ROME, Oct. 28.—The second meeting of the conference to devise means, if possible, to reunite the Eastern and Western churches was held to-day, the Pope again presiding. The principal subject of discussion was the increasing influence of the Eastern Patriarchates as proselytizing centers. The conference will meet again Wednesday.

BUDA PEST, Oct. 28.—Francis Kossuth, son of the great Hungarian patriot, Louis Kossuth, arrived in this city to-day. In reply to the greetings of a deputation he said he bowed before the will of Hungary which had become reconciled to the present dynasty.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A dispatch received here last night from Buenos Ayres states that an appalling earthquake has occurred throughout the Argentine Republic. The dispatch says that the City of San Juan De La Frontera, capital of the province of the same name, has been destroyed. Hundreds of lives are reported to have been lost.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Oct. 28.—There were severe earthquake shocks felt all over Chile, and it is said that they reached Buenos Ayres. It is reported that San Juan, Argentina, has been totally destroyed by the earthquake. In Chile so far no damage is reported, but the lower classes are terribly frightened.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 18.—The earthquake which was felt throughout the Argentine Republic yesterday was most severe in the Provinces of San Juan de la Frontera and Rioja. Many churches, theaters, and private houses were destroyed. Twenty persons are known to have perished. The inhabitants are in a state of panic, fearing a repetition of the shocks. The government is sending aid to those who have lost their homes, and everything possible will be done to alleviate the suffering. Though the shock was felt in other parts of the country it was less severe than in the two provinces above mentioned.

San Juan de la Frontera is the capital of the Province of San Juan, Argentine Republic. It is situated on the river of the same name, 120 miles north of Mendoza. The town has a population of 9,000.

THE DALLES, Ore., Oct. 28.—Frank Kline, son of ex-City Marshal Kline, and Otis Savage, whose father was Circuit Judge of this district for years, have been arrested for the Pacific Express robbery of $14,000. All but $400 was recovered. Five thousand dollars was found in the house of the ex-Marshal. The arrest has caused a tremendous sensation.

At Marcbegg, near Vienna, during a recent thunderstorm, hailstones covered the railroad track to a depth of three feet, impeding traffic for hours.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 30.—Attorney Harry Goehring retained by the Chamber of Commerce to prosecute blind or discretionary pools, has returned from a tour of investigation including Philadelphia and New York. He will begin prosecutions immediately under existing laws, and if they prove ineffective the Chamber of Commerce will have a special act passed at the next General Assembly that will reach the blind pools.

President John McBride of the United Mine Workers is suffering from nicotine poisoning, contracted by smoking while he had a cold sore.

Honoré Mercier, ex-Premier of Canada died at Montreal, October 30.

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 30.—The Italian bark Scutolo, Capt. Starita, from Philadelphia,

September 21 for Naples, has been boarded by pirates off Morro Nuevo, Africa, who plundered the vessel and escaped with 1,000 boxes of petroleum. The bark was loaded by the Atlantic Refining company of Philadelphia and had on board 191,402 cases of refined oil consigned to the Italian-American Oil company, Naples. The Scutolo carries a crew of twelve men, including the captain.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—The prohibition against the landing of American cattle and American dressed meat, announced by a decree of the Hamburg Senate Saturday last, was extended to-day to every port of Germany. The prohibition is the action of individual German States. It is not a national measure.

The Spanish cabinet ministers have resigned. The resignations are supposed to have resulted from colonial questions.

Dispatches from Bucharest to-day give a picturesque account of the reception of Franz Kossuth, the eldest son of the late Hungarian patriot. Last winter Mr. Kossuth expressed the intention of renouncing his Italian citizenship and going home to his father's country to take an active interest in political affairs there. A large company of Hungarian Independents met him at the station and he made an elaborate speech. He said it was his right and his duty to serve his country, and any attempt to prevent him from doing so would be as unjust as it would be fruitless. Though he never would surrender his father's principles, he must choose another way towards their realization. For more than twenty years he had recognized that his father, by merely holding fast to his ideal, was unable to bring Hungary any nearer to the independence for which he strove. A legal basis was necessary for the attainment of that object, and he must seek a peaceful method, within the limit of the law, by means of which they could achieve that independence. He frankly confessed his hope that the monarch who already had broken with the traditions of his house would recognize ultimately that the spirit of the times demands the independence of Hungary and that the progress of that country was a genuine and permanent foundation for the security of his throne.

ATHENS, Oct. 31.—An official examination shows the Parthenon was seriously damaged by the earthquakes of last spring. The structure is reported to be in a dangerous condition. Measures to restore it will be taken immediately.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Oct. 31.—The Union line steamer Wairapa, bound from this port for Auckland, N. Z., was wrecked Sunday night on Great Barrier Island off the north-east coast of New Zealand. The steamer had a large number of passengers, and 112 of them were drowned. The number of the saved is not positively known, but among the rescued are some of the passengers.

WAGONER, I. T., Oct. 30.—Captain Charles Bock, commanding a squad of twenty Indian police, just arrived here, having in captivity five of the members of the Cook gang captured by him. The officer surprised the outlaws in camp and had them covered with Winchesters before they could get their guns, and the capture was made without a shot being fired. Captain Bock reports the rest of the gang in this vicinity, and, after escorting his prisoners to Fort Gibson, will return and renew his efforts to capture the ring-leaders.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 27.—The Japanese have gained a decisive victory at Kiuren over 17,000 Chinese. The enemy fled toward Antung. The Japanese captured a quantity of booty, thirty guns and 300 tents, as well as a quantity of provisions. The Chinese lost 200 killed, a number were wounded, and many were taken prisoners. Dispatches received here confirm the reports of the battle between the Chinese and Japanese forces after the latter had crossed the Yalu. It is added the whole of the Japanese army afterwards advanced northward, and Kiuren Castle, which was held by a large force of Chinese, was attacked upon all sides. Another dispatch repeats the assertion frequently made that a second Japanese army has landed on the east coast of the Peninsula of Kin Chow, upon which Port Arthur is situated. The Japanese army now occupies the neck of the peninsula, cutting off communication between the port and arsenal and the mainland.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette at Chefoo cables the fleets of China and Japan are now off the port and that a battle is expected shortly.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 28.—The Japanese have completely blockaded Talien-Wan and Port Arthur and all the adjacent bays and ports. Further Japanese forces have landed at Seikiofu, southeast of Port Arthur. The forces at Kiuren were commanded by Gens. Hong and Lin. The Chinese occupy a very strong position at Hong Wang, the castle being guarded by 20,000 men. Troops are being massed at Kin Chow with a view to the defense of Port Arthur.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—Negotiations have been opened for a Russo-Japanese treaty of commerce.

A dispatch to the Times from Tien-Tsin says that a large Russian fleet is assembling at Che Foo.

TIEN TSIN, Oct. 29.—The news of the Chinese defeat north of the Yalu River has caused considerable consternation here. The Chinese officials do not attempt to deny the serious nature of the disaster. The next fighting is expected at Port Arthur. News of the result is awaited with anxiety.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 30.—Two important and significant Japanese victories are recorded by United States Minister Denby in a cable to the State Department from Peking to-day. The Chinese forces have been defeated at Chu Leang Cheng and have retreated to Moukden. The Japanese have taken one of the Chinese forts at Port Arthur. The scene of the first engagement is just across the Yalu River in Manchuria, and it marks the first real aggressive movement by the Japanese on Chinese soil. The Japanese are supposed to have formally entered upon the campaign with Moukden, the Manchurian capital, as the objective point. Inasmuch as the capture of Port Arthur would result in giving Japan control of the Gulf of Pe Che Li and cut off the Chinese capital from connection with the sea, it is believed the Japanese will make a most determined effort to capture the fortress. The belief is they are prepared to do this, even if it involved a long siege and a winter campaign.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 30.—A third Japanese army numbering 24,000 men is assembled at Hiroshima.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 31.—The young Empress of China has committed suicide.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—It is said Prince Hohenlohe has come to an agreement with Emperor William which will change the imperial policy in several important respects. The first visible sign of this is the issuance of an order to establish agricultural bureaus in connection with the German Embassies at London, Washington, Paris, Vienna, and St. Petersburg. This step is looked upon as evidence of a stricter protective agrarian policy. It is also said the government intends to establish an imperial colonial ministry, and this is looked upon as a sign of an active colonial policy.

