely and embarrassingly carried their cause into politics, and because Northern Prohibitionists have, we may cite the experience of Prohibition in Kansas, for three years previous to the formation of a separate party there, and in Iowa to-day where no third party existed. And if in States so overwhelmingly Republican as these long have been, the dominant party, unvexed by third party annoyances, can not show the same zeal and success in enforcing Prohibition which are manifested by the dominant party in Georgia and Mississippi, overwhelmingly Democratic, we must seek a reason outside any action of third party Prohibitionists anywhere—we must admit that the proclaimed temperance spirit and purpose of the Republican party, if they exist, are neutralized by influences not in sympathy with Prohibition. I recall no such aggressive and persistent attacks on the Whiskey ring, or Beer ring, of this country, by any Northern journal of the most influential class, as have appeared in the Atlanta Constitution against the Whiskey

It is clear that up to present date the liquor powers that be, have not so largely captured the party press, and do not so dominate the sources of public sentiment, in the South, as in the North. The average Southern legislator fears them less. He votes for Prohibition with a freer grace than his Northern party brother. He dares submit a Prohibition Ammendment in Tennessee; through there Democracy yet faces hopeful Republican strength. He dares give county after county over to Prohibition in Kentucky; though there the Prohibition tide threatens to engulf Republicanism and beat solidly against Democratic breakwaters. He is either more fair in method, or braver in character, or more sympathetic toward temperance and morality, than his Republican contemporary of Michigan, Massachusetts, New York, and New Jersey. You can take your choice.

4th. The Southern people are hospitable to new political issues as we of the North are not. They have tired of old party feuds. They have paid lasting penalty for past mistakes of political sectionalism. They will not shut Prohibition out of its opportunities because of possible embarrassments it may cause in On this point many influential State politicians, and some men of national repute, are positive and pronounced; while a great number of active Democrats. scattered throughout several States, stand ready to accept Prohibition as a main issue in both State and national politics, and to rally the voting forces at once along the line. "I am a Democrat and a Prohibitionist," said the Speaker of the House of Representatives in Mississippi, introducing Governor St. John to a large audience. "But I want it understood that if the Democratic party of this State turns its back on Prohibition I am still a Prohibitionist."

THE PROHIBITION PARTY IN THE SOUTH.

"But" says one critic, "the National Democratic party antagonizes Prohibition, and in every State the Democrats indorse their party's national policy." True; and in this fact we may find answer to the questions you now are ready to ask: What hope is there in the South for the Prohibition party? and what need is there for a Prohibition party in the South?

It would seem, at first glance, with seven-tenths of Georgia under Prohibition, with a general Local Option law granted by the Legislature, with a Canstitutional Amendment sure to be submitted when asked for, and with the dominant party friendly enough to permit all this, that the Prohibition party has no call to be in that State, and no hope of being. And I presume that our party would have no stronger grip in any Northern State to-day than it has in Georgia, if everywhere the conditions were precisely what there they are. But would the party then be superfluous? Would its organization be unnecessary? Assuredly not.

Prohibition can not long remain the policy of any party, in any State, when that party's national policy is opposed thereto, and that party's only hope of National success lies in retaining the liquor vote. It must come about in Democratic Georgia, as already in Republican Kansas and Iowa, that the liquor powers will say, "Change your State policy in our interest, or we will beat your party in vital States." And it must come about, also, that the honest Prohibition voter, loyal to principle in his State election, and loyal to Prohibition always, when in question, will see the wicked illogic of voting a cause up locally, but to vote it down nationally—of sustaining a party whose declared national purpose is to crush out what through Local Option he has been steadily laboring to achieve and maintain.

To give him consistent opportunity, and to warrant the future enforcement of a law not easily won, the Prohibition party is essential in every Southern State. It is essential, too, because a national policy can be built up by and through a national party alone; and because in the upbuilding of our proposed national policy of Prohibition, the South should have full lot and share; there should be no sectionality. As much as the North, will the South need this broader policy in years to come. Local Option can not long continue successsful in Georgia, Kentucky, and Alabama, with liquor dominating New York, Ohio, and Illinois. Local Option is but a temporary success dependent for its term on future conditions. These conditions can be fixed permanently, for the good of Local Option States, only by Constitutional safeguards; and these, to be made enduring and efficient, must be alike over all the States. They may never be made so unless determined by a National Amendment. That Amendment the Southern States may help force on an unwilling North, as once a Prohibition Amendment of another sort was forced by the North upon an unwilling South. Our Southern brethren may wisely retaliate for the 14th Amendment by a 16th. They can do this only by thorough organization for Prohibition; the election of Prohibition representatives in Congress, and the general massing of Prohibition votes to guarantee national Prohibition.

PROHIBITION WILL DISRUPT SECTION-ALISM.

Is there hope of such organization? Will Prohibition disrupt the Democratic party of the South? In my opinion, yes. Nationally, the Democratic party is joined to its idol—the saloon. It will not change a policy demanded by its past record, and imperative to future success in many States. It will be anti-Prohibition to the end. What that end may be was prophesied by those recent 40,000 Prohibition votes for Judge Fox in Bourbon Kentucky. A hint of it might have been heard in one of St. John's meetings in the South, last winter, where an ex-Governor of Mississippi was called out, after our Northern ex-Governor had made his speech. "You know me," he said to the enthusiastic audience; "You know me as a Bourbon of the Bourbons. You know that I have held the highest office in this State, conferred upon me by the Democratic party. But I tell you, my friends, that if ever the Democratic party of this country tries to force down my throat again the infamous liquor plank of last year, I am a Democrat no longer!" And the crowd went wild in jubilant response, while cries of "You're right, Governor, we're with you!" showed the popular wish and will.

What, then, should be our aim and effort, as managers of the Prohibition movement, with regard to the South? To educate and to concentrate Southern sentiment up to and around the focal idea of national Prohibition, secured and maintained by a national Prohibition party. We need not, we ought not, antagonize Local Option in this work. In our campaign of last winter, neither Governor St. John nor myself took issue with Local Option methods. We but acted in the belief, common to all Prohibitionists, that Local Option is a good thing where you can get no better, but we nowhere pronounced it the best good attainable, or the best method known. On the contrary, we urged the workers at many times and in many places, to proceed aggressively for a Constitutional Amendment, and were many times assured that in Georgia, in Alabama, and in Mississippi as in Tennessee, that would next be sought. The public and private utterances of Governor St. John were everywhere unequivocal as to party action, and were nowhere misunderstood, or, so far as I know, misreported by the Democratic party against which they lodged. The only instance of misapprehension or misinterpretation, which has come to my knowledge, shows Republican sympathy under it, and suggests a Republican purpose in it. Whatever Southern work we may undertake, let us bear in mind that education must precede party organization, and that our best educators only are wanted in the South; that our wisest workers should be sent there. It is possible for this movement to efface forever the old scars of sectional strife. Already it has done much in this direction; and we but begin to see its wholesome possibilities. Our Southern friends will meet us gladly in the new brotherhood of philanthropic and patriotic endeavor, and on a new platform of national principles, worthy of national politics. And if politics be what Webster defines—"the science of government: that part of ethics which has to do with the regulation and government of a nation, or state; with the augmentation of its strength and resources, with the protection of its citizens in their rights, and the preservation and improvement of their morals"—then this principle of national Prohibition may well form the central plank in our new national platform, then South and North may well unite with one accord in securing the establishment of that principle in national law, as the best guarantee of national rights and the surest conservator of national morals.-The Voice.

