"JOSEPH SMITH," and on a line—but to right, the words "NO SALVATION." And it seemed that he must then and there make the choice. He decided, and turning to Bro. Briggs he said, "You will baptize me to-morrow." Bro. Briggs said, "If you believe, I will." He said, "I do." And he was baptized, confirmed and ordained an Elder on the morrow, on March 14th, 1866. It did not appear to him then or since, that the vision of the words, "Joseph Smith or No Salvation;" meant that there was no salvation for any one who did not receive Joseph Smith's claims, but that if he did not accept them, now being convinced that God had brought to light the fulness of the gospel through him, and restored the priesthood that Peter, James, and John possessed, that he would lose what light he had already possessed, if he would not accept and walk in this new and greater light that he had seen, and that he would not be saved if he rejected the light. It affected his case if no others.

The application of the numerous texts, quoted at the beginning of this article, on the immutability of God, and his word, is seen in this, that the gospel must be preached in fulness and power now as eighteen hundred years ago, and to preach it and to administer its ordinances, similar officers, with similar authority must be on the earth; and if the same gospel is preached, and people believe, and obey it, as they did in former times, an "unchangeable" God must bless those who do thus believe and obey, with the same kind of blessings, namely, forgiveness of sins, and the gift of the Holy Ghost with its various manifestations, operations, and gifts that he gave his people in former days, and if he has a church, on earth to-day that it must have apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, bishops, elders, deacons, &c., because this unchangeable God, placed them in the church in former times. If God is unchangeable; Christ in whom "dwelt all the fulness of the Godhead bodily" must be immutable likewise, and his gospel be immutable, and his church, with its gifts, ordinances, principles, and officers, must of necessity be the same. If not, why not? Who can prove that Joseph Smith did not preach all the gospel that Paul preached, or that he preached a different one? Who can prove his claim to be false, that angels visited him, conferred upon him authority to preach the gospel, and to reorganize the church, and that he has not prophesied truly in the name of the Lord, time and again? The Lord worked with him, and has, as thousands know and bear witness; confirmed "the word" declared by him, with "signs following." And the Lord by so doing, endorsed this "vile impostor." But "prove to us, (cry the rabble), that these signs follow you." Prove to us, we reply that they followed Peter or Paul. O, "Luke said they did." But how can you prove that Luke ever wrote the "Acts of the Apostles?" Did any one now living ever see him, or see his writings? Did they see any one (now dead) who saw Luke or his writings? But do you doubt that Luke wrote the Acts, they ask us? Nay, and we have a vastly greater reason to believe that his testimony is true, than you have, we reply, and that reason is, that having believed as the former-day saints believed, and obeyed the same gospel, in the same way and for the same object, and at the hand of those who hold like authority as Peter and Paul, we have received and enjoy what they and their followers did, and therefore we are assured that Luke recorded the truth.

The same cause, under the same or similar circumstances, will produce the same effect. Upon this grand promise we rely, and have proved it true. Says Jesus, "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." We know the doctrine to be of God, and the man who brought it forth in these last days, to have been sent of God.

GLADSTONE AND THE APOCALYPSE.

GLADSTONE, who is at the head of the English Cabinet, and who thousands of men are watching to-day, according to an English clergyman is the man mentioned in the book of Revelations who bears "the number of the beast." The argument is conducted as follows: In the Greek system of notation the numbers are represented by the letters of the alphabet, and the clergyman contends that if Gladstone's name is transformed into Greek characters it will, when added up, amount to 666, according to the text, "Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man, and his number is six hundred three score and six." —Rev. 13: 18. The calculations are as follows:

G	a	m	a	.....	3
L	a	m	b	a	.....	30
A	l	p	h	a	.....	1
D	e	l	t	a	.....	4
S	i	g	m	a	.....	200
T	a	w	.....	.....	300
O	m	i	c	r	o	.....	70
N	w	.....	.....	.....	50
E	t	a	.....	.....	8
Total					666

But some critics say that the O in Gladstone's name should be Omega and that the E should be epsilon. In either case the sum would be widely different.

Bro. Joseph, for the benefit of the Herald readers, I would like your opinion on the subject.

At no period of the Christian era have mankind ever stood on the threshold of more eventful changes and mightier revolutions than at the present time in social and political circles. There is a visible approach of distress of nations with perplexity. The hearts of brave and thoughtful and reflecting persons are failing them, whether for fear of those things that are coming to pass on the earth, or their own wickedness remains to be seen. It seems that Kingdoms and Empires that have long stood the test for years for their stability, unshaken; are about to crumble to nothingness. Capital and labor are not friends, and firms that have been consolidated for many years are being dissolved, and institutions of every kind are on the eve of destruction. Let all who bear the name of Latter Day Saints be firm and faithful according to the light God has given you is my prayer.

WM. STREET.

APOLOGY.

BRO. JOSEPH, Dear Friend:—I thank you for your kind letter of instruction. It has added more weight to my opinion since you told me your "opinion." But you did not "attach any grave in importance to the matter." I don't attach so much importance to opinions as I do to the plain word of God as it is declared by the angel of God to Nephi in the third chapter Book of Mormon. I don't hear the angel say anything about "organization," nor reorganization. But instead of it, he said the more important word "foundation." Yes, many times over. Notice or look. It was the "foundation," not the organization which he noticed. And the devil was the foundation of it. Of what? Of the great and abominable church. That church might have many branches and each branch a separate name, until she is full of names protesting one against another. And thus she is spiritual Babylon the great, or "the city of confusion." If there be only two churches, they must rest on but two foundations. As you say and as God says, Jesus Christ is one and the other is the devil. Different organizations may be mainly human. We all know who is the "true vine." But who knows the branches.

"The seed is the church." Yes; so I think. And so it is defined by science. "The Clergy, or Ecclesiastics, aside from the laity." But I don't see why it is any less a church, or "the church," when in an "organized condition." Neither can I see how there can be a church without a priesthood in it, either true or false. And consequently there can be "save two churches only." In this gospel light, there never has been "save two churches only." But there may be many branches belonging to the same vine, or the same root. Hence the fountain head of all Protestantism finds its root, or priesthood derived from what they claim to be the "mother of harlots." They belong to their mother's family. And together with her constitute the "vine of the earth, now ripe for the harvest.

These separate organizations and distinctive "names of blasphemy" does not by any means prove that they are not "one church," having only a man-made priesthood like unto that of the ten tribes of Israel, which is said to be idolatrous or after the nations of other lands. Yes, the king "made them to himself." Of course they were popular and orthodox like unto those of Gentile Israel whom the world knew as Reverend Clergymen, and pay them well for their services, not knowing that "all nations are deceived" by them. And why should it be strange that "history should repeat itself" in Gentile Israel in the matter of their priesthood. But as to the matter of organizations, if there were none of God's people in their folds what propriety or use of the "voice, come out of her my people," just before "the vine of the earth is reaped."

Now as to the very charitable idea of saving some who belong to no organization, I must say a few words, hoping to give no offense. You say of me, that no church organization has my name on record as in fellowship. That is a serious charge. Either myself or somebody else must account for this. This case reminds me of one on record in the Bible. A somewhat similar one. When the Governor said that Barzillai should be put from the priesthood until one should stand up with Urim and Thummim. (See Neh. 7:65.) It appears at that time they had reorganized the church while as yet they had not one who could tell of the honor one of the priesthood justly claimed. This is now, in my case, as it was then. Thus history again "repeats itself." How could I know that my name was ever "recorded in heaven," or how to rejoice on that account; if I never knew I had been made an heir by one holding the keys of power? I confess I have not got any of that kind of charity, neither do I want any of it, which would lead me to believe that some will be saved in God's kingdom who never joined the Church of Jesus Christ, or any who never were born of the water and of the spirit, either in person or by proxy. Neither do I want any more charity for a man-made priesthood than the man of God had who gave sentence of condemnation upon the whole company of these false divines. Indeed who can show a false teacher now to be any better than those were whom Elijah slew, or who Queen Jezebel said Elijah had killed.

Let the world now be again divided. Who is on the Lord's side? Who? I believe with the angel and Nephi, there are only two churches on earth, and the time is near when a mark in the right hand, or in the forehead will be found upon all with a penalty for refusing it. That time will tell who is on the Lord's side. John, who wrote the remainder of the future history beyond where Nephi left off, foretold of a remarkable event yet to transpire when history will again repeat itself like unto that where the king erected an image of gold in the plains of Dura and commanded all men to fall down and worship it or be put to death. Who then will know no law above human? Few. What if the mob power burn up our Church Record and kill our prophets and scatter us among the heathen; and after a time the Lord inspires a few men to reorganize and do as well as they know how, and by some means a few of the fold are left out of the flock and one comes and tries to get in among the brethren and they won't own him, nor suffer his name to be in fellowship with them; all that would not prove him not one of Christ's fold, or properly a member of the body of Christ.

The fact is a member will not cease to be a member until he is guilty of some wrong for which he should be cut off and disfellowshipped. It might be his duty to present his loyal claim, and offer his heart and hand in the work. All this I have done, and that too at my cost; besides the cost to some who volunteered. I blame no one; not even myself, in that I stand alone, so far as organization is concerned. For I am no schismatic nor enemy to any man, or company of men. My hope is in Him who died for all men. But I love the society of the good. I love to read their writings, and pray as the holy Spirit inspires with faith; for I know "whatsoever is not of faith is sin."

In reference to the people of Salt Lake who followed Brigham Young: I do not count them as a church, but as a branch cut off and withered as said the Lord himself. I have never had any communication with, nor fellowship for them, for I know as leaders they were usurpers, some of whom were guilty of knavery in secreting that last revelation through Joseph, appointing his successor. I hope and pray that they may yet be made to confess that sin.

We all know that Moses was a lawgiver. And was not the "Moses-man" a lawgiver? And was not "the law to go forth in the last days from Mount Zion?" Certainly. And where is the man, and who is he, that can show by fair reasoning that the prophecy has not been literally fulfilled in this generation.

And this "Book of the Law" is no less a "strange act" and "marvellous work," than was the translation of the Book of Mormon. Neither of them would have been translated without Urim and Thummim.

That rumor put afloat by one P. A., whose residence is hid, is not worthy to be put in any Herald, or of the least credit. It is a new lie just hatched out of a silly mind. This unfounded story reminds me of a remark on the 64th page, 9th verse Book of the Law, namely, thus: "Superstitious prejudice pursues the friend of man as a shadow, and not unfrequently wreaks on the fame of the dead the punishment which a virtuous life has scarcely escaped." Note; by J. J. Strang.

PEPPER SAUCE.

DEAR HERALD:—After reading some of Bob Ingersoll's worse than silly trash, I wish to say a word to those who think religion dry. I will dwell a moment or two on the mistakes of the author of the mistakes of Moses. He ruthlessly knocks the Bible, which has been and is the helm and rudder, guiding the frail barques of young men and women along the river of time; their faith in its teachings enabling them to avoid the ragged and jagged rocks of sin and vice which line its banks. This he tears from their hands and hearts, and with it the anchor of hope which it has been to them, and gives them absolutely nothing in return; even beclouding their belief in God; and leaving but hopeless, disturbed, unsettled unrest. Surely this is a terrible exchange.

I love the free, earnest, honest, and candid thought in any direction, provided it be perfectly fair; and I thank God that one of the fruits of our onward progression is the encouragement of unrestrained expression of honest sentiment. But with all deference to Mr. Ingersoll as a man, a lawyer, and an orator, I must say that he does not treat the Bible, or any of its precepts with any degree of fairness; and I am positive his influence is pushing thousands of young men, who have been raised by praying mothers in prayerful homes, into the depths of vice and wickedness, by taking from them the only guide and influence which would restrain them—their Bibles; which their old mothers had marked and prayerfully turned down leaves of, when they were leaving for some large city. They had said, "Yes, mother, I will read it and pray to God for strength to live right every day." While they kept the promise they were safe. The moment this orator shakes, or overthrows their faith, they are lost and swallowed up in the maelstrom of temptation, through Robert's lawyer-like trick of making them believe that white is black; and he has the power to thus persuade the average young man, as he has the average jury; knowing it, he glories in it. I am well aware that lawyers claim the right to be retained by either plaintiff or defendant, according to the size of the fee. In this case the devil appears to give the largest retaining fee—frequently $300 a night will ease the gentleman's conscience in view of the wrecks he is making. His attacks on the Bible are much like those of a bird of prey hovering over a beautiful valley filled with perfume of roses and mignonette, wafted fragrantly heavenward, and singing birds chirping sweetly among the blossoms; but the vulture looks not at these, but at a decaying body in the depths of yon ravine, resting not until it has perched itself upon it. In like manner Robert passes by all the beautiful passages of which the Bible is full, hurrying to some remote passage, and holds up some supposed faulty verse or two for an evenings entertainment. He dares not take it as a whole, as it would spoil his case.

It would be equally as fair for Robert to sit down to a table laden with luxuries and the fat of the land, and accepting of no dish but the pepper bottle and then sputteringly tip over the whole table, so that the balance of the hungry mortals could not get a bite of the good things. Or again, he might as well enter a warm pleasant room and rush to a red-hot stove and sit down upon it, making the complaint that "the room is too hot." That might be all right if he was practicing lest he might be mistaken about that hell-fire business, and wanted to get his hands in; but "honor bright" Robert, is such onesided reasoning fair? Mark, I do not object to his attacking the Bible as a whole; (that is King James' version); but I do object to his ruthlessly knocking it from the hands of those whose faith is anchored in its better teaching, by sticking to a few peppery verses. I consider that sentiment that is good, purifying, and ennobling, whether in the Bible or not as inspired; because I am inspired by them. Any thing that is bad is not inspired; so let us reject the bad and retain the good. If I can not find this gentleman thirty pure and ennobling verses for every one that he finds pepper in, I will become one of his followers; for he evidently only offers us himself to follow. He says prayer will not increase any one's bank account, therefore it is useless. I want to say that no man can bend his knee to God honestly, reverently and earnestly, without arising a better, stronger and purer man; and that strength is better far than a bank account. But I see that I am getting too lengthy, so I will be compelled to stop.

C. ST. CLAIR.

ON WHOM DOES IT REST?

UPON whom does the responsibility rest to show the true meaning, the necessity and the benefit of the knowledge, to the child of God, of a law to govern the commencing and the paying of a tax, or tithes to the church treasury. Though the law of tithing to the Saints is very plain, yet it is never shown up, and taught as Jesus taught to the early church by Joseph the Seer. It may not be necessary, or is it on the part of omniscience. The Holy Scriptures tells us in thirty-one places of the will of the Lord, that we should pay tithes. For instance, Mal. 3: 8, the Lord says, "Will a man rob God, yet ye have robbed me, but ye say, wherein have we robbed thee, In tithes and offerings."

It will be seen that the people of Israel were under the law, but had not fulfilled it in bringing in their tithes into the storehouse of God; although he had promised them a great blessing for so doing. Still there is no mention of the law of tithing, or the beginning thereof. But some one may say, the Bible teaches that one tenth is the beginning of tithing. In what place does it teach so? In the 14th chapter of Genesis and 20th verse. But I must say I fail to see it in that light, for Abraham is only fulfilling a law that he has commenced some years and is only now doing his duty to the Lord, by giving one tenth of the spoils of the battle with the five kings. He continued his duty to the great High Priest, by paying the tithes of the rest of his property, his herds. But bear in mind, he had commenced to pay tithes before this, for we must once forever know that God never gave one law to Abram, and another to Joseph Smith the seer of these last days. For hear him, Mal. 3: 6, "For I am the Lord, I change not." And yet some would think he had changed, but it is only man that has changed when the Lord has said ye have robbed me. It is said by some, that Abram paid a tenth of all, but never say of what. But when we consider it was the increase he had taken in battle, it is easy seen he was doing his yearly duty to God; and let me say right here, if all of the Saints would do their duty to God, as did Abram, there would be more money in the church treasury to-day, and not so many calls for Elders, and no means to send them, Jesus Christ says: "Hearken and hear and obey the law which I shall give unto you, (D. & C. 42: 1-8), if thou love me, thou shalt serve me and keep all my commandments. And behold, thou wilt remember the poor, and consecrate of thy properties for their support, that which thou hast to impart unto them, with a covenant and a deed which can not be broken."

Here is a chance for all to do a little for the Lord, and to help the good work on. I would say let all read the 42d section of the Doctrine and Covenants all through, and obey as lay in their power to do, and God will bless all, and to all who want to keep the law of tithing, and to do it in God's way must first pay according to the law of God and not man; and if any one teach a law that is contrary to the law of tithing given by Jesus Christ it is because they have not that light that lighteth all men. The Lord says in section 106 of Doctrine and Covenants, "Verily thus saith the Lord: I require all your surplus property to be put in the hands of the Bishop of my Church of Zion, for the building of mine house, and for the laying the foundation of Zion; and for the priesthood; and for the debts of the Presidency of my church. (Now notice). And this shall be the beginning of the tithing of my people; and after that those who have thus been tithed shall pay one tenth of all their interest annually; and this shall be a standing law unto them for ever; for my holy priesthood saith the Lord." There is no mistaking in the language; the Lord has said what the beginning of tithing is, but some will ask how will I who have no surplus, commence to pay tithing. I would say, you may commence by paying a tenth of your increase during the year, or by consecrating some of your yearly income, to commence with, and then pay one tenth of your yearly increase, or gain. And this is the law Abraham was obeying without doubt. It is the law spoken of in the Bible thirty one times; and the only tithing law that I have found; and the only one that will answer the purpose of the Lord, or he would not have given it. I hope ere long that the work of the Lord will be done in his own way. I have learned that he will be mindful of all who obey His given laws. Praying for the welfare of Zion's children. S. T. M.

MASSACHUSETTS MORMONS.

A GROWING COMMUNITY OF ANTI-POLYGAMOUS MORMONS.

[Fall River (Mass.) Correspondent, Boston Record].

VERY many people are unaware that the Mormon Church exists outside of Utah. But it is a fact that the Saints' community is having a very rapid growth in New England as well as other parts of the country, and is particularly strong here in Massachusetts. Not the Salt Lake polygamous kind, however. Our Massachusetts Mormons are opposed to polygamy in any form. They exist under the name of "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Saint," and base their religious belief upon the Bible and the Book of Mormon. The headquarters of the church is now in Lamoni, Iowa, and Joseph Smith, the oldest son of Joseph Smith, the martyr as they style him, is the president of the whole church. Out west these people are called "Josephite" Mormons to distinguish them from the polygamists. Their church has been gradually spreading for a number of years past until it has worshipers in every State and Territory in the country, with one exception; also in England, Scotland, Wales, Australia and in the South Sea Islands. Recently one of its missionaries, Elder T. W. Smith, baptized nearly four hundred into the faith on the island of Tahiti alone. Elder Smith was formerly an Adventist, and at that time lived in Philadelphia. He was quite eminent as an expounder of the doctrine of the Second Advent.

It was in December, 1865, that the first Mormon Church in New England was organized, in Fall River, with a membership of eight persons. They were John Smith, John Gilbert, Sarah Gilbert, Thomas Gilbert, William Cotton, Mary A. Smith, Edward Rogerson and Ellen Rogerson. In the following October the Massachusetts district was organized and the first conference was held in Fall River in a business block in Main street. Since then churches have been established in this vicinity, in New Bedford, Providence, R. I., Plainville, Brocton, Dennisport, Little Compton, R. I., Boston, Douglas, and also quite a large number in Maine and Nova Scotia. What was first the Massachusetts district now comprises Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. Connecticut, however, is a land of steadier religious habits than the others, and there are very few Saints there. These few, however, hold a meeting quite in a New Testament sort of a way, and the apostles go about among their homes in very apostolic fashion. Some of their ministers are self-supporting. Some of them may be tent-makers, and they have to live where some progress can be made with small expense.

In Fall River the Mormons have a chapel for worship and announce their services in the newspapers like other well-regulated religious bodies. In New Bedford they meet in Waite's building, on William street; in Providence in a building on High street; in Boston in Chickering Hall, on Washington street; in Little Compton, Dennisport, Plainville and Douglas they have chapels. They also have quite a large number of believers in the faith in Attleborough and Mansfield, and also in Georgiaville and Scituate, in Rhode Island. In the district there are about seven hundred members enrolled, although they have a far greater attendance. Of these two hundred are enrolled in Providence and one hundred and twenty-eight in this city.

I visited their chapel in this city on Sunday last and found Elder Columbus Scott in the pulpit preaching on the "Signs of Times." He claimed that we are living in the "latter days" spoken of by the Scriptures, and talked learnedly and incomprehensibly about the prophecies that are being fulfilled every day. Two hundred and fifty very respectable people were listening with close and admiring attention to his words. Their chapel is a neat one story structure, at the Flint Village, a section of this city which our refractory French Canadian Catholics have done their best to make famous. The house will comfortably seat three hundred people. It is very neatly furnished with settees, and there is a large family organ at the foot of the rostrum, which is raised several feet above the main floor of the church. The chapel is heated by a very latter-day hot-air furnace. The aisles are neatly carpeted and the windows curtained. The people correspond in looks remarkably well with their neat place of worship.

Although the church has a complicated hierarchy of apostles, bishops, elders and the like, and the church property belongs to [is held by.—Ed] the bishops, the management of the individual church is quite democratic. "We are thoroughly American," said Elder Scott to me; "we believe in free government, free schools, a free press and a free pulpit." Elder John Smith is the "President" of the district, and Elder Thomas Whitney acts as his secretary. The other preachers of the sect in this district are Elders John Pott and John Gilbert of Fall River; John A Potter, William Bradbury, George Yerrington and M. H. Bond (active missionary) of Providence; Charles A Coombs of Plainville, U. W. Greene of Attleborough, E. N. Webster and J. Chester of Boston, Wellington Barse of Dennisport, and Isaiah L. Chase and Nathan C. Eldridge of Plymouth. There are still others who preach.

Elder John Smith of New Bedford, whom I saw in that city the other day, told me that his church is growing more rapidly at the present time than at any previous time in the history of the church. "We had great trouble in getting a start," he said, "because the papers were afraid of us and wouldn't publish our notices. They have got over that now." These Mormons are all very intensely opposed to polygamy, and have sent their prophet, Joseph Smith, as a missionary to Salt Lake. * * *

The Elders of the Fall River church have frequently invited ministers of other denominations to enter their pulpit and preach to them on the prophecies. Their members here are largely of English extraction and are highly respected, as are also their brethren elsewhere in the State.

Conference Minutes.

WYOMING VALLEY.

Conference at Hyde Park, Pennsylvania. Statistical reports of the Nanticoke and Hyde Park Branches of the Wyoming Valley District of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Conference convened at Hyde Park on the 6th of March, 1886, with Bro. W. H. Kelley in the chair, and Bro. J. J. Morgan assisting him, J. D. Eckerd secretary of district. Nanticoke Branch reported 12 members; including 2 Elders, 1 Priest, 1 Teacher, 1 death. Hyde Park 33, including 4 Elders, 3 priests, 1 Teacher, 3 scattered members, 2 received by letter. Bishop's Agent reported $10.10 in hand; paid Bro. Hiram Robinson $5.00, leaving $5.10 on hand. Elders D. Griffith, Jenkins, J. J. Morgan, H. S. Gill and J. Baldwin reported. Priests Thomas O. Davis, Frank A. Evens, J. D. Eckerd reported. A resolution was passed to send delegates to General Conference; Brn. W. H. Kelley, J. J. Morgan, and H. S. Gill. Officers were all sustained. Preaching at 10 o'clock, at 2 p. m., and in the evening by Bro. W. H. Kelley. Conference adjourned to meet at Hyde Park the last Saturday and Sunday in May, 1886. All business was transacted in love and harmony. We thank God also for his presence, for he is ever willing to bless us whenever we call upon him. May the blessing of God be upon us all in these latter days is my prayer in the worthy name of Jesus.

STRING PRAIRIE AND NAUVOO.

The district conference was held at Keokuk, Iowa, March 6th, and 7th, 1886, in Saints' Church, beginning at 10 a. m. Elder H. C. Bronson in the chair, assisted by Bro. J. H. Lake, and Bro. Sam Ferris clerk. Minutes of last conference were read and approved. Branch reports: Burlington, Keokuk, Montrose, and Rock Creek branches reported. No report from Farmington branch. Bro. J. H. Lake spoke on the history of the Reorganized Church, and showed what it had accomplished in twenty six years. When he embraced the work there were no church buildings belonging to the church, but now they were scattered all over this country, and Canada. At 1-30 p. m., the Bishop's agent reported a balance on hand last report $12.96; received since, $31.68, total, $44.64; paid out $42.90. Balance now on hand, $1.74. John. H. Lambert agent. The committee appointed December 5th, 1885 to audit the Bishop's agent's books reported that in consequence of certain complications existing in the record, and the limited time given for examination, they were unable to arrive at a conclusion sufficient to report at the last session, therefore they presented the following: Money received from January 20th, 1885, to December 5th, 1885, $166.21; disbursed, $153.25; balance due the church $12.96. From the time that Bro. Jno. H. Lambert came into office December 5th, 1881, up to the close of last year, 1884, the receipts were $201.93, and the disbursements 205.93, leaving a balance due the agent of $4.00, which is settled in the above account. Jas. McKiernan and M. T. Short, committee. The report was received and the committee discharged. Bro. Babcock resigned as secretary of the district. Bro. H. C. Bronson was elected district president for the next three months, and Bro. Samuel Ferris secretary. Brn. H. C. Bronson, Jas. McKiernan, B. F. Durfee, Fred Johnson, and Sister Newberry were chosen delegates to the annual conference, and were instructed to cast the vote of the district for the next General Conference to be held at Kirtland, Ohio. Resolved: that this district pay H. C. Bronson's expences to annual conference. Reports of Elders: The following Elders reported: H. C. Bronson, Jas McKiernan, Samuel Ferris, Fred Johnson, Jno Lambert, H. Pitt, and B. F. Durfee. Officers present of the Twelve one, Seventy's one, Elders six. At 7-30 p. m., Bro. Jno. H. Lake took for his text: "Angels from heaven, and truth from earth have met," and showed conclusively that it was necessary that angels should minister to men in order to fulfill the prophecies laid down in the Scriptures of truth. Sabbath at 9 a. m. the Spirit of the Lord was made manifest in tongues and prophesy. A beautiful hymn was given in tongues by Bro. J. H. Lake, and the interpretation was sung by Bro. Jas. McKiernan. The Spirit of the Lord was truly made manifest, and we had a season of rejoicing. The hour having arrived for preaching, Bro. J. H. Lake occupied the Stand, and delivered a powerful discourse. At 2-30 p. m. had sacrament, prayer and testimony. The Spirit of the Lord was again made manifest in tongues, and the Saints had a day of rejoicing, a time long to be remembered, for we were greatly blessed. At 7-30 p. m., Bro. H. C. Bronson preached a powerful discourse on the kingdom of God. We were blessed all through the conference with a large audience, and harmony prevailed. Adjourned to meet the first Saturday and Sunday of June at Montrose, Lee County, Iowa.

EASTERN IOWA.

Conference convened at Amber, Jones county, Iowa, February 27th, 1886, Elder Jerome Ruby District President in the chair; R. Etzenhouser secretary pro tem. Branch reports.—Jackson 15 members; Clinton 39; Butter Nut Grove; verbal report by J. R. Johnston. No reports from Davenport and Buffalo. Elders Jerome Ruby, Warren Turner, J. S. Roth, and R. Etzenhouser reported. Priests James Bradley and J. R. Johnston, reported. Sunday services at 1-30, Elder J. S. Roth speaker; a practical sermon to the Saints on Christian life and duties. Adjourned to meet at Buffalo, Scott county, Iowa, first Saturday in June, 1886, at 10:30 a. m., pursuant to resolution.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN MISSION.

Conference convened in the chapel at 10 a. m. Elder Peter Anderson was called to the chair and E. Barrows Sec. Prayer by Elder E. Barrows. After a few remarks by the president the reports of branches were called for. Lehi City, 42; including 4 Elders, 1 Priest, 1 Teacher; 3 added by baptism. Santa Quinn 9; 1 Elder, 1 Deacon, 1 died. Heber City 19; 3 Elders, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon. Provo 21. Elsinore 17; 1 Priest 1 Teacher. Beaver 27; 1 Priest 1 Teacher 1 Deacon. Salt Lake Mission 95; 7 Elders, 4 Priests, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon, 12 added by baptism. Union Fort 31; 2 Elders, 2 Priests 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon. Malad Sub-district 96; 10 Elders. Elders: Thos. Burt, H. B. Sterret, Ethan Barrows, W. E. Gooch, Peter Anderson, John Taylor, Oliver Johnson, John Brown, John Larsen, J. C. Jensen, Ole Jensen, and H. Marriot, reported by letter. A report was read from R. J. Anthony, with whom was left the matter of Geo. E. Ward, of Colorado, which was read; report adopted, case dismissed. R. Warnock's report, Bishop's agent, for the year ending March 1st, 1886, was presented. Thos. Burt, J. F. Weston, and Chas. H. Barrows, were appointed auditing committee, to examine the report; they reported it correct, and the committee was discharged. Collected in tithing, and donation $378.28, disbursed $169.70, due the church $70.28. His resignation as Bishop's Agent was read and accepted. Moved and carried unanimously that Charles H. Barrows be recommended by this conference for appointment to that Office. It was unanimously adopted that Joseph Luff be appointed by the Utah district to represent them at the General Conference to convene at Lamoni, April 6th, 1886. It was moved, seconded, and carried that we respectfully request the General Conference to return to this mission R. J. Anthony, Joseph Luff, and H. N. Hansen, and that we respectfully ask Pres. Joseph Smith to return at his earliest convenience. It was moved and carried that a vote of thanks be tendered to R. Warnock for his services while Bishop's agent. It was resolved that the Elders labor as their circumstances will permit; and that Peter Anderson take charge of the mission for the time being. The minutes were read and accepted; when our business part of conference adjourned sine die.

KEWANEE.

Conference convened at Kewanee, Illinois, March 12th, 1886. Pres. J. W. Terry in the chair. Conference business commenced at 2 p. m., after the singing of hymn, "Let us shake off the coals from our garments," and prayer by J. S. Patterson. J. D. Jones was chosen secretary, pro tem. Reports of Kewanee, Millersburg and Rock Island branches were read, and after correction accepted. Kewanee 72; including 8 Elders, 2 Priests, 3 Teachers, 3 Deacons, 1 received by vote. R. Holt president. Millersburg 42; including 1 Seventy, 2 Elders, 2 Deacons, 4 removed by letter. M. T. Short president. Rock Island 10; including 1 Elder, 1 Priest, 1 baptized. F. G. Dungee president. Resolved, That the visiting Elders attending this conference be, and are hereby invited to participate in the business and other exercises of the same. Elders F. G. Dungee and R. Etzenhouser by letter, as having toiled earnestly for Zion's weal, and determined to continue. M. T. Short reported in person, as having been dutiful, not in this district, but in one adjoining, having listened to the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us." Elders Robert Holt, John Chisnall, Lewis Jones, of Canton, J. W. Terry, John D. Jones and M. H. Forscutt, reported. Resolved, That in the judgment of this conference, all branches should make a full and complete statistical report to each succeeding district conference, whether there may have been changes in their respective branches or not,—that the too frequent reports, "No change," be discouraged, and treated as no report, as such report conveys no information. The subject presented of local Elders' missions branching out two and two, preaching the word in the several school houses open to receive us. Several spoke in favor of the seemingly attempted project, yet there was nothing done by resolve in that way. 7:30 p. m.—After opening exercises Bro. J. S. Patterson addressed the crowd that had gathered on the subject of seeing God, who to mortals in their unregenerate state, is invisible. Text, Heb. 11th chapter 27th verse. Mar. 13th, 10 a. m.—The committee appointed some time ago to visit Bro. R. Riggs, getting him, if possible, to reform, reported of not knowing anything of his whereabouts. Bro. L. Tryon said, that he had held an interview with the brother, and that he promised to amend. Further consideration was deferred. Bro. D. S. Holmes reported his labors. He thought that his secular labors as the season opened would somewhat interfere with his labors for Christ's cause, yet intended to do all in his power for the work. Bro. L. Tryon, of Henderson Grove, thought if conference would render them assistance, great good would result. Bishop's Agent's report was read; and Resolved, that a consideration of the same be deferred until next conference. The following named brethren were then elected delegates to the General Conference: M. T. Short, M. H. Forscutt, John Chisnall, B. Sumption and J. W. Terry. Motion presented and passed: Whereas, The district secretary (J. L. Terry) is absent, and it is absolutely essential that the delegates appointed to General Conference have the proper documents that shall qualify them to sit and vote in said Conference as delegates, be it hereby resolved that the secretary of the district be and is hereby instructed that the General Conference ruling make it incumbent on him to make out and hand to each one of the appointed delegates to the General Conference each year, a copy of the names of all branches in the district, with the number of members in each branch. Resolved, That J. W. Terry continue to be our president for the coming term of six months. Resolved, That the several branches of this district be required to contribute to the best of their ability to the expenses of the presiding elder to General Conference as one of the delegates to the same, and that such contribution be sent direct to him. The president was requested to appoint a "two-days" meetings in the branches, as his wisdom may decide. Officers present: 1 High Priest, 2 Seventies, 11 Elders, 2 Priests, 3 Teachers, 2 Deacons. A motion was offered and carried, reading as follows: Whereas, it is important that this conference should have for its secretary one who can devote sufficient of his time to attend to the duties of his office, and whereas, Bro. J. L. Terry has acted as district secretary to the best of his ability for some time, but that his engagements are such as to prevent him from regular attendance on conference gatherings, Therefore, be it resolved that a vote of thanks be and is hereby tendered to him for his services, and that he be honorably released. Resolved, That John D. Jones succeed Bro. Terry in the secretaryship. The following was adopted: Whereas there are "doubts" as to the privileges of the district, in raising and using funds for district purposes; Therefore be it Resolved, that our delegates be instructed to ask from the Bishopric "direct" and "definite" instruction as to whether districts may raise funds for district purposes; and if so, under what circumstances, for whom, to what extent such funds may be raised, and who shall receive and disburse them. At 7:30 p. m., Hiram C. Bronson addressed the conference, all were greatly edified; subject: The Holy Spirit, our "witness" of the truth. Sunday, March 14th, preaching at 10:30 a. m. by M. H. Forscutt to near a full house. At 2:30 p. m. sacrament and testimony meeting, prophecy and administering to the sick,—altogether cheered each and every heart in divine presence. Preaching in the evening by M. H. Forscutt to a multitude present, and to do justice in one part out of ten, we will say that throughout the entire session of conference, and the expounding of Christ's divine word by his "sent" servants it was indeed cheering, consoling, comforting, and edifying to all in our most holy faith. Prejudice, thank God, is giving way by the penetrating light of Christ's gospel. Let Zion, though scattered, praise and magnify her God. A vote of thanks was tendered to the Kewanee Saints for their hospitality during services to all visiting brethren. Adjourned to meet at Millersburg, second Saturday in June, (the 12th), 1886, at 10 a. m.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P. O. address.

Miscellaneous.

MANCHESTER DISTRICT.

The Annual Conference of the above district will (D. V.) be held on Saturday and Sunday, the 24th and 25th of April, 1886, in the Saints' Chapel, 113 Clarendon street, Hulme, Manchester, England. Business session will be convened on Saturday 24th, at four p. m. Officers reports of labor, with their licences, etc., and branch, spiritual, statistical, and financial reports, to be forwarded to the district secretary, Elder James Baty, of Embden street, Hulme, Manchester, not later than Saturday, the 17th inst. All are invited to attend. The Sunday services will be held as follows: Morning at 10:30, prayer meeting; afternoon two p. m., fellowship and sacrament meeting; evening, six p. m., preaching.

Yours for Christ's sake,

JOSEPH DEWSNUP, Dist. Pres.

MARRIED.

CALVERT—ELIASSON.—At Race Track, Deer Lodge County, Montana, by Elder Galien Wood, of the Christian Church, Mr. Edward E. Calvert, to Sr. Caroline Eliasson.

DIED.

ROOT.—At San Benito, Cal., August 7th, 1884, Maud Etta, daughter of Bro. J. F. and Sr. Annie M. Root, aged 18 years, 5 months and 17 days. One of the most dutiful children while in this life, she can not be otherwise than good in the new home to which she was so suddenly called. Funeral services by special request by Elder A. H. Smith and E. L. Kelley, at Holister, California, October 18th, 1885.

BRIX.—Another faithful one of the Lord's servants has passed away to the glorious beyond. Elder Peter N. Brix died at Aalborg, Denmark, March 1st, 1886, while on a mission in Denmark. He has always been a firm believer and ready defender of the faith, as I can testify. We miss him, but our loss is his gain; and calmly we say, "Thy will be done." The Saints of Scandinavia feel that an exemplary and worthy brother has fallen. He was a lover of right, and did all in his power to lead souls into the light, not only by preaching the gospel, but by his daily walk and example, which were altogether praiseworthy; and his trust in God was unshaken. With this hope and trust he has passed away to the paradise of God.

REV. JOSEPH COOK.—Joseph Cook has Gratiano's talent for saying an infinite deal of nothing. In common with that other windy, quarrelsome and nonsensical person, the Rev. Dr. Talmage, he possesses an unfortunate gift for verbosity, which he mistakes for both eloquence and argument, and this erroneous estimate leads him into no end of trouble. He has, during the year which he has poured forth unfathomable torrents of words, accomplished nothing more important than talking himself into notoriety. . . . The potency of humbug when assisted by invulnerable egotism was never more felicitously exemplified than in the careers of these Tupperes of religious polemics, Messrs. Talmage and Cook. Ridicule, no heed how justly provoked, or how unerring its aim, hurls its shafts at them in vain. Their hides are impervious, and the professors of verbosity continue to pour out words in an endless, wishy-washy flood. Like neighbor Verges, they will be talking.—Boston Gazette.

CONTENTMENT.—Oh, for the Spirit which is content with nothing less nor lower than the Highest Help! To turn in temptation directly to the power of God; to cry out in sorrow for God's company; to be satisfied in doubt with nothing short of the assurance that God gives; to know there is no escape from sin except in being made holy by God's holiness—these are what makes a man's complete salvation. It is your privilege and mine, as children of God, to be satisfied with no help but the help of the Highest.

SPECIAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

We are informed by Mr. J. W. Ockerman, Station Agent at Lamoni, that the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company, have issued Certificates to their several Ticket Agents, providing for return rates, substantially as follows: The person buying a full fare ticket to Lamoni, to attend Conference will be given a certificate stating that he has bought one full fare ticket to Lamoni, which certificate the person attending Conference will present to the Secretary of Conference to be by him filled out and signed, certifying that the holder has been in attendance at the Conference; and is entitled to return at One-Third Fare to the place whence he started.

Be sure when buying your tickets to Lamoni Conference, to state to your ticket agent on the C. B. & Q. ## The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, April 10, 1886.

ELDER M. R. SCOTT writes us of late from New Albany, Indiana, and says: "Our conference at Eden closed Monday, with prospects good for the work. Bro. Harbert attended.

We hope needed attention may be devoted to the work in that field. It was at Eden and in that region that we had a hot contest with "the accuser of the brethren," and there the Lord gave us, by his grace, decided victories for Christ and his "marvellous work and a wonder." We were beset by the Campbellites, Methodists, Adventists, etc., etc., with all the skill and persistence that malice and pharisaical bigotry could command; but the Lord delivered us, as He by vision and revelation showed us He would do, truth triumphed, the word was confirmed by signs following those who believed, many were baptized, prejudice was lessened, branches were organized in due time, and a conference district established. But by and by "the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth," (Rev. 3: 10), came upon the Eden Branch and other localities in the district, and fierce trials were encountered by many, causing some to doubt and fear and falter, so that for a season there has been "darkness" in that land to those who have lagged in the rear of God's "pillar," while those who have kept in the fore front, faithful to the work as they received it in word and spirit and divine testimony, have walked in the light and liberty of Israel's God and are to-day rejoicing in his goodness and saving power.

We well remember that the Lord revealed to us, when debating on the prophetic mission of Joseph the Seer with the chosen champion selected to oppose us, that this opposer would become as weak as a child in our hands, while we, through mercy to him, would smite him with the side, instead of the edge, of the "keen two-edged sword." We also remember that, when a messenger came for us to visit and labor in Crawford county, fifty miles away, where the people threatened to mob us if we preached on the Seer and the Book of Mormon, we made the matter a subject of fervent secret prayer and was taught by the Spirit to "fear them not; but go humbly forward, labor faithfully, meekly and be blessed." This we did, and the Lord stood by us, delivering us from enemies, and giving us many souls as seals of our ministry. Neither have we forgotten that the blessed Lord approved the prayers of his Elders and confirmed the ordinances of His church in raising up a bedridden woman, also healing the little daughter of Bro. Harbert Scott, and in due time bringing retribution upon those who opposed and resisted the Lord's work. These, and many other things wherein the Lord guided and confirmed the work of his ministry in that region we have not forgotten. And we trust He will protect and greatly revive His work there. For this we shall earnestly and always pray. The Saints there should walk in the light as they received it and as God confirmed it by his Spirit, and not be guilty of the folly of seeking to change, modify, or improve the work as founded of the Lord.

Paul declares that when the time should come when "all Israel shall be saved," "the Deliverer," his "covenant" to them, shall come out of Zion." (Rom. 11: 25-27). Isaiah says: "And he shall set up an en sign for the nations;" (Gentiles); while Joel says of those times: "In Mount Zion and Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the Lord hath said, and in the remnant whom the Lord shall call;" and John the Revelator declares that an angel from heaven shall bear "the everlasting gospel" which was to be preached to "them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people," and this, too, before Babylon falls (verse 8) and the "Son of man" returns (verse 14), and the end of the world comes. (verses 15-19). Let no Saints attempt to change this work as founded by the Seer, approved by the church, and confirmed of the Lord from 1827 to 1844, lest they be found fighting against God. For the Lord has decreed that, in carrying out his "marvellous work," the wisdom of those "wise men" who are not in harmony with that "work and a wonder" "shall perish;" and that "their prudent men shall be hid." [Be found to be in the darkness and confusion of error.—Ed].

From the times of Noah to those of John on Patmos, those who have resisted or treated lightly the authoritative work of God's prophets, have come to grief, suffered loss, and been covered with shame and confusion. May heaven inspire the Indiana Saints to be wise, patient and faithful.

In the following clipping, the writer expresses surprise that all the translators, compilers, commentators, and controversialists of the Bible "should have in common overlooked an absurd blunder such as" is found in the texts cited. Had he read the Holy Scriptures as translated and corrected by Joseph Smith the Seer, he could have made an exception, for the seer saw and corrected the said "blunder," besides hosts of others far more absurd and hurtful, as all may see who will diligently compare them.

OLDER THAN HIS FATHER.

"T. D." writes as follows to the editor of The Auburn Advertiser: "In all the translations of the Hebrew bible into English—viz., the version of King James, and the Oxford and American Bible society edition of the same, in the Douay versions of the Roman Catholic church, as well as in the new versions of the English and American divines, occurs the common oversight or blunder of stating in II. Chronicles that King Ahaziah was forty and two years old on his accession to the throne of Judea at the death of his father, who died at the age of forty, thus making King Ahaziah two years older than his father. See 2 Chronicles 21: 20, and 22: 1. See also 2 Kings 8: 26, where his age is correctly stated. It is certainly a literary curiosity that with all the comparison, collation, study, and controversy about readings and meanings of the text, greater in regard to the Bible than in regard to any other book, all its learned scholars, commentators, and controversialists should have in common overlooked an absurd blunder such as this. Although in the original manuscript, and a manifest blunder, it should not have been allowed to pass without correction, it being the word of God."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

PERSONS attending conference over the North Western Road, will be returned from Des Moines; and over the Rock Island from Ottumwa and Fairfield Stations, will be returned at one-third rates.

Bro. Albert Haws reached Portland, Oregon, January 25th, 1886. Since then he had up to February 11th, visited some and given out some tracts; and had held one or two meetings, eighteen or twenty in attendance. Bro. Haws feels well; his address is East Portland.

Bro. and Sr. Adam See, of Adams Center, Adams county, Wisconsin, held their golden wedding services, on Wednesday, March 24th past. For fifty years have they walked in the ways of wedlock, and on this fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day, their children, relatives, neighbors and friends, gathered around them and congratulated them upon the integrity and fidelity with which they had kept the troth plighted between them so long ago. Bro. See sent us an invitation to attend; but time, distance and occupation did not permit. He sends us a copy of the Adams County Press containing an account of the gathering, for which we thank him. May they live together to meet friends on the seventy-fifth return of their anniversary just celebrated by them.

Elder J. C. Clapp writes us from Deer Lodge City, Montana, the 27th ult., that he intends to labor in that region and on the Jefferson river the coming summer, and feels confident of excellent results. He also intends to labor at Blackfoot City, Wickes, Glendale, Phillipsburg and Missoula.

We call attention to two excellent articles in this number, namely, "Priesthood Meetings," and "The Kingdom Transferred."

ERRATA.—In Bro. W. R. Calhoun's article page 170 of HERALD, last column, 18th line from bottom, for 1896 read 1986, the writer having intended to use the century in his argument and not the decade, 100 instead of 10. Bro. J. B. Farr says:—In my last article you had a few slight errors, the principal of which was: "Its evidences of the former 'affects' that of the latter," should read "offsets" instead of "affects." In the marriage notice of Bro. Washburn and Sr. Howell, in a late HERALD, read Feb'y 23d instead of March 23d.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Have Deacons or Teachers authority to assist in administering the sacrament?

Ans.—The law of the church says "Neither Teachers nor Deacons have authority to baptize, administer the sacrament, or lay on hands; they are, however, to warn, expound, exhort and teach, and invite all to come unto Christ."—Doc. & Cov. 17: 11.

Q.—If a person is coaxed to join the church, and then not having the Spirit as he ought to have and keeps from the church, becomes sinful, and after that desires to take up his cross and serve God, is it necessary that he should be baptized again for the remission of sins and have hands laid on him for the gift of the Holy Ghost?

A.—It is not necessary; but may be permitted if faithfully wished for.

Q.—If the church is not honored by exhibiting evidence of a non-sanction of immoral conduct, by dealing with transgressors why not teach to sin, that grace may abound?

A.—The failure to prosecute real, or supposed offenders may arise from several causes, no one of which should be construed to be a sanction of sin. To teach men to sin is to break positive command.

Q.—Are we to understand that all the evidence Christ gave of a disapprobation of the woman's act, was in saying, "Go thy way and sin no more?" And that the church is to do no more or less—with transgressors? If so, what of,—and how shall we harmonize the instruction, laws, and methods as contained in Matt. 18: 15, 16, 19; the latter clause of par. 2, sec. 46; par. 7, 16, 20, 21, 22, 23, sec. 42; par. 2, sec. 41; the latter clause of par. 2, sec. 64; par. 2, sec. 59, Doctrine and Covenants; 2d par., 6 chapter of Moroni, Book of Mormon; with what appears on page 82 of Herald for February 6th, 1882; "Elders are to see the law is kept," etc., etc.?

A.—We do not discover from the relation of the transaction that Christ visited any other condemnation upon the woman than is expressed in the words "Go thy way and sin no more." He here acknowledged her act to be sinful. This statement of Christ does not take the place of other and positive direction to the church; hence, we make no effort to harmonize, as questioned in the rest of the query; although we see nothing out of harmony with the instruction in Herald cited and the rules referred to.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. C. C. Holcomb, of Oenaville, Tex., writes to Bro. Heman C. Smith under date of 26th ult., and says:

"I can say that I have had more light than ever before; have had testimony that would not be lawful to tell to the outside world, for they would not believe me."

A MARRIED man, with a wife and three or four children depending on his labor for bread, clothing and shelter, visited a village store holding forty cents in his hand. The merchant waited upon his customer, and the following articles (name and amount) were purchased by him: sugar, 10 cents; tea, 5 cents; tobacco, 25 cents; the sugar and tea were for the family, himself included, the tobacco for himself alone. What a comment on manhood; wife and children starved and pinched, poorly fed and poorly clad, the man himself poorly clothed; and yet three eighths of the pitiful sum he carried in his hand went to suffering family, five eighths to himself for what was neither food nor clothing. If that man's self did not need crucifying, could one be found that did. Three eighths of the love of this man was for wife and children, five eighths for his depraved, vitiated, cursing habit. Whatever may be said in defence of the use of tobacco for any one, it is almost a moral certainty that to this man and others like him, the habit has dwarfed, stunted and shriveled his soul entirely out of divine, or even human proportions.

INDIANA-MORMONS REORGANIZING CHURCHES IN THE SOUTHERN PART OF THE STATE.

Jeffersonville, Ind., March 25—A conference of Mormon Elders is progressing in Mount Eden Church, a few miles from here. The object is to reorganize work for the advancement of the cause of the Latter Day Saints. The idea is to make the church more aggressive by placing in the field the ablest evangelists. The avowal is openly made that their faith will push more boldly hereafter. New churches will be organized and old ones strengthened. The believers hold to the Book of Mormon but discard polygamy. They will continue to believe Joseph Smith, the founder of the faith, will hold the doctrine of healing disease by anointing and laying on hands, and will advocate baptism by immersion. The conference will continue several days. The faithful look forward to grand results to be accomplished in Southern Indiana.

"DRAW ME NEARER."

BY MRS. C. F. WILDER.

THERE are times when thoughts which we often hear expressed make a deeper impression upon us than at other times. The Scriptures are often read in our hearing and passages that we have heard from childhood seem suddenly to be filled with new light and meaning. Hymns which we have sung for years suddenly throw upon the steps up to heaven new light and glory.

One evening at prayer-meeting we were singing a hymn which I often sing at home, and as we commenced the second verse,

"Consecrate me now to thy service, Lord.

By the power of grace divine,"

there came to me one of those sudden revelations which is always such a help to the hungry soul.

Fanny Crosby, when she wrote the hymn, had in mind those verses in Hebrew where is written, "Let us draw near," "Let us hold fast." I had often, before that evening, as I sung the hymn, thought of God's part and longed to have him answer that part of the prayer, but it had never before come to me with such force—my own part of the work—the "holding fast" with "patience and thanksgiving."

Am I unlike other Christians in that I have "consecrated" myself to God, over and over again, ever since I first gave my heart to Him in my early youth, and immediately after it is done begin to wonder whether I really have given myself wholly to Him and whether He really accepted the offering? And the next time I thought of what I'd tried to do, as I could perceive no difference in my feelings, came to the conclusion that somehow it was all a mistake.

But that night came the thought of the holding fast "without wavering." Who is it that would argue the matter with me? Why am I asking myself whether I have done this or not? I know I have given myself to God. My will is fixed in that matter. God knows my purpose, and my feelings have nothing to do with the subject. These doubts are only temptations with the aim to hold me back.

The next day came again those thoughts, "I wonder if I did 'consecrate' myself when I said I did!"

How long might a Christian soul go on in this way, feeling of his spiritual pulse and striving to find out how "near" he is to the Lord and how near the Lord is to him? Carrying his burdens to the Lord and carrying them away again? Burdened with care, perplexed, restless, full of anxious thought, all the time knowing that the great Burden-bearer longs to relieve him of his load and yet going on the same old way, weary and heavy-laden. I want freedom from such weariness. You want the perfect rest.

That good Quaker lady, Hannah Smith, gives an illustration of the perfect rest in something like the following homely illustration:

The weary house-mother, at night, feels as though she could lie down, and without thought or care, sleep until morning. How delicious the sense of repose. How perfectly charming the sensation of relaxing every muscle, giving the downy pillows an extra push under the head, and resting in a perfect ecstasy of ease and quiet. How tired was the back. How weary the brain. How every limb ached and every nerve quivered. Rest now—body and mind at perfect rest. She trusts herself to the bed in confidence.

Let us go on farther and suppose she had felt every minute as though the bed would give way beneath her. Would not that very thought have wearied her more than not to have gone to bed at all?

And this analogy she uses to teach us what it is to trust in the Lord. Our souls are to lie upon His will. We are to lay off every burden and to rest in Him in perfect ease and comfort, "sure that since he holds us up we are safe." Our part is to trust him, and continue to trust. His part—and he can not fail—is to sustain us.

The great trouble with the eager, earnest Christian, with vigorous active powers, is, he is unwilling to rest in God's will, but wants to see results which he himself has worked out.

When thoughtfully reading the Sermon on the Mount have we not, as we passed along over the verses one by one, thought, Is it possible for me to think lowly of self? To possess my soul with meekness and patience? To desire less instead of more? To take no anxious thought for the morrow? To leave the gift before the altar and search out the one who has a grudge against me? To love—actually love the enemy and speak well of and do good to those who have injured us? Not care to lay up for ourselves treasures upon earth so that by and by, we shall have a handsome home and a few more acres of land? To do the good deed as secretly as I say my little prayer? Do to all exactly as I would be done by and never let my prejudices influence me in my treatment of another? As we read, do we never, with a sigh, think, Who is sufficient for these things?

How much easier to pass by all these passive virtues and go on to where Christ tells us to work.

But as we look at the life of Christ do we not see that the prime distinction of Christianity is his meekness, his perfect unselfishness, his unworldliness, his patience? Are we his followers or are we not?

If we are His and have not followed Him, like St. John, "in his kingdom and patience," we have lost much of the beauty and sweetness of life. Luther says that our God is the God of the humble hearts which are in need. "He can show His power only when in weakness."

It seems as though the cry of the Christian heart everywhere is, "Draw me nearer." There is dissatisfaction with our lives of penance, constraint and dreariness. We know that Christ has forgiven our sins, but we are longing for more than this—for the legacy, bequeathed in His last words to His disciples, "My peace," "my joy," "to remain in you that your joy might be full." But we shall go on longing and sighing and wishing, if we don't cut the matter short by the use of our own will-power and the God-given faith bestowed so freely upon every soul.

How it must grieve Christ, as he looks upon us so full of worries, of restlessness, so weary and heavy-laden with the cares of life and the fears and doubts within. It sometimes has seemed as though if we had not a spark of Christianity, but only sound common sense, we would cease living in the way we are living.

Our restlessness does not help matters in the least. Our impatience will neither hasten nor hinder God's purpose. We are eager for results, but God, with His infinite leisure, has set times and will wait for them.

We have heard an old proverb, "There is a clock with which Providence keepeth time and pace and God himself setteth it." That clock will not strike until the hand is at the hour. And when the time comes it will strike. The history of the world, of nations, and of individuals for all time show this. There will be no exception in our case. We do not like our environment, but we can not alter circumstances. If we could, would we? Do we want the Lord to act according to our ignorance of his wisdom? Can we, for one minute, be so foolish as to desire to become the arbiter of God's will toward us? Then, if we are so sure that He knows best what plan of life to mark out for us, why don't we trust Him? Why do we stint or measure our love and obedience to Him?

When we calmly deliberate over these things, we are certain that we do want all that Christ has to give us. We do want to become all that we are capable of becoming. All other desires besides these are common place. To draw near to God and have him draw near to us shall be the one great aim of our lives. And we will draw near "with a true heart in full assurance of faith," and we will "hold fast . . . without wavering." Let us sing:

"Consecrate me now to thy service, Lord,
By the power of grace divine,
Let my soul look up with a steadfast hope
And my will be lost in Thine."

For the above selection we bespeak a careful reading. To us it seems replete with the good we most need. The following is equally good, but we could wish not equally needed.

HOME LIFE.

THE other day I chanced to enter a friend's house. He did not know I was in the parlor, and I overheard his conversation. He was very harsh in his dealing with his child. He was "out of sorts" that morning. "The wind was east" that morning, and the east wind blew into his lungs, and into his soul, and soured his mind, and soured his heart, and so, like a base miscreant as he was, he vented his bad temper on his wife and children. It is a bad habit some men have

This man was talking in a hard, unchristian manner—talking as no father should talk. He had lost his temper. He was saying what he would be sorry for in a few moments. And then the servant announced my presence. Mind you, the man would have said, he could not help it.

"The boy teased me! He did what I can not endure, and on the impulse of the moment, I spoke my anger. I could not control myself."

There was a frown on his face; but when I was announced, being more or less of a stranger, demanding of him certain courtesies, he at once smoothed his face as though nothing had happened—as though the sun was shining brightly in the heavens, and the wind was in the south, not east. He came into the room where I was, and in the most cordial and courteous way possible gave me his hand and smilingly bade me welcome. He could not control himself, simply because he did not think enough of his boy, because he did not sufficiently appreciate his family; and because he thought that his home was a den in which he could roar with impunity, and not the great temple of God, where he should walk as priest and king.

And yet I, almost a stranger, was strong in my presence, to cause him at once to cool down into courtesy, into affability, into politeness!

I tell you that many and many a man and many and many a woman in this strange world of ours, in which many things seem to go wrong, will be gentle, and kind, and charitable, and full of smiles outside of their houses, with strangers for whose opinion they do not care one jot, or one tittle, and in their homes, when all the happiness of years depends upon their sweetness of soul, and where they are constantly shedding influences that will ripen into the good or bad life of a boy or girl, will yield to a pettishness and peevishness unworthy of them as men and women, and wholly unworthy of them as Christians.—Hepworth.

WE are in receipt of letters from Sisters Sheehy and Atwell. We hope the letter published this week from Sister Gifford will prove encouraging to all such as may be separated from any large branch of the church. "Where two or three are met together in my name," is the only condition specified, for the coming of the Master to meet with and bless them. Texas is our old home. Connected with its limpid streams and lovely flowers of every hue are some of the happiest memories of our life, and as we remember our successful labors in San Antonio—the strong ties of friendship and love there formed, we wonder if God has no larger harvest to be gathered there! Brave little band, we beseech you to continue faithful. Your labor of love shall not be in vain; but the crown is at the end of the race. May you each one wear it, together with all who love the appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Sister Ruby's letter carries us back to the dark and cloudy days, when a small number of us used to meet together in Pennsylvania, and when my father left with them his last earthly testimony to the truth of this work, and told his weeping family that God would surely visit his people again, and raise up one to lead them in righteousness. "They shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God."

LAMONI, Iowa, April 1st, 1886.

"The day is past and gone,
The shades of night appear"

BUT ere the sable curtain is closely drawn around us, I would like to spend a few minutes in pleasant chat with my sisters—sisters in Christ, those of "like precious faith" with myself. Dear sisters, let us be thankful for the space allowed us in the Home Column; and let us try and aid in this work of faith and labor of love. It is little I can do, being old and infirm; yet I realize it was little that dear sister could do who came to Jesus with the precious ointment; but she broke the box, and anointed his feet. Some found fault with her, but Jesus commended and said to those penurious ones "Let her alone," * * * "She hath done what she could." May these precious words be pronounced upon us; for rest assured, they are very significant of good.

I consider it a noble cause in which we are engaged. Helps were set in the church as well as governments, and you are helping to disseminate truth by your exchange of sentiment and thought. I for one, feel to rejoice in your well begun work, and earnestly desire and pray God will speed it.

Sister Frances tells us that in a pre-eminet degree we are endowed with love, patience, hope, courage and endurance. If we are, let us exercise these precious gifts; and while we work out our own salvation, help to save others. Now, to you I appeal my dear sisters, both old and young, do not let your pens get rusty, but keep their points sharp. Put your thoughts on paper, and send them flashing through the Home Column, and they will shine like "apples of gold set in pictures of silver." Your ideas may appear unto you crude and of little worth; but they may be blest to the good of some poor tried and tempted soul who is struggling and toiling along the battle field of life.

Words are little things,
And a small drop of ink
Falling like dew, upon a thought,
Produces, that which makes thousands—
Perhaps millions think.—Byron.

To my aged sisters who have with me grown old and grey in this work, those who have passed through many trials, afflictions and persecutions for Christ's sake, I would say, Be faithful a little longer and your reward is sure; because the promise of God is ever "yea" and "amen" to all who are in Christ. O, let us wait patiently, stand firm; support the weak; pray always, and so honor God's name.

And you my dear young sisters, who have entered into covenant with God to strive and keep holy his commandments, I greet you as a mother greets, as a sister in Christ; and we should all realize that to be a member in this church of Christ in these last days, is of no trifling importance. My dear girls, be true and faithful; do not follow in the extreme the fashions of the day; search the Scriptures; read carefully the Book of Mormon, and never be ashamed to be called a Latter Day Saint. And sisters, give us a lesson on house-keeping; philosophise a little on dish-washing, sweeping, dusting, &c.

OAK ISLAND, Texas, Feb. 23d.

Dear Sister Frances:—Perhaps it would interest some of the mothers of "The Home Column" to hear what the mothers away down in Texas are doing for their children, and the cause of Christ in general. While we are trying to teach our daughters, and our sons too, how to make home comfortable and happy, we are also teaching them the way to eternal happiness in the celestial kingdom of God. We keep up a Sunday School and a prayer meeting, although there are only four sisters engaged in the work; but we are all mothers, and we feel the great importance of the work in which we are engaged. Six years ago this branch carried on a Sunday School and prayer meeting, although we had no place to meet but under a brush arbor. We kept up the school for about two years, and it seemed that the Lord favored us in a very wonderful manner, for no matter how cold and wet the weather during the week, almost always it cleared up before the Sabbath came and would be warm and pleasant, so we kept up our school and prayer meeting, both summer and winter. Then there were ten or twelve workers among us, and two of them brothers; but Satan crept in and broke up our little branch. We were organized again two years ago, and commenced meeting at our homes for prayer. One brother and six or eight sisters, with our elder, Bro. Waterman, occasionally meeting with us, though he lived in San Antonio then. We know not where he is now, as he left San Antonio last spring. We remember him and his good wife with kindly feelings for the good work they did while here. Through their persevering zeal and the help of Elder H. L. Thompson and Mr. J. P. Neal, Bro. William Carruthers and a few others who gave small donations, we now have a church to worship in, though it is not yet finished. We have it seated so that we can hold meetings and Sunday School. Bro. H. C. Smith, H. L. Thompson and John Currie visit us about twice a year and preach for us. Bro. John came last Christmas and also his father and brother. They all three very kindly assisted us in getting up a Christmas tree for our Sunday School. We appreciated their help, not only for the kindly feeling shown, but as there are only four of us who carry on the school, we really needed the help they afforded. Since Bro. Waterman left, the other sisters and the brothers it seems have grown weary of the Master's work or forgotten the commandment, "Neglect not the assembling of yourselves together." Our prayers are that we may all be brought to a unity of the faith, and work on faithfully until the Master comes.

NANNIE A. GIFFORD.

WEBB CITY MISSOURI.

Dear Frances:—I will try to write a few lines, and my subject shall be concerning the poor. We often hear mention made of tramps, and true there are many. The question is whose fault is it? It may be their parents' fault. Is it our duty to be their judges, or to turn them away without giving them anything to eat? I have heard some say: "They may starve before I will give them anything to eat;" but I hope there are none calling themselves "Saints" who would wish to set such an example before their children. I do not remember ever seeing my parents turn any one empty away, and I hope to be able to set the same example before my children. I do not wish them to be hard-hearted; neither do I think it right to frown on a tramp, for we little know what has brought him to ask for food; and if the Lord has favored us with a home and enough, we ought to be willing to give one meal, if we have it, and if we have not we can say we have not, or we would give. The Book of Mormon, Mosiah, chapter 2 page 151 teaches us this important lesson, and tells us we are all beggars in one sense; then let us be very careful how we judge the poor, and may God help us to live worthy the great light and blessings we have received.

"Think gently of the erring,
And do not thou forget,
However deeply stained in sin
He is thy brother yet.
"Heir of the selfsame heritage,
Child of the selfsame God,
He hath but stumbled from the path
Thou hath so feebly trod."

Correspondence.

LAKE CRYSTAL, Minn., Mar. 17th.

Editors Herald.—I arrived here a few days ago; found that Bro. Shaw had succeeded in working up quite an interest here. I have spoken three times to large and attentive congregations. The old Jewish spirit is raising among the pious, they sent for a big gun, fearing that those that are here might be too small for the work they wanted them for. He came, fired a shot, and true to his instinct, skipped out and sent a woman to take his place; but the seed is being sown in spite of opposition, and I trust it will give increase. Here is where Bro. W. H. Kelley made a stand, and started the work. He is held high in the estimation of many, both in and out of the church. The seed that he planted has not been watered as it should have been, and of course has not been as productive as it otherwise would have been. The few that are here are striving for the faith, and have received a promise that if they continue more will be added to their numbers. It is with feelings of sadness I leave the Saints of this district. A nobler people it has never been my lot to be among; their works prove them such. They stand ahead of any district in the church in point of works. The district numbers less than one hundred and thirty; some twenty of them have been baptized this summer, and they have paid during the last year for building purposes and the work of the ministry over $700; and nearly all of these Saints are quite poor in this world's goods, but they will not be in the next. I know five or six men in some branches that represent as much wealth as the entire membership of this district. I mention this in honor to the people, and to show what a people can do if they have the will. May God bless them abundantly, and lead them to the future home of the Saints. Dear Saints, while I leave you I bear pleasant memories of the past, which time with its ever changing scenes will not obliterate. There are some things of the past we desire to forget, others we do not; my sojourn in Minnesota and the children of God that are there, are among those that I never wish, or will forget. But what a strange life it is after all; we make friends and learn to love them only to leave, but the saying is good, knowing them more than recompenses us for the sorrow we have in leaving them. Let us pray that God will hasten the day when parting will be no more.

HIRAM L. HOLT.

ARMSTRONG, Kansas, Mar. 29th.

Brother Joseph:—On the 20th inst., I held a debate at Tiblon, Kansas, with a Campbellite preacher by the name of D. M. Ward, on the following proposition. "Resolved that the Book of Mormon is of human origin." The next evening Bro. F. C. Warnky reversed the proposition, and debated the same with him for three hours. We think there was good done. I send you the Argentine Siftings containing a notice of the debate. I am also to discuss the following proposition with Mr. Ward, beginning the 14th of April. "Resolved that the church that I, D. M. Ward, am a member of, commonly called the Disciple Church, is the Church of Christ." 2d,

"Resolved that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, commonly called Latter Day Saints, is the Church of Christ." We are to debate three or more evenings, three hours each evening, on each proposition, the Bible to be the standard of evidence. We hope by the assistance of the Master, to be able to establish truth, and expose error; that those who desire to be saved may be enabled to walk by the light of God's truth, and eventually find an inheritance with the pure and the good. I believe there are some noble hearted people in Tiblon who will eventually embrace the gospel of Christ. I expect to attend the General Conference, if all is well.

Yours in gospel bonds,

WILLARD J. SMITH.

SWEET HOME, Oregon, March 20th.

Bro. Dancer:—I have received one dozen Voice of Warning, and two or three packages of tracts. I could use more tracts on the first principles of the gospel, also Voices of Warning to a good advantage, as the people here are stirred up. I am having crowded houses, good attention, and several new places are waiting where they have invited me to come and preach, and several who have been very much prejudiced have come out to hear, and I have invitations all around to come and visit the people. I have been blessed with the best liberty that I ever had in my life. The brethren here feel encouraged and think "the set time to favor Zion has come." I wish you would send me a copy of the Spaulding Story if you have not, as I need it very much. I feel encouraged, and if the Lord blesses me with health and grace, I believe there will be some obey the gospel here. Send all of my mail to Sweet Home, Linn Co., Oregon, for the present.

Yours in gospel bonds,

A. HAWS.

DOW CITY, Ia., March 29th.

Bro. Blair:—Since the conference at Galland's Grove, Bro. J. F. McDowell has been with us the greater part of three weeks, delivered two lectures, one entitled The Bible vs. Infidelity, and the other on Prohibition, both of which were well received. His preaching throughout has also been well received, his audiences being large and very attentive. Yesterday three were baptized, two of whom are school teachers, and all three are young men of very excellent reputation, and they embrace the truth after a very careful investigation of it. Two more will be baptized to-day, and next Wednesday brother McDowell returns to baptize a young lady, at her request, and I am sure others will follow soon. I wish every city and village in the world had in them at least one as consistent and earnest a laborer in Christ as our above mentioned brother. The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Saints of this place at the close of the services yesterday: Resolved, That we, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at Dow City, Iowa, hereby tender Elder J. F. McDowell our heart-felt thanks for his kind suggestions and labor in the repairing of our church, and more especially for the earnest and unflinching manner in which he has presented the truth. And inasmuch as we contemplate having said church dedicated to the service of God as soon as the repairs are completed; therefore be it Resolved, That we do hereby earnestly request Bro. McDowell to preach the dedication discourse if his General Conference appointment will admit of his doing so.

God has given us a harvest of noble souls, and we thank him for it. We have quite a number of earnest, zealous, and energetic young men in our branch, among the very best and most respected in the community, who, we believe, will do a good work for the Master in preaching the gospel of Christ at no very distant day.

Yours in bonds,

CHAS. E. BUTTERWORTH.

DOW CITY, Iowa, March 29th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I have delivered seventeen discourses here, Bro. Brand preceding me with several, and excellent interest seems to be manifest and some who were investigating moved to obedience, and others recently converted. Three were baptized on yesterday by Bro. Charles Butterworth, one to-day, and the writer will baptize still others this week. The Lord has blessed with excellent liberty the speaking of his word, and much prejudice removed; the largest audiences out yet had by our people here. I baptized a young man at the Bluffs on the seventh inst., making fourteen at Council Bluffs since located in that city.

J. F. McDOWELL.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., March 29th.

Bro. Blair:—On last Saturday a week I was requested by Bro. W. J. Smith of Armstrong, Kansas, to go with him to hold a debate with a Campbellite minister at Tiblow, Kan. He had preached there a few times by the invitation and assistance of Bro. Cole, a member of the Hedrickites. An excellent defence was made by Bro. Smith. He refuted all his opponents arguments with marked ability. The Campbellite affirmed that the Book of Mormon was of human origin, used Clark Braden as authority that Rigdon stole the Spaulding Story and remodeled it into its present form.

It was clear to be seen where the truth lay. On Sunday morning Bro. Smith went home and left me to "hold the fort." We reversed the question. I affirmed that the Book of Mormon was of divine origin, and the clipping I send you gives the result.

"The long talked of debate between Rev. D. M. Ward of the Christian Church, and Elder Smith of the Mormon, or Josephite Church, took place at the school-house on Saturday night. Rev. J. M. Michael of the Christian Church, Elder Warnky of the Josephite Church, of Independence, Mo., and J. M. Wood, acted as moderators. The house was packed full with respectable and appreciative audience, many friends of both sides being present, who seemed to manifest much interest in the debate. Resolved, "That the Book of Mormon is of human origin," was the subject for debate; Ward on the affirmative and Smith on the negative. The debate lasted four hours, each speaker taking thirty minutes alternately. Whether the Book of Mormon is of human or divine origin we know not, but this fact impressed itself on the mind of your correspondent, that Ward is no match for Smith as a debater, and if our Christian friends wish to win in the race for church supremacy the sooner they trot out another horse the better. Another debate was held on Sunday night between D. M. Ward and Elder Warnky. Subject: Resolved, "That the Book of Mormon is of divine origin." The house was packed to its utmost capacity by a very orderly and respectable audience. J. H. Wood occupied the chair. The discussion lasted three hours and resulted in an early victory for Warnky in our opinion, though others may think different. Mr. Warnky has a ready force of knowledge, is a pleasant speaker, and withal conducted himself in a very gentlemanly manner. The end is not—another debate between Smith and Ward is to take place at the same place April 14th. Subject: Resolved, That the Christian Church is the Church of Christ." Ward affirms; King James' translation of the Bible to be the standard of evidence."—Argentine (Kan.) Siftings.

We feel satisfied, and believe that a branch of the church will be established there. Many friends were made, and some were almost persuaded. May God bless the effort there as well as elsewhere. Arrangement is made for a renewal of the conflict, to begin April 14th and will last a week, when I expect good results.

Yours in the field,

F. C. WARNKY.

Dear Herald:—The above heading indicates where we are located at present, strangers in a strange land; but nevertheless, trying to keep peace with our Maker and God. We are surrounded with abundance of ungodliness and sin, and it is only through the mercy of our Father in heaven that we live, move and act. Our desire is to hold fast to the rod that leadeth to the tree of life, and to this end we kindly ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints.

CHESTER, Ill., March 26th.

Dear Herald:—Our branch numbers thirteen. We seldom all come together, as we live a good distance apart. I try to keep our appointments regular, but there is very little interest manifested in the cause of true religion here. Once in a while one or two drop in to see what we are doing. We may be able to gather a few heads of "wheat" from among the rank growth of "tares" after awhile. We have been blessed in our little meetings, and feel to rejoice greatly in the latter day work. The Herald we can not think of doing without, although some seem to clash in their writings for its pages. (We hope they will be able to see eye to eye, when that which is perfect is come). It is high toned, and in every way worthy of respect as the Herald of Truth. For its long life and usefulness we shall ever pray.

Mr. Editor:—I feel very thankful that we have a good christian paper, the Saints Herald. We have some of them here, and we find they are very good. I believe in the Latter Day Saints, though I have always been going to the Methodist Church. But I thank God he has brought me to the true light of the gospel. There are three of us here, one of them has been baptized in the Saints' Church. I can be baptized here by the Methodists, but I don't want to be baptized in their way. I do hope the time will come when I can be baptized in the right way. I believe in faith, baptism, and the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. We have had one of the elders of the Latter Day Saints here, but the people would not listen to him. I do hope the time will come when I can hear them again. We have to take our Bible and go by ourselves. If any of the elders come here I will always make them welcome. If you have any free tracts please send us some.

A friend of the Saints,

FREDERICK HOLLINGSWORTH.

AKRON, Iowa, Mar. 25th.

Dear Herald:—Messenger of peace, love, light, and truth: I never shall be able to tell you how much I have benefited, how much good and what a preacher of righteousness you have been to me. I have been a reader of your columns for over sixteen years, and most of the time you have been my only preacher. It seems to me that all who read for the love of the truths you teach each week, ought to grow in grace and knowledge. Although I can not help the longing to be associated with the Saints, and to be fed with the crumbs as they fall from the master's table, yet I can content myself, thank God, and say, Thy will be done; I will endeavor to do Thy will wherever Thou dost lead me.

I have received so much good from Elder D., and Dr. Twinetext's conversation; also The Stone cut out of the Mountain. I think both of those articles ought to be put in tract form, to distribute. Can it not be done. May God inspire your writers with such healthy food is my prayer. I am desirous too that some able pen would write on the two messengers of the first and second coming of the Messiah. Nearly all the world claim that the third chapter of Malachi predicts only his first coming. It was stated in the Baptist and M. E. Sunday school last Sunday that it was not at all likely that Malachi was going to rise up there, over four hundred years before Christ's first coming and predict his second advent; that the Elijah spoken of in the fourth chapter was John the Baptist, and no other. I was pained to hear that beautiful lesson, so full of good instruction, so dreadfully mangled as it was. Oh! I do praise God so much for his truth, and that I am counted worthy to know his truth. I can not find fitting words to praise God enough. I am still in great need of the prayers of His Saints for wisdom and grace to keep me to the end.

Your sister in Christ,

N. A. CHRISTY.

RADCLIFF STAR, Ohio, March 24th.

Bro. Blair:—Since I last wrote have baptized four more, making in all, to date, fifteen since I left home. Doors are opening, and the Lord is favoring me with marked liberty. May the good work roll on.

Your brother as ever,

L. R. DEVORE.

"J. M. B.," Friendship, Mo., says he has a friend troubled with catarrhal sore throat. He has consulted many medical men without relief, and he asks what advice we can give. I advise his friend to remember one thing: that diseases are never local, but that every so-called local affection is but the local expression of a systemic condition. To make applications to his nose or throat is a silly blunder; just as silly as it would be to make a local application to an ulcer on his ankle. In both cases the local manifestation is only a flag of distress which Nature hangs out to indicate the condition within. If a man who met a ship at sea flying a flag of distress, were to cut down the flag, and chuckle because all signs of distress had disappeared, he would be quite as wise as the doctor who squirts things into a man's nose for catarrh. This Missouri gentlemen should, through a wise regimen, make himself more vital. Let him elevate his tone, and his nose will soon behave itself.—Nuggets.

Selected Poetry.

I'LL KNOW THEE THERE.

[G. D. Prentice said: "No living poem can surpass in beauty, the following lines from the muse of Amelia."]

Pale star that, with thy soft, sad light,
Comes out upon my bridal eve,
I have a song to sing to-night,
Before thou takest thy mournful leave.
Since then so softly time has stirr'd
That months have almost seem'd like hours,

And I am like a little bird
That slept too long among the flowers,
And, waking, sits with waveless wing,
Soft singing 'mid the shades of even;
But, oh! with sadder heart I sing—
I sing of one who dwells in heaven.
The winds are soft, the clouds are few,
And tenderest thought my heart beguiles,
As, floating up through mist and dew,
The pale young moon comes out in smiles;

And to the green, resounding shore
In silvery troops the ripples crowd,
Till all the ocean, dimpled o'er,
Lifts up its voice and laughs aloud;
And star on star, all soft and calm,
Float up yon arch, serenely blue;
And, lost to earth, and steeped in balm
My spirit floated in ether, too.

Loved one! though lost to human sight
I feel thy spirit lingering near;
And softly—as I feel the light
That trembles through the atmosphere,
As in some temple's holy shades,
Though mute the hymn and hushed the prayer,
A solemn awe the soul pervades,
Which tells that worship has been there;
A breath of incense, left alone,
Where many a censor swung around;
Which thrills the wanderer like to one
Who treads on consecrated ground.

I know thy soul, from worlds of bliss,
Yet stops awhile to dwell with me,
Hath caught the prayer I breathed in this,
That I at last might dwell with thee.
I hear a murmur from the seas
That thrills me like thy spirit's sighs;
I hear a voice on every breeze
That makes to mine its low replies—
A voice all low and sweet like thine;
It gives an answer to my prayer,
And brings my soul from heaven a sign
That I will know and meet thee there.

I'll know thee there by that sweet face
Round which a tender halo plays,
Still touched with that expressive grace
That made thee lovely all thy days,
By that sweet smile that o'er it shed
A beauty like the light of even,
Whose soft expression never fled,
Even when its soul had fled to heaven;
I'll know thee by the starry crown
That glitters in thy raven hair;
Oh! by these blessed sights alone
I'll know thee there, I'll know thee there.

For ah! thine eye, within whose sphere
The sweetest youth and beauty met,
That swam in love and softness here,
Must swim in love and softness yet.
For ah! its dark and liquid beams,
Though saddened by a thousand sighs,

Were holier than the light that streams
Down from the gates of Paradise—
Were bright and radiant like the morn,
Yet soft and dewy as the eye,
Too sad for eyes where smiles are born,
Too young for eyes to learn to grieve.

I wonder if this cold, sweet breeze
Hath touched thy lips and fanned thy brow,
For all thy spirit hears and sees Recalls thee to my memory now;
For every hour we breathed apart
Will but increase, if that can be,
The love that fills this lonely heart,
Already filled so full of thee.
Yet many a tear these eyes must weep,
And many a sin must be forgiven,
Ere these pale lips shall sink to sleep,
And you and I shall meet in heaven!

PRIESTHOOD MEETINGS.

THE work that occupies our deepest thought, constant attention and most careful consideration, is one of mutual interest, labor, association and benefit. It has pleased God to so constitute his kingdom that no individual member of it should feel himself independent of the help afforded through the divinely appointed means of "two or three" or many, as the case may be, meeting together in the name or by the authority of Christ, having the object in view of agreeing, as touching one thing, or in other words agreeing upon God's word. The very fact of God's organizing a church upon the earth is conclusive evidence that it is not his will to deal with men abstractly or promiscuously, without order, system or concert of action. Hence I shall never, I trust, allow my spirit to be troubled or my faith to be shaken by sundry claims to divine calling and appointment to prophetic office outside the kingdom or Church of God. The poet said

"God works in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform."

This is true in a modified sense. His works are mysterious only so far as we fail to comprehend them. I do not believe it is the design of God to mystify his work—the result of which would be to mislead rather than to save. The Lord revealed his everlasting, unchangeable gospel, or plan of life and salvation, to Joseph Smith, and as soon as it became expedient or practicable the church was organized. From this date, April 6th, 1830, the authority of God was vested in this body, and no where else.

Paul wrote to Timothy thus: "But if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth."—1 Tim. 3:15.

In Ephesians 4th chapter is an exhortation to unity, and the standard to which we are to look and approach is made clear and definite: "I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, with all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love; endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and and through all, and in you all. But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. * * * And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ: That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive; but speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ: From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love."

I have burdened your patience with this lengthy quotation because it is fitting and full of points. The inspired apostle upon whom rested the "burden of the church" in Asia, addresses these Ephesian brethren, who, like the Roman saints and others, had "obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine" delivered unto them; exhorting them to meekness and forbearance, as a means of preserving the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, assuring them that there is but one body and one Spirit which was in them all, with suitable officers to administer and execute the law, for the perfecting of the Saints in their needful ministrations; with the design of spiritual growth on the part of all. And as a safeguard against crafty men and false doctrine this system was inaugurated. The growth and spiritual condition of this body was not to depend solely upon the faithfulness of one, or a few. The "whole body" was "fitly joined together" and "compacted, [see Webster: To thrust or press together, to league with, adjective, firm, dense, condensed] by that [service] which every joint supplieth." Increase of the body was to be effected by "the edifying of itself in love." It is plain to be seen that the Saints were to receive their strength and comfort by virtue of their association with the mystical body of Christ. Hence for one to say "I will take the word of God for my guide, stay at home and stand alone" is only permissible when it can be proved that the church has been rejected of God. Moreover, this scripture cites the important fact that the ministry are to "feed the flock of God, over which the Holy Ghost had made them overseers," (Acts 20: 28), and to so minister as to preserve the faith and peace of those whom Christ hath purchased with his own blood." Can this be done where inharmony and harsh discord exist? "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment."—1 Cor. 1: 10. How can such a unity be effected? Says one, "I consider myself authorized to preach the word of God as I find it in the books, and if others, or even the whole Church differs from me I can't help it." Indeed! Do you mean by this that your interpretations and applications of scripture are infallible? Please tell us at just what juncture in your experience you arrived at this point, and by what process your superior judgment was effected. Candidly, is there no plan outlined in scripture by which those who accept the word of God as the standard of life, and the end of controversy, may be enabled to "speak the same thing?" In the early history of the Christian Church while Paul and Barnabas were at Antioch, certain men which came down from Judea taught the brethren and said, "Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye can not be saved. When, therefore, Paul and Barnabas had no small dissention and disputation with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain others of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question."—Acts 15. From this we learn that a difference of opinion arose among the brethren, upon the spiritual import of the word of God touching an important question. That these "certain men which came down from Judea," were members of the church, is evident from the fact of their agreeing that "Paul and Barnabas, and certain of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question." It is not to be supposed that because of the difference of opinion existing among them, some believed the word and others did not. It was a misunderstanding on the part of some, as to the application and meaning of the Scriptures, which Paul said were "able to make Timothy wise unto salvation." At that time "Moses and the prophets" constituted their written word, with the possible addition of epistles written by the authorities of the church, similar to the one resulting from the controversy mentioned, and subsequent appeal to a counsel of "the apostles and elders at Jerusalem." There is a nice recognition of church authority in the course pursued by these officials. Doubtless they thought it presumable that superior wisdom resided in the body, and not in themselves as individuals.

Permit me to quote from Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 85, language directed to certain ones of the ministry in the year 1832, but which contains principles and admonitions applicable to the present priesthood of the church.

"Therefore, sanctify yourselves that your minds become single to God, and the days will come that you shall see him: for he will unvail his face unto you, and it shall be in his own time, and in his own way, and according to his own will. Remember the great and last promise which I have made unto you: cast away your idle thoughts and your excess of laughter far from you; tarry ye, tarry ye in this place, and call a solemn assembly, even of those who are the first laborers in this last kingdom; and let those whom they have warned in their traveling, call on the Lord, and ponder the warning in their hearts which they have received, for a little season. Behold, and lo, I will take care of your flocks and will raise up elders and send unto them.

"Behold, I will hasten my work in its time; and I give unto you who are the first laborers in this last kingdom, a commandment, that you assemble yourselves together, and organize yourselves, and prepare yourselves; and sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; that I may testify unto your Father, and your God, and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation, that I may fulfill this promise, this great and last promise, which I have made unto you, when I will.

"Also, I give unto you a commandment, that ye shall continue in prayer and fasting from this time forth. And I give unto you a commandment, that you shall teach one another the doctrine of the kingdom; teach ye diligently and my grace shall attend you, that ye may be instructed more perfectly in theory, in principle, in doctrine, in the law of the gospel, in all things that pertain unto the kingdom of God, that is expedient for you to understand; of things both in heaven, and in earth, and under the earth; things which have been; things which are; things which must shortly come to pass; things which are at home; things which are abroad; the wars and the perplexities of the nations; and the judgments which are on the land; and a knowledge also of countries, and of kingdoms, that ye may be prepared in all things when I shall send you again, to magnify the calling whereunto I have called you, and the mission with which I have commissioned you."

Attention is called to the following facts of paramount interest:

(1) This language is addressed to the "first laborers in this last kingdom." (2) It was the purpose of God that they should "sanctify themselves that their minds might become single to the glory of God," casting away their idle thoughts and excessive laughter. (3) They were commanded to assemble, organize and prepare themselves by prayer, fasting and faithfulness that the Lord might make them clean. (4) One factor in the design of God was that they should "teach one another the doctrine of the kingdom," and they were promised that if they did so diligently, the grace of God should attend them to the intent that they "might be instructed more perfectly in theory, in principle, in doctrine, in the law of the gospel, in all things that pertain to the kingdom of God, that was expedient for them to understand." Also in 1831 the Elders were commanded to assemble that they might agree upon Christ's word.

These facts of history I deem sufficient to show the sanction of God in the appointment of meetings designed by the title of this article, when circumstances suggest a necessity for greater unity among the Elders of the church. The object of primary priesthood meetings, as I understand, is not to determine what is the word of God, but to agree by mutual consultation upon the real import and application of the accepted word to points of doctrine, or church policy, upon which differences of opinion have existed. The authority to pass judgment upon and determine what shall become the standard of faith and rule of action to the body resides only in a general assembly of the church at large. It is my understanding further, that a primary priesthood meeting held with the view to set in judgment upon any portion of the word recognized by the body as authoritative could be justly construed as treason against the church. In view of the high and holy calling of those appointed to "feed the flock of God," I deem it their duty to avail themselves of every God-given means of approximating, and if possible reaching a unity upon points of doctrine and church government. Solomon said "there is nothing new under the sun." The misfortune of some has been the new and wonderful discovery of some obscure or hidden meaning of certain scriptures that no one else is able to understand. Sometimes the church is arraigned in its teachings and practice by original and arbitrary interpretations. A party spirit is created and contention ensues, resulting in a distrust of church officials, and the faith of the Saints is weakened. I would suggest that in case we conceive something entirely original with ourselves, and which we have reason to believe our co-laborers in the work will not heartily endorse, it would be far better to give our newly made theory a good airing in a council of the brethren, than to spread it abroad only to be controverted by some one else. It is a sad mistake to suppose that "the Spirit," of which we may claim an abundance, is authority to justify us in roaming in fields of speculation, seeking to divulge what we ourselves do not understand, or climbing the dizzy heights of vain imagination in an effort to reach beyond the plainly revealed will and word of God. I do not wish to burden the readers of the Herald with a multiplicity of confessions or apologies, but wherein I have overstepped the bounds of wisdom in the past, I desire the charity and forbearance of my brethren and all men.

Jesus said to the people in his day: "If a kingdom be divided against itself, how can that kingdom stand?" Internal diseases are usually most fatal. We have little to fear from worldly opposition compared with the disastrous results of a divided ministry. The holy Spirit is to guide us into all truth, and we have an equal claim upon its divine ministration upon conditions that we are truly humble, speaking the truth in our hearts; but I'll tell you, I am suspicious of influences that prompt and encourage men to ideas of self-sufficiency, or to boast of superior wisdom and knowledge unwarranted in fact,

As citizens of the kingdom of God we hold one common membership, and our rights and privileges are equal so far as relate to membership; nevertheless the house of God being one of order, it became necessary or expedient in the divine economy to confer upon some certain immunities or rather duties, from which others are exempt, that there might be an active controlling power, without which every effort to prosecute the work imposed might be neutralized. In purview of these and other pertinent facts, it becomes the responsible duty of presidents of missions, districts, and branches to exercise a careful, consistent watchcare over the eldership and priesthood in general of these respective limits; and in case there are harmful disputations among them upon points of doctrine, one of the means by which the difficulty may be overcome is by mutual consultation effected by a call of either of the above named officers. The object of an informal council can not be to make law, but to agree upon law—not to pass resolutions binding upon the church or any portion of it, but by an exchange of thought and opinion, arrive at a clear conception of each other's views, and by a careful perusal of the word, be better enabled to fulfill the behest of Paul to "speak the same thing."

Choice blessings are promised in the latter days to those who "bear the vessels of the Lord." Opportunities for ministerial work are rapidly increasing in the broad harvest field. Many are becoming dissatisfied with the conflicting systems of men, and there are those who are looking and longing for the practical, saving truth of the gospel. Then in consideration of our sacred calling as ministers of the word, should we not endeavor to present a united testimony of the truth and power of a restored gospel? Difference of opinion held with a proper deference for the views of others upon minor issues, may be entertained and discussed at proper times without injury to the cause, but for Elders to controvert each other's teaching publicly before the ordinary assemblies of the Saints and the world's people has the effect to lessen in their estimation the counsel of the ministry, to confuse them with reference to the truth and to cast a shadow of doubt and gloom upon the entire membership of the church. I don't say it is wrong for those of greater experience or higher official authority to correct publicly, errors in the public teaching of those under their charge; indeed I deem it to be right, if wisdom so directs. It was authoritatively enjoined upon some of the first Elders of the church to "preach nothing but repentance to this generation." It can not be that God intended in this restriction to confine the priesthood to this one principle as it stands related to the cause of redemption, else it were a violation to teach faith, baptism, laying on of hands, sacrament etc. Then why was such a revelation given by the Lord of glory? Evidently as an admonition to those called to preach the gospel of repentance to confine their efforts to the teaching of such precepts as would best appeal to men, convicting them of sin, and arousing within them a desire to become righteous, and be made clean through the blood of the crucified one. Paul gave instructions to Timothy of a similar character. "Flee also youthful lusts, but follow righteousness, faith, charity, peace with them that call upon the Lord out of a pure heart. But foolish and unlearned questions avoid, knowing that they do gender strifes. And the servant of the Lord must not strive; but be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient; in meekness instructing those that oppose themselves; if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth; and that they may recover themselves out of the snare of the devil, who are taken captive by him at his will." —2 Tim. 2: 22-26.

How tersely and comprehensively is the ministerial calling represented in these few sentences. Instruction suited to Timothy I think is applicable to those of a similar profession now. The points I wish to notice is that the servant of the Lord must not strive, but be gentle. In patience and meekness he is to instruct those that oppose themselves, with the hope that God might give them repentance. The people when properly taught are if saved at all, to "recover themselves out of the snare of the devil." Hence undue urging, over-persuading and coercion are not the God-given means of grace to the poor sinner. Their souls are to be awakened if possible by the love of God through a proper vindication of his truth, then they must act for themselves, foolish and unlearned (unsettled and unprofitable) questions we are to "avoid."

On that wondrous day of pentecost immortalized to the memory of Saints, Peter, one of the Lord's anointed, said in the course of his inspirational discourse, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." O how divine, and with what authority he speaks! The closing of this grand dissertation is an earnest appeal to the people to "save themselves from this untoward generation." Compare this with the blasphemous effort of Mr. Moody to detach from baptism its authority as a saving ordinance. In my judgment there is more virtue in these words of Peter than in volumes of the trashy literature that has flooded the world with ideas of an attenuated, perverted mutilated gospel, associated with thoughts of infidelity and evolution that deny the very existence of God the Creator of all things.

In a sermon preached and published recently the Rev. C. H. Spurgeon of London, England, deals a scathing rebuke to the ministry of the present age. Hear him: "The Sabbath is no longer a day of worship with millions. What continual efforts are made to rob us of the Sabbath day; to degrade it to a common work day, and to make a slave of the workingman. To-day the revelation of God is treated with indifference, or talked of as if it deserved no reverence or credit. Unbelief has sapped the foundations of the social fabric. Worst of all—I must not hold back the charge, many of the avowed ministers of Christ are no ministers of faith at all, but promoters of unbelief. The experience of the unbelief of Germany is being repeated here. Among those who are ordained to be the preachers of the gospel of Christ there are many who preach not faith, but doubt; and hence they are servants of the devil rather than of the Lord. I know I shall stir a hornets' nest by these honest rebukes, but I can not help it. I am burdened and distressed with the state of religion; a pest is in the air; no truth is safe from its withering infection. No signs can be more alarming than the growing infidelity and worldliness which I see among those who call themselves Christians."

This helps to prove the wisdom of the command to declare nothing but repentance to this generation. I submit these thoughts for the charitable consideration of those of more extended experience and greater ability, and to all who may choose to read, with the hope that others will cast into the treasury of thought something that shall further elucidate the subject of unity among the priesthood. Laying no claim to infallibility it would not, I trust, destroy my faith or hope in the gospel to discover that I have only reflected a meager light, and have subjected myself to correction. I may sow crudely, but I strive to sow with a liberal hand, dear readers of Saints' Herald, "such as I have give I unto thee."

A DREAM.

BY JOSEPH F. BURTON.

I WAS in a room of a large house; in the room was a small engine, on one side of which a horizontal bar was fastened, from which three necks protruded, (like the neck of a vise in which the handle is placed). These were different lengths, one being about five inches long, the other four, and the other three, with a small belaying pin through each. The lever which worked the engine was in front of it all, and brother Joseph Smith standing by it. There were three tanks about six feet square, lined inside with white enamel, and though they seemed equal in size, they held unequal quantities. There were three ropes leading from the engine-room to the top of a very large building, which was high up in the air on pillars. From this building material was to be obtained to fill the tanks. I asked brother Joseph how he worked the engine. He said, "We belay one of those ropes from the other or upper building to one of these belaying pins, and with the lever we set it all in motion; and thus connection being made with the top building we get all we want; and although this engine looks small, it can do as much work as the very largest, and is equally as good for little work. And I would have had these tanks filled long ago, but just as I would get ready to fill them, some of the brethren would come in and suggest some plan of their own, and I was so situated I had to listen to them; and you would be amused, as well as saddened if I should tell you their plans. But now they have all tried, and as they have failed I have now got the engine all cleaned except the further end which is very dirty. But it will soon be clean, and then we can get whatever we want."

The engine and room were untidy looking, but brother Joseph was cheerful, and I understood the engine and room would be neat, clean, tidy, and in complete working order very soon, for he would be unhindered in his work.

THE KINGDOM TRANSFERRED.

"THEREFORE say I unto you, the kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof."—Matt. 21: 45.

The above language was used by the Savior to the Jews after speaking to them the parable of the householder, beginning at the 33d verse. I quote from the Inspired Translation, because it throws much additional light upon this parable, without conflicting with the common version. After referring them to Psalm 118: 22, in regard to the stone the builders rejected becoming the head of the corner, he then used the language quoted above, and further says,—“For whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.” Verse 46. In the above translation he explains the parable to his disciples, saying, “I am the stone, and those wicked ones reject me. I am the head of the corner. These Jews shall fall upon me and shall be broken.” Verses 51, 52. He said furthermore, that the kingdom shall be taken from them and given to the Gentiles, and because of this the stone shall fall on them (the Gentiles) in the last days and destroy them, and the vineyard or kingdom again be let to others “Who shall render him the fruits in their season.” This agrees with Jer. 30: 10, and 46: 28, where “a full end” is to be made of the Gentiles in the last days, and the kingdom again be given to Israel. From our first quotation we learn that, the kingdom was still with the Jews; that they were not bringing forth its fruits, that for this reason it was to be taken from them and given to another nation, and that this other nation would bring forth the fruits, which the Jews had ceased to do. This subject should be one of intense interest to us as a Gentile nation; but space will only permit us to give a few outlines of history to show from whence the Jews had fallen, and what the fruits of the kingdom were that they had ceased to produce, hence incurring destruction. Certainly the Gentiles to whom the kingdom was given, will be judged by the same perfect law, by the same just, unchangeable God, and weighed in the same balances.

Over 1,950 years before God had called Abraham, to make of him the great nation of Israel, (Gen. 12: 1, 2), and over 1,500 years before had promised his seed, that if they would obey him and keep his covenant, he would make them a “kingdom of priests, a holy nation.” (Ex. 19: 5, 6.)

Thus we learn, that the first peculiar and precious fruit of that kingdom was an everlasting priesthood, to continue with them to reveal the will of God and bless them forever, if they would only continue faithful to God. Follow them from Egypt to Canaan, and behold the fruits and blessings of that “Royal Priesthood” under Moses, their passing through the sea, smiting “the rock” for water, the manna from heaven, healing of leprosy, deliverance from the bite of serpents by faith,—simply looking upon the brazen serpent—the forty years without their garments waxing old, and then trace them under Joshua who had received this great gift under the hands of Moses; (Deut. 34: 9); the waters of Jordan dividing when the priests entered it with “the ark of God,” and Israel passing over dry shod; Jericho’s walls crumbling at the sound of the rams horns; the sun and moon obeying the voice of God’s priesthood. Indeed, they had blessings and brought forth fruits differing from all other nations. They were all under the same law. Their worship was all the same; one priest officiated for all and taught them all the same things. In their great feasts they all met together, enjoyed themselves as one, having one leader, one prophet, one altar, one church or temple, in which the glory of God shone forth. The order of God amongst them, if adhered to, put an end to all strife and contention, made them see eye to eye, and in fact made them as one man, one heart, and one mind. They brought forth a host of inspired men and women. Their prophets could inquire of God and learn how to overthrow all their enemies. Indeed, they could tell what they were doing in their secret chambers. The angels of God ministered unto them, and fought for them even to the destroying the mighty host of Sennacherib. (See Isa. 37: 36). The sick were healed, the dead were raised, and the poor made to rejoice in God. Such were some of the fruits of God’s kingdom amongst the Israelites. But did they continue in his covenant? Alas! no. David in Psalms, chapter 14 says they were all departed from God. There were “none righteous; no not one.” Paul speaks of the same in Rom. 3: 9–18. In Jer. 31: 32, we learn that they had broken God’s covenant, and were so utterly rejected of God that, for near four hundred years before Christ, God had sent them no prophet. Now, who will not admit that all the blessings referred to were the fruits of the kingdom of God, and that if the Jews had continued to bring forth these fruits that it would never have been said to them, “The kingdom of God shall be taken from you.”

For God would have been with them, his power would have remained with them, and no combination of kingdoms could ever have prevailed against them. But when they ceased to bring forth these fruits, utterly “denying the Lord that bought them,” by killing his servants the prophets whilst standing stoutly for the Scriptures and the former prophets as expounded by their rabbis, lawyers and doctors whom they had put in the place of former prophets, priests and teachers sent by the Lord, and contending for their private interpretation of the Scriptures, thus dividing into a host of factions and sects—as “scribes,” “pharisees,” “sadducees,” &c., instead of accepting the teachings of Christ, of the one faith, one kingdom &c. An inspired man they would not hear—him they would put to death—causing even the Son of God to weep over them, telling them they were “witnesses unto (or against) themselves that they were the children of (or the same as) them that killed the prophets.” “Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers. Ye serpents; ye generation of vipers. How can ye escape the damnation of hell?”—Matt. 23: 32, 33. And for this reason he tells them that he would yet send his inspired servants to them, that they might fill up their cup of iniquity by killing them; that all the righteous blood, from Abel down might come upon that generation. And now we ask of all, How should the Jews have been living in order to have been gathered or accepted by Christ and retained in the kingdom? Who will deny but what they should have had the same faith, organization and blessings, as in the days of old? We have seen that the kingdom was to be taken from the Jews and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof, and we ask, Did the Gentiles, after they received it, bring forth different fruits than formerly? If so, what were their fruits? We have shown that the Jews before their fall brought forth different fruit from all other people—inspired priests, prophets, revelations, healings, miracles, &c. When those ceased, they were rejected of God for not producing the fruits of his Kingdom. Now, what kind of fruit did the Gentile converts produce? “I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ; that in every thing ye are enriched by him in all utterance and all knowledge; even as the testimony of Christ was confined in you; so that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.”—1 Cor. 1: 4-7. Here we learn that the Gentile converts at Corinth come behind in no spiritual gift, hence brought forth all the gifts or fruits that the Jews had done. In 2 Peter 1: 2, 3 we read: “Grace and peace be multiplied unto you, through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him who hath called us to glory and virtue.”

All things pertaining to life and godliness being given them, they came behind in no gift; for spiritual gifts in that age certainly were among the things pertaining to life and godliness. Again; Paul says to the Gentile Saints of Ephesus, “Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings, in heavenly places in Christ.”—Eph. 1: 3. In Rom. 12: 4-8 we learn that they also were blest with all spiritual gifts; and in 1 Cor. 12th chapter, we are told what these gifts or fruits of the kingdom were, the most important of which were those members holding the everlasting priesthood after the order of the Son of God, apostles, prophets, &c.; for Jesus had both “chosen and ordained them,” (John 15: 16), and of course he ordained them to the same priesthood he held himself, for the apostleship is of the “royal priesthood,” Jesus himself being “the Great Apostle and High Priest of our profession.” Heb. 3: 1. And, as his Father sent him, so he sent his apostles, with the same authority to bind on earth, and through this priesthood all spiritual blessings were given.

In Ephesians, chapter 4, we learn of the gifts to the kingdom amongst the Gentiles—or fruits brought forth by the Gentile saints. The Gentiles for a season brought forth the fruits of the kingdom the same as did the Jews at the beginning when the kingdom was first given to them, but which they had ceased in part to bring forth in the time of Christ, and in consequence of which the kingdom was taken from them.

The Gentiles brought forth all the fruits or blessings as set for in 1 Cor. 12th chapter. So with the Israelites at first; they brought forth prophets, priests, revelators, seers, healings, gifts, miracles, &c. Who can not see what “the fruits” of the kingdom were among both Jews and Gentiles? for the fruits described are found nowhere else but in the kingdom of God. How then can either Jew or Gentile claim favor with God without producing the fruits of his vineyard? (See Matt. 21: 33-45).

It matters not what else they may have, how good, how zealous, how sincere. They may give fortunes to convert the heathen; or, as Christ said of the Jews, “Compass sea and land to make one proselyte,” yet if they have not these fruits it is evidence positive they are not in favor with God. For if God took the kingdom from the Jews because they ceased to bring forth these fruits and doomed them to destruction, how can he now acknowledge and save those who are as destitute of these fruits and blessings as were the Jews when he rejected them, and yet be God “without a shadow of turning?” Impossible, unless he is a partial God, and a respecter of persons, and then the favor would surely be on the side of the children of his sworn friend, Abraham. As well think of being saved without the gospel of the kingdom, as without the fruits of that kingdom; for it would be a barren gospel without its fruits.

Paul says in Romans, 11th chapter, that the reason that the Jews ceased to bring forth these fruits and were “broken off,” was because of unbelief. In speaking to the Gentiles to whom the kingdom was then given, and who seem to have been boasting of their good fortune, he says,—“Boast not against the branches; [the Jews]; but if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, [Christ], but the root thee. Thou wilt say then, The branches were broken off that I might be grafted in. Well; because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not high minded, but fear.”

Now what kind of faith should the Jews have had in order to have retained the kingdom? All must admit it should be the same as their faithful fathers had in the beginning; the same as described in Heb., 11th chapter, namely, faith in all the gifts and blessings mentioned under Moses and the prophets, not only that Moses and others had them, but that they too shall have them. Christ tells them that if they had believed Moses they would have believed him. But unbelief in an inspired priesthood like unto Moses', caused them to reject all prophets, all God's servants, as referred to in the parable of the “householder,” and finally when God sent his Son, they cast him also out of the vineyard and slew him.

Professed faith in the Scriptures given by Moses and the prophets whilst denying the necessity of men of like authority in their day, was rank infidelity—unbelief in God—for in these same scriptures was the promise of an everlasting priesthood to receive revelations from God to bless his people, and if they had kept the law of Moses, the priesthood would have remained with them, and they would have been bringing forth the fruits of the kingdom when Christ came, as in the days of old.

And as they were broken off because of this unbelief, and as Paul said to the gentiles, “Thou standest by faith,” what kind of faith must the Gentiles stand by? Surely no one can deny but what it was the faith that would enable them to continue to bring forth the fruits of the kingdom as they did when they first received it, for because the Jews did not continue in this kind of faith they fell, were “broken off,” and lost the kingdom. Continuing to bring forth these fruits from Abraham even to Malachi, 1500 years, did not save them from overthrow when Christ came; and who will say that God will not require as much of the Gentiles as he did of seed of Abraham, in whom all the families of the earth were to be blessed? Will he save them through a faith to-day which utterly denies the existence, or necessity, of such a kingdom as God took from the Jews and gave to the Gentiles? They say there is no need of such a priesthood as “God set in it as it pleased him”—“And God hath set some in the church, [or kingdom], first Apostles, secondarily Prophets, thirdly Teachers,” etc.—1st Cor. 12: 28. They say there is no need of the miracles, gifts of tongues, interpretations, healings, visions, etc., as taught in the same chapter. No need of any of the fruits of the kingdom now as in the times of Abraham, Moses, Joshua, David, or any of the old Testament prophets; no need of such fruits of the kingdom as were brought forth in the first century among the Gentiles, and recorded in the Scriptures for our instruction.

These same Scriptures tell us that although the Jews had brought forth these fruits for over one thousand years, God rejected them because they did not continue to bring them forth. For if they had kept the law and the faith of Moses, all must admit they would have still had the priesthood amongst them, with all its blessings. And in like manner, if the Gentiles had kept the law and faith of the "prophet like unto Moses," [Christ. Acts, 3: 22], they would still have had the royal priesthood among them; for we read concerning them: "But ye are a chosed generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people."—1st Peter 1: 90. Compare this with Ex. 19: 5, 6, and we find the promise of priesthood as great to the Gentiles as to Israel. And the same authority and priesthood at least, that was in the kingdom of Israel, which was the kingdom of God [1st Chron. 29: 23] was surely given to the Gentiles when the same kingdom was given to them; for the priesthood was part of the kingdom. It was to be a kingdom of priests—"And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and a holy nation."—Ex. 19: 6.

The priesthood and kingdom of God are inseperably connected. Just as well speak of our nation, and then deny any authorized officers in it. No kingdom of God can exist without its priesthood, which simply means its authorized officers. As the Jews fell on "the stone," Christ, and were broken because of their unbelief, and the kingdom given to the Gentiles, who brought forth its fruits for a season, and then ceased for the same cause as did the Jews, so in the last days this "stone" will fall on the Gentiles, and grind them to powder, and again the kingdom be given to Israel, as Paul reasons with the Gentiles: "For if God spared not the natural branches [Israel] take heed lest he also spare not thee." "For I would not brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be wise in your own conceit, that blindness [unbelief] in part is happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in, and then all Israel shall be saved, [or have the kingdom restored to them], as it is written: There shall come out of Zion the deliverer and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob. For this is my covenant unto them when I shall take away their sins."—Rom. 11: 21-27.

THE LAW.

WHAT is the use of law if there be no penalty for the transgression thereof?

Any sensible man will admit that civil law without a penalty for its transgression would be the worst kind of a farce. Should it be any less so concerning moral or ecclesiastical law? I think we may safely say that the principal object of every religion that is worthy the name, is to establish and develop within its adherents a feeling of free agency, manhood, and responsibility to God, hence the necessity for our observing all things whatsoever Christ has commanded us.

The tactics of Satan since the days of our first parents have ever been to endeavor to deprive man of his agency. He commences his encroachments by tempting us to presume upon the lenity of God. He whispers to us: "God will not hold you accountable for thus and so; your compliance with such and such portions of the Christian plan of salvation is not essential." Thus he advances step by step until he has convinced us that we may partake of all of the forbidden fruit and we shall not surely die. Is not this where he holds those who esteem themselves the most intelligent Christians of our time. He has convinced them that there is no second death. It reminds me of the old adage:

"Walk into my parlor,
Said the spider to the fly."

Well they have walked in, poor dupes. Shall any of them ever return? Shall we pity? or shall we laugh to see Satan close his meshes about them? They have disobeyed God's plainest commands without fear, where shall they find their hope of escaping God's set penalty.

"The day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."

It seems to me that most fair-minded men and women whether blest with a hope of eternal life or not, must admit that the progress of civilization would be very little if any without it. How is our hope of eternal life to benefit us here if we do not believe in future rewards for righteousness and punishments for transgressions. The hope of a home beyond is the main stay of many thousand weary, disappointed toilers.

I heartily thank God for christianity, and for what it has done, and is doing for humanity. "A good when lost is valued most."

Among the many good things that God has given to man, there is nothing more desirable than a well established christian hope. By faith you may acquire and maintain this hope, by too much doubt and inquiry you may lose it, as has been the case with your humble servant.

Yes, dear readers, my hope is gone. I know you pity me, and your pity is a source of comfort to me; but lest your case should become as bad or worse than my own I would, as a brother, counsel you to be not to clamorous for something more to believe and teach. Methinks I see breakers not far ahead through which you will do well to hold fast what you already have obtained.

END OF THE SOUTH-WESTERN RAILROAD STRIKE.

IN consenting to obey Powderly's agreement with Gould and order the strikers to return to work "Master Workman" Irons stated that he regarded the conclusion as a victory "to some extent." It is not easy to see how Mr. Irons can repeat this comforting assurance to those whom he ordered to strike nearly a month ago. What have the strikers gained, and how has the act benefited the Knights of Labor? The men are returning to their places conscious that they have lost more than three weeks' wages' damaged thousands of their fellow-workmen, and inflicted great injury on the innocent community, while in all other respects they stand now precisely where they were a month ago. Nothing has been gained; much has been lost. It is certain that the strikers who injured railroad property or committed acts of violence will not regain their employment and will be fortunate if they escape long terms in the jails and penitentiaries. This extraordinary strike ends after causing irreparable injury to some, serious loss to all, and benefit to none. The men go back under terms that were open to them a month ago, and under which they had in fact pledged themselves to act in the settlement of all grievances. They agree to return to their places and submit their complaints to Mr. Hoxie, who promises simply to meet any committee representing men actually at work in the employment of the company and to consider candidly any grievances presented.

In order to secure a hearing the men have been forced to abandon the attitude of strikers and resume that of employes. It may be, as some of the Knights claim, that this amounts to "a complete surrender," but the situation was such that it admitted of nothing else. The strike was a blunder from beginning to end, and it seems that toward the close many of the strikers began to realize that they had been misled and grievously wronged by hot-headed, incompetent leaders who had picked a quarrel with the company without cause and followed it up by making demands too preposterous to be granted under any circumstances. Powderly did his best to rectify these blunders, but it was impossible for him to do so without making a surrender of the foolish demands urged by such unreflecting hot-heads as Irons.

As for the great majority of the strikers, it is no doubt true that they simply obeyed the orders of their chiefs, and quit work without any grievance of their own and merely through deference to the commands of leaders who proved incapable of guiding the storm they had provoked, and ended by landing their followers in the ditch. The failure of this causeless strike and the great loss inflicted on all who were parties to it ought to teach the "Knights" the importance of putting only trusty, cool, discreet men at the head of labor unions. Workmen have too much at stake to follow blind, intemperate, incompetent leaders who go off half-cocked.

There was no reason why the discharge of Hall from the employ of the receiver of the bankrupt Texas & Pacific should have affected the men on the Missouri Gould lines. The quarrel was none of theirs, and the alleged personal grievance not one which the managers of the Missouri Pacific could correct. If there was any cause of complaint on the Missouri Pacific it should have been presented to Mr. Hoxie, who is one of the most approachable and genial of railroad managers in the whole Nation, and disposed at all times to treat employes fairly and even generously. In fact, the employes of the Missouri Pacific made an agreement a year ago (and renewed it as late as last August) under which they were bound to present their grievances to Mr. Hoxie and have them considered before inaugurating a strike. Yet the men engaged in a strike without a grievance of their own, waged it in violation of their contract with the company, and finally, as the only means of settling this unprecedented difficulty, demanded that the railroad should treat not with its employes but with the Knights of Labor as representing all the trades unions in the United States and Canada! The local leaders of the strike piled one blunder on another until Powderly, able, adroit, and skillful as he is, was unable to extricate the strikers without making what some of them now call "a complete surrender." The strike inflicted hardship on everybody connected with it, but it may serve a good purpose in proving the necessity of means to prevent reckless, fanatical labor leaders from fanning an insignificant spark into a blaze of social war, and bringing disaster on the general public as well as on thousands of innocent workmen. The hardship which the late unprovoked strike caused the working classes in the Southwest will surely not be soon forgotten.

THE SCIENCE OF SAVING.

A WRITER addresses the following words of wisdom to those whose pockets are made of such materials that money burns a hole in them. He advises them to keep an account of every cent they spend, as putting down in black and white checks extravagance:

They must be put down in detail, and not classed under the general head of "sundries." The item "sundries" is never admitted into well kept household accounts.

It is very difficult to realize fully the value of small sums. If the nickels and dimes that lie loose in the pockets were properly appreciated, there would not be so much pecuniary embarrassment in the world as there is.

"Many a mickle makes a muckle." This is true of nothing more than nickels and dimes.

These little savings, as a rule, must be made in personal expenditure more than in anything else. What is spent over the household is generally needed, but the small personal luxuries which cost so little are not.

When any saving is made in this way, the money should be put aside as saved, instead of being mixed with the spending fund, and additions made to it as often as possible.

This will make you understand as soon as anything what small economies amount to.

When money is set aside to be saved, it should be put in a place where it can not directly be got at. I can not speak too highly of the savings bank for this purpose.

The very fact that a little trouble and formula have to be gone through with before it can be obtained prevents it being spent many a time when it most certainly would be if it were close at hand.

There are two or three ways in which money can be saved. The first is by buying in large quantities. Of course the danger is when there is a stock of things to go to they will be extravagantly used,

All that I can say on this point is that they must be used sparingly. A proper quantity should be portioned out and the rest put away. Then it will be found that articles may be bought both cheaper and better in large quantities than in small ones.

Another way to save expenses is to pay for everything as you get it. If you do this, you avoid overcharge, and will buy for less.

If the money had to be paid at the moment, many an unnecessary purchase would be avoided.

People who have limited incomes are those who can least afford to live on credit; and unfortunately they do it more than any other.

SPIRITUAL GIFTS.

FROM a sister we have the following:

"Dear Brother:—I would like to have you explain, through the Gospel Messenger, the 8th, 9th and 10th verses of the 12th chapter of 1st Corinthians, in reference to spiritual gifts. What time does it relate to in your opinion? Please explain at your earliest convenience, etc."

All we have and enjoy in life are gifts from God, temporal and spiritual, but as such, they are not generally appreciated though much desired. But the gifts here referred to are spiritual ones, and intended for special purposes. The Corinthian brethren shared largely of these gifts, yet they did not fully comprehend the intentions of them. It was this that the apostle wished to teach them, and the same teaching may be instructive to us.

The desire for spiritual gifts was named as a commendable one, not to carry out any selfish purposes on the part of those who received them, but to accomplish a work that could be done in no other way. The great scheme of redemption is a wonderful work, including multitudinous departments. All these departments are to be carried out through human instrumentalities, and that the work may be successfully accomplished, special preparations are needed. These we do not have within ourselves, but receive them as gifts, and these gifts come through the Spirit, and Paul says, "the same Spirit." While the Spirit is the same, the gifts are different, because they are intended for different purposes.

To fill some of the departments of life's work, we have gifts named, "The word of wisdom," "the word of knowledge," "the gift of healing," "the gift of faith," "the working of miracles," "of prophecy," "discerning of spirits," "divers kinds of tongues," and "the interpretation of tongues." All these, and many others that might be named, are given to profit withal. They were given because they were especially needed to introduce and promote the work of redemption as brought about by Christ our Lord.

Now, what our sister, and perhaps many others wish to know, is: Are these gifts still given? In our humble judgment, they are to persons prepared to receive them, and as far as needed to promote the work of human salvation.

As we are creatures that walk by sight and can not have faith without tangible evidences, the gift of miracles was necessary in establishing the truths of the gospel. Through them, those truths have been so fully established that we no more need these tangible evidences. That which was tangible to them, has become tangible to us through responsible witnesses—inspired history.

In the early days of Christianity the gift of tongues was necessary, as is made evident from the Pentecostal meeting described in the Acts.—This same gospel can now be declared to all nation without this special gift—therefore not given.—Wisdom and knowledge are still given. The promise is, that we can have them liberally by asking for them. Many of these gifts are not received because of our lack of faith, and a desire to have them. We do not place ourselves in a position to receive them, and then wonder about the "lost power." There has been no lost power on the part of God and salvation. The loss is on our side. We have lost zeal and faith, and therefore the "wonderful works" necessary to salvation do not follow. The different essential gifts are still ready for us if we are only willing to receive and use them as God's purposes require. To receive these gifts, it is necessary, on our part, to try to know just what we are to do, and have a willingness to do it. The trouble is, we want God to give us gifts to do work that we are not fitted for, and because we can not do this, we Jonah-like, determine to do nothing at all. God has given each one of us ability to do a work that is needful and will be pleasing to Him. To do this, the gift will be given. Let us all feel assured that we have this ability, and then cheerfully desire to do what we can, and we will be astonished to learn how much can be accomplished, even through the weakest instrumentalities. The widow, with her mite, did more real service than those possessing their thousands, just because she exercised the gift that was given her. God measures not by what men have, but by what they do. Occupy, and when the evening comes, it will be well.

THE DARK AGES COME AGAIN.

Fayetteville, Ark., Nov. 28th.—After a lengthy session of more than three weeks, Circuit Court has at length adjourned. Quite a full docket was disposed of, the principal interest being manifested in the test case of the Seventh-day Adventists under the new Sunday law of this State. This denomination, through the labors of several of their ministers, sent here as missionaries from the Northern States, have, within the last eighteen months, succeeded in gaining quite a foothold in Arkansas, having a fine church edifice and strong membership at Springdale, a few miles from here, as well as churches in other parts in the State. They have been from the first apparently an industrious and God-fearing people, the chief difference between them and other Christian bodies being that they observe the seventh day as the Sabbath, according to the commandment. But it seems that sectionalism can not lay down its arms, even when the sacred precincts of religion are entered; so among the first things performed by the Legislature as its session last winter, less than a year after these people had come into the State, was the repeal of the clause which gave them the liberty to keep the day of their choice. This may be a part of the 'reform' connected with the new machine; but if so, it seems to be directed by a very bigoted spirit.

As the law now stands, all parties, irrespective of their religious belief, are compelled to observe the first day of the week as the Christian Sabbath; and under this law three indictments were found against members of the above denomination—one of the cases being that of Elder Scoles, one of their ministers, whose case is to be made the test in the Supreme Court as to the constitutionality of the recent act of the Legislature. It is a little singular that no one else has been troubled on account of the law, with perhaps one minor exception, while members of the above denomination are being arrested over the whole State. It savors just a trifle of the religious persecution which characterized the dark ages. A minister of the gospel pleading in a court of justice with the open Bible in his hand for the liberty to keep God's commands is a strange sight in this country; but, according to the rulings of the court in this case, a man has no rights of conscience outside of the dictation of law. If this be the case, and if our lawmakers are to control the religious opinions of their constituents, there is no telling what we may yet see in the way of enforcing their peculiar creeds and dogmas. Much interest is manifested here over this matter, and a decision from the higher court is anxiously looked for.—Globe-Democrat.

LATTER DAY SAINTS.

A CONFERENCE OF THE FAITHFUL IN SESSION AT MT. EDEN CHURCH, IN GREENVILLE TOWNSHIP, TO ADVANCE THE CAUSE.

MT. EDEN church of the Latter Day Saints is in Greenville township, Floyd county, near the little town of Scottsville, and not in Clark county, near New Providence, as has several times recently been stated in sensational articles published in the Louisville and Jeffersonville newspapers—articles, by the way, that have been replete with erroneous statements in relation to the tenets and religious methods of these people. To hear one of the preachers of this faith expound his doctrine without a knowledge that he was a Latter Day Saint evangelist, one would suppose himself listening to a Methodist or Baptist sermon. It is not the method of these evangelists to expound the real doctrines of their faith from the pulpit, the indoctrinating process being one of private conversation instead of public exposition. There is great zeal manifested by these evangelists, and their addresses are usually in the form of earnest, stirring exhortation, much after the primitive Methodist and Baptist style. The secrets of the faith are secretly imparted and only in conference assemblies of the professors of the faith or in private conversation.

Just now there is in progress at Mt. Eden church an aggressive movement of the leaders of the church at large. They are holding a great conference, which is being attended by the preachers and leading members from all parts of Indiana—several of the ablest preachers of the Latter Day Saints being in attendance. There are delegations from Ripley, Harrison, Crawford and other Southern Indiana counties present, and much zeal is manifested in the public meetings and business deliberations.

The prime object of this conference at Mt. Eden church is to reorganize the work for the advancement of the cause of the Latter Day Saints in this part of Indiana. The purpose is to make the church more aggressive by placing in the field its ablest evangelists; and the avowal is openly made that their faith is to be pushed more boldly hereafter than heretofore; new churches organized, old ones strengthened and the zeal of believers fired.

The Latter Day Saints hold to the Book of Mormon, but exclude polygamy from their tenets. They are believers in the doctrines of young Joseph Smith and repudiate the polygamic doctrines of Brigham Young. They believe Joseph Smith, the founder of the faith, received revelations from God; they hold to the doctrine of healing diseases by anointing, laying on of hands and faith; they are advocates of baptism by immersion; lay great stress upon prayer and faith for the supply of all wants, temporal as well as spiritual, but for temporal supplies hold that a man must put forth the effort of labor with his prayer, leaving the answer with God, who they maintain is pledged to supply whatever his believing children require.

The conference will continue in session for several days, and the faithful look forward for grand results to be accomplished in southern Indiana through its agency.

Albany (Ind.) Ledger.

[We thank the Ledger for rebuking those papers which have published so many "erroneous statements" in regard to the Saints in that region, and we trust it will permit us to correct its statement that "The secrets of the faith are secretly imparted and only in conference assemblies of the professors of the faith or in private conversation." The facts are, the church has no doctrines which may not be publicly taught. But "there is a time for everything under the sun," and common sense would dictate that the Latter Day Saints should teach the principles of their faith in due season—everything in its place. But there are no secret doctrines in the church, nor duplicity in teaching.—Ed.]

DANCING.

The Christian Advocate having been asked for advice as to dancing, replies: "Those of you who are Christians can not dance without breaking the solemn vow you made at the altar, in the presence of God, and his angels, and the Church, to renounce the devil, and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world. And surely that which has ruined thousands, soul and body, is of the devil. If there is any amusement which is essentially worldly, it is the dance. Holy, consecrated, Christian ministers; faithful, devoted Christian workers, never dance. This is the favorite amusement of the wicked and the world. And many and many a man and woman can trace their downfall to the day when they first indulged in the dance. So, if you are not a Christian, if no vow restrains you, let the desire to be pure and true keep you from this evil. If you could hear the remarks made by some of the young men who invite you to dance, after it is over, you would indignantly refuse ever to let their arms encircle you again."

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Miscellaneous.

KENT AND ELGIN.

At the last conference of the above district Bro. James Robb resigned as Bishop's Agent, and I was recommended to the Bishop for appointment from the Bishop, and soon after received the books, &c., from Bro. Robb. As some do not seem to rightly understand the matter and have sent money to Bro. Robb, thereby causing him trouble and expense, please take notice and send it to me in the future. Those holding branch finance books will carefully observe the instructions in them, also try to secure what means they can for the Master's cause, and send the same to me according to instructions.

RICHARD COBURN,

Bishop's Agent.

BLENHEIM, Ontario, March 30th, 1886.

THANKS.

I wish to thank the ladies of the Mite Society of Lamoni, through the columns of the Herald, for the Music Stand they presented me as a token of the appreciation of my assistance in the concert given March 19th. I feel honored to know that my services as a conductor of the concert were so highly appreciated.

J. W. OCKERMAN.

OUT OF TRUE RESPECT.

WHEREAS, our highly esteemed brother, Thos. France and family are intending to leave us as a branch, and go to Lamoni, Iowa, to make it their future home, regretting as we do to part with such true, honest souls who have in the past twenty-one years not only helped to build up our little branch, but with untiring feelings of Christian love, cheerfully toiled, spiritually and temporally to keep it in true gospel running order: Therefore, be it resolved, that we as a branch, on their departure, tender them our heart-felt and sincere thanks, and for their future prosperity the best of wishes. Carried by a unanimous vote.

R. HOLT, Pres.,

J. D. JONES, Sec.

KEWANEE, Ills., March 28th, 1886.

DIED.

Washingtonville, lately organized, 20; 13 baptized, 7 received by letter. Blakes Mills 14; 1 expelled. Lampsville 24. Official Reports.—Apostle W. H. Kelley; High Priest M. H. Forscutt (baptized 13); G. T. Griffith of the Seventy, organized a branch at Washingtonville of 20. (baptized 23). Elders Ephraim Thomas, Jacob Reese (baptized 7), James Brown, Wm. H. Garrett, David J. Jones, in person. Report of committee on boundary line of the Pittsburg District is as follows: We hereby suggest the following counties to comprise said district.—Erie, Crawford, Mercer, Venango, Lawrence, Butler, Beaver, Allegheny, Washington and Green counties of Pennsylvania, with Marshall, Hancock and Brook counties of West Virginia, and Belmont, Guernsey, Jefferson, Harrison, Tuscarawas, Carroll, Columbiana, Mahoning, Stark, Portage, Trumbull, Ashtabula, Geauga, and Lake counties of Ohio. Josiah Ells, deceased, being one of the committee, assisted in laying out the boundary line. Frank Criley, in behalf of committee. On motion the report was accepted and committee discharged. Resolved: That the report of the committee be adopted, and the district as described shall be the Pittsburg and Kirtland District. Frank Criley, Bishop's Agent, reported.—Receipts $410 75, expenditures $369 58; balance on hand $41.17. Wheeling City Branch recommended R. S. Salyards to district conference for ordination to the office of an Elder, which was so ordered. Resolved; That this conference appoint a committee consisting of W. H. Kelley, G. T. Griffiths and F. Criley, to draw up an article in memory of Bro. Josiah Ells, which is as follows.—Whereas our beloved brother and faithful laborer in the gospel, Elder Josiah Ells, has lately deceased and his place among us is made vacant; Therefore, in order to express our desire to keep in memory his name and virtues, and appreciate his great service to the cause of Christ while living; Resolved, That while we greatly mourn the loss of our esteemed brother, Josiah Ells, and miss his presence, he having so long stood as one of strength and a wise counselor among us, and while we feel to be resigned to the will of our heavenly Father in taking him from our midst, believing that He doeth all things well; yet we do earnestly and feelingly deplore and mourn his loss to us and the great latter day cause of Christ which he loved pre-eminently and devoted his life and energies to maintain. That we appreciate his long, consistent and eminent service to the church of his choice, which he so cheerfully served. That while called upon, as others, to meet the inevitable, we rejoice that his faith did not falter and his hope was constant, and, at the time of the extreme trial was stronger than death; in that he was assured and made confident to the last of passing to his reward into the hand of a loving Father, whom he had striven to serve, to a tangible conscious continuance in the spirit realms of rest, though the earth-life was dissolved until the Lord would come with his Saints. That we strive to emulate his many virtues and worthy examples as a citizen and neighbor, brother and father; Elder in the church, and Apostle of Christ, to whom was committed one of the highest and most sacred charges that the Lord has committed to his people, and which he carefully guarded and honored and that we do cherish his memory as our friend, one faithful to trust, diligent in service, and worthy our esteem. G. T. Griffiths, Frank Criley and W. H. Kelley committee. Resolved, That the time and place of next district conference be left to the district president. Resolved, That the district secretary confer with E. L. Kelley and get the names of the members in Kirtland and thereabouts. Resolved, That Wm. H. Kelley, G. T. Griffiths and E. L. Kelley be appointed delegates to General Conference, and that they sustain the Quorum of the Twelve in the position and resolution drawn up by them and reported to the Stewartsville General Conference assembled. Resolved, That General Conference be petitioned to return our worthy president, G. T. Griffiths to this district. Resolved, That G. T. Griffiths be sustained as president of the district for another term. F. J. Reese secretary, A. M. Teagarden assistant, F. Criley Bishop's Agent, were sustained. Resolved, That we sustain M. H. Forscutt in his labors here, and that we appreciate them. Resolved, That we as a district of the church, sustain W. H. Kelley as president of this mission by our faith and prayers. Resolved, That we sustain the general authorities of the church. Resolved, That the presidents of the branches in the district open up subscription lists to the members, to contribute means to erect a tomb-stone to be placed on the grave of Bro. Ells. Sunday, January 31st. Elder Jacob Reese was continued in his mission at Mansfield, Pa. Preaching at 10: 30 a. m. by W. H. Kelley. After morning services the ordinance of baptism was administered to six by G. T. Griffiths. Saints held social meeting at two p. m., W. H. Kelley and G. T. Griffiths in charge. Preaching at 7: 30 p. m. by M. H. Forscutt. Conference adjourned as per resolution.

PHILADELPHIA.

This district conference convened on Saturday evening, February 27th, 1886, at the house of Bro. Jacob Peters, 1739 North Ninth street, Philadelphia, Bro. Wm. H. Kelley presiding, with the president of the district, Bro. Hiram Robinson, as associate, and H. H. Bacon secretary. The following branches reported: Philadelphia 52; 1 received by letter, 2 died. New Park 16. Brooklyn 34; 1 expelled. The following Elders were present: Asa Copeland, Sr., John Stone, Wm. Small, Joseph A. Stewart, and Hiram Robinson. Elders Joseph Squire and George Potts reported by letter. Priests H. H. Bacon and W. H. Harrison, also Teachers A. Cameron and Jacob Peters reported in person. Bishop's Agent, A. Cameron, reported: Balance due church March 1st, 1885, $346.73; tithing and offerings to date $66.75; total $413.48; paid the Bishop and Elders $411; balance due church $2.48. The report was referred to an auditing committee who reported the above correct. District treasurer, Jacob Peters, reported: Received as collections $4.45; paid to president of district $4.45. On motion, the district treasurer was discontinued. Bro. Hiram Robinson reported the result of the committee on Hornerstown Branch and was discharged. Bro. Cameron brought up the question of the right to preside in the branch. After statements by the brethren the chairman decided that the highest branch officer may preside. Sunday morning, February 28th, conference reassembled at 10:30 a. m., in the hall on south-west corner Eleventh and Girard avenue. Bro. Kelley in the chair. After preliminary business, Bro. W. H. Kelley, Joseph A. Stewart, and Hiram Robinson were appointed delegates to the General Conference. Bro. Copeland asked if that was a regularly organized branch which had no presiding Elder; also referred to difficulties that might arise in administering of some of the ordinances in such branch. Bro. Kelley replied that it was a regular, but not a complete organization, and said it was not wise to appoint an Elder to meet an emergency. He then made some remarks on the 17th section of the Book of Covenants, showing that a branch has the right to elect whom they will to preside. Bro. Robinson spoke on the same subject. On motion the delegates to General Conference were instructed to request the appointment of Bro. W. H. Kelley to the Eastern Mission. Resolved, That we sustain all the authorities of the church in righteousness. Bro. Kelley, being taken quite ill, was not able to meet with us in the evening. Bro. Hiram Robinson occupied the stand. Bro. Hiram Robinson was sustained as president, and Hosea H. Bacon as secretary. Adjourned to meet in Philadelphia the fourth Saturday evening in August, 1886.

HEALTH OF WOMEN.—An old doctor says: "Women do not eat, drink, or dress with reason. They nibble. Their stomachs are always at work. By this constant eating a rational appetite is spoiled; of course they fall into dyspepsia. Then they have no adequate exercise, they loll. Their brains and muscles become sluggish. The need of American women is not dress and medicine, but outdoor exercise and muscular employment in the house.

THE late Sir Moses Montefiore, whose liberality was so constantly manifest through his long life, according to a rabbi who well knew him had frequently on his lips during the day, and in his dreams during the night, the words of Melchizedek: "The most high God, the possessor of heaven and earth, he is the possessor of all." He had the words "Possessor of all" engraved in Hebrew on a ring, which, like a signet, he wore on his finger.

FAIR DEALING INJURES NO ONE.

THOU SHALT NOT BEAR FALSE WITNESS.

THE controversy that is being urged between the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and the church in Utah is of such a nature that neither party can afford to resort to downright lying to foster and care for its own side of the case. Whoever may do this is sure to be discovered, soon or late, and sure exposure and loss must ensue.

Mr. Littlefield is very solicitous that the son of the Martyr should "go before the Lord" that he might be set right on this grave question. Now be it known to Mr. Littlefield that the son of the Martyr did go before the Lord in regard to this matter and was directed to oppose the doctrine and practice of polygamy, plural marriage or patriarchal marriage, just whichever of these names Mr. Littlefield may choose to employ. We are not now fearful to meet the father who has preceded us beyond the veil.

EXTRACT FROM "UTAH JOURNAL."

"EDITOR JOURNAL:—The following brief extract is taken from The Saints' Herald of the 29th instant:

"We find an article in the Daily Inter Ocean of the 2d instant, written by Bro. Thomas W. Smith and covering about two and a half columns of that paper, in which the writer dissects and refutes 'twin relic' in a masterly manner."

"If misstatements, false assertions, and a long string of words—devoid of truth or good argument, and the whole jumbled together with a reckless and false spirit—are capable of refuting the 'twin relic,' then indeed are the days of that doctrine numbered. It is a surprise that the Chicago Inter Ocean would admit such a mass of twaddle into its columns; it can only be accounted for because of its antagonism to the Mormon church.

"It is not my purpose to follow this writer through all the superabundant verbiage which makes up his epistle. There is but one point upon which I feel to condescend to offer exceptions. I certainly can not stoop to notice the general flow of ribaldry and balderdash that run through his entire article.

"During the present embittered state of our unhappy country, anything and everything defamatory of the Mormons of Utah is scooped into the public prints, and read and believed by thousands, while the truth is ignored and real facts are discarded. At such a time—when the voice of reason is stifled, and when justice is being crushed beneath the iron heel of majorities which are augmented by the animadversions of sectarian aggressions—I certainly need not hope to be heard through the broad and excited arena. But by the few honest hearted who love truth I may be heard, and with such hearing, shall be content."

It would be far more consistent and in harmony with common prudence and good sense, if Mr. Littlefield had taken the article of Bro. T. W. Smith up item by item and shown wherein the parts were faulty in statement and argument, than it was to dispose of the whole as he has by a "pish, and a pshaw;" "misstatements," "false assertions," and "a long string of words devoid of truth or argument." Who are the "honest hearted who love truth" by whom Mr. Littlefield will be heard? We shall see.

REFERENCE TO T. W. SMITH'S ARTICLE.

"My chief aim, in this article, is to disprove the clamor of the writer, who dates from Papeete, Tahiti, and sets forth, in his rattling style, that plural marriage was not taught or practiced by Joseph Smith, the Prophet, now deceased. And I realize, while doing this, I may be disabusing the minds of some of the adherents of Joseph Smith, of Lamoni, very many of whom have in possession some of the evidences now to be presented. But, by the gentleman just named those testimonies were set aside with a dash of nonchalance that would very well have comported with the common practice of an attorney when trying to rule conclusive evidence out of court."

Mr. Littlefield's evidences by which he attempts to "disprove" Bro. T. W. Smith's "clamor," are what would be styled in court, if allowed to go before a jury at all of very doubtful character. It is not the trick of an "attorney" to "rule conclusive evidence out of court," that hurts Mr. Littlefield and his mates; but it is the refusal of sensible men to be concluded by evidence vague, second hand, unreliable, and unsatisfactory.

A FUTILE EFFORT.

"Now I offer additional proofs to those given in the Littlefield-Smith correspondence. In doing so I am but discharging a common duty. Mr. Smith, of Lamoni, and Mr. Smith, of Tahiti, may continue obdurate and unyielding, but many besides them will read what I have now to offer, and in their hearts and convictions a work, in time, may be wrought to bring them to understand what are the real facts as to the belief and practices of Joseph Smith, the martyr, with reference to celestial marriage."

Mr. Littlefield proposes to offer additional proofs to what he gave in the Littlefield-Smith correspondence. As to what these alleged proofs may do in minds before which no examination of them may be made and no refutation of what is untrue in them be presented, we may not state; but we are quite as confident that sooner, or later the "true inwardness" of this whole polygamic, plural wife, celestial marriage history and philosophy, will be made apparent. At present, there is but little opportunity for us to get the views we hold into the hands, and thence into the brains of thousands whom Mr. Littlefield and others are interested in keeping in the dark.

Mr. Smith of Lamoni, and Mr. Smith of Tahiti may possibly be "obdurate;" and they certainly will remain "unyielding" so far as an acceptance of the celestial marriage theory and practice of Utah Mormonism are concerned. They may, also, be unyielding as to the part that Mr. Littlefield claims that the Seer had in the introduction of plural marriage; unless other and quite different evidences shall be forthcoming than have yet been offered.

Whatever may now be offered by Mr. Littlefield on behalf of himself and others in regard to Joseph Smith's connection with plural marriage, the controversy has gone far enough to warrant the conclusion that if Joseph Smith did teach that a man (whether holding a peculiar priesthood or not) might have more than one woman as a wife at the same time, in the flesh, such teaching was in proposed absolute secrecy and known to very few. It is further warranted that if he did so teach, he did it in direct contravention of revelations received from God and accepted as such by the church and publicly published in solemn conclave as such; and placed on record in the public journals of the day, both church publications, histories, and the secular print. It is also on record that both Joseph and Hyrum Smith publicly denounced the doctrine of polygamy as being "false and corrupt."

If Joseph Smith, himself, had any other woman than Emma Hale, the mother of Mr. Smith, of Lamoni, as a wife he did so in violation of the published and accepted law of God to the church, and in defiance of the law of the state of Illinois, "the law of the land" where he and the church then were. If he did so have other wife, or wives it was done in secrecy, and kept or sought to be kept from the knowledge of his neighbors, the church and the world. Why will not Mr. Littlefield, John Taylor, George Q. Cannon and all others of the polygamic defenders see this, and know that no amount of secret, round about testimony will stand before the open attacks of such men as Mr. Smith, of Tahiti.

INSUFFICIENT PROOF.

"The proofs immediately at hand are as follows:

"In the History of Joseph Smith, under date of October 5th, 1843, can be found the following:

"Gave instructions to try those persons who were preaching, teaching or practicing the doctrine of plurality of wives; for according to the law I hold the keys of this power in the last days; for there is never but one on earth at a time on whom the power and its keys are conferred; and I have constantly said that no man shall have but one wife at a time unless the Lord directs otherwise."

"From the foregoing it is evident that the principle of plurality of wives was more or less understood in the church at that time. Joseph said he "held the keys of this power." What power? The power to give men plurality of wives, which is plainly shown by the words with which the sentence closes: 'I have constantly said that no man shall have but one wife at a time unless the Lord directs otherwise.' Here provision is made for the Lord directing otherwise, which He did in the case of Joseph himself, and many of his brethren. You have been hunting for ignorance and have found it. There is never any difficulty in doing that. Millions of people can always be found who are entirely ignorant of any matter under consideration, whatever it may be. But I am prepared to supply you with the affidavits of scores who resided in Nauvoo, who were not ignorant of this principle.—Littlefield-Smith Correspondence."

Mr. Littlefield's first additional proof is old, one that he had already given in his letters to Joseph Smith of Lamoni. But what a comment on the rule of construing evidence.

"Understood;" misunderstood is more like the word Mr. Littlefield should have written. And by whom was it so understood. Mr. Littlefield here makes the prophet to state that he gave instruction to try "those persons who were preaching, teaching, or practicing plurality of wives." To whom was this instruction given? And who were these persons? This is said to have occurred on October 5th, 1843, long after the date on which it is alleged that Joseph Smith was himself a pluralist. Was he one of the men to be so tried? And what were they to be tried for? "Preaching, teaching, or practicing" what Mr. Littlefield claims was a meritorious thing to do, and which he says Joseph Smith was himself doing "teaching" and "preaching." It is hardly possible for a man in reasonably good health to think of the absurd position which this alleged bit of history from Joseph Smith's private diary, and the claim made for it that it proves Joseph Smith's connection with plural marriage by act, places either Joseph Smith or L. O. Littlefield in, without making him laugh. The idea that Joseph Smith, himself engaged in teaching and practicing a plurality of wives, should instruct somebody, (who it must be supposed had authority to do it), to arraign and try "persons who were teaching and practicing the doctrine of plurality of wives;" and then cause an entry to be made in his diary for such solemn owls of wisdom as L. O. Littlefield and others, to quote and mouth as evidence that he was himself guilty, is a very absurd one.

Does Mr. Littlefield know to whom such instruction was given? Does he know whether the man, or men, so instructed carried out the order, or attempted to carry it out? And if they did so attempt to carry out the instruction whether they were prevented and by what, or whom? Wm. Marks, then President of the stake at Nauvoo and the High Council states that Joseph Smith gave him such instruction; and stated that he would go on the stand and proclaim against the doctrine and those practicing it. He further states that Joseph Smith charged him to go into the High Council and that he (Joseph) would prefer charges against those persons and then he (Marks) was to "sever them from the church" if found guilty.

It is not reasonable to suppose Joseph Smith to have been either so stupid, or so knavish as to have given such instruction seriously and be one of those in guilt.

Can any man whose mental and moral vision are not befogged by the mysteries of plural marriage, read the so-called extract from Joseph Smith's history and in considering the claim made for it, accept it as conclusive that Joseph Smith was one of the persons against whom proceedings must be instituted if his instructions were obeyed. Besides this this bit of history is from the diary of Joseph Smith, if from any where, which diary was kept from the possession of the wife and family of Joseph Smith, his legal representations under the law, by Brigham Young and his associates; and who under such circumstances, will vouch for the correctness of the entry; whether this is all, or part of the entry then made? We dislike to think, or believe evil of any, but the advocates of plural marriage have so frequently and so persistently charged upon us wilful blindness, personal obduracy and lack of honest intent and purpose in regard to the position we have taken with reference to polygamy, because we would not accept insufficient evidence and keep still, that we are forced to refuse to give credit to anything alleged by them without good reasons for accepting.

In Mr. Littlefield's comment on this extract he loses sight of the main point in the diary entry, that of ordering the arraignment and trial of offenders for "teaching and practicing" what was clearly contrary to the law and rule of the church, and picks up a glittering generality which may, or may not have the reference Mr. Littlefield gives it, by skilfully throwing in a question "What power?" and then dove-tailing in a statement as glaring as it may be fraudulent; "The power to give men plurality of wives." The closing words "unless the Lord directs otherwise;" Mr. Littlefield construes into a statement that the Lord had already directed Joseph Smith and some others that they might so have more than one. But the word "unless," conveys a different meaning from this. It conveys the idea clearly and without mistake that up to that time no such command had come; and taken with the other portion of the diary entry which asserts that instruction had been given to arraign and "try those" who were "preaching, teaching, or practicing the doctrine of plurality of wives," it warrants the conclusion that up to that time the word of the Lord to the prophet had been "no man shall have but one wife at a time unless the Lord directs otherwise."

From these considerations nothing more ought in right to be claimed for this reputed quotation from Joseph Smith's history, than that by some means it had come to the ears of the Seer that some were teaching and practicing unlawful marriage. This he saw would eventuate in great wrong and he set about preventing that wrong; in doing so he gave instruction to the president of the High Council, William Marks, who was also president of the Stake, to present charges against those men that they might be dealt with according to their transgression, and the laws of marriage given of God to the church be honored. When he had done this he had the entry made in his daily journal, if this quotation is correctly made. The stress which Mr. Littlefield places upon this small bit of history shows what flimsy straws these drowning polygamists are grasping at.

Mr. Littlefield states that we "have been hunting for ignorance and have found it." It will be fortunate for Mr. Littlefield at the end of the race, if it shall be discovered that it is only ignorance in him that causes him to so distort and twist language otherwise plain; but we believe that we have found that Mr. L. O. Littlefield is not only ignorant, but that he has made statements totally devoid of truth, for which he can make no satisfactory excuse in the great day.

LETTER FROM MERCY R. THOMPSON.

"SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 5th, 1886.

MR. JOSEPH SMITH, Lamoni, Iowa;

Dear Sir:—After having asked my Father in heaven to aid me, I sit down to write a few lines as dictated by the Holy Spirit.

"After reading the correspondence between you and L. O. Littlefield, I concluded it was the duty of some one to bear a testimony which could not be disputed. Finding from your letters to Littlefield that no one of your father's friends had performed this duty while you were here, now I will begin at once and tell you my experience.

"My beloved husband, R. B. Thompson, your father's private secretary to the end of his mortal life, died August 27th, 1841, (I presume you will remember him). Nearly two years after his death your father told me that my husband had appeared to him several times, telling him that he did not wish me to request your uncle Hyrum to have me sealed to him for time. Hyrum communicated this to his wife (my sister) who, by request, opened the subject to me, when everything within me rose in opposition to such a step, but when your father called and explained the subject to me, I dared not refuse to obey the counsel, lest peradventure I should be found fighting against God; and especially when he told me the last time my husband appeared to him he came with such power that it made him tremble. He then enquired of the Lord what he should do; the answer was, 'Go and do as my servant hath required.' He then took all opportunity of communicating this to your uncle Hyrum who told me that the Holy Spirit rested upon him from the crown of his head to the soles of his feet. The time was appointed, with the consent of all parties, and your father sealed me to your uncle Hyrum for time, in my sister's room, with a covenant to deliver me up in the morning of the resurrection to Robert Blaskel Thompson, with whatever offspring should be the result of that union, at the same time counseling your uncle to build a room for me and move me over as soon as convenient, which he did, and I remained there as a wife the same as my sister to the day of his death. All this I am ready to testify to in the presence of God, angels and men.

"Now I assure you I have not been prompted or dictated by any mortal being in writing to you; neither does a living soul know it but my invalid daughter.

"God bless you, is the sincere prayer of your true friend.

"MERCY R. THOMPSON.

"P. S.—If you feel disposed to ask me any questions, I will be pleased to answer concerning blessings which I received under the hands of your late mother by the dictation of your father.—M. R. T., in Deseret News."

Mrs. Mercy R. Thompson carefully signs her name Thompson instead of Smith. We are thankful for that much any way. What she says in this letter is a curious medley, if correctly printed. Notice, she says that her husband told Joseph that he "did not wish" her to request to be sealed to Hyrum for time. Truth is sometimes told by accident, and it may be so in this instance.

But suppose that the statement is correct that Mrs. Thompson was so sealed, the date and manner of ceremony are not given; and if she lived afterward as a wife to Hyrum Smith, both he and she were transgressors against both the law of the land and the law of God. There can be no question about this.

"SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 31st, 1886.

"A. M. MÜSSER; Dear Brother:—Having noticed in the Deseret News an enquiry for testimony concerning the revelation on plural marriage, and having read the testimony of Brother Grover, it came to my mind that perhaps it would be right for me to add my testimony to his on the subject of Bro. Hyrum reading it to the High Council. I well remember the circumstance. I remember he told me he had read it to the brethren in his office. He put it into my hands and left it with me for several days. I had been sealed to him by Brother Joseph a few weeks previously, and was well acquainted with almost every member of the High Council, and know Brother Grover's testimony to be correct. Now if this testimony would be of any use to such as are weak in the faith or tempted to doubt, I should be very thankful. Please make use of this in any way you think best, as well as the copy of the letter addressed to Joseph Smith, at Lamoni. Your sister in the gospel,

"MERCY R. THOMPSON."

This purports to be an extract from a letter to A. Milton Musser, who has served a term in the Penitentiary for infringing the law of the United States regarding polygamy, which letter was published in the Deseret News for January 19th, 1886.

The testimony of Mrs. Thompson in respect to the reading of the revelation is secondary and not admissible.

AFFIDAVIT OF DAVID FULLMER.

"TERRITORY OF UTAH, { ss.
"County of Salt Lake }

"Be it remembered on this fifteenth day of June, A. D., 1869, personally appeared before me, James Jack, a Notary Public in and for said county, David Fullmer, who was by me sworn in due form of law, and upon his oath saith, that on or about the twelfth day of August, A. D. 1843, while in meeting with the High Council, (he being a member thereof), in Hyrum Smith's brick office, in the city of Nauvoo, county of Hancock, state of Illinois, Dunbar Wilson made enquiry in relation to the subject of a plurality of wives, as there were rumors about, respecting it, and he was satisfied there was something in those remarks, and he wanted to know what it was, upon which Hyrum Smith stepped across the road to his residence, and soon returned bringing with him a copy of the revelation on celestial marriage given to Joseph Smith, July 12, A. D. 1843, and read the same to the High Council, and bore testimony to its truth. The said David Fullmer further said that, to the best of his memory and belief, the following named persons were present: Wm. Marks, Austin A. Cowles, Samuel Bent, Geo. W. Harris, Dunbar Wilson, Wm. Huntington, Levi Jackman, Aaron Johnson, Thomas Grover, David Fullmer, Phinehas Richards, James Allred, and Leonard Soby. And the said David Fullmer further saith that Wm. Marks, Austin A. Cowles and Leonard Soby were the only persons present who did not receive the testimony of Hyrum Smith, and that all the others did receive it from the teaching and testimony of the said Hyrum Smith. And further, that the copy of said Revelation on Celestial Marriage, published in the Deseret News extra of September fourteenth, A. D., 1852, is a true copy of the same.

DAVID FULLMER.

Subscribed and sworn to by the said David Fullmer the day and year first above written.

JAMES JACK, Notary Public.

This affidavit of David Fullmer is not new. It will be seen that Mr. Fullmer states that the occasion of the reading of the revelation August 12th, 1843, was an inquiry started by one Dunbar Wilson, that upon inquiry Hyrum Smith stepped across the road and returned with a copy of the revelation, and read it, and bore testimony of its truth. He gives the names of Wm. Marks, A. Cowles, Samuel Bent, G. W. Harris, Dunbar Wilson, Wm. Huntington, Levi Jackman, Aaron Johnson, Thomas Grover, David Fullmer, Phinehas Richards, James Alred and Leonard Soby; of these Wm. Marks, A. Cowles and Leonard Soby, did not accept the testimony of Hyrum Smith, or the revelation. Mr. Fullmer does not say that Joseph Smith was present, or that the revelation was presented for action on the part of that Council by Joseph the Seer.

"EXTRACT FROM THOMAS GROVER'S LETTER.

"The High Council of Nauvoo was called together by the Prophet Joseph Smith, to know whether they would accept the revelation on celestial marriage or not.

"The Presidency of the Stake, Wm. Marks, Father Coles and the late Apostle Charles C. Rich, were there present. The following are the names of the High Council that were present, in their order, viz: Samuel Bent, William Huntington, Alpheus Cutler, Thomas Grover, Lewis D. Wilson, David Fullmer, Aaron Johnson, Newel Knight, Leonard Sobe, Isaac Allred, Henry G. Sherwood and, I think, Samuel Smith.

"Bro. Hyrum Smith was called upon to read the revelation. He did so, and after the reading said: "Now, you that believe this revelation and go forth and obey the same shall be saved, and you that reject it shall be damned."

"We saw this prediction verified in less than one week. Of the Presidency of the Stake, William Marks and Father Coles rejected the revelation; of the Council that were present Leonard Sobe rejected it. From that time forward there was a very strong division in the High Council. These three men greatly diminished in spirit day after day, so that there was a great difference in the line of their conduct, which was perceivable to every member that kept the faith.

"From that time forward we often received instructions from the Prophet as to what was the will of the Lord and how to proceed."

In this extract Mr. Grover states that the High Council was called together by the prophet Joseph Smith, to know whether they would accept the revelation on celestial marriage or not. No date is given when this meeting was held, nor where. Mr. Grover states that the Presidency of the Stake, Wm. Marks, A. Cowles and C. C. Rich, were present. He gives the names of the High Council present in their order; Samuel Bent, Wm. Huntington, Alpheus Cutler, Thomas Grover, Lewis D. Wilson, David Fullmer, Aaron Johnson, Newel Knight, Leonard Soby, Isaac Alred, Henry G. Sherwood and Samuel Smith. Mr. Grover states that two out of three of the Presidency of the Stake refused to accept the revelation. He also gives the names of C. C. Rich, Alpheus Cutler, Newell Knight, Isaac Alred, Henry G. Sherwood and Samuel Smith, as members of that council and present at that time, whose names do not appear in Mr. Fullmer's statement; and Mr. Fullmer gives the names of G. W. Harris, Levi Jackman, Phinehas Richards and James Alred, allowing the names of L. D. Wilson and Dunbar Wilson to be one and the same man.

Mr. Grover states that Hyrum Smith read the revelation and then said: "Now, you that believe this revelation and go forth and obey the same shall be saved, and you that reject it shall be damned."

There is here no pretence of a consideration having been asked for, or had; just the bald statement "You that reject it shall be damned." But the statements of these two men do not agree, either as to the composition of the council, or the manner of the presentation of the document.

Mr. Grover states that he and others saw the "prediction" of Hyrum Smith that those who rejected the revelation "should be damned," "verified in less than one week." What a travesty on truth this is. Wm. Marks remained true to his faith in the gospel he had received up to his death and died in the midst of believers an honored and revered man. Who can, who dares to say that he is suffering the tortures of the damned? Alpheus Cutler did not apostatize but remained true to the principles of Mormonism the same as hundreds of others who could not and did not endorse President B. Young and his policy, nor yet the Reorganized Church.

Mr. Grover states that Leonard Soby apostatized also; but Mr. Littlefield quotes this same Mr. Soby in respect to matters which will be shown unworthy of credence; but whether the fault lies with Mr. Soby or Mr. Littlefield remains to be determined.

"I, Lovina Walker, hereby certify that while I was living with Aunt Emma Smith, in Fulton City, Fulton County, Illinois, in the year 1849, she told me that she Emma Smith, was present and witnessed the marrying or sealing of Eliza Partridge, Emily Partridge, Maria Lawrence, and Sarah Lawrence to her husband, Joseph Smith, and that she gave her consent thereto.

"LOVINA WALKER.

"We hereby witness that Lovina Walker made and signed the above statement on this 16th day of June, A. D. 1869, at Salt Lake City, Salt Lake County, Utah Territory, of her own free will and accord.

"HYRUM S. WALKER,
"SARAH E. SMITH,
"JOS. F. SMITH."

The statement of Lovina Walker in respect to what Emma, wife of Joseph Smith should have told her, is proved incorrect by the statement of Emma herself who stated that she never was present, consented to, or knew of any such marriage.

"AFFIDAVIT OF EMILY D. P. YOUNG.

"TERRITORY OF UTAH. )
"County of Salt Lake. } ss

"Be it remembered that on this first day of May, A. D. 1869, personally appeared before me, Elias Smith, Judge of probate for said county, Emily Dow Partridge Young, who was by me sworn in due form of law, and upon her oath, saith that on the eleventh day of May, A. D. 1843, at the city of Nauvoo, county of Hancock, State of Illinois, she was married (or sealed) to Joseph Smith, President of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by James Adams, a High Priest in said Church, according to the laws of the same regulating marriage, in the presence of Emma (Hale) Smith, and Eliza Maria Partridge (Lyman).

"EMILY D. P. YOUNG.

"Subscribed and sworn to by the said Emily D. P. Young, the day and year first above written.

"E. SMITH, Probate Judge."

The affidavit of Mrs. Emily D. Young, states that she was married to Joseph Smith in the state of Illinois, "according to the law of the church regulating marriage." This is shown to be false by the fact that the law of the state of Illinois permitted no such marriage under which law the church was incorporated; and the law of the church was entirely and solely monogamic at the time, May 11th, 1843. The claim is that the revelation was given July 12th, 1843 two months after this marriage is said to have taken place. Emma Smith denies having any knowledge of such marriage.

"Our readers will remember that in the correspondence which passed between Elder Littlefield and Joseph Smith, Jr., of the Reorganized Church, some time since, Mr. Smith challenged Elder Littlefield to give the names of parties who were present and heard the revelation on celestial marriage read before the High Council at Nauvoo. Among the names given by Elder Littlefield was that of Leonard Soby. The prophet of the Reorganized Church knew where Mr. Soby resided and instructed a member of his church in high standing to draw up an affidavit, stating that Mr. Soby was not present at such meeting, and never heard the revelation read.

"The affidavit was drawn up under the instruction of Joseph Smith, Jr.; and Mr. Gurley, who was something of a lawyer, called on Mr. Soby at his home in Beverly, New Jersey, and requested him to sign it. The affidavit stated that Mr. Soby was present at the High Council meeting referred to, but did not hear the revelation read. When Mr. Gurley requested Mr. Soby to sign the document, Soby objected, saying he was present at the meeting, and heard the revelation read, and could not sign an affidavit to the contrary. This considerably disconcerted his interlocutor, and Mr. Soby added: "If you will draw up an affidavit setting forth that I was there and did hear the revelation read, I will sign it for you." Mr. Gurley, however, did not want that kind of testimony, and retired rather crestfallen, but wiser; and has since apostatized from the Reorganized Church.

"Mr. Soby, quite recently, had business in the state of Pennsylvania, and while there related the occurrence to a gentleman named Samuel Harrison.

"Lenord Soby is about the only person now living who was present at the High Council meeting at which the revelation on celestial marriage was read. His home is at Beverly, New Jersey. Ogden Herald, Jan. 5, 1886.

A few weeks ago I addressed a letter to Mr. Leonard Soby, asking him to furnish what facts he had in possession relative to the Revelation on Celestial Marriage having been read before the High Council at Nauvoo. To this letter Mr. Soby returned the following, which I give entire with the exception of small portions which are not of public interest:

"LEONARD SOBY'S LETTER."

"BEVERLY, N. J., Jan. 21, 1886.

"Dear Brother Littlefield:—I inclose you five dollars for the benefit of those who are in prison. Although I am thousands of miles away and have never seen them; yet I know the spirit they manifested in going there was the true spirit of sacrifice, and I rejoice over them and so do the holy angels in heaven. You are contending for the faith once delivered to the Saints, given by Joseph in Nauvoo, of which I am a witness. * * * I pray for their wives and children continually that they [the prisoners] may be restored to them. * * * The facts as published in the [Ogden Herald] are true, referring to the interview between Mr. Gurley and myself, and I refer you to him for a copy of my affidavit. Mr. Gurley is very much of a gentleman, and if you ask for it in my name he will not refuse. * * * I have received a number of letters which I will be unable to answer, on this subject. I refer them all to you.

"With great respect

"your humble servant,

"LEONARD SOBY."

In regard to this point it is only necessary to state that there is no challenge in the letters of Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield to give the names of any parties who heard the revelation read before the High Council. Mr. Littlefield has made this statement his by reproducing it over his own signature. Joseph Smith did not so challenge Mr. Littlefield, therefore it can not be so "remembered."

The following letter from Elder Z. H. Gurley will most effectually give the lie to the statement of both Mr. Littlefield and Mr. Soby in regard to the part Joseph Smith, of Lamoni, had in the procuring Mr. Soby's affidavit. It is not worthy of belief that Mr. Soby should have so lied about the matter, apostate as he may be called by Mr. Grover and Mr. Littlefield. Joseph Smith had nothing whatever to do with the visit of Elder Gurley to Leonard Soby and the procurement of an affidavit in any sense, or form whatever.

This is answered by Elder Gurley's letter.

"Bro. Joseph Smith:—In reply to yours of the 5th inst. I submit the following statement.

"To whom it may concern. This is to certify that in the matter of visiting Elder Leonard Soby, at Beverly N. J., and obtaining his affidavit relative to the presenting and reading before the High Council at Nauvoo, Ill., of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints by Hyrum Smith the revelation on Polygamy, of which the said Soby was a member; that Elder Joseph Smith, of Lamoni, Iowa, had no part nor lot in the matter whatsoever, that he did not dictate nor direct the wording of any affidavit to be presented by me to the said Soby, neither had he any knowledge of my visit to him nor of any intention on my part so to do until after it took place. And be it remembered, that I did not present to Mr. Soby any affidavit for his signature other than the one which he signed, (and which affidavit is still in my possession) hence the statements of Mr. L. O. Littlefield published in The Utah Journal for the 27th ult. so far as they profess to give the account of my interview with Mr. Soby are untrue and a misrepresentation of the facts. Very truly yours for truth,

Z. H. GURLEY.

PLEASANTON, IOWA, March 10th, 1886.

"Sometime last summer Mrs. Willis, of Lehi, Utah county, Utah, visited my home in company with Mrs. Robert Bain and while there, in conversation upon Nauvoo matters, Mrs. Willis stated, without any hesitation, and in the most positive terms, that at the time she was married to Bro. Ira Willis, she was, in fact, the widow of Joseph Smith, the martyred prophet. That she had been sealed to him (Joseph Smith) and became, in the full meaning of the term, his wife, according to the sacred order of celestial marriage. She stated that when Brother Willis received her in marriage he fully understood that he was marrying a widow; that their association together would end with this life, and that in the morning of the resurrection she would pass from him to the society of her deceased husband. Mrs. Willis' maiden name was Melissa Lott. She is the daughter of Cornelius Lott, a man well known in the church and must be also by the President of the Reorganized Church. That gentleman can address and interrogate her if he wishes, as I have furnished her address.

"I will briefly allude to one more case in connection with which, by request, I shall withhold names: A lady in Nauvoo, with whom I was well acquainted, stated to me that she had been sealed to Joseph Smith by the law of celestial marriage. I have special evidence that this lady told me the truth. Aside from this, I knew in Nauvoo, by report and circumstantial evidence, of some eight or ten ladies who were his wives, among whom on a former occasion, I gave to Joseph Smith, of Lamoni, the names of Eliza R. Snow, Lucy Walker and Emily Partridge. These ladies are highly respected residents of Salt Lake City, and can be addressed.

"Persons desirous of being placed in correspondence with a reliable party who officiated in the ordinance of celestial marriage, under the personal instructions of the Prophet Joseph Smith, are respectfully referred to Mr. Bates Noble, Bountiful, Davis county, Utah."

It is not necessary to state anything at present in regard to these statements about celestial widows and turning wives over to men in the resurrection. Time will show many of these statements to be human and erroneous. Mr. Littlefield has trained in a school in which the statements of the priesthood have gone unquestioned, and these statements have passed current as facts.

"I would not, perhaps, direct my remarks so pointedly to the Reorganized Church had not the Saints' Herald been so prompt to endorse the scandalous and unprincipled letter published in the Inter-Ocean. Furthermore, the leaders and elders of that organization are and have been traversing the country and the main burthen of their preaching is to draw a line of distinction between themselves and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, whose headquarters are in Utah. They use this as a hobby, seemingly to intensify the prejudice which government officials and unprincipled politicians are working hard to create against us. We are willing this line of demarkation should be drawn if they would draw it fairly. But when they assume to be the true exponents of the doctrines of the Prophet Joseph and that the Utah leaders are imposing upon the people by setting forth that the revelation on Celestial marriage was revealed through him, then the Utah Saints, who understand this matter in its true light, cannot refrain from correcting them. I for one, knowing that their leader, in this regard at least, occupies an incorrect position, would be morally culpable before God were I not to use my pen and voice in endeavoring to tear away this false covering. Their leader is a son of that great man, and hence my solicitude for his good is easily awakened. Would to God he would present himself before the Lord and the church properly, that his abilities might be directed in building up the great latter-day work. But he seems, thus far, to be bent upon a course which will eventuate in disaster and bring him to regrets and heart pangs during the great eternities which lie before us all. He may consider my anxiety meddling and officious but when he comes to know his father's principles and practices as I know them, I shall meet his approval. He will yet know that the Lord revealed through his father the doctrine of Celestial marriage, but that may not be until, on the other side of the veil, he meets, face to face, his honored parent.

Mr. Editor, having now filled all the space you can well spare, I will close by submitting this, the main portion of evidence at my command, to the careful and candid consideration of the thousands who entertain feelings of interest upon this important question. Hoping that the friends of the Reorganized Church will candidly consider these facts with the same kindly motives which actuate me, I subscribe myself

"A friend to all the human race,

"L. O. LITTLEFIELD."

Mr. Littlefield echoes the sentiment of Mrs. Thompson in being exercised by solicitude for the spiritual welfare of Joseph Smith, of Lamoni. This man of Lamoni, has gone to the Lord time and time again with the matters of plural, celestial and polygamous marriage and his duty as the son of the Seer in reference to those things; he has invariably risen from such devotional inquiry with the answer first given to him, "It is not of me." What more could Mr. Littlefield, or other of those polygamous champions ask of any man. If when the son of the Seer goes to God with petitions and pleadings upon questions of such importance as Mr. Littlefield claims this awful question of celestial marriage to be, and God chooses to answer that son adversely to Mr. Littlefield's opinion, is the son of the Seer to be blamed for such divine direction. The answer of God to the inquiry of the son of the Seer, as stated above has been and is the basis and reason for the course he has been pursuing. It is because of this, that the son of the Seer refuses to accept of mythical, far-fetched hearsay evidence.

In conclusion, Why does not Mr. Littlefield, or some one of equal, or superior importance in the polygamous church meet the issue made by Joseph Smith, of Lamoni; that is, that the law of God; the revelations to the church; the example and commands of God to man for near six thousand years, all of them condemn plural marriage; that Joseph and Hyrum Smith, if practicing polygamy at all did so in direct divergence from the rules and revelations of God to the church, and in violation of the law of the land.

Again, Why does not Mr. Littlefield show by the records of the High Council what action was had before it in regard to the reading of the revelation, and its consideration by that body. The record must have been kept, if accuracy and certainty were aimed at, as in other things. It is far more within the realm of consistency to believe that had such a revelation been received by Joseph Smith from God, he would have placed that document before the proper tribunals, and the High Council was not the first body to which it should have been presented. The records of those tribunals should have shown day and date, and circumstance of the presentation, with an attested copy of the document itself and the fate which it met. Instead of Hyrum Smith's dogmatic "he that rejects this shall be damned;" the prayerful inquiry should have been, "O Lord, show thy servants of this Council whether this be of Thee." The document should have been examined clause by clause, and compared with the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants. An open, unbiased discussion of its merits should have been had. A document of such a character, that it was to revolutionize the teaching of the Elders, and the practice of the church; to disrupt the opinions and lifelong prejudices of the refined, cultured, delicate, and sensitive men and women then in the church and afterward to come into it, to render nugatory and inoperative the positive and direct commands of God to the church and give the lie to the tocsin of the preachers of the new faith; "God is an unchangeable God; therefore the gospel is restored, as it was in Christ's day;" such a document should never have come in by stealth, or been fastened upon the people by such a dogmatic course, as has been confessedly pursued with the so called revelation on celestial marriage.

Besides this; supposing Mr. Grover's statement to be correct that such a document was presented to the Council; then apply the test as given to the Twelve by Joseph the Seer, and stated by Orson Hyde in September, 1844, at the trial of Sidney Rigdon; which is as follows: "There is a way by which all revelations purporting to be from God through any man can be tested. Brother Joseph gave us the plan; says he, when all the quorums are assembled and organized in order, let the revelation be presented to the quorums; if it pass one let it go to another, and if it pass that, to another, and so on until it has passed all the quorums; and if it pass the whole without running against a snag, you may know it is of God. But if it runs against a snag, then says he, it wants enquiring into; you must see to it."

If then the revelation was presented to the Presidency of the Stake and two thirds of that body rejected it; and then it run against a snag in the High Council, there may be reasons why it was not presented to any other quorum. Orson Hyde asked of the people; "why was not the revelations of Sidney presented to the Quorums?" This question may be repeated about this one in controversy—why was it not presented to the quorums? If such a revelation had been received and presented in good faith to the quorums in due course and regular form, Mr. Littlefield and others would never resort to the poor and secondary evidence as is presented in the article to which this is a reply; but the record itself, day, date, the fact of presentation, the circumstances of defence and rejection, and the vote for and against it would long since have been presented.

Mr. Littlefield, whether by counsel with his brethren, or on his own motion, has put this effort forth to present the best evidences in his, or their possession that the revelation was received and properly accredited. The subject matter of the article has been sent to a great number of the brethren in pamphlet form, and any one can see that Mr. Littlefield does not meet the issue but dodges, and assumes to get rid of the article of Bro. T. W. Smith by styling it "the scandalous and unprincipled letter published in the Inter-Ocean."

"Report and circumstantial evidence," which Mr. Littlefield relies on to prove that there were "eight or ten ladies who were wives to Joseph Smith," would, if taken, damn every polygamic defender of the faith, in the United States court and out of it. But it shows the strait to which these polygamists are reduced in defence against the Reorganized Church, in its promulgation of the original faith.

JOSEPH SMITH.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MINUTES.

APRIL 6TH TO 17TH, 1886.

THE forty-eighth annual conference of the Church of Christ, being also the thirty-fourth since its reorganization, convened at Lamoni, Iowa, at ten o'clock on Tuesday, April 6th, 1886.

Bro. W. W. Blair called the assembly to order, and asked the will of the body as to organization for the session. It was moved that we proceed to organize permanently, and by further motions the following named were chosen as the officers of the conference:—Bro. Joseph Smith as president, Bro. W. W. Blair as assistant president, Bro. H. A. Stebbins as secretary, and Bro. John Scott as assistant secretary. Following this, brethren M. H. Forscutt and N. W. Smith were appointed as choristers and Sr. Lucy L. Lyons as organist; brethren Frank Dillen, Frank Cochran, Joseph Upton, A. J. Moore and William Nichols as ushers, and John Wahlstrom and Edward Glassford as janitors. Bro. D. F. Lambert was appointed as reporter, to take the full text of sermons during the conference, and of such other matter as may be desired verbatim.

Brethren John Chisnall, W. J. Smith, John Smith, Hiram Rathbun and R. J. Anthony were appointed as committee on credentials.

The formal service was opened by singing "The morning light is breaking," and prayer was offered by Bro. Columbus Scott.

Questions were asked and answered concerning credentials, after which the committee in this matter retired to confer and to prepare their report to present this afternoon.

Then President Smith spoke upon the work and upon certain characteristics of it and of the laborers therein, giving some wise admonition and instruction. He then called upon brethren I. L. Rogers, J. H. Lake and G. A. Blakeslee, and they each spoke in confirmation of the truth as it is in Christ, and concerning the things necessary for us to do as ministers and as a people. After that the hymn "We thank thee, Lord, for grace and gifts" was sung, and adjournment had till afternoon.

At half-past one o'clock President Blair requested the quorums to be seated in their proper order on the right, left, and at the front of the stand. The hymn beginning, "Lord of the harvest hear," was sung, and prayer was offered by Bro. Hiram Rathbun.

The report of the committee on credentials was read and its adoption moved with proviso that the committee be continued till their work is finished.

We find that by the minutes of the Galland's Grove conference, held March 5th, 6th and 7th, as appears in the Herald dated March 27th, 1886, that W. W. Whiting, John Hawley, B. Salisbury, C. E. Butterworth and J. T. Turner were appointed as delegates, with a representation of 719 members, but their credentials are reported as lost. We recommend that they be admitted as delegates to this conference.

The appointment of Joseph Smith by the Gallatin Branch not being according to the Rules of Representation is hereby referred to the conference.

Your committee hereby call the attention of the conference to the large number of members left without representation, because of not being allowed to be counted.

JOHN CHISNALL.
W. J. SMITH.
JOHN SMITH.

Bro. E. L. Kelley objected to the Southern Michigan district having a credit of only 286 members, and asked that the report be corrected to read 300 members. On his motion this was done. Bro. W. H. Kelley moved that he be privileged to represent the Philadelphia district, he having been chosen by it, and that his name be taken from among the delegates of the Southern Michigan district. This motion also prevailed, as did a motion to correct the error on the credentials of the delegates from the Fremont district, whereby a representation for only 144 members was mentioned, whereas it should be 344, as the delegates and the Church Recorder alike testified. A motion that Pres. Smith represent the Gallatin branch, as chosen by them to do, was defeated on the ground that it is in an organized district. Bro. E. L. Kelley questioned the correctness of the report that there are so many members in the Northern Illinois district, but the committee read the certificate and answered satisfactorily. Then the motion to adopt prevailed.

The report of the Secretary and Recorder of the Church was read.

The fact of the reorganization of the First Chicago Branch was mentioned and insertion of it made. Several brethren made remarks or asked questions concerning the report, and it stood approved.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in reading the reports of the brethren.

President Smith suggested that the morning preaching during the conference be to the Church, and that of the evening to the people who are without. He then appointed Bro. W. W. Blair to preach this evening.

Secretary Stebbins called the roll of the ex-officio members of Conference and added the names of those present which he had not already, placing each quorum in its order. As still further added to later the list is complete as follows, of those attending this session:

EX OFFICIO MEMBERS.

N. Stamm.

IN NO QUORUM.

Samuel Ackerley,	Levi Atkinson,	W. C. Matthews,
Marcus Shaw,	T. F. Stafford.

At half-past seven in the evening, while the immense throng was gathering the choir and congregation joined in singing, "Hark, hark, the word to you is given" with great earnestness. The regular exercises were opened by singing, "The morning breaks, the shadows flee," and prayer was offered by Bro. R. M. Elvin. President Smith had charge of the services. "Soon may the last glad song arise," was sung. The sermon was by President Blair.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7TH.

There was no morning prayer meeting but at half-past ten o'clock Bro. John A. McIntosh preached. "Come let us anew our journey pursue," was sung and prayer was offered by Bro. J. W. Chatburn. He gave an encouraging testimony after Bro. McIntosh closed.

At half-past one o'clock Pres. Smith called the assembly to order, and after singing, Bro. T. F. Stafford offered prayer. The minutes of yesterday were read and approved.

The committee on credentials presented an additional report. It was read and will be found incorporated with the report of yesterday.

The following report from the Apostles' Quorum was read by the secretary:

QUORUM OF TWELVE REPORT.

The members of the Quorum of Twelve present, met at the residence of Bro. Wm. Hopkins. At this meeting the following request was moved, and is hereby presented to conference, desiring action upon the request, respectfully submitted.

Whereas, at the last session of General Conference the body assembled, refused to sustain "as members of the Quorum of Twelve," J. W. Briggs and Z. H. Gurley; and whereas, no cause was assigned, or charges preferred showing why they should not have been sustained, and whereas it is a rule, in justice and law, that any person accused is entitled to a hearing upon the allegation brought against him. And where there is no charge against a person, he is considered free, and should not be held in jeopardy. Resolved that we request again the General Conference to show cause why the body refused to sustain those members of the Quorum of Twelve or release them from further embarrassment.

Also, we respectfully report: Whereas, the Quorum of Twelve for cause, passed a vote of censure upon brethren J. W. Briggs, Z. H. Gurley and E. C. Briggs, at the last session of conference, for absenting themselves from the councils of the quorum, demanded an explanation for such treatment of the quorum, and the church; and whereas, Bro. E. C. Briggs has appeared before the quorum and made explanation, and assigned reasons why he was not present, which show that there was no intention upon his part to avoid duty or ignore the members of the quorum, or the claims of the conference; therefore, resolved, that we accept his explanation as a proper apology and release him from further censure.