Prince Hohenlohe-Largenberg has been appointed Governor of Alsace Lorraine.

LIVADIA, Nov. 1.—The Czar died at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 1.—The first news of the death of his Majesty was posted here shortly before seven o'clock. A quarter of an hour later a salute of guns from the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul confirmed the sad news. Later a telegram said the Czar was quite conscious when he took the last sacrament at ten o'clock this morning. The members of the Council of the Empire and other high officials, both civil and military, and many private citizens assembled at ten o'clock to-night in the Cathedral of Montebello, where a solemn mass was said for the repose of his Majesty's soul. The French Ambassador to Russia, who is now in Paris, will return here forthwith. The Duchess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, Duchess of Edinburgh, only sister of the Czar, arrived at Yalta this morning.

It is understood the Czarowitz will immediately issue a proclamation declaring himself Czar and all the Russian officials throughout the world will take the oath of allegiance as soon as possible.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 2.—At nine o'clock this morning the imperial heralds in brilliant uniforms, attended by a troop of trumpeters, announced the death of Alexander III. and the accession of the throne of Russia of Nicholas II. The two heralds with their escorts, traversed all the principal streets of the city and after the trumpeters had delivered three ringing blasts upon their trumpets they made public the proclamation of Emperor Nicholas II.

Throughout St. Petersburg to-day the accession of the new czar is being celebrated at a festival, for this event takes precedence of the mourning ceremonies. The Russian newspapers, therefore, appeared without black borders, and all signs of public mourning will be withheld until tomorrow.

At ten o'clock yesterday evening the first requiem mass for the repose of the soul of Alexander III. was celebrated in St. Petersburg, and all the ministers and members of the Council of the Empire were present. When the service was over, all those in attendance took the oath of allegiance to Czar Nicholas II. and to the heir presumptive, the Czarowitz Grand Duke George, brother of the Czar.

This morning the Senate sat in plenary session and all its members took the oath of allegiance. At the same time all the troops forming the garrison of St. Petersburg were paraded in full uniform with their colors and were sworn with the customary formality. Later the same ceremony was observed in the case of the civil servants of the empire.

Dense masses of people thronged the streets during the evening reading the death bulletin and murmuring prayers for the Czar. It was reported here the funeral of the Czar will take place November 15, and it was said his remains will lie in state for one week at Moscow.

Czar Nicholas II. has issued a manifesto, in which he commits himself to a policy of peace and the development of Russia.

If we consider the amount of ill temper, dependency, and general unhappiness which arises from want of proper digestion and assimilation of our food, it seems obviously well worth while to put forth every effort, and undergo any sacrifice, for the purpose of avoiding indigestion, with its resulting bodily ills; and yet year after year, from the cradle to the grave, we go on violating the plainest and simplest laws of health at the temptation of cocks, caterers, and confectioners, whose share in shortening the average term of human life is probably nearly equal to that of the combined armies and navies of the world.—Richardson.

I have come to the conclusion that more than half the disease which embitters life is due to avoidable errors in diet, . . . and that more mischief, in the form of actual disease, of impaired vigor, and of shortened life, accrues to civilized man from erroneous habits of eating than from the habitual use of alcoholic drink, considerable as I know that evil to be.—Sir Henry Thompson.

Study simplicity in the number of dishes, and variety in the character of the meals.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free.

The traveling ministry, district and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department. Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to David Dancer, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

Advertising rates, forty cents per inch each insertion, subject to the following discounts: One month's insertion, five per cent; three months, fifteen per cent; six months, twenty-five per cent; one year, forty per cent. All advertising conditioned on insertion upon the first or last pages of cover will be charged an advance of twenty per cent upon the regular rates. For reading notices, (on outside pages of cover, unless otherwise accepted,) ten cents per line. Editorial notices, twenty-five cents per line; discount as above.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

By the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church at the Herald Publishing House, LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA.

Sent postpaid at prices named.

(Complete descriptive catalogue mailed on application.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

THE GOSPEL QUARTERLY.

SENIOR GRADE.

A Sunday School Quarterly containing lessons for each Sunday in the year; prepared by the Lesson Committee of the General Sunday School Association; designed for the use of both teachers and scholars.

The Home Study with Questions, Introduction, Comparative Texts from King James' and the Inspired Translations, Study of Words and Phrases, Questions on Lesson Text, Sidelights, and Afterthoughts, are designed to aid scholars and teachers by bringing them into direct contact with the Scriptures, and furnishing historical and general information from first-class supplementary aids to Bible Study, thus giving accurate knowledge of the Bible and bringing out the doctrines of the gospel. Each quarterly contains a Map of Palestine, also a Lesson Dictionary.

Bound in paper covers; price 10 cents per quarter; 35 cents per year.

INTERMEDIATE AND PRIMARY GRADES COMBINED.

This grade contains the lessons of the Senior Grade in simplified form and for corresponding dates. The Bible Practice Work, To the Teacher, The Lesson Story, Questions on the Lesson, etc., are the leading features. "Afterthoughts," the Names, Order, and Number of the Books of the Bible, Notes for Teachers, and a Map of Palestine are also included.

Bound in paper covers; price 5 cents each; 20 cents per year.

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

Inspired Translation: Sheep binding, $1.25; Imitation Morocco, $1.75; Morocco, $2.25; Flexible covers (similar binding to Oxford Teachers' Bible), $3.75. All styles but the sheep binding are finished with gilt edges.

King James' Translation: Four sizes of American Bible Society's low-priced editions: With marginal references, two sizes, 60 and 80 cents each. Plain, two sizes, 30 and 50 cents each.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Hyre and Spottiswoode's ministers' and Sunday school teachers' Bible. Flexible binding, Levant, silk sewed, kid lined, thin paper. This edition forms a book about one inch thick, and contains the "aids to the student," including concordance, maps, etc. Many prefer this to the Oxford edition. Price $4.75.

ENVELOPES.

Small envelopes for collections; per 100, 15 cents; one thousand, $1.25.

NEW TESTAMENT.

INSPIRED TRANSLATION.

Cloth sides, leather back, 50 cents each. Cloth binding, 30 cents each; $3.30 per dozen net. A special, cheap, pocket-size edition for Sunday schools; same type as the 50 cent edition.

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION.

Three sizes: American Bible Society's editions; cloth binding. Brevier type, 18 mo., 25 cents each net; the same per dozen. Agate type, 32 mo., (smaller) 15 cents each; $1.60 per dozen net. Pearl agate type, 32 mo., 10 cents each; $1.00 per dozen net.

These books are kept in stock to supply schools and other patrons with good, cheap Testaments at very low prices.

SECRETARY'S RECORD.

A book of complete systematic record of the entire proceedings of the Sunday school, including, in addition to the record of regular sessions, space for recording minutes of business meetings. Ruled for two years. Paper boards, leather back.....1 35

TEACHER'S CLASS RECORD.

A short, simple, and systematic method of recording the essential items of class work, together with Helpful Hints to Sunday school officers and teachers. Ruled for one year.

Paper, each, 8 cents, per dozen..... 75

REPORTS.

Blank statistical reports of Sunday schools to District Association; per dozen, ten cents.

The same for Districts to General Association; per dozen, fifteen cents.

WINNED SONGS.

Each 40c., half dozen $2.25, per dozen.....4 50

CARDS AND TICKETS.

Fancy cards, large, five kinds, per 50..... 75
Fancy cards, small, ten kinds, per 100..... 50
Good Behavior tickets; per 100, 15c.; 1,000...1 00
Prompt Attendance tickets; 100, 15c.; 1,000...1 00

INTERMEDIATE QUESTION BOOK.