BREATHING THROUGH THE NOSE.

I TAKE the liberty of sending a few remarks on this subject, which I cull partly from the pages of the Phonetic Fournal. The habit of taking in the air only through the nostrils has very great and very many advantages. Nothing can be more hurtful to the pure quality of the voice and injurious to the larynx and the lungs than the habit of gasping in the air without any system or method by the open mouth. Take this as a golden rule that the breath should not merely when speaking and reading, but at all times and under all circumstances be taken into the lungs only through the nostrils. If there is any tendency or weakness of the lungs or of the larynx, trachea, or bronchial tubes, the observation of this rule is of vital importance to health. Clergymen and public speakers suffer much from the most erroneous habit of gasping or pumping in the air through the open mouth.

Man is the most perfectly constructed of all animals, and consequently he can endure more. The habit of sleeping with the mouth open is destructive to the human constitution. Though the majority of people are more or less addicted to the habit of breathing through their mouth, comparatively few will admit they are subject to it. They go to sleep and they awake with their mouth shut, not knowing that the insidious enemy steals upon them in their sleep and does its work of death while they are unconscious of evil. Few people can be convinced that they snore in their sleep, for the moment they awake the snoring is stopped; and so with breathing through the mouth, the moment that consciousness returns the mouth is closed. In natural and refreshing sleep man breathes but little air. His pulse is low; and in the most perfect state of repose he almost ceases to exist. This is necessary and most wisely ordered, that his lungs, as well as his limbs, may rest from the labor and excitement of the day.

Mr. Henry Pitman's advice on this subject is at every moment of your waking hours (except when it is necessary to open them) to keep your lips and teeth firmly pressed together. This habit will prepare you to meet more calmly the usual excitements of life. Keep your mouth shut when you read silently, when you write, when you listen, when you are in pain, when you are walking, when you are running, and by all means when you are angry. Every person will find an improvement in health and enjoyment from attention to this advice.

It may be added that it is possible to breath through the nose when speaking without entirely closing the mouth. This is done by raising the tongue to the palate so as to stop the passage of the air through the gullet, at the same time drawing in air silently through the nostrils. It requires no more than a thought to perceive that mankind, like all brute creation, should close their mouth when they close their eyes, and breathe through the nostrils which were made for the purpose. Those who suffer from weakness of the lungs, or other diseases of the chest, need no proof of this fact, and those who are incredulous should take a candle in their hands and look at their friends asleep and snoring with their eyes shut and their mouth wide open, the very picture of distress, idiocy, and death. We are told that the breath of life was breathed into man's nostrils. Then why should he not continue to live by breathing it in the same manner?

ABOUT GOOD BUTTER MAKING.

Wm. Lewis, Esq., proprietor of the Stewartsville Creamery, had a set of rules printed at this office, this week, to be given to his customers and, as they contain some valuable hints to butter makers, we take the liberty of publishing them, hoping thereby to improve the quality of butter marketed generally in this city. The rules are as follows:

Keep the cream from freezing, for frozen cream will make white and bitter butter. Don't keep the cream too close to the fire. Keep cream in tin or earthen vessels. Wash your milk and cream vessels with warm water every time before using. Keep the cream covered, and always stir it before putting any in the vessel. See that your milch cows get good, pure water. See that your milch cows get salt twice every week. See that you milk your cows every morning and evening. See that your cows have plenty of good hay, fodder and corn, and are kept in a warm place sheltered from the storms. Don't set the milk in caves or cellars.

Mr. Lewis adds to the rules some advice as follows:—Remember, that if you observe the above rules your cows will pay better than anything else on your farm, and, by the way, don't forget to put up ice; you will need it next summer.—Independent.

SLEEPLESSNESS.

A GENTLEMAN who signs himself "One of the sleepers" sends me the following cure for sleep-lessness. He says:

"I hold that the human mind is in itself a perfect magnet, and to retain its perfect strength it should be provided with a perfect armature to return the electric current upon itself which would otherwise go to waste. In ordinary cases a congenial wife acts as an armature to the husband, and a congenial husband to the wife. In the absence of those armatures provided by nature, or in case they have become negative or repulsive or have lost their attractive force, a person may make a reasonably good substitute by turning their own electric current upon themselves, by fixing their minds upon a nervous center, say upon the pit of the stomach, and thus prevent the magnetic exhaustion which induces sleeplessness."

This is interesting, not very new, and I question if the suggestion of "fixing the mind upon the pit of the stomach" has any practical value. The effort required to perform such a feat is very considerable, and very unlike that relaxation of mind which must precede sleep. Muscular exercise in the open air to the point of fatigue is the best possible prescription for sleeplessness. Sleepless persons must wisely consider the enenvironment. Is the air good? Is the room cool enough? Is the bed a good one, neither too hard nor too soft? But more important than these conditions is the quality and quantity of the supper and the condition of the muscles, on retiring. I never have known any one who could not induce sleep by a brisk walk in the open air before retiring. This is worth more than any of the doses to which so many persons resort, worth more even than lager beer, which is the cure-all of many people.-Nuggets.

Conserence Minutes.

STRING PRAIRIE AND NAUVOO.

District conference was held at Burlington, Iowa, December 5th and 6th, 1885, in the Saints' Hall. H. C. Bronson presiding; D. D. Babcock, secretary. Branch reports.—Rock Creek 44; died 1. Montrose 73; baptized 4, received by letter 5. H. C. Bronson, president; Mary E. Bronson, clerk. Farmingham and Burlington, no change. Keokuk report referred back for correction. Elders W. D. Morton, B. F. Durfee, M. T. Short, Bronson, Johnson, Babcock and John Lambert, reported. Report of Bishop's Agent:—On hand last report $15.45, received since $72.95; expended $88.10; on hand 30 cents. An auditing committee was appointed, but made no report. Preaching by Elder J. McKiernan. Next conference to be held at Keokuk, Iowa, the first Saturday and Sunday in March, 1886. Elder H. C. Bronson was sustained District President the ensuing three months; the present secretary was also continued. On Sabbath morning preaching by Eld. H. C. Bronson. In the afternoon the Saints met for prayer and testimony, and to commemorate the sufferings and death of the Master. A most profitable and enjoyable time was had. It was made known by the Spirit of revelation from God, that their prayers were heard, and that was confirmed by tongues in song and the interpretation. Those who did not attend, but might have done so, lost a feast of good things. Preaching in the evening by Elder M. T. Short; subject, "Book of Mormon." Some, not members, expressed themselves interested in that subject.

WYOMING VALLEY.