A. H. SMITH, Sec'y.

The clause in the report concerning Bro. E. C. Briggs was considered and its adoption moved. The matter was discussed and the motion to adopt prevailed. It was then moved that a committee of five be appointed by the body to draft and present the reasons why the two brethren mentioned were not sustained at the last General Conference. This prevailing, the following brethren were put in nomination to act upon said committee, namely, W. W. Blair, M. H. Forscutt, J. W. Chatburn, J. C. Crabb, A. H. Smith, E. C. Brand, E. L. Kelley and Charles Derry. The latter peremptorily declined, and the vote being taken concerning the others the choice rested upon Brn. Forscutt, Crabb, Chatburn, Brand and Kelley, and they were instructed to report as early as practicable.

PRESIDENTS OF SEVENTY.

The following report from the presidents of Seventy was read, and it was resolved that it be made the special order for Friday afternoon.

On April 2d, as per call by our senior president, and concurred in by the First Presidency of the church, six of us met for the purpose of considering the choosing of men to fill the office of Seventy, as provided in the law. We have held six meetings, and carefully and prayerfully considered each name, which will be presented separately. Each one has received our unanimous approval; and we present them to the body, respectfully asking that they be ordained. They are: 1 Myron H. Bond, 2 George H. Hilliard, 3 Henry Kemp, 4 Joseph Luff, 5 Joseph F. Burton, 6 John Alfred Davies, 7 Hiram L. Holt, 8 Willard J. Smith, 9 Hans N. Hansen, 10 John Smith, 11 Isaac N. White, 12 Evan A. Davies, 13 Alonzo H. Parsons, 14 Peter Anderson, 15 Arthur Leverton, 16 Thomas Daily, 17 Thomas Taylor (Eng), 18 Luther R. Devore, 19 Richard S. Salyards, 20 John Arthur Davies, 21 Amos J. Moore, 22 Wm. M. Rumel, 23 John S. Roth, 24 Frank M. Sheehy. These names were read before the quorum on the 7th inst., and were unanimously approved by them, except in the case of one name, which received only one negative vote.

We respectfully ask that this matter be considered as early as practicable, for the following reasons: 1st. We wish those of them present to meet with us in our deliberations during the present session of conference. 2d. We wish to present them to the quorum of Twelve, when missions are considered. 3d. If these ordinations are ordered, it will interfere with the present organization of some of the Elders' quorums, and we wish them to have sufficient time to fill vacancies in their quorums occasioned by these ordinations.

For the information of the body, we will say there are now in the quorum only thirty-nine men, consequently if these twenty-four are ordained the quorum will lack seven of being complete.

E. C. BRAND, President.
HEMAN C. SMITH, Sec'y.

Secretary Stebbins read reports of the ministry.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Pres. J. Smith read the following statement from the Bishop concerning the finances of the church:—

Herewith I submit to you the annual financial statement of the church, embracing the business transacted by my agents and myself, for the church the past year.

At the beginning of the fiscal year, just closed, the outlook was very discouraging. Certain things that had occurred in the body the preceding year and over which this department had not control, had influenced the minds of the Saints so as to cause a check in their readiness to sustain the work. Through unwise counsel in many parts they had been tempted to say, "we will stand and see," forgetting that before one is justified of the Master in taking such a position as this, that he must have first exhausted every means of righting the wrongs, if such there were, that the laws and rules as established by the Master provides; and it was under this discouraging state that the Bishopric set out upon their work.

The first half of the year we tried to meet, wherever we could, the Saints, and overcome the false ideas that had obtained, both as relating to the position of the church touching the matter of tithes and offerings, and the manner and rules governing in the paying out of the funds received.

The Saints favored us wherever we were able to meet them with a fair hearing, and to-day, whatever of the many causes that have aided in producing the result, I am thankful that,—both from my report, the many letters received almost daily, and personal assurances to me by many whom I have met,—I am justified in saying to you that the future of my department is encouraging and hopeful.

To-day we should have in the treasury a reserve fund of at least one hundred thousand dollars; and from my observations in traveling among the Saints, I am satisfied that if all make an effort to comply with the law as Christ has established it, the time is but short when this will be realized. There is important work for us to do, just as soon as we shall have placed ourselves in the position to accomplish it; and in these times no Latter Day Saint should hesitate to do all in his power to help the work move forward. The gospel must be preached. It requires not only men, but means to do this.

I desire to call the attention of the conference to the fact that much injury has resulted to the treasury the past year, and former years, by reason of Elders leaving their fields of labor, as appointed by the church, and traveling in all parts of the country.

This is done in some instances under the claim that they can get funds by so doing, and they go expecting the brethren, or my agents, to contribute to the expense of such travels. The result has been two-fold for evil.

1. It has taken the means that otherwise would have remained in the treasury to supply those who were appointed to the districts to labor and to aid the work locally.

2. It has not benefitted the Elder who thus employed his time, materially, for the reason that the means collected is paid out for traveling expenses. And it is very singular, that a person who is representing a faith that holds out the direction of the ministry in its work by the Holy Spirit, should permit such influences as that of gathering up collections to turn him from his duties under the law.

It is the firm determination of the Bishopric of this church to try to supply the families of all Elders placed as laborers in the field, and we request that in the appointment of the ministry, (except as to those who are compelled to have a general oversight), that their territory be limited more than heretofore, and that after reaching their fields of labor they be directed to travel without purse or scrip in these fields and preach, and thus leave the means heretofore used in travelling to supply the families of other Elders who may thus be placed in the field.

An Elder who is a true laborer, can do more good in confining his labors to four counties than to four states, if not cumbered with the care of the churches, and by the observance of these common rules, the ministry might be greatly augmented as to numbers. In years past, possibly such a restriction, from the circumstances surrounding, might have been impracticable; but now I submit that it seems plausible to this department at least.

The fact of Elders traveling among the Saints, and unwisely, if not for the purpose of injury, picturing out their great needs, and that of their families, has thrown great distrust upon the work. Elders ought to be instructed that such conduct will be reported. They have a right to rely upon the treasury for the support of their families, and if they perform their work, and the Bishop does not his, their remedy is easy to make a case and present it to the body for redress. But I believe there will be no cause, if the ministry will not interfere with the treasury from which they expect this sustenance.

Praying ever for the good of the work, and the welfare of the ministry and Saints, I am, in bonds, your fellow-laborer,

G. A. BLAKESLEE,
Bishop of the Church.

The financial report accompanying it was received and referred to a committee of three to audit the same. The chair appointed brethren R. M. Elvin, John Smith and O. B. Thomas, as said committee.

The resignation of Bro. Samuel Rector as an Elder and also as Bishop's agent was read, and on motion it was laid on the table subject to call.

A petition from Bro. L. L. Babbitt for a rehearing was presented and on motion referred to a committee. Brethren Chas. Derry, H. L. Holt and J. W. Chatburn were appointed to consider it.

A document from Bro. F. W. Curtis vs. the Pleasant Grove Branch, Missouri, was presented and referred to the Presidency, it being stated that the other papers in the case were available for investigation in connection with it.

President Smith read a letter from Bro. W. Vickery, in which he stated that he had been appointed by conference of 1866, which appointment he refused and neglected to take, and for which disrespect he asked pardon; and it was resolved that the brother be released from the appointment, and that pardon be granted as he requests.

The committee on "Sanhedens' Banner" reported:

We, the undersigned, being appointed in connection with Bro. Peter Anderson a committee for Sanhedens Banner, and having as we think, served as far as practicable, and believing our continuance will be of no benefit to the paper, we therefore ask to be relieved, and suggest that the Sanhedens Banner be issued under the auspices of the Board of Publication, and we heartily pray for its success.

We ask indulgence, to further add to our report on the Banner. We think Bro. P. Anderson should have what financial aid necessary, to enable him to prosecute the editorial work of the Banner. Further; whereas, in our last appeal for financial aid, we said that all moneys given, whether for subscription or donations, would be credited, which Bro. Anderson says has not been done; we therefore suggest that a receipt for all moneys be given in the Banner.

JAMES CAFFALL, H. N. HANSEN.

Discussion was had as to the best course to pursue, but it was finally resolved to adopt and to discharge the two of the committee named.

A petition from Oregon for laborers to be sent there, also a letter to Bro. A. H. Smith, were read and referred to the Twelve. The following documents were also referred to that quorum, namely: A request from the Pembroke Branch, Dakotah, that it and the other Dakotah branch be either organized into a district or else be attached to one of the Western Iowa districts; a petition from the branch at St. Joseph, Missouri, that a minister be appointed by the conference and located in that city; a petition from Council Bluffs, Iowa, Branch, that Bro. J. F. McDowell be appointed to labor there; a petition from the Central Texas District for the reappointment of Brn. Heman C. Smith and I. N. Roberts to the South Western Mission.

An appeal from the branch at Cameron, Ontario, concerning certain ordinations was referred to the Presidency.

Certain preambles and a resolution on the authority to ordain Elders in organized districts were laid on the table for future consideration.

Bro. H. C. Bronson presented the name of Philip W. Ferguson, a member of the old organization, for acceptance in the Reorganized Church, and on motion he was accepted, as was also Franklin Allen, whose name and claims were presented by Bro. R. Etzenhouser.

Announcements were made, hymn 229 was sung and adjournment had.

At the evening service the sermon was by Bro. John Smith of New Bedford, Massachusetts. He was assisted by Brn. Robert Young of Des Moines, Iowa, and I. N. White of Clinton, Missouri.

THURSDAY, APRIL 8th.

At nine o'clock a prayer meeting was held, Brn. J. M. Putney and T. F. Stafford being in charge. The sermon at half past ten o'clock was preached by Bro. Joseph Smith. His assistant was Bro. Hiram Rathbun.

The afternoon session was opened by singing, "O Lord, thy people bless." Prayer was offered by Bro. James Caffall, after which the secretary read the minutes of yesterday's session.

The committee on credentials made an additional report which was received and added to first report.

The following document from Bro. J. W. Briggs, and Z. H. Gurley was read by the secretary:

To the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in General Conference assembled.

We the undersigned members of said church feel impelled by the action of the last Annual Conference toward us to submit the following facts for your consideration, and as reason for that which we feel compelled to do.

It is known to the body whom you represent that we do not believe in certain doctrines and principles, or policy more or less accepted and taught by the elders in the Church, among which is—1st The literal gathering of the church into Jackson and the adjoining counties in the state of Missouri (or any other one or more places) known as a local Zion. 2d Temple building and ceremonial endowments therein. 3d Baptism for the dead. 4th Tithings as a law applicable to the church. 5th The law of consecration by which individuals are made legal heirs to the kingdom of Zion. 6th A sole mouthpiece of God to the church. 7th The plenary inspiration of, and consequent absolute authority of what are called the sacred books. 8th The doctrine of "cursing ones enemies," and of "avenging God upon them to the third and fourth generations." (See sections 100 and 102 of the Doctrine and Covenants).

In the years gone by we have sought to have the action of the body upon the more important of these, and preparatory to the action sought have endeavored to show from the books themselves that the church have been, and that many are still in error. We have invoked the General Conference, and the General Assembly of the various quorums, as also the quorum of the Twelve by Elder Briggs its President, in the hope that these questions might be set at rest; and we were induced to believe that they were, and that the church was disposed to drop these doctrines as essential to membership and good standing, as seen by its acts of 1879, in adopting the "Report of the Presidency," and in 1883, in adopting the paper as presented to the Secretary of State of the United States, and more especially the adoption of a resolution by the General Conference April 1884, declaring the local commandments in the Doctrine and Covenants not binding &c. This was believed by us as a step in the right direction, but to our great surprise, this was followed by elaborate articles in the official organ of the church tending to nullify that resolution et al, and when the President of the Twelve sought to give a reason in accord with said resolution, the church organ aforesaid was denied him.

The action of the last General Conference relating to us personally, refusing its support to us as ministers, and for which act the said conference declined to give a reason, and still declines so far as we are informed, can only mean one of two things, viz—acquiesce in silence, in what we do not believe (as stated above) or leave the church—reason, self respect and conscience compels the latter, preferring the gospel of Christ to these things. We therefore do hereby withdraw from the said church our membership and fellowship impugning the motives of none we appeal to the judge of all for the rectitude of ours for this act.

JASON W. BRIGGS,
ZENAS H. GURLEY.

This March 28th, 1886.

To the foregoing may be added the revelation of 1841, section 107, D. & C., which enjoins upon the church the building of a hotel, called the "Lord's boarding house" for Joseph Smith and posterity to dwell in from generation to generation, as also the promise contained therein viz., "And as I said unto Abraham concerning the kindreds of the earth, even so I say unto my servant Joseph, in thee and in thy seed shall the kindred of the earth be blessed." This coupled with the provision in section 43, that "none else" should or could receive revelation for the church, and the provision in section 19, that the church shall receive Joseph's words and commands the same as if from God's own mouth,—established, in our judgment a lineal descent of authority, equivalent to an imperial dynasty, which is foreign to the Spirit and genius of the gospel of Christ.

J. W. B.
Z. H. G.

Added by consent of Elder Briggs.—Z. H. Gurley.

Also another paper was read, as follows:

We the undersigned members of said church endorsing the views set forth by Elders J. W. Briggs and Z. H. Gurley, in their paper of withdrawal from the church, and feeling that we can not conscientiously accept and endorse the doctrines contained in Joseph Smith's revelations as a rule of faith and practice, and desiring to act and live in all good conscience before God, avoiding all hypocrisy in the profession of our faith, recognizing the responsibility which we owe to the race and to God, and knowing that the church expects and requires belief or toleration of the doctrines contained in the revelations, as seen by the act of Decatur district of said church, feel it our bounden duty to withdraw from said church, we therefore do hereby withdraw our membership and fellowship from said church, appealing to the Omnipotent for the uprightness of our intention and this act.

GRACIE GURLEY,
MARGARET GURLEY,
EDWIN H. GURLEY,
MIDA GURLEY.

April 7th, 1886.

It was moved to refer these documents to a committee of three, and it was so ordered. The chair appointed Brn. E. L. Kelley, I. L. Rogers and Heman C. Smith as said committee, and it was asked that they report to-morrow afternoon.

The special order of the day was taken up, namely, the resolution presented on April 13th, 1885, consideration of which was then set for the third day of this session. It reads as follows:

"Resolved, That the report and resolutions of the Quorum of the Twelve, as printed on pages 285 and 286 of the Herald for 1884, General Conference proceedings, and acted upon as shown on page 299, be and the same are hereby repealed."

Bro. J. C. Crabb read the report referred to, and made an argument in favor of repealing said report and the resolutions contained therein. Bro. E. L. Kelley spoke against repealing them, as also did Brn. J. H. Lake and A. H. Smith. Bro. John Hawley favored repealing. Then the previous question was moved and decided as affirmed. Division called for and 65 were found as voting for and 34 against the question being now taken. The original motion was put, the yeas and nays being called for and the following resulted, upon the secretary calling the roll.

The motion to repeal was declared lost. Several of the brethren excused themselves from voting. The following districts were prevented from voting by reason of those present of their delegation being divided on the subject: Kewanee, Northern Illinois, Decatur, Fremont, Galland's Grove and Southern Nebraska. The vote of the St. Louis District was not cast.

Adjournment was then had. After that four persons were baptized by Bro. Columbus Scott.

The evening sermon was preached by Bro. E. L. Kelley of Ohio. He was assisted by Bro. F. G. Pitt of Independence, Missouri.

FRIDAY, APRIL 9TH.

The morning prayer meeting was in charge of brethren Stephen Maloney and W. J. Smith. The preaching at half-past ten o'clock was by Bro. F. M. Sheehy of Maine. He was assisted by brethren E. Banta, G. A. Blakeslee and H. Rathbun.

At half-past one o'clock, "Lord of the harvest hear," was sung; it was followed by prayer from Bro. Charles Derry. The minutes of yesterday were read and stood approved. Pres. Blair in the chair.

The report of the Presidency of the Seventy, as found in the minutes of the 7th inst, was again read by the secretary, and it was moved and ordered that the names proposed for ordination into the Quorum of Seventy be taken up separately.

The name of Myron H. Bond was taken up. He expressed willingness to accept the office and it was voted that he be ordained.

The name of Geo. H. Hilliard was read. He was not present, but his worth was testified of. The resolution that no one be enrolled in a quorum without his consent, was mentioned, but the chair considered that this rule did not prevent ordination but only his enrollment. His ordination was then ordered.

The name of Henry Kemp was presented, and, he being willing, his nomination for ordination was approved.

Bro. Joseph Luff's name was read, but he being absent, and it being learned that there were doubts in his mind concerning accepting the office, the further consideration of the matter was deferred subject to call.

The name of Joseph F. Burton (absent) was presented and his ordination was ordered.

Bro. John Alfred Davis, on his name being read, declined to accept such ordination, as did also Bro. Hans N. Hansen, when his name was presented.

Bro. Hiram L. Holt said that he was willing to labor in that calling if the ministry were sent out two and two, especially into new fields. The nomination to ordain was endorsed by the Conference.

Bro. Willard F. Smith was willing to accept, and his ordination was also ordered.

Bro. John Smith spoke as though he was not fully satisfied as to his duty in the matter. A vote being taken the nomination was endorsed.

Bro. I. N. White expressed doubts about being able to fill this calling, considering his circumstances, but has had some indications by the Spirit concerning the subject. His ordination was ordered.

The name of Bro. Evan A. Davis was read. He was not present, but his intentions in the work were stated, and it was voted that he be ordained.

Bro. Alonzo H. Parsons expressed his willingness, and the conference approved of his ordination.

On presentation of the name of Bro. Peter Anderson, (absent), his ordination was ordered.

The ordination of Bro. Arthur Leverton, (absent) was approved, and that of Bro. Thomas Daily who was also not present.

The testimonies concerning Bro. Thomas Taylor as a man were most excellent by those who personally know him, but, on account of his age, his nomination was not endorsed by the conference.

Following this, the nominations of Brn. Luther R. Devore, Richard S. Salyards and John Arthur Davis, all absent, were successively presented, and the conference endorsed their ordination. Also the ordination of Brn. Amos J. Moore, William M. Rumel, John S. Roth and Frank M. Sheehy, all present and consenting to it, was likewise ordered.

The report as amended was adopted.

The chair asked that two of the Twelve should meet with the Presidents of Seventy and attend to the ordination of those present who have been chosen to the Seventy.

REQUEST TO WITHDRAW.

Report of the committee on request to withdraw from the church as referred to them yesterday, was read as follows:

Your committee to whom was referred the application and reasons therefor of the brethren, J. W. Briggs, Zenas H., & E. H. Gurley and three sisters Gurley to withdraw all fellowship with or from the body would respectfully present the following:

1. That the assigned reason that impelled them to take this step was action of the last General Conference of this body toward the two first brethren named, i. e.: J. W. Briggs and Zenas H. Gurley, and which conference action we find, was the refusal of the body to sustain them as laborers in the office of an Apostle in the Quorum of the Twelve; and further, that at the time of the presentation of the application to your body by the brethren the cases were in the hands of another committee appointed by you to consider and report upon the same.

2. It is further cited by them that for years they have not believed in certain doctrines and principles more or less accepted and taught by the Elders of the church—how many or how few of the Elders does not appear—but it does appear as set forth in the last part of reason 8th by them, that they never have been affirmed as doctrines held to by the church here represented. And the committee are of the opinion that the matter of the presentation of individual opinions by elders, or others of the body, such opinions not having been affirmed by the body as a rule of faith or practice, does not make them a part of the faith or belief of the body; but relate to us individually upon the issue of toleration, which toleration we believe as was manifested in the action of Jesus while dealing with men here in his ministry, should be so broad as to make no occasion for persons to wish to withdraw from the body by reason of these individual differences of opinion.

3. The committee noticing specifically some of the alleged entertained views set forth in the reasons given, state:

That as to the alleged "temple building and ceremonial endowments therein," that we know of no temple building, except as edifices wherein to worship God, and no endowments except the endowment of the Holy Spirit of the kind experienced by the early Saints on Pentecost day.

4. "Baptism for the dead" referred to belongs to those local questions of which the body has said by resolution:

"That the commandments of a local character, given to the first organization of the church are binding on the Reorganization only so far as they are either reiterated or referred to as binding by commandment to this church." And that principle has neither been reiterated nor referred to as a commandment.

5. "Tithing as a law applicable to the church" is accepted in the sense set forth by the Savior in the 16th chapter of the gospel recorded by Luke, that we are stewards of our heavenly Father so far as the riches of this world are concerned and that as such we should render an account of our stewardship here; the rendition is in all cases however, necessarily voluntary on the part of the member complying with the law.

6. We know of no "consecration" by which individuals are made legal heirs to the kingdom of God, or Church of Christ, when the rewards are apportioned; except, that of a life consecrated to the service of the Master as ordained in his word together with the consecration of properties for the aid of the poor, preaching of the gospel and establishment of the said kingdom, as a member of the same has to so impart.

7. "The sole mouth-piece to the church," is Jesus Christ. We are to receive commandments as a church only as Christ communicates the same; and we are entitled, as a church, to be first satisfied that Christ did give any commandment purporting to come from him, before accepting, or receiving the same.

8. "Plenary inspiration" has never been affirmed by the church; but we believe in the so named "authorized" books of the church as true and proper standards of evidence in the determination of all controverted doctrines in theology.

9. The doctrine of "cursing" and "avenging enemies," we accept only as explained in paragraphs 3 and 4 of section 102, Doctrine and Covenants, the section referred to by the brethren, wherein the Lord is made the sole executor in behalf of the children of Zion as follows:

"I speak not concerning those who are appointed to lead my people, who are the first elders of my church, for they are not all under this condemnation; but I speak concerning my churches abroad; there are many who will say, Where is their God? Behold, he will deliver in time of trouble; otherwise we will not go up unto Zion, and will keep our moneys. Therefore, in consequence of the transgression of my people, it is expedient in me that mine elders should wait for a little season for the redemption of Zion, that they themselves may be prepared, and that my people may be taught more perfectly, and have experience, and know more perfectly, concerning their duty, and the things which I require at their hands; and this can not be brought to pass until mine elders are endowed with power from on high; for behold, I have prepared a great endowment and blessing to be poured out upon them, inasmuch as they are faithful, and continue in humility before me; therefore, it is expedient in me that mine elders should wait for a little season, for the redemption of Zion; for behold, I do not require at their hands to fight the battles of Zion; for, as I said in a former commandment, even so will I fulfill, I will fight your battles.

"Behold, the destroyer I have sent forth to destroy and lay waste mine enemies; and not many years hence, they shall not be left to pollute mine heritage, and to blaspheme my name upon the lands which I have consecrated for the gathering together of my saints."

10. So far as the necessity and failure on the part of the church is concerned to convene the quorums in General Assembly, the wisdom of the majority of the body as to the practicability and necessity of such a step seems to have been adverse thereto in the past.

11. That part of the reasons in the addenda to the application referring to providing a place of living for certain officers of the church is incorrect and misleading; for said revelation provides for the erection of a boarding house, a hotel for strangers, in which house the president of the church as such, and his successors, were to "have place;" but neither he nor they were to own said house, neither were he or they to be its "governor," or keeper; and further the commandment to build is largely of a local character; has never been reiterated to this church and consequently under the resolution of the body, before referred to, not made binding upon us.

(2). We further believe in an "imperial dynasty" only, wherein Christ is to be King, and the reigning of such of his servants who keep the faith here, with him when he shall come with his rewards.

(3). Your committee therefore are of the opinion that the reasons set forth in the application fail to justify the parties in the step they have taken; but believing in the recognized doctrine by the church of individual agency and freedom of conscience in all matters pertaining to religion, we recommend that this body appoint a suitable committee of three of its members who shall be instructed to wait upon the members asking a release, and labor with them as the law provides; and do they persist in pursuing the course outlined in the applications, that they be authorized to report to the church secretary and without impugning the motives of the brethren, to authorize their names erased from the records. And to carry out this provision we offer the following:

Resolved, That under the special circumstances attending the application of withdrawal from this body by the brethren named that the rule heretofore adopted by the body governing trials of members, shall be waived in the cases named; unless the said parties desire a trial, in which case the said committee be empowered to appoint the necessary court or courts which shall proceed at as early a time as practicable and hear the cases.

All of which we submit for your consideration.
E. L. KELLEY,
I. L. ROGERS,
HEMAN C. SMITH.

Elder Smith of the committee concurs in all of the report except the matter of waiving a trial of the parties, and thinks they should have a trial before erasing the names.

It was moved to adopt the majority report. W. H. Kelley spoke against it, and, with Bro. W. T. Bozarth, moved that the word "majority" be struck out of the motion to adopt and the word "minority" be inserted in its place. Bro. E. L. Kelley opposed this and favored the majority report. Bro. Heman C. Smith spoke for the minority report, as also did Bro. W. H. Kelley. Bro. A. W. Moffet mentioned the views of Joseph the Seer concerning withdrawals from the church. Bro. James Thomas opposed allowing them to withdraw. On call the secretary again read the report of the committee. Bro. J. C. Crabb asked what tribunal was competent to try these brethren, but the chair declined to answer. Bro. M. T. Short and H. L. Holt favored the majority report, as also did Bro. Joseph Smith. Bro. J. R. Lambert spoke for the minority report.

Adjournment being now desired, and the end not having been reached, Bro. Z. H. Gurley asked for the reading of the report of committee appointed on the 7th inst., to give the reasons for not sustaining him and J. W. Briggs at the General Conference, as he said that he could not be here to-morrow. The secretary read it as follows:

We, your committee, appointed to "show cause why the body refused to sustain" Jason W. Biggs, and Zenas H. Gurley, as "members of the Quorum of Twelve," beg leave to report that, owing to the reception of papers during this session of conference from these brethren, in which they withdraw from fellowship with the body, the following, in their judgment, are the only reasons now necessary to be given for the refusal complained of:—

First, The report of the Quorum of the Twelve to the Annual Conference of 1885, as published on page 290, vol. 2, Latter Day Saints Herald. In that report, the Twelve censure J. W. Briggs and Z. H. Gurley for "absenting themselves from conference" and quorum meetings; for failing to report; and for "virtually ignoring" the other members of the quorum, becoming thereby "a hindrance and detriment to the quorum, and to [the] general good of the church," and on these complaints they not only base a resolution in which they "deprecate such action, and require of them acknowledgment and confession for such treatment," but in that resolution these brethren of the Twelve themselves held the members complained of "under censure until such acknowledgments are made;" and did "so report to the body."

Second, The body endorsed the action of the Twelve, and by the vote given affirmed the decision of the members of the Twelve present, as against those absent; for the resolution of the Twelve was before the body when the question of sustaining the authorities came up for consideration, and the body by its vote affirmed its approval of the censure the Twelve presented by refusing to sustain the brethren censured.

Respectfully submitted,

MARK H. FORSCUTT,
J. W. CHATBURN,
J. C. CRABB,
E. C. BRAND,
E. L. KELLEY.

Announcements were made and adjournment was had.

In the evening Bro. Heman C. Smith preached, assisted by Bro. H. C. Bronson.

SATURDAY, APRIL 10TH.

At nine o'clock the Saints assembled for prayers. Bro. F. G. Pitt was in charge, assisted by Bro. H. A. Stebbins. Four who were baptized on the 8th, were confirmed under the hands of brethren M. H. Forscutt, H. A. Stebbins and F. G. Pitt, and numbers of others were administered to for their healing.

At half-past ten o'clock, the sermon was delivered by Bro. I. N. White. He was assisted by Bro. J. S. Roth.

At half-past one o'clock, the regular session convened, and the hymn, "Stand up, stand up for Jesus," was sung, and prayer was offered by Bro. J. W. Chatburn.

The Secretary read the minutes of yesterday, and by vote of the body, certain things were ordered expunged from the record of proceedings, the rest standing approved.

The striking out of certain portions of the report of the committee on withdrawal was moved, but, on consideration, it was decided as being out of order because of its effect upon the minority report, that question being still before the house. It was then moved that this matter be deferred till half-past one Monday afternoon. Brother E. L. Kelley opposed this and brother J. R. Lambert spoke in its defense.

Two motions as substitutes entered were were ruled out of order. It was then moved to recommit, with instruction to the committee to perfect their report and return it at as early an hour this afternoon as possible. A vote being taken this was defeated. Then the question upon deferring was called and prevailed, and a vote being taken, the motion to defer was lost. Division being called for, the vote stood forty-five for and 68 against. Then the following was moved as a substitute for the minority report:

Resolved, That in the case of the notice of withdrawal of Brn. J. W. Briggs and Z. H. Gurley, the same be referred to the Quorum of the Twelve for their action; and that in the cases of the other parties mentioned in the same notice of withdrawal, they be referred to their respective branches.

W. W. BLAIR,
J. C. CRABB,
F. C. WARNKY.

This was opposed by brethren Heman C. Smith and F. G. Pitt, and defended by brethren W. W. Blair and J. C. Crabb. It was then moved,

That the whole matter including papers connected with the case now before the house, be committed to a committee, consisting of the Quorum of the Twelve, for their consideration and action, to report to this conference.

Bro. E. L. Kelley said he was not particular upon this matter, so did Bro. W. H. Kelley. Brethren J. H. Lake, W. W. Blair, M. T. Short, James Caffall, and E. C. Brand opposed committing. Bro. E. H. Gurley spoke by permission and said that he and they who signed the paper with him, declined to submit to the revelations of Joseph Smith as a rule of faith and practice. Bro. John Smith favored committing. Previous question was moved and carried. The motion to commit was put to vote and lost. Division called for, and vote stood 24 for and 79 against. The following substitute was moved, under a suspension of the rule.

Resolved, That we grant the request of those desiring to withdraw from the church, and that their names be stricken from the Church Records.

The previous question being called, was ordered. Questions were asked by brethren Banta, Patterson, Scott, W. H. Kelley, E. C. Briggs and Heman C. Smith. It was then put to vote and declared as affirmed. Division called for, and substitute prevailed by 76 for to 34 against. An effort to have the yeas and nays was decided against by a majority vote.

Under a suspension of the rule the following was moved:

That hereafter when any five members shall demand that the vote be taken by yeas and nays it shall be so taken.

Amendment was moved, by adding: "providing they shall not be demanded when a vote is partially taken." It was moved to amend this amendment by striking out all after the word "providing," and inserting, "that the yeas and nays are called for before the negative vote is announced by the chair. Bro. E. L. Kelley favored this and brethren Brand, Short and Crabb opposed it. Vote being then taken the amendment to the amendment was defeated. Following, the amendment prevailed, as did the motion thus amended.

Then the majority report of the committee on withdrawal was taken up and its consideration by sections was ordered. Clauses 1 and 2 were read and adopted. It was moved to amend clause 3 by inserting the words, "of the kind," in place of the word, "as," so that it will read, "except the endowment of the Holy Spirit of the kind experienced," etc. This was subsequently adopted. It was further sought to amend by inserting after the word "building," the necessary words to make it read, "That we know of no temple building now commanded, and none to be built in the future, except," etc. These amendments were opposed and were defeated. Then the section as amended above prevailed. Clause 4 was adopted. A substitute was moved for clause 5, as follows: "That we believe in the law of tithing." This was opposed by Bro. E. L. Kelley and favored by Bro. M. T. Short, and was then defeated by vote of the house, and the original section was adopted.

It being time to adjourn the debate on the report was brought to a close.

It was then ordered that to-morrow (Sunday) be observed as a day of fasting and prayer, that our Heavenly Father will reveal whatever may be for the good of this church and people and the direction of the conference.

An expression of condolence with Pres. Smith, because of the loss of his boy David during the past Winter was adopted by a unanimous standing vote.

It was announced that Bro. G. T. Griffith will take subscriptions to purchase a tomb-stone for the grave of Bro. Josiah Ells.

The chair was sustained in its action of granting the use of the house during the session for the giving of a concert, the same to take place this evening.

SUNDAY APRIL 11TH.

Prayer meeting at nine o'clock, in charge of Bro. J. A. Robinson, assisted by Bro. E. C. Briggs. Two prayers were offered and twenty-two testimonies were given.

At half-past ten o'clock the choir and congregation sung, "Hark, listen to the trumpeters." Prayer was offered by Bro. J. H. Lake. This was followed by singing, "Hark, the herald angels sing." The sermon was by Pres. Joseph Smith. The large building was completely filled with an attentive congregation. A special train was run by the C. B. & Q. road and many people came from towns west of Lamoni.

At half-past twelve o'clock a second prayer service was held, presided over by Bro. J. H. Lake, assisted by Bro. R. M. Elvin. Seven offered prayer and twenty-seven bore testimony to the goodness of God and the truth of his work.

The half-past two o'clock sermon was preached by Bro. Charles Derry. The opening hymn was "The time is nigh, that happy time." Prayer was offered by Bro. R. J. Anthony. Sung, "Ye heralds, sound the gospel trump."

In the evening the hymn, "From Greenland's icy Mountains," was sung. Bro. W. W. Blair offered prayer. Bro. W. H. Kelley was the speaker. The house was again filled to repletion.

By the courtesy of the Methodist people their chapel was placed at our service, and, as there were enough people in attendance to fill both houses, Bro. M. H. Bond preached there in the morning, assisted by Bro. H. C. Bronson; Bro. C. Scott in the afternoon, assisted by Bro. James Caffall. In the evening Bro. Joseph Smith preached there assisted by Bro. E. C. Brand. The song service there was conducted by Bro. J. T. Kinneman and his singers.

MONDAY, APRIL 12TH.

The morning prayer meeting was in charge of Bro. J. A. Robinson.

At half-past ten o'clock the Bishopric, brethren G. A. Blakeslee, E. L. Kelley and E. Banta, spoke upon the law of tithing.

At half-past one o'clock, the business session was opened by singing, "Redeemer of Israel." Prayer by Pres. Joseph Smith. The minutes were read and corrected as regards a speech by W. H. Kelley and remarks by E. H. Gurley. On motion the ruling of the chair, declaring the majority report out of order of the committee, on answer to statement of Gurley, et al, was expunged from the record. Pres. Blair asked that, in justice to him, his rulings be recorded, with his reasons and the causes thereof. Upon this Bro. E. L. Kelley asked that his objection be recorded. Each promised to furnish the matter in writing. On motion their requests were granted, 38 for, 33 against.

Bro. E. L. Kelley's reasons for appealing from the ruling of the chair.

"1. Paragraph 3, page 285 Herald, 1884, related to decisions made by the Twelve in their various fields of labor when in pursuance of the work committed to their care and not to matters of opinion, which they may collectively or individually express themselves upon—when such are not duly before them for decision.

2. The rule relating to the trial of members referred to was not a decision of the quorum or any member of it; but a recommendation to the conference expressing an opinion upon a matter upon which there was no claim that they were called upon, either in a collective or individual capacity to decide.

3. The provision in paragraph 3, applies specifically to rulings of these persons in their special fields of labor and not in their general work as a quorum, and this to guarantee order and decorum in the body and prevent anarchy; no provision is made that such decision if collectively made must be unanimous, whereas the law provides that a decision of the Quorum to be final must be unanimous.

4. To make a decision of the quorum binding, so that it can not be set aside it must appear affirmatively that it is a judicial decision and made by the unanimous voice of the quorum, and the ruling referred to does not so appear and in fact was not so made.

5. The rule relating to the trial of a number was one adopted by the body upon a recommendation, not a decision of the Twelve, it does not require any previous notice to take up and repeal, is not of the nature of doctrinal law, and consequently can be suspended by the body which adopted it, which was the conference.

6. When the chair ruled the majority report out of order it was not before the house and consequently not subject to the ruling of the chair.

PRES. BLAIR'S STATEMENT.

"Pres. W. W. Blair, in the chair, in reply to a question of order by Elder J. C. Crabb, ruled that the majority report on the withdrawal of brother J. W. Briggs and others was not in order, for the reason that it contained a clause providing that the said J. W. Briggs and others be permitted to withdraw as expressed in their notice to this conference; whereas there was at the same time a by-law of the church which provides that, "no person's name should be stricken from the Church Records until specific charges have been preferred against them, and lawful action had in the case." (See Herald for 1884, page 299).

The chair understood this "opinion of this council" of the Twelve to be in the nature of a decision, from the fact that said council claimed, (and the conference endorsed it), that it was "a judicial body," and that it had "the right, collectively or individually, to render decisions involving the law and usages of the church, in their various fields of labor, and when such decisions are made by individual members of the quorum, said decisions are binding upon the church, and should be respected until brought before the quorum and its decision had." (See Herald for 1884, page 285).

The "main question," then, before the conference was the majority report, and it was upon this that the ruling was asked and rendered, while the amendment then under consideration was merely subsidiary to it. This direct conflict between the said clause of the majority report, and the unrevoked law of the church was the ground and the reason for the expunged ruling.

On motion, the speeches on principal motions were limited to ten minutes, and those on subsidiary ones to five minutes.

The matter before the house on Saturday evening, at adjournment, was taken up, and clause 6 was moved and adopted.

Clause 7 was presented, and its adoption was moved. It was then moved to amend by inserting after the word "same," the words, "through the one appointed to preside over the whole church on earth." Bro. M. T. Short said that he would like light upon this matter. Bro. W. W. Blair spoke in favor of the amendment, as did brethren E. C. Brand and H. L. Holt. On call, the 7th reason for withdrawal, to which the clause under consideration is a reply, was read. Bro. J. H. Lake opposed the amendment; then the following substitute was moved:

"That we believe that all laws to govern the church collectively must come through the president of the church, but that all may receive revelations to govern themselves and those under their charge."

This was opposed by brethren W. H. Kelley, J. R. Lambert, T. W. Chatburn, E. L. Kelley and E. Banta, and explained by Bro. E. C. Brand. Previous question moved and substitute defeated.

The amendment being before the house, was opposed by brethren H. C. Bronson and J. W. Gillen. Previous question moved, but Bro. Charles Derry having tried several times to speak upon this subject, the movers withdrew the previous question, and Bro. Derry spoke, favoring the amendment. It was then put upon its passage and declared lost. Division called for: 45 for and 54 against.

Bro. J. H. Hansen favored dismissing the matter contained in clause 7. On motion Pres. Smith was invited to speak upon this subject, and he did so. The section was then adopted.

Clause 8 was moved and adopted.

Clause 9 was moved, and the numbers of section and paragraph were ordered inserted, and as amended was adopted.

Clause 10 was moved. Bro. J. Caffall asked if there was not a resolution on record providing for the calling for a General Assembly. It was answered that there was, and the secretary read the same, as adopted April 10th, 1874. The clause was adopted.

Clause 11 was read, and it was moved to amend by stating the facts. It was moved to recommit. This was adopted and the committee retired to perfect their report. The following document from the Twelve was read:

Provisions made for ordination of the brethren appointed for ordination to the office of Seventy, who are not present at this session of General Conference is as follows:

That A. H. Smith provide for the ordination of George H. Hilliard; T. W. Smith for J. F. Burton, when practicable; J. H. Lake for Arthur Leverton, when practicable; James Caffall for E. A. Davies; the missionary who shall be in charge of Rocky Mountain Mission, for Peter Anderson; missionary in charge of Pacific Slope Mission for Thomas Daley; W. H. Kelley for L. R. Devore and Richard Salyards; Bro. J. A. Davies' ordination provided for by missionary in charge of field where he resides.

Whereas, it has been requested by the Bishopric that all Elders desiring appointment on a mission should report the approximate amount that it will require to sustain their families for the ensuing year; and whereas, but few have sent in such statements.

Resolved, That we report to the conference that until such information is had, we can not make further recommendation for appointments.

A. H. SMITH, Sec'y.

A document from the Bishop was read as follows:

The work referred to the Bishopric at the last conference of organizing and setting in order the lesser quorums of the church, has been duly considered by us; and after an examination of the law, we are led to conclude that this is a duty enjoined upon the Quorum of the Twelve.

We therefore refer the matter back to the conference, together with all applications for membership to the quorums, lest we should transcend our duties and interfere with that of our brethren, and await your further action in the premises.

G. A. BLAKESLEE, Bishop.

It was ordered that the matter be referred to the Twelve.

Report of the committee on Sunday School lessons in the Hope was read:

We herewith submit the report of our labors for the past year. We have to the best of our ability tried to do the work allotted to us. That work is before you in the Hope from July, 1885, to the present. We have also in part prepared the lessons for the balance of the year, that is up to July 1st, 1886. We would suggest that each annual committee raised by the church be assigned to the preparation of the lessons for the numbers of the Hope necessary to form one complete volume of the paper, commencing with the first and ending with the last number of each volume, respectively.

How acceptable our efforts have been in this direction, we of course are unable to determine. We are conscious, however, of having honestly striven to make those efforts acceptable to God and beneficial to the schools of the church, and if we have succeeded in this, we feel assured that in the end those of our fellow men who feel to unjustly criticize, if any such there be, will likewise approve.

Those who have been using the lessons are prepared to estimate accurately the amount of labor involved in their preparation. The only thing that the committee have to regret is that they have not had time and talent sufficient to bring them to a higher state of perfection. As it is, it will be noticed that several new and valuable features have been added, some as the natural result of added experience, while for others we are indebted to suggestions kindly offered by friends not members of the committee. It is only justice to also state that owing to the members of the committee residing so far from each other, the work has all devolved upon one person. We would suggest that in the appointment of a new committee, it should either be composed of Saints residing at or near the same place, or confined to one person. This will centralize the labor, and in case of the appointment of two or more, furnish all the facilities for a division of the work.

It is a source of gratification to all interested in this new departure, that so many of the church Sunday Schools are using these lessons. It is believed that notwithstanding the imperfect nature of the lessons, it would be well if all schools under the control of the Saints would also adopt them. If there are any that do not feel like using them because of some shortcoming, we submit that it would be better to either endeavor to adapt themselves to the lessons, or to send their criticisms to the committee, so that said committee could receive the benefit of their observations, to the ultimate benefit of all. In this manner we can eventually raise the standard of this department to so high a grade, that instead of being imitators, we will have become models.

It has been suggested by some, that we should have some lessons peculiarly adapted to the use of the primary classes. To such we would say, that there is not space to spare in the Hope at the present time, neither time that we have found any one disposed to give to the preparation of such a department. We have felt that any moderately ingenious primary teacher can by a very small amount of study, get up, by methods of their own, some special interest among the primary scholars in each lesson as they come to it. If the church was prepared for the expense we would suggest that it would be better to publish a special primary primer for this department, than to take up much space in our little paper, and entail so much continuous labor on those charged with the preparation of these lessons.

In conclusion, we submit this report, praying that whatever action may be taken with reference to this matter, that God will bless and prosper the continuation of this department of the great latter day work.

WM. C. CADWELL,
ALICE COBB,
D. F. LAMBERT.

The resignation of Bro. W. C. Cadwell from said committee was read:

I beg to ask that my name be not considered in connection with the Editorship of the Sunday School lessons for the coming year.

In gospel bonds,

WM. C. CADWELL.

LOGAN, IOWA, April 5th.

Bro. C. Derry said that he had a letter from Bro. Cadwell in which he peremptorily resigns. It was moved that his resignation be accepted. Substitute was moved that Bro. Cadwell be retained, and the other members be released. Bro. Derry thought it would be unjust to Bro. Cadwell to continue him. Brethren Crabb and Brand endorsed Bro. Derry's thought. Substitute was lost and Bro. Cadwell's resignation was accepted, with a vote of thanks for his faithful services. Bro. D. R. Lambert also resigned, and his resignation was accepted. Sr. Alice Cobb was released, owing to her ill health and inability to do the work.

The recommitted report was taken up, and paragraph one of clause eleven, as perfected by the committee and reading as follows, was adopted:

"That part of the reasons in the addenda to the application referring to the providing a place of living for certain officers of the church is incorrect and misleading; for said revelation provides for a boarding-house, a hotel for strangers, in which house the President of the church, as such, and his successors, were to 'have place,' but neither he nor they were to own said house, neither were he or they to be its 'governor,' or keeper; and, further, the commandment to build is largely of a local character, has never been reiterated to this church, and, consequently, under the resolution of the body before referred to, not made binding upon us."

Paragraph 2 of part 11 was adopted, as also paragraph 3 as far as the words, "we recommend." Then as amended and as far as adopted by clauses the document was endorsed by vote as a whole.

Brethren H. N. Hansen and John Alfred Davis sent up notes of acceptance of nomination for ordination into Quorum of Seventy, and the former was ordained under the hands of brethren Caffall, Lake and Brand, brother Caffall being spokesman.

The chair announced that no new business should be presented after to-morrow.

Committee to formulate rules concerning trials and appeals reported by the chairman, nothing done.

In the evening Bro. Hiram Rathbun preached, assisted by brethren J. T. Kinnaman and L. Anthony.

TUESDAY, APRIL 13TH.

At nine o'clock the Saints met for prayer, and the meeting was in charge of brethren F. C. Warnkey and John Chisnall. Five who were baptized yesterday were now confirmed by brethren Warnkey, Chisnall, John Hawley and R. M. Elvin.

The morning sermon was preached by Bro. R. J. Anthony, assisted by Bro. T. W. Chatburn.

At half-past one sung, "Come let us anew," and prayer was offered by Bro. A. H. Smith. The minutes of yesterday were read and corrected.

The committee on credentials asked to be released, their work being done for this session, and their request was granted.

The following was moved:

Resolved, That in organized districts, no one be ordained to the office of an Elder, without the voice of the district or conference be had ordering such ordination, or by sanction of the missionary in charge.

Brethren Roth, W. H. Kelley, J. T. Kinnaman and R. Etzenhouser favored it, and brethren E. C. Brand, N. A. Baker and J. A. McIntosh opposed it. It was then moved to amend by striking out the words, "missionary in charge," and inserting the words "president of the district," therefor. This was opposed by brethren Banta and Griffiths, and favored by Bro. Bronson. It was then moved to strike out both these provisions, or all after the word "ordination," in the original. Brethren J. R. Lambert, R. M. Elvin, John Pett and R. Etzenhouser opposed both amendments and favored the original. Previous question moved, and, following, both amendments were put before the house in their order and both were rejected. Then the original was adopted.

A motion was made by Bro. E. Banta, and it was laid upon the table subject to call. Also, the proposed amendment to the Rules of Representation was likewise tabled till called up.

MISSION APPOINTMENTS.

Pres. Blair in the chair.

The following report of the Twelve was read:

MISSIONS.

We, your brethren, members of the Quorum of Apostles, beg leave to report our action in appointments on missionary labor. From all the evidences in our hands of the nature of the work, necessities of the fields considered, the qualifications of the ministry, and ability of the church to sustain her dependencies by reason of these appointments, we advise and recommend the following assignments to the missionary fields of the church.

1. That Bro. William H. Kelley be continued in his former field: Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Eastern Mission, New Jersey, and New England states,—in charge.
2. That Bro. E. C. Briggs be associated with W. H. Kelley, in his field.
3. That J. R. Lambert be continued in his former field: Iowa and Missouri.
4. James Caffall in former field: Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming Territory.
5. Thos. W. Smith in charge of Australasian mission.
6. J. H. Lake in charge of Dominion of Canada mission.
7. A. H. Smith be appointed a mission comprising Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota and Manitoba.
8. E. C. Brand to Galland's Grove district, under missionary in charge.
9. Heman C. Smith in charge of Pacific Slope mission.
10. I. N. Roberts in charge of South-Western Missouri.
11. G. T. Griffiths in Pittsburgh and Kirtland District, under direction of missionary in charge.
12. A. H. Parsons in Kansas, under James Caffall.
13. William T. Bozarth in Missouri and Iowa, under direction of J. R. Lambert.
14. W. J. Smith in Canada, under direction of J. H. Lake.
15. M. H. Bond in Massachusetts district, under direction of W. H. Kelley.
16. Peter Anderson in present field, under direction of missionary in charge.
17. J. W. Gillen in Missouri and Iowa, under direction of J. R. Lambert.
18. M. T. Short in North-Western Illinois, under direction of missionary in charge.

20. H. L. Holt in Pacific Slope Mission, under direction of missionary in charge.

21. John C. Foss in Minnesota, under direction of missionary in charge.

22. I. N. White in Missouri and South-Eastern Kansas.

23. F. M. Sheehy in Maine, under direction of missionary in charge.

24. Richard Salyards in Pittsburgh and Kirtland district, under missionary in charge.

25. L. R. Devore in South-Eastern Ohio and Virginia, under missionary in charge.

26. J. T. Davies in Spring River district, under missionary in charge.

27. C. Scott in Michigan district, under missionary in charge.

28. J. L. Bear, referred to missionary in charge of Missouri and Iowa.

29. John Smith of New Bedford, in Massachusetts District.

30. R. J. Anthony in charge of Rocky Mountain Mission.

31. William Rumel in Nebraska, under missionary in charge.

32. E. A. Davies and Warren Peek in Wyoming District, Pennsylvania, under missionary in charge.

33. Henry Kemp in Fremont District, Iowa.

34. George S. Hyde, associated with I. N. Roberts in South-Western Mission.

35. J. S. Roth in Des Moines District, Iowa.

36. J. C. Clapp in Montana, under missionary in charge of Rocky Mountain Mission, provided arrangements can be made with the Bishop.

37. T. E. Jenkins in Welsh Mission.

38. B. V. Springer in Michigan district, under missionary in charge.

39. George H. Hilliards in Southern Illinois, under missionary in charge.

These appointments we present for your consideration. Also, there are names we are unable to recommend, in consequence of having no report from them as to amount necessary to maintain them.
A. H. SMITH, Sec'y.

It was moved that the report be taken up and the names be acted upon separately. Moved to amend that it be adopted as a whole unless objected to. Chair read Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6. When No. 7 was read, Bro. A. H. Smith made a statement of his financial situation, and said that he could not take the field till he had relief. Brn. M. T. Short and E. L. Kelley spoke upon the subject, and then a committee of three, brethren D. Dancer, F. C. Warnkey and J. W. Chatburn, were appointed to take the matter into consideration. No. 8, missing. At No. 9, it was moved to include "Eastern Nebraska," but it was opposed by brethren E. L. and W. H. Kelley, and effort to amend was defeated. No. 10 was read. No. 11 was referred back to the Twelve. Nos. 12 to 40 were read and passed without objection.

Bro. M. T. Short stated that there were some things that he did not understand, especially in regard to the extensive fields given to some when it has been expressed to limit the fields of missionaries instead of to extend them.

Bro. H. C. Bronson asked a question as to the authority of a district president in case a missionary comes and labors in his district. The chair said that the missionary should work in conjunction with the district president while he is there; but he may be called out of that district at any time by the missionary in charge.

Then the report was adopted as a whole. It was resolved to take up the question of adjournment, and in succession the following places were nominated for holding it in next year. Brethren W. H. Kelley, John Smith, E. L. Kelley, G. T. Griffith, F. M. Sheehy, H. L. Holt and J. H. Lake spoke in favor of Kirtland; E. Banta in favor of Plano; J. W. Gillen in favor of Lamoni or Salt Lake City; J. H. Hansen and M. H. Bond in favor of some where in New England. Brethren Brand and Kinnaman also spoke upon the subject of adjournment. The vote being taken, 52 were cast for Kirtland, 22 for Independence, 4 for Plano, 4 for Council Bluffs. The two highest being then presented resulted in 58 for Kirtland and 41 for Independence. Following, Kirtland was made the unanimous choice.

Thanks were voted to the Saints and friends of Lamoni for their kindness and hospitality to the delegates and visitors; also to the Methodist friends for the use of their house on Sunday last; also to the choir, and to the railroads that gave us special rates, and to the newspapers in which reports of the conference have appeared.

The evening sermon was preached by Bro. H. C. Bronson, assisted by Bro. Duncan Campbell.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14TH.

The morning prayer meeting lasted, by previous appointment, from nine o'clock till noon, and was in charge of brethren Abram Reese and John Goode. Many testimonies were borne, and eight were administered to.

At half-past one o'clock, the hymn, "Midst scenes of confusion and creature complaints." Bro. M. H. Forscutt offered prayer. Minutes read and amended.

Pres. Blair in the chair. Pres. Smith retired.

The sustaining of church officials was now taken up. On motion, Joseph Smith was sustained as President of the Church. A paper concerning his having a vacation from his cares and labors was referred to a committee to draft a resolution upon the subject and present to conference. It was spoken upon by brethren W. H. Kelley and R. C. Elvin, and was referred to brethren W. H. Kelley, M. H. Forscutt and John Chisnall, as a committee to draft and present a paper embodying the views of conference.

On motion, President W. W. Blair was sustained.

The members of the Apostolic quorum were sustained, afterwards the Bishopric, then the High Priests' Quorum, the Quorum of Seventy; the First, Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Quorums of Elders, and the First Quorum of Priests. The Secretary and Recorder of the Church was sustained, then the Church Librarian.

On the motion to sustain the Board of Publication, Bro. E. L. Kelley said that the Board had passed a resolution that was contrary to the will expressed by this body, as expressed in a resolution a year ago, and he moved that the sustaining of the Board be deferred till half-past one o'clock tomorrow, and it was so ordered.

The following concerning the Church

Historian was moved by E. C. Brand and J. W. Wight:

Whereas, in past years Elder J. W. Briggs was appointed Church Historian; and Whereas, by action of church in granting his withdrawal, such appointment is cancelled. Therefore, be it Resolved, that a committee of three be appointed to wait upon J. W. Briggs, authorized to request and receive from him all or any books or papers belonging to the said church in his hands as such historian.

It was spoken to by brethren Short and W. H. Kelley. It was then moved to amend, that the committee be empowered to arrange and compensate the historian for his past labor, as they may agree. It was moved to amend, that it be referred to the Bishopric. This was spoken upon by brethren G. A. Blakeslee and Jos. Smith, and it was moved to substitute the names of "E. C. Briggs, W. H. Kelley and J. R. Lambert," for "the Bishopric." This substitute prevailed, as did the original thus amended.

The following was moved by Heman C. Smith and E. L. Kelley:

Resolved, That provision four, of section three, of the Articles of Representation, which reads:

"Provided 4th; That no one delegate shall represent in the same conference more than one district," be stricken out, and the following inserted in lieu thereof: Provided 4th; That no one delegate shall be entitled to cast, as representative, in the same conference, more than twenty votes.

This was favored by brethren Heman C. Smith, E. L. Kelley and T. W. Chatburn, and questions were asked by brethren Joseph Smith, A. S. Cochran, A. W. Moffett, John Smith and H. C. Bronson, and was adopted.

Then it was ordered that the Board of Publication print and keep on sale copies of the Rules of Representation.

Report of Bishopric on the books and work of the Church Recorder was taken up.

The committee appointed at a previous conference of the body to examine and report upon the books and work performed by the Church Recorder, respectfully submit the following:—

1. That the work of recording, or entering upon the record the names of members and proper items connected therewith, is substantially completed to the present time.

2. The work of indexing, as provided for by the resolution of conference in 1882, is completed up to the year 1882; but the Recorder expresses his readiness to bring up the index, and so far as practicable, keep the same with the records without additional compensation.

3. The committee state further, that the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars a year allowed the recorder for the work in 1882, is deemed sufficient per year for the work still required.

G. A. BLAKESLEE,
E. L. KELLEY,
E. BANTA.

A call being made for the views of the Recorder, he gave them. Then the adoption of the report was moved. It was then moved to amend by striking out "$150" and inserting "$300." This was discussed and questions asked. Being put to vote it was lost by 39 against to 32 for. Moved to amend by inserting: "$350 for labor as both Secretary and Recorder, and for office rent." It was moved to amend this by giving "$125 per year for work as Recorder, and $125 as Secretary." This was spoken upon by several. Then the amendment to the amendment was put upon its passage and declared lost, as was also the amendment. The recommendation in the report that "$150 be allowed for the work as Recorder," was then adopted. Then it was moved to give $150 for the Secretary's work and office room. This was amended to read: "$100 for the work as Secretary, and strike out that about the office-room." This prevailed. The report was then adopted.

The statement of the Presidency, in relation to the Cameron branch, Ontario, was read:

We find the paper sent to us is but a notice of an appeal from certain rulings of Bro. J. H. Lake, of which ruling we have no official notice and which does not affect the standing of the parties named; We can not therefore make any decision or give any direction in the case.

We think the district and mission authorities quite competent to consider and settle the matter without interference by us in the way desired.

JOSEPH SMITH,
W. W. BLAIR.

LAMONI, IOWA, April 14th, 1886.

Also, the decision of the Presidency in the case of the Far West district vs. F. W. Curtis:

It appears that this case was placed for trial in the hands of Elder J. R. Lambert, for his examination and decision, Bro. Curtice agreeing that Bro. Lambert's decision should be final. Bro. J. R. Lambert examined the case and rendered a decision in the case. The agreement of submission by Bro. Curtice and the authorities of the district, that the decision of Elder J. R. Lambert should be final, we believe should bind the parties. The Presidency are of the opinion that the appeal asked for should not be entertained.

The papers should be returned to the custody of the secretary of the Far West District.

JOSEPH SMITH,
W. W. BLAIR.

April session conference at Lamoni, Iowa.

A resolution was presented that a committee of five be appointed to arrange for holding the conference of 1887, at Kirtland, Ohio. Bro. W. H. Kelley thought the district could arrange that matter.

Bro. M. H. Forscutt spoke of a petition printed in the Nebraska City papers, concerning his being appointed by this conference. The Quorum of Twelve said that it was in their hands.

The following concerning Pres. Smith was adopted by a standing vote:

Whereas, The president of this body has labored incessantly for a number of years to serve the interests of the church, and

Whereas, he is no exception to the rule that rest and relaxation are essential to men of all grades and ranks, in order to longevity and life-usefulness; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this conference does hereby request him to take such a vacation, and for such length of time, as will relieve him from the cares and burdens incident to his position and duties, and afford him requisite rest and serve to recuperate his forces, and

Further, This conference does also hereby authorize the payment of all legitimate expenses from the general funds available to the Bishopric of the church,

WM. H. KELLEY,
M. H. FORSCUTT,
JOHN CHISNALL.

He thanked the conference in the indulgence granted.

At the evening service, Pres. J. Smith preached, assisted by Bro. M. T. Short,

THURSDAY, APRIL 15TH.

The Saints met at half-past eight o'clock for prayer and testimony. The meeting was in charge of Bro. R. M. Elvin, assisted by Bro. R. Etzenhouser.

Conference met at ten o'clock for business; sung hymn 679. Prayer by Pres. Smith. Minutes of yesterday read and amended.

A petition from Nebraska City, signed by two hundred and eight names, that Bro. M. H. Forscutt be appointed to labor in the Southern Nebraska District, was read.

It was moved to grant the request and so appoint. This was spoken upon, and it was moved to amend by referring to the Quorum of the Twelve. This was defeated, and on motion it was laid upon the table subject to call.

The decision of the Bishopric in the case of Bro. D. H. Bays and the Galland's Grove Branch was read.

The Bishop's Court to which was referred the matter pending between the Galland's Grove Branch and D. H. Bays, after an examination of the same find as follows:

1. That the only question brought before us requiring a decision is upon the refusal of the branch to grant to the said Bays a letter of removal and this refusal is based almost wholly upon the ground that certain things had been said, and had taken place upon a trial in which another brother was defendant and D. H. Bays plaintiff.

2. That the complaints urged against Bro. Bays, as claimed to have appeared as cause in the trial of said case, in which Bays was plaintiff, the said Bays has never been charged with in a manner that would permit him to make defense of the same if he was able to do so, and that there are now no charges pending against him, as shown by the parties to this Court.

It is therefore the judgment of the Court, that unless charges are filed against the said D. H. Aays, with the secretary of his quorum by the 20th day of May, 1886, that the secretary of said branch be authorized to issue a letter of removal to the said Bays, and erase the name of the said Bays from the records of the said Galland's Grove Branch!

G. A. BLAKESLEE,
E. L. KELLEY,
E. BANTA.

It was adopted.

On motion the proposed amendments to the Rules of Order were taken up, as deferred from the session of 1885, and on further motion the matter was referred to the committee on rules concerning trials and appeals.

Then it was

Resolved, That the committee on appeals be requested to report through the Herald, as soon as practicable; said report to be subject to future action of conference.

Another report of the Quorum of Apostles was read and adopted as a whole:

MISSIONS.

The Quorum of Twelve do further report on missions, the following recommendations:—

41. Geo. T. Chute in South-Eastern Mission, under direction of missionary in charge.

42. James A. McIntosh in London District, Canada Mission, under direction of missionary in charge, when satisfactory arrangements can be made between himself, the missionary in charge, and the Bishopric.

43. George Montague, in charge of the South-Eastern Mission.

44. R. M. Elvin in former field, under missionary in charge.

45. D. S. Mills in Pacific Slope Mission, under direction of missionary in charge.

46. M. R. Scott in Southern Indiana District, if arrangements with the Bishopric and missionary in charge can be made.

47. E. J. French in Southern District of California, under direction of missionary in charge; self-sustaining.

48. E. A. Steadman in Southern Minnesota, under direction of the missionary in charge; self-sustaining.

49. J. R. Badham, D. L. Harris, A. W. Thomson and Wm. Gibson, be referred to the missionary in charge of Pacific Slope Mission.

50. Oliver Johnson in Rocky Mountain Mission, under direction of missionary in charge; self-sustaining.

51. John Larsen in Rocky Mountain Mission, under direction of missionary in charge.

52. F. P. Scarcliff in South-Eastern Mission, under direction of missionary in charge, if necessary arrangements can be made with the Bishopric.

53. Hiram H. Robinson in the Independence District, Missouri, under direction of missionary in charge.

54. F. M. Cooper in Northern Illinois, under direction of missionary in charge, if suitable arrangements can be made with Bishopric.

55. Otis Foss in East Maine District, under direction of they missionary in charge.

That the petition for laborers from Oregon be referred to the missionary in charge of Pacific Slope Mission, and he be requested if possible to supply its requirements.

And we further beg leave to report the following explanation and statement:—While under existing circumstances, we feel the impracticability of meeting every wish and affording entire satisfaction in this to us important duty, we ask your indulgence, for the presentation of the following explanation:—

1st. The Seventy have been assigned to districts or other localities under direction of missionary in charge, that if necessity demands, which in some cases is probable, they may be directed elsewhere without creating the thought of a desire to infringe or interfere with district arrangements.

2d. The centralizing of ministerial labors, to a greater extent, seems important.

3d. Some of the Seventy live in one State, and in close proximity to another, and because of the force of circumstances, it seems wisdom for the time being, to appoint so they can labor in both States, which has been so arranged, with no desire to contain the rights of one and prove extra indulgent to another. In this work of appointment, however undesirable, the force of circumstances, necessitates the acceptance of the inevitable.

4th. The smallest of the ministerial force, to meet the pressing demands, is the only apology we can offer for a failure, to meet the request for sending two and two.

5th. The appointment of the respective members of this quorum, to extensive fields, in our understanding, is in keeping with our calling, as shown in the organic law, and consonant with instruction of the First Presideucy, not that it is practicable to visit every point, but that it may be known who is in charge, that when a necessity arises, all may know where or to whom to refer.

Further: The High Priest's Quorum, having failed to report to the Quorum of Twelve for missions, we therefore could not make any recommendations for their appointment, except one, who was reported to us by his district, with a request that he be appointed.

A. H. SMITH, Sec.

Oregon was referred to the president of the Pacific Slope Mission.

A further report of the same quorum was read:

That part of the report concerning missionary appointments was adopted; and also the recommendation of Bro. A. H. Smith concerning the appointment of Bro. Thomas Dailey to the Northern California District, under missionary in charge.

Resolved, That this body request the members of the Quorum of Twelve to state the reasons why Bro. M. H. Forscutt was not assigned a mission, and that they be requested to report as early as practicable this afternoon.

It was then moved to take up the petition from Nebraska City, in regard to Bro. Forscutt, and act upon it. This motion was defeated.

Report of the committee in regard to Bro. A. H. Smith was read:

Your committee appointed in the case of A. H. Smith, beg leave to report as follows: After receiving information from the Bishop, we find that it is impossible to recommend the payment of the amount Bro. A. A. Smith requires to liquidate his indebtedness, owing to the depleted condition of the treasury. We your committee think it would work an injury to the church by granting him his request.

J. W. CHATBURN,
DAVID DANCER,
F. C. WARNKY.

It was moved that the report be adopted and the committee be discharged. Then the following was moved:

Moved to refer back to the committee for further consideration, and that they be asked to report to the body upon the question of the validity of the claim, as they are able to obtain the facts; also as to when the same can be paid, and in what manner, if deemed a claim against the church.

This was discussed, but the hour of twelve having arrived, adjournment was had, with the matter still pending.

At half past one o'clock a hymn was sung and Pres. W. W. Blair offered prayer. The minutes of the forenoon session were read and approved.

The subject before the house at adjournment was taken up. The question of recommitting was opposed by Bro. F. C. Warnky. It was then moved as a substitute that the whole matter be referred to the Bishopric. This was discussed, brethren E. Banta, E. L. Kelley, Samuel Crum, G. A. Blakeslee, M. T. Short; Alfred White spoke against, and brethren C. Scott, Hans Hansen, J. T. Kinaman, E. J. French and A. S. Cochran in favor. Bro. H. L. Holt also spoke upon it. It was then moved to amend by inserting the word, "Bishopric," the words, "and that they be instructed to settle it as soon as practicable." This was opposed by brethren H. C. Bronson and M. H. Bond, and favored by Bro. R. C. Elvin. Previous question was called and amendment was lost. Then the motion to refer to Bishopric was lost; also the motion to recommit. Then the motion to adopt the report and discharge the committee prevailed.

The mission appointment of Bro. A. H. Smith was then taken up and it was moved that $700 be given to his family for the coming year. This was favored by brethren E. L. Kelley, F. C. Warnky and M. H. Bond and opposed by brethren Alfred White, and H. L. Holt. The previous question being called for, the motion was adopted, and following it Bro. Smith was sustained in his appointment, and in his charge over the same.

The sustaining of the Board of Publication was put before the house. Bro. E. L. Kelley spoke in opposition to a rule adopted by the Board, as previously referred to, and then moved the following:

That this body does not approve of the resolution on restricting Herald articles of the Board of Publication, as published in the Herald of April 25th, 1885.

This was opposed by brethren W. W. Blair, C. Derry, F. C. Warnkey and E. Banta, and favored by brethren E. L. Kelley, J. R. Lambert and W. H. Kelley. The previous question was moved and ordered, and the vote being taken the resolution was declared lost. Division called for resulted in a count of 19 for, and 34 against. The yeas and nays being denied, the Secretary called the roll. The result was as follows:

REDUCED RATES FOR CONVENTIONS.

The railroads west of Chicago have adopted a new plan for carrying out their policy of granting reduced rates, on certain occasions, to delegates attending large meetings and conventions. This new plan makes it necessary for the person who is a delegate to a meeting for which reduced rates have been granted, to procure from the ticket agent of whom he purchases his ticket for the point at which such meeting is to be held, a receipt for the amount of fare so paid. This receipt, when filled out and countersigned by the secretary of the convention, becomes a certificate, which, when presented to ticket agent by the person to whom it was originally issued, will entitle such person to a return ticket at one-third the regular fare, provided reduced rates have been granted beforehand by the railroads for this occasion.

As no benefit can be derived from such reduction in rates unless this plan is followed, our readers will do well to bear this in mind.

EDITOR.

W. W. BLAIR

ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 1, 1886.

BRO. JAMES H. PETERS, of Manistee, Michigan, having a desire to aid the active ministry in sowing the good seed, has decided upon having the Voice of Warning printed in quantity, to be issued by him as a circulating library, to agents appointed by him in branches and districts, the books to be loaned to those who will promise to read them. Bro. Peters has an edition of 3,000 copies, which will be known as Peters' Circulating Library. He will issue the books from his office in East Lake, Michigan, where he may be addressed. Those who may be willing to aid this enterprise of Bro. Peters, will do well to help the agents who may be chosen by him in securing readers for the Library. Missionaries in charge, Presidents of districts and branches will please take the matter into consideration, and select some one or more of the Saints who will be suitable persons to be appointed agents for Bro. Peters, and write him at once; as he is desirous to be at work. Select active, energetic, and capable men or women who will look after the matter intrusted to them faithfully.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE issued no HERALD for the 17th inst., for the reason that the Annual Conference began its session here on the 6th and continued till the 17th, requiring all connected with the office to either attend strictly upon conference business, or to wait upon those in attendance. This explanation should have been made in the issue for the 24th, and our patrons will please pardon our negligence.

Conference so impeded the Herald Office work that no paper was issued for the 17th of April; do not write that you failed to receive it, as none was printed.

Plano still maintains its "no licence" reputation. At the late municipal election the no licence ticket was elected. Hurrah for little Plano!

Bro. Hiram Rathbun in a card from Lansing, Michigan, April 1st, states that he had been at Dimondale for Sunday, March 28th, and on Monday, 29th, baptized three, and organized a branch of twelve; Bro. Franklin Spafford being chosen to preside and ordained a Priest. Bro. Rathbun closes with, "We had a glorious meeting; all were joyful and happy."

Bro. John Miller writes from Pittsfield, Illinois, who states that there has been but little done since the death of Bro. C. Mills. Bro. Jackson Goodale was in too poor health to do much away from home, and hence not much labor was done in the district, although Bro. Goodale is more than willing to do his part. They would be pleased if some one would come in and preach for them.

Bro. Wm. Newton, of Wyandotte, Kansas, reports personally to us that within the past six weeks he has baptized from Armstrong and the vicinity of his home, fourteen persons. He has opened the work where he thinks the prospects are good for further increase in numbers. Some cures have been wrought in connection with the efforts of himself and others in the ministry, benefits accruing to those administered to in nearly every instance.

Sr. M. J. Bierly of Seligman, Mo., expresses the hope, in a late letter to us, that the people of that vicinity will soon be ready to hear the fulness of the gospel; and she also hopes the time is at hand when the truth will go forth triumphantly to all nations. "I fear no evil," she writes, "as I feel that the Spirit of the Lord is continually with me."

Bro. W. Vickery, of Plano, Illinois, writes us on the first instant that all goes fairly there, and that one more had, on the previous Sunday, united by baptism.

Sr. Alice Strickland of Bell Prairie, Nebraska, renewed for the HERALD, and says,—"I can not do without it."

Bro. E. Carleton of Petrolia, Ontario, under date of April 5th, says of the church: "I love this glorious work, and know it is of God and is the power of God unto salvation." He thinks tea and coffee drinking are injurious, and says many of the Saints there have quit their use.

A brother writes from Detroit, Dakota, that a friend to whom he had loaned his books acknowledged he had "learned more of God's truth than he ever knew before, and I think he will join the church."

Bro. J. C. Hardman writes us from Oakley, Kansas, and orders his mail sent there. We wish him joy and prosperity in his new home.

Good news from England: see brother Joseph Dewsnap's letter of April 18th.

Bro. Moses Welch of Shell Creek, Neb., has many good words for the HERALD; says he has taken it since 1865, has not missed one number, and esteems it of greater worth than all other papers he ever read. He testifies that the Lord, through the administration of Bro. Hudson, raised his wife from extreme sickness when physicians said she would die.

By letter from Bro. Frank Swann of European Works, Birmingham, England, we learn that the church is making steady gains in that region, and has good prospects ahead. He is a commercial traveller for a large manufactory of steel pens, and wishes to get into communication with some good thorough business man who will engage with him in introducing his wares in America.

Mrs. L. E. Kelley writes from Delta Michigan, the 30th ult., informing us that a number of excellent people near Dimondale have recently "heard the voice of the Good Shepherd and are willing to obey." She adds, "We are much interested in reading the HERALD, and wish it God-speed. The Mothers' Home Column is a great addition to the paper."

Elder J. C. Clapp wrote from Deer Lodge, Montana, the 9th inst., and expresses hopes of steady progress of Church interests in that region, and says,—"I will do all I can for our dear HERALD and all of our church papers, for they are the Lord's silent messengers of truth."

Bro. H. A. Lord, of Clear Lake, Ind., speaks in high terms of the late visit of Elder Hiram Rathbun to their place and vicinity, and says the blessings of the Lord attended his administrations.

Bro. I. Hogaboom wrote from Bloomington, Charles Mix county, Dakota, April 13th, that the people were turning out fairly well to hear him on the faith and hope of the latter days.

Bro. W. W. Hutchings wrote from Beaver, Utah, April 4th, that there was not much now said about the Reorganization and its work in Beaver. People south of Beaver were some of them disappointed because brethren Luff and Smith did not go beyond that place last fall. He thinks further, that one who has not been mixed up in the theories of Brighamism will do better in Beaver than one of the so called "apostates."

Bro. Albert Haws wrote from Sweet Home, Linn county, Oregon, March 28th, that he had large and attentive congregations, with invitations to visit the people, and calls to preach in other places. Brn. J. W. Gillen and J. C. Clapp left good evidences of their work in that region. Bro. Haws thanks all who have sent him tracts for Oregon. His address will be Sweet Home, until further notice.

Bro. C. A. Bishop, of Independence, Missouri, is contemplating visiting his native country, Switzerland, and is expecting to tell the gospel story while there. Bro. John D. Jone, of Kewanee, Illinois, is also expecting to visit his home in Wales, and will while there, occupy upon the talent entrusted to him as an Elder. We bid these brethren both "God speed."

We have numerous letters on file which we intended to publish, but now find we have no room for them, as our columns are crowded with other matter.

Bro. Wm. B. Smith, (uncle William) writes from his home, Elkader, Iowa, that he is recovering to such a degree that he hopes to do some labor this summer.

A good sister wishes some one to write upon the question whether the blood of Christ was shed for original sin, or for our own personal transgression.

A brother writes,—“I have been without the HERALD a year and a little over, and can not stand it any longer. Please send it.”

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. C. H. Prouty, of North Weymouth, Massachusetts, writes April 8th:

“I have never been able to say, ‘that was a poor discourse,’ since I belonged to the church, and I hope I never shall be heard to say as much in Weymouth. The gospel has been presented at my house twice, once by Bro. Chester and once by Bro. Steffe, to but a few; and last of all by Bro. M. H. Bond, who spoke in a hall to quite a number, with good liberty. He made a good impression, as some were heard to say they could have sat and heard him an hour longer. May God bless him and his family, and all that labor for the Master.”

Sister Sarah Phelps, of Basco, Hancock county, Illinois, writes us saying:

“I suppose conference will be in session ere you receive this. I have not been to General Conference since I was at Nauvoo, and heard brother Joseph, the Seer, preach King Follett's funeral sermon.”

Sister Annie Bachtol writes from Fremont, Indiana, the 4th ult., and says:

“We do have some of the happiest meetings, because of the manifestations of the Holy Spirit. . . . I truly thank my heavenly Father that he has called me from darkness into light, for I truly know that this is none other than the work of God.”

Bro. Thomas W. Smith writing from Avatou, Rairoa, February 28th, says:

“Our friends who send us papers, will please send direct to us, and not to Bro. Andrews at San Francisco. Let everything be sent in time to reach San Francisco by the last day of each month or sooner. The mail leaves on the first day of each month. If the mail does not get there in time, it must remain in the Post Office at San Francisco a whole month. Letters cost five cents per one half ounce. When not paid for in full there, I have to pay here what is lacking. Our friends must look in the Herald and Hope for descriptions of land, people, and manners and customs. We can not write only in answer to direct questions to individuals. Do not send American stamps. If any wish to help us in postage expenses, they can send American paper money. If they can not afford that, we will be satisfied with the desire to help us.”

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—(1) Whereas, the Conference has decided that an expelled member can only be reinstated by baptism—is, or can he be reinstated, without; unless, by a legitimate investigation with all parties concerned, proof shall be given of the expelled member having been unjustly dealt with in his expulsion? (2) And if by ex-parte testimony an official, branch or district, says to the expelled; “You are restored, go thy way, and live in all the privileges of a bona fide church member;” would it not be a deception, and who would be responsible? (3) If not, then what of the protestations against ex-parte testimony, and what significance or force has law? (4) Would not the clause, “That which is governed by law, is also preserved by law,” appear flexible, purposeless—a myth?

Ans.—(1) We presume not. (2) It would be a matter subject to inquiry. The parties in the wrong would be responsible. (3) Objections to ex-parte testimony would not be affected, nor the significance or force of law be changed—every case is governed by its circumstances. (4) No.

Q.—Is the clause in Sec. 59, Doctrine and Covenants, “Thou shalt go to the house of prayer,” etc., (circumstances of course being considered) imperative? If not, why not? or by what rule of logic is the “Thou shalt not steal “binding”?”

A.—Yes, all commands are imperative in a degree. “Thou shalt not steal,” is a negative command and applies to all men, as to steal interferes with the personal rights of others. “Thou shalt go to the house of prayer” applies to those who profess belief in Christ. To refrain from going does not interfere with others personal right, in a sense of injury; and belongs in the class, Thou shalt “feed the hungry,” “clothe the naked,” “relieve the distressed,” “give to him that asketh of thee, and from him that would borrow turn thou not away,” “love thine enemy,” do good to them that despitefully use you,” &c., all requirements of “pure and undefiled religion.

Q.—Does not the method of common consent impose the responsibility on every department of the church to, through legislation, labor to enact measures to carry out duties existing which law imposes; and is it not intended as a preventive; rather than giving a license, to enter the sacred precincts of the divine economy, with a view to modify, or change?

A.—We so understand the matter.

Q.—(1). Are we to understand that the repeated affirmations by conference to the effect that the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, are the standard books containing the word of the Lord, is the end of controversy on doctrine, church government, etc.? (2). If so, would a motion that the laying on of hands be repealed be permissible? (3).

If so, and a vote obtained, fifty for the repealing act, and forty-nine against it, would the laying on of hands, or its practice, be null and void? (4). If not, what move of procedure would be proper? Declaring the motion out of order, or a reversal of the voting?

A.—(1). Yes. (2). Yes. (3). Yes, so far as the teaching of the Elders was concerned. (4). Either method would effect the object.

Q.—If neither of the above methods would be proper, and the one vote renders null and void, would not legislation by parliamentary rule in that case be superior to the law of God?

A.—Yes, for the time being; and subject to the penalties which God might choose to inflict on the church for disregarding his law.

Q.—Is there a wrong a member can commit that denies him the right of explanation, defense, or perchance recanting from the wrong before a declaration is made of his guilt, and he held up to the world as a transgressor?

A.—No, answering the question categorically. But there are things which a man can do by which he ignores the body and waives his right to be heard.

Q.—If persistent and continuous innovation finds a climax in apostasy, what is the preventive to apostasy?

A.—That which would prevent innovation, or avert it when attempted.

WE have before us a letter dated at San Bernardino, Cal., the 2d instant, giving an account of “a lady (?) medium,” who of late in that place was “materializing spirits” at Capt. John Brown's residence, “bringing her keepers much gain,” (hundreds of dollars per night, it is stated) and who was detected in a most substantial and damaging manner. At one of these meetings, when the ghost was skirmishing around in full feather, the signal-cry “water!” was made, and in an instant the would-be visitor from the dead was struggling in the vise-like grip of those determined to know who and what the goblin was, when, lo! the medium herself stood revealed in scanty, gauzy apparel through which shone a dim lurid light, the result of a thorough anointing of her person with oil and phosphorus! Kicks and screams and scuffling only served to more fully reveal the fact that this “angel” was of a most veritable flesh-and-blood sort; and, that she would not have her craft exposed without resisting to the uttermost. The next morning, it is stated, she folded her tent and left for parts unknown, taking with her many hundred dollars paid her by those whom she had deluded with her wretched wiles. One would think that the exposures of Eddy, Brittain, Young, &c., &c., in their “materializing” tricks, would have protected spiritualists and their friends, from this last shameful imposition.

On and after May 1st, the C. B. & Q. R. R. will put on sale round trip excursion tickets to Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo. These tickets are good going west for fifteen days from date of sale, and to return until October 31st, 1886. Round trip tickets, limited as above, are also for sale at low rates, via this route, to Las Vegas, Hot Springs and other prominent tourists' points. For tickets, rates and general information inquire of the agent at the C. B. & Q. R. R. station.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"In the dark we cry like children: and no answer from on high Breaks the crystal spheres of silence, and no white wings downward fly;
But the heavenly help we pray for comes to faith, and not to sight,
And our prayers themselves drive backward, all the spirits of the night."

ENCOURAGEMENT.

This is the 4th day of April. On Tuesday conference will convene, and it may be before this issue of the Herald reaches you, will have closed its session. In due time the minutes will reach you, but there will be many precious testimonies, many words of cheer and encouragement, which will never find their way into the Herald. A few of these (as many as we can) we propose to send through this column to the absent ones. As we write, the bell is sounding forth its summons for testimony meeting, and the sidewalk is crowded with eager groups hurrying to the house of God. Many Saints from a distance are already here, and many more are expected to-morrow. God speed them on their way! May they bring with them the Spirit of the Master, and when they go hence, may they go with a two-fold renewal of the same. Thus far, peace and harmony prevail; and one thing, which to us appears remarkable, is the character of the sermons we have thus far been permitted to hear. We all love the doctrine because it is the doctrine of Christ, the doctrine of which Paul said to Timothy, "Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself and them that hear thee," and we love to hear it well and ably defended; but while this is the case, we know that doctrine alone will not save us. There is a spiritual food for which the children of the kingdom have gone hungering; but thank God his ministry seem to be awaking to this fact, and are preaching to the church! Like men of God they are giving to each one a portion in due season, and the membership are awaking to a sense of the solemn responsibilities resting upon them. "Awake, awake," seems to be the cry upon every hand. "Put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem," . . . said one Elder.—(Brother Holt.)

"In 'the dark and cloudy day' there was persecution and suffering, it is true, but those who went out to preach the gospel then, found the world waiting to hear, and many ready to believe. There was evil with the good in the experience of the laborers. They were persecuted, but successful and blessed. Now the world treats us with indifference. They admit the doctrine good for those who want it, but they have no need of it. They are not in the market to select what they do not care to possess. If you prove a point to them they will say: 'That's well enough for you, but the next man that comes along will prove his points just the same.' The Lord is delaying his coming, and testing the faith of all, that he may prove the worthy. Who would not go and preach if they were everywhere heard with joy? Who would not gladly lay hands upon the sick and afflicted if they were always healed? It is a trial to lay on hands and the sick not be healed, to stand and testify and none hear. It is a trial to have to preach when the Spirit is withheld, but bye and bye when we are sufficiently tried, the Lord will call the worthy forth.

It is a cheering thought that the kingdom of God is like unto a mustard seed. We are sowing the seed but must wait for results. We can only sow; the Lord must water and give the increase. A servant of God can not go in the power of God, and the labor be in vain. If he speaks the word of the Lord, the Lord has declared 'it shall not return to me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereunto I sent it.' When preaching without seeing results, the tired laborer feels discouraged. I want in this connection to tell you for your encouragement, a circumstance which has cheered and encouraged me. I believe it will do the same for you. The brother who told it to me was an earnest, prayerful worker. Faithful in sowing the seed, but seeing apparently no result from his labor, became discouraged and very much cast down in spirit. In this frame of mind he retired to the woods to pray. I will give the statement in his own words:

I had been feeling very bad to think my works availed so little, and had gone off by myself to pray when I received the following testimony: 'Thy words are being heard by many, are being nourished by the Spirit, and will give fruit unto the honor and glory of God. Thy name is known in the councils of heaven.' I have preached when none have seemed to hear, and the good I hoped for I've not seen; but the promise is that the Spirit will bring the words to remembrance. The Latter Day Saints are doing a greater work than they know. The time will come when this will be plain. He that keeps the record will reward justly. The work seems in good hands and good condition. When we are sufficiently tried, the Lord will call the worthy forth, and they will be clothed with power, to persuade men, to heal the sick and cast out devils. We long for the power to persuade men, the power to reach the honest hearted ones, the honorable ones of the earth. Be diligent, be prayerful, be faithful, for the time is near when God will clothe with this power those whose have not failed him in the hour of trial—those who are worthy.

"I strive to preach to the world the things they ought to do. When I preach to the Saints I wish to tell them the things they need to know, and I wish to comfort them. Be faithful, for it is a day of sacrifice, and they who are not willing to make the sacrifice need not think they are going to wear the crown."

Weary mothers and careworn sisters, is there not encouragement for us here? If it be encouragement for the poor, worn, and disheartened Elder out in the harvest field of the world, it is encouragement for the wife and mother at home. Home is the earthly harbor where his heart turns for refuge when the clouds gather blackness and the fierce storms of life beat upon his unsheltered head. Let the light of love and patient endurance shine brightly from the windows of that home; and his heart is cheered, his spirit strengthened and he goes forth upon his way rejoicing. Do you think God is unmindful of the patient, toiling, self-sacrificing wives and mothers at home? Do they need less grace, less encouragement to bear their part, than the husband in the field?

"God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love, which ye have showed towards his name, in that ye have ministered to the Saints and do minister." It is a day of sacrifice and if we are the people who are to be gathered unto him, our covenant must be made by sacrifice. Perhaps it may be in the heart of some one to say "If sacrifice is good for one it is good for another—good for all." It is good for all rest assured of that, or God would not so have ordered it, but if we withhold ours because another is not willing to lay his upon the altar, we suffer loss, that is all. It is our service, our sacrifice which God demands, not our neighbors' and "if the righteous scarcely are saved," can we afford to be less than righteous?

An Elder once said to us, "Often when we have been out on a mission and have set down to the bountiful tables provided for us, we have thought of the scanty fare upon our own board at home and our hearts have been made so heavy that we could scarcely swallow the food, prepared for us with such loving care. How gladly would we have gone without our own portion, to have sent it to the wife and little ones at home."

Perhaps some of you have known this scanty fare, have had to do as we are knowing to this Elder's wife having done, breast the cold storms of winter attending to work which only a man should do, living upon a pittance so small that we doubt whether the sparrows would trust such a supply for their daily bread. If perchance you have O, faithful ones, be patient just a little longer, put your trust in God for he is not unrighteous. Don't suffer the adversary of all righteousness to cheat you out of your reward. Oh! how much better to go to riches, than to leave them behind—how infinitely better to have treasures in heaven than upon earth. "Woe unto you that are rich! for ye have received your consolation." Do not let Satan have power to tempt you to envy or covet, but let "patience have her perfect work." The reward is for those who endure to the end. May God help us to endure unto the end.

We are in receipt of letters and clippings from sister Alice Ryan, also articles from Almira and Lucy Lloyd.

"CAST IN THY MITE."

Dear Sisters of the Mothers' Home Column:—Being one among the many whom I trust have been benefitted and greatly blessed by your timely warning and admonitions, I thought to offer my heart-felt thanks for the many precious gems I have culled from your column since its first introduction through the Herald. I pray God that they may sink deep into our hearts and bring forth fruit in the future. I deeply regret that too much time has been lost already. I confess that I for one, am awakened to a sense of the responsibility that is resting on me as a mother, and desire your prayers that I may be enabled with God's help to bring up my children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Our advantages have been very limited away here in western Texas, but as God is no respecter of persons, I thought by way of encouragement I would cast in my mite, and then give place to abler writers. Praying that our Heavenly Father may bless and prosper you all in this great and important work in which you are engaged, I subscribe myself, your sister in the one faith, JULIA V. NEAL.

OAK ISLAND, TEXAS, March 10th, 1886.

Let God be the judge of ability. Do not by "giving place to others" "put your candle under a bushel." We need the prayerful, sanctified effort of every mother and sister who love the Lord Jesus Christ. "Let your light shine."—[Ed.]

FOUNTAIN GREEN TOWNSHIP,
HANCOCK CO., ILL., March 10th.

Dear Sisters:—Seeing the invitation in the "Home Column" for both the aged and young to contribute to sustaining it, and wishing to lend a helping hand towards carrying on the great work which has been commenced in these last days, I desire before I pass away, to place my testimony on record. I have been a member of this church, ever since its first organization on the 6th day of April, 1830. I am the only surviving sister of the martyrs Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and will soon be 73 years old. I can testify to the fact of the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, and also to its truth, and the truth of the everlasting gospel as contained therein.

I well remember the trials my brother had, before he obtained the records. After he had the vision, he went frequently to the hill, and upon returning would tell us, "I have seen the records, also the brass plates and the sword of Laban with the breast plate and interpreters." He would ask father why he could not get them? The time had not yet come, but when it did arrive he was commanded to go on the 22d day of September 1827 at 2 o'clock. We had supposed that when he should bring them home, the whole family would be allowed to see them, but he said it was forbidden of the Lord. They could be seen only by those who were chosen to bear their testimony to the world. We had therefore to be content until they were translated and we could have the book to read. Many times when I have read its sacred pages, I have wept like a child, while the Spirit has borne witness with my spirit to its truth. Brothers and Sisters, who have obeyed the gospel and are members of the church of Jesus Christ, you have greater reason to be thankful than all the rest of the world, because the Lord has given you the gospel in its plainness, also revelations for the government of his church, and opened your eyes that you could see the truth, and touched your hearts with a desire to do his will and filled you with peace and love one for another?

After the records were translated and the book printed, we often met together and held prayer meetings. Some of our neighbors would come to these meetings and ask us mockingly, if we expected with our little band to convert the world and make them to believe the golden bible? Thank the Lord, the truth did go forth and the gospel was preached in power and demonstration of the Spirit, to the converting of hundreds and thousands, who are to-day rejoicing in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made them free, and of the heavenly gifts of the gospel. I was one of the number who met in the first conference held in these last days, when the church was first organized. We only numbered thirty, but we were a happy little band. It was a great day of rejoicing for us, and a number were added to the fold by baptism. My brother William and myself are all who are left now, and we shall soon pass away, but while I can I will bear my testimony to the truth of the latter day work, both spiritual and temporal. I know that it is true. I saw its rise and saw its fall. Saw the sheep scattered without a shepherd, but thank God, after the dark days I have seen it rise again, and the shepherd whom the Lord has raised up calling the sheep together, and may the work roll on till the whole earth is filled with the knowledge of the Lord, and all Israel is gathered home.

And now, dear sisters, go on in the good cause you have begun. Train up your children in the way they should go and when they are old they will not depart from it. Beware of pride. It was pride and seeking after the vain things of the world that caused the Nephites' fall. Be humble and the Lord will bless you all. I may write again, for I have only told in part what I wish to say. Your sister in the gospel,

KATHARINE SALISBURY.

[Please let us hear again. We earnestly desire the testimonies of the aged, those who have grown up with this work, and surely we need aid from their wisdom—wisdom gained from experience and from the service of God.—Ed.]

LISBON FALLS, Me., March 22d.

Sister Frances:—I send these lines of poetry for the "Mothers' Home Column," if you think appropriate. I found them while walking along by the road-side the other day, so obliterated I had to study out some of it. I thought at once of the "Home Column," so welcome to our home circle, in its weekly visits, cheering our hearts and making glad our pathway. Praying for its success and prosperity, through our dear sisters who have so kindly strengthened and encouraged us with its contents. I remain your sister, ORILLA SHEEHY.

"LIVING STONES."

"My friend, are you growing discouraged
In fighting the battle of life?
Does it seem in your weakness and darkness,
A hopelessly desperate strife?
Do you fear that your study and labor
Are destined to bring no reward?
Is the goal of your ardent ambition
By numberless accidents barred?
Despair not! true, thorough self-culture,
Is never unwisely bestowed:
The stone that is fit for the builder,
Will not always be left in the road.
Does it seem an injustice that others
Whose merits and fitness are less,
Through chances of fortune or favor,
Rush forward to easy success?
Remember that fortune is fickle,
And friends will not always endure,
So to those who depend upon either,
The future is never secure.
The tide that is now in their favor,
At some time may ebb as it flowed;
And the stone that's unfit for the builder,
Will be ruthlessly flung in the road.
Be patient! life's loftiest prizes,
Are not to be hastily won;
Expect not to gather the harvest
The moment the seed has been sown;
A ravenous horde of pretenders,—
A pushing and clamorous crew,—
Will have to be tried and found wanting,
Ere you can be tried and found true.
The best by the side of the worthless,
Together may lie in the load;

But the stone that is fit for the builder,
Will not always be left in the road.

Go read the encouraging story,
Of eminent men in the past,
Who, long in obscurity toiling,
Compelled recognition at last;
Of men, who, in art, or in science,
Or letters, have conquered a place,
Or in the wide realm of invention,
Have left a rich boon to their race;
Their names upon history's pages,
Like stars in the darkness have glowed;
Like stones that were fit for the builder,
They were not to be left in the road."

KIRTLAND, Ohio, March 30th.

Editors of Herald:—Three services were held in the church here yesterday. And an enjoyable and comforting spirit prevailed. The old gospel fire was in our midst. Among the number of believers present were sisters Maggie Miller and Marie E. Salyards of Pittsburg, Pa. It has been very muddy and disagreeable in getting about for a time, but the roads are drying off and a pleasant spring-like atmosphere prevails. The third term of school commenced to-day—Miss Laura Bishop, of Malvern, Iowa, teacher. All goes well in the village, and the villagers are enjoying a feast of maple sugar and syrup which are made here in abundance.

I should have mentioned some time ago that on January 23d last, I visited New Philadelphia, Ohio, where reside an excellent little band of Saints who are striving to maintain the honor and success of the cause. A good interest was manifest in the meeting held while there which increased. A good work can be done in that community with some one to set forth the faith, who can stay and answer the urgent calls. I found a pleasant home with Bro. E. Steinbaugh whose companion is a good helper in the cause. May unity and success attend the faithful there.

On the way I stopped at Wheeling a few days and found the Saints doing well—all in the faith. They miss Bro. and Sr. Griffiths since they moved away. I was unwell while there but received good care at Brn. Smith's and Salyards' and the sisters Gill. There are some good witnesses for the cause in Wheeling.

On the 26th I went to Pittsburg to attend the conference announced for that place and found a home and good care at sister Smith's. Conference convened on the 27th and the business was transacted with commendable unity. The good Spirit prevailed in all of the meetings. It was easily discerned however that there was at work a counter leaven of some kind that disquieted some, but the causes were not so apparent. As is usual, perhaps the real causes may have been in fancy and misapprehension. Quite a good representation was had, and an increasing interest was reported from various parts of the district. Six were baptized on Sunday by Bro. Griffiths. They had been convinced by his preaching at some point out of the city and arrangements were made to unite with the church while at the conference. Bro. M. H. Forscutt was present and preached a good discourse on Sunday evening. On the whole the prospects are quite encouraging in the district.

Saturday, February 27th, I attended the district conference in Philadelphia. The meeting was not a large one, but the district was represented, and those present interested. The meeting passed off satisfactorily, and was conducive of good. I took a severe cold while on the way to the conference, and was not able to attend the meeting on Sunday evening. Bro. H. Robinson was reported as having preached a good discourse, however. Thanks to Bro. A. Cameron and household for kind care while ill.

Friday, March 5th, I went to Plymouth, Pa., where I was kindly received at the home of Mr. David Isaacs, by himself, wife, and mother Jones. The latter two Saints of long standing.

Saturday, 6th, in company with mother Jones, I went to Scranton and met with the Saints there in conference in the afternoon. A commodious room had been secured, and there was quite an interest taken in the meetings. There are some excellent Saints in this section, and are doing well considering that they have been greatly neglected by the general church appointees. This is a good field of labor, and the brethren there are ready to help all they can to sustain the cause. Bro. J. W. Morgan is president of the district, and is an active and energetic worker, and has the good will of the Saints. He feels, as do others, the need of some one to help in the work. I have not met a people of warmer heart, or more generous and worthy in many ways, than here: and withal, devoted to the faith. I had a real good time at Scranton. Bro. Griffiths is president of the branch, and Bro. Gill Bishop's agent. The business of the conference was discharged with satisfaction, and the preaching services were well attended. Thanks to brethren Jenkins, Morgan, Thomas and others, for home comforts. God speed the work, and bless the Saints in the Scranton district.

Thursday, 11th, I met with Bro. C. G. Lanphear at the house of Mr. John DeReamer, in Greenwood, New York. I found the venerable soldier well and amusing himself by playing on the organ. Bro. Lanphear looks much as he did twenty years ago, and in his ministerial and social life has made many friends for the cause. The weather was bad while here and the Salvation Army had just captured the town. I thought it best to wait until that joke had passed by before putting forth much of an effort in that neighborhood. We held two services in the Universalist Church and visited with friends. Thanks to Mr. DeReamer and family for kindnesses.

On the 16th we visited at Mr. Atkins and Updykes, friends of the cause. The young man at the latter place was quite unwell. May his health and faith increase.

The 17th, Mr. Updyke brought us on the way to the railroad station and we went to Belmont and stayed over night with sister Hyde an old time Saint, living happily with son and daughter. May her health improve.

The 18th, Bro. Lanphear and I went to Obi and was kindly received at Mr. Amos C. Meritts and Brunell Childs. Mrs. Childs had been urgent for some years that some of the Elders visit that neighborhood and despite the bad roads and weather, we were determined to reach the place, and succeeded in reaching there, but found her sick and her mind affected therefrom. There are friends of the cause there. This is in the oil district and is romantic enough to please the most fastidious. The work should be sustained here. The meetings we held were attended by interested parties.

Monday, the 22d, I left Bro. Lanphear at Obi, and started for home. It was too near time to start to the General Conference to undertake to do more, and the roads were fearful, and bad weather. This trip gave me a better insight to the needs in New York State, and portions of Pennsylvania, and the outlook is promising. Bro. Lanphear wants to see a number enter the fold ere he leaves the state. May the Lord sustain him in his efforts. He is a good companion in soldier life. At home in due time, to find all well; and to-day have just shown seven young ladies on a vacation from college through the temple, Kentucky, Illinois, York State, Pennsylvania and India being represented. The ladies were intelligent and anxious to learn the facts about the faith and manifest a willingness to do us justice and fairness as a people. Tomorrow morning we start for the General Conference, no preventing providence. The wheels of time have turned around another year and we are anxious and hopeful.

WM. H. KELLEY.

OSHKOSH, Wis., April 5th.

I think so much of the Herald, Zion's Hope, and Advocate, that I would not do without them for any reasonable price. They have been our only preacher, with but little exception, for over five years. I also rate highly the Expositor, the Lamoni Gazette and many other papers. The paper published by Peter Anderson is undoubtedly doing much good, as also all the Church books and tracts that have been authorized to be published and sent broadcast by the leading Church authorities. Now, all these should be sustained as much as possible as long as the most of the articles therein are written by the Spirit of God, for the printed word is a mighty lever for good to bring souls to Christ. And just as much in order is it to help as much as possible to support the Elders' families so they can be set at liberty to go out and preach the gospel which we claim to prize so highly; for how can souls be gathered into the kingdom if no one is sent to show the beauty and great riches in the present and future of the kingdom. How can the Elder go to preach unless he is clear of debts and his family can see the way clear for them not to suffer? Next in order is to see to it that there are no poor among us, etc. Now to see to all these things, it behoves us to live as near as possible to the law and the testimony, which teaches the one-tenth system to begin with and then one-tenth interest yearly, and surplus and free-will offering, etc. Now, while fashion and all kind of luxury rules the day, it behoves us to live strictly economical, and to work six days with our hands and brains so as to have something to give for those purposes are just as strict commandments as that on the seventh day, Thou shalt rest. If all will strictly adhere to the commandments of God, and also do many things out of our own free will which we think is pleasing in His sight, as also the Word of Wisdom, then there is no doubt but the Church will soon flourish as it never has done before. Let us therefore arise, brethren and sisters, and let us strive to go towards perfection; for no unclean thing shall inherit the Kingdom of God. I hope and pray that conference will be a success. Since I commenced more thoroughly to keep the commandments of God, the windows of heaven have been opened more unto me.

As ever in bonds,

JOSEPH LAMPERT.

No. 42, York St., Cheetham,
MANCHESTER, England,
5th April, 1886.

Dear Herald:—After a short interval the waters have again been troubled, souls naturalized, and citizens received by covenant into the kingdom of our heavenly Father. Your humble servant had the pleasure of initiating three more into the church by baptism at Leeds, Yorkshire, on Sunday the 28th of last month; namely, Bro. Thomas Paston, and sisters Lucy Heywood and Eliza Roberts. Bro. Paston is a man of mature age and deep thought, and has thoroughly investigated the doctrine of our church before giving in his adhesion, and I believe he will make a most faithful and useful member of the Church of Christ. Sister Lucy Heywood is the widow of Bro. John Heywood, (deceased) who was by the administration of the ordinances of the church and our heavenly Father's blessing, healed of his abject lameness and made to walk, as reported in your pages some nine or ten years ago. I believe that like Bro. Paston, she has given the claims of our church her best consideration, and has honestly concluded it to be her duty to cast in her lot with the children of the kingdom. Sister Roberts is the wife of brother Tom Roberts, the secretary of the Leeds branch, and is, I feel assured, a very worthy woman, one who if faithful will be an ornament to the church and a mother in Israel. I spent Saturday evening and Sunday with the Saints of the Leeds branch, and felt gratified at the manner of my reception, and the progress the work is making in this part of the Master's vineyard.

The president of the branch, Elder Joseph Naylor, was (owing to home circumstances) unable to be with us on the Sunday, but I am pleased to say that his place was most admirably filled by Elder Wm. Seeking, assisted by Priests Martin Heywood, Tom Roberts and Teacher Henry Warren. A goodly portion of God's Spirit was enjoyed during each service, and of the strangers present many were deeply impressed and drawn into sympathy with our rendering of God's law as presented in the Holy Scriptures. During my stay I was called upon to administer the ordinance for the sick to Mrs. and Miss Roberts, the mother and sister of the before mentioned secretary of the branch, with what result I can not as yet state. Neither of them is a member of the church, but I trust that the manifestations of God's power in their behalf may be such as to compel them to put away all prejudice and humbly follow where the Savior leads. Mr. Roberts, though not of us is, I feel sure, heartily in accord with our work, and will I trust, shortly identify himself with us, and become a diligent laborer in the cause or Christ.

The brethren and sisters at Leeds desire the prayers of the whole church. They are young and inexperienced in church government, and in many ways feel their weakness; but they are desirous of learning more of the will of our heavenly Father, and be enabled always to practice what they know. And dear Herald readers, pray at the same time for your humble servant, the writer of these lines, that he may always have God's Spirit with him to inspire him to feed those over whom he has (in God's providence) been placed as pastor, with the true bread of life. Much more might be said about the prospects of the church in the Manchester District, but as your time and space are limited, it may be summed up briefly thus: peace and harmony reign, with few exceptions, in each of the branches of the district; the Saints are united in the work; enquiries are increasing from those outside, baptisms are of frequent occurrence, and the outlook brighter than it has ever been before.

With an increased desire to continue to take my part in the labor of love, I remain, your sincere admirer and humble co-laborer in the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ.

JOSEPH DEWSNUP.

President of the Manchester District.

ASA S. COCHRAN, Sec'y

The Board of Publication respectfully asks that this conference request the ministry of the church to use careful and persistent efforts to procure subscribers for the church papers and publications, with the view of cheapening the same, and extending the knowledge of the latter day work, and of discharging the debts of said Board.

G. A. BLAKESLEE, Pres't.

ASA S. COCHRAN, Sec'y.

The Board of Publication was sustained by a rising vote 46 for and 2 against.

The evening sermon was by Bro. R. Etzenhouser, assisted by Bro. M. T. Short.

FRIDAY, APRIL 16TH.

Met at nine o'clock for business. Sung hymn 182. Prayer was offered by Bro. Chas. Derry. Minutes of yesterday read. Bro. Alfred White said that he wished the minutes to show that his reasons for voting against allowing $700 to Bro. A. H. Smith were not because he was opposed to granting the amount, but because it would not relieve the brother of his liabilities. Bro. E. L. Kelley wished the minutes to show that his reason for not sustaining the Board of Publication was based upon his objection to the resolution of the Board referred to in discussion yesterday, and that Bro. Lambert's reason for not sustaining was the same as his.

HIGH PRIEST'S QUORUM.

The report of the High Priest's Quorum was read as follows:

The quorum reports that fourteen of its members were present during this conference. The meetings were presided over by its presidency, Bro. Charles Derry and M. H. Forscutt; Henry A. Stebbing secretary.

The following brethren reported by letter:

C. G. Lanphear writes of his labors in the state of New York. Joseph Parsons (of Pittsburg, Pa.) and W. D. Morton and O. P. Dunham (of Burlington, Iowa), report having done what their age and health permitted. George Sweet presides over the Salem Branch, Iowa. H. P. Brown has presided over the Oakland Branch, California, and preached in that city and San Francisco. T. P. Green continues to labor in Southern Illinois. H. J. Hudson presides at Columbus, Nebraska. Phineas Cadwell presides over the Magnolia, Iowa, Branch; is also superintendent of the Sabbath-school, and Bishop's Agent; has baptized ten or twelve persons.

Those present reporting in writing:—R. C. Elvin has preached in several places in Nebraska. S. S. Wilcox presides over the Shenandoah, Iowa, Branch. Bro. J. W. Chatburn presides at Harlan, Iowa, keeping up the work there. E. Robinson has presided at Davis City, Iowa, part of the time. H. A. Stebbins presides over the Lamoni Branch and over the Decatur District; has traveled considerable and baptized twenty-one persons during the year past; also been superintendent of Sunday school. M. H. Forscutt has filled the mission appointed to him by last April Conference, laboring in Pittsburg and other regions. Verbal reports were given by W. H. Blair, G. A. Blakeslee, Geo. Derry, J. C. Crabb, J. A. McIntosh, I. L. Rogers and David Dancer, Bro. Blakeslee having been actively engaged in his duties as Bishop of the church, Bro. Crabb as president of the Little Sioux District, and Bro. Dancer as Business Manager of the Herald Office. Pres. Derry reported his labors in Iowa and Nebraska. The Secretary stated that Bro. Zenas Whitcomb and Edwin Cadwell had died, and copies of the "In Memoriam" were ordered to be issued to their families. The old form of license was amended and restored to use, and $2.25 raised to have the same printed.

The names of those who are situated so as to take appointments from the Conference, were given in and sent to the Quorum of Twelve, for their action, namely Bro. Charles Derry, M. H. Forscutt and R. C. Elvin.

CHARLES DERRY, Pres.,

H. A. STEBBINS, Sec.

QUORUM OF SEVENTY'S REPORT.

Report of Quorum of Seventy was read:

This quorum has held six meetings, in which we have been blest in a measure, and are encouraged with the prospects of our quorum and the work in general. The following members reported in person: E. C. Brand, Duncan Campbell, J. S. Patterson, J. T. Davies, J. W. Gillen, Heman C. Smith, Columbus Scott, R. J. Anthony, J. C. Foss, B. V. Springer, I. N. Roberts, J. L. Bear, G. T. Griffiths, J. H. Hansen, W. T. Bozarth, I. A. Bogue, C. H. Jones and M. T. Short; and the following by letter: George Montague, A. Johns, J. M. Wait, T. E. Jenkins, J. F. Mintun, Thomas Revel, S. J. Stone, J. C. Clapp, E. M. Wildermuth, G. S. Hyde, Joseph Lakeman, D. H. Bays and J. F. McDowell. From the following we have had no reports: Andrew Hall, Jesse L. Adams, John B. Lytle, Robert Davis, J. McKiernan, John Thomas, A. McCord and H. H. Morgan.

The following was adopted as the expression of the feelings of the quorum concerning the death of Bro. Peter N. Brix, who died March 1st, 1886, at Aalborg, Denmark:

Whereas, it hath pleased Almighty God to release our beloved brother and co-laborer Peter N. Brix, from the toils and cares of this inconstant life; and Whereas, this member of the Quorum of Seventy was engaged in missionary labor, and in charge of the Scandinavian Mission, and at his post; and Whereas, we recognize that his toil and sacrifice have been very great; therefore, Resolved, That while we miss his presence, counsel and labor, we humbly bow to this dispensation of providence, and commend the bereft to the sweet and sure consolations of the gospel of Christ.

On the 10th inst., by order of your body, two of the Quorum of the Twelve, E. C. Briggs and J. Caffall, met with us, and in connection with the presidents of quorum, ordained the following brethren: I. N. White, Henry Kemp, W. J. Smith, M. H. Bond, A. H. Parsons, J. S. Roth, W. M. Rumel, John Smith, A. J. Moore, F. M. Sheehy and H. L. Hoit.

Upon evidence of the inactivity of Bro. Henry H. Morgan, who has not acted with the quorum for about twenty years, he was dropped from the quorum.

The following resolution was also past: That Bro. John H. Hansen be dropped from the quorum, in view of the statement made by him, that he could make no promise of present or future labor.

Bro. Duncan Campbell, whose resignation was before your body, has made entire satisfaction to the quorum, and is in full accord with the church. We have therefore restored him to his former standing, and exonerate him from all blame.

E. C. BRAND, President,

HEMAN C. SMITH, Secretary.

ADDITIONAL REPORT OF THE PRESIDENTS OF SEVENTY.

We have unanimously agreed to present before you the name of Richard C. Evans of London, Canada, for your consideration, and ask you to approve of his ordination to the office of Seventy. The name of Bro. Evans was presented to the Quorum of Seventy, at their meeting of April 14th, 1886, and was approved by them.

Respectfully submitted,

E. C. BRAND, President.

HEMAN C. SMITH, Secretary.

It was moved that we approve of the recommendation concerning Bro. R. C. Evans and that he be so ordained by the missionary in charge. The situation of the brother and his merits were spoken to by Bro. J. H. Lake, and the ordination was ordered.

Bro. A. H. Smith asked what the action had been concerning him and his mission and was informed. He then said that he again appealed to the body to loose his hands. The question was asked as to how much he owed and he stated the approximate amount. Bro. W. H. Kelley thought that the brother should be relieved in one way or another. It was then moved.

Resolved, That the Bishopric be instructed to provide for the releasing of the hands of Bro. A. H. Smith, so that he may prosecute his mission.

This method of relief was opposed by several who wished to see Bro. Smith's hands made free, but who thought it should be done in another way than by taking it out of the treasury, because of the precedent which might be thus established. Several offered to subscribe towards liquidating the debts without calling it out of the treasury. This method was also spoken upon and opposed by some who favored its being taken directly from the treasury. The resolution was favored by Bro. I. L. Rogers, J. C. Crabb, S. V. Bailey and E. L. Kelley, and opposed by Brn. G. A. Blakeslee, W. W. Blair, H. L. Holt and F. C. Warnky. Bro. E. Banta spoke upon it. Previous question moved and the main question being put was declared as adopted. Division being called for the resolution was found to be defeated by a vote of 27 to 25.

The following was then moved:

That this conference recommend the Bishopric to examine the claim of Bro. A. H. Smith, that the church should pay his present debts, and if they find the claim to be just and proper, that they take steps to settle them at as early a time as practicable.

This was favored by Brn. J. S. Patterson, J. W. Gillen and E. C. Brand, and opposed by brethren Alfred White and M. T. Short. Previous question was moved and ordered, and the resolution was adopted.

A note from Bro. Joseph Luff was read:

INDEPENDENCE, MO., April, 1886.

Bro. Henry A. Stebbins.—It is too late now for Bro. J. Luff to hope to be with you. He has been very poorly with an affection of the brain. He requests me to state that he has baptized twenty-five during the conference year; thinks that Utah ought to be considered, and well supplied with missionaries for the coming year, as the time is opportune. Bro. Anthony is in good demand, also J. T. Davies. Thinks that Bro. Joseph Smith should return, as his labor there is telling wondrously for good. Hope there is a good spirit with you. Regrets inability to attend.

C. M. CLARK.

The following from the Twelve, concerning brother M. H. Forscutt, was read:

Whereas, Bro. M. H. Forscutt has tendered his resignation of every official position held in the church, except that of an Elder, since our reasons were requested; and whereas, we have no disposition to urge our reasons upon the body; therefore, if in your judgment it is better for us to forego an expression of those reasons demanded, we will readily comply; otherwise, we have no disposition to shun the grave responsibility that rests upon us.

A. H. SMITH, Sec'y.

The resignation of Bro. M. H. Forscutt, and his reasons therefor, were read:

While unchanged in my views respecting the work of the last days, I am unable to any longer labor as a travelling minister, in connection with the Reorganized Church, and having tendered my resignation as a High Priest to my Quorum, I herewith tender my resignation as a public officer of the church. I would like to labor locally, if you will permit, by dropping my name from the High Priest's Quorum, and enrolling me as an Elder.

I am compelled under the accumulated pressure of secret influences for years operating, and by the public action of to-day, either to sacrifice the independence of my manhood, or my standing as a minister in the church.

The best years of my life have been given to the church, and my baptismal registry shows upwards of five hundred baptized converts. For their comfort, and as due to them and to you, I will say that I do not regret what I have done in the past for a conscientious devotion to the work justified my labor; but I do regret that the past and present combined compel the step which severs me from the public ministry and work I love.

If I can be accepted as an Elder, I am willing to labor locally, but not as a dependent on the church coffers. Respectfully,

MARK H. FORSCUTT.

It was moved that his resignation as a general laborer in the ministry be accepted, and that he be requested to retain his Eldership. It was spoken upon and previous question being ordered the resignation was declared as accepted. Division being called for the vote stood 29 for acceptance and 20 against.

Report of First Quorum of Elders was read:

We beg to report that during the present session of the general Conference, we have held five meetings. We have received reports as follows.

Verbal.—George Adams, William Anderson, Elijah Banta, C. A. Beebe, Joseph Boswell, M. H. Bond, H. C. Bronson, S. V. Bailey, J. Chisnall, J. P. Dillon, Enos J. French, Hans Hansen, H. L. Holt, J. P. Johnson, E. L. Kelley, Rob't Lyle, A. W. Moffett, Moses McHarness, Wm. Newton, J. M. Putney, F. G. Pitt, J. S. Snively, E. Stafford, Henry C. Smith, H. N. Snively, James Thomas, O. B. Thomas, V. White, A. White, S. Wood and S. F. Walker.

By Proxy.—Horace Bartlett and Wm. Powell.

By Letter.—T. J. Andrews, J. R. Badham, J. W. Brackenbury, S. Butler, Jno. Beaird, Jobe Brown, J. F. Burton, G. E. Deuel, D. K. Dodson, L. Ellison, Wm. W. Gaylord, G. H. Hilliard, D. Hougas, D. L. Harris, G. Hicklin, J. D. Jones, J. Kemp, W. A. Moore, J. Ruby, F. P. Scarcliff, I. M. Smith, J. M. Stubbart, M. Smith, George Walker, D. Williams, T. Whiting and Geo. S. Yerrington.

Present and in writing.—O. J. Bailey, R. M. Elvin, H. Kemp, T. Nutt and W. J. Smith.

Total number of reports received are 65. Baptisms reported 152. Many of the members of this Quorum are acting as branch and district presidents, secretaries and Bisop's agents, and in other positions of trust and responsibility in the church. During the year we have had but one death and a loss of four by ordination into the Seventy's Quorum, one adjudged of unministerial conduct, but he having filed notice of an appeal, we let the case rest for the present. Committee on "Circular letter" reported, and so changed as to read the President and his two Counsellors. President and Secretary be authorized to prepare a roll book. Communication of Elder Joseph R. Lambert, containing license, received. A bill of 70 cts. ordered paid. The following Elders were enrolled as members: R. R. Dana, Asa S. Cochran, A. B. Moore, M. H. Gregg and J. W. Terry.

We include in our report the following letters, which explain themselves, viz.:

LAMONI, Iowa, April 12th, 1886.

Brn. Joseph Smith and Wm. W. Blair.—I am under instruction by my quorum to present to you, and obtain your decision on the following questions, viz.: (1st) Inasmuch as it has been decided that an Elder loses his right to act in his office as an Elder when he is expelled from his Quorum, is it lawful to expel an Elder from his quorum without being tried by his Quorum. (2d.) When an Elder has been expelled, what course has he to pursue in order for him to have the right to act as an Elder.

I am requested to return your reply to the quorum. I therefore respectfully await your reply.

In gospel bonds,

ROB'T M. ELVIN, President.

Reply: (1.) It is not proper to expel an Elder from his quorum without cause, to be decided on investigation and enquiry. (2.) An Elder expelled from quorum without cause, is simply silenced pending investigation. If inquiry and investigation do not follow within reasonable time, he should be released from censure and restored. If for cause, he can not act in the name of the church, but must answer to God for his priesthood. (3.) An Elder expelled from quorum must seek by appeal to those in charge of district or mission to be restored; proving his fitness and moral freedom for release from continued silence; or show innocence upon investigation. (4.) Quorum action is for quorum membership only. Persons expelled for cause should be reported to proper officers for further and final action.

JOSEPH SMITH,
W. W. BLAIR.

April 13th, 1886.

Thirty-seven met with their quorum during our sittings. Elder V. White was elected Secretary. The President and his two counsellors were sustained upon separate votes. Harmony, unity and peace were the character of all our meetings.

Submitted in gospel bonds,
ROB'T M. ELVIN, President.

Report of Second Quorum of Elders was read:

The Second Quorum of Elders have held six meetings; the following members reported in person and by letter: I. N. White (baptized 4), J. S. Roth (baptized 29), F. C. Warnky (baptized 10), E. A. Davis (baptized 4), W. Vickery (baptized 12), S. Maloney, John Smith, H. Church, J. W. Wight, D. F. Lambert, Wm. C. Nirk, J. H. Merriam, F. M. Cooper, J. A. Davis, T. E. Loyd, Samuel Ferris, W. C. Cadwell, J. W. Newberry, Frederick Hansen, Thos. Thomas, Jacob Reese, W. Owen, J. X. Davis, J. Morrill, Levi Gamet, Solomon Thomas, James Brown, J. Armstrong, A. W. Lockling, O. N. Dutton, W. Chambers, C. Downs, B. F. Durfee, D. Chambers, J. H. Condit, Chas. E. Butterworth (baptized 12), Wm. Thompson, Henry Gardner, L. Merchant, Eber Benedict, J. Gilbert, G. W. Shute.

And we further report, that by reason of our president, I. N. White and his counselor J. S. Roth, being selected and taken out of our quorum by and to fill a place in the Quorum of Seventy, we present to you as our unanimous choice S. Maloney as president, and F. C. Warnky and W. C. Cadwell as his counselors; and we desire that you will approve and set apart those brethren to the office as set forth in this report.

By reason of vacancies we have taken into our quorum: Richard Coburn, Peter Adamson, Chas. K. Ryan, George W. Harlow, M. P. Berg, Edward Wheeler and Warren Peak. Upon the request of Bro. George Wilson, he was released from the quorum.

The request for ordination of brethren Maloney, Warnky and Cadwell was granted, and the missionary in charge of Iowa was instructed to ordain Bro. Cadwell. The ordination of the other two was referred to the Twelve to attend to.

Bro. J. J. Cornish was appointed to labor in his present field, under the missionary in charge.

His report was read:

My report since last April Conference is as follows:—I have labored mostly in new places, spent most of my time in North Michigan; only spent about five weeks in all, in Canada. Held four or five discussions with representatives of other faith's, which has resulted in bringing many to the light, who would otherwise not hear. I have baptized and confirmed seventy people into the church, and have assisted my brethren, and fellowmen as best I could for their good, and the advancement of this great latter day work. Brethren, I am at your disposal, should you consider me worthy to continue me in this same field of labor, or some other one; or to drop me from the list, and placing others more able and competent in the field. I hope to be satisfied with your decision. May the God of all comfort bless you in the conference for good.

Resolved, That Nova Scotia be attached to the mission of brethren Wm. H. Kelley and E. C. Briggs.

Report of Third Quorum of Elders was read:

Have held four sessions. Elders reported: C. A. Bishop, B. Salisbury, E. T. Dobson, B. S. Parker, B. Myers, J. M. Terry, S. Butler, Levi Anthony, J. Goode, G. Kemp, R. Farmer, Geo. Hayward, D. F. Powell, C. F. Porter, G. W.

Galley, J. Hawley, J. R. Rudd, O. Madison, D. Munns, J. W. Waldsmith, J. Roberts, D. Brown, G. W. Beebe, T. R. Hawkins, F. Calkins, M. Rasmussen, T. W. Chatburn, J. T. Kinnaman, Wm. Lewis, A. Parsons, R. Ware, Geo. Bird and W. N. Abbott.

The resignation of E. H. Gurley, together with his reasons for so doing, were presented, referred to a committee composed of Thos. W. Chatburn, J. W. Waldsmith and B. Salisbury. Resignation of E. T. Dobson as secretary of quorum presented and accepted, vote of thanks tendered for past services. On motion J. M. Terry was chosen as secretary of quorum. Request of John A. Taylor read and referred to committee of T. W. Chatburn, J. W. Waldsmith and L. Anthony.

The Taylor committee reported that John A. Taylor did not belong to the Third Quorum.

Committee on E. H. Gurley's request reported as follows: Whereas, on the 20th day of June, 1885, at the conference of the Decatur District Bro. E. H. Gurley presented causes and reasons for, and asking the conference to grant him an honorable release from the church and its obligations; and Whereas, a motion obtained that the papers and the further action thereon be referred to his quorum; therefore, be it Resolved, That we the Third Quorum of Elders, in council assembled, accept Bro. Gurley's resignation, together with his license, and for causes set forth hereby drop his name from our quorum. Report received and committee discharged.

A vacancy now appearing in the quorum, it was moved that Bro. H. Parker be received into the quorum.

Committee of three were chosen, composed of T. W. Chatburn, John Hawley, and L. Anthony, to formulate blank report, to be used by the Elders in reporting to this quorum; also, to ascertain cost of printing circular letter, with list of names and residences of each member of quorum. A collection of $3 was taken up to defray expenses, and put into the hands of the president, subject to call.

A general discussion prevailed, resulting in the unanimous adoption of the following resolution: That we re-affirm our belief and faith in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Book of Covenants.

The following, after thorough discussion, was unanimously adopted: Whereas, brother C. A. Bishop contemplates a visit to Switzerland the coming year, on business, and feeling that he would like to preach the word while there to his countrymen and relatives; and whereas, Bro. Bishop does not ask any aid from the church, but will bear his own expenses on the contemplated visit; therefore, be it resolved, that we recommend Bro. C. A. Bishop to the Quorum of the Twelve for their endorsement as a missionary to that country, that he may go with the sanction and authority of the church.

Moved that the secretary urge all members of the quorum to report within the next year, also to forward their yearly assessment to him at once. J. T. Kinnaman was, by motion, sustained as president of quorum, and T. W. Chatburn and J. M. Terry as counselors.

J. T. KINNAMAN, President.
J. W. WALDSMITH, Secretary.

The portion concerning Bro. C. A. Bishop laboring in Switzerland was spoken of, and Bro. A. H. Smith, in behalf of his quorum, stated that by advice of the First President, they did not feel to establish a foreign mission, hence they made no recommendation. Bro. W. H. Kelley said that the brother was at liberty to labor in Switzerland in case he went there. On motion, the matter was referred to the First Presidency. Also, the matter of Bro. John D. Jones laboring in Wales while there on his anticipated visit was referred to the Presidency.

The report of the committee on reasons for not sustaining brethren J. W. Briggs and Z. H. Gurley was taken up, (found in minutes of the 9th). It was moved to adopt the report. It was opposed by Brn.

J. R. Lambert and A. H. Smith, and then being put to vote was declared lost.

At half-past one o'clock the hymn, "Arise my soul, arise" was sung and prayer was offered by brother R. M. Elvin. Minutes of the forenoon session were read.

Report of Fourth Quorum of Elders was read:

The Fourth Quorum of Elders held four sessions. Members present nine. Members reported by letter fifty—all encouraging, and all feel that the work is prospering in their localities. The quorum loses one by ordination, Bro. H. N. Hansen, to Seventy, and one added to the quorum, Bro. Thomas Horton. The following brethren, Hyrum Rathbun and S. Crum, be given an appointment by Conference; Bro. C. Prettyman was recommended for a mission under the missionary in charge of Northern Missouri, next fall and winter. S. Crum was elected again as secretary of the quorum. The president and his counselors were sustained.

J. D. FLANDERS, President.

On motion the recommendation concerning Brn. Crum and Prettyman as to missions was referred to the Quorum of Twelve.

Report of the Fifth Quorum of Elders was read.

The Fifth Quorum of Elders have held five meetings; peace and unity prevailed. Reports have been received from sixty-four members: W. Aird, Peter Anderson, J. Allen, A. N. Bishop, W. S. Barbee, T. Bradshaw, T. J. Bell, N. A. Baker, J. A. Currie, N. M. Cook, E. Curtis, A. V. Closson, J. Drown, A. S. Davison, Thos. Dailey, John Eames, J. B. Eaton, L. H. Ezzell, Hyrum Falk, T. N. Fields, Louis Gaultier, G. Gould, C. G. Gould, W. H. Garrett, T. H. Hume, Charles Herzog, C. H. Hassall, H. Jones, J. R. Anderson, W. Hendrick, W. D. Kelley, Jos. Lampert, G. A. Lincoln, J. H. Lee, J. H. Long, J. A. McIntosh, W. A. McDowell, C. D. Norton, Robert Oehring, John Pett, W. G. Pert, Levi Phelps, David Powell, P. C. Petersen, P. P. Powell, John E. Reese, W. N. Ray, W. M. Rumel, Gomer Reese, Stephen Stone, E. A. Shelly, N. Stamm, J. M. Tousley, W. O. Thomas, W. B. Tignor, T. Venable, W. Williams, J. J. Watkins, R. H. Wight, A. L. Whittaker, W. Waterman, J. A. Robinson, R. Etzenhouser and J. Gerrard.

The whole number baptized as reported, are sixty-eight. Ordinations: Elders 1, Priests 3, Teachers 1, Deacons 1; marriages performed 1; presidents of districts four, presidents of branches nine, Bishops' Agents four, clerks of districts two, clerks of branches two.

The following names: James Bamber, Robert Fuller, Niel Hammer, Ekin Lovell, Chas. Perry, J. V. L. Sherwood, and B. T. St. John were dropped from the quorum, having failed to comply within the time limited for securing license.

The following names were added: Oliver Johnson, John Larsen, J. M. Tousley, H. Southwick, F. R. Tubb, E. A. Steadman, F. E. Anderson. Should brethren Anderson and Daly not accept ordination into the Quorum of Seventy, the last two names remain as applicants for first vacancies.

Bro. W. M. Rumel having been ordained into the Quorum of Seventy, resigned as first counselor. J. A. Robinson was chosen by the president, ratified by the quorum and his ordination is hereby asked by the general body. J. A. Robinson resigned as secretary and treasurer; R. Etzenhouser was appointed for the time being, and to recommend as early as possible a proper name.

The following names were recommended for General Conference appointment: Oliver Johnson and John Larsen (asked by Peter Anderson for the Utah Mission), E. Curtis, R. Etzenhouser and J. A. McIntosh.

The following preamble and resolution was adopted, and sanction asked of the body: Whereas, a member of this Fifth Quorum of Elders during silence has so labored, that he claims a result of five baptisms, and therefore of necessity having presented the claims of the church; and whereas, silence is to mean a cessation of all public labor affecting the church in its interests; Therefore, be it Resolved, that no one of this quorum in the future who has been placed under silence, appear as an Elder in any sense in public, presenting in any shape the claims of the Church.

A committee, whose report was adopted, presented the following in condolence upon the decease of four brethren (members of the quorum): Thos. N. Hudson, C. A. Sherman, Edward Bennett and John Carmichael. Whereas, our quorum has met with the loss by death of the above named members of the quorum; and whereas, sorrow and mourning has of necessity filled the hearts and homes of the bereaved ones, we hereby offer to such our heart-felt sympathy, and words of condolence, praying that He, into whose hands the spirits of all men fall at death, may in connection with the bereavement, thus caused, comfort, console and strengthen, those who are thus called upon to mourn their dead, and enable them to say with one of old, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord." We also hereby express our regret, as a body, of the loss of those brethren, realizing that we not only lose their association, but their labor and assistance in the great latter day work, which we so much love, and therefore most earnestly desire to see carried rapidly forward, hoping to meet those loved ones in the fair haven of eternal rest.

Forty-eight responded on yearly dues, amounting to $10.31; balance on hand over all expenses, $6.31. We consider our quorum in fair working order, with a tendency for improvement.

Emsley Curtis was chosen by president as second counselor, ratified by quorum, and ordination asked by general body. Resolution passed that the president prepare and send out a circular letter.

E. ETZENHOUSER, President.

It was moved that we endorse the nomination of Brn. J. A. Robinson and Emsley Curtis as counselors, and that they be so ordained, further that their ordination be referred to the Quorum of Twelve.

The following was moved:

That the body sanction the resolution of the Fifth Quorum of Elders in regard to the labors of those silenced.

Amended by inserting the words "as an elder" after the word, "appear" and as amended was adopted.

Report of First Quorum of Priests was read.

The First Quorum of Priests have held three meetings. The following brethren were admitted as members: C. K. Preston, A. W. Head, W. H. Kelley, Peter Peterson, to fill vacancies caused by death and ordinations. C. P. Faul was chosen as permanent secretary. The following reported by letter: G. F. Weston, B. M. Green, L. C. Donalson, R. May, G. M. Jemison, E. Rannie, O. H. Brown and J. B. Gouldsmith. A. W. Head, P. Peterson, C. P. Faul, C. H. Derry, L. Fowler, E. Sparks, W. H. Kelley, C. K. Preston, were present and reported. W. H. Kelley was chosen as second counselor to preside, and we ask the conference that he be ordained and missionary in charge of the Southern Nebraska District be instructed to ordain R. White. We request all to apply for License, to secretary Charles P. Faul, Stewartville, Missouri.

The ordination of brethren White and Kelley was ordered and was also referred to the Twelve.

Report of committee in case of brethren Brand and Babbitt was read:

We, your committee, to whom was referred the case of Elders Brand and Babbitt, would report that after due examination and consideration of all papers presented, we recommend that further action on the case is unnecessary.

HIRAM L. HOLT,
J. W. CHATBURN,
C. DERRY.

It was moved to adopt, and that the committee be discharged. Substitute adopted that the case be referred to the missionary in charge for trial.

Committee on Bishop's books reported:

We, your committee duly appointed to audit books and report of the Bishop, herewith report, that we find both books and report to be correct.

ROBT. M. ELVIN,
JOHN SMITH.

The report was adopted and the committee was discharged.

Letter from Bro. Joseph Lampert concerning ministerial work in Wisconsin was read and the matter was referred to the missionary in charge and the Bishop to supply the necessity, if found practicable.

The report of the committee on compiling General Conference resolutions was read:

We, the committee appointed to perform the above work, hereby report that we have done as we were ordered to do, and we submit it to the body, together with certain recommendations, and suggest that the work be submitted to a committee for examination and report. There are two hundred and fourteen of the resolutions copied herein.

We found it an actual necessity in some cases, as in the presentation of committee reports, petitions etc., to give the substance of the matter, but, we think, have preserved the exact sense in each instance. We cite Nos. 140 and 147 as examples. We have also changed the grammar in a few instances, to make them read with sense, in view of their republication.

Our recommendations are as follows:

1.—That the work be published, and in cheap form, octavo size, so that future editions, whenever there have been large additions to the rules, may be published at slight expense; and in case few additions are made at any Conference they may be printed on a leaf and pasted in the book, at the end of either division, which division is hereinafter provided for.

2.—That the work be divided into two sections, the first part to be a business manual, containing those rules that are still binding upon the body; the second part to be supplementary, containing those resolutions that are simply historical but which are valuable for reference.

3.—That each part be separately numbered, and that in future legislation upon them they be designated by their numbers, all future acts to be likewise numbered.

4.—That of the number now submitted the following be compiled as the historical part, namely: Nos. 1, 2, 3, 8, 9, 1-2, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 23, 25, 35, 36, 37, 38, 44, 54, 55, 56, 57, 59, 62, 63, 64, 69, 81, 82, 87, 93, 103, 107, 122, 124, 126, 130, 131, 134, 135, 143, 152, 159, 161, 173, 212, 213.

5.—That No. 29 be amended by the insertion of the word "Seventies," after the word "High Priests."

6.—That Nos. 12, 45 and 46 be repealed as being contrary to the more recent rulings of the Church. And we cite Nos. 58, 91 and 94 as needing to be amended in order to harmonize with the present rules of the body. These last are given as samples of repeal and amendment that we consider should be made.

HENRY A. STEBBINS,
R. ETZENHOUSER,
D. F. LAMBERT.

It was Resolved to refer to a committee to examine and to recommend action at as early a day as practicable.

Brethren H. A. Stebbins, J. H. Hansen and A. S. Cochran were appointed as said committee.

An appeal from brother O. H. Brown was presented, and on motion the matter was referred to the missionary in charge for adjudication.

Resignation of brother Samuel Rector

as an Elder was read, and was referred to the missionary in charge.

A letter from brother Joseph S. Lee was read, and was referred to the missionary in charge, for inquiry. Following this, Bro. Stephen Maloney was ordained as president and F. C. Warnky as first counselor in the Second Quorum of Elders, under the hands of brethren E. C. Briggs and Wm. H. Kelley, the former being spokesman in ordaining Bro. Maloney, and the latter in ordaining Bro. Warnky.

A petition from the Clarksburg Branch Va., concerning the organization of a district in that region was read and referred to the missionaries in charge.

It was moved and adopted,

Resolved, That all that part of Wyoming west of Cheyenne, be annexed to the Rocky Mountain Mission.

Resolution on tracts for free distribution was presented:

Resolved; That the Bishop of the Church be authorized to transfer to the Business Manager of the Board of Publication the sum of $500 from moneys now due the Church by the Board, for the purpose of furnishing tracts (including the Voice of Warning), for free distribution, such as the Bishop and Business Manager may direct.

It was moved to amend by striking out the words, "Voice of Warning." This was discussed, and motion to strike out prevailed. The original was discussed, being opposed by brethren I. N. White and E. L. Kelley, and favored by brethren E. Banta and G. A. Blakeslee. The previous question was ordered and the main question being put, it prevailed by a vote of 30 for and 16 against.

The following concerning the itemized reports of the ministry being published, was moved:

Resolved, That all Elders laboring under General Conference appointment, shall report to the Bishop all moneys received by them, and the names of who from, and that said reports shall be published in the body of the Herald, without expense to the Bishop.

It was defeated.

Resolution on the enrollment of Elders was moved and adopted:

Whereas: much confusion and disappointment are experienced by the present method of enrolling Elders in the several quorums of the eldership; therefore, be it Resolved, That all applications for enrollment be made to the Secretary of the Church.

Resolution on dancing was moved:

Whereas, the practice of dancing as now currently practised, is to some extent affecting many of the young men and women of this church, and diverting their minds from the spirit of the gospel, and is detrimental to the cause; Therefore, we move that it be considered unchristianlike, and if persisted in after proper labor is performed, that such members be dealt with according to law as any other transgression.

It was moved to indefinitely postpone. This was favored by brethren J. H. Hansen, John Hawley, R. C. Elvin and C. C. Nelson; and opposed by brethren A. H. Parsons and E. C. Brand. Previous question was ordered and motion to postpone was lost by 15 for and 28 against. Then a substitute was offered:

Resolved, That the practice of dancing should be discouraged, and that members of the church should be urged to avoid the practice, as one likely to lead their minds from Christ and his gospel.

This was opposed by Bro. M. T. Short and favored by Bro. E. L. Kelley. Vote being taken, resulted in 26 for and 26 against. Pres. Smith cast the deciding vote in favor of the substitute, and it prevailed.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder J. F. McDowell, of the Seventy, writes from Council Bluffs, Iowa:

During the past conference year I have labored continuously in the ministry. Although located at Council Bluffs, I have labored in several other places. At the above named place the general features of the work are improved; Eleven were received by baptism; the young people were brought in religious activity, and the public notice of the press regarding our doctrine and church has excelled all the past. Twice I did ministerial labor at St. Joseph, Mo., with good results. Delivered thirteen review lectures at Boonsboro, on prominent adventist doctrines, by special request; held one debate of eight sessions, during which I was much blessed. Have labored at Salisbury, Wheeler and Galland's Groves, at their public meetings; as also at Crescent, Quick, and Dow City, Iowa. At the last named place I closed my labors of twenty discourses, on the 3d of April; nine were received by baptism; an excellent interest manifest, best known here, and the Lord blessed his word with power; others are in serious thought. Solemnized four marriages and attended to several funerals.

Elder J. T. Kinnaman, President of the Third Quorum of Elders, present, reports:

Having received an appointment from the General conference, held at Independence, Mo., one year ago, to labor in the interest of the church, I deem it to be my duty to report to you. Being president of the Far West District, Missouri, I have been engaged in the labors to considerable extent; have been hindered very much on account of sickness, and after recovering my health, death called me to Illinois, and prevented me from going to Kansas to labor. I preached some while in Illinois, and last winter have done all I could consistently. Have labored in Grundy county, Mo., and in Spickardville the Disciples gave us the use of their house. I hope to ever be able to work in harmony with the church authorities.

Elder E. L. Kelley, Counselor to the Bishop, present, reported:

Since my last report to the body, my time has been continuously occupied, either in trying to aid the work directly as a member of the Bishopric by counsel, or presenting to the Saints where I could that part of the gospel relating to almsgiving, namely, the law of tithes and offerings.

This work necessarily too, the past year, has been in fields widely apart from each other; but together with the Bishop's counsel in this matter, I have tried to labor as directed by the Master, in no case permitting my personal interests or desires to move me from visiting those fields where I was thus called to go. I have visited Eastern Ohio, western parts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, Southern Michigan, a few points in Iowa, all principal points in California, and upon my return from that field such places in the mission of Bro. Heman C. Smith in Texas, and of Bro. John T. Davies in Kansas, as I could with little extra expense to the church.

In all of these fields I have met with much kindness from the ministry in charge and the Saints, aside from the especial aid from brethren Alex. H. Smith in California, as he was able to render, and Heman C. Smith in Texas. Other laborers in all of these fields, either in a local way or general, were doing good work; but circumstances were such that I was less with them. It was easy to see, however, the marked appreciation by the Saints and world of the labors of brother J. T. Davies and his two excellent sons, and other young ministers in the Spring River, Kansas, District; of I. N. Roberts, H. L. Thompson, A. J. Cato, and others in the Texas Mission, and of that honored soldier for Christ, D. S. Mills, and J. R. Badham, Thomas Daley, H. P. Brown, Wm. Anderson, Geo. S. Lincoln, T. J. Andrews, J. H. Lawn, Daniel Brown and many others who were laboring as they could in the California Mission, some of them giving their time almost wholly to the work. To know that such true and devoted men are standing for the work in those distant fields is greatly encouraging and hopeful, although the odds in numbers are so greatly against them.

The Expositor, published by Elder Brown, had done great good for the Pacific Mission, and ought to be aided by all Saints who can, both east and west of the mountains.

To-day, I am glad to be able to state, that without exception, in places where I have been able to learn the attitude and feeling of the Saints generally toward the financial working of the church, that it is in harmony with the law, whereas per contrary one year ago—it was greatly divided, or against.

This is encouraging, and I can say truly that what I have seen, heard and experienced, has more confirmed me in the faith.

Elder A. J. Cato writes from Manchester, Texas:

Since your last sitting I have spent all of my time in preaching in the South-western Mission. I have found the people in a restless condition in regard to spiritual things, and they are (seemingly) more anxious to hear us than I have ever seen. I have had better liberty in speaking than ever before, in fact I have felt better every way, so far as the Master's work is concerned. I have baptized ten. Am at your disposal to go where you may say, and do the best I can for the good work; but if I am not sent, my best wishes will be for those who are.

Elder D. H. Bays, of the Seventy, writes from Pratt, Kansas:

Since my last report I have endeavored to perform the labors assigned me in the South-Western Mission, under the supervisory care of Bro. H. C. Smith. I labored as best I could till some time in July, when I was prostrated by an attack of malarial fever; when sufficiently recovered, I began to work again for the Master. Leaving Bro. Smith in Bell County, I proceeded to the mountainous region in Bandera County, hoping the pure atmosphere would somewhat improve my health; but greatly to my regret, I constantly grew worse, till I was confined to my room and bed the greater portion of the time, thus rendering me unable to perform any labor whatever. After waiting in this condition for several weeks and all the time growing worse, my friends thought it unsafe for me to remain longer, and so I returned home in October, 1884. I left the field with great reluctance, for I saw there was great need of labor in that inviting field, as my departure left brethren Smith and Cato practically alone.

By February, 1885, I so far recovered that I began work again. In March, I concluded a public discussion at Oakland, Iowa, with a Methodist minister, on the "mode" and "proper subjects for Christian Baptism;" my opponent affirming infant baptism, and sprinkling, and pouring. In this work I was assisted by Bro. E. C. Briggs, of Carson, Iowa. Soon after my return home, my wife was taken sick, and died March 23d, which prevented me from attending Conference at Independence, Mo., last year. Since my removal to this state, I have held aloft the banner of truth, and am now holding services regularly every Sabbath with increasing interest. I am glad to say I am still in the faith, and have a desire to labor and sacrifice for the work. I regret that I can not do more. With a prayer that God may be with you in your deliberations, and for the final triumph of the Latter Day work, I am, as ever, your co-laborer in bonds.

Elder John Gilbert writes from Burlington, Vermont.

Being an appointee of last General Conference to labor in Philadelphia District under direction of Bro. Wm. H. Kelley, of the Twelve, I herewith submit my report:—I labored in Philadelphia, Allentown, Hornerstown, and Brooklyn; also in Massachusetts District. I visited and preached in New Bedford, Providence, Attleboro, Little Compton, Fall River, Boston, Plymouth, and other places, as circumstances permitted and the way was opened. The rupture which had occurred in Philadelphia District previous to my appointment, greatly hindered my doing for the cause what I wished to do, and what I might have done, had it been otherwise. In the Fall by the consent of Bro. Kelley, I retired from the field, at least for the present.

I have the kindest feelings towards the brethren, and also towards the good cause. And I trust to see the time when those who are called upon to hold responsible positions in the church, will see more nearly "eye to eye"—so that no schism may occur in the body of Christ. May the blessing of God attend the deliberations of this General Conference, and His Spirit guide in wisdom, peace and love, to His name's glory.

Certain resolutions in one of the reports of the Quorum of Twelve were mentioned, but were laid over till tomorrow.

The evening sermon was preached by Bro. M. T. Short. He was assisted by Bro. Joseph Smith.

SATURDAY, APRIL 17TH.

The conference assembled at nine o'clock. A hymn was sung, and prayer was offered by Bro. I. L. Rogers. The minutes of yesterday afternoon were read and approved.

QUORUM OF TWELVE REPORT.

After due deliberation, it was decided to reaffirm the appointment of Bro. I. N. Roberts in charge of South-Eastern Mission.

56. That Bro. A. J. Moore labor in Missouri and Iowa, under the direction of the missionary in charge.

57. J. F. Burton sustained in Australian mission.

58. Thomas Taylor in charge of English mission.

59. Duncan Campbell in southern Iowa, under direction of missionary in charge.

60. H. N. Hansen in Pottawattamie district, under direction of the missionary in charge; self-sustaining.

61. Hiram Rathbun in Michigan, under direction of missionary in charge.

62. J. T. Kinnaman in Far West district, under direction of missionary in charge.

63. A. White in Independence district, under direction of missionary in charge.

64. Charles Ryan in southern Kansas; self-sustaining.

65. J. H. Merriam in Canada mission, under direction of missionary in charge; self-sustaining.

66. J. W. Wight in Little Sioux district, under direction of missionary in charge; self-sustaining.

67. Hiram C. Bronson in St. Joseph, Mo., under direction of missionary in charge.

68. F. C. Warny in Missouri, under direction of missionary in charge; self-sustaining.

69. R. Etzenhouser in Eastern Iowa, under direction of missionary in charge.

70. Charles Derry in Little Sioux district, under direction of missionary in charge.

Whereas, the Quorum of Seventy refuse to recommend Bro. J. F. McDowell for missionary work; therefore, be it resolved, that we can not assign him a field of labor.

71. A. J. Cato in South-Western mission, under direction of missionary in charge, if necessary arrangements can be made with the Bishopric.

No. 1.—We also present for your consideration the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, inequality and loss to the church result from the practice of taking up collections for the support of the ministry; and whereas, such practice is in opposition to the recommendation of the Twelve and the Bishopric, with the endorsement of the General Conference thereon. (See minutes of September conference, 1882).

Therefore, be it Resolved by this council, that we call the special attention of all General Conference appointees, branch presidents and all whom it may concern, to this matter, and we declare in harmony with the expressed views of the Twelve, Bishopric, and church, that none but the Bishopric, their agents, or some one either authorized by them, or holding an ex officio right are authorized to take up collections for the ministry.

No. 2.—Whereas, there have been, from time to time, numbers of Elders in the field, in addition to General Conference appointees, some with and some without the permission of the missionary in charge; and whereas, many, if not all, of said Elders have received money, but failed to report the same to the Bishop, as required by him; therefore, be it

Resolved, that while we look with favor upon and shall ever seek to encourage the efforts made by the Elders to preach the gospel as their circumstances will permit, we deprecate their failure to properly account for all moneys received and advise that all Elders receiving help while laboring in the Master's vineyard be required to report the same in full to the Bishop of the Church.

72. A. Haws in Oregon, under direction of the missionary in charge.

73. Resolved, that we look with favor upon the efforts of Bro. H. P. Brown as editor of Expositor, and pray for its success.

74. William Anderson in Pacific Slope mission, under the direction of missionary in charge, if necessary arrangements be had with the Bishop.

75. Samuel Brown in London district, Ontario, Canada mission, under direction of missionary in charge, if arrangements can be made with Bishopric.

76. R. C. Elvin in South-Western Nebraska, under direction of missionary in charge; he asks nothing but some clothing when needed.

77. We have no recommendation for appointment of Bro. M. H. Forscutt for missionary labor.

That the secretary of this quorum be authorized to give notice through the Herald in due time, that all Elders and General Conference appointees report their approximate demands needed to continue them in the ministry at the next session of General Conference.

Committee on memorial on the death of Bro. Josiah Ells reported and read their tribute, as follows:—

"Whereas, since our last session of conference, death has entered our ranks, and stricken down our venerable brother and fellow-laborer, Josiah Ells, as a tribute of respect we offer the following: While with profound reverence and respect to God, and a desire to exhibit a becoming resignation to the dispensation of his providence, we nevertheless are made to feel sad at the loss of so able and worthy an exponent of the faith, who through long and tedious years, and life's changing scenes, stood unyielding to opposing powers brought to bear against the latter day work.

"During his earthly career he bore the cross as a noble soldier, evincing by precept and by example a virtue and love for equity and truth equalled by few and surpassed by none. In his death we lose a wise and able counselor, and the church a faithful, competent, and worthy representative. Let his name be kept in memory as one of earth's noblest men."

The name of Bro. Thomas Daley having been overlooked in our appointments, I as secretary of the Quorum of the Twelve, recommend his name for appointment to labor in the Northern District of California, under direction of the missionary in charge. A. H. SMITH, Sec'y.

The following concerning collections for the ministry, as presented by the Quorum of Twelve was moved: (See resolution number two in report of Twelve).

It was favored by brethren E. L. Kelley, I. L. Rogers, and J. R. Lambert. It was opposed by Bro. John Hawley. It was favored in part and opposed in part by brethren F. C. Warny, C. Derry, Henry Kemp and H. A. Stebbins. It was moved to strike out the words "or holding ex-officio right." It was moved to further amend by inserting after the word "agent," the words "and presidents of missions districts, and branches." It was opposed by Bro. E. L. Kelley. The previous question being ordered, both of the motions to amend failed of support. The original being before the house, it was moved that the Twelve be requested to give a clear and definite statement of the meaning of "ex-officio." It was moved to amend by striking out the word "clear" from this request. After discussion upon it, the vote being taken, the motion to strike out failed. Afterwards the motion of request was adopted.

The original was further discussed, being favored by brother W. H. Kelley. It was then moved that the chair be directed to request the Quorum of the Twelve to answer as to the term "Ex-officio" now. On motion they were granted thirty minutes to confer and answer.

Number two from the Twelve was presented and moved.

It was favored by brethren C. Derry, M. T. Short and I. N. White, and opposed by brother H. C. Bronson. Previous question ordered, and motion to adopt prevailed.

Reply of the Quorum of Twelve as to the word "Ex-officio:"

In reply to your request to give a "clear and definite definition to the word ex-officio," we answer as follows: 1st.—The word means "by virtue of office." (See Revelation of 1861). 2d.—The word, as used by us, refers: (1) to the Twelve; (2) to Missionaries in charge. (See Epistle of Twelve and Bishopric in Conference Minutes for 1878.)

A. H. SMITH, Sec'y.

Then number one as presented by that quorum was adopted.

It was then resolved that Bro. Forscutt be permitted to copy the petition from Nebraska City, concerning his appointment.

Thanks were voted to the committee of reception and arrangement for their labors in caring for the conference.

Presidents Smith and Blair each made brief remarks after the close of business. Then the conference sung the hymn, "Lord, let thy blessing rest in peace," and adjournment was had, to meet at Kirtland, Ohio, on April 6th, 1887.

ANOTHER MATERIALIZING MEDIUM EXPOSED.

THE world is full of fraud and spiritual powers of darkness, people deceiving and being deceived, and the unwary seem to be easily duped by any machination that the servants of Satan see fit to introduce. The greater the fraud, and the more strange and debasing the stratagem, the more the people wonder and marvel at the strange manifestations which are presented to them, and money is freely expended for the gratification of the restless curious appetite. Well might the apostle say that the power of the evil one was to be so great in the last days as to even call fire down from the heavens, and deceive the very elect if possible. We need only look back to the time of Moses, and the days of Saul, and follow the counteracting influences of the prophets and apostles, and even the experience of Jesus himself, to find the key to modern spiritualism. The witch of Endor was one of those renowned in her time for her mediumistic power. They had their wizards then, and those that had familiar spirits, and spirits that peep and mutter, much of which was without question produced by a power not wholly under the control of man. By strict comparison we can easily see that it was his satanic majesty, working like himself, operating upon those who are willing to give themselves up to his power. And not only so, but those spirit entities who were cast out into the earth with him, are ever ready to do his bidding and personify any one desired to be represented. They are perfectly willing to take possession of any one who will give up their will and agency to act in their seductive work; for we read of Satan, that he is permitted to transform himself "nigh unto an angel of light."

In this way he is able to deceive many, and more especially those who are not willing to accept of Jesus as the Savior of the world and the gospel which he introduced for the exaltation of all those who would obey it. We find by examination of the New Testament that people possessed of evil spirits annoyed the apostles as well as whole communities, as in the case of the young woman which followed Paul and Silas, whom they rebuked, and for which they were persecuted and cast into prison. The people of Samaria accepted the teachings of Simon Magus, thinking that he was some great one and had the power of God; but those who were honestly deceived gave heed to the teachings of Philip who taught them the gospel which is fraught with that power of discernment that people who accept of the same need not be deceived by false and delusive spirits. But even the Church in that time had trouble, for the angel said to John that some of God's servants had been lead astray by that woman Jezebel who caused them to commit fornication and to practice the doctrine of Nicolaitans, which without doubt, is about the same as modern free-love, and was connected with the spiritualism of that time as it is connected with it in our times. The counterfeiting of the truth in these last days commenced very soon after the restoration of the fullness of the gospel by the angel. And from the Fox girls of Rochester, N. Y., with their weak efforts in producing rappings to the later gigantic materialization scheme the people of the world have been taken by storm, and the whole world is wondering after these strange manifestations of power. Houses are crowded with eager listeners who spend their money freely and exclaim "Great is the Goddess Diana, (Lucifer) of the Ephesians"—of the world. And, strange to say, history is only repeating itself, for in ancient times a few of the people of the Saints were thus deceived, and in modern times they have given way to the same deceptive power. But this state of affairs with such is brought about by their departure from the truth. Those who have "tasted of the good word of God and of the powers of the world to come," and have thus turned away, following after such evil doctrines, thus "denying the Lord that bought them," to renew such to repentance is impossible. No wonder that those who once knew the truth so rapidly descend the scale of their being and adopt free-love, congenial spirits etc., and follow off the numerous lewd persons that come among them as mediums.

I suppose there is no part of earth that is more filled up with spiritualistic frauds and wonders than this coast. For some time past Los Angeles has been seemingly the center of his Satanic Majesty's power. A lady medium here, who professes the power to call back the departed ones and cause them to materialize, so that their dear friends may talk with and embrace them, shake their hands, &c., is one of his emissaries. Of course, many tears are shed over these meetings. The medium goes from house to house, and calls up the special friends of the household. On one occasion the prophet Joseph Smith, like Samuel, was called from his resting place, and conversed (?) with by one who once knew him, for two or more hours, and was made to say in answer to the question: Why did you introduce polygamy? "Because I found it written on the plates; but I found it to be wrong, and my sons are now putting it down, and it is right that they should do so."

Every one who ever read the Book of Mormon knows that no such statement is made either on the inside or the outside of that record. The medium, in this case, was not well posted. From night to night they would meet by the dozens, freely pay their dollar admission fee; spirits would appear and materialize, converse, and retire, all in rapid succession; persons who were not believers were surprised to take hold of real hands and to hear the voices of those who had long since passed away. These would mysteriously disappear, only to be replaced by others; sometimes it would be a German, and of course the Indian would act a conspicuous part in the programme.

There is a time for all things, so says the wise man; and there are times when frauds are and should be exposed, so that the truly honest may have space for repentance, and be placed upon their guard.

It is well known in this part of this coast, that for many years San Bernardino has been a special center for this dark business, and that many there who foster this work have been once associated in some way or other with the latter day work. A building has been erected here which is known as Spiritual Hall, where Spiritualists hold their "seances," feasts, lectures, &c. It is presided over by one who was once a prominent Elder in the Brighamite faction of the church. It is said he is quite eloquent at times. This movement is largely sustained by members of the old church. Oh, how vividly the words of Jesus comes to mind when we contemplate this awful state of darkness into which these benighted souls have plunged themselves. "When that light which is in you becomes darkness, how great is that darkness."

This work of darkness received quite a stimulus a little over two weeks since by the appearance of Madam Elsie Reynolds, a noted clairvoyant and materializing medium. She displayed such wonderful power that many who had previously been doubtful, became perfectly satisfied. When they could now see their dead companions(?) and embrace them, and talk with them, it seemed enough. The audiences rapidly increased, both night and day, and the Madam's income was estimated at from twenty to thirty dollars per day. The whole region round about was wild with excitement, and moved with astonishment at the manifestations made through this wonderful woman. She had taken quarters at the residence of Mr. John Brown, Sr., and was giving daily seances, as well as at night, Mr. Brown being a very strong Spiritualist himself. But the most of his family were opposers. He plead with his sons to come and be satisfied—see for themselves—which of course they did; and not being quite so credulous as the old gentleman they concluded to arrange for an expose. So on the evening of March 30th they met as usual at the house, and there were about forty spectators present, the lights being down.

A Mr. Allen, who was afflicted with sore eyes, had come thither to receive the healing influence of some spirit who had "gone on before." At once a spirit(?) appeared in the form of an Indian doctress. A bright spirit carpet was spread, which sparkled and shone like streaks of fire, on which the invalid was commanded to kneel. While in this position the medium, plainly visible, invoked the unseen power for healing aid. As the Indian Princess stepped back she fell into the iron grasp of Newton Brown, who was watching for an opportunity to unveil the spirit-fraud. As he held her she exclaimed, "My God! I'm caught! let me go!" At that moment some of the faithful ones, being ready to assist, dealt severe blows on the person of Mr. Brown, knocking him down. At the same time the lady(?) struggling for release; and as the lights were being turned up she escaped, leaving her mask in the possession of her captor, fleeing to her room with only her under garment (chemise) on, making a free exhibition to all. The exposure was complete; and upon examination of her paraphernalia it was found to be well saturated with turpentine and phosphorus—the clothing being reversible—there was also a dummy fixed up, so that two spirits could appear at once, with horn and harmonica concealed, all of which have since been on exhibition, and is now in the hands of the marshal. The Madam next morning drew cash from the Bank which amounted to some four hundred dollars, and took the first train for parts unknown. Quite a number who have been following the matter up for some time, and who were almost persuaded, say now they never did believe in spiritualism! It was too bad that the expose came quite so soon, as their annual feast took place the day following. It was quite a deadener on these festivities. Of course, the old ones still say that she immediately immaterialized, and so left her clothes in the hands of her captor. But the fraud was so completely exposed that there is no room for doubt among the sane minded people of the place. While this is a base fraud perpetrated upon the spiritualists themselves, yet it is plain to be seen that many of them are parties concerned, and would like to cover it up and smooth it over.

There is no question but what there is a power, as we have before stated, that emanates from Satan's inspiration and produces phenomena that we cannot account for; but a great portion of it is of human origin, and is the result of trickery. And yet we find many persons from all classes, (not excusing those who have had the name of Latter Day Saint), are duped and led into the meshes of that evil which the true servants of God have notified them of, for these many years past. The truth they seem willingly ignorant of; and instead of meeting with the people of God, and calling upon the Master to protect them from this Evil Power, they fall right into the net and are taken. What a condition of affairs it will be when God shall send forth his angels and sever "from his kingdom every thing that doth offend, and cast them out into the world, where will be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth." Also when "the children of the wicked one shall be cast into outer darkness."

Therefore, let us as Saints of God beware that we be not deceived, neither "neglect the assembling ourselves together, as the manner of some is;" for this is a day of spiritual darkness; a day of "perdition of ungodly men;" a day when the world is full of deception and of delusive spirits; and we can say with propriety, "Blessed is he that is not deceived thereby."

SPIRITUAL GIFTS.

THERE is a promise, made by Jesus Christ when he gave the great commission to the apostles to "Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," that these signs shall follow them that believe; in my name shall they [the believers] cast out devils, they shall speak with new tongues, they shall take up serpents and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover."—Mark 16: 17, 18.

This promise was made by him who said that, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." Therefore, according to this saying, his power was not and is not limited, and his word can not fail. Heaven and earth may pass away, but his word shall stand forever and ever; therefore, we can depend on his word.

But some will say, How is it that we do not enjoy those spiritual manifestations now as the Saints did years ago? There must be a cause, if indeed we are the true believers in Christ, for then we are entitled to those spiritual blessings of the gospel. The question then is, Whose fault is it, ours or the Lord's? We can not say that the fault lies with him, because he has said that he is more ready to give than we are to receive. And again, we learn that he delights in blessing his Saints when they are worthy; but we must not expect to enjoy the blessings of God without we live for them, and pray for them; "Ask and you shall receive." This is the way the Saints used to do in the beginning, no matter how busy, or how hard they had to work for the bread that perisheth they could find time to serve God around the family altar morning and night, and they would pray in faith, believing, nothing doubting, that God would hear them.

I can remember the time when the Saints would not think of going to a meeting before they went into their closets to pray that the Spirit of God might be in the meeting, and that they might enjoy some of the spiritual blessings of the gospel; and they never went away empty, no matter what the order of the meeting was, whether preaching or prayer meeting. If an Elder was going to preach, they would pray for him, that the Spirit of God might rest upon him, so that he could speak to the convincing of the honest in heart, and God heard their prayers, and many were brought to a knowledge of the truth. But how is it to-day with the Saints? Do they think about praying for an Elder, or for themselves, before going to church? Oh no. A great many say that they have not time to pray; and some do not even have time to go to meeting on Sunday or the Lord's day. And even some of those that do attend never think of praying before they start, for they have not time because it is getting late. They look at the clock and say, "hurry, boys; it is about meeting time." And so it is, hurry, hurry, and after all they find themselves too late, and this is about all they can think of while going to the house of God. Instead of having prayerful hearts they are all in confusion, and then after the meeting is over they say, "We did not have a very good meeting to-day, did we?" And sometimes they are ready to ask: "What was the matter that brother So-and-so could not preach better to-day," or "Why did we not have some of the gifts of the gospel," if it was a prayer meeting. Oh, dear Saints, if we want to enjoy the spiritual gifts of the gospel, we must live for them and pray for them in faith believing, nothing doubting; then we shall receive them, for Paul says, "Covet earnestly the best gifts." Therefore, this is enough to show us that we have to seek earnestly to God in prayer, or we shall never obtain those blessings that He has promised to the believer.

WHAT AILS THE CHURCH?

At the Paine Memorial Hall in Boston, Mr. L. K. Washburn delivered a lecture on "What Ails the Church?" Christianity, he said, is dead six days in the week, and it is not believed in on the Sunday. The Christian religion is reduced to a musical and literary entertainment, an hour or two every week, and Christian piety consists in furnishing the means for those who provide the entertainment. The church has endeavored to cover up part of its theological body, and has exhibited its more attractive features to the people. But we have not forgotten the priest of the inquisition and the thumb-screw. To-day we have a priest who holds out his hands in benediction over all the world. Wonderful transformation! It is a wolf turned into a lamb. Let us not be deceived. The transformation is only sheepskin deep. The Christian wolf is but covered with the skin of the murdered lamb. The claws may be concealed beneath the grasp of friendship, but they are still there. We must not forget what different shapes the devil may assume. We may eat, drink and treat with the church, but we can not trust it in this country with the power of the majority. It has changed its form, but not its purpose. America did not fight for political liberty that religious bigots might have room to carry on ecclesiastical oppression. It is not the will of the God of Isaac and Jacob that we want done here, but the will of the people of the United States. We do not want God in the constitution, but equality and human rights. We do not want the Bible in our laws, but justice and righteousness. Our liberties are for the purpose of helping the nation, and not for building up a church. The kingdom to come that Christianity has been preaching for thousands of years had gone forever. We are looking for something better than kingdom to come—we are looking for governments under which the people shall have their rights, under which the laws shall be just, and shall be administered for the good of all.

We look for a society in which manhood and womanhood shall be respected, in which common sense shall direct human thought, and love of right shall direct human action. The emancipation proclamation was itself a proof that man's sense of justice was higher than that of Christians. To free the negro we had to ignore the 25th verse of the 9th chapter of Genesis. The fetters that are eating into the lives of thousands are Bible texts, such as: "Servants, obey your masters; wives, submit yourselves to your husbands." The world has outgrown, materially and intellectually, the Christian dogmas, and the church recognizes the fact. There is a constant attempt on the part of Christian ministers to suppress the unpleasant parts of the doctrines, like a continual shutting of lips over bad teeth. Half the sermons one hears are apologies for the foolishness of Christian doctrine. The Apostles' creed is to-day no more religious than an Indian's war whoop is music. Let words be no longer sent on fool's errands. Prayer is a coward's cry. A man's duty is to bear as long as he can, and to submit when he can bear no longer. The universe is deaf and dumb; it does not speak to us when we speak. All worship is the service of superstition, and is inspired by fear. Idolatry is the common vice of all religions. There is no worship that is worthy. Reverence can go no higher than knowledge. We do not know whether the unknown is to be revered, or to be hated and feared. Let us, then, stop serving God until we know what service is needed. The average Christian believer feels: "If the Christian faith is true, I am safe; if it is not, I am no worse off than others." This is all that can be said for Christianity. The Christian would have the advantage of drowning with a life-preserver around him. That is all the advantage it would have for an unbeliever. Take the selfishness out of Christianity and there will be very little left.

What Christianity is worth to the world is shown by the general indifference to its precepts. Christianity pays to preach because it is not practised; it is not practised because it does not pay to practise. The church in the country is a mere Dorcas society, run by the women and ministers. Not more than 20 per cent. of all the church members in the United States are males. It will not be surprising if in the next fifty years every pulpit in this country is filled by a woman. If everything that does not belong to Christianity were left out and preachers relied on the Bible alone, the pulpit would at once become vacant. The only services conducted by the priest would be the funeral of his own faith, for the church would be the coffin of Christianity. "This Christianity is without cheer, has no gleam of sunshine. It is the religion of deepest despair; its creed is grief, its litany is lamentation, its song is sorrow, its consolation is a tear.

Christianity came into the world when men were plunged into superstition, and when hope for better things had died away. It might suit that age of the world, but it is unsuitable for this.

The world is now full of light and energy. It is impossible to unite the religious faith of another age with the brain and life of this. The whole message of the gospel is contrary to the spirit of our civilization. The burden of New Testament teaching is that earthly things are to be despised. What is death to the church is life to the world. Thus, every man who loves his race is under the obligation to help to remove Christianity from the earth. The world will be a better place to live in when good philosophy is merely good sense, and good religion is merely good action. We shall not touch real religion by sweeping away the church.

Christians may make attempts to sustain their creed, like that, for example, to get a bill passed for the decoration of the national capitol with painting of scenes from the life of Christ. Let us fancy, if we can, pictures of the ride into Jerusalem on a donkey, of the camel going through the eye of a needle, of the rooster that crowed thrice, of the furnace of fire, where there shall be (over the left) wailing and gnashing of teeth, of the outer darkness reserved for those unhappy spirits who have had the misfortune to be damned for the offence of enjoying themselves while on earth. Christianity is none the less doomed. The church that has been reared with so much labor must perish from the earth. And the time is rapidly coming in which man will be honest and true, and will act only to help his brother man.

The lecturer was frequently applauded during the delivery of his address, the humorous parts of which were promptly and fully appreciated.—Boston Herald.

THE MOUND BUILDERS.

BEYOND the relics of the Mound Builders themselves, no traces of the former existence of such a people have been discovered in any part of North America, save Mexico and Central America, and districts immediately connected with them. A very long period, far more than 2,000 years must have elapsed since the Mound Builders left the valley of the Ohio. The supposition that the Toltecs of Mexico and the Mound Builders were the same people seems not improbable; still it is mere conjecture. There is evidence that the Mound Builders had the art of spinning and weaving, for cloth has been found in their mounds. Most of the mounds are terraced and truncated pyramids. In shape they are usually square or rectangular, but sometimes hexagonal or octagonal, and the higher mounds appear to have been constructed with winding stairways on the outside leading to their summits. Many of these structures have a close resemblance to the teocallis of Mexico. They differ considerably in size. The great mound at Grave Creek, West Virginia, is 70 feet high and 1,000 feet in circumference at the base. A mound in Miamisburg, Ohio, is 68 feet high and 852 feet in circumference. The great truncated pyramid at Cahokia, Illinois, is 700 feet long, 500 feet wide, and 90 in height. Generally, however, these mounds range from 6 to 30 feet high.

In the lower valley of the Mississippi they are usually larger in horizontal extent, with less elevation. There have been a great many conjectures in regard to the purposes for which these mounds were built, some of them rather fanciful. It is most reasonable to believe that the mounds in this part of the continent were used precisely as similiar structures were used in Mexico and Central America. The lower mounds, or most of them, must have been constructed as foundations of the more important edifices of the mound-building people. Many of the great buildings erected on such pyramidal foundations, at Palenque, Uxmal, and elsewhere in that region, have not disappeared, because they were built of hewn stone laid in mortar. For reasons not difficult to understand, the Mound Builders, beginning their works on the lower Mississippi, constructed such edifices of wood and some other perishable material; therefore not a trace of them remains. The higher mounds, with broad, flat summits, reached by flights of steps on the outside, are like the Mexican teocallis, or temples. In Mexico and Central America these structures were very numerous. They are described as solid pyramidal masses of earth, cased with brick or stone, level at the top, and furnished with ascending ranges of steps on the outside. The resemblance is striking, and the most reasonable explanation seems to be that in both regions mounds of this class were intended for the same uses.

Another class of these antiquities consists of inclosures formed by heavy embankments of earth and stone. There is nothing to explain these constructions so clearly as to leave no room for conjecture and speculation. It has been suggested that some of them may have been intended for defense, others for religious purposes. A portion of them, it may be, encircled villages or towns. In some cases the ditches or fosses were on the inside, in others on the outside. But no one can fully explain why they were made. We only know that they were prepared intelligently, with great labor, for human uses. "Lines of embankment varying from 5 to 30 feet in height, and inclosing from 1 to 50 acres, are very common, while inclosures containing from 100 to 200 acres are not infrequent, and occasional works are found inclosing as many as 400 acres." Combinations of the square and circle are common in these ancient works, and the figures are always perfect. This perfection of the figures proves, as Squier and Davis remark, that "the builders possessed a standard of measurement, and had a means of determining angles." About 100 inclosures and 500 mounds have been examined in Ross county, Ohio. The number of mounds in the whole state is estimated at over 10,000 and the number of inclosures at more than 1,500.

The great number of these ancient remains in the regions occupied by the Mound Builders is really surprising. They are more numerous in the regions on the Lower Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico than anywhere else; and here, in some cases, sun-dried brick was used in the embankments. One peculiarity at the South is, that while the inclosures are generally smaller and comparatively less numerous, there is a greater proportion of low mounds, and these are often larger in extent. Harrison Mound, in South Carolina, is 480 feet in circumference and 15 feet high.

Another is described as 500 feet in circumference at the base, 225 at the summit, and 34 feet high. In a small mound near this, which was opened, there was found, "an urn holding 46 quarts," and also a considerable deposit of beads and shell ornaments very much decomposed. Broad traces of various heights, mounds with several stages, elevated passages, and long avenues, and aguadas or artificial ponds, are common at the South. At Seltzertown, Mississippi, there is a mound 600-feet long, 400 wide, and 40 feet high. The area of its level summit measures four acres. There was a ditch around it, and near it are smaller mounds. Mr. J. R. Bartlett says, on the authority of Dr. M. W. Dickeson, "The north side of this mound is supported by a wall of sun-dried brick two feet thick, filled with grass, rushes, and leaves." Dr. Dickeson mentions angular tumuli, with corners "still quite perfect," and "formed of large bricks bearing the impression of human hands." In Louisiana, near the Trinity, there is a great inclosure partially faced with sun-dried bricks of large size; and in this neighborhood ditches and artificial ponds have been examined. In the Southern states these works appear to assume a closer resemblance to the mound-work of Central America. "Ancient America," by John D. Baldwin, A. M., from which we gather the above facts, is an interesting little book of 300 pages, which can be ordered.

CHRISTIANITY AND SCIENCE.

JUST so far as Christianity has accustomed the world to its radical doctrine of a changelss and Omnipotent personal God, it has given to science an undecaying basis and impulse. If miracles are accepted as having been wrought for this religion, they show a power as unsearchable as any which the astronomer needs for the support of furthest suns or the configuration of remotest and vastest nebular systems. If they are denied, it can not be denied that such an impression was made of God's power, by the faith which Christianity exalted to completeness, and by Jesus himself, that miracles seemed to men not improbable. And he of whom the Nazarene taught that he cares for the sparrow, and clothes the lily by his delicate touch with its daintiest grace, only shows therein the constructive skill, of which science searches the manifestations in shells or insects, in the analysis of fibre or in the secret chemistry of plants. Whatever she discovers, by lens or drill, by experiment or induction, only gives the light of further illustration to that doctrine of God which has been incessantly widening in the world since Christianity drove from the thought of mankind, the gross or fanciful schemes of divinity with which the old world reeked or rang. She must be a witness, whether joyfully or not, to the grandeur of the religion which has given to her larger freedom and finer inspiration.

The discovery of the eternity of God, which came also to the world through the religion unfolded in part in the Old Testament but fully in the New, has the same relation to man's highest powers, and especially to his studies in science. It anticipates the largest demands of these, and gives to them unbounded scope. To get the amplitude needed here, unbroken by barriers of time, Aristotle had affirmed unmeasured duration as the sphere of primal energy; while Plato seems to have conceived the universe as an unwasting living thing, compounded by the creator of the whole of each of its four elements, not liable to old age or decay, with a soul of its own at once centered and diffused—itself a God, alone in its kind, and sufficient to itself. There was no philosopher among the Hebrews, and none among the followers of Jesus, who could measure himself with that illustrious teacher of the Academy whose genius has at once mastered and inspired so many greatest thinkers of the world. But it may certainly be said that in the doctrine of God's eternity, which they with such an emphasis taught, they gave a basis which he himself could never parallel for all conceivable cosmical processes.

If the astronomer counts five hundred millions of years since the fire-mist began to be condensed to make the earth, if the evolutionist holds it probable that an equal interval of ages has elapsed since the first life-germ appeared upon the planet—I am not committed, in either case, to their calculations; but I match the periods demanded by them against the eternity represented in the Bible as the sphere of God's life, and they do not exhaust or even diminish it. "In the beginning," that is the majestic and interminable expression, "God created the heavens and the earth," and "in the beginning," that is the response from the century which saw Christianity complete, "the Word was with God and the Word was God." The longest conceivable periods of time are here surpassed, as the drop by the ocean or the reach of the hand by the bend of the heavens, and they who never saw telescope or microscope, and who had learned nothing in any school of the impalpable majesties of creation, in declaring to the world a personal God, sole and sovereign, of unsearchable wisdom and a power eternal, not only surpassed all previous teachings, not only conveyed to human souls the grandest thoughts which these can receive, but they gave to the largest discoveries of science, or its remotest and subtlest hypotheses warrant and liberty.

Miscellaneous.

PACIFIC MISSION.

To the Saints of the Pacific Slope Mission, Greeting:—Having at the conference just closed, been appointed as missionary in charge of the Pacific Slope Mission, I wish to hear from any one who may be in possession of information concerning that field and its needs. I especially wish to hear from the ministry about the condition and wants of the fields where they labor, and of their own expectations and prospects for future labor.

It will not be practicable for me to reach my field before June. For the present, address me at Oakdale, Antelope County, Nebraska.

Earnestly soliciting your hearty co-operation and prayers, in behalf of the work, I am, in bonds,
HEMAN C. SMITH.

LAMONI, IOWA, April 18th.

NOTICES.

To the Saints of Oregon.—There will be a conference held at Crawfordsville, Linn county, Oregon, on 28th, 29th and 30th of May, 1886. The Saints from a distance desiring to attend may come by rail to Haley, at which place the Saints of Crawfordsville, will meet them with teams, to convey them to the place of meeting. The above conference will be held in a nice grove prepared for the purpose. Great pains will be taken to make all comfortable who attend—all may consider that they are heartily welcome. Those coming by rail will please drop a card, or note to C. E. Aldrich, at the above place, in order that teams may be prepared to meet them on the 27th, the day before conference.

C. E. ALDRICH, Priest and Clerk.

The Freemont District Conference will convene at the Keystone Branch, May 15th, 1886, at ten o'clock. We trust as many as can possibly make it convenient will attend.

HENRY KEMP, Pres. of Dist.

The Texas Central District Conference will meet at Cook's Point, Burleson county, Texas, ten o'clock Saturday the 19th day of June, 1886. We desire a full and complete report from all the branches.

H. L. THOMPSON, President.

ELIAS LAND, Secretary.

Wanted, the address of Samantha Woodstock, formerly of Springfield, Ohio, and of Joseph Hawkins, formerly of Dayton, Ohio. A. E. De-Long, Box 1, Fairfield, Green county, Ohio.

BORN.

BENJAMIN.—To Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Benjamin, Danville, Illinois, Sunday, April 11th, 1886, a daughter, weight, 10½ lbs. Ruby Adeona is a nice name. Can you suggest a better?

MARRIED.

POPE—MONROE.—At Lamoni, Iowa, April the 3d, 1886, Mr. George Pope of California, and Sister Edith Monroe of Lamoni. Marriage ceremony performed at the residence of Bro. Isaac Monroe, by Elder George Adams. May their home upon the sunny shores of California, whither they have gone, be peaceful and as full of sunshine as the land in which they dwell.

DIED.