Limp muslin, 25 cents; per dozen.....2 50

PRIMARY QUESTION BOOK.

Limp muslin, 15 cents; per dozen.....1 25

THE SILVER THIMBLES.

A story for young children, by Sr. C. B. Stebbins, Price 20 cents.

COMBINATION OFFER.

One Sunday school Secretary's Record.....1 35
One dozen Sunday school Teacher's Class Record 75
One thousand collection envelopes.....1 25
One dozen statistical reports..... 10
All for.....3 15

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

(Inspired translation by Joseph Smith.)

Sheep or Library Binding, sprinkled edges...$1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 75
Morocco, gilt edges..... 2 25
Flexible covers (similar binding to Oxford Teachers' Bible)..... 3 75
New Testaments, see Sunday school supplies.

NEW TESTAMENT.

INSPIRED TRANSLATION; LARGE TYPE EDITION.

A special new edition in pica type; a book of 374 pages, size seven by ten inches. It is printed on superfine paper; a book similar in size and style of binding to the large type edition of the Book of Mormon. Leather backs and corners, cloth sides.....$1 00
Roan, sprinkled edges.....1 25
Seal grained Russia, gilt edges.....1 50

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION.

BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS.

(See Sunday school supplies.)

BOOK OF MORMON.

Roan, sprinkled edges..... 1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 25

New Edition in Large Type. This special edition forms a book of 500 pages; its size seven by ten inches. It is printed on superfine paper, and issued in large (pica) type, a feature especially acceptable to aged persons. The paragraphs are shortened, thus making it more perfect as a book of reference than former editions. The index is rearranged, the subjects and citations furnishing complete synopses of the contents. Cloth, leather backs and corners.....1 50
Seal grain Russia.....1 75
Seal grain Russia, gilt edges.....2 00

CONCORDANCE TO THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Paper covers, 32 pages..... 10

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

(Music and Hymns combined.)

Leather back, muslin sides.....2 00
The Harmony contains all the hymns in the Saints' Harp; also 555 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes, with full instructions on choir and anthem music. The same (music only).....1 25

MINISTRY AND BRANCH CARDS.

Neat cards for Ministers or Branches, with name and address, or place of worship and hours of services on face, and Epitome or "What we Believe" on reverse side. An excellent aid. Two sizes: 2 1/4 x 4 inches, price 75c. per 250, $2.50 per 1,000. 3 x 5 1/2 inches, $1.00 per 250, $3.50 per 1,000.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages. Paper covers..... 35
Muslin binding..... 50

BRADEN-KELLEY DEBATE.

Propositions:—(1) Is the Book of Mormon of Divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to the respect and belief of all Christian people? (2) Is the Church of which I, Clark Braden, am a member, the Church of Christ, and identical in faith, organization, ordinances, worship, and practice, with the Church of Christ, as it was left perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and accepted with him?
Muslin boards, 396 pages.....1 50

DISTRICT RECORDS.

Printed and bound similar to Branch Records...2 50

MISCELLANEOUS.

In addition to the following list, the Herald Office will purchase any obtainable book desired by its patrons.
Young's Analytical Concordance of the Bible, containing every Hebrew and Greek word and its English equivalent.....4 75
The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall, 544 pages, muslin.....1 50
Universalism Against Itself, 336 pages, muslin, by A. Wilford Hall.....1 00
Josephus, complete, library leather..... 2 25
Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, muslin boards, 5 volumes.....4 00
Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated).....1 80
Rollin's Ancient History, two volumes in one...4 00
The Koran, library leather..... 2 25
The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilius, Bishop of Caesarea and Palestine.....2 00
Cruden's Complete Concordance of the Bible...1 50
Apocryphal New Testament.....1 25
Elders' Diary, by Joseph Luff..... 30
Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size..... 85

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.

Branch Statistical Reports; per doz..... 40
Annual Statistical Reports; two for..... 05
Certificates of Baptism and Membership; per doz. 12
Certificates of Removal; per doz..... 12
Marriage Certificates; per doz..... 25

GOSPEL TRACTS.

In paper covers, 128 pages, each 15c., per doz. 1 50

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE SAINTS' HARP.

(Hymn Book.)

Roan, sprinkled edges..... 1 0¢
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 2¢

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

Muslin binding..... 70

COWDERY LETTERS.

Written on the subject of the Rise of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by Elder Oliver Cowdery. They contain valuable matter concerning the Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and Translation of the Book of Mormon, and the Angelic Bestowal of the Priesthood.

In paper covers, 40 pages, each..... 8
Per dozen..... 75
Without covers, 5 cts. each; per dozen..... 50

THE RUINS REVISITED AND THE WORLD-STORY RETOLD,

Is a book of 240 pages, written by Elder Samuel F. Walker. The purpose of the writer is to show that the main facts of scientific teaching concerning the origin, growth, and development of the Universe, of human tradition and history, and the revelation of Christianity have a common origin, and are evidences of one design in the creation, and in the history and growth of the ages. Theological conclusions are reached from scientific deductions, and by comparison with human tradition, archaeology, and other sources of information the writer aims to present a scientific defense of Christianity. The later chapters of the work contain evidences from American aboriginal traditions that Jesus is the Christ and was known and worshipped by the ancient inhabitants of the Western Continent.

Cloth bound, boards, price..... $1 00

AUTUMN LEAVES.

A religious monthly magazine published for the youth of the church, by Mrs. M. Walker, issued from the Herald Office. Price $1.50 per year. It contains, in addition to its general matter, the following departments: Observations; Department of Correspondence; Editor's Corner; Domestic Department; Round Table. Its series of biographies and autobiographies of leading ministers of the Church past and present have been widely read and greatly appreciated. It presents many features of the world's progress, of use alike to young and old. Illustrated, 48 pages, size 7x10.

PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD; THE APOSTASY, REFORMATION, AND RESTORATION.

By Elder Wm. H. Kelley. New, Revised, and Enlarged Edition. It contains 421 pages of closely written matter, with autograph and likeness of the Author, and is printed in good, readable type, with neat binding. The work is a library within itself; a marvel of trenchant criticism and logical deductions from historical facts; a key to the right understanding of the Bible and modern diverse systems of faith and worship. It discusses the issues of theology that are to the front to-day. It treats largely of Ministerial Authority as associated with the Melchisedek and Aaronic Priesthoods, and the Ideal Church of New Testament times is conspicuously set forth in striking contrast with the creeds and systems of church building since the days of the Apostles. Also the claims for the Restoration of the Gospel at a later day than the Apostolic age are critically examined in the light of prophecy and history, which is a subject of great moment to men of every faith. A historical resume or brief is also inserted of the rise and development of the "apostate church," and an exegesis of the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the revelation of the "sealed book." Also the origin of modern churches and creeds, etc.

Price.....$1 25

SPIRITUAL GIFTS, AND THE SEER OF PALMYRA.

BY ELDER M. H. BOND

Modern Prophets after ancient types. Who was Joseph Smith? Was he a religious impostor? Was he a "Spirit medium?" What does the Bible say about Joseph Smith?

The Truth by Three Witnesses—Christianity in the First and Nineteenth Century—The Ancient and Modern Pharisee—The Revelations of Emanuel Swedenborg—Modern "Spirit Mediums," and Hypnotic Religious "Revival," as Against Reason and Bible Testimony, and in Contradistinction to the work of "The Latter Day Seer," Examined in the Light of Facts and Human History—A Rational and Scriptural Exposition or Explanation of Old and New Testament Prophecy and Doctrine.

A Revision of "Spiritual Gifts," with supplement and appendix.

Paper covers..... 25
Full cloth binding..... 50

LICENSES, NOTICES, ETC.

Elders', Priests', Teachers', and Deacons' Licenses, each per dozen..... 12
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate Books.... 25
Blank Preaching Notices; per 100..... 40

GERMAN HYMN BOOK.

A collection of one hundred original, selected, and translated hymns in the German language; carefully compiled by Caspar and Temme Hinderks, of Stewartsville, Missouri.

