I went to Detroit on the 1st inst., and spent a week with the Saints there, which I do not regard as time lost. I met a warm-hearted people there, and although some trouble has arisen there in the past, it is hoped by the writer that the time is not far distant when unity will prevail throughout the city. I believe the work will yet flourish in Detroit, and many be led to the light of the truth. Bro. E. C. Briggs, assisted by some of the Saints in West Detroit, was successful in getting a hall on Dix avenue, and arousing an interest among the people there that will terminate in a snug little branch, if properly followed up. Bro. W. J. Smith is looking after the necessities of the work there.

I am home for a few days and then expect to return to Detroit, and continue the work in Evergreen branch; hoping that the past may be forgotten, and all unite in mending the net that some of the many good fish that are just outside may be gathered in. I believe the time has now come when this gospel should be taken into the large cities, as well as elsewhere. Brethren, there are some thirteen general appointees in this State. Let us make Michigan hum with old Jerusalem's best news for one year, and see what the outcome will be. For my part I never felt more encouraged than now.

May the good work prosper.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 25.

Editors Herald:—I have preached thirteen discourses on gospel themes to interested congregations at the above place. It was my intention to stay a few days, only long enough to obtain railroad permits, but some of the passenger agents being out of town, I was compelled to stay over. My success so far as baptisms are concerned has not been great; I have baptized but one. There are others convinced that we have the truth, but for various causes have not yet obeyed. Brethren Gillen, Bozarth, Jones, Parsons, Ivor Davies, Short, and others have labored here acceptably, but the hurry and bustle of city life, places of amusements and attractions too numerous to mention, make an elder's work doubly hard, because of the neutralizing and nullifying effects of said attractions. We had a sermon from Bro. Bozarth on the 23d inst., full of points and instructions. He thought wise, considering the interest manifested, that I should stay a few days longer; the congregation voting aye, I agreed to stay over next Sunday.

The Saints are looking for Bro. Charley Jones and are wishing him well and here again. Indeed, Bro. Bozarth says, that twenty-five elders could hardly meet the demands of the district. Bro. Ivor Davies is president of the branch. Bro. W. O. Thomas is doing all his means and age will allow. The great need of the branch here as in other places is a visiting priest; one of tact and ability, as the office and calling demands. Until we have such men I am satisfied the branches will lack the proper representative character they should have. I am glad to see that success is crowning the efforts of the brethren. I think our reports should represent the labors of others as well as our own, that, "both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together." In bonds,

HAYWARD, Cal., May 14.

Editors Herald:—I am a member of the church, and am more than glad that I am, for I can say for a surety, I know the work is of God. I have belonged to the church for over two years and have felt a new man ever since. Although at times when the way seemed dark and clouds overhung the sky, and it seemed as though I should have to turn to the world for relief, God always came to my relief; and more than once I have been in trouble and it seemed as though I should fall by the wayside, only for the life that God had given me through obeying his gospel. Brethren and sisters, whenever the clouds are gathering around you seek the face of the Lord.

A short time before I came into the church I was living in Placerville, this State, and was then engaged in the real estate business, and my wife was and had been a member of the church for a good many years, but I had never heard of the gospel of Jesus Christ and knew nothing of the faith of the Saints. I supposed they were the Mormons, and as I had traveled through Utah some years ago and heard of the Mormons I had a dread of ever meeting one, and I went and got the book called the "Life of John D. Lee, or Mormonism Unveiled," and thought when I had read it I could put my wife to shame. But on the contrary, my business began to go wrong, and everything was going against me, and one day I was coming home and was cursing and swearing at my misfortunes, when I heard a voice say to me, "Why don't you take your troubles to Christ." Well, I stopped, looked around, and my first remark was, "Who in h—l are you," and the voice said to my soul, "The Lord your God." Well, I went home, and went to my room, and began to pray, or try to, when my wife came up, and of course I would not let her see me on my knees, for I had always been very wicked. I could not stand it long, for it burned me like fire, and I soon had to tell her everything.

Then she told me the way to live, and I have tried to live that way ever since.

Dear readers, it was a blessed day for me when I was buried beneath the waters in baptism, and I praise the Lord for showing me the way. Although I am not near a branch, my heart is in the work, and I am more than anxious for the time to come when I shall be called in the field, as I have been promised a number of times. Now I ask all the brethren and sisters for their prayers in my behalf, that I may leave the one evil habit of my life, tobacco, for I know the Lord will give me help, and that when the time comes I may be clean, pure, and acceptable before the Lord.

Your brother in Christ,
EVERETT E. DAVID.

CLAY CENTER, Kan., May 25.

Editors Herald:—I am with the Goshen branch at present writing; came over with the Saints from Blue Rapids conference for a week's work, in company with J. Arthur Davis, on our way to Scandia, Republic county, to hold grove meetings before and over the 3d of June. Bro. J. A. was called by letter from A. H. Smith to return and go to Minneapolis, Minnesota, for the summer. Am sorry to lose him, but I advised him to go, and he left yesterday.

The conference at the Rapids was all that could be expected; the business part passed off in peace and harmony; the preaching was done by Brethren R. W. Davis, J. Arthur Davis, and G. W. Shute, and was pronounced very good. Brn. Arthur Smith, Henry Resch, and S. Andes were recommended for ordination to the eldership, in order to more perfectly care for the local organizations, etc. The district seemed to think they cannot get along yet without the aid of one at least of General Conference appointees, so Bro. R. L. Ware was made the victim to preside over the district of Northwestern Kansas. The reunion for next August was located at Blue Rapids, with great hopes of having the two Josephs, Smith and Luff, with us, to help to crown the effort with success. So brethren, don't say no when the committee asks you.

Since General Conference we have indications that the gathering time begins to dawn on Kansas; for on the 6th inst. the writer baptized a lady near Atchison, and on the same date J. Arthur Davis baptized a young man at Netawaka; and about the same date A. H. Parsons baptized thirteen at Scranton; and about the 13th Bro. G. W. Shute baptized three near Topeka, leaving a good opening. On the 20th the writer baptized two at Blue Rapids, and on the 22d Bro. R. L. Ware baptized a promising man at Morganville, on his way out to Ottawa county with Bro. Henry Resch, who has several that have promised to obey.

RAPID TELEGRAPHIC PROGRESS.

Fifty years ago the first telegraphic line was built. It reached from Baltimore to Washington and was about forty miles long. To-day a single company in the United States operates nearly 800,000 miles of wire. The total length of land wires in the world is estimated at 2,000,000 miles and of submarine cable 150,000 miles. The half-century from Morse to Edison has witnessed wonderful progress, and yet electric science has only begun to demonstrate its possibilities.

NECESSITY FOR UNITY.

Now that the voice of the Good Shepherd is again heard in our midst in admonition, encouragement, and instruction, it becomes us as Saints of God to put away our differences, if any exist, and become united; working together for the good of the whole, remembering that the time is short in which we have to work; and that what we do must be done quickly. It is cheering to realize that God is at the helm; that he ordained this work and allows no monopoly to creep in, but permits each one to stand before him on equal terms in point of privilege, this being the crowning feature of the latter-day work.

There is much taking place around us which is calculated to draw our attention away from the work of God, but let us remember that our first duties are to the Master, and while his servants and handmaids go forth to distant lands to carry the message of salvation, sacrificing home with all its endearments, it becomes our duty to bear them up before the Lord in daily prayer, that God may sustain them by his power in giving them health of body and strength of mind for the arduous work they are called to engage in.

Some of us may feel too small and weak to be of service to the Master, and perhaps look listlessly on. Let such be assured that a Father's loving care extends to the weakest in the flock, like a kind and faithful mother shows a tenderer feeling toward the most helpless of her little ones.

All can do something, let it be ever so little, to aid the work, and when it has ended and victory is won how grateful we shall feel that we were privileged to take a part in that in which God and angels have joined.

Trials we will have in proportion to our faith; and the bitterest ones of all will be those from false brethren. Let us be patient under this ordeal; it is the crucible all must pass through who would receive eternal life as their reward.

All things that are false in the church must work to the surface. As the vital current flowing through the human body gathers up the nutritive particles and deposits them for the building up of the body while the atoms that have become useless are carried to the surface and eliminated from the system, so in the divine economy all who work to tear down the Saints, or injure their influence for good will remove out; they cannot stand in the church of God. Then let us be encouraged; above us beams a sunlit sky, while hope beckons us onward. Outside a dark and threatening sky frowns over a divided and distracted world.

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn." The selfishness of man in this age culminates in his attempt to enslave his fellow man. The heart sickens while contemplating the depth of the "ruin it has wrought." On all this broad earth there remains one fertile spot where the foot of the spoiler cannot intrude, and that is the Church of God. And now that it is moving onward, let us seek to keep step with it, working in harmony with its laws, while waiting the dawn of the rising sun, that we may be able to endure its brightness. E. B. F.

PROMISES AND COMMANDMENTS.

AND whosoever among you are sick, and have not faith to be healed, but believe, shall be nourished with all tenderness with herbs and mild food, and that not by the hand of an enemy. And the elders of the church, two or more, shall be called, and shall pray for, and lay their hands upon them in my name; and if they die, they shall die unto me, and if they live, they shall live unto me.—D. C. 42:12.

The above sentences are so full of the tender mercies of our heavenly Father that they invite our closest and most prayerful consideration. Beautiful indeed are all the promises of God, but to me, the above seems to have reached the utmost heights of tender solicitude, through which the attribute of love and mercy shine like the noonday sun, filling the heart with ever-increasing wonder, love, and blissful administration.

Those who have passed through the trial of sickness with faith undimmed, know how precious the healing ordinance of God appears to them. But the difference between the suffering of those who "have faith to be healed," and those who "have not faith to be healed" lies beyond human power to define. And as the above quotation refers directly and solely to the latter class, to them will its beauty be more apparent. Imagination may picture, but no tongue nor pen can portray the suffering through which those who "have not faith to be healed" must pass.

"Those who have faith to be healed," look forward with hope of deliverance when God's servants shall come: not so with those who lack this precious gift. Hope, that bright luminary of the soul, beckons not; but like its companion, faith—has fled; and the ghoulis forms of doubt and despair revel in wanton sport throughout its benighted realm. Darkness and gloom, enshroud the mind and hold it captive, while unrelenting demons goad it to frenzy with merciless glee. Prayer dies ere it is uttered, and vile anathemas surge like billows o'er the heart, submerging it with grief and shame.

All the errors, mistakes, and follies of the past, in magnified form, pass in endless procession before the gaze; while the false light of human praise in its most alluring guise comes, not to cheer, but to reproach with wasted opportunities, and tantalize with pictures of what "might have been." Every avenue of torture teems with the minions of evil guarding each egress from danger, while mocking and gibing with fiendish delight; till at last, in excruciating agony like our blessed Lord, the tortured soul exclaims: "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

Conscious that by pen-picture I cannot enlighten the average Latter Day Saint on this subject, the above is drawn solely for the sake of contrast. "And whosoever"—any person—"among you are sick, and have not faith to be healed, but believe, shall be nourished with all tenderness with herbs and mild food, and that not by the hand of an enemy." Note the thoughtful care of our heavenly Father in the clause "with all tenderness," in his instructions to nourish "with herbs and mild food." "Ah! he who reads the secrets of the soul knew its needs in this trying hour when erring, impatient humanity is wont to administer "cold comfort," as did the "miserable comforters" of Job.

"With all tenderness," let us dwell on the thought till its sweet cadence thrills the innermost soul and kindles its holy fire there; till the matchless mercy of its author shall fill our hearts with tender yearning; till, by divine assistance, we comprehend its wondrous beauty and drink to the full from its chalice of gold. Now, let us note the dual nature of the instructions here given. Not only are we to nourish with suitable food the unfortunate ones under our care, but likewise we must administer proper food to the mind, and prepare it to receive, if possible, that blessed gift—"faith to be healed."

"Faith is a gift of God," and he alone knows when it is best to withhold or bestow it. And, as he is "more willing to give than we are to receive," may we not safely conclude that at the earliest opportunity he will confer this blessing on the weary sufferer, and grant him sweet release. "With all tenderness" points to a deep, solemn, and sacred obligation devolving upon those who watch by the sufferer's couch; one, I opine, that admits no excuse for negligence, and for which we must answer at the bar of God. How important to our own and others' welfare this instruction is, may be inferred from the clause that follows:—

"And that not by the hand of an enemy."

The above instructions are joined by the conjunction "and," to those of the second sentence, making the latter as binding as the former, and as essential in every respect. "What God has joined let no man put asunder" may apply here with equal propriety and force as elsewhere:—

And the elders of the church, two or more, shall be called, and shall pray for, and lay their hands upon them in my name; and if they die, they shall die unto me, and if they live, they shall live unto me.—D. C. 42:12.

Can we comply with the first sentence and ignore the last one, and then claim that the promise, "If they die, they shall die unto me," will be realized? If so, what meaneth this statement:—

I, the Lord, am bound when ye do what I say, but when ye do not what I say, ye have no promise?—D. C. 81:3.

"No promise!" Then if our loved ones are taken from us, and we have not done as he said, on what rests the hope that "they have" died unto the Lord?

Of all sad words of tongue or pen the saddest are these, "It might have been."

In reference to the elders being called, the same language is used as when the instruction to "nourish" is given, thus intimating at least, that those who were in attendance at the sick bed should "call the elders" for those who were "sick and had not faith to be healed." No, there is no compulsion about this in any sense, for if the patient has been "nourished with all tenderness," his notice has been gently, carefully, and lovingly drawn to the requirements of God and the precious promise attaching to them, thus preparing him to fully comply with the commands of God and hopefully rely on the promise given.

How many, if they were fully assured that all was well with them whether they lived or died, would continue to fret or in any way be worried in mind about the future? They would become resigned and again, in imitation of this Redeemer, would say, "Thy will be done." Frequently, this unrest is the greatest hindrance to recovery, and could the mind be put at ease nature is sufficiently strong to rally against all other troubles; and this very idea seems to be implied in the clause, "And if they live, they shall live unto me." Nothing, it seems to me, more soothing and beneficial to the troubled mind e'er greeted the human mind than the ineffable sweetness of the thought, that whether we live or die, we do so unto God. But let us remember that this blissful assurance is conditional, and that unless we do what he says, we are without promise. In this command it says that the elders "shall pray for and lay their hands upon them; in my name." As no other class of persons has been mentioned, we are driven to the conclusion that the pronoun them refers to those who "have not faith to be healed," and not to the sick in general as it has sometimes been applied.

In further confirmation of this, turn to the next paragraph:—

And again, it shall come to pass, that he that hath faith in me to be healed, and is not appointed unto death, shall be healed; he who hath faith to see shall see; he who hath faith to hear shall hear; the lame who have faith to leap shall leap; and they who have not faith to do these things, but believe in me, have power to become my sons; and inasmuch as they break not my laws, thou shalt bear their infirmities.

When we pause to consider the delicate mercies of God revealed through the ordinance of administering to the sick, we are led to exclaim, "The half was never told." And the thought is irresistibly driven home, that those who suffer the most receive his tenderest care. Shall we emulate his example and remember his commands to "live together in love" and "bear the infirmities of the weak"?

FIRE AND LIFE INSURANCE.

ARE THEY WRONG FROM THE GOSPEL STANDPOINT?

WITHIN the last few years several writers in the Herald have implied that it was, and if they had in mind the many assessment, insurance, and endowment associations which within the last five years have collapsed, their statements were correct.

The writer well remembers being waited upon by several organizers of these associations and was offered a paid office amongst them for his name and influence, but when he asked them to explain the basis of their construction, and how they could pay from one hundred to two hundred per cent on the investment, they invariably admitted that it depended upon the continued payment of its members. His reply was that their eyes would be open to see the fraud, for in these days of close competition in business, legitimate transactions could not be made to pay such enormous profits.

I regret to say that some Saints in this eastern country were caught in this delusive snare with the loss of their investments and came out of the experience with less faith in man, but with a confirmatory evidence of what is said in Ecclesiastes 7: 29:—

God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions.

This was one of the "inventions" of wickedness, gotten up purposely to deceive and defraud; for a few moments examination by any person would have convinced him of the rottenness of the system. In Jeremiah 17: 9, it is said:—

The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked; who can know it?

Some of those who lost their hard earned wages can now testify, as they never could before, how "deceitful" and "desperately wicked" some men can be.

If the members of the church are to heed the call of the Spirit, "to come up higher," and thus help to make Zion the "city set upon a hill," they must be governed in all their transactions by gospel conditions; that is, these conditions must not only enter into our church life, but into our business life, and also our home life. Consider the advice of the Savior:—

For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost.—Luke 14: 28.

The Savior is giving this advice to those who follow him. This admonition of the Savior cautions us to take time to consider the affairs of life both here and hereafter, and if haste is to be avoided in our religious duty, is not the same rule likewise applicable to our business life?

The desire for the possession of immediate riches is one of the blighting and baneful influences of this age, as it has been in the past ages, and many persons, who, Judaslike for a few moments labor could earn thirty pieces of silver, which under ordinary conditions of work would have taken weeks and even months to accomplish, deceive themselves by the momentary gain, oblivious of the fact that they have done it at the cost of their eternal happiness. Well might the apostle say:—

For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows. But thou, O man of God, flee these things; and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness.—1 Tim. 6: 10, 11.

It is not the existence or the possession of money that is an evil, but the love of it to the exclusion of every divine quality within us. The value of money consists not so much in what it is, but in what it will do.

Frequently, transatlantic steamers carry as much as half a million in gold across the water to meet the demands of the business world. If, for instance, the vessel should be wrecked and engulfed in mid-ocean by the fury of the sea, the gold is of no more value than a broken spar (nor even as much) to those who are crying for help from a watery grave; but put this money in circulation and it will cause happiness in thousands of homes, not for what it is, but for what it will do, it being the medium of exchange between people and nations.

The building up of the church of God is to be done by plain business methods; so the expenses of the church, and its missionaries, and their families are to be provided by that medium of exchange which will be accepted by the people, and we call it money. It "is of the earth, earthy," yet we can use it to "lay up treasures in heaven." Though it is of a rusty nature, yet by it we can lay up treasure "where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal;" for the Savior says:—

Make to yourselves friends of the Mammon of unrighteousness.—Luke 16: 9.

That is, take this which so many use unrighteously, pay your righteous debt of tithing to the Lord; and bank an account where it will never "rust," where no "thief" can reach it, and where it will help you for an eternal inheritance. We want to wake up to the advice given by the Lord to the ancients:—

Now therefore, thus saith the Lord of hosts; consider your ways. Ye have sown much, and bring in little; ye eat but ye have not enough; ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink; ye clothe you, but there is none warm; and he that earneth wages, earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes. Thus saith the Lord of hosts; Consider your ways.—Hag. 1: 5-7.

Dear Saints, how many of us have and are putting our money in a "bag with holes," instead of securing that "treasure in heaven" which is an insurance and an assurance for a place in the heavenly kingdom.

The possession of wealth is no bar to the kingdom; it is like many other things that benefit the race of mankind, the evil is in the wrong use; and it is a living fact and truth that the gospel furnishes the golden mean for the proper use of all things that we have and are to have in this life and that which is to come.

Many of the business associations outside the church, which are organized for mutual profit and gain, could be made equally successful if organized within the church; that is, composed of church members, of whom it ought to be expected that business would be done with the strictest probity and honesty, if they only had that confidence in each other which is an element of success in all undertakings, and be organized according to the law of the land, and things made secure according to said law. This is essential, because there will be "wheat and tares" until the time of harvest, and my experience and observation have taught me that a person being a church member is not a sufficient guarantee of trustworthiness and honesty. It is to be deplored that this is so, and it really looks as though we were reaching the time spoken of in Isaiah 13: 12: "I will make a man more precious than fine gold; even a man than the golden wedge of Ophir," and we ought to rejoice and be glad that the gospel offers such grand opportunities for the proper development of manhood and womanhood, and thus establishes the truth of the saying of the apostle:—

Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come.—1 Tim. 4: 8.

Whatever we do should be done with a view to the future as well as the present, this is one of the great lessons of the gospel, for all things come to him who "waiteth patiently;" though while waiting constantly working, keeping the talent at usury for self, for God, for church, for country, for home.

I am selfish enough to believe that I want to be saved, and that I ought to be saved, for I have learned in the gospel that my life is an eternal principle, to enjoy happiness or suffer misery when weighed in the scales of God's adjustment in the coming eternity. How important, therefore, that we strive to understand our duty, and do it willingly and freely, without stint or remorse; for we know in whom we have believed, and that He is able to keep that "treasure" "which we have committed to him until that day!"

Now if a man has a home worth one thousand dollars he feels that if it should burn down it would be to him a serious loss. There may be a mortgage on it which would cripple him still more, for the mortgage would take his portion in case of fire. Being somewhat acquainted with the principle, "in unity there is strength," and believing that this principle is true whether the purpose be good or evil, and from the standpoint of a gospel believer, that the enemy of righteousness is "the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience" (Eph. 2: 2), therefore, it may be reasoned, a person ought to take advantage of the legitimate opportunities of life suggested by the Lord in the revelations to his church, "Let all things be prepared before you," and he insures his property. Where is the sin? Now, if he pays five dollars for insurance and once a year makes an inventory of what he is worth, entering this five dollars in his assets, just as he would a thousand dollars deposited in a bank or invested in railroad stock or cattle or anything else, how can he be defrauding the Lord? It is certainly worth what he paid as premium. The same rule of procedure would hold good in legitimate life insurance; for instance, if a person pay a premium of ten dollars per year, and this that he pays is included in his assets when making an inventory, where can there be any sin or any attempt to defraud the Lord of his portion? I wish all our poor elders' families could have a thousand dollars at the death of husband or father, and thus be lifted above pecuniary want and suffering, and if the wife was a God-fearing woman and had any surplus from this money when she received it, she would be perfectly willing to pay the Lord his due.

Insurance, whether life or fire, is made for pecuniary profit; so are investments in houses, lands, cattle, railroad stocks, mining stocks, bank investments, etc.; but investments in assessment companies which do not pay legitimate returns and all wild-cat schemes are to be avoided.

Any legitimate investment should be encouraged and so long as the church membership does not have any such associations, pray to God for wisdom to direct in these matters, for it is a fact that tithing is paid by increase and not by "burying it in the earth," and the writer hereby testifies that tithing, as revealed in the gospel, is a heavenly principle, and is a blessing to the giver and the receiver. Once in awhile we have seen in the Herald where the home of some poor Saint has been destroyed by fire and no insurance. It is a serious misfortune when such happens, but yet they are a part of our surroundings and conditions, and whenever we can we should make provision against loss.

Last winter the Saints' church in Fall River, Massachusetts, was damaged by fire so that it took about seven hundred dollars to repair upon it, and if it had not been for the insurance which was on the building, the Fall River branch would have been sorely crippled by the disaster, but having observed the advice of the Savior who said, Luke 16: 8, "The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light," they were prepared for the emergency. Herein is the principle of forethought and provision for the future commended by the Savior, and, I believe, without any sin against the law of God, and without the lessening of any person's faith in the power of the Almighty to help in time of need. The forty-sixth Psalm, first verse, says, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble," but it should be remembered that we are required to use the powers that God has given us to avoid trouble as much as possible, and then when we get in an extremity that is God's opportunity, and he will never turn the faithful away empty.

It is said that insurance lessens a person's faith in the Lord. This must be a mistake or a misunderstanding. Why should it? Where is the sin in a man taking precaution against loss? Life is a condition in which misfortune and loss are prime factors, and everything that can be legitimately done to prevent loss should be done whether for time or eternity. So we preach the gospel and try to persuade men to obey it, to prevent loss, both here and hereafter, and God recognizes the gospel method as the best effort to save from loss. The law of tithing being a part of that method it should, therefore, be obeyed. I am aware that many have doubts in relation to it, but permit me to say by the grace of God; that if "baptism for remission of sins" is true, the law of tithing is true; if the "laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost" is true, the law of tithing is true; if "these signs shall follow them that believe," is true, the law of tithing is true; if the "resurrection of the dead" is true, the law of tithing is true; if it is true that "God shall judge all men according to the gospel, for the deeds done in the body," it is true that tithing is a part of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Each principle is a part of the whole, and it is not the whole when a part is left out; so God requires the whole to be observed so far as we are able.

I know when you talk about money people move slow and hesitate, unless they see with the naked eye about "thirty pieces of silver" for one, but it must be remembered that from nothing nothing comes in this as in everything else, and a person to know must observe. It is like any other principle of the gospel; you cannot know until you obey. How can a man know that his sins are forgiven unless he obeys and receives the knowledge by the "gift of the Holy Ghost?" So in tithing; it is its observance that brings a knowledge.

Most of the mistakes in relation to it are made by a failure to properly comprehend its practical application and not in the principle itself, and the history of the past plainly shows us that, like any other principle which God has revealed, it is liable to perversion and abuse. Inasmuch as there are members in the church that should observe the law of tithing and do not, let me assure them that this life is the place and the time to comply with it, here are our chances to lay up "heavenly treasures," and as we are to be judged for "the deeds done in the body," it is while in the body that we must comply with the law of tithing, for we shall be unable to pay it when we have left the body.

The history of the past shows us plainly how futile the efforts of men or nations are to evolve a plan for the equality of the race, notwithstanding the earth, from one end of it to the other, is honeycombed with associations, all desirous of lifting up humanity by their methods; and yet in spite of these, many of them noble efforts, the world is fast going to extreme conditions; extreme wealth upon the one hand, and extreme, abject, and deplorable poverty upon the other. The real picture of this condition of life can be seen daily in any of our large cities, and so the question is asked, "Where, O where, is the remedy?" In observing the advice given by Daniel, the man of God, to the heathen king (Dan. 4: 27), "Break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by shewing mercy to the poor." How can a person "break off his sins by righteousness," unless he obeys the gospel? for in the gospel is "the righteousness of God revealed" (Rom. 1: 17), and by no other method. No wonder the Lord says to his church, "Cry repentance," it's the only way to save the world, it's their only hope, it's their only means of escape from the wrath to come, to confess and change their purpose of life, as said in Daniel 9: 5: "We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments." Latter-day Israel, hear this ancient reproof. If we intend to get "up higher," to ascend the mountain of wisdom, knowledge, and glory to which God is calling his people, let us not reject one principle of the gospel as useless, because all are essential to our success and the building up of the kingdom both temporally and spiritually.

Why should we be afraid to ask our heavenly Father to bless and direct our financial enterprises? He is just as able to do it as he is to direct us in the preaching of the gospel, and we learn that the apostle of our Lord viewed it in this light:—

Go to now, ye that say, to-day or to-morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain. . . . For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that. . . . Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.—James 4: 13-17.

Is this not plain and pointed enough that God's direction should be sought in our business life as well as in our church life, and out of this "gain" that we get pay the small premium that the Lord requires for the means to build up his kingdom, and support the missionary and his family, and help the deserving poor of his people?

This thought is repeated by the Lord in a revelation given to the church, April 11, 1887:—

All are called according to the gifts of God unto them; and to the intent that all may labor together, let him that laboreth in the ministry and him that toyleth in the affairs of the men of business and of work labor together with God for the accomplishment of the work entrusted to all.—D. C. 119: 8.

How does the "man of business" "labor with the minister"? By helping to furnish the "sinews of war," that the legitimate and just debts of the church may be discharged, by the "man of business" paying his tithes. This is God's call to the present church for all to take hold and help in this "hastening time." Shall we heed the cry, and share in the "harvest," and be ready when he shall say, "Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice"?—Ps. 50: 5.

"Then let us lift our heads with joy, and sing his praise;
The fig tree putting forth its buds, bespeaks the latter days."

PASTORAL.

To the Saints in Wisconsin and the Ministry; Greeting.—Never in the history of the work in Wisconsin has the year opened so auspiciously. Opportunities for presenting the gospel seem rife on every hand, with promise of fruitful results. Already good tidings of additions to the church and general prosperity come from different parts of the State.

A few matters of importance are immediately before us. To these, I invite your attention. The request that the Western Wisconsin district be disorganized, and that two districts, a northern and a southern, be organized in the State, has been granted by the General Conference. At the coming district conference at North Freedom, Wisconsin, June 16 and 17, arrangements will be effected for the organization of the new districts. Therefore, let the branches send request of the time when and place where they wish to assemble to effect the organization of the new districts. Such requests may be made by delegates, or otherwise.

The season for tent work is at hand. Very much may be accomplished with it, if we profit by last year's experience and so improve upon the efficient service which the tent has already rendered. To introduce the work in towns and villages with it, necessarily involves some expense. The tent ought also to be seated with camp chairs. To meet these expenses will require about $50. In order to raise money for this purpose the following committee was appointed: Bro. Chas. Perrin, Beetown, Wisconsin, Bro. C. E. Clawson, Excelsior, Wisconsin. Bro. Frank Hackett, North Freedom, Wisconsin. Bro. J. W. Peterson and E. M. Wildermuth, who have charge of the tent work, will spare no effort to make a success with it. Let all the Saints who can, without regard to locality, assist them and the blessed work in which all are equally interested by sending donations to the above-named brethren. Prompt action in this will accomplish good. Further arrangements for the assignment of missionary fields will be made at the conference, June 16. Mail addressed to Fulton, Rock county, Wisconsin, will reach me at any time.

With thankfulness to God, for the spirit of unity and love that has been with us in the past, and praying for a continuance of Divine approval, I subscribe myself, your brother and coworker in the gospel,

W. S. PENDER.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Conference of the St. Louis district will convene at Cheltenham, Missouri, June 30, at ten a. m., continuing over the following day. We trust all within said border will take notice and endeavor to be represented either by delegate or in writing. The new tent purchased by the district will be used on this occasion and a large attendance is anticipated. A number of elders will be present and by an individual effort on the part of each, a very profitable meeting may be had. All officers of the district are requested to report in writing, as it is the intention to get matters in a thoroughly organized condition that the interest aroused may be followed up.

Yours very truly,
JOHN E. DAWSON.

The Northern Michigan district conference will convene at South Boardman, Michigan, (and by request of the president of mission,) June 30, 1894. South Boardman is about sixty miles north of Reed City, on the G. R. & I. R. R. Companies of ten or more getting on at any one station can get one third off on tickets each way. All trains will be met. Saints all (or nearly so) live in town. Several can be accommodated at the hotel who do not wish to bring your baskets with provisions. There will be plenty of room and beds for all who we think may come free. Come, all of the ministers outside of district who can. As usual we expect a large crowd, and a grand, good time.

J. J. CORNISH.

DIED.

AMES.—At San Bernardino, California, April 15, 1894, George Ellis, eldest son of Bro. Ellis and Sr. Ann E. Ames, aged 24 years, 8 months, and 7 days. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church, July 3, 1881, by Elder Joseph F. Burton. During the last part of his sickness he was very patient, and bore his pain and trials with Christian fortitude, but expressed sorrow because he had failed during the enjoyment of health to live up to his privileges in the church, and said if he had his health again he would improve every opportunity to attend the meetings, use his influence and every available and honorable means to convert and bring his youthful companions and friends to a knowledge of the truth. He impressively conversed with the family concerning the church and their duties to themselves and to their God; admonishing to obey all of God's commandments, and be prompt in their attendance at the various meetings, and Sabbath school. He died happy in the Lord, being perfectly reconciled to go. Elder D. L. Harris preached the funeral sermon at the residence of the family; the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West conducting the interment and closing services.

MILLER.—At her home in Petrolia, Ontario, May 4, 1892, Sr. Mary Miller. She was a patient sufferer and gained the respect of all who knew her. Just before she died she had those in the house sing some selections from the Saints' Harp. She also selected hymn 854 to be sung at her grave. She died with a bright hope of coming forth in the first resurrection. Sr. Miller was born in Bruce county, Ontario, November 23, 1867; baptized at Petrolia, Ontario, April 19, 1885, by Elder Simmons; married to Bro. William Miller, December 24, 1889. Funeral conducted by A. Leverton.

SINGLETON.—At her home in El Casco, California, May 22, 1894, Sr. Anna Singleton. She was born in St. Ellens, Lancashire, England, January 3, 1817; baptized in 1850; emigrated to Utah in 1853; became dissatisfied; left Utah for California in March, 1857; was baptized into the Reorganized Church by H. C. Smith, January 26, 1891, and proved a faithful member till death. Buried from Saints' church, San Bernardino, May 24. Sermon by Elder D. L. Harris to a large congregation.

CAMERON. — At Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, April 22, 1894, Archie, son of Christina and the late Archibald Cameron. He was born April 28, 1885. Funeral services by Rev. Warwick.

WINEGAR.—Near Red Oak, Iowa, April 9, 1894, Gertrude May, daughter of Bro. Joseph H. and Sr. Nettie M. Winegar. Little Gertie was born May 16, 1891. Funeral services from the Saints' church in Wheeler in charge of Bro. George Needham.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church refused to sustain the appeal of Dr. Henry P. Smith. The decision of the Ohio synod has been affirmed.

Troops of the Illinois State militia have been required to maintain order at Pana, Minonk, La Salle, Ottawa, Winona, and other points in the State, local authorities being powerless to repress the striking coal miners.

Troops were ordered home from Minonk and other Illinois points on the 29th inst. Much disorder still prevails and threats are made by miners that miners will not be allowed to work nor coal trains allowed to move. Destitution prevails among many of the strikers.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 29. — The Pittsburg coal operators want the miners' strike settled. This was decided at a meeting of all the operators in the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon. The committee of fifteen, which disagreed yesterday, reported and was discharged. A new committee of ten operators was then appointed to arrange with the miners for a settlement at the best terms possible. The committee has full power to act and can agree on any price. The other operators are bound to accept the report of the committee. The action taken to-day is a complete back-down by the operators and is the beginning of the end. The committee will meet to-morrow. If there is any prospect of securing another national conference like the one held at Cleveland it will be called. If not a district conference will be requested. If the miners do not respond to the call for a district conference and agree to go to work at the price offered by the committee the matter of bringing new men into the district will be discussed.

Three telegrams from Illinois operators stating that the prospects for a settlement in the West are bright were read at the meeting. The miners are jubilant and say they will either get their price or a stiff compromise figure.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 29. — The State convention to be held here Thursday between all the Illinois operators and miners' delegates is believed will not result in a settlement unless a general settlement over the United States is effected. National President McBride says he will adhere to the resolution adopted at the national convention to that effect. A warm time is anticipated at Thursday's convention. The officers of the miners say all depends on the action of the Consolidated Coal company. Charles Ridgely, President of the Consolidated, says his company has not decided whether to make any concessions to the strikers. He is now considering whether the company will go into the conference Thursday.

PANA, Ill., May 29.—Three hundred non-union men were at work to-day at the different mines. A local meeting of miners and operators is called for to-morrow. All of the operators here agreed to attend.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., May 26.—The first clash of arms between the striking miners of the Cripple Creek district and the deputy sheriffs occurred this morning. Armed deputies endeavored to capture a position held by the miners, and finally succeeded in driving the strikers back. The affair was a regular battle. Four miners and two deputies were killed, and others wounded. Another battle is expected. Governor Waite has issued a proclamation commanding both sides to disarm and disperse and give way to the entire State militia, estimated at 1,500 men.

ROUSE, Colo., May 28.—One thousand miners, the combined Fremont county and Trinidad forces, marched into this camp to-day. So far there has been no trouble. One hundred and fifty miners are working to-day and express willingness to continue work if offered protection. Twenty Italians attempted to capture a train but were beaten off.

DENVER, Colo., May 28.—William Howells, a Member for Colorado of the National Committee of United Mineworkers, who attended the Columbus meeting, returned to-day. He says there has been a misunderstanding of the whole question among Colorado miners, and they will at once have to go over all the State so as to bring about a settlement as soon as possible or make a basis of settlement.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., May 28.—Sheriff Bowers released Russell, Mason, and Todd, the three miners captured at Wilbur, in pursuance of an agreement made yesterday to save the lives of Supt. McDonald, Fireman Charles Robinson, and Miner Jack Goodhue, who were captured by the strikers at the Strong Mine after the blowing up of the shaft-house.

Governor Jackson of Iowa, ordered out troops on the 29th to preserve order in Mahaska county, who are besieging the Muchakinock and Evans mines.

Soldiers are also guarding mines in West Virginia and Indiana.

DETROIT, Mich., May 28. — After the terrific rain-storm of yesterday afternoon, when tender vegetation of all sorts was beaten into the ground, the mercury began to drop, and before morning had fallen below the freezing point in nearly every part of Michigan Lower Peninsula. Water was frozen to a thickness of an eighth of an inch in many places. Spring wheat is reported to have been seriously injured by being beaten down by a rainfall of three-quarters of an inch and blighted by the heavy frost. Early vegetables and small fruits were undoubtedly seriously injured. There is considerable diversity of opinion as to the harm done to grapes, pears, peaches, apples, and cherries, but as a whole the opinion is that they practically escaped.

NAPERVILLE, Ill., May 28.—A heavy frost fell here last night doing much damage to fruit, corn, and garden truck. Potato vines nearly ready to blossom were almost frozen off to the ground. Much of the corn suffered a similar fate.

LA PORTE, Ind., May 28.—There was a killing frost in this locality last night and much damage was done to the corn, potatoes, and small vegetables. At least 50 per cent of the wheat is in blossom and it is feared much of it has been badly injured.

GRANTSBURG, Wis., May 28.—Heavy frost here last night did a great deal of damage to vegetables and fruits. One of the heaviest crops of blueberry blossoms seen in this country is almost a total failure. Grain was slightly touched, while corn was frozen to the ground.

SAN SALVADOR, May 28.—Antonio Ezeta advanced from Coatepeque with his entire army and attacked the rebel fortified position south of Santa Ana, and after a desperate battle and brilliant charge routed them. The rebels lost over 800 men.

CALCUTTA, May 28.—Disastrous floods have caused considerable damage in the Province of Kulu. The Punjab River became dammed at Charkkupria, by a landslip, forming an immense lake. The dam collapsed, inundating the country below. It is estimated that 200 persons lost their lives.

BERLIN, May 29.—As to the revolutionary plot discovered at St. Petersburg fifty boxes of dynamite and numerous bombs were discovered in the coal bunkers of a steamer. The residence of the Baroness Marikoff was searched and a list of aristocratic lady Nihilists was found. A female medical student, who was one of the suspects, was dragged from her bed by the police and taken towards the police station. She escaped from her captors and jumped into the Neva and was drowned. All the chefs at the Imperial Court have been dismissed, owing to fears that they would attempt to poison the food of the imperial family.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 29.—The great national fête of the United States will be celebrated here in a manner intended to demonstrate the gratitude of the people of Brazil for the support received from the government of the great American Republic during the recent civil war. The public manifestation will consist in a military and naval review and the laying of the cornerstone of a monument which will be surmounted by a statue of President James Monroe, the author of the Monroe doctrine. President Cleveland has been requested to send a United States squadron to Rio de Janeiro to take part in the naval review, and special medals will be presented to President Cleveland and to President Peixoto in commemoration of the triumph of the established government over the revolutionists.

VIENNA, May 29.—The arrival at Karlsburg to-day of one of the men recently tried at Klausenburg for treason was made the occasion for a riot. Troops were summoned and several persons were wounded, two of whom have since died.

Chicago parties have patented a process that will revolutionize the manufacture of butterine, oleomargarine, compound lard and other imitation products of packing houses. It is a combination of mineral and vegetable oils that will prove a bonanza to producers of petroleum. It is claimed that the new product will be cheaper than cottonseed products.

SPOKANE, Wash., May 29.—The river rose three inches last night and is still rising. The Dennis and Bradley bridges have been given up and are expected to go at any moment. They will take with them the Olive street and Washington street bridges. Many houses have been undermined and are settling. The water is now four and one-half feet higher at the new water-works site than was ever known. Work has been abandoned altogether. The Union Pacific bridge still stands, but it is expected to go. The Union Pacific and Great Northern tracks are inundated and traffic has been suspended.

VICTORIA, B. C., May 29.—Appalling waste and destruction are being caused by floods along the Frazer River and its numerous tributaries. Many thousands of acres of fruitful land are covered with water, on which float debris. Costly dikes and expensive bridges have been swept away and hundreds of people are seeking shelter on rafts and on high lands. Loss of life is reported. The flooded district embraces the most extensively cultivated region of the province extending for fifty miles along the banks of the Frazer from New Westminster. It is reported that the great bridge of the Canadian Pacific at Revelstoke is gone and another at Mission City. All crops are ruined.

NAPLES, May 29.—A severe shock of earthquake was felt Monday in the Town of Lagonegro, in the Province of Potenza. The disturbance caused a panic among the inhabitants.

VIENNA, May 26.—The commercial treaty with Russia was submitted to the Austrian and Hungarian Parliaments to-day. It excludes the facilities of frontier trade.

M. Dupuy, has completed the new French cabinet.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 31.—The Senate passed the resolution reported favorably from the Foreign Affairs committee as a substitute for the Hawaiian resolution reported some months ago. It made no reference to annexation and was as follows: "Resolved, by the Senate of the United States, that of right it belongs wholly to the people of Hawaii to establish and maintain their own form of government and domestic policy; that the United States ought not in anyway to interfere therewith, and that interference in the political affairs of these islands by any other government will be regarded as an act unfriendly to the United States."

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., May 31.—The war clouds that hover over Bull Hill and Battle Mountain look threatening to-day. A rumor has reached the camp that the deputies are preparing to advance toward Bull Hill and the miners are preparing to give them a warm reception. There is no truth in the rumor that the miners have a lot of deputies prisoners. The strikers are making prisoners of men whom they consider dangerous to their safety, and it is stated that fifty persons are thus held in custody.

The strikers surrounded the Summit mine to-day, captured three non-union miners, and destroyed the telephone.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., May 31.—A special session of the grand jury has been called and the Cripple Creek cases will at once be taken up. People who live and do business in Cripple Creek are coming to Colorado Springs in large numbers, as they state they no longer dare to remain at their homes.

SALIDA, Colo., May 31.—The storm in this vicinity exceeds anything in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The Rio Grande railroad is blocked by rock-slides, washouts, and damage to bridges.

CANON CITY, Colo., May 31.—The rainfall here exceeded four inches and was the heaviest ever known. Both the Rio Grande and Santa Fé tracks east of here are washed out in places and in others covered with rocks and sand.

PUEBLO, Colo., May 31.—Pueblo was visited last night by the worst flood in its history. Several thousand people were rendered homeless and property was damaged to the amount of $300,000. Four breaks in the levee on the north side and two on the south side have flooded the region between Eighth street and the river on the west in a zigzag course, thence to Fourth and Main, Second and Santa Fé, and everything south of and including First street. On the south side the flooded area extends from West Fourth street bridge through the Rio Grande yards to Union avenue. Practically everything west of Union avenue from the river to C street and all west of Victoria avenue, Stanton & Snyder's additions, is under water.

All houses on Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth streets were filled with water, varying from two feet to ten. The basements of the Opera-House Block, Merchant's Building, Central Block, McCarthy Block, Adee McMinn Block, Frank Pryor's, Gann's, Wilson Block, Chilcotte, Wells Block, and all the smaller buildings in that vicinity were filled with the muddy torrent. At the water works the flood put out the fires under the boilers at midnight and the street lights went out at 12:30, but came on again at two. The basement of the City railway power house is full of water.

SPOKANE, Wash., May 31.—A telegram from Coulee City says the Village of Conconully was swept away yesterday by a flood. Everything went before the advancing wall of water. The disaster was caused by the breaking of a dam above the village. However, only one life is known to have been lost, that of Mrs. Almira Keith. The village was located in a cañon a hundred feet wide and through this narrow channel the flood poured. The property loss is estimated at $150,000.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 31.—The Frazer River is still rising and the indications are that the flood will be even more disastrous than the great flood of 1882. Though the whole valley is under water the tide is crawling up at the rate of an inch every three hours. At Westminster the river wharves are submerged. Many cabins along the water front have floated off on the tide and many poor families have lost all their belongings.

Points further up the river report that the danger increases. At Nicomen Island forty-four fine farms are under water. Though much live-stock has perished only eight human lives are known to have been lost. No further fatalities were reported yesterday. It is a week yesterday since the Canadian Pacific has had a train through to the coast.

Annacis Island, two miles above New Westminster, is submerged. Many fine farms formerly dotted the island. The ranchers were rescued by steamboats, but all their stock has gone down the river. All the river steamers have been commissioned by the government for service in securing the imperiled persons. In the vicinity of Ruby the greatest danger is apparent and several steamers have been dispatched to the district. The marks of the 1882 flood have already been passed at many points.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 31.—The conference of the coal operators of Illinois here to-day was unproductive of results. The conditions under which mining is carried on in Illinois are so widely different that no terms of settlement could be effected. The Illinois mine owners place the whole responsibility for the present trouble upon Ohio operators.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 31.—There is a general understanding among coal operators here that the strike is on the verge of settlement. Negroes and Austrians have been introduced into portions of the coke regions to replace strikers. The militia is prepared to respond to the call should trouble occur.

Trouble still exists at various mining towns in Illinois, Indiana, and West Virginia.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 1.—The Frazer River rose ten inches at Westminster yesterday, and is still rising, though three inches higher than ever before known. From points up the river come reports that the river is nearly two feet higher than has ever been known. Frazer Valley for a hundred miles has been inundated. So great is the destruction that ocean steamers passing in through the straits of San Juan de Fuca are now encountering floating roofs of houses and barns and innumerable carcasses of hogs, sheep, and cattle that have passed out through the Frazer's mouth. It is estimated that over 2,000 families are homeless, and that a property loss of $3,000,000 has been suffered.

Steamers from the rivers and Puget Sound are still being pressed into the work of rescue. One steamer brought 307 settlers from Westminster late last night. Among them was the family of one rancher from near Langley. The man had built a strong raft upon which he took his family and ten blooded horses. They were rescued in mid-stream after being afloat ten hours.

At many points there is great destitution among the settlers who have fled from their homes. At the Salmon River settlement, where the water is ten feet deep on the flats, many families are huddled together on the highlands and living on one scanty meal a day. The rescuing steamers have neglected them to care for others who are in greater danger.

At Hatzic yesterday the steamer Transfer sailed over farms and fences, over the Hatzic bridge and the dyke, and tied up to the rails of the Canadian Pacific track, seven miles from where the river formerly ran. The Transfer rescued the wife of Rancher McDermott from the roof of her floating house. Her husband, who had failed in his efforts to rescue her, was found in a small skiff. Both were nearly crazy.

Both Vancouver and New Westminster are cut off from the outside world. The Canadian Pacific has 1,000 men at work repairing its tracks, but the flood is breaking it faster than they can mend it.

The result of the flood will be to stop all farming operations along the Frazer for this season, and the natural result will be a fearful trade depression in New Westminster and Vancouver.

BOULDER, Colo., June 1.—The pipe factory, five houses, the railroad tracks, and all the city and railroad bridges have been washed away by the flood in Boulder Creek. Poverty Flats is submerged. No lives were lost. The Sunset branch of the Gulf road and the Mountain road are gone.

The towns of Crisman and Salina, mining camps in Boulder Canyon, have been wiped out of existence. They had a population of 200, who are now homeless. Many placer mines are ruined. The loss in and around Boulder is estimated at $500,000. All the crops in the St. Vrain Valley, one of the richest grain regions in the State, have been destroyed by the flood.

The towns of Copper Rock and Sugar Loaf are gone, the Prussian and Corning mills flooded and six of their outbuildings swept down the canyon. Springdale and Jamestown suffered greatly, but no particulars can be had except that the Springdale hotel is in ruins. Several other small towns along the canyon have been partly destroyed, but nothing definite regarding losses can be learned, as communication is cut off.

Idaho Springs, Golden, Colorado Springs, Manitou, Loveland, and Denver, Colorado, and Spokane, Washington, report similar destruction by flood.

BERLIN, June 1.—Dispatches to the Tageblatt from Sofia, Bulgaria, to-day say two battalions of infantry and the entire police force have issued a manifesto in favor of ex-Premier Stambuloff.

A bloody fight has taken place between the insurgent soldiers and police and the loyal troops, during which many were killed on both sides. Several disturbances directed against the Prefects are reported from the provinces, and one of these officials is said to have been killed. On the other hand, it is reported that Prince Ferdinand has received many telegrams thanking him for having dismissed Stambuloff from office.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 1.—The Novoye Vremya publishes a significant article upon the Bulgarian crisis, saying civil war is apparently looming up, and adding that whatever the result of the conflict between ex-Premier Stambuloff and Prince Ferdinand, the condition of affairs created cannot be allowed to continue. The Novoye asserts if the followers of ex-Premier Stambuloff obtain the mastery foreign intervention in Bulgaria is inevitable.

The Hungarian ministry has resigned.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 1.—It is known that in a few days steps will be taken towards establishing an inter-State agreement between the operators and miners of Indiana, Ohio, and the Pittsburg district of Pennsylvania. This means that the original purpose of the strike, in which it is alleged Ohio and Indiana operators were more or less in collusion with the miners, has been temporarily abandoned. The leaders of the miner's organization, it is asserted, say that something must be accomplished as a result of the strike else the United Mineworkers will be in imminent danger of dissolution. So the inter-State agreement between the States named is probable before June 10. President McBride has issued a call for a meeting of the district presidents of the United Mineworkers at Columbus, Tuesday next.

WHY IS IT?

That Hercules Gas and Gasoline Engines are held by the public in so much higher estimation than other engines? The parties using these engines, and their name is legion, are the ones who can best answer this question. They well know the ease and promptness with which these engines are started and the very little care they require to keep them running month after month with the most perfect satisfaction. They run without a spark battery, which is admitted to be unreliable. The simple ignition tubes of the Hercules Engines are far better than other makes at cheap rates we can supply you. We have a number taken in trade and cannot take any more until these are realized on. PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY, 405-407 Sansome street, San Francisco.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Each chapter is headed, each section has its subhead.

The book contains rules for the government of General and District Conferences, Branch Business Meetings, and other assemblies.

Its Parliamentary Rules are based upon the latest and best works of accepted authorities.

The Articles of Association of the Reorganized Church, also the General Conference Rules of Representation, are included. Instructions and rulings concerning General, District, and Branch Records, the holding of Elders' Courts, etc., are also embodied in the work.

VOICE OF WARNING AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL PEOPLE;

OR AN INTRODUCTION TO THE FAITH AND DOCTRINE OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

This work in its graphic review of the prophecies and history of God's dealings with his people in past ages, together with the abundant proofs concerning the work of the latter days, the gathering and restoration of Israel to their ancient home in Palestine, is a book for the times. The author presents the prophetic evidences of the restoration of the gospel in "the dispensation of the fullness of times," showing the evidences in favor of a restoration of primitive Christianity and the organization of the apostolic church with its apostleship and priesthood—its authority—its powers and gifts. This publication has always been a favorite one among inquirers for the truth. 150 pages.

ZION'S RELIGIO-LITERARY SOCIETY PROGRAM.

Senior temperance department; G. H. Gates superintendent.

June, third week.—Instrumental selection.
Hymn by society. Invocation. Quartet.
Recitation, Temperance. (Note a.) Essay, "Temperance education in our public schools." Vocal solo. Roll call. Response: Diseases caused by alcoholic drinks and how induced. (Note b.) Instrumental music.
General discussion: "The best means of suppressing the liquor traffic by legislation."
(Note c.) Recitation. Duet. Critic's report.
(Note d.) Benediction.

NOTE (a).—This should be selected, usually by program committee. (b.) Most school text-books on physiology give a number of such diseases, especially Steele's Hygienic Physiology. (c.) In some societies it might be better to assign this as an essay or paper.
The program committees must decide. (d.)
Criticisms consist in commendation, as much as pointing out errors.

Junior temperance department; Grace
Gardner superintendent.

June, third week.—Hymn 1099, Saints' Harp.
Scripture lesson, Gal. 5: 19-26. (Note a.)
Prayer. Hymn 1103, 1st, 4th, and 5th, Saints'
Harp. Essay, "The saloon, man's enemy."
(Note b.) Recitation, Temperance. Instrumental music or song. Scripture readings by members: (1) Proverbs 3: 1-10; (2) Psalms 1.
Essay, The effects of tobacco on health and morals. (Note b.) Temperance talk by President, ten minutes. (Note c.) Song. Benediction.

NOTE (a).—The Scripture lesson may be read as a response, the president reading one verse and the society the next. (b.) The essays might be followed by general discussions. (c.) This talk could be given by some other person if thought best by the program committee.

Senior literary department; Dora Young,
superintendent.

June, fourth week.—Hymn. Invocation.
Music—instrumental. Address, "Influence of literature." (Note a.) Reading, Emerson's essay, "The poet." (Select a part.) Music—vocal; ladies' trio. Roll call; response from Shakespeare. Paper, "The best way to study a poem." Recitation, "Thanatopsis."—Bryant. Music. Criticisms by society. Business. Benediction.

NOTE (a).—This could be by one not of the society, if desirable.

Junior literary department; Jessie Cave
superintendent.

June, fourth week.—Song. Prayer. Responsive reading, Psalms 23. Song. Essay, "Influence of bad companions." Recitation, "The rainy day." (Note a.) Roll call. Response.
Name an important city of the Bible. (Note b.) Music. (Note c.) General talk: How can we best occupy spare time. (Note d.) Song.
Benediction. Business.

NOTE (a).—If this cannot be procured, select another good poem as a substitute. (b).
This can be made more interesting by locating the city and telling something about it that makes it memorable. (c). Either instrumental or vocal. (d). Try and get all the information possible on the general talk.
Come to the society prepared to tell how you have been benefited by spending a few moments of time in reading or in conversation with a friend. A great variety of ideas can be brought out on this subject, so try to present your best ones.

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE, WITH INTRODUCTION BY ELDER W. W. BLAIR

A book in which is traced the intimate connection between the history of Protestantism and the founding of the Government of the United States with the event of the restored Gospel; interwoven with which is a tender story from a real life, telling of the efforts of one to find the Kingdom of God, its object being to trace God in modern history, and to show that his dealings with men are as clearly discernible now as in ancient times.

UNAMERICAN SPIRIT.

THE foundations of this free republic were set upon man's free moral agency. Labor unions of to-day deny this inalienable right and teach resistance to it to the death. They seek the establishment of a government that will compel each individual workingman to become a member of a union or starve. The position assumed by the striking miners that they will not return to work until it is conceded that nonunion men shall be forever excluded from the mines is no new one, but has been the shibboleth of organized labor for many years. Force is employed to carry out this demand, and men who prefer individual freedom of action to slavery under a walking delegate are beaten into insensibility if not killed outright. Instances of this kind are of recent occurrence in this city and elsewhere.

This spirit was not born in America, but was imported from those countries of Europe where appeal to force is the only recognized arbitrament and where obedience to law is measured by the presence or absence of military. Americans do not take kindly to emasculation of the will, and it is because of this tyranny that native born citizens seek to find employment for their sons where they can be free to exercise their own inclinations undisturbed by blatant agitators. The true American spirit resents satrapy in employer or employé, and American love of justice condemns interference with the rights, privileges, or property of others. It demands that labor shall be absolutely free to accept or reject a given wage price, and that labor, individual or collective, may leave any service that is oppressive or that is ill requited. But it resents trespass upon the rights of others just as strenuously as it insists upon protection for its own rights. The proletariat of the mines is un-American in that it acknowledges the supremacy of an individual leader whose dictum is supreme and unappealable, even though it demand the taking of lives and the destruction of property. The American spirit intelligently grasps the fact that a business to be profitably conducted must be conducted by intelligent managers, independent of unintelligent interference by those who under no circumstances can possibly have knowledge of its financial operations. When labor demands that employers shall relinquish into its hands this undoubted right, then business is assassinated.

Aliens who fail to apprehend these facts are utterly ignorant of the foundations of free government and are unworthy of citizenship. When they invite force by resorting to force they rush into anarchy. When they insist that a man can only work at such prices as others decide for him they create a despotism worse than any that existed in the dark ages. The man ceases to be an independent citizen and becomes a thrall. He no longer loves his country, but lends himself to disorder, riot, and anarchy. —Ex.

EDUCATION STATISTICS.

THE report of the Commissioner of Education for the year ending with June, 1891, tells that the total number of pupils in schools of all grades in the United States at any time in the year was 14,669,069, being 23.09 per cent of the population. The total is swelled to nearly 15,000,000 pupils by the addition of about 300,000 in evening schools, art, industrial, and business schools, and in those for the education of defective classes and Indians. Of the 15,000,000 96.4 per cent were receiving elementary instruction such as is given in primary and grammar schools in the first eight years of school life for the child. Under secondary instruction there were only 2.6 per cent. and under higher instruction 1 per cent. The average number of days that school was kept increased to 135.7 from 130.4 in 1886 and 134.3 in 1890. The average number attending school during the entire session was only 8,329,234, and the average number of days attended by the 13,000,000 enrolled in the public schools was but 87. The aggregate number of teachers is nearly 425,000. This includes 368,791 in the public or common schools, 33.1 per cent of whom are males.

The total expenditure for public schools during the year was $146,800,163, being $17.67 for each pupil attending 135.7 days, and $2.31 per capita for the whole population. Of the income for schools nearly 70 per cent comes out of the local taxes and 19 per cent from State taxes. The total expenditure would be raised to about 175 million dollars if that for private schools be added. The amount expended on the common schools has risen from $1.56 per capita in 1879-'80 to $2.24 in 1889-'90, and $2.31 in 1891. This indicates an effort to secure a longer school term, increased attendance, better schoolhouses, and better paid teachers. The amount expended per capita has increased 49 per cent in these eleven years, the attendance has risen from 19.7 to 20.3 per cent of the population. The average monthly wages has reached $44.89 for male and $36.65 for female teachers. It is noticeable that the increase in expenditures per inhabitant for schools is greatest in the Southern States.—Sel.

The Review of Reviews for June gives the details of the projected "Historical Pilgrimage" which is to be begun at Philadelphia, July 23, 1894. The itinerary will include New York, Hartford, Boston, Salem, the Hudson River, and Trenton, and lectures will be given at the different points by specialists in American history. Attention is also called in this number of the Review to the work being done by Virginia women for the rescue of many of the historic shrines of the Old Dominion.

ABSTRACT of EVIDENCE
TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

This work is an abstract of the sworn testimony of both Plaintiff's and Defendants' witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickites (a faction from the Original Church) for title to and possession of the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri. The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, and who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, and the testimony of members of the Hedrickite organization, is given; also the statements of said witnesses under cross-examination and re-cross-examination.

Evidence from the three standard books, and from the publications of the Original Church, and the Reorganized Church, the Hedrickite faction, and from those of the Utah Church, is presented in support of the claims of the Reorganized Church to be the successor of the Original Church, showing it to be the authorized and identical continuation of said Original Church and entitled to its property, while all other factions have departed from the Original Church in organization, in teaching, and in practice.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, three pamphlets, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

A valuable volume of evidence for ministry and laity; useful in refuting the many misrepresentations of the early church and its ministry and membership.

A limited edition has been published. Price, bound in law sheep (Counsel's argument in separate binding), $3.00.

Bound in cloth $2.50.

TEMPLE LOT SUIT DECISION.

The decision of Judge Philips, of the United States Circuit Court, Western District of Missouri, Kansas City, awarding title and possession of the Temple Lot to the Reorganized Church as the true successor of the original Church of Latter Day Saints organized April 6, 1830, and setting forth the position of the Utah Church and other factions as departures from the true faith, and without right to the name or property of the Original Church.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit or Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Conscious State? The views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death; his preexistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

Book of Doctrine and Covenants Answered and Refuted.

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Paper covers.....$ 25
Cloth..... 40

The author states and answers the leading criticisms made upon the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants that have been urged by opponents of the latter-day work since its inception.

In answering objections, other and general lines of defense are suggested.

The work is valuable, both as a specific vindication of the books named, and as a general defense of Christianity.

The chapters contain subheadings for ready reference. Indexed; 126 pages.

THE SAINTS' HARMONY

is a valuable present. It is bound in two styles, plain and ornamented. The book contains the hymns in the Saints' Harp, also 555 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes.

The chapter of Instructions on CHOIR and ANTHEM MUSIC is of value to all who take part in vocal or instrumental parts of song service.

This collection of sacred hymn and anthem music has been highly commended by competent musicians and choir leaders and teachers.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Each chapter is headed, each section has its subhead. The book contains rules for the government of General and District Conferences, Branch Business Meetings, and other assemblies. Its parliamentary rules are based upon the latest and best works of accepted authorities. The Articles of Association of the Reorganized Church, also the General Conference Rules of Representation are included. Instructions and rulings concerning General, District, and Branch Records, the holding of Elders' Courts, etc., are also embodied in the work. Revised and republished in 1891. A book of 200 pages, cloth bound, exhaustively indexed; price 40 cents.

WHEN IS CHRIST COMING?

WE are asked this question in a good many forms; but have but one answer for all—We do not know.

Of course it may seem to our questioners an easy way to escape difficulty in replying, or to avoid answering altogether to write that we do not know, for is it not our business to be informed in regard to this most important of all the things looked for to happen to the world.

In extenuation of our want of knowledge on the subject "when is Christ coming," we offer:—

1. Referring to the coming of the Son of man with power and great glory Jesus stated to those who anxiously looked for the reestablishment of the kingdom in greatness and grandeur:—

But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only.—Matt. 24: 36.

Mark has the saying in this way:—

But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father.—Mark 13: 32.

Being importuned by some of those coming to his baptism in regard to the restoration of the kingdom, Jesus replied to them:—

It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power.—Acts 1: 7.

2. If anyone should object that the citations given are from the King James' version of the Bible, and may have been modified by later revelation, we reply; that the to us inspired version is even more explicit, if possible, than the King James.

But of that day and hour no one knoweth; no, not the angels of God in heaven, but my Father only.—Matt. 24: 43.

It is the same in Mark 13, and Acts 1: 7 of the Holy Scriptures reiterates what is found in King James' version.

3. From these passages of the word as given to us we conclude that for reasons known to himself, God did not propose to put man in possession of the knowledge of the time, day and hour, when the crowning event of the dispensations should occur.

It is certain however, that Jesus gave some reasons for withholding knowledge of that important event, as is the case with many of the statements made by him. Reading along in the 24th of Matthew,

And what I say unto one, I say unto all men; Watch, therefore, for ye know not at what hour your Lord doth come.

But know this, if the good man of the house had known in what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have suffered his house to have been broken up; but would have been ready. Therefore, be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh.

3. The revelations of our own time are in harmony with the Bible, on the point, as section 49, paragraph 2 will clearly establish:—

But the hour and the day no man knoweth, neither the angels in heaven, nor shall they know until he comes.

From these various texts we conclude that perhaps the most cogent reason why the hour and day of Christ's coming is withheld from the knowledge of man is that God designs that men shall be prepared for that coming, if prepared at all, by righteousness; so that come when he will his coming will not take those who are to be his "at his coming" by surprise, or at a disadvantage, for they will be ready and expectant, occupying the places assigned them as wise servants of a Lord whom they love and do not fear; and whose coming will be productive of joy, satisfaction, peace, and salvation to them.

4. Were men to be informed, specifically, of the time when their earthly career would end by limitation through the expiration of the "set time" for the coming of the "Son of man," the preparation for such coming would be more or less superficial, not perfected through the love of God and for the right because it is right, but induced by fear, just the sort that Christ proposes shall not be available to men.

Let us be contented with the knowledge of the subject that has been given and leave that which the Lord has apparently set his seal upon remain to develop in its time; be prepared for the coming, no matter in what "watch" it may occur.

BRO. F. M. SHEEHY rendered service for the patriotic organizations of Brockton, Massachusetts, on Sunday, May 27. The clipping given below is from the Brockton Enterprise of the 28th ult.:

In the evening the Post, Relief Corps, and Sons of Veterans attended the services of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at Pythian Hall. The attendance was large, and there was a spirited and eloquent address, especially directed to the G. A. R., by Elder F. M. Sheehy. It was an address fairly ringing with good sentiments and lessons of patriotism, and at the close Elder Sheehy was personally approached and heartily thanked by many of the veterans. Considerable applause was accorded him during the address.

NAUVOO, Illinois, of historic fame and interest to all Saints, is now a town of some 1,200 inhabitants, not much larger in its population than Lamoni; yet according to a late number of the Rustler published there, it has a good stock of the material that deadens a town. The Rustler says:—

Nauvoo now has five saloons, and the revenue is $2,500 a year. Some improvements ought to be made with that amount.

This means that five families, at least, receive their support and maintain their bank account off the sale of drink, ale, wine, beer, whisky, etc., which sale is made to their fellow citizens, near and remote. Rating five to the family, there would be two hundred and forty families in the town. This is one saloon to each forty-eight families. Counting one man at the head of each family this would mean that each forty-eight workers was taxed to sustain this system of five saloons to the amount of $500.00, to pay for the license, and the necessary stock of liquors per year, out of which the saloon keeper should maintain his family, keep up his house repairs, or pay his rent if he hired a house, and have a surplus to lay up for a "rainy day," or the usual retiring fund of the thrifty business man. The annual outlay for an ordinary family would be from $500.00 to $1,200 per year; and if to this there be added the sum to be cleared $300 to $1,200, it will foot up something like this: License $500; yearly support $750; net sum for year's earnings; say $500, we have $1,750 as the total taken out of each forty-eight families to support one saloon keeper's family, a yearly tax with which the county, state or nation has nothing to do in assessing or collecting. Each family would thus pay nearly $36.50 per year to the maintenance of the privilege of one man to make an easy living out of the daily earnings of his fellows.

This is not a fancy picture, as anyone can easily determine by a few minutes figuring with a pencil and slate or paper. It is true that the saloon keeper pays the license; but does he pay the sum of $500, yearly, out of his own pocket to his loss, just for the fun of it? Ask him, and he will tell you that he is not doing anything so foolishly unbusinesslike; but that his license is paid by those who drink his liquors; and if he could not make a living at it he would not be in the business.

What is true of Nauvoo is true of any other town where the traffic is permitted. The Saints can just imagine the town of Lamoni, with five saloons in it, each paying $500 to the town treasury out of moneys taken over the bar in nickles and dimes, from the family receipts of each two hundred and forty of its inhabitants.

COST OF HERALD.

THE HERALD is furnishing its readers the following supplements, in addition to its regular matter: The semi-monthly sermon supplements, the General Conference ministry reports, the General Conference minutes, and the Home Column leaflets. The value of these supplements at an ordinary publishing estimate is about $1.00; their moral and spiritual value remains to be estimated by the readers. This places the HERALD in the hands of its subscribers stapled, trimmed, and ready for reading at the very moderate price of but $1.00—with its regular matter. The Board of Publication is certainly issuing the church publication at a low price, as low as anyone could reasonably ask. We trust the Saints will consider and remember these things and cheerfully give the HERALD their hearty, substantial support.

The HERALD is now as cheap in price as any publication similar in size, and much cheaper than many containing no more matter. We solicit the subscription of every family in the church. We request payment of overdue subscriptions. The literary department is of importance to the church in general. Support the HERALD—the church publication.

"TWIN CITIES UNEARTHED."

SEVERAL copies of the following item, published in the regular press dispatches have reached us of late. We hope to hear further from the "archæologists":—

MAPIMI, Mexico, May 25.—The American archæologists, who went to the recently discovered deserted city in the Sierra Madre mountains, have returned and tell of another hidden city five Spanish leagues north of the first city.

The leader of the party, C. W. Pantien of Philadelphia, states that these cities were evidently twin capitals of a wealthy district long before the Aztecs. The two cities are connected by underground passages hewn out of solid rock and it was while exploring one of these passages that the second city was discovered. It lies in a deep basin of the mountains and no exit except the underground passage could be found.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. DAVID CHAMBERS wrote from Persia, Iowa, on the 6th inst:—

The Sabbath school convention, and quarterly conference of the Little Sioux district, held at Moorehead, Iowa, June 1-3, proved to be instructive and encouraging, with large attendance and interest, love and peace reigning in the hearts of nearly all present. The Spirit's presence was manifested in business, preaching, and testimony. Elders W. W. Blair and J. W. Wight were in attendance and their assistance was thankfully received by all. Six were baptized on Sabbath.

Bro. E. A. Blakeslee of Galien, Michigan, June 5.

We had a nice conference at Knox, Indiana, Saturday and Sunday, 2d and 3d. Our district on the whole is coming up.

Bro. J. T. Davis, from Clifton, Kansas, June 5.

Bro. R. W. Davis and I are just through with a week's tent meetings at Scandia, Republic county, Kansas. Attendance good; baptized one young man and found several scattered Saints in the neighborhood. We will likely have a branch there soon. We distributed a good many tracts, and sold two Books of Mormon and one Inspired Translation.

Bro. E. L. Kelley, from Denver, Colorado, May 31, says:—

The Saints are hopeful in the gospel work and Bro. Frank J. Chatburn is on hand and fully sustains his reputation as a gospel minister. So far all went pleased with the appointment. A good word comes also from all whom I have met of the efforts of Bro. J. W. Gillen during the fall and winter. His congregations steadily increased and he was liked as a plain preacher. He not only preached but visited Saints and outsiders and made his work a success. This is the proper place for a missionary in a city, as well as out of it. Bro. Caffall, late missionary in charge, has preached his farewell here since the conference and departed. He is also well liked, as indeed I might say are most of the temporary laborers who have done occasional work.

Bro. J. F. Mintun, Magnolia, Iowa, June 4:—

The quarterly conference just closed was the best I ever attended. It was a feast from first to last. Truly "the Spirit of God like a fire is burning." One young man enlisted in the ministerial service, being ordained an elder. Six persons were baptized.

Bro. S. B. Kibler, Woodbine, Iowa, June 7:—

I see in last Herald the office is needing funds. I am doing all I can to help along. I trust all will do likewise as our publishing house is a power for good, and a little effort by each one of us will greatly facilitate the good work. My faith in the great latter-day work increases with my knowledge of the same. May God bless all efforts put forth in righteousness is my prayer.

The following, from Sr. H. C. Puckett, Lake Park, Washington, May 25, is suggestive. Will Bro. John Davis, or Hiram L. Holt, take notice; and, if possible, visit the place:—

We came to this place three years ago; have tried to do what we could for the cause we love. Our efforts have not been entirely in vain. My husband, J. M. Puckett, is a priest; he has preached every opportunity; has baptized some, will baptize more next Sunday. Several are investigating. We would like to have an elder come; don't know who to write to. Would you please notify our missionary.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

We thank the brethren and sisters who have responded to the HERALD'S invitation to send in items of news of interest to its readers. We regret that we cannot always publish all matter received, but we desire to hear from our correspondents nevertheless. When we cannot publish in full we shall summarize or note the contents of letters, as space permits. Brethren and sisters whose communications do not appear will please bear in mind that we seek to present the best matter we have—that for the greatest good of the body. We shall endeavor always to observe this rule, "without partiality." It will aid us and profit all if our contributors will omit unnecessary details in narrative and statement. One can say a great deal in few words if he will, or use many words and say but little. Let us have the news, and boil it down to concentration, so far as can be done without injustice to the facts related.

Obituary notices should be written upon separate sheets of paper from letters and book orders. When the death of a person is referred to in a letter it is not always understood to be a death notice requiring insertion.

Bro. H. N. Snively, of Lamoni, reports interesting meetings at the Anstey schoolhouse, Grand River township, on last Sunday, also the organization of a Sunday school with promise of success. The Methodist minister had attempted an organization on the previous Sunday, but failed. It is the intention to hold preaching services there every two weeks.

"Seven were baptized to-day," writes Bro. N. N. Cooke, of St. Louis, the 3d inst.

We are indebted to Congressman W. P. Hepburn of the Eighth Iowa district for department reports and other public documents.

Bro. Cornish reports six more baptized at Gilmore, three on the 3d and three on the 4th of June, making eight at that point since the debate. Rev. Rogers is to meet Bro. J. A. Carpenter during June.

The Dow City, Iowa, Enterprise of the 1st inst. makes friendly announcement of the missionary efforts of Bro. J. W. Wight.

Bro. John Hawley wrote from Oscar, Indian Territory, June 1, where he stopped to do labor while en route to Texas, his field.

Bro. Morris T. Short has got into a queer sort of three cornered fight in which W. J. Howe of the Christian, Dr. H. A. Tucker of the Methodist, and himself form the extreme ends of the triangle, all about the subject of baptism, immersion, sprinkling, pouring, which? And is it necessary? We wish Bro. Short well in his effort; he certainly attacks manfully.

Bro. J. C. Foss secured insertion of a half column statement of the faith in the Rockland, Maine, Star of May 31. It was written by request of the editor. Good.

Bro. J. R. Wedlock, lately removed to Riverdale, Missouri, began a missionary campaign in his own house and has since secured the local school-house, where he has received good attention while dispensing the word. The people hear and read and are pleased, and Bro. Wedlock is hopeful for good results. In these days when so much religious conjecture is afloat in the atmosphere of churches, the truth should shine in clearness to the masses. The honest in heart will see it, too, when plainly presented.

Letters from Brn. R. Etzenhouser, M. T. Short, C. E. Butterworth, Peter Anderson of Denmark, and others, crowded out this week, will appear in next issue as space permits.

Sr. L. E. Carpenter writes of work done by Bro. Levi Phelps at Durand, Michigan, in answer to her request through the HERALD, the result being an interest awakened with a prospect for permanent good to the cause.

Bro. D. C. White writes of arrangements for a discussion between Elder J. B. Briney of the Christian Church and Bro. Leonard Scott to be held at Lowry City, Missouri, in September or October. Bro. White's letter will appear next week.

The Woodland, New South Wales, Star, of January 10, published a two column article written by Bro. J. W. Wight in reply to attacks upon the faith and references to the personal belief of Bro. Wight. The latter cleared the atmosphere from the dust blown in the eyes of the Star readers, and refuted his opponent in good form before sailing for America. Bro. Wight did considerable good work with the pen while in Australia.

Bro. Henry Resch has baptized six more near Minneapolis, Kansas, thirteen baptized by him of late. This we learn by letter from Bro. R. L. Ware, dated June 5. The latter was on his way to Mitchell county where he expected to preach and baptize.

Attention is called to the change of address of Bro. Thomas Taylor to No. 2 Sun street, Bristol Road, Birmingham, England.

COLORADO'S GOLD PRODUCT.

The receipts of the Denver mint for the present month will be some 200 per cent larger than those for March, 1893, the figures up to Friday being $320,187.26. For the corresponding month last year they were $111,532.12. The value of the gold bullion received for the first three months of this year is $730,926.11; for the corresponding three months of 1893 it was $282,857.22, the increase being $448,068.89. This shows in the most practical manner possible what the response of Colorado has been to the increased demand for gold produced by the successful war against silver.—Denver Times.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great
To suffer our slow compassion
That carries until too late;
And it is 'nt the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone
Which gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun."

UNDONE.

SISTERS, do the words above touch any of your hearts with a feeling of regret as they remind you of some neglected duty? We are wondering as we write, for we know assuredly that in many cases these words must apply.

We recall many names of those who in the past encouraged us and from whose pens (able and ready) we expected so much. But time has slipped away until days, weeks, and months have passed and still the looked for messages (and in some cases the promised ones) come not.

Sit down to-night as the shades of evening come and the twilight closes you in and ask yourself the question, "What am I doing by word or pen, by example or precept to help the struggling ones of earth? It is the day of battle and all around me are the wounded and the dying. What an opportunity for giving the 'cup of cold water' which shall in no wise lose its reward. Have I left it undone?" If your heart responds that you have, then awake from your lethargy of indifference to the need of action. Don't tarry until it is too late, lest the ghost of lost opportunities sit beside you when the evening of life steals on apace and your heart aches as memory points out the times and places when you have deferred to the future hour the duty which called loudly for immediate attention. Have you thought that some who have heretofore lost no opportunity of dropping a word of cheer or encouragement may possibly be weary themselves and needing your help? Ah, there are so many needing it, that it will be well to remember to do with thy might whatsoever thy hand findeth to do.

[THE following dream should have appeared last week, but was omitted by mistake. Bro. Cooper has the earnest sympathy of all the Saints acquainted with him.—Ed.]

LAMONI, May 24, 1894.

Sister Walker:—I feel deeply impressed from a dream I had years ago, and others lately, to ask the faith and prayers of the Prayer Union in my behalf in my distressed condition, being entirely helpless for over a year from an injury to the spine received by accident.

Over twenty years ago while in the East I dreamed that I was on a great plain, and in the distance I saw a dust rising. After watching it closely for a time I saw that the dust was raised by a great dragon that was traveling with great speed across the plain, directing his course toward me. In the opposite direction from the beast I saw a large white house and I ran to it for safety. As I entered the door of the first room the dragon also arrived and smote the room and it fell in ruins around me. I then sprang through a door into another room, which the dragon as quickly demolished as the first. I then sprang through a door into another room but with no better success, and so with terror I fled from room to room in the building (which seemed to be constructed in the form of a circle with one room in the center) until all the outer rooms had been entered and crumbled around me. With consternation I beheld the central and last room standing alone, which I entered to escape the fury of the dragon, but he followed me not there, neither was the room molested. The most profound peace reigned within its walls, and in the center of the room on a raised platform was a beautiful woman kneeling in the attitude of prayer with her hands clasped and her eyes toward heaven, and upon her forehead was stamped in beautiful letters the word and the room was filled around her "Prayer," with beautiful little children, all kneeling, their little hands clasped and their eyes turned upward as in solemn devotion. I stood as it were transfixed at the door I had entered, filled with wonder, peace, and admiration.

I would like to have the interpretation of the above.

I. N. W. COOPER.

PAICINES, California, May 5.

Dear Sisters:—I have just finished reading the address of Bro. J. F. Burton in the interest of the Daughters of Zion. It made tears of joy and gladness fill my eyes. I am so glad that God in his mercy is opening the way for woman that she may take the place which I believe God has always meant for her to fill. The Daughters of Zion have met many discouragements from all sides, but when they receive such encouraging words as those from Bro. Burton and other elders it gives them new courage to press on in the good work. O I think it is a grand, a glorious work. I cannot express my thoughts on this subject; my heart is full, but I cannot write it down. It makes me sad when I think that I am of so little use to anyone even in my home. I can do so little. I am sorely afflicted. My trouble is rheumatism in my hands, shoulders, and ankles; and neuralgia of the heart. My spine is also badly affected. I ask an interest in the prayers of all the sisters, that if it is God's will I may be healed; that I may be able to do my work and care for my two little ones. I have been afflicted many years and have been administered to many times. It may not be for me to be healed. God does not afflict his children needlessly, and if by suffering I shall be made better and more worthy to be called a child of God, I pray for patience to bear this affliction. I think the Prayer Union is a good work, and I do believe that many blessings have been received through the prayers of the sisters. I also think the Religio-Literary Society is a grand thing, and with the Daughters of Zion, hand in hand with the Prayer Union, great good can be done. O that each one of us would arise and shake the coals from our garments and strive to do the little our hands find to do, and be more patient with the trials of this life, that we may be accounted worthy to dwell with God and Christ is my prayer. Your sister in hope of eternal life, MRS. C. W. HAWKINS.

FORSYTH, Mo., May 30.

DEAR sisters, wives, and mothers who have written so many good and beneficial things for our Home Column, I feel to again lay aside domestic duties, while I allow my mind to take up the line of thought that is in tune with the spirit and duties of the times. The admonition to "come up higher," self-purification, and the duty of properly training our children, are topics which have given me deep concern. I have at some time heard the admonition to "learn wisdom out of all good books," and have heeded it to some extent. I have read in one good book, "knowledge is safety." I feel sure that the precious truths that come before our eyes in our church publications, and especially those pertaining to the mothers' work are planning a strong arm of defense for the young and unborn of Israel. It is marvelous in our eyes to consider as we look upon the scene, and the amount of good to be accomplished, as we mentally view it, unlimited. My whole being is wrought upon with an intense desire to keep in line with the spirit of the enlightened army of workers. As we watch our innocent little ones in their plays, and are called upon to help them in their troubles, what think you sounds as loud as thunder to our minds at times? This scripture: "To obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams."

We can now plainly see if we had had the knowledge away back there when we first took the sacred duty of motherhood upon us that is now being so freely given, and had taken it to heart as we now feel constrained to do, we might have saved ourselves and our dear children much sorrow. We are made to forcibly realize the truth of the scripture which says, "As ye sow, so also shall ye reap," in the matter of not properly understanding the sacred duties of motherhood. Everything that we would wish our unborn offspring to do, the mother and father should wisely and considerately strive to do. Every noble aspiration that they would wish to govern in the lives of their children, they should seek to cherish. The sacred word says, "Can a fountain send out at the same place, bitter water and sweet?" In the same line of consistency, we would ask ask, "Can a father and mother who cherish vile rather than pure motives and principles, people the earth with promising people? or if Christian fathers and mothers cherish nonchristian principles, is the world going to become through their lives more righteous, any more than a farmer can expect to reap wheat where he has sown grass seed?"

Then let me ask as fathers and mothers in this church that we take this matter home to our every heart. Not to a few, not to half, but Oh! to let this church be truly, "as a bride adorned for her husband," or like a Virgin Mary, adorned for her Son. Some may ask, What was her adornment? We read she was chosen to be the mother of Christ because of her purity, her virtue; and if we believe this sacred history as all consistent Latter Day Saints should do, does it not follow along the line of reason, if the church is ever going to be pure enough to be worthy the name of the "Lamb's bride," that every vestige of impurity and of every thought of peopling the earth with any other than rightly born, pure-hearted, and a pure-minded race, must be purged out of her? No wonder the times are termed the "hastening times," the sifting times, etc., etc. If our heavenly Father cannot look upon sin with the least degree of allowance, isn't it time we as a people begin to get our eyes fully open to the importance of the times in which we are living and govern ourselves accordingly? That we may all be enabled to do this is the prayer of,

SR. C. H. DERRY.

Dear Sisters:—After a long, dreary winter passed in sickness I rejoice to see the beautiful trees and flowers once more; and, as I look around and see the trees putting forth their green leaves my thoughts revert to the words of Jesus, "Now learn a parable of the fig tree; when his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is nigh: so likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors." We know when we see the trees unfolding their leaves that summer is coming and will soon be here, and we know also by the signs that are taking place the time is coming, is even at the door for the coming of Christ. How glad we are after a long, dreary winter when we see the first signs of spring and know summer is coming laden with many pleasures for us. When everything will be decked with beauty. And far more beautiful will the summer be if the past winter was cold and bleak and we had to stay shut in for many long weeks, or if we had to stay in on account of sickness. Then who can help rejoicing to see summer approaching? We now see the signs of the coming of summer and we also see the signs of the coming of Christ and we feel the winter of our lives will soon be over and all sorrow, pain, and distress we have had to pass through is nearly at an end. Brighter days are dawning, our lives will then be as summer, all sunshine, and we shall always have the light of the Son and his glory shall ever be with us. We need never be afraid of the cold, bleak winter any more; all shall be warmth, peace, and joy.

Do you not think this is worth working for? What is the pleasure of this life compared with the life hereafter? Is it not everything to us to try and serve our Master and obey his teachings and keep his sayings? I feel the time is short (as Christ says, even at the door), and let us not spend an idle moment but pray always that we may be able to overcome the many dreadful things that are coming upon the earth. May we be able to read the signs aright, be wise and faithful, that when the Master comes we may be doing right and that when he knocketh we may open unto him immediately.

Christ says, "Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning, and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately." Again: "Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not." "And that servant, which knew his Lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes." Christ also says, "Ye can discern the face of the sky and of the earth; but how is it that ye do not discern this time?" "Take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and the cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares."

I have never watched a spring with as much interest as I have this. Never did I see the trees putting forth their leaves when they had the same meaning which they have now. The signs of the times are also of great interest and meaning to me. When I hear the people talking of the times I think of the many things Christ told would come to pass in the last days, of the distress that was to come upon the earth. He tells us to watch and pray always that we may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass and to stand before the Son of man. He says he has told us all things and we were to take heed and watch and be ready "lest coming suddenly he find us sleeping."

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JUNE.

ENOUGH.

"I am so weak, dear Lord! I cannot stand
One moment without thee;
But O, the tenderness of thy enfolding,
And O, the faithfulness of thine upholding,
And O, the strength of thy right hand!
That strength is enough for me.

"I am so needy, Lord! and yet I know
All fulness dwells in thee;
And hour by hour that never-failing treasure
Supplies and fills in overflowing measure
My last and greatest need. And so
Thy grace is enough for me."

Thursday, June 14.—Our families. Prayer for the members of our families by name, and for the families of each other and those of the ministry. For the youth of the church in general.

Memory Verses.—Romans 12: 9, 10.

Thursday, June 21.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses.—Zechariah 7: 9, 10.

Thursday, June 28.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verse.—Isaiah 35: 10.

MUMMY OF AN ANCIENT KING.

M de Morgan, the French director of the Ghizeh Museum in Egypt, has just reported the discovery of the mummy of King Horus of twelfth dynasty and several rolls of papyrus. The searchers after tombs bore into the rock about the pyramids of Ghizeh in much the same way as Americans bore for oil and salt. If the drill drop into a hollow space it is explored with eagerness. These hunters for tombs have been able to reconstruct a good portion of Egypt's lost history and learning.

LOVELAND, Iowa, June 4.

Editors Herald:—Yesterday I preached in the Goss schoolhouse in the morning, assisted by Elders C. G. McIntosh and S. V. Pratt. The attendance was fair and attention good. In the afternoon I preached in the schoolhouse in Loveland, assisted by the above brethren. Attendance slim, but in each place I received divine aid. I noticed a good old Baptist preacher in Loveland solemnly shake his head several times as I set forth the absolute necessity of practical righteousness in order that we may obtain salvation, but the shakes ceased as evidence was presented that every man would receive a reward according to his works; no protest was offered at the close, and it may be hoped that light penetrated that "hardshell," and he may learn that only practical righteousness—the fruits of a real, living, active faith in Christ can recommend us to the favor or grace of God.

Elders McIntosh and S. V. Pratt preach here every two weeks, and I pray that they may be blessed in their work. We were blessed at our late conference in Council Bluffs with the ministrations of Presidents Blair and Alexander H. Smith. A spiritual time was enjoyed. CHARLES DERRY.

BURNSIDE, Ill., June 3.

Editors Herald:—The conference at this place will close to-night. It has been a success in every way. The Saints seemed to vie with each other to see who could do the most to make the visitors comfortable, many bringing provisions to the grounds; and scores ate on the grounds and had a grand time visiting, singing, and telling experiences. Brn. William Lambert and James McKiernan preside. Bro. J. C. Crabb is here, besides the local brethren of the district. Five were baptized to-day, and a good time had generally. I hope all may carry out their good resolutions.

Yours in hope,

G. H. HILLIARD.

HITEMAN, Iowa, June 4.

Editors Herald:—Bro. J. S. Snively and I came here ten days ago. We have held thirteen meetings with good interest considering that there is a general strike with the miners. We have also organized a branch with twenty members; and Bro. Snively led five precious souls down into the waters of baptism last Saturday afternoon and two more yesterday between meetings; so we leave this branch with twenty-seven members and fair prospects of more being added soon. Brn. J. W. Loach and William E. Williams, two promising young men, were ordained to the office of priest. Bro. Loach was elected presiding priest, Bro. W. E. Evans teacher, Bro. Joseph Williams deacon, and Sister Lizzie Williams clerk of the branch. We also assisted in organizing an interesting and promising Sunday school, called the Banner of Liberty school, with Bro. William E. Williams as superintendent, Sister Lizzie Williams, daughter of Bro. James Allen of Lamoni, assistant superintendent, Sr. Mina Loach secretary, John Griffiths treasurer, and our promising young brother, Gomer Griffiths, librarian. The school voted to unite with the Decatur district Sunday school association. There are some live Sunday school workers here to start with, and I look for a prosperous school.

With faithfulness on the part of the members and wisdom with the young brethren in charge here, this branch is likely to move to the front in this district. The kindness of the Saints to us while we have been here has been all we could ask for, and we leave them to-day in excellent spirit. After our brief labors with the Hiteman Saints we go to Forbush and Centerville, and expect to labor there until time for our district conference at Allendale, Missouri, on the 16th and 17th of this month. In gospel bonds,

BRUSH CREEK, Iowa, May 30.

Editors Herald:—On my way home from conference I stopped over Sunday at Bro. and Sr. James Smith's, and at Bro. and Sr. Harding's, six miles west of Des Moines, and preached for the folks. On Sunday evening I had a large congregation, and in the afternoon a man and his wife were baptized. Bro. Cook and the writer confirmed them in the evening. There are more there who believe the work. On the 4th of May I started for my field of labor in Northeastern Iowa. On the first night I stopped with Bro. and Sr. W. W. Beal in Waterloo, and who are still mourning the loss of their noble son who was murdered by two tramps while on his way home to his parents last winter. May our Father comfort them in their sorrow.

On the 4th I went to Powersville, in Floyd county, and there I found the noble warrior, I. N. Roberts, hard at work. He had preceded me a week and had a good interest stirred up; but on the 7th he left for his own field. O, how I longed to have the little man stay with me! But he is one of those who, where duty calls or danger, is never wanting there; so he went, and I was left to fight the battle alone. But the great leader and general stood by me, and on the 13th we went to the Cedar River, where I baptized Joseph Linnell. He is a noble man. He has been an Adventist about six years. Mrs. John Jack was also baptized; a fine woman, the organist of the M. E. Sunday school; and some ten or twelve more are very near the kingdom, but had not the courage to step out. Several said to me they knew they ought to obey, and I think some will in the fall.

The M. E.'s. took alarm and closed the church against us. Then a Mr. Powers, who own the hall, invited us to use it. Mr. Jack afterwards rented the hall for a year for us to use, and then a subscription was circulated and four dozen chairs bought for us. So you see we have friends there. The above M. E. church was built for all to use, but dedicated to the M. E.'s., now when they shut us out the outsiders are demanding their money from them; so goes the world. I continued there till the night of the 20th, and notwithstanding that the farmers were all busy planting early and late, we had a crowd every night.

The last night was the largest of all, and many said "Come again;" and, "Don't stay away too long now," etc. The M. E. reverend told the people we could not have his church any longer, because we were not orthodox, and called us hard names. Upon that a gentleman (who is able to do so) offered to pay the reverend ten dollars for every sermon he preached in which he would prove his church by the Bible to be the Church of Christ, as Latter Day Saints do; but so far the reverend has not undertaken it.

On the 22d I came to Grove Hill, and preached twice. On the 27th the Baptist minister of Fairbank asked me to fill his appointment, at eleven, but I had an appointment, so I could not accept the offer of his pulpit. At 3:30 I spoke to a respectable sized audience in the M. E. church in Fairbank. That is something we never could do before—get that church. Then I came to Oren schoolhouse, where I spoke twice and baptized two more. To-day Bro. McRae brought me in his buggy to this place. Bro. Miller has gone to get the United Brethren church for me for a week or more.

We have almost money enough for a tent and I hope we may soon be able to get it. Bro. Kephart is at work, and I look for Bro. O. B. Thomas to get into this field sometime next week, for I need him very much. "Come and preach for us," is the cry from all sides. There are many things to discourage, yet the work is slowly onward. When I close here I will go to Fulton, and from there to Clinton by the 15th of June. May Zion prosper. In gospel bonds, Editors Herald:—Our conference which closed last night was a success. A good number were in attendance; house full at all the services, a number of strangers present, and an excellent interest manifest. Two were baptized; a number more very near the kingdom. Bro. Dean Smith was ordained to the office of elder. The former officers of the district were sustained. Our next conference convenes at Buffalo Prairie the first Saturday in September. I remain here a few days, then go to Henderson Grove, Joy, and other points requiring labor. In bonds, Editors Herald:—The workers in this part of the Lord's vineyard are alive to the interests of the work. Two days ago I had the pleasure of meeting Brn. Peak and Waldsmith at Lincoln, and yesterday I met Bro. Armstrong at this place. To-day two candidates (Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell) were initiated into the kingdom, Bro. Armstrong administering the ordinance. This work is the result of instruction given by Bro. and Sr. Bray, and their grandson, Bro. Charlie Woods. I am to remain here and hold services in the Congregational church until the night of the 4th, then I go to Elmwood, where I expect to hold services in the German church. I find an open door almost anywhere I go. I have great hope for the work in this part of Nebraska, more especially because the few workers we have, seem determined by the grace of God to make a determined effort to accomplish greater results than ever before.

Your brother in Christ,
CHARLES H. PORTER.

BOTHWELL, Ont., May 10.

Editors Herald:—As circumstances have permitted I have tried to tell the good old gospel story to those who would hear, and in so doing I have been abundantly blessed with the Spirit of the Master. This is one of the great testimonies I have of this latter-day work; for sometimes when I have felt my inability to preach the gospel and looked on myself as being so inferior an instrument for so great a work, until I have felt somewhat despondent, and have been led to say in my heart, "How is it that God ever called me to preach the gospel." And to such an extent have my feelings been wrought upon (as stated above) at times that I have almost decided to send in my license; and at one time I believe I should have done so only for the encouragement I received from my wife; for at that time those cloudy experiences continued with me for months. Not that I did not wish to do my Master's will, for that I wished to do with all my heart; but to make myself believe I was competent for the work God had called me to, has been one of the great struggles of my life since I became a Latter Day Saint. Yet I want to tell you that at the times those clouds have seemed to me to have been the darkest, I have felt to almost sink beneath the burden of the gospel message, and have gone into the stand with a heavy heart to do what seemed to be my duty. At such times I have realized to a wonderful extent that God alone was the author of this work; for under those very feelings when I have arisen to commence to preach, the Spirit of God has come upon me in such power that I have felt under its influence, that I could preach the glad tidings of salvation to all people if they were before me. To God be all the praise. I have often wondered if any of my brethren in the ministry have had similar experiences.

As regards the progress of the work in this part of the Lord's vineyard, I think I can say it is onward; but we are all anxious to see it go on faster if it is the Lord's will it should, and would be glad to see a more perfect unity among the Saints; a unity in work, unity in purpose, unity in worship, in fact a unity in everything; and as Paul says, all speak the same thing. I do not wish to find fault with anyone, but another thing is much needed, and that is that our words and actions towards each other should be such as would beget implicit confidence in each other. Under such circumstances we would all work in unity for the advancement of our Father's work and not be afraid of some brother getting a little credit or praise for work done that we think we ought to get the praise for. Give God all the praise. That is where it properly belongs; for Jesus says "without me you can do nothing."

myself which took place from April 18 to 26 except what you quoted from the Tilbury Times. I never care to talk about myself, for it always looks and sounds better for others to do that for one; but I think I can safely say that the church lost none of her interest in Tilbury Center, and if I am any judge a great deal of prejudice was destroyed; at least I know there was a large number far more friendly towards me after the debate than before it took place. The propositions discussed were as follows: "Christian baptism is by immersion only." I affirmed. "Infant baptism is of Bible authority." Mr. Cooper affirmed. "Immersion of the body in water is essential to salvation." I affirmed. "Is the Book of Mormon of divine authority?" I affirmed. The debate lasted eight evenings, two on each proposition, and it passed off very pleasantly and orderly. I think everyone was surprised at the interest taken; for very large crowds attended. People came from ten to fifteen miles every night. It was thought that Mr. Cooper made the best argument the first night on the first proposition; but I had far the most scriptural proofs; and on the second night opinion changed and our opponents were very quiet. On the second proposition Mr. Cooper made a failure, and I had everything my own way. This is what some outsiders said in talking the matter over afterwards. Concerning the fourth proposition, people outside said if there was any truth in the Bible I proved my position, and Mr. Cooper did not disprove it. The fourth proposition was said to be a complete victory for us, as Mr. Cooper did not even attempt to reply to my scriptural argument, but he followed the old rut which was "Old Joe Smith," the "Solomon Spalding manuscript," etc. This part of his argument as you are well aware did not give us much trouble to dispose of, only he said Spalding wrote three or four manuscripts. You would be almost led to believe by Cooper's story that Spalding did nothing but write manuscripts on aborigines of America, and he said the second manuscript was the one that formed the foundation for the Book of Mormon; and he produced a number of witnesses with their names to prove a second manuscript. Those witnesses stated there were the same names in this second manuscript that are found in the Book of Mormon. In reply to him I showed that the very same parties were witnesses to the "Manuscript Found," which evidently was the same one that he had reference to. I then offered him the Manuscript Found and told him I would forfeit five hundred dollars if he would produce any names alike in the two books, and that made him look down his nose.

After the debate a vote was taken which resulted largely in Cooper's favor by them that voted; but there was about one half of the congregation who did not vote, and some were heard to say they did not care how bad Leverton beat Cooper they were going to vote in Cooper's favor anyhow. On the evening the vote was taken the Methodist people came from all quarters to give Bro. Cooper a lift. Some who had not attended before, and even some of them after hearing the one night, said they could not vote for Cooper, after coming purposely to do so. One party was heard to say after the meeting was dismissed, "that Cooper got the vote, but Leverton had the truth and the argument." So I now leave the matter in the hands of him who doeth all things well, praying that the effort may lead some to the truth and result in good to the cause of Christ; for this was the only object I had in view in entering the debate. One man told me after it was all over that the debate had done more good to our cause than could have been done by a year's preaching.

Yours in gospel bonds,

A. LEVERTON.

WOODBINE, Iowa, May 22.

Editors Herald:—On my arrival in the beautiful town of Lamoni, Iowa, on the fourth day of last April, I little thought that to-day I would be seen lingering in the State of Iowa, and that although my home and loved ones are twelve hundred miles away. When I have looked out upon the cold bleak prairies of this State, and gazed with imagination through the glittering frosts upon the wild flowers and blooming gardens of the south, I have in my imaginations grasped for something in that direction out of my reach.

When I found myself in the town of Lamoni, awaiting the then coming conference, I soon discovered that my desires were being realized to the fullest extent. I had gone there to meet with the people of God, and surely I never saw a more godlike people than I met there. Among the hundreds who flocked to the train to meet their friends who were coming in on the daily train from the surrounding country and different States, day after day, neither among the arrivals nor those that stood upon the platform anxiously waiting to grasp the hands of those descending the steps of the cars was I able to detect the smell of liquor or tobacco; nor did my ear once catch the sound of profane language.

Among the early arrivals I was introduced to my brother, J. W. Wight, whom I had not seen for thirty-six years. The last time I had looked upon his face has was only six years old. He had returned from his mission of six years ago to Australia, where he has been preaching during that time, and then for the first time met his companion and three bright boys he had brought with him from that far away country. Then some one pulling me around wanted to introduce me to Sr. Mary Hawley. O how familiar the name, although it had been forty-three years since we had laid one of that name in the cold and silent grave, and commended her spirit to the God who gave it in life. I had learned to love her as a mother, and in death had wept over her remains, and notwithstanding the length of time that had gone by, the very mention or sound of that name in my ear fell like a thunderbolt upon me and set my mind on fire, as it were, with that electric influence that so often causes the wires to tremble from pole to pole. It brought back the memories of the past half century. We will not rehearse the memories of that time; but turn from the dead to the living. On my introduction to Sr. Mary, she at once commenced pleading with me for a promise to visit Galland's Grove, and when I met Bro. George Montague and others the same plaintive tones fell upon my ear, and my heart began to swell with a desire to go there. This thought had not entered my mind on going to Lamoni; the attendant circumstances had made it seem to me to be almost impossible for me to accomplish what I had already done and return to my home one thousand miles away; yet the desire seemed to grow until it seemed to me that I could no longer contain myself, and I said to myself, "I will go." I thank God to-day that he enabled me to come to that conclusion; for from that day to this it has been like it had been from that time back to the 20th of March,—the day I arrived at my brother's house at Ridgeway,—one constant round of enjoyment, and it seems to me to be a stepping-stone upon the threshold of our Father's house that enters the pearly gates that will open to us and we shall enter in and assemble around his throne—only one thing—and it seemed that I could linger with those people for ever. My family is now over twelve hundred miles away.

It was after conference had been in session for several days when it seemed to me that man had done all in his power and could get no further, that God, like in former days, took pity on poor, weak man, and sent his angel to roll the stone away, calm the troubled waters, and speak peace to our troubled souls; and our conference closed with peace and harmony prevailing. Then it was that we clasped hands with our friends and loved ones, a "good-bye," and "God bless you," and we were flying away on the train for Ridgeway, Missouri, in company with Brn. George Montague and H. O. Smith. While stopping with my Brother L. L. Wight and family for a short time, preparatory to going to Galland's Grove, H. O. Smith's little boy, Ray, who had preceded us and was attending his Cousin David Wight's school, was bitten by a large rattlesnake on his way home from school. David, heedless of the harm he might incur to himself, placed his mouth at once to the wound and endeavored by this means to extract as much of the poison as he could, and bore him away in his arms some half or three fourths of a mile to the house where all the requirements of the law of God were resorted to and the little boy was healed. To God be all glory. Excuse my weakness if you see the impress of dewdrops upon this sheet when I tell you that we here bade adieu to my brother's family to fly away to our next stopping place, Moorehead, Iowa. Bro. J. W. Wight was on our train from Lamoni, and we had his company with that of his family. Here we met with many friends whom we had not seen for many years, and among them were our brother, S. Wight, and his excellent family, also our sister, C. Henderson, and her family. Her companion took extra pains to make our stay with them pleasant. I hope I shall be excused for mentioning a few names: such as Bro. and Sr. C. Huffman who contributed liberally to our temporal needs, and Bro. and Sr. George Montague who spared no pains to make the surroundings pleasant, and secured conveyance from place to place by which we were enabled to visit invalid friends. Among those was James Ballantyne whose arm by a stroke of paralysis was hanging powerless by his side. Notwithstanding his affliction we found him firm in the faith of the Master, and ready to give a reason for the hope he had within him. He, too, contributed liberally of that that the Lord had blessed him with to help us on our journey. As I left the little pleasant town of Moorehead in company with Bro. Montague, and our horses were trotting leisurely along, I thought I would never again blame Lot's wife for looking back. We ate dinner with Bro. Robert Ballantyne and family, and gave and received a few cheering words.

We stopped in Dow City that night with Bro. Rudd. We ate dinner with Sr. Mary Hawley near Galland's Grove. Bro. Gideon was away from home; however, we had a very pleasant visit with him and his family. They too, contributed to our needs temporarily and their Son Charley was not exempt. May the Lord bless them. Here we found Mother Hawley. It had been forty-two years since I had seen her, and at that time we called her Mother Hawley. She is now ninety-four years old, active in mind, and can walk without help. For nearly sixty years she has borne her testimony to the work, and as ready now as she ever was to say she knows it is the work of God.

Our next stop was with my sister, M. Holcomb, the wife of Bro. C. Holcomb. I had not seen her for thirty-six years. She was nine years old at that time. My brother, R. Wight, and his wife, Sr. Burt, and my sister, C. Crandall, the wife of Bro. A. Crandall, and among the many others I must name one more, that under the most peculiar circumstance, which I will not mention, was made near and dear to me. I will say this much, however, she is the mother of some of those children that I have just mentioned; her name at present is Mary A. Jenkins. Bro. Jenkins, too, her companion, is a noble Saint of a long lifetime. He has been faithful under many trials, and she under the most trying circumstances has fought the battle of a Christian woman, and stands to-day in the front rank. None of those have I seen for the last thirty-six years, and many of them that are dear to me, I had never before seen in life. Bro. George Hawley contributed everything in his power to make my sojourn enjoyable, and he succeeded well; for he surely had the faculty of doing this, and when we could not get conveyance for the press of business he would walk with me from house to house. His company and cheerful voice would make our journey seem short. There I met Rosine Crandall and family; her mother, my sister, died over forty years ago and left her only six weeks old in my mother's arms to raise.

Now, dear readers, am I not right in giving this as an illustration of the stepping-stone to the grand reunion when we shall have crossed the dark valley and emerged into the grand light of eternal life. If the thoughts herein expressed shall gladden and cheer the hearts of some, then my object is accomplished. I am at present with H. O. Smith, and his very pleasant family; but will reluctantly leave this place to-morrow to join Heman Smith at St. Joseph and from there we will go south. We have heard several good sermons and have endeavored to the best of our ability to cheer and gladden the hearts of the congregations of the Lord.

Yours for the battle,

MINNEAPOLIS, Kan., June 1.

Editors Herald:—The quarterly conference of the Northwestern Kansas district was a very good one considering the number in attendance. The reunion committee settled upon Blue Rapids as the place for holding the reunion commencing August 9. We hope to have a good time. I left the Rapids on May 21, in company with Bro. Resch who lives five miles southeast of Minneapolis. Bro. Resch is a priest, was ordained something over a year ago and he has done a good work among his neighbors in preaching, and distributing tracts and books, insomuch that he led thirteen into the waters of baptism on last Lord's day. Among the number were three of his family; a daughter and two sons. We held confirmation in a schoolhouse at three o'clock in the afternoon of the same day. Quite a gathering of outsiders was present to witness it. I think there are others not far from the kingdom. I have preached eight nights here and will continue over Sunday. There were three heads of families baptized among the thirteen.

On my way here I stopped at Morganville in Clay county, and baptized Bro. Charles Carson, a promising young married man. Sr. Carson by her firmness and by the use of reading matter convinced the brother of the work. In bonds, LOCKHARTVILLE, N. S., May 25.

Editors Herald:—It is with pleasure that we hail the Herald as the bearer of good tidings week after week. What a blessing you are to the world to be sure. It is not merely a tinkling cymbal. I can easily think that comes in this form from many of the Saints, "I could not live without you." It is true. A Saint cannot live as they should live, without the Herald. It is true there are Saints that exist who do not have the reading of the precious columns; but they are so far behind the times that it seems almost like getting back into sectarianism to converse with them. Surely this is a good cause, and something I think I can sense its value to an extent and appreciate it, though I am conscious that I am not squarely up to the advantages it gives me.

I was peculiarly interested this week in reading the Bishop's report, and as I ran over the names that had paid tithing this year, a feeling of pride and pleasure would go over me when I came to the names of those I knew. And glad am I for them that their names are there, for it means blessings and approval from the Father. I was pained also in seeing the list from Nova Scotia so small, and to a certain extent, I believe I am to blame for it, for not keeping this matter before my own countrymen. It may be argued that our Saints are poor; but that is no argument at all, as I know our Saints are not any poorer than many that are on that list, and many or some of them a great many times richer. I find that it is not because they are Nova Scotians, either; for I discovered a large number of Nova Scotians who are living in the United States, where the tithing question is kept before the people, upon the list in good shape; and they are not rich either. Now will you lend me space to say to the Saints in Nova Scotia district: Let us take this matter into consideration this year, individually. Who of us are reaping benefits from this "restoration"? and who is paying for it in the way that God ordained? Let us ask ourselves what will be the difference between those in the next world who have had their names upon the tithing list and those who have not. There certainly will be a difference. Now, how many of us will have no risk to run upon that account this year? Let the report answer next year. It is because I want yourselves to be blessed and God glorified that I write thus.

Yours in the hope of the gospel,
HOLMES J. DAVISON.

PLEASANT GROVE, Utah, May 22.

Editors Herald:—Bro. R. J. Anthony arrived Home on May 7, hale and hearty, and reported having an excellent time at conference; and on Sunday, the 13th, he gave us two excellent sermons, which some of the Saints said it beat anything they had heard, and which will no doubt result in much good in causing some to renew their diligence in serving the good Master. I wish there were more laborers like Bro. R. J. in the field. It would be hard to find better. He went to Salem last week, expecting to stay all the week; but owing to not being able to get a house to speak in, returned, but went to Provo for the two p. m. services to encourage the Saints there who are alive to the work, having a good Sunday school every Sunday, and meetings at two and half past seven p. m. He returned here for meeting at eight p. m., and by special request of one of the Brighamites spoke on the subject as to where the church was from the death of Joseph the Seer until 1860 when young Joseph took his father's place. Some of his hearers, and not of the church, were very much pleased with the effort, which was very good on many points of difference between the different factions claiming to be the true church. He showed up the Utah Church in good shape from the revelation of President W. Woodruff, and the sermons of Presidents Woodruff and George Q. Cannon, as published in the Deseret News of April 17, 1894. All of the ministry should have a copy to show up the difference between the two churches. They could be got from the Deseret News Co., Salt Lake City. Bro. Anthony compared the revelation given at Lamoni, April 15, 1894, and some others given to the church in early days with the one published in the Deseret News of April 17, and the manner in which they were presented to the church for their acceptance; and I believe that it had a good effect, for it was done in a very plain and clear way. Bro. Anthony went to Fairfield in Cedar Valley, yesterday, and expects to be in Salt Lake City for next Sunday.

Yours for the spread of gospel truth,
H. B. STERRETT.

FARWELL, Mich., May 28.

Editors Herald:—Our debate with Mr. M. D. Rogers of the "Church of God" is over. When it began, a large majority of the people were opposed to us and our faith, but on the last few evenings the majority of the thinking people were in our favor. Mr. Rogers did not seem to know what he believed or what his books taught, and he went back of Mr. John Winebrenner and the books his church. And all that we could get for the whole twelve evenings was a constant tirade of abuse upon Joseph, the books, and the church, and I am satisfied that if the chairman had not allowed him to go on with such he would have had to stop before the time was up. No wonder he did not want to have the debate or a synopsis of it published! We had arranged to debate it over again in Freesoil, but whether it will come off now or not I do not know. He has also arranged to discuss with Bro. J. A. Carpenter at Beaverton. If it takes place I will go there and help Bro. C. out all I can. He was brought here by the Methodists, Baptists, and Disciples to debate and the community paid him twenty-five dollars. I am also informed that that the Methodists in Freesoil are to pay him twenty-five dollars to come and debate it there. That is the place where they got in three ministers last winter who delivered eight lectures against us. We answered the best we could, and followed them up. The results were we baptized thirty-three persons and some more this spring, some of whom were of their own church.

Our debate closed on Saturday evening, and on Sunday we baptized two, heads of families, and several others are seemingly very near, while none that I can learn who were in any way favorable before have weakened; and many who were much opposed are more favorable than before. The Saints are built up and confirmed in faith and hope of the final triumph of the blessed gospel of Jesus Christ. Many heard who would not come to our preaching meetings. According to the agreement the above is about all I would be allowed to give or report. Feeling good in body and spirit I remain, a coworker for Christ,

MARCELINE, Mo., June 2.

Editors Herald:—Bro. J. A. Tanner and I just closed a week's meetings at the Menefee schoolhouse where we had good attendance and attention; but we could not persuade any to obey. Bro. Tanner returned home to Beaver to look after the work in the branch. I came to Marceline to open up the work after the wise and faithful efforts of Bro. E. E. Williams in securing a house for that purpose. Cannot say what the outcome will be, but everything is favorable for a permanent opening here. Fraternally,

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., May 16.

Editors Herald:—In connection with the inclosed obituary, I offer the following statement: On the night following the death, and prior to Sister Aldridge's funeral I staid at the house of Bro. Alonzo E. Jones, Jr., of this place, and while I lay upon the bed, awake, but wrapt in the Spirit, I saw myself standing beside the elegant casket wherein lay the mortal remains of Sister Aldridge, with the family sitting on either side, and a few friends also in the room, at Bro. Aldridge's house. I was preaching, as I thought, the funeral sermon, being filled with the Spirit of God. I saw that the departed spirit of her whose mortal remains lay before me in the casket was then at rest in the paradise of God; and in the most beautiful language, I was portraying to those present, but more especially to the husband and sons, the joyful, and sublime conditions of that rest and the joys and supernal happiness that might be theirs at again meeting that loved wife and mother. But the conditions upon which such a meeting could be affected, must be through obedience to the same laws, by which she was made ready and prepared to enter into that state of rest and peace.

I was filled with the Spirit of God, and in its light and by its power, I was pleading with and trying to impress upon their minds the necessity of obedience upon their part in order that they might in joy and peace again behold the face of that saintly wife and mother, and also be a stay and comfort to the lonely daughter and sister, who would need the comforting influences of those brothers and father, and whose life would be made so much more pleasant and happy if they were only brothers in the covenant as well as in the flesh.

Feeling a portion of that good Spirit at this time, and with no other desire than their welfare and salvation in the kingdom of God, I hope and pray to him, that they will be impressed by this admonition to give heed to and obey the teachings of the gospel; that they may make the necessary preparation to meet the loved ones who are now at rest.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 24.

Editors Herald:—You will no doubt remember my writing to you and sending a letter to answer some points, from Mrs. George D. Sallier of Vacaville, California. It is with great pleasure I now write you of this lady, her husband, father, and mother all having obeyed the gospel on May 20, at Santa Rosa, being baptized by Bro. M. H. Forscutt and confirmed by him and your humble servant. Bro. and Sr. Sallier have three children, all of whom we blessed the same day, and thus brought into the church three generations—children, parents, and grandparents. It is very gratifying to me to see these people come into the fold as the result is, partly at least, on account of my labors. There are others investigating at Santa Rosa. Bro. Mark has been twice with me to Santa Rosa. He preached there and then at San Francisco on his return in the evening. Since the loss of our church at Irvington I go to Haywards on the First Sunday of each month.

We appreciate, very much, the marked improvement in the Herald, it being already bound, cut, and ready to read. Where people can only take one paper, the church organ—the Herald—should be the one, with due respect to all others.

Bro. M. H. Forscutt is an earnest, willing, able minister, and I hope he will be continued in this field. He is just the man to help us. We need him—I mean the cause needs him. I could find places to preach every Sunday, if it was wise to go away from home so often; and if such poor, weak things as I can do good in this grandest of all causes, how much a man like him can do. Pray for us here, that the cause may move on, that we may reach the hearts of the honest with the truth. We have had some four additions to our branch of late, all of whom will do us credit. We lack means to do some things for the cause that we would like to do. All rejoice at the results of the late conference at Lamoni.

Yours in hope,

CHARLES A. PARKIN.

ROSEDALE, Ind., May 17.

Editors Herald:—We have been out at work before good audiences about four miles from this place. We spoke ten times, and had the very best of liberty in presenting the truth. It is a grand testimony to us that the work is of God. Some have asked for baptism and many others are seeking after truth. Some are convinced and will obey sometime in the near future. We had to fight our way alone against all the commonisms of the day. We also met the opposite party here; I speak of the faith healers. They have been here and performed some of their works to make people believe; but on Sunday night we showed them up in their true colors, and shook the faith of all who leaned that way, but two. There has been one man, by name Joseph Merrill, who has gone through all of this country healing and claiming he is some one to whom God has given mighty power, such as praying for people in Iowa; sending his handkerchief, necktie, or any other garment or part thereof, and having the people healed thereby; and all such nonsense as this is gone through with; but this wonderful healer refuses to debate with anyone. Again, we have had to meet all of the vile stuff in Beadle's work, and wherever we have been we have shown he only wrote the book for the purpose of making money. We also have had to read and get acquainted with Mary Etta Smith's work, as it also is in our neighborhood. It sometimes appears to me that his Satanic majesty has collected together all the books and isms of the world in here for the purpose of defeating the work of God. We, with the help of the Walters brothers, members of the church, one of whom is postmaster, distributed Heralds and Ensigns of several years' collection. They are doing a good work in their way.

The summer outlook is very good, and I believe that some of the elders ought to be around here all the time, setting forth our views; for remember, here is where Beadle lived for years, the county seat of this county, and it will take time to get the work in good shape here.

We never miss an opportunity of laying the gospel plan before the people. We have been invited to speak here at Coxville, Rosevale, and Armsburg, all in this county; then in Clinton, and at one M. E. church and two schoolhouses; so by this you can see there is a chance for some good work to be done this summer. Christians tell their people not to listen to us, and the Methodist Episcopalists would not build a church or have anything to do with it, because we were elected one of the trustees. But why say anything? It is just like every other place. The ways of truth are evil spoken against, and thus we are comforted that it is the work of God.

We feel to rejoice that we have the opportunity of presenting the truth to the people, and that we have a part in this great latter-day work, for we know it is of God. And we feel to press on in the same, asking God to bless us in our weak efforts to live as we should. May heaven bless the work here; we get very lonely for communion with the Saints. We have no one to speak a word of comfort or cheer to us, and have to stand the jeers and sneers of those who should aid us in our labors. I ask the prayers of all the Saints that the word of God may have free course in this place, and that a branch may be raised up to his name's honor and glory. May God bless us all.

JAMES KNOX.

WOODSIDE, Mo., May 23.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Spurlock and the writer have been preaching around this part at two different points. The interest is fine; calls for preaching come from all over this part. I never saw such a stir to hear us; schoolhouses are entirely too small for the crowds, but that only makes Satan rage more and more.

On Friday night, the 18th, the writer was given ten days' notice to quit the country, with two bundles of hickory switches left at the schoolhouse; the notice reading, "We don't want old Joe Smith, so get out quick or rocks and eggs will be nowhere. The long-capped boys." As that has become so common to us elders in this part, I paid no attention to it; but on the following night just as I was closing service, bang! bang! went the window, and I felt something like a shot from a cannon strike me on the side of my head, and I measured the floor. However, I had just enough life left in me to give out notice for meeting at eleven o'clock the next morning. There were fifteen rocks found in the schoolhouse next morning, and several bullet holes in the opposite wall and window sill. I was able to travel to Bro. Perry's home, where I found Bro. Spurlock, who administered to me, the pain leaving me in part, and I slept pretty well; and by the help of the Lord I was able to preach to a very large crowd the next morning who were very indignant over such an affair. I am sure it made us many friends; but I question the advisability of letting such a thing pass; something ought to be done. Some think the law won't protect Latter Day Saints, and allowing such to continue only confirms that opinion in their minds. Christ says, "Whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also;" but how many times we must turn, it does not say. I have been egged four times and rocked twice, and I think it is time to stop.

We had the pleasure of baptizing two noble souls, and I think it is only the beginning. Priest McGuire and Teacher Walker are both preaching all they can; and they are noble men, both highly respected in this part, and I trust will do a good work. The prospects are very good.

SPRINGFIELD, Neb., May 27.

Editors Herald:—On the 15th inst. we received a telegram from Bro. J. B. Preston of Hitchcock county, saying his daughter, Sister Alice Pettinger, was very sick, and wanted Elder G. C. Hodge to come. Elder Hodge started on the morning of the 16th, this being the first train he could get, and did not arrive until noon of the 17th, it being some three hundred miles away. He found the sister very low, but he administered as James directs and she received immediate relief and was soon able to sit up, and the next day was up and around the house. They had called a doctor several times but had received no relief. Brother Hodge also administered to their infant child which was near death's door, and it received relief forthwith. Thus God showed forth his power and fulfilled his promises in their behalf.

While there, Bro. Hodge baptized two of Bro. and Sr. Preston's girls, also confirmed them, and found others interested in the doctrine. He says good could be done if an elder could be sent there.

Yours for the truth,

C. K. PRESTON.

PORCUPINE, Wis., May 27.

Editors Herald:—The work is onward here. God's Spirit is with us, and even the angels seem to be present with us. On last Sunday I baptized six in the waters of Dead Lake, and I never felt better in the humble discharge of my duty. The lake was rough and the waves rolled high when we arrived at the water, but during the baptism the portion of water where we were seemed to calm, and scarcely a wave rolled over the water. Persons remarked about the event. At the confirmation the Lord blessed me wonderfully. Fully two hundred and fifty people were present at the water.

To-day I led four more into the waters of baptism. Thank God for the way his Spirit is striving with the people here, and how he blesses us in administering his word and ordinances. Bro. C. H. Burr came to my aid last Tuesday. Never was I more glad to see my colaborer's face, for the work was pressing me hard. I had just returned from preaching the funeral sermon of Mrs. Lona Foster, a highly respected lady who died on the 21st, when Bro. Burr came; and I was glad. I think the Lord knew all about it when he sent his elders out two by two.

The young people in Porcupine have organized a church choir, and I have just ordered eleven Saints' Harmonies for them. They have a splendid teacher, also a promising organist, a member of the choir; so by the time the new church is finished a trained choir will be ready to take their part of the church work. May the Lord bless the young people, of which I am one. Bro. Burr and I go to Pierce county for a few weeks next Wednesday.

Your brother in Christ,
H. P. CURTIS.

STILLWATER, R. I., May 30.

Editors Herald:—The last letter I wrote you was from Haverhill, Massachusetts, sometime in December, 1893. Well, I baptized two more there the next Sunday. The local paper thought it was very cruel to expose the people so needlessly in such weather, but the parties were all alive and well at last accounts. January 7 found me in Fall River, where I preached to the Saints. On Monday morning I received a call to accompany Bro. Toombs to Norwich, Connecticut, so took the next train for Providence, where I met Bro. Toombs and we proceeded to Norwich. We held a sacrament meeting in the evening and administered to Sister Crouch who was quite sick. Bro. Toombs left next morning for his home and I remained, preaching three evenings on priesthood.

Saturday found me in Boston where the Sunday school convention was in session. The business passed off pleasantly and speedily. We met at ten a. m. for Sunday school exercises. I was requested to take charge of senior class and give (as I understood) an explanation of the lesson. If the writer had any starch in his neck when the day began, I am quite sure he had none when it closed, for he was criticised unmercifully. In the afternoon Bro. F. M. Sheehy and A. H. Smith were the speakers. In the evening the local school gave a nice concert. I think all enjoyed the convention.

On Tuesday Bro. Sheehy and I went over to Harvard College and had an interview with Professor Putnam on the antiquities of America. The Professor is a man of large experience and very entertaining in conversation. At night I preached in Haverhill, continuing the meeting through the week and over Sunday. On Monday night I spoke at Bradford just across the river from Haverhill. Tuesday the 23d I went to Boston, and then to Providence, and met with the Saints in the latter place in prayer meeting. I went home the same night with a bad cold trying to get the best of me, which it did for several days.

The 28th found me in Fall River again, where I preached afternoon and evening. On Monday night I organized a Zion's Religion which I believe is doing well. I remained in Fall River several days, preaching again on Sunday. Labored in Providence and Fall River until February 27, then in company with Bro. George Smith went to Fiskville where we found a good congregation awaiting us. Bro. Smith spoke very nicely for a short time and I followed him in the same line of thought. We continued meetings throughout the week.

On Sunday, March 4, in company with Bro. Toombs and wife, I went to Bro. Ransome Searle's, where in a clear running stream the writer immersed two young men who we trust will become very useful if faithful. Preached in the afternoon in Fiskville and held meetings throughout the week at Bro. Searle's and at Fiskville. On Sunday I met with the Saints in Cranston in prayer meeting and enjoyed quite a spiritual time, preached in Providence in the evening. Labored for some time in Providence and vicinity, and on May 5 went to Norwich, accompanied by Bro. George Gates. We found the Saints well with the exception of Sr. Crouch who was very poorly. On Sunday morning we went some two miles or more and in obedience to the word of God the writer baptized Bro. Geo. Phillips, who has been investigating the work for some two years or more.

The work in Connecticut needs looking after and there should be somebody there to carry the work along and open up new places; but—and here we come to that little but obstinate word—there are so many points to reach and so few to reach them. Saturday, the 12th, in company with Bro. Joseph Fenner, we took the train for Brockton to attend the district conference. We met a number of the Saints in Providence with happy faces determined to lay aside the cares of the world for a day or two, and enjoy themselves spiritually. The business of the conference was conducted quietly and smoothly. The prayer meeting on Sunday morning was a very spiritual one, and the good Spirit of the Master was present to bless by a manifestation of the gifts, and by the quiet but essential work of humbling the heart; so that God may be represented better by his people.

The morning preaching service was in charge of Bro. John Smith, of New Bedford, assisted by the writer. Bro. Smith spoke forcibly and the effort was well received. The afternoon service was in charge of Bro. Myron Fisher of Boston, the writer being the speaker. Bro. Sheehy gave us a good sermon in the evening. I think the spirit of the conference shows that in some things at least, we are getting along, and we feel hopeful for the future.

On arriving at my home after the conference I found a young man—comparatively a stranger—had come to our house, and seemed to be so taken with his surroundings that he has concluded to take up his permanent abode with us. I understand his name is Frederick Alma.

On Sunday, the 20th, I met with the Saints and friends in Cranston and at night in Providence.

On Monday evening we heard a gentle tick-tack on the window and on going to the door found a large basket filled with the good things of this life. We do not like mysteries, and as I could see no legs on the basket, I started out to investigate. Dear editor, if you could have seen the writer going down the road, his beautiful (?) hair flying in the breeze you might have thought it would be wise to shut him up in some safe place. Well, it took four young men and three ladies to hang that one basket, at least there were that many discovered after quite a hunt.

On Sunday, the 27th, I opened up the work in Stillwater and Smithfield. Quite a number were out to hear and extended kind invitations to come again. Met at Smithfield again on Tuesday evening. I expect to open another place soon.

Yours in bonds,
GEORGE W. ROBLEY.

PIN OAK, Ill., May 30th.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Emsley Curtis was with us from the 17th to the 24th. He preached some good sermons, gave good advice, and left us all revived and feeling well in the great latter-day work. May the good Spirit ever go with him. He baptized three while here. We have a Sunday school organized in this, the Dry Fork branch, and which is progressing nicely with good attendance. I have a greater desire than ever to do what I can in this work, for I know it is of God.

Your brother in Christ,
JOHN F. SIMMS.

THE APOSTASY AND THE RESTORATION.—No. 1.

BY ELDER C. SCOTT.

UNTOLD numbers of sincere, humble, religious people throughout the professed Christian world deplore the divided condition of religious people.

The weak, spiritless formality of the various forms of religion is keenly felt. Their inability to satisfy the longings of the sincere and honest mind and heart for that spiritual food essential to give the life needed, that life in Christ, that degree of gospel truth necessary to assure the soul of its acceptance with God, is also painfully realized and confessed.

That there is a demand being made by the anxious hearts of great multitudes of earnest seekers after gospel truth that the divided, warring, and contentious religions cannot afford or supply, is now admitted by these multitudes. They feel that a complication of moral and spiritual ailments radically afflicts religious bodies. They are unable to diagnose the case or discover the causes of the grievous complaints, and consequently are unable to determine the remedy, or how it is to be applied.

The results are, division prevails, spiritual apathy everywhere withers and blights hope, uncertainty attends the efforts of the honest seeker after truth, and doubts like dark ominous clouds crowd in and obscure the horizon of faith's domain; hope dies, and with many all effort is abandoned. Others are carried along with the tide, not being able to determine whether they will be spiritually wrecked and sink beneath the storm waves, or, while hoping against hope, that they may by aid of some unforeseen happening, sight "the golden gate," and enter the portals of the haven of the bright beyond.

Dear honest, but bewildered soul, do not despair; "there is hope shining brightly before us." Look up; the star of hope yet glitters; God yet rules; a lifeboat is nearing! Come, get aboard, and so save yourself. You have not yet lost all hope; you yet "have faith in God." So, we will look the ground over once more and see if we cannot discover the cause of the sad, divided condition of the religious world; and finding that out, we may be able to see the divine remedy, for God has one.

The fact that there are so many various and therefore false systems of religion, is evidence that there is a true one—a correct system of Christianity somewhere. Counterfeit certificates and coins cannot be unless there be a genuine mint from which the true is issued. Division is an evil wherever it exists; for wherever it is somebody is on the wrong side of the question in dispute; and possibly all parties may be in the wrong. That depends upon the ground of dispute, division brings weakness, discord, and destroys faith and confidence. It imperils the welfare of the family if allowed to enter the domestic circle; or the state, if entering the political arena; and the soul, if it be concerning our religion. This is evident from the universal fear and unrest now caused by it in the religious world.

Our Savior forewarns of the result of division, even in the kingdom of his Satanic majesty; and it ought not to be heard of in the kingdom of God:—

Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand: and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?—Matt. 12:25, 26.

Can we appreciate the thought that so long as we labor in the interests of and apologize for a divided Christianity we are working evil, and not good? Christ is against division; those who are for it are against Christ:—

He that is not with me is against me.—Matt. 12:30.

This stormy, contending, divided condition of the religious world has been blighting the world's hope with a gradually increasing fury for the last fifteen hundred years. The amount of evil it has wrought only the infinite God can reveal in eternity!

What, then, was the cause or causes of this division in the Church of Christ, that began so long ago, with its attendant evils? This is the all-important question. Let us retire from the din of the contending forces now engaged in this evil strife, and see if we can discover the answer to this mighty question. We cannot, consistently with reason, nature, analogy, or revelation hold our heavenly Father responsible for this great evil, unless we argue that he designed to darken and confuse the world in its effort to find the straight and narrow way that leads to life. All his works plainly declare a unity of origin, a conformity of operation, and a concord of purpose. All the universe utters the harmonious music of the ages and spheres here, "Upholding all things by the word of his power." (Heb. 1:3.)

For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse.—Rom. 1:20.

God is "the Rock, his work is perfect." (Deut. 32:4.)

It is inconsistent with the infinite love of Christ, that moved him to offer himself for a lost world, to even suggest that he is in the slightest degree responsible for this most unfortunate, riotous state of religious society; or that he is in any way responsible for it. "Is Christ divided?" Would he die to save the world, and then work its confusion and ruin, and darken the way of its salvation, evilly dividing it? In reply listen to his holy intercession with his Father:—

Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.—John 17:20, 21.

If the verity of his Messiahship is to be demonstrated to the world by the oneness of the faith of all who truly believe in him, he would not inaugurate a condition of things among his own to the overthrow of his claims. Nor can it be maintained with any greater degree of consistency that the blessed Holy Spirit is moving in the hearts of the leaders of the distracted and contentious masses and leading them in opposition to the purpose of the Father and the great and infinite mission of Christ. To so argue would be to have the great evil complained of originate in heaven with the Godhead! Furthermore, we cannot for a moment consent to the claim that it is the system of gospel truth revealed by the Christ that forms the basis of the strife that has so long disgraced the religious divisions of Christendom. No two truths antagonize each other; all the principles of the gospel harmonize when left as arranged by the Father. If, then, neither the Father, Son, nor Holy Spirit is in the religious divisions that do trouble and have troubled the world so long, and pure, simple Christianity is not responsible in any degree for those divisions, the questions recur once more with greatly added force, Why all this great religious confusion? What is the great primal cause of this awful and soul-destroying condition? Ah! now we turn our attention backward in the flight of time, and moving up near the time when the Savior first came and revealed the gospel and set up the Christian church; and we make the startling discovery that it was not long after that its own disciples became dissatisfied with it. The result was, they sought to place interpretations upon its plain and easy teachings, looking to a compromise with ideas of human and demoniacal origin, human traditions and the commandments of men, thence gradually assumed the name and place of the commands of God. These blinded the minds of the people, the light of God died out of the world, and the result was, that in process of a few years a great departure from the spirit and genius of original gospel truth was produced. And it is these human traditions—commandments of men—that have formed the ground of this long-continued religious warfare.

The Apostle Paul disclaims the idea that the called and divinely inspired and duly qualified ministers of Christ in his day taught a variety of doctrines, or that they preached tenets other than the gospel as the Savior who sent them had preached it to them. He says: "For I delivered unto you first of all, that which I also received;" and he declared it to be "the gospel." (1 Cor. 15:1-3.) But there were men even in those early days of the church, "false brethren," unscrupulous men, who by perverting the truth caused divisions among the disciples of Christ and turned many away from the grace of our Lord, sowed the seeds of discord that have produced such an unmeasured harvest of tares, threw the church into utter confusion, tore it into parties and sects, inducing contention, bitter strifes, hatred, and spiritual death; and the religious darkness has prevailed even to this day. This exalting the precepts of men to a place of more importance than the word of God, was a work of evil and iniquity. Jesus foretold thus:—

And many false prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many. And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold.—Matt. 24:11, 12.

Of this evil work, as beginning to develop in the church in the apostolic age, Paul testifies:—

Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple.—Rom. 16:17, 18.

The apostle further wrote of those deceivers of the unwary:—

For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ.—2 Cor. 11:13.

These testimonies most plainly reveal the fact that among the very first steps taken in the work of the great apostasy from the gospel, as then taught by Jesus and his accredited ministry, men assumed to act in the sacred office of the true ministry of Christ, who had never been called of God to such office. It is just as easy for a man to be a counterfeit preacher as to act the "false Christ." The assumption of the ministerial calling without being lawfully called of God was the primal initial, the door of the ancient apostasy of the Christian church.

Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition: who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshiped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God. Remember ye not, that, when I was yet with you, I told you these things? And now ye know what withholdeth that he might be revealed in his time. For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth will let [or hinder], until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming.—2 Thess. 2: 3-8.

By the foregoing prophetic testimony we are most plainly informed that this great "falling away" from the truth, this "mystery of iniquity" that had its beginning in the apostolic church through the instrumentality of "false apostles" and arrogating teachers, who deceived "the simple" with "good words and fair speeches," uttered with a view to their own selfish, wicked purposes, was to take such a deep hold on the church, be so deeply rooted, of such large proportions, and become so everlastingly permanent, so great and strong in the world, that it would maintain its powerful hold until destroyed by the brightness of the second coming of Christ in power, fire, and glory.

The blighting, perverting, destructive, soul-destroying character of this apostate power when developed, is indicated by the phrases, "that man of sin," "that Wicked," "son of perdition." From the apostolic age until the day of the coming of Christ in flaming fire and great glory to execute judgment on the ungodly, is a long time for a large proportion of the religious world to be under the religious control of such a wicked power as is thus foretold by Paul!

The evil works of division in the church in those early days were begun by those "false teachers" introducing their "good words, and fair speeches" "contrary to the doctrine" which they had learned of Christ and his apostles. They perverted the gospel of Christ, and thereby deceived many, and turned them away from the grace of Christ. (Rom. 16: 17, 18; Gal. 1: 6-8.) The "good words and fair speeches" of those "wolves in sheep's clothing" are denominated "perverse things" and designed to "draw away disciples after them" (Acts 20: 29, 30); "Perverse disputings of men of corrupt minds, and destitute of the truth" (1 Tim. 6: 5); "Commandments of men, that turn from the truth" (Titus 1: 14); also "fables." (2 Tim. 4: 4).

These fables, perverse disputings, perverted gospels, and "commandments of men, that turn from the truth," have been advocated with so much zeal and have become so sacred through antiquity, and been raised to such exalted estimation that they have assumed the role of religious precepts, and are revered with as much sacredness as though emanating from God, and held just as binding on the souls of men. They are formed into articles of religion. Out of them have grown religious catechisms, longer and shorter, canon laws, creeds, and confessions of faith, which in turn have become the foundations of great religious organizations. They fetter the minds and consciences of the divided, contending religious sects as the pall of servitude did the servant in the days of slavery.

Here we have the key to the sad, mysterious plight of the present religiously divided world. It is not a division of the Christian world, but of those who have long since apostatized from the teachings of Christ. It is not a contention in reality over the doctrine of Jesus Christ, but over "the commandments of men, that turn from the truth." It is true that for the past three or four centuries the leaders on the various fields of strife, when contending for their widely differing and clashing systems of faith, have taken the Bible containing the word of God, and have often perverted and misinterpreted it, in a vain endeavor to make it support their human dogmas, traditions, and commandments of men. But we must not forget the fact that for about twelve hundred years or more, during the Dark Ages the Bible was hid away from the people of the earth. It was buried in the Latin language, and a large majority of the peoples of those ages did not know the alphabets of their various dialects and languages. They were grossly ignorant and extremely superstitious. All the histories of those days testify unitedly to these statements.

It was during those Dark Ages, that many of the religious tenets originated, that now perpetuate and keep alive the divisions that so trouble the people of honest intentions. The Bible, therefore, is not responsible for the existence of those tenets, or the divisions that they produce. In their deep ignorance the people revered the preacher too much, accepted what he taught too readily, and thereby have been led away from the truth, the gospel of Christ, into error and apostasy. Century by century, beginning in the apostolic age, have the people been gradually led, step by step, farther and farther from the light of gospel truths, so that all efforts on the part of man, unaided of God, to return to the full light of the gospel, have so far been unsuccessful; so that uncertainty in religious belief still reigns.

A recent writer, in a late number of the New World, while reviewing the religious changes of the past, makes the following statement:—

The phases through which Christianity has passed have been substantially three; viz., the dogmatic, the ecclesiastical, and the mystical or evangelical.

Of this we simply say, Christianity as revealed in the New Testament was not there when these "phases" were observed. Had it been there the phases would not have occurred. A "phase" is an "appearance" or "change." Is Christianity, simple and original, subject to varied appearances or differing phases? Christianity, like its author, God, changes not. Its principles are revealed in words spoken by God. It is revealed in the gospel. Of that God said:—

My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips.—Ps. 89: 34.

Jesus said:—

Heaven and earth shall pass away; but my words shall not pass away.—Luke 21: 33.

But the word of the Lord endureth forever.—1 Pet. 1: 25

This modern D. D. may find popular religion passing through the phases he suggests. It is the wide difference that exists between religion as set forth in the many creeds, and Christianity as revealed through Christ, that we are trying to discover. And right here we discover one of the cardinal distinctions; viz., that while religion and its creeds are subject to varying phases, changes, and revisions, Christianity and the gospel of Christ are not. And as we contemplate the multitudinous phases and varied forms that have been presented by religion since it superseded Christianity and supplanted it, just at the opening of the Dark Ages, our understanding ought to begin to be opened to the terrible situation.

AUSTRALIAN FINANCES.

Australia has not yet recovered from her financial troubles. Rigid economy has been practiced in all departments of the various governments for months past and there has been retrenchment all around, but yet the revenue returns are not satisfactory. In the Colony of Victoria the expenditures of the government during the quarter just ended exceeded the revenue by something like $2,000,000. The interest on deposits in the State savings banks has been reduced from 3½ to 3 per cent.

Conference Minutes.

NORTHWESTERN KANSAS.

Conference convened at Blue Rapids, May 19, at 10:30 a. m.; J. T. Davis presiding, H. Resch secretary. Ministry reporting: Elders J. T. Davis, R. W. Davis, G. W. Shute, R. L. Ware, M. Smith, J. Arthur Davis; Priests V. F. Rogers, A. J. Hagar, H. Resch, S. C. Andes; Teacher Wm. Scott. Branches reporting: Goshen 63, gain 4. Blue rapids 61, gain 1. Elmira 45, gain 1. A report was also read from the president of the Cuba branch, stating that on account of removals and the scattered condition of the members could not get a quorum to transact business. Referred to the missionary in charge, who should visit them and see whether best to disorganize. Bishop's agent's report: On hand last report $16.32; paid out $14; on hand $2.32. District officers elected: R. L. Ware president, H. Resch secretary, Arthur Smith Bishop's agent. The general church authorities were sustained. The reunion committee submitted their report, locating the reunion at Blue Rapids, to commence on Thursday, August 9, 1894, and by action of conference the next quarterly conference will convene the Saturday following, or August 11, at ten a. m. An invitation is extended by the committee to the ministry and members of adjoining districts to meet with us in the reunion, and to all others that wish to enjoy the meetings with us. The conference passed off quietly, and a good spirit prevailed throughout. Preaching by H. Resch, R. W. Davis, J. Arthur Davis, and G. W. Shute. Two were baptized.

ALABAMA.

Conference of the Alabama district convened at Pleasant Hill, Butler county, Alabama, May 12 and 13, 1894, at ten a. m.; Elder G. T. Chute president pro tem, L. G. Parker secretary. ADAM J. KECK, Supt.

Miscellaneous Department.

TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS IN POTTAWATAMIE DISTRICT.

The following two-days' meetings are appointed as per resolution of the above district conference with the following brethren in charge:—

Crescent, June 16, 17, C. Derry, D. K. Dodson.

Boomer, June 23, 24, R. McKenzie, T. W. Williams.

Hazel Dell, July 7, 8, C. A. Beebe, J. P. Carlile.

Underwood, July 14, 15, C. A. Beebe, D. K. Dodson.

Loveland, July 21, 22, C. G. McIntosh, S. V. Pratt.

Elders Joshua Carlile and Senterlow Butler can arrange for such meetings in their respective fields as wisdom may suggest. It is hoped the above meetings will be well attended by the Saints, and that as many of the ministry will attend as can, for all are invited to take a part in the good work. The brethren in charge may invite such aid as they may choose. If any expenses are incurred by the ministry in reaching the above places it is hoped the respective meetings will meet the same. Brethren, let us all seek divine aid, without which all efforts will be ineffectual. If two-days' meetings are desired in other places please notify me, or make such arrangements as you desire.

CHARLES DERRY,

Sub Missionary in Charge.

GOSPEL TENTS.

I will furnish gospel tents 31x45 made of army duck, top 10 ounce, and 6 feet wall 8 ounce, double filling wall, all complete with poles, ropes, etc., ready to set up, free on board cars at St. Louis, Missouri, for $90, for one tent; and if five tents are ordered at one time 3 per cent less, making each tent $87.30. Send cash with order to me and tents will be shipped direct from factory. I can give the best of references as to my responsibility if wanted. My object is to help the cause. I am a dealer in tents, hence the low price.

C. W. CONAT.

341 River St., MANISTEE, Mich.

GROVE AND TWO-DAYS' MEETINGS.

The following meetings will be held in the Galland's Grove district: At Bro. George Bush's, near Lake View, Sac county, Iowa, June 16 and 17, 1894, in charge of W. W. Whiting, J. T. Turner, and Ira Goff.

Dow City, Iowa, July 7 and 8, W. A. Carroll, J. T. Turner, and Alfred Jackson in charge.

Harlan, Iowa, July 14 and 15, in charge of W. W. Whiting, J. M. Baker, and R. Wight.

Grove meeting will be held at Benan, Carroll county, Iowa, August 3 to 12, in charge of submissionary.

C. E. BUTTERWORTH, Pres.

BELL, Iowa, June 5, 1894.

EUROPEAN MISSION.

In order to have everything well in hand previous to the next conference of this mission, and to secure proper notices, etc., being sent to the different centers, it is particularly desired that the secretaries or presidents of branches constituting the European mission, send me, as soon as possible after the publication of this notice, their names and addresses in full, together with a list of the names and addresses of the elders in their respective branches. Proper care to see that the desired information be legibly written, will be much esteemed.

J. D. HOWELL,

Secretary of the European mission.

PASTORAL.

To the Saints of Oregon and Washington:— Having been appointed to labor in the above field, I wish to cooperate with the Saints that our work may be effective. My present address will be Sweet Home, Linn county, Oregon. The ministerial force assigned this field is small, Bro. John Davis and self; but we will try and be strong in the Spirit, and with the help of the Saints feel that good will be done. The few Saints of this mission are widely scattered, which perhaps is best for the work, as all will have an opportunity to make arrangements for preaching, which we trust they will do; in this we will all be workers together. We will try and fill all calls for preaching where the expense of traveling is not too great. We remember traveling is high and money scarce. Let us all go to together, remembering that God has called us all; not a part, but all, to sow the seed, and the increase he will give in his own time. We will be pleased to communicate with the Saints.

To the Saints of my former field, Northern California and Nevada, I have this to say: I leave you reluctantly, and those who are expecting me to labor among them will, of course, know the reason why I cannot. My wish was to remain and continue the work commenced, where I still believe I would have been most serviceable, but submission is one of the many goodly things we have to learn in this work, so I submit to the powers that rule, believing that God will rule and overrule for the good of those who are submissive.

HIRAM L. HOLT.

SAN BENITO, California, May 25, 1894.

To the Saints of Eastern Nebraska, Greeting:—Having been appointed sub missionary in charge I desire, and expect to receive the hearty coöperation of all the gospel workers in the above-mentioned field. The field is ripe for the harvest and I trust that all will make every possible effort not only to hold the work already established, but also to make a vigorous campaign in the opening of new places in the district. We have lost the services of two of the active missionaries, Brn. Peak and Chatburn, from Eastern Nebraska, with no one appointed to fill their place, and this makes it doubly necessary that we shall each do our very best that the work may not suffer loss nor we be put to shame.

I have conferred with Brn. A. H. Smith and W. E. Peak in regard to division of territory and it has been decided that Northern Nebraska district shall be considered a part of Eastern Nebraska, and Central Nebraska district as belonging to Western Nebraska, and the eastern line of Kearney and Franklin counties the division in Southern Nebraska district. I cordially invite the coöperation of all the Saints in the field assigned me, and trust that any who are in need of help, or that can render assistance in any way, will advise with me in regard to the same, and I desire to assure all the Saints in said field that I shall take pleasure in assisting to the full extent of my ability in advancing the work by all legitimate means.

I feel that we are pushing the work to a grand culmination. The times are propitious in many respects.

Remember the qualifications for gospel workers are "faith, hope, charity, and love with an eye single to the glory of God." (See D. C. sec. 3.) My permanent address is Wilber, Nebraska.

Your brother and colaborer,

CHARLES H. PORTER.

NOTICES.

To the Saints in Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia, Greeting:—Whereas, there are a number of people in the mission who are peculiarly afflicted, all of whom desire and beg an interest in the prayers of their brethren and sisters in their behalf,

Whereas, we desire God's especial favor and divine blessing to attend the labors of the ministry in this field during the present conference year,

Therefore, I appoint the first Sunday in July, 1894, as a day of fasting and prayer. And I do hereby invite all who are interested in the afflicted and concerned in the welfare of the work of God, to participate in the same.

Will the presidents of the respective branches please call the attention of the Saints to this notice.

Your brother in bonds,

GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas death has entered into our midst and removed from this the Second Quorum of Elders the following named brethren: John Matthews, January 4, 1893, James Brown, February 14, 1893, William G. Harris, April 2, 1893, John X. Davis, July 14, 1893, Moses Houghton, July 24, 1893, Samuel Longbottom, about July, 1893, E. C. Brown, October 5, 1893, therefore be it resolved that we do hereby express our heartfelt sympathies to the families and friends thus called to mourn. We regret this loss sincerely but bow submissive to the overruling providence of him who doeth all things well. And while our hearts are made sad by the loss thus sustained, a joy comes with the thought that in the death of the faithful comes victory.

The foregoing was adopted by the Second Quorum of Elders at Lamoni, April 12, 1894, and ordered spread upon the minutes, a copy to be published in Saints' Herald also Zion's Ensign.

ARTHUR ALLEN, Sec.

BORN.

WILLIAMS.—To Bro. Thomas and Sr. Mary Williams, February 28, 1894, a son, and named Richard Leroy. Blessed May 6, 1894, by Elders W. O. Thomas and Ivor Davies.

MUNNS.—To Mr. Alonzo and Sr. Carrie Munns, February 17, 1894, a son, and named Alonzo Earl. Blessed May 13, 1894, by Elders William Waterman and Gordon Smith.

ABRAMS.—To Mr. Charles and Sr. Mary Abrams, March 3, 1890, a son, and named Christopher Clinton. Blessed May 20, by Elders William Waterman and Noah N. Cooke.

ABRAMS.—To Mr. Charles and Sr. Mary Abrams, October 2, 1887, a daughter, and named Myrtle. Blessed May 20, 1894, by Elders Noah N. Cooke and William Waterman.

ABRAMS.—To Mr. Charles and Sr. Mary Abrams, January 5, 1886, a daughter, and named Lulu May. Blessed May 20, by Elders Ivor Davies, Noah N. Cooke, and Wm. Waterman.

KEPHART.—At Powersville, Iowa, June 6, 1891, to Mr. William and Mrs. Mary Kephart, a daughter, and named Maudie Bell; blessed May 20, 1894, by J. S. Roth.

KEPHART.—At Powersville, Iowa, November 16, 1892, to Mr. William and Mrs. Mary Kephart, a daughter, and named Mabel Elizabeth; blessed May 2, 1894, by J. S. Roth.

GOODRICH.—At Dunkerton, Iowa, November 26, 1893, to Bro. James and Sr. Bell Goodrich, a daughter, and named Alice Annie; blessed at Dunkerton, Iowa, May 27, 1894, by J. S. Roth.

SHIPPY.—At Fairbanks, Iowa, November 6, 1893, to Bro. Lucy and Sr. Elsie Shippy, a daughter, and named Glennie Belle; blessed May 29, 1894, by J. S. Roth.

(Clerk of Grove Hill branch please copy.)

MARRIED.

STAGGERS—SALISBURY.—At the residence of the bride, Lamoni, Iowa, June 3, 1894, by Elder Robt. M. Elvin, Bro. Abraham S. Staggers, to Sr. Hannah M. Salisbury. After the ceremony refreshments were spread for a goodly company of relatives and friends.

DIED.

LUCIA.—Gertrude L., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucia of St. Joseph, Missouri, passed away on May 23, 1894. She was born in Le-Mars, Iowa, March 27, 1884. She was a scholar in the Florence Mission Sunday school, and by request the sermon was preached by J. M. Terry, assisted by Bro. R. Archibald, to whom she was attached in the Sunday school work.

ALDRIDGE.—At her home in San Bernardino, California, March 13, 1894, after years of suffering, Sister Minerva C., wife of Bro. David L. Aldridge, aged 61 years and 3 days. She was born in Marian county, Alabama, and baptized into the Utah Church when thirteen years old, and into the Re-organized Church in March, 1870. She was the mother of four sons (one of whom preceded her to the silent land) and one daughter. The funeral sermon was preached at the residence, by Elder Wm. M. Gibson, assisted by R. R. Dana. The house was not sufficiently large to hold more than one half of those who came to attend the last sad rites of the deceased. Six of the early pioneers served as pallbearers; and as the long procession moved along the principal streets of the city, the gong of the large town clock upon the courthouse tolled a slow and mournful dirge. At the cemetery the services simply consisted of an appropriate hymn by the Saints and a short closing prayer by R. R. Dana. Thus passed from our mortal gaze, to rest in the Paradise of God (but to come forth again in the first resurrection) one whose life as a sister in the Church of Christ had been consistent, and worthy of emulation. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, for they rest from all their labors; and their works do follow them."

SHARROW.—At Wabash, Ontario, October 28, 1891, Bro. Lorenzo Sharrow, aged 35 years, 2 months, and 10 days. He was born at Wabash, Ontario. He was baptized June 6, 1890, by A. Leverton. He was the only child of Bro. and Sr. Sharrow and they feel the loss sorely. Funeral services were conducted in the Methodist church, Wabash, by A. Leverton.

SCARCLIFF.—At Scranton, Mississippi, May 15, 1894, George Edward, son of Frank P. and Mary E. Scarcliff. Deceased was born July 21, 1893; blessed October 20, 1893, by Elders M. M. Turpen and A. D. Greer. Funeral services conducted by Elder W. L. Booker, who was blessed of the Spirit to say words of comfort and instruction.

OLSON.—Addie Theresa, daughter of Sr. Sarah and Mr. John Olson, died February 22, 1894, aged 7 years, 1 month, and 15 days. Funeral service held at Saint's church, Mission, Illinois; sermon by Elder Thomas Houghs, May 27, 1894.

She is not dead, but gone before,
On to the holy land;
You may not see her shining eyes,
Nor clasp her loving hand;
But there are others who will bear
Thy little one along
The golden streets of heaven's domain
Amid the blessed throng.

BEAR.—Sister Anna Stutz-Bear, was born July 15, 1832, in Affoltern at A. Zürich, Switzerland, Europe, died February 13, 1894, in Kappel, Ct. of Zürich. Three daughters and two sons are mourning their loss, with her two remaining brothers. Her husband joining the great army of the departed ones a number of years ago, the responsibility of raising the children mostly depended on her. In my first mission to Switzerland in 1873 she joined the Reorganization, was baptized by me (her brother) on July 6, 1873. On my second mission to that country I baptized two of her daughters who are still in the faith, but have no one to cheer and instruct, or break the bread of life to them. Her mother died full in the faith and resigned to the will of God. She had a great desire to see me once more before she had to pass away, but God had ordered otherwise.

Thou art gone, dear sister, to rest
From thy troubles, trials, and cares;
Where thy soul will live in a heavenly sphere,
And mingle with God's chosen ones
To await for the day, when the trump shall sound,
To come forth with the Saints at the great, glorious morn.

FORD.—At her home near Wirt, Indiana, May 26, 1894, Sr. Mary A. Ford. She was born February 1, 1841; baptized September 25, 1872, by Elder William H. Kelley, of the Twelve, and died in full confidence in her faith in Christ. Her husband, two daughters, one stepdaughter, and two grandchildren mourn. She was beloved by all who knew her and she is remembered as a charitable woman. The traveling ministry will miss the cordial welcome that was always extended to them when they came to her house. She was buried May 27 from the Saints' chapel at Union branch; discourse was preached to a large congregation by Elder W. H. Kelley, of New Albany; text, Revelation 7:14.

LONGFIELD.—At Deer Ridge, Missouri, April 2, 1894, Fred W. Longfield. The deceased was born in Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, May 7, 1828. On the day of his death he went over to his son's where he sowed several acres of oats. Not returning home to dinner as usual his Daughter Minnie went in search of him. After going about one quarter of a mile, she saw her father kneeling down holding to a barbed wire fence. She walked up to him and found that he was dead. Heart trouble supposed to be the cause. He was a strong believer and defender of the faith as taught by the Reorganized Church.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The miners' strike: June 2.—A large number of the Indiana militia have been ordered out to protect trains from miners, who have sidetracked over forty coal trains, derailed cars, or torn up switches at various points in the State. Governor McKinley of Ohio has called out State militia for a like purpose. Iowa miners are applying for work in large numbers at Oskaloosa.

June 3.—The Indiana miners offered no resistance to the movement of trains under State protection. Threats were made, but no open resistance occurred. Trouble is feared in Maryland where miners are becoming restless at the prospect of failure.

June 4.—There was a rumor of a plot to blow up the camp of the militia at Shelburne, Indiana, to-day. The camp was moved and an investigation will be made. Miners fired on a train on the Evansville and Terre Haute road to-day. The railroad men say the miners have resorted to the use of both firearms and dynamite. Ohio strikers have burned bridges on the Cleveland, Lorain, and Wheeling road, and are prepared for other acts of violence. West Virginia miners are threatening bridges and other property of coal hauling railroads. An attempt was made to blow up a bridge with dynamite at one point. Attempts to burn bridges have also been made in Illinois.

June 5.—Strikers outwitted the militia in the Sullivan county, Indiana, district to-day and burned several cars of coal. Maryland miners got beyond the sheriff's control at the George's Creek region near Cumberland and were quieted by State militia. Most of the troubles have been caused by striking miners endeavoring to intimidate or do violence to nonunion miners and to crews in charge of coal trains.

RIDGEWAY, Pa., June 5.—Hall, Kane & Co. have 170 negroes at work to-day at their Shawmut and Noble mines. Sixty-three strikers are in jail here. More deputies left here to-day armed with rifles and small arms. The men under arrest are held for unlawful assembly and for violating an injunction of court.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., June 5.—A crowd of 1,000 strikers camped near Painter's works last night and at daybreak the deputies fired upon them for the purpose of frightening them off. The fire was returned and one man was slightly wounded. The strikers, however, succeeded in keeping the new men away and no coke will be drawn to-day. The strikers declare that by the end of the week they will have all the works shut down.

OSKALOOSA, Io., June 5.—Early this morning there was an outbreak of 200 men and thirty women against the working miners, but no harm followed. The workers went into the mine and staid there. Preparations have been made for Wednesday morning that will insure peace. The Jasper county miners are marching down from Otley and a warm time may be had.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., June 5.—Alexander McIntosh, State organizer for the Miners' Union, read the arbitration agreement to the assembled miners and immediately all the men on Bull Hill laid down their arms, the pickets were called in, and the fortification abandoned. The town has been decorated with flags and the rejoicing over the settlement of the strike is general.

MCKEESPORT, Pa., June 5.—Never in the history of Western Pennsylvania labor troubles has there been more savage ferocity displayed than to-day by the striking workmen of the National Tube Works. Nonunion men had been employed and at the noon hour 1,000 strikers surrounded the works and awaited the appearance of the workmen, most of whom remained inside, but a few attempted to go to their homes and were caught by the mob and terribly beaten. The mob then dispersed but reassembled at six o'clock probably 5,000 strong. They finally broke into the yards of the works and attacked and beat the workmen in a merciless manner. Some of the latter in attempting to escape were pursued for miles. In some instances as many as ten or a dozen men attacked and brutally beat one nonunion man. The works are in possession of the mob. The mayor has issued a proclamation calling on the mob to disperse.

MCKEESPORT, Pa., June 6.—Thirty thousand dollars worth of property was destroyed and at least 1,500 workmen are idle as to-day's result of the strike of the National Tube Work's employes at McKeesport. Nearly every mill for miles on both sides of McKeesport is idle to-night. The owners of several large plants fear the plants will be wrecked by the mobs that are continually marching past them, and have closed them down. The mob 6,000 strong attacked the Duquesne Tube Works, drove the workmen out, drew the fires, and ran the hot metal from the furnaces on the floors, the reason assigned being that the workmen are using black sheep coal.

The strikers obtained three large cannons, which they planted in commanding positions on the river bank, and manned by eight men each. The guns are positioned so that they can be trained on the railroad bridges and the men have orders to fire if any attempt is made to bring deputies into the city.

Probably 300 men were hurt during the rioting yesterday, some of them seriously. Most of those hurt were foreigners, some of whose injuries may be fatal.

The coal strike: June 6.—Soldiers are guarding portions of the Terra Haute and Evansville road in Indiana. Some coal trains are moving under their protection. Strikers stoned a train and killed the engineer on the Vandavia road. Governor Matthews will declare martial law in Sullivan county on the 7th inst. unless local authorities are then able to handle the miners. Coal cars were sidetracked and guarded by miners at Montgomery.

PEORIA, Ill., June 6.—Strikers to the number of several hundred to-day charged the mine of E Little & Co., near Wesley City, opened fire upon, and drove the workingmen away with loss of life and limb, and completely destroyed the plant by setting fire to it. One man is dead, two are fatally injured, and a number wounded to an extent yet unknown. Excitement runs high and full particulars are not yet learned.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., June 6.—There will be no battle between the fortified union mines on Bull Hill and the army of 1,000 Deputy Sheriffs who are now encamped on Beaver Creek, less than five miles away, unless a treacherous move is made. The aspect of affairs was decidedly warlike until three o'clock this afternoon. The miners were willing to submit to the militia, but declared they would never be arrested until the troops arrived. Mayor Lindsay and President Parker of the First National Bank called up Sheriff Bowers by telephone and begged him to stop his deputies until the troops could reach camp. The sheriff agreed to this, and there is every reason to believe that there will be no further hostilities. Alexander McIntosh, representing the miners, announced that they would lay down their arms immediately on the arrival of the State troops. The deputies will follow the troops to the miners' camp and serve warrants which they are said to hold for 200 strikers.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—The House of Representatives voted down the amendment to repeal the tax on State bank circulation, by a majority of 70.

PUEBLO, Colo., June 6.—This city is again inundated, but the water is not so high as last week.

BRUSSELS, June 6.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day after three months' debate adopted by a vote of 70 to 44, the bill providing for a revision of the Constitution. The Independence Belge publishes a dispatch from Berlin saying that Emperor William of Germany has had a special report made to him upon the Anglo-Congo treaty, and that he intends to write a personal letter to King Leopold supporting the protest which Germany is understood to have made against this measure.

MADRID, June 2.—The River Serge, in the Province of Lerida, swollen by recent heavy rains, suddenly swept over the Seo de Urgel road to-day, destroying an inn and a warehouse. The bodies of fifteen drowned persons have been recovered and it is believed that fifty people lost their lives.

SOFIA, June 3.—Troops are still posted on the main streets of the city, but otherwise everything presents almost a normal aspect. The public gardens are closed with a view to preventing the holding of public meetings. Prince Ferdinand and the Princess were loudly cheered at noon when they appeared on the balcony of the palace to witness the mounting of the guard. A deputation of leading merchants went to the palace to-day to thank Prince Ferdinand for his recent action.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 3.—The dismissal of the Bulgarian Prime Minister Stambuloff by Prince Ferdinand caused a sensation here, but it is not regarded as menacing the peace of Europe or offering any prospect of the solution of the Bulgarian question, for Russia's objection was not to M. Stambuloff personally, but to Prince Ferdinand's occupation of the Bulgarian throne, which Russia holds to be a standing infraction of the Berlin treaty.

GLASGOW, June 3.—One hundred thousand persons witnessed, Saturday, a procession arranged by the Radicals as a demonstration against the House of Lords. Two donkeys formed an amusing feature of the procession. These animals, with coronets on their heads, were intended to be symbolical of the institution against which the demonstration was directed. A public meeting was held, at which resolutions were adopted demanding the abolition of the House of Lords.

LONDON, June 4.—A dispatch from Tientsin, China, says the revolution in the Provinces of Kirin and Manchourai, is extending greatly. Mounted banditti, armed with repeating rifles, have defeated the imperial troops in every engagement and have occupied several important positions, including the Sarsing arsenal, in which 100,000 rifles were stored. The situation is so alarming that Viceroy Li Hung Chang is gathering a large force of troops to suppress the rebellion.

A dispatch from Shanghai says: Owing to a strike of the artisans engaged in repairing the palace at Peking for the celebrations in honor of the birthday of the Empress Dowager, the Emperor promulgated a decree that all strikers should be punished without mercy; that the ringleaders should be strangled and the others banished to the fewer and mosquito regions. The strike speedily collapsed when this decision of the Emperor became known.

BERLIN, June 5.—Reports from Myslowitz, Prussian Silesia, say the number of cases of cholera have so increased that the lazaretto is overcrowded and that temporary huts have been erected for the accommodation of the sufferers. Three deaths are reported among the fishermen at Schillno, near the Russian frontier. The government has declared the Vistula to be infected and the baths have been closed.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 2.—As a result of the high water in the Missouri River the once prosperous village of Winthrop, thirty miles south of St. Joseph, will soon be wiped off the face of the earth.

Winthrop, which was a town of 1,500 people, has lost half its population, and as the houses cannot be sold they are being torn down and carried into the country. The work of demolishing the Methodist church, which cost $10,000 a year ago, is going on, it having been sold for $50 to a farmer who will use the material to make a barn. The river is within a few feet of it and unless he can finish by to-morrow the church will be carried away. Farmers who owned farms valued at $8,000 and $10,000 two months ago are without an acre of ground to-day.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 3.—Tacoma and Seattle are shut off absolutely from telegraphic communication with other points as the result of the big flood. Neither the Western Union nor the Postal Telegraph company has a wire from any direction running into the isolated cities.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 4.—Four million dollars will hardly cover the present loss by the Fraser River flood, and there is yet no sign of abatement. Waters are still rising, and as the warm weather continues and melts the snow in the Rockies there is no immediate prospect of beginning the work of restoration. One prominent railway official thinks the loss of life will reach 100, though conservative estimates are not so high. Bridges, trestles, tunnels, and trackings along the Canadian Pacific have gone, and the company has over 2,000 men working night and day. From Prevelstoke to the sea 380 miles along the railway is now a watery waste. The last point above Vancouver which can now be reached is Ruby Creek, eighty-two miles distant.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 4.—Slowly but steadily the waters continue to rise. Since last night six inches have been added to the depth. All the wires east and north are still down, and no news can be obtained from the Upper Columbia region of Puget Sound country. The only telegraphic communication with the outside world is by way of San Francisco. The Union Pacific steamer Harvest Queen, which left Portland yesterday for Cascades, was unable to make headway against the swift current and was tied up at Bonneville for the night. In this city many wharves along the river front are snapping and cracking. Should they give way serious damage will result.

CENTRAL CITY, Colo., June 4.—There is likely to be much suffering here for want of provisions. Along the creek the bed of the Gulf road is washed out for stretches of fifty to 500 feet in places, leaving the ties and rails suspended in mid-air. There are several bad landslides on the switch back. Trains cannot be run for a week or more.

CALLOWAY, Neb., June 5.—A gale raged here last night and when it was over the ground was literally covered with boards and debris from wrecked buildings, most of the business blocks and residences escaping serious injury. The Grand Army Hall, a large frame building used as a lodge-room by various societies, was a total wreck. The Episcopal church was blown off its foundation and badly twisted. The Methodist church was in the same condition: the schoolhouse, a fine two-story brick building, was a total wreck. The damage will reach many thousands of dollars.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 7.—The committee of ten coal operators appointed to consider the matter of settling the strike on a basis of 65 cents a ton or less met to-day and by a vote of six to four decided not to settle. The matter came up in the form of a resolution to send a committee to the conference at Columbus to settle in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. The proposition was voted down, and it was decided to fight. President De Armit of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company led the opposition. The operators who want a settlement are skirmishing to-night to get a good attendance at a meeting of operators to-morrow, when it is expected to-day's action will be overridden and a committee sent to the conference.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 7.—The black plague at Canton, Hongkong, and elsewhere in China has spread with great rapidity and both natives and foreign colonists are in a state bordering on panic. The ravages of the pest have been aggravated by a drought extending over eight months. At last advices the epidemic assumed a virulent form, and in six hours thirty-three deaths were reported. Officers have been detailed to look after the dead bodies found in the houses and streets. The plague had its origin in filth and dirt.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 7.—The following was given out by the State Board of Agriculture to-day: The State Entomologist reports the receipt this spring of a large number of requests for advice and assistance on account of injury by chinch bugs to small grain and a prospect of much greater injury to corn throughout Southern and South Central Illinois, twenty-four counties in that region being at present more or less involved. Most of these correspondents wish material for the introduction of the contagious diseases of the chinch bug into their fields, and the State Agricultural Experiment Station has consequently made an appropriation sufficient to enable Prof. Forbes to supply this demand.

Those wishing to avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded to experiment with this method should send to him at Campaign, Ill., 1,000 to 5,000 live chinch bugs, inclosed in a tight tin box, from a pint to a quart in capacity. This box should be about half filled with green vegetation, preferably wheat or corn, and sent by mail or express, accompanied by a note of advice. In return Prof. Forbes will send, with the least possible delay, a stock of infected chinch bugs, with full directions for their use. A circular of information concerning this and other better known measures of defense against the chinch bugs recommended for use this season may be had on application to Agricultural Experiment Station at Campaign, Ill.

DETROIT, Mich., June 7.—Mayor Pingree to-day started a scheme to turn over all the idle land within the city limits to the poor. They are to have it until the end of the crop year to raise whatsoever they please for their subsistence next winter. The Mayor will at once set about raising a fund to supply them all the tools and seeds or plants they need. Within an hour after the project was made public, the Mayor had several hundred acres pledged.

LONDON, June 7.—A dispatch to the Times from Calcutta says: "Dr. Haffkine, from Pasteur's laboratory in Paris, made a course of experiments here, inoculating 116 out of 200 persons occupying a group of native huts and subject to cholera. Soon after he had completed his work the disease broke out among the people. Ten of them were attacked and seven died. All of the cases occurred among those who had not been inoculated with Dr. Haffkine's preventive."