BURCH.—At St. Louis, Mo., March 7th, 1886, of meningitis, Mary Maud, only daughter of Henry and Mary Burch, aged 5 months and 2 days. Services by brother Wm. Anderson.

Fare thee well, thou fondly cherished,
Dear, dear spirit fare thee well;
He who lent thee hath recalled thee,
Back with him and his to dwell.

REESE.—R. Reese, was born at Carmarthen-shire, South Wales, Nov. 2d, 1816; baptized 1847, and united with the Reorganization in 1863, at Kewanee, Illinois; moved to Lucas, Iowa, March 10th, 1883; and died March 25th, 1886. Aged 70 years, 4 months, and 23 days. Funeral sermon by Elder J. S. Patterson, March 26th, 1886.

CASSELMAN.—Zylpha Casselman was born in Orleans county, N. Y., May 2d, 1822; was married in the year 1849, and died February 21st, 1885, strong in the faith of the latter day work. Funeral sermon by Elder Jacob H. Snider.

JUDY.—At Mackinaw, Illinois, April 14th, 1886, of dropsy of the heart, father David Judy, aged 84 years. Father Judy was baptized by Elder Drake, in May, 1832, and was with the church at the death of Joseph and Hyrum; after that event he became identified with the Hedrickites, with whom he was connected at his departure. He was a good man, and had the respect of all.

BRONSON.—At Plano, Illinois, April 2d, 1886, at 8:45, a. m., William Bronson, aged 55 years, 11 months, and 7 days. The funeral was held in the Saints' meeting house, in Plano. The sermon preached by W. Vickery, Elder in charge of the branch, to a large and attentive congregation; after which the remains were laid away to rest in the Plano cemetery, beside his son who preceded him some three years. Bro. Bronson died as he had lived, firm in the faith and of the triumph of the latter day work. A short time before he passed away, he noticed the sorrowful look on his wife's face, and asked her what the matter was; and when told by her that he had but a few hours to be with them, his reply was, "It is well."

EGGLESTON.—At her home; Alkali Lake, Scott county, Kansas, at 12 m., April 15th, 1886, sister Caroline Eggleston. She was born in Claremont, Cheshire county, New Hampshire, April 22d, 1803, and at her demise lacked seven days of being 83 years old. She joined the church at a very early day, and has lived and died strong in belief and hope. Her children say: "While we mourn her loss, it is a comfort to know that if there was ever a Christian woman, mother was one."

FURNESS.—At Manchester, England, March 28th, 1886, Bro. Joseph Furness, aged seventy-five years. Deceased was baptized into the old organization over forty years ago, and was received by baptism in the Reorganized Church soon after the organization of the Manchester Branch, some nine and a half years ago, and continued in fellowship therewith up to the date of his death. The interment took place in the Manchester Southern Cemetery, April 1st, sermon by Elder Joseph Dewsnup. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved."

PIPI.—At Ziona, Punauia District, Tahiti, February 26th, 1886, sister Pipl, wife of Elder Leipo. Sister Pipl was born at Anaa in 1837, and was baptized by Bro. Glaud Rodger in 1873. It was in the house of Leipo and Pipl that Brn. Wandell and Rodger made their home while they remained here. Sister Pipl was the leader in the sisters' meetings which are held on Thursday afternoons. She had been troubled with asthmatic affliction for a long time. When we left in December to go to Anaa, she seemed to feel that we would not see her again, and she cried greatly at our departure. We reached home just a week after her burial. She was the foremost in learning to read in Helen's school, and even taught the rest after we went away. Poor Leipo is very lonely and disconsolate, and we feel the loss of Pipl, for she was in our house so much, and seemed to learn so fast, and was so much interested in becoming acquainted with our ways, for she hoped to go to America some day. She is gone, and we miss her much. Metuaore conducted the funeral services. T. W. SMITH.

HAND.—At Helena, Iowa, April 16th, 1886, Alma, son Bro. Charles and Sr. Frances Hand, aged 1 year, 3 months, and 10 days. Funeral services at parents' residence by Elder George Shimel.

I take their little ones, said Christ,
And lay them in my breast;
Protection they shall find in me—
In me be ever blest.

SPICER.—At Keokuk, Iowa, March 26th, 1886, Sr. Martha Spicer. Sr. Spicer was born at Philadelphia, October 5th, 1833; baptized October 31st, 1869. Funeral services by Elder H. C. Bronson.

A NEW BOOK JUST PUBLISHED

THE JUDGMENT PERIOD.

A book of the above title has just been published by Z. B. Chase, at Bangor, Me. It will not meet the views of modern theologians but they may safely look it over.

The author has spent a long life-study on the subject, being now about ninety years of age. The Book is a valuable production and will meet with a large sale.

The Judgment Period of which this Book treats are events soon to occur, geographically located on the territory of the original Four Great Empires—Babylon, originally located on the River Euphrates in Asia, and Media—Persia, Greece and Rome.

The Book is Illustrated by a cluster of Symbols, Maps, etc., at a great expense to the publisher.

Central and Western Europe, Turkey, Asia-minor, Central and Western Asia are Countries very prominent in the great drama of coming events.

Russia lies outside of this Map, but will, however, have a hand in the Great Struggle among the nations.

Egypt also will not escape the Storm. England will rank among the Islands of the Sea.

America it is hoped will carry the Neutral Flag, [at least we devoutly hope so.] Of course there is now a greater extent of country than formerly, and an immense population that will be affected by the Wars, Famines, and Plagues of these terrible Judgment Days as recorded in the Apocalypse, and of which this Book treats.

The Book contains twelve chapters on the Apocalypse with an Appendix on the five lines of Daniel's Prophecy.

The Book is neatly and durably bound in cloth, and will be sent, post-paid, to any address for $1.50.

Agents wanted all over the world to whom the Book will be sent for $1.00 each, or $10.00 per dozen.

In sending orders, care must be taken to give the full address.

HISTORY OF THE REORGANIZATION OF THE CHURCH,
BY ZENAS H. GURLEY, SEN.

Dated at Blanchardville, La Fayette County, Wisconsin,
October 23d, 1859.

BROTHER SHEEN:—You recollect that at our last Conference it was suggested that a brief history of the commencement of this work of reformation in the church should be given to the world in the first number of our periodical. That duty seems to devolve upon me.

I would say, that in order that those who read may have a clear understanding of the subject, it will be necessary for me to go back a few years and commence with my first labors in this place.

In the spring of 1850 I was appointed by a Conference held at Voree to visit a tribe of Indians in the north part of this State. On my way I was overtaken by a brother and requested to accompany him to this section of country. Immediately after our arrival I commenced preaching about fifteen miles south of this place, and continued my labors for some weeks. I came here about the middle of summer. The second day after my arrival I was requested to preach a funeral sermon. At the close, several persons requested me to preach to them again. Accordingly I made an appointment for the next Sabbath, a friend having offered me his house for the occasion. On my arrival at the place appointed for worship, I was agreeably surprised in finding a large and respectable congregation, of courteous manners and solemn deportment, instead of the refuse of society as I had expected to see in this mining region. Our exercises were unusually solemn and interesting. I felt truly that God had a people even in this place. So deep were my convictions of this fact, that contrary to my instructions I continued my labors, and after a few weeks I had the pleasure of inducting seven into the kingdom of God. From this time the way seemed to open before me. Calls for preaching came in from various places which I gladly responded to, as far as it was in my power, and with the help of H. P. Brown who came to my assistance some time in the winter following, we succeeded in building up a church of twenty-three or twenty-four members, which we called the Yellow Stone Branch. A few months afterwards I moved my family into this section, and continued my labors with the church, teaching them the principles of the gospel as revealed from heaven to us through Joseph the Seer. During this time several strange things came to my knowledge that fully satisfied me that, unless good and evil, bitter and sweet, could proceed from the same fountain, neither J. J. Strang, B. Young, William Smith, nor any that had claimed to be prophets since Joseph's death, were the [such.—Ed.] servants of God. The inquiry arose in my mind, "What shall we do? Here are a few honest Saints who have obeyed the gospel and are looking to me for instruction. What can I say? What can I teach them?" Thus I meditated for months. God, and God only, knows what the anguish of my mind was. I resolved that I would preach the word; and thank God, preaching brought me out right.

It was after preaching on a Sunday evening in the fall of 1851, while sitting in my chair at Bro. Wildermuth's house, my mind was drawn to Isaiah 2:2, 3. At that moment the great work of the last days, as it is spoken of by the prophet in that chapter, seemed to pass before me in all its majesty and glory. It appeared that I could see all nations in motion, coming to "the mountain of the Lord's house in the top of the mountains." At this time Strang's Beaver Island operation appeared before me. It looked mean and contemptible beyond description. A voice—the Spirit of God, the Holy Ghost—then said to me, "Can this (alluding to Strang's work) ever effect this great work?" I answered, "No, Lord." I felt ashamed to think that I had ever thought so. The voice then said, "Rise up, cast off all that claim to be prophets, and go forth and preach the gospel, and say that God will raise up a prophet to complete his work." I said, "Yea Lord."

As I left the house my mind was dwelling upon what had just transpired. Although the Spirit had told me that God would raise up a prophet to complete His work, it did not enter my mind at that time that I would realize the work in its present form. My whole desires were that those dear souls around me might enjoy the gifts and blessings of the gospel as the saints did in Joseph's time, and be saved from those meshes of iniquity which thousands had run into.

A few weeks afterwards while reading a paragraph in the Book of Covenants, which says, "If thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light," the Spirit said to me again, "Rise up, cast off all that claim to be prophets, and go forth and preach the gospel, and say that God will raise up a prophet to complete His work." I answered, "I will do it, God being my helper." From that time I began to look about in earnest for a starting point. I examined the books carefully, and saw at once that the teachings of the day were contrary to the law, and resolved that although I had but one talent, yet in the name of Israel's God I would go forward and leave the result with Him. At this time I was laboring with Bro. Reuben Newkirk, a young and worthy brother. I explained my visions to him, and he endorsed them at once. The Spirit of God was with us, and day after day was spent in holding council about the matter, until one day (being at work together in a lone place) we joined hands, and in a most solemn manner entered into a covenant, calling God to witness, that we would from that hour renounce all that claimed to be prophets, and take the Bible, Book of Mormon, Book of Covenants and the Holy Spirit for our guide. This was a new era in my existence. In Joseph's time I had stood with thousands of the servants of God, and counted it an honor to call them brethren; but alas, how changed the scene! One, only one remained of my associates that I could call brother. At times how dark, how dark was the future!

O, Brother Sheen; could I at that time have been permitted to realize what I have enjoyed with you and other dear saints within a few weeks past, how gladly would I have stemmed the torrent, and said with the apostle, "I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus our Lord." Well, thank God, he who commenced this work will carry it forward and I rejoice. My past experience strengthens me for the future. Then we were alone; our brethren around us having been taught that Strang was Joseph's successor, could only look upon us as apostates when they became acquainted with our position. We seemed to be hedged in. Darkness was all around us on every side. Light was only above us. Well, thank God, we proved Him to be a present helper. A few days after we had entered into this covenant, while Brother Newkirk was in secret prayer, the Holy Spirit rested upon him. He arose and spoke in tongues, and started homewards speaking in tongues and praising God. His wife heard him and met him, and shortly afterward she received the same gift and blessing. These gifts were the first fruits of the Reformation. (a)

(a) Here is a very notable fact set forth, namely, that when these Saints put themselves into right relations with God, by casting off all pretenders to the prophetic office, and when they had also covenanted solemnly before God to take the Bible, Book of Mormon and Book of Covenants, with the Holy Spirit for their guide, the Lord approved of their work and confirmed it by divine testimonies, and by signs following, as Jesus promised those "who believe."

About this time Brother David Powell came from Beloit, (about fifty miles distant) bringing with him a revelation which had been given to Jason W. Briggs some time in the previous November, declaring that the Lord would in his own due time call upon the seed of Joseph Smith to come forth and set in order the quorums; in a word, to fill his father's place. He was commanded to write it and send it to all the churches. (b)

There were some ideas in the revelation that I could not [then] receive. I was entirely unacquainted with the order of the priesthood as it really is, nevertheless I knew that God would raise up a prophet, but who he was, or where

(b) The leading points in this revelation can be found in the "Life of Joseph the Prophet," page 578, and reads as follows:

(b) "Verily, verily, saith the Lord, even Jesus Christ, unto his servant, Jason W. Briggs, concerning the Church:—Behold I have not cast off my people; neither have I changed in regard to Zion. Yea, verily, my people shall be redeemed, and my law shall be kept which I revealed unto my servant Joseph Smith, Jr., for I am God and not man, and who is he that shall turn me from my purpose, or destroy whom I would preserve? Wolves have entered into the flock, and who shall deliver them? Where is he that giveth his life for the flock? Behold I will judge those who call themselves shepherds, and have preyed upon the flock of my pastures. * * *

"Therefore, let the Elders whom I have ordained by the hand of my servant Joseph, or by the hand of those ordained by him, resist not this authority, nor faint in the discharge of duty, which is to preach my gospel as revealed in the record of the Jews, and the Book of Mormon, and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; and cry repentance and remission of sins through obedience to the gospel, and I will sustain them and give them my Spirit; and in my own due time will I call upon the seed of Joseph Smith, and I will bring one forth, and he shall be mighty and strong, and he shall preside over the High Priesthood of my Church; and then shall the quorums assemble, and the pure in heart shall gather, and Zion shall be re-inhabited, as I said unto my servant Joseph Smith;—after many days shall all these things be accomplished, saith the Spirit. Behold, that which ye received as my celestial law is not of me, but is the doctrine of Baalam. And I command you to denounce it and proclaim against it; and I will give you power, that none shall be able to withstand your words, if you rely upon me; for my Spirit shall attend you.

"And the Spirit said unto me, Write, write, write the revelation and send it unto the Saints at Palestine, and at Voree, and at Waukesha, and to all places where this doctrine is taught as my law; and whomsoever will humble themselves before me, and ask of me, shall receive of my Spirit a testimony that these words are of me. Even so, Amen."

he would come from, I did not know. About ten or fifteen days after I had heard of this revelation, while sitting by my evening fire, my boys came running into my room declaring with great earnestness that their little sister was up to Brother Newkirk's, speaking and singing in tongues. For a moment I was overpowered with joy. I exclaimed, "Is it possible that God has remembered my family." Immediately I went up, and when I was within one or two steps of the house I paused; I listened; and O the thrill of joy that went through my soul! I knew that it was of God; my child, my dear child was born of the Holy Spirit. I opened the door and went in. It appeared to me that the entire room was filled with the Holy Spirit. Shortly after I requested them all to join with me in asking the Lord to tell us who the successor of Joseph Smith was. I felt anxious to know that I might bear a faithful testimony. We spent a few moments in prayer, when the Holy Spirit declared "The successor of Joseph Smith is Joseph Smith, the son of Joseph Smith the Prophet. It is his right by lineage, saith the Lord your God."

It is proper here to state that the main body of the church lived from four to eight miles from us, and having learned that we had left Strang they regarded us as apostates. However, it was not long after the gifts were manifested when they came to know that these blessings were indeed with us, they then admitted that they were of God, and gradually one after another united with us, until the whole church were made to know the truth of our position and rejoice with unspeakable joy. Although the church [branch] had been organized more than a year, and striving to live right before God, yet no visible gifts had been manifested among us.

It was now necessary that we should change our organization and position in relation to the Presidency of the Priesthood. The branch had been organized under Strang. The Lord had taught us that this was wrong, consequently we appointed a day for the purpose of acknowledging the legal heir. The day arrived, and it will be long remembered by many that were present. While we were singing the opening hymn, the Holy Spirit was sensibly felt. Several sung in tongues. A halo of glory seemed to be spread over the congregation, and when we bowed before Almighty God in solemn prayer, all felt and all knew that what we were about to do was approbated of God. After singing, I stated to the church what was the object of our meeting, and requested all who wished to renounce J. J. Strang as prophet seer and revelator to the church, and acknowledge the seed of Joseph Smith in his stead, to come forth in the own due time of the Lord, to manifest it by rising up. In a moment the entire congregation stood up, and one simultaneous shout of joy and praise went up to God for our deliverance. Nearly all the congregation were under the influence of the Spirit of prophecy, and many important truths relating to the triumphant accomplishment of this great work was then declared. I will now close for the present. So far I have written from memory. Before I get through with my next communication I shall bring the History up to our Church Record which will enable us to give precise dates, &c.

Your respectfully,
ZENAS H. GURLEY.

SERMON BY PRES. W. W. BLAIR,

In the Saints' Chapel, Lamoni, Iowa,
April 6th, 1886.

INTRODUCTORY to the remarks we may offer this evening we read as our lesson a portion of fifth of Acts, beginning at the twelfth verse:

"And by the hands of the Apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch. And of the rest durst no man join himself to them: but the people magnified them. And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women); inasmuch that they brought forth the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them. There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one. Then the High Priest rose up and all they that were with him, (which is the sect of the Sadducees), and were filled with indignation, and laid their hands on the Apostles and put them in the common prison. But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors and brought them forth and said, Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life. And when they heard that, they entered into the temple early in the morning and taught. But the High Priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought. But when the officers came and found them not in the prison, they returned and told, saying, The prison truly found we shut with all safety, and the keepers standing without before the doors; but when we had opened we found no man within. Now when the High Priest and the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow. Then came one and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people. Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned. And when they had brought them, they set them before the council: and the High Priest asked them, saying, Did not we straitly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and, behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us. Then Peter and the other Apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men. The God of our Fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree. Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Savior, for to give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins. And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him. When they heard that, they were cut to the heart, and took counsel to slay them. Then stood there up one in the council, a Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a doctor of the law, had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the apostles forth a little space; and said unto them, Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves what ye intend to do as touching these men. For before these days rose up Theudas, boasting himself to be somebody; to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themselves: who was slain, and all, as many as obeyed him, were scattered, and brought to nought. After this man rose up Judas of Galilee in the days of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: he also perished; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed. And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone; for if this counsel, or this work be of men, it will come to nought. But if it be of God, ye can not overthrow it, lest haply ye be found to fight against God. And to him they agreed: and when they had called the Apostles and beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go."

The sentiment contained in these verses more than once, we think to make the leading thought of the remarks that we may offer tonight, and that is in regard to God's giving witnesses in every age of the world in respect to his work.

We think we are quite safe in saying, that God never began and carried forward a work among the sons of men without giving them an abundant amount of testimony, so that their judgment might be enlightened and their understanding instructed and they have an amount of evidence that would establish them, and confirm them in the truth, that their faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, nor in the theories of men, but in the power of the living God. Of course I need not relate to this congregation how God confirmed his word in the days of Christ and the apostles; for the history we have read, and indeed all the history of the New Testament is confirmatory of this fact. And we may not perhaps have occasion to say that God confirmed his word in the days of the patriarchs and prophets; for any one at all conversant with the Old Testament Scriptures must accede to that fact—must recognize that fact.

It is also important that we should bear in mind that when God works among the sons of men, means are used suited to the case, just such as will establish them in the truth and thus enable them to walk steadfast and faithful before Him, that they may receive the object and end of their labors, namely, serve God aright and attain salvation. Of course there is a great variety of witnesses and testimonies, which may be graded, first, second, third, and other classes, in respect to rank, or in respect to importance. There is likewise the testimony of men whom God uses; there is the testimony of prophecy going before, which becomes as the Apostle says, a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in our hearts. There is the testimony of history—divine history, or any other authenticated record of events—and this is of value in its place.

And then there is that grand testimony that stands superior to all others, so far as the individual is concerned, and that is the testimony of God's spirit bearing witness with the individual's spirit, enlightening his mind, informing his judgment, and taking of the things of God and revealing them to the individual. This glorious testimony is in some sense superior to prophecy. In some sense, and in more than one, it is superior to history—the history of divine things. In fact it comes right to the heart; directly to the judgment, and convinces and confirms the nobler faculties of the soul. It has been God's good pleasure in every age of the world to give these various classes of testimony. I may mention in this connection, likewise, that there is the testimony derived from angelic ministrations, peculiar in its character, but valuable in its kind when used by God according to his wisdom.

In viewing the history of the past, we find that God conversed with man in the morning of time and outlined man's future history, and his own designs in some respects. We have every reason to believe that a record was then kept, and that this record was handed down along the stream of time and placed in the custody of the people of God, and thereby, relying upon these divine prophecies, they could see the pathway, foreknown of God, in which the sons of men would walk in after times. We come down to the days of the Patriarchs and Noah. Of course all conversant with the Bible will concede that God revealed himself in regard to the race of man, and in regard to man's history, and to things pertaining to the physical world—the natural world. When one takes the Bible in his hand and examines these divine promises of God, and then looks at the history of the world and sees that these promises have had a most literal and exact accomplishment, then these promises with their fulfillment become very important factors in the testimony—very important factors indeed.

When we come to the days of Abraham we find that God revealed himself again in regard to different events to transpire, important in the history of that people. Then all along at different periods clear down to the ushering in of that all-important event, the ministry of Jesus Christ, when we take history and consult it we find these promises, these divine utterances, have their most literal accomplishment. The prophecies and psalms, the prophecies of Samuel and of Moses and of the Psalmist David, of Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel, and all the lesser prophets were more or less accomplished, having a most literal accomplishment along at different periods of the world, as in Abraham's case. And when Jesus came there were remarkable angelic ministrations. And beside this, they cited prophecies which had been accomplished. When Jesus Christ entered upon his wondrous mission he pointed to the fulfillment of prophecy, and set forth the fact that, from Moses all along down the prophets had prophesied things that pertained to him; and as there was a class that seemed to be oblivious to some of these important witnesses, Jesus said to them, "O fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have written concerning me." Jesus came upon his mission of life at a time when men's minds had become darkened through the traditions of the Elders, when they lacked the understanding to see the fulfillment of prophecies in the person and work of Jesus Christ. I remark that they were cited by Jesus to the prophecies God had given time after time in respect to him and his work.

After the days of Jesus we find that the apostles uttered many prophecies, and many of them reach clear down to our own days. Of course many will say that the revelations of Saint John relate to some things that have transpired in the past. And some refer to events to transpire in the latter days. Yes; I believe many of the utterances of Paul, and some of the utterances of Peter, were to have their fulfillment in these latter times. And these things are standing witnesses for God. This class of testimony can not be easily passed by. God requires men everywhere, whenever these things appear, to search the word, to search these divine utterances, to think, reflect, become familiar with these things, and thus have in their possession a light by which to be steadfast, immovable, abounding in the work of the Lord.

Again; God always, in every age of the world when he has had a dispensation among the sons of men, has commissioned men to perform that specific work which he would have accomplished. He did this by revelation—direct revelation from himself. We have every reason to know that God communed with Noah, Abraham, Moses, and with Jesus Christ, and also with other worthies who are mentioned in the Old Testament Scriptures. God communed with them directly by the power of his Spirit, or by the ministration of angels and gave them line upon line, that they might accomplish the work whereunto he had called them. Some were called to warn Israel of impending calamities; some were called to bring them back again and point them to the old paths, wherein they might walk and find rest; some were called to reveal things that were in the hidden future,—not especially to benefit those to whom these things were first given, but to bless their children after them, especially those living in the times of the fulfillment of those prophecies and promises. But God, I remark, called these men, commissioned them, and prepared them for the work that devolved upon them, and gave them divine power; he gave them power by which they could accomplish the work entrusted to their care. We have the testimony of God's blessed word, the Bible, that in these latter times God will reveal himself to man, in a similar way.

It is more especially with reference to this latter day message, this "eleventh hour" message, as many of my brethren call it, that I shall now call your attention. We read here in the Scriptures of truth, that when God would "set his hand the second time" to gather Israel, when he would restore them, when he would bring them to salvation, to rest, as a nation more particularly speaking, He says, "I will send for many fishers, and they shall fish for them; and after will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them." And he says he will hunt them from every mountain and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks, and will bring them again into their own land, and establish them and bless them. But mark you the sentiment given by the prophet; it is that God will take the matter in hand; God will communicate; God will call; and God will send. Again we read in the word of the Lord as given by the mouth of Isaiah, especially in the eleventh chapter of that work, that the Lord in the last days, when he will do good to Israel and to Judah, when he shall call them from the four corners of the earth—God himself, mark you, will "lift up a standard to the nations," and will "assemble the outcasts of Israel," and bless them; and that after this there is to come a time of peace, a time of gladness among the sons of men, and not only among them, but all enmity everywhere is to cease; for we read that in that blessed period God has said "the lamb and the lion shall lie down together, the bear and the fatling, and a little child shall lead them; the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice's den. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." Notice the fact that this is to be God's work; he is to begin it, and he is to carry it on to its final consummation.

Again; some of my brethren have mentioned since conference opened that we are living in that period of the world called "supper time." We read in one of those parables given by the Savior, that, at the period of the world called supper time, God would call, and God would send his servants. Thus it was from the commencement to the close of Bible history; God himself called, and he fully blessed and qualified his faithful servants for the work entrusted to their care. Besides that, as we have before seen from the prophets, God has promised that in the latter times, the times in which we live, he will call, and he will send;—he will call for ministers by which to accomplish his wondrous, his stupendous work, the most stupendous indeed, in some respects, that the world will ever know.

Again; if God calls in the latter days and sends his ministers, it involves the idea of new revelation—revelation directly to the individual, by which the individual shall know that he is called, also by which he shall know who it is that calls him, and by which he shall know the character of the message he is to bear, so that when he comes to the world he will not bear uncertain tidings, but will be fully qualified and fully established for the work whereunto God has called him! Now, the Latter Day Saints make this claim; but it is objected by the world. Why? Because the long night of apostasy began to settle down upon the world soon after the days of the Apostles, and it seems to have obliterated all this light which once was possessed touching the Holy Scriptures, and the calling of men by direct revelation from God. We are looked upon as being extremists, and as fanatics, because we advocate the principle of divine revelation from God, given to mankind in these latter days! Tell me why it is that, if man ever had revelation from God—why it is that he shall not now in these latter days have it, as well as in any other period of the world's history. We read the prophecies, and from them we learn that the latter days are to be remarkable for a great variety of reasons. Jesus, for instance, declares that the latter days are to be like the days of Noah, and like the days of Lot, also that iniquity shall abound and the love of man shall wax cold, and that men's hearts shall fail them for fear of the things that are coming upon the earth. Pray, tell me to-night if there is not a God in the latter days who manifests himself as in former times? Why not? These are to be troublous times, and why should not the world be pointed to the Most High as the wisest and best counselor—why not now as well as at any other period in the past! More important and stupendous events are to transpire in this than in any other period of the world's history.

When this latter day message began to be introduced, the claim was made of direct revelation from God to a young man, but a mere boy. He says, "I sought unto God in prayer, in order that I might know what to do, and how to serve him aright. God has communicated to me; I have seen the angel of the Lord; I have heard his wondrous voice; I saw the radiance that surrounded that sacred person;" and he gives a minute description of that personage, and proceeds to tell us of the vision that occurred, and of the ministering of that angel, and that he thus spent the entire night; and that when it passed away, and the last vision closed and the angelic minister passed away into the eternal worlds, he heard the cock crow and then knew that it was morning. The entire night had been spent with this angelic personage. The angel had been communicating to him for the entire night concerning the character of the work before him. He gave him much instruction regarding it, and cited him back to the days of the Jews and the disciples—right back to the revealed word of God—and said to him, "The time is at hand when the eleventh chapter of Isaiah is to be fulfilled; the time is at hand when the third chapter of the Book of Joel shall be fulfilled;" and thus he gave him line upon line and precept upon precept in regard to the great work that God was then planting, or beginning to plant upon the face of the earth. When we turn to the scriptures we learn that just such a work as this was to be begun!

We learn it from a number of Bible writers, one in particular. Daniels tell us that, in the latter days God will establish his kingdom, never to be broken down or given to another people, but that it shall stand forever; and he describes it, and tells about its characteristics—that it is to be like the things of God in its kind. God is to lead it onward and forward until he establishes it in all its wondrous magnitude and it fills the whole earth. This you will find described at length by the prophet Daniel. When we pass still further along the historical page, we come to the testimony of the great apostle Paul in regard to this same work—and I believe him to be one of the greatest apostles that ever lived upon the earth—he tells us that he was an Israelite, and raised after the manner of the strictest sect, a Pharisee. He says the Israelites would be broken off, and would be succeeded by the Gentiles; and then he proceeds to tell the Gentiles, lest they should be blind in their own conceits, that "blindness in part has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in," and that then all Israel shall be saved. He proceeds to show unto them a "mystery," and then explains this mystery lest they should be blind in their own conceits. "Blindness in part," he says, "has happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in." As much as to say that that blindness was not always to remain upon Israel—there was to be a termination to it, they would not always remain in folly and blindness, the condition in which they were then—but only until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in, and then he says "All Israel shall be saved." A "deliverer" he says "shall come out of Zion, and turn ungodliness from Jacob;" for this is God's "covenant unto them when he shall take away their sins."

Speaking of this wonderful "deliverer" which shall turn them from sin to righteousness, he says, "This is my covenant unto them." This I understand to be that blessed covenant that was promised by Jeremiah and Ezekiel and by various others of the prophets, even the New Covenant in Jesus Christ our Lord, the covenant introduced by God's dear son, mentioned by Paul in Hebrews, chapters eight and nine. But few of Israel received it in the days of Jesus and the Apostles. But Paul by the inspiration of God, and by the testimony of the prophets that went before him, saw the time when the dark curtain should be lifted, and when Israel should see light in the light of God, and when they should be brought into the bonds of that new and everlasting covenant, be the children of that covenant and partake of its blessings likewise.

Well; here you discover the testimony, clear and definite, with regard to God's beginning a work, a wonderful work, in the latter days. It is declared plainly by the prophets that it should be done; and Paul in Romans tells where that work is to begin; it is to go forth "out of Zion." Bear in mind, my brethren and sisters, this important fact, that God had ordained that in the days of Jesus salvation should go to the world "from Jerusalem." Jesus tells the Samaritan woman that "salvation is of the Jews." Christ instructed his disciples to tarry at Jerusalem, until they were "endowed with power from on high." It was ordained of God that then from Jerusalem should go out the gospel testimony to all the world, to every part of the habitable earth. All the saving power that the Gentile world had for eighteen centuries, was from that light communicated by Jesus to his disciples and by them to the world over eighteen hundred years ago. It began right there at Jerusalem—it was a Jewish work.

The Apostle Paul says in the eleventh of Romans that the salvation which is to reach Israel in the latter times, and by which they are to be saved, was to "come out of Zion." You must bear in mind this distinction. You are all familiar with the testimony (at least most of you are) given by the revelator Saint John in regard to the revelation of the gospel, the New Covenant if you please, for they are synonymous terms, meaning the same thing—he says he saw an angel bearing that gospel: "I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship Him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters." Now as to the time when this was to transpire, there is a statement just following this that throws light upon the matter. It was just preceding the doom that was to be passed upon Babylon; for after the gospel is restored by angelic ministration, then the angel proclaims, "Babylon is fallen, is fallen." What do we lean after this. Why, that the Lord comes to the earth in wonderful power, a fulfillment of what all the prophets of both the Old Testament and the New had written. Of this John says: "I saw one like unto the Son of Man, and he had a crown upon his head, and a sharp sickle in his hand. And another angel came out from the altar which had power over fire, and cried to him that had the sharp sickle, Thrust in thy sickle and reap." Jesus tells us (Matt. 13: 40.) that "the harvest of the earth" is "the end of the world," so that you discover here, that all these events are to take place prior to the second coming of Jesus Christ, when he comes to reign as "King of King's and Lord of Lord's." And just preceding that, mark you, is the destruction of Mystery Babylon, spoken of by the angel of God. And just preceding that event was the revelation of the gospel, because that is to be preached, we learn, "as a witness to all nations," preparing them for the events that are to follow, if they heed the instructions.

Now, in the testimony heretofore mentioned, we discover that of a young man who claims to be sent by direct revelation from God concerning this whole matter. He testifies that the angel appeared and taught him the gospel. We turn to the Bible and find that just such an event as this was to transpire,—an angel should appear. Again; how shall we know beyond the young man's claim, in regard to the work being of God that he represented. We answer, In a variety of ways. One is by taking the New Testament and by it judging the doctrine which this young man taught. And when we examine that, and see that it in every way agrees with what stands revealed in the word of God, it becomes a powerful confirmation of his claim. And there is still another. Go to the New Testament and read about the divine call of ministers, and about the organization of the church in all its various departments; take the Bible and make an examination of his claim by the divine pattern in respect to the organization of the church, and when the young man is found directly in harmony with the pattern in that book, that becomes another wondrously strong confirmation of his claim.

The world at large object to the Latter Day Saints. Let me ask you, Have not the Latter Day Saints just as much right to build a church as any one else? Have you ever thought of that? Here is Martin Luther building a church, John Huss founded a church, John and Charles Wesley and their fellow laborers founded a church; the King of England and Cardinal Wolsey and Bishop Cranmer, they built a church; and so we might enumerate scores and hundreds of churches that have had a beginning in times past, and some of them have had very obscure beginnings, and some of them were aided by royalty. Pray tell me, if one man, or one body of men, has a right to build a church, why not all have the same right? If there is to be no God at the bottom of it, no God to authorize it and make the call, if it is an inherent right in one individual, and he is learned somewhat in this Bible, why shall not other men, or hundreds of them, have equal rights in regard to church building, one just as well as another? If we must respect a church because some individual who built it gained some prominence, while yet it does not accord with the divine pattern, pray tell me if we are not entitled to respect when our church is founded upon and harmonizes with the divine pattern in its doctrines and organization, and in all its ceremonies? Have we not just as much right to ask the sons of men to endorse that which does so accord, as they have to ask us to endorse their man-made systems? But when a church comes forth and its beginnings are seen to be in harmony with prophecy; when it is organized according to the distinct pattern that stands in God's word; when its organization and ordinances harmonize perfectly with all this, certainly it demands our attention.

When we find it thus in harmony with the revealed word of God, such harmony is confirmatory evidence of the divinity of the commission of him who brings it to us. God has ordained in every age that every thing should be done in accord with the divine mind, the divine pattern; hence the Apostles were instructed, and they in turn instructed the ministry, to be very careful to teach just in accordance with the divine patterns, to be perfectly joined together, of the same mind and the same judgment. Paul in teaching Timothy how to labor acceptably, exhorts him to "commit the same words" unto faithful men, they teaching others also. If the church had been true to this charge all along from the days of the apostles down to the nineteenth century, it would have had the same kind of a church and the same kind of doctrines as Jesus and the apostles had then, and hence it would have been needless for Jesus to have restored the gospel to earth by the angel, or to re-establish his work in the latter days in order that His work might be accomplished in accordance with His divine purpose.

But when we read that in every dispensation and age that is past that in the founding of His church God himself has first wrought, has first revealed himself unto the sons of men, pray tell me why we may not expect that God will do the same in the latter days? Why shall we not expect it when the church comes forth in accordance with the divine pattern contained in God's word? Does not this claim become strong confirmatory evidence of the divine nature of this work? To my mind it does. In this respect these witnesses become of high importance—I will not say the highest, but a very high and important and indispensable work is performed by them. But passing on we notice another department of the subject which, to my mind, as already noticed, is one of the most important of all classes of evidence that pertain to the work of God, and that is that which pertains directly to the individual, so that the individual shall know for himself, (he or she as the case may be), that their faith shall not stand in the wisdom of men but in the power of God. This was always the case in olden times. The Bible teaches the fact very clearly. If there was one promise more prominent than another under the Christian dispensation, it was the endowment of God's Spirit upon all those that should receive the gospel.

You remember John baptized when he came "preparing the way" before Christ; and he says "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance, but there is another that cometh after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose, he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire, whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather the wheat into the garner, and burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." Here came the promise when this covenant was first introduced, of the Holy Ghost to be given of God to confirm the work by the baptizing power of the Holy Spirit upon those that should receive that baptism of water, the authoritative baptism of water administered by John. Jesus also had promised this, as you will remember. Speaking to his disciples, as recorded in the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth chapters of Saint John's gospel, Christ promises it—promises it to his disciples, and through them to the entire church. Peter on the day of Pentecost, when he had declared that the Jews had crucified the Lord of Glory, says, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost; for the promise (of the Holy Ghost), is unto you, and to your children, and unto all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." So that whenever the gospel is preached, wherever Christ and Christ's power in the gospel are preached, the promise of the gift of the Holy Ghost to the believer is made likewise. They are co-extensive in the recognized faith of the gospel of God's dear Son.

What will the Spirit do? What will the Holy Spirit do? Christ Jesus says it shall become a witness. "It shall take of the things of the Father and show them unto you." He says, "It shall testify of me." These disciples were to go and testify what they knew in regard to Jesus Christ. There was also to be this confirmatory evidence to follow the believer. God was to give the confirmation of the Holy Spirit, which is "the seal" of those who receive the gospel—the new covenant—and live strictly in harmony with its requirements. We hear the Apostle in after times reasoning with his Roman brethren, and telling them that "the Spirit beareth witness with our spirits." That is, it bears witness to our spirits, so that the Spirit of God becomes a witness—becomes a testifier. And this class of evidence is the highest kind that the human soul can receive. I may be deceived; you may be deceived in various way; in almost all kinds of ministrations there is danger of deception in some sense. But in this there is none. It is the Holy Spirit of God; it is the mind and will of God. When that comes it reaches the heart; it reaches the spirit of man; it lights up "the candle of the Lord" within the soul. This testimony is yea, and amen. This testimony places the individual beyond the power of deception, if he lives in conformity with the requirements of the gospel. This is that of which John speaks when he says, "Ye have an unction from on high, and ye know all things. (Ye can by that know all things). Ye have no need that any man should teach you. It shall teach you all things; it is truth and no lie." Here then, I remark, is the highest class of testimony that the human soul can receive. When the Saints—the disciples—faithfully preached the gospel in ancient times, the record tells us that "the Lord confirmed the word." "Go and preach the gospel to every creature; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned; and these signs shall follow them that believe; in my name they shall cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." And the historian tells us that these disciples went forth and preached the word everywhere, and God confirmed their testimony with signs following them that believed. So that every one of these different signs was a witness from God; it was a confirmation from on high to the individual, so that he knew that the doctrine he had embraced was indeed divine, that God was its author, and eternal life would be its result.

But says one, "You do not think that such a dispensation has been ushered in in these latter days, do you? Why this unlettered lad, when he first started out into the world preaching and teaching, he says, "The gospel after its ancient order has been restored; wherever an individual receives that order and lives in harmony with it and faithfully devotes his life to God, God will confirm it to his soul and to his understanding, the same as he did to his disciples and his believing children in ancient times." Now herein was a means placed right in the hands of the people by which they could test the divinity of that young man's calling:—they could test whether he was sent of God, or whether the message he was giving to the world was divine in its origin. What has been the history in regard to this matter? Why, that they faithfully preached the word, beginning very lowly in life. They went forth and preached the word everywhere, and the Lord confirmed the word with signs following them that believe. You know in the chapter that I read in your hearing, Peter says, "We are his witnesses of these things, and so also is the Holy Ghost, which God has given to them that obey him." How has it been in these latter days? This young man before mentioned, came to the world testifying of this restored gospel, and said to them, "Whoever embraces this gospel out of a pure heart, it shall be confirmed to them, and they shall know that the work is divine;" they should have confirmatory evidence until their hearts are satisfied. All these things have occurred.

I may now tell you some things I have heard; and perhaps some things I myself have experienced. I feel thankful before God that I see so many here to-night that I have met in days gone by, some of them away back twenty-five and twenty-eight, and some of them even thirty years ago. They can bear me witness to some of the things that I may mention in this connection—confirmatory testimonies of God, given by the power of his Holy Spirit. I remember talking with Ezra Thayer. His name is recorded in the Book of Covenants. He was one of the early members of the church; and probably joined in 1830—I am confident it was that year. He was a stalwart man, a large powerfully built man, and a man of mind, too. He was a man besides that, of good habits in life, and was a man of some education. Besides that he had a good deal of experience in his way, in the affairs of life,

He used to be what was known as a bridge and mill builder. In those early days they ran their mills by water, and not by steam, and there was a great deal of mill building with dams in those days, and it required a great deal of scientific work and a good deal of knowledge of the mechanical arts to build mills after that style with dams that would stand. I met Bro. Thayer at the house of Bishop Blakeslee in Michigan. He came to our church; we held services in a little frame building, simply built—I guess it was designed for a school house. The country was very new. This stranger came there, and he seemed to be perfectly at ease; indeed, he appeared rather stupid, and as though he did not care much about the service—had just "dropped in." Pretty soon after service had begun, he began to look around and listen; and before the sermon was half through, his soul was all ablaze with the light of God. Great tears coursed down the old man's face, and he was a child again, and fairly trembled under the power of God, as I remember him now. But who he was I did not then know. Brother Blakeslee did not know him, or knew but little about him. He came out and looked as a man naturally would to see whether he was really deceived or not. Brother Blakeslee invited him to go to his house to dinner. He said he wanted to have a talk with me. There I learned for the first time that his name was Ezra Thayer; that he had been one of the early members of the church, and was with Joseph the Seer and Oliver Cowdery and many of those early men in the first history of the church. This, mark you, was in 1860, about thirty years from the time that he first became identified with the work. Now the result was, that before the next Sabbath had passed I baptized him and some of his kindred, also some others there. Then he gave a history of his former connection with the church, and told I remember—(I am not going to tell you all)—told us among other things, that when he was living near Canandaigua, New York, his brother came to see him on business from Auburn. His brother said to him "Ezra, the Smiths are going to hold services up here at a place about two miles away, and I want to go up and hear them; hitch up your carriage and go up." "No, indeed," said he; "I will not be found going after such delusion." "Well you used to know old father Smith yourself." "Yes he used to work for me." "You hired him?" "Yes, he has worked for me." "You knew Joseph?" "Yes, I knew him well enough." "Well, you know who they are, it is all right enough; let us go up and see what there is of it." "No," he said, "I will not go near them; but I will furnish a carriage to take the whole lot of them and put them in Auburn prison."

But the brother would not yield, but said, "We will go up and hear them; I want to hear them; I used to know Oliver Cowdery when he was a school teacher; hitch up and let us go together." Through the continued importunity of his brother, Ezra at last yielded, and so they went.

And when they got there, they found a double log house, and quite a company. He said that Joseph and his father and Hyrum and Oliver Cowdery were there, and that he knew them all; and that when he got there he felt a wonderful desire to hear, and to get right up close to them, where he could see and hear all that could be seen and heard. So he shouldered his way through the crowd as best he could, up in front of them. After they had opened service by prayer, father Smith got up and talked a few minutes on some bible idea. Then Hyrum talked a few moments; next Oliver Cowdery rose and talked; and when he sat down, Joseph rose in his place and spoke. He had a book in his hand, which afterwards proved to be the Book of Mormon; and he in his boyish and uncultured way told how it was brought forth, giving a plain, sincere, sober statement in regard to it. Says he, "Brother Blair, there was such a power seized upon me as enabled me to know that every word that that lad said was true." He said he knew just as well that that was the work of God when he was telling of it, as he ever did afterwards; and he claimed he had an abundant amount of evidence afterwards. He was so anxious in regard to the matter, that as soon as Joseph was through bearing his testimony he asked for that book, and when he had purchased it of him, he would not have taken any amount of money for it—he would not let it go out of his hands. I mention this to show how it was that a man by the power of God knew the truth of the testimony of that young lad. He had been acquainted with this lad; the lad had once been in his employ. Finally he entered the church, and God afterwards confirmed to him the truth of the work in a marvelous degree; and the work received a great impetus in that part of the land, and gathered in a great many people—gathered in a large number of people who afterwards moved to the west—down to Kirtland and afterwards to Missouri.

You take it right forward from this period of time, and the testimony of those who embraced the gospel is to the effect that God confirmed the word with signs following them just in accordance with the promises contained in the New Testament Scriptures. And we read similar testimonies coming to us from Wales, from England, from Canada, from Nova Scotia and the islands of the sea, also from the various parts of the United States—testimonies have been borne all along down since the year 1827 until our own times, and it is all to the one fact, namely, that God has confirmed the word with signs following them that believe. And these men, mark you, are not the only witnesses for God; but the Holy Ghost likewise, as in ancient times, bears witness to the divinity of the work. I undertake to say that no man can be a witness—no man can stand forth as a minister of Jesus Christ, or should stand before the sons of men and preach the gospel of Christ, unless he has received that measure of the Holy Ghost by which he can bear testimony that he knows the message he bears is indeed divine. God never sent a man, and never will send a man to represent Him, unless he qualifies him by the endowment of that Spirit, if he lives as he should. God never sent his servants without it, and never will. It is the testimony of God; the testimony that cometh from God on high; the wondrous, eternal testimony that was given to the apostles, by which they told to Jew and Gentile how that Jesus was taken and with wicked hands was crucified and slain; that God raised him from the dead; that they saw him afterwards and ate and drank with him, and that he went in among them for forty days; that he after that was received up into heaven. They bore this testimony wherever they went; theirs was a wondrous testimony indeed; but this would have come far short had it not been confirmed by a corresponding, and indeed, a greater testimony than that. Theirs was the testimony of man. They had the knowledge, the evidence themselves. But still they could not have given the higher evidence to others; that must be given by the power of God, the same as God had confirmed it to them. As we have read, "We are his witnesses of these things; so also is the Holy Ghost, which God hath given to them that obey him."

I know there are a great many who say that no one can be a witness for Jesus Christ—no one can testify of Jesus Christ that he has indeed risen from the dead and that he is what he claimed to be (the Messiah), unless he has seen him, or heard his kingly voice, or has witnessed the wonderful displays of his power, such as the apostles did in ancient times. This is a wonderful mistake. My friends, the fact is the Holy Spirit was that power by which they had, in ancient times, a prophetic knowledge in regard to Jesus Christ, that he should come, and they bore witness to all nations, kindreds and tongues, of the coming of the Messiah, and of his wondrous work upon earth. It was the Holy Spirit, also the angelic ministrations, that enabled the ancient prophets to accomplish their wondrous work. So after Jesus came to earth, God confirmed to man the truth of his mission, and gave them testimony by the power of his Holy Spirit.

A few words in regard to the Reorganized Church, and they must be very few, for the moments have not waited. In regard to the divinity of the work we are associated with, the Reorganized Church, I have not time to tell you what I want to tell you, what I should love to tell you. I see faces I have met in other places a long way from this; hundreds of miles away. Brother John Smith here before me, I met when he was a boy, at Fall River, Massachusetts; Bro. James Gillen had preceded me there. I organized a conference there in 1865. (A voice '66). So it was. Bro. Gillen found a little band of Saints, perhaps but two or three. I found afterwards a little band of perhaps a dozen or fifteen there, but God's blessing by the gift of his Holy Spirit was among them, giving witness in prophecy, and the gifts of tongues and of healing abounded in that little branch. Yes, I remember very well when I was there a very singular incident occurred. A little sister about nine or ten years of age, (perhaps not as old as that), after various ones in the sacrament meeting on Sunday had been bearing their testimony by the gift of the Spirit, this little girl told how she had come into the church and been blessed of God; how God had poured out his Spirit upon her, and that she knew the work was divine. All at once her frame trembled like a leaf; tears coursed down her cheeks; she raised her hands, and looking upward, prayed in another tongue. I guess brother John remembers this; I never shall forget it. It seemed that the whole house for the time was filled with the Spirit and power of God. It was like a pentecost to us; and it seemed that there was scarcely an eye in that assembly (and the hall was completely filled), but what was moist with tears. Again, in other places, and all over the land where it has been our lot to travel and minister in the things of God, He has confirmed the work with signs following them that believe. God has not only confirmed the work to ourselves, but likewise confirmed the labor done by others. Why, I remember seeing this little church, (yes it is little yet compared with what it is to be), I remember seeing it—and Brother Rogers and brother and sister Blakeslee here, will remember seeing it—when we could get into a small school house all the members of it. We saw it in this lowly condition, but we had the gift and power of God with us. I remember going up to Zarahemla, in 1857, where I found a little band of Saints upon the bleak hills of Wisconsin. It was one of the poorest, most God-for-saken regions I ever did go to, I think. I had a very dreary time in getting there; a very cold time. But I found God among the Saints; the love of God was there, and the power of God was there; and the doctrines of eternal life were there in all their power. God gave the blessings of the Holy Spirit to that people. The gift of tongues in prayer, in singing, and in speaking were there. In various other ways was Christ among them; the gift of prophecy and vision was among them; and it was like a heaven on earth among that little band of Saints at Zarahemla.

At Beaverton, Wis., there were some whom God bore witness to, and the gift and power of God was with that people. Young men and young women came into the church, lived upright lives before God, and the power of the Highest was upon them. God confirmed his word just in accordance with what he had promised in the New Testament Scriptures. I speak of these things here to-night because there are witnesses here who can bear me witness to the truth of what I tell you. Persons confirmed into the church there under the hands of the ministry, received an endowment and gift of the same kind as they did in the days of Paul when he came to Samaria; and from that time right along similar experiences have occurred in every part of my mission work. On my left here is father John A. McIntosh, one of the old members of the church, one who had considerable experience in the days of the Martyred Seer. When Bro. E. C. Briggs and myself went to western Iowa, in 1859, and preached the gospel there, God's Spirit took hold of these old veterans, such as Brother John and others, and showed them that this was God's work, the same as it witnessed to them in the days of the Seer. The same gifts and blessings were bestowed as were bestowed then; the same as are described in the New Testament Scriptures. All through the country, when I first went up into that region, there was quite a disposition to disbelieve the work, and some stood out quite awhile; but, thank God, wherever the confirming power of God's Spirit witnessed to them they were enabled to know that the work we represented was divine, and they were led to honor and praise the Lord. So I can select them out here by the dozens, Saints that I have met in other places and times, who can stand as witnesses before God, and if it were necessary could rest their soul's salvation upon the testimony that God has given to them by the power of His Holy Spirit, to the divinity of the work of these last days, which work is now being preached among the sons of men.

In conclusion, my brother ministers, What a wondrous work is this! And O ye saints of God! what a wondrous responsibility rests upon you! And mark you, it does not all rest upon the ministers; the minister is important in his place, but all Saints have a responsibility to bear. What a wondrous work! a work planted in the wisdom of God, and by the power of God. It is the minister's work to go out with this message of life and peace to all nations; to carry the gospel to all the sons of men that they may be received into fellowship with God, and be reconciled to God through His Son Jesus Christ; and the Lord has given them this charge, that they shall show themselves worthy to stand, and having done all be enabled to stand.

In regard to your present president of the church—one remark, and only one—and that is to say that his calling was one of the leading features of the Reorganized Church. The testimony came to me in 1856, in the month of November; but I have not time to tell you about it now, only to say that it was one of the leading features of the work then that the present representative of Joseph the Seer was to stand in his father's place at the head of the church. Here are scores under the sound of my voice who will bear me witness that those were the tidings borne then as given through prophecy, tongues and visions, that the time was near at hand when God would call and establish Joseph at the head of the church.

This is the testimony that was borne when we first visited Western Iowa, in 1859. There is Bro. Wilcox, (and so I might select quite a number of them), who know the kind of testimony that was borne to them; and its fulfillment has enabled them to know that the prophet Amos was a very acceptable and a very truthful teacher when he said, "The Lord God will do nothing until He reveals His secret unto His servants the prophets." God, beforehand reveals His will, gives item by item, and the witness of prophecy gives light unto the world. Then, forward and onward should be our watchwords. We have nothing to fear but ourselves—our follies and weaknesses and shortcomings—that is all we have to fear. It remains for us to still press onward and forward, keeping our eyes fixed upon the mark of the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus, fully keeping the law of God, and working according to the divine pattern God has given to us, and victory and honor and glory and eternal redemption will be our happy lot. That we may attain this is my prayer in Jesus name, amen.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 8, 1886.

IN this issue we begin the republication of the history of the origin of the Reorganization, the causes that led to that movement, the methods of procedure adopted, the doctrines taught, the wonderful manifestations had, the foundations upon which the work was builded, and the personnel of the builders.

This history was written by one of its principal actors, a man whose devotion to the work of God stands unchallenged, one whose moral character was not only above reproach, but above suspicion, and who wrote of things as he saw them and knew them and believed them. He wrote this history in 1860, when there were many still living who were witnesses touching the facts which he sets forth in his narrative.

We bespeak for it a candid, careful reading. And let all who read bear in mind that brother Zenas H. Gurley Sen. in and "by it, he being dead, yet speaketh." A brother remarked to us of late that he never read that history without receiving the Spirit of God, witnessing that it was true. Such has been our experience; and we therefore are confident in saying to all who will read with an earnest, sincere desire that truth and right shall prevail, that they too, may have the Spirit of God to bear witness with their Spirit that Father Gurley's testimony was and is correct and reliable. And inasmuch as it is true and trustworthy, it will be found to clearly indicate the foundations, methods, and means, upon which and by which the Church of Christ must be built,

THE following from Bro. Heman C. Smith, is inserted for the reason that the minutes referred to were read and properly corrected to read as follows:

"Under a suspension of the rules, resolved, that we grant the request of those desiring to withdraw from the church, and that their names be stricken from the church records," the whole being in one. But in the hurry and confusion attendant upon the Herald Office after conference adjourned, in the endeavor to get caught up with the work, the transposition from the body of the resolution to the minutes was not noticed in proof reading. In the original corrected minutes of the secretary it reads as stated by us above.

DOW CITY, Iowa, April 24th, 1886.

Brother Joseph.—On page 251 of current volume of Herald there occurs a mistake in the conference minutes. It is there stated: "The following substitute was moved, under a suspension of the rule." "Resolved, that we grant the request of those desiring to withdraw from the church, and that their names be stricken from the church records." Now as all will remember, and as the original resolution will show, this motion was not made under a suspension of the rule, but the motion to suspend, and the motion to erase the names were included in one and the same motion. I seriously object to this and ask that it be corrected. The substitute was out of order, and is consequently inoperative as will be seen by page 52 of Rules of Order, but let us have the facts in the case. I am willing to yield to the will of the majority when in harmony with law, but I insist that the action of the majority shall appear on the record correctly. If the minutes are not corrected, I ask for the publication of this protest. Respectfully, HEMAN C. SMITH.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BROTHER F. B. Moyers of Conejos, Colorado, writes us on the 24th ult., saying:—"It has been a very tight squeeze for many of us in this valley to pass through the past severe winter. . . . Business is very dull for this season of the year. . . . Brighamism here still holds out a defiant front, by preaching and teaching their abominations, although such are gradually losing prestige with the intelligent and honest among their late converts."

Sr. N. W. Empey renews for the HERALD and says:—"I am an old Latter Day Saint. The Herald is all the preacher I have, therefore please continue sending it."

BORN.

PARR.—Born in Detroit City, Minn., to Bro. THOS. M. and Sr. Eliza J. Parr, January 23d, 1886, a daughter named Perla Margaret Zimenna. Blessed by Brn. J. Martin and Henry Way, April 4th, 1886.

DIED.

ROOT.—Near Haywards, Alameda County, California, March 18th, 1886, Mrs. Marcia A. Root, wife of Erastus Root. Deceased was born in Livingston county, New York, February 14th, 1816. She was in full faith of the gospel, but had not been baptized yet. It was her determination to obey all of God's commands; but before another opportunity offered the summons of death called her away, and he who doeth all things well will give the reward.

Mother's Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Give human nature reverence for the sake
Of one who bore it, making it divine
With the ineffable tenderness of God!
Let common need, the brotherhood of prayer,
The heirship of an unknown destiny,
The unsolved mystery 'round about us, make
A man more precious than the Gold of Ophir."

DANGER.

"AGAIN the word of the Lord came unto me, saying: Son of man, speak to the children of thy people and say unto them, When I bring the sword upon a land, if the people of the land take a man of their coasts, and set him for their watchman: If when he seeth the sword come upon the land, he blow the trumpet and warn the people; then whosoever heareth the sound of the trumpet and taketh not warning, if the sword come and take him away, his blood shall be upon his own head. He heard the sound of the trumpet and took not warning; his blood shall be upon him. But he that taketh warning shall deliver his soul. But if the watchman see the sword come, and blow not the trumpet, and the people be not warned; if the sword come and take any person from among them, he is taken away in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at the watchman's hands."

We promised in our last to endeavor to send to you through this "column" whatever words of cheer and encouragement we might be able to gather up during the session of Conference. That which we shall endeavor to glance at in this number we gleaned from a recent sermon of Bro. Joseph's, delivered just before conference convened. We believe that arrangements have been made for most of the sermons preached during conference to be reported, but as no report was taken of this one, we cannot free our minds from the feeling that we ought to "assist" and place upon record a few of the thoughts contained therein; and of one thing we feel assured, if the Spirit brings them home to your hearts as it brought them to ours, you will thank us. Many times when we have been reflecting upon the solemn responsibilities of life, we have thought that of all responsible positions in which one could be placed, the ministry was the most responsible one. To stand as an ambassador of Christ, to proclaim His terms of salvation to men and women unreconciled to Him! To "make straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way." To sound the trumpet, and that too with notes of certainty and clearness; for "If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself for the battle?" We are still impressed with this same feeling; but while we regard these responsibilities as great as we ever regarded them, we are very strongly impressed with the individual responsibility. When the watchman has blown the trumpet his duty towards us has been performed; he is guiltless of our blood. We may not be able to give you all the points of danger of which we were warned, but will (in our own words) endeavor to give a few.

When the first elders of this church went forth to declare the gospel, in connection with the full and free salvation which they offered to all who through obedience to the laws of adoption were willing to become citizens of the Kingdom, they also taught that for all the good men do in this world they shall receive a reward in the next. Because of this, some have folded their arms, saying by acts if not by words, we will enjoy all of this world we can possibly get to enjoy, just so we do enough of good to escape condemnation hereafter. Let us warn such that they stand on dangerous ground. This doctrine, which when rightly understood, is a correct one, a part of the gospel of Christ; is a dangerous one. Yet another declaration they made in those early days of the church. They did not ask men or women to accept them, upon their own credentials, but they promised that God himself would endorse them. If men and women would obey the truth God would give them a positive knowledge of the same. This too, is a dangerous doctrine. Many after having received the witness, and by the aid of the Spirit preached the word in power, began to take to themselves the honor and glory which belong only to God, and so made shipwreck of faith.

They taught also that the gospel is either a savior of life unto life, or of death unto death. The word preached in the demonstration of the Spirit and in power, cannot be rejected with impunity. In this there is danger.

In his concluding remarks, dear sisters, is found the precious lesson which we need to learn. We as subjects of the Kingdom of the Son of God, are not permitted to love the world, as those may love it who are subjects only of the moral government of God. The upright, noble and moral men of the world may seek for place, position and power; they may justly pride themselves in all this, as well as in their lineage, their spotless family name, and all things which are held in honor and esteem among honorable men. They are not under the government of the Son—of the meek and lowly Jesus—the Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. Written above the entrance-way to his kingdom, in letters of living light is this: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me."

As citizens of this kingdom we are commanded to "Resist not evil;" to "Render good for evil;" to "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world." "I have chosen you out of the world."

We have glanced very briefly indeed, at one of the best sermons we ever heard Bro. Joseph preach. We have done this because we found comfort in it, and we know if the Spirit blesses it to you, it will comfort you also.

At a future time we propose to search out from God's word a few more of those things which as citizens of the Kingdom of Christ we are not permitted to do—things which pertain to us especially, as daughters of Zion. Pray for us that wisdom be given us sufficiently for the purpose. We thank the sisters who have so kindly expressed their confidence in us, and our ability to fill the place we occupy. To know that we have your confidence is cheering and strengthening; but more, even than this, we want your prayers. If God qualifies us, we shall indeed be qualified. We have no strength of our own, but He is willing to give. Let each one feel that the very best effort we can put forth must be put forth in order to gain eternal life, and the victory will be ours, through our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

We are in receipt of letters and articles from Sisters Almira, Merrill, E. Elliot, Augusta D. Berg, and Sister Daniel Jones.

HOME.

DEAR SISTERS:—Let us continue to encourage and strengthen each other through the dreary watches of the night, and pray earnestly that a host of our "poor little rush lights" may be burning when the "midnight cry" shall sound through the camp of the faithful. We, wives and mothers, have no need to step out of our sphere to do a great and good work for the Master.

Home is our field of labor, and I believe it to be our imperative duty to strive in every possible way to establish peace in our homes and hearts. This is one of the some things we may all do by divine help. At times it may require a great sacrifice of those self-righteous ideas so natural to us. We will surely be blessed, however, if we make faithful efforts to overcome. Home is like a "Domestic Ship," and according to Paul we must not infringe upon, but honor our captains. Neither must we shirk our duty as chief engineers, but unite in keeping down friction by a judicious application of oil to the various parts of the machinery of our ship. Much depends upon the way in which we manage our houses, and, home is very much what a woman makes it. If we diligently seek for the leaven of peace and love in our households, it will extend further. If a good influence surrounds our place of abode, it will tend to bring righteous works into the kingdom of our King, and joy and gladness to every heart that has overcome. May "peace" be the motto of our "Home Column." Where the Spirit of God abides there will peace and love be; it is quite as natural as for the lark to sing merrily in spring-time, or for water to flow down hill. Home is a school of training for eternity!

Then awake! Awake, ye fair daughters of Zion! Put on the beautiful garments of the "gospel of peace," and let an impartial spirit enter and abide, that we may do as kindly for the poor God-fearing wash-woman in the kitchen as for the wife of the church dignitary in the parlor. "For whosoever shall do the will of God the same is my brother, and my sister and mother."

The following is from T. DeWitt Talmage: "There are a great many people longing for some grand sphere in which to serve God. * * * They admire Paul, making Felix tremble, and they only wish that they had some such grand occasion in which to preach righteousness, temperance and judgment to come. All they want is only an opportunity to exhibit their Christian heroism. Now, the apostle comes to us and he practically says, I will show you a place where you can exhibit all that is grand and beautiful, and glorious in Christian character, and that is in the domestic circle. * * Home is a type of heaven. * * * Let us learn to show pity at home; if we have it not there we have it not anywhere. If we have no genuine grace in the family circle, all our outward and public responsibility may spring from a fear of the world, or from the putrid pool of our own selfishness. I tell you home is a mighty test of character. What you are at home you are everywhere, whether you demonstrate it or not. * * * Home is a field. Old ground must be turned up with sub-soil plows, and it must be harrowed and re-harrowed, and then the crop will not be as large as that of new ground, with less culture. Now youth and childhood are new ground, and all the influences thrown over the heart and life of the young will come up in after life luxuriantly. * * * Words, deeds and examples are the seed of character and children are very apt to be the second editions of their parents. * * * What vast responsibility comes upon parents in view of this subject. O make your homes the brightest place on earth if you would charm your children to the high path of virtue and rectitude and religion. * * * Do not expect the little feet to keep step to a dead march. * * * God has strewn the earth and heavens with beauty and with gladness, let us take into our home circle all innocent hilarity, all brightness and all good cheer. A dark home makes bad boys and bad girls, in preparation for bad men and bad women."

LUCY LLOYD.

INDEPENDENCE, MO., April 4th.

Sister Frances:—In reading the Herald this morning my mind was drawn to the "Mother's Column." It carries me back several years to the time when myself and little ones were left alone. When the messenger of death took away the father and companion, leaving only me, a young mother, to care for the loved ones in my home-nest.

Oh! the anguish of mind upon realizing my position. My first thought was, "how shall I commence?" And this, dear sister, should be to all the first thought. First, decision with children is of the utmost importance. Secondly, whatever you think is best for their good, do cheerfully and pleasantly. When decided, give your decision firmly, that you may be fully understood. Be very careful how you make rash promises. Never tell children you will punish them if they do thus and so, and then withhold it, for in this way many children learn to tell falsehoods by hearing their mother promise them something and fail in performing. Never punish a child in anger. It is a habit with many mothers, to a great extent, to tell their little ones, "I certainly will punish (or whip) you" if you do this or that, and doubtless the next moment the child does the very thing forbidden, and the parent forgets her promise; and then the child knows you have told a story, or a little lie, as some would term it. "So you see," says the child, "I can do as I have a mind to and not be punished."

How soon they learn those little trifles, as some call them, and by this the little ones are led to think that it is no harm for them to tell a little story, or do as mamma does; therefore, it behoveth us, as parents, to be very careful to teach our little ones to be truthful, and to bring them up in the admonitions of the Master, that they may not depart from Him when they come to years of accountability. This has always been my method, and I am frank to say I have succeeded far, very far, beyond my expectation, and to-day I can say I never received a harsh word from one of my children; and my eldest, and the only one I have living, out of four, is twenty-eight years of age, and is an ornament to her home and to society.

Dear sisters, it was a great lesson to me, and I hope and pray that I have been made the wiser for this lesson. Many have been led to take pattern by this noble woman, whom I am proud to call daughter, for she is a model housekeeper, mother and companion.

I write this, not to boast, but that I may be able to aid a little in doing some good in my day and generation. I am thankful that we are sisters of one faith. We may be able to assist each other in many ways if we so desire. Dear sisters, let us put this desire into effect, and help to build up and do that which is pleasing in the sight of the Master.

I desire to live faithful and add my mite to the "Home Column." Ever praying for the redemption of Zion, I remain, your sister and co-worker in the great work, SISTER ELLA.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MINUTES.

APRIL 6th TO 17th, 1886.

Continued.

REPORT OF CHURCH SECRETARY AND RECORDER.

In making my annual report of the numerical standing of the church throughout the world I have the pleasure of being able to say that there have been more baptized into the kingdom of God during the past year than have been in any previous year during the history of the Reorganized Church of Christ. And this fact is indeed satisfactory, especially if those uniting have been well instructed as to the things of the kingdom and as to their own duties and responsibilities in their fellowship with the church and in their new relationship with God and towards their fellow men. The united and diligent work of the ministry and the Spirit together can so instruct and prepare them to be the true sheep of the great Shepherd, and thus our membership shall increase in righteousness and usefulness as well as in numbers.

The work of Elder T. W. Smith and wife in the Society Islands has itself made an addition to the records of 715 members, contained in seventeen branches now recorded, and others yet to come. The work of Bro. and Sr. J. F. Burton in Australia has resulted in a growth, but only a partial account has been received for record, namely the copy of one new branch (the Hastings) and some additions to one old one, but full corrections are expected in due time. From England have come the records of three new branches: Emmanuel, Leeds and Nottingham; from Wales one, Cardiff; from Canada two, Chatham and St. Marys—and the reorganization of the Saint Thomas; from Alabama one, the New Hope; from California two, Covina and Lone; from Dakota (the first in that territory) two, Highmore and Pembroke; from Idaho two, Oxford and Malta; from Illinois two, Birkner and Cortland; from Iowa one, Sioux City; from Kansas two, Deer Creek and Twin Creek; from Michigan three: Iosco, Lexington and Richland; from Minnesota one, Monitor Falls; from Nebraska one, Grand Rapids; from Ohio two, Blakes Mills and Vinton; making a total of forty-three new branches placed on record containing 1,146 names. Of course many of these in America have been taken from other branches, which losses from old branches greatly counteracts the large gains that have occurred in many other old branches, hence the net gain over and above this 1,146, after all losses by death, expulsion and removal, are taken out, does not seem so great as it would to compare the old branches as I reported their numbers last year and as I report them this year.

In their connection I notice that a larger number have been expelled from the branches than during any previous year, also many have been "dropped" from records because of their absence, though not as many as during previous years. Yet this illegal way of getting rid of members continues to reduce the aggregate more or less.

My correspondence has continued large, in my efforts to secure the proper corrections; but I think that the number of careful branch and district clerks, in making out reports, is increasing somewhat. But too many are careless and do not seem to think it is worth while to do well what they are appointed to do, and too many branches pass reports to send to their conferences that are grossly incorrect in numbers, names, and in items, which branch presidents ought to see when presenting the reports for acceptance, and have them corrected to agree with the previous report and with themselves, as well as having names spelled correctly, and with items and dates therewith.

The following is the list of branches and fragments:

AUSTRALIA.—Bungwall 19, Hastings 11, Nambuccra 39, Queen's Ferry 23, Sydney 19, Wallsend 27, total 138.

DENMARK.—Aalborg 21.

ENGLAND.—Birmingham 89, Burton-on-Trent 23, Clay Cross 29, Derby 10, Devonport 11, Emmanuel 11, Enfield 8, Farnworth 36, Hackney 27, Hanley 55, Leeds 13, Limehouse 62, Manchester 79, Nottingham 18, Sheffield 39, Stafford 17, Summerfield 29, Walsall 17, Wigan 21, total 594.

SCOTLAND.—Penston 15.

SOCIETY ISLANDS.—Apatai 41, Avatoru 36, Maatea 82, Manihi 52, Matahoa 27, Motura 20, Niau 39, Panau 43, Rotoava 16, Tari 13, Tapoto 41, Tarona 101, Temarie 27, Tikahau 49, Tiputa 34, Tuuhora 41, Ziona 33, total 715.

SWITZERLAND.—Zurich 28

WALES.—Aberaman 17, Carnarvon 6, Cardiff 7, Llanelly 43, Llansamlet 29, Merthyr 15, Nantyglo, 6, Ogmere 11, Rhondda 13, 147. Fragments: Beaufort 5, Cwmavon 2, New Tredegar 13, Ystradgynlais 8, 28; total 175.

TEXAS.—Bandera 26, Central 28, Cheesland 11, Elkhart 18, Elmwood 54, Live Oak 15, New Hope 9, Red River 17. Fragments: Lone Star 6, Oak Island 15, Shawnee 7, Stockdale 11; total 217. (Besides these there are many throughout Texas who are not numbered in the branches, having been baptized by those laboring in that State, in isolated parts of it, and thus not upon record, as they should be, with all others scattered abroad; whenever the church gets ready to have such recording done).

UTAH.—Beaver 21, Elsinore 17, Ephraim 34, Heber 19, Kaysville 6, Lehi 48, Plain City 29, Provo 20, Richfield 26, Salt Lake Mission 63, Santa Quin 8, Springville 26, Union Fort 30, Wanship 29. Fragments: Providence 4, Salt Lake City 89; total 469. (No effort has been made to send additions and other corrections to the Utah records since Bro. Brand left there, consequently the Utah branches show a net loss instead of a gain as they should, had reports been sent me).

WEST VIRGINIA.—Cabin Run 11, Clarksburg 23, Fairview 33, Sugar Creek 36, Union Grove 19, Wayne 30, Wheeling 29; total 181.

WISCONSIN.—Binghamton 34, Burlington (2d) 27, Excelsior 12, Freedom 36, Janesville 25, Webster 12, Wheatville 13. Fragments: Burlington (1st) 11, Darlington 7, Viola 16, Willow 24; total 217.

The following table shows the net increase in those states that have gained over the previous year, and the net decrease in those states that have fallen behind during the year, so that all who are interested can see where the gain and loss have been. The results in the Society Islands have never been on record till the past winter, and is peculiar by itself. Of the countries and states, previously on record, it will be seen that the order of most gain is first Iowa, then Missouri, Michigan, California, England, Ohio, Kansas, Minnesota, Canada and Nebraska, in their order, as the ones showing the greatest gains:—

Net gain for year.....1724
Now on record.....18054

This shows a gain over all losses during the past year of 1724; even not counting the Society Islands, there is a gain in the rest of the church of 1009 over all losses, which in itself is excellent; but the total net increase makes nearly eleven per cent gain over the previous year's total.

I have the following documents in my hands for presentation to the conference for its action, namely:—

The Southern California District nominates the following Elders for appointment by the church to fields of labor, as specified: D. S. Mills and J. R. Badham to the Pacific Slope Mission; E. J. French, D. L. Harris and A. W. Thompson, to general missionary work; Wm. Gibson to Southern California District; and they also request the return of H. L. Holt to California.

The Alabama District presents the name of Elder G T Clute for appointment to that region, saying that the demands of the work require that one or more be engaged in its prosecution, but that they are not able to support the families by offerings, without the means in the hands of the Bishop's Agent are also available for the work there.

Bro. E. M. Wildermuth offers himself for appointment in the field.

Bro. Wm. A. Moore of Franklin county, Nebraska, requests that that region be seen to by appointment or direction of some one to labor there.

The Mobile District (Alabama) Petitions that this conference re-appoint Bro. G. Montague to labor in the South-Eastern Mission, and also appoint Bro. F. Scarriff to that field.

DISTRICT REPORTS.

I give a synopsis of the reports sent in by those districts whose officials have regarded the rule of the church that districts should report to each annual session of the General Conference:—

Welsh Mission.—Reports 9 branches, 151 members. Last year 149; 8 baptized, 3 received, 4 expelled, 5 died; 2 net gain. Besides these there are four fragments of branches on the Church Record, which bring the total in Wales up to 175 members. T. E. Jenkins, president; David Lewis, clerk. Bro. Jenkins writes: "The report from Wales is a little better than it was last year, there being two increase instead of eleven decrease, and our hopes are brighter for the future. Several Elders have been very faithful, especially Bro J. K. Gibbs, who manfully opposed those who were lecturing against "mormonism," and caused them to publicly acknowledge that the Reorganized Church differed from Utah doctrines. He also replied to one of them through the 'Swausesa Daily Leader.' We are very anxious to see the work prospering here and elsewhere."

Canada, Kent and Elgin District.—Bro. Richard Coburn, district clerk, reports that there are 13 branches and 17 scattering members, in all 309 members, a net increase of 9 over the report of last year; but no account of the condition of the work is given by any one.

Illinois, Kewanee.—Ten branches, and scattering ones enough to make 347 members in the district. Nothing said about the loss or gain, or about the state of the work there.

Illinois, Northern.—Seventeen branches and fragments, 693 members. There have been 30 baptized during the year, 17 received, 10 removed, 1 expelled, leaving 36 as a net gain. F. M. Cooper, president; W. Vickery, clerk. The work seems to be moving along fairly well.

Iowa, Decatur.—Seven branches and 4 fragments, aggregating 1106 members. During the year there were 43 baptized, 73 received, 45 removed, 11 died, and 5 expelled, leaving a net increase of 55 members. There has been considerable local work done by a number of the Elders and Priests, and there are likely to be good efforts made the coming season. The president spent much time in various parts of the district, and the results were good. If health permits he intends to do likewise in the year before us. Peace and harmony generally characterize the work everywhere, except perhaps in one branch, and affairs are improving there. H. A. Stebbins, president, A. S. Cochran, clerk.

Iowa, Des Moines.—Six branches and 2 fragments, 411 members; 32 persons baptized, 18 received, 27 removed, 3 expelled, 6 died, giving a net gain of 14 for the year. Wm. C. Nirk, president; N. A. Baker, clerk. Bro. Nirk reports his labors, yet says that brethren Etzenhouser and Roth have been the only constant laborers; but they are now in hopes of more help, two brethren having been ordained Elders who are likely to be useful.

Iowa, Fremont.—Six branches with 344 members. Besides these the Church Record shows 4 fragments of branches, and that in all the district there are thus 382 members. There have been 3 baptized, 1 received, 5 removed, net loss one. Henry Kemp, president; W. C. Matthews, clerk. They write that the district is in a very good condition.

Iowa, Galland's Grove.—Twelve branches, aggregating (with 15 scattering ones) 747 members. During the year 49 were baptized, 33 received, 10 removed, 2 died, leaving a net gain of 70 members. W. W. Whiting, president; John Pett, clerk.

Iowa, Pottawattamie.—Six branches and 49 scattering ones, total 439 members; 12 baptized, 4 received, 6 removed, 5 died; 5 net gain. Among those not numbered in branches are one Apostle, one High Priest, two of the Seventy, nine Elders, one Teacher and one Deacon. H. N. Hansen, president; Frederick Hansen, clerk.

Kansas, North-West.—Six branches, with 224 members, besides 40 who are not numbered in branches now existing. During the year 14 were baptized, 6 received, 1 removed, 1 died, leaving a net increase of 18 members. There is said to be opportunity enough to keep ten men busy preaching, but there is very little being done compared with the demand. A. H. Parsons, president; H. R. Harder, clerk.

Kansas, Spring River.—Six branches containing 245 members, besides about 70 members on the records of fragments of branches. E. A. Davis, president; Warren Peek, clerk.

Maine, Western.—Five branches, 143 members; 4 baptized, 1 died; net gain 3 members. W. G. Pert, president; E. H. Pert, clerk. Bro. Pert says that the condition of the work is rather low; only two of the branches hold regular meetings, the others occasionally. A regular laborer sent by the General Conference is asked for. Bro. Sheehy was in the district twice, about a week or ten days each time, and Bro. W. H. Kelley was there for ten days in November, the only labor bestowed by the general appointees over that region. Bro. Pert thinks that if some one was sent there as a steady laborer they could without doubt pay enough into the agent's hands to support him. He says later that Bro. Sheehy has also preached at Tennant's Harbor this winter, besides what he referred to as related above.

Massachusetts.—This district includes Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, and has 10 branches, with a total of 631 members, presided over by John Smith, Thomas Whiting, clerk. Besides the local laborers there is one regular missionary in that field, M. H. Bond. The outlook for the work there is said to be good, so writes Bro. Whiting.

Minnesota, Northern.—Four branches, 125 members; during the year 29 baptized, 1 expelled, 1 died, leaving a net gain of 27 for the year. T. J. Martin, president; Marcus Shaw, clerk. They report that missionary labor has been done the past year by brethren J. C. Foss and H. L. Holt, and new place of preaching have been opened. The Saints have built one meeting house in the district.

Missouri, Central.—Three branches, which, with 26 members on the record of fragmentary branches, makes a total of 135 membership. The spiritual condition of the district is said to be declining, and very little effort is being made. The district authorities earnestly request that help be sent them to renew the work and carry it on. W. L. Booker, president; M. A. Trotter, clerk.

Missouri, Far West.—Eleven branches, 532 members. J. T. Kinnaman, president; C. P. Paul, clerk. They report that the condition of the work was never better, and the Saints, as a rule, are trying to live according to their profession, and peace and unity prevail.

Missouri, St. Louis.—Nine organized branches and several fragments, with a total of 512 members; 5 baptized, 29 received, 15 removed, 5 died, and 5 loss unaccounted for, leaving a net gain of 9 for the year. C. J. Peat, president; J. G. Smith, clerk.

Nebraska, Central.—Six branches, 182 members; 8 baptized, 9 received, 2 removed, 1 expelled, 1 died, or 13 net gain for the year. Levi Gamet, president; W. S. Barbee, clerk. They say that comparatively little work has been done in the district; brethren Hyde, Caffall and Barbee, having done the most of it outside the branches. Some of the branches are in an improved condition, but two are not. At Chelsea and Fort Niobrara are several members each, but as yet unorganized. The interest at those places is good, and evidently growing.

Nebraska, Southern.—Six branches, 369 members; 30 baptized, 17 received, 6 removed, 1 expelled, 5 died, giving a net increase of 34 for the year. Levi Anthony, president; J. B. Gouldsmith, clerk. The officers say that the branches are not as full of life as is desired, but that some are striving to honor the law of God. There is a large field, and many people are anxious to hear the gospel. Brethren Forscutt, Derry, Caffall, Kemp, Bennett, Rumel, Elvin and President Smith, have labored in the district.

Nevada.—Four branches and one fragment, total 99 members; 2 received, 4 removed, 3 died. T. R. Hawkins, clerk, says that the condition of the work is poor, no meetings being held in the branches, and no preaching being done. No General Conference ministry visit them.

Illinois, South-Eastern.—Five branches, 314 members, including 30 names on records of disorganized branches. I. F. Smith, president; J. F. Thomas, clerk. Bro. Smith writes that he has no data from which to tell what the gain and loss has been. The calls for preaching are many, and three or four Elders who are able to get out from home occasionally are not able to answer one-half of these demands. In some places the Saints seem to be waking from slumber; in others the indifference of the Saints is the greatest drawback; but he says that they need in that region one or more constant laborers to keep up the work.

Illinois and Iowa, Nauvoo and String Prairie.—Five organized branches, with 313 membership, besides parts of branches, and scattering members about 47, in all 360 members. About 30 gain during the year, and the work is in a fair condition, though there is a lack of efficient ministers.

Alabama, Mobile.—Five branches, with about 200 members, but widely separated. There has been some gain in numbers, and the work is making some progress. The district includes parts of Alabama, Florida and Mississippi. F. P. Scardiff, president.

Of branches not in districts, the Red River of Texas reports having 22 members, after a loss of one during the year. A. J. Cato, acting president; A. G. Heine-man, clerk. Troubles are said to have retarded the progress of the cause, but affairs are getting better.

Bro. D. S. Condit of Malta, Cassia county, Idaho, reports the organization of a branch there of 7 members.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder T. W. Smith, of the Twelve, writes from Papeete, Society Islands, as follows:

We have been here a year last November 6th. We stayed on the island of Tahiti from that date till March 12th last, and then went to the island of Koukura, where I reorganized the branch, baptizing and ordaining a number. I should say that I reorganized two branches, one at Panau and one at Moturaa, two different settlements on Koukura. From there we went to Maatea, about the 1st of April, where I baptized many who belonged to Tikahau and Rairoa, as well as those who belonged to Maatea. I reorganized a branch at Maatea; and from there went to Tikahau, where I baptized a number more, and reorganized the branch there. From there we went to Rairoa, where I baptized a number and reorganized two branches, one at Avatoru and one at Tiputa. From there we went to Koukura, where I baptized a number from Aratua, Apatai and Manihi, and some more belonging to Koukura. Those at Apatai, including those at Aratua (a few in number) were reorganized in September by Tehopea and Pofatu. From Koukura, in June, we went to Manihi, where more were baptized and the branch reorganized. From there we went to Taroa, in the latter part of June, and established branch there. Here I found a class who claimed that Anaa was the headquarters of the church in these parts, and who while believing as we do, affirmed that they could not receive me until the churches on Anaa did. A number, however, who were not connected with them desired baptism, and I had to organize them into a branch, although I knew that after a while should the others come in, it would be difficult to make one branch out of both, as these people are passionately fond of office or authority. From Taroa we went, on July 4th, to Tapoto, and found the two parties there, but succeeded in baptizing them all, and organized them into one branch. From Tapoto we went to Anaa, where we arrived on the 19th of July, calling on the way at several islands, where there were branches of the Anaa people, but had no chance to preach to any except at Hikuari, where I baptized several, but organized them not, as most of them belonged to Hao, Tauere and Amanu.

At Anaa we found six branches, in as many settlements. Here is where Benjamin Grouard began his labors in 1841, and he was very successful, and preached only the gospel. He was there when Joseph Smith was killed, and knowing no different, he acknowledged Brigham as the president of the church, some years after; but he never preached nor practiced polygamy in this country. His memory is cherished by hundreds of the church in that section of this mission, and he would do a great deal of good should he receive the Reorganization, and come here again. But this people will not receive the emissaries of the Utah Church. This country is like France, to which it belongs, that while all religions are tolerated, the laws are framed under Catholic influence, and polygamy is not allowed. Marriage can only be performed by civil authority, and divorces can not be obtained on any ground. At Anaa they desired me to wait till October 6th, when the presidents of various branches would be there, and they could arrange to come in under my control; but having appointed a conference here at the same date, in ignorance of their arrangements, I could not neglect the appointment, so came on as an opportunity offered.

Tahiti and Anaa being the two chief islands in this group, Grouard went to Anaa, while Addison Pratt occupied Tahiti. There were probably five times as many people on Anaa then as now, the majority have gone to various of the Paumotus. But these people insist that "Anaa is the head." If I had a couple of Elders here, and could station one at Tahiti for his headquarters, and another at Anaa, the work could be carried on successfully; but otherwise it can not. It will be impossible to keep the work going with but one missionary. They can support two missionaries as easily as one, or even three or four, as easily as one, for this reason: each branch will take care of the missionary and his wife while among them, but little or nothing when he is with another; and as the Elder goes from branch to branch, as he of necessity must do, he will be provided for. The islands naturally form three divisions, and there should be a headquarters in each division: one at Tahiti, one at Anaa, and one at Tubuai. The Elder stationed at Tahiti, however, might manage Tubuai. But if this mission is worth sustaining at all, it should be by at least two young, energetic men, who can pick up the language readily.

While at Anaa I baptized some who had been baptized by Tehoea a few years ago, when he was not in good fellowship, and teaching some erroneous doctrine, and I desired them to unite with the branch at Tuuhora under old Tehavini, whom Grouard baptized. I have proposed to receive such as he baptized, and those baptized by such Elders as he ordained, without rebaptism, just as we do with those who belonged to the first organization in America, for they were baptized and ordained prior to the death of Joseph. Somewhere about 1851 or 52 several Brighamite Elders came to this country. They deceived Grouard as to Brigham's right to the presidency of the church. They wanted to go to Anaa (being then at Tubuai) and reconstruct the work there, but Grouard opposed it strongly, and they never went there. But some of them went to Tapoto and Taroa and elsewhere, and that is why I would not receive those of Tapoto and Taroa without baptism. Grouard's personal work I am ready to recognize. One of Brigham's disciples, an apt one in lying, by the name of Jacobs, (Yancey, I suppose), told the people that Joseph was stolen by the Indians when a mere child, and had never been heard of since, that he would be the right man to lead the church; but alas! he could not be found, so Brigham had to take the presidency, and being president of the Twelve, it was his right, &c.

I can not in a dozen pages explain the various complications and differences of faith and practice that I found here. There were at least three distinct parties: 1st, Those who understood quite well the faith and practice of the Reorganization through the teaching of Brn. Rodger and Wandell, and by Nelson; this class was found mainly in Tahiti. 2d, The people who claimed Grouard as their founder, and who did not believe in being "Reorganized," who, while holding to what they could remember of Grouard's teaching, yet were not as well instructed in the faith and order of the church as the former class. 3d, Those who understood the history of the church quite well, indeed as well as the first class, but had got some erroneous notions mixed with the faith. They had, through many Scriptures that seem to make Abraham a very conspicuous personage, come to venerate him more than either Scripture or reason will warrant; they had got an idea that they were Israelites, and because Brn. Wandell and Rodger had called some "Elders of Israel" in their certificates of appointment to fields of labor, they considered that the name "Israel" must be attached to the name of the church. Among an enlightened people, or among our churches at home, the matters that these people would contend for and divide upon, would be considered very trifling and unimportant.

The only matter of difference in Grouard's teaching or practice and ours, that I have discovered, is that of Deacons carrying the bread and wine (or their substitutes) to the members on sacramental occasions; but Grouard's brother-in-law, (the brother of a native wife who is now dead), who travelled with him a great deal, says he never taught them that. I know that he never taught them another practice of theirs, and they do not claim that he did, namely, giving the emblems to little children who have been blessed but not baptized. This was practiced by all the branches till Nelson stopped it, among those who received him. These people are great sticklers for form and ceremony, and that is one reason why the Catholic Church attracts so many of them. I have found it necessary to prepare a form of prayer in confirmation, and in blessing children; also the proper order of observing the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Every rule or order, or wish of mine, they want written down; and so in sending word to me they always write it. When we go into a branch for the first time, after we are there a few hours, the members will come into the house, Indian file, and grasp our hand and say "Ia ora na;" which means "we greet you," or "we wish you health," or "how do you do," or "thank you," or "you are welcome," according to circumstances; and after this salutation, they put in our hand a "raia," (ten cent piece), or a "tuata" (twenty cent piece), or a two franc piece (forty cents), or a fifty cent piece. If a collection is taken up for any purpose, or when they give their free-will offerings on the sacrament day, the clerk records the names of all who give; but no record is kept of the money given in the above manner to us personally, and we can only report the sum total given, in that offering they do not want the left hand to know what the right hand gives. In preaching meetings, the Elder who goes into the stand does not desire any help; he selects the hymns, reads the Scripture, prays, preaches, and dismisses the meeting, without wishing any one to take part; and after he is done his work, he comes down out of the stand and greets all the Elders on the platform with the shaking of the hand in token of fellowship, and each one so salutes the other, and the Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons in the congregation, come forward and go through the same form, and they will do it, if there are five sermons in a day, or at the close of every meeting. It is merely a form, and a habit, or custom, (a peu) of theirs. I shall try to get them to modify it, a little, at least to let once a day suffice; but they would fall back into the old track after I should go away.

In some of the Islands where trading vessels do not go only once in a while, perhaps once in three months, and they run out of flour, they have to use the "uto," or the cocoa-nut milk when turned to a spongy substance in the process of vegetation, which is very nutritious, and perhaps is as pure a substitute for bread as can be had—a much better emblem of the body of Christ than the fermented bread used by some branches in America. The cocoa-nut water, sweet and transparent, is used altogether here instead of wine—none but fermented wine is obtainable. Here, and on most of the Paumotus, flour is obtained, and Helen taught them to make a cake out of flour, water, and a little salt.

There are some thirty-eight to forty branches in all in these parts. Those distinctively connected with the Reorganization are on the following Islands:—Tahiti, three—named Ziona, Tarona and Teiri; one at Maatea; one at Tikahau; two at Rairoa: Avatoru and Tiputa; two on Koukura: Panau and Moturaa; one at Apatai, (a few belonging to it live on an adjoining island named Aratua); one at Manihi, one at Taroa, one at Tapoto, one at Hao, one at Tauere, one at Amanu, two on Tubuai, and I suppose by this time one has been established by Elder Tapuni at Raiatea;—in all eighteen. The six branches on Anaa, one each at Farava, Faite, Aeau, Apataki, Make-mo, Marakau, Tanga, Roroua, Raraka, Katiu, Takuma, Matia, Hikuari, and perhaps three or four more, we may justly claim, for they hold the faith as taught by Grouard. I am confident that if I can get to Anaa by January 1st, they will unite with us; what is lacking is a formal action, which Anaa must take first, then all the rest will follow. Now here are some forty branches, located on some thirty islands, and no one man can visit them all in a year, and give a couple of weeks to each one, which would be too little time in most every case, and he could not possibly go from one island to another just when he pleased, or was ready; depending on vessels belonging to outsiders, and some of them not friendly; he might have to leave in a few days, or might have to stay two or three months in one place. The only places where there is any regularity in travel is between Tahiti and Tubuai, and Tahiti and Raiatea. What is greatly needed here is a small schooner owned by the church; but I have no hope of receiving gifts from America for that purpose. There are a number of boats—large sail boats—owned by different members of the church, but they are not large enough to go only where they can reach in daylight, say twenty or thirty miles, or forty with a good fair wind.

I hope that at least two Elders will be sent here to relieve me. I feel that I ought to be getting on toward Australia before long, and there should be at least two men here. The field is entirely too large, and the burden and care too great for one man. I hope to have the prayers of the church continually. We are not idle, but as in America, we are continually at work. We have no time to sleep for hours at a time, during the day, like the natives do. When the mail ship comes in, which is once a month, we of course have to answer the letters, and to read the papers, and we do not get much sleep at nights for a few nights. While we are grateful for what papers have been sent, it appears to me that it would not cost much, when anything important or interesting is found in some of the multitudinous papers that the Saints take, to wrap up a copy and send us. Illustrated papers please the native Saints greatly, and they will look at the pictures for hours. They know nothing of scenes in America, nor of events happening, for there is nothing printed in their language giving them any information outside of their own little Islands. A little sacrifice on the part of those who are surrounded by nearly every comfort and convenience of life, would afford pleasure and happiness to others who are not so favorably circumstanced. But I suppose that it is not because of indifference, but for lack of thought that has prevented many from administering to our desires in these small matters. Many cheap prints of animals, and birds, and scenery, which can be had in America for a trifle, would keep children in the house for hours, whereas they would have been running on the road, or into some mischief. The children here, because of a lack of subjects to interest them, spend hours at a time in and around the Chinese restaurants and gambling houses. They must have amusement, and they find some in watching older people play cards and other games. Helen tries to keep them employed for two to three hours each day in a school. Several kind friends have sent us school books, and all that will be needed for the school. Now what I would like is a lot of pictures—such as illustrated newspapers, advertising cards, and any attractive illustrations of art or nature, to put up in their houses, to amuse and instruct the children and older people. The surroundings of children here are so vastly different to those in the States, that they can not be properly trained; we can only fight the devil with few and simple weapons here. If there was some genial part of the United States found, where these people could find work and a home, their circumstances could be greatly bettered; but little can be done here for their moral, social, and religious training. There is nothing to attract a child to its home here, except something to eat, and not that at certain seasons, for they obtain it from the trees or brush. There is no employment nor proper amusement for them, so they are growing up in idleness and sin.

I wish that there could be a settlement formed in Southern California, where the industriously disposed, and those who desire to improve the condition of their children would go. There is no earthly prospect of any improvement in their condition and opportunities here. I do not think that the church as a body need do anything, but the First Presidency and Bishopric could take the matter under advisement, and if a settlement near the seashore in Southern California could be made, where they could raise coconuts, bananas, and the vii, which I believe would all grow there, and where they could be employed in cultivating cotton, grapes, etc., it would be an excellent thing. A preliminary step of this kind is necessary for those who are raised in a warm climate, and accustomed to the kind of diet they are here. A change as great as would be from here to Independence, Mo., would be disastrous unless of course there should be a Providential interference. If there is to be a gathering out of every nation to a central place named, it would appear that, judging from a human stand-point; a preliminary gathering to a climate more nearly approximating in geniality their own would be necessary for the South Sea Islands people. I hope this matter will not be lost sight of.

My plans for a short time as concern this mission, is to go to Anaa for a month or two, and then go to one or two points near there, and return here by the 1st of March, preparatory to going to Tubuai by 1st of April. I do most earnestly wish that some one could reach here by the last of February, but if not by the last of May when we may return here from Tubuai. Perhaps no one feels the loss of Bro. Ellis more deeply than your brother. May God call as good a man to take his place. There are not less than 1200 people professing our faith in these islands. The harvest is great, but the laborers are very few indeed. May the Lord send us more.

Elder J. H. Lake, of the Twelve, present, reports:

Since the last Conference I have labored in the Canada Mission, having charge; and have been blessed in discharge of my duties in preaching the word and caring for the Saints. The work is gaining favor with the people and prejudice is giving away before the power of the gospel. I have been assisted by the local Elders. I assisted in organizing a branch at St. Mary's, Bro. Samuel Brown, presiding Elder; Arthur Mortimer, Priest; Robert Brown, Teacher, John Rainey, Deacon. Baptized eleven, blessed eight children, ordained one Priest, one Teacher, one Deacon, administered to the sick whenever requested to do so, in some instances with marked effect. By circumstances over which I had no control I was obliged to leave the Mission on the 3d of February, but since I left I have preached at Independence and Kansas City, Mo., and Keokuk, Montrose and Farmington, Iowa, as I was requested by those in charge; hope good will result therefrom. I don't feel to weary, nor to give up the battle, nor faint by the way, but am endeavoring to keep my eye fixed on the mark of the high calling which is in Christ Jesus, who is the author and finisher of our faith. To this end I hope to be sustained by your faith and prayers.

Elder James Caffall, of the Twelve, present, reports:

As evidence of my acceptance of my appointment at your last session, I have devoted my entire time in bringing into requisition what ability I possessed to acquit myself of what I conceived my duty. In response to requests from branches and districts, I have traveled five thousand miles within the limits of my appointed field; and with the officials and members of said organizations my efforts to co-operate have been generally pleasant. I have cherished no desire to transcend, or stop short of what I considered my duty. On several occasions much time has been spent in a thorough examination of our recognized church policy or discipline; for if I err not, its advocacy and proper enforcement is a part of my own work as well as that of other representatives. As a servant of the body can at proper times be questioned thereon with corresponding efforts to teach, as my ability will permit. I am aware of the possibility of two motives prompting dissension, one leading to the exhibition of dogmatism, and a striving for the mastery, or to "rule or ruin;" and one, leading to efforts to get and impart good. And as no saving good can come to us but by God's divine economy, the latter motive should prompt all Latter Day Saints. I am glad to be able to report to your honorable body that generally evidence of the latter method has existed in my jurisdiction. I believe the gospel economy was not an experiment with God; I therefore see no license for me to seek to enter its sacred precincts with a view to modify or change its decrees. But learn and live to its decrees, rather than becoming presumptuous, leading to an exhibition of wisdom above what is written.

The moral status of the Saints in some localities is below gospel requirements; and I know that the gentle hint in Herald for March 29th, in regard to urgent call being made, very opportune. It is not possible that permanent good can come to the cause by enthusiastic or exaggerated reports. We ought to know that our church organ is abroad in the land, and read by many far-seeing and discriminating people, who watch narrowly for evidence of consistency among ourselves, and who readily discover a lack if it exists. I do not mean by this that we should cater to public sentiment, or useless forms.

I find evils resulting from hasty ordinations, and a failure to be governed by instruction as to receiving members into the church, and the duty of members after being received—as contained in section 17, paragraphs 7-18, Doctrine and Covenants; while the caution, care and inquiry imposed in section 42, paragraph 20, is almost overlooked, or entirely forgotten. There is too little labor to show the terribleness of divorce, or violating the marriage covenant. Nor has trouble attendant upon coaxing people to be baptized ere they have a full realization of the responsibility been wanting. A failure to thoroughly discriminate between natural impulses and Spirit impression has contributed to trouble and the retarding the work. I find a great need for more proficiency in branch and district officials,—for work where unto they are called; leaving the traveling ministry more free to penetrate and spread the gospel in new fields, and I have thus taught. I would be slow to advocate haste in abandoning partially tried fields; but think due efforts should be made to know that labor is not spent in vain; and though it may not always be the case, it sometimes may be good policy to leave a field for a time, after a certain amount of labor has been done, to give time for reflection—going elsewhere and returning again to renew the battle. The gathering of the twos of families and ones of the cities requires much labor with patience. Nor is the work attendant in caring for and watching over them, subsequently to their adoption less important. Power and authority to do this comes from God, with qualifying grace to effectively work in the several positions in the mystical body; and though gifts and calling with duties and responsibilities differ, the author and giver thereof designs that one end is thereby to be reached. And it were as inconsistent for the feet to dispute the rights of the head as for the head to reject the feet. So I learned, so I have, and so I still believe; and that to all laws there are bounds and also conditions, and that more or less than this is to bring distress, whether by individual, quorum, or body. God's economy is one thing, our individual preferences another, and our love for the former is only evinced as we subjugate the latter to carry out the designs said economy reflects. Zeal, leading to a disregard for recognized order, will be as sure to bring trouble for some to meet, as is the destructive cyclone to leave its effects in its onward flight.

Beside other labors I have administered the rite of baptism to nine adults, assisted to confirm sixteen others; and in some localities I have visited and spent time in an endeavor to introduce the gospel; found some favorably impressed—but no guarantee of success appears without continuous and well directed effort. Spasmodic efforts are like a vapor, and prove injurious rather than good to the cause. Many good openings are found in Nebraska and Kansas, but laborers are few. The effects of a too high conception of liberty is quite visible, presenting to the sober thinker a vivid contrast to a Godly persistency leading to the observance of law and order; the former often gallops, the latter is slow, but its final triumph is sure. I would be pleased if I could report greater results of the past years labor, but feel thankful for what has been done. Between myself and local authority there has been no antagonism, but to the reverse of this. Subversion of authority is not permissible, or warranted by the gospel economy. Nor is any method that condemns before efforts have been made to arrest the erring one, offering an opportunity to explain, defend, and per chance repent by individual quorum or body warranted either. For substantial aid from Saints and friends I feel thankful, of which I have made a report to the Bishop as the law directs. I think it proper that he should know what I receive outside of that allowed my family, and its disposition, but think there the matter should rest; for more or less than the law requires leads to evil. I have organized one branch in Holt county, Nebraska, with prospect of one being organized in Wisner in the same state, where I, during the fall preached twenty discourses—two being added, others investigating.

Elder Joseph R. Lambert, of the Twelve, present, reports:

Since last reporting through the Herald I have labored some at McFall, Renick and Bevier, Missouri. At Renick, J. A. Crawford and W. H. Bybee were expelled from the church, having been found guilty of lying; misrepresentation; dishonesty in business transactions; denying and denouncing the faith and doctrine of the church, etc. So far as my knowledge extends I am able to report a degree of progress in the mission entrusted to my charge. Some branches and districts have passed difficult and dangerous turning points. To such there are excellent opportunities for doing good with the promise of a brighter future. In other localities there is much room for improvement, though it is difficult to determine what the outcome will be. "Every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up," are the words of God's Son, and they apply to-day with peculiar force.

In many localities there are good opportunities for reaching the people with the gospel. Some of these opportunities have been improved by the traveling and local ministry, with good results; but the supply has not been equal to the demand. Much more might be done if the Saints would live together in peace, and by godly example honor their profession. Can it be possible that these contentious spirits and transgressors of God's holy law, are aware of the turpitude of their wrong? For some years it seems to have been my fate to stand in the breach and cope with difficulties in their culminated forms. In this work the good Master has stood by me, and given to me some bright testimonies in favor of the truth as we have received it. But my physical strength appears to be nearly gone, and I have had comparatively little time to think about preaching the word. I have tried to stand firm for the right, without regard to popular sentiment within or without, and have kept constantly in view (and taught others to do likewise) 1st, the greatest good of the common cause; and 2d, that ere long I shall have to meet my record. I call attention to what I regard as a pressing and growing demand for standing ministers in some of the cities. St. Louis and St. Joseph, Missouri, and Burlington, Iowa, will serve as illustrations. We can not afford to ignore this peculiar demand, though we may not be able to supply it, at present. We ought to lay all prejudice aside and seriously consider the facts.

Amidst the ravages of time, the changeableness and uncertainty of men, and the varied trials through which we are called to pass, that which has always cheered and blessed God's people still stands out in bold relief. Wherever and whenever the Saints live in harmony with the principles of their faith, they develop very rapidly in all that is good; receive evidences directly from God, of the divinity of the doctrine, and their hopes for life and immortality are made bright by the light of God's Spirit. Thus it is that men can never lose their faith in this work, no matter how they may have been treated, or what their peculiar surroundings may have been, until they violate the conditions upon which these divine testimonies are received. May the God of heaven continue to direct the affairs of his work, and bless his people.

Elder W. H. Kelley, of the Twelve, present, reports:

During the last year I have labored in the mission field assigned me at your last session. Have tried to do what appeared to be for the best at the time, endeavoring to meet the most urgent demands of the work. During the year I have been in the districts and met with the most of the Saints in Michigan, Northern Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Maine. In all of these places there is an increasing demand for laborers, and a growing interest among the people to learn of the merits of the faith. It is true that "the calls are many." The Saints, in the main, are doing well and gaining. Taking into account that many brethren have been necessarily left to care for themselves, with no one to encourage and remind them of duty, so far as human aid is concerned; with a constant opposing world to meet—and it can not be questioned but that they have done exceedingly well—seemingly kept in the faith and way by him that knows all of the conditions of men. In other churches members left without a constant minister at hand, and sometimes then, have repeated seasons of "warming over," in order to keep them even in the faith. Ours at most are to be but stimulated to activity and increased devotion, their faith remains. There needs an army of helpers in this vast field to sow the good seed of the kingdom. Men of faith and workers. Men who will go any place or any where; with the high or low, with the few or many, and tell the good news; and there is no question but good results will follow. We have been encouraged in the work. We are encouraged now. The voice of the people and the inspiration of God, East, is forward and onward, and not backward. Nova Scotia and Maine need help; so does Massachusetts and York state; Pennsylvania and Southern Indiana and Ohio more than any other place:

We are gratified to report that throughout this extensive territory unity and good will exist between the laborers in the field. There does not exist to my knowledge a single conflict or grievance between church officials, involving the relations of general and other church appointees. We are more than ever convinced that conflicts in this respect arise from mischievous intent or ignorance of law and duty and not from the impracticability of the law itself. "God's ways" are still "equal."

Bro. J. J. Cornish has labored mainly in Michigan, G. T. Griffiths in Pennsylvania and Ohio, H. Rathbun in Michigan, M. H. Forscutt in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, H. Robinson in Philadelphia District, M. H. Bond in the Massachusetts District, and F. M. Sheehy in Maine; not forgetting that E. L. Kelley has aided in Ohio and Michigan, and C. Scott in the latter field and Massachusetts. They will doubtless send in individual reports from their respective fields of labor better presenting the condition of the work than we are able to do in this general statement. I take pleasure in stating that good will, fellowship and friendship exist with these brethren and the writer, and that whatever number of peccadilloes may attach to each in other regards, in this respect they have been exemplary and worthy of imitation.

I find Saints disposed to do their part towards aiding the financial department of the church. Many of them keep the law "wholly" as understood. With increased years, experience and responsibility, I am still in the faith. I see no consistent way but to go on. The Reorganization has nothing to fear in view of a complete success but the working of an unsavory leaven within itself. The chief of saints said, "Clean the inside of the platter that the outside may be clean." This is as true now as of old, and relates as much to institutions as to individuals. Let us go on in the great work and be strong. May God guide, give success and victory to the right.

Elder Edmund C. Briggs, of the Quorum of Twelve, present, reports:

Since my last report I have done all I could in the ministry in justice to my self and circumstances. I have labored a part of the time in Indiana, Michigan, and Illinois. The call for preaching is incessant everywhere I have been, and in some places the people seem to be literally starving to hear the word of God, and know not where to look for it. Especially is it so in the great metropolis of the west, Chicago. If there is any place especially that needs a strong ministry, it is there, for many reasons. While the eyes of the Government are upon us in contrast to those horrible mysteries in the cursed Salt Land that should not know when good cometh, the Pharisees, whose head center of the world is Chicago, ought not to be allowed to have it all their own way unrebuked, while they are trying so wickedly to fasten the crimes of the latter day apostacy upon the fair name of the Church of Christ. Chicago is the half way house on the great American Continent, and in the midst of the grandest republic the world ever knew; and it is but justice in the sight of Almighty God and to the world that the gospel should be thoroughly published in that populous city of over seven hundred thousand starving souls; and I predict that the hardest fought battles the church has ever known will ere long rage there, if the Saints will but take in the situation and put on the whole armor of King Emanuel.

I am established in Christ, settled and grounded, having no fears as to the result of the conflict. Yet as individuals our agency is invulnerable, and rewards are secured only for work done in the Master's cause.

Elder Alex. H. Smith, of the Quorum of the Twelve, present, reports:

At your last annual session my mission was reaffirmed, and I sustained and returned to the "Pacific Slope Mission." As circumstances over which I had no control prevented my return to my field, until the middle of June, I labored up to the 12th of that month in Independence and vicinity. Upon that date I left home for my distant field, in company with Bro. Joseph Luff; en route I met Bro. Joseph Smith at Council Bluffs. In their company I journeyed and was permitted to aid in opening the campaign made by them in Utah, remaining with them until the 28th, doing what I could. It was then thought best by Pres. Smith that I hasten on to my own field. July 1st I arrived in Nevada. I labored in Carson City, Genoa and Sherman, and at the Mott School-house. The interest did not warrant my remaining there longer. There are but few of the Saints once living in that section who remain there, and it is difficult to do much there now, though there are some noble Saints still battling for the right in Nevada. What is needed there is two or more energetic Elders, who can do a good deal of walking and remain, making a continued persistent effort, going from house to house. The month of July, I spent in Nevada.

From thence I went to California. I did expect to have help in the field, but found the local ministry so tied up, that I had no one I could call on and say, Come with me. I labored in Sacramento, Oakland and San Francisco, until the coming of Bishop Biakeslee and counselor E. L. Kelley into my field; and with these brethren I labored in Oakland, San Francisco, Stockton, Sacramento, Lower Lake, Hollister, San Benito, Santa Ana, Laguna and San Bernardino; after they returned east, I labored in San Bernardino, Tustin, Gospel Swamp, Los Angeles, Oakland, San Francisco, Sacramento, Stockton, Irvington, Santa Rosa, Windsor, and other places. I have baptized but two, assisted in the confirmation of numbers of others; assisted in ordaining two, one an Elder, one a Priest; administered to the sick and attended to my ministry generally with the Spirit confirming my work.

I did not visit Oregon, but received repeated calls from there; am convinced that Oregon is now one of the best fields for labor in the west. I earnestly urge the sending some energetic ministers there. The work in my mission is looking up, but it is a hard field in which to labor alone. Elder Thomas Daly has done good and efficient work in the Northern District as president. Elder J. H. Lawn is deserving of credit in the Central District. Elders D. S. Mills, J. R. Badham and others in the Southern District of California. All have labored as their circumstances would permit; but all have been so placed that only a small portion of their time could be given. High Priest H. P. Brown has labored and is still doing, but is a practicing lawyer, a real estate agent, and the Editor of the Expositor, and can not give the time he desires; he is doing a good work with his paper. Elder William Anderson, an able man, is so tied by circumstances, his labor is only local, has been acting for the past six months as president of the Oak-Branch. I mention these men as it is generally supposed they are in the field, and because they are worthy men and willing men if they were freed so they could take the field. The work needs ten or a dozen active Elders on the Pacific coast. There is room and plenty of calls. Elders George S. Lincoln, T. J. Andrews and Charles Parkin, are keeping the work moving in San Francisco; but these men are all engaged in busness and can only give their time of Sundays to the work. I have no complaint to make, but do earnestly request of your honorable body, that you consider the necessities of the Pacific Slope Mission, and if it is possible send at least two Elders to each State in the Mission. - In case this can not be done, I would urge sending two associate in the mission. Elder Albert Haws is now laboring in Oregon, and reports the field a good one. He should have a helper. I expect he will report by letter. In this Mission I find the hardest element to deal with, of any place I have ever labored. Those who have fled from Utah in disgust with all religion; their hopes blasted by the apostasy there, they have turned to Spiritualism and Infidelity, and want no more of any of it. Talk about "Satan's strongholds in the east." I am inclined to think his headquarters are in the west not far from California or Utah.

Though it may seem out of place in my report for me to counsel or advise this body, yet once more I feel like urging it upon your notice; In sending out your missionaries do not send them alone, but two by two, as God has commanded. Do this, and greater success will follow the labors of the Elders, and many temptations and failures will be avoided. I am still in the field, to be used as God and the church may appoint. I have enlisted for life, or until the war is over; and shall labor and watch and pray for Zion's redemption till I see her walls erected, her temple built and sheltered by the cloud by day and pillar of fire by night, showing that our God is there.

THE LATE CONFERENCE.

CONSIDERABLE disappointment seems to have been experienced by some by reason of the session of conference just past. Wherein that disappointment lies we are not altogether informed, only as we hear an occasional murmur that gives a clue to the bent of thought. "We were expecting that the Lord would speak and fill up the quorums at this conference," one is heard to say. "We expected a feast of fat things," says another. "We did not have the gifts at any of our meetings for testimony and prayer; what is the matter?" says still another.

We will be pardoned, we trust, if we express some thoughts concerning the late conference, and state some convictions respecting the matters before it and the action thereon. There are in the lifetime of all organized bodies, small or great, crises of greater or less importance during the passing of which doubt, uncertainty, fear and apprehension are felt by all. The Reorganized Church has passed through several severe difficulties, in which the permanency of the institution seemed to be in great danger; but we apprehend that no session of conference has been held since 1867 in which the situation was more or the danger more serious and threatening than in the one we have just closed.

The question whether the church should consent to formulate a creed in which items of disbelief should find a prominent place, involving serious concessions to the views of two, three, or more prominent men in the body for the sake of the personal worth these men might be to that body, has been faced for several years, and the best that either moral cowardice or conservative wisdom could do, was to put on the appearance of putting off the evil day. Those who have attended the conferences since 1867 can not fail to remember that efforts have from time to time been made to bring about the making of specific declarations touching certain ideas, or theories of doctrine in the form of "we believe" thus and so, rather than to leave those matters couched in the more comprehensive, "we believe in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants." This question assumed definite shape at this last session when three Elders of the church said to the assembled representatives of the body: "You hold to certain things of belief which we disbelieve. We had thought you had abandoned the things referred to, but find you have not, we therefore withdraw from fellowship with you. You have preferred not to accede to our views, we therefore relieve ourselves of the things you believe."

These are not the words in which the withdrawal is framed, but the statement contains the moral aspect of the affair. The substance, the shadow of which the church has seen and felt for years, was precipitated upon us at an early hour of this last session, and the consideration of it and its consequences, its causes and its effects, entered largely into the thoughts, conversations and ministrations of the entire session. Its gravity was enough, its surrounding of such a nature that we should have been less than human if we had not felt its sombre influence.

The question tersely stated was this, should the church recede from positions assumed by it in the days of its opening struggles, accepting in the stead thereof views held by the few adversely to those positions, for the sake of harmony with that few. If this could be done, a compromise thus effected, and peace be established upon that basis, where and whence the next crisis of a similar character. The entering wedge driven home, the precedent established and it seemed as if it were easy to foresee that it could be but a few years, possibly a few months at best, when a few other men might be led to make a similar demand for similar reasons, and the church again be called upon to make concessions for the sake of oneness and unity of belief. If to the demands just made upon us we could yield, and as a body abandon a belief in the revelations of Joseph Smith, contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; which belief has so often and so persistently been avowed by the church since 1852, it must inevitable follow that upon a like demand, the same body should abandon a belief in the Book of Mormon, and as a sequence there could be no declaration of belief so sound or so well grounded but that it must be put into the same list and be abandoned at the demand of discontented disbelievers.

If the church could consistently yield one well accredited and commonly received teaching, or tenet, of which the majority were satisfied as to its validity, there could be none, not one, which they might not be called on to give up. It would be but a question of time as to when the church would be indeed not only without a creed but without a faith.

It can then be seen that the crisis was a grave one. Personally we confess that we never entered in upon the work of a conference session more bowed down with the weight of responsibility, more impressed with a sense of danger, more certainly aware of possible consequences of disaster than we did the work of this last session. To us it was not a session to "have a good time," to enjoy the "preached word;" to "feast" upon the "fats" of prophecy and tongues, to spend the pleasant hours of recess in chat and visit. It was a crisis in which the welfare of the whole work was at stake; it was a season for faithful devotion to truth, for fervent prayer, for the exercise of the "best gifts," for wise counsel, wiser action and patient endurance. Those who came for a spiritual "holiday," may have gone away disappointed; those whose anticipations were high may have gone away sad and discouraged; but those whose prescience and wisdom enabled them to foresee and estimate the gravity of the issues have gone away settled and grounded. Those who have been worried and fretted, fearful lest there was not sufficient certainty of belief with the mass of the leading men to act decisively when the emergency came, are gratified to discover solidity of purpose and ability and disposition to decide and face the consequences of decision. Those who held the banners neither wavered in the crisis, nor suffered the standards to be lowered.

None regret the action of Elders J. W. Briggs and Z. H. Gurley more than we do. We think none would have been willing to concede more to have healed the breach between them and the rest of the Elders than we. But when they publicly stated their withdrawal from their association with the body; we believe that self-respect and respect for the church itself required that they should not be held to an unwilling affiliation with the church in any sense whatever. These men are not children, nor men of common ability only. Each is above the mediocre in talent and should know what they wished to say and do. Hence, on the self-chosen ground upon which they based their action of withdrawal, we are contented to let it rest. That they made a grave mistake we certainly believe; they claim to think that we (the church) is in the error. Whatever the positions they have held in the church, and to which they were called by divine authority and grace, they have voluntarily resigned. The wisdom of their having been chosen for the work they have done should not be questioned. He who called them knew them and the work he designed them to do in the church. When they abandon that work by severing the connection uniting them with others called in a similar way, and under circumstances which indicate beyond doubt that God took cognizance both of the men, the work, and the circumstances, we can not follow them into the consequences of such abandonment, but must stay with the work itself—such are our convictions.

We trust that none of the eldership will permit themselves to be betrayed into any acrimonious denunciation of Elders Briggs and Gurley; or be guilty of circulating disparaging stories, or tales concerning them. It is beneath the dignity of men who may be devoid of claim to the Spirit of truth; and is totally unbecoming those claiming to be moved by the Christian grace, to revile and belittle former brethren who have gone out from their midst. We may be, and we are satisfied they have made a mistake and we may say so, but an acrimonious tirade in so saying is uncalled for.

In respect to the filling up the quorums. We had no directions looking towards this, except as was made known in the choosing a number into the Seventy. This was important and timely. A number of men of excellent spirit, who have been striving to approve themselves as workmen were chosen and ordained, and will doubtless magnify the calling. We were somewhat in hopes that the High Council might be more perfectly completed, but the absence of positive direction and the extreme difficulties attending calling the members of the High Priesthood together, made it unwise, as we regarded it. Had there been a command the ways would have been clear.

In regard to the gifts being had during the prayer meetings. One of the gifts, the principal gift of the Spirit to the members, or officers of the church, and the one most needed by the delegates and other members of the last session of conference, were the gifts of wisdom, and of faith. No more trying season of the same duration of days has ever occurred to a body of Elders. No crisis in which better judgment, nobler self-control, wiser thought and speech, more deliberate and cooler reason were demanded has been met and passed than the one impending at the session of which we write. We think decidedly that the verdict of succeeding events will show that the gifts of wisdom, knowledge and faith were with the people of God during our entire session; and if so, we shall be content though no "cloven tongue, as of fire," was seen or heard.

"A feast of fat things." Those, who are fed upon dainties foster spoiled appetites; and whoso desires only the outward manifestations of tongues and prophesy may lack when the feast is prepared. He who sits at table discontented because some cherished tid-bit is missing will need to go hungry. We do not write this because we do not believe in the gifts named, because we do, as all must know. But if the enjoyment of few or many who attended the late conference was spoiled because these two gifts were notably absent, and those noting the absence of them conclude that the Spirit of God was not present, and not with the Elders, we remind them that there are nine gifts mentioned by Paul in 1 Corinthians 12, and though two may not have been seen, the others may have been present operating for the good of the body. Wisdom, knowledge, faith, discerning of spirits, helps, governments; are as completely gifts of the Spirit and essential to supply the needs of the church (the body of Christ) as is either of the other gifts named. We are not to require miracles, nor do we expect them except the emergency demands them; there may have been no event of which the Spirit had need to prophesy; there may have been no warning to be given in tongues and interpretation; there were some sick who were administered to, of the several thus administered to one only died, the child of Bro. I. N. Roberts. Other sicknesses than those of the body need the power of faith, or the gift of healing to remove,—shall we say that none were so healed of distress of brain and heart during the conference. Was there not great need for the presence and exercise of the discerning of spirits, and can any one say that such gift was not so held and exercised. There being no tongues there was no need of interpretation. Was there a man that attempted to speak, or write in consideration of the questions presented and pending before the session who did not need help, and that from the Spirit; was there one who preached during the session that was not helped to a great or less degree. Was not the whole membership of the conference in strong need of the government which is the gift of the Spirit. "O fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have written," was said of some who lived away back yonder in time; and shall we deny that it might be spoken now of a people who should be wiser than they were in that day. We by no means endorse the supposed charge of want of spirituality in the question "What is the matter."

Another thing; the delegates and members of conference proper came from their various fields of labor to "do what business was necessary to be done at the time." This business engrossed their attention. Their prayers were for light and wisdom. This wisdom they had a right to expect the Spirit to give them in the absence of express direction; and in the carrying out of the object for which they came together, with wisdom her ancient and best beloved hand maidens charity and patience to do well what was to be done. Let us praise God for what we had and cease to find fault with God or each other over what we had not.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Elder Peter Anderson, writing from Salt Lake City, April 26th, says:

"Am going south in the morning; had several good meetings in Ogden, and preached here yesterday."

Bro. P. C. Dailey of Visalia, Cal., writes saying:

"I can not get along without the Herald and Hope, because they are both food and drink to the hungry soul. I find great consolation in reading them, and shed many a tear of joy."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is it right and proper for Elders of our church to give temperance lectures outside of gospel sermons?

Ans.—Yes.

Q.—Is it wrong for members of our church to go and listen to a lady lecture on temperance?

A.—No.

Q.—Should the Saints allow a lady to lecture in their churches on temperance?

A.—Yes.

"PREACH THE WORD."

SUCH was the wise counsel of St. Paul, one of the most eminent gospel teachers the church ever knew. Having had a very marvelous conversion, devoting his entire time and powers to the gospel ministry, and having enjoyed such varied and peculiar experiences as enabled him to advise most intelligently, he solemnly charges Timothy, his "beloved son in the gospel," to "Preach the word; be instant in season, who are out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine."—2 Tim. 4: 2.

Paul knew that souls were too precious and time too short for Christ's ministers to trifle away their hours preaching their own thoughts and private speculations. He knew that Christ never sent his servants to theorize and spend the golden moments on human philosophies and human conceptions of science. He taught that their time and opportunities—all of them—should be devoted in teaching "the things pertaining to the kingdom of God," in reasoning of "righteousness, temperance, and a judgment to come." He knew their message was urgent; perishing souls were awaiting their saving ministrations; their every effort should be humbly, faithfully directed in showing forth the light and life in Christ; theirs was the Lord's time and not their own; they must follow the Great Captain of their salvation and strictly heed his saving word and his guiding and enlightening Spirit. They must not teach their own thoughts, but his; they must not preach themselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and themselves simply his servants. When they would do this, then the Lord would stand by them and bless the word preached by the convincing, convicting and testifying power of the Spirit, enabling the willing hearer to "see the kingdom of God," to feel its gospel power, be "drawn" to Christ our glorious and glorified Redeemer, get a view of his duty to God and man and have a sweet foretaste of the joys and "powers of the world to come."

This kind of preaching might be "foolishness" to some, but to others it would be "the wisdom of God and the power of God." To some it might prove "a stumbling-block," but to the sincere and truthloving soul it would be heavenly manna and "the power of God unto salvation."

Paul knew it required all the powers of the human soul, aided and sustained by the light of the Holy Ghost, to enable the minister for Christ to clearly understand God's word and works so as to rightly and fully minister before the Lord; hence he counsels Timothy, saying,—"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." The study of God's precious "word of truth" was all-important for the Lord's servant; for without a proper and an ample understanding of it he could not show himself "approved unto God." He must "hide away the Lord's word in his heart;" store his mind richly with "every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of God," so as to be ready to "give unto every one a portion in due season." He must know the exact meaning of the word, know when and how and where to apply it; and to do this wisely and well he must not only "know the things that are freely given to us of God," but, "comparing spiritual things with spiritual," he must study fitness and appropriateness in presenting and applying that word. The minister said of old,—"The Lord God hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I should know how to speak a word in season to him that is weary." And the wisdom of God has said,—"A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver."

Therefore the minister should not only know "the word" of the Lord, but if he ever succeeds as a soul-winner he must understand it; and he must have both skill and wisdom in faithfully using it.

What pre-eminently marks the opening of this last dispensation is the fact of the revelation of God's word, "line upon line, line upon line; precept upon precept, precept upon precept; here a little and there a little." This was true, not only in giving the Book of Mormon, but also in giving the Doctrine and Covenants; likewise the Bible, translated, corrected and revised in all essential points. Add to this the fact that the angel who appeared to Joseph the Seer, Sept. 21st, 1823, and taught him all the night from evening until early dawn, quoting largely from both the Old Testament and the New, and we see how important is the knowledge of God's word, and how essential it is to have divine skill and wisdom in its use. Well might the Psalmist say, "I rejoice at thy word, as one that findeth great spoil;" and, "give me understanding according to thy word." The man who has God's word and understands it well, is armed with sword and shield and buckler. If faithful, patient, and persevering, he will prove "a good soldier" for Christ, and will go forward "conquering, and to conquer." But those who study other things instead of God's word and works and undertake to teach human wisdom, their own speculations, "my opinion," and what "I believe;" or those who propose to teach something higher and different than the authentic and accepted word of God,—such are simply "wise in their own conceits," "wise above what is written," and these will fail to have the light and liberty of the Spirit; they will fail to "convert sinners," or "teach transgressors the law of the Lord," and, if they are not aware the love of God will quite leave the heart, the light of God will depart from their souls, the Holy Spirit, grieved and dishonored, will withdraw and forsake him who has thus treated lightly the matchless and incomparable word of the Lord. Such will be spiritless and powerless; all their efforts, though they please the "itching ears," will be worthless in converting souls to God and "building them up in the most holy faith."

For the last thirty-five years we have observed that those ministers who were humble, prayerful and diligent, who were full of the word of the Lord and who used it wisely and with the inspiration of the Holy Spirit,—they have been the successful soul-winners; they are those who have built up the church solidly and permanently; they are those not "carried about by every wind of doctrine," and are such as the Lord honors, upholds, sustains and gives success; while those who ape the wisdom of the world, theorize in respect to human philosophies and scientific subtleties, fall far short in practical, edifying and saving results.

We have heard of popular ministers preaching such fine-spun, wordy, spiritless sermons as to fill the minds of their hearers (when they could keep awake) with wonder and astonishment only at the thinness of their arguments, the top-loftiness of their theories, and the paltriness in general of what should have been a sermon full of heavenly light and saving power.

"Preach the word;" ye ministers of Christ! Let the world look after and propagate its own ever-shifting theories; but for you it remains to teach God's word of truth under the guidance of the "still small voice" of the Spirit of truth. Be careful and be patient in this, and heaven will give you great success. "Preach the word;" and again we say, "Preach the word." The world is perishing for the pure word of the Lord, and whoever brings them that will have success, for God will ever honor and bless his word. The success of the great protestant reformers, and of such men as Messrs. Moody, Jones, Spurgeon, etc., may be traced largely, not so much to their doctrinal teachings, but rather to the words of righteousness—personal righteousness which they quote and illustrate from the Bible—the Old Testament and the New. Here is wisdom.

The ministers among the Saints who have the greatest success in gathering souls to Christ are those who give themselves faithfully "to the word of God and to prayer" like the Apostle Peter and his fellows. Nothing is so much needed now as plain, pure, and well chosen scriptural teachings, sustained and illustrated by both ecclesiastical and profane history, applied under the meek, gentle, and loving spirit of Christ. All need the Christianity of Christ, and they should be made to hear and see and feel him as he walked and talked and ministered, when tried and persecuted and slain; when buried, rising and ascending to heaven, also when revealing himself in vision, by voice and by spiritual gifts and graces to those who served him. Christ should be made the central idea with all. His wondrous work "from of old, even from everlasting" should be the theme of every minister, and it should be their chief and constant effort to "preach the word" as found in all the Scriptures of truth, being careful to "give to every one a portion in due season." And in conclusion we again exhort the ministry to faithfully and wisely "preach the word."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

A BROTHER came to Decatur county in 1872 with a little over two thousand dollars, which he put into a farm of one hundred and sixty acres of land. He has today the farm, stock, and machinery to take care of it and $6,500 in cash. He says: "When I first came to this country, I was up early and late. I was interested in making my crop, I worked over it, watched over it, cared for it through rain as well as shine. I made myself acquainted with my crops of every sort, I paused not nor delayed by reason of heat or cold, I had no business to town when I could be at work; the result was, I had good crops. Now, I, like many others can sleep till after the sun is long risen, I can not plow nor work on the land when it is too wet or too dry, I am always in a hurry, and have not time to get acquainted with my crops, my errands to town are many, and frequently when the weather and soil are together favorable to working with my crop, I am glad of any excuse to put off my labor; the result is the earth does not yield her increase;—is nature in the fault, or is the fault in me; I dare not say it is nature, and I hate to say it is I."

The Associate Editor spent Sunday the 2d inst. with the Saints in St. Joseph, Mo., and there found Elder H. C. Bronson armed and equipped for service in the army of the Lord. Bro. Bronson preached an excellent discourse to an attentive congregation at 10:30 a.m., on the work of the Holy Spirit in qualifying the minister for Christ to testify of him and teach the gospel of eternal life with enlightening, convincing, and binding power. It was a timely sermon on an all-important subject. At 7:45 p.m. a full congregation listened earnestly to our effort in regard to the things of the kingdom, including some of our experiences in the Master's service. The Saints at St. Joseph are willing workers, and prospects there are promising.

Brother Austin Olson is now numbered among the Lamoni Saints, has a high appreciation of being called to be a Latter Day Saint, and expresses a determination to press on to the "continuing city" to reign with Jesus and the redeemed.

Brother Hans Hayer and family are now located at Sheridan, Illinois; but he intends to locate at Lamoni, where he has bought and is improving a beautiful lot for a home.

The delegates and visitors to conference have passed from among the dwellers of Lamoni by ones, twos, and bevsies, until but few are left at present writing, April 29th; Bro. M. T. Short and family being among the few, their stay being enforced by an attack of the measles,—that peculiar ill to which human flesh is an heir, having been scattered during conference by some unforeseen chance. Sr. Short and her babe have been ill at Bro. S. V. Bailey's, for some days, but are recovering rapidly, and the family will soon return to their home and labor. The stay of Bro. I. N. Roberts and wife was made very sad by the death of their little girl who died just after conference adjourned, and they returned to their home in Stewartville, bearing the beautiful remains to be buried by the side of others whom they had lost. Death waits upon the footsteps of the fairest and blessed, as upon the aged and the worn.

Bro. M. H. Forscutt preached the funeral sermon over the remains of Sr. Caroline Eggleston, one of the old time Saints, at Shenandoah, Iowa, Monday, April 19th, in the Saints' Meeting-house, to a house full of listeners. He also preached several times at Shenandoah, besides this funeral service, during Saturday and Sunday.

Many still complain that they did not get the HERALD for April 17th. We remind all again that we printed no HERALD for that date owing to press of affairs during the late Annual Conference.

Brother J. R. Anderson writes from Clitherall, Minn., April 26th, that when he and brother Steadman reached Lake Crystal, they found there were two or more then ready for baptism. He says:—"When Bro. Foss comes up here if he will stop there a few days he can baptize these and probably others." On reaching home, Bro. Anderson found his family and other Saints well, and he had baptized since then an aged lady, while others are nearly ready to comply with the gospel call.

Sr. Mary E. Clifford, of Burwood, San Joaquin Co., California, says that about six months prior to last April she came to reside with Sr. Copeland, an old member of the church, and that previous to that she knew nothing of the Reorganized Church, and only knew of the outrageous stories circulated commonly about Joseph Smith and the Mormons. But Sr. Copeland soon taught her the doctrines of the church, and the further fact that it had no affiliation with Brighamism. She attended the conference at Stockton and on the 22d of March was baptized and confirmed, and now feels confident she will never regret the steps thus taken.

Many letters are received which we can not possibly print; so that those whose letters are left out must not think it was done out of disrespect or disregard for them, for it is not, it is simply a necessity. The conference minutes and ministerial reports have crowded numbers of letters out, the dates of which will make them old when space is afforded again further along in the year.

Bro. Robert Davis, writing from Juniata, Michigan, reports quite an interest following the labors of Bro. J. J. Cornish. Bro.

Davis wrote March 24th, and Bro. Cornish had lately organized two branches of about twenty members each.

Bro. Joseph Lampert of Oshkosh, Wisconsin, writes us under date of April 27th, that he was sorely disappointed in not getting the HERALD for the 17th of that month. We have had "bushels of letters," (to use a strong figure), expressive of the same feeling, within the past two weeks or more. We are glad to know the HERALD is read and appreciated. He says further, that all goes well with him "with but little exception;" and that he is "glad the church is not going to be duped with something outside the standard books, by no one."

We regret to learn by the Highmore (Dakota) Herald of April 24th, that a prairie fire had of late damaged Bro. Gomer Reese, burning his barn, corn, hay, etc. He has the sympathy of all, and has gone to "work with all his might to retrieve his loss."

SINCE conference Bro. Willard J. Smith, of Independence, Missouri, met Rev. Ward at Tiblow, Kansas; of the success of which the following from the Argentine Siftings, will give an idea:

"The six nights debate between Elder W. J. Smith of the Re-organized Church of Latter Day Saints, and D. M. Ward of the Christian Church was brought to a peaceful close on Monday night. From this time forth we believe Elder Smith will be able to preach here in peace unmolested, and that for all future time his Christian friends here will give him a severe "letting alone." Mr. Smith sought no discussion here, but when it was forced upon him he met the issue manfully and fought it to a victory, and Mr. Ward has shown himself in this debate to be very much lacking in those qualities that go to make up a public debater, and if he can find any comfort in preserving those "pansy blossoms and withered flowers" that were cast at his feet, we shall be glad, for it is about all the consolation he will ever get out of his debate with Elder Smith."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"O, Thou, who in the garden's shade
Did'st wake thy weary ones again,
Who slumbered at that fearful hour
Forgetful of thy pain;
Bend o'er us now, as over them,
And set our sleep-bound spirits free;
Nor leave us slumbering in the watch
Our souls should keep with Thee!"

"COULD YE NOT WATCH WITH ME ONE HOUR."

Who that has ever read this most touching episode in the life of Christ, has not felt the unbidden moisture spring to their eyes, and their heart tremble with emotion as they thought of Him alone in those hours of terrible agony! If there were any upon earth who should have been with Him, should have comforted Him, surely they were those sleeping ones. Among the first called into the ministry, they had been with Him since they left their father's nets.

When Jesus restored to life the daughter of Jairus, He had put forth from the chamber all but the parents of the damsel and these three of the twelve, Peter, James and John. Again when He ascended the Mount of Transfiguration, accompanying him as witnesses of His power and glory were the same three, and now when the cup of bitterness was to pass his lips in the terrible agony of Gethsemane, he took with Him these same ones who had witnessed the glorious vision, and they heard those who had come from beyond the shadowy land called Death, talk with Him concerning that which He was now enduring and and shortly must pass through. Did the great heart of the Redeemer need human sympathy in that hour? If not, why had He taken them, and why did He awake them when He found them sleeping? Believe us, dear sisters, there is not a heart, a human heart, which does not need sympathy. "Could ye not watch with me one hour?" One little hour! The time is very near when this privilege will not be yours. "Ye shall seek me and shall not find me." But there was a greater reason than want of sympathy prompting the act of the Savior when He awoke them and said unto Peter: "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation." In this moment they had needed no admonition, but in the joy of his soul the impulsive Peter had exclaimed, "Lord it is good for us to be here; if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; one for Thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias." But in the hour of sorrow and darkness—the hour of trial and gloom—"they slept."

Among the "selections" in the HERALD, of May 1st, is one, "What Ails the Church?" We are glad we were not the compositor doomed to put into type such a batch of falsehood and sacrilege. Let Christianity be wounded in the house of her friends for as many centuries in the future as she has in the past, let her beautiful garments be assumed by those who put them on only for outward show, and let the world become as corrupt as the cities of the plains; if still there be found one true follower of Christ, one Christian in it, the light of truth in such an one shall out-shine ten thousand such philosophers as Mr. L. H. Washburn and his infidel compeers. Even the devil can speak the truth when it suits his purpose, and unwittingly Mr. W. paid the highest compliment in his power to women, when he says: "It will not be surprising if in the next fifty years every pulpit in this country is filled by a woman." Of course we need not say to you that we do not believe this, but we do believe that now, just now, is a time of trials and darkness—a time when the will of the Spirit comes to us commanding us to "Watch and pray lest ye (we) enter into temptation," and we are pleased that even Infidelity has faith in woman.

Can we, will we, watch and pray one little hour longer? The sorrow of Gethsemane, the agony of the cross was but for a day. The glorious morning of the resurrection came, the angels rolled away the stone and from the sepulchre; Christ the Conqueror came forth, leading captivity captive, holding the keys of death and hell; and because of the matchless triumph of the meek and lowly Jesus even such infidels as L. H. Washburn may hope for possible pardon in the world to come, if he does not repent and seek it here.

"Every man who loves his race is under the obligation to help remove Christianity from the earth."

"Why do the heathen rage?" Why do they "take counsel together against the Lord and against His Anointed," saying "Let us break their bands asunder, and cast their cords from us." Why? The devil has come down in great wrath, knowing that his time is short. Soon the opening heavens will again reveal Him who made His entry into Jerusalem "on a donkey." He will not come as the babe of Bethlehem, but as He ascended into heaven, surrounded by the angels of God; so shall the heavens reveal him. "In flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ."

If infidelity recognizes the power of woman, shall we not recognize our own? We do not feel that it is boasting to say, woman as a rule has more abiding faith, is richer in patient endurance than men. Last at the cross, first at the sepulchre, and ever found ministering to the wants of the workers. Home is our sphere. Let the pulpits of the land be occupied by women; we know that the priestly garments of the kingdom of God were never worn by women. "Husbands love your wives!" Is not that the crown of glory every true woman seeks to wear? Place or preferment, wealth or power conferred, can never take the place of the crown of a husband's love. But while our husbands are officiating in their office abroad, let us see to it that we do our part at home. They have the world to contend with, and "wrestle not against principalities of flesh and blood, but against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places."

When the women of Sparta sent their husbands and sons forth to battle for their country, in giving them their shield, they would say, "With it, or on it" Patriotism was the highest virtue known to them, and with unwavering fidelity they instilled into their children this love of country. Can we as Christian wives and mothers be as faithful to our trust as the Spartan women of olden times were to theirs? Can we remain at home while we send our loved ones forth and yet more "watch and pray?" Can we say unto them in the words of Paul, "Take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day and having done all, to stand. * * * Having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all taking the shield of faith wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation, and the word of the Spirit, which is the word of God."

Yes; we believe and know that hundreds of mothers and wives, in this latter day work are purely and unselfishly devoted to it. For it they live, for it they labor, and for its triumph they will watch and wait. They are praying the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into the vineyard. Let every Elder who has gone forth from the late conference rest assured of this, and moreover let every one now laboring remember that anxious prayers are going up hourly for them, that God may so endow them with his Spirit that they may fight a good fight and keep the faith. We are waiting for news from the battle-field. With God for your helper there is no such word as defeat. It has been declared by the Spirit, that no word spoken by the Spirit shall fail to bring forth fruit. Vain is all labor if God does not bless it—the increase is from him and blessed is the man or woman who labors in his strength, and takes him as their exceeding great reward. For times of trial, love and friendship were given. If we love the cause of God—if we love truth and desire its triumph, let us stand by our colors when the battle is fiercest, and in the silent watches of the night if He come let him not find us sleeping!

We are in receipt of letters and articles from sisters Lloyd, Terry, Lettie A. Dunn, M. A. Christy, M. A. Kuykendall, "A Sister," M. Hoagland, S. E. Bouton and sister C. Ackerly.

THE conference has closed and before this its minutes have reached you. Some were disappointed in its results, but very many who were in attendance went away feeling more firmly rooted and grounded in the work than ever. We were one of the Martha's and consequently attended few of the sessions; but we thank God for the instruction we gained from those who were our guests, and not only do we feel the riches in our own life, but in due time we shall endeavor to impart unto others. Do not fear that the "salt has lost its savor." God is at the helm, and aboard the good ship he has thousands of tried and trusted ones. Man is just now the best agent into whose hands he can put his work and man is imperfect, therefore we must not expect him to be always perfect in his work, but "hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end," remembering that "an unfaithful friend in time of trouble is like a broken tooth, a foot out of joint." "Christ is a Son over his own house" and if we walk blameless before him, all will be well with us, and as for the affairs of his house he is yet abundantly able to manage them himself. The work is his and he will care for it, but let us not forget that there is a work we are called upon to do, with fear and trembling. "Work out your own salvation!" May He help each one!

HURTFUL READING.

A BAD book, magazine or newspaper is as dangerous to your child, and will as surely corrupt his morals, and lead him away from the path of safety, as an immoral associate. All mothers in the latter day work should ponder over this subject, and see if they are keeping their homes free from the vile trash that is published and sown broadcast throughout this free land. Look to your children and see what they read, and especially to the kinds of papers that get into their hands; for there are now published scores of weekly papers, with attractive and sensuous illustrations, such as the "Police Gazette," "Boys' Own," "New Variety," &c., that are as hurtful to young and innocent children and young men and women as poison to a healthy body. Many of these papers have a wide circulation, and are sowing the seed of vice and crime. Trenching on the borders of indecency, they corrupt the morals, taint the imagination with evil, and allure the weak from paths of innocence. The dangers to young people from this cause were never so great as at the present time, and every mother in Zion should be on their guard against an enemy that is sure to meet their child. Look then mothers that your children are kept as free as possible from this taint. Never bring into nor allow in your house a paper or book that is not pure. See to it mothers that your children have an abundance of the purest and healthiest reading. Hungry lambs will eat poison; but if well fed on good food, they will let the poison alone. If you wish to save your children, and the children of others, do all you can to sustain and circulate healthy, moral literature.

PRACTICE WHAT YOU PREACH.

Parents if your tender offspring
You would lead in ways of truth;
Shielding them from the temptations
That surround the paths of youth,
Count as void your time-worn maxims
And to make your teachings sure
For a shelter from the tempests
Sins dark cloud would cast round each
Tender flower of your protection,
You must practice what you preach.
Teachers if throughout your duties Ever faithful you would be,
Not by words, but by your actions
Teach in all sincerity.
Youthful eyes are on you gazing,
Youthful hearts your thoughts receive;
Eagerly they catch your accents,
Eagerly your words believe;
Then beware! lest by your actions,
Untrue principles you teach,
And forget not you must ever
Strive to practice what you preach.

HEALTH AND HOME.

WHAT a world of meaning lies hidden in these two words. Reversing them, we place the foundation beneath, and then place upon it the superstructure or castle wherein dwells earth's choicest blessings—"Home and Health." Mothers, do you realize the greatness of the vast empires over which you reign as queens? Do you realize that from your respective domains go forth the statesman, the orator, the philanthropist, the explorer, the astronomer, the missionary—and, too, the demagogue, the blood-thirsty warrior, the scheming politician, the votary of folly and fashion, the defaulter, the reckless murderer, and all the higher and lower grades of humanity? All at the same time pass through the crucible of home, of which you are the controlling power. Truly you occupy honorary places in the galaxy of earthly sovereigns!

But do you realize in what a great degree the health or sickness of the world may be laid to your charge? If the infant constitution, mind as well as body, be duly attended to, the result will surely be shown in all the coming years. Give the little ones plenty of fresh air, wholesome food, all the exercise their young hearts desire, with bodies untrammelled by tight bands and belts. Let every child's muscles have free, full play at all times. Don't dress your children so tight that it is a relief, like opening a prison door, to undress them for the night. We know by early experience what that is, for we have felt it, and all through our life have felt its effects. The cost is far too great, for the motive is only vanity and the reward disease. Give the little ones wholesome food and plenty of it, at regular periods. Disobey these rules, then disease will be engendered, and resort had to all the poisonous nostrums of the day, which serve only to allay the uneasiness for the time being, and leave their direful effects in the tender system, to be manifested in some other way in the coming years. Keep the blood pure; not by lotions, soaps and powders, but by air, exercise, proper food and drink. Ventilate your sleeping as well as your living rooms. Let in pure air, and, if at all practicable, let the sun every day penetrate every article of bedding and clothing. It is astonishing to read what a great difference there is in the per cent of mortality in large cities on different sides of the same street, entirely owing to the different degrees of exposure to the sun. Let the little ones think for themselves. Let them ask ever so many questions. Don't bluff them off in either anger or impatience. Endeavor early to subdue and correct every semblance of dissimulation, revenge, hatred and passion. Observation teaches us that children are just what they are made, and the rule is that "just as a twig is bent the tree is inclined," then how all important it is that the tender, precious little twigs should have all their faculties bent in the right direction.

TO MOTHERS.

WE feel thankful to the Editor of the Herald for giving us a chance to exchange our views through its columns. We believe it will benefit all the sisterhood, and if they are benefitted, the brothers surely must be. I'm glad I belong in the household of faith, and am trying to live by faith in my temporal household. I feel impressed to say a word to mothers, and feel that I am directed:—Mothers, dear mothers, I address you in tones of love and sympathy. Mothers, listen:—To you is consigned the greatest work given to mortals. To clothe immortal spirits in the flesh, according to the laws given, to properly supply the external and internal wants of that flesh, and instruct, discipline and develop the spirit in a way which shall meet the requirements of him who created them. How great, how stupendous the work! What mother ever fully realized the greatness? Awake, arouse, ye stupid wives who would exempt yourselves from the work, and ye pleasure seeking mothers, who try to cover your unfaithfulness without one proper excuse. Know ye not that every secret devise shall be brought into judgment, and every secret virtue shall have its reward? May every mother in Latter Day Israel, and especially the young mothers, study well and strive to follow the example of Hannah and Eunice; for we need more men like Samuel and Timothy. We think that several grandmothers like Lois have been represented in the "Home column," and hope to see many more. If mothers govern themselves by the laws of their being, and trust in God, they will be safely carried through all their sufferings; and if they commence in the earliest infancy of their offspring, to govern them by a pure example, and continue till the end of life, both mother and children must come up in the great day with their robes washed white in the blood of the Lamb. Gently, O gently lead them, as the good Shepherd leadeth his flock. Teach them to sip early at the foundation of life. Teach them the word of wisdom, and by example cause them to obey it. Verily great shall be the reward of all who do so, even in this life. Peace, health and happiness, whether they live in a cot or a mansion. "Obedience is better than sacrifice." God delights in the chaste obedience of his Saints, and he will fill the hearts of all such with love and joy to overflowing. One after another of our worthy laborers in the ministry are called home, and others are called to fill the vacancy, and the question arises: Who will take the place of the latter, unless our boys are brought up for that purpose. People in all vocations are chosen, or elected, because they are fitted for the office. Then mothers do not censure me for being so pointed in my hints in regard to your ponderous work.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MINUTES.

APRIL 6TH TO 17TH, 1886.

Continued.

MINISTRY RERORTS.

Elder Charles Derry, President of the High Priests' Quorum, present, reports:

Since the April Conference, at Independence, Missouri, 1885, I have labored in the western portion of Iowa. This winter sickness in my family, and inclement weather, with bad roads, have prevented me from laboring away from home. I have generally been favored with fair audiences, respectful attention; and with the blessing of God, I have tried to perform all the duties of an Elder in Christ's Church. My faith in the work strengthens, my hope brightens, and my zeal for it increases with my years. My love for it is manifest in the consecration of my life to it. Come life or death, poverty or prosperity, I expect to labor for God and his truth, until he tells me, "It is enough," and that I never expect to hear, so long as I have a power to exert. May God defend the right and bless his own, is my humble prayer.

Elder C. G. Lanphear, of the High Priests, writes from Belmont, New York:

May the blessings of the Lord and the communion and guidance of the Holy Spirit be and abide richly in all your sessions and assemblings throughout the Conference, is my earnest prayer and desire to God. Since your last session I have done but little public preaching, not being able to perform the traveling on foot necessary to arrange appointments and fill them. I was in Allegheny county in the neighborhood of Obi, a while last fall, where there were several school-houses quite handy to be had for meeting, and I preached some eight or nine times, most of them to very good effect and interest expressed with those present. I have visited quite a number of families and conversed with them on the subject of the gospel and latter day work during the past year, and have been very kindly received with those I associated with. There are excellent openings for extended gospel labors in a good many places of my acquaintance here in the east. I had the great pleasure of meeting our esteemed brother, William H. Kelley, two or three weeks ago, and heard him dispense the words of life to a few of the people upon four different occasions. I also rendered him what assistance I could in arranging appointments and opening the services. I have by request, prayed and administered to two of the afflicted of those outside of the church who received some benefit and blessings for the time being by the administrations. Have obtained one new subscriber for the Herald and one renewal for subscription, and two subscribers for Zion's Hope all outside of the church. Also sent for others to the Herald Office, mostly renewal of subscription for former subscribers. I desire the confidence and prayers of the Saints that I may ever be found striving in behalf of the glorious and ever abiding gospel of God's dear son, who has so wondrously wrought out and made the plan complete for the salvation of the world. My age and circumstances necessarily make my efforts in the gospel cause quite limited in my movements in relation thereto; nevertheless I desire to do what I can and ever to be ready to give an answer for the reason of our hope with meekness and fear. May the blessings of peace be with you all. Amen.

Elder William B. Smith, of the High Priests, writes from Elkader, Iowa:

I am still a believer in this latter day work; but on account of poor health I have not been able to do any missionary work for the last two years, or nearly so, having been confined the most of the time by a severe affliction of the lungs. At present writing my health is slowly improving, and I therefore have strong hopes that I shall be able to do some labor in the mission field this season, the church and the Lord willing. I am sorry, brethren, that I am not able to meet with you during the present session of Conference.

Elder E. C. Brand, President of Seventy, present, reports:

During the last twelve months I have traveled 2726 miles; have baptized 13; confirmed 16; blessed 15 children; ordained by direction of Conference 4; married 1 couple; administered to many of the sick with blessed results; attended several district conferences, and preached 134 times in the following places: Independence 6, Stewartsville 1, Pleasant Grove 1, and German Church, Missouri 2, Jones' Grove 2, Ridgley School House 5, Webster School House 1, Jamestown 12, Fremont 9, Kennard Station 2, Lake Shore 5, Island 2, and Omaha, Nebraska 6, Plum Creek 9, Plum Hollow 4, Tabor 6, Davis School House 3, Galland's Grove 21, McCord School House 1, Ross School House 7, Deloit 15, Dow City 5, North Coon 8, and Magnolia, Iowa 1. I have never in my thirty-five years' experience seen the time when there was such a demand for preaching in all directions, nor the time when such strict attention was paid even by the young to the ministration of the word. I feel that I have in common with my brethren been more endowed by the blessing of God's assisting aid. That a large number of the Saints are also feeling the promptings of awakening, and taking interest that they have never so fully done before; but on the other hand I find in many places a low spiritual condition, especially where the local ministry, priests and teachers, have failed to visit and magnify their calling.

Elder J. S. Patterson, President of Seventy, present, reports:

Although not under General Conference appointment, I have given my whole time to the ministry, and until recently have presided over the Northern Illinois District, where, according to instructions given me at last Spring's Conference, with the assistance of Bro. Israel L. Rogers, reorganized the first Chicago Branch, with fifteen members. I also organized a branch at Cortland, Illinois, with fourteen members. Have baptized ten, blessed eleven children, ordained two Elders, and one Priest; have assisted in administering frequently to the sick with good results; have preached every opportunity in Northern Illinois, and Southern Wisconsin, receiving encouraging hearings in new places. The outlook in my late field to me appears reasonably good. My earnest desires are for the future prosperity of the cause.

Elder J. T. Davies, President of Seventy, present, reports:

Since my appointment last Conference, I have labored in the field assigned me, namely Missouri and Kansas, with a good degree of satisfaction that my efforts in preaching and other ministerial labors are approved of God, and beneficial to the Saints, as well as widening out the limits of our operation. The field is good, and worthy of a continued effort with all available help. The demand for preaching is ample and increasing; the majority of the local Elders are faithful, and some of them are thinking of entering the field altogether; two or three of them young men. There have been some additions and more in prospect; of the work all are hopeful. I pray the Master to bless all in our deliberations.

Elder Heman C. Smith, President of Seventy, present, reports:

Before entering my field of labor I visited and preached a few times each, at the following places:—Good Intent, Netawaka, and Pleasant View, Kansas; Independence, Webb City, and Seligman, Missouri. At all these places I was kindly received, and much blessed. About the first of June in connection with my colaborer, Bro. I. N. Roberts, I entered my field of labor, and opened the work at Eureka Springs, Arkansas. We held forth here for about two weeks. One addition was the immediate result, and I think much more good was done. This being a popular health resort, there were people attended our meetings from many parts of the world, and probably a harvest will be reaped from the seed sown in distant fields. Our next point was at Hearne, Texas; and after this our labors were confined to the Texas part of the mission.

To here give an account of all our labors and travels would be tedious and unprofitable; suffice it to say, we labored continuously until March the first, since which we have been visiting different points on our way to conference. The work as a whole in Texas is in much better condition than ever before. Some young and zealous men have come into the church, who are doing good and efficient branch work, and will if faithful do a greater work. The field is an important one, and will need the special care of some wise, unwavering man of good executive ability in charge, assisted by seven or eight helpers. If this can be done great good will be the result for the field is ripe, already for the harvest, but if one or two only are to be sent the work as heretofore will of necessity move slowly.

I have traveled and preached extensively through Texas, held two debates in which I was blest, and the cause of Christ received benefit. Bro. I. N. Roberts has labored with zeal, has won the confidence of the people, and accomplished great good. I think he wishes to continue in that field, and should be reappointed.

Bro. A. J. Cato, though receiving no appointment from conference has continued in the field continuously, and his labor has bore fruit. Aside from this the labor done has been but little. With this small force in so large a field, but little could be expected; but through the blessings of God we have put the work upon a firm and surer basis. I am now ready to deliver up the work to my successor who ever he may be, with an earnest prayer that he may be more successful than I have been. I would be pleased if one of the Twelve could take the oversight of the mission for a time. I think it important that they should know the condition and demands of the mission. We have much more to contend against than the Elders in the north. Prejudice is much stronger, and it can only be broken down by preaching, and consistent living with the aid of church publications, as the local press grants us but few favors; but instead feed the popular prejudice with vituperation, misrepresentation and slang. Should anything favorable to us appear in their northern exchanges it is seldom noticed. The sects however are becoming alarmed, and will soon be forced to meet the issue in some way. Let wise, faithful, humble men who are able to stand in defence of the cause be sent there, and victory is ours.

I am at the disposal of conference, subject only to conditions which will be explained to those having oversight.

Elder Columbus Scott, President of Seventy, present, reports:

By you at the session of Conference of April, 1885, I was continued in the eastern mission, under the direction of Elder W. H. Kelley. After having visited briefly at Cameron, Missouri, and Lamoni, Iowa, and preaching twice at either place, I passed directly on to my field of labor, and entered upon the duties required of me at once. From May 15th to June 25th I labored continuously in the vicinity of Lansing, Michigan, occupying at three or four different points. Through the labor done there then the work received renewed impetus, and good resulted; and by labor done since by others the work there has continued to move onward until now a great and effectual door is opened to the gospel, and a number have embraced the faith, and others are believing. After having attended the Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana district conference, held at Coldwater, Michigan, June 27th to 29th, I labored for a season in the Coldwater, Michigan, and Clear Lake, Indiana, branches and their vicinities, having the company, counsel and encouragement of President W. H. Kelley. About the middle of August I held a five evenings' discussion at Ray, Indiana, with the Rev. Wylie, of the Reformed Presbyterian church, touching the faith and claims of the Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints, and some who attended the debate have since obeyed the gospel as renewed. By direction of Elder Kelley, on the 15th of September I left Michigan for the New England States, to respond in part to the numerous calls for labor there. What labor I was able to do while east, was confined to a few points in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. I like the east as a field for missionary work very much. I felt at home with the Saints there, and feel confident that a great work can be done there with proper labor. But to the intense regret of the Saints, and a sad disappointment to myself, the decline of my health compelled me to vacate the field some months prior to the time I had expected to return west. The cause is gaining in influence and favor with the people in New England, through the earnest efforts of the ministry and the lives of the Saints, and I shall be glad when wisdom directs my return to labor in the vineyard there. After coming to Iowa in December, and resting up slightly, with the consent of President J. R. Lambert and the request of Saints of St. Joseph, Missouri, I labored there for a short time; also at two other points in Missouri.

I have been blessed with the liberty of the Spirit of God in declaring the word, and the administration of the gospel ordinances; have baptized fourteen, and confirmed ten, blessed a number of children, and administered to the sick with God's blessing attending in many instances. I believe I have done the best I could under the circumstances. I desire as intensely as ever the prosperity of the great cause, and as strongly hope in its ultimate triumph. I trust the "Spirit of wisdom and revelation" may direct your investigations, councils and deliberations relative to the work.

Elder R. J. Anthony, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since your last session there has been some notable changes in affairs. The United States courts have waged a relentless warfare upon the polygamists, and still continue. Many have been convicted, and it is reported that there is now over fifty serving out sentences for unlawful cohabitation and polygamy, in the penitentiary in Utah.

The churchmen in Utah look upon it as persecution, and in consequence the bitterest feeling prevails against the Government officials and all who favor the execution of the laws.

No one of late has met with so much opposition there as the representatives of the Reorganized church. They (the Utah church) charge us directly with being responsible for much of the difficulties they are passing through.

Joseph Smith and Joseph Luff arrived in Utah last June, and immediately began an effective work by preaching a number of discourses in Salt Lake City. From there they traveled in Utah, Idaho and Montana, in every place creating great interest. Bro. Joseph was the center of attraction and the target of the church party. Every paper controlled by it literally teemed with warnings to the people to beware of him and the church he represented, with all manner of false accusations and representations. Everything that could possibly be used to prejudice the people against him and the church was employed. The letters of Ephraim Peterson, and W. W., of Michigan, were made to do service, as well as one from the pen of Zenas H. Gurley, published in the Deseret News. As an individual I very much regretted, knowing that the writer had labored in the same difficult field, representing the same church, faith and order we were, and stood pledged together with J. W. Briggs as apostles, in that body to defend. See their challenge to O. Pratt and D. M. Wells, December 1st, 1874. In the fourth proposition they agreed to "show that Joseph Smith is the rightful successor of his father in the presidency of the church." And in the fifth proposition they propose to prove "That the Reorganization over which Joseph Smith, (son of Joseph Smith) presides, is the true and only Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," and in evidence they were to take the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine Covenants, and Church history from 1830 to 1844. President Joseph Smith was only representing the body in Utah that Bro. Gurley once said he had the right by the law of God to do. We felt sad when we read his letter in the News. All these things were used against Joseph and his co-workers. By the blessing of God Joseph's visit to Utah did great good. It established in the minds of many that the Reorganized Church was a fact and would ultimately triumph.

He laid an everlasting foundation, and made many friends for the cause. No one can estimate the work that has been done in the few months. Many are pledged to the cause when the crisis fully comes. To my mind this is the most favorable time for the Reorganized church to make a manly stand there. To weaken now would be suicidal. A goodly number have been baptised, and I am confident we should as a body be prepared to take advantage of developments that will surely come.

Bro. Jos. C. Clapp has done and is now doing a splendid work in Montana. Bro. Joseph Luff and Peter Anderson have done just splendid work in Utah and Idaho. I would earnestly recommend that all these brethren be retained in the Rocky Mountain Mission, and that Brother Joseph spend as much time in that field as wisdom and the work may demand. In my judgment his presence will be required there; if not now, in the near future.

I would further recommend that western Wyoming, from Cheyenne or Laramie City west, be included in the Rocky Mountain Mission. My reason for thus recommending, is that up to the last April Conference it was so included, besides, there is a large body of people living immediately on the borders of Idaho and Utah, part of Bear Lake Valley, Rock Springs, Carbon, Green River City, and Evanston, on the line of the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line railroads; all points easy of access to those that labor in the Rocky Mountain Mission. We have some members in all those places, except Evanston. In Lander City there are several members. At the last April session Wyoming was included in Brother James Caffall's field. I don't ask this because the field is not large enough, but believe it to be a matter of economy, as it is a long distance from Cheyenne to Rock Springs, or Evanston, and these points are easy of access and almost directly connected with our work in Utah.

In my travels from September until I left Salt Lake City, the 21st of December, I found in many places a kindly feeling towards the church, and especially in Idaho. We now have many calls in Idaho and all along the line of the Utah and Northern R. R., from Ogden, Utah, to Montana. We have members in most all the settlements, besides friends in all the places of note on the line where openings can be made. In the last year I have done the best I could under the circumstances; have baptised twenty-three and organized the Oxford Branch (or partly did so) with eighteen members. Since then Bro. Luff has fully organized it.

The prospects in the Rocky Mountain Mission now are fine; and I believe it more firmly planted than ever. I feel confident that the better day has dawned upon the Reorganized Church. The golden opportunity is now at hand when we may be clearly recognized by our Nation as loyal citizens and the conservators of a pure and apostolic faith. "I will visit and soften their hearts, many of them, for your good, that ye may find grace in their eyes; that they may come to the light of truth, and the Gentiles to the exaltation or lifting up of Zion." This is the promise made; and again, "That men may discern between the righteous and the wicked, saith your God." Whether I remain in that field or not I want to see the church make a strong defence in that land for the right. I am at your service. Praying for the good Spirit to direct you, and the redemption of Zion.

Elder B. V. Springer, of the Seventy, present, reports:

By the advice and consent of the First Presidency, I have labored for the last five months. As to the good that may have resulted I leave for others to state. I feel at peace with my brethren and all mankind; am assured of the divinity of the work, and of my calling, and have as great a desire to magnify it as ever before. Am willing to labor anywhere asking only that my companion be cared for. For myself I ask nothing but the confidence and prayers of my brethren in Christ.

Elder I. N. Roberts, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have labored in the South-Western Mission, under the direction of our worthy brother, Heman C. Smith, as per action of last Conference. Have been blessed the greater part of the time in preaching the word; have opened up some new places that will soon prove an ingathering of souls to the kingdom of God. The South-Western Mission is large and needs more laborers. I have many calls,—can not fill half of them and keep up the places that are now opened and are ready to join in with the people of God. I have baptised sixteen during the past year, blessed seven children, administered to the sick with God's blessing attending the administration. My heart is in this work and I am ready to labor to the honor and glory of God. I have in my possession letters from the south wanting me to return soon after Conference, saying they want to join the church. May God bless his servants with power from above that they may all go forth crying repentance to this generation, is my prayer. I am still ready for the battle.

Elder G. T. Griffiths, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since the April Conference of 1885, I have endeavored to discharge the duties of my office and calling as a representative of your honorable body. Have been greatly aided by the divine Spirit in all of my administrations, for which blessing I feel very grateful to the giver of all good. There were never brighter prospects for the church than now, in the parts where I have been privileged to raise the standard of the gospel. I think it would be good policy for this conference to send twenty-five or thirty of the ministry to the Eastern Mission; the great multitudes of people, their intelligence, the power that the press wields should all be considered at this juncture. It should be borne in mind that Satan has a stronger hold in the East than in any other part of United States; as infidelity, spiritualism, and various forms of religion have their main forces centered here; hence, where the greatest amount of sin abounds we should have the greatest number of the ministry, as the object of the gospel is to call sinners to repentance, not the righteous. If it is the object of Christ and his church to tear down the strongholds of the adversary, wisdom suggests that we strike at the very foundation.

I have baptised forty-three, confirmed thirty, blest nineteen children, ordained two Priests and one Teacher, raised up and organized two branches. There has been upwards of seventy-five additions by baptism to the Pittsburg District the last year, over which I still preside. I have opened up a number of new places with fair prospects of branches being raised up providing preaching is continued within the ensuing year.

The Saints of the East are anxious that Bro. W. H. Kelley be continued in charge of his former mission. Bro. M. H. Forscutt's labor in the city of Pittsburg, Pa., resulted in much good. I am still willing to continue in the field providing you consider me worthy to be sustained.

Elder J. L. Bear, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Having had no conference appointment, and my time being occupied to labor for the daily necessities of life, I have very little or no report to make, except that I tried my best through the medium of the pen to instruct and strengthen the few scattered Saints in Switzerland, Europe. Several of the little flock have passed away into the life beyond, a few live faithful to the covenants they have made; while others are in a weak condition, and from some I have never heard since I left there. As a whole, the work is in a languishing condition, especially so, as the one who was appointed to have the oversight over them for the time being, gave way under the pressure of trials and persecutions and consequently betrayed his trust and lost the faith, believing also the story, which is circulated there, that David Whitmer, the last witness to the Book of Mormon has denied his testimony. So you see how the devil is busy in carrying falsehood all over the earth, while the spreading of the truth goes so slow and is so seldom believed.

I hope and trust the church will take all this into consideration and see that the news of the mission field may be supplied, to reclaim if possible those who have gone astray, and to waken up the sleepy ones, yea to carry on the work which was commenced there.

The apostate church in Utah still keeps that country supplied with their emissaries, notwithstanding their troubles with the government, as much as I have learned from there at the present time, with some of them I am personally acquainted.

My faith in the latter day work is as strong as it ever was, and I shall consider no sacrifice to great for me, (that is in accordance with the will of God), to labor for the cause of Christ wherever it may be.

Elder J. C. Foss, of the Seventy, present, reports:

At your last session I was appointed to labor under E. C. Briggs in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northern Illinois. I could not reach my field of labor until June 20th, I arrived at Detroit City, Minnesota. While there I preached in eleven places, baptized six. From there I went to Chicago, Illinois. Preached two Sundays there. Being a stranger in that part of the country, and not knowing where the most good could be done, as I felt that I had no time to waste, as I lay in my bed, asking my Master where I should go, the Spirit said to me, Go to Plano. I answered, They have had the heads of the church there for years, and the people must have a good understanding of the gospel, and why should I spend my time there and accomplish nothing. The Spirit said again, "Go to Plano." Knowing the voice of the Good Shepherd, I went. Preached twenty-eight sermons; the result was twenty-one were baptized. Preached twenty-five times in Sandwich, baptized three. Spoke at Streator several times and baptized one. Visited the Mission Branch and Piper City. Had good liberty and freedom of spirit in all of those places. Was kindly looked after and cared for by all of the Saints and friends. Baptized in all thirty-six; blessed seven children, solemnized one marriage. In my travels have found a good class of Saints whose faith is strong in the unfailling word. If the missionaries that labor among them will live a godly life and set a good example, good can be done, and I am satisfied that God will give a good harvest. O how essential it is for the servants of Christ to adorn their profession with a well ordered life; show to the world and the people of God that they are the generals under the direction of God to lead Israel aright, and to show the world of mankind how to follow Jesus our loved Master. We ask the world to obey the law of God, should we not be the first to observe it. Our cause is a just one from the fact it is of God, and we as representatives should be just, and walk by faith. My desire to see the glorious gospel win its way in the earth is stronger now than ever before. I pray God that he will call and send those that will make the sacrifice, and care not for the darts of the foe.

Elder W. T. Bozarth, of the Seventy, present, reports:

At your last spring's session I was appointed to labor in Northern Iowa and Minnesota. After making the necessary preparations, started on my mission, stopping first in Iowa in the String Prairie and Nauvoo District, where I labored until in July. Bro. J. C. Foss and others in Minnesota thought that for the present I had better stay in Iowa, which I did as advised by the president of the mission. I have labored in Montrose, Keokuk, Farmington in eastern Iowa, with good liberty and satisfaction to myself, being greatly blessed of the Lord. I found many excellent Saints there who were trying to live their profession. I went into the Des Moines District and labored in connection with Bro. W. C. Nirk, president of district, and also Brn. J. S. Roth and R. Etzenhouser, whom I found diligently striving to build up the cause of Christ. I labored at Des Moines, Runnels, Rhodes, Collins, Newton, Olivet and other places. I found in this district many splendid Saints, and those that are willing to make any reasonable sacrifice for the cause they love. I found some fine openings in this district for the preaching of the word. By the request of the president of the district I spent considerable of my time in laboring in branches, assisting to adjust difficulties, and I feel that by the aid and the counsel of the president of the mission, a better feeling prevails and the district is in a better condition than before. Have baptized one, confirmed two, and blessed a number of children. I can say that I have never enjoyed better liberty since I have been in the field than I have this year. My health has hindered me some, but not like last year. I feel better now and think I am on the gain steadily, and that by proper care and the blessing of God I will be entirely restored to health as promised. I have not done the amount of labor I desired to do on account of financial depression, but suppose that the Bishop aided all he could under the circumstances. I still love the great work and desire to do all I can for its advancement.

Elder M. T. Short, of the Seventy, present, reports:

In taking a retrospect of the outgoing missionary cycle we discover that we have ranged over an extensive field. Several states have been the broad arena of our action, and baptisms have been administered by your humble servant in the following, viz: Iowa twenty-four, Illinois nine, Missouri four, and Arkansas two. Knowing the depleted condition of the treasury at our last sittings, I have got along this year without appealing to that quarter for aid. My financial succor has come from districts, branch funds, and private donations. Private giving and receiving, as also allowing collections, have been discouraged by some high in authority. The last time I got help from the worthy bishop the amount was advanced from his private purse.

If any are inclined to think strange of our rambling far and near, the explanation is—I had to do so or cease to labor altogether. It is not my custom to "pass round the hat," but I never interfere where it is the custom. I would refuse a gift if it would beggar the giver or his dependences. The ones that are first to say "why do you not go for the church coffers," are the last to place the "nimble nickel" there. The domestic animals knoweth "his master's crib," but what good is the crib without the cribbing? This, my home district, has not placed an average of thirty cents per day, in the hands of our agent within a decade of years, and some of the adjacent districts are little or no better. I, here, as a soldier, a herdsman, or an husbandman was forced to go elsewhere, or incur indebtedness while preaching. We will not murmur or complain, but hope our rights will be more accurately defined.

To illustrate the dilemma. Complaints were made of a missionary that would hint around, or make his wants known. They informed me that such was not the way to do business, and gave me some quite unnecessary intimations. My heart has been made glad in the pleasing service, and my tongue has been unloosed in proclaiming the good news. Through all my ministrations it has been my steadfast aim to strengthen the weak, encourage the disconsolate, comfort the feeble minded and maintain good will and right rule. Many are too sensitive for their own happiness, or even usefulness. Official jealousy has not hindered as hitherto.

Prejudice, in the main, is on the wane, and effectual doors stand ajar throughout the land. Cities and large towns should be fairly besieged to affect the best good. Villages and the country reward our labor more readily. The opulent centers of commerce and trade are seats of learning and refinement. The devotees of sectarian Babylon, and the pleasure loving world congregate there. The highways of fashionable society glitter in facinating splendor. The doctrine of the lowly Nazarene is greatly retarded or completely hindered by pride, pomp and power.

The large majority of those immersed by my hands were instructed by pious parents, or by fellow servants. We have sown with a liberal hand, and fondly trust the fruit will appear in due season. We attended the Park Bluff meeting, and the reunion at Galland's Grove, where we heard some of the best, if not the very best, preaching that ever saluted the ears or thrilled happy hearts. Our "mite" was cast in at quarterly conferences, held at Buffalo Prairie, Rock Creek, Millersburg, Burlington, Independence, St. Joseph and Kewanee. The local ministry have cheerfully co-operated when they could, for which we make honorable mention, and give heart felt thanks. The Saints have not magnified my weaknesses, neither have we others imperfections. Help is needed in this great rich field, and we ask for a traveling companion in the person of C. Scott according to the spirit and letter of the law. Two witnesses can establish the truth, but more is preferred by both God and man. The onward march of our dear Redeemer's kingdom is gladdening. We hope, and verily believe it will widen and deepen until the great consummation, and wish to contribute our strength and life to said truth and righteousness through all the glad earth.

Elder Thomas Taylor, President of the English Mission, writes from Birmingham, England:

It affords me great pleasure to report to you the condition of the work in this the English Mission. It is still onward and prospering. The outlook for the future is good. Our meetings are well attended, and the more intelligent and thinking class seem more willing to investigate, although we have not added as many by baptism as we could have wished. The past year political movements have been so rampant that it has taken the attention of all classes so that they have had no time to think of religion.

We have some men in England who have shown the white feather and left Utah to evade the law. I went to their meeting one evening and herd Daniel H. Wells and C. H. Penrose. They were telling their dupes the same old story of persecution. They shun us of the Reorganization as if we were adders. There is no chance of approaching them. It is only time and the downfall of Utahism that will convince them. We believe that the mission of brother Joseph to Utah was a step in the right direction, the fruit of which will be seen after many days. We deeply regretted the death of our aged and worthy brother, J. Ells. He was much respected in this country by all who knew him, and we often think how he and others who opened this mission would have rejoiced could they see it as it now stands. I think they would feel well repaid for the sacrifices they then made.

We are now anxiously looking forward to the time when Bro. Joseph Smith will pay us a visit. I am sure he would be a welcome visitor, and it would do us all good. We held our District Conference in Birmingham two weeks ago, and it was really gratifying to see the zeal and good desires, together with the good spiritual understanding of the brethren; and I believe that one and all have a desire to do all possible to help roll on the work they all value so well. We have some noble young men in this mission who stand shoulder to shoulder with the old ones, and although there is not much seen through the Herald about England, we are not dead. Want of time is the reason you do not see more.

Times are very bad in England, owing to the low state of trade, but I am thankful to say that the Saints generally have not suffered materially from it.

Elder C. H. Caton, Secretary of the English Mission, writes from Birmingham, England:

At the annual conference of this Mission, held at Sheffield, May 23d to 25th, 1885, I was instructed to present the views of the Saints generally in this country on the condition of the work here; also that should Elder Thomas Taylor consent to remain in charge of this mission, to request your honorable body to sustain him.

With regard to the condition of the church in this country, it is in a very good condition. During the past year two new branches have been organized, viz.: Nottingham and Leeds, while in Wales, through the efforts of Saints removed from Nottingham, a branch has been organized at Cardiff. We progress slowly, but we hope, surely. The best of feeling exists among us, and we feel determined to continue in doing our best to spread the gospel of peace. The unanimous opinion of our conference was, that so long as Bro. Taylor has the confidence of the Saints comprising the mission, and as he is willing to retain the charge, the General Conference be requested to sustain him in charge.

It is now twelve years since Bro. T. Taylor was appointed, for the second time, in charge of this mission, during which time it has made a continuous forward march. Only those who know anything of its condition then can form any adequate opinion of the importance of the work in this country to-day in comparison to what it was then. As one who has been associated with him about fifteen years in the work, I have no hesitation in saying that no one with less patience and integrity could have borne the charge so well. By his patience and integrity he has been able to command and retain the respect of all the Saints who know him. He has the full confidence of the priesthood in this country, and is nobly and ably assisted by as powerful company of preachers as could be desired. I could name thirty or more men ranging in age from twenty to fifty years who would be a credit to any society in the world for intelligence, prudence, uprightness and respectability, who are also able exponents of the faith of Jesus Christ. We have no lack of able preachers; what we lack is opportunity for preaching. We make as many as we can, and always embrace those that present themselves. When we get rich enough to hire more halls we do not doubt but we shall be able to present the gospel of Christ more effectively. There is no burning question on in the mission that should require your advising the church to send some one to take the oversight of the same; therefore we respectfully submit that the best interest of the church at large, and of this the English Mission in particular, in our opinion, would be best promoted by sustaining Bro. Thomas Taylor in charge.

As no doubt you have observed from the published minutes of our last conference, there was set on foot a move to get the President, Joseph Smith, over in this country. We are of the opinion that a visit from him after the manner of his visit to Utah would accomplish more good to the cause in this mission than sustaining any missionary in the field for two or three years would do. If your honorable body will give this suggestion your consideration we shall esteem it a favor.

Elder J. C. Clapp, of the Seventy, writes from Deer Lodge, Montana:

At your last assembly I was appointed to labor in Montana and Idaho, which I have tried to do to the best of my ability. My labors have been confined to Montana, but I have the assurance that most of my labors have been well spent. I have preached in this valley and vicinity and in the Gallatin valley, over one hundred discourses. I have baptized six and blessed several children, and have officiated in other ordinances agreeable to my calling as an Elder, whenever called upon. I have enjoyed my mission work very much of late, having been assured that a glorious victory is ours if we faint not. I am in the hands of the Master, and am willing to work for the glory of his name.

EPISTLE OF THE TWELVE.

LAMONI, IOWA, April 19th, 1886.