Imitation Morocco, sprinkled edges..... 4¢
Ditto gilt edges..... 6¢

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE,

WITH INTRODUCTION BY ELDER W. W. BLAIR.

A book in which is traced the intimate connection between the history of Protestantism and the founding of the Government of the United States with the vent of the restored Gospel; interwoven with which is a tender story from a real life, telling of the efforts of one to find the Kingdom of God, its object being to trace God in modern history, and to show that his dealings with men are as clearly discernible now as in ancient times.

A book for Sunday school libraries and the home. Price.....$1 14

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Each chapter is headed, each section has its subhead. The book contains rules for the government of General and District Conferences, Branch Business Meetings, and other assemblies. Its parliamentary rules are based upon the latest and best works of accepted authorities. The Articles of Association of the Reorganized Church, also the General Conference Rules of Representation are included. Instructions and rulings concerning General, District, and Branch Records, the holding of Elders' Courts, etc., are also embodied in the work. Revised and republished in 1891. A book of 200 pages, cloth bound, exhaustively indexed; price 40 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH, OR WEEKLY REST DAY.

By Elder Columbus Scott. This is a work of 147 pages, divided into fifteen chapters, in which the "Sabbath" under the Mosaic Law, and "The Lord's Day," "First Day of the Week" or "Christian Sabbath" under the Gospel Dispensation are fully treated from Scriptural and historical standpoints. The work is concise and able, and clearly refutes the arguments of the Seventh day Sabbatarians, establishing the first day of the week as "The Lord's Day." An added supplemental chapter by Elder W. W. Blair is included.

Paper covers..... 25
Muslin binding..... 40

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH.

For the use of higher classes; also for the ministry and others. It contains, under proper headings, Scripture proof texts on the various principles of the gospel; also much other valuable historical and general matter. Sprinkled leather....$1.00. Muslin boards.... 75

A MANUAL OF THE PRIESTHOOD.

This is a work by Elder Charles Derry, in which is set forth the order and nature of the Priesthood. The writer also defines the duties and prerogatives of all Church Officials, from the First Presidency to the Deacons inclusive. It is compiled from the Standard books of the church and the History of Joseph Smith as published in the Millennial Star. Indexed for ready reference, 132 pages, cloth bound, 25 cents.

TRACTS.

ORDER BY NUMBERS.

2. Truth Made Manifest; per doz. 15c., 100...$1 00
 3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per doz. 5c., 100 30
 4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3c., 100 15
 6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per doz. 15c., 100.....1 00
 7. Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 5c., 100 30
 8. Fullness of the Atonement; per doz. 15c., 100 1 00
 9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per doz. 20c., 100.....1 30
 10. The Narrow Way; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 11. The Plan of Salvation; per doz. 20c., 100...1 20
 12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per doz. 15c., 100.1 00
 14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per doz. 15c., 100...1 00
 16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 17. The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; per doz. 15c., 100 1 00
 20. The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c., 100.....1 00
 21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 22. Faith and Repentance; per doz. 10c., 100 .. 50
 23. Baptism; per doz. 10c., 100..... 65
 24. The Kingdom of God; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
 25. Laying on of Hands; per doz. 5c., 100..... 30
 27. The Sabbath Question; per doz. 15c., 100..1 00
 29. Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
 31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 32. Which is the Church; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
 36. The Spalding Story Reexamined; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 42. Rejection of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100 50
 43. One Wife or Many; per doz. 15c., 100....1 00
 44. Crooked Paths; per doz. 15c., 100.....1 00
 45. The Reorganized Church in Succession from 1830 to the Present. A thirty-one page pamphlet containing statements of faith and practices rules and usages of the Church and of heresies, and departures from it. Important papers and statements from leading church authorities past and present are reprinted. Each 5c., per doz. 30c., 100...2 00
 46. The Pure Gospel of Christ. A list of questions and answers, with blank form preaching notice on the back, same size as Epitome; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 47. The Future State; per doz. 15c., 100.....1 00
 - Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection of Jesus Christ; each 5c., per doz..... 50
 - Prophecy on the Rebellion; per hundred..... 10
- Special prices furnished on application for tracts in lots of one thousand.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

L. Campbell 125505

Vol 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 14, 1894.

No. 46.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
Temple Building and Sealing.....	725
A Good Life Must be a Gospel Life.....	726
Queries.....	726
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:728
LETTER DEPARTMENT:729
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Story of Sidney Rigdon and the
Book of Mormon.....	732
"Upon this Rock".....	734
A Correction.....	736
Letter from Elder R. J. Anthony.....	736
Abiding in Christ.....	737
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Decatur.....	738
Southern California.....	738
Northeastern Illinois.....	738
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Bishop's Agent's Notice.....	739
Items of Interest.....	739

THE ABUSE OF GRAMMAR.

[Principal A. Stevenson in the Canada Educational Monthly.]

THE proper scope of the study of English grammar is but vaguely defined in the text-books, and grammarians have not yet come to an agreement as to what should be included and what should be omitted in a treatise on the subject. Most of us remember when grammar was defined to include orthography, etymology, syntax, and prosody. But in our authorized school-books nowadays we find no mention of either orthography or prosody, and etymology seems to be treated chiefly in relation to inflection. Virtually, then, it has come to this, that English grammar, as we have it, may be considered as treating of certain functions and relations which words have when used as means of expression, and of certain variations in form which some words take to indicate these functions and relations.

It is the doctrine of some grammarians that formal grammar should be confined to the usual or standard modes of verbal expression. These scholars define grammar as the science of sentences; and when they are called upon to deal with forms of expression which are not sentences, they remodel the expression so as to convert them into sentences, and then deal with them as such. Suppose you ask them to parse the imperative expression, "Run!" They first declare that this expression is incomplete, for, say they, a sentence must consist of two words, a subject and a verb, of which the verb must agree with the subject. So they add to the expression the word "thou" or "you," which, they say, is "understood," and then they assert that the verb "run" agrees with its alleged subject.

This is surely a most unscientific mode of procedure. It is not worth while to add a word as subject to "run" for the sake of being able to say that there is now a complete sentence, and that there is an agreement of the verb with that subject. For this agreement is, after all, a pure fiction, even when the word is supplied. And though the command "Run!" as it stands, be not a sentence, that matters not. The resources of the scientific grammarian are surely not so limited that he cannot deal with such an expression. Whether we call it a sentence or not, the expression is a good one. If then, it does not fit our grammars, let us fit our grammars to it.

Suppose at the outset we distinguish between things and names, and we shall see that in giving the command "Run!" the speaker is thinking, not of the word "you," but of the person to whom he is speaking. The person spoken to does not "understand" the word "you" prefixed to the command; he does not need the word "you" to tell him who is meant; he knows who is meant from other circumstances. Words are by no means the only signs of ideas, and the verbal sign for "you" is not used here because the idea is conveyed in other ways. The expression, then, is complete in the circumstances where it is used, and it is absurd to say that any word is understood. In parsing the word "run," we may say that it is used without a subject, but not that it agrees with a subject understood.

Let us also dismiss from our parsing the fiction of agreement, except where agreement actually occurs. In the sentence, "Sweet are the uses of adversity," we need not say that "are" is in the third person and the plural number, agreeing with "uses," since the form "are" does not always indicate either the third person or the plural number. The standard parsing of such terms seems the more ridiculous, too, when we remember that in reality, after all, there is no personal inflection for nouns.

This is an element of contradiction and confusion in our grammatical work that we should do well to get rid of. We say that the grammatical values of terms in language depend solely upon their functions and relations. We recognize that where inflections do occur in our language, they exist because they mark these functions and relations. Yet, as the result of the study of Greek and Latin, and the adoption of most of our grammatical language from treatises on the synthetic tongues, we frequently employ terms and forms of expression which are quite inconsistent with the facts of English, in so far as it is an analytic language, and which make the study of our grammar needlessly bewildering and difficult. The abuse of the terms "agreement," "person," and "number" has been illustrated.