CHICAGO, June 8.—Cigarettes occupied the attention of the Central Woman's Christian Temperance Union yesterday morning at its monthly meeting. Some women gave an account of their personal observations of the deadly effect of the paper-encased abominations in a way that gave their hearers the horrors. It opened the eyes of a great many who, while they knew the effects of cigarette smoking were exceedingly bad, had no conception of the real extent of the horror. A. S. Trude received the highest compliments for the part he had taken in the crusade against the cigarette.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 8.—By a vote of 63 to 53 the railroad coal operators of Pittsburg this morning decided to attend the Columbus convention to-morrow, and immediately after this decision was announced the minority operators bolted the convention and refused to be bound by the action of the meeting of to-morrow. The opposition was headed by W. P. De Armit, who has steadily opposed all efforts to end the strike except at the old wages.

COLUMBUS, O., June 8.—President John McBride made the following statement concerning the conference to be held to-morrow: While meetings have been arranged for the different districts, no proposition will be finally acted upon before it has been referred to national headquarters. This is no way in opposition to the resolution adopted by the convention of April 14 in this city, that inaugurated the suspension, and the only purpose is to begin at the bottom and try to arrange for a national settlement instead of continuing the policy of striving to arrive at a settlement at the top. There is no truth in the report that the miners are weakening. On the other hand they are more determined now than ever before.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., June 8.—The excellent conduct of the State troops acting upon the politic order of Gen. Brooks has greatly tempered the intense animosity that the deputies and the strikers have felt towards each other and the chances for a conflict are more remote than for any time since the forces arrived. The militia from its position between the two armies has moved so as to prevent either side making an attack, and they have executed their orders in such a politic manner that they have won the regard of both sides. Several times the deputies began an advance, but were cut off by the troops. The warlike attitude of the miners is so far changed that many of those for whom warrants have been issued have scattered in all directions, and it is not at all likely that Sheriff Bowers will find many of the men whom he wants.

PHENIX, Ari., June 8.—Four hundred thousand acres of fruit land are to be reclaimed in Arizona. The cost of the work already contracted for will be $2,000,000. Telegrams from Minneapolis announce that the contract has been let to R. B. Langdon for 110 miles of canal work at Storage dam, 150 feet high, at Horseshoe bend, on the Verde River; also a diversion dam on the same twelve miles from Mount Dowell. Work is to be completed within eighteen months. The land which will be reclaimed will be the choicest fruit and grain land in Arizona. For three years the enterprise has been under way and nearly $100,000 has been spent in survey and preliminary work. Mr. Doolittle, Secretary of the Rio Verde Canal company, says work will begin within thirty days and be completed during 1895. This is the biggest contract ever let in the United States for reclamation of desert land.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 8.—Company G. C. N. G., of Leadville, seized a Denver and Rio Grande train to-day and demanded to be taken to Cripple Creek. The soldiers held the train until they got transportation.

GREAT BRITAIN'S BIG ARMY.

The physique of the British army may not perhaps be all that it ought to be, but so far as numbers are concerned our military forces are in a satisfactory condition. In case of need we could put into the field for service at home a force of 332,000 men, exclusive of the militia reserve. We have 94,000 militia, 10,000 yeomanry, and nearly 228,000 volunteers. The regular army numbers close upon 220,000 of all ranks, and these could, on an emergency, be supplemented by 80,000 reserve men and 30,000 militia reservists, making in all a total of 330,000 men for service abroad. We have thus a grand total of 662,000 men available for service at home and abroad. At no time was there so large a force of enrolled men ready to be called upon for service should occasion arise.—London Court Journal.

A paper which should interest all thinking women, particularly mothers, is Mrs. Alzina Parsons Stevens' discussion of "The Child, the Factory, and the State" in the June Arena. Mrs. Stevens is the Assistant Inspector of Factories of the State of Illinois, and she has all the facts at her fingers' ends and knows what she is writing about. The picture she shows—a plain statement of statistics—of disease and misery and slave-wages and insecure employment should make some impression upon the minds of those who have had happy childhoods and strive to secure happiness for their own little ones.

"Constitutional Home Rule for Cities" is discussed by Mr. Wm. H. Hotchkiss in the June Review of Reviews. The plan recommended is a combination of the initiative and referendum as now in force in several States.

WHY IS IT?

That Hercules Gas and Gasoline Engines are held by the public in so much higher estimation than other engines? The parties using these engines, and their name is legion, are the ones who can best answer this question. They well know the ease and promptness with which these engines are started and the very little care they require to keep them running month after month with the most perfect satisfaction. They run without a spark battery, which is admitted to be unreliable. The simple ignition tubes of the Hercules Engines are far better. Send for catalogue. If you want second-hand engines of other makes at cheap rates we can supply you. We have a number taken in trade and cannot take any more until these are realized on. VOICE OF WARNING AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL PEOPLE;

OR AN INTRODUCTION TO THE FAITH AND DOCTRINE OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

This work in its graphic review of the prophecies and history of God's dealings with his people in past ages, together with the abundant proofs concerning the work of the latter days, the gathering and restoration of Israel to their ancient home in Palestine, is a book for the times. The author presents the prophetic evidences of the restoration of the gospel in "the dispensation of the fullness of times," showing the evidences in favor of a restoration of primitive Christianity and the organization of the apostolic church with its apostleship and priesthood—its authority—its powers and gifts. CHEMISTRY IN THE YEAR 2000.

A REMARKABLE speech was delivered by M. Berthelot at a banquet of the Syndical Chamber of Chemical Product Manufacturers. M. Berthelot's subject was: "The World in the Year 2000." After saying that he looked to chemistry for deliverance from present day social evils, and for the possibility of realizing the socialists' dreams, that is, if a spiritual chemistry could be discovered to change human nature as deeply as chemical science could modify the globe, he continued: "This change will be greatly due to chemistry utilizing the heat of the sun and the central heat of the glob. The latter can be obtained by shafts 3,000 or 4,000 meters in depth. Modern engineers are equal to the task of sinking them. The water down so deep would be hot and able to keep all possible machinery going. By natural distillation it would furnish fluid free from microbes, and would be an unlimited source of chemical and electrical energy. This could be everywhere developed, and thousands of years might pass without any noticeable diminution. With such a source of heat all chemical transformations will be easy. The production of alimentary matters will be a consequence. This production is in principle resolved, and has been for forty years, by the syntheses of grease and oils.

"That of hydrates of carbon is going on, and that of nitrogenous substances is not far off. When energy can be cheaply obtained, food can be made from carbon taken from carbonic acid, hydrogen taken from water, and nitrogen taken from the air. What work the vegetables have so far done, science will soon be able to do better, and with far greater profusion, and independently of seasons or evil microbes or insects. There will then be no passion to own land, beasts need not be bred for slaughter, man will be milder and more moral, and barren regions may be preferable to fertile as habitable places, because they will not be pestiferous from ages of manuring. The reign of chemistry will beautify the planet. There will, under it, be no need to disfigure it with the geometrical works of the agriculturist or with the grime of factories and chimneys. It will recover its verdure and flora. The earth will be a vast pleasure garden, and the human race will live in peace and plenty. But it will not be idle, for idleness is not happiness, and work is the source of all virtue. In the earth, renewed by chemistry, people will work more than ever, but according to their special tastes and facilities and from high and noble motives. The great object will then be to develop more and more the aesthetic and the intellectual faculties."

BETWEEN FATHER AND SON.

WE have a great deal to say in our literature about the confidence that should exist between a mother and her daughter, but we ignore altogether too much the frankness that should exist between a father and his son, writes Edward W. Bok in "At Home with the Editor" in the June Ladies' Home Journal. It is not right to expect that our girls shall bear the whole burden of moral responsibility. Our boys must be taught that the world expects uprightness in a man just as much as it looks for it in a woman. If the men of to-day are protected by an unfair moral discrimination, that is no reason why the men of to-morrow should be so sheltered. If it is for women to elevate their conception of the moral standard for men, it is for the young men of to-day to adjust themselves to that higher measurement. A healthy frankness between the boys of to-day and their fathers is the first step. This is man's part in the aim for social purity. Women must cease their blinking at actions in men which they will not tolerate in women; men, to whom experience has come, must unfold to the younger men. It is a favor to a boy that his feelings shall be analyzed for him by his father; that he be taught that his self-control, or his loss of it, means an ascent or a descent in the social scale. There is no harm in a father pointing out these things to his son; the harm comes when the father neglects to do so. A young man should never be expected in any point of morality to experience what his father can explain and warn him against.

HOW THE ANCIENTS HARDENED COPPER.

IN a paper read by J. H. Gladstone, D.Sc., F.R.S., before the Society of Biblical Archeology, London, on February 6, attention is drawn to the composition and character of the copper tools in use in Asia Minor before the age of bronze. The specimens examined by Dr. Gladstone consisted of copper tools from Lachish, and date from a period which, according to Mr. Bliss, was earlier than 1,500 B. C., and consequently in pre-Israelitish days. They contained no more than an accidental trace of tin, but they were hard and brittle, qualities due to the presence of a large percentage of suboxide of copper. The present mound, the site of the ancient city of Lachish, has been cut down by Mr. Bliss to the level of the valley, and found to consist of the ruins of several Amoritish towns, one about the other, overlaid by a stratum of ashes and sand, and then the ruins of the Israelitish towns. In these several strata we are able to trace, in the same city, the gradual transition from copper tools to bronze ones, and their gradual replacement as the manufacture of iron became better understood. It is curious to notice that flint implements are found from the lower Amoritish to the highest Israelitish period, some of the latest being of very beautiful manufacture. —Literary Digest.

"LET THEM ALONE SEVERELY."

ELSEWHERE in this issue will be found an extraordinary article, entitled, "Card to the Elders," the reading of which we commend to the Saints generally and the eldership especially. Of this card we have something to write.

Sometime this last spring, Francis M. Lyman, one of the Twelve of the Utah Church, and B. H. Roberts, one of the Seventy, made an effort at San Bernardino, California, to set the claims of their faith before the citizens of that place. They were permitted to use the church building owned by the Reorganized Church in which to hold services, and our people gave them a hearing. In the course of his sermons, Elder Roberts presented and urged the claim of the Utah polygamous church to be the church in legal succession to the church organized by Joseph Smith, April 6, 1830, and strongly antagonized the position of the Reorganized Church and the right of the son of Joseph Smith, to the leadership and the validity of the claim made by the Reorganized Church to be the true successor of the Original Church. Brethren William Gibson, R. R. Dana, and Daniel L. Harris of the local branch at San Bernardino, with a view to the proper presentation of the views of the two churches, reviewed Messrs. Lyman and Roberts, and in doing it challenged these representative men to a discussion to be held in the most suitable place in the city, or elsewhere, as the disputants might agree. Messrs. Lyman and Roberts did not at once show a disposition to meet our brethren in discussion stating that they were not certain that they would be allowed by the home authorities to accept such challenge. Brn. Dana and Harris then made it their business to write us of what they had done, and asked whether they would be sustained in offering the gauge of debate to these Utah elders. We put the matter in the hands of Pres. W. W. Blair, and instructed Brn. Dana and Harris to push the affair to a termination. The brethren prepared a properly worded epistle containing a challenge to discussion, and forwarded it to President Wilford Woodruff by registered letter. This challenge has now been heard from, the "Card to the Elders" being the first tidings received at this office in reference to the letters of Brn. Dana, Harris, and Gibson. Wonders never cease. The day was once, when to offer a defiance to debate to a Latter Day Saint of any faction or degree of faith, who was in any sort a representative of other and contending faith was to secure a discussion at once on the points claimed to be at issue. "How have the mighty fallen!"

We commend to the attention of Presidents Woodruff, Cannon, and Smith:—

1. The sons of Joseph Smith, the Palmyra Seer, are not seeking notoriety in their adoption and advocacy of the faith of their father.

2. These sons are seeking to counteract the evil notoriety which has attached to the name and religion of their father by reason of the unwarranted and ungodlike teaching and practices of those who essayed at the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith to lead the church, and did lead many into a clear and positive departure from the faith as delivered to the prophet and seer, and as taught and practiced by the church during the lifetime and ministry of that first President of the church.

3. Neither the sons of the Prophet Joseph Smith, nor the men with them from whom come these challenges referred to by Presidents Woodruff, Smith, and Cannon, are apostates from the faith of the true church. They are in cool, persistent, and independent earnest in their faith and opinions touching the church, its doctrines, and its practices, and are ready to exchange views with representative men of all classes of religion; and especially so with that body for whom these Presidents of the Utah Church assume to speak.

4. No amount of dignified self-assertion on the part of Presidents Woodruff, Cannon, and Smith that the Utah contingent of so-called Latter Day Saints properly represents and stands for the Church of Jesus Christ organized April 6, 1830, will either justify that claim or satisfy the sons of the prophet and those with them in "California, or elsewhere," or deter them from demanding an examination and comparison of claims in public, and before the people to whom the elders from Utah are sent to teach that the church in the valleys is the church, and Utah, the Zion.

5. Presidents Woodruff, Cannon, and Smith may "think it folly to submit the claims of their Church or the Priesthood to the arbitrament of man;" and we agree with them that for them to so submit their claims to a fair and candid and open examination before their own people and those opposed to them in faith to the latter-day work, and to the outside world, for an arbitrament of public opinion, would be "folly" for them. But it must occur to these Presidents as it does to others, that this appeal to the opinion of the public is constantly being made by those whom these Presidents send out, and whom they now seek to muzzle, in the very fact of their presenting religious claims adverse to all others with the persistent cry, "This is the Bible faith; examine it and see." "Bring forth your strong reasons." "Come, let us reason together."

The Lord commanded Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery in December, 1831:—

Now, behold, this is wisdom; whose readeth let him understand and receive also; for unto him that receiveth it shall be given more abundantly, even power; wherefore, confound your enemies; call upon them to meet you, both in public and in private; and inasmuch as ye are faithful, their shame shall be made manifest. Wherefore let them bring forth their strong reasons against the Lord. Verily thus saith the Lord unto you, there is no weapon that is formed against you shall prosper; and if any man lift his voice against you, he shall be confounded in mine own due time; wherefore, keep my commandments: they are true and faithful. Even so. Amen.—Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 71 (old edition 91), par. 2.

Being fully satisfied that this commandment was from the Lord, we have read and received it; and, assuming that the teaching and practices of the church in Utah under the leadership and presidency of Presidents Brigham Young, John Taylor, Wilford Woodruff, and their counselors, have been inimical to the fair name and fame of the church and its prosperity, and to the faith and eternal well-being of the true disciples and the honest seekers for "the way, the truth, and the life," we call on these men and their representatives to meet us "in public and in private," as the law provides, for a consideration and examination of those matters in which all honest men on both sides of the controversy have, and of right should have a deep and continuing interest.

6. This call is not made in bravado, or to secure notoriety, as suggested by Presidents Woodruff, Cannon, and Smith; for the teaching and practices of the church in Utah have given the name of Smith all the "notoriety" needful; but it is made in the firm conviction that the truth involved in the matters stated in the challenge lies with the Reorganized Church; and for the purpose that the hurtful "notoriety" heretofore unjustly attached to the name of Joseph Smith and what he taught may be dissipated, and the blame for it may be placed where it properly belongs, upon those who now seek to evade the consequences of their acts by refusing to discuss those acts and the causes for them.

7. The Elders of the Reorganized Church, at home and abroad, are hereby instructed to offer to the representatives of the Utah Mormon Church opportunity for discussion of the matters of faith, doctrine, and practice, upon which differences of opinion and conviction are held; and to insist upon such discussion with each respective elder with whom they may severally come into contact in their work in the missionary field and in the branches; and in case any of those elders whom they may thus meet shall refuse to meet and discuss fair propositions for debate of disputed issues, secure from those so denying, if possible, a written statement of refusal stating the reason for such refusal, properly signed or, if the written statement is refused, get the denial in the presence of a witness. By doing this it will be finally made apparent who are and who are not right in the controversy, and the word of the Lord in the revelation quoted be proved.

JOSEPH SMITH.

THE MARCH ON WASHINGTON.

THE HERALD has received two written articles and one note inclosing clipping from an agitating paper called the Nonconformist, all denouncing the mention made of Gen. Coxe's movement on the capital in HERALD for May 16th. We publish the following, being the more moderate of the two written articles, and shall there let the matter rest, as we do not care to get into, or continue a controversy so fruitless as one on the Coxe movement at present would be with those who have written us on the topic.

Editors Herald:—Having noticed a piece in the Herald of May 16, which I think does not represent the laboring class in their true light, and as I believe the Coxeyites are largely composed of that class. Now nothing exists without a cause, and if a man cannot make his bread by the sweat of his face, under the present condition of the country, what is he to do? There are men working in this State whose wages has not averaged over fifteen dollars per month for several months, and they are married men who pay six dollars per month house rent. That leaves them nine dollars to feed and clothe a family of five or six children, including himself and wife. Now fifteen dollars will not pay a single man's board, and if he gets discouraged and joins the Coxeyites he is denounced, as if he did not want to make his bread by the sweat of his face. I am not discussing the wisdom of the movement, but I think it would be well to discuss the cause of it.

Whatever may be the fate of Coxe's army, it will do good; it is one of the many indications of wide-spread discontent. While its numbers are few, it carries the message of millions. It is right and proper that every effort should be put forward for a peaceable adjustment of the wrongs which weigh down the producers of wealth, and whatever may be the outcome of Coxe's march to Washington, one thing is true; they have the sympathies of the masses of people, for they bear the flag of truce, the emblem of peace, and I think it is the best method of showing the condition of the country; for it is an evident fact that something has to be done, for labor has been oppressed and beaten down so long that it has got to revolt; for there are thousands of families on the verge of starvation in this country, in a land of plenty.

And because labor has joined hands and marched to Washington to try and better its condition the newspapers of the land put them down as tramps and vagabonds; and our Herald helps them out by saying the Coxeyites are largely composed of the unemployed who would not work if work was offered. Now there may be some of that class, but it is far from being largely composed of that class. And if they were all of that class, what is the cause of it? Why should there be so many tramps in this land of plenty? I have heard orators say a land overflowing with milk and honey. It is because labor does not receive a just recompense for labor performed and is trampled under the feet of capital, hence hundreds of millionaires and thousands of paupers. The Herald, as I understand, is a church organ for the purpose of instructing and edifying the Saints, and I do not think it is right to take up the question of labor. Moreover, we are taught in Matthew 7: 1: "Judge not that ye be not judged."

Hoping you will give me space in Herald for this, I remain.

Yours in bonds,

J. W. LOACH.

LIBERAL RELIGION.

WE have from time to time noticed that several of the advanced (or advancing) thinkers in religious societies had in contemplation the organization of some sort of body corporate, for the purpose of dissemination of liberal ideas in religion. This organization has been about inaugurated in Chicago. The incorporators are Dr. Hiram W. Thomas, Rabbi E. G. Hirsch, Jenkins Lloyd Jones, A. N. Alcott, and Leo Fox, all of Chicago. The Roster of the society is as follows:—

President—H. W. Thomas.
Vice Presidents—T. W. Higginson, Cambridge, Mass.; Dr. E. G. Hirsch, Chicago; M. J. Savage, Boston; Marion D. Shutter, Minneapolis; H. Newton, New York City; William Salter, Philadelphia; B. F. Underwood, Chicago; Susan B. Anthony, Rochester; Mrs. Celia Woolley.

General Secretary—Jenkin Lloyd Jones and as many assistants as are necessary.

Treasurer—Leo Fox, Chicago.

Board of Directors—R. W. Whitmore, St. Louis; F. E. Dewhurst, Indianapolis; Florence Kollock, Pasadena, Cal.; A. W. Martin, Tacoma; Caroline Bartlett, Kalamazoo; J. H. Crooker, Helena, Mont.; L. W. Sprague, San Francisco; J. H. Acton, Aurora, Ill.; Alexander Kent, Washington, D. C.; A. M. Alcott, Elgin, Ill.; Arthur Judy, Davenport; J. D. Ludden, St. Paul; Merle St. C. Wright, New York City; A. W. Bisbee, Philadelphia; John Faville, Appleton, Wis.; W. L. Sheldon, St. Louis; W. C. Crowe, Newark, N. J.; A. W. Gould, Chicago; J. H. Eeob, Albany, N. Y.; S. J. Barrows, Boston; W. I. Nichols, Philadelphia; Anna Garlin Spencer, Providence; Mrs. Henry Solomon, Chicago; Clara Conway, Memphis, Tenn.; Rabbi Wise, Cincinnati; Mrs. C. T. Catlin, Brooklyn; Dr. Thomas Kerr, R. A. White, Chicago; Miss Ida Hultin, Rockford, Ill.; Prof. M. M. Mangasarian, Chicago.

Incorporators—Drs. Thomas and Hirsch, Messrs. Jones, Alcott, and Leo Fox.

The society will be incorporated under the laws of Illinois.

An effort was made to have all the denominations represented on the list of officers.

The seal of the organization is to be an outline of the earth, across the equator of which is to be inscribed "Humanity." Around this are to be grouped the words "Knowledge," "Justice," "Love," and "Reverence."

In regard to membership in the society it was decided:—

That any church or society in sympathy with the movement and contributing a certain amount into the treasury of the society annually should be entitled to three delegates at the annual meetings of the congress and a delegate for each additional 100 of membership; societies which have a membership of less than 100 to be entitled to one delegate; State Presidents of religious societies liberal in character who so desire to be members ex-officio.

One of the significant papers read at the three days session of the congress was by Rev. John Faville, of Appleton, Wisconsin, a digest of which reads thus:—

They tell us that there are one hundred and forty-three religious denominations in the world. We can belong to forty-two distinct families. We can be seventeen different kinds of a Methodist, sixteen kinds of a Lutheran, thirteen kinds of a Baptist, twelve kinds of a Presbyterian, seven kinds of a Catholic, six kinds of an Adventist, and many kinds of a Congregationalist. What we want above everything else is cooperation. We want to help the people get nearer together. Our first business is to love, not discuss. The trouble is that we have put love of truth before love of men. Our separations are neither logical nor sensible. If I try to defend my non-fellowship how can I explain that I admit the Armenian to my pulpit and keep out the Universalist. These one hundred and forty-three denominations comprise only one people.

The elders have often stated that there are some hundreds of differing religions extant; but these men who are seeking to build up a unity in creed by an abolishment of sectism find only one hundred and forty-three families of religions, the minor distinctions counting nothing in classification.

The effort is to get some kind of religious platform upon which those who may become dissatisfied with denomination faiths, may find a home and a school in which they may develop and grow without the aid of the discarded idols.

The idea of unity, absolute, in one codified form of religion was met by Dr. Albion W. Small, of Chicago, like this:—

Aside from theological partisanship there are sufficient causes for ecclesiastical factionalism in elements of human nature which are beyond modification by treaty. One man believes with his affections, another with his intellect, another with his will. The cloister is no natural resort for the saint of the sword, nor the administration office for the saint of sentiment, nor the battle-field for the saint of the syllogism. No more can ritualist and rationalist and literalist consort together for common edification. Until people are born with such temperaments that they can be comfortable in a single church we may as well consider a multitude of sects as virtually an expression of essential social economy. Unity between some people is inversely as their distance. Let us be joyful that it is so, and let not man try to unite what God puts asunder. From the sociological standpoint, religion, and union for promotion of human weal are only different phases of the same fact. Religion without humane coöperation is like health apart from a body. A first principle of sociology is recognition of the economy of functional differences in society.

There will be an effort to establish summer Chautauqua societies, and to endow a chair in the Chicago University to further the spreading of liberal religious education. There are to be missionary efforts undertaken in all places where the symptoms of success might be found; and a local general headquarters established in Chicago.

The affair closed with a reception to the delegates, at the Standard Club, the attendance numbering some five or six hundred. The exercises terminated with a banquet spread for four hundred and fifty at ten o'clock p. m.

The object intended to be served by these men is beyond question good—as they see it. Will it be productive of good to the masses? will remain a question for some time. At present we fancy that it will be a sort of forensic arena in which favorite representative men will contend sharply against real and supposed obstacles in the way of the spread of the creed of the society to each others mutual satisfaction. The names of many of the delegates are guarantees that brilliant thought, keen wit, and cultured rhetoric and logic will characterize the assembling together of the clans that shall array under this new banner.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

The following card from Bro. T. W. Chatburn is explanative of itself:—

PLATTSBURG, Mo., June 7.—I was telegraphed to come with all speed to this city to assist in caring for a debate between Bro. John Smith and one "Stone," of this city, but it has collapsed prematurely. I regret the trip, as I had to call in other appointments. Brethren contemplating discussion should before entering into arrangements inform those in charge, giving full particulars. It would be the means of avoiding much trouble. The one in charge is supposed to know as to the responsibilities of the parties concerned. It is unwise to discuss with anyone when by so doing it cheapens our brethren, or brings no credit to our cause. We should never trail our banner in the dust, bringing discredit to the truth we bear.

Bro. J. B. Roush, Sheridan, Illinois, June 7:—

I preached twice last Sunday at Mission to large congregations. Bro. Kier and I have our district tent pitched in this town, and last night began meetings with fairly good attendance. This is the first time the tent has been used. Everybody pronounces it a good tent.

Bro. Amos Berve, Burnham, Michigan, June 5:—

We need more elders here. There are many believing and ready, but no one to conduct them into the kingdom. May God call others, as the harvest truly is great but the laborers few.

Bro. C. J. Hunt, Panama, Iowa, June 8:—

The Galland's Grove district conference at Deloit, Iowa, June 1-3, was one of the largest in attendance and most joyous ever held in the district. The Sunday school entertainment, Saturday night, was a grand success. I came to this place yesterday and have the gospel tent erected, nicely seated with backs on the seats, and expect to remain here as long as interest demands. I then go to Defiance, Iowa.

Bro. Henry C. Smith, East Pharsalia, Chenango county, New York, June 11:—

Baptized and confirmed three on yesterday; heads of families. Never has been preaching here before by our elders; believe a good work is to be done in its time. Much prejudice prevailing just now, but think it melting away a little. Have held seven services. They want to see a copy of the Herald.

Bro. I. N. Roberts, Spencer, South Dakota, June 7:—

I am holding forth every night; interest is good. It is very dry; wheat is in bad shape.

Bro. J. F. Burton, San Benito, California, June 3:—

Surely the hastening time is upon us; in my labors thus far this year I have had the exact fulfillment of the promise made through Bro. Joseph in preaching: Doors are opening, people are prepared to hear, and in occupying after angels have gone before. The Holy Spirit blesses all we can stand. God be praised.

Bro. B. F. Pollard writes from Isaca, Texas, June 12:—

I am one of the scattered ones; have no opportunities of meeting with Saints or hearing the restored gospel, and write thinking perchance some elder might pass this way and stay a few days and let me hear the gospel trump one more time. I am on the transcontinental division of the T. & P. R. R., forty-four miles west of Texarkana, and forty-four east of Paris, Texas. I will care for an elder what time he will stay, and assist him in any way I can to get an opening. I am in the east part of Red River county, about thirty-five or forty miles from Manchester. The place is known as Douglas. The Herald is a weekly visitor and is all the preaching I get.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

ELDER W. W. BLAIR reports an excellent conference held near Henderson, Iowa, the 9th and 10th inst.; the attendance was full; five additions by baptism; two ordinations—one elder and one priest. Harmony, unity, zeal, and a fair measure of spirituality prevailed. Here, as at Council Bluffs, Omaha, Moorhead, and some other places, the ministry and membership express increasing confidence in the stability and future progress of the church, and testify of an increase in spiritual light and confirmation since the beginning of the present conference year.

Bro. A. Worden, of Hector, Minnesota, would like the addresses of the elders of that mission for the purpose of correspondence. He is of the opinion that an opening can be made at Hector, notwithstanding opposition is strong.

Bro. J. T. Williams, of Bevier, Missouri, acknowledges the good help of the Saints during the past year, and hopes that the present year will be more fruitful of good results than the last, though he thinks the district did well.

Troublous times still hold at Bevier, and the mining region round it, on account of the strike. The local elders, and Bro. D. E. Tucker, missionary, are doing much to spread the work.

Bro. J. Alfred Davis was at work in the cause in the regions about Fanning, Kansas, and found that the efforts of Mr. William Kirby, a whilom Mormon, to injure the cause were not so successful as Mr. Kirby would desire. The fact is that Satan and hostile men overreach themselves by their own cunning, and overdo their hostility in such way that it recoils upon them. Bro. Davis says of Mr. Kirby: "His efforts were fruitless and proved a perfect failure."

Sr. Huldah Flinn, Amity, Missouri, reports a prosperous Sunday school in operation at that place, which has been made a success after persistent work and prayer. Members of other denominations send their children to it and a good work is being done in behalf of many.

Bro. George and Sr. Ella Thayer write, recounting how they and others of the scattered Saints in and about Bennington, Michigan, meet when convenient and enjoy themselves in worship and in social exercises. When none of the ministry is present one of their number occasionally reads a sermon, and God blesses their assembling. Bro. Phelps' labors are commended. He has preached and baptized in that region, and others are to obey, the fruits of his labors.

Letters are received from Sr. Jessie Blackmun, Moorhead, Iowa, and Sr. C. E. Jobe, West Fork, Indiana.

Sr. E. Sartwell, Savanna, Carroll county, Illinois, commends the labors of brethren who have preached there. She requests that others who intend laboring at Sheridan will notify them that public notice may be given.

Brn. F. A. Smith and F. M. Weld have been holding meetings in the Christian church, in a schoolhouse, and in the town hall—at Liscomb, Iowa, and vicinity—a new field in the Des Moines district. They have been well received and at date of writing, the 11th inst., were to continue services over Sunday the 17th, when they would go to Eagle Grove. Bro. Weld was to proceed to the Galland's Grove district at an early day. Bro. A. H. Smith had gone to Pelican Rapids, Minnesota, after the Des Moines district conference. Bro. Fred joins others in reporting increased liberty in preaching the word.

Most of the letters from the brethren in the present number of the HERALD are brief and to the point, and on that account we are able to insert quite a number. The essential points have been concentrated and the essence of their labors is reported. This method gives almost all a hearing.

Bro. J. S. Oman of Winters, Zolo county, California, wishes us to give notice through the HERALD that all the traveling ministry in general on the Pacific Slope will find a welcome home at his residence. This is a place where the gospel has never been preached, but it is a town of more churches for the size of the place than any other town upon the coast. It is a place that is known all over the Sacramento Valley for its charity to the poor.

Bro. Hilliard, of the Bishopric, called at the Herald Office on his way to the Nodaway, Missouri, conference. He looks well and reports excellent work done in the String Prairie and Nauvoo district for the last month.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Leave God to order all thy ways,
And hope in him whate'er betide;
Thou'lt find him in the evil days
An all-sufficient strength and guide;
Who trusts in God's unchanging love
Builds on a rock that naught can move."

UNDER THE SNOW.

Under the snow the sweet flowers are sleeping,
Down in the shadows of seeming decay;
Each little heart still with tender trust keeping

Beautiful faith in the far-away May.
O'er them the wild wintry tempest is raving,
Yet, meekly bowing to nature's decree,
Chilled tiny pulses the storm king are braving,
Soothed by sweet dreams of the life yet to be.

Wrapped in a vision of spring's pleasant glances,
Joyously clad in the sun's golden rays,
O'er them seem waving her green leafy branches,
Soft winds and song birds rehearsing their praise.
Thus, in bright dreaming, the fair-jeweled flowers
Calmly repose through the dark wintry woe,
Waiting the call of the warm sunny hours—
Dear little monitors under the snow!

Under the clouds of suffering and sorrow,
Lieth full many a trust of the soul;
Just as we looked for the brighter to-morrow,
Just as our footsteps were nearing the goal,
O'er us hath swept the dark storm of affliction,

Crushing the promise so lovely and bright,
Bearing the gems of our sweetest affection
Down to the silence and darkness of night.

And it may be as each hope faileth sadly—
Whether our path be the deserts of sands,
Or on the highlands of life walk we gladly,
Over soft meadows of beautiful lands—
Ah, it may be that the tender All-Father
Severs each tie in his wisdom and love,
Knowing that only by this we shall gather Blossoms to bloom in the bright fields above. —Selected.

IT IS POSSIBLE.

"YES, it is possible!"

"It may be in some cases, but I am so nervous, every little annoyance disturbs me, and then I fret and scold and can't help it."

Can't you, brother, sister? So we have thought—with them all things are possible—but go on.

"Well, as I was going to say: Frequently a dissatisfied, despondent feeling follows—and sometimes nervous prostration has taken me down. O dear, dear, what an awful condition for one to be in! The brightest of blessings seem to be shrouded in darkness. Life does not seem worth living, and oftentimes the thought of death is the only thing that gives pleasure."

Such is and has been the emotions of thousands, and we are sorry to be obliged to state that the writer knows by bitter experience the agonies of such a state, and she also knows that life is worth living and that happiness can be found and enjoyed even in this world. There is a remedy that cannot fail to heal, no matter what may have been the cause, or how severe the case, or of how long standing. It is just as sure as the foundations of the earth and just as old. It has always existed, but has not always been recognized, consequently it has not had its perfect work.

There has been a cause for all those wrong feelings, and if one can find out the cause of his or her own troubles and let it alone, and begin anew it will be well. Nervous prostration, or other forms of nervousness, are liable to follow overexertion, either mental or physical, and not unfrequently the two are combined, which results in a wreck of one who might otherwise have been eminent.

If a child is born in possession of a full development and is properly cared for and rightly educated, there is no reason why he or she should not come up to the pattern of manhood or womanhood. Why, then, are there so many who have never attained it?

It is because they have imbibed the evil that has surrounded them instead of drinking freely and frequently at the fountain of life. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." If we are filled with evil thoughts, whether fretful or revengeful, repining or discontented, each and every one will tend to make us like itself; so the way to be healed of such a dire and contagious disease is to apply the sure remedy—the love of Christ.

Yes, praise God, there are thousands to-day who can by happy experience say that this remedy is infallible. It matters not whether the patient is rich or poor in the good things of earth, or where he is located, but he must have faith in God through Christ, or through Christ's teaching, and be meek and submissive to his will. Then are we immersed in his love and then are we healed of whatever infirmity we may be afflicted with.

Long before we ever heard of "divine healing," the words, "Lay aside all medicine and I will heal thee," came to our mind with great force, but the inveterate habit of medicating was so strong, and as there was no one to give an encouraging word, we did not do it.

Two years following we had the first instruction in that direction as taught by the Latter Day Saints. Was administered to by different elders, and many times. Sometimes was benefited, at others was not. Am glad we did not feel to murmur, or to find fault with the elders because we were not benefited as others were.

At another time the words, "Only believe and ye shall receive," came to us with great force, and a repetition. We were as much surprised as if a person had spoken it, and replied inaudibly, "Lord I have believed." So we thought then, but if the belief had been perfect the work would have been perfect. The body is made a perfect body through the perfect obedience of the spirit of mortal, to the commands of God. True, our teachers can guide us, but we must realize for ourselves and that realization must come by obedience. We must sacrifice self and selfish purposes and let perfect love do its work. We must be calm and trusting amid vexations and persecutions, looking to Him who is the author and finisher of our hope and salvation, carrying in our mind, We are his and he is ours, and he will remove all those things, one by one, as we thus try to overcome, and we shall stand surrounded by pleasing results instead of the old state of things, and with stronger nerves than perhaps we ever had, or with better command of them.

Yes, there is a perfect salvation, and it is just as free in the whole as in the part, and we are at liberty to accept as we will, therefore it is possible to rise above every obstacle. God grant that the writer and the reader may both know that it is possible.

ALMIRA.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 25.

Dear Sisters:—I wish to bid Godspeed to the Daughters of Zion in their noble work. They have taken a noble step in the right direction, and may they move speedily and steadily onward in their mission of love and righteousness. They are one more hammer added to the force that is laboring hard to smooth the rough places, and hew down the boulders of sin and wickedness which so thickly strew the way. They are doing a grand work in helping to prepare the people to meet their Savior, and should they be the means of hastening the coming of our Savior even a few moments, every moment counts, for our days are made up of minutes and all join to form a grand eternity; and though this would be a noble achievement, this is not all, for who can tell the amount of good that may grow out of their efforts, or how far reaching may be their works.

We have a small band of sisters here who are doing what they can to strengthen and help one another, and are striving to increase in grace, love, charity, and unity, and to render their feeble aid to the Master's cause; and though feeble in strength and few in number, we are striving to be able to say when called upon to render up our account, "We have done what we could." Once more, may God bless the noble Daughter's of Zion, is the humble prayer of your sister in the gospel of peace and love,

PAULINE HIGGINS.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sr. MINNIE MCKINNIE writes from Odebolt, Iowa, that she is still holding fast to the faith. There is but one family of Saints there and she often finds it very lonely, as the majority of the people there are very much opposed to our faith. Brn. McDowell and Hunt removed some prejudice by their labors there, but there is much still remaining. She and her husband would be glad to live where there is a branch of the church as they have little opportunity of hearing the gospel preached or of enjoying the company of the Saints. She desires to live worthy of the name and cause she has espoused and to have a well-grounded hope that her name is written in the Lamb's book of life. She so much enjoyed reading the sermon of Bro. Wight, as it awakened memories of olden times. She and her husband will gladly welcome any elders coming that way.

Sr. Minnie.—In answer to your question in regard to sectarian Sunday schools would say: The church is publishing Quarterlies which will enable you to systematically and fully instruct your own children in the principles of the gospel of Christ, and it is the imperative duty of all parents, calling themselves Saints, to do this. But if parents will not or cannot do this, then is it not far better to teach them reverence for the Sabbath by sending them where they may receive religious and moral instruction, even though they be taught some doctrinal errors, than to allow them to grow up without a proper reverence for God and his laws? We think it is, for God is no respecter of persons, but among all people accepts those who work righteousness before him, even when they are ignorant of the true plan of salvation. Our own life here and all through eternity will be the richer and better for the influence brought to bear upon it while a member of the Methodist Church.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Sr. S. E. Laughlin of Olivet, Iowa, requests an interest in your faith and prayers that if it is God's will she may be healed of the affliction from which she is suffering.

Sr. Daisy Conrow of Dos Palos, California, earnestly requests your faith and prayers in her behalf, that if it be God's will she may be restored to health. She has not yet been baptized but is waiting for the privilege to obey the gospel. Ananias said to Saul, "And now brother Saul, why tarriest thou?" hence our warrant for calling her sister. May God grant her faith and give her (if it be his righteous will) the desire of her heart.

A brother residing on the Pacific Slope earnestly entreats your faith and prayers in his behalf, that God will touch the heart of his companion and lead her to repentance.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JUNE.

ENOUGH.

"I am so weak, dear Lord! I cannot stand
One moment without thee;
But O, the tenderness of thy enfolding,
And O, the faithfulness of thine upholding,
And O, the strength of thy right hand!
That strength is enough for me.

"I am so needy, Lo d! and yet I know
All fulness dwells in thee;
And hour by hour that never-failing treasure
Supplies and fills in overflowing measure
My last and greatest need. And so
Thy grace is enough for me."

Thursday, June 21.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses.—Zechariah 7: 9, 10.

Thursday, June 28.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verse.—Isaiah 35: 10.

Editors Herald.—My eyes have just fallen upon an editorial in Herald for May 30, under the caption, "Read this and respond if it means you." A studious reading has aroused my sensitiveness, and thinking it means me, I respond; not that it will give you any financial aid, but I want you and the Herald readers to know that I am struck right in the very vital part of my theological being and the equilibrium thereof is greatly agitated. And here is my response, and you are welcome to it for what it is worth. Don't overestimate it.

I am not glad that the present exigencies necessitate such an article, but since the necessity is upon us, I am glad for the production of so unimpassioned, pointed, and sensible an article; for without catering to friends or essaying to vex foes it makes known the wants and needs of the hour and the duty of all concerned in a nutshell. May the good Lord long guide the pen and preserve the power and intellect that produced such inspiring profusions; for the church needs it, while the world is perishing for lack of instruction dictated by such a spirit.

Yes, Messrs. Editors, I am deeply concerned in this matter, for the literary concerns of the church are part of the church and a mighty lever in the spread and establishing of truth in the earth. And I think the injunction, "Seek first the kingdom"—seek to establish it—very applicable.

I hope to never be found opposing any laudable private interprise, as I never expect to be found giving any influence or aid to the latter, which I consider due to the kingdom or church or any of its recognized departments. My acceptance of the latter-day work I believe tantamount to entering into a covenant with my Creator to bring into requisition all my power, whether extended or limited, to aid in defending and spreading the cause I have espoused. Why, ere the fact developed of the organization of Christ's church, in this, the dispensation of the fullness of times, we hear prophetically of the coming forth of a marvelous work, with advice to all those who should embark in the work of God to "See that ye serve him with all your heart, might, mind, and strength, that ye may stand blameless before God at the last day."—D. C. 3. If that does not mean the bringing into requisition of all our powers to help on God's good work and a coming retribution, etc., I would say the language employed is meaningless.

I think it my duty to first sustain the Herald, though I might thereby be prevented from looking into every other literary paper of any name or nature. And if I had a dollar for securing literary papers I would remit it to Bro. D. Dancer, if I knew that by so doing every literary concern outside of our own would sink to rise no more. Especially would I do this when being supplied though the consideration of the Board of Publication with the Herald while essaying to serve the church as a representative. Think of it, ye Herald readers, the church representatives and some others being supplied with the Herald, which would bring hundreds of dollars yearly to the business manager if paid for; ought not this fact to stimulate every member to help sustain the Herald? If not, why not? I know it is good to be generous, liberal-minded, etc., and it is also good to be just. And your high conception of generosity begets a generous spirit for private enterprises, and help is lavished upon such enterprises, and our own church organ allowed to languish, but where is the evidence of our conception of justness? Who will tell?

The church is the source whence I receive my spiritual comfort, and temporal; and to my mind it were a strange procedure for me to look for the latter from the church, and yet fail to give all my time and strength to help increase the source whence cometh my help. I have thought and taught that the church organ should be first in the houses of all the Saints. I still so believe, and shall so teach; and would I could do much more than I have done in this direction.

It seems to me that our Herald is like a young encyclopedia, with every prospect of improving; especially so if the reasonable appeal in the above editorial is heeded, which I think may be done, with a reasonable sacrifice. I am surprised to see so many houses of the Saints without the Herald. Let us come up to the help of the Board of Publication. These are a few of my sentiments offered with the exercise of my own will power and with respect to all, only claiming to be Brother

JAMES CAFFALL.

BELL, Iowa, June 5.

Editors Herald:—The Galland's Grove district conference which closed at Deloit on the evening of the 4th inst., was one of the best ever held in the district. The attendance was good from first to last; the Spirit of the Lord was with us. Business sessions were harmonious throughout; preaching was excellent, and love and unity prevailed. Bro. John A. McIntosh, who is in his eighty-ninth year, preached an interesting discourse on Sunday evening to a crowded house of attentive listeners. Two prayer and testimony meetings were held during conference. On Saturday morning the meeting lasted an hour; there were four prayers offered, eighteen testimonies borne, one prophecy given, and these were interspersed with five hymns or parts of hymns. On Sunday morning the exercises lasted two hours and ten minutes, during which time the sacrament was administered, eleven prayers were offered, forty-three testimonies borne, one prophecy delivered, one tongue and interpretation spoken, and one hymn sung in tongues, and the interpretation beautifully sung in English. The testimonies were interspersed with eight parts of hymns. Every heart seemed to be filled with joy, and many eyes were filled with tears of joy, and their hearts overflowed with gratitude to God. "Blessed be the Lord for evermore. Amen, and Amen."

During the month of May the writer had the pleasure of visiting and laboring among saints at Dow City, Salem, Persia, Woodbine, Harlan, and Defiance; and their hospitality will long be remembered. At Defiance there is no branch, but by the kindness of Bro. Ichabod McCord I was enabled to rent the city hall for five evenings, and preached six sermons, one being preached at eleven a. m. Sunday. Clarence, son of Bro. and Sr. George Gunsolley, was kind enough to distribute posters at nearly every house in town, and our meetings were fairly well attended. Bro. I. McCord and Grandma McCord attended services and lent their influence to make our meetings a success; but what interested the speaker more than anything else was the fact that Bro. McCord's children, Arch E., Ray A., and Ina May, though just at the right age to be drawn away by young companions and the pleasures of the world, stood right by the work and attended every service, giving their companions to understand that they were glad to have a preacher of their faith in town and believed he preached the truth. Evidently in their action is reflected the faith and good works of their mother, who spared no pains to make our stay at her home pleasant. May God bless each and all.

Occasionally the preacher meets with discouragements which make his heart ache and his cheeks blush with shame; and he is heard to say, "I would to God it were not so!" "How can I reach the people and convert them to the truth while such things exist?" Well, what is it? "Why, this morning word came to me from a reliable source that in the town of D. Bro. J. had to be helped out of the saloon and almost carried home. In the town of A. Bro. C. does not conduct himself as a Christian should, and frequents the gambling hall. In the town of P. Bro. W. and Sr. Y. were playing for the dance. Then I picked up a newspaper and read: 'In the town of H. Mr. S. is going away, and last night when the household goods were packed and moved out of the way the young people had a social dance and Elder C. called off, and everybody was delighted.'" That is not the exact language, but the sentiment.

In all these places our elders have been and are still making an effort to reach the people and feed and nourish the Church of God; and now, when I thought prejudice had so far given way that we would be able to do good work, these things are dumped off the Devil's shoulder right in our faces. These things ought not to exist, and I do hope that the proper officers will watch as well as pray and do all they can in kindness and the spirit of Christ to educate every member up to that high plane of Christian life required by the gospel, where every evil will be left behind and forgotten.

A brighter picture is brought to view in the fact that our missionaries are full of zeal and ready for the work, and a number of our local ministers have expressed themselves as willing to do all they can, and work has been assigned them. Dear brethren and sisters, we want your faith, and prayers, and confidence, and coöperation.

If scattered Saints at Jefferson, Green county, Iowa, and other points within the district will write to the undersigned with reference to the needs of the work in their respective neighborhoods I will do all in my power to supply the demands.

Yours in Christ,

C. E. BUTTERWORTH.

KIRTLAND, Ohio, June 5.

Editors Herald:—The meetings at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, on Sunday the 27th ult. were a grand success. There was a large turnout of Saints and a goodly number of outsiders present. At the close of the night service Bro. and Sr. Ramsey were baptized in the Monongahela River by the writer, the fruit of other men's labors. Brn. G. H. Hulmes, Frank Criley, Ralph Smith, Ed Miller, F. S. Reese, and E. Curry constitute the officers of said branch, and the work committed to their care is in excellent condition. Bro. Jacob Reese was present and seemed alive in the great cause of the Master.

The Saints were very sorry to learn from the last Herald of Bro. T. W. Smith's death. We feel that he will be greatly missed. Sad news reached us again last week, of the sudden death of our worthy and respected brother, Jonathan Traxler, of Jackson, Ohio. Bro. Blair and many others of the traveling ministry will remember Bro. Traxler. He and his excellent wife always made the elders welcome at their home. One by one they are passing on to the other side, and the question arises in the mind, Who will be the next to pass under the rod and over the river of death.

Bro. W. H. Kelley left for the East last Friday. He was accompanied by Bro. H. C. Smith. The Saints here are all well with the exception of a few. My wife's health is improving a little of late, for which blessing we feel very thankful to our heavenly Father. The coal strike is having a distressing effect on trade in this country, and the church treasury is suffering in consequence. Unless the times get better soon it will be very difficult for the missionaries to keep out in the field; that is, for them to go any distance from home, unless they go on "shanks pony." Well, we are hoping and praying for better times. The weather has been wet and cold for about three weeks.

I expect to leave again this week and will return in time for the two-days' meetings the last of this month.

With love to all God's people, I remain,

Your brother in bonds,

GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

VERA CRUZ, Mo., May 29.

Editors Herald:—Allow me the space in your column to give a description of this part of the Ozark region of Southeastern Missouri, as I have had so many letters addressed to me in regard to the advantages and disadvantages of this part of the land. The following is a true description of our country:—

Douglass county is considered a healthy country. It is mountainous, but small mountains, or hills, as some call them. We have good living water; there is scarcely a farm that has not from one to six springs on it. Our land is mostly ridge land; the land is very good, with not so much rock on it as other counties in the Ozark Mountain region. Our land, situated in the valleys, is in small bodies, but is very good. Both ridge and valleys are all timbered lands, consisting of red, black, and white oak, hard pine, maple, walnut, hickory, and dogwood; and sumac bushes by the thousands. Our roads are solid, but very hilly in places. At some mountains the roads have to circle around, and of course it causes us to go two miles to get one. We have no mud if it rains for a week.

Our raw land is worth from two to three dollars per acre; improved land is worth from five to ten dollars per acre. We have some government land here yet, but it is very rough. Our crops are looking well. They consist of wheat, corn, oats, rye, and potatoes; and all kinds of vegetables can be raised in this part of the land. We have good out range for stock; cattle, hogs, and sheep do well, and there are a good many raised. We have a good mast every two years on an average. For the benefit of those who do not know what mast is, I will say they are acorns that grow on oak trees. This is a good fruit belt; apples, pears, plums, cherries, peaches, quinces, and small fruits can be grown in abundance.

Vera Cruz is situated fifteen miles from Norwood, eighteen from Mansfield, and twenty-five from Mountain Grove. These stations are on the Kansas City, Fort Scott, and Gulf Railroad, about midway between Kansas City and Memphis. Teams, wagons, and stock can be put in as part payment on land. We have a branch of Saints numbering about sixty members. We have our prayer, sacrament, and preaching services regularly; and, last but not least, a good country for a poor man that has got enough money to buy him a home. I hope the many Saints and friends who have written me for a description of this country will consider this a letter to them.

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio, June 2.

Editors Herald:—I left my home on May 15 and sojourned till the 22d at St. Louis, Missouri, doing service at the request of Brn. Bozarth and Archibald. The cause is onward there, notably among the young, a scene delightful to behold.

At Xenia, Illinois, the moments the train stopped were pleasantly spent with Bro. B. A. Morris and wife, and Srs. Gauger and Stead. Greeting and good-bye were scarcely separated, but pleasant memories were stirred. Arriving at Washington, Indiana, nine services were held conjointly with that genial growing worker, Bro. L. F. Daniel. It was pleasant to be on the scenes of former conflict to greet friends without and within and note progress, although sadly marred to what it might be by human folly, as has been the misfortune of the truth in all ages. The laborers who have been there are highly spoken of. May it ever be so.

On June 1 I left for Ohio, spending a portion of the day in Cincinnati's libraries, reaching Middletown and receiving a hearty greeting at the hands of Bro. James Moler and the Saints. On new ground I join the toilers in "the army of the Lord" to wage the conflict in the interests of the plan of redeeming love.

My address to all not in direct communication with me, will be, Creola, Vinton county, Ohio.

A QUOTATION CORRECTED.

I had always doubted the quotation found on page 82 of the Voice of Warning, as my reading relative to the American Indians contained no mention of a "Stockbridge tribe."

The necessity of going back to originals in the preparation of a work during the last year, eventuated in my finding the work of Elias Boudinot, LL. D., published at Trenton, New Jersey, in 1816, in the Public Library of Cincinnati, Ohio, after a fruitless search in person or by proxy in the cities of Salt Lake, Denver, Kansas City, St. Joseph, St. Louis, Des Moines, Chicago, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, and New Brunswick. In Mr. Boudinot's work, "A Star in the West," I found evidence in conformity with my doubt, and also failed to find the quotation.

"The late Rev. Dr. Jonathan Edwards of Connecticut, son of the late President Edwards, who was a man of great celebrity as a well-read, pious, divine, and of considerable erudition, was intimately associated with the Indians of Stockbridge, of the MOHEGAN TRIBE in that State from the age of six years."—Page 99.

Pages 125-129 are devoted to a list of the tribes alphabetically arranged, and no "Stockbridge" tribe is given.

A quotation on page 81 of Voice of Warning should read as follows: "It is said among their principal, or beloved men, that they have it handed down from their ancestors, that the book which the white people have was once theirs. That while they had it they prospered exceedingly; but that the white people bought it of them, and learned many things from it; while the Indians lost their credit, offended the great spirit, and suffered exceedingly from neighboring nations . . . They also say that their forefathers were possessed of an extraordinary divine spirit, by which they foretold future events, and controlled the common course of nature, and this they transmitted to their offspring, on condition of their obeying the sacred laws. That they did by these means bring down showers of plenty on the beloved people. But that this power, for a long time past, had entirely ceased."—A Star in the West, pp. 110, 111.

Certified to as correct.

R. ETZENHOUSER.

P. S.—Correcting this from other copy than the Voice of Warning, the other quotations were not compared, but are correct in substance, as it was only yesterday that the work was examined. This correction applies to pages 15 and 46 of Book Unsealed as well as other reproductions of the quotation referred to.

NIBE, Denmark, May 23.

Editors Herald:—I left Moen on the first of May, expecting to meet Brn. Wahlstrom and Sorenson in Copenhagen to see them off, but as they had made different arrangements since last writing me, I was disappointed, consequently did not get to see them before they left for America. I then concluded to take a trip over to this part of the country. I arrived in Aalborg on the 4th and have since traveled constantly, sold and distributed tracts, as well as preached publicly and privately as opportunities have presented themselves. Three persons—one in Aalborg and two in the country—have requested baptism which I expect to attend to soon.

Yesterday while selling and distributing tracts in a country town I got in conversation with an old gentleman, during which he informed me that a number of years before '61 he had read Joseph Smith's revelation or prophecy on the rebellion, "and," says he, "strange to say, it came to pass just as he had predicted." He was wondering how Joseph Smith could do that. I told him I thought he did and could do it only by the same Spirit by which the prophets of old predicted future events. The above statement is of interest, as it comes from one who is not a believer in the latter-day work and it also serves to show that a knowledge of that noted prophecy was quite widely spread even a number of years before the rebellion took place.

As yet I have heard nothing about the doings of the late General Conference. Have not read a Herald for a long time. I hope other missionaries have been sent here to continue the work. Expect to continue to travel until I return to America.

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, June 12.

Editors Herald:—Our work in this district still moves along. We organized a new branch in Hamburg, May 26, with about twelve members; and next day, Sunday, four more were added by baptism; and on Sunday the 6th others were baptized by Elder Heide; thus the work moves in that place. We moved to Plum Hollow where Bro. Blair baptized four a few weeks ago. I preached there in the church Sunday morning June 3, and at night in the schoolhouse at Egypt. On Monday, June 4, I baptized four and confirmed them in the afternoon. Preached again at night to a full house. The same week I preached once in the Goode schoolhouse, and moved on the latter part of the week to Henderson, to attend district conference. Found Bro. Blair here. We had a good time with Bro. Blair and others; a good attendance; branches well represented. Five were baptized by Elder D. Hougas. All the Saints felt well, and returned to their homes thankful in heart to God for blessings bestowed both spiritual and temporal. Yours in the faith,

HENRY KEMP.

KNOX, Ind., June 8.

Editors Herald:—The conference of the Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana district of the 2d, 3d, and 4th inst., at this place was pronounced by all a glorious success. The Saints were revived, the elders encouraged, and all made glad. The social service at the close of the conference was soul-cheering indeed. There seems to be an awakening all along the lines. Not that "all is well in Zion," but there are unmistakable signs of life in different parts of the district, that are truly encouraging. I wish I could say there is nothing discouraging, but alas! that time has not come yet.

As sub-missionary in charge I should like to hear from the laborers in this district, both missionary and local. In union there is strength. Then let us all pull together. "Let us shake off the coals from our garments" and every elder, priest, teacher, deacon, and member go to with his might and help build up the kingdom of God. Two-days' meetings will be appointed for the different branches in the district as soon as I can hear from those to whom I have written. Our missionary force is not large, but if we can live so as to have the strength of Israel's God to sustain, there is no danger of defeat or failure. It seems that many of the local elders, and also priests, have forgotten the injunction, "Therefore, now let every man learn his duty, and to act in the office in which he is appointed, in all diligence. He that is slothful shall not be counted worthy to stand, and he that learns not his duty and shows himself not approved, shall not be counted worthy to stand."—D. C. 104:44. Brethren, are you working with all diligence in the discharge of those duties that pertain to the offices to which you have been called? Are you striving to learn your duty by reading the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants? Are you trying to keep pace with the times by reading the church papers? Not able to take the Herald? Many, very many who are not able to take the Herald are able to buy tea, coffee, tobacco, an organ, a buggy, go to the shows and fairs, and spend money in various other ways for the gratification of the outer man while the inner man is starving—absolutely starving. Saints, where is your treasure? where is your heart? May God help us all to be faithful and diligent in the discharge of our duties.

My permanent address is Ray, Steuben county, Indiana.

Yours in gospel bonds,

ISAAC M. SMITH.

PARRISH, Ill., June 5.

Editors Herald:—Our conference passed off here last Saturday and Sunday; had an excellent time. On Sunday we had to take the seats out of the church into a grove in order to accommodate the people; about one thousand on the grounds. Eleven a. m., preaching by writer; two p. m., by T. C. Kelley; four p. m., sacrament and confirmation, two having been baptized; and at night preaching by I. A. Morris. The best of order prevailed through the entire conference. Bro. Morris has gone east to Cantrell schoolhouse, Bro. F. M. Slover, to Rector, while I will hold forth here until over Sunday, then to Walpole, Hamilton county, to open a new field in the Christian church, where they have been asking for preaching for some time.

Our reunion will commence August 31, at Brush Creek, and our conference will be held on September 8, at Brush Creek. The work has revived throughout the district.

For the victory,

EMSLEY CURTIS.

PERRY, Iowa, June 7.

Editors Herald:—After completing some General Conference work, or work relating thereto, I left Lamoni and home May 4 for my field of labor, the Des Moines district, arriving at Des Moines the same date. I found the work in the city moving along about as usual, but there is some difficulty yet to be adjusted. Since entering the field I have preached at Harding twice, where three excellent persons have lately been baptized; also at Des Moines. At Grinnell I was permitted to occupy the Baptist church on Sunday afternoon, May 20, and excellent liberty was bestowed while speaking to a congregation of about seventy persons. Our people there stand well with the people, and are seeking to extend the good work. The Baptist people there treated us very kindly, and we appreciate it. Brn. F. A. Smith, and F. M. Weld arriving there to look after the work, I went home with Bro. J. C. Reams on the 23d. He lives some fifteen miles north-east of Grinnell. We held five meetings while there, speaking three times on Sunday, the 27th; Brn. Shimel, Lyke, and Bowen were present to aid the Sunday services.

May 30, Brn. Smith, Weld, and I went to Rhodes, Marshall county, to attend the conference held there June 2 and 3. Bro. A. H. Smith, missionary in charge, was with us, and Brn. Rudd, E. Hayer, G. Shimel, C. E. Hand, with others were on hand in time to participate in and enjoy the business meetings and other exercises of the conference. The Sunday school convention of the district was held on Friday, June 1. The ministry present were invited to participate. The entertainment given in the evening by the children and their friends was well attended and appreciated by all. A number of young people of Rhodes, not associated with us religiously, participated, and did their part well. The conference business was transacted in all good feeling; the Spirit was there to aid and bless. Two were baptized on Sunday afternoon just before the social meeting, Bro. O. B. Thomas officiating. At the afternoon services, Brn. E. Hayer and F. M. Weld presided, and Bro. Frank Russell of Grinnell was ordained to the office of priest by A. H. Smith, D. M. Rudd, and F. A. Smith. Bro. Russell will do a good work yet, if faithful and humble.

For the Sunday evening services, the Methodist Protestant brethren adjourned their services and authorized their minister, Rev. Plumb, to invite us to occupy the church, and we accepted the kindness. The audience was large and looked pleasant. Bro. A. H. was feeling fine, but the sermon; O, my! A clap of thunder from a clear sky or a rose blooming on a snow bank would not have been more surprising. But they could not help but like it; it was Bible; "being saved" was the subject, and "where?" He showed that up to the time of the first advent of Christ, no man had "ascended up to heaven" but our Lord (John 3:13), and that the Saints were not to go there to be saved (John 13:32, 33), but that the saved would be with Christ in some of the many "mansions" in the "Father's house." The mode of presenting the subject was novel, original, and striking. I will venture that many who heard that sermon will study the theme from a new basis. The Saints felt cheered and delighted.

On Monday morning two more precious souls were baptized, and at the confirmation meeting our missionary in charge gave us some wholesome instruction, and ordained good Bro. C. W. Nirk to the office of high priest. Bro. Nirk was sustained district president, and Bro. McCoy secretary.

Rhodes is a nicely located town. Its people are kind and sociable but it languishes yet from the effects of a boom and its counteractions of a few years ago. The throwing of towns and cities into such abnormal conditions commercially as instanced by Kansas City and Pacific coast cities is to a large extent responsible for the financial failures that occur, and aids to augment the ranks of the Commonweal armies. Such booms in commercial circles, as are here referred to, are only curses to communities, and in no way a blessing. It is not an outgrowth of civilization, but of barbarism. It is only another mode of getting from the weak and unfortunate what does not rightly belong to the getter; another way of asserting that "might is right;" and belongs to the robber period of the dark and untutored past; But! how one's mind will divert, if allowed!

On Monday afternoon of the 4th Bro. Smith left us, also Bro. Weld, A. H. going to Minnesota. F. A. and F. M. Weld to Liscomb to labor there, and the next day Bro. D. M. Rudd and I came to this place to look after the work and inaugurate tent work if deemed advisable. Held our first service in the tent last evening with an attendance mostly of Saints. Local laborers throughout the district are waking up to a more full realization of their responsibility in their callings in Christ. May we all be so blessed.

Your colaborer,

C. SCOTT.

GLEN ROY, Ohio, June 11.

Editors Herald:—Bro. H. R. Harder and I are now holding forth here in our district. We have held eight meetings to this date, and have fair attendance, with good order and attention; although the Baptists and Methodists are busy at work to prevent their flocks from being led astray. Several are deeply interested. We will continue over another week.

This is in the Coalton mining district, and times are very dull owing to the great strike; but the miners here are orderly and law-abiding, contrary to some reports that have gone out from this section. We have never had better order at our tent meetings than here.

Your brother,

H. E. MOLER.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., May 23.

Editors Herald:—I go this week down on the coast into a new field of labor. I expect to commence at Santa Monica and extend labor to Long Beach and vicinity for an indefinite length of time, without the association of another missionary; but desire and hope to have and enjoy the help of the Master, without which one so weak as myself would be unable to meet with success as a reaper in the vineyard of the Lord. I shall miss the association of the Saints, which I have so much enjoyed for the last six months in this place. There is a band of noble Saints in the San Bernardino branch, who are valiant in the work of the Lord; ready and willing to make sacrifice, temporally as well as spiritually for the onward march of the truth; rejoicing in the late promises of God made through his authorized servants to the church, and also for the oneness which pervades the whole church through its different organizations. May that oneness never grow less.

Our prayer meetings in the branch of late have been very enjoyable, because of the goodly amount of the Comforter we have enjoyed. While all seem to rejoice in the present conditions and spirituality of the church, I am sorry to say that there are some of the Saints so engrossed with their temporal affairs that they do not appear to have any time to spare to assist in opening up the work in their neighborhoods, where the people are mostly ignorant of the pure teachings of the Scriptures. I do not like to enter serious complaints against brothers and sisters who are thus careless in these things, because I have been there myself; but I know that I have suffered much loss because of being thus negligent, therefore, speaking intelligently from my own experience, I am quite sure that the rule will apply to others. If we could recall much of the past (sins of omission as well as commission), and have the privilege granted us to start over, and at the same time retain our knowledge of past experience, what wonderful improvements we could make in our record by which each one of us will be compelled to stand or fall.

Brethren and sisters, let each and every one of us turn our backs upon our follies, failures, and sins, and putting our hands anew to the gospel plow seek to make a straight line in the future; placing our eyes upon the mark and contending earnestly for the faith once delivered to the Saints, also for the prize which lies at the end of the race. The pleasures of this world are but empty things compared with the full and free inheritance we may obtain in the kingdom of God through obedience and diligence in keeping his commandments. We have everything now to encourage and nothing to discourage us, even though perilous times are at our doors and the elements all in commotion, seeming to vie with each other to see what havoc can be wrought by them all combined. Wickedness is hastening, faster and still faster. Let us keep in advance of it all along the line of march. Truth is sure to triumph, and so shall we, if we make it the man of our counsel. May God help us to do so.

Your brother,

R. R. DANA.

ROSEDALE, Ind., June 1.

Editors Herald:—On arriving here on the 22d ultimo I secured the use of the Christian church to hold a series of meetings. The way they talked one might have been misled to believe that I may peacefully occupy there till Gabriel would blow his horn, or at least till all Bible doctrine was expounded and fully elucidated. Just before I arose to deliver my sixth sermon, on last Sunday evening, I was politely informed that I could hold forth there no longer. Bear in mind they wanted nothing but the Bible. Of course we were to pay all incidental expenses. The M. E. folks knowing of their reactionary movement, threw open their chapel for this week, or when not in use by themselves.

Striking miners keep the people in an uneasy and excited condition, while want stalks abroad. Decoration, election, and unemployed unrest are not conducive to spirituality; and, added to the above, and other things, the Campbellites are blowing about a debate. We let them know that they could be met most any time and the issues thoroughly canvassed. They have written to one Walker, of Indianapolis, who, it is rumored, has held one hundred and forty discussions. The returns have not got in yet from this great intellectual Goliath, so we wait patiently for the slaughter. If I am to be sacrificed, I wish he would be so kind as to hurry up ere it gets too hot. Bro. James Knox, who is now seeking for lucrative employment in the coal fields of Northern Iowa, kindled up an interest four miles from here in a country schoolhouse. I will look further after the needs of the work there in the very near future. I do not feel elated over the prospect here, for, behold, there are seven saloons in this small place, and they are all patronized! Indifference, ignorance, and recklessness make a triune that is the Devil's right bower. Your editorial helped me to hurry up and "respond," so please apply the within all to square my but recently contracted account. Let us all rally to the support of the publishing department, as also every other good word and work.

MAURINE, Mo., June 1.

Editors Herald:—The demands for preaching through this section are on the increase, yet we find many things to discourage us. We have tried hard to present the true gospel of our blessed Savior to the people, yet many of them misrepresent the work by telling old stale stories that would almost shame the Devil. Surely if the Lord did not bless us with his Spirit we would fall by the way-side.

At the Dunham settlement, about ten miles from here, there is a good, warm-hearted people. We have agreed to hold a grove meeting with them in this month or next. At Careville church, about five miles from here, on May 12, a Baptist minister named W. D. Potter gave a lecture against the Saints and their faith. He showed himself well informed on everything but the truth. He proposed to use history to show what Latter Day Saintism was; and one among the many things he told us was that the Reorganized Church was organized in 1883, and all the difference between it and the Utah Church was the doctrine of polygamy. It is hard for me to understand why ministers will make such unfounded remarks. Surely "whosoever loveth and maketh a lie" shall not enter the holy city. Bro. I. N. White replied to Rev. Potter on Monday evening following. The crowd was large at both meetings, and nearly all admitted that Potter made a failure. God's truth will blow the chaff away, and only the wheat will remain. May we gather that into the garner of the Lord. I made application for the use of the church house at Norris, and the preacher said he knew nothing about our doctrine, so they decided to not let us have it. The Odd Fellows at the same place sent me word I could have their hall. Last Sabbath I occupied the United Brethren church, west of here about three miles. Two of their ministers were present. I was not aware that they were ministers while I was preaching. I used the yardstick as a standard to measure cloth by; all of us had a right to guess at the number of yards in a bolt of cloth, but all could not be right and yet be guessing different numbers; but one might be right, and the only way to settle the difficulty was to place the measuring line on the cloth, then the question was at once settled. So with our preachers and what they preached, Latter Day Saints included. Preachers and members of the churches today are guessing they are right, hoping, trusting they are right; but we have a standard—the word of God—to be measured by; and if our preaching and our faith do not measure out thirty-six inches to the yard, or correspond in line with the gospel of Christ, we are yet in our sins and unsaved. I remember when I was a boy about throwing stones at a hornet's nest and the results were not long coming; so it was on this occasion. I have seen blind men, but I never saw preachers as spiritually blind as these men were. They said all the ordinances of the gospel as preached by John the Baptist were nailed to the cross; that water baptism was of "heathen origin and none but Jews ever accepted it." "All we have to do now is to live by grace."

I have just completed arrangements with Elder J. H. Jones of the Christian Church for a discussion to be held at Lowry City, Missouri, sometime in September or October. The questions to be debated are the same as those discussed at Kirtland by Braden and Kelley, with three days to each question. J. B. Briney of the Christian Church is to represent the Disciples, and Elder S. W. L. Scott the Latter Day Saints. Reverend Briney is a man of high rank among his people, and they say, "We want the best you have in the United States to meet him." It is thought this discussion will have the largest attendance of any yet held in the church.

Bro. Philemon Pement, J. W. Hancock, and myself are doing what we can here to keep the work to the front.

Yours in the gospel,

D. C. WHITE.

KAITANGATA, Otago,

New Zealand, May 10.

Editors Herald:—We write you to let you know that we left New Castle, New South Wales, on the 16th of March for New Zealand with the ship Horatio. We had a rough passage from New Castle to Sydney, and Sr. Dixon was very sick. We left Sydney on the 16th for New Zealand. We had a head wind, but the sea was very calm. Sr. Dixon was very sick for four days and could not eat anything. There was a lot of people on board for New Zealand.

We have left New Castle to make a home in this land, and to make a home for the elders when they come here, and the Lord has blessed us in getting work, when so many are out of work. The Lord has opened the way and made friends for me. We had the chance to preach to the people on the ship and the Lord blessed me with a portion of his Spirit and we made friends to the cause. We had several invitations to visit them in their homes.

This is a better country for missionary work than New South Wales; it is a better climate, and the cost of traveling on the railroads is much better, for the reason that the ministers travel free; so that is a great blessing to us, and the people seem to give more heed to things of a spiritual nature. We can get at the people much better here. It is a lovely place here. I can look out on the lake and see the swan and various water fowls. It is one of the sights of New Zealand. Kaitangata is a mining township of fourteen hundred, and there is a large farming district here, also many more towns close by; so we can get at the people here. We want a good experienced elder here; one who can speak well, for we have to compete with the Campbellites and they have some good men in the field; so we must be ready to meet them on all points. I am giving them all the tracts I have and I will preach all I can till help comes; and I want the faith and prayers of you all that I may stand firm in the work. If we had an elder here like J. W. Wight, we could work a great work here. We could make it self-sustaining by making a collection and giving what is over to some charitable institution. We can get halls much better here than in New Castle. If anyone wants to help the work here they can send me some tracts. May God bless you in the work. Your brother in bonds,

THOMAS DIXON.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., June 7.

Editors Herald:—The work in Eastern Nebraska is moving along slowly but surely. We are doing well considering the few laborers in our mission field, but we expect to push the work for all there is in it.

I had the pleasure of baptizing two precious souls on the 2d of this month at Syracuse, Nebraska, Bro. and Sr. Rockwell. They are converts of Bro. and Sr. Bray, living at Syracuse. They never heard a gospel sermon until after they were baptized. I believe Bro. and Sr. Rockwell will make good Saints and be an honor to the church wherever they may be.

Our district,—Southern Nebraska,—spiritually speaking, is on the improvement, but far behind what it should be. I am still hoping and praying for its advancement. I have several regular places or appointments for preaching; I go next Sunday, the 10th inst., to South Bend, Nebraska. I expect to be on the move as much as possible.

I found on my arrival at Syracuse, our worthy and esteemed Bro. C. H. Porter, who assisted me in the official work while there. I left him there to continue the work over Sunday. From there he goes to Elmwood and Omaha. I find Bro. Porter to be a very energetic and agreeable worker. I believe he is the right man in the right place.

In the faith,

J. ARMSTRONG.

MOOLAP, Victoria, May 10.

Editors Herald:—I send a few words for the encouragement of Bro. Crabb, that he may know that his labors are not vain in the Lord. Some two years ago there appeared in the Herald an article or sermon by him explaining the character and nature of the new birth. This article found its way to an esteemed friend of mine, and the seed at once found lodgment in good ground and began to grow; and although it has taken time for development after being "begotten by the word," yet I was greatly pleased a few days since by witnessing his birth into the kingdom. The bread cast upon the waters will return after many days. I therefore send this sweet morsel on its return that others seeing may take courage and not be weary in well-doing. God will give the increase.

MANISTEE, Mich., June 4.

Editors Herald:—Having just finished the reading of your supplement to the Herald, entitled, "Husbands, Love your Wives," if not encroaching upon the columns of your paper, or upon your valuable time, permit me a word to express my most profound satisfaction and approval of the sentiments there so ably expressed by Elder Heman C. Smith, its author.

It does not require the "second thought" to be able to discern the law of heredity, that the "sins of the father are visited upon the children, even unto the fourth generation of them that hate God." And it is said, "Ye cannot serve two masters" etc.; and if not the children of light, we certainly are the children of the prince of darkness.

Were the consequences limited to the transgressor alone, the calamitous effects of sin would not be so dire, far-reaching, or blighting. Sin is a withering blight and its corrosive, poisonous thread or nerve fiber, transcends the life that first embraces it, or receives its morbid stupefaction; and as like produces like, it must certainly be reproduced and transmitted from father to son by the unerring law of heredity and reproduction. As the landscape or the field may be full of thorns or thistles, so the moral atmosphere may be, and sad to admit, is much polluted with morbid, unnatural, blighting, moral disease germs—sin; and it is often quite difficult to find an oasis, so broad and transfusive is the desert.

It is said that even thought creates a molecular movement in the atoms of the brain akin to every other thought of the same nature, and that the atoms of which it is composed become assimilated by repetition to the quality of the thought. With knowledge of this fact, it is of the utmost importance that the meditations of the mind and heart should be of the beautiful, the pure, the lovely, and the divine.

The plasticity of the mind, the spiritual life, the soul, like the lump of clay, is so great that we mold and fashion it, by much effort, into a beautiful, monumental divinity, or else by its own weak imbecility, we suffer that which was created "in His own image," by its own earthy gravity and the enormous surrounding subtle evil influences and microbes of sin with which the moral atmosphere is filled to degenerate into that death, that spiritual death, which is spoken of as the "wages of sin."

How can the offspring be pure, when the parents, one or both, are impure? Might as well look for an angel from the nest of the adder. It simply cannot be. There is a law that the whole is equal to all its parts and the product is composed of the elements entering into its makeup, therefore is like it. All the elemental foci of character are reproduced, intensified in the offspring.

Why may we not then cry unto God for more exalted manhood, for more virtue, for more purity, more love, and more grace?

Why may we not cry unto God for the abolition of the dramshop, the loathsome, nauseating tobacco habit with its attendant evils, and all other forms of vice?

In haste, for the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive to do the work we are in.

Yours faithfully,

E. J. RICHMOND.

THE APOSTASY AND THE RESTORATION.—No. 2.

BY ELDER C. SCOTT.

CHRISTIANITY, as it emanated from its author, possesses at one and the same time in its nature, the characteristics, "ecclesiastical and evangelical," but as to the "dogmatical," it is entirely and absolutely foreign to its divine nature. It is dogmatical in no sense of that term, save one, it is positive and immutable, but is not coercive; it is persuasive. Christianity does not enforce and enslave; it educates and liberates the soul:—

But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Ye know that the princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them, and they that are great exercise authority upon them. But it shall not be so among you: but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister; and whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant: even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.—Matt. 20: 25-28.

Educative:—

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations.—Matt. 28: 19.

Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.—Matt. 11: 28-30.

Such are the instructive, persuasive, life-giving, liberative, heaven-born sentiments of Christianity as compared with the enslaving, dictatorial, dogmatical, narrow, and bigoted spirit of religion. And this is only an additional, undeniable evidence of the depth and universality of the great apostasy from Christianity.

The fact of this great departure from the gospel of Christ does not show that all who thus wander away are dishonest; but it does show how easy it is for people to be deceived and misled in religious matters; how liable we are to be lost in error and darkness in an effort to be saved. No doubt you think this is strange; but is it not true? Christianity is pure and undefiled religion before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, but all religion is not Christianity. Can it be true that God calls, and authorizes, and leads men to teach their own commandments, advocate a contrariety of doctrines, and formulate articles of religion, creeds, disciplines, and dogmas to divide and mislead the multitude and keep them in uncertainty, darkness, and doubt? This is manifestly the cause of the confusion. The remedy is to remove the cause, in part at least. Let us drop the creeds and dogmas, as harmful, delusive, and deceptive; dividing, prejudicial, and blinding. We will be obliged to do this in order to get out of the darkness. Awake from the heavy slumber in order to get free from this horrid religious nightmare! It holds the nations in chains of dense darkness. They have drunk of these doctrinal mixtures till the religious senses are rigid and benumbed. Drink no longer here, but turn to the "river of water of life," that flows clear as crystal from the fountain of God's eternal truth, and live, and see the strait and narrow way that leads to life, joy, unity, peace, and communion with God and his Christ. That gives rest, light, certainty, and security.

Paul prophetically described the developments, progress, and condition of those carried away with the great apostasy thus:—

Even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders, and with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish; because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved. And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie: that they all might be damned who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness.—2 Thess. 2: 9-12.

Such a power as is here described had already begun its "lying wonders" in the church in Paul's day; and its power and influence was to increase and become stronger till at last it would be broken by the second and glorious coming of our Lord, when it would be consumed. The pure gospel faith was nullified by "the commandments of men," and the minds of the adherents of the church were darkened to that extent by human precepts and Satanic doctrines that in two or three centuries subsequent to the apostolic age the church, as at first organized, had lost its gospel form and identity. It had forfeited all right to further revelation from God by the Holy Spirit. It was therefore no longer guided into the truth but left to the direction of blind guides. It could not tell, therefore, who was called of God, or whether anyone was called to the work of the ministry or not. And as the ministry, such as they chose, took the Holy Scriptures away from the people, they were left to grope in the darkness that became more dense as they moved off into the wilderness of the apostasy.

Schisms, led by false teachers religiously maddened and furious with prejudice, became widespread. Sects sprang up everywhere, until the Christians departed so far from the truth that the world effected a compromise with the dominant or leading religious power. This work was begun by Constantine, emperor of Rome, who, to flatter the clergy and thereby gain the favor of the church, endowed the bishops with money, and placed political office and honor upon them. This was in the fourth century. The clergy used their political and religious influence combined to further their religious purposes; they held councils, condemned heretics and their doctrines, authorized new doctrines from time to time, and arrogated to themselves added pretended authority, till some of them assumed to be infallible. In the sixth century the Roman emperor, Justinian, formally declared the Bishop of Rome, one of the most powerful bishops in this now apostate church, head of the church throughout the Roman Empire. Thus the authority of the ministry was derived from the church and the earthly government, now virtually united, instead of receiving their commission from God, as his ministry had received prior to the apostasy from the gospel faith.

During the opening years of the seventh century the powers assumed by the clergy, and especially by the Bishop of Rome, were so great that they claimed the church dictated not only in matters pertaining to religion, but that the kings and potentates were subject to her rule through the Bishop of the Church, now declared Universal Bishop, or Pope. God does not claim to dictate to earthly governments and their rulers. In this, therefore, this "man of sin," exalted "himself above all that is called God, or that is worshiped," as Paul had predicted.

This combination of church and state, this mixture of religious superstition, idolatry, crude human philosophy, bigotry, and wicked assumption was foreshown to the Prophet Daniel, in vision. After having the four universal kingdoms of Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and then Rome passed before him in grand review, he is permitted to penetrate the veil of coming time, till the disruption of Rome into its ten subdivisions, emblemized by the ten horns or kingdoms that grew out of Rome's great fall; also an eleventh horn or kingdom that grew up among the ten, from the same source. An angel gave Daniel the interpretation of the vision in these words:—

And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise; and another shall rise after them; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings. And he shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the Saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws; and they shall be given into his hands until a time and times and the dividing of time.—Dan. 7: 24, 25.

This eleventh horn was the religious power called the church that gradually arose as it was able to put Christians and Christianity out of its way, through the art of persecutions and sorcery, killing those it could not seduce. Its eyes and mouth, unlike the other horns, was its religious and political combination—union. Its "great words," uttered "against the Most High," was its arrogant assumption to rule all things on earth temporal and spiritual, to ordain religious laws, and execute all who refused its dictation. From about 540 to 1800 A. D., or about twelve hundred and sixty years, was he permitted this power to thus dictate and rule.

The change thus wrought in the Roman empire from its dragonic to its papal nature and form through the influence of religion, and the exchanging of Christianity for the religion of the times, was a great, a mighty change indeed. Christianity could no more be made to unite or combine with the political doctrines that then prevailed in the Roman government, than oil can be made to mix with water, or light to combine amicably with darkness. Rome's rule was one of blind, idolatrous, intolerant force; Christianity was educational, elevating, spiritual, enlightening, persuasive, and winsome with holy and divine love. Hence it was that as the church gained in numbers and influence she gradually laid aside the light of the gospel of Christ and assumed the doctrines that were congenial to the times and people; and in return for this great compromise received the generous gifts of all the earthly glory at the command of the Roman world. And ever since that "fatal period" when the Christians turned Heathens again, she has ever sought for earthly dominion, power, and glory.

John the Revelator foresaw the misfortunes of the church, while she was yet abiding in the light and favor of God. He likewise saw the coming days of darkness that awaited her, and her anguish at beholding the spiritual calamities and impending woe was great indeed. (Rev. 12: 1-6.) She finally yielded up to God again the authority or priesthood, under the figure of "a man child," and the Holy Spirit, and the light and power of God which she had been endowed. All this was the Christ, as he was represented, "in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks," or the church. (Rev. 1: 13, 14.) Is it any wonder the church wailed in great anguish when she realized that she was to be bereft of "the keys of the kingdom" of God, with all the divine light, glory, and power then attending her? that she would be left to the wily chains of worldly glory, and traverse a forbidden and dangerous wilderness without God? Accepting the aid of earthly powers, under the symbol of "two wings of a great eagle,"—the manner in which "the earth helped the woman,"—the church, with the light of God departing rapidly from her, goes rapidly into the wilderness of false doctrines of men and devils, until she becomes a "mystery" to herself and the world; a "mystery of iniquity;" a confusion, "Mystery, Babylon." Her nourishment or doctrine came "from the face of the serpent," for twelve hundred and sixty years. (Rev. 12:14.) A noble few, who "loved not their lives unto death," "kept the commandments of God," and "the spirit of prophecy"—"the testimony of Jesus;" refused to move out into the wilderness of apostasy with the great body of professing religionists; refused to accede to the doctrinal nourishment of the serpent. This "remnant" of the church now suffered the relentless hand of persecution, death, and torture of the "red dragon," or pagan Rome. This persecution of "the remnant" must have been in the opening days of the dark ages, for dragonic Rome in the sixth and seventh centuries became papal Rome. Pagan Rome gave to papal Rome, "his power, and his seat, and great authority;" hence papal Rome, or the "little horn," ever after exercised the "power" and "authority" that had been exercised by pagan Rome. "Rome is pagan until Rome is papal" says M. Smith, in "Thoughts on the Revelation," page 535. The power and authority of pagan Rome is so fully and completely surrendered to papal Rome that the "seven heads" and "ten horns" appear to be transferred to the leopard beast, in which the civil and religious power centralized. It was the leopard beast, or the "little horn" power, that afterwards persecuted the Saints. He had power over all nations. (Rev. 13: 7, 8.) It is at the hands of the beast, not the dragon, that "the patience of the saints" is tested. (Rev. 14: 9-12.) It was, therefore, "the remnant of" the seed of the church, in the early days of the apostasy that the dragon warred against, and not "the last generations of Christians to live on the earth," as asserted by Elder M. Smith in the work cited above.

But what has this to do with the subject of the apostasy? It shows that the church as a body, an organization, except a small remnant, had assumed both civil and religious authority. Already claiming to be still possessed of that authority, that had returned to its native heaven, under the symbol of "the man child," but in reality was not, she received at the hands of the dragon, "his power, and his seat [or territory], and great authority." This dragonic authority was that by which she claimed to exercise the keys given to Peter, but it was a base counterfeit; and to declare the official ministrations of the clergy infallible, but it was a counterfeit; and to forcibly subdue all nations to her rule. What was once dragonic Rome was christened into the religious fold. She pretended to recreate Christ, our Creator, every time she administered the bread and wine for the sacrament. She called it "transubstantiation," but it was an arrogant imposition and delusion. She claimed to make mediators of the dead saints and martyrs, while martyring the saints under the name of "heretics." Finally, the remnant of the saints were "prevailed against" and "worn out," and "all nations" were intoxicated with the doctrine of "Mystery, Babylon." (Dan. 7:25; Rev. 13:6, 7.)

By breaking her covenant with her Lord, and entering into an unholy alliance with the kings of the earth, the church fulfilled the following prophecy:—

The earth mourneth and fadeth away, the world languisheth and fadeth away, the haughty people of the earth do languish. The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant. Therefore hath the curse devoured the earth, and they that dwell therein are desolate: therefore the inhabitants of the earth are burned, and few men left.—Isa. 24: 4-6.

The only "everlasting covenant" that "the inhabitants of the earth" as such could become a party to, is the gospel covenant. No one can break a covenant he is not a party to. Paul tells us that Jesus Christ was "brought again from the dead" "through the blood of the everlasting covenant." (Heb. 13:20.) The condition of the nations while laboring under the covenant broken on their part is prophetically described by the prophet in these significant words, and all the nations of the Gentiles are the subject of the prophecy.

Stay yourselves, and wonder; cry ye out, and cry: they are drunken, but not with wine; they stagger, but not with strong drink. For the Lord hath poured out upon you the spirit of deep sleep, and hath closed your eyes: the prophets and your rulers, the seers hath he covered.—Isa. 29: 9, 10.

John, the Revelator, was carried in vision "into the wilderness," where he saw the church carried by the eagle's wings, and saw the religiously intoxicated condition of the apostate church, and the awful and staggering sleepy state of the nations; and further describes how that by the union of church and state, or the marriage of the apostate church to the kings of the earth, she had become "The Mother of Harlots," as the fruit of such union; and tells us how "all nations" became thus drunken and drowsy, "For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication." (Rev. 17; 18:3.) How plain these prophecies become in the light of the history of the last fifteen hundred years. Is it any wonder that all call that period of the world the "dark ages?" All the nations drunken on the wine of false and apostate doctrines! Such was the state of the religious world for over thirteen hundred years; such was its condition at the opening of the "Reformation period."

CARD TO THE ELDERS.

TO THE ELDERS OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

DEAR BRETHREN:—Certain parties who appear to be anxious for notoriety, and who desire to take advantage of the prominence and achieve the dignity which discussion with the elders of this church would give them, have sent to representative elders of the church challenges to hold discussion upon the doctrines and the validity of the authority of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. People of this kind in California and elsewhere have of late been very persistent in demanding an acceptance of their challenge, the question, for debate, as they put it, being:—

FIRST, Was Brigham Young the lawful and legitimate successor of Joseph Smith (the Seer), to the prophetic office and presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints?

SECOND, And is Utah the appointed place for the gathering of the Saints in the last days, as spoken by the prophets of God, including Joseph Smith, the Seer?

We take this public method of saying to all our elders that we consider it entirely unnecessary for the vindication of the principles of the church, or to prove the authority of the priesthood of the presiding authorities of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to resort to any such method for their vindication. We leave this for the Lord to prove and sustain, and we think it folly to submit the claims of our church or the priesthood to the arbitrament of man. The Lord has said, "By their fruits ye shall know them;" and to these we can confidently point, feeling satisfied that the people who are seeking for truth and looking for the evidence which the truth always furnishes, can more readily obtain this knowledge by calm investigation and close observation than by controversy.

It is our counsel, therefore, that any elder who may have received and accepted such a challenge, take no steps whatever, towards meeting his challengers, but that he leave them severely alone.

No elder in such a position need feel that any responsibility or discredit will attach to him for declining any discussion into which he may have been drawn; such responsibility we freely assume. We wish it to be further understood that this is our counsel to all of our elders at home and abroad.

Your brethren,

WILFORD WOODRUFF,
GEORGE Q. CANNON,
JOSEPH F. SMITH,

First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.—The Deseret Weekly, June 2, 1894.

THE EXACT SCIENCES.

[From Professor T. C. Mendenhall's address before the Philosophical Society of Washington, in "Science."]

WHAT are the characteristics of the so-called "exact sciences" other than pure mathematics? Without attempting a rigorous definition or a precise classification, it is sufficient for the purpose at hand to declare that the exact sciences are those whose conclusions are capable of being, and for the most part are, established by experiment and verified prediction.

Among these exact sciences the most notable, in degree of exactness, is the science of astronomy. Although the conclusions reached in the study of astronomy may not in general be established by experiment, the marvelous accuracy with which its predictions are verified has long ago placed it far in advance of other sciences. An inquiry into the cause of this excellence will not show that the logic of the astronomer is any more rigorous than that of many others engaged in scientific research, but rather that the premises on which he reasons are simpler, and, what is of greater importance, more nearly sufficient. Until a very recent period in its history, astronomy, although dealing with matter, has been concerned almost entirely with only one of its many properties.

The one property thus far assumed to be common to all matter is that long-known but still mysterious attraction in virtue of which there exists a stress between every particle and every other particle in the universe, according to a law the discovery and exposition of which justly entitles Newton to be considered the greatest philosopher of all ages. It happens that the hundreds and possibly thousands of other properties possessed by, or inherent in, matter, have little, if any, influence on the dynamics of masses widely separated from each other; and therefore a knowledge of the law of gravitation seems to be sufficient to enable the astronomer, having, of course, obtained the necessary data from observation, to trace the paths of the planets, and to foretell the configuration of the heavens many years in advance. Within the past twenty-five years, however, the splendid discovery of spectroscopy, aided by great improvements in photography, has given rise to a new astronomy, known as physical, as distinguished from gravitational astronomy. The new science deals with a matter of many properties, some of which are but little understood. While its conclusions are of vital importance and of intense interest, they result from deductions in which the premises are insufficient, and are proportionately uncertain.

When we consider the sciences of heat, light, electricity, magnetism, and other specially investigated properties of matter, all of which are usually included under the general head of "Physics," we meet with a formidable rival of astronomy in the extent to which they are entitled to be considered as exact sciences.

Physics treats of all the properties of matter, not omitting that which is the special domain of astronomy. As if this were not enough, the demands upon the science are such that it must also deal with that which is not matter, or, at least, is not matter in the ordinarily accepted sense. Although physics deals with all of the properties of matter, no physicist knows them, or, possibly, half of them. Perhaps not one of them is entirely and completely known.

The science of physics is that which is most drawn upon in the formation of the so-called applied sciences. Wedded to mathematics as it is (and no amount of personal abuse on either side can ever furnish good reason for divorce), it becomes the mother of engineering in all of its various forms. Through and by it, the forces of nature have been directed, the elements have been subdued and some of them overcome, and man has made himself master of the world. Its marvelous progress has, therefore, been observed by the people, and is understood by them perhaps to a greater degree than that of any other science. The most eloquent orators and the ablest writers have employed their genius in sounding its praises.

It is not too much to say that when intelligent people speak, in a general way, of the wonderful things which science has accomplished during the past half-century, they have in mind, for the most part, the applications which have been made of discoveries in physical science. I think no one can justly question the assertion that of the several causes which have produced the splendid advances in the material interests of the whole world during the nineteenth century, science has contributed far more liberally than all others. So remarkable have been her achievements that all the people have come to look upon her as being nearly, if not quite, infallible. A reputation of which the votaries of science may be proud has been established, but, at the same time, one difficult to maintain.—Sel.

Conference Minutes.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Conference convened at Brockton, Massachusetts, May 12, 1894; F. M. Sheehy chairman, G. H. Gates clerk, A. B. Pierce assistant. Reports were read from Elders F. M. Sheehy, G. W. Robley, J. Smith, R. Bullard, N. C. Eldridge, G. H. Gates, N. R. Nickerson, J. B. Pierce, and A. N. Hoxie; Priests A. B. Pierce, Isaiah B. Ames, and S. W. Ashton; Teachers E. C. Fisher and C. L. Munro. Bishop's agent's report: Total receipts $809.98; disbursements $766.83; balance $43.15. Committee appointed at last conference to learn whether Dr. John Gilbert would be willing to serve the church as an elder reported that the brother does not at present feel inclined to perform the duties of an elder in administering to the sick, though he was willing to aid the work as he could in other directions. They advised that the matter be deferred for the present. Report received and committee discharged. F. M. Sheehy was chosen president of district, G. H. Gates, vice president, Myron C. Fisher clerk, A. B. Pierce assistant. R. Bullard was sustained Bishop's agent and district treasurer. The resolution from Providence, for ordination of George H. Smith to office of teacher, was referred to a committee of all the elders of the conference. Voted that the next conference of this district be held at Fall River, the last Saturday in October, 1894. Resolution from Fall River branch, for ordination of Daniel T. Shaw to the office of priest, was referred to the committee of elders. A resolution was presented by John Smith and I. B. Ames, that the district sustain the action of the High Council in case of Church vs. F. A. Potter, as published in the Saint's Herald, October 14, 1893, vol. 40, pages 656, 657. Voted to lay it on the table. A resolution providing for an annual reunion in the Massachusetts district was moved by John Gilbert and S. Ashton and carried. Voted that a committee of five be appointed by chair and that the president of district be chairman to arrange for such reunions. Chair appointed John Gilbert, John Smith, Richard Bullard, and Geo. Robley. A petition from members of the Fall River branch praying for the organization of a new branch in Fall River was referred to the missionary in charge, Wm. H. Kelley. The committee of elders reported recommending the ordination of Geo. H. Smith as teacher and Daniel T. Shaw as priest. The ordinations were ordered subject to the discretion of the district president. Voted to sustain the spiritual authorities of the church. Preaching by Elders John Smith, Geo. W. Robley, F. M. Sheehy. There has gone out from the conference a feeling of courage and hope for good results in the district.

DES MOINES.

Officials reporting: Elders W. C. Nirk baptized 3, O. B. Thomas baptized 1, C. E. Hand, W. S. Barbee, Eli Hayer baptized 3, C. Scott baptized 1, F. M. Weld, Fred A. Smith baptized 3, D. M. Rudd, George Shimel, J. W. Morgan baptized 1, and A. H. Smith; Priests G. M. Jamison, J. F. Miller, J. Coiner, W. Johnson. The committee appointed to draw up rules for the governing of the district made the following report: 1. That the Book of Rules be adopted. 2. That the delegate system be adopted as provided for in the Book of Rules, and all the credentials to contain the number of membership of the branch appointing the delegate. 3. That priests, teachers, and deacons be given ex officio privileges. 4. That all elders, priests, teachers, and deacons who have done labor be required to report to each conference, such report to be made in writing. 5. That all resolutions and reports of committees be made in writing and spread on the records as approved. 6. That district officers shall be chosen for a term of one year at each June conference. 7. That the district president may choose two assistants to be presented to the conference for their ratification. The report was considered one section at a time and then adopted as a whole. The resolution submitted by the Angus branch was laid on the table. A question was received from the Boonesborough branch. The branch was referred to Book of Rules, page 152, paragraph 2. W. C. Nirk, Bishop's agent, made the following report: On hand last report $72.02; collected since $238.50; expenditures $95.64; on hand $207.88. [Figures erroneous.—Ed.] Audited and found correct. All requests for grove and tent meetings were referred to missionary in charge and district president. Bro. Frank Russell of Grinnell was ordained a priest. Bro. C. Scott in behalf of the Decatur district, F. A. Smith in behalf of the Nauvoo and String Prairie district, D. M. Rudd in behalf of the Des Moines district, and O. B. Thomas in behalf of the Eastern Iowa district were appointed a committee to confer with the authorities of the above districts concerning the feasibility of holding a reunion at such time and place as may be agreed on. W. C. Nirk sustained president of district. H. A. McCoy secretary, W. C. Nirk Bishop's agent. Preaching by Elders D. M. Rudd, C. Scott, and A. H. Smith. Adjourned to meet with the Des Moines Valley branch, Saturday, September 1, 1894, at ten a. m.

Miscellaneous Department.

REUNION NOTICES.

To the Saints in the Tennessee and Kentucky districts; Beloved Brethren and Sisters:—Our second annual reunion meeting commences August 9 and will (D. V.) continue over two Sundays. The meeting will be held at a place about six miles east of Wingo, Kentucky, a station on the Chesapeake, Ohio, and Southwestern railroad. It is hoped that the new church now in process of erection and well on the road to completion, will be ready for dedication at that time. Bro. E. L. Kelley of the Bishopric has given us a promise to be present and assist us in the services. We also expect Bro. Heman C. Smith of the Twelve to be with us, as well as Bro. Wm. Waterman of Lamoni, Iowa.

It is earnestly desired that all who can possibly do so will make arrangements to attend this reunion, and come prepared to bear their part of the burdens and enjoy their part of the good we are hoping to receive. Come to stay till the close. Come in the Spirit of the Master, with fasting and prayer, if need be, so that we may have a time of rejoicing in the Lord. Do not take too much thought about "what ye shall eat." We will get along on that score. Let us come prepared to feast on the good things of the Spirit rather than on the good things of the land. Yours in gospel bonds,

T. C. KELLEY.

PILOT OAK, Kentucky, June 9.

The second annual reunion of the Western Tennessee and Kentucky district will be held at Lebanon, Graves county, Kentucky, August 9. The new house will be ready for business by the appointed time and we expect quite a large attendance. Our intention is to make it as near self-sustaining as we possibly can. Everybody is invited to attend. I have been informed that Bishop E. L. Kelley and Pres. Joseph Smith will be with us during our reunion. We expect M. M. Turpen and Elder Waterman to be present. Those coming by rail will please stop off at Wingo, Kentucky. I have been informed that there will be conveyance daily from Wingo out to the grounds. We trust all the traveling ministry that can meet with us will do so. Our district conference will be held just after the reunion is over.

J. H. WINN, Clerk of com.

The Southern California reunion will commence July 13, lasting ten days. It will be held in the grove about forty rods from the depot, the same place as last year. There is no expense of getting persons or things on the camp grounds. There will be some one there whenever the trains arrive so as to assist those coming by rail. Downey is on the Santa Ana branch of the Southern Pacific railroad. We intend to have everything as convenient as possible for the comfort of those coming to camp. Those desiring hotel accommodations can obtain them at reasonable rates. If those who so desire will notify me, I will engage board or room as they wish. There will be wood and water, and a stove for those needing it, and some cooking utensils. Hay can be obtained at as low a price as in any place, so those coming with teams will not need to bring that with them unless so desiring.

Brethren and sisters, we wish this to be one of the most enjoyable gatherings ever held in Southern California, and we hope that great good may be accomplished by our thus coming together. To this end let us petition our heavenly Father earnestly that the word may be preached in power and souls be added to his church such as shall be lights to the world. Come, Saints, at the beginning of the meeting, so as to have all the benefits. Come one and all; let no trifling matters detain you from attending this meeting as it will be of great worth to you. There will be able speakers to dispense the word of life and assist us by wise counsel. We also invite Saints in other localities or districts to meet with us, especially those of the eldership, as ten days gives large opportunities for preaching.

NELSON VAN FLEET.

Downey, California, June 5.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Texas Central district will meet at Texas Central branch, July 14, also the Sunday school association. We urge all the branches and Sunday schools in the district to send reports of branches and schools. As many of the priesthood and members come and meet with us as can. We want to have a good and profitable time.

E. W. NUNLEY,

President and Supt.

The Northeastern Missouri district conference will convene Saturday and Sunday, July 7 and 8, 1894, at Bevier, Missouri, commencing at ten a. m. All the branches and officials will please send reports to Bro. Joseph A. Tanner, Bevier, Missouri. We hope to see each branch represented.

D. F. WINN, Pres.

PASTORAL.

To the Saints in the Pacific Slope mission; Greeting:—Having been again appointed in charge of this part of the vineyard, I address you, asking your assistance for the spread of the work in this mission, and the care of the churches, and hope to realize the benefit of your prayers, confidence, and good will towards me in my labors, and will endeavor to make myself approved and worthy of this.

All the missionaries are worthy and in earnest, and sincerely desire the progress of the work—all are making sacrifice—and in their arduous labors and oftentimes discouraging toils and cares, they need your trustful, encouraging words of confidence and esteem, instead of fault-finding or words of discouragement unwarranted and injurious.

As we are working in harmony with each other, and with the church and all its quorums, we ask for your continued support and hearty cooperation that the work may not be hindered, and we be able to push out into new fields now widening before us, and thus extend the borders of the fold until all this field shall have heard the glad tidings. And without doubt all of the missionary forces will realize the blessing of the promise made us by the Spirit which moves in this great latter-day work that, "Angels shall go before you and prepare the paths for your coming; doors shall be opened for you; you will be received by them within and without, and you will be enabled to enter in and occupy and accomplish good in his name. Amen." This if we will keep within the lines of our delegated authority as the representatives of Christ and his church. I ardently hope and earnestly pray that I and all of you, my brethren, collaborators in this mission, may be so happy as to find ourselves worthy by diligence and faithfulness to that part of the work allotted to us, to receive this grand promise fulfilled to us in all its beauty and blessing.

To keep in harmony as much as possible with the General Conference appointments and usages of the church, the following brethren will have charge of the fields of labor named: H. L. Holt in Oregon and Washington, Thomas Daley in Northern California and Nevada, J. C. Clapp in Central California, D. L. Harris in Southern California and Arizona. With these brethren will be the following missionaries who will report quarterly to these brethren in charge of the "fields of labor:" John Davis in Oregon and Washington, M. H. Forscutt in Northern California and Oregon, A. Haws, J. H. Lawn, and Daniel Brown in Central California, and William Gibson, Charles Baly, and R. R. Dana in Southern California.

Bro. Holt may deem it prudent because of his affliction not to remain in his field during the winter months. If so he will return to California and labor as arrangements may then be made. If Bro. Clapp should not return to America—or until he does—Bro. A. Haws will have the oversight of the work in Central California field of labor.

We hope the brethren will be a little more particular in reporting quarterly to the brethren in charge of their fields of labor—and they to me—that a correct record and report may be made of the year's work of this mission; and, brethren, let us strive to make it such a good one that we will all rejoice in it, and we will if we heed the voice of the Spirit to open up new fields and spread abroad the truth outside of branches—preach to teach—and teach the gospel, and by its powers we will be blessed and others made to rejoice in light and truth. Ever praying for the blessings of God to be and abide with us all, and for the establishment of righteousness in the earth, and for the redemption of Zion, I am,

Your brother and colaborer in the Lord,
J. F. BURTON.

No. 2910 Sixteenth street, San Francisco, California.

Little Sioux, June 23, 24, in charge of Elders A. M. Fyrando and D. Chambers.

Moorhead, July 14, 15, in charge of Elders J. F. Mintun and Joseph Seddon.

Persia, July 21, 22, in charge of Elders A. M. Fyrando and W. R. Davison.

Said meetings to commence 2:30 p. m. on Saturday.

D. CHAMBERS.

BORN.

HOLSCLAW.—To John and Dicy Holsclaw, at Bartlett, Iowa, December 1, 1893, a son, and named Owen Freeland. Blessed June 7, 1894, by H. Kemp.

HAYER.—To Bro. and Sr. O. Hayer, of Eagle Grove, Iowa, March 28, 1894, a son, and named Alvin Nathaniel. Blessed June 10, 1894, by Elders C. E. Hand and Eli Hayer.

CRAIG.—To George and Carrie Craig, April 11, 1889, a daughter, and named Grace Estella. Blessed June 10, 1894, by H. Kemp.

MARRIED.

BARRETT—NEWBERRY.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Wednesday evening, May 30, 1894, Mr. Marion Barrett, of Hardy, Nuckolls county, Nebraska, and Sr. Jennie Newberry, of Largo, McPherson county, Nebraska. Rev. G. W. Brooks of the M. E. Church pronounced the words and offered the prayer that made the two hearts one. The happy couple will make their future home near Hardy, Nebraska.

May love and peace this union bless
With length of days and happiness.
And wisdom, patience, strength attend
To cheer them to their journey's end.

STAFFORD—GAULTER.—At the residence of the bride's parents, at Lamoni, Iowa, June 14, 1894, by Elder Robert M. Elvin, Bro. Edwin B. Stafford to Sr. Louisa E. Gaulter. When the two were made one by the few words said, and congratulations bestowed by the host of relatives and few friends, the cheerful company sat down to the rich and ample feast prepared. The young couple were the recipients of many useful and beautiful presents.

DIED.

GAYLORD.—At Tabor, Iowa, June 7, 1894, Dock Elijah Gaylord. Deceased was born March 16, 1870, at Tabor, Iowa; baptized September 7, 1889, by Elder Joseph Luff. After uniting with the church his heart was in the work, and he had a great desire to live and work in its interests. He lived a model life and was highly esteemed and greatly beloved by all who knew him. Father, mother, five brothers, one sister, grandmother, uncles, and aunts, and a host of warm-hearted Saints and a wide circle of friends mourn. The funeral sermon was preached at his home, to a large and very attentive audience of Saints and friends by Elder Henry Kemp; text, Psalms 116: 15.

SAVAGE.—One mile south of Wilber, Nebraska, June 3, 1894, at the residence of his Son Wilber, Bro. Henry P. Savage. Deceased was born January 12, 1827, in Columbia county, Pennsylvania. He joined the M. E. Church in his youth and held that connection about thirty years. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church by Elder R. C. Elvin, January 25, 1876. He was a member of the Blue River branch, located at Wilber, Nebraska, from the time of its organization and remained a faithful member of the same until death. The funeral services were conducted at the Saints' church, Wilber, June 4, by Elder C. H. Porter, assisted by Elder J. W. Waldsmith; text Rev. 2: 10. A large concourse of neighbors and friends gathered to pay the last tribute of respect to the departed.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The following items are reported by European correspondents and published in the Sunday issues of the 10th inst:—

The agreement between England and Belgium by which the latter gains additional territory and rights in the Congo Free State, Africa, is said to have angered French diplomats, who in that action see a growth in English influence in Africa and a strengthening of the British hold upon Egypt. The affair is said to have resulted in efforts being made by French and German diplomats to avoid causes of irritation and to establish a diplomatic entente between the two powers, for the reason that the interests of France and Germany in Africa are at present one and the same.

Norwegian correspondents write that the prolonged feud between their national party and King Oscar, which has dragged along over ten years, is now culminating, and in a week or two will reach such a stage as to require definite action of some kind.

The action of the Austrian Emperor in the late Hungarian crisis will, it is said, result in a strong vote from outraged Hungarian liberalism at the next election in the constituencies and more immediately raise the question of the continued existence of the dual monarchy.

The United States House of Representatives committee on railways and canals has reported favorably on an appropriation providing for a preliminary survey of the proposed canal to connect Lake Erie and the Ohio River.

A plan is also being presented by a member of the congress committee on railroads and canals to secure conjoint action by the United States and Canada with a view to connect Hudson Bay and the Gulf of Mexico.

The miner's strike: June 9.—The first regiment of the Illinois militia, 400 strong, with a gatling gun and 30,000 rounds of ammunition, was ordered to Pana, Illinois, on the 9th to quell riotous miners. Angry mobs of Anarchists, Huns, Poles, and Italians are approaching the town of Pana from many points. Martial law was practically declared by calling upon all able-bodied citizens above the age of eighteen to serve on guard duty. The militia have been called for to avert a conflict.

West Virginia and Ohio miners exchanged shots at a number of points in those States. Railroad bridges have been burned at several places by miners in their efforts to prevent the movement of coal trains.

Pennsylvania miners forced many miners out of the pits and destroyed coal tipples.

June 10.—Miners surrounded the sheriff's posse at Lemont, Pennsylvania, and attacked it. The deputies fired in self-defense, killing one and fatally wounding two of the rioters.

Miners overpowered guards at a railroad bridge in the Massillon, Ohio, district and burned the structure. The State militia is seeking to protect property.

Miners ambushed fifteen deputies in the Cripple Creek, Colorado, district, but did not injure anyone. The strike in El Paso county has cost the county $160,000 to date, and is costing $6,000 per day.

June 11.—The necessity for the presence of troops in the mining town of Pana, Illinois, is past, and they have been recalled. The sheriff and other officials are blamed with creating a needless scare. Ohio miners continue to blow up bridges on the Cleveland, Lorain, and Wheeling, and the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroads. More troops are sent into the unsettled districts. Some trains have been seized and sidetracked, but a large amount of coal is being transported under military protection.

Alabama miners are threatening violence because of coal transportation under State protection.

Deputies at Cripple Creek, Colorado, have broken camp and departed in accordance with the agreement reached. Work in the mines will be resumed.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 11.—Representative operators and miners have been in session here for two days trying to patch up a plan whereby the great strike may be settled. The scale committee, representing the joint conferences between the operators of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Central and Northern Illinois, after a long consultation, reached an agreement that received the support of the majority of the conference. According to the agreement the miners now have the final determination whether peace or war is to prevail after next Monday. Telegrams protesting against the action are pouring in from the miners. President McBride says they will approve the action; others say not.

June 12.—Hocking Valley, Ohio, miners 7,000 in number, and the miners of Centralia, Danville, Streator, and Mazon, Illinois, and some in Indiana, have rejected the Columbus agreement and declare their determination to stand out for original demands. Miners at other points have accepted the agreement and returned to work. President McBride is reported as saying that the settlement was not all he could wish, but the miners were starving, industries were paralyzed, and thousands of fellow workmen were being daily thrown out of employment by reason of the coal famine, while interference with property rights, which wherever done was blamed on miners, was losing public sympathy for them. He considered the agreement a victory for the miners.

Miners in the Ohio and Western Pennsylvania districts have bitterly denounced the action of their executive officers in the late Columbus Convention. President Adams of the Ohio district, who refused to sign the scale, has called upon the Ohio miners to hold district conventions and organize against it. It is thought that the general union may be broken up and State organizations be established in its stead. The executive board of the miner's union think their action will be ratified when explanatory circulars reach the miners.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 13.—A mob of 500 miners drove out men who had gone to work in mines of the Imperial Coal Company and fired at the engineer. They then went to the company's store, drove out the clerks, and helped themselves to eatables. The sheriff was appealed to to protect property.

President McBride was hanged in effigy at a mass meeting near McDonald. Three thousand men were present and denounced their officers for compromising at the rate agreed to.

MASSILLON, Ohio, June 13.—Two more bridges were burned on the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railway this morning. It will require at least four days to open the road for traffic. The latest bridge burning excites much apprehension. The miners are in secret session and have condemned the calling out the militia as a useless expense. Skulking bodies of men are bothering the troops at different points along the road.

PANA, Ill., June 13.—The mob at Camp Pope increases; there are now 500 foreigners there. One hundred deputies are stationed near by, because of news that Pennwell's mine may be burned. Trouble continues also at Mount Olive and Pekin.

Actions on the compromise: Accepted at Upper Des Moines, Iowa, district by miners and operators; at Manown, Pennsylvania, by operators; Oskaloosa, Iowa, by miners and operators; Beattyville, Kentucky, by miners and operators; Jackson county, Ohio, by miners and operators. Rejected at Fairbury, Illinois, by miners; Southern Iowa by miners and operators; at La Salle, Illinois, by miners; at Washington, Indiana, by miners; at Terre Haute, Indiana, by the miners; at Spring Valley, Illinois, by the miners.

The iron miners at Ironwood, Michigan, demand an increase in wages. A strike is likely.

One hundred men on the new natural gas pipe line are on strike at Portland, Indiana.

DENVER, Colo., June 13.—The coal miners' strike in this State does not appear to be nearing a settlement. Over 300 men employed in the Crested Butte mines to-day decided to strike until the schedule of three years ago is restored. At Spring Gulch the men have gone out. This will compel the coke ovens at Cardiff to close down.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 13.—A telegram from Montgomery to-day says last night a party of strikers on the mountain top above the St. Clair mines fired on the guards and the latter returned the fire, keeping up a hot fusillade until the firing from the strikers ceased. None of the guards were injured, but it is not known whether the strikers escaped injury. To-day a scouting party is in the mountains after the attacking party.

June 15.—Advices report that the backbone of the coal strike is broken; that Hocking Valley and Pittsburg miners have accepted the Columbus compromise as the best that can be had, and they will return to work. Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois strikers, however, refuse to accept the Columbus scale and will continue the strike. There is still some violence.

EDINBURG, June 9.—The Scottish Miners' Federation has decided by majority vote in favor of a strike. Representatives of the Mine Owners' Association of Scotland, Wednesday last, unanimously resolved to reduce wages by one shilling per day. This was regarded as a direct challenge to the men, who have for some time past been threatening to strike.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 10.—The amalgamation of the great labor bodies of the country—the Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor—will be discussed and perhaps definitely agreed upon here during the early portion of this week. The leading spirits of these two great organizations began to arrive here to-day and already Samuel Gompers of the Federation and Master Workman James R. Sovereign of the knights are on the ground, as well as others little less important in labor circles. The conference proper will open to-morrow and continue several days.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 9.—The Dominion Government is having a careful estimate made of the losses and losers by the flood. In the municipalities corresponding to American counties it is found that fully 15,000 people are to-day homeless in consequence of the flooding of the Frazer. What their losses will be or have been cannot yet be calculated.

Col. Baker, Provincial Secretary, has been personally directing the relief work for the local government. Reports received at this place from the interior state that the Frazer River is still slowly rising.

Idle Poles demanded work from the authorities in Toledo, Ohio. There are 25,000 of them idle in the city; Some of them are on the verge of starvation and trouble is feared.

SOFIA, June 10.—The Svoboda publishes the program of the government opposition, which advocates an alliance with Turkey, open support of the policy of the triple alliance, and friendly relations with the other Balkan States.

AUGUSTA, Kan., June 11.—The Walnut River here is out of its banks and enormous damage has been done to crops. Wheat in the shock was swept down the stream and that not harvested has been ruined. Fences and bridges were washed away, and for a quarter of a mile the St. Louis and San Francisco track is under water, and the Santa Fe bridge has been taken out six miles north, stopping traffic on both roads. Residents in the southern part of town moved out this afternoon in boats, as their homes are surrounded by water and some of the houses may be carried away before morning by the raging torrent.

Omaha, Nebraska, and various Kansas cities report destruction of property by rising waters. The Missouri River rise threatens great damage.

United States war vessels have warned sealing vessels to keep out of sealing waters until the lawful season opens. A number of vessels have been boarded and numerous seizures are probable.

TANGIER, June 11.—Sultan Muley Hassan died suddenly at Tadla, near Morocco, on June 7. His death was sudden, and has given rise to suspicion of poisoning. Abdul Aziz, his younger son has been acknowledged as his successor. Spain has asked the European powers to act in concert to preserve order.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 11.—Advices per steamer Arawa from Pacific ports:—

Samoa affairs are still disturbed; Australian colonies oppose annexation of Samoa to New Zealand, and urge the inability of the latter to protect the former. The Arawa brought delegates from the South Sea colonies to the Intercolonial Trade conference to be held in Ottawa.

The new Hawaiian constitution has been promulgated at Honolulu. It declares for universal equity and liberty of the press and Hawaiian subjects. However, any newspaper advocating restoration of the monarchy shall be considered traitorous. Slavery and gambling are prohibited; slaves entering the republic are declared free. The naturalization laws are copied from those of the United States. The governmental branches are executive, legislative, and judicial. The President is elected for a term of six years and cannot succeed himself in office. He has a cabinet of four ministers, who act with him in making appointments. The Senate and House of Representatives each have fifteen members, from whom a property holding qualification is required. Senators are elected for six years, and Representatives for two years. The first election is to take place within the next three months.

HONGKONG, China, June 13.—A great pestilence, resembling the plague that ravaged the city of London in 1665, is devastating China. It has long been raging in the interior and has now reached this city, which has been declared an infected port. A missionary estimates that 60,000 people have been carried off by it in the city of Canton alone. There were eighty-six deaths from it here yesterday. The disease is confined almost exclusively to Chinese, though some British soldiers have been attacked. Its presence is attributed to the filthy habits of the people.

The new Hungarian cabinet has been accepted.

The United States government has claimed 22,000,000 pesetas from Spain because of misinterpretation of the duty provisions of the Cuban treaty.

President Cleveland is improving in health and now transacts routine business.

Women suffragists have secured the adoption of a universal suffrage plank in the Kansas Populist platform.

It is reported that the Italian premier, Sig. Crispi, and his cabinet, have resigned.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 13.—The Minister of Finance, M. Witte, is sending a high official of the government, M. Zabouguine, to China, Japan, Corea, and the United States, with instructions to inspect the chief ports of those countries, notably San Francisco, and to report upon the best means to be adopted with the view of promoting commercial relations with Russia. M. Zabouguine is especially commissioned to develop the closest possible relations with North America. The tour of the Russian official will last two years.

PANAMA, Colombia, via Galveston, Texas, June 13.—The city is on fire. The flames started in a low quarter of the town, between the public market and the old railway station, at 4:30 this afternoon, and at seven o'clock this evening the police reported that two hundred and twenty-five buildings had been destroyed. No estimate of the loss is yet possible. A vast quantity of merchandise in shops and in storage has been burned. The loss in private houses has been nearly as great. No less than $1,000,000 worth of property has been ruined, and much more badly damaged. The present estimates of the loss are between $1,250,000 and $1,500,000.

YOKOHAMA, Japan, June 13.—A fire at Yamagata, Province of Uzen, has destroyed twelve hundred houses and thirteen people lost their lives during the conflagration.

SHANGHAI, China, June 13.—The Government of Japan has sent large forces of troops to protect its interests in Corea. The King of Corea is reported to have fled to Japanese territory.

TANGIER, June 13.—The soldiers of the late Sultan are raiding the villages near their camps and thereby causing a bitter feeling among the tribesmen in the vicinity. The newly proclaimed sultan left Rabal for Fez with a strong force of troops. The British gunboat Bramble has arrived.

LONDON, June 14.—Lord Chief Justice Coleridge's illness was terminated to-day by death. Lord Coleridge had been ill for a long time, and his life was despaired of several weeks ago.

PANAMA, Colombia, June 14.—The fire which started here yesterday afternoon consumed five blocks of property, including the prefecture, police headquarters, forty business buildings, and 300 tenement houses. The total loss is now estimated at $500,000.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.—Cholera seems to be spreading in Russia. A dispatch from St. Petersburg shows 134 new cases and seventy-eight deaths during May at Warsaw and the other six Polish provinces. Advices are that China and Turkey are also infected with this plague.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—The Cosmopolis Colonizing Association, a voluntary organization of labor unions, yesterday signed a contract with the Land of Sunshine company of this city for 2,560 acres of land near Merced, California. The price to be paid is $275,000.

The coal production of the United States last year aggregated 167,133,062 gross tons, and that of Germany was 95,476,217 tons. Our production of pig-iron for last year was 7,124,502 gross tons, and that of Germany 4,986,003 tons. The German output of steel for last year was 3,102,202 tons.

TWELVE YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

Chronic Cases a Specialty.

A Book for Everybody!
But Especially for the Boys!

Autobiography of ELDER JOSEPH LUFF

The Struggles, Failures, and Successes in the Life of one who is now a Prominent Minister of the Church.

A Medley of Mischief, Mirth, Folly, Pride, Self-will, Honor, Devotion, and Sentiment, as found in the Character of a Boy whom God in due time selected as an ambassador for Himself, and

Who To-day Stands as a Monument of Divine Grace!

The Book contains a history of his conversion to and from Methodism, his acceptance of the restored gospel, a dissertation on the leading features of the doctrine that moved him to obedience, his call as a minister and experiences as such, together with a recital of some striking incidents, showing divine interference and blessing. The autobiography has been revised by Bro. Luff since its publication in Autumn Leaves, and a large amount of doctrinal matter has been added in appropriate places. TWO SERMONS, one on the "Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man," and one on "The Modern Stumbling-Stone," have been added also, making it just the kind of a book to have in the family.

ZION'S RELIGIO-LITERARY SOCIETY PROGRAM.

Senior religious department; J. F. McDowell, superintendent, Magnolia, Iowa.

July, first week.—Organ Voluntary. Prayer. "The Past." (Bryant's Poems, p. 121.) Hymn 317, Saints' Harp. Five minute essay, "The Resurrection." Hymn 484, Saints' Harp. Series: "Six Principles of the Gospel." Topic 5, "Resurrection." (1) Doctrine of Old Testament: Isa. 26: 19; Hosea 13: 14; Job 19: 26; Psalm 17: 15; Psalm 49: 14, 15. (2) New Testament: Jno. 11: 24; Jno. 5: 28; Acts 24: 15 Through Christ: Jno. 11: 23; Acts 4: 2: 17: 18. Two Resurrections: Dan. 12: 2; Jno. 5: 29. (a) The just: Luke 14: 14; 1 Thess. 4: 16, 17. (b) Unjust: Rev. 20: 5, 12. Process: Jno. 12: 24; 1 Cor. 15: 35-39. Result: 1 Cor. 15: 53, 54; 2 Cor. 5: 4; Rom. 2: 7. Hymn 1044, Saints' Harp. Comments by the President. Closing Hymn, 217, Saints' Harp. Benediction Acts 20: 32 ("And now," we commend, etc).

NOTE.—Let Bibles and Testaments be distributed before service; and after second hymn, let quotations be called and received, then read as in former program.

Junior religious department; David J. Krabl, superintendent, care Johnston-Fife Hat Co., St. Joseph, Missouri.

June, first week.—Hymn 118, Saints' Harp. Invocation. (Note a.) Concert Reading, Job chapter 9. Declamation, "Song of Endless Life," Hesperis. Prayer. (Note a.) Hymn 988, Saints' Harp; tune, Webb. Series: "Six Principles of the Gospel." Topic 5, "Resurrection of the Dead." Recital, "An Offering," chapter 9, Hesperis. Reading, Hebrews 6: 1, 2, 3, followed by a brief talk, subject "Christ the First Fruits," by President. Essay 1, "Resurrection of the Just." Essay 2, "Resurrection of the Unjust." Roll Call. Response, "Something learned to-night." Hymn 1066, Saints' Harp. Benison. (Note a.)

NOTE (a.)—Suggestion.—Instead of selecting some one who is used to praying in public, select those who are unaccustomed, and when they are officiating sustain them all you can. "We learn to do by doing." The Superintendent would be glad to receive suggestions from any using this Program, concerning how it may be improved. Address as above.

Senior historical department; F. M. Sheehy, superintendent, 6 Stafford street, Boston, Massachusetts.

July, second week.—Hymn, or Musical Voluntary. Prayer. Paper, "Francisco Pizarro." Biographical sketch. (Note a.) Vocal music. Dissertation, "The contract entered into by Pizarro, Almagro, and Luque," including the motive moving them. Question, "Who was monarch of Spain at the time of the conquest of Peru?" (Note b.) Who was queen? (Note b.) Give two prominent features of their reign. (Note c.) What was the religion of Spain at that time? Musical selection, either vocal or instrumental. Report of Critic. Dismissal.

SUGGESTIONS.—We will start with the review of the conquest of Peru, and aim to lead up to an understanding of the people, geography, and civilizations of the ancient Americans. (Note a.)—As an aid to the student for this we refer to Prescott's Conquest of Peru. For the biographical sketch of Pizarro see page 199. For that on the contract, page 224, McKay edition. (Note b.)—Let there be no collusion among the members with the answers to the questions, so that none will know only their own answers before they are read by the chairman. It will be interesting to notice the difference in the answers as well as the harmony. (Note c.)—Every one is free to use his judgment as to what he considers the "prominent features" referred to. No dictum granted to the chairman to decide as to who has the best answer. Let each one draw his own conclusion.

Junior historical department; Etta M. Izatt, superintendent, 4342 Vista avenue, St. Louis, Missouri.

July, second week.—Voluntary, organ. Hymn by Society. Invocation. Duet. Recitation. Character Sketch, "Abraham, father of the faithful." Select Reading. General Discussion: "Was the serpent which spake to Eve, a beast of the field, or a devil in disguise?" Solo, vocal. Recitation. Roll Call: response, item of sacred history. Hymn. Benediction.

THOUGHTS—Try to do your best! Every one should take part in the general discussion. Don't be a "wall flower," but attend meeting with a determination to do your part. Wordsworth says in his ode to duty, "Stern daughter of the voice of God!

Yet thou dost wear

The Godhead's most benignant smile."

Consider it your duty to promote the interest of the Z. R.-L. S.; promoting its interests, means self-improvement. Remember our motto, "Onward and Upward."

Every superintendent would be glad to receive suggestions concerning their programs, how to make them more interesting, better adapted, etc. The addresses of all the superintendents are published this month, so that anyone desiring to make suggestions may do so.—J. A. G.

ABSTRACT of EVIDENCE
TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

This work is an abstract of the sworn testimony of both Plaintiff's and Defendant's witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickites (a faction from the Original Church) for title to and possession of the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri. The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, and who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, and the testimony of members of the Hedrickite organization, is given; also the statements of said witnesses under cross-examination and recross-examination.

Evidence from the three standard books, and from the publications of the Original Church, and the Reorganized Church, the Hedrickite faction, and from those of the Utah Church, is presented in support of the claims of the Reorganized Church to be the successor of the Original Church, showing it to be the authorized and identical continuation of said Original Church and entitled to its property, while all other factions have departed from the Original Church in organization, in teaching, and in practice.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, three pamphlets, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

A valuable volume of evidence for ministry and laity; useful in refuting the many misrepresentations of the early church and its ministry and membership.

A limited edition has been published. Price, bound in law sheep (Counsel's argument in separate binding), $3.00.

Bound in cloth $2.50.

WHY IS IT?

That Hercules Gas and Gasoline Engines are held by the public in so much higher estimation than other engines? The parties using these engines, and their name is legion, are the ones who can best answer this question. They well know the ease and promptness with which these engines are started and the very little care they require to keep them running month after month with the most perfect satisfaction. They run without a spark battery, which is admitted to be unreliable. The simple ignition tubes of the Hercules Engines are far better. Send for catalogue. If you want second-hand engines of other makes at cheap rates we can supply you. We have a number taken in trade and cannot take any more until these are realized on. VOICE OF WARNING AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL PEOPLE;

OR AN INTRODUCTION TO THE FAITH AND DOCTRINE OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

This work in its graphic review of the prophecies and history of God's dealings with his people in past ages, together with the abundant proofs concerning the work of the latter days, the gathering and restoration of Israel to their ancient home in Palestine, is a book for the times. The author presents the prophetic evidences of the restoration of the gospel in "the dispensation of the fullness of times," showing the evidences in favor of a restoration of primitive Christianity and the organization of the apostolic church with its apostleship and priesthood—its authority—its powers and gifts. This publication has always been a favorite one among inquirers for the truth. 150 pages.

CONJUGAL STATISTICS.

A CENSUS bulletin gives some interesting statistics of conjugal conditions in the United States at the beginning of June, 1890. Very nearly three-fifths, or 59.29 per cent, of the population were single, this including children as well as adults. A little more than one-third, or 35.66 per cent, were married, and 4.74 per cent, or nearly one in twenty, were widowed. The divorced constituted but a small fraction of 1 per cent, and those whose conjugal condition was unknown formed even a smaller proportion. Of the 32,067,880 males 11,205,228 were married, and of the 30,554,370 females 11,126,196 were married, the percentages being 34.94 and 36.42 respectively. The difference may be set down to the account of unmarried foreigners, and doubtless the fact that many married foreigners come here leaving their wives behind them explains the "why and wherefore" the married men exceeded the married women by 79,034 four years ago. The single persons constituted 62.20 per cent of the males and 66.24 per cent of the females. The widows were 7.05 per cent of the total number of females, which was nearly three times as great as that of widowers, indicating that remarriages occur oftener in the case of widowers than of widows. The number of divorced women was 71,895, being considerably more than the number of divorced males, which is construed as indicating that divorced men have remarried to a greater extent than divorced women. For females 65 years old and upward the proportion of widows exceeded that of married women.

Classification by general nativity and color is stated to be, in a measure, a classification by station in life, and the results derived from it throw much light upon the conjugal condition of social classes. The native whites of native parentage, taken as a whole, form the highest class in the community, as indicated by education, occupation, and freedom from criminality and pauperism. The native whites of foreign parentage occupy a middle position in this respect, while the foreign white in the North and the negro in the South occupy the lowest position in the scale. Of the total number of whites 58.84 per cent were single, 36.23 per cent married, 4.64 per cent widowed, and 0.19 per cent divorced. The percentages for native whites of native parentage were 59.76 single, 35.40 married, 4.52 widowed, and 0.22 divorced. For native whites of foreign parentage the percentages were 76.77 single, 21.47 married, 1.63 widowed, and 0.11 divorced. The foreign whites showed 32.76 per cent single, 57.95 married, 8.91 widowed, and 0.20 divorced. The reason for the great disproportion of single and married in the latter class is that our immigrants principally are of mature age, and in large proportion consist of married persons. Among the negroes the proportions were: Single, 62.51; married, 31.64; widowed, 5.51; and divorced, 0.21.

In the North Atlantic division of States, which constitute the principal manufacturing section of the country, and one made up largely of urban populations, single persons are found in smaller proportion than in any other section, and the married and widowed in larger proportion. The South Atlantic and South Central divisions, which are almost purely agricultural and rural, contain the largest proportion of single persons, though this result is directly opposed to popular belief. The figures appear to indicate that in the most densely settled parts of the country, where the urban population is the greatest the native whites of native parentage marry more freely than in the rural portions of the United States. The largest proportion of the married foreign whites is found in the North Central division, and the smallest proportion in the Western division. The immigration to the first named division consists largely of Germans and Scandinavians, while that to the West is largely of English, Scotch, and Irish. The figures for Chicago are not particularly contrastive with those for other large cities of the Union. They are: Totals, 568,402 males and 767,722 females. Of these, stating for the males first, there were single 454,765 and 428,236, married 271,363 and 269,709, widowed 20,054 and 68,479, divorced 322 and 567, conditions unknown 1,085 and 731. For the fifty principal cities, containing 18 per cent of the total population, the percentage of single persons was 60.96 for the males and 55.26 for the females, married 36.10 and 35.70, widowed 2.59 and 8.77, divorced 0.10 and 0.20. For the United States as a whole divorced persons represent 0.54 per cent of the married people, or 1 in 185. Divorces were more frequent in proportion to population among the negroes than any other class, and next in rank are the native whites of native parentage.—Ex.

VIEWED MERELY as a human or literary production, the Bible is a marvellous book and without a rival. All the libraries of theology, philosophy, history, antiquities, poetry, law and policy would not furnish material enough for so rich a treasure of the choicest gems of human genius, wisdom, and experience. It embraces works of about forty authors, representing the extremes of society, from the thrones of the king to the boat of the fisherman; it was written during a long period of sixteen centuries, on the banks of the Nile, in the desert of Arabia, in the land of promise, in Asia Minor, in classical Greece, and in imperial Rome; it commences with the creation and ends with the final glorification, after describing all the intervening stages in the revelation of God and the spiritual development of man; it uses all forms of literary composition; it rises to the highest heights and descends to the lowest depths of humanity; it measures all states and conditions of life, it is acquainted with every grief and every woe; it touches every chord of sympathy; it contains the spiritual biography of every human heart; it is suited to every class of society, and can be read with the same interest and profit by the king and the beggar, by the philosopher and the child.

RELIGIOUS DEBATES.

THE counsel given by the First Presidency regarding debates upon the doctrines and the validity of the authority of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will be recognized by all who have testimony of the truth as timely in view of the circumstances stated. Therein is the expression of a policy which the Church of Christ has pursued steadfastly in ancient as well as in modern times, and it cannot be consistently departed from by those who esteem and honor the Lord as the arbiter in matters that relate to his plan of salvation. As to challenges for debate, it is a common occurrence for individuals or parties who break away from organizations of various kinds to seek to gain notoriety and prestige by contentious discussions with representatives of established institutions in order to be brought into prominence thereby. In pursuing this course they are not liable to loss, because they have nothing to lose; while the possible advantage to them is that by cunning and adroitness in debate they may be advertised as worthy foemen to those to whom they have become apostate, and thus find means of directing general attention to themselves and gaining something at the expense of others.

There may be questions which are of such slight intrinsic importance that debate thereon excites no more than temporary personal antagonism between the parties thereto—a feature regarded with concern by those who desire to avoid contention and promulgate principles of peace. But when it comes to discussing religious matters in that fashion a more serious phase is presented. Religion reaches all that relates to mankind, past, present, and future; and agitation thereon stirs the soul to its inmost depths. Such agitation, therefore, as is in harmony with the divine will is that only which produces peace, harmony, and brotherly love. That which yields fruit of an opposite nature is contrary to the spirit and genius of the gospel of Christ. Not being confined to the temporalities of moral life, true religion overshadows and absorbs all other topics that concern man, and its purity and power transcend all other considerations in time and eternity. Viewed from this standpoint it is to thoughtful, considerate, devotional people a matter far too sacred to be treated as a football whose fortunes and destiny are to be determined by the player who can kick with greatest force or deliver the most cleverly directed blows.

The principles of the gospel and authority in the Church of Christ are of such grave importance to mankind that self-interest demands for them the most careful scrutiny and inquiry, even to the extent that they be required to present to the believer the highest evidence of divine authenticity—that of direct testimony from the Almighty. But debate is not inquiry; contentious discussion is not investigation; submitting the conclusions of an argumentative contest to the decision of a board of finite judges is not obtaining a divine and infinite witness of the right. Thrilling eloquence, impassioned oratory, or subtle argument never made of the wrong a right; nor does their absence make of a single truth an error. The relative positions of good and evil are not altered by the forensic ability of advocates; and the immutable plan of salvation and divine authority to act therein are unchanged by the prejudices or scholarship of men. The spirit of inquiry, or investigation, of searching for light and knowledge, and of expounding and proclaiming the principles of truth and persuading and leading men and women thereto, is of God. The disposition to court contentious, and sometimes angry discussion, to challenge to debate wherein not the vindication of truth but the triumph of one or other of the contending parties in the argument is the only object sought or which can be attained, is an inspiration of the evil one, and finds no approval in the gospel plan or the genius of Christianity. Such a proceeding being in its very nature an assault upon others, its inception is in a desire, not to convince people of the truth, but to bring supposed antagonists into contumely or subjection by a measure of force, and therefore is but a modification of that spirit which, under the guise of religion, so often has lit the fires of persecution and has filled many a martyr's tomb.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was organized in this dispensation by direct command of the Almighty, given through the prophet Joseph Smith. It was set up by the God of heaven, "shall never be destroyed," and "shall not be left to other people." Its apostles, like the apostles of old, were chosen of the Lord and ordained, that they "should go and bring forth fruit," and that their "fruit should remain." Of its Council of Apostles the Lord said, in a revelation given through the Prophet Joseph Smith, at Nauvoo, January 19, 1841, "I give unto you, my servant Brigham Young, to be a president over the twelve traveling council, which twelve hold the keys to open up the authority of my kingdom upon the four corners of the earth, and after that to send my word to every creature." President Wilford Woodruff was a member of the council at that time. The keys of the authority spoken of yet remain with and are exercised by the Council of Apostles.

The Lord made no blunder in organizing the church. His work was not done so badly that a few years later a "reorganization" had to be effected by men, and least of all by apostates and seceders from the true fold, in order to get the work right. The originally organized church,—"the only true and living church upon the face of the whole earth,"—still exists and prospers, and will continue to do so. There is no question with its officers or members as to the validity of its authority. This was one reason why, in the contest for the Temple Lot in Jackson county, the church took no part, being content to await the due time of the Lord for the restoration of that property to its rightful ownership. The authorities were not in the business of submitting any inquiry as to the genuineness of the church to a human court, especially one presided over by a Missouri judge. A higher Judge already had passed upon that question. It is beyond the domain of human adjudication. The certificated judgment is in the situation and condition of the Latter Day Saints whose present abiding place is in the vales of the Rocky Mountains. They alone are fulfilling the destiny marked out for the church in the prophetic declarations of President Joseph Smith, its martyred prophet, in laboring according to the revealed gospel plan for the salvation of the living and the redemption of the dead. Regarding the movements of the Saints, one of his predictions, made during a visit to Montrose, Iowa, and recorded in his journal of August 6, 1842, reads as follows:—

I had a conversation with a number of the brethren in the shade of the building on the subject of our persecutions in Missouri, and the constant annoyance which has followed us since we were driven from that State. I prophesied that the Saints would continue to suffer much affliction and would be driven to the Rocky Mountains, many would apostatize, others would be put to death by their persecutors, or lose their lives in consequence of exposure and disease, and some of you will live to go and assist in making settlements and build cities and see the Saints become a mighty people in the midst of the Rocky Mountains.

Occasionally elders have been pressed closely by challenges to debate, and have felt that they should accept such challenges lest by declining they bring discredit on the cause they represent. If a case occurs that really is of such importance as that, it is of sufficient importance to refer to the presiding authorities for instructions what to do, and the inspiration of the Lord will indicate the procedure to be followed. But on no account should an elder be the challenging party. Nor should he consent to submit the validity of church authority to human judgment, or the principles of the gospel to any other test than that which is given by the Head of the church, the Lord Jesus, when he said to the Jews, "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man will do his will, he will know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." The elders of the church are not called to teach their own will or doctrine, but to deliver the message of peace and salvation which Christ the Lord has given them, and to him must they look for its vindication and confirmation.—Deseret Semi-Weekly News, June 5, 1894.

"RELIGIOUS DEBATES."

Under this caption in the Deseret Semi-Weekly News, for June 5, there is quite an editorial commending the "Card to the Elders," issued by Presidents Woodruff, Cannon, and Smith of the Utah Mormon Church.

It may be common for parties breaking away from existing organizations to challenge those from whom they make departure. It is true, so far as the Reorganized Church is concerned, that some who have gone out from them have now and again challenged that church for a comparison of views. We do not choose to state that these men sought for "notoriety and prestige" by offering "contentious discussion," to be "brought into prominence thereby."

It so happens that in the case which gave pith and point to the advice to the elders, the challenges to discussion from California, were evidently offered by elders of the Reorganized Church and were made in good faith upon matters of difference of much more than "slight intrinsic importance." As it is sometimes said of various commodities, including gold and silver used as money, that there is no such thing as intrinsic value in an absolute sense; for the reason that any one thing has value only as the uses to which it may be put give it worth; and in case the demand is great and the supply small, scarcity enhances the value without changing the quality of the article itself; so, in the case at issue. The Utah Mormon Church, or Latter Day Saints left the State of Illinois, for reasons unnecessary now to state; and in leaving the State and establishing in the fastnesses of the Rocky Mountain regions, the leaders fastened a dogma and practice upon the people foreign to the genius of American institutions; and directly at variance with the rules, teaching, and commands of God to the church under its first President Joseph Smith. Many who had become members of the church during the lifetime of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, could not accept the doctrines thus offered by those leaders, and refused to become subject to or partners in the new departure. The conditions which emphasized that new departure on both sides; those who accepted and became parties to it, and those who rejected it, acting in good faith; the doctrines taught by the church from 1830 to 1844, and those taught by the body in the mountains differing so widely as to be at positive variance one with the other, all emphasize the positions of the contestants to-day. Under these circumstances no matter what the editor of the News may think to the contrary, there are very grave reasons why these men of Utah should not evade just inquiry in a public way into those dogmas which characterize each class of disputants and form the basis to legal church existence and claim to divine sanction as an organization.

If "religion reaches all that relates to mankind, past, present, and future, and agitation thereon stirs the soul to its depths;" it must be because of the supreme interest man must feel in what is to so affect him on earth in time, and in the other world in eternity. This very interest, as it may and must affect this controversy between the church in Utah and the Reorganized Church, is one of the chiefest reasons why these Utah people should stand to the test of consideration and examination that a discussion means.

We are no more interested in wordy contests to see "who can kick with greatest force, or deliver the most cleverly directed blows," than are the editor of the News and his fellows, the elders; but, if the claim made by the Utah Church to be the church, the one in legal succession in ecclesiastical and divine law is correct, it is also the one in legal succession in civil law, the law of the land. As a consequence, it is the church said to have been organized April 6, 1830, by Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, and others; and if it is it is susceptible to such evidences and argument in sober earnest that it will not need skillful forensic acrobats to demonstrate it in debate; and the puny plea set up to avoid this debating is dust thrown into the air to darken the real points at issue.

The Presidents of the Utah Church and the editor of the News may possibly by the plea of grave sacredness attaching to the claim to authority and the exclusive right to be called the church satisfy and silence the inquiry and doubt of immediate followers, but such plea cannot long stand the repeated attacks of continuing criticism, but must sooner or later give place to a hearing.

It is true that "contentious discussion is not investigation;" and that "thrilling eloquence, impassioned oratory or subtle argument never made of the wrong a right; nor their absence make of a single truth an error." But it so happens that truth is made apparent by forensic disputation; and disputed truths are made to shine by impassioned and eloquent presentation; and argumentative defense often saves truth from defeat at the hands of the advocates of error.

Inquiry suggests answer; investigation suggests a following up with close scrutiny, to trace, to compare, to analyze, dig into, find out, expose, the calling into play or action all the faculties and means by which the truth may be ascertained; in the physical, material, moral, mental, and divine fields of thought, fancy, and fact. The very statement of the editor that "the principles of the gospel and authority in the church" demand that the advocates of them are "required to present to the believer the highest evidence of divine authenticity—that of direct testimony from the Almighty," puts a burden of proof, positive and collateral, upon himself and his compeers that he cannot safely ignore.

The editor assumes that the challenges to debate which the Presidents of the Utah church refer to in their card are made to court contentious discussion, to secure a triumph, and not for the vindication of truth; and therefore is an inspiration from the evil one.

This is an assumption for which there is no basis in justice or common fairness.

The church for which the editor of the News writes and he states, that "the church was organized in this dispensation by direct command of God." To this the challengers agree. But the same God that commanded organization commanded that that church should teach and observe certain rules of faith, doctrine, and practice; which if they did they should continue and abide in his favor; and if they disregarded those commands of faith and practice should be "damned," if they persisted in such disregard. We of the Reorganized Church, who have received the evidence of direct testimony from the Lord of the divinity of the gospel, and have been made to feel the force and realize the value of the divine authority to minister in the things appertaining to the establishing the church and the building up of the kingdom, declare that a portion of that church to whom the command referred did not keep the command, did not observe the things enjoined; but did disregard the command, did teach and practice that which was clearly forbidden in the law; and in so doing did forfeit the standing before God by virtue of which they held authority to act in his name; and in consequence did not continue in the line of succession of that church which had been organized by divine command. This charge is not made by those who have apostatized; but is made by those who were properly made members of that original church: and whose rights were invaded and destroyed by those who changed the faith, tenets, and doctrines of the church, if the usurpation and departure from the original platform of principles were submitted to.

The editor of News writes:—

The Lord made no blunder in organizing the church. His work was not done so badly that a few years later a "reorganization" had to be effected by men, and least of all by apostates and seceders from the true fold in order to get the right.

We heartily concede the correctness of that statement. Does not the editor of the News know, either by fact of personal observation, or by historical statements that would have informed him that as early as January, 1848, President Brigham Young wrote to Orson Spencer, then in England, that in December, 1847, he (President Young) had suggested the "organizing of the church"? and that in a general epistle issued in December, 1847, the then "Twelve had in contemplation soon to reorganize the church"? That this reorganization as contemplated was actually begun at Winter Quarters in December, 1847, and did not cease till the whole formation had been remodeled, and a rebaptism imposed on all that "came over the rim of the Basin"?

The letter to O. Spencer cited above may be found in the Millennial Star, Vol. 10, pp. 114, 115. And the General Epistle in the current publication under date of December, 1847. There was opposition to the reorganization, but the rule of President Young was finally successful and so "reorganization" had been "effected by men." In such reorganizing and the introduction of gross heresy in faith and practice, the church, or those who claiming to be the church did it, there was a clear departure from the faith, and a secession from the true faith of the true fold; and, if in the controversy anyone is justly entitled to be called apostates, they are not the ones that remained true to the rules of faith and practice as laid down in the law of God in his revelations, but those who introduced the differing dogma and practice, and fastened them on their followers. "The Lord made no blunder," but President Young and others did. All this is a matter subject to be proved by evidences within the province of the human mind, and by its methods, as easily as the Utah elder can assume and prove a great apostasy from the truth anciently, a restoration of the gospel and its blessings, baptism and its necessity, or any other thing in dispute between them and sectarian churchmen and arising in their mission to the world. Besides this, if there has been no departure from the faith on the part of these Utah propagandists, what was their hesitancy about submitting it to the arbitrament of a court of the land, before a Missouri judge, in the Temple Lot suit? The genuineness of the church organized in 1830 was in question, having been submitted to inquisition before a "human court," "presided over by a Missouri judge," by the inexorable logic of human events, and without regard to whether the authorities of the church in Utah were, or were not in the business of submitting it there. There was something absolutely and peculiarly apposite in the fact that in a United States' Court, holding its session at the mouth of the Kaw, in the region west from the courthouse in Independence, and before a judge born and raised in Missouri, the claim for legal existence of that church organized in New York in 1830 the members of which were driven from the State of Missouri in 1833 to 1838, and the present identity and recognition of that church in succession should be made by importing "at the feet of the judge," as God commanded.

We can but think that the "higher Judge," having "passed upon the question" himself, took occasion to see that his decision obtained precedence in the human court and fixed by affirmation in the law of the land what had been determined in the law divine.

If the "Latter Day Saints whose present abiding place is in the vales of the Rocky Mountains," are "fulfilling the destiny marked out" by the prophetic declarations of Joseph Smith, it goes to the credit of the prophet; but the part which some have borne in the fulfillment referred to is not creditable to them. Of that, however we do not now care to write; our concern is with the things appertaining to the general church and the work of the eldership, under the articles and covenants of the church found in the law given to the church for perpetual observance and direction.

We may remind the editor of the News that the controversy between the church in Utah and the Reorganized Church is one of long standing, and upon points that are vital, of grave importance to many, and that they must be met by the mountain branch, sooner or later; and that while they are dallying with the issues, and refusing to meet us on them for insufficient reasons, those issues are becoming more widely known outside of those mountain fastnesses, and are crystallizing into accepted facts on our side of the inquiry and making the way of their ministry abroad more and more difficult. To ask the elders from Utah to go out to preach with the absolute certainty of meeting disputants upon every hand, before whom they are to be tonguetied in defense, is asking more than men who should be blessed with the spirit of inquiry and investigation ought to submit to. "Contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the Saints," was once a cardinal command, and characteristic of the ministers of the "new and everlasting covenant;" and to the elders of the Reorganized Church, the true believers in and adherents to the angel's message, it is in force now. To us this does not mean a squabble for personal supremacy, but does mean an honorable and persistent presentation and unyielding defense of the truth. And the truth in this instance involves the identity and present existence of the Church of Christ, as the same was established in 1830. If the Utah Church is not prepared to defend its claim to be that church, the acting, leading authorities of it, and its public organ have taken a very ingenious way to certify it to their own elders, and notify the outside world and the "Josephites" of such unreadiness,— "Don't discuss with them!" Indeed!

BRO. W. H. DEAM, who has been with the Herald Office force for many years, left the service June 13 to embark in a printing venture of his own in Lamoni.

Bro. Deam is an able workman, and we wish him the best of success in his new effort. His paper is to be called the College City Chronicle.

Lamoni is rapidly becoming a publishing town. The Herald, Hope, Autumn Leaves, Gospel Quarterlies, for the church work, and the Independent Patriot and College City Chronicle, for the secular things, ought to make the town famous.

THE RIGHT OF PETITION.

WE had determined that we would have nothing more to say on the subject of Coxe's army; but the following from a good brother has changed that intention:—

Editors Herald:—I have before me Saints' Herald for May 16. On the first page I find an article under the heading of "Unemployed." Now, as I am one of the two millions that come under that head; I will try and make a defense for myself and those in like distress. Although I have not yet been compelled to take up the march for Washington with my fellow laborers, yet my sympathy is with them.

The writer sits in judgment on us when he states that we would not work if it was offered to us. How does he know that we would not work? Has he offered us work? I say us because I know that the first five hundred that left this city were just as willing to work as I am; and they did work at $1.00 per day in the Golden Gate Park so long as it was furnished them by the charitable business men of this city; but when this was no longer furnished them, what were they to do? Sit down and starve; for there was no work in the country. I think they have done the most sensible thing that they could have done; that is, to go to Washington and petition Congress to do something for the relief of the laboring class of this nation. The writer says that Mr. Coxe, nor any other has constitutional rights that go so far as it is stated he proposes to go. According to the writer's own statement Mr. Coxe proposed to peacefully petition Congress to do something for the country. Mr. Coxe's plans for relieving us of the existing hard times may not be the best that could be gotten up; but that does not destroy his constitutional rights by any means.

No one questions the constitutional rights of Mr. Huntington, or Mr. Vanderbilt when they present a petition to Congress which would be a scheme to rob the people if passed. The only difference that I can see between the constitutional rights of Mr. Huntington and Coxe's Army is this: Mr. Huntington rides in a palace car to Washington, and Coxe's army has walked there. I am under the impression that if Coxe's army had been able to have gone to Washington in palace cars, making the same demands that they are making now, they would have been applauded instead of condemned by the brother. The brother must know that there are thousands that are losing their homes every year; and this is caused by our present financial system; so men cannot be blamed if they do become discouraged, and will not try to build up homes. We admit that there are some that will not try to get homes, no matter how favorable the circumstances; but they are not the ones that have got the courage to endure the hardships of a march across the continent without any commissary department. Men who know nothing about the gospel of Jesus Christ will sometimes do things that are not wise, when they know that they have not been dealt with justly. They may not take the best way to right an existing wrong; but it will not help them to see the right way for a preacher of righteousness to call them names that are not pleasant, and tell them that they have no rights.

J. A. ANTHONY.

231 Castro street, San Francisco, Cal.,
May 25, 1894.

The editorial complained of by this writer and others who have written and scored the editor for the expression of opinion in regard to the movement by General Coxey and others, that it was composed in part of those who were not idle from compulsion but by choice; that the movement was ill advised and would be productive of no good; that the method General Coxey was intending to pursue would carry him beyond the constitutional rights of himself or others was written before Gen. Coxey's arrest and predicted his arrest, but we have not written a word as to the right or wrong of the arrest or fine, as at the time no arrest had been made.

This brother and others censure the editor for calling the army but little better than a "rabble." The reference in the article complained of was to the whole army, not to Coxey's contingent alone; the same reference was intended when it was stated that many of them would not work if work was offered to them. So much by way of explanation.

We have been treated by those who have written us, including the one whose communication we quote, as being disposed to find fault with the unemployed poor men for trying to better their condition, and being opposed to their making use of their right to go to Washington and petition Congress for legislation with a view to such bettering of the conditions surrounding the laboring classes.

We have no apology to make for what we wrote; but desire to correct an impression that we are in any wise opposed to the legitimate exercise of any of the rights attaching to citizens of the United States, especially the right to better one's condition, socially, morally, and financially, including the right of petition. But, the right of the American citizen to petition the Legislatures of the State and the Nation for redress of public, or private wrongs does not confer the right to infest the legislative hall of either State or nation with an unauthorized mass of men having an avowed purpose to secure legislation by overawing the lawmakers with numbers.

The right of petition remains intact to every man; and the ways in which he can make his approaches to the halls of Congress are clear, and Mr. Coxey, and any other well-informed citizen can easily find men in those halls who are as strong friends to the principle, as was the "Old Man Eloquent," and who would take pleasure in presenting, or aiding the petitioners to secure the presenting of such petition; and if the matter deserved attention, secure that also.

The apparent design of Gen. Coxey, was to take advantage of the troublous times by appealing to the unemployed to concentrate at Washington and there by strong array enforce the logic of his demand for legislation. His idea seemed to have been that there would be some thousands (some suggested one hundred and fifty thousand), that would gather toward and at the Capital City at a given day, and there and then demand of the assembled lawmakers, wise and otherwise, that they pass certain laws which should relieve the pressure of the times, furnish labor for unlimited numbers, and create money to pay them, and thus settle the vexing questions in the economic world. But, the section of the army under Gen. Coxey, was but a small one when it reached the Capital. He attempted to petition Congress in an irregular and informal way, and the effort fell flat.

One effect that might have been foreseen, possibly was, has been that Gen. Coxey has had a number of imitators, and small armies of "Commonwealers," have started up all over the country, all of them ostensibly trying to reach Washington, having different demands on Congress for legislation, among them we believe one to prevent all immigration for the space of five years.

We do not stop to discuss these various laws for relief in their political significance, as the HERALD is not a political journal either partisan, or otherwise; but, as the labor question is one of economy, of general and personal significance we have a right to consider such moves as this so-called Industrial Army movement, which the writer from San Francisco, and the others criticising us state is not a political one. If the writer of the stricture on us is correct that it is a movement intended to better the condition of those workingmen whom he knows to be engaged in it, and has no political significance, then it becomes the privilege of every man to criticise it if he chooses.

One writer states that one section of the army "confiscated" a railroad train; that said train was not "stolen" but "confiscated." The word confiscate would seem to carry the idea that said section of the army had the right to confiscate, take to its use, that particular railway train. If so, then every other train on that line of road, and thence everything that company had that the army might take a notion to. If that is true of that one section of the "Industrial Army," it is equally true of all other sections, and all other lines of road; and thence to all other corporations, companies; and finally of all properties held by public, or private parties that might fall in the way to be "confiscated." Where would the line be drawn? It is this inevitable result that we see coming that causes us to write of the movement and deplore it.

We sympathize with the workingmen of America, the poor of all nations, but can see no good to come to the laboring men by the course these commonwealers have mapped out for themselves to pursue, nor in those things suggested by them for others; hence, while not discussing the political or economic causes that have led to the deplorable condition of affairs, we believe it to be our duty as well as privilege to write upon the Coxey method of remedying existing evils without being chargeable with being an enemy of the workingman.

It is a curious sort of bettering affairs, for a number of thousands of men, who are out of employment where they are, to band together in bodies large and small, to traverse across the continent to a common center where they know there is no employment and there to demand work. And in doing this to throw themselves upon the public on their way for subsistence, soliciting money and food, and transportation to the place where they are going, lecturing, making speeches, taking collections of food and money at the doors where the speeches are made and the gates of the places where camps are pitched. The cost of maintaining such a host must fall heavily on the communities through which it passes, and where it chooses to sojourn. If they can pay it themselves, they have what might have maintained them for longer periods at home than on the road. If they are fed by those living along the lines of march, then it is the result of a deliberate intention to prey upon society that far; and the result can only be that, sooner or later the supply must fail, either from the fact that there is none to spare them, or from the disposition of those contributing failing to longer favor the movement.

While we are writing a large section of the army on the way is met on the outskirts of a populous city by a cordon of local police forbidding them to enter the precincts of the city. The commander swears that he will lead his army into the city, the city authorities say that he shall not; and so the situation is that a so-called peaceable army proposes to force itself upon a municipality that declines to receive them; and this is at a city several hundreds of miles from Washington.

The centralization of a hundred thousand men in the city of Washington, without the adequate means of subsistence at the direct command of its organizers and leaders, would be of itself a menace; and if it be taken into the account that this force would be partially organized and disciplined, it would not be a very farseeing mind that might predict a serious outbreak of the public peace, by the sudden arming of this host to threaten by force of arms what is now ostensibly asked for in a peaceable way.

We do not write that this is intended; nor do we at present expect to see so grave a disaster; but there are those who believe that such a condition of things will occur. That a revolution caused by an uprising like the Coxey-Kelley affair, only more widely extended, will make a descent on the capitals of the Nation and State, wipe out existing forms of government, seize the centers and proclaim the overthrow of all the regulations by which society is now controlled, and institute new forms and new rules. That the country is now about ripe for such a revolt; and that it would furnish the remedy for what is called the plutocratic despotism.

We are aware that troublous times are at hand; that men are waxing worse and worse; and shall not be surprised at much that may take place; but it will be a sad day for the well-disposed men of all classes, when a change so brought about shall come.

In the meantime Saints are called upon to be law-abiding, everywhere, that they may be free from blame and the blood of this generation.

A WORD IN TIME.

REV. W. F. OLDHAM, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in a noonday prayer meeting held January 18 gave utterance to the following expression:—

Of the population of the United States 10,000,000 are Catholics, 1,000,000 are Jews, and others who do not recognize the Christian church, 3,000,000 are Spiritualists, Mormons, Economites, and others of that ilk, etc.

The Pittsburg Leader for January 19 had an article over the signature of "An Economite," which should have set the reverend gentleman right in some particulars at least. He wrote:—

Now, either the reverend gentleman has been misquoted or in the fervor of his religious zeal he has—unwittingly, perhaps—made a statement that is rather misleading. The inference from his statistics would be, firstly, that Catholics, Mormons and Economites are not Christians; secondly, that there is a similarity between the Spiritualists, Mormons, and Economites.

The first inference we deny in toto, as the Catholics, Mormons, and Economites are all Christians. With reference to the second inference, we can only say that the placing of Spiritualists, Mormons, and Economites together and calling them an "ilk" creates a strange paradox. There is here ground for considerable argument on the subject of Christianity, as well as on some other points, but this is not the proper time. The public, however, including a number of eminent divines, are dwelling in such a dense black fog of superstitious ignorance in relation to matters existing right in their very midst that a few words of truth and enlightenment may not be amiss.

The Mormon church, as founded by Joseph Smith, is as truly a Christian church as any of the recognized Christian churches. True, that branch of it that, after Smith's death, went astray and adopted polygamy, has in this respect transgressed the teachings of its founder, and it is a question whether the ordinary Christian community can show a higher standard of morality than these very Utah Mormons. But we want more particularly to call attention to the real Mormons—that branch that has remained true to the teachings of Joseph Smith, and who go by the name of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and there is a congregation of them right in your city, and with due regard to everyone, let it be said that it is just as lovely a Christian congregation as can be found in the city. So far as the Economites are concerned, let it be said that if the lover of truth wishes to become informed, not by newspaper ridicule, jokes, or sensations, but in fact, he will find that the Economites on Sunday attend church where the principles of Christianity are taught in their purity, and that during the other six days of the week they put forth a strong effort in the direction of living up to these principles, and in this respect probably differ from some of the Christian churches that have a greater membership and enjoy a greater popularity. But come to think, as there are only eighteen of us, we certainly do not cut a very wide swath in the matter now, and have already consumed more than our allotment of time and space commensurate to the statistics as given by the doctor, hence we come to a sudden close.

AN ECONOMITE.

It requires moral bravery to be an Economite in belief; but the quality once developed, in an acceptance of an unpopular notion, whether in politics, religion, or social economy gives a tone to the man that enables him to discern what is good in his fellows, and courage to commend it.

We thank "An Economite" for his frank defense of the church.

We should have noted this article before; but the Leader containing it came to our notice only a day or so ago. Better late than never.

THE TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

THE Defendants in this suit filed their bond for an appeal to the Court of Appeals, June 4. The Appellants will have sixty days in which to perfect their case for the hearing; after which a number of days are allowed for the Plaintiffs to prepare their side of it. If all this preliminary work is done, then there will be a rehearing, probably at St. Louis and in November.

A kind of newspaper card is going the rounds of which the following is a part:—

The Independence faction of the Mormon Church is supported in its appeal by the Mormons of Salt Lake City, and hope is entertained that the higher court will reverse the decision of Judge Philips.

If the Salt Lake City Mormons are giving any support to the Defendants in this suit in their appeal, it does not appear of record, nor is it in any wise known to us. As to the reversal of the decision of Judge Philips in the higher court we have nothing to say, further than that it is possible, though not probable. It is best for all concerned not to worry over the possible shadows that may overlie the pathways; accept the good and bear with the inevitable.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. E. L. KELLEY, writing from San Francisco, California, June 13:—

I arrived here on Saturday morning last, and began yesterday special examination of boats with a view to filling the missionary demand in the Islands, and found one that suits the work in all its completeness as fully as though builded on purpose for that business. Bro. J. A. Anthony, a sailor on the deep for eight years, is aiding in the work; Bro. Forscutt, also with his experience and observation in the islands; and Bro. Burton will be here to-morrow, to add the combined wisdom of sea captain and gospel minister to the work of selection.

Bro. Heman C. Smith reports June 16:—

Just closed a two-weeks' meeting at Standley and vicinity, resulting in the baptism of fourteen. Found good helpers in Brn. Erwin, Short, Pickering, Grimes, and others. Bro. Erwin went to Wilburton, to-day; I go to Dexter, to-morrow.

Bro. M. F. Gowell of the Eastern mission wrote June 14 as follows:—

Will Saints having relatives or friends in Eastern Maine, whom they would like to have visited with the gospel, or called upon, please send the addresses of such to Elder M. F. Gowell, Jonesport, Maine.

Bro. J. L. Bear, Chippewa Station, Michigan, June 9:—

I am traveling on foot, trying to make new openings.

Bro. R. C. Evans, Chatham, Ontario, June 19:—

Chatham conference just closed; big crowd, good time, and much good done. Bro. Blair was with us. His preaching, counsel, and instruction were benedictions to us all. Four were baptized by Brn. Leverton. Elder Grant and wife of Michigan were with us. Both gave splendid testimony for the work we love. Preaching by Brn. Blair, Lake, Grant, and another. All departed for their homes cheered and strengthened for coming struggles.

Bro. J. B. Roush, Sheridan, Illinois, June 19:—

Interest here seems good; we have big crowds and excellent attention. We are expecting some additions to the church.

Bro. J. H. Lake, Wallaceburg, Ontario, June 19:—

Bro. Blair is with us. He has enjoyed the conference, which was a success. Four were baptized. The Saints were blessed; the preaching was excellent. Bro. Blair and I go to Chatham to-day, then to Appledore, Blenheim, London, and Grand Valley for the conference of the 30th inst.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. BLAIR arrived at Wallaceburg, Ontario, June 15; was met at the train by Brn. Lake and R. C. Evans at Chatham. He writes, "All seems prosperous in church interests, and prospects are good."

A letter from Bro. Alma Fyrando states that the World's Reunion will be held at Logan, Iowa, September 8 to 16, inclusive.

Mr. J. C. Milliman of Logan, now in the Legislature, and Bro. D. Chambers, will secure rates to cover the time of reunion and also for the assembling of the Western Division of Iowa Veterans, who will hold their encampment on the same grounds, either before or after the session of reunion closes, using the same tent. The Veterans will assist in preparing the grounds, so that both parties will be helped.

Bro. S. A. Rogers, Simeon, Nebraska, would like some of the elders in that field to visit at his home and preach the word.

The rain was withheld from the region round Lamoni for many weeks; the roads were dry and very dusty; the meadows were maturing their grasses on parching ground, and with certainty of shortened crops; the pastures were dry, the grass short and crisp, the cattle shunning the half-barren spots sought the places where moisture remained longest and fed on the dying vegetation. But, the long drouth came to an end at last and on the 16th of June the rain in reviving richness fell on the parched land, and long despondent hope came again to cheer and comfort. A succession of showers has secured the crops not past recovery and the people are glad.

The conference at Bay Port, Michigan, was a good one; seven more were baptized. Everything was going nicely. So wrote Bro. Cornish from Reed City.

Brn. R. Etzenhouser and James Moler closed a successful meeting June 15, at Pine, Ohio. They held eight sessions, with good audiences. Six were baptized. They began services at Limerick the same evening.

Brn. H. E. Moler and H. R. Harder were holding services in the tent at Glen Roy. The week after the tent would be set up at Jackson.

Bro. James Moler reports, "All goes fairly well and we are happy in the conflict."

Letters are received from Brn. J. W. Hixon, Plattsburg, Missouri; T. H. Parker, Missouri Valley, Iowa; William King, Osage, Missouri; R. Hughes, Afton, Iowa; D. Carter and D. W. Shirk, Belmont, Nebraska; C. A. Bishop, East Portland, Oregon.

Bro. P. L. Claxton, Carbondale, Illinois, requests the ministry and Saints of the St. Louis district to call on him when passing through that city. He desires some of the ministry to make an effort there.

Sr. Lucinda Johnson of Cabool, Missouri, would like to see some of the elders more frequently at that point. She is working and praying that a branch may be established.

Brn. James Caffall and C. H. Porter have organized a branch at Blair, Nebraska, where the Saints will endeavor to build a house of worship. Those desiring to aid them should address the branch secretary, Sr. Mary A. Carter.

Bro. W. W. McLeod, writing from Cormorant, Minnesota, June 20, says: "We had a splendid conference and camp meeting at Pelican Rapids, June 9-13. A young lawyer told me we made many friends. No Saints there, but friends did all we could desire to make our meetings a success. Two were baptized. The Saints feel well over the results."

ERRATUM.—In HERALD for June 20, first column, first page, for Daniel L. Harris, read David L. Harris.

Bro. R. L. Ware reports twenty-two baptized since April in his field.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

You little flower doth not refuse to bloom
For fear of blasts from some belated spring.
The sweetest bird of heavenly tune,
That ever God let sing
Will not withhold its strain,
Though wild snows sweep the plain;
Its clear eye takes the light,
And 'neath the tempest moan its hears
Spring's voice; and o'er the cloud that blurs Sees rosy summer clothed in white.

"BEAR YE ONE ANOTHER'S BURDENS."

THAT last short editorial—"Undone"—in the Home Column has spoken plainly, kindly, and to some of us, to our condemnation.

I think if you had been in my place on Sunday last and had had Sr. Walker say to you with her gentle earnestness, "Sister, why don't you do something for the Home Column? Can't you write something for the next issue? I need help just now, for it is the season when the mothers are the busiest, and there is' so little sent in." I am one of those who had promised to help a little now and then—possibly of the number from whom our sister "expected so much."

As I looked into the careworn face, so close to my own, and memory glanced back over the eight years I have been in the church, and farther backward, to the years before I was privileged to read the precious Home Column when it was started under Sr. Walker's management, and recalled the fact that she has had no rest that ever I heard of in all these years, I felt conscience smitten, and instantly resolved to try to do something, be it ever so little, to help lift the burden from shoulders that have borne it so long and so uncomplainingly. Sisters, I realize that unless we do our part, Sr. Walker will not long hold out under such a strain as she must be enduring to carry on all the work she is doing for the church. Let us not forget that it is purely a labor of love she is doing for us in editing the Home Column. In fact, the whole paper is such to the church in general, as well as the Hope and, for aught I know, Autumn Leaves largely, if not entirely so. It does seem as if we are a little slow in showing our appreciation of them—(I mean many of us are)—and slow in doing a little ourselves for the good of the work in connection with the church papers.