This district conference met at Nanticoke, Pa., November 28th and 29th, 1885. Hiram Robinson in the chair; J. J. Morgan, assistant; J. D. Eckerd, secretary. Branch reports.-Nanticoke 13. The Bishop's Agent reported $10.10 on hand. Elders H. S. Gill, D. Griffiths, Lewis B. Thomas, J. J. Morgan and Hiram Robinson; Priests J. D. Eckerd and Francis A. Evans, and Teacher W. Ransom, reported. Preaching in the forenoon by Hiram Robinson, Saints' meeting in the afternoon, preaching in the evening by David Griffith in Welsh, assisted by Bro. Gill. At the close of the meeting it was requested that Bro. Robinson labor in the district. Adjourned to meet at Hyde Park, Pa., on the last Saturday and Sunday in February, 1886.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICE.

The members of the Edenville Branch of the Des Moines District, who have moved away, and can connect themselves with other branches, will please send for their letters of removal before the first of March, 1886, and those who can not are requested to report by that time, or they will be reported scattered members.

J. F. ROBERTS, Branch Clerk.

DIED.

Odoms.—At Gariand, Alabama, Elder Aaron J. Odoms departed this life on Thursday, December 3d, 1885, of erysipelas of the face, which went to the brain. He was born in Conecuh Co., Alabama, in 1837; baptized by Heman C. Smith December 7th, 1879, in Butler County, ordained an Elder by R., J. Anthony, October 15th, 1883; presided over Pleasant Hill Branch about two years; was chosen president of the Alabama District last July; was continued in October and held that office at his death. The Alabama District feels his death deeply, as also does his numerous friends outside of the church. He leaves a wife and three sons, all about their majority, and in comfortable circumstances, to mourn his loss. He has been more earnestly engaged in the latter day work for the last year than ever before,notably since our debate at Midway in September of last year, where he affirmed he saw greater light in the latter day dispensation than ever before. Funeral services by G. T. Chute.

DANCER.—At Lamoni, Iowa, at seven o'clock on the evening of December 11th, 1885, Sr. Elizabeth Dancer passed to the realms beyond. She was a sister of Bro. David Dancer, and much of her life was spent as a member of his household, beloved by all within it. Her sister Esther was with her the last few minutes of her life; and her niece, Jessie, daughter of another brother in Illinois, kept faithful watchcare over her to the end. Her age was 61 years, one month and 17 days, and they were years of dovotion to the interests and happiness of others, and to any good work that her hands found to do. The embodiment of great patience, she passed through life with a calmness and grace of character which were pleasing to all who knew her. Much of her life was given to the care and comfort of her nephews and nieces, the children of her brothers, and these all loved her as the tried and trusted "Auntie," one who was never found wanting in a time of need. She was baptized by Bro. J. W. Gillen in April, 1864, at Wilton, Will County, Illinois, and remained steadfast unto the end, and the writer will ever remember her closing days and her peaceful passing away to a glorious rest and reward. The funeral services were by Elders J. W. Gillen and H. A. Stebbins, held on Sunday, December 13th.

HART.—At No. 823, Henry street, Oakland, California, November 30th, 1885, Minnie Florence, beloved infant daughter of Bro. William and Sr. Frances Mary Hart, after an illness of six and a half hours, aged 2 years, 2 months and 16 days. Funeral services at the residence by Elders William Anderson and J. B. Price.

"Go to thy rest, fair child!
Go to thy dreamless bed,
While yet so gentle, undefiled,
With blessings on thy head.
Ere sin has seared the breast,
Or sorrow woke the tear,
Rise to thy throne of changeless rest,
In yon delightful sphere.

Thy lip and eye so bright,
Because thy loving cradle care
Was such a fond delight.
Shall love with weak embrace,
Thy upward wing detain?
No! gentle infant, seek thy place
Amid the cherub train."

Because thy smile was fair.

Locklin.—In Montpelier, Vermont, September 22d, 1884, of heart disease, Mary, wife of Hiram W. Locklin, aged 75 years and 6 months. A devoted Christian, a patient, loving wife and mother; never tiring of her duties, making smooth the paths of those less faithful and persevering. Each day she added new gems to the crown awaiting her in the home beyond the shadows of the dark valley. She was loved by all who knew her. Thus she lived a long and happy life. She joined the Church of Latter Day Saints in the early days, was baptized by Thomas Gates, Sr., at Lyndon, Caledonia County, Vermont, May 10th, 1835; and never followed any of the factions that sprung up in the dark days, nor imbibed their pernicious doctrines. And on the occasion of the visit and preaching there of Elder A. W. Lockling, from Iowa in 1876, she expressed with much earnestness her faith in the calling and mission of "Young Joseph" and her acceptance of the Reorganized Church as the continuation of that organized by divine command in 1830.

> Dear mother rest among the blest, Until the resurrection day; When we shall meet, and joyous greet, If we this life live faithfully.

SORTEN.—At Fairfield, Dakotah, October 28th, 1885, of consumption, Bro. Frank Sorten, aged 28 years. He was baptized at Adelphi, Iowa, by J. S. Roth, March 14th, 1885; he lived a consistent life, and was a faithful Saint from the day of his baptism. He was resigned to God's will, and was strong in the faith to the last. He leaves a loving wife and one child to mourn his death.

NEWTON.—At Armstrong, Kansas, November 24th, 1885, William Newton, aged 74 years, 6 months, and 11 days. Brother Newton was born May 13th, 1811, in the parish of Broad Clyst, Devonshire, England, and came to America in June, 1885, joined the church on the 1st of August and was found faithful to his covenant with God to the time of his death. The funeral services and sermon by Elder George Hicklin. Text: "Blessed are the dead that died in the Lord."-Rev. 14: 13. He was father of brother William Newton of Wyandotte, who came from Canada some years ago. The children mourn the loss of their father and grandfather, but not as those without hope in Christ.

HOG CHOLERA.

My experience in handling hogs, ailing with cholera, and prevention, dates from 1853 to date. As a boy herding 500 to 600 head, in Eastern Pennsylvania we were troubled with the disease, losing large numbers and administering various medicines, but all of no value, until we struck on charcoal which stopped the loss and cured the hogs promptly. After feeding the charcoal in various ways, we adopted the following on herds when the disease was bad and many dying off. We would remove the hogs from the feeding pens, place them in a clean pasture, with plenty of clean water to drink, this in clean troughs not allowing the hogs to wallow, and feed them mixed charcoal and bran, as much as they could eat, fill them up with it. The mixture we made 1/2 bran and 1/2 hard wood charcoal ground fine. This invariably stopped the worst case of hog cholera I have ever seen, in five days' time. As for prevention, we feed wood ashes once a week, mixed with other feed and have had no case of hog cholera for ten years, though feeding from 100 to 200 head right along.

This is my experience as a farmer, though have years ago, fed drugs and medicines in large quantities, such as Nitre, Ginger, Sulphur, Antimony, Arsenic, etc., etc., but all of little or no value, until we tried hard wood charcoal and wood ashes, which seems to us at least, a cure and a prevention.

COME AND SEE OUR ALL PAPER,

The largest selection that was ever in Lamoni; also, BOOKS, PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS,

PERFUMES, TOILET SOAPS, BRUSHES & COMBS. Bottom Prices on all Goods.

Hansen & Walker's Drug Store.

J. H. HANSEN, M.D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty. Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

MILLWRIGHT.

WILL Build, Overhaul, and Repair all kinds of work in Millwrighting; can make changes from BURRS to the ROLLER PROCESS in the latest improved style. Diagrams and Plans furnished free if I am employed to do the work; if not, I will furnish them reasonably. Work done by the day to suit times.