It is quite as bad to define inflection as a variation in form, and cases as a kind of inflection, and then go on and speak of the objective case of nouns, where there is no inflection. Equally reprehensible is the common mode of speaking of phrases or subordinate clauses as noun or adjective or adverb equivalents, and of certain words as being, for example, nouns used as adjectives. Why all this pother? If a grammatical term, whether it be a word, or a phrase, or a clause, is used in a given sentence with an adjective function, then it is an adjective, and that is the end of the matter.

It is time that some grammarian would break entirely with the dogmatism of the past and would write us a book in which we should have nothing but the facts of English grammar in a proper scientific arrangement, a book without the confusing terms and definitions and the arbitrary rules which have made the study of English grammar a plague to the young during all past years.

THE MUNICIPAL CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK.

The municipal campaign in New York City has assumed a significance far more than local. Never before in the history of this great community has partisanship been so completely laid aside. Never before has union among the friends of improved municipal administration been so general and so patriotic. Much skillful negotiation was required to bring the various anti-Tammany elements, into a plan of co-operation, but brilliant success crowned the attempt. The Citizens' Committee of Seventy at length selected, for the two leading places to be filled, Col. William L. Strong and Mr. John W. Goff. Col. Strong is a Republican, and Mr. Goff a Democrat. Both were ready in the most emphatic manner to indorse the non-partisan platform of the Committee of Seventy, and to promise a perfectly impartial and disinterested administration of local affairs if they should be elected. The Republican party, the State Democracy, the German-American Union, the Good Government Clubs, and two or three other local political organizations, accepted the committee's ticket, and entered with enthusiasm upon a campaign in which no spoils of office were held out as inducements, and in which the defeat of Tammany Hall and the establishment of good government were the only dominating considerations. It is a great thing thus to have welded together half a dozen groups of practical politicians under the leadership of citizens pledged only to disinterestedness and non-partisanship in local affairs. It is the sign of a turning tide in American public life. It means a renaissance of good citizenship if it means anything.—From "The Progress of the World," November Review of Reviews.

OFFICERS.
Israel L. Rogers, President.
D. F. Nicholson, Cashier.
F. B. Blair, Asst. Cashier.

DIRECTORS.
I. L. Rogers, Robt. Winning,
D. F. Nicholson, S. V. Bailey,
George W. Blair.

LAMONI STATE BANK.
(Incorporated.)
Paid up Capital, $25,000.
Liabilities of Stockholders, $50,000.
INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

BLAIR MERCANTILE CO.,
Our Specialties:—
Fancy Dry Goods,
Fine Shoes.

THOS. TEALE & SON
Carry the largest and most complete line of
Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries, & Hardware
in town. We buy in large quantities, and for cash, and can meet all competition.
THOS. TEALE & SON.

Henry Stoddard, J. D. Briggs, Frank Stoddard,
President. Ass't Cashier. Cashier.

COMMERCIAL BANK,
LAMONI, - IOWA.
Proper Attention given to all Branches of Legitimate banking.
Interest paid on time deposits. Correspondence Solicited.

Lots $200 each,
In my addition to Lamoni. Shade trees, lawn, and sidewalks; ten minutes' walk from L. D. S. church. Terms one fourth cash, and balance yearly.
Write for maps to D. F. NICHOLSON,
Lamoni State Bank.

HOMES AT LAMONI.
Land for sale, situated one quarter to one half mile southwest of Lamoni; in three, four, or five acre lots.
These plats will make nice homes; suitable for gardening, raising of small fruits, etc.
Prices reasonable; terms on application.
Address, J. W. GILLEN,
LAMONI, IOWA.

AGENTS WANTED.
Send 10 cents for box of Hoxie's Instant Lustre. Town or County given free. Secured by deed.
You can make a permanent business. Profits large. Address,
A. N. HOXIE, BOSTON, Mass.

Be Economical.
Spend every dollar judiciously and to the best advantage. Be considerate. Study every question of economy on all sides. Do not jump at conclusions, but investigate. If you want power for pumping, sawing, or printing, send for catalogue of the Hercules Gas Engines. PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY, 405-407 Sansome Street, San Francisco.
Marder, Luse & Co. Foundry, Agents, 1118 Howard Street, Omaha, Nebraska. 28nov.

$3.50. EAR TRUMPETS. $3.50.
Why lose all the pleasure of a good conversation by hearing only half of it? Or why injure the throats and voices of those you love by compelling them to talk to you in an unnatural or strained voice, when you can get a conversation tube for $3.50 by mail, postpaid.
I have two sizes, one a yard long which can be coiled up—the one generally preferred. The other a foot long, and can be folded and put in the pocket. References, Elder J. F. Burton, San Benito, California, or Sr. M. Walker, Lamoni, Iowa. Address, A. C. GEER,
LAMONI, Decatur County, Iowa.

GERMAN TRACTS.
Tracts in the German language may be had of Ad. Richter, Burlington, Iowa: The Baptism 6c., the Repentance 5c., the Principles of the Gospel 6c., the Epitome of Faith 2c., the Sixth Trumpet, a fifty-four page pamphlet, 25c. These prices include postage.
Die Eine Taufe, a German translation of "The One Baptism." This German tract is on sale at the Herald Office; price one cent each.

B. D. FLEET,
GENERAL MERCHANDISE,
LAMONI, - IOWA.

A. B. MAIR,
WHOLESALE FRUITS and PRODUCE.
General Commission.
Berries Apples, Potatoes, etc. Car lots a Specialty.
Consignments Solicited. Prompt Returns.
518 Pearl St. Council Bluffs, Iowa.

THE BOOK OF MORMON.
Every Latter Day Saint wants this work for study or for reference.
It is one of the first those interested in the work should read after receiving explanation of its character and import.
It is one of the three standard books of the word of God to the church.

HOXIE'S AUTOMATIC
Ice Cream Freezer

CAPACITY UNLIMITED.
For Hotels, Restaurants, and Family Use.
Will freeze Ice Cream, Lemonade, Sherbets, and all kinds of Ices instantly. Several Machines combined in one, with saving of 80 per cent of ice. Agents wanted. Exclusive territory can be secured by addressing
HOXIE BROS.,
17 CHARDON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

Zion's Ensign.
52 SERMONS A YEAR.
Subscription price, 1 year.....$1 00
" " 6 months.... 50
" " 3 months.... 25
For introduction, 4 months.... 25

Address all communications and make all orders payable to
ZION'S ENSIGN,
INDEPENDENCE, MO.

PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
COPYRIGHTS.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of Information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.
Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address
MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

ZION'S RELIGIO-LITERARY SOCIETY PROGRAM.
November 18-24.
Senior religious department; J. F. McDowell, superintendent, Magnolia, Iowa.
Roll call. Answer, quoting verse from Psalm 68. Song 65, Saints' Harp. "The image of God." Longfellow, page 72. Song 408, Saints' Harp. Prayer. Organ voluntary. Reading: First and second paragraphs, page 404 of Gibbon's Rome, volume 1. Essay: "Force of character." Song 489, Saints' Harp. Reading: Pages 93, 94, "Duty," (by Smiles.) Instrumental music. Reading: First five paragraphs of chapter 4, "Emerson's Essays," first series. Essay: "Companionship and example." Doxology. Benediction.
November 18-24.

Junior religious department; David J. Krahl, superintendent, No. 216-218 North Fourth street, St. Joseph, Missouri.
Hymn 327, Saints' Harp. Prayer. Roll call. Response, a proverb of Solomon. Reading, Psalm 63. Hymn 346, Saints' Harp. Recitation, "An offering," chapter 3, Hesperis. Three-minute papers on Doctrine and Covenants, section 59, by five members. Prayer. Anthem, "Praise waiteth for thee." Recitation, "O Lamb of God," Hesperis, page 80. Essay, "Origin of Thanksgiving Day and the religion of the Puritans." "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." Dismissal.
November 25-December 1.