Please do not think I am trying to lecture anyone or that I have any one person in mind (save myself) at whom my remarks are directed; nor do I have in mind those who do their part. No one has had a greater desire to see Zion "arise and shine" than I have, and I presume each of us is ardently longing for more spirituality in the church, greater harmony, more blessings, and a larger display of the "gifts" in our prayer meetings. All these things are proper for us to desire, and will be sooner realized if we each do our part.

If we are leaving to a few the work of improving and enlarging the usefulness of the Herald and Hope as means of spreading the gospel, and doing nothing ourselves to help on that grand work, perhaps we are leaving also to a few the carrying on of the church work in all its details, and to a few the rewards will be given. What will be our reward in that day when he "makes up his jewels." Shall our ears be greeted with that welcome plaudit, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant. Thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many, enter thou into the joy of thy lord?"

I am reminded of the parable of the man who had two sons, to each of whom he gave the command, "Go work to-day in my vineyard." Shall we be like the second, who promised to go "and went not?" Even the Pharisees can see which son does the will of his father. Every Saint has covenanted to do the will of his or her heavenly Father—to go work to-day in his vineyard—to "work while it is called to-day, for the night cometh when no man can work."

Are we keeping the two great commandments on which hang all the law and the prophets; viz., loving God with all the heart, and all the soul, and all the mind and our neighbor as ourself? If we keep or even try to keep the first, we shall delight to do the things pleasing to our heavenly Father and calculated to carry out his designs. We will gladly do all in our power to help the spread of the gospel, for the gospel must first "be preached in all the world for a witness, and then shall the end come." Then our work will be done, for that is the work he has commissioned this church to do.

If we keep the first commandment we will naturally incline to keeping the second, and we shall not fail to visit the sick, minister to their wants if they need our help, provide for the needy as far as our means and strength will allow, comfort the afflicted, and lend a helping hand or speak a cheering word to any weary soul journeying along life's pathway beside us.

Should we be naturally slow to perceive who are our neighbors who thus need our sympathy and help, we might be enabled easier to understand if we would but put ourselves in another's place and try to think what must be trials and how hard to perform the duties others have to contend with.

Go with me, for instance, to the Herald Office, that fine large brick structure of which Lamoni is justly proud. Do we imagine the Herald and all the other church publications are turned out by machine, with little hard work beyond feeding the presses and carrying bundles of paper and keeping the fires going in the big furnace? We know engines and presses do not feel, and never get cross and tired; but the human machines who set up type, put it in the case, and who sometimes make "pi" in a printing office; who read proof and correct it, and look over manuscript, furnish copy, etc., and so on until there is work ready for the machines to do that run by steam, very often do get tired—very tired—and so would you and I in their places. Let us begin with Brother Joseph. Take a peep with me into his private office. I took such a glance at him and his surroundings one day this spring, and I fancied it might be something besides delightful to sit day after day in that one room at a big table literally covered with written documents of one kind or another, all demanding his attention. Think, sisters, of the many years Brother Joseph has been editor of the Herald, and imagine him necessarily spending most all of his waking hours except Sundays, when he is in Lamoni, week after week, month after month, year in and year out, before a table piled high with manuscript! Our housework does not tie us to one room or to one occupation. Let us thank God for it. You and I work in our close, hot kitchens day after day toiling for our loved ones, while he toils for us all. You do not envy him, do you? I did not, the day I looked in upon him at his work, and saw that he was too busy to be disturbed, unless one had important business.

Too busy to be disturbed! People generally would rather have some one about to talk to than to write, shut up in a room alone all the time. Brother Joseph is a particularly sociable person, who seems to enjoy meeting and conversing with the Saints.

Let us go downstairs, next, into the Bishop's office, a rather bare, somewhat dusty looking room, where the warm afternoon sun pours in upon him seated before another big table fairly piled and stacked with mail from all parts of the world where this church has representatives. You would certainly not wish to put yourself in his place except mentally. I didn't, when looking at all those letters and the sheets of figuring that I saw in such numbers.

The other rooms are just as plainly dedicated to work—steady, plodding work, where all are engaged in helping to make our publications the handsome well-printed ones that they are from least to greatest.

Go with me to Sr. Walker's home and look in to see how pleasant a place it is, and her sitting room, where she does all her writing—how beautiful a place in which to compose those editorials we all so gladly read from her pen. While her substantial writing table stands near a bay window filled even in coldest weather with flowers, it has the same businesslike appearance those had we saw in the Herald Office. When we reflect that the owner sits at this table much of her time, preparing manuscript, reading your and my letters and answering them, varying this kindly occupation by attending to the work of her own household, we ought to be sure we are doing the truth no injustice when we are so sure we have no time to write for the church papers.

We all honor and love these and other unselfish brethren and laborers for Christ; but that is not all we should do. They are but human like ourselves, and grow weary sometimes, no doubt, and perhaps feel like laying their burdens down, now and then.

"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

A SISTER.

[We sincerely thank Sr. — who has so promptly responded to our request for a little help at this busy season. How timely and acceptable it is the Master knows and we are always glad when in any way, through any influence we are able to bring to bear, we can arouse the latent talent slumbering in the daughters of Zion and induce them to bring their sheaves and lay them at the Master's feet. Let no one suppose this sister free from care or think of her as having an abundance of time at her disposal, for such is not the case. How much of the world's work is done by those having the most limited opportunities will never be known here. The secret is, they are the willing ones.]

But again we know of willing ones—those who would be, oh! so glad to help if only their hands were free; but for them the way seems barred upon every hand. What shall we say? Simply this: God is wiser than we are and if we are only faithful to our trust, in the great day of reckoning it will be found that right there and in just that way we could most acceptably serve him. Yes, "They serve who only stand and wait"—wait because they cannot work.]

BEEVILLE, Bee Co., Tex.

Dear Readers:—While I have never tried to write a piece for publication before (except two letters) this morning something is urging me to write, and by the grace of God if there is anything that I can do for the onward move of this work I am going to do it. The subject on my mind is: The second coming of Christ. Why should we not look for him before another generation? As in the days of Noah so shall it be in the days of the coming of the Son of man. If I understand there was not a single generation saved but the remnants of two generations. It is true there is a long space of time to pass after the prophecies of a Savior going to be born to the world before he came, but in these preparations there are tokens of the second coming also. When John the Baptist came crying repentance, for the kingdom was at hand, Jesus did not wait for a generation to be raised to receive him, but came crying, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

No, the apostles were not even chosen until he came, and he chose them from the world and sent them out to gather into the fold. When he found sufficient material he set his kingdom up and told them to go preach to all nations, but by holy word we find there was to be a falling away and then the restored gospel was to come. We know all this to be fulfilled. Now brothers and sisters, we come to where Bro. Joseph is sent to declare the gospel for the last time and we have followed the prophecies down to Revelation. There has been one generation since this began. Why should we wait for another? To my mind we would be standing still for older ones are being converted all the time, and shall Jesus wait for each to raise their children into righteousness? We hear that sorrow has just begun. I was at my mother's last evening. She read a letter to me written by my grandmother (the wife of Elder Lyman Wight) to my father when he was in the civil war, saying the war was only in fulfillment of prophecy that she had heard spoken and that it was only the beginning of sorrow. If we are still in the beginning I feel to exclaim, When will midnight reach the earth?

Let each respond to "Come up higher." The "hastening time" is here. Let each do all he can toward redeeming Zion.

I have been truly converted to the Daughters of Zion. I promised my Father in heaven to do what I could even before I sent my name to the sisters.

I am the mother of four little ones; my eldest is eight. I have taught him the principles of the gospel. He and his little sister, aged five, are selling vegetables. When they sell one dollar they lay ten cents away for tithing. I think it a good idea to teach them to "observe all things" at the beginning as near as they can understand the law. My husband is not a member of the church. It seems I have to fight and work alone. I desire your prayers for my spiritual welfare. Will the sisters of the Prayer Union please to remember me in faith and prayers that I may be healed of a rheumatic trouble of the throat. Your sister in the faith,

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JUNE.

ENOUGH.

"I am so weak, dear Lord! I cannot stand
One moment without thee;
But O, the tenderness of thy enfolding,
And O, the faithfulness of thine upholding,
And O, the strength of thy right hand!
That strength is enough for me."

"I am so needy, Lord! and yet I know
All fulness dwells in thee;
And hour by hour that never-failing treasure
Supplies and fills in overflowing measure
My last and greatest need. And so
Thy grace is enough for me."

Thursday, June 28.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verse.—Isaiah 35: 10.

SUFFRAGE IN BELGIUM.

Under the new electoral scheme passed in Belgium last year, under some notable pressure, it will be remembered, Brussels will have 142,182 voters, instead of 20,300, as under the old régime. It is calculated that in the rural districts the electors will be increased to four-fold the extent of the increase in Brussels. Under the old régime about one inhabitant in five of the capital had a vote, but only about one in twenty of the rural people had a vote, while in villages containing several hundred people not one person could vote.

In 1895 Japan is to have a parliament of religions in Kioto in connection with the 1100th anniversary of the establishment of that city as the capital of the empire.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, June 19.

Editors Herald:—Our first two-days' meeting held at Crescent, was a success. The attendance was not large, but the attention was good, and three were baptized and confirmed. Two of these were members in good standing of the M. E. Church, and a short time ago were very much prejudiced against the Reorganized Church because of false presentations from its foes; but being led to investigate for themselves, their prejudice melted under the rays of the Son of righteousness, and they bowed before the majesty of truth and enlisted in its glorious cause, and we trust Bro. and Sr. Foote will receive the testimony of Jesus to be with them to the end. A young lady, Miss America Loney, was the third to consecrate herself in the morning of life to the service of God. It was good to see this young heart giving itself a willing sacrifice to its Redeemer just as she stepped upon the verge of womanhood. May the seal of her adoption ever be with her until the crown of glory rests upon her consecrated head. H. N. Hansen was the administrator at the writer's request. Brn. Dodson, Hansen, and the writer the preachers.

C. DERRY.

FULTON, Wis., June 12.

Editors Herald:—Bro. W. S. Pender and I have been holding meetings of late at Janesville, Johnstown Center, and Wilder schoolhouse; and at the last named place Bro. Pender baptized five on the 10th, and others say that they will be baptized soon. We got the promise of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at Milton Junction, but when we went there to give out our appointment, behold! an M. E. reverend warned them against the Latter Day Saints, as he knew all about them; saying, "I know these men, and if you open your church for them I will open my church for something else." We wondered what it could be for, as he would not open it for the preaching of the gospel. And so our Baptist friends concluded that they would have to repair their church at once, and that meant that we could not have it. But we learn by the papers that the said M. E. divine will give a lecture against the Mormons or Latter Day Saints in his church on Sunday, the 17th, at 7:30 p. m. We cannot attend on account of our conference, which is to convene on the same date, but we have arranged with Bro. Dutton to be there and take notes, and to give notice that we will reply at once. We start to-morrow for North Freedom to attend conference.

The work is onward in this State; the outlook is good for a large ingathering, and the time has truly come for the Saints to come up higher. I feel better in the work than I ever felt before; the Lord has blessed me wonderfully in presenting the gospel. The calls are more than we can fill. The Saints and friends have been good and kind to us in supplying our wants and taking us from place to place. The Lord will surely reward them.

W. A. MCDOWELL.

WESTON, Iowa, June 9.

Editors Herald:—Missionaries of the Utah Mormon Church have been operating in this part of the country for some time. Elders Stout and Butterworth, two of them, have been preaching in the Saints' church at Crescent, alleging that they were here to correct the Saints in their mistakes. A discussion was finally agreed upon between Elder Stout and myself upon the following propositions:—

"Is the church in Utah now under the presidency of Wilford Woodruff the legal succession of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints as organized April 6, 1830?"

"Is Joseph Smith, the son of the prophet, the legal successor to his father as president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints?"

Elder Stout affirmed the first proposition, and I denied; I affirmed the second proposition, Elder Stout denied. The discussion commenced in due time, and was to have continued four nights, two on each proposition; but on the third night Elder Stout backed down and refused to discuss further. He told us that he had entered upon the discussion to please the people, and while it perhaps had been interesting to them, it had been very painful to him; besides, it was contrary to his instructions, which he now felt that he ought to have heeded. He said we were at liberty to interpret his actions as we chose, and I presume all did.

Only the first proposition was discussed. The chief argument introduced in favor of the Utah Church was that they had gathered to the mountains and built temples; but he failed to show any authority for building temples in Utah. He claimed, however, that it was in fulfillment of the prophecies of Isaiah 40:9; 2:2; also of Micah 4:1. But when it is considered that the people in Utah are building in the valleys and not "in the top of the mountains" nor on a "high mountain;" and that as Salt Lake City is located in the lowest altitude of that part of the country for several hundred miles in either direction, we failed to see anything in these prophecies to comfort the brother; besides, it being plainly stated in Isaiah 2:1 that the prophet is speaking concerning Judah and Jerusalem, hence does not concern Utah, her mountains, nor her people.

Elder Stout claimed that the church had the right to elect its president, and that Mr. B. Young had been so elected, and this he claimed was in harmony with Doctrine and Covenants 104:11. His attention was called to section 99, paragraph 6, which says that the president and his counselors are appointed by revelation, and acknowledged in their administration by the voice of the people, thus giving us to understand that the appointment must come from God, and that the people's vote is but a ratification of that appointment. Section 43 was also quoted to show that Joseph the Seer must appoint his successor in the prophetic office, and Elder Stout was challenged to show us when Mr. Young was so appointed and when and by whom he was ordained as provided for in section 104:11. He did not even attempt to answer either of these questions. It was shown that the Utah Church was organized in 1847; that all who united with it had to be rebaptized, no matter if they had been baptized in the days of the martyrs or by these servants of God themselves. Evidences were introduced to show that new and strange doctrine contrary to God's law was taught in this new organization, such as that of polygamy, Adam-God, blood atonement, and other heresies. In dealing with these unpleasant features I tried my best to be fair. My quotations were all from their own publications, and nothing was introduced that could be construed as being the work of an enemy. All that Elder Stout could say was that I was in possession of a spirit of accusation, and that my quotations were garblings; but he did not attempt to throw more light on the matter by quoting more fully and prove me a false accuser. He did, however, try to justify polygamy by speaking of Abraham and David, whom he said practiced it. He also thought that other crimes besides murder ought to be punished with death, thus apologizing for the doctrine of blood atonement.

Elder Stout admitted that one of the chief distinguishing features between his church and the Reorganization was that the latter accepted the law of God for their guide, while his church believed that God inspired his servants now to counsel his people aright. This was stating the position fairly, considering the position he occupied. We, too, may with safety believe that God will counsel his servants now, but such will surely not be in conflict with his law already given.

I find no fault with the man for trying to maintain his cause, but he evidently learned that it was a difficult matter. I feel to pity him and others similarly situated, and pray God to help the honest among them to forsake the way of error, and be made free in the truth. Our elders need not shrink from meeting these men anywhere; the law of God is on our side.

The Saints at Crescent have treated our Utah brethren with kindness, and I trust the Saints throughout will do the same, if any of them should turn up in their midst. Give them a chance to be heard and do unto them as we would like to be done by. Truth will not suffer as long as it is at liberty to defend itself.

I will say to the people in the West that I shall try to reach my mission field by September 1.

In bonds,
H. N. HANSEN.

STANDLEY, I. T., June 12.

Editors Herald:—To-day ended a series of meetings conducted by Brn. H. C. Smith and J. D. Erwin, which was a spiritual feast indeed, Bro. Smith doing the preaching with the exception of one discourse, which was delivered by a brother from Texas. Prejudice, skepticism, and unbelief had to retreat, the people paying good attention while the brother was reasoning of temperance, of righteousness, and of judgment. There were eight precious souls persuaded to be Christians, and others almost persuaded, who perhaps will follow soon. We indeed appreciate the brother's labor of love among us. He has endeared himself in many ways of love that will not soon be forgotten, and we earnestly pray that the blessings of God may attend him in all his administrations in his office and calling.

Later: Baptized six more into the kingdom of our God at this place. The work is onward here, the Saints leading good exemplary lives with few exceptions. May God inspire us with more zeal and love for the cause until we all come to a unity of the faith, unto a perfect man, to the stature and fullness of Christ. The time of our redemption draweth nigh. Saints of the Most High, let us watch and be sober, for the Lord may come in an hour that we think not. Let us have on the wedding garment and be ready when our Lord shall come. May God help us to have that perfect love abiding in us that casteth out all fear.

JOSEPH T. BEDWELL.

SWEET HOME, Mo., June 18.

Editors Herald:—The Nodaway district conference, held at this place, has just closed. We had good attendance; all the branches were well represented. The good Spirit prevailed all through, both in business, in prayer and testimony, and in preaching meetings. Bro. Hilliard, the Bishop's counselor, was present, giving counsel and cheer in his usual plain but forcible manner, to the edifying and great joy of all the Saints; and those not of our faith were constrained, and so expressed themselves, that we had the best system of finance of any church they knew of.

On Sunday Bro. Hilliard preached two cogent, powerful sermons on the law. The Spirit rested upon him and the light of God was with the people, while tears of joy coursed down the cheeks of many of the Saints, and nearly all feel determined to do their duty both in spiritual and in temporal matters. We move to-day to Guilford where Bro. Hilliard will speak a few nights. On Friday the 22d we go to Long Branch for over next Sabbath; after which he intends to go to Kansas. His presence and teaching have had the desired effect; all feel satisfied.

Bro. J. R. Evans will labor in this district this summer with M. P. Madison as president, and we are hopeful that a good work will be done. Bro. Roas drove about forty miles with his family to attend this conference. May God bless the dear Saints of this district, especially the local force, who take hold of the work with a determination to push it on to victory. May God speed the cause.

Yours fraternally,
HENRY KEMP.

STANDLEY, I. T., June 18.

Editors Herald:—I thought a word from the Indian Territory would not be amiss; and will just say that Bro. H. C. Smith has been with us since June 1, preaching about seventeen sermons. He was assisted by Bro. J. D. Erwin. The sermons were highly instructive and edifying to Saints and convincing to outsiders, as was manifest by the baptism of fourteen, all adults. So the work moves along.

Still in the faith,

ELLIS SHORT.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 16.

Editors Herald:—I read in the Herald the good reports of labor done and the members being added to the church all over the land. I write to let you know that St. Louis is not behind in the great latter-day work, as fourteen have been baptized since April conference, and others are near the fold. There has been quite an interest awakened among the Scandinavians of late, and two men of good ability have been baptized. Others are investigating, and I think will unite with us ere long.

The tent committee has purchased a tent and it will be dedicated to the service next Tuesday, if all goes well. The branch here I consider in splendid condition and moving on nicely. The branch officers are industrious and zealous in the work and are trying to honor their calling, I believe. The Saints here are not only willing to attend church, but willing to sacrifice of their means to help build up the kingdom. They have shown their appreciation of the missionaries sent among them by the kind and substantial aid they have so cheerfully given, and I assure you that the latter appreciate it too. If we have success with the tent we hope to be able to report good news further on, for I have felt ever since coming into this mission a year ago that there would be a revival of the work here soon if all labor together in the Spirit of Christ.

Bro. Charles Jones is with me and is an active laborer in the field. Of course no man will ever get sight of that tent without hearing about the Book of Mormon and the latter-day work. "Think of it!" We expect to have the Saints here save their Heralds, Hopes, and Ensigns and let us have them at the tent to give to the people. The committee will also get plenty of tracts for distribution. The Sabbath school and the Religio are doing nicely, too. I feel that we have reason to rejoice, and should be thankful for our surroundings at the present. I pray that the Lord will abundantly bless and care for us all.

Yours in hope,
W. T. BOZARTH.

CANBORO, Mich., June 15.

Editors Herald:—The conference at Bayport is past and gone, but not without making its mark in the advancement of the gospel. There was a large gathering of Saints and friends, the weather being fine and roads good. All seemed glad they were there, and to enjoy themselves, especially while listening to the excellent sermons preached by Brn. F. C. Smith, William Davis, A. Barr, J. J. Cornish, and W. J. Smith. Seven were baptized during conference, and several more convinced of the truth.

It will be remembered that a few years ago Satan fought one of his fiercest battles there, but all to no avail. Truth was determined to take its place, and the flag was planted never to be taken down. Since that time about one hundred and forty candidates have been buried by baptism for the remission of sins, and the end is not yet. Where the elements at one time almost seemed blue with cursings, vituperation, and falsehoods hurled at the innocent Saints, the sweet songs of Zion now are heard as they float away on the balmy breeze, and the echo comes rolling back from the woodland across the beautiful fields telling that God is there. It is not at all hard to look back at the victories won, but it sometimes seems hard to face the fierce battles, which mean a victory every time if we are faithful. I think all went from conference feeling to double their diligence and to continue in the good work. There will be an all-day meeting and a basket dinner at Applegate, Sanilac county, Michigan, on the 4th of July. Come every one. In gospel bonds,

R. E. GRANT.

RIVERVIEW, Ont., June 8.

Editors Herald:—I came here a few days ago and am holding forth at Bro. James Micken's house. The congregation is increasing every night and all goes off in peace. This is something new for Riverview; as it has always been noted as a hard place and prejudice ran high against our people. Rotten eggs were some of the weapons used here. The Saints are but few in number and their branch entirely broken up, but they are still struggling to keep up, which seems hard for some to do. This northern part of the district needs much labor. I am almost constrained to believe that Satan has by some means taken up his abode in this part. It may be it got too warm for him in the south since the Cooper and Leverton debate.

Brethren, let us buckle on the armor of righteousness, for the enemy is alert. We must fight to gain the victory. Saints of God, lay down your weapons of war that are carnal; beat your spears into pruning hooks and your swords into plowshares, and learn war no more. This we must do if we expect God's work to prosper and Zion to be redeemed. O brethren and sisters of the Church of Christ, let me warn you to flee from the works of the flesh, for whatsoever we sow that shall we reap! If we sow to the flesh we shall reap corruption; if to the Spirit everlasting life. Which do we prefer, life or death? Saints, wake up; keep your eyes on the prize, cease to do evil, learn to do well. The wise man Solomon says, "Where there is no talebearer the strife ceaseth."—Prov. 26: 20. One of the most essential things I know of for Saints is to put a bridle on their tongues and if they cannot, let them read James 1: 26; for some will tear down as much in a day as an active elder will build in six months. May our heavenly Father grant unto us grace to act wisely in the discharge of our duty and enable us to be good children and bring no reproach upon his cause which we love so dearly.

On the 3d we had the pleasure of adding four to the church at Proton by baptism, of whom their parents are members. The branch there has a hard struggle to get along, on account of things referred to in the forepart of my letter. I am still in the faith and feel like laboring on until I hear that welcome cry, "Come up higher."

The Herald is a welcome visitor and comes freighted with a store of knowledge, and I think if Saints would turn their attention towards it instead of local papers it would be better for all, as I learn that whatever is over from expenses of the Herald Office goes for the spread of God's kingdom among men. Saints, let us all draw our attention to this and subscribe and solicit subscriptions for church publications. True, we cannot all be preachers, but all can be helpers. Then, brethren and sisters, let us all put our shoulders to the gospel wheel and help to roll on the kingdom of God's dear Son.

Your collaborer,

ELDER S. W. TOMLINSON.

HOLLIS, Kansas, June 15.

Editors Herald:—Bro. R. L. Ware and the writer closed a series of meetings near Beloit, Kansas, where a splendid interest was manifested. Many expressed desires for our return. We came here on Monday, the 11th inst., and found Bro. and Sr. W. H. Morgan anxiously waiting, with announcements for preaching well published. We have been occupying each evening since we came. The interest is good considering the time of year. To-day two more precious souls were inducted into the kingdom of God, Bro. Ware officiating; so we are made to rejoice and are encouraged, as we see the word of the Lord being fulfilled. Twenty six have been baptized in our district in the past month; to God we ascribe the praise.

To-morrow I leave for Goshen, where I will remain with the Saints over Sunday, leaving Bro. Robert to carry on the work here. The work is onward in this part. I go to Rooks county Monday, where we think some are near the kingdom. May God continue to give the increase and add to his church such as shall be eternally saved. In bonds,

R. W. DAVIS.

DETROIT CITY, Minn., June 15.

Editors Herald:—On May 15, I left home for St. Joseph, Missouri, to visit my son, who had met with an accident, by which he lost his left hand and received other injuries. I found him doing well and able to go about with me a little. I made my home with Bro. Pointer while there, and had the pleasure of hearing a good sermon from Bro. Lewis at one of the missions. On Sunday I went to the meeting in the morning and by invitation of Bro. Terry I occupied the morning hour. I formed the acquaintance of many of the Saints, and thanked them for kind words and acts of kindness shown me and to my son during his sickness. The visit has done me much good. To one who like myself has never been where there were any large bodies of Saints, to meet with such a number as I did there and see such a splendid gathering of young and old—to listen to their testimonies and excellent singing, and to see their beautiful church building, will ever be a pleasant remembrance; but that which gives me the most pleasure is that I was received, not as a stranger, but as a brother. My prayer is that God may bless the St. Joseph Saints.

On June 9 I met with the Saints at Pelican Rapids in conference. There are no Saints there, but I wish to say that we received good treatment and many favors. May God reward them. We were all made to rejoice to meet with Bro. A. H. Smith, and Brn. Swenson and Sparling from Dakota. The preaching was good, and the Sunday and evening services were well attended. The speakers were Brn. Smith, Swenson, Whiting, Sparling, Way, and myself. The prayer meetings were spiritual. Two were baptized by Bro. Swenson; fine young men, both of them school-teachers, children of Sr. Hawley of Audubon. If faithful their voices will be heard in defense of the truth. The officers elected were: President, T. J. Martin; vice president, H. Way; secretary, G. L. Jones. The reports from all the branches were of an encouraging nature. We think much good has been done; prejudice has been removed, and we have made many friends to the cause. Bro. Alexander will preach at Cormorant on the 17th; Bro. Swen Swenson goes for a short visit to Clifford, North Dakota. On my way back from Missouri I remained over one night at Minneapolis, visiting the Saints and holding one meeting. I found them all glad to see me and interested in the work.

Your brother,

T. J. MARTIN.

STAFFORD, Kan., June 10.

Editors Herald:—The prospects in this part of God's vineyard seem to be encouraging. The Lord has blessed my feeble efforts, and souls have been born into the kingdom. I am occasionally reminded of the prediction made at the last conference through the blessed Spirit, that the angels would go before the ministry and prepare the way for them. At the close of one of my meetings recently, in Rose Valley, a man that had tried to do the cause all the harm he could while I was here last winter, in arousing the prejudices of the people against the work, came and asked my forgiveness and repeated it several times from a penitent heart. He said that after I left some of my discourses had haunted him until they drove him to repentance. I went home with him for supper and engaged in a pleasant Scriptural talk. He surely is not far from the kingdom. And then a lady in Ellinwood heard of my work in Sandago, and sent word for me to come and see her family; and when I called on them, she—Mrs. Tyner—received a testimony of the work, that it was of the Lord. We had a pleasant religious talk for about two hours. Mr. Tyner is a good old Quaker, and when I gave him the parting hand he said: "Elder, you have brought a good spirit to my house, and I have no objections to my companion joining your church; and I don't know what another visit might do with me." Mrs. Tyner showed her faith in the work by coming twenty miles together with three other precious souls to be baptized on the following Sunday in a beautiful running stream called the Rattlesnake; and as we neared the place of baptism, the place seemed sacred to me, for while I was baptizing them on the eighth day of March last the voice of the Spirit told me that I should "administer the sacred ordinance unto others in the same place ere long." I was led to refer to this in my prayer and it seemed to bring a feeling over the whole congregation. The confirmation meeting was well attended and a great many came out of curiosity, but the Spirit of the Master was there to bless.

Last Sunday I attended an infidel meeting five miles south of St. John. The programme consisted of instrumental and vocal music, recitations, declamations, essays, etc. Their singing talent is hard to beat. After the programme was carried out they called upon me for an address and I cheerfully responded. At the close they said that I was the only minister that had given them any show whatever. We made arrangements to hold a series of meetings there as soon as the harvest and hurry of work is over.

If there are any scattered Saints in Stafford or adjoining counties outside of branch jurisdiction who see this notice that would like to have an elder come and preach, they would do well to correspond with L. A. Hall, Stafford, Kansas. In gospel bonds,

J. M. BROWN.

FLINT, Mich., June 11.

Editors Herald:—I left Saginaw county, April 12, for Shiawassee county to visit some of the scattered Saints, and on the 15th they gathered at the home of Sr. Carpenter, of Durand. Sr. Nichols and family of Swartz Creek, Genesee county, were also present, and we truly had a spiritual feast, which left a good impression upon those not Saints who met with us. On the following day I went to Swartz Creek and baptized a son and daughter of Bro. and Sr. Harvy M. Nichols; and on the evening of the same day I came to this city and called upon Bro. and Sr. Leverton and tarried with them until the next day. This brother and sister have lived here about two years, and I am the first Saint they have met since they came. I arrived home on the evening of the 17th, and on the next day baptized Mrs. C. J. Harris, who had been waiting for me to get home, as she desired me to officiate, after which she returned to her home in Caro.

Soon after my visit to this city Bro. and Sr. Collins of South Bend, Indiana, came here and soon found Bro. and Sr. Leverton; and those four earnest workers at once established prayer meetings, and I soon received word that they would like to have me come and try and open up the work; so on the 8th of May I came and began by holding forth in Bro. Leverton's house, and on May 31 I baptized a young lady. On June 3, I, with the Saints and three friends of this place met with the scattered ones at Durand, where we enjoyed another happy season; and yesterday I had the pleasure of baptizing three, two of them residents of this place, the other the husband of Sr. Carpenter of Durand. There are others here who seem to be deeply interested. We now have the free use of the Harmony Hall on Sunday at three p. m. This hall is on Kearsley street, at the foot of Asylum street. I make mention of this, as there may be other Saints here or in the country near whom we have not seen, who would like to meet with us; and perhaps there may be Saints in other parts who have friends living here who would like to hear the gospel. Our evening meetings through the week are held at the residence of Bro. J. F. Leverton, corner of Fenton and Walker streets. The Lutherans occupy the hall every fourth Sunday, and we have the use of it the other three. The Lutherans will hold their next meeting there July 1; so Saints and friends can reckon from that date and tell when to meet with us at the hall.

Your brother,
L. PHELPS.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 13.

Editors Herald:—I left Lamoni on the 24th of April for my field of labor, and at once entered upon my duties. If I succeed in being as busy the balance of the year as I have been so far, it will be a busy year for me. The indications are that a good ingathering will be had in Minnesota this year. I have baptized six since coming back to the State; four in the city, and two at Hutchinson, McLeod county. Bro. Swen Swensen also baptized one here in the city. Others have said they would come soon; thus the work is onward. Bro. J. Arthur Davis is now in the city to take charge of the work here, and I believe he will do a good work this year, I leave the city tomorrow for West Concord, Dodge county, and the southeastern part of the State, where I expect to labor until sometime in July, when I go back to Hutchinson, as I am under promise to be back there about the 20th of July. We have the use of the Methodist church there, with the promise of its use any time we wish to use it. I am satisfied that a goodly number will obey there and a good work be done. The promise is being verified here as well as in other places; for surely the Master is with us, aiding by his Spirit in defending his word. To him be praise for evermore.

We held preaching services in a private house last night, Bro. Davis being the speaker; and those who came out seemed pleased and said they would come again. We have the promise of private houses in different part of the city for preaching, and Bro. Davis will occupy them during the week, and then hold in the hall Sundays. Thus the work is moving here. In faith,

E. A. STEDMAN

OCTAVIA, Neb., June 12.

Editors Herald:—I have just returned home after a nine days' effort at and near Shelton, Buffalo county this State. I commenced there Saturday evening, the 2d, and held two preaching meetings and one prayer meeting, assisted in the Sunday school, and held meetings there and on the island south of there about six miles, and on evenings during the week, except when interrupted by storms and once when we could not get the house, others having the use of it. When not preaching the time was well spent teaching, encouraging the good people on in the way.

On Sunday, the 10th, I preached on the island twice to good audiences with good liberty and splendid attention. After the forenoon services I had the pleasure of leading four precious souls through the watery door into the kingdom of heaven. The afternoon was spent in Sunday school, prayer and testimony meeting, confirmation, and administering the sacrament. There are now ten precious souls there rejoicing in this glorious latter-day work, and some others there very near the kingdom. May God speed the time when a branch will be organized there that they may be better prepared to push the work, which they are not slack in doing even now.

I have been doing some work in Dodge county and have been well received, and I believe there are a few there who will obey the gospel. I go there next Saturday and hold over Sunday near North Bend. Two weeks later I expect to meet with the Saints at Webster in Dodge county; I think good can be done there. I shall open the work here in Butler county as soon as I get time. The major part of my time for the last month has been spent in the Lord's service; I find plenty of room for the exercise of my weak abilities and limited time. In my labors I have not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God in teaching the Saints, so far at least as I know it; so that those who have united with the church under my teachings will contribute no small amount toward the support of the church, not only spiritually but also temporally. My heart is in the work and I rejoice to see it roll on.

Yours in bonds of truth,
J. M. STUBBART.

THE APOSTASY AND THE RESTORATION.—No. 3.

BY ELDER C. SCOTT.

THE REFORMATION PERIOD.

BUT what had the Reformers, coming, as they did, out of the impenetrable darkness of apostasy and superstition; what had they to offer the people in exchange for their religious belief? O, they had new truth and light to offer the people! Where did the Reformers get this new light and truth? No doubt the Reformers were sincere, they meant good; but where was now the divine administrative authority and inspirational gospel light that left the church and was caught up to God just before the church went into the wilderness of apostasy? Which one of the Reformers since the opening of the sixteenth century has claimed to have the authority restored by which they would hold the right to reform the church? Brought up from infancy, and rigidly educated from early childhood, in the superstitions, fables, dogmas, "doctrines of devils" and "commandments of men," what had they to bequeath to those who united with them, or to their successors? They tried to reform the church for a time, but being unable to accomplish such a huge task, being opposed by the combined power of the church, they gave that idea up and being generally excommunicated, they had to be satisfied with merely creating schisms in the church and protesting against that which to them appeared to be wrong.

But why try to reform the church? It had been ages in forming and solidifying. If the materials out of which it was organized were not divinely true and legitimate and its fundamental doctrines were false, a rebuilding or remodeling of it would have been useless. To take down a building composed of rotten timbers and rebuild with the same materials would not render the timbers sound again, nor convert the house into a solid stone building. There was no necessity for reforming that institution that had darkened the world so long. But the Reformers could call some of the people out of the abomination, at least reform them, and save them from their gross errors. That did not seem to occur to them till after they were condemned as heretics and cut off from the communion of the mother church; and the only thing they could do was to protest against her apostate doctrines. They were protestants, therefore, and not reformers. To reform the morals and personal character of individuals is not to reform or rebuild the church.

They neither reformed the mother church, nor did it ever enter their minds, so far as we can know, to reform, rebuild, or reestablish the church as Christ and the apostles had originally builded and established it. The former they could not do; the latter they never claimed to do. Indeed, when in later years a goodly number of Protestant churches had been formed and the idea was suggested that perhaps the right thing to do was to dispense with the creeds and go direct to the Bible, and, if there was any right whatever to build churches, to build according to the pattern there given, all held up their hands in holy horror, declaring as with one voice, "That was never designed!" "Extraordinary officers were placed in that church; we cannot make them; we can have only ordinary officers now!" "And besides, the Holy Ghost, in his extraordinary operations, was essential to the life of the church as then constituted; and that was miraculous!" "That will not do, we cannot build according to that original constitution!" Substantially this mode of reasoning has gone the round of all Protestant churches of late: and, in fact, the doctrine of New Testament church reform is coming to be more sharply "protested," of late than are some of the doctrines and measures of the mother church. Catholics and Protestants alike unite in strongly protesting against a return to original Christianity, in so far as church or ganization and the fundamental doctrine of Christ, in a great measure, is concerned.

Whatever the Reformers did, then, of this one thing we are assured: they did not reform again nor rebuild the Church of Christ according to the gospel rule or pattern; and unless God has given to some one or ones of the Protestant leaders a rule to build a church by, we need not look to them expecting to find the Church of Christ.

But those Reformers, so-called, were bold. They faced great danger and an unparalleled intolerance as they came out in opposition to the mother church and the doctrine that they had formerly believed. By freeing themselves, in part from the bondage of the superstitions, bigotry, and the galling intolerance of the church of their fathers, they tasted to some degree the sweets of liberty. The Bible had been taken from its long-hidden retreat; the recently discovered art of printing had brought it to the light of living languages; the people of Germany and Great Britain began to read it; the dim light that began to dawn rendered the darkness perceptible; and the heroic efforts of those religious warriors moved entire kingdoms to rebel against the bondage and dictation of the "Mistress of Nations." Personal responsibility of man to his God was slightly awakened in the minds of many who before had allowed that popes, bishops, and priests stood between them and God. They rejected the rule and domination of the church of their childhood, left the home of their youth, and camped out during the campaign.

But were these Protestant agitators of the public religious peace able to dig down through the accumulated debris of the fables, ignorance, tradition, and false doctrines of thirteen hundred years, and by human skill alone, resurrect the truth in all its heaven-born purity unmixed with error? It is not reasonable to conclude that they were; nor were they able by their wisdom alone, to move through all the errors of the past since the light of the gospel had ceased to shine, and collect again all the truth that God designed to redeem men by, and arrange it in its divine order again. They precipitated a tidal wave of human liberty, and set the stars of coming civilization. They helped to unveil the bow of promise that hung concealed in the then hidden heavens of divine truth; but they did not restore the Church of Christ, nor the gospel in its heaven-born purity and effulgence.

They dashed away the dogma of "human infallibility," and denied that dying man had power to forgive in place of God; but they retained the incomprehensible "trinity," the crude imaginative creation of the dark ages.

They rejected the pope, and his dictatorial bull, and decrees; but they formulated creeds. They cast away the mysteries of a purgatory, but they made a hell of literal fire and brimstone, which they asserted to be endless in duration, to punish wicked souls in eternally. They put away, to a great extent, the "mediation of the Virgin Mary" and other dead saints, when they left the "mother of superstition;" but they retained the doctrine of "infant christening," falsely called baptism, under the penalty of infant damnation. They likewise refused the arrogance and assumption of the Roman priesthood, but were unable to restore the medium through which the ministry are divinely called and authorized—the Spirit of revelation.

But the successors of the Reformers seem not so liberal as they were. They were willing to tear away from their former religious associations as the increasing light made apparent their errors, and, in an age when it was dangerous to do so. Either men have not the moral courage now, or they are far more indifferent than were the early Protestants, for it is evident that the creeds yet contain many extreme and dangerous errors to be laid aside before the full blaze of gospel light can be received and endured even by the masses of the religious professors of this late age.

Many at the present time are indifferent to their spiritual interests, and the indifference of the many fulfills the prophecy of Jesus, uttered as he looked down to this age of the world:—

But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."—Matt. 24: 37, 39.

Just so sure as religious indifference to the truth is increasing in the world, just so sure was there a flood in the days of Noah; and just as sure are we nearing the time of the coming of our Savior in glory and power to reward and reign. Some religious interest is manifest yet, however; some are yet thinking. The crystallized ideas and formulations of the creeds and disciplines are being looked into; some of the doctrinal errors are being rather quietly buried. Revision of some of the disciplines is being gently and reverently pursued, and at brief intervals gentle religious breezes refresh the stagnant air of the antiquated castles of devoted lore.

One sad feature that characterized the introduction of the modern creeds is, they were the result of revolutionary measures that produced religious wars. The contending hosts, during the sixteenth and the first half of the seventeenth centuries were moved to carnal warfare, in the effort to maintain their respective dogmas. "The last great combat was the thirty year's war in Germany, which was closed by the celebrated peace of Westphalia in 1848."

Not so was Christianity established and maintained. Of it, God did not require war; on the contrary, it was "peace," "good will," "resist not evil." The difference between Christianity and some religions called Christian is so vast that we are astonished beyond measure when we contemplate it. Religious zeal and blind veneration for a creed has often moved men and nations to carnage bloody and dire, and it has always evidenced an apostate condition, and that the gospel of Christ was not there; nor were its principles those for which the parties at war were contending.

In the fourth and fifth centuries "the bishops and fathers" of the rising papal church made war on the worshipers of Jupiter and the idols of pagan Rome, but the war was waged in the interests of the claims of the papacy—the worship of the images of Saints and other related dogmas; and the Reformation period, in the birth and establishment of its creeds, is no exception to the rule. Almost every religious movement of great and widespread importance known to history, except Christianity, has always been attended by carnal warfare. It has been warred against, but like its Author, it has never been known to retaliate. Religion has taken the lives of martyrs, but Christianity never!

Do not censure me for dwelling so long on the dark side of the religious scene; it is necessary to have as full a view as possible, that we may see plainly the difference between Christianity proper and being merely religious; or, in other words, that we may be able to see that under the circumstances governing at the present we have several hundred chances to be religious to one of being a Christian in the gospel sense of the term. Men have many ideas as to what form the church ought to be organized into, whereas the gospel reveals but one. Men and creeds present many different ways of coming to Christ; the gospel of Christ but one. Men and creeds answer the solemn question, "What must I do to be saved?" in many various ways; but God's word presents substantially but one! It is religion then that darkens and confuses the world and not Christianity, God, nor the gospel. This is the point the world ought to see, and this is why we labor so patiently on the theme—the apostasy. It is a departure from the truths of original Christianity that fills the minds of so many with doubt, distrust, division, and confusion. It is man, not God, that is responsible for it.

THE RESTORATION.

There is no question that can be considered by man so important as that of his salvation and the means by which it is to be obtained. It must be considered in respect to the past vicissitudes of the human race, as well as the religious conditions existing at present, and also the divine promises relating to the future. It is necessary that we know the mistakes of the race in the past and be able to avoid such now, as well as the dealings of God with man in ages gone. We must be informed what present duty is and do it, as also the promises that present the incentives to religious life. We will not, therefore, too hurriedly pass the examination of the infinitely important question of the latter-day restoration of the gospel, and per consequence, the Church of Jesus Christ.

His church was founded in the wisdom, power, and authority of the Lord God eighteen hundred years ago. It was established and governed by laws that he ordained and revealed. He authorized and sent his only begotten Son, Jesus Christ, to build it. He endowed him with wisdom and ability to accomplish the work. He founded the church on a "rock" against which "the gates of hell" have never prevailed. (Matt. 16:18.) That "rock" evidently consists of the authority or priesthood that emanates from God, and rested in Christ and his chosen and ordained ministry; the revealed truth that Jesus is "the Christ," the law or word of God (Matt. 7:24, 25), and the continued revelation of the Comforter, the Holy Ghost (John 14:26; 15:26; 16:13, 15), even "the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him," etc. (Eph. 1:15-23.) The gospel comprehends all this, is God's power unto salvation, and is the embodiment of the conditions upon which God continues to reveal himself to those who obey its requirements:—

For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith.—Rom. 1:17.

Against this "rock" "the gates of hell" have never prevailed. As long, therefore, as the church chose to abide the gospel law, maintain her fealty to the authority or priesthood of God, retain the guidance of his Holy Spirit, and thereby remain on the "rock," she was safe. This was the only safety for the church as a church; but turning from the commandments of God to "the commandments of men,"—creeds and disciplines,—she leaves the rock of God and is gone!

The church, in one respect, like any other organization, is a legitimate development from given principles, which, when sown in the human mind and heart, like seed in the ground, germinate, spring forth, and organization is the result. If we sow among the people the principles of republicanism, as in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, the form of government necessarily growing out of them will be republican in nature and character; such as the United States, with its many States necessarily of similar construction, all united in one by the threefold bond of general crowning and suitable character, as seen in the executive, judicial, and legislative departments. It is the principles now embodied in this government that hold it unchangeably the same in organic form. This will appropriately illustrate the organic character of the Church of God, as provided in the gospel or New Testament. The gospel principles are divine, are eternal likewise in nature, and are therefore unchangeable; but they differ from republican principles in that they are kingly, and designed to bring into existence among men a religious, spiritual kingdom, over which Jesus Christ is the King, endowed with "all power" or authority, so far as relates to human salvation,—(Matt. 28:18, 19.)

To Pilate he said:—

My kingdom is not of this world.—John 18:36.

His authority came from another world—heaven; the laws and principles of his kingdom came from God, and the authority of his officers or ministers comes from heaven; hence the government is called "the kingdom of heaven," or "of God."—(Matt. 16:19; 23:13; Luke 4:43.) As the government of the United States as organized is the public expression of the will of the people as couched in the Constitution, so the church or kingdom, as organized anciently by Christ, is the open expression of the will of God as embodied in the New Testament.

Of this covenant or law of Christ, God who cannot lie, said to David:—

The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple.—Ps. 19:7.

My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips.—Ps. 89:34.

Did the gospel covenant come out of God's mouth? Jesus said:—

For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak. And I know that his commandment is life everlasting: whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak.—John 12:49, 50.

Did Jesus do, as well as say, that which God willed?

The Father hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him.—John 8:29.
I come . . . to do thy will, O God.—Heb. 10:7.

We next inquire, What is the pleasure and will of God in regard to the organization of the church? What form of church government is the open expression of God's perfect, unalterable law? The underlying or foundation principles are enumerated by one of God's authorized ministers thus:—

Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment.—Heb. 6:1, 2.

Here are the six fundamental principles of the moral and spiritual government of God. In the previous chapter of the Hebrew letter Paul calls this doctrine "the first principles of the oracles of God" (verse 12), and represents them to be "milk" or the life elements of the gospel.

As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby.—1 Pet. 2:2.

Our eternal salvation can be secured only by accepting, with all our heart, these principles of the doctrine; so we read:—

Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee.—1 Tim. 4:16.

As the germ of life is in the grain of wheat, so the germ of eternal life is in the doctrine or words of God:—

It is the Spirit that quickeneth [or giveth life]; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life.—John 6:63.

Thou hast the words of eternal life.—John 6:68.

The words of Christ were sown in the hearts of the people; they germinated; grew up. The light of Christ, the Son of righteousness shone down upon it, the Holy Spirit descended, and the showers of divine grace refreshed it. But as the Christian society grew up, what organic form did it take? Such an institution as a kingdom without definite organization is beyond intelligible comprehension, absurd, and contrary to every analogy in the universe of created things; hence the idea that the kingdom of God, or the church, is found existing in fragments, scattered around, and mixed in the jungles comprising the various and widely differing sects of the age, is contrary to reason, analogy, and to the Scripture, unless it can be demonstrated that the Bible teaches all the contradictory theories extant; and this, no right thinking person for a moment believes.

Out of the principles of Christ's doctrine an organization legitimately grew. This fact is apparent when the question is asked, Who were the authorized preachers of these principles, that were divinely called and ordained to administer the ordinances of baptism and the "laying on of hands" to believing penitents?

John Calvin was a very violent controversialist. He frequently referred to his opponents as knaves, drunkards, thieves, murderers, and assassins.

THE IDEA OF THE RESURRECTION.

BY H. B. TRISTRAM, D. D., LL. D., F. R. S.

THE teaching of the resurrection of the dead was the most novel and startling of the doctrines of the new revelation. At the same time it was a cardinal doctrine of the faith. The doctrines of propitiatory sacrifice, of the claims of the God of heaven on our services, of a judgment after death, of the immortality of the soul,—these were all foreshadowed in some or other of the traditions and rites of heathen mythology. But none of these traditions, when carefully investigated, give any ground for believing that any part of the ancient world really grasped the idea of a resurrection of the body, or anything beyond a survival after death of the individual consciousness. We may see this by the manner in which the philosophers at Athens received Paul's unfolding of his new doctrine. The kinship of man with his God, the immaterial essence of the divinity, they accepted; the voice of conscience they recognized; but the resurrection of the body seemed to them a grotesque impossibility. The Elysian fields of their poets' dreams were peopled only by disembodied spirits, and the Greek and Roman ideas of a judgment after death were obscure and indefinite.

THE HEATHEN FUTURITY.

Still darker were the ideas of Oriental idolatry. A vivid conception of another world, and of the reality of life after death, especially with a reincorporation of the soul, connected with the idea of future rewards and punishments, might have done much, or, at any rate, something to counteract the effect upon morals and habits of the degrading tenets and practices connected with the worship of Baal and Ashtoreth; but, so far as appears, the Phœnicians had a very dim conception of the life to come, and neither hoped for happiness nor feared misery in it. Their care for the preservation of their bodies after death implied a belief that death was not the end of everything; but the life of the other world seems to have been regarded as something imperfect and precarious, a sort of shadowy existence in a gloomy Hades, where was neither suffering nor enjoyment, neither hope nor fear, but only quietude and rest. The thought of it exercised no perceptible influence over their conduct.

TRANSMIGRATION.

Still further removed from any conception of the resurrection of the body was the doctrine of the transmigration of souls, which occupies so large a space in the theological systems of the far East, whether in ancient or modern times. In fact, this teaching was absolutely destructive of any idea of a restoration or reunion of the soul and body, for the ultimate aspiration was a final absorption into infinity. This doctrine of transmigration permeates the whole theological system of the Persians of old, as well as of the Brahmins and Boodhists of the present day. But it might be supposed that among the Egyptians at least there had lingered traces of a primeval belief in the reunion of body and soul; else why the extraordinary care bestowed on the preservation of the earthly tenement? They believed that the immaterial part of man, which left the body at death, consisted of what we may call soul and spirit; that the soul, or immortal part, was separated from the spirit at death; that the soul was tried in the hall of judgment before the great god Ra, and was weighed in the balance by Anup, the judge of the dead, and his forty-two assessors, who decided according to the acts of his life, and, if approved, the soul entered into Amenti, the Egyptian paradise, where it was given a new body and new faculties. Meanwhile the spirit wandered homeless, or, passing through many transmigrations, was still to have a home in its preserved body to which it might resort. The Egyptians also, in the case of persons whose bodies were lost at sea, or who had hopelessly perished, provided a substitute for the mummy in the shape of a carved or sculptured figure resembling the deceased, which was placed in a tomb. They also made larger or smaller effigies, which were placed near the embalmed remains, and intended as a substitute for them in case that, by some unfortunate accident, they should perish. But in all this there is no distinct idea of the reunion of the soul and body. It was left for the religion of Jesus alone to win the victory over the grave.—S. S. Times.

AS TO WAR IN EUROPE.

Archibald Forbes, a writer with few if any superiors in his special field, is of the opinion that the war in Europe, which so many believe to be impending, will not occur until 1896. France and Russia have a united army of more than 1,500,000 men, but Russia is not well supplied with modern weapons. Germany, Austria, and Italy have a force of about 1,200,000 men, well equipped. When Russia has issued the new weapons to her army Mr. Forbes believes the long-expected and oft-predicted conflict will begin.

Reforms going on in India: Introduction of the Sabbath; league to reduce extravagant expenses of marriage; enfranchisement of widows; system of inheritance through sisters; education of girls; restrictions of child marriage.

Conference Minutes.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA.

Conference convened at Hollister, April 20, 1894; Elder J. M. Putney president, H. L. Holt assistant; J. M. Range clerk. Branch reports: Lone 31, Long Valley 55, San Benito 69, San Jose 22. Ministry reporting: Elders J. H. Lawn, A. Haws, D. Brown, C. W. Hawkins, J. M. Range, J. M. Putney, H. L. Holt; Teachers T. Cook, Bro. Pooler, and Bro. Lytle. Bishop's agent's report: Due agent last report $16.15; received since $195.76; paid out $135; balance due church $44.61. A tent fund of $10.75 per month was subscribed, which was not considered sufficient to keep the tent in the field, and the president of the district, J. M. Putney, was requested to solicit aid from the Saints of the district. Bro. A. Haws volunteered his services with the tent during the summer or as long as means could be obtained to defray expenses. Local brethren of the district will assist Bro. Haws some with the tent. Bro. J. M. Putney was chosen president of the district. Adjourned to meet at Santa Cruz, Friday before the full moon in April, 1895, at 10:30 a. m.

LISTEN TO THE SECRETARY.

Our customers frequently ask if we will accept postage stamps in payment for small sums which they desire to remit to the office. In reply will say that they are acceptable, but we do not advertise that we will take them, for the reason that if they are lost they cannot be recovered, hence persons sending them must do so at their own risk. If money is sent by money order, express order, or bank draft, there is very little if any liability of losing anything. If they are lost, duplicates can be obtained. We expect our customers to get their money to us, and if they follow our directions in remitting they will be enabled to do so without loss; and we in turn expect to get the goods ordered to our patrons without loss to them.

Those residing in Canada will avoid sending us Canada currency as it is discounted twenty per cent here. Express orders, international money orders, or American money are preferred.

Personal checks on local banks are not desirable, although we will accept them as well as Canada money when something of the kind heretofore mentioned cannot be obtained without great inconvenience.

ASA S. COCHRAN,

Secretary Board of Publication.

LAMONI, Iowa, June 20, 1894.

MEETING AT MANCHESTER, TEXAS.

A two-week meeting will commence at Manchester, Red River county, Texas, July 4. We aim to have a grand and fine meeting. All elders and Saints are requested to come and help us. I have been asked to publish and invite all to come that can. Write E. A. Erwin, Manchester, Texas, and arrange with him to meet you at Bagwell Station, Red River county, the nearest railroad point to Manchester, which is twelve miles, and arrangements will be made to meet you at the depot. Come one, come all.
J. D. ERWIN.

APPOINTMENT OF BISHOP'S AGENT.

To the Saints of the Northeastern Kansas District:—Bro. J. B. Jarvis, Bishop's agent for your district, desiring to be relieved of the duty of travel, etc., has recommended the appointment of Bro. John Cairns as agent in his stead, and Bro. Cairns is further commended for the position by many of the officers and members of the district. I therefore take pleasure in appointing Bro. Cairns to act as Bishop's agent for said district and authorize him to act as such in the receipting for and disbursement of funds as provided by the rules governing in the church.

The Bishopric take pleasure in being able to approve of the work and labor of the former agent, Bro. Jarvis. May the Master reward him with his faithful Saints. Please remember the work of the Lord in the district and send your contributions to the good of the same. You may address Bro. John Cairns, Scranton, Kansas.

In behalf of the Bishopric,
E. L. KELLEY,
President of Bishopric.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints of Western Tennessee and Kentucky District.—Inasmuch as General Conference has remembered us with missionary aid to labor with us the present year, and those missionaries have already put in their appearance and seem to be very well equipped for the duties imposed upon them as such, we deem it but just and right that we give them all of the encouragement that we can as laborers, and labor together with them in building up the cause that we all claim to love and revere. I am persuaded that there can be much good accomplished during this conference year in this district. In order that this good may be done we should come to the front, not only with our songs, our prayers, and our presence, but as well with our financial aid, inasmuch as we believe this to be a part of the covenant that we are to make with the Lord. A great responsibility rests on us and we will surely by and by have to give an account for our stewardship while here. Now, dear Saints, let us come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty.

In bonds,
P. B. SEATON, Bishop's Agent.

NOTICES.

To whom it may concern:—Florence E. Horr, of the Clearwater branch, was duly expelled from the church for cause, after a proper examination of the case by an elders' court, December 2, 1893.

LEVI GAMET, Pres. of Branch.

BORN.

CRAIG.—To George and Carrie Craig, of Red Oak, Iowa, August 12, 1890, a son, and named James Roscoe. Blessed June 10, 1894.

DIED.

SHOVE.—At Belmont, Nebraska, June 13, 1894, Bro. Edwin Shove aged 68 years and 10 months. Born in Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania. A large cortege followed the remains to Evergreen cemetery, the place of interment. Funeral service conducted by Elder D. W. Shirk.

MUNSON.—At Belmont, Nebraska, June 12, 1894, Sr. Ellen Jerusha Munson, aged 23 years. Deceased was born near Shell Rock, Butler county, Iowa. Elder D. W. Shirk officiated at the funeral service. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

GREENWOOD.—Matilda Thompson was born May 2, 1824, in Shropshire, England. Subsequent to her marriage to James Greenwood, both having embraced the eleventh hour message, they emigrated to Utah. The sufferings were great of some of the earlier settlers there; but, it is said that it was not sufferings of a physical nature so much as utter disappointments that led them, in 1869 or 1870, to leave Utah for California. They settled in San Joaquin county. It was there that she, opposed by all her family in so doing, accepted the gospel once more by joining the Reorganized Church, to which she was undeviatingly faithful to the hour of her departure, 9:30 p. m., April 7, 1894. She was baptized and confirmed by Elder Richard Amer, August 17, 1873. About 12:30 on the day of her death, the writer was asked to administer to her, and so did the good Spirit foreshadow her peaceful exit, that the watchers were astonished at the verbal exactness of the administrative prayer. On the 10th following, Elder M. H. Forscutt preached a brief sermon from Psalms 116:15, 16. Peacefully passed away our beloved sister, the mother of eleven children, five of whom had gone in advance of her, but the remainder, four sons and two daughters, were left behind. Six years of sickness having preceded her demise, she has gone from sorrow and pain to bliss and joy, beloved by the household of faith.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The district has purchased a tent in which to hold the district conference, which will be held on the last of June and the first of July at Cheiltenham, Missouri. We wish every elder and Saint that has the least interest in the cause and welfare of the district to be present, as the missionaries in charge are here and want to know what can be done in the district. We expect to have a grand time as the intention is to hold two or three days meetings. We have started tent meeting in St. Louis, there seems to be quite an interest manifest.

Yours truly,

J. E. DAWSON.

No. 2510 Garrison Ave., St. LOUIS, Mo.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

ROME, June 16.—An attempt was made to assassinate Premier Crispi to-day. A man rushed up to his carriage and fired at him with a revolver. The Premier was uninjured, and promptly sprang out of his carriage and attempted to seize the would-be assassin, but the latter was seized by a number of people. Signor Crispi was warmly cheered by the people and at the Chamber of Deputies for the coolness he displayed during the whole affair.

As an indication of her objections to the Anglo-Belgian agreement concerning affairs in the Congo territory and of her antagonism to England, Germany will not participate in the contemplated naval demonstration of the great powers on the coast of Morocco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 18.—Hongkong advices under date of May 24 say during the weeking May 24 there were 500 new cases of the plague and 400 deaths. The mortality is showing clearly the deadly nature of the disease. So far no Europeans have been attacked. The fact that the plague had broken out in Hongkong was deliberately concealed by the authorities in order to prevent a scare.

The miners' strike: June 16.—A Chicago paper makes the following statement concerning the strike: "This, the first general strike of the Miners' Association, began April 21, and has continued without interruption to the present time. With an exception here and there the entire bituminous coal fields have been involved. Virginia, West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and a part of Missouri and Kentucky comprise the territory. The struggle was fiercest in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Illinois. Conservative estimates place the number of men involved at 100,000. These men, according to the best obtainable information yesterday, earn on an average $2.50 a day. The loss to the miners in wages for the, say, fifty days' duration of the strike, makes the astounding total of $12,500,000.

Illinois miners in convention at Springfield agreed upon a scale which it is thought will be accepted by the operators. It is expected that work will be resumed on the 20th.

June 17.—Governor Altgeld of Illinois, ordered the Seventh Regiment of the State militia to Mount Morris, to assist United States Marshals to arrest men who had interfered with traffic and committed other unlawful acts.

June 18.—United States Marshals, supported by militia, arrested twenty-six anarchistic foreign miners at Mount Morris, Illinois. The only resistance shown was a demonstration by infuriated women.

Illinois operators have rejected the scale agreed upon by the miners in State convention.

Two thousand miners held a mass meeting in the woods near Adamsville, Alabama, to-day. They blew up a trestle with dynamite and threatened other violence.

June 19.—Strikers drove men away from the mines at Decatur, Illinois.

Miners in a mass meeting at Spring Valley, Illinois, bitterly denounced President Mc-Bride of the General Union. They declared their intention to strike again in the fall if the operators do not raise the price of mining.

Railroad officials in the Massillon, Ohio, district have asked military protection of their property from miners who threaten to destroy other bridges.

Work is being resumed at a number of points in the Pittsburg district. Some trouble has occurred in the coke regions.

Indiana miners will meet in convention on the 22d. They show a disposition to make concessions.

Deputies and miners fought for two hours at the Mary Lee mines in Alabama. Two of the mob were injured, but none were arrested.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Henry G. Bryant, at the head of a party of six, will go to the relief of Lieutenant Peary in the Arctic regions, sailing for St. Johns, Newfoundland, June 19, going north thence by the Steam Whaler Falcon. The party goes forth under the auspices of the Philadelphia Geographical Club and expects to return in September.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 18.—The Missouri River is a foot above the danger line and is still rising. Nearly all the riprap put in by the government north of this city at a cost of many thousand dollars has been destroyed. Many farms are inundated and the damage will be heavy. The river has been cutting and is rapidly changing its course in many places.

Sioux City and other points north report high water and much damage to lowlands.

BUENOS AYRES, June 18.—The correspondent in Rio Janeiro, Brazil, sends word that efforts are being made to induce President-elect Moraes to resign in favor of ex-President Peixoto, whom it is proposed to establish as dictator. The army, it is said, is favorable to the programme.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—The Weather Bureau reports the recent drouth broken in the Northwestern, Middle, and some of the Southern States, while more than the usual amount of rain has fallen in the Eastern Gulf States. The Southeastern Atlantic States have not yet been relieved by rains.

MASSILLON, Ohio, June 18.—General Coxe was warmly welcomed by 4,000 people on his arrival here from Washington to-day. He has been informed that he will be nominated for Congress in the Eighth Ohio district.

CHADRON, Neb., June 19.—A cyclone passed over this section of country to-day killing one and injuring five persons and doing much damage to property. Deaths are reported from other places near by.

The sub-committee of the House of Representatives has perfected the Nicaragua Canal bill.

The Corean rebellion grows; 60,000 rebels are in the field.

The Spanish cabinet threatens to resign.

TROPPEAU, Austrian Sicilia, June 16.—The official estimates of the extent of the disaster caused by the explosions Thursday night in the coal mines at Karwin say 204 miners are missing and only twenty bodies have been recovered. Of the miners who met their death by these explosions 100 were married and they leave 400 children to mourn their loss. Experts who have examined the pits declare they were in a dangerous condition weeks ago.

GREENVILLE, Ill., June 16.—About two o'clock this afternoon a terrific cyclone passed over the northern part of this county, destroying property and injuring a number of people. The storm lasted about twenty minutes.

RICHMOND, Ky., June 16.—A cyclone today visited a point just above Doyleville and was the most destructive ever known in this section. During the cyclone hailstones as large as goose eggs fell, almost destroying the corn and other crops. Some of the icicles were so large and fell with such force that they cut through oak board roofs. No lives were lost.

WICHITA, Kan., June 19.—A cloudburst occurred in the southern part of this county last afternoon, but owing to wires being down only meager details can be secured from there. It is said seven feet of water were on the streets of Mulvane at one time. The big Arkansas bridge at Derby was swept away by the sudden rush of water.

SAN SALVADOR, June 16.—In a fight at Apeneca between Madariago's forces and a band of former government men the latter were routed, with twenty killed or wounded. The rest crossed the frontier. The new government is taking possession of the offices throughout the country peacefully.

CHRISTIANA, June 17.—The Storthin has concluded the debate on the report of the committee appointed to examine into the conduct of several high military and naval officers, who it was charged had, at the height of the conflict between the crown and the Liberal party, which resulted in the impeachment of the Conservative Cabinet, acted in a manner prejudicial to the safety of Sweden and Norway. The House adopted the report by a vote of 62 to 49. In substance the report says that at the time of the difference between the crown and the Liberals the officers in question deliberately ruined 30,000 rifles and got the guns at Christiana ready for service. In addition they had the warships at Horten, the chief naval station of the kingdom, cleared for action.

TACOMA, Wash., June 18.—The loss from floods near Cascade Locks, Oregon, is estimated at $600,000. The uncompleted locks on which the United States has expended nearly $2,000,000 narrowly escaped destruction, and, as it is, the works have been damaged to the amount of $200,000. Work on the Cascade locks was commenced eighteen years ago. The work was to cost the government over $3,000,000. The locks were intended to be 139 feet above sea level, and the Columbia rose to 145 feet above sea level. Had the locks been completed they would have been swept out of the river. This will necessitate a change in the plans for the work, and the post commanding officer is authority for the statement that the work will be projected on a basis of 150 feet above sea level. The change will make a total cost to the government for the locks when completed $5,000,000.

NEW YORK, June 19.—A project to invite England's Grand Old Man to visit America has been afoot for some time. The idea is to have the invitation signed by a large number of representative men of the country. Judge Allison Brown is among the prime movers. Mr. Gladstone frequently has expressed his wish to call on his friends on this side of the water, but the opportunity never seemed to present itself.

TANGIER, June 19.—The Spanish warship which was sent with a treasury official to Mazagan, in order to receive the first installment of the war indemnity which Morocco agreed to pay to Spain as a result of the rising of the Riffs and the attacks upon the Spanish troops at Melilla, has returned, having been unable to obtain any of the money promised. The indemnity which Spain agreed to accept from Morocco was $4,000,000, or 22,000,000 pesetas.

VIENNA, June 19.—Reports from Galicia and Silesia show that the Waar Valley in Hungary, from Trencin north to Pressburg, has been badly inundated. Portions of the towns and dozens of prosperous villages in the valley are submerged. Railway traffic is suspended. Bridges have been swept away and crops destroyed in every direction. The damage amounts to many millions of florins. The rivers are full of carcasses of cattle and household property of every description is floating down stream. The rain ceased somewhat to-day, and there is a prospect that the floods will shortly subside.

Several watchmen have been drowned in the floods. Many dams have been undermined. Snow has fallen in the districts of Lipreschl and Liptau.

LONDON, June 19.—A meeting of members of the nobility was held Monday, at which the Duke of Westminster presided. A committee was formed to conduct the campaign against the government's proposal to disestablish the church in Wales. It was agreed to contest every constituency in Wales in the general election. The Duke of Westminster subscribed $1,000 toward the expenses of the campaign, while other Lords subscribed £500 each. A total of £5,000 was raised.

Lord Chief Justice Coleridge, of England, died June 14.

OMAHA, Neb., June 20.—Rumors at the Union Pacific headquarters to-day were to the effect that the glacial action has in places moved the mountains down on the narrow right of way along the Columbia, where the cliff rises often 400 feet above the track, leaving now hardly a footing for the track. When the water subsides it is feared this will reveal damages which will require $1,500,000 to repair.

SIoux CITY, Io., June 20.—A terrible storm of wind, rain, and hail struck this city at six o'clock this morning. The roof of the Illinois Central station was carried over the Union depot and dropped into Third street. The Peavey & Stevens wholesale furniture house was unroofed and the Gettysburg Cyclorama wrecked. It is believed immense damage was done in the surrounding country.

The stock in lumber yards was gathered up and sent whirling through the streets like so many straws, crashing in window glass and doing great damage. On West Third street a wing to a dwelling house was carried across the street and landed on top of some telephone poles. An operator in the Postal office opened the rear door to see the storm. The wind swept in and blew the front out. The theater pavillion at Riverside Park was wrecked. A large part of the Cable Street railway company's power-house was unroofed and the brick walls badly damaged. The big tank that supplies water at the Union Stockyards was wrecked. Reports show much damage to farm buildings. Great damage was done to buildings in South Sioux City and Dakota City, Nebraska.

It is reported to-night that the little towns of Tara, Clare, Moorland, and Callendar, a hundred miles east on the Rock Island, were in the path of the cyclone; that great damage was done, and that there were four fatalities.

The same storm is reported by numerous points in Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, and Indiana.

ATCHISON, Kan., June 20.—The Santa Fé railroad has abandoned its tracks between here and St. Joseph on account of the encroachments of the river. The company used the Rock Island track for a trip and then decided that the Rock Island was also unsafe.

This evening the Santa Fé is running over the Hannibal and St. Joseph line. At Winthrop Junction a brakeman on the Santa Fé can stand on the platform of a passenger train and dip water from the river. During the last two weeks fifty houses have been removed or torn down at East Atchison. Today two houses and an ice house filled with ice tumbled into the river and were swept away. The river is still rising.

Over 2,000 iron miners on the Gogebic range, Michigan, have quit work.

Ohio miners in convention condemned the agreement reached by officers of the General union, but decided that all return to work except the Massillon contingent.

Miners are returning to work at many points in Indiana and Illinois. Many miners have been indicted for acts of violence at Ottawa, Illinois, by the grand jury.

Labor and Alliance leaders are reported to have called a convention to meet at Springfield, Illinois, in July, for the purpose of merging into one vast organization the Knights of Labor, the American Railway Union, and the Farmers' Alliance.

Nicaragua and Costa Rica are preparing for war.

ATCHISON, Kan., June 21.—East Atchison is nearly depopulated by the river cutting away the town site and the residents moving away. The river is now high and will continue its rapid cutting for some time. All traffic over the four roads running into Atchison from the east will soon be cut off. Roads are moving their tracks from the bottoms to the bluffs on both sides of the river.

Destructive storms are reported from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Missouri, Indian Territory, and Illinois points on the 21st inst. The lightning was especially destructive, but wind and hail did much damage. Matured grain crops were greatly damaged in lower Missouri and Indian Territory.

General Kelly and his right hand man Baker were arrested as vagabonds at Louisville, Kentucky, June 21.

Hogan's navy was at Fort Sully, South Dakota, June 21. Citizens are talking of repelling them.

Cantwell's 250 commonwealers arrived at Racine, Wisconsin, on the 21st inst.

Commonwealers were arrested and confined at Topeka, Kansas, on the 20th inst.

Some time ago a prominent Roman Catholic died in Mobile, Alabama, and bequeathed $2,000 to be used for the masses for his soul. ZION'S RELIGIO-LITERARY SOCIETY PROGRAM.

Senior temperance department, G. H. Gates, superintendent, No. 1001 Westminster Avenue, Providence, Rhode Island.

July, third week.—Song by Society. Invocation. Instrumental Music. Reading (Topical). Vocal Duet. Paper, "Moral Aspects of the Gothenburg system for the control of the Liquor Traffic." (Note a.) Instrumental Duet. Roll Call. Response: Bible quotations opposed to the use of Intoxicating Drinks. Recitation (Topical). Debate: "Have Prohibition Laws proved a failure?" Vocal Solo. Critic's Report. Closing Hymn. Dismissal.

NOTE (a).—See article in April Arena, "The Liquor Traffic Without Private Profits."

Junior temperance department, R. B. Trowbridge, superintendent, Parsons, Kansas.

July, third week.—Hymn. Responsive Reading, Psalms 1. (Note a.) Prayer. Declamation (Temperance). Papers, two, five minutes: "The best way to advocate Temperance." Instrumental Music. Discussion: "Who are most to blame for the intemperate condition of our country, the voters or the whisky element?" (Note b.) Scriptural Reading. Song. Commendations, and suggestions for improvement. Hymn by Society. Benediction.

NOTE (a).—These readings are for the benefit of the members, not merely to fill up the program. (Note b).—The Program Committee should appoint a member to sum up either side, after the general discussion. All should come prepared to take part in the discussion; give it careful consideration, and then voice your opinions.

Senior literary department, Dora Young, superintendent, Dow City, Iowa.

July, fourth week.—Song, Society. Reading, the thirty-seventh Psalm, by the President. Prayer. Music, Instrumental. Paper, "The Literary Merits of the Bible." Recitation. (Note a.) Roll Call. Response, The author I like best, and my reason for such preference. Music, Vocal. Essay, "The Story of Evangeline." (Note b.) Reading, Selection from Milton's "Paradise Lost." Music. Benediction.

NOTE (a).—Let this selection be from a standard author. Avoid all trash. (Note b.) Intersperse this essay with quotations from the poem. If rightly arranged, this makes an interesting article.

Junior literary department, Jessie Cave, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

July, fourth week.—Song, page 158. Windowed Songs. Biography, Benjamin Franklin. Recitation. Song. Essay, "Duty of Children to Parents." Literary Queries. (Note a.) Music. Roll Call. (Note b.) Prayer. Song. Benediction.

NOTE (a).—This part of the program should be conducted by a committee appointed for the purpose. Their work is to arrange a set of queries to be answered by the society. If thought best, the members of the society can select the questions and hand them to this committee with written answers. (Note b.) Response: Give the title of a good literary production with its author.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL GAS ENGINE

In the market is run without an electric spark battery. Theory is all very well, but the everyday experience of constant practical use is the best test of merit. The man who runs a launch and finds himself drifting with tide and wind because the "spark" fails to ignite the charge of gas in his engine; the man who prints a daily paper and fails to get it off on time because the "spark" again fails; the man who has fruit that is injured for lack of irrigation because the "spark" fails in his engine that runs the pump; not only such parties but others who have trouble from like causes should bear in mind that the Hercules Gas and Gasoline Engine is free from such difficulties. The ignition is simple and sure. Send for catalogue. If you want second-hand engines of other makes at cheap rates we can supply you. We have a number taken in trade and cannot take any more until these are realized on. PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY, 405-407, Sansome Street, San Francisco.

ABSTRACT of EVIDENCE
TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

This work is an abstract of the sworn testimony of both Plaintiff's and Defendant's witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickites (a faction from the Original Church) for title to and possession of the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri. The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, and who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, and the testimony of members of the Hedrickite organization, is given; also the statements of said witnesses under cross-examination and recross-examination.

Evidence from the three standard books, and from the publications of the Original Church, and the Reorganized Church, the Hedrickite faction, and from those of the Utah Church, is presented in support of the claims of the Reorganized Church to be the successor of the Original Church, showing it to be the authorized and identical continuation of said Original Church and entitled to its property, while all other factions have departed from the Original Church in organization, in teaching, and in practice.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, three pamphlets, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

A valuable volume of evidence for ministry and laity; useful in refuting the many misrepresentations of the early church and its ministry and membership.

A limited edition has been published. Price, bound in law sheep (Counsel's argument in separate binding), $3.00. Bound in cloth $2.50.

FOR THOSE WHO SING OR PLAY

THE SAINTS' HARMONY

is a valuable present. It is bound in two styles, plain and ornamented. The book contains the hymns in the Saints' Harp, also 552 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes.

The chapter of Instructions on CHOIR and ANTHEM MUSIC is of value to all who take part in vocal or instrumental parts of song service.

This collection of sacred hymn and anthem music has been highly commended by competent musicians and choir leaders and teachers.

THE TWO RECORDS

combines the Book of Mormon and the New Testament (Inspired Translation) in one volume, in large (pica) type. The new index to the Book of Mormon is included.

A genuine comfort to aged persons, who will read this large type matter, day or night, without difficulty.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit or Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Conscious State? The views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death: his preëxistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

RELIGION AND EDUCATION.

WE are indebted to Mr. Henry M. Taber in The Freethinkers' Magazine, New York, for a consensus of opinion regarding "Religion and Education."

Bishop Chatard, of Vincennes, says: "Six hundred thousand pupils are now receiving instruction, at an expense to the (Catholic) Church of $9,000,000 a year, and I demand that this $9,000,000 should be paid by the State out of the money raised by taxation."

Archbishop Purcell says: "We cannot approve of that system of education for youth which is apart from instruction in the Catholic faith."

Pius IX. declares: "Education of children in a knowledge of natural things, apart from the Catholic faith, is a damnable heresy."

Bishop Gilmour, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "We solemnly charge and most positively require every Catholic to send his children to a Catholic school, and authorize confessors to refuse the sacraments to such parents as disobey."

A Romish Archbishop (Ireland) so insists upon the teaching of religion in the public schools that he expressed himself as favoring the teaching of the Protestant—rather than no—religion; and a Protestant clergyman (the Rev. Abbot E. Kittredge, of Chicago) has said that "if the position of the public school is to be . . . no Bible . . . then I stand with the Roman Catholics for religious schools."

The Rev. Joseph Cook, of Boston, of course, insists upon religious teaching in the public schools. He demands that education must be supplemented with "the theology of the fall of man, the immortality of the soul, the judgment to come," etc. Dr. Shearer, President of Davidson College, N. C., denounces the common-school system of the country, advocating the education of children of Protestants in schools fostered by the church.

Ex-President Woolsey, of Yale College, denied the right of the State to teach the discoveries of science, "if theism and revelation be banished from the scholastic halls," and adds, "why permit evolution to be publicly professed more than predestination?"

The late Rev. A. A. Hodge, D. D., of Princeton Seminary, in insisting upon religious teaching in the public schools, says: "Christians have the power in their own hands. The danger arises simply from the weak and sickly sentimentality respecting the supposed equitable rights of an infidel minority."

President Seelye, of Amherst College, says: "The State must teach religion. If the consciences of its subjects approve, well; if not, the State must not falter."

On the other hand, the following distinguished ministers have expressed themselves strongly against State-aided religious education.

President Eliot, of Harvard University, has expressed himself in opposition to "imposing religious opinions upon the susceptible mind, not only in State education but in all our colleges and universities."

President James C. Welling, of the Columbian University of Washington, D. C., argues that "public education should be confined to that modicum which may be necessary for the common defense and general welfare," his conclusion being, "the State cannot rightfully teach the tenets of any particular religious creed, whether it be Jewish or Christian, Agnostic or Atheistic. Public education, supported by public taxation, must needs be colorless in point of religion."

The late Rev. Howard Crosby, D. D., has said: "There is no safety for our country, but in nonreligious elementary education in the public schools. If the State is to teach religion, what religion is it to furnish: the Roman Catholic, the Jewish, the Chinese, the Agnostic? Why not these? If the State must furnish religion, it must also logically furnish the inquisition, and so the foundation of American independence must be destroyed. Is it not better that the Atheist should make his children Atheists, than to break up the country and array men against each other?"

Dr. J. G. Holland, in Scribners', February, 1876, speaking of the compulsory reading of the Bible in the public schools, says: "It is to the Catholic, Jew, and Atheist, a grievance, a hardship, an oppression."

The Rev. Dr. S. H. Greer, of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York City, has expressed himself as opposed to allowing the Bible to be read in the public-schools, and added: "The charge that the schools of to-day are godless, is largely rhetorical."

The Rev. Charles H. Eaton, pastor of the Church of the Divine Paternity, New York City, says: "We would remove from the public-schools the Bible, and take away all religious exercises, and make the public-schools what they were intended to be—the foundation and beginning of knowledge, which shall be the best protection of the American Republic."

The Rev. Dr. Parkhurst says: "The reading of the Bible in the public-schools is a good deal of a 'performance,' and is conspicuous for nothing so much as for its farical features. It is more a 'fetich' than a moral agency."—Literary Digest.

BARE FEET AND HEALTH.

As to the healthfulness of going without shoes and stockings there can, says the London Hospital, be no question. Some of the healthiest children of the world are to be found in the Scottish highlands, where shoes are seldom worn at an earlier age than 12 or 13. The negro and collic laborers, who work barefooted, are usually in robust health. Brown, in the "History of Man," tells of an African monarch who suffered from what appeared to have been a cold in his head, besides other ailments, while his people were always as well as possible. Can it be that the reason was that by the laws of his kingdom he alone was permitted to clothe his feet, and that he gratified his vanity by always wearing gorgeous sandals? It is probably generalizing too much to state, as a medical fact, that the barefooted races are the healthiest. But it is certain that bare feet are healthier than badly-shod feet. In our English villages children are constantly sent to school in wet weather with holes in their shoes. They sit for hours with damp feet, and illnesses are the results. If their parents would send them off barefooted, as is done in Scotland and Ireland, their feet would dry by evaporation in a short time, and it would be found that no harm followed.

There are said to be only one hundred and forty of the ancient Samaritans. They live at Sychar of the Bible, now called Nablous. They are a tall, fair-haired race, and scrupulously obey the law of Moses and the Pentateuch as their only Bible.

There were about 10,000 baptisms in the Northwest India conference in 1893.

TWELVE YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

Chronic Cases a Specialty.

A Book for Everybody!

But Especially for the Boys!

Autobiography of ELDER JOSEPH LUFF

The Struggles, Failures, and Successes in the Life of one who is now a Prominent Minister of the Church.

A Medley of Mischief, Mirth, Folly, Pride, Self-will, Honor, Devotion, and Sentiment, as found in the Character of a Boy whom God in due time selected as an ambassador for Himself, and

Who To-day Stands as a Monument of Divine Grace!

The Book contains a history of his conversion to and from Methodism, his acceptance of the restored gospel, a dissertation on the leading features of the doctrine that moved him to obedience, his call as a minister and experiences as such, together with a recital of some striking incidents, showing divine interference and blessing. The autobiography has been revised by Bro. Luff since its publication in Autumn Leaves, and a large amount of doctrinal matter has been added in appropriate places. TWO SERMONS, one on the "Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man," and one on "The Modern Stumbling-Stone," have been added also, making it just the kind of a book to have in the family. Price, cloth bound, $1.25.

BUILDING TEMPLES.

THERE was one tabernacle, temporary worshiping place built in the wilderness, by command of God. There was one temple built at Jerusalem, by command of God.

Why did not the Israelites on the forty years sojourn in the wilderness dot the land over with stone temples? Why did they not build a temple at Jericho, Nazareth, Bethany, and Tarsus?

If God's people are commanded to build temples always unto his name, why did so many hundred years pass before one was built in the far off East?

One temple was to be built by commandment at Independence; one was started at Far West; but neither of these was finished. One was commanded to be built at Kirtland, and was finished and stands to-day. Tokens of the acceptance of the temple at Kirtland were given at and after its dedication; and similar tokens have been given since the same temple has been repaired, rehabilitated, and re-occupied by the Reorganized Church. A command was given to build a temple at Nauvoo, and an effort was made to accomplish it; but it was never finished. It was used for the frolic and the dance, and things transpired in it that desecrated the fane, despoiling the spirit of worship which should have attended its altars.

Besides these temples no command from God to build one is on record that we have ever heard of.

The commandment found in Doctrine and Covenants referring to the building of temples, is peculiar, and refers to one house. The Lord said:—

And for the glory, honor, and endowment of all her municipalities, are ordained by the ordinance of my holy house which my people are always commanded to build unto my holy name.—D. and C. sec. 107, (103 old Ed.)

This most clearly means that whenever God will have his people to build a temple, he will command the building of it, for his people when they build temples to him are always commanded to do it, and do not of their own will and purpose undertake such work.

No merit can necessarily attach to the building of a temple, one or many, the building of which is without the command of God; hence when men claim great merit for having built temples, and condemn the Reorganization for having built none; we answer, We are ready to build when God shall signify that it is his will that it shall be done.

It may be that the Lord may say to those who shall say, We have prophesied in thy name; have done many wonderful works in thy name; have even built temples in thy name; Yes, you have prophesied in my name; have done many wonderful works, and have even built temples unto my name, but in none of them did ye have commandment from me; and with them and the things done in them I am not pleased, nor will I give reward for them, they were neither ordered nor sanctioned by me. It is better to be without temples, without condemnation, than to have many, and condemnation with them.

NOTHING TO LOSE.

It is intimated by our co-religionists in Utah, that those who are seeking discussion with them upon the identity of the church and the authority of the priesthood have nothing to lose, but all to gain, by such discussion, if it should be granted by them.

The reverse of this would be in a sense, that those whom we might challenge would have everything to lose, we everything to gain. The supposition that we might be successful in a controversy, thus gaining a victory on the position claimed, is one that these men seem to have contemplated as being possible. In such case they would indeed lose something; but, if they are in the right how can they lose? If wrong they ought to be defeated, and must be—is that what is feared by them? We think so.

LET YOUR LIGHT SHINE.

LAMONI was lately visited by Rev. Scott B. Jones, Pastor of the African M. E. Church, at Ottumwa, Iowa, himself of the Negro race, who delivered a lecture in the Saints' church, on Monday evening, June 18. His subject was, "The Negro in the Commonwealth of America, or Trials and Triumphs of a Nation Born in a Day."

There was only a fair audience. The evening was a typical one for June in this region and climate; hence half of the animate creation was out of doors in the balmy air; and in the wondrous beauty of the hour forgot the lecture that was to be.

The subject matter of the lecture and its manner of delivery were a genuine surprise to the audience. The statements and argument of the speaker showed that he had not only tried to become acquainted with what he was saying, but had thrown his energies and deepest interest into the struggle into which his race was passing unto the right to self-existence and control.

Rev. Jones' parents were slaves in Alabama, before and during the war until the Emancipation Proclamation gave them political freedom, at least in name. He was born there, and came north to Ohio, as soon as possible after the war closed. He went to Cincinnati, where the boy of six years of age grew to manhood. Moved to it by personal ambition, and a desire to in some way help his own people by precept and example, the boy secured an education—how is not material—and took to the pulpit and to a limited interest in politics, as the best and most likely pursuits in which to reach his race, and the white race in their behalf. He sought and made acquaintance with Hon. Frederick Douglas, B. K. Bruce, Lynch, Langston, and others of the Negro race, who had secured recognition as leaders, and accepting advice and work in legitimate lines at their suggestion, he has gone forward hopeful of good results. He is located at Ottumwa, Iowa, but is a worker in every direction among his people; is a Republican in politics from conviction and is fairly well informed on general issues; is not so much concerned about the silver and tariff issues, as he is about the seeing the Negro established in the place in the American Commonwealth to which he is by the honest exercise of his faculties and a laudable ambition entitled.

Rev. Jones illustrated in his lecture and personal address the wonderful advancement that his race has made during the thirty years of nominal freedom accorded to that race as a "military necessity," but once conferred could not again be taken from them. The contrast sharply drawn between seventy-five years of bondage under the Federal constitution and thirty years of freedom under an amended bulwark of human liberty, showed the capacities of the race most remarkably and favorably.

We do not write of this man because of his religion, or his politics; but write of him as of one whose eyes "have seen the tokens of the coming of the Lord;" and who recognizes within his fellows of the Negro race, the possibilities of American citizenship and a higher development, which he feels within himself; and believing that it can only be accomplished by persistent and long continued teaching, he is devoting himself to that purpose. He is but thirty-three, of abstemious habits, good and pleasing address, and is sure to make his mark if he is faithful to his convictions. We feel sure that the HERALD readers will be willing, with us, to wish this laborer for his kind, success in his work as an educator and benefactor of his race. We ask the Saints to hear him if he should speak where they can attend his lectures.

VOLUNTEERS FOR MISSION LABOR.

SINCE the April session of conference, a call was made for volunteers for the Sandwich Islands mission. To this call we have some twelve or fourteen responses; all of them feasible; but of course, some are better qualified than others, all not being alike.

Several, and perhaps these most available, cannot well leave home till fall, which is just as well as earlier.

It may be that some of those who have written us may think that we are too slow in deciding on their application, but the mission is of some importance, and haste may be hurtful.

The Presidency will determine as soon as practicable and as they may be directed in the matter, and hope to be properly informed as to the most judicious selection to make from those offering to go.

JOSEPH SMITH, for Presidency.

LAMONI, June 20, 1894.

J. W. CUSHMAN, of Chariton, Iowa (whoever he may be), wrote the Chicago Times for June 20, in reference to the present condition of things, that possibly by the election of Judge J. C. Mitchell of Ottumwa, for president, taxing of capital, free trade, election by ballot of all officers in the employ of the people, taking the place power from the President, Senate, and Congress, and putting all power in the hands of the voters, it may not be too late to save the world.

He adds:—

But I fear you will hear from Gabriel inside of sixty days if the New Testament is true.

As it will be practically impossible to do what Mr. Cushman points out as salvation for the world, it may be just as well to make up our minds to take what comes and be contented. However, come to think of it, the New Testament being true, we will not hear from Gabriel in the sense Cushman writes of him, in the next sixty days, so that need not frighten us. What with Col. Totten, Mr Buchanan, Flammarion, and now Cushman of Chariton, this poor old world has a hard time of it coming to an end.

NATIONAL SONG AND MUSIC CONTEST.

THE following songs have been accepted by the Musical Journal, The Dominant, of Philadelphia for the first and second prizes for national songs. The Judges were Col. John A. Cockerill, of the New York Morning Advertiser; Edmund Clarence Stedman, poet and critic, and Jerome Buck, poet, of the New York World's staff. These songs are now published and competition for music to them is solicited.

SONS OF AMERICA.

Songs of America! Heirs to the glory
God-guided patriots nobly have won;
Liberty stands on our mountain-tops hoary,
Lighting her torch from the fires of the sun.

CHORUS—Speed the message onward,
Strivings deep and long
Here at last are bursting
In triumphant song.
Liberty and union,
Set 'twixt sea and sea;
Blood-bought by our fathers,
Here shall ever be.

Liberty, dream of the Pilgrims' devotion,
Here to a stature heroic has grown;
Driving back foes that came over the ocean,
Crushing the enemies sprung from our own.

Fearful the cost, but how priceless the treasure!
Battlefields were but the altars to God;
War-clouds the incense and cannon the measure,
Lives, the free sacrifice redd'ning the sod.

Liberty, patron of cot and of palace,
May our devotion to thee never cease;
Long may we drink from thy heavenly chalice,
Deep to contentment, and progress, and peace.

Banner all glorious, float ever o'er us!
Every star shining there steadfast and true;
Holding the lesson of Union before us,
Written for aye in the Red, White and Blue.

Osman C. Hooper.

OLD GLORY.

Old Glory! Flag of Liberty!
In triumph wave o'er land and sea,
The pride of millions yet to be,
'Neath Freedom's glorious sway;
We gaze upon each starry fold
In beauty to the skies unrolled,
And link with thee in pride untold
Our land, America.

CHORUS—Unfurl thy grandeur to the stars,
Dear flag of many battle scars,
Renowned in hallowed story;
All hail to thee, O emblem grand,
The guardian of our native land,
Old Glory!

Old Glory! founded by our sires
Amid the flame of battle fires,
Thy gleam the heart of all inspires
With rapture, day by day;

The flag of the New World art thou,
To tyranny thou ne'er shalt bow!
Forever wave above the brow
Of free America!

Old Glory! for thy honored past,
Our hearts revere thee till the last;
Our dearest hopes are on thee cast,
To never fade away;
Triumphant, noble, brave, and free,
Still onward shall thy progress be,
For honor, peace, and liberty,
And for America!

Thomas J. Duggan.

We thought it possible that some of the musical Saints might wish to compete and so publish the songs.

The second part of the laudable contest, the effort of which is to secure to the United States a genuine, home-spun national anthem, has now commenced. Composers are invited to send musical settings of the two poems, in competition for a prize of $100.00 for the best setting of each poem. We would advise any of our readers who contemplate competing to send to The Dominant for full particulars, as necessarily certain conditions are imposed by that journal, one of which we note is that American citizenship is a sine qua non.

This is commendable; give it a try, some of you.

THE Rockland, Maine, Daily Star, for June 8, has the following notice of the work of Bro. J. C. Foss:—

Elder J. C. Foss preached last evening in Armory hall to the many that came to hear. His subject was on the Godhead, and from a biblical standpoint. Mr. Foss said that God is a man, though immortal, and that he is seated in the heaven above, and that he has eyes to see, ears to hear, and a face. (1 Pet. 3:12; Ex. 33:11.) He has hands. (Ezek. 21:17; 2 Chron. 18:18.) He has a heart. (Acts 13:22.) He has feet. (Ezek. 43:7.) He is incorruptible and immortal. (Rom. 1:21-23; 1 Tim. 1:17.) Has a man's voice. (Gen. 3:9; 4:9.) Jesus looks like his Father. (St. John 14:9; Phil. 2:5; Heb. 1:3.) In fact he said that God made man in his own image, and after his own likeness. (Gen. 1:26.) That when he saw man he saw the image of his Creator, and that man must worship God in spirit and in truth and with faith, believing that God will reward him. (Heb. 2:6.) Hence God is a material being, and in some future time God's people will see him. (Matt. 5:6; Rev. 21:3, 4.)

Mr. Foss said that Jesus Christ is a separate person from the Father, as much so as any father and son, but Jesus formed a part of the Godhead. God will save as many in his kingdom as believe on him through his Son Jesus Christ.

Mr. Foss will speak this evening on the setting up of the kingdom of God on earth.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. A. H. SMITH reports from Cornerant, Minnesota, June 18:—

Attended conference at Omaha, Saturday, May 26. The session was good. I spoke Sunday evening in Council Bluffs. Met Bro. W. W. Blair and T. W. Williams and advised together about the debate with Elder D. F. Stout, of the Utah Church. Attended one evening's debate between Elder D. F. Stout and Bro. H. N. Hansen: was convinced that neither Hansen nor Williams had anything to fear,—all was going well. Met with the Des Moines district conference at Rhodes, Iowa, June 2; it was a royal good session; four baptized. The Protestant Methodist minister gave us the use of his church Sunday evening. I occupied for an hour or more. Fred A. and I stopped over night at Marshalltown, at Sister Lou Berry's and looked up prospects in that city June 5. Next day came on. Fred left me and I came on to Pelican Rapids. June 9, met Saints in their tent, held five days' meeting with best of liberty. Two young men from Audubon were baptized; names Hawley; very promising young men. Yesterday spoke in Cormorant. Interest in this country good. Am booked for Wednesday night this week, at Nunn schoolhouse; Sunday at New Church, one mile north of Eunice Postoffice. Next week unless interest is exceptionally good will go to Audubon. Afterwards work my way to Minneapolis, and then southward, into Illinois.

Bro. Blair wrote card from Chatham, Ontario, June 19:—

Had fine conference at Wallaceburg 16, 17, and 18. J. H. Lake and I go to Lindsay tomorrow night, and to Blenheim Saturday next and will return here next Wednesday, thence on to London. The field promises well.

Bro. S. E. Flannigan, writing from McLeansboro, Illinois, June 22:—

I think brother Emsley Curtis will preach for us here soon. Send the elders here; I will take good care of all who come. I feel that you are engaged in a righteous work.

Bro. Joseph Ward, writing from Vera Cruz, Missouri, June 22, says:—

I baptized three more at Yonker in this month, making ten at that place, and more are very near the kingdom. I will go to Ottumwa to-morrow for a week's meeting; and from there will go to Falling Spring; and the second Sunday in July to Yonker. Calls are coming from cities, towns, and country in our mission field three times more than we can fill. I am feeling well in the work.

Bro. T. W. Williams writing from Council Bluffs, June 20; in regard to the proposed debate between himself and D. F. Stout, of the Utah Church:—

I suppose you have seen the "Card to the Elders" in Desert News. D. F. Stout, who was to meet me here, backed squarely out. I continued the investigation without him. Had large audiences and good liberty. Stout told me that he took the instructions from the headquarters as the word of God; and I told him that in that case I released him from his promise to debate, as I did not want to be the means of causing him to break God's law or disobey his word. God pity backslidden Israel.

What is that the wise man says about those who swore to their own hurt and changed not.

Bro. M. F. Gowell, Cutler, Maine, June 20:—

I am trying to push things as much as possible in this conservative and thinly settled country. Have felt strengthened since General Conference. The "brighter day" spoken of last year has surely dawned.

Bro. Eli Hayer, Head Grove, Iowa, June 23:—

Our two days' meetings passed off nicely. They were quite well attended and good attention was paid. Brn. C. E. Hand, D. M. Rudd, F. A. Smith, and F. M. Weld were the speakers. One was baptized on the 20th. Much good was done; people seem to be quite interested.

Bro. Heman C. Smith, Wilburton, Indian Territory, June 25:—

Bro. J. D. Erwin and I closed a series of meetings here last night, which resulted in the baptism of six, making twenty this month. Bro. Erwin returns to Standley to-day; I go to Rogers, Arkansas, there to meet Bro. S. V. Bailey.

Bro. John J. Cornish, from Reed City, Michigan, June 25:—

Over fifty-five persons have been baptized into the church in the Northern Michigan district since the last General Conference.

Bro. W. W. Blair, from Chatham, Ontario, June 23:—

Bro. Lake and I have held meetings here and at Wallaceburg and Appledore, nightly, this week, with fair success; and go to-day to Blenheim to preach until next Wednesday, and then go on to London and reach Grand Valley by the 30th inst. All goes fairly and prospects good. Saints are joyful and hopeful.

F. H. Brooks, McKinley, Michigan, June 25:—

The work is onward here. I was in the water baptizing on two different occasions last week. Have baptized forty since I came here. There is much opposition; I am told that I will be taken by a mob to-night and treated to a coat of tar and feathers. It does not trouble me; I know the work I am engaged in is of God.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. T. T. HINDERKS is expecting to labor some among the Germans near Avenue City, Missouri, this summer and fall. It is to be hoped that he will be permitted to do considerable work among his countrymen.

Samuel E. Flannigan, attorney at law, McLeansboro, Illinois, is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of Joseph Chambers, formerly resident at Burlington, Boone county, Kentucky. It will be of interest for him, or his relatives, to correspond with attorney Flannigan. Anyone reading this who knows anything of the man inquired after, please write at once, address as above.

Bro. William Taylor, Drain, Oregon, writes, suggesting that if the ministry in Oregon would write of their whereabouts the scattered Saints, of which he is one, could correspond with them to their mutual advantage and the good of the cause. He offers the hospitalities of his home to such as can visit that locality.

Bro. John Smith reports a successful series of meetings in the middle of June, at Plattsmouth, Missouri, in which he was assisted by Brn. Dice and Householder. Two were baptized and others favorably impressed in behalf of the work.

Letters are received from Brn. F. J. Pierce, Maurine, Missouri; A. Williams, Argentine, Kansas; J. T. Ford, Ravenwood, Missouri; W. H. Hickman, Marshall, West Virginia; Ira A. Field, Dow City, Iowa; and Sr. Flora B. Ervin, Leach, Ohio; all crowded out of this issue.

Bro. J. W. Wight and family are at Lamoni locating a permanent home. They arrived from the Little Sioux and Galland's Grove districts on the 27th inst.

Bro. L. L. Wight was at Cleburne, Texas, June, 12, where he held meetings in the house and yard of Bro. D.

S. Riley, after being refused use of the Christian church. He was well received by the people, whom he commends to the ministry in Texas.

Bro. E. W. Nunley made a tour of Brazos and Robertson counties, Texas, during the months of May and June. He reports encouragingly from Cook's Point, the 20th inst. Local ministers were actively supporting the efforts of the general ministry.

CORRECTION.—In HERALD for June 13, 1894, page 375, the dream of Bro. I. N. W. Cooper should read as follows: "And upon her forehead was stamped in beautiful letters the word 'Prayer,' with beautiful little children, all kneeling," etc.

Bro. C. W. Prettyman, formerly of Indiana, is located at Berwyn, Nebraska, where he is hoisting the gospel standard every Lord's Day. He would like to hear from the missionary in charge, also from conference appointees in that field.

Sr. Mollie Prettyman reports a good conference of the Northern Indiana district at Knox three weeks ago. The work done last winter by Brn. L. Scott and W. J. Smith continues to tell for the good of the cause.

"Sunday school convention of the Spring River, Kansas, district will convene at Sherwin Junction, Kansas, July 13. All come who can and aid in the Sunday school work. Mirtie Jones, Secretary." The above was too late for regular insertion.

LAMONI.

The skies are bright o'er Lamoni;
All nature is fair,
Sweet peace is there;
The peace of God and Moroni.

The fields are green at Lamoni;
The birds warble song
All the day long;
Sweet songs of the angel Moroni.

There's hearts ease and rest at Lamoni;
And surcease from sorrow
To-day and to-morrow;
Such hope gave the angel Moroni.

True words are taught at Lamoni;
God, Spirit, and Son,
The omnific One;
As given by Christ and Moroni.

May success crown the work at Lamoni;
The success of the just
Who in God put their trust,
And the blessings of Christ and Moroni.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Then act to-day, O trembling, doubting one,
The kindly deed, and duty, nearest thee,
Through pain or loss; fearless of setting sun,
Or starless night falling along thy sea;
And know one hand that lifts the veil
Of Morn; and guides thy keel, and sail:
Or, on the shore, spreads greenest fields where spring
Renews the soul—brings back thy faith and peace,
And flowers all—and truer loves that sing
Some songs which never cease—
But murmur on in human hearts made good
By love and holy duty understood."

SYNOPSIS OF READING, CHAPTER FIFTEEN,
HINTS ON CHILD-TRAINING.

TRAINING CHILDREN TO SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

HOW TO train a child to wise and faithful Sabbath observance is a question that puzzles many a Christian parent. The difficulty is not so much in securing the observance as in deciding what is the proper observance of the day for a child. If it were simply a question of compelling a child to observe certain rigid rules, any able-bodied and determined parent could compass the difficulties in the case. But when it is a question of bringing the child to enjoy the loving service of God on God's peculiar day, it requires other agencies than sternness and punishment to bring about the desired effect.

One must have a right apprehension of what is a wise and proper observance of the Sabbath before they can train children to such an observance. No service can be acceptable to God which is not prompted by love. Slavish, reluctant observance of God's commands is sure to lack his approval. The Sabbath is a sign of the loving covenant between God and his people. Accordingly, it is to be remembered and counted holy. One day in seven is to be given up to loving thoughts of God, to a loving rest from one's own work and pleasure, and to a loving part in the worship of God. On that day the thought of God's people should be:—

"This is the day which the Lord hath made;
We will rejoice and be glad in it."

How to train children to a joyous observance of the Sabbath is a weightier question with thoughtful Christian parents than how to make them conform to traditional ideas of what is proper for the day. Utter disregard of the Sabbath in the training of children is wrong, but it is even worse to cause them to count Sunday a day of irksome constraint instead of a delight.

As a child's occupation differs from that of his parents on other days, so it ought on the Lord's day. It would seem cruel to insist that on this day alone a child should be forced to do the same things that his parents do, thus making it above all others a day of toil and discomfort to him. For parent and child alike the day should be one of rest and worship; but simple inaction is not rest; nor is hard Bible study or mere sitting still in church time worship. Rest comes by change of occupation, and worship is in turning the thoughts God-ward. How to help children to refreshing rest and joyous worship is the practical matter at issue.

A child can be trained to loving, reverent Sabbath keeping, and such training ought to begin very early and last through all the years of childhood. Long before a child can understand why the Sabbath is to be observed, he can and ought to be trained to perceive that it is different from other days of the week, its standard higher, its spirit more joyous, its tone quieter, and its atmosphere more reverent. Even some dumb animals learn to prize some of the enjoyments of the Sabbath, and a baby is not less able than they to learn concerning it; but in the case of either the infant or the brute all depends upon those having it in training.

This training is commonly not commenced in time. If the first attempt to show him that he ought to recognize a difference between the Lord's day and other days be made after several months or even years of his life have passed, he is fixed in habits which hinder him doing so, and the new call comes as an unpleasant one. A child's earliest consciousness of life should associate greater light and joy and peace with this day that is above other days, and his earliest habits should be such as to make this distinction. The child may be differently washed or dressed or cared for on that day. Omit some more disagreeable detail of his day's management; sing a sweeter song in his hearing; show him brighter things; grant some special favor which will connect a joy with that day that does not belong to the others. Keep a different rattle or toy to amuse him with on Sunday. Cause him by one means or another to look upon the Lord's day as his brightest memory and his fondest anticipation.

Loving Christian parents mark the Christmas anniversary as well as their children's birthdays with tokens intended as fresh reminders of their love which is unailing throughout the year. So on each Lord's day they ought to seek to make prominent the love of God which is the same at all times; and to aid in making this a better and brighter day than others, the best delights of the week may be saved until this time.

As a child's best clothing is usually kept for Sunday wear, it might be well also to keep the best toys, books, pictures, the best enjoyments for this day.

In every Christian home there ought to be a place reserved for the keeping of certain treasures which may be seen and used only on the Lord's day. Here may be stored bright-colored pictures of Bible scenes, Sunday school papers, books of attractive stories suited especially for Sabbath reading, dissected maps of Bible lands, dissected pages of Bible texts, models of the tabernacle or of Noah's ark and its inmates. The use of these things should be associated inseparably in the children's minds with the Lord's day and its privileges, thus helping to make the day a delight, as a day of God's choicest gifts to those whom God loves and who love him. By such means the very recreation of the children may be to them as truly a means of rest and worship as are Bible study or Sunday school teaching to the parents.

Even for the youngest children there may be a touch of Sabbath enjoyment in a piece of cake or candy of a sort allowed them at no other time.

If Sunday is made a day of peculiar delight to children, with the understanding that it is because it is the Lord's day, there is a gain to them. But if their impressions concerning the day are that it is a day of harsh prohibitions of dreariness and discomfort, they thus far dishonor the day and Him whose day it is; and of course the parents are responsible.

As children grow older and can comprehend more of the spiritual good of the Sabbath, they need more help—not less—from their parents that they may use the day wisely and gain its greatest advantages. The exercises at the hour of family worship should be ampler and more varied than on any other day. Some time during the day the Sunday school lesson for the week should be studied by parents and children together. In some homes the children have a Sunday school of their own, led by father or mother, or older brother or sister, with the help of maps, blackboard, or slates. In other homes the father leads a children's service of worship and reads one of the published sermons for children. In following either of these plans each child should take a part, not only in the singing and reading, but in asking and answering questions.

Aside from such exercises one child can show and explain a book of Bible pictures to younger children; one group of children can be arranging alphabetically, on slates or on paper, all the names of places or persons found in the late Sunday school lessons, while others are studying out Bible puzzles or curious Bible questions, which are so freely published. Methods should be varied from week to week.

Naturally more time will be given on the Lord's day than on any other to singing attractive songs of joy and praise. And parents ought to find time on Sundays to read aloud, or tell to their children, stories suited to their needs as well as to have familiar talks with them. For this mode of training there can be no satisfactory substitute. Of course it takes time and it calls for courage, high resolve, selfdenial, and faith. But it is worth more than all it costs.

When a child is old enough to have an intelligent part in Sunday school exercises, they should be made to him a means of sacred enjoyment. Later, when he can attend the general church service without undue weariness, his parents should make that a place of gladness to him whenever he is present there. Not wearisomeness but rest, not deepened shadow but clearer sunlight is fitting to the holiest services of the Lord's day. A reverent spirit ought to be carried throughout the entire day, but parents should understand that true reverence is better shown in gladness than in gloom. When children count the Lord's day a dismal one, parents have failed to train them to hallow the day as being sacred to the love of their Father in heaven.

One little fellow to whom the day had been made one of brightness and cheer, on hearing a companion say on Sunday that he wished that it was already Monday, said, "Why! don't you like Sunday? I like it best of all the days." And so it ought to be with every child in a Christian home. The difference is not in the children but in the training when in one home the Sabbath is welcomed and in another dreaded. All children ought to be trained to find Sunday a day of delight in the Lord's service.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JULY.

PETITION.

- "More holiness give me,
More sweetness within,
More patience in suffering,
More sorrow for sin;
More faith in my Savior,
More sense of his care;
More joy in his service.
More purpose in prayer.
- "More purity give me,
More strength to o'ercome;
More freedom from earth-stains,
More longing for home,
More fit for the kingdom,
More used would I be:
More blessed and holy,
More, Savior, like thee."

Thursday, July 5.—The church, its ministry, and membership. That righteousness, love, and zeal in the work and spread of the gospel may increase and to this end the Saints with one heart and mind bring their tithes and offerings into the Lord's storehouse. That God will continue to reveal his mind to his servants in the direction of the affairs of the church.

Memory Verses.—Romans 15: 5-7.

Thursday, July 12.—Our families. Prayer for the members of our families by name, and for the families of each other and those of the ministry. For the youth of the church in general.

Memory Verses.—2 Corinthians 6: 14, 17, 18.

Thursday, July 19.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses.—2 Corinthians 9: 6, 7.

Thursday, July 26.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verses.—Psalm 67: 3, 4.

DIAMOND, Ohio, June 20.

Editors Herald:—We are holding forth in the rink at this place every evening. Came here from Conneautville, Pennsylvania, via Meadville, last Saturday, Bro. Garrett accompanying us as far as Warren, Ohio, where he left me: he going to fill his Sunday appointment at the latter place.

The two-days' meeting at Conneautville, June 9 and 10 was fairly attended and the meeting in the grove fairly successful, Brn. Garrett, Powell, and the writer being the speakers. The interest following during the preaching at the Saints' chapel last week was considered remarkable, and very gratifying, the congregation and interest increasing every night, although the season was very busy with farmers until Friday, when previous appointment made for us here brought the meeting then to a close, Bro. Powell having gone upon Wednesday to fill appointments at Tracy and to look after the two-days' meeting appointed for last Saturday and Sunday at that place. We regretted having to come away, but it may be all right.

Last Saturday evening through prior arrangement and kindness of friends we were permitted the use of the new Disciple church in this place. We met a good audience and was much blessed in the presentation of as much of "the word" as wisdom made allowable. Sunday morning we were invited by the pastor, Rev. White, to again occupy the stand, which we did and with good help from him who has promised and whose word is our strength. In the evening was "children's day." Bro. Stewart, who with Sr. Stewart is here from Youngstown, sought the use of the church for us to speak in this week, but it was refused after consultation with the directors. I asked the pastor afterward whether or no their refusal was based upon anything that was said in the preaching. He said, "O no."

He indorsed our preaching, but the directors didn't think it best—no one to take care of house, etc., and the church that's built upon the Bible, "and the Bible alone," finds it hard work to stand there sometimes when the light is turned on. We were not turned out, however, for what we did say so much as for what it was "understood" we "might," or "were going to say."

You see, the Kelley brethren and others of the ministry have been here in the past and have frightened them, I'm afraid; so I didn't hold myself responsible. Some of the members of that church, and of our friends felt indignant and secured the rink and announced our preaching there, and somehow I felt glad and the air seemed a little freer and farther away from the Pope, and nearer the rustle of the grand old American flag. We have held forth since to larger audiences and with good liberty and interest.

We are feeling well in spirit, though depressed somewhat bodily, but are glad to be able to testify to the truth of the promises made to the elders during the General Conference. There is no doubt about the divinity of the work or of the certainty of spiritual manifestation and supernatural assistance to the faithful defender of it.

In the one hope, Yours,

M. H. BOND.

WIRT, Ind., June 22.

Editors Herald:—Our conference that convened last Saturday morning at Union Chapel, and closed Sunday night, was one long to be remembered on account of the unity, peace, and love thereof. The holy brethren came in hope, and feasted on food divine while here, and have gone forth strengthened and rejoicing. There was not an unwise move, a knock, nor a jar; but all bent their mental energies in sanctified channels of thought and action. Such patience and forethought; tender care and kind consideration, were pleasing and refreshing to behold. Bro. L. F. Daniel was duly ordained to the seventy, and he baptized a young man at the Manville branch on the 18th inst., and some are to unite here Sunday; that is, one sure and perhaps more. Hot, long, busy days with cultivating and harvesting.

M. T. SHORT.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 20.

Editors Herald:—Gladly I greet you this morning, feeling in my heart to praise Jehovah for his precious remembrance of the children of men in the latter days. If I had my choice I could not be suited better as to the age in which to live, this being the most momentous and interesting of all.

As a branch we are making advancement in the work and trying to keep abreast with the church in its onward march. We have been made to realize the existence of a strong and cunning adversary, yet by very faithful work of priest, teacher, and deacon, he has been held in check and is now being closely cornered, and we hope will soon be "cast out." A more diligent watch could not well have been had over a flock than over this one though all may not have known it. About seventeen have been added to our number in the last quarter. Our quarterly conference convenes on Saturday next at Stewartville. A large delegation is expected. Elder D. F. Stout, of Rockville, Utah is with us en route to Kansas City and vicinity. He represents the Utah Church, and is the guest of Bro. E. T. Dobson, who is treating him with all the kindness possible. We invited him to remain over and occupy our church on Thursday night, but his previous arrangements seemed to forbid. He is a young man of gentlemanly appearance, the first we ever saw of that people.

Sr. Bronson still lingers, a marvel of physical endurance. Bro. William Hawkins is able to be up and is at work on his invention with full confidence of success. If success comes to him it will be the marvel of the world—perpetual motion.

With heart full of encouragement and mind of determination I still press onward and desire so to do to the end. May God bless the Herald and its thousands of readers.

J. M. TERRY.

BANDERA, Texas, June 19.

Editors Herald:—Since coming into this Southwestern district I am glad to report that notwithstanding the work had gone down some for the want of proper labor, it is looking up. Our district conference held at Crockett, Bandera county, was a success. Bro. J. A. Currie, Sr., and I continued the meetings over another week, and I had the pleasure of baptizing nine more into the kingdom, all grown people and some of them heads of families.

The Saints are greatly renewed and many friends made to the cause in that section of country. I go from here to Rossville, Atascosa county, Texas, to hold a week's meeting. Bro. O. D. Johnson, J. A. Currie, Sr., and W. H. Davenport are doing what they can and I learn that Bro. L. L. Wight will soon be on the ground. Hoping to see truth triumph, I am,

Yours in bonds,
T. J. SHEPPARD.

MALHEUR, Ore., June 14.

Editors Herald:—I take the pleasure to inform you that I am trying to do what I can for the advancement of the cause we love. I have distributed reading matter and done some fireside preaching and the result is a number are interested and some are near the kingdom; and I would like to have the address of the elders who are laboring in this State; or to any of the traveling brethren who may be near enough to answer a call in behalf of honest hearts, a home will be tendered, and we will do all we can in helping to bear traveling expenses. Some not of our faith are willing to put their hands in their purses.

We live ten miles in the mountains. Anyone coming should write one week before starting, and we will meet him at the stage station. Take rail to Hunting, Oregon, then stage to Malheur. I feel to rejoice in this grand work and ever pray for its progress. I am thankful for the light of the gospel with the many blessings which I have been blessed with. And my heart is made to sing psalms when I feel that there are bright prospects in the future of a branch being raised up here, for I have often felt my lonely lot a great trial, being the only one of my faith here. There are two families here who in former days belonged to the Utah Church. A hall will be at the service of a speaker, also a team; and I trust some one will answer this call ere the summer is over. We have short seasons of warm weather. I remain ever firm in the work,

Your sister,

ELIZABETH WEISE.

WEBB CITY, Mo., June 23.

Editors Herald:—Inclosed find a note to Bro. R. Etzenhouser, which you are requested to publish. It is in part an answer to his recent letter correcting Voice of Warning, page 82. I am inclined to still think that the Voice of Warning is right, and submit this bit of proof in its defense.

All going well here. Good interest generally, and the work moving. My health seems to be fully restored. In bonds,

C. R. DUNCAN.

Bro. R. Etzenhouser:—If you will examine the American Cyclopaedia, Vol. 11, p. 700, Art. "Mohegans," you will find that there was a part of the Mohegan Indian tribe that was called the "Stockbridge" tribe. They resided at Stockbridge, Massachusetts, and were few in number.

There was also a part of the Mohegan tribe that was called the Brotherton tribe. This division existed for several years before the writing of the Voice of Warning and the name "Stockbridge Indians" was commonly applied to that part of the original Mohegan tribe. As that name was then in common use, we see no reason why the Voice of Warning should be condemned for such use of the word. This tribe was called the Housatonic or Stockbridge tribe, and is so referred to in the above-named work. (See Vol. 15, p. 387, Art. Stockbridge.)

Again in Vol. 12, p. 630, same work, the Brotherton and Stockbridge tribes are recognized in a treaty between the United States Government and the Oneida tribe.

With reference to this quotation on page 82 of the Voice of Warning containing this reference to the Stockbridge tribe, it would be well to give Mr. Boudinot's work a thorough perusal before reaching the conclusion that it is not there. A hasty examination might not be quite satisfactory. If you have the book in your possession, please examine further and report result.

Respectfully,

C. R. DUNCAN.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., June 21.

Editors Herald:—Our conference for the Southern district of Nebraska convened with the Palmyra branch June 17 and 18. We had but a small representation of Saints on account of the rains, but had a good turnout of outsiders. The house could not accommodate all who came; a good spirit prevailed throughout. Several citizens attended who had never before been present at a meeting of the Saints. The meeting of the Sunday school association on Saturday evening of the 16th was a decided success. I think we have for superintendent of the association "the right man in the right place," M. J. Schafer; and though young in the work, he preached an excellent discourse on the evening of the 17th. J. W. Waldsmith preached in the morning and Joshua Armstrong in the afternoon.

The outlook in this district seems to be encouraging; there are a good many investigating and some obeying the gospel truth. The conference adjourned to convene with Nebraska City branch, October 14 and 15, and the Sunday school on Saturday the 13th.

Respectfully,

J. W. WALDSMITH.

PEA RIDGE, Mo., June 7.

Editors Herald:—The Saints of this place have been cheered by the presence of Elder Macrae among them. He preached at Schaffer, Plew, and Phelps, where he baptized some. In justice to this elder I will state that never did soldier on the field of Marathon do duty more faithfully than did he while in this, his late mission field. He charged right into the enemy's works, dismantling his fortifications and levelling them with the dust; and although the enemy raved and threatened his life; he went straight forward in the line of duty with that brave and dignified bearing that distinguishes the true soldier. Missouri is sending out into the field her noblest sons to do battle for the truth. Elder Macrae goes into his new field—an unbroken one—leaving the seed so faithfully sown for others to water. May God speed the gospel plow in his hand while engaged in the work of breaking up the fallow.

The life of a traveling elder is not a pleasant one. He starts out without purse or scrip, with barely sufficient to pay his traveling expenses. At every turn he makes he is confronted by a wall of prejudice, which he must batter down before the rays of gospel light can penetrate the surrounding darkness. He has different nationalities to deal with, whose manners, habits, and preconceived ideas are foreign to his own; and these things combined cause a feeling of homesickness to come over him; then, too, there may not be any of his faith living within a day's travel of his appointment, and if no one invites him home he must travel on, perhaps hungry, tired, and wearied, until in a distance a clearing points to the smoke from a friendly roof where he may find a hospitable shelter. He is a target for the missiles of the enemy, and for this cause he lives within an atmosphere of prayer, he cannot, he dare not live outside. No matter how pure his life may be, his motives are impugned and he is subjected to the calumny of an infuriated foe, who deals out expressions of hatred to him on every hand, thus fulfilling the words of the Master, "Ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake." Then let us extend to him our heartfelt sympathy, and if within our province, let it be substantially.

We who remain at home know nothing of the hardships endured by those who go out to erect the trident of the cross in the wilds of the West, in distant lands, and in the islands of the sea. We can, however, watch the tide of battle as it moves and surges; can view the battle field and hear the shouts from the victors as they display trophy after trophy; can gaze upon the standard bearers of Christ as they hold aloft the banner of truth; and we say, Let the battle rage until the last enemy's conquered, the last victory won; then we will hail our great Commander as he makes his triumphal entry into his kingdom, while the great arch above us is spanned by the shining retinue that accompanies him.

E. B. FARRAR.

LAMONI, Iowa, June 22.

Editors Herald:—Allow me space to set some right that may read Bro. Nutt's description of Douglas county, Missouri. A person living in Iowa, or Illinois, or Nebraska, or similar States where there is no rock or stone in the soil to speak of, will find Bro. Nutt's statement quite misleading; not saying or even thinking that he has written anything but what he thinks is correct. He states that the land is very good. I suppose he means the dirt. What little there is, of course, has to be very good to produce anything, as there is considerable more bulk of stone in and on the first six inches of the surface of the ground than dirt, and from appearances as you go deeper the stone increases.

I was at Bro. Nutt's place May 3, 1894. I saw some wheat that looked well and some that did not, and there was plenty of rain. I do not think a binder could be used in that part of the country on account of the stone. Neither do I think a mowing machine could be used to cut grass. The people did not claim they could plow more than a half acre in a day with a span of horses, the ground being so full of stone, with the exception of some small patches on the high ground and the small bottoms. The bottoms along the streams are quite narrow and the most of them overflow in time of high water; and the bottom land is not clear of stone, being a mixture of gravel and dirt; but I think the bottom land will produce well where it does not wash out.

My diary says: "We left Vera Cruz at half past six in the morning over the flint hills for Bro. Nutt's store, and after traveling about two hours over as rough and stony a country as I ever traveled over we arrived at the store and found him in front of it. After introducing ourselves we chatted awhile with him and a brother that came there that lived near by. They urged us to stay a few days with them, but we declined."

Bro. Nutt says they have no mud if it rains for a week. The reason is, there is nothing to make mud of—the roads are very stony and rocky. He says raw land is worth from two to three dollars per acre. Some of it might be worth that amount, but it will take a man twenty days to get the timber off an acre and it is worth nothing when it is off. Ties at Mansfield are worth only twenty cents each for the best of white oak, and it would take a day to haul a load there from Bro. Nutt's place, and then the hills are so bad and steep that it would require a good team to haul ten ties at a load. All horses have to be shod in that country to do any kind of work, even to plowing corn. He says they have good out-range for stock. Well there is lots of ground lying out, but one acre of wild prairie in Iowa would produce as much feed as forty or fifty acres of the best land I saw lying out in Douglas county.

Of course an allowance should be made for Bro. Nutt, as I do not think he intends to mislead anyone; but I do not think he is acquainted with the land north of the Missouri River or north of the Ohio River. As for fruit, the land one hundred miles north showed better appearances for fruit than Douglas county did, but if there was an abundance of fruit ten miles from a railroad I don't think it could be got to market in shape to bring anything, except apples, or by drying it. One can buy improved land cheaper than to put the improvements on. I was offered one hundred and sixty acres of land for one hundred and sixty dollars, within five miles of the county seat of Douglas county and there was a hewed log house on it, log stable, five acres cleared and fenced, but not broken; and the land lay well, but was covered with stone, and stone apparently all the way down. To plow the five acres it would take a man and team twelve or fourteen days hard work, as it would have to be plowed with a bull tongue plow. It has a narrow shovel four inches wide and about ten or twelve inches long fitted to a frame similar to the old-fashioned shovel plow we used to plow corn with, only a great deal stronger, and some have a tongue to them. They hitch a span of horses and the man holds the plow as well as he can while it jumps around the stone and tears the roots apart. No sharp tool can be used in the ground, not for one minute. The country is healthy; water of the best; plenty of wood. Winters I think would be mild, but four or five times as much work to raise a bushel of corn as in Iowa, except on some small bottoms.

Yours in gospel bonds,

G. E. REYNER.

EAST PHARSALIA, N. Y., June 18.

Editors Herald:—Several years ago the Voice of Warning fell into the hands of George L. Rathbun of this place, and in reading it he was remarkably impressed with the truths it contained, and evidence was given him, that at some day an ingathering of the faithful would be realized at this point. The books of the church were sent for, also several copies of Zion's Ensign which were distributed among the people, and the doctrine of the church advocated and defended by the above-named brother, together with E. W. Griswold, who having received of the Spirit of truth, also advocated and defended the same. Credit is due these faithful workers for their persistent efforts to convey the truths of heaven to their neighbors and friends, considering the elements of opposition with which they had to contend, and yet having never seen a representative of this (to them) new faith. Through the missionary in charge we were sent here the second of June. Have held about nine meetings, baptized and confirmed five, and believe others are nearly ready for the water. Those baptized, I am glad to say, command the esteem and respect of all acquainted with them; and for honesty, industry, and piety are unexcelled.

This is a thickly settled country of intelligent, well to do people, and we believe this little band of faithful workers will form a nucleus for the ingathering of many souls; and we thus commend them to the fellowship of the church and the traveling ministry. This is a little town of about two hundred inhabitants, located ten miles northwest of Norwich, the nearest railroad station on the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad, is reached via Binghamton, New York on the south, or Utica on the north. We expect to leave here to-morrow for New York City, believing that we have done all that wisdom demands of us here for the present.

Yours,

HENRY C. SMITH.

APPLEDORE, Ont., June 21.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Blair and I came here last night from Chatham. We expect to hold two meetings here, then go to Blenheim for Sunday the 24th, and will remain there until the 27th, then on to London and to Garafraxa for the conference of the London district on the 30th. We had a good conference at Wallaceburg. The Spirit of the Lord was enjoyed by his Saints and love and union prevailed. The preaching was good, being done by Brn. J. Grant, of Michigan, W. W. Blair and R. C. Evans, of London, and the writer. Four were baptized, and Bro. E. De Long was to remain and continue meetings this week and over next Sunday. There were others near the door of the church, and I hope will obey before Bro. De Long leaves. Much prejudice has been removed and the citizens used the Saints well. Mr. Sommers, a hotel keeper, sent an invitation for the elders to come and stop at his place. Brn. Blair, Evans, and I went and remained all night, and in the morning we expected to go and get breakfast with the Saints as they had prepared for all, but Mr. Sommers said, "No, gentlemen; you will take breakfast with me." He said to me, "I have kept hotel for a number of years and I never charged a minister for a night's lodging and his meals, and I do not think I ever lost anything by it." And he said to Bro. Evans and I, "Elders, I want you to remember, that it is a standing invitation to come and stop with me whenever you are in town." Quite a change in five years! When Bro. J. H. Tyrrell was living here, and commenced to hold meetings there was strong talk of driving him out of town, but he held the fort and the Lord has raised up many friends, and several of the citizens helped the Saints to prepare for the conference; and they turned out well to the preaching meetings. If the Saints will live and serve the Lord and seek to live at peace with all, the day of persecution will be past. May the Lord help them to do so.

Bro. Blair seems to be enjoying himself very well. He and I have just been out into a strawberry patch and ate until they did not taste good. It has been very warm, but some cooler to-day.

Mr. Editor, on reading the minutes of our General Conference, just received, I have felt it a duty I owe to all concerned, to place my testimony on record in respect to the revelation of April 15, 1894. When a copy of the revelation was placed in my hands, for examination, I went to my room (at Bro. John Traxler's where I was stopping), and I locked the door of my room and bowed before the Lord and sought earnestly for a testimony from the Lord as to the truthfulness of the revelation; and the Spirit of the Lord rested upon me, and I received as great a testimony of its truthfulness as I have ever received concerning the truthfulness of the latter-day work, (except one which I received shortly after I came into the church). Although the revelation is placed on probation for one year, it will live: "The grass withereth, and the flower fadeth, but the word of the Lord liveth and abideth forever," and will help to constitute the law of the Lord, to judge the Saints and the world by. Amen.

The frost has done some damage in this country, but the crops are looking well, with a fair prospect for fruit. Reports speak well for the progress of gospel work in the mission. May God bless the laborers in his harvest field is the desire of your fellow-laborer in the great conflict.

Yours in bonds,

J. H. LAKE.

CLAYTON, Ill., June 23.

Editors Herald:—The time since General Conference has been so crowded with work and duties that while I have frequently thought I would write, I have kept putting it off for a more convenient season, until I am fearful I shall intrude too much matter for your space.

After conference I began labors at Keb, Iowa, and had good interest. Baptized and confirmed four, and married one couple, the latter not members of our church. At this place I was greatly assisted by the exceeding liberality of the Saints. The coal strike came on and excitement consequent ran so high as to absorb attention. An affliction coming on the elder in the nature of erysipelas, a forced cessation of continuous work was had, so I went home, hoping that a few days complete quiet by the Lord's blessing would relieve the severity of this affliction that is chronic and a "thorn in the flesh." But I was allowed but a short respite; was summoned by letter to Burlington to unite in marriage Bro. Charles Bullard of South Omaha to Sr. Ruth Johnson of West Burlington. This happy event occurred May 21 at the home of Bro. Fred Johnson, where a splendid supper and pleasant evening was had by the guests.

Previous to and succeeding this I assisted Bro. J. C. Crabb in a series of meetings in Burlington, but affliction growing worse all the time, I was compelled to go home and go to bed where I remained almost continuously until May 26, when previous appointment compelled in spite of distress at the slightest exertion, to go to Bentonsport to preach a memorial sermon for the G. A. R. Post of that place in the Presbyterian church, and in the evening by solicitation of Sr. Fannie Seward and Bro. John, whose guests we were, had permission to preach a gospel sermon at the same place. Had good liberty, and hope we "killed much" of that uncertain quantity, "prejudice." I returned home and went to bed again and remained until the 30th, when I compelled myself to go to the Grove and make the Decoration Day speech for the Farmington Post, and then went into retirement again, where I remained until time to go to conference at Burnside, where if it had not been for bodily pain would have had a most enjoyable time. As it was, we could witness the happiness of others, and endure in silence and with as much patience as practical our own suffering.

Here we had the pleasure of meeting and greeting Bro. George H. Hilliard along with our other helper, Bro. J. C. Crabb, and were all greatly edified and strengthened by their timely subjects and sermons. Here I assumed the role of general manager and advance agent for Bro. Hilliard, and made arrangements after consultation, for meetings at Keokuk. After speaking there I left Brn. Crabb and Hilliard to continue the meetings, and I went to Vincennes and Argyle and made arrangements and gave notice of meetings. We had but one meeting at Argyle, as the church was otherwise occupied. At Vincennes we used the schoolhouse first night and on the last occupied the new Union church, now just seated, and Bro. George H. has the honor of being the first to lift a voice in preaching in that house. Here he met and visited several relatives heretofore unknown to him; namely, the families of Mr. Andrew Wylie and Byron Scovena, where we found a welcome and plenty of good things to eat, and an invitation to come again; and when we left Mr. Wylie's, a large, nicely dressed fish fresh from the Des Moines River. After meeting Saturday night we went by train to Farmington and had the fish for breakfast. At eleven o'clock Bro. Hilliard delivered a discourse that was of unusual interest. (But then I don't need to commend his sermons; they are all able to speak for themselves.) We continued here until Wednesday night inclusive.

On Thursday he bade us farewell and started for Nodaway district. In the meantime I had made appointments for meetings at Keosauqua, Iowa, where Bro. Brown made me welcome. I arrived there and learned I had been made chaplain of the day for a meeting of Ohio Settlers of Van Buren county, so assisted in the exercises of the day consisting of speeches, picnic dinner, and speeches again, at the courthouse park. I took the opportunity to give notice of meeting in the park for Sunday and at the G. A. R. hall at night during the week. We continued here with good interest until the 21st inst., when we received a telegram as follows: "Emerson Brown: Send Bro. McKiernan at once, I am sick." Signed, J. C. Crabb. So we hastened here on first train that made connection, having to refuse a request to assist in dedication of the new Baptist church at Farmington and preach the funeral of Mrs.

Clara Pitman's child, regretting the latter very much.

Arriving here I found Bro. Crabb better, but with appointments on hand. So I took the stand in the park here last night and spoke to a good audience and together we will continue, "the Lord willing."

We have realized in a marked degree the fulfillment of the promise made at the General Conference; and so far as appearances go to show, can make a better report for the past two months' labors than for all of last year's toil. Thanking all who have so kindly ministered to our necessities, we shall continue to pray for the prosperity of the gospel cause.

Your brother in Christ,

JAMES MCKIERNAN,

Box 225, Farmington, Iowa.

P. S.—All in the String Prairie and Nauvoo district desiring preaching will receive prompt attention if they will write to the above address.

FREMONT, Neb., June 19.

Editors Herald:—The work in Eastern Nebraska is progressing as well as can reasonably be expected with the limited number of laborers we have. Bro. Whitman baptized four a week ago. He has also had a round with a Brighamite elder of late, in which he feels sure that said Brighamite came out second best. A branch was organized at Blair on the evening of the 15th by Bro. James Caffall, assisted by G. M. L. Whitman and the writer. We are sorry to have to say good-bye to so sturdy a soldier of the cross as Bro. Caffall, and especially as we need the services of such able men very badly at this time.

Your brother in Christ,

C. H. PORTER.

ROCKLAND, Maine, June 20.

Editors Herald:—I am holding forth each evening and twice on Sundays in Armory Hall to the few that come out. I attended the conference at Bray's Mountain on the 16th and 17th. We had a good time. On Sunday I baptized six. I will try and hold the fort and keep my powder dry.

Yours very truly,

J. C. FOSS.

GARDEN GROVE, Cal., June 20.

Editors Herald:—Since my report to General Conference, I have labored as circumstances permitted in Los Angeles and Newport branches; also made a four week's trip into San Diego county, preaching in three new places; also twice in Fallbrook, where Bro. and Sr. H. B. Root, Bro. A. J. Clark, and Bro. and Sr. Frank Bell, late of Lamoni branch, reside. These kind Saints all gave me a hearty welcome and are unsparing in their efforts to open up the work in their vicinity. I find some who seem willing to hear, and I think with persistent labor a good work can be done in that county. The Saints are looking forward with joyful anticipation to our reunion of Southern California district to convene at Downey, California, July 13. Able speakers are expected and a profitable time is looked for.

Altogether I think the work is onward and improving in these parts. The missionaries are all in their field, trying to reach new places with the gospel message; and while many are indifferent and hard to reach, yet the Lord is blessing his faithful ministers and Saints. May the good work prosper.

Your brother,
W. P. PICKERING.

MORGANVILLE, Kan., June 21.

Editors Herald:—I am at present preaching in a schoolhouse two miles south of Morganville. Will preach in Morganville next week. Congregations small. I came from Hollis on the 18th. Preached a week at that place and baptized two, leaving others investigating. There have been twenty-two baptized since I left Blue Rapids, May 22. Bro. Resch five miles southeast of Minneapolis, baptized nineteen; thirteen on Sunday the 27th and six more on Monday June 4, making nineteen, and I have baptized three.

I had Bro. R. W. Davis with me two weeks. He has gone into Rooks county to labor. I think there will be a good work done in Northwestern Kansas this year. To this end I shall labor. In bonds,

R. L. WARE.

LETTER FROM ELDER C. R. DUNCAN.

EDITORS HERALD:—It has been almost a year since I last wrote for publication in your columns. It is not because I am "dead in the shell" or asleep as to the interest of the great cause of truth. Poor health caused me to do very little gospel work from the 1st of September till the 1st of April, during which time I suffered a great amount with lung troubles. At times the chances seemed to be very much against me. Many fervent prayers went up to the throne of grace in my behalf, and when courage had almost failed me and I began to feel that I could not endure the trial much longer, that welcome message from the courts on high came through the gift of tongues informing me that my work was not yet done, that my health should be restored, and that my voice should yet be heard in foreign lands in defense of the gospel. Since the 1st of April I have been actively engaged in the work, and I think I am completely restored to health and soundness. I wish to place this upon record as one more evidence that the God of heaven is in this work.

I have purchased a home at Lebeck, in Cedar county, Missouri, and have moved there. It is a healthful location, and I like the country very much. Although I was born and spent my boyhood days in the northern part of Missouri, I had never traveled over that part of the State south of the Missouri River. The country had been very much misrepresented to me.

I expected to find a good many malarial "frog ponds" on the lowlands, and that when I got into the hills it would be so rocky and rough that it would be almost impassable. I find in the first few counties south and east of Kansas City a country very beautiful to behold; rich in agricultural products, and fully up to the best country I have seen in Iowa, Illinois, or Ohio. As we come farther south the soil gets lighter, and as we approach the hills and Ozark Mountains the surface of the country gets rough. It is not one fourth part as rough as it had been represented to me.

Land is very cheap in many places and a pretty good price in others. For parties who are able to pay twenty to fifty dollars per acre they can get good land; equal to that which would cost more than double that price in some places. In the rough or hilly part of the State land can be had as low as five dollars, which is good enough for the writer and on which a good living can be made. Land can be purchased in quantities of any size from a town lot to as many acres as desired. This is a good country for fruit and vegetables, as good as any I know of. Missouri produces a great variety of soil, etc., and it is therefore necessary that those desiring to locate here should come and look. This is the proper way to do and then you won't be disappointed.

I dislike to give advice to others in matters of business, but it seems to me that some people make a great mistake in staying in towns and depending on their daily earnings for a living, when a home can be secured for a few dollars and a little rustling that would make them independent all their days. I have noticed that some people live in town and work for a salary and many times get fifty or seventy-five dollars per month. They rent a good large residence, buy costly furniture, and keep up with the modern city style. I have frequently seen enough money invested in fine furniture to buy forty acres of unimproved land in Southern Missouri. If the same parties would make such an investment and use more wisdom as to where the nickels and dimes which they earn each month are invested they could soon have buildings, etc., erected on said land and be ready to move in and occupy.

I have also noticed that some who are not able to own a home, who have no tithing to pay, who are not able to buy the church books, or take the church papers, are able to attend theaters, buy pianos, organs, folding bedsteads, etc., of the latest styles, and spend a quarter most any time for candy, bananas, etc. Well, I have seen the same parties lose their jobs and have to sell their extra furniture at a sacrifice to the secondhand dealer, move into more moderate quarters, and use the most rigid economy. Now why not practice a little economy while times were good and secure a little home, even if it be in the hills, where you can have your own living almost independent of the rest of the world? Strikes may come and go, but you have no coal to buy; in fact they affect you very little. I hope that these few lines may cause some one to think a little.

We live in perilous times. There is no prospect of an adjustment of the present labor troubles for years to come. I do not believe we have even had a taste of what is to come in that line, and those who are wise will take advantage of the opportunity to place themselves in a safe condition while they can. I have said more on this subject than I intended to say, so I will let this suffice.

I like this field of labor quite well. The gospel seed sown years ago by faithful brethren who labored here is now ripening into a grand harvest. I recently passed the place where our worthy brother M. T. Short was buried beneath the liquid wave and I felt that I was standing upon holy ground, though I did not take off my shoes. Brn. Macrae and Maloney have left a good record behind them and the work is in a very prosperous condition. We have had the pleasure of seeing six souls inducted into the kingdom during our short sojourn of one week at Webb City and vicinity. Bro. A. H. Mills of Independence is with me and is doing well for first experience.

In bonds, C. R. DUNCAN.

THE APOSTASY AND THE RESTORATION.—No. 4.

BY ELDER C. SCOTT.

ORGANIC FORM OF THE CHURCH.

THE organic form of the Church of God is set forth in the revelations of God as follows:—

And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.—Matt. 16: 18.

To build the church, then, was our Lord's mission into this world. And Jesus further said of his church, or kingdom:—

My kingdom is not of this world —John 18: 36.

By this we learn that the authority vested in the king and the chosen and appointed officers of this kingdom does not originate with men in "this world." Nor do its laws thus originate. The citizenship of the citizens of this kingdom originates not with or by man; but all the privileges, rights, and authority come from heaven—from God; hence it is called "the kingdom of heaven" or "of God."

(Matt. 18:3; John 3:5.) Jesus, having been commissioned with the necessary authority or priesthood to set up the kingdom, or begin that work; at the time of entering upon his public ministry (John 12:49; 3:16; Mark 1:14, 15), made this announcement:—

The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel.—Mark 1:15.

Using the material prepared by the instrumentality of John the Baptist, his divinely commissioned forerunner, Christ began to give the organic superstructure visible form by placing the foundational pillars on that wonderful substructure, the “rock”—“God manifest in the flesh,”—against which “the gates of hell” never were to, never can prevail. Jesus being the Apostle and High Priest of our profession (Heb. 3:1), began by selecting others to take part of the ministry and to act likewise in the apostolic office, bestowing on them the authority to so minister. But he did not undertake this infinitely important measure till after consulting his Father (Luke 6:12, 13):—

And he goeth up into a mountain, and calleth unto him whom he would: and they came unto him. And he ordained twelve, that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach.—Mark 3:13, 14.

Luke adds:—

Whom also he named apostles.—Chap. 6:13.

Thus was the organization of the church begun. It was not completed at once; it was a gradual development. Soon after this time the seventy apostolic assistants in the gospel ministry, the “seventy,” were chosen, and “sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come;” to whom he said, “Go your ways: behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves;” the burden of their theme to Israel being like that of Christ and the apostles, “The kingdom of God is at hand,” or, “is come nigh unto you,” (Luke 10:1, 3, 9.) What a wonderful message to bear to Israel, and to all nations! And as these representative ministers of the divine government went forth proclaiming the glad tidings, God’s power attended in signs and mighty wonders; for through them, in Jesus’ name, that is, by his authority, the sick were healed and devils were cast out:—

Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name.—Luke 10:17.—

And so mightily were God’s grace, love, and power to be displayed through the operations of his government in vindication of its claims and in the behalf of fallen man that Jesus foresaw that the kingdom of Satan would be thrown down; yes, God “spake in vision to his Holy One;”—

And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven.—Luke 10:18.

But they were to rejoice; not that devils, scorpions, serpents, diseases, and all the power of the enemy should be subject to them by virtue of the authority he gave them, “but rather rejoice because your names are written in heaven.”

Here is the church or kingdom of Christ, as it was represented to Israel: Jesus, the King, first or chief apostle, and High Priest, John the Baptist,—a “prophet,” and more than a prophet, he was, in fact, “the Elias,” the restorer of the gospel in that dispensation; he was an authorized, official prophet in the kingdom:—

And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways; to give knowledge of salvation unto his people by the remission of their sins.—Luke 1:76, 77.

What but the gospel of Christ will give to man “the knowledge of salvation” “by the remission of sins?”—

The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God; as it is written in the prophets, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee, . . . John did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins.—Mark 1:1-4.

“The word of God” authorized him. (Luke 3:2.) He came with “the counsel of God.” (Luke 7:30.) He was “in the kingdom of God.” (Luke 7:28.) Through his administration of the ordinances of the church men were inducted into God’s kingdom. (Luke 16:16); and then the Twelve Apostles, then the Seventy, three classes of the officers of the kingdom then all divinely authorized to administer the holy laws of life to man, “for the remission of” his “sins.” Hence it was that when the Pharisees demanded of Jesus “when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, . . . The kingdom of God is within you,”—in your midst already:—

The kingdom of God cometh not with observation.—Luke 17:20.

Not with a crowned conquering king, with carnally armed hosts:—

My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight.—John 18:36.

But like the gentle but increasing light of day dawn, as the fading shadows of morning recede before the increasing splendor of the rising day orb, so the coming of the reign of heaven has appeared, and is now offered to you, Israel. But their eyes they had closed, their ears were dull of hearing, for their hearts were gross, fleshly; and although the kingdom of God came to them, they received it not. As a nation they rejected it. Individually, a few from time to time received the light of God sent, and the organic development of the kingdom continued. So, to the “first apostles,” including “the Apostle and High Priest,” “secondly prophets,” and “thirdly teachers,” (1 Cor. 12:27, 28,) apostolic assistants or “seventies,” were added elders. (Acts 14:23.) Just to what extent organization had attained prior to the crucifixion of Jesus, the New Testament does not inform us, but subsequent scripture references disclose quite fully the extent and character of the organization of the church, as previously provided for in the divine constitution.

Local or branch organization was provided for as we learn from Matthew 18:15-18, and endowed with authority to deal with offenders, transgressors, and heretics. (See also 1 Cor. 5:4, 5; Titus 3:9, 10.)

In the organism of the church, official arbitration for moral wrongdoing is provided for, by that which is called by Jesus “the council” in Matthew 5:22; but the New Testament, so far as I am aware, does not define just the official gradation of the members of this body, nor all their duties; but it is evident from the designation “the council,” as given by Jesus, and the nature of such office, that it was a body to whom grave matters were referred for adjustment, and that its position was important in church organism. No doubt “the council” was included in the organic “helps,” and “governments,” which the Apostle Paul says “God hath set . . . in the church;” when he established it as it “pleased him.”

In Paul’s letter to the Ephesians, chapter four, he lays before us the seven great unities or one-ities that characterize the gospel faith: “There is one body, and one Spirit,” “one hope,” “one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all;” and gives us to understand that these unities are taught by the Spirit, are all “of the Spirit;” and, as if trying to convey to us the great truth that a right conception of the organism of “the one body” would necessarily carry with it proper conceptions of the other six, proceeds to set forth to quite an extent the official character of “the one body,” in its divine development, thus:—

And he [Christ] gave some, apostles; and some, [the gifts of] prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.—Eph. 4:11-13.

Thus the apostle sets forth that God gave to certain members of the church gifts of office in the body, and then endowed with divine “grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ;” and all this for the three general purposes of bringing all who become identified with “the one body;” into the one faith, and by the official “work of the ministry” to edify the body of Christ till the church attains “to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ;" and which, of course, can only be when all the saved attain to eternal life; all of which go to show how long God designed the kingdom, as he organized it, to remain. And further; the wise provisions thus ordained were designed that the children of the kingdom be henceforth no more "tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the slight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive."

Just here we may be pardoned for referring to an almost universal error now held in the popular religious world; it is this: That the classes of officers set in the church anciently, as here enumerated by the apostle, being extraordinary and supernaturally endowed, were temporary—not designed to continue with the church in succession down the ages; being the workmen by whom the church was to be brought into existence and established; and this being once accomplished, they were to cease forever, because no longer needed. Strange idea this to a Bible reader! It is here nevertheless. But is it not an assumption? Its origin must have been the fertile brain of some unauthorized, uninspired religious teacher. Surely it is not found in any revelation of God extant! If so, where? If the assumption were true, it would imply that those officers were not members of or parts of the great spiritual edifice any more than the architect's tools are parts of the house he builds. But the church is a living, progressive, and continually developing organism, like the human body, and God is the builder:—

Ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building.—1 Cor. 3: 9.

In whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.—Eph. 2: 21, 22.

God representatively by the Holy Spirit dwells in this spiritual temple, animating it, and actuating and directing its members—officers—in their office work in harmony with the divine law given for its wellbeing, as the intelligent spirit of man actuates the human body and enables its members to fulfill their various offices for the wellbeing, health, growth, and development of itself.

But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ. From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure [office] of every part [member and organ], maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love.—Eph. 4: 15, 16.

The general sentiment couched in these words of Paul, is in exact accord with his statement to the Corinthians:—

But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body as it hath pleased him.

And again:—

Now ye are the body of Christ and members in particular.

An what are the offices or official names of the particular members?

And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues.

The official members of the body of Christ, then, are as much integral parts of the church as the hands, limbs, ears, eyes, mouth, and nose, with their respective offices, are parts of the human body, and not mere provisional tools, — hammers, planes, chisels, and brace bits with which a house or church is builded and then no longer necessary; since, as plainly appears from the scriptures cited, these officers are parts of the body. To contend that they were but provisional, intended only as a means of establishing Christianity, — the church then to cease, is as inconsistent as to maintain that the body—church—of which they formed a portion was but provisional, merely temporary, and to be succeeded by a government, church, or body of another form. And further; that the law by which the provisional body with its officers is organized, is but provisional and to be displaced by another code. Ah! but you say that original law was the immutable law of God, the everlasting covenant ratified by the blood of Christ. Granted; that was the code under the operation of which the original body, with its offices and officers came into existence. Is not that law in the hands of the eternal, immutable, all-wise God adequate to the continued existence of that body, as long as it chooses to abide the conditions of the very law of its existence or being? This view of the "provisional," assumption logically considered presents the present state of the religious world in a strange predicament when contrasted with original Christianity, as viewed from a scriptural examination. Just think of the idea of a set of provisional officers in the kingdom of the infinitely wise God, and with an immutable, perfect law, originally designed for the eternal salvation of fallen man, of a world. Yet it is under the guise of this "provisional" idea, absurd as it is, that all the hundreds of religions, human institutions called churches assume to have place in the world.

It is doubtless true that out of this "provisional" assumption it is that that other recently developed, false, and absurd idea evolved as expressed in the words, "The church as left perfected by the apostles." Such an idea! There is no analogy to it in any organism of any character ever known to anyone, either natural or spiritual, political or religious. Take any new-made church now in existence and it has always been considered less perfectly organized at its beginning than later along; it has added law to that existing at its beginning—has always added organic functions. Not so is it with God's doings. His organic law, in every department of his works is full and perfect before organization begins. No one who believes the direct operation of God will question this statement. All changes that occur to the organism produced by the perfect law of God come not by the operation of that law, but because the organism for some cause does not abide the law and the law is in some way transgressed.

A change, then, in the organism of the church of God, when once by the perfect law organized, could be made in only one of two ways; either God sees fit to change his perfect law, or the organism, for some reason transgresses and refuses to abide the law. Which is it? Change in church organization has come since the apostolic age. All Christendom says so. Has God seen fit to change his "perfect law of liberty," or has the church transgressed the organic law of its being?

For an organism to abide the conditions of an infinitely perfect law (code of laws) means perpetual unity and perfect organic development. To transgress the perfect law is to produce disease, division, and disorganization—the body ceases to exist. Since, then, it is plainly demonstrated that man's measures, after several hundred years experience, have signally failed to bring about the results God intended by his truth and kingdom; that is, peace, religious unity, spiritual, fraternal brotherhood, light, and assurance—certainty—religiously, why does it never occur to the minds of the religious masses, and especially to the leading reformatory minds to ask (yes, unitedly ask) God to apply the original, divine remedy to the case; and be restored to that divinely exalted religious plane formerly occupied by the children of God in the church, of apostolic days? "Awful!" cries the world. "Such a move, at one fell stroke, would obliterate all our grand creeds, our catechisms would go to the winds; and our renowned, antiquated, venerated theologies would dissolve into mists and nothingness before such floods of divine light as that!

If the creeds and theologies have led us away so far from light, and truth, and unity, and the gospel of Christ, and his salvation, and the blessings of the apostolic church as we now see that they have, let them go. They will go sooner or later anyway. The "Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin" is now on their walls! Oh, awful! an apostolic church again; how strange it would seem! And the gospel again as Jesus, and Paul, and Peter preached it! And our learned and pious ministers, our renowned doctors of divinity leave their high calling (?) of discoursing popular dogmas, learned disquisitions on science, and metaphysical, deep,—and to us,—incomprehensible, religious exegeses; and preach in their stead a simple faith in the unchangeable heavenly Father, and in the crucified, risen, and glorified Redeemer who is no respecter of persons. What! We be taught the essentiality of ceasing to sin, and learning “to do well,” as constituting the doctrine of repentance toward God? And to start out to be actual Christians in the same way the people did in Peter’s day? And the next thing we would be commanded to do, would be in the language, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call! Acts 2: 38, 39. And we would further be informed that the only way of getting into Christ, or becoming the children of God is by having this old Bible faith in God, repenting of or turning away from all sin and turning to God with all the heart, being baptized into Christ; for so the Bible reads, both in Romans 6: 3 and in Galatians 3: 27! And the Bible reveals no other way of getting into Christ. And as Christ is ‘the way, the truth, and the life,’ and as ‘no man can enter the life’ but by Christ, and as he who ‘climbs up some other way is a thief and a robber;’ it is clear that if the Bible way of salvation be restored, our ‘precepts of men,’ by which this Bible way has been made void for so many hundreds of years would ‘fade away,’ and our churches builded thereon would be found to occupy as a basis ‘the baseless fabric of a dream!’”

My friend, your reasoning is sound here, and, consequently, your conclusions are correct. Such would be the fate of the many forms of religion now existing that are not founded on the eternal rock of truth—God’s gospel, his power to salvation—were the people to lay them all aside as useless (and worse than useless they are), and all return to “the old paths” again and walk therein. And let me here state that such results as are here contemplated are to be realized more and more as we approach the end of the world; and the sooner we are apprised of the facts and leave these “poor old stranded wrecks” and the standing ones, and “pull for the shore” of eternal, divine truth, the better it will be for us. God will not put the wine of pure gospel truth into these humanly instituted religious systems—“bottles,” nor sew the gospel cloth into the creedified religious garments. That is man’s way of doing. Man is forever trying to remodel old religious institutions, falsely calling the changes “reform,” “reformation.” But this is not God’s way. His mode is to apply original remedies; restore the new bottle; put therein the pure gospel truth; restore the new garment made from new cloth:—

For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord.—Isa. 55: 8.

But the restoration would not stop with the three gospel principles just referred to; they are but the doctrinal initials. The doctrine of the laying on of hands must follow; a gospel ordinance, a rite of or in the kingdom of God; an ordinance to be administered by the authorized ministers of the kingdom for the bestowment of blessings on those who obey the gospel.

This ordinance has ever attended the kingdom of God from the beginning of the world, when it has had an existence. Jacob, the patriarch, laid his hands on the head of the sons of Joseph when giving them their prophetic blessings relating to their future and that of their prosperity. (Gen. 48: 10-22.) Coming on down the ages till the days of Moses we learn that God “commanded” Moses, the authorized representative of his kingdom, to set Joshua before the congregation of Israel and lay his hands on him, and bestow “honor” on him, and God would give him wisdom. (Numbers 27: 18-23.) And subsequent Bible history informs us that “Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom; for Moses had laid his hands upon him: and the children of Israel hearkened unto him,” and he succeeded Moses as the leader of Israel, approved of God. (Deut. 34: 9.) When the gospel was restored through the ministry of John the Baptist, our Savior, and his apostles, it included the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost to those recently baptized, as well as for ordaining the ministry, administering to sick, and the blessing of little children. (Mark 3: 13, 14; 10: 13-16; Acts 8: 15-18; 13: 1-5; 19: 1-6.) Timothy was confirmed by the elders or presbyters of the church by which he received a spiritual “gift.” Paul was “filled with the Holy Ghost” because he obeyed the gospel, including the laying on of the hands of God’s servant, Ananias. (Acts 9: 10-17.) And this Paul, after having been called and ordained a “preacher, and an apostle, and a teacher of the Gentiles” (Acts 13: 3-5; 2 Timothy, 1: 9-11), also included in the gospel he taught and administered the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. (Acts 18: 1-6.) And in after times, when giving his last charge to the Ephesian church, to whom he had taught the laying on of hands, he calls it “the counsel of God,” and states that for that reason he would stand justified at the great judgment.

Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men. For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God.—Acts 20: 26, 27.

Reader, pause here and answer me honestly: If Paul could not declare all the counsel of God and leave out the laying on of hands, as a gospel ordinance, and be clear from the blood of all men, can we? David says:—

The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations.—Psalms 33: 11.

Are we a part of the “all generations” here referred to? The Apostle Paul enumerates the laying on of hands among the six principles of “the doctrine of Christ” right along with faith, repentance, baptism, the resurrection of the dead, and the doctrine of “eternal judgment” (Hebrews 6: 1-3); and therefore any argument adduced bearing against this principle of Christ’s doctrine, bears with equal force against any or all of the other five principles mentioned. All the six are “the counsel of God” “to all generations.” All were ratified as fundamental, or foundation principles of Christ’s doctrine by his atoning blood. Faith in Christ’s atoning blood brings us to God; we repent because we believe he atoned for our sins.

For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly.—Romans 5: 6.

No man cometh unto the Father, but by me.—John 14: 16.

We are “baptized into Jesus Christ” “for the remission of sins,” because this is the “new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us, through the veil, that is to say, his flesh; . . . let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water.” (Hebrew 10: 20-22.) This is the manner in which the new covenant of Christ is applied; so Paul here explains. And, we are “buried with Christ by baptism into death,” because baptism is a part of the means of regeneration.

But after that the kindness and love of God our Savior toward man appeared, not by works of righteousness [self-righteousness] which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost.—Tit. 3: 4, 5.

Notice the distinction Paul makes here between the baptism in water and the giving or “renewing of the Holy Ghost” that follows. Again, we are baptized in water because we cannot be born into the kingdom of God, or be created anew, or become a new creature in Christ without it. So we read that Jesus, in answer to the question, How can a man be born again? answered:—

Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.—John 3: 5.

What is it that excludes these infinitely important truths of the gospel of Christ from the faith and practice of the popularly religious of to-day but the precepts of men that make void this beautiful law of God? By which do you expect to be judged at the great day of God, Christ's law or these human precepts? Having now quite fully before us, not only what the gospel church is when existing in an organized state, but also "which be the first principles of the oracles of God" (Heb. 5:12), we may properly conclude this part of the subject before us by referring to John's statement as to the essentiality of "the doctrine of Christ," to the salvation of mankind. It reads:—

Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any [in the capacity of a religious teacher] unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, [so far as receiving his message is concerned], neither bid him God speed.—2 John 9, 10.

By this statement we are informed that God is not in those systems of religion from which these principles of the doctrine of Christ are excluded. This is as we might expect, when we remember that Jesus promises to be with his worshipers only on conditions that they "observe all things"; that is, do "all things whatsoever" he commanded. (Matt. 28:20.) And the great, valiant, inspired Apostle Paul, after having faithfully advocated the gospel as herein set forth, certifies to its divinity, that he "neither received it of man," neither was he "taught it but by the revelation of Jesus Christ," and declares:—

But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed.—Gal. 1: 8, 9.

The deepest borehole of the earth is the one at Poroschowitz, in the Rybnik District, Upper Silesia. It has been carried to a depth of something beyond 2,000 meters (about 6,700 feet), and the diameter of the tube at the bottom is seven centimeters. Boring to such a depth, and moreover, through solid rock, was almost impossible prior to the invention of the Mannesman tube. The greater strength of this tube, as compared with others, makes it possible to use tubes of thinner gauge. It is expected that a final depth of yet another 500 meters (some 1,670 feet) can be reached, and a number of interesting observations on temperature, etc., will be made.—Engineering.

Conference Minutes.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS MISSION.

General conference was held on Takapoto Island, April 6-10, 1894. The conference opened by choosing Elder L. R. Devore president, and Elders J. W. Gilbert and Wm. Newton assistants; Elders D. M. Pohemiti secretary, and Tetuarea assistant, and Elder J. W. Gilbert English secretary; Elder Herman Jansson interpreter. Minutes of last April conference read, a correction was made and received. The secretary of the mission reported the total membership, as far as he has been enabled to reach the branches, to be 1,407. Thirteen Sabbath schools reported. Seventy elders reported having preached 1,572 sermons and baptized 122 since last April. Sixteen priests reported having preached 313 times. Twelve teachers reported 118 sermons. Ten deacons reported 50 sermons. Total number of sermons reported 2,053. No reports reached conference from Elders Hawkins and Tapuni, appointees from last conference. They went to their fields of labor as soon after their appointment as they could conveniently; viz., Tuboi and Raivoi. No reports reached conference from Johnny and Kehouri appointed to Vaitutaki. Petero Derrien reported by letter. A communication from the President of the mission was read before the conference requesting the conference to appoint Sr. Devore as superintendent of the Sunday schools in the mission. She was chosen to that position. The conference authorized the superintendent of the mission Sunday schools to appoint a day at each general conference for the Sunday school work. The Papaua feast debt was brought before the conference to consider. On motion it was decided to take sufficient of the money which had been raised hitherto for the building of a church in Fakarava and cancel the debt at once. On motion L. R. Devore and Bishop's agent Metuore were chosen to visit Mr. Goupil in Papeete, (the lawyer who has the debt in hand for collection,) and effect a settlement. The request of the president of the mission to hold a special mission conference in Papeete in November was taken up and lost. On motion the Papaua and the Maturaa branches were declared disorganized. Bishop's agents reported. An auditing committee was chosen to audit the Bishop's agent's books and report to the conference before its close. Elder Wm. Newton was authorized by the conference to write a letter of inquiry to the president of mission asking him to give an explanation of some money ($58) that was sent to Papeete for four of the missionaries by Saints of Hukuero. A resolution concerning ordinations was presented by J. W. Gilbert and L. R. Devore. After considerable spirited discussion and an additional paragraph inserted, it was adopted. On motion it was decided to drop the January and July district conferences owing to the great cost and loss of time they incur. On motion it was agreed to leave the money raised (for building churches) during the past year by the two divisions in their hands, each division to use their own as they think best. A motion was sustained to hold the general conference of 1895 at Rairoa. On motion it was decided to raise funds by subscription to purchase a printing press for the mission. Auditing committee reported: Bishop's agent of Tahitian division: Tithes $106.70; from Sisters' Prayer Union $406; offerings $16; conference money $142.40; missionaries' fares $124. Bishop's agent of Fakarava division: Conference money $240; tithing $195; Sisters' Prayer Union $160; offerings $24; total $619; expenses $50; balance on hand $569. Report received and committee discharged. Appointments were made and sustained as follows: Elders Wm. Newton and Herman Jansson to Hao and adjacent islands; Elders J. W. Gilbert and Loui to Hukuero and adjacent islands; Elder Tepoitu to Marekau and adjacent islands; Elder Pou to the Marquesas group; Elder John Hawkins to be continued in Tuboi; Elder Tapuni in Raivoi; Elders Johnny and Kehouri to be continued in Vaitutaki. A vote of thanks was tendered the sisters for their assistance in raising money for the missionary work. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Bro. Jansson as interpreter and to the Tahapoto branch for their kindness to the visiting Saints during conference. All officers of the church entire from the highest to the lowest were sustained. The Sunday school work was sustained. Thanks were tendered Sr. Devore for her effective work in the mission. Also to owners of boats who had assisted the Saints to attend the conference, and a vote of thanks were tendered to the missionaries and clerks for their patient work. Preaching by Elders Wm. Newton, J. W. Gilbert, L. R. Devore, Metuore, Hotu, and others, and Sunday schools in charge of Sr. Devore. There was a very large representation present. The weather was delightful throughout. Adjourned April 10 to meet April 6, 1895, on Rairoa Island.

J. W. GILBERT.

P. S.—The interest and principal to the present of the Papaua debt was $925.70, but by paying cash Mr. Goupil, the lawyer, threw off $325.70 which was quite an item indeed. The debt is settled entire, valid receipts received, and we feel there is a great burden lifted from our brethren here.

Per L. R. DEVORE.

SOUTHERN MISSOURI.

William Anderson, on the tent committee, reported that $50.09 had been collected. Report accepted and committee continued. James W. Johnson was expelled from the church for unchristianlike conduct. Resolved that we advise the branches of this district not to ordain priests, teachers, or deacons unless they are needed for active service in their branches, and that we further advise that great care be taken, that those who are ordained be wisely and prayerfully chosen. And if it can be, that the district president be consulted as to such ordination. The recommendation of Allendale branch that Bro. A. E. Shaw be ordained a priest and Bro. Hiram E. Pinkerton a teacher was approved and they were so ordained. It was voted unanimously that we hold the next district conference at Lone Rock; time to be appointed by the president. At the close of afternoon session one was baptized. Report of Lucas branch was not received until after conference. Preaching by Elders J. S. Snively, William Thompson, H. A. Stebbins, R. S. CONFERENCE NOTICES.

At the Spring River district conference, July 14, Bro. A. H. Herke will offer church publications at catalogue prices, orders also promptly filled. All presidents and clerks of branches are requested to write their post office address on the face of statistical report, as the name of a branch does not give addresses.

Presidents of branches, please remember that by action of last conference the district is in debt for the sending of a delegate to General Conference, so please gather means, if there is no branch fund already gathered, to meet this obligation. Scattered members are also requested to take notice of our needs.
A. H. HERKE, Clerk.

SECOND QUORUM OF ELDERS.

About the 30th of April I mailed to each member of the quorum a letter requesting a reply. There are over half the members that I have not heard from yet. If you see this please answer at once, as I cannot complete the new list for quorum until I hear from you. D. A. Hutchings, J. A. Read, W. Pickering, M. W. Culbertson, and John E. Rogerson were among the number received into the quorum. Will the brethren please write me at once.

ARTHUR ALLEN, Sec.

G. T. Griffiths; prayer by Bro. Steffe.

SAVAGE.—At the home of her brother, Wilber Savage, one mile south of Wilber, Nebraska, on June 17, 1894, of consumption, Miss Anna M. Savage, aged 28 years, 1 month, and 29 days. She was baptized June 19, 1881, by R. C. Elvin. She lived a faithful life and died peacefully. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, the service being conducted by Elder Thomas Nutt.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

PARIS, June 25.—President Carnot was stabbed last evening in Lyons and died forty minutes past midnight without having recovered consciousness. As the President was leaving the banquet of the exposition at Lyons at 9:30 o'clock last evening in order to go to the theater he was stabbed with a knife in the stomach in the region of the liver. The assassin was arrested and was recognized as an Italian who had arrived in Lyons yesterday afternoon. He refused to answer any questions until he is brought before the Judges. The man's name is Pietro Santo.

The crowd that assembled as soon as the assassination of the President became known attacked and demolished three Italian cafés in Lyons. It was impossible, in spite of the intervention of the troops, to keep the crowd in check. The condition of the President was very alarming. The physicians succeeded in checking the hemorrhage, but at 11 o'clock it broke out again and the case became hopeless.

The political situation is very simple. Until the meeting of the Congress, which is composed of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, the President of the Senate, Challemeil Lacour, is President of the Republic ad interim. The Congress will probably meet Wednesday. Two candidates remain—M. Casimir-Perier and M. Charles Dupuy. The election of the former is probable.

LYONS, June 24.—The most intense excitement has been caused everywhere in France by the assassination of President Carnot. The President was visiting Lyons in connection with the international exhibition. Upon his arrival here he was tendered a reception at the prefecture, after which he visited the exhibition. After spending some time at the exhibition he proceeded to the Palais de Commerce, where a banquet was given in his honor.

At 9:25 o'clock to-night President Carnot started for the theater, where a gala performance was to be given because of his presence in the city. Several carriages were in the procession, the first one being occupied by the President. M. Carnot's carriage was driven slowly along in front of the Palais de Commerce, and then turned into Rue de la Republique, still following the facade of the palace, when half way down the street, which was lined with enthusiastic crowds of people who were loudly cheering, a man rushed out of the crowd and sprang upon the step of the President's landau.

Just at this moment M. Carnot was waving his right hand and saluting with his hat in his left hand in response to the greeting that was being given him by the crowd. The people close to the carriage saw the man standing on the step had a knife in his hand. By the glare of the electric lights they saw the bright blade gleam in the air as the assassin's arm descended, and then President Carnot was seen to fall back in his seat, his face deathly pale. One of his hands was pressed over his heart, where the steel had entered the body.

M. Rivaud, Prefect of Lyons, who was seated beside M. Carnot, immediately struck the assassin a blow full in the face and knocked him from the step, thus preventing the man from again stabbing the President, which it was his evident intention to do.

The assassin was seized by a dozen hands and had it not been for several sergeants de ville his life would then and there have paid the forfeit. As it was the police had great difficulty in withdrawing him from the infuriated mob, which was determined to lynch him. The President was hurried to the Prefecture where physicians were summoned who examined his wounds and pronounced the case almost hopeless. The President regained consciousness during the probing of his wound, and remained conscious to the last. He died about midnight.

LYONS, June 24.—After M. Carnot had been taken to the prefecture it became generally known that the assassin was an Italian and the feeling of deep indignation among the crowd found vent in the form of attacks upon cafés kept by inoffensive natives of Italy. Three such places in the vicinity of the Palace of Commerce were totally wrecked by the infuriated mob.

French flags which were in abundance were then procured by the crowd, and with cries of "Down with the foreigners!" "Out with them!" hundreds of men and boys marched to the Rue de la Barre, in which street the Italian Consulate is situated. There no doubt that the consulate would have been sacked had it not been for the prompt action of the police, who stopped the crowd and compelled its members to disperse.

The excitement continues at fever heat, and it would take very little to precipitate bloody anti-Italian riots. All over the city threats are made to take summary vengeance upon the countrymen of Santo, and the authorities, fearing that attempts will be made to put these threats into effect, ordered bodies of cuirassiers to patrol the city to prevent any outbreak. Everywhere the troops are greeted with cries of "Long live the army!"