To the Saints in all the world; Greeting:—The Annual General Conference, for the year 1886, has just closed, which was fruitful in accomplished results that portend good to the Reorganized Church of Christ. The church has awakened to the realization that, in order to succeed, she must work in harmony with the text books—not only in profession, but in fact, giving credence and recognition to the authority upon which rests the watchcare and supervision of the work abroad. For the want of this recognition, and a proper unity so clearly set forth in the law (concerning which a special admonition was given in the revelation of 1882) the work of the Reorganization has been greatly retarded. The proper recognition of each quorum in its place, with the rights, duties and privileges of the members belonging thereto, should long since have been conceded by all; but unfortunately, this has not been the case. Each one has held his or her private construction of the law and its meaning, to please an aspiring mind, flatter a vain disposition, or gratify an envious and jealous feeling, which has worked as sour leaven for years, neutralizing, in some respects, the efforts of the best workers in the cause. It is cheering, however, to know that light has dawned upon the majority, and a better course is being pursued. Judging from the spirit, temper and accomplished results of the Conference, it is the settled purpose of the workers to eliminate this unsavory leaven from the body, discourage and discontinue the sowing of the seeds of discord, jealousy, envy, and mistrust, that have done their work so effectually, in some respects, in the past, and move straight forward in the right, and as the law direct. Reform is certainly needed in order to place us where we belong.

We deprecate any policy that makes the innocent bear half of the blame of the guilty in order to conciliate and effect a temporary reconciliation and peace; but believe that the wrong doer should be made to take the consequence of his act; and we are united in the purpose, as we have ever been, that neither flattery, nor fear shall divert us from this course. Some rigid discipline is needed in order to raise our moral tone as a people.

The reaffirming of the declaration of rules passed at Stewartville in 1884, bodes good to the work. Though containing only that which may be read in the law of the church, they have been received, by some, with suspicion and distrust; mainly from the fear, as expressed, of an abuse of power by those to whom they relate; but abuses are liable to arise in any department, and none can be more easily corrected than this one.

In order to bring them to mind anew, we quote as follows, 2d paragraph:

“Resolved that by virtue of their office and calling, as declared by the organic law of the church, the members of the quorum of the Twelve are the lawful presidents of the church, abroad in all the world, to preside over, regulate and set in order the same, and that in all the branches of the church, and districts, this presiding authority should be acknowledged and acquiesced in by the presidents of branches and districts. And when one of them is present, at a district conference or branch meeting, it should be left discretionary with him as to whether it would best serve the cause by presiding.”

3d.—“Resolved that the quorum of the Twelve, as a judicial body, have the right, collectively or individually, to render decisions involving the law and usages of the church, in their various fields of labor, and when such decisions are made by individual members of the quorum, said decisions are binding upon the church, and should be respected until brought before the quorum and its decision had.”

The President of the Church discerned at once that in these resolutions were found a proper rendering of the law relating to this question, and called the attention of the church to them in one of the ablest editorials that ever appeared in the Herald, found on page 305, No. 20, Vol. 31, from which the following is an extract:

“But the history of the reorganization shows that there was a wide rebound from the rule of priestcraft to one of entire disregard of all authority. Nor was it until every representative sent out by the church was made to feel how utterly fallacious his efforts to bring to pass unity and respect for the law of the church were, did those representative men feel the importance of the Master's word, ‘He who heareth you heareth me.’ There is no meaning attached to the conferring the calling of an apostle upon a man to the office (of an apostle) and sent out by the church, unless that man is so invested with the authority of the church that he may speak for the church, and carry with him the dignity and honor of the body which he represents. And much mischief has resulted in the past, and may result again if there be not somewhere the right of immediate and positive decision. The Twelve are essentially a traveling ministry, a presiding ministry at that; and are so because of their calling to travel, looking after the spread of the gospel and interests of the church. This includes the welfare of both the districts and branches in their respective fields; and while no member of the quorum may wantonly enter in upon the privileges of either district or branch presidents; yet he may, and must by virtue of his calling and appointment by the church, exercise that authority if necessity warrants, and this is because of a two-fold reason. First, because the organic law of the church invests him with such prerogative. Second, because he is by his appointment a part of each and every organized district and branch in his charge, and has his place at the lead by virtue of such appointment."

The decisions made by individuals of the quorum relate to the law, rules and usages of the church, rather than to cases had before Elders' Courts, which may be appealed for final settlement. The Quorum of the Twelve acting under the direction of the First Presidency, as the law defines, is the presiding authority in all the world; and this does not in the least interfere with the high prerogative and presiding authority of the First Presidency, who by a single tap of the bell may call home one or all of the Traveling High Councilors at a word! The churches abroad should not wait for members of this council, when traveling, to insist upon a recognition of their rights; but should cheerfully tender a recognition from courtesy and respect for the office, if nothing more, in order that they may administer successfully and aid the work wherever they may be sent. Having been appointed by divine commandment and the common consent of the church to these positions, the keys of authority and the First Presidency are represented through them, more than any others, to all the world.

Why this was ever questioned and necessity laid upon us to defend our rights before antagonizing accusations, is passing strange; and it is only with a view that unity may be attained, and the best interest of the cause subserved that we dwell upon it now.

The Quorum has been weakened in numbers by the death of Bro. Josiah Ells, and the withdrawal of brethren J. W. Briggs and Z. H. Gurley. The withdrawal was for reasons assigned, which will appear in full in the minutes, with the answers made by the conference, which are able and to the point, and may be read with profit by the thoughtful. We sadly regret these losses to our number, for the work's sake, but do not feel like slackening our efforts and support to the work. At no time have we had pleasanter sessions, or acted more in unity, than at the sessions just passed, the Spirit's presence encouraging us and giving evidence of God's approval. However well or poorly others succeeded, there was not so much as a ripple of bad feeling occurred among the members of the quorum at the recent conference; and we go out in amity and one accord to another year's labor, confident that God is yet at the helm. May grace and peace be with his Saints every where.

A large number of Elders were called into the Quorum of Seventy at the past session of conference, which will augment the working force in the ministerial field. This is as it should be; but we must wait for further direction, perhaps another year, for instruction to go on with organization of quorums until complete. Though some may be anxious, we must wait God's time, which will be our opportunity, and not faint by the way. The appointment of these Seventy, together with others, as they now go to their several fields of labor, suggests that there is work for all. They must preach, the church must meet some of the expense. We can not do better, perhaps, than to quote from Saints' Herald, May 13th, 1883, page 209. "The question of tithing, in its practical sense, may be considered settled so far as applicable to the present condition. One impediment (perhaps the chief one) to the effectual execution of this law, is found in the want of that confidence that ought to exist among Saints. This is due to the fact that imposition has been, and still is in practice under the name and profession of Latter Day Saints; this being one of the iniquities comprised in the "flood" against which the Spirit of the Lord raised a standard in the reorganization of his people, will the Saints withhold the sustaining of this standard because of former misrule, against which this is a standing rebuke? If too confident then shall we go to the other extreme now? To you, brethren, belong a full share of every legitimate burden, and also the full reward of well doing." As a means governing in this duty we refer you to the action of the Twelve and Bishopric, as found in Herald for May 1st, 1878, part of which we give below.

"PRINCIPLES AND RULES OF ACTION.

1. "We believe the duty of the Twelve to be to teach the law of tithing, viz: Explaining to the church the necessity, and the mode of complying therewith, in order that the financial interests of the church shall be properly supported, and that they may receive tithing and forward the same to the Bishop, who is the acknowledged treasurer of the church, or to his appointed agents.

2. "That it is devolvent upon the Bishopric and their authorized agents, (such agents to be Elders), to travel among the churches from time to time, to teach the law of, and collect tithing and free-will offerings, and see that the financial interests of the church are duly cared for, and the wants of the poor duly administered to, and use their best and earnest endeavors to keep the ministry in the field, as appointed by General Conference, especially the members of the Quorum of the Twelve and of the Seventy, and to see to it that the families of such receive proper support.

3. "That officers in charge of missions appointed by General Conference, receive necessary support in the prosecution thereof, from the agents of the Bishop in said missions, and that said agents in the disbursing of moneys be not subject to the direction of district conferences, or branches, (yet said conferences may advise or recommend), but should make itemized reports to said conferences, who may audit and approve the same, and said reports as certified to, be forwarded to the Bishop.

4. "And that in all missions where there is no agent to represent the Bishop, the officer in charge of said mission may receive tithing and free-will offerings, and use such sums as shall be considered necessary for said mission, keeping an account thereof, together with the names of persons from whom received, and forward a quarterly account thereof, together with whatever moneys may remain in his hands as a residue, and not needed by him, to the Bishop; and upon receipt thereof, the Bishop should enter the same upon his books, crediting and debiting the church with said amounts, received and paid out, together with the names of those from whom received, and to whom paid; and that all such itemized reports be published by the Bishop from time to time with his regular reports.

5. "In all missions where the officer in charge can not consult with the agent, (though one may have been appointed thereto), he may receive tithing and free-will offerings and use the same, (as herein before provided for in Article 5, of Basis of Adjustment), or only part thereof for said mission, accounting therefor to the agent and to the Bishop in his quarterly reports."

In the appointment of missions, as in all other work which has been required at our hands, we have acted according to the best wisdom received. We have had none to favor and none to oppose; and nothing, save a deep sense of the grave responsibilities which rest upon us, and our love for God's work, could have induced us to reject any from the missionary list.

Each year, each day, brings its anxieties, duties and sacrifices. The Saints are to be tried. To be a Saint is to wage a warfare until the end. Soon the Master will come with the reward of merit. May we be ready to meet him. Go on and be comforted, and may the blessings of God attend you.

HISTORY OF THE REORGANIZATION OF THE CHURCH.

BY ZENAS H. GURLEY, SEN.

Dated at Blanchardville, La Fayette County, Wisconsin,
October 23d, 1859.

THE Church here having publicly renounced Strang and acknowledged the "Lineal rights" of the Seed of Joseph, thought best, as several of our brethren were living at Beloit and in its vicinity, to appoint a conference at that place. Accordingly, the first conference held by us was at the Newark Branch, on the 12th and 13th of June, A. D. 1852. I was appointed by the church here, a delegate to that conference. Just before leaving this place, I called on a brother whose whole household had embraced the gospel, and who was mighty in faith before God. A circumstance occurred that I will now relate, to show the faith was then among us. The weather had turned extremely cold, and all realized that the crops, especially the corn, must inevitably be destroyed, unless divine aid interposed; therefore, when we gathered around the family altar for evening prayer, all unitedly asked God to protect the crops, and ere we closed we felt assured that our prayers were heard, and the next day proved that indeed they were not only heard but answered; for though the weeds alongside were frozen stiff, yet the crops were preserved. This was the degree of faith that God was pleased to give this church at its commencement. The next day I proceeded on to the Newark Branch. Conference was organized on the 12th of June, agreeable to previous appointment, choosing Jason W. Briggs to preside. A good share of the first day was occupied in discussing the subject of the priesthood. A series of resolutions, those that are found in the beginning of our first pamphlet entitled "A word of consolation to the scattered Saints" (c) were then and there

(c) "Resolved, That this conference regard the pretensions of Brigham Young, James J. Strang, James C. Brewster, and William Smith and Joseph Wood's joint claims to the leadership of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, as an assumption of power, in violation of the law of God, and consequently we disclaim all connection and fellowship with them.

"Resolved, That the successor of Joseph Smith, Junior, as the Presiding High Priest in the Melchisedec Priesthood, must of necessity be of the seed of Joseph Smith, junior, in fulfillment of the law and promises of God.

"Resolved, That, as the office of First President of the Church grows out of the authority of the Presiding High Priest in the high priesthood, no person can legally lay claim to the office of First President of the Church without a previous ordination to the presidency of the high priesthood.

"Resolved, That we recognize the validity of all legal ordinations in this Church, and will fellowship all such as have thus been ordained while acting within the purview of such authority.

"Resolved, That we believe that the Church of Christ, organized on the 6th day of April A. D., 1830, exists as on that day wherever six or more Saints are organized according to the pattern of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

"Resolved, That the whole law of the Church of Jesus Christ is contained in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants.

"Resolved, That, in the opinion of this conference, there is no Stake to which the Saints on this continent are commanded to gather at the present time, but that the Saints on all other lands are commanded to gather to this land preparatory to the re-establishment of the Church in Zion, when the scattered Saints on this land will also be commanded to gather and return to Zion, and to their inheritances, in fulfillment of the promises of God; and it is the duty of the Saints to turn their hearts and their faces towards Zion, and supplicate the Lord for such deliverance.

"Resolved, That we will, to the extent of our ability and means, communicate to all the scattered Saints the sentiments contained in the foregoing resolutions.

"Resolved, That this conference believe it the duty of the Elders of this Church, (who have been legally ordained), to cry repentance and remission of sins to this generation, through obedience to the gospel, as revealed in the record adopted. There was a very good attendance from different parts of Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin. Conference adjourned to meet at the Yellow Stone Branch, Wis., the sixth of the next October following.

From the close of this conference until the next, in October, nothing occurred unusual to Saints. They almost invariably enjoyed the gifts and blessings of the gospel, and were bound together in the bonds of love and peace. During the summer several were added to the church. On the sixth of October conference met pursuant to adjournment, and was organized by choosing Jason W. Briggs to preside and Samuel Blair as Clerk.

On the third day the following resolution with the annexed amendment, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That, in the opinion of this conference, the one holding the highest priesthood in the Church of God is to preside and represent the rightful heir to the presidency of the high priesthood:

AMENDMENT, Resolved, That the highest authority among the priesthood represents the legitimate authority in a presiding capacity.

The copy of the pamphlet entitled: "A Word of Consolation to the Scattered Saints" was then read, and on motion the conference ordered two thousand copies of the same to be printed. On motion conference adjourned to meet April 6th, 1853.

The resolution, with its amendment, may be considered by some as of little consequence. Yet by careful examination it will be seen that he who represents the "rightful heir" does so in a presiding capacity, and not as "Seer, Revelator, Translator and Prophet." While the resolution and amendment were being prepared by the Council, and before the conference knew anything concerning the matter, the Spirit said that the resolution which the Council were then preparing should remain a law until the prophet came.

As it now had become a law to the church that the one holding the highest priesthood should represent the "legal heir" in a presiding capacity, it became of the Jews, the Book of Mormon, and Book of Doctrine and Covenant, and not faint in the discharge of duty."

Of this the first conference of the Reorganized Church, Elder Jason W. Briggs wrote as follows:

"At this conference, the gifts were abundantly enjoyed, and the Saints were greatly strengthened and assured of the triumph of the work of restoration to the old paths. Also, during these meetings, we were forewarned of the war between the South and the North, its sanguinary character and its extent; also, the success of the North was portrayed in all the vivid exactness of the subsequent history of the civil war."

"From this conference the Elders returned to their homes and fields of labor with a deeper sense of responsibility and a more determined purpose to hold up the standard of Christ, raised anew by the Spirit's power, which manifested from time to time that we should organize in preparation for the re-establishment of the Quorums and First Presidency of the Church, according to the pattern in the Book of Covenants. But how this was to be brought about no one presumed to know."

necessary that we should know who among us held the highest priesthood.

This was a difficult task. Some had been ordained Apostles, and some Seventies under Wm. Smith. Some had been ordained by Strang and other pretenders. One of the brethren presented himself before the Council as an Apostle, having been ordained to that office under Wm. Smith. The question arose at once, Is that ordination legal? It was discussed at length, and until all became satisfied that their own wisdom was not very valuable and concluded to dismiss the subject, hoping that by the next conference they would be better prepared to decide the matter.

The reader will recollect that the conference had ordered 2,000 copies of our pamphlet to be published. While making the arrangements for publication, several among us became satisfied that our views on polygamy had not been set forth as clearly as they ought to have been. We thought as we had come together for prayer meeting we would bring the matter before the church and ask the Lord for instruction, knowing that the voice of the Spirit is the voice of God, and that whatsoever the Spirit testifies to any individual is the law of God to him.

Correspondence.

ALLISTON, Ont., April 1st.

Dear Herald:—As I read of the appreciation of others who read your soul cheering columns, I too, wish to express a word not being lacking in due appreciation of your value. The Herald is indeed improving steadily in selection of matter and in matter itself, which to me betokens the growing in grace of the managers and of the work itself so as to furnish constant material. I am striving to keep the word before the people all the time; for since last January I have preached every night, except on Saturday, in two new places; and the result is that from the country round comes the constant cry, "Come to Reddickville, Shelborne, Honeywood, and other places where I have not been able to reach, because of the continued interest in the places where I have been. I can not begin to fill the invitations, and I am thankful that along with the good interest manifested, I have been very much blessed in preaching the word and have had lucid views given me by the guiding Spirit to a better understanding on some things. As a sample, when controverted lately by an individual as to the apostacy of the primitive church, I was given the following view: Jesus, as a man, was born of woman and lived for a time, and by persecution his living body was put to death; after three days an angel came and rolled away the rock from the door of the sepulcher and the body of Jesus rose from the dead. And as the church is called the body of Christ, that body came into existence as an exact type or ante-type of his literal body, and after being organized the body of Christ (the church) died too, like the Lord himself; and John, in Revelations 14:6, saw another angel come down from heaven and virtually rolled away the rock from the door and let the body come forth, by having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth; so that the body of Christ (the church) is again with men; and as even his own disciples doubted his being alive, yet they were convinced on seeing the sign in his hands and feet and side. So to-day many professed disciples may, if they will, see by the signs in the body having the identical organization, the same doctrine as before it died, (by apostasy) the same spirit that was in the body (church) before death is the same spirit that quickened the body and brought about the restoration (or resurrection). Another view I had some time ago on baptism when it had been questioned, and I challenged to prove that Jesus was buried in baptism. By referring to Matthew 3: 16, Mark 1: 10, "Jesus came up straightway out of the water," &c., although it does not use the words buried in baptism in the two texts referred to, yet in Rom. 6: 1-6, and in Col. 2: 12, it does say emphatically, "we are buried with him in baptism;" which we could not be if he was not buried in baptism. For it does not say we are buried in baptism because he was buried in the tomb, but because he was buried in baptism; therefore we that are baptized into Jesus Christ, i. e. the church, are buried with him in baptism; not in sorrow, nor afflictions, but in the same kind of baptism in which he was baptized so as occasion his coming up straightway out of the water.

I hope and pray for a peaceful and blessed convention at Conference; and my further hope is, that the time has or may have arrived when that unity of faith and better understanding on points of doctrine may have come in which the first quorums may be more fully filled. I am absent in body, but my prayers, and the desires of my spirit are with you. While absent with my wife from home since December last, some evil disposed persons took the liberty of burglarizing my house, taking everything of the best value away, leaving us almost destitute of bedding and nearly everything except the furniture and wall pictures. This is going to tell very hard against me financially, and I fear will cripple my usefulness in the field; but the good Lord has ever opened a door heretofore, and I trust him still; and console myself with the example of good old Job, who lost everything he had but hope, and life, and God. I also realize that I am better off yet in temporal possessions than our dear Lord, who had no where to lay his head. One thing that makes me bear up under it is the resignation and patience my wife manifests, for I feared she would take it very hard, as we have a nice little cottage; so I am patient. No clue as yet to the parties nor the goods. I ask an interest in your prayers, and remain your brother in bonds,

J. A. McINTOSH.

GARLAND, Ala., March 27th.

Bro. Joseph:—On March 9th Bro. Montague arrived at this place from Tennessee and Kentucky. We were glad to see him. He is looking a little worse from the wear of a hard winter. His health is not so good as it was when he was here eighteen months ago. I went to work at once to procure a house for him to preach in in this place. I was denied the use of the M. E. Church. I was tendered the use of a vacant store room by the kindness of Dr. Peacock, to use as long as it was vacant. Commenced meetings there on the night of the 11th. He had delivered four discourses here and four at Pleasant Hill up to the night of the 21st. On the 22d he left for Monroe Co., Ala., in company with W. J. Booker. While here he had good congregations and splendid attention. We hope good was done. We need more preaching in this part of the mission. Plenty openings and people to hear. We pray that the Spirit of Christ may be with you in General Conference to give wisdom to direct the affairs of his church.

WAMEGO, Kan., April 20th.

Dear Herald:—I have just come fresh from the field of conflict, the field of Bro. W. J. Smith; famed, fresh with glory. On Thursday I hurried up my business in Kansas City. Just got to the train, and in a short time was shaking Bro. Willard's hand in Tiblo. He seemed as tickled as a boy with his first new pants with hip pockets in them. Alone to fight the prejudice of the Campbellite Church, except Bro. Cole of the Hedrickite branch to help him. I learned that he had been abused the night before, the speaker learning his road and taking his cue from that prince of blackguards, Clark Braden. I promised W. J. that if he (Ward) attempted anything of the kind, it would be lively for a little while at least. Before going to meeting the Spirit said to me, "Fear not; for I will bless my servant." So we took courage. Mr. Ward had not progressed far when "Impostor Jo" was mentioned. I guess Ward thought I was shot out of a gun, I had him stopped so quick, and ordered him to try and not use that language again, neither mention the name of Saint, Mormon, or Joseph Smith, as it was his (the Campbellite) church that was on trial, and no other. He turned pale, told the people that he was not going to be "scared by that fellow." Quicker than flash I was after him again, gave him to understand I was a gentleman and not a "fellow," and would compel him to be a gentleman. If he had not yet learned how, I would teach him. By this time the crowd was on our side, and from that time on whenever he would try to read anything out of any other work, the crowd would call "Bible, Bible," until I finally brought him to understand he had got hold of the wrong passenger for once. After this the debate ran smoothly until the end; but for the life of me I could not tell from what he presented what were the distinctive features of the Disciple Church.

After meeting we blessed a bottle of oil, administered to Bro. Cole, blessed his six children, and administered to his wife, took the train west, and at 1:30 retired in the Topeka Hotel; worked the road until Saturday afternoon, when I could not resist the temptation to go back to Bro. Smith. Bro. I. N. White was to be there, but I thought I must go back, so I went, and found that Mr. Ward had thought I was gone for good, and so he went at his slander again the night I was gone, and attempted it the second night, when I again brought him to time. From our argument I showed that if he had any objections to offer to what Bro. Smith presented he must show them from our own works and not from an enemy's. The Campbellites strongly objected to this, but we downed them. From this it seemed that Bro. Smith, just beat them; and all the argument that Mr. Ward could present was that because there was not the name president of the church in the New Testament, therefore W. J. Smith's church was not the Church of Christ; and because the man in the moon is not made of green cheese, therefore the church of which W. J. Smith is a member is not the Church of Christ. Bro. Smith presented the church in its order as it existed 1830 years ago, and affirmed that the church should be and was after that pattern, and defied a discrepancy to be shown by Mr. Ward. I stopped over until the debate was finished, feeling that the Lord will bless me in my business, equivalent to time lost. I could not leave Bro. Smith alone. The town is all torn up religiously. The people, especially the young men, are all on our side. As I left on the midnight train, the depot was full with young men to bid me good-bye, and gave me pressing invitations to return. We could not be treated kinder. When the meeting closed, there went up three cheers for Bro. Smith which could be heard over the hills. As long as he is humble, the interests of the church are safe in Bro. Smith's hands. Glory enough for one debate; many are investigating.

Dear Herald:—Having been invited by my father to write and express my feelings through the medium of your pages in regard to this glorious latter day work, with which I have the honor of being associated, although one of the weakest, I am striving to do the Master's will and keep his commandments. I have many trials and temptations in my everyday life; but thanks be to God, he has helped me to overcome them to a great extent, and I always feel there is some one to whom I can look up when danger is near, one who is ever willing to help me in the hour of need.

I thank my Father in heaven that he has enlisted me in the ranks of his army, also that it has pleased him to promote me to the office of a Priest, so that I can preach, teach, and expound his gospel to those who have not yet obeyed. Dear Herald, I ask for the prayers of your readers, that our heavenly Father will strengthen me and make me worthy of the office I hold, and that I may never bring discredit on the name of "Saint" by any actions of mine, but that I may go on striving to do His will unto the end, so that it may please him to number me amongst his host in the grand review, if not in a high position, at least as an armor bearer.

With love to all who are striving for the redemption of Zion, I humbly remain yours in the gospel of Christ,

J. DEWSNUP, JUN.

CANAAN, Indiana, April 18th.

Bro. Joseph:—Bro. M. R. Scott has been at this place; held three or four meetings. The opposition is stronger here than it has ever been before. When he was here before, they threatened to give him rotten eggs, but instead of giving him rotten eggs this time they gave him a key-hole full of shot. I got permission of a school house in a new place, east of here a mile or so; we held meeting one night and left an appointment for the next night, and when I went to open the door the key-hole was full of shot. It caused a division, and some went in and took the latch off and opened the door. It has thrown several in favor with us. I think that the work will boom up in the Southern Indiana District. The prospect is better at this place than it has been for some time,

We were challenged the other day by an Advent for a discussion on the organization and doctrine of the Church. We accepted the proposition and he backed out. My whole desire is that every Saint will put his shoulder to the wheel and help push this work along.

JAMES D. PORTER.

TIPTON, Iowa, May 2d.

Dear Herald:—In number nine, volume thirty-three, under the caption, "If I will," I find reference made to a passage from the Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 6. "For if I will, saith the Lord of Hosts, raise up seed unto me, I will command my people; otherwise they shall hearken unto these things." This passage has apparently been not only an instrument of subtle deceit in the hands of the wilful perverter of truth, but a stone of stumbling to many honest minded people outside and inside the Reorganized Church. The writer must confess to having been greatly puzzled and at a loss to find an explanation, without wresting the language out of its legitimate channels. Although I never could have seen any sanction in it of polygamy, for the gist of Jacob's prophetic utterances at that time were directed against this sin, which he denominates "your groseer crimes," "whoredoms, abominations," etc. Still it seemed obscure, ambiguous, and altogether unsatisfactory, until one day it all cleared up—unraveled as it were, (any Saint having a strong testimony of the truth of this glorious work, can realize how these things come), after this manner of interpretation. "If I will . . . raise up seed unto me, I will command my people." The Ancient Israel were not raised up, but fell through transgression of God's laws, the one commanding marital purity, especially. The Nephites fell also for the same causes; the Saints after Christ's time certainly fell away through lust and pride, else why the restoration? The Latter Day Saints nearly made shipwreck of faith through similar causes, and if the Reorganized Church is part of the "righteous branch" it will be because she submits to be "commanded" of Him who "wills" to raise up seed that shall be spotless and undefiled before the Father, instead of trusting in man, making flesh their arm, or as the foolish Nephites, making the example of David or Solomon an excuse for an interpretation of the scriptures that shall conform to the will of the flesh and the lusts thereof, in which case they may expect "hearken unto these things," viz, the thundering denunciation and rebuke of an offended and sin-aborring God, who will show to all nations that he is against the false shepherds of Israel" who, though they may esteem it a small thing to have drunk of the deep waters (power and knowledge of God) "must foul the residue (written word) with their (lecherous) feet."—Ezk. 34: 18.

To me this seemed lucid, and so satisfactory, that I am constrained to offer it to the Saints through your blessed columns, in hope that some weak one may be made more firm wherein they may have felt perplexed and troubled. I derive much light and strength from the articles in the Herald, and often while reading some truth in few, or many words, there will flash out in beautiful light, where before had been darkness impenetrable, accompanied by thrilling warmth, as waves of surging yet not consuming fire. What joy must be theirs who are gifted with open vision and the ministering of angels, when the very written words of inspiration touch us into responsive acknowledgment of their divine source!

"The Mothers' Home Column"—may heaven's choicest blessings fall to the noble souls who, in the power of Israel's God, make it an engine of godliness, light and encouragement to all the household of faith. Was glad to see Sr. Salisbury's testimony. Each number ought to contain at least two testimonies. Will Bro. Edwin Lowe please testify of the circumstances of his conversion and baptism at Maquoketa, and the connection the writer had therewith? Hoping for and believing in the consolation of Israel.

I am yours,

W. T. MAITLAND.

MILTON, Fla., April 27th.

Brother Joseph:—In love to the truth I am called here. I have been idle for some time. Through the love I have for the cause of the latter day work I have left my home in Alabama, and have come to this place to try and build up the Saints here, for they are badly scattered through this district, though they are willing to respond to the call of the gospel. I have been here some time, and some are coming into the church. The Saints are doing very well considering the chance they have had. Those who have the oversight of them are doing but little at the present, and this causes all to come short of what they should do. They want me to stay with them this summer, and I will stay till the last of May, then I shall go to the conference in Alabama in July, stay awhile, then return here. Since October 1885, I have been trying to build up the cause in Alabama and Florida, and will continue on.

Yours truly,

G. R. SCOGIN.

FONDA, Iowa, May 1st.

Dear Herald:—Your familiar countenance has once more come before me, and in the last conference reports my name does not appear coupled with the Second quorum reports; (a good reason, I did not report). I am really ashamed to say that I have preached but two public discourses since I left here for California, a year ago last February—one discourse near Lindon, Dallas county, Iowa, where sister Mary Dawson and husband had done some excellent work in the way of chimney-corner talk. Bro. Dawson is some like Apollon; his wife, Mary, has acted the part of Priscilla, and taught him the baptism of John, and he being a member of the Christian Church has been mighty in expounding the Scriptures to his brethren, insomuch that I think if his father and their family had not moved to Kansas, some one would have had the happiness of leading three of the family into the waters of baptism in June next. I think that others in the neighborhood would soon follow, out of the Christian (Disciple) Church.

I was at Coalville, Webster Co., Iowa, the first of April, preached once, and had the pleasure of leading a true sister in Christ into the waters of baptism. She has been a true believer for the last three years, and was only waiting for the consent of her husband. She was awakened through the instrumentality of Bro. James Allen and others, with the help of the Lord. And so it is, one of a town, two of a city, and three in the country, where there is no rail road. I once heard Bro. Lambert say a rail road town is the hardest place to preach in he ever found. The Saints at Coalville are alive in the work, and believe in administering to the outside wants of humanity as proven by two presents made to my wife. It was her first visit there. With love to all,

E. C. BROWN and WIFE.

XENIA, Ills., April 19th.

Dear Herald:—We have been blessed with the presence and labors of Bro. I. M. Smith among us for the two weeks past. He has had great liberty of the Spirit in his preaching, and a deep interest is manifest among the people. To-day eight were born into the kingdom of our Lord, and several more almost persuaded; also seventeen children blessed. Bro. Smith left for Kinmundy to-day. The Saints here are greatly encouraged over the visit of Bro. Smith among us, and express strong desires to try to live up to the requirements of God's law in the future. We are taking steps to complete our church, which has been standing in an unfinished condition for over a year. We have been struggling along in a week way for a long time, and some have gone back from following the lowly Savior, but our hopes are brightened and the way seems clearer than before. And our desires are still to walk with him that "hath the words of eternal life." My constant prayer is that the Saints everywhere may become humble at heart, for the brother or sister that humbles themselves are bound to realize their imperfections and will try to overcome.

In the bonds of the gospel,

ARTHUR H. BURROUGHS.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 1st.

Dear Herald:—Since my last writing I spent two weeks at Lamoni attending the conference; and I am of the opinion that in years to come those who will abide in the faith and hold fast to the iron rod, will consider that the late conference was among the most important, and therefore one of the best ever held by the Reorganization. History and experience both unite in testifying that most all great and good events that come to the human family are evolved from much pain and suffering. The struggles of the past should teach us patience and confidence, and drive away the clouds of mistrust and evil surmising. One thing seems very clear to me, that as the church increases in numbers and spreads abroad among the people, the responsibility and trials will proportionately augment, but all these should only make stronger the men of God, ministers for Christ, more faithful and wise in their trust and mission of good unto suffering humanity; so that when they make their final report to the Eternal at the day of rewards, we should be found approved and worthy. After my return home went to the Palmyra branch to attend the quarterly conference of this district. The busy season of the year prevented a large gathering. I continued for several days, and as a seal to the work administered baptism to two substantial men who have been investigating the work for some time. Farmers are very busy, and the prospect for a good fruit crop is promising. Bro. J. M. Terry leaves us to-day. We very much regret the departure of this faithful and humble servant of Christ. May God bless him where ever his lot is cast.

In gospel bonds,

Miscellaneous.

NORTH-EAST MISSOURI.

The above district will meet in conference at Bevier, Missouri, on June 20th, 1886, at 1:30 p. m. A good attendance and full representation are desired and needed. The district is weak, numerically and otherwise, and, since the sudden retreat of Crawford and Bybee, is left without a president. The missionary in charge will try to be there. Come brethren, one and all, who love the work of God, and let us see what can be done.

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT,
Missionary in Charge.

DES MOINES DISTRICT.

The above conference will convene at the Richland Creek School-house in the Sheridan Branch, Poweshiek county, on the 29th of May, 1886, at 10:30 a. m. Nearest Railway Station is Chelsea, on Chicago and North Western, which is four miles from place of meeting. Brooklyn (ten miles distant) is the nearest station on the Rock Island. Parties desiring to be met by team should address Charles Hand, at Chelsea, Iowa; or Alexander Shimmel, at Haven, Iowa. Bro. Wm. T. Bozarth is expected to be present, and possibly others from abroad.

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT,
Missionary in Charge.

EASTERN IOWA DISTRICT.

Bro. R. Etzenhouser, who was appointed to labor in the above district, has dropped out of the field for a time. His reasons for so doing seem to be good and sufficient. Let me say to the Saints of Eastern Iowa, Do not be discouraged. Every man, woman and child in the Church of Jesus Christ should be a diligent and consistent worker. We will furnish you all the help we can. I am informed that your next conference is to be held at Buffalo, on the 6th and 7th of June, 1886; and that a full attendance is required. Bro. W. T. Bozarth and J. S. Roth, one or both of them, will probably be present.

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT,
Missionary in charge.

NOTICE.

To the Saints of Eastern Iowa:—Since my appointment to that field an inviting door has been opened to me to enhance my temporal interests, a demand also accompanying it I felt called upon to heed. I asked of the First Presidency and Bro. Lambert privilege to retire, (temporarily), which has been granted me, by my assuming the responsibility of deciding. In retiring, I do so with freedom and clearness of mind, as also in hope of accomplishing by it the best good in the years allotted to me. I also have much regret, while clear in the decision made, because of the check that will come in progress made by activity, and disappointment that may ensue by some of your number. I knew nothing of this at conference, and hence the appointment. I hope to maintain a full interest in the work, also devote what time my pursuits will allow during the interval of my retiring, and at no distant day to return to the ranks, assisting in heralding the message of everlasting peace.

Indulging in the hope that you will believe I have acted in good faith, and for the best good, in view of a life work, I am yours for truth,

R. ETZENHOUSER.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo.

CHURCH LIBRARY.

We thank Bro. R. M. Elvin for a present of a large volume of the "Revised Statutes of the United States, passed at the First Session of the Forty-third Congress, 1873-74."

JOHN SCOTT, Librarian.

DIED.

HOUGHTON.—At her home just north of Davenport on the Harrison street road, April 15th, sister Eliza Houghton, in the 68th year of her age. She was the widow of the late Bro. James Houghton. Sister Houghton was born in Flintshire, England, January 12th, 1819. She came to America with her father—Mr. Thomas—in 1842. She united with the church in 1865 and lived a consistent member of the same until her death. The cause of death was cancerous affection of the stomach. Three sisters, two sons and a daughter survive her. During sister Houghton's long residence in Davenport she gained many friends, and a large circle of acquaintances. The funeral was from her home, and was largely attended. Elder Jerome Ruby preached the sermon. Text, Job 14: 14.

Mother, you have gone and left us,
We, your children weep for thee;
But death has not of hope bereft us,
We again your face may see;
Life eternal has been promised—
You have gained it, so may we.
Sister, farewell 'til the morning
Of the resurrection day;
For thee now we're weeping—mourning,
Then our grief will pass away;
Jesus Christ, the Lord—our Savior,
Conquered death; it is the way,

J. R.

FENTON.—Sr. Anna S. Fenton, of Navuoo, Illinois, died April 17th, 1886. Sr. Fenton was born in Staffordshire, England, about the year 1811. She became identified with the church in the Spring of 1864. Sr. Fenton was a good faithful Saint to the last, and was beloved by all who knew her. Funeral sermon at the house, conducted by Elder H. C. Bronson.

ROBBINS.—In Cox Creek Township, Clayton county, Iowa, March 16th, 1886, Mrs. Relief, widow of the late Henry Robbins, aged 74 years. She was born in Lauga, Canada West, came to this country in 1835. She leaves six children to mourn her loss. She was a relative of Elder John E. Page's last wife. The parties named were at an early time united with the church through the labors of John E. Page in Canada, and remained in the faith up to the time of their death.

MADSEN.—At Omaha, Nebraska, April 1st, 1886, of lung and brain fever, Fred Albert Madsen, son of Jacob and sister Hanhor Madsen. Services at the house by W. M. Rumel, assisted by Edward Rannie.

WILLIAMS.—At her residence in Lucas, Iowa, April 18th, 1886, Mary Ann, wife of Bro. Daniel T. Williams, aged 31 years; she was born at Dudley, Worcestershire, England. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn her loss. She died in the hope of a glorious resurrection with the spirits of the just. Funeral sermon by Elder G. T. Griffiths in Saints' Chapel, April 19th, 1886.

HUNT.—At his residence, 580 Princess Avenue London, Canada, brother William Henry Hunt, aged 49 years. Bro. Hunt was a native of London, England, and came to Canada about sixteen years ago. He heard the gospel preached by Elder J. J. Cornish in London, Ontario, and was baptized by him on May 8th, 1876. The Saints of London deeply regret the loss of one whom to know was to love. He was ever ready to bear a noble testimony to the truth of the latter day work. Amongst those who will miss him when duty calls them to London, will be Bro. J. H. Lake, Joseph Luff, J. A. McIntosh, and many others. His doors were always opened wide to the servants of God who were ever welcome to share his hospitality. He lived the life of a true Saint, and he died the death of the righteous, in the sure and certain hope of a glorious resurrection. His end was peace. Funeral services conducted by Elders R. C. Evans and G. Mottashed.

WHITEHEAD.—At her residence in Lucas, Iowa, March 31st, 1886, Sr. Charlotte Whitehead, aged 29 years, 9 months, and 15 days. She leaves a husband to mourn her loss. Funeral services at Saints' Chapel April 1st, 1886.

BOICE.—At Council Bluffs, Iowa, April 4th, at six o'clock, a. m., Sr. Elizabeth, wife of Jacob Boice, aged 74 years, 9 months, 6 days. She was born in Montgomery county, New York; baptized November 11th, 1868, at Buffalo, Scott county, Iowa, by A. Gold, confirmed by A. Gold and R. Groom. Funeral services from Saints' Chapel, conducted by Elder L. Davis. She was a devoted sister to the cause of Christ and was not afraid to die.

HESS.—At Independence, Mo., April 22d, 1886, of paralysis, sister Anna M. Hess, aged 67 years. The departed one belonged to the old church, then united with the Hedrickites, and a few months ago she was baptized by Elder Warnky in the Reorganization, and died in the faith and hope of a glorious resurrection at the appearing of Jesus our Lord. Funeral sermon by Elder J. C. Foss.

LANE.—Matilda Lane was born in Wilson Co., Tennessee, April 8th, 1811; was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ prior to 1844; died in Chase county, Nebraska, March 30th, 1886. She lived a consistent Christian, and had hope of coming forth in the first resurrection.

BROOKS.—At Farnworth, Lancashire, England, March 30th, 1884, sister Alice Brooks, aged 76 years, 5 months, and 26 days. Sister Brooks received the word of God as presented by the Reorganized Church late in life, having been baptized on November 6th, 1882. Towards the latter part of her connection with the cause she had espoused, her testimony appeared to grow brighter, and before her death she saw a light which satisfied her of the truth of the latter day work—telling two sisters present to go and be faithful to the work, and that she was right.

THE HOUSEKEEPER.

BURNED OUT.—"The Housekeeper," Minneapolis, Minn., was burned out for the second time in six years, April 12th, and a part of its large subscription list destroyed. Several of the ladies employed barely escaping with their lives. Such of our readers as do not receive the May number promptly, should write to the publishers, giving full address, time when subscription was made, and length of time paid for. The May number will then be forwarded and the name restored to the list.

Conference Minutes.

DES MOINES.

The above district quarterly conference held at Rhodes, Marshall Co., Iowa, March 12th-14th, 1886, Pres. W. C. Nirk in the chair. On motion N. A. Baker was chosen Sec'y. pro tem. Branch Reports.—Boonsboro 66 members; including 4 Elders, 2 Priests, 3 Teachers, 2 Deacons; 1 received by letter. Edenville 80 members, 32 being scattered; 6 Elders, (2 of which are scattered), 1 Priest, 2 Teachers; received on evidence of first organization 4, removed 4. Sheridan 53 members; 1 Elder, 2 Priests, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon, 1 received by letter. Newton 49 members; 4 Elders, 3 Priests, 3 Teachers, 2 Deacons, 1 received by vote on evidence of membership in Reorganization. DesMoines Valley 54 members; 2 Elders, 3 Priests, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon; received by letter 5. Report of DesMoines Branch returned for correction. Elders W. C. Nirk, R. Etzenhouser, N. Stamm, J. S. Roth, John Sayer, Samuel Longbottom, and J. M. Lane reported. Priests George Shimmel, John Dumbald, John Clark, A. Freels, and J. T. Roberts reported. Teachers John Coiner, A. Shimmel, and E. Merrill reported. On recommendations from from Newton and Sheridan branches the ordination of N. A. Baker and George Shimmel to the office of Elders was ordered and administered. On motion the following officials were chosen for the ensuing quarter, W. C. Nirk president, N. A. Baker secretary. J. S. Roth Bishop's Agent and Book Agent. Preaching was had during the conference by George Shimmel, R. Etzenhouser, J. S. Roth, and N. A. Baker. On motion a vote of thanks was tendered to John Sayer for his past services as district secretary, and to A. White and brothers for the use of building in which conference was held. Bishop's Agents Report:—Total receipts, $160.13; paid out $105; on hand $55.13. The auditing committee reported having found the Agent's books correct. Conference adjourned to meet in Sheridan branch, subject to call of the president. A good feeling prevailed throughout, and a more perfect unity of feeling prevailed (as we believe) between officials and members than ever before in the history of the district. An able paper, contained in his report, was read by R. Etzenhouser on the injury resulting from official in-subordination to the powers that be. The preaching was excellent, the Saints were filled with joy, and we believe were nerved anew for the conflict and will be prepared to achieve fresh victories for the truth by a holier and happier life.

THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

SOME who profess to believe the Bible, and others who profess to believe the Bible and Book of Mormon, say in word or in effect, that no further revelation from God is needed.

That this position is faulty and false is seen in the fact, first, that the Book of Mormon is but an "abridgement" of very extensive scriptures which God in his wisdom and love gave to supply the actual needs of Jaredite and Nephite Saints; for it is said that it does not contain "a hundredth part" of those scriptures. And, second, the Bible does not now contain all the scriptures once possessed by the Israelites, and the Christians after Christ; for there are near or quite thirty other books mentioned in it besides those now in the Bible, and still there may have been others. And, third, neither the Bible nor the Book of Mormon give full, complete, and clearly defined rules for the government of the Church and the work of the ministry. The New Testament informs us that God gave to the church apostles, prophets, seventy, evangelists, pastors, teachers, bishops, elders, deacons, helps, governments," etc., etc., but it does not define fully the powers, authorities, rights, privileges, and prerogatives pertaining to these officers. Neither does it contain anything like a well defined system of church law and church government. But it treats, mainly, in a historical way, of what was taught and did by Christ and some of his ministry, and this, too, in a brief and somewhat broken and incidental manner. From the epistles we learn something of both the doctrine and government of the church, and yet this is very meagre and unsatisfactory. For instance, Paul instructs Timothy in respect to an order of things then existing in the church,—“Let not a widow be taken into the number under three score years old, having been the wife of one man.”—1 Tim. 5:9. This is Holy Scripture; but what does it mean? Again, he says, “They that have used the office of a deacon well, purchase to themselves a good degree, and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus.”—1 Tim. 3: 13. But how shall we, from the Bible alone, be able to know when a deacon uses his office “well” or otherwise, when that same Bible does not inform us as to the authority, powers, duties and privileges of a deacon? And, if the deacon has nothing further than the Bible to guide him, how shall he know how to use “the office of a deacon well?”

The Bible alone does not contain anything like a clear and definite statement in respect to the authority, jurisdiction, rights, privileges, callings and powers of the various officers of the church. Neither does it give us, fully, the distinctive rank and grade of all its officers. And any one acquainted with the history of the church for the past fifteen hundred years is well aware that, a want of fulness, clearness, and definiteness on the part of the New Testament on these matters has involved the widest degree and the most bitter kind of discussion in councils, conferences, and through the pulpit and the press. And hence, from the Church of Rome through all the lesser organizations, there is wide dissimilarity in church organization and church government, to say nothing of church doctrines and ceremonies.

“God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the Saints.” It is therefore but little short of blasphemy to say that God is the author, even indirectly, of such diversity, division, and disorder, as results from the manifest want of plainness, fulness, and definiteness on the part of the New Testament in the matters under consideration. “The law of the Lord is perfect.” “His word is light.” And yet the church for the past fifteen centuries or more have failed to attain anything like unity and concord from the teachings of the New Testament in respect to church law, church organization and church government. All this is an unanswerable argument in favor of the need of further revelation on these points; for the Church of God is designed to be established and builded in perfect unity, in harmony, and in love. The needed means, so far as the organization and government of the church is concerned, is found in some degree, it is true, in both the Bible and Book of Mormon; but they, as we have seen, are not sufficiently full and definite. Now this deficiency is well supplied by the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; for its provisions are specific, full, not in conflict with the New Testament or Book of Mormon, but supplementary and auxiliary to them, explanatory of, and harmonizing with them. These provisions are so definite and comprehensive that there are no grounds for conflict or confusion in respect to church government. And we here assert, that the heresies and differences existing in the past or present with Latter Day Saints have resulted from treating lightly, or with contempt or neglect, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants. There is not, nor has there been one essential matter in church government, organization, doctrine, or general church polity, but could have been and should have been regulated and properly settled by an appeal to that book—and all this harmonizing with and rendering available and effective the teachings of both the Bible and Book of Mormon.

We repeat it, The Bible, also the Book of Mormon, lack in fulness and definiteness with respect to church law, church organization, and church government; and that these important needs are supplied by the further revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants.

Men of high rank in scholarship and intellectual ability pronounce the system of organization and church government of the Latter Day Saints a marvel of wisdom, effectiveness, and perfection. It is capable of enduring the most searching criticism, whether from a moral, social, political, scientific or religious standpoint.

When the Doctrine and Covenants is compared with the New Testament, we find it contains all the excellencies found therein, and then goes further and supplies those needs suggested by the New Testament, fills up and rounds out into perfect symmetry and fulness all the parts and details that go to make up the “one body” of Christ—the Church. With it, church building is made plain and concordant. Without it, there is a manifest lack of essential means to both build and rightly govern the Church of Christ.

WHEN a minister or member of the Church seeks to belittle a fellow minister or member, or in any way speak evil of them, they should be stopped on the spot and be told to go to the party they thus secretly slander and say what they have to say, directly to them. No higher, clearer evidence is needed of a person's spiritual blindness and moral poverty than their attempts to slur, bemean, and defame the absent. It is cowardly, dastardly and devilish. And when a minister will stoop to the low level of an intermeddler with other people's affairs, or with other officers' labors and duties, and play the part of a sneaking defamer, he should be resisted, avoided, and reported to his superiors.

There are some people who are never so happy as when they are prying into and finding fault with other people's affairs. Their swinish propensities impel them to thrust their noses into affairs which do not pertain to them, and to criticise the efforts of those whose position in life and whose duties also are distinct and different from their own. It is a great virtue for persons to mind their own business, attend to their own duties, keep their gossip and their scandal within their own lips, and learn that, if they can not speak well of absent ones to not play the assassin and stab them in the dark.

We have heard of a good sister who, when a certain officer in the Church was speaking slightly of an absent fellow-officer, rebuked him to his face and bade him never be guilty again of such a gross insult to her, and such a breach of Christian conduct toward others. And, we are grieved to have it to say that this is not the only case which has come to our attention.

Any minister who will engage in unfriendly criticism upon any other minister's work, manner's and methods, secretly, or in the absence of said minister, is guilty of base and shameful conduct. And any minister or member who will intermeddle, and criticise with the view and in a way to damage the work and reputation of an officer of the Church, or any person, is unworthy the confidence and support of the Church, or any one else. Paul said, "Beware of dogs; beware of evil workers," and this admonition applies well to those who in these times act the part of dogs, sneaking and smelling around, watching for an opportunity to either steal or defile the good reputation of others, or trespass upon the rights of their fellows. Dogs of this kind should be chained and muzzled; and if that does not reform them, then they should be put "where they will do the most good."

"O, mischief! thou art swift
To enter in the thoughts of desperate men."

And, be it remembered,

"He that may hinder mischief,
And yet permits it, is an accessory."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Pres. Joseph Smith left here the 3d inst. for Council Bluffs, Crescent City and Hazel Dell, Iowa. By letter from him dated the 11th inst., at Council Bluffs, we learn that he has preached at Omaha and Council Bluffs, and that he had appointments ahead for a number of days, and one for a temperance lecture at Crescent City and another at Hazel Dell. He is not expected home till the 18th inst. He reports encouragingly.

We were made sad by a telegram from Bro. Daniel Hougas, of Henderson, Iowa, announcing the death of his son Almon. A noble, promising young man has fallen in the springtime of life, his surroundings happy and his future full of promise. We await particulars.

In another column will be found a "Proclamation" of the Governor of Iowa. We most cheerfully give it place in the HERALD, and confidently hope it may greatly aid in destroying the abomination of intemperance in Iowa. We anxiously and hopefully look for the time when a fitting requiem shall be sung at the grave of "King Alcohol," and when the whole earth shall be at rest from his woeful ravages.

The Secretary, A. S. Cochran, wishes to say that, owing to continued sickness in his family there are some items of business he has not been able to attend to as promptly as would have been done under other circumstances. But he will reach them as soon as possible.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Thy nature, which, through fire and flood,
To place or gain finds out its way,
Hath power to seek the highest good,
And duty's holiest call obey."

"I HAVE FINISHED THE WORK WHICH THOU GAVEST ME TO DO."

THE nineteenth century is drawing near to its close. A little more than fourteen years remain to close the record of one of the most remarkable periods of time this world has ever counted by days and years. Were we to undertake to enumerate a tithe of that which has been wrought out by the ever busy, active brain of man, for the simplifying and perfecting of works of art and usefulness, the very hopelessness of the task would impel us to silence. The world has become an arena of strife, and he who demands any portion of its emoluments must be skilled and trained. Not only this, but he must bring to the contest all the powers of his will and a purpose as unwavering as the fixed stars of heaven. There is no place for the weak or halting—while they pause for breath they are passed in the race by eager hundreds with their eyes fixed steadily on the goal. It would sometimes seem that poor human nature would never have, inherent in it, enough courage to start out in the race. Not so, however, as the poet has so aptly said:

"Thy nature, which, through fire and flood,
To place or gain finds out its way."

"Place or gain!" What place or gain, we ask? Is man alone in this race, this struggle? No, truly, there is not a day but adds to the list of such enterprises as find women side by side in close competition with man. But, sisters, this is not the work which occupies our thoughts tonight. With what a sense of relief and gratitude we turn from even a brief contemplation of this sea of turmoil, this "maddening crowd," to the consideration of another and a better work.

"I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." Can we, do we realize that this completed work of the Son of God, was undertaken and finished in order that we might be enabled to finish ours? "These are in the world." Ah! when the body is weary, when cares possess and afflictions come, then we realize that we are in the world, and we cry out with the smart and pain of its disappointing, with the deceitfulness of the promises it never fulfils. Then we question, Shall we be able to stand, to endure unto the end, to finish our work?

"Keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me." Oh! the depth of tenderness conveyed in these words. The love reaching beyond the cruel agony of the cross—beyond the glories of the resurrection down through the stream of time, until we raise our eyes to his, we bend our listening ears until we hear him say, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." "Be of good cheer," the Spirit is whispering us. From the beginning even to the end, it was all before him. He knew the cares of the world—the cares to which all flesh is heir.

He was made like unto his brethren; "that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God. * * * For in that he himself hath suffered, being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted."

Horace Mann says, "Do nothing for others is the undoing of one's self. We must be purposely kind and generous, or we miss the best part of existence. The heart that goes out of itself gets large and full of joy. This is the great secret of the inner life. We do ourselves the most good when doing something for others."

"I have meat to eat that ye know not of. * * * My meat is to do the will of Him who sent me, and to finish his work." How sublime the lesson here conveyed, and yet so simple in its sublimity that it may be understood by a child. So engrossed was all his being in the performance of his Father's will that he forgot the demands of the natural man, and rejoiced only in the good he was conferring upon others. Oh! for the Spirit of the Master to rest upon our spirits. To awake us from our long sleep of selfishness, and help us to see ourselves, in the light of truth. Sisters of this Elder Brother, are we striving to be like him. Are we praying (and laboring while we pray) to be baptized anew into his life and labors of love, or are we by "doing nothing for others, undoing ourselves?" "Say not ye there are yet four months, then cometh the harvest? Behold I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

"Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields." Let us cease to plead so earnestly for self, cease to look with so much of tender concern upon our grievances and cares, and with God as our helper, let us fix our eyes upon the "fields already white," and strive earnestly to do all in our power for the good of others. The good we can accomplish may be small. The field itself is vast and the tares planted by sin are many. Who is equal to bearing the heat and burden of the day? Will they who can not labor with their eyes fixed steadily upon the "prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus," wear the victor's crown? "Lift up your eyes." The approval of man is pleasant, but is a dangerous thing when the servant of God turns to man for his or her reward. It is Christ we are striving to serve, and if we value the salvation we are seeking, we must never lose sight of this fact. If we ever wear the crown it will be because through his Spirit strengthening us we kept steadily on towards the prize. If we are laboring for the approval of our fellow workers and faint by the way when it is withheld, what then? We suffer loss, and if we do not lift up our eyes and fix our hearts upon a higher aim, we shall never know happiness here nor in the hereafter.

Let us read oft and meditate much upon the words of Paul. In writing to Timothy he says: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." To the Corinthian brethren he enumerates some of the trials through which he had passed: "Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I sufferred shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep; in journeyings often, in perils of robbers, in perils of mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren; in weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness." Can we for a moment imagine that Paul could have endured all this, if praise of men and their approval had been the goal he sought, or the manna which he looked to daily to renew his vital forces? Mark now the triumphal end of these buffetings and trials through all of which he had fought his way, and while fighting had "kept the faith." "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

Will any who are not Christ's friends, love his appearing? Let each one pause and answer this question before they read another line; for he will surely appear, and if only his friends will love his appearing, then it will be his friends and only his friends to whom shall be given this "crown of righteousness." "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you."

Our work is not finished. We can not say with Paul, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand." Glorious old veteran! How his soul still yearned over the workers he was leaving behind. Even the glory upon which he knew he was soon to enter, and for which he had contended so long and faithfully, could not prevent his earnestly desiring that they too should complete their work. "Watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry." Are we doing our work? Are we walking bravely out of ourselves, seeking to do the good which comes to the hand of every one to do, or are we undoing ourselves, by doing nothing for others.

We are in receipt of letter from Sister Sarah Hawley and clippings from Sister Lockhart. Sisters, "be not weary in well doing."

BRIEF THOUGHTS.—THE SEA OF LIFE.

LIFE is a sea; and every soul that is born is a frail bark which has to push its way to the port of rest and peace. When we launch a ship, we know not whether it will reach its port or not, and so with the soul. It may not reach its home; it may go down at sea; it may strike on the rock; or the foe may seize it and make it his prize. It is a fine sight to see the launch of a good ship. They cut the ropes and move the blocks, and off she glides with an air of grace down the slides, and dips her bows deep; then rights and floats like a swan on the wave. And, is it not a lovely sight to gaze at a dear babe hushed to rest on its mother's bosom? Watch the mild peace and sweet calm of its brow, and then think that a soul is enshrined within that tender form which must live when thrones are cast down, and crowns are no more; is it not comforting to think that dear babe knows none of the pains and toils of a world which groans night and day with the sins of men? No throb of pain, no pang of woe is felt. The eye knows no flash of pride, the cheek no blush of shame. But, go your way and when years have past, come back and seek that child. It may be dead; the jaws of the cold grave may have shut it in, and its bones may be now all that is left of its form of sweet grace and its pure charms; but if it lives, what a change! As you gaze once more on the face, how sad the sight; care has dug deep lines on his brow and vice has written its name there. He is a thorn in that fond breast on which he hung when a child; and the heart that yearns for him now as warmly as at first, feels that it would have been well if he had not been born, or if the day of his birth had been the day of his death. Oh, what a curse is sin when it makes a child a plague to sting the heart that loves it most. May we all, as mothers who have children given into our care, ever seek by God's aid to rear them up as plants of righteousness, that we may yet see them trees of God's own planting, by helping them to walk in the footsteps God has marked out for them, by our good precept and example, that they may be a blessing to us while in this life, and stars that will shine bright in the crown of life.

E. ELLIOTT.

EAST DES MOINES, Iowa, April 3d.

Dear Sister "Frances":—I come, wishing to add my mite to the "Mothers' Home Column." You invite all. I have long wished the Sisters could have a space in the Herald, to exchange thoughts, desires and hopes. I do not expect to advance any very wise idea to you who have much more wisdom than I have. I come hoping to learn lessons of wisdom. I feel the need of more wisdom, knowledge and understanding. I do so hunger and thirst after righteousness. I feel my need of more holiness, more patience to teach my children the right way. Pray for me that I by my example and precept may be a light to the world; that no one can see cause to stumble over my imperfections. I am very thankful that Sister Lloyd expressed the wish that was so desirable to us all. May God bless our editor with much wisdom; and each writer be filled with the Spirit of God to edify and build up the work. I have many times thought to write for the "Mothers' Home Column," but I hesitated, not knowing how to send it to you; the answer came in the last Herald: you said, "Don't hesitate to direct your letter simply, 'Frances' Lamoni, Decatur Co. Iowa." When I read that the Spirit said; "Now you can send your letter." I have been edified by reading the various letters from the sisters. I am trusting and hoping for brighter days to come, when we as the chosen ones of the Lord may all be united as one; and the honest in heart throughout the land be gathered in, before it is too late.

Mothers, and Sisters, each and all;
May we improve our talent if small;
Asking our Father, in earnest prayer,
Of his Holy Spirit to give us a share;
Fill us with patience, and holy zeal,
For the fallen, cause our hearts to feel.
May our example and precept be,
Pure and holy, for all to see.

Your Sister,

LUCY B. MERRILL.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS.

WE think it very essential for every housekeeper to keep an account of articles purchased for household expenditures, if her companion does not. And even if he does, she will be wise to keep her own accounts. One can better realize the cost of living, and by comparing it with the income, know if the bills can be met at the close of the year. Some wives by a slack, expensive way of living, keep their husbands involved in debt, which must be very unpleasant as well as a great disadvantage; but no more so than if the leak was on the other side of the house. Saints should try and live within their means, even if it must be by the most rigid economy. "Owe no man anything, but to love one another," is as good a motto as can be placed on the wall. A model housekeeper will have "a place for everything, and everything in its place;" but we are sorry to say that many have the things and the places, but never know where either are. Order is heaven's first law," and without it there would be no heaven, so without it no house can be a home—merely a place to stay. We know by observation that there is more happiness in a little cot where order reigns than in a mansion where all is disorder. We have also seen housekeepers who were so rigid and exacting in their order that no one could be at ease in their presence. That was the other extreme. We prefer the mean, and think the stronger sex do, invariably.

Meals should be at regular periods, properly and tastily prepared, to make them profitable and enjoyable. That is one great object that man labors for, and he should not be disappointed by her with whom he places the effects of his labors. The truehearted are made happy by faithfully discharging their duty, and especially in their own household. Every home should have its time for amusement, recreation, etc.; all work and no play makes Jack and Jen dull folks. Regular hours for sleep should be observed, and right preparation should be made that is healthful—of which we will speak in some future time. If the foregoing suggestions are observed, money will be saved, happiness promoted and life lengthened. Try it.

Correspondence.

EAST LAKE, Mich., May 10th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—It seems to me that a little more ought to be said to the Saints about the Voice of Warning I have to loan, as I think the matter is not fully understood by them. I desire to have every Branch of the Church in the United States and Canada, select one or more of their number to write to me for the books and loan them out to any one that would read and return them. I will also send books to any of the ministry who desire to use them in their work, and I will pay the postage on the books. Hoping to hear from every Branch or Elder who may desire the books to loan, I remain as ever,

Your brother in Christ,

J. H. PETERS.

MANCHESTER, England, April, 1886.

Dear Herald:—Our district conference has been a great success, and the Saints of the Manchester District have had a foretaste of that time when the "feast of fat things" shall have been prepared for the righteous. On the 24th of the present month (April) the Elders met together in conference at Manchester, for the purpose of transacting the business of the church in this part of the vineyard, and succeeded I believe in doing it according to the will of the Lord, therefore for the best interests of his work. Peace and harmony prevailed throughout the whole session, brought about by the spirit of conciliation displayed by the brethren one towards the other.

Three young brethren, (members) Mathar, Tower, and Owen, were called to the Aaronic priesthood, and ordained at the services of the following day. These young men are, I believe, both called and qualified of God for the office of Priest, to which they have each been ordained, and if faithful will yet become mighty men, and of renown in Israel.

Sunday the 25th at 10:30 a. m., the Saints of the district—representing each branch—met together in the Saints' Chapel for prayer meeting, and such a prayer meeting we had; the blessing of the Lord did indeed attend us, causing our hearts to burn towards each other in the love of the gospel of our blessed Master, and we did not forget that we were met together upon the day set apart as the anniversary of his resurrection, when he triumphed over death and hell, thus becoming "the first fruits" of the resurrection from the dead. And we realized in this our spiritual feast that Christ had "risen indeed."

At 2 p. m. we again met together for fellowship, and to partake of the sacrament of the Lord's supper. After the opening services two noble sisters (Tower and Pickering), who had been baptized upon the previous Friday, were confirmed by Elders Ramsey, and Armstrong, Sen., and I need only say that in attending to this part of the duty of the Eldership, the Spirit and power of their office and calling rested upon them. Throughout the whole of the service the Spirit and blessings of God were manifested in abundance, to the confirming of the Saints, and the strengthening of the ministry.

At six o'clock in the evening we were again prepared for further droppings from the sanctuary, and after the usual preliminary services, Elder Joseph Ramsey addressed us for about three quarters of an hour, taking as a basis the 1st chapter of the 1st epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthian church, from which, with further illustrations, he showed the necessity of a living, acting faith, born of obedience to the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, and demonstrated from the "law and the testimony" that only such a faith could save saint or sinner in the kingdom of God. This he beautifully illustrated from the experiences of the children of Israel under Moses, six hundred thousand of whom were led forth into the wilderness after they had been baptized in the cloud and in the sea, who through their unbelief and disobedience were not (save Caleb and Joshua) permitted to enter into the promised land, and thus to-day are men righteously excluded from the promised rest, not because they have not known, but because having known, they have willfully neglected and disobeyed the message sent of God for their salvation. The sermon was a powerful one, and was listened to by a full audience, with wrapt interest from opening to close, after which, as a fit accompaniment, the congregation sang the 1084 hymn from the Saints' Harp, "The Spirit of God like a fire is burning." And, dear Herald, the singing and playing were such that it would seem impossible to hear anything better. One good brother said it rang out as though "propelled by machinery," while a faithful sister exclaimed, "It has just transplanted me back again thirty years, to the time when the same grand old hymn was sung in Sheffield Conference," by men and women endowed by the active, moving power of the gospel of the latter days.

Elder Henry Greenwood then delivered a short address upon the beauty and harmony of the gospel of Christ, as now taught by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; and also as commanded to the ancient churches of the Corinthians, Romans, Ephesians, and others by the then Apostles and followers of the Lord Jesus.

The services of the day were then brought to a close by singing the 904th hymn in the Saints' Harp—"A few more years shall roll." Benediction by Elder Robert Baty.

Thus ended the best, and most influential conference, both as regards numbers and spiritual power present, that has yet been held in the Manchester district, a conference in which harmony prevailed, strength given to all and we believe an impetus given to the work that will make it felt throughout the whole of the branches in the district.

The authorities of the church, both general mission and district, were each sustained in their several callings, and we parted from each other breathing a fervent prayer of devout thankfulness to God for the confirming power of his gospel vouchsafed to us.

Yours in the gospel of Christ,

JOSEPH DEWSNUP,

CLINTON, Mo., May 12th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I got home on the 4th inst. After leaving Lamoni, went to Spickardville, where I commenced meetings in the Christian Church on Friday night, April 23d, and continued every night and over two Sabbaths. The interest was grand to the very last. In the meantime Bro. A. held three meetings at the Farview school-house, in Bro. Morrison's neighborhood. He had but few out—time too short for circulating appointment. Our visit would have been a pleasant one in every way had it not been for Sr. McVay, who felt much indisposed during the last few days of our stay. This life might be too much of a heaven, and our disposition to "stay always" might make us covetous, especially for "local Zions," were it not for some of these clouds of disappointments. We are glad to say that in many things our hearts were made glad, and we trust and hope all will think well of our motives to cheer and comfort Zion's children, though we do not all see "eye to eye."

After arriving at Spickardville we were not long in observing that there were a number who desired a fight more than to embrace truth. We tried to be wise and cautious, preached in an affirmative way, but it brought the fire from opposing elements, and the consequences are we have a six days' debate on hand, which is to commence on the 9th day of August. I live near two hundred miles from the place of battle, and thought it impracticable, under existing circumstances, to meet the issue myself, and so have arranged with our opponent to introduce any man the Church feels to support.

The propositions are: 1st.—Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints of which I (I. N. White) am a member, in harmony with the New Testament scripture in doctrine and church organization?

2d.—Is the Church of Christ, of which I (J.

Padget) am a member, in harmony with the New Testament scripture in doctrine and church organization?

King James' translation of the Bible and standard church histories shall be the standards of evidence. All other evidence to be received upon its merit, subject to the rules governing such testimony before our civil courts.

The Christian minister (J. Padget) was out to hear us five times, and busied himself in writing up each sermon. The following questions were laid on the stand, and an answer requested, viz.: "Do you believe your organization to be 'The Church?' If so, Is it the Kingdom of God? Is it necessary to be in the Kingdom of God in order to be saved?" (No name signed.)

We thought this foreshadowed a discussion. Bro. A. answered:—1st, Yes. 2d, The church is called the Kingdom of God, net, household, sheepfold, &c. 3d, Yes; but many people get into the visible part of the church through baptism, and are not recognized by God, because they fail to enter the invisible part, and are as the foolish virgins without oil in their lamps; or like the net cast into the water, which gathers both good and the bad—the good are those that are born of water and the Spirit, as it is written: "For what man knoweth the things of man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, except he has the Spirit of God. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." Hence man can't get religion, no more than you can character. It is a practical work, bringing man to perfection by using the means that God has ordained for the "perfecting of the Saints."—Eph., 4th chapter.

God had promised a "new covenant," which was to be introduced when the seed should come to whom the promise was made. Christ was that seed, and he introduced a "new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us, through the veil, that is to say, his flesh." "For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel. . . . I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their heart, . . . for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest." The ministry under the old covenant went into the holy of holies, and thus the people knew God as revealed through these priests. But under this "new covenant" all would have a privilege to know him if they would accept of the terms. For our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance." And as long as we live under this covenant we will not be saved by works of righteousness which we have done, (under the old covenant), but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost. And thus God makes his ministry "able ministers of the new Testament; not of the letter, but of the Spirit; for the letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life"—confirming the testimony of Christ in them—"So that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The answer was argumentative. The Christian brethren were kind in giving us the use of their house. The brethren in charge of that field would do well to early supply its wants. Patience and careful labor will bring happy fruits.

There are kind and noble Saints there, who have had their trials. The devil will try to do his work as at other times, and the Saints will do well to remember that charity is a gift most desirable. I commence meetings in Cedar county on the 15th, and return to attend conference at Independence, June 12th. In bonds,

I. N. WHITE.

MANCHESTER, Eng.,
April 21st, 1886.

Dear Herald.—If I may be allowed to encroach on your valuable space a little I shall deem myself deeply obliged, and thank you very much for the privilege accorded. I have one great object in making this request, viz., the encouragement and upbuilding of my brethren and sisters, and at the same time of attributing all honor and glory to God for his great and manifold mercies to me and mine. After no small amount of inducement and sound argument, I was prevailed upon nearly two years ago to become a member of the Reorganized Church. I had often listened attentively to the doctrines taught by it, and not only that, but I had in no small degree seen the practical application of the same amongst the brethren and sisters, whom I closely watched, and found (much to my satisfaction) in common love and fellowship, fervently and devoutly striving to serve the Lord.

"This, more than all else, seemed to bind me to them, and gave me the appetite to be amongst them; and after attending the meetings with my wife and little one for a short time, we were both constrained to follow Christ as directed by him, and advanced our names for baptism. We both bless God that we took that step, knowing that God's blessing has rested upon us ever since. We are both convinced that the work is true; for only recently that has been most vividly and clearly depicted by dreams. The Sunday services, the testimony meetings, the Herald, and the association of the brethren and sisters, are among the strongest fascinations we allow ourselves to be attracted by and engaged in, and I trust this may continue so until our lives end. We love all our brethren and sisters, and I know we are beloved by them. This one evidence of loving reciprocity itself proves that we are the people of God. Life, which previously was to us intolerably miserable, is now lit up with the everlasting radiance of the gospel which disperses all the black clouds of sorrow and trouble, and opens out to us the everlasting glories which lie beyond, which we see and know are worth contending for. Language will not adequately describe the comfort and hope which this gospel brings to those who will embrace it. O, that more may see it!

Our greatest concern and desire is, that we may not be unfaithful, but may endure to the end; and for this purpose we pray continually that we and the whole household of faith may ever be kept close to God, daily and hourly striving to serve him aright, accomplishing everything to his honor and glory, whether spiritual or temporal, so that at the last we may enjoy that everlasting joy and felicity which is the future inheritance of the true Saints of God,

Everything in our Manchester District here bespeaks progress and prosperity. I am sure I can truly endorse the report that our beloved president, Elder J. Dewsnup, made to you, in which he showed you how everything is most encouraging.

Next Sunday we hold our Annual Conference, and we are hoping to have a most blessed and happy time. Three of the brethren, including myself, are nominated to be ordained as Priests. As I have requested my brethren here, so do I request all the Saints to pray that our Heavenly will look graciously upon us, and so endow us with the light of his Holy Spirit that we may be enabled to discharge the duties of the offices we are about to undertake, in such a manner as will convince multitudes of honest hearts, and rebound to the honor and glory of Him whose we are, and whom we are resolved to serve. Pray for us, as St. Paul asked the Ephesians to pray for him. Ephesians 6:19, 20.

Two sisters (that will be) are to be baptized tomorrow evening, and will (D. V.) be confirmed on Sunday at the conference. May God bless them both, as I am confident He will. You will see by this that we have every reason to look forward for a happy day. In fact, our Easter-Sunday presents every prospect of being—I was going to say—beyond all conjectures most happy. I trust I have not trespassed too long on your valuable time and space, but I know and feel my attempts will not be fruitless in cheering the hearts of my brethren and sisters.

May God continue His blessings upon us, and the whole household of faith, is the earnest prayer of your humble brother and servant in Christ.

SAMUEL FREDERICK MATHER.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MINUTES.

APRIL 6TH TO 17TH, 1886.

Continued.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder M. H. Forscutt, of the High Priests, present, reports:

Since receiving a renewal of my appointment by General Conference of 1885, I have labored as continuously and as earnestly as health and circumstances would permit, and submit this as the abbreviated report of my labors. By the seeming decree of Providence I was prevented from entering upon my duties proper, according to appointment, through sickness in my own person, from which I am not even yet fully recovered. My appointment was to the field in charge of Elder Wm. H. Kelley. I informed him and the First Presidency of my inability to at once enter upon the duties of that appointment, and with his concurrence, I was by them kindly permitted to labor in the regions round about my home. When able, and indeed before yet fully able, I left my home mission and went eastward, contributing my feeble mite at the Reunions held at Wheeler's Grove and Montrose, Iowa, speaking also at other places en route, and, by appointment and in one sense permission of Elder J. R. Lambert, president of that mission, in St. Louis and vicinity.

Reaching my field of labor, and in answer to very urgent requests, I confined my labors to Pittsburgh and vicinity. I am not able to state that I always felt the Spirit, or that the power thereof was always attendant on my ministrations, or ministrations. Yet for a period of a few weeks during this conference year, I am thankful to be able to say, the Lord was pleased to manifest himself to me in so direct a manner, and with such marked power as to justify my highest hopes of the distant past, when with the glowings of an ardent temperament, and the zeal of youthfulness, I anticipated what in later years hope deferred had caused me to despair of ever attaining to. For, to the glory of God, I meekly state it, never in my ministerial work had the Lord so signally owned me, never had he drawn so preciously near to me and with his divine Spirit en clothed me with such power, as during my mission in the east. I needed it too, or circumstances, reflections, obstacles and trials would otherwise have been greater than I could have borne.

Since I went east I have done but a tithe of what I wished to do, and have been made to experience my weakness, my incompetency for so grand a work as priesthood-bearing seemed to demand of me. Yet God has been pleased through my poor efforts to rescue from sin and error a few precious souls, some forty-eight having been buried with Christ in baptism by me since first I received my appointment there, and quite a number have been baptized by others whose hearts God mercifully reached through my humble testimony. So they have testified.

I do not apologize for giving distances of travels; but as a reason for expenditure of Church and private funds, as the sums set opposite the names of ministers often leads to comment, I have thought that missions involving excessive travels should be as distinctly recognized in reference to the means necessarily expended in reaching them, as are the sums so expended often complained of as being large in comparison with those expended by others whose appointments involve little or no traveling expenses. During this conference year, I have traveled 4,426 miles, have attended ministerially 340 services, have married four couple, preached four funeral sermons, baptized 19, confirmed 23, administered in the precious healing ordinances 102 times, and blessed 11 children. I therefore feel thankful, for every ordinance administered in the name of Jesus and in the Spirit, contains within itself one of the elements of union with the Lord. I am willing to labor on the other side the ocean, or on this side; to join the army gone before, or humbly, and though it must be weakly, work for, or fight with the army of the Lord here, as he wills. I am conscious of my own unworthiness, and feel often unfitted, unqualified for so grand a work as is His; yet if He wills it, and you so appoint, I will do the best one so weak as I can. I am on the altar, if He will; or in the field, if He so direct. I only ask His divine guidance, and your confidence.

Elder R. M. Elvin, President of the First Quorum of Elders, present, reports:

In presenting this the annual report of my stewardship, as a servant of Christ, and a representative of his church, I desire to state that my heavenly Father has been very kind in the bestowal of the Holy Spirit while I have taught the people the principles of the gospel as restored by angelic visitations to the "choice seer." And more especially do I wish to confess the power of God in freeing me from pain and sickness, thereby permitting me to fill appointments that otherwise would have been a disappointment to the people, and more so to me. I will praise God for all his blessings, and will seek for faith, that I may abide, and be worthy to stand with the true ministers of Christ when he comes to accept and crown all who have been faithful. Have preached the word agreeable to my appointment, and by mutual understanding with the missionary in charge, and for what I considered to be prudential reasons, I devoted nearly my whole time south of the Platte River. At the request of my district I took the active oversight of a camp-meeting, which lasted for a week and gave general satisfaction, both to the Saints and the people. Brn. Caffall, Derry, and Forscutt severally spoke the word of the Lord with divine power. The meeting was a success, spiritually, socially, and financially. At the urgent request of Bro. D. Bowen and several outsiders, held a grove-meeting in Seward county; the attendance was good, and quite a spirit of enquiry was manifested. Brn. Caffall and Forscutt were present, and their sermons were timely and instructive. Those in attendance met the expense of the meeting. I wish to make special mention of some of the many kindnesses, that have been extended to me as a minister of the Church of Christ. George E. Dye, pastor of the Baptist Church of Wilber, has been very kind in permitting us the use of his church, and in speaking words of cheer and truth in the behalf of our work. The Christians of both Greenwood and Elmwood kindly let us have their house of worship in which to speak the word of the Lord. Held a funeral service in the M. E. Church of Avoca, Nebraska. We are indebted to "Harker Post, No. 51, G. A. R.," for the use of their large tent, in which we held a number of meetings. One school-house was closed by vote against us, and that by those who had never heard a sermon preached. I therefore feel to excuse them. In all places where I have preached there are urgent calls for my return, and new calls are made from a number of places. Outside of my appointed field, with the consent of those in charge, I spoke once at Independence, Missouri, and in Iowa at Armour Hall, Wheeler's Grove camp-meeting, and at Shenandoah. Have worked in season and out of season, in both heat and cold, sunshine and storm, and have never let an opportunity pass to advance the cause of truth, have contended earnestly for the right, and whenever it became necessary for me to yield, I did so, seeking to occupy the vantage ground for the cause, believing that when no principle of truth is compromised, it is our duty to make friends with all men, provided the truth is advanced and we are not censurable. Have been blest in administering baptism to thirty-seven persons, the most of whom were married people, confirmed a few, blessed some children, and administered to the sick a number of times, and to some who were not members of the church, and God was not unmindful of the prayers offered in behalf of the afflicted. I have spoken words of comfort, consolation and cheer, as also words of admonition and reproof, in all of which I have faithfully sought the guidance of the Holy Spirit. I have studied and tried to practice financial economy. God has blest me with a help-meet that is willing to sacrifice for the spread of the gospel. I feel that my first duty is to my family, after which my whole desire is to be found useful in bringing souls to Christ. Like one of old I can say, "Woe is me, if I preach not the gospel." My pen has not been idle during the past year.

I am still willing to devote myself in the ministry, for establishing the good name of Zion. May unity, peace, and the light of God's Spirit be with this Conference.

Elder J. N. White, President of the Second Quorum of Elders, present, reports:

Since my appointment to the "Western Missouri Mission" I have moved my family to Clinton, Henry county, Missouri, where I arranged my affairs for the work, and took my field of labor in November. Since that time I have labored in Henry, St. Clair, Cedar, Johnson and Jackson counties. I have been acting as President of the Independence, (Mo.) District since the last district conference held there. This field is fast opening, calls are numerous, and our cause is arresting the attention of good, thinking people. There has been but few baptisms under my special care, yet I think there is an early harvest ahead. I am ready to continue my work should it be thought wisdom by this body.

Elder R. Etzenhouser, President of the Fifth Quorum of Elders, present, reports:

After the last General Conference I was detained some weeks. Doing labor by the way, reached my field early in June, since which time I have been busily engaged. My labor being mostly in Des Moines and Eastern Iowa districts. The former is in fair condition, but needs care and help other than its own force. The Eastern Iowa is on the decline, and its surviving is dependent upon what help it gets from this body. Under special direction of Bro. Lambert, and by appointment of district conference, together with brethren D. S. Holmes and J. S. Roth, a matter of serious harm and long standing was tried by us as a court and settled we think; which in its time had damaged the work much in Davenport, and all but destroyed it at Clinton, as also the entire district, more or less. In this peculiar and unpleasant task, I had unqualified peace of mind.

I attended the Park Bluff and Galland's Grove Reunions, furnished reports of the first to Burlington and Keokuk papers; and of the latter to Des Moines and Council Bluffs papers. At the request of Bro. McDowell, and with the consent of Brn. Lambert and Blair, assisted Bro. McDowell a week at Council Bluffs. Have labored at many points, old and new; baptized 7, ordained one Elder, have been richly blessed in much of my work. Late in the year there seemed to be a necessity for me to quit the field; but, as I tried to so arrange, a complete reversal took place. I am ready for work if the body see fit to so order. The twenty-six counties of the Des Moines District still affords ample room for me; and I am provided so that there I can travel for one half as much as in any other place. I hope to be placed where the work can be best served.

Elder J. F. Burton writes from Queensferry, Australia:

Since my last report I have labored in the colonies of New South Wales and Victoria, the greatest distance between places visited being about 800 miles. All the branches organized by my predecessors in the mission have been revived, and are now in fair working order, except the Bungwall branch, the members of which have removed to Nambucca, and now form that branch and the Sydney branch. There has been one new branch organized—the Hastings Branch.

I have held over 200 services, (some of them being prayer and testimony meetings, the others preaching), either on the streets, in private houses or public halls, as circumstances would permit. There have been 32 persons baptized, some by the Elders here, and nineteen by myself. I have also ordained 4 Priests, 1 Teacher, and attended to the ordinances of confirmation, blessing children and administering to the sick. I also held a discussion two evenings with a Christadelphian. The present outlook is favorable for a steady increase slowly to the church, only limited by the labor to be done by "the reapers of life's harvest," and may be much aided by the pious Christ-like life of the Saints. It is gratifying to me to be able to report to you that God has confirmed his word spoken, by the tokens following the believer here as well as elsewhere, and that I have been blest with the Divine Spirit in all my ministerial duties more than ever before. Praying that God will bless you with the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in reference to the things of the kingdom, and being still at your disposal, I am your fellow laborer and brother in Christ.

Elder F. M. Sheehy, present, reports:

Since my appointment by you at last General Conference to the Eastern Mission, I have labored constantly in the field, attending to such duties as fall to the lot of a missionary. I have opened up new points in Maine, at Epping, Blue Hill, Sargentsville, Tenant's Harbor, Martinsville, Clark's Island, Hart's Neck, New Harbor and Lisbon Falls. Have also preached at Jonesport, Indian River, Jonesboro, Look's Point, Addison, Green's Landing, Brooksville, Bray's Mountain. As a rule have been blessed with the Holy Spirit, and in an especial manner in the presentation of the word in preaching. Have labored some in different parts of the Massachusetts District. The prospects for the work in Maine are encouraging. A disposition on the part of the Saints of more spiritual devotion and zeal is quite clearly manifest. At Green's Landing they are building a new chapel. I wish to call your attention to the fact that we need more laborers in the east. The opportunities for new openings are very abundant, the people are anxious to hear. Prejudice consequent upon a misunderstanding of the difference between us and the Utah abominations is fast receding. The public are becoming informed relative to these features, so that it hardly requires an explanation from us. The public press in many instances are kindly disposed towards us. Now seems to be the opportune time for the church to work in the east with a large missionary force, and we are anxiously looking towards you for help in this direction. The labors of Bro. W. H. Kelley were appreciated, and his return is earnestly requested by the people of Maine.

Elder F. C. Warnky, present, reports:

My labors the past year have been as per appointment in Missouri and in Wyandotte County, Kansas, with little exception. The greater part of my labors have been in the Independence District, over which I presided most of the time. I rejoice in the onward march of the church, the redemption of Zion—the people by righteousness and the land by purchase. In my effort scattering the bread of life broad cast, I have been greatly blessed, and my soul made to rejoice in the glorious truths of the message that we hear, when we see God confirming our efforts with signs following. I have let no opportunity pass by, but have labored as best I could, as my circumstances would permit. Have preached thirty-nine times, assisted Bro. W. J. Smith in one discussion, baptized ten, blessed several children, solemnized one marriage, and administered to many that were sick. I desire to labor until the victory is won, and the crown obtained.

Elder Henry Kemp, present, reports:

Having been appointed by your honorable body convened at Independence, Mo., on the 6th of April, 1885 to labor in Southwestern Iowa, I labored to the best of my ability in the field assigned me. My labors have been chiefly in the Fremont District. I have devoted my entire time for the year; have sought to build up and strengthen the Saints; have discharged the duties of district president as best I could; have administered to the sick and the afflicted, and on some occasions with marked results; have also blessed children, and solemnized marriages. I can truly say I have been greatly blessed in preaching the word, had good congregations in almost every place, and the best of attention paid by those not of our faith. Quite a number have moved west from the district in search of new homes, and some have passed away to await "the resurrection of the just." We have not added many to our numbers, but the Saints generally feel well. I have only baptized one, but many are believing, and I think ere long will obey. We sow the seed, and another may water, but it is God that gives the increase. I am still desirous to do what I can for the work of our God, and desire to do the will of the Master in all things. I love the work, and shall pray and labor for its interest to the best of my ability, and hope with you to stand the test and endure while life shall last.

Elder Hiram Rathbun, present, reports:

Having received an appointment (as self-supporting) from the General Conference to labor under Bro. W. H. Kelley in Michigan and Northern Indiana, I have, under the circumstances, endeavored to labor to the best of my ability. It has been a great comfort to me, after a providential absence for many years, to find myself again at home with those of like precious faith, and in unity together labor for the successful triumph of the Master's work, whose great mission into the world was "That He might destroy the works of the devil," and to prepare a people for his coming.

During the past year my labors have mostly been in juxtaposition with others, and perhaps I received much more good than I was able to communicate to others. For nearly the last two months I have been alone, only that I have felt that God was with me. In this time I have blessed five children, administered to eight sick persons with satisfactory results, have baptized and confirmed ten, organized a branch at Webberville with seventeen members, received Elder Thomas Horton, of Williamston, upon his original baptism and ordination, who was elected president of the branch at Webberville. We also organized another branch at Dimondale with twelve members, and at that place ordained George McClintock to the office of a Priest, and he was elected president of the branch, and Bro. Franklin Spafford clerk. We would further say that we have a branch at Lansing of ten members. This branch was organized on Christmas last by Bro. E. C. Briggs, whose excellent labors were very much appreciated by the Saints. Bro. Kelleys, Scott and Deuel have each labored at these places, and will never be forgotten by the Saints. In behalf of the Saints in these places we say, God bless them all. The Saints in these branches are in good spirits, hopeful and cheerful. The outlook is indeed quite auspicious. In God we hope and trust. Amen.

Elder H. L. Holt, present, reports:

Have labored as appointed, in Northern Iowa, Dakota, and Minnesota. Have held meetings in thirty-two places, sixteen of them new ones; baptized twelve, and organized one branch. I consider the work in Minnesota in a good condition. The Saints, with few exceptions, are favorably disposed to the financial law. I think it highly important that an Elder be sent there.

Elder A. H. Parsons, present, reports:

My labors the past year have been in the Northwest Kansas District, have presided over the same the last year. Have baptized ten, blessed a number of children, administered to the sick, and most every time the Lord bestowed instant relief; solemnized one marriage ceremony; preached one funeral, have opened several new places with good results, and have been blessed in presenting the truth and meeting opposition. My faith grows stronger and firmer as I grow older in years.

Elder Peter Anderson writes from Salt Lake City, Utah:

I labored in Western Iowa and Eastern Nebraska till in the latter part of July, when according to call from the First Presidency, I went to Utah to labor in the Rocky Mountain Mission. Since my arrival here I have visited and labored in five counties, and in fourteen different settlements, at the same time attending to the editorial work of Sandhedens Banner. Have delivered about one hundred discourses, baptized six and performed such other duties as pertain to my calling.

With few exceptions my labor has been among the Scandinavians. It is claimed that there are about 40,000 of those people in this Territory, so you may know that the field is large enough for one man at least. If your honorable body should deem it wisdom to appoint any Scandinavian Elders, I hope you will send them to this mission. Some have united with us, and more are with us in faith. Many read the Danish paper with great interest, and while their big, as well as small guns and Cannons flee from justice, we propose presenting this glorious latter day work to this people in its true light. It is sufficient for me to say that I believe a solid foundation has been laid, and it is now our duty to wisely build thereon. To this end I am your fellow laborer.

Elder M. H. Bond, present, reports:

I have been laboring in the Eastern Mission, as per appointment. I have been blessed in my endeavors to preach the gospel of Christ; and the result of my experience has been to settle and ground me in the faith which we as an organization are called to represent. There is no relationship between the demands of the work in the east and the present supply of laborers. The calls are many, and the opportunities for an intelligent presentation of our faith never so numerous as now. At present, as you are aware, I am the only laborer continuously in the field. I understand that the hands of the district president are partly loosed, and that more preaching may be expected of him in the future. He is a man of faith and works—an able gospel exponent, and has the confidence of the Saints of the district. Local laborers are doing what they can in many places for the success of the work, and there are signs of encouragement in and out of the church. One of the most serious causes of hindrance in some places, in my opinion, is the lack of enforcement of the law of the church against persistent and long continued offenders. I have endeavored to work in the interests of the church, with a view of securing a permanent and reliable constituency rather than that of adding names to the church record.

There are many noble and God-fearing people in that country, whose love of truth seems paramount to selfish interests. God is blessing such in many and wonderful ways. Our faith in God is strong, and in the ultimate triumph of the Redeemer's kingdom; and the fact that the Master has so faithfully redeemed all the promises made to us that relate to the present—encourages us to press forward toward the prize that lies at the end of the race.

Elder F. P. Scarcliff writes from Lamberta, Baldwin county, Alabama:

For the past six months I have been laboring under the appointment of Elder Geo. Montague, president of the South-Eastern Mission, and have been for the most part self-sustaining. I love the work and desire to devote myself to the service of God and his truth. I have labored mostly in the Mobile District, making only a short visit to the Florida District. No local preaching is being done in the latter district, no meetings of any kind so far as I could learn have been held since Bro. Montague was there about a year ago, excepting some services held in a few of the branches by Elder G. R. Scoggin of the Alabama District, last winter. He returned to the district again about March 1st at the request of brethren there, and with the intention of preaching in that district for a while. I went to Santa Rosa in March to attend conference. No business was transacted. There are upwards of two hundred members in this district, but they are almost entirely without faithful, living shepherds. I have warm feeling for the Saints in that district; many acts of kindness have they shown me in the past. For five years I visited them from time to time, I was with them in fasting and prayer, and in pain and with tears I tried to serve them.

While there is room for great improvement in the Mobile District, it is not in so bad a condition as the Florida District. Some local preaching is being done. There are many calls for preaching, and some promising openings have been made. I desire to labor in this mission, and will devote all or part of my time as circumstances may permit. During the past year I have carried a pack on my back, tracts in pockets, and gospel love in my heart, selling goods to pay my expenses, care for my family, and pay off indebtedness contracted whilst engaged in the service of the church. I have taken my pack off my back, conducted baptismal services, and had the sure witness from above that my labor was accepted of God. Have administered to the sick with good results. My crosses and trials have been severe, but I feel cheerful, determined to battle on for the right, feeling satisfied that I must work out my salvation with the gospel armor on. I am still in an embarrassed condition financially, and have given a statement of my affairs in my report to the Bishopric and Twelve.

Priest A. J. Moore, present, reports:

I have labored to the best of my ability in the field assigned me, spent three months in Nodaway District, the most of the time assisting experienced Elders. The Saints there desire this conference to send an Elder to help them, but as there are so many calls, and believing the president of this mission has done all he could, and no doubt will, if possible send an Elder, I do not think it necessary to urge the request. Have assisted others in the Decatur District, and baptized six. I would prefer assisting in the branch or district this year, so I can have access to the church library, but should I be assigned a field of labor, I do not think I will murmur.

Elder Charles Herzing, writes from Severance, Kansas:

When I asked an appointment of last conference, I had no doubt but I should be able to fill the same, that is, to devote most of my time to the ministry; but it is with much regret that I report to you not having been able to do so. Being sorely disappointed in some of my expectations and some of my seemingly well laid plans, I consequently had to remain at home. It caused me a good deal of uneasiness and fretting, but we can not overcome impossibilities, and we are all more or less controlled by circumstances. I can assure you that my heart is in this work, for I know it is of God; and to take an active part in the same is the uppermost thought of my heart. It is only a question of a little more time with me, and till then, with the help of the Lord, I will study and learn and prepare myself for the work which I know is the Lord's will for me to do.

Elder Clarence St. Clair, writes from Independence, Missouri:

Since last December I have been laboring incessantly, having preached seventy-eight times, baptized twelve, and ministered to some few sick with good results following. My desires are to be faithful in the work of the latter days, and to be in unity with all the church authorities, believing as I do that unless we are one we shall fail in accomplishing the work demanded of us by our calling in Christ, if we have one head we must also have one body, and that each member must be in unison with each other, or we will be found guilty of warring with each other, and thereby destroy ourselves and the work. As for myself, I shall ever hold myself in readiness to do the Master's will at all times.

Elder L. R. Devore, writes from Vale's Mills, Ohio:

Since December, 1885, have labored at Downardville, Jackson county, Creola, Mt. Zion, Eagle Furnace, and Vale's Mills in Vinton county, and at the "school lot" in Meigs. Have delivered fifty-eight discourses, baptized eleven, blessed twenty-five children, had excellent liberty in declaring the "word," for which I humbly thank Him who is the author of this grand work. I have tried to "make friends to the cause," being admonished by Bro. W. H. Kelley so to do. I have endeavored to build wisely, and trust the work may stand. We ask to be remembered by your honorable body as a district, (South Eastern Ohio and West Virginia). Bro. W. H. Kelley is somewhat acquainted with our wants, and to him we shall look for a consideration by the body assembled. The district does not feel able to send a delegate at this time. My desire is to be present with you during the session, but with me it is a financial impossibility. Temporal circumstances will ere long admonish me to return home, but my heart is in the work, and for its ultimate triumph I shall pray.

Elder James Moler writes from Jackson County, Ohio:

Having been chosen to travel and preach in this district the past winter, I have been actively engaged in preaching and traveling seventy one days, besides doing labor in the branch and vicinity, have preached in all sixty-five times, baptized nineteen, administered to many sick folk, blessed some children, have opened up the work in four new places: one in Ohio and three in West Virginia. It seems necessary that those in West Virginia be looked after. There have been a few gathered in at two of the places, and I think that in Summers County there can be a branch established near the county seat, as soon as it can be visited by one who is wise, and able to represent the church in all of its doctrines; but none need not go unless they are competent to defend the truth. I spent the means that was furnished me by the Bishop, in traveling to spread the truth; have given my time, except a little aid from the Saints, (for which I am thankful). I desire to do all that I can in this great work, and to go forth in to new fields as much as I can. If I can get means to bear expenses of travel, (which are not very great, as I travel a great deal on foot), I could go and labor in the Master's vineyard each winter.

Elder Albert Haws, writes from Sweet Home, Oregon:

Agreeable to appointment of the General Conference and arrangements made with the First Presidency, I started for Oregon on the 23d day of January, 1886, on board the steamer Oregon, just after the worst storm that ever was known on this coast; the waves were running mountains high, and all broken up, or what is called a "chopped sea," dashing against the steamer with terrible force, and it was but a short time before nearly all on board were in their births paying tribute to Neptune, and with the rest I began to feel very much affected. But putting my trust in God, whom I try to serve, I went to my room, laid down in my berth, (for I could not stand up nor kneel without something to hold to), and prayed to my Father to remove the sickness, and it was done, and I enjoyed the balance of the voyage with the exception of having to sleep standing on my head half of the time. I arrived in Portland on the 25th and found friends in waiting for me; rested a day or two, then commenced hunting for some Saints who live in Portland; secured a hall, preached three times with good liberty, fair attendance and good attention; but on account of the great revival meetings and the excitement over the Chinese, etc., I concluded to wait until circumstances were more favorable. I visited several families, and distributed quite a number of tracts; made some friends and removed some prejudice. Visited Milwaukee, stayed several days, gave out tracts, and talked with the people, but failed to get a place to speak in. On the 26th of February, took train for Brawfordsville, Linn county, and on Sunday I preached in a school-house, had a fine turn out, good attention, and an invitation to come again. On the second of March, Bro. Alney brought me up here, and I commenced preaching on Friday evening to a full house, and have preached eight times; five at Sweet Home, and three at the Moss School-house, the people coming for miles through the mud, rain, and dark nights, paying the best of attention, many enviting me to their houses. Several new places were opened to preach in, and those who have been very much prejudiced in the past have attended meetings. I have been blessed with the best liberty I ever had in presenting the word, and the few brethren here feel quite encouraged, and think "the set time to favor Zion has come." I have not been able to get the Saints together yet, but expect to on Sunday next. They are scattered some distance apart, and hold meetings once a month. It has been raining very hard, and we could not fill our appointment last night; have two appointments out now, and I can say that the out-look is very favorable for the future. I am willing to do all I can, and to remain in this field if the conference so orders.

Elder Thomas Dailey writes from Brighton, California:

I have labored in the Northern District of California during this last year, have baptized nineteen, and have been greatly blessed in preaching the word and administering to the sick. I was elected last fall at our semi-annual conference, held at San Francisco, to preside over the district. I served faithfully, giving good satisfaction as far as I can learn, and was re-elected at our last conference held at Stockton, March 19th, 1886. It is my intention to labor in the district, God being my helper.

Elder John McKenzie, writes from Jefferson City, Missouri:

My faith was never so strong, nor my view so clear of what has to be done to fit ourselves to enter into that rest which is appointed for the people of God. When I look over the field of labor, we have made great progress the last year. O, may God send his Spirit upon the Elders and officers of the church, that there may be unity and harmony in their councils, that they may realize his presence in their midst to comfort and sustain them in the work to be done for the salvation of men. And I trust the salt land will not be forgotten in this their time of trouble. They have sinned heavily against light and knowledge, but God is merciful, and many will come back to their first love. I am in good health and ready to do what I can for the work.

HISTORY OF THE REORGANIZATION OF THE CHURCH.

BY ZENAS H. GURLEY, SEN.,

Dated at Blanchardville, La Fayette County, Wisconsin, October 23d, 1859.

ACCORDINGLY the subject was presented as follows:—1st. Is polygamy of God? 2d. Is any addition necessary to the pamphlet before its publication?

Before opening the meeting, we made the church acquainted with our design, and while singing the opening hymn the Holy Spirit was sensibly felt. Several sung in tongues, and while engaged in prayer the veil was at least partly rent, and the manifestation of the Spirit was such as was seldom witnessed by mortals on earth. I have been a member of the church some twenty-three years, and in the course of my ministry have witnessed the manifestation of the Spirit in many of the branches, but never had witnessed what I did that evening. God was truly with us, and many felt to say with the poet, "Angels now are hovering o'er us." This was on the eve of the 9th of January, 1853, ever memorable with the Saints of God. About half an hour afterwards we received through the Spirit the following, as nearly as we could write it:

"Polygamy is an abomination in the sight of the Lord God: it is not of me; I abhor it. I abhor it, as also the doctrines of the Nicolaitans, and the men or set of men who practice it. I judge them not, I judge not those who practice it. Their works shall judge them at the last day. Be ye strong; ye shall contend against this doctrine; many will be led into it honestly, for the devil will seek to establish it and roll it forth to deceive. (d)

"They seek to build up their own kingdoms, to suit their own pleasures, but I countenance it not, saith God. I have giv-

(d) This prophecy is significant from the fact it was delivered only four months and ten days after the polygamy revelation was first publicly proclaimed. And it is highly probable that none at this conference knew of that fact, for the reason that the news could not have reached the public prints, for this was before telegraph or railway lines had reached Utah, and it took a long time to transmit news to the States, especially in the fall and winter.

en my law: I shrink not from my word. My law is given in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, but they have disregarded my law and trampled upon it, and counted it a light thing, and obeyed it not; but my word is the same yesterday as to-day, and forever. (e)

"As you have desired to know of me concerning the pamphlet, it is written in part, but not in plainness. It requires three more pages to be written, for it shall go forth in great plainness, combatting this doctrine, and all who receive it not, it shall judge at the last day. Let this be the voice of the Lord in the pamphlet, for it shall go forth in great plainness, and many will obey it and turn unto me, saith the Lord."

This accounts for the last three pages in our first pamphlet, and we most earnestly commend that article to the careful reading of all that have ever known the latter day work, and pray God our Heavenly Father, in the name of Jesus Christ His Son, to break every band that binds them, that they may be enabled to turn to the law from which they have strayed. Shortly after this communication was given, it was intimated by the Spirit that we must organize. This was strange teaching to me. I replied, It is impossible for us to organize farther than we have. I knew that we could not create a priesthood. I conversed with several of the brethren on the subject, and we set it down as a mistake.

It was now March. Our April Conference was near at hand, and we were unable to decide on the validity of the ordinations of our brethren, who were present at the Fall Conference, and as we all felt satisfied with the answer of our inquiry concerning polygamy, we thought the most proper course for us was to make this also a subject of prayer. Accordingly we presented a question something like this: "were those ordained apostles by Wm. Smith, recognized of God?"

The manifestation of the Spirit was fully equal to any on former occasions, and perhaps it is well to say that this was the first time that the angels of God were seen present in our meetings. I did not see them, but before they were seen, the Spirit declared through me that they were near, and immediately after several were transfixed as it were, by the power of God, as were many in the days of King Benjamin.

Some little time elapsed, nearly an hour I judge, before we received an answer to our inquiry. We were then told that those ordinations were not acceptable,—were not of God, and near the close of the communication we were told expressly to organize ourselves, "for ere long, saith the

(e) Here, for the third time at least, the Spirit of God approves and enjoins the authority of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants in the instruction and government of the church. And here the Spirit also rebukes the sin of those who had "disregarded" God's "law" written therein and had "trampled upon it, and counted it a light thing, [as foreshown, March 8th, 1833, Doc. and Cov. 87:2], and obeyed it not." The church should now profit by the divine admonitions, and thus avoid falling under similar condemnation for similar unbelief.

Lord, I will require the Prophet at your hand." Such was the manifestation of the power of God, that not a doubt was left on our minds concerning the source from which the commandment came. We all knew it was from God, but how to organize was the question. We knew we could not create priesthood, we had two High Priests, and one Seignior President of the Seventies, but how could these men organize the church? It was impossible, utterly impossible. We counselled upon it and concluded that possibly under the present circumstances it might be right for High Priests to ordain High Priests and for the Seignior President of Seventies to ordain Seventies, but when done what would it accomplish?—nothing—just nothing. We were in trouble—deep trouble—to refuse to organize was disobedience—to go forward in the attempt was darkness. There was but one alternative, and that was to seek wisdom from above.

We sought the Lord, and in answer were told to appoint a day and come together fasting and praying, and the Lord would show us how to organize. We therefore appointed the day, dismissed the meeting and went home rejoicing.

Immediately after our meeting we discovered that the "prince of darkness" was fully bent on preventing us from receiving the communication. We came together on the day appointed, and found that some had not fasted as commanded, and as several were present who did not belong to the church, it was thought best to omit our prayer meeting till evening, and spend the day in preaching. Before evening the way was made clear, and at night all came together in good faith, rejoicing that we had the opportunity of seeking for the information we needed, viz: how to organize the church.

We then presented the following question:

1st. Will the Lord please to tell us how to organize, that what we do may be acceptable unto Him, and who among us will He acknowledge as the representative of the "legal heir" to the Presidency of church?

There was not so much of the manifestation of the Spirit at this time as upon former occasions, nevertheless a good feeling and influence prevailed. After the meeting had continued about one hour, a man belonging to the Brighamites, about half drunk, came in and took a seat among us. Shortly after this a brother (f) came to me and asked if I had received any answer to our question. I said "No." He said, "I have." At my request he sat down and wrote it. It read as follows:

"Verily thus saith the Lord, as I said unto my servant Moses, 'see thou do all things according to the pattern,' so I say unto you. Behold the pattern is before you. It is my will that you respect authority in my church, therefore let the greatest among you preside at your conference. Let three men be appointed by the conference to select (g) seven men from among you, who shall compose the majority of the Twelve, for it is my will that that quorum should not be filled up at present. Let the president of the conference, assisted by two others, ordain them. The senior of them shall stand as the representative. Let them select twelve men from among you, and ordain them to compose my high Council. Behold ye understand the order of the Bishoprick, the Seventies, the Elders, the Priests, Teachers and Deacons. Therefore organize according to the pattern, [In Doc. & Cov.—Ed.], behold I will be with you unto the end, even so. Amen.”

(f) This "brother" was H. H. Deam. He had been ordained a High Priest under the hands of Pres. Hyrum Smith, and therefore held the highest priesthood authority of any present on that occasion.

We did not think it advisable to bring this communication before the church at that time to get the testimony of the Spirit concerning it, for, as I said, one was with us of the Salt Lake order. So we concluded to wait until the Saints were alone. This was on the 20th of March, 1853. I folded it up and put it in my pocket, resolving that we would have the testimony of the Spirit through the entire church before I would receive it, and I furthermore resolved that if the revelation was ever brought to the knowledge of the church, it should be done by the power of God, and not of man.

The 6th of April finally came, and nearly all the church came together. On the 5th, as we had been commanded to organize, we thought it advisable to seek for instructions. We accordingly called a prayer meeting, and as we did not get the desired instruction, we continued it on the sixth. We were then told to organize by what was written. We supposed this referred to the books, of course. Our next step was to organize the conference. This was now a difficult matter. As I have said, it had become a law to us that the one holding the highest priesthood should preside. There were present two High Priests, and one senior President of the Seventies. The question now arose, whose priesthood is the highest? The subject was discussed at length, and what was strange to us all, a good deal of ill feeling was manifested.

I have often thought of it. It seemed as though each one thought that the salvation of the church depended on the decision being made according to their respective views; so we argued—so we debated, till the close of the second day, when we began to think the work was lost. And I would to God that all Latter Day Saints could know the situation of the church at this time—our feelings—our deep distress—our great anxiety. I considered all was lost—lost—lost. We could not organize. O, the bitterness of that moment! We could not see “eye to eye.” God had commanded us to do what we absolutely could not do. To my mind, and to the mind of others, our effort was a failure. Kind reader, when your eye falls upon these lines, know that at that time the one who is now penning this, asked God to remove him from the earth. Men who hitherto had been united—had seen “eye to eye”—had labored together as one man for the cause of truth, were now opposed to each other, and after a discussion of two days learned to their mortification and sorrow that they, to all human appearances, were forever separate. The Spirit the night before had told a few in a prayer meeting that “To-morrow they shall see eye to eye.” But the day closed and we were farther apart than on the former evening. Our attempts were a failure. I repeat, O, the bitterness of that moment, never, never shall I forget it. Although since that time darkness, like Egyptian night has at times seemed to shut out all light and exclude all hope, yet the recollection of that event has enabled me to rest satisfied that He who delivered us then still holds the reins in His own hands, and will bring His work to a glorious consummation, in his own way, and in his own time. The conference adjourned for prayer meeting in the evening. We accordingly came together at early candle light, and commenced the meeting as is usual on such occasions. For a short time it seemed as though the “prince of darkness” triumphed. After a little, one of the brethren arose and rebuked the Devil. Shortly after some sprang to their feet saying, “Angels, angels, brethren, are near us”—and in a moment our darkness was turned into light. The transition was instantaneous. The glory of God, such as I never witnessed before, was manifest. The Spirit seemed to rest upon all in the house. Three were in vision, the Spirit testifying through others at the same time that the Recording Angel was present. And as we afterwards learned, two of the three who were in vision saw the Roll, while the third saw the Angel and the Roll.

(g) This was after “the pattern” given in selecting the Twelve, February 14th, 1835: “President Joseph Smith, jun., said that the first business of the meeting was for the three witnesses of the Book of Mormon to pray, each one, and then proceed to choose twelve men from the church, as Apostles, to go to all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people. The three witnesses, namely, Oliver Cowdery, David Whitmer and Martin Harris, united in prayer. These three witnesses were then blessed by the laying on of the hands of the Presidency. The witnesses then, according to a former commandment proceeded to make choice of the Twelve.” See also Doctrine and Covenants 16:6.

Just before this manifestation the brother through whom the revelation had come on the 20th of March, directing us how to organize, arose to his feet and said, “Brethren, some kind of a spirit tells me that I have the commandment written that we need.” He then said, “I will read it, and I wish the church to pray that we may know whether it is from God or not.” He then took out and read the revelation which was given us on the 20th of March, remarking that he was not positive that the “senior” should preside. It was then submitted to the church. I was not aware until then that any one but myself had this revelation.

In reply to the inquiry as to whether the revelation was of God, the Spirit through a number answered that it was. We were then told that the Lord had withheld his Spirit from his Elders to show them that they had not sufficient wisdom in and of themselves to organize. He said, “If I had shown you at first, all would apostatize, as it is many of you will apostatize, but some will remain, and they shall be a means in my hands of bringing back others.”

We were then commanded to organize according to the revelation given the 20th of March, with the assurance that the Lord would be with us to the end. The congregation that evening was large. The school-house was filled literally full of Saints, and I believe that every one was satisfied that the revelation was from God, and that the angel that keeps the record of the Lord’s work in every dispensation was in our midst.

The next morning the conference met and proceeded to organize as instructed. Jason W. Briggs was chosen to preside.

On motion Ethan Griffith, Wm. Cline and Cyrus Newkirk were appointed a committee to select seven men to be ordained into the Quorum of Apostles. On motion Bro. Samuel Blair was sustained in the office of general Church Recorder. On motion Jason W. Briggs was chosen Church Historian. The committee of three to select seven to be ordained Apostles chose the following named persons, viz: Zenos H. Gurley, Henry H. Deam, Jason W. Briggs, Daniel B. Razy, John Cunningham, George White, Reuben Newkirk, who were accordingly ordained.

On motion a stake of Zion was established in the town of Argyle, Lafayette county, Wisconsin.

On motion Wm. Cline was chosen and ordained president of the stake. On motion Brn. Cyrus Newkirk and Isaac Butterfield were chosen and ordained his counsellors.

On motion the following persons were ordained into the Quorum of the Seventies, viz: David Newkirk, Wm. Cline, Jun., Wm. Newkirk, Ira Guilford, George Godfrey, Wm. Smith, Wm. Hartshorn, Wm. White, Benj. R. Tatem, Ethan Griffith, Samuel Blair, George W. Harlow, Horace W. Ovitt, Edwin Wildermuth, Major Godfrey, Wm. Griffith, John Butterfield and Wm. Harlow.

Conference adjourned to meet at Zarahemla, Wisconsin, on the 6th of October, 1853.

The next evening after the close of this conference, we had a joyful time. The Lord told us the acts of this conference were recorded in heaven, and to the seven Apostles he said:

“I give unto you the care of my flock on earth, take the oversight of them as you shall give an account unto me in the day of judgment.”

I will here add a word for the benefit of others. When the commandment to organize first came we thought it impossible for us to obey, not having authority to ordain Apostles, etc.; but we learned what every Latter Day Saint must learn, that a command from God is authority to do all that he requires, be it more or less. (h).

This part of the history will be accompanied with some instruction to the church from Bro. Newkirk and myself, in relation to our present duties in preparing the way for the coming of the Prophet.

(h) This transaction was similar to that of the calling and ordination of Joseph and Oliver to the Melchisedek priesthood at the first, of which Joseph the Seer wrote as follows:—"We now became anxious to have that promise realized to us, which the angel that conferred upon us the Aaronic priesthood had given us, namely, that provided we continued faithful, we should also have the Melchisedek priesthood, which holds the authority of the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. We had for some time made this matter a subject of humble prayer, and at length we got together in the chamber of Mr. Whitmer's house, in order more particularly to seek of the Lord what we now so earnestly desired; and here, to our unspeakable satisfaction did we realize the truth of the Savior's promise: 'Ask, and you shall receive; seek, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you;' for we had not long been engaged in solemn and fervent prayer, when the word of the Lord came unto us in the chamber, commanding us that I should ordain Oliver Cowdery to be an Elder in the Church of Jesus Christ, and that he also should ordain me to the same office, and then to ordain others as it should be made known unto us from time to time. We were, however, commanded to defer this our ordination until such times as it should be practicable to have our brethren, who had been and who should be baptized, assembled together, when we must have their sanction to our thus proceeding to ordain each other, and have them decide by vote whether they were willing to accept us as spiritual teachers or not; when also we were commanded to bless bread and break it with them, and to take wine, bless it, and drink it with them; afterward proceed to ordain each other according to commandment; then call out such men as the Spirit should dictate and ordain them; and then attend to the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, upon all those whom we had previously baptized, doing all things in the name of the Lord." * * * "Whilst the Book of Mormon was in the hands of the printer, we still continued to bear testimony and give information, as far as we had an opportunity; and also made known to our brethren that we had received commandment to organize the church: and accordingly we met together for that purpose, at the house of the above mentioned Mr. P. Whitmer, being six in number, on Tuesday, the sixth day of April, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and thirty. Having opened the meeting by solemn prayer to our heavenly Father, we proceeded, according to previous commandment, to call on our brethren to know whether they accepted us as their teachers in the things of the kingdom of God, and whether they were satisfied that we should proceed and be organized as a church according to said commandment which we had received. To these they consented by an unanimous vote. I then laid my hands upon Oliver Cowdery and ordained him an Elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints: after which he ordained me also to the office of an Elder of said church. We then took bread, blessed it, and brake it with them; also wine, blessed it, and drank it with them. We then laid our hands on each individual member of the church present, that they might receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, and be confirmed members of the Church of Christ. The Holy Ghost was poured out upon us to a very great degree—some prophesied, whilst we all praised the Lord, and rejoiced exceedingly. Whilst yet together, I received the following commandment." [April 6th, 1830, Doc. and Cov.]—Millennial Star Supplement, vol. 14, p. 20, 26.

In both of these cases, persons by direct command of God ordained others to offices in the priesthood which themselves did not hold. Their sole authority for doing this was the special command of God directing it. When the priesthood and all its offices were established and the church organized, there was no need of such procedure; for a law was provided which governs the calling and ordination of all the ministry. But when there was no legal organization of the priesthood and church having authority under the law, in a regular way, to set apart and ordain said officers, then the extraordinary methods commanded by the Spirit of God was the proper alternative.

At the time of which father Gurley writes, the church was in a "rejected," scattered and disorganized state, having departed very largely from the written law and order and doctrine given of God to govern it. And now when these Saints had sought unto God, covenanting that they would take the sacred books of the church and the Holy Spirit for their guide, the work of building up the church necessarily began, and the work of reorganizing as necessarily began to follow, and in the absence of the visible head, the regular President over the whole church, it was proper and right for God to reveal his will through the highest authority then present, [H. H. Deam, a High Priest], as stated by father Gurley.

SERMON BY ELDER JOHN T. DAVIES,

OF PITTSBURG, KANSAS.

In the Saints' Chapel, Lamoni, Iowa,
April 4th, 1886.

[Reported for the Herald and prepared by the Editor.]

"WHOSOEVER transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God; he that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son."

Brothers and Sisters: Although the congregation is to a certain degree, I suppose, a mixed congregation, not all probably who would come in strictly under the head of brothers and sisters. But when we come back to the beginning we find that we are of but one family. We all have one original pair of parents, and we find ourselves all derived from the same family. Under that consideration I think the term brothers and sisters is proper. Since our first parents, there has been quite a change going on among the human family, dividing and subdividing into families, tribes and nations. We are divided religiously and politically. The world is in a divided state, and we have got to take the world as we find it. I would not venture to say that any individual in particular is accountable for the divided state of the world. It did not come to what it is to-day in an age, or in two or three ages; but it has taken all the ages of the past to form the present character of the world. We are not individually responsible for the present character of the world. We are not individually responsible for the condition of the world, but we are responsible for one thing, and that is the part that we take in human destiny; and this part we wish to consider this morning, under the head of the doctrine of Christ. I could find you I suppose, a score of passages alluding to the doctrine of Christ, and the opinions of men in different ages concerning this doctrine; but I do not think I will take that course. I will try and have a little mutual conversation with you about what relates to you and me, and about the salvation that we are aiming at.

I am glad to see so many faces of the old veterans who have assembled themselves here; and there are also many faces that are not familiar to me. But as we said before, we presume, and we think with good reason, that we are all of one family—all of the same family. I address you this morning, not from choice, but the church has a claim upon me; and further, I have a claim upon my God. This is in the very nature of the covenant that I made with God. I was not there when you made this covenant, you were not along when I made my covenant with God; but in that covenant there is a good deal of responsibility assumed upon our part, that is, if your covenant is something similar to mine. When a man says, "I am determined to work out my salvation," he assumes a great deal; and that is the principal reason why I am found engaged in addressing you; for when I assumed to work out my own individual salvation, and do it acceptably, I engaged that I would put forth all my endeavors to assist in the salvation of all others. Is that the case with you, brethren and sisters? Verily, then, it makes us co-workers in the same great cause for the salvation of the race. There is a principle that leads us to press on and leave everybody else behind. There is a principle in the world, if it is worthy of the name, (but I do not think it is worthy of the name), I put my hands on the person next to me and try to lift myself up. But all do not get up that try that way. It is too much like the negro and the basket—getting in and taking hold of the handles to lift himself up! But it would not go up. This principle I speak of amounts to the same thing. If we are really living up to our covenants we will love and try to lift up one another, and not pull one another down. Now the question is this: Do we do this under all circumstances? If we do it, we must not be selfish. Now I wish to try this according to the text from the epistle of John, which I have read. That Christ hath a doctrine our text proves. This was for some purpose. A doctrine is a composition, like unto a nation. A nation is composed of families, and families are composed of individuals. So in regard to doctrine. I claim one privilege, and always have, and I suppose always will, that when I present the gospel of Jesus Christ, I present it as I find it originally delivered to the human family, and for these reasons: there was just sufficient delivered at that time, nothing wanting, and nothing to spare; just sufficient to save the human family; and for that reason, and being human, I claim that we need just the same amount and none less; and we claim the privilege to introduce the gospel of Jesus Christ, the original plan as it was delivered to the ancient saints.

Now to proceed with this matter. Of course we will have to treat with the second element to a certain extent, but not with the intention of injuring anybody nor marring the feelings of any. I for one have feelings, and my feelings are very delicate. Perhaps you know that. Everybody else has feelings just as delicate as yours. Well; for this reason it devolves upon all of us to be very careful in this respect, that we deal justly with one another. Now in regard to the motive of the doctrine of Christ. There is or ought to be a motive in all things, and the principal motive in the doctrine of Christ is life; and that life is of such a nature that it will always continue—that is the motive. In order to substantiate this I will refer you to the language of Christ in his prayer to his Father as recorded in the seventeenth chapter of John and third verse, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." That is the final motive. And to arrive at that end we have to make preparation, we have got to have true religion. This question of religion is now a great thing in the world. But I say in regard to that matter, that religion is not a kind of attachment that you can pin it on to anybody; it is rather the other way. Now I do not suppose that I could more properly illustrate this matter, than by bringing up the character of man. I think religion is pretty much the same as the character of an individual. We can not send east to New York or over to Europe and get a good religion or character manufactured there, and pin it on as an attachment to the individual; I do not think we can. Character is of a different nature altogether; it is home-made; it is made right at home. I will tell you another thing. Your neighbor, (it makes no difference whether he is your friend or your enemy), can not under any circumstances form a character for you or me, and just put it on and tell us we have got to wear that. Character, as you are aware, has got to be made at home, and we should not be ashamed of it.

Well, brothers and sisters, you are all fond of good character; and if you have not a good one, it is your own fault and nobody else's. You are supposed to set a true value upon all men. Now I estimate myself, and it will probably be high; but the question is really whether my estimation is true or not. This is the point for all; whether we have our real value or merely our supposed value. Whether we suppose that we are all more valuable than we really are or not, is a question for us to decide. There is no benefit from the supposed value; but there is actual benefit from the real value. Now in regard to the matter of religion, I look at it just in this way; we ought to have religion, and the more we have of it the better, provided that religion is of the right quality. Now if we had a mind to take the time we could prove from the Scriptures that there is danger in the world. Danger of what? Danger of deception. In a conversation away back yonder some eighteen hundred years ago or a little over, on the mount between Christ and his disciples, they asked him among different questions, "Tell us what signs there shall be of thy coming, and of the end of the world." Now mark you, these two events are to occur after certain signs. "What signs shall there be of thy coming, and of the end of the world." Of course, the Savior naturally would look over the future, and the first impression that he had was to tell them, "Take heed that no man deceive you" Well, there is nothing in that, says one, we are on the lookout for you Latter Day Saints; we are kind of suspicious of you, we think that you are capable of deceiving. Well; is this the case with all men? Some take for granted all that is said, that it is true. But we ought not to do it. No man can do that safely in anything. We ought to take heed that no man deceive us. It makes no difference who the man, or who are the men. Now in regard to the matter of religion, I look at it this way: If it is of the right quality, the more we have of it the better off we are; and if it is not the right quality, the more of it we have the poorer we are. It is just like poor land, the less you have the better off you are; you save a great amount of taxes. But now there is a question, whether our strivings are always wise, and whether they will end beneficially; and this we all should consider. But says one, "I have something in my mind just now." What is it? "I can think, and I am just as right as anybody else around me." That is not the point that you should consider. "What is it then?" You should consider whether you are right or wrong. "Well, if I am wrong, that man there is also wrong." That does not make your account straight. The question for you to determine is, whether you are right yourself. There is a great deal more in this subject under our consideration this morning than I can convey. As we have noticed, religion becomes rather a part of the individual, than an attachment to the individual. We will look at it again in this way. If you will turn to the eighth of Luke you will find there a parable of a sower going forth to sow, and in the eleventh verse the Savior says the seed is the word of God. Now that is the starting point, and the ending point of this parable is the eternal life. Now between the seed point, and the life point, there is considerable of a struggle; considerable of a fight to be fought, and if we are right in that, we have got to look to what we are doing; and to what we should do.

"In regard to this matter of life," says one, "we have life." Yes, but what does it amount to? The title to your land is of longer duration than your life. We all concede that that is true, and the question comes up with some men, Will the cradle begin and the grave end all? That is the question with some. Others are doing what conscience dictates, and they think if they do that, the matter will come out all right, and that they will inherit eternal life. Now if you can do it that way I have no objections—no objections at all. I am perfectly willing for you to go right into heaven in any kind of a way that you can go; but here let me declare that I am a preacher of the rule, and not of the exception to the rule. If you have any exceptions that will do, I have no fault to find. If I have adhered to the rule and have invited you to act in accordance with the rule, I do not see that you can find any fault with me.

Now then in regard to the matter under consideration, the doctrine of Christ. The doctrine of Christ is a composition having shape, and the principles are compounds of truth; and in this age of controversy we have to resolve the composition into its principles, and the principles into their separate truths, and thereby be benefited. Now in regard to the matter of truth, and then with regard to the principles of the doctrine of Christ. I do not know whether you want much scripture or not upon these matters; but I could give you some. In the sixth of Hebrews we have six principles, namely: faith, repentance, baptism, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead and eternal judgment. Is that all? No; I do not suppose it is. "Now," says one, "you have a beginning to the thing, I would like to bring in my principles." Perhaps you are not the standard of proof in the discussion. It is very good to have a standard of proof you know, and in all religious matters ministers claim this standard to be the Scriptures—the Bible. But there are those who will not acknowledge this as a proper standard; then we have to do something else. "We have another rule for them," says one. What is that rule? "Not to talk to them at all." Where did that rule originate, and where will it lead you? My duty as a minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ says that I have got to deal with all men according to the amount of reason that is given to them, or that God has endowed them and me with. We learn from the word of the Lord the importance of truth. Christ says, "Sanctify them through thy truth, thy word is truth." Here we have the importance of truth before us. The word of God is truth, and it is the means of sanctification. Now you have some people, (or have the word of some people, I suppose), who claim they are sanctified in this life. I am glad of it, in this case. But I venture here to take a position, and that is, if there is anybody that is sanctified at all, he is sanctified by truth, and in no other way. I believe that if sanctification is not reached by that means, there is no other way to get at it. I wonder if it would be out of the way to illustrate our understanding of truth. Telling truth is simply telling things as they are; and that ends the matter. The reverse of that is telling things as they are not. Truth may be uttered by inspiration; and that is very necessary to keep it pure and apart, or from being mixed up with error. But the school boys can tell splendid truths. Watch them play marbles outside the school house. They will get into an argument. They will say, "Now, their is five." "No," says the other one, "I dispute it; I demand proof of that." "There are two there." Admit it. "And three there." Admit it. "And two and three make five." Never was there a better truth.

Now in regard to truth's surroundings. At home we have a family of six, and when that is told you, mark now, there can not be any more told about that affair and it be the truth. If anybody goes to work guessing at it, he will be liable to error. We will illustrate that matter in this way: You know that we have rules of weight and measurement, and it is supposed that we understand them. When we go to the store to get anything by measurement, the measure is put to it, and we understand the terms upon which we get the article. And one thing about these scales is, that they tell the same story, for the reason that they tell the truth. Now we will take one more view of it in this way: This room is just so long and just so wide; and we will suppose that I do not know how much the room does measure, and that I go to guessing at it. Well, I do not know, for it is a matter for proof; I am not in the proper condition to decide that matter, until I put the rule to it, and it comes to trial. When that is done correctly there is no more guessing about this affair; it is the truth, and it is the only account of that matter that can be the truth. I suppose you can see that point without my going any further.

Another wonderful thing about truth is this: It is susceptible of demonstration. You can demonstrate it as such. When you bring error to the test you can not demonstrate it as truth. Here I will relate you an argument, and be very brief with it, that I had with an infidel neighbor of mine. Says he to me, "You believe there is a God." Yes, sir, I believe there is a God. "Now, I do not believe a bit of it." You believe there is no God? "Yes; I believe there is no God." Very well; I will ask you one question, my friend: Are all truths susceptible of demonstration, if their conditions are honored? "Oh certainly, certainly, they are all susceptible of demonstration." You say there is no God. I will ask you for the condition, now that you suppose this to be true; (you know they claim to be very fair in argument, and they are always willing to accept the truth if they can find it, and can get any proof of it); now my friend I will ask you for the conditions, the evidence, that I may know there is no God." "But," says he, "I can not do that." If you can not do that, that of itself is a demonstration that your assertion is not true; for the very law that governs truth is capable of demonstrating it to the individual who will follow and honor the conditions of that truth. Will you accept it? "I can not honor whom I do not know."

Now I will leave that line of my argument, and go forward with the doctrine of Christ. We find the doctrine of Christ comes to us in principles, and these principles are composed of certain truths, and these certain truths are capable of demonstration when the conditions are properly honored. Now this is safe ground for an individual to get religion upon. We do not place before the people anything to excite the mind and the feelings; but truth is like a mathematical problem; every factor should be sought; and we then could make correct deductions. The school child knows that in any mathematical problem, if one of the figures are misplaced, the whole sum will be wrong. The child knows that there is something wrong somewhere, but the thing is to know where the wrong is. But wherever it is, it must be found out, and the error righted, then the result will be right and satisfactory.

Now we are seeking the result of the principles of the doctrine of Christ; this is the main object in our discourse. To get at this properly we will bring up one of the things that commonly occur, and that is this: You know well enough that I am connected with such and such a denomination. Yes. You know that my neighbor is connected with it. You are with that peculiar people. Yes that is all fact. Now I believe in regard to this, that our forefathers were very pious and did well, and that some of them were great reformers; they lived and died by their religions, and built up a character according to the greatest light that they had. Some say after all this, after they have lived and died by such religion, would it not be bringing reproach upon them and the means of light which they had for me to change around and adopt something else? Is that a true position? If it is, it will destroy all the school books and religious systems that we have had. At one time our forefathers believed that this earth was a flat plain, and that the sun set, or went down underneath, and rose up on the other side. This was believed for many generations. But to-day we do not believe a word of it. That error was in our forefathers' time. And when Galileo first discovered the truth, (he did not make the truth, he simply discovered it), that the sun was a center of a system of planets, and did not revolve around the earth, the church told him he had better not say that, he must not teach such heresy, he had better retract that. Galileo said that if he did retract, the sun would go down for all that. He had discovered a truth, and it would remain just the same truth if he would deny it. So it is in regard to all the truths connected with man. Our belief and our unbelief does not affect the matter at all. Divine truth remains all the same; we are capable of discovering some of it, and others are capable of discovering other truths.

Now, then, we will come nearer to the point. In regard to one of the principles of the doctrine of Christ, I will give you some of my thoughts, and hope you may be benefited. I never heard a man speak yet but what I could gather something of benefit to me. In regard to the first principle set forth in the Christian religion, the principle of faith, we read that if a man comes of God "he must believe that He is,"—and that ends the matter? No;—"And that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." "I thought," says one, "that it said he may; I thought that must was not connected with religion; I thought that human agency was respected." So it is.

In this matter it must be, it is in the imperative mode. Now I will illustrate that matter of must. Some years ago Bro. Mark and myself were appointed to go to England and Wales on a mission. Of course, if we calculated to fulfill that mission, mark you, we must cross the Atlantic ocean; but if we did not want to fulfill that English mission, the must could be taken out. If you want to gain life—life eternal—you must in the first place, believe that there is a God, and in the next place you must believe that God is a rewarder of those who diligently seek him; these are two things that must be done provided you want to go to that good place; but if you do not want to go there, and are satisfied with some other place, that word, must may be taken out of there. There is another thought that I wish to present. Of course, it is necessary to examine the nature of the faith that was once delivered to the Saints, but I have not time to do so now, you know all about it, or nearly so. There is one thing that I want you to notice, and it is this: The faith that was once delivered—it was no doubt free; it was a gift to the human family. But it has not always remained with the human family. In the next place we are told that "faith comes by hearing." Well, that is corroborative of the statement that it is not always with the human family. It comes; is delivered; it did not always dwell here with the human family. It comes, and it is delivered. We read that "faith is the gift of God." "Well," says one, "that ends the matter; that just satisfies me exactly." Satisfies you in what? "I can sit at home until I have that gift of God; for it is the gift of God." One trouble in regard to this scripture in the minds of many is this: One party will say, "well now, God predetermined, and predestinated, all things, how they should happen, and they come out according to that predetermination. Others will say, "No, no,—on conditions. Now the trouble comes in here; The one that will believe predestination will deny the other truth; and the one who will accept of conditional salvation will reject predestination. But the true manner to proceed on is this; we should be able to work out perfect harmony between the two, for one is just as true as the other, and we should bring out their perfect harmony. So it is with regard to this matter of faith. Faith is the gift of God, and without faith we can not please God. Now the question there is to work out perfect harmony in these truths, and in order to do this I will probably have to tell something about a preacher, and being a preacher myself, I will have some right to talk about preachers, and to examine them. And for fear somebody else might get hurt, I will examine myself—of course you can not find any fault with that.

Now then, in regard to the matter of faith, I will ask one question: Can they believe in God and not believe in the word of God? There is another point here, "How can they hear without a preacher?" In this connection it will be necessary to offer a remark or two in regard to the true and proper position of a preacher. In the first place we will refer you to the commission of Mark 16, "Go ye therefore, and preach the gospel to every creature; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved;" In the first place we here have two parties. The first party, Jesus Christ, and he is the commissioner; and the second parties, mark you, were the apostles. A preacher to be a proper preacher, mark you, is always a second party in the affair, and there are certain qualifications that are necessary for all parties. Now the first party sends the second party to a third party, "every creature." Now, there are certain conditions that entitle a man to a position in one or either of these parties. If you have to be a third party, you must be a big old sinner—that is what qualifies you to be a third party—I speak of myself too. If we are to be a second party, we must be sent of the first party ordered and sent of the first party. And we must, like the sower, have the seed; God furnishes the seed—that is the ideas. "Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God;"—the seed is the word of God. Now the point here is this. The seed contains the germ of life, like all other seeds. I will leave that just now; I want to continue with that preacher affair.

Now the first party, of course, is God, and he has certain qualifications, and upon Christ was laid certain qualifications. "The truth I teach," says he, "is not mine." Whose is it? His that sent me." Who is that? "God, my Father." But after the resurrection from the dead, he says, "All the power that my Father used to hold when I was a missionary in the field—all power in heaven and in earth—is given unto me, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations." Now here are the qualifications of the sender. You can not be the sender unless you have the qualifications; and the qualifications are "all power in earth and in heaven." Well now, but suppose a man goes to college, or supposing I go to college; I go there and shut myself up in a room, in a study, and I get a wagon load of books around me, and I make up lots of sermons, and after a while I start out to the world. Now I do not think that would be a God-sent affair. I do not see where the first party is sending me at all. I am not satisfied that he was one of the faculty in the college. He did not write your books, and that fact comes right home in the case of every preacher. If I had gone out in that way, I would not be any better than anybody else. Now in regard to the preacher, we see that God commends the preacher in this way: "I called you and ordained you," the same as my Father did with me when he held the power that I now hold; I do just the same as he did; I called you and ordained you, and I give you the seed, the word of God, the message. So Paul under these circumstances said, "Woe unto me if I preach not the gospel." Paul, suppose you do not get your pay? "Pay or no pay, Woe unto me if I preach not the gospel." That is the experience of preachers that have been sent by the first party. We grumble a great deal sometimes, but this is the true theory in the matter. The seed has to be sown, and you or that man over there, or whoever has the seed, is called upon to scatter that broadcast, for the reason that it has the germ of life in it, and life—eternal life—is to grow out of that germ. No wonder that Paul said, "Woe unto me if I preach not the gospel." Now this is one of the reasons that I am engaged in preaching the gospel.

In regard to this matter I will refer you again to this preacher affair; we are not quite done with that yet. God calls the preacher, "the seed is the word," and the word is broken to them in this life—or preached to them. I do not know of any better presentation of the gospel of Jesus Christ than is found in the following language of Paul: "Our gospel came not unto you in word only." It was not "in word only;" then it must have been "in word," but "not in word only." It must have been in word—in the words of life. The presentation of the fact must be "in word," and that word must be "the word of God," in order that there may be life in it, and that which germinates and is productive of faith; and faith is productive of power. And this is the truth as demonstrated to every individual. This is the way, I apprehend, that salvation and true religion came to the human family.

Now in regard to the matter of faith when it is produced by the presentation of the word of God. I have no time to go into particulars about this. I will now present faith, real or supposed. Of course if we have any faith at all, we are all very apt to think it is very good. But now we understand there are proofs by which to look upon this matter and test it. We will take the matter of faith, its being produced. The question arises here, Was it produced by the word of God, or by the word of man? Here is a question. Can the word of man produce true faith? Can a theory that is not really true, give consolation? I think it can. We will suppose a case. Just before Christmas a couple of men met a friend, and the friend knew they were poor men, and he says, "Here, gentlemen, I will give you twenty dollars—each of you ten." As it happened, one of the ten was a counterfeit; but the man did not know it. It was a deception, and he did not know it. Now he went home; and the other that got the genuine bill he too went home. They now were going to have some good things for the coming Christmas. The one that had the genuine bill made calculations over the matter, and had a good deal of consolation over it; but he did not have any more than the other did who had the counterfeit. The other made his calculations, and had as much consolation as the one with the genuine bill. But when the matter came to the test, when the goods were bought and the bills were put into the storekeeper's hands, he took them to the detector, and the detector showed that this bill was a counterfeit. "But," says the man, "it can not be; I could not possibly have realized the amount of consolation out of that bill that I have if it had been a counterfeit." "Well, for all that," the merchant says, "consolation or no consolation, that is not a genuine bill."

Now again we follow the principle, in that case there is nothing asked of one man but what is asked of another. Of course it is all useless for us to attempt to do the sending. It is not a matter between man and man; but it is a matter between man and God. We go back to the illustration in regard to the effect of a deceptive affair and find God has, under certain circumstances, a certain care of souls. The disciples that Paul met at Ephesus were not properly instructed, nor properly baptized, yet they had a certain degree and kind of consolation. Paul detected this matter, and stated that it was not genuine; and after, when they "obeyed the word of the Lord," they obtained the real consolation that was found in the truth.

Now in regard to the possession of faith, if you have faith, or if I have faith, it must (according to the epistle of James), be in one of two conditions; it must be either alive or dead. You can not find a man in neither condition, can you? No, sir; he is either a live man or a dead man. That is the way with faith. If there is faith in the world, it must be in either one or the other of these conditions; it must be either alive or dead. Now what would be your condition in the case of your own faith? "Well, sir, I think yours is dead; but mine is alive." That is the natural conclusion of the human family. We will try this matter, and see how it will stand the test. In regard to the nature of faith, we have what the apostle James says; that "faith without works is dead." Now that is what we are to go by. "Faith without works is dead," just the same as the body is dead without the Spirit. Now have you had any experience in regard to bodies without the spirit? "Yes." What do they look like? "Very pale." What can they do? "They can not do anything at all." What is the reason? "They are dead." What do you mean by that? "They can not talk, can not see, can not walk, can not do anything, the only remedy we have is to just dig a grave and put them in there. That is the way they do with dead bodies. Faith without works is dead, as the body without the spirit is dead." Well, sir, if this is the case now with your faith and mine, we must come up to this standard, we must prove ourselves and see to it in this case that we come up to the standard set up by the Apostle James. Many a time it is like the case of a peddler going around with his bundle. He has some gilt articles that look very fine. If they were the genuine kind there would be no danger of rubbing them. Another has the genuine; "See, sir, no danger of rubbing these." But when the one who has the gilt articles presents them, and they begin to rub them, and put them to the test, "Hands off please!" You commence like that to try the faith of some, "Hands off please." But this is not the genuine; this kind of faith will not benefit the individual in this life, nor in the life to come. Faith is intended to benefit the human family in this life and also in the life that is to come, and finally to result in life eternal. And this "life eternal" is guaranteed to man by actual demonstration in this world. Well, if you are faithful now, if your faith is genuine, what are its works? Will they take us to Sunday School? Does not the man without faith go to? Now where are your works of faith that a corrupt man, a sinner can not do? This I want you to understand, that works of faith are something that a corrupt man, a sinner, can not do. There are two classes of blessings that come to the human family; one class conditioned on faith, and the other class unconditional to the whole human family. You pass a good field of wheat somewhere; it is fine and a good crop; you hunt up the owner of the field, and you say he must be a righteous man because he has such a good field of wheat. But wait; there is just the same in the next field; God "rains on the just and the unjust alike. This class of blessings is for the whole human family; they are all heirs to them without conditions. But the class of blessings that are of faith, they are conditional; and the man that has no faith is not entitled to them, and can not do the works of faith. Now "faith without works is dead;" it is dead! Well, sir, what kind of faith is yours? "Well it can go to preaching meeting." The sinner goes too. "Well, but I have so much faith that I can pray." The sinner can do that, too. Take the case put by Jesus Christ. Two went into the temple, and the one had great faith, and he made a great big prayer, and the other sinner was discouraged, and says, "O, Lord, have mercy upon me a sinner;" and Christ came to this conclusion, that he went out of the temple more justified than the other. So now, praying is not proof of faith; it is a work of man. "Well I can give liberally; I am a man that helps the poor; that is surely a work of faith." This is a work of man also; the sinner can do that; it is done every day. I refer you for a description of works of faith to the eleventh of Hebrews; there you will find it. If you will go back with me a little while, it won't take us long, I will find a stopping place pretty soon. We will go back to Egypt, and there you find Moses; the children of God are in bondage, and this man urges them to get out of Egypt, and get out of bondage; and they did get out of that, and they traveled to the borders of the Red Sea. What was that? That was a work of man; and as proof of it, the next day or two the Egyptian army did the same thing. Now they were in a bad state; they found that the sea was ahead of them, and the armies of Egypt behind them; and they turned around to Moses, and asked, What shall we do? "Stand still; you can not do any more. You have done all that sinners can do." What? do they then stand still! You see the Scriptures say they were brought by works of faith through that sea; that was a work of faith. If you do just what is required of you, says Christ, you can do something; and unless you do that much, you can not do a thing. Now then we do not expect any one merely commencing in the matter of obeying Jesus, or following Jesus in the way of life, to have any great degree of that faith; but I tell you that any man that makes a claim to it is expected to have something. If I find the field entirely barren and destitute of any growth at all, there is something wrong. I want to find something; for wherever there is true faith, it is productive of some of the works of true faith; and there is a demonstration of the power of God to some extent, and in some way.

Now then, my friends, regarding these matters, they are worthy of our consideration—of our serious consideration; we can not consider them too well, and apply them too much to ourselves. Some will make this claim: "We can go to Jesus." Aye, so you can; I have no objection; but can you go and have the demonstration of the power of God? How is that? What will that theory benefit you in this life, or in that which is to come, if it is not exact truth? We will ask a question or two: When you kneel from the effects of faith, in your secret chamber, you petition that God whom you made a covenant with. Does that God send his Spirit into your heart to bear testimony with your spirit that you are a child of God? That is a question for you to answer, and for me to answer, also. "Well," says one, "my spirit testifies that I am a child of God." Perhaps there is where the mistake is made. It takes more than one spirit to do that testifying business; the Spirit of God testifies with our spirits, that we are his children. When the sick apply for the ordinance of the laying on of hands, how does your faith work there? Has it got any works at all? Can it heal the sick? "No; my faith does not pretend to heal the sick." Is there anything that your faith can do but what a sinner can do as well as you can? That is the question. I want the difference between the godly man, the religious man, the man that claims to be a child of God—I want the difference between him and the ungodly man; this is the point that we want to arrive at. This is the point that we are battling with the human family about, and the human family are faithless; and for that reason we are regarded as enemies, while in fact we are their friends, and their best friends. I think I have got to a stopping place, and I will avail myself of it. May God bless you all.

Miscellaneous.

MARRIED.

BEST—SMART.—At the residence of Elder W. Vickery, near Plano, Illinois, May 4th, 1886, Mr. William A. Best, of Earlville, Illinois, and sister Charity Ann Smart, of Zone, Ontario,—Elder W. Vickery officiating. In the evening a reception was given to the newly married couple at the residence of Bro. John Keil, in Plano. Quite a number of presents, such as hanging lamp, silver caster, cake dishes, etc., (not forgetting the broom) were presented to them in an appropriate speech by Hector Bacon, Esq., of Plano, concluding with, "May your lives be long, your life's journey pleasant, your end peace, and your heaven glorious."

SHIELDS—WARD.—At Council Bluffs, Iowa, by Elder James Caffall, April 27th, 1886, Mr. Francis M. Shields to Sr. Nancy C. Ward.

May these two hearts never divide,
As over life's tempestuous sea they glide,
And as each day succeeds a night,
May no day come to bring a blight.
In happiness they may contemplate,
And for joys beyond may they watch and wait.

DIED.

BARTHOLOMEW.—At Coldwater, Michigan, on March 11th, 1886, in the seventy-third year of her age, Sr. Lucy C. Bartholomew. She was born in Chautauqua county, New York, where on the 6th day of November, 1830, she was married to Carlton B. Williams. Prior to the death of Mr. Williams two children were born to them: a son, Cordello O. Williams, now living at Teft, Jasper county, Indiana, and a daughter, sister Ann E. Corless, wife of Bro. Bradford Corless, who for a number of years has presided over the church at Coldwater, Michigan. Sr. Bartholomew united with the church February 26th, 1864, under the ministrations of Elder Oliver Bailey, and from that time remained firm in the faith of gospel's promise. On June 4th, 1879, she was married to Isaac Bartholomew, who now survives her. The funeral was largely attended by those who knew the deceased. Elder E. L. Kelley conducting the services.

DESONIA.—Elnora Bell, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus and Mary Desonia, aged 8 months and 4 days. This was a sweet little child, and was taken home on Sunday evening at eight o'clock, March 21st, 1886. Its parents were greatly bereaved, but may so live as to have great joy with "baby" yet. Funeral discourse by Bro. E. L. Kelley, in the Methodist Church, Galien, Michigan.

PROCLAMATION.

STATE OF IOWA—EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
To Whom These Presents May Come,—Greeting:
 Now, therefore, I, William Larrabee, Governor of the State of Iowa, relying with confidence upon the loyalty and true Christian spirit of our people to sustain all measures adopted for the general welfare, do, under the pains and penalties of the law, warn all persons engaged in the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors to desist from such unlawful practice, and I do hereby give notice that wilful violators will hereafter have no claim on executive clemency. And I call most earnestly upon all the good people of the State to aid, to the best of their ability, in the enforcement of the law.

Especially do I call upon all temperance societies, and other bodies organized for kindred purposes, to realize the necessity for new energy in their labors.

Let the priests, ministers, teachers and the press use their best efforts to enlist the moral forces of the State in this cause. Let the judges, attorneys and other officers of the courts be painstaking and persistent in enforcing the law, both in letter and in spirit. Let the sheriffs and peace officers be fearless and vigilant, and let the mayors and all other municipal officers awaken to new zeal in their efforts to secure its observance.

I exhort all citizens to lay aside all partisan differences, and by united and determined efforts banish the dram-shop from Iowa.

WILLIAM LARRABEE.

Conference Minutes.

Branch reports: Plainville 60; New Bedford 31; North Plymouth 26; Boston 82; Brockton 26; Providence 181; Fall River 124, Dennisport 48, Little Compton 27. Preaching at six o'clock Saturday evening. Committee on revising the rules of order reported that they did not deem it advisable to revise the rules, as the Book of Rules is the standard of the church, and they would recommend the district to do away with these rules and adopt the Book of Rules instead. Resolved, That the report of the committee be accepted, and its recommendation adopted. Moved to amend by striking out all after the word accepted. Carried. The motion as amended was adopted. F. A. Potter and M.

H. Bond were appointed a committee to revise the rules of order of business and report at the next conference. C. A. Coombs and H. H. Thompson were sustained in their respective missions. F. M. Sheehy, M. H. Bond, John Smith, U. W. Green, and J. Halstead, were appointed delegates to the General Conference, and were instructed to vote for the next Conference to be held at Kirtland, Ohio. Preaching on the Sabbath by Elders J. Gilbert, M. H. Bond and F. A. Potter. Committee on Branch reports found all the Branch reports correct. Auditing committee reported having examined all the books and papers of the Bishop's Agent and District treasurer, and found them correct. The next conference was ordered to be held at Fall River, June 5th, 1886, at 2:30, p. m. The President and clerk of the district were by vote sustained.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 29, 1886.

The following telegram from Washington, D. C., in respect to what lawyer Richards (son of a Utah apostle) said of late before the Judiciary Committee of the House, will be read with interest.

"He denied that the Book of Mormon was their guide, stating that the King James version was their Bible; he denied the Mountain Meadow Massacre and told the same old, old story of persecution for conscience' sake."

We are heartily glad the Utah leaders now confess publicly that the Book of Mormon is not "their guide," and that King James' version of the Bible is. The Reorganization has known, and persistently urged the fact from the first, that the Brighamites had practically cast aside the Book of Mormon—professing to believe it, while in their works they deny it, violating its plainest precepts. We hope these admissions may become matters of record in our National Archives for future reference. May we not expect to hear next that the Utah leaders deny that the Doctrine and Covenants is their guide? They have equal reason to do so, for they violate its teachings the same as they do those of the Book of Mormon.

THE Woman's Christian Temperance Union are circulating blank petitions and obtaining signatures asking the International committee of the Evangelical Alliance, that one entire day of the week of prayer be devoted to prayer for the abolishment of the liquor traffic. Should any of these petitions reach our people, let those who wish sign them and send them to Mrs. Ellen M. Watson, Superintendent, No. 508, Smithfield Street, Pittsburgh, Pa. She will see that they are collated with others and filed with the International committee.

We would suppose that so important a measure as the devotion of one entire day of the week of prayer to the praying for the object named might have occurred to the Evangelical Alliance before this. Public opinion is advancing, however, and prayers and petitions must finally crystallize into laws and the enforcement of them.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE senior Editor visited Council Bluffs, Omaha and Crescent City, from the 4th of May to the 18th, preaching at Omaha once, at Council Bluffs three times, at Crescent City four times, with a lecture on temperance thrown in for good measure, and once at what is called Hazel Dell Church, a building owned by the M. E. Church. We were permitted the use of the latter place through the solicitation of a temperance worker by the name of O. H. Barrett, assisted by Bro. John Evans. At all these meetings we had a large attendance and most excellent liberty in the gospel.

We have many dreams sent us for publication in the HERALD, some of which are very striking and seemingly significant; others are not. We can not undertake to publish these—any of them—except to a very limited degree, for what are good and sufficient reasons to us. If one has the right to have his dream published, all others have an equal right to have theirs, and then when all get their rights in this direction, the HERALD readers would have dreams and dreams and dreams, ad nauseam. Please patiently permit us to judge as to which, if any of the dreams sent us we shall publish. We believe in inspirational dreams and night visions, and believe that persons receiving them should seek unto God for their meaning. Deal very carefully with them. Don't jump to conclusions as to their meaning. Deal wisely and carefully in the matter; and above all, trust in God's revealed word—"what is the chaff to the wheat?"

Elder C. St. Clair writes from Holden, Mo., the 17th inst., saying he has been called by District President, I. N. White, to labor with Bro. A. White at Holden. He expects to "continue the fight, and to be subject to the powers that be, and so battle on for the victory in Christ."

Phillip Housman, of Fremont, Indiana, says:—"The HERALD is a welcome visitor, and we could in no way do without it." Mrs. E. Culp of Hayward's Cal., says of it:—"I feel as though I could not do without it, for it is food to my ever hungry soul."

Sister Sarah A. Rose, of Graysville, O., thinks the church publications "are getting better all the time."

The Saints at Sheridan, Ills., will please take notice that Sr. Jemima M. Califf will spend some time in their vicinity with relatives. We bespeak for her the cordial fellowship of all.

Brother A. H. Parsons writes of late that he has been preaching with good liberty and fair prospects at a place where he formerly resided, and thinks "the ice is broken," and hopes the opening will prove effectual.

A person signing himself "E. B.," writing from Swan Creek, Mich., says:—"I can not get along without the HERALD, When I can not pay for it, I will beg for it. All the hope I have in this world or the next, is in the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. I, like Abraham my father, am a pilgrim and a stranger in the earth."

Bro. F. R. Tubb wrote from 75 Lefevre Road, North Bow, London, England, May 7th, that he was preparing for the HERALD, an article on volcanoes which he would send in due time. If the article is as good as the one on comets, we heartily commend it to the HERALD readers. There are a few who think that such articles are not suitable for the HERALD, but we deem it highly proper that our younger people should read up in all the departments of learning open to their investigation.

We learn by card from old Bro. Joseph Younger that he is located at Green Ridge, Manitoba.

Bro. Joseph Luff writes from his home, Independence, Mo., the 9th inst., that in bodily health he is improving rapidly, but that any considerable mental effort prostrates him some for a time. He feels confident the Lord will open his way and bless him.

By letter received from Bro. Robert Evers, Lilly Dale, Ind., we learn that his heart is full of love toward the work of God.

Bro. I. M. Lane, of Boonsboro, Iowa, urges a more perfect compliance with the law of the Lord as the best means to prevent strife and contention, and to promote unity, peace and brotherly love; thinks none can be justified in excusing themselves on the grounds of adverse circumstances and unhappy surroundings, and holds that those who transgress the law of the Lord should confess and forsake such sin. He thinks also that all the contentions among Saints arise from neglect of duty, and because those with a beam in their own eye are too busy striving to show the mote in the eye of another. He recommends charity—pure charity—as the best and happiest remedy for this latter evil, and avows his intention to profit in these things for the future, knowing the work is of the Lord.

Bro. F. C. Warnky writes us under date of May 6th, that the name of Bro. George Wilson was dropped from his quorum through mistake; and that it should have read "Thomas France" instead.

Bro. F. M. Fuller writes the 11th inst. Phoenix, Yazoo County, Miss, and is anxious some faithful Elder will call and labor in that region. He says:—"I have begged for an Elder to come here, and have offered some money, but none has come. There are some persons here who desire to hear the doctrine."

Bro. J. R. Lambert says that "In the Epistle of the Twelve in HERALD for May 15th, inst., page 299, middle column, where reference is made to a former epistle of the quorum, it should read," May 17th, 1873, instead of 1883.

"The Vindicator has suspended publication for the present, but we hope it may soon awake from its rest, rise up and go forth like a young giant refreshed with the new wine of God's Spirit.

The Book of Mormon foretells the "secret combinations to get power and gain" which are now so common and so violent in all, or nearly all Gentile nations. Please read 2 Nephi 7:2; 11:14; 15:16; Alma 17:10; Mormon 4:3,4; Ether 3:13. The Saints should shun everything of the kind and be wise.

Bro. L. C. Donaldson, of Riverton, Iowa, says, "I can't do without the HERALD; I would as soon do without my meals. It is the best paper in the world." We are almost daily receiving similar kind words of appreciation, encouragement and approval, and we shall endeavor by patient effort to so edit the HERALD as to make it (1) truthful, (2) instructive, and (3) entertaining. To effect this we ask the hearty co-operation of all the Saints and friends; first, to secure for it suitable matter; and, second, to furnish it abundant support in the way of prompt paying subscribers. Please let none lose sight of the fact that all are expected to pay in advance, yet arrangements may be made with those who may desire time to pay. Get us more subscribers, and as soon as practicable the price for it will be reduced.

Bro. C. H. Porter, of Wilber, Nebraska, says: "I consider the Saints' Advocate a great help as a defender of the truth, and I sincerely hope it will receive the hearty support its merits deserve."

Elder A. Haws, writing from Sweet Home, Oregon, the 5th inst., says those attending their conference, coming by railroad, should stop at Halcy, instead of Haley.

F. N. Lang, Seedsman, of Baraboo, Wis., sends us a packet of seeds, and from the credentials accompanying, we conclude he is reliable, and that those desiring anything in his line will find him well stocked, and a fair dealer.

Sister E. Lowrie, of Decoto, Cal., writes that she received the administration for the sick under the hands of Bros. A. H., and "father" Smith, and that the Lord has blessed her with much improved health. She speaks in high terms of the "Mothers Home Column."

Bro. R. R. Gaither feels assured the Lord has answered his prayers for the sick of late, and feels strong in the faith as delivered to the Saints in these days.

Bro. P. Pelton of Persia, Iowa, says, "I was baptized two years ago the first day of last February, and have tried to live as becomes a Saint; and the future will reveal how well I have succeeded. One thing I know, if I miss entering the gate into the heavenly city, no one will be to blame but myself, for the gospel as taught by the Latter Day Saints is true. I speak from knowledge I have received through the Holy Ghost."

MR. L. L. RICE is dead. For forty-four years he had the original "Manuscript Story" ["Manuscript Found"] of Solomon Spaulding in his possession without having examined it or in any way knowing what it was. It seems a wise dispensation of an overruling Providence that he should be made, unwittingly, the custodian of that document which has been made a means by cunning and unscrupulous men with which to oppose the Book of Mormon; but which now becomes effectual in unmasking the villainy of those men and in covering their reputation with richly merited shame and confusion.

Mr. Rice acted honestly and wisely in this matter, and we trust that his noble spirit, returning to God who gave it, now rests in the Divine favor with the great and the good. The following clippings we take from the "Daily Honolulu (Sandwich Islands) Press," of April 15th, 1886.

"The death of the venerable L. L. Rice recalls his connection with the celebrated (?) Spaulding's "Manuscript Found." The Mormon Church or more properly the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," was founded by Joseph Smith. Smith, it is claimed, discovered some metallic plates buried at Mount Cumorah, on which were engraved the Book of Mormon, purporting to be a history of the lost ten tribes of Israel, and tracing their wanderings to America. From this account it appears that the American Indian traces his ancestry to Moses, Abraham and Isaac. The Book of Mormon has nothing whatever to do with the faith or creed of the Mormon Church, which derives its inspiration from a work called "Doctrine and Covenants" and subsequent revelations to Brigham Young and others. The Book of Mormon was merely a "starter." An effort was made to prove that the Book of Mormon was either a copy of Spaulding's "Manuscript Found," or was suggested by it. The "Manuscript Found," by a variety of circumstances, came into the possession of Mr. Rice, who subsequently deposited it with President Fairchild of Oberlin College. A copy was furnished to the Josephites an offshoot of the church, and by them published in Iowa. The discovery and publication of the manuscript, has demonstrated beyond a doubt that it never inspired or suggested the publication of the Book of Mormon."

"He was born in Otsego county, New York, in 1801. As a young man he went to New York City where he learned the printing business early in this century. While living there he was led to take the total abstinence pledge, and enrolled himself upon that platform, and has done much for the cause of temperance during a long life the most of which found him identified with the newspapers of Ohio. He went to that state before 1830, and for fifty years was one of her leading citizens. About 1830 he began the publication of an anti-Masonic paper. A few years later he removed to Cleveland where for many years he was the editor and publisher of a paper which was the predecessor of the Cleveland Leader and was dedicated to the agitation of anti-slavery principles.

"In 1848 he went to Columbus, the capital of the state, and began the publication of a paper in that city.

"For more than twenty-five years he was identified with the public life of Columbus, at first as an editor, then as State Printer, and in other positions.

"He was well known and greatly beloved. He had for his friends and associates such men as Garrison, Giddings, Jas. G. Birney, Salmon P. Chase, and men of that stamp.

"Father Rice, as he was affectionately called during his residence in Columbus, was a man of strong intellectual power, and was thoroughly consecrated to the highest purposes of life. He was permitted to see the triumph of some of the principles he so vigorously and ardently espoused, and to see the banners of other principles rapidly advancing to victory.

"In 1875 he removed to Oberlin, where he resided till 1879, when he came to Honolulu, making his home here with his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Whitney. During the summer of 1884 Rev. W. H. Rice of New York, his only son, visited him here, making, as each felt at the time, a final visit. Father Rice kept his intellectual vigor up to the very last. His very presence, during the years of his stay here, has been felt to be a benediction. Yesterday morning he rose as usual and was about the house and grounds until a few moments after ten. He then went to his room and lay down on his bed for a little rest, before dressing to go out to the lunch at Bethel Church, as he was planning to do. At this time Dr. Gray dropped in for a friendly call, and sat chatting with him some minutes. The Doctor remarked that father Rice carried on his conversation with all of his usual animation.

"About 10:30 o'clock he observed that he must get ready to go down town, but at the suggestion of the Doctor, that there was an abundance of time, he remained quiet. Suddenly and without warning he fell back upon the pillow, gave a single, slight clutch at the region of his heart, and lay still in death. Not a word or cry of pain; "he was not, for God took him." We shall miss the noble form, and the saintly face; but every life that touched his, is the richer and fuller for it.

"W. C. MERRITT."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Qes.—Does the co-operation reflected in Rev. 22:17, with the Spirit and the bride presuppose that the Spirit will lead, or dictate persons to do what the bride (church) has not authorized, or forbidden?

Ans.—No.

Q.—Did Christ's denunciations against the girl evidence of non-charity?

A.—No. Neither did his telling her to go her "way and sin no more," give evidence that he sanctioned her sin, or warrant any one believing that he excused her sin.

Q.—When law makes the work which begins and culminates in the expulsion of a member, can justification follow a halt under the pretext of charity?

A.—Yes, if circumstances warrant.

Q.—For as much as Christ has said that he that repenteth not shall be cast out, is it proper to say the be cast out is cruel?

A.—If we understand this question, we say No, but we think the writer has not stated the question fully.

Q.—Why was the camp meeting held at Galland's Grove, October, 1885, published as the Annual Reunion of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints?

A.—Because it was composed of members of said Reorganized Church.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"The dear Christ dwells not afar,
The king of some remoter star,
But here amidst the poor and blind,
The bound and suffering of our kind,
In works we do, in prayers we pray,
Life of our life, he lives to-day."

"OPEN HIS EYES THAT HE MAY SEE."

Night, dewy night, her mantle of repose,
Folded above Judea's plains and hill,
And wandering zephyrs from their sunny homes,
Whispered their tales of love to sparkling rills.
Above the sleeping city hung the moon,
By silvery stars attended on her way;
Now through a rift revealed and now the clouds
Again obscure the brightness of her way.

Night, peaceful night, still holds her gentle sway,
And every sound of life has sunk to rest.

The slumbering city, cradled mid the hills,
Lies as an infant at its mother's breast.
There is a stillness such as holds the air
When storms are naar to break, and thunders crash—
An unheard moaning, such as spirits feel,
E'er sorrows come like the swift lightning's flash.

Still wanes the night, and still the prophet sleeps;
No sentry guards his unbarred door from harm;
To ward the sleeping city none are there
To sound through the still night a wide alarm;
But hark! a sound breaks on the brooding air,
As of approaching danger—nearer still;
While in the East the crimson light of morn
Shades into purple on the ditant hill.

And now, ten thousand echoes swiftly start,
Winding through vallies, breaking on the gloom,
Thrown back from mountain crags—in distance lost,
Searching the depths of many a lonely tomb;
Echoes of chariots, and a mighty host
Of horsemen, armed and panoplied for war;
The city with swift tread they compass round,
And see the morning's light streams near and far.

Yet, still the prophet sleeps, unwarned of harm,
Dreaming perhaps of Israel's conquered foes;
No vision of the wrathful host, so near,
Breaks on the stillness of his night's repose.
But see, with breathless haste, and lips apart,
With cheeks all flushing like the morning's glow,
Paling anon, a youth before him stands,
Crying, Awake! behold, the foe, the foe!

See, master, they have compassed us around
With horsemen swift, and chariots of war;
There is no place of refuge, they have spread
Their vaunting hosts around us near and far.

Also, there is no hope,—they compass us.

Master, what shall we do,—where shall we flee?
The proud Assyrian—thou hast wrought them harm!
They'll show no mercy, master, unto thee.

Calmly the prophet heard, as calmly spoke:

"Fear not, for they that be with us are more Than all which be against us," even all
Which forth from proud Assyria can pour.
Look not so strangely, an unnumbered host
They camp about us. "Lord, open, I pray,
The eyes of this young man," that he may see
The marshalled hosts of Israel's God to-day.

He looked, and lo! then flashed upon his sight

Covering the mountain's side, the prophet round,
Horses and gleaming chariots of fire,
Whose presence gave to mortal ear no sound.
Warriors with drawn and fiery waving swords,
Swift moving rauks, with light and glory crowned;
Host of the living God of Sabaoth,
Guardians of those who guard the holy ground.

It is enough—put back again the veil

The cloud of living witnesses obscure.

Faith is the guiding star of all who shall

In God's pure love unto the end endure.

By faith, not sight, the victory must be worn,

Faith in his mighty arm who never sleeps,
The General of the unnumbered hosts
Who watch and ward about his people keeps.

Put back the veil—Faith is the guiding star,
But when the storm-cloud gathers in its might,
Veiling in its chill mist faith's guiding ray,

Obscuring every gleam of heaven's pure light,
Then God will hear this prayer, "Open his eyes,"

The glory of His face He will reveal;
So shall we know that our Redeemer lives,
And for the tried and tempted still can feel.

We wish to ask the faith and prayers of every reader of this "column" in behalf of a young man, son of Bro. William Franklin, who has been afflicted for many years. He says: "My apology for this request is, my faith leads me in this direction. I feel sure the mothers in Zion will sympathize with me." Let each one of us remember this request, as if it was our own brother who was afflicted. "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the perfect law."

Brother Joseph has mentioned the names of many sisters abundantly qualified by nature and training to assist in carrying on this work, and "still they come not." The less is mutual; we miss their aid, and they fail of the good they might do. We still hope to hear from them. We want an army of trained workers in our church. Who will volunteer for service? Let those who are working, no matter in what part of the field, or what duty discharging, just turn to the sixth chapter of second Kings, and renew their strength by reading it. We are serving the same God as the prophet of old, and "The Lord thy God walketh in the midst of thy camp to deliver thee; . . . therefore shall thy camp be holy, that he see no unclean thing in thee, and turn away from thee." Don't fail to read it.

WE are in receipt of letter from "a sister," and article from Lucy Lloyd.

LAMONI, IOWA, May 22d, 1886.

THE UNUSED UMBRELLA.

A YOUTH was lately leaving his aunt's house after a visit, when finding it beginning to rain, he caught up an umbrella that was snugly placed in a corner, and was proceeding to open it, when the old lady, who for the first time observed his movement, sprang towards him, exclaiming, "No, no; that you never shall! I've had that umbrella twenty-three years, and it has never been wet yet; and I'm sure it shan't be wetted now."

Some folks' religion is of the same quality. It is none the worse for wear. It is a respectable article, to be looked at, but it must not be dampened in the showers of daily life. It stands in a corner, to be used in case of serious illness or death, but it is not meant for common occasions.

We are suspicious that the twenty-three years' old gingham was gone at the seams, and if it had been unfurled it would have leaked like a sieve. At any rate, we are sure that this is the case with the hoarded up religion which has answered no useful turn in a man's life.

C. H. Spurgeon.

Dear Sisters of the "Home Column," our Editress of course not excepted:—I hesitate at entering your department, fearing I shall betray my ignorance, therefore just allow me to stand upon your threshold and speak what I have to say. Accept of my thanks for your advice, and instructions already received through our columns, and I bid you God speed. I have often wondered why we could not have a column or two devoted to the sisters, wives and mothers, for their special benefit, enabling them to impart each to each, the light and knowledge God has blessed them with, whether it be little or much? I feel that God has had a hand in bringing about this important work. Knowing my own incompetency to aid in anything of the kind, and feeling a delicacy in asking others to do what I was not able to do myself, I forbore to speak; but I do rejoice that its birth-day has come; and how well we shall watch, wait and aid in its development, depends on each one of us. Surely our united efforts will make it a success. I used to think the Herald was all that could be desired, but since the "Home Column" has been opened to our view, I am astonished to know how we ever got along without it. It adds new impetus to the already well governed machinery. So Eleanor compares herself to a rush light, which I consider is far superior to my little night light, such as are used in England in the sick chamber, and are just sufficient to enable one to discern that all is not total darkness, nevertheless, the night light, the rush light, and so on up to the electric light, all have a mission to perform. Let our lights dear sisters, (no matter how dim they may at first appear), be fed by the oil of our constant efforts, patience and perseverance, with a prayerful heart to God for his assistance in this noble work. I beg leave to differ somewhat (with all due respect however) from Sr. Sarah, in regard to keeping our children from the society of our neighbors and friends because they are not of our faith; (but we trust, with our Editor, that we are mistaken when we so construe her meaning). Are we not all one flesh and blood? Do we not emanate from the one Father? Have we not all souls to be saved? Is it from any good management of mine that I am not black instead of white? I know of one child that went to a Sunday School, not of our faith, and the minister came around asking all the children questions; at length he came to her, not knowing that she was not one of his flock, and asked her a few questions, which she answered, with all the dignity of the minister himself. To his astonishment she in turn asked him questions that he could not answer. He was confounded. Herein is where our light is seen to shine, in teaching our children at home, that which is necessary for them to know, the right from the wrong; then when they are thrown in contact with the world, their light will shine. We can not let our light shine when we seclude ourselves entirely from the world. It is hiding it under a bushel. Truly it is written, keep yourselves unspotted from she world—that is, the sins and follies thereof. This calls forth from us as parents, our very best judgment and wisdom, and a prayerful heart for the Holy Spirit to help us discern, who our children shall, or shall not associate with, and select for them their companions. How well I remember in my younger days the many good lessons I have learned, and the good examples I have been led to imitate, from those not of our faith, and I profit by them to this day. As all good cometh from God, I trust we shall all be able to learn to select the good from the evil, and learn to teach our children to do likewise.

There was a demand some time ago from Sr. Lucy for recipes for light bread, &c.,—having seen none as yet, I begin to think that our sisters haven't got any, and if not, it is time they had, for the benefit of their health; so I will give mine. I do not know, of course, if any one can excel this recipe; but there is one thing I do know, that is, a prominent good brother, living not more than seven hundred miles from us, often in travels, and communications to us, expresses a wish for a slice of our good light bread. In the first place I must give the recipe for yeast: Peel and boil potatoes enough to fill a medium-sized kettle; boil rather longer than for eating, as they mash better and finer. Cover them with plenty of water, so there will be plenty of liquid. While boiling put a large handful of hops in a tin vessel with water to boil, (some put their hops in a salt sack, and boil them in with the potatoes, but this has a tendency to turn it dark colored, if boiled in an iron kettle, and makes the yeast look black. I prefer a tin or porcelain vessel for hops). When potatoes are thoroughly done, and your hops, of course, drain, and save the liquid. Now add one cup of sugar, not quite a cup of salt (very little difference) to your potatoes, and mash to a cream; strain in your hop liquid; add the potato water; stir well together; put in a tin pan or bucket to cool. When reduced to the right temperature, which is milk warm, add a pint of good yeast to start it, most any kind will do to begin with if it is light, but always remember to keep a pint of the same yeast that you have made, over for your next making. This quantity when made, will last two weeks for a family of ten or twelve. Of course every cook must be her own judge as to the quantity of ingredients required according to the number in family. This yeast never sours when kept in a cool place. I have not had a bit of sour bread for six or seven years.

RECIPE FOR BREAD.

Deal out the required quantity of flour; take a good tablespoonful of shortening; put into the hot water you make your bread with, to dissolve the shortening; (I use the water saved from my last boiling of potatoes when I am going to make bread; I think it keeps more moist); cool off the water to the right heat, which is lukewarm; pour into your pan of flour; add one and a half pints of yeast, (a little more or less according to the size of family you are baking for); mix well, then knead; set to raise. It can be made night or morning, as it does not sour. When light make out into your pans; set it to rise again, then bake. I always think the more the bread is kneaded the better it is. Try it, sisters; then report. If any of our good sisters can excel these recipes, so much the better for the bread and consumers. Well, I presume I have kept the doors open long enough, and there may be danger of your getting sick, so will close and take my departure, with my earnest desire, good wishes, and prayers, for your success.

Come my welcome sisters, come
To the help of Zion's home;
Dig your talent from its grave
If you wish your soul to save,
Rub and rub, you'll be surprized
When the lustre greets your eyes.
God will help you, He'll inspire
Hearts, and thoughts with holy fire;
Heavenborn inspiration bring
To the lips and to the pen;
Wield it then for good to me
While I wield the same for thee.
Do not wait for more to come
Lest angels shout the harvest home.
Ever true to Zion's welfare,

AUNT PATIENCE.

DEFIANCE, IOWA, April 25th.

Sister Frances.—As your "Column" is open for the mothers and sisters of Zion to cheer and encourage each other as we journey along; also for the aged mothers to offer advice and instruction to those just beginning the journey their feet have trod, in weakness and feebleness it may be, but ever with reliance upon the help of God; therefore I wish to give them an aged mother's advice, and to leave with you a testimony of what I know in regard to the work of God in the last days. The 3d of next June, if I live so long, I will be 86 years old. I was baptized in the year 1835, and went through much of the trouble in Missouri. I can assure you, dear sisters, there is great responsibility resting upon you in training and teaching your children and using every inducement to lead them to walk according to the light and truth as it is in Christ. History tells us that some of the first elders of the church were severely rebuked by the Lord for failing to do this, and came under condemnation before him. Now if they came under condemnation for neglect of this duty, how shall you escape if you follow their example in this? I am a living witness that many sons and daughters of prominent elders have gone astray beyond the hope of reclaiming, caused undoubtedly, by the failure of their parents to discharge their duty. Therefore I feel the need of raising a warning voice, lest the enemy of all righteousness lead you to esteem lightly this first and most sacred duty of every man and woman who has assumed the responsibility of raising a family.

I have raised a large family and am thankful to God that all of them who have died, have died in the faith of the gospel of the Son of God, and the assurance of a glorious resurrection; and my prayer is that those still living may fight the good fight of faith, and hold out faithful to the end. This I feel is not for me to know. I have seen many fall by the way side, and Jesus admonishes the sanctified: "Take heed lest ye fall." Paul speaks also of the danger of some not entering upon the rest which remains for the people of God, because of "an evil heart of unbelief," therefore my warning to you is that you study God's word. Treasure it up in your hearts, praying for his holy Spirit to enlighten your minds and guide you into all truth. If you do this, relying upon God, you will be able to defend the faith of the church, and like the house built upon a rock, stand, though amid the storm thousands around you are swept away in wreck and ruin. Dig, "I say unto you, dig deep and built your house upon the Rock of Ages." Plant your feet firm upon the foundation where the apostles and prophets will keep you company, and the Stone rejected by the builders is the head of the corner. Many have stepped off this foundation, but this need not try your faith. Ever since the days of Adam this has been the case, and if you are ever able to stand, you must hide the word in your heart—make it the "man of your counsel," and then putting your trust in God, no man or woman can lead you astray, not even a prophet.

And now because my age prevents me from attending Conference, I wish to bear my testimony through the "Home Column." I know the foundation upon which I stand will endure forever and as long as I "abide in the vine" I am in favor with God and have no fears of the hereafter. The duty of a Saint is very plainly marked out, and if we discharge our own duty, it is all God requires of us. I want to tell the church, I am not built upon false doctrine, let it be presented by whom it may, but my foundation is truth, let it come through whom it may. We can not be the church of God unless we put our trust in God, for it is written, "Cursed is he that trusteth in man," but God never yet accomplished a work in the world without human agents. I am thankful God has placed a prophet as the earthly head of his church, that further revelations may come to us through him; but while thankful for this, I am not built upon him, for though a prophet of God he is only a man, and at best can only stand upon the same foundation laid for me, and that is truth. In the days long past I thought because a man was a prophet he could do no wrong. There is but one who ever lived upon the earth without sinning, and because he was perfect we are to follow him. When I grew older and wiser I learned from the word of God that many men after God had chosen them and ordained them to be prophets to his people, turned away from the Lord and sinned grievously in his sight. They were men, and when the people blindly followed their teachings without seeking to know if it corresponded with the "law and the testimony" already given, they suffered for it.

In looking back over my past life I can see that many Saints in my day have trusted in an "arm of flesh." Let me say to you, This will not do. I saw this spirit manifested in Nauvoo, and heard Joseph the Seer warn the people in regard to this. He told them that he saw the time of their trusting in man was fast approaching. He told them he could lead them to hell and then added: "I want the Saints to know they must stand upon the gospel of Christ, and follow me no farther than I follow Christ." This language sounds abrupt, but because they heeded not the warning in time, and continued to trust in man, did they not after his death fulfill the words of Isaiah: "A wonderful and horrible thing is committed in the land: The prophets prophecy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so: and what will ye do in the end thereof?"

I myself did not profit by the counsel given to the extent I should have done, but by giving heed to bad counsel have brought upon myself much trouble. This is all in the past, and by the help of the Lord I hope to gain the prize. I know our good works will speak in our favor, but our bad works will be burned; not being profitable. Therefore, dear sisters, let us make a record that will stand fire.

Your sister in Christ,
SARAH HAWLEY.

Correspondence.

KIRTLAND, Ohio, May 19th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—Yours with letter inclosed was duly received. Bro. G. T. Griffiths started for New Philadelphia yesterday. Bro. M. H. Bond goes east to-day. He gave a very able presentation of the word here last Sunday, rather surprising his old friends and associates at his growth as a minister. With diligence, faith and humility, all things are possible with the minister when sustained by the Divine hand. Two meetings were held in the village here last Sunday and one nine miles away in the country, with good audiences in attendance. I am booked for Conneautville, Pa., for next Sunday. The weather is fine and all goes well here.

On last Thursday evening, the 13th inst., at a meeting called for that purpose, a branch organization was effected here, Bro. E. L. Kelley being chosen president, Bro. John Gillespie deacon and sister Hattie Griffiths secretary. A good spirit prevailed and we are encouraged in the thought that we are moving in the right way.

W. H. KELLEY.

CORNING, Iowa, April 30th.

Beloved Editors of the Herald:—I am now far advanced in my ninety-second year, and of course have failed greatly in body and mind; yet I feel as deeply interested in this glorious work as ever, and wish to say something to the Saints to stimulate them to action in this the best of causes. My text is found in Doc. and Cov. 6:2. The Saints are set to be a light unto the world, and to be saviors of men. Beloved Saints, is there any calling to any earthly thing that can compare with this in magnitude? You answer, No. Then it is the greatest of all callings. Did God call us to do a work that he would not qualify us to perform if we keep his commandments? If we keep his commandments we shall be qualified to perform every duty he requires at our hands. I call your attention to the 15th chapter of John's gospel, commencing with the fourth verse. "Abide in me, and I in you; as the branch can not bear fruit of itself except it abide in the vine, no more can ye except ye abide in me."

Precious Saints, do you want to know how you can abide in Christ? See verse 10: "If you keep my commandments, you shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in his love." Jesus possessed the power, because he kept the commandments; and the same cause in us will produce the same effect, if we walk with God by strictly adhering to every word he has given us as a rule to live by. So long as we live we shall enjoy His Spirit.