Yours in bonds, L. L. WIGHT, Ridgeway. Harrison Co., Mo.

BOOKS!

We have just added a full line of John B. Alden's books to our stock of Drugs and Notions. We also carry full line of CHURCH PUBLICATIONS.

Catalogues sent on application. Books sent by Mail, prepaid, at regular piice.

HANSEN & WALKER,

Druggists and Booksellers, Lamoni, Iowa.

FARM FOR SALE.

I have Sixty Acres of Land for sale: 37 acres in Grass, 17 acres in new Timber Land, about 3 acres of Standing Timber, and two acres of Orchard; a good Spring Well on the place, a House, Barn, and Granary.

Price: Six Hundred Dollars, Cash Down. The land is situated north of Jeffersonville, Wayne Co., Illinois. Apply to

MRS. F. P. MOLLOY, Cleveland, Iowa.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS.

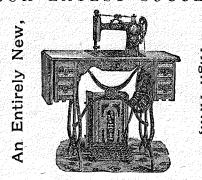

The subscribers hereto have done business through the L. F. Henry Real Estate Agency, of Stewartsville, Mo., and have always found it fair, square and honest in all its trausactions:

T. T. Hinderks,
G. W. Wilcox,
S. L. Blake,
W. N. Boothe,
Bobert Jones,
The gentlemen whose names appear above are all members in good standing of the Latter Day Saint's Church and men whose recommendation are worth something.
Mr. Henry is always ready and willing to show land and other property he has for sale, and claims to be better prepared to give bargans in Real Estate than any one else in or near Stewartsville, and makes no charge for showing lands.

THE HOWE MACHINE CO.

AT THE FRONT.

OUR LATEST SUCCESS.

EASY - RUNNING - SEWING - MACHINE.

---IT HAS-

The Most Room under the Arm. The Best Self-Setting Needle.
The Largest Bobbin.
The Easiest Shuttle to Thread.

The Most Perfect Tension. The Most Reliable Feed.

The Most Perfect Take-Up.
The Best Bobbin Winder.

SIMPLE, STRONG, DURABLE AND HANDSOME.

Runs Rapidly, Very Light, Very Still, and Without Vibration.

Before you purchase, please examine the NEW HOWE at the office of

N. M. REEDER, LAMONI, IOWA.

DENTISTRY. SHIPPY, DR. JOHN Dental Surgeon,

Licentiate of the Royal Dental College of Ontario, will practice Dentistry in all its branches in Lamoni, Iowa. Office on Main street, two doors north of Tilton's Store. Residence: corner of First and Linden street, south of Railroad.

The Line selected by the U.S. Cov't to carry the Fast Mail.

The Only Through Line, with its own track, between

CHICAGO, PEORIA or St. LOUIS AND DENVER

Either by way of Omaha, Pacific Junction, Atchison or Kansas City, It traverses all of the six Great States,

IOWA. MISSOURI,

NEBRASKA, KANSAS, GOLORADO With branch lines to their important cities and towns. It runs every day in the year from one to three elegantly equipped through trains over its own tracks between

Chicago and Denver, Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and Council Bluffs, Chicago and St. Joseph, Chicago and Atchison, Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and Topeka, Chicago and St. Louis, Chicago and Dubuque Chicago and Sioux City, Peoria and Council Bluffs, Peoria and Kansas City, Peoria and St. Louis, St. Louis and Omaha, St. Louis and St. Paul, St. Louis and Rock Island, St. Louis and Chicago, Kansas City and Denver,
. Kansas City and St. Paul,
Kansas City and Omaha,

Kansas City and Burlington. Direct Connection made at each of its Junction points ith Through Trains to and from points located on its branches.

At each of ite several Eastern and Western termini it connects in Grand Union Depots with Through Trains to and from all points in the United States and Canada, It is the Principal Line to

San Francisco, Portland and City of Mexico

For Tickets, Rates, General Information, etc., regarding the Burlington Route, call on any Ticket Agent in the United States or Canada, or address

HENRY B. STONE, PER Ass't Gen'l Manager, CHICAGO. PERCEVAL LOWELL, Gen'l Pass. Agent,

>BUSINESS4 The Davenport Business College

Prepares young people for useful and profitable employment. The following branches are thoroughly taught, Bookeeping, by single and double entry; Business Artometic; Rapid Calculations; Business Writing; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Telegraphy; Phonography; Type-writing; and Actual Business Practice. For circulars address

DUNCAN & HAWKS, Davenport, Iowa.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publica tion of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Postal Note, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed David Dancer, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANCER; communications and articles to the EDITOR.

INDEX TO VOLUME XXXII.