PARIS, June 25.—Mme. Carnot, accompanied by her two daughters, left this city at one o'clock this morning for Lyons. The news of the assassination of her husband was broken to her as tenderly as possible. She was almost prostrated with grief, but gave orders for preparations to be at once made to convey her to Lyons.

An official note was issued this morning calling upon the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies to assemble in Congress at Versailles at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of electing a new President.

PARIS, June 25.—There no longer seems to be much doubt that the President's assassination was the result of an anarchistic conspiracy to avenge the deaths of Vaillant and Emil Henri, the two recently executed Anarchists.

French troops are protecting Italians in the cities of the Republic.

ROME, June 25.—King Humbert to-day gave an audience to M. Billot, the French Ambassador. His Majesty expressed his deep grief at the calamity that has befallen France. The interview throughout was cordial.

The Pope was painfully impressed by the news of M. Carnot's death. He at once sent a telegram of sympathy to M. Henotaux, French Foreign Minister.

Both the political and fashionable worlds are doing their utmost to attenuate the moral effect of the crime committed by an Italian. The members of the French colony have been the recipients of many tributes of sympathy and condolence. Diplomats and other officials have visited Count Lefevre le Behaine, French Ambassador to the Vatican, and expressed their deep regret and sympathy.

PARIS, June 26.—Mme. Carnot returned to Paris from Lyons early this morning with the remains of the President confined in plain oak. The civil and police authorities received her. About 7,000 persons, principally members of the working class, were massed outside the railway station.

The widow was accompanied by her three sons to Paris. The train was awaited at the terminus by a funeral wagon, two landaus, and a coup for the officers who went with the President to Lyons. The party was soon conveyed to the Palace of the Elysée. Troops were drawn out of the courtyard and saluted the funeral wagon. On alighting Mme.

Carnot was embraced by her daughter-in-law and mother-in-law.

Mme. Carnot has not touched food since Sunday, but she was able to-day to drink deep draughts of milk flavored with coffee. Her mental and moral vigor sustain her. She spent to-day ordering mourning, arranging for the funeral, dictating answers to the telegrams from Queen Victoria, President Cleveland, Emperor William, and Empress Augusta, the Czar, King Humbert, and others, and receiving the Ambassadors bringing them. Emperor William will send a Prince of his own house with two Prussian Generals to attend the funeral. Marechale MacMahon sent a feeling telegram, in which deep sorrow spoke to deep sorrow.

The lamentable affair has created a deep feeling of regret, and has called forth a general expression sympathy for Mme. Carnot and the French people from all parts of the civilized world.

PARIS, June 26.—At a meeting of all the Republican Senators this afternoon in order to decide upon a candidate for the Presidency a vote was taken with the following results: M. Casimir-Perier 144, M. Dupuy 15, M. Brisson 8, M. de Freycinet 4, M. Constans 2, M. Arago 2, M. Loubet 2, M. Cavaignac 1.

A Paris cablegram states that Great Britain has placated Germany by abandoning the strip of territory obtained by the Anglo-Belgian agreement.

CARDIFF, June 24.—The men who have volunteered to search the Albion colliery at Cilfynydd, the scene of the terrific explosion of fire damp last evening, have been at work all day, but no further rescues have been effected. All hope for those still in the pit has been abandoned. The number of the dead will, it is believed, reach 250.

Eighty-six bodies have been recovered.

Advices report 577 deaths from the plague in Hongkong, China, from May 1 to June 7, 230 being under treatment. The total number of cases since the outbreak is about 1,200. The new cases at Hongkong number about thirty per day, with a fearful death rate. The sanitary authorities attribute the outbreak not to bad sewerage, but to filth in the houses. Three British officers and three men are reported as attacked by the plague. In Canton, though, the plague claims less victims than for some time, it is causing much loss of life.

RICHMOND, England, June 23.—The Duchess of York, wife of Prince George of Wales, heir presumptive to the throne of the United Kingdom, was safely delivered of a son to-day. He will immediately be made a peer, probably receiving the title of Earl of Kent.

LONDON, June 23.—Sir John Lubbock, William Randall Cremer, Secretary of the International Arbitration League; and Sir George Baden-Powell, all members of Parliament, have jointly sent a cable message to United States Senators Allison and Sherman, saying that they are delighted with the resolution introduced in the Senate by Senator Allison for a treaty between Great Britain and the United States which shall provide that for the next twenty-five years all disputes which cannot be adjusted diplomatically shall be referred to arbitration. The senders of the dispatch urge the Senators to go ahead and inform them that 300 members of the House of Commons had just signed an address in favor of a treaty of arbitration between Great Britain and the United States.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—Richard C. Kerens of St. Louis, a member of the Inter-Colonial Railway Commission, who has been in the city for the last few days, speaks enthusiastically of the work which has been done on the proposed road, which he says "will open up the territory of fifteen republics south of Mexico to the trade and emigration of the United States, and the disposition of the people of that region has shown towards our engineers is an indication of the favor with which the enterprise will be received. We have received assurance that every country through which the line has been surveyed will make land grants and other concessions to insure the building of the road. The United States will not find it necessary to grant any further aid than that necessary to make the facts known, as will be done in this case. The building of the road will follow as surely as it followed the publication of the reports of the Pacific roads." Mr. Kerens says the resources of the region which will be developed by this great line will be found to be marvelous and that a country sufficient to support a population of 200,000,000 people will be opened up. Mr. Kerens thinks it the place of all others for the United States to send its surplus immigration.

CLEVELAND, O., June 22.—The Rev. Father A. F. Kalaszewski, the Polish priest, late pastor of St. Stanislaus' Church and until recently the spiritual adviser of 16,000 people, was excommunicated by Bishop Horstmann to-day. The priest has incurred the displeasure of the Bishop by his recent secession, with some 1,200 families, from St. Stanislaus' church and by the establishment of the Church of the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin. Kalaszewski had been ordered by the Bishop to refrain from the celebration of mass or to exercise any priestly function in this city. He had been twice summoned to the episcopal residence to answer for his disobedience and had refused to appear. Great excitement prevails among the Slavonic people here as a result of the Bishop's course. The excommunicated priest is a man of great energy and ability and the greater portion of the Polish Catholics are loyal to him. He has established a church of influence and will doubtless use every effort to get the Polish Catholics all over the country to join his cause.

ROME, June 23.—There were turbulent scenes in the Chamber of Deputies Friday, during the debate on the government's financial measures. The radical leaders Cavallotti and Imbriani started the trouble by declaring that the Ministers should have advised the Crown to make sacrifices in the civil list. Sig. Imbriani made a vehement attack on the government and was called to order by the President. A heated discussion next occurred on the proposal to increase the salt tax. The proposal was finally adopted by a vote of 201 to 135.

CARDIFF, Wales, June 23.—A dispatch from Pont-y-Pridd, Glamorgan, says a terrible explosion occurred this afternoon in the Albion colliery near that place. Two hundred miners are buried beneath the debris of the mine. Their fate is unknown, but it is believed that a large number of them have been killed. It is estimated that eighty miners were killed either by the explosion or by the falling earth and rock. Every possible effort is being made to save the imprisoned miners.

Heavy rainstorms and cyclones are reported from Detroit, Michigan; Valparaiso, and Madison, Indiana; Yankton, South Dakota; also from points in Nebraska, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, and Oklahoma, June 24.

Missouri, Kansas, and Illinois points were visited by another severe storm, which did great damage to town property on the 25th inst.

Sioux City, Iowa, will build a combination railroad and wagon bridge across the Missouri River at a cost of $340,000.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 27.—Twelve to fourteen people are reported killed in a cyclone near Sleepy Eye, Minnesota. There has been a cyclonic storm through Southern Minnesota. Loss of life and property is reported from Pipestone, Windom, and Collegeville, Minnesota.

CHICAGO, June 28.—The American Railway Union of railway employees became aggressive in its efforts to force a settlement between the Pullman Car Company and its striking employees, and threw down the gauntlet of battle to the Erie, Grand Trunk, Monon, Eastern Illinois, Northern Pacific, Wisconsin Central, Chicago and Great Western, Baltimore and Ohio, Panhandle, and Santa Fé railroads, by ordering out all employees of those roads who belong to the union.

The blow against the Erie, Grand Trunk, Monon, and Eastern Illinois was struck through the Western Indiana Terminal system which handles the trains of these roads. Their switchmen, signal-towermen, roundhousemen, and all the engineers and firemen but two struck during the day. The Northern Pacific switchmen quit at six o'clock.

At eleven o'clock the Pan-Handle men walked out. This was a big surprise to the officials of the road.

The master stroke, however, occurred at midnight, when every employee on the Santa Fé belonging to the American Railway Union was ordered out. The switchmen quit; whether the other men will obey the mandate will be learned to-day. The officials of the road which is in the hands of the receiver, say that they will apply the first thing this morning for United States Court protection.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 27.—All overland trains are tied up owing to the refusal of men to handle the Pullman cars. Railroads will not send out trains without Pullmans and will make no attempt to send overlands until the strike is ended or until they can secure adequate protection.

Passengers en route to the East are thus blocked, with no assurance as to when they will be able to get away. It is probable that the Union Pacific, Santa Fé, and Northern Pacific, being in control of Federal receivers, will appeal at once to the United States courts for injunctions restraining the strikers from interfering with their trains.

The strike is general throughout Montana. Many other points also report a blockade of passenger service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—The House Committee on Commerce approved to-day the Nicaragua Canal bill drawn by the subcommittee and ordered it to be reported to the House.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 27.—The cost of the coke strike is thought to aggregate $1,000,000. It is broken and a general resumption is expected in a short time.

VERSAILLES, June 27.—Casimir-Perier was this afternoon elected President of the French Republic, in succession to M. Carnot, the victim of anarchistic hate. The election was by the Senate and Chamber of Deputies sitting as the National Assembly in the great hall of the palace of Versailles, that has been the scene of so many historic events.

PARIS, June 27.—It has been arranged that the funeral procession which will convey the remains of the late President Carnot to the Pantheon is to leave the Elysée Palace at eight o'clock in the morning. It will proceed through the Champs Elysées to the Place de la Concorde, and through the Rue Rivoli, reaching Notre Dame Cathedral at about noon. After the funeral services at the cathedral the procession will go to the Pantheon by the Pont Neuf and the Boulevard St. Michel.

LYONS, June 27.—The trial of Cesare Santeo, the Anarchist assassin of President Carnot, is to take place July 23.

Seventeen thousand men are said to be out, in the strike of the American Railway Union. Train service from Chicago west is badly interfered with on many roads. The General Managers' Association of twenty-one railroads have combined to defeat the strikers by employing new men.

The House of Representatives has passed the bill for the Admission of New Mexico.

President Cleveland has signed the bill which makes Labor Day a legal holiday.

is a valuable present. It is bound in two styles, plain and ornamented. The book contains the hymns in the Saints' Harp, also 555 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes.

The chapter of Instructions on CHOIR and ANTHEM MUSIC is of value to all who take part in vocal or instrumental parts of song service.

This collection of sacred hymn and anthem music has been highly commended by competent musicians and choir leaders and teachers.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. E. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit of Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Conscious State? The Views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death; his preexistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

THE INSPIRED TRANSLATION

Is bound in four styles; in plain, rich, ornamental, and flexible binding.

It is a book priceless in value, suitable as a present for all old enough to read.

It should be placed in the hands of young people that they may early learn its precepts. Early instruction is the most lasting.

ABSTRACT of EVIDENCE

TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

This work is an abstract of the sworn testimony of both Plaintiff's and Defendant's witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickites (a faction from the Original Church) for title to and possession of the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri. The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, and who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, and the testimony of members of the Hedrickite organization, is given; also the statements of said witnesses under cross-examination and recross-examination.

Evidence from the three standard books, and from the publications of the Original Church, and the Reorganized Church, the Hedrickite faction, and from those of the Utah Church, is presented in support of the claims of the Reorganized Church to be the successor of the Original Church, showing it to be the authorized and identical continuation of said Original Church and entitled to its property, while all other factions have departed from the Original Church in organization, in teaching, and in practice.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, three pamphlets, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

A valuable volume of evidence for ministry and laity; useful in refuting the many misrepresentations of the early church and its ministry and membership.

A limited edition has been published. Price, bound in law sheep (Counsel's argument in separate binding), $3.00.

Bound in cloth $2.50.

It is published in the interests of the Gospel Boat Fund of the South Sea Islands Mission. The book forms a rich collection of verse. It is handsome, bound and beautifully illustrated.

THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS

is the third of the authoritative standards of the church. It has an especial interest to Latter Day Saints as the word of God in modern times, containing divine instructions for the present dispensation. In two styles of binding.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages. Paper covers 35
 Muslin binding 50

MANUSCRIPT FOUND.

This is the notorious Manuscript Found, written by Rev. Solomon Spalding; a verified and certified copy of the original now in Oberlin College, Ohio, of which so much has been said and written in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief groundwork and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. The preface to the work contains an account of its coming to light, by which it can be traced back to its author—Solomon Spalding. The work, suppressed for years by enemies of the Latter Day Saints, is a complete refutation of the charge made that it is the basis from which the Book of Mormon was written. PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD:

THE APOSTASY, REFORMATION, AND RESTORATION.

By Elder Wm. H. Kelley. New, Revised, and Enlarged Edition. It contains 421 pages of closely written matter, with autograph and likeness of the Author and is printed in good, readable type, with neat binding. The work is a library within itself; a marvel of trenchant criticism and logical deductions from historical facts; a key to the right understanding of the Bible and modern diverse systems of faith and worship. It discusses the issues of theology that are to the front to-day. It treats largely of Ministerial Authority as associated with the Melchisedek and Aaronic Priesthoods, and the Ideal Church of New Testament times is conspicuously set forth in striking contrast with the creeds and systems of church building since the days of the Apostles. Also the claims for the Restoration of the Gospel at a later day than the Apostolic age are critically examined in the light of prophecy and history, which is a subject of great moment to men of every faith. A historical resume or brief is also inserted of the rise and development of the "apostate church," and an exegesis of the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the revelation of the "sealed book." Also the origin of modern churches and creeds, etc.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844. Muslin binding 70

MINISTRY AND BRANCH CARDS.

PRESIDENT HARPER ABLY DISCUSSES HIGHER CRITICISM

DR. W. R. HARPER, President of the University of Chicago, lectured at the Second Baptist Church on "Biblical Inquiry or Higher Criticism." Several weeks ago Dr. Harper was invited by the Rev. William M. Lawrence, pastor of the church, to speak in the church on the results of intelligent investigation into the Bible's authenticity.

Dr. Harper discussed biblical investigation dispassionately. He frankly admitted that higher criticism had been compelled to discard many portions of the Scriptures as either vague or erroneous, but insisted that the basic principles of Christianity had not been shaken in the least.

He said among other things:—

"The questions presented in the Bible meet us in almost every issue of life. No subject is so interesting as this great book which we love so much. No argument is needed to convince us that it is the nearest book of all to Christian mankind. Many are doubting, and I myself have passed through this severe experience. We meet men and woman every day who are thinking about these things. Deeper thoughts only will solve the questions.

"We often hear the phrase 'higher criticism.' What does it mean? About one hundred years ago learned men began an investigation of the Scriptures as to their source, truth, etc. Some of these men ruled upon the correctness of the text. Great differences were found between the original Hebrew version and the Greek translation. Verses and even whole chapters found in the Hebrew had been omitted in the Greek. These men then decided upon what should be admitted.

"The text was naturally the first and principal thing. These particular investigators who decided this were 'lower critics.'

"Then there were other learned investigators who inquired into the literature of the Scriptures. These investigators examined into the authorship, the time of writing, the purpose, etc. They noted differences between old versions and newly discovered manuscripts. The latter are called 'higher critics.' Thus we can see that these critics first decided upon the material or the true text and then as to the source and purpose.

"Biblical inquiry is the simplest synonym for criticism. I may write a review of a book in which there is nothing but praise, yet it is called a criticism. Criticism does not necessarily mean hostility. Yet why is there a shrinking to-day by many good men and women when the subject of higher criticism is mentioned? The answer is, because many of the men who have been engaged in this work have not been in true sympathy with the grand old book. They have gone about it without heart, without warmth, just as if they were delving into a department of science. Their work raised questions, and these same men answered them.

"The answers have raised consternation in the minds of men. These investigators may be called destructive critics. Biblical scholars of all denominations have gone into the work. They have found some things claimed by the destructive critics to be correct but the great principles remain unshaken. The latter may be called 'constructive critics.'

"Let us take the histories of Israel as presented in the books of Kings and Samuels. In one book the prophets Elijah and Elisha play an important part. 'The man who sins must suffer.' The spirit of prophecy is breathed throughout. The higher critic declares that a prophet wrote this book.

"In the other chronicle the same time is covered but nothing is heard of the consequences of sin. The last work tells of the temple, of the priesthood, of the future greatness of Israel to be brought about by the priesthood. It is plain to all that a priest wrote this.

"Higher criticism has introduced much that is new and troublesome, and it is difficult to make all things harmonize. But the man who can answer all questions has no business on earth. It is true we have been taught much by our forefathers which has no basis in fact. Why cling to error? Let us not go on the basis that what was good enough for our forefathers is good enough for us. That spirit does not prevail among thinkers to-day. Our desire is to study these books, throw the light upon them, and if the results differ from the belief of the past let us give up the belief of the past. What we want is facts. We cannot afford to bow at the shrine of Untruth.

"Higher criticism has shown us many things. It has taught us that there is very much question as to the real text of the Bible. It has shown us that the writings of the Bible reflect the literary style of the authors, and that the books were, in many instances, not written as a record of history but to serve specific purposes of the writers.

"Criticism has presented many differences in lack of harmony between the Bible and science. Yet we speak to-day of the rising and setting of the sun, though we know the sun does not rise or set. Can we blame the ancients for using similar expressions? For my own part, I think the harmony between the ancient writings and latter-day science is remarkable, convincing me that the knowledge of the old writers must have been from divine inspiration.

"Criticism shows us that the Hebrews refused to eat the flesh of a certain animal; that the Assyrians even refuse to mention the beast.

"And so on through a vast mass of detail. Yet the grand principles of the Good Book have stood as strong and rugged as the eternal hills. Let us thank God that men have been led to attack the book in order that other men should be led to staunchly defend it."—Tribune.

Professor Heindrich Hensoldt, Ph. D., who has spent years of research and study in Ceylon, Burmah and Thibet, contributes the third paper in a fascinating series, "Occult Science in Thibet," to the July Arena. Mr. Hensoldt has taken a high rank as a scientific writer, and he has the rare power of making very scientific subjects fascinating to the general readers. These papers giving glimpses of a strange world of life and thought which, while it was old when Homer sang, is new to us at the present day, are not only valuable to the special student of philosophy and religion and sociology, but are intensely interesting to all whose imaginations are cabined in our narrow Western world.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL GAS ENGINE

In the market is run without an electric spark battery. Theory is all very well, but the everyday experience of constant practical use is the best test of merit. The man who runs a launch and finds himself drifting with tide and wind because the "spark" fails to ignite the charge of gas in his engine; the man who prints a daily paper and fails to get it off on time because the "spark" again fails; the man who has fruit that is injured for lack of irrigation because the "spark" fails in his engine that runs the pump; not only such parties but others who have trouble from like causes should bear in mind that the Hercules Gas and Gasoline Engine is free from such difficulties. The ignition is simple and sure. Send for catalogue. If you want second-hand engines of other makes at cheap rates we can supply you. We have a number taken in trade and cannot take any more until these are realized on. PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY 405-407, Sans me Street, San Francisco.

EXIT C. A. HALL.

C. A. HALL, ex-president of the Church of Christ (commonly called Hedrickites), late of Independence, but now of Centropolis, Missouri, who was the chief defendant, director, and manager for the said Church of Christ in the late suit against that church by the Reorganized Church, for the Temple Lot, has gone over, root and branch, to the Utah Church, which is quite a fitting climax to the part he has played against the church in that suit.

He possibly would have been better pleased himself and have been accorded a warmer reception into the rank and file of the Utah fraternity if he could have taken the possession of the Temple Lot at Independence with him; but this little plot was foiled we think. Elder David F. Stout, who so stoutly refused to continue discussion with Bro. Hans N. Hansen, of Crescent, and declined to meet Bro. T. W. Williams, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, has been deputized to wait on ex-president C. A. Hall and baptized him, which programme has likely been carried out ere this. So runs rumor.

DESERET NEWS IN REPLY.

THE Deseret News for June 26 has an editorial reply to ours on discussion, which we give our readers as a sort of finish to the instruction of the Utah Church leaders to their elders, not to discuss with us:—

SPOILING FOR CONTENTION.

As was to be expected, the organ of the Reorganized, or "Josephite," Church, the Saints' Herald, is amazed and confounded by the "Card to the Elders" recently published in these columns over the signature of the First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, advising our elders against entering into discussion with those who are anxious for the prominence and notoriety which a challenge and debate with them would afford. It is hardly necessary for us to republish the "Card" referred to, or to repeat the unassailable arguments and the good sense which fortify the position therein taken. Still less is it necessary to devote much space to the wandering logic with which the head of the Reorganized Church (as though the term "reorganization" were not of itself a confession of departure and apostasy from the original faith!) seeks to insist upon the gratification which the elders will henceforth deny him. Not without amusement, however, we note the peroration of his epistle. In this he gives instructions that the opportunity for debate is still to be offered and insisted upon by his followers, and if it shall be refused, they are to solicit and, if possible, secure from those thus declining a written statement of refusal, or if that also shall be refused, their denial in the presence of a witness! This dramatic program would seem to indicate that Reorganized challengers are hereafter to go about accompanied by a witness and a notary public—as we presume to complete the case it will be necessary to have the documents and the evidence sealed and sworn to—and that controversy they are determined to have, if not on points of doctrine, at least on the privilege of minding one's own business.

Every discerning elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will see without difficulty that in the "Card" of the Presidency he is completely relieved of the need of noticing such people in any way whatever. Surely he will have a better understanding of the importance of the labor devolving upon him than to waste any time in writing to or wrangling with those whose purpose now clearly exposed is to divert his attention from his legitimate duty and to annoy him. Their way seems to suit them, their claims seem to satisfy them; then let them enjoy them all to their hearts' content. On no account should the elders dignify them in their bravado or humor them in their whimsicalities; but in all respects observe the counsel of the First Presidency and "leave them severely alone."

INDORSEMENT OF LYNCHING BY CHURCHMEN.

RIGHT Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, Bishop of Mississippi, has this to say in defense of the administration of "Lynch law:—

On this subject there is but one opinion in Mississippi. The people lynch for one thing, and one thing only. When it comes to such a pass that a girl six years old cannot go from one neighbor's house to another without danger of being carried away and torn to pieces by some negro brute, what else can we do? There have been so many terrible cases. I must say, too, that all the years I have lived in the South I have never known of a doubtful lynching. The negroes, when caught, always confess or are absolutely indentified. The laws are slow, the jails are full, and the lawyers are banded together to defeat justice, as they always are. The offense is a capital one all over the South. So the people save delay by simply suming their natural sovereignty delegated by them to the courts and hang the criminal.

Of this sentiment of the Bishop the Cleveland, Ohio, World has the following sharp criticism:—

These remarks, coming as they do, from the highest churchman in Mississippi and one of the ablest orators in the South, are naturally taken up by the newspapers and boldly urged as sufficient justification for the lawlessness that is constantly increasing there.

Just think of an alleged exponent of the teachings of the "meek and lowly" Jesus putting forth such doctrines as this. Think of a churchman who is supposed to be in favor of law and order, and who is, or ought to be, a representative of civilization indorsing the taking of the law into the hands of the populace and abolishing courts, the only line of demarcation between savagery and enlightenment.

It is because the South has such teachers and such leaders as this churchman that it is found so far in the rear of the procession, and is certain to remain there. If, as Bishop Thompson says, the courts are slow and the lawyers are banded together for the purpose of defeating justice, then the courts should be accelerated and the lawyers should be punished. The way to remedy is not to return to the ways of the savage. If this learned bishop knows anywhere near enough to occupy the position that he now does he should have thought far enough into such matters to know that two wrongs do not make one right; that lawlessness on the part of a whole community only makes more lawlessness on the part of individuals; that just so long as lynching is tolerated and encouraged in the South just so long there will be plenty of victims to be lynched. History demonstrates beyond cavil that that is the way such things work. That is the harvest that is reaped from the seeding of wickedness which Bishop Thompson defends. The evolution of the South from darkness and savagery must indeed be slow so long as the religious teachers defend murder and admit that the courts and their administrators are corrupt failures.

The surprise manifested by the World that a professed Christian leader should express sentiments like this of Bishop Thompson's, is genuine; but, the experience of a lifetime in the gospel ministry has shown us that for real disregard for the restraints of law, there is no more dangerous element in society than a class of religious professors. The rod, the fagot, the fire, the rope, and the torture, are arguments with such men; and too frequently, far too frequently, prejudice, against color, race, or other religions stands for proof upon which the victims are condemned without trial and without defense.

Of all people who should be by precept and example the friends, advocates, and exemplars of law and order, and opposed to disorder and any sort of unlawful violence, the Saints can easily consent to stand first.

They have from the first been misconceived, misunderstood, cavilled at, lied about, abused, and persecuted for opinion's sake; and can appreciate the real value of a lynching. Some have been killed, and some imprisoned, and nearly all preachers have been in jeopardy to a greater, or lesser extent, for the sake of the faith they held.

Without saying anything as to the correctness or incorrectness of Rev. Thompson's statement as to the guilt of all that have been lynched, we may state that we have no fellowship with the sentiment that punishes and kills without sanction of law. It is hard enough to sustain lawful killing, but to indorse unlawful murder is not to be borne by order loving people.

A CHURCH ROW.

It appears that some of the Catholic clergymen have been unnecessarily denouncing the members of the Polish Catholic "Church of the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin Mary," at Cleveland; in which the members have been stigmatized as "cattle, brutes, and dogs." This has called out a strong protest from the Trustees and the matter is to be presented to Bishop Horstmann, of Cleveland, and Mgr. Satolli, for the Pope.

The resolutions protest against priestly domination, and assert the rights of the church membership in a very emphatic way. We copy some of them, the first setting forth the grievance:—

Whereas, The people comprising the congregation of this church have been systematically abused and contemned by their spiritual superiors of this diocese and have been stigmatized as cattle, brutes, and dogs by said spiritual superiors, therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the wish and desire of the people of said congregation to be treated like men and American citizens by their spiritual superiors, and not as beasts and cattle.

Among these resolutions are the following:—

Resolved, that it is the sense of this congregation that there should be absolute freedom in secular education; that we are in accord with the apostolic delegate, Satolli, that the parents should be perfectly free to send their children to the public schools of Cleveland if they so desire; and that it is the sense of this congregation that secular instruction should be conducted in accordance with the plan of instruction adopted in the public schools, with American text-books, and under American methods; and we strongly condemn any action of bishop or priest in expelling parents from church societies and denying them the sacraments and Christian burial because of their action in sending their children to the public schools.

Resolved, That this congregation heartily sustains the freedom of the press, and strongly condemns the action of bishop or priest in denying the sacrament and Christian burial to those communicants who subscribe to and read newspapers that are not approved by bishop or priest.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this congregation that all cemeteries should belong absolutely to the congregation, free from any control of the bishop, and that burials in the cemetery lately purchased by this congregation should be within the means of the poorest member.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the apostolic delegate, Satolli, Bishop Horstmann, and the public press.

Signed: Rev. A. E. Kolaszewski, Anton Rafalski, Joseph Pawlowski, Alexander Skarupski, John Kniola, Frank Lewandowski, Andrew Ruminski, Anton Falarski, Julian Bednarski, Jan Kotlewski, August Westfald.

The first of these signers states that the spirit of independence in worship is increasing among the Poles; that "independent churches are springing up everywhere, and that a million Poles are already worshipping in this independent spirit."

This is the old way. Oppression in priestly rule in which the common rights of the people were infringed or invaded, aroused men to protest; this met with the assertion of dogmatic church authority by church authorities, and revolt resulted. It may be that the spirit of aggression that has urged the Catholic Church to push its seeming superiority in the United States, seeking for and demanding universal rule, (as some are urging,) its zeal has overstepped proper bounds for the safety of the movement; and, while urging its conquests in one direction, the ancient dogmatism has attempted to crush by the use of denunciation and the employment of harsh names in another; and this protest from American Poles may be but the opening of the way to the secession of many from the Catholic fold.

There is an era of great distrust and general upheaval in religious and economic circles in the United States, and whither it may lead none but the Master can know.

THE WORK IN WALES.

BRO. J. H. EDWARDS, of Old Castle Road, Llanelly, Wales, gets a column in the Mercury, newspaper, of that place, for an exposition of the faith, which is quite able. The same paper contains a characteristic criticism on Bro. Edwards' position, by the review of the week editor, in which the point is made, that while there may still be radical differences between religionists as to form and dogma, the days of the fagot and the knife for heretics is past; the world really does move.

Mercury sent us by Bro. A. H. D. Edwards.

THE following is part of a reported speech by Miss Frances Willard on the occasion of a reception tendered on her return from Europe. It contains some good points:—

Woman is ordained to lead the vanguard of this great movement until the American public is borne across the abysmal transition from the superstitious notion that alcohol is food to the scientific fact that alcohol is poison. It is my firm conviction that in the new adjustment of society, after having conquered a firm foothold in the trades and professions, women will gradually withdraw from mechanical work and devote themselves to the noblest vocations that life affords—motherhood, reform work, and philanthropy. Reform and philanthropic movements are but associated efforts to make the world more homelike. Society and government have long been fathered, but they have not been mothered enough to make them normal. One side in the development will not continue many generations longer. With equal hands and equal pace, men and women will combine their efforts to develop in both law and custom, not the paternal but the parental quality, so that the kingdom of Mammon, of Bacchus, and of Venus may give way to that kingdom of home which is the best earthly representation of the kingdom of heaven. The armies of the present, with their munitions of materialistic warfare, must give way to the armies of industry. The practical mind seeks at once to know how a beginning can be made within its own environments.

THE following prison statistics from the last United States census show that crime is on the increase out of proportion to the increase of population:—

Year.	Prisoners.	Ratio of Population.
1850	6,737	1 out of 3,442
1860	19,086	1 out of 1,647
1870	32,901	1 out of 1,171
1880	58,609	1 out of 855
1890	82,329	1 out of 757

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. W. C. CATHER, recently ordained to the eldership in the Texas field, is traveling and preaching the word as circumstances permit. He writes that his ministrations have been confirmed by the blessings of the Holy Spirit in healing the sick and cheering the hearts of the scattered Saints. He wrote from Bryson, Texas, June 18:—

The Lord is recognizing my efforts in the work and I have been speaking most of the time with splendid liberty. Fifteen miles west of here are two families of Saints, and twenty miles east there are five more Saints. We are to meet here next Sunday and have prayer and sacrament meeting. Some of them have never enjoyed a meeting of that kind and none of them have until this summer. I shall do all in my power to make the occasion a profitable one to those present. Since I came to this country the 1st of April I have preached thirty-six times and walked nearly four hundred miles. Have endured some hardships, but as long as I can see souls rejoicing in the light, or I am pleasing the Master, I care nothing for my own inconvenience.

Bro. W. W. Blair, from Blenheim, Ontario, June 25:—

Bro. Lake and I held 3 services here yesterday, and continue to-night and to-morrow night, then go to Chatham, London, and be at Grand Valley for conference the 30th inst. to July 2. All goes prosperously in church work and prospects excellent.

Sr. L. O. Dawson, Ellensburg, Washington, wrote June 24, as follows:—

Will you please mention in the Herald that we have one hundred and sixty acres of land and wish some good, reliable person to take a share of it and help improve it. My husband's health is poor and money is so scarce that he is unable to improve it. We would be glad to have an elder so that we might have some preaching. The prospects are now good for having the ditch put through. Would like to hear from some one who is anxious to have a home and also do some work for the Lord. The five years have expired, and now we have right to a deed.

Bro. Cornish, from South Boardman, Michigan, July 2:—

Our conference here in the Northern Michigan district is over; we had a good one. I resigned the presidency of the district; Bro.

J. H. Peters was appointed. Six more were baptized. Some opposition by those of other faiths here yet, otherwise everything moves on nicely. They have their church here inclosed, and are trying to finish it this fall for winter use.

Bro. George H. Graves, colored, reports from Streator, June 30:—

Since June the 9th I have opened three new fields. At Joliet I preached Sunday, the 10th, to a nice crowd of people at the colored Baptist church. Monday, June 11, I preached to a full house at Braidwood, promising to return soon to both named places. The evening of the 12th I arrived here; been here ever since preaching, and trying to build up a people here. I have been blessed with good liberty. I have delivered nine sermons to the colored people, and one sermon in the city park, June 24, to about five or six hundred white people. Friday, June 22, I delivered a gospel sermon at Young Men's Christian Association Hall, to a good house, and by request of the city people I will speak to-night on the resurrection of the dead, and July first again in city park; subject, "Will a man rob God?"—Mal. 3. Brothers, pray for me that I may be blessed in God's work.

Bro. J. C. Foss, from Rockland, Maine, July 2:—

June 17, baptized six; last Sunday three more. I never had better liberty in the gospel than now; health has not been so good for years.

Bro. M. T. Short, from Bedford, Indiana, July 1:—

Last Sabbath I was with the Saints at Union branch, baptized a male adult and organized a Sunday school, but now I am in the frontier, so to speak. I trust to abide diligent, hopeful, cheerful, and true.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. DAVID SMITH secured an opening at Hubbard Lake, Michigan, a new place, early in June, and has continued to preach the word in the face of varied opposition, first in the form of Bible questions, which being ineffectual was followed by threats of violence, wordy abuse, etc. The sequel presented the explanation, however, for Bro. Smith baptized thirteen—all heads of families—and others promised to follow soon. A new church building is proposed by the newly baptized brethren. Bro. Smith was obliged to go elsewhere, but will return soon to follow up the effort. He says: "The good work rolls on and I am feeling well in it. Brethren, hold up the banner and all will be well."

One of the brethren sends us a clipping from a Centralia, Kansas, paper by which we learn that Bro. Joseph McDougal, living six miles south of that town was made the victim of a dastardly outrage. An incendiary set fire to his barn containing horses, grain, farming implements, wagons, harness, etc., all of which were destroyed, the horses miraculously escaping from the building, one being badly burned about the head. The neighborhood is aroused and steps are being taken to apprehend the incendiary. Bro. McDougal's loss was almost total.

Bro. Edson D. C. Smith, son of Uncle William B. Smith deceased, extends a cordial invitation to Brn. A. H. Smith, I. N. Roberts, and others of the general missionary force of that field to resume labor in the region where he resides. His post office address is Ben Franklin, Murray county, Minnesota; thirteen miles south of Walnut Grove on the Northwestern. It can also be reached from Avoca on the Minneapolis and Omaha road. He will meet at the train any who notify him of their coming. Allowance of time should be made for semi-weekly mail. Bro. Smith's letter indicates a hearty interest in the cause that he has spared no pains to bring to the attention of his friends and neighbors. As a result some desire baptism and others ministrations, and others await further preaching. He desires to hear from the missionary in charge.

The Herald Office is publishing a revised constitution and by-laws of Zion's Religion-Literary Society. Mailed to any address on receipt of stamp.

A letter from Bro. F. A. Smith dated Eagle Grove, Iowa, June 20, reports a successful series of meetings near Head Grove, where Brn. Hayer and Lewis, formerly of Mission, Illinois, and others of the Saints reside. One was baptized; others heard the word to whom the message was before unknown. Brn. Smith, Rudd, Weld, and Hand were the preachers. Bro. Smith reports numerous inquiries for Bro. I. N. W. Cooper and earnest hopes for his recovery and resumption of missionary labor. He made many friends, who desire his return to that field.

Bro. E. N. Beach, Flora Vista, New Mexico, writes requesting any of the elders who can to call on and administer to his mother, Sr. Mary M. Beach, who resides at Nederland, Boulder county, Colorado, about fifty miles from Denver, and who is seriously afflicted.

With ever increasing demands upon our space for the insertion of communicated articles and letters we are obliged to note or summarize the contents of letters that we cannot insert. Brethren and sisters whose letters do not appear will please remember that this is done only because of limited space. We solicit communications containing news of interest and will present the substance of those we cannot publish in full.

Bro. Hubert Case, writing from Smithland, Iowa, June 29, reports many believing and some near the kingdom in the field where Brn. Mintun, Montague, O. Case, and he are laboring.

The work is onward and the Saints moving upward at Boyne City, Michigan. So writes Bro. W. A. McClain.

The office cannot fill additional orders for the Intermediate and Primary grade Quarterly, for June, July, and August. All of the edition has been sent out.

Bro. I. P. Baggerly, from Mannville, Indiana, June 27, reports quite favorably of the work in the district. He states that the ministry, general and local, are doing nicely and are being quite well received. Bro. Baggerly was sent out as comparatively inexperienced, but earnest desire for the good of all, and a disposition to bear with what could not be helped and to learn by what he sees and hears, with the aid of the Spirit, are helping him to be a workman that "needeth not to be ashamed."

Bro. Richard Coburn wrote from Blenheim, Ontario, July 1, confirming the good reports of the late conference held at Wallaceburg, June 16-18 and the labors of Brn. W. W. Blair, J. H. Lake, and John Grant. Brn. Greene and Brown were holding grove meeting near Buxton.

Letters are received from Brn. J. S. Lippincott, Shelton, Nebraska; F. R. Tubb, London, England; A. H. D. Edwards, Pont-y-pridd, Wales; and will appear as space permits.

Bro. D. A. Huffhines is holding services at his home, Famous Post-office, Hamilton county, Illinois. He desires aid by brethren laboring in that field.

Bro. Marce Sorenson, who went into the Northern Texas field, came home on the 3d inst., accompanied by his eldest child. The sickness of his youngest child compelled him to return North.

Bro. J. W. Wight was the orator at Lucas, Iowa, July 4.

Bro. Robert Winning, of the College Committee, combined pleasure and business by spending the Fourth at Lamoni, remaining over until the 7th in the interest of the college movement. The work of laying out the college grounds goes forward.

Brn. Joseph Smith, William Anderson, and H. A. Stebbins held preaching services at Lone Rock, Missouri, on Sunday the 8th inst. Four were baptized and confirmed during the day, Bro. Stebbins officiating in the rite of baptism.

Bro. J. H. Bryce, formerly of Proton, Ontario, writes for printed matter for use in the lumber regions of Michigan. Hagenville, Michigan, is his post office address.

Brn. Duncan Campbell and F. E. Cochran held services with the Pleasanton, Iowa, Saints on Sunday, July 8. Obituaries and other miscellaneous matter crowded out of the present issue will appear next week.

The British Museum now has more than ten million books, and additions are being made at the rate of fifty thousand a year.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"The smallest effort is not lost;
Each wavelet on the ocean tossed
Aids in the ebb tide or the flow;
Each raindrop makes some floweret blow;
Each struggle lessens human woe."

"Live and take comfort, thou wilt leave behind
Powers that shall work for thee,
Earth, air, and skies,
There's not a breathing of the common wind
That will forget thee, thou
Hast great allies:
Thy friends are exaltations, agonies, and love,
And man's unconquerable mind."

HELPING HAND.

SR. CLARA FRICK writes from Independence, Missouri, that quite a number of the young sisters attend the meetings there. Those having them in charge are making every effort to interest all in coming. Not only those belonging to the church but any who are willing to attend. This is as it should be. God's blessings are free to all and his mercy is boundless. His gospel is intended to be the sovereign remedy for every ill of life.

A young friend writing us from the East says: "The Daughters of Zion is indeed a grand movement. The leaflets ought to have a wider circulation—be advertised and sold by the dozen as tracts are and never allowed to be out of print. The very idea of "Responsibility of parents" going at once out of print! I have agitated their reading among the Saints and have loaned them to refined, intelligent people out of the church and they are loud in their praise. A German professor of music that I loaned both 'Talks with Mothers' to thought they were splendid."

FULTON, Rock Co., Wis.

Dear Sisters:—We just received our Herald from the office this afternoon, and when reading the editorial of the Home Column, "Undone," and the verse above it, I wondered if those words did not apply to me too, and resolved "as the shades of evening close in around me" to take up my pen and add my mite to the others, to tell of the many blessings we have been enjoying here since I last wrote. Many times I have tried to find time to write but have been very busy, and tonight I scarcely know where to begin.

It was only two short years last Tuesday since my husband was born again of water and the Spirit and yet how much we have been blessed in that time. We used to pray so earnestly for him to obey the gospel, then after that for the privilege of attending church and communing with those of like precious faith, and then so earnestly that if there were any near us who would be faithful that they might be brought into the kingdom and we might rejoice in having Saints near us (for the nearest ones were about thirteen miles away). Now in those two short years all those prayers (with many others) have been answered. Bro. Dutton soon began holding meetings; a family of dear Saints moved into Janesville and threw open their house for meetings, and last August a branch was organized. My husband was chosen president and ordained an elder, the Spirit being present in mighty power to acknowledge his calling, and since that time we have been able to meet together nearly every first and third Sunday of each month (although fourteen miles distant), and we have seen and felt the power of God in our midst in many ways. Truly we have reason to praise his high and holy name.

Last fall we had the privilege of attending reunion in Grant county, Wisconsin, and had a happy time. While there we saw Bro. W. S. Pender restored to health when apparently very near the other world, but I know many, many prayers ascended for him. He could not well be spared from the Wisconsin field, and God saw fit through his servants' ministrations to restore him to health. We had invited him here to rest and recover health, and he came in the early part of winter, but not to rest. He began at once to preach the word in two schoolhouses each about four miles distant from us, and when not called to other places from that time till General Conference (about two weeks in one, I believe and four in the other altogether), he presented the gospel from beginning to end, keeping back no part of it and left a number believing but not quite ready to obey. It was hard to reach them at first and allay prejudice, but when he left they were very anxious for his return. They subscribed for the Ensign and some went to reading the Book of Mormon, and when he returned after one week's preaching two precious ones were led into the water and entered by the door into the kingdom. One, a young married woman loved by all, who had formerly been a Baptist and who had told me when she was convinced she would obey if all alone. The other, a fine young man, a member of the Congregational Church, who saw how much better the gospel plan was than that which he had obeyed so left it, although hard to cancel such popular, pleasant church relations for one so unpopular, but he looks happy and contented although only in the work two weeks. Last Sunday after three more sermons, two by Bro. W. A. McDowell and one by Bro. Pender, he baptized five more, two young ladies who had been members of the Congregational Church and one man and his wife, she a church member but he had never been interested before (and his poor old mother was down to the water's edge on crutches to see him baptized and she was rejoicing though she had never been interested before). The other was a sweet, grey-haired old lady between seventy and eighty whose mother was an old time Latter Day Saint, all nice people and living from three to four miles from us. So have we not reason to rejoice? There are others very near the kingdom, so now we can have prayer meeting, and did last Thursday, and enjoyed it so much. Surely we have reason to believe God answers prayer and rewards as we journey on. I forgot to mention a young brother was baptized a year ago last January and went up in that neighborhood to live, and he too was praying for those people and trying to live his religion among them.

I think the Prayer Union a noble work but have not yet seen my way clear to join it.

And the Daughters of Zion I want to join, and so does a sister-in-law not in the church, and perhaps some of our new members will in time. I have not asked them yet, all is so new to them. I think the Leaflets so good and instructive and hope we can continue to profit by them. I have one little boy five years old whom I hope to see trained aright and I feel myself very weak and incompetent for the task, so I am watching, dear sisters, for all the good advice you can give. He is a wayward little fellow and I often get impatient and do what I am sorry for. We had a little girl intrusted to our care for a year, but the way was opened for her parents to take her again, so we gave her up, but I pray she may be a child of the kingdom. She was only a little over two years old when she left me, but says her little prayer and asks the Lord to bless Bro. Pender every night. She occupied much of my time was one reason I did not write. I must close. I fear I have been too lengthy already. I know Sister Mary Hinds will rejoice to hear we have more Saints. Wish she would answer my letter. Please pray for us here that the good work may go on. We are lonely now as the elders have left us, but hope they may return.

Your sister in the one faith,

MARY HOAGUE.

LONDON, England.

Dear Sisters:—It is with joy I feel led at this moment to write a few lines to the Column. I thank my heavenly Father that he has permitted me to know this gospel of Jesus Christ in these last days. Many testimonies have I had since I became acquainted with this work. It is nearly six years now since I was baptized. Although I have not done my duty as I ought to have done, yet withal the Lord has blessed me in very deed. God is ever mindful of his children, not only in the time of health, but also in the time of sickness. It seemed to be the will of the Lord that I should be laid upon a sick bed for over three months, with two children who could not help themselves. One day at noon I dozed to sleep, while pondering over the goodness and mercy of God. I beheld, as though in vision, some of the dear faces of the Saints in our branch, and they were standing around singing that beautiful hymn 711 in Saints' Harp, and when the voices ceased, a still small voice whispered to me, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

When I awoke I saw the nurse and doctor gazing at my trembling form, as though in alarm. In very deed the Lord is good to his children. One of my children is now with the Lord who gave it. "Thy will, not mine, O Lord, be done." May we rely on his Holy Spirit to guide us to bring up our children in the gospel light is my prayer.

SR. HANNAH WELLS.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SR. REBECCA SHIPPY writes from Grove Hill, Iowa: "We are striving to do what we can to keep the Grove Hill branch alive. We are so scattered but meet every two weeks for prayer and testimony. It is quite encouraging when an elder comes and preaches a few sermons. It gives us strength in this latter-day work. Brother Roth was here three weeks ago. He preached twice at Grove Hill and on Sunday afternoon at the Methodist church in Fairbank, and he preached several times at Oran Center and baptized two there."

Sr. Jennie Barrett of Hardy, Nebraska, in writing says: "I do not know what I would do without the Herald and Leaves. They contain so many loving words of comfort and cheer. I know the prayers of the Saints are heard and answered and I ask an interest in them because I feel the need of them. I feel that I never can be thankful enough, nor do enough for the Lord to repay him for what he has done for me. He has always heard and answered my prayers, and no matter how dark or threatening the clouds, they always have a silver lining."

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SR. CASSIE WILCOX of East Delavan, Wisconsin, asks your faith and prayers that her husband may overcome the habit of using tobacco.

Mrs. Burt of Beeville, Texas, earnestly desires your prayers in behalf of her little son, Morris, that if it be God's will his life may be spared.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JULY.

PETITION.

"More holiness give me,
More sweetness within,
More patience in suffering,
More sorrow for sin;
More faith in my Savior,
More sense of his care;
More joy in his service,
More purpose in prayer.

"More purity give me,
More strength to overcome;
More freedom from earth-stains,
More longing for home.
More fit for the kingdom,
More used would I be:
More blessed and holy,
More, Savior, like thee."

Memory Verses.—Romans 15: 5-7.

Thursday, July 12.—Our families. Prayer for the members of our families by name, and for the families of each other and those of the ministry. For the youth of the church in general.

Memory Verses.—2 Corinthians 6: 14, 17, 18.

Thursday, July 19.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses.—2 Corinthians 9: 6, 7.

Thursday, July 26.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verses.—Psalm 67: 3, 4.

BYRNEVILLE, Ind., June 20.

Editors Herald:—Just home from the district conference. It was the grandest one we have had in this district for five or six years. Everything went off in the spirit of union and love. May the brethren ever remember that it is best to labor in union, if all things do not go at the present as we think they should. I can realize the great benefit derived in laboring systematically. There is no necessity in the elders running from one side of the field to the other in order to get to preach the gospel. This takes up too much time and money. I appreciate the way Bro. I. P. Baggerly has divided our field. It puts us in our field near home, giving to each one of us new ground to occupy. This will enable us to work in harmony with the revelation given to push the work into new fields. One will ask the question, What if I cannot get houses to preach in? What then must I do? We will let the Savior answer it: "And into whatsoever city or town ye shall enter, inquire who in it is worthy; and there abide till ye go thence. And when ye come into a house, salute it. And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you. And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet."—Matt. 10: 11.

If we can't get houses to preach in we can go from house to house and do fireside preaching; or if you meet a man on your journey, if convenient with him, just stop and deliver him the gospel message as the message is to every creature. We see that the apostles practiced this manner of getting the gospel before the world from the fact that we find recorded in Acts 2: 46 where "they continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart." In Acts 20: 20 Paul went from house to house. I do not think our day is an exception. We see further that the apostle went daily in the temple and in every house and ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ. The conversion of the eunuch—who was a man of great authority under Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, and so greatly did the queen esteem him that he had charge of all her treasure—when we realize that such men as that were converted to the cause of Christ, and especially men like Paul being converted to the Christian faith without a multitude being present, might we not try the same rule in our day and it prove beneficial now as well as then? We think so. I believe if we will seek to present the gospel to all whom we have a chance to speak to we will accomplish a great work and by so doing in many instances will get a house to preach in.

On my way home from conference on Tuesday I was found doing this kind of work on the cars. I became so much interested in telling the story when I arrived at the station where I was to get off that I was caught away with Nahum's chariot to the next station. What was the conductor's loss was my gain; it brought me two miles closer home. So you see a man loses nothing in the service of the Lord. I leave on Saturday for Depau. I heard yesterday that a man there said he was going to debate with me at that place. I find debaters scarce in this part of the field. I guess he wants us to come in his den to hear him. If it is a case of note we will refer it to the missionary in charge and he can select a man to meet him.

In bonds and at work,

GEORGE JENKINS.

FLORA, Ill., June 29.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Morris and I closed our meetings last Sunday in the vicinity of Walpole and Cantrell. While there, being challenged, I arranged for a discussion with W. J. Moore of the Missionary Baptist Church to commence September 17 at Unity Church, three days to be devoted to each proposition. The proposition reads for each respective church as follows: "The church with which I stand identified has all the Scriptural marks of the church established by Christ."

The weather being extremely hot and the people so busy farming, I have concluded it wise for me to go home for a few days rest, as I find my health failing. Brn. Slover and Morris have been laboring faithfully and the Lord has truly blessed us. Certain localities are very dry and corn and pasture are needing rain badly. Apples and peaches are a failure in Southern Illinois. I hope the Saints will not lose sight of the reunion commencing on August 31 and holding over two Sundays, at Brush Creek.

Yours for truth,

EMSLEY CURTIS.

PLEASANT GROVE, Utah, June 21.

Editors Herald:—Permit me through your precious columns to appeal to the Saints in general for a little aid in this our hour of need. The Saints here number nine families all told, and all are poor. There are others who live in other settlements that belong to this branch who are poor also, but notwithstanding our poverty, the Pleasant Grove Saints have bought a church lot for which the Bishop holds the deed in trust for the church. I mention this so that all who may feel to contribute will know that it will be to the church and not to individuals. The lot cost two hundred and fifty dollars, which by hard work and sacrifice we have paid, and by the earnest and persistent effort of William G. Sterret, J. C. Jensen, and H. J. Radmall we have got the foundation in and the floor joists on ready for the brick and adobies which have been contributed and will be on the ground before long. We also have something like twenty dollars on hand with which to buy the lumber to make our door and window frames, which we expect to have made soon and ready for use. Our Sisters' Mite Society has done noble work by making quilts and selling them, which has furnished us with the money to buy the lumber for frames.

All the above a few of us in this place have done with the exception of five dollars sent us by Bro. John Grimmitt of Lander, Wyoming, and as it is very hard times and we are all men of families and poor and have to work hard for what of this world's goods we get, having to fight against strong opposition to hold the fort against great odds, and when we are putting forth almost a super-human effort to build us a house wherein we can worship God according to the pure gospel without let or hindrance as do many of our eastern brethren and sisters, we therefore appeal to our dear brethren and sisters for a little assistance. A little from each of those who are able to give would be a big help to us and would not be felt by them. We intend to have our house ready for use this winter whether we receive any outside help or not, although it will require a big sacrifice and lots of hard work for us to do it; but where there is a will there is a way. All who may feel to contribute can do so by express or post office money order or registered letter. Make all remittances to Bro. J. C. Jensen, treasurer of building committee, or to Sister Chariotie Richings, treasurer of soliciting committee. All money received will be receipted for promptly. Your brother,

H. B. STERRETT.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., June 20.

Editors Herald:—Good news from the church is like refreshing showers to the thirsty earth, so Saints thirsting for the good things of the kingdom should hear through the Herald when the Lord is remembering Zion.

"Children's Sunday" was the programme for Independence worshippers last Sunday. Upon entering the large auditorium we were surprised, dazzled, pleased, with the very genteel and at the same time elaborate preparation of the large gallery decorated with wreaths of oak leaves; the columns festooned with green garlands and flowers. A large arch was erected above the choir, while oleanders, ferns, lilies, and plants of varied hue and fragrance all blending together in one volume of harmony of colors. The artist who guided the decorations was not color blind.

We were told that the young ladies assisted by the boys did it all. This caused us to rejoice that our young people were developing taste for the grandeur of Zion.

Superintendent Wallace N. Robinson was in charge of the exercises. If Bro. Wallace will be able to present the gospel to the world as well as he can handle a multitude of children, then indeed will his power for good be blessed to the church. Singing and prayer by Bro. H. R. Mills opened the exercises; anthems by the choir, and also by the school, were the order of exercises; an address by the branch president, subject, "Train up a child in the way he should go." The pattern was the child of Nazareth; the burden of the address was to the fathers and mothers to educate their children, so that, "Jesus like," at twelve years of age the children of the Saints might hear and ask questions of the doctors of to-day.

After the morning services the Saints repaired to the font at Bro. Warnky's yard, where twelve of the children were buried in baptism, the president of the branch officiating. The day was beautiful and the assembly earnest and solemn. The order was perfect; joy filled all hearts. The afternoon service was a spiritual feast. Elders Franklin, George Harrington, Robert Parker, and W. N. Robinson confirming those baptized; while brethren Luff and H. R. Mills blessed a number of children.

The evening service was a volume. Music mingled with flowers and singing birds, the house being filled to the full; addresses by the children, anthems by the choir and Sunday school, with a short address by the presiding elder upon the responsibility of parents to their children, citing the evils of neglect, as that of the old priest Eli, and of the confidence of God in the man who would command his children as did Abraham. The day closed with joy and gratitude to the Giver of all good that the people were permitted to dwell in Zion.

Yours,

INFORMER.

RUSHVILLE, Neb., June 24.

Editors Herald:—The Lord is working in this part of his vineyard. On Sunday the 17th I had the pleasure of leading three more precious souls in the water. We had a joyful meeting; the Spirit of God was with us. There are several more near the kingdom. Would like to have some of the appointees that are to labor in Southwestern Nebraska call on the Elkhorn branch and preach for them. They will find a pleasant home with the Saints and friends. They have no elder with them at present, as the writer intends to leave for Minnesota.

I ordained one priest and teacher to take charge of the branch. It is in good condition now. Have baptized eight since February last. Felt more of the Spirit of God than ever before when in the work.

Yours in the work,

P. W. PREMO.

LOGAN, Utah, June 24.

Editors Herald:—The orthodox Mormons want nothing to do with the Reorganized Church nor the sons of Joseph. The wonderful weapon forged by Elder B. H. Roberts, "Succession in the Presidency of the Church," is not the formidable weapon they hoped it would be. Indeed, it is a kind of a two-edged sword, liable to cut two ways, or a sort of boomerang. Anyway, the Presidency have considered it a dangerous weapon to use and have forbidden the elders to debate the question it treats upon—but it is sold to church people to read. To them it is a clincher and needs no discussion, and just as long as they can keep the people from hearing the other side they are beyond the danger line; and that is the policy now and always has been. Elder Roberts gives their case clear away when he admits that the church was divided into factions, when he examines the claims of Rigdon, Strang, and others as leaders of the church. Of course they were all wrong in his estimation—all but Brigham and his successors. If President Woodruff has a few more revelations after the manner of his last one on the temple service in the valleys, there will be no need of discussing; for they admit they were wrong in that to them all-important work. B. H. Roberts will have to revise his book and eliminate his chapter on temple work and President Woodruff's testimony in his book, or else go back on his last revelation on sealing and the adoption business. President Woodruff claimed to have a revelation commanding the people to stop the practice of polygamy; and now he calls a halt in temple work and says: "We have not fully carried out those principles in fulfillment of the revelations of God to us, in sealing the hearts of the fathers to the children and the children to the fathers. I have not felt satisfied, neither did President Taylor, neither has any man since the Prophet Joseph who has attended to the ordinance of adoption in the temples of our God. We felt that there was more to be revealed upon this subject than we had received. Revelations were given to us in the St. George temple which President Young presented to the Church of God. Changes were made there and we still have more changes to make in order to satisfy our heavenly Father, satisfy our dead and ourselves." Here is a frank confession that they have not kept the commandments of God: that changes were made and more were to be made; that neither they nor their dead were satisfied with their work from the days of Joseph till now. That just about scoops the whole thing. Surely those ordinations to the priesthood for the dead that Elder Roberts so confidently points to on page 109 of his book to prove they are right prove just to the opposite in the light of President Woodruff's revelation.

President Woodruff again says of President Brigham Young: "He organized these temples and carried out the purposes of his calling and office." That is just what we claim; that he changed the ordinances (as here admitted) and broke the everlasting covenant and led the people astray. President Woodruff says: "I have not felt satisfied; President Young was not satisfied in his mind with regard to this matter. President Taylor was not, neither has any man since the Prophet Joseph." Counselor George Q. Cannon in explaining the position now taken by the church tells what he saw and knew of in Nauvoo and says: "From that day until the present I have never thought of this subject of adoption without having a certain amount of fear concerning it." No wonder the presidents of the church in Utah have forbidden the elders to discuss the questions of succession and the gathering to Utah for Zion. With all these admissions the people are perfectly satisfied, or seem to be, but inside we hear of an internal working and spirit of discontent; but it has not yet got to the surface. Will it ever work out? Quien sabe? In the Doctrine and Covenants it is written: "The works, and the designs, and the purposes of God, cannot be frustrated, neither can they come to naught."—Sec. 2. So we must conclude that polygamy and the temple works were only works of men because both have been frustrated, if not brought to nought, according to their own admission.

Since my return I have preached in Salt Lake City, Pleasant Grove, Provo, Salem, Fairfield, Heber City, Ogden, and Plain City.

I have never seen our people feeling better than now. They exhibit a deeper interest in the church than ever before; while the people of the dominant party manifest no interest in our cause. The decision of the Temple Lot suit in our favor is regarded with disfavor and by many considered as next thing to a steal on our part. I have been told by several that they will get it yet; that the Lord will bring it about in time. From the present outlook here now the prospects are not at all flattering for missionary work. At Heber City I occupied the M. E. church for five evenings and had fair audiences. I there looked after the temple service here and the Methodist parson told President Hatch that I said the Lord did not sanction their temple work here; that it must be done in Independence. The president said they would have one of their temples moved down and set up on the lot for our accommodation. I told him that was very kind of him and I would not object to that.

I arrived here yesterday from Willard. I preached here and will speak to-night again. I am going from here to Soda Springs. I rejoice in the spread of the work by others.

Yours in bonds,

R. J. ANTHONY.

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, June 29.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Hilliard left the Nodaway district on the 26th inst. His work was a success; all believed and nearly all complied with the law; and the logical manner in which he presented the gospel was satisfactory to all, both members and non-members. He left for the Southwestern Kansas district. Long may he live to work in so noble a cause.

We hope the Saints of the Fremont district will not forget the two-days' meeting to be at Hamburg, Iowa, July 14 and 15. Turn out, brethren, and give the Saints and friends of that place all the encouragement you can. We hope the Saints of Plum Hollow and Shenandoah will not forget it.

HENRY KEMP.

FLORA, Wis., June 21.

Editors Herald:—After General Conference I left immediately for my field of labor, stopping over Sunday at Des Moines in company with Brn. J. S. Roth and J. B. Roush. On Saturday Bro Roush and I took a tour around the city; our special object being to visit the State Library to examine Boudinot's "Star of the West," a book on American antiquities; but we failed to find the book either in the State or city library. However, we obtained a good view of the Capitol, of which the Hawkeyes may well be proud. I preached in the Saints church there on Saturday and Sunday evenings to attentive listeners, not all of whom were Saints. While there I met Bro. Victor Gunsolley, whom I knew in Western Iowa.

Well, it was a treat to meet those whom in our boyhood days we knew as Saints or Saints' children, for in those days we lived twenty miles from a branch. It causes a peculiar feeling to come over one to look at the then and now. Then there were a number of boys of whom I was one, and among them Prof. Gunsolley of Lamoni, and his brother in Des Moines; also Bro. Goreham of Des Moines, and Bro. F. J. Chatburn of Denver; and not far away were the Butterworth boys, all of whom have taken a prominent part in the latter-day work. Little did I then think that one so worthless as I would ever be called on to help carry the gospel to others. But here I am in Wisconsin and my home five hundred miles away, where I have not been in three years. I fully intended to have visited my home after the General Conference, but in consequence of a lack of finances and a desire to be about the Master's work I sacrificed my personal enjoyment for the good of the work, which was the more of a sacrifice if I could tell you my love for home.

Not every one had so good a home and wise and careful parents, whose children's interests were their own; and when in older boyhood days a stepmother came to take the place of a mother whose good instruction I still remember and who so thoroughly accomplished her work that God released her from this world's care, there still remained in our home the same careful, peaceful spirit as before; and the good instruction and example still continued, for which I am grateful.

I parted with Brn. Roth and Roush at Des Moines and proceeded to Osterdock, once the home of Uncle William B. Smith; but the Cumberland Presbyterians were occupying the only suitable place in the town for holding services; and in consequence of Bro. Kephart's getting a dish of ancient eggs served in the usual style the week before, we occupied a schoolhouse six miles west of town with excellent attention and liberty. I hope the brethren will not forget that place. I preached in town, however, the last night in Iowa, and next morning I heard there were eggs on hand the night before, but for some reason they were not thrown. We were warned of the danger, but as we had met that argument before with a few bullets thrown in for seasoning, we did our duty anyway.

Arriving in the Badger State, May 7, I preached a week at Wyalusing and baptized a noted infidel by the name of John F. Ingerson, but who usually went by the name of "Ingersoll." While there I encountered a Congregational district convention. Space will not permit me to give you the particulars. Bro. Wildermuth arrived on the 15th of May and we commenced meetings at Bradville and continued until Decoration Day, when I had the privilege of correcting some misstatements concerning what I said there a year ago. As Bro. Wildermuth and I were appointed to operate the district tent this season, we laid aside our ministerial garbs for a week and donned the carpenter's apron and with hammer and saw worked at making camp stools, tent stakes, cots, table, and such necessary equipments as we needed to keep house with. Sr. Wildermuth joined us June 2 and the same day we moved eighteen miles, pitched our tent at this place, and had services that evening. This makes our third week here during which time we have baptized five, the last a young man of excellent ability whose parents were bitterly opposed to his being baptized. I have noticed that the elders usually baptize only those of "excellent ability," but if I have baptized those of excellent ability, surely this young man was not one whit behind any of them. For a year he has been a very faithful attendant at the prayer meetings, taking part in them as faithfully as any of the members; but as he was not of age until recently, he delayed his baptism until now.

On last Friday night, by vote of the branch, we had an ice cream sociable in the tent, the proceeds of which went towards starting us out with the tent. We are now fairly equipped for work, and with the assistance of a few dollars we think to do much good this season. The Saints are getting along nicely here. The Spirit of the Master is with us and we feel happy. May Zion's cause prosper until it shall accomplish its purpose.

In gospel bonds,

J. W. PETERSON.

WEST MANSFIELD, Mass., June 26.

Editors Herald:—Bro. F. M. Sheehy and the writer came here on Saturday last and pitched a nice new tent. Our seats did not arrive on time, however, so we could not hold meetings on Sunday, but we met with the local church, attending three of their services at which we were invited to take part. The pastor also kindly gave notice of our meetings and requested his congregation to attend. The lines may be drawn a little closer before we are ready to move. Bro. Sheehy spoke to a good congregation on last night and many expressed themselves as pleased with the thoughts presented. Tent work is new for us, but we trust much good may be done.

Hastily,

GEORGE W. ROBLEY.

INDEPENDENCE, Ore., June 15.

Editors Herald:—I am in my field of labor. I left San Benito the 2d, stopping at Irvington and Haywards. At Haywards I met a small band of faithful Saints who are trying to keep a candle burning to give light to the people. Their work is good and their reward is sure. We spoke for them in the morning, and in the afternoon went on and attended meeting in Oakland, where we had the pleasure of meeting and hearing Bro. Mark H. Forscutt, who is doing a good work in his field both by his able pulpit work and in his social intercourse with the people. San Francisco and Oakland have now what those branches have long needed—an efficient man who can give his whole time to the work. The effects of Bro. Mark's work is being seen already in the increase in membership, attendance, and interest. On Thursday we took train for this land of mud and rain to find the rain pouring down and mud everywhere. I have taken a very severe cold, which totally unfits me for speaking; but it is of no consequence—only the suffering one has to endure, for so far I see little opportunity for preaching, but hope to as soon as I get acquainted with the situation. I have it all to learn—one of the hindrances and mistakes of being sent into a new field. But I trust obstacles may be removed in time and some good be done. I am stopping at the hospitable home of Bro. J. J. Leobo, a convert of Brn. Daley and Haws. Himself and family are strong in the faith; may God bless and keep them so. Bro. Jaspersen and wife are still holding the fort in Independence. I find Brn. Daley and Haws' work here highly spoken of by the Saints.

It is an unusual wet summer here, and that is saying a great deal for this country. I am afraid it is going to be bad for ministerial work. So far it has been very unfavorable. We will hope for the best and pray God to hasten the day of deliverance.

Address: Sweet Home, Linn county, Oregon.

Yours in the faith,

HIRAM L. HOLT.

FRESNO, Cal., June 22.

Editors Herald:—I wish you would print the following request as soon as possible after it comes to hand as we are very much in want of reading matter to give away here and in other places:—

Request: I wish all those who have a lot of printed sermons on hand who do not want to keep them would send them to us. It will require only a two cent stamp to send a dozen of them, and we can do a great amount of good with them. I ask the Saints of California especially to remember this request. Send as soon as possible, to Fresno, Fresno county, California, all the extra reading matter that you have.

We are holding the fort every night and having very good attention with as many turning out as could be expected under the circumstances. Bro. D. Brown is with me at present, but I expect Bro. J. H. Lawn here on the 29th, when we will try to make a little more stir. We do not expect to set the world on fire, nor do we see such a wonderful increase of interest in this State as some others may in other parts of the State; but we expect to have to work hard, faithfully, and long to open new places and get up the interest that others so much appreciate. This is a very hard field with but few Saints anywhere in this part to help sustain the tent.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

A. HAWS.

OSTERDOCK, Iowa, June 17.

Editors Herald:—I have recently returned from a trip to Brush Creek where Elder J. S. Roth and my husband (W. H. Kephart) have been holding meetings. This is the first I have met with any of the Saints outside of our little branch, and I find it is not only "good to be a Saint," but it is also good to be among them.

We made our home with Bro. and Sr. B. F. Miller, who did all they could to make us comfortable and to feel at home.

Elder Roth held meetings in the town, and my husband held the fort four miles from there. Bro. Miller succeeded in getting the U. B. church, and Elder Roth's preaching did much good in removing strong prejudice and changing bitter enemies into firm friends. One Christian and two U. B. ministers came out to hear him preach and they had to acknowledge that he preached the gospel in all its fullness. Bro. Roth was permitted to baptize two precious souls, one the head of a family, the other a young man sixteen years of age; and so the work goes on.

It is not quite a year since I left the Baptist Church and stepped into a higher and clearer atmosphere by obeying all the gospel and thus receiving twofold more blessings in this world and if faithful a full reward in the life to come. O how many times a day I thank my Heavenly Father that he permitted me to hear the restored gospel and led me by his Holy Spirit to obey the same! God grant that I may so live this gospel that I may be found among those that shall come forth at the first resurrection, and share the joys of those who shall be heirs of his celestial kingdom is the prayer of your sister in Christ,

FLORA KEPHART.

PIPESTONE, Minn., June 30.

Editors Herald:—I continued the work in Magnolia for three weeks with fair attendance and good results. Many there believe the doctrine, but for popularity's sake stand back, which makes others stand out. Some good, noble souls gave their names for baptism, but their husbands would not allow them to be baptized. God pity them, I pray!

I left Magnolia and went to Salem, South Dakota, and began work in my new field. I found many waiting to hear the gospel. Found Bro. F. M. Campbell very low, two doctors attending him, the trouble being cold in the head. The doctors bored a hole in his head and took out a large amount of pus, after which he began to recover and at last accounts was doing well. I held a number of meetings while there, baptizing and doing other church work belonging to a missionary. I went from there up into Miner county and stirred up a few. Some were baptized; others investigating. From there I started en route for North Dakota. Stopped at Magnolia; spoke there on Saturday night and Sunday morning. In the afternoon Mr. Poket drove me to Valley Springs, South Dakota, where I was greeted with a large crowd of people. I spoke to them again on Monday night, and a good work is started there. I left on Tuesday morning for this place, only to stop off and get my mail and make a change in my clothing; but I am here yet.

On my arrival here at Bro. A. F. Henderson's I found Sr. Henderson's brother, William H. Gordon, slowly passing away. Their wish was for me to stay, so I did. On Thursday morning he breathed his last, and on Friday the 28th I preached his funeral sermon to a large crowd of friends and relatives. Thirty-one teams followed to the cemetery. He leaves a wife, father, one brother, and six sisters to mourn his decease. He was a believer in the latter-day gospel and had he not been taken away so soon would have obeyed it. I will stay here over Sunday and then go north to assist Bro. Sparling in a debate that is pending between him and a Congregational minister. The question to be discussed I am not advised of. The Methodists are holding a camp meeting in this city. I have attended some, but have never been invited to take part in the exercises. There is a goodly number of ministers here and as usual after the sermon these men go through the crowd trying to pull some forward to the anxious seat, and of course as I was in the crowd I had to share that part with the rest. One young preacher came up to me and asked me if I was a Christian. I told him I represented the Church of Christ. He stammered and said, "What church is that?" I answered, "Are you a minister of the gospel and don't know which is Christ's Church?" He left me then and I had no more visits from them. They know me; he has pointed me out to the rest.

I have baptized twenty-five since General Conference and a number of others are near the kingdom. O, that I had some help! I pray the good Lord to send more laborers.

In bonds,

I. N. ROBERTS.

CHICAGO, Illinois, June 29.

Editors Herald:—Our district conference at De Kalb on the 23d was a success. A good representation from the branches of the district was present and the best of unity and peace prevailed. All the services were well attended. The speakers were Elders A. J. Keck, W. Vickery, T. Hougas, and the writer. On Sunday evening the hall was well filled principally by strangers to the faith. The best of attention was paid and a deep interest was manifest.

The De Kalb branch is less than a year old, but is making for itself an excellent record. It has a good hall where regular services are held and its influence is felt for good among the citizens of the town, a number of whom very kindly entertained some of the conference guests. Three were confirmed, two of whom were baptized a few days before conference, and one during conference. Others are investigating—all excellent people.

The officers of the district were sustained. Our next conference convenes at Mission. "Zion prospers, all is well." Yours,

F. G. PITT.

CLIFFORD, N. Dak., June 27.

Editors Herald:—I have pleasure in reporting the liveliest interest there has ever been at this place, and this applies to others besides the Saints. There is a wonderful activity among the "shepherds" (?). When I just struck these parts it pained my heart to see the sheep wandering on the mountains of sin, in danger of the "roaring lion;" so I undertook to feed them a little of the "milk of the word," as they were rather weakly. Now a person would suppose that the former shepherds would have been glad, but, lo and behold, when they eventually awoke (for they had evidently been sleeping) they unitedly assisted in endeavoring to drive me off. But the sheep evidently liked the milk because it was pure, and a few are following and staying by me.

Of course the first thing was to wash them. I have now got nine in all; five of them on Monday the 25th, and I expect to dip again in a few days. Bro. Swen Swenson is now here assisting with all his heart, and I am no little indebted to his wise counsel and more extensive experience; also to Bro. I. N. Roberts, who was here last fall and who is to be with me again in a few days, the Lord willing.

Rev. Gillespie of the Congregational faith challenged me twice in a very peremptory manner to come forward and he would show the people, etc. I sent the gentleman a copy of the Epitome of faith and doctrine, offering to affirm all or any part of the same on condition that he would affirm the "Congregational" faith an equal number of sessions. Since then, however, all is quiet along the Potomac. Congratulations to comrades all along the line.

Yours to the end of the war,
WILLIAM SPARLING.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 29.

Editors Herald:—On the 2d of the present month I went into the Wyoming, Pennsylvania, district; Bro. Henry C. Smith accompanied me as far as Binghamton, where, by agreement, we separated; he going to East Pharsalia, New York. At Scranton I met with Bro. H. H. Robinson and we decided to hold a few meetings there. Bro. Robinson secured the use of the cooperative hall where we held six services. The attendance was not large, but those present manifested an appreciative interest in what was said, and contributed cheerfully to pay the hall rent.

There are a number of the church membership residing in and about Scranton, but not in sufficient force and influence to hold meetings. All manifest a commendable zeal for the work in point of profession of faith, at least, and would like to see it brought to an influential and practical working prominence in the community. To accomplish this some are willing to aid, but they need the assistance of a strong and influential helper to reside there and be ever present with them. Those who take the church papers keep along fairly well with its progress.

We visited a number of the Saints and friends both in Scranton and in and about Plymouth, making ourselves as useful and agreeable as we knew how. Sisters Isaacs and Jones spent a day in calling on and presenting us to a number of their acquaintances, whom we tried to impress favorably with the thought that there is some good fruitage among the inhabitants of Zion. At Bro. Baldwin's we met in a prayer service one evening by chance, but there were only a few present. At Locksville the Presbyterians and Campbellites rejected our proffer of service by not permitting us the use of either of their churches, yet no service had been held in the Presbyterian church for a long time. These assumed leaders of the people presume to think, it would seem, that they possess a kind of preferred right or patent on the Almighty and the gate of heaven, and that they are the exclusively appointed sentinels to determine as to who shall enter there. To hear them talk sometimes, however, one might easily be led into the error of believing that they are the incarnation of all that is humane, tolerant, liberal, progressive, and Christlike; but, as of old, the tree is known by its fruits. So far Sr. E. Blowers and friends appear to be the salt of Locksville.

Through the kindness of Bro. William J.

Thomas in permitting us the use of his horse and buggy, we visited Bro. and Sr. Van Why, and Bro. and Sr. Williams, at Bald Mountain. They appeared zealous in the work and are trying to enlighten their neighbors. With a favorable opportunity and the cause may find a footing there.

The Scranton Tribune gave a favorable notice of our presence in that city and faith, over a prominent heading and containing two thirds of a column of space. The closing paragraph reads as follows:—

"They believe in the laying on of hands and all the other practices of the apostles, claim to be endowed with the gift of tongues at their gatherings, reject polygamy, but profess to believe in direct revelation from God as in days of old. In fact, they claim to have gone back to the belief, purity, and practices of the church as they existed in the time of the apostles."

Bro. Robinson went into Southern Central Pennsylvania, and on the 19th inst. I came to this city. The following day I met with Bro. Henry C. Smith. He had arrived from East Pharsalia, and reports a good work done in that place. Bro. Smith is improved in health and is feeling well in spirit. We have joined with the brethren here in holding meetings with every opportunity since our arrival. The brethren have secured a commodious and attractive place for holding meetings. They need an efficient, constant helper for a time; but he is not at hand. Bro. Smith's efforts on Sunday were excellent and well received. The hard times press down heavily here; the poorer classes are driven hard to keep the wolf from the door. There is much unrest and disquiet. The unearthing of the sins of Tammany, the police frauds in New York City, the assassination of the President of the French Republic, Senator Hill's speech against the income tax, what will be the effect of the workings of the present tariff bill when passed, are the sensational and interesting topics of the hour.

Brn. A. H. Parsons and Alfred Kent are testing the practical workings of tent work at New Park, Pennsylvania, with a hopeful beginning; and Bro. F. M. Sheehy et al. are doing likewise in Massachusetts; so we are marching on.

On the evening of the 26th, the writer united in marriage, Mr. Holly Truman and Miss Elizabeth Mary Caroline Herbert, at No. 230 Pulaski street, Brooklyn, New York. Invited guests spent the evening merrily with the happy pair.

Our reunion is to be held at Tenant's Harbor, Maine, beginning on the 10th of August.

Mohammedanism is largely on the increase in the British West African colony of Sierra Leone, one tenth of the population now being of that faith. A State-aided branch of the Church of England exists there, and practically all denominations of Christians have missionaries in the colony.

THE APOSTASY AND THE RESTORATION.—No. 5.

BY ELDER C. SCOTT.

THE LAYING ON OF HANDS, ETC.

THE laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost and the office work of the Holy Ghost in the church or kingdom of God embraces a highly important chapter in their relation to the restitution of all things spoken of by all the holy prophets, being some of the chief elements therein (Acts 3:19-21), one that cannot be omitted and the subject yet be clearly set forth. The ordinance of the laying on of hands for the reception of the Holy Ghost is either a gospel ordinance or it is not; if it is, the gospel is not fully administered when this ordinance is omitted; if it is not, the doctrine of Christ contains one "principle" too many! If not a gospel ordinance, Christ revealed to Paul one principle of doctrine too many (see Gal. 1:11, 12; Acts 19:1-6; Heb. 6:1-3); and the same mistake occurred in the administration of the "keys of the kingdom of heaven" by the other apostles of Christ. (Matt. 16:19; Acts 8:14-17.) If the wise of the present age who reject this ordinance are correct in their conclusions, the apostles of Christ were wrong; and with all the inspiration of the Holy Ghost possessed by them were mistaken. We can reach no other conclusion and believe the New Testament to be the word of God. Were the ancient apostles with the eternal Godhead to guide them mistaken? Is God's eternal word, or some poor, fallible human interpretation of it, to be our guide? Reader, render here a righteous judgment.

The gospel, as we have before observed, consists not of "word only, but [it comes] also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance." (1 Thess. 1:5.) The primary office work of the Holy Ghost in the church seems to be to dwell therein, as the spirit in man; to animate, be the life, light, and power of the body of Christ. The church is to be "for a habitation of God through the Spirit." (Eph. 2:22.)

The temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.—2 Cor. 6:16.

The Holy Ghost thus directing the church, in accordance with the law of God, enables it to carry into effect the Savior's prayer: "Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven."—Matt. 6:10. It is the office work of the Holy Ghost to open the understanding of God's children, to give them a true conception of its intent, to be God's interpreter of his will and law:—

But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.—John 14: 26.

Paul prayed for the Saints:—

That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him: the eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, and what is the exceeding greatness of his power to usward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand. Eph. 1: 17-20.

What a scene this "spirit of wisdom and revelation" presents according to this statement! what privilege the church enjoys! to know the hope of God's calling, and the riches of his saintly inheritance! and to know of God's power wrought in Jesus' resurrection—the greatness of it! What a wondrous office work the Holy Ghost performs in the Church of God! what a mighty rock the gospel is on which to build, to found the church—the gospel that contains the righteousness of God, that embraces the revelation of that righteousness! The gospel reveals perennially the righteousness of God "from faith to faith."

By this all-essential element of the gospel, the Holy Ghost, the "spirit of wisdom and revelation," in his various gifts, are the children of God confirmed in the faith and hope of the gospel; for thus saith the Scriptures:—

How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him; God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will?—Heb. 2: 3, 4.

It is in accord with God's unalterable will that the church should be confirmed with gifts of the Holy Ghost, as the above passage of scripture shows. A similar statement is made by the Apostle Paul, when treating of the essentiality of the variously operating gifts of the Holy Spirit, in its divine office work in the church. It reads thus:—

But all these [gifts of the Spirit] worketh that one and the selfsame Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he [God] will.—1 Cor. 12: 11.

As the gospel is but the expression or revelation of God's will relating to man's eternal salvation, the fact and its mode of saving, we can but believe that this confirming element of that "will," based on the character of the immutable God and ratified by the atoning blood of our blessed Lord, is yet and ever will be an essential element of that will; and therefore, the confirming power of the Holy Ghost holds good as long as the offer of salvation to man by the gospel is open to him. The revealing, confirming power of the Holy Ghost attends the acceptance of the gospel by man still, and should be expected and realized in the gospel "restored." Since it is clearly seen that the office work of the Holy Ghost is to "teach" the church, and also to "guide" the church—its members—"into all truth" essential to their well-being here and salvation hereafter, it is equally as plainly to be seen that it becomes the divine, spiritual, religious educator to the Saints. By its enlightening power we may be taught right conceptions of God's "perfect law of liberty," as relates to their privileges, standing as children of God, and their holy duties before him. By its guiding, directing, revealing power, as manifested in the teachings of the authorized ministry of God, and its direct teachings to themselves, children of the kingdom, may "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." By its divine influence and operation in their minds and hearts they learn to distinguish, in that godly and higher sense, the distinction between right and wrong, and have aid to gradually overcome the low and carnal, the evil and corrupting, the Adamic nature and the desire to do wrong dies; and thus we become "partakers of the divine nature" (2 Peter 1: 4), and we are enabled to live the higher life exemplified by our Savior, and set forth in his holy word. That the office work of the Holy Ghost, in its gifts as bestowed through the ordinance of "laying on of hands" (Acts 8: 17, 18) "through Jesus Christ" (Tit. 3: 6), is part of the doctrine that saves (Tim. 4: 14-16); it follows that it is essential to salvation, and therefore cannot be dispensed with. And as it is part of the plan of salvation as set forth by Jesus and his apostles anciently, it must be included in the "all things" to be restored, just a little while before the second advent of our blessed Lord as predicted by himself. (Matt. 17: 10, 11.)

It will do no good to apply this prophecy to the mission of John the Baptist of eighteen hundred years ago. John at the time of this utterance had finished his work and was sweetly resting from his labors. (John 3: 30; Math. 14: 3-12.)

Jesus' prophecy here confirms the prophecy of Malachi, last chapter, relative to the mission of Elijah or Elias, which is to precede "the great and dreadful day of the Lord," and is to result in the salvation of the Jews, by turning of their hearts "to their fathers," Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, also the other prophets, and consequently to the Messiah of their fathers, their Savior.

For, notwithstanding their blindness of eighteen hundred years duration, and though their hearts were not turned to the fathers by the ancient missions of John and Christ, yet, are they "beloved for the fathers' sakes" (Rom. 11: 25-28), and when the "covenant" of God as once offered to them but rejected (Matt. 23: 37; Luke 21: 24; Rom. 9: 30-32; 10: 1-3; 11: 20, 25-28), shall be offered to them again, after the specified time of their blindness shall have terminated, they by the gospel will "be saved," and not burned or "consumed":—

I am the Lord, I change not, therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed.—Mal. 3: 6.

And when the prophecy is fulfilled, "Elias truly shall first come [before Jesus' second coming], and restore all things." "All Israel shall be saved," for so New Testament prophecy declares. It will not, it cannot fail. The prophetic word relating to this theme, is to a great extent fulfilled.

The gospel and the gospel church began to be restored by angelic ministrations as early as 1827-1830 A. D., being attested by many infallible proofs as predicted by John (Rev. 14: 6, 7), and is now being declared in all fulness to the people—nations "as a witness," and as a "sign" of the soon coming of the Savior, to judge, and reward, and reign in glory. (Matt. 24: 14.) The fact that the great bodies of religious Christendom are dissolving, subdividing, and falling to pieces, and that confusion and uncertainty prevail and are the crying complaint of the times, is an incontestible evidence of this claim. (Rev. 14: 8; 18: 1-8, 21-24.) The day hasteneth greatly!

Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth . . . and the foundations of the earth do shake.—Isa. 24: 17, 18.

This claim to the opening up of the restoration of the gospel, as the remedy for the great world's moral malady, was set forth by Joseph Smith, the Palmyra Seer, and those associated with him in the work, in 1827 and onward. And this is what the true Latter Day Saints have been trying to tell the world ever since, but the people have not been willing to hear. But the day is not far distant when they will see. The world is becoming sensible of the fact that it has no remedy within itself, for its grievous spiritual ills. Its creeds are a failure, and it will yet have to accept of God's remedy in his own way, or spiritually die. Aside from the gospel as originally ordained there is "no remedy" for the world. A sad comment this, but facts cannot be forever ignored.

Great Babylon is now being remembered of God (Rev. 16: 19), his judgments are speedily to be visited on her, her "hour" of judgment is at hand (Rev. 14: 7), her "fall," is near and hasteneth, and the gospel restored by angelic ministration and its divinely authorized declaration among the nations attended by the power of God confirming it to those who honestly receive it, are evidently the fulfilling of the statement of John:—

And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine.—Rev. 18: 4, 8.

Yes, the gospel call of the "eleventh hour" dispensation was actually begun in 1830, or thereabout. As the people become united in one fold, the church develops and organizes, thus bringing about the "marvelous work and a wonder" of Isaiah's notable prophecy, chapter 29: 13, 14. And in just "a very little while," or in 1853, "the former and latter rains" (Isaiah 29: 17; Joel 2: 23; Ezekiel 36: 1-7) were "restored" to Lebanon—Palestine—and the ancient covenant people, Israel, "are at hand to come." God has also graciously "restored" to us the holy record and history of his dealings with his people, the descendants of Joseph of Egypt, who anciently inhabited the western world, as indicated by Jacob's prophetic blessings on Joseph's sons. (Genesis 48; 49: 22-26.) Also by Moses (Deuteronomy 32: 7, 8; 33: 13-17), who denominated this country [Joseph's] "his land." This record, "the stick of Joseph" (Ezekiel 37: 19), containing "the great things of" God's "law" "to Ephraim" (Hosea 8: 11, 12), but so long buried in the earth, to be brought to light by revelation, and "read"—translated (Psalms 85: 11-12) in the day of Palestine's regeneration (Isaiah 29: 11, 13, 17, 18), has been read by the unlearned man. And on these prophecies, to so many so dark and mysterious, light has shone forth, the way once so obscure is now made plain so that all may run who read it.

By this record, the Book of Mormon, is revealed the account of the "other sheep" of Israel not of the fold at Jerusalem, and how they were visited by the Savior after his resurrection from the dead, and who were permitted to "hear" his "voice" (John 10: 16) while the Gentiles were denied this sacred privilege (Matt. 15: 23, 24), because his mission at that time was not to the Gentiles, even of Palestine, so far as it related to his personal ministry. (Matt. 15: 24; 10: 5, 6; 11: 21.) The Gentiles never received the personal ministry of Christ, or heard his "voice," therefore, the "other sheep" must have been Israelites.

The tenor of many of the Scripture citations in this investigation goes to show quite positively and incontrovertibly, that God designs that all who come to the light of his truth in the great restoration should be united in one, not only in spirit, but also in doctrine and faith. Without such unity there can be no concert of action on the part of those through whom God works, as instruments in his hands in the accomplishment of his purpose in the great restoration. It is not enough that the true worshipers of the Father worship "in spirit" alone, they must worship him "in truth" also. (John 4: 23.) The baptism "by one spirit" "into one body," depends altogether on whether the unity of faith in the doctrine of Christ is attained. A very few moments' thought on this topic, and a comparison of the idea of Christ and Paul (1 Cor. 1: 10; 12: 1, 3; Rom. 16: 17) with the present state of the religious world will convince us that this statement is true. When such unity as God designs is brought about in the one great body of Christ, and the relation of children of God is formed, all members of the body of Christ will "have the same care one for another. And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honored all the members rejoice with it." (1 Cor. 12: 25, 26.) Will anything short of the condition of the holy, exalted unity here set forth conform to God's law? Will any condition of the church less unified than this fulfill God's will on earth? Does a less sense of responsibility or holy care for each other exist among the angels of heaven, who do God's holy will than is here described by the apostle?

This high and holy ideal of church relationship never can be attained by a doctrinally-divided religious world. It never has been. It never will be attained either, so long as men continue to mix their doctrines, or doctrinal interpretations with the doctrine of Christ. Nothing short of an absolute forsaking of human doctrines and traditions, and a united effort on the line set forth in the doctrine of the gospel of Christ will bring us into this high relationship. Nor will anything short of this eternally save us, unless it can be demonstrated that we can be thus saved contrary to God's will.

We assert, therefore, that unless the religious world lays aside its human dogmas, doctrines, and traditions, and accepts of the doctrine of Christ as set forth in the gospel, its prospects of unity and eternal glory are absolutely hopeless. And with the human experiences of six thousand years before us we may safely and fearlessly challenge proof to the contrary hereof. Theories must stand aside when conditions and facts to the contrary rise and confront us. The truth we here wish impressed on all minds is that the wondrously divine religious unity and glory longed for will never be accomplished by the trivial, narrow, short-sighted, and petty schemes of men; but only by those great, glorious measures contained in the gospel revealed from God. With God the conception of salvation and glorification of man originated. He ordained the way and means of its accomplishment. He revealed the measure by which it is to be done. He alone could do all this. How foolish, then, must be the devices of men when contrasted with the immutable and eternal plan of the infinite God!

It is time for thee, Lord, to work: for they have made void thy law.—Ps. 119: 126.

Therefore have I also made you contemptible and base before all the people, according as ye have not kept my ways, but have been partial in the law—Mal. 2: 9.

Here is the prophetic complaint against man: Partiality in God's law, rendering it void. Man's devices come to naught. God's counsel stands to all generations; but few men at a time give heed to it.

Having now learned of the rise of Mystery, Babylon on the organic dissolution and downfall of the ancient church of Christ along during the second to the end of the sixth centuries of our era, also of its reign, glory, and intolerant domination, and that the time of its downfall as declared in the sure prophetic word (Rev. 14: 7, 8; 18: 1-8; 19: 1, 2), is at hand, and further, that by the restoration of "the keys of the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 16: 18, 19; 24: 44-46; 1 Thess. 1: 5, with Rev. 14: 6, 7; Matt. 24: 14), we can see plainly how that by these keys or this power or authority, the "servants whom the Lord hath made ruler over his household," may by his direction proclaim the gospel "as a witness to all nations," and that thus is ushered in the "dispensation of the fulness of times" (Eph. 1: 9, 10), during which and by which all in Christ are to be gathered in one, not only of those "in heaven," but likewise those "in earth." It is God's "will" and "pleasure," and he hath "purchased" it. And we are especially interested in that part of this work now being done on earth. (Verses 9, 10.)

By obedience to the gospel restored we are brought into harmony to God's will, are made one in Christ; and by the gospel restored the kingdom is rebuilt, the church organized again as originally established, and thus the unity contemplated in the gospel is being to an extent realized. What a wondrous announcement is this we make to the world! The means to demonstrate its truth is being hereby extended to all. Without testing these things by trial you never can know. This is a wondrous privilege God now grants to all, but he has "granted" it. This is the age "before appointed" for this grant to be bestowed. And as the work goes on, gathers numbers and strength as the church augments and spreads abroad, and because of faithfulness of the converts the beautiful songs of Zion now offered by the congregations in humble, reverential praise to Zion's God, will, ere long, swell out into a grand and mighty chorus, reverberating along earth's plains and mountains, its hills and flowery vales, and the electrifying, melodious strains will ascend the ether plains "as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia; for the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth," and why this wondrous symphony of rejoicing?

Because that just before this omnipotent reign began, God had "granted" to the "bride, the Lamb's wife" or the church, "that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints." (Rev. 19: 5-9.) The fine linen represents righteousness. The righteousness of God is revealed in the gospel. (Rom. 1: 17, 18.) By obedience to the gospel we become Saints (1 Cor. 1: 2), by obeying and faithfully observing all its requirements, put on righteousness, the righteousness of God. (Rom. 9: 30-33; Phil. 3: 9.) As it is the saints who put on righteousness, and as the fine linen represents that righteousness, and, as the saints enrobed in the fine linen constitute the church, it follows that the church as thus arrayed is "the bride, the Lamb's wife,"—wife or bride elect.

But the church arrayed herself thus in righteousness, after "to her was granted" so to do. The arrayal of the bride takes place before the marriage ceremonies and the supper,—always does.

Reader, the "grant" has been received. Will you now accept the privilege, put on the robes of righteousness, have on the wedding garment (Matt. 22: 11, 12), join in the victorious, triumphant alleluia, and enter into the marriage supper of the Lamb?

May God be so glorified!

ADIEU.

HAVING visited as many points as possible in my former field, since the adjournment of April Conference, and there being but a few days before the time of my departure, a cessation of hostilities this side of the Atlantic is one of the inevitables to which I submit; so I bid adieu to the Saints of America with whom I have essayed to cooperate in my former field, assuring them of my appreciation of all their kind acts. I regret my inability to respond to other calls from other points I have not visited, and fear I shall be necessitated to forego the pleasure of responding to invitations from brethren east and west of Chicago.

A backward glance startles me with the fact of the passage of more than two decades since I was placed among the general representatives of the church. How long, and yet how short! And the query crowds itself to the front, demanding recognition as to what I have done. But why essay a lengthy response, since it is known to the righteous Judge. And though it were written across the sky and engraven on plates of gold, and sent to every nook of earth's domains, it would neither add nor detract therefrom. But I am persuaded it will add to my life's record for weal or for woe; and whichever it may be, God's justice will be palpable; and the requirement of a full conception of this justice is a part of my life's work. But how often I am confronted with the fact of my slow progress, which greatly tends to lessen the pleasure arising from its study!

Studiosness is as essential with a view to a spiritual development in Christ as is warmth and moisture for the growth of vegetation, which is preclusive of the thought that religion consists in sensationalism. This studiosness is indispensable with a view to a conviction which stimulates action whether good or evil. Hence our responsibility for the use or abuse of our will power. If an evil design is contemplated, our convictions will be in accord, and future action will be stimulated by convictions thus obtained; and if divine assistance "is guaranteed in the event of studiosness being prompted by pure desires, conviction and action being in accord therewith; why should it be thought strange if Satanic influence assists in work prompted by impure desires, especially so if a choice is made between the evil and the good?"

I think Christ's instructions relative to tradition give a basis for belief as to the necessity of a discrimination between tradition and God's revealed and accepted truths; but I don't believe that such discrimination necessitates a total rejection of tradition as to preclude its use in any manner whatever; but I do believe that it should preclude efforts to make tradition of equal importance with God's laws whether used by angels, men, or devils. Otherwise Christ's teachings were purposeless. See Mark 7. And in my opinion it were well to pay due attention to the first nine verses of Ezekiel 14, I. T., and Doctrine and Covenants 46:7; 50:1, 2, 3, 7; Revelation 16:13, 15; 13:16, 7; John 4:5; 2 Thess. 2:3-11. And I am inclined to think that if we have indulged the thought that the mere fact of having obeyed the gospel is a sufficient preventive against receiving other impressions than those of the Holy Spirit a due study of the above, with others similar in character, will prove corrective and perchance lead us to see that we are very largely what we desire to be; and if we cherish idols we may be answered according to the multitudes of the idols of our heart. And if thereby deceived, the Lord has not deceived us, but we shall have deceived ourselves; all of which is supportive of the thought that self-government is a most essential study, which may lead to the discovery of the fact that between feigned piety and true loyalty to God, there is a difference. The latter may beget an unfeigned piety, but the former will never beget the latter. The realism of God's revealed method forbids such a thought; for when duly considered no guaranty is given of God's favor, unless we in our rectitude evidence a corresponding realism.

The regret I experience in giving evidence of my inability to please all is, I think, made tolerable in the appearance of having premeditated mischief against none, which I think a reasonable service. For it were strange indeed to preach peace and at the same time be a plotter of mischief.

I make no special promise to the church (to which I think myself amenable) as to my procedure in my newly appointed field; but believe the path of duty is the road to fame, though to-day and to-morrow, it may be the same. "Watch and pray;" "he that endureth to the end shall be saved;" "examine yourselves;" "let him who thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall;" are excellent reminders while seeking the immortal prize, etc., and may greatly assist in self-abnegation, and if thoroughly done, will leave little time to prate about or exult over some one's probable fall. I may also say that I know no warrant for spiritual inactivity official or nonofficial; and believe that God has placed every member in the body as it has pleased him as a preventive to schism in that body, which presupposes diversity of gifts, calling, duties, prerogative, etc., differing as gifts and callings differ, God's revealed and accepted law being the polar star reflecting light to the various members desiring the same by which to acquire a needed proficiency for the work imposed. Thus the Infinite has revealed several distinctive features, which would ill become the finite to eliminate. I believe the Infinite will, and may do as he pleases; but I have never indulged the thought that he will please to deny himself, dictate, or set his seal to that which would antagonize that which has gone before.

I go forth as an integral part of the body; not to infringe on or lessen, but to recognize and foster the rights of others; which if righteously done I can afford to be at ease as to my own rights. Christ came not to speak of himself but ever explanatory of the fact that the Father had sent him, which fact was rendered more formidable by his example, declaring that the works his Father had sent him to finish and the works he did, were greater witness than that of John. (John 5:36.) A proper conception of gospel modesty is an effective preventive to self-laudation.

The necessity for a proficiency by study is made most conspicuous in the very inception of the latter-day work. (See D. C. 10.) And a proper appreciation thereof might choke down vain ambition for place or position, while an acquired conception as to the significance of D. C. 104:44 might help to the belief that the occupancy of an official position in the church of the living God does not mean being a mere cipher, neither being unduly officious, but a proper activity in the position one may be placed. And as I by request of a branch official at—visited Mrs. —, and heard her express her surprise at being confirmed by the laying on of hands after being baptized by Elder—, I thought a better study and observance of Doctrine and Covenants 17: 7, 18; 42: 20, might not be amiss. It may be gratifying to report large accessions, but as knowledge marks our progress rather than material strength, it may be well to labor that conviction may be the result of baptisms rather than sensationalism. Effective labors with few baptisms is sometimes better for the cause than ineffective labors and many baptisms. May all go well that Zion may prosper. In bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

Knox, J. A. McIntosh, J. M. Simmons, J. Pett, W. A. Carroll, G. Hawley, and B. F. Wicks; Priests J. Pearsall, O. Brewster, W. McKim, C. Williamson, R. Wight, and J. Dobson; Teachers L. Butterworth and N. Brogden; Deacon F. Taylor. Bishop's agent's report: On hand at last report $26.95; received since, including $25 from the Bishop $227.18; paid out $229; on hand $25.13. John Pett, agent. The following request was presented by the Dow City Sunday school: That the conference give the usual hour for holding Sunday school at such place in the district as the conference may be held. The request was granted. Resolved that the grounds whereon camp or grove meetings are held within this district be under the control of the elder in charge, and that nothing shall be sold on the grounds during service, and on Sunday only eatables shall be sold. The tent committee reported $28.40 due on the tent. A collection was taken up amounting to $9.84, leaving a balance due of $18.56. The report was accepted and committee continued. Brn. William Bullard and William Smith of Persia were on motion requested to labor as much as they could in the southern part of the district. C. E. Butterworth was sustained as president of the district with W. W. Whiting as assistant. J. Pett was sustained as secretary till after the close of the next conference. The general church authorities were sustained. Preaching by J. M. Baker, J. F. McDowell, W. W. Whiting, Jno. A. McIntosh, and C. E. Butterworth. Adjourned to meet at Galland's Grove, Iowa, on Friday, November 16, at ten a. m.

LITTLE SIOUX.

Quarterly conference met at Moorhead, Iowa, Saturday, June 2, at 10:30 a. m.; D. Chambers, W. W. Blair, and J. W. Wight were chosen to preside; A. M. Fyrando and J. F. Mintun secretaries. Branch reports: Union Center, Missouri Valley, Spring Creek, Little Sioux, Woodbine, Magnolia, and Logan. Bishop's agent's report read and auditing committee reported same correct. Ministerial reports: Elders D. Chambers, J. W. Wight, J. F. Mintun, G. Montague, T. W. Williams, M. Jansen, H. Garner, H. Case, D. K. Dodson, R. Farmer, C. Downs, D. A.

Hutchings, A. M. Fyrando, W. R. Davison, B. Lewis, A. Johnson, G. Outhouse, A. Ballantyne, J. C. Johnson, A. A. Baker, J. Donaldson, J. Conyers, W. Cowlshaw; Priests J. D. Wiltfong, S. C. Diggle, F. E. Cohrts; Teachers S. B. Kibler, E. C. Outhouse, C. Kennedy, J. M. Case, W. Knider. Resolution of Missouri Valley branch requesting appointment of A. M. Fyrando as assistant branch president was granted. On motion each branch president was requested to solicit funds to liquidate indebtedness of Valley branch. Council in appeal case of W. C. Cadwell was released. Union Center branch recommended that Bro. Oscar Case be ordained an elder, and it was decided to so ordain. Resolution presented that we recommend Brn. Hubert and Oscar Case to the First Presidency as duly qualified for Sandwich Islands mission. Resolution carried. On separate motions George, Catharine, and George E. Bell were expelled from church. Tent work was continued under direction of district president and missionary in charge. Question was asked: What is the territory over which a branch president has jurisdiction in controlling services, and what are limits of branch in which they should be authorized to deal with scattered members? On motion above questions were referred to General Conference of 1895. Adjournment was made to meet at Little Sioux, Iowa, first Saturday and following Sunday of September.

EASTERN MICHIGAN.

Conference was held at Bay Port, Michigan, June 8, 9, 10, and 11; R. E. Grant president, W. J. Smith assistant; J. A. Grant secretary, Sr. Emma Benedict assistant. Ministry reporting: Elders L. Phelps baptized 18, W. J. Smith baptized 8, A. Barr baptized 2, W. M. Dowker baptized 2, R. E. Grant baptized 21, R. Davis baptized 2, J. A. Grant baptized 3, Wm. Davis baptized 4; Priests P. W. baptized 6, S. Brown baptized 19, R. Coburn baptized 5, G. Hampshire baptized 5; Priests J. H. Tyrrell, R. J. Smith, and A. Miller. District treasurer, H. Atkinson, reported: Total receipts $13.23; total expenditures $9.53; balance due district $3.70. Audited and found correct. Bro. A. McKenzie's confession and apology accepted and he was forgiven. He is now in the hands of the Eastern Michigan district to give him a license as they think advisable. A copy of the above was sent to the president of the district by Bro. John Grant. On separate motions George Green was sustained president of the district, R. Coburn vice president, J. H. Tyrrell Bishop's agent, H. Atkinson treasurer, S. Brown clerk. By resolution secretary was granted $1.25 to defray expenses. A motion passed by conference of June 9, 1888, respecting members leaving the district with unpaid debts, etc., was expunged from the record. Bro. George Green was ordained a high priest, Samuel Brown and Edward DeLong were ordained to the office of seventy, and John Dent, Sr., was ordained an elder. Preaching by Elders John Grant, J. H. Lake, W. W. Blair, and R. C. Evans. Four were baptized. The collection, amounting to $16.81, was paid to the president of branch to defray expenses of hall, etc. A vote of thanks was tendered to the Saints and friends of Wallaceburg for their kindness and hospitality. Adjourned to meet the first Saturday and Sunday in October at Petrolia.

Sunday School Associations.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

In your efforts to advance the Sunday school cause, please do not forget the committee you have appointed to provide a Sunday school song book. The committee is anxious to accomplish its work, but it must have material to work with. We want those who are educated in music to compose good, lively, spiritual songs, expressive of our faith and adapted to the capacity of the young. The church does not lack congregational hymns, but we do lack Sunday school songs. Has the church the ability to furnish these? Some think it has, others think it has not. Let us go to work, then, and see what can be done, and perhaps if we have not the talent now, we can develop it if we try; and, at any rate, let us try and flood the committee with your productions or selections, so that they will have something to work on. Talk this matter up in your Sunday schools, in your teachers' meetings, and especially in your district conventions. See that every Sunday school worker becomes interested in this branch of work, then we may hope to obtain a book that will satisfy all. Send in your productions to A. H. Mills, secretary of the committee, Independence, Missouri.

F. G. PITT, Chairman.

NOTICES.

To the Sunday School Scholars of the Gal-land's Grove District; Greeting:—I take this method of informing you that at our last Sunday school convention I was chosen superintendent, and as I want the hearty cooperation of all the teachers and scholars throughout the district I am in hopes that we may all work in harmony together. And in order that we may all do this and do it successfully let us realize our weakness and pray to him who is strong, and our Father will hear us in secret and reward us openly. I am well pleased with what has been done in the past, but let us not slacken our efforts but renew them daily.

My address is Earling, Shelby county, Iowa. If any of the schools throughout the district need any assistance, write me and I will respond cheerfully to the best of my ability. If there is any place where an organization can be effected let me know at once. We would like to double our membership this coming year if possible. To this end we must work and pray. We especially invite the active missionary force to assist us in this department of church work. I am trying to make arrangements to visit all the schools in the district this summer if possible, but if I do my traveling expenses will have to be paid. Let the watchword be, Onward.

Yours for the spread of gospel truth,
R. WIGHT, Supt.

EARLING, Iowa, July 2.

Miscellaneous Department.

REUNION NOTICE.

The third annual reunion of the Northwestern Kansas district will be held at Blue Rapids, Marshall county, Kansas, commencing August 9, 1894, at 10:30 a. m., and continuing over two Sundays, or according to the interest. The conference business of the district will be transacted on the 11th at 10:30 a. m.

There are two lines of railroad running through the place; viz., the Missouri Pacific, running east and west, and the Blue Valley branch of the Union Pacific, running north and south, so that those desiring to come by rail can do so. The camp ground will not be far from the business part of the city, so that campers can supply themselves with provisions at any time between services. There will be a stove or two and fuel on the ground for campers, also hay for those coming with teams.

It is earnestly desired that all of the Saints of this and adjoining districts, who can, will make arrangements to attend this reunion, and come prepared to bear a part of the burden, and enjoy their part of the spiritual blessings in store for the faithful. It is also desired that all who possibly can will come prepared to camp on the ground. Several speakers from abroad are expected to be present, besides those belonging to the district. Those expecting to come by rail and desiring hotel accommodations can address Bro. Mahlon Smith, or Bro. William Scott, who will make arrangements for them. Come, then, Saints, at the beginning of the meeting and stay till the close. Come praying, that a good meeting may be had and that much good may be done for the cause of Christ.

HENRY RESCHE, Chairman of Com.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

A conference of the Ohio district will be held with the Highland branch, beginning at ten a. m., Friday, August 10, 1894. It is expected that the missionary in charge, G. T. Griffiths, will be present; also of the traveling ministry, Elders R. Etzenhouser, H. R. Harder, Thomas Matthews, J. L. Goodrich, and H. E. and J. Moler, also of the local ministry, S. J. Jeffers (Bishop's agent), A. W. Kriebel, C. Cooper, A. B. Kirkendall, A. B. Ervin, S. D. and D. J. Hannah, and all others who can come are wanted. Branch officers are expected to see to it that there is a full report of their branches in due time. Parties going from east will get off at Bainbridge on the O. S. R. R., and those going from west will get off at Hillborough on the B. and O. S. W. R. R. All persons wishing conveyance from railroads will please notify either Owen or J. C. West, Turkey, Highland county, Ohio, in due time. Those failing to do so will either have to pay hack fare to Sinking Springs or walk. Come, one, come all; and that we may have a good time let us come praying for the blessing of the Holy Spirit.

JAMES MOLIER, Pres.

LIMERICK, Ohio, June 26.

NOTICES.

By some misunderstanding, Elder J. M. Stubbart was appointed to labor as circumstances permit in Western Nebraska. It should have been Eastern Nebraska, as the brother's home is in that part. By agreement between the missionaries in charge of Nebraska it has been decided to transfer the appointment. Bro. Stubbart and others concerned will, therefore, by this announcement, know that Eastern Nebraska is his field from this date.

Respectfully,

A. H. SMITH,
JOSEPH LUFF.

June 29, 1894.

Sr. Martha E. Decelle is hereby notified to report to me on or before August 20, 1894, or her name will be entered on the scattered list. By order of branch business meeting held May 30.

W. A. BRONER, Clerk.

BURNHAM, Missouri.

TWO-DAY MEETINGS.

A two-day meeting will be held in the grove east of the Green schoolhouse, six miles southwest of Lamoni, on Saturday and Sunday, July 14 and 15; services each day as follows: Prayer meeting at nine a. m.; preaching at 10:45 a. m., and at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

ASA S. COCHRAN,

Pres. Lamoni Branch.

BORN.

ROGERS.—Near Simeon, Cherry county, Nebraska, May 25, 1894, to Bro. S. A. and Sr. F. D. Rogers, a son, and named Sylvanus Alma. They desire to have him blessed the first opportunity, and would be more than glad to have an elder call and stop a week.

MARRIED.

BULLARD—BLACKMAN.—At the home of the bride's parents, near Persia, Iowa, June 27, 1894, Amy L. Bullard, daughter of Bro. and Sr. W. D. Bullard, to C. H. Blackman, of Magnolia, Iowa, A. M. Fyrand officiating. Many guests were present to bid them a joyous journey, partaking of bounties of life, and leaving them beautiful and useful tokens of esteem.

DIED.

HASKINS.—At her home in Burnham, Michigan, October 6, 1893, Sr. Almira C., wife of Bro. Haskins. Sr. Haskins was born July 31, 1848; baptized by J. J. Cornish, August 14, 1892. She was a good, consistent member of the church for the short time she was permitted to live in it.

CROUCH.—At her home in Grant, near Canboro, Michigan, November 10, 1893, Sr. Eliza Jane Crouch. She was baptized by Arthur Leverton, August 3, 1882. Bro. William Davis preached the funeral sermon from Job 14:14. She was a kind wife, and loved this latter-day work, and cared much for the elders in their laboring in the ministry. She leaves a husband, a large family, and many friends to mourn.

STONE.—Bro. Thomas Stone died at Lucas, Iowa, June 22, 1894, aged 41 years. He was born in Dudley, Worstershire, England; baptized July 7, 1890, at Lucas, by H. A. Stebbins. A wife and sisters mourn. The funeral discourse was by Father Watkins on Sunday night at the church.

LEE.—At her home at Winchester, Tennessee, December 20, 1893, Sr. Jane E. Lee. Sr. Lee was born June 7, 1858, in Washington, Sauk county, Wisconsin. Baptized and confirmed October 9, 1870, by Z. H. Gurley, at Willow, Richland county, Wisconsin. She was a member of the Sandusky branch of Sauk county, Wisconsin.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

French police have become satisfied that the assassination of President Carnot was the result of a carefully arranged conspiracy of anarchists.

The funeral of President Carnot took place on Sunday, July 1. The remains were first taken to the cathedral of Notre Dame where Cardinal Richards, Archbishop of Paris, pronounced the absolution and delivered an allocution. At the conclusion of the religious exercises the funeral cortege proceeded to the Pantheon where Premier Dupuy delivered an oration and M. Challe-mel-Lecour and others delivered addresses. The remains were then placed in a vault near those of the grandfather of the late President and Victor Hugo. The funeral was the most lavish exhibition of public mourning ever witnessed in France, surpassing the funerals of Thiers, Gambetta, and Victor Hugo.

Count von Munster, the German Ambassador, informed Prime Minister Dupuy and M. Hanotaux, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, that upon the occasion of M. Carnot's obsequies Emperor William had granted a pardon to Lieut. Dagonney and Lieut. Malevas, the two French officers who were convicted in December last at Leipsic of being spies. M. Dupuy at once informed President Casimir-Perier, who begged Count von Munster to thank Emperor William for his noble thought and to assure him that his graceful act would go to the hearts of the two great nations.

The strike inaugurated at Chicago last week, under the auspices of the American Railway Union, has spread throughout the greater portion of the West and to some portions of the East, including other organizations of railroad employees until it has become one of the most general that has yet taken place in the United States. Railroad centers, such as Chicago, Decatur, Indianapolis, etc., have been the scenes of violence, strikers shooting into passenger coaches, ditching engines, pulling fires, etc.

CLEVELAND, O., July 2.—In reply to numerous letters and telegrams received from engineers and other railway employees throughout the West asking that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers participate in the big strike movement, Chief P. M. Arthur of the latter organization has sent out a general reply covering all such communications. He cautions the engineers not to let the prevalent strike "fever" overcome their better judgment and reminds them that they are, as a rule, working under an agreement with the various railways for a stated period. He says the engineers have no grievances and should not be influenced by strikers to take part in a contest with which they are not concerned. Chief Arthur, however, will uphold engineers who refuse to go out with green crews where they believe their lives will be placed in jeopardy by so doing. He advises the engineers in such cases not to strike, but to notify the company that they cannot run under such conditions and to furnish their reason for such refusal.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—At a meeting of the Cabinet, this afternoon, instructions to Gen. Miles were discussed and acquiesced in by the President and his advisers. Attorney-General Olney had some interesting dispatches from Chicago which he submitted to the President, and the result was made apparent in an order issued at the War Department this afternoon directing the troops at Fort Sheridan to proceed to Chicago and assist the civil authorities in carrying out the law. This order was delayed until a definite and explicit request was received from the civil authorities at Chicago stating they were unable to execute the United States statutes in the transmission of mails and other public property. The troops of the United States will be utilized to assist the Marshal in carrying out the orders of the courts.

It is not intended to allow the troops to act at the whim of a deputy or marshal who might "lose his head" in the face of danger, and therefore, while assisting in the discharge of judicial processes, the troops will be kept strictly under military command in the first instance, and, secondly, under the control of the President.

SIoux CITY, Io., July 3.—The sheriff and police here are powerless to prevent the mob from spiking switches, holding trains, and ditching cars.

The Fourth Regiment of the State militia has been in the barracks since last night ready to move, but Gov. Jackson has so far refused to order it out.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 3.—Sacramento was the scene of a violent demonstration on the part of the railroad strikers this afternoon. The Southern Pacific attempted to break the blockade here and send the west-bound overland train to San Francisco. As soon as a start was made a mob of 3,000 strikers who had been removed from the immediate vicinity of the train previously, swept down upon the train and dragged United States Marshal Baldwin from the cab of the engine. The strikers knocked him down and the deputies and police who tried to interfere were powerless. Many in the mob cried, "Kill the Marshal," but the latter drew his revolver, and several deputies, who had forced their way through the crowd, did the same. The strikers were obliged to fall back and the Marshal finally escaped to the railroad office. The attempt to move the train had to be abandoned for the time being.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 3.—Except on the Iron Mountain road the tie-up here is worse to-day than it has been at any time since the strike was begun.

In East St. Louis matters assumed a more serious aspect this morning, and at noon every road terminating there sent word to Mr. Gays that it could not handle a pound of freight.

Not a train will get out to-night for Chicago, as the St. Louis, Keokuk and Northern is now tied up.

The militia evidently has received an intimation that it may be called on.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 4.—The celebration of the National holiday has been completely overshadowed by the desperate struggle between the Southern Pacific and the A. R. U. At ten o'clock this morning two regiments of State militia from San Francisco and two companies from Stockton marched into this city, having abandoned their train two miles out. The troops marched direct to the armory, around which the local militia companies had established a strong guard.

At one o'clock the troops moved toward the depot where a large force of police, deputy sheriffs, and deputies, under United States Marshal Baldwin, were already on guard. The strikers and sympathizers to the number of several thousand had preceded the troops. When the soldiers arrived they were greeted with derisive yells and harsh comments, and the strikers at once became demonstrative. Chairman Frank Knox, the leader, addressed the men, urging them not to molest the militia. Notwithstanding his conciliatory talk, the strikers loudly declared no Pullmans should be moved. Finally three companies of militia were ordered to drive the strikers from the depot. The scene was at once tumultuous and the situation threatening. For a few moments the soldiers hesitated, then they wavered, and then came a blunt refusal to move against the excited strikers. A few minutes later all the troops turned their backs upon the turbulent mob at the depot and quietly withdrew to the armory.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 4.—Yesterday morning Marshal Baldwin found himself unable to do anything with the strikers. He telegraphed a request to Gov. Markham to call out the State troops. Maj. Gen. Dimond was given power by the Governor to call out what troops he pleased.

The national troops are at Los Angeles, the State troops will be at Sacramento early this morning, and over 100 deputy sheriffs and marshals are guarding the dangerous points in Oakland. The strikers have not as yet lost a point in their original position of advantage. The excitement here and in Oakland yesterday was intense. The departing regiments were hissed on their way to the water front and a great crowd of people gathered at the pier. In West Oakland there was almost a riot. Two trains were seized at Sixteenth street and a fight between the deputy marshals and strikers followed. Cars were run off the main line. Trains were cut and every effort made to blockade the line. Shortly before midnight the National Guards arrived at the pier. Rails are said to have been torn up and strikers preparing a warm reception along the road for the troops.

CHICAGO, July 3.—In the United States Circuit Court yesterday Judges Woods and Grosscup issued the expected order commanding Debs, his associates, and followers to desist from interference with the railways. Its provisions extend their protecting force to all the railroads in the transmission of mails and the operation of inter-State trains. Copies of the order were at once made and deputies were sent out to serve them upon Debs and others.

CHICAGO, July 5.—The injunction issued by the Federal court was served on Debs yesterday morning. It had previously been served on other members of the union. Asked as to his opinion of the injunction Debs said: I have heretofore expressed my opinion of the injunction. I cannot see the necessity for serving an injunction on me commanding me not to do that which the statutes of the State also require me not to do. It is an assumption that I am ignorant of the law. I again say I have done absolutely nothing prohibited by the law. I shall not do so, nor will I countenance others doing so. The railroad managers have imported a lot of thugs and detectives whose business it is to violate the law and charge us with it. If there is any violence, if there has been any violence, if law has been outraged, the railroad managers and not the American Railway Union are responsible. If they will utilize the troops to suppress their own thugs they will do the community and the A. R. U. a service. If the troops are only here to protect these thugs in their depredations against law and order then the responsibility lies with the men who imported them and who now protect them. We hold the position that we can win without even the semblance of violence and if we cannot I prefer to lose rather than tolerate violence. Let me repeat: There is but one well defined estimate of the situation and that is, we hold the railroads cannot get men sufficient to run their trains. On that proposition we win or lose. We shall not interfere with any man who wants to work. We have not done so and shall not. A man has a legal right to quit work, and it is not the part of the troops or the civil officers of the law to arrest them for so doing, though I am informed such an arrest was made to-day. The American Railway Union will protect its men from the penalties of such arrests.

To-day, it is expected will witness the crucial test of strength between the railroads and the troops on the one hand and the strikers on the other. John M. Egan, managing the association, said: "We shall inaugurate passenger and freight service this morning. We shall try to perform our duty to the public by running trains. We shall expect the Federal, State, and municipal forces to afford us protection while we make the effort. We can do no more than this. If sufficient protection is not afforded I suppose we shall have to quit. The matter now rests between the government and the strikers. We will furnish the men to prepare the trains and men who will run them if permitted to do so. How adequate the protection will be will be shown in the morning. We are ready to begin.

Without any blare of trumpets or firing of cannon the Northwestern celebrated the Fourth by an almost complete resumption of passenger service. The striking engineers and firemen returned to their posts to a man, and the only difficulty experienced in handling the passenger business was in the yards. This morning the officials claim that they will be able to proceed without any difficulty, and it has been given out flat that the men called upon to go to work at seven o'clock who refuse to respond will be forever dismissed from the service of the company.

The authority of Uncle Sam, as represented by the United States Army, was defied and resisted at the Stock-Yards yesterday by a mob of 25,000 riotous and drunken followers of Dictator Debs. Nothing but extreme forbearance and patience on the part of the officers who commanded the 150 men who fought from morning until night with the rabble, prevented a great loss of life. Dozens of times soldiers stood with their rifles to their shoulders, their fingers on the triggers, waiting for the word to fire. Strikers stood against box cars with the points of the bayonets pressed against their breasts, and to the coolness of the soldiers alone do they owe escape from death. At night, however, a new order was issued, and if the proceedings of yesterday are repeated men will be fired upon, they will be bayoneted, they will be ridden down by cavalry, and mowed down by artillery if they exhibit the same defiance for law and count on the same forbearance on the part of its constituted upholders.

While Uncle Sam's troops were devoting their attention to the lawless train wreckers of Dictator Debs at the Stock-Yards, Blue Island, and Grand Crossing yesterday, about 5,000 strikers congregated at Fifty-first street and the Rock Island railroad tracks. They side-tracked several passenger trains, upset a dozen or more freight cars, ran day coaches and chair cars off the track, stoned the police, deputy marshals, and railway employees, and committed other acts of violence. Another mob somewhat smaller than that at Fifty-first street assembled at Forty-seventh and still a third at Forty-third street and the Rock Island tracks. In addition to running trains off the track these mobs crippled three or four railroad engines.

PARIS, July 3.—In the Chamber of Deputies Premier Dupuy read President Casimir-Perier's message. The document was also read by the Premier in the Senate. It is as follows: "I have been summoned by the National Assembly to be first Magistrate of France. I am no party man, I belong to France and the republic. An odious crime, which the national conscience repels, has robbed the country of the upright citizen who has been the vigilant guardian of the constitution. May the memory of such devoted duty inspire and guide me. The act of the National Assembly, which in a few hours assured the regular transmission of power, is fresh confirmation of the stability of republican institutions in the eyes of the world. I am resolved to foster the methods necessary to uphold the republican democracy, and it is my firm purpose to commit to other hands the destinies of France at the expiration of my seven years' term of office. Trustful in its own resources, France, which has received the government's and the people's touching proofs of sympathy has, with uplifted head, affirmed its love for peace. It is worthy of its past and will remain the great intellectual light of toleration and progress." The President concluded with appealing for unity of efforts in insuring public order and social peace. Mme. Carnot has refused a pension offered her by the Cabinet.

RIO JANEIRO, July 3.—A committee of citizens of Brazil cables the following message to the people of the United States. It is the spirit of the hour in Rio. Nowhere will the Fourth of July have heartier honor than in this capital. The message says: To the Government and People of the United States of America: The citizens of the Republic of Brazil present their compliments and felicitations upon the anniversary of tomorrow. Your dignified attitude during the recent revolt thrilled the republican hearts of the whole of Brazil, causing the formation of a committee to manifest our gratitude for the sympathy of the great Northern Republic. It has been resolved to erect a monument commemorative of the union of the entire continent represented by the Monroe doctrine. On the anniversary of the freedom of the country of Washington and Jefferson, Brazil compliments and congratulates it through a worthy representative. The Monroe doctrine defends American autonomy against insolent and ambitious intervention of foreign powers on our continent. To perpetuate noble feeling the citizens of Brazil have resolved to raise a monument to the Monroe doctrine, a new proof in the name of the people of Brazil of the peace, concord, and sympathy of both nations. We honor and salute you on this Fourth of July! May both nations ever march in unison, in conquest, peace, and happiness! Long live the United States and unity!

It has been decided that the corner stone of the monument will be laid in September next.

July 5.—Chicago and its suburbs was the scene of a series of conflicts between strikers and rioters and police and soldiery from early morning until night, when a reign of terror was inaugurated, of which various acts of incendiaryism was a marked feature. From morning till midnight mobs ranging in size from 2,000 to 10,000 patrolled the tracks of the Rock Island road, ditched and burned cars, spiked switches, tried to set signal towers on fire, and drove men from their posts of duty. Car after car was dumped on the tracks and blocked the movement of mail and passenger trains for hours. The mobbers were more bold and defiant than on yesterday, but no shots were fired by the soldiers. They fought off the soldiers in the yards and blocked the passage of the only train they tried to move during the day.

Mayor Hopkins has issued a peace proclamation and adopted drastic measures to enforce it. New policemen are enrolled and the force will be required to preserve peace.

General Miles, of the United States forces, stationed at Chicago expresses the opinion that if the police fail to meet the crisis martial law should be declared and the mob dispersed.

OMAHA, Neb., July 5.—Grand Master Workman Sovereign wired President Debs at Chicago last evening: "Neither make nor accept any compromise. Nothing but complete victory would satisfy our people." He has gone to Chicago by request of Debs. He further stated the willingness of the workmen to cooperate in the strike. It is stated that local organizations of the United Workmen in Chicago are moving with a view to supporting the strike.

Interruptions to train service continue at many other points, but on the whole the general situation is improving and train service is being resumed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 5.—All members of the Knights of Labor in the different trades in this city are expecting to be called out on a sympathetic strike to back up the American Railway Union. The Knights of Labor here has perhaps 1,000 members and has been growing rapidly in the last month.

PARIS, July 4.—The Brazilian Legation in this city has received a dispatch reporting a battle fought June 27 between the insurgent forces under Gen. Saraiva and the government troops under General Lima near the Pass of Undo. The rebels lost over 1,000 men, including several officers. The correspondent of the Temps at Rio Janeiro writes that the situation in the Brazilian Capital was never darker. He says President Peixoto has the fate of the Brazilian people in his hands. He takes nobody into his confidence.

CHICAGO, July 5.—The White City was almost wiped out of existence last night by fire. The Terminal Station, Administration Building, Mines and Mining Building, Electricity Building, Manufactures Building, Agricultural Building, and Machinery Hall were destroyed. The Government Building was saved.

BERLIN, July 4.—The Cologne Gazette, commenting upon China's appeal for Russian mediation of the questions between it and Japan in regard to Corea, says:—

It may be hoped that both China and Japan, before taking final steps, will seriously reflect upon the dangers of Russian mediation, which might easily lead to the intervention of France, Great Britain, and Germany, and the United States, and the creation of an East Asian Egypt, with Russia for a neighbor. Under such conditions the proposed reforms in Corea would certainly not be executed under the exclusive supervision of China and Japan.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 4.—Russia has urged China and Japan to withdraw their troops from Corea and endeavor to amicably settle their dispute regarding that country.

Cholera has reappeared in Russia.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Instead of martial law being declared, the police force has been increased to 3,300 men, 3,000 State Militia have been ordered out, 1,000 United States regulars are in camp, and 500 deputy sheriffs and 1,000 deputy marshals are present, making a total force of 8,800 to resist the mobbers and restore order.

From Brighton Park to Sixty-first street the yards of the Panhandle road were put to the torch by the rioters. Between 600 and 700 freight cars have been destroyed, many of them loaded. Miles of costly track are a snarled tangle of heat-twisted rails. Cars, signal towers, switch posts, and tool shanties were burned. The loss to property is estimated at $750,000 to $1,000,000. Two men were killed by a special officer of the Michigan Central.

Switchmen have gone on a strike at St. Paul and Duluth, Minnesota, but trains continue to run.

Troops and strikers are likely to meet at Ironwood, Michigan, if an attempt is made to resume work.

City labor leaders will meet in convention in Chicago, on Sunday night and decide upon a course of action relative to the present strike.

Railroad men at Detroit are in readiness to quit work. Cleveland roads are practically tied up—only passenger trains are running and they are likely to be blockaded. Buffalo, New York, promises to become a strike center, and Pittsburg railroad men are reported as getting restless. Other points report a similar condition of actual trouble or uneasiness.

Men of the Southern Pacific have control and traffic is completely blocked in California. The present outlook indicates no relief.

Mobs hold trains at Spokane Falls, Washington. The United States Marshal has asked that the city be put under martial law.

ROME, July 6.—The authorities are in possession of proofs of an Anarchist plot directed against Premier Crispi of Italy, President Carnot of France, Alexander III. Czar of Russia, and other heads of European governments. All were to have been killed in the same week.

LONDON, July 6.—A special dispatch from Liege, Belgium, says three cases of cholera, one fatal, have occurred in that city within the last twenty-four hours. The same number of cases and one death are reported from Angleur, three miles from Liege, and one case, also fatal, from Jeysille.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 6.—During the twenty-four hours ending at noon Wednesday there were eighteen new cases of cholera and five deaths in this city. Since July 1 there have been eighteen cases of cholera at Cronstadt and four deaths.

A striking full-figure portrait of Captain Alfred T. Mahan, U. S. N., on whom Cambridge has recently conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws, forms the frontispiece of the Review of Reviews for July. This number contains many other interesting portraits—Populist Senators and Representatives at Washington, Mr. John W. Goff, the successful counsel of the New York Senate's Police Investigation Committee; Sir George Williams, the founder of the Y. M. C. A.; the late William Walter Phelps, Professor William D. Whitney, the Hon. George Peabody Wetmore, Rhode Island's Senator-elect; M. Casimir-Perier and Charles Dupuy, the French statesmen; Samuel Gompers, President of the Federation of Labor; the Coxeyite leaders, Professor Henry Drummond, Governor-elect Lord of Oregon, and other people prominently before the public.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit of Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Conscious State? The views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death; his preexistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

ABSTRACT of EVIDENCE

TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

This work is an abstract of the sworn testimony of both Plaintiff's and Defendants' witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickites (a faction from the Original Church) for title to and possession of the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri. The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, and who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, and the testimony of members of the Hedrickite organization, is given; also the statements of said witnesses under cross-examination and recross-examination.

Evidence from the three standard books, and from the publications of the Original Church, and the Reorganized Church, the Hedrickite faction, and from those of the Utah Church, is presented in support of the claims of the Reorganized Church to be the successor of the Original Church, showing it to be the authorized and identical continuation of said Original Church and entitled to its property, while all other factions have departed from the Original Church in organization, in teaching, and in practice.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, three pamphlets, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

A valuable volume of evidence for ministry and laity; useful in refuting the many misrepresentations of the early church and its ministry and membership.

A limited edition has been published. Price, bound in law sheep (Counsel's argument in separate binding), $3.00.

Bound in cloth $2.50.

TEMPLE LOT SUIT DECISION.

The decision of Judge Phillips, of the United States Circuit Court, Western District of Missouri, Kansas City, awarding title and possession of the Temple Lot to the Reorganized Church as the true successor of the original Church of Latter Day Saints organized April 6, 1830, and setting forth the position of the Utah Church and other factions as departures from the true faith, and without right to the name or property of the Original Church.

Published by the Reorganized Church. Valuable for reference, and general distribution.

In pamphlet form complete; price 15 cents each; two for 25 cents. Special prices on orders for ten or more.

Address orders to David Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa.

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Every Latter Day Saint wants this work for study or for reference.

It is one of the first those interested in the work should read after receiving explanation of its character and import.

It is one of the three standard books of the word of God to the church.

THE LARGE TYPE EDITION

with shortened paragraphs is designed especially for aged people who do not readily read ordinary type.

Both editions are bound in various styles. See catalogue for description and prices.

THOSE WHO LIKE POETRY

will be pleased with a volume of Afterglow or Hesperis.

AFTERGLOW

is a book of Choice Selections from American and Foreign poets.

It is published in the interests of the Gospel Boat Fund of the South Sea Islands Mission. The book forms a rich collection of verse. It is handsomely bound and beautifully illustrated.

THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS

is the third of the authoritative standards of the church. It has an especial interest to Latter Day Saints as the word of God in modern times, containing divine instructions for the present dispensation. In two styles of binding.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

 Muslin binding . . . 50

MANUSCRIPT FOUND.

This is the notorious Manuscript Found, written by Rev. Solomon Spalding; a verified and certified copy of the original now in Oberlin College, Ohio, of which so much has been said and written in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief groundwork and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. The preface to the work contains an account of its coming to light, by which it can be traced back to its author—Solomon Spalding. The work, suppressed for years by enemies of the Latter Day Saints, is a complete refutation of the charge made that it is the basis from which the Book of Mormon was written.

PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD;

THE APOSTASY, REFORMATION, AND RESTORATION.

By Elder Wm. H. Kelley. New, Revised, and Enlarged Edition. It contains 421 pages of closely written matter, with autograph and likeness of the Author and is printed in good, readable type, with neat binding. The work is a library within itself; a marvel of trenchant criticism and logical deductions from historical facts; a key to the right understanding of the Bible and modern diverse systems of faith and worship. It discusses the issues of theology that are to the front to-day. It treats largely of Ministerial Authority as associated with the Melchisedek and Aaronic Priesthoods, and the Ideal Church of New Testament times is conspicuously set forth in striking contrast with the creeds and systems of church building since the days of the Apostles. Also the claims for the Restoration of the Gospel at a later day than the Apostolic age are critically examined in the light of prophecy and history, which is a subject of great moment to men of every faith. A historical resume or brief is also inserted of the rise and development of the "apostate church," and an exegesis of the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the revelation of the "sealed book." Also the origin of modern churches and creeds, etc.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

BREAD REFORM.

AN English writer says: Bread is looked upon as the "staff of life," and such it should be and is when properly made and containing the needed elements. By the majority of people it forms the principal article of diet, and many of the poorer classes live upon it almost wholly. But the bread in common use by the English people to-day falls far short of containing the nutritious properties that should constitute a staple article of food.

It is a scientific fact that the refining device known as bolting cloth, used in the flouring mills in the manufacture of fine white flour, removes important nutritive ingredients of the grain. These removed materials, known as bran, shorts, and middlings, contain the saline and mineral elements of the grain—substances which are essential to the proper nourishment of all the tissues of the body, but more especially of the dense structures as the teeth, bones, hair, and nails. After being prepared in the popular manner, and then undergoing a process of shortening, salting, and fermentation, that it may come out white and spongy, wheat is robbed of the essentials to maintain life.

To supply nourishment and support the body in a healthful condition, our food must be such that the vital force within us can transform it into its own structure. Food must furnish new material and furnish good facilities for removing waste.

Wheat is the best grain grown for this purpose, but it is a mistake to think that fermented fine white flour bread is its best representation as a food.

Several years ago, Magendie a French physiologist, fed dogs on fine white flour bread and water, and they actually starved to death in from thirty to forty days. He also fed others on whole wheat bread and water, and they thrived fairly well for an indefinite length of time. This proves conclusively the superiority of the latter kind of bread. The ultimate elements contained in fine flour, according to the latest chemical estimates, are only three, while the grain, or whole wheat meal, contains fifteen.

Whole wheat meal, to be nutritive, does not need to contain the whole of the grain of wheat. Indeed, the rough outer coat, which is removed by the scouring process before the grain is cracked or pulverized, contains only coarse woody fibre, that would many times prove too irritating to the delicate lining membrane of the intestinal tract. Too often in endeavoring to get rid of this, a large portion of the bran is removed, thus making the preparation minus an important element.

The bran has attached to it a mucilaginous substance, which, in a mechanical way, facilitates the vermicular and peristaltic action of the intestinal tract. No device has ever been invented which would separate this substance from the bran. If for no other reason than this, the bran should not be rejected from the flour. The bran should be thoroughly pulverized as other portions of the grain in the making of a good article of whole wheat meal.

Ordinarily bread, to be considered good, must be soft and spongy. It is almost impossible to thoroughly masticate this; besides, the flour is deprived of the mineral and saline substances essential to good teeth; it is little wonder that to-day there are so few adult Englishmen with good, sound teeth, aside from the injury done to the general health. From the hygienic standpoint the ideal bread should be made with only air for leavening, whose expansion in a hot, quick oven insures lightness and sweetness as well as healthful bread. A thin batter made of flour slowly sifted into wetting during constant stirring, and baked quickly makes delicious breakfast bread, or stirred thick and baked as rolls.—Peoples' Health Journal.

THE SIN OF FRETTING.

THERE is one sin which it seems to me is everywhere, and by everybody is underestimated and quite too much overlooked in valuations of character. It is the sin of fretting. It is as common as air, as speech; so common that unless it rises above its usual monotone we do not even observe it. Watch any ordinary coming together of people, and we see how many minutes it will be before somebody frets—that is, makes more or less complaining statement of something or other, which most probably every one in the room, or the car, or on the street corner knew before, and which most probably nobody can help. Why say anything about it? It is cold, it is hot, it is wet, it is dry; somebody has broken an appointment, ill-cooked a meal; stupidity or bad faith somewhere has resulted in discomfort. There are plenty of things to fret about. It is simply astonishing how much annoyance and discomfort may be found in the course of every day's living, even at the simplest, if one only keeps a sharp eye put on that side of things. Even Holy Writ says we are born to trouble as sparks fly upward. But even to the sparks flying upward, in the blackest of smoke, there is a blue sky above, and the less time they waste on the road the sooner they will reach it. Fretting is all time wasted on the road.—Helen Hunt.

The July Cosmopolitan marks the close of the first year since the revolutionary announcement was made that the price of that magazine, already low, had been cut to one half of three dollars a year. All sorts of predictions have come to be unfulfilled during the year—it would be impossible to maintain the rate—the quality would be lowered—the size would be decreased. But even severe critics admit that with each succeeding number there has been a betterment in the quality of articles and illustrations, and the size has remained unchanged, except the always growing advertising pages. The magazine printed, for the six months embraced in Volume XVI, one million four hundred and nineteen thousand copies, an entirely unapproached record, and has doubled its already large plant of presses and binding machinery. The walls of the magazine's new home are rapidly rising at Irvington-on-the-Hudson. Artistically designed by McKim, Mead & White, the new building, with its eight great porticos, will be 279 feet long by 76 feet wide, and one the most perfectly lighted buildings in the world, having 160 large windows, each nearly double the size of the ordinary window opening.

Bishop Blythe of Jerusalem says that over 100,000 Jews have made homes for themselves in Palestine within the last few years, and that many more are making arrangements to remove thither in the near future.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL GAS ENGINE

In the market is run without an electric spark battery. Theory is all very well, but the everyday experience of constant practical use is the best test of merit. The man who runs a launch and finds him-self drifting with tide and wind because the "spark" fails to ignite the charge of gas in his engine; the man who prints a daily paper and fails to get it off on time because the "spark" again fails; the man who has fruit that is injured for lack of irrigation because the "spark" fails in his engine that runs the pump; not only such parties but others who have trouble from like causes should bear in mind that the Hercules Gas and Gasoline Engine is free from such difficulties. The ignition is simple and sure. Send for catalogue. If you want second-hand engines of other makes at cheap rates we can supply you. We have a number taken in trade and cannot take any more until these are realized on. PALMER & REY TYPE F. UNDRY, 405-407, Sanson Street, San Francisco.

A Book for Everybody!
But Especially for the Boys!

Autobiography of ELDER JOSEPH LUFF

The Struggles, Failures, and Successes in the Life of one who is now a Prominent Minister of the Church.

A Medley of Mischief, Mirth, Folly, Pride, Self-will, Honor, Devotion, and Sentiment, as found in the Character of a Boy whom God in due time selected as an ambassador for Himself, and

Who To-day Stands as a Monument of Divine Grace!

The Book contains a history of his conversion to and from Methodism, his acceptance of the restored gospel, a dissertation on the leading features of the doctrine that moved him to obedience, his call as a minister and experiences as such, together with a recital of some striking incidents, showing divine interference and blessing. The autobiography has been revised by Bro. Luff since its publication in Autumn Leaves, and a large amount of doctrinal matter has been added in appropriate places. TWO SERMONS, one on the "Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man," and one on "The Modern Stumbling Stone," have been added also, making it just the kind of a book to have in the family. Price, cloth bound, $1.25.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

THE instruction in the Doctrine and Covenants, section 119, paragraph 5, contains the following concerning the sacrament:—

To avoid confusion let him who presides in the sacrament meeting, and those who administer it cause that the emblems be duly prepared upon clean vessels for the bread and clean vessels for the wine, or the water, as may be expedient.

The question is, in the absence of wine, would not dried raspberry juice do just as well?

Answer.—The law given to the church requires that the liquid used in the sacrament should "be wine; yea, pure wine of the grape of the vine, of your own make." (Doc. and Cov., sec. 76, par. 1.) And this should be made new among, or by the Saints. (Doc. and Cov., sec. 26, par. 1.)

The material to be used as the drink for the sacrament should be wine, grape wine, where it can be had. In the absence of this wine, any other wine, or water is permissible. It is an easy matter, however, in most branches for the Saints to arrange in the fall of the year, to make a sufficient quantity of wine, of the grape of the vine, to last the year, or until the recurrence of the harvest and the vintage, brings in again the new wine.

It may be considered a matter of expediency what may be used in the absence of wine; some using water poured hot upon raisins, allowed to stand until cool then poured off and drank; others use the blackberry, and the raspberry, or the currant, from which to make the wine; or, having dried them, to pour water on, as suggested in the question. Personally we prefer the wine, which the Lord states should be used; others, of course have their preferences; and, so long as the Lord has also said "that it mattereth not what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, when ye partake of the sacrament, if it so be that ye do it with an eye single to my glory," it may safely be concluded that it is the act performed in humility and the just recognition of the Lord in the sacrament that gives it worth and makes it acceptable to God, and not the material used. Nor does it mean that anything will do, by deliberate intention and preparation on the part of the Saints.

2. Should the one administering hand the bread and the wine to every one to whom he administers; or may he hand it to the one at the end of the row of seats and let him pass it to the next, and so on to the whole seat full, from hand to hand one to the other until it comes back to his hand again?

It should be presented to each individual by the one who is passing the emblems. The Twelve lately decided that passing the emblems, the bread and the wine was a part of the administration; and the conference indorsed that decision; hence, as neither teacher, deacon, nor lay member can administer the sacrament, it requires the officer, or officers who are in charge and administering to pass the emblems personally to each one partaking. If the rule is observed uniformity of procedure is secured, and no harm is done to any; if it is not observed, then there is room for question, faultfinding, and bickering; if not downright contention.

The branches at Lamoni and Independence, the two largest branches of the church, observe the rule as herein stated; and as this is within the law, we deem it the safest and best course for all to pursue.

TWO ADMONITIONS.

LADY HENRY SOMERSET relates in her autobiography that upon one occasion when placed in severely trying conditions in an important stage of her life work, under which she was led to doubt the existence of an overruling Providence, she distinctly heard a voice above her say: "Act as if I were, and thou shalt know that I am." The words were accompanied by a peculiar calm and strength of conviction that energized her for the performance of duties and rekindled and increased her convictions concerning God and his interest in the moral and spiritual government of the world.

To act as if God were is the only way to knowing that he is. Knowledge of God is cumulative, progressive knowledge, and is based upon continuous and progressive doing. We cannot know God perfectly in a day nor in a year. We can know that he is and that he rewards the patient seeker after him; but the perfect knowledge is attained in eternal progression by those "who by patient continuance in well-doing [good doing—"doing good"] seek for glory, honor, immortality, and eternal life." The gospel is therefore the truest and grandest philosophy; it is the only philosophy that embraces within its scope the complete theory and accompanying power of divine knowledge and growth, both of which are coequal in the divine order. It is therefore the message of life to man and to be declared in "all the world." For that reason it was preached "in the beginning," and all the subsequent vicissitudes of man but serve to demonstrate its divine harmony and absolute necessity. To attain to the divine is realized only by becoming divine—by being in fact what one believes in principle.

It will be well for us all when we become fully conscious of the demands made upon us as covenant makers—that the twofold character of that covenant requires the fulfillment of our part of its obligations. The Lord has said that he would try and would prove his people whether they would abide in his covenant. For all to act according to the profession that God is, is to know that he is. The trying conditions now upon and increasing in the world will try the people of God—will test the character of their faith in God and measure the extent of their love for his work. The true in heart will find comfort in larger opportunities of doing, of sacrificing and toiling to advance the interests of the salvation of man. The question practically resolves itself into this: "What am I doing that men, women, and children may be enlightened and comforted by the light and power of the gospel?"

Not long ago we heard of an experience of one of the Bishop's agents; while contemplating the difficulties caused by lack of funds in the treasury and his inability to meet existing and increasing demands, he heard a voice above him say, in about these words, "What mattereth it to me if the thousands are offered when it is too late!" The demand is upon the church now; now is the golden opportunity. The now must be improved to guarantee the future condition of promised increase and attainment. It is to be hoped that not merely a part but all who profess discipleship will heed the universal call for more laborers and replenish the treasury of the Lord that they may be sent to the great harvest of souls.

We have referred to two voices, one of which proves that God is at work in the world, preparing the conditions that increase the opportunities for the preaching of the gospel; another which indicates his solicitude that his church as individuals do their part according to the terms of their covenant with him. We present two statements in apposition:—

Act as if I were, and thou shalt know that I am.

Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

There will be something wrong somewhere if increasing demands do not call forth increasing supplies. The demand should regulate the supply. There will be a great wrong and consequent loss if the supply of laborers is diminished.

CHURCH DECAY.

THERE is a disposition among the preachers of nearly all classes of religionists to hunt for and locate what has caused the falling off in attendance at religious services in the churches, and the general manifest apathy on the subject of religion and the future of souls.

Not many of them, however, are willing to admit what Rev. A. J. Gordon, of Boston, alleges as one, if not the chief reason for this decadence in interest in religious thought; hear him:—

Dr. Gordon referred to the many New England towns where empty churches are found. How did they get in this condition? he asked. In my boyhood days the preachers in the country towns, up among the hills farmed it during the week and preached on Sundays, receiving only a small salary. Their sermons were made up almost wholly of scriptural quotations. The whole community was a church going people. By and by, when the colleges and seminaries sent out educated young men the people called and wanted these educated young men for pastors. But the men who had paid a thousand dollars for an education wanted good salaries and the country people couldn't afford to pay them. That is the reason why there are so many churches deserted and abandoned. The only way to reopen these churches is to go back to the old way. We depend on the country to a great extent for our missionaries and future ministers, and what are we to do. Send out young men and women to take up the work and spread the gospel. The sending out of women has my heartiest approval. New England is fast becoming a heathen field. The gospel has completely died out in rural New England, which seventy-five years ago was considered the most religious community in the country. Many famous ministers have come from the country and it is important that we see that gospel does not completely die out in this portion. It is not literary training or eloquence, but the Holy Ghost is essential in those who go out. The Evangelistic association does not depend on the learned, but on those young men and women who will work for the welfare of men.

This, plainly stated, is, that stilted and elegant culture took the place of earnest piety and heartfelt devotion.

The teaching and sayings of the schools of theology became the stock in trade of the pulpiteer, and the word of God, the teaching of the Scriptures, a secondary affair.

Why could they not see that Paul had predicted precisely the conditions that Rev. Gordon now states prevails; "they shall be lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; heady, high minded; they shall heap [build up] to themselves teachers, having itching ears," and "will not endure sound doctrine."

The teaching of doctrine, no matter though it was couched in the words called "holy writ," has been either tacitly, or actively forbidden in the churches for fear of the consequences of inevitable discussion. There could be but one result, that one was foreseen by Paul; and no doubt by Jesus, who mourned that when the Son of man should come, he would hardly find faith on the earth.

Sensationalism, that which will attract the crowd, it is almost immaterial what it is so that it will draw, that is sought after. The shekel gatherer, that is the thing for the average church in city, or pretentious village. Aside and apart from these things there is little to be found in the average church—it is this that Rev. Gordon deplures.

The remedy is a return to primitive ways; the preaching of the gospel—the everlasting gospel, the gospel of a laboring, sober-living, soul-burdened preacher, a risen, glorified Redeemer in primitive fashion, without purse or scrip, the full-toned charity in the love of God. That is the remedy; brethren, let us try it.

THE MURDER OF PRESIDENT CARNOT.

THE recent killing of President Carnot, of the French Republic, by an anarchistic fanatic, is only a part in the great world drama now being played on the universal stage. Of this wicked and most inexcusable deed the Cleveland World has this to say:—

It is a singular fact in human history that tyrants and lords of misrule scarcely ever meet with violent deaths. The martyrs are invariably those who, at the very time of their untimely taking off, are doing the most and the best for the race. Socrates, of all the Greeks, one would have supposed would have been spared the drinking of the hemlock. Cæsar was the wisest and best Roman of his era and was doing most for his country at the time he was slain. The tyrant Louis XIV. ruled and almost ruined France and was undisturbed, to be followed by the corrupt and outrageous Louis XV. But Henry IV., the great and good king, and Louis XVI., the gentle and good, who desired to do the best he knew for a country that was plundered by the tyrants who had gone before, were slain as a sacrifice and offered on the altar of human progress. William of Orange, the great and good prince, was assassinated while many bad ones were permitted to rule and plunder the human species. In America of all the presidents the wise, the kind, the gentle, the philanthropic, would, it seems, be the man who would not have an enemy. Because he was so good and great the assassin seems to have selected him as a shining mark and he was murdered. James Abram Garfield, of all the men in time of peace, would seem to be the ideal president, whom all would honor and whose administration would be a joy and a pride. A devotee to literature and the liberal arts, his administration, if it had gone on to its close, would have been one of the most brilliant this country had ever known. But the assassin's bullet put an untimely end to both the administration and the man. If God manifests himself in these doings in history certainly it is in "a most mysterious way."

The world is ripe, apparently, for the great slaughter, the final struggle between law and order and the spirit of disquiet and anarchy. No one can tell just where it will break out, nor can anyone tell when it will end. All should live so that come when it may, all will be ready to go hence.

THE REASON OF IT.

OF the liberality and fairness, the toleration of the late Congress of the World's Religions, a late exchange has this to say:—

Apropos of Dr. Haweis' second paper on the Mormons in the Contemporary Review, I would say that I addressed a letter to the authorities of the World's Parliament of Religions, asking if Dr. Haweis had made a mistake in supposing that the Mormons had been excluded from the deliberations of that body. The reply, published in the Chicago Unity, comes from Charles C. Bonney, President of the World's Congress Auxiliary. Mr. Bonney says that no application was received from the Mormon Church for participation in the Religious Congresses until after the plans for these congresses had been arranged and the World's Congress season opened. The application therefore, was too late for the course pursued in relation to other denominations. Permission was given, however, a representative of the Mormon Church to prepare a statement of its faith and progress for any such presentation or publication as the general congress should deem wise to make. Permission was afterwards given to have it read at the "Scientific Section" of the Parliament of Religions. The Mormon representative very naturally declined to be pushed on to this side track, and complained because he was not allowed to read it in the general parliament. Mr. Bonney met the representative of the Mormon faith, and said that there was no disposition to sit in judgment on the Mormon Church, but "that as we all know there had been a long-standing and violent prejudice on the part of the general American public against the Mormon Church and people, on account of their practice or supposed practice of polygamy, and that I seriously feared the admission of the Mormon Church into the Religious Congresses of 1893 would excite that prejudice and thereby work great harm, even if we should agree that the renunciation of polygamy had been made and was kept in perfect good faith."

Mr. Bonney, at the conclusion of his communication, expresses the hope that his action in relation to the Mormon Church will commend itself as both considerate and fair. Practically, the question as to when the Mormon Church made an application for admission to the Parliament cuts no figure. There was scarcely a day during the proceedings of the Parliament when a place could not have been conveniently made for a paper upon the Mormon faith. The representative of that faith was excluded because the prejudice of the American people was so strong against polygamy that they would not listen to a man who had once possibly believed in and practiced polygamy, even though they accepted his assertion that he and his co-religionists had abandoned the system. This, be it remembered, when the platform was crowded with picturesque representatives of Oriental systems that never made any pretense of having abandoned polygamy. When this "bitterly prejudiced" audience was rapturously listening to a brand new Mohammedan convert, who had already stated in some fugitive newspaper interviews that he would advocate the system of polygamy in this country when we were decent enough to adopt it. I had supposed that the very purpose of this Parliament was to courageously meet and rationally dispel the very prejudice which had grown up among American people concerning faiths foreign to their own. But this very faith, which is the only one likely to come into close contact with the current form of American belief, is the only one that is tongue-tied in the Parliament. We may say, in the spirit of the Admiral in "Pinafore," that religion, like love, levels all distinctions "to a very considerable extent." But that in the only case where the Parliament was obliged to deal practically with the questions of religious freedom and fellowship it failed to display its boasted cosmopolitan inclusiveness.

INTERESTING READING.

The following from the journal of Hon. Schuyler Colfax, as published in the Western Galaxy, for April, 1888, is interesting reading just now in view of the late decision of the Utah Church leaders to leave us "severely alone."

Sunday, midnight, June 18, 1865.—I have but little time to keep up my journal, being kept on the go incessantly and calls constantly at our parlor when we are in, the rest of the party slipping off to write letters and leaving me to entertain; but I must write a few hurried notes, as we start for Austin, Nevada, in the morning.

Yesterday morning we called on Brigham Young to return his visit, and found him in his office. Several of his leading apostles and counselors came in a few minutes afterwards. He is a heavy-set man, with sandy whiskers round his chin, 64 years old, quite hale and hearty, and not fluent or very easy in conversation. His lips, when he closes them, and his chin, show great will and determination; that is the secret of his controlling 100,000 people here. After an hour's general conversation on the extent, settlements and resources of Utah, and of farming, etc., he asked me plumply the question what we intended to do about polygamy. I replied very frankly that I thought it about time to have another revelation abolishing it. All present smiled, and he said he would be glad if it could be so; that it had been a great trial for him to submit to it; that the revelations of the Doctrine and Covenants declared for monogamy, but that polygamy was a later revelation commanded by God to him and a few others, and permitted and advised to the rest of the church: but he said it was often abused.

I told him it was contrary to the civilization of the age, and if right in Utah, it was for all the world; and if men should have from three to fifty wives apiece, Providence would have provided for the birth of three or four girls to every boy; while in the thousand millions in the world, in all nations, the births of the sexes were nearly equal. He and his counselors then defended it from the Bible and revelations to them, when Bowles asked Carrington, who made this point, the editor of the Deseret News, and very sharp, if he had a revelation to go out and sacrifice his son, as in the case of Abraham, what he would do. He said he would obey, if he was certain it was a revelation, when Bowles told him just then the civil law would step in and stop or punish him. This was a poser and apropos.

They then denounced the anti-polygamy law as unconstitutional, in that it interfered with their religion. I replied that we did not regard it as religion at all; and that it was opposed to the common law, and the practice of all civilized nations.

Richardson told them that when the Puritans hung witches they claimed divine law for it, although it was really murder. Bross argued the question also, and I told them that I trusted they would rid themselves of it as Missouri and Maryland did of slavery, voluntarily, although they had declared it theretofore so interwoven with their social system, and so necessary to their labor, that they could not abolish it.

This is a very hurried abstract of a long talk frankly conducted and clothed on our side in the plainest, squarest, Anglo-Saxon. One of the Mormons, when we came out, said there never had been such plain talk in that house before, but that Brigham liked my frankness. As we parted, after conversing about rebels and slavery (he don't want the former hung, though he said Mason and Sidel and others should have been during the war,—he justified slavery as biblical, though not a separation of families, etc.) I told him I hoped he would have that new revelation soon, and end this system. In our talk, he asked me if they gave up polygamy, if they would not be required to give up their religion, Book of Mormon, etc. We all said, "No, they had a right to worship God as they pleased." But I told him, while their ecclesiastical system was the strongest I knew, polygamy was the weak point in it, setting the whole world against them.

The conversation impressed me with the belief that they see their system cannot stand; and that they have contemplated the possibility of some time or other stopping this practice by a new revelation. There are but few contented and happy Mormon wives where there is plurality, I am convinced; the first wives look down on the extra ones in their own families and in those they visit as concubines lower in rank than themselves.

THE Rockland, Maine, Courier for June 26, has a good notice of Bro. Foss' work in that town:—

Rev. J. C. Foss, who is laboring in this city, is an elder of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. These people believe in the doctrine promulgated by Joseph Smith at Nauvoo, Illinois, but have no affiliation with the Brighamites and their doctrine of plurality of wives, which they claim is a departure from the original faith as taught by Mr. Smith. The Latter Day Saints, as represented by Rev. Mr. Foss, believe in "God the Eternal Father, in Christ his Son, and in the Holy Spirit." They believe in baptism by immersion for the remission of sins, and in confirmation by the laying on of hands, as in the Episcopal Church. The Book of Mormon, found by Smith, is used as supplementary to the Bible and not as a substitute for it. The Book of Mormon states that "man shall have but one wife, and concubines none."

There are some fourteen churches in this State, the ones in this locality being at Green's Landing, Little Deer Isle, and Brooksville. All of them have settled pastors. Rev. U. W. Greene is elder at Green's Landing, John Billings at Little Deer Isle, and William G. Pert at Brooksville. The Green's Landing society owns its church and is soon to build a larger place of worship, while the Little Deer Isle branch is soon to erect a house for itself. Sunday of last week a conference meeting was held with a branch of the society at Bray's Mountain, Deer Isle, where Rev. Mr. Foss baptized six converts. The schoolhouse, where the services were held, was crowded full of interested listeners.

BE natural, in the pulpit as well as out of it. Nothing wearies an audience of Latter Day Saints so quickly as to see the preacher affected, stilted, or putting on airs.

Be careful to avoid contracting the habit, poses, manner of speech, or trick of voice that you may have noticed in others, and admired. Such things are easy with those to whom they are natural, but soon fall flat on an audience when they are but an imitation.

Close connected speech though it may appear to be slow, and in fact may be so, will go further than rapid utterances, disjointed sentences, and frequent repetitions.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ONE of the ministry writes from Bedford, Indiana, July 6:—

I have just been notified that I cannot have the opera any longer for the lady is sick in part of the building. I worked long to get this opening, and spoke only last evening, and now it is closed, and for me for all time to come, I do think. My very heart is sick over this humiliating defeat, and my head hurts and my brain fairly reels; but such seems to be for my thorny pathway. I wish the church would tell me to go home and stay there till I die. I do think the cross is heavy to be borne where nothing scarcely but blind, cruel hate, and dark suspicion throng my way. I trust everybody, and especially all the vigilant ministry, are all faring far better than myself; for, of late, it is an up-hill business I assure you.

Sr. Mollie Transue, Barnes, Kansas, July 7:—

We have had a visit from Bro. R. L. Ware, who preached four sermons in the Christian church with good liberty. But few came to hear, yet we think some good was done. The people were very much prejudiced against the gospel, but some say they will investigate.

Bro. D. A. Hutchings, Little Sioux, Iowa, July 6:—

I moved here from the Moorhead branch and have plenty of places to preach. I have had the best of liberty. I am holding regular preaching services at River Sioux and at two schoolhouses south, with good interest, and have many calls that I cannot fill. We have some noble workers in the branch, but some of the Saints are asleep, and I feel that they should be awake to their duties, especially the ministry—those placed in the church as watchmen; for the enemy is trying to cause division, and if we neglect to warn the Saints we will be found wanting. No need of any servant being idle; the field is white, the laborers few.

Bro. Richard Maloney wrote from Norman, Oklahoma, July 5:—

I have been in this field about two weeks, but have nothing of importance to report except that the Utah elders have been preaching in the neighborhood and have greatly aroused the people, causing much prejudice. We held one week's meeting with but fair attendance, but are hopeful for a brighter day. The Brighamites will have a conference on Saturday and Sunday, which we intend to visit. We hope to enjoy the blessing of God so that we can care for the work in a proper manner.

Bro. T. K. Ferrell, Big Bend, West Virginia:—

The notice in a recent Herald applies to the undersigned, therefore I respond. I don't want the Herald to stop coming to me, for it is the only preacher we have here since Bro. D. L. Shinn has been out of the work. He doesn't come any more, so we don't often hear the gospel preached, though there is a branch of about thirty members. If the Herald can assist us in getting an elder, please do so.

Bro. J. S. Roth, Grinnell, Iowa, July 9:—

I came home on the 3d and intended going away again on the 5th, but here I am yet. I tried to go to-day, the 9th, but no train. I spoke here in the Advent church yesterday. I will be out in my field again as soon as I can go on the train. I am getting very uneasy. I feel like Paul, woe is me if I preach not the gospel!

Bro. Peter Anderson wrote from Dame, Moen, Denmark, June 27:—

I have baptized one in Aalborg and one in Malmo lately.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE edition of the Gospel Quarterly for June, July, and August—including both Senior and Intermediate grades—is exhausted and orders cannot be filled unless some sent out are returned to the Herald Office by those who may not have use for them. Hereafter a larger edition will be printed and those whose subscriptions have expired will be dropped from the list unless the office is notified to continue the quarterlies. Delinquent subscribers are requested to examine subscription labels and renew, or give notice that subscriptions will be renewed.

Bro. J. F. Potter wrote from Clinton, Iowa, of labor already reported by Bro. J. S. Roth. Bro. Turner had gone to Amber, Iowa, to do tent work.

Bro. J. B. Roush had pitched the gospel tent at Marseilles, Illinois, on the 6th inst. Bro. J. S. Kier was to assist him but was detained by the railroad strike.

Families of Saints and members of the church who do not take the HERALD will be furnished sample copies of the church organ on application. By action of the Board of Publication ministers are requested to send the addresses of newly baptized persons to the Herald Office with request that copies of the church paper be sent them. Will the brethren of the ministry general and local please comply with the request.

A two-days' meeting was held at Greene schoolhouse, six miles west of Lamoni, on Saturday and Sunday, July 14 and 15. Bro. J. S. Snively, H. A. Stebbins, and R. M. Elvin were the speakers. Four were baptized on Sunday by Bro. Elvin.

One was baptized near Lamoni, on Tuesday the 10th inst., Bro. R. M. Elvin officiating.

Elder M. B. Williams occupied the pulpit in the morning service and Elder J. W. Wight in the evening, at Lamoni, on Sunday, July 15.

NOTICE.—Received too late for regular insertion: "Conference of the Central Nebraska district will convene at the residence of J. H. Jackson, five miles northwest of Battle Creek, Madison county, Nebraska, on Saturday, July 28, 1894, at two p. m. We hope for a large attendance and good time. Levi Gamet, secretary."

"It must be because God is always with us that we sometimes imagine he is nowhere to be found."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Some murmur when their sky is clear
And wholly bright to view,
If one small streak of dark appear
In their great heaven of blue.
And some with thankful love are filled
If but one streak of light,
One ray of God's good mercy, gild
The darkness of their night.

"In palaces are hearts that ask,
In discontent and pride,
Why life is such a weary task,
And all good things denied.
And hearts in poorest huts admire
How love has in their aid
(Love that not ever seems to tire)
Such rich provision made."

GOD'S CHILD.

"If you are God's child, work and act like one of his children. Never allow people to think less of him for what you do, or fail to be and do," we read in the golden light of the Sabbath morning, then leaned back and instinctively closed our eyes that the inward vision might be clearer.

God's child! Oh! how holy and sacred this privilege and how blessed they who in reality sustain this relationship to him, and yet more blessed are they into whose souls has entered a full conception of all which this relationship implies.

It is not alone the conformity of our lives in outward appearance, in act and word, but the peace, the trust which springs from implicit confidence in God. Confidence in his wisdom which cannot err; in his justice which is perfect; in his mercy which is unfathomable; and above all, confidence in his love which is boundless; in our knowledge that we are his children and that his wisdom, justice, mercy, and love stand pledged that "All things work together for good to them that love God." The world has no peace to give his children, and he warned them that in the world they should find tribulation, but in him peace. It is possible despite every cloud which may lower, every storm which may surge around us, to rest in this peace—the peace which Jesus gave to his own and left with them.

Dear Home Column:—In a recent issue of the Herald there appeared an article under the heading, "Bear ye one another's burdens," and as I read I asked myself the question, "What am I doing to help the cause of humanity?" not in the way of letter writing, for I have no special gift in this line, but in my daily life am I helping to bear the burdens of others, or living wholly unto myself? I, too, looked in upon Bro. Joseph, in his sanctum, during my stay in Lamoni, and that visit, though short, revealed to me the kindness and unselfishness of his nature. His face wore a troubled look and his general appearance was one of extreme weariness, and suddenly there came to my inner consciousness the fact that burden bearing was a part of the mission of the prophet of the latter days; and while I looked upon his troubled countenance with unspoken sympathy I placed him in the category with "the Man of sorrows, acquainted with grief," fancying that I beheld self placed in the background, and in the foreground the image of One whose "visage was marred more than the sons of men." As we conversed upon different topics the careworn expression gradually left his face and the genial smile which supplanted it was a pleasure to see. As I returned to the place where I was stopping I meditated on my own bitter complainings and wondered if I had ever forgotten my own trials long enough to speak a kind word or perform a kind deed which would count for anything in the great reckoning day. Prior to my visit to Lamoni I had regarded Bro. Joseph somewhat in the light of an ambitious leader, eager to please the majority and oblivious to the rights of the oppressed, but I have met him at the church, at the houses of the Saints and in his own home and can testify that to know him is to love him.

Now, I have asked myself again and again the questions, "What good will the Daughters of Zion accomplish?" "Why should Sr. Walker and other brave sisters burden themselves with the follies of this generation?" "Who will believe their report?" Since the Daughters of Zion Leaflets began to be published I hear cries of "obscene literature" from the narrow minded, and timid Saints almost faint at the mention of our boys and girls being taught the needs and uses of their bodies. Satan has his emissaries at every post to thwart the good which might be done and to make an opening for the entering wedge of vilification and slander. Moral degradation will exist until the "earth reels to and fro like a drunkard" and God smites this nation with the wrath of his indignation. Then why should brave and good women burden themselves with the work of moral reform and lay themselves open to ridicule, to censure, and to vilification? I'll tell you why. It is because the hidden mysteries of life and degeneration are being perverted by the evil one and revealed to this generation as principles of truth. Occasionally a mother is reached to whom the dangers that lurk all around us are apparent and who recognizes the necessity of thus teaching our little ones. Those whose lives have been protected by pure home and church influences do not realize the need of this. but go into the world, into society, into the streets, yea, into thousands of homes and families. All along the line marriage is losing its sacredness, the doctrines of psychic force and sexual magnetism are being taught as the saving powers of the race, and a covering of sham virtue hides the corruption which vies with the iniquities of Sodom. History is repeating itself. The condition of our nation to-day is not one whit different from the conditions of dead nations; this nation is inundated with wickedness in all the loathsome aspects which characterized the fallen nations of the past.

Again I ask, "What can the Daughters of Zion do?" It is their work to preserve the sanctity of the home, to defend the cause of motherhood and childbearing, to guard the young from the follies and excesses of ignorance and false doctrines, to teach the "way of life" to the rising generation, to combat the evils that meet us everywhere, to fight for the purity of Zion.

SR. HANNAH.

A SONG OF THE BURDEN BEARER.

"I'll drop my burden at his feet, And bear a song away."

Over the narrow footpath That led from my lowly door, I went with a thought of the Master, As oft I had walked before.

It was more than I could carry, If I carried it all alone; And none in my house might share it— Only One on the throne.

While yet my courage wavered, And the sky before me blurred, I heard a voice behind me Saying a tender word.

Nothing that hour was altered, I had still the weight of care; But I bore it now with the gladness Which comes of answered prayer.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JULY.

PETITION.

"More holiness give me, More sweetness within, More patience in suffering, More sorrow for sin, More faith in my Savior, More sense of his care; More joy in his service, More purpose in prayer."

"More purity give me, More strength to overcome; More freedom from earth-stains, More longing for home, More fit for the kingdom, More used would I be; More blessed and holy, More, Savior, like thee."