And if the Spirit of Christ dwell in us, we will not be barren nor unfruitful, but will bring forth much fruit. Jesus says, "Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear (not little but) much fruit." Beloved Saints, God has intrusted us with the salvation of man, and all that will be saved in the celestial kingdom must be saved by the labors and sacrifices of the Saints. The harvest is great, and the laborers few. There never was a time that called for diligence and exertion more than now. The reward for our labors is at hand. We are "the eleventh hour" laborers, and must be first paid. The reward is great and sure. Put your all into this work. It will pay you the best interest; and shortly you will receive the principal with the interest, and eternal life besides. It is the fiftieth year with me since I began to preach this gospel of the kingdom, and if I had a thousand lives I would devote them all to this work. The Saints are called to be "saviors of men." How wonderful the calling! There has been some men on earth who have devoted their lives to the relief of suffering humanity, whose names are embalmed in the hearts of the good, such as a Washington, Howard, Raikes and Wilberforce; but Christ outshines them all as far as the sun does the dimmest star. All Saints who live in Him are a part of Him, and are His representatives on the earth. And as Christ is the greatest blessing by far that could come to man, so are his Saints sent from God to be a blessing to the world. Therefore see to it that you fill the measure of your creation.

Yours in Christ,

JOHN LANDERS.

FORT WARREN, Mass., April 2d.

Dear readers of that much loved paper, the Saints' Herald.—

Permit your unworthy brother to add a testimony to truth, for I know this is the true work of God. In it I have nothing to regret or fear. I am forty-one years of age, and have passed through many trials and hardships thus far, and do not feel that they are all ended yet. But with the light and knowledge given me through the gospel, and with the feelings I have concerning the blessed promises made therein, I feel not to complain or find fault, but fight on until the battle is won.

I am at present writing a soldier in the service of the United States, and perhaps the only Latter Day Saint in the service as an enlisted man. I served during the war, from 1862 until the close, as a private in the 134th New York Volunteers; and again in Battery I, First United States Artillery from 1874 until 1879, enlisting again in the 4th United States Artillery, March, 1883. I have many trials here, but none but what I can endure by trusting in God's strength, which I try to do. I embraced the gospel some five years ago through the wishes and implorings of my departed companion, although not baptized herself, but being a true believer of the work. I have received many blessings and encouragements, unworthy as I have been. I have listened to many blessed truths expounded by our worthy ministers, but none more earnestly than those of our worthy brother, E. N. Webster, president of the Boston Branch, in which I am a member. Should any of our Elders pass through New York State they will find many honest hearts awaiting them along the line of the New York Central, through the valleys of the Mohawk, among them Mrs.

Chas. Davidson, No. 519 Clinton Ave., Albany, N. Y., also my sisters—Mrs. Wm. VanDermore, Union Street, Schenectady, N. Y., and at West Glenville, Schenectady county, Mrs. Albert Weaver, and Mr. Garret Bradt and Abraham Bradt, my brothers. I wish to be kindly remembered in the prayers of all God's children that I may be kept and guided into all truth by God's Spirit, that I may be able to set a good example before my comrades here, and also before my brothers and sisters in the church. This is the prayer of your brother in the one hope and faith.

JOHN H. BRADT.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, March 8th.

Brethren Joseph and William.—We reached home last Saturday afternoon. We came on the schooner Gironde, captain Wells, a Monmouthshire, Englishman. It is a large, comfortable vessel, but a slow sailer with a light wind. It takes about a half gale to put her through at her best. Several Elders with their wives came along, in order to go to Tubuai to attend the April conference. We had to pay five dollars apiece for fare, that is, Helen and I; the natives had to pay three dollars for the men and two dollars for the women. We had cabin fare, while they slept on deck, and in the hold if it rained. We preferred to sleep on the quarter deck, but the rain drove us below every night. There are several vessels here which carry us free: the Punau, captain Mapuhi; the Poe, captain Wohler; the Teva, captain Trichett. On the Anaa, the Gironde, and the Ina, we have had to pay. There are others that we have not been on as yet, and can not tell what would be our experience in that matter. Captain Mapuhi has carried our brethren and sisters from place to place for a number of years free. And the effect of his liberality is seen in the fact, that he always returns to Papeete with a full, and frequently an overflowing cargo. He finds that it pays. I can not complain of the captains of the vessels, for they have to observe the rules of the firm or company who own the vessels. Mapuhi owns his vessel, and of course is his own boss.

We left Avatoru, Island of Rairoa, on Wednesday morning about nine o'clock, and on Thursday morning we reached Maatea, south-west of Rairoa, some sixty miles. We ought to have reached there by eight o'clock on Wednesday night, but the wind was very light. We could have made Maatea in the Punau, or Poe, or Papeete, by nine o'clock at night with the little wind we had. We did not go on shore at Maatea, as the captain said he would not stay two minutes if there was no kopera or bufa; but he stayed over an hour, and got no kopera. I was vexed at this, for I wanted to see the brethren at Maatea, particularly the president, Wairaroa, who was quite sick. As it was they did not forget our necessities, and sent us six dollars by the hand of Tehau, an Elder from Rairoa, and president of the district of Rairoa and Tikahau. They also sent us some oranges (but they were not ripe yet) and some limes. The six dollars came in good season to help pay our fare.

Maatea is unfortunate in not having any harbor, and vessels have to lay "off and on," and can not come to an anchor. The water is fully sixty to eighty fathoms deep close up to the reef. There is a place on the opposite side of the Island to where the settlement is, where a vessel could anchor, and be quite safe, if there was no wind blowing on shore; but the mosquitoes are so exceedingly numerous there that the people can not live there; and on the side where they are located the wind blows on shore. And while it is better on account of mosquitoes, it is worse for vessels. They would be visited more frequently if they had a harbor; but it may be a blessed thing for the inhabitants that the traders do not go there more frequently than they do, for they carry rum, gin, absinthe, wine and brandy, and sell it by the bottle, demijohn and case; and, as they say, they make more money in selling the accursed stuff than they do at anything else, or more than they do in all other branches of their business, they do all that they can to sell as much of the liquid damnation as possible. They will sell it to the natives when they are already half crazed or more with the infernal poison; and then if the poor fellows do any damage, the same men are ready to bring them to punishment; while they who cause the natives to behave like demons and insane people, rejoice over the jingle of the dollars that they have in their pockets, gotten from the natives in exchange for what they make five hundred per cent. upon.

If there is no hell there ought to be one created purposely for rum-makers and rum-sellers. I would no more fellowship a rum-seller in the church than I would a libertine, a horse thief, or highway robber. If a drunkard can not enter the kingdom of heaven, can a rum-seller have any chance for a part therein? Nay; there is no room in the kingdom of Christ for such enemies of God and their fellow-men. The devil will claim his own, and rejoice in the work of his hands.

If any Elder is dubious on the prohibition question, send him out here for six months, and if he don't favor by that time the most absolute prohibition, I will miss my guess. He will feel like calling upon God to blot the whole race of rum-sellers out of existence. The introduction of missionary work opened the way for the establishment of traffic of various kinds, and prominently the sale of rum. And while some have turned from the worship of idols to that of the true God, yet many of them have since become the worshippers of Bacchus, and are ready to sell their souls for a case of gin. They have become civilized, and have learned the multitudinous deviltries found among so called civilized people. The question with me is, whether the so-called civilization is not more of a curse than a benefit.

I believe that if the heathen nations were left alone till the Millenium arrives, when the devil will be bound and his agents left without employment in the meantime, or while their head or lord and master is in prison, it might be better. Then, neither a bogus Christianity will be preached, nor rum-sellers be allowed to follow their pernicious practice. And then they can hear, believe and obey the pure gospel of Christ without the interference of Satan or his emissaries. But as the way has been opened for the heathen to hear a little gospel truth, and much error, it seemed necessary to show them the way of the Lord more perfectly, so that they might receive the fulness of salvation. That is, if they are to hear anything at all about Christianity, they should hear the whole truth. But if all other religions called Christian would keep away, I would be in favor of the heathen remaining such till the coming of Christ; for I believe that they would all be saved then; while as it is now, there will scarcely be one-tenth who will be saved. They learn enough truth, and understand sufficient of the law of right and wrong to make them responsible before God; and as the opportunities to sin and the inducements to do it, are increased a hundred-fold, and lacking the moral force or strength of character which the white race as a general rule possess, they are found more criminal in the sight of God, ten times over, than they were when heathen. Those that receive the gospel in its fullness will hardly stand firm and faithful to the end. I do not believe that more than one in ten will maintain a moral foothold till the end; or, in other words, such are the number and kinds and the strength of their temptations surrounding the people of these islands, incident to the advent of white people with their covetous and avaricious spirit, that nine-tenths of the natives will fall into sin's delusive ways and fail to keep the laws of God, which are essential to their salvation.

In a few short years, when the older people die off, our Church and the Protestant faiths will cease to exist here, because the generation now growing up will not keep the principles of morality inculcated by them and us; nor will they submit to the restraint put upon their appetites and passions by these respective bodies. And as a much looser rein is given them in this direction by the Church of Rome in these parts, that organization will absorb them all. There is but one remedy that can be applied which can save the Church and the rising generation, and that is a change of location to where their surroundings will be different. I do not paint the picture in colors half so vivid as I might. It is not wise for me to particularize or illustrate my meaning by examples I might give of the influences at work here to demoralize and destroy the spiritual and physical nature of the people. There are a few here who can understand and talk enough English so as to get along in business matters. If such could be invited by some farmers in Southern California to come and locate there, and form a nucleus for the gathering of a number of those who are anxious to better their condition and save their children from moral and physical ruin—I say, if there could be a nucleus thus started it would be a wise, beneficent and righteous movement. It would be obeying the golden rule. The benefiting of the Saints temporally and physically, as well as spiritually, is abundantly manifested to be the design of our faith, and sustains our claim for the superlative glory of the latter day work. If not so, why did God give the revelations on gathering, on tithing, and the Word of Wisdom? The gospel here can only serve the interests of the spiritual man. It could do more if counter influences were not so many and so powerful. Enough on this point just now.

We reached our home, as I said, last Saturday, to feel grieved and even shocked to hear of the death a week before of sister Pipi (pee-pee), wife of Bro. Leipo. This brother and sister were the ones that Bro. Rodger wrote about, who followed them to the vessel and showed so much affection for them, and in whose house they lived the few days they were here. She was a good woman, and the leader of the sisters' meetings.

I learn that the French have been negotiating with the British authorities for the exchange of Raiatea, Borabora, Huahine, and some smaller islands, some seventy-five or one hundred miles west of here, in exchange for some possessions belonging to the British elsewhere. The missionaries (Wesleyan) will do their utmost to prevent this, and may incite the kings and people to resist the attempts of the French to hoist that flag on the Islands; for they know that if it is done it will open the way for the Catholics to get foothold there, and our Church also, and that means the loss of members and many hundreds of dollars. It will be madness to attempt to prevent the French taking possession, for it would take but a few minutes for their warships to blow their villages to pieces and kill hundreds of men, women and children. And even if they flee to the mountains, and fight there, it will only be a question of time before they will be forced to submit. It is not as if they would be forced to give up their religion or be banished; for they would have full liberty to exercise their faith and to keep up their worship; but to give up their power over the native kings and chiefs, and to lose many of their members and much revenue collected in various ways, is a bitter dose for them to swallow, and they may be foolish enough to encourage the natives to fight. I have no doubt that the Catholic Church is working the wires in this matter; but it will be better for us, for as it is we can get no chance to preach there; or at least can not baptize any. But with the change of rulers will come a change of laws, and prohibition of rum-selling and drinking and gambling and Sabbath-breaking and nightly carousals will be abolished, and these evils will be allowed as they are elsewhere, where the French flag floats. Liberty to preach the gospel is followed here by license to practice sin. Of course murder, arson, and such like crimes are punished here as elsewhere. This matter will shortly be decided, and if without war, I will send some missionaries at the earliest opportunity. We expect to go to Tubuai (some 330 miles south) in a week or two, and may be gone a month or more. If any one is sent here, I hope they will leave San Francisco on the 1st of June.

Your brother in Christ,
T. W. SMITH.

DELHAVEN, NOVA SCOTIA, May 9th.

Brother Blair:—I have often thought of writing to you since I joined the church, which was over two years ago under the preaching of Bro. J. F. Burton. I am young in the faith of the church, yet I am thankful that at this late period of life the light came to this country, that I was enabled to see it and also to embrace it, and I trust, by the help of God's Spirit to continue steadfast to the end.

The Saints in this part of the vineyard seem to be steadfast in the faith, and, as opportunity offers, they let their light shine. In looking over the Herald I was glad to see Nova Scotia was not forgotten in conference. Any of the Elders coming this way will find a welcome home at our house, and with any of the Saints in Nova Scotia. I have been trying to do some fireside preaching this winter. Some would like to hear an Elder. The Herald is our only preacher at present. We get it regular and it always comes with good news. We could not well get along without it. Our prayer is that God may bless his own church, with all its officers and members.

Your brother in the faith,
ROBERT NEWCOMB.

BURCHARD, Neb., March 29th.

Dear Herald:—I hope a few lines from this part of the Lord's vineyard will not be out of place. I came here one year ago last August. There has been no preaching here by the Latter Day Saints for nearly one year. The people would not give me a chance to preach in their school house. Prejudice ran high, they classing us with the Salt Lake Mormons. After telling them the difference they finally consented to let me preach. I have done so, and have baptized two—a man and wife. The man is well posted in Scripture. More are believing. I think there are a good many honest hearted people in these parts, and I calculate to do what I can in the way of preaching. I was called upon to administer to a child that the doctors had given up. The child is now getting well. The child's parents don't belong to the church. I think the signs of the times betoken that the coming of Christ is close at hand. God's arm is being made bare in the eyes of all nations, in sending all manner of plagues upon them, and their hearts begin to fear, looking after those things which are coming on the earth. I calculate to preach in other places next summer.

Yours in gospel bonds,
CHANCY LOOMIS.

MIDLAND CITY, Mich., April 12th.

Editors Herald:—Please inform me where Elder J. J. Cornish is. As I am seeking for the kingdom of God, I wish to find him or some one who has the right to administer the ordinances of the church. We have five other churches here, and about three-fourths of our town don't belong to any of them. I think great good might be done here if we could have the gospel preached to this people. Mr. J. H. Peters has sowed seed here that is going to grow if it is taken care of in time. I am your friend, hunting for the church of God,
S. T. VASHELL.

KEWANEE, Ill., April 12th.

Dear Bro. Joseph:—Inasmuch as I desire—God willing—to return to the home of my forefathers and the dear old spot that gave me birth; yea, in this the chiefest of all the dispensations of God's mercies to man excepting the one when our dear Redeemer appeared, and so nobly fulfilled his mission of atonement for sins. I desire, if your superior wisdom should think it prudent, to insert this letter in the Herald; not with the intent of making some great promise of what I may, or may not do in the cause we all so dearly love, but to inform my brethren across the raging deep of my intentions in visiting them again and uniting my testimony with theirs;—evidencing somewhat more the truths of the eleventh hour message, that first through angels came to our now martyred and beloved prophet Joseph, and is still confirmed by the divine operations of God's Holy Spirit with "signs following believers." It is already known to some in our Reorganized church ranks, that I took a mission there before in the summer of 1866 and returned in 1867; having toiled in my simple way for one year, with a true and devoted love for Zion's welfare; not boasting, for I have nothing to boast of in puny self anyhow; but I have and do and will, not only saint like boast, but rejoice in the mercies of Christ our divine Master, who is as ever feeling with undying sympathy after rebellious man, and especially after poor Israel in the barren and salt land, that have so unmercifully been duped by these aspiring leaders; but thank God their day is near to an exit, when the meek among them will rejoice again with us in the liberties of the gospel. While they, their leaders, will be called upon, not only to stand in his august presence, but to answer to their lording it over God's heritage. I am thinking oftentimes, that their punishment will be almost unbearable; while after a little deeper insight in myself, I say, Thou alone, O God, knowest; let thy will and thine only be done.

No one with the true spirit of the gospel can in any way take the slightest of pleasure in the suffering of his fellows, deservingly or not; but when mercy has played her part, stern justice must rule. To my brethren in Wales I desire to say that if providence favors me I shall start back some time in June next, and would like dearly that my beloved brother, Thomas E. Jenkins, will once more break the spell of silence that has so long existed between us, and "write me"; that by knowing of things bearing upon them, in the gospel working, I may be enabled to proceed wisely in my loving intentions; for God only knows the heart, and will in the ultimate bring all things to a full completion of his righteous designs. What, I say, can then be more cheering than this to the soul of Zion's true-hearted toiler.

On Cambria's pleasing soil,
Across the raging sea,
Again I'll cheerful toil
My fellow man to free
From sin—old Satan's band,
Whose final end is woe.
Back to my father-land,
Dear Savior, let me go,
To chant the saving lay
As oft I've done before,
The old marked gospel way
The angel did restore,
In this the latter day
With all its saving power.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I have been to San Bernardino for some time. I have written an article on our faith expressly for the Mexicans and Spanish, as there are some who are getting somewhat skeptical on Catholicism, and I will have it translated into Spanish. If you can publish it in pamphlet or tract form, let me know, and I will send it up. I baptized six lately, three of whom are Lamanites. I think it only needs an effort in that direction and many more would come in. The way I am situated I can not do much any where. I am much needed at Los Angeles, but I have to be on the go to make a living. Hope you may have a good time at Conference.
J. R. BADHAM.

GRAYSVILLE, Ohio, May 12th.

Dear Herald:—What cheer you herald forth to your readers, especially to those who are standing alone, contending for the true faith of the gospel? When I read Bro. W. H. Kelley's report, O what a thrill of joy I felt to hear him say Ohio needed more help than any other place. I have long known it and have been shown a great work was to be done in Ohio. There has been much good seed sown in these parts, in the past eleven years, and I am persuaded it did not all fall on stony ground. When Bro. G. T. Griffiths was here, near two years ago, he said he was sent here by the Lord. He had good liberty, preached during the month of September, had good congregations and interest to the last. He baptized some and others were near. Since he left we find Satan's influence was hard at work at the time, and hindered our being organized to hold meetings. When Satan works so hard, it is a sure sign he is fearful, and that God has a work in close proximity. Yet sure it is the work of the Lord will be accomplished, even if he chooses instruments again and again. This branch has been sadly neglected of late years, and if the members are at fault, let the officers in charge hold them to account. While I listened to a very good sermon last Sabbath at the M. E. Church, I felt so sad to think the true and beautiful banner of Christ, that once floated at full mast here, is trailing to the ground. While I love it truly, I am weak, with no power to hoist it. May the Lord send one able to unfurl it at full mast to float forever. Your sister,

SARAH A. ROSE.

FONTANELLE, Iowa, April 5th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I see among the learned, great efforts are yet made against the Book of Mormon; yet I indulge the belief that there is not a man learned, or unlearned, in one of the nations of earth that can tell why or when Ephraim's blessing was to be greater or better than Manasseh's without the Book of Mormon. You can see what He says shall come to pass in our own land. If we reject the Book of Mormon, Christ, and his gospel, he will permit the Remnant of Jacob to go through our land, or country. Your fine horses and fine carriages, fine houses; your idols of gold and silver and some other grand things—to be plain—all devilism, witchcraft, I guess, also, protestantism will go overboard with it also, and God and Christ the Lord, will reign over all who have not been ashamed to confess him while here on earth, as he requires us to do, will find a home forever and ever. Amen, amen, BRIGGS ALDEN.

April 11th, 1886.

I must write a few lines concerning sister N. A. Christy's letter in Herald no. 15, about the second coming of the Lord. We read in Isaiah, "For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered nor come into mind. But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create; for behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy." I can not see that this is a part, nor is it on record. The Lord said to his servant, "Behold me, look upon me; I will send you unto a nation that is not called after my name, for I spread out my hands all the day to a people who walketh not in my ways, and their works are evil and not good, and they walk after their own thoughts; which say, Stand by thyself, come not near me, for I am holier than thou." Further, "And I will bring forth a seed out of Jacob, and out of Judah an inheritor of my mountains; and mine elect shall inherit it, and my servants dwell there. We read further, "For as the new heavens and the new earth which I will make, shall remain before me, saith the Lord, so shall your seed. And again we read in Isaiah, "And the Gentiles shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory; and thou shall be called by a new name which the mouth of the Lord shall name." And again, "For as a young man marieth a virgin, so shall thy God marry thee; and as a bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee." Further, "Behold, the Lord had proclaimed unto the end of the world, say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold his reward is with him, and his work before him. And they shall call them The holy people, the redeemed of the Lord; and thou shalt be called, sought out, a city not forsaken." And again; "And he shall suddenly come to his temple. Now I will ask, Has he come yet with his kingdom, that which he is to give to his Saints to possess forever and ever? Has he come yet to give the kingdom to his Saints? I, for one, believe that before many years we shall see his second coming. I believe that these are the very last days. I may well say that I believe in the Latter Day church; but what will it help me if I don't do anything? As faith without works is dead, what joy can I have when I am dead already? Thanks be to God for the blessings he bestowed upon me, and for what I do know; yea, thanks and glory and honor be to him forever and ever.

ARGUS.

BROWN CITY, Mich., May 16th.

Dear Herald:—I am laboring the best I can under my circumstances. Am preaching every Sunday, and sometimes of nights during the week, in Lapeer and Sanilac counties. I have baptized a number, blessed a number of children, and administered to a good many sick, since our last fall conference. The Lord has blessed me much in my labors. I held one debate with an Adventist on the Sabbath question, with good results. I am a member of the Maple Valley Branch, and the branch I consider is in good working order. We number some sixty, including four Elders, two Priests, one Teacher. Elder John Most is president, Elder J. J. Bailey is Bishop's Agent of Northern Michigan District, and myself clerk. I believe we are all trying to do our duty as officers and Elders in the church. We are hoping and praying for a good time at our conference in June, and we hope to see visiting brethren from other districts.

Yours in bonds of peace,

J. A. CARPENTER.

PAINESVILLE, Ohio, May 18th.

Bro. Smith and Blair:—The Herald of the 15th inst., is at hand, and has been perused with interest by me. Bro. Scribner, (who was my father-in-law), let me read his Herolds. Since his death I have often longed for it. I went to Kirtland with the intention of signing for it; was informed by Elder E. L. Kelley that Sr. Scribner had transferred it to my address, for which I return heartfelt thanks. I have been a member of the church since the 12th of October, 1884, and have never regretted the steps then taken. I often heard of the Latter Day Saints (maliciously called Mormons) and had not a very good opinion of them on account of false representations. I will never forget the first sermon I heard preached by them, which was by the son of the prophet, Joseph, at Kirtland Conference. He said he was going to tell them something new, and something they would remember. I for one heard something new, which was the glad tidings of the everlasting gospel in all of its fullness; not according to the doctrines of men, but declared in demonstration and with power which the honest hearted could not resist.

Brother Kelley preached father Scribner's memorial sermon last Sunday to quite a large and appreciative audience at the Methodist Church in North Mentor. Some of the members of that church said to me they "never heard such a good sermon, no, not even among the Methodists." In conclusion I will say, as for myself I am fully convinced that the doctrine is of God, and not of man.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 14th.

Dear Bro. Joseph:—While I was reading the letter of Bro. Zenas H. Gurley, Sen., written October 23rd, 1859, and came to that part where he says they called upon God in prayer to tell them who was to be the successor of Joseph Smith the Seer, and that the Holy Spirit declared that you wereto be his successor, it was your right by lineage, I had testimony that it was of God, and that it was true. I can not find words to express my feelings at the time, or how the testimony came, so that others could understand it, but it has confirmed my belief. I always believed it, and can now bear testimony to its truth. I do not see how others that have had the testimony they say they have, can now go back. I think it wise to republish the history of the origin of the Reorganization at this time, for I can say for myself, I have read it before, but without testimony from any higher source than man. I hope others may also have a testimony like that I have had in reading it. The sermon by Bro. Blair in same Herald is also very appropriate at this time.

Yours in the true faith,

JOSEPH A. STEWART.

GALENA, Ind., May 18th.

Bro. Joseph:—We are still striving to do what we can in the Master's cause. Spoke at Paris one Saturday and Sunday. A Mr. Weaver of Vevay, an infidel, and the leading spirit of that place, asked some questions as to Joseph's calling, and said it was generally understood we were the same as the Brighamites. The audience seemed eager to learn the facts, so I cited him to the current news, and to the fact of the decision of the District Court for Northern Ohio giving to the Reorganized Church the temple at Kirtland, and asked him why this suit for that property if we were one with the Utah Mormons. At Union held six or eight meetings with an increasing audience. It was reported that parties sent for a Mr. Green, a well known debater among the Adventists, but he did not come to the rescue. I then went to Canaan, found the Saints, as a rule, strong for the right. Held six or seven meetings in private houses, and opened a new place of which Bro. Porter speaks. Eggs shot I felt not, but whisky I did smell. I hope the Saints will use their powers to overcome the evils of intemperance. Threats were made freely. Bro. James and I went of late to the Outlet School-house where we met from 500 to 800 people. The meeting had been advertized in the New Albany Ledger, and it was rumored there was to be a discussion. Does this look as though the work here was dead? One, Rev. T. M. Brock, a Campbellite, asked some questions at the night meeting in the school-house, in relation to the Covenant, and the mission of the Book of Mormon. The audience perceived his questions did not relate to matters then under consideration, and this made against him. Bro. C. Scott knows him. I expect we will have some one to meet out there, as it is a stronghold of Campbellism. The interest in our work here was never greater than now.

When I read father Z. H. Gurley's account of the rise of the Reorganization, I could not read it all at once for the thrilling influence of God's Spirit given me. I am assured Bro. Gurley's testimony is true. May we all live so as to have God's special blessings, and finally be saved in celestial glory.

M. R. SCOTT.

BLENHEIM, Ont., May 10th.

Bro. Joseph:—This seems to be an age when there are a great many frauds, and religion has its share. The Salvation Army are here in full blast, with their blood and fire religion, beating their drums, shaking their tambourines and saying, "Believe you are saved, and you are saved," and much more such foolishness. Thank God for the gospel and the light and knowledge it reveals.

Yours in Christ,

RICHARD COBURN.

Selections.

MEXICO AND ITS POPULATION.

The people of Mexico by some are said to number 10,000,000, by others 8,000,000. Of these probably seven-eighths are of Aztec and the others of Spanish and other foreign origin. The Spanish are still the controlling race. They are mainly intelligent and wealthy, and manage to hold the reigns of government. The franchise is restricted to a comparatively small number of the ruling classes, and hence the emeutes and revolutions which have been a frequent occurrence in Mexican history. The descendants of the Indians are a quiet, peace-loving people, and do nearly all the manual labor of the country. The climate is so genial that they do not need many dry goods, and apparently their mode of life has not changed much since the days of the Montezumas. Sandals, with a single blouse and trousers, satisfy the men; and a calico slip and perhaps a blanket about the loins, with bare feet, constitute the dress of the women. They are all fond of gay colors, and when at a distance and not too closely scanned, look picturesque—perhaps some would say beautiful. They have adobe huts for their homes, but these are mainly valuable in storms, for they live mostly out of doors. A visit to the Indian market, where thousands assemble daily, and to the fair at Amecameca, where there were tens of thousands of people, mainly in the street, chatting and elbowing their way, gave ample opportunity to observe their habits.

ARTIFICIAL BUTTER.

According to Commissioner Colman, of the United States Agricultural Department, the following substances are used in the manufacture of "oleomargarine," "butterine," and the other compounds passed off on the credulous public for butter; namely, animal fat, lactic acid, peanut-oil, almond-oil, olive-oil, soda ash, bi-carbonate of soda, pepsin, lard, tallow, beef-suet, ground slippery-elm bark, salt-petre, borax, boracic, salicylic, and benzoic acids, butyric ether, sugar, and glycerine. The laws protecting the people against such frauds have been placed on the statute-books none too soon.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

AN APPEAL.

WE can truly say that we rejoice in the results achieved by the conference recently in session here. To-day we feel that we stand upon a firmer basis than ever before, and the soldiers enlisted under the banner of King Emanuel are better equipped and fitted for duty, than at any previous period of the church's history. The banner of King Emanuel is a blood stained one, and the wine-press was trodden alone. For these stains of blood, for the agony of Gethsemane, the cruel death of the cross, there must have been an adequate reason: "Who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." "Life and immortality,"—gives the reason. In it there is more than any human soul ever dreamed of. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." These things are prepared, they are waiting, Christ has finished his work. Do we want to possess this life, this immortality which is brought to light through the gospel plan—not only to possess it ourselves; but our children also? Do we?

It is storming to-day while we write; the wind is beating the rain fiercely against the windows and doors and occasionally the very house seems to shake. We look from the window and we see the foundation of rock beneath the superstructure, and recall our saying to the masons employed to do the work; "See that you select only the best rock and do good work, being careful in regard to your mortar." Why did we do this? Why, because we knew that if our life was spared to see the completion of the house, it was our intention to gather our loved ones beneath its roof and within its walls to make a home. In this country the winds are fierce, and sudden storms frequently arise, and we have seen houses tied by strong cables to heavy posts of timber driven in the ground. If this building was to shelter our loved ones, we wanted it to have a good foundation. And now we let the storm howl without while we resume the thread of our thought.

Do we want this life and immortality for ourselves and our children?

"Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock: and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock." Are we founded upon this rock? Have we dug deep until we came to it, and do we know for ourselves that we are in the church of Christ, that we "have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered us?" If we do not know this for ourselves, we are living beneath our privilege, for God is pledged to give the knowledge to those who obey. Thousands and tens of thousands of us do know this. Hundreds of thousands since the coming forth of this work have had the testimony "confirmed in them" and have borne witness to the truth. Now the question which we wish to bring home to the conscience and heart of each parent, each father and mother who reads this is, "If we know it, why do we not act as though we believed it?" Why do we not train our children from the very earliest period in which their minds are able to receive impressions, in the truth? "Rooted and grounded in the truth." This is their right. It is what God expects of us, and what he will require at our hands. The truth is their native soil,—the soil in which every fiber of their lives should find nourishment, and in which they should be rooted and grounded. "Therefore shall ye lay up these my words in your hearts and in your souls, and ye shall teach them to your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the ways, when thou liest down, when thou risest up." Saints of God, do you think in a field cultivated like this, weeds will have it all their own way? Don't let us say this was under the law. A risen Redeemer said to Peter, "Feed my lambs." To Frederick G. Williams he said:

"The glory of God is intelligence, or, in other words light and truth; light and truth forsaketh that evil one. Every spirit of man was innocent in the beginning, and God having redeemed man from the fall, men became again in their infant state, innocent before God. And that wicked one cometh and taketh away light and truth, through disobedience, from the children of men, and because of the tradition of their fathers. But I have commanded you to bring up your children in light and truth; but verily I say unto you my servant Frederick G. Williams, you have continued under this condemnation; you have not taught your children light and truth, according to the commandment; and that wicked one hath power as yet, over you, and this is the cause of your affliction. And now a commandment I give unto you, if you will be delivered: you shall set in order your own house, for there are many things that are not right in your house." * * *

To Sidney Rigdon, Joseph Smith, Jr., and Bishop Whitney came the same divine command "set in order your house." "What I say unto one I say unto all; pray always, lest that wicked one have power in you, and remove you out of your place."

Can instruction be plainer than this? If we are in possession of light and truth, and do not bring up our children in that light, and teach them that truth, then are we under condemnation before God and are every day in danger of being moved out of our place.

Application has been made to us to take charge of the Hope. We thought that we could not do this, were not willing to do it, unless it was enlarged to at least twice its present size. A recent call to responsibility in connection with our Sunday School in this place would make it desirable to occupy as much as half the space of the Hope (in its present size) with matter entirely connected with Sunday School interest, which while originally prepared for this school, would be intended for the use and benefit of every school connected with the church. Upon application to the President of the Board of Publication he feared that the condition of the finances would not warrant such enlargement just at this time; but while this is the case, all who have thought about the matter agree that it ought to be enlarged. The growth of the work demands it, the vital interests of the church demand it.

The action of the late conference is satisfactory because the trumpet is beginning to give a "certain sound" and it is time we prepare ourselves for the battle. With whom is this battle to be waged? "That wicked one cometh and taketh away light and truth through disobedience." We are commanded to bring up our children in light and truth, but many of us have only "daubed with untempered mortar." Because undenominational publications have been cheap and our church have had none of their own suited to the young, we have daubed with them the foundation which should have received our strictest oversight, and as a consequence not being rooted and grounded in the truth, the faith imperfectly taught and still more imperfectly understood in childhood, has not been able to withstand the storms which have assailed it in after life as a legitimate result, like the building upon the sand it has been swept away.

Where are the sons and daughters who are to take the places of those now laboring for Zion's weal? Thank God we know of many noble examples, but they are the exceptions not the rule. During the conference we were permitted to read a card which came to one of our guests from his son who wrote, "Dear Father: I baptized two yesterday. Had a great measure of the Spirit at confirmation. I shall baptize two more two weeks from to-day." When we read this, we felt that we would rather be the mother of such a son, than wear the crown of Victoria herself. This young man was one called into the quorum of the Seventies, and we predict the banner of our King will never be lowered in his hands. Rooted and grounded in the truth of God, the devious ways in which man may see fit to walk, will not cause such ones to forsake the cause of truth. But among us there are lame ones, such as have not been built up with good mortar in their foundations, and for the sake of such we are commanded to "make straight paths for our feet."

Now fathers and mothers in Zion, we are going to make an appeal to you in behalf of the children God has given you: to you first, because you are most interested, and have more responsibility in the matter than those who have no children; but we shall by no means limit the appeal to you, but we ask a united effort upon the part of every one who is interested in the work of the Lord in these last days. We want 1000 new subscribers to the Hope. Don't let this cause you any astonishment, and don't for one moment think that it can not be accomplished. $500 is all it will take, and when that is divided among 20,000 how much of a tax will it be? Brothers and sisters, you who have the means, send in your free will offerings and let the numbers you do not want yourself be sent to the poor children of the church whose parents can barely afford to subscribe for the Herald. Sisters, we appeal especially to you. Who will lay upon this altar some small sacrifice of self? Who will do with one less yard of costly lace, one less ornament for her person, that she may do an unselfish act? Would to God that you might come forward with your gift consecrated to his service, for the consecrated ones are all we want. If any would give to be seen of men, better retain the gift; for God is able to open the way and he will open it. If we do not respond it may be when we and our own children shall have suffered loss; but he is God, it is his work and he will carry it on.

"The sweet persuasion of his voice Respects thy sanctity of will.
He giveth day: thou hast thy choice
To walk in darkness still."

We do not ask this from any one without offering an equivalent. With the blessing of God upon our efforts and the sustaining prayers and help of the church, we will render for every dollar an equivalent in the good done for your little ones. It will be our constant aim to advance the cause and build up the kingdom, by feeding the youth of our church with "food convenient for them" and suited to their tender years. If you are not prepared to send the money now, but think you will have it ready by the 1st of September, write Bro. Dancer to that effect and pledge yourself to forward at that time. We are going to give our young people a chance to aid in this work, and through the Hope will suggest ways and means. We have such faith in their energy and good will that we just as surely expect to see the Hope enlarged, as we expect to see Autumn come. We not only need a larger paper, but we also need Sunday School literature. The plain teachings of the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants should be simplified and made attractive to the young. There is not, to our knowledge, a single volume now published by the church intended exclusively for the young, and suited to their capacity. We intend to plead with the church, like the widow with the unjust judge, until we attract attention to this very great oversight. The church in 1832 were told that condemnation rested upon them, "even all" and it should remain upon them until they repented and remembered the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon and the former commandments given them, not only to say but to do according to that which was written. We have referred to some of these commandments relating to our children, can we say that we are innocent in regard to them to-day?

"To be saved is only this,— Salvation from our selfishness;
From more than elemental fire,—
The soul's unsanctified desire;—
From sin itself, and not the pain
That warns us of its chafing chain."

THE UNRIGHTEOUS MAMMON.

"And I say unto you, make to yourselves friends of [or with] the mammon of unrighteousness; that when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations [abodes]."—Luke 16: 9.

The language used above proceeds from the mouth of our divine tutor, Jesus Christ, and is not without signification. It is one of a series of parables and illustrations showing the condition of the individuals whom he addresses past, present and future, commencing with Luke 13: 1, and ending Luke 16: 31. The individuals whom he addresses are the publicans, sinners, Pharisees, and scribes mentioned in Luke 15: 1, 2. It seems the clergy, (scribes and Pharisees), were offended, and murmured at the deportment of Jesus for receiving and eating with publicans and sinners. Jesus at once perceiving their envy, began to teach them the high value of precious souls, and the happiness produced in heaven and earth by their conversion; first by the sheep, one being lost and found again. Second, by the loss of one piece of silver out of ten; third, by the prodigal's return to his father's house. In the latter part of the same chapter is also illustrated the unwillingness of the scribes and Pharisees to let the publicans and sinners participate in the joys of God's kingdom; and fourth the position the clergy, [Pharisees and scribes which were in possession at that time of the oracles of God] were occupying, and what their standing was before God, and that they would soon be removed from their office as teachers because of their negligence and disobedience in the things pertaining to the kingdom of God. "The kingdom shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof."—Luke 16: 1, 2.

And further on he teaches them the course they should have taken as wise servants to avoid having their stewardships taken from them, and thus be prepared for a change in the law and administration, and so find favor in the eyes of those who should administer the law that they might be received into everlasting habitations—the church or kingdom.

We now come to the critical language. Webster says the term Mammon means riches, wealth, possessions. I accept the latter definition as throwing the most light upon the subject. These possessions I believe to be the riches or wealth of spiritual things entrusted to the stewards (ministers) of the moral, or inferior law; and as this law "was a school-master to bring us to Christ," and although "unrighteous" in one sense, that is, fading away, "waxed old," "ready to vanish away," yet wise servants of that law could and should have enlightened the minds of publicans and sinners concerning the dispensation of grace soon to be ushered in by the anointed of God. As wise stewards they should have said, "How much owest thou unto my Lord?" The reply is, "One hundred measures of oil." "Sit down quickly and write fifty," and to the steward, "How much do you owe?" "One hundred measures of wheat." "Write fourscore." The substance of the illustration is simply this,—although you are deeply indebted to God (or great sinners) according to the moral law, the dispensation of grace is at hand, and it shall no more be "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth;" for the dispensation of grace says, "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone." "A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench till he send forth judgment to victory."

Such doctrine would have been "balm in Gilead" indeed to poor deluded, straying sinners. Thus they would have made themselves friends with "the unrighteous mammon," (moral law, or rather the promises of God), and gladly would they have been received "into everlasting habitation"—the Church of Christ, or kingdom of heaven—when they "failed," or the moral law vanished away. But alas for these stewards (priests). It was just the contrary; they did seemingly all they could to discourage the weary sinners, calling them "dogs," and reviling those who had compassion on them. Oh, ye stewards! well might Jesus call you to give an account of your stewardships; well might he say, "The harlots go into the kingdom of heaven before you;" well might he say, "They shall come from east, west, north, and south to sit with Abraham in the kingdom, but you, the children of the kingdom, be cast out." Well might God refrain from giving you that which is your own, when you have not been faithful in that which is another man's. How could God entrust with you the true riches? Why took ye away "the key of knowledge?" Why would you prevent those who were entering into the kingdom? Ye encompass land and sea to make one proselyte, ye will surely fall into the pit with those you lead. Jesus does not speak to you of money, but of spiritual things. Why did not you make yourselves friends with the mammon of unrighteousness, (the things in your possession) so you would have had friends in time of trouble? But, "behold your house is left unto you desolate,"—poor wandering Jew, how sad is your error. Well might the prophet say, "The summer is ended, the harvest is past and we are not saved." In conclusion I would yet say that I believe the circumstance of the unrighteous mammon should be directly applied to the ministry of the moral law, and not to us. But we can certainly learn a great lesson therefrom to do our duty at all times.

Let the servants of God of this Christian dispensation take heed lest they fall into the lot of the rich man. Let them not be drunken and beat their men servants and maid servants lest their lord will come in an hour when they look not for him and appoint them their portion with hypocrites and unbelievers, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. I realize that this article is roughly hewn, but I hope some one will take it up and perfect it, trusting that it will remove some errors, do good to man kind at large, and strengthen our mutual faith in Jesus Christ.

Yours in Christ,

D. W. SHIRK.

[We think the parable of "the mammon of unrighteousness" relates to the use of worldly wealth. "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof." Those who possess it hold stewardships therein and the Lord holds them responsible for the use they make of it. Those who use it unwisely and unjustly will be condemned, while those who use it righteously will be commended and rewarded of God, and be received "into everlasting habitations" by our God and his Christ. See Matt. 25: 31-46; Isa. 58: 6-11; Ezek. 18: 5-9; James 1: 27, etc., etc. Only God and Christ can receive any one "into everlasting habitations." We make them our "friends," by doing their commands.—ED.]

CONSECRATION.

THE Herald of April 5th under the heading "On whom does it rest," takes up the subject of tithing and discusses it from the Scriptures and present revelation, pressing upon the Saints the necessity of obeying it. That and the Word of Wisdom have been subjects for extremists to bring to the front ever since the revelations were given. And what has been accomplished by it? It is still a matter for discussion. But when, O when will we get past it! It is possible, when we all see eye to eye. I was present when the law of July 8th, 1838 was first read publicly, and I heard it explained by Pres. Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon in Far West, Missouri. I well recollect the urgency of the occasion. It occurred directly after the breaking up of the church in Kirtland, Ohio, when they were emigrating in large companies as was usual in our break ups. The Saints were poor, and some arriving destitute. The Bishop was powerless to settle them. He could do nothing. The land was all entered by individuals, some who were wealthy owned large tracts of the best land, while others owned merely a home. Something had to be done. In the mean time there was a revelation given on the 26th of April prior, commanding the Saints to build a house in the city of Far West to the name of the Lord; that the corner stone thereof should be laid on the fourth of July following, and that on the 26th of April, one year from the date of the revelation, they should recommence to build, and continue until the house was completed; also gave a commandment establishing a stake of Zion in Far West, and in the regions round about. "Verily I say unto you all; arise and shine forth, that thy light may be a standard for the nation, and that the gathering together upon the land of Zion and upon her stakes, may be for a defense, and for a refuge from the storm and from the wrath which shall be poured out without mixture upon the whole earth. Let the city Far West be a holy and consecrated land unto me, and it shall be called most holy. Therefore I command you to build a house unto me, for the gathering together of my Saints, that they may worship me." etc. We see the heavy responsibility upon the people at Far West at this particular time; and the question how to work out of this difficulty was what agitated the authorities of the church just then. The pressure of the times was what brought out that revelation of July 8th, 1838 in answer to the question, "O Lord, show unto thy servants how much thou requirest of the properties of thy people for a tithing." The answer was broad and sweeping, going right to the point—"I require all their surplus property to be put into the hands of the Bishop of my church of Zion, for the building of mine house, and for the laying the foundation of Zion," etc. This was for a beginning of tithing. After that, one tenth of their interest annually. Again: "Verily I say unto you; it shall come to pass that all those who gather unto the land of Zion, shall observe this law." On the same date there was an addenda making known the disposition of the property thus obtained, to wit, "Thus saith the Lord: the time has now come that it shall be disposed of by the council composed of the First Presidency of my church, the Bishop and his council, the High Council, and by mine own voice unto them saith the Lord." Thus, to carry out this law in full, it requires an organized stake of Zion, a house to build, and a commencement of building up of Zion—"And I say unto you, if my people observe not this law to keep it holy, and by this law sanctify the land of Zion unto me, that my statutes and judgments may be kept thereon, that it may be most holy; behold, I say unto you, it shall not be a land of Zion unto you. This shall be an ensample unto all the stakes of Zion." Now I look upon this law as having been a necessity when it was given. It will be a necessity again when the Saints are gathered to build up Zion. But, in our scattered condition, I can not see how it can operate in all its provisions for the peoples' good.

There is a law in Doc. and Cov., sec. 42: 8, 9, 10, which is and has been in force since it was given, and which I think is sufficient in the scattered condition of the Saints, until God moves upon the people and opens up the way for the redemption of Zion, which the old Saints have been looking for since they were driven out. The time is nearing when the promises will be fulfilled. Then the laws of Zion must needs be kept,—"my laws shall be kept on that land, saith the Lord." And with regard to preaching the gospel to the world, the Elders were instructed in sec. 83, Doc. Cov., that they should travel and preach as the disciples of old, two and two. The laborer is worthy of his hire; and if men go and preach in this way, filled with the Spirit of God they will do good to their fellow-men, and so long as they are faithful they will not lack for anything needful; but when they lose the Spirit of their calling, then they have cause to fear, and will want something in their pockets. Joseph always adhered to the instructions therein given, that to send them out to play the gentlemen they did no good, and they had better stay at home. If paying tithing, being often baptized, preaching the gospel without purse or scrip, (or at their own expense), counts for anything, then the Elders of the Utah church will take the praise, for they have prided themselves in carrying out those instructions. But we believe in more than dead works. It is the Spirit that gives life to the servant of God and makes his services acceptable to God and beneficial to the children of men; for without it we can not be the servants of God, and our labors will not count for good unto us when we are called to give an account before the judge of all the earth.

HISTORY OF THE REORGANIZATION OF THE CHURCH.

IN the last number of the HERALD was given the last that father Gurley furnished on the history of the Reorganized Church; but the two articles we now present, signed by Bro. Z. H. Gurley, senior, and R. Newkirk, very properly come next in order, showing the fulfillment of the testimonies of the Spirit in respect to the coming of the "seed," the "posterity" of the Seer to preside over the church according to the provisions of the law and the promises of God, and in harmony with the traditions of the church from 1832 and thereafter. The coming of "young Josph" to the Amboy (Illinois) Conference, April 6th, 1860, the press of church cares and responsibilities, also the fact of the then more perfect organization of the church, and the hope that the appointed historian of the church would write up the church's history at an early time, probably deterred father Gurley from continuing his narrative to a greater length.

DUTIES OF THE SAINTS.

BROTHER SHEEN:—As some of the brethren are anxious to know what is to be done to prepare the way for the coming of the Prophet, we have thought that we would answer this inquiry in the HERALD, that all might be instructed and prepared to act understandingly. As was stated in our history, some years since we were commanded to organize, "for ere long, saith the Lord, I will require the prophet at your hands." And as we are satisfied from the manifestations of the Spirit to us that this requisition will soon be made, we would say that the preparation necessary for that event is simply to do what we were commanded some years ago, viz:—to organize. By reference to our history you will see that the Saints commenced the organization of the church as they were commanded, but for various reasons they have not been able to complete it, hence it is our duty at our next Conference, first to cut off all dead branches, as we have been commanded, and then examine closely the character, faith and standing of those belonging to the quorum of the Twelve, and if there are any vacancies, let the Conference appoint three men to choose others in their places, and when their selection is sanctioned by the conference, place at their head the oldest man among them, who will then be the representative of the legal heir, in a presiding capacity, according to the word of the Lord unto us. Then let them proceed to organize the High Council and lesser quorums according to the pattern. We are aware that our scattered condition is somewhat against us, nevertheless let the different branches send some of their best men to the conference with the names of all their official members who can all be placed in their respective quorums ready for action when called out by the word of the Lord. In this way the church can be organized to come together when the prophet shall take his place among us. We are well aware that within a few years, there has been a great deal of puffing and blowing about priesthood. Many honest souls, through fear of disobedience, have been led into darkness, and thereby brought on themselves greater evils than they sought to avoid. To remove all doubts on this subject we inquire, How can we know that we have authority from God, and that what we do in the name of the Lord Jesus, is acceptable unto Him? This inquiry is answered in the revelation to Enoch.—The Lord said to him, "When you do what I command you, then I am bound, otherwise [mark] ye have no promise." The teachings of Jesus to His apostles were similar to this, as Matthew has it, thus: (28: 20), "teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo, I am with you," as much as to say, otherwise I am not with you. The retaining of their authority depended upon their teaching just what Jesus had commanded them; otherwise they acted upon their own responsibility. Here then is the secret of power in the priesthood: It is simply in doing just what God commands. Then he is "bound," otherwise priesthood is a nullity. No matter what office in the priesthood men have been ordained to, if they turn aside, and neglect to work according to the commandments of the Lord, they and their acts are as sounding brass and tinkling cymbal. Heed them not. In the day of the Lord Jesus they will be as the chaff of the summer threshing floor. We would say then to all the Saints of this dispensation, As you sought and obtained from God an evidence that Joseph was a prophet of God, so do in relation to this work. Then and not until then, can you act in faith and help us to advance the work. The Savior has said that "those who take the Holy Spirit for their guide," are the "wise virgins." They, and they only have "oil in their lamps." They are the "pure in heart" who "shall see God." They are they who have a celestial spirit. "They are they who have kept a celestial law, therefore they shall come forth in the first resurrection, and reign with Christ on the earth."

We can not close without calling your attention to Doc. & Cov. 85: 5, where the Lord says, (speaking of the church), except ye are sanctified by the law that ye have received, ye can not receive a celestial glory.—Rev., Dec. 27th, 1832. Brethren, is this true? Is it true that the law given as far back as February, 1831, will enable us to obtain a celestial glory? If so, what about the law that Brigham got in 1844, claiming to be the celestial law, contradicting this in every point? Which is right? All those who enjoy the Holy Spirit know which is right and thank God for it. The Lord does not say that a law should be given so many years afterwards that should enable them to obtain celestial glory, but that they had already received it. They had it then, and with the same we are satisfied. Let us obey it to the letter, and eternal life is ours, for the Lord has said that those who are "not sanctified" by this law, (which the church had received as far back as Feb., 1831), "can not receive a celestial glory." This is our faith, and we say to all, Let no man deceive you, or divert you from it.

For the encouragement of the brethren, we will say that the great work of reformation is going on. We have just heard from the churches at Sandwiche, Batavia, Marengo and Boone. Nearly all are enjoying the gifts and blessings in a remarkable manner. It has pleased God to revive His work again in this place. Last evening we had one of our old-fashioned prayer meetings. The gifts were abundantly manifest, and the assurance given that all the promised blessings shall come in the own due time of the Lord.

Affectionately yours,

{ ZEANOS H. GURLEY,
{ REUBEN NEWKIRK.

THE GREAT WORK OF THE CONFERENCE.

BROTHER SHEEN:—Since our last communication we have been commanded to write again, again, and again upon the necessity of our immediate obedience to the commandment given us nearly seven years since, to organize, (that the way may be prepared for the coming forth of the legitimate heir to the Presidency of the Melchisedek Priesthood), and cause the same to be published and forwarded to all who are with us in the faith—calling upon them in the name of the Lord Jesus to give heed to, and obey the same.

Brethren, by reference to the Doc. & Cov., sec. 100: (101) you will see that as far back as February, 1834, the calamity that has since come upon the church was plainly foreseen, and the means by and through which our redemption and the redemption of our brethren should come is there plainly spoken of; and had we understood what was written none of us need to have been in darkness in relation to this all important matter, for the Lord said, "After much tribulation and the tribulation of your brethren cometh your redemption and the redemption of your brethren." He also said, "I will raise up unto my people a man, who shall lead them like as Moses led the children of Israel." You are aware that at the time this revelation was given, brother Joseph was raised up and was the Lord's mouth-piece to the church, as Moses was in his day to the church in the wilderness. See Doc. & Cov., 104: 42. Hence if the Lord did not design to take Joseph from the church—that they might go into darkness, that they might learn obedience by the things they should suffer—why did he tell us so many years since that this event should happen, and show us the means through which our deliverance and the deliverance of our brethren will come? The Lord foresaw it all, and has virtually told us of it, yet we knew it not until it pleased Him to open our understanding that we with you might go forward and prepare the way for that deliverance that was promised us so many years ago.

Our duty at the next conference is to organize and set in order all the quorums in the church under the First Presidency. With that quorum we have nothing to do. God will, in His own time, raise up the man like unto Moses. The church can easily give him his counsellors, and then the organization will be completed. To organize acceptably it will require all the faith, talent and experience amongst us. We want twelve of the best men, (men of sound minds that will not turn either to the right or left, but will in the fear of God discharge their duty), to fill the High Council. In a word, we want the best men among us to fill important offices in the priesthood, that from henceforth this work may be under the guidance of men of experience, those who fear God and will work righteousness. This can be done as we have proposed in a former letter, viz: by each branch sending up delegates. It will require the presence at conference of as many Elders of the church as can possibly get there, hence thus hath the Lord God of Israel said to us by the voice of His Spirit. "I command you to call upon all the Elders of my church to assemble themselves together at the next April Conference, to be held at Amboy, commencing on the 6th of April, 1860, that you may organize yourselves even as I have told you in a former commandment, and inasmuch as circumstances prevent, send up your names and places of abode. Delay not the work, for my people are crying unto me day and night for deliverance, therefore organize yourselves that deliverance may come." Brethren, will you obey the call? If you say yes, then put yourselves in readiness, and if you have to preach your way up to conference, then start in time. You know how to tavel without purse or script. You have often done it. You can do it again. Are we the blood of Ephraim? If we are let us show our blood by works. Is there any sacrifice too great for us to make for this work? "From Ephraim was my fruit found," saith the Lord by the prophet.

Come on, brethren, and you shall realize far more than you anticipate. Our time to do this work is limited. We knew it not, until recently. If we fail through neglect, "seven men must perish," saith the Lord our God. We are aware that our position and declarations to the church, has caused many of the wise ones of the church to smile at our (supposed) folly. Brethren, heed them not:

"We know that we know,
For the spirit of Christ,

Tells his servants they can not be wrong."

Their laughter will soon be turned to mourning. While they mourn you will rejoice, not in their calamity, but in the fulfillment of all the promises of God to us. You are aware, brethren, that the rejection of the church produced an effect on the dead as well as the living; so will its reorganization. In the Book of Covenants, section eighteen, you will read about a feast provided for all nations. The first invitation was to the learned and noble, etc. That has already been. Now comes the day of the Lord's power. This is the work that lies before you. Shall we not go forward? As Bro. Joseph said, "On, on, to victory." If the Elders, as a body, will give heed to the commandment to assemble, and by their faith, wisdom and patience, help to accomplish the organization as commanded, they shall know ere long why the figures 1860 were seen inscribed upon the heavens, several years ago, as testified to by many creditable witnesses living in Washington county, Indiana. (i) This work, brethren, is of vast importance. Suffer us to exhort you to seek the Lord by fasting and prayer. Rest not until you receive the Holy Spirit, which leadeth into all truth, and from this time forward, until you reach the conference, make it a special subject of prayer, that you may know the mind and will of God concerning this matter, that you may act in faith, nothing doubting, and ere we close we say again to all the Elders of the church, Come, come, meet us at conference, that you may take your places in your respective quorums. Farewell.

ZENOS H. GURLEY,
REUBEN NEWKIRK.

ZARAHEMLA, Wis., Feb. 8, 1886.

(i) The occurrence referred to by father Gurley was described as follows in the Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 413-14:

WASHINGTON, Wayne Co., Ind.,
Dec. 22d, 1843.

Mr. John Hatfield, Sir:— * * * But I must hasten to give you an account of a singular phenomenon which was seen in this neighborhood on the night of the 19th inst. It was reported that a panther had been seen at the Logan deadening (you know the place), and on the evening of the 19th, Jesse Fox, William and Lorenzo Fox, David Bale, James Wilson and William Cole, with some others, repaired to the place to see if they could discover and kill the monster; but failing in this, they retired to the house of Solomon Mendenhall, at which place they stayed a short time, while there they discovered a ball rising from the east, in an oblique line, and as it ascended it moved towards the west with great rapidity, until it was high in the heavens, leaving a streak of light behind it, which, to the natural eye, had the appearance of being thirty or forty feet in length. This light remained stationary for about one minute; both ends then coming round formed a figure of 8, which figure also retained its position for the same space of time; it was then transformed into a figure of 6, which also remained for about a minute; it then was formed into a cipher or O; which remained for about three minutes. The figures put together made 1860 in large figures, in the heavens. The phenomenon was indeed singular, and has been a matter of great speculation with us.

Respectfully yours, &c.,

WILLIAM MARTINDALE.

Very many momentous events occurred in 1860, some of which have had a most important influence upon the work and general interests of the Church of Christ; among them the rebellion of the Southern States, and the subsequent doom of slavery and its adjuncts, the scourging of the land of Zion and the beginning of those fearful times embraced in the prophecy of the Seer on the rebellion. But Elder Gurley seemed to think that at least one of the important events indicated for that year was the coming forth of the "seed"—the "posterity"—of Joseph Smith the Seer to take the presidency of the church. This is seen in the manner he refers to it, and besides this, the writer heard him say as much.

No changes. Bishop's Agent reported as follows: [Summarized, W. W. C.] On hand at last report $153.80; received since $94.05; total $247.85; Paid out $100; on hand December 31st, 1885, $147.85. P. Cadwell, Bishop's Agent. Committee consisting of Brn. J. M. Putney, E. C. Brand and Wm. R. Davison were appointed to audit the Bishop's Agent's report. The spiritual condition of the Little Sioux Branch was reported by J. L. Gunsolly; of Magnolia Branch by Phineas Cadwell; Sioux City by M. P. Berg (by letter); Union Center by J. M. Putney, and Spring Creek by Wm. Chambers. Official Reports. W. W. Blair of the first presidency, C. Derry, J. C. Crabb and P. Cadwell of the High Priests' Quorum, E. C. Brand, B. V. Springer (by letter) and J. F. Mintun of the Seventy, Elders John Pett, A. W. Lockling, Isaac Shupe, David Chambers (by letter), Richard Farmer, Wm. Chambers, Henry Garner, Martin P. Berg (by letter), J. M. Putney, Andrew Joneson, E. R. Lanpher, J. W. Wight, W. C. Cadwell, and Donald Maule; Priests J. L. Gunsolly, James Emerson, W. T. Fallon and B. M. Green; and Teachers W. R. Davison and Enoch Hunt reported. On separate motions the following were elected as delegates to General Conference: Brn. J. C. Crabb, C. Derry, J. W. Wight, and W. C. Cadwell and Sr. Alice Cobb. Bishop's Agent reported having received an answer to the enquiry directed to be made by this conference of the Bishop with reference to meeting houses and other church property. Committee in case of the organization of a branch on Willow reported no action on account of weather. Recommended that matter be left to Magnolia Branch. On motion committee was released and recommendation adopted. E. R. Lanpher was released from his mission on Willow and Brn. D. Chambers, Colby Downs and Lehi Ellison were continued in former missions. Some remarks were also made by Brn. Blair and Derry with reference to the need of labor at Kingsley. On motion it was decided that a standing committee should be appointed consisting of the presidency of the district, Brn. J. C. Crabb, P. Cadwell and C. Derry to consider the subject of missions and report thereon. On motion Bro. E. C. Brand was requested to labor as much as possible in the Little Sioux District. Statistical report of the Little Sioux District for the year ending March 13th, 1886, was read as follows: Enrolled members at last report 577. Present number enrolled 598, including 3 High Priests, 4 of the Seventy, 34 Elders, 13 Priests, 8 Teachers, and 6 Deacons. Since last report 12 have been baptized, and 51 received by letter or vote. There have been 8 removals by letter or vote, 1 expelled, 9 died, and 1 lost by error. Our branch has been disorganized, by which disorganization there was a loss to the enrolled membership of 23. Total gain to the enrolled membership during the year 63. Total loss to the enrolled membership during the year 42. Net gain to the enrolled membership during the year 21. Estimated scattered membership 94. Total membership 692. To this was added a short summary of the spiritual condition of the district. On motion the above reports were adopted. A scattered member being reported in transgression, a motion prevailed that said member be requested to appear before the Magnolia Branch to answer to the charge. Magnolia Sabbath School reported for quarter ending March 14th, 1886. Number of Sundays met 13; total attendance of scholars 276; average 21; number of officers 4; number of teachers 4. Money collected $4.18; paid out 90cts; on hand $3.28. P. Cadwell, superintendent, W. T. Fallon, assistant superintendent, A. M. Fyrand, treasurer, Sarah E. Mahoney, secretary. Committee on Bishop's Agent's report submitted their report showing one error which was corrected and report as corrected adopted. [The report as shown above is the corrected report.—Clerk.] The committee appointed at the Reunion to see about purchasing a tent reported having purchased a tent to accommodate about one thousand people at a probable cost of about $250, the money to pay for which had mostly been subscribed. Preaching was had during conference by Bro. E. C. Brand, Saturday evening, and Bro. W. W. Blair Sunday morning and evening. Sacrament and prayer service Sunday afternoon in charge of Brn. Wm. Chambers and J. M. Putney, assisted by Priests J. C. Johnson and W. T. Fallon. On motion adjourned to meet at Little Sioux, at 11 o'clock a. m., Saturday, June 5th, 1886.

NORTHERN NEBRASKA.

The above district conference was held at Fremont, Nebraska, March 19th, 1886. Wm. M. Rumel, president, Isaac Sylvester, secretary. The opening session was devoted to prayer and testimony, and an excellent feeling prevailed. Branch Reports: Omaha, 110 members, 2 received by letter. Lake Shore, 27, 2 received. Union branch report was referred back for correction. Elders reports:—E. C. Brand, baptized 2, Wm. M. Rumel and Geo. W. Walters reported. Bishop's Agent Report:—Cash on hand at last report $70.50. Received since, $15.00. Paid out, $65.00. Balance on hand, $20.50. Wm. M. Rumel Agent. The legality of Joseph Gilbert's ordination to the office of an Elder, upon motion was referred to a committee of three, and he was requested to cease acting in said office until his case was settled. In view of the fact that nearly all the members of the Blair Branch had moved away, it was deemed advisable by the District President that the branch be declared dissolved, and it was so ordered. A communication was received from the Columbus branch of the Central Nebraska District, asking that said branch be attached to this district, and it was referred to the President of this mission for advice, to report to next conference. The action of the District President in silencing Oscar H. Brown was sustained. Oscar H. Brown gave notice that he would appeal his case to the General Conference to be held at Lamoni, Iowa, April 6th, 1886. Wm. M. Rumel was elected delegate to General Conference. Bishop's Agent was sustained, also Wm. M. Rumel, as District President, and I. Sylvester as secretary. All Elders and Priests in the district were requested to labor under direction of the District President. Preaching at 10:30, a. m., by E. C. Brand; at 2:30, p. m. by W. M. Rumel, and at 7:30 p. m., by E. C. Brand. Owing to the severe storms and high water, many were prevented from attending. Adjourned to meet at Platte Valley, Nebraska, June 18th, 1886.

DECATUR.

The above district conference was held at Lamoni, Ia., March 13th and 14th, 1886. H. A. Stebbins president, A. S. Cochran secretary. Branch reports.—Lamoni 544, a gain of 9. Davis City 60, loss of 2. Lucas 227, gain of 6. Little River 102, gain of 2. Allendale 37, same as last report. Lone Rock 56, gain of 2. Greenville 33, gain of 5. Reports.—Joseph Smith spoke of his labors in Utah, Idaho and Montana, also at various places in the district; J. R. Lambert, Columbus Scott, J. W. Gillen, E. Banta, M. McHarness, J. P. Dillen, L. Gault, E. Lovell, S. V. Bailey, O. J. Bailey, R. Lyle, H. N. Snively, J. S. Snively, V. White, Joseph Boswell, H. Bartlett, H. Church, S. Ackerly and Levi Atkinson, reported; also Priests A. J. Moore, N. Lovell, J. Traxler, J. A. Upton and J. Wahlstrom. Bishop's agent reported cash on hand at last report $5.61, received $691.79, paid out $375.78, balance on hand $321.62. Report audited by Asa S. Cochran, O. J. Baily and John Johnston. J. R. Evans, H. A. Stebbins, J. R. Lambert, A. W. Reese and Joseph Hammer, were appointed delegates to General Conference. Moved that hereafter the District Conference be held but three times a year. Carried. Bro. J. V. L. Sherwood surrendered his license, which was accepted, and referred to his quorum. Two were baptized by A. J. Moore on Sunday. Preaching on Saturday evening by Bro. John Johnston; on Sunday forenoon by Bro. Joseph Smith; social meeting in the afternoon, and preaching by Columbus Scott in the evening. Adjourned to meet at Lucas, Iowa, June 12th, 1886, at ten o'clock.

NORTH-WEST KANSAS.

The above district conference met with Goshen branch, Clay county, Kansas, March 13th and 14th, 1886. Elder A. H. Parsons president, H. R. Harder clerk, Branch reports.—Elmira 34; 1 died. Prairie Home 21. Twin Creek 46. Goshen 56; 2 received by certificate, 2 by letter. Blue Rapids 62. Deer Creek 7. Bishop's agent's report: on hand last report $6.40, received $30, total $36.40, paid out $36.40. Reports.—Elders John Landers, James Caffall, R. Hoyer, G. W. Shute, A. Kent, H. R. Harder, M. Smith, A. H. Parsons (baptized 1), G. W. Beebe and Joseph Morrell, reported by letter. Priests Z. Decker and B. H. Case, by letter. Teachers S. C. Andes and T. Cochran, reported. M. Smith's resignation as Bishop's agent was read, and a vote of thanks tendered. A. H. Parsons was elected district president, H. R. Harder clerk, G. W. Shute was chosen Bishop's agent, and recommended to the Bishop of the church for appointment. Whereas the motion of last conference, referring to the Bishop's agent appears to censure him; therefore, be it resolved, that said motion be rescinded, and he be considered honorably released. Ministry were requested to labor as much as practicable, under the direction of district president. A. H. Parsons and J. Cairnes were chosen delegates to the Annual Conference. Adjourned to meet with the Elmira branch, June 12th, 1886.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA.

Conference met at Hollister, California, March 26th, 1886, J. H. Lawn in the chair, I. F. Kingsbury secretary. All visiting brethren were invited to take part in conference. Elders J. H. Lawn, J. M. Range, Wm. Anderson (of Oakland), C. W. Hawkins (of Santa Rosa), also Priests I. F. Kingsbury, J. Twitchel, J. B. Carmichael, E. Holt, and Deacon A. B. Page, reported. I. F. Kingsbury was elected president of the district, and ordered by conference to be ordained to the office of an Elder. The chair appointed Wm. Anderson, J. M. Range, and D. Brown to perform said ordination. Branch Reports.—Jefferson Branch 17, including 2 Priests, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon; 1 died, 2 ordinations, 1 marriage. San Benito Branch 31, including 2 Elders, 1 Priest; 1 removed by letter, 1 died. Watsonville Branch 33, including 1 Elder, 2 Priests, 2 Teachers; 1 died. Long Valley and Lone branches no report. Resolved that this conference endorse the action of the Federal Courts of Utah in suppressing the practice of polygamy and pray that wisdom may be given to those in charge that justice may speedily be meted out to all offenders of the law. Resolved: That we uphold and sustain the spiritual authorities of the church in righteousness by our faith, prayers and means. I. F. Kingsbury resigned as secretary and J. B. Carmichael was elected in his stead. Preaching by Wm. Anderson Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, also Sunday 11 a. m. Sacrament and testimony Sunday at 2 p. m. Adjourned to meet at Watsonville, October 8th, 1886.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.

The conference of the above district convened in the Morgan School-house, Otoe Co., Neb., on the 25th and 26th of April, 1886. The following officials were present and reported; Elders Levi Anthony, R. M. Elvin, (baptized 6), J. Armstrong, H. Fields, J. E. Malcom. Priests F. L. Tucker and J. B. Gouldsmith. Teacher John Young, and Deacons A. G. Young, Alan Carpenter, and Samuel Swank. The following reported by letter: M. H. Forscutt, R. C. Elvin, Charles H. Porter, P. C. Peterson and J. M. Terry. Preaching Saturday night by Rob't M. Elvin, Sunday at eleven a. m. by Joshua Armstrong. The rest of the time by R. M. Elvin. J. W. Waldsmith reported having received $212.82; paid out 220.46. Brn. M. F. Forscutt, R. C. Elvin, Chas. H. Porter, and J. Armstrong were requested to labor as their circumstances will permit during the next quarter in the district. The Blue River, Plattsmouth, Nebraska City, and Palmyra branches reported. R. J. Anthony reported by letter (baptized 3). The present district officers were sustained for the next three months. Adjourned to meet at the Morgan School-house, Otoe Co., Neb., July 18th, 1886, at eleven o'clock. Levi Anthony, president, J. B. Gouldsmith, secretary.

Miscellaneous.

BISHOP'S AGENT.

Upon recommendation I hereby appoint Bro. William Sherrill as Bishop's agent for the Central Texas district, in place of Bro. H. C. Smith, resigned; and we recommend him to the Saints, praying that the Spirit of the Master may be with him in the discharge of his duty.

In accordance with the recommendation of the Malad District Conference, held at Malad City, Oneida county, Idaho, February 20th, 1886, I hereby appoint Henry R. Evans as Bishop's Agent for said district, and would recommend him to the Saints as such.

G. A. BLAKESLEE, Bishop,

GROVE MEETING.

The North-West Kansas district will hold a grove meeting nine miles south-east of Glen Elder, in Mr. Gabler's Grove, commencing June the 5th, at eight o'clock in the evening, to continue over the 13th. On the 12th will meet for business at ten o'clock. All coming to the meeting by railroad should come to Glen Elder on Friday the 4th, and it would be well for those coming to write to Abraham Sears or Samuel C. Andes, Elmira, Mitchell county, Kansas. We have a partial promise of two of the Stewartsville brethren to be with us, and Bro. James Caffall is expected. Come all ye that thirst after righteousness, and be ye filled.

Yours in bond of the everlasting covenant,
A. H. PARSONS, dist. pres.

NOTICE.

To the clerks of the branches of Northern Michigan district: Please be sure and send in your branch reports to District Conference in June. If you can not come, or send them by person, send by mail to Brown City, Sanilac county, Michigan, to

J. A. CARPENTER, dist. clerk.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The next conference of the Decatur District will be held at Lucas, Iowa, beginning at ten o'clock on Saturday, June 12th, 1886. The branch officers will please make out and send reports by some one coming, or by mail to me at Lucas, Iowa. All officials and members who can attend, please do so.

H. A. STEBBINS, Dist. Pres.

The district conference for Michigan and Northern Indiana is appointed to be held at Gallien, Michigan, on the 5th of June next, at ten o'clock. Gallien is on the Michigan Central Railway. The Saints should show their interest in the work by being present at that meeting, if at all practicable. We anticipate a pleasant, spiritual, cheering meeting.

WM. H. KELLEY, Dist. Pres.

The Far West District Conference will convene on Saturday, June 12th, 1886, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, with the Stewartsville Branch. We hope Bro. J. R. Lambert will meet with us.

CHAS. P. FAUL, Dist. Sec.

The Western Wisconsin District Conference will convene June 12th and 13th, 1886, with the Wheatville Branch. We hope to see a good attendance. We would say to the officials if they can not come, or think it doubtful, please send your report to A. L. Whiteaker, or W. A. McDowell, and oblige us.

A. L. WHITEAKER, Dist. Pres.

Little Sioux conference will convene at Little Sioux, on Saturday, June 5th, 1886, at eleven o'clock. Good speakers from abroad are expected. It is hoped however that members of the district and others who may have business matters to present, or which need to be presented, will be on hand. Conferences are for business, not pleasure, nor altogether for preaching. They furnish good occasions for preaching and social meetings, but these are only secondary. However, if all come with their business well in hand, and get there promptly and attend diligently, the business can soon be dispatched and a spiritual feast enjoyed afterwards.

J. C. CRABB, President,
WM. C. CADWELL, Secretary.

The quarterly conference for the Eastern Iowa district will convene at Buffalo, Iowa, on Saturday, June 5th, at ten o'clock. It is hoped that there will be a general attendance by members resident in the district, as matters of importance will be passed upon. Late advices from Elder Etzenhouser indicate his probable attendance, and a cordial invitation is extended to Elder J.

S. Roth, also Elders and members of adjoining districts, and traveling Elders who may be in our vicinity to attend.

JEROME RUBY, Dist. Pres.

DIED.

BURGESS.—At San Jose, California, May 4th, 1886, Sr. Sarah Jane Burgess, aged 41 years. Our sister, with her husband, Elder Henry Burgess, were amongst the first who united with the Reorganization in San Francisco, and for many years lived and labored assiduously for it in that city, standing firm for the truth amidst all the discouraging influences that at various times threatened its progress. Our sister has been a great sufferer for several months. All that could possibly be done by her family and kind friends was cheerfully done in the effort to lessen her sufferings. A few days before passing away to her new home, she was visited by the Elders, who, at her request, administered the ordinance, and the sacrament, with such happy results that inspired a further hope of recovery. But such was not to be. Shortly before passing away she expressed an earnest desire to be released, requesting that no more prayers be offered for her detention, and very soon she passed away from earth as pleasantly and calm as a sweet summer's morning, in full faith of immortality to come. The services were conducted by Elder H. P. Brown; a large gathering of friends were present, and their contribution of floral offerings for the occasion were profuse, even for this land of flowers. Conspicuous by their kind attention and attendance were the officers and members of the Magnolia Lodge of United Workmen and supplementary lodge—Degree of Honor—of the sisters, of which our departed sister was a member.

DRAKE.—Near Lamoni, Iowa, on Sunday morning, May 16th, 1886, of consumption, Bro. Isaac T., son of Bro. Benj. F. and Sr. Sarah A. Drake, aged 25 years, 3 months and 22 days. He was ill about eight months and failed rapidly during the last few weeks, but was patient and willing to go, and when his time came he sunk to rest in hope of eternal life. He was baptized by Elder S. W. Hogue, February 16th, 1877, in Pleasants county, West Virginia. His funeral sermon was preached by Elder H. A. Stebbins, assisted by Elder J. P. Dillon.

HOUGAS.—At Dexter, Iowa, May 9th, 1886, of rheumatism of the heart, Bro. Almon D. Hougas, eldest son of Bro. Daniel and Sr. Mary E. Hougas, aged twenty-five years and one month, the day of his death. He had been a member of the church from his early youth, was baptized by Elder J. R. Badham. He will be remembered by those who knew him as a young man of great musical ability, high moral character, and one imbued with great love for the Church of Christ, being guided by the love of God throughout his life. He was of a bright, happy and genial disposition, with always a cheerful, loving word for all, and greatly loved by all who knew him. He died as he had lived, strong in the faith of the gospel of Christ. A few minutes before his death, the watchers about him heard strains of the sweetest music above his head. He looked up with a smile of heavenly sweetness, and without again speaking, he passed away. He was brought to his home at Henderson for interment. His death leaves a void among his sorrow-stricken relatives and friends that nothing can ever fill.

He had left us only a few short weeks before, full of life and strength, and the sudden and unexpected blow fell with crushing force. A dutiful, loving son, a tender and devoted husband, has gone to rest. He is not lost, but gone before.

D. HOUGAS.

CLAYTON.—At Alma, St. Clair county Illinois, March 19th, 1886, Bro Robert Clayton, aged 52 years; deceased was born at Burley, Lancashire, England; baptized September 14th, 1879, by Elder George Hicklin. A wife and nine children are left to mourn his loss.

WEST.—In the town of Colt, Crawford Co., Wis., Bro. Geo. West, April 26th, 1886, aged 78 years, 3 months and 23 days. The deceased was born in England, January 12th, 1808; he was a believer in the latter day work, and was a member and Elder in the old church; he was ordained about the year 1840 or '42, when James Sloan was clerk and Joseph Smith was president; his license was granted him at a conference held at Nauvoo, Illinois; he maintained the faith to the last, and has gone to await the resurrection. He married Alice Sunter, November 8th, 1843, who died August 25th, 1884, aged 70 years, 2 months and 23 days. He was the father of three sons: Sunter, George and James; Sunter died in the late war, April 1st, 1863, 19 years and 8 days; George died March 2d, 1876, in his 29th year; James is still left to mourn his loss, and is strong in the faith. May the blessings of God ever be with him, is my prayer. Funeral sermon by A. L. Whitaker; text, Job 14: 10.

STRAWBERRIES AND ICE CREAM.

NAME OF THE CHURCH.

WE listened on the evenings of May 24th and 26th to an Elder W. P. Brown, who was for some years associated with the Bickertonites, and after that with the Reorganized Church for a short time. His effort on the first night seemed to be two-fold; first, to establish the idea that the word of God was of value only in leading people into the new covenant, claiming that so long as they had that written in their hearts they had no need of nor use for the word; and second, that the Saints of the Reorganization were very blind and ignorant in respect to spiritual things, were very much divided, were contentious among themselves, and that he, Brown, had been sent directly by the Holy Ghost to warn them, and to help them out of their errors and perils. He bore special testimony to having been greatly blessed of God in the Reorganization, but had doubted the revelations of Joseph in the Doctrine and Covenants.

The second night his topic was "the name of the church;" and he sought to prove that it must (if it be the true church) be called in just so many words—no more and no less—The Church of Christ. In harmony with this theory he claimed that if any church was called by any other name,—in word—that church was not, and could not be Christ's church, and that therefore all and every church not having this denominational title was not and is not the true Church of Christ. His chief text was Book of Nephi 12:2, 3, where Christ instructed the disciples of that time to call that church—"the Church of Christ." He furthermore stated that the word "saints" could not be and must not be any part of the name of the church, [yet it was, is, and is to be the denominative title of God's people,]—and that when anything was added or taken from the specific title—"the Church of Christ"—it indicated blindness, apostasy, spiritual perversity and deadness.

As we listened, we wondered if the Elder ever had one gleam of light from the Bible or Book of Mormon on the subject he had in hand—wondered why he did not perceive that his bad logic made Paul an apostate and a blind guide when he said to the Elders at Ephesus, "Feed the church of God," (Acts 20:28), and to the Corinthian Saints,—"Or despise ye the Church of God?" (1 Cor. 11:22); or when he said to the Crinthians,—"God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all Churches of the Saints?" (1 Cor. 14:33). Was Nephi an apostate, blind, and spiritually dead when he by prophecy called Christ's church in these last days, "the church of the Lamb of God"? (1 Nephi 3:46-51). In paraprath 50 he says,—"I, Nephi, beheld the power of the Lamb of God, that it descended upon the Saints of the church of the Lamb." Here he calls the church by another title (in letter) than "The Church of Christ." If the Latter Day Saints are blind sinners because they call their church, "The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," why is not Nephi in the same condemnation when he calls it "the church of the Lamb of God"? The logic of Elder Brown condemns both alike.

Again; the prophet Moroni, six hundred years after Christ, speaking of the prevalence of iniquity both in and out of the church in these last days says,—"O ye pollutions, ye hypocrites, ye teachers, who sell yourselves for that which will canker, why have ye polluted the holy Church of God?" (Book of Mormon 4:4). If the Saints are apostates and servants of the devil because they call the church, (in its mere wording), by another denominative title than "The church of Christ," what shall be said of Moroni? Is not he under similar condemnation? He calls it "the church of God." It is called "the church of God" in the New Testament far more frequently than "the church of Christ." It is called in the Book of Mormon by that title more than five times oftener than "the church of Christ;" and this occurs, as already seen, as well after as before the resurrection of Christ. Alma says, (21:6, 7), "All the true believers of Christ * * belonged to the church of God." Alma then calls the church composed of "the true believers of Christ," "the Church of God." Was he blind? Was he spiritually dead? Mr. Brown's methods of interpretation makes him so. All Saints should recognize the fact, patent in all the sacred books of the church, that in essence and in intention, "the Church of God," "Churches of the Saints," "Church of the Lamb," etc., etc., are really and truly "The church of Christ;" for God, the Lamb of God, Jesus Christ, etc., etc., are one essentially.

To change from one of these titles to the other is merely technical, and not a change in element, intent and essence, unless there be also a change of essential doctrine. Hence, to add to the title "The Church of Christ," the words "Jesus," "of Latter Day Saints," and "Reorganized," does not radically and in element and essence change the name of the church; for these added words merely and only qualify and explain the name more clearly. As, for instance, the word "president" prefixed, and the words "of Lamoni, Iowa," affixed to the name "Joseph Smith" would not change Mr. Smith's name; but they would simply explain that he was a president, and that he resided in Lamoni, Iowa. This is all. They merely explain and define.

While it is true that the written, technical title of the church in 1830 was "The Church of Christ," yet because there was another society whose recorded title was "The Church of Christ," it was found expedient, and lawful too, to change the wording of the name by adding, in a qualifying and explanative way, the words "Jesus," and "of Latter Day Saints," making the name to mean that the church is the Church of Jesus Christ, composed of Latter Day Saints. This and nothing more. And when Mr. Brown and his like assert that to change the wording of the name of the church by adding the words "Jesus," and "Latter Day Saints," is evidence of unbelief, apostasy, and spiritual deadness, they need to be reminded that they thereby condemn Paul and Nephi and Alma and Moroni, and Jesus Christ also, for they all have used other titles for the church than merely and technically, "The Church of Christ." The names "Church of God," "Church of the Lamb," "Churches of the Saints," "Church and fold of God," "Church of the First Born," "Church of the Living God," "Body of Christ," etc., etc., are all used either in the Bible and Book of Mormon interchangeably as meaning one and the same thing—a body of true believers, the Church of Christ. For proof of this see Matt. 16:18; Col. 1:18, 24; Heb. 12:23; Acts 20:28; 1 Cor. 1:2; 10:32; 11:22; 15:6; Gal. 1:13; 1 Tim. 3:5; Rom. 16:16; 1 Cor. 11:16; 14:33; 1 Thes. 2:14; 1 Nephi 3:46-50; 2 Nephi 6:1; 11:3; Mosiah 11:12, 17, 18, 20; Alma 3:1; 21:3, 4, 7; Book of Nephi 2:11; 12:2, 3; Book of Mormon 4:4; Mosiah 11:15; and Book of Nephi son of Nephi 1:1, 7, 8. In this last paragraph we are told that "the true believers in Christ, and the true worshipers of Christ, (among whom were the three disciples of Jesus who should tarry), were called Nephites, and Jacobites, and Josephites, and Zoramites." These were not denounced as heretics nor said to be on the highway to ruin because they bore these several names. Neither were they unchurched because of it.

Another fact in this connection is this: In no place does the Book of Mormon or Bible promise, or foretell, that the church in these latter days would bear the definite title, "The Church of Christ," neither is there any requirement in these books to that effect. But on the other hand it was foretold that "The church of the Lamb," "The Church of God," and, we may add, "The kingdom of God," would exist in these times, and that by the will and power of God. Please mark this well. As we have stated, the church may bear any of the titles herein mentioned, and still be the Church of Christ in doctrine, worship, and in all the other essentials thereof. We have far greater reasons for calling the church "The holy Church of God," if the mere matter of phraseology must govern, than we have to call it, in exact words "The Church of Christ." For we see the first is predicted in the Book of Mormon 4:4. And as much may be said of "The Church of the Lamb of God," (1 Nephi 3:46-50;) for the same reasons, and for the still further reason that in the latter place it is stated that there would be then "save two churches," one of the Lamb, the other of the devil.

We have been thus explicit and lengthy, for the reason that certain parties, by placing a forced and unscriptural construction on one portion of the sacred books, have made and mounted a hobby, and demand that all others must follow with them or be reckoned with the blind and disobedient. That such parties really (though doubtless not intended) make others "an offender for a word"—a mere word—is quite clear. Such parties "strain at a gnat," and seek to pull the "mote" out of others' eyes, when, in fact, they have such a "beam" in their own that they only have misleading and narrow interpretations, and so fail to explore and harmonize all the broad field of Scriptural evidence relating to the subject of which they treat. It is that cramped, over-nice, pharasaical style, which sternly exacts the "mint, and rue, and anise, and cummin," but neglects "the weightier matters of the law," fails to reconcile and make consistent the entire word of God, and thus tends to contention, division, and sectism. We like the title, "The Church of Christ," as we do all the other titles mentioned, and if practicable, would be glad to see that its recorded, legal, title. But as Christ himself has various titles, and is yet the same blessed person; so the church has various titles, and is still the same divinely appointed church. We have equal grounds for cavil over the various titles of Christ, that we have over the various titles of his church. The Scriptures say "His name shall be called Emmanuel;" (Matt. 1:23); "Son of God," (Luke 1:35); etc., and yet it were a folly and worse to say He must not be called by any other title. And this as we have seen is equally true of the church.

LAW-BREAKERS.

THE Deseret News for the 14th ult., heads an article with, "Who are the law-breakers?"—and then proceeds to say, "The 'Mormon' doctrine in relation to the powers of government is very plainly set forth in the standard works of the church. The Saints are commanded in the revelations of God to the church to obey the constitutional laws of the land, and to be subject to the powers that be, until he whose right it is to reign shall come as King of Kings, and Lord of Lords."

This statement is a fact, and at this juncture in Utah affairs it is a fact of very great importance. If the News in this connection had stated the further facts bearing on this matter, namely, that God ordained and inspired the Constitution of our Nation, and that the said Constitution itself provides that only the Supreme Court has authority to say what is and what is not "constitutional law," it then should go one step further and tell its readers that this tribunal has already decided that the laws prohibiting and punishing polygamy and the like were and are "the constitutional laws of the land. This done, they then could see the "open door" leading away from their tribulations and back to "the old paths;" back to "old Mormonism" as it existed when and where polygamy and its fellow heresies were not known, and when God endorsed and approved by the gifts and graces of his Spirit the wonderful work of the ministry wherever they labored in faithfulness and wisdom. No tribunal under heaven, except the Supreme Court, has authority to hear and decide controversies in respect to the constitutionality of law, and the News should know this and state it fairly and frankly to its perplexed and humiliated readers.

The Lord said, August 6th, 1833, "It is my will that my people should observe to do all things whatsoever I command them, and that law of the land which is constitutional." Doctrine and Covenants 95:2. And December 16th, 1833, he further said: "Importune for redress and redemption by the hands of those who are placed as rulers, and are in authority over you, according to the laws and constitution of the people which I have suffered to be established, and should be maintained for the rights and protection of all flesh, according to just and holy principles, that every man may act in doctrine and principle pertaining to futurity according to the moral agency which I have given unto them, that every man may be accountable for their own sins in the day of judgment. Therefore it is not right that any man should be in bondage one to another. And for this purpose have I established the constitution of this land by the hands of wise men whom I raised up unto this very purpose, and redeemed the land by the shedding of blood."—Doc. and Cov. 98:10. This Constitution, thus ordained and established of God, provides that the judicial power of the Supreme Court shall extend "to controversies to which the United States shall be a party. [As in the case of the polygamists and the laws of the United States.—Ed.] * * * The Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations as the Congress shall make."—Art. 3, Sec. 1, 2.

Let the News group these facts together, in a fair, common sense way, and they then must conclude that whatever the Supreme Court decides to be law, the same must be received and obeyed as the "constitutional law of the land," and that those who resist and violate it, they are the law breakers.

God has ordained and established the Constitution; the Constitution provides that the Supreme Court, and that only, shall say what is constitutional law; and it therefore follows that its decisions are to be received as the end of controversy, and they must be honored and obeyed as the ordinance of God to the citizen, otherwise both the law of God and of the Nation are resisted. Of those who resist St. Paul says, "And they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation." The Utah Mormons, while claiming to honor and revere Joseph the Seer, should ponder well this saying of his, "In the United States the people are the government, and their united voice is the only sovereign that should rule; the only power that should be obeyed; and the only gentlemen that should be honored; at home and abroad; on the land and on the sea."—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 533. And again: "Congress sent to do the people's business, has all power."—Ibid 395. And further: "Congress has power to protect the Nation against foreign invasion and internal broil, and whenever that body passes an act to maintain right with any power, or to restore right to any portion of her citizens, IT IS THE SUPREME LAW OF THE LAND, and should a State refuse submission, that State is guilty of insurrection or rebellion, [and this holds equally true of a city, a church, or any other body of people.—Ed.], and the president has as much power to repel it as Washington had to march against the 'whisky boys of Pittsburg,' or General Jackson had to send an armed force to suppress the rebellion of South Carolina!"—Ibid 396. These are some of the well digested views of the Seer in respect to the binding force of national law, the authority of its officers, and the duties of the citizen thereunder. According to this, any law passed by Congress is "the supreme law of the land;" and should a state, city, church or individual "refuse submission," they are "the law-breakers."

In conclusion; the revelations of God to the church, the Constitution and laws of our nation, and the authentic teachings of Joseph Smith the Seer,—all and each of them—make them who "refuse submission" to our Nation's laws, "the law-breakers."

WE have received from Zenas B. Chase, of Bangor, Maine, a copy of a book entitled "The Judgment Period," preparatory to the establishment of the Kingdom of Heaven, a work compiled from the writings of Rev. David Campbell, by Mr. Chase, and copyrighted in 1886. The publisher proposes, as stated in HERALD for May 1st, to send this work to any of the HERALD subscribers for one dollar and ten cents, post paid. The postage ten cents may be sent in one or two cent stamps; the dollar in a bill in a common envelope properly directed. Those interested in the study of prophecy may do well by availing themselves of this offer. Address Zenas B. Chase, Bangor, Maine. Mention the HERALD when you write him.

In another column will be found a communication from the South Manchester (Eng.) Gazette, which exhibits the mendacity of an English journal, (the Quiver) towards Mormonism, and the fairness of the Gazette. That portion taken from the Quiver, is in the main, a tissue of half-truths and direct and downright falsehood. There is a little truth in it, (as with the lie told by Satan to mother Eve), but this little is used in such a way as to make it serve to mystify and mislead. When the writer states that "all the Smiths were bad," and that "Joseph was the worst," he reiterates a base slander, and one which has been refuted scores of times within the past fifty-six years by the reliable testimony of very many non-mormons who knew them well, besides that of many Latter Day Saints who knew them intimately, and whose word was and is perfectly good with their neighbors.

Such vile and unfounded charges, like those hurled at Jesus, the early Christians, the reformers in all ages, and the progressive minds everywhere in every department of society, originate with those whose "craft is in danger, and with others who follow the leadings of their own blind and depraved hearts. The sons and daughters of Britian have not forgotten the malignant abuse and the vile persecutions with which the Covenanters, Presbyterians, Independents, Methodists, Quakers, etc., were beset in their beginnings in that nation. But these are now strong in numbers and wealth, and mighty in their popularity; and some of them are only too ready to heap upon others what their own founders suffered and for similar reasons. History in this is repeating itself for the thousandth time. The enemies of Jesus, of the early Christians, the reformers, and of progressive spirits everywhere and in every age, charged worldly ambition, unholy lust, treason, and every imaginable crime, upon the victims of their vengeful malice and relentless hate. Why do not these blatant villifiers prove their charges by competent witnesses! Joseph Smith, it is claimed, endured forty-eight vexatious lawsuits, and came forth from them all unscathed; and all this when the whole machinery of justice was in the hands of non-mormons.

The besmirched officials of the state of Missouri, bent upon destroying Joseph Smith and the Mormons, intending to thereby cover up the manifest evidences of their own folly and guilt, were twice put to rout before the courts of Illinois, once before Judge Pope at Springfield, and once before Judge Stephen A. Douglas, at Monmouth, Joseph Smith coming through these heated furnaces of affliction without even "the smell of fire" upon his garments.

The Book of Mormon is not "a continuation of the Bible" as charged by the Quiver; but is an "abridgment" of sacred records had by the ancient inhabitants of America. Neither was there "a pair of wonderful spectacles" found with the Book of Mormon; but there were "two stones set in silver bows," and these stones, fastened to a breastplate, constituted what is called the urim and Thummim." ["Shining Stones"—Josephus. "Revelation and truth"—Septuagint.—Ed.]

Joseph the Seer did not sit "behind a blanket" when translating. And as to his establishing a printing office, a newspaper, and a bank, at Kirtland, it is partly true, and partly not true. He and others did these things, and they had a perfect right to do them, only they should have first secured a charter for the bank, and thus have saved themselves from being "squeezed," through the influence of rival institutions, exerted both in and outside of the Ohio Legislature the following session. It was never claimed by Joseph or the Saints that at Kirtland "was to be the seat of the New Jerusalem." And when the Quiver states that Nauvoo is "built in the territory of Utah," the reader may see at once how utterly incompetent is the writer to treat of the matters he has in hand. For the information of the Quiver we may state that Nauvoo is over 1,000 miles east of the nearest point in Utah. In conclusion; when the Quiver states that Joseph Smith originated polygamy, it states what it can not prove. Joseph Smith in all his public writings, denounced everything of the character of polygamy from the first to the last. What he may have done secretly, it is not competent for either the Quiver nor ourselves to say. We have to deal with well authenticated public documents, about which there can be no reasonable doubt concerning their being genuine and competent.

The Gazette acquitted itself well in its report of the Manchester conference, and exhibited its honest and honorable purpose of getting at facts and then stating them fairly. All honor to such journalism.

It was suggested by some one of the brethren at Crescent City, that Bro. Joseph Smith and others of the preachers ought to let the temperance question alone, that they had no business with it; that they ought to leave the subject of temperance to the efforts of lectures.

It may be that we do go outside of the bounds of our legitimate province when we enter into the temperance lecture field. But we began so long ago and have grown so into the way of thinking that it was legitimate for the preacher to urge the claims of sobriety upon men, that we can not easily comprehend that we are meddling. Besides this, when we see what baneful hurt is being done to men who are professedly Latter Day Saints by the habit of hanging round the doors and counters of the saloons, we feel as if we had a right to call the attention of the people to that evil. It is painful to see a man, comparatively young in years, in fair health, with wife and children dependent upon his labor, spending the precious hours in idling about a common drinking booth; now and then drinking beer, wine or whisky at his own expense or that of another, when we know that his wife and children are poorly clad and poorly fed, and that he himself is also poorly housed when at home, for lack of energy and common gumption to labor and fix things about the house, and when in this connection the thought is presented that children born of such a parent has the cursed taint of laziness and dissipation sown in his very blood to break out in their lives in idleness and possibly viciousness, we make it our business to enter our protest against it.

Fully one half the pauperism and two thirds of the crime of the state of Iowa are the results, either directly or indirectly of the liquor habit. Our poor houses, jails, asylums and penitentiaries are largely made necessary for the purpose of caring for the victims of vicious habits having their origin in whisky, or its equivalent. The sober brain and sober muscle of the community are taxed to maintain these houses of refuge to which the dram cursed flee, or are taken. Those who care to pay this tax without protest may; but we protest, and that persistently. The fathers of the Republic protested and fought against taxation without representation; and some drops of that old blood runs in us, and as these idle vicious dram tipplers and devotees of the whisky habit in any and all its forms do not represent us, we object to being taxed to maintain them in their folly. A Saint, a drunkard; an angel, a drunkard; what a spectacle; a Saint an idler and a vagabond—horrible.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. JOHN J. CORNISH writes from Ubyly, Michigan the 22d ult. He baptized two more at Seigel, west of Sand Beach, the day before, and that there are there about twenty-five members, though not yet organized into a branch. The Baptists were pretty bitter against the work there, one of their preachers had lectured twice on Mormonism, but good came of it to the church, for the Saints had gathered in their deacon and all their leading members. The "Salvation Army" and Free Methodists united against the Saints, but they soon quarrelled among themselves, until they broke up their own meetings, and the Saints are now the only ones holding regular meetings there. He says: "Prospects are good for an increase there and elsewhere."

Bro. Joseph C. Clapp has removed with his family to Deer Lodge Valley, Montana. His post office address will be Deer Lodge City, Deer Lodge County, Montana. Please remember his address.

Bro. Henry G. Cole, of Boston, Mass., in a letter dated the 19th ult., has this to say among other things:—"My testimony is the same as all lovers of truth, that the HERALD is an able exponent of the light that shineth in darkness."

Bro. E. T. Dawson requests Bro. Dancer to say for him through the HERALD that his "faith in the latter day work was built up by reading the arguments of Bro. W. W. Blair on "Tithing, Gathering and Revenge," as printed in the HERALD. He further says: "It never did weaken my faith to see others falling away, leaving the church, or doing wrong in any way. The kingdom of God is like unto ten virgins—five wise and five foolish. All must stand or fall by their own conduct.

Bro. P. B. Seaton writes from Paris, Henry Co., Tenn., the 9th ult., that the evidence increases constantly in favor of his being in the Church of Christ, and that he is more and more inclined to press forward in the good work, and to magnify his calling as an Elder. He says Bro. Henry Griffin has aided him well.

Bro T. J. Pollard writing from Denver, Colorado, the 22d ult., says he intends to locate there with his family; thinks there are eight or ten of the Saints in that city, but thinks much good may yet be done there, and intends to help on the work as best he can, and hopes a branch will be organized there soon.

Bro. I. N. Roberts wrote us from the Union Depot, Kansas City, Missouri, enroute to his field, the South Western Mission. His address will be Cooke's Point, Burleson County, Texas.

Bro. E. Delong has moved to Tawas City, Michigan, has baptized two of late, and is holding meeting in that neighborhood every Sunday, and sometimes during the week. He further says, "Two weeks ago we organized a Sunday School, and feel it will be a success. I hope the Lord will bless my efforts in spreading the truth."

Bro. T. W. Smith again asks that all persons writing to him at Papeete, Tahiti, should also mark their letters "via San Francisco," and be sure to have postage fully paid.

Bro. St. Clair writes from Holden, Mo., the 26th ult., had baptized one, prospects were favorable, and it was probable there would be further additions soon. Saints aided him well.

BROTHER JAMES H. PETERS, of Lake City, Michigan, is fearful that the Saints do not understand what he proposes to do in his circulating library scheme. It seems plain enough. He has had a special edition of the Voice of Warning prepared for the purpose, and proposes to place copies in the hands of some one or more competent and willing persons in each branch, who may be recommended to him by the district president or branch president, or both, to be loaned to persons who may be inquiring for information, or who may be induced to read them. The brethren who take these agencies will be expected to take care of the books, and to loan them as often and to as many as will promise to read them. They will make returns to Bro. Peters, once in three months, on blanks furnished by him, of the number of books loaned, how many are on hand at the time of report and whether they have too few or too many to answer the demand in their branch. Wake up brethren and take hold of the work offered you.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—What foundation has Z. H. Gurley for the statement which he makes in his leaflet of May 12th, 1886, that marrying for eternity and being sealed to two wives for eternity was taught in the church in 1841, thus, as he says, establishing polygamy for eternity? He quotes from the Times and Seasons, vol. 5, page 715.

A.—He cites a passage in the Times and Seasons for Nov. 15th, 1844, (three years and ten months after Jan. 19th, 1841, and nearly five months after the death of Joseph the Seer), and that passage reads as follows: "The law of the land and the rules of the church do not allow one man to have more than one wife alive at once, but if any man's wife die, he has a right to marry another, and to be sealed to both for eternity; to the living and the dead! there is no law of God or man against it! This is all the spiritual wife system that ever was tolerated in the church, and they know it.—Times and Seasons, vol. 5. p. 715.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Elder M. T. Short writes the 24th ult., from Rock Island, Illinois as follows:

"I came here near a fortnight since and have kindled a fire. Some have given their names for baptism, while others are almost persuaded to yield obedience. The patronage of our services is largely from the students of the Rock Island Augustena College, which is a Swede institution. I feel well in body and courageous in spirit, for God seems to be my helper. I love to tell the pleasing story while under the divine Spirit."

OUR COVENANT.

WORDS, whether written or spoken, possess in their results little of value to any one, unless the mind is arrested by them, and they find a lodgment in the heart. Like the seed which fell from the hand of the sower, only that which falls on good ground will bring forth fruit. Believing, however, that these written words will find their way into many homes where hearts are prepared to receive them, and realizing the solemnity of the theme, we shall endeavor to write with the solemnities of eternity before our eyes and resting upon our heart. Some of the thoughts were uttered in and others suggested by a sermon from Bro. Joseph, to which we recently listened. We frequently make use of the expression, and hear it used by others, "we who are baptized into Christ." In thus referring to our baptism, do we realize that by that act we entered into a solemn covenant with God, binding upon us so long as life endures, and from which we can be freed only at the judgment bar of God? We did this voluntarily, independent of the constraint of any one, and at the bar of God Jesus will witness for or against us according to the way in which our covenant has been kept. If thought can be more solemn than this, then we know not what the nature of that thought can be. In that covenant we took upon us the name of Jesus Christ, and expressed our determination to serve him to the end. The prophet in speaking of the great work of Christ, says: "As for thee, by the blood of thy covenant I have sent forth thy prisoners out of the pit wherein is no water." By this we learn that the Son had entered into a covenant with the Father—a covenant to do a work for fallen man, and we hear him saying: "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." Paul entered into this covenant when Ananias led him into waters of baptism, and he likewise testifies of himself: "I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." In relation to this covenant Bro. Joseph remarked that he had sometimes been tempted to think it might have been a wise arrangement had God so ordered it, that any infringement of it should have been followed by punishment as speedily as the breaking of the laws governing our physical nature is. The hand burnt in the fire is quickly withdrawn, and if we are burnt again, it is by an accident we can not control. But while God in his wisdom has not so ordered it, there is a time coming when every infringement of this covenant (unrepented of and unforgiven?) shall be punished. "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." Whence comes the binding nature of this covenant? It is made with God, through agents whom he has authorized to act in his name, and the seal of the Spirit has ratified it. "There are three that bear witness in earth, the spirit, the water, and the blood; . . . there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost. . . . If we receive the witness of men the witness of God is greater." Can we who have entered into this solemn covenant to serve him to the end enlist in the service of any other and be held guiltless? "No man can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other; or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye can not serve God and mammon." Mammon is not the only master we can enlist under. They whose hearts are set upon riches shall enter very hardly into the kingdom of heaven; but there are other masters than riches, whose service we will be compelled to forsake before we can follow in the footsteps of the meek and lowly Jesus. The very first thing required of the child adopted into the family of God is self-denial. No other master of whom the world has ever heard requires this "Take up thy cross daily and follow me." Ten thousand self-denials may be made, ten thousand crosses taken up, and yet if those denials of self are not for Him, if it is not His cross which we lift to our shoulders; vain is the denial, vain the lifting, we are only "sounding brass and tinkling cymbal." Many a woman of society, yes, whole families, are daily martyrs, and hourly suffer more harassing thought than the most tried and tempted Christian ought to know in a life-time. Every thing with them must bend to the position they occupy in society. No matter what torments they suffer, what crosses they bear, their position must be maintained. Their dress, equipages, surroundings, and all belonging to them, must be au fait, even if they sell their souls to gain the means for keeping up the sham. But, strangest part of this strange drama, there must not be overlooked the pew in some grand edifice where they may sit, upon the Sabbath day, to be admired of others running the same race as themselves, yet never suspecting that those whose happier lot they envy, bear about with them daily this cross of the world, which will eventually drown both soul and body in perdition.

"Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls; for my yoke is easy and my burden light. * * * I will give you rest." Rest! yes; there "remaineth a rest for the people of God," but it has never been promised us here. "Work while the day lasts," "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do with thy might," "Be diligent in season," are all admonitions to help us on the way, but the beacon light, shining from the watch tower, which should draw and fix the attention of every one whose covenant is recorded in heaven, is "Take up thy cross daily and follow me."

"O Lord and Master of us all
Whate'er our name or sign,
We own thy sway, we hear thy call,
We test our lives by thine.
Apart from thee all gain is loss,
All labor vainly done;
The solemn shadow of thy cross
Is better than the sun."

It may interest some to know that Bro. Joseph regards the responsibility of the priesthood which men have voluntarily consented to take upon themselves (not having been ordained thereto, even when called of God, without their own free consent) alike binding as the covenant of baptism, and to be answered for at the judgment bar of God by the individual upon whom it was conferred; and that it may not be assumed and then removed at the pleasure of any man, and that when an individual, by withdrawing from the body, places himself in a position where he can no longer act for the body, he takes with him the priesthood to carry it to the judgment bar of God. He is "another man's servant, and to his own master must stand or fall." We are commanded "not to judge." If indeed it happen they have withdrawn from the body of Christ and have no longer power to act for that body, the credentials will be valueless to enable them to act for any other. We refer to this merely because it was an impressive part of the sermon, for we recognize the fact that questions of this kind are foreign to the object of the "Column," and not to be discussed by either editor or contributor. Not so however our covenant; and we tell you that while listening to the discourse referred to, we felt that within that rested all the responsibility we wanted to assume, and if we did not know that God will ever bend a listening ear to our cry, and extend a helping hand to our need, we would faint by the way. But, sisters, he will help us. We have only to trust him, and even though we are sinking the extended hand will save us.

The voice of the tempter is whispering us at times, saying: "What an easy matter for you to sit here and write all this. Stop your writing, get up and try yourself, and see if you can do as you say." We will try ourselves, and expect that many times we will fail, but with his help we will try again. We will not stop our writing however, so long as we feel that we have it in our power to encourage a single soul in the effort to overcome and keep their covenant with God. The world has nothing to offer us, and if we fail to win the prize we seek, it will be through the weakness of the flesh, and we will be left beggars. Truly we can say with one of old, "A day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness. For the Lord God is a sun and shield: The Lord will give grace and glory; no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly."

LAMONT, IOWA, May 29th, 1886.

WHERE SHALL OUR TRAINING BEGIN?

ANY lesson we have learned by experience, or may be enabled to set forth, that shall aid in bringing the gospel teachings of our Elders into our individual temporal or domestic lives, will not, I feel, over-reach woman's boundary line; the silver cord of love in the hand of woman has led man to good or evil deeds, through all ages. Moses came near destruction at one time through disobedience, by the influence of his wife; how careful we ought to be that our influence worketh peace and righteousness. Sarah was justified in telling Abraham to cast out the bondwoman, "For in Isaac shall thy seed be call," "And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because thou hast obeyed my voice." His works had proved him to be willing and obedient. Was this evidence that his children would be obedient? To command children is one thing, but to secure willing and obedient children is another, (for how often after all our commands and chastening they are disobedient still). The very seed of this man became righteous and blessed through his superior faith and obedience to the Lord, and this disposition descends generations after him, while unrighteous seed would have been disobedient, had the Lord himself commanded them; yet see the difference when this seed was nourished by Hagar the rebellious woman, and by Sarah the faithful. "And Abraham said unto God; Oh that Ishmael might live uprightly before thee." And the Lord blessed Ishmael because he was Abraham's seed." What does this teach us? Abraham was not a hard hearted or a stiff necked man; he had regard for the wishes of Sarah, and was willing to make sacrifice for the sake of peace in his household. Being very obedient to the Lord it is little wonder that his children should partake of the characteristic of this faithful old tree, whose fruit or branches they were; and through their willingness and obedience obtain favor of the Lord through all time. Let us make of ourselves just such persons as we would have our children become, lest that which we fear for our children fall upon our own heads, as it did the children of Israel: "And your children shall wander in this wilderness forty years, and bear your sins." Lessons of obedience with the rod may do with some children at certain ages; but it is far better to gain the confidence of our children and reason with, and lead them by good examples in little and great things, that our works may stand an imperishable testimony of our faith in behalf of our children. Undue zeal or mistaken duty leads to severe restrictions, thus robbing children of their rightful freedom. "We can force no soul to heaven." He leadeth his sheep, but never driveth them. Mothers do not despair, but hold to the wayward ones in faith; arise in the strength of the God of Abraham, and walk upright. "Be ye perfect," that the Lord may have mercy upon them for the sake of your own obedience, and by his Spirit lead them back to the fold. Although Satan may have sown germs of evil, and they become as giants of strength within us, and like an armed man may overpower the will of the flesh, yet have we salvation and deliverance through our willing obedience, and faith in the redeeming power of the Son of God. Let us purify our hearts in the fear of the Lord, and be careful what kind of seed we sow; for "self is the tyrant we are trying to bind." I regret that this lesson had not been impressed upon me earlier in life, for by an examination of my branches I find a peculiar resemblance to the tree, and I therefore conclude that the training must begin with myself.

Our methods and recipes should be given with an aim to benefit—to prepare our plain essential food with an eye to health, that we may learn to fortify our systems against the dread destroyer, disease. I would like to know how to make or use leaven; will Perla tell us?

A FEW WORDS ON SOME OF THE VICES OF THE DAY.

THE body is the dwelling place of the spirit, the home of the soul, and it should be a clean and a pure home. Now there are two things that enter in at the lips and defile the whole man, strong drink and tobacco. They defile the body, (the temple of God), of any man or boy that uses them. These stains can not be removed by soap or water. The first vice we wish to speak about is the use of intoxicating liquors. This is the monster that all mothers should fight against. It is a monster of uncleanness, that touches body, brain and soul, and reduces a noble manhood to the condition of a brute quicker than any other thing will do. [Don't compare a depraved man to a brute. It is injustice to the dumb animals, and as they can not speak to resent it, we enter this protest for them.—Ed.] Think what it has done to the bodies of some drunkards whom we know. Would it not be a trial for you to touch them? You would have the same fear that the people did with the lepers that begged by the gates of Jerusalem. Your own feelings when you see a drunkard approach you, will show you better than any words what effect a filthy and disgusting human body will produce on those with whom it comes in contact. Look, boys, at the bleared and watery eyes, the pimpled, misshapen nose, the swollen lips, the matted, filthy beard, the idiotic and vile expression to his face. Boys, stop before you take the first glass, before the whisky taint is detected in your breath. The beginning of a boy's wreck is in the cup, and as surely as he goes forward the road will take him to the end. Money may for a time conceal it, good clothes hide it, but underneath the poison is slowly doing its work. So of all the vices; set your face like a flint against the vice of drink. Hasten from it as you would hasten from the infection of small-pox or yellow fever. Turn away from saloons; the death dealt over the counters is slower, but equally sure; let nothing tempt you to go into one.

Next to the whisky stain comes the filth of tobacco—which is a dirty tyrant. I have often noticed in street cars, decent women trying in vain to escape the volley of tobacco juice that would be spit on the floor. Once in a while a man would aim his expectorations wrong and some poor woman would catch it on her shoes. Some say, I only smoke. Yes, my friends, you may only smoke, but yet you are a slave to tobacco, for after dinner you are uneasy and have to leave wife, mother or friend and have a smoke. When you can not get your cigar you become cross, nervous and uneasy. If you wish to be a gentleman you must not cultivate any habit that can not be laid aside, if the happiness and comfort of others demand it; and no gentleman but prides himself on holding the reins of personal control. When he can not resist tobacco, he falls to the position of a servant to a very poor master indeed. The only way to keep free from this enemy of mankind is to let it utterly alone. It stunts the growth of boys, takes away the energy from the nerves, the vigor from the limbs, the brightness from the eye and the sweetness from the breath.

Now these two things, strong drink and tobacco, defile the whole man. One word by way of warning, as to something that coming forth from the lips, show the degree of inward defilement that the soul has already reached. Guard your speech, that it be pure. Banish from your memory, if possible, every vile or profane utterance you have ever heard; and never, under any provocation, reveal an impure stream within, by letting impure words flow from your lips. Think what a promise of glorious manhood there is in a life as high and pure as must grow out of bodily conditions like those we have considered.

Correspondence.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, April 1st.

Dear Bro. Blair:—I wish you would ask once more for me in the Herald, that all persons who write to us should put on the envelope "via San Francisco." Letters frequently go to New York, and then to San Francisco, and thus lose from two to four days, and so perhaps miss the mail from San Francisco to Papeete. Another item, we frequently have to pay double postage here on letters not sufficiently prepaid in postage. This mail we had to pay thirty-six cents for such letters. One letter came with a two cent stamp. For the three cents lacking there, I had to pay six cents here. Another should have been fifteen there, but only five was prepaid, and I had to pay twenty cents on it here. One good sister sent us a ten cent silver piece, as she knew United States stamps were no good here; but I had to pay ten cents extra postage on the ten cents inside. Five cents for every half ounce, or fraction thereof, is the postage from there. Every letter that should have two stamps on there, if carrying but one will cost us double rates, or ten cents instead of the five which should be paid there. When a two cent stamp is put on, we have to pay six cents additional here, and every mail such letters come, and generally from some one who writes to have us answer a lot of questions about the country, requesting us to send some leaves, or seeds, or something as a souvenir. Our regular correspondents understand the matter, and we have no trouble with them. Please say also that we have had a number of requests for photographs of our house and ourselves; but as we have to pay six dollars per dozen for them, we can not afford to give very many away. If any want them, send us a dollar greenback for two and we will gladly send them.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., April 14th.

Bro. Joseph Smith.—The Lord's work as it moves forward in this part of his vineyard, especially in Attleboro, is really encouraging. A number have expressed an honest desire to unite with us; but I hope those who administer in the ordinance of baptism will wait till they have made a thorough investigation. Some of the Saints are desirous of seeing this glorious cause advance, and they are working and praying to that end. Others, I am sorry to say, are injuring the work, and turning away to the "beggarly elements of the world" again, to live on "husks" and stand in slippery places instead of on the sure foundation, even the rock, Jesus Christ. It seems strange to me that people who call themselves Saints can see no difference between "the household of God," with the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom the whole building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord," and the sectarian churches representing modern Babylon. The poet expresses these thoughts that "A church without apostles,

Or prophets, or the gifts,
Is like a ship at ocean,
That with the current drifts.
Without a chart or compass,
Or rudder to direct,
Soon on the shoals and breakers
She hopelessly is wrecked.
A church without communion
In Christ her living head,
Is likened to a body,
Without the Spirit—dead;
It can not ask for wisdom,
Or knowledge of his ways
If he revealeth nothing
In these the latter days."

Bro. C. A. Coombs gave a discourse here last Wednesday evening by the power of God and with his blessing. Elder H. H. Thompson preached last Sunday evening with great power and unusual liberty. He comforted those in the faith who were present, and proclaimed the "way of life" unto the people. Bro. U. W. Greene returned from Brockton last Wednesday. That branch is in good spiritual condition, and on fire with the latter day work. He preached there on the Sunday evening previous. The Attleboro Advocate, which I now have the pleasure to represent, publishes gratuitous notices of our meetings here and also in Plainville. They have also published a number of articles illustrating our position. I had a pleasant interview with the popular lecturer, Mr. W. I. Marshall, last evening. He stated that he had heard Elder Columbus Scott preach, and had met Elder E. L. Kelley, and that these were the only representative men of the Reorganized Church he had ever met. He lectures in the Wamsutta Opera House next Tuesday evening, on Utah and the Mormon Question. I hope the leading men of this church will interview him whenever they have opportunity, and they will find him as I have,—a very pleasant and social gentleman.

May the blessing and goodness of our heavenly Father rest upon those who will try to endure as good soldiers until the end, is my prayer.

Yours in love for truth,

ARTHUR B. PIERCE.

ORIGINAL SIN AND ATONEMENT.

There is only one place in the Bible (Revised) that I remember to have seen. "There went out a saying that Christ had atoned for original sin." Because Adam had repented, and obeyed the gospel, he was forgiven through faith in Christ. "It is written and thus may all become the sons of God." Nowhere that I have read in Scripture is the sin of Adam separated from the "sins" of the world. "All we like sheep have gone astray, and the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all."—Isa. 53. "By his stripes we are healed." "He bore our sins in his own body on the tree," &c. The Scriptures abound with such like portions as "Jesus Christ tasted death for every man." Nephi said it required an infinite sacrifice to satisfy justice. I know it is written, "As in Adam all die," it is added, "even so in Christ shall all be made alive."

A man about twenty years ago in a high position (so high that he fell out of a train as it moved along) said the death of Christ was vicarious, he died for Adam's sin, and we had to save ourselves. I noticed it then, and endured the long half hour when angels ceased their songs in heaven; but O, my heart leaps for joy, the awful silence is over. Again our lamps have oil, are burning, whilst other lamps are gone out, and the bridegroom is preparing to come. May the true sheep hear the announcement in time, before the door is shut.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., April 26th.

Bro. Joseph:—About the middle of March I wrote Bro. J. T. Davis of Spring River, Missouri, District, for permission to do some ministerial labor in his District. Up to the time I was ready to start had received no reply. On March 26th, by request of Indian Creek Branch, I went by way of Kansas City to Langton. I spent an hour talking to old friends while waiting for conveyance. I met with a pleasant reception by all. Please let me say I object to calling my brethren, or having them or any one else call me a "Mormon." I have two reasons for not liking the name; the principal one is that it is not my name; an other is, that what is understood by the world to be a Mormon makes it too disagreeable an appellation. Bro. Lansing came in after me, and I filled the appointment made by the brethren for the evening. Next day, Sunday, spoke twice and rested Monday night, (house occupied by Railroad meeting), spoke every night through the week, on Sunday twice, and closed Monday night, eleven times in all, to good congregations, the "Christian" people leading in singing and sometimes opening by prayer. Although the weather was the greater part of the time very disagreeable, the congregations were good and attentive. Quite an interest was manifested by some. From here I went to Indian Creek to Bro. Otto Baumgartle's neighborhood; he is president of the branch, the right man in the right place. I may be a little selfish toward this branch on account of it being the fruits of my labors while there, but I think they are all whole souled brethren and sisters. I spoke here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights; Sunday and Sunday night. One was baptized by Bro. Baumgartle officiating, Bro. Joseph Staly's wife, and I think she will be a credit to the branch.

We had a good old fashioned testimony meeting in the afternoon, Sunday. Monday noon Bro. Baumgartle took me to the train at Fall River, but not until the brethren had smoothed the way for me by proper means. I arrived at my mother's, in Bourbon County near Fort Scott Tuesday; visited through the week, and on Sunday night spoke in a new church, belonging to the Methodists. Could have baptized some here, Mrs. Robert Forbes and son. She is well informed on some things, but I thought they had better wait until some Elder could see them and have more talk. Will the president of Spring River district please look after them. You will be well cared for. My mother, one brother, (members of the Church), and a sister live there, twelve miles north-west from Fort Scott on the new Rail-road, (not complete yet). Enquire for Loar or Commons. Your brother,

N. S. LOAR.

PORT CARLING, Ont., May 16th.

Bro. Joseph Smith.—Bro. J. McIntosh of Alliston, Ontario, wrote asking me the question, Why is it necessary to be confirmed, seeing that it is written in Luke 16:16, that he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved. And thinking that a copy of my answer might be interesting to the Herald readers I extract the answer from my letter to him.

St. John 3:17.—“For God so loved the world that he gave his Only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life.” Or Acts 16:31, would I think be fully as hard to answer because that faith and faith only is mentioned in those citations. No ordinance or principle besides faith is found as being necessary for its possessor to fully understand and be clothed with in order to entitle him or her to the gift of eternal life. If it can be shown that the christian faith must have works, or else that it is not the faith of primitive christianity at all, then we will be able to see not only the necessity of baptism and confirmation, but for many other things; and that such is the case see James 2:17: “For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith if it has not works is dead also.” Also 3d John 9: “Whosoever transgresseth and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ hath not God; but he that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.” He adds in tenth verse, that if they, the church, received any man bearing any other testimony than this they would be condemned of God for so doing.

The Savior in Matth. 7:21, comports with the above. He says, “Not every one that sayeth unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven.”

You will notice that in the seventeenth verse of this same seventh chapter, the Savior has likened or compared men, good and bad, by a symbol of trees. According to my views, men who have not been born again are like dead trees. First the sap of life from God, which is faith, must enter them, and this will be sure to produce buds. See Heb. 6:1, 2: “Therefore, leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ let us go on unto perfection, not laying again the foundation of dead works unto repentance and of faith towards God; of the doctrine of baptisms, of laying on of hands, of resurrection from the dead, and of eternal judgment.” A belief in and obedience of those things are the buds; and now let us find the flowers. Matth. 7:12: “Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets.” And now for the fruits; or “let us go on unto perfection.” 2d Pet. 1:5: “And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind and can not see afar off, and has forgotten that he was purged from his old sins,” (by repentance, baptisms, and the blood of Christ). “Wherefore the rather brethren give diligence to make your calling and election sure, (by producing those fruits), for if you do those things ye shall never fall.” This is the way of faith, or

This is the heavenly
Up to our Father's home;
And all who tread it faithfully,
Will not be left alone.

D. E. HOUGH.

MISSION CREEK, Neb., Feb. 5th.

Dear Saints.—Although we may stand in hard places, and have bitter trials, let us always keep in mind our God who is more true and tender than a loving mother, watching over us to bless us for our good works and trusting faith. No matter what we are called to endure, let us be faithful in keeping his commandments, for only the true and faithful can claim the blessed promises of God. It cheers my heart to read in the Herald the good news of the progress of the Lord's cause, and to see the reports of the faithful shepherds and the testimonies of the blessings of the Lord to his children. We haven't any branch. There are only two other families here besides us that belong to the church, but I am in hopes that we will yet have a branch here. When we moved here the people seemed to be very prejudiced; but we showed them the difference between us and the Salt Lake Mormons, and they became more docile, and willing to investigate. We live forty miles from any branch, but we have our meetings regularly every Sabbath when the weather is favorable. My mother has very poor health. I ask the prayers of the Saints in her behalf.

“I count these things to be grandly true;
That a noble deed is a step toward God,
Lifting the soul from the common sod
To a purer air and a broader view.

Heaven is not reached at a single bound;
But we build the ladder by which we rise
From the lower earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount to its summit round by round.”

Your sister in bonds,

AGENCY, Mo., May 17th.

Brother Joseph.—In reading my report in the Herald of May 15th, I see two mistakes which I would like to have corrected. In the Herald it reads: “I hope and trust the church will take all this into consideration and see that the news of the missionfield may be supplied;” but my report reads thus: “I hope and trust that the church will take all this into consideration and see that the needs of missionfield may soon be supplied, etc.” In paragraph three the Herald reads: “The apostate church in Utah still keeps that country supplied with their emissaries, notwithstanding their troubles with the government, as much as I have learned from there at the present time, with some of them I am personally acquainted.” But my report reads thus: “The apostate church in Utah still keeps that country supplied with their emissaries, notwithstanding their troubles with the Government, as much as I have learned, are from there at the present time, with some of them I am personally acquainted.”

PEMBROKE, Dak., May 20th.

Dear Herald.—Most welcome of all papers that enters this humble abode, your columns full of instruction to the meek and lowly of heart. Those sermons delivered at Conference are indeed meat in due season, and encouraging to us who live in these out-of-the-way places, and who never have a chance to hear leading Elders. The writer passed six years in Methodism, and while laboring in the office of class-leader, I often felt in doubt and uncertainty about points of doctrine, and more especially about authority, when I used to read such passages as Matt. 16:19. But now, thanks be to God, when I read in the Herald the history of the Reorganization, my heart leaps for joy. Bro. Richelson wishes me to say through the Herald that God raised his child from the point of death in answer to prayer, after trying medicine to no avail. Praying for the welfare of Zion, and that her stakes may be strengthened and her cords lengthened.

Yours in Bonds,

SWEET HOME, Oreg., May 14th.

Brothers Joseph and Blair.—My health has improved some since I came to Oregon, yet I am but a poor excuse yet. I thank the Lord all the day long for his mercy to unworthy me. My faith grows stronger in the great latter day work and in its ultimate triumph over all enemies every day. The evidences are largely on the increase everywhere we look, so may God help us all to stand is my prayer. Things here are on the increase. I have opened some new places; good interest is manifest with some; plenty of prejudice, ignorance and lies to meet; but thank the Lord some of these are giving way. I have been invited to speak upon the evolution theory versus the Bible, in the Liberal Hall at Brownsville. They have furnished the hall two nights free for us, and offer it to us whenever we want it free of all charge. It is a new place, and the Lord so willing, I will continue meetings there.

A TEN-LINE SERMON FOR SUNDAY.

You picture to yourself the beauty of bravery and steadfastness. You let your imagination wander in delight over the memory of martyrs who have died for truth. And then some little disagreeable duty comes, which is your martyrdom, the lamp for your oil—and if you will not do it, how your oil is spilt—how flat and thin and unilluminated your sentiment about the martyrs runs out over your self-indulging life.

The business of the whole country is practically paralyzed by the events of the past month and especially the past week. Buildings are stopped in the midst of construction, or never begun because of the threatened strikes; factories refuse contracts for goods, merchants find trade dull and great suffering must result from these strikes and boycotts.

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

SERMON BY PRES. JOSEPH SMITH, OF LAMONI, IOWA.

In the Saints' Chapel, Lamoni, Iowa,
April 8th, 1836.

[Reported for the Herald and prepared by the Editor.]

I HAVE been unable to fix my thought upon any brother to address you this morning, and as is usual in such cases, I will be under the necessity of attempting the task myself. What I may say will have either direct, or indirect relation to what you may find in the eighth chapter of Paul's letter to the Hebrews:

"Now of the things which we have spoken this is the sum: We have such a High Priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens; a minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man. For every High Priest is ordained to offer gifts and sacrifices; wherefore it is of necessity that this man have somewhat also to offer. For if he were on earth, he should not be a priest, seeing that there are priests that offer gifts according to the law: who serve unto the example and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was admonished of God when he was about to make the tabernacle: for, See, saith he, that you make all things according to the pattern showed to thee in the mount. But now hath he obtained a more excellent ministry, by how much also he is the mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises. For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second. For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers, in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord. For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts; and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people: And they shall not teach every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord; for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest. For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more. In that he saith a new covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away."

One of the first proclamations that was made after the re-committing of the gospel as we have believed and now believe in the early days of what is known as the Latter Day Church—was that the Spirit of God would be given the believer. The Latter Day Saints were then charged to tell the people, that if they obeyed the word as they taught it, they should receive the Holy Spirit, or the gift of the Holy Spirit; and it was stated to them that the Holy Spirit would guide them into all truth; that it would bear testimony of Jesus, that he was the Christ; and that it would put them into such a condition that if they lived faithfully in accordance with its teachings they should be fitted and prepared to enter into celestial life; and finally with all the redeemed of earth, the sanctified and the holy ones, they should be permitted an eternal dwelling with Christ and all those whom he should have created unto himself a kingdom, over which he might reign as king of kings and Lord of Lords.

As an individual I have been interested very seriously in looking over what is known as the latter day work in all its phases; and not only because I had a personal ambition and interest in it; but from two other causes. One of which is, I was born into a kind of dispensation under it, and the other that I have in common with all other men, a desire to be saved from what we recognize as the evils of this state, and the consequences of those evils. Since I have been under the necessity of fighting this great gospel work in my own way—I do not use the words fight it as fighting against, but as in some sense the work too and me under it—I have found myself burdened with the peculiar circumstances of my birth, and the consequences that have ensued to me by reason of that condition; and have always been made conscious, whether I would or not, that I was responsible in a sense unto the work, and to those whom my father had been interested in teaching, for some of the errors which he may have committed; and that they should be visited upon my head according to the idea that the grapes the fathers have eaten should set the children's teeth on edge. A great many are now laboring under these difficulties. I may say that no single individual, no matter whence he comes, or what may be his name, or what may be the circumstances of his life, has ever been called upon to work out his salvation with fear and trembling, under just such conditions as your speaker. There has been another difficulty in the way, but that I do not propose to discuss very largely, and that is this: I have not been disposed to take things which men have said, simply upon the statement which they have made, without to my mind there was strong collateral evidences concerning the matter, or unless there was circumstantial evidence, or what we might call co-related evidences, which were so strongly corroborative that I was of necessity compelled to accept them. This natural scepticism has placed me frequently in the condition of being misunderstood in regard to a great many points considered by many individuals plain; and as a natural consequence, the very same principle by which I refused to believe the statements of individuals unless corroborated has found lodgement in their minds, and to use a common expression, they have dealt unto me the same kind of sauce that I gave them. I never have complained of this where the individual gave evidence of the honesty of his intent and purpose, because every man has the same right to act for himself.

In the contemplation of this subject I have discovered (and I take it to myself at least) that this statement, that the person who should yield obedience unto the commandments should receive the Spirit, and that it should be a guide unto that individual, that it should form a guard, or a safeguard to him, an enlightening and continuing principle, by which each should be governed, guided and directed in his individual action, has been been an element of great danger, if I may use the word in that sense. One thing certainly will be done by this statement, and that is this: that individuals who hear it, and who are not exercising proper care have a chance to make a mistake in this matter. I have discovered that among a class of people representing so wide diversities of opinions, coming from such varied localities there is a disposition to very closely criticise what may be said and done; and some individuals have gone so far in criticism, as to hold that I as a servant of the body politic, ought to be very careful how I express opinions about certain things, because that those opinions would have a tendency to bias either properly or improperly the minds of the individuals who might hear them. I confess that I have heard with a good deal of shame, and a good deal of confusion also; O yes, this man will vote just because brother Joseph said so and so. That is, their minds have been biased in their opinions because of the opinion of the leader of the church. And as a consequence, one at least of these individuals has often been obliged to withhold his opinion until after the opinion of his brethren has been obtained, lest he might prejudice, or improperly bias others' opinions. One of the difficulties that has been in the way right here is this: This charge comes most frequently from the men who pride themselves upon having minds of their own. How in the name of common sense these men can charge other men with being biased, or improperly led, and claim themselves to be the only ones who are independent enough to have an opinion and express it fearlessly, is and always has been a mystery to me. I take it that whenever a man jumps out into the street and yells, "I am honest," it will do to watch him. If an individual proposes to charge a whole body of men indiscriminately, that they, because their leader holds an opinion, are improperly biased, I believe that that man will do to watch too, because he has made a charge against his brethren that he would resent if made against himself.

In reference to the statement as to whether this idea is a dangerous one or not, let us inquire. It is commonly claimed, and the Scriptures bear me out in it, that this gospel that is to be represented by this latter day church, is to be a savor of life unto life, or of death unto death. Is not the gospel a dangerous element then? If it is to be a savor of death unto death of course it is a dangerous element; and yet it can be faithfully and fearlessly presented to the children of men upon the evidences which Christ himself established, that the gospel contained both the elements of life and death. In other words, that in obedience to it there is life; and in a failure to render such obedience to its requirements, there is death. Not the death of the body, but a spiritual death. You may philosophise just as much as you please about our condition, and about the garden of Eden, and it does not help us one single particle simply because we were not born in the garden of Eden, but out of it and the conditions of our birth out of the garden of Eden very largely control us, and must necessarily control very largely the issues of our lives. Had we been born in the garden of Eden, we might not have been handed over to the troubles and distresses that a great many are heirs to in the flesh; but we are born out of the garden of Eden, and are subject to the conditions of such birth, subject to the peculiar conditions that attach to a life out of the garden of Eden. And it was for the purpose of overcoming, so far as it could be done in the flesh, by all those who were to be called unto repentance, those conditions of bondage and death that might ensue, that the gospel was presented to them; and provided that persons did not yield obedience to the requirements of the gospel, the law of redemption, they must necessarily remain in their former condition, and partake of the consequences that ensue from that condition. That is the whole story, they remain in condemnation.

There is another point in this that presses upon the attention. I wish only to refer to this suggestion in this sense: If the man to whom this gospel dispensation has come, is by nature endowed with an organization which is an humble one, naturally meek and humble, or when the element of self-esteem is eliminated to a great degree, it takes from this element a great deal of its danger. When that seed which we have heard is the word since we have assembled here, has been sown upon soil in which there is a strong element of self-esteem, in direct opposition to that Spirit by which the individual is to be directed into all truth, there is an element of danger, and that individual is liable to deceive himself, whether he is liable to deception by others or not. His estimate of himself may perhaps keep him from being deceived by others; but he is as liable to be imposed upon by himself as to be imposed upon by Joseph Smith; and if he is imposed upon by himself, he is no less deceived than if imposed upon by another man, and the consequences so far as the falling into sin and the way of death are concerned, are just the same. I would just as leave be deceived by myself as to be deceived by Joseph Smith; and I would as leave be deceived by Joseph Smith as to be deceived by myself; either results in error and goes down to death, it does not make any difference in the final outcome. I am not altogether sure but that the self-deceived man will receive greater punishment than those deceived by other men.

The gospel is to be an element of safety. Some can say in excuse the blame is to fall upon some body beside me. If I can stand behind some stalwart brother in the gospel, and point to him when condemnation is visited upon me, and say, This man told me to do it, or I did it because he did it; this man led me out of the way, you must put the whip upon him, I am not to blame, I make an excuse that will not avail me in the day of accounting.

Now some one will say, do you believe that element of danger is in the church. Yes I do. I have only to point to the west to prove it. Now if that element was an element of danger in the old church, so called, it is likewise an element of danger in the Reorganized church; and it is one of the things to be guarded against by all these elders, high or low. Any man that is blessed with the principle of self-esteem larger than his fellows, is in more danger than his less endowed brethren. You may make inquiry of me, In what sense is that a dangerous principle? I will tell you. I will tell you so far as my opinion is concerned, and you can think of it, and form your own conclusions after that. The individual who receives this Spirit becomes conscious of having received it, and he is liable to drift into the supposition that the truth which he has received, and that which has been testified to him, is all the truth there is; and as a consequence, he not only fixes upon that for the direction of his own will and purpose, but he very naturally proposes to drive his fellow men into line with his conclusions and thoughts. That is what we have been accused of. I am not going to say that I am not going to plead guilty to it. It comes home to us right here. You can all see that. Now we know that there is such a thing in the world as color blindness. I know that there are some men who affect to laugh at this, and say it is a queer idea that any person should not be able to distinguish colors. Now if a person has the faculty and has gone through the steps of what is known as the recognized harmony of colors, he knows blue in all its shades, and he has learned to tell red in all its shades, and he very naturally laughs at poor me because I can not distinguish them. These persons are naturally endowed with the ability to detect these things, and seeing them clearly themselves, or supposing that they see them clearly, laugh at me because I can not see them so clearly. Because they have a supposed clear conception of these various shades of color, they are very naturally inclined to think that I ought to have, and they laugh at me because I have not. Then don't you blame me if I laugh if you do not see things as clearly in some other respects as I do. Now is not this an element of danger, I wish to ask you? I wish to just ask you to think it over, think it over carefully and well, and ever bear in mind the things surrounding you, the acquaintances that you have formed, both in the church and out of it, consider the characteristics, the walk and conversation of individuals within your knowledge, and form your own conclusion, and I will be content with the verdict in regard to this matter.

Now further. When Jesus Christ came he evidently came endowed with power from God. He says so himself. He said that he did nothing except what he had seen his Father do. He came to do the work which the Father had given him command to do; and he makes one of the most excellent tributes of praise to the Almighty which can be found in the New Testament Scriptures, when in the Twelfth chapter of John's gospel he makes the declaration, Christ himself makes the statement, "I know that his commandment is life everlasting." It is the acknowledgement of the organization for the blessing of the children of men, which he came to institute, and which we find he intended to perpetuate by a restoration in the times in which we might live, or in which we do live. That particular vein of scepticism which is in me, would have made me reject the Book of Mormon, if I had had full faith and credit in the New Testament Scriptures as being the word of God, provided that the Book of Mormon had taught a different system of redemption than was taught in the New Testament Scriptures. Hence, when the objection is urged against the Book of Mormon, because forsooth it agrees with the New Testament, and because quotations in it are found at large from the prophet Isaiah agreeing word for word, and almost letter for letter, therefore it is a plagiarism and not of God; but if it had been different from that; that is, if the Book of Mormon had come forth and claimed to be a revelation from God as it did come forth, and that revelation had been different from the teachings of the New Testament Scriptures, there is not a man that believes in the New Testament as the word of God, that would have ever given the Book of Mormon a second thought; I don't think it ever would have been in the controversy. It would have been an easy thing for the world to have eliminated it from the controversy entirely. All that would have been necessary for them to do, was to get right up before the people and say they were plainly different in their teachings of the gospel, that they described the church differently, that they taught different principles of faith, and were different in all that was required for salvation. You would thus have damned the work with all its possibilities, without a chance for escape. It is because the teachings of the Book of Mormon stand in line with the principles of the gospel economy in Christ as revealed in the New Testament Scriptures that we have had to fight our way in maintaining its claims against the opposition; and it was not until the Reorganized Church had been permitted in the strange fortunes that have accompanied its history, to find that document made to do duty as the original manuscript, the Spaulding Story—it was not until that time that we got heads and shoulders above that accursed lie. Now some of the strong opponents that we have had are shame-faced.

In pursuit of the thought that we uttered now. In the sixth to the eighth chapters of Hebrews we discover that Christ was made a High Priest for them. That is the teaching of the New Testament Scriptures. That he was a minister of the sanctuary. But that which we more particularly desire to place before you is, that he was made a minister of the true tabernacle. Tabernacle to my mind is significant in this sense, using it for the purpose of the argument. It may be a worshipping place, and it may be worship if you so use the term. The word tabernacle may be applied to the devotees who worshipped in a grove. By and by God commanded Moses to build a tabernacle, and it should be so made that it might be set up and taken down. We have thought that in these latter days we also have worshipped in tabernacles, it may be in places where we have pitched our tents for a day and a night, expecting the word of the Lord to bid us go onward into the possession and establishment of that great place called Zion, wherever that might be, the dwelling place of the honest in heart, the Zion of the Lord.

Well now I call attention again to the statement in Hebrews, that Christ was a minister of the true tabernacle, that which God pitched and not man. We have a promise made there in regard to a change which shall take place in the circumstances which pertain to worship; and this temporal tabernacle should continue until the accomplishment of that change which is promised; until from the nations of the earth, which we call the wicked, shall have been gathered out all the honest in heart; until God shall have gathered all things in him in one; until the time shall have come when this prophecy shall have been fulfilled, when men will no longer need to say to their fellow men, Know ye the Lord, because all shall know him from the least unto the greatest. I heard Bro. Jason W. Briggs at one time, referring to this peculiar phase of this question say, that the time must come according to that which had been prophesied, that every man must be made to recognize that Jesus was the Lord; and the point seemed to me to be well taken at the time. The idea seemed to be, that those who will not hear the Lord, or become acquainted with him while we are here under these present circumstances, would have to be compelled to recognize him as the Lord; and because they had gone contrary to his word, should feel the rod of his power in the time when he should visit condemnation upon them and make them feel his displeasure. The idea being that it was better for us to recognize Jesus as the Lord now and enter into covenant with Him, and serve him, than it was to feel the condemnation of the Lord, when he should come taking vengeance on them that know him not. I thought at the time that it was one of the most just conclusions that I had ever heard a man reach concerning anything. So one of the most potent reasons why Jesus should be preached, and preached now, is that people might be enabled to enter into covenant with God now, rather than to wait till such a condition of things should cause them to call upon the rocks to fall upon them and to hide them from the face of him whom they did not know.

In contemplating this subject some curious thoughts have arisen. The experience of the past few months, now almost a year, have forced some things upon my recognition; and as it is said concerning a man in great jeopardy, that he thinks and thinks rapidly, and sometimes in just a moment the whole of a man's life will pass in review before him; and under certain circumstances, he will see not only his present condition, but a vast amount of his surroundings. He becomes conscious of these things by what we may call ratiocination, or unconscious cerebration. Some of these professors and doctors of the law, please take that under advisement if you please. The idea is, the brain will take cognizance of facts and work out conclusions of which the individual will be unconscious, and I think that is what is called unconscious cerebration. An action of the brain of which the individual is not conscious. These experiences through which I have passed in the last year, some of them have forced me to think and to think very closely too; and as I said before, there is an element of danger in the church. Now the conclusion that I have come to is this: That somewhere there is to be found a true tabernacle of the Lord, a place where worshippers may go and worship Him in spirit and in truth. And if I can not find it here, I must find it somewhere else; but so far as my conclusions are concerned, this is a necessary part of them; that wherever I shall find this true tabernacle, I shall find Jesus Christ recognized as the great High Priest of it, and under him an array of High Priests and Priests. The Jewish ministry under the law were not concerned with this true tabernacle or worshipping place as they should have been. But if this work could not have been wrought for them under the old covenant, it may be wrought for them under a new and a better covenant, which takes the place of the old.

So I have reached this conclusion, that we have to remember that the Lord pitched that tabernacle and not man. Now let us see. One of the ablest preachers of the United States hitherto, has said concerning the organization in which he worships, and of all the churches and associations with which it was connected, that they were all in the same relation to each other that a township or school organization or organizations were to each other. That they were but the associations of men, and had originated with men. Now if he represented correctly the idea and teachings of the organizations that claim to be the churches of Christ in these last days, it takes them out of the category altogether. The true tabernacle the Lord pitched and not man. If these churches were man-pitched, they certainly were not God-pitched. We listened the other night to a discourse by one of the brethren, in which he made the statement, that if an individual is in a different organization from that which he was representing, and had faith to the extent that he gave five dollars; and an individual of the organization which he was representing paid but one, the Father, judging these two men by their works would give to the man in the other organization a salvation or a reward, which should be as disproportionate as one dollar is to five. The one that paid the five dollars would get the larger reward; and the one that paid the one dollar would get the one dollar's worth of reward. Now whether this is applicable or not does not matter to me. All I want to get at is this: that so far as the rewards are concerned which will be given at the end of the race, while we recognize the fact that God will reward every individual according to his deeds, it follows as a just conclusion, that the individual that walks the way unto the Lord, or the way unto heaven, which Jesus Christ himself pointed out, must come the nearest to reaching the heavenly place sooner or later. One conclusion follows just as surely as the other. And if those persons who are walking the ways of life with a view to the rewards which are to be beyond, walk only in the ways of men, they must expect to be rewarded simply according to that judgment which is to be upon all nations, individuals and nations without respect to that which shall be found in Jesus Christ in the true tabernacle which God pitched and not man. All others will fall under the general law outside of Christ, and they may take it for granted that they will just get the reward which is in the hand of the Father; but in case they ask for the reward which has been offered by Jesus Christ, Jesus Christ will say no, and say it justly too. Therein is the danger of this gospel of Jesus Christ. It is a savor of life unto life, or of death unto death; of life unto them that receive and obey it, and of death unto them that reject and refuse to obey it.

That covenant which was to be made with the children of men, which we have learned about here in the eighth of Hebrews, is to be of a peculiar character. It is not a covenant made before the altar by two individuals, one of them being a novitiate, and the other a member in the full acceptance of the term. I have forgotten the term that they use, and it does not matter, I do not like to use big terms anyway. That covenant which is to be entered into is not a covenant between the preacher upon the one hand and the mourner at the bench upon the other and the association which the preacher may represent composed of men and called a church organization. This covenant is not to be between man and his fellow men. A covenant between a church organization represented by a preacher and an individual is not a covenant between God and man, it is between man and man, unless there shall have been some delegated power by which God may be brought into the matter. God himself is to be the party of the first part, in granting life unto the party of the second part through that covenant which is to be established here. That covenant is to be established with the Lord. "And the days will come when I will make a new covenant." I believe the Lord is in this covenant. I may be mistaken, but I believe that the Lord proposes to make a covenant with the house of Israel; and I believe that when the Lord proposes to make a covenant and be the party of the first part, that he does not propose that man shall be a party upon the second part, only when this covenant is to be made in Christ, or in the new tabernacle, or in the true tabernacle. According to this new covenant it must be made between God and the individuals. I do not see how it is possible for us to escape from this conclusion. It must be made between the parties and God, because eternal life is to be the final reward. The sending of the Spirit must be recognized on the entering into that covenant. The covenant must be of that character, that the conditions which are precedent which have to be complied with upon the part of the individual seeking for eternal life shall be recognized of God; and this recognition is given in the sending of this Spirit by which they shall become acquainted with the fact that Jesus is the Christ, the Lord. Now says the writer, "In that he saith a new covenant he hath made the first old. That which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away," when that which is new is fully prepared to enter in then that which is old must vanish away. When this covenant is fully entered into, and the individuals with whom it is to be made parties of the second part, God being the party of the first part, when it is made thus it takes the place of the old covenant.

What is that old covenant? Thou shalt not steal, lie, bear false witness. Thou shalt keep the Sabbath day; reverence father and mother. Thou shalt worship God, and do all those commandments found in the old covenant. And the new covenant was to take its place. Why, the point is here. Why is the church talking about the moral law. Here the moral law was rejected by Christ when he came teaching the people under the old covenant. When he sent those disciples of his, he sent them, preaching the new covenant, and the character of that is such that it takes the place of the old, and the whole category of things in the moral law. It is to take the place of it; and I have tried two or three times to teach the people here concerning the things of this covenant that are to take the place of the old law. The effort I have been making has been this: That we might get into a condition when such things as Elders' courts, when such things as Bishops' courts, when such things as trials before the high council and appeals to the presidency might become things of the past. Why? For the reason that the Spirit which was to be shed upon the disciples should be so great upon the party making the covenant, that he should do the things required of him under the new covenant; that that covenant which is unto condemnation might not pass upon him,

I do not know as I comprehend it fully myself, but I am afraid somebody else does not see this principle of danger. The Spirit it seems is only to be given in consideration of entering into the new covenant. But when that Spirit has come, when that covenant has been fully entered into, and the individual has become a partaker of it by virtue of that new covenant which was to be made with the House of Israel and with the House of Judah, and that comprehends both adopted Israel and literal Israel, there was to be a continuation of this worship. True it might be under this great High Priest, Jesus Christ. And when I find that the united teaching of the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants is to the effect that Christ was first, last, and all the time the minister of this redemption, the one under whom the work of redemption is to be carried on, I accept the three as one. One thing is reckoned to be absolutely certain, when the ministers of Christ, and whoever have been called according to the pattern in this organization, both the old and what we call the Reorganized Church, have gone out preaching Jesus Christ as he is revealed in the accredited harmony of these three books, the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, they have been crowned with souls for their hire. Where these Elders of the Reorganized Church have gone to those who first heard the gospel under the preaching in former days, they have received the testimony of the Spirit, the Spirit which bore witness with them at the first has borne testimony to them again, and they have been obliged to say, This is the sound of the voice of the Good Shepherd, I can understand that voice, the other voices I have not heard. Here is a man by my side whose father's family was brought into the faith when he was small, and he was baptized when he was a boy like I was, he was baptized before I was, down there not far away from Independence; when he heard this voice away off yonder in Michigan he recognized it and hastened to obey it; and now is sent out to others who heard the voice in those early days. Did they recognize his voice when they heard him? Let him answer. The Spirit that he had testified to him and testified to them that it was the voice of the Good Shepherd, that it was the acceptable work, the work of God. That was the underlying principle by which Christ became a High Priest; it was through this principle that the power of God reached the hearts of the people, it was writing the word of the Lord in the hearts of the people by the power of his Spirit. This you will remember was to be a better covenant; I might say it is the surest covenant; it is the putting of the law of God in the heart of the individual, it is putting it into their minds, writing it in their hearts. The days have gone by when our statutes should be written on tables of stone; they are to be written by God's own hand in the plastic element of the human heart. It is to build up the character; it is to be a light and a guide unto the human soul, and to end in life, life eternal. It is to be with the man of God in this life, and to remain with him until his development and final glorification. It is to be the means of light and power of development for good here, and of final salvation in the time when there shall no longer be any division, any strife, when God's people shall have been cleansed and purified and sanctified and saved with all those who everywhere have entered into this new covenant which God was to make with the house of Israel and the house of Judah.

My idea has been to work this people up to the consideration of what they themselves could be; to get them to put aside those things which James says arise from your lusts, to put aside all bitterness one against another, and these divisions and sub-divisions, that they might become one while here. I think there has been a mistake made with reference to the declaration, "When the watchmen upon the walls of Zion shall see eye to eye," and I think from that mistake a great deal of harm has come. It has been one of the things which has ministered to the danger that is in the preaching of the gospel and the testimony of the Spirit. I can illustrate my view now so I think you will understand it. From the head of the street up here where the principal street of the town runs north and south and crosses the one running east and west you can see the chimneys of my house, but you can not see the base of it. Now suppose all along this line there is a line of sentinels of the smallest and the tallest men we have got here, some of whom measure one-third of nineteen feet; there is another that measures four feet eight, and another five feet ten, and you may make up your line of sentinels of these men of different heights, from the street at Dr. DeNoon's corner, up to my house; and you may place those men forty rods apart, there is not two of these men that can see the surrounding landscape alike, and are you going to suppose that they will all see it alike. How in the name of common sense do you suppose that all these men, having different points of view, and being of different heights, can see the landscape all alike? Can you do it? No. How then can you suppose that people having different spiritual stand points, and being of diverse spiritual heights, can see all things of a spiritual nature just alike? One side of the shield to the man that looks at it is silver. To him that looks on the other side it is gold. The difficulty is to place him where he can see both sides. One side is silver and the other is gold. If you have two men so agreed in spirit, that one can stand upon the silver side, and the other upon the golden side, each accepting the other's testimony, can you not testify that these men see eye to eye; just the same as one sentinel standing here upon the street, and another up by the school house, and another on the hill close to where brother Lambert lives, and so on, can communicate to each other from time to time, each with his next neighbor, and they see as they are seen. Brethren this is what is meant by this declaration, "The watchmen upon the walls of Zion shall see eye to eye."

While we are striving for this unity of the spirit, striving for this unity of the faith, and keeping in the Spirit, we can labor together. But where we are all the time expecting something to transpire of a sudden that may disrupt and destroy our faith, and we stand and wait for it to come, without making an effort to get this unity for which we wait, there is great danger, and loss must ensue.

When this covenant is to be fully established, there is going to be not only some great power in Israel, but there is going to be an army in Israel. And it must become very great, not in the sense of an army with artillery and wagons and horses and muskets and swords, and all the other accoutrements of war; for the time is to come in Israel when all these things are to be done away; nevertheless the army is to be very great, and be as terrible as an army with banners. In that day it shall be an army with banners, and shall be terrible in the sense that it is for the pulling down of the strongholds of iniquity. Let me ask you, If that time must come when every man that will not take up his sword against his neighbor must flee to Zion for safety, where will Zion be? Where the pure in heart are, where there is no fighting? Now get your swords out if you have them, and let us see them flash, and then bury them please, and show unto the world that you have received a token of acceptance in this new covenant; that the pure word has found lodgment in your hearts; that the influence of his Spirit has entered into your mind. When you have done that you will find something more in this gospel economy than some people are willing to give it credit for. I thank you you for your attention.

MORMONISM IN HULME.

EASTER SUNDAY WITH THE "SAINTS."

THE Quiver for the month which commences to-day has for its first article one entitled "False Prophets of the Past," in which the founder of Mormonism is the last but the most invidiously noticed in the category. "Perhaps," it states, "the most extraordinary of all false prophets, and the most repulsive of all false religions, are Joseph Smith and Mormonism, which he founded." After reference to the "prophet's" birthplace and parentage, and the statement that, whilst all the Smiths were bad, Joseph was the worst of the family, the article proceeds:—"He was not much above twenty years of age when he professed to have discovered a treasure, a continuation of the Bible, especially revealed by an angel to America. This 'Golden Book' was written on plates of precious metal in the Reformed Egyptian language not understood on earth. With them was a pair of wonderful spectacles, which would enable their wearer to decipher the hieroglyphics of this new and sacred writing. Of course Joseph Smith himself was the person most capable of interpreting the plates. He sat behind a blanket, which served to keep profane eyes from gazing on the holy text, and read off the contents of it to Oliver Cowdery, who wrote them down as they flowed from the lips of Smith. In 1830, this marvelous composition was printed in a volume of several hundred pages; and now Smith assumed the part of a prophet, preaching and admitting converts into the church of Mormon, or Latter Day Saints. He began with five disciples. In the course of a year he enrolled thousands. He established a printing office, a newspaper, a bank, and a colony of dupes, whom he led to Kirtland, Ohio, which was to be the seat of the New Jerusalem. Apostles were sent out, one of the most successful of whom was Brigham Young, the future head of the sect. The Mormons encountered persecution, and Smith feigned to be commanded from on high to establish the new church at a city called Nauvoo, which he and his followers built in the territory of Utah. Here an army was organized, of which Smith was commander-in-chief; he was also mayor of the city, and chief pastor of the church. This second Mahomet now received a revelation, which enabled him to have as many wives as he chose. More liberal than the founder of Islamism, he allowed his followers the same privilege as himself, and polygamy became the most salient characteristic of Mormonism. But it was not until 1852 that a plurality of wives was openly advocated by the Mormon community. Several leading disciples renounced the faith when this tenet was first declared, and started a paper called the Expositor for the purpose of denouncing Smith and his pretended revelations. The office of this paper was attacked and wrecked by Smith and his followers on May 6th, 1844. Smith was sent to prison at Carthage, Illinois. The furious mob broke into prison and shot him and his brother Hyrum, on June 24th. Brigham Young then took command of the sect, and migrated to Salt Lake City, where it still exists." One word of praise this unfriendly writer (F. Bayford Harrison) has for the Latter Day Saints. He says, "Their signal good qualities are patience, perseverance, courage and industry."

No one outside the community of Latter Day Saints who was induced (by an advertisement which appeared in the South Manchester Gazette of Saturday last) to attend the special services of the "Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of (Anti-polygamic) Latter Day Saints" on Easter Sunday, in "Saints' Chapel," at the corner of Welcombe and Clarendon-streets, Hulme, could have discovered anything in connection with these services of the suggested repulsiveness of Mormonism, as originally founded and developed by Joseph Smith, and described in the foregoing quotation from the Quiver. On the contrary, they would have found congregations typical, primarily, of the family relationship, and devout, earnest, and enthusiastic in worship; but no trace of the eccentric and of the ludicrous. At two o'clock there was what was termed a "fellowship meeting," and in the very fullest sense of the designation it was what it was described to be. Mr. J. Dewsnup, president of the Manchester District, was chief of the gathering, and the community of "Saints" included every degree of family relationship, from the babe at the breast to the hoary-headed Elders of the church, all, even to the discernment of a superficial observer, met not as the separate units of a strait-laced "respectable" congregation, but as a united family come together to worship the Lord. And very homely, not to say rude, is the meeting place of this happy family. An "upper chamber" over a coal yard, the rough brick walls of which are simply whitewashed, with a very full "open timbered" roof, and nothing in the way of decoration but familiar Scripture texts of everlasting meaning, in big letters on grimy cardboard. It would be cheerless enough but for the warmth which radiates from the hearts to the countenances of all, and which might lend something of animation to the most disconsolate of wanderers who happen to loiter in. If there is nothing of the art of the architect to elevate, nothing of the painter's skill to refine, and little of anything, in fact, of that which is supposed to teach by symbolism, it certainly can not be said of the "Saints' Chapel," when filled as on Sunday last—the chief Sunday of the Christian year—that "soul is wanting there."

The proceedings of the conference commenced with the singing of the well-known hymn "Tell me the old, old story," after which prayer was offered up by one of the brethren, whose pronunciation and grammatical expression were not unexceptionable, but who was earnest and fluent. The interesting ceremony of the confirmation of a young woman followed, and was very simple, prayer and the laying on of hands by two Elders, for the gift of the Holy Ghost. Then, with hymns between, taken either from The Harp or the Moody and Sankey collection, came addresses from the Saints, as the Spirit moved them. In all, about a dozen were so moved to speak, and their utterances were necessarily brief. The tenor of all was nearly the same, and confined to statements of the personal advantage and comfort which the speakers had found since they had been members of the Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints. Quietly and earnestly, without any of the hysteria of a Salvation Army or a "revival" meeting, or even the rapture of a Primitive Methodist assembly, each speaker made his statement of experience, and the congregation simply joined in the Amen with which he concluded. One speaker, the head of a household, expressed the satisfaction which he had in being present, not only himself, but accompanied by his wife and children. Another pointed out that not only were the young there, but they had present among them those who had maintained the cause for thirty or forty years. He prophesied that there was a grand future before them,

God was working mightily for his church. Might the Lord keep them in the straight and narrow way, so that they might be prepared for the coming of the Master. A young man bore testimony that he had been a professing Christian before he joined the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, but he had never felt comfort, joy, and peace in believing until then. An old man said that that day reminded him of the old days of the prophet. When he, (Joseph Smith) was martyred, the Church was seized by avaricious men, who made laws which to good men were repugnant, but he, (the speaker) stuck to the church because the testimony which he had in the life of the prophet proved to him that it was the church of God. Wherever else he went he could find no peace, therefore he had to stick to the Church until the son came forward and took up the work when the Church was reorganized. One of the brethren had said to him "Are you not proud, John, that Joseph has taken up the work of his father?" and his reply was that it was everything to him, for by Joseph and his "seed" was the world to be blessed. With reference to this last remark, the president, subsequently, to prevent misapprehension, said they were not dependent on Joseph Smith for their salvation, and they accepted his words only so far as they were in accordance with the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. That was what their brother doubtless meant to say. Holy Communion followed, prior to the administering of which the president expressed the hope that none outside their church would partake. He pointed out the obvious reasons for the restriction. The elements having been blessed were carried around to the congregation, the vessels containing the wine being of glass, this simple community boasting vessels neither of silver nor gold. After the singing of another hymn and prayer the meeting separated until the evening.

At six o'clock the room was again filled. The president read the 1st chapter of 1st Corinthians, and then called upon Elder Ramsay for an address. After remarking that he recognized the fact that the teeming millions of the earth were ignorant of the grand and glorious principles which they advocated, he said that in view of such a state of matters, they might well pause and ask themselves who was sufficient for these things? Certainly neither of them of themselves—their sufficiency came of God, who alone could make them able ministers of the New Testament. He was glad that he could present to them not a doubtful gospel, but the only gospel that God had promulgated on the face of the earth. As he had heard a friend say who knew a little of the truth, and who was accustomed to preach in the open air, they wanted the genuine article. If they wanted to know what the gospel was, they must realize it for themselves. Passing on to consideration of the preaching of Christ, the speaker said there were three direct things necessary in order to the preaching of Christ. In the first place—who was He? They were told that he was one of the seed of David, but declared to be the Son of God; and one of the first things that Paul did after his conversion was to begin to preach that he was the Son of God. Then they had the God-man to preach about. The next thing they had to take into consideration was the atoning work of Christ. Some, when they got so far, thought they were done. He used to think so; but since he had become connected with the work of that church he had reached aspects of truth such as never had presented themselves to him before. There was another point,—the doctrine of Christ. Christ was a great teacher. He (the preacher) had heard some people say, "Never mind doctrine; let us have Christ." How could they have Christ without having his doctrine? Man was not to live by bread alone, but by every word which proceeded out of the mouth of God. In speaking the wonderful words of life, he sometimes thought that if they could forget all that had been taught about theology, and see what was said 1800 years ago, just as it was then said, that the way would be prepared for the reception of the truth, for when they were trained up in particular principles of theology, there was apt to be a tendency in their minds to try to reconcile the Word of God to the doctrines which they had been taught, rather than to reconcile those doctrines to the Word of God. Touching on faith, the preacher said that they went a great deal farther than those people who taught only faith in Jesus Christ. Unless they had a faith which would lead them to obey Jesus Christ and make the necessary sacrifices for salvation, faith would not do. That was a testing point. If those whom he was addressing were privileged to be received into the kingdom of heaven after this life here below, they would find no brother or sister there who had not shown the truth of their faith by the obedience and the sacrifices which they had shown and exemplified on earth. Then came repentance. Repentance was necessary to salvation. One of the great things they had to do was to preach repentance, and they must not be ashamed to preach the whole testimony of God, and if ever there was a time for preaching repentance now was that time. After reference to the ordinance of baptism, the preacher came to that of the laying on of hands. In the chapter which their brother had read they found the words "Even as the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you." That was the confirmation that was desired. In conclusion, the preacher exhorted his audience to press on, regardless of the scoffs and frowns of the world, to the prize of the high calling which is by God in Christ Jesus.—Other addresses, singing and prayer followed.

As the faith and doctrines of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints are not well known, and that they may not be confounded with those so unsparingly condemned by the writer in the Quiver, we give the epitome of faith.

THERE is an unfortunate disposition in a man to attend much more to the faults of his companions which offend him, than to their perfections which please him.

Conference Minutes.

TENNESSEE DISTRICT.

The above conference convened at Eagle Creek, Saturday, May 9th, 1886. Bro. W. H. Griffin was chosen to preside and S. L. Cooper Secretary. Preaching on Sunday by P. B. Seaton, assisted by W. H. Griffin. Branch Reports: Foundry 16, including one Elder and one Deacon. Eagle Creek 21, one Elder, one Teacher and one Deacon. Farmington 17, no change since last report. Elder P. B. Seaton reported in person; had preached once a month to the branches in the district. W. H. Griffin reported in person; had labored where circumstances would permit; had opened up a new place for preaching, by the assistance of P. B. Seaton, near Crohlin, Ky. His health is better, and he is greatly renewed in spirit. Teacher S. L. Cooper, in person; Deacon, John F. Robards, in person. Brother Columbus Robards and family called for letters of removal which was granted them. They are faithful in the work of the Master. We had a peaceful session. The good Spirit was with us, which made us rejoice in the work of the Lord. Adjourned to meet at the call of the President.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.

The semi annual conference of the above district convened at Stockton, Cal., in Mozart's Hall, March 19th, 1886, at 10 a. m. Apostle A. H. Smith, pres., C. A. Parkins, clerk, pro tem, C. W. Hawkins assistant. Branch Reports.—San Francisco total members 53, including 5 Elders, 1 Priest, 1 Teacher, 2 Deacons, 1 received by letter; Elder Geo. S. Lincoln president, Thomas J. Andrews clerk. Oakland 108 members including 1 High Priest, 12 Elders, 3 Priests, 2 Teachers, 2 Deacons; 1 received by letter, 1 removed, 1 died; Elder Wm. Anderson pres., Elder Richard Ferris sec. Stockton 61 members, including 3 Elders, 2 Priests, 1 Deacon, 1 Teacher, 1 removed; Elder John Nightingale pres., M. B. Darrow clerk. Spruce Grove 22 members, 1 Elder, 1 baptized, 1 died; Elder John Cobb pres., J. M. Adamson clerk. Union Town 18 members, 1 Priest, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon; Priest John Grube pres. Sacramento 102 members, including 1 High Priest, 6 Elders, 2 Priests, 2 Deacons; 6 baptized, 1 received by letter; Elder G. W. Harlow pres., C. W. Blair clerk. Santa Rosa 62 members, including 2 Elders, 2 Priests, 2 Teachers, 1 removed; Elder C. W. Hawkins pres. and clerk.

Report of Apostle A. H. Smith. He, as president of the Pacific Slope Mission had labored in the various districts in the State of California; had not done as much on this coast as he had wished, but still there had been fair progress made. In Sacramento there was quite a revival the last time he was there; in San Francisco and Windsor there was much interest manifested; in Santa Rosa he found an enthusiastic little branch. But Oakland seemed lagging behind. He discovered in cities a seeming desire to seek after pleasure. They wanted revivals and excitements to lead them in channels of devotion; but the Latter Day Saints having no excitement to offer, could not of course compete, they appealing only to their reason and sound judgment. He also delivered an instructive address upon the law of tithing, stating that the financial affairs of the church are under the control of the Bishop and his agents in the different parts of the world who were to receive moneys and remit to the Bishop for the benefit of the church. The money for the support of the church is raised by tithing, as mentioned in the Bible. Members of the church are expected to tithe themselves one tenth of their property as soon as they become communicants of the church, and after paying this first tithe to then pay into the church treasury one tenth of their increase, annually. Many had erroneous ideas of the law of tithing. A great deal had been said against the church because of this law of consecration; and many have feared to enter the church because they thought they would have to consecrate themselves and their property to the church. But every man or woman is expected to tithe himself or herself. They act as their own stewards, and make their own estimates. It is between themselves and their God whether they make a truthful estimate or not. Ministers of the church of Jesus Christ have no salaries; and those who devote their whole time to the work make a careful estimate what will support their families, and that estimate is given to the Bishop whose duty it is to see that they are provided for. Elders are expected to labor without purse or scrip; so it must be a labor of love to our fellow men, and a desire to do God's will that we preach the gospel, and not for the love of gain. High Priest H. P. Brown reported; was laboring in Oakland and San Francisco branches. His time is mostly occupied in editing the Expositor, and through this means he is sending the gospel to the different nations of the earth. He exhorted the Saints to make sacrifices that the gospel may be preached to all people. Baptized one. Elders Reported.—Elder Thomas Daley, president of the district had labored through the district; found good interest manifested by the people generally. Baptized one. Elders John Nightingale, Owen Dinsdale, G. W. Harlow, G. S. Lincoln, C. A. Parkins, C. W. Hawkins, reported labors in their various branches, and were desirous of doing all they could for the advancement of the work. Elder W. M. Potter had labored in San Francisco, had baptized two. Elder A. Haws of the Oregon Mission, reported by letter. Labored in Stockton, California, and vicinity for three weeks; had fair attendance and good liberty; then went to Portland, Oregon; had preached three times with great liberty and had good attendance. Elders J. R. Cook and William Hart wrote that they had labored, doing all they could in their branches. Priest J. S. Oman had labored throughout the northern part of the district in connection with Elder Thomas Daley and found great interest manifested, and a general desire to hear the word of God. Priest J. Davis had labored in Stockton with Elder John Nightingale. Priest J. A. Stromberg of Oakland Branch reported labor in Sonoma.

The evening session was devoted to preaching the word of God by H. P. Brown, who delivered an interesting discourse upon the doctrines and beliefs of the church. The speaker said God reveals himself to those who had authority and were ordained to preach the gospel, through the ministering of an angel. God is at the head of the church. The twelve apostles next, then prophets, pastors, and this is the true basis of the organization of God's church. It is identical with his church established 1800 years ago. No man had authority to preach the word of God unless called by revelation. Jesus Christ did not send the Bible to preach his word—that is his law, but he sends men and gives them gifts through the ministering of angels. The Jews had been scattered and broken, as a nation, because of breaking the covenant they had made with God. The Lord had said in the Bible that a new covenant would be made with them sometime, when those who repented would be saved, and those who repented not would be damned. The Lord said Let the wheat and tares grow together till they are ripe, then will I send mine angels to gather my wheat into the garner, and bind the tares to be burned. In 1820 the Lord sent unto Joseph Smith an angel. Revelations were given to him. The angel John with his right hand upon the prophet's head gave him the key for the remission of sin and said it should never be taken from the earth again. But it is not enough for us to receive the Holy Ghost, for the Lord has said, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God." In conclusion, the people were exhorted to lay aside their prejudices and give the Latter Day Saints an opportunity to be heard.

At morning session, Saturday, the 20th, an itemized report from the Bishop's Agent, Elder T. J. Andrews of the Northern District was read and accepted. Receipts since last reported $1122.82; expenditures $862.50, balance March 19th, 1886, $260.32. Elder Thomas Daley was unanimously re-elected president of the district, and Priest J. S. Oman secretary. The afternoon session was devoted to prayer and testimony. The Spirit was plainly and visibly manifested; the testimonies were of a marked character. Two arose for baptism. In the evening Elder A. H. Smith preached on the words "Beware of false prophets who come to you in sheep's clothing." The following are the chief features of the address: Christ warned his followers to beware of false prophets. Does not this imply that there are true ones? There must always be a genuine before there can be a counterfeit. In every age there have been spiritual influences. The true prophet warns the people of their danger and tells them of their sins. False prophets lull the people into a false security. Sixty years ago no church believed in living prophets. They believed in dead prophets and thought the age of prophecy was passed, and that prophets were no longer needed. We had been educated for centuries to believe that there were no such things. There is a test by which prophets can be judged. The Lord has said "If a prophet prophecy in the name of the Lord and his prophecy come not to pass, be not afraid of that prophet; for I the Lord have not spoken by that prophet." The prophets of the Lord are willing to be judged by that test. A prophet must be judged by his principles and teachings, for the Lord has said "by their fruits [teachings] shall ye know them." Apostle Smith spoke for some time in defense of his father's mission, and many manifested surprise that so many of his prophecies had come to pass. Sunday morning session was in charge of High Priest H. P. Brown who delivered an instructive address upon The gospel, What is it? In a clear, concise and logical manner he demonstrated to the satisfaction of his audience that the gospel of Christ is indeed the power of God unto salvation. In the afternoon session under the management of Bro. G. W. Harlow, assisted by Elder Thomas Daley, the sacrament was administered and many strong testimonies from both old and young members were given under the power and influence of the Spirit of God. In the evening Elder A. H. Smith delivered the closing address upon "Eternal judgment," ably showing that there is a wide difference in the gospel of God's eternal justice, and the doctrines of men. Resolutions were passed appointing Apostle A. H. Smith our delegate to represent us in the General conference to be held in Lamoni, April 6th, 1886, and that it is our wish that he be reappointed president of the Pacific Coast mission. After passing resolutions to sustain the spiritual authorities by our prayers, faith and means, resolutions were passed thanking the papers of the city of Stockton for representing us so faithfully in their columns. The conference adjourned to meet in Oakland, Cal., October 6th, 1886. J. S. OMAN, Sec.

NODAWAY DISTRICT.

Conference convened at the Ross Grove School house, Holt county, Missouri, February 13th, 1886. Joseph Flory, president pro tem.; and R. K. Ross, jun., secretary pro tem. The minutes of last conference as published in the Herald were read, and corrected so as to read that the Ross Grove branch has 21 members instead of 22 as published. Elders J. Flory and R. K. Ross, jun., reported their labors; also Teachers R. K. Ross, sen., C. C. Nelson, and Deacon L. C. Smith, reported. Branch reports: Ross Grove 21, no changes; Platte branch 74; Eureka branch not reported. Bishop's agent reported on hand last report $45, received since $20, total $65; paid to Bishop $50, to the poor $15. The Bishop's agent's sub-agent for the Platte branch (C. C. Nelson) received $332.50, and as having sent that amount to the Bishop, and presented his accounts, verifying his report. The following preamble and resolution was presented: Whereas, the Nodaway district of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is in a very inconvenient shape for the holding of conferences, from the fact that the most of the Saints are located in either the one or the other extreme limits of the district, thus necessitating the holding of conferences at the extreme limits of the district; and, whereas, many of the Saints of the district are located so that it is more convenient for them to attend the places of the holding of conferences of the adjacent districts either as to distance or manner of conveyance; and, whereas, there are no Elders in the district so circumstanced that they can take the oversight of the district and devote any considerable portion of their time to traveling and preaching in the district as it is desirable a district president should do. Therefore, be it resolved, that in the opinion of this conference it would be better if this district were disorganized, and it is hereby declared to be disorganized; and further, it is hereby recommended that the Saints residing in the several portions of the territory of the organized district should make application to the district most convenient to them for annexation to such district, namely, that the Saints residing in Atchison county, and all of that portion of Nodaway county lying west of the Nodaway river, should thus apply to the Fremont, Iowa, district; and the Saints residing in the territory lying north of the Wabash railroad make application to the Decatur district; and that the Saints residing in the balance of the territory make application to the Far West district.

On motion, the above was laid on the table, to be made a part of the business of the next session of the district conference, with the request that the clerk incorporate the preamble and resolution in full in the minutes of this conference to be published in the Herald, so that all in the district would be fairly notified of its existence.

The delegate from the Platte branch presented the following: Resolved, that this, the Platte branch, request the district to adopt the Rules of Representation as adopted by the General Conference. Resolved, also, that we, the Platte branch, are opposed to any division of the district. On motion, the two resolutions from the Platte branch were laid on the table for consideration at the next district conference.

President James Thomas having now arrived, reported his labors since last conference. The following brethren were chosen as delegates to represent the district at the coming General Conference, namely, C. C. Nelson, James Thomas, Robert K. Koss, jun., and Arthur Hailey, with instruction to use their best judgment in advancing the interests of the church in harmony with the law of God. James Thomas was sustained as the president, Joseph Flory as secretary, and Robert K. Ross, jun., as Bishop's agent for the district. Preaching on Saturday evening and on Sunday morning and evening by Elder James Thomas. Sacrament and social meeting in the afternoon. Adjourned to meet at the Freedom School-house, in Nodaway county, Missouri, on Saturday, the 21st day of August, 1886, at ten o'clock a. m.

ST. LOUIS.

The above district conference convened at Cheltenham, Mo., March 27th, 1886, C. J. Peat, president, N. N. Cooke, vice president, J. G. Smith, clerk. Branch Reports.—St. Louis 186 members; 2 received by letter, 3 removed by letter 1 expelled, and 1 died. Cash on hand December 13th, 1885, $19 78; received since $26.35; expended $31.50; balance on hand March 21st, 1886, $14.63. Belleville 63 members; income since last report $7.30; paid out $6.65; balance on hand March 28th, 1886, 65 cents. Birkner 12 members; Boon Creek 15 members. Chester 13 members. The other branches in this district failed to report. The annual report of the St. Louis District to the General Conference was read and approved. The quarterly report of the Bishop's Agent was read, also his annual report, and an auditing committee was appointed who examined and found them correct. The following Elders reported: C. J. Peat, N. N. Cooke, J. G. Smith, Wm. Smith, John Beaird, W. Williams, Frank Izatt, W. O. Thomas, and J. Tousley. Priests John S. Parrish, J. G. Cole, D. Donovan, J. Buxton, and W. Jacques. Teacher F. Wiley. The recommendation of the Belleville Branch that Bro. Wm. Jaques be ordained an Elder was adopted by the conference; and on Sunday, March 28th, 1886, he was ordained an Elder by Elder Wm. Smith. Sunday, March 28th, 1886, morning session, preaching by Brn. D. Donovan, F. Izatt, and N. N. Cooke. Afternoon session, sacrament and testimony service. W. O. Thomas was elected delegate to General Conference. Officers present: 11 Elders, 5 Priests, and 3 Teachers. On motion all the authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Evening session, preaching by Brn. J. S. Parrish and C. J. Peat. Adjourned to meet in St. Louis, Mo., on Saturday afternoon, June 26th, 1886, for the transaction of business, and on the following Sunday for worship.

Miscellaneous.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Wyoming Valley District conference will be held at Hyde Park, Pa., June 26th and 27th, 1886. Brn. Wm. H. Kelley or E. L. Kelley, with others from the West of the travelling ministry, will be present. Come one and all; there is a hearty welcome.

The conference of the North Michigan District will be held at Brown City on the second Saturday and Sunday in June, 12th and 13th. We hope to have a large gathering of the Saints of this district. We expect Brn. E. L. Kelley, C. Scott and Bishop G. A. Blakeslee; and we will also look for Bro. Wm. H. Kelley, president of the mission and others. Presidents and clerks of branches please make out full reports of additions and changes made in your branches since last report.

J. J. CORNISH, Dist. Pres.

BORN.

SEATON.—To Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Seaton, Paris, Henry county, Tennessee, Monday, April 18th, 1886, a daughter; named Ader Bell.

MARRIED.

BRATTON—STREET.—At the residence of the bride's mother, in Denver, Colorado, May 20th, 1886, Mr. William J. Bratton and Sr. Ellen J. Street, both of Denver, Elder T. J. Pollard officiating.

DIED.

WILTSIE.—At Whittemore, Michigan, March 20th, 1886, Miss Ada M. Wiltsie, aged 8 years, 10 months and 23 days. Hymn 836 was sung at her request.

"Dear sister, thou art gone to rest,
We will not weep for thee,
For thou art now where oft on earth,
Thy spirit longed to be."

WILTSIE.—March 27th, 1886, Delbert J. Wiltsie, aged 2 years and 5 months.

"No pain, nor grief, nor anxious fear,
Invade thy silent bounds,

No mortal woes can reach the peaceful sleeper here,
While angels watch the soft repose."

WILTSIE.—April 21st, 1886, Ida Z., aged 15 years, 5 months, and 10 days.

"Unconscious now in mother earth,
This body lies at rest;
Remember mourners while ye weep,
Her spirit's with the blest."

All children of Bro. and Sr. Alfred H., and Elizabeth Wiltsie, and all dying of diphtheria. Funeral services by Elder E. Delong.