A		Dalton, R. F.		Page, C. C.		Elders, First Quorum 159
Abode of Saints 12	Northern California 730		843	Palmer, A.	175	Elders, Fourth Quorum 667
Advocate 47	Northern Illinois 79, 207, 504, 762		377	Parr, C. Z.	63	Elders, Mormon 823
Ancient Pottery 62	Northern Michigan425, 762 Northern Minnesota127, 600		31	Payton, C. A. Pearsall, S. R.	699	Elders, Second Quorum 208, 473, 794 Elders, Third Quorum 191
Anti-Polygamy Boom, The. 712	Northern Minnesota127, 600 Northern Nebraska 190, 504, 713		537, 794	Pearson, J.		Ells, Josiah 708
Apostasy 711 Around the World 10	North West Kansas 79, 206, 488, 762		1	Penfold, J.	781	Ells, Josiah, Death of 810
III Oulia died 17 dese	Philadelphia, Pa. 79, 190, 648	1	239	Perry, S.	473	Enemy, The Use of an 825
AADIMOTO GROTOLO	Pittsburg. Pa. 63, 206, 536	Edwards, H.	716	Phelps, M.	393	Envy, Thoughts on 805
B	Pottawattamie206, 632	Ellis, J.	191	Pointon, R. M.	96	Epistolary—A. Kent 15
Baptism for Remission of Sins 472	Salt Lake, Utah 272	Elvin, L. M.	80	Powell, D. H.	473	Epistolary-H. C. Smith 14
Battle With the Mormons, A 805 Beecher, H. W., Sermon by 728	S. E. Ohio & W. Virginia 95, 440, 648	Emsley, M. M.	377	Pratt	474	Errors Corrected, Elder Blair's 236
2000201, 2-1 11 11 11 11 11 11	South-Eastern Illinois457, 682	Ewing, H. E.	569	Price, E.	63	Eternal Life and the Second
Be in Earnest 599 Bevier Branch 159	Southern California238, 713	Fassett, M.	79	Prothero, E. P.	569	Death546, 582
	Southern Indiana 359, 600, 811	Foote, E. L.	505	Reese, S.	794	Etiquette 614
Bible Items 72 Bible, The 315, 392, 615	Southern Nebraska 31, 158, 317, 553,	Frick, E.	239	Reese, W.	794	Evangelical Alliance 826
Bids for a Bloody Conflict 496	762	Gaines, E. E.	319	Rich, A.	159	Evils of Strong Drink 610
Bishop's Agent, Badham 318	Spring River, Kansas521, 747	Gamet, D.	49	Ritter, D. A.	223	Evolution of Theology 487
Bishop's Agent, Coburn 731	St. Louis, Mo. 111, 316, 473, 775	Grady, F. W.	319	Roberts, J.	539	Excommunicated 779
Bishop's Agent, Cooke 318	Tennessee & Kentucky223, 457	Gregson, A.	682	Roberts, M.	47	Expositor, 79, 730
Bishop's Agent, Dimock 63	Welsh Mission, Wales158, 584	Grenehalgh, E.	175	Robertson, L. M.	667	Extract from Letter to Friends 269
Bishop's Agent, Gill 79	Western Maine 425, 667, 811	Hackett, D.	15	Robinson, J. & B.	747	EDITORIALS.
Bishop's Agent, Hawkins 15	Western Wisconsin, 30, 316, 473, 762	Hailey, E.	474	Ross, L. & R.	159	_
Bishop's Agent, Range 731	Wyoming Valley Pa. 78, 441, 698, 843	Hall, A. M. Hall, L. F.	410, 633	Rosser. W. Royals, R.	303	l
Bishop's Agent, Roth 175	${f D}$	Hall, W.	224		634	1 = =
Bishop's Agent, Rumel 303	Dancing, on 583	Hansen, C. A.	521	Sanford, S. A. Schofield, E.		J. Brighouse 18 T. W. Smith 33
Bishop's Agent, Walker 521	Debts Due the Lord 808	Harding, J.	349	a T	96	Law and its Teachers 33
Bishop's Agent, White 303	Demolishing the Bible 771	Hardy, S. E.	683	Scott, J. Seeley, E. F.	585	A. J. Davis 35
Bishop's Report, Errata 441	Dialogue, A 642, 694, 726, 758, 791, 821	Harrington, L.	224	Shabino, A.	127	Anthony, Brand, Blair, Cornish
Blind Zeal 483	Discouraged, A Word to the 771	Hartel, C	406	Shearer, G. H.	521	E. L. Kelley 49
Bond, Letter From 548	Donations 255	Harvey, M.	474	Shed, G. S.	361	Buying out the Mormons 49
Book Covenants 73	Dream, A 159, 379, 779	Higginson, W.	601	Sherman, C. A.	779	Ingersoll 50
Book of Mormon, Standard. 27	Dream in respect to C. Nutt 825	Hill, M.	763	Smith, A. G.	457	Oil Trade 50
Books 283	Dress of Christians, 407	Hodgson, K.	537	Smith, F.	537	Expositor, Miss Dickenson,
Breathing, Nose 842 But One 644	DEATHS.	Hodson, C.	811	Smith, W. J.	80	Business Meetings 65
But One 644 Butter Making 842	Adamson, M 319	Homer, E.	63	Snyder, L. M.	, 319	Brighouse and Peterson 66
C C	Allen, Mrs. S 63	Hotckiss, T. H.	143	Spargo, S.	811	Right to Organize Churches 97
-	Atwell, L. M 716	Houghton, M.	272	Soper, M.	223	Attend Meetings of the Sects 98
Caffall, J., Letter From136 401	Baggs, S 111	Hughes, M. J.	191	Sorten, Frank	844
Caffall's Report, Elder J 627 Cairns, John 585	Baldwin, F 731	Hughes, W.	116	Soule, E.	699	French, Alfales Young's
OL 1711 TTT	Baldwin, J. J 731	Hulmes, R. G.	159	Springer, E.	345	Speech, Strictures on Braden 113
01 11	Ballantyne, J. W 223	Hunter, E.	143	Standeven, M.	127	Bishop Clark, J. J. Kaster, I.