Thursday, July 19.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses.—2 Corinthians 9: 6, 7.

Thursday, July 26.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verses.—Psalm 67: 3, 4.

A man named Winks recently denounced the Bishop of Manchester, England, for accepting a princely income while so many better men were starving. The Bishop has just made the following answer to him: "You taunt me with the amount of my income. Perhaps it may astonish you to be made acquainted with the following facts: I live as plainly as any workingman, and I believe that I work harder and more hours than nine out of ten workingmen, and yet I am compelled, by the expenses incident to my office, to spend £1,000 a year more than my official income."

BELLSGROVE, W. Va., July 5.

Editors Herald:—I have just got home from a two month's tour in the State of Kentucky; from preaching the restored gospel in new fields. There are but two Saints in Eastern Kentucky to my knowledge. I met with a great deal of opposition and was laid for and rocked from the brush, but knowing it was done by the baser sort I bore it with patience. I preached the gospel as best I could and left a great many of the best citizens investigating who will soon obey.

This place is only thirty miles from the Centerville branch of Wayne county, West Virginia, where our next district conference will be held, commencing on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in August, and many of the people from Kentucky said that nothing but sickness or death would keep them away, and some of them are preachers from the sects.

On my arrival home I found Priest G. W. Moore waiting to join me in the work. We will remain here a few days with the Buffalo and Union Grove branches, and then go to Mason county, West Virginia, where we will remain until our district conference. On my way to Kentucky I baptized an old sister sixty-eight years of age and another sister gave her name for baptism at conference. I cannot say that the Saints are alive to the work as they might be. There is no one laboring in the district that I know of but myself, and the locals are doing nothing. It is hoped that some of the Seventies appointed to West Virginia will drop in and do some work. It is badly needed.

G. H. GODBY.

LATAH, Wash., June 27.

Editors Herald:—I think it due that the Herald should hear from the extreme Northwest at least semi-annually. Since last writing, December 9, I went to McMurray, then to Arlington, thence to my home; and in February started for Spokane. I spoke twice while there and baptized a young man in the icy stream of Hangman Creek on the 5th of March. Had a very pleasant stay while there with a few of the scattered sheep of the house of Israel. I tried to comfort, strengthen, and cheer them. It is a stiff-necked and a crooked generation, for most every time one gets straightened he breaks off.

Leaving the few Saints there, I went to Fairfield, preached twelve times, and on the 19th baptized three, Bro. Tupp and his son and daughter. They did all they could to make my stay pleasant. Here Bro. Story met me with his always smiling face, his team and hack, and we started on a muddy ride for Latah, and found the Saints fairly well, Bro. Wall's children being a little under the weather. I baptized their oldest daughter, spoke a number of times, then went to Walla Walla, where I met and conversed with a Mrs. Jensen who first belonged to the Brighamites then the Morrisites, then the Davisites, and learned that if the Brighamites have gone to original sin, the Davisites are past redemption. O, the darkness of latter-day Israel! I went from there to Heppner, Oregon, where I found a band of sisters doing all that lies in their power to serve the Master, with Sr. Rush in the lead. I preached a number of times. Would have preached a few times more, but it was reported that an elder of the Christian Church was on hand, so I went to hear him. He had quite a reputation as a speaker so I went to hear him with this proposition in hand: "Resolved that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is identical with the Church of Christ in organization and doctrine, and is in harmony with the Scriptures; King James' Translation the only evidence to be used in discussing the above proposition." I asked permission to read it, and being granted the privilege, I read it. The elder jumped off his chair and came as near as he could, so I could hear, and delivered the following in italics: "Reorganization, apostles, high priests, elders, bishops, and priests. I have no time to talk foolishness with fools; but if you put up two hundred dollars and come up to Dayton, Washington, I will meet you or any other man, and I will feed you well; it takes money to go into a discussion." Then I delivered the following quotation from the Scriptures: "That God had chosen the foolish things of this world and things that are not to confound things that are;" then I gave him a little advice and sat down, when the one that presided gave him a scolding, and it was worded well. I would rather have been absent if I was to be talked to as he was. The elder's name is Baineby. So it seems that one challenge put ten thousand challenges to flight, "and the end is not yet." Was treated very kindly while there by all.

I went from there to Condon, and preached quite a bit. I went there by invitation of Bro. Goodwin who is very anxious for the spread of the truth. I left there, and arrived home on the 3d of May, and after a few weeks' stay I went again to Spokane, and by invitation to Deep Creek, where I spoke a few times and baptized a young man. Returning to Spokane was met by Bro. Tripp with team and buggy, and with him went to Fairfield, twenty-five miles away, still continuing to talk publicly. There I baptized a lady named Olson, making seven since my report to the conference, with fifty-three sermons preached. So to-day finds me with Bro. Story again.

I have seen the letters in the Herald and Ensign. I have written the writers, and will visit them as soon as possible. Am anxiously waiting to hear from Bro. Holt; will know then what to do.

To-day is the twenty-seventh day of June. Fifty years ago our prophet was slain for the truth of God. Although truth was crushed to the earth it did not remain there, but its banner floats on high. Among the many sayings he said, was this one: "Two and two let them be sent," but it is one in Washington. No district conference to meet with, no branch to visit, to have our weary souls refreshed, not even a companion to accompany me; but still, conquer we must, for our cause is just and this is our motto: "In God is our trust." How I will welcome the day when the Twelve will see fit to send one more into this part of the field. I am still hopeful and will patiently wait. I have implicit confidence in the work. This is why I go telling the story of the cross, leaving home and dear ones to the watchcare of our heavenly Parent who doeth all things well. I will not preach in Latah this time, as the building that we had before was burned with four others. I go from here to Palouse, and thence to W. R. Holden to make known to him his dream, with the expectation of his uniting with the church. May success crown the efforts of all.

Yours for the truth.

JOHN DAVIS.

NORTH PONT-Y-PRIDD, Wales,
June 17.

Editors Herald:—The editorial in the last Herald dated May 30, under the heading, "Read this and respond if it means you," in which the editor shows the great work done by the Board of Publication and the seeming indifference of some of the General Conference appointees to assist the work by soliciting new subscribers for the Herald and exerting their efforts to sell the publications issued by the church, has affected my mind; but for all that, though I do not wish to excuse or justify myself, I must say that more could be done in that direction in Wales; not only by those who are sent out to labor by conference, but by the locals also, providing there was an agent for the Herald Office in this country who would manifest a desire to further the work by keeping a stock of the church publications on hand, that we might be able to send for any of them right away and get them in two or three days at least; but unfortunately for the church and for the souls of many, we have not such an agent in Wales.

I might mention right here that on June 3 I was preaching in Llanelly, the subject being the Book of Mormon. After the close of the meeting a lady interested in the work asked if I had the book for sale, whereupon I had to answer in the negative; but I promised to get it for her. Now I knew there was no one in Wales to write to for one, so I wrote to Bro. Taylor of Birmingham, and having to leave Llanelly, I do not know whether Bro. Taylor has replied as yet; but I left it in charge of the president of the branch. There could also be many copies of the Voice of Warning sold here, providing they were at hand, as they are not very dear; and they would be such an excellent aid to those who would read them to become interested in the work. But I suppose we must be patient for awhile and await further developments.

I am happy and thankful to be able to say that we are in a far better condition now than we were before the appointment of Bro. G. T. Griffiths and J. R. Evans to Wales, though we cannot boast of a great ingathering; but I can truly say that those brethren have done a work that will last. They have been teachers and leaders indeed; not in word only, but by example also. I do not like to speak too much in praise of any person, but when I contemplate and consider the patience and humility, especially Bro. Griffith's, being an apostle, how he humbled himself under certain circumstances to do the work of a deacon, I can say they have shown themselves to be men of God in every respect; and I feel to say further, may they long live to roll on the glorious work of Jehovah. Their instructions, and their teachings, and the organizing of the young people's society and Sabbath school at Llanelly have been moves in a good direction; and although we have been edified by and through their labors and our minds have been opened in regard to the wants of the work in this country, yet we feel sorry that they have not been reappointed, and that we have been left out in the cold this year again; but I am pleased to say, with Bro. G. T. Griffiths in his pastoral letter, in which he asks the locals to do their utmost to keep moving the work onward. It has had a good effect, especially at Llanelly and Pen-y-graig.

The Llanelly branch is doing well under the presidency of J. H. Edwards, and has hearty support in L. Bishop, priest, and A. J. Edwards, teacher; and in the last business meeting of the branch Bro. W. Lewis, who has lately been ordained a teacher was chosen to act as presiding deacon; and I am confident he will prove a good worker. All the members of the branch seem to have renewed their determination to serve the Lord, and due respect is given to the officers. If the latter will seek to be directed in wisdom's way they will continue to have the full confidence of the Saints, and as a consequence the work will prosper. On May 27, I had the great pleasure of leading five precious souls into the waters of regeneration, three of whom will in the near future be of great benefit to the church; that is, by their service; the other two being the young son and daughter of Sr. Lewis, who with her family were formerly members of the Morriston branch. There are others that take an active part in the young people's society at Llanelly, and in the Sunday school who will not be long before they become one with the Saints in the Lord. May God help them to decide soon. There are some interested in the work here, also, who will soon unite with the church if the Saints act wisely and discreetly and do not be a hindrance to them.

One great drawback in this country is that we have no English tracts. We have plenty in Welsh, but the majority of the people here cannot read Welsh; hence the necessity of having English tracts. I am convinced by the reports from various parts that the work is in a better condition everywhere than it is in Wales, and I feel sometimes to leave and seek to share the good times experienced by the Saints in some of the large branches of the church. Before I conclude my letter I earnestly desire the Saints everywhere to let their prayers ascend for the prosperity of the work in Wales, for the Lord to open the way before his servants to do a mighty work for him, few as they are, and to be able to bring many sheaves into his garner. My earnest desires are for the spread of truth, the redemption of Zion, and the consummation of the marvelous work.

Yours in bonds,

A. H. D. EDWARDS.

BLAKE'S MILLS, July 9.

Editors Herald:—Two were baptized here yesterday—two precious souls. They were converted, too. I was alone at the two-days' meeting here, but I requested the assistance of the resident ministry, and their efforts were blessed. Their prayers and testimonies, and the love beaming from their faces, as also the Saints, cheered and blessed me. I cannot now remember when I experienced such an outpouring of the Spirit; it came to the Saints' meeting yesterday afternoon almost as a rushing power. It melted nearly the whole assembly to tears. Many were too full to speak. The gift of prophecy was present, but was not manifested. I hope it is not boasting to say that the Saints here and I have jumped forward to a higher place in the kingdom. At the water the Spirit was present, too, in a great degree. At the close of our meeting we sang the best song for the circumstance, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." Our meetings have all been well attended both by Saints and unbelievers. The Spirit removed some prejudice. The sisters are thinking of forming a Prayer Union. I have encouraged it. I have also been asked as to the Sunday school joining an association and have encouraged them to join our association first. The teaching of the children the true way is very near my heart.

While detained at home for the past month and a half I had charge of the Temple. That grand old building stands square and plumb yet. Dedicated sixty years ago last March, it lifts its lofty tower one hundred and twenty feet as a sublime monument to truth and the restored gospel sent by God to the Seer. The showing of visitors through it is undoubtedly accomplishing much good. I had the pleasure, on a day, of conducting Rev. Dr. Sprecher of Cleveland, a very broad-minded gentleman through the Temple. He listened attentively to the basic ideas revealed in these last days, and purchased a copy of the Book of Mormon. Next Friday I hope Bro. Francis Ebeling and I shall be privileged to carry the "burden of the Lord" into Hunter, Ohio. Still in hope,

JOHN S. PARRISH.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 7.

Editors Herald:—I wish to express my appreciation of the joyful reports and words of wisdom that come through your columns; also to do that which is clear to my mind to be duty—to contribute for value received.

After my mission was changed from Kansas to Minnesota for the summer months, I came to the city of Minneapolis on the 8th of June where I found all the Saints glad to see me and desirous to see the truth prosper. The work in the main is onward; one was baptized last Sunday and there are others near. The railroad strike makes things look extremely dark at present. The Saints, of whom many are railroad men, are using good judgment in not going to extremes for which I am thankful, and believe that I can see that the hand of the Master is over them. Whatever the end may be we know that all things work together for good, with good on our part, for those that love the Lord.

I have something that might be of interest to some—that I will tell; it was very interesting to me at the time; a Rev. J. Wesley Hills, who has been working in Utah for four years in the interest of M. E. Church, has been delivering lectures at the Y. M. C. A. building in this city. Thinking he might harm our work by not properly drawing the lines between the Utah Church and the Reorganization, in company with Bro. Charles Shallbetter, I called on Mr. Hills at his home, stated my business, and asked if he understood that Joseph Smith was not the author of the evils of Utah and that he was no more responsible for what Brigham Young did than Jesus Christ was responsible for the wrong deeds of the Roman Catholic Church. He answered me by saying that "Old Joe Smith was the author of the degrading system." I kindly asked for the proof that Mr. Smith taught polygamy. He said the Book of Mormon taught it. After showing him the mistake he had made the reverend gentleman admitted that he had not examined the matter very closely. However, remember, he was exposing Mormonism. After I had drawn the lines fairly and in a good spirit; and allow me to say that all the time I was talking to Mr. Hills I felt the presence of the promised Spirit—and I did use him kindly; but on the other hand, as soon as he could see no way out by using his old proofs, he grew angry and told me he would do everything in his power against us. I then challenged him for debate, and he then ordered me out of his house. I told him I should hold him responsible for all that was said about the church. I try always to keep my Christian clothing on and trust that I may never get so forgetful of the golden rule as this reverend did.

I never had as good liberty in my work as at present. Yours for truth,

J. ARTHUR DAVIS.

CHASE'S MILLS, Maine, June 27.

Editors Herald:—Feeling to rejoice in the work of God, I wish to let the church know that I am not one of the "sleeping soldiers," though seldom heard from, but in this eastern corner of Uncle Sam's domain I am trying to be faithful over a few things.

This is not a growing country like much of the West, the tendency being to emigrate. Young folks have to go away largely to get work. The agricultural interests of this part of Maine are light, and shipping has greatly declined of late years. Yet there are many things to interest and make home sweet to those who live here. The grand old ocean has its charms. It's fish for taste are far ahead of those caught in fresh water. The scenery along the coast, dotted with islands, invites many summer visitors. The granite quarries are a source of wealth; the sardine, lobster, and clam canning factories are also important industries.

In regard to the work of the church, indications are hopeful, though perhaps no large accessions may be looked for; and with the constant disposition to emigrate it is hard to keep up the branches. I feel well in the work; better in fact all the time, and especially since the last General Conference; and my desire is to be diligent and faithful in proclaiming this gospel of the kingdom to every hamlet and place around that will at all receive it, until this section is sufficiently warned. I think I feel the spirit of the hastening time and the realization that it has come. I am preaching this week at Chase's Mills, where four or five members remain out of what was once a large branch. It is practically new ground, so long is it since any labor has been done, or meetings held here. The message is new to some at least who seem to be much interested. I came here from Cutler Harbor where I preached in Wilder's Hall four evenings, furnished and lighted free by the owner. The business and leading men of the town were quite pronounced in their remarks favorable to what they had heard, and desire my return soon. The hospitality and kindness of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Davis are gratefully remembered. Have baptized none of late, but indications are that there will be an ingathering in this district ere long.

Hopefully,
M. F. GOWELL.

CLINTON, Iowa, July 3.

Editors Herald:—The conflict is still on. Bro. B. F. Miller got the United Brethren church in Brush Creek, which I occupied for one week, with good interest. Several asked me home with them; two of their preachers were out several times, also a Christian minister, and some asked them what they thought of it. They said, "Well, if we fight him we must fight the Bible." The Christian minister asked me to visit him when I returned. I will do so. I baptized two in that vicinity. I hope many more will follow soon.

On the 16th I began a two-days' meeting here, and on the 18th our new tent came from Chicago, and it is a good one. I ordered it through Bro. F. G. Pitt. On the 20th I dedicated it to the Lord, and held forth in it till last night, with good interest and an increasing crowd. The last night there were, I think, more than twice as many there as could get in. We had the use of chairs, which made it very pleasant. All passed off nicely. One Sunday night a noted Greek and Hebrew M. E. minister asked the privilege, after I got through, to make a few remarks. I invited him on the stand to do so. He then told the people, that he didn't want them to go away deceived with false doctrine and side issues, such as "water baptism." "Why waste time on that when Christ never baptized one?" And that if we had only time enough before we drew the last breath to say, "Lord, remember me," we should be saved, etc. After he got through I referred him to John 3:5; 4:1; 1 Peter 3:20, 21; 2 John 9, 10, 11; Gal. 1:1-10; with some others. Well, it would have done a blind man good to have seen him change color, and twist, and try to apply his eis which did not mean into. I insisted on him to apply his eis to John 3:5; Col. 2:12; Rom. 6:3-5. Here his Greek failed him and he tried to get away; and I kept him on the stand; but he utterly failed to answer. I invited him to attend my meetings for a week and if he was not satisfied now that he should have an hour every night to set forth his claim; stating however, that I would be there to answer him. But no; he never came again. All saw his folly, except one good old Free Methodist sister; she shouted "amen" while he was talking, then after he was done, she bore testimony to his statement. She said she staid in the cornfield three weeks, praying, and then came out and told the Lord if he didn't convert her that night and forgive her sins she would tell him it was all a lie; so the Lord had to forgive her sins and she was not baptized either and now she is "so happy." Well, that almost changed my faith you see! But she looked awful lean from having been in the cornfield three weeks.

I want to go to Davenport to-day, but no trains—all dead. Terrible perplexity and distress of nations here; people's hearts failing them for fear. O, how true these times fill the prophecies of the Scriptures.

Bro. Kephart is in Floyd county, and Bro. O. B. Thomas in Clayton county, at work. Many more calls for preaching than we can fill.

In bonds,
J. S. ROTH.

ROCKLAND, Maine, July 9.

Editors Herald:—The cause is looking up very well in this city. We met yesterday and effected a temporary organization of a branch so we can move along. The officers are, Elder J. C. Foss president, H. R. Huntley priest, George W. Newcomb teacher and clerk, J. C. Foss treasurer. I have reported to Bro. William H. Kelley, president of my mission, and I suppose he will organize us into a branch after awhile. I found yesterday that there were twelve Saints now living in Rockland, four of which I have baptized since I came here; others are near the door. One lady gave her name for baptism last evening. I leave the work in charge of Bro. Huntley and will go to help Bro. M. F. Gowell, in two-days' meetings in the Eastern Maine district. I can stop but a few days, for I will look after the work here at present.

Yours truly,
J. C. FOSS.

TUTNALL, Eng., June 24.

Editors Herald:—I thought I should like, through your pages, to let our brethren and sisters know what the Lord has done for us; he has blessed us with many blessings. A little while since my wife was dangerously ill. A doctor had been attending her, but she was gradually getting weaker and her strength and very life were issuing from her. She had lost all faith in the doctor, and we felt that unless something was done she would die; so I called for the elders of the church, and on the following Sunday Elders Taylor, Caton, and Webb, together with Sr. Taylor, drove over from Birmingham, fifteen miles away. We had a grand prayer and testimony meeting; after I had borne my testimony and expressed my hope and desires before the Lord, Sr. Taylor had a powerful gift of tongues, and immediately after, the interpretation, and the gift of tongues and the interpretation was accompanied with such a manifestation of power of the Holy Spirit that we wept for joy and in gratitude to our heavenly Father for being so mindful of us. Blessings rich and rare were promised me conditionally so long as I did my duty, but what most made our hearts to leap with joy was in regard to my wife. With force and great power came these words: "Thus saith the Lord, from this hour she shall begin to recover." Brethren and sisters, that promise was true and has been realized. On the following morning I left home on a long journey, but O, with what blessed assurance, for I knew it would be all right with my wife; the promise had been given and we knew it was sure to be fulfilled!

On the following Friday the sickness culminated, and after that health came back in leaps and bounds. Since then one of our children has been very sick. We did not, however, call in a doctor, but earnestly prayed for her, and she is now out of danger and will soon be quite strong again. We thank our heavenly Father for these good gifts to us, and we think it our duty to speak of what the Lord has done that it may encourage and help to make glad our brethren and sisters.

My desire is to go on in this glorious latter-day work. Thank God for the privilege of being identified with it. And, O, I pray and hope that we may all continue faithful and worthy till the Master comes, who cometh quickly! With love to all the Saints,

Yours in the faith,
FRANK SWANN.

VALE'S MILLS, Ohio, July 9.

Editors Herald:—The two-days' meeting here on the 8th and 9th was well attended by Saints and others and a good interest manifested. The friendly criticism of Bro. C. R. Duncan is appreciated, but the fact remains while the American Encyclopedia may say all Bro. D. furnishes. Mr. Boudinot in his table of names of tribes gives no Stockbridge, and while my examination of the work was limited to the few hours I had in Cincinnati between arrival and departure of trains, I considered it sufficient to write as I did. I would rather be found wrong than right in this case, especially as the quotation was used in the "Book Unsealed," and Bro. D. may rest content that I will examine Mr. Boudinot's work from "A to Z" at the first opportunity. Let this case eventuate as it may I hope that our contributors will give page and title of works instead of "Mr. Boudinot says" or "Mr. Brown says" and then examinations will be readily made. Let criticism with a view to secure the right continue.

In bonds,
R. ETZENHOUSER.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., June 26.

Editors Herald:—I send you two dollars to renew my subscription to the Herald. I have to thank our heavenly Father for that as well as many other blessings. It would be very hard for me to do without the Herald. Bro. Joseph Smith's reply to the card issued by the presidents of the Utah Church did me more good than two dollars spent in any other way I know of. Truly the Lord is hastening his work in many ways. I had some sympathy for the Utah elders when they were here, thinking they were deceived by their leaders, but can have no more for them than I have for any other people who are in darkness, if they stay with a church when their leaders forbid discussing the doctrine they are sent to teach. How thankful we ought to be for this gospel of Christ that none need be ashamed or afraid to advocate or discuss with all men.

It may be some encouragement for you to learn that our elders of this branch are in the field doing what they can to present the gospel to the world, and the Saints here realize that it is necessary for each one to do what he can to let others know the truth. That every one who has taken hold of this work may have faith, and knowledge, and strength to so live and talk that many others may be brought to embrace the gospel of our Lord, is my prayer. I wish all the Saints were able to take the Herald.

Yours truly,
JEPHTHA SCOTT.

WEBB CITY, Mo., July 9.

Editors Herald:—I rejoice at the onward and successful march of truth as recorded in your pages, and that many are not only declaring their intentions, but also being initiated into the kingdom. It seems but a few years since there was not a member of the church at Webb City, where there is now a branch of two hundred or more, with others about ready to enter.

In the latter part of May Brn. Richard Maloney and W. S. Macrae gave us a call as they were en route for Oklahoma, their field of labor, and preached several times. Then Brn. White and Heman C. Smith gave us a call; the first returning home to Texas, the other going to his field of labor. They also preached some very interesting sermons.

About the 18th of June, Bro. Mills, fore-runner of Bro. Duncan, who came in a few days later, arrived and began blowing the gospel trumpet here and in the vicinity adjacent. On June 25 at eleven we had preaching services in Bro. Parker's grove on Turkey Creek, followed by dinner, served by the good sisters, who had not failed to bring their baskets along. At this service all appeared to be of one heart and mind. After dinner we wended our way to the water's edge and five were baptized, Elder S. Maloney officiating, and after a short recess we reassembled in the grove for confirmation and prayer service, Bro. Duncan having charge, assisted by the elders present. There were also several sick administered to and two children blessed. The after part of the meeting was occupied by the Saints in prayer and testimony and nearly all of those baptized and confirmed had a word to say for the Master. A good time was had and many felt to rejoice that they were Saints in latter days.

Brn. Duncan and Mills have been holding a series of services at Blendville, closing just before July 4, after which they will continue their efforts in the branch and vicinity until the convening of our district conference at Sherwin, Kansas, beginning Friday the 13th inst.

We have three or four families of Saints living at Blendville, about eight miles southwest of here, who are building a house of worship.

This spring while Bro. Macrae was holding a series of meetings there quite an interest was manifest, and Mr. Cunningham (banker), who resides there, offered to donate a suitable building lot, providing the brethren would erect a church; and also offered a very liberal donation towards purchasing material for the building; the same house when not occupied by the Saints to be open for other denominations to use. The subscriptions soon ran up to between one and two hundred dollars, and the brethren in very short time had lumber on the ground and a building under way, so that on Sunday June 24, they were able to hold preaching service in it, Bro. Duncan preaching the first sermon. These brethren showed considerable mechanical ability, for they did most if not all of the erecting of the house themselves. Its size is about 24 x 40 feet; so we can see what a few brethren may accomplish when they work unitedly. They expect to have the house plastered and finished by fall.

On the 28th ult., the Daughters of Zion organized at Webb City. We believe they will accomplish a good work if faithful.

On the Fourth of July the Sunday school children and many of the Saints had an enjoyable picnic on Center Creek, and report having a good time. There was a grand celebration held at South Joplin (or Blendville) in the Cunningham Grove. This is where the Saints have put up their new church. The attendance was estimated to be near fifteen thousand. The Saints improved the opportunity by opening up a refreshment stand at their new church where the public were able to partake of a good substantial dinner for twenty-five cents. The Saints were very successful in their enterprise. The Master is blessing every effort put forth by his people unitedly for the advancement of his truth. The local brethren are doing considerable missionary work in the vicinity of Webb City and have seven or eight places to preach at besides the regular services at the Webb City church. May the good work still roll on.

ONE VIEW OF HIGHER EDUCATION.

When a girl is making good, wholesome bread, digestible pies and cake, and keeping a house homelike and comfortable for her father, mother, and brothers, it is said she is missing the "higher education" necessary to a woman's life. This "higher education" is one of the mushrooms that grow in the brain of poets, spiritualists, theosophists, and fools. It means that her father, mother, and brothers should be content to eat soggy bread and grow dyspeptic on canned goods while she sits on the bank of a stream and reflects upon a lot of things that do her harm. Every good and useful woman avoids what is popularly known as the "higher life," the literal meaning of which is the higher foolishness.

The thermometer registered 112° in the shade in some parts of Texas yesterday.

As a rule a man's hair turns gray five years sooner than a woman's.

STOCKBRIDGE INDIANS.

I HAVE read Bro. Etzenhouser's strictures on the reputed quotation from Boudinot concerning the "Stockbridge tribe" of Indians, as found in the Voice of Warning; also the statements and evidences furnished by Bro. Duncan. Investigation for the purposes of learning the exact truth, and testing statements and claims made, is good and commendable. Let the investigation continue until all possible facts are brought to light, whether they tend to confirm or destroy the validity of the quotation referred to. But it is well, as Bro. Duncan intimates, not to be hasty in coming to final conclusions.

That there was a small body of Indians called the Stockbridge tribe, must be conceded; and this of itself is a partial vindication of Parley P. Pratt's claims as set forth in the Voice of Warning. In corroboration of the evidences adduced by Bro. Duncan, I call attention to Johnson's Encyclopedia. From a short article called "Mohegans or Mohicans," we learn that a tribe of Indians by this name formerly inhabited "a considerable part of New England and part of what is now New York as far west as the Hudson River." After the advent of the Europeans they were broken up into small bands. The statement is also made that "relics of the Mohegans are found also with other tribes, especially at Green Bay, Wisconsin, and among the Munsees in Kansas."

In volume 7, article Stockbridge, we have the following statements:—

Originally called Housatonic, this township was the chief residence of the tribe of Indians of the same name, also called Stockbridge Indians, who were Christianized in the eighteenth century by the labors of John Sargeant, Timothy Woodbridge, and the celebrated Jonathan Edwards (1751-57), to whose memory a monument has been erected here. The tribe, numbering 400, removed after the Revolution to Madison county, New York, afterward to the vicinity of Green Bay, Wisconsin, and subsequently resided near Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

I am not prepared to pass upon the genuineness of the quotation from Boudinot, as a whole, but with Bro. Duncan I am inclined to believe that it is authentic. It may be (though I do not know) that there is more than one edition of Boudinot's works, and that the supposed discrepancy can be accounted for upon the grounds that the work which Bro. Etzenhouser consulted is a revised edition. Or, as Bro. Duncan suggests, it may be possible that the quotation of the Voice of Warning is found in another part of the work. I am not willing to believe, as yet, that Parley P. Pratt willfully made a misquotation. However, it is no part of my work to stand against well-established evidence no matter who is convicted by it. "To this end I was" not "born," nor "for this cause did I come into the world."

THE HIGHER CRITICISM.—No. 4.

BY T. W. WILLIAMS.

LAST summer, I wrote three articles on the above subject, but being busily engaged in other matters and fearing that the readers of our valuable church paper would not be sufficiently interested to warrant its continuance, I discontinued them. This spring while in attendance at the General Conference I was approached by several of our active ministry and urged to continue the articles. Should an explanation be necessary for my appearance before you again, let this suffice.

Proposition ten:—

"God is just and impartial." Psalms 92: 15; Gen. 18: 25; Deut. 32: 4; Rom. 11; Ezek. 18: 25; and Deut. 10: 18, 19 are quoted, and with which we are satisfied both as to the matter and its use.

God is unjust and partial. "Cursed be Canaan: a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren."—Gen. 9: 25.

"For I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation."—Ex. 20: 5.

"(For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the purpose of God according to election might stand . . .) it was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger. As it is written, Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated."—Rom. 9: 11-13.

"For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance; but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away even that he hath."—Matt. 13: 12.

"Ye shall not eat of anything that dieth of itself: thou shalt give it unto the stranger that is in thy gates, that he may eat it; or thou mayest sell it unto an alien."—Deut. 14: 21.

"And David spake unto the Lord when he saw the angel that smote the people, and said, Lo, I have sinned, and I have done wickedly: but these sheep, what have they done?"—2 Sam. 24: 17.

As to the curse pronounced upon Canaan, it did not apply exclusively to an individual but to Ham's posterity, for it says in verse 18, "and Ham is the father of Canaan." His posterity, or a part thereof, has always been called Canaan. (See Smith's Bible Dictionary and Encyclopedia Britannica.) It could not have applied solely to Canaan the fourth son of Ham, for we are assured from profane history that the curse herein portrayed has extended farther. The descendants of Ham have been inferior to those of Shem or Japheth, and have acted as servants unto them. While Noah pronounced a curse upon Ham and his descendants, or Canaan, on account of Ham's act, we are not acquainted with all the conditions connected therewith. We have no evidence that Noah was a habitual drunkard, but the record says, "And he drank of the wine, and was drunken." A circumstance of this kind may occur with a man entirely free from the debauchery of habitual drunkenness. In the acts of the three sons were shown their natures and proclivities. Two of them, when they saw the uncomely attitude in which their father was placed, did not prostitute their sonship, but demonstrated their superiority over their Brother Ham, whose acts were anything but commendable. Hence from a natural standpoint they demonstrated superior characteristics, and, as man's traits whether good or bad are to a greater or less extent stamped upon posterity, it is reasonable from a human standpoint that Shem's and Japheth's descendants would be superior to Ham's. Noah could readily forecast the condition of these three sons and especially so if God had revealed it unto him. I do not understand that all that has come upon Ham's descendants has resulted from this sole act of his, but that a chain of circumstances, of which this is but a prominent one, led to the conditions which make the descendants of Ham inferior to those of his brethren.

In dealing with Exodus 20: 5 it will serve our purpose to quote the entire clause:—

For I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me; and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

What is partial about this? Those who continue in sin and hate God are left to suffer the penalties attaching to inherited and acquired habits, while those who will forsake their evil ways and love God and keep his commandments are the recipients of God's interposition and mercy, by which many inherited evils are averted and they are spared from that which they otherwise would have to suffer. In this passage is shown the merciful kindness of God in that it promises redemption from sin and its effects, providing the creature will take advantage of the proffered terms and turn and love God and keep his commandments.

The case of Jacob and Esau is similar to that of Noah's sons. Their individual natures placed them in their particular spheres of life, and while it is reasonable that God by his foreknowledge was able to forecast their conditions, still he permitted them to exercise their agency by which they became subject to the conditions which they had by their own acts brought upon themselves. The statement which Paul refers to, "Jacob have I loved but Esau have I hated;" was written long after the birth of these boys. The first record we have of God speaking this is in Malachi 1: 2, 3; over fourteen hundred years after their birth. God did not hate Esau until he had done that which merited his hatred. The discrepancy of Matthew 13: 12 is made clear in the Inspired Translation. It reads thus:—

For whosoever receiveth, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance; but whosoever continueth not to receive, from him shall be taken away even that he hath.

Deuteronomy 14: 21 is thus rendered in the Inspired Translation:—

Ye shall not eat of anything that dieth of itself; thou shall not give it unto the stranger that is in thy gates, that he may eat of it; or thou mayest not sell it unto an alien: for thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God.

As to the circumstances which led to the punishment of Israel, you will recall a time when they had no king and the people with one accord besought Samuel to appoint unto them a king. The Lord, through Samuel, showed them the consequences of having one, and urged them to desist from their demands, but they unitedly demanded a king. In this they sinned. They brought themselves into subjection. God told them they would suffer because of this act, and this is an instance when it was fulfilled. You will notice that it is recorded in the first verse that before David numbered Israel, God's anger was kindled against them for what they had done previous to the numbering. In a sense David was their representative, so when anything of such a national character as this occurred it is reasonable to suppose that it met with the hearty support of the people. It is recorded in the sixteenth verse that when the angel was about to destroy Jerusalem the Lord stayed his hand and told him it was enough, for the people had repented. How could they repent if they had done no wrong? If they had done wrong, then God was justified in punishing them.

Proposition eleven:—

"God is not the author of evil." (See Ps. 19: 7, 8; 1 Cor. 14: 33; Deut. 32: 4; Jas. 1: 13.)

God is the author of evil: "Out of the mouth of the Most High proceedeth not evil and good?"—Lam. 3: 38.

"Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I frame evil against you, and devise a device against you."—Jer. 18: 11.

"I make peace and create evil: I the Lord do all these things."—Isa. 45: 7.

"Shall there be evil in a city and the Lord hath not done it?"—Amos 3: 6.

"Therefore I gave them also statutes that were not good, and judgments whereby they should not live."—Ezek. 20: 25.

As there is no conflict in the first part of the proposition, we proceed to the consideration of the second. Jeremiah says:—

For the Lord will not cast off forever: but though he cause grief, yet will he have compassion according to the multitude of his mercies. For he doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men. To crush under his feet all the prisoners of the earth, to turn aside the right of a man before the face of the Most High, to subvert a man in his cause, the Lord approveth not. Who is he that saith, and it cometh to pass, when the Lord commandeth it not? Out of the mouth of the Most High proceedeth not evil and good? Wherefore doth a living man complain, a man for the punishment of his sins?"

It is not clear whether Jeremiah intended this as a question or rather intended to affirm that evil did not emanate from God. As Jeremiah did not put the interrogation point after his writing, the reasonable solution would be that it was an affirmation and not a question. But even if it was only a question, if it is answered at all it applies to the rewards given the good and the punishments inflicted upon the wicked: "evil" pronounced upon the sinner and "good" upon the righteous.

The context to the quotation from Jeremiah 18 reads as follows:—

If that nation, against whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent of the evil that I thought to do unto them. And at what instant I shall speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to build and to plant it; if it do evil in my sight, that it obey not my voice, then I will repent of the good, wherewith I said I would benefit them. Now therefore go ye, speak to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying, Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I frame evil against you, and devise a device against you: return ye now every one from his evil way, and make your ways and your doings good.

Because of their sin God had decreed to punish them unless they repented and he had framed (decreed) evil (or punishment) against them; but if they would return from their evil ways he would avert the evil consequences of their acts. The Inspired Translation gives the word withhold for repent in this passage.

Isaiah 45:7 portrays the unlimited power of God and the results brought about by conditions. So with the the righteous; God brings about peace, while upon those who do evil he brings evil.

The Inspired Translation renders Amos 3:6 thus:—

Shall there be evil in a city and the Lord hath not known it?

Had the context of Ezekiel 20:25 been given it would have changed the meaning of the quotation materially. Why was it that the Lord gave them statutes that were not good? Verse 24 says:—

Because they had not executed my judgments, but had despised my statutes, and had polluted my Sabbaths, and their eyes were after their fathers' idols.

This was the cause. They did not keep the perfect law, and God gave them one that was not perfect. The institution of the Mosaic ritual is an illustration of this. The gospel was given Israel, but they failed to comply with the demands (Gal. 3:1, 2; 4:6), hence God instituted the inferior law which can be termed "not good" in that it was not perfect as that of the gospel.

We shall in the future consideration of these "self-contradictions of the Bible" only investigate and explain those which are seemingly contradictory, and shall only note the many glaring perversions of scriptural texts which largely compose the work.

COLLECTIONS.

WHY any person should object to collections in aid of church work in any of its forms is passing strange, for certain it is that such work cannot be done without the use of money and other suitable means. Shall anyone who partakes of the blessings of God's preached word, and of the ministrations of his church refuse to help forward and sustain such goodly, profitable, saving work? May those blessed by the church and its ministrations fail and refuse to support it with their temporal means? Is that just and equal? Is it honorable? Is it manly and womanly to obtain favors and benefits of the highest importance for this life and the life to come and yet make no returns for them, if able? Shall the ministry labor, and toil, and bless the people, and the latter have no care and make no proper effort, when able, to assist in supplying their wants and needs?

Christ said to his ministers: "Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass, in your purses; neither scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves: for the workman is worthy of his meat" (Matt. 10:9, 10), by which we may learn that the Lord intended they should be provided for by those for whom and among whom they ministered, thus making the ministry dependent upon God and those for whom they ministered, and also making the people ministered to responsible to God and their own souls for the manner in which they supplied the proper wants and needs of the ministry.

Of these matters St. Paul says:—

Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? Say I these things as a man? or saith not the law the same also? For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen? or saith he it altogether for our sakes? For our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that plougheth should plough in hope; and that he that thresheth in hope should be partaker of his hope. If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things? If others be partakers of this power over you, are not we rather? Nevertheless we have not used this power; but suffer all things, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ. Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel.—1 Cor. 9:7-14.

St. Paul says further on this matter:—

Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially they who labor in the word and doctrine. For the Scripture saith, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn. And, The laborer is worthy of his reward.—1 Tim. 5:17, 18.

From the foregoing texts it is seen that the Lord has ordained that his ministers shall be aided and sustained, by those ministered to, at the times and places where they minister, and that, too, in proportion to their diligence and faithfulness, for:—

Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially they who labor in the word and doctrine. For the Scripture saith, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn. And, the laborer is worthy of his reward.

And to this it may be added that the Lord promises reward "to every man according as his work shall be," and has ordained that he who is faithful with the "talents" committed to him shall be aided and rewarded in proportion to his devotion, and diligence, and faithfulness, as see Matthew 25:14-30, etc.

The Lord has restored his gospel in these latter days, and with it came the divine order for supplying the wants and needs of the ministry when in their missions. Here is what he said to Joseph and Oliver:—

And thou shalt take no purse, nor scrip, neither staves, neither two coats, for the church shall give thee in the very hour what thou needest for food, and for raiment, and for shoes, and for money, and for scrip.—D. C. 23:7.

And here is what he says to the ministry:—

And again I say unto you, my friends (for from henceforth I shall call you friends), it is expedient that I give unto you this commandment, that ye become even as my friends in days when I was with them traveling to preach this gospel in my power; for I suffered them not to have purse or scrip, neither two coats; behold, I send you out to prove the world, and the laborer is worthy of his hire. And any man that shall go and preach this gospel of the kingdom, and fail not to continue faithful in all things, shall not be weary in mind, neither darkened, neither in body, limb or joint; and an hair of his head shall not fall to the ground unnoticed. And they shall not go hungry, neither athirst.

Therefore, take no thought for the morrow, for what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, or wherewithal ye shall be clothed; for consider the lilies of the field, how they grow, they toil not, neither do they spin; and the kingdoms of the world, in all their glory, are not arrayed like one of these: for your Father who art in heaven, knoweth that you have need of all these things. Therefore, let the morrow take thought for the things of itself. Neither take ye thought beforehand what ye shall say, but treasure up in your minds continually the words of life, and it shall be given you in the very hour that portion that shall be meted unto every man.

Therefore, let no man among you (for this commandment is unto all the faithful who are called of God in the church, unto the ministry), from this hour, take purse or scrip, that goeth forth to proclaim this gospel of the kingdom. Behold, I send you out to reprove the world of all their unrighteous deeds, and to teach them of a judgment which is to come. And whoso receiveth you, there will I be also; for I will go before your face: I will be on your right hand and on your left, and my Spirit shall be in your hearts, and my angels around about you, to bear you up.

Whoso receiveth you receiveth me, and the same will feed you, and clothe you, and give you money. And he who feeds you, or clothes you, or gives you money, shall in no wise lose his reward: and he that doeth not these things is not my disciple: by this you may know my disciples.—D. C. 83: 13-16.

It is seen by the foregoing that the aid given the ministry under the order of God, should be supplied when the minister is in the field of gospel work, and where he is doing his work, and be supplied by those who receive of his ministrations, whether they be members of the church, or nonmembers.

Now in order to carry this order into effect, opportunities must be afforded when and where the people may contribute of their means to aid the minister in his legitimate work, and how can that be done better than by taking collections, directly or indirectly? Paul instructed the churches, in what was evidently a common usage, when he directed them to make collections for needful church purposes; as see 1 Corinthians 16: 1-3. During the lifetime of Joseph the Prophet, collections were taken to help forward the work of the church. In the Reorganized Church the most successful ministers have made collections for legitimate church work in ministerial labor abroad, such as advertising, paying hall rent, procuring clothing, paying traveling and other incidental expenses. And much of the means so obtained has been given cheerfully by those not members of the church. It is often the case that, if opportunity is offered, those not members of the church have contributed liberally to aid the ministry and help forward church work. But if no opportunity for giving aid is offered them, it must not be expected they will aid. And if proper opportunities are not offered, how will the Lord "prove" them and either reward or condemn them in this matter? The Lord will prove the minister as to whether he will go forth in gospel work in the manner he appoints; and he will also prove the people among whom and for whom the minister labors as to whether they will aid and sustain him. Responsibilities are in these things mutual as relating to both the ministers and the people. And if opportunities are not given for the people in and out of the church to render such aid as is needed, how shall the Lord judge and either reward or condemn? Who has authority to pervert the order ordained of God in these matters? And who can expect the favor of God if they do not comply with that order?

Many persons not of the church esteem it a duty and a privilege to aid the ministry and the church, and will cheerfully do so if occasion is offered them. Some, indeed, feel hurt and neglected if occasion is not offered. The writer has known of cases where non-members have complained when opportunity to aid has not been offered them. They attend services, are interested hearers, and not wanting something for nothing, desire and expect to assist paying all proper expenses. Shall not these have the needed opportunity and be courteously invited to aid? If these non-members render aid, they then feel a personal interest in, what they aid, and to the extent they aid. All this has a tendency to interest them in the work of the church and draws them to further inquiry and to unite with the church. But when the ministry and the Saints by their acts exclude non-members from contributing aid to the missionary, or toward building churches, or for other proper purposes, they appear unsocial, exclusive, and entirely too independent. This works harmfully to all, shuts out the kind providences of God, and prevents the nonmember from doing what the Lord requires of him, and thereby perverts and hinders the order of God. The same rule applies to members, for the Lord requires of them to aid, in a reasonable way, the faithful ministry traveling by authority and laboring among them; and the member who can, and will not aid the worthy diligent minister, when needful, is not fit for the kingdom of heaven.

All these things should be done wisely and in order. But they should be attended to, and that in their season, and not grudgingly. If any minister abuses the confidence reposed in him and the kindnesses bestowed, he should be promptly reported to those in authority. The abuse made in the matter of collections by others is no valid excuse for not complying with that practice. There is no good rule or good principle but what is subject to abuse. Wise dealing in the matter will be sure to result well to the church, honor to God, and to bless those rendering aid. Will the ministry and the membership uphold and honor the order ordained of God now under consideration? All should do as provided in God's word, and then they can claim his blessings. Then the church will move on with accelerated speed and increased power, for the Lord is bound to bless and prosper his people when they do what he commands. God is wiser than man; his power and favor are needed by the church, and without these the efforts of the wisest and strongest will fail.

Conference Minutes.

ST. LOUIS.

Conference convened in the district tent June 30, 1894, at Cheltenham, Missouri; C. H. Jones, president, J. G. Smith clerk. Branch reports: St. Louis 263; 13 baptized, 2 received, 1 expelled, 1 died. Belleville 59; 1 received, 1 died. Whearso 46; 9 baptized, 1 died. Moselle, no changes. Cheltenham, no report. Elders reporting, C. H. Jones, W. T. Bozarth, R. Archibald, A. S. Davison, J. E. Betts, Sen., and J. E. Betts, Jr.; teachers reporting, J. C. Hitchcock and F. Wiley. The boundaries of the St. Louis district as defined by the General Conference were read, and the clerk instructed to record them. Bro. J. E. Dawson, of the tent committee, reported as follows: Moneys collected $94.51; expended: for one tent 24x40 feet, $60; for one tent 14x16 feet $19; for incidental expenses $33.95; July 1, 1894, balance still due $18.44. This report was approved, the committee continued, and authorized to collect donations to meet current expenses of the tent, as well as to cancel present indebtedness. Bishop's agent's report from March 1, 1894, to June 30, 1894: March 1, 1894, balance cash, corrected, $98.04; received tithes and offerings $77; paid out $144.40: June 30, 1894, balance on hand $30.64. N. N. Cooke, agent. This report was audited and approved. The district officers were reelected to serve for another year. Bro. R. Archibald was elected vice president of the district. Preaching by Elders R. Archibald and W. T. Bozarth. Adjourned to meet at 2518 Elliott avenue, St. Louis, Missouri, Saturday evening, September 29, at eight o'clock.

SOUTHWESTERN TEXAS.

Conference met at an arbor near the Crockett schoolhouse, on the west prong of Medina River, Bandera county, Friday, June 8, 1894; Elder T. J. Sheppard president pro tem. W. H. Davenport secretary. Elder J. A. Currie, Sr., was elected president of the district, W. H. Davenport secretary. Branch reports: Oak Wood 65; 2 removed, 1 died. Bandera 43; 5 received, 1 died. Medina City 33; 2 removed, 1 died. Elders reporting: J. A. Currie, Sr., baptized 1, T. J. Sheppard, O. D. Johnson. W. H. Davenport; Teacher W. L. Clark; Deacon R. A. Chipman. Bishop's agent, O. D. Johnson reported: Received since last report, including balance, $83.70; paid out $42.65; balance due church $41.05. Preaching by Elders J. A. Currie, Sr., and T. J. Sheppard. Adjourned to meet at Pipe Creek, September 21, in Bandera county, Texas.

POTTAWATTAMIE.

Conference convened with the Council Bluffs branch, May 26, 1894, at 10:30 a. m. C. Derry was chosen to preside, W. W. Blair associate; Thomas Scott secretary, T. W. Williams assistant. Ministry reporting: Elders C. Derry, J. Carlile, D. K. Dodson, J. P. Carlile, C. A. Beebe, C. Casterson, H. N. Hansen, C. G. McIntosh, T. W. Williams, S. V. Pratt, B. Harding, W. Cook, Bro. Liles, F. Peterson, S. C. Smith, H. Hansen, D. Parrish; Priests G. W. Needham, S. Wood, S. Underwood, T. Scott, C. Larson; Teachers I. Carlile, Jr., O. Jones, R. Kirkwood; Deacon C. Lapworth. Branch reports: Council Bluffs 241; 13 baptized, 4 received. Crescent 136; 1 died. Hazel Dell 61; 9 removed. Wheeler's Grove no change. Boomer 15. North Star not reported. J. P. Carlile, Bishop's agent, reported: on hand last report $104.45; receipts $758.45; paid out $725; on hand $137.90. Auditing committee reported having corrected the Bishop's agent's report and submitted as correct the report of auditing committee, which was adopted. The following were sustained: T. W. Williams; C. Derry, president of district and missionary in charge; Joshua Carlile associate president, to extend his labors into Cass county and eastern part of the district; S. Butler to labor in Adair county; Robert McKenzie and Samuel Harding in the vicinity of Boomer; C. G. McIntosh and D. K. Dodson in Crescent and vicinity; Frank Peterson and Marion Liles in Council Bluffs and vicinity; J. P. Carlile, Samuel Underwood, and William Chapman in Neola and vicinity; Calvin A. Beebe at Council Bluffs and Underwood; S. C. Smith, G. W. Needham, and Samuel Wood at Wheeler's Grove and vicinity; C. Casterson at Crescent; L. P. Jensen among the Danish people in Council Bluffs; J. P. Carlile Bishop's agent; Thomas Scott district secretary. All the authorities of the church were sustained. Conference adjourned to meet at Wheeler's Grove the first Saturday in September at ten o'clock. Preaching by Elders W. W. Blair and Charles Derry.

WESTERN MAINE.

Conference convened with Bray's Mountain branch June 16, 1894; W. G. Pert chosen to preside, E. H. Pert secretary. Officials reporting: Elders J. C. Foss, U. W. Greene baptized 6, G. W. Eaton, J. J. Billings, S. S. Eaton, W. G. Pert baptized 2, J. B. Eaton; Priests S. G. Cunningham, E. E. Holman, D. H. Eaton; Teachers A. Hutchinson, E. H. Pert, P. Eaton, J. E. Eaton; Deacon H. E. Saunders. Branches reporting: Bray's Mountain, West Surry, Little Deer Isle, Dixfield Centre, Green's Landing. Bishop's agent's report read and referred to an auditing committee and found correct: On hand last report $59.68; received $95.40; paid out $146.69; on hand $8.39. Resolved that we establish in the district a storehouse that the Saints may bring in their produce as they see fit. To be sold and the proceeds go for the benefit of the church. J. J. Billings, S. G. Cunningham, W. G. Pert chosen as a committee, they to make such inquiry and obtain such instructions as may be necessary and report to next conference, September 15, 1894. Moved that the Charles Gray case be extended to next conference. Resolved that the next conference be at West Ellsworth, September 15 and 16, 1894. W. G. Pert was sustained district president and E. H. Pert secretary. Preaching by Elders J. C. Foss and U. W. Greene. During conference six were baptized.

FREMONT.

Conference convened at Farm Creek, ten a. m., June 8, 1894; Bro. D. Hougas in the chair, T. A. Hougas secretary. Brn. W. W. Blair and H. Kemp were associated with the district president to preside over the conference. Reports read and approved from Farm Creek, Elm Creek, Shenandoah, Plum Creek, and Keystone. Glenwood and Union not reported. Reports were received from Elders W. W. Blair, H. M. Liles, G. Needman, H. Kemp, A. Badham, D. Hougas, J. B. Heide, N. L. Mortimore, W. D. Leadingham, S. Orton, T. A. Hougas, H. Hershey, W. C. Matthews, J. B. Cline, G. Kemp, W. Schick, W. Leeka, J. W. Calkins; Priests H. F. Duffey, L. C. Donaldson, S. Roberts, F. G. Dungee, R. Hillyer, G. Walling; Teachers J. C. Moore, W. M. Fitter, F. B. Knight, J. Goode, S. Dyke. Resolved that we request all branches of the district to make out their reports in duplicate and to send the original as per the law in Doctrine and Covenants 17:25 and forward duplicate by mail at least one week before the time for conference to convene to the president of the branch where the conference is to convene. A recommendation was received from the Glenwood branch asking conference to provide for the ordination of Bro. Garrett Walling to the office of elder, and Bro. Warren Walling to the office of priest. Recommendation received, ordination provided for, and licenses ordered granted. Bishop's agent's report received. Moved that the district president provide for a two-day meeting at Hamburg during the coming quarter. District officers were sustained. Motion prevailed authorizing president and secretary to provide a new record for district. Resolved that conference recommend the camp meeting committee to grant the Sunday school association of Fremont and Pottawattamie districts whatever time may be asked for by them for Sunday school convention work. Resolved that the president be requested to visit in person or by letter each officer not reporting to conference for the purpose of inducing him to do so. Preaching by Brn. Blair and Kemp. Five baptized. A session of unusual interest was enjoyed. Adjourned to meet at Plum Creek, October 13, at ten a. m.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints of the Northwestern Kansas district:—Having been appointed Bishop's agent for this district I ask the cooperation of your assistance in doing our part of the work in helping to assist the Bishop in caring for those families who are depending upon us for their support. On examining the Bishop's report for the past year I find that our district has had to draw on the Bishop for over half of the money that was paid our ministers. Saints of the living God, this ought not to be. Let us arouse to a sense of our duty and put forth our best efforts in these trying times to sustain the ministry, as there are many in this district that have not heard the sound of the gospel trumpet. And how are they going to hear it if we withhold our support from those who are called to labor in the vineyard? May God bless us all with understanding that we may all see the necessity of complying with all the requirements of God's law. In bonds,

JOHN CAIRNS.
Lock Box 11, SCRANTON, Kansas, July 9, 1894.

TO THE HIGH PRIESTS.

In order to have a correct record of all the high priests in the church, to place upon the book of that quorum and upon the general records of the church, as also upon the general quorum record, it is necessary that an account be sent in of the ordinations of high priests since the April Conference, as authorized by that body. Some of them have been ordained, and perhaps all of those in America have been. The names of those selected, who were not ordained at the time of the conference, are as follows:—

William Lewis, J. M. Terry, Temme Hinderks, J. P. Carlile, J. M. Baker, W. C. Nirk, W. Vickery, G. H. Hulmes, George Green, R. C. Longhurst, and Joseph Dewsnup, Sr.

If these brethren (or the branch clerks) will send me the time, place, and by whom they were ordained, these facts will be placed upon the three records named. And if any of them desire licenses from the quorum and will inclose five or ten cents in stamps such licenses will be issued. Be careful to underscore the name of the brother who acts as speaker in your ordination, so that it may be known on the records.

As soon as all these ordinations are reported there will be issued a circular letter and list to each member, which list will contain the names of all who are now or who have been members of the quorum since the beginning of the Reorganized Church, together with an account of all the deaths, and the dates thereof, as a history of the quorum in brief. I await the facts in order to have the list published in full.

HENRY A. STEBBINS,
Secretary of High Priests Quorum.
LAMONI, Iowa, July 10, 1894.

SOUTHWESTERN IOWA REUNION.

At a meeting of the committee June 30, 1894, it was decided to change the date of meeting from September 1 to August 18, 1894. The meeting will convene in the grove of Bro. S. Wood in Wheeler Grove. All please take note of change.

By order of committee.

NOTICES.

To the Massachusetts Saints:—The fare to the reunion and return, to be held at Tenant's Harbor, Maine, will be $3.75. The boat leaves Foster's wharf at five p. m., August 9. It will be necessary for those intending to go to notify me as soon as possible so that the number of tickets necessary may be known.

Yours in bonds,
GEORGE W. ROBLEY.
THORNTON, Rhode Island.

MAYSVILLE REUNION.

The second reunion of Northern Missouri and Southern Iowa will convene on Friday, the 24th day of August, 1894, at 10:30 a. m., at Harvey's Grove, near Maysville, Missouri. Meetings will continue over two Sundays, or as long as the interest will justify. The grounds have been improved in many ways the past year, and Mr. Harvey is sparing nothing that will contribute to the pleasure and happiness of the campers.

It is earnestly desired that all the Saints in this and adjoining districts will make arrangements to come and stay from first to last, prepared to share the burdens and also the blessings that may accrue during the term. Tents will be on the ground, pitched and bedded with clean straw, at a nominal price for the term. Those desiring tents should at once notify T. W. Chatburn, Kingston, Missouri, that a sufficient number may be in readiness. Several speakers will be present from abroad and the prominent ones of the reunion district will also be with us.

The grounds are situated on the Rock Island railroad, accessible from all points. The usual reduction in fare will be granted. Come one and all from far and near; you will be made welcome. Come, praying that a good meeting may be had and that great good may be wrought for the cause we love so well. By order of committee,

T. W. CHATBURN, Chairman.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The conference for the Eastern Iowa district will convene with the Canton Saints, August 17, 1894, at 7:30 p. m. All coming on the train from the east or west will be met at Onslow on the noon trains the 17th if they will drop a card to O. E. Green, Onslow, Iowa. All come who can, and bring the Spirit of the Master with you, and then we will be strengthened in the Lord. The conference will be held in our new tent, at or near Bro. O. E. Green's.

J. S. ROTH, Pres.

BORN.

HARTSHORN.—To Bro. and Sr. Sherman Hartshorn, November 18, 1893, a son, and named Richard Allen. Blessed February 11, 1894, by Elders D. M. Rudd and Eli Hayer.

HARTSHORN.—To Bro. and Sr. H. A. Hartshorn, January 10, 1894, a daughter, and named Ada Maud. Blessed February 11, 1894, by Elders Eli Hayer and D. M. Rudd.

WARD.—Artemus, son of C. L. and Minda E. Ward, was born August 7, 1893, at Prior, Douglas county, Missouri. Blessed June 6, 1894, by Joseph Ward.

MARRIED.

CLARK—HANSEN.—At the home of the bride, nine miles southeast of Council Bluffs, June 25, 1894, Bro. John Clark and Sr. Carrie Hansen, T. W. Williams officiating. Nearly a hundred guests were present and an enjoyable time was had. Both parties are well known and they enter on their wedded life with the well-wishes of all.

DIED.

DICKSON.—At his sister's home in Freesoil, Michigan, William B. Dickson. He was born in New Vernon, Pennsylvania, January 22, 1857; died December 17, 1893. Elder J. J. Cornish preached the funeral discourse.

DELONG.—At Andover, Missouri, July 2, 1894, Vernon Claude, son of Mr. John and Sr. Nellie Delong, also grandchild of Bro. Peter Harris, aged 1 year, 5 months, and 11 days. Although he had been ill for some time yet death came suddenly. The parents were greatly stricken by the unexpected blow. Funeral sermon by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

DURRETT.—Sr. Agnes Waller Durrett was born in Wilkes county, Georgia, September 22, 1808; was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ about 1842; died December 11, 1893. She fought a good fight and kept the faith.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

CHICAGO, July 8.—A battle between the strikers and the troops took place yesterday afternoon at the Grand Trunk crossing, corner of Loomis and Forty-ninth streets. The strikers had the hardihood to attack the troops, not only stoning them, but firing over a dozen pistol shots before the soldiers fired upon them. Captain Kelly's company fired to save the men's own lives and was fully justified in doing so. The attack of the strikers was bold and desperate, and made in a vicious mood. Captain Kelly was returning to the camp of the second regiment on a wrecking train when met by the Loomis street mob of 2,000 or more howling men, encouraged in the attack by shrieking and wildly gesticulating women. The troops had already withstood the brunt of one attack earlier in the day. Discovering some of the mob in an effort to overturn a burning box car on the track ahead, the train was stopped. Hastily dismounting his men from the train Captain Kelly formed by company front and with fixed bayonets charged upon the car burners. The rest of the mob, lining each side of the track showered stones, brickbats, pieces of iron, and every conceivable missile upon them, but the militia pressed forward and with fixed bayonets drove the car burners before them; but they suddenly stopped a few yards away. The soldiers were hissed, stoned, and pelted with dirt and gravel. Then from out the dense crowd came a pistol shot, rapidly followed by others. Realizing it to be the supreme moment and that to longer hesitate jeopardized the lives of his men, Captain Kelly gave the order to fire and followed it with a charge upon the mob. With the volley of musketry the mob seemed startled, surprised, and shocked into dumb silence, and to a standstill, and then gave way and fled in all directions before the charge of the soldiers. The latter then returned to their train and proceeded to camp. With the disappearance of the troops the mob returned and proceeded to attack the twelve policemen remaining at the crossing. The policemen stood together and bravely withstood the onslaught, firing in the face of the strikers until the mob again broke and fled. Again the rioters formed and renewed the attack, the police in the meantime being reinforced. Again the mob fled. As a result of this conflict one man was killed, two fatally wounded, and forty-one injured.

The neighborhood in which the conflict occurred is most notoriously bad in the Stock Yards district. It is peopled by a class of foreigners, filled at all times with anarchist ideas. Poles, Bohemians, and Italians populate the neighborhood, men who do the dirty work of the Stock Yards; while their women and children live no better than scavengers. They huddle together by the dozen in a single room, men, women, and children promiscuously; and their only luxury is beer. There are saloons by the dozen in the neighborhood, famous for broils and wrangling. The neighborhood is the resort and haven for desperate men, among whom the dead striker, Burke, was champion and leader. The region, and its beer shops, and its people compose the St. Antoine quarter which has been striving to inaugurate a reign of terror in this section of Chicago.

Inspector Hunt, in speaking of the battle said: "I have expected this fight and right where it occurred. It is a desperate neighborhood full of anarchists. These very people, I am confident, have been doing most of the car burning wherever plunder was promised. I have no doubt they fired the cars on the Grand Trunk and Panhandle last night and burned up the Panhandle yards, and their women helped do the plundering there.

At Forty-Ninth street and Center avenue last night another attempt was made by a mob of foreigners to burn freight cars. They were charged by United States troops, who fired upon them. Nobody was hit, but the police arrested four men and locked them up at the Stock Yards police station.

From Grand Crossing to Harvey the Illinois Central bristles with bayonets. Fordham, Burnside, Pullman, and Riverdale are military camps in waiting for and expecting an engagement any moment. An almost continuous line of pickets patrols the tracks from Seventy-ninth street south to Kensington. Posts of ten men are established along the right of way within plain sight and easy hailing distance of each other. With a signal corps in operation, ample telegraph facilities in his headquarters, Col. Turner has complete control of the situation and says he is prepared to meet any unorganized mob that may attempt to invade his territory.

All regular passenger trains entering and departing from the city over this route passed back and forth unmolested, and some had Pullman cars as a part of their equipment. A movement has also been made to resume freight traffic.

Major Tolman has five posts in and about the Pullman shops and pickets entirely around the place.

Marshal Arnold has now a force of 3,000 deputy marshals sworn in to protect mail trains.

Two onlookers were shot by United States soldiers who fired upon a mob of car burners in the Panhandle yards to-day. The police arrested five of the mob and extinguished the fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 7.—In Northern California the blockade is more complete tonight than it has been any time since the inception of the trouble. Out of Oakland and San Francisco not a train is running. The Southern Pacific managers have apparently thrown up until a settlement of the trouble shall be arrived at in the East. The strikers at Sacramento are as determined as ever. Many of them are heavily armed with rifles, and openly threaten to resist any efforts to move trains. An afternoon paper here states the labor organizations of San Francisco are quietly organizing militia companies and arranging to assist the strikers in the event of a conflict here or in Oakland.

Strikers are losing ground in Denver.

Strikers gathered at West Superior, Wisconsin, and hurled stones at the cabs of passing engines and committed other acts of violence. The Mayor instructed the police to arrest all persons assembling on railroad property or insulting those engaged in lawful employment, and appealed to the citizens to use their best efforts to preserve order and peace.

SPRING VALLEY, Ill., July 7.—Two stores were thoroughly looted here to-day and a dozen others compelled to give up part of their merchandise to a mob of 2,000 striking coal miners. The mob was made up wholly of non-English speaking men, the leaders being Lithuanians, Belgians, Poles, and Italians.

When the Governor was called upon for troops to quell the mob, he declined to furnish them because the sheriff of the county had made no effort to restore order. He, however, agreed to furnish them arms, if needed, and at the request of the sheriff of Bureau county, seventy-five rifles and seven hundred and fifty rounds of ammunition were forwarded.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 7.—The reports of bloodshed from Chicago caused great excitement in Pittsburg to-night. The opinion was freely expressed that the battle this afternoon will have considerable effect on the Pittsburg men and they may be expected to quit at any moment. No through trains are coming in from Chicago on any of the Pittsburg lines.

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—Freight traffic here is still dead, and industries in Cleveland are in a bad condition. Every road is quiet and the managers seem to be making no effort to move freight. Passenger and mail trains are still operating. The strikers are peaceable thus far. They held a big meeting, attended by 500, for a discussion of the situation.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 7.—The local situation of the strike grows more serious daily. The Peoria, Decatur, and Evansville is the only line on which the strike has not been organized, and the employees on this road are daily looking for orders for a walk out.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 7.—The freight business on the southern division of the Grand Rapids and Indiana road was tied up at this end early this morning by an order from Fort Wayne. The crews quit work when they reached the end of their run here.

TRINIDAD, Col., July 7.—Santa Fé engineers are being arrested here for refusing to run their engines. Women and children are threatened with arrest for cheering prisoners.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The mail service of New York City was badly demoralized to-day. No mails from the Pacific coast were received. The last mails from Salt Lake City arrived July 2. Chicago mail arrived to-day, but it contained none of the matter mailed in Chicago between 10:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m., July 5. That is missing and no man knows where it is. Mails due here this morning from Detroit were not received, while mail from Missouri, Arkansas, and Southwestern points came in all right over the Pennsylvania road. No mail arrived from Memphis, Nashville, Milwaukee, or Omaha.

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor was in a cautious mood and expressed himself with unusual deliberation. In response to request, he was going to Chicago to take part in the conference of labor leaders. He was decidedly in sympathy with the strike, and if the American Federation of Labor could be of any assistance in bringing it to a successful termination it would undoubtedly do so.

HAMMOND, Ind., July 8.—Since 11:30 o'clock this forenoon this place has been the scene of the wildest rioting, of anarchy gone mad. The United States troops sent from Chicago have been assaulted, and of course a battle resulted. It was but a handful of troops, twenty-five sturdy regulars, that faced a mob of thousands of frenzied men and women, and they made a fight worthy of their reputation. It was only when the howling, cursing, shrieking mob rushed to arms with the avowed intention of annihilating the gallant little band of blue-coated fighters, and when the mayor of this city declared himself on the side of the strikers and ordered the troops away, and when a warrant was actually secured by the local magistrate for the arrest of Uncle Sam's troops that the commanding officer ordered them aboard the train and departed amid a shower of stones.

In the engagement this afternoon only one man was killed, and one was fatally wounded, but many of the rioters were struck by bullets and carried away by their friends. Of these no record can be had at present.

In the rush that followed scores of women and little children were trampled under foot and half a dozen women fainted on the tracks. The soldiers then abandoned their engine and took up a position on the track at the Russell street crossing.

Three thousand men responded to the general call "to arms" to annihilate the soldiers, but before they could get in readiness the engine and cars pulled out and were soon safely across the line in Illinois.

Immediately after this occurrence ten carloads of troops from Illinois arrived at Hammond and were met by a mob of 7,000 and the scene became tumultuous and threatening, but the wrecking train was put to work guarded by the soldiers surrounded by the infuriated mob. All this time there was a constant inpouring of excited and desperate men from Illinois.

CHICAGO, July 9.—President Cleveland issued a proclamation at Washington declaring martial law in Chicago from noon to-day. General Miles and Federal troops are in full control. All people are warned to avoid mobs and assemblies of a like nature.

Poles and Bohemians continued to evince a riotous disposition and as a result many skirmishes took place in the Stock Yards district. The troops and police were alert, however, and quelled all attempts to collect large crowds.

Train wreckers were foiled in an attempt to destroy the bridge over the drainage canal near East Chicago.

Illinois and Indiana militia will cooperate at Hammond; they will recognize no State line.

Pittsburg men took action against joining the strike. Quiet also prevails at Fort Wayne, Indiana, where the Pennsylvania company has trespassers on its tracks arrested.

Labor unions at Milwaukee, sympathize with the Railway Union, but will not strike.

Michigan Central men at Detroit will resume work. Trains on all roads there are running near schedule time.

President Debs has wired Toledo authorities of the A. R. U. to assist the Chicago strikers by tying up all roads at Toledo.

Passenger traffic is uninterrupted at Cleveland, but freight business is at a standstill.

Governor Matthews has ordered fifteen companies of militia to Hammond, Indiana.

PRINCETON, Ill., July 7.—The general merchandise store of the Whitebreast Fuel Company, at Ladd, was looted last night by a mob of 1,200 alien miners from Spring Valley. The stock was valued at $30,000 and will be a complete loss. The mob was composed of Lithuanians, Poles, and Italians, being of the same class that has caused the depredations at Spring Valley, and most of them the same men. The attack upon the company store last night was not only for the purpose of securing plunder, but with a view to entirely wipe out the property of the coal company.

The sheriff of La Salle county, has an armed force at the Bureau county line to resist invasion.

Women at Oakland, California, in sympathy with the strikers, have prepared a hospital in view of possible conflicts between strikers and troops.

Strikers have committed acts of violence at Kansas City, burning cars of the Chicago and Alton road.

Striking miners wrecked the electric light plant with dynamite at Wardner, Idaho.

ROME, July 8.—In the chamber of Deputies to-day the bill regulating the manufacture, sale, and possession of explosives passed its third reading. The house also adopted the bill providing punishment for the owners and editors of papers which publish articles inciting to murder and outrage.

PARIS, July 8.—A special Cabinet council, presided over by Premier Dupuy, was held to-day. There was a complete discussion of the anti-anarchist measures decided upon by the council of ministers the day after Carnot's murder. These measures will be introduced in the chamber to-morrow, and the government will insist upon their being adopted before the close of the session.

The measures provided for the removal to the correctional tribunals for trial of offenders who hitherto have been sent to the assizes for trial before juries. Among the offenses covered by the measures are incitements through the press to outrage or crime, speeches advocating theft, murder, robbery, incendiarism, explosions, crimes against the state, and the defense of such crimes. The publication of reports of anarchist trials is forbidden under heavy penalties. The reason for dispensing with jury trials in the case of persons charged with the above offenses is that juries have always hesitated to convict because the judges are empowered to inflict the heaviest sentences.

PALERMO, July 8.—Seven anarchists were arrested here to-day on the charge of being concerned in a plot to murder influential citizens. Among the men selected to be killed was Governor Lafarina, who was the promoter of the popular address of sympathy presented to Prime Minister Crispi after Lega had attempted to assassinate him.

July 10.—The people of Hammond, Indiana, met and passed resolutions demanding that the soldiers of Company D, United States infantry, be indicted for murder because of the late firing upon the mob in that place. A jury brought in a verdict of "death caused by wanton and careless shooting into a crowd of peaceable citizens."

President Cleveland has issued a proclamation enjoining cessation of unlawful assemblages in the far west and northwest.

A rumor prevails that President McBride of the miner's union will order out 45,000 miners engaged in furnishing coal to railroads involved in the prevailing strike.

Negro miners became restless at Scottdale, Pennsylvania. One of their number was killed.

The Pullman Company declined the proposition of Chicago authorities to arbitrate the differences between them and their men. Fears are entertained that the town of Pullman may be destroyed.

Obstructions of Stock Yards traffic are now removed. Thirteen rioters were arrested yesterday.

General Miles has fixed a dead line and troops have instructions to fire upon all violators of public law who resist the work of traffic resumption. Trains are now on time and there is marked improvement in the general situation.

Three men were killed in a conflict with troops at Grape Creek, a mining town near Danville, Illinois, July 9.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Eugene V. Debs, President, George W. Howard, Vice President, Sylvester Keliher, secretary, and L. W. Rogers, director of the American Railway Union, and fourteen of their followers are in the toils of the United States Court. Yesterday the special grand jury impaneled before Judge Grosscup returned an indictment against them for conspiracy to impede the United States mails. They were arrested, but were released on bail.

Rioting miners attacked a train guarded by United States regulars at Spring Valley. They were fired upon and two were killed and several injured. A reign of terror exists in this region and the people fear the militia. The situation in that region becomes more complicated every hour. Miners have destroyed or carried off $65,000 worth of property. Bureau is put to the expense of $1,000 per day in maintaining the deputies, and should arrests be delayed until it is impossible to get evidence to convict the rioters, or the deputies be withdrawn, it would mean the destruction of $3,000,000 worth of mining property in this county and the pillaging of many towns.

The effort of Chicago local labor leaders to induce local workers to go out on a sympathetic strike was a failure.

Grand Master workman Sovereign of the Knights of Labor has appealed to all members of that organization to strike.

Men are resuming work at Cleveland, Toledo, Terre Haute and many other points, including those in Colorado and New Mexico, and traffic is approaching its normal condition.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 11.—Central Pacific passenger train No. 4, which left this morning for San Francisco under a heavy military guard, was wrecked, presumably by strikers, at a trestle two and one-half miles west of here. Three artillerymen were killed, also the engineer; and a soldier named Wilson was shot in the arm. The wreckers sawed the supports of the trestle, but left the rails untouched, so to all appearances the bridge was sound. The moment the train struck the weak point it went down with a crash. Immediately a band of men, presumably strikers, opened fire upon the wreck from an ambush. Four passenger coaches and the engine lay in a heap in the shallow water thirty feet below the track. No bodies have been recovered.

The situation at Oakland continues warlike, but the strike is broken at Los Angeles.

FARGO, N. D., July 11.—The bridge over the Buffalo River, east of Fargo, was burned at two a. m. It was 200 feet long and will take several days to repair. Transfers are now being made around the bridge. It is supposed to have been set on fire.

An attempt was made to wreck a train with a dynamite bomb at South Chicago on the 11th inst.

Troops swept down on Whiting, Indiana, near Chicago, because of an attack made upon a brakeman but shortly afterward returned to Chicago.

The proposed Knights of Labor strike in Chicago was a failure. The men with few exceptions continue at their work.

A plot to destroy the Illinois Central shop, opposite Burnside, the headquarters of Col. Turner, with dynamite, was discovered and frustrated.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Mc Rae land grant forfeiture bill passed the House today. It restores 54,000,000 acres of public lands to the United States. The bill passed extends the forfeiture to the portions of the several railroads to aid in the construction of which the grants were made which were uncompleted when the required time expired. It involves portions of the grants of twenty-five roads. It does not affect their right of way or station grounds, nor the titles of settlers who purchased in good faith, to the extent of 320 acres each.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Sovereign's strike order has fallen flat in the East, and seems to be disobeyed or ignored everywhere.

Philadelphia Knights of Labor are preparing a memorial to congress, asking for the impeachment of Attorney General Olney, because of his alleged advice to the President to introduce Federal troops into Illinois.

Men are returning to work at Cleveland. Toledo strikers are gaining in strength.

Deputies have arrested twenty-two rioters at Ladd, Illinois.

A Washington dispatch of the 11th, reports strong criticism of Mr. Pullman by many public men, because of his refusal to arbitrate the present labor difficulties with his employes. A scheme is hinted at for the passage of a law looking to a reduction of rates on his cars. The consensus of opinion is that such a statute would be constitutional.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 11.—Four fresh shocks of earthquake were felt here to-day. Up to this morning many houses have fallen at Stamboul. At the grand bazaar the jewelers' quarter fell to-day, occasioning great confusion. The merchants fled in terror, leaving their valuables behind. Many shopkeepers and passers-by were buried beneath the ruins. It is impossible as yet to give the number of people killed and injured; but it is known that in this city five were killed, and that here and in the suburbs over 150 people were buried beneath the debris.

A tobacco factory and other houses at Djouvali have been seriously damaged and several persons have been killed in that quarter. The shock was very severe at the Princess Islands. At Prinkipo the orthodox church and many houses and villas were destroyed. At Galata ten people were killed and great damage was done to property. At the Village of Stefano the Catholic church and monastery fell, burying eleven persons. No news is to be had from the provinces, as the wires are all down.

It is reported that the village of Adabazar has been completely wiped out of existence. In Scythe and Missi four persons were killed.

On the Island of Halki nearly all the houses were wrecked. A portion of the Ottoman Naval College fell, killing six people and injuring several others. At Monastir the Orthodox church and a portion of the seminary fell, killing one of the priests and injuring several others. On the Island of Antigoni all the buildings except the monasteries were wrecked.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 12.—The President has decided that he will appoint an arbitration commission, under the provisions of the O'Neill law to investigate the strikes at Chicago. It is announced that the members of the commission will be named as soon as the disturbances subside and peace is restored. Commissioner of Labor Wright will head the body. The President decided upon the commission after consulting labor leaders and congressmen. The House committee on Commerce will also endeavor to secure immediate action by an investigation.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 13.—President Gompers and other prominent officials of the American Federation of Labor are in consultation in this city, making a general investigation of the strike. President Cleveland has been wired requesting him to be present or send a representative. President Debs of the A. R. U. has made a statement of the strike by request.

The General Railway Managers Association has decided not to discharge any new men who are competent, hence many who went out must suffer. Firemen and engineers will fare the worst. There is a scramble for work by strikers. Roads report a general return to normal business conditions. There are some minor outbreaks, but the situation is hourly improving.

A dangerous guerilla warfare has been commenced on Colonel Turner's men in the Pullman district. The belief grows with the soldiers that a plan of assassination has been decided on. Mob leaders are exasperated because the troops remain so long. Grave fears prevail that dynamite will be used. The Illinois Central has moved engines, fearing explosives.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 13.—Over a thousand experienced stock yards butchers have gone on a strike as a result of Grand Master Sovereign's work in Packingtown. Packers say their places will be filled at once by new men who will be retained permanently.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 12.—The house to-day agreed to the Senate amendments to the bill for the admission of Utah as a State. This passes the bill and it goes to the President.

The day the President's signature is affixed to the Utah admission bill will see the launching of the greatest railroad enterprise of the year. The Mormons will build a new line from Utah to the Pacific coast. Los Angeles will be the terminal point, unless an arrangement can be concluded with the Santa Fe. With the quietness characteristic of the Mormon leaders the surveys have been made, the estimates compiled, and the resources of the country carefully investigated. They have laid out a route which is a marvel to the engineers who have seen the profiles.

In Southern Utah are anthracite coal beds which exceed Pennsylvania's by one half. These will be pierced by the new road. Bishop Clawson of the Mormon Church is the active representative of Zion in this project. He is here in charge of the lobby which has put through the Statehood bill so smoothly.

St. Louis business men are organizing a new sleeping car company.

ODESSA, July 12.—One hundred persons lost their lives to-day in a collision between the steamer Vladimir and the Italian steamer Columbia. Nine passengers were crushed to death.

YOKOHAMA, Japan, July 12.—The government has chartered sixteen steamers belonging to the Yusen-Kaisha company with the intention of landing 10,000 troops in Corea. Strong reinforcements will also be held in readiness in Japan. Japan has refused to withdraw its troops. War is regarded as inevitable, and the Japanese Government has forbidden the native press to make mention of events happening in Corea.

LONDON, July 12.—The Earl of Kimberly, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, has proffered Great Britain's good offices with the view of bringing about a settlement of the Korean dispute. Japan has accepted the offer and there is every reason to believe China will do likewise.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 12.—There was another earthquake shock this afternoon. A great amount of damage was done to property and the panic among the people was renewed and an exodus from the city. A shock was felt throughout the Peninsula of Anatolia, 236 miles distant. Many railroad stations have been damaged, and the town of Jalova, on the Gulf of Ismid, is almost totally destroyed.

At the village of San Stefano the sea suddenly receded for a distance of 200 yards, then returned as suddenly, hurling boats violently over the quays, doing much damage. The number of killed reported to date is 110.

The executive officers of the American Federation of Labor, in session at Chicago, after deliberating upon the causes and effects of the late strike, have recommended that those engaged in it return to work. In their address issued to the American public they recommend that labor continue to compact its organizations with a view to bringing about a better industrial and political condition of public affairs by use of the ballot.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 13.—Regular troops while supporting a train were fired upon to-day. The soldiers returned the fire, killing two and wounding others. Martial law has been proclaimed in this city, and troops have cleared the streets of unlawful assemblages.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 13.—The Second Regiment, National Guard of California, numbering six hundred men, left for Oakland on the steamer Piedmont this morning. Twenty men from the naval reserve with a Hotchkiss gun accompanied them. The regiment is to help preserve order when the Southern Pacific resumes train service. Trouble is expected at any moment.

Railroad strikers are anxiously seeking for work at Chicago, Cleveland, and other points; work is being generally sought by strikers.

The Geneva rifles quelled a riot of ore handlers at Conneaut, Ohio. Twenty shots were exchanged and thirty strikers arrested.

Striking miners caused a serious wreck at Fontanet, Indiana, on the Big Four road on the morning of the 13th. A number were killed. Governor Matthews may send troops to that point.

An Eastern Illinois train was wrecked by an open switch near Menominee, Illinois, July 13. The coolness of the engineer prevented a large loss of life.

Riots occurred in the cities of Glasgow and Philadelphia during the Orangemen's celebrations of the Battle of the Boyne, July 12.

Anarchists attempted to blow up the French man of war Carnot at Toulon, July 13. The French police claim to have unearthed an anarchistic plot in which the simultaneous destruction of the Elysee, the Senate Chamber, and the Chamber of Deputies was contemplated.

Prendergast, the murderer of Carter Harrison, was hanged at Chicago on Friday, July 13.

A train was wrecked near Enid, Oklahoma, on the 13th, by tampering with a bridge. One thousand people are engaged tearing up the railroad track near that point.

A freight train was derailed and the engine overturned on the Rock Island, at La Salle, Illinois, on the 13th. One was also derailed near Seneca, Missouri, on the Gulf road the same day.

TEMPLE LOT SUIT DECISION.

The decision of Judge Philips, of the United States Circuit Court, Western District of Missouri, Kansas City, awarding title and possession of the Temple Lot to the Reorganized Church as the true successor of the original Church of Latter Day Saints organized April 6, 1830, and setting forth the position of the Utah Church and other factions as departures from the true faith, and without right to the name or property of the Original Church.

Published by the Reorganized Church. Valuable for reference, and general distribution.

In pamphlet form complete: price 15 cents each; two for 25 cents. Special prices on orders for ten or more.

Address orders to David Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa.

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Every Latter Day Saint wants this work for study or for reference.

It is one of the first those interested in the work should read after receiving explanation of its character and import.

It is one of the three standard books of the word of God to the church.

THE LARGE TYPE EDITION

with shortened paragraphs is designed especially for aged people who do not readily read ordinary type.

Both editions are bound in various styles. See catalogue for description and prices.

THOSE WHO LIKE POETRY

will be pleased with a volume of Afterglow or Hesperis.

AFTERGLOW

is a book of Choice Selections from American and Foreign poets.

It is published in the interests of the Gospel Boat Fund of the South Sea Islands Mission. The book forms a rich collection of verse. It is handsomely bound and beautifully illustrated.

THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS

is the third of the authoritative standards of the church. It has an especial interest to Latter Day Saints as the word of God in modern times, containing divine instructions for the present dispensation. In two styles of binding.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

GERMAN HYMN BOOK.

A collection of one hundred original, selected, and translated hymns in the German language; carefully compiled by Caspar and Temme Hinderks, of Stewartsville, Missouri.

JOSEPH THE SEER.
HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheidon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.
Paper covers... 35
Muslin binding... 50

MANUSCRIPT FOUND.
This is the notorious Manuscript Found, written by Rev. Solomon Spalding; a verified and certified copy of the original now in Oberlin College, Ohio, of which so much has been said and written in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief groundwork and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. The preface to the work contains an account of its coming to light, by which it can be traced back to its author—Solomon Spalding. The work, suppressed for years by enemies of the Latter Day Saints, is a complete refutation of the charge made that it is the basis from which the Book of Mormon was written.

PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD; THE APOSTASY, REFORMATION, AND RESTORATION.

By Elder Wm. H. Kelley. New, Revised, and Enlarged Edition. It contains 421 pages of closely written matter, with autograph and likeness of the Author and is printed in good, readable type, with neat binding. The work is a library within itself; a marvel of trenchant criticism and logical deductions from his torical facts; a key to the right understanding of the Bible and modern diverse systems of faith and worship. It discusses the issues of theology that are at the front to-day. It treats largely of Ministerial Authority as associated with the Melchisedek and Aaronic Priesthoods, and the Ideal Church of New Testament times is conspicuously set forth in striking contrast with the creeds and systems of church building since the days of the Apostles. Also the claims for the Restoration of the Gospel at a later day than the Apostolic age are critically examined in the light of prophecy and history, which is a subject of great moment to men of every faith. A historical resume or brief is also inserted of the rise and development of the "apostate church," and an exegesis of the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the revelation of the "sealed book." Also the origin of modern churches and creeds, etc.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

CURATIVE POWERS OF THE SUN.

The direct influence of sunshine on the circulation in paralysis, insomnia, nervous diseases, and internal disorders is beginning to be known and acknowledged.

If I wanted to restore a withered arm, a palsied or rheumatic limb, or to bring a case of nervous prostration up speedily, a most efficient part of the treatment would be to expose the limb or the person as many hours to direct sunlight as the day would afford.

I knew a delicate lady who had gone insane, through mental trouble, loneliness, and seclusion, part of whose tender nursing by the friend who brought her back to reason and ease was daily to have her bed, freshly made, drawn where the full sunlight from a broad window fell warmly upon her. Fresh flowers were placed where her eye could linger on them, a small music box played a tune or two, and the invalid lay for hours in blissful repose or softly sleeping, her couch gently wheeled to follow the sunshine, every nerve drinking the refreshment till from a brooding, sleepless melancholy her days were full of happiness and rest.

I know, too, of a case of painful tumor in its early stages which nothing seemed to relieve and penetrate like an hour with direct sunshine falling upon the swelling.

For nervous debility and insomnia, the treatment of all others is rest in sunshine. Draw the bed to the window and let the patient lie in the sun for hours. There is no bromide, no tonic like it—provided the good effects are not neutralized by ill-feeding.

The effect of sunshine is not merely thermal, to warm and raise the heat of the body; its rays have chemical and electric functions. A clever physician lately explained that it is more than possible that sunshine produces vibration and changes of particles in the deeper tissues of the body as effective as those of electricity.

Many know by experience that the relief it affords to wearing pain, neuralgic and inflammatory, is more effective and lasting than that of any other application whatever. Those who have face-ache should prove it for themselves, sitting in a sunny window where the warmth falls full on the cheek. To lie on a lounge and go to sleep in the sun is so much the better. Two conditions are necessary—an agreeably warm room and pure air. One may be dressed or undressed; clothing as light as will preserve comfort admitting swiftest effect. With the rheumatic tinge which calls for a shoulder wrap or the sciatic touch which always makes one limp after being on a marble floor a few minutes, let the hip or shoulder be exposed, not uncovered, to the heat of the sun's rays and remain there till the sun leaves. It is finer stimulus than wine, electricity, massage, and we are on the verge of delightful therapeutic discoveries concerning it.

Dr. Thayer of San Francisco, as reported in the medical records, has come to the conclusion that the sun is the most efficient of all surgical methods in the treatment of "capillary aneurisms, varicose veins, indolent and eating ulcers, epithelial cancers, birth, India ink and powder marks, hemorrhoidal and erectile tumors, morbid growths, as warts, moles, small wens, and all parasitic skin diseases."

Dr. Thayer is candid enough to admit he is not the first to discover the surgery and dermatology of the sun. Some years ago a London surgeon, by using the sun's rays, presumably with a lens, removed a wine mark from a lady's face and destroyed a malignant growth in the same way.

Says Dr. Thayer, "During a practice of more than a quarter of a century I have found no caustic or cautery to compare with solar heat in its beneficial results. Unlike other caustics it can be applied with safety on the most delicate tissues and the system receives this treatment kindly. The irritation and inflammation following are surprising slight and of short duration, the pain subsiding immediately on removal of the lens. There is a curative power in the chemical rays of the sun yet unexplained."

With weak lungs, let the sun fall on the chest for hours. If internal tumor or ulceration is suspected, let the sun burn through the bare skin directly on the point of disease for hours daily. There will be no doubt left in the mind that there is a curative power in the chemical rays of the sun.

Women especially need to make systematic trial of the sun's healing and rejuvenating powers.

For that nervous depression which results in shedding hair, in sunken features, and ushers dread tuberculosis, tumor, and internal inflammation, sun is the specific—sun and rest together.

For the chilliness which causes blue hands and bad color, resort to the sun; let it almost blister the skin and the circulation will answer the attraction.

For falling hair and baldness, try the sun on the scalp for lesser periods—ten minutes often repeated. The woman who wants a cheek like a rose should pull her sofa pillows into the window, and let the sun blaze first on one cheek, then the other, and she will gain a color warranted not to wash off. The sun draws the blood to the surface better than a hot bath, and exhilarates rather than weakens.

SHIRLEY DARE.

SURPLUS OF LAWYERS AND DOCTORS.

The professions at Chicago are being ridiculously overcrowded, according to report, particularly those of law and medicine. The ranks of the lawyers are increasing at the rate of 400 a year and of the doctors in a larger proportion, if anything, and many practitioners are being obliged to resort to outside employments to gain a living. President Eliot of Harvard; speaking of the question, observes that the, rich doctors should retire to give room for their poorer brethren. This would be excellent advice, if we are to suppose that experience in the profession counts for nothing; otherwise the patients might object. But it is noticeable that with all the congestion in the ranks, fees do not come down.—Springfield Republican.

The feelings of the people in Cawnpore, India, concerning Christianity have changed. Fifteen years ago it was difficult to collect fifty boys in a Sunday school; to-day 3,000 children are enrolled, and there might be 10,000 more if there were funds to rent the rooms.

All the world over there are ninety-eight women to one hundred men.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL GAS ENGINE

In the market is run without an electric spark battery. Theory is all very well, but the everyday experience of constant practical use is the best test of merit. The man who runs a launch and finds himself drifting with tide and wind because the "spark" fails to ignite the charge of gas in his engine; the man who prints a daily paper and fails to get it off on time because the "spark" again fails; the man who has fruit that is injured for lack of irrigation because the "spark" fails in his engine that runs the pump; not only such parties but others who have trouble from like causes should bear in mind that the Hercules Gas and Gasoline Engine is free from such difficulties. The ignition is simple and sure. Send for catalogue. If you want second-hand engines of other makes at cheap rates we can supply you. We have a number taken in trade and cannot take any more until these are realized on. PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY, 405-407, Sansome Street, San Francisco.

A Book for Everybody!
But Especially for the Boys!

Autobiography of ELDER JOSEPH LUFF

The Struggles, Failures, and Successes in the Life of one who is now a Prominent Minister of the Church.

A Medley of Mischief, Mirth, Folly, Pride, Self-will, Honor, Devotion, and Sentiment, as found in the Character of a Boy whom God in due time selected as an ambassador for Himself, and

Who To-day Stands as a Monument of Divine Grace!

The Book contains a history of his conversion to and from Methodism, his acceptance of the restored gospel, a dissertation on the leading features of the doctrine that moved him to obedience, his call as a minister and experiences as such, together with a recital of some striking incidents, showing divine interference and blessing. The autobiography has been revised by Bro. Luff since its publication in Autumn Leaves, and a large amount of doctrinal matter has been added in appropriate places. TWO SERMONS, one on the "Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man," and one on "The Modern Stumbling-Stone," have been added also, making it just the kind of a book to have in the family. Price, cloth bound, $1.25.

JOSEPH LUFF - CORRESPONDING EDITOR.

LAMONI, IOWA, JULY 25, 1894.

UNCHRISTIAN (?).

THE following letter was received at the Herald Office; and of course tells its own story:—

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
ATCHISON, Kansas, July 12, 1894.
THE EDITOR The Saints Herald,
Lamoni, Iowa:

Dear Sir:—You may take the name of the Atchison Y. M. C. A. off your mailing list, for your paper does not reach our files. The reason for this is that we do not believe your teaching to be Scriptural. Yours,
A. S. HOPPER.

The right to conduct the affairs of the Young Men's Christian Association at Atchison, Kansas, is conceded to the officers of that institution; and that in so attending to their duties, they may exclude from their files, or their tables, the HERALD, or any other paper, magazine, or journal, is conceded also.

The question of Scriptural teaching is, of course, a matter of dispute, and we may be pardoned for stating that while the Y. M. C. A. of Atchison may believe what they please in regard to what is Scriptural and what is not Scriptural in teaching, we are quite sure that their belief as stated in the letter is not founded on an acquaintance with what we do teach; but on the casual deductions drawn from misunderstandings, possibly from the prejudices of denominational sectism.

We had supposed that the Y. M. C. A. was intended as an association open to the coming of all classes of men that believe in God and Christ, the word Christian being understood to mean those believing in and following, or striving to follow Christ. We confess that Jesus has come in the flesh, and believe that he will come again. It was at one time believed by many sects from which the Y. M. C. A. is largely recruited that the second coming of Jesus was unscriptural; but some years ago quite a number of delegates from these same sects met in solemn conclave in Chicago, and there decided, after much deliberation, that the second coming of the Savior, was not only a wholesome, comforting doctrine but was Scriptural.

It may be that these especial officials in charge of the local association at Atchison have not yet taken in the significance of that resolution, and do not yet concede that such doctrine is Scriptural.

It may be that the Y. M. C. A. at Atchison have become converts to the Higher Criticism, and are hedging against a too strong reliance on the Bible and its teaching concerning the Messiah; if so, we can appreciate how easily and properly Mr. A. S. Hopper, General Secretary, could write, "We do not believe your teaching to be Scriptural."

But, be all this as it may, the fact remains that our HERALD must not be laid on that association table because it is not in harmony with the belief of the men looking after its interests. We wonder if all the conflicting teachings of the different denominations chiefly composing the association are considered by Mr. Hopper and his co-workers as Scriptural; if so it is a curious patchwork of beliefs and creeds.

Will our Atchison brethren please to lay on the table of the Y. M. C. A. of that city a copy of the Epitome of Faith, with the request that the association will be kind enough to point out the unscriptural items of teaching it contains.

LAMONI is quite remote from the centers where the great strike of the American Railway Union was, yet there was quite a noticeable difference in the train service over the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy road which is the only artery of the commercial system running through or near the town. It is true that there was the usual everyday train service; but the passengers were few, and the freight cars few. The removal of the embargo put on traffic by the strike, renewed the train service in the strength of its usual activity. The locomotive engine is the type and embodiment of energy and pushing activity. The necessary promptness and stick-to-it-iveness that accompany the railway service, not only mark railway men, but they put push and drive into everybody along the lines.

The railway corporations may be called huge monopolies, and other hard names, but there would be dull times if this western world was to be compelled to do without them.

One of the morals of the strike seems to be that the American Railway Union, was to outnumber all the other industrial corporations, and in time to so far absorb them as to dominate and control them. This seems to have been made apparent to chiefs of labor organizations, Gompers, Sovereign, and others and was one of the things which prevented the unity of these organizations with Chief E. V. Debs, and helped to end the strike, with less accomplished than the American Railway Union intended. Labor should agree with itself before it can successfully enforce its demands on corporations which it deems at war with its interests.

LETTER from Bro. E. L. Kelley, dated June 28, delayed by the strike, reached us on the 17th July, from San Francisco. He reports fair progress with the gospel boat. It will be complete in a few weeks. And now, quite a number of our young men volunteered to go to the Sandwich Islands, and as only two are needed at present, are any of those who were willing to go to the Hawaiian group willing to go to the Society Islands to labor with Bru. Newton and Gilbert. It is an excellent field, in some respects preferable to the Sandwich Islands, but it will require courage and a disposition to be patient and persistent.

We will at an early date correspond with those whose names we have and see who is likely to be ready to go. Let us hear from you brethren, if any are willing to take this Society Island trip. The gospel boat will take you down to the Islands and the experience will be new and instructive.

All cannot go whose names we have, hence it will be needful that some shall be chosen; "many are called, few are chosen." One brother, a seaman, is all ready to go with the boat, and a navigator will be secured to take the boat down to the Islands. Who is willing and can be ready to go?

ANOTHER OBJECT LESSON.

THE Nauvoo Rustler of July 10 states that Quincy has forty thousand inhabitants and one hundred and forty-two saloons. This is one saloon for each two hundred and eighty-one of the citizens. With five to the family it gives one saloon to each fifty-six families, one to each fifty-six producers, if each head of a family is counted as a producer. Apply the rest of the calculation and see what a useless burden the citizens of Quincy carry.

BATTLE FLAG DAY.

GOVERNOR JACKSON, of Iowa, in pursuance of his duty as the executive of the State, has issued a proclamation setting apart Friday, August 10, as a holiday and asking the citizens of Iowa to observe it as such. The occasion for this is disclosed in the proclamation, which we print below.

The Saints are a loyal people, and it is for that reason that we publish the proclamation officially sent to the HERALD.

We do not love war, nor carnage; but believing that the nation could not have taken the place among the nations of the world past, present, and to come without the answering in battle for the wrong from which the war referred to by Governor Jackson freed it, we acquiesce in the preservation of the battle flags which will mark to children and children's children, and to all strangers that may visit the Capital of the State, the part taken in the conflict by those who bore those tattered emblems amid the din and fury of the fight, and endured the toil, privation, distress, sickness, imprisonment, and death incident to the march and the camp.

Another conflict now pending before the Nation, may not be so successful as was that last fought out on the bloody field, but its issues are as momentous, its decision in accord with righteousness just as important, its triumph for peace, and right, and justice as desirable as was the one secured in the contest to be commemorated August 10, in Iowa; that is, the conflict now pressing before the American people in which the questions of the proper status of the negro in the political economy of the commonwealth, and the just solution of the relation of the wealth of the nation and the laborers whose sweat and toil are said to make wealth, to each other, are to be considered and decided.

We trust in this as in the other crises through which the United States has passed in this experiment of a government by the people, the same guiding genius that devised and authorized the national institutions will counsel and direct the conduct of those upon whom may rest the right and duty of administering the affairs of the Nation when the crisis comes. To this end let us hope, watch, and pray.

A PROCLAMATION.

The Twenty-fourth General Assembly of the State of Iowa enacted a law providing for the better preservation of the colors, standards, and battle flags borne by Iowa regiments and batteries during the War of the Rebellion. In compliance with the provisions of said law hermetically sealed glass cases have been provided and placed in appropriate positions in the corridor of the Capitol, in which the battle flags will be preserved. The 10th day of August, 1894, has been selected as an appropriate day for the transfer of the battle flags from the State arsenal to the Capitol building. This great occasion, one of the last official acts of our State in patriotic remembrance of that heroic army which she sent forth to defend the flag while yet in the very infancy of her statehood, is one in which every true citizen of Iowa will be deeply interested. The hardships and sacrifices, the alternating victories and defeats, and the final triumph and after glory of that army are matters of history; but the battle flags around which our Iowa soldiers rallied, and under the folds of which they marched through smoke of battle to victory or death, are left to us, a precious heritage toward which the hearts of all Iowans go forth in grateful remembrance.

Now, therefore, I, Frank D. Jackson, Governor of the State of Iowa, do hereby recommend that the 10th day of August, 1894, be known and referred to as Battle Flag Day, and that it be observed as a public holiday consecrated to the memory of the patriotism and valor of Iowa's soldiers, living and dead.

Let the subject of patriotism, as represented in the one hundred and thirty-three flags that led the seventy thousand Iowa soldiers into battle, be the inspiring sentiment of the day, and I hereby request that all the people of this commonwealth refrain upon that day from unnecessary labor and join in appropriate exercises in commemoration of this patriotic occasion.

Let as many as possible of the surviving members of Iowa regiments take a personal part in the exercises of this day. Let regimental reunions be called to meet at the Capital City on the day previous, so that as far as possible these battle flags may be carried by their own respective color bearers, surrounded by the broken fragments of regimental organization.

With a spirit of reverent solemnity, let the people of Iowa devote this day to the consideration of the relations of the citizen to the flag; of liberty as distinct from license; of loyalty, patriotism and heroism. Let us again renew our devotion to the flag; our fidelity to the law.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the State of Iowa.

Done at Des Moines this twenty-eighth day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four.

[Seal.] FRANK D. JACKSON.

By the Governor:

W. M. McFARLAND, Sec. of State.
By C. S. BYRKIT, Deputy.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. JOSEPH F. BURTON, from Dos Palos, California, July 2:—

I am having excellent liberty here again. The Disciple minister was out last evening while I discoursed from, "I will build my church;" and after talking of the doctrines Christ taught I shewed the organization, officers, etc., and kept before the people the fact that we must follow the "Testament" and so clearly were these points shown that he was completely headed off, and at the close of the meeting with a number of his people around him he said, "I could indorse all you have said to-night." But I guess after he meditates upon the matter he will back out from that statement. Quite a number of his people will hold fast to the truth they have heard. It is a blessed thing to preach the gospel under inspiration; the message is so clear to the preacher, and I think then it is made clear to the hearer. I have great hopes of building up the work here if I can only keep the place worked.

Bro. Henry Kemp, Hamburg, Iowa, July 16:—

Our two-days' meeting at this place was good. Bro. D. Hougas as president of district, and T. A. Hougas secretary were both present and did excellent service in presenting the word of life to the people, and T. A. gave the school all the instruction needed to help them on in that laudable department of our work. I came here on the 12th and will continue until the 18th. There is a good interest here; the Saints and friends turn out well, notwithstanding the nights are short and warm, many are apparently very near the kingdom and we think will soon obey the work. We have calls for preaching the gospel from all parts of this district from Saints and friends. Shall keep on the move and do what we can.

Bro. R. Etzenhouser wrote from Creola, Ohio, July 14:—

A meeting in progress over July 8 at Pine, held by H. R. Harder and H. E. Moler resulted in three baptisms. While at Vale's Mills the two-days' meeting resulted in the baptism of four, Bro. James Moler administering the rite.

Bro. L. C. Donaldson, Riverton, Iowa, July 13:—

The work of the Lord is moving onward in this vicinity. Bro. J. B. Heide has lately baptized three. Bro. James Comstock was ordained an elder and chosen to preside over the branch.

Bro. Levi Gamet, Clearwater, Nebraska, July 13:—

Bro. W. E. Peak is preaching at Clearwater this week. He will continue until Saturday and will then occupy the Saints' church two miles out of town. Attendance small, but attention good. Bro. Peak is cheerful and in fair health.

Bro. Joseph Squires, Jr., wrote from Brooklyn, New York, July 15:—

Bro. James Caffall has been with us a few days and preached two excellent sermons for us, Thursday and Friday evenings, and was appreciated by those present. He sailed Saturday the 14th on the Campania, all in good spirits.

Bro. E. T. Atwell, Rich Hill, Missouri, July 18:—

Bro. John Rounds has been with us and preached a week in our church in Rich Hill. Better interest could not be asked for. He has now gone to the Nevada branch, but expects to be in Rich Hill in the future again. I am making an effort to plant the truth in the vicinity of Rich Hill. Bro. F. M. Sharrock is now the president of our branch. The work is not discouraging here. Health of all the Saints good.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE Saints of Alpena, Michigan, spent the Fourth by picnicing at the farm of a blind brother and cultivating his crop. The labor was begun at early morning and closed at five o'clock in the evening, interspersed with a feast and social season at noon. They enjoyed the day, and were happy in the satisfaction of having helped a worthy brother.

Bro. R. L. Ware was at Scanda, Kansas, July 16, preaching in a tent and having fair attendance. He had labored previously at Barnes, Morganville, and Hollis. At the latter place there is some interest. He hopes for the presence of Brn. Luff and Hilliard at the Grand Rapids reunion.

Letters are received from Bro. George Shearer, Little Sioux, Iowa, and Sr. Belle Crippen, of Cherokee, same State.

Bro. Emsley Curtis reports July 10, the labors of himself and Brn. I. M. Morris and F. M. Slover, since April conference. Their baptisms aggregate sixty-nine. Bro. Curtis held a six-day debate at Oblong, Illinois, with W. A. Inman of the Disciples; the meetings being held in the Universalist church house there. They will have a reunion at Brush Creek, last day of August to last over two Sundays. Bro. Curtis is to hold a debate with Elder W. J. Moore of the Missionary Baptists, to be held at the Unity church, Hamilton county, Illinois, commencing September 17.

Sr. Pauline Higgins, of No. 649 N. 1 Street, Salt Lake City, Utah, has sent us two pieces of music composed by herself, "Happy Days" and "Mignonette Waltz." Sr. Higgins is quite talented, of a musical family, the Brownings, and composed the waltz when but fifteen. Both are excellent compositions and show fine taste in music. Sr. Higgins has our thanks for her remembrance of the HERALD.

Bro. L. L. Wight, on his way home to Beeville, Texas, was recalled to Taylor county, and found opportunity to preach eight times and baptize one at Sweetwater. He was ready to again start for home when some one attacked the work at a schoolhouse some eight miles away, to which attack Bro. Wight responded by appointments for the 7th and 8th of July. Bro. Wight writes July 4, "If I survive the battle you will hear from me again."

Bro. J. R. Lambert has been preaching at the Oak Grove schoolhouse near Reger Mineral Springs, Missouri, and had appointments for the 21st and 22d for himself and others at New Zion schoolhouse and the Springs. The brethren of the Decatur district are doing well; prospects good in the region in Missouri where Brn. Lambert, Anderson, and others are at work.

Bro. James H. Bryce, formerly of Proton, Ontario, now of Hazenville, Michigan, wrote from the lumber woods July 1st. He is aware temptations lie in wait for the feet of the unwary in lumber camps and forest glades as in the towns and cities; and desires the prayers and sympathies of the faithful as do others who are in the wilds of trial and danger.

Bro. Alexander H. Smith reports the mission work in his field, from Minneapolis, Minnesota, July 18. Baptisms aggregate nearly one hundred, the greater number, thirty-four, being in Wisconsin. The traveling and local ministry are quite actively engaged in spreading the gospel word.

Brn. Wm. Anderson, R. S. Salyards, and J. S. Snively went to Reger Springs, July 20, in the interest of the work.

ERRATUM.—In HERALD of July 18, page 465, Miscellaneous Department, Bishop's Agent's Notice of Bro. John Cairns should read, "To the Saints of the Northeastern Kansas district," etc. Erroneously printed Northwestern.

Sr. Sarah M. Ray, of Braden, Illinois, desires the prayers of the Saints for her restoration to health.

It is stated that the English courts have decided that a wife is not a necessity but a luxury. What luxuries some men have, to be sure!

Bro. A. C. Geer of Lamoni has on sale some specialties of interest to those afflicted with defective hearing. Persons desiring to communicate with him will receive prompt replies and businesslike treatment. See his advertisement.

A BROTHER in the field says:—

Brethren, let us sow in faith, and we will reap in joy.

How true that is. The preacher has said:—

In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thy hand; for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good.

The ministers are the sowers; they do know that they can sow, but they also know that they may not, though another may reap. "It is God that giveth the increase." "Now is the seed time of life and of peace," therefore sow, leave the increase in God's hands no matter whether you or another shall reap.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"TAKE MY HAND!"

A tender child of summers three,
Seeking her little bed at night,
Paused on the dark stairs timidly,
"O, mother! take my hand," said she,
"And then the dark will all be light."

We older children grope our way
From dark behind to dark before:
And only when our hands we lay,
Dear Lord, in Thine, the night is day,
And there is darkness never more.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE CHILDREN DURING VACATION.

FIRST PAPER.—THE OPPORTUNITIES OF VACATION.

WHAT to do with the children during vacation is a question that perplexes thoughtful mothers at every recurring time. For eight or nine months life has been so busy and so systematic that sudden release from all the duties and associations of school life plunges the child into a condition of vagueness and aimlessness. Unwilling as we may be to admit the fact, it is nevertheless true that a large majority of children are permitted to remain in such a state until the bells in September call them out of it again. The foolish mother, as soon as she begins to feel the added weight of the responsibility of entertaining her children during this period, declares impatiently that she "wishes school would last all the year round to keep the children out of mischief." It is not much wonder that children who are so unfortunate as to have such parents generally do that very thing, fall into "mischief."

Feeling restless and dissatisfied, not knowing what to do with themselves; too young to have a conscious aim in life, and having no one to sympathize with them or guide them, the children naturally drift along as fancy or accident steers their frail barques.

Forced to rely upon his own discretion, the boy spends his time on the streets with associates of his own inexperienced choosing. He grows up accomplished in the arts of vice, with an indifferent regard for the sacredness of the home, or anything pertaining to home life.

The girl, not knowing nor being taught what better to do, idles away her time, and, completing school, marries, maybe, with but limited knowledge of the requirements of a home keeper. Amid the difficulties, and the worry over unusual duties, she finds no time to keep up early culture. Some day she sits down to rest and thinks it all over. But life seems an inextricable tangle to her. She wishes she had never married; she doubts herself, blames her education, and gives up the problem in despair.

The world is viewing such cases every day, and, in endeavoring to provide a remedy, has created an endless number of theories that are interspersed with clashing extremes. Here and there some one seems to realize the true cause, and cites us back to parental neglect in childhood, where the trouble first began.

Vacations are the choicest times in children's lives to instruct and train the mind and hand to do the practical things that are so essential to happiness and success in future life. A mother's opportunities are necessarily limited when her children are in attendance at school. The youthful spirits and active bodies must have liberty after so much mental application and being pent up within four walls all day. It is unwise to exact too much of children when school is in session. School life has its worries, its hardships, and they should not be enhanced by severity or lack of sympathy at home.

But when good-byes to teacher and schoolmates have been said, and the armful of books are brought home and thrown upon the table with a little sigh of relief and yet of dread, and the ejaculation comes, "O dear! I wanted school to let out, but I don't know what I'm going to do now. I'm almost sorry."

When she hears that plaintive cry mother has the way opened for her to step in and become at once the loving guide and teacher of her child. The course she would have her children pursue should be previously fixed in her mind, and the performance of it should begin the very moment the child exhibits its perplexity. It is very easy to gain their ready acquiescence to her plans then.

But youthful nature is elastic. It quickly adapts itself to changes. Before you are aware of it the demon of idleness has woven his spell around the child, and the good effects of the discipline learned at school have been lost. A mother has these difficulties to overcome, if, through negligence, she has permitted these habits to get the start of her.

We by no means wish to be understood as advocating that a child should be left to its own inclinations. While, as a last resort, it becomes a mother's duty to insist upon obedience to her will, surely it is wiser and more conducive to happy results if she has managed so tactfully that her authority needs make no demonstrative showing.

Of course all true mothers are well-meaning towards their children. But that is not enough. We have heard mothers say to their children, "When school is out you have just got to pitch into the work: it's not going to be play and run about all summer." In reality they mean to do nothing so desperately terrible. Often mothers that make so much bluster do the least, and are the most indulgent.

But how is the inexperienced child to read the parent's nature, and to know that back of such spasmodic outbursts only the kindest of intentions exist? To the sensitive imagination the meaning takes on a real and forbidding cast, and under such a course of treatment a child will grow to dread and despise the very mention of work and duty.

A mother has made a great mistake when she has created any such impression in a child's mind. It will result in more or less trouble for her, and she will have to pay dearly in having to contend with a perversity that she herself engendered. Even in cases where firmness and severity must be exercised, it is folly to make use of exaggerated threats, for, in addition to an inherent weakness, the mind is prejudiced and the feelings are antagonized.

When it is possible to a child's disposition, his liking should be won first. Every observing teacher knows that a child whose interest has been excited does far better than one with whom coercion has been the incentive.

Never, by the slightest word or act should a child be caused to regard an industrious life as an unhappy one. A child may be taught to notice in his own experience that idleness and selfishness do not bring joy. Among the chiefest mottoes that should be held up to a child's mind is this one, that that life is not full and rich that is not useful.

Dear Sisters:—On reading the article "Undone" in last Herald I thought I would write a few lines. I have often thought of doing so before, but feeling my inability to express my thoughts in words have left the space for others. I feel to thank all the sisters who have written such encouraging words and given advice to mothers. I have five little ones left to my charge and I feel a great responsibility in raising them in the way the Lord wants us as Saints to raise our children. I feel as mothers we should give more time to training and teaching the little ones than is generally given. We can teach them many things in a simple way which they will remember as long as they live. I am very thankful for the work the Daughters of Zion are doing. I wish we could have an organization here. We have lately organized a Prayer Union; have felt blessed every time we have met. I am glad so many of the Saints are keeping the Word of Wisdom. I think if we would observe it more perfectly we would be healthier. If we wish to raise up a generation free from the many habits practiced now, we must commence while they are young. We can train their tastes in many ways so they will not have those habits to overcome in after years, and in this way we as mothers can do a work which no one else can do for them. I ask an interest in your prayers, for I know prayer will help us in the right, and without it we will not be able to accomplish much.

Your sister,
C. R. W.

SOLITUDE.

Laugh, and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone;
For the sad earth must borrow its mirth,
But has trouble enough of its own.
Sing and the hills will answer;
Sigh, it is lost to the air.
The echoes bound to a joyful sound,
But shrink from voicing care.

Rejoice, and men will seek you;
Grieve, and they turn and go;
They want full measure of all your pleasure,
But they do not need your woe.
Be glad, and your friends are many;
Be sad and you lose them all—
There are none to decline your nectar's wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall.

Feast, and your halls are crowded;
Fast, and the world goes by.
Succeed and give and it helps you to live,
But no man can help you die.
There is room in the halls of pleasure
For a large and lordly train,
But one by one we must all file on Through the narrow isles of pain.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JULY.

PETITION.

"More holiness give me,
More sweetness within,
More patience in suffering,
More sorrow for sin;
More faith in my Savior,
More sense of his care;
More joy in his service,
More purpose in prayer.
"More purity give me,
More strength to overcome;
More freedom from earth-stains,
More longing for home.
More fit for the kingdom,
More used would I be:
More blessed and holy,
More, Savior, like thee."

Thursday, July 26.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verses.—Psalm 67: 3, 4.

There has recently been started in Jerusalem a Young Men's Christian Association. Its headquarters are just outside the Jaffa gate. A special section of this remarkable Y. M. C. A. is for the Arab converts.

SHERWIN, Kan., July 16.

Editors Herald:—In company with Bro. I. N. White I attended grove meeting at a point about six miles from Maurine, Missouri, on the 7th and 8th inst. An arbor had been built by interested ones who are not yet members of the body, but who seem to love the good wherever they find it. The attendance was quite large and the interest excellent. Four preaching services were held and appointments left for services one week later by local brethren.

On the 9th I returned home and on the morning of the 10th left for Webb City, Missouri. On the way, Bro. Hilliard joined me, as per former agreement, at Nevada, and together we journeyed to our destination. Meetings had been announced ahead, and I was assigned the duty of representing the work at night, in town, while Bro. Hilliard was hurried off by Bro. C. R. Duncan to fill an appointment four miles away.

On the two following evenings we occupied at Webb, in turn, and on the following day left for this point to attend the conference of the Spring River district. Quite a large number of Saints gathered here, and at the close of the sessions we report them as having been orderly, enjoyable, and profitable. Some serious trouble has been disturbing a part of the district for a long time, but after mutual counsel and deliberation the case was put in a fair way for speedy adjustment, and we hope that anticipations may not fail of satisfactory fruit. The preaching work was divided between Bro. Hilliard and myself, and the Master stood by us. To him be praise.

From here we go to Weir, Pleasant View, Angola, Webb, Blendville, and other points as the way opens and the Spirit directs. Bro. Hilliard expects to start for Kentucky and Tennessee in about three weeks, while I expect to keep moving within the limits of my little field (comprising only five States). Expect to be constantly engaged in the field.

On the wing,

JOSEPH LUFF.

CENTRE JUNCTION, Iowa, July 10.

Editors Herald:—I have just closed a series of meetings in Clayton county, where Bro. W. C. Kephart of Osterdock had previously openly the work, awakening a good interest and promising a return. We held meetings in three places, which were well attended, notwithstanding the long days, short nights, and hard work of the present season. Many were interested; one was obedient to the faith, and others are very near the kingdom. In each place, kind hearts gave us homes and contributed to our wants. The promise of the Master to reward even the gift of a cup of cold water will certainly be made good to them.

The Saints should pray fervently that all such may come into the fullness of gospel light.

Eastern Iowa has purchased a new tent, first occupied by Bro. J. S. Roth at Clinton, from whence it has been shipped to Amber, and erected for a series of meetings begun Saturday, the 7th, by Bro. Warren Turner, holding over Sunday. We take up the work there to-night, and will continue while the interest warrants. We left the people of Clayton county with a promise to return soon as possible.

When I view the many towns and vast country in which the gospel trumpet has never been sounded, I am led to exclaim, "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few," and to wonder will the work ever be accomplished? If it were not for the words of the Savior found in Matthew 24: 14: "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness, unto all nations," I would give up the undertaking as too great. Again when I see precious souls rejoicing in the light which had never dawned upon them before, I feel that I have too little of life left in which to labor. Only for the remembrance that I have tried for twenty years and more to "preach the word" as best I could while providing for temporal necessities, (in a poor way,) I should feel deep remorse of conscience for neglect of duty. But I can only now regret that I could not as many others have done, have let go of temporal occupation entirely and devoted my whole life to spiritual work. While I dare not mourn the past I am more and more anxious that my days may be lengthened out to bring "good tidings of great joy" to many people. God speed the message of life to the ends of the earth.

Yours in gospel work,

O. B. THOMAS.

Editors Herald:—Will you kindly allow me space to make an explanation in answer to a letter from C. E. Butterworth in the Herald of June 20. Although he writes in shadowy initials, many who read his letter will know that H— means Harlan, that Mr. S. means J. B. Swain, and that Elder C. means old Grandfather Chatburn. As I was present I can not allow the true state of affairs to go untold. A few days before J. B. Swain and wife were leaving Harlan after a residence of twenty-five years, they were surprised one night by many of their old neighbors, old settlers and friends, who had gone through the hardships of early frontier life with them, coming with well filled baskets—a merry lot of old, middle aged, and young. The evening was spent up to one o'clock in serving supper, conversation, and speeches of farewell and good wishes. As they were preparing to leave one old friend, who years ago had added to the fair pleasures of the mild frontier life by playing on his violin many a lonely evening, was asked to play one farewell tune to Grandma and Grandpa Swain, and some one laughingly suggested that we finish the evening in true old time style by dancing a quadrille to Grandpa Chatburn's "calling" as they had done many years before. It was no sooner said than done, and with much laughter they danced for not more than five minutes and many there had not danced for over fifteen years. They then departed, and as we noted the fervent handclasp and the tears from those friends of near a lifetime, we felt that not only as neighbors were they loved, but as upright Christian workers in the Church of Christ, who for years had battled against bitterness and prejudice and had gradually but surely overcome them!

Now you have an exact account of that that has made Mr. B. "to blush with shame," his "heart to ache," and according to his statement, "renewed a prejudice which" he "thought had so far given way in H— that" he "might do some good." And lastly (I fail to understand the speech), he "has had this thing dumped from the Devil's shoulder into his face." While it ill becomes me to criticize so eminent a minister as Mr. Butterworth, I really think if he had stopped to think of those two old white-haired Saints at whose tables he has so many times had almost the last crust divided with him, he would at least have made sure of the truth of what he was writing. If the prejudice be removed then give the credit where it belongs. These men have fought almost single-handed for the truth for over twenty years, both in the manner of their living and by supporting ministers from abroad when they could ill afford it; and now I understand that in spite of all the brother says that a true minister of the gospel is now laboring there and doing much good. If the brother will make sure of the truth of his statements hereafter, it will save him many blushes and other people heartaches!

A SISTER.

DENVER, Colo., July 12.

Editors Herald:—On Sunday the 8th, four were added to the church by baptism, three of them adults. Bro. Gillen will remember two of them: Srs. Brewer and Fishburn. They are a credit to any organization. We baptized in the swimming pool, corner of Thirteenth and Broadway, a very nice place indeed. Being Sunday it was hard to keep the swimmers out of the pool long enough to attend to the ordinance. The manager made all due apologies and promised that when we wanted to use the pool again he would exclude all but those invited. We will likely use it again soon.

At the Sunday school election of officers, June 25, Sr. L. A. Schmutz was again elected superintendent. The school is gaining in interest all the time. At the last meeting of Zion's Religio-Literary Society it was decided to continue our sessions through the summer. We cannot afford to relax any effort for the spread of truth. On June 29 the Zions' Religio-Literary Society gave a musical and literary entertainment which was a success financially as well as a credit to those engaged. The Woman's Political Club and the Ness Mandolin Club assisted with some fine selections.

Bro. and Sr. Chatburn are enjoying better health than when they first came. Elder G. E. McConley, of Sterling, assisted in the confirmation services Sunday afternoon and was the speaker at the evening service. Wednesday the 11th was a fast day for the blessing of health for Sr. Smith. The evening prayer meeting was well attended, and a good feeling was manifest. And so the good work goes on slowly but we think surely, although Satan tries to stop up our path, we are striving to drive him out of the way and press forward, realizing that there is work for all in such a city as this, and that if we all do the work allotted to us we will have no time to find fault with our brethren or sisters.

Yours for the spread of truth,

E. F. S.

MILLFIELD, Ohio, July 13.

Editors Herald:—I wish to express my gratitude for the glad tidings and good food the Herald has brought to me these last six years that I have been permitted every week to peruse its, to me, sacred columns. I cannot see how any Latter Day Saint can do without it and be ignorant of what is going on in the church and its progress. In the Items of Interest we are informed of what is going on in the world, in a condensed form, and that is worth the price of the paper to have important matter cleanly and truthfully selected.

I rejoice in the late activity and harmonious success of the restored gospel and thank God that it has been my privilege to listen to it, although it came late in life. A few weeks since I was about my work and singing, when almost unconsciously something said, "That promise is to you; it is to you." Then I thought of what I was singing,

"I'll strengthen thee, help thee, and cause thee to stand, Upheld by my righteous, omnipotent hand."

It seemed to come in answer to prayer, for I had had a great spiritual struggle; and I thought, "What more could I ask than to be upheld by a righteous, omnipotent hand?" I was immediately filled with joy and peace, and it continued. I have often wished to write to the Herald but feared to expose my ignorance. Perhaps it is the best way to get knowledge.

SARAH WHITE.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, July 14.

Editors Herald:—I greet you for first time. The Spirit of God prevails in our district, and if Saints would truly "contend for the faith," and live as becomes followers of Christ, how the work would roll forth. I rejoice more and more to see how the "word" is gaining favor when surrounded by light of the Spirit; and while there are discouraging features, one is amply repaid to find honest seekers who desire to worship the God, not only of former, but of latter-day Israel. The power and liberality of the everlasting gospel and God's justice to all, are the keys whereby the world shall have doors of full enjoyment opened up to them. I am satisfied from my short experience that "Christ and him crucified," letting the spirit of Christian love rule, will win souls to Christ. I have sought to place myself subject to direction of the higher power, humbly, prayerfully. I have sought to honor the cause which is dearer than all else—"The pearl of great price." In my feeble way, I have been blessed while doing branch and district work. I have sought to bring in two and three appointments in various places each Sunday. Have labored nearly every two weeks for more than a year at Missouri Valley, and by aid of Bro. William Stewart and family, also Sr. Berry, have made an opening in Mondamin, with full house each time, and have had valuable assistance from nonmembers in singing and music.

Bro. Chambers and I were at Jones school-house, on the 7th and 8th inst. God blessed not only the speakers but the hearers as well; they seemed loth to say good-bye, and one gentleman told us that as a seeker for truth the Spirit bore special witness to him of truths presented in our last effort, and tearfully stated his determination to enter the kingdom. Bro. C. and I expect to visit Oto, Woodbury county, about the 21st inst. for gospel work. Praying that all may be blessed in advancing truth, and that Latter Day Saints may have "pride"—that is, pride in fact of being possessors of so great a treasure; pride enough to sustain their identity and the banner of truth; pride enough to claim and defend it before all when necessity may demand. By way of closing and for information of inquiring friends let me say I am not married, neither am I aware of any flattering prospects.

Yours hopefully and devotedly,

ALMA FYRANDO.

BLUE RAPIDS, Kan., July 12.

Editors Herald:—The work in this part of the earth has some interesting features about it as well as elsewhere. It is not unusual for me in traveling in Marshall, Washington, Riley, and Clay counties to find family after family who are well acquainted with the latter-day work and who are inclined at any opportunity to unite with it by baptism. I very frequently spend a half day with such people, and go for them, so to speak, with what testimony I can bring to bear; not weak, faltering, or vacillating in regard to the light, the power, and the blessings attending the work of God. There have been some twenty-five souls gathered into the fold by baptism since the conference six weeks ago, by different elders in different places; and I think this number will be greatly augmented at or before the reunion at Blue Rapids to commence August 9. I hope every one far and near who would enjoy a week's sojourn here in the park on the bank of the Blue River will come, and that they may have a nice time in associating together. Bring along all the inquirers after truth you can to hear the gospel preached. The place selected and secured for camping ground is the chosen rendezvous of summer tourists and fishing, and boating, and picnic parties. Here later in the season the wandering Ishmaelites bend their course to camp beneath the shade and lull themselves into tranquility and repose by the side of the busy water power and enjoy the novel scene and the sound of the rushing and the rapids of the river. It would well repay every Latter Day Saint in Southern Nebraska and Eastern Kansas as well as those of our own district to assemble here and pass a week in enjoyment of these unusual attractions of nature, even if there was no reunion to be held here.

I intended to only write a little of these advantages in this letter, at the suggestion of one of the reunion committee; but as I write I think of the shore from which so many have been immersed in years gone by and to which everybody can invite their friends to the accomplishment of their regeneration and the remission of their sins by baptism. A few years ago Uncle Justus Clark and his wife (Adventists) lived at Blue Rapids. I had a dream one night of seeing them both standing by the riverside and waiting for some one to baptize them. I was about to offer my own services when I saw the pastor of the branch come to them and wading out into the river waist deep he baptized first one and then the other of the old people. The next day I called on Father and Mother Clark and they told me they had waited some time to be baptized, but that their son-in-law would not take them to the river with his team. Arrangements were accordingly made and they were baptized by the aforesaid pastor. A little later in the fall Father Clark was sitting in the evening outside his door and his wife spoke to him and not receiving an answer she went to him and he had fallen asleep. There had been but one step, so to speak, from the sacred scene of immersion at Blue Rapids to the shores of the eternal world. The clear water of the Blue River had fulfilled its sacred mission in his case before it was too late; and though this is but a simple story, yet I have received much satisfaction at times when thinking about it. A year ago last spring two candidates were baptized. At a succeeding meeting in the afternoon a sister testified that while seated in a carriage witnessing the baptism the scene changed before her and in open vision she saw in the place of the water and the people before her a beautiful rainbow, and that while there were people on one side of it who were dark and dirty, when they moved up to and passed under the rainbow they became white, and pure, and clean, and joyful. These incidents might be regarded as peculiar evidences of the Latter Day Saints in support of the doctrine of baptism for the remission of sins. I only relate them, however, as some of the sacred remembrances and associations connected with that pleasant sandy shore above which the Northwestern Kansas reunion will take place and those placid waters which afford so admirable privileges for the penitent to be immersed.

I think we ought to be encouraged in this district to warn and instruct our neighbors. Let the missionary go everywhere and preach the gospel to all the earth and assist him in so doing, but these twenty-five converts recently made in this district were principally the result of one neighbor instructing another. What a condition our neighbors and mankind generally are in so far as the hope of salvation is concerned! Many of them will not long hence pass away, cherishing perhaps only a few illogical, contradictory, and puerile Protestant doctrines; powerless, spiritless, and unauthoritative; derived through tradition from Rome and the Gentiles. But you Latter Day Saints are able to declare the whole counsel of God and to testify to your neighbor as though you had received the oracles of truth from the very mouth of God himself. Let us direct them who will hear back through the darkness and confusion of apostasy brought on the church, and word, and promises of God at Rome and by succeeding generations of Gentiles, unto Jerusalem the city of God, and unto kindred and brotherhood with the house of Israel and unto the pure word of God and the promises of which it consists, and wisdom, and knowledge, and power, and inspiration, and the hope of salvation I sincerely hope that quite a large number of the residents of Blue Rapids may be constrained to accept the truth and cast in their lot with us by the influence of the coming reunion.

In bonds,

MAHLON SMITH.

TUNCURRY, N. S. W., June 6.

Editors Herald:—After ten months of experience here I am pleased to report that I feel encouraged to continue in the great "latter-day work." The work is true, and wise are they who humbly devote their talent and time to its advancement; for the rewards of other labor may fade away, but those promised in the beautiful gospel of Christ endure eternally for "he that doeth the will of God abideth forever."—1 John 2:17. Yes, the promise is that if we do the will of our heavenly Father faithfully unto the end of life we shall abide forever in the same blessed condition that our God and Savior Jesus enjoy. O, what latitude there is for improvement and work in our own lives and for others in this great work of the Lord. We need thousands of "Daughters of Zion" and "Religio-Literary" societies to do the many little (though very important) things that the ministry cannot do. In the literary societies the printed word can be presented to the world either directly or by deposit in public libraries of the various books of the church. Much good can be done in this way besides the benefits derived in the meetings. And to the "Daughters of Zion" let me say, I consider your pamphlets much more valuable than diamonds, and every Saint should hail them with joy and carefully read and re-read and encourage others to read them. Eternity alone can fully reveal the good that may be accomplished by the continued faithful, humble, and prayerful efforts of the brethren and sisters in the various "organizations for good." I think the needs of the church and Sunday school should first be looked after and then the other organizations for good should receive our best encouragement; but I apprehend that if the instruction given by the "Daughters of Zion" was obeyed by every father and mother, so that the sins of the parents would not be visited on the heads of the children; that the mission work of the Sunday school and church would be much easier accomplished in the young of the coming generation.

I have made the acquaintance of most of the Saints of the five branches in New South Wales from the Sydney branch to the one farthest north on the Nambucca River about three hundred miles from Sydney, and I can say that while I have met as good Saints as the world can produce, still, taking the bod & of the church here as a whole, I can see less activity and spirituality among them than I was used to seeing with the Saints at home; but there are good reasons for this, as the Saints here are denied the many advantages enjoyed by the church in America, such as gathering at conferences, and camp meetings, and reunions, all of which strengthen and bless spiritually. And so far as missionary work is concerned, there are many hindrances in the way not encountered at home: we haven't the railroads to travel on at half fare nor the schoolhouses to preach in, as the government won't allow school buildings to be used; so in city and village halls must be rented, which usually cost from sixty cents to one dollar and twenty-five cents per night.

Bro. Gomer Wells and I have just returned from a journey of one hundred and sixty miles north with the horse and trap, and we find that traveling in this way is as expensive as traveling by railroad would be at home, and of course consumes much more time. However, the climate here of almost perpetual summer is very favorable to "camping out," so that travelers are often seen camping by the roadside for the night to save hotel expense. There are many rivers along the seacoast that have no bridges, so that ferry fees are an item of expense. New South Wales is about as large as Texas and Missouri combined, but only has a little over one million inhabitants; so you can see that the country is not very thickly settled, for about half of the people are found in the cities. The chief occupation has been mining and grazing, so that farming is many years behind time. I was surprised to see some farmers reaping grain with the sickle, though I am told that our American self-binders are used in the more prosperous farming districts. There is more religious indifference here than in the United States as a rule, I believe. As I have not had the pleasure of meeting with the three branches of Saints in Victoria I am not able to speak concerning them, but I believe the work in Australia is slowly but steadily advancing, even under the present financial crisis. We have some good talent among the local officers in Australia who would make good missionaries if their hands were loosed so they could devote their time to the work. However, if the church has any young men to send us who are willing to travel in a new country and cheerfully endure the many little trials incident to missionary life, we would be pleased to see them come, for not one hundredth part of this mission has yet been touched by the standard bearers of the restored gospel.

I am striving to advance the work to the best of my ability, and Bro. Gomer Wells is trying to discharge his duty as district president and missionary.

The Tuncurry and Nambucca branches have meetinghouses, but the city branches, Wallsend, Hamilton, and Sydney, meet in private houses; and church houses are sadly needed in the cities, especially in Sydney, where nearly half of the population of the colony is. The branch in Sydney numbers twenty-eight, and though they are poor I firmly believe that if they will start a "building fund" and steadily add to it by each one sacrificing a few pennies or shillings as they may be able each week, they will in time be able to purchase a lot to build a mission chapel on. However, the success of the work depends entirely on the Saints living humble and united and prayerfully doing their whole duty. If branch officers retain the "key" to success which is "humility and diligence" in their God-given duties, good results are sure to obtain. A good lot could be purchased in Sydney that would be suitable for a mission chapel or hall for about six hundred dollars. If the small sums of money that some of the Saints sometimes spend for useless things could only be saved for the church, what an increase there would be in the funds of the church! And much more good could be accomplished; and I believe that some of the Saints could have homes by thus exercising wisdom, instead of being homeless as is often the case. "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," and we are simply stewards over that portion which may come into our care and must give an account of our stewardship to the great Ruler of all; and "if ye have not been faithful in that which is another's, who will commit to your trust the true riches [of eternal life]."—Luke 16: 9-12. If we are unwise and unfaithful in the things of this world, how can we expect our heavenly Father to commit to our care that which is of infinitely more value? "He that is faithful in that which is least, is faithful also in much."

Saints, let us humbly do the many little duties that daily come in our pathway, so that we may grow in usefulness in the great latter-day work.

JOHN KALER.

We were going up the Nambucca River to fill a private house appointment at Bro. Robert Ballard's. The way was strange, so Robert was riding ahead, while following meekly was old Cyrus, conveying Elder Kaler and myself in the gospel cart.

"Do you see that log—that big log lying across the stream over there?" said Robert. "Well, if that old log could talk, it would tell a good one. Once upon a time a certain genial-faced missionary and wife were going for a visit. The path being rough and hilly and the day warm, the wife lagged a little. The elder had come to this log on which they were to cross the stream. A pole stuck out from the bank at convenient distance, so this two hundred and ten pounds of humanity stopped to rest and wait for the better half to catch up (who was no small half either). When she came puffing to his side he was leaning forward, comfortably, with both arms on the pole, watching a school of little fishes in the clear water beneath. She, too, leaned over to look and rest, saying at the same time, 'Joseph, what if this pole would br—'; but an interruption occurred, and splash went both husband and wife headlong into four or five feet of water!"

At this point in the narrative, we drew reins, and stopped to take a good laugh, and have a view of this historic spot. Let the reader imagine the scramble in the water and how they "pulled for the shore," which happily was very close. I surmise that earlier youthful experiences in the water rendered the wife drown-proof. Bro. Joseph can tell better than I how they reached Bro. Buckman's and how ludicrous it was trying to get dry clothing on (which didn't fit) while their own was drying by a fire. Should this meet his eye I desire to remind him that not alone by such funny incidents as the above are he and wife remembered in Australia.

GOMER WELLS.

ARGENT'S HILL, N. S. W.

BELL, Iowa, July 10.

Editors Herald:—The work in the Galland's Grove district is moving along very nicely, all things considered. As a rule the branches are having good meetings and enjoying the gifts and blessings of the Holy Spirit. Local laborers are manifesting more than usual zeal and are therefore holding some good meetings, which we trust if continued, will result in much good. Brethren, let us seek to hold sweet communion with God and Christ through the medium of the Spirit, which may be secured by the prayer of faith and a godly walk and conversation. Let us seek to prepare ourselves as the servants of Christ to correctly preach the gospel of peace; "yea, seek ye out of the best books words of wisdom; seek learning even by study, and also by faith."

Saints do not all see eye to eye as yet, though we are steadily advancing toward that point. However, until Christ shall come to reign as King of kings and Lord of lords and restore universal peace it will be necessary for each and all to be patient, kind, loving, good, and charitable one toward the other that the most possible good may be accomplished. We have been differently reared and perhaps, therefore, do not all understand the requirements of the gospel as perfectly as we should; nevertheless, if we find ourselves doing that which to us seems to be permissible under the gospel rule but learn by observation, or in any other way for that matter, that we are giving offense to brethren and sisters in Christ, we should be willing to forego all pleasure thus afforded us for their sakes. Not that we should leave a truth to follow an error, but that we by self-denial might be able to encourage and save others. Paul wrote for the benefit of the Saints, "But if thy brother be grieved with thy meat, now walkest thou not charitably. Destroy not him with thy meat, for whom Christ died. Let not then your good be evil spoken of: for the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."—Rom. 14: 15-17.

"And through thy knowledge shall the weak brother perish, for whom Christ died? But when ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ. Wherefore, if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend."—1 Cor. 8: 11-13.

Therefore we ought to be willing to shun everything of an evil tendency and do only those things which we know to be lawful and right. "Abstain from all appearance of evil." "The gospel of Christ is" indeed "the power of God unto salvation," but it was founded and established in love; therefore no true child of God is moved by envy or spite, nor do they seek revenge unless it be by returning good for evil.

"Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head."—Rom. 12: 20.

There have been at least five baptized in our district since the General Conference. Saints in the northern part of the district where the writer has labored of late were kind indeed, and as a rule are doing well.

Letters from Bro. C. J. Hunt show that while he was at Panama of late with a gospel tent the Saints nobly assisted him, and that the Saints at Defiance were standing by him in the same way. Bro. F. M. Weld is with him and working nicely. Bro. J. F. McDowell was to be with them at Defiance a few days before going north to Spirit Lake and Superior.

Through administration while at General Conference I received a great blessing from the Lord who was kind enough to remove, to a large extent, a pain from my left side which has troubled me for a number of years. However, I am yet suffering much from my old army-contracted disease, catarrh, which has settled in my throat and has for the last ten days disqualified me for preaching. However, by the help of the Lord I trust to be able to renew labor soon. In bonds,

BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 13.

Editors Herald:—All requisite efforts on my part, to reach my newly appointed field of labor, save the exertion necessary to be on board the Campana on or before the hour of eleven a. m., Saturday, July 14, have been made. She sails at high tide two p. m. It is a monstrous vessel; every berth is engaged, and there are not a few. One is astonished on gazing on the grandeur of her interior; the style, facilities, etc. Sagacity and money bringeth mighty events to pass, but those destitute of requisite righteousness are ineffective to secure eternal life. In coming from Chicago the ruins of six hundred cars to which the torch was applied during the excitements attendant upon the strike, the greater part of which (as I was informed) were filled with merchandize, presented an appalling spectacle indeed; nothing remained save the iron found on each car and piles of ashes, and whether done by strikers or non-strikers, is most diabolical, and should meet with summary punishment. The pros and cons relative to the procedure of the President in ordering troops to protect life and property, are a little peculiar, to say the least, leaving the uninitiated, the non-political economists, etc., in a quandary, with inability to decide whether mobocracy or law is to be supreme, and whether any official in the face of distressing exigences possesses to any extent discretionary power. And is not a basis given for the belief that between the verity of given and accepted laws and absolute rights and liberty there exists a visible antagonism? If not, the former is a farce and the latter legitimate, in which event the advocacy of the supremacy of law is a grave mistake. But if the supremacy of law be a necessity, then it follows as a natural sequence that the advocacy of absolute rights and liberty, is not only wrong, but a dangerous theory, whether under human or divine law. Surely the explicit teaching on law found in Doctrine and Covenants section 85 was given to meet an exigency. Are we profiting thereby?

Peace and success to every department of Christ's Church.

In gospel bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

UNIONTOWN, Ind., July 11.

Editors Herald:—I arrived here this morning. I preached last Monday night at a schoolhouse about ten miles distant, assisted by my father. He goes to Leavenworth and Fredonia. I am feeling quite well both spiritually and bodily. People seem to be thirsting for the pure gospel of Christ. There is so much sham, pride, and worldliness, in the popular churches and among their clergy that the people are beginning to doubt their divinity. They go to the popular minister desiring to be fed the bread of life and are offered theological stones. The Brighamites are doing their utmost to gain a foothold in this country. I have found several copies of Roberts' "Successor in the presidency of the church" and "Mormon Doctrine," in the houses of the people in this vicinity. Some that were about to accept the Reorganization have read B. H. Roberts' book and are confused. I have talked with some of them and showed the law in Doctrine and Covenants.

Your brother,

JAMES M. BAGGERLY.

OTO, Iowa, July 12.

Editors Herald:—The work of God is moving with speed and manifest spiritual power in this part of the great harvest field. After one of the most spiritual, profitable, and enjoyable conferences ever held in this district, I prepared for tent work, beginning at Smithland, Iowa, the 9th ult. and continuing till the 1st of this month. From beginning to end discouragements were thrown in the way from various sources, but during the whole time God was with us to a marked degree in our ministrations. The weather was very unpropitious, the tent being blown down four times and somewhat damaged each time. The apparent results of our labors there were as seen by us, the baptism of two and a decision formed by several more that they would, in the near future, engage in the work, besides putting to silence every opposition and removing mountains of prejudice; many inviting us to return, saying they had been made to rejoice in the services, and believed we preached the pure gospel of Christ. Saints and friends did nobly in caring for the temporal wants, some at quite a sacrifice of their personal conveniences. We were aided in ministration of the word and in music by Bro. George Montague, Hubert and Oscar Case, and Mrs. Etta Townley and Maude Peasley. May God repay all who rendered any assistance, for to him be all the praise for the good accomplished.

After spending a few days visiting home ones and caring for the sick, I came to Oto, where we now are, associated with Bro. George Montague and Mark Jensen. The interest is gradually increasing, although the "hirelings" are busy inviting the people not to go to our services, for fear they may be converted. Several have felt the liberty of the gospel in freeing their minds from the thought that they were yet under the law of bondage, the covenant made at Mount Sinai, and others from the deceptive spirit that comes to the people causing them to think they are something when they are nothing—modernly termed sanctification, but not what is the result of truth; for from what I am told those who obtain it must, in order to get it, tell what is not so that it may be so; that is, when they know they have received nothing, say they have, so that they may receive. Instead of this being sanctification "by the truth," it is the receipt of something (?) by an untruth. God remove such delusions from the people.

Your brother,

J. F. MINTUN.

SAVOY, Pa., July 10.

Editors Herald:—I am here trying to get the truth before the people, but meet with much opposition in a way that is hard to overcome. The reverends will not come out where I can get at them, but will do all they can against the work in a sly way. I arrived here in time to attend the picnic, but was not invited to speak; and when I saw that the Methodist pastor who had in charge was treating me with silent contempt, I told one of my friends that I was an old soldier and would like to speak a few minutes. He met and asked the reverend if I could have the privilege of speaking, and was told that I could not unless I would deny Joseph Smith, and the Book of Mormon. I got the schoolhouse and spoke on Sunday morning, challenging him for discussion, but he did not think it best to debate.

I baptized one, a nice boy of fifteen past, in the afternoon, and blessed two children, and went to the Methodist minister's meeting in the evening. He told the people that Paul baptized in a room and he supposed they carried water in to him. I think from what I hear that we are gaining friends. I will preach again next Sunday evening, and then expect to go to Greenwood, New York, about fifty miles north.

It is pretty hard to reach the people in this State. Sr. Alice Hoskins is the only one of our faith in this place. The work in Wyoming Valley is gaining some, but not as much as it would if there was a united effort put forth by the Saints living there. Bro. William H. Kelley came to my assistance and some good was done. We have many things to meet in this mission of a very discouraging nature, but God the righteous Judge will reward all in his time. The faithful Saints need not be discouraged. Let each one do all within his power to sow the good seed and leave God to give the increase, so living that the Spirit will be with them and all then will be well. In bonds,

H. H. ROBINSON.

PANAMA, Iowa, July 2.

Editors Herald:—In your issue of June 20, 1894, you published a letter from the pen of Bro. Charles E. Butterworth, which was very personal, very misleading, and entirely uncalled for on his part, and makes it my duty to enter into an explanation.

In the article referred, the sentence, "In the town of P., Bro. W. and Sr. Y. were playing for the dance," should read "In the town of Panama, Bro. Wilder and Sr. Young were playing for the dance."

I was brought up with a "fiddle" in my hands, and from the age of thirteen I have played for dances and public balls. In 1875 I joined the church in Colorado, and on my return to Iowa found it necessary to advertise myself to the effect that under no circumstances would I play for public balls. After being quite zealous in the church for several years I allowed myself to be again drawn into the ballroom, pleading poverty as an excuse. I wish to state here that the moment I again commenced ballroom playing I felt my mind darkened, and spiritual light and strength was taken from me. I tried to quiet my conscience with the thought that my faith in the work was as strong as ever, but in 1888 I resolved to never draw another bow in the ballroom, and was greatly blessed by a return of spiritual strength and a strong interest in the cause of truth. I have often been offered eight to ten dollars for one night's work, but no amount of money would have an influence over me.

Music is my profession, I teach bands and orchestras, hold conventions, and give concerts. The incident referred to by Bro. Butterworth happened as follows: At the close of my concert in Panama the seats were quickly moved, and a set was formed before I was aware of what they were doing. My wife ran away with my violin and I attempted to hide, but was caught and in a good-humored way forced back to the hall which joins the Wilder hotel, kept by my wife, and thinking the easiest way was the best, I played for one set, Sr. Cora Young playing an organ accompaniment. The set was made up of boarders from the hotel and some of my best concert members. I was vexed with the occurrence, but did not dream I would be called to account for it. In the same manner I should account for an incident which happened at Dow City last Saturday evening. I am teaching the brass band at that place, and we gave an ice cream festival to raise money for the band. About eight in the evening, when not many guests were at the tables, we played a waltz movement in the hall. As the band struck up, several young persons formed in couples and went gliding down the long hall on either side of the tables. Should I, or had I the right to stop the band and order the waltzing discontinued? I do not wish to, and will not knowingly bring reproach on the church. In the incident mentioned by Bro. Butterworth I felt sorry, but did not think it of sufficient consequence to make a public confession, but will do so now, asking forgiveness of branch, (Boyer Valley), district (Galland's Grove), and the general church; and will say that I will try hard that nothing like that occurs again. The incident of last Saturday evening, I do not consider I had any control over.

Now, I demand of Bro. Charles E. Butterworth a published apology to me in this paper, that he did wrong in making my action public before coming to me with the matter, and finding out the circumstances. If he had asked me to make a public confession of the matter, in branch or conference, I would cheerfully have made it. I have entertained Bro. B. and other elders many, many times in Panama, throwing my doors open for weeks at a time, upholding the cause to the disadvantage of my business, and have never yet seen a word in the Herald from one of those elders referring to myself or wife in any manner. That fact we never thought of, for we do not court publicity; but at the first opportunity one of them has, he pays me by publishing me as a wrongdoer. Bro. Butterworth has caused much hard feelings and trouble in his own branch by preaching personal sermons, and he is greatly injuring the work by so doing.

I have many faults to overcome and when I step aside, I wish my brethren to kindly point out my mistakes before they are published in the church organ. The reference to other parties by Bro. Butterworth may be as uncalled for as was this case of mine. In justice to myself and friends I ask the publication of this letter of explanation, having no ill feeling toward any, and wishing to do my duty.

Yours in gospel bonds,

CLARENCE M. WILDER.

A SONG OF LIFE.

How sweet is life, how wondrous sweet

When free from sorrow, pain, and woe;
When sunny hours dispel the gloom,
And troubled tears no longer flow.

When rosy health pervades the frame,
And heaven's choice gifts we freely share;
With grateful hearts we'll praise thy name,
And thank thee for thy tender care.

At thy command the golden grain
Abundant springs from out the sod;
While beauteous flow'rets deck the plain,
And all bespeak the love of God.

Like sparkling dew to thirsty flowers,
Thy love refreshing, sweet doth fall;
It maketh glad life's golden hours,
And earth a paradise for all.

But many, Lord, need thee to bless
Their joyless lives so full of pain;
When troubles fiercely round them press,
O, bring the light of hope again.

And sing, ye mourners, praise the Lord,
Your life is but a fleeting day;
Then heaven shall be your rich reward
And God shall wipe your tears away.

TREAT-LAMBERT DISCUSSION.

WE give below the correspondence between Elders W. N. Littell and W. B. F. Treat of the Christian Church, and Bro. Joseph R. Lambert, in reference to discussion, without comment.

LAMONI, Iowa, May 9, 1894.

Editors Herald:—I herewith send you copy of correspondence between Elder Treat and myself. The communications are marked A. B. C. D. and E. in their proper order.

I am informed by Bro. I. P. Baggerly that it is being widely circulated in Indiana, that I have virtually backed down from a debate, and that I was so inconsistent as to require them to affirm inspirational claims for Alexander Campbell, etc., etc. So for this reason, and others, it might be well to publish, however, I of course leave this with you.

In bonds,

J. R. LAMBERT.

MUNCIE, Ind., July 27, 1893.

ELDER W. N. LITTELL:—

Dear Sir and Brother:—First. It is not necessary for me to come down at all unless the Mormons will sign a copy of propositions and rules and leave them in your hands.

Second. The propositions I send you are in accordance with your suggestions, except the fourth. I will not affirm the negative. The Mormons claim a continuation of miraculous spiritual gifts until the present time and are therefore logically compelled to lead in that proposition.

Third. As to the rules, I incline the simplest form I know, and have signed them. These rules, especially the one in regard to the inspection of authorities, must be signed by the man I debate with. Because it is simply equivalent to the cross-examination of witnesses in court, and is essential to a fair trial.

Prop. 3. The church of which I W. B. F. Treat am a member, basing its existence upon the authority of the Old and New Testament Scriptures, is the Church of Christ because it complies with all the organic laws of the new covenant in its teaching and practice.

Prop. 4. The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments teach that Miraculous Spiritual Gifts, such as healing, tongues, and prophecy, should continue till the end of time, and these are now present and exercised by that body of people styling themselves Latter Day Saints.

Rules.—The Mormon debater and his friends shall agree with Elder W. N. Littell and his friends in regard to all the preliminaries of the debate.

2. The debaters shall divide time equally, and be governed by the usual rules of debate.

3. All books or papers introduced by either party shall be open to be used by the other party during the hours of discussion at any time during the debate.

Signed. W. B. F. TREAT.

The signature of the Mormon debater at the close of these rules is imperative.

But my prediction is that no Mormon will debate with me.

W. B. F. TREAT.

LAMONI, Iowa, September 2, 1893.

ELDER W. N. LITTELL:—

Dear Sir:—Some time ago I received a communication from Elder Short which consists of propositions for the prospective debate at Plainville, with suggestions and statements thereon, all of which was sent to you by W. B. F. Treat. I should have replied long ago, but failed to learn the exact situation till very recently.

1. I object to the order in which the propositions are arranged. To ask us to begin by affirming the prophetic claims of Joseph Smith, followed by the Book of Mormon, (the most unpopular parts of our faith,) is hardly fair; especially when it is considered that the other propositions will call forth much which has an important bearing on these two.

2. It is hardly fair to ask us to affirm three propositions while you affirm but one. You are under the same obligations to affirm that Alexander Campbell was a properly authorized minister of Jesus Christ and that he taught the gospel as we find it recorded in the New Testament Scriptures that we are under to affirm the prophetic mission of Joseph Smith. Further: We have the same right to require you to affirm that the Bible contains all the revelation that God intended for man in all ages of the world that you have to require us to affirm what we believe concerning the Book of Mormon.

3. The wording of propositions by Elder Treat is faulty, especially numbers three and four. Proposition three contains an argument introduced by the word "because," which is altogether out of order. That which is a leading issue between us we are virtually asked to concede before the debate begins. This proposition is so worded as to keep the church of which Elder Treat is a member from any proper examination, and place us in the unenviable attitude of denying that a compliance with all the organic laws of the new covenant in teaching and practice, is any evidence that you are the Church of Christ. Please do not ask us to concede that you are the Church of Christ before the debate begins. I presume after writing this proposition Elder Treat felt quite safe in saying, "But my prediction is that no Mormon will debate with me."

Proposition 4 asks us to affirm that the spiritual gifts "are now present and exercised by that body of people styling themselves Latter Day Saints." There can be no object in this, so far as I can see, except to give our opponent the opportunity of catering to popular feeling for victory rather than truth. If the Bible teaches that all true believers are entitled to these gifts, and we do not have them in fact, it does not help your case in the least. You teach that water baptism is for the remission of sins. Now suppose that we call on you to prove that your sins are remitted through baptism, would you not fall back on the provision and promise of the word for proof? Very well, let us settle the whole question by the word of God. If God says the gifts of the Spirit belong to all true believers, then we believe, because of our confidence in the word, that all true believers enjoy them.

4. I have no objections to offer to your rules, and with the third one am much pleased. We wished to give and receive this same privilege in debate with Elder Clark Braden; but he would not permit it!

We shall claim the privilege of representing our own faith, and will not deny a proposition which is so worded as to require us to deny that which we believe. On separate sheets I offer that which we are willing to debate and that which is fair for both sides. Under your arrangement we would only be permitted to affirm the most unpopular parts of our faith, with nothing more than a meager opportunity of denying the faith and doctrine of your church.

Yours truly,

J. R. LAMBERT.

Proposition 1. The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is the Church of God in fact, and in doctrine and church organization is in harmony with the teachings of the New Testament Scriptures.

Aff. L. D. S.
Neg. Disciples.

Proposition 2. The Church of Christ (commonly called Campbellite Church) is the Church of God in fact, and in doctrine and church organization is in harmony with the teachings of the New Testament Scriptures.

Aff. Disciples.
Neg. L. D. S.

Proposition 3. The Book of Mormon is a true record which has been given to the world by the inspiration of the Almighty; and it contains a revelation of God's will to man.

Aff. L. D. S.
Neg. Disciples.

Proposition 4. The Bible contains all the revelation that God intended for his people in all ages of the world.

Aff. Disciples.
Neg. L. D. S.

Proposition 5. Joseph Smith, who was instrumental in the organization of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, was a truly inspired prophet of God; and the revelations which he gave to the world, and which were indorsed by the church during his lifetime are entitled to the same credence and confidence as the revelations of the prophets and apostles of the Bible.

Aff. L. D. S.
Neg. Disciples.

Proposition 6. Alexander Campbell was a properly authorized minister of Jesus Christ, and he preached the gospel as we find it recorded in the New Testament Scriptures.

Aff. Disciples.
Neg. L. D. S.

The above propositions cover the ground and are fair to both sides. Indeed, the first two cover the ground sufficiently well, and we are willing to debate them alone. However, if you insist upon it, we will debate the six, but it will require a great deal of time.

Please let me hear from you as soon as possible.

J. R. LAMBERT.

MUNCIE, Ind., Sept. 25, 1893.

ELDER W. N. LITTELL:—

Dear Sir and Brother:—I regret that at this late date Elder Lambert should come in with a new list of propositions. But I am not disappointed. Postponement is one way of evading a discussion.

My understanding was that the four subjects of debate were agreed upon by yourself and Elder Short, and that he was the challenging party. For this reason I was cautious to introduce no new matter into the propositions. But I required the Mormons to affirm the third proposition because it is their faith, not ours, which is involved in that issue. They claim miraculous gifts; we deny that they have them. A child can see that they are logically in the affirmative here.

Again, it is weak and evasive for them to complain about an unequal number of propositions. They admit our Bible, our apostles and prophets. Here we are agreed. We deny their Bible, their apostles and prophets. Here they affirm. How can the debate take any other shape?

We have agreed to affirm that broad church proposition simply to give them an opportunity to attack us at any point. That fourth proposition allows them to make war on anything we teach. What more could they ask?

But Mr. Lambert complains because we bring the "unpopular" points of their doctrine to the front. Indeed, that is just what we are coming for. Does he suppose we mean child's play and to allow him an easy place in which to fall?

How can he expect an intelligent man to waste time on his so-called six propositions? Even if it were not a new arrangement neither side could do themselves justice in trying to debate that list. Because the first and second propositions, as arranged by Mr. Lambert, cover all possible ground of dispute between us. Thus making tautological excrescences out of the remaining four. To debate these four propositions after debating his firstly and secondly would be a performance as brilliant as for a farmer to hitch to his machine and cut the stubble after he had harvested the crop.

Another evidence of insincerity lies in the fact that he attempts to place Alexander Campbell's relation to the "Disciples" on a parity with Joseph Smith's relation to the Latter Day Saints. If every book that Alexander Campbell ever dictated were blotted out of existence it would not affect us in the least. But if the books furnished by Joseph Smith were destroyed, Mormonism soul, body, and spirit would be annihilated. Joseph Smith is a religious authority in Mormonism; Alexander Campbell has no religious authority among the Disciples. No fair-minded man expects us to affirm anything about Alexander Campbell as a foundation for faith. We build on Christ as revealed through the apostles* and prophets of the Bible only. Mormons claim to build on Christ as revealed through Joseph Smith and others. The difference is as great as the difference between heaven and hell.

Why did not Mr. Lambert sign the Rule preventing a clandestine use of authorities? Why did he not honor the original agreement by putting (if he thought better) the original propositions into clearer shape, so that there might be a discussion? Why does he send a new list (which is in itself a burlesque on all debate) looking to a long preparatory correspondence?

To sum it all up, what has Elder Lambert done? He has postponed the matter beyond all reasonable limit. He has ignored Elder Short and made of him a mere cipher. New and tautological propositions are introduced. The essential rule is not signed. And every evidence furnished leads to an evasion of the debate.

In conclusion we submit that we have a right to demand the original propositions in the order first named by Elders Short and Littell. And that in these they affirm their positive teaching in regard to miraculous and prophetic gifts. We have been ready from the first offer of debate. The points at issue satisfy us. And we can but pronounce the temporizing course of Elder Lambert as an effort to evade the discussion as originally agreed upon. If Elder Short has no influence let it be so understood.

Respectfully,
W. B. F. TREAT.

LAMONI, Iowa, October 25, 1893.

W. N. LITTELL:—

Dear Sir:—The communication of Elder Treat, bearing date of September 25, was placed in my hands last eve. The first rule, furnished by Elder Treat himself, reads as follows: "The Mormon debater and his friends shall agree with Elder W. N. Littell and his friends in regard to all the preliminaries of debate;" and yet, I have not one word from you! Am I to consider you as a "mere cipher" in this arrangement?

I am sorry that Elder Treat should so far forget the principle of Christian charity, and that decorum which honor among men demands, as to permit him to refuse to believe my statement concerning a simple matter of fact, and then proceed to impugn my motives without any better grounds than the condition of his own heart. The statement found right at the beginning of my former letter says: "I should have replied long ago, but failed to learn the exact situation till very recently." I felt the delay more keenly, perhaps, than anyone else, but it was unavoidable.

But let us see with what degree of grace such imputation comes from the pen of Elder Treat. From the time he wrote his first communication till my reply there passed away just one month and six days. From the time of writing my reply till the time when his second communication was penned was just twenty-five days, and it was not received by me for nearly one month after it was written! Understand me, I am not impugning the motive of Elder Treat or of anyone else.

Elder Short informs me that he and you utterly failed to agree upon a single proposition, much less upon the four, and that it was distinctly understood between him and you that the disputants "would fix up and agree upon their own propositions." When Elder Short voluntarily surrendered our side of the matter into my hands, he said not one word about any propositions agreed upon between him and you. Nor does Elder Treat say any such thing in his first communication, but refers to the propositions in the following manner: "The propositions I send you are in accordance with your suggestions except the fourth," etc.

When I formulated the six propositions contained in my first communication, I did not do it because I thought it was necessary to have so many; but presuming that you were anxious to debate the questions you sent me, as formulated by Elder Treat, I simply made the attempt to properly cover the real issues between the two bodies, and at the same time respect, as far as possible, the peculiar arrangement of Elder Treat. Elder Treat, in his anxiety to prove me to be inconsistent and unfair, ignores the plain statements of my letter. This is what I said after submitting the propositions:—

"The above propositions cover the ground and are fair to both sides. Indeed the first two cover the ground sufficiently well, and we are willing to debate them alone. However, if you insist upon it, we will debate the six, but it will require a great deal of time."

Now if Elder Treat wanted to have a fair debate, and in view of the statements of his last letter, why did he not reject the four propositions which he says are "tautological excrescences," and accept the two which, as he says, "cover all possible ground of dispute between us"? I am certainly grateful for the statements of Elder Treat concerning these two propositions; and I now kindly invite him to meet us on these two alone. Will he do it?

Elder Treat thinks he sees "another evidence of insincerity . . . in the fact that" I attempt "to place Alexander Campbell's relation to the Disciples on a parity with Joseph Smith's relation to the Latter Day Saints." One little thing robs this statement of all its force; viz., it is not true. Did I ask Elder Treat to affirm that Alexander Campbell "was a truly inspired prophet of God"? Did I ask him to affirm anything concerning "the revelations which he gave to the world"? He certainly knows that I made no such demands. I simply and only wrote what I supposed to properly represent the belief of the Christian Church. But, we are told, "Alexander Campbell has no religious authority among the Disciples." Indeed! Is a greater than Alexander Campbell here? If Campbell had no proper authority to minister in the ordinances of the gospel and organize a new church, then it is evident that no other minister of the Christian Church had or has such authority; and if it is unsafe to affirm that "he preached the gospel as we find it recorded in the New Testament Scriptures," it is equally unsafe to affirm that any other minister of the same church did or does now preach the gospel of Jesus Christ, "as we find it recorded in the New Testament Scriptures." Had it not been for the work of Campbell and others, where would we find to-day "the church of which I, W. B. F. Treat, am a member"? It is just as consistent to talk about the "Mormon" Church without any Joseph Smith; the Church of England without any Henry the Eighth; or the Methodist Church without any John Wesley, as it is to talk of the Campbellite Church without any Alexander Campbell. Nor can Elder Treat justly complain against my use of the word "Campbellite," inasmuch as he has made free use of the terms "Mormon" and "Mormonism." If it be said these terms were used by way of designation, I reply, I have used the term "Campbellite" for precisely the same purpose; though, so far as the argument is concerned, it makes no difference at all.

If "Alexander Campbell has no religious authority among the Disciples," why is it that your own authors and ministers present him as one of your "most distinguished elders;" as the man "so far as human instrumentality was concerned," "who conceived, organized, and made successful the present reformation"? And that which he presented to the world is called by your own men the "restored gospel." This concession of Elder Treat is virtually a complete surrender of the leading issue between us; for where there is no authority acknowledged of God, there can be no church or kingdom of God.

Elder Treat thinks it "weak and evasive" for us "to complain about an unequal number of propositions. They admit our Bible, our apostles and prophets. Here we are agreed. We deny their Bible their apostles and prophets," etc.

We admit the Bible, not "our Bible," as the standard of evidence, but deny the correctness of your interpretation. We do not admit that you have any apostles or prophets of Jesus Christ in "the church of which I, W. B. F. Treat, am a member." If we admit the Bible, is it not just as much ours as it is yours? And if you deny what Elder Treat calls "our Bible," you deny the one which we admit, the one which he also calls your Bible. The issue is not on the authority or genuineness of the Bible, but on the interpretation of the Bible. We affirm that we are in harmony with the Bible in all parts of our faith, you deny. You affirm that you are in harmony with the Bible in all parts of your faith, and we deny. That is the true issue. Every effort to get away from it by raising a great cloud of dust is simply an effort to evade the real issue; and the one who indulges in this kind of work finds no trouble in impugning the motive and making false and groundless charges against another. Elder Treat not only insists that we shall affirm our position and teaching in regard to miraculous and prophetic gifts, (which we are and have been perfectly willing to do,) but he wants us to affirm in his own particular way, virtually refusing to be committed by the testimony of God's word by demanding the proof that we as a people are in possession of these gifts. At the same time he is shrewd enough to ignore my criticism on this proposition which came to me from his pen, not from the pen of Elder Short. Why does he ignore, or virtually refuse, to affirm that "The Bible contains all the revelation that God intended for his people in all ages of the world"? Do not your people believe that just as much as we believe in the gifts and powers of the gospel? Why, then, will you not affirm it? In the light of these facts I ask, Who is it that is evasive and unfair?

My criticism on what Elder Treat is pleased to call "that broad church proposition," he does not notice. I call his attention to my expressed reasons for not accepting the proposition. Does Elder Treat think we are simple enough to deny that his church "is the Church of Christ, because it complies with all the organic laws of the New Covenant in its teaching and practice"? That is, we would be made to say that although said church is in harmony with the gospel of the New Testament, yet she is not the Church of Christ! It is a great pity that we have to look out for traps and pitfalls when dealing with professed ministers of the gospel, but let me remind the good elder that we are not yet caught.

Elder Treat represents me as complaining because he brings the unpopular parts of our doctrine "to the front." Here is another perversion of what I stated. Here is what I stated: "Under your arrangement, we would only be permitted to affirm the most unpopular parts of our faith, with nothing more than a meager opportunity of denying the faith and doctrine of your church."

"We build on Christ as revealed through the apostles and prophets of the Bible," says Elder Treat. There! now! the whole thing is settled before the debate begins! But the question is now a pertinent one, is Elder Treat a "religious authority among the disciples"? If not, what does his statement amount to? This wonderful assertion covers the very point at issue between us. We deny that you are built on Jesus Christ as that term is plainly used in the gospel of the New Testament. This is the very thing we want you to prove, not barely assert. So far as our faith is concerned, we too claim to be built on Jesus Christ, and him only.

The reasons why I did not sign Elder Treat's favorite rule, or the rules as a whole, are (1) because I am not "the Mormon debater," and (2) because I doubted whether Elder Treat would be willing to hold a fair debate with us; and, so far, my doubts prove to have been well founded. Did I not say enough when I stated, "I have no objections to offer to your rules, and with the third one am much pleased"? When we shall have agreed upon the propositions to be discussed, I will select a man to meet Elder Treat, and, I think, there will be no trouble about his signing the rules you submit.

In reply to Elder Treat's summary, I have not postponed the matter at all, but hastened it as fast as practicable. Instead of ignoring Elder Short and making of him "a mere cipher," I took time to learn from his own pen what he had done before I wrote in reply to Elder Treat. I introduced new propositions, because none had been agreed upon by Elder Short and you. What Elder Treat denominates "tautological propositions" are not more so than some of the ones which he himself has submitted, and which he insists upon debating. What evidently hurts is because I ask Elder Treat to affirm the faith of his own church fully and properly. More than this, I signified our preference to debate the first two propositions alone, and plainly stated my conviction that they covered the issues between us sufficiently well. I heartily indorsed his pet rule, and offered no objections to any of them. How could I be expected to sign them when he himself stipulated that they must be signed by "the Mormon debater"?

But what has Elder Treat done? He has virtually refused to affirm anything that is fair, or just, concerning his own church or faith; but, infidel-like, he proposes to put the whole burden on us while he is left free to indulge in negative quibbles as his taste and desire may lead him, thus catering to the supposed ignorance and prejudices of the people. He has impugned my motive without a single good cause, thus furnishing us with the evidence of what we might expect of him should opportunity permit. He has tried to make that appear dark which was fully explained, by ignoring the plain statements of my letter. He has misrepresented me at almost every step, and sometimes in a most shameful manner. He has entirely failed to notice my criticisms made against the propositions he submitted, numbers 3 and 4. One thing he has done, however, (that is, if his assertions are to be trusted,) he has shown by his own statement that Alexander Campbell and his coworkers in the late reformation were without proper authority either from God, the Bible, or any other source.