MOORE.—At his home, Lockford, San Joaquin county, California, April 4th, 1886, Elder Henry V. Moore, a native of Wales, aged 73 years, 7 months, and 22 days. The deceased joined the church and came to Utah in his early days, and from there went to Nortonville, California, where he settled, and was baptized by Elder Orrin Smith, January 15th, 1867. He died strong in the faith, with the hope of a glorious resurrection.

BAILEY.—At Lamoni, Iowa, May 25th, 1886, of whooping cough, Ava Earl, son of Bro. Earl D. and Katie Bailey, aged 4 years, 2 months and 27 days. Funeral services by Bro. W. W. Blair, assisted by Bro. Joseph Smith.

Our darling Ava's gone to rest,
He's leaning on the angel's breast;
No more with us he here could stay,
But he'll watch for us all till we're called away.
We do not weep, we do not sigh,
We could not wish that he was high,
And we only hope that when we die,
Our spirit, with his, will rest on high.

Lovingly inscribed by AUNT EVA.

HAND.—In the Sheridan Branch, Iowa, May 17th, 1886, of membranous croup, sister Mary E., daughter of brother Charles and sister Frances Hand, aged 11 years. Sister Mary was baptized on the 11th of May, 1884, by J. S. Roth, and since her baptism, though very young, has lived a most devoted and faithful Christian life, and all who knew her, knew her only to love her. The Holy Spirit was with her in her waking and in her sleeping hours, for He showed her many things, and in her sickness, (though it only lasted four days), she bore her intense suffering patiently, knew from the first that she would die, and expressed her willingness to go. She said she wanted to go where her little brother and sister were, (who died within the last two months). She told her mother not to weep for her, for she was going to that better world where she would suffer no more. She called her brothers and others, and bade them an affectionate good bye. Some hours before she died, she selected the 854th hymn in the Harp, to be sung at her funeral. Funeral services by Bro. G. Shimel, and the sermon by Elder J. S. Roth, from text Job 14: 14.

"Now, ye mourners, cease to languish
O'er the graves of those ye love;
Far removed from pain and anguish,
They are chanting hymns above."

TO THE SAINTS.

You are interested in furthering the repairs upon the "House of the Lord" in Kirtland, Ohio. Through the providence of God, after being neglected for many years, it has fallen to your direct care and keeping. There is no other building in the world like unto this one, having been built by divine commandment. Around it cluster sacred memories, and it stands a monument to the faith, energy, and zeal of a devoted and sacrificing people. They labored industriously to erect this as a sanctuary in which to worship the God of Jacob, and he accepted their offerings, and manifested his glory in approval of their work and piety. The house has been left desolate and become marred by the changes of time, neglect and pillage. It is valuable and of historic note, and thousands come to behold it, to find that it has been despoiled of much of its former splendor and beauty of finish. It is but partially restored. For the credit of the church the repairing should be continued upon it. Children should be willing to preserve the heritage built by their fathers. The "Temple" is owned by the Saints, not by one or two, but all. Each should share in the glory and praise-worthy effort of aiding in its restoration. It should be fitted for the use of the next Annual Conference; and it is essential that some of the repairs be made during the warm and dry weather of summer.

It is the intention of the committee to prosecute the work as early as practicable; but means, much more than is now on hand, will be required to make the necessary repairs for use and convenience at our next session of conference. It can not be properly heated by stoves, and it will be necessary to heat by the use of a furnace, or drums, after the original intention. It is not safe to build fires in the stoves that are in use now, and none have been built for some length of time—a year or more.

Will the Saints give this thought, and put forth a further effort to aid in this most essential and commendable work in which we are all mutually interested? Will not God bless the effort to restore his sanctuary, that it may be a pleasant and delightful place of worship, and an honor to His Saints? And will He not cause His face to shine with approval towards them at their next meeting, if faithful, to encourage and direct them in the work before them? We think so; and earnestly make this appeal believing it to be right, for further aid in order to go on with the work—confident that the sacrifice and effort will tell in the interest of the great cause.

Those willing to aid in this work can do so by remitting what they may be able to contribute to George A. Blakeslee, at Galien Berrien, County, Michigan; or to Wm. H. Kelley, at Kirtland, Lake County, Ohio. In sending by postal order, or postal note to Wm. H. Kelley, make them payable at Cleveland, Ohio, as Kirtland is not an order office; but direct all letters to Kirtland.

Yours in faith and interest.

WM. H. KELLEY, }
G. A. BLAKESLEE. } Committee.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS.

"ARE there any hopeful signs of reform in society and government?" This question, in substance, is propounded by a correspondent and a few suggestions in reply may be profitable.

There is one very hopeful fact. There is no great evil prevailing which has not a counter movement. For instance, intemperance is appalling, but there is a magnificent temperance movement to destroy it. Practical infidelity has alarmed the people, but a great revival epoch is, upon us counteracting the influence of infidelity. Sabbath desecration has become a great curse, but a great movement is inaugurated to oppose it. A horde of secret lodges are exerting their baneful influences but a powerful stand has been made against them. Political corruption is a stench in the nation, but independent political action is gaining in popularity and promises to correct abuses. Co-equal with the growth of the movement for secularizing public education is the increase of Christian schools and colleges where religious instruction is pure and pronounced.

Indeed this may be called a reform epoch. Evil was never attacked with more boldness and courage than now. The earth fairly trembles under the mighty tread of the armies of heaven as they go forth to meet the Goths and Vandals of the world. There is more territory under the law of prohibition of the liquor traffic than ever before; there are more churches, Sunday schools, and colleges; there is less of sectional strife; there are more hospitals and asylums to relieve suffering; there is more aggressive reform work and there are more newspapers to oppose evil and maintain the right. Dark and foreboding as are the signs of the time, there are still encouraging facts to keep the heart from fainting. The gospel was never so much studied as at the present and, it never exerted so marked an influence among men. This one fact alone furnishes boundless encouragement.—American.

A SELF-CONTROLLED WOMAN.

"SPEECH is silver; silence is golden." How true this is when our nerves are unstrung, and we are irritable and inclined to say sharp things to the children, to the servants, or to "John." If we can only keep silent then, and go out into the fresh air and sunshine, and get our degenerated blood toned up with a good supply of oxygen, and our refractory nerves in "hands" again—how thankful we shall be that we did not "boil over" and say the heated things we had in mind. Undoubtedly three-fourths of the quarrels and estrangements of this world happen through a temporary loss of self-control—and what a pity! Of course, it is sometimes necessary to correct a child, admonish a servant or even tell "John" what one thinks about something which has gone wrong; but it is never safe to do it when one feels irritated or unnerved. I should always be postponed till one feels sure that she is proof against the temptation to lose her self-control. Anger, uncontrolled, is like a cyclone, increasing and destructive; while the same quality under calm and perfect control gives force to character and composedly works out beneficent results like steam harnessed to a locomotive. When one is irritated by some unkind or unjust remark, it is natural to want to say something as bad or a little worse; if you yield to the impulse, you will suffer from remorse of conscience and the coldness of your friend—if you resist it and remain silent, you will have the peace of an approving conscience within, and ten to one, your friend will feel ashamed of himself and tell you he is sorry. In any kind of difference or difficulty, the self controlled one always come out 'top o' the heap,' and gets the better of the contest. And above all things a selfcontrolled woman is a joy and an administration.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, June 12, 1886.

THE Chicago Tribune of May 27th, 1886, has the following dispatch from Washington, D. C., in reference to the report of the House Committee on the Judiciary respecting Utah:

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24th.—The report of the House Committee on Judiciary accompanying the joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment on the subject of polygamy, is a long document which deals in detail with all the branches of the subject, and enters into an elaborate discussion as to the powers of Congress in the premises. It says:

"The amendment of the fundamental law of the United States should not be undertaken unless the evil for which a remedy is sought should be so great and paramount, and should so involve the essential principles on which the Union is based as to be incurable by ordinary legislation. For it may be laid down as an axiom of political science that it is impossible for human wisdom to forecast all the consequences of any change in the ordinary or fundamental law. The proposed amendments referred to the committee relate to a regulation of the subject of marriage and divorce, and to the extirpation of polygamy within the Union. It may fairly be asked why should the Union or the General Government take charge of and control the domestic relation of marriage or its suspension or dissolution by divorce? Why should not each State and Territory have exclusive power over this subject, and why should not polygamy be allowed in each locality if the locality wishes it? These are fair inquiries, and strike at the root of these propositions to amend the Constitution."

The report then quotes from numerous decisions of the Supreme Court to show the power Congress possesses in legislating for the government of the Territories and the District of Columbia, and continues:

"The right of a people inhabiting a Territory to mold its policy, to frame its laws, and to construct its Government has never been sanctioned by the Supreme Court, and is not based on sound reason. The Territorial Government has no original powers, but only derivative authority under the act of Congress organizing it. To hold otherwise would divest Congress of its constitutional authority to make rules and regulations for it, and to determine its bounds, and would give a few settlers the right to decide for the people of the United States, who are joint owners in the whole domain, the destiny of the new States to be associated in union with them. The regulation of the marriage relation in each State, the process by which it may be formed, the rights and duties arising from it, and the method of its dissolution, never having been delegated to the United States, are reserved to the States respectively; but as to the District of Columbia and the Territories, these powers are in express terms delegated to the United States.

"The duties of Congress incident to its powers are to fit the community in the Territory in its formative process to become a State and then to admit it into the Union. In the contemplation of these high duties your committee have carefully inquired into the condition of the Territory of Utah. In this community there has appeared a religion, and the practice under it of polygamy, which has long called for judicious action on the part of Congress. A clear understanding of this condition of things may be had from a historical view of this singular people and of their religion and practices."

The report then gives a history of the inception of the Mormon religion under Joseph Smith, and reviews its growth and the efforts made from time to time to suppress it. The report then continues:

"After this summary statement of the condition of the Mormon question, from which a diagnosis of the disease may be made, the important inquiry confronts us, What is the remedy? Your committee deeply deplore with all good citizens the existence of the evil, and deem it to be of the first importance that, while the remedy shall be radical, it shall be in entire consistency with the constitutional principle of our system of Government and shall commend itself to the judgment of the country and mankind as in harmony with the sacred rights of conscience and the cardinal doctrines of our free institutions, and be tempered by a spirit of clemency, moderation, and magnanimous charity. The evils of the Mormon system are deeper than can be cured by ordinary legislation. To punish the offender may be accomplished by law, but to extirpate the system, to eradicate it from this Union of free civilized Commonwealths will require a change in the Constitution. The American Union is a Government of the people of the States by the representatives of the States and of the people of the States. To govern permanently the outlying people of our Territories by a Congress in which they have no voice is contrary to the genius of our Constitution. The government of our colonies must be temporary and in aid of their maturity as States to become partners in the Government of our Union. This is the power vested in and this the duty devolved upon Congress. A government of them as provinces has in it the germ of imperialism and ultimate despotism. The strain on the Constitution is too great for the policy to be permanent. But what is the alternative?

"It is to admit a polygamous State into the Union, or one from which polygamy was excluded as a Territory but is restored by the new State—to band polygamy with monogamy, to unite in one indissoluble bond States whose type of civilized life is based on the polygamous family with those whose type is the dualized unit of humanity—the one man and the one woman, the twain making one flesh—to nurture offspring for the duties of life in the peace and harmony of Christian marriage. Such union between the Asiatic type and the European-American type of civilized life would be incompatible and fatal to our peace and progress. Polygamy must be exorcised by the compact of our Union. It must be excluded from our family of States. The sisterhood of commonwealths must not permit the intrusion of a polygamist member.

"Two difficulties at once present themselves. First—Would not such a provision in the Constitution be a departure from the genius of our Union, which leaves the control of domestic relations to each State and denies it to the Federal Government? Second—Can this be done without violating the sacred right of religious freedom? Who shall associate in union? Who shall be members of the political family? What character of commonwealth shall be admitted into partnership? are essential questions, and proper only for the decision of the parties to the Union. Who else should decide them but the parties themselves? Not Congress, nor any delegated authority, but the members with whom the association is proposed. This does not touch the authority of any State after it is in the Union, but it defines the character which is a prerequisite to admission into the Union at all. Should Congress admit a polygamous member of the Union? The answer should be in the Constitution itself, by which Congress is bound, and which it must obey. Nor is such a provision out of harmony with the existing Constitution.

"If now, as a foundation principle of our constitutional Union, each State has agreed to deny forever its own power to create any form of government for itself than one which is republican, can there be any departure from the principles of the constitution in declaring, further, that their government shall not only be republican in form, but that their civilization shall not be based on the polygamous family? The amendment will only validate by express contract what has always been law by the tacit consent of each State and all the States. Thus the Union by clear compact will be constituted of States, in political form republican, in social polity monogamous."

In respect to the second question the committee express their views fully but concisely, because they are important in their bearing on the proposed amendment. Reports of proceedings in the Constitutional Convention and in the Assembly which drew the Bill of Rights in Virginia are cited at some length. The report continues:

"The question whether the punishment of polygamy prohibits the full exercise of religion, or whether an amendment to the Constitution forbidding it would do so, has been mooted, and any doubt respecting it should be dispelled. It is a question whether the Mormon creed commands or permits polygamy. The best opinion expressed before the committee by Mormons was that it was not commanded, but was allowed by God. If God permits, but does not enjoin, polygamy upon all the men in the Mormon Church, there can be no invasion of conscience in restraining a man from doing what his relation does not require or in requiring him to do what his God does not forbid.

"Unless, then, the Mormon Church commands this man to disobey the civil law by plural marriage when God does not command it, there can be no constraint on his conscience. But if he does this the church is a foe of civilized society by making its members violators of human law and dangerous citizens of the State. It makes divine permission justify the willful violation of law by men in doing what it forbids and in failing to do what it commands. This position is fatal to the claim on this ground."

"But suppose polygamy is commanded by the religion. Then if, because it is commanded, it must be obeyed or respected by all and by the civil Government itself, the result would be that no law against polygamy would be valid, because contrary to Mormon revelation of the Divine will. This claim, if allowed, would establish the Mormon Church as a theocracy over men and governments. If the fact that the Mormon belief in polygamy is commanded by God could prevent the Government from punishing the Mormons for it, while it punished anti-Mormons, it would be preferring that religion to all others, and by shielding its adherents from the penalty inflicted without mercy on all who would not profess its creed. But, if to prevent this preference the law was annulled entirely as to all, it would create the supremacy of this one system of religion over the civil authority of the Government; polygamy could not be made a crime by the Government because forbidden by the Mormon religion. What better example of an established religion could be given than this would be? A union of Church and State in which the church would be supreme and the State subordinate. It has been the settled opinion of the best defenders of religious conscience that when religious faith commits crime its alleged sincerity can not shield it from the penalty of the civil law. As long as it is a question of faith between the man and his God the civil law can not interfere; but when faith breaks out into acts against the law of society it can not give immunity to the criminal. If this were not so guilt would be quick to put on the cloak of religion to screen itself from justice.

"Your committee feel satisfied that nothing proposed by them to the House will in the slightest degree trench upon the sacred canons of religious liberty."

After a long discussion of the form that an amendment proposed as a remedy for the disease of polygamy should assume, the committee say of the measure to be reported to the House:

"It seems to the committee that these provisions secure to the Union, the courts, and the Congress of the Union complete authority to extirpate the system of polygamy and its kindred offense of polygamous association of 'cohabitation between the sexes.' The crimes are fixed by constitutional definition, the punishment is prescribed by Congress, and the judicial power of the United States will enforce the Constitution against all offenders."

We call the attention of the Saints to this report, for the reason that the principles presented in it are worth thought and consideration. There were two contingencies upon which the leading men of the Utah Church rested their hope for the legal continuance of polygamy. One was that the right of the people of a territory to regulate their own affairs would be either recognized as a thing of course, or Congress be forced to recognize it by dint of political necessity. The other was that Utah might be admitted into the family of States, the provisional constitution silent in regard to polygamy, and then when fully within the union as a State, polygamy might be legalized by statutory enactment. The first of these two contingencies has failed. There is no disposition upon the part of the larger majority of the joint owners of the public domain included in the territories to accept the "squatter sovereignty" theory in regard to polygamy in Utah, either as a "matter of course," or as being compelled to do so. The trial is now upon the second proposition. What will be its fate?

We have from the first believed, and have so written, that the practice of polygamy could not be permitted to exist as a religious tenet or otherwise, on territory belonging to the union of States, for the reason that it was contrary to the organic institutions of the country and opposed to the genius of American civilization. For this reason, also, we have believed that polygamy was not commanded of God, nor authoritatively permitted by him; because having begun a scheme of political government for the enfranchisement of men from the thralldom of political tyranny and despotism, he would not endanger that government by suffering, or commanding what was opposed to it or the genius of its institutions. Hence we have had no fears concerning the final fate of the first hope of the Utah Mormons, that of territorial right.

Of the second hope we have had no fear, except that which had for its base the shortsightedness or venality of political parties; the one overreaching by tricks and partizan desire for conquest the weakness of the other. This danger is now pretty well passed. The hurt which the principle and practice of polygamy (plural marriage) would do American institutions, if such practice becomes a recognized and fixed part of governmental polity, is now too well understood among all classes of political parties to be put aside as of no weight, or to leave such a contingency to probable chances. For any political party to secure the admission of Utah to statehood while there is a probability that polygamy would be legalized by legislative enactment when statehood was secured, would be most disreputable suicide, and no political party now existing cares to do that.

The Commission rightly conclude that for the Government to persist in refusing to permit Utah to become a State and continuing it as a Territory, governing it as a province, it must in time partake of imperialism and despotism, which is not consistent with the national idea. To avoid this and yet to so act as to put the matter to rest, the Commission deem it advisable that it be made a subject of an amendment to the Constitution, the intent being to place a perpetual bar against the introduction of polygamy, or plural marriage, into any and all of the territories belonging to the United States; whether as states or territories, the lands devoted by nature and designed of God for the development of the American idea shall be forever free from the fact, or the apprehension of a practice so foreign to that idea.

What must be the thoughts of those in Utah who have been so frequently and seriously told that the present prosecution of polygamy was but a slight thing and would end in making the laws obnoxious to even the law makers and the general people of the United States, when now it is being made thoroughly apparent that the fixed intention of the people of the United States as expressed by Judge Hays, of Idaho, is that the practice of polygamy must be stopped, or those who propose to practice it must leave the United States. If such determination is persisted in, what excuse for further disregard of the will of the Republic can the Utah Saints urge. And if Congress should now conclude that legislation by it in the way of suppression by punishment of offenders who practice polygamy is inadequate, and order a vote of the States upon an amendment to the Constitution forever prohibiting it in the Union of States, what will be, what must be the condition of those who will be adversely affected thereby.

As for us, we are upon the record having long since elected the course we should pursue, and as prosecution of polygamists under Congressional supervision of the Territories has not hurt nor delayed the preaching of the gospel by the Reorganized Church, neither would the adoption of such an amendment to the Constitution prevent the spread of the truth of Christ under the ministrations of those who do not fear to denounce as evil what God has plainly called an "abomination in his sight."

We do not rejoice in the sorrow and affliction of those who are now suffering the penalty of the broken laws of the country, but from our knowledge of the work of the last days we can but commend the measure that will settle politically in the Government of the United States what we believe has been settled in the expression of God's will respecting his church and people, "there shall no man among you have save it be one wife."

The matter as it now stands is about like this; if by any chance polygamy shall be legalized in Utah as a territory, or a state of the United States, it virtually places the laws of the entire union of states in subordination to the Utah idea, or makes the belief and practices of 150,000 to dominate the will and laws of 55,000,000 of people, or permits one of a band of three hundred and sixty-six common stockholders to disregard and set at defiance the interest of three hundred and sixty-five.

We admit that if it be pleasing to God so to do, he can so determine human affairs as to overturn all that the United States may do in the direction referred to, but it is our settled conviction that he will not so interfere, and for the reason so frequently stated, that having designed America as the land on which a church should be established, in which monogamy was to be the rule in the domestic relation, he will now stand by the Government instituted by him under which that church was to flourish in its effort to keep the land free to the purpose named; and thus prevent that church from being overcome and destroyed by a departure from God's expressed intention. We believe that in this case as in one hypothetically stated once by a leading general: "Providence will be upon the side of the heaviest battalions."

ELDER BROWN REVIEWED.

IN the answer to the third question asked by me, Elder W. P. Brown evades the inquiry respecting the prophetic evidences of Elder D. Whitmer's calling, by referring to what I at the time of reading supposed to be a blessing, the truth of which I did not affirm nor deny; and to which I had not then, nor have I now the least objection in its place and proper meaning; but it is straining it to make it do duty as given here by Elder Brown. Elder Brown presumed when he states that I have knowledge of "many evidences" of Elder D. Whitmer's calling. I know of none that warrant the claim made for him by Elder Brown and others. The answers to questions 4 to 7 inclusive are evasive. For Elder W. P. Brown knew that the church to which reference was had in the queries, was the specific organization at the present composed of David Whitmer, Sen., John C. Whitmer, Philander Page, W. P. Brown, J. J. Snyder and others at Richmond, Mo., and which Elder J. C. Whitmer told W. W. Blair and myself had been incorporated in Missouri under its laws. That he did not mentally refer to Christ's Church, organized at Jerusalem in the year "one" is clear from his answer, "on the Earth." He could have said "at Jerusalem" or "Far West" as easy as "on the Earth."

If the answer to question 7 is to be taken as sincere and correct, then the statement that the church to which Elder Brown belongs has no High Priests in it, marks that specific church as not being closely related to the Church of the Lamb, Church of Christ, Church of God; the one organized after the order of the Son of God of which Alma was the High Priest, of Book of Mormon times; for that church had High Priests of the high priesthood after the order of Melchisedec in it, "being after the order of the Son of God."—Alma 9:6; also 10:1, 2. Elder Brown stated once publicly that he had been a Latter Day Saint for eighteen years, and once that it was twenty years. His answer to question 11 states that he was with the Bickertonites, (who did not claim to be Latter Day Saints, and who disbelieved the Book of Covenants), but three years, then with the Reorganization three years, and now less than two years with the Church of Christ. Where was he during the other ten or twelve years of the twenty or the eighteen years of experience with the Latter Day Saints?

The spirit of discernment by which Elder Brown determined whether questions were for contention or information failed to discern why I asked the question, Whether the church to which he belonged believed the Bible and Book of Mormon. I certainly think some will see why? Elder Brown states in answer to question 15 that David Whitmer is an Elder, "which office belongs to the priesthood of the Son of God." This "priesthood of the Son of God is the High Priesthood, or Melchisedec priesthood, as shown by Paul's letter to the Hebrews in which this priesthood is discussed. See Heb. 7th and 8th chapters; Alma 9:5, 6; and 10:1 and 2. In answer to question 20 Elder Brown states that "all members of the body of Christ are of this order of priesthood, 'to offer up spiritual sacrifices.'"

If this is true, of what efficacy is an ordination from an apostle, or elder? Alma says that "the Lord God ordained priests after his holy order, which was after the order of his Son, to teach these things unto the people; and those priests were ordained after the order of his Son." * * * "And thus being called by this holy calling, and ordained unto the high priesthood of the Holy Order of God, to teach his commandments unto the children of men, that they also might enter into his rest, this high priesthood being after the order of His Son, which order was from the foundation of the world; or in other words, being without beginning of days or end of years, being prepared from eternity to all eternity, according to his foreknowledge of all things."—Alma 9:6.

This order does not appertain to the members of the body unless called and ordained unto this priesthood. Thus Elder Brown contradicts Alma.

If Jesus Christ were the only High Priest in the Church as claimed in answer 17, how does it happen that Melchizedek, and "many, exceeding great many," (Alma 10:1) were called and ordained to be High Priests in the Church as represented both in the Book of Mormon and Bible? For it is evident that the Bible recognizes many priests of the order of Melchizedek. See Ex. 24:4-8, with Ps. 99:6; Gen. 4:3-5; 8:20, 21; 22:13; 31:54; 46:1; Job 1:5; 42:8; Ex. 18:12, 19, 24; 1 Sam. 7:9; 2 Sam. 6:18; 1 Kings 18:30-38; Judges 6:24, 26; 13:19; 1 Chron. 21:26-28; Rev. 5:10. And it should be noticed that those "priests" mentioned in this last quotation are redeemed by Christ's blood "out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation," and hence are not alone of the house of Aaron.

The answer in 22 makes every person their own judge as to what is and what is not revelation from God. Hiram Page tried this, (Doc. & Cov. 27:4), so did Sidney Rigdon at Kirtland when he claimed that the Holy Ghost told him the Saints must build him a house, (Joseph Smith the Prophet, page 205-6). Joseph, the appointed Seer, exposed and reprov'd both. The bigoted Jews adopted this policy; (John 5:46, 47); so did Korah and his company; (Num. 16:1-10); and so have the various factionists of the church in ancient times and also in these latter days, while those chosen and approved of God have been governed in these matters by the faithful regular decisions of a competent, spiritual ministry. (Acts 15:6-22; Doctrine & Covenants 41:1; with 42:1; Millennial Star 15:299). If matters of such vital importance were left to each person's faulty judgment as to what are the teachings of the Holy Ghost and the correct interpretation of the word, it would result in confusion confused, with contentions and divisions without number or end. All the Sectarian world, including the various factions of those claiming to believe in the Book of Mormon, ask us to believe that they are guided and governed by the Holy Ghost. This we respectfully decline to do, for "God is not the author of confusion" and dis order.

Elder Brown's answer to 33 exhibits his ignorance of the history of the Reorganized Church; for we who know that history undertake to say that, as for the elements brought into it out of every faction of the Church, and out of every sect of Christendom, as well as from the world of scepticism, it is not a proof of apostacy or spiritual deadness when some degree of division and heresy is found in it. St. Paul said of the Church in his time: "For there must be also heresies among you, that they which are approved may be made manifest."—1 Cor. 11:19. When the Church repels heretics and cleans itself of false teachers and dead branches, it is a sure indication of inherent life and of innate power to throw off its dross and impurities. When persons continue in the Church and yet repudiate the very revelations which gave it being, upon which it is based, and by which it is builded, it is not surprising at all that there should be exhibitions of unrest and disquiet. But when Elder Brown states or intimates that there are many in the Reorganization who are disaffected with it, he misleads and deceives those who follow him. The church has never gained in all ways so rapidly and extensively as for the past conference year, neither have its membership and ministry been so united and harmonious as during that time. On the other hand, we perceive a large lack of unity between himself and his fellows—J. C. Whitmer and J. J. Snyder—in both sentiment and doctrine.

If Elder Brown is "thankful for investigation," why does he publicly refuse to be questioned? He utterly refused to answer the plain, simple question put by Elder Gillen at his first service in Lamoni, "What must we do to be saved?"

JOHN RUSKIN pays the following tribute to the Bible:

"From Mr. Ruskin's latest article: Let me tell your readers who care to know, in the fewest possible words, what it is. It is the grandest group of writings existent in the rational world, put into the grandest language of the rational world in the first strength of the Christian faith, by an entirely wise and kind saint, St. Jerome; translated afterwards with beauty and felicity into every language of the Christian world; and the guide, since so translated, of all the arts and acts of that world which have been noble, fortunate, and happy."

THE Salt Lake, Utah, Herald, of May 17th, contains an editorial, the sum and substance of which may be seen from the last two paragraphs which we give below:

"If the law had said of what the offense of unlawful cohabitation must consist, we believe there would have been a very general compliance with the statute; if Congress were now to define the meaning of unlawful cohabitation, we believe there would follow a very general conformity to the law. But there can be no compliance, no conformity, when to comply or conform is impossible; there can be no compliance, when what is not unlawful cohabitation to-day, will be the offense to-morrow and send the man to the Penitentiary; there can be no conformity, when the District Attorney finds that the rule which will serve to convict in the case on trial to-day, will acquit in the case to-morrow, and he asks and obtains a different interpretation."

"When the statute has been deprived of its vagueness and people can understand what is necessary for them to do to comply with the law, there will be some reason in propositions looking to a settlement of the annoying troubles which prevail in Utah; but until people are shown how they can comply with the law without being cowardly, brutal and inhuman, all talk of an adjustment will be idle."

The pith of the foregoing, as we read it, is this—if Congress had proceeded to downright verbiage in describing the numberless acts and words which a plurally married might say and do, or might not do and say and be safe, or be subject to prosecution, then there would have been a conformity to the law. "The fault is with the statute," says the Herald.

"No rogue e'er felt the halter draw,
With a just conception of the law."

The Herald should know quite well that the constitutional right to define the enactments of Congress and interpret the provisions of the laws is with the Supreme Court. It would be largely a work of supererogation for Congress to attempt the role of the supreme court. Had Congress defined "unlawful cohabitation" as this learned pundit of the Herald seems to think it should have done, then the same man would have indulged in an editorial laugh at the absurd position of Congress in the seat of the Supreme Court.

We propose to tell the Herald that if the common sense of the average American citizen ruled in the camp of the Saints where the Herald is printed, the act of Congress known as the Edmunds Bill would be understood to mean that every married man should be the husband of but one living woman at the same time, "at home, or abroad, on the land or the sea;" and that one woman to be the one he first married and her only, and none other until she was dead, or divorced for scriptural cause; and that no man should in any sense whatever comport himself as a husband toward any woman other than the one legal (according to the law of the land) wife to whom he had been properly married as provided in the law. Under the closing sentence, "but until people are shown how they can comply with the law without being cowardly, brutal and inhuman, all talk of an adjustment will be idle;" there lies lurking the intention to disregard the law as it now is construed by the courts, Judges Zane, Powers, Boreman, of Utah, and Hays of Idaho, on the bench, or as it may be defined by Congress; unless such definition and construction shall be so modified as to permit the continuance of plural marriage and Utah usages under them; for what is "cowardly, brutal and inhuman" will be defined by the Herald to mean a disrupting of plural families and an abandonment of the relations existing between polygamous husbands and wives. It is simply a plea to be permitted to dictate to the Courts and to Congress the terms of adjustment in the interest of polygamy and its adherents.

UNTIL such time as the High Priests' Quorum shall be sufficiently full to provide for all the contingencies of presidency occurring in districts and missions, the church will appoint such men and officers as are best adapted to the work demanded; and will expect the local ministry and membership to acquiesce in such appointments and cordially sustain the men appointed.

The rule of law upon which such appointments are made is found in section 104, paragraph 43, and reads: "And these seventy are to be traveling ministers unto the Gentiles, first, and also unto the Jews, whereas other officers of the church, who belong not unto the twelve neither to the seventy, are not under the responsibility to travel among all nations, but are to travel as their circumstances shall allow, notwithstanding they may hold as high and responsible offices in the church."

Those appointed in charge of missions are traveling ministers, and are not appointed in the sense of local presidents. They represent the dignity and authority of the church, and in that should be honored, and not simply for the office in the priesthood that they hold. A Deacon is entitled to the courtesy and support of the entire church, the highest officers more especially, when he, the Deacon, is entrusted with a work by the church; not because he is a Deacon but because he is the embodiment of the dignity and power of the church for the purpose of the work designated to be done. So with every other officer called and appointed.

In all assemblies of the church where there is no organization, the highest in authority present should be chosen to preside. If there are more than one of the same grade of authority, other things being equal, the oldest man should be selected. Organization when perfected permits the selection of the one thought to be best qualified, or that should be designated in any way recognized by the church as proper, and the one thus selected should be honored and respected as the representative of the church.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

LAMONI is in a stage of improvement at the present. The Trustees and Mayor are improving the streets to quite a good extent and are doing it well. On the west side there are five houses in process of erection. Brethren E. J. Robinson and J. W. Gillen are each putting up a fair residence, the first named on the main road west from town on a very pleasant and commanding site; Bro. Charles Butler is building a very neat little, one story cottage near to the meeting-house, and opposite Bro. Stebbins, Cochran and Church. Mr. Lewis Mitchell is building a small one story cottage on the road west, and Sr. Monroe, formerly from California is building quite near to the church. Altogether, that part of town is putting on quite a town-like appearance. Brethren Jesse Lewis and Austin Olson are fitting up a business house south and near to the post office, and thinking of going into the furniture business. Bro. B. L. Merritt is also building on the east side. Brother Farmer and wife, late from Australia, have bought a three acre tract, and will build also on the west side. There is a fair spirit of progress among the business men and other citizens; a disposition being shown to make the place look tidy and progressive. May it continue.

Bro. S. Reed of Lone Elm, Henderson Co., Tenn., is anxious to correspond with Elder George Montague, for he thinks there will be a fair opening for preaching the word in his locality. Bro. Montague will please note these facts.

Sr. Henrietta A. Dunn, of Box Elder, Utah, when subscribing of late for the HERALD takes occasion to say: "I must say that I am pleased with the Herald, and always feel greatly benefitted after reading it. May it continue to do good, is my prayer."

By papers sent us, we see Elder I. N. White is to hold a four days' discussion with a Elder H. P. Price of the "Christian Church," near Le Beck, Mo., beginning next August 2d. Elder Price affirms that the church he represents possesses all the doctrine which should entitle it to be regarded as the Church of Jesus Christ; and Elder White affirms that "the Scriptures teach that all baptized believers shall receive the miraculous gift of the Holy Spirit." It is said a deep interest is felt in this discussion, and that it is likely there will be a very large attendance.

Bro. R. J. Anthony reached Salt Lake City, May 27th, all safe. Bro. Peter Anderson met him at the depot, and they went to Bro. Joseph W. Wilson's, where Bro. Anthony usually stays when in the city. Bro. Anthony baptized one at Carbon City, on the way out.

As we write to-day mechanics are engaged at work on four neat, commodious residences, also on one small one, in West Lamoni. Improvements are being made likewise in the eastern and central part of town. Hard as are the times, yet Lamoni and its surroundings are developing solidly and steadily.

Bro. Hiram Robinson baptized two at Harrisonville, Missouri.

Brn. John Farmer and John Morris and their wives, reached this place from Sydney, New South Wales, from whence they started April 22d. Bro. Farmer has bought land for a home adjoining town, and will begin its improvement in a neat substantial way at once. It Bro. Morris can find business at his trade as a tailor, he, too, will locate here.

Bro. Arthur Leverton, of Bothwell, Ontario, goes for a Rev. T. W. McCann (of the Disciple Church) in the Bothwell Times of May 6th. It appears that Rev. McCann desired that an Elder should speak at or near Longwood, on March 16th, 17th, which Bro. Leverton essayed to do, but was prevented from going. Rev. McCann mistook the cause of Bro. Leverton's absence, and indulged in a little boasting. In reply to this, Bro. Leverton challenged him to a discussion, but failed to get a private arrangement, and so challenged him in the Times of the 6th, concluding in the following: "So Mr. McCann can tune up his jewsharp, or his mouth organ and we will be there to face his music, providing he plays his tune west of London and east of Windor, and we are informed of the time and place when and where his tune will be played."

Bro. P. W. Premo, in a letter dated at Grand Rapids, Neb., May 24th, assures us that the Spirit attends their ministrations in preaching the word in that region, and that the Saints are trying to set a worthy example before all, also that he continues to have evidence of God's work.

Letters from a number for which we have not space; among them are, Bro. Joseph Chester, Detroit, Minn.; Bro. John S. Lawton, Chelsea, Mass.; George Masters, Delray, Ohio; B. A. Atwell, Cabool, Missouri.

Bro. Joseph F. Burton, writing from Queen's Ferry, Victoria, Australia, April 18th, says: "I have baptized nineteen since I wrote for the HERALD last, four of them to-day. The work is in good condition here now. Many are seeking."

Brn. James and Monroe Scott, of New Providence, Indiana, have been laboring with fair success in Washington county. Some have been disfellowshipped, having denied the work; but the Lord is standing by the church. The work is in fairer prospects there; or as Bro. James writes, "is looking up."

Elder H. C. Bronson's address is 1222 North 13th street, St. Joseph, Mo.

Elder John C. Whitmer and J. J. Snyder, visited the office on June 1st.

We gave Bro. James Peters' residence as Lake City, Michigan, when it should have been East Lake, Michigan. It was our mistake confounding the two names.

Bro. T. J. Martin writes from Detroit, Minn., May 27th, "God is blessing us. I baptized a noble young man three weeks ago, and some more will be baptized next Sunday. We are much encouraged, and are trying to live so as to enjoy the Spirit of God."

Bro. Geo. A. Forbes, of St. Louis, Mo., says, May 27th, "God bless all connected with the Herald. It is one of our best Elders."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is it as great a sin not to labor six days each week as it is to break the Sabbath?

Ans.—Idleness is sin; but it may not be reckoned equally so great as Sabbath breaking.

Q.—Is the Bishop's agent "a common judge in Israel," as set forth in sec. 104, pars. 32 and 33, Doctrine and Covenants?

A.—No. The Bishop is that "common judge."

Q.—If an Elder should move away to a strange place and there be induced to be baptized by a sectarian elder, can he afterward come back without rebaptism?

A.—Yes; if in the matter and manner of his going away from the branch there was no wilful denying of the faith, or a wicked abandonment of the truth. His baptism by the sectarian "confers nothing and takes nothing away."

Q.—(1) Do branch officials evince haste and uncharitableness in moving cautiously in dealing with a wrong with a view to its adjudication on evidence of its existence? (2) If so, how long must they wait after the evidence of wrong appears before moving against it?

A.—(1) No. (2) This must be determined by the nature of the wrong, whether it is abstract, positive, or constructive, personal or against the body.

COMPETENT parties inform us that Elder W. P. Brown, at the M. E. Church Friday evening, the 28th of May, assured his hearers that the Reorganized Church was shaking and would soon fall to pieces; and as one of his conclusive evidences he read a dream had by Bro. I. N. White when about to enter upon a discussion with a Rev. A. F. Russel at Adell, Dallas County, Iowa, but which did not come off, as we understand it. The dream reads as follows:

"I dreamed a few nights ago that I was on a large ship. It was slightly moving to and fro, on a troubled sea. All on a sudden it hove to land; I, with others, was sitting in small boats in the stern. The captain in the cabin came to the front, and cried, "All on shore." With a little reluctance we obeyed, as we thought the time early to quit the ship, when we had so much to do. With some difficulty we ascended the perpendicular stone wharf. When on shore I perceived I was on the very grounds where shipwrights had been laboring, as there were timbers of nearly every description scattered around. Above me, I heard people singing with a loud voice, a hymn commencing: 'The harvest is over,' etc. After every verse was a chorus commencing: 'The reaping time is past,' etc. I felt some peculiar power that caused me to readily join in the music, and the singing awoke me. I feel anxious and would like the interpretation.

I am yours in bonds,

I. N. WHITE."

Granting that this dream was inspired of God, it can not be tortured into meaning the downfall of the Reorganized Church. The language used—"The harvest is over," "The reaping time is past"—can only be construed as meaning that the end of a reaping and harvest-time, acceptable to God, had then terminated—when ever and wherever that may occur. The language endorses the "reaping," and "the harvest" done, instead of repudiating them.

But, as the Elder seems willing to be guided and governed by Bro. White's instructions through dreams, here is one we commend to his careful notice and hope he may profit thereby, and learn of the work being done and yet to be done under the presidency of the Reorganized Church, and also learn the fate of all the others claiming to be leaders of the Church of God. Here is the dream:

"On September 1st, 1880, I was at home in Edenville; was getting things fixed for my family, financially. I felt tried in spirit, thinking what an uphill business it was for an Elder to leave his family and go into the cold hearted world to present the word to them, and at the same time often receiving from them nothing but jeers—and a turning away in contempt from our faithful testimony. O, how trying. My wife prepared supper; but my heart was too full of grief to partake. I went to God in prayer, and smothered my grief in tears; retired and dreamed the following:—I saw you, brother Joseph, and many others standing; at their back was a large tract of land, a plain. Before them a dark mountain, the side toward us was perpendicular, On the top and very brink stood people. I could see leaders among them who kept up the cry, 'I am the leader and I have the authority.' One by one of these men would pitch forward and fall at your feet in an expiring condition. Some would leap headlong after falling and die; others would sink gradually into the ground, while all kept up the cry, 'I am the man, I have on the martyr's clothes.' (They were dressed in dark clothes). I looked at you, you turned half way around and looked upon them sorrowfully,—smiled and said nothing. I looked! and a window opened into this dark mountain; a room was there as high as the mountain and deep and wide. I saw one of our Elders enter, sent on a mission for six months. He warned the people of the judgments to come. I could see people all astir in every part of the immense building. Ere the Elder reached the further end I heard the cry from every quarter, 'We are the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and are seventy-five thousand strong.' Before the Elder returned, the building, which now seemed to be nothing but a shell, commenced to vanish and entirely disappeared; and the inhabitants learned for the first time that they were homeless. The great dark mountain commenced to give way and turned into a cloud of light. The clouds in heaven seemed lit up with a halo that I never before witnessed. What was surprising, all of this change took place without any noise perceptibly. All of this time we had been facing this dark scene, but now we turned to walk out on this plain that had been to our back, and I felt a breeze like a rushing wind and it passed over the true Latter Day Saints, and the Elders felt renewed in Spirit, and started on their missions with light heart; and I heard it said: 'Now is the day when thousands will come into the Church.' I saw large congregations standing and looking at the Latter Day Saints and wondering what had happened. We seemed to be walking in a different element. With joy did I resume my mission of charity to the world. I awoke and arose from bed and praised God in Spirit. May God assist you, Bro. Joseph, to fill your great mission in connection with others of the 'called,' is my prayer.—Herald for Dec. 15th, 1881.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"But life shall on and upward go;
Th' eternal step of progress beats
To that great anthem, calm and slow,
Which God repeats."

WHAT TO BELIEVE.

"Is there anything in these days of change and doubt that one can believe?" (A Letter).

He has no joy who has no trust!
The greatest faith brings greatest pleasure.
And I believe because I must;
And would believe in perfect measure.
Therefore I send
To you, my friend,
This key to open mines of treasure—
Whatever else your hands restrain,
Let faith be free, and trust remain.

Believe in summer's sun and shade,
Although to-day the snow be falling;
Expect glad voices in the glade,
Though now the winds alone are calling,
Have eyes to see
How fair things be;
Let hope, not fear, prove most enthralling,
And skies that shine will oftenest be Stretched lovingly o'er thine and thee.

Have loyal faith in all thy kin,
Believe the best of one another;
One Father's heart takes all men in,
Be not suspicious of thy brother.
If one deceive
Why disbelieve
The rest, and so all kindness smother?
Who the most looks for love will find
Most certainly that hearts are kind.

Regard the age with hopeful thought,
Not it, but thou thyself art debtor;
Behold what wonders have been wrought,
Believe the world is getting better.
Oh, be thou brave
To help, and save,
And free men's hands from every fetter,
Yet know that cheery hopefulness
Is the great factor in success.

Above all things in God believe,
And in His love that lasts forever;
No changeable friend thy heart to grieve,
Is He who will forsake thee never.
In shine or shower,
His blessings dower
The souls that trust with strong endeavor,
Believe, believe, for faith is best,
Believe, and find unbroken rest.

MARIANNE FARNINGHAM.

TO EACH mother and sister who reads the column, we want to make a direct and earnest appeal in behalf of the Hope. Could we be assured that you, sisters, would each one put forth an effort (faithful, prayerful and working thereto) we would not entertain a single doubt in the matter. We have faith to believe that you will. Faith to believe that each one who reads this will feel that in this field they can labor. Is it too much to ask of you that you strive to lay aside fifty cents, or even one dollar to forward this greatly neglected work of the church? The Hope is too small and its circulation far too limited.

Would God that some active member in each branch of the church would organize a "Hope band" and by concert of action devise ways and means to forward the work. If we only gather the lambs into the fold and guard them while there, feeding them with the sincere milk of the word, discharging our whole duty to them, God will take care of the rest. They will never forget the taste of the bread they ate in their Father's house and will hunger for it in years to come. Who will aid this good work? Shall we not hear from some of our California friends? What has become of sister Emma R.—?

WE are in receipt of letters and clippings from sister Sarah Rose, also article from Lucy Lloyd. LAMONI, IOWA, June 5th, 1886.

PARENTS AND CHILDREN.

THERE is a tendency on the part of some mothers to do so much for their children that virtually a premium is placed upon selfishness. The child whose every wish is anticipated, and for whom nothing is too good, is apt to grow up an exceedingly unpleasant person, unless, indeed, there be an extraordinary amount of natural good in him to counterbalance the undue indulgence. Shielding children from every chilling breath of life's air begets a love of ease and selfish enjoyment which becomes fixed when childhood is past. A mother, for example, had denied herself every comfort. She had risen early, and had taken rest late in order that her daughters might have a "perfectly happy girlhood." No duty was exacted of them. If they were minded to help they might do so, if not, there was no one to ease the weary mother of her burden. Small wonder is it that after these girls grew up their sole thought was for self. The mother was ignored by them; disrespectfully spoken of as "old-fashioned," and "without taste." Indeed, she was only regarded as one who could bake, brew, and was even "ordered"—no other word can be used—to wait upon them while they lolled in their easy chairs. Never having been taught to spend and be spent in doing good, these young women were not the helpers of those in need, and never carried sunshine into darkened homes. Even their best friends tired of them, and their lives were unlovely and discontented. There can be no unhappiness in life unless the straight line of duty, which leads to "beauty's curve," be conscientiously followed. Let every mother inculcate in her children's minds that it is more blessed to give than to receive. The opposite to this unpleasant picture is seen in a family of seven daughters, reared in wealth and luxury. There was no absolute need of their doing any household work, as there were "men servants and maid servants" enough to perform every duty. Although her first desire was to make her children happy, the mother of these girls knew there could be no happiness without work; so each child had her special duty and was held to strict account for its performance. The mother was the central sun around which all revolved; her slightest wish was as the command of an empress, so perfectly was it obeyed. The one thought was "to help to please mother." And the family was devoted to good works. In latter years, when the elder daughters are grown up, the whirligig of time brought severe reverses—so severe that the beautiful home, replete with all that culture and wealth could command, had to be given up and a new home found among strangers. Was a word of repining heard? No, although the new home was small, commonplace, and without a trace of those comforts to which the family had been accustomed. But the girls immediately set to work to alter the dead level of disagreeableness, and make "the desert blossom as the rose." The united endeavor of their trained and willing hands, under the supervision of the mother, soon made a bower of beauty of the habitation. It became a place of refreshment to all who had the privilege of visiting it. These girls bring sunshine into every place; and the desire to help every one with whom they come in contact is as natural to them as it is for them to breathe.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA, April 27th.

Dear Sisters:—I feel like writing a few lines to thank you all for the good your letters have done me. I am one of the lone ones. There are no Saints here and I feel lonely many times, and long to talk with some one of my own faith. The Herald is a great comfort to me, for it meets my wants many times, and gives me courage to persevere, though I have many battles to fight with self. One of my trials is impatience and self-will. Through it I have suffered much, but the Lord has shown me by his Spirit that I must be brought low. When I yield to impatience then come fears and doubts. I struggle in prayer and go away feeling disappointed. I long to enjoy more of the Spirit. I have made many sad mistakes since I started out, but God has showed me the way many times, for which I thank his name. The Spirit has shown me that I could not be perfected all at once. In a vision I saw a book, and on one side there was a perfected house, and on the other side it was all in small pieces, and the Spirit said, one piece at a time until it becomes perfect. So the Spirit has led me from time to time, and so it will do if we try to do the best we can and leave the rest with God. When I look at myself to-day I feel to cry out for the Lord to come. I feel such a longing in my heart. When I read the letters, how full of love and trust you all are, I am glad, and I long to feel so too. Pray for me that I may have that peace. I know I should not be discouraged when I think of what the Lord has done for me. He is leading my husband to the light, and we have family prayers, which I have prayed for for years. The Lord healed my little girl when no doctor could. Thus you see he has blessed me. I long to serve him, and I am trying to, in my weak way. I often think of those that can not hear any preaching and who can not afford to take the Herald. I would like to send mine to them if I knew of any such, and if any who read this know of such and will tell me I will be glad.

LETTIE A. DUNN.

DEAR SISTER FRANCES: Since I with wet lashes and an overflowing heart read your first editorial for the "Home Column," I have felt it a duty to add my mite to your efforts in this good begun work. Often when weary and tired with the duties of life, I have for a few moments let my needle fall from my fingers while I take up the Herald from the table, thinking it must be but for a moment, I become so deeply interested in the blessed words of cheer and comfort which comes from the pens of my sisters, that the moments slip by and I see no place to stop until the last article in the "Column" is read; then as I again resume my work, it is to meditate upon the great influence of the Spirit of the Master upon the human heart, with its promptings for good, and then when I realize how very small a mine mine must be, I ask myself shall I cast it in?

Dear sisters let us not wait to be able to do some great thing ere we extend our hand, but let us begin now, and forget self, and see how many aching hearts we can cheer, how many weary, tired ones we can relieve, how many lonely, neglected, uncared for ones we can comfort. Oh what a world of littles we can do! are they worth our notice, or shall we carelessly, unthoughtedly pass them by, in looking for some great thing to do? Which do you think will receive the greatest reward? As one who has passed through severe trials, whose heart has been bleeding and torn, who has felt at times alone as it were, I know the value of the least act of kindness. A word, a smile, or the reassuring pressure of the hand, little acts coming from the heart God has, and will bless them to our fellow creatures far more than we are able to know at the time; and while he blesses them to their good, we are strengthened ourselves thereby. Let us begin to-day, for to-morrow may not be ours. Neglect not duty when prompted to perform it, lest at the end of the race we shall have to mourn a wasted life; if it has been so in the past, shall it be in the future? Let us, dear sisters, see to it that we do our part, and trust the results with "Him who doeth all things well." May God bless every effort for the accomplishing of good, is the prayer of sister

FAY.

BELOVED SISTERS: Gazing upon the title of these first columns, I was struck with admiration, and exclaimed, How beautiful! What mind could sufficiently comprehend its depth, or pen could picture intelligibly these small words, "Mother's Home." I thought of the home of my childhood with fond remembrance, and took a retrospective view of our first mother's home. Every thing which was pleasant to the sight and good for food was there. What a delightful spot! Peace and love reigned; no jars, no contentions, no strife; until the tempter with his cunning arts deceived and brought sorrow and woe. So it is to-day, if he is permitted to enter our home and have power over the hearts of its inmates, happiness is gone, our fond hopes blasted, the joys of association fled, perhaps never in life to return. There is great need of being watchful, keeping our doors shut against every foe, seeing that they are well made with the wood of patience, nailed together with peace, hung on the hinges of long suffering, barred with the iron of love, locked with the key of faith, bolted with temperance, painted with meekness, furnished with the oil of gentleness, mixed with charity. If each one will do this there is no danger; the enemy knowing the fortifications will pass by, leaving us unharmed. Once in conversation with a gentleman acquaintance, he said, "wherever mother is, I call it home." These words sank deep in my heart, and caused much reflection. It was not the shelter, it was not the country, but mother seemed to be the mainspring of everything pertaining to home. It behoves us then as mothers and grandmothers in Zion to let our light shine while we journey here; try to practice what we teach, and be very careful what those teachings are. See to it that we give the young no reasons to occasion doubt in after years. Should there be any thing we do not fully understand, is it not better to say so than to put upon it our own interpretation? For as the heavens is high above the earth, so far are the thoughts of our Heavenly Father above our thoughts, and his ways above our ways. The time will come when all mysteries will be revealed, all hearts will be open, all desires known. Now we only know in part and can only see in part. We sometimes feel we have but a glimmering light to what we might have if we lived according to our privileges; we are however thankful for that glimmer which is left, for by keeping it trimmed it will grow brighter and brighter until we arrive at home. Happy home! There will be the realization of all our hopes beyond our greatest anticipation, for it can not enter into the heart the things which God hath prepared for those that love him, only what he has revealed through his Spirit.

The path leading to that desirable home is very narrow, sometimes rough and thorny, and to the natural eye appear many insurmountable hills. We can not walk in golden slippers, nor yet be carried in chariots, but it requires the exertion of all our powers. We may occasionally meet a lion in his fierce anger, but being armed with the weapons of truth, standing upright, and moving straight forward, he will soon turn aside. We need not fear, no not even in the darkest night, the lamp is brightly shining all along the pathway, and will never be extinguished; therefore, as long as we remain therein, we can walk in the light. It is the road our Savior trod, it is the road bright seraphs have trod, and the only path we can tread to reach that heavenly home. May we ever be prayerful and humble, desiring the welfare of each other, trying in our weakness to strengthen, comfort and encourage; and may you, sister Frances, be greatly blest in your labor, and when your work is done, may you with all the rest receive a joyous welcome to that endless home, and rest for evermore.

C. ACKERLEY.

Thank God for the love and fellowship of his people, is what our soul responds to this. Remember, dear sisters, as sister Ackerly has said, "The lamp is brightly shining all along the pathway, and will never be extinguished." That lamp is the word of God; the law and the testimony. Jesus commanded those he was teaching to "Search the Scriptures." Take Christ as your pattern and the man of your counsel, and be able to meet every temptation of the devil as the Savior did, with the written word of God. Let us study God's word and pray for light and guidance that our feet may be kept in the narrow way, which is illuminated by the lamp of truth. [Ed].

ROSSVILLE, Texas, April 12th.

Dear Sister Frances:—It is with feelings of deep gratitude towards God, that I undertake in my weak way to pen a few thoughts for "The Column." I, like all other mothers, who are striving to train up their children for God and immortal glory, was rejoiced while reading in our ever welcome Herald to find there had been a space set apart for the benefit and use of the sisters. I had long felt the need of it, and pondered over and over again in my mind, how it could be accomplished? Again would banish it from my mind by the thought, Oh! you are too weak a vessel to think of such a responsibility, i. e., to write or help in a way, to suggest the best means for training children. You have three little ones of your own who have claims upon you, and enough to do in your own family, without going outside of it; but I feel again to rejoice that there has been a means provided; that we can exchange our views, suggest methods, and write letters of encouragement to the weary and oft discouraged mother in her labors of love. Ah! mothers do we rightly weigh the responsibilities resting upon us? Who has a greater or nobler work to perform than we? If we only perform our duties faithfully, what great and lasting good we can do. I have long realized that the greater portion of training the minds and instilling good principles in our children rests upon us. Think of the places they may be called upon to fill with great usefulness and good to their fellow creatures, if we but do our duty faithfully, looking to our kind father for help, and praying that he will give us wisdom, and judgment to control our children aright, and that we may know at all times just what is best to do, and under all circumstances just how to govern them, remembering that if we would govern our children we must govern ourselves; I think sometimes that it is almost or quite as much a task to govern our own lives as it is that of our children. Then dear sisters, let us watch as well as pray, that we may control the dear little ones that God has placed in our keeping, with all meekness and gentleness as well as firmness, not forgetting the promise that our Father has given us, if we train up a child in the way it should go that when it is old it will not depart from it. I for one, verily believe this promise. Though we may have thought we were doing our duty, yet if our children fail to fulfill this promise, we as parents have failed in some way. We were too short-sighted to see, and did not rely enough upon God. Our children when they grow older may wander from the old beaten path, yes, even for years, but if we have performed our duties faithfully before God they will return again, yea though it be after their better life is spent, for I feel and I know that his promises are sure and steadfast. Oh! dear sisters, let us strive with renewed vigor in the fear of the Lord for our families, and we will be greatly blessed in seeing them filling places of usefulness here, and gaining a rich inheritance hereafter. I had not thought to write so lengthily, but seemed as if I could not say less while thinking on such an important subject. Hoping you will excuse me for having so much to say on so short acquaintance I will close, ever praying for the sisterhood, and asking them to pray for a scattered member of their band who was once a happy member of the Oak Island Branch.

Correspondence.

LITTLE SIOUX, Iowa, May 29th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—Having located my family in this quiet, pleasant town, I shall soon be ready to start upon my missionary tour in the South West. During the months of February and March I visited the Saints at Fort Niobrara, and Ainsworth, Nebraska. At the first named place two were baptized, making seven in all, good solid members. Brother John A. Taylor is an Elder among them, and a noble, conscientious man. With a few more additions, either by baptism or by letters from other localities, a branch organization might be effected I think with profit. The interest to hear preaching was not intense, though fair sized and attentive congregations greeted us several times during our stay, and I feel confident that a good impression was made upon the minds of some. By the urgent request of Bro. Taylor's family I went there, arriving on Saturday evening, expecting to hear on the Sabbath following our "funeral sermon" by one Rev. Skinner, of the M. E. Church. We repaired to the School-house; but lo, no Skinner was there. The angry waters of the Niobrara forbade his crossing, and the toll-bridge was out. Through the courtesy of Mr. Hutchinson, a minister of the Baptist Church who had waived his appointment in favor of said Mr. S., I was permitted to present our claims with reference to ministerial calling, authority, privilege and duty. At the close of this service a heavenly peace and joy pervaded my being as the congregation sang "He leadeth me," from "Gospel Hymns." Some of the Saints who wish to secure cheap homes might do well to go there and buy. The soil is good. There and at Ainsworth the work needs the attention of the missionary in charge, or some one whom he or the District President shall recommend. We left a good interest at Ainsworth. Four were to have been baptized, three of whom have previously held membership, but are dissatisfied with their first works. Causes, the particulars of which we do not care to present, halted them for the present, however. Missionaries in search of these good people should enquire for "Travellers Home," ten miles north of Ainsworth. Here at Little Sioux the work has languished somewhat, from different causes, prominent among which is the decease of Bro. D. M. Gamet and others, together with the removal of some who seek a better country in the "regions" prepared. To-day Bro. J. C. Crabb accepted the presidency of the branch, so the sheep now are not without a shepherd, and are encouraged to press on. Brother Gunsolly is Priest, and a zealous consistent worker, for whom I think the future portends much usefulness. Bro. F. Thompson is Teacher, Elias Vredenburg is Deacon, and William Stuart clerk.

BELLAIR, Ill., May 12th.

Dear Herald:—As we are so often made to rejoice in reading your pages, I write to let you know that I appreciate your efforts for good, feel thankful for the light and strength I receive from your visits, and bid you God speed on your mission of love and truth. I will say also that I am casting in my mite to further on the same glorious cause which you have done so much to advance and build up. Have been preaching here in Crawford county for the past ten days, and I think many are interested in the gospel as presented by our people. Some will unite with us, they say, while others say that the preaching is all right and according to the scriptures, but that they have been building up their prejudices against this church for years and that it is hard for them to lay aside their former training. May the blessed Master give them light to lead them out of darkness into the marvelous light of the gospel of Christ!

Night before last, while we were preaching in Bellair, rain began to fall and continued nearly all night. We stayed at the school-house until three o'clock next morning, getting what solid comfort we could from hard benches and uncomfortable positions. When we had gotten nearly half way home we found the creek so swollen that we could not cross, and were compelled to face about, retrace our steps, and make a circuit of eight or nine miles in order to cross on a bridge. We arrived at home—Bro. Wickizer's—between seven and eight o'clock, a. m., tired, hungry and sleepy, and almost disheartened. But I took up the Herald of the 8th inst., brought us by Bro. Goodin a short time after we got home, and as I read the sermon of Bro. Blair—the glorious testimonies related by him of this latter day work—the Spirit rested upon me bearing witness to the truth of his statement, and filling my mind with light and joy, my heart with love and hope, and my eyes with tears of gratitude to our Heavenly Father for the gospel in its power and purity, and also for His giving me a testimony of its truthfulness, and counting me worthy to suffer some things for the gospel's sake. I am weak and full of imperfections, but I love the cause of the Savior and am willing to make any sacrifice and suffer any privation that he may require of me, if I can only know, and have the comforting assurance of his Spirit that my work is acceptable and pleasing unto Him. I can bear for the world to point the finger of scorn, can bear to have my name cast out as evil, could willingly bear to go hungry, tired, and footsore, can also bear, in connection with these, all my bodily infirmities and still be happy and rejoice in them all so long as I know that God confirms my work.

Oh, how dark! how unutterable the despair and anguish of heart when the Spirit is withdrawn! Yes, brethren, I am sometimes left alone, my heart seems of adamant hardness, my prayers reach, apparently, no higher than my head, and I am made to cry out in the littleness of my soul: "O, my God! my God! why hast thou forsaken me?" I can bear for friends or even brethren to forsake me, but to be forsaken of my heavenly Father is a chastisement unequalled by anything I have ever had the misfortune to pass through. I sometimes wonder if all my brethren in the ministry have to pass through these hours of darkness and gloom, and suffer the anguish of heart that I do? Or is it because I am more disobedient and self-willed, and therefore require more chastisement to keep me humble at heart? But then I read in my Bible that after Elijah had called fire down from heaven to devour his sacrifice and had slain the four hundred and fifty prophets of Baal; that when Jezebel sent word to him that she would make his life like one of them, he "arose and fled for his life," seemingly left to take care of himself in the hour of danger, although he was faithfully doing what his God had required of him.

I also read that while the Savior of the world hung upon the cross between the heavens and the earth, the very time, according to human judgment, he most needed the sympathy of friends and the approval of his Father, that friends stood afar off, and even the Father, whose work he had finished and whom he had glorified on earth seemed to have forsaken him. And as we are to receive "patience and comfort of the scriptures," I take courage and try to think it not strange concerning the fiery trials I have to pass through, feeling sure that if I continue "faithful to the end," holding fast to the "rod of iron," that my "light afflictions here" will only serve to teach me "obedience by the things which I suffer," and "work out for me a more eternal weight of glory in the world to come." I have a great desire to see the Lord's work prosper, and hope to be always willing to do my part of the labor, that I may receive the "crown of righteousness" in the great day when men's works shall all be tried by the words of the Master.

May God bless the efforts of his servants and hasten the time when "Zion's watchmen shall see eye to eye," is the prayer of your brother.

ISAAC M. SMITH.

May 15th.—Since writing the above I have preached at Round Prairie School-house, near Bellair, three times, and have appointments for to-night and to-morrow. Think there is not a great deal of interest, but can not be positive as yet. Night before last we were treated to a volley of eggs as we started home, but luckily no one was hit. Bro. Wickizer gave chase to the ruffians, but they fled and made good their escape. Have not found out yet who did it. Think it is generally condemned by the community. Two will be baptized Monday, and perhaps some others.

I. M. S.

WE received the following from Bro. Cadwell, and as it serves to announce Bro. Cadwell's retirement from connection with the Lesson Leaves in the HOPE, we give it place cheerfully. Bro. Cadwell has certainly been most faithful and efficient in the place he occupied in the Sunday School work. We regret the retirement of Bro. Cadwell, but trust all will go well.

LOGAN, Iowa, May 8th.

JOSEPH SMITH, Lamoni, Iowa;

Dear Brother.—I enclose my last installment of Lessons. Thanking you and Bro. Blair and the office hands, one and all, for kindness shown,

I remain yours in bonds,

WM. C. CADWELL.

DENMARK is making an effort in the right direction to solve the question of labor and pauperism, we think. We give below an extract taken from the Chicago Tribune of May 20th, 1886, which indicates the course taken evidently as an experiment. We hope it will prove a success. If the English government would try a similar one with the poor of Ireland and Scotland, breaking up some of those large landed estates which cumber the land as the debris of the "long ago," it might be a good way out of the present difficulty.

"The Agricultural Bank of Copenhagen has been empowered by the Minister of Finance to advance to the peasants on their own security sums varying from 200 to 8,000 kroner, to be applied to the improvement of their property, the total amount of such advances not to exceed 5,000,000 kroner. The loans are to be granted at the rate of 5 per cent interest, and to be repaid by October 1887."

REMARKS BY BISH. G. A. BLAKESLEE,

OF GALIEN, MICHIGAN,

In the Saints' Chapel, Lamoni, Iowa,

April 13th, 1886.

[Reported for the Herald and prepared by the Editor.]

ELDER E. BANTA said:—Brothers and sisters, our brother has been appointed to talk to us, and we trust that you will listen prayerfully, with interest, and without any prejudice in your minds, as I believe he will give you the word of the Lord as it has been given unto us; and you know we have been told in the Book of Mormon, that if we hold fast to the rod of iron, which is the word of God, it will lead us to life everlasting, and we shall partake of that fruit, that beautiful fruit upon the tree of life. And whatever he may say, if he says that which is the word of the Lord, it is binding upon us as much as any part of the gospel.

BISHOP BLAKESLEE said:—Brothers and sisters, I am glad to appear before you in this glorious cause in which we are engaged. I will not detain you long. I want to bring up a few points for your consideration, and then shall give way to brother Kelley. It is with me a little as it was with another man; he was slow of speech, and God gave unto him Aaron, who could talk for him. I am a little in that condition to-day. I am not a preacher, but at the same time I like to talk about the gospel of Jesus Christ because it is the power of God unto salvation.

In observing the law that he has laid down for us—as our brother referred to hanging to the rod of iron—we will attain unto that rest that we are expecting. It has been understood by some in the past that this law pertaining to temporal things was temporal. We do not understand that God ever gave at any time a temporal law. His law is spiritual. But he gave a law pertaining to temporal things, and tells us how to observe that law. And in observing that law, and in keeping it, he promises unto us certain blessings. I never found any person yet that has been able to separate the law pertaining to temporal things from that law which has reference to, and that pertains to spiritual things. They are so closely connected that I have never been able to find any separation. Without one the other can not move. If the law pertaining to temporal things is not kept by God's people, I ask you how can the gospel be preached unto the inhabitants of the earth. Why, it was one of the first things that Jesus established; and it was established before the days of Jesus, (this law was), and was kept. You will remember away back yonder that Abraham observed this law by paying tithes to Melchisedec, the priest of God. That law has been handed down from generation to generation. It was practiced by the Jews, and Jesus gave the same commandments without any change, and without any variability. The same law has been taught us. We read here in this book how long Jesus Christ says through the seer he requires his people to be tithed. We believe that this emanated from Jesus Christ for the good of his people. You will find it in Doctrine and Covenants, page 193. It reads something like this: "It is now called to-day until the coming of the son of man. And it is a day for the tithing of my people," "Until the coming of the son of man." And he says that those who are tithed shall not be burned at his coming. This is positive language. What is the converse of that? He that is not tithed shall be burned at the coming of the son of man.

Tithing is one of the commandments of God unto this people, and just as imperative to-day that we should observe it as it is that we should repent of our sins or believe in God, and go forth and be baptized for the remission of our sins and come in at the door. It is just as binding upon us as a people as that is, because it is one of the commandments of Jesus Christ taught unto the Saints in the day and age in which we live. God has taught it, and has made it plain to our understanding as a part of this gospel system, which is taught in the dispensation of the fulness of times. That same gospel has been referred to here from time to time during this Conference—that same gospel spoken of by John upon the Isle of Patmos. In observing this law, God promises to bless his people. Now he never asks you to give something for nothing. I have searched the Bible from Genesis to Revelations, and I have examined this book (the Book of Doctrine and Covenants) by day and by night, and I can not find a place in it where God requires anything of his people but what he is ready to remunerate them for the same; and he promises them greater rewards than that which we receive for our labors here; he promises to remunerate us far above that in many respects if we put forth our best endeavors. Is this not worth laboring for? It is now a day of sacrifice. He calls upon us to make sacrifice in order that we may carry the message of the gospel to the nations of the earth. Now we are only stewards before our Master. Jesus tells us that all things were made by him, and without him was not anything made; and he tells us that even the cattle upon a thousand hills are his. Now the claim made upon us is this: we are to use that which is given unto us, as stewards, in accordance with the Master's will. And we must remember that we are stewards, and that we shall be required to answer to him in the day of judgment for our stewardship here. He will come and reckon with us in accordance with the talents he has given us. To some are given one, two, or three; to some five, and to some ten. In proportion to these will he require of us when we stand before him in that day when we shall render an account of our stewardship. In proportion as God has blessed every man, he requires every man to pay unto him. He says he requires of every man, it matters not who he is, (whether he is a representative of this latter day work, or whatever place he may occupy, wherein God has blessed him), he says I want you to pay one tenth into the store-house, that there may be meat in my house. Well now, if that means anything it means just what it says,—“that there may be meat in my house.” For what?

Does he want this paid in for nothing? To be of no use? No, verily no. But what for? Why, “for the poor of my people,” and for the preaching of the gospel, that it may be promulgated among men on earth, and that when this is being done by the ministry there may be plenty in the storehouse to administer to their wants from time to time, for Jesus said they should be administered to. Do you not remember that Jesus established a treasury when he was here upon earth, and that Judas carried the bag? He told his disciples to go forth and take no thought for the morrow; for in the day and hour when they had need, it shall be given unto them. Do you suppose that Jesus made that declaration without first establishing a treasury and seeing that means were first placed in the treasury by which they could be administered to when they stood in need? Verily no. When we examine this work we find that it is one of the grandest systems ever taught in any age or dispensation. There is principle; there is system; there is unity. What did God say to the Jews? Please read the third chapter of Malachi commencing with the eighth verse. In referring to the Jews there he says: “Ye have robbed me, even this whole nation.” They inquired wherein. “In tithes and offerings.” You have not complied with the commandment that was given; you have not replenished my store-house, you have not paid the tithes and offerings I required of you, consequently you have robbed me; and for this reason you are cursed with a curse. It is emphatic language; it is the language of Jesus; yet he makes unto them a promise if they will try him there. He says, “Bring your tithes and your offerings into my store-house that there may be meat in my house, and see now, and try me.” I own the earth and the cattle upon a thousand hills are mine, and all things are mine, and you are my stewards. Try me; bring your tithes and offerings and put them into my store-house, and see if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to contain it. That agrees with the saying that if you will do the will of the Master you shall know of the doctrine, whether it is of God. The principle agrees all the way through. But he does not stop there. He says, “I will rebuke the devourer for your sake, that he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground. Neither shall your vine cast its fruit before its time.” What a promise that is, my brethren! The earth shall yield her fulness for his people. Is not that what we believe in? Is there not a time coming spoken of in the scriptures when the earth shall yield her fulness? For what? That his people may be blessed.

Surely we ought to comply with this law; for as elsewhere stated, “He that will not forsake father and mother, wife and children, houses and lands for my sake, is not worthy of me.” Do you suppose, for a moment, that Jesus requires these Elders to go forth and forsake their homes and little ones without first providing for them? No, verily no. He sends them out on the same conditions that he sent out his disciples when he was upon earth. "Take no thought for the morrow; for in the day and in the hour that ye shall stand in need it shall be given unto you." Why shall it be given unto them? Because means are put into the treasury. That is what God asks this people to do, my friends.

Well, now, you ask, What is my duty in these premises? Your duty is this as I understand it. Whatever God has blessed you with, whatever you have been blessed with that you have not paid tithes on, he requires that you shall pay one tenth of that into his store-house, into his treasury; and after you have thus tithed yourself of one tenth of what he has blessed you with, then one tenth of your increase annually thereafter is required, in order that his treasury may be replenished, in order that these men whom he has called may go forth and take no thought for the morrow, that their families and little ones may be cared for while they are administering to others the bread of life. Don't you see that there is system and order in this? Not only that, but he says that it is not he that soweth the seed that shall be rewarded altogether; but he that furnishes the seed shall be rewarded in like manner with those who sow the seed. That is a system no man could have gotten up. It is just; it is right. He promises to reward to every one. You remember where the widow came and threw her mite into the treasury, it being all that she had? Why did Jesus say unto her, "This widow has done more than ye all."

Another thing let me call your attention to, and that is this: when you pay your tithes and offerings into the store-house, do you pay grudgingly? Jesus says he loves a cheerful giver. You will be rewarded, if you give, not grudgingly, but with a desire to assist in the advancement of his work and the promulgation of the gospel; with a desire to build up his cause and kingdom upon the earth. If you can not give in this manner, never give. Never give until you can do so with a desire to aid his work, for the building of his kingdom, for the more perfect establishment of his work among men upon earth, and for the redemption of Zion.

Some say, We read in this book that the commencement of tithing is to give our surplus. I find that this is misunderstood by many. They think the surplus is required because it says "this shall be the beginning of the tithing of my people." Let us see. Where does this stand as the law? To all those who have gathered to the land of Zion, and who are going to come up to the land of Zion. We are told in the commandment given through the Seer, that none are to gather to the land of Zion only the pure in heart. We are told also that we are not to gather to the land of Zion to-day. There is no place now were the people are allowed to gather, only "in the regions round about." All those who gather to the land of Zion shall be tithed of their surplus properties, and they be put into the hands of the Bishop of my church of Zion, for the building of mine house, and for the laying the foundation of Zion, and for the priesthood, and for the debts of the presidency of my church, for the purchase of inheritances for the purchase of lands. It means inheritances. Brethren have come to me and said, "Here; we want to commence tithing ourselves, and we want to hand over to you our surplus property, and we want a receipt for it." Do you suppose I dare take it? Verily, no. The church is not in a condition, and the time has not yet come, to give inheritances to his people; and the surplus is means for inheritances, not only under the law of God, but under the laws of men. That is what it means. Consequently that part of the law is not binding upon us to-day; has no force to-day. I do not say it won't be tomorrow. I believe that the time is not far distant, if we keep his commandments that God has required of us to do—the time is not far distant when the surplus will be required; because I believe it is the law of God.

Now, in order that the gospel may be carried unto the nations of the earth, and unto our nation, it behooves us to comply with this law that we refer to here. Bring forth your tithes and your offerings and pay them to aid this work. Be your own stewards. This is in keeping with the commandments of God. Do you suppose for a moment that those who have been made acquainted with the first principles of the gospel of Christ, that we must be born of the water and of the Spirit or we could in no wise enter into the kingdom of God,—do you think for a moment that if we were sprinkled with a little water it would answer every purpose? No, verily no. We all know better than that. We must be buried with him in baptism. Well, says one, Why are you so particular that these tithes and offerings shall be paid into the store-house? I will tell you why. Because it is a commandment of God. And he has made us responsible for the manner in which we shall observe that law. What did he say through the present seer, the present presiding officer of the church? What did he say to the people? What did he say to the twelve in connection with the bishopric? That they should see that the means so obtained were used for the poor of his people, and for the promulgation of the gospel, and not for the aggrandizement of any man, let him be whomsoever he may be; "As ye do this, so ye shall answer in the day of judgment." These are serious things. He has made us responsible to him in that day when every knee shall bow, when every tongue shall confess Jesus Christ to the glory of God the Father. It is not only in what are deemed spiritual things that we shall give an account, but in temporal things also. Now will we rob God?

The last year I have been very much encouraged. The Saints have put forth a greater effort to stand for this work; and as they do put forth that effort—as they cling to the rod of iron, and keep the commandments of God, as laid down in this book and the Book of Mormon, God will bless them by his Spirit; and not only bless them by his Spirit, but in their basket and in their store and in their lands. I know that by experience. For this reason I am teaching this law. For this reason I am presenting it before you as a people and as individuals, that this work may roll forth, that the hands of the ministry may be loosed that they may go forth and gather out the honest in heart and spread the word, and that we may be in a condition to take care of their families and little ones. The first duty of these men is to take care of their families and little ones; for it is written, that he that neglecteth his own house and household is worse than an infidel, and has already denied the faith. Calls there are for laborers in every part; not only in our own land, but in foreign lands. I remember meeting this morning with the quorum of the Twelve, and find there is an urgent call for missionaries to be sent to foreign lands. We can not now do it. Why? Because we have not yet replenished the treasury. That we may understand these things it is my duty to set them before you in plainness; and we are speaking in plainness, upon facts, and facts are stubborn things. It is not the commandment of men, it is the commandment of God to his people; and he requires and seeks that his people shall conform to his commandment, if they expect to enter with joy into that life which is to come. Show me a man that has complied with this law, and I will show you a man that God has blessed. You can not find a single instance where there is an exception. I challenge investigation. He not only blesses by the outpouring of his Spirit, but he greatly blesses them in temporal things, when they come before him and comply with this law with an eye single to his glory. As I heard a brother remark since I have been here. He says, "I have tried it, I have proved it; and were it for this life only—if there was nothing in the beyond, if it was only for this life—I would pay my tithes and offerings into the store-house for the blessings that I have received thus far since I have embraced the gospel."

There was for a long time, when I first came into the church, that I did not understand this law. I speak of this because there are others that are in the same condition. I supposed that a man could go to an Elder and make himself his own bishop, and that it was all right—it would be accepted with God. I pursued this course for some years, and when I looked over my accounts I found that I had paid out some two thousand dollars. Where was it? I had no credit for it. It occurred to me that such was not the proper course to pursue, especially as the house of God is a house of order, and his laws are perfect laws; and that there certainly was a system somewhere to guide us in these things. When I began to search I found one, the most complete in its kind that ever I found in my life. I began to observe it, and since that I have endeavored to keep it. I find a great many of my friends did the same. They make themselves their own bishops. Now let us, if we want to receive the blessings—if we want to receive the reward promised here—let us comply with the law that God has given us, and then we will receive the reward promised here; we will have claim upon him who doeth all things well, because we have kept the commandments, not being like the young man referred to in Luke, "All these have I kept from my youth up." Jesus said, "If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell all that thou hast, and give to the poor." There is an idea in that which many do not realize. He was very rich, and it was grievous to obey Jesus without "unloading." Jesus does not ask that of us to-day; but he asks us to come and pay as he has blessed us. Now if he has not blessed us, he does not require us to do anything. Wherein he has blessed us, he requires us to pay one tenth (as a commencement of the tithing of his people) into his store-houses to-day, for the support of the ministry and the poor of his people, that his work may go forth, that the hands of the brethren who take missions may be loosed, that their little ones and their wives may be cared for while they are out sowing the seed, and giving the bread of life to a dying world, in order that our garments may be clean of their blood in the day when we shall stand before him. It will then be inquired of us, Have you kept my commandments? have you imparted of your substance that you have been blessed with? Have you sustained and furnished seed to the sowers that have gone forth? What will be said of us if we answer in the negative? We will be our own witnesses when we stand before him. I have occupied more time than I intended, and still not a quarter of what I desire to; but as I desire my brother to make some remarks upon these points I therefore leave the question with you.

ELDER E. L. KELLEY said:—I want to express some thoughts upon one or two principles this morning, and then I shall have finished. I do not want to talk very much. It occurred to me this morning, as we will not have the opportunity to meet with the elders of the different quorums and canvass these matters as fully as we had hoped to. We do not wish to be impertinent and force ourselves upon any quorum; but if there is any quorum of Elders or Priests, or any quorum of the church that has any questions that they want to present to the Bishopric we will hear them. If they wish any instructions from the Bishopric upon anything, we are willing that they shall appoint a time for us to meet them in their different quorums and talk there. That is what I understand quorums are for to a great extent, that we may receive instructions in these quorums, and instruct each other on things that can not always be brought up in a body. We want to go if possible from this Conference in harmony with every elder who goes out to preach. If we are wrong we will be willing to meet you in your own quorum; and if we are wrong you can certainly handle us there. So you may remember that; and if there are any of you that have anything special against the order of the Bishopric, we think we will be able to meet you, that we may go in harmony from this Conference. If we are in the wrong we are ready to concede it; if others have ideas that are not in accord with the law, they ought to stand in the same position, and as a body I believe we can see alike upon these questions.

There is one question that the Bishop has referred to that I will touch, lest the brethren get a wrong understanding in regard to it. He said in the beginning of his remarks that this was not a temporal law, it was a spiritual law. It is so declared in the word of God. What significance has that if it is not a temporal law? It is not a law simply relating to this world. If it is a spiritual law it is a law that relates to the beyond. If it is a law that relates to the beyond, it is a law that you and I should understand and conform to in this world if we wish to be acceptable in all things to our heavenly Father when the time shall come that rewards shall be made up. We say so far as many of those religions in this world are concerned, that they are wrong because they are too short, and have not emanated from the divine nature. Consequently their votaries will not enter in to the beyond in that spiritual life, they will not stand there, consequently the question does not come here if we should embrace them. But in that system of religion that came to the world by Jesus Christ is a spiritual law that not only relates to the human family here, but has relation to us in all the changes that we will be brought under in the life that is to come. Hence it is that the apostle Peter says, "The word of the Lord endureth forever." Not only in this life, but in the life beyond, refers to the law of temporal things, and says it is as binding in the life to come as it is here. Unless this is true, we will have to get more than one revelation out of the book, or more than two or a half dozen. Then we will have to begin to clip from the New Testament and Book of Mormon, and after we have clipped all around, we will stand just about where our friends stand who differ from us in the idea that we must conform to the law of God in every whit, and claim that it is not essential in this life what we believe, or what we teach, simply if we are honest.

The other evening I called your attention to the fact that I thought that one of the troubles, and one of the causes of the differences that exist upon the part of the people in all parts of the United States and the Canadas upon this question was, that the elders in going forth from time to time had not complied with the law as was directed in the Book of Covenants, and not having complied with the law themselves, they did not understand it alike and teach it alike. If we should come to an understanding as required in the law in the seventy-second section of the Book of Covenants, then there would be unity of understanding.

Some ask with regard to laying all things at the feet of the Bishop, whether that means just the elders, or whether it relates to the members also. It has been taught in different parts of the country that it relates to the members of the church rather than to the elders. If you will turn to the seventy-second section of the Book Doctrine and Covenants, you will find that the Lord as he was sending out these elders gives them to understand that they should render an account to the Bishop, and that unless they did this they would never be accepted. It was necessary that they lay all things at the feet of the Bishop. What was laying all things at the feet of the Bishop? That you shall deed to him your properties, go and give him your personal properties? We do not so understand it; but that you shall go and manifest to the Bishop your circumstances and your condition, and show whether you have complied with the law as it is binding upon every member of his church. If you have not complied with the law, what right have you to go out and teach others to comply with the law? Hence it has been said in the past that not many elders seem to be called upon to teach the law of temporal things in the church. Not many of them have come before the Bishop and shown their circumstances whether they had complied with the law or not themselves. This is the understanding of the Bishopric, that they should show their circumstances, what they need, so far as their relationship to the Bishop is concerned, or the relationship of the elders to the treasury of the church. It is in this way that God has promised that those who go forth shall receive for their necessities, or that of their families, from time to time. And if they go out into the world without purse or scrip to reprove the world, and they are compelled to condemn them or say the world has been unkind to them, then they are to return and receive for their wants from the treasury as it is provided on the one hundred and tenth page of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; that they shall go forth, and if they need, in the very hour they need the church shall give them. But in reproving the world we understand, that is preaching the gospel of Christ to them, if they found out that the reproof was in favor of the world instead of against them, they would not need to call back and ask from the bishop or the bishop's agent. It is just the same thing. When an individual is once appointed bishop's agent in this church he has a right to call upon the treasury, he is connected with the treasury. Hence it is that when you pay your moneys in the Decatur District, or in any other district of the church, the Far West or the Southern California, or any that you may pay your moneys in, it is a payment into the church treasury in the same sense as if you should pay it to or send it to the bishop of the church. These brethren are agents of the bishop. The bishop may write unto him to order funds out of his hands, or to place more in, as he may direct if required. When you pay into the church treasury you should pay in that manner that will bring the blessings of God upon you.

It has been asked also if we can pay into the treasury with the understanding that we shall have it applied here and follow the law of tithes and offerings in an acceptable sense. We say those that do the duties of this matter, that have the oversight of these matters, of this law, are to pay the moneys as God may direct where it will best build up his cause. You can not build up in all places alike. This place may be in a condition to build in today, and another to-morrow. And it is thus that in the wisdom of God he has laid the responsibility of paying out these moneys upon certain individuals in the church. He has laid the responsibility of teaching upon the Elders, upon certain ones of his church. The individual that wants to do his duty under a certain law can not say he will be his own Elder. This is what I understand the bishop meant when he said that a man can be his own steward. He is his own steward in the sense that he is to answer to Christ for his deeds; but he can not be his own bishop in paying out, and thus fulfill the law. That is the idea of the bishop. That a man can not say that he will be his own bishop any more than he can say he will be his own Elder, or Priest, or his own teacher. Then he is a steward of Christ, and will answer for his stewardship to Christ; and if he has complied with the law, he himself shall have put it where the judge of the earth said it should go.

Then comes up the question, and this has caused some trouble in the minds of some of the Elders because they have not understood the position of the bishopric. Some say we need not comply with the law as laid down in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, that tithes and offerings should be brought into his storehouse. Can any of you point me to a section in the Book of Covenants that says that tithes and offerings should not be placed in the store-house? You will fail whether in the Bible, Book of Mormon, or the Book of Doctrine and Covenants. It should be placed in the store-house, and then the law has been complied with; and the brethren should observe this. But then they say, "should not we be permitted to hand something to an Elder, or a Priest, or whosoever is administering to us from time to time, if we see that he needs clothing or anything of that kind?" Yes; you may do so; but that is not complying with the law as it is here in regard to bringing tithes into the store-house of God. It is under a different law and principle. It is under that law and principle that binds you to break your bread to the hungry, whether it is a brother in the church or not; you will not turn him away because you know that he is hungry if you have that wherewith you may feed him. It is the law that binds the human family together in society, it is the general law that condemns those outside of the church if they turn away a minister who is travelling from place to place and do not minister unto him. It is under that general law. Hence it is that when an Elder goes out, and you see fit over and above what is required of you under this law, to relieve his necessities, God will bless you in so doing; but your doing so does not relieve you under the law. If you have complied with the law, and then you see a brother or a sister in necessity, you stand in this condition: If you do not desire, if you have the means and could make an additional sacrifice, but if you think you ought not to do that, and you see a brother or a sister in distress you have a right to go to the bishop or his agent, and if you do not happen to live where they are you can write to them, and call the attention of the bishop to the distress of this poor individual or that one, or this Elder or that one—call their attention to it, and say, "Here, I have done my duty under the law; I see they are in distress, and I can not help them because I do not feel that it is my duty to make an additional sacrifice;" or, "I can not help them because I have not wherewith." You do not have to see them remain in distress, but you have a right to call upon the proper officers of the church and ask that that distress be removed. The law is complete; it is a perfect system, and it will reach every case when it is carried out, and carried out properly. Hear what Jesus says when he is giving instructions to the Elders in the day and age in which you and I are trying to preach the gospel. "As I said unto my servants of old, so I say unto you; you shall go forth without purse or scrip." Take thought only of those things that is necessary for the time is the idea. I send you out to prove the world, to prove the people, is the idea; and I believe it is necessary for every Elder to go out in that way. I do not believe in the Elders when they come into their districts of labor, every time that they feel for instance that they need a new handkerchief, or a new coat or anything like that, to write up to the bishop or his agent to get them. I believe in their pursuing their course in their districts of labor, and asking God to judge between them and the people, until they see that they can go no further; and when they can go no further, but are ready to return, and have complied with the law, they can call back, and say to the bishop here, I have done my duty, I have done my part, and then present his necessities; and the bishop will say, Well brother you shall be relieved, because the law provides for you. We do not want the Elders to think that because they have a claim upon the church treasury that they are not to make the proof of the world before they turn around and call upon the treasury. There are two principles here, and both of them have to be kept in view; both of them have to be brought out. When you are sent out to prove the world, and when you have provided those to whom you are sent, and found that they are unqualified to receive the gospel of the Savior by reason of wickedness of heart, call back and you will find out that the church will stand by you, because I believe in the word and testimony of Jesus Christ upon this, rather than the experiences of any individual upon this. I believe that you will find that there will be means in the treasury then. Hence it is, that if we are more careful about these things, and wait at all times until we have dealt fairly with the people so far as our Heavenly Father is concerned, we will get along better in the world than we have ever done in the past.

There is one more thought that is expressed here that I wish to call attention to, because it was brought out in one sense the other day. I mean that in this church we do not under all circumstances stand in the same position relative to what we may do in this life. You remember here it is said in one of the sections, "Behold it has been said unto you, you shall not get into debt to your enemies, (194th page), but behold it is not said at any time that the Lord should not take when he pleases and pay when it seemeth him good." What were the circumstances under which this was given, and to whom was the language applicable at the time? Prior to this it had been said to the people of God, that as individuals in the world, and as members of the church, it was not wise to get into debt to our enemies, the Lord even commanded them that they should not do so. But in talking to the church in 1831, the bishop was commanded to do certain things for the establishment of the church and the support of the work; and in making provisions for the necessities of the work at that time they were compelled to go into debt a little, and certain brethren brought up the idea, that they could not do it, because the Lord had said, "Ye shall not get into debt to your enemies." Now let us see how it comes. "Wherefore," he saith, "ye are agents." Who? Newel K. Whitney and Sidney Gilbert. "Wherefore, as ye are agents, and ye are on the Lord's business, whatever ye do according to the will of the Lord, is the Lord's business, and he hath set you to provide for his Saints in these last days, that they may obtain an inheritance in the land of Zion, and behold I, the Lord, declare unto you, and my words are sure and shall not fail, that they shall obtain it." These men were commanded to provide for His Saints in these last days and the Lord gave them commandment and made an exception to the general rule about going into debt. They were permitted to go into debt at that time. It was not pleasing to the Lord that in this particular case they should act under the general law about debt; but if it was necessary for the work, and to carry on the work, that as they were agents of the Lord for a special purpose, and as it was not said that the Lord could not get into debt, they were permitted for the work's sake to get into debt at this time. The Lord knew how it would be; that if they did according to his commandments and counsels in the matter that it would bring no disgrace upon his work for them to go into debt at that time.

The same thing occurred when I went to Kirtland, Ohio. I went there as many of you know, and did not expect to remain there three months; but it so turned out in the wisdom of providence I believe as much as I believe that I ever did anything in his wisdom, that I should remain there. And it so turned out that if I remained there I must go into debt to my enemies, and I did so. I do not expect to cheat my enemies. I do not expect to come under condemnation for simply getting into debt to my enemies while there maintaining the standard of truth and providing a home for the Saints and Elders from time to time. We must look upon things as they are, and not get scared at something in the books merely because we do not understand it. Brother Banta wishes to make a few remarks.

ELDER BANTA said:—I do not want to talk much; but there is a little of my experience that came into my mind especially while brother Kelley was talking. I have learned in my time I think a good deal of wisdom, but I have not much yet. Now I am talking plain, but it is just the truth. When I united with the latter day work, as I understood it, I was a poor ignorant boy, and did not know the difference between the Jews and the Gentiles. I did not know that there were four Evangelists that were writing the history of the doings of Christ; and it was a wonder to me that every book of the four I got into I was reading the same thing again. But I had received the gospel, had also received the testimony of the truth of the gospel, and I was willing and ready at all times to bear testimony that the gospel was true. But I had received this gospel without knowing anything about the Book of Mormon or the Book of Covenants. Finally the Book of Mormon was presented to me. I will tell you that it was a trial and a stumbling block to me. I did not know anything about it. I believed the Bible, and had received a testimony of its truth that I could bear anywhere. But when the Book of Mormon was presented to me I did not know what to do. I knew the Bible was true so far as I understood it. I knew the gospel was true, and I had received the Holy Spirit, and had borne testimony that Jesus was the Christ; but I did not know anything about the Book of Mormon. All I could find in the Book of Mormon was, "it came to pass," "it came to pass." Says I, "I do not want to read anything that has about everything in it "it came to pass." But I was not going to deny what I had received. I went to the Lord, and I received a testimony from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet that the Book of Mormon was what it was represented to be. I have believed the Book of Mormon ever since. It made no difference was condition I was in, I could testify that the Book of Mormon was true. After a while everything as it were went by the way, and I went into the world and went to making money. I had a good old mother-in-law; and while she would preach to me the Book of Covenants, I would fight it. I did not do like I did before—I did not go to the Lord to know of these things. I commenced reading the Book of Covenants; and I come to these free will offerings, and these tithes; and when I got down to that part about paying the surplus properties, I rebelled. I would read on and rebel; and read on and rebel at everything that did not come just according to what I thought, or did not agree with me; I would fight it—because I was unwise. Finally, I came to the vision, and I read it. I thought that that was one of the most glorious things that I ever read. What was the reason that it was glorious to me? Because of this: when I was in my right mind—was not angry or contrary, which I get to be once in a while, I admit that—that vision agreed with me as being the justice of God—and justice to all men—such as ought to be meted out. I believed that. There were many things, and revelations through the book that I could not believe; and as I read them I would fight them. That was not wise. We can not understand all things at once. Now if the Lord gave one revelation that I thought was true, he was able to give another, though I was not then fitted and prepared to understand it. But the good feeling came in pretty quick when I read the vision—I tell you it came right off. I would read that revelation which says the time would come when every man that would not take up his sword against his neighbor must needs flee to Zion, and I would say "That never can be fulfilled." Well, I went all against that revelation for a long time. But I agreed to let it alone; and finally I began to believe it. What do you all think in relation to that revelation now? Look at the monopolies; look at the labor difficulties; look at the great contention that is springing up all over the United States and in Europe. Why it is the plainest thing to me in the world, I believe that revelation now; it is of God. God knew this time would come; I did not know it. That puts me a little in mind of a man who once said to me that he was never going out to preach until he could tell all about God, where he was, what he was, and the beginning and the end. Well, says I, whenever you get that high you will want to take God's place. I thought, (in those times when I was fighting the revelations of God, when I did not believe them because I could not understand them), I presumed that God's revelations were not true, because I did not understand them. I want to ask one question. Don't you think when this time comes, (which will come), that all over the United States, those men who are outside of Zion—Zion is to be built up, you know what the promise is that has been made, there will be safety there—if there is a man in the country, in the world who sees that the only safety for him is to flee to Zion, don't you think he will be willing to give his surplus property? We can all see he will. If he won't it will be because he is crazy.

I say these things for this purpose: I have learned that when I can not understand things to let them alone—let them alone and don't denounce them. It will be manifested after a while whether they are of God or not. This is according to my own experience. I do not say that it is so in all cases, but it is according to my own experience. And according to that experience, all these differences that we have in regard to many of these things, are caused either by ignorance, bigotry, or willfulness. I don't believe there is any bigotry in me, because I never was smart enough. But there was much of ignorance. I thought then that I was a good deal smarter than I think I am now. I must not get too smart when we get to knowing anything, for there is where we get into trouble. When we get into difficulties, don't kick against the pricks, but just stand still and pray to God. It will come around all right. I want to tell a little story on myself. I was talking with brother Blair a good many years ago, about these parties who were building upon the foundation that the apostle Paul speaks of, with hay, wood, stubble, silver, gold and precious stones. I took the position that the ignorant Sectarian Churches were building of wood, hay and stubble; and that the Church of Christ was building of silver, gold and precious stones. Well, he and I had it a long time. He could not say anything—could not bring any argument to bear upon me at all—to convince me that it did not mean the sectarian churches. Finally he got disgusted. I was contrary and impudent. So he stopped, and says he, Brother Banta, who is Paul writing to. Well; I scratched my head, and got mad. I saw the point in a minute, was convinced in a minute, but I had to wait a while before I would acknowledge. I finally acknowledged it was the Saints; but it was ten or fifteen minutes first. I have told of my meanness that I might give some ignorant, obstinate man like I was a little experience, that he might learn.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS BY THE BISHOPRIC.

Question: In regard to tithing, I understand you to say that it was a tenth of the increase, not a tenth of the interest. A tenth of the increase of our crops if I understand you.

Answer: Increase and interest are both the same thing. It is all increase. All we have is increase. When a person commences to pay his tithing, he should pay one tenth of all that he has into the storehouse; and one tenth of his increase or interest thereafter, annually. All you have is increase to you. When a man comes into the world he does not bring anything in with him, and he is not going to take anything out. First, what you have over and above what you have used for a living is increase, and when you pay on that you never have to pay on it any more, because it is not increase any more, and a tithing is a tenth of the increase. First, all you have over and above what you have used for a living is increase; and, second, what you get after that you pay on that is increase,—so you pay on everything.

Question: If I raise ten bushels of corn, does the tenth bushel belong to God?

Answer: Every tenth bushel over and above expenses, and such as that. A tenth of the increase. But suppose now that you raise ten bushels of corn, and you have land that you raise that upon that is worth a hundred dollars, and you never pay upon that land. You ought first to pay upon that land, and then a tenth of the increase. The land is increase to be given with; that is the idea.

Question: Suppose it takes the ten bushels of corn to keep his family?

Answer: He would not have any increase then.

Question: Suppose a brother has five hundred dollars, and he invests in a house and lot worth fifteen hundred dollars, giving a mortgage for a thousand dollars, which is the amount over the cash which he has. What course must he pursue to bring himself under the law of tithing?

Answer: First, he must pay one tenth of the five hundred dollars, which is increase to him. Then he must pay one tenth of the payments which he makes in discharging the mortgage, which are also increase to him. For instance, if he makes a payment the first year of two hundred dollars, he should pay one tenth of that two hundred dollars as tithing, and so on until the indebtedness is discharged.

E. L. Kelley: A man we will say is in debt a thousand dollars. It is to be paid in three annual payments. He has five hundred dollars. Should he pay anything until he gets out of debt? Let us see. It is admitted to begin with that he owes really to the Lord fifty dollars. We say that he will liquidate that indebtedness better by paying the Lord, because the Lord is more able to bless him than the fifty dollars is to do him good. If he prefers to keep the fifty dollars rather than trust the promise of the Lord, then he has more faith in fifty dollars than he has in God. That is the plain fact of it. I believe a man will pay his debt of a thousand dollars quicker and easier by taking the Lord at his promise and start with his four hundred and fifty dollars. That is My faith in God's word. I believe if the saints will work up to this, then the Lord will verify his promise, "I will pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to contain it." I believe in that. Hence it is that a man should pay and render an account here in time as well as in eternity. It don't make any difference about his indebtedness. If he is in debt the Lord God is able to bless him with means to pay his indebtedness, if he complies with his law in all respects. The Lord is not an unreasonable creator. He will give you time to make a turn if you make up your minds to be obedient to him. I have a man's circumstances in mind now. The Bishop received a letter about two weeks ago from a brother in Michigan, who went up there some five years ago and invested his money and was likely to lose all that he had. He kept on thinking that he would come out after a while of his own wisdom; and finally a few weeks ago he laid the matter before the Lord, and he says, "Lord, If I come out of this with anything, it will be because thy mercy leads me. If you will aid me I will do my duty under the law and to the church." He said it was but a few days before he was able to make a turn with his property, and he says, "I will save out of what I expected to lose entirely, twenty-five thousand dollars." And he says, "Here is a check for five hundred dollars. I am going to do my duty before the Lord, and just as soon as my circumstances will admit I will pay up on the balance." That is the kind of faith I believe in. So it is that a man who is in debt can get the benefit, too.

IS IT THE CHURCH OF CHRIST?

QUESTIONS asked of Elder W. P. Brown by Pres. Joseph Smith, May 27th, 1886.

Ques. 1. To what church do you belong?

Ans. The Church of Christ.

2. Is it an organized body?

As far as we have material at present.

3. Is David Whitmer of Richmond, Mo., connected with it? If so, in what relation as an officer? What is his authority? Where did he get his commission? What are the evidences of his calling, from prophecy if any?

Yes. An Elder and an Apostle. His authority is to administer in all the ordinances of the Church of Christ. Like unto Paul he was called and chosen of God. The evidences of his calling from prophecy are many, as you know. We will mention one revelation he now holds, given through your father in 1834, which revelation you have read in tears, and said it was true. This revelation says that David Whitmer would be a ruler in Zion when he was old and well stricken in years; that he should say to the faithful, "Go forth and build up the waste places of Zion. We believe Zion to be spiritually wasted to-day.

4. When was the said church organized?

In the year one of our Lord.

5. By whom?

By Christ.

6. Where?

On this earth.

7. What are its officers?

We refer you to the Bible and Book of Mormon.

8. Are you an officer?

I am.

9. What office do you hold?

The office of an Elder.

10. When were you ordained, and by whom?

On September 11th, 1884, by Elder John C. Whitmer.

11. How long were you a member of the Bickertonites? How long were you with the Reorganized Church? When did you become a member of the church you are now with?

I was a member of the Bickertonites about three years, and a member of the Reorganized Church about three years. Became a member of the Church of Christ September 11th, 1884.

12. Does the church you now claim to represent believe the Bible?

Yes.

13. Does it believe in the Book of Mormon?

Yes. We can not see why you ask such questions.

14. Does it believe in the Doctrine and Covenants?

We believe there are many truths in the Doctrine and Covenants, also many errors in doctrine which were added by the wisdom of man and not of God; and for this cause we can not receive it as a law to the Church of Christ. We believe the law of God to be fully contained in the Bible and Book of Mormon.

15. What priesthood, if any, does David Whitmer hold?

David Whitmer is an Elder, which office belongs to the priesthood of the Son of God.

16. What priesthood do you hold?

The same priesthood as David Whitmer.

17. Does the church you represent, have or believe it right to have in it, apostles, high priests, seventy, bishops, elders, priests, teachers and deacons?

We believe it right to have all the above offices in the church of Christ, except high priests; Jesus Christ being our only high priest.

18. Does it believe in the Melchisedec priesthood?

Answered in question below.

19. Does it believe in the Aaronic priesthood?

Answered in question 20.

20. What priesthood if any, do your apostles hold?

We believe in the priesthood of the Son of God; that all members of the body of Christ are of this order of priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices. 1 Peter 2:5.

21. Does the church you claim to represent, accept and believe in the doctrine of present revelation?

Yes.

22. Is there any among you who receives revelations for the church?

Any one of the Church of Christ may receive a revelation for himself, or for the church. But every member discerns for himself by the Holy Ghost which is in him, whether revelations received are from God, or not. All revelations are to be tried by the Holy Ghost and the word of God.

23. Who is it?

Answered in 22.

24. When revelations are received by him, or are given by him to the church, are they at once authoritative and binding upon the church, or are they to be tested or examined by any others before they are declared to the church? If so who are they who test or examine them?

Answered in 22.

25. By what standards of reference are revelations given to the church, purporting to come from God, to be examined and tested, that the church may not be deceived?

Answered in 22.

26. What officers do you refer to, when you say that it is not the people of the Reorganized Church who are in the wrong, but the officers?

Those who are teaching more or less from the doctrine of Christ, than is in the word of God.

27. By what rule do you determine that the officers of the Reorganized Church are in error and leading the people astray?

We did not say that all people in the Reorganized Church have gone astray. I believe there are honest hearts in it. But their teachers cause them to err. The Holy Ghost is the rule by which we determine all spiritual things.

28. Are you willing to state in writing what the church you represent holds, in regard to the date of the period at which the church went astray?

Not at the present time.

29. What were the acts done by the church at that date, by which they forfeited the right to preach, baptize, and confirm members into the church of Christ?

This question involves too much to be answered here at this time.

30. Where is now the Church of Christ? Wherever there is a people named "The Church of Christ," no more and no less, built upon the gospel of Christ, as recorded in the Bible and Book of Mormon.

31. How many does it number?

Can not answer at present, as I have not the church record here.

32. If you do not want contention, why did you come to Lamoni when you supposed there were those there who were dissatisfied and wanted a change?

The Holy Ghost sent me to Lamoni to say unto you, "Lay down your contentions and come into the Church of Christ."

33. Why did not you come when all seemed to be in harmony and without contention?

I never knew the time when the Reorganized Church was in harmony, and without contention.

34. If the "signs following the believer" does not furnish evidence that a person baptized and confirmed is received into the Church of Christ, how will such reception into the church be determined? How shall any one be able to know that he is in the Church of Christ?

We believe that signs follow true believers; that signs may be produced through individuals by their faith; that such individuals may be in a church which is under transgression and teaching some errors for doctrine. The signs follow some of the Utah people. Any one may know that he is in the Church of Christ by the baptism of the Holy Ghost and of fire.

35. You say that persons who ask questions for contention need not apply to you. How will you determine whether questions are asked for contention, or for information?

By the gift of discernment.

36. Did you expect that the Reorganized Church at Lamoni would consent to listen to you and your associate laborers, and not attempt to reply to, or refute what you might present that was in their opinion erroneous?

I did not. And I am thankful for investigation.

37. What is the meaning of the scripture, "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the Saints?"

The words themselves explain the meaning.

Miscellaneous.

EXPLANATORY.

Inasmuch as the impression has been conveyed that the use of the Saints' Chapel has been refused to Elder W. P. Brown and others, I wish to state that the said Elder Brown only asked for the use of the house when not occupied, and that he was told he could have it. I then told him also that we used it three nights in the week, namely Wednesday evening, for prayer meetings; Thursday evening, by Sunday-school teachers, and Friday evening for choir practice. On Sunday morning the leader of the band claimed the use of the upper room on a previous promise by the Building Committee, for band practice Monday and Thursday evenings. I then told the band leader he would have to get some other place for Monday evening, as Elder Brown would occupy the lower room that night. The Sunday-school superintendent made an appointment on Sunday for Tuesday evening, and I so announced on Sunday evening. Monday forenoon Elder Brown asked if Monday evening was the only time he could have the house and I told him, "Yes, until Saturday evening, or that it would be occupied until then."

On Tuesday I told him that if the band boys would give way he could have the house on Thursday evening. The basement is in the hands of the branch, and the upper room in the hands of Building Committee; and this gave rise to misunderstanding in adjusting appointments. There was no intention to purposely exclude Elder Brown and his co-laborers, nor was the building refused them except as stated above.

NORTHERN MINNESOTA DISTRICT.

There will be a conference of this district at the Saints' Chapel, Girard, Ottertail Co., Minnesota, commencing Saturday, June 12th, at ten o'clock. It is expected that Bro. J. C. Foss will be present at that time. We extend a cordial invitation to all friends to meet with us. Our house is large and we will gladly welcome you. Dear Saints; God has blessed us in the past, and if we come praying for his blessing, we surely will receive it.

THOMAS J. MARTIN,

Dist. Pres.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The London District Conference will be held at the Osborne Branch, Ontario, June 19th and 20th, 1886. Saints and friends are cordially invited to attend. Bring reports of changes in branches, &c.

DIED.

MOORE.—At Osceola, Polk county, Nebraska, May 14th, 1886, after a lingering sickness of several years, Eri James Moore. He was born in Ridgeway, Oneida county, New York, January 21st, 1817; he was baptized at Nauvoo, Illinois, in the early Spring of 1862, and was a faithful, earnest and humble believer to the end of his life. He bore his sickness with patience. A few days before his death in answer to a question respecting his faith he said "All is quiet and peaceful. I have no doubts nor fears." His last words a few minutes before death were—"Up, up, up."

HUTCHINSON.—At Deer Isle, Hancock Co., Maine, April 1st, 1886, sister Mary Abbie, wife of George Hutchinson, aged 18 years, 7 months and 26 days. Sister Abbie was baptized September 9th, 1881, by Elder J. C. Foss; has ever lived a consistent Saint, and died strong in the faith. Shortly before her death she repeated the following lines:

Jesus! only he can give Peace and comfort while we live;
Jesus only can supply
Peace and comfort when we die.
Jesus shall our treasure be,
Through his own eternity;
He is now our dearest friend,
And his love will never end.

CASE.—Near Clairville, Sonoma county, California, Edward Franklin, infant son of sister Tryphena and Mr. William Case, aged 1 year and 20 days.

BASS.—Near Beloit, Wisconsin, May 17th, 1886, of meningitis, Alice M. Bass, aged 5 years, 2 months, and 2 days. Funeral services by Elder F. M. Cooper.

EATON.—At his home on Bear Isle, Maine, May 18th, 1886, of dropsy, Elder Jonathan H. Eaton, aged 64 years and 7 months. He was brought into the faith by the preaching of Elder John Landers, was baptized March 2d, 1886, by George W. Eaton; was confirmed, and soon after ordained an Elder by Elder John Landers. The Saints of Western Maine district will greatly miss his encouraging words and strong testimonies of the gospel.

DECATUR DISTRICT.

In consequence of contagious diseases at East Cleveland, near Lucas, and also there being no business except the routine order, the June conference is postponed. Due notice of time and place of the next session will be given.

A grove meeting will be held at Allendale, Worth county, Missouri, June 19th and 20th. Also it is expected that one will be held at Wirt, Ringgold county, Iowa, June 26th and 27th. The ministry in the district are invited to make it a point to attend and give us the necessary help.

H. A. STEBBINS, Dist. Pres.

BISHOP'S AGENT.

To all whom this may concern: I have this day appointed Bro. R. J. Anthony as my agent, instead of Bro. R. Warnock, resigned, for the Utah District, and Rocky Mountain Mission where there are no agents, empowering him with the right to collect tithes and offerings, and pay out the same for the use and benefit of the church:

G. A. BLAKESLEE, Bishop.

GALIEN, Mich., June 1st.

Conference Minutes.

FREMONT.

The above district conference convened at the Key Stone branch, Iowa, May 15th, 1886, at eleven o'clock. Henry Kemp in the chair; W. C. Matthews, secretary. The following branches reported:—Shenandoah 85 members 15 of which are scattered. Married one. S. S. Wilcox, president; Eva Redfield, clerk. Elm Creek, 37. Two marriages. Henry Hershey, president, Samuel Orton, clerk. Plum Creek 85, one baptized. Wm. Leeka, president; M. H. Gaylord, clerk. Keystone branch having been referred back from February conference for correction, was referred to a committee by motion J. Goode, for adjustment, and who reported as the result of their deliberations, 53 members in the branch, 28 of which are scattered, including the only two Elders, leaving one Priest, one Teacher, one Deacon; one died, one marriage. Ed S. Weed, president; J. B. Cline, Clerk. Union Branch presented a report signed by the clerk only, the president refusing to sign on the ground that the clerk had given a letter of removal illegally which question was submitted to a committee, who returned a verdict in favor of the president, the branch not reported. Farm Creek Branch, not reported since November 29th, 1884, when it contained 31 members. Daniel Hougas, president, A. Badham, clerk. Elders reports:—Henry Kemp, George Kemp, W. W. Gaylord, J. Goode, S. S. Wilcox, E. S. Weed, J. W. Calkins, and M. W. Gaylord. Priests:—L. C. Donaldson and A. Hills. Teacher:—J. B. Cline. Deacon:—H. W. Shick, all reported in person. W. C. Matthews, secretary, reports his labors on the records, which are far from being complete; it will require an abstract of all the branches before a perfect record can be had, then much of the past will ever be lost. S. S. Wilcox and H. W. Gaylord were associated with Bro. Henry Kemp in settling a difficulty existing in the Union Branch. When this conference adjourns it does so to meet at Shenandoah, Iowa, August 14th, 1886 at ten o'clock. Bro. Henry Kemp was sustained as district president for the next three months, and W. C. Matthews as secretary. Social meeting in the evening, after which a committee of branch clerks were chosen to examine the condition of the branch records, which were found to be very imperfect, a report of which was offered by the committee the next morning, which was ruled out of order. W. C. Matthews, finding that it was impractical to keep a perfect record under the present and past rule, tendered his resignation as secretary. Balance of time was spent in preaching and social meetings.

PROPER CARE OF OUR SLEEPING ROOMS.

No ONE can deny the need of proper care of the place where we pass at least one third of the twenty-four hours of each day, while we are seeking the rest that shall best fit us for the labor and cares of the working hours; and the fresher and better prepared we are, so much more satisfactory will be the results of our undertakings. It is poor economy to take care of our bodies all day, selecting what is best to eat, and wisest to wear, and then neutralize all by weakening our systems by breathing air in our bed rooms poisoned by our own exhalations. There is no danger in pure air, only those who have slept "in camp," absolutely bathed in pure air, realize to the full the expression, "refreshing sleep." You arise hungry from your couch, exhilarated, elastic, ready for anything, and feel that life is worth living, for itself alone. Every one in good health should leave the room where the night has been passed rested and refreshed if the hygienic condition of the room is as it should be. Perchance few can produce in the bedchamber all the purity of atmosphere that is the prerequisite of the dweller in tents, but at least we can strive for it, and the nearer we approach the greater the rewards.

GOD'S ESTIMATE OF JOSEPH THE SEER.

THERE are a few who profess to be good and consistent Saints and are loud in their professions of faith in the Book of Mormon and the prophetic mission of Joseph the Seer, who nevertheless assume to sit in judgment on his moral and ministerial character, set aside and loudly repudiate some of the revelations which he gave to the church and which the General Assemblies of the church authorized and endorsed as a rule of faith and practice. And, strange to say, the most of that class are those who never saw the seer, never had large and trying experiences in the church, but are chiefly such as are inexperienced and know little or nothing of the history of the church, either in ancient or modern times.

Granted the fact, that the Lord called, appointed and qualified Joseph the Seer to translate the Book of Mormon and establish His "marvelous work" for the salvation of both Israel and the Gentiles, it follows that his mission as God's servant was of a most important and extraordinary character; and it also follows that those who profess to believe in his divine calling and mission as God's seer, should be most careful and forbearing when judging and criticising either his moral conduct or his ministerial labors, and be sure that they have solid facts and perfect methods with which to proceed in forming their opinions.

Relevant law and reliable testimony, justly and equitably weighed and properly applied, are indispensably necessary in reaching righteous verdicts. The testimony of man is, at best, very liable to be defective, and therefore should be received with great caution. We not unfrequently find that officious, over-ardent, and badly-balanced persons "know all about matters," when in fact they really know nothing, but simply surmise, speculate, imagine, and then jump to conclusions which in the end prove false, mischievous, and hurtful.

What some know, as compared with what they profess to know, is but as the drop to the bucket. These facts apply largely to the ordinary affairs of life, and all would do well to be governed by them in making up their estimate of the moral and ministerial character of Joseph the Seer.

The Book of Mormon being divine, and therefore reliable in its testimony, we may safely rely on what it says of the character and ministerial work of the Seer, and also of the estimation in which he is and will be held both by the Lord and the true Israel of God. The prophet Moroni, when speaking of the work of the Seer, says:

"Behold, I make an end of speaking concerning this people. I am the son of Mormon, and my father was a descendant of Nephi; and I am the same who hideth up this record unto the Lord; the plates thereof are of no worth, because of the commandment of the Lord. For he truly saith, that no one shall have them to get gain; but the record thereof is of great worth; and whoso shall bring it to light, him will the Lord bless. For none can have power to bring it to light, save it be given him of God; for God will that it shall be done with an eye single to his glory, or the welfare of the ancient and long dispersed covenant people of the Lord. And blessed be him that shall bring this thing to light; for it shall be brought out of darkness unto light, according to the will of God; yea, it shall be brought out of the earth, and it shall shine forth out of darkness, and come unto the knowledge of the people: and it shall be done by the power of God; and if there be faults, they be the faults of a man. But behold, we know no fault; nevertheless, God knoweth all things; therefore he that condemneth, let him be aware lest he shall in danger of hell fire."—Mormon 4: 2.

This passage shows the promises of God to the Seer in respect to his ministerial work, and the esteem in which he is held by the Lord. In Book of Nephi 9: 11, 12, it is said of him by our Lord:

"And when that day shall come, it shall come to pass that kings shall shut their mouths; for that which had not been told them shall they see; and that which they had not heard shall they consider. For in that day, for my sake shall the Father work a work, which shall be a great and a marvellous work among them; and there shall be among them those who will not believe it, although a man shall declare it unto them. But behold, the life of my servant shall be in my hand; therefore they shall not hurt him, although he shall be marred because of them. Yet I will heal him, for I will show unto them that my wisdom is greater than the cunning of the devil. Therefore it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not believe in my words, who am Jesus Christ, whom the Father shall cause him to bring forth unto the Gentiles, and shall give unto him power that he shall bring them forth unto the Gentiles, (it shall be done even as Moses said), they shall be cut off from among my people who are of the covenant."

In the foregoing we see the importance and the binding force of the words which Jesus Christ would cause the Seer to bring "forth unto the Gentiles," alluding, clearly, to the authentic revelations regularly and properly brought forth as the words of Jesus Christ to the church and the world, as is set forth in the Doctrine and Covenants, section 1: 1-8. In this connection the testimony of Lehi, quoting the prophecy of Joseph in Egypt, is very plain and very pertinent; for it sets forth with definiteness the calling and work of the "choice Seer," the manner in which God would bless him, his being comparable in some respects with both Moses and the patriarch Joseph, the further fact that he should both bring forth the Book of Mormon and also preach and send forth the Lord's work to Israel, also that he would be "great" in the estimation of God and His Israel, and further, that they who seek to "destroy him" in his ministerial work, "shall be confounded." Please read and ponder well.—2 Nephi 2: 2, 3, as follows:

"For Joseph truly testified, saying: A seer shall the Lord my God raise up, who shall be a choice seer unto the fruit of my loins. Yea Joseph truly said, thus saith the Lord unto me: A choice seer will I raise up out of the fruit of thy loins; and he shall be esteemed highly among the fruit of thy loins. And unto him will I give commandment, that he shall do a work for the fruit of thy loins, his brethren, which shall be of great worth unto them, even to the bringing of them to the knowledge of the covenants which I have made with thy fathers. And I will give unto him a commandment that he shall do none other work save the work which I shall command him. And I will make him great in mine eyes: for he shall do my work. And he shall be great like unto Moses, whom I have said I would raise up unto you, to deliver my people, O house of Israel. * * *

"And thus prophesied Joseph, saying: Behold, that seer will the Lord bless; and they that seek to destroy him, shall be confounded: for this promise, of which I have obtained of the Lord, of the fruit of thy loins, shalt be fulfilled. Behold I am sure of the fulfillment of this promise. And his name shall be called after me; and it shall be after the name of his father. And he shall be like unto me; for the thing which the Lord shall bring forth by his hand, by the power of the Lord shall bring my people unto salvation; yea, thus prophesied Joseph, I am sure of this thing, even as I am sure of the promise of Moses: for the Lord hath said unto me, I will preserve thy seed forever. And the Lord hath said, I will raise up a Moses; and I will give power unto him in a rod; and I will give judgment unto him in writing. Yet I will not loose his tongue, that he shall speak much; for I will not make him mighty in speaking. But I will write unto him my law, by the finger of mine own hand; and I will make a spokesman for him. And the Lord said unto me also, I will raise up unto the fruit of thy loins; and I will make for him a spokesman. And I, behold, I will give unto him, that he shall write the writing of the fruit of thy loins, unto the fruit of thy loins; and the spokesman of thy loins shall declare it." * * * —2 Nephi 2: 2, 3.

To the foregoing we now add the testimony of Oliver Cowdery, the "spokesman" whom the Lord raised up to aid the Seer, as is seen in the quotation from 2 Nephi. Oliver says the angel who appeared to the Seer at the first, said to him in respect to the coming forth of the Book of Mormon and the work which should follow,—

"Behold, notwithstanding you have seen this great display of power, by which you may ever be able to detect the evil one, yet I give unto you another sign, and when it comes to pass then know that the Lord is God and that he will fulfill his purposes, and that the knowledge which this record contains will go to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people under the whole heaven.—This is the sign: When these things begin to be known, that is, when it is known that the Lord has shown you these things, the workers of iniquity will seek your overthrow: they will circulate falsehoods to destroy your reputation, and also will seek to take your life; but remember this, if you are faithful, and shall hereafter continue to keep the commandments of the Lord, you shall be preserved to bring these things forth; for in due time he will again give you a commandment to come and take them. When they are interpreted the Lord will give the holy priesthood to some, and they shall begin to proclaim this gospel and baptize by water, and after that they shall have power to give the Holy Ghost by the laying on of their hands. Then will persecution rage more and more; for the iniquities of men shall be revealed, and those who are not built upon the Rock will seek to overthrow this church; but it will increase the more opposed, and spread farther and farther, increasing in knowledge till they shall be sanctified and receive an inheritance where the glory of God will rest upon them; and when this takes place, and all things are prepared, the ten tribes of Israel will be revealed in the north country, whither they have been for a long season; and when this is fulfilled will be brought to pass that saying of the prophet—'And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord'—But, notwithstanding the workers of iniquity shall seek your destruction the arm of the Lord will be extended, and you will be borne off conqueror, if you keep all his commandments. Your name shall be known among the nations, for the work which the Lord will perform by your hands shall cause the righteous to rejoice and the wicked to rage: with the one it shall be had in honor, and with the other in reproach; yet, with these it shall be a terror because of the great and marvelous work which shall follow the coming forth of the gospel. Now, go thy way, remembering what the Lord has done for thee, and be diligent in keeping his commandments, and he will deliver thee from temptations and all the arts and devices of the wicked one.—Forget not to pray, that thy mind may become strong, that when he shall manifest unto thee, thou mayest have power to escape the evil, and obtain these precious things."—Messenger and Advocate, October, 1835.

In this we see the nature and extent of the Seer's calling and work, the manner in which that work would be opposed by the ungodly, the progress it would make over all opposition, and the estimate and repute in which the Seer would be held by both the wicked and the righteous; with the righteous he would be held in honor, but with the wicked, in dishonor.

Dear reader; whose estimate of the Seer is to be received? that of God and his people, or that of his opposers? Which is safest? Which is most reliable? Is it not far the most consistent to accept that endorsement of the Seer which is so clearly and fully set forth in these recorded testimonies? Is it safe to trust those who seek to invalidate the authentic and authoritative work of the Seer as set forth in the promises given of him?

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

A BROTHER wishes to know if it is proper to allow members to dance or play cards, to which we answer No; emphatically, No! To a further question we answer,—The three witnesses in earth are "the Spirit, and the water, and the blood," while the "three that bear record in heaven," are "the Father, the word, and the Holy Ghost." (See 2 John 5: 7, 8). To another questioner we reply: A Priest has equally good authority to celebrate a marriage as an Elder or High Priest; also that marriage may be celebrated in any public meeting of the church, just as well as in a feast prepared for that purpose. (See Doc. and Cov., 111: 1). And further: It is quite lawful for a man to marry a sister to his brother's wife.

By letter from Elder R. J. Anthony, Salt Lake City, Utah, June 5th, we learn that Bro. and Sr. Heman C. Smith reached there the evening of the 4th, and would remain there a few days and then go on to California.

Bro. William Deam has to-day (June 1st) placed on our desk a stalk of sweet corn measuring three feet six inches from root to tip. How is that for corn!

Pres. Joseph Smith started for St. Joseph and Independence, Mo., the 4th inst., to be gone a week, and after that will likely visit Allendale and other points, in the interests of the church.

Bro. F. M. Babs writes us from New Florence, Missouri, June 6th, that he has not heard the Saints preach for two years, and is anxious for an Elder to come there and labor some, when going to or from St. Louis. He lives in town. He would like for Bro. John Taylor of Hannibal to labor there. He says, "I still love the work, for I know it is of God."

Sr. Diantha Carter wrote us from Bird City, Kansas, the 1st, inst., that there are three members of the church at that place, and they are anxious to have the gospel preached there. That country is very thinly settled.

By card from Bro. W. W. Wallis of Hearne, Texas, the 2d inst., we learn of the death of Teacher J. L. Dotson. He also says Bro. Hay has baptized some of late.

Elder F. C. Warnky writes the 3d inst., that in company with Elders W. Newton, A. Bishop, W. J. Smith, and others, they had held some excellent meetings at the junction in Kansas City, and that a good impression was made.

Elder J. C. Foss writes from Cormorant, Minnesota, the 2d instant, that owing to poor health he did not reach his field of labor until May 28th, when he and wife arrived at Detroit, Minn., where he baptized two, and left "others, near the kingdom." His address until changed, will be Cormorant, Becker county, Minnesota.

SR. JENNIE B. SMITH, writing from Armstrong, Kansas, the 8th inst., says:—"The sisters of the Armstrong Branch organized a Sisters Sewing Society on the 29th of last January, and in three months collected thirty dollars."

This serves to show what enterprise, industry, and timely effort can do in aid of a good cause. We know of not a few similar movements which have resulted largely in helping forward the interests of the Church of God, both locally and in building them up abroad.

The "Sisters Union Mite Society," of Lamoni, has aided largely in furnishing our new chapel, in purchasing its sweet-toned bell, also in building side-walks, etc., besides making glad the heart of the poor and needy many times, and in aiding the active ministry. May heaven richly bless all such worthy workers. Surely these are laying up treasures in heaven, thus making to themselves friends by the wise and helpful use of the mammon of unrighteousness. Such works makes God and Christ and all "the holy ones," their "friends."

WE have before us some fine bunches of large, luscious strawberries, of the Glendale and other varieties, raised by Bro. Norman W. Smith of this place.

Last night we called on Bro. Henry C. Smith for strawberry items and were told that he had picked some a few hours before, which for size and flavor were of the highest order. They were of the Sharpless variety, and the largest ones ranged from three and a quarter to six inches in circumference.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins has just presented the printers with a pan of the scarlet beauties, of the Glendale variety, and we can bear witness that for flavor, size and form, they are superb. Brn. J. P. Dillon, S. P. Bass, S. F. Walker, and others, have an abundance of this profitable and healthful fruit.

All kind of small and large fruits give promise of abundant crops this year in this region, if the weather should be favorable from this time forward.

The Saints' Herald.....	3,800..	$2.50..	16..	9x13

The HERALD takes very few advertisements, while the others occupy from one-third to two-thirds of their entire space with paying advertisements. From the foregoing it must be seen at once that the HERALD furnishes very much the largest amount of reading matter for the same money, and that it needs to be promptly sustained by paying subscribers. If we had five thousand reliable, paying subscribers, we could reduce the price to two dollars. Shall we have them? This can be answered only by the friends of the HERALD. We ask that every patron of the paper make an immediate, active, and persistent effort to increase its circulation; and we especially request the traveling ministry, with all the officers of the church, including the book agents, to push this matter early and thoroughly, until success is obtained.

THE Presbyterian Church, South, has been holding a General Assembly at Augusta, Georgia, lately. The sixth day was devoted to the discussion of the question of evolution. The majority report of the committee asserts that the Scriptures teach that Adam was made by an act of the Creator out of matter previously made out of nothing. The minority report took cognizance of the evolution theory. The majority report was adopted by an overwhelming vote—137 to 13.

The Chicago Tribune, from which we gather the above item, heads it "The Evolution Theory sat down upon." The affirmation of the old-time idea that the world was made out of nothing has advanced a step; it is now "made out of matter previously made out of nothing." How made?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is it wrong for the Saints to eat meat at any other time only winter, or times of famine, as the word of wisdom states?

Ans.—The Lord says of the use of meats: "Yea, flesh, also of beasts and of the fowls of the air, I, the Lord, hath ordained for the use of man, with thanksgiving. Nevertheless, they are to be used sparingly; and it is pleasing unto me that they should not be used only in times of winter, or of cold, or famine." In this we learn what is pleasing to the Lord in respect to these matters.

Q.—If the body deny the courtesy which it expects from its representatives, where is the evidence of reciprocity and consequent union?

A.—It is wanting. It is not usual for bodies to show discourtesy to its members. If discourtesy is shown it is usually between members of the body themselves.

Q.—Did the body ever legislate or authorize it? If so, when?

A.—Yes; April 13th, 1883, at Kirtland, Ohio.

Q.—Whence the authority for voting to, or not to sustain officials?

A.—See Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 27:4; 25:1; 99:6; 104:11; 105:44; 107:46.

Q.—Since all are liable to be biased for or against, is there not a probability of injustice being done by the practice?

A.—There is a possibility. We can not say there is a probability.

Q.—Are the decisions of a General Conference binding without regard to law or precedent?

A.—No; no more than the decisions of ministers in charge of missions or districts. They should be heeded until reversed upon inquiry.

Q.—If a member is dissatisfied with the decisions of a General Conference, is he justified in complaining among members and non-members in his ministerial career, and thereby causing distress and suspicion?

A.—No; such action would partake of the nature of rebellion, which is as the sin of witchcraft. It would be unmanly, un-official, and in cases contemptible.

LAMONI has lately been visited by Elders W. P. Brown, of Newton, Kansas; John C. Whitmer, son of Jacob Whitmer and nephew of father David Whitmer, of Richmond, Missouri; and J. J. Snyder, of Albuquerque, New Mexico, representing themselves to be of the Church of Christ. In the presentation of their claims they either failed to be explicit, or their hearers failed to gather the exact positions claimed by them. So to secure a proper understanding, a list of questions was presented to them through Elder Brown, by Joseph Smith, who for himself and others desired to know whether father David Whitmer was the originator of the movement, or whether each of the three acted simply upon his own notion. This list of questions was answered in our last issue.

Others have asked these Elders questions more or less important, and considered to be vital if answered wisely and well; among them, those that will be found elsewhere in our columns over the signature of James J. Stafford. One thing is certain: if the Church of Christ represented by these Elders is the coming church in which the New Evangel which will redeem the Saints, (all so called), is to be preached, it is due to all whom it is expected to effect, that a presentation of the real facts and positions relied upon shall be fairly stated.

TO MESSRS. WHITMER, BROWN AND SNYDER, ELDERS OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST.

Gentlemen.—As an American citizen claiming the God given right to "think for myself and express my thoughts," I have since hearing your claims to be the "true Church of Christ," been led to think very seriously upon the matter; and as the result of a prayerful and careful examination of your claims, I would submit to your notice the following episode in the history of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. You may eliminate all of the above title except the words "Church of Christ," if you wish, for the laying of such stress upon the mere name is simply a case of tweedledum and tweedledee, an absolute non-essential; and to my mind appears from the stand which you take, like straining at a gnat and bolting the Rocky Mountains. And now to the episode. Millennial Star, vol. 14, page 38, article, History of Joseph Smith; written, please observe, by himself:

"Brother Hiram Page had got in his possession a certain stone by which he had obtained certain revelations concerning the upbuilding of Zion, the order of the church, &c., &c., all of which were entirely at variance with the order of God's house, as laid down in the New Testament, as well as our late revelations. As a conference meeting had been appointed for the first day of September, I thought it wisdom not to do much more than to converse with the brethren on the subject until the conference should meet. Finding, however, that many, especially the Whitmer family and Oliver Cowdery, believing much in the things set forth by this stone, we thought it best to inquire of the Lord concerning so important a matter; and before conference convened we received the following." (See Revelation given at Fayette, New York, September, 1830).

We find this account corroborated in "Joseph Smith the prophet, and his progenitors," written by Lucy Smith, his mother, in the following words:

"At this time a certain young woman, who was living at David Whitmer's, uttered a prophecy, which she said was given her by looking through a black stone that she had found. This prophecy gave some altogether a new idea of things. She said, the reason why one-third of the church would turn away from Joseph was because that he was in transgression himself; that he would fall from his office on account of the same; that David Whitmer or Martin Harris would fill Joseph's place; and that the one who did not succeed him would be the counselor to the one that did. This girl soon became an object of great attention among those who were disaffected. * * * They held their secret meetings at David Whitmer's, and when the young woman, who was their instructress, was through giving what revelations she intended for the evening, she would jump out of her chair and dance over the floor boasting of her power, until she was perfectly exhausted. Her proselytes would also, in the most vehement manner, proclaim their purity and holiness and the mighty power which they were going to have."

Verily, "history repeats itself;" something "very like this whale" came from the stand occupied by you last week.

Again, "They made a standing appointment for meetings to be held every Thursday by the pure church, in the house of the Lord. In this spirit they went to Missouri, and contaminated the minds of many of the brethren against Joseph in order to destroy his influence. This made it more necessary than ever to keep a strict guard at the houses of those who were the chief objects of their vengeance."—Joseph Smith the Prophet, pages 221-224.

Gentlemen, is this the source from whence David Whitmer derives his authority. Martin Harris having failed to obtain the presidency, does David Whitmer still hold to the ravings, or revelations, as the "pure church" called them, of this second edition of "A certain damsel possessed with a spirit of divination," (see Acts 16: 16), or does he claim his office and presidency from the revelations coming through the stone which "Brother Hiram Page had got in his possession?" Let us suppose you to say, "He claims his right through none of these," the fact still remains that he did believe in and uphold the girl soothsayer. Moreover, as he was in the church for sometime after the revelation of September, 1830, was given, did he acknowledge that he was deceived by the girl soothsayer and her revelations through the "peep stone?" Evidently he must have done so or he would have been removed from office if not from membership in the original church. Having done that, whence then does he derive his authority? If he does still hold to the revelations, so called, which were given through the "peep-stone" in the hands of the girl soothsayer, or from those given through the stone which "Brother Hiram Page had," which by the bye appears to be one and the same with that of the girl soothsayer, is he not in direct opposition to the revelation of September, 1830. And if he does not hold to, but has abjured them, whence, again I ask, is his authority derived?

If you reply that he has received revelations from God of late years authorizing him to occupy the position he has assumed, what guarantee can he give that those revelations are of God? Having been once—perhaps twice—deceived, is it not very probable that he is again in error. You may reply that we must seek verification from the Lord. But did not David Whitmer himself do so concerning the revelation from the girl soothsayer and her "peep-stone?" and what was the result? failure full and complete, and well it deserved to be. Only fancy a girl soothsayer and her "peep-stone" recognized as the fountain and head of the "Pure Church of Christ,"—a plain usurpation and one through which David Whitmer et al attempted to elevate themselves to the chief rule of the church, and it does seem as if the leaven was still working after laying forty years dormant, and David Whitmer is still under the bondage of the girl soothsayer.

Moreover, at the inception of the latter day work the word was given that all possible speed and energy was to be manifested in the promulgation of the truth; nevertheless, it would appear—by David Whitmer's account—as if the Almighty had been on a journey, or had fallen asleep, or had given up this world as a great "lost cause" for over forty years, and all at once had wakened up and told David Whitmer to commence de novo.

Moreover, you exclaim much against secrecy and secret meetings, yet here we have an account of "secret meetings" being held at David Whitmer's house, and David himself taking advantage of them for his own aggrandisement. Again, how comes it that when David and his "pure church" went down to Missouri it "became necessary to keep a strict guard over the houses of those who were the chief objects—Joseph and Hyrum Smith—of their vengeance!" Does it not seem as if the adder in the path that biteth the horses heels" had reared its hateful head in the midst of the "pure church" of the girl soothsayer and her following.

Gentlemen, all of this is respectfully submitted to your most serious consideration by

JAMES J. STAFFORD.

ANOTHER TRIBUTE.

WE publish the following from the Kansas City, Missouri, Daily Star of May 25th, 1886. It adds another testimony to the causes which led to the expulsion of the Saints from Missouri.

THE MORMON LAND TITLES.

Their History Related by One Who Knows the Facts—An Interesting Talk with Mr. John C. McCoy concerning the Mormon Occupation and Original Real Estate Prices—a Relation of our City's Early Progress.

TO MANY a newcomer in Kansas City when he has begun looking up questions concerning real estate, it has been a matter of surprise and mystery that he has so often been confronted with the warning from well posted and experienced friends, "Look out that you do not get bitten by these Mormon titles." Just why this particular class of real estate titles should be regarded with such especial suspicion has certainly not been generally understood, and doubtless many who have lived here long enough to be regarded as old citizens would be at a loss to explain why it is they share in the anxiety to fight shy of property whose history of ownership in any way dates back to the possession of the "saints" in the years when Joe Smith and his associates made the fight for supremacy over the early settlers of Jackson county. Probably there are very few who know so much in regard to this matter that their stock of information is not capable of receiving additions.

A Star reporter had this subject in mind in a recent conversation with Mr. John C. McCoy, of this city, whose retentive memory affords about as nearly as can be imagined a complete compendium of all that is valuable concerning the affairs of the county from its earliest history. The talk was accordingly after a while steered in the direction of the Mormon occupation of Jackson county, and M. McCoy was asked to give his explanation of the reason for the supposed invalidity of Mormon real estate titles.

"To do that," he replied, "I shall have to recall something of the history of the Mormons acquiring a residence in this county, and of the circumstances under which they were displaced. It was in 1830 that Joe Smith and four or five others, I think, came to these parts. They were either wholly ignorant of the laws then governing settlers, or they chose to think that they could disregard them with impunity. So they first went across the Missouri state line into what was then Indian Territory, and determined to take possession of land which formed a part of the reservation of the Delaware Indians. The laws at that time as to intercourse between white people and the Indians in the territory were very stringent, and were very strictly enforced; and no one was permitted to live with the Indians or occupy their lands without a special license from the Indian agents, and that could only be granted to government employes.

Joe Smith and his brethren professed to have had a revelation, which they said was higher authority than that of the government, and expressed their determination of proselyting the Lamanites, as all the Indians were styled in the Mormon Bible. Pretty soon, however, they realized their mistake, when after two or three warnings, they were notified by Major Cummings, acting under orders of the Indian agent that if they did not quit the territory in twenty-four hours they would be taken as United States prisoners to Fort Leavenworth. Under these circumstances Smith found it convenient to get another revelation. This was to the effect that they were to locate Zion on the east of the state line, and the next day found them at Independence, as settlers in Jackson County. Their numbers then increased very rapidly and it was not long before they had acquired large tracts of land along Brush Creek and in the vicinity of Westport as well as at Independence and in other parts of the county. They were not then polygamists; that revelation had not then been received. They were, however a class of people who were not only very poor, but very ignorant, although some of them were doubtless good, honest folks; and they were so intensely fanatical and arrogant in their assumption that there was almost from the first a pronounced hostility between them and the original leaders and settlers. During the two years that followed they printed a weekly paper called the Star of the West, in which Joe Smith's "revelations" were published in weekly installments; and they lost no opportunity of claiming in their paper and the speeches of their leaders that the land had been given them by the Lord; that they had come to claim it; that it was only a question of time when all who opposed the Lord's purposes and His Saints would be cut off from the land of the living; and demanding that no one should oppose the wishes of the church. All this naturally exasperated the people of Independence and the entire county; and there was a continual state of war between the rougher element of the citizens and the Mormons all of 1833 until November of that year, when the latter were driven out. They had by this time increased from 500 to 600 men, and by numerical strength would soon have had complete control of the county.

"After some bloodshed, the demolishing of the Mormon printing office, and the tarring and feathering of one of the bishops and another man, the followers of Joseph Smith were compelled to leave Independence, and they crossed the river to Liberty, in Clay county. That brings me down to the question of the validity of Mormon land titles.

"The titles to the larger part of the land settled by the Mormons were held by the church authorities. There were a few exceptions to this rule of individuals who refused to allow the church absolute control of their property, and had the titles in their own name; but for the most part the land appeared from the face of the records to belong to Bishop Edward Partridge (one of the men, by the way, who was tarred and feathered) who in this matter represented the church.

"When they were driven over to Liberty it was generally recognized that the Mormons had been treated illegally, and it was anticipated complications would follow. A good many people sympathized with them and several attempts were made to compromise the difficulty. A committee was finally sent over from Independence to Libery to confer in regard to the matter, but nothing resulted from this move except further bitterness, for the reason that at the instigation of the Mormons, as was believed, the boat on which the committee was returning, was sunk just after leaving the landing, and three of the committee, with the ferryman who connived at the plot, were drowned. Then the Mormons commenced suit against certain parties in this county, and employed David R. Atchison and General Doniphan, who were then the most prominent attorneys in this section of the state. To these gentlemen as security for their fees a large quantity of the land of which the Mormon church had become possessed was conveyed; but a great deal of the land was not first-class and had never been regarded as of much value. During its ownership by the Mormons, and subsequently by the gentlemen to whom it was transferred, it was thought of so little account that year after year the taxes on it were not paid, and hence the possession of it subsequently had rested entirely upon the tax titles. This is also true of a good deal of the land which was held by individual Mormons. Hence the difficulties that have arisen, and the objections that have frequently been urged to the Mormon titles.

A SIXTY-FOOT LOT FOR A RIFLE.

"You spoke just now of the Mormon land being of little value. How was property in this vicinity generally valued at that time?" inquired the reporter.

"Not very high, I assure you," replied Mr. McCoy. "I once sold, in those early days in the history of Jackson county, a sixty-foot lot, located at what we should now call Main and Second streets, for a rifle which was certainly not worth more than $5. That was one of the first lots sold on the bluff, and it was considered then a great experiment to go up there, as all the houses and buildings were along the river to be handy for the landings. One of the lots fronting on the city square I sold to a man for $37 on time. He built a shanty on it, but failed to complete his payments, and years afterward I hunted him up and bought the lot back from him for $450. Later on I was offered $9,000 for the same lot, but did not take it, and then during the panic of 1857, having in the meantime put a large house on it, I sold the whole property for $5,000. A good deal of the land originally held by Judge Smart, now in the heart of the city was bought originally for $4 an acre, and I remember very well how I tried to sell to a man named Gill, from Kentucky, a large piece of ground at $15, but he thought that was a very high price, as he was very doubtful, he said, as to whether the soil was good enough to grow potatoes. Many curious things could be told about the history of real estate in Kansas City, if it were not for the fact that the living relatives of the original owners might object to having them published. In most instances of course property has changed hands many times. But some have refused to sell, and have even up to the present time refused to reap any advantage from the marvelous advance in the value of their property. One man died not long ago who has left his family about 250 acres of land in the city limits, on which he had lived since 1828 in the same cottage that he built when he first entered it, at $1.25 an acre. I don't know but what he used the same furniture all those years. And now the land would easily bring $2,500 an acre. It was ten years after the town was located and its site purchased by a sort of joint stock company before there was a dozen houses on the hill, and the very choicest 60 foot lots upon it could have been bought for $100."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Our toll is sweet with thankfulness,
Our burden is our boon;
The curse of earth's gray morning is
The blessing of its noon."

By permission of sister Stebbins we furnish the "Column" this week with portions of a letter from sister Burton, now with her husband in Australia. We are sure that our readers will thank us, and believe each one will be benefitted by reading. It is also timely, for when the church begins to realize the importance of feeding the "sheep," they will not forget that first in order are the lambs. Sister Burton must pardon us for the liberty, and the only way we know how to prevent future occurrences of a like character is, for her to write for the "Column." The mission of the "Column" is an earnest one. It was brought into existence by the direction of the Spirit of God. Its purpose is to cheer, to encourage, and to build us up in our most holy faith. That it is doing a good work for the Master, we have many confirmatory testimonies. But while we are assured of this, we desire that we ourselves, together with each one who contributes to sustain it, may have that spirit of humility which while we put forth every effort in our power to accomplish the end in view, will give to the Father praise, honor and glory, that he permits us to help in any measure to forward his work. Helps were placed in the church, and woman was called a help-meet for man. We have spoken before of those qualities which we believed woman to be possessed of in a pre-eminent degree, because from first to last she had greater need for such qualities than man. On the other hand man has many qualities in a greater degree than she has, because the different part he has to act in life, renders those qualities more necessary for him, and in addition to this, the constant use strengthens them, whether it be in man or woman. We believe that in every respect, except in the priesthood, God intended woman as the co-equal of man. Home is her kingdom, but from the multitude of homes go forth the subjects of a kingdom or nation, and while the father is the head of the home, don't forget it mothers, you are the heart, the life; therefore, to a great extent, the future church is in the hands of the mothers of to-day. We commend to mothers to read again the article by Almira in the "Column" of the issue for May 15th; in it occurs this passage: May every mother in Latter Day Israel, and especially the young mothers, study well and strive to follow the example of Hannah and Eunice: for we need more men like Samuel and Timothy." Please read the letter again, for there is in it a most solemn exhortation of the Spirit to every woman who places herself in a position to become a mother. Do not let us deceive ourselves by supposing that God is going to do for us the work he has bestowed upon us faculties to do for ourselves, nor yet practice upon ourselves the greater self-deception of supposing that we are going to inherit the reward of the righteous unless we work the works of the righteous. Zion shall be redeemed with judgment and her converts with righteousness. In this connection we wish to say that we endorse fully the opinion of "A Sister," in regard to the plan pursued by "Sister Ella," (see her letter in Herald, May 8th), and fully believe that if the mother has first conquered self and exercises faith in God, the following out of the few simple rules there given, will almost invariably lead to success. Mothers, let us, relying upon the help of God, do all in our power to do; and then if it happens that in our extremity we stand, like the Israelites of old, with the sea before us and a pursuing host of enemies at our back, "Let us stand still;" but mark you, not until we have done all that we could do, need we expect God to take up the work and command the waters to be smitten that we may pass over dry shod. Had there been a ford to that sea God would have caused the people to find it, even if their feet had been wet in passing over. He is wiser in instructing his children than we are ours. Mothers let us learn of him!

The letter published from sister Garrett this week is encouragement in the right direction. First upon the roll of 1000—who will be next. Sisters, just as surely as you take this matter in hand, you will carry it to a successful issue. We feel strengthened by such encouragement, and the blessing of the Lord will follow every righteous effort put forth. The angel is troubling the waters. Who will be first to step in and be healed? The church is awaking to the need of more vital piety—of a faith which manifests itself by works.

"The foe becomes more daring,
Knowing well the latter day,
'Tis the strength of his despairing"—
Let us work as well as pray.

Who will be the one to organize a "Hope Band" in each branch they may be connected with, for the purpose of getting each boy and girl interested to see what they can do between this and the first of September. Don't be afraid of work—honorable work of any kind for the building up of the kingdom of God, and the spread of truth will be followed by the blessing of God. When the Savior was upon earth he was among us "as he that serveth," and he said if any would be great "let him be the servant of all. This is reversing the honors of the world, and we are well aware of the fact. Sisters, which do we value most, the love of God or the love of the world!!

WE are in receipt of letters from sisters Salisbury, Merrill, Lulu and Aunt Patience. Our circle is widening and still there is room. We wish every mother, whose children can not attend Sunday School would adopt sister Garrett's plan. In the next Herald a letter from her will give you some of the results of such faithfulness to God. Has "Ettie Wight," whose letter is in the last Hope a mother living? If so, dear Ettie, tell her to gather you near to her and when the bell rings for the Baptist Sunday School take the word of God and instruct you in it. You won't feel badly then, for if you are trying to serve God, the Comforter will meet with you and guide you into all truth. Then when you have learned the way of truth, strive to help others to walk in it. If others are unkind don't mind it, especially don't find fault with them, but set them a better example. Let your light (of example) shine.

LAMONT, Iowa, June 12th, 1886.

LAST THINGS.

"BE YE ALSO READY"—A WARNING WHICH SHOULD BE REGARDED BY ALL.

THERE is a last time to all things of an earthly nature. There will be a last time when the farmer will cultivate his fields and gather in his crops; when the merchant shall visit his store, and the lawyer his office. Daily many are doing their last things. Daily the eyes of multitudes are forever closed upon all earthly scenes. They pass away from the world, and the places that have known them, know them no more forever.

As regards religious matters and the things that pertain to our everlasting interests, there will be a last time. There will be a last time when we shall open the Bible, when we shall bow the knee in prayer and when we shall visit the house of God. There will be to us a last Sabbath. Every Sabbath there are large numbers upon whom its holy light shines for the last time. Before another Sabbath returns to shed upon the world its cheering beams, they are gone from it no more to return; when again the church going bell summons the worshippers to the house of prayer, their eyes will be closed in the silence of the grave.

We know not when the last time to us with respect to any of these things shall be. In many instances it will be much sooner than people think. Whilst they may be counting on future days and years, the solemn summons may come to them, and prepared or unprepared, they must go and render up their account to God. We should, therefore, live as though each day might be our last. We should live each day as though we might be enjoying our last privileges and doing our last things. We should duly heed that solemn admonition: "Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh."

He comes to large numbers, each day, who had no thought of his coming. Nothing is gained by disregarding the warning, but much may be lost. Whilst necessarily busied about the affairs of this life, it should not be with a worldly spirit. Whilst we are diligent in business, we should be "fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." Then it will not matter how soon or how suddenly we may be called away. We shall be ready, and all will be well.—Golden Rule.

QUEENSFERRY, Victoria,

February 2d, 1886.

Dear Sister Stebbins:—I have just finished reading Bro. Stebbins' letter in the Herald of December 26th. I feel the force of every word of his letter, and that it was dictated by the wisdom which comes from above. Not wishing to lose the chain of thought it has awakened, I have laid the Herald down and taken up pen and paper to voice a response to the words, "Feed my sheep." Yes; how many there are that not only need continual feeding and watching, but, as your husband says, "They have to be carried." First it is a labor to get them into the church; and they are indeed like sheep, unused to the new surroundings, and easily frightened. They have not yet become fully acquainted with the voice of the "Good Shepherd," nor docile enough to be led "by still waters in green pastures," so of necessity they must be carried; (He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young. Isa. 40: 11.) I see this so often, in my constant association with my husband in his ministerial labors, and my endeavors to assist him all I can. I sometimes think, "what a weary toil it is to labor for the salvation of souls;" but this is only when the way is hedged up, and when the sustaining influence of the Holy Spirit is in a measure withheld; but when the influence of God's Spirit is felt, then I can realize what a glorious work it is, and how ennobling to every one engaged in it. When the mind dwells on its reality, and the fact that men are so closely allied to God and connected with him in this gospel work—this work of redemption, it brings heaven and earth nearer together, and we realize more fully the surrounding of the "cloud of witnesses." How inspiring the fact, that the great lawgiver makes known his will to his people, and sets his seal to what is done in accordance therewith.

We were made to rejoice in this fact last Sunday, during the reorganization of the Queensferry Branch. This branch had not been in working order for a long time. After all the difficulties had been settled, and the officers appointed, my husband, assisted by brothers Reed, McIntosh and Stewart, was ordaining Bro. Robert Eden as branch Priest, the Spirit was poured out in a marvelous manner, and he received for the third time the baptism of fire. Those present bore witness that his face shone, while he spoke in tongues and gave the interpretation; also prophesied, and seemed as though he could not cease. The Spirit filled the whole house, and was felt by all who were present. The Holy Ghost indeed bore witness that what they had done that day had been recorded in the heavens, and the father sent his sanction to the earth.

To-day has been with me one of the days when the veil which intervenes between the church militant and the church triumphant has been very thin indeed. A time when the spiritual vision can almost pierce through and see the glory of God, and that which awaits his faithful Saints in the world beyond; although I have been occupied in the ordinary work of canning fruit, (to show sister Fleming how it is done.) On first waking, and during the early hours of morning, I was filled with the spirit of prophecy concerning Nova Scotia, and the calamities which would visit that place unless the people repented and ceased to fight against what they knew to be truth. I seemed to feel the presence of the Lord Jesus, or the Comforter that leads into all truth, and shows things to come, and causes the soul to expand, to reach out and grasp and understand more of the things of God—things which all Saints must learn before we can inherit or become fit subjects for the heavenly kingdom. What a blessed teacher! and while learning from such a teacher the long suffering and tender mercy of God towards the erring and rebellious, my heart fairly trembles with love and adoration for his goodness, that he does not punish at once, but gives time for repentance. How great the love must be which causes him to resist the cry of his children and allow them to suffer, knowing they will not be destroyed, in order to spare their enemies. There has been times when in sympathy for the Saints, and while hearing of their troubles, I have said: Oh! that the Lord would rend the heavens and come down or acknowledge his people in power, that the mouths of their enemies might be stopped; but now when a glimpse is given me of the terrible effects of his wrath towards those who reject his words, his servants, and the pleadings of his Spirit—who have spurned his children and trampled their rights and their feelings beneath their feet, a solemn awe fills my soul, and I feel to plead for mercy in their behalf. "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." Oh! how happy are they whose peace is made with God. No sacrifice, no suffering is too great to purchase that peace. May it ever abide with us.

The work here in Victoria is all alive, that is the four places where Mr. Burton has been laboring. The little branch at Hastings that was built up in less than three months, using three weeks of the time in that place, is rejoicing in the gifts and blessings of the gospel. Not tongues and prophecy only; but light, knowledge, faith, love and healing. To God be the glory. * * *

Your sister in Christ,

EMMA BURTON.

GREENVILLE, Pa., June 1st.

Dear Sister Frances:—I have read your appeal and hasten to tell you that I rejoice in the spirit of it, because it breathes a spirit of unselfishness, a far-reaching love and solicitude for the lambs of Christ's kingdom upon earth, those who will after a while have to carry on the work and fight for the truth. Will they not need all the help that can be given to them to fit them for the highest, holiest calling that will ever be given to man? Surely what is worth doing at all is worth doing well; and I feel that this is a right step and must prosper with the help of the Lord. I feel that it is a blessing to be permitted to take some humble part in this great latter day work, and as mothers, wives and sisters, be sowing good seed in the hearts of our children, while our dear companions are preaching abroad the words of eternal life to a world that is in darkness and sin. Let us guard with a jealous eye our little ones, striving to set before them an example that is blameless in the sight of the Lord, and ever keeping them very near to us in the bonds of mother love. Not keeping them aloof from other children not in the fold, but striving to so bring them up that they may be instruments for good among their playmates, even as we should be the salt of the earth.

We have five children, with no Sabbath-school to go to. We are the only family of Saints in this town, but when my husband is not at home on the Sabbath day, as he often goes out of town to preach, I gather the children together on Sabbath afternoon and have Sabbath-school the best way we can. We sing, and pray, and have Scripture lesson, just the same as if there was a house full. We also take up a collection, that is, the children put their pennies into a tin money bank. They have now a dollar and thirty-seven cents collected. Out of this we will send a dollar for two Hopes to be sent to brother T. W. Smith at Papatee. We do not need them for our own family, as we have subscribed for two Hopes for several years back. I would like to hear of ten or twenty Hopes being sent there. I should not have thought of this plan, but my sister Mary suggested it to me. She is going to subscribe for two copies for that purpose, as soon as she can, which will not be very long. I did not mean to write so much, but it is a little like talking with the Saints, when one gets started they never know when to quit. May the Lord prosper and bless you in your good work, is our prayer.

EMMA GARRETT.

"ONE SHALL BE TAKEN AND THE OTHER LEFT."

WITH the eyes of my mind I beheld the armies of Israel, a mixed multitude of people, under the banner of King Emanuel. I saw men and women in various pursuits of life, some hurrying, worrying, and restless for wealth; some merry, some sad, some idle, and some careless. Many had on different parts of the armor of spiritual warfare described by Paul, and some had on the whole armor. Some wore it at all times, and some put on parts when convenient, every seventh day, or when calamity overtook them. I saw the Purifier at work separating the dross. I saw some stand whose eyes were dim from weeping, whose bodies were bruised and hearts were broken from the awful thrusts of the Adversary, who at times would gnash his teeth upon them in fury, and they would sink from exhaustion, with a distressed cry for deliverance; and again they would struggle to their feet and try to adjust the armor; again and again I saw this repeated, until it seemed a voice from on high said, Enough; and immediately an angel touched their foreheads, and lo, they became "very great" in spiritual strength, righteous works and the knowledge of the Lord; their feet being fixed upon the rock; and their armors were bright and securely fastened, became as it were a part of themselves. By these the weapons were constantly worn and used, whether in the field or kitchen. I saw this angel ministering throughout the earth. Two women were busy with their daily toil, one was touched and the other left; two men were in the field, one was touched and the other left; two messengers went forth, one was touched and the other left; two women were speaking in tongues and prophesying, one was touched, and the other left. A husband and wife were walking side by side, one was touched and the other left; and some vainly sought the midst of the multitude to escape the Tempter, and some with a sigh of relief and folded arms, softly murmured, "Peace and safety, all is well; are we not in the kingdom?" And I saw those armed, moving onward, and confusion among the unarmed. Hark! a small still voice through the lines, saying: Up! up! wrestle for the whole armor lest unhappily ye fall asleep without it and be caught sleeping unarmed. "Make bright the arrows, gather the shields, and make the watch strong." Thus I saw "one taken and the other left;" and while my eyes stream down with tears for the sorely afflicted, tempted and tried, yet in my soul there is joy and thanksgiving, and honor and praise to God and the Lamb, who will redeem his people and give salvation to his Saints.

CAMERON, Ontario, June 1st.

Bro. W. W. Blair.—When I first returned to my mission, I stopped at London for a short time, and while there I received a letter requesting me to come to this place, as there was a gentleman here from New York City, a Mr. L. B. Tupper, Evangelist, and he was very anxious to discuss some points of the doctrine of Latter Day Saints, which he had publicly stated in the Saints' meeting were errors. So when I came here he had it published in two papers that he would lecture on the errors of the Latter Day Saints on the evening of the 19th of May. I waited on the reverend gentleman to learn the special points, and I found one was, that the Saints believed in a visible kingdom or church set up on the earth, and that he was going to show it was set up in men's hearts. He was willing to meet me on that proposition, and instead of the lecture it was to be a discussion on, Resolved, That the Bible teaches that the kingdom, church, or body of Christ, is not a visible organization, but is a spiritual kingdom set up in men's hearts. The Bible the only rule of evidence. L. B. Tupper affirms, J. H. Lake denies.

We met in a place prepared for the occasion, chose each a moderator, and were to have two speeches, each a half hour. In my second speech they beat me out of twenty one minutes of my time. This created confusion. When the vote was taken twenty-two for Tupper, and one hundred and twenty-two for Lake. So it closed. He then stated he was going to meet me on the question of the Book of Mormon; Resolved that the Book of Mormon did not come forth in accordance with the prophecies of the Bible; therefore it is not true. We met on the evening of the 24th of May and had one hour each. But he did not occupy all of his time. At the close, when the vote was taken, it was said there were only six for him; and it seemed that every hand nearly was up for the truth of God as I had presented it to them. He is still here, holding some meetings, and has baptized five since he has been here. But I fail to see why they are baptized; for he teaches that they are saved by faith alone, and don't believe in a visible church. The facts are, he is a religious crank. I did not expect to do him any good, but the people that came to hear. To the Saints, the truth shone brighter than ever before, and their faith is strengthened in the latter day work. I have been holding meetings here in accordance with the appointments of the branch, and yesterday (Monday, 31st of May) I baptized five, four of them heads of families, and one a young lady. One of the four was my brother, Abram Lake. At the confirmation there was an occasion that is not often seen, three brothers of us,—Amos Lake and myself, Elders, confirming the other brother a member of the church. How thankful I am to my heavenly Father for his loving kindness in bringing my friends to see the light of his gospel! For years I struggled alone for the truth, not one of my relatives in the work. I now say, "Praise God from whom all blessings flows."

I hear good news from London. Since I left, three were baptized. So the leaven is working. May God bless the labors of his servants who are at work in the different missions. It seemed sad this spring when leaving conference in respect to some things that had been done by conference; but who was to blame? Men must have their agency, and if they don't want to work for the Lord and be with the church, they must go as they may choose and suffer the consequences. I expect to remain in this part of the mission a month or six weeks.

In gospel bonds,

J. H. LAKE.

KEWANEE, Ills., June 4th.

Dear Herald.—As you have for years past so wisely instructed me as well as others in gospel duties assigned by the Divine master, for the full and complete preparing of ourselves for his service, I desire publicly not only to thank you for your words of comfort and cheer, but also to entreat you to put upon record my "testimony" and some little of my experience in the great latter day work which you so wisely advocate and defend. Experience tells me that my mortal life is nearing its close, whatever may have been my manner of life, this thought gives me comfort, that Israel's God, who is my God, will render not only a just, but an impartial judgment according to his infinite goodness and mercy, so lovingly procured by and through the atoning merits of his dear Son Jesus.

Many years have passed since first, with thankfulness, I hailed the "eleventh-hour" call, and cheerfully toiled in my father-land, (England) to spread the gospel tidings and that knowingly, from the witness of God's Spirit. But, alas! like many others I became somewhat deceived by false leaders under Brigham. In this state of mind the "Reorganization" found me in the year 1866, and by the instrumentality of brother Joseph Boswell, and the Holy Spirit guiding, I was led to unite with it heart and soul. Hence I say, understandingly, I know the cause is true, and that God in his wisdom will eventually bring about his righteous designs for poor scattered Zion. Since my coming to this country in in 1869, I have met with trying scenes, first in the death of my youngest son by an accident, second, in the loss of my dear companion. Language is inadequate to describe what I passed through. But I have had other trials, and only desire to know and do the right. Yours,

THOMAS CHARLES.

OAK ISLAND, Texas, June 2d.

Bro. W. W. Blair.—My love for this work increases daily. I am unworthy, unfaithful, and ignorant. I feel unworthy to be called a member of the church, much less an Elder; but I have a work to do. The Saints here, and at Stockdale, seem to be arousing to a sense of their duty. A few of us are doing all we can in our weakness, to keep the "camp-fire blazing" in this wild western country. The work at this place has been, since brother Waterman left, solely in the hands of four sisters, so far as local labor is concerned; and here let me say, if there ever was a faithful little band of workers, it is to be found here. All you who have believing husbands to join you, and march hand in hand with you through the trials accompanying this glorious work, send up one united prayer to God in behalf of these sisters in the church who have unbelieving companions. Those who keep up the work here are Srs. Bennett, Gifford, Currey, and Neal. May God bless their labors. I am casting in my "mite" twice each month here and at the New Hope Branch alternately. I had the pleasure of leading two into the waters of baptism a few days ago. I think others will follow soon. My father also baptized two a short time ago. God speed the work.

We are sorry to hear that Bro. H. C. Smith has been sent to another field of labor. Bro. Heman will never be forgotten here. We are glad to hear, though, that Bro. I. N. Roberts is sent back. (Write to me at Stockdale, brother I. N., please.) Pray for me, dear Saints, that I may be with the conquerors in the great day of the Lord. Yours in gospel bonds,

J. A. CURRIE, JR.

WEBB CITY, Mo., May 5th.

Dear Brother Blair:—I have been engaged in the ministry a little over two years. Have been over the greater part of Spring River District since I was called to the ministry; have met with many noble hearted Saints who are laboring to build up the cause of truth in this part of the Master's vineyard. We have a united little band of Saints here in Webb City, who have been making a determined effort to let their light shine to the world; and the result is, quite a number have been admitted into the kingdom, and others are expected soon to follow.

I took a trip last month to Benton county, Arkansas, in company with brother and sister Bradley, of Webb. They were visiting their old friends whom they had not seen for eleven years. Got acquainted with many of the Christian brethren there. They let me have their church to speak in, gave me a good audience, and marked attention. Spoke to them five times. Was greatly aided by the Spirit, and believe some seed fell on good ground. I never have been treated better by any people, other than my brethren, than I was by the Christian people of Cherokee City, Arkansas. I extend my grateful thanks to their ministers, Brn. Johnson and May for the noble spirit they manifested toward me while I was there. May God help them to receive the gospel not in word only but in power and much assurance. Your brother in Christ,

E. E. WHEELER.

WHITE ROCK, Mich., June 2d.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I have been reading the Herald for the last three months, and not seeing anything in it about our branch I thought I would write and let you know of the great work God has done here; for truly the work is of God. We have had preachers of nearly every denomination to preach here, but they never got a convert. It has been told us that if Jesus Christ himself were to come among us, he could not convert us. But I feel to praise God, that when he sent one of his servants (J. J. Cornish) to preach the everlasting gospel to us, quite a number have embraced it, and all feel to say, "Praise God for his glorious gospel." It will soon be a year since we embraced the truth, and it has been a year of rejoicing for us all. We have prayer meeting twice a week, Sunday mornings and Thursday evenings. It is about eighteen months ago since Bro. Cornish first preached here. When he first came we all thought we would hear a Mormon, as we called them then. But when he had spoken once, nearly every one changed their minds and said, Truly the gospel has come. But some yet call us Mormons. Our branch numbers sixteen, and we still hope for more. We were organized on the second of February, 1886. There is one Priest, one Teacher, and one Deacon in the branch.

Yours, THOS. RAWSON.

GARLAND, Ala., May 30th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I received certificate of appointment to labor in this mission under missionary in charge, but it will be July before I shall be able to leave home to enter upon missionary work, though I am as heretofore keeping up monthly appointments in different places. The South-Eastern Mission-field is a large one, with but very few laborers. The work has scarcely been opened up in this field yet, though there are a few branches and districts widely separated.

An Elder in this part of the mission needs a private conveyance in order to get about from place to place. The brethren can not always convey you about when you want to go, and ought to go, and then you can not go when you ought to. All the brethren who have been in this mission have felt this need, we believe. I think I shall soon be able to get up one.

I love the doctrine of Christ, and shall, with the help of God, enter heartily into the work. There are some good openings for preaching outside the branches where I think good will be done among good prominent citizens, and from these, other doors will be opened.

Yours, G. T. CHUTE.

"CHRIST AND HIM CRUCIFIED."

"FOR I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified."—Cor. 2: 2.

There is probably not an Elder in the church who has gone out into the world and preached the faith held by us, who has not been advised to "preach Christ, and not so much doctrine." "Preach Christ and him crucified; that is all we need to know in order to be saved. It is not doctrine that the people need, but Christ, the Savior of the world." At any rate, the writer has been frequently so exhorted and admonished by ministers and members of other churches; and the answer given has been in substance like this: "The exhortation would come with more grace, and in better taste, and with more pertinency, from us to you all; for it is we who preach Christ and not you." Of course they are both astonished and offended. But is our statement a just one? Do we indeed preach Christ, and that they do not?

WHO IS CHRIST?

And we might ask what is Christ, as well as who is he? The Savior asked the Pharisees at one time, "What think ye of Christ? Whose son is he?"—Matt. 22: 42. And he is answered "The Son of David." But the Pharisees who made that answer thought that, but they did not know that the one who asked the questions was the Christ. Nor could they know it, while unbelieving, unrepentant, and disobedient to the gospel, as they were. And why not? Because they could not receive the Spirit of God, and without that, they could not know that Jesus was the Christ. It is a subject of divine revelation to the person who knows. "No man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost."—1 Cor. 12: 3. Does Paul mean that no man can open his mouth and say the words, "Jesus is the Lord?" Nay; for men who do not believe the fact, (and devils who do), can utter those words without the aid of the Spirit. But he evidently means that no man can say he knows it to be the truth, that "Jesus is the Lord," except the Holy Ghost has revealed it to him. Men can believe any thing told them by others whether true or false, and thousands have believed, and do believe to-day with all their hearts, statements that are positively false and absurd.

Many of us have believed, in time past, and have taught earnestly and confidently what we believed to be truth then, but have discovered to be error or falsehood since. We may believe some things now which may be discovered to be erroneous after a while. But that which a man knows to be true, he ever knows it, for it remains a truth forever, if a truth once. And there are many things that are truth to a man or woman that they can not demonstrate to another. They may state what they know, and it may produce faith in the hearts of many, but not knowledge to any. I do not know thousands of facts that others do; and some things I know which thousands of other people do not. But I can believe what they know when they tell me the facts and circumstances of what they know; and they may believe what I know, and when they hear my testimony concerning what I know. When Paul preached Christ he did not, as the clergy of the present time, preach him as somebody else had explained to him, or as he learned it at the feet of Gamaliel, or in the schools of divinity among the Jews. He preached what he knew, and he readily showed from the Scriptures acknowledged by his hearers to be the rule of faith and practice among them, that what he knew to be the truth, the prophets before him also knew to be the truth; and they believed his testimony, and that of the prophets before them that Jesus was the Christ; but this produced only faith in their minds, the knowledge of the truth was to come in an altogether different way, namely, by revelation to themselves direct; or by the operation of the Holy Ghost given them by the laying on of the hands of the ministry, after they had heard the preaching of the gospel, repented, and were baptized for remission of their sins.

They could not "say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." And that divine instructor was not promised them until they were obedient to the gospel. The natural or unregenerated man, that is, the man who has not received the washing of regeneration, (baptism in water), and renewing of the Holy Ghost, (baptism of the Holy Spirit), can not receive the things or revelations of the Spirit of God, "for they are spiritually discerned, and he can not know them."—1 Cor. 2: 14. But Paul says: "God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit; for the spirit searcheth all things, yea the deep things of God." Who are the "us" that he is writing to? The "Church of God," to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be "Saints." In other words, to the baptized believers of the gospel at Corinth, and "in every place."

Paul declares that as the spirit of man knows the things of man, or, as the spirit of a man, understands all that pertains to the man, so does the Spirit of God know what belongs to the characters, attributes, powers, surroundings, knowledge, and purposes of God; and that "things of God" are subjects of revelation, for "God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit," said he. Revelation is therefore the foundation of my knowledge. What revelation though, I would inquire? That given to Moses, to Abraham, to David, to Isaiah, to Peter, to Paul; or to any apostle or prophet or Saint in these days? Nay; for what has been revealed to another can only produce faith in me, when I am informed of what has been revealed. What revelation then brings me knowledge? That which comes to me personally. I can know the things of God when they are revealed to me by the Spirit of God; and not otherwise. And I can not receive them while a "natural" or an unregenerated man, or in other words "unless I am begotten" "by the word of truth"—"the gospel of the kingdom," and "born of water and of the Spirit." Now, if I am not thus begotten, and thus "born again," I "can not see (i. e. perceive or understand) the kingdom of God," or "the things which concerned the Lord Jesus Christ." If I preach Christ at all, and am not thus "born again," and have not received the Holy Ghost in God's appointed way, I preach Him as I have heard of him, not as I know Him; and therefore I do not preach Christ and him crucified as Paul did. If our advisers who tell us to preach Christ have not believed and obeyed the gospel, and received of the Holy Spirit as the ministry did eighteen hundred years ago, they preach only what somebody has told them, or what they have read, and as they can not discern the things of God except they have the Spirit of God, or the gift or power to discern, they preach Christ variously and in contention, or I should say they do not preach understandingly, and therefore preach opinions of Christ; and not their knowledge of Christ; and this will appear more clearly when we discover who and what Christ is.

Now how did Paul preach Christ? "And I, brethren, when I came among you, came not with excellency of speech, or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God."—1 Cor. 2:1. What was this "testimony of God?" "For I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and him crucified." Did God reveal to him, therefore, what he knew concerning Christ? Hear what he says: "But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace, to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood," &c.—Gal. 1:15, 16. "But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man. For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by revelation of Jesus Christ."—Gal. 1:11, 12. Now as Paul knew only "Christ and him crucified," he received his knowledge of Christ by revelation. It does not make any difference whether it was by a personal manifestation of Christ, or by the revelation and teaching of the Holy Spirit; he was revealed as the Christ to Paul. I know that some, even many, assume that no one could be an apostle of Christ unless he should see him personally, as did Peter, James, John, and Paul, after his resurrection. And there be some in the church who believe that it is necessary to see Christ personally in order to be an apostle to-day. But we have no account of Barnabas seeing Christ personally, nor of Timothy, nor of Silas, who were apostles. There were over five hundred brethren who saw Christ after his resurrection, and surely they were not all apostles. Peter saw Jesus day after day, as did also the other apostles: yet they knew Christ only when God revealed it unto them. (Matt. 16:17). If the ground be taken that no one can know Christ, except by a personal revelation of himself, as in the case of Paul, then very few indeed in this age of the world know him; and how many who take this ground will testify that they thus know him? And if that is the only way to know him, and God the Father, then very few can hope for eternal life, for that cometh through knowing God, and Christ whom he hath sent. (John 18:3). And if Christ can be known otherwise, then it is not necessary to personally behold him, in order to know him. Now how are we to know God and the things of God? "God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit." "No man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." "That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him: the eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the Saints."—Eph. 1:17, 18. "All things are delivered unto me of my Father; and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him."—Matt. 11:27. How then shall men know who the Son is? How did Peter know him? "Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 16:17. The people did not know him, although they heard his preaching, saw his miracles, and witnessed his daily walk and conversation.

Divine as his doctrine evidently was; marvelous as were his miracles; wonderful as was his power over unclean spirits and diseases; immaculate as was his life; and guileless as was his conversation, yet they did not know by these tokens that he was "the Christ, the Son of the living God," for they said he was John the Baptist, or else Elias, or Jeremias, or some one of the prophets. Some said he was this, and some said he was that, but none knew.

And how could they know? for they had not the Spirit of revelation in the knowledge of him. So if Jesus were on earth to-day, and taught, and wrought as he did eighteen centuries ago, the people would not, without revelation, know he was the Christ, any more now than the people did then. They would say, at least some of them, "He is a good man," while others would say, "Nay, but he deceiveth the people." And, indeed, the majority would say the latter, because they would say that the true Christ said that false Christs would arise and show great signs and wonders to deceive, and would, if possible, deceive the very elect, who are the elect according to the covenant. No; they would not believe any more to-day in Christ, even if attested by signs and wonders of the most marvelous and stupendous character. Some would follow him, of course, especially if he would turn water into wine every little while, or feed them on bread and fish, miraculously provided. But if he would require them to deny themselves of ungodliness and worldly lusts, or to sell their worldly possessions and give the proceeds to the poor, they would cease following him; for if they think that the "surplus" is too much to give, and "after that one tenth of their interest annually, what would they do if Christ would tell them to follow the example of the early Christians, as recorded in Acts 4:32-35. But, I repeat, that although Christ should visit the earth to-day, and prove the divinity of his mission and his divine sonship by the evidences he formerly gave, and the people should hear and see what those did when he was on earth before, they would not know him now, any more than they did then. And if they all would not set him down as an impostor, (as multitudes would) they would say he was a good man, a prophet, perhaps, but they would not know that he was "the Christ, the Son of the living God," and for these plain, and divinely given reasons: (1) that "None can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost," (2), that no man has the promise of the Holy Ghost unless he believes the gospel, repents, and is baptized for remission of his sins. And as not more than one in five hundred of professed Christians have done this, they would not have the Spirit, and therefore could not know that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God." They do not believe in present revelation from God through the Holy Ghost; and not believing, they do not possess, and can not expect to know, what can only be known by revelation. So if they preach Christ, it is not the Christ they know, but the Christ they have read of, or heard somebody else preach about, who in turn may not know, but believe only. And yet these people who are ignorant of the matter themselves, who know no more than a babe about the subject, presume to admonish us, (who claim to know by revelation the divine truth, that Jesus Christ is the Lord, and the Son of the living God) to "preach Christ."

Paul who preached Christ, preached a Christ whom he knew, not one that he believed in merely. He says, "For I know whom I have believed (or trusted)." John also knew; hear him: "And we know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickedness. And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, (and what is the 'understanding?') that we may know Him that is true, and we are in Him that is true, even in His Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God, and eternal life."—1 John 5: 19, 20. And John knew these things by the Holy Spirit: "But ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things. I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth, but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth. But the anointing which ye have received of Him, abideth in you, and ye have no need that any man teach you, (and why not?), but as the same anointing teacheth you all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him."—1 John 2: 20, 21, 27. The Saints of old did not say, "I think that I believe, that I have a knowledge of the things of God; or I trust that I have a hope in Christ;" but rather "I know whom I have trusted." "Beloved, now are we the Sons of God, and it doth not yet appear [the time had not yet come] what we shall be; but we know this much, that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in Him purifieth himself, even as he is pure."—1 John 3: 2, 3.

If we are ever saved, it will be by knowledge, and not by faith only. "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent."—John 17: 3. And as no one can know either the Father or the Son unless each reveal the other, so unless revelation be a truth, a fact, an experience to-day, no one can have eternal life, or be saved. It will not do to say that God has revealed his Son though former prophets and apostles, and we are to believe their testimony, for this can only produce faith; it can not bring knowledge. But did God reveal his Son, and did the Son reveal the Father to ancient prophets? O yes, certainly, say our friends. But why not one tell the other, commencing with Adam, or with Abraham if you please, and thus hand down the story from one age to another, instead of every prophet receiving the revelations of God to himself? The old Testament taught fully concerning Christ. Jesus commanded the Jews to "Search the Scriptures," for they testified of him; and he declared that Moses and the prophets wrote of him, and he showed his disciples after his resurrection, both from Moses and the prophets and the Psalms, the things concerning himself, even his death, burial and resurrection, John 5: 39, 46. Luke 14: 45, 46. Yet the apostles could not know who Christ was by reading of him, or hearing him read in the synagogues on the Sabbath day.