Senior historical department; F. M. Sheehy, superintendent, 6 Stafford street, Boston, Massachusetts.
Opening song. Invocation. Sketch of young Almagro. Instrumental selection. Paper, "Gonzalo Pizarro's expedition to the Amazon." Vocal piece. Dissertation on the founding of the new capital, Lima: a. Its civil affairs. Describe its different functions. b. Its ecclesiastical. Music. Verbal account of the missionary among the Spaniards of the Conquest. Report of critic. Benediction.
November 25-December 1.

Junior historical department; Etta M. Izatt, superintendent, 4342 Vista avenue, St. Louis, Missouri.
Organ voluntary. Prayer. Hymn 328. Roll call. Response, verse of chapter 1, Joshua. Talk, ten minutes, The "offerings" and their significance. Recitation. Song, a member. Scriptural reading, Deuteronomy 33d chapter. Essay, "The conquest of Canaan." Song, society. Business. Dismissal.
December 2-8.

Senior temperance department, G. H. Gates, superintendent, No. 1001 Westminster Avenue, Providence, Rhode Island.
Hymn. Invocation. Scripture reading by president, 1 Peter 4: 1-10. Hymn. Reading (topical). Instrumental music. Essay, "The sin of gluttony." Vocal solo. Recitation (topical). Five-minute papers: "Fasting and spirituality;" "The effect of fasting on morals." Vocal duet. Roll call. Response, quotation from any author concerning gluttony or kindred subject. Instrumental music. Critic's report. Business. Dismissal.
December 2-8.

Junior temperance department, R. B. Trowbridge, superintendent, Parsons, Kansas.
Song. Scriptural reading, Galatians 6: 1-10. Prayer. Roll call. Quartet. Three five-minute papers, "Past failures." Memory verse, last part of the 11th verse of the 8th chapter of St. John. Question: "Is it possible for a person to become such a slave to a habit as to be impossible to break it?" General remarks on society work. Recitation, nineteenth Psalm. Song. Benediction.
December 9-15.

Senior literary department, Dora Young, superintendent, Dow City, Iowa.
(Please use Junior program this week.)
December 9-15.

Junior literary department, Jessie Cave, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.
Song. Prayer. Vocal solo. Essay: "Modern literature." Select reading. Literary game. Song. Instrumental music. Recitation. Roll call. Quotations from some author. Remarks by president. Paper, "American poetry." Quartet. Benediction.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.
"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."

Book of Mormon, page 116.

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 14, 1894.

No. 46.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
JOSEPH LUFF - CORRESPONDING EDITOR.

LAMONI, IOWA, NOV. 14, 1894.

TEMPLE BUILDING AND SEALING.

THE letter given below is our occasion for writing on this subject set forth in the caption, and is all the excuse we offer for it.

451 West Seventh South,
SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 5, 1894.

Editor Saints' Herald; Dear Sir:—Have just been reading your Herald. Feel impressed to ask if it is possible for a person to receive revelation after being baptized, confirmed, etc., under the hands of Utah elders, of Brigham Young's following. Are temple labors, sealings, etc., as done in Utah, believed in by you? A lucid explanation in your Herald will greatly oblige, Yours etc.,

JOHN POWELL.

It would be saying too much, perhaps, to hold that no one could receive revelation, who had received baptism and confirmation under the administration of elders, who are, or were members and officers in the Utah church and of Pres. "Brigham Young's following;" for the reason that many testify that they did so receive revelation after such administration; and the occurrences of years seem to confirm their testimony.

Revelation to man lies within the domain of God's wisdom, as well as his goodness and his power; and, as no merely human being is so nearly allied to God as to be able to determine what the wisdom of God will or will not decide and do in any given case, it is evident that God exercised this right to give revelation outside of the limits of the church, or recognized body of organized worshipers, according to his will and wisdom, as the following among many instances will certify:—

God revealed an apparently unimportant fact to Abimelech, that Sarah was Abraham's wife. As subsequent events proved, however, it was not an unimportant fact, for in the providences of God, Sarah became the mother of those through whom the promises to Abraham were kept. (Gen. 20: 3.) God revealed to Pharaoh that there would be a famine in the land, and by the famine developed the life, character, and calling of Joseph and his sons. (Gen. 41: 1-7.)

God revealed unto a soldier in the Midianitish army that a certain event was to occur, through the medium of a dream, and a fellow soldier received the interpretation of it by revelation. Gideon recognized the revealer behind the thing revealed and accepting, worshiped. (Judges 7: 13, 14.)

God revealed to Nebuchadnezzar, a wonderful thing. (See Dan. 2: 28.)

Caiphias, the high priest, officiating for the year in the temple at Jerusalem, prophesied that Jesus would die for the nation; and this by the Spirit of revelation. (John 11: 51.) By the same Spirit of revelation, Josephus prophetically recognized one great ruler and foretold his successor. (Josephus' Wars, chap. 8: 9, p. 494.) We do not care to say that God will not, as he certainly has the right and power to do, give revelation to whom it may please him.

There are quite good grounds for the belief that up to as late a period as 1855, there were legal administrations in church work in England, Wales, Scotland, France, Switzerland, and the Scandinavian provinces, by those who at the time held connection with the church in the valleys of Utah. Just where the line of the true and the erroneous, the legitimate and the illegitimate is to be drawn, we do not propose to now attempt to define; suffice it to say that there seems to be good reasons for believing that there were some of those who were ministers in the church at the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith who retained their priesthood right to act, at least until the formal promulgation of plural marriage as a doctrine of the Utah church, which occurred August 29, 1852, by the edict of Pres. Brigham Young.

There was a very marked decadence in the manifestations of the Spirit under the administration of the elders of that church, beginning with the promulgation of the dogma of plural marriage, Adam-God theory, blood atonement, etc., which decadence resulted in the defection of thousands during 1855 and thence onward until many testified that the Spirit had forsaken their work. It is certain that after President Brigham Young required that all who crossed "the rim of the basin," meaning the crest of the Rocky Mountains, should be rebaptized, there was a change in the spiritual character of the work done by the elders abroad, and the manifestations were repressed, or not had as a crowning feature of the work. Joseph Smith in a letter written during the dark days of his incarceration in Liberty jail; days when his soul was fired with indignation against tyranny, wrong, evil, and oppression, and aflame with the light of life from on high, wrote thus:—

There are many called but few are chosen, and why are they not chosen? Because their hearts are set upon the things of the world, and are aspiring to the honors of men; they do not learn the lesson that the rights of the priesthood are inseparably connected with the powers of heaven; and that the powers of heaven cannot be controlled nor handled, only upon the principles of righteousness; that they may be conferred upon us, it is true, but when we undertake to cover our sins, to gratify our pride, vain ambition, or to exercise dominion or compulsion over the souls of the children of men, in any degree of unrighteousness; behold the heavens withdraw themselves; the Spirit of the Lord is grieved, then amen to the priesthood, or to the authority of that man; behold, ere he is aware, he is left to kick against the pricks; to persecute the saints, and to fight against God.—Times and Seasons vol. 1. pp. 131, 132.

Thousands of honest men who received the gospel with joy, and spent their substance and gave the service of their lives gladly under the ministration of the elders who labored from 1827 to 1844, and thence in sadness for a few years longer, who received and imparted the life-giving forces of the restored gospel, testified; first, that they received the Spirit, and its manifestations, during that period; second, and that after the "degree of unrighteousness" that came in upon the introduction of the dogma of plural marriage, that Spirit was darkened to them and its manifestations ceased; thus confirming the words and teaching of the Seer, left upon record to warn and guide the church. Who can doubt the teaching, or the fulfilling of its implied prediction?

Malachi under the inspiration of the Spirit declared that an abomination had been committed in Israel; and when interrogated, it was treacherous dealing with the wife of one's youth; the command was:—

Therefore take heed to your spirit, and let none deal treacherously with the wife of his youth.

Let "not anyone," is the force of this command.