In conclusion, when Elder Treat becomes willing to affirm, properly, the faith and doctrine of the church of which he is a member, and deny the faith and doctrine of the church of which I am a member, there will be no trouble about debate.

Respectfully,

J. R. LAMBERT.

Not receiving any reply to the above communication, from Elder Littell, from October 25, till January 1, I wrote him again; but up to the present date have received no reply. I therefore give the correspondence to the public without any comment from my pen.

J. R. LAMBERT.

LAMONI, Ia., May 9, 1894.

LAMONI, Iowa, January 25, 1894.

W. N. LITTELL:—

Dear Sir:—My last communication to you, dated October 25, 1893, is yet unanswered. Have you said all that you wish to say concerning the proposed debate at Plainville?

Of course I read in the papers of the sad misfortune of Elder Treat; but it seems to me that common courtesy demanded a reply, or a word of explanation from you within three months time.

Yours truly,

J. R. LAMBERT.

Corbett vice president, John Shields was sustained secretary, and E. K. Evans Bishop's agent. Resolutions of thanks were tendered to Garafraxa Saints for kind hospitality shown at this conference. Preaching by Elders W. W. Blair, E. K. Evans, and R. C. Evans. Adjourned to meet with St. Thomas branch on the last Saturday and Sunday in October.

RESOLUTION AND PRESENTATION ADDRESS.

To the Presidents and brethren in conference assembled:—Resolved that whereas Bro. R. C. Evans has decided to resign the district presidency, we the officers and members of this conference tender him our heartfelt thanks for the efficient service he has rendered to this district, not only during the present term of office dating from the last conference, but for the number of years in which he has so ably and honorably acquitted himself in office at our service. First as vice president of the district from October, 1885, to June, 1887, since which time, with the exception of one year, he has with credit to himself, and profit to the district, and honor to God, constantly served for the benefit of all. For at the beginning of this service our district did not number seven hundred, while at present all told it reaches nearly double that number; consequently we believe our brother to be worthy of our thanks.

JOHN SHIELDS,
DANIEL MCGREGOR.

To Elder R. C. Evans, retiring president of the London district; Dear Brother:—As it has pleased our heavenly Father to appoint a high priest for our district, and as we believe the time has come according to the revelations going before for you to be released from the burden and care of district presidency, and as we believe you ever desire to serve in harmony with the will of God; while we regret having to part with you as district president, we pray the blessing and guidance of the divine Master may be still yours to enjoy as in the past, and as a slight token of our appreciation of your past service and the esteem in which we still hold you, we on behalf of the London district present to you this cane (just here President Lake presented the cane in the name of and for the Saints of the district with the statement, that although the recipient would not need it now for a support to his body we hope that he might live to see that age when it might be a stay and a staff to lean on after years of toil and labor in the Master's cause,) and ask you to accept the same, not as a reward, but merely as a souvenir of love to the servant who has tried to do the Master's bidding. We do not intend it to take the place of the crown of righteousness laid up for the faithful, but pray your life may continue to be the life of the righteous and that your last end may be like his, even celestial glory.

Signed on behalf of the district,

JOHN H. LAKE,
JOHN SHIELDS.

GARAFRAXA, Ontario, July 2, 1894.

NODAWAY.

Met with the Sweet Home branch, June 16 and 17, 1894; M. P. Madison president, A. Leverton secretary pro tem. Ministry reporting: Elders H. Kemp, J. R. Evans, W. Powell, R. K. Ross, J. Gunsolley, J. Thomas, J. Ford, M. P. Madison; Priests A. Jensen, F. Hill, A. Haley; Deacons J. Powell, J. Nelson. Reports of branches: Sweet Home 50, gain 2; Platt 114, gain 13; Rising Hope 13, loss 1. R. K. Ross, Bishop's agent, reported and report accepted. All district officers were sustained in their respective positions. Preaching by Elders G. H. Hilliard, H. Kemp, and J. R. Evans. Conference adjourned to meet at Ross Grove, October 13 and 14.

INDEPENDENCE.

Quarterly conference convened at Armstrong, Kansas, June 9. As President R. May was absent, Bro. Luff was requested to occupy the chair; J. Cole Moxon secretary. Bro. Luff stated that for the past three months there was a total gain of membership of twenty-three in the district. Ministry reporting: Elders R. May, J. Luff, J. H. Wells, J. A. Robinson, G. Hicklin, C. G. Gould, J. S. Madden, J. Johnson, R. J. Parker, J. Anderson, A. Allen, J. Emmett, J. W. Brackenbury, C. DePuy, J. H. Stratton, T. Newton, A. H. Mills, G. Harrington, B. J. Scott, and A. L. Newton. It was here remarked that all those working in the district, and most especially the priests and elders, should always send in written reports so that the people would know who are the active workers, and in case of need, know for whom to send. The Bishop's agent's and district treasurer's reports were read and referred to an auditing committee: Bishop's agent's report: On hand last report $140.08; received $657.71; paid out, $762.05; on hand $35.74. District treasurer's report: Balance on hand $2.31; received from conference $4.61; expenses for stamps, printing, etc., $2.85; balance $4.07. These reports were found correct. It was resolved that President R. May's recommendation which read as follows, be adopted: "I would suggest that the committee on hall in Kansas City be discontinued for the present, till sufficient funds are at hand to justify us in taking that step. I have been so advised by the Bishop. Next year, possibly after General Conference, the church will feel justified in taking hold of the matter again." Bro. Lewis McCarty was recommended by the Holden branch for ordination to the office of priest, and Bro. Wm. H. Pease was recommended by the Armstrong branch for ordination to the office of elder. The ordination of Bro. McCarty, was referred to Bro. J. H. Wells. The request for the ordination of Bro. Pease was granted, and arrangements were made for the same. The names of Geo. E. Harrington and Wallace N. Robinson were presented by Bro. Luff for ordination to the office of elder. Arrangements for their ordinations were made. The election of officers resulted as follows: Bro. R. May president, Bro. J. H. Wells vice president, Bro. J. Cole Moxon secretary and treasurer. Preaching by Elders S. J. Madden, J. H. Wells, and Joseph Luff. Adjourned to meet at Independence, Missouri, the second Saturday and Sunday in September.

Sunday School Associations.

GALLAND'S GROVE.

Met at Deloit, Iowa, June 2, 1894, at 2:30 p. m.; assistant superintendent, R. Wight, in the chair. Reports from the following schools were read: North Coon: Average attendance 23; balance in treasury $1.64; average collections 67 cents. Dow City: Average attendance 42; average collections 41 cents; balance in treasury $3.22. Galland's Grove: Enrollment 46. Masor's Grove: Average attendance 60; average collection 21 cents; in treasury $2.41. Harlan: Average attendance 29; average collection 30 cents; amount in treasury $4.56. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: R. Wight superintendent, Wm. McKim assistant superintendent, Dora Young secretary, Nellie Rudd assistant secretary, Lora Duckett treasurer, James Pearsall chorister, with the privilege of selecting his organist. District secretary reported $9.91 in treasury. After a short business session the convention adjourned until 7:30 p. m., when a pleasant programme, consisting of music, essays, songs, and recitations by the little ones, etc., was rendered. The district secretary requests each Sunday school secretary in the district to procure blanks at the Herald Office for quarterly reports. Original reports are usually haphazard and deficient.

Zion's Hope: Enrollment 38, average attendance 24, classes 3, officers 5, Hopes taken 15, collected for association 93 cents. Since last report five schools have been organized and two received. Inland school received the banner. Resolved that hereafter the school sending in the best general report from the teachers' class record receives the banner. Adjourned to meet at Whittemore, October, 1894, the day previous to conference.

Miscellaneous Department.

TWO-DAY MEETINGS.

A two-day meeting will be held at Glenwood, Iowa, in the Fremont district, on July 28 and 29. Will the Saints of other branches please take notice. Come up to the help of the work in this branch and give the Saints of this place all the encouragement you can. Elders D. Hougas, H. Kemp, T. A. Hougas, G. Kemp, and others are expected to attend. By order of president of district,

D. HOUGAS.

There will be a grove meeting at Frenchtown, Michigan, July 29, and one at Amadore August 5. It is expected that Bro. W. W. Blair will be in attendance. Everybody bring your baskets prepared for basket dinner.

R. E. GRANT, Dis. Pres.

NOTICES.

The following branches will send me a corrected list of all the names now on their rolls, also when any are removed by letter, give name and when vote was taken for such removal, also when any are received by letter and from what branch. As our district record is in a bad condition I hope that each branch secretary will see to this matter promptly. Errors have got on the book through the dividing of the district, or imperfect records, or in some other way. The following branches are imperfect: Detroit, Five Lakes, Bay Port, Vassar, Applegate, Buel Center. Also no report from following branches: Reese, Juniata, Lebanon, Maple Valley, Black River, Delaware, Siegel. Please make reports at once.

Respectfully,

A. E. HICKS, Dist. Sec.

Hicks, Sanilac county, Michigan.

BORN.

STITES.—In Nebraska, August 29, 1891, to Mr. Alvin and Sr. Melissa Stites, a son, and named Samuel John. Blessed September 25, 1892, at Nebraska City, by Elders J. Armstrong and R. C. Elvin.

EVERETT.—To Bro. — and Sr. Anna Everett, near Union, Nebraska, June 16, 1892, a son, and named George Leslie. Blessed September 25, 1892, at Nebraska City, by Elders R. C. Elvin and J. Armstrong.

EVERETT.—To Bro. — and Sr. Anna Everett, near Union, Nebraska, March 10, 1894, a daughter, and named Vivian Anna. Blessed May 6, 1894, at Nebraska City, by Elders P. C. Peterson and J. Armstrong.

MABON.—At Randalia, Iowa, January 26, 1893, to Mr. Deming and Mrs. Jennie Mabon, a son, and named Glen Clifford. Blessed at Brush Creek, June 5, 1894, by J. S. Roth.

HINES.—To Bro. W. S. and Sr. Clara D. Hines, near Nebraska City, Nebraska, May 17, 1894, a daughter, and named Jennett Alice. Blessed July 1, 1894, at Nebraska City, by Elders J. Armstrong and P. C. Peterson.

CHAPMAN.—At St. Joseph, Missouri, February 14, 1894, to J. W. and Harriet Chapman, a daughter. Under the name of Eva Irene she was blessed at the church July 8, 1894, by Elders J. M. Terry and Wm. Lewis.

NEWBERRY.—At Lamoni, Iowa, May 6, 1894, to Bro. Alma M. and Sr. Stella P. Newberry, a son, and named Joseph Orval. Blessed July 8, 1894, at home, by Elders Robert M. Elvin and Samuel Ackerly.

MARRIED.

HEIDE—HUFFAKER.—At the home of the bride's parents, Silver City, Iowa, July 4, 1894, Sr. Olive Huffaker to Elder J. B. Heide, of Hamburg, Iowa, Elder D. Hougas officiating.

DIED.

PETERSON.—Near South Riverside, California, January 1, 1894, Bro. Olean Peterson. Deceased was born April 18, 1816, at Chalma, Sweden. Bro. Peterson accepted the gospel in the old country, and afterwards removed to Utah. Becoming dissatisfied with some things in the old church, he was baptized into the Reorganization at San Bernardino, California, March 27, 1867, by William Anderson. Our brother passed through many trials and hardships for his faith and died strong in the faith of the latter-day work. There being no Saints near, no services were held at the funeral, but funeral sermon was preached June 3, 1894, at Saints' chapel near Garden Grove, California, by Elder W. P. Pickering. A large congregation of Saints and friends were present.

COOK.—On the baseball ground at Lamoni, Iowa, July 2, 1894, Mr. George H. Cook. He was born September 3, 1858, at New Providence, Indiana. Married at Lamoni, Iowa, October 4, 1887, to Sr. Beva Booth. He leaves a wife and two children. Was not a church member, but of late was talking of uniting. Sermon at Brick church, July 3, at two p. m., by Elder Robt. M. Elvin; text, Hosea 13:14, assisted by Elder Hugh N. Snively. Interment in Rose Hill cemetery.

WALTERS.—At Helena, Iowa, Frank Ignas Walters, aged 86 years. He was born at Rudenhite, France, July 8, 1808; baptized March 29, 1885, at Helena, Iowa, by Elder J. S. Roth. Funeral sermon by Elder George Shimmel.

LOCKLING.—Amy C., daughter of O. W. and Charlotte Lockling, was born February 18, 1868, Raglan township, Iowa; baptized September 29, 1879, at Galland's Grove, Iowa; passed away July 5, 1894. Funeral sermon by Elder A. M. Fyrando at Saints' chapel, Magnolia, Iowa. A short time before her departure she exclaimed, "There is a heaven for me somewhere, mother." She was faithful, loving, and kind, beloved of all. Respect was shown by the large concourse of friends that were bathed in tears, both to sustain the loss of so noble an ornament in society. May God grant his aid to wounded hearts, and that we may "walk by faith and not by sight."

GRANGE.—At Ogden, Utah, December 27, 1893, Joseph Grange. Bro. Grange was born February 24, 1818, at Fellback, Yorkshire, England, where he joined the church under Brigham Young, leaving all that were dear to him on earth to follow that leader. In 1880, June 10, he was baptized by Bro. Joseph Luff into the Reorganized Church and lived a consistent life until his death. He suffered much the last few years of his life. He left quite a family to mourn their loss. Funeral services from his residence in Ogden, December 29, 1893, by Elder Hyrum O. Smith.

SPRAGUE.—Emma Josephine Sprague, infant daughter of Bro. Frederick and Sr. Amelia Sprague, was born January 18, 1893, died July 5, 1894. Services at residence July 6, by Elder G. M. L. Whitman.

SCOTT.—At Des Moines, Iowa, May 20, 1894, Sr. Jennie Scott. She was born at Pleasant Mount, Miller county, Missouri, August 9, 1844. She was baptized at Glenwood, Iowa, about fifteen years ago. Two of her sons were taken sick with what proved to be the smallpox and were taken to the pest house. Sr. Scott with true motherly devotion insisted on attending them as nurse. They recovered, but she took the disease, and after twenty-five days of intense suffering fell asleep in Jesus. A husband, four sons, one daughter and an aged mother, who lives in Barton county, Kansas, mourn their loss.

JONES.—In Fremont county, Iowa, July 2, 1894, Mr. Thompkins Jones, aged 83 years. He was the father of Sr. L. C. Donaldson.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

July 15.—Congressman Springer has introduced a bill in the House of Representatives which provides for a National Board of Arbitration with power to summon and require attendance of witnesses and make investigation of causes of dispute, on request of parties involved; that when its arbitration is mutually agreed to, its decision shall be final. It provides for the conditional action of the Board by the request of Governors, State Legislatures, or by tender of the President. The Board is to be a part of the Department of Justice and is to be appointed by the President and Commissioner of Labor. It was referred to the committee on labor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 14.—Notwithstanding the presence of 1,000 soldiers scattered through the railroad yards on Oakland Mole, the strikers succeeded in frequently interrupting traffic at that point. Two hundred strikers stopped an Oakland suburban train and attempted to pull the fireman from his cab but were repulsed by the police, and 600 of them finally caused a freight train to be abandoned. Two other trains were stalled, but the officials finally succeeded in moving nearly all local passenger trains on time. The leader of the strikers has been arrested.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 15.—An attempt was made to-day to blow up a Northern Pacific passenger train between St. Cloud and Sauk Rapids, this State. Dynamite or nitro-glycerine was placed on the track. The explosion did not have the intended effect.

Strike notes, July 16.—San Francisco advices state that railroads backed by military force continue to maintain a fairly satisfactory passenger service in Northern California, but freight traffic is not yet maintained. Mobs continue to waylay non-union men and to interfere with the making up of trains, but are driven away by troops. At Sacramento several hundred men returned to work in the railroad shops. They were compelled to sign an agreement to withdraw from the American Railway Union.

Switchmen of the Vandalia road who returned to work this afternoon quit again to-night. They refused to switch freight to be hauled by nonunion trainmen. The Big Four has suffered a second tie-up on its Cairo division.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 16.—The most daring and disastrous riot ever known in labor troubles in this section occurred this afternoon at Pratt City. White striking miners 500 strong and armed went to Mine No. 3 and awaited the coming of the Negroes from the mine. Waiting until fifty or sixty had appeared they fired upon them and pursued them, picking them off. Ten Negroes were killed and many wounded. One deputy sheriff was killed and another fatally wounded.

CORONA, Ala., July 16.—The Lockhart coal mines near here were partly demolished to-day by dynamite exploded simultaneously at two points. John Kelly, a miner, and a number of mules were killed. The mines were very badly wrecked. The deed is charged to strikers.

The Northern Pacific railroad bridge over the Coolie River at Grand Forks, North Dakota, was burned last night. The strikers are becoming desperate; they attacked an employee and injured him so badly that he will die.

Officials of the Pullman Company state their willingness to start their shops, and that grievances of employees will be investigated.

Troops are still needed to prevent obstruction of trains in Idaho.

A wreck occurred at Battle Creek, Michigan, on the Chicago and Grand Trunk road, by which one person was killed and fourteen injured. The wreck was caused by the premeditated loosening of a rail.

July 18.—Eugene V. Debs, George W. Howard, Sylvester Keliher, and L. W. Rogers, president, vice president, secretary, and director of the American Railway Union were committed to the Cook county jail at Chicago to-day to answer the charge of contempt of court in disregarding court injunctions, etc. Bail was offered for the prisoners but was refused.

A mob of train wreckers assaulted and drove off the crew of a Chicago and Calumet oil train in East Chicago to-day. After crippling the engine and removing the signal lights at the rear of the train they turned a switch so that any train approaching on the Wabash tracks would collide with it. A Wabash train running at the rate of twenty miles an hour crashed into the oil train with such force that twenty cars were thrown into the ditch and the engine was badly wrecked. Company G. Fourth Regiment Indiana State Guards arrived and a charge was ordered, to which the wreckers responded with a volley of stones and several pistol shots. The troops then fired and the wreckers fled. It is thought some were wounded. The troops patrolled the tracks during the night, being assaulted at times with stones thrown in the darkness, to which they responded by firing in the direction whence the missiles came.

Soldiers shot men caught pouring oil on a railroad trestle near Livingston, Montana. Passengers have been detained three weeks in some portions of the Northwest.

HELENA, Mont., July 17.—A Northern Pacific engine was wrecked a few miles east of Missoula this morning by the explosion of twenty pounds of dynamite, which had been placed on the railroad track and was touched off with a railroad torpedo. The pilot and headlight of the engine were blown off, rods bent, and the windows of the cab and baggage car wrecked. The engineer was blown from his seat, but no one was seriously hurt.

About midnight last night a railroad bridge over a creek three miles west of Missoula was found in flames, making the third within twenty miles of the city within forty-eight hours.

WEST OAKLAND, Cal., July 17.—An attempt was made last night to blow up the local train connecting with the eight o'clock boat from San Francisco. A cartridge of giant powder was placed on the track. It did some damage to the engine, but happily resulted in no injury to either the crew or the passengers.

Strikers attacked a workman at the Chicago stock yards on the 17th and severely beat him and continued to pursue him, when he fired upon them, killing one of their number.

A switchman derailed a Baltimore and Ohio passenger train near Western avenue, Chicago, on the 17th and was caught in the act.

A mob of 500 men armed with picks and crowbars attempted to tear up the Michigan Central track five miles east of Hammond, Indiana, on the night of Monday, July 16, and were removing fish plates when a train arrived, and being ordered to stop was fired upon as it increased its speed. Troops were sent to Hammond with instructions to fire without orders upon those destroying property.

Railroad men were brutally beaten by strikers and the Pennsylvania limited train was stoned at Fort Wayne, Indiana, on the 17th.

Another railroad bridge was burned near Waukomis Station, Oklahoma on the Rock Island.

United States regulars and some of the State militia were withdrawn from Chicago on the 18th.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 17.—During an outing of the troops stationed in this city a caisson of Battery F, Second Artillery U. S. A. carrying 68 rounds of shrapnel, an equal number of steel shells, and 136 cartridges—over 500 pounds of cannon powder exploded. Four soldiers were killed, three badly injured, eight less seriously wounded, eight citizens hurt, and nine horses killed. The houses near by were riddled and shattered by the thickly flying shell fragments.

Miners in the vicinity of Ladd, Princeton, and Spring Valley, Illinois, admit their defeat. The English-speaking portion are willing to return to work but have been outvoted or overawed by the foreign element. The streets of Spring Valley have presented an unusual appearance. During the night, the rioters whose homes had not been searched decided to give up what goods they had yet on hand from the looted stores and carried them into the street. The sidewalks at many places were literally filled with dress goods, hardware, boots, shoes, and furniture. The work of gathering up the goods was left to two companies of militia and several teamsters. From many of the articles the store marks were removed, rendering identification impossible. Large quantities of these were presented to the Sisters of Charity and the deserving poor.

The United States cruiser, Minneapolis, built by Cramp and Sons, maintained a speed of 25.42 miles an hour, proving herself the fastest war vessel afloat, and obtaining for the builders a bonus of $400,000 for extra speed. The cost of the vessel was $2,690,000.

Forest fires are raging in many portions of Northern Minnesota. Many villages are threatened.

Mr. Gladstone has declined to visit America because of ill health.

President Cleveland has signed the Utah State bill.

Rain has fallen in portions of the drought stricken regions of Illinois. Drought continues in Minnesota and Iowa.

Greenbush, a village in the pine belt of New Jersey has been destroyed by a forest fire. Bass River village came near sharing the same fate. Other towns are threatened and men are fighting the flames.

Troubles exist between ranchmen and Indians in Western Oklahoma. An uprising of the Cheyennes and Arapahoes is feared.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 14.—Earthquake shocks continue at irregular intervals. The inhabitants of the city have been driven to a condition of abject fear by the repeated disturbances, and in all the places which have felt the earthquake a state of panic exists. Houses have been deserted and the people are clustered in the parks, gardens, and fields. All are suffering hardships, and the exposure is especially severe on the sick and persons injured by the falling debris of houses wrecked by the early shocks. The technical commission is engaged in demolishing all unsafe buildings. The Sea of Marmora seems to be the center of the disturbances. A wing of the military schools fell Friday, killing three persons and wounding twenty-two. Many persons have been extricated from ruins in various parts of the city. The shocks were severe at Adabazar. One hundred and thirty houses were wrecked there and twenty-two persons lost their lives.

LONDON, July 14.—Both China and Japan have accepted in a friendly spirit the offer of the Earl of Kimberly of the good offices of the British Government to bring about a settlement of the disputes regarding Corea. Twelve representatives of both China and Japan will shortly confer with the Earl of Kimberly with the view of settling upon the basis of amicable arrangement.

TIENTSIN, July 13.—Japan requires the unconditional acceptance by Corea of twenty-five demands, including concessions for railways, telegraphs, mines, and customs, and organic revolution in the public service.

EDINBURG, July 14.—Two earthquake shocks awoke the inhabitants of Comrie, Perthshire, yesterday evening. The shocks extended from north to south.

BERLIN, July 14.—The Centrist party is furious at the Bundesrath's rejection of the Reichstag bill to repeal the anti-Jesuit law and threatens the government with all kinds of retaliation at the next session of the Reichstag. The Catholic Congress at its sessions in August will decide upon the general attitude of the Centrist party in view of the action just taken by the Bundesrath.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 15.—There were reported in this city yesterday 218 new cases of cholera and sixty-nine deaths from the disease. An order has been issued for the closing Sundays and fête days of all wine shops.

The physicians and authorities here are seriously alarmed by the spread of the cholera. Elaborate sanitary precautions have been taken to prevent the further spread of the disease.

The metropolitan offered public prayers at the Cathedral to-day asking that the scourge be staid.

VIENNA, July 15.—The Pester Lloyd publishes a dispatch from Warsaw, that the proposed autumn maneuvers of the Russian army near Smolensk have been abandoned. The dispatch adds that the abandonment of the maneuvers was due to a discovery recently made of mines that were intended to blow up the buildings which would have been occupied as the headquarters of the Czar. A number of Nihilists have been arrested connected with the plot.

TACOMA, Wash., July 14.—Charles T. Uhlman of this city returned to-day from China and says the newspapers of Canton do not tell the whole truth about the number of deaths resulting from cholera. Chinamen informed Uhlman 40,000 had died of the plague in Canton.

COLON, July 14.—Advices received here to-day from Corn Island, the spot which is said to have been so much coveted by England, say that a serious encounter has taken place between the British subjects resident on the island and the Nicaraguan troops.

The British, it is added, defeated the Nicaraguan soldiers, and caused the Governor of Corn Island to fly to the forest for refuge. The British it also appears, seized upon the Nicaraguan Government offices and upon the Nicaraguan flags.

This so enraged the natives that they sought for and obtained arms, and succeeded in restoring the Governor. Several were wounded on both sides in the encounters which have taken place. Martial law has been proclaimed at Corn Island.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 15.—A cloudburst occurred at Lead Hill, Arkansas, yesterday. A stream running through the town was overflowed and a wide scope of territory inundated. Houses, fences, and timber were washed away. The Tatum roller mill was swept from its foundation and completely wrecked. A number of persons were drowned. All the stores along the creek were flooded and their goods damaged or destroyed.

NEW YORK, July 15.—A forest fire started at the plains, about one mile southwest of West Creek, New Jersey, yesterday, and at noon it was three miles west of Barnegat and was traveling in a northwest direction. Thousands of acres of timber land have been burned over and several houses destroyed and the damage cannot be estimated. When the fire crossed the main road west of Barnegat its front was three miles wide. The wind changed to-night to the westward and the side fires were slowly progressing towards Barnegat. The atmosphere was filled with smoke. Buildings near Absecon were burned and four tenement houses at Doughty's Mills were destroyed. Four other fires are burning in Galloway township, and another big fire which started this morning at Elwood, was within a mile of Egg Harbor City to-night, destroying vineyards and threatening farm dwellings. There has been no rain in this section for four weeks and the woods are as dry as tinder. Several hundred men are out setting fire to save dwellings, and many have moved their furniture to the open fields.

MCKEESPORT, Pa., July 14.—At a mass-meeting of the employees of the National Tube Works this afternoon, by a vote of 738 to 313, it was decided to continue the strike until the company shall accede to the demands of the men. An effort will be made to resume operation in the tube works Monday morning, and fears are entertained that such action on the part of the company will result in another outbreak and riot. The announcement of the vote was received with tremendous applause. The works are under guard of 100 deputies. Upon promise of protection the firemen of the company, who have heretofore steadfastly refused to return to work and without whose assistance operations could not be resumed, went into the mill to-day and lighted the fires.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 14.—The remnants of Kelly's industrial army, which arrived here last night, were arrested and sentenced to-day en masse to fifteen days in the workhouse. More are expected and will be treated in the same way.

CAIRO, Ill., July 18.—Two distinct shocks of earthquake were felt here this morning at 7:18 o'clock. Buildings swayed and windows rattled but no damage was done.

FULTON, Ky., July 18.—Three violent shocks of earthquake startled the people here between 6:30 and 7:10 this morning. The vibrations were from north to south and the shocks were sufficient to make buildings swing like a pendulum. Clocks were stopped, dishes rattled on the shelves, and pictures fell from the walls.

Memphis and St. Louis report the same shocks of earthquake.

The sub committee, on women suffrage of the New York State constitutional convention has decided to report in favor of the plan to submit to the people the question, "Shall the word male be stricken from the constitution?"

BERLIN, July 18.—Five cases of genuine cholera have been discovered in or near Dantzic since July 13. Two of the afflicted persons, both children, have died. Several cases of cholera are reported at Schildlitz and Neufahrwasser, the latter a village of West Prussia, and it is reported that a woman has died of cholera at Helder, in north Holland.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 17.—The cholera epidemic is assuming alarming proportions. The present visitation is of a much more intense and more fatal character than were the outbreaks of the two previous years. The disease has even penetrated into Finland, which has hitherto been absolutely free from cholera. The hospitals are full and the prison is being converted into a hospital. The Sanitary Commission will henceforth sit permanently.

Anti-anarchist legislation continues to advance in the French Chamber of Deputies despite the obstructions of socialists.

CHICAGO, July 20.—The Civic Federation, at a meeting held at the Commerce club last night, started a movement which its members hope will tend toward a solution of the labor question and will prevent strikes and other troubles of the kind. The plan is to hold a congress of representatives of employers and employees, similar to the Parliament of Religions held in this city last year. The representatives of these bodies will confer and give the results of their experiences and adopt some measures of conciliation which will avert strikes in the future. After several speeches a resolution was passed empowering the chair to appoint a committee of seven to take into consideration the advisability of such a conference and report to the Executive committee of the federation in one week, and if the report is favorable the committee will then be authorized to call the conference. It is proposed that the representatives of the employers and employees of England and Europe and America shall be invited to the conference.

Federal troops have been withdrawn from Chicago on the advice of Mayor Hopkins. Many leading citizens doubt the advisability of the step as there is yet danger of outbreaks and collisions.

CINCINNATI, O., July 19.—The engines in the Cincinnati, Hamilton, and Dayton yards were stoned last night, as well as those in the Big Four yards. When the night crews were relieved to-day arrangements were made for a force of detectives to protect them. Both of these roads have new men in their yards.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., July 19.—A great storm of rain and electricity occurred in this vicinity this afternoon and has done incalculable good to the corn and pastures. It has broken one of the longest and severest droughts in the history of Central Illinois. Twenty-four hours of continuous rainfall would be no more than is actually demanded for the good of the farmer. Nearly all of the converter boxes of the electric light systems of the city were burned out by lightning.

SIoux CITY, Io., July 19.—A six weeks' drought was broken in this section by a heavy rain last night and to-day which came just in time to save the corn crop. The rain was general in Northern Nebraska and in twenty five counties in Northwest Iowa, and throughout all the part of South Dakota east of the Missouri River. From one inch to two inches of rain fell.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Mgr. Satolli, apostolic delegate, has rendered a decision of much importance not only to Catholics but to all temperance people, and has set the church in strong opposition to the liquor traffic. It reaffirms his first judgment sustaining the position of Bishop Watterson and says: "The liquor traffic, and especially as conducted here in the United States, is the source of much evil, hence the Bishop was acting within his rights in seeking to restrict it. Therefore the apostolic delegate sustains Bishop Watterson's action and approves of his circular and regulation concerning saloons and the expulsion of saloonkeepers from membership in Catholic societies."

The following appeal, signed by a hundred leading bankers, merchants, and manufacturers of this city, irrespective of party lines, has been sent to the Senate and House of Representatives at the National Capital: The whole country demands that Congress terminate the pending tariff legislation immediately. Failure to dispose of the question quickly will work incalculable loss and irreparable injury to financial and industrial interests.

TEMPLE LOT SUIT DECISION.

The decision of Judge Phillips, of the United States Circuit Court, Western District of Missouri, Kansas City, awarding title and possession of the Temple Lot to the Reorganized Church as the true successor of the original Church of Latter Day Saints organized April 6, 1830, and setting forth the position of the Utah Church and other factions as departures from the true faith, and without right to the name or property of the Original Church.

Published by the Reorganized Church. Valuable for reference, and general distribution.

In pamphlet form complete; price 15 cents each; two for 25 cents. Special prices on orders for ten or more.

Address orders to David Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa.

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

Every Latter Day Saint wants this work for study or for reference.

It is one of the first those interested in the work should read after receiving explanation of its character and import.

It is one of the three standard books of the word of God to the church.

THE LARGE TYPE EDITION

with shortened paragraphs is designed especially for aged people who do not readily read ordinary type.

Both editions are bound in various styles. See catalogue for description and prices.

THOSE WHO LIKE POETRY

will be pleased with a volume of Afterglow or Hesperis.

AFTERGLOW

is a book of Choice Selections from American and Foreign poets.

It is published in the interests of the Gospel Boat Fund of the South Sea Islands Mission. The book forms a rich collection of verse. It is handsomely bound and beautifully illustrated.

THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS

is the third of the authoritative standards of the church. It has an especial interest to Latter Day Saints as the word of God in modern times, containing divine instructions for the present dispensation. In two styles of binding.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

OBJECTIONS to the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants Answered and Refuted.

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Paper covers.....$ 25
Cloth..... 40

The author states and answers the leading criticisms made upon the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants that have been urged by opponents of the latter-day work since its inception.

In answering objections, other and general lines of defense are suggested.

The work is valuable, both as a specific vindication of the books named, and as a general defense of Christianity.

The chapters contain subheadings for ready reference. Indexed; 126 pages.

CONCORDANCE TO THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Paper covers, 32 pages..... 10

ABSTRACT of EVIDENCE TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

This work is an abstract of the sworn testimony of both Plaintiff's and Defendant's witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickites (a faction from the Original Church) for title to and possession of the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri. The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, and who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, and the testimony of members of the Hedrickite organization, is given; also the statements of said witnesses under cross-examination and recross-examination.

Evidence from the three standard books, and from the publications of the Original Church, and the Reorganized Church, the Hedrickite faction, and from those of the Utah Church, is presented in support of the claims of the Reorganized Church to be the successor of the Original Church, showing it to be the authorized and identical continuation of said Original Church and entitled to its property, while all other factions have departed from the Original Church in organization, in teaching, and in practice.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, three pamphlets, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

A valuable volume of evidence for ministry and laity; useful in refuting the many misrepresentations of the early church and its ministry and membership.

A limited edition has been published. Price, bound in law sheep (Counsel's argument in separate binding), $3.00.
Bound in cloth $2.50.

HESPERIS

contains the poetical numbers of Bro. David H. Smith. His verse is touched throughout by the inspiration of the latter-day work. His numbers are rich in spiritual tone and pathos. The book is beautifully bound and its entire mechanical work is excellent.

The Complete Catalogue is replete with valuable publications suitable for all classes.

Juvenile books, Sunday school scholars' and teachers' supplies, and works of value to members and ministry will be found in its list.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

MANUSCRIPT FOUND.

This is the notorious Manuscript Found, written by Rev. Solomon Spalding; a verified and certified copy of the original now in Oberlin College, Ohio, of which so much has been said and written in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief groundwork and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. The preface to the work contains an account of its coming to light, by which it can be traced back to its author—Solomon Spalding. The work, suppressed for years by enemies of the Latter Day Saints, is a complete refutation of the charge made that it is the basis from which the Book of Mormon was written.

PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD

THE APOSTASY, REFORMATION, AND RESTORATION.

By Elder Wm. H. Kelley. New, Revised, and Enlarged Edition. It contains 421 pages of closely written matter, with autograph and likeness of the Author, and is printed in good, readable type, with neat binding. The work is a library within itself; a marvel of trenchant criticism and logical deductions from historical facts; a key to the right understanding of the Bible and modern diverse systems of faith and worship. It discusses the issues of theology that are to the front to-day. It treats largely of Ministerial Authority as associated with the Melchisedek and Aaronic Priesthoods, and the Ideal Church of New Testament times is conspicuously set forth in striking contrast with the creeds and systems of church building since the days of the Apostles. Also the claims for the Restoration of the Gospel at a later day than the Apostolic age are critically examined in the light of prophecy and history, which is a subject of great moment to men of every faith. A historical resumé or brief is also inserted of the rise and development of the "apostate church," and an exegesis of the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the revelation of the "sealed book." Also the origin of modern churches and creeds, etc.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

CHRISTIAN SOCIALISM.

A. C. COURTICE, M. A., B. D.

SOCIALISM has been a vagrant term and has wandered about for a definition. It has outlived a great many changes in its constitution. Social physicians have doctored it with the intention of improving its health. Social surgeons have amputated portions of it while others have cut it all to pieces. But social agitators have revived and stimulated it, and still it lives. No less a person than the Prime Minister of England, Lord Salisbury, addressing the Lords of England, said, "Those Socialistic proposals are connected with great evils, and no one who is not absolutely blind will deny the existence of those evils. It is our duty to do all we can to find remedies: even if we are called Socialists for doing so, we shall be reconciled to it."

So the term "Socialist" need not start any apprehensions of dynamite, or burning mansions, or plundering mobs, but may simply designate for us a fairly conservative individual, who sets himself to remedy the great evils of the day.

There has always been an ideal Socialism, that is, a picturing of what society ought to be, and that has always taken more or less of its coloring from what society was when the picture was drawn. The first of these dreams is found in Plato's "Republic," and the last of them in Edward Bellamy's "Looking Backward;" the former being aristocratic, and the latter democratic, in picturing the Commonwealth. Between these two, there were many similar attempts, such as Cadet's "Voyage en Icarie," Thomas More's "Utopia," Campanella's "City of the Sun," and Lord Bacon's "New Atlantis;" all of these are ideal creations, with varying details presenting beautiful commonwealths, but their practical weakness lies in this, that they assume all the citizens to be wise and virtuous, high-spirited, and self-denying to the last degree, so that perfect institutions can rise up as if by magic, because all the human beings have been suddenly transformed into perfect angels. The process of being made perfect through suffering, or, of coming up through much tribulation, is cut short and made easy in dreamland.

While these dreams have remained unrealized, let no one say that they have been useless, for, doubtless, practical legislators and philanthropists have been consciously and unconsciously influenced by the ideals presented.

The work in the realm of Scientific Socialism is partly destructive and partly constructive. I do not think that it would take the scientific sociologist, or the scientific economist, long to make out a list of private and public enterprises that are practically and essentially anti-social, such as gambling, war, dealing in intoxicants or opiates, except medicinally, slavery, ignorance, pauperism, mammonism, lust. This gives a contract of destruction large enough for the practical reformer. But, we must build as we tear down, if we would move securely. In the constructive work of scientific Socialism, there is room for careful conclusions in the labor problem, the land problem, the question of companies with chartered privileges, the development of natural monopolies, and the formation of trusts and combines. We enter this realm, not only in the name of science, but, also, in the name of religion. Even if all the scientific questions were settled, the results would be bone and sinew without flesh and life; and it would need the powerful impulse of religion to make the conclusion spring into living realities. "When Christianity came, preaching the gospel to the poor, the ancient world was taken off its hinges," says Lange. Jesus of Nazareth laid the foundation of a new society, where the slave and the free man, the rich and the poor, the strong and the weak, were placed on a footing of equality; where mutual fellowship in an unselfish brotherhood, devotedness to the common cause from a principle of love, forms the moral basis of the social structure. The Christian Church has always had good teaching and noble examples in the way of liberating the oppressed, the nobility of labor, and the dignity of poverty. From the voluntary commonwealth in the society of Jerusalem, to the brethren of the common lot in pre-reformation times, down to the "poor men of Lyons" led by Peter Waldo, and to the Lollards of England, there has always been a movement giving a powerful impulse to Socialistic ideas.

Let the Church walk into this realm with Maurice, and speak out with him. "Competition," he says, "is put forth as the law of the universe. This is a lie. The time is come to declare it is a lie, by word and by deed."

Let the Church walk in with Charles Kingsley, and declare: "That self-interest is a law of human nature I know well. That it ought to be the root-law of human society I deny, unless society is to sink down again into a Roman Empire, a cage of wild beasts."

Or better still, and best of all, let us walk into this realm boldly with Christ, and learn and proclaim the story of Dives and Lazarus. There is a realm of "social right" that lies beyond the realm of "personal right." A man may stand on his personal rights until he robs his life of all usefulness and brotherliness and beauty. Dives had a right, a personal right, to fine linen and sumptuous fare. In the realm of personal right he was a landlord, an employer, an owner, and a gentleman. In the realm of social right he was a monster. Jesus fixed his thought on one bad characteristic of men. They love money. The love of money is brutalizing. Lovers of money become haters of men. He saw the flames toward which such inhumanity was rushing and he pictured such a reversal of conditions as turned earth's personal paradise into hell's social flames, and earth's personal pauperism into heaven's social paradise. But, neither Moses, nor the prophets, nor the parables of Jesus, nor the resurrection of one from the dead, seems to awaken the lovers of money and of ease. Yes—Christian Socialism is essential to personal and social salvation.—From the Methodist Magazine, Toronto, January.—Literary Digest.

What a book! Vast and wide as the world, rooted in the abysses of creation, and towering up beyond the blue secrets of heaven. Sunrise and sunset, promise and fulfillment, life and death, the whole drama of humanity, are in this book.—Heine, on the Bible.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit or Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Conscious State? The views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death; his preexistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

REBAPTISM.

A BROTHER writes us in regard to the subject of rebaptism in the following series of inquiries:—

When a person was baptized in childhood; and in after years becomes dissatisfied with such baptism, on the ground of not understanding sufficiently at the time of such baptism what it was for, and demands a rebaptism; what is the duty of the elder to whom request for such rebaptism is made?

The duty of such elder is to at once comply with the request of the person applying for rebaptism; if no other legal objection exists why the person so applying should not be received.

Such baptism is subject to the rules of the church obtaining in all other baptisms, and must be done by and with the knowledge and consent of the officers of the branch where performed, as in other cases.

Such rebaptism is in the nature of a renewal of the covenant; and when performed, the person baptized should be reconfirmed, and if an officer, reordained in a similar way as confirmed and ordained at the first.

We are not aware of any direct law upon the point enjoining a rebaptism; but we do see a nice propriety in it in such cases as the one mentioned in the question. Where persons once baptized and having a hope in Christ have suffered themselves to become careless and indifferent to church duties and hence to church influences, are again awakened to duty and the need of spiritual life, they may return to God, having an "advocate with the Father, even Jesus Christ the righteous," and can in repentance and humility obtain pardon from God; and it is a beautiful thought that they may say, "Father, I have sinned," let me renew my covenant with thee in the presence of thy people, the church. And, what law of righteousness, what rule of propriety is broken, or disregarded if such persons should renew the covenant in baptism of their own free will and accord.

At an early day of the Reorganization the Spirit spoke to us and said that while the church could not enjoin rebaptism on any legally baptized at the first, nevertheless whosoever would renew their covenant by baptism should receive an added portion of the Spirit given them at the first. This was verified by many who heard the promise and did renew their covenant, and testified that the promise was fulfilled to them. And in many instances since then the promise has been kept.

WHEN WILL CHRIST COME?

FREQUENTLY this question is asked of us, and sometimes our interrogators express surprise at the answer we give. With some the thought obtains that it is ours to seek and obtain information as to the day and hour when the second advent will take place; but, at the risk of being considered unspiritual or of darkened mind, we here confess, as in times past, we do not know; and lest others should think that by persistently pressing the question upon us we may be hereafter influenced to seek urgently and request knowledge, we will add, we do not expect to know either the day or the hour of Christ's second appearing until that appearing takes place.

Our reasons for making this statement and feeling thus are to us consistent and justifiable. In the first place, we are not inclined to the belief that Christ will ever, by revelation or otherwise, contradict the testimony he has already given concerning the matter, and by referring to the testimony found in the standard church books we are convinced that it is not for man to know beyond what may be gleaned from the "signs" which were said would precede his coming. The ascending Savior advised his apostles that it was not for them to know the times and the seasons which the Father had put in his own power, and his words were uttered in answer to a question involving the time of restoring the kingdom to Israel.

In Luke thirteenth chapter, will be found probably as near an approach to a definite time statement as anywhere; but after all therein to be found had been given by the Lord, he added the significant words "But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father." The last five verses of this chapter, following the words here given clearly indicate that his coming would be without specific notification as to day or time of day. It would seem worse than presumptuous in us, therefore, to ask for information that the Father had withheld from Christ and the angels.

By some it is held that the foregoing references only show lack of knowledge up to that time, without intimating that the facts as to day and hour never would be revealed, and they quote the words of the apostle found in 1 Thessalonians 5: 4, 5: "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of light," in evidence of probable enlightenment to follow. We admit that this scripture warrants a belief that saints will probably be in better condition at the time referred to than the world at large, because of having walked in the light and thus being found ready. They are not to be overtaken and surprised as a thief, because they have been looking and waiting in a condition of preparation for his coming at any time. But we see no authority therein for believing that the exact date and hour will be known before the event transpires.

Moreover we offer as divine confirmation of the position we have assumed the words of God given to the church in 1831 and found in paragraph two of section forty-nine Book of Doctrine and Covenants. Speaking of the Son of man as reigning in the heavens he adds:—

But will reign till he descends on the earth to put all enemies under his feet; which time is nigh at hand: I the Lord God have spoken it; but the hour and the day no man knoweth neither the angels in heaven, NOR SHALL THEY KNOW UNTIL HE COMES.

This leaves us without justification, as we believe, for asking more specific information upon the matter, and whatever may be the judgment of those whose anxiety leads to impatience, we cannot attempt to press beyond the line here drawn. Of one thing, however, we feel satisfied, and that is, that Christ will not come until the prophecies dealing with matters to transpire before his coming, have been fulfilled, one of which we find in Matthew 24: 14:—

And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come.

Upon this statement we have felt safe, thus far, in declaring all prophecies false which have announced dates in the past and which now provide for the second advent to occur during the present year. We unhesitatingly affirm that Christ will not come until the above scripture has been fulfilled and that that scripture will not have been fulfilled during the few months of the present year that remain. Farther than this we might extend the affirmation, but this is ample to cover the time set by those who predict that the coming fall season will see the end. "This gospel of the kingdom" will not have been preached in all the world by that time, and Christ will not appear till it has been so preached.

We can afford to believe all men to be false prophets rather than Christ and our unwillingness to admit him to have been a false prophet forbids any assent on our part to the claimed truth of prophecies now being made by devout religionists which bar out the possibility of his word being fulfilled within the time announced.

Only one thing concerns us seriously in this connection. We care but little as to just when Christ's coming shall occur. It is enough to know that divine wisdom will determine and regulate that. But we are anxious to know whether or not the opportunities at our hand and the means furnished are being embraced and used as becometh wise men and lovers of Jesus Christ, with a view to mirroring his character when he shall appear. In fewer words, shall we be ready? God's part of the arrangement will be perfect. What shall be said of our confidence therein? If it be complete, then we shall make ready at once, and remain so and thus experience no surprise, let the important event transpire when it may.

To us it seems wise that we should remain uninformed as to the day or hour. Knowledge on this particular point could be of no advantage to the soul that serves for love's sake. He who prepares himself against a certain fixed day and divides the hours, meanwhile, so as to reach the desired condition at the appointed hour, can scarcely be said to be ready always, and he who is not always ready does not fully honor the design of the command. If the desire for knowledge as to the day and hour of Christ's coming be to gratify a carnal curiosity, it is unsaintly. If it be with a view to preparation, it is unnecessary for he who is faithful now and so continues is always prepared. As those who serve from the heart, with love unfeigned, let the righteousness of our lives be a constant invitation to the Son of man to come. His time will then be ours.

WHEN I entered into the church and accepted an ordination to office, I thought it meant something.

This was said to us by a traveling elder, in actual service, and conscientiously doing all that lies in his power to magnify his calling; and the expression is reflective upon some who seem to be of the opinion that an ordination confers an honorary emolument leaving the individual to pursue his own personal ends, without the tribute of duty unto which he was ordained pressing on him for performance.

What does a call and an ordination mean to you my brother reader? It is worth thinking about.

WE notice in our exchanges, the Lamoni Patriot, and Chronicle, that certain gentlemen of our neighboring town, Kellerton, and of Lamoni, have located a Gold Cure at Lamoni.

It may strike the ordinary thinker, at first glance, that an institution for the cure of drunkenness and the tobacco habit should be located at Lamoni, the thought being that no such evils are prevalent there, and therefore the institution is not needed; but a second thought will suggest that while there may be at Lamoni, the fewest number of inebriates and veteran tobacco users, the selection of the place to plant a Cure is a most fitting one; the location, and the moral atmosphere surrounding it, the tone of public sentiment all going to favor the effort to make men free from evil habits.

Both of our exchanges give the roster of the organization.

The Chronicle says:—

The incorporators are: Dr. W. L. Gleason and G. W. Wilson, of Kellerton, D. F. Nicholson, I. W. Allender, A. M. Newberry, D. F. Lambert, A. P. Olsen, W. E. Meyers, and C. H. Barrows, of Lamoni. The officers are: A. P. Olsen, president; D. F. Lambert, vice president; I. W. Allender, secretary and treasurer; Dr. Gleason, medical director.

The object of the association is stated to be:—

To treat for the cure of the liquor, cocaine, and other narcotic habits; also all chronic diseases.

It is well; the cure of the soul and the cure of the body, where the spirit within man is, or has been weak enough to permit the body to become the victim of the disease habits named, may be more successfully undertaken with such environments as found at Lamoni than at many another place. The town is noted for its temperance tone, its uncompromising hostility to the saloon, or its equivalent, its outspoken and unyielding tenacity of purpose in preventing the camel of drunkard making to get his nose into the municipal tent; hence, the suggestion of its fitness for the treatment of those unfortunates who have been victims to the habit but desire to be free was easy. A place where sobriety dwells, where the unclean thing is neither seen or smelt, and where there are none of the accessories with which tippling surrounds itself to attract and hold attention, either seen or known. A place where the drunkard, the loafer, and the vicious disturber of the peace has no encouragement, or toleration; where the men one meets, the scenes one witnesses, the language one hears are suggestive of sober purposes in this life with a view to the life to come; such a place as this is a very suitable one to aid men to become free from habits destructive of manhood and such a place it has been the effort of the church people to make Lamoni.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND RIGHT.

THE action of President Cleveland in ordering the Regular troops of the United States to Chicago, and elsewhere to aid in suppressing rioting and lawlessness attendant upon the late strike, has been and is commented upon and severely condemned by many. It is clear, however, that the action of the President, tardy as it seemed to be, was timely and effective; and that but for it much greater loss of life and property would have occurred. The question of his right to send United States' troops into States, and to care for the safety of people and their property, is in the nature of the tenure and duties of his office well nigh indisputable; it is summed up briefly by an able lawyer thus:—

I have looked into this matter as a lawyer, and my judgment is that the President has gone about this business as a lawyer. He has considered his ground, become acquainted with his authority and powers, and then gone to exercise them in a righteous cause and for the good of the general public. He has not exceeded his authority one whit; on the contrary, he has not as yet exhausted it. If the federal troops are not sufficient for this emergency the state militia is at his command. The President can swear the militia of the various states into the service of the United States and then send them to Chicago or any other point where their mobilization may become necessary. The constitution is broad enough in this case, and the President is intrenched upon it.

Joseph Smith was by the instinctive deductions of common sense a fairly good judge of what was lawful; and he gave the church to understand quite clearly that the authority of the United States' government was supreme within the American commonwealth. That for the protection of the people in their rights, Congress and the executives of the government were clothed with full and extraordinary powers.

It was believed by him that the President had the right of authority to interfere between the authorities of the State of Missouri and the Saints whom those authorities were aiding mob violence to persecute and drive from the State, for the repression of the former and the protecting of the latter.

It may be that the views of Joseph

Smith regarding the duties and powers of Congress and the chief magistrate resulted from the revelations given to the church upon duties of the membership to the country and government; for these clearly teach the supremacy of the law, and the duty of the lawmaking and the law executing forces chosen by the people to conserve the interests, welfare, and safety of the whole. The church was charged to importune, (present their grievances and ask for redress,) at the feet of the Judge, the Governor, the President, and Congress, after that to God.

The order to ask for redress of any judge, tribunal, or executive officer carries with it the inference that the one so invoked has the right and could properly exercise the power to so redress.

In the late action of President Cleveland, there was in the condition of affairs at different places a crisis of grave necessity. For the chief executive to refuse to take notice of this crisis, or to hesitate to act would have been criminal.

He must act and that promptly, or the long patient suffering people outside of the corporations and labor associations directly involved in the strike, would have been made the prey of lawlessness and violence, such as could not for one moment be tolerated by any sane and solid minded American citizen. We certainly commend President Cleveland for the courage and promptness with which he acted. Had President Van Buren, and other occupants of the White House years ago, exercised the right clearly invested in the chief magistrate and protected the Saints as citizens as should have been done, it is almost safe to assert that a very different condition of affairs might now be prevailing with the church.

The United States troops represented the whole government and in the rightful discharge of duty, protected the interests of the whole community directly, strikers and the corporations against which they struck, included indirectly.

It does not signify what extremists of either class of politicians, whether Republican, Democratic, Populist, or the undefined coming fourth party may formulate for or against the action of President Cleveland; the fact remains that he did act, and from that action quiet and peace resulted, and comparative safety to persons and property was insured. It is reasonable to believe that President Cleveland, himself a good lawyer, consulting with his advisers as good lawyers as the State has, did not assume to decide upon and pursue a course in so grave a crisis, until the situation, the need for the interference of Federal authority, and the right to make such interference, had been considered and agreed to.

Hence, we more readily commend the action, and believe it to have been not only a necessity, but correct in principle.

THE De Kalb county Herald, published at Maysville, Missouri, for July 19 makes reference to the reunion to be held there this next month in the following fashion:—

The Latter Day Saints will hold their annual reunion and camp meeting at Harvey's grove next month. A number of learned and eloquent speakers will be present to address the people, and an attendance will hurt no one, whether of that particular belief or not. They teach the Scriptures and however moral our community may be, a little more practice of the precepts as they will be taught will do no harm at least.

Paper sent us by Bro. C. P. Faul.

THOSE who read Elder B. H. Roberts' (of Utah) book on Organization, Reorganization, and Succession, are recommended to read the following upon the Utah philosophy that the statements of living witnesses are better than recorded facts:—

Editors Herald:—I send you the following account given by an ear witness to the election of Brigham Young to the Presidency of the church, by the Twelve at Winter Quarters:—

"My father-in-law, Jonathan Browning, and I were invited by Orson Hyde up to his camp; it was the house of Richard Bentley; and we three, Mr. Bentley, my father-in-law, and myself occupied a room adjoining the one in which the Twelve had assembled in council. The partition being open we could hear and even see all that was going on.

"The meeting was opened by prayer, after which Brigham Young introduced the subject of being chosen as Joseph's successor, claiming, as I recollect, that the Lord had made it known to him that he should occupy that position. Orson Pratt followed him and said, 'Bro. Brigham, you or any other one of the Twelve who take that position are usurpers. Joseph Smith conferred the authority or keys of the kingdom on the Twelve, you being president, to bear off the gospel to the nations of the earth.' He continued in that strain until ordered to sit down by Brigham Young, who gave him a severe tongue lashing, intimating that he was on the road to apostasy, etc. Benson and the others of the Twelve present, except Orson Hyde who remained quiet, spoke in favor of the appointment. Pratt spoke two or three times against the appointment, but when asked by Brigham if he would vote for him, Pratt remarked, 'Bro. Brigham, if you say so, I will.' Brigham replied, 'Well, I say so.' Pratt voted for him, but remarked that he 'was of the same opinion still.' He reiterated the remark to me in Salt Lake City, some years after. To the best of my recollection Ezra T. Benson was the man who nominated Brigham.

JOHN GALLIHER, Sen."

Mr. Galliher's experience in Utah theology has had a tendency to sour him against religion; but he still has a warm place in his heart for Joseph Smith, the Martyr, who, he says, had more honor and humanity in one little finger than was in Brigham Young's body. He also stated that he heard Joseph say that if Brigham got to lead the church he would lead it to hell.

We had a tilt with the Brighamites at Hagerman this spring, on the successorship.

It lasted six nights and we felt favored of the Lord in the work. Elders Levi Wilson and E. E. Sherman, and applicant for baptism Myron Durfee, and the writer, endeavoring to show them by the books the folly of their positions and direct them back to the pleasanter paths.

In bonds,

S. D. CONDIT.

MALTA, Idaho, June 30, 1894.

Bro. Condit's father was one of those who settled in Western Iowa, and refused to continue in fellowship with that work that made President B. Young, of the Twelve president of the church.

The testimony of John Galliher is significant just now.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. W. T. BOZARTH, from St. Louis, Missouri, July 17:—

We are in the tent; Bro. Jones, my wife, and I, and are having nice congregations, good attention, and interest. Have been here three weeks and shall stay as long as good can be done. We have reached more outsiders here in this time than both could in the city in the ordinary way in a whole year. We are enjoying fine liberty in preaching, and Bro. Jones is called a "perpetual talking machine."

Bro. M. F. Gowell, Jonesport, Maine, July 17:—

It was most gratifying to note in our two-day meeting held at Moose Neck (South Addison) 14th and 15th inst., the hospitality extended visiting Saints. Doors were open "within and without" as never before. The Spirit of God was present in all the meetings, notably in the testimony meeting Sunday morning. Two were baptized on Monday by Bro. J. C. Foss, who with the writer did the preaching. Others are investigating and near. The community feels the loss of good Bro. Joseph Lakeman, lately deceased. We are trying to keep things moving, and prospects are encouraging.

Bro. S. D. Payne wrote from Hiawatha, Nebraska, recent date:—

The gospel work moves faster here than ever before. I have baptized twenty since my report to General Conference.

Bro. T. J. Sheppard, Dunly, Texas, July 17:—

Since last writing have held meetings at San Antonio, Oakwood, and Somerset, and am now on my way to Pipe Creek to hold forth three or four days. From there I expect to work up points in Gonzales county. I had the pleasure of baptizing four splendid people at San Antonio and three at Oakwood. This makes sixteen noble souls the Lord has enabled me to conduct into the kingdom since coming into this district May 18. Bro. O. D. Johnson is with me, giving every assistance he can, but will have to stop to attend to home work. I ask for the prayers of all.

Bro. J. S. Roth, Amber, Iowa, July 23:—

Bro. O. B. Thomas and I are holding forth here in the tent. The congregations are small, but those who come seem to be interested. We will continue till about the 15th of August if the interest demands. We will then take the tent to Canton for our conference.

Bro. J. B. Roush, Joliet, Illinois, July 24:—

We are having quite a stormy time of it, but do not feel like surrendering the fort. Last night we had the tent full, and a large crowd stood on the outside. Prejudice runs high and the spirit of mobocracy is sometimes felt, still we are confident and fight on.

Sr. B. M. Paden, Lima, Ohio, after years of isolation from the church sent a letter at random to President Smith, asking the whereabouts of the church, and after receiving the HERALD sent in reply, wrote July 25:—

It does me so much good as I am away here with no one of the Saints near me. I inclose one dollar and will send the other for a year's subscription as soon as I can.

Everybody in the church ought to feel just that way.

Bro. G. W. Rogers, Independence, Iowa, July 25:—

I am alone here in the cause of Christ and have some hard battles to fight.

Bro. I. N. Roberts, Bottineau, North Dakota, July 23:—

Last night nine more gave their names for baptism which gives us a membership of nineteen. The work is onward. O, that I had some one to help me! So many are waiting at other places, I fear I shall not be able to meet the demands.

Bro. J. H. Lake, Corinth, Ontario, July 24:—

I have been here for a few days holding some meetings, trying to encourage the Saints. I go next to London where I expect to meet Bro. Blair. He expects to go from London to a point in the Chatham district to attend a grove meeting on the 29th. . . . I wish to do all I can to help the Herald.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

By letter from Bro. R. M. Maloney dated Norman, Oklahoma, July 15, we learn that he and Bro. W. S. Macrae have been having some lively skirmishes with Brighamite elders in the Territory. Elders G. S. Ashton, E. M. McArthur, J. A. Stephens, A. N. Wallace, and Joseph Lowe of the Brighamite Church had been laboring in that region and had baptized six. The brethren persuaded these representatives of the Utah faction to enter upon an examination of the respective claims of the two churches, the result of which was that the Utah elders found it necessary to cut it short and leave for other fields according to the instructions to let the elders of the Reorganization severely alone. Bro. Maloney is satisfied that the result was a victory for the right and that the people were enlightened and pleased by the investigation.

Bro. J. W. Wight delivered the oration at Lucas on the Fourth, and we learn from several sources made an excellent effort that gave good satisfaction. It was his first effort at Fourth of July oratory, and he may be congratulated on having made a success.

Bro. John Gillespie, Temple, Ohio, July 20, states that a few of them living in and near to Cleveland have rented a hall on Superior street, and have had two Sundays' preaching by Bro. M. H. Bond; congregations small but intelligent. Bro. Gillespie thinks a good work may be done in Cleveland, which we earnestly hope. The Cleveland Leader gave a good notice of the movement in a late issue; Bro. Gillespie sent clipping with his letter.

Bro. Odin Jacobs, Radcliffe, Hardin county, Iowa, would be willing to aid an elder to get a hearing in that town if one will visit him, with a view to doing some labor there.

Bro. H. H. Robinson closed his labors at Savoy, Pennsylvania, in what he calls an exciting time. One man, a minister, had done quite a bit of sly work against Bro. R. and the work; this man Bro. R. met in a short debate, the house being full all the time. Bro. R. baptized one, a fine lad of fifteen years. It pleased some of the worse minded to threaten Bro. Robinson; but having seen a little war he paid no heed to threats, going his way quietly and steadily. Who is it that says, "the Reorganization cannot be of God because its elders are not persecuted."

Bro. Alvin Knisley of Selkirk, Ontario, has been presenting the word in various points in the regions round about his home. He succeeded in making a number of favorable openings and is encouraged to continue his labors.

Bro. J. A. Gunsolley, for some years a resident of Lamoni, left the city of the Saints on Tuesday the 24th inst. for Salem, Massachusetts, where he expects to locate permanently. During his residence here Bro. Gunsolley has rendered excellent service in behalf of the cause in preaching the word, in the Sunday school work and young people's societies, etc., besides filling the position of superintendent of the public schools. He leaves Lamoni with the confidence and good will of its people and their united wishes for his continued usefulness and success.

Bro. J. A. Grant reports progress being made in the Eastern Michigan district in which Brn. Robert Grant, William Davis, and himself are laboring. He presides over the Buel Center branch and labors also at other points in the district.

Bro. A. B. Pierce reports excellent work being done by Brn. Sheehy, Robley, and Coombs in the Massachusetts district.

Bro. J. M. Brown writes from Stafford, Kansas, giving an interesting account of his labors in three counties in the State. He has been received open-handed by the people among whom he finds a friendly spirit and readiness to hear the word. He is blessed in preaching and administering to the sick. Prospects are excellent for additions to the church in his field.

Bro. James M. Scott has been laboring in Orange and Washington counties, Indiana, opening up new places, in which he has enjoyed excellent liberty and has been well received; in one place being listened to by those had driven away a minister of another faith. The field is widening and calls for preaching are many. Bro. Scott will hold a grove meeting on the Bradley farm, August 12, which he requests Bro. David Scott and the local brethren to attend.

Bro. Alma Kent is with Bro. A. H. Parsons, holding tent meetings in Eastern Pennsylvania and Maryland. He is feeling well, though meeting with considerable opposition in places where the work is new to the people. His address is Banks, Cecil county, Maryland.

Bro. F. C. Keck wrote from Gilfillan, Kansas, summarizing his labors in the Clinton district, in which he is having success. Twenty-three have been baptized in the western portion of that district in the past six weeks. Bro. Lloyd has been with him of late. He has baptized seventeen into the Lebanon branch since January 1. Two of the number baptized during the year are sons of Campbellite ministers. He commends the Saints, who have attended his meetings regularly though having to drive five and ten miles to do so.

Bro. William Sparling reports the organization of a branch with twenty-three members at Clifford, North Dakota, by Brn. Roberts and Swenson. Nineteen of the members are new additions by baptism. One Reverend Gillespie of the Congregational Church declined to meet Bro. Sparling in debate, as agreed, urging that the latter was not a foeman worthy of his steel. Bro. Roberts offered to measure swords with him, but without avail. Bro. Roberts had gone to Bottineau, where he expected to organize another branch.

Mrs. Henry Sheffer, a sister living at Cheboygan, Michigan, writes stating that a number would probably obey the gospel if an elder would minister the word to the people there. Herself and husband offer a home to one who will come before the close of September.

Bro. Robert Oehring, residing at Cornland, Missouri, wrote from that point on the 18th inst. He is working at his trade during the week and preaching at various points in the vicinity of Rich Hill, Butler, and Cornland on the Lord's Day. He has baptized seven and has others—"dry land Saints"—almost persuaded.

Bro. J. A. Grant reports the baptism of five at Amadore on the 22d. There will be a grove meeting at Frenchtown July 29, and one at Amadore on August 5.

May you have success, brethren.

Bro. E. B. Morgan, of Lucas, Iowa, has sold out and will be in readiness for the Welsh mission soon. He has a good word to say of the HERALD.

Bro. Ebenezer Miller, Jr., writes from Cleveland, Ohio, July 23, very encouragingly of the effort being made in that city, by the few Saints resident there, aided by Bro. M. H. Bond, of Willoughby. Bro. Miller reports an increasing congregation in their rented hall, though the number is yet small. The Leader, public journal, gives favorable notices of the movement. Bro. Miller's letter is interesting, but we are obliged to omit for lack of space, as with several others of late date.

Bro. J. A. Robinson writing from Toronto, Ontario, the 22d inst. refers to having heard a young Jewess lecture there on the work of her father in preaching Christianity in the Holy Land, and who refused to become a sectarian although ordained by twelve different ministers of five denominations. Bro. R. invited the lady to visit the churches of the Saints, with a promise of "sympathetic audiences."

The News of Joliet, Illinois, in its issue for July 23 devotes half a column of its space in introducing Bro. J. B. Roush and the Reorganized Church to its readers. Bro. Roush is doing tent work there and though meeting with some opposition from the hoodlum or wild boy element, is evidently having success. The News article is fair in statement and friendly in tone.

The Southern California reunion began its sessions at Downey, California, July 17, with good attendance at the opening. We are indebted to Sr. Annie Reynolds for synopses of the sermons which we shall publish as we find space for them. Brn. Burton, Kelley, Forscutt, and others were present.

A grove meeting will be held near Allendale, Missouri, in the Decatur district, on Saturday and Sunday, August 11 and 12. Elders J. R. Lambert, J. S. Snively, and others of the ministry will be present. Those in charge request a full attendance.

Sr. Hattie M. Lake, of Gooderham, Ontario, writes commending the church literature, in the columns of which she finds much to encourage her heart and sustain her faith. She commends the Home Column and the leaflets as timely aids to the mothers in Israel. She appreciates the privilege of hearing the elders preach about once a year.

Brn. A. H. Parsons and Alma Kent were at Nottingham, Pennsylvania, at last accounts, having commenced tent services there July 18. They had been well received by large audiences in Harford county, Maryland, previously.

Elder James P. Dillon died at his home in Lamoni during the morning of Monday the 30th ult. Bro. Dillon was baptized and ordained in 1863 and was at all times a steadfast adherent to the faith. His last official work abroad was done in the Wisconsin field in 1892.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Three words fall sweetly on my soul
As music from an angel lyre,
That bid my spirit spurn control
And upward to its source aspire,
The sweetest sounds to mortal given
Are heard in Mother, Home, and Heaven."

EARLY PERVERTING INFLUENCES.
SELECTED READING FOR THE LOCAL MEETINGS OF DAUGHTERS OF ZION FOR AUGUST, 1894.

BLINDNESS to moral dangers often invites calamity. That many mothers enshrined in the safe seclusions of pure homes, absorbed in the tender joys of maternity, are blind to dangers menacing their loved ones, is not strange. But the quickened conscience of the age, with prophetic vision sees approaching peril, and its sounding cries of warning. It no longer suffices for devoted mothers to gather their children in the homefold and watch their coming and going, excluding all that can defile until the time comes when they must stand alone, the men and women of the future. Experience has taught that such sheltering too often results in weakness of character, unable to resist the harpies which forever lie in wait for unsuspecting souls. Ideal manhood and womanhood demand for their attainment something vastly more difficult and complicated than shutting out, or shutting in.

Every woman, mother of one child or of ten, needs first to recognize the fact that certain moral evils infest the atmosphere of childhood, and they are as likely to attack her child as any other. Again, whether they know it or not, whether they shirk, evade, or deny it, "it is to mothers that the most tremendous work in the whole universe, even the training of an immortal soul for good or for evil, for life or for death, for God or for the Devil, is intrusted."

The fancied security, the unawakened ignorance concerning early perverting influences, the unceasing devotion to externals of dress, food, fancywork, and furniture, prevailing among many mothers, who are otherwise really good and conscientious women, are largely responsible for the beginnings of many moral evils. Many and many a mother knows not the worth of a Godly life as a moral purifier until the sorrow of seeing one or more of her children struggling in the snares of impurity or of sin has taught her the terrible mistake of failing to ground her children, while they are very young, in gospel truth and love to God.

How can a life of moral purity and self-control be developed in a child, if his mother has no firm and unwavering conviction of its value, no high and fine ideal of its future possibilities, no loving, abiding trust in the Searcher of hearts? "Do we not sorely need a deepening and intensifying of our spiritual life? Do not all women need to draw nearer together with a more whole-hearted devotion to the service of God, according to our several abilities and opportunities?" As we attain this, and thus only can we effectively undertake social reform, and be ready to combat evils which assail our loved ones from the day of their birth.

Would that a heavenly vision might blaze upon the conscience of every American mother the awful responsibility and duty of making the first ten years of her children's life her personal care—her golden opportunity to seal their destinies for goodness and purity! Would that I could convince every woman who shall read or hear these words, how earnestly I believe it is possible for the true mother within these years to sow such seeds of righteousness that impurity and wickedness shall become well-nigh impossible! . . .

The children of many well to do families, "overfed and underworked," taught self-gratification rather than self-control, having their physical appetites stimulated to excess, are not seldom, almost helplessly put under the dominion of the lower instincts by the conditions of their everyday life. The fond thoughtlessness which urges a child to eat more than is needful, until a habit of gluttony is formed, which enjoys every indication of physical progress, without ever thinking of his mental and spiritual development, is surely begetting a tendency and habit of animalism which furnishes a nourishing and fertile soil for temptations awaiting boys and girls in school and shop. Thus, when awakening instincts of sex begin to manifest themselves, when young people are of necessity more and more away from home, they are unfortified and undefended in the most subtle and serious encounter of their lives. Happy, indeed, is that child whose mother has been keen-eyed, intelligent, and brave enough to prepare him for the conflict.

Few questions are more perplexing, than that of determining how much mingling of boys and girls in sports, or at evening entertainments can prudently be allowed. Evidently it is useless to sigh for the "good old times" when lights went out at curfew bell, and boys and girls had little thought of society beyond the home circle, for in those days families were so large in number that the home supplied abundant companionship.

Children's evening parties, even under most favorable conditions, with their too frequent opportunities for juvenile flirtations, and their inevitable tendency to emphasize distinctions of sex, furnish too many temptations to be considered other than dangerous. Were there no other evils connected with them, these are sufficient to condemn them in the mind of every mother who has her child's moral welfare deeply at heart.

That any woman can think or say of childish lovers, "it is such a pretty sight to see them so devoted," and then encourage separating themselves to each other's society to carry out the deceit is surprising.

"Why, there is no harm," say you, "they are only children." But can you not see to what such talk and such thoughts lead? how they weaken modesty and reserve, which are the strongest safeguards of purity; how they direct the thoughts of the growing boy toward matters with which maturity is often unable to cope successfully?

Is it only a conservative whim, that it is unwise, nay, perilous, to allow any association of boys and girls during childhood, or even trifles of speech, which place their thoughts strongly upon difference in sex? If, by any mischance, there have come to either, impure words or suggestions, such speech, such associations inevitably tend to fix and nourish them. It is impossible in such matters to overestimate the importance of "little things, little decent ways, little safeguards and watchfulness." One has said, "Sow thoughts and reap actions; sow actions and reap habits; sow habits and reap character." These words indicate the logical sequence of destiny—a life of purity or a life of shame, a life for God, or a soul lost. This inexorable law of being explains why even so small an affair as a juvenile flirtation, or the evil companionship of an hour may be the beginning of unspeakable sin and misery.

In this land of democratic ideas and while we are striving to understand and solve the problem of "universal brotherhood," our children are in constant and imminent peril from associations which it is difficult to forbid or control. Apparently, nowadays, many children and young people choose their associates as freely as birds their mates, without word or warning from parents. How much wiser that mother, seeing the lovely and helpful in some, should quietly encourage these, while the coarse and harmful are as quietly but firmly crowded away by what is better! Let it never happen that the young become suspicious of every one by our much speaking and condemning of what is manifestly corrupting in their associates; rather, with loving words of commendation for the good, and a silent withdrawal or disapproval of the bad, lead them to the best. Above all, let every woman know with whom her children associate, and learn their character. Then if you have love, that love which is strong in self-control and strong in God, you will find some way to encourage the good, and keep evil at a distance; but beware that no glamour of wealth, position, or fine raiment blind your eyes to what is evil, or make you shrink less from the vice of respectability than from that of your less reputable neighbor.

From out the dim distance, in manifold visions, you appear to me, O mothers of little children, and from my own experience of motherhood arises a mighty sympathy for the perplexities, the needs, and the triumphs which await you. In beautiful homes, where there is no lack of comfort and luxury, in humbler abodes where life is a perpetual struggle, in the cottage where grim want often enters, you are busy with loving ministries for the little ones, have you realized as you are brought face to face with life which is your own, yet not your own, that the beautiful innocent sleeping in your arms is God's child?—that the indwelling spirit which looks forth from those calm, silent eyes is of more value than time, or money, or knowledge, or power? Your days are so full of care for his body, the little hands clinging to your garments have so many wants, your eyes are so heavy with weariness that it is no wonder that things invisible are hid sometimes, and the immortal within the robe of clay is forgotten. Alas! that such truths come too late to some of us, to others, never!

"Their angels do always behold the face of your Father which is in heaven." O mother-heart, know thy power, and the inestimable worth of the wondrous gift bestowed upon thee! An eternity lies folded in those feeble forms. Knock at heaven's gate, and learn the worth of a life pure enough to see God.

Though in the midst of manifold perverting influences, you have not to fight the battle single-handed; the great, loving, omnipotent heart of Jehovah stands pledged to your assistance. Beware of first steps to impurity; watch, as well as pray. I close with the tender words of another: "If we can only get our boys and girls to realize that from the soles of their feet to the crowns of their head they belong to Christ; that their feet belong to him by the prints of the nails in his, their hands, by the wounds in his palms, their bright young faces by the crown of thorns he wore for them, their whole body and soul by the great passion of his love poured out to win them to God—we shall have gained more than half the battle in making them modest, and pure, and brave."—Irma A. Jones.

[NOTE.—The Advisory Committee wishes to call special attention to the subject very briefly adverted to in the foregoing, namely, "Childish lovers," and invites mothers to give to it their earnest thought and also to give expression to their views. We want to hear from you through the Home Column.]

WHAT TO DO WITH THE CHILDREN DURING VACATION.

SECOND PAPER.—HOW A GIRL MAY BE ENTERTAINED AND PROFITED.

TAKE your child into your confidence and explain to her in a loving, enthusiastic manner your plans for her during the summer. Tell her that you want her vacation to be an enjoyable one, and at the same time one in which she will become mistress of some useful knowledge. That every new achievement brings a joy all its own, in a most delightful sense of exhilarating independence.

If you are aware of it, you have a very necessary habit already formed for you, that the child learned under the discipline of school, and which you realize should be one of the first essentials in her home training, as well as in her general character. Promptness, order, and system. Whatever course may have been decided upon, it should be regulated according to these cardinal principles. Have a fixed time for each duty, and insist upon exactness in compliance with this rule. Otherwise the summer will drift away and the child will have accomplished far short of your expectations.

When we see a woman who never gets through with the work she plans for the day; who somehow has no time for that; who complains that she is becoming a heathen because she never has a chance to read; that she is getting rusty in all she ever did know for want of time to review a little, we wonder if, notwithstanding all she has to do, she would not get along more successfully if she knew how to systemize her work.

Children often become impatient under methodical restraints, and long to do as they please. But that is nothing strange. They cannot, of course, be expected to appreciate the benefits; only experience can teach them that, and, after all, most older folks often feel as if they would enjoy utter freedom for awhile. However, mature reason knows the consequences that would result from such a course, and these should be explained to a child.

Children realize that their enjoyment is made the keener by the thorough performance of duty. It is only at the time being that they feel disposed to shirk, dreading the exertion, even while they know the result would give them pleasure. It is a matter of will power with them at the time.

Of course it is possible to carry even so good a thing as system too far. But no universal exception to the principle could be prescribed. Judgment and thoughtfulness upon the part of each individual mother can alone suggest what variations would be best, being careful, indeed, that sympathy does not run into weakness, or overindulgence.

Children should be taught to be responsible for the right and prompt performance of their duties. Nothing is more deplorable than to see a child who has been permitted to depend upon older persons without any personal conscientiousness, and will evade a task every time notice is not taken. It is positively distressing to see a mother run and hunt a child up every time her work is to be done, or, rather than to take the trouble, do it herself. Such actions are pitifully weak, and are a serious detriment to a child.

When is the proper time to begin a girl's domestic education? As soon as a child can walk it should be given its little duties. If they are nothing more than the keeping of its playthings in order, it is getting hold of the idea of helpfulness and industriousness.

At six or seven a child is not too young to do simple housekeeping and cooking; yes, and even sewing, too. We may laugh at the old time practice of giving the little maidens long seams to sew for an hour every day, but it would be a blessing if the fashion would become "all the go" again. It is a pity that in this rushing age of progress we leave out so many things of real merit.

Why would it not be an excellent idea to include an hour or so of sewing in the curriculum this summer? It would help to content and amuse the little woman through the long summer afternoons. Besides, she will become deft with the needle, and, when she gets a little older, she will be ready to learn to cut and fit her own garments.

In many households, the system is so unalterably set that there is never time nor opportunity to instruct a child, and have her practice doing things. Under such unfavorable circumstances children are sometimes blamed that they do not "come around and try to learn themselves." This is expecting more of them than there is any consistency in. It is a mother's part to do the thinking and planning, and to make any changes in the workings of the household machinery that may be necessary.

Children are sometimes selfishly put to that kind of work at which they can be of the most service, because housework does not require the time and patience to teach that the culinary and sewing branches do. Under such a rule, many a girl grows into womanhood with no other knowledge of domestic things than the keeping of rooms in order. In her thoughtful moments, no doubt, she has an uneasy realization of her dependence. But, because the mother seemingly has so little intuition of her position and shows so little disposition to help her, or perhaps because she lacks the courage and resolution to break through the conditions that surround her, and make a way for herself, she drifts along in this uncomfortable manner, almost independent of herself. Just a thought of the trouble that ignorance must bring to her daughter in future, ought to be enough to impel a mother to make a sacrifice of any selfish consideration for her child's highest welfare.

How doubly hard comes the knowledge when one must plod it out alone. When, in a short time, everything is to be learned that might have taken all of childhood's years. Blunders are so much more mortifying then, than when one is younger. No mother to lean on, responsibilities must be borne all alone. Perplexities and difficulties that a mother's experience might have smoothed away, must be solved at the expense of many a heartache then.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SR. M. HOLCOMB writes from Manteno, Iowa, expressing her thanks to the Saints for the kindly manner in which they entertained her request for prayers in her behalf while assembled at conference. She esteems it a duty as well as a pleasure and a privilege to bear testimony to the fact that their prayers in her behalf were heard and answered. She was very sick—so sick that the attending physician expected her to die, and was himself astonished at her rapid recovery. She is now able to be up and around her house, and, while not fully recovered, she desires to give God the glory for all he has done for her.

LONDON, Eng., June 14.

Editors Herald:—Wafted by the breezes of faith and hope, and enlightened by the sunshine of our Father's smile, your beloved and welcome pages cheer many a sad and waiting, lonely heart, this side of the broad Atlantic. Your hearts would rejoice could they see the good effect your little journal is exerting upon the church; and, further, its holy leaven is beginning to leaven the world also.

My heart is pained to read of the financial cloud under which the valued Herald is at present suffering: the more so as being out of employment, (excepting the teaching of music to a few pupils,) I am unable to lend a helping hand in the direction in which it is now of so special a service. Still, by speaking of it to one and another, and by keeping the People's Palace supplied with your genial pages, and sending an occasional copy to the British Museum, I am placing the Herald before those fully able to render that financial assistance so needful at the present crisis, by becoming your regular subscribers. The cloud, dear brethren, is, I am convinced, but a transient one; and if each subscriber will make it a point to send you the name of one other subscriber each month, your circulation will in one quarter of a year be trebled.

Bear with me, dear editors, for I am painfully conscious that my long, long silence must seem like neglect of your interests; such, however, is far from being the case; for I am preparing an essay which will, I am certain, please and entertain (if not edify) your numerous readers, but, being lengthy, it of necessity takes time in preparation.

If your circulation has temporarily diminished, there is to me, at least, and doubtless to many more who have noticed it, a counterpoise in the reflection that since Bro. Joseph Luff's association with your board as corresponding editor, a marked improvement in the literary style and diction of several of your articles has taken place and an elevation of thought and sublimity of sentiment which amply brings the Herald within the category of those periodicals of which it might truly be observed, in the language adopted by a certain large advertising agent in this city, whose gigantic posters meet the eye at every turn, "Tis not in mortals to command success, but we'll do more, we'll deserve it." And I can say, most sincerely and truthfully say, that if only the Herald meets a success in any way commensurate with its deserts, there is a glorious future in the near distance for the Herald and its "collaborateurs" "both small and great."

When I was employed in my boyhood as a messenger in the office of the Victoria Dock, London, there used to be an elderly clerk in an office at the extreme southern extremity of the docks who used to take such a "quantum" of snuff that it not only affected his head but his waistcoat too, for it changed the said article of apparel from a jet black to an indescribable brown; and as he was perpetually making the most atrocious and outrageous mistakes in his import and export accounts, I was kept in a pretty well perpetual jaunt from the general office, at the north side, to his small office at the extreme south to get these errors and "queries" (as he called them) rectified. On perceiving me enter the office with the "query" book in my hand, the old gentleman would give his waistcoat a dusting with his hand and brush off nearly enough snuff to choke three white people, or one negro, and, putting on his spectacles he would say, "What, have I made another mistake, Tubb? Well, well, never mind:—

"To err is human,
To forgive, divine."

but the chief clerk at the other side, when I arrived, used to get angry at these repeated discrepancies, and said to me, "Here, Tubb, you tell old Fairburn the next time he gets making one of these blunders, he won't get forgiven by either God or man!"

My object in naming this little episode, is to ask the forgiveness of any brethren who may have felt hurt at the strictures contained in my last letter to your columns against the contradictory statements and opinions advanced in the Herald by one writer against another. Believe me, brethren, no offense was intended against any; and I can only say that, being an Englishman, I can no more help looking at these things from the English point of view, than you can help viewing them from the American standpoint.

Our hearts have been deeply moved and touched by the kindly and generous Spirit in which our appeal to your honorable body was met and responded to, at the recent conference; and may He who holdeth the direction of all things in his mighty hand grant that soon your Bishop may be able to send us the needed aid, so that the building so greatly needed may arise in the heart of this mighty metropolis of the world, and the praises of our gracious Redeemer ascend from a thousand tongues of them who at present worship him "as through a glass darkly." With loving brotherly and sisterly anticipation, we await the coming of Bro. James Caffall, whom, "not having seen," we "love," as one patient yet valiant in his Master's cause. May the struggling and hard working little band here in London find encouraging hope and renewing determination under his ministrations. Brn. Gillen and Griffiths did manifold and noble service in these British Isles, the former in the northern towns and the latter especially in London; and may a Father's hand water the seed sown "beside many waters," and at so great a sacrifice of home comforts and associations, for his name's sake.

Sr. C. B. Kelley's editorial anent London in this June number of Autumn Leaves was as running waters to the thirsty soul and as "good news from a far country." We consider it a most kindly and noble thought on her part, to endeavor to enlist the prayers and practical sympathies of the ladies of the church on behalf of the church in Babylon.

May the blessings of the eternal Jehovah rest and remain upon the Daughters of Zion; and may their names become not only honored in the earth, but had in eternal remembrance before him whose hands sent forth the sweet influences of the Pleiades, and who bringeth forth Mazzaroth (Jupiter) in his seasons, and who guideth Arcturus with his sons. (Job 38: 31, 32.)

The ostensible head of the church is at Lamoni, Iowa (may Jehovah bless it), but the real battle-ground, the actual rallying-place of the armies of Satan is at Babylon (London), where I am confident there is tenfold more Apollyonish hatred and Satanic opposition against the work than in nine tenths of the States put together; insomuch as it is a question, not merely whether God's work shall grow and flourish in London, but whether it shall dare to maintain its bare existence in this "synagogue of Satan." The idea has occurred to me that if a band of the Daughters of Zion could visit London (and we would gladly take them to see the wonderful and magnificent sights of this protean city) they would carry back with them, I am sure, not only a vivid realization of the vast need of gospel work here on a gigantic scale, but inwardly registering an earnest vow, that if their faithful prayers and practical labors could accomplish the task, London should no longer lack that temple reared to the glory of God, that her perishing millions and her long priest-ridden inhabitants so solemnly cry aloud for even unto him. Brethren, were it not for the distance, and the need, too, of labor in your own mighty, and free, and blessed land, we could let our lips give utterance to the long suppressed and almost despairing cry of our hearts, "Come over and help us!" Nevertheless, O our God, we would humbly say, Not our will but thine be done.

To the young sisters and brethren of the Zion's Religio, who have so kindly sent me a copy of the Autumn Leaves monthly for the Whitechapel Free Library, I tender my sincere thanks; and am truly glad to tell you that the book is most thankfully appreciated there. To Sr. Walker, or whoever writes the "leaflets," let me confess that, although I was at first opposed to the literature, considering it unfit for general publication, the Lord has told me that his hand is in it, that he might raise up at his coming, a people pure enough to behold him and fear not, for they shall see his face.

DEFIANCE, Iowa, July 16.

Editors Herald.—Bro. F. M. Weld and the writer began meetings at this place in "gospel tent" on the 6th inst. Interest good; at times the tent proved too small. Have had from one to four preachers out each evening. Bro. J. F. McDowell stopped enroute to Spirit Lake, Iowa, and gave us good and timely sermons. On Sunday afternoon and evening he spoke on the prophetic mission of Joseph Smith, and at times the large audience seemed spellbound, the Holy Spirit bearing witness in great power. We felt to exclaim, "It is good to be a Saint in latter days." May God's Spirit continue to be with such noble, efficient, and fearless standard bearers as Bro. McDowell.

Yesterday at eleven a. m., we attended services at the Christian (Campbellite) church and heard one of their ministers preach a "trial" sermon, to see if the congregation would hire him. He tried to prove that the gospel of Christ was not preached till the memorable day of Pentecost, but failed in the effort. We expect to continue meetings for a time. The few Saints here are aiding us nobly. We are joyous in gospel work.

C. J. HUNT.

MALAD, Idaho, July 17.

Editors Herald.—When last I wrote I had just closed my work for the year and made my report to conference. To-day finds me in the same place, just opening the campaign in Idaho. When I wrote last I had just heard of the decision of Judge Phillips granting us a clear title to the Temple Lot, and the outlook was hopeful and I thought I could see brighter days for the Rocky Mountain mission; but to-day as I view the situation I am not so sanguine. The very things that I thought would be potent for good to back-slidden Israel have only been chains in the hands of the "priesthood" of Utah to bind more firmly the shackles of error on their willing subjects. The cry of "fraud;" "corrupt courts;" "a Josephite judge;" have been made to do duty in stirring up hatred and animosity towards us as a people and making it more difficult than ever to get the truth before the people. I was pleased very much to see with what courtesy and kindness Mr. Stout was treated in St. Joseph by our people and I hope the Utah elders will never have cause for complaint in our treatment of them in the East. I hope that Mr. Stout will have the courage and manliness to come out and publicly correct some of the statements he made in a Council Bluffs paper wherein he made the assertion that we of the Reorganization were their bitterest enemies, after such kind treatment as he received from our brethren in St. Joe.

Let me now draw a comparison by making a statement of my treatment in Utah. During the two years I have been in that Territory I have only had one meal given me by a Mormon, and that was a few weeks ago in Ogden, but have had to depend, when I could find none of my own church members, upon Gentiles and apostates for my keeping. In Oakley, Cassia county, Idaho, I spoke to the largest audience I ever spoke to in the West, all or nearly all Mormons, and at the close there was not an offer to take me home and give me a bed and meal, but I had to be under the humiliating necessity of begging a place to stop while preaching there. I do not say this because I feel any animosity towards the people here, but because they are simple, plain truths.

I arrived in my mission this year on the 9th of June; stopped in Salt Lake City three Sundays, preaching in the chapel six times, and at Sandy once. My congregations increased in the city, and I think good was done, to the Saints at least. I went to Ogden on the 25th where I preached each Sunday for two Sundays in a private house, visited among the Saints, and on the 5th of July baptized four, all children, belonging to members there. The strike caught me in Ogden, keeping me there longer than I had intended, so did not get here until the 12th. I found Bro. John Lewis very sick and not expected to live, but at this writing he is much better. I am preaching here each Sunday, but audiences small. I expect to leave for Soda Springs and Bear Lake county next week, where I expect to join Bro. A. J. Layland in opening up the work there in some new places. I rejoice in the success of my brethren in the East and hope for better times in the West.

Yours for truth and right,

H. O. SMITH.

DENVER, Colo., July 18.

Editors Herald.—We arrived in Denver, the field assigned us, on the 5th of May. We found Bro. E. F. Shupe at the depot awaiting us, and soon learned that the Saints had made preparations for our comfort and convenience. Bro. E. F. Shupe, the president of the branch, is energetic and alive to the interests of the work. The Sunday school under the supervision of Sr. Joseph Schmutz, is doing a noble work. The Religio is also doing good work among the young folks. A very entertaining programme was rendered on the 28th ult. Sr. May Schmutz, with the cooperation of the members of the society, worked hard to make the entertainment a success, and it was. The proceeds will be used in paying the expenses of a picnic excursion for the children of the Sunday school. The Daughters of Zion hold their regular meetings presided over by Sr. Walters. We have a good church to meet in and a fair congregation.

Since my arrival four have been baptized and one more will be added to-morrow. These are not my converts but the fruits of the united efforts of the branch. Last Monday evening the good Saints, about fifty strong, completely surprised us. They came not only with hearts full of love and Christian fellowship, but with their arms full of the good things of life which minister to the outer man. The evening was spent in song and social intercourse, sandwiched with cake, and fruit, and lemonade. At ten o'clock all joined in singing, "God be with you till we meet again," which concluded the evening's festivities. There is a noble little band of Saints in Denver. May heaven's richest blessings be theirs to enjoy. I trust each of us shall be qualified to successfully perform the duties devolving upon us.

Very truly yours,

F. J. CHATBURN.

FRANKFORT, Mich., July 13.

Editors Herald.—I attended the debate at Gilmore between Bro. J. J. Cornish and M. D. Rogers, and while that was going on I could not preach very much. But I preached around some before it commenced, and baptized a man and his wife. After the debate Bro. Cornish baptized seven or eight more. I then started for home and the Bay Port conference, stopping on my way, and preaching a couple of sermons at the little town of Beaverton, where Bro. J. A. Carpenter is holding forth, and saw him bury two more precious souls in the waters of baptism. Beaverton is a new place, and there is a good interest there.

It is about a year now since the first sermon was preached there by me. Prejudice was then very strong and some were so glad when they saw me leaving town that they shouted, "Hallelujah!" But now we have about twenty or thirty members there, and some who hated us are good Latter Day Saints. I had a good time at the Bay Port conference, also at my old home where mother, father, one brother, and my youngest sister live. I visited my branch at Grant, preached a little for them, and then came to Reed City and called on Bro. Cornish's folks, and on up to South Boardman conference where we had a good time. Six were baptized by Bro. Cornish and myself; and I suppose Bro. Cochran of Lamoni will be pleased to know I baptized his nephew, Wilbur B. Paul, of Wexford. I then went to Fife Lake and preached a few sermons, and baptized one there. I came to Frankfort, saw the school trustees, and got permission to preach in the schoolhouse. I also saw the editor, a young man who is acquainted with Elder Cornish, and he advertised my meeting for Friday the 13th. I went to Burnham and baptized five on the 11th, making somewhere about twenty since the debate there between Elders J. J. Cornish and H. E. Rossell.

It was reported that Rossell beat Bro. Cornish in the debate, but the number of baptisms since proves that some one must have been mistaken. There has never been any preaching in Frankfort yet, and I hope we will get a good opening there and many be converted to Christ the Redeemer of the world. The work is certainly moving on at a rapid rate. I never saw the like, so many calls for preaching. Every one is sorry because Bro. Cornish is going away, as we have so few preachers to carry on the work in this district. The interest is increasing all the while, and we want more help. The harvest is great and the laborers few.

Yours in bonds,

F. C. SMITH.

AMADORE, Mich., July 16.

Editors Herald:—There is a marked advancement in gospel work throughout our district since the June conference at Bay Port, not in count alone, but in spiritual growth. The Saints are learning that division means destruction, just as the Savior said: "A kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation." Some of the dark clouds that have been hanging over the spiritual horizon in some parts of our district have removed and the light has begun to shine again. The district is in the best condition it has been in for a long time. The grove meeting at Shabbona, July 1, was a success; large crowds and good attention was the order of the day, three were baptized at the close of the afternoon meeting, Bro. William Davis officiating.

The Fourth of July was pleasantly spent with the Applegate branch, a goodly number being assembled from other branches. All seemed to rejoice that they had obeyed a doctrine that made them free indeed. From Applegate the writer went to Grindstone City and remained over Sunday, preaching three times and baptized four; then hearing that elder J. A. Grant had crossed the skirmish lines of the Disciple fraternity by going to Frenchtown to preach, and was busily exchanging shots with one of their big guns (Billman by name), I immediately set sail for the battlefield to take care of the dead and wounded should there be any; but on my arrival found that Bro. Grant had completely routed his enemy and that professed Disciples had again learned that truth could not be upset. Several are near the kingdom. Yesterday I spoke twice at Black Creek, and at the close of the meeting in the afternoon had the privilege of leading four more precious souls into the waters of baptism. Others are talking of being baptized in the near future. So goes the good work. May it continue.

Your colaborer,

R. E. GRANT.

DOWNEY, Cal., July 17.

Editors Herald:—Yesterday I saw first papers from East since 25th of June, and no letters have reached me within this time. Doubtless a large number are blocked on the way or have reached San Francisco since I left on the 13th inst., and many that I have sent East are doubtless delayed to those to whom due for same causes which have prevented others reaching me. California has been practically cut off from communication from the East except by telegraph. It has been an experience of early pioneer days. Now the southern part is fairly opened up to communication east, but not so the northern. The brethren who may have written me expecting an early reply will please take notice that such letters, if any, are not yet at hand and that they must be patient under the circumstances. I am now hopeful of seeing the work so far completed upon the "Evanelia" (the gospel boat) as to be able to leave for the East in about twenty days.

On Sunday morning Bro. Mark H. Forscutt and I arrived at this place from San Francisco, having come down on the boat to Redondo to attend the reunion of Southern California Saints, and have since been in camp. We found Brn. J. F. Burton and David L. Harris in charge assisted by Brn. Nelson Van Fleet, R. Dana, Peter Betts, W. R. Pickering, Chas. Baly, A. Carmichael, J. T. Walker, Father Brush, and many others. The meetings are now in progress with favorable prospects and will continue over one more Sabbath.

Last Sabbath after the social meeting Bro. Burton preached a very able discourse and I thought during its delivery that it was not very necessary to import preachers to have a success in gospel preaching when he was on the ground. In the afternoon the writer talked to the people and in the evening Bro. Mark H. Forscutt gave us a very able and eloquent discourse as was also his effort on Monday afternoon. Monday morning Bro. Charles Baly made a good effort on duties of Saints in temporal matters and on Monday evening and Tuesday morning the writer discoursed on the gospel. Bro. A. Carmichael spoke this afternoon on the everlasting character of the gospel plan, and Bro. Forscutt will preach again to-night. Perhaps I had better not tell all about the effort beforehand, but it is safe to say that by his work so far since I have been with him in California, it will be polished and instructive.

Everything betokens good for the work in California if the Saints will stand as a unit for the mastery.

As ever, hastily, for the truth,

E. L. KELLEY.

GALLAND'S GROVE, Iowa, June 16.

Editors Herald:—After our last the writer was permitted to lead four "lamb" into the safety of God's fold. A "farewell" by Mrs. McGowen and Sr. Eden served to portray that there were friends outside the kingdom: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Now came the struggle; to take the wife from all her relatives, and early associations, and companions, and to leave "Neely" behind; he who had shared our trials, struggles, and interspersed joys in an unknown land and among strangers, was a tax on the ability to bear up under such trying circumstances. And the compunctions of conscience just here knock loudly at the doors of individualism, portraying that anything like a just appreciation of the sacrifice made by my consort has not as yet been reached. God grant that the future may reveal such appreciation and a complete development of that love and union that such a sacrifice and companionship demand. A return to New South Wales permitted a reunion with Hamilton and Wallsend Saints and the leading of two more into the waters of regeneration; twenty-three for the year by the writer and thirty-one for the mission, whereas the Church Recorder reports but seventeen.

In these localities we were amply reminded that gospel love and appreciation bore temporal fruits to help us on our way. A return to Sydney where three efforts the next day (Sunday) closed the Australian mission for the writer. Nearly six years of toil, trial, anxiety, prayer, and tears, joys, reunions, fond anticipations, grand realizations, bigotry, intolerance, and cursings without and foes within clearly portraying that one must either go up or down in the scales of such surroundings. And now, ten thousand miles removed, reflection's rapid transition places us once more among these far away Saints, among whom are many "plants" of God's own planting. And the shafts of pain and sorrow pierce the soul in the realization that never again on the shores of time is the hand clasp to become the practical demonstration that a fruition of occasional anticipations is at hand.

Monday morning found us early about, for the "luggage" was to be transported and many little errands attended to, and at 3:30 p. m. we were aboard the steamship "Mariposa," so soon to leave her moorings and start on the homeward journey. At 4:30 the good ship slowly receded from the wharf, effectually widening the distance between us and loving companions—now of yore—who, standing on the wharf, took turns in waving the handkerchief and applying it to the lachrymal ducts.

Lamoni, Iowa, July 23.—Of our ocean trip it may be said that the first part was extremely rough, incident to a storm that had spent its fury but had left in its wake the foam-crested wave. Tuesday was a long, miserable day; the writer undergoing the severest seasickness ever experienced. We were all sick, even to the baby; but, next morning the boys and self were able to eat and never again submitted to this peculiar and trying sickness. Sr. Wight was less fortunate, not being able to sit up the whole way, but could eat well while remaining in a lying posture.

In California we had the pleasure of visiting with Bro. and Sr. Burton in their own home, and with our cousin and Bro. Putney attended conference of the Northern California district. We met Bro. Forscutt and enjoyed listening to a soul-stirring sermon from him in a private house. The thought presented and the manner of their presentation were both unique and gratifying, demonstrating the presence of the Holy Spirit. We stopped one night in San Bernardino, and spoke in the church there. Having traveled all the preceding night without a sleeper and reaching Colton about six p.m. we were rushed away to Sr. Addie Burton Matthew's, where a hasty tea was eaten and off for church with dirt, dirt, dirt. Never before nor since has the pulpit been entered under such a burden of dirt! If the hearers enjoyed the talk they did more than the speaker. The scenery of California was rapturously enjoyed and the beauty of the Santa Clara Valley was especially marked. Of course it was seen in its "Sunday" dress, it being the best time of the year.

Leaving San Bernardino our transit was rapid, yet the journey proved far too lengthy to be enjoyable under the circumstances. All the way through Southern Arizona and New Mexico the barren, and apparently at all times arid plain, yet fruitful in one thing—the production of a very fine red dirt or sand, and this "stuck closer than a brother," eyes, ears, nose, and mouth all seemed to vie with each other as to which could hold the most and retain it the longest. And wheeze, sneeze, and cough as one would it was still there, and what might have thus become removed was soon replaced from the fresh "clouds" that recurred as frequently as the wagging of the glib tongue of Madam Rumor or Mother Gossip. Those dear old ladies, how I love them!—out of my sight! On through Texas and up through the Indian Territory and Kansas, we are at last at St. Joe, but not having had Herald privileges to become acquainted with Bro. Lewis' very generous offer, we sought a hotel, where much needed rest was obtained. Before retiring Bro. Burton and the writer sought out a barber shop and its bathing privileges. Judging from the noise made in puffing and scrubbing of the former, and the length of time at it, the Arizona sand was certainly pleased at being privileged to sever relationship, already too long endured.

To recount in detail the many happy greetings at St. Joe depot the next morning—to recur that evening in Lamoni, and the conference with its peculiarities, suspense, and final sunburst of celestial revelation, would occupy by far too much space. After the conference and a real estate deal by which Lamoni citizenship was insured, we started for my "field." Labor was performed at Little Sioux, Moorhead, Soldier, Dow City, Galland's Grove, Panama, Woodbine, and Persia. What with preaching, visiting, and talking, at the end of two months we were tired, downright tired, with an overtaxed voice. Is it really wisdom, Mr. Editor, to thus overtax any of the organs? But then there was such interest apparent, such crowds, and such attention. Surely inspiration of the right stamp moved our President in his prediction. There were times when a clearness of thought never before known was enjoyed, and while, individually, almost disgust had been created from the reading of the nearly stereotyped statement, "I have enjoyed better liberty since the last conference than ever before," (surely some should be about perfect in that peculiar commodity, "liberty,") now it is found that to be truthful to facts practically portrayed, and I, too, must bear my testimony in favor of that hitherto repulsive statement.

While want of space forbids me personalizing, it almost seems a duty to mention our visit with "Grandma Hawley," now past her ninety-fourth milestone of life; and while she called me "Johnnie," forcibly reminding me of childhood's days so long ago, I could but feel that if she could see the gray hairs taking up an abode on my cranium she would hardly think the designation apropos. When I saw such a lack of childishness for one of her age, and the clearness of thought and sprightliness she manifested, I could but feel that here had been a well-spent life, and that before me was the evidence of God's mercy and watchcare. May her life, when the summons shall come, go out in peace, and our last end be like hers.

In the faith,
J. W. WIGHT.

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., June 27.

Editors Herald:—A half century has now passed away since the testimony of God's servants, Joseph and Hyrum Smith, was sealed by their blood and they accounted worthy to receive a martyr's crown. During the next half century their work and testimony will be much more received, and acknowledged true by many thousands, and the reproach brought upon them be wiped out, and lovers of truth rejoice in the truths God gave us through them.

How mortifying it must be to such men as Wilford Woodruff, George Q. Cannon, and Joseph F. Smith, to have to publish such a "card" as that in the Herald of June 20. Not an elder have they that they dare place on the stand in defense of their position, side by side with one of the Reorganization. O pity; O shame! Surely fear and a snare are upon them. They doubtless will be forced by circumstances and the logic of events of these progressive times to reconsider that edict.

I am glad the President of the Reorganization has confidence enough in his position and in the ministry under his direction to counsel them to urge consideration of their work and church polity upon the ministry of the Utah people. The times are propitious for the Reorganization everywhere, and the good Master is working with his church and ministry and they must succeed.

On Thursday the 21st inst. a branch, "the Santa Cruz branch," was organized here, Bro. E. L. Kelley presiding. There will be thirty-six names on their record to begin with. Bro. Kelley also preached some excellent sermons on Saturday and Sunday and Bro. Putney gave good, faithful counsel to the new branch.

There is a good work started here, Brn. Haws, Pickering, and Lawn having stirred up the people by presentation of the gospel during the past year, Bro. Haws gaining high commendation from the Saints and citizens for his gentlemanly manner towards his opponent in the debate and also for his clear cut arguments in defense of his position, which he clearly maintained, as is almost universally conceded.

On the 26th inst. the Watsonville branch was disorganized, the Saints having mostly moved away and no meetings could be held there for nearly two years. The furniture of the old church, which probably will be sold, will be used in the new chapel which will likely be built here, and perhaps the Bishop will use the funds he may get for the Watsonville property to assist in this chapel. I go to-day with Bro. Putney on our way to Dos Palos. In bonds,

J. F. BURTON.

SWEET HOME, Ore., July 9.

Editors Herald:—We have just closed a course of twenty meetings held in fifteen days at this place, which makes me feel somewhat weary for lack of sleep, as we have some distance to go to and from meetings. I am stopping at "the elders' home," with Bro. Morris. A very good interest was manifested throughout the meetings. I think an unusual degree of the Spirit was present at most of them, but of that I am hardly able to judge; for the last time we have the Spirit always seems the best; as it is in these outlying districts, the last elder that visits them is generally considered the ablest man. It is well that it is so for us small fellows. Four of the above meetings were used in discussing the respective claims of the church and that of the First-Day Advent Church, with Elder Norton of that faith, who is regarded by many of the people as an able man, by me as an honest man. Not an ungentlemanly word passed between us, and as a whole he acted very fair. Of course he used some of the old modes of arguments and expressions relative to the church, as "deceivers," "deception," and "show us a miracle;" but I am of the opinion he will never again ask a Latter Day Saint elder for a sign in public anyway. I doubt if he will ever consider it his duty to discuss with another.

As to the victory, that is a matter of opinion. We do not feel that the cause lost anything, and looking back over the battle field feel satisfied with the results and stronger in the cause than ever before; for another evidence has been received that our Father will help his ministry, will be with them always. The discussion was forced upon us.

Some have given their names for baptism; more are on the way. Some of the seed I was permitted to sow when here before has grown and been harvested by others. We cannot properly estimate the result of our sowing; it is growing, sometimes, when and where we least suppose. Let us sow, brethren, in faith, and we will reap in joy.

I find, as usual, that those who have preceded me here are highly spoken of, in some cases are regarded so very holy that they fancy no one else will do, and the last man is always the one most desired. Such work must surely tell in the world to come, if it does not here. I am going to quit following after "that man Daley." Bro. Haws leaves footprints all along his path that eternity will not obliterate. I don't know whether I will get the tent out or not. Bro. John Davis writes me that he is baptizing some in Washington; and so the work moves on, one here and two there. Saints wishing us to visit them will address me at this place; Bro. John Davis at Olney, King county, Washington.

I have loaned "The Braden and Kelley Debate" to some one. Will the borrower please send it to me here, I will pay charges on it. I need it.

Yours in gospel work,
HIRAM L. HOLT.

THE GATES OF HELL.

WHILE the Savior was interrogating his disciples in regard to the rumors concerning himself he stated that he would build his church upon a certain rock and that the gates of hell should not prevail against it.

Now, first, we inquire, What was it that the gates of hell should not prevail against? Was it the rock? or was it the church? It seems that the rock is the revealed will of God, and, inasmuch as revelation is as eternal as God himself, it could not be prevailed against. Some have concluded, therefore, that Jesus referred to the rock, as that against which the gates of hell should not prevail. Let us carefully examine this declaration of the Savior, as recorded:—

When Jesus came into the coasts of Cesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I, the Son of man, am? And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets. He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.—Matt. 16: 13-18.

It seems clear that Jesus Christ is presented as a master builder, and that which he was going to build, was that which should not be prevailed against by the gates of hell, which is the church.

In St. John 1: 6 we read:—

There was a man sent from God, whose name was John.

What was his mission? He came as a forerunner to prepare the way for Jesus Christ, or in other words, he came to prepare material for the master builder who would build the church or kingdom of God. The manner of preparing material by John was to call upon men and women to repent or reform, and be baptized in water for the remission of their sins and believe on him who should come to build the church, against which the gates of hell should not have power to prevail.

Jesus says:—

I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak.—John 12: 49.

Thus we see that God, through Jesus Christ, is the great author of all this. Now let us see how he proceeds in building the church. He takes of the material already prepared by John, as referred to, and prepares some himself in the same manner and proceeds to arrange them. It is so nicely expressed by the Apostle Paul that we give his words:—

And God [through Jesus Christ] hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues.—1 Cor. 12: 28.

Also in verse 18:—

But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him.

From these passages of Scripture we learn that the church is God's organized government on earth for the salvation or redemption of the human family. The chief material or officers in the church, in this government, are apostles and prophets. Paul in this twelfth chapter of first Corinthians, seeks to make this matter very clear by making a comparison of the church to that of the body of a man; so that no one need be mistaken. He says the man is composed of many members, such as head, feet, arms, eyes, nose, mouth, ears, etc., yet but one body, and God had arranged them as it pleased him. Now it requires all these members to constitute a perfect man; one member could not say to another "I have no need of you; that is, the eye could not say to the ear, I have no need of you; nor the hands to the feet, I have no need of you; it required them all to form a perfect man; every member performs its own work; the eyes see, the ears hear, the feet walk, etc. After the Apostle Paul reasons with them in this manner, he says to them, as members of the church:—

Ye are the body [church] of Christ, and members in particular.—1 Cor. 12: 27.

This has all been done by the wisdom of God. Let us see how the members in the body of a man correspond with those of the church. The prophet is a seer, and is to the church what the eye is to the body. Dear reader, think for a moment, when a man has lost the use of his eyes, what a deplorable condition he is in; and as with the body of a man, says Paul, so with the church.

The apostle is the member through which the church receives nourishment, which corresponds to that of the mouth through which the body is fed. Now, when we see this instruction of Paul to the saints, it seems no wonder that he forbade that one member should ever say to another member, "I have no need of you." Yet right in the face of Paul's teaching, professors of religion will say, "We have no need of inspired apostles or prophets," and instead they build seminaries and colleges in which they educate men to teach the word of God when God has declared that by the wisdom of man we cannot understand the things of God, that they are only understood by inspiration.

We pass over many of the members of the church, such as workers of miracles, healers of the sick, speakers in tongues, interpreters of tongues, etc. We call to mind the language of the poet, where he says:—

A church without apostles,
Or prophets, or the gifts,
Is like a ship at ocean,
That with the current drifts.
Without a chart or compass,
Or rudder to direct,
Soon on the shoals and breakers
She hopelessly is wrecked.

Now, query. Has that church which Christ built continued to exist on earth among men? The Roman Catholic Church says, yes. And the sectarian churches nearly all say, no; and protest against the claim made by the Roman church, and hence are known as Protestant churches.

We will examine some of the prophetic statements in the Bible, and I think we will come to the conclusion that Martin Luther and others were correct in protesting against the claims made by the old church. After the departure of some of the apostles, grievous wolves would enter the church, also men of your own selves, members of the church with corrupt minds, would arise speaking perverse things (Acts 20: 29, 30), and the result would tend to the destruction of the church; truth would not be approved of, but fables would be substituted for the doctrine of Christ; and instead of asking God to select men and inspire them with the Holy Ghost to teach the doctrines of Christ, they would heap to themselves teachers who would turn their itching ears away from the truth or doctrine of Christ (2 Tim. 4: 3, 4), to deathbed stories and fables; and they would draw near to God with the mouth, and with the lips would honor him, while the heart was removed far from him, and fear toward God would be taught by the precepts of men. (Isa. 29: 13.)

Finally the church went into the wilderness, and ceased to exist among men on the earth. Thus a famine, not hunger for bread nor thirst for water, but for hearing of the word of God would spread all over the land (Amos 8: 11); and darkness would cover the earth and gross darkness the minds of the people (Isa. 60: 2); and like sheep without a shepherd would go astray, and every one turn to his own way. (Isa. 53: 6.)

Thus the whole earth became defiled, and a sad condition would be the result among all. As with the people, so it would be with the priest; as with the master, so with the servant; as with the maid, so with her mistress; as with the buyer, so with the seller (Isa. 24: 2), and the reason assigned is:—

Because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, and broken the everlasting covenant.—Isa. 24: 5.

And whereas God ceased to manifest himself among the people, they concluded that the day of miracles and revelation was past, that a form of Godliness was all that was necessary, and as a result would publicly deny the power which in all ages of the world distinguished God's people from those of the world. But the facts are, God's arm is not shortened that he cannot save, neither is his ear heavy that he cannot hear; but their iniquities had separated between them and their God; and their sins had hidden his face from them. (Isa. 59: 1, 2.) From all this, we learn that the church which Christ established, against which the gates of hell should not prevail, did cease to exist among men on earth, and the position of Martin Luther and others seems to be correct. These facts are a stumbling block to some, and a rock of offense to others, because it has been supposed that Christ meant that the church should always continue; but Christ has nowhere so intimated, and, when he said that the gates of hell should not prevail against it, he made no mistake. Where, then, is the mistake? It is or has been because of private interpretations, which nearly always result in incorrect conclusions and in leading men astray. Christ, in substance, plainly stated that no power should be able to prevent it from accomplishing its purpose.

Satan with his hell was the opposing power of Christ and his church. The mission of Christ was to save or redeem the human family, as Paul says:—

For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.—1 Cor. 15: 22.

Some religionists have been quite offended with the writer, because of reference to this passage of Scripture; but thank God the writer is not the author of it, it was printed in the Bible long before he was born, no doubt Satan is also displeased because of it. Now, dear reader, listen to Christ as he talks with his disciples: As my father has sent me, even so send I you, I give you power to treat a devil as an intruder and cast him out wherever you find him. This power was authority, which in our text is called "the keys of the kingdom." Turn with me and read:—

I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death.—Rev. 1: 18.

Thus we learn that Christ is master of the situation. We also read that he openeth and no man shutteth, and shutteth and no man openeth. (Rev. 3: 7.) It is also said that he is the Savior of all men, but especially of those that believe; thus we see that there is a common salvation, or in other words, a Savior of all men. He is also an especial Savior to them that believe, such will become heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ, and reign with him.

It is so beautifully expressed by the prophets, that he should not only teach those who lived in the flesh how to overcome the Devil by obedience to the commandments of God, but that he, having the keys of hell, would go and unlock the door or gates of hell, and let those who are held there as prisoners come out.

The Apostle Peter, also, seemed to have a clear conception of this fact; he said:—

For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit: by which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison [or hell]—1 Peter 3: 18, 19.

In the above scripture it is clearly expressed how he used the keys of hell, and how the gates thereof failed to prevail. He opened the gates of hell, preached the gospel to its inmates some of whom had allowed the Devil to deceive them in the days of Noah while the ark was preparing, and to lead them captive by rejecting the gospel, the same as some are now.

But Christ came to them also as a Savior, opened the gates of hell, or the prison doors, and preached to them the gospel. The object of this was:—

That they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the Spirit.—1 Peter 4: 6.

Now in conclusion: as Christ is the leader in all things pertaining unto righteousness, so his chosen disciples are to follow him in his work:—

The works that I do shall he do also.—John 14: 12.

Yes, and, as God is the same in all dispensations, we have reason to believe that not only those faithful men of eighteen hundred years ago, but also men of this dispensation, will do the same work.

While Elder Zenas Gurley, Sr., lay on his deathbed he called for the elders to administer unto him, that he might recover. After praying and anointing him with oil, the elders laid their hands upon his head and asked God that he would grant that the administration might be effectual, to cause that the affliction might be removed, and that he be restored to health. But God manifested himself in a different direction. While in this position, with their hands upon his head, our brother, who is now in the far off islands of the sea holding up the banner of light to a benighted people, began to speak in an unknown tongue. The interpretation in substance was thus: My Servant Zenas, as you have labored faithfully in this life, and have brought hundreds to the knowledge of God and his love to man, so you shall now go and preach unto the spirits in prison and bring thousands to the light of God's truth, etc.

May God help us to rightly understand the establishing of his church, not only in the days of Christ, but also in our day; and that we by obedience may overcome our own besetting sins, and so live in this life, that we may be worthy to become kings and priests unto God and reign with Christ. Amen.

A FEW THOUGHTS ON INFIDELITY.—NO. 2.

BY FANNIE JONES.

"ALL this talk about a Supreme Being existing is nonsense and is only superstition, and has been inculcated in us by our ancestors."

If that is true why is it that even among heathen nations the mind is so persistent in the conception of a deity and shows no repugnance to it? Turn to history and there you will find that this same idea has maintained itself in all ages, representing one of the most universal conditions of the race. That an idea so thoroughly normal to the human mind as this has proved to be, forcing itself into recognition everywhere and in all ages, asserting a virtual omnipresence in the thoughts and belief of races under all conditions and changes; and yet be wholly false and illegitimate, a universal and necessary mistake, is against all natural and reasonable probability.

"I must see God before I believe he is. Your argument looks very plausible, but in this age of the world it will not stand the test."

You have never been to China or India, and consequently have not seen those countries, and yet you believe they are. Now, why not be just on this question, and when you look on the earth say there must be a designer to it; for did you ever see anything without there was a maker to it? Your theory of no Supreme Being will not stand the test; we again quote some of Valentine's thoughts on the subject: "Religious sentiments and proclivities have been found in all nations and tribes. Worship offered to a Supreme Being or some divinity supposed to control the welfare and destroy man has been coeval and co-extensive with the race. However degraded the savagery, or blind and distorted the impulse, the instinct has been there." The religious principle or sentiment in man has been as powerful as certain. It has woven itself in with the entire structure of human society and life, and has run its clear lines through every system of thought and philosophy. Even when the idea of God is theoretically discarded and religion rejected, the force of the original adaptation and affinity for religion, refusing to be utterly wiped out, is wont to assert itself in the very face of the denial. Auguste Comte, who built his philosophic theory on atheism and a denial of all religious verities, in the end, led by his own emotional nature which his system had defrauded, "appended his scheme of deifying ideal humanity and establishing a system of worship. Though he rejected religion in the beginning, the necessities of worship of some sort forced the manufacture of a new religion at the last" and rites. Materialism and materialistic philosophies are found returning upon their own paths in this respect. Unwilling or unable to discern any God in the universe or any spiritual existence in man, not believing in any future life or any supernatural power; "recognizing the existence of only force and matter evolving all physical and mental phenomena, they yet, in the end, not only consent to the fact of the religious necessities of human nature, but proceed to tell how it may still worship when God is denied and both freedom and responsibility are theoretically destroyed."

All you, infidels, have failed by your theories to destroy the religiousness that lies in the very depths of the soul's constitution. You invite us to exercise the religious sensibilities in reverence, homage, and trust in nature, in the universe as the highest form of power. You want us to replace the idea of God by that of Cosmos; for does not Strauss, Haeckel, Schmitt, and others demand that we have the same piety for their Cosmos that the devout of old demanded for God. What is the meaning of all this, friends? We believe it clearly proves that these deep and abiding instincts must imply the existence of the Divine Being. You all know that: "The eye is answered by light, the ear by the atmosphere, the lungs by the air; the appetite by food; over and against the intellect, and fitting it are the objects of knowledge. Every positive, normal instinct expresses a truth whether it teaches the bee to construct its cell, or the bird its nest, or direct the fishes to distant waters to deposit their eggs." It does not mock or point to nothing. Then, to look upon the deep religious human instincts as deceptive and spurious would be utterly unreasonable and unscientific. They therefore prove the real existence of the Infinite, Supreme Being.

Infidelity shouts: "There is a mystery connected with the Supreme Being that no argument can clear and therefore it is best to believe what we can understand and leave this mystery alone; for the more you investigate it the more puzzled you become."

There may be a mystery surrounding God, but that constitutes no argument against it. For is there any science, within the range of our investigation in which difficulties are not found? Some of these are inexplicable on any known principles, and perfectly incomprehensible, so far by the human intellect, but that does not prove that these sciences are not true. Are there no difficulties in medicine? None in law? None in philosophy? Or in the occurrences of ordinary life? And yet you are not so notional as to infer that there can be no truth in medicine, law, history, or philosophy because there are depths in them which the plumb line of human reason is unable to fathom, and difficulties which the human intellect fails utterly to explain.

While you are arguing so strongly against the existence of a Supreme Being let me ask you a question: Where does the power of language come from? It is not a natural power. It has been proved by experiment, again and again, that a child left to itself, without instruction in this respect will never learn to speak. The power of uttering articulate, intelligible sounds, is not an intuitive power. Until the child has a teacher he will never learn to speak. Our first parents, we believe, at the time of their creation, were only like children of a larger growth. The power of speech was no more natural to them than it is to us, or to our offspring. Then God must certainly at the time of their creation made a revelation to them; or have taught them language.

Where did the first idea of God come from? It must have come through revelation, consequently revelation was what was the basis at the beginning of the world that God had made to deal with man. If we admit the idea that God made a revelation of himself, all things are clear in relation to where man first received a knowledge of God and language, reject it and it is impossible to account for the idea of a Divine Being which we find so universal among the race.

"If God is the Ruler of the universe and all things are possible for him, whence, then, the sufferings and crimes of this world. He must enjoy seeing it or he would not allow it."

God made man a free agent, and he abused his freedom and brought sin and death into the world, for by abusing this freedom that God gave man discord has been produced, and man has become the victim of that discord. We have no more right to attribute our sufferings to the design of God than the criminal has the right to attribute his punishment to the judge who sentenced him for his crime; for if there had been no crime there would be no punishment.

"How can God be a just God and allow little children to be punished for the sins of their parents."

God does not allow it. Adam and Eve sinned and by sinning they became the children of the Devil, and we read in John 8: 54 the following: "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do." Thus through this law of heredity which the Bible and science prove, death and disease has been placed upon the whole human family, and as like shall produce like, we can see where children suffer and that God is not responsible for it. When our first parents fell from their high estate, their minds became sinful and through their law of heredity their children were brought into the world with a nature predisposed to crime and licentiousness. You know as well as I that infants are of plastic material, and are creatures of their environment, ready to be developed into criminals or saints, Christians, Mohammedans, Buddhists, Nihilists, or sanguinary fanatics according to the environments that we give them, and consequently they must suffer with the parents.

With such a theory as you have there must be something inexplicable in the sufferings of this life; for you believe in no reward hereafter, but to us who believe in a future state where all men will be judged according to the deeds they have done it is all explained. We are willing to suffer with patience and resignation here on earth believing it only a temporary home, and having the consoling hope that when we pass away we will enter into that future state where death and pain are no more.

Conference Minutes.

NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

Conference convened at Pelican Rapids, Otter Tail county, Saturday, June 9, at 7:30 p. m.; A. Whiting president, G. L. Jones secretary. Ministry reporting: Elders A. Whiting, H. Way, S. Swensen, E. A. Stedman, T. J. Martin, W. Barnhard, and W. Sparling; Priest W. W. McLeod. Branch reports: Oak Lake 84; 3 baptized, 1 received, 3 removed, 1 expelled, 16 absent. Union 65; 1 died, 15 absent. Central 17, 1 received, 1 removed, 1 absent. Minneapolis 31; 3 baptized, 1 absent. Elder T. J. Martin was chosen district president and G. L. Jones was sustained secretary. The following preamble and resolution was adopted by the unanimous vote of the conference: Whereas we have learned with deep sorrow of the death of our beloved brother and coworker in the gospel, Apostle Thomas W. Smith, the pioneer laborer and organizer in this field, many of us regarding him as our father in the gospel, he having baptized and ordained us: Therefore, be it resolved that we bow in humble submission to the divine will; that while our hearts are filled with sorrow, we trust that our loss is his gain; that in him the church has lost an efficient officer and we a faithful and loving brother. Preaching by Elders A. H. Smith, S. Swensen, W. Sparling, A. Whiting, T. J. Martin, and H. Way. Adjourned to meet at Luce, Otter Tail county, the first Saturday and Sunday in November.

KEWANEE.

Conference convened at the Saints' chapel in Millersburg, Illinois, Saturday, June 2, 1894, at ten a. m. Elder John Chisnall in the chair, J. L. Terry secretary pro tem. Branch reports: Millersburg 68; 3 received, 4 baptized. Kewanee 90; 2 baptized. Canton 42; 17 absent. Buffalo Prairie 49; no change. Henderson Grove report referred back for correction. Ministry reporting: Elders F. G. Pitt, J. Chisnall, E. E. Wheeler, J. L. Adams, I. B. Larue, J. W. Terry, D. S. Holmes, H. Holmes, J. L. Terry, J. F. Adams, and D. Smith (who was ordained during conference); Priests W. Willet, F. Needam, J. H. Norris, and W. P. Terry; Teachers E. Epperly and J. Brown; Deacons J. C. Epperly, C. M. Duncan, and J. H. Allen. The Bishop's agent's report was read and accepted but failed to give the secretary the amount of receipts and expenditures. Two were baptized during conference. J. W. Terry was chosen vice president. Adjourned to meet at Buffalo Prairie branch the first Saturday and Sunday of September, 1894.

NORTHEASTERN ILLINOIS.

Conference convened with the DeKalb branch, June 23, 1894, 10:30 a. m.; F. G. Pitt presiding, M. J. Danielson secretary. Branch reports: Mission 102, loss 2; Unity 31, no change; East Delavan 56, loss 2; Sandwich 63, gain 1; Braidwood 50, loss 6; Plano 213, loss 3; Janesville 33, gain 7; First Chicago 96, gain 12. De Kalb. Ministry reporting: Elders F. G. Pitt, W. Vickery, C. D. Carter, W. Strange, J. S. Kler, A. J. Keck, C. G. Lanphere, J. B. Roush; Teacher J. L. Cooper. Bishop's agent's report. On hand last report $308.52; received since $118.24; paid out $155; on hand $271.76. Resolved that the president of each branch solicit means and send to the district president for the purchase of suitable seats for the district tent. By motion Mission branch was permitted to use the name Mission in Miller to define its location. The name of this district was changed from Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin to Northeastern Illinois. F. G. Pitt was sustained district president, M. J. Danielson clerk, and Thomas Hougas Bishop's agent. Preaching by Elders A. J. Keck, W. Vickery, Thomas Hougas, and F. G. Pitt. Adjourned to meet with the Mission branch October 13, 1894.

Sunday School Associations.

TEXAS CENTRAL.

Report of the Texas Central district from March 16, 1894, to July 1, 1894: Convened at Texas Central branch on July 13, 1894; E. W. Nunley superintendent, W. G. McIntosh secretary. Number of schools reporting 4; schools represented 3; delegates present 9; schools in district last report 5; present number 5; total membership of district last report 150; present membership 145; loss in membership 5; on hand last report $2.15; expended 40 cents; on hand $1.75. At last report total membership was erroneously given as 108, whereas it was 150. E. W. Nunley was chosen superintendent, F. C. Gough associate, W. G. McIntosh secretary. Adjourned to meet with the Cook's Point school on Friday night at eight p. m., before convening of next district conference.

Miscellaneous Department.

FLAG FOR THE GOSPEL BOAT.

The Sunday school scholars of the San Francisco branch are desirous to help in obtaining the flag for the Gospel Ship and they request that all the Sunday schools of the church join them in contributing for this purpose. Those desiring to join us in this work will please send their contributions to the Bishop of the church, Bro. E. L. Kelley, whose address will be 3010 Sixteenth street, San Francisco, California, care C. A. Parkin. Hoping all will take an interest in this work, We remain, Yours very respectfully, the San Francisco Sunday school.

A. COLLINS, Sec.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 19.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints of the Southern Missouri district:—The increasing magnitude of this district may not be apparent to all. The increasing demands made upon its three missionaries are many times more than we can fill, and at present one of us is the district president, which takes up a good deal of our time. The district comprises the counties of Green, Webster, Wright, Texas, Christian, Douglas, Taney, Ozark, Howell, Oregon, and Shannon. We have Saints in every county but Taney. All must be visited and will be just as soon as we are able.

Now I am unable to visit every Saint in order to collect tithes, so I take this means of appealing to you for aid to help roll along this great work. The church has come to your aid and sent you three missionaries. The first year there were no tithes sent from this field. Last year there were $101 paid in tithes which was mostly from newly baptized Saints, which we considered well for a start. This present year has opened up more favorable to the work. Many more have been and are being baptized. We need more help. The field is ripe. Will you help us with your tithes? The Bishop's expenses for elders' families at present for this district are $384 per year, and if this district comes short of that amount in tithes it must come from other districts, some just as poor as this district is. Just think how many doctor bills you have saved since you united with this church because God has kindly come to your relief; and he has also blessed you with fine prospects for a good crop. Now, dear Saints, while you are gathering your crops and paying your many small accounts, remember your account with your God. Don't put him off until the last and then say you don't have anything. But remember that the wise man has said (Prov. 3: 9-10): "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase: so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine." Cain and Abel also brought the first fruits as an offering. Remember this, dear Saints, and notice how God says he will bless you in so doing. Has not he been good to his word in the past, when he promised to bless you with his Spirit after obedience? Did he do it? He promised to bless you in sickness, has he fulfilled his word? Many, many times no doubt. Then surely he will bless you again in keeping the law of tithing. Some of the Saints have done well and many more have promised. Don't wait until you have saved $10 or more but send what you have. Several are paying their tithes in this manner and God is blessing them in so doing. In bonds,

HENRY SPARLING.

BURNHAM, Missouri.

LITERATURE WANTED.

Will the Saints please send their sermons, Ensigns, etc., to our address, as we are in a new field and can do much to spread the work by distributing literature. Now's a chance for you to help the missionaries, and augment the means for spreading the work. Let's have them at once.

The harvest is great, and laborers are few; But if we're united, we all things can do.

For the spread of truth,

W. S. MACRAE,

Box 104, Norman, Oklahoma.

CORRECTION.

In Herald of July 11 is found the report of Eastern Michigan district conference, with a mistake in financial report. To be correct it should read: Amount on hand at last conference $82.40; received $571.60; expenditures $589.60; on hand $64.40. This report is as shown by the books. The $82.40 was left out of the report. Respectfully,

A. E. HICKS, Dist. Sec.

REUNION NOTICES.

Reunion of the Fremont and Pottawattamie districts will be held on the grounds of Bro. Samuel Woods at Wheeler's Grove, Pottawattamie county, Iowa, commencing August 18, 1894. Bro. A. H. Smith, missionary in charge, will be with us, with Brn. Charles Derry, T. W. Williams, and other good preachers from adjoining districts. In order to make this meeting a success we earnestly entreat all the Saints of these two districts to turn out and attend as much as possible. Come one, come all, and bring your tents and be prepared to stay on the grounds, and take care of yourselves. Those coming by rail must be at Hastings in time to take the noon train on the branch road of the C. B. & Q. Teams will be at Macedonia to meet passengers and convey them free of charge to the camp ground.

By order of committee,

HENRY KEMP.

The general church reunion begins September 8, 1894, continuing over September 16, on the beautiful grounds near Logan, Iowa. Hay and wood at cost. Good speakers, good music. Railroad rates will be made known later. A word about tents: All parties wishing to rent tents will please write A. M. Fyrando, Magnolia, Iowa, or Joseph Seddon, Persia, Iowa, stating size desired. They will be procured at lowest possible rates. If you ask for a tent you will be expected to pay for it whether used or not. Do not expect us to procure tents for you unless you notify us four to six days ahead of time when wanted. Desirous that all will labor to the end that success may be attained, and that the Spirit of God may be with us, that we may rejoice and be strengthened.

A. M. FYRANDO, Magnolia, Iowa,
JOSEPH SEDDON, Persia, Iowa,
Secretaries.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

I wish to remind the Saints that our district conference will convene with the Woodside, Oregon county, branch at ten a. m., Friday before the first Sunday in September. Those coming by rail will be met at some point on the Current River road by writing Bro. A. M. D. McGuire, Woodside, Missouri. Those coming from the west by wagon, it will be best to come to Burnham first. All Sabbath schools will please send two or more delegates to talk over the advisability of having a district organization. Come one and all.
HENRY SPARLING.

By special request of the missionary in charge and with consent and cooperation of the branch in Wayne county, where the conference will be held, I have changed the time from August 25 to October 13 and 14. Brn. G. T. Griffiths, James Moler, and R. Etzenhouser will be in attendance. Let officers of branches see that proper reports are made and approved by vote of branch. Forward the same in due time to secretary, J. B. Russell, Goose Creek, West Virginia.
D. L. SHINN, Dist. Pres.

The West Virginia district conference will convene with the Centerville branch, Wayne county, West Virginia, on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in August, at ten a. m. Those wishing to attend will come to Catlettsburg, Kentucky, on the morning trains on the day before, and take the evening train on the Big Sandy railroad to Lockwood station, and inquire there for W. R. Odell, who will be there with teams to convey them out to Centerville. By request of the president,
G. H. GODBEY, Vice Pres.

GROVE MEETING.

Preaching services will be held near Allendale, Missouri, Saturday and Sunday, August 11 and 12, at ten a. m. and 2:30 p. m., daily, by Elders Lambert, Snively, and others.
WILLIAM ANDERSON, Dist. Pres.

SOUTHWESTERN IOWA REUNION.

The reunion of Fremont, Pottawattamie, and adjoining districts will convene at the grove of Bro. S. Wood, in Wheeler's Grove, Iowa, Saturday, August 18, at ten a. m. and continue until Sunday, August 26.

The grounds are situated about three and one half miles east of Macedonia, on the Hastings and Carson branch of the C. B. and Q. R. R. Persons coming by rail should time their departure from home so as to arrive at Hastings, Iowa, at or before noon, as there is but one train a day on the branch, and this does not run on Sunday. Transportation to the grounds may be had at all times at very reasonable rates, or free as the convenience of the Saints may admit.

Meals on the grounds for twenty-five cents, and board by week at customary rates on grounds. Lodging will be provided at or near the camp. All kinds of provisions will be sold on grounds. Down wood will be free. Hay and grain at market rates. Plenty of fresh water will be supplied. The grounds are well shaded and have a solid, blue grass sod, and will be arranged to best serve the camp. All will be done that can be done to make all comfortable.

Arrangements have been made to use one session each morning from Monday till Friday for Sunday school, and such other work as may come up in that line. Also a temperance program will be given probably in an evening. The music will be in charge of Bro. T. A. Hougas, who has for years heretofore made this one of the attractive features of the meeting. If you play an instrument of brass or string, bring it along to use.

Brn. Charles Derry, Alexander H. Smith, W. W. Blair, T. W. Williams, H. Kemp et al. will be in attendance as our speakers unless obliged to make a change later for some unforeseen reason. We are anticipating an excellent meeting, so come one and all to help make it and enjoy it.

ABE SMITH,
PETER FREDERICSON,
MARION ELSWICK,

NOTICES.

Notice is hereby given that the Nodaway district tent will be dedicated at Barnard, August 5, 1894. All the Saints in the district are invited to attend. Bro. J. R. Evans will be the speaker. The Saints of the Platt branch are invited to assemble on that day in joint session with those connected with the tent.

M. P. MADISON, Dist. Pres.

All the scattered members of the Union branch at Mill Creek and Hamburg, Iowa, who want letters of removal, please write to the undersigned, clerk of the branch, and oblige. Address,

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

A violent rain and hailstorm visited Niagara county, New York, July 21. Houses and barns were blown down, crops leveled, and orchards uprooted; twelve barns were blown from their foundations, and seventy-five houses unroofed. Niagara is the banner apple county of the State, and is practically one vast orchard. The hail destroyed nearly all the fruit which the wind left. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

BOISE, Idaho, July 21.—A terrible cyclone, the first in the history of Idaho, swept over Elk county yesterday, uprooting trees and killing thousands of cattle and sheep. Hailstones fell to the depth of five inches in some places. Trees were uprooted. The territory is sparsely settled or many would have been killed. Several persons are injured and some missing. Cyclones are unknown in Southern Idaho, and are seldom experienced in the northern part, where this occurred. Pine timber was literally swept from large tracts of land.

Commonwealers made a formal demand for food at Fremont, Ohio, and being refused destroyed property at the fair grounds. Company D. of the Seventh Regiment drove them from the town. The men had had but little food in twenty-four hours.

Eight cases of smallpox are reported as the average number of new cases in Milwaukee. It is said that city authorities suppress reports of the true state of affairs there and at other points where the disease has obtained a foothold.

PARIS, July 21.—The Chamber of Deputies has adopted the second clause of the anti-anarchist bill, providing that anarchist trials shall be before a correction tribunal composed of judges, instead of being tried by juries.

MADRID, July 21.—A force of Mohammedan Malays surprised the Spanish troops at Mindanao in the Malay Archipelago, but were repulsed. The Spaniards' loss was fourteen killed and forty-seven wounded. Twenty-seven Malays were killed.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 21.—The mediation committee of the A. R. U. held a meeting this evening and unanimously voted to declare the strike off unconditionally. They sent a short notice to that effect to Superintendent Fillmore. The military will remain two or three days yet to look after a few hot heads who have been intimidating workmen. As Superintendent Fillmore has already declared that he will not treat with the strikers and that no one will be discharged to make room for them, the position of the A. R. U. men is not promising. The railway company claims to have enough men already to conduct its business, and many of the strikers will not get back.

General Booth, head of the Salvation Army, will soon visit America.

Twenty-four persons were prostrated by the excessive heat at New York, July 21.

San Francisco advices from Yokohama to June 30 report the withdrawal of the Corean minister from Japan. Both China and Japan were massing large bodies of troops in the Corean peninsula.

Disaffected Catholic Poles of Cleveland, Ohio, have issued a call for the organization of an Independent Catholic Church. The call is extended to all irrespective of race. The seceders claim the right to read what they choose without consultation with the priesthood and deny the authority of episcopal superiors to interfere in any but spiritual matters. Another point of radical departure is contained in the declaration in favor of giving parents the option of sending their children either to public or parochial schools.

Dr. Stuart Eldridge, health officer at the port of Yokohama, has sent to the Washington Marine Hospital Bureau a semi-official statement of the epidemic of plague in Southern China. It appears from his report that the prevailing scourge, of which only fragmentary news has been received, is one of the most fearful on record, having its greatest hold at the port of Hongkong, where most of the foreign commerce touches. The disease broke out in February, and during March and April it steadily increased until it assumed fearful proportions. Japan has put a strict quarantine system in operation and by that means has prevented infection. Dr. Eldridge advises strict quarantine against certain classes of goods from China.

ROME, July 22.—In the Senate to-day Prime Minister Crispi referred to the recent capture of Kassala by the Italian forces, and added that it was to be hoped that Italy would find means to colonize Africa. The great object was to substitute immigration to Africa instead of America.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—The spread of cholera is assuming alarming proportions. There are 200 new cases and 100 deaths daily. The heat is stifling. The epidemic has reached the military camp at Krasnosno. The following are the official returns for the week ending yesterday. St. Petersburg, new cases 1,292, deaths 584. Cronstadt, new cases, 58, deaths 18. The figures below are for the week ending July 14: Warsaw (city), new cases 63, deaths 25. Province of St. Petersburg, new cases 247, deaths 34. Province of Warsaw, new cases 157, deaths 77. Province of Radom, new cases 243, deaths 103. Other provinces, new cases 180, deaths 72.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Standard telegraphs that, notwithstanding the attempts at concealment, it is clearly established that over a thousand persons lost their lives during the recent earthquakes.

Mexico and Guatemala will cooperate to stop brigandage and smuggling on their respective frontiers.

PARIS, July 23.—Remarkable precautions will be taken during the trial of Santo Cesario, the murderer of President Carnot. The trial will begin in Lyons the 27th. On his way to the court and back the prisoner will have a strong police and military escort. The courthouse will be guarded by infantry, and a battalion of police and an unbroken line of policemen will surround it. Detectives at every entrance will scrutinize all persons attending the trial. Only those having permits and cards of identification will be allowed to enter.

DULUTH, Minn., July 23.—Forest fires are getting worse and now threaten to destroy the crops and buildings of hundreds of farmers scattered through the woods near this city. Yesterday the fire department was called out to protect farm property and is still at work. The fires run in the stubble and timber with terrible rapidity. Heavy and continuous rains are the only thing that will save hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property of farmers in this vicinity.

VIRGINIA, Minn., July 23.—A forest fire has been raging in this vicinity for the last twenty-four hours. Virginia was entirely surrounded by fire yesterday and barely escaped destruction. The engine house of Lone Jack mine with a large amount of cordwood was totally destroyed. The forest is still on fire to-day and the fire companies are using every effort to keep the fire out of the town. Fires are reported down the lines of the Mesaba and Northern Railway. All the Mesaba range towns are located in the forests and unless it rains soon serious damage will result.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., July 23.—The bridge on the Omaha railroad above Spooner was burned last evening by forest fires, delaying the Duluth train several hours. The forest fires are reported as raging furiously in the northern part of the State once more, the rains of last week having been insufficient to put them out entirely. Around West Superior great damage is feared, several small towns being threatened.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., July 24.—The forest fires which have been raging in the northern counties of Wisconsin and on the Mesaba range for several days are doing much damage. The 600 foot bridge of the Northern Pacific Railroad across the Amnion River was entirely destroyed last night and it will take a crew working night and day at least a week to replace it. Several houses on the outskirts of the village of Virginia, which were burned out last summer, were destroyed again yesterday. Millions of feet of pine have also been destroyed and the total damage is high.

DULUTH, Minn., July 24.—The forest fires about Duluth and the towns on the Mesaba Range continue to be serious and unless there is rain very soon the damage can but be great. At Onocota, between Duluth and West Duluth, the fire yesterday afternoon burned down into the town, but was kept at bay by the fire department.

The first train for the south in twenty-three days left Butte, Montana, July 21. The number of troops massed there on that date was 1,200.

Three deputy sheriffs were shot and killed by striking miners at Coalburg, Alabama, July 24.

MOLINE, Ill., July 24.—A hot wave struck this vicinity this afternoon, the mercury rising from 88° to 103° in the shade inside of an hour. This was the hottest weather of the season.

DAVENPORT, Iowa., July 24.—This has been the hottest day on record here, the thermometer at the local office of the Weather Bureau registering 100°.

PERRY, Ok., July 24.—This has been the hottest day ever experienced in this city. The thermometer showed 114° at two o'clock in the shade and 140° in the sun. From noon till five o'clock it was from 105° to 115° in the shade. Several were prostrated by heat.

BOMBAY, July 24.—Storms and floods in Western India have caused much damage to the crops. Many lives have been lost.

SHANGHAI, July 24.—It is generally believed here that Japan does not desire pacific settlement of the Korean dispute. As evidence of this, attention is called to the fact that as soon as one difficulty is overcome, Japan immediately raises another. The latest attitude of the King of Corea in the crisis is supposed to be due to China's decided measures to insist on its claims to sovereignty over the Korean peninsula. The reports that France and Russia will support Japan against China are pronounced to be absolutely groundless.

Communication with Peking, which was interrupted by the floods, has been restored. The report that war had been declared between China and Japan was premature, although the outlook is more threatening.

LONDON, July 24.—No confirmation has been received of the alleged private dispatch sent out by a news agency that Japanese gunboats had begun the bombardment of Korean ports. The morning papers of London either denied the report altogether or discredited it.

The Senior Consul, representing the foreign Consuls at Shanghai, has been officially notified that the government is preparing to block the Yang-Tse-Kiang River at the bar near Woozung, at any moment, in case of need.

The opinion expressed in official circles here is that war is inevitable. The Chinese and Japanese ministers to-day had long and separate conferences at the Foreign Office with the officials of the government.

In official circles here there is reported to be no change in the Korean situation.

BERLIN, July 24.—The German warship Wolf will leave Shanghai to-day for Che Fow, on the north coast of the Sah Too Promontory, within easy distance of Corea.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, July 24.—The Nicaraguan General, Cabassas, has been reinforced and has retaken Bluefields, but he was compelled to ask British aid in order to succeed. Mr. Gosling, the British Minister, arrived there, and through the British Consul, who has a great influence over the Jamaicans, he induced them to lay down their arms. Chief Clarence's forces were driven from the bluff, but they are holding the coast. Clarence is mustering a force in the interior and has officered his men with Americans.

LONDON, July 24.—Paul Siewwers writes to the Standard that he is in receipt of advices from Norway that leave little doubt that the Wellman Arctic expedition is lost. Experienced skippers just returned from the Spitzbergen Seas express the same opinion, and Col. Fielding, who accompanied Capt. Nares' expedition in 1875, shares this belief. The Pall Mall Gazette is in receipt of similar advices from Tromsøe, all confirming the general belief in the fate of the expedition.

Chicago strikers assaulted a building used by stock yards employees of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad on the night of July 26th, with a determination to mob its occupants but were driven away by armed deputies on guard. Forty shots were fired, but darkness prevented obtaining information of the injured.

PRINCETON, Ill., July 26.—An epidemic of prairie fires in Bureau county to-day has resulted in heavy losses to farmers in many localities. There has been no rain in this county for five weeks and the fires made great headway. Along the Walnut branch of the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railroad a large number of fields have already burned and fires are still raging.

PRENTICE, Wis., July 26.—Forest fires are raging throughout this county. High winds have prevailed all day and fanned the flames until they cover an immense tract of land. McConda hamlet, on the Soo line, has been destroyed, and a bridge on that railroad has burned. All trains going east are held here. Other small towns are surrounded and men are working to save their property. The sky is brightly illuminated and the air is heavy with smoke. Farmers are coming into town who have lost everything. A large amount of hemlock bark and logs have been destroyed, and a heavy loss will fall on timber owners unless rain comes soon. The loss will be large.

General Coxey has deserted the commonwealth army at Camp Lost Liberty, near Washington, on the plea that his personal affairs required his attention. He deserted the camp with his Son Jesse, after advising members of the army to shift for themselves individually.

Telegrams from numerous points in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, and South Dakota report great damage to crops by hot winds and drought, with a temperature of 100° to 110° in the shade.

President Cleveland has appointed Judge N. E. Worthington of Peoria, Illinois, and John D. Kernan of New York, to act with Labor Commissioner, Carroll D. Wright, to act as a board to investigate recent labor disturbances.

Cablegrams report a strained situation between China and Japan, but hopes are entertained that war will be averted.

Cholera is spreading in Galicia. Traffic across the frontier has been prohibited.

The French Chamber of Deputies has adopted the government's anti-anarchist bill.

Saturday's steamer will carry $4,000,000 in gold to Europe.

Hurricanes and floods are reported from the Guadalajara districts in Spain.

A number of towns have suffered severely, crops have been badly damaged, and several lives lost.

Both of Mr. Gladstone's eyes are affected.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 27.—Reports from Ashland say forest fires have destroyed Phillips and Shore's Crossing, Wisconsin, and now threaten Fifield, Wisconsin. Mason, a small town on the Omaha road, is now on fire. At last reports the White River Lumber company's mills, with 40,000,000 feet of lumber, had been burned. Several railroad bridges burned. Omaha freight train dived near Shore's Crossing. Engineer and fireman injured; brakeman missing. Loss at Mason over $1,000,000.

Lightning ignited the prairie a few miles from Pierre, South Dakota, July 27. One man and several horses were burned to death. Thousands of tons of hay were destroyed.

Prairie fires were raging between Huntington and Fort Wayne, Indiana July 27. Thousands of acres of wheat, oats, hay fields, and stubble fields have been burned.

The town of Bonaparte, Iowa, was reported burning on the 27th. Keokuk, Iowa, was preparing to send fire extinguishing apparatus.

General Coxey, at Massillon, Ohio, denies that he deserted the commonwealthers at Washington.

Earthquake shocks have been felt in Macedonia, Old Servia, and Eastern Bulgaria. Many houses have been damaged and a number of people killed at Varha, Bulgaria.

It is reported that the Nicaraguan minister at Washington has been authorized to arrange for a United States' protectorate, for which purpose a request will be made for the sending of additional war vessels to the Mosquito coast.

SHANGHAI, July 27.—A telegram was received yesterday evening from a high authority at Tientsin, reporting that the prospects for the continuation of peace were more favorable. To-day, however, news was received that war between China and Japan had been declared. There have also been rumors that several Chinese war ships are in trouble.

The information received here is meager, and the exact status of affairs in Corea cannot be learned. Telegraphic communication with Corea is interrupted.

LONDON, July 27.—The Central News has this dispatch from Shanghai: "War has been declared between Japan and China. The Japanese have seized the King of Corea and hold him prisoner. Eleven Chinese steamers are on their way to Corea. Most of the troops aboard them are coolies armed with bows and arrows. Some Chinese steamers which have arrived at Corea have been prevented by the Japanese from landing troops. It is reported that the Japanese artillery sank several of them."

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE,
WITH INTRODUCTION BY ELDER W. W. BLAIR.

A book in which is traced the intimate connection between the history of Protestantism and the founding of the Government of the United States with the event of the restored Gospel; interwoven with which is a tender story from a real life, telling of the efforts of one to find the Kingdom of God, its object being to trace God in modern history, and to show that his dealings with men are as clearly discernible now as in ancient times.

Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants Answered and Refuted.

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Paper covers.....$ 25
Cloth..... 40

The author states and answers the leading criticisms made upon the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants that have been urged by opponents of the latter-day work since its inception.

In answering objections, other and general lines of defense are suggested.

The work is valuable, both as a specific vindication of the books named, and as a general defense of Christianity.

The chapters contain subheadings for ready reference. Indexed; 126 pages.

ABSTRACT of EVIDENCE TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

This work is an abstract of the sworn testimony of both Plaintiff's and Defendant's witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickites (a faction from the Original Church) for title to and possession of the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri. The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, and who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, and the testimony of members of the Hedrickite organization, is given; also the statements of said witnesses under cross-examination and recross-examination.

Evidence from the three standard books, and from the publications of the Original Church, and the Reorganized Church, the Hedrickite faction, and from those of the Utah Church, is presented in support of the claims of the Reorganized Church to be the successor of the Original Church, showing it to be the authorized and identical continuation of said Original Church and entitled to its property, while all other factions have departed from the Original Church in organization, in teaching, and in practice.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, three pamphlets, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

A valuable volume of evidence for ministry and laity; useful in refuting the many misrepresentations of the early church and its ministry and membership.

A limited edition has been published. Price, bound in law sheep (Counsel's argument in separate binding), $3.00.
Bound in cloth $2.50.

HESPERIS

contains the poetical numbers of Bro. David H. Smith. His verse is touched throughout by the inspiration of the latter-day work. His numbers are rich in spiritual tone and pathos. The book is beautifully bound and its entire mechanical work is excellent.

The Complete Catalogue is replete with valuable publications suitable for all classes.

Juvenile books, Sunday school scholars' and teachers' supplies, and works of value to members and ministry will be found in its list.

A Book for Everybody!

Autobiography of ELDER JOSEPH LUFF

The Struggles, Failures, and Successes in the Life of one who is now a Prominent Minister of the Church.

A Medley of Mischief, Mirth, Folly, Pride, Self-will, Honor, Devotion, and Sentiment, as found in the Character of a Boy whom God in due time selected as an ambassador for Himself, and

Who To-day Stands as a Monument of Divine Grace!

The Book contains a history of his conversion to and from Methodism, his acceptance of the restored gospel, a dissertation on the leading features of the doctrine that moved him to obedience, his call as a minister and experiences as such, together with a recital of some striking incidents, showing divine interference and blessing. The autobiography has been revised by Bro. Luff since its publication in Autumn Leaves, and a large amount of doctrinal matter has been added in appropriate places. TWO SERMONS, one on the "Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man," and one on "The Modern Stumbling-Stone," have been added also, making it just the kind of a book to have in the family.

Price, cloth bound, $1.25.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY.

I have berries, grapes, and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I use the California Cold Process; do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last week I sold directions to over 120 families; anyone will pay a dollar for directions, when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and complete directions to any of your readers for eighteen two cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc., to me. PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD; THE APOSTASY, REFORMATION, AND RESTORATION.

By Elder Wm. H. Kelley. New, Revised, and Enlarged Edition. It contains 421 pages of closely written matter, with autograph and likeness of the Author and is printed in good, readable type, with neat binding. The work is a library within itself; a marvel of trenchant criticism and logical deductions from historical facts; a key to the right understanding of the Bible and modern diverse systems of faith and worship. It discusses the issues of theology that are to the front to-day. It treats largely of Ministerial Authority as associated with the Melchisedek and Aaronic Priesthoods, and the Ideal Church of New Testament times is conspicuously set forth in striking contrast with the creeds and systems of church building since the days of the Apostles. Also the claims for the Restoration of the Gospel at a later day than the Apostolic age are critically examined in the light of prophecy and history, which is a subject of great moment to men of every faith. A historical resume or brief is also inserted of the rise and development of the "apostate church," and an exegesis of the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the revelation of the "sealed book." Also the origin of modern churches and creeds, etc.

HIS THEME IS "WORK."

PRESIDENT John W. Cook's baccalaureate at the Normal University, Bloomington, Illinois, June 17:—

Work is creative activity. Its dignity is attested by the announcement which opens the sacred Scriptures. The being that embodies for the human soul its sublimest conception of power and worth is introduced to the race as a worker. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." Jesus of Nazareth, who came into the turbulence and despair of the world to quiet its noisy strife and to set in the firmament the deathless star of hope, certified to the divinity of his origin and his mission by the terse declaration, "I work." Man, made in the image of God and brother of the benignant Christ, touches the summit of being in the same supreme activity. Whoever has been seized by this sublime earnestness through which the possible becomes the real belongs to the great creative forces of the universe. All that will not submit to this crucial test must be excluded from the productive brotherhood of world-builders. What defense can they offer for occupying the precious spaces of the world and consuming like the corroding rust the substances that belong to those agencies that would transmute them into fine utilities? The spiritual development of the race is chiefly due to the laborious toil of that portion of the race to whom we assign the lofty rank of leadership. It is from their large vicarious lives that we largely acquire our conceptions of infinite love and beneficence. They are the souls in whom the race awakens to consciousness. They know humanity as it cannot know itself. They feel for humanity as it cannot feel for itself. Their Godlike wills achieve the deeds that create nations and give to the individual the supreme opportunity to be a man and not a mere unit lost in the vortex of universal life.

Read in the stern features and prophetic eyes of the Moses of Angelo and in the "divine mystery" of the Sistine Madonna the struggle of art to utter this sublime truth. The muse of history articulates the message more distinctly to the race. Socrates, the freedom-loving barons of Runnymede, the unconquerable Hollanders, the dauntless Swiss, the precious cargo of the historic Mayflower, Garrison in the streets of Boston with a rope about his neck, Phillips defying the "broadcloth mob," the cheering regiments marching away to death in '61, and Lincoln with the laurel on his serene brow suggest the long struggle for personal liberty. The slow evolution of modern science by which the conception of law has supplanted the wild fear of malicious duties and necessitated a readjustment of ideas in every realm of human thought is marked at every step by the fierce opposition and merciless resentment of theologians and ecclesiastics who saw in the widening revelations of God only impending peril to the dearest hopes of man. But the sturdy and heroic investigator could not close his eyes to the beatific vision of a world safe sheltered under the broad ægis of universal law. That mighty movement that is celebrated whenever the significant symbols "A. D." mark the place of an event in time had its humble beginning in the three short years of incomparable toil that culminated in the pitiful tragedy of Calvary. That modest mount, barely lifted from the plain, towers above the Himalayan ranges, in which a continent rises to meet the sky and on its glowing summit stands the emblem which a regenerated world proudly wears above its beating heart. Take your departure from any vantage ground of political liberty, of scientific enlightenment, or of religious enfranchisement and move toward their point of genesis and you discover that every advance in the ascending pathway has been won by the faithful toilers who felt themselves in some way, dim or clear, God's revealers of truth, and who foreshadowed the man of Galilee or caught the spirit that lit a beacon for humanity on every rugged hilltop in old Judea. The method of the past is the method of the present. Struggle is God's law of growth. The present has come into our hands from the great past, and like that past is full of problems that will tax our courage and fidelity.

The crying need of the times is social regeneration. We have worked out some of the gravest problems that ever confronted any people, but the most difficult remains. In the presence of the tendencies and temptations of the modern world, are we equal to the task of producing a race of men and women of stalwart honesty and incorruptible integrity in all the situations of life—workers of justice, believers in the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God? All events, when seen in their true perspective, unite themselves to your life and to mine. There is no sailor on all the stormy main, no miner delving in the hidden depths by the flickering light of his poor lamp, no molder in furnace blasts of mills whose gorgeous beacons wave like banners from their high turrets, no weaver bending over his noisy loom, no honest toiler anywhere in all the ranks of honest labor that is not doing an indispensable part toward bringing the kingdom of heaven to man.

To you is accorded the incomparable privilege of dealing with the sources of power. You are to preside over the institution from which States emerge and in which the weal or woe of nations is largely shaped. Be faithful unto death to your large and sacred trusts nor shame the greatness of your priceless opportunity.

The paper on "Male and Female Attire in Various Nations and Ages," by Mrs. Ellen Battelle Dietrick in the August Arena, will get a wide reading. It is an historical examination of the fascinating subject of costume, which meets the arguments of those opposed to modern dress reform movements on the grounds of custom and historical precedent by showing that women were the original inventors and wearers of trousers, and that their early use by men was deprecated as effeminate. Strabo, a Greek historian, about 450 B. C., remarks this peculiar feminine costume which the Persians adopted after conquering the Medes from the vanquished. The Greeks and Romans, Thracians, Cicilians, etc., then all wore skirts, men and women alike. Tertullian in the third century A. D. remonstrates with the effeminacy of Roman nobles in adopting trousers imported from Persia. To-day the Greek and Highland soldiers wear short skirts. The hardy women of Northern China wear trousers, and are as strong and active as the men. So that custom and history show that the sexes have exchanged costumes, and at different periods of high civilization, as well as of barbarism, they have dressed exactly alike. The article is illustrated with costumes of men and women in skirts and trousers in different ages, nations, and countries.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit of Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Conscious State? The views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death; his preexistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH, OR WEEKLY REST DAY.

By Elder Columbus Scott. This is a work of 147 pages, divided into fifteen chapters, in which the "Sabbath" under the Mosaic Law, and "The Lord's Day," "First Day of the Week" or "Christian Sabbath" under the Gospel Dispensation are fully treated from Scriptural and historical standpoints. The work is concise and able, and clearly refutes the arguments of the Seventh-day Sabbatarians, establishing the first day of the week as "The Lord's Day." An added supplemental chapter by Elder W. W. Blair is included.

JOSEPH LUFF CORRESPONDING EDITOR.

LAMONI, IOWA, AUGUST 8, 1894.

TO THE SAINTS.

BY request of the business management we again call the attention of those of the Herald Office patrons whom it may concern to the financial needs of the publishing department. The Herald Office is realizing more than its legitimate portion of the pressure caused by the present business depression, in addition to other difficulties with which it has been contending. As the publication of the church and the servant and property of the Saints it appeals to them and their representatives—the ministry local and general—for their financial and moral support, not only in present necessities, but in the interests of the future development and extension of the publishing department of the church.

The office needs funds, and needs them now; and with this statement its friends are asked to give its needs such practical consideration and action as to replenish its treasury by paying up all or part of the amounts due on subscription lists and book accounts.

This appeal is made in the belief that those to whom it applies love the work to that extent that they will not lightly nor inconsiderately pass by their obligations to the literary department, while other obligations are met because more directly urged upon them by those who would compel attention to their demands. The HERALD and the Herald Office have sought to serve the highest interests of the people in a spiritual and in a material sense, and we believe the Saints have appreciated and do appreciate the results for good to them personally and in the extension of the work abroad that have accrued from the publishing plant. They are asked herein to voice that appreciation by holding up the hands of those upon whom immediately devolves the burden of superintending its operations and upholding its credit for good in the name of its proprietors—the members of the church.

The same obstinate necessities of the merchant that require payment for what passes over his counter exist in this case—the printer, the paper manufacturer, the coal dealer, etc., must be paid or the work cease. The church ought not to be burdened with so large a delinquent list as is carried on the HERALD list and book accounts. With more care and promptness the few dollars required by each to meet their obligations in this respect could be met, as a rule, and the indebtedness, as a usual thing, be an exception. This order of things would mean very much to the interests of the church too, in many ways not comprehended by those in a position to know how the Board of Publication has been crippled and prevented from issuing important matters for which there has long been an urgent demand. Do the Saints wish this order of things to continue? If not, are they individually willing to place and keep the office upon the firm financial basis upon which a payment of its dues would establish it? A remittance of the one, two, three, five, and ten dollar accounts due it will meet the requirement; but neglect of it means a continuance of the financial stagnation under which it now labors.

The office also asks that each family in the church not now taking the HERALD will send in a year's or six months' subscription, and that presiding elders in branches and districts, and Bishop's agents, and traveling elders in the field will remember the interests of the church by soliciting subscriptions and making sales of the church publication and books. The people of God cannot grow as they should without being placed in touch with the general movements of the work reported in the HERALD. In its columns are collected the reports of what the Lord is doing for his people, and the church is thus edified "according to the effectual working of the measure of every part." No one can afford to deny himself or his children this means of grace, this source of strength.

The office will send sample copies of the HERALD on application to those not subscribers, in the church or out of it. Brethren are requested to send lists of names of those not taking the church paper, also of new converts, that copies may be sent them.

Brethren and sisters, do you owe the Herald Office? If so, please reciprocate the interest it has shown in you and remit the amount due. It needs your prompt support.

FAITH AND FAITH?

THERE is one kind of faith that needs a miracle, a manifestation, or a healing every day to keep it alive and active. This kind of faith makes a man happy, hopeful, or lifted to the clouds in excess of confidence in God to-day; and leaves him discontented, unhappy, or cast down in doubt and despair tomorrow, just as his faith is fed by a succession of benefits derived from the Father.

There is another kind of faith, born of conviction of humanity's need and Deity's care and consideration for all the race, which grasps the divine plan of redemption as a tangible exhibition of God's blessings promised to man, here and hereafter, and as a reality of which the obedient shall receive, sooner or later, a fullness and be wholly satisfied. This faith is of such a nature that the one who is moved by it is never very highly exalted, nor very much cast down. The man possessed of it needs no miracle, manifestation, or healing of bodily infirmity to either create or keep alive in him the hope of life, peace, happiness, and glory in the far off future world, or the near coming of Jesus and the millennium.

The man of the first kind of faith to have and to hold confidence in the work of God, needs the constantly recurring evidences of divine favor to him personally, or he is miserable, doubtful of himself, and doubtful of God.

The man of the second kind of faith is the patient, persistent, forceful man, who having once learned that God is in the work, needs no further evidence to recreate within himself that knowledge. He may be poor, tried, tempted, and afflicted by pain and bodily disease from which he has sought relief often and been as often denied. He knows that God is ruling the world well; and whether he live or die, suffer pain in the flesh or be free therefrom, the promise and fact of eternal life are not affected thereby, and do not depend on what affects the life of the flesh. It is enough for him to know that if faithful in spirit he shall inherit eternal life; life where the things that make for pain and distress here will not have being.

A man with the first sort of faith may say, as some have said, "Well, if God does not heal me now, I am done with trying to serve him. I know that he has the power and can heal me, as well as others if he will; and if it is not his will to heal, when I have suffered so much and importuned so often, unless he hears me now I am done."

A man with the second kind of faith has the courage to say: "The Lord knows best. If he pleases to hear my requests and will heal me, I shall be thankful. If not, he will give me strength of heart to bear and keep me from perishing a spiritual death. And, though he suffer me to be slain, yet will I trust him."

Which of these two is most likely to endure to the end.

UTAH A STATE.

THE President has signed the bill by virtue of which statehood is accorded to Utah. The provisions of the bill are such, however, that it will be near the beginning of the year 1896 before the territory will be really a state in the active enjoyment of the right to state government, the ratification of a convention to be held in November, 1895, being necessary to the completion of the series of acts by which statehood is assured.

It now remains to be determined whether the whilom polygamist element of the territory will prove themselves good citizens of a monogamic state.

It is rumored that an elder from Utah, at work in a Southern State, has on occasions of late exhibited the photographs of two of his babies, not twins, born to him since he left his home for the mission. Whether this is known to the authorities that sent him out, or not, the impression made upon those to whom the pictures were shown is that while the authorities and the papers are publicly crying out that the practice is stopped, it is still carried on and winked at. The same elder and his companion missionary certainly taught the dogma of plurality of wives privately, as have others whom the elders of the Reorganized Church have met in their missionary work. This these men from Utah would not do unless they had encouragement of some sort from those officers in their church who are their superiors and leaders in the church.

THE following from the Chicago HERALD for August 1 would indicate that Mr. Braden is pursuing the same tactics at Anderson that he did at Lamoni, which spiritualists do not bear so meekly as the Saints at Lamoni did.

ANDERSON, Ind., July 31.—The breach between the Indiana spiritualists and the Eastern Indiana Association of Christian Churches, occasioned by the action of Rev. Clark Braden Sunday, is widening. An intense bitterness between the followers of the two creeds is springing up and threatens to end in more personal abuse. Rev. Mr. Braden, who has been the champion of the Christian Church Association, entered the spiritualists' camp grounds yesterday and scattered personal circulars broadcast. The result was the organization of a mob and Braden's hasty retreat to save trouble of a violent nature. To-day the fight descended to a personal affair, the Christians upholding Braden's action. The spiritualists are very indignant and state that they will prosecute Braden to the full limit of the law.

OF THE LAMBERT AND TREAT DEBATE.

WHAT follows was handed us by Bro. J. R. Lambert as a sort of supplement to the correspondence in regard to debate with Elder Treat, already published by HERALD.

WASHINGTON, Ind., July 28, 1894.

Bro. J. R. Lambert:—I notice in this week's Herald the correspondence of the Lambert and Treat debate. It is just the thing for us in this country. You have answered so honorably. It leaves no room for them to misrepresent us. It did my soul good. Long may you live to defend this grand church.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—The above is an extract from a letter written by I. P. Baggerly. If you wish to publish it, I am satisfied it will do me no harm. If in your judgment it may be of some benefit to the work you will of course publish; if not, do not publish.

In bonds,

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—At what time did denominationalism begin?

Ans.—It began before the division of Jews and Samaritans into sects and classes, Pharisees, Sadducees, Stoics, Herodians, etc. So far as the later world is concerned it began with the division between the Roman and Greek churches, and the first split from the Papacy, and the Reformation under Luther, Melancthon, and others. Indeed it has apparently flourished from time immemorial.

Q.—Will those who do not repent and become Saints of the Church of Jesus Christ, before his coming, be permitted to enjoy each other's company in the hereafter?

A.—We presume such will be permitted to associate together, in classes, every man in his own order or class; but as to the enjoyment, we do not say, believing as we do, that the condition of those who do not obey the gospel here, or hereafter, is not one of pleasantness, peace, and contentment.

I UNDERSTAND the Bible now much better than I did before I was baptized, and take far greater pleasure in reading it than ever before.

These are the words of a brave woman who dared the reproaches of her kindred to accept membership in the church. Surely, Jesus was right when he said, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom." With the new sight which baptism for remission of sins gives the awakened soul does not see "men as trees walking," but sees in the light bestowed by the Holy Spirit in the inner man. It is good to praise God that we see as this sister does.

ELDER JAMES CROMPTON of Attica, Wisconsin, who is a native of England, and emigrated to America with the second company that came over, made the office a visit July 30. He was baptized in 1837, and reached Kirtland in 1840; was ordained a teacher in England, ordained a priest in 1841, and an elder in 1843 at Kirtland. He removed to Attica in 1853, and remained there to date. Elder Crompton was seventy-eight, March, 1894, and is a well-preserved man. He has peculiar views in regard to the latter-day work, the events of the times, and the second coming of Jesus. He has with him a stone containing well-defined marks, which to us indicate a conglomerate encrinite and trylobite formation, polished by the action of water in motion. The stone was found on the shore of Lake Erie, some four miles from Kirtland, Ohio, and is a beautiful specimen. Elder Crompton is of the opinion that the marks on the stone are the alphabet of the pure language which is to be restored ultimately according to prophecy, when men shall praise God and give glory to him in one tongue. This stone is about one and a quarter inches in length by an inch in width, of an irregular outline, egg shaped, and about one quarter of an inch in thickness.