Charity 564 Christ's Coming 168	Barrett, M. M 239	Huston, L. E.	825	Starett, J. H.	634	P. Baggerly, Herald Church
Christian Bravery 552	Barter, M 255	Hutchings, A. L.	825	Stillman, I. A.	521	Organ 129
Church and the World 375	Bays, E. J 319	Hyde, C. A.	649	Strang, J.	208	Chicago Historical Society,
Church Library 303	Bell, M. H 47	Hylton, A. Ing, S. A.	699	Sutton, E. A.	47	W. H. Jennings, Braden a
Church Rejected, Was the 819, 835	Belcher 716	Tomas A Ti	_	Swift, M. S.	96	Fraud, Wm. Sparling 145 L. L. Rice and "Manuscript
Church, Rejection of 772	Bertelsen, A. B 763	Jenkins, G.	747		159	Found" 177
Common Sense Vs. Science 314	Bona, A 47	Tomber Mr	521	Taylor, C. W. Terry, M. C.	31	Vindicator, John Shook, Bos-
Contrast 837	Booker, G 239 Booth, P 731	Talanaan D M	585	Thomas, S.	239	ton Globe, Postage, John
Correction 79	70. 17 70	Johnson, C.	318	Thomas, S. E.	617	Codman, J. F. McDowell 193
Covenant Made at Mt. Sinai 338	Booth, R 731 Brash, I 377	Tohmoon T TT	175	Thompson, A. I.	426	Order—Law 194
Creation of the World 374	D	Johnson, L.	377	Thornton, M. K.	360	Dr. P. Hurlbut 209
Crisis in Mormonism, The 485	Bratten, J 441	Jones, J.	159	Townsend, H.	490	Objections to Herald 210
CONFERENCES.	Breithaupt, W. L 80	Jones, J. B.	223	Trany, R.	159	Bishop Fallows, Capt. Codman 211
Alabama 376, 521, 747	Brown 794	Kaster, J. J.	223	Turnbull, M.	159	"No Stake," Tithing 225
Arkansas 95, 343	Brown, N 409	Knights, P. E.	255	Valier, M.	319	Crisis in Utah, Healing 241
Central California 343, 359, 762	Burt, M. M 239	Lake, M.	345	Vredenburg, F.	223	Poisonous Wall-paper, Colds 242
Central Kansas 409, 632, 825	Butler, H 97	Lambert, E. C.	393	Waddell, S. O.	80	Salutatory-W. W. Blair, Board
Central Missouri 223, 536, 762	Cairns, J 648	Landless, J.	319	Wait, Z. E.	319	Publication Notes, Confer-
Central Nebraska 62, 317, 569, 730	Camren, M. M 192	Lee, A. & J.	159	Waldren, J.	360	ence 257
Central Texas 271, 536, 747	Carmichael, J 318	Lee, R.	521	Walters, A. L.	377	April Conference 285
Decatur, Iowa 207, 488, 666	Carr, M 175	Lewis, M.	223	Wardle, J.	192	Joseph-Seer-to Ministry, Secy.
Des Moines, Iowa 190, 456, 648 Eastern Iowa 31, 425, 666	Charles, C 409	Lewis, W. J. Liversage, J. L.	410	Webb, C.	489	A. L. Thomas, R. B. Claw-
Eastern Iowa 31, 425, 666 Eastern Maine317, 810	Chubley, J 303	Lloyd, A. M.	426	Weston, L. F.	361	son Case 287
Eastern Wales 237	Clark, J. T 634	Locan T		White T	377	Status of Brn. J. W. Briggs and Z. H. Gurley, Board Pub.
Far West, Missouri 489, 682, 825	Clark, M. H 731	Madigan F E	553	White, J. White, P.	239	Changes, O. P. Arnold Case 305
Florida 95, 343	Clark, T 143	Marks, R.	345	Whiting, F. W.	361	1
Fremont, Iowa 14, 190. 553	Clengback, J. F 377	Matthews, O.	319	Wilcox, C. H.	731	"Manuscript Story" 308
Galland's Grove Iowa, 79, 222, 488	Cleveland, B 457	Mar A	699	Wilder, J.	319	Edmund's Law Constitutional 309
Independence, Mo. 317, 504, 698	Classon, F. E 490	Mayo T	617	Wilson, A.	601	Persecution 310
Kent and Elgin, Ont457, 698	Closson, J. W 80 Cobb, C. E 747	MaRrowno D	175	Wilson, M. E.	634	A. M. Cannon's Defense 321
Kewanee, Ill. 46, 317, 521, 714	l	MacColob D N	569	Wilson, N.	601	Dr. Thomas, Holiness Evange-
Little Sioux, Iowa 142, 238, 440, 775	Coburn, J. A 318 Colerick, E 175	McDorgoll T	537	Williams, Jane	31	list 332
London472, 713	Conyers, G. W 811	McIntosh, B. E.	649	Williams, M. D.	553	Iowa Prohibitory Law, Entity
Manchester, England 762	Conyers, G. W., Jr 811	Mitcham, J.	143	Williams, W.	716	of the Soul 333
Massachusetts 343, 633, 810	Cooke, J 409	Mitchell, H. E.	360	Wise, E.	96	Honest Office Holders, John
Michigan and Northern Indi-	Crandall, D 303	Moore, R. C.	143	Woodstock, S.	319	Smith, Bishop's Agent 334
ana601, 775	Crandall, P 303	Moses, K.	779	Woolsey, W. B.	633	Geo. B. Wallace, Utah, C. I.
Mobile, Mississippi 698	Crawley, E 15	Myers, C.	747	Yost, E	255	Kempe's Views, Independ-
Nauvoo & String Prairie 127, 344	Crosby, L 143	Neednam, E.	682	Yost, J.	255	ence Progress 347
424, 632, 843. Nevada 142	Crowell, J. C 208	Newton, wm.	844	E E	404 044 444	Women as Teachers, Utah
	0 1 0 7	11400, 11.0.	319	Elders, Fifth Quorum	191, 344, 441	Problem 348
2.000,000,000	Currie, S. L 537	Jimbieau, A. G.	377	699		To Contributors 349