"The Temple labors, sealings, etc., as done in Utah," are not believed in by us; the reasons why may be briefly stated:—

1. There is no temple in Utah, which has been built, designed, specified, erected, and finished by the direct command of God.

We believe that every temple which the church should build should be especially commanded of God. This was the case in Solomon's time; it was the case in regard to the temple in Kirtland, and also the case in both Independence and Far West, Missouri, and especially the case at Nauvoo, Illinois. But no special command was had for those erected in Utah, nor has any been claimed for them. It has been claimed, however, that the statement found in the revelation of January 19, 1841, paragraph 12, closing with the sentence, "which my people are always commanded to build unto my name," was sufficient. It is claimed that this commandment means that the people are "commanded always" to build, or in other words that the command is a perpetual injunction always to be building temples, here, there, or anywhere the caprice or desire of the leaders may determine. This is not the correct rendering of the word, which means clearly that whenever the Lord designs that a temple should be built he always commands it, the form of language in the revelation cited being, "which my people are always commanded to build."

2. There is no line of teaching in either Bible, Book of Mormon, or Doctrine and Covenants. (Every edition from 1835 to the one issued by the Deseret News Office, in 1876, without an official order from either the conference or a leading quorum of the church, having a right to make such order.) Authorizing directly what are called in Utah temple labor.

3. There is no direction given by the Lord authorizing the entering upon the administration of a system of sealings, nor any specification of details as to the kind of sealings, their design and the method of conducting those sealings, that can be found in any of the records known to the church prior to the death of Joseph Smith the first President of the church, or since that that there has ever been a proper certification, or publication of.

4. The sealings taught and practiced by the church in Utah involved and included in them the ceremonies of marriage in which men were joined in wedlock to more than one woman, in direct violation of the well-established law of the Lord given to the church by revelation through the Seer; and also in contravention of the laws of the United States as expressed in the statutory enactments of the several States in which the church was organized, and in which it existed up to the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith and the subsequent exodus of many from the States to the Rocky Mountains.

5. The system of sealing "as done in Utah," also included the sealing, or adopting of persons into the family connection, or tribal relation, sometimes called the patriarchal order.

This system of adoption was of such a nature that there is an almost absolute certainty that the rights to family existence, increase, and domination, of minor families with equal rights in justice with all others, stood in danger of being entirely absorbed. To such an extent has this resulted that Presidents Woodruff and Cannon, of the Presidency of the Utah Church, last spring publicly taught that they had not been teaching and practicing the law of adoption correctly; the idea being advanced that the head of every family had the first right to have the members of that family sealed to him; whereas in the past some prominent elders in the church had assumed the right and exercised it, to have whole households of other men sealed to them, thus defeating the right of the head of that household,—if the ordinance held good over in the other world. This public confession made by these leading men is a clear admission that there had not been given to President Brigham Young, John Taylor, and others any commandment of God as to the fact of the doctrine, or the details of its observance, thus betraying its human origin. Besides this, it also would seem to make it appear that as the administration of this with other ordinances connected with it, required the payment of certain sums of money, and conferred certain privileges, the works heretofore done in that line are fruitless, and if of value must be again sought for through revised ordinances and rites and be again paid for by the devotee. The Savior's condemnation when he whipped the money changers from the temple was, "Ye have made my Father's house a den of thieves;" and Peter's predicted accusation against certain ones was that they would make merchandise of the people of God. (2 Peter 2: 3.)

6. The only sealing affecting the condition of men in the hereafter, which is to be administered here so far as is known in the books, or any authentic revelation published and known to the church, is that sealing known as the adoption into the church and kingdom of God recognized as being done in baptism and confirmation. Any other sealing than such as is found in the commands to the church as contained in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the church articles and covenants compiled in the Doctrine and Covenants, understood to be the burden of the angel's message to authorize the proclamation of the everlasting gospel, the New Covenant, would require a specific commandment by revelation from God; until this is had the general law must prevail. No such special command has been given that the church has been properly advised of; and until such time, we believe that we are justified in refusing to accept and exercise the rites and ordinances of sealing now admitted by Utah leaders to be incorrect.

A GOOD LIFE MUST BE A GOSPEL LIFE.

THAT is to say, the man who would live a good life must live in accordance with gospel teaching. Not in the extreme sense of isolation and seclusion from his fellow men, though such seclusion be spent in hours of meditation and prayer; but in the active discharge of daily duty and the service of God in fellowship with humanity, and in cheerful compliance with the obligations which citizenship in the commonwealth of Israel properly imposes. For, however godly the thoughts of a man in seclusion from his fellows might be, however full of pleasant communion with self and with the presence of peace, however free from the restless ambitions that fill the souls of some, and the sense of safety from intrusion, there is in such a life no room for the exercise of those qualities that endear man to his fellow men, that fill the life with grand achievements wrought in the love of God and the spirit of self-abnegation and sacrifice, the conquering of self. The prayer of Jesus for his disciples was, not that the Father should take them out of the world, but that he should keep them from the evils of the world. He knew that they could not win the crown of life away from the field in which lay the battle ground of life, of good against evil, hence asked for them only what would enable them to successfully live in the world though not of it.

QUERIES.

WE have been receiving questions for answers, for many years; and now have on hand a good many of them, all more or less of interest to those asking them, and possibly others; but not having time and opportunity to answer them when they were received, we have filed them to await our time. These questions range in subject all the way from queries as to the right or wrong of personal action, to abstruse matters of law and doctrine, some of which we cannot answer in any way, not being possessed of the information necessary to do so. Nor is it altogether our fault that we are ignorant in the premises, because some of the questions are not answerable, for obvious reasons, and no particular benefit could accrue to the questioner if they were answered beyond the gratification resulting from knowing—a sometimes questionable benefit at best.

But many of the questions are based upon the rightfulness or wrongfulness ness, the propriety or impropriety of certain personal conduct, which if answered could be only from the judgment of the editor, and would necessarily be partial, for the reason that the circumstances and conditions are not known to the editor, and must be supposed, not always a reliable foundation for correct decision.

We are willing to do all that may be practicable toward aiding every one to correct conclusions in matters upon which they seek information; but we shall not consider that we are necessarily under obligation to answer all and every query that may be sent to the office for attention and answer; for the reason that we have not the time to do it, and hence do not feel justified in attempting it.

We shall, however, if the questions seem important and time permits, try to answer according to our knowledge and ability.

SOMEWHERE about the middle of October the Holiness People with Rev. Lemon at their lead, laid religious siege to the inhabitants of Lamoni, planting their batteries in the M. E. church, where during their stay they had quite fair audiences, composed mostly of the Saints, and which audiences we are told, behaved fairly well in a quiet, respectful way, with the exception of now and then the asking of a question as to some subject presented in the discourses. On November 6 the officer in command broke camp and left the town convinced, we presume, that if he and his form of belief are to save the town and its people, then the town is lost; for they made no converts that we are informed of.

The preacher seemed to be devoted and very much in earnest, but told several of the Saints upon inquiry, that they cared nothing for doctrine and could not see any use for the ordinances, or the organization of the church as we see it. It would seem that their methods and faith are closely allied to the Salvation Army. They tried preaching on the streets for awhile, but desisted after trial showed that it was of no avail.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

CARD from Bro. T. W. Chatburn, dated Lowry City, Missouri, November 2:—

The first question of the Scott-Briney discussion is ended, and the universal opinion of both saint and sinner (except Campbellites) is that Briney has met his Waterloo, and that Lowry City is his Appomattox. The Book of Mormon has been in the Braden and Briney crucible for three days, but has come out brighter for the burning. Bro. Scott by his manly and ministerial deportment has won the admiration and respect of all; and as a Baptist minister put it, "Scott has the argument and Briney the blow." Leonard is feeling fairly well and the Saints are rejoicing in such a brave, gallant defender of the faith. Elder Briney commences the affirmation of his church, to-night. All goes well and Saints are feeling well.