Elder Crompton believes that the gathering time will begin at the coming of Jesus, which is now not far off, and the place will be in either Arizona or Colorado. That it will not be long before Jesus will manifest himself to the Gentiles, do a great work and gather his people together prior to the great closing events of the consummation of all things.

Elder Crompton was connected with the Brooks-Huntly portion of believers in the Book of Mormon. He relates several instances of manifestations corroborative of the latter-day work, all of which have tended to confirm in the faith of the Book of Mormon. His Brother Thomas, younger than he, and himself are all the ones that now remain held together by the evidence of the stone, and the conclusions to which they have come from reading the Scriptures—Bible and Book of Mormon. He believes that the Temple at Kirtland is the one written of by Malachi, to which the Lord is suddenly to come; that such coming is imminent; that when it occurs Jesus will first appear in the Temple, and from thence establish the Zion, the gathering place, in Arizona or Colorado; that the Reorganization has been refitting and preparing the temple for the purpose; but that credit will attach to us as individuals only, not as an organization. He further states that they accept only a part of the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants; but declined to state what portions they discard. He is of the opinion that the gospel of the kingdom is not yet come; that the angel of Revelation 14:6 has not yet come, differing from the first elders of the church materially in this; that the gospel that was preached from 1830 to 1844 was not the everlasting gospel of the angelic message, but was only the gospel of the spiritual church.

The elderly man is very sincere, evidently very much in earnest and desirous of the final triumph of the truth.

He believes that seeric or prophetic power attached to the stone, stating that several had tested it; but when asked if himself or brother used it in this character, he said, "No; that its message had been delivered, the object of its mission had been accomplished, and it was now closed."

We do not agree with this aged brother; but, we do not, we had no dispute with him. He enjoys his belief and feels assured in it; hence, without judging him, or condemning him for what he believes, we state it as fairly as we can, leaving it to the arbitrament of time to decide.

We refer to Elder Crompton and his belief because he was one of the original church, and entitled to a degree of respect for the evident honesty of his soul and the steadfastness with which he has retained his hold on the hope of Israel brought to light in these last days; such of it as he has fully grasped; as to the rest—we shall all see clearer "when the mists have rolled away."

WE give room to the article on dancing by Bro. J. W. Peterson, and of it desire to say only this: That while he may have heard of an organization called "the one o'clock club," in Lamoni, or the seat of the Presidency, he carries an implication in regard to it quite as incorrect as it is damaging that the Saints had organized a "one o'clock ball club." The inference here is that the church as an organization was responsible for such organization if it exists. Again, he assumes that since he has learned of such organization, he cannot affirm that the Reorganized Church is in accord with the word of God. This leaves the presumption that this "one o'clock club" is a church organization. If it is, and Bro. Peterson has knowledge that it is, he is far better informed in regard to it than the Editor of Herald; and if he will kindly inform us, when such organization was ordered, or authorized by the church, general or local, and give us the names of the church officers who organized it, he will confer a favor on both the President of the Church and the presiding officer of the branch at Lamoni.

We do not criticise the article nor enter dispute of its arguments; but as the brother suggests that he and those in the field with him are taxed, and ask for representation, we suggest in turn that it would have been better had he confined himself to legitimate statements and not implicated the church in an action in which neither its authority nor its officers were engaged or officiated. Neither the church general, nor the Lamoni branch directed or authorized, or had anything to do with such one o'clock order at Lamoni; neither has it with any such order at any other place.

BRO. A. H. SMITH succeeded in getting a very faithful presentation of the faith and the work in Minnesota, into the Sunday Times of Minneapolis, for July 22, under the staring headline "True to Joseph Smith's Faith," a full column and a quarter, which included the epitome of faith, with the following statement preceding it

The following epitome of their belief might be accepted, in most respects, by the average liberal-minded though orthodox Christian, with the exception, perhaps, of the doctrine of revelation.

The Y. M. C. A. of Atchison, might get a lesson from the Minneapolis Times.

Bro. G. T. Chute, way down in Georgia, also succeeded in getting a hall in Mobile, Alabama, where he set forth the faith, which the Daily Register published in its issue for July 27. Both of these journals, North and South, made the clear distinction between the Reorganized Church and the Utah institution. In the language of the Rev. Jasper: "The world do move."

BRO. W. WATERMAN reports from Pilot Oak, Kentucky, laboring at High Hill, a little place nine miles southeast of Pilot Oak, resulting in the baptism of thirteen and the organization of a branch to be known as Caldwell branch, Bro. Robert Warren, a priest, presiding; Bro. Caldwell secretary.

Of this effort Bro. Waterman wrote:—

I never did find a people more anxious to hear the truth. I was kept busy day and night preaching and answering questions; so that for seventeen days I averaged about four and a half hours sleep at night. When we first went there we told the people that "No weapon that was formed against us should prosper," and if they would do the will of God they should know that the doctrine we preached was true.

This promise was fulfilled to several, and the glorious result usual in such instances in the past followed; the truth of the work was manifest and the people rejoiced.

We regret that we cannot publish all the letters that reach us; but space forbids.

AN AGED MINISTER.

THE New York Tribune has an item about an aged Greek priest whose death occurred recently in Thessaly, Greece. This man was over one hundred and twenty years old and had been in the service of the church for ninety-nine years. He remained in the city where he was born and raised and finally died. His duties as a priest began before sunrise and were over at nine at night. He never used glasses, and both sight and hearing were good at time of his demise. It was a long service, and doubtless a useful life that closed when this aged man died.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

THE following brief but cogent sentences come from a veteran in the field, Brother John T. Davis, a man whose face has been set Zionward these many years:—

Since I last wrote, I have labored with a degree of satisfaction in parts of Osage, Shawnee, Nemaha, and Brown counties, Nebraska. Have had good hearing considering the busy times. I try to sow with liberal hand, but don't know yet what the "harvest shall be." Generally, I find the people in striking harmony with the signs of the times—"As in the days of Noe," etc., "The love of many waxes cold," etc.—do not find overwhelming waves of promising prosperity with the major part of humanity; but find indications of honesty, love of truth and improvement in the minority; and this is in striking harmony with the history of the past.

To be efficacious in my work as a minister of God, I find that I must have unbounded love for the race of mankind; and thus be prompted to acts of kindness and self-sacrifice for the good of others—gospel work!

Baptized two at the Scranton branch on 22d inst.

Such words rise from a heart touched to the full of love to God and love to man.

Bro. Henry Sparling, Burnham, Missouri, July 20:—

Just closed meetings at Cureall Springs, Howell county; had only fair turnouts but pretty good interest. I was kindly treated by a great many, and invitations to go to other schoolhouses and come back again there were plentiful. This field is ripe but only few to harvest it. At a place called Egypt where I preached last winter I baptized three persons on the 18th inst. Shall commence meeting Monday, the 23d, at West Plains.

Bro. J. W. Peterson, Annaton, Wisconsin, July 21.

We are having good success; baptized five on the 4th. We enjoy tent life and hope to do much good.

Bro. A. W. Kriebel wrote from Wellston, Ohio, August 1:—

The Lord is truly verifying his promise in this vicinity, opening the way for the preaching of the word even to that extent that we have had schoolhouses thrown open for us to preach in where the sectarians were debarred, and that by those not of the faith. I have baptized six since General Conference, and there are others believing. I have been holding meetings every two weeks with the above results. Bro. James Moler preached at Bro. Marion Downards' last night. Will be at No. 3 to-night, where I expect to join him.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE call attention to the report from the Canada mission by Bro. W. W. Blair. It is very gratifying to know that the work has so far progressed and is on such good footing in Her Majesty Queen Victoria's dominions. The increase is remarkable, all things considered, as suggested by Bro. Blair. To Him be praise to whom praise belongs.

Advices from Bishop Kelley up to July 25th, at Santa Ana, California. He would go to San Bernardino, thence to Los Angeles and thence to San Francisco by August 1 to 5, if all went well.

Bro. Blair July 28 was at Chatham, Ontario, but would leave for work in Iowa, August 1.

Bro. Jesse Seelye, who lately deceased at Savannah, New York, was a member of the church for fifty-seven years. He made an excellent record where he dwelt; and went to his rest leaving a memory fragrant with good among all. Is it not better to so live and so die?

We have received from the Ensign Publishing House, Independence, Missouri, a copy of Bro. Henry A. Stebbins' lectures on the Book of Mormon, delivered at Independence this past spring, and reported for the Ensign by Sr. Belle B. Robinson. It is a neat little volume in paper cover, containing one hundred and eighty pages of most excellent reading on the subject of the origin and claims of the Book of Mormon and the possible identification of Israel from its teachings. It is an excellent work, and shows the vigorous and thorough treatment of a careful mind, intent on possessing the truth,—we commend it to all.

Bro. W. B. Weston of Phoenix, Nebraska, reports poor crops in that section of the State, and on that account the people were giving more heed to the gospel message. The Saints were blessed in their gatherings.

Bro. A. H. Smith arrived home on the 2d inst. from the Minnesota and Iowa portion of his field.

Bro. W. W. Blair arrived home from Canada on the 31st ult. and left again on the 3d for Benan, Iowa, where he will resume work in the mission field.

Fortify your faith by works, and doubt and final unbelief will scarcely be a possibility. It is in the brain of the spiritually idle that the distemper of disbelief is born. Keep busy in gospel work; and you will not only grow in mentality but in steadiness of belief in God and his Christ.

In this issue will be found the first half of an excellent article, "Antecedent Probabilities of a Revelation." Our readers will find it bristling with good points.

Bro. Robert Winning, of St. Joseph, Missouri, was at Lamoni from the 4th to the 6th inst. in the interest of the college movement.

Subscribers to the Gospel Quarterlies who are delinquent are requested to remit the amount due, also to indicate if they desire their names continued on the list. Remittances and subscriptions solicited.

Bro. F. C. Keck requests a correction. He had baptized seventeen into the Lebanon, Missouri, branch during the past year—not since January 1.

Bro. S. V. Bailey returned to the Arkansas and Missouri field on the 3d.

THERE are fourteen congregations of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints in Maine. They have no affiliation with the Brigham Young faction, but believe the Book of Mormon found by Smith a supplement to and not a substitute for the Bible.—Chicago Tribune.

SABBATH FOR MOTHERS.

DO NOT leave everything to be done on Saturday. If you do the chances are, that you will be too tired to enjoy the Sabbath, and also have the disappointment of not being able to do all you had planned. Why not do your cleaning up on Friday, and thus time may be found to prepare food for the Sabbath on Saturday. There are many kinds of food which are relished cold which can be prepared on Saturday; so that very little cooking need be done on Sunday, which means less work, less dishes to wash, and also something "good to eat."

Let us have an ideal Saturday. If one can manage to satisfactorily "do up our Saturday's work by noon" then the remainder of the day can be satisfactorily occupied in doing many little odd jobs which are apt to be "put off" until Sunday morning, and which often prove an annoyance to us, robbing us of peace of mind and comfort of body.

On Saturday afternoons shoes may be blackened, teeth may be cleaned, children's heads thoroughly washed, and their weekly bath given. How often children will plead that they are too tired and sleepy to take their bath at night, and beg to take their bath in the morning. And when morning comes with all its necessary and unnecessary bustling and confusion in getting ready for Sunday school, the bath is indefinitely postponed for lack of time. Why not have your children bathe in the latter part of the afternoon? Then you will have time after supper to study your Sunday school lesson.

My ideal Sabbath begins with early rising. Mothers, who have more necessary work on Sabbath than anybody else, realize the satisfaction there is in having the necessary housework done up early so that there need be no need of feverish haste to get ready for Sunday school. Whenever it is practical, dear mother, I hope you will go to Sunday school and church. It will do you so much good. Do not stay home just to cook dinner. Wouldn't it be better to eat bread and milk or butter? There are many times when a mother must stay home, and then if her children cannot go to Sunday school she can have a Sunday school at home. Put on a nice dress even if you are at home. Do all you can to make Sabbath pleasant and profitable for your children, so that your sons will not tease to go hunting, fishing, or swimming, where they will often get into bad company and soon lose their taste for home Sabbaths. If your children are old enough to read, get them as good books suitable for their age as you can and lay the books carefully away to read on Sabbath afternoons. A Sunday scrapbook described in the Housekeeper would likely serve a useful purpose in amusing and benefiting children. Provide a scrapbook. Set the children to selecting pictures and paste them in, leaving a blank space below the picture for a verse from the Scriptures which shall be in harmony with the picture. Quite an interest will be taken in looking up and deciding upon verses.

For supper if you eat bread and milk, or something nice that does not require cooking, then you will have but a few dishes to wash which may leave you a little time to tell a story to the little ones or to take a pleasant twilight walk if it be summer.

Dear sisters and mothers, let us try to distribute our work so that the press of Saturday work will not leave us so exhausted as to disable us to think connectedly. May it be your happy lot to wake up Sunday mornings with the gratifying sense of having a long, delightful day before you.

SYNOPSIS OF READING, CHAPTER SIXTEEN,
HINTS ON CHILD-TRAINING.

TRAINING A CHILD IN AMUSEMENTS.

IT may be that a grown person does not really need amusement, though he does need a certain amount of diversion or recreation; but to children amusements are a necessity and to them they properly belong. This being true, a child has need to be trained in his choice and use of amusements.

How to amuse a child wisely and effectively, is a practical question for a nurse or loving parent from the time a child first takes notice of a plaything until he is old enough to choose his own methods of recreation. Much depends upon this for the child's character and happiness; for amusements help in shaping a child's estimates of life and its purposes, and in fitting him for its duties.

It is the parent's duty to look for the underlying principle in the attractiveness of any form of amusement, and for the effect its influence is likely to have. In the wide range of a child's amusements, there are differences between some of them which may seem slight at first, but which involve differences of principle; and they should be considered as to their probable outcome rather than as they appear just now to the surface observer.

A child's parents ought be the center of companionships in all his amusements. It is impossible that they should be his only or his constant companions; but they ought to show such an interest in his amusements that he will feel that they are as much to him and he as close to them in this as in anything else. If companionship with his parents in his amusements be lacking, there is reared a sad barrier between a child and his parents in the sphere of his life which is largest and most attractive at the age when he is most impressible.

Bushnell says: "One of the first duties of a genuinely Christian parent is to show a generous sympathy with the plays of his children; providing playthings and means of play, inviting suitable companions for them, and requiring them to have it as one of their pleasures, to keep such company entertained in their plays, instead of playing always for their own mere self-pleasing. Sometimes, too, the parent having a hearty interest in the plays of his children, will drop for the time the sense of his years, and go into the frolic of their mood with them. They will enjoy no other time so much as that, and it will have the effect to make the authority, so far unobtrusive, just as much stronger and more welcome, as it has brought itself closer to them, and given them a more complete show of sympathy."

A true mother will naturally show a hearty interest in her child's amusements, and she ought to feel that the time thus spent is not lost. It may be harder for the father to give the time or to show the interest, but he ought in some way to secure the benefit of thus showing his sympathy. A few minutes' romp with the little ones as they are allowed to come to his bed before he is up in the morning, will do much to connect him pleasantly with their playtime. So, again will a little time in the evening when he learns of their plays and shows that they are much to him because they are much to his dear ones.

No companionship should be permitted to a child in his amusements which is likely to hurt him morally. Parents may sometimes be tempted for the sake of having their children amused, to allow them to go where the surroundings and influences are not good, and where, for any other purpose, they would not permit them to go. This is a great mistake. A child's companionships in the stable or at the street corner, while he is being amused, are quite as likely to leave their effects as those of the parlor or dining room where his nature is not apt to be in such free and full activity.

Amusements ought to be such as will aid in developing and building up a child's manliness or womanliness. There is danger that they may be such as will prove an injury to the tastes and character of a child. The simplest forms of amusement may have in them one or the other of these tendencies.

A child's earlier games and playthings may have much to do with training his eye, and ear, and hand, and voice, and bodily movements. They ought all to be watched and shaped accordingly. This is the fundamental truth in the kindergarten system, and a study of the methods of that system may be a help to a parent who would guide a child in that direction.

It is of great importance that a child's amusements should not contain any element of chance from which he might gain the idea that his attainments or success in life will depend in any degree upon luck. From his play with blocks or jackstraws up to his games of ball or chess, every movement that a child makes in his plays ought to be one in which his skill or lack of it will determine his success or failure. A child may be harmed for life by growing to think that his success in life depends on the "streak of luck" which seemed to be his in his boyhood's games of chance. And a boy may be helped for life by the character which his boyhood's games of skill developed.

Children's amusements should not involve late hours, nor tend to the premature developing of their natures. They should not be such as are likely to become permanent occupations instead of temporary amusements, or such as may lead to the child's becoming a professional amusement maker. They should be such as will draw to the home circle rather than away from it.

It ought to be that every child can find more pleasure at home than away from home, and this will depend much on the kind of amusements he has there. He should have amusements there that cannot be engaged in elsewhere as well as there. Many a parent makes the mistake of trying to keep his children at home by bringing in amusements which cause them to desire to go elsewhere for something of the same sort.

A child may have such a "baby house" or "play closet," such a store of blocks or toys, such a cellar or garret at home as he cannot find in any other home. To be at home with these will be more attractive than to be elsewhere without them. Scrapbook making, picture painting, candy making, may be made so interesting at home that to go away is loss instead of gain. Singing and music may be made such an attraction that they will be missed away from home. So with social games which involve a measure of intelligence and information not to be found ordinarily in other homes. All such amusements draw to the home center and have their advantages accordingly. It is for parents to secure these to their children or suffer from their lack.

Children will have amusements whether they or their parents make the choice for them. They will tend either to the loss or the gain of the children. It is for parents to decide whether the children shall do the choosing, probably to their own harm, or whether the parents shall choose helpful amusements for their children, and make these more attractive than the harmful ones. The result of the choice is important to the parents and yet more important to the children.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE CHILDREN DURING VACATION.

SECOND PAPER (CONTINUED.)—HOW A GIRL MAY BE ENTERTAINED AND PROFITED.

THERE is a great difference in children's dispositions. Some are naturally industrious and eager to learn everything. Others, active enough in play, are opposed to any sort of application. In either case, perhaps, the child is equally innocent, because what is natural in one instance, is just as natural in the other. Of course sympathy should not go so far as to permit these weaknesses to grow. A parent's will should at all times control a child, and while it is true that some children must be managed very positively, it is also true that all children must be to some extent.

We should not be too easily discouraged with the children. They are lacking the understanding that time and experience give; we were just as aggravating once. The average adult does not take to duty always because it is reasonable and right that he should, but because circumstances compel him to do so.

How to employ spare time never becomes a very troublesome question to the great majority of women whose circumstances have solved it for them. The woman whom nature has so favored with originality as to have a work of her own; the studious woman, and the one with a talent seldom find a moment tedious or lonesome.

But not all have a talent. Neither are all born scholars. Beyond an average interest in literature and current affairs, even books and reading may pall upon the tastes. Some minds and dispositions are so constituted as to require more variety of occupation than others. When a girl numbers music and painting among her accomplishments she is rarely idle for want of sympathetic entertainment.

Where no aptitude exists for these things, or their expense makes them unattainable, there are so many other pleasing employments, the variety of which afforded something suited to all tastes. We think every girl should know a number of those dainty feminine accomplishments, even if she be a scholar or a musician.

While affording amusement, these things have a legitimate use as well. They are among the refiners of life. They brighten the home and make it interesting. They are worthy in themselves if they did no more than rest the tired mind, and exhilarate the drooping spirits. They are the highlights that relieve the somber reality of everyday existence.

Unregulated visiting and entertainment is a great drawback to the effectual accomplishment of any plan of summer work. We know a girl who is quite popular with the other girls, and who does little else during her vacations than call and receive her callers. Another girl had a particular friend who was privileged to come whenever she pleased, and as often. Owing to these interruptions, the girl's time was not her own; her mother never knew when to depend upon her, and so much confusion so unsettled the girl's mind that she could accomplish nothing when she was at home.

Now do not understand us to be meaning "All work and no play." We would not deny the girls one particle of reasonable pleasure. It is only right and just that they should enjoy the society of their young friends. But there should be some system in the matter; some established rule should regulate the social intercourse.

One mother adopted a sensible plan, which, while customary in adult social circles, might with pleasure and profit be put into practice more generally among younger people. This sensible woman, whose children were quite young too, finding it such an annoyance to have the little folks coming to play at any time, and noticing that her own children were getting so they were not contented if by themselves, she resolved upon this course: She set a certain day when her children might do their visiting, and also gave out a time when their little friends might visit them. She made it to be distinctly understood that no liberties whatever should be taken with this rule, that they would be received at no other time.

This practice, she said, put an end to any further trouble. Her children grew to be contented; there was no more disorder and confusion. The children looked forward to these days, and, she thought, enjoyed themselves all the better when they met.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR AUGUST.

"O, friends! if the greater burdens
His love can make so light,
Why should his wonderful goodness
Our halting credence slight!
The little sharp vexations,
And the briers that catch and fret,
Shall we not take them to the Helper
Who has never failed us yet?"

Thursday, Aug. 9.—The church, its ministry, and membership. That righteousness, love, and zeal in the work and spread of the gospel may increase and to this end the Saints with one heart and mind bring their tithes and offerings into the Lord's storehouse. That God will continue to reveal his mind to his servants in the direction of the affairs of the church.

Memory Verses.—Romans 12: 9-11.

Thursday, Aug. 16.—Our families. Prayer for the members of our families by name, and for the families of each other and those of the ministry. For the youth of the church in general.

Memory Verses.—Col. 3: 16, 20, 21.

Thursday, Aug. 23.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses.—1 Thess. 5: 14, 15.

Thursday, Aug. 30.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verses.—Micah 4: 6, 7.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

BRO. T. J. LAWN of Oak Park, California, requests your faith and prayers in behalf of his wife, whose health has been failing for several years. He feels specially prompted by the Spirit to make this request.

Sr. Hattie Minear of Medina City, Texas, requests your faith and prayers that God may spare her to her little family and to do good in the world.

Bro. Alma C. Barmore, Oakland City, Indiana, requests the prayers of the Union that his health may be restored if it is God's will. He feels that unless it improves he will be compelled to leave the active ministry.

Sr. E. A. Murray, Olney, Washington, who is suffering from cancer, earnestly requests the prayers of the Prayer Union that she may be restored to health.

Sr. Marie Clark of Keokuk, Iowa, requests your faith and prayers that the bodily infirmities of her father may be healed and that God by the influence of his Holy Spirit will lead him to a knowledge of the truth.

Selected Poetry.

ONCE IN A WHILE.

Once in a while the sun shines out
And the arching skies are a perfect blue;
Once in a while 'mid clouds of doubt
Faith's fairest stars come peeping through;
Our paths lead down by the meadows fair,
Where the sweetest blossoms nod and smile;
And we lay aside our cross of care,
Once in a while.

Once in a while within our own
We feel the hand of a steadfast friend;
Once in a while we hear a tone
Of love with the heart's own voice to blend;
And the dearest of all our dreams come true,
And on life's way is a golden smile;
Each thirsting flower is kissed with dew,
Once in a while.

Once in a while in the desert sand
We find a spot of the fairest green;
Once in a while from where we stand
The hills of paradise are seen,
And a perfect joy in our hearts we hold,
A joy that the world cannot defile;
We trade earth's dross for the purest gold,
Once in a while.

CURE FOR SMALLPOX.

"I am willing to risk my reputation as a public man," wrote Edward Hine to the Liverpool Mercury, "if the worst case of smallpox cannot be cured in three days by the use of cream of tartar. One ounce of cream of tartar dissolved in a pint of water (hot), drank at intervals when cold, is a certain, never-failing remedy. It has cured thousands, never leaves a mark, never causes blindness, and avoids tedious lingering."

THE CANADA MISSION.

HAVING returned from a seven weeks trip to Ontario, I take pleasure in saying I found the Chatham and London districts in good condition generally, with very excellent prospects for future progress. The ministry, with few exceptions, so far as I could judge, are diligent and worthy men, faithfully devoted to the cause of Christ.

Bro. John H. Lake presides over the mission with watchfulness and prudence, and is well sustained by the confidence, faith, and prayers of the Saints.

Bro. R. C. Evans, in keeping with the word of the Lord touching the Seventy, will devote his time and attention to preaching the word and ministering the ordinances pertaining to his office and calling, and having resigned the presidency of the London district at its late conference, he is now free to labor untrammelled by local cares and will doubtless continue the notable success that has crowned his labors hitherto.

Without mentioning them by name, I feel constrained to bear testimony in favor of the ministry and membership of the church in the above districts as to their zeal, devotion, and steadfastness and have no doubt they will increase with the increase given of God.

When in Canada in 1877, there were, I think, but six branches of the church where now there are, it is said, forty-two. This increase is very good when account is taken of the numerous hindrances which have been met and overcome. The Lord gave this increase, and will enlarge the ratio for the future no doubt.

May heaven enrich the Saints of the Canada mission with grace and gifts and continuing success.

DOWNEY, Cal., July 23.

Editors Herald:—Last evening about three hundred persons were out to hear the closing discourse of our reunion, Bro. Forscutt presenting in his very eloquent manner some of the evidences of the divinity of the Book of Mormon. The preaching throughout the reunion was marked by an unusual degree of inspiration, some of the elders far surpassing themselves as they discoursed so beautifully on the principles of life everlasting. The visitors, Brn. Kelley and Forscutt, being urged by the Saints, permitted themselves to be put to work daily and they as well as others of the ministry who preached were much blessed in delivering the message of truth.

The testimony meetings were marked by the calm and peaceful influence of the Holy Spirit, in exhortation, revelation, prophecy, and testimony rather than in tongues and interpretation, although these were not lacking. Twelve persons were baptized before the close of the meetings, several of them young men and women of bright promise, while many of them are investigating our faith, having been stirred up to do so by these meetings. There has been an average attendance of about three hundred, evenings, and about two hundred during the days' meetings.

The success of the reunion was in a good degree attributable to the good condition of the grounds, with tents and all needful things for the comfort of the tenters, and visitors, and worshipers. The committee with Brn. Van Fleet and Albert Carmichael at its head did their part nobly; and Bro. Reynolds with his assistants kept quiet and good order on the grounds, so that all things were in order. Altogether a very enjoyable as well as an instructive season was had by those attending.

Everything is moving on well in this part of the vineyard. The ministry are reinvigorated and will push out into the new fields widening before us. From late letters from Brn. Haws and Lawn in Fresno, they have had from three hundred to five hundred to hear them as they deliver the "words of life" standing on the streets of that city; so the increasing desires of the people to hear the beautiful story is shown and the testimony of the Holy Spirit to us elders at General Conference seen to be true.

Peace be with you and with all the Israel of God.

BAY CITY, Mich., July 30.

Editors Herald:—We are having grand success in our tent meetings. We have services every evening of the week and three on Sunday. Bro. DeLong and wife came in on the 26th. He leaves to-night for Mitchell schoolhouse where he will hold a few meetings. This day has been one of rejoicing to the Saints of Bay City, for we witnessed two precious souls led into the waters of baptism by Bro. Cooper, and more are to follow next Sunday; and so the good work rolls on.

The outlook for the work in Bay City never was so good as now. We feel that our hard struggle is over. The Spirit of God has returned and love and peace prevails with the Saints. We need more help. Bro. Cooper has been alone most of the time. We learn that Bro. Blair is to be in the Eastern district soon and we hope that he will give us a call and help us. Brn. Scott and Cornish are expected with the rest.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., July 30.

Editors Herald:—Plowing up new fields is hard and warm work this kind of weather, and somewhat against my expectations I am beginning to like the "field work." I arrived in this city of ten thousand inhabitants last Tuesday and after a hot day's search found all the churches barred against the "Mormon," and so got permission to preach on the square. It is a fine shady grove supplied with fine rustic seats and flowing fountains. Here we distributed epitomes by day and preached at night to the hundreds of idle and curious ones. The afternoons especially are devoted to discussions with every phase of religionists; this gives me ample opportunity to present our faith. Yesterday I was pounced upon by a Catholic who it is said was procured for the purpose of annihilating me. He had been in the habit of running every preacher from the park with the arguments of "Peter is the rock shure, and Catholicity is the mother of ye's all and ye's are all heretics," etc. Two hundred or more, all that could hear stood around to see the battle, and it raged for two hours. When the old man pushed his way through the crowd saying, "I'll have nothing more to say to such a spalpeen as ye's are; and may the Holy Virgin forgive me for the sin committed with ye's," amid the clapping and roaring of the crowd. This incident, together with one other in which a man said that I could not preach any Mormonism on that square—his father was in the mob that "drove out the d—n Mormons from this county in 1838," etc., and worked himself up into quite a rage. I mildly informed him that I had in my grip a pension certificate that I witnessed that I had honorably purchased the rights of an American-citizen and that I had faith in God and Chatburn combined sufficient to keep him from harming me in the least. This has made me quite popular upon the square and given me splendid opportunities to tell my story.

I knew not a soul in the vast throng, nor had I where to lay my weary head; but I had not forgotten that the Master had said through the proper channel at the Spring Conference, "Angels shall go before you," so my trust was in God; and a man stepped up and said, "Mister, I believe I can get the courthouse for you." I told him if he could I would occupy with pleasure and give them a course of lectures. My voice is broken down with outdoor speaking and I could not stand it longer, hence I felt that the promise was being fulfilled. He soon returned, with permission from the proper authority, that I could occupy; then he and others said we must have some bills struck, and the bill inclosed, was the result of the effort; so I am holding forth in the courthouse each night to splendid audiences. I have plenty of good friends now, and I am feeling splendid, with my plow in, in good shape. What the harvest will be the future must reveal.

Yours in hope,

T. W. CHATBURN.

Monday evening, July 30, 1894. Free lectures. Elder T. W. Chatburn, of Independence, Missouri, will lecture in the lower room of the courthouse, commencing Monday evening, on the following subjects: Infidelity—Cause and Cure. Mormonism Exposed—Book of Mormon, What is it? Kingdom of God, its Location and Composition. Heaven, The Final Abode of the Righteous, Located. Skeptics and Infidels Especially Invited.

FULTON, Wis., July 20.

Editors Herald:—Bro. W. A. McDowell and the writer just closed a series of meetings at Milton Junction, Wisconsin, in an Advent church. Meetings were interesting, but attendance very small. One baptism at close of these services and four baptisms at Janesville, first Sunday of this month. Bro. McDowell is called home temporarily and I look for Bro. Henry Southwick to aid me in grove meetings about five miles from Evansville next Sunday.

We have suffered a great deal from drouth, which terminated by a nice rain last night.

Yours in gospel bonds,

W. S. PENDER.

COOK'S POINT, Texas, July 24.

Editors Herald:—Our district conference was a good one, with a very good turnout of both Saints and the world's people. The meeting continued until Friday night. We baptized and confirmed five; two heads of families, one young man, and two young ladies. We expect them to make good members. One of them had been a member of the Christian Church since 1886, a preacher's son of that faith. We expect him to make a very useful member, as he is very well informed in the Scriptures. He said he had to come into the church to be honest after he had examined our claims, because of his convictions of the truth of them.

Bro. John Hawley is with me. We are preaching here now. One made application for baptism last night. We aim to commence meeting next Friday night at Rogers and then near Milano Junction. I will let you hear from us later on.

Yours in bonds,

E. W. NUNLEY.

MILLERSBURG, Ill., July 27.

Editors Herald:—I recently preached ten times, in three different places, in Greene county, Indiana. The attendance, attention, and interest were good. It was a hot, dry, busy time. I baptized and confirmed Louis L. Kirkpatrick and Laura M., his wife, on the 18th inst., they being the firstfruits there. This pair were in solid earnest, apparently, and several more openly declare in favor of the cause we love. The Utah Church has quite a number of the best citizens of that community in their organization, but behold! they are investigating. Their elders have been passing through that section for years; two now, and for a long while, make their headquarters in that neighborhood. Mr. Bradshaw of Utah, and an old man by the name of Robbins, I believe, from Idaho, are the ministerial force there at present; but forsooth; there are others in the Southern part of the State. They will not, dare not meet our representatives in public debate, and do not seem to be willing to talk much in family circles or in private. Like the caged tiger or subdued elephant, they know not of their powers in the mental and spiritual realm, but tamely submit to the rulings, counsels, decision, and dictation of file leaders; hence they are in bondage. Polygamy is still the fixed belief of that apostate church, but the elder thinks they will not likely practice it again till Christ appears! They have dehorned the sectarian unicorn, and unhorsed the orthodox rider, and now it is for us to gather up the fragments so there be nothing lost, figuratively speaking. The mail service of the United States will not, knowingly, transmit obscene and vulgar literature. Their Doctrine and Covenants and other church publications contain the debasing, degrading, damning, diabolical document on celestial marriage and plurality of wives, blood atonement, and other kindred evils which are extremely shocking to the moral sense.

I met with and spoke to the Saints in Chicago last Sunday, and arrived home Monday, about ten o'clock p. m. My wife had been ailing for quite a while, and I found her still indisposed from excessive heat and nervous prostration. Our twelve year old daughter is "chief cook and bottle washer," and, troth, she is getting on all O. K. When I told my ten year old son how a deceased Baptist preacher's family declined to have me either read or pray when I asked to do so if it was their usual custom and wish, and how they did repeat the Lord's prayer next morning at the table, he said, "I would have gone out of doors to pray, and slept in a barn," etc. It is not, however, the first time religious zealots have prohibited me from enjoying the means of grace that may cluster around the family altar, or the courtesies that belong to the festal board. When will rival religionists allow that some one else may be honest as they are; and have as much light and truth as well? No one morally, and in justice, has a scriptural right to be deceived. The avenues of wisdom are open alike to the peasant and the prince; therefore all are amenable. A little light lived up to will augment evermore, in an arithmetical progression, whereas great advantages abused will detract in an adverse ratio, all according to the law of reciprocity.

Three years ago this very day the little prattler by me came to live with us in this northern village home. She is just as sweet in disposition as she is beautiful in form and features. My fond parental heart, slightly touched with domestic vanity, would say to the mothers throughout the land, Do not throw away your little ones because they cannot at all compete with my Ruby Irene. Say, do you not know that these juvenile tokens of conjugal fidelity cling around the stalwart being of the traveling elder like the bark of the Australian eucalyptus, or, more locally speaking, the ivy of the oak, or the skin to the bone?

Hot, dry weather, strikes, trusts, busts, hard times, universal distrust, widespread corruption, unmitigated evils and national bankruptcy and decay go to make up the "small talk" of the land. Even our church treasurer has got so far away from headquarters we scarcely hear from him of late; nor do the wives of the average missionary get their allowances punctually and with regularity, howbeit they are expected to pay the living of the family, or labor under suspicion, and at very great disadvantages. The church should strive to pay these stipends promptly monthly so that obligations could be met and canceled if they are in debt, or it ought to let them know to the contrary and shut up shop. This thing of the ambassador going forth from a loving wife and weeping children is about heavy enough a cross to bear without the glaring eyes and gnashing teeth of the wolf of poverty devouring the household. The preacher and his family are not allowed to be sponges, or beg; so you can see with half an eye that their wants should be vigilantly anticipated and cheerfully supplied by the Saints at large. Systematic benevolence, or the rule of giving under the gospel will solve the problem; and all will be mutually benefited by doing all the will of God. When selfishness, vanity, and pride are sacrificed on the altar of generosity, the yoke will be found easy and the burden light,

I am to meet Elder J. W. Perkins of Indianapolis, Indiana, in a week's debate at Rosedale, Indiana, August 21. I am to negative this proposition: "The teaching and practice of the Church of Christ, of which I am a member, is in harmony with the teachings of the Bible," and to affirm the following: "The Scriptures advocate the perpetuity of spiritual gifts." I obtained their chapel there with the understanding that it was at my service so long as I preached the Christianity of the Bible. Six successive discourses on that line strictly, and sure! they ate their words and bolted the door against me. The M. E. people threw open their church house for me, and from these incidents, connected with some street chat, the affair has crystallized into its present shape. This reverend gentleman assailed me in public, or rather the faith, in my own native village last December. I was denied a chance to reply, but justice though seemingly asleep comes along at last, but in another place. The man appears fair, frank, and kind; so we trust we will have a real debate. Pointers from ye editors or anyone will be thankfully received and duly considered. With love, zeal, and determination, I am,

Yours fraternally,

M. T. SHORT.

ELMIRA, Mich., July 25.

Editors Herald.—Everything seems to be moving on nicely all through the district. Since the June conference at South Boardman we have organized two branches; one at South Boardman and one at Boyne City. There are five or six other places in the district where the Saints number from eight to forty members unorganized, some of whom we hope will be organized before long.

We still have much opposition in many places. Bro. J. A. Carpenter is now going on in debate with our opposer, Mr. M. D. Rogers, at his home in Beaverton. After it is over he has agreed to meet me in Free Soil to discuss the same over again. At Boyne City one of the opposing ministers when commencing to abuse the Seer went so far as to get out "Old Joe Smith," but his mouth got all puckered up and drawn out of shape somehow or other, and he fell back, and they got water, etc., and after some time he was able to come to enough to say he thought they had better "close the meeting." We are informed that about that time Bro. C. G. Lewis of East Jordan made an able defense for the cause. I think the Lord is able to carry on his own cause in his own way.

I have been wonderfully blessed since the last General Conference. I often think when on the stand of the beautiful words, to the ministry at the conference: "The angels of God shall go before you," etc. I have baptized thirty-two since my return from Lamoni, and Bro. F. C. Smith during the conference month and since that time has baptized about the same number or more. Just right now is a very busy time, especially with the farmers, and the weather very warm; hence our meetings are not so well attended. God bless all his Saints.

J. J. CORNISH.

UNION FURNACE, Ohio, July 30.

Editors Herald.—Bro. J. L. Goodrich and I have been holding tent meetings at this place for over a week. Some of the Herald readers will remember that we had a tent burned here nearly two years ago. We were not then equipped for tent work as we are now; we now have cots and bed clothing, so that we sleep in the tent all the time. When first coming here this time we found much prejudice against us, and it seemed for a while that we would not get a location for the tent on account of prejudice or fear; but we put the tent upon railroad land near the depot, and we have held about twelve services with audiences and interest on the increase. We never have had better order and attention; new friends are being made daily. Some are believing and are near obedience. Am expecting Bro. Harder here to-day to take my place. The meetings will continue till the latter part of the week. We hope some may find courage to accept the truth, but if nothing more is accomplished, we are making friends for the cause.

When we first commenced our meetings here, the Presbyterian elder delivered a lecture against us and on the subject of continued revelation. He told his people that we were "distinct and separate from the Utah Church," and that we "taught no immoralities," but that we were composed of two different classes; viz., "those who are unlearned and those who are unstable." The Methodist minister also spoke against us. He was hardly as fair as was the Presbyterian. We are told that he compared us with everything that was mean, stated that we were "Utah Mormons," and advised the young ladies to stay away from our tent; or, he said, they would be "kidnapped." But their tirades against us only advertised us, and people are coming to hear for themselves. May the good work go on.

H. E. MOLER.

VERA CRUZ, Mo., July 7.

Editors Herald.—Please allow me space to reply to Bro. G. E. Reyner's remarks on Bro. Nutt's description of Douglass county, Missouri. My farm lies on the south side of Bro. Nutt's farm, adjoins it. I was born and raised in Illinois, and lived fifteen years in Northern Missouri, lived and farmed one year in Iowa, and have lived eight years in Douglass county, Missouri. I do not want to sell my farm; I would rather live in Douglass county, Missouri, than in any other place I ever lived; and for the benefit of anyone aiming to come here I would like to correct some mistakes Bro. Reyner made in his letter.

First; as to running a binder and mowing machine, the brother says neither could be run on account of the stones. I have been running a mowing machine here for four years, and we have binders and steam thrashers in Douglass county. Second; the brother stated that we could not plow more than one half an acre of land in a day with two good horses, and that we use bull tongue plows. I have opened a farm of fifty acres and have never plowed up one rod square with a bull tongue plow, and I can turn one acre of new ground in a day easily, with a small span of horses. Third; the brother states that it would take twenty days for a hand to take the timber off one acre of land. I had a man living on my place who cleared two acres of land for me last winter. He made fifteen hundred and fifty rails from the two acres and two hundred and sixty-five ground poles, and burned the brush and fixed the ground ready for the plow in nineteen days. Fourth; the brother says one acre of land in Iowa will produce as much feed as forty acres will in Douglass county. I will say that we have got as fine outside range in Douglass as I ever saw in any country, and I have meadow that will average one ton to the acre; so the Iowa land would have to make forty tons to the acre. And as for fruit; in a few years we will have the land of big red apples and peaches. We can sow them broadcast and raise them. The brother said that he could buy land within five miles of the county seat of Douglass county for one dollar per acre. I intend to rent my place and get nearer to the county seat, so if the brother will buy the one hundred and sixty acres he wrote of I will give him two dollars per acre for it. The brother also stated that there were five acres fenced on the said one hundred and sixty, and that it would take a man and a good team twelve or fourteen days to plow the five acres. I can plow it in five days; so if I was plowing for the brother I would get to rest nine days.

Wishing the brother, and the many readers of the Herald, and all the brethren and sister all the happiness that can be enjoyed in this world, and hoping that we may all have a part in the first and glorious resurrection, is my prayer.

Your brother in the Lord,
NATHANIEL BISHOP.

BANK OF ENGLAND SAFEGUARD.

"The safeguards adopted by the Bank of England to prevent that institution being robbed are about as thorough and complete as human ingenuity and mechanism can devise," said Mervin O. Todd of Manchester, England: "Its outer doors are so finely balanced that a clerk by pressing a knob under his desk, can close them instantly, and they cannot be opened again except by special process. The bullion department is nightly submerged in several feet of water by the action of machinery, and in some of the banks the bullion department is connected with the manager's sleeping apartments, so that an entrance cannot be effected without setting off an alarm near this person's head. If a dishonest official during the day or night should take even one from a pile of a thousand sovereigns, the whole pile would instantly sink, and a pool of water take its place, besides letting every one in the office know of the theft."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The memorial tower which is being erected by the Russians on the highest point of the Mount of Olives, at Jerusalem, is already several stories high, and but one more is to be added. It is to be so high that both the Mediterranean and the Dead Seas can be seen from the top.

AFTER THE BALL.

DANCING ONE CAUSE OF SPIRITUAL DEATH AND A SIGN OF APOSTASY.

IT is said that "you cannot put old heads on young shoulders." Our aim in writing this article is not to try to do that, but to keep them from losing their heads entirely; and not only their heads, but their souls as well. And furthermore; we shall not attempt to discuss this subject from the standpoint of "old wives' fables" such as the one quoted above, but from a direct appeal to the word of God and a comparison with the examples of the past. We may also introduce the testimony of those who have dealt with this fascinating angel of the evil one, thus combining "the law and the testimony."

The weapon Jesus used in battling with the adversary was, "It is written." We conclude therefore that it is a good weapon, so we will use it first. It is written that, "to be carnally minded is death." (Rom. 8: 6.) The word death in this passage evidently refers to spiritual death, for those of a carnal mind usually live as long naturally as those of a spiritual mind. We see but little if any difference in the age of the saint or sinner. Seventy-two years was the age of man, said Jesus to the Nephites; nor did he make any distinction between the carnally or spiritually minded. We admit that by following the carnal mind in all things it will bring about premature natural death; but if it does, does that prove that it may not also produce spiritual death as well? Reasoning from analogy we would say, "to be spiritually minded is life;" but are the spiritual-minded any more alive than others? or do they live longer naturally? It is evident, then, that the spiritual life is referred to, and it is this spiritual life that is killed by the carnal mind. When Paul said "to be carnally minded is death," he spoke of the death of the spiritual man. Like the seed that fell "among thorns" it is "choked with cares and riches and pleasures of this life." (Luke 8: 14.)

But is dancing a product of the carnal mind? We can best answer that question in the "Yankee style" by asking another. Is it the fruit or product of the Spirit of God? Sometimes a thing can be located by finding where it is not. If it is the fruit of the Spirit, why do we not see it cropping out in the life of Christ. He is our pattern. What would you have thought, kind reader, should you have stepped into a room in Jerusalem and there beheld your Lord and Master dancing with the young men and maidens of his day?

Do you think he did that? If not, then will we be following in his footsteps if we do differently? Jesus' "seamless coat" never floated in the breeze while his feet kept time to the music and his arms outstretched to clasp in his embrace the maidens of Assyria of every hue and character. Nor will the robes of the Saints be stained with tobacco smoke and expectorations, or liquor, or anything of that kind with which one comes in contact often in the dance hall.

"Shun evil companions,
Bad language disdain;
God's name hold in reverence,
Nor take it in vain."

If dancing was a fruit of the Spirit why was it not mentioned by Paul or others? Why did not the Lord reveal the fact to Joseph Smith so that when we see a number of people dancing and making a good many curious figures and antics we should know they had the Spirit?

To further show that it is not a product of the Spirit we call attention to the fact that the world's people enjoy it most; and Jesus said the world could not receive the Holy Ghost. If dancing is a product of the Spirit, then the "Midway" at the World's Fair last year was a very spiritual place. Ah no! dancing is a product of the carnal mind, and will as sure as there is a God in heaven produce spiritual death if continued in, or else Paul was wrong.

Again Paul said:—

For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh. The carnal mind is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then that they are in the [control of] the flesh cannot please God. Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh. For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live.—Rom. 8: 5, 7, 8, 12, 13.

Be not deceived: God is not mocked: . . . he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption.—Gal. 6: 7, 8.

Fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is.—1 Cor. 3: 13.

Having shown, then, that dancing is not a fruit of the Spirit, then it is not of God, and if not of God it must be of the evil one; for there are but two influences to bear upon our lives; one of God, the other of Satan. We have our agency, to be sure, but we simply use it to choose between the good and the bad—between God and Satan. We select from the material offered us by both and build accordingly. If our works, then, are to be tried by fire, shall we build with hay, straw, or stubble? or shall it be gold, silver, and precious stones. Shall it be a house of prayer or a dancing hall? Shall it be thoughtfulness, sobriety, meekness? or shall it be lightmindedness, frivolity, revelry, which?

Let us now notice some of the objections. A modern proverb says:—

"A little nonsense now and then Is relished by the wisest men."

But an ancient one says: "Folly is joy to him that is destitute of wisdom." It may be true that wise men relish "nonsense now and then" as much so as the drunkard does his dram, but does it prove the dancing is right because it is relished? That is just where the trouble comes in. It is the relish for it, the fascination which above everything else proves it to be of the carnal mind, or worse—of the evil one. It was Herod's fascination for the dance that caused him to make such an unwise promise to the daughter of Herodias, and which finally cost John the Baptist his head. It was the dance that caused the brethren of Nephi to forget God, or at least one sign of their apostasy. It was one cause of the downfall of the Babylonian kingdom. And so fascinating was the dance that just before the battle of Waterloo when news of the approaching Wellington was sounded in their ears the shout went up, "On with the dance, let joy be unconfined," until the sound of clattering hoofs and the cannon's roar which followed convinced them, as it should us, that it is dangerous to participate in anything so fascinating that it will benumb the senses as to cause one to forget God, to forget country, to forget home, to forget everything but the present seeming enjoyment.

"The brightest things below the sky
Give but a flattering light;
We should suspect some danger nigh
When we possess delight."—Isaac Watts.

Worse than the rattlesnake that gives warning of its intentions—yes worse than the deadly centipede that can be both seen and felt this serpent creeps up to its victim unawares at first and then as an angel of light with arms around its victim's neck, the inner man is "choked . . . by the pleasures of this world." (Luke 8: 14.) Wrestling with the inner man it is not seen or felt by the natural man until the Spirit of God is withdrawn and the victim is dead—spiritually dead—gone back into the world. And like one of old they say, "Let us eat, drink, and be merry; for to-morrow we may die." First the spiritual, then the natural, and the Devil owns the whole person.

But let us turn aside here and enter at this door; what do we see? The Saints at prayer meeting. They are having a good time, "a time long to be remembered." They are getting their spiritual strength renewed—feeding the inner man. To-morrow they will be able to overcome more than yesterday. An hour and a half and the meeting will be over. But suppose the presiding elder should continue the meeting until two o'clock in the morning and continue to do so every week. O, dear! he would soon break up the prayer meetings. The young folks "just couldn't stand it to be up so late nights," and the old folks would think it "a horrid injustice." I have never yet heard of a one o'clock prayer meeting, but I have heard of a "One O'clock Ball Club." It is said, too, (though I blush to repeat it,) that the members of that club are also members of an American church. Paul spoke of a class of people who were to live in the last days who, having a form of godliness (only Latter Day Saints have the form) would be "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." How much more, Paul? "Well, let me see. Your prayer meetings average an hour in length and your dances about seven. O, about six sevenths, that's all." No wonder he said they would be "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God," and that "to be carnally minded is death." For the carnal mind has six sevenths the advantage. That's obtaining or trying to obtain salvation at a very great disadvantage, is it not? We "cannot serve God and mammon;" we cannot please God with one hand while we carry the world in the other; "for the carnal mind is enmity against God." While there may not be a very gross sin in the mere dance itself, yet there is sin in almost everything connected with it, chiefest of which is the spirit of fascination which Satan always causes to be present.

Another objection to the dance is the company that very many times attends such places. "But," says the objector, "we meet with bad characters on the street and at church." True, but would you also rush into their society elsewhere, and especially in the ballroom where there is less restraint put upon such characters? Is it not enough to be compelled to associate with such where the older ones are present to maintain order? Besides at church and upon the street one does not come in so close contact with them. One makes himself equal with them in the ballroom by becoming brothers and sisters in revelry. We pray at church, "Lead us not into temptation," and we sing "Shun evil companions;" but at the dance we rush into the immediate society of "evil companions" and lead ourselves into temptation. I am more than half convinced that it is the companionship that is sought in the ballroom more than the ball. The ball is but the ceremonial means to an end. If the mere action of the body—the mere keeping step to music is the end in view in order to make more graceful the movements, why run off to the ballroom and in bad company? Why not the ladies dance by themselves and the gentlemen do the same and in separate apartments? It is evident because they do not do this that it is the association sought for; that the mingling with the opposite sex is the end in view. But why shake off one's religion at the ends of the toes just to mingle with the opposite sex? May that not be done elsewhere and under more favorable circumstances and where temptations are not so strong? Paul says of revelry that it is one of the fruits of the flesh.

But says one, "It is the last of the works of the flesh of which Paul speaks." But does it argue that because he mentions it last that it is least? And even if it was least, is that any reason that it should be continued? May we not speak against the smaller sins as well as the larger ones, even if dancing is considered by some of little consequence? "A stitch in time saves nine," and we wish to nip this thing "in the bud" before the evil influence is spread far and wide. Some may think we strain at a gnat and swallow a camel. If a camel has been swallowed does that prove that the gnat would make a wholesome diet? It is clear that dancing is contrary to the law of God and the practices of his people, and, above all, contrary to the example left us by our Savior.

That it is a sign of apostasy is noticed in the case of the brethren of Nephi when crossing to the promised land, also from many testimonies of the Saints to-day both written and unwritten. (See autobiography of R. C. Evans and many letters in the church papers.) A friend wrote me one time: "I attended the ballroom in company with four others and stoutly refused the first invitation to dance, but finally about thirty in number began coaxing and teasing me until I yielded to their persuasions. O, if I could have but prayed for strength to have overcome; but I could not. The very thought of asking God to help me in the ballroom made me shrink back in horror. Like Sr. S. says, 'Praying and dancing don't go well together.' . . . I danced a few times, when I resolved to quit and go home. At that juncture a gentleman asked me to dance, but I refused, stating that I had already danced more than I ought to and more than I intended to since I quit last February. Just then papa stepped in, who, knowing of my effort to try to stop dancing called me out, telling me that this would not help me to quit dancing. Once out of the dancing hall I felt like I had been liberated from hell." I think this must sooner or later be the testimony of all.

A young lady asked me one time if she might go to a dance now that she had joined the church. I told her no, unless she would first say her prayers before she went and again after she came home. The result was she did not go, for as she said, "The thought of asking God to bless me in the ball-

ANTECEDENT PROBABILITIES OF A REVELATION.

ASSUMING the existence of an Intelligent, Beneficent, Personal Power behind Nature, is there any reason for our knowing more of his will and purposes than we are able to discover by means of our natural faculties? Does not the question irresistibly arise, Why have we been brought into being? The inquiry is not purely speculative, but practical also; for, unless I know the end of my being, how can I know whether I am deporting myself so as to accomplish that for which I was created, or am wholly missing the mark? How inadequate our knowledge is has been beautifully expressed by Tennyson in the following lines:—

"Behold we know not anything
I can but trust that good shall fall
At last—far off—at last, to all,
And every winter change to spring.

"So runs my dream; but what am I?
An infant crying in the night:
An infant crying for the light:
And with no language but a cry."
—("In Memoriam," 53)

But must God's children forever cry, and their piteous pleading be unheeded? Can he listen coldly to the perpetual prayer of humanity for light, and never once in all the ages heed the piteous petition? Has he planted within the human spirit this longing for divine communications only as a mockery and a source of misery? The evidences of goodness in the constitution of nature seem to forbid such a supposition. In every organism there are appetites and desires, and correlative to them there are at hand the means of gratification. The beneficence of Nature regards the wants of even the lowest and most insignificant creatures. Their wants are not only provided for, but their appearance in life is postponed with special reference to the preparation of means to supply their wants. "Insects do not emerge from the grub until the means of their subsistence are at hand; indeed, they conform to the irregularity of the seasons if the growth of the plants requisite for their food is delayed by bad weather."—Christlieb's "Modern Doubt," etc., p. 177. If this be referred by the naturalist to the environment rather than to the provisional act of a beneficent being, we have only to seek a little farther for an example that cannot be thus explained. "The larva of the male stag-beetle, when it becomes a chrysalis, constructs a larger case than it needs to contain its curled-up body, in order that the horns, which will presently grow, may also find room. What does the larva know of its future form of existence, and yet it arranges its house with a view to it!"—Id., p. 157. Has the power behind nature implanted this instinct in the larva for its benefit, foreseeing what it could not see, and has this same power implanted in man, the highest earthly creature, a soul capable of self-determination and the consciousness of guilt, without making adequate provision for man's guidance and for the pardon of sin? But man's natural faculties do not enable him to know his whole duty or to discern a way of escape from the sense of guilt that pervades his consciousness when he violates the moral law that is written in his heart. A full and supernatural revelation seems necessary in order to inform his intellect, sustain his hopes, and assist his efforts. The proof of this is found in the experience of the ancient world. "One philosophical school followed another. What one proclaimed for truth was denied by its successor; the end was complete scepticism, doubt, and despair, of all truth. 'What is truth?' asked Pilate, and with him multitudes of his contemporaries. In long array Cicero adduces the doctrines of different philosophers concerning the human soul and then adds: 'Which of these opinions may be true a god may know; which may be only probable is a different question.' 'Ah! if one only might have a guide to truth,' sighs Seneca. Thus men then looked for guides; Plato, Pythagoras, the ancient philosophers, must be such. The quest went beyond the Greeks; Egyptian, Indian wisdom seemed to offer still greater assurance. Thus something brought from far, replete with mystery, inspired confidence at first. Here, too, men discovered that they were deceived. 'We must wait,' Plato had already said, 'for One, be it a god or a god-inspired man, to teach us our religious duties, and, as Athene in Homer says to Diomed, to take away the darkness from our eyes;' and in another place: 'We must lay hold of the best human opinion, in order that, borne by it as on a raft, we may sail over the dangerous sea of life, unless we can find a stronger boat, or some word of God, which will more surely and safely carry us.' The old world, convinced of the fragility of its self-constructed float, now desired this stancher vessel; confused by its own wisdom, it longed for a revelation."—Uhlhorn's "Conflict of Christianity with Heathenism," pp. 69,70.

The modern world has not been more successful in the effort to satisfy its cravings for certainty. Descartes was compelled to retire to the precincts of the colorless abstraction, "I think, therefore I am," the barren assertion of self-existence, from which he emerged into the world of objective reality only with a painful slowness, if not with doubtful certainty. Spi-room was too much. I saw that I must forsake my prayers or the dance, and I resolved to say my prayers." What testimony we have gathered seems to show that dancing is a sign of apostasy.

Will we dance in the millennium? How would it do to have Jesus as floor manager? You say ridiculous. But is it more so than to see Saints dance? For it was the Saints' church I had reference to when I said an "American church." I was never more shocked in my life than when I heard that at the "seat of the First Presidency" the Saints had organized a "one o'clock ball club." I felt just like laying down the armor, for I would not preach for a church unless I could affirm to the world that it was in harmony with the New Testament in faith and practice. Now I go out into the world with shamefacedness and dare not affirm that the "Reorganization" is in harmony with the word of God in practice. I with my brethren with whom I associate feel to a certain extent as thought we had been disgraced, and that we had been taxed, and now ask for representation. In answer to a question from a friend, if I would leave the church, I replied, "No, I know too well, if that thing keeps on it will be like it was in the days when the church went into apostasy under Brigham Young; there would be no church to apostatize from.

Already the effect is being felt in this far-off corner of the vineyard, and some one will be responsible for its evil effects. Already we have to confess that dancing is practiced in the church. Cold water, so to speak, has been thrown on our work and dampened our ardor. A college is to be built where the Saints' children can attend school and be under "church influences." When we read "church influences" we nodded our head, but every time we nodded our chin turned around our shoulder. Lamoni is to become a stake? O, we hope not, under present existing circumstances! Well did the Spirit say, "In due time," and we trust that time will not come until the dance hall has been swept, and fumigated, and made a house of prayer.

If dancing is commendable why not advertise the dances in the church paper, giving price of tickets, name of floor manager, etc. Perhaps when some of the elders are passing through we could stop over and attend. No, we will not, but will cry aloud and spare not, and shun the very appearance of evil. I am glad that certain portions of the church have been put under the immediate charge of the President. It was evidently thus placed for the purpose of bettering it, and I believe the Spirit will say, "Stop the dance."

J. W. PETERSON.

ANNATON, Wisconsin, July 20, 1894.

noza mistook a mere definition for the total of truth, and from the imagined oneness of all substance proceeded by a metaphysical geometry to resolve all into God, obliterating in the process the Divine Personality, the human will, the immortality of the soul, and every rational motive and hope of life. Malebranche, lost amid two abstractions into which he resolved the known universe, elaborated with wonderful skill and eloquence his two mystical doctrines of the vision of all things in God, and Occasional Causes. Locke, by restricting the origin of all knowledge to the sphere of the senses, though admitting the power of reflection, laid the foundations of a philosophy that resulted in France in a soulless materialism, feeding the fires of political revolution and the holocaust of religious beliefs. Berkeley, following Locke, and writing in the interest of religion, denied our knowledge of the material world, and passed on to Hume an idealism which the latter quickly evaporated into nihilism, leaving in the darkened universe neither matter, soul, nor God. Leibnitz, the most comprehensive spirit of his age, expounded his ingenious theory of monads, and concocted the fatalistic notion of preestablished harmony. Reid could do no better than to remind the world of its common-sense, which seemed, indeed, to have been forgotten. Kant boldly attempted the anatomy of the soul, leaving a detailed chart of its nature, but likewise leaving it a mutilated corpse that speculative philosophy seemed unable to galvanize into life, and which is practical philosophy restored only by the copious infusion of its own warm blood. Fichte bravely strove to evolve the universe from the ego, Schelling to evolve the ego from the universe, and Hegel to evolve both from nothing. Auguste Comte declared philosophy a failure, and grouped some hasty generalizations of physical science into a "positive philosophy," to which he afterwards added a "religion of humanity," in which he stripped from humanity everything distinctively human and from religion everything distinctively religious. Hamilton, with unparalleled erudition, reinstated transcendentalism in England; but though a devout theist himself, left a heritage, borrowed from Pascal, in the doctrine of the conditioned and the unconditioned, which, if logically applied, would destroy theology. Mill, handing on the torch of empiricism received from the hand of his father and lighted by John Locke, burns the bridge between the soul and the outer world, and leaves man an isolated "thread of consciousness," a "series of sensations," wholly at the mercy of certain "permanent possibilities of sensation," unknown and unknowable.

Spencer points backward to a certain "homogeneous somewhat," out of which all things have been slowly "differentiated" by the "unknowable;" which, nevertheless, he calls "force," and affirms that it is "persistent." Huxley, as a scientist, traces our protoplasmic ancestry through slimy reptiles, climbing apes, and mute savages, creeping upward through the ages from primal pools, only to point as a philosopher to nihilism, inherited from Hume. Such are the lights of the world!

We may well consider the wise words of Dr. Christlieb: "We maintain," he says, "that no philosophy which entirely rejected the aid of revelation and sought to comprehend the world and God by mere efforts of reason ever succeeded in attaining to any positive lasting results. From Thales and Pythagoras onward to Hegel and Herbart, not only has one system taken the place in due time of another, but also by its criticism has demolished the earlier one. In criticism and negation, then, philosophy has made mighty strides; men have grown wiser in pulling down, but not in building up. The former is, no doubt, much the easier of the two. Down to our time, philosophers have come to no agreement even as to the basis from which philosophical speculation has to proceed; whether from some general principle or idea, or from matter, whether from the idea of pure being, or from consciousness; they are not agreed as to the relation between the real and the ideal, whether the former or the latter is that which truly is; not yet agreed as to the idea and nature of God and his relation to the world, nor as to that of man, his reason and his spirit; they are not yet agreed as to the relation existing between soul and body; nor as to our freedom of will and accountability; nor, in short, as to any one fundamental question in speculative knowledge, morals, or religion. In whatever direction we turn, we find ourselves confronted by 'open questions,' unsolved problems, and views either diametrically opposed or importantly divergent."—Ubi supra, p. 80. Why is this so? Let us receive our answer from the high authority just quoted. "Philosophy," says Dr. Christlieb, "has ever desired to solve the questions What am I? Whence am I? and Whither am I and the world going? But who is it that puts these questions? Reason. But reason, we are told, is able to answer them. Is it able? Would it persist in asking questions of which it knew the answer?" (Id., p. 76.) This is a significant question, and its answer must be a decided negative. Another question, however, not less significant, obtrudes itself upon us: Would reason, the highest power in known creation, persist in asking questions to which there is no answer? What means this tendency, then, universal in the human mind and springing out of its essential constitution, to reiterate in every age the questions What am I? Whence am I? and Whither do I tend? Does not the persistency of this tendency plainly indicate that there is in man's nature a constitutional demand for a supernatural revelation, a demand placed in the human spirit to guide it to the supernatural light when the light is flashed down from heaven upon our planet? The Star in the East might appear and pass away unnoticed if the Magi of Earth were not waiting and watching for it. If an appetite is correlated to sustenance, why is not the persistent inquiry of reason correlated to revelation? An affirmative answer cannot be escaped, unless we assume that the Power behind Nature is less beneficent in gratifying the highest needs than in satisfying the lowest. Either that Power is capricious in action and the boasted uniformity of Nature's laws is a dream of speculation, or the watching of the Magi argues the appearance of the Star that shall guide their eager feet to the birth-spot of the Incarnate Word—the expected Revealer for whom Plato waited.

What must a revelation contain in order to meet the demand? Plainly, it must answer those questions which reason is forever asking, but can never answer, What am I? Whence am I? and Whither do I tend? It cannot fairly be expected to do more than supplement our natural faculties. It is unreasonable to suppose that it would in any respect supersede them and leave them without a purpose. This would be equivalent to an act of repentance in the Creative Power, and would imply a blunder in man's primary constitution. Here is apparent the error of those who expect to find in a revelation a full explanation of the system of Nature—an astronomy, a geology, a botany, a zoology, a psychology, a logic—either one or all. It is enough if what we know of these sciences is not directly contradicted. It would be no impediment to our acceptance of a suitably accredited revelation if terms were employed in it based on the apparent rather than on the real constitution of the universe; for, being a communication to man, man's modes of expression must be adopted in order to make the contents intelligible to him. If natural facts undiscovered by man's faculties were taken for granted or expressly declared, the communications made might seem needlessly to contradict his knowledge, or to contain incredible paradoxes. This would only prevent the reception of the revelation by a portion, at least, of mankind. But, however this might be, the revelation of anything that could be known by the methods of human science, or of what might be experimentally ascertained, would be apart from the main purpose for which supernatural enlightenment is needed. References to anything in the sphere of science, then, would naturally be few, brief, and purely incidental. If absolutely and irreconcilably contradictory to known facts, the statement of a pretended revelation could not be rationally accepted; but it would be natural that anticipations of known facts would be misunderstood by those who did not possess full knowledge. This would necessitate a progress in the interpretation of a revelation, the rejection of old interpretations and the formation of new ones. This would not invalidate the revelation in any sense, unless those particulars were involved which it was the express design of the revelation to declare. Even among those particulars there might be some that would be important to one age and not to another; some which, at any given moment of time, would be obsolete; and others which, at that same time, would be of only prospective value. Nor would it be strange if such a revelation as man needs should be wholly meaningless to all the men of any given age of the world; for it might be important that it should exist in order that time might confirm its authority by showing that events were foretold in it long before their occurrence. Much less, then, would it be strange if there were some particulars that would be unintelligible to the men of one age, since these might be intended for the benefit of subsequent generations. Indeed, it would be expected that a revelation would contain many things not confirmed by our natural faculties, and many that might be surprising to us, for the communication of these would be the very object of a revelation, inasmuch as they would be beyond human discovery and proof. It would not be a reason for our rejecting either the whole or part of a well-attested communication if it should contain some announcements that were disagreeable to us, or if it should impose some very difficult tasks upon us, or if it should point out many errors in our conduct or in our judgments of which we had not formerly been conscious. In brief, we could form no a priori conclusion as to what announcements it would contain, or how they would affect us, beyond the expectation that it would inform us of what we need to know for the practical ends of life in reply to the questions What am I? Whence am I? and Whither do I tend? Nor would these answers be likely to assume such forms as to gratify an idle curiosity, but rather to meet a felt spiritual demand in our higher nature. Hence we could not fairly reject a well-accredited revelation because it was deficient in scientific completeness, or because it was not expressed in scientific forms of language, or because its full meaning could be learned only gradually, or because it contained matters unintelligible to us, or because its contents were not rationally demonstrable, or because its announcements were disagreeable to us, or because it failed to gratify an idle curiosity.

What form would a revelation be expected to assume? Concerning this we could hardly frame a reasonable conjecture. If we could anticipate the form, it might seem, on this very account, that the revelation was not a divine, but a human product. All that we could expect would be that the form should be such that the revelation could be clearly proved to be a revelation and not a mere human fabrication, and that it could be preserved and transmitted, in its substance at least, to future ages. It might consist in the appearance of a living being whose words and conduct should declare the truth we need, or a succession of such living beings. It might consist in a written document or a series of documents, composed in human language. Or it might consist in a combination of persons and documents appearing at intervals, each with a new increment of truth to announce or record. These might add very considerably to the sum of revelation from time to time, and this condition would argue nothing against the earlier revelations. Nothing but a direct contradiction could fairly be understood as invalidating the claims of any one of several parts in the progressive total of the revelation. New interpretations of the old might be necessitated by the new. This would be only a parallel to the progress of human science. The facts of chemistry, for example, remain ever the same, but old theories are constantly giving place to new ones. Nor does this show that the chemistry of the eighteenth century was either false or useless, but merely that it was incomplete. A theology based upon the early portion of a revelation in like manner would be neither false nor useless, but merely incomplete. It would be natural, indeed, to hold in comparatively light esteem early and partial installments of a revelation, after the later and fuller installments had been added; but to affect a contempt for the earlier knowledge would be as unreasonable as a contempt of childhood on the part of manhood. All Nature reveals development. We find it in the growth of the human mind and body as well as in every human science and in every form of social polity. We find it in the history of thought, invention, art, and politics. It would be anomalous, indeed, if we did not find it in a revelation designed for men of different attainments and of different consequent needs. The progressiveness of a revelation, however, might easily be imagined by some as an objection to its genuineness; for the contrast between its earlier and later parts would necessarily be vivid in proportion to the extent of the developments; and this vivid contrast might easily suggest inconsistency and even apparent contradiction between the extremes. The superior dignity and more refined expression of the latest part of the revelation, being intended for a mature age, would possibly render the communications to the world in its intellectual infancy relatively childish, if not almost incredible. This being almost necessary, some apparent crudities and puerilities might naturally appear in a revelation without invalidating any portion of it. To urge their presence in a series of communications pretending to be divine as a refutation of the claim, would be as foolish as to question the wisdom and kindness of the father who gives a picture-book to his son when he is an infant and bestows upon him a library of learned volumes when he becomes a man. But if, side by side with supposed crudities, there should be found truth so sublime and recondite as to transcend human powers of discovery in the early age when the statement of it was made, truth which subsequent science should confirm and demonstrate, truth which no age could outgrow, truth which every age should esteem more and more highly as its grandeur became more evident—this would be a conclusive proof that the communication of it was supernatural. Such evidence might in time come to have such force with persons capable of estimating its conclusiveness as to lead them to suppose that no other proof of the reality of the revelation was needed. This conviction might even become so established in their minds as to induce them to regard any other kind of proof as a reproach to their intelligence. Signs and wonders, necessary at first to the confirmation of the truth, might thus come to be esteemed positive disadvantages, since contradictions to the ordinary course of Nature, or even occurrences unknown to ordinary human experience, seem to require special proof of their reality, or may appear to the scientific mind absolutely impossible. Thus the very proofs demanded by one age may become incredible to the superficial thinkers of another age, and indeed to all who do not consider what proofs are necessary to assure the reception of a revelation at the time of its first announcement.

Richardson, E. A. Blakeslee, R. Alcott, S. B. Scott baptized 1, J. B. Prettyman baptized 2, G. F. Weston, S. Bruce, E. J. Goodenough, and S. W. L. Scott baptized 7. Wm. Lockerby, Bishop's agent, reported: Due agent October 20, 1893, $141.13; received $514.40; expended $413.85; due agent $40.58. Preaching by Elders I. M. Smith, and S. W. L. Scott. Elder I. M. Smith was chosen president; all the other officers sustained. Adjourned to meet at Coldwater at call of district president.

Miscellaneous Department.

SOUTHWESTERN IOWA REUNION.

Those in charge of the reunion to be held at Wheeler's Grove commencing August 18 have procured a number of tents from the manager of the Chatauqua grounds at Council Bluffs and can lease them for $1.00 for the entire time. Anyone wishing to secure one or more tents can do so by addressing S. Wood, Macedonia, Iowa.

By order of committee.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Nauvoo and String Prairie district conference will convene at Farmington, Iowa, September 15, at 10:30 a. m. instead of September 1, for the reason that Bro. A. H. Smith can be with us then and could not on former appointment. Hoping that this change will give satisfaction, and inviting all to attend who can, I remain, your coworker, W. T. LAMBERT, Pres.

Conference of the Philadelphia district will convene at Baldwin, Maryland, September 8, at seven p. m. The district Sunday school association will hold a business session and an entertainment during the gathering. It is hoped that a large attendance of the Saints and local ministers will be present. Brn. Kent and Robinson of the traveling ministry will be with us, and we hope that it will be possible for Bro. W. H. Kelley and one of the Bishopric to be present. Let me know, brethren, so I can advertise in local papers. As this is the first conference ever held in this State by this church let us make it a success. Come, brethren and sisters, don't fail to be at this conference. Round trip ticket from Philadelphia $1.85 good for three days. Come one and all.

A. H. PARSONS, Pres.

Quarterly conference of Little Sioux district convenes at Little Sioux, Iowa, Saturday and Sunday, September 1 and 2. A full representation and report is desired.

A. M. FYRANDO, Dist. Sec.

REUNION NOTICE.

Southwestern Missouri reunion will convene at Eldorado Springs, October 5-15. A cordial invitation is extended to all. We expect a large representation of the church, as this is a place of renown as a health resort, and a central place for the membership of Missouri and Kansas to attend.

In gospel bonds,
ABNER LLOYD.

NOTICES.

The branch secretaries of Kentucky and Tennessee will please send in their records to me by the 12th of August, and please send reports also. I want to compare branch records with district records. Our conference convenes at the close of the reunion, which convenes August 9, 1894.

A. S. SNOW, Dist. Sec.

BORN.

BOHN.—To Bro. Daniel C. and Sr. Emma Julia Bohn, near Lamoni, Iowa, October 6, 1893, a son, and named Joseph Franklin; blessed July 22, 1894, by Pres. Joseph Smith.

DIED.

BARSTOW.—Sr. Sarah Barstow, wife of Bro. Levi Barstow, of Coal Gate, Hocking county, Ohio, was born February 5, 1837, at Ironton, Scioto county, Ohio; departed this life July 20, 1894. She was married September 13, 1855. Baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ by Elder G. T. Griffiths, October 28, 1889. She was the mother of eleven children, all having been reared to manhood and womanhood, save her youngest, which died in infancy, nine of whom with her husband and fifteen grandchildren, survive to mourn her departure. She ever lived a dutiful and faithful wife, a fond, indulgent, and patient mother, and exemplary Christian, generous to a fault, patient in affliction, sympathetic with others' sorrows, hopeful in another's joy. Her faith in God was of that indomitable strength that enabled her to extend the mantle of charity to all, with envy toward none. Funeral services at the house, nine a. m. July 22, by Elder H. R. Harder, assisted by Elder Charles Cooper. Text John 11:25.

DOBBIN.—At Jonesport, Maine, July 15, 1894, Nellie May, daughter of Bro. Augustus and Sr. Nellie Dobbin, aged 3 years and 4 months. Funeral sermon by Elder J. C. Foss.

MURRAY.—At Rockland, Maine, July 17, 1894, John H. Murray, aged 31 years, 3 months, and 26 days. Baptized by Elder J. C. Foss, June 17, 1894. Brother John was buried under the honors of the Masonic order; of which he was a member. A widowed mother and a brother mourn after him. Funeral services in the Freewill Baptist church by Elder J. C. Foss.

DIEM.—Bro. George F. Diem died at Washington, Michigan, July 20, 1894, aged 17 years, 6 months, and 29 days. He was baptized May 31, 1893, at Washington, by Elder R. E. Grant. A mother, brothers, and sisters mourn. The funeral discourse was by Elder A. Barr on Sunday the 22d at Carsonville in the Methodist church.

SEELYE.—Jesse Seelye, of Savannah, New York, died on the morning of the 13th inst. A wife, one brother, and two sisters survive him. He was born January 7, 1806, in the town of Queensbury, Warren county, New York. November 4, 1832, he was married to Mary Ann Stackus. Of the children born to them but one ever lived past the infantile state, a girl, named Ursula, who died in her nineteenth year, forty years ago. Bro. Seelye spent his whole life in the State of New York, and for over a half century on his little farm near Savannah. He united with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints April 22, 1837. Was baptized by Jedediah Grant. He was highly esteemed by the citizens of Savannah as a neighbor. The town paper says of him: "Jesse Seelye was ninety years of age and had been a resident of this town for more than a half century. During his career Mr. Seelye was a most honorable and straightforward citizen, being a justice of the peace of this town for over twenty-five years, besides holding other offices of trust." His wife, Sr. Mary Ann Seelye, is now in the eighty-ninth year of her age. A large number of citizens were in attendance at the funeral services which took place at Bro. Seelye's residence, at two p. m., Sunday, July 15. Bro. Seelye was a staunch defender of the faith. He suffered much criticism and opposition from the opposers of his faith, but he stood firm and bore a faithful testimony to the last. He died with a bright hope of sharing in the triumphs and rewards of faithful Saints. He was a high type of true manhood, Christian fortitude, and exemplary acts. He has gone to rest, and all feel at ease by reason of the noble life he lived. The funeral services were conducted by Elder Wm. H. Kelley. He was buried in the Butler cemetery.

CHRISTENSEN.—Near Weston, Iowa, July 18, 1894, Bro. Rasmus Christensen. Deceased was born September 16, 1814, at Moen, Denmark. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church, July 13, 1891, by Elder Hans Petersen. Funeral sermon by Elder H. N. Hansen.

KIMBALL.—At her home, Wilkesport, Ontario, July 13, 1894, Sr. Helen Kimball. Deceased was born September 26, 1825, in Canada; baptized November 7, 1870, by Elder John Shippy. Funeral sermon by Elder Samuel Brown from Genesis 2:17, to a large concourse of neighbors and friends.

OPP.—At Avoca, Nebraska, November 14, 1893, Clarence J. Opp, aged 6 years, 5 months, and 28 days. At same place, Lester A. Opp, July 19, 1894, aged 1 year, 1 month, 13 days. Children of Mr. Jacob and Sr. Ravina Opp, and grandchildren of Bro. John and Sr. Ravina Ervin. Funeral sermons were preached by Rev. Mollie of the Christian Church.

WILLIAMS.—At Keb, Iowa, July 16, 1894, Evan, son of Bro. T. R. and Sr. Williams, aged 3 years, 4 months, and 10 days. He died very suddenly. The parents were greatly stricken by the unexpected blow. The funeral was conducted by Bro. Parley Batton, Bro. James England assisting.

HENDERSON.—At the residence of her son-in-law, Robert H. Wilson, Red Cloud, Nebraska, July 9, 1894, Mrs. Betsy Jane Henderson, aged 81 years, 4 months, and 1 day. Betsy Jane Ohaver was born in Jackson county, Missouri, and was married to John Henderson October 21, 1829. She was raised in the Methodist faith, in which church she was a faithful member until the year 1836, when she united with the Church of Jesus Christ, in which she lived a faithful member until the day of her death. She was the mother of seven children, four sons and three daughters. Three sons and three daughters are left to mourn.

MCDONALD.—At the home of his parents in Montrose, Iowa, July 18, 1894, Hugh McDonald, aged 19 years, 5 months, and 29 days. Singing by the Episcopal choir, prayer by Elder J. H. Lambert, and preaching by Elder J. C. Crabb. A large gathering of relatives and friends met to pay their last tribute of respect to the remains. He was a young man well respected by all who knew him.

OGELSVE.—At Roscoe, Missouri, July 2, 1894, Estelle Leota, daughter of Bro. John W. and Sr. Cora I. Ogelsve. She was born January 18, 1893. Funeral services July 3, by Bro. George W. Beebe.

RITTENHOUR.—At Lebeck, Missouri, July 23, 1894, Curtis, son of Bro. Philip and Sr. Mary Rittenhour. Deceased was born February 27, 1892. Funeral in the Saints' chapel at Lebeck; sermon by Bro. J. B. Gouldsmith, assisted by Bro. G. W. Beebe.

SURRIDGE.—At Bevier, Missouri, Eva, daughter of Bro. Mark and Sr. Maria Surridge. Was born July 25, 1884; died July 16, 1894. Father, mother, four brothers, and four sisters mourn their loss. Funeral services and discourse by Elder J. A. Tanner, assisted by Elder J. T. Williams.

SMITH.—At Salt Lake City, July 19, 1894, Sr. Ann Smith, who was born May 1, 1815, in Woolstain, Staffordshire, England. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church June 10, 1880, by T. N. Hudson. She has been a faithful member of the church, and died in peace. Funeral services at her house, conducted by J. Larson; Elder E. Barrows preached the funeral sermon.

DILLON.—At Lamoni, Iowa, on the morning of July 30, 1894, of old age and debility, Elder James P. Dillon. He was born in Monroe county, Ohio, December 9, 1823, baptized April 20, 1863, and ordained June 28, the same year. He early received and always bore a strong testimony to the work of God; was a good laborer, having filled several missions with credit and fidelity, and went to his rest without the fear of death. He fought a good fight, kept the faith, and there is a crown laid up for him, as for the Apostle Paul and all who shall love the appearing of our Lord.

LAKEMAN.—At South Addison, near Jonesport, Maine, June 25, 1894, Elder Joseph Lakeman, of the Seventy. The body was taken to his former home, at Fisher's Cove, Grand Manan, New Brunswick, for burial, where among his old time friends and his relatives, the funeral services were had, conducted by Mr. Elisha Flagg. He was 73 years old, and leaves a wife, four sons, and four daughters to mourn the loss of a kind father and loving husband.

HUFFMAN.—At his home in Atlas, Illinois, July 13, 1894, Bro. H. B. Huffman. He was born August 6, 1816, in the State of New York, and emigrated to Illinois when quite young. He leaves two sons and one daughter to mourn their loss.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

In his third annual report the Commissioner of Labor submitted the result of an exhaustive investigation as to strikes and lockouts in the United States from 1880 to 1886. There were during the years named, 1881-1886, both inclusive, 3,902 strikes in the United States, involving 24,304 establishments and 132,320 employees. Loss to the strikers for the period of six years was $51,814,723, and to employers for lockouts $8,157,717, or a total of $59,972,440. Loss to employers of labor during the same period amounted to $34,163,814, and the amount of assistance to strikers by voluntary contributions was $4,430,595, making a total loss of $98,566,859 in six years. These figures represent the actual loss to the parties engaged and do not represent the enormous loss which incidentally came to the communities by reason of such disturbances.

One hundred men of Jeffries' Seattle industrial army captured a Cleveland and Pittsburg train just east of Newburg, Ohio. The police of Ravenna dislodged twenty-five of the men.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 28.—The minor state of siege which exists here and in the chief provinces of the Russian Empire has been renewed for a year.

Crops are satisfactory, both in regard to quality and quantity.

Finland has been invaded by bears which are ravaging the farm stock. Troops have been sent to kill them.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The United States Consul at Bagdad, Mr. Sundberg, in a report to the State Department describes the terrible condition of the place from a hygienic point of view. He says that since the May floods began to subside a malignant fever has prevailed in the city and suburbs, more especially among the fellahs (tillers of the soil) down along the river. Having lost all their crops, the Consul fears the survivors of the fever will soon be starving. The Consul started on a relief expedition with a small store of medicine. In the court yards, mixed up with donkeys, buffalos, dogs, and chickens, were heaps of filthy rags, around which millions of flies held carnival, and which, when disturbed, disclosed each a human being sick with the fever. The mortality has been very high and the misery beyond conception. The immigration of defunct Persians having just been reopened. Many thousands of corpses will pass through Bagdad this summer for their final resting place. It is a source both of revenue and pestilence. An arriving caravan was loaded with coffins containing corpses that had been dead for months; some, perhaps, for years. The plague which usually follows the floods is expected next winter.

SOPHIA, July 29.—Fire destroyed 2,000 houses at Gattel, a town in Bulgaria. Full details of the disaster have not been received, but it believed many persons perished. The townspeople whose houses were burned are camping out in the fields.

A copious rainfall relieved the drought in Central and Southern Illinois and Missouri and in portions of Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska, July 28 and 29.

Pullman employees are ready to resume work for one year.

A dynamite bomb exploded under a C. B. and Q. engine in the Panhandle yards, Chicago, on the 27th ult. One man was injured.

ASHLAND, Wis., July 28.—Loss of property approximating $3,000,000 and heavy loss of life, the extent not yet known, though at least twenty persons met death at Phillips yesterday, is the record of the forest fires which have swept Northern Wisconsin for two days and are now, seemingly, checked by the rainfalls to-day. The losses now seem to be:—

The city of Phillips entirely wiped out.

The city of Mason practically destroyed, with White River Lumber Company and 30,000,000 feet of lumber.

Headquarters of the Ashland Lumber Company, near Shores Crossing, entirely wiped out.

Special train of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha, consisting of sixteen cars and locomotive, all burned; broke through burning bridge near Ashland Junction.

Camps of Thompson Lumber Company burned at White River.

Two bridges on Wisconsin Central railroad, one near Chelsea, another near Phillips, both on main line south of Ashland.

These are the estimated losses, specifically, so far as known:—

Lumber plants.....	$1,000,000
Phillips residents.....	1,250,000
Mason.....	700,000
Thompson Lumber Company,
Washburne.....	2,000
Ashland Lumber Company.....	6,000
Shores Crossing residents.....	4,000
Two bridges, C., St. P., M. and O.
Railroad.....	10,000
Two bridges, Wisconsin Central.	10,000
Homesteaders.....	250,000

KALSO, Wash., July 28.—Losses so far reported from the forest fires throughout the mountains of this section aggregate $125,000. The people of the Slocum district are left destitute. A relief party has gone there, but it is feared there will be great suffering before it pushes its way through the burning forest. Fires had been burning around the towns for several days, but about noon a gale swept down the mountain, lifting high tops and limbs of burning trees and carrying them long distances as brands to start new fires. Almost instantaneously a dozen fires were burning in Three Forks.

HONGKONG, July 28.—A blue book, issued to-day by Sir W. Robinson, the Governor of Hongkong, reports that 120,000 peoples died of the plague in the Canton district.

VIENNA, July 29.—Archduke William III., son of the late Archduke Charles and a second cousin of Emperor Francis Joseph, met with an accident to-day that resulted in his death.

COLON, July 28.—Dr. Flores and Gen. Oswald Seminario, the leaders of the Peruvian revolution, are on board a steamer which they have chartered at Gayaquil. They are now about due at Iquique, where they intend to augment their forces and give a fresh impetus to the revolution.

YOKOHAMA, Japan, July 28.—The Japanese Government has issued the following official statement of the recent engagement between the fleets of Japan and China:—

"In consequence of severe provocation three ships of the Japanese squadron were compelled to engage the Chinese fleet off Fontao, or Round Island. They captured the Chinese warship Tsac Kian and sank a Chinese transport with soldiers on board. Unfortunately one of the largest Chinese ironclads of the northern fleet, the Chen-Yuen, escaped to China and the Chinese torpedo cruiser Huan-Tai escaped to Fusan, in Corea. The three Japanese warships engaged were the Allitsushima, the Takachiho, and the Hih-Yei. They escaped entirely without injury."

SHANGHAI, July 31.—A desperate battle has taken place between the fleets of China and Japan, in which the Chinese were defeated and the Chen-Yuen, the largest battleship but one in the Chinese service, was sunk and two other large Chinese vessels, said to be first-class cruisers, were captured or destroyed. The battle which took place yesterday was hotly contested, but the Japanese appear to have handled their guns, ships, and torpedoes with more skill than the Chinese. The Chinese fleet engaged carried nearly 1,000 men and few, if any, of the Chinese engaged in the battle escaped. Two German officers, in command of the Chen-Yuen, are reported to have met death with the crew of that vessel.

LONDON, July 29.—As the result of inquiries made of experts in eastern politics and persons who have resided in Corea the representative of the Associated Press learns that widespread discontent exists in Corea because of the corruption and misgovernment that everywhere prevail. One of the most powerful revolutionary factors in the country is a quasi-religious sect called Tong-Hak, which ascribes the precarious conditions of Corean trade and commerce to the presence of foreigners in the country. This sect has set for itself the task of ridding Corea of the hated foreigners and has threatened the Japanese and other foreign residents. Among the charges brought against the foreigners is one that they have caused an increase in the price of foodstuffs, without any benefit accruing to the Coreans. The King of Corea possesses no real authority and he is in constant terror of a revolution that will sweep him from his throne. He is heavily in debt and the whole country is in a state of anarchy. To this condition of affairs is due the revolt that recently started in one of the provinces. Last year 30,000 Coreans, armed and unarmed, threatened to march on the Capital, Seoul, and expel the foreigners. This rebellion was suppressed, but the country has been disturbed ever since. Reforms in the administration are regarded as absolutely necessary, not only to save the commerce of the country but for the safety of foreigners.

DENVER, Colo., July 31.—Special dispatches from six counties in Eastern Colorado along the Kansas and Nebraska lines report that, owing to the hot winds, the crops will be a total failure. Many farmers are leaving in search of employment and many would go if they could get away. Great suffering and hardships will surely result, as the crop was light last year.

OMAHA, Neb., July 31.—Another general rain visited this State to-day. Showers fell from Omaha to Wahoo, and Linwood and from Blair as far as Sioux City; also north from Omaha to Oakdale, Verdigre, and Albion. The southern and western parts of the State report light rains.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 30.—A severe hail and rainstorm struck Stevens county on the Pope county line at 3 o'clock to day, lasting for an hour. Large hailstones fell in the village of Morris for over half an hour, destroying all window lights on the north side of buildings. Over 1,000 are reported broken. The gardens in the town are ruined. In the surrounding country much damage to crops is reported. The storm ran in streaks, and did not go but one half mile north and the same distance west. The principal damage to crops as far as learned was in the towns of Framnas, Swan Lake, Darnen, and south towards Hancock. Several farms north of Morris were totally stripped of all growing crops. Probably from 5,000 to 10,000 acres were destroyed totally and a corresponding amount partly. What makes the loss especially severe is that a hailstorm has visited that locality for three successive years.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 30.—This city was cut off entirely from the outside world by telegraph and telephone from five p. m., yesterday until this morning by the most disastrous storm that has visited this section in years. At Lake Massabesic the storm was accompanied by a cyclone which wrecked buildings, blew down large trees, and destroyed much valuable property.

Fire destroyed property valued at $500,000 at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, July 30.

CHICAGO, Ill., August 2.—The Twenty-second street lumber district was the scene of an extensive fire last night. The property loss was between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. An unknown boy was drowned and several firemen injured.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—It is said the arbitration party in the House of Commons believes the government favors and that the prospects are hopeful for the adoption of a twenty-five years' treaty of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 1.—The Marine Hospital Bureau has received a report on the European cholera epidemic from its special officer stationed at Berlin, Surgeon Fairfax Irwin, for the week ending July 18. He writes: "The disease has progressed materially since my last report, especially in St. Petersburg, where it has assumed alarming proportions. It continues at Cronstadt, and is even reported to be present at Finland, where it was never before. In Galicia there were many more cases than last week, and new cases have appeared in Germany and the Netherlands. In Belgium cholera still continues, especially in towns along the Meuse, which river is undoubtedly infected. On the whole the outlook is rather alarming, far more so indeed than at this time last year."

Most important is his view of the situation in Russia. Simultaneously with the news of the appearance of cholera in Germany a report has come to hand which warrants the belief that the outbreak of cholera in St. Petersburg is much more serious than the official announcements indicate.

TOKIO, Japan, Aug. 1.—The Japanese Government has instructed its Minister in London to apologize to Great Britain for firing upon and sinking the transport Kow Shing while it was flying the British flag. The Japanese Minister has been instructed to inform Great Britain that the commander of the Japanese cruiser did not know the Kow Shing was a British vessel until after the fight. Capt. Galsworthy of the Kow Shing and many other persons who were on board the transport were rescued by the boats of the Japanese warship Nanwa.

The naval engagement of July 25 should not be confounded with the naval battle fought July 30, nor should the Chih Yuen, a Chinese unarmored ship of 2,300 tons in this first encounter, be confounded with the Chinese armored battleship Chen Yuen, 7,300 tons, reported sunk in the second fight.

Work was resumed at Pullman, Illinois, August 2, four hundred and fifty-eight mechanics going to work, with others to follow. Nearly all the workmen are pleased with the resumption. Some of the strikers tried to make trouble but were suppressed by the police.

Fire destroyed the town of Lamoure, North Dakota, August 2; loss $200,000.

Another fire in the lumber district of Chicago destroyed property valued at $150,000 on the 2d inst.

FINDLAY, O., Aug. 2.—A terrific cyclone swept through the northern portion of Hancock county last night, plowing a path 300 feet wide through the growing crops and timber. Great destruction was done in the oil field, where derricks were demolished, tanks of oil overturned, and buildings and machinery carried away. The loss will figure up many thousand dollars.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 2.—An official telegram received here from Tien Tsin says that in the battles fought July 27 and July 28 at Yashan the Japanese were repulsed with a loss of over 2,000 men.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—A dispatch from Shanghai says reports have been received there from foreign officials at Seoul that the Chinese, under Gen. Yes, Sunday last defeated the Japanese forces near Asan. The Japanese withdrew to Seoul. Twenty thousand Manchurian Chinese troops have crossed the Korean frontier and are marching upon Seoul.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 2.—The Chinese Minister at Tokio has demanded his passports. The Chinese residents in Japan are being placed under the protection of the United States Legation.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 2.—It is officially announced that the Chinese northern fleet, consisting of thirteen vessels, has left Chefoo for Corea. The announcement is accompanied by the statement that a battle between the Chinese and Japanese may be expected at any hour.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 2.—It is officially announced that Russia, desiring a settlement of the war between China and Japan, will act in complete accord with Great Britain in an effort to secure an immediate solution of the difficulty. Failing in this, Russia will not allow any power to take even part possession of Corea.

Prof. Penrotin, director of the observatory at Nice, France, reports that July 28 shining specks were observed close to the lighted part of Mars, the same as observed at the Lick Observatory.

The post-mortem examination of the body of the child who died aboard a foreign vessel at Rotterdam July 27 has disclosed the fact that the death was due to cholera.

Cesario Santo, the assassin of President Carnot, was put on trial at Lyons, France, August 2.

LYONS, Aug. 3.—Santo Cesario, the slayer of President Carnot, was sentenced to-day to be executed by the guillotine. The jury decided the Anarchist's fate in less than half an hour. Santo will be awakened at daybreak some morning a few weeks hence and be put to death. Under the French law the Judge in passing sentence sets no time for its execution.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 3.—Official notification of a battle between the Japanese land forces in Corea was received at the Japanese Legation here to-night from the Foreign Office at Tokio. The telegram stated that July 29 a portion of the Japanese troops at Seoul marched against a much superior force of Chinese entrenched at Shan Yeng. A battle ensued, and after heavy fighting the Chinese were put completely to rout and a large number of prisoners and munitions of war were captured by the Japanese. The morning of the 30th the Japanese proceeded to march against Gasan. Shan Yeng is situated between Seoul and Gasan, or Asan, where the fight between the Japanese and Chinese, resulting in the loss of 2,000 Japanese, is reported to have occurred.

It is the opinion of the legation officials here that the reports from Chinese sources containing rumors of the defeat of the Japanese at Gasana are probably gross exaggerations, though no dispatches referring to a fight at the latter place have yet been received.

IQUIQUE, Chile, Aug. 3.—The situation in Northern Peru grows worse. The insurgents continue a guerilla warfare. Civil rights have been abandoned and telegrams are subject to a censorship.

OLD AGE AND HARD WORK.

Old people make a great mistake when they give up work. Many men who have made a competency in business and feel entitled to retire from active work find themselves declining in health and becoming prematurely old for want of occupation. In most aged persons the vital functions continue in active exercise under normal conditions, but if the regularity and moderation of business life are departed from trouble will surely follow. On the other hand, the Lancet held that "if in any direction it is allowable for competitors in the race of life to dispense with self-control it would appear that they may, to a great extent, use this liberty with respect to physical and mental exertion." In other words, we must not eat too much or drink too much, but we can study hard and take plenty of exercise not only without harm, but with the best results, and if the old people wish to live out all the days they should find plenty to do for both mind and body.—London Lancet.

When the Alabama went down there was never a shout from the Kearsarge. "Silence, boys! Silence!" was the stern command, and in dead, awful silence the buccaneer sank to the bottom of the sea. There was chivalry for you—one of the grand silences of history—a silence thrilling with brotherhood, prophetic of brotherhood restored. How naturally, unless we know the facts, we assume that there was a fine hurrah of rejoicing on the Kearsarge when the Alabama went down! Could outburst of victory have surpassed that silence?—Atlantic Monthly.

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE.
WITH INTRODUCTION BY ELDER W. W. BLAIR.

A book in which is traced the intimate connection between the history of Protestantism and the founding of the Government of the United States with the event of the restored Gospel; interwoven with which is a tender story from a real life, telling of the efforts of one to find the Kingdom of God, its object being to trace God in modern history, and to show that his dealings with men are as clearly discernible now as in ancient times.

ABSTRACT of EVIDENCE TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

This work is an abstract of the sworn testimony of both Plaintiff's and Defendants' witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickites (a faction from the Original Church) for title to and possession of the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri. The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, and who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, and the testimony of members of the Hedrickite organization, is given; also the statements of said witnesses under cross-examination and re-cross-examination.

Evidence from the three standard books, and from the publications of the Original Church, and the Reorganized Church, the Hedrickite faction, and from those of the Utah Church, is presented in support of the claims of the Reorganized Church to be the successor of the Original Church, showing it to be the authorized and identical continuation of said Original Church and entitled to its property, while all other factions have departed from the Original Church in organization, in teaching, and in practice.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, three pamphlets, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

A valuable volume of evidence for ministry and laity; useful in refuting the many misrepresentations of the early church and its ministry and membership.

A limited edition has been published. Price, bound in law sheep (Counsel's argument in separate binding), $3.00.
Bound in cloth $2.50.

HESPERIS

Autobiography of ELDER JOSEPH LUFF

The Struggles, Failures, and Successes in the Life of one who is now a Prominent Minister of the Church.

A Medley of Mischief, Mirth, Folly, Pride, Self-will, Honor, Devotion, and Sentiment, as found in the Character of a Boy whom God in due time selected as an ambassador for Himself, and

Who To-day Stands as a Monument of Divine Grace!

The Book contains a history of his conversion to and from Methodism, his acceptance of the restored gospel, a dissertation on the leading features of the doctrine that moved him to obedience, his call as a minister and experiences as such, together with a recital of some striking incidents, showing divine interference and blessing. The autobiography has been revised by Bro. Luff since its publication in Autumn Leaves, and a large amount of doctrinal matter has been added in appropriate places. TWO SERMONS, one on the "Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man," and one on "The Modern Stumbling-Stone," have been added also, making it just the kind of a book to have in the family.

Price, cloth bound, $1.25.

PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD; THE APOSTASY, REFORMATION, AND RESTORATION.

By Elder Wm. H. Kelley. New, Revised, and Enlarged Edition. It contains 421 pages of closely written matter, with autograph and likeness of the Author and is printed in good, readable type, with neat binding. The work is a library within itself; a marvel of trenchant criticism and logical deductions from historical facts; a key to the right understanding of the Bible and modern diverse systems of faith and worship. It discusses the issues of theology that are to the front to-day. It treats largely of Ministerial Authority as associated with the Melchisedek and Aaronic Priesthoods, and the Ideal Church of New Testament times is conspicuously set forth in striking contrast with the creeds and systems of church building since the days of the Apostles. Also the claims for the Restoration of the Gospel at a later day than the Apostolic age are critically examined in the light of prophecy and history, which is a subject of great moment to men of every faith. A historical resume or brief is also inserted of the rise and development of the "apostate church," and an exegesis of the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the revelation of the "sealed book." Also the origin of modern churches and creeds, etc.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society; and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

Paper covers... 35 Muslin binding... 50

THE RUINS REVISITED AND THE WORLD-STORY RETOLD.

Is a book of 240 pages, written by Elder Samuel F. Walker. The purpose of the writer is to show that the main facts of scientific teaching concerning the origin, growth, and development of the Universe, of human tradition and history, and the revelation of Christianity have a common origin, and are evidences of one design in the creation, and in the history and growth of the ages. Theological conclusions are reached from scientific deductions, and by comparison with human tradition, archaeology, and other sources of information the writer aims to present a scientific defense of Christianity. The later chapters of the work contain evidences from American aboriginal traditions that Jesus is the Christ and was known and worshiped by the ancient inhabitants of the Western Continent.

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH IN THE WORLD.

It is very evident that there is a growing opinion that the Christian church has no mission in this world. Or, to put it another way, that the church does not concern herself with the every-day subjects of life. The Rev. James Brand, D. D., in The Hartford Seminary Record, June-August, discusses the question in a most scholarly manner. He, first, lays down several basal propositions as to what the scriptural conception of the Church and the Kingdom of God is: 1. The church is not an end in itself. 2. The church is not identical with the Christian state or municipality. 3. The church was commissioned to save men. 4. The church must always have a twofold service to perform. In addition to its first and supreme business of securing the conversion of souls, it is to act upon the environment of souls—that is, to improve the conditions of society." Dr. Brand then asks the practical question, "Has the church kept its original spirit and method?" His answer is of special interest:—

"I have absolutely no sympathy with the obviously false assertion that 'the greater part of religion is outside the church,' or that 'the churches are the greatest obstacles in the way of social reform.' Nor can I agree with Dr. Strong, that the various Christian organizations of today 'would never have been needed if the church had appreciated the largeness of her mission.' On the contrary, every Young Men's Christian Association, every Christian Endeavor Society, every Christian Temperance Union, every charity organization, like every theological seminary and Christian college, is but a part of the organism of the church, through each of which the life-blood of the church pulsates, and by means of which she performs a large part of her work in the world. They will all be needed even more than now when the church does apprehend the full length and breadth of her mission. Nevertheless, I am constrained to believe that the church has departed, to some extent, from the spirit and method of our Lord, and needs revision and reform. Look at the situation.

"When Christ came, the religion of Palestine had almost lost its hold upon the poor. Those who attended the churches were the well-dressed and well-to-do in the world. The bulk of the people were neglected and neglecting. Christ's mission, therefore, while intended for all, was especially to the poor. They were the sheep peculiarly without a shepherd. It was the proof that the Messiah had come that the poor had the gospel preached to them. His peculiar relation to them was the beginning of a social revolution which is not yet completed. In Palestine, under the Cæsars, as in other countries and ages, the word 'people' was a word of contempt and derision. 'The people' had always been simply used by rulers and leaders of society. In all changes and revolutions, this capricious and dangerous element, 'the people,' had to be recognized, reckoned with, feared, courted, or hated as a force lying beneath all movements and machinations. The question asked by wealth and power was not what will elevate and save the people, but how can rocking thrones be saved from the people? The people cannot be ignored; they must, therefore, be managed, but managed with no community of interest, no mutual sympathy.

"Now, what was true in the political realm, had taken place in Palestine between the representatives of religion and the common people. The men who sat in Moses' seat had somehow so failed to connect the blessed service of God with the heart of humanity, that the people were either drifting away helplessly, or turning away disgusted, from the sublime truths of the Old Testament. The feeling of the religious leaders is expressed by the Pharisaic sneer, 'This people that know not the law, are accursed.' Christianity was the exact reverse of this. Jesus was anointed to preach the gospel to the poor. His aim was not to manage or use them, but to enable them to use themselves. He refused to recognize the miserable social distinctions which men had erected out of their own arrogance and pride. This dangerous element, which kings had feared and aristocrats had scorned, were not to be restrained by repressive laws, but made a law unto themselves. They were not to be tutored into a quiet, subordinate class, but raised by an inward, divine impulse to a higher manhood and a self-governing intelligence. Accordingly, Christ comes as a poor man, not born in Cæsar's palace but in a manger. He identifies himself with the laboring people outside of luxurious circles, that he may touch the poor, sit at their tables or go hungry with them, disarm their prejudices, and tell them the glad tidings of peace.

"Now, I affirm that in many quarters there is evidence that the church life of to-day has drifted into substantially the same relation to the masses of the poor that the synagogue religion of Palestine sustained to them in the days of Christ. It is certain that a great change has taken place. Christianity began among the poor, and the question was how to reach the rich and the powerful. To-day, it is chiefly among the well-to-do classes, and the question is 'how to reach the masses.' In all fairness, however, we must concede that in the country at large, the majority of churches are made up of the families of the laboring-people. We are also bound to take account of the fact that the natural tendency of Christianity is to transform the church of the ignorant poor into that of the educated rich. A city church may begin to-day when every member is a day-laborer, and in twenty-five years those very day-laborers may be the residents of the avenue. All this is to the credit of the Christian church. It is manifestly a sign of the triumph of the church that it now contains the very class which at first despised it. Moreover, how can it be otherwise than true that the church should come to contain also the culture of the country, when nearly all our educational institutions are the children of the church? This, too, is to the credit of Christianity.

"But conceding all this, the fact remains that the peril of the church, because it is the peril of human nature, lies in its tendency to court the wealthy and avoid contact with the wretched and the poor. The awful contrast between the luxurious city church and the haunts of ignorance and moral degradation, confronting each other, almost in the same street, puts this beyond debate. Could anything be more un-Christlike? Who are the poor and wretched? Why do we call them the dangerous classes? The answer is, they are dangerous because in danger, because unsaved, and ignorant of God."

A fool thinks he is right because he can't see very far.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit or Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Conscious State? The views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death; his preexistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH, OR WEEKLY REST DAY.

By Elder Columbus Scott. This is a work of 147 pages, divided into fifteen chapters, in which the "Sabbath" under the Mosaic Law, and "The Lord's Day," "First Day of the Week" or "Christian Sabbath" under the Gospel Dispensation are fully treated from Scriptural and historical standpoints. The work is concise and able, and clearly refutes the arguments of the Seventh-day Sabbatarians, establishing the first day of the week as "The Lord's Day." An added supplemental chapter by Elder W. W. Blair is included.

AN OPINION CHANGED.

THE readers of the HERALD will be pleased to read the following extract from a letter from the Y. M. C. A. of Atchison, Kansas:—

ATCHISON, Kansas, Aug. 2.

EDITOR SAINTS' HERALD,
Lamoni, Iowa,

Dear Sir and Brother:—I write you to say that after carefully looking over your "Epitome," sent by a personal friend of mine who resides in St. Louis, and is a member of the Latter Day Saints' Church, I find that the teaching of your church is in harmony with the word of the Lord. I had understood that your church was the same as the Utah church, and of course their teaching we do not believe to be scriptural; but I am glad to know you denounce the doctrine of a plurality and a community of wives, which I had understood you taught as proper; and for that reason had taken your paper off our file. I have placed it again on our files, and am glad to have in our reading room any paper that holds up Jesus as the Savior of sinners.

I wish to say further, that if, as I had supposed, your church taught polygamy I would have been firm and not allowed it to be put back again. It behooves us as an association of Christian young men to be careful what we are giving our young men to read.

Trusting that this will be satisfactory to you, I am your brother in Christ,

A. S. HOPPER.

We the more cheerfully give Secretary Hopper's letter a place in HERALD for the reason that we were satisfied that he had not given our teaching a consideration.

Mr. Hopper's letter is frank, and we thank him for reinstating the HERALD where the visitors to the young men's rooms may read it, if they wish. Truth loses nothing by the scrutiny of honest-minded men.

BRO. WILLIAM WATERMAN, laboring in Kentucky, sends the following letter, or note written to Bro. C. L. Snow, the name does not appear, but Bro. Waterman writes on the back of the note:—

The man who wrote this is a Jew named Holliman, one of the smartest men in the country. If you think it well, put in the Herald.

DARDEN, July 23.

ELDER C. L. SNOW,

Dear Friend:—It is with much pleasure that I address you this morning; pardon my delay. I want to see the Book of Mormon; that is, I wanted to read it with care before making any report. I am proud to say that your visit to our poor little home has been of great profit to us. I have not room to express it in full. I have been reading at all chances without looking at any side of religion, and I will say, surely you are on the right track. I am not going to say much about this or that, but I say Jesus is the Christ and no mistake to Jew or Gentile, Christian or infidel.

I am going to invest my time in the best manner I can. I do not care for a church name, but I love the truth. People here are doing all in their power to crush me on account of my belief, but I surmount all trouble and say without a frown, Jesus is the Christ now or never.

I read to Mattie and she tries to learn all she can; but she says, "Water is plenty, and there is but one way to salvation. Send for the ministers and let us join the Church of Christ at once." So let no workman doubt when he sees the sunlight through the tree-tops in the morning it is time to be up and doing. We want you to visit us as soon as you can.

Let the world of people look at this if they wish. I have traveled twenty thousand miles, visited every church and every calling of a church in nineteen years. I came out an infidel and a hater of pretended Christians, but two ministers of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints proved positively to me that Jesus Christ is the Son of the true and living God. I found the hidden truth by your light, then Mr. Snow came and saw us again. We will not appear so strange next time. Come and see how we act. Come to Darden on the Tennessee Midland Railroad, twelve miles east of Lexington.

APROPOS of the receipt of the note from Mr. Holliman, sent us by Bro. Waterman, Bro. John A. Robinson of Independence, Missouri, on a tour in Ontario, sends us a copy of the Christian Herald, Dr. DeWitt Talmage's paper for May 2, this year, which contains an extended notice of the work of Rev. Ben-Oliel, a missionary on his own responsibility, who has been maintaining an effort in defense of the common Christian faith, at Jerusalem.

The article is prefaced by the quotation,—

"Pray for the peace of Jerusalem:
They shall prosper that love thee."

The article further states that,—

This work has been going on since August, 1890, purely as a work of faith and trust in the Lord, being supported wholly by the voluntary offerings of Christian friends who feel interested in its progress. Many of its supporters are in America, and Mr. Ben-Oliel has lately come over, with his wife and daughter, to make more widely known the field and its needs, and to enlist the prayers and practical interest of God's people everywhere throughout the Union. A few hours after reaching the port of New York, Mr. Ben-Oliel was addressing the Bible Class in the Hebrew-Christian Church. Shortly afterward, he attended and spoke at no less than fourteen Bible classes in Brooklyn, Bethlehem, Stroudsburg, Belvidere, Easton, Allentown, Philadelphia, Coatesville, Pottstown, Baltimore, York, Wilmington, Harrisburg, and Germantown. He is a most interesting and instructive speaker, being thoroughly conversant with the customs and manners of the people of the Holy City; giving specimen readings from the Law and Prophets, exhibiting rolls of the Law, Phylacteries, etc., and giving an interesting account of the result of recent excavations in Palestine. In addition to these labors he has preached in Boston, Pittsburg, Binghamton, Scranton, Montrose, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, and other cities, everywhere meeting with encouragement and evoking deep interest in the Jerusalem Christian Union Mission. Wherever there are Jews he has preached to them in mission rooms, sometimes to five or six hundred at a time, hundreds at the close coming forward to shake hands and thank him for his addresses.

Rev. Ben-Oliel is ably seconded by his wife and daughter. The latter Bro. Robinson heard lecture in Toronto and was much pleased with her presentation of the work being done in the great City of the Redeemer.

Bishop Blyth, the Anglican Bishop of Jerusalem, asserts in his annual report that "about one hundred thousand Jews have entered Palestine during the last few years, of whom 65,000 have come within the last seven years, and the arrival of a vaster host is imminent. No one can," he says, "forecast the extent of Jewish immigration to Palestine within the next seven years."

THERE are several fellows in Nauvoo who are going fast down the brink of destruction, caused by drink. Hardly a day passes but that they have a "jag." It's disgusting, and a hard blow on their families. It is about time they turned over a new leaf, or they will land in the cemetery.

The foregoing is from the Nauvoo Rustler; and it may not be amiss to suggest to that breezy journal that the condition of these "several fellows" and the probable (almost certain) result to them and their families—degradation and a miserable death to them; a sad, destitute, and disgraced dependence for their families—is attributable to the existence of the saloons, which the moral tone of Nauvoo society so carefully fosters and sustains. The care of those who shall be made destitute by the criminal negligence and wicked indulgence in drink—which the Rustler brands as disgusting—will fall as an additional burden on the two hundred and forty-eight citizens that look after finances of each saloon; differing only in this, that the township and county officers and resources will be taxed with the care and business of providing for their necessities, rather than the city officials under whose administrations the proper guardians and providers were made drunkards.

Whenever we think of the long, long list of those who have gone down to drunkards' graves in that beautiful town within our knowledge and memory, we shudder; for among them were men of the brightest attainments, genial, pleasant, gentlemanly men, except "for the drink." To know that this is to be repeated, in the old town; and the victims already so far gone that the public journal takes notice of it and those thus going the downward road, is pitiful. It almost seems to us that the money which these men have paid and do pay to those venders of liquid soul poison would burn the consciences of men who occupy comfortable homes, secured to them by the hard earnings, and the sadness and misery of the wives and children of their victims.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

THERE is one divorce to every four hundred and seventy-nine marriages in the United States.

The above is not such a terrible condition of things in the married world as some alarmists would have us to think. If out of nearly five hundred marriages there is but one divorce sought for and obtained, it must be that the four hundred and seventy-nine couples are either harmoniously mated, or do not care to change their conditions of obligation to each other for personal freedom, or improper alliances with others. This does not argue, however, that there are not many marriages that are but smouldering ruins of once happy relations, and many where separation in reality exists, requiring the recognition of the courts only to make divided homes in law as in fact. We know of some like this, and commiserate both parties, while seeing no reasonable remedy which being applied can change the twisted natures back to the original or acquiescent condition under which only happiness or contentment can be had.

When advancing age, changing conditions of life, constant association operate to produce indifference, repulsion, or contempt, we know of no balm that can rehabilitate the personality and restore the roseate hues to life and its marital relations. The love of God, grace under the gospel influences and correct estimates of human duty, coupled with the esteem and respect that should follow worth to the parting by death can, and frequently does keep men and women placidly satisfied to abide together; and these may and should survive the glamour of early love and personal attraction, and peace, blessed peace crown declining years as a benison from the Son of Peace.

PRESIDENT CANNON'S INDORSEMENT OF HOLY SCRIPTURES.

IN the Juvenile Instructor, President George Q. Cannon's paper, published at Salt Lake, Utah, for August 1, there is the following indorsement of the Holy Scriptures as given by Joseph Smith, the martyr:—

THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS.

We are asked this question:—

"Did the Devil take the Lord up bodily and set him on the pinnacle of the temple, as recorded in the 4th chapter of Matthew, 5th verse?"

No, he did not.

The Prophet Joseph explained that verse in this manner:—

"Then Jesus was taken up into the holy city, and the Spirit setteth him upon the pinnacle of the temple; then the Devil came unto him," etc.

In the 8th verse of this same chapter, in King James Translation of the Bible it is stated:—

"Again the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain."

Joseph gave us the proper version:—

"And again Jesus was in the Spirit, and it taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them; and the devil came unto him again," etc.

We may rest assured that the Devil had no power to take the Savior anywhere, if he did not choose to go.

IT sometimes does men good to see themselves in the favorable light in which others see them. What follows from the Downey Champion, published at Downey, California, for July 28, is a note in favor of the work of the brethren of Southern California:—

LATTER DAY SAINTS.

The annual camp meeting of the Church of Latter Day Saints, held in the depot grove in this city closed with the evening services on Sunday. About one hundred and fifty campers were on the grounds, a number of them being from San Bernardino, Orange, and San Diego counties.

The evening services were well attended by the people of this city and vicinity, and the general report, of nonmembers of that church, is that the religious services were very interesting and conducted by elders and preachers of more than ordinary ability.

This branch of the Mormon Church, the Josephites as they are called, claim to have nothing in common with the Brighamites or Utah Mormons, and profess to be bitterly opposed to their practices and teachings. Their speakers publicly proclaim their hostility to the Mormon Church government of Salt Lake, whom they claim are dissenters from the true faith of the original prophet and seer Joseph Smith.

The campers from abroad in attendance at the meeting appear to be quiet, devout, and sincere believers of their doctrine. The few families of that faith residing in this vicinity are among our most honored and respected citizens.

The members of the church, with whom we have conversed are pleased with the results of the meeting and claim twelve converts by immersion and a number of children blessed, after the manner of Christ, which is their form of infant baptism.

Among those who so ably conducted the services of the camp meeting were: Elders Mark H. Forscutt, late of the Society Islands, Kelley, Burton, Pickering, Bailey, French, and Betts of Garden Grove, Gibson, Harris, and Jones of San Bernardino, Best of San Geronia, and Nelson VanFleet of Downey.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. H. D. MCINTYRE, Inland, Michigan, August 2:—

Bro. F. C. Smith was with us from the 23d to the 27th and baptized three and blessed four children. He is an able worker. Brn. Howes and Berney were called to the ministry at our last district conference.

Bro. J. C. Hitchcock, St. Louis, Missouri, August 7:—

Church business booming with us here. We get the big tent one day; it will hold fifteen hundred or two thousand people. Sam Jones is using it now. We are putting forth every effort to make our day a success. Each denomination has a day to represent its faith.

Bro. J. F. Mintun, Kingsley, Iowa, August 6:—

Will try and get those to whom you send samples to take the Herald. Began meetings here last Wednesday, in tent. Had about two hundred present last night.

Bro. F. C. Smith, Kilmanagh, Michigan, August 6:—

Three more baptized at Inland, July 26. I go to Chippewa and Fork on the 8th.

Bro. G. T. Griffiths wrote as follows from Jackson, Ohio, August 6:—

I am very busy preaching every night to large audiences and with excellent liberty. I baptized four at Wheeling, and three here last week, and am to baptize two or three today. Many more are very near the kingdom. There have been about fifty baptized in the mission since the April Conference. Hattie writes that she is gaining a little every day. I go to Limerick to-day, thence to Highland county, this State, to attend the district conference on the 10th inst.

Bro. C. Scott wrote from Des Moines, Iowa, the 8th inst., portraying some of the conditions now prevailing in that city.

A water panic prevails in this capital city; no rain here for three months to visibly affect the streams and wells. Coon River, whence the city is supplied, is gone dry. The water in Des Moines River is totally unfit for family use. Wells are drying up, or have gone dry, and in what few wells afford water, it is of a very poor and warm quality and the quantity is gradually failing. What the people are to do unless copious rains come soon is the question. The dry weather prohibits business investments till laboring men are getting desperate. They are told by the contractors that all who wish to work for one dollar per day can go to work. Posts are set up by the laborers about the works labeled "Starvation," and all this in Iowa.

Bro. R. E. Grant reports from Amadore, Michigan, August 7, with this good word:—

The grove meeting at this place was a success, notwithstanding the Baptist people tried to circulate the report that there would not be any. About one hundred teams were on the ground, and eight hundred listeners; Brn. Davis and J. A. Grant were the speakers during the day, and both preached excellent sermons. The writer addressed a crowded house in the evening. Two were baptized Sunday afternoon, and three more Monday afternoon, making sixteen in the last three weeks. So goes the good work.

Bro. J. W. Waldsmith, Nebraska City, Nebraska, August 9:—

We are now passing through the most protracted drouth I have ever experienced. It seems as if the corn on the uplands will not amount to anything scarcely. Along the river and creek bottoms it is not so bad. It will surely make trying times for farmers.

Bro. D. A. Hutchings, Little Sioux, Iowa, August 4:—

I find all the labor I can do. Have just closed two weeks of meetings. Had to close with full houses on account of having no help. I baptized two and left more believing. More will follow soon. Many calls for preaching.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE request of the Business Manager for remittances of Herald Office accounts, also for subscriptions to the HERALD and Hope, are renewed and the office patrons asked to give it the attention it deserves and requires. The request is urgent and those owing the office are invited to receive it in that light. Address remittances, orders, etc., to David Dancer, Business Manager, Lamoni Iowa.

Brn. J. R. Lambert and J. S. Snively baptized two near Lineville, Iowa, during the latter part of July, and Bro. Snively has since baptized two more. Those baptized are the firstfruits of long seasons of labor by the brethren named and others in a field that has been diligently worked and which now promises to yield a goodly harvest of souls to the kingdom of God. Brn. Snively and others will continue the work during the fall and winter seasons at New Zion and Hickory schoolhouses, Concord church, Clio, the Mineral Springs and at adjacent openings along the line of Mercer county, Missouri, and Wayne county, Iowa, as circumstances permit.

By letter from Bro. Heman C. Smith to Secretary H. A. Stebbins dated Bald Knob, White county, Arkansas, July 31, we learn that Bro. Smith, assisted by Bro. M. M. Turpen, had organized a branch near that point, known as the Shady Grove branch, consisting of ten members, with Bro. Hugh Sands, formerly of Memphis, Tennessee, as president. Bro. Smith had baptized six at or near the place from which he wrote.

Six were baptized at Elmira, Michigan, July 31. Interest good at South

Boardman still. Crops threatened by drouth.

Brn. Sparling, Spurlock, and Ward are having some persecution in Oregon county, Missouri, eggs and clods and stones having been thrown at them, the schoolhouse stoned and clubbed, and bundles of switches with orders for them to leave attached to them having been left at the schoolhouse doors and near the premises of their entertainers in the neighborhood. It is too bad that there are still places in America where lawlessness overrides the peaceable and law-abiding citizen; but, the advice of Jesus may have to be followed at times by his ministers. "If they persecute you in one city, flee unto another."

Bro. G. T. Griffiths reports some fifty baptisms in the district where he is laboring since April. The missionaries are being tried in a financial way, funds in agents' hands being low.

Bro. F. M. Cooper reports August 6, twenty-five meetings in tent at Bay City, four baptized August 5. Brn. J. H. Peters and Levi Phelps had given assistance in the meetings.

Bro. J. C. Foss baptized one July 29 and one August 6 at Rockland, Maine, being thirteen since he reached there.

Bro. E. D. C. Smith, Ben Franklin, Minnesota, requests Brn. Stedman and Roberts to visit that portion of their field after September 1, as farmers will then be able to attend. If addressed in time he will meet them at Avoca, Minnesota.

Bro. C. P. Faul, secretary of committee on arrangements of Northern Missouri and Southern Iowa reunion, requests us to state that Bro. William Lewis will superintend a boarding house during the reunion. Rates: six meals $1.00, three meals 60 cents, single meals 25 cents; profits to be turned over to the reunion committee, Bro. Lewis' services being tendered free of charge.

Brn. John Hitchcock, of St. Louis, and J. Arthur Davis, took the pains to put themselves in communication with Secretary Hopper of the Young Men's Christian Association, of Atchison, Kansas, the former by letter, the latter in person, in reference to the HERALD being excluded from the files of the Y. M. C. A. at Atchison. The result was good. Mr. Hopper, made the proper examination and restored the HERALD to the files, as stated in his letter already published. Bro. Hitchcock has a personal acquaintance with Secretary Hopper, and Bro. Davis found him a very pleasant man to talk to.

Bro. W. B. Dotson, who lost all his property by fire, requests that his address be given that those who wish may communicate with him. It is Hearne, Robertson county, Texas.

The Sisters' Mite Society of Lamoni has decided to supply the American flag for the Gospel Boat now being prepared for her voyage to the Society Islands. This is but one of the many works for good that these sisters have done in behalf of the cause. They have contributed much to the Lamoni church building and to the poor, and have also aided the college movement. They are a band of faithful workers.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins left Lamoni on the 8th inst. to attend the Northwestern Kansas reunion.

Letter from Bro. Wm. C. Marshall, August 2, Wirt, Indiana, indicates that Brn. Fewell, Porter, and himself had a good work started at Mannville branch and at Brushy Fork; which work will continue if the Lord favors them.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

THE YEARS.

"Why do we heap huge mounds of years
Before us and behind,
And scorn the little days that pass
Like angels on the wing?"

"Each turning round a small, wee face,
As beautiful as near,
Because it is so small a face,
We will not see it clear,

"And so it turns from us, and goes Away in sad disdain;
Though we could give our lives for it,
It never comes again."

FOR THE COLUMN.

DEAR SISTER WALKER:—This date of July 18 finds me at the Downey reunion, and from a sense of duty to those who are not enjoying the like privilege, I note down a few items for their benefit, between services. So I reluctantly withdraw myself from pleasant companions and with pencil and paper in hand sit me down on a box in a nice shady place just back of the small tents on "Los Angeles street," where I have a pretty good view of the grounds, and also the interior of the gospel tent, the side curtains being "furled" to admit all the cool, fresh air that is wafted in its direction. Glancing up from my paper, I see numbers of Saints divided up in little groups, some sitting, some standing, both about grounds and in the gospel tent, and all are engaged in earnest conversation, and pleasant, too, if one might judge from their beaming countenances. Pleasant indeed are those "reunions;" when the Saints lay aside their thoughts of business and busy cares together with their workaday clothes, and with hearts filled with a desire to worship God for a season, come together from all parts of the country. Besides the happiness of mingling their voices in thanksgiving and praise to God, friend is continually meeting and grasping the hand of friend. Each day swells our number, notwithstanding some have to leave us. To such we say "good-bye" reluctantly, for the gathering is not yet so large but what the departing ones are missed.

Now as the sun sinks towards the horizon, the camp grounds assume a very busy aspect, and as I look about, the appearances are that life has evolved into one grand picnic. Cleanly laid tables dot the green in almost every available place, laden with much of the good things of this world. Peace and plenty seem to abound on every hand. Truly such "streams of mercy call for songs of loudest praise."

Again I look about me, something unusual has occurred that seems to have caused a little excitement. I will lay aside my portfolio for a moment and go and see why so many have congregated in one place and why the look of mingled pity and astonishment is upon each countenance, and if worthy of note will jot it down.

Well, here I am again, ready to report. The sensation was caused by the arrival of a brother (a heavy, fleshy man), a sister, and a lad. Each was extremely tired, dusty, and sunburned. They had walked and carried some encumbering parcels all the way from Santa Monica to Downey, a distance of not less than thirty miles, to attend the reunion. Sympathy was at once enlisted in their behalf. One or two sisters threaded their way among the crowd and soon obtained sufficient from the generous-hearted Saints to procure comfortable beds at the hotel for the weary trio, and also tickets to ride home on the cars when the reunion would be over. I did not learn the sister's name, but that she had only recently come into the church, and was eager to learn more of the faith, was too poor to pay her way on the cars, yet felt that she could not be deprived of the privilege of enjoying the blessings of God, such as he would bestow upon his Saints at such gatherings. O what a pity that the zeal and ardor of young Saints should ever slacken! Or do I mistake an increase of wisdom for a lack of zeal? The circumstance that this instance brings to my mind seems to warrant the latter. It was that of another sister who had been brought from darkness into the light of the restored gospel, and who had a great desire to behold and enjoy the precious things of the kingdom. She had learned that all the glorious gifts and blessing of the gospel of eighteen hundred years ago were again restored to earth, and were frequently enjoyed by the Saints, especially at conference times.

"When will there be a conference?" she asked.

"In September," was the answer.

"Where!" she again eagerly inquired.

"The next semiannual conference will be held at — Corners," replied the elder, smiling amusedly at her earnestness.

"That is a long way from here," she murmured; "three days drive, and we have no buggy, or light wagon, or money. But I must go. I have one cow that is my own, and if I can sell her, we will go. I know my husband will want to go just as much as I do, and it will be worth more than a cow to witness the power of God made manifest like as in days of old."

The elder smiled again. He had been sitting with his gaze bent downward, his right elbow resting in his left hand, while the palm of his right hand pressed against his forehead. Now he raised his head and said quietly but with all the assurance of knowledge in his tone, "The way will open for you to go and you won't have to sell your cow either."

Those words opened up a bright spot in the near future, that was longingly looked forward to; but the summer months kept slipping away till the time had nearly expired, and yet no prospects of their fulfillment. But just the day before the time arrived on which they should leave home the way opened and they went, rejoicing much in the privilege of meeting with a people who possessed such treasures of knowledge and the gifts of the gospel. How precious were the moments there! How glorious their theme, how bright their hope, and how well grounded in the word of God! But such a treat was not obtained without a "price." The sister must needs leave her children at home to take care of themselves if she went. The struggle in the choice was a hard one, and she even requested her husband to go and let her remain with them. But he affirmed that "since their way had been prepared, it must be right for them to go." The children knew nothing of fear, and were willing to stay alone, though their years were only twelve, seven, and five respectively. The Lord, in whose especial care they were intrusted, kept them from all harm by day and by night. All went well, yet O, how often since, in the still hours of the night, has that sister turned restlessly upon her pillow while goaded with the thought of what might have happened to them, and shuddered to think she could have been so unmotherly, and again asks, "Was it faith, or a lack of wisdom?"

Time has slipped away. The reunion is over and all have returned to their various avocations feeling that they have been blessed and have received strength spiritually, and for a time at least can cope more successfully with the warfare of life. The preaching, the attendance, and the attention was good; interest and evening congregations kept increasing, so much so that some thought it almost wrong to break up.

"What is the matter?" Asked the conductor on Monday morning as the living stream of Saints ascended the steps, and crowded in the cars, "Is Downey let loose this morning?"

"The Latter Day Saint camp-meeting has broken up," replied Bro. Burton, "And you have got a whole load of Mormons, so you will go all right this morning," implying that there was no need for soldiers.

I was borne along with the crowd to near the center of the car, and only had opportunity to wave a good-bye to my husband as he brought my baskets in and set them down near the door and hurried down again for the train was moving off.

SISTER EMMA BURTON.

LOS ANGELES, California.

Dear Herald:—It has been a long time since I have trespassed upon your columns. This is the Fourth of July, a day so often celebrated since the Declaration of Independence. Many noble men and women have passed on to their rewards, and yet many are left to rejoice in the light of truth shining as through the clouds of despair and wickedness, upon the nations of the earth, almost ripe with iniquity. But how few, O Lord, have listened to the report! Sad indeed it makes my heart when I look around. The Lord says: "Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind both shall fall into the ditch." His word also says, "Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up." I have been lead into this thought more forcibly by the visitation of one of God's servants, Bro. Hilliard. As the first four letters indicate, he truly raised the earth about the roots of the plants in a beneficent and strengthening manner. It inspires my heart with a thrill of joy unspeakable, to sit and hear the glorious truths promulgated in such power and plainness by the servants of God who have visited us time and again, yet so simply expressed that a child could understand. Truly as it is written "He maketh his ministers a flaming fire." How glorious and sublime the soul-cheering thoughts which carry our minds to that higher sphere of life where sin and vice cannot enter the gates of the beautiful city of our Lord.

I wish that every Saint could realize his situation in life from a spiritual standpoint. How much easier the cares of life would be. A mother's cares for her children are many. Many times I have been made sad in bringing my children under subjection. I was made sad that my joy might be made full through their goodness and obedience in manhood, that they might praise and not curse me. O mothers, be careful! Do not give way to the desire of your child when it is not wisdom, do not taunt nor aggravate a child's temper, for thus the bud of promise is often crushed. I will sketch a copy of the cherub brothers:—

"Among the bright-robed train of heaven, two cherubs, whose brows seemed a reflection one of the other, were ever seen, side by side. Together, as with one heart, they did the bidding of the Eternal, or drank, hand in hand, that cup of love which is the nurture of seraphs. Once they seemed filled with new rapture. From every feature beamed a gladness that mortal eye hath never seen, as they exclaimed, 'Joy! joy! he cometh. Welcome, our brother! babe, redeemed from the earth!' And they clasped in their arms a new immortal. Sweetly they chanted to their golden harps, 'Hail! hail! thou shalt grieve no more, neither shall sickness smite thee, for here, there is no death, neither sorrow, nor crying.' At the feet of the Savior they knelt, and as with one voice said, 'Praise be unto thee, who didst take little children in thine arms on earth, and forbid them not to enter the kingdom of heaven. Praise be unto thee, oh Lord, Most High!' Then they led the infant guest to the amaranthine bowers, and wreathed around his fair temples flowers that never fade. They gave him of the fruits of the tree of life, and of the water that gusheth clear as crystal from the throne of God, and of the Lamb. And the elder born said, 'Beautiful brother who didst not learn the language of earth, how sweet to thee will be the speech of heaven! words of wrath and hate thou hast never uttered. Easier to thee will be the dialect of love!' And the younger said, 'Lamb of our flock, bringest thou to us no love-token from our home? And the babe-cherub answered, 'I bring our mother's kiss with a tear upon it, and the prayer with which our father gave me back to God.' Tenderly they both murmured, 'We remember her love who lulled us on her bosom—whose eye was open through the long, dark night, if sickness smote us. She taught us the name of Jesus. We remember her love—so like that of angels. Sometimes we are near her, though she knows it not. We watch to see whether she smiles or weeps. If she is weary, we fan her with our wings, we drop into her heart a thought of heaven, and swifter than the ray of the morning return thither. We will watch at the shining gates for her, and for our blessed father, and for the little ones whom they strive to train for God—yea, for their white-haired parents also, whom they honor. We will be the first to welcome them. Behold, when they all come, our joy shall be full.' Thus they talked long together, folding their radiant pinions, amid the balmy groves. They talked long together, with their music-tones—but the darkness came not, neither the shadows of twilight, for there is no night there. Then, there burst forth a glorious voice as of many harpers, with choirs of angels, saying, 'Holy, holy, Lord God Almighty! just and true are thy ways thou king of saints.' And the lyres of those cherub-brothers joined the high strain, swelling the melody of heaven."

Sister Walker, should this find a place in the Home Column, you may hear from me again. You don't know how precious the church organ is to me. I take in washing so that my husband can stay in the ministry. I am willing to sacrifice my strength for the Lord's work. I may not be long for this world, and if not, I want to live each day of my life as though it was my last in this mortal body.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR AUGUST.

"O friends! if the greater burdens
His love can make so light,
Why should his wonderful goodness
Our halting credence slight!
The little sharp vexations,
And the briars that catch and fret,
Shall we not take them to the Helper
Who has never failed us yet?"

Thursday, Aug. 16.—Our families. Prayer for the members of our families by name, and for the families of each other and those of the ministry. For the youth of the church in general.

Memory Verses.—Col. 3: 16, 20, 21.

Thursday, Aug. 23.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses.—1 Thess. 5: 14, 15.

Thursday, Aug. 30.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verses.—Micah 4: 6, 7.

TWILIGHT MUSINGS.

BY ELDER A. T. BRADSHAW.

While musing in the twilight on a glorious summer eve,
Around a peaceful calm had fallen, nature scarcely seemed to breathe;
The red kine in the meadows moved lazily along,
And the nightingale so plaintively trilled forth her evening song.
A mist hung o'er the summit of some far distant hill,
And adown and through the valley murmured soft a limpid rill;
The sun below the horizon had sunken in the west;
Behind, a purple-tinted grandeur seemed to follow him to rest;
And as darkness grew around me and the stars bedecked the sky,
A mystic spell came o'er me as my eyes were raised on high.
My heart was moved within me, and my soul was stirred with bliss,
Pæans of praise and adoration burst from out my trembling lips;
And, lifted far above the turmoil of the struggle and the strife,
Methought how great a blessing is the gracious gift of life!
How lovingly the "All-Father" had created all things good;
Trees and flowers to glad the senses and golden grain for food!
But amidst the song of gladness with which my being thrilled Came a minor chord of sadness, for a moment praise was stilled,
And I mused upon the sorrow, the suffering, and the pain;
The hungry and the naked, and the lustful greed of gain;
The rich man in his purple, and the beggar with his sores.
I marvelled why this all should be, and then there came a pause;
When a mild voice seemed to whisper, whisper, O so gently in my ear,
"The 'archenemy' among the wheat has sown many, full many, a tare;
But a time is surely coming when all tares shall be destroyed,
Banished every care and sorrow, every tearful eye be dried;
When men's hearts shall nevermore fail in them for fear;
It is coming, surely coming, millennium's dawn is near."

Then again burst forth my praises in a loud and jubilant song,
To Him who rules in justice and righteth every wrong,
To Him the great "All-Father" who doeth all things well,
Who is coming, yea, is coming with his saints on earth to dwell.

SILVER CITY, Iowa, Aug. 3.

Editors Herald:—Since my report to General Conference I have labored some in Hamburg, Glenwood, and a few other places, and had the pleasure of baptizing twenty into the kingdom of God. I have been blessed when trying to benefit others and came to a realization of the fact that "we shall be blessed inasmuch as we bless others." A pleasant time was had at the two-day meeting held at Glenwood the 28th and 29th ultimo, and I believe much good was done. The Spirit bore witness to the divinity of the work in tongues and prophecy. I shall preach near Tabor next week and in the regions round about. I shall try to get the district tent to Silver City and besiege this little town for at least a month.

I feel encouraged by the many cheering letters that appear in the Herald from all parts. Surely this is the "hastening time." I can see plainer than ever that God's hand is in this work. How glorious it is that we can be the children of heaven and have the privilege of being collaborators with God and the angels! I am determined to labor together with my brethren for the honor and glory of God to be the means of bringing some to the knowledge of the truth and cause them to enter the covenant of allegiance to the King of kings and Lord of lords by repenting from dead works and being baptized for the remission of their sins.

Your brother in Christ,

J. B. HEIDE.

SOMERVILLE, Victoria, July 1.

Editors Herald:—A few words will inform you that I am still in the battle for truth, and my hope seems to enlarge as I catch the shining rays from the Sun of Righteousness, which has recently dawned upon so many of Zion's children. The cause moves slowly along, but we are sure of its ultimate triumph if all will give diligent heed to the great commander. Christ said, "I will build my church," and there is nothing that fills my soul with such ecstatic joy as to see how willing the Saints are to place their all into his hands, and when difficulties arise which the wisdom of this world cannot solve they look to the courts above for kind advice. Ah, "the still small voice" has not lost its power, for at its whisper, the head bows, the knee bends, and the heart rises in prayer and adoration to him who is mighty to save! Ofttimes when in discharge of duty have I felt the quickening power of this latter-day work, and as we move along the way appears to be growing brighter, and we trust it will continue until the dawning of that perfect day when we shall all see eye to eye. Paul says that now "we see through a glass darkly," but I thought it so kind of the Lord at the late conference, to wipe the glass over that we might see more clearly. "Praise be to his name." I have been laboring of late where the work was opposed some few years ago, but no one seemed anxious to trouble me and I had a very enjoyable time, with fair audiences and splendid attention. I told the old story as plainly as I possibly could, but somehow or other it seems a difficult job to get them to see the necessity of becoming members of the body. However they gave me food, money, and treated me kindly.

This old "knife to the hilt" feeling seems to be dying out, and a warmer regard for those who are ready to give an answer for the hope that is within them is taking its place. "Grace and favor in the eyes of the people" is the idea. Am hopeful of an improvement in the work about this part, and will do what I can to this end. In bonds,

C. A. BUTTERWORTH.

ANNATON, Wis., Aug. 2.

Editors Herald.—We have been here a little over two weeks. The interest has been splendid and our audiences large notwithstanding the busy times. Our gospel tent was full last night. We baptized two yesterday and expect to baptize more to-day. We go to Livingston Friday or Saturday. We are reaching hundreds of people, for they come for miles and miles to hear us. We expect to have a lively and interesting time at Livingston, for they have threatened us with their minister. In bonds,

LAKEPORT, Mich., Aug. 2.

Editors Herald.—The grove meeting at Frenchtown was a success; there were a hundred and twenty teams and buggies on the ground in the afternoon, with perhaps nearly a thousand people as listeners. Every one seemed well satisfied with the doctrine as presented. A short time ago the Baptists tried to crowd us out of the schoolhouse near Black Creek simply because they had an appointment at half-past two, my appointment being at one o'clock the same afternoon. After hearing how bad they felt about the matter I concluded to take up the appointment to please them, and gave out that we would have preaching meeting in Bro. Steven's grove, about one mile from there at half past two o'clock; and to our astonishment nearly everybody came to our meeting, leaving the Baptists alone to consider how much they had gained in their little boy's scheme. At the close of the meeting five were baptized, J. A. Grant officiating, making nine in eight days at that place.

Poor Baptists; how long will it take them to learn that every effort they make against God's work will militate against themselves!

Last Tuesday I came to this place (Lakeport) and began holding meetings with a full house of attentive listeners. Yesterday I had the pleasure of baptizing two more in the waters of Lake Huron, Joseph Gamble, and Richard Cornish. The latter is a brother to J. J. Cornish. It is hoped he may be as faithful to the great work as his brother has been. Others are near the kingdom and will shortly obey. Everything is moving nicely all along the line so far as I know.

In gospel bonds,

R. E. GRANT.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 31.

Editors Herald.—I have just returned home after a two weeks' trip among members of the Braidwood branch. This branch was at one time a flourishing organization, but like many other branches has had its trials and vicissitudes, and finds itself to-day in a widely scattered condition. Braidwood is a coal mining town, but as coal became exhausted the inhabitants moved into new fields, which leaves the place in a dead condition, and the branch scattered, with members now in Rockville, Wilton Center, Morris, Joliet, Custer Park, Carbon Hill, Coal City, Wilmington, and other places.

Through the kindness and zeal of Bro. Joseph Kahler, I was permitted to visit a number of these places and proclaim the gospel. Arriving at Wilmington on the 16th I met Bro. and Sr. Little, who introduced me to Sr. Kahler and family, where I tarried all night. The next morning Bro. Kahler called for me with his rig, and after leaving appointment for the following night at Wilmington we started for Carbon Hill about ten miles distant, calling on Bro. Walrath, who lives about a mile and a half from Wilmington. Passing through Coal City we called on Bro. Kelso's and left appointment for preaching there that night, and through Bro. Kelso's diligence in advertising it a goodly number assembled, to whom I preached with fair liberty. We left another appointment for Thursday night, and on Wednesday went back to Wilmington and preached to quite a fair-sized audience in Sr. Bell's house; and next day we returned to Coal City to fill our appointment. A thunder shower arose about the time of meeting, and our audience was small. We appointed a meeting for the following night, but not many attended. Coal City is a large mining town, and the men have been out on a strike for months, and how to obtain the necessities of life is the all-important subject, so that they seemed to manifest little concern about religion. After a drive to Custer Park and leaving appointment there for the following Monday we left for home to look after the work in the city over Sunday, stopping on our way at Joliet where we spent two or three hours with Brn. Roush and Kier, who had just arrived with the district tent. Bro. M. T. Short happened in on us Sunday in time to fill the afternoon appointment, and a good sermon was the result.

On Monday we arrived at Custer Park in time to fill our appointment. The United Brethren church had been secured by Bro. Calhoon who resides next door to it. This church had been built by citizens with the understanding that when not in use by the United Brethren it should be open for any denomination that preached Christ and him crucified; we therefore expected to be granted its use, especially as the members save one (a woman) were perfectly willing. But the minister claimed there was some objection to us, therefore we could use the house but one night. The people treated us very nicely; a choir was formed that took charge of the singing, and quite a good-sized audience was in attendance, and an excellent interest was manifest. I thanked the people for the use of the church and invited them to the schoolhouse the following night. A gentleman in the audience arose and wanted to know why we could not occupy the church, as the schoolhouse was too far for many, and I told them we were granted the use of the church but one night. Considerable indignation was manifest by a number, but there seemed to be no alternative, as the minister in charge was too far away to be consulted. The next evening a storm arose at the time for meeting, and as a consequence few were present at the schoolhouse. We announced meeting for the following night at Bro. Calhoon's house, where we arranged seats in the front yard and in the house and arranged to preach from the front porch, and quite a number assembled.

It looked strange that right next door to a church these people had built for their own convenience they were now forced to sit in the open air because refused admittance by the pastor. This was just a little more than they could stand, for we had only just begun preaching when a gentleman arose and stated that if we would follow him he would take upon himself the responsibility of opening the house and inviting us in. At this the audience clapped their hands in approval and followed him. We could only do the same, so lamps were lit, a choir formed, and I preached with excellent liberty to as interested a people as I think I ever spoke to in my life. The gentleman who opened the door is called an infidel, but it is said he paid the biggest half toward building the church; and there was no more attentive listener than he. The next evening being their regular prayer meeting, instead of holding meeting we met with them, and those in charge showed us every courtesy and both the trustees publicly invited us to occupy the church again the following night, which we did, enjoying excellent liberty, at the close receiving many a warm grasp of the hand and invitations to come again, to call and see them, etc.; and when we left we were assured the cause had many warm friends at Custer Park, some of whom we trust will obey the gospel.

The next day—Saturday—we went to Joliet to join Bro. Keir in tent work, while Bro. Roush visited Mission over Sunday. A small but interested audience was present Saturday evening, on Sunday afternoon a few more, and on Sunday evening the tent was nicely filled, besides many standing on the outside. Among those interested was a Methodist minister, who attended three services while I was present. He seems to be an honest and liberal-minded man, and I believe is investigating. As no meeting was announced in the tent for Sunday morning I attended his church. Seeing me in the audience he invited me into his pulpit to assist him, and I had the pleasure of listening to a very good sermon, in which he indorsed what he had heard me preach the night previous on the necessity of works.

I find that Bro. Kier's quiet work in Joliet and vicinity is telling for good, and I trust ere long he may reap some of the fruits of his labors. Several there are very near the kingdom. If these unite there will be enough with the few Saints already there to organize a branch. Among the live members we met Sr. Fry (Bishop Blakeslee's daughter) and her worthy husband, who made me welcome at their home and assisted all in their power to make the tent meetings a success. Although permitted to move in what the world calls the "higher circles," they by no means hesitate to make known their faith. People are always more respected, even by the world, when true to their convictions.

I returned home on Tuesday to take up the work again in this great city, pleased to learn that all went well in the branch during my brief absence, Bro. J. S. Patterson having occupied the pulpit evidently to the satisfaction of all, as I hear his effort spoken of only in words of commendation. Several are investigating here, among others a bright, intelligent young man, a Jew, who seems greatly interested. We are still hopeful.

Please pardon this long letter. Yours,
F. G. PITT.

TEMPLE, Ohio, Aug., 4.

Editors Herald:—Since I last wrote Bro. Blair and I went to the London district and attended the conference. We had an enjoyable time. The church would not hold the people, so the Saints fitted up the grove on Bro. John Taylor's farm, near the church, and hundreds of people gathered there on Sunday. There were three sermons, two by W. W. Blair and one by R. C. Evans. Good order was observed and the speakers enjoyed fair liberty. On Monday we met to close up the business of conference and the Spirit of the Lord was in our midst; two elders and one priest were called and ordained, and Bro. Robert Longhurst was chosen president of the district, Bro. Wm. Corbett vice president. At the close of the conference Brn. W. W. Blair and R. C. Evans started to visit some of the branches of the district, while I remained and preached a few times in the Garafraxa church and twice at Grand Valley. From there I went to Stratford and met with the Saints of the branch in prayer meeting. The Spirit of peace was with us; all seemed willing to struggle on in the great conflict for final victory. I then went on to London and St. Thomas, and preached at the latter place a few times and attended to some other duties. I then went to London and met Brn. Blair and Evans, who reported good resulting from their labors among the Saints of Masonville, Proton, Egremont, and Stratford. We remained in London until July 28, then went to Chatham.

On Sunday the 29th, we went to the grove on Mr. Arnold's farm near Kent Bridge, for meeting at eleven a. m. There were a number of the Saints present, and Bro. Samuel Brown preached. At 2:30 Bro. Blair preached. A number were out; good attention. At five p. m. the writer tried to present the Teacher sent of God as the one to teach the way of life correctly. Monday morning, the 30th, we went to Chatham, and in the evening there was meeting; Bro. Blair preached. Bro. George Shippy and James H. Tyrrell were ordained to the office of elder. In bonds,

JOHN H. LAKE.

RAY, Ind., Aug. 6.

Editors Herald:—Our two-day meetings commence at Clear Lake, Indiana, August 18 and 19, and will take in every Saturday and Sunday from then until the middle of October. Bro. Phelps has written me that he will try and attend the one at Diamondale, August 25 and 26, but could promise no further as his arrangements are made in another direction. Bro. W. J. Smith, I understand, is in Detroit; Bro. Leonard Scott and myself are the remaining missionary force in the district. We could look after the two-day meetings perhaps, but there are other things to look after as well as those meetings. The Disciple minister at Knox, Indiana, was to lecture there, August 5, on "the difference between Mormonism and Christianity," and Bro. Scott was intending to be there to hear him. Now, you see, if he converts Bro. Scott I shall be left to hold the fort alone.

Then the Disciples of South Scott, Indiana (a new place I opened up last winter), have secured the services of Clark Braden (only fifty dollars a week), and have announced that he will be here August 26. Mr. Braden has written to me that he will "unmask your fraud—uncover a Mormon serpent from head to tail." I am anxious to see that serpent. I went once to see that serpent exhibited, near Bellair, Illinois. I attended nine lectures delivered by Mr. Braden, and also eight days' discussion between him and Bro. Kelley; but the serpent, for some cause, failed to materialize. In fact Mr. Braden failed to show any sign of a "Mormon serpent." But one of their preachers was at my meeting last night (at South Scott, where I am now), and he told the congregation that Mr. Braden will be here and that "he is a giant, and a man of God." I suppose from that that he has reformed since I saw him. I am informed also that the Disciples here say that Mr. Braden has "run the Mormons all out of Ohio." Now, as he has reformed and become "a man of God," and performed such wonderful things in Ohio, it is just possible that the "Mormon serpent" will materialize, sure enough, this time. At any rate I want to be on hand and see for myself. I may be detained here three or four weeks, and also require the assistance of Bro. Scott, if we can force them into discussion. The appointments for the two-day meetings are already out, and they will expect help at every place. We can't be in two places at the same time, so it seems now that some branches will be unavoidably neglected.

Brethren, we are doing about all that we can. We dislike to think of disappointing any of you, but we feel sure that you would all say, "stand by the work, and defend it against the attacks of the enemies of truth." If we can fill all those appointments we will do so; if we can't, don't feel hard. Our missionary force is weak. The work in new places must be defended when attacked and the misrepresentations of our enemies exposed.

The Disciple minister last evening talked like they would postpone this matter if desired, but we knew what this "man of God" (?) is, and his manner of warfare. Hence we have to stand ready. We need more men, but this is the cry from every part of the country. We must not complain. If we all do the best we can and all that we can the Lord will look after what is lacking.

Saints, be faithful, be diligent, be humble, be prayerful, be zealous. God is at the helm, and he will guide the ship safely into port. But only the pure, the tried, and the true, will be permitted to land. Others will be "cast away."

Your brother in the field,
ISAAC M. SMITH.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ill., Aug. 6.

Editors Herald:—I have just returned from a tour through String Prairie and Nauvoo district in Illinois and Iowa, Nodaway and Clinton districts in Missouri, and Spring River district in Missouri and Kansas, and while in Kansas I ran down to Arkansas City in Cowley county, to visit a brother-in-law who had lived there, but he had moved out six miles—five miles south and one mile east. His name is J. R. Nelson (commonly called Bob Nelson). I preached at his house, and if any of the elders can call and preach there he will take care of them, and would get a house in town for them to preach in. He reads the Ensign and gives it to his neighbors to read.

The Saints in all these localities as a rule are anxious to do their duty and willing to keep the whole law. They have not understood the law in some cases, but when they understand the way the law of tithing is taught by the church they concede its justice, and nearly all say they will comply with it as soon as possible. I found some that say the Bishop told them years ago that they need not pay tithing while they were in debt (of the correctness of this statement I do not know), and they manage to keep in debt a little all the time, so they never pay any tithing; and yet some of them are worth thousands of dollars. There are but few of that class however. Then again some have been wrongly instructed about how they should begin to pay their tithing. It has been taught by a few elders (and I am glad there has been but few of them) that the beginning should be a consecration of all their surplus, in their present scattered condition, and by their mixed ideas and wrong understanding they get consecration in too soon, confuse the minds of the Saints, bring in discord and dissatisfaction, and keep the Saints from doing anything, and thereby hinder the progress of the work they seek to build up.

It is proper now "to gather into the regions round about" and build up branches of the church, pay our tithing, and learn to live in harmony with the law of God. Then when the Lord commands his Saints to gather together and build up Zion or her stakes they will be ready to consecrate their properties for this purpose, and "the land will become sanctified by keeping his law thereon."

If we observe the command "to be not in haste, but let all things be prepared before us;" then there will be no mistake made in the gathering. The first preparation, as I understand it, is to learn to govern ourselves according to the law in all things, and when we do this we will try to work to the interest of our brother, as well as our own, and practically carry out the injunction of the Master, doing as we would wish to be done by under all circumstances. Then God will be glorified, his law honored, his people blessed, and Zion redeemed. God speed the time.

G. H. HILLIARD.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., July 10.

Editors Herald:—Our Annual Conference of the Birmingham district for 1894 is now a thing of the past. We assembled May 12, in the Saints' meetingroom, Birmingham. Business commenced in good earnest, and it was soon evident the brethren had come together in the spirit of love, and intended to have a good time throughout the sessions. How true it is, the spirit makes the man. Equally so the spirit in which men come together marks the peace or otherwise of their assemblies. On Sunday, May 13, we had prayer service and preaching in the morning, when Bro. John Dyche of Stafford and Bro. Henry Tabbiner of Hanley held forth. Fellowship meeting was held at three p. m. and preaching at 6:30 p. m., Bro. Joseph R. Greenwood of Stafford addressing the congregation. And so we passed the time to the honor and glory of God and the benefit of all who waited on the Lord. It is better to spend a day in the "courts of the Lord" than a thousand in the tents of the wicked.

When we renewed our business session on Monday morning the sun was pouring down its welcome beams of light and life upon the spring flowers. In our hearts it kindled the beam of praise to him who watches us by night and guides us by day. Reports showed that the brethren were trying to do their duty, and expressed strong desires to continue in the good work.

We were a fairish number at the hour appointed for assembling in the morning, but we soon increased by the arrival of nine brethren and sisters from Leicester and six from South Wales. These Saints took advantage of the holiday excursion trains to spend a few hours with those of like precious faith. One of the well-known fruits of the gospel tie is the drawing nature of its love. Our Welsh visitors had been traveling all night, leaving Llanelly at midnight, Sunday, arriving in Birmingham about nine a. m., Monday. The return journey was also made in a similar manner—from midnight on Monday, reaching home Tuesday morning. Leicester is not so far from here, hence those coming from that place were not so long on the way.

Among those who came from Leicester mention may be made of Bro. Henry Pearse and daughter, Bro. and Sr. Dawkins, Bro. and Sr. G. T. Norton, and Bro. and Sr. Ward. Among those from Wales Bro. John Edwards, Bro. Adolphus Edwards, Sister Annie Edwards, and three whose names I did not get. During the interval of adjournment had for refreshments, our Welsh visitors added greatly to our joy by singing in Welsh. It was really beautiful, but for the life of me I could not tell what it was. To look at the Welsh language as written you would think it would break anyone's neck to speak it; but upon my word, to hear it sung it seems as easy as easy can be, just as though they had a "piccolo-pea" in their throats for the purpose of rolling out the double l's and double d's, of which there are so many in Welsh.

Among the items of business occupying the attention of conference was the word of the Lord to his church given to his servant our President, Bro. Joseph Smith, and presented at the late General Conference of the church in America. It was received here by a rising vote and the hymn No. 70, "We thank thee, O God, for a prophet," was sung. I am heartily thankful the controversy on points of privilege, etc., between leaders of the church in the columns of the Herald is ended. While I am of the opinion there is nothing too holy for investigation, nor too high to be assailed, I believe proper time and place should be chosen for such actions. I know that men can oppose each other by voice and pen, pulling each other's arguments into ribbons, and still remain fast friends; in fact, few know better than myself that this is so; for I am happy when in debate. Many of the questions written about in the Herald for these past few years, such as "Word of Wisdom," "Rights of district presidents," etc., have moved my pen. After having put my thoughts together, on reviewing them, I thought the result was not worth the effort. There is always one difficulty in controversy by correspondence, which does not occur in debate, that is, you can't diffuse the spirit in the pen that will insure your writing to be read in the same spirit as you write, and so wrong impressions are formed. Perhaps by not sending "mine opinion" on I have spared your readers much pain and myself much blame.

At 5:30 p. m. we adjourned the business portion of the conference to meet again at Leicester on Whitsaturday, 1895. At 7:30 p. m. a fellowship meeting was held. The room was filled and the Spirit of God was felt by all present and made us feel "glad to be a Saint of latter days." To some of those present, who had not been in so large a meeting before, it will long be remembered as a happy and peaceful time. The many earnest and faithful testimonies, the voice of the Spirit in the "gift of tongues," in which by interpretation we were encouraged to go on in the strength of the Lord and he would bless our efforts, and the sweet hymns of praise seemed to take us far away from the things of "time and sense" and permit us to foretaste the joys of the blessed. Alas! these times of "refreshing from the Lord" come to an end. At least we are called to part, and at best can only take a lively remembrance of our pleasure while in association. So at 10:10 p. m. we drew the curtain on one of the most peaceful, spiritual, and profitable conferences held in the Birmingham district.

There was only one thing which caused a tinge of sadness in our hearts; that was the absence, through illness, of our esteemed and faithful secretary, Bro. George S. Greenwood. He has been district secretary for more than twenty years and has not been absent from the district conference before. I am sorry to say he has been in ill health for some time now. He is a noble worker in the cause, and I pray God to restore him to us and his service.

Before closing allow me to express my thanks to the brethren and sisters of the Birmingham branch, and especially the committee, for the efficient and kind manner in which they worked to make the conference a success. Also the brethren and sisters of the Icknield Port Road, Summerfield branch, for their kindness in lending their meetingroom for the business session, as also assisting in attending to the inner wants of man. There were two baptized during conference by Bro. Arthur Crump.

In gospel bonds,

Pres. Birmingham District.

MANCHESTER, England, July 27.

Editors Herald:—Will you substitute the word assurance for appearance in the fourth line of paragraph five in my Adieu in Herald for July 11; and in the eighth line from the bottom of the last paragraph numerical for material.

The ponderous boat Campania backed out of the docks at three p. m. Saturday, July 14, and we were soon in the open sea; and the monstrous boat six hundred and twenty feet in length and proportionately large, soon began to rush through the mighty sea in a majestic manner at the rate of twenty knots an hour at least, and as reports went, sometimes more, without a halt until about midnight on Friday the 20th, until stopping at Queenstown to discharge mail and passengers. But during the trip she was necessitated to lessen her speed for the space of eight or nine hours, through some defect in a cylinder, by which one of her engines was crippled for the above length of time, so that she plowed her way with but one engine instead of two, which, as reports had it, was a preventive to breaking the record of former trips, so far as time was concerned, and receiving credit for being the fastest vessel plying between Liverpool and New York.

Liverpool was reached on Saturday morning, and after the worry, confusion, and delay, in landing luggage and exposing the interior of trunks, etc., to the searching eye of customhouse officials, I reached Bro. Dewsnup's private residence at noon on Saturday, July 21, receiving a warm reception, making my ministerial bow to the Saints in Manchester on Sunday the 22d. The singing at the morning service was good, nor did the singing in the understanding prevent singing in the Spirit. Additional evidence that our God is not confined to time and places was stimulating, which my reception among the Saints did not diminish.

My plans for future labor are not or will not be fully matured until the convening of the mission conference on the 4th proximo. In the meantime, however, I find there is much to be done; and by God's grace I hope to do my part in cooperating with the Saints for the spreading of the gospel in this land, neither transcending nor stopping short of law-prescribed duty. For with either would be an extreme, being a preventive to progress and far beneath the dignity of a representative of Christ's Church. There can be nothing more sublime, than a God-imposed gospel moderation; and this perhaps gives a potent reason for the difficulty attending a practical demonstration thereof; for wrong, crooked, or deceptive doings may be more captivating than the right; so that it is just possible that the defense of and practicing the right may require more boldness than lingering in crooked and deceptive paths. The one may bring immediate satisfaction, of short duration; the other may see satisfaction afar off, but when reached, its glorious effects may be as lasting as the hills. The pedestrians seen in Manchester when traveling one way keep to the right, and when going the other way keep to the right, which I presume is intended to prevent collision on the crowded sidewalks and is certainly effective if observed. So when we keep to the right as church members, we will prevent collision, establish peace, and evince a spiritual growth, affording a spiritual asylum in our spiritual house for those who sigh and cry for the abominations done in the earth, and their name is legion.

The weather during the trip across the sea was all that could be desired, no furious wind nor rough sea, and so smooth was the sailing of the boat that at times a rock or motion was scarcely perceptible. What it might have been in a boisterous wind I could not conjecture; but think it must be more than an ordinary wind that would affect it to any extent. The convenience, cleanliness, etc., was all that could be expected; four meals were provided per day, with some variation each meal, in the most approved style; the furniture the most modern, in some respects gorgeous.

The effects of the machinery were a refrigerator, condensing the salt water for steam and all other purposes, generating electric lights seen and utilized on all parts of the vessel, and propelling the boat, requiring, including stokers, one hundred and thirty men to keep the ponderous machinery in constant motion. The quantity of pale ale, stout, Irish and Scotch whiskey, etc., hauled up from the hold and consumed each day gave evidence that prohibition had not been proclaimed on board the Campania; while the clouds of smoke emitted from the mouths of by far the greater number of men on board gave a basis for belief that they had not been taught that tobacco was for bruises and sick cattle, or if they had, had paid no attention to it.

My only companion was Bro. B. Nelson, from Lamoni, with whom I parted at Liverpool. I escaped the dreaded ordeal, seasickness, but was otherwise indisposed, suffering some from loss of appetite, which was hard on an Englishman you know; but with some repose and much kindness I am getting back to my normal condition.

GARDEN GROVE, Cal., July 30.

Editors Herald:—Our Southern California reunion at Downey, California, closed on Sunday evening, July 22, and was a success. The Saints who were privileged to attend were made glad, and returned home better prepared to go forward in the great work of the latter days. On Wednesday evening we had Bishop E. L. Kelley, and on Sunday Elder J. F. Burton our missionary in charge preached twice for us at the Newport branch chapel. All three efforts were good and were much appreciated by Saints and outsiders. On Sunday afternoon, July 29, Elder J. F. Burton led nine precious souls into the water, which with eight baptized by Father John Brush on July 7, and four of the twelve baptized at the reunion, makes in all twenty-one baptized in our branch, and a total of thirty-six baptized in this district since General Conference; and several more are near the kingdom.

The local ministry as well as conference appointees are generally active as circumstances permit. The Saints generally are more active. We have lately organized the "Daughters of Zion" and "Zion's Religio" in our branch, and our Sunday school is in a flourishing condition. The attendance at the meetings of both Saints and outsiders is increasing, and I think the outlook in this part of the vineyard is very encouraging.

PILOT OAK, Ky., July 31.

Editors Herald:—The condition of the work in this district is improving all the time, I think. We cannot report as many baptisms as from other portions of the Lord's vineyard; and yet to some extent we have realized the fulfillment of the promise of the Good Shepherd to bless the labors of his servants "preparing the hearts of the people," etc. Thirteen have been baptized near Lynnville, Kentucky, of late by Bro. William Waterman; and on the 22d inst., a branch was partially organized there by Bro. W. and the writer, Bro. Robt. Warren formerly a minister in the Disciple or Christian (?) Church being ordained to the office of a priest; Bro. James Caldwell was chosen secretary. It will be known as the Caldwell branch.

The "old temple" four miles south of Farmington, was from the 16th to the 21st inst. the scene of a polemic encounter between Bro. C. L. Snow and Rev. P. J. Henry of Murray, Kentucky, representing the Missionary Baptist Church; each party affirming that the Scriptures teach that the church represented by himself, "is the Church of Christ in origin, doctrine, history, organization, and practice." Three days were given to the discussion of each proposition, Elder Henry taking the lead. His first and best speech (one hour in length) was devoted to proving that "The Church of Jesus Christ was of divine origin" and that Jesus "organized his church during his personal ministry on earth." Latter Day Saints can readily understand about how much there was for Bro. Snow to meet in all this. It was a good effort, but its force was lost so far as we were concerned.

Elder Henry was just from the Baptist Theological College at Murray; and from an educational standpoint had quite an advantage, as Bro. Snow, to use his own words, had "never been through his spelling book," but it is written, "God hath chosen the weak things of this world to confound the wise," and it was proven true in this case. With all his tearing Rev. Henry was unable to sustain a single point of his affirmation. His attempt to prove a "succession" was weak indeed. That failing, of course all fails with them. The verdict of those whom I heard express themselves, was solid against Elder Henry on his own proposition.

On his affirmative proposition Bro. Snow did well; and while I have heard arguments presented more systematically and with perhaps more of the "knowledge which man's wisdom teacheth," yet I do not think I ever attended a discussion with which I was better pleased as to the effect upon the minds of the people. I feel confident that much prejudice was removed and lasting good accomplished. Bro. Snow is proving himself to be quite an efficient worker in the Lord's vineyard, and continuing faithful he has a brilliant future for good before him.

Perhaps a sample of Elder Henry's reasoning from a grammatical standpoint would be of interest to the Herald readers. Acts 2: 38: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you," etc. The verbs repent and be baptized do not have the same subject nominative; repent being in the plural and be baptized in the singular number; so saith Henry. His moderator, Elder W. O. Hargrove, in a private talk with me took the position that Elder Henry did as to the number of these verbs, and also said that "repent" was in the imperative mode and be baptized was in the indicative mode. So there, now; all you elders who have been preaching that we should "repent and be baptized for the selfsame thing; that is, remission of sins," "better look a leedle out!" However, though Bro. Snow was not a grammarian, not having "been through his spelling book" he was able to show that if "be baptized" was in the singular number then only one person was to be baptized, and Elder Henry was not able to show who that one was.

Our reunion commences August 9. We hope to have a good time and go hence better prepared for labor in the great cause.

Hopefully,

Editors Herald:—Our work in this district still moves along. Brethren, I have not been a member of this church very long, but am truly thankful that I have been in it long enough to find out that it is the church of God. I have had a very hard time since I joined the church, but thanks be to God I am a Latter Day Saint and expect to be as long as I live. I ask the prayers of all the Saints that I may be faithful.

JUDGE RIGHTEOUS JUDGMENT.

JUDGE not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment.—John 7: 24.

In Proverbs 18: 13 it is written:—

He that answereth a matter before he hear-eth it, it is folly and a shame unto him.

The hearing here referred to would evidently be the hearing of a matter in all that has bearing upon it; to use a common expression, "hearing both sides." By this view a refusal in any case to pass judgment until in possession of all the evidence for and against is the only way in which to avoid the folly of passing unrighteous condemnation, or at least of expressing opinions that full returns may show very much to our discredit.

Even where we demand full evidence it requires careful discrimination to enable us to decide properly, if we have the right in every case to hear and weigh evidence without being legally appointed to do so; in some cases it is evident at a glance. We have, for instance, anyone appointed to any public service, or a man presenting himself as a public teacher of any sort, especially one claiming to be sent of God; and it becomes a duty on the part of all men to carefully scrutinize their conduct and their teachings. "By their fruits shall ye know them," indicates the possession of the right to scrutinize said fruits and judge accordingly.

In all cases we should remember that "'tis high to be a judge;" but though high, where it is our privilege, and especially where it becomes our duty, we ought not to shirk it, but rather proceed, obeying carefully that wonderful and complete injunction, "Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment."

No judge, jury, tribunal, nor individual has the right to pass judgment upon ex parte evidence, "hearing one side only;" yet how often we see persons (who no doubt feel that they are fairly just) permitting themselves to do so in listening to accusations against a brother, sister, friend, or stranger it may be; and perhaps in eagerness to show good feeling or interest in the conversation of the accuser, or may be desiring to seem knowing and quick to perceive, they nod their heads in constant assent, or their tongues give ready acknowledgment of a full belief in all that is stated.

Are such ones not usually in the sight of God and his law adding folly and shame to their probably otherwise fair record in answering or at least expressing opinion against an individual in a matter of which they know nothing except upon one-sided assertions which a careful investigation may prove to be entirely false?