Nobody could give Peter the knowledge that he so emphatically expressed, viz, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Did Jesus say "Blessed art thou Peter, because thou hast properly understood the Scriptures concerning me? Nay; because that would have been pertinent if Peter had said, "I believe that thou art Jesus, the Christ, the Son of God;" for he would then have expressed what his faith was, which faith would come by hearing the word of God preached. But Jesus did not ask the apostle "whom do men say that they believe me to be?" nor did he say, "Whom do you think I am?" but, "Whom do men say, that I, the Son of Man am?" and, "Whom do ye say that I am?" And the answer is in harmony with the question,— "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." It is not that, I think, or imagine, or guess, or hope, or believe; but a positive statement,— "Thou art the Christ." And Jesus well knowing that this could only be said because of knowledge, and that said knowledge must come from God, declared that Peter was blessed, because he received the knowledge from God the Father. And upon the principle of revelation and facts revealed, and the knowledge obtained in that way, Jesus declared that he would build his church.

The reason why Jesus said, "Thou art Peter," when speaking of the "rock" to found his church upon, and in contemplating the building as made of "lively stones," was because his name, both in Hebrew and Greek, signified a "stone." Thou art "Petros," and upon this "Petra," said Jesus, I will build my church. But if he meant Peter as the rock, was it Peter as a man, or Peter as an Apostle? Upon the man, or upon the office? If upon the man, then it has a mere human, earthly foundation. If upon the office, then as the foundation of the church is the "apostles and prophets," it would not be amiss, inasmuch as the office is a matter of revelation and operation of the Holy Spirit. But I understand that Jesus merely mentioned the fact of his name being Petros, (or Cephas, rather, as he spake in the Hebrew tongue doubtless. See John 1: 42) and then said upon this rock,—that solid, substantial, and eternal rock or principle of revelation or truth revealed by the Holy Spirit,—he would build his church.

Peter knew the Christ by direct revelation from God, the only way that any man can know him. Do those who tell us to "preach Christ," know him? Do they receive revelation from God to-day? "Oh no," they reply, "there has been no revelation since John finished his book called the Apocalypse, or Revelation." Then, of course, they do not know Christ, but believe in him only. But do they really believe in him? I repeat,—if they do not know him, do they truly believe in Christ? If I should deny it, what then? Why, give a good reason for denying it, or admit that you are making an unjust accusation," you say. It is a serious charge to make, to say that thousands who profess to believe in and preach Christ, do not believe in him. But let us see how much they believe.

Some things concerning him they doubtless believe. I mean they believe some truths concerning the person of Christ; but do they believe in "the Christ?" Now what I mean is simply this; the term Christ is official. It is an office, and not a mere name given as a patronymic, or to please some friend, or because it was euphonious; but it signifies the official character of the person holding it. The term in Greek is "Christos," and means "anointed," but as applied to Jesus it is generally "o Christos," the Anointed. It is a Greek translation of the Hebrew word "Messias," the Messiah. It is said that Matthew wrote in the Hebrew; and if so, the word used by Peter was not Greek, Christos, but the Hebrew, Messias. He would therefore say, (in our language), "Thou art the Messiah, the Son of the living God." The answer to our question, Who is Christ? is therefore this, "He is the Messiah, the Anointed One. The term Messiah is just as much an official one—as much a title—as that of president, queen, king, emperor, czar, &c. Jesus of Nazareth is the Christ, the Messiah, as Cleveland is the President of the United States, or Victoria is Queen of Great Britain, or William is Emperor of Germany. And when we speak of Jesus the Christ, we mean his official character, just as we do when we speak of Cleveland the President, or Victoria the Queen.

Now, who is Christ? Who is the Messiah? Peter answers, that he is "the Son of the living God." Right here we are told by those who say to us "preach Christ," Yes, and he is "the very Eternal Father," by which they mean that he was composed of "two whole and perfect natures, divine and human;" the divine nature was the Father, and the human nature was the Son." Now if this is true, then if there was a time when the human nature of Christ did not exist, then there was a time when there was not any Son of God, and the Father alone existed. That time was previous to the birth of the child Jesus in Bethlehem of the Virgin Mary. Now what does Jesus mean by such statements as the following, "Before Abraham was, I am." "Abraham rejoiced to see my day, and he saw it and was glad." "And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory that I had with thee before the world was." Did he mean this: "O thou Divine nature, glorify thou me, the human nature, that I, the human nature had with thee, the Divine nature before the world was?" "He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not." "God * * * hath spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds." Who being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God; but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men; and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name."—John 8: 56, 58; 17: 5; 1: 10; Heb. 1: 1, 2; Phil. 2: 6-9. What did Jesus mean by such an expression as this, "What and if ye shall see the Son of Man ascend up where he was before?"—John 6: 62. These and many more quotations clearly prove the existence of Christ, separate and distinct from the Father, before the body, or human nature, was born. When God said "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness," &c., he surely spoke to some one, and that that person (or those persons, if more than one), should take part in the creation of man. We have seen that Christ was with the Father before the world was. Paul affirms that "By him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in the earth. * * * All things were created by him, and for him; and he is before all things, and by him all things consist." And he "the image of the invisible God, the first born of every creature."—Col. 1: 15, 16, 17. Now, if the Divine nature was the Father, and the human nature was the Son, and the Son was born 1886 years ago, there must have been two Sons of God, the pre-existent Son, and the one born some eighteen hundred years ago of the Virgin Mary, or else it is one Son with two natures, and not the Father as the Divine nature and the son of Mary as the human nature. It was not the Father who took on him the seed of Abraham, or the form of a servant, but it was the Son, the pre-existent Son of God. The body born of Mary was not the "first born of every creature;" but this being the "image of the invisible God," who "was in the form of God," "the first born of every creature," was not other than Christ, the Son of the living God. He was the Son of God unknown ages before he was born of Mary, or before he "took upon him the form of a servant." Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same;" for verily he took not on him the nature of angels, but he took on him the seed of Abraham."—Heb. 2: 14, 16.

If this does not show that Christ pre-existed, it proves nothing at all, and that the divine nature, or pre-existent nature was not the Father, is evident; for that while the two natures were blended on the earth, the Father was in heaven, as Jesus so abundantly taught; for instance in the "Lord's prayer," "Our Father who art in heaven;" also his address to Mary after his resurrection, "I am not yet ascended to my Father, but go to my brethren and say to them, I ascend unto my Father, and to your Father, and to my God and to your God,"—John 20: 17. Stephen saw two personages in heaven after Christ's resurrection and ascension into heaven: "Behold I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God." And from the beginning of Genesis to the last of Revelations, the separate, distinct, yet harmonious, personality of Father and Son is maintained. They are

"one," it is true; but not one being, one person, or one entity; Jesus prayed that his disciples might be "one" in the same sense as he and the Father were one, and that they might be "one" with the Father and himself. John 17: 21-23. Does this mean that all the disciples of Christ, then and now are "one God?" No one will be so silly as to claim that; yet Jesus prayed, "that they be one, even as we are one." Now what is the doctrine taught by the words of Peter—"The Son of the living God?" This, that he is "the first born of every creature." The creator of heaven and earth. The Only Begotten Son of God. The heir of all things." The possessor of "all power and authority;" therefore "the author and finisher of our faith," "The Judge of the quick and the dead," "King of Kings and Lord of Lords." The "Alpha and Omega; the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty."

Is He not called "the Everlasting Father?" Yes, but at the same time there is a being who is the Father of this "Everlasting Father." Is he not called "God?" Yes, but there is a being who is His God, and who is called the "God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ"—called so by Paul, Peter, and by the Lord Jesus himself. 1 Cor. 1: 3; 11: 31. 1 Peter 1: 3. John 20: 17. See also Heb. 1: 8, 9.

What think ye of Christ? Whose son is He? The Son of Man, the Son of Adam, of Abraham, of David, because of being born of Mary; but the Son of the living God, in the spiritual body, and also in the physical body, the one born of Mary, being begotten by the Holy Ghost, or the Spirit of the living God. And while the Son of Man because of the nature received from his mother, yet that nature was not purely human; it was partly human and partly divine, being begotten of God, while born of a woman.

THE FALL.

"Adam fell that men might be."—2 Nephi 1: 8. No text, we think, in the entire scriptures has been so badly misapplied at this. So far as our comprehension reaches, we can see but two facts set forth by the writer; first, Adam's fall; second, the reason why he fell, namely, transgressed. Concerning the first fact, namely, that "Adam fell," we are not aware that any difference of opinion exists among professed Christians. But in reference to the second, it seems that, not only a wide difference of opinion exists, as to the bearing of the text on the relation the fall sustained to the Divine plan, but also as to the fact actually set forth in the words—"that man might be." Some tell us that this text teaches that man (the race, I suppose) could not have existed except by the fall, and that the fall was therefore a part of God's pre-arranged plan, as he evidently intended that the earth should be peopled, and the fall was the only means by which this could be accomplished in keeping with his plan.

Now I confess that I am too dull of comprehension to see that the text warrants the conclusion that God had anything to do with pre-arranging the matter referred to in the least. The reason is given why Adam fell—not why God caused him to fall. Indeed, no reference is made to Deity whatever.

Suppose I should say that "Brigham Young fell (into polygamy) that Mormons might be." Would any one be so inconsistent as to say that my remark taught that the polygamous mode of propagating Mormons (instead of converting Gentiles) was the only way to make or secure adherents to the original teachings of the Seer? It is no doubt true that Brigham Young did fall, (go into polygamy), transgress that he might by more rapid propagation (as he taught) the more speedily increase the number of Saints. But this was not the way God had commanded his people to seek to build up the kingdom. It was B. Young's way, however. So with Adam; if it could be shown that the verb "be" in the text meant "that man may exist, (which we do not believe), even then it would only show that Adam adopted a plan, (which God had forbidden), that he might, by his own wisdom, excell the plans of Deity by breaking his law and following the council of his wife when under Satanic influence. How unlike the devil, to help man to fulfill God's high behest; and how unlike our God to punish his children with death, and curse for their sakes the whole earth, for doing his will! It will not do to say that they were not doing his will in taking the forbidden fruit and still claim that the fall was a part of his plan; for if his plan is not in harmony with his will, then is God arrayed against himself. Inconsistency always attaches to an effort to defend an inconsistency; hence those glaring incongruities. It will perhaps be urged that Eve so understood the relation her act of disobedience sustained toward God's plan through the fall, as indicated in her words in the Inspired Translation, Gen. 4: 11, when she says in effect that, her disobedience was the means by which it was made possible for them (Adam and Eve) to have "seed." To this I reply that Adam, on whom the "Holy Ghost" fell that day, would have been good authority had he uttered those words; but he did not, neither did he intimate anything like it. If God desired to inform mankind in this matter so difficult of belief, and so robbed (apparently at least) of every element of consistency, why has it not been reiterated by some one who had authority to teach and receive revelations as a "rule of faith and practice?" Adam had such authority, why did he not so speak, or at least say Amen when Eve had finished her saying? "Two or three witnesses" are not found to this view as set forth by Eve; but a great many may be found who assert the evil, sin, sorrow, curse, and death resulted therefrom. Though Eve may have rejoiced over the fall, it can not be shown that God, angels, (except fallen angels), or good men ever did; nor can it be shown that Eve was inspired when she made the above cited statement, no more than it can that those disciples were when in company with Jesus at his transfiguration and wished to "build three tabernacles," one for Christ, one for Moses, and one for Elias. It is not to be supposed that Jesus' inspiration presupposes the disciples' inspiration simply because they were in his company; neither that Eve was inspired when she uttered the above simply because she was in company with her husband who was inspired; nor yet because the words uttered were recorded. The disciples referred to, were perhaps nervous; and withal a little enthused at the honor conferred upon their Lord by the visitation of those heavenly guests, and spoke under their over-excited zeal. Eve was similarly situated and circumstanced. They (Adam and Eve) had received a heavenly messenger; the Holy Ghost had fallen on her husband; and she, overjoyed, and no doubt enthused at God's kindly notice of them. As the hungry man rejoices to see a table spread with choice food, so she rejoiced exceedingly at the return of God's favor. But we are no more bound to accept what she said as a revealed truth than we are to accept the doctrine of building tabernacles for every noted angel that appears, simply because it is recorded that certain disciples under certain exciting circumstances thought it would be a good thing. But the sentiment expressed by Eve, as above referred to, lacks the elements of authority, lacks corroboration, and is wholly wanting in even the slightest degree of evidence pointing to it as an inspired statement or truth. Hence it is not competent as testimony, or valid as proof, in any controversy whatever on matters of fact.

We will now return to the text used at the outset and see what it teaches, namely, "Adam fell that men might be." We call special notice to the words "might be." The verb "be" is, according to some authors, indefinite and uncertain as to its meaning, &c., more especially would it be so when connected with the word "might" as its (grammatical) auxiliary, which here implies perhaps, permissive power or force. But as the verb "be" does not mean here simply to exist or to have an existence, but as defined by Webster, (and as evident from the surroundings at the time of the fall) "to exist in certain relations." This is surely the meaning of the word here, for as a spiritual entity man already existed; as a physical being he existed as represented in Adam and Eve; hence in the absolute sense man already existed, but relatively, "in certain (in fact many) relations," he did not exist. Now, what one of those many, as yet unoccupied relations, did Adam hope to occupy by his act of transgressing? This is the real question. If "Adam fell that men might be" (might exist in certain relations); if he concluded that he could afford to violate the expressed will of God in order to obtain, or attain unto certain relations, it would seem that if we can find what considerations induced him to partake, what he expected to gain, what "relationship" he expected to enter into by the act, then we would have a key to the whole mystery. We are not informed, it is true, that Adam had any independent views about it; but according to Genesis 3:23, he "hearkened unto the voice of his wife." Her reasons, her arguments, whatever they may have been, were then the considerations under which Adam acted. What then, were her reasons for partaking of the "forbidden fruit?" See Genesis 3:11. "And when the woman saw that the tree was * * * to be desired to make her wise, she took and gave also unto her husband, * * * and he did eat." So she desired to be wise, and took of the fruit, Adam hearkening to her voice, (reasonings no doubt), also took and did eat. What for? Evidently "that men might be" (wise). The "certain relations" into which he then hoped to "be" and was inducted, was an advanced relation as to wisdom—to "become as gods," knowing "good" from "evil." Still farther, by it (the fall) he was subjected to "misery, woe," and "death." That our existence as now situated, and that the activity of propagation may have been greatly increased by the fall, (which brought carnality and gave carnal, sexual appetites, and resulted in excess in this direction, also resulting in changes in the organizations of men, largely affecting propagation), we freely admit. That we "exist in (the) certain relations" we now do because of the fall, we also believe, as found in Genesis 6:49, "Because that Adam fell we are" here. Are as the "present indicative plural of the substantive verb "to be" is used, and means, as before shown in reference to the phrase "might be," "to exist in certain relations," namely, in our present relations, which are wholly dependent upon the fall. Hence it is eminently proper to say, "Adam fell that man might be;" or that "because Adam fell, we are." But this does not argue that it was either God's will or plan that man should fall by transgression. It is, we think, self-evident that God foreknew that man would fall, and that he would be overcome by Satanic influence; and that he pre-arranged for the conditions by which a remedy for sin and death might be made available unto man. As a wise and good parent would prepare a remedy in advance for use in his family whom he knew were exposed to, and would be bitten by a serpent, so did God prepare the remedy for the "fall of man." But as it was not the desire of the parent that his children should be bitten by the serpent, so it certainly was not the desire or will of God that man should transgress and fall into satanic captivity and death, requiring the anguish and death of his Son and a universal curse upon all men and the earth also. (Criticism invited).

T. RUTH.

[Both the Bible and Book of Mormon locate Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden. They represent that Satan deceived the woman, and she transgressed the command of God in partaking of the forbidden fruit. For this sin she must leave the garden. Adam knowing this would necessarily separate them and thus end their companionship and prevent them from multiplying and replenishing the earth, he therefore "fell that men might be;" and he did so knowingly and purposely, it seems, for St. Paul states, "And Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression."—1 Tim. 2:14. The reader should bear in mind the important fact, that "if Adam had not transgressed, he would not have fallen; but he would have remained in the garden of Eden," and thus have been separated from his wife. But all this we now mention does not decide the question as to whether God designed that Adam and Eve should sin, nor as to whether they would not have had children had they remained in the garden of Eden. We shall hear further, likely, on these points.—Ed].

IN DEFENSE.

AS I REVERE the memory of my father, Elder H. H. Deam, it has been annoying to me to see the disposition of some in the past to disregard and put him in the dark, so to speak, and also to speak disrespectfully of him in church relationship, as well as otherwise. And considering what I have lately heard, I think it due my father that something be said in his defense in a public manner, and will try and do so if permitted.

My father was a High Priest in the church during the days of the Martyr, was one of the Twelve at the start of the Reorganization, and was the one through whom came the revelation to reorganize the church. He became somewhat dissatisfied with what he thought to be undue priestly domination, and consequently was indifferent and cold in the church, and possibly did not claim a connection with the organization at the time of his death. But he always believed and taught the gospel as restored in these last days. Now, I gather my knowledge from those who were personally acquainted with him, several of whom I have conversed and corresponded with.

What has caused my attempt at defending my father is that it has lately been told that he never believed in the successorship as is taught by the Reorganization; that he denied the faith entirely, and finally "died cursing God with his last breath." I defy any one to prove especially the last statement. It is positively known that he died very quietly and peacefully—so much so that they hardly knew that he had died. I have some letters from Bro. David Powell, in answer to inquiries of mine. I quote from his letters, as follows:

"I don't believe a word of it that he died cursing God. It is the first time I ever heard such a thing intimated. As to his not believing in the successorship and saying God called him to preside over the church, is not true. He did write to Joseph, and we were sitting at the table for dinner when one of the boys came in with a letter from Bro. Joseph Smith, and it was then and there opened and read. I can not repeat the contents of the letter, but it was concerning the successorship. That proves he wanted Joseph to come,—his mind and my own were the same on that subject."

Again, in another letter Bro. Powell wrote:

"I was very intimately acquainted with your father from 1846 to 1859; worked with him a good deal of the time, and stand ready to defend him as a truthful, honest, upright, industrious, fair-dealing man, a devout believer in the latter day work, until, as I told you, he became discouraged."

I have much more testimony concerning my father, but lest I occupy too much space and am not allowed in the columns of the Herald, will let this suffice for the present. And in conclusion I wish to say that I have understood from my mother or some one, that father was intending to attend the Amboy Conference of 1860, but was taken sick and could not. If he had attended he would undoubtedly have united, with all his former zeal.

COST OF THE HERALD.

EDITORS OF THE HERALD:—Having heard complaints from time to time in regard to the price of the Herald, I have been at some trouble to examine into the matter, and send you herewith figures to substantiate the fact that, considering the size and circulation of our church paper, it is one of the cheapest religious journals in the United States, if not the very cheapest. The circulation of the Herald is, I believe, not over 4,000 paying subscribers, and many of these names are retained upon the list long after the subscription has expired. There are papers with a circulation of from 15,000 to 26,000 paying subscribers, at the same price the Herald is furnished to us, and some of these furnish far less reading matter, because the type is larger; and in addition to this they are largely supported by a long list of well paid advertisements. Now brethren and sisters, I am fully persuaded in my own mind that it is high time for us to cease fault finding and go to work to build up a larger circulation for the Herald, not only as a means of spreading the truth and building up the kingdom of God, but that its price may be reduced. Many of the Saints are poor, and the Herald is not only the one paper which they can afford to take, but many times they can barely afford that. A larger list of subscribers would enable the "Board of Publication" to reduce the price and thus good be done to all interested in the work. We listened to a sermon last night, which to every one who loves the work of God would be worth far more than one year's subscription to the Herald, and yet there is no money to pay for reporting, and consequently it is lost to all except those who heard it, and even they will soon forget large portions of it, whereas if it was reported and printed it would belong to the church and be handed down to help those young in the cause of truth to know the foundation upon which the church rests. Let us think of it who testify that we are willing to do all we can for the cause, and instead of tearing down by fault finding, strive to build up in righteousness.

WHY NOT?

To soar on eagle's wings away,
And leave this world behind,
Would ne'er avert the final day
That comes to all mankind.

We are the handiwork of God,
Made from the potter's clay,
And all are doomed, beneath the rod
To lay, some future day.

Then, let us all with willing hands,
The Master's work roll on,
That we may see that better land,
When time with us is gone.

O sinner, turn from evil's way,
And seek a home above.
Why will you throw your soul away
When Christ the Lord is love?

Life's path is but a stormy track,
And leads but to the grave
And sinner, you will fain come back,
You, for your God to save.

So then, prepare while yet you may,
The Savior's yoke is light.
And He will aid you on your way,
To shun eternal night.

THE JEWS OF JERUSALEM.

THE following is from a letter written by H. G. Spafford, a Chicago gentleman, now in Jerusalem, under date of April 13th, to Mr. Chandler, of Chicago, and is taken from the Inter-Ocean:

Palestine has now a very different appearance from the one worn when you were here. I have never seen the country looking so beautifully. The rains have been abundant (the rainfall about thirty inches up to the present, and the crops are all in most promising condition. The wild flowers, too, surpass, this year, anything we have seen before in variety and beauty. In a two hours walk yesterday afternoon, through fields north of the city, I gathered a bouquet of cyclamen, ranunculus, blooddrops, flax, wild pea, and clover blooms, etc., etc., which was simply glorious. I never saw a more beautiful collection of flowers in my life. It would seem that a sight of it, without other proofs, would be sufficient to suggest to one whether the curse which had so long lain upon this land had not begun to pass away, and whether the set time to favor Zion had not come.

Shortly after you left, the tourist season set in, in full vigor, and since that time all the hotels and hospices have been uncomfortably full. Our friend Lloyd has had several parties; he left here last week with a company of nine for Damascus and Beirut.

Mr. Arbeely is still here. I understand that he was officially informed several weeks ago, through Mr. Merrill, that his nomination had been finally rejected by the Turkish Government. The report may or may not be correct.

During the past week—the weather having become more settled—building has been resumed in every direction. We hear of many new building enterprises afoot, most of them by Jews or for the accommodation of Jews. The present season, I doubt not, will be one of unequalled activity in this direction.

A few weeks since I visited some of the new Jewish agricultural colonies in Central and Northern Palestine, and was surprised to find how much had been already done. The moneyed Jews of Europe, among whom have been raised heretofore the "baluka" funds which have been distributed among their brethren in Jerusalem, Safed, etc., have latterly, and it would seem very wisely, changed their policy, and now direct their benefactions in aid of these agricultural colonies and of certain other enterprises having in view the promotion of industrious habits among the Jews. Heretofore thousands have hung about the cities here, relying upon these baluka charities for their support, and it has been one of the causes which have prejudiced the people of the land against them.

At one of these colonies, Samoin, near Haifa, extensive preparations were making for the cultivation of eucalyptus trees; and at Nazareth we met a gentleman who had been sent out by the Sultan to plant a large tract in the valley of the Jordan, south of the Sea of Tiberias (and which belongs to the Sultan personally) with the same tree. To-day a gentleman from the Jordan told us that the culture of bananas, which as you know, was only begun there a year or two ago, was this spring being greatly extended.

In the light of the sure promises of prophesy that this land is yet to rise from its desolation, such facts as those given above are of exceeding interest. A few years ago Jews were constantly liable to be treated with indignity whenever they appeared on the streets of Jerusalem. They were very few in number; owned none of the land, were a little community of despised outcasts. Now, as you know, they constitute considerably more than one-half of the population of the city. They control its trade and own much land. On the Christian Sabbath the fact that Christian shops are shut produces scarcely a discernible difference in the tide of business sweeping along the streets. But, as you doubtless noticed, on the Jewish Sabbath the streets are well nigh deserted. The fellaheen marketmen and women do not find it worth while to come to the city with their produce on the Jewish Sabbath, but take no account of the Mohammedan's Friday or the Christian Sunday. And so we find that suddenly, without warning, Jerusalem has become, in fact, again a Jewish city! It is a change which has come like a thief. The busy world has taken little notice of it—but it has come. Does it not look as if that time of the treading down of Jerusalem by the Gentiles—upon which so many of God's purposes respecting the Jews and the whole world are in the Scriptures made to depend—was about fulfilled? Sincerely yours,

H. G. SPAFFORD.

"And concerning the tithing of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever passeth under the rod, the tenth shall be holy unto the Lord."—Leviticus 27: 32.

"To whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all; first being by interpretation King of righteousness, and after that also King of Salem, which is, King of peace."—Heb. 7: 2.

A solemn question for us to consider, more so, at the Advent of this Glorious Easter. "The Lord is risen indeed," will be the salutation of many. Can we say: Here is the tenth of the income of the sum Thou hast lent me during the year, or the remainder of it? Have I been regularly, as I make my other investments, first laying by the tenth in that bank which never faileth, and from which calls innumerable demand its being emptied out yearly, monthly, aye daily. Can we enter the Holy Church militant on earth, and say, "This house is free of debt, or do we owe Him from whom cometh our gold and silver this sacred debt?"

Let each one answer this to our God, and give regularly the tenth of His own, lent us. To one He gives one talent, another ten, etc.; so will we be judged. Our Heavenly Father has given us a little blank book, called Time, and on each leaflet, composed of seven, is written all that we do, think or say; help us Blessed Jesus and Holy Spirit to say no evil of our fellow-creatures, but to endeavor to walk in His footsteps, who calls all penitent sinners to the Cross that his light may shine around us, and His Peace dwell around and within us all. Amen.—The Hebrew Christian.

THE "LATTER RAIN" RESTORED TO JUDEA.

REV. HUGH STOWELL wrote in the Scottish Presbyterian Magazine, in the fall of 1853, the following interesting letter in respect to the then condition of Palestine, the restoration of the "latter rain" in 1852, and the relation which this had to the coming fertility of the Holy land and the restoration of Israel. If the reader will now turn to 2 Nephi, eleventh chapter and especially the 19th paragraph, he will see how plainly and definitely the present condition of "Lebanon"—Judea—was pointed out by the Book of Mormon in 1829. The eleventh and twelfth chapters also delineate with clearness and fullness the condition of the world from 1829 forward to the end. These facts taken in connection with the letter of Mr. Spafford in this issue make very interesting reading for the Saints, and for all who rejoice in the wonderful works of God as set forth by promise in the Holy Scriptures. Truly, God is speaking from Jerusalem in the fulfillment of His word as recorded in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and in the Doctrine and Covenants.—Ed.

I see manifest signs and tokens that the Holy Land is preparing for the people, and that the people are preparing for the Holy Land. If I turn to Palestine, I perceive indications the most distinct that God is returning to water its desolate places, and clothe its mountains once more with beauty and fragrance. The clouds are again dropping fatness upon its desert places, and many of its wildernesses are beginning to blossom in promise that they shall bloom in due time like the rose. I know not whether you are aware of the fact, but it is one that is fully authenticated, that the "latter rain" returned last year to Mount Zion—a rain that had been withheld, so far as our information goes, ever since the dispersion of the people. And He who has brought back the latter rain in its season, will also give the "former rain" in its season; and these returning showers of earthly blessings are the harbingers of returning showers of spiritual benediction from on high.

There is another fact which, though small in itself, is not a less striking one—the well of En-rogel, or Job's well, supplies the little stream that waters the once blooming vale of Jehosaphat. That well, in Israel's palmy days of plenty and of peace, used to overflow every year, and its overflow fed the streams that, diverted into various channels and gathered into reservoirs prepared for the purpose, provided a supply of water for each season, and so the valley was made to bloom as the garden of the Lord. But on account of the wickedness of the people, the supply of water from that well was long diminished. For centuries the well of En-rogel has, it is supposed, overflowed but once in four or five years; but during the last four years, since Christianity has been shedding its light on Mount Zion, and the first-fruits of Israel have been gathering in, the well has overflowed year by year again. The little stream has trickled along its course annually, with its sweet silvery music; the various reservoirs and tanks have been replenished; and the vale of Jehosaphat is beginning again to blush with the vine and to wave with the cedar. There are other incidents of an equally interesting character in connection with the preparation of the land for the people. You recollect the remarkable circumstance mentioned in the prophecy of Jeremiah, when Israel was about to be carried captive into Babylon, how at the bidding of God, it is said, that the prophet took witnesses and purchased a field from his kinsman, and had the writings of conveyance duly signed and sealed, one open and the other folded. He then gave them to Baruch to put them into an earthen vessel, and that earthen vessel, was to be carefully kept, and I believe it is still in existence, and will come forth in latter times. God declared by these figurative translations, that again houses, fields, and vineyards should be bought and sold, and writings sealed and signed in the Holy Land. Now I can not conceive that this could be fulfilled, if these fields were to be new fields, and if other lines of demarkation were to constitute the groundwork of the future transactions which are to take place when fields are to be bought and sold by those who alone are the rightful proprietors; I can not but believe that the old landmarks will be discovered in like manner as the buried ruins of Babylon and Nineveh are being brought forth by the mighty hand of God. So I believe the landmarks and boundaries in Judea will come forth; and indeed thus has it actually come to pass. A large portion of soil has been cleared up for cultivation by the returned Israelites, and after removing one or two feet in depth of sand from the surface, they have come to a rich alluvial soil; they have also discovered the ancient landmarks—the stones standing at the corners of the fields, which had been buried there, perhaps every since the carrying away of Israel into captivity. Thus the fields may now be traced, and may be bought and sold in the Holy Land. And there too are the ancient wells, only waiting for the showers of rain in order to be filled again. But this is not all.

It is delightful to find that once more the shepherd is tending his flocks on the mountains around about Jerusalem. I was recently in the company of some gentlemen in Leeds, and among them was a wool merchant, to whom a clergyman addressed himself and said: "Are you prepared to purchase some excellent wool?" "Yes," was the reply, "there is no article more in demand at the present moment." "Then," said the clergyman, "a cousin of mine, who is gone to Judea, for the purpose of promoting agricultural and pastoral life there, has written to me, requesting that I would negotiate with the wool-staplers of Leeds for the sale of 4,000 lbs. weight of wool." "O!" was the response of the wool-stapler, "it will be most welcome to me, and will realize the highest price that the market of Leeds will command, for wool grown on the mountains of Jerusalem." Now, circumstances like these indicate emphatically that the land is preparing for the people. But there is more than this. Mark how the attention of Europe is, at the present moment, concentrating and being fixed upon Turkey and the affairs of the East.

Behold what liberty is now given to the Jews at Jerusalem! I believe that our nation is more jealous, in some of her possessions, of the progress of Christianity, than the disciples of the false prophet are of the spread of Christianity in Jerusalem. It is a most wonderful fact, that there is more religious liberty enjoyed at this moment in Jerusalem than in almost any other country of the globe. Surely this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes.

Miscellaneous.

TO THE SAINTS.

LAMONI, Iowa, May 29th.

I have felt for a long time that the Herald has been neglected by the church. The office has been badly in debt for years, and the press standing still two-thirds of the time. This had not ought to be. If the Saints would take hold of it with a will and furnish us with two thousand new subscribers, we could pay off the office debt, and place the weekly Herald before them for threefourths of one cent per day for each working day in the year. Some may say they have not the money to spare. Take a few less of the things that are not necessary for this life and you will have. You farmers take five minutes more each day in the care of your horses, cows, and to all the live stock you have around you; keep the weeds out of your farm and garden; read the Herald and the books of the church, and I will insure you that you will have more money at the end of the year, and feel happier. I am surprised to see that some of our members who own farms are not taking the Herald, and at the same time men not members of the church who are living on rented farms are taking it.

D. DANCER, Business Manager.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The conference of the Alabama District will convene at the New Hope Branch, Monroe Co., Alabama, Saturday, July 10th, 1886, at ten a. m. There will be meeting on Friday night before. We hope to have a good representation from the different branches, and shall be glad to have any of the brethren and sisters from the Florida and Mobile Districts meet with us on that occasion. Elder Montague is expected to be with us. I suggest to the brethren and sisters of this district to fast and pray on the first Sunday in July, that the good Lord may bless the conference, and the work in this part of the vineyard.

G. T. CHUTE.

NOTICES.

As I am now situated it will be impossible for me to visit all our district for some time; and as the church needs financial aid, and needs it badly, I hereby appeal to the members of the Southern Nebraska District for tithes and offerings, that we may be able to sustain the families of the Elders who are actively engaged in the ministry. The gospel must be preached and the Elders will have the message to bear, but who will sustain their families while they are in the field? Brethren, please come forward and lend a helping hand. Means can be sent me by post office order by mail, and I will receipt for the same.

Respectfully,

J. W. WALLSMITH, Bishop's Agent.

NEBRASKA CITY, Nebraska.

Dear Herald:—Allow me to say to the Saints, and more especially to those residing in my field of labor as appointed by the last General Conference, that on account of the severe and protracted illness of my wife, I have been detained at home. I therefore ask for their patience, for bearance and prayers. Humbly bowing to the providence of Him that doeth all things well; my desires and zeal are unabated.

Hopefully,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

MARRIED.

SMITH.—SMITH.—At the residence of the bride's father, Independence, Missouri, June 2d, 1886, by Elder Joseph Luff, Elder Heman C. Smith, to Vida E., daughter of Elder A. H. Smith. One hour after the ceremony, the happy couple were on board the train, speeding away towards California, the bridegroom's field of missionary labor, bearing with them the good wishes and prayers of all. May their lives be long, their voyage safe, and their happiness complete.

CLOSSON.—BROWN.—In the Saints' Chapel, Lamoni, Iowa, at the close of the service on Sunday evening, April 4th, 1886, Bro. Andrew V. Closson and Sr. Mary A. Brown were united in marriage by Elder H. A. Stebbins. The bride is the daughter of Sister Valentine White. The home of the couple will be in Richland county, Wisconsin, and their friends wish for them a happy life and the blessing of God.

DIED.

ANDERSON.—Sister Huldah, daughter of Bro. Charles J. and Sr. Anna Anderson, died at their home near Wirt, Ringgold county, Iowa, at midnight on May 13th, 1886, of measles. Her age was 25 years, 6 months and 18 days, and she had been a member of the Church of Christ since her tenth year, having been baptized at Ogden, Utah, in 1870, by Bro. Brand. She lived a faithful life as a daughter, sister and friend, being always ready to do good and to sacrifice herself for those who needed help. Hence she is greatly missed at home and in the meetings of the Saints, also among the people of the world, for they honored and respected her. She was brought to Lamoni for burial and laid to rest among the Saints. The funeral sermon was preached in the Evangelist's meeting-house at Wirt by Elder H. A. Stebbins, the minister and members of that society having kindly given us the use of their house for the occasion.

Wanted to know the whereabouts of George W. Davidson, by John A. Davidson, of Carnerio, Ellsworth county, Kansas.

The Clear Lake, Hopkins, Dimondale and Webberville branches did not report. Elders C. Scott, C. M. Bootman (baptized three) reported. B. V. Springer, of the Seventy, reported being in his field. Elder C. Thurston also reported. Priest J. Shook had done all he could to move the work along in the village of Buchanan. Deacon Alcott reported. Bishop Blakeslee gave a very interesting account of his visit to Utah and California since last reporting to this district conference one year since, showing the outlook for the work in those regions to be encouraging. Had done all in his power to promote the interests of the good work. Bishop's Agent, W. Lockerby, reported having received $120.13. Paid out $108.40. On hand $11.73. C. Scott was chosen president of the district till next conference, O. B. Teters was sustained secretary, and Wm. Lockerby, Bishop's Agent. Bro. C. Bootman preached Saturday evening, B. V. Springer Sunday morning. At 2:30 p. m. sacrament and social meeting was held, during which Robert Alcott, by recommendation of the Galien Branch, was ordained an Elder, and Reuben B. Wheaton a Teacher, by B. V. Springer and C. Scott. The good Spirit certified the acceptance of the work done. All felt strengthened and renewed for the conflict. The authorities of the church were sustained. C. Scott preached Sunday evening, after which the conference adjourned to meet with the Coldwater Branch, the time to be designated by the district president.

WE have received from reliable authority, H. L. Hastings, of Boston, Mass. "Atheism and Arithmetic," one of the Anti-Infidel series. "The alarming increase of Skepticism and Atheism in the land, as illustrated by the fact that in the United States, the number of homicides was more than twice as large in 1884 as in 1883, indicates the importance of dealing promptly and vigorously with these important questions. The fact that cheap atheistic publications are being scattered by hundreds of thousands, not only through this land, but also in heathen countries where Christianity is just beginning to take root, furnishes another reason for prompt and energetic action on the part of Christians." The price of "Atheism and Arithmetic," in strong manilla covers, is 15 cents; cloth, 35 cents. We heartily commend this book to our readers.—Sel.

DOES THE CASE SO STAND?

THERE will be found elsewhere in this issue an article with the caption, "How the case stands," from the pen of Elder Jason W. Briggs.

In publishing this article the HERALD is desirous that some things stated in it may be more properly understood than they would be from the terms of the article itself.

1. The paper of withdrawal states specifically that the parties had sought to have certain alleged points of belief and church policy modified or corrected; and further states that the parties had hoped that such obnoxious features had been "set at rest; and we were induced to believe that they were, and that the church was disposed to drop these doctrines as essential to membership and good standing."

The language quoted above is from the article of withdrawal itself, and warrants the idea said by Elder Briggs to have been conveyed by the editorial referred to. It was the intention to "convey" just that "idea," for it is certainly conveyed. In the article of withdrawal, it is stated, "In the years gone by we have sought to have the action of the body upon the more important of these, (doctrines), and preparatory to the action sought have endeavored to show from the books themselves that the church have been, and that many are still in error." No juster inference can be drawn than that these men sought to have the church "recede" from, or "drop" some of its doctrines.

2. The conclusion is also equally just that if the church were to drop a doctrine, tenet, or policy to accommodate itself to the opinions, or beliefs of those withdrawing, the same ones, or others might ask for other concessions, and so the church be asked to recede from all, if demanded, and for similar reasons.

3. There was no congratulation upon the representatives of the church standing firm, in the editorial referred to; but the plain statement that they did stand firm. There was no effort to overstate the matter, or to underrate the men or distort the motives of those who withdrew.

4. The reasons given in the paper of withdrawal are not the assault upon the faith of the church. That assault was made before those reasons were formulated and presented; and the article by Elder Briggs itself states that those presenting their letter of withdrawal had "controverted certain doctrines, etc." It is not left to inference that because "certain doctrines and principles or policy are more or less accepted and taught by the Elders in the church;" these men withdrew from it; this is their own allegation. What conclusion can be fairer than the one that as the church had not, or would not drop the things complained of, and the Elders who accepted and believed them enjoined by the church from teaching them, these men withdrew from the fellowship of the church; thus making the belief of a few or the many of the Elders in those things which they did not believe the cause and the occasion of their withdrawal.

5. The report of committee to whom the article of withdrawal was referred, is not in substantial agreement with that article of withdrawal. It is a reaffirmation of the position the church has occupied and now occupies upon the points named in that report. If the things affirmed in the report are a correct statement of the positions of the church, and in agreement with the men withdrawing, then should they not have withdrawn. If Elder Briggs is in substantial agreement with that report, then was there no occasion for withdrawal.

6. There was no necessity for the church to affirm belief in what the parties withdrawing objected to. The church had never affirmed some of them at all, and some of them in nothing like the sense in which those withdrawing presented them. Some of the objections are without point, as far as the belief of the church is concerned; and no one should expect an elaborated answer in such a case.

7. The gagging by the Board of Publication could apply to but one of the parties who withdrew, if to any, and was a matter solely within the control of the Board, subject to an enquiry before the Conference. No complaint was made to Conference of refusal to publish, and the Board asked to state why such refusal was given, or explanation asked from the Board before the Conference.

8. The action of withdrawal by the parties named in it was presented at an early moment in the conference, and made the giving a reason for refusing to sustain at the preceding session unnecessary; hence the inference that the Conference could not have formulated a reason is a wrong one. No complaint of the action of the previous conference in failing to sustain was formally made; nor was there an effort made upon the part of those withdrawing to obtain a reason for not sustaining; the reasons for such refusal to sustain were asked for by others than the ones who withdrew, and they urged at the former session that such reasons should be given.

9. The substance of the Committee's report has been affirmed at repeated sessions of the Conferences of the church, and its essence and spirit may be found in several of the actions of Conferences held prior to 1885. The principle of toleration found in it, is found in the report of the Presidency in the fall of 1879; and has ever been recognized on all necessary occasions. The principle of toleration formulated by Jesus: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; and he that believeth not shall be damned;" permits no latitude to individual opinion; and though human privilege may exist to refuse credence without coercion, the "word spoken shall judge men in the last day."

10. If the report of the committee is in substantial agreement with those who withdrew; and if such report correctly states the positions of the church; and if Elder Briggs' statement is correct that had these things been "incorporated in the proceedings of the conference of 1885," "it is probable" that "no withdrawal would have occurred;" the fault of misunderstanding does not rest upon the church, and we can all the more readily acquiesce in the statement of Elder Briggs, "we are willing to let the responsibility of the causes and the occasion for the 'grave mistake' rest where the record places it."

11. It almost seems that from the first to the last the church as a body has been placed as if individual rights were the only ones to be regarded; that rules of association, obligations of membership, courtesy to co-workers were all to be made subservient to individual rights and dignities; that the church was in duty bound to respect and regard individual rights and the sanctity of individual conscience and opinion whether she was heard and listened to or not. We do not say that such has been the intention or purpose, and trust that we mistake appearance.

THERE is yet fear of the influence of the royalist feeling in France, as may be seen from the following which is from the Chicago Tribune of June 3d:

"The Committee of the French Chamber of Deputies having in charge the Expulsion bill has decided that the measure shall be compulsory, not permissive, and that it be applied to all members of all families which at any time reigned in France."

FALSE AND VENOMOUS.

THE Indianapolis (Ind.) News of April 21st, sent us by Bro. D. O. Trout, of Whitestown, Ind., contains an article from its Washington correspondent, "Murray," which is an attack upon Mormonism in general, and in particular upon Brighamism. There are at least two evil principles that thread their two weary, wriggling columns from beginning to end; first, its gall; and, second, its downright falsity. We do not say but what some of its statements are true; but what we do say is, that many of them are absolutely untrue. Here is a specimen excerpt:

"The English language is not rich enough in terms to express the horror and indignation of the good people of this country as to polygamy. All men of all parties have joined mouths from the earliest days of Mormonism to the present in common cause of denunciation. Against it year after year have been hurled the weekly thunder of a thousand pulpits of the church. Political parties have fulminated platforms against it. Laws of the most stringent character concocted by the shrewdest lawyers and congressional experts for the express purpose of leaving no loop-hole for escape, have been passed. Armies have been sent against it. From State to State it has been driven—all in these fifty years."

Replying to the above we assert that, from "the earliest days of Mormonism" up to 1844, polygamy was not only no part of its doctrine, but, on the other hand, that the church denounced it in the plainest and severest terms, both by means of the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, and also through its papers and periodicals. The apostate Utah leaders did not teach polygamy publicly till August 29th, 1852.

It is true that "armies have been sent against "Mormonism;" also that "from State to State it has been driven—all in these fifty years." But this fact is not now, nor will it ever be, to the honor of those who inspired or did the driving. When the history of these drivings by mobs and armies are weighed in the cool, dispassionate judgment of worthy men and women, the very evidences furnished by those who incited and did the driving will overwhelm them with deep and damning disgrace.

Very many of the errors and evils forced in among the Mormons, very much of the bitter, retaliatory, and vengeful spirit exhibited by some of them, are traceable directly to the inhuman, brutal, fiendish treatment the Saints received all along from 1830 to 1846 and later. The genius of American institutions forbids and frowns down both mobs and military interference in correcting religious or domestic evils, whether real or imaginary. But this correspondent cites such treatment of the Saints with evident gusto, and without doubt fully endorses it, and is therefore not fitly qualified to write up so grave a matter.

The facts are, taking the testimony only of the leading non-Mormons immediately connected therewith, the mobbings and driving of the Saints which occurred at and near Independence, Missouri, in 1833, arose (1) from the fact that these Saints claimed the same system of religion in form and spiritual power that is recorded in the New Testament; and (2), because they were eastern people chiefly, and were anti-slavery in sentiment; and, (3), because the Missourians were afraid they would interfere with them politically. These were the reasons, substantially, which were set forth in the published addresses of those who persecuted and drove out the Mormons, not only at and about Independence, but of those who expelled them from Clay and adjoining counties afterwards. In proof of this we not only have the published testimonies of these persecutors themselves, published in their own papers, but we have likewise the testimonies of the late Col. Pitcher, of Independence, a confessed mobber, and that of General Doniphan, a noble man and chief citizen of Richmond, Mo., both of which were published in the Kansas City Journal in 1881. Especially is this true of the statements of General Doniphan, now living in Richmond, Mo., honored and beloved by all who know him. He says of the Mormons of those times:

"They were northern people, who, on account of their declining to own slaves and their denunciation of the system of slavery, were termed 'free-soilers.' The majority of them were intelligent, industrious and law-abiding citizens, but there were some ignorant, simple minded fanatics among them, whom that people said would steal." * * * "I think the real objections to the Mormons were their denunciations of slavery, and the objections slave holders had to having so large a settlement of anti-slavery people in their midst, and also to their acquiring such a large amount of land, which then belonged to the government, and was subject to pre-emption."

He further says:

"While the Mormons resided in Clay county, they were a peaceable, sober, industrious and law-abiding people, and during their stay with us [in Clay county.—Ed.] not one was ever accused of a crime of any kind."

The very worst (and much of that was untrue) that the Jackson county mobbers could find to say of the Mormons up to the middle of July, 1833, and the very best reasons they could and did give up to that time for persecuting and driving them were as follows, taken from their own paper, the Western Monitor: "They openly blaspheme the most high God, and cast contempt on his holy religion, by pretending to receive revelations direct from heaven, by pretending to speak unknown tongues by direct inspiration, and by divers pretenses derogatory of God and religion, and to the utter subversion of human reason. They declare openly that their God hath given them this county of land, and that sooner or later they must and will have possession of our land for an inheritance."

These, with the charge (which was afterwards proved false) that some of the Mormons had "tampered with the slaves," were their publicly avowed and published reasons for persecuting the Mormons, destroying their printing press, store and other property, and for expelling these American citizens from their own lands and homes! These mobbers were the men who professed to defend morality and the religion of the lowly Nazarene! These men sat in judgment and executed wrath upon those whose religious notions happened to differ from theirs, though precisely in harmony with that of Christ and his apostles as set forth in the New Testament. These self-constituted conservators of law and religion were the very ones who first openly and with force ruthlessly violated both, and then raised the hue and cry that the Mormons were unparalleled and unendurable sinners, and then used every means in their power to spread and fasten their statements upon the public mind in order to excuse, or palliate their evil doing.

And when "Subsequently, Governor Boggs, in a special message to the Missouri legislature in 1840, referring to the Mormons, used this language: 'These people had violated the laws of the land by open force and avowed resistance to them. They had undertaken, without the aid of the civil authority, to redress their real or fancied grievances. They had instituted among themselves a government of their own, independent of and in opposition to the government of the state. They had at an inclement season of the year driven the inhabitants of an entire county from their homes, ravaged their crops and destroyed their dwellings. Under these circumstances it became the imperative duty of the executive to interfere and exercise the powers with which he was invested, to protect the lives and property of our citizens, to restore order and tranquility to the country, and maintain the supremacy of the laws,'" he evidently did so to excuse his own wrong doing towards the Mormons, and to palliate his own offenses in that matter against the very commonwealth of which he was then Governor. When this man in an order to General A. W. Doniphan and other officers said that "the Mormons must leave the state or be exterminated," he exhibited the real animus of the persecutions that followed the Mormons in New York, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois and elsewhere. It was the same spirit that moved and marked the persecutions of the early Christians, of the Reformers in Europe, and of the Baptists, Quakers, etc., in the United States.

General Doniphan pronounced the Governor's order "illegal;" and in his report to him he stated that "the age of extermination was over," and that if he "attempted to remove them to some other State it would cause additional trouble."

This governor Boggs from that time on sank rapidly into merited political and social oblivion and contempt, and his name will probably be known to future generations only in connection with the Mormon persecutions in Missouri, in which he took such an active and inglorious part.

General Doniphan's testimony is that of an intelligent, conscientious officer and citizen, one well acquainted with the facts of which he speaks; while that of Governor Boggs and his fellows is that of bigoted persecutors who seek to conceal, disguise, or excuse their own misdeeds. "Murray" and his like had better study all sides of "Mormonism" before they undertake to write it up.

THE senior editor was away from the office from the 4th to the 14th of June inclusive, on a visit to Independence, Missouri. While there he preached three discourses and attended service when others spoke.

The branch seems to be doing fairly well. It is already quite large and additions are constantly being made by arrivals from other places and by baptism. A good feeling seems to prevail, and if they can only bear the irritation of daily business intercourse in the struggle for the bread that perishes with the using, they will continue to do well. It is a trying ordeal.

A temperance revival was in progress when we arrived there, under the labor and direction of Capt. Dan. K. Shields, of Virginia, an enthusiastic and able lecturer. Sixteen hundred and thirty-one had signed the pledge and donned the red ribbon of promise. It was quite apparent that much good was done. The editor attended several of the services, but took no part other than to listen. Brn. F. G. Pitt and Joseph Luff had been assisting in the meetings to some extent.

On the way down to Independence we were most agreeably surprised with the coming on board the train at Bethany of Bro. Hiram Rathbun and his wife, on their way to Kansas. He had been stopping at Avery, Iowa, since conference and had preached there and at Cuba, with good effect. He is now at Dover, Shawnee county, Kansas, has spoken twice; once in the Congregational and once in the Baptist church. What the result may be he does not know. Bro. Rathbun sent us a long, breezy letter, dated June 10th about his trip, but some of it being of a personal flattering nature to us, we omit it and give the closing pages of it. We found Bro. Rathbun and wife pleasant companions, and derived much pleasure from a sketch of some of the interesting scenes in Bro. Rathbun's life, connected with the latter day work. He writes:

"We arrived here about noon last Saturday. Dover is a small village on Mission Creek. The houses are all good and nice. It is surrounded in every direction to a great distance with a splendid farming country. We have been known in this country for a number of years by some of the oldest and best citizens of the country, and especially for our anti-sectarian sentiments. We preached here some sixteen years ago. There are three churches here now—the Baptist, the Congregationalist and the Methodist Episcopal. Our coming here was totally unknown, and so it was a surprise; but it soon went abroad, everywhere. Unbeknown to me, or even my brother-in-law—Square Waldo, arrangements were made and the Congregationalist minister, as a committee, waited upon me Sabbath morning, to preach in the Congregationalist church in the forenoon and in the Baptist church in the evening. I accepted the invitation and thanked them for the courtesy. We had a full house in the forenoon and a larger house packed full in the evening. We had excellent attention and good liberty. After the meeting in the evening the Baptist clergyman was quite anxious to take up a collection for me, but I appreciated his goodness, thanked him for his kindness and respectfully declined his taking up any collection for me until he was better acquainted with me and what I taught. What is now before me I do not know. My wife's health is improving so fast and she is enjoying the country and her visit so very much that she is quite anxious to stay quite awhile; while I am equally anxious to return to Michigan and take part in the Christian war there. I have not seen a Herald for three weeks. I do not know but what every thing is just ready to go off in a chariot of fire and leave me over here in drouthy, bleeding Kansas. Well, I shall try to do right, ever trusting in Him who doeth all things well, hoping to be remembered in love and lenity especially at the Galien conference, Michigan.

June 10th, 1886.

Bro. Blair:—Since my acquaintance with the Saints' Herald (about three years), I have been a careful reader of the question and answer column, and have I trust, gained some knowledge from what has from time to time been given therein.

In the Herald of June 5th, is an answer to a question relative to a statement made by Z. H. Gurley, that "marrying for eternity, and being sealed to two wives for eternity, was taught in the church in 1841." In said answer a question taken from the Times and Seasons for November 15th, 1844, containing the following: "If any man's wife die, he has a right to marry another, and to be sealed to both for eternity; to the living and the dead;" is used as being the foundation for said statement. As the article from which this passage was taken was published after the death of Joseph the Seer, will you please state: 1st, Who was the author of said article? 2d, What authority, if any, had he for stating, that "if a man's wife die he had a right to marry another, and to be sealed to both for eternity; to the living and the dead?" 3d, Was the statement thus made accepted as authoritative? 4th, Has the principle of being sealed to wives for eternity at any time been taught in the church? 5th, If such a principle has ever been taught in the church, has it subsequently been denied, and if so, why?

Replying to the foregoing questions, we have to say:

1. The author of the article mentioned in question 1, is "An old man of Israel."
2. We know of no authority for marrying or sealing wives for eternity. The Sadducees argued that if the resurrection were true, then marriages performed in time would be binding in eternity. But Jesus refuted them, saying: "The children of this world marry and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage."—Luke 20:34, 35. Paul, following Jesus, teaches that the marriage bond is of force only in and for this life, "For the woman which hath a husband is bound by the law of her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband."—Rom. 7:2. See also 1 Cor. 7:39.

Joseph the Seer in his "History" for Dec. 13th, 1835, Mill. Star, says,—"I sealed the matrimonial engagements between Mr. E. Webb and Miss E. A. McWithy, in the name of God, and pronouncing the blessings of heaven upon their heads, closed by returning thanks." In his "History" for Jan. 14th, 1836, he says he joined "in matrimony," "Mr. John Webb and Mrs. Catharine Wilcox," "also Mr. Thomas Carrico and Miss Elizabeth Baker, at the same place; all which I performed in my usual style, in the midst of a large assembly. We then partook of some refreshment, and our hearts were made glad with the fruit of the vine. This is according to the pattern set by our Savior himself, and we feel disposed to patronize all the institutions of heaven." This is the kind, and the manner, of the "sealing" and marriage practiced by the Seer, as recorded in his authentic history, and the only kind we have any knowledge of as being authorized by the church up to 1844.

It has been rumored that there were secret sealings and secret marriages, not in the church proper, but among some of its members, as early as 1843. But nothing of this kind appears in any of the genuine authentic records of the church, until the statement made by "An old man in Israel, Nov. 15th, 1844, near five months after the death of Joseph the Seer. John Taylor was then Editor of the Times and Seasons. This last answer covers the ground of questions 3, 4, and 5, and points to the fact that there is no recorded evidence of and no claim by command or precedent for plural sealings of any kind for eternity up to Nov. 15th, 1844.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

"A NEIGHBOR" writes from Fall River, Mass., of late, that he attended a conference of the Saints at New Bedford, Mass., the 5th, 6th and 7th inst., which he says was "one of the most solid conferences we ever witnessed. The preaching was by Brn. Charles Coombs, E. N. Webster, M. H. Bond, and F. M. Sheehy, and in great power. The gifts of tongues, interpretation, etc., were enjoyed. Two were baptized by Elder John Smith. And the writer assures us that "such order, such interest, and such power, are marvelous."

Bro. Joseph Gilbert, of Omaha, Nebraska, called on us June 14th and 15th on his way to England, his native land, where he thinks to do some good by telling the gospel story, as revealed in these last days.

Bro. Thomas Connors of Independence will also go to England on a visit to his relatives and friends. While there he expects to tell them what he has seen of the goodness of God.

In the HERALD for June 19th, on page 371, there is a question and answer that will hardly be understood in the connection in which they appear. The third question is, "Did the body ever legislate or authorize it? If so, when?" Answer, "Yes; April 13th, 1883, at Kirtland." This question was one of a number asked consecutively, and should have followed the one on page 323 in the HERALD of May 29th, having reference to the Reunion Meeting held at Galland's Grove, October, 1885, and not to the question in regard to discourtesy to members which it follows.

Bro. John S. Lawton of 1220, Tremont street, Boston, Massachusetts, sent us copies of the Boston Globe, containing a good notice of the late conference for the Massachusetts district, and a short article by Bro. Lawton, objecting to the use of the word "Mormon" as an appellation applied to the church. We thank Bro. Lawton for his remembrance of our work in sending the papers.

Papers from Bro. Wm. Street, also, and others of the brethren abroad, are thankfully received.

Brethren R. J. Anthony and Peter Anderson were at Pleasant Grove, Utah, June 9th, doing what they could.

Bro. William Newton has baptized three near his home at Wyandotte, Kansas, since the last conference.

Until further notice the address of Bro. B. V. Springer will be Box 835 Coldwater, Branch county, Michigan. Those corresponding with Bro. Springer please bear this in mind.

Letters from Sr. Mary S. Gill, Wheeling, West Virginia, May 23d; Lizzie Wiper, of Forman, Sargent county, Dakota, herself and family all the Saints there, are anxious to have an Elder visit them and preach there; Samuel Shaw, Beatrice, Nebraska, June 6th, containing a dream.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"The healing of his seamless dress
Is by our beds of pain;
We touch him in life's throng and press,
And we are whole again.
Through him the first fond prayers are said,
Our lips of childhood frame,
The last low whispers of our dead
Are burdened with his name."

WHEN God made choice of men and women in any age of the world to do a work for him, he chose those who were rich—rich in faith—and we have not the slightest idea that the same qualification is not just as necessary to-day. A living faith is requisite, and if we have it, works will follow it. It has been our intention for some time to give a brief account of what the sisters have been doing (by their own labor) for the branch in Lamoni. We have not time just now, but promise to do so in a future number. We want just now to tell you what they contemplate doing for the "HOPE," together with the Sabbath School cause. The citizens intend celebrating the Fourth of July in this place, and they (the friends of the Sabbath School) intend to have a stand, sell refreshments, and appropriate the money to the advancement of the work. We speak of this in the hope that the suggestions may be timely to others who may be located where they can do the same. September is not very far in the future. If we are going to work, or encourage our children to work, we have no time to spare. We heard two sisters conversing yesterday, and one said, "Why, I would be willing to do a day's washing and give the money I earned." "I would do so cheerfully," was the response of the other; and we are of the same mind, and think it a small thing (for us we mean) to do. If the Psalmist David esteemed it far better to stand even at the door of the house of God, than to dwell in the tents of ease and luxury, is there anything we ought to esteem menial which is to be consecrated to the good of our fellow beings. Let us do nothing which we can not and do not ask the blessing of God upon, and having an approving conscience, let our faith and works go hand in hand—let us not testify that we are willing to do all in our power for the spread of the work and then fold our hands and do nothing. If it is a worthy object to enlarge the Hope in order that the church may have such a paper for the home and the Sabbath School as shall supply fully the needs of both, then let us work for that object; if it is not worthy, then work for one which is.

We are fully persuaded in our own minds of the great need of the work, and have committed ourselves fully to it, and we believe that we shall make a success of it, and if the church sustain us we know that we shall. Read what Bro. Dancer says in regard to "the idle presses and an office burdened with debt." There must be need of effort in some direction, and for some one to put forth. Turn to the news from Jerusalem in your last Herald and read again: "And so we find that suddenly, without warning, Jerusalem has become, in fact, again a Jewish city! Is it a change which has come like a thief. The busy world has taken little notice of it—but it has come. Does it not look as if that time of the treading down of Jerusalem by the Gentiles—upon which so many of God's purposes respecting the Jews and the whole world are in the scriptures made to depend—was about fulfilled?"

Shall the day of the Lord overtake us as a thief in the night, or will we be of the number of whom the Master has said: "Blessed is that servant whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing?"

LAMONI, IOWA, June 19th, 1886.

Dear Sisters:—Permit me to make you another visit. I believe in my last I just stood upon the threshold, but allow me this time to enter just a little way, and perhaps by a gradual advance I may lose my timidity, and once landed thoroughly in your midst, I shall not be afraid to talk. If I should digress a little, and turn face about to the brethren, now and then, I trust my sisters will be charitable and forgiving. Having meditated somewhat upon the subject in hand, I have pleaded with God for his aid and assistance, that my thoughts and pen may be directed aright. Surely he will give his servants and handmaids wisdom when they seek it, for he has promised, and who of all God's creatures need wisdom more than parents, in rearing the young! We must care for, not only the little lambs, but the half grown ones. It has been said, It is a grand work to rescue from sin those whose lives have been spent in wickedness; but to take the little sinless ones and train them for God, is a labor which yields a much more abundant harvest—the former not being left undone of course. Then it is our duty to train our own children in the principles of purity and moral rectitude; and blessed be those parents who lay for the future of those children broad and strong foundations, (I say parents because I am talking to the fathers as well as the mothers). Here let me ask one question, Shall we reach out and beyond our own homesteads to convert others to Christ, and leave our own households to wander in sin and the follies of the world, and not make an effort to guide and control them? To my mind this is like faith without works, precept without example; then let us see to it that our children's as well as our own lives, are characterized by the gospel truths we are striving and endeavoring to impart to our neighbors. Fathers; when your authority to your children is needed, show it, do not always wait for mother to do all the reproving, rebuking, etc., etc. Be not unconcerned as to your children's outgoings and incomings. Keep a watchful eye over them, as God watches over you, with patient forbearance and kindness. Do not let your angry passions blind your judgment, it often provokes bad feeling in return, and leads to many evils. Extreme severity on the part of parents is not wise. Be firm, but be kind; bear and forbear, as our heavenly Father bears with us. Overcome evil with good, if possible, and live peaceably with all. Greater is he that ruleth his own spirit than he that taketh a city."

Order is heaven's first law, and how beautiful is home where order reigns. It makes our duties easy and agreeable. To my mind the chief point of order is the right state of our own mind. Better is the lowliest fare where love, order, and goodwill prevail, than the greatest dainties with discord and contention. Then, husbands and wives, combine your efforts. Will not a better result be obtained. I think so. God will help you, He must when you rely on him for strength and support. He has promised, and who can say nay. Wives and mothers, when your husbands are called from home to minister the word of life and salvation, do not neglect your duties at home. Keep up the family worship; do not let the altar crumble. Prune the little vineyard while your husbands are pruning the vineyard abroad. Dig about the little plants; clear away all unnecessary rubbish, that they may grow morally healthful. God by his grace will give necessary moisture. It requires much patience and skill, lest by plucking out the bad we pluck out some of the good also. Husbands and fathers who are called to the ministry to convert souls to Christ, look well that no effort on your part is wanting to set your own house in order first, for God will hold you responsible, and I doubt if your labors in the field will meet with success if this is left undone. Convert your own household to Christ, as near as possible, then can you go forth with a clear conscience, and better results as to your labors in inviting souls to Christ; and when absent from your home circle, do not forget to send home, occasionally, a word of cheer, comfort, counsel and advice to your loved ones. They will cherish it, in your absence, read and re-read it, until it is so thoroughly stamped upon their hearts that they will never forget nor weary of it. They may lay it away as a treasure among other relics, only to be brought out in after years, (when the heart that indited, and the hand that wrote it, will be still forever), to do duty again, not only to your grandchildren, but your great grandchildren. When you have converted men and women to the gospel of Christ, do not leave them to perish. If its not practicable to stay with them till they can walk alone, you can at least send them an epistle, once in a while—a good spiritual letter, such as good old Paul did in his time. Loving and caring for and praying for the Saints, giving cheering words, good counsel and instruction, your labors will not be lost,—“Cast thy bread upon the waters,” New converts are like new born babes, they must be nourished and taken care of until they have developed sufficiently to take care of themselves.

Truly, we as mothers have great responsibilities; have not the fathers also? O fathers, awake to your duties to your wives, your children, yourself, and your God; do not shoulder all the burden upon the weary, worried, and heavily taxed mother. You who labor around home, can do much toward relieving her burden. Truly she may do her part, and do it well and nobly, but have you not considered the strain upon her mental as well as her physical powers, having borne from six to twelve children, perhaps upwards, as the case may be, and of course is the weaker vessel; and in nine cases out of ten, has poverty to cope with, which makes her task more arduous, and very trying to her patience. (O, patience! thou art a virtue I covet).

Husbands, help your wives; share her burdens in rearing the young; rule well and wisely. They who would guide or govern well should have their own minds well governed; goodness incites to goodness, and where the law of kindness rules, there is the greatest power in ruling. Wives, help your husbands; study their comfort; let your homes be neat, and clean, and inviting, when he returns from his daily labor, do not go en deshabille all the day through; be cleanly in your habits, neat in your person, adorning yourselves, not with jewelry, finery, for his home coming, a clean calico dress, neat little apron, collar and pin, or small bow of ribbon; and above all do not let the smile from a good natured soul be wanting; let it beam right up from the bottom of your heart, and grace your countenance. It adds a wonderful charm to your features, better than any paint or powder, and costs nothing. Try it wives, mothers; it acts like magic, and he is a bear, and his heart is as adamant, whose admiration and love is not awakened by such pure, simple, yet graceful adornments. I am sorry to say there are some such; but I thank God they are exceptions. May we live and improve, and profit by all that is good, with God for our guide, and his Spirit for our companion, I bid you all adieu. AUNT PATIENCE.

RIVER SIOUX, IOWA, April 21st.

Dear Sister Frances.—A few lines to the “Home Column.” I feel impressed to write. I do feel the great importance of the “Column,” and I would like to drop in my mite. I want to put forth my hand to aid in all good things. I get a great deal of instruction and light from the “Column.” We sisters can do a great deal towards lifting up the bowed down and strengthening the feeble, the aged, and the frail. I can do nothing without the good Spirit is with me. I am astonished at the greatness and goodness of the Lord. When we seek his kingdom and his righteousness, then every thing else will be added. I hope we will all go on from grace to grace and from knowledge to knowledge, until the perfect day.

I remain your sister in gospel bonds,
M. HOAGLAND.

LOVE.

DEAR SISTERS.—Do we all understand the full meaning of the term “Love?” I fear not: for although a small word, yet there is not a word in the English language that conveys a deeper meaning. Many may think they understand its meaning, but I fear they do not, for I hear many wives and mothers say, “From the time our honeymoon went down he began to grow cold and distant.” Should we let the love of our companions wander from us by any failure upon our part, God forbid. When we stand at the altar we covenant before God and the angels, and other witnesses, that we will love and cherish each other while life shall last. Have we kept the covenant, or have we broken it? The record is in heaven, and if we have failed, will stand against us. I fear many will have much to regret, if not in this life, they will in the life hereafter. I have thought of this subject much, and this has caused me to be observing. I have seen many mothers let their love for their children rob their husbands of the love they had promised him. Of my own married life I can say truthfully our honeymoon never set till my companion was taken from me by death. I seemingly did all I could for my companion; yet had I my life to live over, I would try harder to please him than I did. Sisters: let not love grow cold; if we do we must expect to lose as much love from our companions. A SISTER.

I HAVE felt glad ever since our kind Editors have granted us space in their valuable paper to converse with each other of things which are of the most importance, that by so doing we may become better acquainted, and be enabled to do each other good. I have always believed there was a great work for the sisters and mothers in Zion to do. When we contemplate the fact that mothers and sisters were last at the cross and first at the sepulcher, and from that day to this have been zealous workers whenever there was a great work. I feel that we, who of all ages are the most favored, who are permitted to live in the day when the gospel is restored in its fulness, ought to strive to do the work assigned us, and do it well, before the Savior makes up his jewels. I hope some of the mothers will tell me the right course to pursue in entertaining the young who do not wish to study all the time. It is a question I have for years worried over, prayed over, and wept over. I know it is written, if we lack wisdom let us ask of God, yet I confess I am yet at a loss to know just how to lay down rules in this direction. As a mother wrote: “I gave the best I had to my children. I never could do justice to my house, because I bestowed so much of my time upon my children. I did not give them fine clothes nor things of the world; but I read, talked, sang and prayed with them, until now my sons are ministers of the gospel, and my daughters are workers for the Master.” Would that all mothers could say as much; but I can not say it. Although I have read, talked, sang and prayed, lo these many years with mine, as yet none of them (neither my husband) have obeyed the gospel. I often ask myself and my God, where or what the trouble is. Whose fault is it? Am I to blame? I have prayed that whatever may hinder that God in his great mercy might remove the hindering cause. I do want all the dear Saints who may read this very imperfect letter, to pray for me and mine and the cause here.

Before I close I wish to bear my testimony to this work; not that I have anything miraculous to tell, for I have not; but I have a constant, living, growing, and abiding faith. Not that I have not seen the outward manifestations of God's love; I have seen the sick healed, as well as many other gifts of the Spirit, but none are to me such a testimony as this increasing faith each day, notwithstanding my loneliness, and the great need of associates in the faith. Not one day passes but I can say I rejoice in the truth. I wonder often if my lonely ones are not a great help to those who go out to gather in the sheaves, for if I judge others by myself, we do a great deal of praying for them, and God hears effectual fervent prayer. May his choicest blessing rest upon all his earnest workers, is the prayer of your sister in Christian bonds,

M. A. CHRISTY.

GREENVILLE, Pa., May 24th.

Dear Sister Frances.—May I come in and be numbered among the dear sisters, wives and mothers, who help to make up our “Home Column,” and which has helped to make our beloved Herald even more complete than it was before. Every piece and every letter that has appeared since its commencement I have read, and some I have re-read; and I must confess that I have been greatly strengthened for my duties, that of caring for my five children—the oldest only fourteen, four girls and one boy, all active and sprightly; needing much patience, firmness, and some forbearance, in order to bend their young, active minds in the right direction, both mentally and spiritually, to say nothing about the care of their mortal bodies. We want, by the help of our dear Father above, to so train them up that they may be fit converts for Zion; and although Zion's children are scattered, we have much to do before we are pure in heart, as we shall have to be in order to dwell and remain there; therefore I feel that there is no time to waste; but, thanks be unto God, he through his beloved Son has promised us rest by and by.

Somewhere about eighteen years ago I read in the Herald “The Plea for the Little Ones.” At that time I was not married, but yet my heart was made to thrill with joy and thankfulness that a great want was about to be supplied—a want that I had felt ever since joining the church, two years before; and now, after twenty years have rolled away with all their wondrous changes, I am permitted to see from the same pen, a Plea for Home and Home Culture. Ah! that is indeed the grandest key-note of all; it should be sounded by every true-hearted Latter Day Saint. Let us, little by little, be making our homes and all their inmates pure; then indeed will we come off more than conquerors, through Him that hath loved us, and who died to redeem us from sin. Then will the church put on all her beautiful garments, and her excellence be known over all the earth. But oh, how much there is to be done! Sometimes I feel weary by the wayside, and almost discouraged with the thought of my own weakness, and my inability to meet the trials and cares of life with that patience and charity which is demanded of every true follower of the meek and lowly one; but when I go to him in humble prayer, his gracious words come to me with much force, giving new strength to go on: "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest."—Matt. 11: 28.

How often I am led to praise God for the gift of his dear Son, and for the blessed example which he has set before us.

Yesterday, four of our children were baptized into Christ's kingdom. They had been taught at home (there being no branch here) by their father, in the first principles of the gospel, and they well understood the importance of entering into the kingdom, and were to be baptized sometime before they were. After that was done they were confirmed, and also the sacrament was administered. I felt very much of the power of the Holy Spirit there, and I did ask the Lord if it was his will to give some outward manifestation of his Spirit, that should be a source of strength to our children. Just before the close of the meeting a brother sang in tongues the following hymn, and also gave the interpretation, to the tune of "Webb:"

Rejoice ye Saints assembled;
Lift up your hearts and pray;
The Lord has taken cognizance
Of all your works this day,
For some have been inducted Into the Church of God,
Who shall be instrumental
To spread this work abroad.
The days are fast approaching
When you shall be at rest,
And perfect peace and comfort
Shall enter every breast,
And you shall be united
With bonds of perfect love,
A life that's everlasting
Awaits you from above.

What more could I ask? My prayer was answered, our dear children's faith strengthened in the truth, as well as that of many others. My heart felt full of overflowing of thankfulness to our kind Father because he had so blessed us, all unworthy as we are. Blessed be his holy name for all his tender mercies unto us.

Your sister in the gospel,

EMMA GARRETT.

PHILADELPHIA SAINTS.

Dear Herald:—Having missed Nahum's chariot this morning to take me to the beautiful city of the Quakers, I thought a few lines would be deemed worthy a place in your columns. You are one of the most faithful (harbingers) messengers of peace to the people of God this enlightened age ever saw or ever will see. I often read in your columns about obedience and disobedience, and the too much use of that little member betwixt our teeth called "the tongue." "Mine own way," has led thousands into the broad way of folly and shame, and thousands more to the gallows and to an untimely end. But God's way—the narrow way of truth, and light, and life, has led millions to joy, peace, and happiness here, and life everlasting hereafter. Who are the Philadelphia Saints? What are they like? They are composed of the same material—made in the same mysterious manner, as liable to err, as willing to forgive, as all the rest of God's people called Saints. It is a well known fact that the Holy Scriptures, Book of Mormon, and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, after the strictest researches of an enlightened and enquiring age, are still allowed by the wise, judicious, and thinking part of mankind, who are acquainted with them, to be the only books in the world which truly fit and fully show the way of salvation to all those who take any serious thought about it. The books, from the solid principles of truth contained in them, have the strongest testimony and tendency to improve and perfect human nature in every branch of personal and social duty, and to make mankind wiser and better in ever situation, station, and relation in life. This effect they have produced and will still produce wherever they are duly attended to. An attempt, if well executed, to promote the knowledge and practice of the truths they contain, must therefore be of real benefit and service to society; and though the attempt should fail, the undertaker may, nevertheless, enjoy the pleasure of a heart ready and disposed to do good, while the candid part of mankind will, on account of the goodness of the design make the most favorable allowances.

Bro. Hosea Beacon is a Priest and presides over the branch at present, also preaches every Sabbath morning, except, when there is an Elder present, and of course the latter is given the opportunity. There are three Elders who can expound the word, viz, Brn. Stone, Copeland, and Stewart. The latter seems to have a mission in Elkton, Maryland. There are within a radius of twelve miles upwards of fifty members who could attend the Philadelphia Branch (but for some reason or other) they don't. Whatever is the cause the writer is unable to say. But every man and woman, saint or otherwise will have to give an account of their stewardship. The Scotch phisosopher, Beattie, had a bright intelligent son betwixt five and six years of age, once he taught him the existence of a Supreme being and a lesson on religion which he never forgot. "I went one day, says Beattie, into the child's garden and sowed some mustard and cress seed, so that when it came up it would exhibit the three initial letters of the child's name. About ten days after the child came running to me all amazed that his name had grown into the garden. I smiled, yet appearing not to attach much importance to the matter. But the little fellow insisted that I should go and see what had happened. Of course I went, and coming to the place, Yes, said I, see it so; but there is nothing strange in this, it is merely an accident aint it? and went away. He quickly followed me and walking very seriously he said; "That can not be. Some one must have prepared the seed." These was the substance of his thoughts. Then said I; You think it can not be by chance? He replied firmly, "I think so." Then I said; "Who made your little hands, toes, legs, and arms and all the members of your body? Aint they by chance? "No," he replied, "That can not be. Some one must have made them." I then made known to him the existence of a Ruler of the universe, (adapting it to his own age), the acts of obedience and disobedience, the fruits of sowing and reaping good and bad seeds, &c., and he never has forgotten the occasion, nor the circumstances of it."

By the time this is in press, it will be Whitsuntide, and thousands of mothers in Europe will be managing to dress their children in holiday attire. I thank God that the "Mothers' Home Column," has made the Herald a little brighter, so that the mothers in Israel can exchange their views and teach their little ones the path of duty and of safety.

Respectfully yours in bonds,

Bro. Blair:—Our meetings at and near Hartford, Van Buren county, during the latter half of the month of May were well attended, and much interest was manifested by quite a number. I believe a number there will embrace the faith at no distant day, if proper labor be done there soon. I was blessed at times while there with unusual liberty. By request of Custer Post, G. A. R., I delivered on May 30th, the memorial discourse in the M. E. Church, at Galien, where the Post and their friends attended services in a body. The next day by invitation, I pronounced the Decoration Oration in Bro. Blakeslee's Grove, in the presence of a large audience. These services were for some reason very impressive.

Our district conference was held at Galien the 5th and 6th inst., and although not very largely attended by Saints from a distance, owing to the very busy season of the year and the near approach of harvest, was a spiritual and profitable meeting. Unity of feeling and sentiment was a prominent feature of the business and deliberations. One noticeable thing was, there was not one of the district officers present; Bishop Blakeslee presided pro tem, Bro. E. Whaley was chosen clerk pro tem; Bro. B. V. Springer was present and aided. His sermon on Sunday morning was timely and encouraging. The social meeting in the afternoon was a time of refreshing; only, I fear that some, the glow of whose faces indicated that they were burdened in heart with the unction from the holy one, perhaps failed to do their duty in full, by not revealing to their friends present the joy they have in believing the gospel in fulness. Those who do the work enjoined in "the perfect law of liberty shall be blessed in their deed."—(Jas. 1: 25). During this meeting Brn. Robert Alcott and Reuben B. Wheaton, of the Galien branch were ordained; the former to the office of Elder, the latter to the office of Teacher, by Elders Springer and Scott, the former being spokesman in both ordinations. Bro. C. M. Bootman is still zealous in the cause, and gave us an able discourse on Saturday evening.

The Saints present thought it better to have a change in the district presidency now that Bro. W. H. Kelley has removed from the district, and so seldom gets to labor therein. We felt sad to give up the president who had ministered among us so long and with so universal acceptance; but we are glad to remember that he still presides over us in charge. June 10th I preached the funeral of little Willie, son of Bro. and Sr. J. D. White, who died the 8th, of dropsy, after lingering several months. A large audience was present, and in the midst of our sadness we felt cheered, as the loving care of our heavenly Father for the little ones was reviewed, as illustrated in sending his angel to care for Ishmael, in raising the widow's son, in Christ's blessing them, and the promised resurrection of them, (Jer. 31: 15, 16), and their enjoyment of the world to come, (Isa. 11: 6-10). In some of the Sunday School libraries are books written by learned men, illustrating how grievous sinners some children are, say from four to seven and nine years of age. All their little poutings are represented as terrible sins! That children from birth are sinners. So we must all be converted, and become as these little sinners, or forever be shut out of the kingdom! Let Saints examine books before putting them into their Sunday Schools.

I came to this place Friday 11th inst., and held two services yesterday, and have an appointment out for Tuesday evening, and thence on in the good cause as the way opens. I hope to be remembered in the prayers of all Saints.

Your brother,

C. SCOTT.

BELMONT, N. Y., June 1st.

Bro. Joseph:—Yesterday was observed by the people of Belmont as Decoration Day. It was a grand day for Belmont. There was not a drunkard to be seen through the day or night. Never before on such an occasion do I remember seeing so much order. Belmont appears to be trying to do something for temperance. For years some of us have toiled on from year to year trying to have men elected that would do the temperance cause justice. We have almost got the cup to our lips when it would be dashed from us. Then again we would see the young men and boys of our friends sipping the poison cup and we be powerless; but we have faith that we shall conquer. We can do nothing only by God's help. Last evening the Good Templars had a Festival; had ice cream and cake; cleared twenty-five dollars for the temperance cause.

Yesterday the G. A. R. made a dinner for the benefit of Ephraim Rigdon, son of Sidney Rigdon. He lived in this place a few years. While here he joined the Baptist Church. He was a soldier in the Union Army. He now lives in Carlton, Cattaraugus, N. Y., instead of Jamestown, as I wrote you. I am anxiously looking for some of the Elders this summer that I may once more hear the gospel preached to this people.

Firm as the rock of ages, I remain in the latter day work, yours,

P. L. HYDE.

Dear Saints:—Are we living up to our privileges? Are we growing stronger in the Lord daily, and doing his will in all things? If so the favor of God will rest upon us; we will deny ourselves and take up our cross and follow the Lord Jesus. We should seek for much of the presence of God and his power in our souls. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." We must be pure in heart. The Holy Ghost is the purifier and the refiner to cleanse us from all dross. In the Revelations we are counseled to buy of that "gold tried in the fire that we may be rich, and white raiment that we may be clothed." We should seek for such riches with all our hearts, and have our "eyes anointed with eyesalve that we may see" clearly what God requires us to do, that we also may help to save some poor wanderer by bringing them to Christ. If we live in Christ, and Christ in us, we will be up and doing something for the Master. It means something to be a Saint in these latter days, when iniquity is so abounding and the love of many is waxing cold. The love of the world instead of the love of Jesus is filling so many hearts. What good is it to profess to be Christians and not be? We may join the church, and be lost at last, if we do not follow the teachings of our Lord and live up to all his teachings. I have just finished reading the Book of Mormon through the second time since the 6th of February, and how it stirs my soul to redouble my diligence in living near the Lord, and to be a Bible Christian in every sense of the word. My dear sisters; let us see to it that we adorn ourselves in modest apparel like the holy women of olden time. Then we will have more means to do good with, and the Lord would be better pleased with us. Alma said to the church, "Behold, are ye stripped of pride? I say unto you, if ye are not, ye are not prepared to meet God." Again he asks: "Have ye been spiritually born of God? Have ye received his image in your countenance?"

Let us live up to what we believe. If we believe in the Bible and Book of Mormon, in the name of God let us live up to them. I would give more to see one that lived up to the teachings of God's word than a thousand that say they believe in the books and don't take a decided stand and live up to them. If the ministry would come up to the high privileges, "cry aloud and spare not, show the people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob there sins," what a reformation there might be. We can't be true to God and mingle with the evil doings of the world, and dress in all its hideous styles and fashions. Oh, what a shame for us to profess to be Saints of the Most High, and not reform in these things. We except the drunkard to reform, also the thief and liar. But some men and women can be as vain as ever, and the church must keep still.

TULARE, Cal., June 6th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—We are few in numbers, and although on the main line of the Southern Pacific R. R., we feel that we have been overlooked by the traveling ministry, excepting our worthy district president, Bro. J. H. Lawn. The work here needs looking after, and we need reviving again. I feel the responsibility resting on me and desire to see my confirmation prophecy fulfilled; that is, "Thou shalt turn many unto the Lord thy God," but obstacles are in the way. We have faith and hopes of better days. I have done what I could (fire-side preaching). Near my home I have some interested, and one who never heard our claims till he met me says that he likes the doctrine and will obey ere long. The Scripture which he could never understand before, now seems to be plain. And I hope to see at Alila, my home, a live, wide awake branch ere long. My heart would rejoice to know that I had been the instrument in God's hands of directing some to the kingdom of God's dear Son. I too have felt the thrill of God's Spirit bearing witness with my own to the truth of what Bro. Z. H. Gurley, Sen., wrote on the rise of the Reorganization; indeed it is very timely and appropriate to now print it; it is meat in due season. The Herald is more appreciated by me as the years pass by.

Elder Henry S. Green, my father-in-law, is sick; will the Saints please pray for his recovery.

"CHRIST AND HIM CRUCIFIED."

WHAT IS CHRIST?

Not only is Jesus "The Son of the living God," but he is the Messiah. As this is a Hebraic term, what was the Hebrew idea of it? What did it signify to them? We answer, The Restorer of the Throne of David; The Redeemer of Israel; The Rebuilder of Jerusalem as the Capital of the restored kingdom of Israel; The Redeemer of the land of Palestine, from the yoke of the Gentile oppressor.

Were the Jews wrong in these ideas? shall their hopes prove futile? Nay; for the Scriptures can not be broken, and most clearly and abundantly do they teach that the throne and kingdom of David shall be restored, that the children of Israel shall be gathered to their own land from all quarters of the earth, even the dispersed of Judah, and the outcasts of Israel; that the land shall be restored to its ancient fertility and productiveness; and that Jerusalem shall be rebuilt and re-inhabited, and that Jesus shall do this grand work. And doing this will constitute him "the Christ." And if he does not do it, he will not, and can not be Christ. I shall quote but little Scripture on this head, for I should not have space in a half ream of paper for all the Scripture bearing on this subject; but I will refer to some under different heads, and ask the reader to find and carefully read them.

1. The restoration of the throne and kingdom of David. 1 Chron. 17: 11-15; Psalms 89: 34-37; Isaiah 11: 6, 7; Ezek. 21: 25-27; Amos 9: 11; Luke 1: 30-33.

2. The Restoration of Jerusalem. Isa. 4: 3, 4; 52: 9, 10; 60: 1-22; 62: 1-7; 65: 18-25; 66: 10-20; Zech. 1: 16, 17; 11: 12; 8: 3-8; 12: 6-8; 14: 9-21.

3. The restoration of the land of Israel to its former fertility. Isaiah 29: 17; 41: 17-20; 61: 4-6; 65: 21, 22; Ezek. 34: 26, 27; 36: 8-11, 33-36; Joel 2: 21-27; Zech. 8: 12.

4. The restoration of the people of Israel to their own land. Isaiah 11: 11-16; 14: 1; 49: 13-26; 54: 1-17; Jeremiah 23: 7, 8; 30: 3, 10, 11, 18-21; 31: 7-14, 27, 28, 31-34; 33: 7-26; Ezek. 11: 16-20; 19: 33-44; 34: 11-31; 36: 22-38; 38: 21-28; 39: 23-29; Hosea 14: 4-8; Joel 3: 16-21; Amos 9: 11-15; Obad. 17-21; Micah 4: 1-13; Zeph. 3: 14-20; Zech. 8: 7, 8, 13-15; Luke 20: 28-30.

5. The Jews are to be saved, and indeed the whole house of Israel. The angel told Joseph, that the child of Mary should be called "Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins."—Matt. 1: 21. "His people" are the Jews; for he was a descendant of Judah. He is to save them from their sins. This is a future work, it will be accomplished by his personal appearance. They will believe on him—after the “pattern of Paul,” who says, “Howbeit, for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might shew forth all longsuffering for a pattern to them which should hereafter believe on him to life everlasting.”—1 Tim. 1:16. Paul believed on Christ by seeing him personally. He did not hear the gospel preached by man, and so obtained faith in this ordinary way; but he obtained his faith by seeing and hearing Christ.

Jesus gave the Jews to understand that they would receive him when he came again. Matt. 23:39. Zechariah shows that the Lord will save Judah, or the Jews, first, and that they will see Christ personally, will mourn on account of him, because they (as a nation) crucified him, and after this repentance, they will be baptized for remission of their sins in the fountain which shall be opened at that day in Jerusalem, (which “fountain” is not that which the hymn says—“filled with blood, drawn from Immanuel’s veins.”) See Zechariah, chapter 12, entire; and particularly 7, 8, 9, 10 verses, and first verse of chapter 13. Also see what Paul says—Romans 11:25, 26, 27. Ezek. 37:21–28; 36:23–29. This work has not yet been done, but it surely will be; and because he shall do it was the name of the Son of God, and the son of Mary called Jesus.

Now, do the majority of the clergy of the present day believe and preach this doctrine? Nay, they do not; and yet they profess to believe in Jesus.

Do they believe in the literal gathering of Israel, in the flesh, to the land that God gave to their fathers, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob? They do not. Do they believe, that the throne of David and his kingdom shall be restored, and that Christ shall reign upon that throne, and that the first apostles shall reign also upon thrones and judge the twelve tribes of Israel? They do not. Do they believe that Jerusalem is to be rebuilt and be the Capital of that restored kingdom of Israel? They do not. And yet they say they believe in Christ, and that they preach Christ. And they want us to preach Christ, and not so much “doctrine,”—just as if any one could preach Christ and not the “doctrine of Christ.” What did Paul preach? He “testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening.” “And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Son, Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.”—Acts 28:23, 30, 31. In plain words he preached the fulness of the gospel. Philip preached to the Samaritans the same doctrine;—“But when they believed Philip preaching the kingdom of God, and the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.”—Acts 8:12. Now, in preaching the kingdom of God, everything concerning the church, the coming, and reign of Christ, his millennial glory, including the resurrection of the dead and eternal judgment, must necessarily be preached. In preaching “the things concerning the name of the Lord Jesus Christ,” everything concerning the promises made to Abraham, Jesus’ birth, life, sufferings, death, burial, resurrection, ascension into heaven, his mediatorial work, the salvation of the Jews, and also the salvation of the world—all this is preaching Jesus. In preaching Christ, the history of the rise, fall, and restoration of the kingdom of Israel must be preached. No man can preach Jesus who does not preach the conversion and salvation of the Jews and the whole house of Israel. Yet some think that if they preach his death, burial, and resurrection, they preach the gospel in full. But how many of them understand one great purpose of his resurrection? And what was that? you inquire. Why, to sit on David’s throne. Now hear what Peter preached in “his great Pentecost sermon.” Speaking of David he says,—“Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne; He seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul should not be left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption.” What does he mean, unless it was that David understood, that in order for God to fulfil his oath to him, Christ must be raised from the dead? For it was not a throne in the spirit-world, or in heaven, that David sat upon, but on earth, in Jerusalem, in Palestine; and Christ must reign on that throne, now indeed overthrown and even destroyed, but to be restored, at Christ’s second coming. Do these parties who prate so much about Christ’s death, burial, and resurrection, understand this, that his resurrection was necessary to fulfil the covenant that God made with David? Do they preach that he was raised from the dead for this purpose? Do they comprehend that the promise could not be fulfilled if Christ was not raised from the dead with the body which was David’s seed? and that it was to be “in the flesh” that Jesus must reign on David’s throne? With very little grace, indeed, do those who do not believe in the salvation of the Jews, and in the restoration of the throne and kingdom of David literally, admonish us to “preach Jesus Christ and him crucified.” If we do not do that, who under the whole heaven, does? Peter understood his calling thoroughly; for when preaching to the Jews it was not needful to explain concerning the work of the Messiah; for the Jews understood what that work was to be. But his efforts were directed to the convincing of the Jews that Jesus was the Christ,—the Messiah. Paul labored to that end; “For he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, showing by the Scriptures (the law and the prophets) that Jesus was Christ.” (Margin “the Christ.”)—Acts 18:28. But when preaching to Samaritans, Philip preached “the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of the Lord Jesus Christ;” and Paul when preaching to the Romans and others, preached the same things, because the Gentiles understood nothing, and the Samaritans but little of the Messiah, as to who he was, nor what he was to do, while the Jews understood the work of the Christ,—but did not believe that “Jesus was the Christ.”

Now, we may discover right here why the sectarian world, which has spent its millions of dollars, in vain efforts to convert the Jews, have so signally failed; for while they undertake to tell the Jews that Jesus is the Messiah, they undertake to show, by misconstruing the Scriptures, that the Messiah is not to do the work that Moses and the prophets so clearly, and so abundantly declared that he shall do. These people need first that the Jews teach and convert them to the “doctrine of Christ;” and then when converted, they in turn may convince the Jews, from the Scriptures which they accept, that Jesus is the Christ, of whom their Scriptures teach. Yet these self-conceited, ignoramuses (on this point, at least) tell us to preach Christ. Well, that is what we want to do, and to preach him to them, too, if they will only come out to hear us. But that, only a few of them will do. They condemn the Jews for their blindness in not understanding the Scriptures, and say that they were justly rejected of God for that blindness; and yet they are equally as blind. For instance; they say that the Jews are not excusable for not taking the sixth verse of the ninth chapter of Isaiah in a literal sense. “Can’t they see,” say they, “that Christ should be a child born, and a Son given?” &c., “Can’t the Jews understand that he should be born in Bethlehem, according to Micah?” But why can not they, who condemn the Jews, understand that the seventh verse of the ninth of Isaiah, is also to be literally fulfilled? That this very “child,” and “Son,” who was literally “born,” and “given” and in Bethlehem, too, was to sit on David’s throne, and “upon his kingdom to order it, and to establish it, with judgments and justice henceforth and forever.” Do they know that the “zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this?” No; for they say that this throne of David, and his kingdom, is in the church, and that Christ is to reign in the hearts of his disciples, and his kingdom is “within us.” Do they understand the Scriptures any better than the Jews? Nay; the Jew spiritualizes the sixth verse, and gives a literal interpretation to the seventh; while the so-called Christian spiritualizes the seventh verse and interprets, in a literal sense, the sixth! How can a just God reject the Jews for their blindness, and not also reject the Christians (?) for their equally inexcusable blindness? Well, we will wait till the Messiah appears in judgment, to ascertain the result of their not understanding the Scriptures.

I conclude I would say, I understand, that in preaching “the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of the Lord Jesus Christ,” or “Jesus Christ and him Crucified,” that the gospel in its fullness is preached; and that in this preaching revelation as a principle, and the truth revealed thereby is clearly discovered; and that the fulness of the gospel or the "gospel of the kingdom of God; or, to express the idea more fully, "the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, is the "rock" upon which Christ's Church is builded. We may call it "truth revealed by the Holy Spirit," or the principle and fact of revelation; but "the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of the Lord Jesus Christ," covers the whole ground. There is nothing in the fulness of the gospel that is not covered and included in the testimony of Peter,—“Thou art the Christ; the Son of the living God.” Every item of gospel truth is expressed in that short sentence. If “the Christ,” then he is the “Redeemer of Israel;” the heir of, and the restorer of the throne of David. And in this thought is included the idea of His second coming and reign. If the Son of God, then his pre-existence must be conceded, his birth in the flesh, the character of that birth; His purpose in coming into the world in this manner, His teachings, His work, His atonement, His death, burial, resurrection, ascension into heaven, His mediatorship—everything connected with his mission on earth is included in the truth or fact that he is “the Son of the living God.” His divinity, power, authority to teach all things, to command all things, to perform all things necessary to save mankind, is understood by the fact that he is God’s Only Begotten Son. I am willing to concede that upon this declaration the Church of Christ stands. But it does not follow because that is true that every Church professing to believe that declaration does in truth believe it; or that it is the sort of church that Christ established. Paul said he laid a “foundation,” which the Saints could build upon, and that they could build with “gold, silver, precious stones,” and also “hay, wood, stubble.”

The foundation of every true Saint’s faith and hope and spiritual experience, is Christ—the Lord Jesus Christ. But men can build error, and delusion, and dead works upon this foundation; or they can build truth, and confidence, and righteousness or good works. The right foundation was laid by a master-builder; but the house built thereon which is every man’s own personal business or work, may be altogether an unworthy edifice, or unskillfully built, or of destructible material. But the building that Christ reared upon the rock of “truth revealed by the Holy Spirit,” even the “fulness of the gospel,” and the knowledge,” of the truth resulting therefrom—that building is but one; and it is perfect in all its parts. It has nothing superfluous, and it lacks nothing. It is but one “building,” one “temple,” one “house,” one “church,” and “one body.”

God, through the Holy Spirit, established the “rock.” Christ laid the foundation of the apostles and prophets, and himself the chief corner stone, the rock. And upon this “foundation” he built his Evangelists, Pastors, Teachers, Bishops, Elders, Priests, and Deacons, and various gifts of the Spirit. Men may claim to build on that “rock,” but they do not so build, because they do not comprehend it; they do not know where it lies, nor how deep they have to dig to find it. And beside, they lack both the wisdom, the power, and the authority to build on the “rock” if they ever understood its locality and position. And they even refuse to copy after the original building which they admit Christ did establish eighteen hundred years ago. Ignoring the pattern without authority to re-build the old one, or without revelation to build a new one. On a foundation of their own construction they build houses of various forms, of different materials, for various uses, and without seeking help or counsel from God, who they say will not answer if they did call for help and instruction they have thus built, and still continue to build edifices which they suppose Christ will acknowledge as his own workmanship. Yes; “Preach Christ and him crucified.” What was he crucified for?” “The sins of the whole world,” we are answered,—“He is the Savior of the world.” Will he save the “whole world” from their sins? “O, no; only a small part will be saved; all the rest will be eternally damned.” Why? Would they not believe, and repent? “O, they could not, it was foreordained of God that they should not.” They must be damned whether they want to be or not. Yes; Jesus was crucified for the sins of the whole world, however, only the elect will receive any benefit therefrom. Do these elect ones believe in the Christ, and in the name of Jesus, the Savior of Israel in the flesh? O yes; Israel are the elect among the Gentiles; for God has cast away Israel in the flesh, and Christ is the Messiah of these elect Gentiles; O yes; we believe, and “we preach Jesus Christ and him crucified”—as we understand it. Ah! there is where the trouble is. Their understanding of “Christ and him crucified” is a misunderstanding of the whole matter. Paul was willing that Christ should be preached, even in contention;” and so are we. We want to have Christ preached, but not the mistaken and decidedly erroneous notions of men concerning Christ. Yes, we say to one and all, “Preach Christ,” but be sure that you do preach Christ, while professing to preach him. We will all do well, if we are “determined to know nothing among the world and each other “Save Jesus Christ and him crucified.” We will then know a vast amount of truth when we know that.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

A TREATISE upon the culinary arts would properly belong to the Mothers' Home Column to which the masculine gender are not to contribute. The object of this brief article is to consider according to the best light we have, the sacred relationship of husband, wife, children, and associates. These ties are human—earthly it may be said—yet they are tinged with the golden luster of divinity. Violation of them is sure to entail consequences more serious and far-reaching than casual observation will recognize. “How many Latter Day Saints are true in every respect to their family allegiance,” is a serious interrogatory that each should seek to answer for himself after close and careful self-examination. Can the work of God prosper in our hands if we are untrue to those of kindred tie? Is it not our duty and privilege to reflect a better light at home than others of less profession? So it seems to me.

The family alliance is ordained of God for the mutual benefit, safety and protection of its members. Each owes to the other, or others, the love, sympathy, confidence, and heartfelt assistance of which they are rendered capable by age, capacity, or experience. For one to be devoid of love, bereft of sympathy, or negligent of duty that they so justly owe to those with whom they sustain this reciprocal relationship, is disastrous to domestic felicity, and blighting in its every tendency. It is intended that home should be a place of peace, a refuge of safety from the evils of a sinful world, a blessed resort where rest to the soul and body can be found when all other things earthly shall seem to fail. When unitedly the domestic oar is plied, how smoothly sails the home-craft o'er the tempestuous sea of life! In vain the angry waves of adversity dash with threatening violence. This tiny bark is guided by an unflinching hand. The motto is—“In God we trust.” The storms may be fierce, and high the billowy tide, but within the genial sunshine of conjugal, parental and filial love casts its rudy glow upon every face. Blessed source of hope, of comfort, and of heavenly strength! Angels look upon no fairer scene, me thinks, than the home where dwells the healing influence of peace and love. Each courts an opportunity to make others happy, while patience and forbearance help to overcome many difficulties otherwise incurable.

Shall we turn this fair page and gaze for a moment upon the sadder scene, where neglect, distrust and division have cast their shadow of deep gloom? No member of the household escape the withering infection, and just to the extent that these evils prevail, the work of grace in the human heart is retarded; the light of God is not exemplified; others are not led by “good works” to “glorify our Father in heaven.” A rehearsal of troubles peculiar to the domestic relation would not edify. Sufficient, perhaps, to say that the husband is legally and morally bound to “love his wife, even as Christ loves the church;” while a corresponding obligation is imposed upon the wife to “reverence her husband.” Those whom we love we will cherish, protect and help in every possible way. By such a course the husband proves himself worthy of “reverence.” True affection is seldom lost or misplaced; but in almost every instance will bring its reward. Generally we “reap as we sow;” and with what measure we mete the same will be measured to us again.

Children are to “obey their parents in the Lord,” which fact strengthens the obligation of parents to “provoke not their children to wrath.” The moral obligation of parents to children is as great or greater than that of children their parents. Our capabilities are developed, while theirs are not. We must set the example of righteousness, truthfulness, patience, forbearance, charity, diligence, perseverance, economy, neatness, etc., which give force and meaning to the commands we give them. We must also adapt ourselves to their limited understanding. It is a true saying that "old heads can not be put on young shoulders." A "patient continuance in well doing" in their behalf—in short, genuine parental love and Christian sympathy manifested toward them—will serve to gain their confidence, develop their affections, and call to the front all the good there is in them. Harsh arbitrary measures may excite fear of punishment and effect a temporary subjection to the domestic rule, but nothing short of winning the affections and gaining the confidence of our children will enable us to stamp upon their minds favorable impressions that shall continue with them as they pass from beneath the parental roof into contact with the evils of a sinful world, and shield them from the snares and temptations to which the tender youth is subjected. The fragrance of a mother's love will linger with her darling child so long as life shall last. How often has the memory of a saintly mother restrained an erring child from following the paths of vice and sin! By reason of his peculiar calling, the missionary becomes a student of human nature, and an observer of the various and varied phases of life. He comes in contact with every kind of religious, social and domestic element. Having his likes and dislikes, he is led to compare as well as observe the different phases of home discipline.

Sometimes his lot is cast among those whose profession and duty are of the highest type—those called to be Saints—and to reflect the luminous light of the Holy Spirit. If in the discharge of duty his spirit is sensitive to the influences that surround him, where there is peace, his soul is at rest. But where discord reigns, he feels the harsh vibrations of incongruous elements upon the tension of his being, and in the burden and sorrow of his soul he is led to cry, "O, God! Can these be saved who fail to cultivate the work of grace in their own hearts? Will a nominal assent to the truths of the gospel, but a failure to adopt the course by which the soul becomes regenerate, entitle them to the tree of life?" The strength of the gospel is its righteousness and purity. Our weapons are not carnal, but spiritual; nevertheless they are mighty to the tearing down of strongholds of sin. Gospel conquest is chiefly effected by example. As all have sinned and come short of the glory of God, the way of life contemplates a reformation of character. Baptism, laying on of hands, tongues, prophecy, miracles, gifts of healing, the understanding of all mysteries, &c., will avail us nothing unless they are the result of the work of grace within the heart. Abstractly, signs and wonders prove nothing, so far as the truth of the gospel is concerned; while a reformation of character, a change of heart or purpose in living, demonstrates to all the regenerative powers of the plan God has given, and which he has promised to confirm with signs following.

The work of God is designed to teach men the art of right living; hence, when permitted to exercise its rightful dominion it will build up and preserve the institutions of home and good society. Better citizens, truer husbands and wives, kinder fathers and mothers, happier and more intelligent and obedient children, are results to follow the preaching and acceptance of the plan of salvation. Charity enjoins a mutual forbearance upon the part of all. Kind words, and acts of sympathy and true regard, best demonstrate our love for each other. Solitude makes one miserable. We must commune with man, or beast, or flowers—with something. Without some resource of communication the soul, it almost seems, would perish and die. The mind must be occupied, and the affections center upon some object or being which creates a desire to live and act, without which existence would be torture. The loving and merciful Father has ordained that human beings should bless each other, and in turn receive benefit by this voluntary association. Loving parents care tenderly for the innocent and helpless babe upon whom they look with fond delight and hopeful anticipation, while within their hearts, softened by the presence of this holy being, burns and glows the deep and infinite love they are powerless to fully express. It is the messenger of God to them to gladden their days. O God! what would our lives be if deprived of the comforts, affection, and influences of home. Sometimes death makes its inroads, and our darlings are severed from us; but, thank God, the hour of restitution will come, and our loved ones meet us again!

In fellowship,

HOW THE CASE STANDS.

EDITOR OF THE HERALD,

Lamoni, Iowa:—In a late issue you take occasion to express the opinion that those who withdrew from the church, at the late conference "made a grave mistake;" and in connection therewith you convey the idea that those who withdrew had sought to "get the church to recede" from, or drop some of its doctrines, which if complied with, others, or the same ones might object to still other tenets calling for further concession, the thin "end of the wedge" being inserted would do its cleaving work until there would be no faith to stand by, etc. You then congratulate the church upon the assumed fact that her representatives in the late conference stood firm—would not yield an iota of the faith so ruthlessly assailed (by these withdrawing members). Now what are the facts upon record in the case?

1st. We, Z. H. Gurley and myself, controverted certain doctrines and dogmas, usages and policies of the rejected church, as contained and taught in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and which we alleged were not necessarily applicable to, or binding upon the Reorganized Church. For this the Herald was closed against us, and the next Conference promptly placed us under a ban. We then submitted our reasons for withdrawing, which were a disbelief in those things that we had controverted, and these reasons constituted our assault upon the doctrine or faith of the church, if we assailed it at all. Now in what manner did the church's representatives stand firm and resist this assault? The committee to whom was referred the same reported substantial agreement with us in every particular and affirmed nothing that we had objected to; omitting to notice one specific reason and the climax of them all, to wit: that we were bound, (by the preceding Conference), and gagged, (by the Board of Publication), and this report was adopted by the Conference!

No wonder that this conference could not formulate a reason for the act of the previous one complained of. It is probable that if the substance of that committee report had been incorporated in the proceedings of the conference of 1885, instead of 1886, and shedding its spirit influence upon the Board of Publication, the result would have most likely been, as stated in that report concerning individual opinion, that the principle of toleration as taught and practiced by Jesus, "should be so broad as to make no occasion for persons to wish to withdraw,"—and no withdrawal would have occurred. We are willing to let the responsibility of the causes and "occasion" for the "grave mistake" rest where the record places it, and with the declaration that at no period of my life have I valued the truth more than at the present moment, and the love of it—all truth—has, so far as I am conscious, the chief seat in my heart of hearts; and hoping it will prevail.

I am, respectfully, yours, &c.,

J. W. BRIGGS.

WHEELER, Pottawattamee Co., Iowa,

P.S.—If it seems to you presumptuous in my asking a place in the Herald for this communication, I am nevertheless impressed with its justice and its propriety.

MEXICO CITY.

"THE presence in Mexico of two leading Mormons, Dr. Pratt, son of the great leader Orson Pratt, one of the original quartette of impostors, and the brains and scholarship of the new faith for its first fifty years, as Brigham Young was its great executive head, and Mr. Percele, a relative of Bishop Percele, so published in Mexican papers, creates considerable comment. That they are here to provide land for a large colony in Chihuahua, seems to be well understood. To the credit of Mexico, there appears to be no eagerness to gain such neighbors, though it is not improbable that they may find a foothold in some part of the Republic. There is so much of plural marriage in Mexico, or its equivalent, that the polygamous teachings and practices of Mormonism might seem to be no objection, but despite the lewd practices characterizing peoples where the Romish Church has been dominant, it should be acknowledged that no church has been more absolutely loyal to the divine teaching on the subject of marriage and divorce, so far as theory is concerned. What hostility might arise, and how far it would take the form of active resistance, to a polygamous sect is not certain. I do not hear that Mexico has been a better field for converts to the new faith, than Georgia or Scandinavia. The history of the delusion for the first fifty years, beginning with its birth in New York, and following the line of its success among civilized and Christian nations, is a sad comment on the gullibility of mankind. That it should have been permitted in the middle of the nineteenth century of the Christian era, in the very heart of the empire State of the great Republic, and the faces of the most advanced culture, for such a bare-faced and shameless imposture to arise, under a vicious, ignorant and knavish leader, and that it should be able to take root, and in less than sixty years count its converts by the hundred thousand, and not from benighted pagan tribes, but from Christian altars, and that it should in that time have founded a State in the center of the Republic, which is able to defy and hold at bay the Government itself, and show signs of permanence and growth of unparalleled rapidity and strength, is one of the most amazing and discouraging facts in the history of the race. The resort to force to exterminate so vile a blot, is at the same time contrary to modern thought and of doubtful efficacy. It is not amenable to the common laws of reason. The prospect is that it will take its place among the great constructive forces of the future. How shall the hideous viper be scotched?

"It ought to be possible to enforce the law against polygamy in the case of Mormons as against all other citizens. Doubtless this will be done; but were it done effectually, that by no means settles the Mormon question. There is nothing more that law can do, but this only shows that the evil transcends the power of Government. The deadly virus is in the imposture itself, polygamous marriage is but an incident, and by no means the core of the trouble. Were it abandoned at once and forever, and were the sect converted to the straightest sect of monogamists, the evil would lose none of its deadliness. So much the Government is bound to arrest and extinguish, but what or who shall grapple with the tap-root of the mischief, and who shall measure the enormity of the evil that will grow from it? In open day it has been planted and sprung up, and produced a great tree. In the very generation in which the lie was born it has laughed at exposure. It has spread itself over the earth. It has its missionaries in all lands. It seeks no concealment. It travels on steamships and forces its loathsomeness into all places, and with brazen front defies rebuke. It has already appeared and claimed recognition in the Government itself. Exposure is vain. The time has already come when it laughs at the impotence of the press, and school and pulpit. It goes abroad and deceives the very elect. Multitudes come from distant lands, to be followed by still greater multitudes, to find in the great American wilderness the "Mount Zion of the Latter Day Saints." Christians send missionaries to convert the heathen. The Mormons convert more Christians to the new faith than are won from heathenism. We sleep or mutter merely; they batter and flourish at the very doors of our temples. We rub our eyes, exclaim, wonder, turn over and sleep again; awake and find a vampire has fastened on the vitals of the world. What can we do? Nothing. Our hands are nerveless, our brains dull, our Mormonized souls dead. The woe fastens on the ages, and generations unborn must undo or suffer the result of our imbecility. It will destroy itself, we fondly imagined. What deception ever gave up its hold of the mind of the ignorant, without the dissemination of knowledge? "While men sleep the tares are sown." They grow a harvest afterward, until men awake, pull them up and clear the choked and obstructed grain. We are too busy to pluck up the sapling, our children must pay the price, and grub the forest of rank and poisonous growth."—Bishop R. S. Foster.

For one we feel very thankful to "Bishop Foster" for the unwitting witness he has borne to the vitality of the seed sown. Comfort yourself, brother Foster, with the fact that Jesus knew all this. It was before him when he said, "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come;" and again he testified of the fact when he showed unto John upon Patmos "Another angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to every kindred, nation, tongue and people." No wonder this people have been so persistent; and it should not astonish you, when the word of God assures you that the angels are hearing their part in it.

We sincerely hope the law against polygamy will be enforced, with every other righteous law of the government we live under; but let us assure you that when that is done, and if it were possible you could crush out forever and completely this vampire which has its head and heart at Salt Lake, you would not have made a beginning towards uncovering the soil where the tap-root is buried. Have you any recollection of a parable put forth by the Savior in which he compares the kingdom of heaven to leaven which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal? If you have, you will remember that it remained there "till the whole was leavened." It is now doing its work rapidly, and if the process is a painful one to you, comfort yourself with the assurance that the Lord has promised to cut it "short in righteousness." Already your systems and man-made creeds are tumbling to ruins before the glorious light of the gospel of the Son of God; and when the polygamous church of Utah shall have found a more congenial soil for her institutions, then will the world begin to realize the fact, that what they are pleased to realize the fact that what they are pleased to term "Mormonism" and had thought existed there and there only, has been growing and flourishing here in their midst, and will continue to grow and flourish until "the kingdoms of this world become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ." #### SERMON BY ELDER J. A. MCINTOSH,

OF GALLAND'S GROVE, IOWA,
In the Saints' Chapel, Lamoni, Iowa,
April 7th, 1886.

[Reported for the Herald and prepared by the Editor.]

IN introducing Elder McIntosh, Elder Jonas Chatburn said:—In introducing our brother to you, I ask that you will give him your undivided attention. The condition of his eyes requires that he keep his hat on, he can see much better when his eyes are shaded, so he will speak to you with his hat on, I suppose. Our brother, if he lives until next Wednesday, a week from to-day, will be eighty years old, so you discover that he is along way in the Lord's time. Three score years and ten are allotted to man, but the brother will soon be four score, so we must not expect that he will be able to make us hear very plainly—those that are far back in the room; but nevertheless we must all try and pray for him, that the Lord may bless him. Uncle John McIntosh, of Galland's Grove, Iowa will address you. We call him uncle; he is uncle to us all.

BRO. MCINTOSH said:—Brothers and sisters, I am glad to be with you. My mind this morning has been running over my past life, and the scenes that I have gone through; and when I meet so many intelligent servants of God who seem to have stamped upon them the Spirit of our Master, it does my heart good. Why it is that I was called upon to talk to you this morning, I am not able to say. I am an old man, and have gone through a great deal in my lifetime, and a great many people have heard of me, and perhaps many here have never seen me, and I suppose that they wanted me to be presented so that the brethren and sisters could all see me. . . . I have but little to say to you this morning about the doctrine of Christ, for those in this house all know it well; but I might say something about the blessings of God to those who have embraced the gospel; but I will only be rehearsing that which you all have received, if you have kept the commandments of God and the covenant that you made with God when you went into the waters of baptism. It is something over forty-six years since I first embraced this work; and though there was a while that I was in the sloughs of despondency, when I thought all was gone, yet I have never thought that there was any other way; but I bear record that all the enjoyment I ever did have was in this work; all the happiness I ever did have was when I, in my weakness was traveling and preaching the doctrine of Christ to dying men and women, and pointing them to the Lamb of God. That is all the happiness, all the real enjoyment I ever had.

Although I have passed through many trying scenes, yet I thank that God whom I have tried to serve all my life long that he has been with me, and has sustained me though them all.

While the brother was talking last night, I thought I would try and study up when I first began to love the Lord. I had been raised a Baptist, and I will say that I had a good old mother who taught me the character of Christ in such vivid characters, that I loved him, and thought I would love to be His child. I thought I would like to have lived and been with Him when He was tabernacling upon the earth. I thought how blessed it would have been to have lived upon the earth and been one of that number who followed him from place to place and heard his blessed voice, and been worthy to have been one of that company. Of course I did not expect that I would ever be with Christ's Church organized as it was then; I was not looking for such a thing as being with the church organized with Apostles and prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers inspired of God, and so forth. I thank God that my life has been cast in a time when I live to see Christ's Church assembled, and that I am talking to brethren this morning on my right and my left, and can feel that I am talking to so many servants of God ready to go through anything whatever for the testimony of Jesus, I feel to thank God, I say, from my inmost soul, and I have no fears as to the future; for the servant that goes forth and lives his religion will receive help in every time of need. No matter what the trials or circumstances I might be thrown in, He has ever been a present help in every time of need. In the days when I traveled first in this work, it was not like it is now. I went as I was commanded to go; I went wherever the prophet or the conference sent me; I was ready to go anywhere. One circumstance I will relate. When I was a little boy, my mother talked so much to me about Christ, and his goodness especially, that I once went into the woods some place there, and I kneeled before God; why I did it I can not tell, unless it was because of the teachings of my mother, and there I told the Lord I did not care how much I was persecuted, nor in what way; if I knew anything that he wanted me to do I would do it if I could; and I had faith to believe that if he ever called me to do anything I could do it. I have been looking back over my life, and I am nearly fourscore, and I can say that when anything has been made known to me, and I believed it was of God, I had faith to accept it as of God. I have never gone back on that promise, though I made it when I was but a little boy.

To be sure I was prejudiced at first against the Latter Day Saints. The work was first presented to me in 1838. Previous to that time I was prejudiced against it, as many persons have been; for I was raised by an old Baptist—one of those old Hard Shell Baptists. I do not know as you know anything about it, and it won't hurt you a great deal if you never do know much about a great deal of it; but some of it I regard as very good. I had begun to be a preacher; I had learned "the tone" and could do pretty well, and I thought I would meet these Latter Day Saints and send them out of the country by argument. I never did believe in mob law. But when I would go and talk with them, the texts that I quoted they took and used for themselves, and I thought that they might hunt up their own scriptures without any help from me. I went out into the woods and told the Lord if they were his servants I did not care what people said about them, or what they might say about me, or what they had said about the beloved prophet; if it was his will, if they were his servants, I was willing to be associated with them and willing to be persecuted for the doctrine of Christ. I had no idea of being baptized the day that I was. I want to tell you some of my experience for to-day. I do not know as I can tell you anything else. A day or two after I was baptized. I had forbid my wife being baptized; there was considerable of Scotch in me, and I told her she had better stay away, I did not want her to go; I was strong and they could not do anything with me. But in the morning when I gave her my consent to be baptized, she took her clothes that morning and mine too. She went and prayed, (she was a praying woman), and that morning as she prayed she had a presentiment that I would be baptized too that day. She believed this so strong, that when she went and got her own clothes she took mine too. I had no more idea then of being baptized than I have of walking home this evening. When I went down to the water I began to want to be baptized; I wanted to be associated with that people; I did not want to part with my wife—I was a little like Adam, you know. I said to my wife, You go now and dress yourself and I will go home and get my clothes. She says I have your clothes with me, I brought them along. Says I, What did you do that for? Says she, I knew you was going to be baptized too. I said to the man officiating, If you consider me worthy I would like to be baptized. Of course, I went into the water and was baptized with her. When I came out of the water I met my old uncle—my uncle was a great Baptist preacher—and the old man was crying like his heart would break and my wife was talking to him. Well, he said I had made a great mistake, I was gone forever. I told him I thought I had not; that I loved the people, and I did not think I had made a mistake, and so got away from him as quick as I could. She guessed it pretty straight, and she was no yankee either—she was from Tennessee.

Well I soon began to preach the gospel everywhere. The Elders when they confirmed me ordained me before they took their hands off my head. Elders Clapp, Wilson and Hunter ordained me; and from that time until to-day I have been called a Latter Day Saint, or Mormon. I began preaching the gospel at once, started right off into the ministry and preached over that whole country—down in Tennessee, Kentucky and Illinois. I found God to be a present help in every time that I needed him. Brothers and sisters, I did not know the ground rules of arithmetic. I went in the name of the Lord, and preached to them as a servant of God, and pointed them to the Lamb of God by whom they might attain unto eternal life, if they would obey him. I went in faith, though in weakness. God sustained and supported me.

I thank God to-day that I see so many of my brethren and sisters, (or could see them if my eyesight was good enough,) that I have brought into the church, and some are able men of God. It does me good to think that there are so many young men here as I see to-day, who are men of mind, men of talent and power, and who compare favorably with any in world in intelligence. I say to them, that if they are faithful God will be with them, and he will sustain them in every trying hour, and will never forsake them. I say I thank God to-day that I see so many of these young men who are engaged in the service of God; and I say to them, that God will be with them, no matter where they go, in prisons or any other place, he will ever be with them, if they keep his commandments. Love God and keep his commandments, and he will dwell in your hearts, you will know the joys of Christ. I have to say that I have proved this all the way down my life, and have had God with me in every trial; and in every place he has been with me. I have proved his goodness, and in my weakness he has made me strong. I feel to love the people. I feel to go and point them to the Lamb of God if I had the strength to do so. God has ever been true to his promises to me. This has ever been my experience, and I am old now. From those reports read yesterday, the people want life; they want to know the way of life; they want Elders sent to them to preach to them. I felt in my heart to say that if God intends me to live any longer in this world, if it was so I could be made strong, I was ready to go wherever they wanted me to go and tell the people about Christ. My brothers and sisters; I have waded through tribulations; I have waded through mud and traveled thousands of miles on foot, and very often alone, my brethren that were sent with me very often concluding that they could not stand it, and would go back. My intention was always to go, and to do that that I was sent to do. I recollect that I was once called upon to go and take a mission to Texas and Arkansas. I had a muddy road to go, but I stopped for nothing; and let me tell you more than that, I went and did not have a dollar I could pay. No; I would tell the story, "I am a preacher, but I am hungry if I am a preacher, and I want something to live upon." I never was turned away but once, and that was pretty rough; I understood him exactly. He pointed to the gate, and told me if I did not start he would shoot me—and I started. But God promised me through the Prophet Joseph Smith, that if I lived faithfully I never should lie out of doors because I could not get a place to sleep in; and I found that promise sure and steadfast everywhere I went. And let me say to you, that I traveled all the way from Illinois into Arkansas, Missouri, and Kentucky. To be sure Kentucky was my birthplace; but I found many just as ready to kick me out of my birthplace, that is if I had been afraid of them, but I was not afraid of them. In all cases and places, though I was a young man, and though I was weak I went in the name of the Lord, and many have been brought into the kingdom of God through my instrumentality. And I can only exhort you, brothers and sisters, to trust in God; there is no need to fear. When we do our duty there is nothing to fear. To be sure I have passed through mud and climbed mountains, tied my clothes on my head and swam rivers to get across to places where I was called on to preach. I recollect one time I was crossing Black River, Arkansas. I called the ferryman across, and when he got across, before I got into his boat, says I, I am a preacher and have no money for you. He cursed the preachers, and said he did not want to see me traveling any more in that country. But when I got over he told the people that I was a preacher, a Mormon preacher, and it created an anxiety to hear me preach. I preached, and had a large congregation. They brought a gentleman to refute me, but after I closed he did not say anything, only he bore his testimony that if I had not preached the truth he could not see it; he believed it was God's word, and that I was a good man.

I waited in poverty from the time Joseph was killed until the Reorganized Church came to me in 1859, brothers Briggs and Blair brought it to me. And when I heard brother Briggs, (the first or second time he ever preached alone by himself, I do not know which, but brother Blair told me he was a young man, and I heard him preach I think the first sermon he ever did preach), it had the same sound, if he did not preach as well as he has done since that time. I think it was the best sermon I ever heard him preach in my life. I says, That is God's servant, and I am going to begin again to love that God. I desired, when I was passing through that dark and cloudy day, to break loose from my condition, and I desired to be preaching again the gospel of Christ. I desired to tell the people about the goodness of God, but I could not do it. I tried to be an infidel and everything else. But I want to say to-day, that the testimony of last night given to you by brother Blair I was a good witness to it. God blessed me everywhere. Not only has he blessed me with his Spirit, but he gave me strength so that I have been able to reach the hearts of many others, and I have been able to bring many others to Christ. I have seen the sky beclouded many times. When I say I tried to be an infidel, I wanted to know the reason of these things; I tried to be wise. I want to say to you this morning that I have received special blessings that I could not get around. I was raised from death once, and I will tell that story if the devil killer is behind me. I thought I talked with him—the dragon. I was down sick, and I got so that I could not turn myself in bed, and I had to be lifted from place to place; they had to move me to make my bed. One night I remember I saw that old man and talked with him. He said I would be well again, that he was king of kings, or something similar, that he was the master, the son of the morning, and all flesh was in his hands. I talked with him, but I want to say that my wife did not hear me talking with him, nor my mother nor my brother, although they sat by me. My wife was sitting on the bed while I was talking with him, and I saw another crowd that attracted me a great deal more than he did, all dressed in white at my right hand. I concluded at last to go with them, and I thought that I started to go; I think so yet, I may be mistaken, but I think so yet, my brethren. My wife raised me up and they commenced to talk with me, and that I think stopped me. I have lived this long since, and I still think they stopped me. I told them I wanted to see what would become of the Latter Day Saints' theory. I thank God to-day that I was stopped, and did not go with that company; and many happy times since I have thanked him that I did not go with that company, although I wanted to go. Well, my brother laid hands on me, and administered to me, and before he took his hands off my head I was as well as ever I was in my life. I had been lying there for several days—or several weeks. The next morning I put on my clothes, and went out and came in again. If I imagined that I was healed, I will state that that imagination continues to this day—it continues yet. Since that time I have been telling people a great deal about the goodness of God, and the love of God; and if we love him and keep his commandments, he will bless us. I could not get around this, it was too plain a thing; and when brethren Briggs and Blair came in 1859 and brought the gospel again to me, it was easy, when the same Spirit that used to be with me came upon me again, to get right up and tell them that I was going to live for God while I did live. To be sure I have made many crooked steps since; but if I do wrong it is my motto to try again, and if I do it again I will try again, and I will have to keep trying until I pass from these shores. Perhaps I will never see you—I do not expect to see you all here again; but it is just as I told the conductor as I was coming down. There was a lot of us Latter Day Saints in there, giving our tickets to him, and he was punching them, and at last says he, You are all going to one place. Says I, That is what we are trying to do. We all should keep on trying till we get to that one place. It will be enough for me to get to that one place. I want to say to you many things; I think we will then have a time of rejoicing, and it may be that we will laugh over some things that we have passed through here. I see that we are all just as fond of laughing now as ever, and I think we will be just as happy then as we are now. I can not talk much, but I am a witness of the goodness of God. I have passed through a great many trying things in my life, and I have found God a present helper in every time of need.

I have a great mind to tell you another yarn. When I first began preaching for this church, it was soon after I was baptized. I had been a Baptist, and a kind of a Baptist preacher. Well, the unbelievers said they did not know whether they could get me into stealing or not; but if my mother would send for me to come and preach, it would be no disgrace to her, because I was her son, and they would get a chance to hear me preach. People had begun to tell that I was quite a preacher, although I was very young in the gospel. I took a text, and I think through that week I preached my sermon over fifteen or twenty times, and it may be more; that is, I studied to show myself a workman approved. And I had my text laid out, firstly, secondly, thirdly and lastly, and I think it was a first rate one too. I went to my mother's the next Sunday, and when I got to the end of the lane I looked, and it was full of horses. That scared my preach clear out of me, and I do not think I ever thought of it from that day to this. I do not know what my text was; neither my firstly, lastly, nor fourthly. It is gone, and I sometimes wish I could think what that text was. Well now, I went down into a deep valley; it was a ravine on the banks of the river. I kneeled down there, and I told the Lord that I had been studying all week to show myself a workman approved, "And, Lord," says I, "it is gone from me. If you don't bring it back to me, I can not preach. I kind of concluded that he would bring it back to me. I went back and got up and tried to preach, and I was scared a heap worse than I am to-day. My mother was there and some others of my folks, and I thought it would not do to go back on them then; I at least must make some apology to them. They sang for me, and I got up to make an apology, and the first thing that I knew, half of that congregation was in tears. I guess it was the best sermon that I ever preached in my life. My mother wanted to hear me again, and pretty soon I baptized her and my sisters and my brothers, and then I did not mind getting scared a little; for I was glad that my mother and my sisters had come into the church. As I stated to you before, there was no mistake about it when I went down into that valley to tell the Lord all about it; I was not joking one bit. I thank God he was with me there, and has been with me all the time.

God bless you my brethren and sisters; may the Lord ever be with you and give you light in his light and strength in his strength is my prayer. May his love be in your hearts, so that in the presence of devils you can sing of the love of God. I can not talk any longer.

REMARKS BY ELDER J. W. CHATBURN.

There are a few moments left, and I do not know as I will be able to occupy even what is left. Uncle John has given you some of his experiences, and I have been amused while he has been relating those experiences; and no doubt they were realities to him, and at the time some occurred no doubt they tried him. But as he says, if we have the love of God in our hearts, and we go forth with a determination to do the will of God, we shall overcome, and we shall be able to perform whatever is right for us. I have been acquainted with the brother for many years, and I can testify that he has always had a love for the work that he has espoused, and I think that love still burns bright on the altar of his heart to-day, and he feels an interest and care for that work, the same he did in the days of his youth, when he went forth manfully to proclaim the gospel to a dying world. I speak from an acquaintance with him for many years.

He speaks of a dark and cloudy day. I have passed through the dark days along with him. I was acquainted with him in those times, and I like him thought all was lost. It was of no use to drift off into those factions that we had been so deceived with; and we, as the old apostles when Jesus Christ was taken and crucified, they thought that they would return back to their former occupations, they thought all was lost, and I was like them. I knew Joseph had been taken and slain; and after Brigham had set up "the mystery of iniquity," I began to think that all we had suffered and passed through was in vain, and like my brother I began to think there was nothing left for me but infidelity; and I undertook to be an infidel. But often with these things in my mind, and when I would lie down at night upon my pillow, my thoughts would be about the work of the last days; and my first thoughts in the morning would be about this work in the former days—that is in the days of Joseph. I could not, with all my infidelity, lay off this work; I could not say that it was not of God in the days of Joseph. I could not say but what it was true; for I had seen too much, I had known too much for me to say that there was no God in it. Consequently, when I was determined to be an infidel, I was then hankering after something else. There was no satisfaction to me in infidelity.

When the good sound came again—when brother Blair came to western Iowa, with brother Briggs, I heard brother Briggs preach his first sermon there, but I was a little afraid; I thought that it was something bad, and like what had gone to the west to Utah; I was a little afraid; for as the old saying is, "A burned child dreads the fire;" so that I did not take hold of the work as quick as my brother. But nevertheless it was still with me. I remember brother Blair and brother Silas Conditt came to my house for the special purpose of seeing me about the Reorganized Church. When they came to the house, I invited them in, and they stayed and talked for about half a day; and as I took down my Book of Covenants, I had made a great many marks in the book, that is, marks that I might use in my infidelity, and brother Blair and brother Conditt talked with me upon the Reorganization. I told them plainly that I could not endorse it. I objected to their views at that time from the fact, as I told them, that I did not believe they were sent of God; that is they were running before they were sent. When the two brethren rose to leave, I stepped with them to the door, and brother Blair, after I had talked with him—well, I might say after I had abused him about as badly as I knew how, so far as trying to destroy the truth he was presenting to me—when we got to the door he laid his hand upon my head and asked God to bless me. Well, now, after they had left me I thought a good deal about that; and afterwards when I was trying to establish myself in infidelity, this would come to me, that these servants of God, after I had done all that I could to destroy or overthrow what they had presented to me, they had even asked God to bless me. I tell you it is with me from that day to this; and I believe that God was with him, and that he was dictated by the good Spirit.

When I embraced the gospel, I embraced it for life. When I came into the Reorganization I did so because I believed that it was true; and from the time that I associated myself with the Reorganization, I have never had a thought but what it was of God; so that I can say, as my aged brother says, Go forth and rely upon the promise God has given, and he will never forsake you, but be with you in all your trials and troubles. Though you have to surmount difficulties he will be with you and assist you in doing so. For we are all well aware of this, those of us that have waded through trials and difficulties in former days. I am like my brother here. He is old and is not able to travel any longer; but he still feels a desire to go forth and proclaim salvation to the world. He says he can not expect to meet you again in this life. But whether he meets you in this life or in the life to come, yet I can say that the brother has done a great work in the work that we are engaged in. I can vouch for that, for I am well acquainted with him.

He said he did not know why he should be called upon to preach or talk to the people here, and I feel the same; I do not know why he was called upon nor why I was chosen to assist him, from the simple fact that I am no preacher. My days of preaching are over. I am getting away along down the stream, and I can not travel as I used to. I used to take my valise upon my back and wade through the mud. I can not do that now; I am not physically able to do it. But while I live, let me tell you that I hope God will be with me to enable me to bear my testimony, wherever my lot may be cast, to my fellow men. Let me say that I never shun the duty of bearing my testimony to my fellow men, no matter where I am, I will state it to all, no matter whether high or low, that I have a faithful testimony to bear to the latter day work, that when the time comes that I have to give an account of the deeds of this life, it may be such an account as I can give with pleasure and not with grief. There are but a few days allotted to us old vetrans to stay with you; but while we are with you we hope to be of some comfort to you. There is an old saying, "Old men for counsel, and young men for war." I believe that is a very good saying. At any rate, after we have sown our wild oats, and traveled a while on the down hill of time, we begin to take things into consideration more clearly, and have more reflection on needful things. I believe the old men are necessary as well as the young. . . . Not only that, but I am glad to see the young stand up and proclaim the gospel with all the vehemence of their youth, because the object is to have the gospel proclaimed to all men. And I can say to those young men in the ministry to-day, they will make their mark in the world. This work must march on until it accomplishes the objects for which it was established.

I feel to say to my brethren and sisters that, I am glad I am with you to-day. I had no idea that I could be with you; but circumstances occurred so that I could leave my home, and I am glad I am with you. As I said before, I can not preach, I can not talk much to you. We have passed through a great deal—those of us who are old Saints—We have passed through the bitter times of trial and trouble, while to-day we are comparatively at peace, as it were. We have places we can meet in and call our own; but when the brother and I first began sounding the gospel trump we had to preach out of doors, or anywhere where we could; we preached in private houses, or anywhere we could to tell the good story. Even in that day the Lord worked a marvelous work. And it was not only "a marvelous work," but "a wonder." All I can say to you, my brethren and sisters, is to be faithful; be faithful in the work we have engaged in and the Lord will perform his part; I have no doubt of this at all. He will never forsake us, nor turn us empty away, when we come unto him in faith, believing.

Conference Minutes.

KEWANEE.

The conference of the Kewanee district was held at Millersburg, Mercer county, Illinois, June 12th, with devotional exercises on Sunday June 13th, 1886. J. W. Terry president, and J. D. Jones secretary. The president presented in brief the business to be transacted, cautioning all to remember that all that comes before the body should be done in the spirit of the gospel, making the natural man subserviant. Kewanee Branch reported present number 71, baptized 3, removed 4; R. Holt president, J. D. Jones secretary. Rock Island 16, baptized 6; F. G. Dungee president and clerk. A committee of three was appointed to audit the Bishop's Agent's accounts, and during other sessions reported "correct," having a balance on hand of $14.93. The trouble existing between father J. L. Adams and the district—it having been referred back to the district by his quorum for further legislation was again taken up, and resulted in the presenting and unanimously passing of the following motion, to wit: Resolved—That president Terry be considered a committee, by the taking of others as he thinks wise and visit father Adams, with the intent of bringing about a reconciliation and reporting results at our next conference. The following brethren reported as having been dutiful, and intending to continue: M. T. Short, D. S. Holmes, E. T. Bryant, John Chisnall, J. D. Jones and president J. W. Terry. A question sprung as to the advisability of changing our conference to "semi-annually in place of quarterly, which resulted in the passing of the following: Resolved That at our next conference session we take the matter into further consideration, and there render our final decision. Resolved, That when this conference adjourn it does so to meet at Buffalo Prairie, Mercer county, Illinois, September 11th, at 10 a. m. sharp. It having previously been resolved that all visiting Elders participate in all of this conference exercises—unity of feeling prevailed through our entire deliberations. Sunday services were conducted in the following cheering and edifying manner. First, prayer and testimony at 9 o'clock, a. m. conducted by J. D. Jones and I. B. Larew; preaching at 10:30 a. m. by D. S. Holmes. The baptism of two promising young men between the hours of one and three p. m.; preaching by M. T. Short commencing at 3:30 p. m., after which the two in question were confirmed by Elders Bryant, Jones, and Chisnall. Preaching again at 8 o'clock p. m. by John D. Jones. The entire business and sacred devotion throughout were satisfactory, edifying and consoling to all; for the word was declared in power by the brethren.

STRING PRAIRIE AND NAUVOO.

Conference held at Montrose, Lee county, Iowa, June 5th and 6th. Convened by calling Bro. James W. Gillen to preside, Samuel Ferris to act as clerk. Elders J. W. Gillen and A. J. Moore, from Lamoni, were invited to take part in the deliberations. Opened by singing; prayer by Bro. J. W. Gillen. Reports from Montrose, Rock Creek, and Farmington branches were read and approved. Burlington and Keokuk reports read and sent back for correction. A letter was read from Elder H. C. Bronson, tendering his resignation as president of the district. High Priest O. P. Dunham said the Lord was blessing him in his labors, had administered to the sick with good results. Bro. Revell, of the Seventy, said, when he had a chance he officiated in the work, and was trying to do the best he could, as he loved the work and hoped to continue. Bro. McKeirnan's labors had been confined to the Farmington Branch, but hoped that they might be greater in the future. Elder A. J. Moore, was pleased to meet with the people of God, and felt good in their assemblies. B. F. Durfee had labored some in the district, but not as much as he should like to have done. H. T. Pitt was striving to present the truth when opportunity offered. John Lambert's determinations were to spread the work of truth. Samuel Ferris had labored in the Keokuk Branch, as he was its presiding officer. Priest, A. Hall, had labored in the Montrose Branch; was holding meetings regularly. Afternoon session. Bishop's Agent's Report: Balance on hand last report $1.74, received since $36.50, total $38.24; paid out since last report $28.40, balance on hand $9.84; in hands of solicitors, subject to my orders $12.00. John Lambert agent. A committee consisting of Brn. Ferris, Pitt and Durfee was appointed to audit the Bishop's Agent's book. It was resolved, that Bro. James McKeirnan be elected to the office of district president for the next six months. The above resolution was carried. It was Resolved, that when this conference adjourns it does so to meet at Rock Creek Branch, the first Saturday and Sunday in September. Carried. Bro. Samuel Ferris was sustained as district clerk, for the next six months. The license of Bro. McClintock was renewed by resolution of conference. Evening session. The committee appointed to audit the Bishop's Agent's book, reported: Money collected from December 5th, 1885, to June 5th, 1886, $81.04. Paid out for same period $71.30. Balance due church $9.74. Samuel Ferris, H. T. Pitt, B. F. Durfee, committee. Report received and committee discharged. Bro. A. J. Moore occupied the stand on Saturday evening, taking for his text, the 10th verse of 1st chapter of Ephesians. He clearly showed that Christ, and the apostles and prophets predicted that the church established by Christ would fall away; and that a new dispensation would take place in the last days; and that God would reveal his will to his children as in former days. The discourse was clear and forcible. At its conclusion two were administered to by Elders J. W. Gillen and James McKeirnan. At eight o'clock Sabbath morning the Saints met for prayer. Elder H. T. Pitt in charge of meeting; the Saints enjoyed themselves and had a time of rejoicing. Met at half-past ten. Hymn 361 was sung and prayer by Bro. McKeirnan; Elder J. W. Gillen read a morning lesson from first Epistle of John and first chapter; and preached a lengthy and powerful discourse, to a large audience. Closed by singing the 232 hymn. Met at half-past two in the afternoon and spent a short season in prayer and testimony; two sisters that were baptized before meeting were confirmed and then the sacrament was administered. A glorious time was had. Met at half-past seven for preaching, when Elder J. W. Gillen finished the subject that he took up in the morning, to the satisfaction of a large audience. We had a good time all through the sessions of conference and the Spirit of the Lord was poured out, the Saints rejoiced.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICE.

There will be a two days' meeting held in Little Compton, Rhode Island, on Saturday and Sunday, June 26th and 27th, 1886; those desiring to be met with teams, will please correspond with Joseph B. Pearce, Adamsville, Rhode Island.

Our late conference just closed at Fall River, is conceded by those who were present, to have been the very best in the history of the district; peace flowed like a river through all the meetings.

Yours in the faith,

JOHN SMITH.

FOURTH OF JULY EXCURSION TICKETS.

On Saturday, Sunday and Monday, July 3d, 4th and 5th, the "Burlington Route," C. B. & Q. R. R., will sell Round Trip Tickets between all local stations at one fare for the round trip. Tickets will be good to return up to and including Tuesday, July 6th, and may be obtained of Ticket Agents on the line.

CAMP MEETING.

A camp meeting will be held at Camp Creek, Calhoun county, Iowa, commencing on July 8th, and to hold over the following Sunday. Those coming from the north, east, and south-east will be met at Lake City, Calhoun county, on the same day. Teamsters will be known by their wearing a blue ribbon. If those desirous to attend will send a postal card to Wm. A. Carroll, Grant City, Sac county, Iowa, a week before the time for holding said meeting, they will confer a favor, and thus enable him to provide sufficient teams to accommodate all coming.

W. W. WHITING, Dist. Pres.

DIED.

TANNER.—At Lucas, Iowa, June 9th, 1886, Naomi, daughter of James and Elizabeth Tanner, aged 2 years, 5 months and 7 days. Funeral service by Elder John R. Evans.

WHITE.—At Galien, Michigan, June 8th, 1886, of dropsy, after lingering in suffering several months, little Willie, son of Bro. and Sr. Jesse D. White; aged 1 year, 10 months and 27 days. So young, tender and so pure, he has gone on to mingle with the pure, in the sphere of the holy. Funeral remarks by Elder C. Scott, on the 10th June.

FRUIT AS A MEDICINE.

Of all fruit with which we are blessed, the peach is the most delicious and digestible. There is nothing more palatable, wholesome and medicinal than good ripe peaches. It is a mistaken idea that no fruit should be eaten at breakfast. It would be far better if people would eat less bacon and grease at breakfast and more fruit. In the morning there is an acrid state of the secretions, and nothing is so well calculated to correct this as cooling sub-acid fruits; such as peaches, apples, etc. The apple is one of the best of fruits. Baked or stewed apples will generally agree with the most delicate stomach, and are an excellent medicine in many cases. Green or half ripe apples stewed and sweetened are pleasant to the taste, cooling, nourishing, laxative, far superior in many cases to the abominable doses of salts and oil usually given in fever and other diseases. Raw apples and dried apples stewed are better for constipation than some pills. Oranges are very acceptable to most stomachs, having all the advantages of the acid alluded to; but the orange juice alone should be taken, rejecting the pulp. The same may be said of lemons, pomegranates, and all that class. Lemonade is the best drink in fevers, and when thickened with sugar it is better than syrup of squills and other nauseants in many cases of cough. Tomatoes act on the liver and bowels, and are much more pleasant and safe than blue mass. The juice should be used alone, rejecting the skins. The small seeded fruits, such as blackberries, figs, raspberries, currants and strawberries, may be classed among the best foods and medicines. The sugar in them is nutritious, the acid is cooling and purifying, and the seeds are laxative.

We would be much the gainers if we would look more to our orchards and gardens for our medicines and less to the drug stores. To cure fever or act on the kidneys, no febrifuge or diuretic is superior to watermelon, which may, with very few exceptions, be taken in sickness and health in almost unlimited quantities with positive benefit. But in using them, juice should be taken, excluding the pulp; and then the melon should be fresh and ripe.

BE TRUE.

THERE are persons whom you can always believe, because you know they have the habit of telling the truth. They do not "color" a story or enlarge a bit of news in order to make it sound fine or remarkable. There are others whom you hardly know whether to believe or not, because they stretch things so. A trifling incident grows in size, but not in quality, by passing through their mouth. They take a small fact or slender bit of news and pad it with added words, and paint it with high-colored adjectives, until it is largely unreal and gives a false impression. And one does not like to listen to folks when so much must be "allowed for shrinkage." Cultivate the habit of telling the truth in little things as well as in great ones. Pick your words wisely, and use only such as rightly mean what you have to say. Never "stretch" a story or fact to make it seem bigger or funnier. Do this, and people will learn to trust and respect you. This will be better than having a name for telling wonderful stories or making foolish and falsely "funny remarks." There are enough true funny things happening in the world, and they are most entertaining when told just exactly as they came to pass. One has well said, "Never deceive for the sake of a foolish jest, or to excite the laughter of a few companions at the expense of a friend." Dear young friends, be true. Tell the truth. There are many false tongues. Let yours speak the things that are pure, lovely and true.

DIPHTHERIA.

THE season of the year is upon us when that dread disorder known as diphtheria is liable to break out and become epidemic. Some years ago the English government offered a reward of $25,000 to any one who would discover and make public a sure remedy for this disease. A certain Dr. Greathead had used a remedy which was almost infallible, and it is so very simple that the only wonder is it was not thought of before. The doctor cured thousands of cases with its use, and he is authority for the statement that if the disease is taken in time the remedy never fails.

Four drops of sulphuric acid in three-fourths of a tumbler of water, given by the teaspoonful as the case may demand for adults and a proportionately less quantity for children. This mixture coagulates the diphtheric membrane which becomes loosened and is readily removed by coughing or vomiting.—Nauvoo Independent.

DON'T FORGET

PULPIT APOLOGIES.

APOLOGIES made by an Elder before he addresses the congregation before which he stands to speak are always regarded with more or less suspicion. It has happened that an Elder has said at the outset of his effort that he had "nothing of myself to say, unless the Lord has something to say through me, I shall not speak to you;" and has then rambled on in such an incoherent and careless way that every one could see that he had not received the Spirit to teach at the time. An instance or two of this kind happening to the same man, will greatly injure the efforts such a man might attempt. We advise the Elders that they take thought on this, and when they are called upon to preach, make no apologies, put up a silent prayer for direction and help, and do the best they can. If they have no liberty it is better to stop than to bore the people and ruin their own reputation. When one has exhausted the thoughts given for utterance, stop and close the effort, no matter whether it be five minutes or an hour. Some, otherwise splendid speakers are noted for not knowing when to stop. It is far better to leave much unsaid than to risk losing a good impression already made by protracting the speech until the listeners are worn out. Two sermons of fifty minutes each, are much better than one of ninety or one hundred and five. It is better to avoid the habit of saying "in conclusion" and then beginning a new topic. We once listened to an Elder who said, "in conclusion," and occupied thirty minutes in a new direction that fell flat on tired ears.

Elders should try diligently to avoid the repetition of useless phrases, and pet expressions. No matter how fine such expressions may sound at the first hearing of them, they wear upon the ear, and if repeated often they jar on sensitive nerves to such a degree that a fear of their repetition incapacitates the hearer from rightly judging of what else is said. We remember once hearing an Elder use the words, "and the great God of heaven," twenty-five times in a sermon thirty-five minutes in length. We heard another use the terms "this age of the world," "that age of the world," fifty-eight times in an hour's discourse. Another the sentence, "the children of men" fifty-three times in as many minutes. All such repetitions injure the effect of the Elder's speech, and thus hurt his efficiency. Do not use the terms "admit the fact," "considering the fact;" unless the Elder really understands what is stated as a fact and knows it to be such and is willing to stand by his admission if it be observed by an opponent. The words "and we find," "we see then," "my dear friends," "my Christian friends," "my dear hearers," "bless you," "bless your souls," and all such expressions are burdens unnecessarily placed upon the thought the speaker is expressing and are only "filling" at the best.

We are charged to help each other in becoming useful in our work; and these suggestions are not intended to hurt the feelings of any rising Elder, but as needful instruction which will be beneficial to all, if heeded.

It is understood that the Elder is to minister as the Spirit may direct; but it is not proper to understand that the Spirit supervises the utterances of words that convey no meaning in keeping with the harmony of the subject upon which the Elder is speaking. A man may cultivate both the manner and matter of his delivery.

PRAYER MEETING ETIQUETTE, AND TESTIMONY MEETING COURTESIES.

ALL "meetings are to be conducted" by the Elders, as "they may be led by the Spirit."—D. of C.

While we fully believe the rule as stated above we should be much pleased to see a better degree of order and propriety observed in prayer and testimony meetings than is now and then manifested—evidently in the absence of the Spirit. It may not be permissible to prescribe a set of rules to be observed at each and every meeting for prayer and testimony; but we may make a few suggestions, which if heeded may help sometimes in having a "good meeting."

1. All who attend the meeting should be at the place of meeting on time.

2. The officer whose prerogative it is to preside should call the meeting "to order promptly, either presiding himself, or inviting some brother to take charge. If no recognized branch officer is present, then the one highest in office should be called by vote, or himself take charge and call the meeting to order.

3. The officer presiding should be brief in his opening address, or omit it altogether. He should be wide awake and cheerful, prayerful and watchful. He should set a good example of decorum, respecting the rights of all, and avoid scolding; especially should he not scold the absent over the shoulders of those present, thus spoiling the pleasure of those who have come to the house of prayer for needed help and cheer.

4. Every one present should remember that "words fitly spoken are like apples of gold in pictures of silver," and avoid preaching a sermon when bearing testimony. No one should take occasion to air any pet theory, or to relate any trouble between himself and another. Strive to impart good as well as to receive good. Do not mar the good that a judicious silence may do by an improper or an untimely speech. There are times where "speech is silver, silence golden."

5. No one should resent what another may say in prayer meeting. It is not the time, nor the place for personal altercation, either on conduct or doctrine. The presiding officer is the one to rebuke an offender in doctrine; let him attend to that duty.

6. When one rises to speak or kneels to pray, he should not be interrupted till done, either by officer or member; except in case too much time is being occupied, or the person speaking is using improper language. If two or more rise to speak at once, the brother in charge should name or designate the one first rising, and after, the others in their order if time permits. If one begins to sing or pray, he should not be checked for another to speak. The same in regard to one speaking in tongues &c. The decision, or call of the brother presiding should be taken as final, and no one should insist on his right to speak if another is recognized by the brother in charge.

7. When praying avoid the repetition of the name of the Deity in any form. It is always understood that those who pray are praying to God the Father; and for a person to be constantly using the name of the father is to weaken the spirit by which others enter into the prayer. We have heard the name and appellations of God repeated as many as one hundred and twenty-five times in a prayer ten minutes in length. Avoid repeating the name of Jesus Christ in either of its forms. It is understood by all who hear a Saint pray, that he is asking in the name of Jesus Christ, for they are charged to so ask; to constantly repeat the name is to injure the sentiment of respect in which all should listen to prayer.

8. The Spirit of God is not an accusing spirit, and for this reason if one finds himself indulging in accusations he should at once stop, and sit down to serious self-examination.

9. Avoid telling long stories, especially if all who are present have heard you before tell the same story. No matter how interesting it may be to you, it may be tiring to others.

10. Be hearty, speak quietly, pray fervently, sing cheerily and in time and tune with others who may be singing; in short do what you can to be glad and cheerful and make others feel so too.

ERRATUM.

ELDER L. O. LITTLEFIELD, of Logan, Utah, writes under date of May 22d, 1886, stating that there was an error in the letter of Mrs. Mercy R. Thompson, as published by him; and which we reproduced in HERALD of April 24th, and asking us to reprint the letter as corrected by him.

We reproduced the letter as published by Mr. Littlefield, and do not feel that we should do more than give the words claimed to have been omitted by the "type setter" in the Journal office. In the first line of the first column on page 243, of HERALD for April 24th, after the words "wish me," Mr. Littlefield states that it should read, "to live such a lonely life and wished him." In the letter thus corrected the line would read "telling him that he did not wish me to live such a lonely life and wished him to request," &c.

WE are again beset with questions respecting secret societies, whether or not it is right for members of the church to belong to them. All we have to say in regard to them is that the Book of Mormon warns its readers against secret societies, the object of which is to get "power and gain." The question whether the societies existing in and near to the immediate neighborhood of each man's place of abode is an organization to get "power and gain," is a question that each man must determine for himself; we do not know, and will not pretend to decide.

If upon examination any one of the secret societies claiming attention for membership therein is found to be an organization to "get power and gain," it would be better and safer for Saints to let it alone. Personally, we have neither time, money, nor inclination to join any of them. It does not necessarily follow that a society because its meetings are not open to the public, is for that reason a wicked society. Every society has the right to protect itself from intrusion and disturbance by any and all lawful means. If the object of organization is a good one, the secrecy of its meetings does not necessarily make the order a wicked one. "For God will bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing." All that is secret will be discovered in that day. The object and intent of every secret, oath-bound order will then be made bare. Saints ought not, for consistency's sake, to engage in anything of which they should feel ashamed in that day, when these secrets should be made known. We should think that no difficulty should be encountered by any one in determining what he should do in regard to joining a secret society. We should ask: First, is it right in itself? Second, is it necessary? Third, what is to be gained by me in belonging to it? Fourth, have I the means to spare from other demands to spend in such connection? Fifth, have I the time to spend away from other duties and pleasures, my home duties, wife and children? and Sixth, have I the inclination to spend both the time and money, union with such society will require.

To these questions may be added one, What are the objects of the society: protective, beneficiary, social, or for getting power and gain. If these questions are settled, it ought to determine the matter, or furnish every one the key to the situation so that he could determine it for himself.

Jesus, the Master, said: "I spake openly to the world; I ever taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whether the Jews always resort; and in secret have I said nothing."—St. John 18: 20.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

A two days' meeting was held at Alledale, Worth County, Missouri, June 19th and 20th, at which Bro. H. A. Stebbins presided, and which was well attended. Bro. Stebbins, Banta, John Johnson, C. Jones, and the Editor were the preachers. There was a fair attendance and good order, as a rule. The exception was on Sunday evening, when a bevy of half a dozen girls each attended by a youth as cavalier, gathered in a group not far from the stand and busied themselves in conversation. Uncle Jack Carr, Justice of the Peace, finally noticed them and requested order, which they apparently reluctantly gave. It was not a disturbance traceable to antagonism to us as a people, but simply an exhibition of bad manners.

Brother R. J. Anthony baptized two at Carbon, instead of one as reported by us in HERALD of June 12th. He also baptized eight at Salem, or Pondtown, Utah, June 13th.

Bro. Oliver Johnson has been appointed a Deputy United States Marshal, by Marshal Ireland, of Utah.

Sister Alice Strickland is at Strang, Fillmore County, Nebraska, and thinks that if an Elder will come there to preach, she could succeed in securing a place for the meeting to be held in. Will brother Levi Anthony please inform sister Strickland by card when the next session of district conference will be held at Wilber.

Uncle Wm. B. Smith was at Clinton, Iowa, June 18th. He had been there nearly two weeks, had spoken on several occasions. There seems to be local trouble there, although there is some interest to hear the Elders.

Bro. H. N. Hansen, under date of June 19th, says: "We appreciate the proposed enlargement of the Hope, and in order to assist will double our subscription. . . . We now take fifteen copies, and will then take thirty."

Bro. E. L. Kelley wrote us a line from Detroit, Michigan, where he was making a brief stop, on his way to the Wyoming (Pa.) District. He reports finding a colored member of the church, holding a certificate given by an eastern branch in 1842, duly signed, and commending to fellowship. Bro. Kelley also reports that the Michigan District is improved and improving.

Bro. L. F. West, of Milton, Santa Rosa County, Florida, wishes brother George Montague to correspond with him as he does not know Bro. Montague's address. The Saints of the district are anxious for brother Montague to visit and labor among them. Bro. West says, "Tell him to come, and come soon."

Brother Enoch Ledsworth, of Port Crescent, Michigan, writes us June 6th, saying, "My wife and I are the only Saints in this place. I feel thankful to God that I know Joseph Smith the Seer was a prophet of God, that the Book of Mormon is true, and also that the Doctrine and Covenants is true."

Bro. E. L. Kelly, writing from Brown City, Michigan, June 15th, informs us that the late conference in the North Michigan District was well attended; the Saints felt well, and altogether it was a good one.

Bro. W. R. Calhoun writes Bro. D. Dancer, June 21st: "My faith in this great and glorious latter day work was never stronger than now. Our branch numbers fourteen, and each member of the same claims that Jesus has verified his promise in John 7: 17 to them. They all testify that they do know that the work is true.

Bro. C. M. Fulks writes from Arcadia, Kan., requesting Elders passing Spencer Station, Medina County, Ohio, to call and preach at his brother William's. He lives ten miles south of the county seat, Wellington.

Bro. William Clow of Wyandotte Kan., a city now numbering about 12,000 inhabitants, was re-elected to the city council last Spring by a majority of near five hundred over the next highest candidate, and was then made president of the council by vote of seven to three. And when it is noted that he is not a professional politician, but a business man, (a foreman of one of the principal departments of the U. P. R. R. Co's. works), his official position is so much the more significant and complimentary. We wish him full success.

Bro. Stephen Butler, of Odell, Neb., in his letter of June 21st, says:—"To say the 'Mothers' Home Column' is good, is not enough. It is evident that the fire that refines and purifies, burns within the hearts of the mothers of latter day Israel."

By card from Bro. F. G. Pitt, president of the Independence Branch, we learn that Elder W. P. Brown is in Zion, rousing the dormant, &c. When he came to Lamoni he told the people that the Holy Ghost told him to come, and he should stay until the same spirit told him to go hence. He left Lamoni June 15th, whether directed or not, and went to Independence. Bro. Pitt states that Elder Brown was to occupy the chapel there for four nights, beginning June 21st, with an agreement that one of the brethren was to be permitted to follow him in reply after each discourse. Brethren Joseph Luff and Thomas E. Lloyd were chosen to answer for the branch, as should be agreed between them. Bro. Pitt's card was dated the 22d, after the first evening.

Bro. J. W. Brackenbury reviewed the Hedrickite position presented by Elder Hill, at Independence, Missouri, Sunday, June 20th, at their request. Bro. Brackenbury so informed us in a letter dated June 21st.

The Associate Editor preached three sermons to small congregations in the Lutheran Church at West Burlington, and three sermons in the Saints' Hall, Burlington, Iowa, from the 13th to the 18th inclusive. We found pleasant homes with Brn. W. R. Sellon and Alexander McFarland. The weather was for the most part very dry and hot, yet we enjoyed the company of the Saints and hope they will be revived with refreshings from the presence of the Lord. There are some excellent members in those places, and they should live in peace and love, and serve God in the unity of the Holy Spirit.

Bro. Heman C. Smith has reached his California field of labor.

WE clip the following from the Stewartsville, (Mo.) Independent, for June 12th:

"Rev. L. L. Luse, who was loose in this part of the country some time ago, lately had his picture in the Police Gazette, a member of the Christian Church in this community showing us a copy of the paper containing it."

We take no pleasure in the disgrace of Mr. Luse, notwithstanding he did about all he could, in connection with "Rev. Clark Braden," to worry and outrage the Saints by attacking them and their religion with base misrepresentation, falsehood, and beastly slander. By the way, "Rev. Braden" and his helper at Stewartsville—Riedel—have fallen with Luse into the very pit they digged for the Saints. "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord."

WE clip the following from the editorial notes of the daily Sentinel of Independence, Mo., for June 21st. All our readers will be pleased to see that Bro. Luff is again actively engaged in the Master's work; also that Bro. I. N. White is blowing "the trumpet in Zion."

"The pulpit of the Latter Day Saints' church was occupied at eleven a. m. by Elder Joseph Luff, and in the evening at eight by Elder I. N. White, of Clinton, Mo. Elder Luff's text was from John 14; 15, and the force of his argument was employed in showing the folly of mere form or ceremony in religion regardless of the impelling motive referred to by Christ. Neither the hope of heaven nor the fear of hell should constitute the incentive to service, but love for God and Christ, approximating as nearly as possible to the standard of model furnished in the world's exemplar, Jesus Christ. If christianity does nothing, it is nothing, and all its doctrines, ceremonies and promises might safely be measured as to their worth by the amount of good resulting to the race from their legitimate operation among men. An earnest appeal was made to all present to study Christ in his perfect character as revealed in the word, and make him alone their pattern. Elder White took his text from Isa, 29, and following in the line marked out at the morning service, spoke of the results reaped by mankind from service to God. His remarks were calculated to stimulate men to faithfulness and devotion in their christian career by showing the good reaped even here, thus perfecting the hope of what was in store beyond.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is it necessary to use the words "I seal the gift of the Holy Ghost on thee," "Receive thou the Holy Spirit," to confirm individuals as members into the church?

Ans.—No.

Q.—Is there any particular form of words to use in confirming members into the church, if so please state it?

A.—There is no form given.

Q.—If there be no form nor particular words to use, other than I (or) we confirm you a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, why is it that often when two Elders, or more take part in confirming, they rehearse what the first has said principally, and claim a mistake was made.

A.—We do not know why Elders have so repeated. They who have so repeated the words of another could best tell why they did so. Elders are sometimes led to do things not given in any formula. The substance of what should be said in confirmation is the recognition of the rite for confirming into the church, the praying for and conferring the Holy Spirit.

FROM the clipping from the Chicago Tribune, of June 22d, which we give below, it may be seen what abstinence from intoxicants can do for a town. Let the good work go on.

BEEVILLE, Tex., June 21.—The telegraph station at this place was opened this morning, and the Beevillites are busy telegraphing their friends and watching the dispatcher. The following is a copy of the first telegram sent over the line:

BEEVILLE, Tex., June 21.—Col. Swain, Controller, Austin, Texas: I take pleasure in sending you the first telegram ever sent from Beeville, to let you know that we are now connected both by rail and wire with the balance of the world, and to say that we are solid for local option.

D. T. A. WALTON,

Sheriff of Bee County.

In this connection it may be said that Bee County has allowed no whisky or other liquor within its borders for nine years past. A local-option election was recently held there, and after nine years of trial, the vote for prohibition was unanimous. "Court does not sit in our town long enough to warm the benches," said a Bee County official to-day. "We have absolutely no crime. The constable's office is a sinecure and our jail an architectural vacuity. I don't suppose that it holds three prisoners a year, unless they are criminals sent here from another county and on change of venue, or something of that sort." Beeville is the latest town reached by the Arkansas Pass Road.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

WHEN reading the letter sent us by sister S. Bourgoiin which appears in the "Column" this week, we felt to exclaim with the Apostle James, "Hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him!" Can any cause fail which has support like this? Never, while God endures! When Jesus sent back the messengers of John, commanding them to tell John the things which they had seen him do, as if it was not enough that he enumerated the works of mercy he was doing, such as cleansing the lepers, giving sight to the blind and hearing to the deaf, he added yet this other and perchance greater confirmation of the divinity of His calling, "And the poor have the gospel preached unto them." It was the gospel light shining upon the offering of the poor widow, which enlarged it until it outshone and outweighed all the gifts of the rich. Offerings like these will bring with them the prayers by which they have been consecrated, and if used in the same spirit in which they have been given, no power on earth can resist the influence which they will carry with them. We know of many such and have now in our mind one who was our guest at conference time. Many of the readers of the Herald know the terrible afflictions through which sister Slocum of Nebraska City has been called to pass. She came to us a stranger, but we felt when she left us that truly we had entertained a sister of the Master. Every year she pays into the storehouse of the Lord more than many who are worth their thousands and yet she earns her living by peddling apples and candy on the streets. "I have been blest in doing this," she said, "my basket has never been empty and the Lord will never let it be." Rich in faith! Lift up your heads and rejoice ye sorely afflicted, tried and tempted ones, for the hour of your redemption draweth nigh. He who could multiply the loaves and fishes, who said of her offering, it is more than all, has promised to return and the signs of his coming already appear. His reward will be with him and his work before him. If perchance like John when cast into prison, any of us should be doubting by the way—should think the work moving slowly, let us banish our doubts, lift up our heads and strengthen our hands for the work before us, for his chariot wheels will not linger and his judgment not wait.

We are in receipt of letters from sister Emma, Aunt Ruth and M. A. Mathews also selection by "A Sister."

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 12th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I can not write much, because I am German, but I read in the "Sister's Column" that you want help to enlarge the Hope, and I think it ought to be enlarged, so I send you a dollar for that purpose, and pray the Lord to bless your effort. I have no children, but I take the Hope, for I think it a duty to sustain the paper. I have nothing in this world but my hands, yet I am rich in the Lord. I never have a doubt of this glorious gospel; I know it is of God, and I wish I could write well, I would tell you of God's mercies to me. May the Lord bless your effort, and help you in all your work by his Spirit, is my prayer.

Your sister in Christ,
S. BOURGUOIN.

May 11th.

Dear Sister of the Gospel of Christ:—I have been thinking for some time that I would write a few lines for the "Mothers Home Column." Then I would almost give it up, knowing my weakness and inability for such a task—as I am no scholar, and have had no experience of this kind. If we never make an effort to do that which we desire to do, we will never accomplish what we might if we do make an effort. Then sisters, let us try and see what we can do for the Master, and the good of our children. I receive the Herald each week; I could not do without it. I am so thankful that I can take the Herald and sit down and read such good sermons as brother Blair's on the sixth of April. It does my soul good. And such good advice in the "Home Column." I do appreciate the good counsel given by the sisters. I think it is a great help, especially to the young mothers. Let each one of us who have small children read sister Ella's letter of April the fourth, and try her way of teaching our little ones, for she has said that which many mothers can not say, and tell that which is true. I am sure if we follow her advice we will lose nothing. We should strive to teach our children to be obedient and truthful. I don't believe there is any surer way than sister Ella's. We are to apt to say to ourselves:—"Oh the dear children, they will outgrow their bad ways. It is no use to be correcting them so much. They will be old enough some day to be ashamed of their conduct. They will naturally grow out of their bad ways." Now this is not always the case. Some children will go from bad to worse, if they are allowed to have their own way. I think it is every parent's duty to set a good example before their children, and be sure never to do anything or say anything that they would correct one of them for. I have been a member of the restored church for nine years; have only had the privilege of hearing a few sermons preached in that time. Have lived away from the church and away from any of the Saints; have been adrift in the world. Not tossed about by every wind of doctrine. I have heard a great many kinds preached. I have felt a great many times as if the tares had almost choked out the good seed that was sown. I thank God that the seed is still there, and all it needs is to be well watered. I do hope that we may not always be left without a shepherd. I will close, praying for the welfare of all God's people.

A Sister in the one faith.

GRAYSVILLE, Ohio, May 11th.

Dear Sister Frances:—May the Lord sustain you in your work for good. I have been a reader of the "Home Column" since its first introduction in the Herald, and I must say I have been edified by the productions of every sister, and I have been impressed many times to cast in my "mite." I believe when impressed by the Spirit to do anything we should act. If we have only one talent, let us improve it. I feel confident the good Father is helping those who write to cheer and do good through the "Home Column." We should not be ambitious to do the greatest and grandest work, but let us do just the work God gives us to do. When the Spirit guides us all the work will be beautiful and for a purpose. Then let us remember every part assigned us by God is a good part. We should not strive to do too many and great things, but patiently improve on what talent God has bestowed upon us, and He will increase it as we are dutiful and worthy.

"Ye have need of patience," is an inspired teaching, sisters, let us patiently (with whatever talent God has given us) strive to be found "living stones," remembering the beautiful sisterhood of the graces is marred wherever a divine patience is wanting. I think those verses sent in by sister Orilla Sheehy, were beautiful and timely. May they encourage many to patiently strive to be "living stones." Here are some similar ones I selected for the "Home Column." Since the commencement of the sisters department. I have been gathering selections, and will send as I have opportunity. Sisters let us rally to the assistance of the editress of the "Home Column," and with divine assistance, let it be interesting and for good to all people.

Your sister,
SARAH A. ROSE.

"AS THY DAY."

When the tale of bricks is doubled,
Moses comes," the Hebrews say;
When the night has grown the blackest
Comes the long-expected day;
When our cares have grown so heavy
That we scarce can bear the load,
Then a hand is stretched to help us
On our weary road.

When the tale of bricks is doubled,
As our cares and wants increase,
Comes a double share of courage,
Though the battle may not cease,
Though the fight may rage the fiercer,
And the fiery darts be hurled,
If we will but call for succor,
We may face the world.

When the tale of bricks is doubled,
When oppression bows us low,
Comes a Moses who will free us—
Break our fetters at a blow;
And if we will truly follow
From the black Egyptian night,
He will guide us, He will lead us,
To eternal light.—Selected.

EAST DES MOINES, Iowa, May 31st.

Dear Sister Frances:—I am encouraged that my last did not find a place in your waste basket. Although I can not write with the same ability many of my sisters can; yet I know I would let my light shine (even though it be a "poor little rushlight" as one sister expressed herself); I must not hide it under a bushel, but let it be a light to the world. The "Mother's Home Column" has lead me into better and higher thoughts and aspirations, or rather it has quickened and strengthened me into a firmer determination to fulfill those thoughts and aspirations which I have ever had; and by the grace of God assisting me I am determined to strive with all my powers to do the will of God. I feel my weakness, and often feel fearful I may be overcome by the temptations and trials I meet; I find God's grace is all sufficient, and I shall be tried only sufficiently to test and prove me. I often think how loving our Heavenly Father is toward us, his children. With what gentle, tender compassion he chides us when we go astray; how we must grieve his Holy Spirit by our oft disobedience; how long will he bear with us when we value his love so little! When I read and hear of the terrible destruction of life and property throughout the world, I thank God that he is a prayer hearing and prayer answering God. I can ask him to care for us his people, and trust him that his arm will be stretched forth to protect and keep all who are worthy of his care and protection.

Dear Sisters, how can we make our home the most desirable place for our sons and daughters? They will soon be men and women, they will no longer cheer our hearts with their childish glee, or as many a weary mother has felt the noisy mirth that they would wish to check. Let us not speak the harsh word that would give us cause to regret in the future when they have left home. Mothers, we do not wish to drive our children out into the streets by our fretting at their noise, we were children once and we could not always restrain ourselves; we often wished our mothers would let us make all the noise we could. Let us not be over troubled that our boy leaves the print of his boot in mud on our clean floors; soon, ah too soon those feet will be out in the world, we may wish that they will come even though they left a little dirt for us to clean after them.

May our lives be pure and holy,
Like the Savior's, meek and lowly,
And when this life has passed away,
May we dwell with him in endless day.

Your sister,
LUCY B. MERRILL.

BOUTON, Iowa, April 15th.

Dear Sister Frances:—Since the beginning of the "Mothers' Home Column" I have often felt impressed to write a few lines for it, yet I greatly feel my inability. Yet still I can say a word of encouragement, if nothing more. To-day while reading the sisters' letters my heart rejoices, for I can truly say I have been edified, and must say with sister Lloyd, Alas, how needy I am! Pray for me dear sisters, that I may be blessed with the spirit of meekness, and with charity, that I may keep the commandments of God, with an eye single to his glory. As a wife and a mother I too have a responsibility resting upon me. I want to raise my daughter in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and I realize that the "Mothers' Home Column" has already been a great benefit to me. I am isolated from the Saints and only occasionally get to meet with them, yet I am not always alone, for the Father often blesses me with his Spirit. Will Sister Perla please tell us how or where to get the leaven that is better than yeast?

S. E. BOUTON.

FOUNTAIN GREEN, Ill., May 16th.

Dear Sisters of the "Home Column":—Living remote as I do from any branch of the church, I feel the more drawn out to communicate with you through the Herald. The time allotted me for my sojourn here in all probability is near an end, therefore while I live I want to do all that I can for God and the truth. I am living with my son and his family and we seldom have any preaching here. The Herald is the only messenger of glad tidings which visits us and it gladdens my heart to see the interest my sisters take in helping on this great and glorious work of the last days. When I wrote before I did not know that David Whitmer was still living; for I had heard he was dead. David Whitmer and his wife were both of them present when the first conference of the church was held. They were members of the church at that time and I have often heard him about seeing the angel and also the records and say "Tongue never can express my feelings, while talking to the heavenly messenger." This testimony he still bears.

The persecution we suffered, after the church was organized, was so great that we left our home and moved into the house with my brother Hyrum's family. The Lord warned Hyrum in a vision when he was out preaching to return and take his family to a place of safety, for his enemies were in search of him. A few days after he was gone, a number of men, came and searched our house for him. Mother, myself and younger sister were the only ones at home; but the men insisted that they knew he was there and they meant to have him. When we insisted that he was not there, their anger turned upon us and they commenced to rob the house. While they were plundering us, my brother, William, came. He had been warned that we were in trouble, and upon coming in he asked mother, "What were those men doing?" She told him they had come for Hyrum and were now plundering the house. Arming himself with a stout club, he soon drove them from the house. They had come in carriages with dark lanterns, and if they had found Hyrum it was their intention to have him put to death. His work was not done, therefore the Lord spared him. In the fall our family moved to Waterloo, in La Fayette county, near old father Whitmer's. My brothers and the Whitmer brothers, held meetings, first at one house and then at the other, for preaching and prayer, and this continued until near spring, first one preaching and then the other, wherever they could get a hearing. As spring approached they were commanded to go to Kirtland, Ohio, and the rest of the church were to go in the spring. When the members of the church had all assembled, ready for the journey, my mother took charge of the company, and with the aid of Bro. Humphry and my brother William, we accomplished the journey as far as Buffalo. Mother then sent brethren to the wharf to inquire for a Capt. Blake. When they found him, and mother had spoken for our passage across the lake he told her that the lake was so blocked with ice he did not think it would be possible for us to sail for two weeks. She tried to rent a room, but could not get one. The captain then gave us permission to go on the boat and stay until we could sail. The ice, he said, was four miles out in the lake, and four feet thick.

The outlook was anything but pleasant. Children were crying, sisters complaining, wishing they had stayed at home where they could enjoy their comfortable rocking chairs, much as the children of Israel longed for the flesh pots of Egypt. Mother bore all their complainings patiently, and had great charity for and sympathy with them. Her faith was strong in the Lord, for she believed that he had commanded us to go and would carry us safely through. We held a prayer meeting and prayed that the Lord would open the way for us to pass out and reach our destination. We also sung praises to our God for the blessings he had bestowed upon us in restoring the gospel in these last days. The captain came to mother and begged her to have her company quit singing, for his men were so attracted by the music that it was impossible to get them to obey orders, and the ice was liable to break now at any time and then sail must be hoisted. Shortly afterwards we heard a great noise and cracking in the ice. The captain called all hands and set them to work, for the crack had widened and a channel had opened in the ice wide enough for our boat to pass out. The ice then closed up behind us, and not another boat passed out for two weeks. The first night we laid over on the Canadian side and made some repairs on the wheels. The captain said he had been on the lake for thirty years, and that it was the roughest time he had ever had, and he believed nothing had saved us but Mother Smith's faith and prayers. When we sailed into Fairport we found my brothers waiting for us. They had come to get news of us, as the word had reached them that we were all drowned. Our joy was great in seeing them again after passing through such trials. We took breakfast at Bro. Partridge's, the first regular meal we had eaten since we started on our journey. I do not remember how many there were in our company, but of our own family there were eight. Mother, my oldest sister, her husband and one child, brother William and Don Carlos, myself and sister Lucy. My brothers took us to Kirtland where we met father. I can tell you it was a day of rejoicing, and when memory brings these things afresh to my mind I can not help weeping. Then we were a united, happy family; now all but two have passed over the dark river. With Job I feel to say, "All the days of my appointed time will I wait until my change come." The church prospered greatly, and members were added unto us daily.

Your sister in gospel bonds,

KATHARINE SALISBURY.

MEDINA, TEXAS, May 27th.

Dear Sisters:—In reading the instructive pages of the "Mothers' Home Column" I have been blessed and strengthened many times, and therefore write at this time, hoping it may do good to some one who like myself is on the outskirts of the Lord's vineyard. I am one of the scattered ones, but I know the arm of the Lord can reach me here. I was tossed about for years on the sea of doubt and uncertainty, but through his mercies I have been made to see the errors of my ways. I was aroused to the sense of my duty by the preaching of Bro. A. J. Cato and my nephew, Heman C. Smith. After many mighty prayers and supplications to God I received the following: One night as I was riding home from preaching, (it was a clear night with the stars shining brightly over us), I bowed my head in prayer to know what to do. These words came before me as if written with chalk: "Obey the law," written with small letters, as you see. I was astonished, after all my asking, to think the Lord was mindful of me, and I so indifferent to my soul's salvation. With this continually before me, I went into the waters of baptism on the 28th of December, 1885, and was baptized by Heman C. Smith. I have received that peace of mind that is promised to all who obey. Oh, that my loved ones that are yet in darkness could see as I do! Daily do my prayers go up in their behalf, for their deliverance from darkness, and placing their feet upon a more sure foundation.

I too am a mother, and also have two orphan children under my care. Pray for me, dear sisters, that I may have wisdom to guide my household in the path of peace and righteousness. As one of the sisters has said, "Let peace be our motto," and let love and peace be in our homes, and there will the Spirit of the Master abide. Let us also adorn our homes with the workmanship of our own hands, and let cleanliness be ever present, that when our weary husbands and sons come in from their toil they will find home an inviting place in which to rest. I believe if more mothers would spend their time in this way, there would be fewer husbands and sons found at the groceries. Let us therefore do all we can, and leave the result with the Master. My desire is to live faithful to the end. Ever praying for the good of the cause, I am your sister in the one faith,

SOPHIA WIGHT.

[Dear Sister: Follow the example of sister Garrett, with your children. No teacher can be like a mother. The Hope lessons will be intended as a help, and God will be your strength.—Ed.]

Correspondence.

CORMORANT, Minn., June 16th.

Brethren Joseph and William:—Our conference is over. Had a very good one; much of the Spirit was present. Brother B. B. Anderson, a member of the old church, and one that did much work on the temple at Nauvoo was present. His memory is good, and he bore a good testimony before those in and out of the church that he knew that old Joseph was a prophet of God, for he had heard him many a time speak in the Spirit of prophecy, and saw his words come to pass; and also that he knew "young Joseph" was the successor of his father, and that he did not doubt it any more than he doubted his own existence. Brother Anderson has several sons grown to manhood, who belong to the church. I heard them bear their testimony in the Spirit of God.

Brother T. J. Martin, H. Way, W. W. McLeod, J. Chester, M. Powell, H. Tabbut, B. E. Emmons, Farrow C. Griffith, also sister Way and daughter Nellie, H. Tabbut, sister McLeod, M. Chester, my wife and little Mamie went to the conference. Our ride by carriage was one hundred and twenty miles. On our way we called at Frazee and took a lady along with us, and at the conference I had the pleasure of baptizing her—sister Ellen Albertson. On my way, in Luce I preached two sermons. Will hold a series of lectures there soon. The people are very interested. They heard brother Holt last winter and liked him very much. Brother Holt left a good feeling here among the people, and he did the people good. God bless the preacher.