				*
Temporal Law in Force, F. G.	Address-Taylor and Cannon 588	F	Brockett—Park 699	Preaching to the Poor 630
Pitt 363	Heathen Nations Redeemed 589	77.117. 7.177	Brown—Lain 731	Prediction, A 387
Busybodies, Duty to Aid Min-			Chapman—Spanswick 811	Progression 252 Prohibition in the Pulpit. 357
201	Personal Righteousness, Pres.		Cole—Floyd 31 Comly—Moe 426	Prohibition in the Pulpit 357 Prohibitory Law 839
	Smith at Reese Creek, Mont. 603	False and True Riches 470	Cracraft—Hufford 360	Priesthood387, 405
	Pre-existence 604		Crum—Comley 553	Provide for the Household. 269
	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·		Doty-Jenkins 159 Diggle-Allee 238	Punishment, Eternal 579 Pyramid, The Great 647
1 02.20 02 11 222002	Advertising for Aid 605 Moving on, Seventh-day Adven-	Forbearance 550	Diggle—Allee 238 Donaldson—Abraham 473	POETRY.
Lombard vs. Bronson, Leffing- well on B. M 380		radio ranishment by W. II.	Fryman-Gould 699	A Apel for Are to the Sextan
.,	tists 619	Thomas 270	Gammage—Cowelins 159 Gaulter—Thomas 31	of the Old Brick Meetinous 708
Mormons Resisting U. S. Mar-	Tongues and Prophecy 620	Confold on Toponh Contil	Gulter—Thomas 31 Gilmore—Thomas 601	Build Well 41
shals, Sectarian Reform 381	Secret Societies 621	Garfield on Joseph Smith 18	Hill—Chambers 143	Conscience 805
Rights of Religionists, Alta	Open Doors, Polygamy a Con-	Gathering and Revenge 9, 25, 42	Howe-Hopper 31	Faith and Hope 57 If I Should die To-night 595
Californian on Polygamy. 395	tinuous Offense 635	Gathering, The 138, 184, 200, 498	Howland—Rogerson 223 Kelley—Stelle 255	I Wonder Why 610
Ridgetown (Ont) Conference,	Priest's Authority, Senator	Godless Benevolence 270	McBirnie—Lain 255	Let us Try to be Happy 354
Vindicator, Expositor 396	Manderson 636	God's Gathering 788	McDonald—Simpson 238	Master's Question, The 434 No Cross. No Crown 564
It Might Have Been Young	Writing for the Press 637	Gossip 40	McGhee—Bayless 648 McWright Warby 667	On the Death of Alma Sher-
	John Sharp Sensible, Saddened		Mee—Porter 303	man 788
Letter of the Seer, Nov 12th,	and Soured 639	Government, Branch 514	Miller—Gillespie 505	Power of Words 9 St. Clair 25
1838 412	Paradise 651	H	Moler—Stump 648 Newman—Wood 441	St. Clair 25 Strength Enough 266, 579
"Little" Joseph's Anointing,	Bishop Sharp 655	Habit of Fretting, The 681	Newman—Wood 441 Rabley—Siegrist 239	The Calm of the Soul 498
E. Snow on Polygamy, De-	How is This-Thatcher, Bishop	Harshness vs. Frankness of	Randall—Shrewsbury 426	The Stranger 249 To Joseph Smith 772
votion to God 413	Sharp 669	Speech 95	Robinson—Allen 667
Church Absentees 414	Josiah Ells, The Press 685	Heaven341, 677	Robinson—McGuire 393 Rogers—Oakerson 63	Q Q
Editor in Utah, News on Pres.	Deseret News on Judge Zane,	Heaven and Hell 266	Rogers—Oakerson 63 Rogerson—Holland 648	Quorum Organization 41 Quorum of Seventy 376
J. Smith 427	Reunion-Galland's Grove,	He Did Not 251	Scott—Bass 238	R
Temptation after Death 428	The Result-Utah Jurors 687	Herald, Hope and Advocate. 75	Schanck—Davis 79 Smith—Walker 79	Rates to General Conference 208
God's Written Law Governs 429	H. B. Clawson's Sentence 688	Hiram Holt, Letter from 372	Sterrett-Sorensen 708	Read—What 839
A Good Name, Mission of Pres-	Epistle of Taylor and Cannon 689	Hog Cholera 844	Thomas—Ebeling 601	Rejoinder Examined, Elder
ident J. Smith, "Manuscript	701	Holiness342, 483	Truman—Buckingham 715	Blair's 217
Found"-J. M. Horner 443	Methodists on Polygamy 690	Holy Ghost Power 824	Ward-Ells 585 Williams-Gray 79	Rejoinder to Z. H. Gurley 121 Religion vs. Superstition 484
Salt Lake Tribune on Pres. J.	"Manuscript Found" 705	Hopeful, Views of 487	Winegar—Moody 355	Religious Education 663
Smith's Mission 444	Richards—F. D. on Poplygamy 706		MISCELLANEOUS.	Reorganized Church, The 342
The News Refusal, and Joseph	Willing Ones 707	` -	Advocate 473	Reply to Revenge 220, 234 Report, Corrected 504
Smith's Reply 459	Facts and Conclusions—Can-		Armstrong Branch 360	Report, Corrected 504 Report General Conference
Leaders in Contrast 460	non on Polygamy 717			Committee 175
Marriage Contracts, Ostracism 461	Divisions 718	Indifference 13	Camp Meeting 360	Restitution and Order 14 Reunion Camp Meeting 409
Walled In—Utah 462	Ells—Josiah 719	Infallibility 184	Central California111, 617	Rumel, Letter from W. M. 470
Snow and Young in Mexico,	†	Immortality and Eternal Life 316	Conference Notices 344	S
Coldwater Meeting, Forty-	6 ·	Inhabitants, N. Mexico 77	Decatur District 810 Des Moines Branch 843	Sabbath Breaking and Dancing 373
	Always Unlawful—Polygamy,	Insignificance, Our 57	Des Moines District 318, 537, 584	Sabbath, The 550, 596
Eight Lawsuits 463 News on Joseph's Chicago	Locusts in Utah, Wrath on		Disfellowshiped 360	Sabbath, The Christian 484, 434, 451, 468, 501, 577, 533
	Utah, Christian Advocate on	Issue, The 58	District Meeting 409 Eastern Iowa District548, 779	451, 468, 501, 577, 533 Saints Indeed 614
Speech 464	Pres. Smith, Storrs on Polyg-	Is Immersion Baptism 564	England and Australian 794	Samaritans—Jews 838
Fourth of July in S. L. City,	amy 720	Is Tithing in Kind a Legal Ten-	Far West District 360	Sanhedens Banner 393
	Missed the Point 721	der 481	Fremont District 111, 344, 409, 748 Grove Meetings 537	School, In 743 Shall we Meet Again 24
Joseph Rejected at Pleasant	Hudson, H. J 722	J	Grove Meetings 537 Independence District 649, 747	Shall we Meet Again 24 Sin, the Unpardonable 95
Grove-Utah, Choir Singing,	No Law, no Transgression, A	Jew Argues that his People, &c 665	J. R. Lambert 584	Smith, A. H.—Letter 125
Thou Sayest it 476	Sum in Numbers-Polygamy,	John's Baptism 312	Kent and Elgin 303, 601, 748	Smith, Joseph 249
Reord-Union on Pres. Smith's	Curiosities 733	Josephites and Brighamites 600	Kewanee191, 360 Little Stoux District 569	Society Islands Mission, Report of 776
Mission, Bro. John Cairns 477		Judged by our Works 661	London 303 601	Spirits in Prison 11
	Bishop Sharp, Moses Thatcher	K	Massachusetts 303, 617 Michigan & Northern Indiana 633 Mill Creek, Hamburg Branches 393	Startling Statements 361
Utah Missionaries, Josephite	vs. J. Smith 736		Mill Creek Hamburg Branches 303	Story of Geology True, Is the 314
Harvest, Pres. J. Smith at	Utah Free Speech, The Rock 749	Kate Field on Mormonism. 787	IMODUE 683	SELECTIONS.
Pleasant Grove 491	Sr. Marks vs. Atwood, Mrs.	Kingdom of Heaven, The 709, 724,	Nauvoo & String Prarie 128, 667, 779	Forscutt Before Liberal League 126 Prof. Swing's Reply to Inger-
Editor and H. A. Stebbins at	Davidson's Testimony 750	744, 756. L	Netawaka Branch 377 Nevada 128, 441	soli 423
Pleasanton 492	Covering Faults 765	Lambout Budon Commend	North-East Missouri District 649 Northern Illinois District .393, 667 Northern Minnesota District 425 Northern Monesota District 425	Sabbath Scenes in Nauvoo 598
Grant is Dead, Bro. J. A. Rob-	Crisis of the Mormons 767	Lambert—Braden Correspond-	Northern Illinois District. 393, 667	Sacrilegious and Hypocritical 433
inson at Chandlerville, Faith-	Judge Hays on Polygamists,	ence 87	Northern Michigan District 360, 667	Sam Jones' Sermon, Another 551 Sermon by Prof. Swing 392 Shall we Sleep with Windows healing 493	An Earnest Toiler, Trees,	Language—Changes 56	Northern Nebraska District 409,	Shall we Sleep with Windows
"Manuscript Found" Received,	Lightning Conductors 768	Zame or a Dramman a	1 017, 748, 794	Open 408 Slave Outbreak, The 681
Shall we Know Each Other	Utah Divorces, Lorenzo Snow	Latter Day Saints, The 489	N. W. Kansas 63, 318, 779
in Heaven 507	Arrested, Kate Field's Lec-		Notice From I A Stowart 40"	Sleenlegnegg 949
		Letter to L. D. Hickey 515	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleenlegnegg S49
Variable John Taylor, "Manu-	ture, Mormonism Tends to	Liberal Christianity 254	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425 Notice—G. A. Blakeslee111, 441	Sleenlegnegg S49
	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live,	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425 Notice—G. A. Blakeslee 111, 441 Omaha Branch 63 Philadelphia District 779 Pittsburg District 244 441	Sleeplesness 843 Smith, Joseph 455 Sociables, Church 487 Soul can Reaminate the Body 617