In such cases if it be right to be "swift to hear" it is sure to be right to "be slow to speak;" and even if in any case where speech might seem to be "silver," silence would be sure to be "golden."

The Saint or individual who so acts will soon find himself in the enviable position of a just judge, a hearer of only such causes where all concerned expect only a swift application of righteous judgment, and unfailing condemnation of false accusation. The scandalmonger, the false accuser, the common gossip will soon hesitate to approach with their stock in trade those whose ears and sympathies cannot be obtained except in behalf of manifest right, and then only in a critically legal and just manner to all concerned.

Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment.

May we be enabled so to do, and in this respect as in all others seek to ascend the higher plane of action daily.

ANTECEDENT PROBABILITIES OF A REVELATION.

(Concluded from last week.)

HOW, THEN, must a communication be accredited in order that it may be accepted as having a divine origin and authority? Rationalism asserts that truth bears its own credentials—that it needs only to be clearly stated in order to be universally received. Tested by this criterion, very little truth would be left in the world, for no truth has been universally received. The existence of efficient causes, of final causes, of a soul, of an external world, in fact of everything, has been at some time denied. The validity of sense-perception, of reasoning, and even of consciousness, upon which all knowledge rests, has been repeatedly questioned, and it is repudiated by whole schools of philosophy. How, then, can it be soberly affirmed that truth is its own witness and needs no confirmation? But how shall we expect reason to recognize and accept answers to the questions What am I? Whence am I? and Whither do I tend? when history shows that the answers are not found in the sphere of reason? How can reason confirm what reason does not know? Every possible answer has been given to these questions, What? Whence? and Whither? Does reason universally accept any one of them? Suppose one to write out answers to these questions and affirm that these are answers revealed to him, on what ground shall we accept the answers as true? Shall we accept them because reason knows them to be true? If reason had known the answers, the questions would never have been asked; or, at least, all men would spontaneously give one answer. Shall we accept them because of the character of the man who gives the answers? Men of the purest character have given the most opposite answers. Shall we accept them because the person who gives them claims to be divine? How shall we know that he is not a deluded enthusiast or a lunatic, such as those in the asylums who solemnly declare themselves to be "God the Father"? How, in short, shall we distinguish between the divinely appointed revealer and the cunning or self-deceived pretender? How shall we decide between the conflicting claims of Jesus Christ, Zoroaster, Buddha, Mahomet, Emanuel Swedenborg, and Joseph Smith? What can decisively determine our judgments, except credentials of an unmistakable character as to the supernatural origin of the revelation which they attest? If the revelation be only natural, it will not meet the demand; for the answers to our questions cannot be obtained in the sphere of our natural faculties. The questions are propounded to the Power behind Nature; they are not therefore to be answered by any response of Nature, not even by human nature, for it is human nature that asks, on bended knee, with bowed head and with imploring hands, that its helpless ignorance may be enlightened. The inquiry is made of the supernatural, and the reply must come from the supernatural. In order that we may know that the answer comes from the supernatural, it must appear in a supernatural halo of confirmation. Nothing short of this will meet the case. The modern antagonism to a supernatural revelation is bitter and relentless in its mockery of a religion based upon the miraculous. It sneers with unutterable scorn at what it caricatures as "divine magic;" as if the Creator of heaven and earth would descend to the low level of a common showman, and astonish mankind with celestial sleight of hand performances! How grossly irrational this opposition to the miraculous is, becomes apparent as soon as the true state of the case is candidly considered. Man has been endowed with longings after knowledge that reason cannot furnish. This knowledge is important to the guidance of life, and to the attainment of the highest ends of existence. Is it unreasonable to suppose that the Power behind Nature can furnish this knowledge? Is it "divine magic" to reveal this knowledge to man and to confirm its supernatural origin and authority by supernatural signs? Does this supernatural supplement imply imperfection in the original constitution of man? or does it not rather dignify man by making him a special object of regard in the supernatural gratification of his highest desires, while at the same time it enlarges his conception of his Creator as a Being whose resources are not exhausted even in the production of this invisible universe of wonders?

The hostility to a supernatural revelation and to miracles in general as a confirmation of religion, so general and so bitter in our times, proceeds from an atheistic or, what is practically the same, a pantheistic conception of the universe. Modern rationalism in theology and the extreme scepticism of Strauss, Rénan, and the Tübingen school of criticism grew out of the pantheistic philosophies of Germany, and especially the system of Hegel, which allows no personal Power behind Nature. If there be no supernatural, it is, of course, idle for man to appeal to it. But as soon as we admit that there is a source of knowledge beyond Nature, all the objections to miracles fall to the ground. Hence if we accept theism, we need have no difficulty with the destructive criticism that would resolve every miraculous revelation into myths or legends, for this criticism proceeds distinctively upon the denial of the supernatural. Strauss lays down at the beginning the critical canon that a miracle is never to be believed, and that the narrative in which it is found is so far, at least, unhistorical. Rénan holds the same opinion. "The Bible for Learners," a rationalistic travesty of the Jewish and Christian Scriptures, the latest and most popular exposition of the Tübingen school of criticism, is constructed upon the presumption that every narrative containing any element of the supernatural is of necessity a legend, for a miracle is an impossibility.

But before deciding as to the possibility of a miracle we need to have a clear idea of its nature. What is a miracle? It is not merely a wonder, for Nature is full of wonders. It is not merely a mystery, for Nature is full of mysteries. It is not necessarily a contradiction of natural laws, for this would indeed make a miracle unnatural and difficult to believe. It is an occurrence transcending natural laws for an intelligible purpose, and displaying a control over natural forces. Thus, while a miracle is not unnatural, it is essentially and distinctively supernatural. A strange and unprecedented occurrence is not a miracle. It must have an intelligible purpose and manifest a designed control, or it is a mere wonder. Thus regarded, a miracle is a divine manifestation, and miracles are the expressive language of supernatural revelation. A miracle is not, therefore, a sleight of hand performance, though a mere trick of a magician may be mistaken for a miracle by the superstitious, just as a fallacy may be mistaken for an argument by the dull. The probative value of a miracle is not destroyed by the fact that the simple may be deceived by a trick, any more than the conclusiveness of a sound argument is invalidated by the fact that men are daily beguiled by sophistry. A real miracle is a certain manifestation of the supernatural, and the difficulty lies wholly in the proof that the miracle has been performed. There is, indeed, in every case a metaphysical possibility that we may not be able to distinguish a miracle from a trick, but there is also the experimental certainty that men are constantly confounding arguments and sophisms. The truth is that a finite mind cannot know anything infallibly, for all our senses sometimes deceive us; but it is unfair and unphilosophical to place metaphysical difficulties in the way of supernatural knowledge which we do not practically place in the way of natural knowledge.

It is decidedly against the modern speculative denial of miracles that the chief objections urged against them were first clearly stated and pressed upon the attention of modern thinkers by one whose system of philosophy was blank nihilism—a hopeless scepticism that swept away the foundations of all knowledge, natural as well as supernatural. David Hume, the nihilist, wrote his "Natural History of Religion" in 1757, and it was posthumously published twenty years later. The speculative objections urged in that work against the possibility and the proof of miracles have animated all subsequent attacks upon supernatural religion. Hume's quibbles have taken root in speculative minds so generally that, as Strauss confesses, "the chief offense which the old system of religion necessarily gives to the spirit of our age is its superstitious belief in miracles" ("Leben Jesu," 1864, p. 18).

Hume's view of the subject is thus presented by his latest biographer, sympathetic expounder, and admiring disciple, Professor Huxley: "If our beliefs of expectation are based upon our beliefs of memory, and anticipation is only inverted recollection, it necessarily follows that every belief of expectation implies the belief that the future will have a certain resemblance to the past. From the first hour of experience onwards, this belief is constantly being verified, until old age is inclined to suspect that experience has nothing new to offer. And when the experience of generation after generation is recorded, and a single book tells us more than Methusaleh could have learned had he spent every waking hour of his thousand years in learning; when apparent disorders are found to be only the recurrent pulses of a slow-working order, and the wonder of a year becomes the commonplace of a century; when repeated and minute examination never reveals a break in the chain of causes and effects, and the whole edifice of practical life is built upon our faith in its continuity, the belief that that chain has never been broken and will never be broken becomes one of the strongest and most justifiable of human convictions. And it must be admitted to be a reasonable request, if we ask those who would have us put faith in the actual occurrence of interruptions of that order to produce evidence in favor of their view not only equal but superior in weight to that which leads us to adopt ours. This is the essential argument of Hume's famous disquisition upon miracles."—"Hume," English Men of Letters Series, pp. 127, 128.

Experience is, as Hume claims, our ground of expectation, but is it not a common experience that our experience is enlarged and even contradicted? It does indeed indicate the probable, but it can never reach absolute certainty. The only ground presented by Hume for our belief that the chain of known sequences will never be broken is that the chain never has been broken. His assumption is, then, that the future will be like the past. But how does he know that the future will resemble the past? He can be certain of this only by knowing that the resources of Nature have been entirely exhausted. To know this would imply omniscience, which Hume makes no claim to possess.

Hume's great mistake lies in defining a miracle as "a violation of natural laws." This, as we have shown, would be unnatural, whereas a miracle is only supernatural. Huxley perceives and criticises this error. He says, "The definition of a miracle as a suspension or a contradiction of the order of Nature is self-contradictory, because all we know of the order of Nature is our observation of the course of events, of which the so-called miracle is a part" (Id., p. 131). Huxley errs, however, in asserting that the so-called miracle is a part of Nature. It is not natural for one to rise from the dead, it is supernatural; and if a case were proved to be real, all men would admit this. The difficulty lies in the proof. Here is Hume's really strong point. He contends that testimony cannot prove the occurrence of a miracle, for it is more probable that men will lie than that a miracle will occur.

This position requires close examination. Huxley thus states his own ground: "The more a statement of facts conflicts with previous experience, the more complete must be the evidence which is to justify us in believing it. It is upon this principle that every one carries on the business of common life. If a man tells me he saw a piebald horse in Piccadilly, I believe him without hesitation. The thing itself is likely enough, and there is no imaginable motive for his deceiving me. But if the same person tells me he observed a zebra there, I might hesitate a little about accepting his testimony, unless I were well satisfied not only as to his previous acquaintance with zebras, but as to his powers and opportunity of observation in the present case. If, however, my informant assured me that he beheld a centaur trotting down that famous thoroughfare, I should emphatically decline to credit his statement; and this even if he were the most saintly of men, and ready to suffer martyrdom to support his belief.—Id., p. 132. This is good sense, and most sane men would accept it as such. No one differs from him in refusing to believe in the existence of a centaur, because there is absolutely no reason why it should exist. But suppose there is a good reason for believing that an object exists, though it has never been seen, is testimony concerning it so incredible? Let us test Professor Huxley with a practical case. The origin of life on the globe is unknown to science, and presents the greatest mystery with which science has to deal. Suppose some one should affirm that he had discovered at the bottom of the sea a vast body of living matter, extending in a mighty belt nearly round the globe, and that all terrestrial life, including the human, originated in and was derived from this long-undiscovered mass: would this be credible? It was so to Huxley, and he paraded his supposed discovery in a scientific journal, announcing to the world, "Bathybius," for thus he christened his monster, "is a vast sheet of living matter enveloping the whole earth beneath the sea." How inadequate the evidence was for the existence of this Bathybius is evident from Huxley's subsequent retraction of his theory, and the following careful statement of Dr. Lionel S. Beale, made after a close examination. "Bathybius," says Dr. Beale, "instead of being a widely extending sheet of living matter which grows at the expense of inorganic elements, is rather to be regarded as a complex mass of slime, with many foreign bodies and the debris of living organisms which have passed away." ("Protoplasm, or Matter and Life," p. 110.) Yet Strauss had hailed this wonderful discovery as bridging the chasm between the organic and the inorganic, and as expelling the miracle of the creation of life from the universe. How could Huxley believe in a Bathybius so easily and refuse to believe in the existence of a centaur on any testimony?

The plain answer is that he saw a reason why Bathybius should exist, but no reason for the existence of a centaur. The mystery of life was, as far as possible, to be explained. Now apply the same test to miracles designed to confirm a revelation. There is a reason why man should receive a communication from the supernatural, and such a communication could be confirmed, as we have seen, only by supernatural signs. How unfair it is, then, to rank miracles designed to be evidential of a revelation with stories of a centaur appearing in Piccadilly! Yet he declares that "judged by either the canons of common sense or of science, which are indeed one and the same, all 'miracles' are centaurs or they would not be miracles, and men of sense and science will deal with them on the same principles." ("Hume," p. 134.)

John Stuart Mill, who was in many respects a disciple of Hume, candidly states the case thus: "A miracle is no contradiction to the laws of cause and effect; it is a new effect supposed to be produced by the introduction of a new cause. Of the adequacy of that cause, if present, there can be no doubt, and the only antecedent improbability which can be ascribed to the miracle is the improbability that any such cause existed. All, therefore, which Hume has made out is that (at least in the imperfect state of our knowledge of natural agencies, which leaves it always possible that some of the physical antecedents may have been hidden from us) no evidence can prove a miracle to anyone who did not previously believe in the existence of a being or beings with supernatural power, or who believes himself to have full proof that the character of the Being whom he recognizes is inconsistent with his having seen fit to interfere on the occasion in question. If we do not already believe in supernatural agencies, no miracle can prove to us their existence."—"A System of Logic," p. 440. No exception can fairly be taken to these words of Mill. Our plea for the credibility of miracles rests wholly upon the assumption that there is an Intelligent, Beneficent, and Personal Power behind Nature. We claim, therefore, on the authority of Mill, that there is no antecedent improbability of a miracle, designed to confirm a supernatural revelation, except to an atheist. We also claim that no man, whatever his mental tendencies may be, can abide permanently and peacefully in absolute atheism. Mill did not. While rejecting all other arguments as wholly valueless, Mill concedes, in his essay on "Theism," considerable weight to the argument from design. Having spoken of evolution by natural law, he says: "Leaving this remarkable speculation to whatever fate the progress of discovery may have in store for it, I think it must be allowed that, in the present state of our knowledge, the adaptations in Nature afford a large balance of probability in favor of creation by intelligence."—Three Essays on Religion, p. 174. Even Hume was not a hopeless atheist. Leslie Stephen, an admirer of Hume, writes in concluding an account of his opinions: "A vague belief, too impalpable to be imprisoned in formulæ or condensed into demonstrations, still survived in his mind, suggesting that there must be something behind the veil, and something, perhaps, bearing a remote analogy to human intelligence."—"English Thought in the Eighteenth Century," vol. 1, p. 342. Nowhere among great thinkers do we find unflinching certainty that there is no supernatural. As long as this is the case, a miracle, rightly understood, cannot be rationally pronounced impossible, and testimony to the actual occurrence of a miracle is not necessarily false.

But Hume seems to go farther than Stephen's words would represent. In one of his candid moods he writes: "The whole frame of Nature bespeaks an Intelligent Author; and no rational inquirer can, after serious reflection, suspend his belief a moment with regard to the primary principles of genuine Theism and Religion."—"Essays," vol. 4, p. 435. Commenting on our ignorance of the attributes of the Deity, he says, in another place, "Believe me, Cleanthes, the most natural sentiment which a well-disposed mind will feel on this occasion is a longing desire and expectation that heaven would be pleased to dissipate, at least alleviate, this profound ignorance by affording some more particular revelation to mankind, and making discoveries of the nature, attributes, and operations of the divine object of our faith."—"Essays," vol. 2, pp. 547, 548. As a "rational inquirer," then, even this illustrious manufacturer of doubts could not deny an intelligent Power behind Nature, nor that a "well-disposed mind" would desire and expect "a more particular revelation" than Nature affords. How is this desired and expected revelation to be given? Having conceded so much, in Mill's judgment, Hume could not logically refrain from conceding also that this revelation might be attended by miracles. All a priori objections being now removed, why should not the testimony of a sufficient number of witnesses, intellectually and morally competent, be received? If no further objections can be urged, there remains no case against a miraculous revelation.—David J. Hill, in Princeton Review, September, 1883.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Association convened in Saints' chapel, Plainville, July 14, at 7:30 p. m. Report of Superintendent G. H. Gates read and received. Treasurer's report read, referred to an auditing committee, and found correct. Reports of superintendents of schools and delegates read and accepted. Schools reporting: Boston, Plainville, Fall River, Haverhill, North Plymouth, and Dennisport, Massachusetts; Providence, Woodville, and Little Compton, Rhode Island. The district officers, Superintendent G. H. Gates, Assistant Superintendent Myron C. Fisher, and Sr. Ora Holmes Bishop, secretary and treasurer, were reelected for the ensuing year. Voted that an effort be made to hold a district picnic, committee to consist of Brethren R. Bullard, F. O. and C. A. Coombs, M. C. Fisher, G. H. Gates, and Sr. Ora Holmes Bishop. Sunday, ten a. m., opening address by G. H. Gates, followed by short speeches from delegates. Primary class lesson in charge of Sr. Mary E. Rogers. Blackboard exercises by Bro. Myron C. Fisher. This was the principal feature and the little folks entered into it heartily. Some of the older ones were much interested. The afternoon session was given to essays. Papers were written by Bro. G. H. Smith, Providence, Srs. Josie Gerrish, and Ruth Sheehy, Boston, and read respectively by Brn. G. H. Gates, R. Bullard, and M. C. Fisher, Bro. F. O. Coombs reading his own production. At 7:30 the local school gave a very creditable concert, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barrows, violin and organ accompaniment, and Bro. F. O. Coombs with his cornet. Adjourned to Providence, second Saturday in January, at 7:30 p. m.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Eastern Michigan District; Beloved Saints:—I take this way of letting you all know that the treasury is depleted, hoping that every Saint in the district will respond at an early date to send in their means as God has prospered them to replenish the treasury. We all know the hearer of the law is not justified in the sight of God; but the doers of the law shall be justified. Then, dear Saints, let us arise and bring our tithes and offerings into the house of the Lord that there may be meat in his house, and prove him. His promise is he will open the windows of heaven and bless you. And by keeping his commandments you shall become a delightful people above all people on the face of the earth. He has farther promised he will withhold no good thing from those who will love and serve him and keep his commandments. Many tell me, "I am so poor that I cannot pay tithes." I often say they ought to remain poor when they will not do what the Father says that they might have abundance for their families' wants, and be like our Father Abraham, blessed with this world's goods, and impart the Lord his portion for the spread of the gospel and for the poor of his people. And Paul says if we are the children of Abraham we will walk in his steps.

I understand when the Lord spoke through the Prophet Malachi to the house of Israel, he accused the whole nation of robbing him. I also read that the Lord says he does not change. And if it were robbing God by withholding tithes and offerings then, would it not be robbing God now by withholding our tithes and offerings? I think so. And we learn in Matthew 21: 43 that when the Master came he took the kingdom from the house of Israel because they did not render the fruits of the vineyard in its season. You will notice it was not because they had not obeyed the gospel that the kingdom was taken from them, but because they had not brought their tithes and offerings into his house that it might be sustained. He gave it to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof. Now all these things were written for our instruction. Will we profit by them? Remember that our Father has spoken through Joseph the Seer on page 194 Doctrine and Covenants, that the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion, and shall be sent away, and shall not inherit the land. Dear Saints, let us arise and live by every word that has proceeded out of the mouth of God, that the prayers of the Master may be verified in each of us, and we become one with him and the Father in the great plan of redemption, working while the day lasts, for the night will come when no man can work. May we all remember the words of John in Revelation 22: 14: "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city."

PASTORAL.

To the Australian Saints, Greeting:—Having been put in charge of this mission I wish to say to the brethren and sisters that another year is opening up before us with brighter prospects and more cheering promises than heretofore. And although we have been hindered in many ways in the past from carrying into action our true desires, it is apparent that if the hastening time is upon us, the Lord will remove the obstacles that have prevented a full discharge of duty. We must expect to meet all the peculiarities in the future that we have met in the past, but added responsibilities will bring us nearer to the fountain of living water, where we may oft refresh our souls and go on our way rejoicing. If we expect to see the latter-day work arise and shine forth in its glory, to the darkened climes of this land, it will necessitate an individual effort on the part of all; that is, "showing our faith by our work," and thus manifest the love of a true disciple. We want, and should have, something more to thank the Lord for, than the brother who said he had been seventeen years in the church and it had not cost him a penny. If we offer ourselves as a living sacrifice to be used in the Master's cause, it should be remembered that whether we toil in the fields, or in the ministry there should be a united effort "for the accomplishment of the work intrusted to all." If the Lord has graciously bestowed upon any of you one talent, don't stand in the background and wish you had two, but strive to wisely use the one, and the second will come without wishing when it is necessary. Now is the time that "wisdom should be justified in her children," and they should seek to "stand in the holy place," for the judgments spoken of so long ago for our edification and profit are causing many a heart to faint and give up in despair. The world with all its science and learning observes not the nature of the marvelous work spoken by the prophets in all ages of the world's history, that should be ushered in during the dispensation of the fullness of times. But those who are keeping pace with the onward march of Zion's cause behold with admiration the signs which betoken that great event when "all the tribes of the earth shall mourn," and the children of Zion in anthems of praise shall sing, "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord! hosannah in the highest!" "Now is the accepted time" when we should clean up our lamps; replenish them with oil, for the night will soon come when it will be too late for such work, and if we are without oil then the result will be, "Left in the dark." God has designed that we should work and that together if we ever accomplish anything. So let us go to work with our might trusting in him who has said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee," and "seek to build up the kingdom of God and establish his righteousness," that many may see our good works and be led to glorify the name of the Most High.

We have been expecting aid from the Bishop in America, but as no word has been received as yet, let each move out in his respective calling so far as possible, and seek with a humble spirit to preach the word as it is in Jesus. The brethren and sisters will please remember that Bro. John Wright of Tuncurry, New South Wales, and James D. Craig of Moolap, Victoria, are the Bishop's agents, and will be pleased to hear from you at an early date. Bring in your tithes and offerings and the Lord will surely remember his promise. Brethren Wells and Kaler will continue their labors in New South Wales as wisdom and choice may direct until circumstances permit a change or other arrangements are made. I will try and visit the New South Wales district this year if possible, but if I do not, please be patient for you have good, faithful brethren there who will look after your needs and wants. I bid you all God speed in the good work, praying that we may have a prosperous year in gathering in many sheaves. Yours in bonds,

C. A. BUTTERWORTH.

SOMERVILLE, Victoria, Australia, July 1.

To Birmingham District, England; Dear Saints:—I am very thankful the Spirit of the Lord is still striving with me and encouraging me to press onward in the service and cause of truth and humanity. In the opening of another conference year I greet you in the spirit of love and brotherhood and charge you in the name of the common cause—the gospel of Jesus Christ our Master—to assist me in prosecuting the work in the district with renewed vigor. I feel it an honor to be associated with you in this work.

No doubt you will have seen in the appointment made by the Presidency and the Twelve, and confirmed by General Conference, that I am appointed to labor in the Birmingham district as circumstances permit. I am informed that the rules of the church do not permit such appointments to be sustained out of funds coming into the hands of the Bishop or his agents, therefore such labor must be sustained by funds raised in the district for that special purpose.

We are de ious to open up new fields; to help weak branches, and to scatter the printed word. To accomplish these things we want money. Can't do without it. Now, brethren and sisters, can't we rise to the occasion? Duty lies before us. There are among us elders and priests anxiously waiting to break the ice in new places. The cause is worth more than our best efforts. It is true the times are hard, but we must remember every little helps.

My heart is set to do the will of God and to discharge my duties to you faithfully and without fear. I thank you for past help and confidence and rely upon your continued trust—and prayers. May the Lord of heaven and earth bless you one and all, and crown our united labors.

Your colaborer in gospel bonds,
C. H. CATON, Pres.

TWO-DAY MEETINGS.

There will be a series of two-day meetings held in the Southern district of Nebraska, places and dates as follows:—

At Union branch, three miles northeast of the town of Union, Cass county, at the Ervin schoolhouse, August 19 and 20, 1894.

At Brownville, Nemaha county, August 26 and 27.

At schoolhouse near Bro. George Kinghorn's, three miles southwest of Auburn, Nemaha county, September 2 and 3.

At Nebraska City, September 9 and 10.

At the Palmyra branch, Otoe county, three miles south of Bennett, September 16 and 17.

At Lincoln, September 23 and 24. We expect to hold forth in the old Christian church, north side from courthouse.

Near Agnew, at schoolhouse near to Bro. F. L. Tucker's, September 30 and October 1, Lancaster county.

At the Hooker schoolhouse, four miles south of Adams, Gage county.

Speakers for these meetings will be supplied from the force of local elders in the district. We extend a cordial invitation to all, and hope that the meetings may result in much good.

By order of conference,
J. W. WALDSMITH, Dist. Pres.

TENT NOTICE.

Tents for general church reunion at Logan, Iowa, September 8 to 17 will be furnished on application. Orders must be received by us not later than September 1. State size; 10 x 12 will cost between $1.75 and $2; 12 x 14 from $2 to $2.25, as we do not know exactly what freights will be. Do not forget dates. Joseph Smith, A. H. Smith, W. W. Blair, Joseph Luff, T. W. Williams, C. Scott, H. A. Stebbins, J. S. Roth, and others, are expected. While times are not as pleasant as we would wish, still if all who can will come, studying economy, don't come for show, but for spirituality and true worship, and God will bless us.

Address,
A. M. FYRANDO, Magnolia, Iowa,
JOSEPH SEDDON, Persia, Iowa.

NOTICES.

There will be a first-class boarding house on the grounds at the Maysville reunion under the management of Bro. Wm. Lewis of St. Joseph. Meals 25 cents, or 6 meals for $1. Tents on the ground at a nominal price, bedded with clean straw. A grand time is expected and all will be welcomed.

T. W. CHATBURN.

ALPHA, Missouri, Aug. 7.

GROVE MEETING.

A grove meeting will be held ten miles northwest of the city of Des Moines, on the farm of Charles Harding, beginning on Friday evening, August 17, 1894, at eight p. m., and continue, at usual hours for services, over Saturday and Sunday the 18th and 19th. All invited. Elder W. C. Nirk, president of the district, and other ministers will be there to dispense the gospel. By order,

C. SCOTT.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Nevada district conference will be held in Mottsville schoolhouse, September 15 and 16. A full attendance is requested. Scattered members please report themselves to the presidents of the branches they are members of. Traveling ministry, if in the vicinity, please give us a visit.

T. R. HAWKINS, Pres.

ADDRESSES.

F. G. Pitt, 827 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.
W. B. Dotson, Hearne, Robertson county, Texas.

BORN.

CORNETT.—To T. H. and Mary Cornett, at Edgerton Junction, Missouri, July 1, 1894, a son; blessed in the new church at the same place (the first child blessed there) on Sunday, August 5, 1894, and named Milbert, by J. M. Terry and T. J. Mauzey. Of such is the kingdom.

MARRIED.

DANCER—MCLEAN.—At the residence of Bro. and Sr. David Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa, August 8, 1894, Bro. Walter H. Dancer and Sr. Anna McLean, both of Lamoni, Iowa, Elder A. S. Cochran officiating.

DIED.

WARD.—In Champion township, Trumbull county, Ohio, July 23, 1894, Bro. Albert Ward; aged 47 years, 3 months, and 19 days. He was baptized in Champion township, October 30, 1889, by Elder L. W. Powell, and was shortly after ordained a deacon. He was zealous for the truth and his delight was to study the word and talk of the gospel with his associates. He will be greatly missed in the church and family circle. A faithful wife, two daughters, and one son mourn their great loss. The Methodist church was crowded with sympathetic friends. Elder M. H. Bond delivered the sermon from the words of Job, "If a man die shall he live again?" and held the attention of the audience throughout while forcefully expounding the gospel as pertaining to the resurrection and the brother's hope.

MCCULLOUGH.—Robert Edward, infant son of Mr. John and Sr. Bessie McCullough, was born November 1, 1893, near Wirt, Indiana, and died July 19, 1894. Services at residence, July 20, by Elder J. R. Chappelow.

TABLER.—Henderson Huffman Tabler was born January 6, 1855, in Kosciusko county, Indiana; came to Iowa in 1869. He was a member of the Baptist Church for some years. Then he united with the United Brethren and studied for the ministry in that church. He came in contact with the Latter Day Saints and after a careful examination of their faith united with them and continued unwavering unto the end. He was kicked by a horse on the afternoon of July 25, from which he died on the 26th at noon. Buried on the 27th at Ottawa, Clark county, Iowa. Elder E. B. Morgan preached the funeral sermon, assisted by Bro. Thomas Hopkins.

BAKER.—Near Bald Knob, Arkansas, July 25, 1894, Lulah Mildred, daughter of Mr. James and Sr. Mollie Baker, aged 5 years and 10 months. Funeral services at Shady Grove church, July 26, 1894, by Elder Heman C. Smith, assisted by Elder M. M. Turpen.

BURCH.—At Thurber, Texas, August 7, 1894, Lillia May, daughter of Albert and Jessie Burch. Deceased was born March 27, 1893, at Gallup, New Mexico; blessed August 6, 1894, by Elder D. F. Richards. Funeral services conducted by Elder D. F. Richards. Lillia May has gone to rest to the paradise of God, to come forth again in the first resurrection.

There are forty-five Socialist organizations in England, and the cause is on the increase.

NOTHING TO DO.

Nothing to do but work;
Nothing to eat but food;
Nothing to wear but clothes
To keep one from being nude.

Nothing to breathe but air—
Quick as a flash 'tis gone—
Nowhere to fall but off,
Nowhere to stand but on.

Nothing to comb but hair,
Nowhere to sleep but bed,
Nothing to weep but tears;
No one to bury but dead.

Nothing to sing but songs;
Ah, well, alas! and alack!—
Nowhere to go but out;
Nowhere to come but back.

Nothing to see but sights;
Nothing to quench but thirst;
Nothing to have but what we've got
Thus through our lives we're cursed.

Nothing to strike but a gait—
Everything moves that goes.
Nothing at all but common sense
Can ever withstand these woes.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

PERU, Ind., Aug. 4.—A heavy frost prevailed throughout this part of the State last night, the earliest for forty years. Much damage was done to corn and fruit.

CLINTON, Io., Aug. 4.—Farmers living near Elk River Junction, eight miles north of here, report a white frost this morning on the low lands along Elk River. Tender vegetation was cut to the ground.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 4.—Grasshoppers are said to be destroying the crops in the eastern part of this (Shelby) county and in the adjoining county of Tipton. They made their appearance only a few days ago. Great damage is already reported.

MITCHELL, Ind., Aug. 3.—In this and adjoining counties crops are in a deplorable condition, there having been no rain of any consequence for eight weeks. Unless rain comes in the next week the corn crop will be an entire failure. The fruit crop is a failure. This, with the closing of our stone quarries and other business failures, will leave thousands of people in this section of the State in very destitute circumstances. Many laborers have gone through the summer thus far without work.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 6.—The President has signed the following bills: To extend the time during which the life saving service shall be open. For a fog signal at Kewaunee, Wisconsin. For the sale of the old Louisville customhouse and lot. For a steel bridge over the St. Louis River, between Minnesota and Wisconsin. For the relief of persons filing declarations for desert lands. Granting the Arkansas, Texas, and Mexican Central railroad right of way through Indian Territory. To authorize a compromise and settlement with Arkansas. To extend to life saving crews the benefits of the marine hospitals. For a bridge over the South Canadian River at Lexington, Oklahoma.

Mexico is starting to establish a merchant marine by offering shipbuilders bounties and other privileges and the creation of a Department of Marine. An official decree published June 12 permits foreigners to acquire Mexican vessels without restrictions upon them or on the composition of its crews and prescribes the relations of the various bounties to be paid.

Southern Europe is preparing for a series of national bankruptcies next fall. Greece has broken off negotiations for refunding its debt and will begin repudiating before long.

as Portugal has done. All the Italian schemes for retrenchment have broken down, expenditure is at its old level, and exchange is rising in a way which prefigures a currency collapse, while the Bank of Rome is expected to pass its dividend. Industry is interrupted, arbitrary arrests have filled the jails, and the anti-Anarchist laws are believed to be intended to deal with revolution. Spain is as badly off and exchange has risen to a point which means an irredeemable paper currency, to which, in spite of its depreciation, the government steadily adds. Repudiation seems near and inevitable for all of them—Greece, Italy, and Spain.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 6.—Fifty thousand acres of land have been purchased in the State of Kansas by the Slavok Colonization company of this city and a delegation will leave to-night to make a final inspection of the land. Secretary Pucher, in outlining the project, said the prevailing distress in the coke region, mining sections, and manufacturing districts had induced a large number of his countrymen to return to the old country, but many who had money decided to invest in farming land in the West. It is the intention to erect a large structure to accommodate all until homes can be built.

GRANTSBURG, Wis., Aug 7.—It has just been learned that the frost a few nights ago has entirely ruined the cranberry crop on the large marshes north of here. The crop was a promising one and the loss is heavy. Never in the history of cranberry raising has such an early frost affected them.

The price of corn in Russia has shrunk so low, in consequence of the splendid prospect of the harvest, that many farmers are sending their cattle into the fields, as the cost of harvesting would exceed the price of the corn. In the Caucasus barley and wheat are cut green and given to the cattle. Forty-five pounds of corn are worth a cent and a half.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 7.—King Christian has accepted the resignation of Premier Jacob Broennum Scavenius Estrup, who retires on account of old age, and has appointed Baron Reedtz-Thott Minister of Foreign Affairs, to be President of the Council of Ministers, in place of Estrup, who was also Minister of Finance.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 7.—Two deaths from cholera were reported to-day; no new cases. At Dordrecht there was also one death from cholera; no fresh cases reported.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The steamship Balmoral arrived at Gravesend to-day from St. Petersburg and reported that one of its seamen died yesterday from cholera.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 7.—From July 29 to August 4, 313 new cases of cholera and 240 deaths were reported here. In Warsaw City from July 22 to July 28 159 new cases of cholera and 83 deaths were reported. In the Province of Warsaw during the same period there were 394 cases of cholera reported and there were 213 deaths from the disease.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The evicted tenants bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons this evening by a vote of 199 to 167.

LYONS, Aug. 7.—Cesario Santo Geronimo, the assassin of President Carnot, has persisted in his refusal to make an appeal to the Court of Cassation, and the time of appeal having elapsed, the papers were sent to Paris to-day for the signature of President Casimir-Perier, fixing his execution for ten days hence.

COAL CITY, Ill., Aug. 7.—Carbon Hill, a mining village, the seat of the Star Coal company's operations, was at the mercy of an Italian mob of several hundred dissatisfied miners to-day. On three occasions the Sheriff's deputies were summoned to No. 2 shaft and the miners at work were each time hurriedly hoisted to the top to stay the tide of onward marching Italians.

The armed deputies and miners took positions in the tower, but on each occasion the howling mob desisted approaching within gunshot. Later in the day the strikers held a noisy meeting in the principal street of the village and voted to wreak destruction of life and property early to-morrow should the miners persist in going to work. Fifty stands of arms have been telegraphed for.

'Bradstreet's' has made an estimate of the losses growing out of the late strike. It is as follows:—

United States Government.....	$ 1,000,000
Loss in earnings of railroads, Chicago.....	3,000,000
Loss earnings, other railroads..	2,500,000
Loss, destruction railway prop- erty.....	2,500,000
Loss, railway employees' wages.	20,000,000
Loss in exports.....	2,000,000
Loss on fruit crops.....	2,500,000
Loss to manufacturing com- panies.....	7,500,000
Loss to employees.....	35,000,000
Loss to merchants on quick goods.....	5,000,000
Total.....	$81,000,000

Two laborers were beaten almost to death, and robbed, at Brazil, Indiana, August 4. Strikers are charged with the deed. Bridge No. 3 on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois road, near Brazil, was burned on the night of the night of the 6th inst., supposedly by strikers or their sympathizers.

Miners have returned to work at Ottawa and Danville, Illinois.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Aug. 7.—President Peixoto is adopting every means to maintain himself in the Presidency. It is believed that he will even try to arrest President-elect Moraes and that he expects the military to back him. Peixoto openly defies Congress. He refuses to promulgate laws and decrees passed by the body, although by law he is compelled to do so within forty-eight hours after their passage. Congress probably will undertake to impeach him. The impending struggle is considered as between the people and the army.

ROME, Aug. 6.—Six anarchists were arrested while holding a secret conference here last evening. It is estimated that 2,000 Anarchists who were arrested in the raids of the last two months will be deported. A group of fifty has been already sent to Naples to embark for Massowah in the Red Sea.

TIENTSIN, China, Aug. 6.—Jules Deutril de Rhines, the eminent French explorer, has been murdered at Thibet and his body thrown into the river. The French envoy to China has addressed a protest to the government demanding the recovery and return of the unfortunate man's body and papers. The envoy also demands that the Chinese Government make an apology for the occurrence and provide a proper compensation for the family of the murdered man.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 6.—The Armour Packing company of Kansas City may prove an important factor in the war between China and Japan if pending negotiations are carried to a successful end. Recently it received a cablegram from Yokohama, Japan, from the Mikado's government, asking for its price on 500,000 pounds of canned corned beef for the Japanese army. The company cabled its answer, and, pending a reply, is preparing to go into the business of supplying meat to battling Asiatics on a big scale. The company has opened negotiations with the Chinese Legation at Washington.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 7.—The Northern Pacific coal miners at Roslyn have called the strike off because of the determination of the company to import negro miners from Northern Missouri, Indiana, Ohio, and Tennessee. The strike was ordered three months ago because of a 20 per cent cut in wages.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 4.—Jeffries' commonwealers, numbering 200, arrived here last evening and at once scattered through the town, demanding food. When a Baltimore and Ohio freight train pulled out for the east the whole crowd made a rush to capture transportation, but when a mile out in the yard the train was stopped and the swarm of boarders driven off.

ATLANTIC, N. J., Aug. 7.—Thirty members of Carl Browne's army of Coxeyites stole the West Jersey freight train at May's Landing to-day and threatened the train crew with violence if they were molested. At McKee City the trainmen attempted to oust the hobos and were roughly handled and driven off. When the train stopped at Pleasantville, seven miles from this city, all but three of the men left the cars.

South Omaha meat packers have resumed work with sufficient force to kill all the cattle and hogs they have demand for. About 100 new men wanting work were turned away. Armed strikers continued to attempt to intimidate the workmen.

It is estimated that 20,000 men are out of work in the stock yards district of Chicago. Much distress prevails and lawlessness is feared.

An attempt was made to rob a Lake Shore express train at Kessler, Indiana, August 6.

Strikers are flocking back to work at Pullman, Illinois. All troops have been withdrawn.

General Coxey opened his Congressional campaign at Alliance, Ohio, August 6, addressing 1,500 farmers and laboring men. He addressed 4,000 people in the public square in the evening.

The United States Senate has adopted the measure providing for the deportation of lawless Anarchists.

The National Labor Commission will begin its inquiries at Chicago, August 15.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 8.—The greatest excitement prevails here, at Tokio, and at other large towns as a result of the victories of the Japanese troops at Seikwan, the Japanese synonym for Chonhon, where the Chinese lost 500 killed and fled in the direction of Kospin, the Japanese synonym for Kong Chow. The Japanese are also in possession of Yashun. Rumors, however, are current here that the Japanese naval forces have been defeated in an engagement with Chinese warships. An imperial ordinance permits Chinese to reside in Japan on condition that they engage in peaceful pursuits.

HONGKONG, August 8.—The Viceroy of Kwang Htung has enlisted 5,000 black flags with which to strengthen the garrisons of the Canton River forts. In addition the Viceroy has stationed four gunboats at Tiger Island in the Canton River and has laid mines at Foo Chow and Tamsui. The Viceroy of Kwang Htung has closed the lighthouse on the southern coast.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 8.—It is officially reported from Tien Tsin that the efforts of Great Britain and Russia to bring about a peaceful settlement of the disputes between China and Japan have failed. China is willing to pay an indemnity, but refuses to surrender suzerainty over Corea. The Chinese Government has closed the Amping and Takao lighthouses on the Island of Formosa.

PALERMO, Sicily, Aug. 8.—Earthquakes here were felt at six a. m. at Aci Reale and at Zaffarano. At the latter place six people were killed and several injured. Shocks were also felt at Catania and elsewhere near Mount Aetna. Nearly all the houses at Zaffarano were left in ruins by the earthquakes. The shocks were also severe at Aci Sant Antonio, seven miles west of Aci Reale, and scarcely a house in the town was left standing. Four persons were killed and ten injured. The disaster would have been much more serious had not the people been at work in the fields at the time.

LA SALLE, Ill., Aug. 8.—One man was killed here to-day and two others injured as the outcome of an attempt to arrest the father of the man killed, who is a Polish miner, an anarchist, and a dangerous desperado. Trouble of a more serious nature is feared.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 4.—A strong denial is entered at the State Department of a published story that the United States has or will enter into a treaty with European powers to occupy forcibly and keep open the treaty ports in China. It is also denied that any overtures to that end have been received from other countries. When the conditions were such that war was only threatened the United States did use its good offices to avert the evil. It did so to carry out a solemn obligation imposed upon the United States by the treaty with Corea, whereby it bound itself to protect Corea.

This obligation was entered into in 1882, and it was under its terms the President indicated to Japan that he would be pained should it inflict an unjust war upon Corea. That was as far as the United States could go, and besides the shifting of the war cloud from Corea to China relieved the United States from the necessity of further action. It is said at the State Department the attitude of the United States toward the belligerents in the present war will be patterned upon its course at Rio, siding with neither China nor Japan, but the attitude of the United States will be one of "benevolent neutrality." This is in keeping with American traditions.

August 8.—The Japan Government has entered a strong protest against the delivery of 10,000,000 bullets to China by an American firm. The paper cites numerous precedents of this government and is an able document.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—The official advice from London that Great Britain is co-operating with the United States in Bluefields was confirmed fully at the State Department to-day. In fact, the two nations have been working harmoniously, hoping for some kind of stable and sufficient government over the reservation. The object of Gen. Barrio's mission to England is to insure an amendment to the treaty of Managua, by virtue of which the British protectorate exists, so as to recognize the right of Nicaragua to assert its supremacy over the Mosquito reservation, while saving the Mosquitos the right of administration of their local affairs under property regulations.

Advices from the Mosquito coast report that the Indians were forced to withdraw only after a severe struggle.

ROME, Aug. 8.—The commander of the Italian forces at Massowah, Egypt, is erecting a prison capable of accommodating 2,000 convicts. To this prison anarchists who are proved to be dangerous to society will be sent by the home government.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Four patients from the steamship Balmoral, which arrived at Gravesend yesterday from St. Petersburg, are found to be suffering from Asiatic cholera. The Balmoral upon arrival reported that one of its seamen died the day previous of cholera.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 8.—There were three deaths from cholera at Maestrecht to-day. No new cases were reported. At Haarlem there were two deaths, and at Oudvroenhoven two new cases.

VIENNA, Aug. 8.—Cholera has appeared in seventeen districts of Galicia and Bukowina. At Zaleszczyky, Galicia, to-day there were sixteen new cases and nine deaths, and at Herodenka, Galicia, fourteen new cases and eight deaths.

The mother of Santo the murderer of President Carnot has appealed to Mme. Carnot to intercede for the life of the assassin.

TROMSOE, Norway, Aug. 8.—Captain Bottefsen, who brought the news of the loss of the Wellman polar expedition steamer, has brought particulars of the loss of the vessel and the subsequent movements of the party. Wellman resumed his journey northward

May 31, but a portion of the party left him June 17, six miles east of Cape Platen because of scarcity of provisions. Wellman was on his way to Ribs Island. All his party were well.

Eleven hundred men were at work at Pullman, Illinois, August 8, more than were on the pay roll last November. It is probable that the number will soon be increased to 1,400.

The Wabash railway company in the stockyards has discharged a number of new men to make places for a like number of old employees who struck. It is said the Lake Shore road contemplates the same action. Two of Armour's packing houses were in operation yesterday and 1,900 cattle were killed. The usual number of applicants appeared, but most of them were turned away. Receipts for the day were: Cattle, 15,000; hogs, 31,000; sheep, 19,000.

The number of emigrants exceeded the immigrants at the port of New York by 8,419 in the month of July.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 9.—Secretary Chrowtowski of the Polish National Catholic Church committee has received letters indicating that forty churches will be represented at the convention to be held in this city August 20. The election of a Bishop will be one of the chief objects of the convention and it is almost certain that the Rev. Father Kolaszewski, who started the independent Catholic Church movement in this city, will be honored with the office. Archbishop Vilatte of Milwaukee will be present to dedicate the Church of the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 9.—The most serious riot which has occurred on account of the smallpox scare in this city took place to-night. The police were attacked by a mob of between 4,000 and 5,000 people, who assaulted the officers with stones. About twenty-five people were injured, some of them seriously.

STOUC CITY, Io., Aug. 9.—It was discovered here to-day that a firm has been using the Strange Brothers' slaughter house to slaughter cheap ranch horses, the flesh of which is made into dried beef. The product is all shipped to Jersey City. The proprietors say they will convert 1,100 horses into dried beef. They buy the horses on the ranges for less money than they would have to pay for cattle.

A mine at Scranton, Pennsylvania, caved in affecting property valued at $250,000. Twenty-eight houses were wrecked.

NAPLES, Aug. 9.—Thirteen persons were killed and twenty-nine wounded by the earthquake shocks at Aci Reale, Sicily, yesterday.

President Cleveland has recognized the new Hawaiian government.

Two thousand rioters attacked workmen at Cudahy's packing house, South Omaha, August 8. Threats have been made to burn the stock yards.

Winneconne, Wisconsin, a town of 1,500 inhabitants, has been destroyed by fire.

Miners at Ladd and Morris, Illinois, have resumed work.

Forty-eight members of the Order of Railway Conductors have brought suit against the order for $12,000 as strike pay, representing their loss in wages while quitting work to aid others to win in the strike.

Mexico's cereal crops are almost a failure.

Peruvian rebels are gaining in strength and will march on Lima.

The Scotch local government bill has passed its third reading in the British House of Commons.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 10.—Twenty-two new cases of cholera and fourteen deaths from that disease were reported here yesterday.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 10.—There were five new cases of cholera reported here yesterday.

There was also one death. At Meastricht there were three new cases, and at Barsingerhorn there was one death.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 10.—In addition to the eight Russian warships which sailed recently from Vladivostok under sealed orders for Corea the Commander-in-Chief of Eastern Siberia has been instructed to hold the troops in that district in readiness to march at any moment. Russia wishes to maintain strict neutrality, but as soon as a constitutional change occurs in Corea it will resolutely protect its interests. France has declared its readiness to cooperate with the Russian fleet in the far east.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The correspondent of the Times at Shanghai telegraphs that 12,000 Japanese troops from Feusan and 3,000 from Yunson are marching toward Seoul, the capital of Corea.

The Tsung Li Yamen, the Supreme Council of the Empire, has guaranteed the safety of foreigners in the interior of China.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—In the geographical section of the British Association yesterday Henry W. Fielden, who, with Nares, Lockwood, and Brainard, has made voyages to the Arctic regions, read a paper on "Current Polar Expeditions." He said that of the four expeditions now in the Arctic that of Nansen occupied the front rank. Nothing in Arctic history surpassed the boldness and audacity of his conception. If the Fram, Nansen's steamer, has been lost Mr. Fielden had confidence in the resource of the explorer and strongly believed that the expedition would return. Speaking of the Wellman expedition Mr. Fielden said he would offer a humble opinion that inexperienced men should not be encouraged by the great reading public to attempt polar expeditions. Peary was doing splendid work in North Greenland. All were waiting with intense interest the arrival of Peary at the end of September to learn whether it has been possible to connect the East Greenland coast line from Cape Bismarck with Independence Bay and whether the exploring of the frozen archipelago which apparently forms the apex of the Greenlands, will result in a splendid addition to the world's knowledge. Mr. Fielden expressed the opinion that the most feasible route to the pole was to follow Peary's footsteps via Spitzbergen. The subject was so fascinating that the pole was bound to be reached if it took generations of men.

GOLD IN OREGON.

Interesting accounts appear from time to time concerning the rich deposits of gold in Oregon, the southern section of that State having been described as the most prolific gold bearing region in the country. Jackson and Josephine counties alone produced nearly $1,000,000 of gold last year. During the last forty years the product of these two counties has amounted to $40,000,000. There are 20,000 acres of gold territory in the counties of Jackson and Josephine, every acre of which yields from $1,000 to $10,000 a year in gold, and the territory is abundantly supplied with water. Such a region in South Africa or in a remote district of Australia would attract throngs of gold hunters, but as it is within easy reach by rail it excites comparatively little attention.

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE,
WITH INTRODUCTION BY ELDER W. W. BLAIR.

A book in which is traced the intimate connection between the history of Protestantism and the founding of the Government of the United States with the event of the restored Gospel; interwoven with which is a tender story from a real life, telling of the efforts of one to find the Kingdom of God, its object being to trace God in modern history, and to show that his dealings with men are as clearly discernible now as in ancient times.

A book for Sunday school libraries and the home.

OBJECTIONS to the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants Answered and Refuted.

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Paper covers. 25
Cloth. 40

The author states and answers the leading criticisms made upon the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants that have been urged by opponents of the latter-day work since its inception.

In answering objections, other and general lines of defense are suggested.

The work is valuable, both as a specific vindication of the books named, and as a general defense of Christianity.

The chapters contain subheadings for ready reference. Indexed; 126 pages.

Paper covers, 32 pages. 10

ABSTRACT of EVIDENCE TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

This work is an abstract of the sworn testimony of both Plaintiff's and Defendants' witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickites (a faction from the Original Church) for title to and possession of the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri. The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, and who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, and the testimony of members of the Hedrickite organization, is given; also the statements of said witnesses under cross-examination and recross-examination.

Evidence from the three standard books, and from the publications of the Original Church, and the Reorganized Church, the Hedrickite faction, and from those of the Utah Church, is presented in support of the claims of the Reorganized Church to be the successor of the Original Church, showing it to be the authorized and identical continuation of said Original Church and entitled to its property, while all other factions have departed from the Original Church in organization, in teaching, and in practice.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, three pamphlets, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

A valuable volume of evidence for ministry and laity; useful in refuting the many misrepresentations of the early church and its ministry and membership.

A limited edition has been published. Price, bound in law sheep (Counsel's argument in separate binding), $3.00.
Bound in cloth $2.50.

HESPERIS

contains the poetical numbers of Bro. David H. Smith. His verse is touched throughout by the inspiration of the latter-day work. His numbers are rich in spiritual tone and pathos. The book is beautifully bound and its entire mechanical work is excellent.

The Complete Catalogue is replete with valuable publications suitable for all classes.

Juvenile books, Sunday school scholars' and teachers' supplies, and works of value to members and ministry will be found in its list.

A Book for Everybody!
But Especially for the Boys!

Autobiography of ELDER JOSEPH LUFF

The Struggles, Failures, and Successes in the Life of one who is now a Prominent Minister of the Church.

A Medley of Mischief, Mirth, Folly, Pride, Self-will, Honor, Devotion, and Sentiment, as found in the Character of a Boy whom God in due time selected as an ambassador for Himself, and

Who To-day Stands as a Monument of Divine Grace!

The Book contains a history of his conversion to and from Methodism, his acceptance of the restored gospel, a dissertation on the leading features of the doctrine that moved him to obedience, his call as a minister and experiences as such, together with a recital of some striking incidents, showing divine interference and blessing. The autobiography has been revised by Bro. Luff since its publication in Autumn Leaves, and a large amount of doctrinal matter has been added in appropriate places. TWO SERMONS, one on the "Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man," and one on "The Modern Stumbling-Stone," have been added also, making it just the kind of a book to have in the family.
Price, cloth bound, $1.25.

PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD; THE APOSTASY, REFORMATION, AND RESTORATION.

By Elder Wm. H. Kelley. New, Revised, and Enlarged Edition. It contains 421 pages of closely written matter, with autograph and likeness of the Author and is printed in good, readable type, with neat binding. The work is a library within itself; a marvel of trenchant criticism and logical deductions from historical facts; a key to the right understanding of the Bible and modern diverse systems of faith and worship. It discusses the issues of theology that are to the front to-day. It treats largely of Ministerial Authority as associated with the Melchisedek and Aaronic Priesthoods, and the Ideal Church of New Testament times is conspicuously set forth in striking contrast with the creeds and systems of church building since the days of the Apostles. Also the claims for the Restoration of the Gospel at a later day than the Apostolic age are critically examined in the light of prophecy and history, which is a subject of great moment to men of every faith. A historical resume or brief is also inserted of the rise and development of the "apostate church," and an exegesis of the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the revelation of the "sealed book." Also the origin of modern churches and creeds, etc.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form, that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

THE RUINS REVISITED AND THE WORLD-STORY RETOLD.

Is a book of 240 pages, written by Elder Samuel F. Walker. The purpose of the writer is to show that the main facts of scientific teaching concerning the origin, growth, and development of the Universe, of human tradition and history, and the revelation of Christianity have a common origin, and are evidences of one design in the creation, and in the history and growth of the ages. Theological conclusions are reached from scientific deductions, and by comparison with human tradition, archæology, and other sources of information the writer aims to present a scientific defense of Christianity. The later chapters of the work contain evidences from American aboriginal traditions that Jesus is the Christ and was known and worshiped by the ancient inhabitants of the Western Continent.

TOLSTOI'S RELIGION.

EVERYBODY believes that Tolstoi is fearfully in earnest, and also that he writes for a definite purpose. Because of these facts, his words on subjects of importance are of special moment. We do not remember to have seen a spicier bit of criticism of Tolstoi's religion than the following, by A. H. Tuttle, in The Methodist Review for July:—

"The fire of Tolstoi's genius does not burn low in his retirement. The principles of 'My Religion' . . . he is attesting with a pertinacity as sincere as it is heroic. It is a Titanic effort, which commands the respectful attention of those who reject his doctrine. . . .

"His cure for the prevalent artificial life is a return to simplicity, nonresistance, nature. And this he believes is the religion of Christ, as fully set forth in the Sermon on the Mount. But, in this particular, the great Russian is far astray. The Sermon on the Mount is not the substance of the new life which Jesus gives us in himself. It is the spiritual essence of ancient Judaism; and every precept it contains is latent somewhere in the law and the prophets. In that sermon there is nothing distinctively Christian. There is not a hint of regeneration, the Holy Spirit, the atonement, or Christ as the spring of the new life. The master in literature has not proved himself a master in the gospel. He is only in transitu. He is hardly that; for he mistakes the bridge from realism to life for the life itself.

"No one who is familiar with 'My Confession' need be at a loss for the real secret of Tolstoi's career. . . . How could he understand life who had so despicably abused it? His confession is too loathsome to transcribe, and yet he makes it with as little apparent compunction as he would describe his slipping on ice. To him, sin is an abyss of mistakes, with deplorable natural results. Its heinous guilt as against the holy God is barely suggested. For years and years, for purposes of gain and praise, he suppressed the deepest truths which his genius discerned.

"After fifty years of self-gratification, when the animal man is surfeited and the evil days come which Solomon so graphically describes, and which the Russian's history so powerfully illustrates, he thinks to tell the moral world where to find rest. We ask, Who is he—a hoary libertine and confessed self-worshiper, who, while fully aware of his crime, drove the spikes into the hands and feet of Truth, and turned from his husks only when he starved—who, we ask, is this gray sinner that he should declare to the world the truth of life? . . . We cannot, at this moment, recall many great champions of truth who came up out of a long career of wickedness. There have been a few, like Bunyan, John Newton, and Jerry McAuley, who became aggressive servants of the gospel. But the heralds of a new truth have, in the main, come out of a pure life—Abraham, Moses, Samuel, Isaiah, John the Baptist, all the Apostles, Timothy, most of the Fathers, Luther and his compeers, Wesley, Moody. God chooses clean men to whom he intrusts his oracles. As we approach Tolstoi's religious system we plainly see that his towering pride, though all unconscious of itself, is trying, out of its own genius, to evolve an idea peculiar to himself—untaught by all the great teachers in history. He is going to be lone, peculiar, original, the prophet of a new religion in the world. Is not this last effort only a continuation in different form of his own confessed self-worship? Not content with the crowns he already wears, he would with his own hands place on his head that of the Lord's anointed.

"Tolstoi's religion is defective in many respects. He mistakes for the core of the gospel a single set of truths which Jesus taught. Not his teachings, but Jesus himself, is the great truth. Unlike other teachers, Christ would bring men to his own person. The philosophers said, 'Believe what I say;' Jesus said, 'Believe in me.' The arms of a mother will comfort a weary child far more than all the true things she might say; so that child of life, who is weary, in sufferings and mysteries, gets genuine rest in the consciousness that underneath are the everlasting arms of love. That personal contact with the heart of the living Christ we cannot find a 11 in Tolstoi's 'My Religion.'

"Still another fatal defect is his effort to make the heart right by mending the life. The true gospel is just the reverse. 'Be good,' says world-wisdom, 'and so become a child of God.' 'Become a child of God,' says Divine wisdom, 'and so be good.' Tolstoi's principle in this particular is that of the world.

"Then, too, his plan has been literally tried, faithfully and long. The history of hermitage and monastery is before us. The literal abandonment of the world by men seeking the divine life has resulted too often in the ruin of manhood to justify a repetition of the experiment in modified form. We suspect that this is the effect, in a measure at least, on the author of the 'Kreutzer Sonata,' which emits the foul odor of decaying morals. While he, with colossal will, is seeking rest in 'the immeasurable silences,' and filling the world with what seems to us the wail of despair, there are thousands upon thousands who are bearing a real martyrdom in the joy of a blessed faith; for they have heard the words, 'Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.'—Literary Digest.

LAND IN GREAT BRITAIN.

So far as the matter of land is concerned, the great majority of Englishmen are tenants, and "John Bull" pays a trifle more than $300,000,000 a year for farm rent alone. This fact becomes the more clear, and one may add the more lugubrious, when it is said that there are 72,000,000 acres of land in the United Kingdom and that 50,000,000 of those acres are owned by 15,000 persons, and 30,000,000 are owned by only 1,000 persons; in a word, 38,485,000 inhabitants of Great Britain have 22,000,000 acres and the other 15,000 have 50,000,000 acres; or, more concisely still, 1,000 Englishmen own five-twelfths of all the land in Great Britain.—Forum.

BARBARIC CUSTOMS ABOLISHED.

The men in the German universities are actually dropping some of the barbaric customs which they have practiced since the days of Sir Tannhäuser and his faithful Eckhardt. The clubs of the Leipzig University have decided to abandon the ancient custom of morning beer drinking bouts, on the ground that it interferes with work. This is certainly a most wise resolve. A beer bout at night is somewhat muddling if one has capacious competition; in the morning it must leave one's brains feeling like a mixture of damp sawdust and cold cigar ashes.

On the plateaus of our Southwestern border States the most furious whirlwinds often fail to raise the sand more than a few feet above the level of the plain till suddenly, perhaps an hour after the crisis of the storm, great columns rise to a height of one hundred yards, and swaying from side to side waltz about like tipsy giants.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit of Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Conscious State? The views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death; his preëxistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH, OR WEEKLY REST DAY.

By Elder Columbus Scott. This is a work of 147 pages, divided into fifteen chapters, in which the "Sabbath" under the Mosaic Law, and "The Lord's Day," "First Day of the Week" or "Christian Sabbath" under the Gospel Dispensation are fully treated from Scriptural and historical standpoints. The work is concise and able, and clearly refutes the arguments of the Seventh-day Sabbatarians, establishing the first day of the week as "The Lord's Day." An added supplemental chapter by Elder W. W. Blair is included.

SIMILARITY OF BELIEF.

It is probably improper for us to say that we have nothing in common with the Utah Mormon Church; for there are several things commonly believed and taught by both churches that are alike in general terms.

Both parties believe that the church originated by reason of the command of God, given by angelic message to Joseph Smith; the origin and facts connected with the finding the plates, the translation of the Book of Mormon, its publication; and in the main what is taught in it of the history of the people of this continent and the doctrines of Jesus Christ as declared by himself in person and by revelation to others.

The principal doctrines connected with the mission of Jesus Christ, as shown in the New Testament and the prophecies and history of the Bible, are all held more or less alike, allowing for the usual differences arising out of human liberty of and divergence in understanding and thought upon what is written.

The second coming of Jesus Christ to found and continue a kingdom on the earth; Zion on this and Jerusalem on the eastern continent, and the reign of the righteous with him, both sections believe, differing in regard to locality, and possibly as to the personnel of those to be honored in such reign.

The cardinal principles of the gospel plan of redemption are held alike by both parties; faith, repentance, baptism, laying on of hands, resurrection (the rising of the body from the grave), and eternal judgment. There is, perhaps, a striking difference of belief in regard to details, appertaining to both the resurrection and the judgment, but the principles as a whole remain the belief of both, so far as we are able to gather. It has been reported that the Utah people did believe that the resurrection was to be brought about by virtue of the power of the priesthood, men holding the requisite priesthood having the power to raise those who had been so sealed, or joined to them by adoption and sealing, as to be a part of their kingdom; those of his so-called family who had in this life displeased him might be left by a man to the thousand years' sleep to come forth at the general rising, although losing thereby place in the celestial world and the glory attendant upon the priestly kingdom which the man was to be allowed to build up. Whether this is now believed in Utah we do not know; but there are members still living who heard it taught in connection with plural marriage, and marriage for eternity. This sort of teaching has, as a matter of course, several ramifications, necessary to round out the idea and give it attractiveness, all based upon the powers supposed to attach to the priesthood, or a certain grade of it.

It has also been reported that Presidents Young, Grant, and some others of the principal men at the head of the Utah Church taught that Adam was the God of this world, or the earth system; and that it was accepted as correct dogma by the church in Utah; and it is certain that such teaching is found in the published speeches and sermons of the period when it is reported to have been taught and believed, and there are numbers in the Reorganized Church who heard the men teach it.

The Reorganized Church neither believes, nor teaches such doctrine, nor do we find any trace of it in any of the sermons, or writings of the elders from 1830 to 1844.

Whether the present President of the Utah Church, Wilford Woodruff and his counselors, G. Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith, acquiesced in and believed the dogma that Adam was and is the God of this world, "the only god with whom the men of this earth have to deal," we do not know; it is certain, however, that many of the men of that church now disbelieve in and repudiate the sentiment, "no matter if President Brigham Young did teach it." But, as we have not yet seen an official denial of the dogma by these men, we can only conjecture as to their attitude toward it.

"We believe in God the Father, and in Jesus Christ his Son," is the language of the epitome of faith of each denomination; and there is nothing in either confession of faith to the contrary of this.

The late teaching in Utah of Presidents Woodruff and Cannon, in regard to the "adoption" practiced by the church in Utah, to the effect that they had been pursuing a wrong practice, or, as they stated it, "we have been practicing it wrong," must very materially affect the questions of belief in regard to the conditions obtaining in the world to come; for, if for the period embraced between the years 1844 and 1894, there prevailed a misconception, and in consequence a wrong practice of a dogma on which so much stress was laid, as upon the law of adoption into families "for eternity," by sealing or otherwise; those who sought to avail themselves of the benefits supposed to accrue from such practice of adoption received nothing, their works being of no value; hence all their work was lost. Under the changed order, whatever it may be, they reap no benefit from the provisions of a misjudged and broken law. What will those now living do in view of such a condition of affairs? Will they submit to the application of a new conception, of which they can have no better assurance of its validity than of the one declared to be ineffective? Will they repay the fees, repeat the vows, and suffer the penalties anew, and fawn on the hands that have smitten them? These are questions that some may be curious and bold enough to want answered before they go further. Will they be answered?

The Reorganized Church not finding the law of adoption by priesthood sealing in secret endowment and ceremony, on the statute books of the church as left by the martyrs, have had no crooked or mistaken steps to retrace in these regards, and thus their faith receives no shock in an authoritative statement of a wrong practice prevailing. And in this there is a wide difference between the Utah Church and the Reorganized Church.

Upon the question of a state rule by church authorities, or the concentrated rule of church and state there appears to be a difference. The Utah Church by declaration of some of its leading men, has disclaimed that there has been, or is now, any political domination by the priesthood in their administration. The events of the past forty years and more make this disclaimer very difficult of belief, both to the average outsider, and to those who, like a large portion of the members of the Reorganized Church, have a strong interest in every phase of Mormonism, so-called, and the people composing the various factions into which the original church seems to have been split.

The Territory of Utah may soon take upon it the functions of a State; its people assume the duties, responsibilities, and privileges attaching to citizens in a sovereign State of the Union of States. Some are of the opinion that there has been little change in the claim and temper of the church likely to be dominant in the new State. The Cynosure, a sort of religio-politico journal, has the following on the subject, which presumably reflects the tone of popular opinion outside of Utah on the points presented:—

The smoke and smudge of the tariff battle has almost concealed from public view questions of gravest importance which Congress is meanwhile settling. Both houses voted to receive Utah into the Union last week, and the President's signature will not be withheld.

This act, as every one knows, has been long delayed because the good sense of the American people objected. Politicians, urged on by a strong Mormon lobby, well stocked with funds from the tithing house of the Church of Latter Day Saints, would long since have given statehood to Utah. But patriotic men could not endure that a State, managed by a religious body which was in turn controlled by fanaticism, should ever take its place in the American sisterhood. It is yet an open question whether the Gentile element in Utah may not be driven out under the license of State sovereignty.

We have seen great changes in twenty years in Utah, and the progress of that people toward true civil liberty may continue unchecked. The act of Congress the other day, adopting the land-grant forfeiture bill, returned to the public domain, it is said, some 54,000,000 acres; and 3,000,000 of them are in Utah. But there will be no rush to the valleys of the Wasatch as there was to Oklahoma and the Cherokee strip. Farming in Utah means irrigation, and Brigham Young took care years ago that all the water supply should be in control of "the church."

That the leaders of Mormonism are not changed in their conviction respecting their mission, there is proof enough. The Deseret News of the other day published a sermon from Elder B. H. Roberts in the Tabernacle on the "Relation of Mormonism to Christianity." The speaker, describing the apostacy of the middle ages, claimed in his ignorance that Christianity was then utterly obliterated, and Mormonism was given a few decades ago to the conjurer Joe Smith as the new revelation of God to men. These are his words:—

"The beautiful religion founded by Jesus Christ was replaced by the splendid forms of worship that were inaugurated to meet the demands of a pagan multitude of converts, until you could no longer recognize the simple gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. The darkness which brooded over the world, the ignorance and superstition that abounded in the 'Dark Ages,' proclaimed beyond all successful contradiction that the light of the gospel had been withdrawn from the earth because of the corruptions of the people. That is the message which Mormonism bears to the world. It proclaims a universal apostacy from the true Christian religion. And to the various divisions of Protestant Christendom, Mormonism has this to say: that divine authority and the gospel of Christ once having been taken from the earth, there is but one way by which that divine authority and the gospel of Christ can be restored, viz.: by reopening the heavens, and committing a new dispensation of the gospel and the priesthood to men. That is what Mormonism claims to be, a new dispensation of the gospel of Christ."

It is manifest that a political system managed by a sect holding to such doctrine might not long be safe to unbelievers, when a new revelation respecting their disposition might be forthcoming at the first convenient season.

Joseph Cook, in his latest published Monday lecture, urges that Utah should not be admitted for five years or more, until Mormon authority should be under positive control, until there be stronger guarantees against polygamy, and until the schools and colleges already successfully planted by Protestant sects shall have more positively affected the mind and heart of Mormon youth.

In any event it is unlikely that we have yet dismissed the Mormon question to the grave of settled and forgotten problems.

We do not agree with the Cynosure in the stricture impliedly passed upon the Mormon settlers in the fastnesses of the mountains for securing the water rights of the domain to themselves. They were first in the field; water was a necessity; they had been driven from the places where they had made homes for strangely inadequate causes; they had the right of discovery, the right of citizenship, and the right of necessity in their favor; and it is a fact that under the Mormon administration few really had cause to complain of the manner in which the water masters discharged the functions of their office.

Neither do we agree with Rev. Joseph Cook in his idea that Protestantism must be given more time to get into control of affairs; for Protestantism as a religion is no more to be trusted in the charge of the affairs of state than Catholicism or Mormonism, as the history of the past clearly shows. The Mormons, as a people, have shown ability to govern themselves, if left to do it, protected in their just rights and undisturbed by persecution from lawlessness; hence the only just way for the nation now to pursue is to be sure that the national guarantees for a republican form of government in Utah are provided. Then if the affairs of the new State are conducted in good faith in accord with the promises regarding the abandonment of plural marriage upon which statehood has been granted, no harm will accrue to the compact of States. If on the other hand, the securing statehood will be made the occasion for the adoption of such legislative enactments as will make the continuance of the plural marriage dogma as a practice under State sanction possible, or a fact, there should at once be a direct interference of Congressional power and the guarantee provision be enforced.

The Gentile element in Utah has been in no very dangerous position, so far as "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" are involved, for many years, if they ever were in such danger; and the Cynosure indulges some spleen in the fling that such element may be driven out under the exercise of Mormon State Sovereignty. The Cynosure ought to know that there is no present probability that the legislature of the new State when it shall assume the functions of making the laws will be composed of entirely Mormon element. On the contrary, it is almost certain that there will be a fair percentage of Gentile membership, or what is a good equivalent, representatives chosen from among seceding, or apostate Mormons, so-called. And whether this Gentile element be large or small in proportion, it will be strong enough to make such a stand against insidious legislation as to deter aggression, or to warn the Government in case of failure to prevent abrupt departure from the course supposed to be within the pales of the good faith in which statehood has been asked and granted.

The Mountain Meadows massacre of 1857 was a piece of wanton, wicked savagery, without just excuse of any kind, for which the Mormon people have suffered moral and material punishment; an act which it is not at all likely will ever be committed, or attempted again. Indeed, the days of 1894 are not those of 1857. The watchful prevision of National protection is so fully felt now in the regions where church rule was once entirely dominant, that the wanton disregard of human rights of life and person will not be lightly disregarded.

Sectarian preachers and the elders of the Reorganized Church have wandered to and fro in the Territory, and while possibly some of them have been ignored, possibly jeered at, or the ways of their progress been hindered in various ways more or less annoying, none has been put out of the way that we are informed of; and there are numbers of places in Utah and surrounding territories where the sects have churches and local preachers, where the chief thing done by the Mormons toward these representatives of other faiths, is a persistent and absolute letting them alone.

If Rev. Joseph Cook does not know, he ought to, that Protestantism makes few, or no converts from Mormonism; and if the policy of waiting till the Protestant sects had revolutionized the Territory by converting the Mormons before admitting the Territory to statehood had been adopted the reverend gentleman would not have lived long enough to have seen the star representing Utah in the constellation of stars on the National flag.

The Reorganized Church found no mingling of church and state to have been provided for in the church articles and covenants; but instead thereof direct injunctions from the Lord, to observe and keep the law of the land based upon the statement in explanation, that "he that keepeth the law of God hath no need to break the law of the land." Under the inspiration of the teaching of such law the Reorganization has made no attempt to commingle church and state, purposely leaving that to be done by Him for whose coming all are looking, who will not only reign in righteousness but will have the power of love and will combine to enforce divine rules for human good.

REBAPTISM.

We have been criticised by two of the elders for what we wrote on the subject of rebaptism in HERALD for August 1, first page.

One of these writes:—

It surprises me, I would like the law for it.

The other writes:—

It looks as though it would be better for the church where there is a matter of this kind of difference of opinion to leave it alone, and keep it out of the Herald. All loyal Saints will accept the word of the Lord through the head of the church, or abide by the decisions of General Conference whether those decisions agree with their peculiar ideas or not. I do not believe there is any civil government that could protect her citizens under as loose and poorly defined law of citizenship as the one of rebaptism.

If we had undertaken to state what was the law of the church on the subject then these criticisms might be in order and just. But when we distinctly stated as we did in paragraph six that we were not "aware of any direct law upon the point enjoining a rebaptism," and that the Spirit had said "that while the church could not enjoin rebaptism on any legally baptized at the first;" we supposed that every man that could read would understand what we wrote, and not seize upon the matter as we stated it in reply to a specific statement of conditions and inquiry, as being a matter of law and rule of the church.

To us it is much, very much better to heed the admonition of the Spirit when given in such cases, than to insist on the hard lines of the law; and we think thus upon the statement of a well-known Christian lawyer, "The letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life."

We made no statement as to the rule, or law of the church, on rebaptism in general, as a doctrine or practice, but did answer as to what we thought to be the duty of an elder in given circumstances.

We have baptized a few persons for the restoration of health. We had seen it done in the old church, followed by beneficial results; and in the few instances in which we have performed the rite immediate and full relief followed. We knew no law for it then; we know none now. At the same time we know not a line of law, or precept forbidding it, or enacting a penalty for doing it.

We believe that whatever leadeth to good, or not being forbidden is followed by good results, is permissible, hence answered as we did. However, if either of these brethren know of any law against what we advised, and will tell us where it is found we will be pleased to take it into examination. In so stating we do not ask for an agreement of implications, or inferences, and statements of opinion and belief as law. We know of no law against what we advised; if the brethren do, they are better advised than we are and we will be pleased to profit by their information.

THE GOSPEL QUARTERLIES.

In order to make the dates of the Gospel Quarterlies correspond with the regular quarterly divisions of the year the Quarterlies for the remaining four months of the year 1894 will be issued in two numbers—with lessons for two months in each; one number being dated September and October, the other November and December, after which they will appear regularly every three months. The two Quarterlies remaining to complete the present year will be furnished at the price heretofore charged for each three months' issue, as follows: The Senior Grade, 10 cents; Intermediate and Primary Grades Combined, 5 cents.

Those who have remitted ten cents for the next Senior or five cents for the next Intermediate will receive the September and October and November and December numbers. Yearly subscribers will be credited proportionately. These prices for the two two months' Quarterlies were made in order to avoid increasing the regular subscription price.

Delinquent subscribers to the yearly list are requested to renew or to notify the office if they desire to be continued. Subscriptions solicited.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

QUES.—Is eternal life dependent on the knowledge of God or the knowledge of God dependent on eternal life. Which?

Ans.—In the light of the text, "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent," found in John 17: 3, it is stated very clearly, as we think, that the seeing God is made dependent upon the having obtained eternal life. Or, that in order to be able and permitted to know God it is necessary that a man should have become entitled to eternal life.

Devils knew Jesus in the days of his ministry and called him by name; but it does not follow that they had, or would be entitled to eternal life in the sense of the text in John.

He that hath life (eternal life) hath both the Father and the Son.

We conclude then that in order to know God one must have eternal life;

therefore, he that receives a testimony that Jesus is the Christ knows God in a sense and hath life eternal.

Q.—What does the tarrying time represent in the parable of the ten virgins? Also the sleepy time? When to begin and end?

Q.—What is the midnight cry? Are we now in the sleeping time, or are we publishing the midnight cry? Will Jesus come immediately after the midnight cry, or will there be a time given for preparation after or during the cry and before the coming?

A.—Here is a chance for some one.

THE Galveston, Texas, News gives the question of compulsory arbitration between employer and employed, as a means of definite and conclusive settlement of differences, a careful consideration with the following published result, which we believe to be sound in fact and in argument on the points considered:—

COMPULSORY ARBITRATION.

Of course the freedom of the employee to decide just how much time, service, and skill he has for sale and what he is willing to take for them carries with it the right of the employer to say whether the goods suit him and what he is able and willing to pay. Here we find safe ground. Outside of the freedom of contract there is nothing to stand upon. Deprive both sides or either side of this right and the first and most important of our liberties is gone. It is unaccountable and discouraging to find so many fairly intelligent laboring men eager for the servitude that would come of compulsory contracts and unwilling to hear and heed fair and unanswerable arguments against this and other fallacies of agitators and demagogues until their masters have nodded to them. Compulsory arbitration is foolishness, and the most dangerous kind of foolishness at that. Every laboring man who values his own freedom should hold on to the right of contract in spite of the efforts of his enemies or of his friends to deprive him of it. Without this right he is a slave to some personal or impersonal master, with nothing that he can call his own—neither his time, his labor, nor the form, the application, and the usufruct of it.

One of the things forbidden in the Constitution is the enacting of any laws by which the sacredness and validity of contracts should be impaired; and one of the completest safeguards guaranteed to the citizen of the United States is the untrammelled right of contract, and the absolute sense of security assured to him that neither State legislature, nor Congress will dare to intervene to impair the strength of his contract made in good faith.

The American citizen, whether rich man or poor man, employer or employed, layman or preacher, should hesitate long and then positively decline to put his liberties into jeopardy by aiding to enact so drastic a measure as a compulsory arbitration law would be.

There is now quite a plenty of compulsory arbitrament in the various courts of the period from that of dusty feet in the market where the law of weights and measures are enforced by summary confiscation, to the Supreme Court of the United States, where Justice waits hoary headed and hard handed to enforce the edicts of centuries by the power of the social compact, found in the executive forces of the land.

HERE is one among numerous examples of inquiries that come from those who become possessed of the printed word, which like bread cast upon the waters returns after many days:—

BEAVER, Carroll county, Ark., Aug. 1.
Respected Sirs of the Herald Office, Plano, Illinois:—I have just been reading a little volume called Voice of Warning which refers to the Book of Mormon. I can't find anyone who ever saw it, so I hope you will be kind enough to send me a sample, or direct me to some house where they are published or have them for sale. I feel anxious to know what it is. Hoping you will favor me with an answer at once,

Respectfully yours,
MRS. A. KIMBLE.

PETER WILLIAMS and wife, Linwood, Arkansas, went to church Sunday, leaving two children locked up at home. The little ones burned the house and themselves.

The telegraphic items contain the above, another instance to be added to the long list of the "slaughter of the innocents." Going to church under proper circumstances is a duty, but to risk the lives of children to do so is heartless and cruel and a crime.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

WE have the following report of the labors of Bro. I. N. White, by a recent letter from a point in his field:—

Bro. I. N. White closed a three weeks' meeting on Sunday, the 12th inst., five miles south of Butler, Missouri, in which Brn. E. T. Atwell and J. T. Young gave able assistance at intervals. The meeting was said to be interesting throughout. After closing these services Bro. White rode nine miles in a lumber wagon through a cloud of dust, reaching Rich Hill just as the first bell rang for church. Dusted and washed and gave the Rich Hill people one of his best on the subject, "Why do you believe Joseph Smith was a true prophet of God?" Went on to Schell City to commence meeting in the Christian church the 14th and continue over Sunday the 19th. Promised to call back at Butler on the 20th to baptize some promising converts. Home on the 21st and to Maysville reunion on the 23d.

Bro. D. E. Tucker was at Milburn, Missouri, a new opening, whence he wrote August 13:—

I came here and preached the first sermon ever preached in Boone county by a Latter Day Saint elder, to my knowledge. Have preached thirty sermons in three places to a goodly number. Have baptized two, and others are interested. The truth is winning its way. Hope to be able to send in a subscription for the Herald ere I leave.

Bro. H. H. Robinson wrote from Andover, New York, July 13:—

Brother L. W. Powell is with me. We are having splendid meetings in Bro. Benjamin Updyke's grove, three miles from Andover.

Yesterday it rained in the forenoon but the afternoon was more favorable and Bro. Powell had the pleasure of preaching to a large and attentive congregation, after which one man was baptized by the writer in the presence of a large and orderly assembly. At eight p. m. I spoke with good liberty to about five hundred people. We are to continue over next Sunday; the interest is increasing and words of encouragement come from all directions.

Bro. S. D. Allen, Milton, Florida, August 13:—

I read your card "To the Saints" in last issue, and though it does not mean me, I send you two subscriptions, hoping the parties will renew when the time is out. We are needing more system in our mission in regard to tithing, and I hope we will sometime be enabled to render in our mites in the way of tithes and offerings in a systematic way. We are mostly poor people, but any of us could pay something into the storehouse of the Lord if we could learn to do our duty, and we always learn to do it by doing it, and in no other way. May the Lord help us to see and do our duty.

Bro. F. G. Pitt, Joliet, Illinois, August 14:—

I am assisting Brn. Roush and Kier in tent work here. The interest has been good part of the time, at times not so good; but we have moved to a better location and interest is increasing. Sunday evening the tent was filled with many standing outside. Last evening a good number were in attendance and the deepest interest was manifest, with excellent liberty enjoyed by the speaker. Some express themselves as being convinced, others that the preaching is grand; therefore we hope for good results. Last night there was such a demand for tracts that our supply was exhausted before all were supplied.

Bro. D. M. Rudd, Oskaloosa, Iowa, August 16:—

Bro. Fred A. Smith and I are holding tent meetings here with good interest and attendance. Expect some will be baptized before we leave. I learn that four were baptized a week ago last Sunday where we held a grove meeting about the middle of July.

Bro. John Davis wrote August 10 from Lake Park, Washington as follows:—

Since I last wrote I have baptized four. Will baptize more next Tuesday.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BY letter from Bro. J. F. Mintun to Bro. J. W. Wight, dated Anthon, Iowa, August 15, we learn that Bro. Mintun had been called from the field because of the severe illness of his wife's mother. He had been obliged to abandon tent work in promising fields, which he much regretted. He baptized two promising young men the day he left for home.

Bro. G. R. Wheeler, located at Conway Springs, Sumner county, Kansas, requests that brethren living in that county or vicinity communicate with him.

Prices on the large type edition of the Book of Mormon are $1.50, $1.75, and $2, according to style of binding. By some mistake wrong prices of this edition appeared in the HERALD. The regular or smaller type edition is listed at $1 and $1.25. Those who have ordered or remitted for the large type edition please take notice and forward instructions concerning said orders.

Bro. Wm. Lewis writes that the Rock Island road has granted a rate of one and a third fare to the Maysville reunion. Trains will stop at the grounds.

Bro. John Smith of Avenue City, Missouri, sailed for England August 2 from Boston. His address will be Milncow, Lancashire, England.

Bro. F. E. Cohrt, a young German brother writing from Holstein, Iowa, has secured some good openings in the vicinity of his childhood's home where he is visiting, and which he is endeavoring to improve as a minister for Christ. We trust he may have abundant success, especially in reaching those of his own nationality. He is encouraged by the prospects for good and feels the responsibility of one called to bear witness unto the truth.

Letters are received from Sr. Jennie Cooper, Winona Beach, Michigan, and Bro. P. E. Thompson, Proton, Ontario.

Bro. Thomas Daley writes from El Dorado, California, July 31: "I am for the field now."

Some of the brethren of the Galland's Grove district held a grove meeting at Benan, Iowa, August 3-14 at which Brn. C. E. Butterworth, W. W. Blair, B. Salisbury, W. W. Whiting, J. T. Turner, Charles Derry, — Pearsall, and — Simmons were present. One was baptized and others brought near, an enjoyable time being had throughout. We extract this note from a brief report sent us by Sr. Etta Duckett, the secretary.

This issue of the HERALD contains the programme of Zion's Religio-Literary Society for the first week in September. The HERALD publishes it because copy for one department has not yet been received which has delayed the issue of the regular Program.

Bro. Joseph Luff made a business trip to Lamoni on the 15th inst. He addressed the Saints on Sunday the 19th in the morning and evening services.

Brn. C. J. Hunt and F. M. Weld are holding tent services at Charter Oak, Iowa, where they have been for about three weeks. They have been well received and attentively heard by the people and are encouraged to believe that the fruits of their labors will appear in due time. The local paper, the Times, gives their work a friendly notice and refers to the presence of Bro. C. E. Butterworth, who was with them over Sunday the 19th. They go next to Cherokee, Iowa.

Bro. J. S. Snively started for Alledale, Missouri, on the 18th inst. After laboring there he will make an extended missionary tour of the southern part of Harrison county, in which he has many promising openings.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

HE KNOWS.

Through all my little daily cares there is One thought that comfort brings when'er it comes:
'Tis this—"God knows." He knows
Each struggle that my heart makes to bring My will to his. Often when night-time comes
My heart is full of tears because the good
That seemed, at morn, so easy to be done,
Has proved so hard; but then remembering
That a kind Father is my judge, I say,
'He knows.' And so I lay me down with trust
That his good hand will give me needed strength
To better do his work in coming days—ScL

A WORD TO MOTHERS.

WE do not wonder that the mother of a large family oftentimes feels weighed down with the realization of the sameness and the greatness of her routine of duties. Mothers are only human beings, as well as fathers, and they have the most perplexing part of the business to look after, too, and many of them were unfortunate in their childhood; that is, their influences were inharmonious, consequently they are not qualified to rule their home with a sceptre of love; but they can by constant self-control attain that power.

She who rules herself is a mighty conqueror, and is qualified to occupy the throne of her family. But O, how far short we all are liable to come! The spirit is willing, but the mortal is weak and yields before the vexations that arise in daily life, but may we learn by results that it is a better course to follow St. Paul's example: stand firm and say, "None of those things move me."

We know that even the best of children are liable to weary one's patience, and yet never had the thought of doing so. "A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger" is as true and practicable to-day as it was when spoken by the man of wisdom, and if it was observed by both parents and children, and especially the former, there could be but little opportunity for confusion and discord to enter the home.

We have met poor, tired mothers who felt as if their lives were made up of confusion and drudgery, and have heard them say they envied those who had no such cares; and perhaps we should have felt just as they did had we been in their situation, but we know the sorrows of one who has been obliged to give up home and its relations, so say to such, Make your home as enjoyable to its inmates as possible. Dear, discouraged mothers, try and forget self, or rather not be so self-conscious, and instead occupy your mind with thoughts that will please and develop the minds of the little ones. An interest in their study, work, or play will tend to make them happy, and the bright reflection will come back to you laden with encouragement. We have received much happiness by practicing the same, have felt sometimes as if that was all the sweetness there was for us in this life, and the children were not our own either—what then must be the depth of a true mother's love?

We, too, have felt the pangs of a seemingly blighted life, but experience has shown us that 'tis only worldly hopes that have been blasted, to make room for wider, deeper hopes in the Eternal. Such probably is the case with all whose life plans have been thwarted, and that must certainly take in all who ever came to years of understanding. The less we shrink before life's burdens, and the more we look up for strength and wisdom the smaller those burdens will become—yes, oftentimes they will sink into nothingness. The little ones have their trials, which may be as hard for them as ours are for us. They are born with germs of intelligence, and germs of passion, and have not attained judgment to guide them. Their little acts often call out rebuke because they have not come to understanding, and their parents do not take time to understand them—may take time to scold, however.

Some people think they must be very strict with their children—must talk much to them of their faults, in order to suppress them—must not spare the rod and spoil the child, thinking that by such a course they are leading them into the path of Christianity, but such a course has produced infidels—a medium line is more safe than either extreme. Of what benefit is family worship or a punctual attendance at church to a child if he is not dealt justly with by those who officiate in such a capacity?

In order to bring children to Christ, one must manifest the Christ method of dealing with them. Do we have one instance on record in which he manifested even the slightest token of cruelty to one of the little ones? We read of his folding them in his arms and blessing them—made them happy. Wisdom and power are required in every vocation of life, but in no business of life so much as in the business of peopling the earth, and fitting spirits for eternity—a greater work than that of angels.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE CHILDREN DURING VACATION.

FOURTH PAPER.—HOW A BOY MAY BE EMPLOYED.

BOYS are generally believed to be harder to manage than girls. Perhaps it is a little more perplexing to know how to employ them during the long period of vacation. Especially young boys. When they grow older, their summers are usually spent at some employment, with the father in his business, or serving an apprenticeship. So it is the small boy that, traditionally, gives the most trouble.

To begin with, resolve to keep him off the streets. No matter how tempting the summer evening, when the stars begin to twinkle out of the twilight, and your boy begs so hard to go down the street a ways and play with some other boys under the corner lamp, for the little fellow's good deny him. Those summer evening meetings have taught thousands of boys the first lessons in sowing their wild oats. You would not think of permitting your little daughter to be in a miscellaneous company, and you would be horrified at the idea of her being out past dark with children who were street gamins. Yet your boy goes out but a few times before he falls into this very sort of company and it is then his youthful purity receives its first stain.

As he gets older, you grieve that his principles are not higher; and in view of all your teachings, you wonder that he is so imbued with worldly shrewdness, which you, however, call positive dishonesty, but which is popularly condoned as being "sharp." Why, dear mother, that boy began to learn all that years ago, down by the lamp post.

In the matter of training boys there should be little difference from the methods pursued with girls. Like "Josiah Allen's wife," we think that a Thomas Jefferson's habits should be as good and simple as Mary Anne's. When one thinks about it and goes back to the beginning, perhaps man is not so original in his guilt after all. Why, his own mother permitted that boy to think in the early years of his career that he was a privileged individual. His character was being moulded, even if his young mind did not fully realize the license he was given, when he found himself in company, and out at places of amusement, where it was not thought fit for his sister to be. There can be no doubt that the youthful training a boy receives is more largely responsible for his inferior morals than any other cause.

Keep the boys better employed. Idleness breeds mischief. There are plenty of chores to be done about the house. In the summer the yards and gardens require a great deal of care. And why cannot boys be taught useful little industries? Simple carpentry, for instance. We once heard a distinguished lecturer say that it was just as right that a boy be a fair carpenter as that a girl be a good housekeeper. Why not? We are sure we do not see any reason why it is any worse for a girl to spoil a cake than it is for her father or brother to knock the plastering down endeavoring to put up a shelf, or make a bungled botch of putting up a screen door. A gentleman, from his experience with men, says that he thinks indeed it would be a far reaching benefit if all men were more practical. Provide the boy with tools and some material. A box of tools will delight any youngster's heart.

If you have ever noticed it, all boys have mechanical tastes more or less. Do you remember the interest he takes in a locomotive? how intently he will watch moving machinery? With encouragement and some direction, you would be surprised at the cleverness most boys will display. Instill in them the same regard for the home and its orderly and pleasing appearance that you do in the girl. Have them see to it that no pickets swing loose on the fence; that the walks do not remain broken. Have them make the chicken coops and the racks and trellises you need for your flowers. Your pleasure and pride in the convenience of such little contrivances will make the small men already begin to swell with the importance of their lordship.

Get the poor, "terrible," little fellows interested in something, and teach them to be prompt and systematic in performing all their duties. Require the utmost thoroughness and neatness in all their work, and you will have taught them some of the most important essentials of success.

A word about discipline. It is true that boys are generally of more perverse dispositions and more stubborn willed than girls.

They need to be managed with the most unrelenting firmness. But it wants to be kindly, nevertheless. Suspicious, harsh treatment will have a tendency to make the nature coarse and unsympathetic. Another thing they get less of, and which, as a little boy we know once said he liked as well as his sister, is "petting." It is said that boys of larger size do not outgrow their fondness for it, and it is proverbial that a man can be coaxed better than driven. However, we want to clearly distinguish against the extreme of kindness which is being too much indulged in nowadays. We mean that common sense should be the rule. Neither have we any patience whatever with pampering, and giving in to a boy, until he becomes the tyrant of the household.

When vacation comes do not rush the boy into some kind of work for the avowed purpose of keeping him out of "devilment." He is not a savage, and will not become so, ordinarily, if his parents have as much sense as they should have. It is a good thing to give a boy employment, but it is a great mistake to put him too closely at work while he is young. It often has just the contrary effect from what the parents expected, and the boy comes to have a special hatred for work, particularly that kind in which he has been engaged, and many times the father's business is left without a successor on this account. If he does not complain, he often becomes degraded in his mental tastes, sullen and spiritless in disposition. Remember that "boys will be boys." Nature ordained it to be so, and we rob them of their birthright if we deny them freedom and boyish exercises. If idleness makes a mischievous boy, overwork almost as surely makes a dull one. Give a boy as many holidays for hunting and ball-playing as are consistent.

In the matter of companions and amusements, choose just as carefully for your boy as for your girl. And as you would not entertain the idea of your daughter's meeting her company down town in the candy shop or on the street corner, just as positively forbid your son to do so. Extend to him the same privileges of receiving his friends at home that you give the girls. And it would be well if brothers and sisters were taught to be more in each other's company; interested in each other's friends, and to share each other's pastimes. LOUISE PALFREY.

HIAWATHA, Nebraska.

Dear Herald:—Will you please tell your many readers for me that I still love the gospel, and am trying to hold onto the rod of iron that leads to the tree of life. My desire is to see this work roll on and to ever be ready to do whatever the Master says. I am thankful for the instructions written in the Daughters of Zion leaflets. It is just what we have needed for a great while. I have six little ones, and my desire is to see them become useful men and women, and I truly need all the help I can get, for although I am willing, yea anxious, still I do not understand just how to train my little ones. The work is mostly left to us mothers for our husbands' duty is in the field. So you see, sisters, we have a work to do also.

My husband has opened up some new places for preaching and expects to open up more in the future. He has baptized eighteen since last year's report. The good work rolls on, and may it continue to roll until the Savior comes in his glory. May the God of heaven bless all his servants that leave their homes and loved ones to bring others to a knowledge of the truth, and may he also remember their companions in their loneliness and help them to do their duty. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion I remain,

Your sister in the one faith,
EMMA PAYNE.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR AUGUST.

"O friends! if the greater burdens
His love can make so light,
Why should his wonderful goodness
Our halting credence slight!
The little sharp vexations,
And the briers that catch and fret,
Shall we not take them to the Helper
Who has never failed us yet?"

Thursday, Aug. 23.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses.—1 Thess. 5: 14, 15.

Thursday, Aug. 30.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verses.—Micah 4: 6, 7.

DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

SR. SOPHIE FERGUSON, Beeville, Texas. Sr. Anna Inman, Clarksdale, Missouri.

Letter Department.

FULTON, Iowa, Aug. 4.

Editors Herald:—Our district conference will soon convene at Canton, Iowa. We hope to see a good representation from the branches and those outside the district. Come, let us have a joyful time together.

Though my appointment does not begin until the first of September, I will take the field about the 9th or 10th of this month. This coming week I will try and obtain the use of the Union church, south of Maquoketa. I have had an invitation to come and preach at the above-named place, and realizing that delays are dangerous I will answer while the invitation is warm. We are informed that the sectarian guns will soon be heard just over the western hills; the Adventists and Free Methodists will hold camp meetings near the iron hills about three miles west of here. There has been a great falling away from those sects around this place. Quite reverse to Scripture teaching must needs be their plan, while the shepherds must console the one that has remained and call after the ninety and nine that have gone astray. I will try and remain near by while these meetings are in progress, and should any of the missiles of sectarianism fall about the camp of Israel we hope by the aid of God's Spirit to be able to obliterate the least impression they are designed to make.

I was privileged of late to enter a branch where Bro. W. H. Kephart had labored, and found the people anxiously awaiting the return of this worthy brother, who had created an interest in gospel work, where interest had been waning prior to his coming. May the brother be blessed in all his labor.

We are proud to note the intense interest manifest in Sabbath school work here by those in the church and outside. The gospel is being deeply rooted in the minds of young and old. The Gospel Quarterlies published by our church it must be conceded are the deepest and yet the simplest work for Sabbath schools published. My desire is to continue spreading abroad gospel truth.

Yours in hope,
J. R. SUTTON.

MANCHESTER, Texas, July 30.

Editors Herald:—We have just returned from Blossom Prairie, thirty miles south of this place, where Bro. J. D. Erwin and I began a meeting on the 20th of this month. We had large attendance; everybody seemed interested. One good citizen told us he had closed his Bible fourteen years ago over the sixteenth chapter of St. Mark and had promised himself he would never read it any more until he found a people preaching that gospel. We baptized one young lady and several more talked of coming in. We left Bro. J. D. carrying on the meeting. We were impressed while there that a branch would be built up. We have one brother there. He has done all he could to get the truth before the people. We believe the world is ripe for the gospel, and we also believe the church is undergoing a severe trial. Our branch is having some trouble. Pray for us that the Lord may rule in all things.

I have only been in the church a little over two years, and I ask the prayers of the Saints that I may continue in the glorious work of my Master. The restitution of all things is near at hand. In bonds,

E. A. ERWIN.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 14.

Editors Herald:—Yesterday with loving and tender hands was laid away to her last restingplace in the beautiful Mount Mora cemetery what of mortality remained of Sr. H. C. Bronson, after nearly nine months of confinement to her bed, during which her sufferings at times were great. As a faithful, unflinching friend her husband kept vigil at her bedside, never tiring of trying to satisfy her wants and alleviate her suffering. She lacked not for kindnesses, for there were many to shower them upon her.

Notwithstanding the dry weather a visit to our market plainly shows that our soil is productive, as shown by the rich and copious show of vegetables there to be seen. Where can old Missouri be surpassed?

Bro. and Sr. Best's Son George came near losing his life yesterday by being run into while crossing the railroad in a buggy. As it was he escaped with a dislocated shoulder and broken shoulder blade.

The work with us is moving on. Our meetings though not quite as well attended as some think they should be, are quite spiritual and very encouraging. Bro. H. A.

Stebbins gave us some good counsel when with us on Wednesday night enroute to Blue Rapids. With love for this noble cause which I prize as the pearl of great price, I am,
Your brother,

J. M. TERRY.

XENIA, Ill., July 27.

Editors Herald:—Elder I. A. Morris, district president, began a series of meetings at our schoolhouse, near Xenia, on Thursday last and continued over Sunday. The meetings were fairly well attended through the week with a full house at both the Sunday services. A marked degree of the Spirit was present in the presentation of the word, which must have been edifying to all. We felt to rejoice when one came forward and gave her name for baptism, which ordinance is to be performed near Brush Creek chapel on Sunday next, and we hope that ere we reach the water's edge others may be fully ready; for we feel there are those in this community who are just waiting, they hardly know why; and, surely, as life is short and time precious we have none to while away, but should be up and doing, working for the Master while it is called to-day, realizing that the time cometh when no man can work; that in this grand and glorious latter-day work there is something for each one to perform; for we are living in a momentous age, in an age in which the prophecies concerning the times just prior to the second coming of the Son of God are being grandly and wonderfully fulfilled.

The Xenia Saints by their presence lent cheer and comfort to the occasion, and on Sunday several were up from Brush Creek, including the Sunday school superintendent, Bro. J. W. Morris, who offered the opening prayer, and also Bro. Powel and wife, who came a distance of nine miles. Altogether we consider it a day's march Zionward and feel so thankful that we are living in a day in which the gospel is being preached in its fullness.

We have lived in this part for several months, and from what we can learn think that the degree of favor in which the people of this community look upon this latter-day work is due largely to the godly walk and conversation of Sr. J. V. Jarvis who so long stood alone in defense of the work. I say alone, which she was in the gospel covenant; yet her husband stood nobly by her in defense of the work and still works with all the zeal of any of the membership. We feel that he with others are at the door and trust that he may soon be in the kingdom enjoying the benefits attached thereto, as well as sharing in the toils. This handmaiden of the Lord still has children and grandchildren outside whose lives shine out in their character, and what she did not fully accomplish in life will perhaps be consummated in her death; for in the death of a true Christian there is volumes. The scripture that says that whether we live or whether we die it is unto the Lord, is not without meaning.

Elder I. A. Morris, in company with my husband, B. A. Morris, will start for McVey, Macoupin county, our former home, and we do most earnestly pray the Lord that he will send his angels before them, preparing the way; for we feel there are some there who believe the restored gospel and should obey, and beside there is other work there that the Omnipotent only can perform. We thank God for his goodness to the children of men, for his longsuffering and tender mercy, and for all the blessings that he is so bountifully conferring upon us, and pray the Lord that we may prove ourselves worthy by consecrating all that we have and are to his service, realizing that it is vain to pray, "Lord, send more laborers into thy vineyard and then tie their hands by refusing to give of our substance for the support of their families. May we arouse to the necessities of the hour, put on the whole armor of the Lord; and may we who are not able to do great things not despise the little things, but all work together with one grand aim in view, even the advancement and upbuilding of this latter-day work. We trust that the Brush Creek reunion that is to convene August 31 will ever stand as a monument for good. Your sister,

HEPPIE MORRIS.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 4.

Editors Herald:—We still rejoice in the restored gospel as it is revealed in this day in which we live. The more we study and apply its precepts, the stronger is our conviction that it is of God; for its effect is progression in all that pertains to life and truth, morally, spiritually, and intellectually. This should not seem strange when we realize the fact that the Holy Spirit which is promised to those who obey the gospel to lead them into all truth, is the source from which all intelligence flows. Hence, if we are enjoying this holy influence the natural result will be advancement. We will become better citizens, more loving husbands, kinder brothers, gentler sisters, and more righteous Saints. If this is the result of obeying the gospel, will it not speak louder than the loudest thunder and be the greatest testimony we can offer as to the divinity of the work in which we are engaged and be a light that cannot be hid?

I realize the necessity of making a closer application of the gospel to my character, and so demonstrate my faith by works. I feel the hastening time is upon us, the eleventh hour is drawing to an end, the shadows of midnight are setting in, the events spoken of by the prophets are rapidly drawing to a close.

Satan also is fully aware of this, for his kingdom is spreading mightily, drunkenness is stalking abroad, society is honeycombed with secret vices, spiritualism is gaining daily, subtle and crafty influences are abroad deceiving alike the ignorant and intelligent, the virtuous and depraved, imitating the gospel in many ways with their healings, prophesying, speaking in tongues, etc.

How assuring to the Saints comes the promise—the Spirit shall guide them into all truth! My desire is that God will so illuminate our minds that we may discover the narrow way and walk therein. On Sunday the 5th inst. I had the unexpected pleasure of leading a promising young man from South Norwalk, Connecticut, into the waters of baptism, the Spirit witnessing his acceptance. His good wife is also near the kingdom. This brother and others have been made acquainted with the gospel through the patient efforts of Bro. W. Hobson of South Norwalk, Connecticut.

Ever desiring the welfare of the work, I remain your brother,

JAMES COCKS.

LUCAS, Iowa, Aug. 6.

Editors Herald:—Two were baptized here yesterday, Bro. Thomas A. John officiating. I and Bro. David Daniels held service in the Christian church at Woodburn, eight miles west of here, last Sunday. The Christian brethren were kind and gave us a hearty welcome. We are to hold service there twice next Sunday. Brn. Thomas Hopkins and John T. Evans held forth at the Spring Hill schoolhouse and received the very best of treatment. The people seem more willing to listen now than ever before in this vicinity. The brethren lately ordained are doing a good work and will continue to do so if they receive the proper amount of encouragement.

E. B. MORGAN.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 7.

Editors Herald:—If anyone should read these few lines and know of any Saints living in Cleveland or anyone who may be friendly to the faith would send their address to me, or send word to them that we hold meetings every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and seven p. m. in Memorial Hall, 170 Superior street, it may be the means of helping the cause along.

We are gaining ground and the few Saints here are feasting on the bread of life which Bro. M. H. Bond is so freely and liberally breaking for them. I believe we have some fish nibbling at our bait. If they only get on the hook and are safely landed we will be amply repaid for our labors and if not we are only doing our duty in preaching this gospel, as Jesus says, for a witness. I desire to ever help along the cause of our King.

In bonds,

EBENEZER MILLER, Jr.

No. 55 Lake street.

PLEASANT HILL, Md., Aug. 9.

Editors Herald:—As there is a desire among the membership as well as the priesthood to know what the missionaries are doing, I essay the task of telling something about my work. On returning from General Conference I labored in the city till June 19, having purchased a tent in Chicago through Bro. Pitt, to whom we feel to render grateful thanks. I left the city for home to make ready for the summer campaign with the new tent.

At home I found Bro. Alma Kent working away, letting his light shine, telling the gospel story to the Baldwinites of the Merry Land. Two days passed and we were en route for York county, Pennsylvania, where the tent was to be first located. June 23 the tent came and was set up and seated for Sunday service. A fair-sized audience greeted us while we tarried there.

We next located at Carea, Harford county,

Maryland, where we spent four Sundays with the week nights telling the people of Him who came to save; and of the angel's visit bringing authority to man to officiate in the name of Christ. Here we met some opposition from the baser sort, which stirred up some little excitement and caused the arrest of two of the leading spirits who were placed under bonds for good behavior till court meets in November. After their arrest some lewd fellow threw a stone, evidently intended for the writer, which came near hitting a brother that was with us. It was as large as a man's fist and made its mark on a tree that it struck near the brother's head. More might have followed but safety for the party who threw the missile was found in leg-bail. Next morning a notice signed by the committee of the White Caps of Maryland was found at the gate leading into the woods where our tent was located, giving us three days to leave the State or else we would be whipped. We sang No. 190 of the "Saints' Harp" and politely informed these parties we did not ask them if we could come and did not propose to counsel them as to when we should leave, hence we were there and intended to stay till we got ready to go. This move made friends for us and several men volunteered to guard us and did so for more than two weeks while we preached, stopping with us most all night; so we are alive yet and feeling quite well. Many warm friends were made to the cause while prejudice slackened her hold among the people. If baptizing great numbers is the only thing that counts in missionary work, Bro. Kent and the writer are left, so far, in the new fields. But if hard work indicates the elder's love for the work I guess we will be counted. I never did as hard work since I have been in the ministry. We have to board ourselves mostly, doing our cooking on an oil stove, sleeping at night on cots in the tabernacle—rusticating, brethren and sisters.

July 17 found us at Nottingham, Pennsylvania, at midnight. We had the tent set up and posters out notifying the people we were there and would begin meetings the following evening at eight. Quite a few came out to see the wonder of the age, a "Saints' tabernacle." Well did the prophet say the sons of God met together and the Devil came also. It was so in our experience at this place. Last year I advertised three or four weeks ahead and he got there first, locating about three hundred yards from where we were to hold forth. So this time we took the old fellow by guile, as Paul calls it, and came with our notice, and don't you think we were only four days ahead. The old fellow was asleep, I presume, or he would have been on time. However, we stopped over two Sundays and and left for the present site, Pleasant Hill, Maryland.

It is a difficult task to fight against his Satanic Majesty when the multitudes follow after him and cry, "Mormonism;" "keep your eye on 'em; they are after your wives and daughters!" God pity ladies who have husbands and fathers that have no more confidence in them than to think they would run off with anybody coming along. It seems to me if I had such a wife I would feel grateful if some one would take pity on me and I should say, "Let her go." But that is only a trick of the Devil to serve his purpose.

August 2 found us located here. On the 4th I embarked on Nahum's coach for Philadelphia, leaving Bro. Kent to storm the fort. Large audiences greeted him all day Sunday and a fair-sized congregation has been in attendance so far during the week. In the city I baptized an aged gentleman by the name of Abraham Hanson. The work is slowly gaining strength in the city. The new members are taking a deep interest in the work and the prospects look more favorable than hitherto. It has given new zeal to the older ones who have stood the heat of the battle in the past. May the good work continue.

Ever hopeful,

A. H. PARSONS.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., August 9.

Editors Herald:—I think every Latter Day Saint ought to take the Herald but some are too poor to pay for it. Truly the hastening time has come. The work is advancing in this portion of the vineyard; sixteen have been added to our branch by baptism in the last two months. Brn. Burton and Forscutt are holding forth in the tent in Los Angeles to good congregations. Bro. D. L. Harris is preaching in what is known as the Little Bethel church in this place part of this week. Our Religio-Literary Society is getting under way in good shape, although we need a library very much. The Daughters of Zion are having very good meetings once a month; everything is encouraging.

Yours truly,

JEPHTHA SCOTT.

GREENVILLE, R. I.

Editors Herald:—Your pages come weekly with many words of comfort and cheer; and as I read in the Home Column what a great work is being accomplished, I often think, What am I doing to help the progress of this great work? I feel my inability to write, yet we are commanded that we should not hide our talent, and if we improve the talent God has given us, he will surely bless our feeble efforts. I have found much information in the Home Column and feel to bid you God-speed. I thank God that he ever gave me a knowledge of this latter-day work; so that I can say I know it is the true gospel. If we do the will of God we shall know of the doctrine with a knowledge of the truth. It should inspire our hearts to be faithful to keep the commandments.

Since uniting with this church I read a book called "Life among the Mormons." As I read it I became doubtful about the Prophet Joseph; yet, as we are commanded to take all things to God in prayer, I asked God to make known to me if he was a true prophet, and one night after praying earnestly I dreamed there was a man out West who had left me a rich legacy, if I would leave all for the legacy. As I was feeling sad, parting with everything and all my friends, I awoke. I thought upon the dream and prayed to God that he would give me more light on the subject. I commenced taking Zion's Ensign. One of our elders had been having a debate with a Baptist minister about our prophet being a true prophet and it was continued in several papers. I was deeply interested and was always ready to read the papers as soon as I received them. I finally got the last paper and the last line read: "Joseph Smith was a true prophet, and he left a rich legacy for all who obey the gospel." As I read those words the Spirit of God came upon me with power, and I have never doubted since. I have been strengthened in reading the church papers. I don't remember the elder's name that defended Bro. Joseph so nobly. I lend my papers and some have not been returned, therefore I cannot give the name. I send this forth feeling should any doubt the truth of this work I can say, Take it to the Lord in prayer and he will reveal the truth to you.

Ever praying that God will speed the right,

Your sister,

MRS. E. F. VICKERS.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Aug. 8.

Editors Herald:—We are still alive, yet there are times when, hot and dry, a plaintive plea escapes our lips that the Father would send a Lazarus to bestow but a sprinkle to break the consuming drought which is causing dismay among the patricians as well as plebeians. Were it not that other parts of the country have been more highly favored than ours this winter's record would be one of starvation and want. As it is, with railroad facilities and rapid transit they can in a few hours place commodities at our doors; but the perplexing question is, how are we going to purchase them? Everything is unusually high and money is correspondingly scarce. The farmer who has not only depended upon his corn and hay crops to furnish feed for his stock but to replenish his larder as well, will in many instances be compelled to buy feed for stock. There will be a fair crop of apples and grapes, but other fruits were largely killed by the late spring frosts. Some of the firms in the city have reduced the wages of their laborers nearly one half besides discharging quite a number. With this condition of things staring us in the face we are perplexed as to results. We as Saints should make such matters a subject of prayer for the Book of Mormon says, "Humble yourselves and continue in prayer unto him [God]; cry unto him when ye are in your fields; yea over all your flocks; cry unto him in your houses, yea over all your household, both morning, midday, and evening; yea cry unto him against the power of your enemies; yea, cry unto him against the devil who is an enemy to all righteousness. Cry unto him over the crops of your fields that ye may prosper in them; cry over the flocks of your fields, that they may increase . . . and when ye do not cry unto the Lord, let your hearts be full, drawn out in prayer unto him continually for your welfare and also for the welfare of those who are around you."—Alma 16:28.

When drought comes, which threatens to deprive us of support and livelihood, we should have seasons of fasting and prayer. I think it would be entirely proper for presiding officers of branches and districts when convenient to call upon the churches to make it a matter of prayer. We have been warned since the inception of this latter-day work that these things were coming, and now shall we stand in dismay when they are here? I think not. Then let us like the children of Israel have a mark upon our doorposts—a signet in our homes which will exempt us from the devastating scourges that are rampant in the land. How are we to secure this signet of the King?

The Lord told Israel what they must do to secure exemption when destruction passed through Egypt, and their salvation and exemption was due to obedience; so Latter Day Saints have been told what to do in order to secure exemption from the "terrible evils" that are coming on the earth; that is, to keep all God's commandments. Principal among the admonitions of our heavenly Father is the Word of Wisdom, which promises if we comply with its demands that "All Saints who remember to keep and do these sayings, walking in obedience to the commandments, shall receive health in their navel and marrow to their bones. . . . and I the Lord give unto them a promise that the destroying angel shall pass by them as the children of Israel and not slay them." Then those who do not so do shall not be exempted when the destroying angel passes through the land.

We must also observe the law that was given to govern our temporalities, for the Lord says, "He that is tithed shall not be burned" and the antithesis is true, he that is not tithed shall be burned. It is evident that those who observe the law of tithing will not suffer in the great calamities as others will. In the face of such conditions it is passing strange that Saints are so oblivious of their perils in the calamities that await us. May God move upon them to trim their lamps and have them burning!

We are still doing what we can, but during the summer months church work is at a low ebb in the cities; however, at our Sunday services the attendance has increased rather than diminished. We are reaching quite a number through our tract distribution. I have enlisted quite a number in this work, Brn. Arthur Dempsey, Samuel Harding, George Christiansen, C. A. Pratt, and Srs. F. Potter and Mary Riley have been active workers; while Mary Beecroft, Harry Beecroft, C. A. Riley, Chris. Nelson, Emma and Grace Beebe, and others have rendered valuable assistance. We feel encouraged over late accessions. Bro. and Sr. Williams, Bro. and Sr. Strain, and Bro. Devol (nephew of David Devol) are proving to be loyal and worthy members and we trust will be an honor to the cause. It was our desire to prosecute an active summer's campaign in tent services here, but after repeated efforts we were forced to succumb to the inevitable, as we could secure no tent. I hope that another year, whoever is located in Council Bluffs, will be able to put in four or five months of continuous tent work. As it is, we can do nothing in the way of protracted efforts before September. I expect then to commence a series of meetings that will continue all fall in different parts of the city.

During the past month or so I have been giving Book of Mormon lectures each Sunday evening, which have been seemingly appreciated, as evidenced by the increased attendance. There are quite a number of members here who are active and earnest and are doing all they can to help themselves and others, while some seem content to drift along doing nothing very bad and nothing very good. The branch lacks representatives of the lesser priesthood; we have very few who are active. Those who years ago acted in this capacity are now getting old and it is not to be expected that they labor as in years ago. We need young and middle aged men who are able and active. Our sisters are to be commended in the organization and prosecution of a Daughters of Zion society. May it live until it bears fruitage in corrected parentage, perfected generation, and untrammelled posterity! Quite an interest is manifested in our Sunday school, yet there is room for more. Bro. Arthur Dempsey, one of the most zealous and willing workers, is superintendent. Our Zion's Religio-Literary Society has been doing nicely, but adjourned recently until September 7th. It is substituted by a series of sociables to increase acquaintance and replenish the treasury.

Bro. Beebe has presided over the branch for years and one has only to attend the business meeting for the election of officers to learn that his work is appreciated. There are quite a number of Danish members here and while I never had any association with the Danish people before, I must say that my acquaintance has but ripened respect and confidence, as they produce some of the members of the branch. Elder Frank Peterson is quite able, and were it not that his work demanded his time he could do much good. There are others equally earnest but too many to name all. Elder D. K. Dodson bestows most of his labor in Crescent and vicinity, his appointed field. Bro. Robert McKenzie in connection with Samuel Harding answers the calls for preaching in the country surrounding Council Bluffs. L. P. Jensen has been laboring some among the Danish people; but I must now stop although we have many equally honorable Saints that space will not permit us to mention.

Elder Charles Derry, our missionary in charge (and by the way he makes a good one, at least I think so, for I have found him ever ready to act as a father in giving advice when sought for and in bestowing counsel when necessary) is held in high esteem in this district. He has the courage to express his convictions, the stamina to reprove a brother to his face and not to stab him behind his back. Would to God we were all that way! There would be less hypocrisy, deceit, and misunderstanding in the world.

The Saints are looking for Bro. Blair ere long. We would remind Bro. A. H. Smith that although his mission field is quite extensive yet Council Bluffs is one of the important centers and we will surely expect a visit from him either before or after the reunions. And, Bro. Joseph, I hear the expression quite frequently, "Why don't Bro. Joseph visit us? I wonder if he is coming out here this fall?" With the interest we have

I am satisfied it would do good for each and all of you to visit us. We would like to jog Bro. Joseph Luff's memory that we are still waiting for that sermon he didn't preach for us last fall. We would be pleased to have any of the ministry call on us when they can make it at all convenient, and even if it occasions a little inconvenience we will be pleased to have you come anyway.

With face Zionward, your brother in Christ,
T. W. WILLIAMS.

JANESVILLE, Minn., August 6.

Editors Herald:—Elders J. A. Davis and E. A. Stedman have been with us since Friday evening, leaving this morning for West Concord. We tried to secure an opening here, but failed to obtain a public building, the Methodist people refusing us their church and the authorities asked so much for the hall that we could not secure that. They held forth in a private house on Saturday night and over Sunday. We feel that they did good among us, strengthening the few Saints at least. There are seven of us here. We hold meetings every Sunday in private houses. We invite any of the elders coming this way to call on us. We hope to secure a public building and permanent opening in the near future. In bonds, CLAUDE C. DAY.

OSTERDOCK, Iowa, Aug. 11.

Editors Herald:—I will give a brief description of my trip through Fayette and Floyd counties and a part of Butler since my departure from home the first of July: On my journey my first stop was at Grove Hill, where I preached twice to good congregations and found the Saints all very hopeful for the future and strong in the faith. I then went to Clarksville and Bristow, where I secured houses and homes for some of our elders, and as it is in the Des Moines district I shall request that some of our elders stop and preach to them. They will find a home and help by calling on Jacob Kephart at Bristow, and Charles Kephart at Clarksville. I am greatly interested in the two places; I have many relatives there that have never heard this latter-day gospel.

I then went to Powersville, Floyd county, where I met some of the largest-hearted Saints I ever met and a goodly number of friends outside of the church, who showed their friendship by going down in their pockets to assist us on our way. I visited there two weeks and preached to them all I could, but as the majority of them were farmers and in the midst of harvest, the attendance was not as large as would have been had it been any other time of the year; but I had the pleasure of leading two noble persons, husband and wife, into the baptismal waters.

From there I went to Randalia, Fayette county, where I found some noble Saints, but somewhat discouraged, as the results of some bad sectarian move which I think will destroy the work there for a time; but I think there is a good chance for some effectual work to be done there in the surrounding country.

I then came to Brush Creek, where I found

Bro. B. F. Miller and others strong in the work, though I could not hold meeting on week days and evenings, on account of the busy times. I then came to Wood, where I left Bro. O. B. Thomas five weeks before. I found that O. B. had endeared himself very much to that people, and I am assured the good seed he has sown there will bring forth much fruit for the Master's kingdom.

Yours truly,
W. H. KEPHART.

LIVINGSTON, Wis., Aug. 10.

Editors Herald:—I received the Herald for August 8 last night and was a little surprised to find my article on dancing in print, as I had written August 2 (so far as I now remember) inclosing stamp for the return of said article. My letter must have reached Lamoni by Saturday the 4th or Monday the 6th, in time to stop its publication in the issue of the 8th. I had previously received word that if the article was published as it was, it would be noticed editorially. The exact words written by the editor himself are these: "If you care to have it put in with such notice I will publish." I presumed from that that it would be held for my reply. I answered upon receipt of the letter that I did not care to run against the editorial pen, or words to that effect, and that there were some things I wished I had not sent in the former article, especially that part referring to Lamoni and other personalities. I waited for its return but instead I received the Herald with the original article in print, and not the one I would have had published after receiving the word from the editor. Why it was not held for further orders, as indicated by the editor's letter, or why my wish to have it returned was not complied with I do not know. Had either been done there would have been no room for complaint on the part of the editor or others.

After sending the article I obtained more knowledge of the facts in the case which would have caused me to cut out the very things objected to in the editorial, as well as other things. I found that I had misunderstood the situation, and wishing to deal with the matter in a less personal manner I ordered it returned. I had no idea of its being published so soon, for I knew of other articles awaiting publication. Just why this one should have the precedence I do not know. I do not want to charge the Saints or anyone wrongfully, and if anything appears in my article that does so I beg pardon.

That there was a dancing club in Lamoni and that Saints attended is not denied I believe, though I see the Herald calls it the "one o'clock club." I understood the word ball should come in between the words o'clock and club, making the name of the society the "one o'clock ball club." The name is significant. If you will allow me to interpret my own language, Bro. Editor, I will say I did not intend to implicate the church officers local or general in the organization of said club, as you intimate in your editorial, but spoke in a general way of the existence of such a club among the Saints at that place. I did not say all the Saints there danced, but it seems to me if it were permitted to continue the officers and all were responsible for its continued existence. I have learned since, however, that the club was not organized by the Saints, but that Saints attended and sometimes there were only a few "Gentiles" present. I was glad to learn even that much. It was a burden I became weary of bearing. The officers certainly have a right to handle the members for unchristianlike conduct, and if I am not mistaken there is a resolution on record to the effect that dancing should be considered unchristian. Bro. Wildermuth and others agree with me that there is such a resolution as an action of General Conference, but if there is not it is none the less clear that it is unchristian—contrary to the example of Christ.

There seems to be sufficient to sustain that point in the Scripture and to this intent was the article written. I inquired if an effort had been made to handle members who were also members of the ball club and so far as I learned there had not been. I may have been to blame for not inquiring more diligently and that too of the officers themselves, but I considered my evidence sufficient. If it was not of course then I am the loser. My case depended upon the testimony of my witnesses, and so far their testimony seems to be true, that there was such a club there and that some of the Saints were members. This is all I intended to say in my article.

My language in the article does not indicate to me what the editor seems to see in it. The words in the editorial purporting to be mine, are not mine, or at least, they were not all I said in that sentence. Two words were cut off which changes the meaning. On page 511, first column, I said: "I go out with shamefacedness and dare not affirm that the 'Reorganization' is in harmony with the word of God in practice." But when quoted in the editorial, the words "in practice" are cut off, carrying the thought that the church officers organized the club, thus making it a matter of organization instead of practice. Had those words been inserted it would have shown that only so far as the practice of dancing was concerned was I unable to harmonize it with the word of God.

I am not the less convinced that dancing is just what I claimed for it, "one cause for spiritual death, and a sign of apostasy;" but I regret for several reasons that I wrote so hastily, and I am sorry my article was not returned for correction. I ought to have examined the matter more closely.

If, because of any of these things or the personalities indulged in, any have been offended, I ask their forgiveness and promise to profit by my experience already dearly bought.

I subscribe myself an uncompromising foe to all things which militate against the salvation of man as I see it.

THE REVELATION OF APRIL, 1894.

IN some respects the revelation of last April is one of the most unique documents ever accepted by the latter-day church, as a revelation from God. Some of its statements cannot be made to harmonize with existing facts without a careful consideration of the peculiarities of the situation which rendered the giving of such a communication necessary. Opposite views were entertained on some points of doctrine, involving church polity, and were strongly advocated by many on both sides, who were, without doubt, equally honest in their convictions. Some of these, we have reason to believe, would have had their faith terribly shaken, if not destroyed, had the Lord not given something which (to them) appeared to favor their side of the controversy. Thus God, in his wonderful condescension, made an effort to save his people, though some of them might be in error; and the document given must be regarded as a manifestation of divine wisdom and love.

I do not believe it is saying too much to affirm that no man can harmonize all the statements of this revelation with themselves, and with all the facts in the case, as they do and have existed, who advocates an opposite view from the one herein set forth. (See paragraph 5 of the revelation, also the action of the joint council thereon.)

The only fair inference to be drawn from the action of the quorums, and the church in General Conference assembled, is that all of them believed the revelation to be divine. The final vote is thus presented to us, in the conference minutes, after the revelation had been indorsed by all the quorums:—

Then it was placed before the remainder of the assembly and by them was sustained, and finally before the whole body of ministry and members in the conference, and by a standing vote it was unanimously accepted as the voice of the Lord to his people.—Con. Min. pp. 52, 53.

From the above statements, it may be seen by anyone that the revelation was not "placed on probation for one year," so far as a belief in its divine origin is concerned; but that all accepted it as a revelation from God. Now it is the opinion of the writer, that after a purported revelation has received such an indorsement as was given the communication of April, 1894, any extra effort to sustain with props and stays in the shape of individual testimonies—dreams, visions, etc., which were given to meet individual demands—is superfluous, and serves to furnish the critical looker-on with indubitable evidence of weakness, either in the document to be acted upon, or in the persons making the efforts referred to. I have been both tried and humiliated by such efforts more than once. I do not believe that the revelation referred to above is such a weak affair as to need any extra props or stays lest it fall into eternal oblivion.

The responsibility of passing upon that which claims to be revelation from God to his people is very great; and, to my mind, it implies upon the part of the ministry, in particular, and especially the leading quorums, the necessity of careful and prayerful examination. The sentiment expressed must be in harmony with all other revelations which have been accepted by the church; it must be in agreement with facts as they are and have been; its purposes, and the manner of reaching them, must be worthy of, or commensurate with the character of the infinite God with whom we deal, and who is the sole object of our faith. Men differ in their mental constitutions as they do in their physical, and God deals with them according to the peculiarities of each individual case. Some are satisfied when they have laid a matter before the Lord, and in answer to prayer, received the testimony of the Spirit; others begin to examine, with prayer, and are not satisfied until they receive such inspiration in their hearts and in their minds as will enable them to see evidences of divine wisdom, love, and power in the document which asks to be admitted as a revelation from God. This will explain why some required more time than others before they were willing to indorse the revelation of last April; though it is but fair to admit that, for various reasons, some of the latter class may be prepared to act sooner than others. Those who get at these important matters in the way herein indicated are not less staunch and persistent defenders of the revelations of God than their brethren.

I can find nothing in the minutes of the conference that indicates that the revelation was "placed on probation for one year," but I do find, as already shown, that "it was unanimously accepted as the voice of the Lord to his people."

It is true that the conference refused to order the publication of the revelation in the next edition of the Doctrine and Covenants. But what of that? The refusal to order its publication, at that time (or at any other time for that matter) does not nullify the previous action of the church in accepting the revelation as divine. Revelations were given through the first seer which were never published in the Doctrine and Covenants; and so far as I know, last spring was the first time in the history of the Reorganized Church when it was sought to order the publication of a revelation at the time it given. Accepting the revelation as divine is one thing, while an order to publish in the Doctrine and Covenants, and publish now, is another thing. Respectfully,

J. R. LAMBERT.

THOUGHTS ON THE RESURRECTION.

BY ELDER H. P. CURTIS.

WHY should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?—Acts 26: 8.

This language was addressed to King Agrippa, before whom the Apostle Paul was permitted to speak for himself concerning the things he had been teaching among the Jews. That doctrine taught by Paul, of which the resurrection of the dead was a principle, caused the Jews to have the apostle brought before the several courts of the Jews. The doctrine of the resurrection was largely questioned by those who listened to Paul's preaching and was probably one of the principles of the gospel of Christ that was hardest to get people to comprehend and believe that the natural body would again come forth from the grave. It seemed to conflict so much with human philosophy. In Acts 17:18 we read that those philosophers of the Epicureans and Stoics considered Paul to be advocating a strange God and doctrine, because he preached unto them Jesus and the resurrection. They did not believe it because it failed to harmonize with their man-made philosophy.

We read in Acts 23: 6-8, where Paul was brought before the council and where he declared:—

I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: of the hope and resurrection of the dead I am called in question.

If Paul was a Pharisee in belief and hope of the resurrection, what constituted the belief of the Pharisee? The Saducees believed contrary to the Pharisees, saying, "There is no resurrection, neither angel nor spirit, but the Pharisees confess both." The Pharisees held to the literal interpretation of the law of Moses and the prophets, believed in spiritual manifestation, in the preexistence and immortality of the soul, and in the resurrection of the dead. As Christ and the apostles found opposition to the teaching of the literal resurrection, so I find at the present time: we have the same objections to meet, the same human philosophy contradicting it. Most creeds do not teach it; preachers do not preach it. All Christians believe in a future existence after death; not only Christians, but most every intelligent mind has conceived a hope of future life, and that conception has brought forth numerous human theories, opinions, and beliefs in regard to future life. But when the resurrection is taught in its plainness, as in the times of Paul some say it is a strange doctrine. And we ask, Why think it a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?

Does the Bible teach that there will be a literal resurrection of the body? We think so.

Job said that in the latter days (evidently meaning in the millennium) after his body was destroyed he would yet in his flesh see God. (Job 19: 25, 26.) Job had faith that though he died he would be brought to see God in his flesh on the earth. Human philosophy says it can't be done; but Job believed it would be done. Isaiah plainly says "the earth shall cast out her dead." (Isa. 26:19.) The Prophet Ezekiel also speaks plainly concerning the resurrection of the whole house of Israel. (Ezek. 37:1-14.) The question was asked, could those dry bones live again? the answer is so plain: The Lord said he would lay sinews upon them, and bring flesh upon them, and cover them with skin. Would that be a literal resurrection? If not, why did the Lord say when they feared being lost because they were cut off from their parts (or bodies), "O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel?"

What was placed in the grave? It was the body. What will come out again? The body. Will there be a new body created in the grave for the purpose of a resurrection, or will the watchcare of God be over them to preserve them until that body is redeemed and raised again? Which looks the most reasonable? "Precious in the eyes of God is the death of his saints;" and why not his watchcare be over the body as well as the spirit? We read in Matthew 27:50-53, that when Christ had given up the ghost the earth did quake, and the rocks rent and the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after Christ rose. How did Christ rise? Did not his body come out of the tomb, and does not Matthew say the bodies of the saints came out of the graves. Who says there was any difference in that resurrection? Christ appeared unto many and convinced them that it was his body by showing himself and the nail prints and wounds in his side. So also did the Saints that arose appear to many.

We read in Doctrine and Covenants, section 85, par. 4:—

And the spirit and the body is the soul of man. And the resurrection from the dead is the redemption of the soul.

If the soul of man is to be redeemed by the resurrection, will not both spirit and body come forth? Is not death a separation of spirit and body? and is not resurrection a reuniting of spirit and body as promised to the Saints of God? Who shall be resurrected? Doctrine and Covenants section 85, paragraph 4:—

And the redemption of the soul is through him who quickeneth all things in whose bosom it is decreed, that the poor and the meek of the earth shall inherit it. Therefore, it must needs be sanctified from all unrighteousness, that it may be prepared for the celestial glory.

From the foregoing we learn that man must be sanctified from all unrighteousness (or wrongdoing), and that sanctification is brought about through the law given unto us, even the law of Christ.

And they who are not sanctified through the law which I have given unto you, even the law of Christ, must inherit another kingdom.—D. C. 85:5.

That law is the gospel law. If we keep that law we are justified before God, and prepared for the celestial glory, and are of a celestial spirit.

We read again:—

They who are of a celestial spirit shall receive the same body, which was a natural body.—D. C. 85:6.

Now that comes very near being a literal resurrection, does it not? And there is a condition attached thereunto; that is, they must be "of a celestial spirit." We must have that celestial spirit. What is that spirit? We read in Romans 8:11:—

But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you.

It was the Spirit of God that raised up Christ, and that same Spirit will quicken our mortal bodies providing it dwells in us. Our mortal body is that which is placed in the grave, and it is that which will be quickened; and we will receive the same body, which was a natural body if we are of a celestial spirit, which is the Spirit of God. How do we receive this Spirit? Paul went to Ananias to be told what to do. Ananias told him to arise and be baptized, to wash away his sins. When Paul was baptized he came forth cleansed from all his sins, sanctified, holy, pure as a babe; made so through obedience to the law of Christ, the gospel law. Then when Ananias had laid his hands upon him Paul was born of the Spirit. What Spirit? The Spirit of God, the Holy Ghost that Peter said "ye shall receive;" that Spirit of God that dwelt in Christ and raised him from the dead, which will also quicken our mortal bodies providing it dwells in us, which is made possible through the obedience of the gospel.

And because there is no other law given for the redemption of the soul, this gospel was preached to the spirits in prison, that were disobedient as mentioned in 1 Peter 3: 19, 20; 4: 6. The effect of the gospel being preached there will be seen in Doctrine and Covenants, section 85, paragraph 28:—

And after this, another angel shall sound, which is the second trump; and then cometh the redemption of those who are Christ's at his coming; who have received their part in that prison which is prepared for them, that they might receive the gospel, and be judged according to men in the flesh.

Now let us see if we can get the order of the resurrection:—

For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming.—1 Cor. 15: 22, 23.

We learn that Christ was the firstfruits, and that there will be a resurrection at his coming. We read of this elsewhere:—

For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord.—1 Thess. 4: 16, 17.

(See also Doctrine and Covenants, section 85, paragraph 27.)

We now have this order of the resurrection: Christ the first fruits, then the saints at Christ's coming, and those that obeyed the gospel in the prison.

Now let us notice Paul's saying in 1 Corinthians 15: 24:—

Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father.

Now this is at the close of the millennium, and is noted by several events: death shall be destroyed, the last trump is sounded, the angel shall declare time to be no more, and judgment is given.

And again, another trump shall sound, which is the third trump; and then cometh the spirits [not souls] of men who are to be judged, and are found under condemnation; and these are the rest of the dead, and they live not again until the thousand years are ended, neither again, until the end of the earth.—D. C. 85: 29.

So we see the spirits of these are to come forth and are to be found under condemnation; also that their bodies are to lie unredeemed. Why? Because there was not the Spirit of God dwelling in them, that quickened the body of Christ; and also the saints at his coming.

We notice in Doctrine and Covenants, section 85, paragraph 6:—

And the righteous shall inherit it [the earth]; for, notwithstanding they die, they also shall rise again a spiritual body: they who are of a celestial spirit shall receive the same body, which was a natural body.

We notice, here, that bodies are to be raised in two ways: one a natural body, a literal resurrected body; while the other is raised a spiritual body. Who were raised a spiritual body? The righteous. Who are righteous? We read in Matthew 25: 34-40 a description of the last judgment. Two parties are spoken of and compared to sheep and goats. Speaking of the sheep, Christ says:—

Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

He tells them of their good deeds, and the righteous are surprised. If they had been saints they would have known of those deeds. We also discover that they were good men that administered to the wants of Christ's people or disciples. They were not saints evidently. If they were, why were they arraigned before the judgment at the last days? Their inheritance was prepared from the foundation of the world. Christ went to prepare a place for his saints.

Let us again notice 1 Corinthians 15: 34, 35:—

Awake to righteousness, and sin not; for some have not the knowledge of God. . . . Some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?

Paul is not talking now of the saints, for he makes a distinction here. He refers to "some man," and not "brother," and afterward in the thirty-sixth verse he calls him a "fool." Paul is not in the habit of calling his brethren fools. If he had, he would have come in "danger of the judgment." Let us notice now; Paul does not refer here, in any regard whatever to the condition of the saints of God, but does refer in some of the following verses to the condition of man who comes under the general judgment. He tells him in verse 37 that he sows not that body that shall be, and in verse 38 tells him God will give him a body as it hath pleased him and that the glory of it will probably be according as his works have been. He tells him in verses 40 and 41 something about the difference in the glories of those bodies, and tells him that as one star differs from another star in glory so also is the resurrection of the dead. He continues to state how he has sown in corruption and dishonor, but through the goodness of God he will be raised to incorruption and to glory whatever that glory may be. Maybe he has given a cup of cold water; if he has, he will get his reward. Finally he tells him as follows in verse 44:—

It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body.

No literal resurrection there, is there? Why? Because he had not the celestial spirit or the Spirit of God dwelling in him; for he had been sowing largely to corruption and dishonor. Now let us notice verse 50. Paul is again talking to the brethren and not to the fool. He says:—

Now, this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God.

What does that mean? It means that neither flesh nor blood can inherit the kingdom of God. When do the saints inherit the kingdom of God? Not until after the millennium, Doctrine and Covenants 85:33:—

And again, another angel shall sound his trump, which is the seventh angel, saying: it is finished! it is finished! the Lamb of God hath overcome, and trodden the wine press alone; even the wine press of the fierceness of the wrath of Almighty God; and then shall the angels be crowned with the glory of his might, and the saints shall be filled with his glory, and receive their inheritance and be made equal with him [Christ].

When shall the saints receive their inheritance? When it (the work of Christ) is finished, and the victory won over death, hell, and the grave. In 1 Corinthians 15:51, Paul says:—

Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed.

Why changed? Because flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God. When shall we be changed? Verse fifty-two reads:—

At the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we [the saints] shall all be changed.

Who are the dead? (Remember this is at the close of the millennium.) They are those that live not until after the thousand years; those that remain asleep. They shall be raised incorruptible. How is this? Is it a literal resurrection? No. Paul says it was sown a natural body, but raised a spiritual body; and spirit is incorruptible. The Doctrine and Covenants says that "notwithstanding they die, they also shall rise again a spiritual body." In Revelation 20:12, 13, John says:—

I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; . . . and the dead were judged. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them.

Was there a raising of the literal body here spoken of? I think not. True, John says the sea gave up the dead. He also says in Revelation 13:1 that he saw a beast rise up out of the sea. Is it not believed that "sea" spoken of here means the people? Does not the "sea" spoken of in prophecy always mean to represent the people of the earth living at that time? If so, why not the same meaning here? Would we not then conclude that it was those who were living at the close of the thousand years, who had not yet received the gospel? John says there will be some who will compass the camp of the saints. We understand that death and hell delivered up their dead, also that hell is the prison of the spirits of men; so no bodies came from it, but the spirits did.

But what about the body? Paul says in 1 Corinthians 15:38:—

But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him.

Suffice to say, it is incorruptible. And the saints who have possessed their bodies through the millennium shall be changed. Paul says, "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality;" and when this is accomplished "then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory." Hence now is the victory won over death, hell, and the grave. It is finished; death and hell are destroyed in the lake of fire, according to John the Revelator (Rev. 20:14), and the victory won at the close of the thousand years. Angels shall be crowned and saints shall receive their inheritance; hence, in the thoughts advanced promise of a literal resurrection of the body is only given to the saints or those who live the gospel law and obtain the birth of the Spirit; and that body is to be changed at the end of the thousand years' reign with Christ on earth, and the saints shall inherit the kingdom. As to the nature of that change we might consider the transfiguration of Christ on the mount as a type of that most glorious body that shall be.

J. McCarty superintendent, John Johnson secretary. The reports of the treasurer and secretary of the literary exchange were read, adopted, and the committee on literary exchange sustained. Report of treasurer was as follows: On hand March 9, 1894, $13.46; expended 80 cents; on hand June 8, $12.66. Of the committee on literary exchange: Have sent out during the three months ending June 8, 50 Heralds, 36 sermons, 80 tracts, 10 Hopes, and 40 Ensigns. On hand March 9, 1894, 25 cents; received from association 50 cents; expended 50 cents; on hand June 8, 25 cents. The resignation of Sr. Bozarth was accepted. Sr. Anna Flower was appointed as member of the committee on literary exchange. It was resolved that the term of office of each member of the literary exchange be a period of twelve months hereafter. Resolved that the literary exchange be empowered to appoint agents, one or more in each branch, within the boundary of the Independence district, also that said literary exchange may send the literature to any place they think best, the boundaries in sending our literature be unlimited. An interesting and instructive programme was rendered in the evening consisting of music, vocal and instrumental, essays, readings, etc., at the close of which it was resolved that the district superintendent or his assistant, as they may agree, visit all the schools in the district during the next three months and draw on the treasury for expenses. Adjourned to meet at ten a. m. of the day preceding the next quarterly conference at same place of conference. On motion the district superintendent, his assistant, and the secretary were authorized to select a committee on programme for our next convention.

TITHING.

To the Saints in Colorado, Greeting:—Having been appointed Bishop's agent for this State I feel like Peter did on one occasion when he said, I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth. Yea, I think it meet to stir you up by putting you in remembrance of the grave responsibility that is resting upon us as Latter Day Saints in seeing that the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ is carried forth to the people; and the gospel will not spread by faith alone, for James said that faith without works is dead, being alone. Therefore we need something more than the faith and prayers of the Saints, for that alone will not send the missionaries abroad. It requires means as well as the prayers of the Saints, and for this reason the Lord has said, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house," to feed the families of the elders while they are going forth with the word of life to the people. And the Lord has said, "Prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your grounds; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts." Now this was the word of the Lord to ancient Israel; and, indeed, will it not apply to us as well as unto them? I believe it will, therefore we must not lose faith and confidence in the promises that God has made because of hard times. Our faith and confidence should increase in the glorious promises that he has made unto his people, because we know that he is true and faithful to fulfil all the promises that he has made unto his people. And again we are taught by the wise man, Solomon, to "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase: so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine."—Prov. 3: 9, 10. I also read in 2 Chronicles 31: 5 that as soon as the commandment came abroad the children of Israel brought in abundance the first fruits of corn, wine, and oil, and honey; and of all the increase of the field and the tithe of all things brought they in abundantly. And after the people brought their tithes and offerings then it was that they had enough to eat and plenty left, for the Lord had blessed his people. Is he not the same God to-day and just as ready to bless his people? I believe that he is if we are worthy of his blessings; and I find in the 20th verse that when Hezekiah wrought that which was good and right and truth before the Lord his God, and honored the law and kept the commandments, then he was prospered.

Now, dear Saints, if we want prosperity to attend us must we not honor the law and keep the commands that the Lord has given unto us? Then we shall be entitled to all the blessings that he has promised. Read the 28th chapter of Deuteronomy and see what the Lord said to his people in former times: "If thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe and to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the Lord thy God will set thee on high above all nations of the earth." And will he not lift us up too? He said that he would open unto them his good treasure, the heavens to give the rain unto their land in his season, and bless all the work of their hands. Will he not bless us in like manner as he blessed them if we keep his commandments in deed? It is written that the willing and obedient shall eat the good of the land (Isaiah 1: 19), and the Lord has truly said in Deuteronomy 14: 22, "Thou shalt truly tithe all the increase of thy seed, that the field bringeth forth year by year." And again I read in Leviticus 27: 30: "And all the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's: it is holy unto the Lord." Then what right have we to use that which is the Lord's only for his work? We must keep the commandments that God has given us if we want the blessings; and indeed this is one of them, for I read in Doctrine and Covenants on page 193, "Behold, now it is called to-day (until the coming of the Son of Man), and verily it is a day of sacrifice, and a day for the tithing of my people; for he that is tithed shall not be burned (at his coming)."

And now we all feel that his coming is very near. Then let us be up and doing so that we may escape the burning, is my prayer. Then again I read in Leviticus 26: 3-5: "If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them; then I will give you rain in due season, and the land shall yield her increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit. And your threshing shall reach unto the vintage, and the vintage shall reach unto the sowing time: and ye shall eat your bread to the full, and dwell in your land safely." O what a glorious promise is this, made by the God of heaven that cannot lie. Is it not worth striving for?

May God help us all, then, to see the necessity of keeping the law and his commandments, that we may receive all those blessings that God has promised to give, for I believe we all need them. Yours in hope,

JAMES KEMP.

HUTCHINSON, Colorado, Aug. 4, 1894.

NEW ENGLAND REUNION.

August 10 found a goodly number of Saints assembled at Tenant's Harbor, Maine, the place chosen for this year's gathering. East and West, that is Maine and Massachusetts delegations united early in the morning at Rockland and after numerous handshakings were conveyed to the reunion grounds by the little steamer "Silver Star." Upon arrival, a general scramble for boarding places was first in order on the part of the majority, while the minority pitched their tents and commenced camp life. The evening found all things in readiness for opening service. Bro. F. M. Sheehy preached the introductory sermon and was assisted by Bro. W. H. Kelley.

Saturday, August 10.—A meeting for organization took place at ten a. m. in the large tent, Brn. W. H. Kelley and G. H. Gates in the chair. Brn. W. H. Kelley, F. M. Sheehy, and U. W. Greene were chosen presidents of the reunion. Bro. M. F. Gowell was chosen secretary with Bro. Orrin Coombs assistant. Other officers were Sr. Lenora Ashton, organist, Brn. T. H. Summerfield, Herbert Raymond, and Charles Coombs a committee to preserve order; Bro. Orrin Coombs chorister; Brn. Arthur Crocker, George Smith, and John Suttell ushers. At 7: 30 p. m. Bro. Henry C. Smith of Iowa spoke on the subject "Faith in God."

Sunday, August 12.—At 10: 45 Bro. W. H. Kelley was the speaker assisted by Bro. George Smith; in the afternoon Bro. U. W. Greene assisted by Bro. W. H. Kelley, and in the evening Bro. F. M. Sheehy assisted by Bro. Charles Coombs. The attendance was large for the two latter services. So far everything has moved along pleasantly. Tenant's Harbor being a new place as concerns reunions, and but two or three Saints living in or near the town, doubts of success were entertained; but it was thought by the movers that the wall of prejudice existing might be broken down to a considerable extent and more good result than if held at any other point. We are hoping and not without reason that the end may justify the committee's judgment. The services of the day were preceded by a baptism at the steamboat wharf. Bro. George Suttell being the candidate, Elder Charles Coombs officiating. From nine to 10: 30 a. m. social meeting occupied the time. A good season was enjoyed; young and old testified with clearness, eloquence, and power to what they knew; and the thought occurred to the writer, as at other such assemblies of the Saints: "Every member a preacher; every testimony a sermon;" such is the work of God. The cornet so beautifully played by Bro. Orrin Coombs has been a feature of the reunion so far. More anon,

M. F. GOWELL.

REDUCED RATES TO GENERAL REUNION.

Reduced railroad rates to Logan reunion September 8 to 16 have been granted over C. and N. W., S. C. and P., Burlington, Cedar Rapids, and Northern, and C. R. I. and P. Get receipt with certificate attached from your local agents. Those on C. R. I. and P. coming to Perry or Council Bluffs get receipts entitling them to continuation on C. and N. W. or other roads mentioned, and these extend to main roads and their branches in Iowa. Be sure and take receipt, and when signed by reunion committee's secretary and agent you will be entitled to one and one third fare, and it cannot be unless you do. Be sure and comply so that number of tickets will be above the minimum.

A. M. FYRANDO, Sec. Com.

GENERAL CHURCH REUNION.

Some have asked, Will the reunion at Logan be held? We answer, It will, God blessing us to that end. It begins September 8, 1894, continuing until the 17th. All that can be done for hay, wood, water, and post office accommodations will be done. Brn. Joseph Smith, W. W. Blair, A. H. Smith, C. Scott, H. A. Stebbins of Lamoni; Joseph Luff of Independence, J. S. Roth of Grinnell, T. W. Williams of Council Bluffs, with a large corps of able assistants are expected. Expenses will be made as light as possible, and if you study economy it need not cost you much more to come than to remain at home. Come in old-fashioned style temporally and spiritually. You do not need to move all household effects, and spend time and money in "fixing up." To be clean, neat, and spiritual is what will tell. Who knows but what drought may humble and unite us so that we will be in a frame of mind, that God by his Spirit may give us the most essential of our sustenance—"spiritual blessing."

Yours respectfully in invitation to come,
Reunion Committee.

A. M. FYRANDO, Sec.

BEWARE OF HIM.

In Southern California a man about thirty-five years of age, weighing about 135 pounds, with black hair and moustache, right foot a clubfoot, has been getting small sums of money from the Saints, claiming to be a member of the church himself. In Los Angeles he gave his name as Reed, in Santa Ana, McKinsy, and came from Bakersfield. In San Bernardino it was Sumner and he said he was from Mexico. I write this as a warning to the Saints.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Aug. 7, 1894.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Galland's Grove district conference will convene at the Saints' chapel, Galland's Grove, Iowa, October 12, at 10: 30 a. m., continuing over Sunday. Saturday afternoon and evening will be devoted to Sunday school work, as usual, under the direction of R. Wight and others.

The time of holding this conference has been changed from November 16 to October 12 at the earnest solicitation of a number of elders and the consent of a majority of the branches within the district. Branch officers will please see that their branch reports are forwarded in due time. A cordial invitation is extended to the president of the mission and any other missionaries, elders, and Saints who may choose to attend.

C. E. BUTTERWORTH, Pres.

BENAN, Iowa, August 9.

The Kewanee district conference will convene at the Buffalo Prairie branch, Mercer county, Illinois, Saturday, September 1, 1894, at ten o'clock. All those who come by railroad will be met at Joy, Illinois, by Buffalo Prairie Saints with teams Friday evening. Millersburg branch requests that Brn. Pitt and Chisnall hold services at the Millersburg branch on Friday evening. Conveyance will meet them at Aledo, Illinois.

To the Saints of Southern Missouri district:—I have just received information from the brethren at Woodside, stating that under the existing circumstances of White Cap law and mob government of that part of the country they believe it would be unwise to try and hold conference at that point at the present. Persecution is rampant; threats are plentiful; small deeds of violence are constantly increasing, such as throwing rocks at Saints' preachers; cutting up the Saints' watermelons, treading down the corn, and in many ways fulfilling the words of Paul, "Despisers of those that are good." After consulting with others of the priesthood, and from a kind invitation from the Saints of the Burnham branch to remove the conference to that point, and believing it would be dangerous to try and hold conference at Woodside at the present, and the language of our Savior is, "If they persecute you in one city flee ye to another," I do not know whether I have authority to change it or not and have not time to find out, so I will run the risk and say the coming conference will be held at Burnham, Missouri, August 31, commencing at ten a. m. All come. Let us have a profitable time.

HENRY SPARLING, Pres.

The Southern Indiana district conference will convene with the Byrneville branch, October 13, 1894, instead of October 27, as there was a mistake in the minutes of our last conference. So, then, as the Lord has so abundantly blessed us with two good conferences, let us come with one heart and one soul to build up the one cause. Leave self at home. Bring the Lord Christ with you, so that our labors will be jointly together with him so that our reward will be rich. As ever your colaborer with Christ,

JAMES G. SCOTT.

REUNION NOTICES.

The reunion of the Northern and Central districts of California will convene at San Jose, California, September 28, and hold to the 7th of October inclusive. Arrangements have been made with the railroad company to get one third return rates if the attendant uses the certificates which can be had of me by the time this appears. The attendant must sign the certificate and have the agent sign at time of purchasing ticket to San Jose. Pay full fare going, and return for one third, if fifty certificates are used. Let all use the certificates so as to help others. In bonds,

C. A. PARKIN, Bishop's agent,
Northern California district.

3010 Sixteenth St., San Francisco, Cal.

The reunion committee of the Northern Missouri and Southern Iowa reunion to be held at Maysville, Missouri, commencing August 24, have made arrangements for those bringing teams, to have feed, such as hay, straw, oats, and corn on the ground at a reasonable price. Remember this part of Missouri has a very fair crop. By order of committee,

C. P. FAUL.

NOTICES.

To all whom it may concern:—I took the addresses of several of the brethren at General Conference and have got them misplaced. They desired to know of the country in the regions of Harrisonville, Cass county, Missouri.

I would just say to all, that we have as fine a country in the vicinity of Harrisonville as can be found in Missouri, and crops are good this year, and there are some farms being offered very reasonably, running from twenty to twenty-five dollars per acre, only thirty-five miles from Kansas City. Now is the time to buy; good limestone soil and water. My family resides five miles west of town on a farm.

To the Saints of Southern Illinois: Please remember the reunion at Brush Creek, commencing August 31 and holding over two Sundays. Come prepared to stay and camp on the ground. Good rains of late will make it pleasant in the grove for all. The Saints here are determined to make it a success. A cordial invitation is extended to the ministry and all who can come and assist us will find a warm reception.

EMSLEY CURTIS.

MAYSVILLE REUNION.

All expecting to attend the reunion at Maysville commencing the 24th inst. will please take notice that the undersigned have arranged to run an eating booth for the benefit of the church, wholly. Let all who can come prepared to patronize it. Meals will be served at the following rates: Single meals twenty-five cents; three meals' tickets sixty cents, or six tickets for one dollar. *Good cooks will be employed and substantial victuals served. "Good elders will deal out the spiritual food, and we will look after the temporal. Help us make a success of this for the church's sake.

WM. LEWIS,
J. M. TERRY.

TWO DAYS' MEETINGS.

A two days' meeting will be held at Henderson Grove, Illinois, in the Kewanee district, September 8 and 9. Will the Saints of other branches please take notice and come up to the help of the work in this branch and give the Saints of this place all the encouragement they can. Noted elders from a distance are expected. All brethren coming by railway will be met at Galesburg by notifying Bro. Hiram Williams, Soperville, Illinois; Bro. Roy Glass, North Henderson, Mercer county, Illinois; also Jacob Brown, Utah, Warren county, Illinois. Visiting brethren please take notice. Notify the committee by card.

JACOB BROWN,
President of branch.

By order of
JOHN CHISNALL,
Dist. Pres.

There will be a two days' meeting held at Boyne City, Charlevoix county, Michigan, on the 15th and 16th of September. All are cordially invited to come and have a good time. Bring baskets and help bear each others' burdens. We expect all the priesthood to come that can.

R. W. HUGILL, Pres., of branch.

DIED.

BRONSON.—Mary E., wife of Elder Hyrum C. Bronson, passed peacefully away early Sunday morning, August 12, 1894, at her home in St. Joseph, Missouri, after a sojourn upon earth of over fifty-four years, having been born at Princeville, Illinois, April 20, 1840. She was born again into the kingdom by the hand of Bro. J. F. Adams of Buffalo Prairie, Illinois, September 9, 1866. Thus near twenty-eight years of unwavering service was spent in the church, ever willing to deny self and suffer if need be for the gospel's sake. Through all these weary years she has toiled, and now she is at rest; and O, how sweet it must be to her! She leaves of her immediate relatives a husband, a daughter, and a son with a brother, and sisters, and other relatives and friends to mourn her loss. Before her death she selected her pallbearers and made many other arrangements for her funeral, selecting the elder to preach the sermon. The funeral was held in the church at 2:30 p. m. on the 13th, the sermon being by Elder J. M. Terry from Ps. 27: 4 with Luke 10:42. After the heat and toil and strife thou hast now entered the portals of life.

STOCKS.—Sr. Annie, wife of Bro. William Stocks, passed from this life July 29, 1894. She was born September 18, 1861, at Bridg-hampton, Sanilac county, Michigan. She leaves a husband, 6 children, mother, 4 sisters, 3 brothers, and a vast community of friends to mourn their loss. Sister Annie united with the Methodist Church at the age of fourteen and lived an exemplary member. At the age of nineteen she became convinced of the divinity of the restored gospel through the teachings of Elder J. J. Cornish, and was baptized by him October 16, 1877, remaining a faithful follower until her death, ever ready to stand for the truth. She was laid to rest in Au Sable cemetery, July 31, funeral sermon being preached by Elder Robert Davis from I Corinthians 15:55.

STEWART.—At Au Sable, Michigan, July 15, Mrs. Dora Stewart, daughter of Sister Christina Goodwin, aged 30 years, 10 months, 13 days.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 11.—An official crop statement covering the conditions to the middle of July has been issued. It says summer and winter wheats were in excellent condition. The millet and buckwheat crops were poor everywhere in Southern Russia. The first thrashings of wheat and barley gave yields of fifty per cent above the average.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The seizure of the island of Getsubito by the Russians is regarded in diplomatic circles as a practical declaration on the part of the Czar that he proposes to dip deeply and profitably into the Korean trouble. His agents have induced the Queen of Corea to ask Russian protection. These same Russian agents have practically divided the great families of Corea into two feudal factions and are playing off one against the other. Intelligence from St. Petersburg is to the effect that Russian naval and military activity is at its height. While China and Japan are fighting over the Korean bone the prospects now are that Russia will step in and seize it.

The fact that France and Russia are working in harmony regarding the Korean complication is looked upon as extremely significant. Their union of purpose places them in opposition to the policy outlined and agreed upon by the other great powers of Europe.

WARSAW, Aug. 11.—The great coal mines near Dombrowa, Government of Gradno, have been burning since yesterday afternoon. The fire started by an explosion of gas while the full force of men was under ground.

The main shaft was wrecked and comparatively few miners have been rescued. The latest report is that several hundred men are entombed and that all hope of saving them has been abandoned.

HERMOSILLO, Mex., Aug. 11.—The forces of government soldiers sent against the Yaqui Indians have met with defeat in all attacks so far made and the Indians, emboldened by their successes, are committing depredations upon the unprotected ranchmen. A courier has arrived here bringing news of an encounter between soldiers and Indians near the Village of Chiltepinas, which resulted in fifteen soldiers being killed and a large number wounded. The Indians lost about ten killed. The Indians ambushed the soldiers, and after firing one volley into their ranks fled into the mountains. The government will be asked to send reinforcements against the Yaquis.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 11.—Representative Haugen of Wisconsin has introduced a resolution for an investigation by the Committee on Commerce of the causes of railroad strikes and for recommendation of remedies. The resolution contemplates government control of railroads, declaring the inability of unassisted private enterprise to control transportation, which is essentially a public business, has been clearly demonstrated. The committee is to report under the resolution whether control by legislation short of government ownership will suffice to regulate the railroads for the interests of the public.

The wheat crop of Minnesota and the Dakotas is estimated at 125,000,000 bushels, the second largest yield those States have ever produced.

Copious rains fell in local districts in Illinois, in the Wabash Valley, Indiana, in Minnesota, and in Iowa and portions of Wisconsin, on the 10th and 11th inst.

Forest fires destroyed the business portion of the town of Waters Meet, Michigan, August 10. Loss estimated at $75,000.

Virginia militia surrounded the camp of the Coxeyites, Galvanites, and other members of the commonweal army at Roslyn and summoned them to surrender. Indications are that a majority of those captured will be put to work repairing roadways in the portion of the Old Dominion where they were encamped.

There are rumors of a renewal of trouble between Pittsburg coal operators and miners because the former continue to refuse to pay the amount named in the compromise agreement.

Up to August 11 the miners at Spring Valley, Illinois, were still holding out. The coal companies at La Salle, Peru, Ladd, Seatonville, and Laceyville have recognized the union and the men have gone to work. Streater operators have refused to reemploy Italian miners because of their riotous acts during the strike.

Strikers at Omaha have been cowed by the militia and work in the packing houses is proceeding without interruption.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—The trial of the thirty Anarchists before the Assizes Court ended to-day in the acquittal of all but three of the accused.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—The House of Representatives to-day passed the Senate tariff bill; and subsequently bills admitting sugar, iron, coal, and barbed wire on the free list were introduced and passed the House, but were referred to the finance committee by the Senate.

At present indications the cranberry crop of Ocean county, New Jersey, which last year aggregated 10,000 crates, will not equal half that quantity this year, and reports from other parts of the country look as though there will be a partial failure elsewhere. Private advices received by heavy growers say the crop in Wisconsin has been injured by the droughts, and Cape Cod growers say late frosts in the spring injured their yield nearly one half.

GENEVA, O., Aug. 13.—A genuine cyclone struck North Madison early this morning, devastating forests, orchards, buildings, growing crops, etc. The wind struck in near the lake and swept a path one hundred feet wide clear of everything in its way. Heavy hailstones accompanied the rain and smashed thousands of windows. All crops in the path of the storm were utterly destroyed by hail and wind together. The storm swept a path about three miles long. The loss will be heavy. So far as learned no person was seriously injured.

The House has concurred finally in the Senate amendment to one of the appropriation bills giving to each of the States and Territories which has desert lands within its limits such amount of those lands, not exceeding a million acres, as the State may cause to be irrigated, reclaimed, and cultivated by actual settlers within the next ten years. This is an experiment and it may take a little time to see how it will work. If it is successful then additional grants can be made.

The General Government has in the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Wyoming, and California 529,000,000 acres of what are known as desert lands, meaning thereby lands which cannot be cultivated without irrigation. The quantities vary by States from 13,000,000 acres in South Dakota to 74,000,000 in Montana. There is a constant and increasing pressure on Congress to do something for the reclamation of these lands.

LYONS, France, Aug. 16.—Anarchist Santo, the assassin of President Carnot, was guillotined in the front of the prison here at 4:55 o'clock this morning.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The evicted tenants bill has been rejected by the House of Lords by a vote of 249 to 30. The debate on the second reading of the bill in the House of Lords Tuesday attracted a large attendance of peers, mainly members of the opposition. The government benches, however, began filling up as the debate progressed. The Duke of Devonshire, Liberal-Unionist leader, professed pity for the tenants, but added that in his opinion the landlords' case was stronger.

MADRID, Aug. 15.—The cyclone which swept over the Province of Ciudad Real yesterday was accompanied by a terrific storm of hail. Over 200 persons were injured and several thousand domestic animals were killed. The damage to crops in the province is estimated at $300,000.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 12.—The Japanese squadron that attacked Wei-Hai-Wei Friday, reports of which engagement were cabled yesterday, consisted of twenty-six vessels. It is not definitely known how many of the fleet were men-of-war. The warships drew up in line of battle off the port and opened fire early Friday morning. There were no Chinese warships in the vicinity and the engagement was entirely between the Japanese men of war and the forts. The whereabouts of the Chinese fleet were unknown. The forts, however, were able without much difficulty to repulse the attack. About fifty shots were exchanged, but no material damage was done on either side.

The soldiers manning the guns of the fortifications showed themselves to be lamentably deficient in marksmanship. Most of their shots were ill-directed, the shells either falling short of the vessels aimed at or going wide of their marks.

When the fleet withdrew it proceeded to Port Arthur, which place it attacked Friday evening. Little if any damage is reported to have been done at this latter place. The operations are regarded as having been not attempts to capture either Wei-Hai-Wei or Port Arthur, but simply ruses on the part of the Japanese commander to ascertain the exact position and strength of the Chinese guns at the two places.

Thursday last two small Chinese gunboats were sighted going at full speed in the direction of Tien Tsin.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—There has been no confirmation of the reported engagement between the Chinese Pei Yang squadron and a Japanese fleet. The Chinese fleet seems to have disappeared from the coast and its whereabouts is a mystery. Report has it that the Chinese war vessels may shortly be heard from off the coast of Japan.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 13.—Considerable excitement is being experienced in regard to a dispatch from London that it is Great Britain's intention to propose that the powers intervene in the affairs of Corea, with the view of obtaining the evacuation of that country by China and Japan and the establishment of international control. It is stated here that Russia would not permit this, and that it would prefer that the war continue.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 15.—News has been received of a battle which took place last Saturday between the Japanese and Chinese fleets. The Chinese were driven off.

Spring Valley, Illinois, miners voted to return to work, on the 16th inst. The company refused to recognize a committee, but made some concessions.

Deputies were required to prevent a miners' riot near Springfield, Illinois, on the 16th.

Massillon, Ohio, district miners threaten to strike again if nonunion men are employed.

Deputies prevented trouble at the Snowden mines in the Pittsburg district August 16. The situation is serious.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The Managua, Nicaragua, correspondent of the Times telegraphs as follows: "A protocol has been signed uniting Guatemala, Nicaragua, San Salvador, and Honduras into one republic, to be known as the Central American Republic. Costa Rica was also requested at the conference which discussed the proposed union, but that government has declined to sign the protocol."

China is negotiating a European loan of $50,000,000.

Chulalonkorn I., King of Siam, is dead. His death is likely to cause much internal disorder.

Famine prevails in eight of the eleven provinces of Corea and the condition of the people is already very pitiable.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A dispatch to the Times from Shanghai says Japan is pouring fresh troops into Corea, and upwards of 50,000 Japanese soldiers are now in Corean territory. The Chinese fleet, according to the same dispatch, is remaining passive. In Japan the war fever is intense and universal, the press and popular orators preaching to the people of vastly ambitious schemes, including the conquest of China or at least the conquest of the Chinese Province of Manchuria.

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Aug. 16.—A notice has been issued to the effect that revision of the treaties between Japan and the foreign powers will be taken in hand forthwith. The essential features of the revision will be that foreigners will not have the right of trial in their own consular courts. The government will confer upon foreigners certain privileges owing to the tenure of land settlement right, and foreigners will also have certain privileges in regard to taxation. The foreigners here are greatly concerned at the proposal and are strongly of the opinion that the time has not arrived when their interests can be left to the Japanese Government.

Continued wet weather has done great damage to crops in England. The potato blight in its most virulent form prevails in many districts of Ireland.

Cholera continues to spread in Russia and in parts of Germany.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A dispatch from Shanghai says: "The Japanese government has authorized a loan $50,000,000. Torpedoes will be laid at the entrance of Tokio and Nagasaki harbors early next week. The Japanese Government has promised Admiral Fremantle, who commands the British squadron in East Adriatic waters, to give forty-eight hours' notice in case the Japanese fleet bombards Wei-Hai-Wei or Chee Foo. The eight vessels that passed Chee Foo westward bound July 14 were the Chinese fleet fleeing from the Japanese cruisers. The fleet went to Lui Kung Tae, northwest of Chee Foo, where it has been left undisturbed by the Japanese."

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A dispatch from Paris says Prince Emmanuel of Orleans was arrested in Bordeaux to-day on his way to visit the Emperor of Austria.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 17.—Three fresh cases of cholera and one death from the disease have been reported here. At Rotterdam one fresh case of cholera is announced, and one case is reported from Purmerend. At Maestricht there has been death from cholera, and one death from the same disease is reported from Wormerveer.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 17.—Cholera has broken out at Riga. Ten cases of sickness from that disease are reported by the authorities there.

VIENNA, Aug. 17.—During Wednesday and Thursday there were 253 new cases of cholera and 161 deaths in Galicia, and 54 new cases and 28 deaths in Bukowina.

China is negotiating with Berlin bankers for a heavy loan.

Paris telegrams report the discovery of an Anarchistic plot to murder Premier Dupuy.

Kaffir rebels are committing terrible outrages among the Boer Settlements in South Africa. A number of women and children have been killed and much property destroyed in the disturbed districts.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A death from cholera has occurred at Battersea, a portion of this city on the Surrey side of the Thames.

Miners in the vicinity of Springfield, Illinois, are dissatisfied and have refused to resume work.

White is the color of grief in China, Japan, and Siam.

Money Spent Economically.

Money economically spent is not always judiciously spent. Why? Simply because a cheap article often requires more money spent on it to keep it in repair than it would cost to purchase the best. A Book for Everybody!
But Especially for the Boys!

Autobiography of ELDER JOSEPH LUFF

The Struggles, Failures, and Successes in the Life of one who is now a Prominent Minister of the Church.

A Medley of Mischief, Mirth, Folly, Pride,
Self-will, Honor, Devotion, and Sentiment, as found in the Character of a Boy whom God in due time selected as an ambassador for Himself, and

Who To-day Stands as a Monument of Divine Grace!

The Book contains a history of his conversion to and from Methodism, his acceptance of the restored gospel, a dissertation on the leading features of the doctrine that moved him to obedience, his call as a minister and experiences as such, together with a recital of some striking incidents, showing divine interference and blessing. The autobiography has been revised by Bro. Luff since its publication in Autumn Leaves, and a large amount of doctrinal matter has been added in appropriate places. TWO SERMONS, one on the "Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man," and one on "The Modern Stumbling-Stone," have been added also, making it just the kind of a book to have in the family. Price, cloth bound, $1.25.

OBJECTIONS to the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants Answered and Re- futed.

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Paper covers.....$ 25
Cloth..... 40

The author states and answers the leading criticisms made upon the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants that have been urged by opponents of the latter-day work since its inception.

In answering objections, other and general lines of defense are suggested.

The work is valuable, both as a specific vindication of the books named, and as a general defense of Christianity.

The chapters contain subheadings for ready reference. Indexed; 126 pages.