Brother W. W. McLeod is building a new house for us to live in, and brother Joseph Chester is the boss carpenter on it. He charges nothing for his labor, but says he will stick to the house until it is done. Yours,

J. C. FOSS.

WALLSEND, N. S. W., May 19th.

Bro. Joseph:—You see by this address I am back from Victoria. While there I was much blessed of the Master in all ways needed. Generally I had excellent liberty in presenting to the people the truths of the gospel. Many are investigating our faith, and while there thirty-six united with the church, and others are near the kingdom. May our Father bless them with power to obey, and not wander back into darkness, is my earnest desire. The ministry are capable and able, and if they are faithful will keep the Saints together, edifying them, and also adding to their number. There are some excellent Saints there, and some young men who may be a great help yet to the work in Australia. I expect to remain in this region for a few weeks and then go on to Nambucca, and the district about there. I am engaging the "Hall of Science," (a Freethinker's hall) in Newcastle, for a week's services. I have not tried that town yet, and the brethren thought I had better try it now. Expect to begin a week from Monday, and continue as long as the interest will warrant. Our address is always "Wallsend, New South Wales," and not Sydney—and it will be so until we go again to Victoria, which will not be for some time probably.

The conference, with its cares, anxieties and sorrows; its pleasures, joys and peace has passed. Many earnest prayers were offered by the Saints here that God would bless you with the wisdom and power of your holy office and calling. We felt peculiarly anxious during all the time of conference, but, now feel quiet, yet very anxious to learn of the results of the assembly. I hope the Lord will continue his blessings to the Australians the coming year as he has in the past. I feel quite old, and have not so much ambition as formerly, but my anxiety for the redemption and salvation of men is increasing. I hope to be able to do as much work this year as last, and more if possible. I am quite well, and retain my interest in the great latter day work. I certainly think the church will soon be on better working grounds than ever, according to my dream in Herald, April 10th. The church will be cleansed; then the first three quorums—"tanks"—filled. Then the work, unhindered by schismatics or doubters, will surely go forth, bright, clear and strong as it ought, for the salvation of our fellow men. I would like to know whether the thoughts in the last part of the first paragraph of the dream are correct—I mean in reference to your filling the "tanks," or reasons for not filling them.

Yours, J. F. BURTON.

CANAAN, Ind., June 15th.

Brother Blair:—Our District Conference has just closed, and the session was one of rejoicing. The gentle Spirit, in its calm and peaceful operations was manifest, and the Saints were greatly edified and strengthened. Owing to a rain-fall during the session there were no multitudes in attendance, yet we believe good was done, and in spite of apparently hindering causes the meetings were graced with fair audiences, and very strict attention. The main point of regret was the absence of so many of the Saints throughout the district whose presence was much needed in the deliberations.

It seems almost an age since our district has been visited by the traveling ministry. Our local ones are working in proportion to their temporal means, and consequently the work is not extended as the Lord would have it. Many are thirsting for "living waters." We have been laboring as much as we could consistently. Before visiting this point we presented the claims of the church to the best of our ability two Sunday evenings successively at Moorsville, four miles distant from New Albany, Ind. Bro. J. G. Scott had labored at that point a few years since and left a good impression; consequently we were encouraged by large crowds—house was filled to overflowing. We were teaching vocal and instrumental music at that point, and advertised our meetings as "a lecture."

On Saturday eve of conference we endeavored to present the word of truth in the grove which the Saints had prepared for service, taking as a basis the latter clause of the third verse of Jude's letter. Monday evening following, we convened at the house of Bro. Winscott, where we were greeted with a fair audience, and we greeted the audience with that principle in the divine economy which unfolds truth as the church demands it—Revelation:—"He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life"—"Jesus." Maintaining that this promise was not confined to the first age of Christianity and that the personal pronoun "He," was used generically "he," "who," or any one who follows "the Shepherd of the sheep" could claim this "light of life," which is divine revelation, we held that our eternal salvation is suspended on the reception of personal revelations, for "this is life eternal, to know thee, the true God;" and "no man knoweth the Father except the son, and he to whomsoever the son reveals him."—Jesus.

We believe that some good seed was sown. In taking a retrospective, cursory view of the men that were chosen and ordained by Christ after they received a knowledge of Christ and his doctrine through the medium of the divine Comforter, the advocate of Messiah's cause and kingdom, we noticed the labors put forth for the accomplishment of his will;—they were not deceived; but they counted "all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge," etc. Brethren, did they wait for their temporal supplies? If they had, would they have counted all things but loss? Would they be sacrificing, houses, lands, etc.? Did they not fling themselves gallantly and unreservedly into the arena, defending the claims of the Son of God, against all the peculiar dogmas and doctrines of that age? Yes, where even the very fire brands of persecution were being hurled against them. Can we believe those men labored in the face of these disadvantages on mere belief? No! They had a knowledge of God and his Christ. Now what is the responsibility and duty of those in our day whom God has blessed with this special knowledge? If we wish to obtain life, what should we do? Stay in our tents? "Yes," says one, "until we accumulate the riches and luxuries of this life sufficiently to keep us on the war path." When will that be? Echo says "when?"

Gather my Saints together unto me; those who have made a covenant with me by sacrifice." But would that be "sacrifice," to wait for a sufficient accumulation? Brethren, let us see if we are not offering the Lord a lame lamb. We think Cain was guilty of a similar offering. Let us then obey God rather than man. "Seek first to build up the kingdom of God, and these things will be added," is the command of our Great Captain. Let us disrobe ourselves of stupidity, sloth and fear, and bear the victorious banner of Jesus Christ into mighty Rome, and the enthroned opinions of immemorial generations will sink beneath the divinity of our mission, and then will crumble the temples of hoary superstition; then will the "ensign" wave in glory and secure immortal honors for us, even eternal bliss and peace in Christ. Our labors in the Master's vineyard with pure hearts and proper motives, sacrificing for Him and His cause, will obtain His approbation, blessings and peace in this life, and eternal happiness in that to come. Our names will then be emblazoned in immortal registry before the throne of God, never to be erased. This word I would give to all engaged in the latter day work. All have a work to perform; all have a proper sphere; and they should be active and not slothful servants, but realizing their responsibilities.

Let us as Saints centralize our faith—not in man—but Jesus Christ, and be encouraged even though some drop from our ranks through various motives. If our regiments appear thin, it only requires more energy on our part to conquer the enemy. God will superintend his work and carry it on in spite of all opposition. The object of the establishing of the "stone kingdom" was to smite; and Jesus, the Christ, being the embodiment thereof, is called the stone, even that which the builders rejected; and "on whomsoever this stone shall fall, it will grind him to powder." Cling to the "rod of iron" that leadeth to the city of bliss. Ever looking for the prosperity of the work, I am yours in the one faith."

LEONARD SCOTT.

EAST LAKE, MICH. June 12th, 1886.

Bro. Joseph:—From the many questions that are asked me concerning the Voice of Warning, it is evident that many of the Saints do not yet fully understand what is meant by the proposition in the Herald. So with your permission I will explain more fully. I do not expect any of the Saints to be responsible for the wear, tear, or loss of any of the books, but hope they will be loaned until they are worn out by being often read, losing as few as possible. I cannot give directions for loaning them; each one will have to use his own judgment. The way that I do is to keep a memorandum of the date, name, and location of the persons to whom I loan them, and ask them to hand the book to me, or leave it at some place where I can get it, when they have read it. I do not leave a book over two weeks in one place unless there is a reason for it. If I have an opportunity I ask them how they like the book, and many times I can dispose of their objections in a few minutes. Those who seem to be pleased with the book I ask them to loan one or more to their friends, and in this way they are read by many who could not be reached by me. The object of asking for the reports is that I may be able to judge of the amount of good they are doing, whether it is best to continue this work, and whether it is best to put out other church publications in the same way. There is no question as to what the books will do properly handled. The result will largely depend upon those who receive the books to loan. I see no reason why 10,000 copies of the Voice of Warning may not be constantly kept in the hands of interested readers if the Saints will make the effort. The only objection to selling them is that I wish to increase instead of cutting off the sales from the Herald office. I hope every Elder, Branch President, or traveling Elder, will assist in getting the books started in the Branches, also send for books for their own use, if in position to use them. Isolated members can often loan books to as good advantage as those in Branches. There is no objection to any member of the church assisting in this work who has a sufficient interest to do so. I will send books to any part of the United States, or Canada. Please write the name and address plainly in ordering books. Post Office Cards often get so defaced that they are not readable. Hoping that I have made all points plain I remain

Your brother in Christ.

J. H. PETERS.

PLEASANT GROVE, Utah, June 16th.

Bro. Joseph Smith.—Since I last wrote you, brother Peter Anderson and myself took a little run south, as far as Salem. We called at Pleasant Grove, Provo and Springville on the way. We found the Saints usually well except at brother Goff's; their daughters a Mrs. Ewing, was sick as we thought unto death; with this one exception, all seemed about as we left them last December. All enquired about you and when you were coming back to Utah. At Springville we met Bro. Thomas Burt, and went with him to our old and tried friend Proctor Humphrey's, where we were made happy. But in the midst of our surroundings we were made sad on hearing of the death of sister Lapworth of Salem; you will remember her; she come to Springville with brother and sister Hennings that stormy day to see you and have a talk with you before you left. She was a member of the Female Relief Society for fifteen years; but when she heard the message from the true Shepherd calling misguided, erring, wandering Israel back to the old paths whence they had strayed, she at once recognized the voice, and with the sacred books in her hand, the law in her heart, and the Holy Spirit giving her cheer and gladness, she placed herself on the rock of eternal truth. I preached her funeral sermon in the school house in Salem on last Sunday evening to a goodly and orderly congregation. Brother Burt had taken us over on the Saturday before. At two p. m., on Sunday, I preached in brother Killian's house in Salem, to a fair turnout. On Monday I baptized eight at that place, immediately in front of the Bishop's house, in a beautiful lake or pond. Salem used to be known as Pondtown. Those I baptized were the fruits of others' labors. We had a most excellent spirit in our confirmation meeting.

On our return here we called on brother Morgan David, Wm. Bona and others at Spanish Fork, taking the evening meal with Bro. Thomas, son-in-law of Bro. Morgan David; you will remember them, you stopped with them when you blew the trumpet in Spanish Fork. You have many warm and true friends in this land and if I was to guess I would say in the near future you will have more. The people in the mountains are sorely pressed and distressed. To all outward appearance they are almost driven to desperation. While I know they are wrong, I am pleased to see the degree of patience and forbearance exhibited by them. There is no rest or peace for this poor misguided people now. The Marshals are raiding the settlements daily, and taking the polygamists wherever they find them, with their families, and placing them under bonds. Many of the polygamists are fleeing after their false and fleeing Shepherds. Brigham used to say that the day would come when "Judgment would be laid to the line and righteousness to the plummet;" and when Johnston's army was on the way here, he said they should be harassed until they should not have "sleep to their eyes nor slumber to their eyelids." This surely is the time; only it comes the other way. Perhaps there never has been a day like unto this in these mountains. There has been a time here when no man could safely speak against the "Priesthood," or fairly oppose their measures without being denounced in public and private as an apostate, or a vile wretch. And because of the fear and complete isolation many were compelled to submit to a state of cruel oppression. Scores of women have been forced to submit as wives to men that were loathsome to them. They forced upon them oaths and penalties that have been as a forged chain around their necks. But the tables are turned. "The measure that you mete out to others shall be meted unto you again," is a truth whether it is good or evil. Surely in this case it is being heaped up, and the end is not yet. I feel splendid, hopeful and encouraged to stand in the truth. Yours for Zion's triumph.

R. J. ANTHONY.

RICHLAND, Dakota, June 16th.

Dear Sister Walker.—With respect to your "Appeal" I heartily endorse it, and have long since felt the necessity of making more ample provision for the feeding of the Lambs of the flock with such food as will be adapted to their mental and spiritual growth, and at the same time afford amusement and pleasure to their youthful minds.

I am aware of the fact that my pen is too clumsy, and my mind too gross, to furnish such mental pabulum as they need, and hence I have tried but little in that direction. But I would be glad to see the Hope enlarged, and the truth simplified in such a manner as to attract the attention of the young and create a desire in their minds for a knowledge of the things pertaining to life and salvation. I am satisfied if we do not educate the rising generation the world will; and the terrible consequences of a false education will be traced to our doors, and we shall be held responsible. I have been pained to see the neglect of parents, and my soul has been grieved to see the results of such neglect. I have in my mind's eye, a loving father and mother, the father an honored Elder in the church. Their family have, I believe, all been born within the pale of the church, have grown up to maturity, and nearly all have become parents, yet not a member of that family, except the father and mother referred to, ever placed their names on the church record; nor do they appear to have any desire to do so. Yet I am satisfied those aged parents love the Church of Christ, and have suffered much for the same; but they have neglected something—it has either been the setting before their children a proper example, or the wise teaching of the precepts of the gospel. One or both of these all-important duties have been neglected, and the immediate result, as it now promises to be, will be the mournful fact that when their earth-life is closed, not one of their posterity will stand ready to take their places in the ranks and do battle for the cause of truth; and I am sorry to say that this case is by no means a rare one. Almost every parent makes laudable efforts to have their children fitted for positions of trust and honor in this world, but the purpose for which their existence here is given, seems to be lost sight of, and their fitness for the state that must be eternal is almost entirely neglected. And this statement is too true even among the people of God. Our heavenly Father has manifested his care for the little ones, and has shown the vast importance of shielding them from the influence of the world; by instituting the ordinance of blessing; and he has made it a duty for parents to have them blessed, as Jesus blessed them when on earth. "Every member of the Church of Christ having children, is to bring them unto the Elders before the church, who are to lay their hands upon them in the name of Jesus Christ, and bless them in his name."—D. C. 17:19.

Thus the parents are taught the necessity of dedicating their offspring to the Lord; and surely when thus dedicated, it is the duty of such parents to see that they train these sweet pledges of love to the service of him to whom they have dedicated them, so that when they shall arrive at the age of accountability they may be prepared to make a wise choice as to the service in which their lives shall be spent. He has not only instituted the ordinance of blessing, He has further decreed as follows: "And again, inasmuch as parents have children in Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized, that teach them not to understand the doctrine of repentance, faith in Christ the Son of the living God, and of baptism, and the gift of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of the hands, when eight years old, the sin be upon the head of the parents; for this shall be a law unto the inhabitants of Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized; and their children shall be baptized for the remission of their sins when eight years old, and receive the laying on of hands: And they shall also teach their children to pray, and to walk uprightly before the Lord."

I once thought the childish mind could not, at such a tender age, comprehend the principles of the gospel sufficiently to obey them intelligently; but experience and observation have taught me that God was wiser than I. Many have fallen into this error of supposing that their children at eight years were too young to undertake such a responsibility as the dedication of themselves to the service of the Most High; but observation and their individual experience should teach them that children at that age are capable of intelligently breaking a law, and hence have the power to intelligently obey. Moreover, we forget that it is our bounden duty to instruct them in these duties, so that when they are eight years old they may have sufficient understanding to obey the gospel.

Last Sabbath I was called upon to preach the funeral of one of the sweetest and brightest little flowers of our Sabbath School. She was eleven years of age. Her parents are devoted members of the church, nor had they neglected the duty of teaching this little darling the principles of the gospel; but when she had requested permission to obey, they were afraid she was too young, and requested her to wait a little while, to which she reluctantly consented. But "the dread messenger" did not wait! He laid this little flower prostrate upon her bed, then snatched her from the bosoms of her loving and sorrow-stricken parents. They regretted this delay in tears of deep sorrow and repentance; but it was too late. The little one called for the Elders; they administered in faith and were blessed. The little one was also blessed; for it was transplanted from earth to bloom in the paradise of God, because of her im-PLICIT faith in Christ, and her desire to obey his gospel. I trust those parents have learned a lesson, and that many more will profit by the same. I have wandered from my subject. I desire to see every proper means used for the training of the children for the service of God, that they may attain to the celestial glory.

I have not written this for publication, or I would have only written on one side of these sheets. I have written to encourage you in your noble efforts,—“in your work of faith, and labor of love.”

In gospel bonds, I remain your brother,

CHARLES DERRY.

[Bro. Derry must pardon us for sending this to the Herald, as we esteem it far too important to belong to ourselves. Thank God for every indication of the spirit of awaking to a sense of the duty the church owes to the young. M. W.]

CORNING, IOWA, June 16th.

Beloved Saints:—It is long since we have met, but if no preventing cause transpires we will come to you on the train Monday afternoon, the 21st of this month. It seems strange to ourselves that we have lived to such an advanced age. How many days we have yet to number is to us unknown; but we have decreed that be they many or few, they shall be spent to the best of our knowledge to promote this cause. We are not our own; we are bought with a price that no human being can tell the amount of. We owe our lives and all we have and are to Him who had bought our pardon at the expense of his own life. We have not the smallest thing by which we can make return for the wonderful favors we have received. We are debtors to Him for the dust of which we are made, and for the continuance of our lives on the earth. Gratitude should move us to be strict in keeping all his commandments, which if we do, it greatly enhances our happiness here, and secures to us eternal life at the end of our probation in this state of existence. We are now very feeble, and can not walk but a short distance, and would be glad to be met by some one that you may appoint. It is easier for me to talk than to write, and as we hope to see you shortly, I will close, joined by my wife and daughter in love to all.

As ever, your brother in the Lord,

JOHN LANDERS.

[Brother Landers arrived at Lamoni on Friday, June 18th, and was received at the station as requested. He preached an excellent sermon Sunday forenoon, June 20th, to a most interested congregation. He will be ninety-two years old next August, is healthy, vigorous minded, and very happy in Spirit.—Ed.]

A FARMER writes: “I always manage to have sod for corn on which manure has been spread the fall before. After corn I sow in wheat, then in clover, and pasture one year. I always try to plow my corn six times. I am raising fifty bushels of corn where, four years ago, they could not raise ten. Clover, manure, and deep plowing is the secret of my business.

I LOVE THY CHURCH AND KINGDOM, LORD.

Old Tune—Dennis, (F). Laban, (C).

I love thy kingdom, Lord—
The house of thine abode—
The church our blest Redeemer saved,
With his own precious blood.

I love thy church, O God!
Her walls before thee stand,
Dear as the apple of thine eye,
And graven on thy hand.

For her my tears shall fall;
For her my prayers ascend;
To her my cares and toils be given,
Till cares and toils shall end.

Sure as thy truth shall last,
To Zion shall be given
The brightest glories earth can yield,
And brighter bliss of heaven.

SERMON BY ELDER E. L. KELLEY.

OF KIRTLAND, OHIO.

In the Saints' Chapel, Lamoni, Iowa,
April 8th, 1886.

[Reported for the Herald and prepared by himself.]

IN the fifth chapter of the gospel as recorded by Matthew, we find these sayings: “Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust. For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same? And if ye salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others? do not even the publicans so? Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.”

At the time that our Savior visited the earth, he seems to have found society in a condition in which the people were not doing like their Father who was in heaven was doing. They were not doing such deeds as would give them title of being called the children of our Father who is in heaven; they were doing many things contrary to the wish and will of our heavenly Father; and they were also leaving many things undone that were particularly binding upon those who wished to be called the children of our Father who is in heaven to do. And the Savior introduces his work, as an element to remedy this evil in the language of my text this evening. He seems to draw a distinction between what the people were doing in the world, in order as they thought to have life and salvation, and what was required of them to do by the Father. He seems to make clear a distinction that he wished always to exist, and places the things that they were not doing properly before them, that the people might understand more perfectly what his faith was, and what it was for; that the children of men might not be deceived or mistaken as to what constituted true religion. At the announcement of his birth, which you have read, recorded in this language, “This is good news, glad tidings, which is to be to all people,” as was the proclamation of the heavenly ones. They no doubt referred to the grand plan of the gospel—indirectly the message he should bring, as well as his special work; and it was thus brought in as we read from the New Testament Scriptures, in such manner as to call the attention of the people to it. In reference to the disciples of true religion he makes a comparison for instance between those who kept the old law as it is outlined in the first verse of my text this evening, and those who should walk in accordance with the new faith that was to be revealed. He says, “Ye have heard it hath been said, thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy; but I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you;” and the great object was this: “that ye may be the children of your Father who is in heaven.” That they might arrive at a condition and standing before him, higher than that they were in at the time he was addressing them. That it was not only necessary for them to live religious lives, but it was necessary for them to live proper religious lives. It was not only necessary for them in this world to do good, but it was particularly binding upon them to do all the good that came within their power to perform. That it was not only necessary for them to live in accordance with the rules and regulations governing affairs here, to act in accordance with the laws of society, but it was absolutely necessary for them to live a higher rule than this. This higher life, and these higher rules were to enable them to attain better things than was possible for those who simply lived in accordance with the rules and regulations of this world; and they were required to observe them that they might be the children of our Father who is in heaven. Hence he makes the apt illustration: “God makes the sun to shine on the evil and on the good; he sendeth his rain on the just and on the unjust.” So Jesus says that his children in their habits and their desires should conform to this manner of life and work. They should conform in that way and manner in their lives, that would make them in their devotion, in their desires, in their works, in all things that they might undertake in this world more like their Father who is in heaven. Those who simply lived in accordance with the rules and requirements of this world, he points out in the reverse sense. Referring to these he says to his disciples, “If ye simply love them that love you, what reward have you? Do not even the publicans so?" Individuals whom you count unworthy of sitting at the tables with you, those individuals whom you do not permit in your synagogues, (unless it is by a mental reservation); you are not any better than those individuals whom you look down upon. They can love each other. There is no true religion in the fact that individuals can merely love themselves. Such a religion is not different from the religions of this world. There is no feature in that to distinguish it from the religion you may find in the lodge room, in the society simply organized in this world for beneficiary purposes; in these they salute each other as brethren. Religion must set up a higher standard, and point to acts more noble than these, if we expect by its practice to become the children of our Father who is in heaven.

Then Jesus brings the very apt illustration, wherein he says: "If ye salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others?" This can be done by those not of our faith. It can be done by those professing no religion at all. It is done in every union and society. They salute their brethren. But can they rise to the grand plane of saluting those who differ from them, and feeling tolerant to those who speak evil of them, and praying for those who spitefully use them, doing them good, and when they shall come in contact with the evil of the world overcoming it with good instead of resisting evil by evil? This distinctive difference Jesus sets forth, and wishes his disciples to take notice of it. I know that the question is liable to arise, and some will say, "It is very difficult for us to act in that spirit towards those who speak evil of us; I can not feel well enough towards my enemies so that I can pray for them; I can not afford to turn the other cheek when I am smitten; I can not rise to the height where, when I meet evil I can return good for it." If you can not, then why do you claim to be the children of your Father who is in heaven? This is the question for us to answer as a people. We must either live according to the law given us, to be entitled to the consideration that lawfully comes under it, or we must say that we are lacking, and do not come up to the standard that is provided in the law, and fail of the blessings of our own selves. Hence it is, that we have been making failures in the past. We have not felt in our hearts to live up to this high standard before our Father who is in heaven. We have not felt to pray for those who spitefully use us, and bless those that persecute us; to ask God's mercy upon those who are out of the way; and return blessings for cursings. We have not arrived to this position yet. There is room to go up a little higher, according to the instructions of the Savior upon the mount, when he was teaching his disciples. This was a proper part of preaching the gospel; or, it was in the line of preaching the gospel as I understand the Savior.

It is in keeping with that record wherein it is written, "When Jesus heard that John was put into prison, he came to the coast of Galilee, preaching the gospel of the Kingdom of God, saying, repent ye, and believe the gospel." The disciples were afterwards instructed to carry out in their preaching and teaching these same principles, as he sent them forth; and they were afterwards endowed with power from on high, that they might teach this gospel, these principles of life and manner of living about Jerusalem, and to the uttermost parts of the earth. In the "commission" which he gave to them after his resurrection, this is the understanding conveyed; this message that was to be carried to the world, was the plan of salvation, and was under the title or head of "the gospel"—and these practical things come under the head of this same gospel. This plan was evidently devised in the economy or wisdom of our Heavenly Father before the worlds were, or "from the foundation of the world," as is the language of the apostle; for Jesus being the central figure of the gospel, and a "lamb slain from the foundation of the world," the gospel must have existed then and there or the "lamb," the type, could not have existed. Hence it is that when he comes and presents this plan, we understand that it is a plan not simply of a few principles, but of many to govern in our lives and work. We have what are termed first principles of the gospel, but these first principles are not "the gospel." The first principles, if you will permit me to use an illustration in mathematics, or arithmetic, would only introduce you to the science of arithmetic or mathematics. They would not be arithmetic or mathematics, but would only be those principles upon which the system is build. We can not become mathematicians without the use and the recognition of these first principles; but a world of first principles would never give us a knowledge of the system, unless we did other things connected with them. So it is with the gospel of our Savior. The Savior came into the coasts of Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, preaching and teaching those things that you and I preach when we are presenting the principles known as first, fundamental or foundation principles of the gospel, together with other rules and duties connected therewith, as I understand by the Epistle of Paul in his definition of it being a system of faith, wherein the righteousness of God is revealed from faith to faith, "as it is written the just shall live by faith." And so far as righteousness is connected with the gospel, it comes about by reason of conformity with the law—doing right things—as we are to become right doers in this world, either from the things we have to deal with in the world, complying with the principles and customs that are right. But in the gospel from obedience to the principles of the law given by our Heavenly Father. As we deal with these and keep them, they being enjoined upon us to be kept, as just principles, so we perform acts of righteousness; so works of righteousness. The gospel is the power of God unto salvation. Why?

"Therein is the order of righteousness, (right doing) revealed." When an individual has the principles, and all that pertains to the gospel of our Heavenly Father, he has those things that pertain to his conduct, right doing in this world. If he would be a son or daughter of our Heavenly Father indeed, he must conform to these principles. He must conform not simply to one or two things known as first principles; but there may be many that have issued from the mouth of God; not only known as the first principles but in the Epistle of Paul it is said: "Therefore leaving (or not leaving if you please) the principles of the Doctrine of Christ, (termed fundamental) let us go on to perfection." The gospel was given as the power of God unto salvation; but not simply just the doing of the first principles is the power unto salvation. There is something else connected of works, just as binding as these first principles; and so it is, that when the time shall have come wherein we are to be judged by our works under the law, they will be tried under the law according to the pattern, which is Jesus Christ; and we shall find that our works will be honored before our Heavenly Father if we shall have conformed to the works of Christ. We must not only have lived according to the gospel law, so far as obeying the first principles are concerned, but we must have carried out the gospel as it is revealed here in all the works of righteousness that are required. It does not consist only of repentance and baptism, but also in those things pointing out the duties that we owe to the church in attendance upon church worship, upon the worship of our Heavenly Father; and those other principles whereby we are to govern our acts and conduct. So far as works are concerned, they are connected with the doctrine of repentance. When Jesus was talking with regard to this doctrine of repentance he gave an illustration as to what it consisted of. It is found in the parable of the two boys who were told to go and work in the vineyard. The father told them to go and work in his vineyard, and said unto the one "Go work," and he said, "I won't do it;" but he afterwards repented and went and did the work. And he said unto the other, "Go work," and he said, "Yes, father, I am ready to do anything you tell me to, I love my father, I want to be a very good boy, I am always ready to do anything." As soon as the father goes and leaves him to himself, however, he seems to have skipped out and did not do the work at all. He was all right while his father was there, but his good promises soon were forgotten.

We purpose to make the application a little nearer if you please. While the preacher was there, and good discourses were being presented, teaching that we must not only conform to the first principles of the gospel, in order that we might become initiated into Jesus' kingdom, but we must also perform the works required of us as citizens of the kingdom after initiation, one is all right. As soon as the preacher goes away however, he forgets these things and does not perform the works; and so it is that his profession only will not amount to anything. A profession of a belief in our Heavenly Father, of a belief in the Holy Spirit, unconnected with the works that were required under the law, and the testimony of Jesus as it is revealed here in his word, with obedience to the faith and principles of the doctrine of Christ, will be unconnected with life in the day of salvation, when we expect to enter into the kingdom of our Heavenly Father, according to the grand illustration of Christ to which I have referred you. You will find in that beautiful vision that we have here in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, where it is shown to the Seer the final destiny of all the human family, and this class of sayers and not doers belongs to what is termed the Telesial region. "These are they who deny not the Holy Spirit." There are many people in this world who do not do that but do deny the necessity of Christ's doctrine. Have you ever thought of it? Have you ever thought of where they are going to be placed? They make claim to the Holy Spirit; that it is necessary to salvation, and urge that they have it all the time, but deny the word. Instead of such being permitted to come into the glory of God we have it pointed out that they are to go down and suffer the penalty of the unrighteous. I will read: "These are they that deny not the Holy Spirit. These are they who receive not the gospel of Christ, neither the testimony of Jesus. These are they who are thrust down to hell?" It is not only necessary in this world for us to make a profession and claim of a belief in the Holy Spirit; but if we believe in that Holy Spirit we must receive the testimony, the doctrine of Jesus; the grand point of distinction is this: The Holy Spirit is for the purpose of guiding us into all truth, not for the purpose of guiding us into error. If we have that Holy Spirit, it guides us in the ways of truth; it does not lead into false ways or by paths, or into strange doctrines, that are not becoming to our Father and our God. The individual who has this Holy Spirit will be guided in accordance with the teachings of the Master. If he has not lived by them, if he has lived in disobedience to them, he can not have had the Holy Spirit to guide him into all truth. There is an absolute merit to be attained in the gospel of Jesus Christ that is found in no other system of religion. Therefore Paul says to Timothy, "I besought thee to abide still at Ephesus, when I went into Macedonia, that thou mightest charge some that they teach no other doctrine." There is a necessity evidently for all the things found in the principles of the doctrine of our Heavenly Father. And there is no mistaking the fact that we must obey all the requirements if we wish to be entitled to make the claim of being the children of our Father who is in heaven. Hence it is, that the Savior in his teachings laid before his disciples in great plainness the fact, that they should not only live by a few things that had been given of God, or the few things that were in the scriptures that they then had, but as he said to the tempter, "by every word that proceedeth from the mouth of God." That was the position of the Savior, when he entered upon the life-work of a minister, eighteen hundred years ago. And when I have looked over the pages of the writings herein recorded by the evangelists and the other writers of the New Testament Scriptures, I have looked in vain to find where any of these different individuals ever taught the people that they were authorized to disregard anything of His revealed will in the past. But in the instruction given by Jesus, by Peter, by Paul, and by John, they were to search the scriptures and take comfort from them, and gain wisdom and all this: for the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man, (not as man desired in his heart), to have it simply, but it was a revelation of our heavenly Father; he granted it because of himself and his ways. Peter says: "Holy men of old spake as they were moved upon by the Holy Ghost." Therefore take heed to their testimony; if you can gain light from it, do so, it will guide you into the way of truth. If an individual tries to break away from this in any sense, in the day in which we live, as it was the fact in the first century, he will be like a man in a ship on the broad ocean, without compass, he will have no possible way of finding out where he is religiously; having shut up the record, he is without a guide. If it is a guide to our feet and a lamp to our pathway, let us make it such a guide. When the Holy Spirit, the Spirit of truth comes, the Spirit that will lead into all truth, it will guide us in the way of truth, which is the way of this record; it will not guide us away from it. If you find yourselves at any time guided away from it, it does not make any difference how you feel, how good you may feel, or anything about this, if away it is not the Spirit of truth that is guiding you. It is a fact that sometimes when an individual feels the best, he has not done the best. You will find it so in all the ways of life, so far as religion is concerned. Now, what I wish to call your attention to particularly in connection with this gospel, is: That with the church since its organization in 1830, where the gospel has been represented by the church, there has been connected with it certain duties known as duties under the law touching temporal things, or God's law with relation to individuals, and their duties with respect to obligations to use properly temporal things in their possession. There have been various ideas with reference to this law, as to the purpose for which it was given, and the force of it to-day, if it be binding upon us as a people. I wish to call your attention to this as being a law connected with the gospel; for I regard this as a necessary part of the gospel of Christ.

It has been the understanding of some, that the law, so far as tithes and offerings are concerned, as held out by the Bible, is the law that was instituted under Moses, and carried out under the ceremonial order simply in the wilderness. But a few quotations this evening will be sufficient to give you an understanding that the position is untrue. The law existed, so far as that is concerned, before it was referred to by Moses in the 27th chapter of Leviticus, as you may turn and see. This is the first reference to be found, I believe, to the law of tithes under the Mosaic economy. The law is not here instituted; the people were in the wilderness, it was enjoined but not instituted then. But by reason of the false premise taken by some in the past that it had its origin under the Mosaic regime, some have been led to believe that it did not have reference to our day and generation. They have forgotten, that so far as this is concerned, that in the wilderness there were a great many things added to the system before in existence, because of the transgression of the people. There was not only some things that pertained to their duties as to the Sabbath day and sacrifices, and all this, whereby they must live, added, but there were other things added, as you will find from reading the fifth chapter of Matthew, the gospel presented by the Savior to his disciples on the mount, in this language: "Ye have heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill." Who said this? Turn and read the ten commandments. That was the law under Moses was it not? O yes, it will be said it was the law under Moses. But before Moses gave the law known as the carnal commandments, was there not any law binding upon the children of men with reference to the taking of life? And if there was a law with reference to this, what was it? We may gain a knowledge of what it was by turning to the instruction of Jesus that he gave to the people. He says, "I say unto you,"—it is a little different, not that I expect to let you kill your fellow men, no, no, that is not the idea—"I say unto you, whosoever is angry with his brother without cause, shall be in danger of the judgment." Such a one will be out of the way. I came to bring a higher law than was brought before. This law given before relates simply to your actions; I bring a law that relates to subduing and correcting the purposes and desires of your hearts, which will restrain the feeling and keep down or in subjection those things that are wicked. There is no necessity for the law to be made in the way it was before, because this higher law will restrain the thoughts of your hearts as well as your actions, and relates to the actions of the children of men, before the law has been broken. And so there is a difference in many other things; for instance, with regard to the law touching blasphemy, or extreme vows. Again, "Ye have heard that it hath been said by them of old time thou shalt not forswear thyself, but perform unto the Lord thine oaths. But I say unto you, Swear not at all, neither by heaven nor by earth." It is a fact my brethren, that Jesus when he was here, recognized a difference between the application of the law as contained in his teachings, and the law given in the wilderness.

There is in the seventh chapter of John an apt illustration of this principle made in reference to the rule governing the Sabbath day. The Jews marveled at Jesus because he had performed a good work upon the Sabbath day, having healed a man. He said to them: "Moses gave unto you circumcision, not because it is of Moses, but of the fathers." Moses gave it to them simply, it was instituted before Moses' time. But Jesus in referring to it presented the issue that has been just recognized, the thought that there was a difference between the law that the Jews were under at that time, and his law. "Moses gave unto you circumcision, not because it was of Moses, but of the fathers, and ye on the Sabbath day circumcise a man. If a man on the Sabbath day receive circumcision, that the Law of Moses should not be broken; (he calls it the law of Moses, but says it was not instituted of Moses, but was of the Fathers); if ye on the Sabbath break the law pertaining to the Sabbath, that the law of Moses, (or that that belonged to the fathers should be kept), are ye angry at me because I have made a man every whit whole on the Sabbath day?"

The rule governing with reference to the Sabbath day as it existed under the law of Moses, was such that it could not for every cause be set aside. But as the rule relating to circumcision was preeminent the rule relating to the Sabbath day, had to be set aside when in conflict. It was a law of God, and had to be recognized in preference to the rule that was given to the Jews in relation to the Sabbath day. Now this is not only true in relation to these two, but in relation to all other laws. The Apostle Paul makes this very plain in his letter to the Hebrews about the law of tithes and offerings that related to the children of God in the time of Abraham, as you will find recorded in the seventh chapter of the Hebrew letter. I do not read this because I want to bring you proof that our Savior now is receiving tithes and offerings; but for the purpose of showing that Paul recognized the law relating to tithes and offerings, as a law existing in a gospel dispensation, and hence permanent and above the laws that are known as carnal commandments.

He says: "Now consider how great this man was, unto whom the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils. And verily they that are of the sons of Levi, who receive the office of the priesthood, have a commandment to take tithes of the people according to the law, that is, of their brethren, though they come out of the loins of Abraham: But he whose descent is not counted from them received tithes of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promises." Under what law? Under that law under which there is a portion of the Jews permitted to exercise the right of receiving tithes. When the law was given to the Jews it was ordained that the sons of Levi might take tithes under it, and they were to be a standing ministry to the church in the wilderness. They were permitted to take tithes of the people; and if you will turn to the 27th of Leviticus, you can learn the reason of taking these things, as it is laid down by Moses. "And all the tithes of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's; it is holy unto the Lord." Had he made it holy then when he instituted the law, and made it binding upon the people? I wish you to consider this point; it was made holy unto the Lord. Was it holy in the time of Abraham also, and belonging of right to the Lord? Then it speaks concerning the tithe of the herd, and says that a tenth shall be holy unto the Lord. Why? The Lord had ordained that those whom he had called to be ministers should have some part under this law. Here is the thought, many principles of the gospel law were not set aside by Moses in the wilderness; many principles connected with the gospel to-day, were taught also in the wilderness. But there were many things there that are not binding to-day. The true discriminator will not say, that just because it was done in the wilderness, that therefore it is bad. That has been the logic of the criticisms on this in the past. The true discriminator will say, if it was bad in the wilderness, and was not allowed, or was not recognized under the gospel dispensation, that it does not belong to us; and is not applicable to us, and therefore is not binding upon us; and that will prove it bad; but not merely because it was done by this man or that man, in this age of the world, or that age of the world.

And it is written, that so far as these people are concerned, "they did all pass through the sea, and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; and did all drink of that spiritual rock, which rock was Christ." It was "the Spirit of Christ which was in them" that made them look forward on testimony to the time of glory and redemption; and this caused them to drink of that spiritual rock which was Christ," that was as a "well of water springing up unto eternal life." There were many things connected with the gospel that were had among the children of Israel in the wilderness. The next verse following the language of my text, the first of the sixth chapter of Matthew, referring to the law of the church relative to the duties of its members, is one. Here Jesus refers to the law of almsgiving and states it as a part of the gospel. Certainly then it did not come outside of the gospel. When he was teaching the disciples what to do, and what they should teach to the people, as touching these things, he brings it under the law, as here set forth of giving of alms; and teaches them how they should do. The very fact that he teaches them to conform to the law, shows that the law existed, and that it was necessary for the people under the circumstances then existing to comply with it if they were to be perfect. He says, "Take heed that ye do not your alms before men to be seen of them" "Therefore, when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before you." He is not teaching the people that they must not comply with the law of almsgiving, as it was there presented by him; or as it existed under the Jewish economy, and contained in the Jewish law; but he teaches them that they should obey it, and conform to it. It is not, that law does not have anything to do with it, as some have supposed in the past; not that it has nothing to do with it, except that we are just merely to give from the abundance of the heart if we wish to do anything, and if we do not wish to, it is all right. Where is the place where the law of righteousness would then come in? Righteousness is right doing as provided by the law and comes by reason of our doing the things required of us in the law; and there is a law of the church relating to our duty with reference to these things in the church, and there is no way that I can see of getting righteous, except through the law; that is, by a performance of the things written in the law. Why Paul says that he was all right until the commandment came, sin revived, and I died; died because the commandment came. Why did the commandment kill him? If you will turn and read the explanation given in the Inspired Translation, and you must accept it on the account of its being common sense, if you do not upon any other ground, you will find that he died because he did not believe it. He believed not the commandment; that is the reason he died. And was brought under sin and under condemnation; but if he had believed and kept the commandments, then, instead of being under death and bondage, he would have been in the light and liberty of the children of God. If under the law here we are transgressors, we are liable to be arrested and brought before the courts, and have punishment inflicted. But when we have complied with it we are free from it. If we have obeyed the law, complied with the law of Christ, we are free men and women in Christ Jesus. We are not under the bondage of the law, but in the liberty of the law. And if we come before our heavenly Father we do not have to stand before him and say, I think I ought to be condemned and all that, send me to that bad place. We can stand before him and say, with those whom John saw that had gone to him, "O Lord how long shall we wait," until the promise of God to us for keeping thy word, thy law shall be fulfilled. We want to be free men and women in Christ Jesus, so that when we come before our heavenly Father we can stand up and say within our hearts, we have tried to do thy will and keep thy commandments; not that we have simply said, "Lord, Lord," we believe in thy Holy Spirit, but did not care anything about thy commandments. As a friend said to me not a great while ago, when I was talking with him about religion, he was religious as well as I was, very religious. I wanted to find out what ideas he had with reference to Christ and his word; what principles he believed in? "I do not care anything about that. I do not believe in any doctrine or anything of the kind. I believe in the Holy Spirit, and that Jesus loves me. That is all that is necessary. If a man has Christ within him, that is all that is necessary." But what is it to have Christ within us? Jesus says, "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you." It is by the trial of our faith that we overcome. By grace are ye saved; but you are not saved by doing nothing. You are saved if at all by making use of the grace that is handed down to you. It is a necessary part of the gospel work to teach the doctrine of works as well as of faith. It is one of the principles of the gospel referred to in the following: "Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel, (doctrine of Christ), which I preached unto you, wherein ye stand, and by which ye are saved if ye keep in memory that which I delivered unto you." Why one says, I thought we were to be saved simply because we believed in Jesus. It is one thing to say we believe in Jesus, and it is another thing to believe in him so as to keep his commandments. Hence it is, that if we have this Holy Spirit, we will not forget the commandment; for this Holy Spirit will guide us into all truth. In the language of the Apostle John, If ye have this Spirit, that is represented to be an unction from on high, "ye need not that any man teach you, for he teacheth you all things."

The Savior, when teaching the people as referred to in Matt. 6th, taught them to conform to the law relating to almsgiving in the church. That law relating to almsgiving we believe to be in force to-day. What is the law? The church has taken the position that the law generally is a law of almsgiving; specifically it is a law of tithes and offerings as certified to in the Bible and the Book of Covenants. I invite your attention as touching this to what I find recorded in the eleventh chapter of the gospel by Saint Luke, Jesus' words again. He had been to dine with one of the Pharisees. One of these individuals had taken considerable pains to have Jesus dine with him and to enquire about his teaching; and after he had come and sat down to dine the Pharisees made certain foolish objections because he did not wash his hands, and do this thing and that thing, relating to no grand duties under the law, but relating to some things preserved in the superstitions and traditions of the Pharisees. He says to them in language like this: "Ye fools, did not he that made that which is without, make that which is within also? But rather give alms of such things as ye have, and behold all things are clean unto you." He is talking about the law of almsgiving. What kind of a law of almsgiving is he talking about? He is talking about the law of almsgiving it seems to me, that is like that law that they had in the time spoken of here by the last writer of the Old Testament, Malachi, wherein they were to bring their tithes and offerings into the storehouse of the things that they had. That law of tithes referred to in the books here, wherein it was permitted to pay in kind. Men were permitted to give in kind of what they had, if they wanted to give in that way. It was the law of tithes and offerings under which Abraham was blessed that Jesus seems to refer to here. "But rather give alms of such things as ye have, and behold all things are clean unto you." Just think of this? All you have to do in order to be clean, everything will be clean to you now, if you give alms of such things as you have. Bring of the fruits of the ground now, and of your cattle, and of everything that you have, and everything will be clean to you. Only do that and all will be right with you. But there is another idea here that I call your attention to. You can observe from the history of the conversation that there was something else said. Jesus could not have taught that if the Scribes and Pharisees gave only alms, that that alone would take them into the kingdom of God, or make all things clean to them. In the Inspired Translation there is light upon this matter, and that light given by a young man, Joseph Smith, who at the time of his death was but a boy, not as old as I am to-day by two years. This is a production by him, and I find so many things in it of like wisdom that I know, so far as my reason is concerned if I do not know any other way, that they must have been brought about by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit; and so it is, that if there is any one book, if there is any one thing that gives me strength in my faith, so far as his work is concerned, above every other it is the wisdom I find displayed in the translation of the Scriptures by this young man. I remember talking with President Fairchilds last summer at Oberlin College, I called his attention to the fact that the world had long tried to lay upon Spaulding the burden of writing the Book of Mormon. It is very strange to me indeed, that they should seek to make Spaulding to do this in order that they may have an excuse when it is not denied that Joseph Smith produced what we have denominated the Inspired Translation of the Scriptures. He that could produce such a work as that, would have no need to get some one to write the Book of Mormon for him. I think the professor took the hint. He is lecturing upon the Book of Mormon, but think you will find that he does not take the ground that Sidney Rigdon wrote the book. He is taking new and radical grounds; altogether these old lies on the young Seer are one by one going to the wall.

In the inspired translation it reads: "O fools, did not he which made that which is without make that which is within also? But if ye would rather give alms of such things as ye have, and observe to do all things which I have commanded you, then would your inward parts be clean also." This shows that he had commanded these individuals before. That they were to give alms of such things as they had, observe and conform to the law which had been given; and thus recognized the law under the gospel dispensation. So that the doctrine is clearly placed before us by Jesus himself, that when an individual desires to be clean everywhit, if he does belong to the body of Christ, he must not only conform to the commandments which Christ has given of almsgiving, but the gospel too; it is by an observance of the whole law that we are to come out clean and with pure robes, and be permitted to adorn ourselves with the robes that will admit us, and that will keep us in the wedding feast. Jesus further says: "But woe unto you Pharisees for ye tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God; these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone." Now notice carefully the words which he uses. He first speaks of the law under the head of almsgiving. In this 43d verse of the eleventh chapter of Saint Luke's gospel, he refers to the same law under the heading of tithes. Almsgiving and tithes in the mind of the Savior seem to have referred to the same thing; and it ought not to be thought remarkable, that Jesus when he refers to this law recognizes it as good and binding. He teaches these individuals, who he had been teaching to conform to the commandments of God, to conform to this law also. He did not say to them as he did with reference to the law which said an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, "but I say unto you" differently. He did not communicate a new rule of action as in the case where he says: "Ye have heard that it hath been said by them of old time thou shalt not kill, and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment," but I say unto you differently, &c. Jesus had been referring to the law of almsgiving, and he here refers to it as the law of tithes; and if they would be clean every whit they must conform to it too. Not one of these things only which he had commanded them; but all these things ye ought to have done, that is all the things that are referred to, as judgment, mercy, and truth, ye ought to have done, and not left the law of alms or tithes undone; and teaches as plainly as can be, that in order to be clean every whit, they must not neglect mercy and truth and judgment; nor must they neglect the law of almsgiving, nor anything else found in the law of God; but must observe the whole law.

So it is that we find this law of alms here in the beginning of the New Testament, and I have not been able to go outside, and it conforms with the law as presented by the prophet Malachi in the old. If there was no such thing connected with the gospel touching tithes as was originally revealed to our father Abraham, who was the father of the faithful in Christ, the revelation of the rule to govern in relation to our tithes and offerings would never have been made to the prophet Malachi. "Ye have robbed me;" (God is talking now); "but wherein have we robbed thee?" Ye have neglected to give alms to the poor of the land in an indefinite, promiscuous way. Is that the idea? No. Bring your tithes into my store house. The almsgiving under the law of Christ then was as it is now. There is a specific manner under the law of Christ to-day, as was taught by Jesus, as was taught by Paul, and as was taught by the seer in this Book of Covenants; it was giving in a particular manner. That is the way Abraham complied with the law. Abraham did not comply with the law of almsgiving by scattering wherever he pleased. Paul did not ask them to comply with the law of almsgiving by scattering wherever they pleased. As you will read in the sixteenth of the Corinthian letter, he told them to take their collections in a certain way. "As I have given order concerning the churches of Galatia, even so do ye." There is one rule in the church. You do just the same as they do down at Galatia. Don't have two different systems, but one law. "As I have given order down there," there is a law to be obeyed, "so do ye." Then he begins to tell them what to do. To lay by in store, and so forth. "And when I come, whomsoever ye shall approve by your letters, them will I send to bring your liberality unto Jerusalem. And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me." Paul understood then that these alms were to go into the storehouse, as represented by the prophet Malachi; Go into the storehouse of the church; the church treasury was the proper place for them. I now further call your attention to this robbing of God as spoken of by the prophet Malachi. "Yet ye have robbed me. Ye say wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings."

There was never a time in the history of the Jewish nation when the priests were better maintained than they were at this time. A few priests had control. The priests were in high living; it was not keeping from the priests so far as their living was concerned. The priests wanted to get their living in a different way than had been communicated in the law. They did not bring it into the storehouse that proper measure might be had for a distribution of it. "Ye are cursed with a curse. Ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." Bring it into the storehouse. This was the teaching concerning it in 1830. On the 147th page of the Book of Covenants, we find a communication that is in harmony with the law, and this was given before the young man had any particular knowledge concerning what was taught in the law and the prophets. "If thou lovest me, thou shalt serve me, and keep all my commandments. And behold, thou wilt remember the poor, and consecrate of thy properties for their support, that which thou hast to impart unto them. (Not all your properties, but of them). And inasmuch as ye impart of your substance unto the poor, ye will do it unto me, and they shall be laid before the Bishop of my church and his counselors, two of the Elders, or High Priests, such as he shall or has appointed and set apart for that purpose." It was to be brought into the church treasury, just the same as described by Malachi; just the same as described by Paul. And in the time of the Savior, when the treasury was instituted among them, I could refer you to passages where they placed their tithes and offerings in the treasury, or their alms if you please. They put them in the treasury, they did not give them wherever they pleased. They had a rule of order. So it is when we come down to our own day, we find this same order in the church. It is not a law that we have instituted; it is not a law that Moses instituted; it is a law that was in existence before the time of Moses, and that existed after his time, and was recognized by Christ in his personal ministry on earth; and was recognized by him after his resurrection from the dead on the continent on which you and I live, in order that it might be of service to "after generations." But says one, did they always conform to it? They always did a great many things, so far as the history of the church in the past is concerned, contrary to the law of Christ and they still do the same in our own generation. That is no reason that we should not stand by the law. It is not what they undertook to do in the first century; it is not what they undertook to do, or what they did do; but it is what the law requires. That is what you and I should try to obey.

There is another matter that I wish to call your attention to. It has been said that the law has been misunderstood in the past. That it has been taught differently by the Elders, because they have understood it differently. So it has. No doubt the Bishop himself will be able to talk to you in regard to this, or his other counselor; I hope he will in private if he does not in public. It is written in the law here as a brother presented it to me in California, that those who come up to Zion "shall lay all things at the feet of the Bishop;" and he said it had been quoted to him by a certain minister, and he was a little alarmed. He understood if he paid his tithing and received his receipt, and then came up to Zion, that he must lay all things at the feet of the Bishop; and then if the Bishop wanted to give anything back, all well and good; if he did not he would be left out in the world a second time. That was a very hard picture of the law. I called his attention to this part of the law relating to laying all things at the feet of the Bishop as referring first, to the Elders of the church. When they go out upon their missions, they are to lay all things at the feet of the Bishop; make known to the Bishop their circumstances, their wants, their necessities; and they were to conform to the law first themselves. They will be apt to teach alike just as soon as they have done that. This was enjoined upon the early Elders before they started out in the world to preach the gospel at all. Before they went out to the world to preach the gospel, they were to conform to the law themselves, free themselves from the law; lay all their matters before the Bishop. If they do not have anything let them go out and have their wants supplied. This is placing themselves under the law. Not that they should give every thing that they had to the Bishop; that is not the idea. If our Elders conform to this, and make known their circumstances, and do this before leaving to go and preach the gospel in their fields of labor, then, when they go out to the world they will have no trouble; all will understand it alike, and we will go forward in conformity with the law; having conformed to it ourselves as we go out, and we will be acknowledged servants of the Most High, the children of our Father who is in heaven whom the law recognizes, and we will have that abundance of the Spirit of peace and power, that has been before spoken of in this conference.

But says one, is not this rather tough upon the Elders, placing great burdens upon them. It is not and never was an idle thing to undertake to be an Elder in Israel. It means something. You are not called upon to exercise the functions of an Elder, simply because it is a fine thing. It means sacrifice; sacrifice not only of the means that you have in this world, but it means a sacrifice of your time; your means; separation from your families; and a sacrifice of many things that you hold dear to you and very near to you. This is the reason Jesus could say to his disciples, those who had been called to this ministry, "If you love father, mother, brothers and sisters, wife and children, houses and lands, more than me, you are not worthy of me." But again he says to his disciples, "You who have forsaken all," who have complied with this law, not only relating to your duties in the kingdom of God as relates to spiritual things, but as relates to the temporal also, you that have done this, "I will give unto you a hundred fold, not only in this world, but in the world to come." It is upon and by this grand sacrifice that the children of God in this age of the world are to overcome. We must not expect our brethren to sacrifice when we do not sacrifice ourselves. We should accept the promise, and have faith in the efficacy of the law of the kingdom of God.

I hope you will examine these things, and see if it is not only binding upon us who go out to preach the gospel, that we shall conform to the law relating to temporal things. And as we conform to it, we will go out preaching alike, observing alike; and there will not be this inharmony on the part of many in the body that has appeared in the past.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL DISCOVERIES IN YUCATAN.

A FEW years ago Mr. Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota, startled the religious world by the publication of a work which seemed to conclusively prove that thousands of years ago a vast island, or continent, situated in the bosom of the Atlantic Ocean, between Europe and America, and that was inhabited by a highly civilized people, suddenly sunk forever beneath the deep waters. No sooner had Mr. Donnelly's work made its appearance than it was bitterly assailed by religious bigots of all denominations. One critic styled it "the vagaries of a Grecian tramp, clothed in a beautiful literary garb by an Irish crank." Solon's narrative was stigmatized as a traveler's romance, while the dreamy and speculative character of Plato's writings were cited to prove that the story of the lost Atlantis must have originated in his superlatively imaginative brain. The orthodox triumphantly pointed to the Hebrew record, stoutly demanded that its literal interpretation should be received, and asserted that as but 6,000 years had elapsed since the creation of the world and the appearance of Adam and Eve, and as the Bible says nothing of the previous existence of Atlantis, Solon's, Plato's, and Donnelly's accounts of the lost island must be received cum grano salis, or indulgently regarded as the vagaries of super-imaginative minds.

About three years ago the celebrated archæologist, Dr. Plongeon, found inscribed on the temple walls of Uxmal and Chichen Itza, in Yucatan, the old story of Adam and Eve and of Cain and Abel. But the Maya mother of the human race was composed of sterner material than the Hebrew Eve. She rejected the orange offered her by the serpent and drove him from her presence. Cay, or Cain, the so-called first murderer, appears in an altogether different light. Instead of his being a sullen and jealous agriculturist, he was an intelligent and pious priest. Instead of killing his brother, Chaakmol (Abel), he tried to save him, but the worthless brother, Ake, prevailed, Chaakmol (Abel), in spite of Cay's heroic efforts, was treacherously slain.

In prosecuting his inquiries among the sculptured obelisks and stones of the ruined cities of Yucatan Dr. Plongeon several times came across undoubted hieroglyphical records of the previous existence and the subsequent destruction of a vast Atlantian island or continent. Upon the publication of his discoveries the doctor naturally encountered storms of opposition and adverse criticism. Again the orthodox pointed to the Hebraic "Genesis," and again demanded its literal interpretation. So the innovating doctor and his accomplished wife and assistant were immediately ranked among that illustrious society of scientific cranks headed by Solon, Plato, Donnelly, Darwin, Draper, and Spencer.

But, unfortunately for the position assumed by the literal interpreters of the Hebrew "Genesis," recent archaeological researches in Nicaragua seem to vouch for the truth of the narrative of Solon, the "fragment" of Plato, and the bold theories of Donnelly. Late Central American newspapers teem with accounts of the discovery of two large stones and a huge rock that are covered with hieroglyphics and Phœnician inscriptions. One of the stones presents a map of the world with the lost Atlantis, situated in that vast space now covered by the North Atlantic; the other furnishes astronomical representations, which from the position of the constellations thus depicted certainly argue extreme antiquity. These stones were found forty feet below the surface of the Island of Zapateca by the celebrated archæologist, Prof. Mayer.

Of course the discoverer must expect to meet with the same opposition and the same orthodox contempt and scorn that have recently pursued Donnelly and Plongeon, but it is fairly safe to assume that he will manage to survive this terrible infliction, and will console himself with the reflection that his enraged antagonists will never be able to explain away the inscriptions found on the temple walls of Uxmal, Chichen Itza, and Papaulta, and will rejoice in the thought that as the world grows older its inhabitants become wiser and less credulous, and that a great many superstitions now believed by the vast "many-headed" will in the near future be relegated to the company of exploded ancient myths.

IF WE WORK WE MUST SLEEP.

THE restoration of energy which sleep alone can afford, is necessary for the maintenance of nervous vigor, and whereas the muscular system, if overtaxed, at last refuses to work, the brain under similar circumstances too frequently refuses to rest. The sufferer, instead of trying to remove or lessen the cause of his sleeplessness, comforts himself with the hope that it will soon disappear, or else has resort to alcohol, morphia, the bromides, chloral, etc. Valuable and necessary as these remedies often are (I refer especially to the drugs), there can be no question as to the mischief which attends their frequent use, and there is much reason to fear that their employment, in the absence of any medical authority, is largely on the increase. Many of the "proprietary articles" sold by druggists and in great demand at the present day owe their efficacy to one or more of these powerful drugs. Not a few deaths have been caused by their use, and in a still larger number of cases they have helped to produce the fatal result. Sleeplessness is almost always accompanied by indigestion in some one or other of its protean forms, and the two conditions react upon and aggravate each other. If rest cannot be obtained, and if the vital machine cannot be supplied, mental and bodily collapse cannot be far distant. The details of the downward course vary, but the result is much the same in all cases. Sleeplessness and loss of appetite are followed by loss of flesh and strength, nervous irritability, alternation with depression, palpitation and other derangements of the heart, especially at night; and many of these symptoms are grouped together under the old term hypochondriasis. When this stage has been reached, "the border lands of insanity" are within measurable distance, even if they have not already been reached.

Conference Minutes.

DES MOINES.

The above district conference convened at Richland Creek School-house, Tama County, Iowa, on Sunday, May 29th. President W. C. Nirk, in the chair; H. A. McCoy secretary pro tem. It was resolved that in the future all resolutions becoming laws of the district and the repeal acts of the same, be forwarded with the conference minutes, with request for their publication. Resolved, that all games of chance are improper, and should be prohibited by the church; from the fact that the Supreme Court of Iowa has decided that they are violators of the law; and the church should discourage all violations of the law; this resolution only in force for future violation of the same. Branch reports:—Newton, 49 members; John X. Davis president, Wm. Coiner clerk. Boonsborough, 66; Wm. McBurney president; S. L. Ades clerk. Sheridan, 54; G. Shimel president; H. A. McCoy clerk. Des Moines Valley, 53; Geo. M. Jamison, president; Clara Brockett, clerk. Edenville, 80; Wm. C. Nirk, president; J. F. Roberts, clerk. Des Monies 87; J. P. Knox, president; Willis Chandler, clerk. Elder R. Etzenhouser reported by letter; J. S. Roth, Wm. Bozarth, N. A. Baker, George Shimel and W. C. Nirk reported in person. Bishop's Agent's report:—On hand last report $55.13, received since $21.50, total $76.63; paid out $75.85, on hand 78 cents. W. C. Nirk was sustained as president; J. S. Roth as Bishop's and book Agent. J. S. Roth was elected vice president of district and secretary pro tem. was chosen to be district secretary. The spiritual authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Bozarth, assisted by J. S. Roth. Preaching in the afternoon by J. S. Roth, assisted by W. C. Nirk. After this service the rite of baptism was administered, Bro. Bozarth baptizing two. Preaching in the evening by Wm. Bozarth, assisted by J. S. Roth. Adjourned to meet at Boonsborough, Iowa, Friday, September 10th, 1886, at half-past seven in the evening.

SOUTHERN INDIANA DISTRICT.

Conference convened with the Saints at Canaan, Indiana, June 12th to 14th, 1886, James G. Scott in the chair, L. Scott, secretary. The minutes of last conference were read, and reports were called for. Branch Reports. Eden reported 32 members, including 6 Elders and 2 Priests. No change since last report. Union 35, including 1 Elder, 1 Priest, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon. Canaan 24, including 1 Priest, 1 Teacher. Olive 20; including 1 Priest, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon. West Fork, Hope, Pleasant Ridge, New Trenton, and Amanda branches not reported. Elders Reports.—James G. Scott had preached at a point in Washington county, the last time to between four hundred and six hundred persons. James M. Scott had assisted Elder James G. Scott. David Scott, by letter, had done nothing further than by practical exemplification of his faith among his neighbors and acquaintances. Priests Wm. Foster and Wm. H. Burton had labored in their branches. L. Scott had presented the faith two evenings at a new opening. Teacher James Porter and Deacon John Freel also reported in person. Their labors were confined to branches. All seemed to have done something for the cause. Saturday night, preaching in grove by L. Scott from Jude 1:3. Sunday night preaching by James G. Scott at the house of Bro. Winscott, from 1st Thes. 1:5. Monday, 14th.—Resolved that the difficulties existing in Eden Branch be referred to president of mission. Resolved, That after every energy be put forth by the officers of the Olive Branch to satisfy the law to the letter, a full compliance to every item, and if no reconciliation was effected to withdraw communion or fellowship, until the offending parties brought forth the proper fruits of reformation. That from henceforth the branches in this district, in sending requests to the conference for aid to settle branch difficulties see first that the law has been satisfied and complied with in every item. The authorities of this district and the church were sustained in righteousness. Resolved, That we extend heartfelt thanks to the Saints of the Canaan Branch for courtesy and kindness during this conference. Three children were blessed, and six of the afflicted ones administered to, Elders James G. and James M. Scott officiating, and the influence of the Spirit was shed abroad in the hearts of many of the Saints to the glory of God and to the honor of his cause. Preaching at 7:30 by L. Scott from Matt. 16:17, 18. Thus passed a profitable, instructive, peaceful, and pleasant conference. All in attendance were strengthened and edified, and we trust, more determined to make a practical exemplification of every item of the religion which they revere and dearly love. Adjourned to meet at the call of district president.

SOUTH-EASTERN ILLINOIS.

The South-Eastern Illinois district conference convened at Brush Creek, Wayne county, Illinois, June 12th, 1886; I. M. Smith president in the chair, John F. Thomas clerk. Brush Creek branch 102 members; including 2 Elders, 2 Priests, 3 Teachers, and 1 Deacon. Nine of the above number were baptized since last report. Dryfork 31 members; including 1 High Priest, 4 Elders, 2 Teachers, and 2 Deacons. Bro. John F. Simms was recommended by this branch for ordination to the office of Priest. Alma 10 members; including 2 Elders and 1 Deacon. No reports from Tunnel Hill and Springerton: Elders I. A. Morris, H. Walker, John F. Henson, I. M. Smith, G. H. Hilliard, John F. Thomas, M. R. Brown, T. P. Green present, reported. The reports were encouraging. Priestcraft and prejudice seem to be giving way, as the calls for preaching the word are many. Teachers present 2, Deacons 2, John F. Simms Priest reported. Bro. David Hoover, Deacon, reported. Afternoon session; the Elders labors were appointed as follows: J. F. Henson visit Alma Branch; Brn. I. A. Morris and J. F. Henson to visit Richland; G. H. Hilliard to visit Franklin county, Illinois, J. F. Thomas and H. Walker to visit Jacob's Chapel, T. P. Green to visit Brush Creek, M. R. Brown to visit T. P. Green's house and preach there; J. F. Henson and H. Walker to visit the Green School-house, in Marion county, Illinois, M. R. Brown to visit Hazel Dell. A motion prevailed that all the Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons do all they can during this quarter. Bro. I. M. Smith was sustained as president, and J. F. Thomas clerk for the next quarter. It was moved that when this conference adjourns, it does so to meet at the Dryfork School-house in the Dryfork Branch, Wayne county, Illinois, Saturday September 4th, at ten o'clock a. m. It was resolved that we sustain Bro. A. H. Smith as missionary in charge this quarter, and request him to visit us. Motion to sustain all the authorities of the church in righteousness was adopted. Preaching at night by H. Walker, assisted by J. F. Thomas. Sunday, 11 a. m., preaching by I. M. Smith, subject The Atonement of Christ. At 2 p. m. preaching by T. P. Green assisted by I. M. Smith. Preaching in the evening by G. H. Hilliard. At the close of the exercises Bro. John F. Simms was ordained to the office of Priest, and six children were blessed. The attendance was reasonably good, especially on Sunday; there was a reasonable degree of the Spirit, and we had a fair time all things considered.

A MIXTURE of rain water, cologne and glycerine should be kept by those who are troubled with roughness of the skin. Apply to the face and hands after washing. Bean water is also good for rough skin. Put a handful in a bag and dip it in warm water and wash with it.

TO DRIVE away rats: Get from the drug store some bi-sulphide of carbon and pour down their holes. Every rat will leave the premises within twenty-four hours.

The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

Miscellaneous.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN MISSION.

In the Herald for June 12th it will be seen that the Bishop has authorized me to act as his agent for the Utah District and the Rocky Mountain Mission where he has no agents appointed. By the last April Conference I was appointed to take charge of the Rocky Mountain Mission, embracing Western Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Montana, and Eastern Nevada. In order that we may successfully prosecute the work assigned us, I ask all residing in the Mission to come directly to our support with such means as they can. There are now three brethren besides myself in the field, Bro. J. C. Clapp in Montana, and Peter Anderson and John Larson in Utah and Idaho. We are all ready and willing, but without financial aid we can not do the work you expect us to do. Let all the presidents of branches lay this matter before the Saints, and let all do what they can. Don't wait until you are better prepared, but do what you can now, and the Lord will bless you so you can do more by and by. Remember that a little from all will aid us much. All the Saints who are isolated from branches, who love the cause of God should also send us their tithes or offerings as the Lord has blessed them. Owing to the unsettled condition of affairs in Utah and portions of Idaho, times are hard and money scarce. But surely the Saints can see that the better days are near at hand. You have aided the Mission liberally in the past, and we confidently trust you will not fail us now. Remember, dear Saints, we are making sacrifice because we have been called to this ministry; and for this reason we call on you for a little sacrifice on your part, so we may all labor together for the advancement of the church and the glory of God. Send what you can, and when you can, much or little, and the Lord will bless you.

R. J. ANTHONY.

Box 1123, Salt Lake City, Utah.

CONFERENCE NOTICE.

Conference of the Pittsburg and Kirtland District will convene at half-past ten o'clock, July 24th, 1886, at Wheeling, W. Va. It is hoped that all the Elders and clerks of branches will be prompt in sending in their reports to F. J. Reese, No. 65, Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., or A. M. Teagarden, No. 4728, Jacob street, Wheeling W. Va. There will be some of the traveling ministry in attendance. We trust there will be a large representation from the different branches. It is expected there will be a change of district officials. Visitors will be amply provided for.

G. T. GRIFFITH, Dist. Pres.

BISHOP'S AGENT.

At a late conference held at Sweet Home, Lynn County, Oregon, Bro. J. F. Morris was recommended to me as my agent for Oregon. I therefore appoint him as my agent, and recommend him to all the Saints in receiving tithes and offerings for the church treasury, and paying out the same as directed by me.

G. A. BLAKESLEE,

Presiding Bishop.

GALLEN, Michigan, June 15th, 1886.

DECATUR DISTRICT.

A conference of the above district will be held at Lucas, Iowa, on July 10th and 11th, 1886, beginning at ten o'clock on Saturday. The ministry and members throughout the district are urged to try and be present; and it is hoped that the various branches will make out and send the regular statistical reports, by the hand of some one if they can, if not then by mail to me at Lucas.

H. A. STEBBINS, District Pres.

MARRIED.

McMILLEN—ROBSON.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Washingtonville, Ohio, June 13th, 1886, Mr. William McMillen and sister Isabella J. Robson were united in marriage by Elder David M. Strachan. The bride is the daughter of brother and sister Robson, and the bridegroom is the son of brother John McMillen. The couple went that same night to their home in West Austintown. The Saints of Washingtonville wish them a happy life and the blessing of God.

DIED.

EVANS.—At Houtzdale, Clearfield county, Pennsylvania, October 20th, 1884, Bro. David Evans, of paralysis. He was born at Pontypwl, Monmouthshire, South Wales, September 15th, 1815. He was re-baptized by Bro. John T. Phillips at Ystradgynlais, Braconshire, South Wales, came to America May 11th, 1882. Died strong in the faith, putting his trust in God. He leaves two sons and two daughters to mourn his loss.

GRIFFITHS.—At Scranton, Lackawanna Co., Pennsylvania, May 28th, 1886, after a lingering sickness of several months, Mary Griffiths. She was born in Montgomeryshire, North Wales, October 28th, 1824, was baptized at Dowlais, South Wales, in the summer of 1854. She was faithful, and when she heard the Elders of the Reorganization teaching the same as was taught to her at first, she was re-baptized, in the spring of 1864, by Bro. Evan James, at Aberaman, South Wales. She came to this county, January 17th, 1882, with her husband, Elder David Griffiths, who with her two sons and one daughter are left to mourn her loss. She was faithful through life, and will long be remembered by all who knew her, especially by the missionaries of Wales, whom she aided so much by making a home for them. By her faithful and generous works she might well be termed "a mother in Israel." She met death "calm as a summer's morning," knowing in whom she trusted. Funeral services by Bro. J. J. Morgan.

SMALL.—Near Portsmouth, Iowa, March 2d, 1886, Sr. Selina E., wife of Bro. Judson Small, and daughter of John E. and Mary Page. She was born near Burlington, Wisconsin, in 1848; was baptized September 24th, 1873, by Elder Jason W. Briggs, and confirmed by Elder Joseph Smith; she was a faithful Saint, an active worker, and did much good in her short life. Many will remember her as a kind and efficient school teacher. As a neighbor she did all in her power to comfort the needy and afflicted. A short time before her death she saw in vision her six little children who were dead, and was surprised to see the youngest, (who died a feeble little babe), looking as bright and noble as the rest. She much admired their happy appearance. Her friends are comforted in believing she is as happy in the Spirit's Zion, as her little ones whom she saw there. Sermon was preached by Elder T. W. Lloyd.

DAVISON.—Lizze B. Davison, born October 17th, 1874, near Grinnell, Poweshiek Co., Iowa, died June 12th, 1886, near Magnolia, Iowa, being 11 years, 7 months, and 25 days old. Lizzie was an intelligent child, and a member of the Magnolia Sabbath School; believed the gospel; had requested the privilege to obey it, but her parents fearing she did not sufficiently understand, requested her to wait; she consented, but the "reapers" waited not, and she was gathered into the garner of God. She desired the Elders to administer to her the ordinance for the healing of the sick. The elders cheerfully complied; she was comforted and resigned, assuring her parents they had done all in their power for her recovery. Her funeral took place at Magnolia; the sermon was preached by Elder C. Derry, assisted by P. and W. C. Cadwell, also by J. F. Mintun.

LAYING ON OF HANDS.

ALL Saints believe in the laying on of hands, for all the purposes for which the ordinance was instituted. No one would be justified in attempting to formulate set rules to govern the Elders in administering the ordinance, including the form of words to be used, as there must be liberty to follow the direction of the Spirit, if any be given. We may, however, offer a few thoughts that may assist some in the discharge of the duty.

The statement in Habakuk, "God came from Teman and the Holy One from Mount Paran. His glory covered the heavens, and the earth was full of his praise. And his brightness was as the light; he had horns coming out of his hands: and there was the hiding of his power," is descriptive and may be applied unto Christ without doubt, or hesitancy. Our Lord when he came illustrated the beauty of the figure "horns coming out of his hands," by adopting the laying on of hands to ordain his disciples; and to confer the Holy Ghost both by himself and by commandment by his disciples; and for the healing of the sick by both Jesus and his disciples.

THE OIL.

The oil used should be the purest olive, or "sweet oil" that can be procured. It is a custom in the church that oil is set apart by consecration in prayer for the purpose of being used in the ordinance. No form of words is presented, and indeed none is necessary; but it must be evident that whoever officiates in setting the oil apart for the use intended, should do so in terms that are understood by those around him, if the ceremony takes place in a meeting of the Saints, or in a private dwelling where witnesses are present. Words in import like these should be used. "Our Father, we ask thee in the name of Jesus Christ to bless this oil to its intended use; Grant that faith may be exercised by those administering and those administered to." Or, "In the name of Jesus Christ we set this oil apart to be used for right and holy purposes; asking that God may bless and sanctify it to those to whom it shall be ministered." Do not suppose that we give these as the precise words to be used; but as suggestive of what the object is that is desired to be reached, by blessing the oil.

MANNER OF ADMINISTERING.

"Is any sick among you? let him call for the Elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord." This is in accord with the commandment in Mark 16. It is evident that oil is to be used in cases of sickness. It is not here said how the oil shall be applied, but from usages, traditionally more or less prevalent, it is the custom to pour it upon the head, or using it from a spoon or other vessel, or the hand to dip the fingers into the oil and rub it upon the head or forehead, saying, "I do this in Jesus' name;" or "I anoint you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ." Some Elders make this quite a lengthy part of the service, often offering a long prayer while the other one, or two as the case may be stand by waiting to lay their hands on the person's head. Others give a portion of the oil to be swallowed by the patient. Some in offering prayer direct a part of their speech to the person being administered to, and part to the Lord, &c.

We suggest: That when oil is used in anointing that the Elder take the oil bottle, or cruse in his hand and pour some of its contents upon the crown of the head of the sick person, enough to wet through the hair, saying, "I anoint you with this oil in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, that you may receive blessing from God and be healed of your infirmity." If one desires to take of the oil inwardly, give it in the name of the Lord. Then, laying on the hands, if prayer has not been offered before, let a prayer be said asking the Father for such portion of his Spirit as will enable the Elders to administer acceptably. The prayer, or prayers offered for the sick should not be boisterous and loud, but fervent, full of sympathy and hope. We dislike to hear the words "by virtue of the holy priesthood," used by some. We think it decidedly more appropriate to pray, offering the requests made of God in a spirit of humility and resignation, and in a calm, quiet and firm tone of voice;—blessings are not to be commanded by human strength, but asked for in faith. Some seem to think that the powers of health are subject to the demand and order of the priesthood; we do not think so, but that they are the gift of God subject to the direction and control of his power and wisdom,—we should ask for them in this sense and with this understanding.

We advise that administrations to the sick be as quietly conducted as practicable. Avoid administrations in public preaching services before the mixed congregations usually attending service. Also avoid, as much as practicable administering at the close of a long service of testimony, prayer and song, after all are weary with the long sitting. In both cases it is better to either wait till the crowd has dispersed, or to go to a brother, or sister's house close by, and there in quiet attend the ordinance. In cases where Elders are called to the house of the sick they should go in full reliance upon God and his promises. They should avoid anything of a boastful, self-reliant nature in either word or act. They should remember that the power is that of God; the will is of God; the wisdom of recovery is of God; and the frame of mind that can most truly say, "Thy will be done," is the safest and most successful one to be in.

Avoid assuming that the affliction is the result of personal transgression of the afflicted. Do not officiously seek for a cause of the sickness, or for a testimony whether the issue shall be life or death. Many have erred in this and have mistaken the evidence, and so done much mischief by unwise prophesying contrary to the meaning of the manifestation. Do not "blow a trumpet" before you in this, any more than you would in the "doing of alms."

FOR ORDINATION.

The one ordained is so ordained "according to the gifts and callings of God unto him, and by virtue of the power of the Holy Ghost which is in the one who ordains him."

This is only the statement that the act of ordination is but the recognition on the part of the church of the "gifts and callings" of God unto the one ordained, through the formal laying on of hands, and setting the individual apart to the particular office in the priesthood unto which he is called.

THE FORM.

The manner of ordination should be simple, but solemn. The Book of Mormon, book of Moroni, chapter three, gives the following: "After they had prayed unto the Father in the name of Christ, they laid their hands upon them, and said, in the name of Jesus Christ I ordain you to be a ———, to preach repentance and remission of sins through Jesus Christ, by the endurance of faith on his name to the end. Amen."

While no set form of prayer is prescribed, and we think none is necessary, we are of the opinion that carefulness should be used on all occasions to prevent the repetition of vain and useless expressions, the too often use of the names of the Father and Christ.

FOR RECEIVING LITTLE CHILDREN.

This rite of receiving and blessing children is one of the most beautiful known to the church. It is in keeping and harmony with the Savior's command and usage. In blessing of children we suggest that if it is done in the sacrament or prayer meeting that it be done at the opening of the service before the child is worn out and fretful. Be careful not to speak in a loud, harsh tone. Take the little one upon the extended arms if practicable, and the child is not fearful and shy, and in a quiet, pleasant tone, ask and pronounce a blessing upon it, calling it by the given name, or names that are given it. Ask that the blessings of God may attend the child; bless it if the spirit so points out, but be careful of being led into declarations that may raise false hopes about the child.

Children are not necessarily made members of the Church by the rite of blessing; it is but the recognition of Christ's statement "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." They are in the hands of the Father. The blessing by the laying on of hands, while it does not confer membership in the church, places them under the special watch-care of the spiritual forces attendant upon the children of the covenant, and undoubtedly does convey power by which they may be led into such ways of life and thought that they will more readily receive the truth when of proper age. We suggest that the substance of the words used in receiving the child be "We receive this child in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and pray that the care, protection, and blessings of the Spirit may attend it. And the name of—having been given unto it, we pray that in this name this child may grow unto manhood, (or womanhood) and being blessed of God to rightly perform all the duties of its sphere in life, may be crowned with eternal life with the redeemed and sanctified."

In what we have here written we do not intend to limit, restrict, or prescribe any form of words that may be suggested at the time to the Elder, or Elders officiating in any of the rites named; but we should much love to see all loose, rambling, incoherent and unmeaning speech avoided; and a purer, pleasanter manner cultivated in all of them.

FALSE REVELATORS.

SOME people talk of false revelations coming through prophets and seers sent of God as though they were nothing at all strange, but rather to be expected. And such also claim that each individual should sit in private judgment on all matters of revelation and accept of none except it agrees with his personal knowledge of the matters set forth, or with his construction of what he had previously accepted as divine. Such people seem to think that God ordains and sends forth such prophets and seers, giving them the highest credentials both by prophecies and inspired promises given concerning them and their work prior to their mission work, and also by confirming their work by divine testimonies great in number and measure, and yet that he suffers them to give false revelations to his people, mislead and ruin them, and that this may continue on indefinitely at the will of the prophet.

This position assumes, in effect, that parts of the revelation which an authorized prophet gives to God's children may be true, and parts may be false and harmful, and that the power to know of the truth or falsity of them rests alone with each individual and must be determined by him by virtue of what he already knows aside from such revelations, or by such knowledge as he may obtain without them. If the individual is already possessed of whatever knowledge there may be contained in any revelation, then such revelation can be of little or no use to him; or if he can of himself obtain such knowledge without and aside from such revelation, then also it is of little or no worth to him.

But it is manifest that the revelations coming through duly ordained and accredited prophets are not alternately of God and the devil; neither are they alternately true and false. Besides this, God has not appointed that each and every individual must or may sit in judgment upon what is given to his people in a regular way by his prophet. Whoever undertakes to judge as to what is and what is not the word of the Lord, should first be divinely authorized, and then they should be fully and efficiently qualified for that high and important work.

The Lord in ancient times usually fore-showed the coming and work of his prophets and seers, as in the case of Moses. (See Acts 7:23-36; with Gen. 50:29, in Inspired Translation, and 2 Nephi 2:2, 3); and of John the Baptist; (Isa. 40:3, with Luke 3:4; also Luke 1:11-24); and of Jesus; (Gen. 49:10; Deut. 18:18; Ps. 110:4; Isa. 7:14; 9:6, 7; 53:1-12; Dan. 9:24-27; Micah 5:1-4; Zech. 9:9-11; Luke 1:26-35; and 2:6-38; Matt. 2:1-15; etc., etc.); and of Joseph the Seer; (Isa. 29:12-18; Dan. 2:4; Rev. 14:6, 7; 16:6; 18:4; 2 Nephi 2:2, 3; Book of Nephi 9:11, 12; B. Mormon 4:2). To these prophecies he has added, in greater or lesser degree, the confirmatory evidences of "signs and wonders and divers gifts of the Holy Ghost," thus confirming to the willing and obedient the divinity of his word, and the certainty of his wonderful promises. Who were they who anciently assumed, and who do now assume to pass judgment upon the "thus saith the Lord" given to the church in a regular way by any of these chief servants of the Lord! Let history answer. Whatever, in the providence of God, came to the saints in a regular authentic manner as "thus saith the Lord," by duly accredited prophets, was accepted for just what it claimed. When the authority of the individual to deliver the word of the Lord to the people was properly established, then that word, when delivered with a "thus saith saith the Lord," was held to be divine.

Joshua and his faithful colleagues never called in question the divinity of the "thus saith the Lord" delivered by the prophet Moses, notwithstanding its many peculiar requirements, and its many strange and improbable predictions. This word was given openly by Moses to the people, (Deut. 5:1-22; 29:1, 29; 24:3); and they as publicly covenanted to keep it. (Deut. 5:27; 6:20-25; 24:12-15; Heb. 9:19; Ex. 24:3, 7). The prophets and apostles never engaged in the discreditable work of rejecting, questioning, or treating lightly the professedly inspired utterances of their predecessors. What they sought to know was, as to whether such utterances came through men divinely ordained to that calling.

That was a matter of first importance. Rightful authority in the premises was the chief thing. If devils may question persons authority to officiate in the name of Deity—"Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are ye?"—then may the Saints know the authority of those professing to receive the word of God for them. But when God has demonstrated to his people and approved those to whom he has delegated such authority, it is a presumptuous and a dangerous thing to either reject or treat lightly a "thus saith the Lord" given regularly to the people through them. It is preposterous to hold that he calls, qualifies, endorses, and confirms men as his prophets and seers, and then suffers them by repeated and numerous false revelations to mislead and corrupt his people. That he will not suffer it is seen clearly in his promise in Deuteronomy.

"But the prophet, which shall presume to speak a word in my name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or that shall speak in the name of other gods, even that prophet shall die. And if thou say in thine heart, How shall we know the word which the Lord hath not spoken? When a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously; thou shalt not be afraid of him."—Deut. 18:20-23.

From this we learn that, if his prophet speak only "a word" in the "name" of the Lord falsely, speak that which he has "not commanded him to speak," * * * "even that prophet shall die." If God will remove a prophet from this life for so grave a sin, will he not do so speedily? or will he permit him to repeatedly give false revelations, blind and corrupt the people of God, multiply his own mortal sins and bring reproach and ruin upon all! Will he not rather cause that such an one shall die immediately after the one false "thus saith the Lord" is uttered? Will not God shield his faithful people against any false "thus saith the Lord" given, (possibly), by his accredited prophets and seers? What are the dictates of common sense on the point! Inasmuch as God denounces death on such transgressors, shall that fate come speedily after the transgression, or shall the false revelator live on, giving more and more false revelations, and thereby deceive and mislead those over whom God ha placed him! Certainly, this language—"that prophet shall die"—implies that he shall die quickly after such transgression. In respect to a somewhat similar transaction it is said in Ezekiel:

"Then came certain of the Elders of Israel unto me, and sat before me. And the word of the Lord came unto me, saying: Son of man, these men have set up their idols in their heart, and put the stumblingblock of their iniquity before their face; should I be inquired of at all by them? Therefore speak unto them, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God; Every man of the house of Israel that setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumblingblock of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to the prophet; I the Lord will answer him that cometh according to the multitude of his idols; that I may take the house of Israel in their own heart, because they are all entranced from me through their idols. Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God: Repent, and turn yourselves from your idols; and turn away your faces from all your abominations. For every one of the house of Israel, or of the stranger that sojourned in Israel, which separateth himself from me, and setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumblingblock of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to a prophet to inquire of him concerning me; I the Lord will answer him by myself; and I will set my face against that man, and will make him a sign and a proverb, and I will cut him off from the midst of my people; and ye shall know that I am the Lord. And if the prophet be deceived when he hath spoken a thing, I the Lord have [not] deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out my hand upon him, and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel. And they shall bear the punishment of their iniquity; the punishment of the prophet shall be even as the punishment of him that seeketh unto him; That the house of Israel may go no more astray from me, neither be polluted any more with all their transgressions; but that they may be my people, and I may be their God, saith the Lord God."—Ezek. 14: 1-11.—Inspired Translation.

This quotation shows that a prophet ought not to inquire of the Lord for wicked persons who had "set up their idols in their heart, and put the stumbling block of their iniquity before their face," and it teaches also that his prophets must not inquire at his hands in behalf of what he had previously denounced as "idols," and "iniquity." To this agrees the word of the Lord to Nephi: "Thou shalt not ask that which is contrary to my will."—Helaman 3:13. And so of O. Cowdery, through Joseph the Seer: "Do not ask for that which you ought not."—Doc. and Cov. 7:3. When God has revealed in plainness as to what is idolatry, iniquity, abomination, and the like, if persons, especially ministers, seek to be justified of God in such evils, and come before a prophet and request him to ask the Lord to permit such evils, or justify them, then the prophet as well as he who seeks unto him should know better than to do so; for God having once denounced such sins in his revealed word, that should be an end of all controversy and inquiry. And when persons seek for justification by revelation through a prophet in matters already condemned by God's word, that is a heinous sin and indicates want of faith in God's written word, and exhibits a belief that God may vary and change from what he has already said. Such an exhibition of disbelief in God and his word, such infidelity to high official trust, merits and brings down just and swift punishment. Of those who seek to be tolerated or justified in "iniquity," or in serving any of the "idols" they may have "set up" in "their heart," the Lord indignantly says to the prophet, "should I be inquired of at all by them?" This can only mean that he expects his prophets to know better than inquire of him for answers favoring idolatry of any kind, or iniquity under any form.

It is a grave matter to inquire of the Lord at the hands of his prophet, and more especially in regard to matters already revealed and plainly, amply written. Of this Joseph the Seer wrote in his history:

"We never enquire at the hand of God for special revelation only in case of there being no previous revelation to suit the case."—Times and Seasons, 5: 753. Mill Star, 14: 413.

This is in exact harmony with the law of the church in Doctrine and Covenants, 99: 10:

"In cases of difficulty respecting doctrine or principle, (if there is not a sufficiency written to make the case clear to the mind of the council), the president [the prophet.—Ed.] may inquire and obtain the mind of the Lord by revelation."

This means that when God has once revealed and caused to be written to his people his will upon doctrine, fact, or principle, that forever remains his will on such matters, and can not be changed. And when his prophet and people have his revealed will given them, there can be no need for further revelation on such matters as are embraced in that revealed will, and when prophet or people seek for it, they greatly err, and exhibit both folly and unbelief. And when they seek for God's endorsement, justification or permission of what he has already denounced as evil, they exhibit a trifling, corrupt, disbelieving and rebellious heart. And it is in this last case that he declares to Ezekiel that he will set his face against such and will cut them off from the midst of his people. Of this matter Joseph the Seer further wrote:

"It is a great thing to enquire at the hand of God, or to come into his presence; and we feel fearful to approach him with subjects that are of little or no importance, to satisfy the queries of individuals, especially about things the knowledge of which men ought to obtain in all sincerity before God, for themselves, in humility by the prayer of faith, and more especially a Teacher or a High Priest in the church."—Times and Seasons, 5: 753, and Mill Star, 14: 413.

And when a prophet presumptuously seeks answers favoring what God's word already shows to be "iniquity," "idols," "abominations," and the like, it is possible he may then get a false and deceptive revelation, for he has already gone aside from the true service of God and placed himself on the grounds of the adversary, he is no longer serving God, but has departed from him. And if the prophet does that evil thing, the Lord declares he will "destroy him from the midst" of his Israel, and he will also destroy the man who sought unto him for these evil things.

The Lord gives us the reason for his doing thus: First, to punish these presumptuous, unfaithful servants; and in the next place, to prevent Israel from going "astray" and becoming transgressors.

"And if the prophet be deceived when he hath spoken a thing, I the Lord have [not] deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out my hand upon him, and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel. And they shall bear the punishment of their iniquity; the punishment of the prophet shall be even as the punishment of him that seeketh unto him. That the house of Israel may go no more astray from me, neither be polluted any more with all their transgressions; but that they may be my people, and I may be their God, saith the Lord God."

Inasmuch, then, as these parties must be punished, why not suffer at once, and immediately? And inasmuch as they were to be destroyed from the midst of the people of God so "that the house of Israel may go no more astray, neither be polluted any more with all their transgressions," but that they may be kept a pure people unto God, why, O why shall not the false revelator and his confederate be destroyed speedily after their sin! To cut them off, and that quickly would be the very means of protecting the people from the evils of a false revelator and his fellow. To suffer such a revelator to live and continue to give false revelation, would be an unmixed evil. No one can justify by reason or Scripture the idea that God would suffer such transgressors to live on and repeat their deceptive and ruinous doings. And while the Scriptures teach that it is possible for a prophet of God to speak in the name of the Lord falsely, they also teach that such "shall die" for that sin, and that they shall be destroyed suddenly, and this to save God's people from error and evil. Hananiah, one of the minor prophets, said, "Thus speaketh the Lord of hosts," when the Lord had not commanded him; and for his sin he was smitten, and died in less than two months after his false prophecy was uttered. (See Jer. 28: 1-17). This serves to show that God will quickly rid his people of his prophets when they utter a false prophecy. This treatment, (mark it well) pertains to God's prophets who violate their prophetic calling, and it does not refer to those claiming to be prophets, but whom God has not called, chosen, and accredited.

We conclude then, that if a prophet of God speaks "a word" in the name of the Lord, which the Lord has "not commanded him to speak," * * * "even that prophet shall die," and that quickly; for the reason first, that God will not suffer him to mislead his people by false revelations; and, second, that he shall suffer such just punishment to deter others from sinning in like manner; and, lastly, that God may vindicate and protect his word and work in the eyes of his people.

God will always protect his people from all kinds of deception if they serve him aright and use the means he graciously provides. And in these "perilous times" he has provided ample precautionary means, and among them he authorized and qualified the duly organized General Assembly, August 17th, 1835, composed of the various quorums of priesthood set in regular order to "agree" upon his word. (See Mill. Star, 15: 299, with Doc. Cov. 41: 1, Times and Seasons 5: 649, 650). The "Great Shepherd of the Sheep" guards and guides the faithful, and will not suffer His accredited Seers and revelators to multiply false revelations and thereby mislead the faithful, trustful, truth-loving flock of God.

A TERRIBLE scourge called "black diphtheria, is ravaging the towns of Ecorse, Springwells, Royal Oak, and their vicinities, near Detroit, Michigan, numbers having already died from its attack. The throats of those attacked swell, and in a few hours they die in great agony. It attacks children and adults alike. George Campbell, of Royal Oak, lost five out of a family of seven. All of Moses Reno's family are attacked, two have died and the rest are low. Efforts are being made to prevent the plague reaching Detroit.

THE French Republic has issued a decree expelling the French Princes from the country. This is in pursuance of a policy intended to prevent a possible war in favor of any branch of the hitherto reigning families of the Kingdom and Empire of France, with the intent to reinstate a kingdom, or the Empire.

This measure seems to be extreme. The administration of the affairs of the Republic should have been managed in such a way that any attempt to re-establish a kingly dynasty, either kingdom or empire, would have been met by the people with sudden and positive disapproval. Whether there yet remains in France a sufficiently pronounced sentiment in favor of royalty and its trappings, to warrant such a wholesale expulsion from that country of numbers of its citizens whose worst crime may be that of birth, may not be known to the political economists of this western world, but it must strike many very strangely, and to the readers of the HERALD it will be but one of the tokens significant of the great changes that God proposes to work in these last days to accomplish his designs.

While we favor the continuance of the French Republic, and believe that a restoration of the Bourbon Empire, or the kingly house of Orleans would be a backward step in the progress of the world, we feel sympathy for those thus banished from their homes and their country. They must seek homes in other lands; and if those already in England and Ireland are a burden to the land, how can the influx of a host of abandoned royalists fail to add to the already heavy burden.

What a trouble the world is in, to be sure. England with her starving and impoverished Ireland and Scotland, and her rebellious subjects in India, and her interests in Turkey and Egypt; Spain with her ruined reigning family, and the rising of other claimants to the throne; Germany with her failing Emperor and capricious Prime Minister, and her nihilists; Russia with her desires for conquest to the south, her Balkan war and her nihilists; France with her wavering republicanism, and her now exiled royalty; Canada with its threatened fisheries and its troubled inter colonial trade, and the United States with its labor troubles and strikes, its Utah problem, its anarchist strife, and its cyclones,—surely these are troublous times—what will the result be?

THE Kirtland (O.) correspondent of the Willoughby Independent, says of late:

"Temple visitors are numerous."

"Elder W. H. Kelley expects to leave for Southern Indiana the latter part of the week."

"Elder G. T. Griffiths spoke in Conneautville, Pa., last Sabbath, and will speak in the M. E. Church here next Sabbath morning and at Maple Grove School-house at 2 p. m."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Drop thy still dews of quietness,
Till all our strivings cease;
Take from our souls the strain and stress,
And let our ordered lives confess
The beauty of thy peace."

"LET YOUR LIGHT SHINE."

DEAR SISTERS.—As we take up our pen this morning, we feel the quiet inspiration of the lines just quoted, until it becomes a prayer upon our lips to which the seal of the heart is set—

"And let our ordered lives confess
The beauty of thy peace."

"Peace," said Jesus, "I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled." The peace which the Savior intended us to enjoy, is that peace which comes of perfect trust, of reliance so implicit upon the divine will and guidance, that we can rest undisturbed amid the wildest storm of opposition or even persecution, knowing that God is over and above all and that if he is our friend, in him we shall have peace. Sisters, we tell you to-day that the triumph of the gospel is to be largely brought about by the home life of its followers. "That others seeing your good works, may glorify your Father in heaven." This is not true of the gospel alone, but is equally true of every noble enterprise springing up beneath the shadow of the gospel. No matter where it originated if it is not nursed and fostered at home, it will soon wither and die for want of its natural food. The example set at home, the family altar there erected, from which ascends the incense of morning and evening prayer are weapons more powerful, means more productive of good to the cause of Christ, than all the controversies ever entered into, for the purpose of maintaining truth. We like to hear the truth ably defended before the people. It is right in its place and the blessing of God will rest upon it, but if we are brave soldiers only when our colors are flying and martial music thrills our nerves, upon whom shall the Lord depend in the watches of the night, in hours when to all human appearance the battle is turning against us, and we find ourselves beset by foes, both from without and within.

"Drop thy still dews of quietness!" Through the prayer of faith, let us prevail with God that our vessel may be filled with oil and when the lamp is trimmed and burning let it be as a light "in the window," that the feet of the weary, wandering ones of earth may be led by its guiding ray to glorify the Giver of all light and all truth.

The majestic Ohio and Mississippi sweep through our land, bearing its commerce to the ocean upon their placid bosoms, but at times they rush with resistless force, overflowing their banks and spreading their waters to the detriment of all in their way, thus becoming a scourge instead of a blessing. The heat of summer comes on, the earth is parched and opens her surface in furrowed seams ready to take deep draughts of the rain or dews of heaven, which come not at her signals of distress. How gladly now would she welcome the cooling waves which deluged her so short a time since, but the rivers are shrunken within their banks and only the smallest craft can ply upon them. But hark, what greets the ear with its rippling murmur from the distant plain. It is the brooklet winding its way now among woodland pastures and now through verdant meadows, quietly cheering and enlivening all in its course. Here the children are quenching their thirst and there the cattle stoop to drink of its sparkling water. It has traveled far upon its way, from the distant hills but has blessed both man and beast through the length of its journey.

Hundreds and thousands of such rivulets bless the land, bearing joy and gladness with them in their flow. Like these rivulets to the land, so ought our homes to be. From them should go forth the life giving influence of the spirit dwelling within, and if it be the spirit of peace, its mission shall be more blessed than that of Noah's dove,

"All hearts confess the Saints elect
Who twain in faith, in love agree
And melt not in an acid sect
The Christian pearl of charity."

"Fret not thyself upon any wise to do evil." Let us strive from day to day to overcome, remembering that if we do, we shall inherit all things. Let us plead with God from day to day, until we feel the heavenly influence of that peace Christ left as a heritage for us, that love which goes out to all human kind and embraces in its tender pity every creature upon the earth. Born into a world of sin and trial; heirs of an unknown destiny; beset by sin and snares upon every hand—have we no pitying sympathy to extend—we who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope of eternal life? Nay more, who have the assurance of the law and the testimony that we have only to prove faithful to our covenant until the Master shall say, "It is enough, come up higher," when for us the conflict will be ended, and we shall sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of our God. The love of the Father embraces all mankind, and if such is the Father's love it is also the Son's and must be ours, if we love the Savior.

"Heaven's gate is shut to him who comes alone:
Save thou a soul, and it shall save thine own!"

WE are in receipt of letters from sisters Bradley and Russell, also articles from sisters Ackerly and Bradley. In our next we will be able to tell those interested what we have been doing towards the Sunday School cause in Lamoni, and we are hoping to hear a good report from various other places.

LAMONI, IOWA, July 3d, 1886.

WALLSEND, N. S. W. May 17th.

Dear Sister Frances.—In reading the "Mothers' Home Department" of the Herald, I see much has already been said on the subject of training children, urging and encouraging obedience as a principle set forth in the Scriptures of divine truth. This is a subject I believe that should be brought before the minds of parents, and especially Saints, more frequently than it has been, and one on which there can not be too much said, if saying will incite to doing; for truly much needs to be done in that direction. The Apostle Paul foresaw these days of "disobedience to parents," and called them "perilous times." It is perilous to reverse, or set aside any of God's laws or commandments; but how often now-a-days do we see the reverse of what God so highly approved of in Abraham; viz., his government over his household. Are we the children of Abraham, and heirs according to the promise? If so we will do the works of Abraham, and command our children also. But why need there be so much said concerning obedience; is it really necessary? What is its great importance? Is it simply for the comfort and happiness of the family circle, and that children might be more amiable, more lovable? Or is there something beyond all of this that commends obedience? Truly the happiness in this life of both parents and children would seem sufficient to justify one in urging its necessity. But it is the effect of obedience or disobedience that I wish to show. If that ceased with this life, it would not be of such grave importance. Yes, there is indeed something beyond. There is both happiness and misery. Obedience as a principle, will place people in the former, disobedience in the latter. Obedience is a principle that must be indwelling and perfected in the heart and being of every creature that would dwell with God. We see how disobedience caused our first parents to go out from the presence of God. And also caused toil, sorrow, and death; and because of it they lost their right to the tree of life; neither could they come any more into the presence of God in that state. Let us remember that previous to Adam's fall, dominion had been given him over all that was created under the heavens. He stood at their head. It was a gift from God and could not be withdrawn. For the gifts and callings of God are without repentance; consequently all must suffer with him; death was passed upon all; and since then, all that has been written concerning God and Jesus Christ has been in connection with, and concerning the purposes, ways, and means, he has devised to regain his lost and erring children. First he gave his son, who freely came and opened up the way; gave certain laws, rules, whereby all might be saved. But, one positive condition was enjoined upon all; namely, obedience to his plan. God has said in his word that his work was to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man. He did not say how early in the morn of creation that work began. When we contemplate the works of God we can not fail to see design in all things. This world, we learn is the probationary state of mankind—a place of training or preparing for a better state; and we see also how all things are ordained of God (if properly carried out) for the benefit of mankind, and evidently in a way that the greatest benefit might be derived. So I ask was there not design also in placing the human race on the earth as helpless babes; that they might be in the very best condition to be taught that one great principle that is needful to salvation, "obedience?" but through the darkness or short-sightedness of his creatures, they have failed to see the great design of our Heavenly Father. If Jehovah has not said in words, he has in works, that since man had disobeyed his counsel or his command he (man) should become in part responsible for the body and soul of all that is now called the race of man, (see Genesis 4: 10, 11 of I. T.), making parents in one sense creators, that there might be a tie of love between parents and children stronger than death. Neither disobedience, nor the death that followed separated the love of God from his children; and he has endowed earthly parents with the same attribute, that like unto himself they might never weary in seeking their children's benefit, and that which will be for their greatest good. Being of their own flesh and blood they will nourish and care for them, for no man hateth his own flesh. I ask again, can any one think of so great a work being done without a purpose? or could more have been done on the part of our great first parent, for the accomplishing of the great work of redemption, or recovering what was lost through the fall. Obedience, we find, is one of God's laws, and one that must be learned by all who would dwell with him. Think what disaster would befall the inhabitants of this world if the planets or the ocean heeded not his voice when he said "Thus far and no farther shalt thou go;" and think you that if it were possible for God to receive one in heaven in a state of rebellion and disobedience that that one could remain there? Verily, no; Lucifer, though a son of the morning, was thrust down, and a third part of the heavenly hosts, because of rebellion; and we read how dreadful their condition is. So let us thank God that he will not now receive any until they have first learned obedience in all things; and will not parents, especially those who have received the light of the gospel in its fulness, seek more diligently to train their children in a proper way.

Truly the little child in the hands of its parents is as clay in the hands of the potter, susceptible to every impression; and let every mother ask herself what are the impressions that she is making on those whom God has given her; and for which she will surely have to give an account to Him. Is she teaching her children to be submissive, to exercise patience, to be truthful in the fear of God, (for whosoever maketh or loveth a lie can not enter into the beautiful city), teaching them obedience as a principle, that the acts may spring from the heart, and not through fear of punishment only. If so, she is doing a good work in the sight of the Master, and forming a character, whether male or female, that will be prepared to go forth into the world to meet and withstand the trials and temptations of life, and one that can walk uprightly, and will not be overthrown by adverse circumstances, but will make the world better for their having lived in it; and more than that, she has placed their feet in the path that leads to everlasting life. O, what years of ministerial labor, toil and sacrifice would be saved if all mothers were careful to instill those good principles into the minds of their children! But, on the other hand, parents of the household of faith, who fail to teach their children those principles—fail to bring them into subjection they fail also to place their feet in the way of life and happiness; and will they not fail also in a great measure at the day of reward? If God in his word has instructed his people to train up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and children to be obedient to their parents; and in making choice of men for officers chooses those who rule well their own household. I ask if in the face of all this, those who profess to be Saints shall allow their children to grow up wayward and disobedient, are not they also disobedient children of their heavenly Father?

SISTER EMMA.

May 26th, 1886.

Sister Frances.—As I have been benefitted by the "Mothers' Column," I thought I would add my mite to the testimonies given, knowing the importance and greatness of the work we are engaged in. I would like much to see you face to face, but am here alone in the faith, and deprived of the privilege of worshiping God in the sanctuary with my brothers and sisters. I would be truly thankful for that privilege, and also the ordinance of the Lord's supper, which I have had no opportunity of partaking of for the last four years. I wish some of the Elders would come this way and teach the way of life to souls that will surely perish without it. I was thankful to see the names of Brn. Lanphear and Stone in Conference Minutes, as they were the instruments, under God, of leading me into the Church of Christ. I may not know the hardships that some of the Elders' wives endure, but I would entreat them to be faithful to the Lord, and in due time he will crown them with glory and honor and salvation in His Kingdom.

Oftentimes our hands are weary
 Battling with the world and sin,
 But we know, when all is ended,
 Heaven's gates will close us in.

Asking an interest in the prayers of the Saints,
 I remain your sister in Christ,

ELLA M. FUHR.

SOMONAUK, Ills., June 14th.

Dear Friend Frances:—You ask me to write for the "Home Column." I would willingly comply with your request were I capable of giving instruction. There has been much written and the world is full of instruction from able pens, from those having wisdom and understanding, and I can say nothing new, but repeat that which has already been said. As the Scripture saith, "line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little." I feel the need of an education, but am thankful for what I've got which I think is needful, in this confused world, to take me to that better land where the pure language will be restored in all its loveliness and beauty—a second Eden, which I think is not in the far distant future. I feel that I am a stranger and a pilgrim, but to Jesus I will cling; He is my only friend, my hope, my all in this life and the life beyond the grave. I believe it is through much sorrow and affliction we are to triumph. Yes; to be tried as gold in the furnace, that the dross may be consumed. I think I have tasted of the gall of bitterness. I have been sorely tried from my youth to the present time, and it is as written, "afflictions though they seem severe, in mercy oft are sent" for an allwise purpose. Many times in grief and oppression my soul cried out with the psalmist, "Why art thou cast down, O, my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God; for I shall yet praise Him for the help of His countenance." To you my dear friends of the Herald I give the word of consolation as is written. "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you; but rejoice inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy. If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you; on their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified."—1 Peter 4: 12, 13, 14. Dear friends, let us not grow weary in well doing, but continue on, and in due time we shall reap the harvest if we faint not by the way. I am edified in reading the Herald, and I feel more like pressing toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Amen.

AUNT RUTH.

VICTORIA, Ills., June 19th.

Dear Sister Frances:—Feeling my inability to write anything worthy the "Home Column" I have hitherto kept silent, but I feel it would be little short of ingratitude not to attempt to thank you for the words of encouragement and cheer that we look forward to so anxiously each week in the Herald. When I read your words of encouragement to the scattered and lonely ones it strengthens and encourages me to persevere in striving for the faith enjoyed by the saints in the days of our Savior. Do we not have to contend with as much opposition as the disciples did in those days? If I had not possessed abundant testimony of the truth and divinity of this work, I am sure I should not have been able to bear the many trials I have been called to endure through prejudice and unbelief. O that I could tell every living soul the danger of resisting the truth until the adversary gets entire possession of our body. I can not write more at present as my time is limited, and three grand children are romping over the floor—twin boys in their sixth year, with a baby eighteen months old, who were left to my care when baby was two months old, by their parents having to be taken to the insane asylum at Jacksonville; the father only partially controlled by the evil spirits, the mother stricken down suddenly, in a night, to be what the world calls crazy; and when one feels sure in their own mind that could they have had the privilege of calling in the Elders they might have been released from the power of the adversary, it becomes doubly hard to bear. But, praise be to God who gives us the victory if we are faithful, I expect to see them restored yet. Will you add your faith to mine and pray the Father that my faith may be equal to my needs, and that the power of the adversary of souls may be overcome in this family, that the honest in heart may see and understand there is a God of power in this day as well as anciently? Believe me a sincere lover of this latter day work, and one who, notwithstanding her many trials, has abundant cause to love and praise God for his many blessings.

HINTS FOR THE SICK-ROOM.

A SICK-ROOM should be equally as pleasant, and as well ventilated as a sitting-room. The best remedy for nervousness is a quiet spirit. Every patient should exercise patience for his own good, as well as the good of his attendants. Much more is depending on the state of the mind, in regard to the state of the body than people generally suppose. Patients should take their food at regular periods, neither too short nor too long. Too often, gives the digestive organs too much work, and a long time leaves them inactive, and the stomach is liable to be filled with gas. The food should be of such a nature as to counteract the disease, and the preparation accordingly. Imprudence in eating will make the well sick, and it will also counteract the remedies of the best physicians, and even nature itself.

Convalescent patients should exercise all they can without becoming much fatigued, and especially in the open air. If one cannot go out, let a room be well aired from without, and the patient sit and walk in it, having it closed from a draft. Wear suitable clothes for the occasion, and inflate the lungs as much as possible. Make it a practice. Strength like stock in trade gains if used wisely. We will give the readers of the Home Column other hygienic ideas if agreeable.

[They will be very acceptable.—Ed.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., June 7th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I have just been reading our precious "Home Column." I don't know how we got along without it so long. I cannot express the good it has done me. There is another subject that I want to put before its readers, a subject that none of our Sisters have touched on yet. A great deal has been said about the duty of Parents to their children, and especially the duty of the mother. The question that troubles me is, How can a mother perform her duty as a Christian mother when her husband and the father of her children opposes her in every thing that pertains to a Christian life? Ought she to have her children baptized if she may at the proper age, when she has no hope that she will be able to keep them at Sunday School or Church as there is generally some piece of work set for that day; not only work but many other plans such as hunting, playing cards and the like? This subject has caused me, and not only me but a great many sisters that I know, many tears and sad hours. I would be glad if some of our sisters with age and experience, would give us the benefit of their years of experience.

I also want to say a word of comfort to any that may be situated as I have described,

During all my trials God has never forsaken me. If we humble ourselves and ask his assistance he never fails to comfort. It is the only way out of our troubles that I have been able to find.

Your sister in the one hope,

M. A. MATTHEWS.

[If the father is willing that they should be baptized and they have been fully instructed in the principles of life and salvation, and themselves wish to obey the gospel; by all means they should be encouraged to do so and then if through obeying the commands of their earthly father, they are compelled to break the commands of God, the Lord will hold the father accountable for their sins. As proof of which we refer you to Doc. and Cov., page 330, par. 4, which reads: "All children are bound by law to obey their parents; and to influence them to embrace any religious faith, or be baptized, or leave their parents without their consent, is unlawful and unjust. We believe that husbands, parents and masters who exercise control over their wives, children and servants and prevent them from embracing the truth, will have to answer for that sin."

Dear sister, we have unlimited faith in the power of example and prayer. Such circumstances must be very trying, but to all things God has set a limit and the time will come when the prayer of faith ascending to him will be answered. We are to pray in perfect submission to his will, but we know that it is his will that all should repent and come to a knowledge of the truth. Let your whole soul be staid on God and "Trust him where you can not trace him," and if you believe in your soul that he will withhold no good thing from those who walk uprightly, his word is pledged that it shall be unto you "according to your faith."—Ed.]

Correspondence.

MARMATON, Kans., June 27th.

Bro. Blair:—I send you money in this to pay on the Herald; wish I could send more, for I prize it very highly. Hope you will continue it; will try and send more as soon as I can.

I went to Mound Valley, Labette county, Kansas, to attend our district conference last Friday week, but was one week late, which was quite a disappointment, yet I trust it was not in vain; for I met with the Saints on Sunday at 11 o'clock and listened to Bro. Richard Davies preach a funeral discourse. At three p. m. we met in Saints' meeting, which was a pleasant one, in which several bore testimony, and in which I testified to the truth, exhorting them to arouse from their lethargy, and put on the whole armor by giving heed to the teaching of the Bishopric; not only to believe and talk about the law on temporal things, but put it in practice and do the work. I told them I felt that the Holy Spirit had directed me to go there and stir them up by putting them in remembrance of our duty to God. O, Bro. Blair, the Spirit rests on me in such power when I speak on this temporal law. They announced an appointment for me at night, and I had a good audience and good attention; dealt out to them the best I could, both to Saint and sinner, exhorting all to give themselves wholly to God; not quite so much as Jesus asked of the rich young man, but inasmuch as Jesus was only asking at this present time one-tenth of all we possess, and thereafter only one-tenth of the increase annually. What a loving Savior to give us such a holy law by which we can build up the kingdom, that by obeying it the church will soon be as a city set on a hill. Oh, Lord, how long will thy Saints keep back that which is thine! We all teach and profess to believe that the Lord will bless all who love him and keep his commandments. I for one have covenanted to do this, giving my report to Bro. Davies, Bishop's Agent, and will pay the tenth of all, the Lord being my helper; for my heart and soul are in the work, and I desire to honor my Savior with the means he has given me. May the Lord bless us all, and put it into our hearts not only to say but to do his holy will.

L. H. EZZELL.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., June 25th.

Bro. Joseph.—The old ship of Zion still floats, with her banners unfurled to the breeze.

Some ten days ago Elder W. P. Brown, a reputed Whitmerite, who so recently bestowed his attentions upon the Saints at Lamoni, came to this place as he alleged by direction of the Holy Ghost to raise his banner and reclaim the wayward Latter Day Saints to their allegiance to the "Church of Christ." The use of our church was given him for four consecutive nights, beginning with June 21st. It was agreed that there should be a reply to his discourse each night, if the party or parties representing the branch so desired. It would seem that Elder Brown is very courageous in his zeal to propagate his ideas of faith and church polity. He came to the front each of the four nights bold and aggressive, especially so in his onslaught upon the Reorganization. His efforts consisted of a tirade against the Reorganization, bumcombe, a great deal of talk about the Holy Ghost, accusations concerning sinners in our midst, the name of the church, and an attack upon the Doctrine and Covenants, all of which were weak and simple, and not in any way creditable either to himself or to those whom he is supposed to represent.

He was met on each occasion by Bro. Joseph Luff as the representative of the branch. It is no compliment to Bro. Luff's splendid ability to be pitted in forensic encounter against a man so weak as Mr. Brown. But the "powers that be" had so requested, and loyal to the cause we all love he joyfully responded, alike to the pleasure and instruction of all interested. Indeed, Bro. Luff proved himself to be a veritable "Gatling gun," raking Elder Brown's mistakes and errors, scarcely leaving a decent sized grease spot of his pretensions. Many were heard to express sympathy with Mrs. Brown, who was present and witnessed on each of the four evenings the terrible castigation given her husband in so able and masterly a manner. His arguments were met everywhere, and he was simply crushed. The wonder is that he continued for four nights to endure the racks to which he was subjected.

Elder Brown professed to be very spiritual, and assumed himself abundantly qualified to judge in all spiritual affairs. He asserted again and again, that the man who had the Spirit did not need the law [written word] and that the Spirit only was his guide; that if the church had the Holy Ghost there would be no contention, nor any difference of opinion as to doctrine or church policy; that the more of law we had the worse we would be off; that he was led by the Spirit to his present relationship in the church. All this kind of talk and assumption might have had a more grateful reception accorded it any where else than in Independence. The fact is, he has lived here before, and his peculiar kind of spiritual knowledge and experience are simply not in demand in this market. Elder Luff gave to the audience several of Elder Brown's revelations, as testified unto himself by Elder Brown years ago, and as also stated by Brown to many others in this place. One of these spiritual facts (?) was a prophecy or prediction which he made some years ago, that this town (Independence) was to be soon destroyed; and moved by fear of the predicted calamity he removed from this place to another of supposed greater safety. This destruction was to be within two years from the time of its prediction; and after it should come to pass, he (Brown) would return here and assist in building up "the waste places of Zion." This is a fair sample of the evidence presented by Bro. Luff to show Elder Brown's special qualifications in spiritual matters!

No doubt these facts were painful to Elder Brown; for he lacked the moral courage to confess that he was mixed on spiritual things and sometimes deceived. Although fully known by at least twenty competent witnesses, many of whom were present, Elder Brown had the hardihood to deny that he had uttered or stated such predictions. But his mere denial, so overwhelmingly confronted, was of no avail with the audience, who were fully satisfied that as a prophet he had at least been measured by the standard of fact and proved to be false. Very naturally this has caused many to question Elder Brown's veracity—people find it hard to believe that his mistake (?) arises from a bad memory.

The Saints here were strengthened by the issue made, and we could not but rejoice in the Spirit and power of Israel's God, which at times rested in a marked degree upon Bro. Luff. May God bless and preserve Bro. Luff; for indeed he is a master workman, and a most excellent defender of the faith.

THOMAS E. LLOYD.

MANSFIELD VALLEY, Penn.,

June 27th, 1886.

Dear Brother Blair:—The Saints here are still striving to do the will of God. My heart rejoices to read in the Herald the letters of my brethren and sisters. It gives me strength to press onward, for all bear the same testimony to this work. I love to bear my testimony to the truth of this latter day work, for I can say it is God's work. In it I find peace and joy. I desire to ever live faithful to God and keep the commandments he has given. Bro. Jacob Reese has baptized two in this place since I wrote last, and we expect more to follow soon. I long to see a large branch of Saints in this place.

Your sister in the gospel,

LYDIA JONES.

BEATRICE, Neb., March 24th.

Dear Herald:—I love to read the Herald, and I do not know how I could get along without it; for it cheers, comforts, and strengthens me, and I wish the pure in heart every where could be permitted to hear the gospel preached. I am the only one in Mt. Olive school district who belongs to the church of Christ, and Bro. R. M. Elvin is the only Elder that has preached here in the last six years. He preached one sermon the last time but circumstances would not permit him to stay longer. With regret we bade him adieu, for we felt he was needed here. But I hope he will soon return to us. We have lots of preaching here, but to my mind it does not compare with the powerful preaching of Bro. Elvin. To me he is a minister rightly dividing the word of truth, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. I love this latter day work so far as I understand it; but I am aware I need much teaching yet. Dear Saints, pray for me that my faith in the works of righteousness may be strong. Yours in the one faith, ADALINE GRAF.

HELENA, IOWA, June 28th.

Dear Herald:—You are always anxiously looked for, and are a welcome visitor. It seems that $2.50 is a high price, but we would not do without it in the family. It is food to the hungry soul. It is worth double the money. You will find enclosed in this letter a postal note for $2.50 for Herald. It is hard times with us. We have been "hailed out" two years in succession, losing our crops, and it makes money hard for us to get. I am much pleased with the instructions and explanations of the Bishopric in the Herald of June 12th. It is what I have wanted to hear explained by the Bishop. I am determined to try to keep all of God's commandments.

I am hoping and praying that God will give me knowledge and wisdom in his work of these latter days. We only started in this cause about two years ago; we thank God to-day that he ever gave us the true light. We have had some hard trials of faith, and much persecution. By the assisting grace of God we will try to stand for the truth. I ever hope and pray that all of the Saints may take the stand to do the Lord's will let come what may. We can not serve God and Mammon. Yours for the truth,

C. E. HAND.

GLENDALE, Oreg., June 18th.

Dear Herald:—I attended the Oregon Conference held at Crawfordsville. We met in a beautiful grove, the equal of which is seldom found in the east. The best of accommodation was had for those that came from a distance. Our numbers were small when compared with the camp meetings I have seen in the east. We had a pleasant time, and I think the work done will prove of lasting benefit to this fair western land. I traveled one hundred and fifty miles over mountains and through valleys to get there, but can say I am not sorry that I went. There are some noble Saints at Crawfordsville and Sweet Home, whose kindness I hope never to forget. I have seldom enjoyed myself as I did in those meetings.

Our worthy Elder Haws, who is in this mission, is, I think the right man in the right place, and I wish Oregon had more such men. I have not grown weary of this great latter day work. The more I see of it, the firmer my faith is grounded. I am satisfied if I live up to the requirements of the gospel of Christ, my future destiny will be one of endless bliss.

Ever praying for the welfare of God's people, I remain your brother in the gospel of Christ.

WHO ARE THE HEATHEN?

THE popular way to answer the above interrogation is to apply the term heathen, pagan or idolator to all the denizens outside the pale of Christendom. Those fortunate enough to be born in, or move amid the clans, tribes and nations where exists a tacit and passive consent that Jesus is the Christ are graciously styled Christians. In that wholesale manner a difficult problem is seemingly easily solved. In addition to simply believing, devils have trembled, confessed the holy sonship, proclaimed his power, and acknowledged past acquaintance, present authority and the forthcoming judgment. If faith alone will prevent the odium of heathen, and rank its possessor among the Christians, then Mr. D——I will surely come along and demand recognition. Let us imagine an orthodox missionary, all polished and drilled, armed and equipped, endorsed, and transported to the heart of the Celestial Empire where the colossal pagodas glitter in oriental splendor. Their forms of devotion are crowned with the laurels of remote antiquity, and their unity of thought and concurrence of action are made sacred by the memory of sleeping billions and heralded forth and sustained by living millions. What new evangel is this that seeks to assail, undermine and supplant this time honored institution? In Europe and America it is called Christianity! The little brown man has the instinct of the race at large. He would not wish or knowingly do himself any harm, or suffer his would be instructor to abridge his prospects of happiness here or henceforth. As he takes a meditative survey of the past he thinks kindly on the shrines of his ancestry, and hallows the memory of the pale sleepers, in the land of the sun. His keen, almond eyes will not look away from the national altars and domestic deities unless you challenge and secure his admiration. Political economists have said that governments should not be changed, revolutionized or abolished for transient or trivial causes. The desired panacea would be added affliction. That theory that holds good in state will figure largely on the religious barometer of the world. The ardent evangelist confronts the Sublime Buddha with the great Author of nature; but his friendly auditor claims the same Almighty power as revealed in the majestic rivers, or the sparkling streamlet; the hoary forest, or the tiny flower; the alarming tempest, or the merry sunshine; the universe, the solar system, the revolving earth, or the shifting sand. The physical creation, in endless variety, is common property. Seed time and harvest are revolving like an endless chain. Passion and pride, as also death and decay spread throughout the zones and all over the old earth. To refer simply to elementary and physical blessing, and ring out the changes in dame nature would hardly produce a change in any one's theology. To announce that we have a holy book would evidently be met with a similar statement. To proclaim its authority and superiority would solicit and secure an investigation. The glad missionary leads out on the fall of man, and the consequent depravity, the deluge and the confounding of languages prior to the dispersion, Egyptian bondage, the fiery law of Sinai, the justice of God, the atonement of Christ, the present cross and the future glorious crown, and finally, a home in heaven, and an eternity of superlative bliss.

The hearer will concede that the human family is far from being pure, but when, how, or if ever it came about, he is at a loss. A universal flood is acknowledged on account of the finny and shell fossils found on mountain heights, but the story of the ark is not so readily granted.

He beholds mankind all over the globe, with different tongues and languages, but how this come to be is a mystery. He does not need to go back to ancient Egypt for slavery, and the prophetic calling of Moses is, to him an open question. In regard to the justice of God, the divinity of the Messiah, the forgiveness of sins, the redemption of the faithful, and all kindred topics, his little lordship demands plain and positive proof. At this juncture the poor Christian quibbles, begs the question, jumps to conclusions, exhorts to pray, relates a few deathbed scenes, narrates a number of sickly sanctified anecdotes, gets happy, shouts and subsides. "Is this all," says the wondering Mongolian!

With a dignified and pompous air he rallies, and offers on sale the Bible. Thirty-nine articles of faith, Commentary, Prayer books, discipline, liturgies, creeds, pamphlets, tracts, etc. He takes the first on the list, learns from its pages, and gladly discovers that the Lord's people are "baptized by one Spirit into one body," and "that the members should have the same care one for another." How delightful! how soul thrilling! how supernatural! says the heathen Chinese. He continues:—"I revere the sermon on the mount; the golden rule fascinates; the organization is perfect; the doctrine is elevating; the ordinances are purifying; the signs, gifts and blessings are copious; the heavenly canaan looms up in the distance, and the portals stand ajar.

Adversity is a mutual burden, and prosperity exalts the entire fraternity, for "divisions" are not countenanced or tolerated; for "whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honored, all the members rejoice with it." We have a unity of faith, but our church rites are repugnant, deep, dark and all shrouded in mystery.

Those "miracles," and "gifts of healing," and other "pearls of great price," tokens of divine favor, come not in the range of our system. An inspired ministry of living apostles and prophets is foreign to our order of things. Dear sir, I had the good fortune to receive from London, and New York, catalogues of books. I find advertized some works that causes me to wonder; and especially and pre-eminently so when reflecting that these are the centers of commerce, of the arts and sciences; of temporal wealth and spiritual refinement, hence authoritative. What means this history of "The Great Reformation?" and "The History of all Denominations?" And what about those other books you wished to sell me? Well, my pagan friend, to tell you the unvarnished truth, the holy kingdom that was established, owned and blest by Christ the living head, was succeeded and supplanted by the great Romish apostasy. Many hundred years of gross intolerance and blind superstition rolled away before the great light of reform burst upon the European states, and illumined the civilized world.

Catholicism "Is the mother of us all;" but we grew weary of her domination and tyranny, and threw off our allegiance, proclaimed our independence, reconstructed the disordered fragments, maligned "The Mother Church," and denominate our numerous creations "The Great Reformation!" Those organizations that have been the most successful in securing talented clergymen, and in commanding wealth, and in proselyting those of elegant tastes and astute refinement we call the orthodox or evangelical churches. As there are many railroad routes across the American continent, in like manner we have scores of heavenly roads all to suit the convenience and disposition of the sojourner.

We do not wish to be thought narrow-minded, selfish, or at all bigoted; therefore we recognize all standard religions; but, of course, individually prefer our own, as a representative employee. Because of its prestige and ability, my fees, benefits or pay is a periodical certainty; and in addition I have received many valuable presents; and my darling wife and children are great favorites. Our teachers are not called direct, as in olden time, neither are they inspired as formerly; for, dear sir, things have changed. We behold the law of fitness, and give the candidate for holy orders the benefit of the theological seminary. As for miracles, they have subserved their use, and, long since, given away to intellectual development, and the achievements of science. Anointing, praying for, and laying hands on the sick have become obsolete, and the medical fraternity has kindly taken that responsibility from off the shoulders of the eldership. Those "divers kinds of tongues" are readily mastered in the college halls, while lexicons give "the interpretation of tongues." "Now abideth faith, hope, and charity; but the greatest of these is charity."

We will not extend the supposed interview further at this time. We wish to look at the situation and draw some legitimate inferences. The eastern empire has "one faith," and their combined energies flow in one well beaten channel. The nations of the occident have a contrariety of faith, while their efforts are adverse. The poor heathen's creed and belief are in accord with his sacred text books; but those foreign emissaries are at war with one another, the Bible, and common sense. The idolator, in a given section of country, has a standard Deity; but these missionaries have their Gods variously defined. One of the novelties of modern times is to get up a Supreme Being, both bodiless and passionless, whose center is everywhere and circumference nowhere. As to signs following the numerous votaries of sectarian Babylon, they not only disclaim it in toto, but actually claim it is sacrilege, and blasphemy to "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the Saints" by Jesus the Christ. Their organisms, either singly or combined, do not correspond or even approximate a counterfeit when compared to the New Testament Church. When you find two hills without an intervening depression, or when two parallel lines form a right angle, then you may begin to imagine that there is a faint similarity between the orthodox way of adopting aliens, and the scriptural modus operandi. As to "obeying from the heart that form of doctrine," we say instead, "salvation by faith alone is a wholesome doctrine and full of comfort."

These heretical forms of devotion are spreading their influence over the land, like the frogs and lice upon accursed Egypt. His Satanic majesty accepts their prayers as sweet incense, so long as they do not obey the truth. These messengers make the Brahmin two fold more a child of hell than before, like unto themselves. Far better let the tribes of men follow the light of nature, or look up through an idol, than to degrade them with a perverted gospel, and set them to climbing "up some other way." If, as in olden times, "The Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, * * * their own conscience bearing witness," &c., do not, for pity's sake, push them out of the frying pan into the fire. Elijah's cloud, though compared to a man's hand for size, brought rain. Good came out of Nazareth, and who knows but what, under the spirit of all grace, the Latter Day Saints will save the world from downright infidelity, the whirlpool of atheism, or an insatiate hell.

Woe unto you, hireling priests! Woe unto you, blind guides! Woe unto all pious frauds! You call yourselves the harbingers of light, and, forsooth, you are the minions of darkness. You will not enter into the kingdom of God's dear Son, neither will you suffer those that would to obtain the precious boon. You calmly survey the blighted field, and even smile at the general havoc, if so be that the change and good name are forth coming.

Fetichism, or the most depraved and brutish superstition, still survives in central Africa. The Juggernaut is only restrained by the presence of the British lion. The mosques occupy the Zion of David, and the minarets cast their fitful shadows across the ancient retreat of Salem's great King.

The devotees of error still bow down to stocks and stones. Unbridled passion, and deep laid cruelty, stalk abroad in metropolitan courts, and the common avenues of man. When we look at what ought to be done, and see how little has been accomplished, we feel the spirit of regret and the visitation of sadness invade the recesses of the tender heart. When will the tables turn; thy people rejoice, and saving truth go forth? The wonder working God will surely and speedily arise in jealousy, wage fury upon the evil doers, endow his servants with superhuman energy and wisdom, and magnify his glorious holy name in isles afar. In order that the glad era will soon dawn over the mountains, and shine in the deep dells, the Saints of the Most High ought to arise simultaneously.

United faith, profound reverence, unfeigned humility, unreserved piety, praiseworthy sacrifice, judicious living, conscientious and unceasing labor, the co-operation of God, and the omnipotent power of the Holy Ghost will evidently ultimately gain and maintain the ascendancy. Protestantism found its zenith when political freedom and religious toleration were evolved from the family quarrel. Thank heaven no rival sect, in all this modern embroilment, seized the reins of this republic. Their present pride, arrogance, and intolerance demonstrate that might would have been the measure of right if these orthodox (?) churches were not restrained and circumscribed by the constitutional law of the realm.

The Lord is withdrawing his Spirit from them now. The leprosy is spreading over souls, and the gangrene is visible, therefore come out, oh! come out and be ye clean! The fashionable pulpits, the popular press, the various mechanical inventions, the working mens' union, the railroad pools, and all such cliques can not usher in a millenium, or save the world from present disaster, or final perdition. Dear reader; do not procrastinate till the armies of Israel are greatly augmented, but take a fearless stand with the "little flock," and "be a hero in the strife." There is plenty of room for your ardent zeal, and missionary predilection, all in "the narrow way." Peace of mind unknown to the unregenerate, will be like a mighty stream.

Your sphere of usefulness will be enlarged ad infinitum. Let laggards, busybodies, backbiters, chronic fault finders, and jealous persons sow the seeds of discontent; but, as for the faithful in Christ, they will keep their even tenor. And now may the good Lord energize, direct, preserve, and save His is the prayer of

SPIRITUAL GIFTS.

"Now concerning Spiritual Gifts brethren I would not have you ignorant." I presume that there is the same necessity for a knowledge of Spiritual Gifts now, as there was in Paul's days. As we witness all the spiritual manifestations and influences that they had in those days; from divine to satanic, including that of the human, that there is danger of being deceived and suffering loss by false manifestations there is no doubt to the thinking mind. So the more we understand of these powers, or manifestations the better it may prove to be for us.

God in his wisdom has provided a special gift of "discernment of spirits" that may be had by some and especially presidents of branches. But in the absence of this we will offer some thoughts that we have upon this subject. When God bestows the gifts of his spirit, he does so for our benefit, and to suppose that benefit does not follow, is to doubt the wisdom of God. Hence when I witness in church the gifts of prophecy, tongues etc. that does not edify, enlighten, renew, and build up, I put it down in my mind that such manifestation is not of God, though it is by power that will shake the person speaking and thrill the audience. The "thrilling touch" is no evidence of the divinity of such gift. The feeling, or sensation attend the other powers also that produce gifts, so may the feeling of sympathy. But there is accompanying the manifestation of the Holy Ghost, a deep feeling of contrition, and humility that does powerfully yet gently take hold of the deepest sympathies of our spiritual nature, and melts as it were the stern and proud heart.

I believe there are three powers that produce gifts, namely the divine, satanic, and human. This last is the one of which I will now write as I believe it to be much more deceptive in its character than the satanic, as it is always sympathetic and congenial. This may by some be termed satanic as it often proves adverse to that of God. But yet it is as distinct from the satanic as it is from the divine. It has manifested powerfully within the last few hundred years, in some of the churches; through their hand-shaking and circles it was most prominent; prostrating some persons and causing others to act in very unbecoming ways. In their prayers they characterize it thus. "May the spirit run from heart to heart as oil from vessel to vessel." What strange conceptions of the manifestations of God's Spirit, for a person to have who ever read the Holy Scriptures. In what way does oil run from vessel to vessel? One vessel has to be holden over another, (and tipped up a little of course), or some kind of an air pump used. But we as "children of the light" should pray for the "Holy Ghost sent down from God out of heaven;" "the spirit of truth whom the world can not receive," "that will take the things of the father and show them to you." This spirit that "runs from heart to heart" is nothing more than animal magnetism, and is as likely to deceive the Saints as any other people; for they desire and expect the Spirit, and many of them throw themselves wide out to spiritual influences. That this is a real power and in its vibrating sensation much resembles the Spirit of God, no one of experience will deny. And that it also affords a degree of pleasure to those influenced thereby I do not question, but it never reaches higher than a man's head. It does not elevate morally those who are exercised or influenced by it, and will in my judgment, sooner or later bring evil. There are some persons who in church will work themselves up to a melting heat of enthusiasm, then of their own impulses will break out in prophecy or tongues and it be purely human. There is an other class who are always on hand at such meeting whose enthusiasm runs higher than their knowledge: so much so that many go away disgusted, and perhaps some of them were those without who were seeking truth. I believe it would be much better if the presiding officer would at the proper time and place instruct such ones to think more and talk less in meeting. My only reason for this writing is my love for the truth.

BRANCH TROUBLES.

UNDER this heading I desire to suggest a few thoughts that pass through the mind, unrefined as they may appear to the better informed, believing that their superior wisdom will exhibit a degree of leniency towards the writer, as they are not offered to criticise what other wiser pens may have sent broadcast through the Herald. Truth may be presented in attire to suit some, and to others quite different. What is wanted, I think, is a full and complete understanding, and adherence to the gospel "law" given by infinite wisdom for our rule and practice. A branch of the church may be compared to a family—parents and children. If right and proper information in regard to order and true family discipline be had first by the parents, and by them lovingly infused into the minds and hearts of the children, they conducting themselves accordingly, they become a beacon light in that particular. If contrary to this, they are considered deficient and are not only pitied by the wise, but are shunned by society. So with branches. Officers appointed by divine calling to such praiseworthy positions to care for, watch over, and teach the ways of life, must not only possess knowledge and wisdom to instruct, but when reason demands that Christ's law must be honored, bring it to bear upon the willful transgressor, not with a view to retaliate, but with a godly desire to save. If such is not the rule to be guided by, how can we be considered the true representatives of Jesus? Christ seeks to save souls and his servants are expected to do their duty. But if duty is neglected let us become silent in regard to priesthood, or authoritative position, and step down from office and confess that we are not trustworthy.

Brother A. is informed that brother B. has transgressed against him, and upon inquiry he soon discovers that the sin is an intentional one, and at the time he happens to be off his guard, although fully versed in the law.—"If thy brother sin against thee, go and tell him his fault between him and thee alone, and if he hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother; but if he hear thee not, take with thee one or two more, so that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established, and if he hear thee not, then deliver him to the church," (the branch officers). The good Spirit would say "Inasmuch as it wounds you so, go not only for your own benefit, but his, and nip the evil in the bud." Bro. A. concludes to do as impressed, but before an opportunity presents itself old Madam Rumor, ever on the alert, brings brother A. some more of her unsavory meat. A. gets up upon his false dignity, and declares that he will not humiliate himself to visit the offender. "I am as good as he, and will shew him so." The holy Spirit by this time has left for some more peaceful quarters, and brother A. is left to himself and the evil power. In this miserable state of mind he remains nursing hate, poisoning his once saved, undying soul, while the devil smiles and says,—"Now I have got you!" Finally brother A. will attend church services no more until the branch officers bring brother B. to time, and makes a public example of him, by having him confess before all. And to make matters still worse, several of the members have become more or less tainted with the disease, and all through lack of honoring Christ's law. Brother B., mark you, has continued to keep himself posted during all this, himself being perhaps truthfully the originator but in the midst of it all he goes to meeting, sings, prays, takes the sacrament, bears his testimony of the gospel restored and the law given to govern, knowing his own duty as well as the duty of brother A., which brother A. has so foolishly neglected, which reads as follows: "If ye come unto me, [Christ is speaking to the Nephites], or desire to come unto me, and remembereth that thy brother (A.) has aught against thee, go thy way unto thy brother, and first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come unto me with full purpose of heart, and I will receive you." —B. of M., page 447.

I think I hear some good meaning brother saying—"If you, Mr. Scribler, succeed in getting this clause of law to govern us, why, nearly every member will be burdened with going to fault finders, and we will have but little time to attend to duties more important. And indeed, by catering to their whimsical notions, such fault finders will rule the branch in place of those appointed." Hold on, my brother, it is not expected or intended that you shall pander to his views, if they are discovered to be wrong, but rather to show him that he is mistaken, and must, if he wants to do right change his tactics. But if he be found right, why yield to him without a mental reservation. We now see that brothers A. and B. have become injured or wounded, both having broken the gospel ruling by getting up upon their false dignity and losing the Spirit of our loving Master. Each of these two transgressing brothers, mark you, has his sympathisers, "A ites" and "B ites" two parties dividing and tearing asunder a branch of Christ's Church which once bloomed and prospered like the rose, when under God's favor through the keeping of his law.

My inquiring reader by this time is ready to ask, What, in the name of consistency, are the branch officers doing all this time? Are they asleep? Yes; but not in the land of nod, but in the land of "carelessness," and no alarm seems to wake them. But sometimes officers have not been sustained in their duties when trying to perform their duties, and that by a spirit of indifference on the part of other officials. At other times it occurs that some of the Teachers have neglected to inform themselves properly in right branch ruling, and are not prepared to teach in such an important sphere, for they are not in any way adapted to fill it. Other officers are sometimes indifferent to their duties. What is wanted is that true, noble, righteous, independence of character, which will never sacrifice principle for friendship with any in executing branch duties. Then, and not until then will branches become free from Satan's gin traps and spring guns, that he so oft lays to catch and subdue Christ's loved ones.

If a true and lasting impression could only be made upon careless officials by inserting their duties in this article contained in sections 17 and 42, Doc. Cov., I would do so; but let me say to such in the fear of God, Go take the book of Judah, the book of Joseph, and the revelations of God to the church in these days in Doctrine and Covenants, and not only read there your duties, but, better than all, "put them into practice." If not, what in the name of common sense is there of good derived from our testimonies?

We are told that we must bear with the transgressor. Very good; but I ask candidly, Are there not any limits or bounds for thus "bearing?" "No!" says old Merciful, "you must continue, and after you have continued—you must still continue to bear with them and forgive." What a loving old soul! much like the fallen angel, Lucifer, who was so merciful and proposed to save all, law or no law, if the righteous, just, and merciful God would only give his lordship His glory! To these "leave alone the transgressors," let me further say—In order to evade troubles and perplexing difficulties, what if we send over the lines some one bearing the flag of truce, and enter into a compromise with Satan and his army now fighting the cause of right, end the conflict, and have peace proclaimed! Nonsense! This half-way business I hate; for if we are on Satan's side, let us shew it by acts that are noble, or may be called so by him, at any rate. But, if we have enlisted upon King Emanuel's side, let us shew it in deeds to God and angels and the spirits of just men made perfect, that we will not only defend his word, but honor it from the heart by seeing that his law is kept. What is more cheering than that to the soul of one trying to become a good man when he goes to the meetings of a well conducted branch. Thousands can and will bear evidence. The Spirit of the Almighty is not only felt in its saving influence there, but the soul is refreshed and made strong for the conflict before us. While upon the other hand, when members are left to the impulses of erring nature, the law allowed to be trampled upon, why it is equivalent to going to a church made and founded by man, which denies in emphatic terms the ancient gospel working of God's Holy Spirit.

But some good brother will say, "I will stay at home and serve God, for in place of feeling better by going to meeting, I am made to feel worse." To such let me say Battle on, my good brother, although your soul may be wounded, not with carnal weapons—but with the word coupled with the Spirits' power, until every foe is vanquished and Christ's law reigns supreme.

JOHN D. JONES.

REPENTANCE.

THIS second principle of the gospel we deem of vital importance, not only to the Bible reader, but also to those who desire to know and obey the truth. Upon this principle of the gospel rests the whole spiritual structure called the church, and we are forced to the conclusion at once that upon a strict adherence to the demands of genuine repentance, depends the hope of the seeker's acceptance with God. It seems to be the underlying principle of all the sacred writers' teaching. Upon it they hinge the hope of the Saints. He who knew every principle of the kingdom of God sets forth repentance in strong terms, and from that rule no one is privileged to vary. It embraces both restoration and reformation. And under those two heads seem to cluster all that this principle demands of mankind. Restoration is demanded of every one who has obtained anything unlawfully, even to the last copper, if it is in their power to restore. This must be strictly observed, for it would be impossible for any one to have the true spirit of holiness, and retain knowingly one copper that was unlawfully obtained.

If it is not in their power to restore at once, they must do it at the earliest opportunity. Restoration is the act of returning, or making good something a person has been deprived of. See Luke 19:8. Notice carefully how Jesus answers the determination of Zacheus to restore: "Lord if I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, I restore him four fold." Then said Jesus: "This day is salvation come to this house." This prohibited him from retaining one cent in his possession that was not obtained lawfully. This being true in this case, it is true in every case. This part of repentance is so strict that no one can enter "the straight gate" and not observe it.

That which is true of restoration, is equally true of reformation. Hear the counsel of Daniel to the king, Dan 4:27: "Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable unto thee, and break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by shewing mercy to the poor, if it may be a lengthening of thy tranquility." To break off from sin and shew mercy, was a work demanded of the King if he would repent. Notice in connection with this the exhortation of the apostle Paul, to Timothy 2:19; "Nevertheless, the foundation of God is sure, having this seal, the Lord knoweth them that are his. And let every one that nameth the name of Christ, depart from iniquity." Again he says; "Flee youthful lusts, but follow righteousness, faith, charity, peace with them that call on the Lord out of a pure heart. But foolish and unlearned questions avoid; knowing that they do gender strife." He further says, "Shun profane and vain babblings, for they do increase unto ungodliness." Thus we see how those sacred writers laid the foundation, that they who hear may build up the christian hope and a christian character. It was by restoring and reforming, turning away from all manner of sin.

Paul says, 2d Cor. 7:9, "Now I rejoice, not that ye were made sorry, but that ye sorrowed to repentance; for ye were made sorry after a godly manner. For godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation, not to be repented of." Repentance as it is taught in the scripture, comes in direct conflict with the world. This divine rule is almost entirely ignored by the religious sects of to-day. In fact, it would touch that which is dearer to them than their religion, that is—their pocketbook and other property. The law of repentance as is set forth by the Master by these words in Matt. 18:15: "If thy brother offend thee, go and tell him of his fault between thee and him alone." This can not be set aside for the convenience of any one. If one offends his brother, this brother must go to the offender, and tell him his fault alone. But if the one offended does not regard this, the offender must then go to the one he has offended and become reconciled. Matthew 5:23, 24. "Therefore if thou bring thy gift before the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee; leave thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." Thus we see that the work of reconciliation reaches both sides, so that both are left without excuse. One need not think for a moment that he can transgress against a brother and go to his secret chamber and obtain from God a forgiveness of that sin until he has first (as far as in his power), made the wrong right. This is what John meant when he told those wicked sinners to "bring forth fruit meet for repentance;" so we see the necessity of restoration.

CHRISTIAN SABBATH.

HAVING recently delivered a course of lectures in Little Sioux by request, on the question of the Christian Sabbath, and having necessarily given the matter considerable thought, because of its being a question of some importance, and one that ought to be well understood by the membership, and especially by the Elders, I thought a synopsis of the positions taken might be of some benefit to those who have not given the matter much attention.

The first position taken was, that the ten commandments came in a negative form; that is, "Thou shalt not do" &c., and are not, therefore, calculated within themselves to exalt man, but only to condemn in case of transgression—but that there was a higher, or an affirmative law not contained in the ten commandments, had among the fathers, from Abel down, that was exalting in its character. For proof of this the following Scriptures were cited: Deut. 6:5; Lev. 19:18; Matt. 22:36-40. It will be seen that this was not drawn from the ten commandments. Ps. 19:7; Jas. 1:25; Gal. 3:8, 9; Rom. 1:15, 16, 17; Heb. 3:16, 19; 4:1, 2; 1 Cor. 10:1, 4; Rom. 4:9, 14; Heb. 11. So that the law referred to by Christ in Matt. 22:36, 40, is not the first of the ten commandments, but a higher law, to which the law of Moses (which included the ten commandments) was added because of transgression; Gal. 2:15, 16; 3:17, 25; and was only to serve until Christ came.

The second position was: That the Sabbath commandment could not have existed before Moses, because time, previous to his day was reckoned by days, months, and years; that weeks were not known in the keeping of time, and therefore, the idea of a seventh day Sabbath could not have been prevalent.

By referring to the ten commandments as they appear in Deut. 5:45, it will be noticed that there is no reference made to the creation, but the fact that the Lord had delivered Israel from Egypt, was given as the reason why they were commanded to keep the Sabbath. And, as the latter was evidently spoken by Moses after the commandments were written upon stone; while the former as recorded in Ex. 20 were spoken from Mount Sinai before they were written; (I think that the record in Deuteronomy is most likely the correct one); and if so, there is not a shadow of proof that the Sabbath was given before Moses' day. And when we consider that the "Sabbath was made for man," and that prior to Moses' day the vitality of man was such that he did not need to rest every seventh day, we see no good reason for its being given prior to that time.

Third.—That the law given through Moses was given to Israel, and to Israel only. See Ex. 31:13, 18; Ezek. 20:11, 20. That the law of the Sabbath was not intended for Israel, even in a scattered condition, where they would be subject to extreme changes in northern climates; and that it could not be binding in the Christian dispensation as we are commanded to assemble together; (Heb. 10:25); because of travel being restricted to less than one mile on that day. See Webster; also Ex. 35:2, 3; 16:29.

The duration of the law "throughout all your generations," simply meant until the coming of Christ; (Matt. 1st.); at which time the law of circumcision should end; which designated Israel as a "peculiar people," in their generations. The Sabbath law went with it likewise, as they were both equally binding, and were to continue the same length of time. So also was the passover to continue the same time. See Ex. 12:14; 31:16; Gen. 17:9.

Fourth.—That the law through Moses, as a whole, was abrogated in Christ, and would ever have remained so, had not Christ restored a part; and that the part so restored is the only part binding in the Christian dispensation. The objection raised here by Sabbatarians is that the Ten Commandments is no part of the law of Moses, but that they stand pre-eminently higher than what is termed "the law." To refute this fallacy, because I deem it as such, if not a downright quibble, (see Heb. 10:28), which refers directly to four if not five of the ten commandments to which the death penalty was attached, and that too, "without mercy," as there was no chance given for repentance that the offender might be forgiven. See Deut. 17:1, 8. Ex. 35:2; Lev. 24:17; 20:9, 10. That written upon stone is called commandments, laws, and covenant. Ex. 16:26, 28; 34:28.

To prove that what was written upon stone as well as the rest of the law of Moses was done away in Christ, and that too in the fullest sense, when the Savior was nailed to the cross. See Heb. 8:6, 13; 9:1, 4; Gal. 3:1-19; 4; Col. 2:8, 17; 2 Cor. 3:1-16; Heb. 7:19; Acts 15:5, 10, 24; Rom. 10:4.

Fifth.—That Christ taught a Superior law to that contained in the ten commandments; that is, in the sense that it is exalting in its character, instead of being condemnatory. But first to prove that past laws to be binding in the present dispensation, must be renewed. See St. John 7:22, 23. Then by referring to Matt. 22:36, 40; 5; as a whole 19:16, 19; Rom. 13:9, 10, and Matt. 28:18, 20, and other passages that might be referred to, it not only shows what rule of action is intended to make man perfect; but we discover, eight out of the ten commandments restored, and that the first and great commandment—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind," necessarily carries with it the two first commandments in the Decalogue, and therefore leaves but one (the Sabbath) out.

It is quite evident that the Gentiles did not keep the Mosaic Sabbath prior to the days of Christ, and that the Sabbath law, together with circumcision, was that which caused so much enmity between the two nationalities. It would seem therefore, that if the Sabbath had been restored it would have been especially taught to the Gentile branches of the church. But instead, we find no mention made of it in the Scriptures after the Acts of the Apostles, only in Col. 2:16, and it is there spoken of as being nailed to the cross; 14th verse. And seeing that Paul "shunned" not to declare unto the Ephesian brethren (who were Gentiles) "all the council of God;" Acts 20:27; it seems to me conclusive that the Sabbath above referred to was not, and is not now, under the Christian dispensation binding. And also, from the further fact that it can nowhere be found that either Christ or the Apostles taught it as a commandment.

My position on the first day of the week being the Christian Sabbath or rest day, was something similar to that taken by Bro. Bays in his series of articles published in the Herald, that is, taking for texts Heb. 4:10; 7:12; 10:1, connected with Lev. 23, as the types and shadows referred to, which represent the death, resurrection, sacrament, and pentecost.

See St. John 18:28; 19:30, 31; Luke 24:1-9. "Met with his disciples after he arose;" Luke 24: "on first day of week," St. John 20:24, 27. Pentecost when the endowment was given, was on the first day of the week. Acts 2:1, 4; Lev. 23:15, 16, Josephus, old edition, page 452.

These were very important events, all of which happened on the "first day of the week," and speaks volumes for that day as a day of rest, which is the primary meaning of the word Sabbath.

The last, and to my mind the most conclusive evidence was, that it was and is the only day in which the former Saints, or we, could or can commemorate the death and suffering of the Lord Jesus Christ. Acts 20:7; Luke 24:30; 1 Cor. 11:23-26. Shows that Christ when administering the sacrament before his death, did so as near the day of the week on which he arose as it was possible for him to do. And further, that the day should be honored, see Ps. 118:21-24; Rev. 1:9, 10.

We closed by reading extracts from history in Bro. Bays' article in Herald, August numbers, which places the matter beyond doubt. I will say that I was blessed in the effort; had good attendance and attention all the way through.

I think there ought to be a tract published, entering into the above subject in detail, as the country is flooded with books and tracts, setting forth claims for the Jewish Sabbath, and even some of our own brethren do not seem to comprehend the situation.

GOD'S WAYS UNIFORM.

SHOULD the readers of your cheering columns be inclined to regard our silence toward you as indicative of a lack of interest on our part in the divine cause you so nobly advocate, be this misapprehension hereby removed. Passing events, related to the work, bring confirmation of its divinity in such a manner as to intensify our interest in its fortunes, and confirm our faith in its triumph.

We care not to appear in print simply to be seen, nor desire to burden you with words void of benefit to those who take the time to read them.

As the "mustard" plant grows unperceived, so the Lord's "marvelous work" is enlarging in the earth, whether by the world recognized or not. "The kingdom cometh not with observation," but it develops nevertheless. Little was it thought by the religious "wise" of the world, fifty years ago, when God set his hand to re-institute his gospel and kingdom, that the soul of their varied institutions was "in the likeness of the world, and whose substance is that of an idol, which waxeth old and shall perish." But where, to-day, is the leading church tenet of that time that has not been changed in some respect, or entirely abandoned? What are the opinions now of leading minds in relation to Calvinistic predestination, reprobation, and infant condemnation in the future? What of the "perseverance" of the Saints? What of the policy now, of converting sinners by horrid mental pictures of their being eternally tormented, or by death-bed scenes? This latter being german to modern Spiritualism as they picture to the mind the spirit of the good dead relative looking down from the battlements of the beautiful with such intense interest upon you, or drawing near enough to you to influence you in some way—possibly to whisper in your ear—thus aiding you to be religious! But alas! these devices to excite people have about lost their attractiveness to the minds of thinking men. While the street parade, drum, fiddle, banjo and tumble-down-toot-horn device is being adopted as the means of attracting sinners to the place of the "mercy seat."

The leading religious attractions to sinners, with the more refined and orthodox, and the most successful methods of procuring means to convert the heathen, is the "church festival," "post office," "fish pond," or the cake cut into twenty pieces, on which the young man bets the church five dollars to a piece of cake he can get the piece with the gold ring in it. This is all done under religious pretence, but who, or what, is the God of this devotion? It is an easy thing now-a-days for the churches' faith to compass the "charity ball." Religious sustenance and the conversion of the heathen are ends which are supposed to justify such methods of getting means. A leading Michigan divine said recently in a ministers' meeting, that many of the methods now used by the church are dishonest, that the prayers offered in behalf of those methods are dishonest prayers, that they will not be answered, also that eighty per cent of all who come forward in the revival excitements go back into the world and are worse than before they came forward. This was a cool voluntary passage read from his paper. It was not questioned by his brethren in that meeting.

Religious doctrines are constantly changing, and to the extent that, should we avow as our honest convictions what was taught as the gospel in the days of the Wesleys, orthodoxy would say we, if persistent, would be damned. The warp and woof of popular religion is so changed that the world can belong to the church without materially changing either in belief or practice.

Note the following from one of the leading newspapers of our country:—"Increase in church membership does not necessarily show that Christianity is increasing. There have been established during the past few years a large number of organizations, nominally called churches, that have no creed, and which do not require persons to subscribe to cardinal doctrines in order to become members in good standing. There are institutions called churches that almost any person can join. The members of modern churches are seldom disciplined. The qualifications are hardly higher than in the case of a fishing club or debating society. It is no longer necessary to narrate a 'religious experience' or to testify to a 'change of heart' in order to be admitted into most orthodox churches. The social and secret societies are more careful about who they admit to membership than some churches are. Nearly every church presents social and society advantages that many persons desire to avail themselves of, and to thousands of persons the church is the stepping stone to society. Many find the church very useful in a business way. A lawyer, doctor, or dentist may add greatly to his list of patrons by joining a large and influential church. Many traders and artisans are benefited in the same way. What a fashionable church is to a woman who desires to go into society, that the christian association is to a young man who desires to procure a situation. They both offer many advantages, while their requirements and restrictions are very few. In view of these things, it is not wonderful that the membership of these organizations increase every year." Of this membership, the same editor remarks:—"They greatly differ from the early disciples in the extent or quality of their faith, and they can not be relied on to fill up the ranks of martyrs."

"The masses do not attend church," was the subject of discussion at the National Association of local preachers, held at Washington, D. C., not long since, and many supposed reasons why, presented and considered. One reason among others, presented by Mr. C. C. Leigh, was, "It the first place, it is known among them that a mean aristocracy holds control there. That many of self-importance sail into their pews with ribbons and feathers flying, and in silks and furs of the most expensive kind, who at once form a society of their own in which the poor man's family is not wanted. Indeed they look coldly on them, and seldom give them a nod of recognition. Such snobbishness they can not endure, and so they leave the church." Another was: "Nor can any logic you may present convince the mechanics, day laborers and clerks, who constitute the masses, and whose earnings do not average $1 or $1.50 a day for a full week's work, that it is their duty to give of their scanty earnings for the support of a preacher whose salary is from $5 to $10 a day." I cite these passages to enable readers of the Herald to see how the condition of things appears to those both on the inside and out of the institutions referred to, and whose prejudices, if they have any, are favorable to those associations. Their testimony is gratuitous, voluntary.

But this sad state of affairs, as now seen and confessed by these aged investigators and actors in the scene, was foreseen and predicted by the boy Joseph, the Seer, fifty years ago. As we view the rise of so many distinct organizations, under as many separate leaderships, can we fail to see that "they seek not the Lord to establish his righteousness, but every man walketh in his own way, and after the image of his own God (?)." The "substance of the idol" is indicated by the  motive  prompting the devotees as above cited, and its "image" reveals its character,—worldly glory. The question that rushes so forcibly through the mind as it contemplates this peculiar state of things is, Can that be the kingdom of God in reality where this "mean aristocracy" freezes out the poor and repels them from communion?

When the young Seer uttered the language of Doc. Cov. 1: 3, the popular idea was, that the great Reformation would move right along till old apostolic teaching, doctrine and practice would be reached, and all humanisms be banished entirely from the religious realm, and the moral millenium be fully inaugurated. But alas, what a disappointment has come! And the end is not yet. The expression of astonishment from many, as they view the failure of their efforts to accomplish their desires is, "Why is it that our congregations are composed mostly of women?" "Why! the masses do not attend the churches!" "Our dear beliefs are not accomplishing what we expected."

The situation is truly alarming, intensely so to those who know of, and can see nothing better to offer to the perishing ones. A large number of people are separating themselves from the various religious associations, popular and unpopular, in a number of vicinities of our country, particularly in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Texas. By some they are called "Come-Outers," or "Comer-Outs." Their reasons for thus coming out, as assigned by themselves are, there are so many separately existing and differing church organizations, or forms of church government, that they become disgusted with all visible organization, and believe in none but the invisible. That there are so many religious rites and ceremonies that they feel fully justified in rejecting all formal rites and outward ceremonies. And thus attempting to retire from one extreme, they rush on to the opposite one, and justify themselves in so doing by preferring the charge that, organic differences and ceremonious conflict, produce divisions in sentiment and faith, which are contrary in their very nature to the gospel unity prayed for by the Savior, and the result is, enmity, strife, contention, bitterness of feeling, hatred, emulations, and the development of "the works of the flesh," carnality; and the means supposed to propagate the gospel, becomes the agency of its defeat. But in this connection it may be proper to ask: What will be the result of occupying the extreme they choose to stand in, as opposed to the one they have left? To them, law is absolutely useless. Law is a rule of action. They do not propose to act, either organically or ceremonially. No definite, visible line of action can be adopted or pursued by them. All the religious actions they can perform consistently with their assumed position, must necessarily be invisible, hence, mental and emotional. But a standard of action or adjudication is absolutely useless to them, each one must be left to think, believe, and be invisibly devotional in his heart, as each one sees fit. But since no visible religious organization, or ceremony is to be performed, the invisible religious performances must not be allowed to appear visible in their results, at all, and hence the fervency of the heart's prayer must never be heard by the ears of another, nor the melody of the song of the soul. Visible singing, praying or preaching, or visibly congregating together to visibly worship would be just as inconsistent as to visibly baptize, lay on hands or administer the bread and wine. And although such are supposed to be "the light of the world," each one thus separated from all visible organization must resolve himself into "a bushel," and shade his light, and his "profiting appear to" none; no one be constrained by seeing their good works, to glorify God; just desire the needy "to be warmed and fed," but show no outward evidence of it. Such are evidently the results of this latter extreme as compared with the other. This can not do any good; the former, they say, does not! An over abundance of organizations and ceremonies will not, does not bring about the desired results, the occupying of the opposite extreme to this, as we see, will not. Then, what are these extremists of both sides to do? It is said this new movement numbers fifty thousand. Now refer back to their assigned reasons for so coming out of the sects, and after diligently considering those reasons, you will conclude that the amount of testimony to the carnality, corruption and worldiness of sectarianism, is of some weight touching this subject, and is a confession to the truth of the prophecy under consideration.

We would ask the sincere attention of those occupying these opposite extreme positions, to "the golden mean" set forth in the will of God as revealed through Christ, both on the eastern continent and western, as contained in the Bible and the Book of Mormon, in regard to the doctrine, ceremonies, and organization of the church of God. The foundation, or first principles of the doctrine of Christ, as by him revealed are six in number, and by inspiration are called faith, repentance, baptisms, (of water and the Spirit), and of laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. Heb. 6: 1, 2; Gal. 1: 6-9; John 3: 3, 4, 5; 2 John 9. The divine rites or ceremonies, ordained of God relating to his house or church are four, namely, baptism, which, in connection with faith and repentance, is the only gospel law for the remission, to sinners, for sins that are past. The laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, the blessing of little children, administering to the sick, and ordaining ministers, administering the sacrament of the Lord's supper, and washing of feet of, or among, the ministry. See Mark 1: 4; John 20: 19-23; Matt. 28: 19, 20; Acts 2: 37, 38; 10: 48; Acts 8: 14-19; 9: 16-18; 19: 1-6; 20: 26, 27; Acts 13: 1-5; 2 Tim. 1: 6; James 5: 12-18.

The church organized by Christ, in illustration of his Father's will, is thus described by his apostles: "Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." "And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone, in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded for a habitation of God through the Spirit." "And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ; till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ. * * * From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love." "For the body is not one member, but many. If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body? And if the ear shall say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body; * * * but now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him. And if they were all one member, where were the body? * * * Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in partiaular. And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues."—1 Peter 2: 5; Eph. 2: 20, 21; 4: 11-16; 1 Cor. 12: 14-28.

Now if our interest in this infinitely important subject is sufficient to lead us to the scriptural evidences here referred to, and diligently consider them, we will learn the following facts. First: the church described in these scriptures is that promised by Christ in Matt. 16: 18, when he said, "On this rock I will build my church;" and of which he, in all things, is the head, (Eph. 1: 21, 22), and that this church is a grand unity in itself, the "one body," "fitly framed together" of "many members, yet one body." Secondly: some of these members are official, yet all do not have the same office, but receive "gifts differing;" (Rom. 12: 4-6); and yet all are equally necessary to the very existence of the body on earth,—as much so as are the members of the human body to its existence. For as "the eye can not say to the hand, I have no need of thee; nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of thee," so the teacher or elder can not say to the prophet or apostle I have no need of thee. For if the more feeble members are necessary, how much more necessary are those members not so feeble? 1 Cor. 12: 21, 22. As it is the peculiar shape or form of man, and the position of his members in his body, with his endowments, that distinguish him from all other grades of creation, and as it is the perpetuity of this form that perpetuates his distinction from all other creatures, so the peculiar organic form or shape of this "one body," the church, with its peculiarly arranged and endowed official members, contradistinguish it from all other organizations called churches, and it is only by the perpetuity of this organic form, that its distinctiveness as the Church of Christ can be perpetuated. It is an axiom in all science, whether natural, political or religious, that a change in organic form implies a change in the organic law—the constitutional law. Who is prepared, in order to apologize for the many differing forms of church organizations that now exist, to admit that the organic law of the church of the Bible, of which Christ was the embodiment, has changed? If the great law of redemption has changed or been changed in any of its relations to the end designed to be brought about by it, or in any of its incidental effects where it has been submitted to, wherein did its original perfections consist? Please answer, who will. See Mal. 3: 6; Psa. 19: 7; Jas. 1: 25; Acts 10: 34.

Another thing we learn from these scriptures is, that the church organized as here set forth was designed to "grow unto an holy temple in the Lord," and not to disorganize and divide. But then it must abide the law of its creation. The apostle and prophet are found to be necessary just as long as the Elder and Teacher, and no longer. (Eph. 4: 13). Please consider the adverb "till," of this verse," with reference to the continuation of officers, and see if you can determiné how much longer one of the five classes here referred to, is considered to be essential for the duties indicated, than another. Now, from the foregoing considerations, we can not for a moment admit or believe that God designed that as a result of the establishment of the plan of salvation, a multitude of divided, contending sects, with widely differing organizations and contradictory faiths should intrude themselves upon the world of mankind, and say to the very christianity God authorized and established, Get thee hence, cease thou to be, thou art no longer necessary, because no longer needed! The christianity exhibited in the foregoing scripture is, when in the world, visible, hence we can not go to the other extreme and believe that the kingdom of God is altogether an invisibility. However great "the mystery of godliness," it is, nevertheless, manifest, that "a city that is set on a hill can not be hid."

A very inconsiderate, and, as it appears to me, weak objection urged by some against the perpetuity of the New Testament organization as referred to in the passages cited, and therefore against the position of the young latter day seer, is the officers set in the church, (apostles, prophets &c.), are of an extraordinary character, and their duties required them to be extraordinarily endowed with the Holy Ghost, their superior duties being to establish christianity, and when that was accomplished, their especial mission was accomplished, they are no longer needed, and hence, give way to the ordinary officers. Now, in the first place, the idea that the first officers in the church anciently, were set there to establish christianity in any other sense than their successors should is an assumption for which there is no Bible proof. And in the next place, there is no Bible authority for designating these ancient officers extraordinary as contradistinguished from others said to be ordinary, and is but another assumption. Nor must we forget that the authority and offices of the so-called extraordinary officers, are a part of the christianity itself, which Christ established. In order to establish christianity, it is essential to preach the gospel. Their primary, official duty, was to baptize, to minister in the word, doctrine, and ordinances of the gospel, Luke 24:46, 47; Mark 3:13, 14; 2 Tim. 1:6, 7. To officiate in the "ministry of reconciliation" of man to God, in order to his salvation, 2 Cor. 5:18, 19, 20. And from all we can learn from the New Testament, only those are ministers of Christ to whom he gives the ministry and word of reconciliation. God deemed all this essential to man's salvation anciently. How much less than this will save the sinner now! How much less than this does it take to constitute a man a minister of Christ to-day, a minister of the laws of remission of sins that are past.—John 3:5; 20:22, 23. Acts 2:28; 22:12-16. Rom. 6:17.

The gospel—"the power of God unto salvation"—is just as powerful to-day as anciently. It never did, does not now, and will not in time to come, in the very nature of things, come to us "in word only." 1 Thes. 1:5. For it does not consist in word only, but is of power, authority, word, Holy Ghost, and much assurance. The gospel consists no more of "word only," than the "breath of life" consists of oxygen only. The gospel system, like breath, is a compound. An authorized inspired ministry, a perfect law, and the Holy Ghost, (the guiding, assuring Spirit), were the three instrumentalities used of God anciently to convert and save poor sinners. Ps. 51:10-13; 19:7; Matt. 13:18-23; Luke 24:49; Acts 26:16-18; Rom. 10:14; 15. And we conclude that, unless God or the system of salvation originally ordained has changed, he now uses the same agencies and means to convert sinners to him and save them. Has God inaugurated a new will, and nullified the former? or has he restored into actual, living operation the original? It was the refusal of the Jews to believe in the special revelation incidental to the establishment of this will anciently, that blinded them, and not disbelief in the coming of the Messiah. Acts 13:27. Will the like consideration overthrow the Gentiles in this dispensation.

GARDENS.

"THE GARDEN is a source of health in the varied exercise it gives, the pleasant hopeful interest it excites, the fresh air and sunshine we get in it, and, perhaps, in a certain sympathy between the life of man and the life of plants and flowers. Plants purify the air by absorbing carbonic acid, and they enliven it by giving out oxygen. Certain odorous flowers are said to make ozone. Life elements are attracted by the trees and plants. Every pointed leaf is a conductor of electricity. As man was placed in the garden that he might tend to keep it, and live upon its fruits, it is his most healthful and delightful occupation. The healthful and delightful go together. Whatever promotes happiness promotes health, and vice versa. People say 'Be good and you will be happy;' we say, 'Be healthy, and you will be happy'

—be happy and you will be healthy.' Obey the simple, natural law of your being and you will be ooth. Every deviation from health or happiness comes of some wrong doing, our own, or that of our progenitors. It is as simple as two and two makes four. Every effect has its cause."

Conference Minutes.

OREGON.

The above conference convened at Crawfordville, Linn County, Oregon, May 28th, 1886, at two o'clock p. m. Brother C. E. Aldrich, was chosen temporary chairman, and brother A. Haws was chosen president of the conference, and Oliver Hansen secretary. Linn branch reported by C. E. Aldrich is in favorable condition. Elder T. N. Fields, president of Linn Branch, reported in person; had labored as best he could, preached some, administered to the sick with good results; felt strong in the faith; would do the best he could. Elder C. E. Aldrich reported in person. Within the last year or two he had labored as best he could; had preached in company with T. N. Fields; had administered to the sick, and in some cases with good results; had solemnized one marriage; acted as Priest and clerk of Linn Branch. Brother E. C. Dobson reported in person as Teacher; said he belonged to the Lamoni branch; he had done no work in the field; felt strong in the work. Elder A. P. Morris reported in person; had done no work; had not felt able to; would try and do better; his heart was in the work. Brother J. F. Morris, Deacon of Linn Branch reported in person; had done no work being inexperienced; did not know as he could. Elder A. Haws reported in person; had done as best he could; had not been able to do what he would like to have done. There were many calls that he had not been able to fill; was willing to do all that he could, and wished to continue in the field; thought good would result. On motion there be a committee appointed to provide a vehicle for missionary work in this mission, said vehicle shall belong to the Oregon Mission. On motion the president appointed A. P. Morris, C. E. Aldrich, James Butler, Oliver Hansen, and E. C. Dobson, to provide a vehicle and harness for missionary work. Bro. Jasen Butler promised the use of a horse free of charge. On motion brother J. F. Morris was recommended to the bishop as his agent. May 29th, prayer and testimony meeting at nine a. m.; preaching at eleven a. m. by Elder A. Haws. At two p. m. business meeting. A. P. Morris chairman of committee, advises that we purchase a vehicle for about $50, (cost of harness not known). The committee invite the Oregon Saints to meet the above expence. On motion, A. P. Morris will receive funds and purchase above said vehicle and harness. On motion the president of this conference is instructed to investigate the case of brother J. L. Adams. On motion we sustain the authorities of the church in righteousness. At five o'clock, p. m., preaching by Elder C. E. Aldrich, followed by Elder T. N. Fields. May 30th, at nine a. m., prayer and testimony meeting; at eleven a. m. preaching by Elder A. Haws; at two p. m., sacrament meeting; at five p. m., preaching by Elder A. Haws. Adjourned to meet at call of the president of this mission.

SOUTH EASTERN OHIO AND WEST VIRGINIA.

A conference of the above district was held April 24th and 25th, 1886, at Limeric, Ohio. T. J. Beatty in the chair. A. B. Kirkendall clerk. Branch Reports.—Syracuse 48; 2 expelled. Union Grove, Referred back for correction. Morgan, No change. Vinton, 60; 25 added by baptism, 2 expelled, 2 deaths. Milton, (new) 8. Liberty, 72; 9 baptisms, 5 received by letter, 1 expelled. Wayne and Lebanon, no report. Official Reports.—Elder L. R. Devore (baptized 23), J. Moler (baptized 20), Thos. Matthews, D. Thomas, A. B. Ervin, L. W. Torrence, T. J. Beatty (baptized 18), in person. Joel Allen and J. L. Williams, by letter. Priest H. E. Moler, in person. Teacher, R. H. Kirkendall, Joseph Kribel, J. F. Williams, O. Wildman and J. Spann, in person. Whereas, as the Lebanon branch has not reported for some time, and has been repeatedly exhorted to send in a report, Therefore, be it resolved, that if the branch does not report to next conference that it will be disorganized. Resolved, that our decision relative to the Cabin Run branch be deferred until we hear the decision of the missionary in charge. T. J. Beatty re-elected President. A. B. Kirkendall continued Clerk; J. Moler elected vice-president and Thos. Matthews sustained Bishop's Agent. Saturday night, preaching by D. Thomas, assisted by Thomas Matthews. Sunday morning, preaching by Thomas Matthews, assisted by James Moler. Sunday afternoon, testimony and Sacrament meeting in charge of T. J. Beatty. Sunday night, preaching by Thomas Matthews, assisted by L. W. Torrence. Adjourned subject to call of the President, to meet at Vale's Mills, Vinton County, Ohio. Due notice to be given through the Herald.

KENT AND ELGIN.

The conference of the above district convened with the Zone Branch in the Zone Town Hall, June 12th and 13th, 1886, Arthur Leverton president, and R. Coburn clerk. Minutes of last session read and approved. Branch Reports.—Zone 42; 2 Elders, 3 Priests, 2 removed by letter. Petrolia 29; 1 Elder, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon, 1 baptized. Wellington 15; 5 removed by letter. Ridgetown, no changes. Chatham, organized February 21st with 17 members, 1 Elder, 1 Priest, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon. Baddertown 19; 2 Elders, 6 removed by letter. Blenheim 36; 1 Elder, 1 Priest, 2 Teachers, 2 baptized, 1 removed by letter, 1 died, 2 expelled. Elders' Reports.—Arthur Leverton baptized 6, organized 1 branch, ordained Priest, assisted in ordaining 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon, and solemnized 1 marriage. R. C. Evans had baptized 30. Benjamin Blackmore baptized 3. Asa Vickery, Thomas Badder, Charles Badder, N. L. Blakely and R. Coburn reported, also Priests Peter McBrayne, John Taylor, James H. Tyrrell, and Thomas Miller, Teachers William Lively, and E. Coburn, and Deacon Thomas Vince. R. Coburn, Bishop's Agent, reported balance on hand last report, $22.79, received since $133.32, total receipts $156.11. Expended since $101.55. Balance on hand June 11th, 1886, $54.56. Charles Badder and Robert Burr audited the above report and found it correct according to the book of the Bishop's Agent. A communication was presented from the London District stating that they accepted of the boundary as proposed by the Kent and Elgin District, namely, that the counties of Essex, Kent and Lambton constitute the Kent and Elgin District. Samuel Brown and R. Coburn, committee on Howard Branch, were released. Peter McBrayne, William Lively, and Thomas Miller were appointed to ascertain the cost of a lot and building material for a house of worship suitable for the town of Chatham, and to report to the next conference. Arthur Leverton was sustained as district president, and R. Coburn clerk and Bishop's Agent. Preaching by R. C. Evans at 7:30 Saturday evening. After preaching a collection was taken up, amounting to $5.10 of which $3.55 went to pay off the indebtedness on the Lindsley meeting house, and $1.55 to the district clerk to defray his expenses for stationery, postage, &c. Sunday, 9 a. m., prayer and testimony meeting; 10:30 preaching by James H. Tyrrell; 2:30 p. m. preaching by R. C. Evans; 6:30 preaching by Arthur Leverton. After preaching three who had been baptized during the intermission were confirmed, and the sacrament was administered to all the Saints present. Adjourned to meet in the Blenheim Branch on the second Saturday and Sunday (9th and 10th) in October next. We had a splendid conference; the Spirit of the Master being present to bless and strengthen the Saints.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICE.

Wanted, the address of James M. Hughell. When last heard from was at Oakdale, Stanislaus county, California. Lewis Hughell, Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The conference of the Southern Nebraska District will be held in the Palmyra Branch, Otoe county, the 18th of July, commencing at eleven o'clock. As there is a matter of business pending that is of interest to all, I hope we can have a good representation from all the branches. Let as many come as can. Bring the Spirit of the Master in your hearts and the report of the branch in your pocket, and let us have a good conference.

J. B. GOULDSMITH, Dist. Sec.

BORN.

At Davis City, Iowa, June 29th, 1886, to Sister Mattie, wife of Elder Ebenezer Robinson, Sen., a daughter; mother and child doing well. "Children's children are the crown of old men; and the glory of children are their fathers."

MARRIED.

WEABSCRAFT—TANNER.—At the residence of the bride's parents, in Cleveland, Iowa, June 7th, 1886, by Elder John R. Evans, Bro. James H. Weabscraft and Sr. Mary E. Tanner, both of Cleveland.

BATTON—POWELL.—At the residence of the bride's mother, in Cleveland, Iowa, June 24th, 1886, by Elder John R. Evans, Bro. Parley Batton to Sr. Elizabeth Powell, both of Cleveland.

DIED.

REES.—At, or near Krumroy, Ohio, March, 1886, Teacher David Rees, aged sixty-seven. He was from New Tredegar, South Wales, and was a faithful man to the end.

SMITH.—At Copicut, near Fall River, Mass., June 16th, 1886, of old age, sister Maria Smith, aged 84 years. She was interred in Dartmouth Cemetery. Funeral service by Elder John Smith.

WILLIAMS.—Mrs. Anne Williams, of old age, at Malad City, Idaho, April 17th, 1886. Deceased was the widow of the late Thomas Williams. They emigrated to Utah from Cap Coch, Aberdare, Wales, in 1863. Funeral services was conducted at the residence, by Elder John Lewis, on the 19th. Deceased leaves two daughters and two sons all living in Malad.

SALT.

DR. NICHOLS says: "The excessive use of salt causes scurvy, salt rheum, irritation, and inflammation of the venal system; and other disorders too numerous to mention are caused, or aggravated, by salt. Many persons suppose that life cannot be sustained without salt. This is a mistake, as far as adding salt to our food is concerned. Salt is found in combination with our food. One who has not taken salt comes soon to find an egg quite salt enough for his taste. I once had a patient who was afflicted with salt rheum. The skin was covered with white scales, and it cracked and bled in a very distressing manner. I said—take a daily bath and entirely disuse salt. This implied living on Graham bread, fruits and vegetables. In three months her salt rheum was cured. I have had patients with renal irritations, and also inflammation of the bladder and urethra, from the excessive use of salt, which was cured by its disuse. It provokes thirst, and many a drunkard has been made by eating salt, and some cured by disusing it."