Variable John Taylor, "Manu-	ture, Mormonism Tends to	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, How a 697	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live,	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man-	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, How a 697	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Manuscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, How a 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal)	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Manuscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, Presi-	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Vir-	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miracles 486	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M Man, A Sensible 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miracles 486 Miraculous 409	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturaliza-	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 How a 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miracles 486 Miraculous 409 Missionaries 809 Missionary Experiences 374	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 How a 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miracles 486 Miraculous 409 Missionaries 809 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found".—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 How a 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miraceles 486 Miraculous 409 Missionaries 809 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, St. Louis 63, 597	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found".—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormon-	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polyg-	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 How a 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miracles 486 Miraculous 409 Missionaries 809 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, St. Louis 63, 597 Modern Methods 487	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found".—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith-Polygamy 829	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 How a 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M Man, A Sensible 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miracles 486 Miraculous 409 Missionaries 809 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, St. Louis 68, 597 Modern Methods 487 More Apostles than Twelve 313	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith-Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 How a 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M Man, A Sensible 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miracles 486 Miraculous 409 Missionaries 809 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, St. Louis 63, 597 Modern Methods 487 More Apostles than Twelve 313 Montana Notes 820	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98,	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found".—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225,	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M M Man, A Sensible 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miraculous 409 Missionaries 809 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, St. Louis 63, 597 Modern Methods 487 More Apostles than Twelve 313 Mornon, Book of 711, 724, 746 Music, Facts About 12 Mutual and Beneficiary Soci-	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425 Notice—G. A. Blakeslee	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found".—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572 The Advocate, Pres. Smith's	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225, 258, 286, 307, 321, 348, 364, 380, 396,	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M Man, A Sensible 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miracles 486 Miraculous 409 Missionaries 809 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, St. Louis 63, 597 Modern Methods 487 More Apostles than Twelve 313 Montana Notes 820 Mormon, Book of 711, 724, 746 Music, Facts About 12 Mutual and Beneficiary Societies 760	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425 Notice—G. A. Blakeslee	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572 The Advocate, Pres. Smith's Mission, Pres. Smith in Deer	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225, 288, 286, 307, 321, 348, 364, 380, 306, 414, 428, 445, 464, 477, 492, 507, 525,	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M 341 Man, A Sensible 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miracles 486 Miraculous 409 Missionaries 809 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Modern Methods 487 More Apostles than Twelve 313 Montana Notes 820 Mormon, Book of 711, 724, 746 Music, Facts About 12 Mutual and Beneficiary Societies 760 MARRIAGES 760	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572 The Advocate, Pres. Smith's Mission, Pres. Smith in Deer Lodge 574	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225, 258, 286, 307, 321, 348, 364, 380, 396, 414, 428, 445, 464, 477, 492, 507, 525, 540, 556, 574, 591, 605, 621, 637, 655, 540, 556, 574, 591, 605, 621, 637, 655,	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M M Man, A Sensible 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miraculons 409 Missionaries 80 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, St. Louis 63, 597 Modern Methods 487 More Apostles than Twelve 313 Mormon, Book of 711, 724, 746 Music, Facts About 12 Mutual and Beneficiary Societies 760 MARRIAGES Allon-Weld	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572 The Advocate, Pres. Smith's Mission, Pres. Smith in Deer Lodge 574	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 With to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225, 258, 286, 307, 321, 348, 364, 380, 396, 414, 428, 445, 464, 477, 492, 507, 525, 540, 556, 574, 591, 605, 621, 637, 655, 688, 706, 721, 736, 751, 766, 782, 800,	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M M Man, A Sensible 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miraculons 409 Missionaries 80 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, St. Louis 63, 597 Modern Methods 487 More Apostles than Twelve 313 Mormon, Book of 711, 724, 746 Music, Facts About 12 Mutual and Beneficiary Societies 760 MARRIAGES Allon-Weld	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572 The Advocate, Pres. Smith's Mission, Pres. Smith in Deer Lodge 574 Ministerial Mistakes 575 Tearning Down, Retribution, Morrisite Philosophy, Chicago	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225, 258, 286, 307, 321, 348, 364, 380, 396, 414, 428, 445, 464, 477, 492, 507, 525, 540, 556, 574, 591, 605, 621, 637, 655, 688, 706, 721, 736, 751, 766, 782, 800, 815, 832.	Liberal Christianity 254 Literary man Ought to Live, 697 Lord will Provide, The 341 M M Man, A Sensible 552 Marrying for Money 56 Massacre of St. Barth 600 Meditations 143 Miraculons 409 Missionaries 80 Missionary Experiences 374 Mite Society, Lamoni 272 Mite Society, St. Louis 63, 597 Modern Methods 487 More Apostles than Twelve 313 Mormon, Book of 711, 724, 746 Music, Facts About 12 Mutual and Beneficiary Societies 760 MARRIAGES Allon-Weld	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 559 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572 The Advocate, Pres. Smith's Mission, Pres. Smith in Deer Lodge 574 Ministerial Mistakes Tearing Down, Retribution, Morrisite Philosophy, Chicago Journal on Joseph in Utah 576	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225, 258, 286, 307, 321, 348, 364, 380, 396, 414, 428, 445, 464, 477, 492, 507, 525, 540, 556, 574, 591, 605, 621, 637, 655, 688, 706, 721, 736, 751, 766, 782, 800, 815, 832. Questions and Answers, 2 33, 178.	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572 The Advocate, Pres. Smith's Mission, Pres. Smith in Deer Lodge 574 Ministerial Mistakes 575 Tearing Down, Retribution, Morriste Philosophy, Chicago Journal on Joseph in Utah 576	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Man- uscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225, 258, 286, 307, 321, 348, 364, 380, 396, 414, 428, 445, 464, 477, 492, 507, 525, 540, 556, 574, 591, 605, 621, 637, 655, 688, 706, 721, 736, 751, 766, 782, 800, 815, 832. Questions and Answers, 2 33, 178.	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425 Notice—G. A. Blakeslee	Sleeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572 The Advocate, Pres. Smith's Mission, Pres. Smith in Deer Lodge 574 Ministerial Mistakes Tearning Down, Retribution, Morriste Philosophy, Chicago Journal on Joseph in Utah 576 Mormon Migration to Mexico 577 Pres. Smith Annoyed at Pleas- ant Grove—Utah, Utah Journ—	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Manuscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225, 258, 286, 307, 321, 348, 364, 380, 396, 414, 428, 445, 464, 477, 492, 507, 525, 540, 556, 574, 591, 605, 621, 637, 655, 688, 706, 721, 736, 751, 766, 782, 800, 815, 832. Questions and Answers, 2, 33, 178, 209, 258, 333, 396, 429, 445, 477, 492, 508, 526, 541, 574, 605, 638, 752, 767,	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425 Notice—G. A. Blakeslee	Sieeplesness
Variable John Taylor, "Manuscript Found"—News 509 Phoenix (Ariz.) Herald on the Original Faith 511 Vindictive, Apostle Thatcher Reviewed 525 Intolerance, Cannon's Gall 539 Grant on Utah, Chronicle (Cal) on the Mormons 541 I or my Posterity, Letter of Pres. J. Smith from Soda Springs 555 Rambling Ministers 556 Elders Blakeslee and Kelley at Pleasanton, The Rebellious 557 Elder Dewsnup on Mormonism, Jarman's Reform 558 J. Flory on the Temporal Law 559 Cut Off, Polygamy Hinders the Gospel 571 Christ, like Moses 572 The Advocate, Pres. Smith's Mission, Pres. Smith in Deer Lodge 574 Ministerial Mistakes 575 Tearning Down, Retribution, Morrisite Philosophy, Chicago	ture, Mormonism Tends to Infidelity, Catching at Straws 781 Richmond Democrat on "Manuscript Found" 783 As Others See us 784 Penrose on Monogamy 797 Trine Immersion 799 Oxford Notes 800 Kirtland Endowment, President's Message, The Ten Virgins 813 Murderers not Forgiven 814 Judge Powers on Naturalization 815 Edmunds Bill No. 2, David Whitmer, H. Smith—Polygamy 829 Preaching, Divorcing 830 "Hint to Missouri" 831 Editorial Items, 1, 17, 33, 49, 65, 98, 113, 129, 145, 161, 177, 193, 209, 225, 258, 286, 307, 321, 348, 364, 380, 396, 414, 428, 445, 464, 477, 492, 507, 525, 540, 556, 574, 591, 605, 621, 637, 655, 688, 706, 721, 736, 751, 766, 782, 800, 815, 832. Questions and Answers, 2, 33, 178, 209, 258, 333, 396, 429, 445, 477, 492, 508, 526, 541, 574, 605, 638, 752, 767,	Liberal Christianity	Notice From J. A. Stewart. 425 Notice—G. A. Blakeslee	Sleeplesness