Bro. V. D. Baggerly wrote from Derby, Indiana, November 1:—

I have just returned from the district conference at Byrneville, which closed October 16; came on by way of Alton, where we held a week's meetings. This is comparatively a new opening. We had good crowds and good attention.

Card from Bro. T. W. Chatburn, October 30 dated at Lowry City, Missouri:—

Bro. Scott is on top in every sense so far, and has the audience fully captivated. Briney has the Braden tactics.

Bro. T. W. Williams, with aid from local brethren, has started a mission in South Council Bluffs, of which he writes October 31:—

Would say that I am meeting with success in my meetings in south part of city. Have had good houses and excellent interest. The contributions each evening have been ample to defray expenses and some to spare.

Bro. J. M. Terry, St. Joseph, Missouri, November 5:—

We had children's day yesterday which was a success. Some very able papers were read by three of our young people. We feel proud of their bright intellects, especially so as they are consecrated to the cause of Christ.

Bro. C. J. Hunt, Pocahontas, Iowa, November 5:—

I closed a short series of meetings in the county courthouse last night; attendance fair, interest good; the first Saints' meetings ever held in the town. Court convenes here this week or I would have continued longer. I go five miles west to rural districts. All goes well.

Bro. Albert Bishop, East Portland, Oregon, November 2, writes:—

Bro. Holt called upon us a few days ago while enroute to Eastern Oregon and some points in Washington, and I realized that the Lord was with him, and we were mutually blessed. Bro. Holt is a good, humble worker, and he has our confidence and prayers. He promised to call upon us on his return trip and look after the scattered Saints about here.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

OUR readers, especially the ministry, will appreciate the subject matter of the article, "The Story of Sidney Rigdon and the Book of Mormon," in this number of the HERALD. It contains an invaluable compilation of evidence in refutation of the time-worn stories invented to connect Sidney Rigdon with Joseph Smith in the so-called authorship of the Book of Mormon. The article referred to is taken from Bro. E. L. Kelley's forthcoming work, "An Examination of the claims of the Book of Mormon," which is now in preparation.

Bro. John H. Lake wrote from St. Thomas, Ontario, November 1, very encouragingly. The conference of the London district, Bro. Lake thinks one of the best ever held in the province; the Spirit was present and the Saints were much blessed. Bro. Lake also attended the conference of the Eastern Michigan district held at Buel, Sanilac county, and reports that an excellent Spirit was present to the more firmly establishing of many. Two hundred baptisms, or over, in the district so far in the conference year shows well for the diligence of the eldership.

Bro. Jacob Waltenbaugh found some Saints at Carbon, Wyoming, during a recent visit to that point, where he labored and made friends to the church. Others, including members of the Utah Church, desire to hear more of the Reorganized Church.

Mr. Henry Plasters, of Brownville, Nebraska, writes us, commending the church, its faith, its ministry, and membership whom he has met. He is an inquirer.

A copy of The Land of Sunshine, an illustrated monthly, descriptive of Southern California, for September, is placed on our table by the kindness of F. A. Pattee and Co. of 144 South Main street, Rooms 7 and 8, Los Angeles, California, in which many of the peculiar and attractive features of the climate and productions of that wonderful land are set forth. It is a beautiful number. The cuts and printing are artistic and instructive, and give a pretty fair representation of that part of California. Sr. Fannie, Mr. Pattee's wife, is a daughter of Bro. and Sr. Frederick Schnell, of Los Angeles, and a member of the church; and we thank her kind husband for the pleasant reminder in the shape of the monthly paper. Anyone desiring to visit Southern California either for pleasure or to make settlement will do well to correspond with Mr. Pattee.

By letter to Bishop E. L. Kelley, of late date, we learn that Bro. I. M. Smith baptized three more at South Scott, Indiana, making eleven in all since the debate with Clark Braden.

We received an excellent letter from Bro. E. D. C. Smith, a son of Uncle William Smith, lately ordained an elder by Bro. I. N. Roberts, which breathes the missionary spirit to a goodly degree. We look for Bro. Smith to stand in his place, as a minister for Christ, and in the measure of his ability represent his father's family among the elders in Israel.

Sr. Abbie Rounds of Ozark, Missouri, reports labor performed by Bro. J. R. Wedlock and B. A. and H. M. Atwell, near Ozark. The few Saints in that section are alive; some outsiders interested.

Sr. J. L. Myers, Friend, Nebraska, suggests that Bro. I. M. Smith's article, "The Work of Christ in the Creation and Redemption of Man," published in HERALD of December 10, 1892, be reprinted in pamphlet form for tract distribution. We have referred the suggestion to the Board of Publication.

Bro. Hugh Sands writing from Bald Knob, Arkansas, November 1, recounts labor done at that point; first by Brn. Heman C. Smith and M. M. Turpen, and later on by Bro. T. C. Kelley, during the summer. Seven were baptized and a branch organized with eleven members by Brn. Smith and Turpen. Later on Bro. Kelley accepted the challenge of a Christian minister, whom he defeated in discussion. All the brethren named made friends among the people. The outlook for the branch was good.

Seventy-three baptisms reported in the HERALD for November 7. Pretty good record for one week.

Anyone having Nos. 7 and 10 of HERALD volume 1—July and October, 1860, or HERALD volume 1 complete; also Times and Seasons volumes 1, 2, and 3, please write the Herald Office, naming price.

Letters are received from Sr. M. M. Green, Appledore, Ontario; Bro. C. H. Rayl, Washington, Indiana.

Bro. Joseph Ward's field address to December 15 is Coats, Arkansas. His permanent address is Pomo, Missouri. Bro. Ward is laboring among scattered Saints in Arkansas, encouraging them, and making new openings.

Bro. C. E. Blodgett has been holding a series of meetings near Fairfield, Nebraska, where he baptized four of late. He expects to continue labor at various points during the winter.

WHAT THE WORLD IS.

A battle field where forces meet,
And unseen hosts contend,
With truces all so short, they seem
With the wild strife to blend;
Strife that leaves none of us unscathed,
Where'er the mastery be;
But who, till the Great Day, can tell
With whom is victory?

C. Crosland.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"I cannot do much," said a little star,
"To make the dark world bright!
My silvery beams cannot struggle far
Through the folding gloom of night!
But I'm only a part of God's great plan,
And I'll do the best that I can."

"A GOOD tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit."

In order that a tree may bring forth good fruit, it needs to be well attended to, receiving all care possible that nothing of a destructive character may hinder its growth. We wish here to make a comparison by placing ourselves beside this fruit tree.

Do we not desire our "fruit" to be of the very best kind, without spot or blemish? If so, how is this end to be accomplished?

We must strive to rid ourselves of anything that would hinder the growth of the one who is part and parcel of our very being; our actions, as well as our thoughts, being of the purest. If ever purity was needed it is now, and shall we not strive for that condition? We desire a generation to be raised up, who will be an honor to the church of God, and whose minds will be so molded that their whole lives will be given to the cause if needed.

Why are there so many who shirk the duties of motherhood? Is it because they think they are not fitted for the task, or is it too much trouble? The latter, too often, we think. Our sister in Herald of October 3 gave some good instructions, such, we think, as we should heed. As far as "multiply and replenish the earth" is concerned, it seems that like other commands, it "is no longer needed" with some. We hope that the young daughters of Zion will receive such instruction that when their turn comes to take the places of those gone before, they will not be too fashionable to comply with this command. It is too sacred to be tampered with, in our estimation. So many who are capable of taking care of and raising children make it their business of only having one, or perhaps two, and sometimes so many years between them that the children have no love one for the other. We would prefer the reward of the mother who has a large family, who, toiling day after day under her heavy burden, (for a burden indeed it is,) tries hard to do her duty to her little ones. There certainly is much to go through for them, but the thought of another little lamb to care for is enough to cheer and help us through it all. I do not like to think of the day when in my home there will not be a little toddler running around lisping that oft repeated word, "Mamma."

How often we have seen and heard of those who, when they have become conscious that before long they would claim the name of "mother," have felt so badly and thought such terrible things, even the thought of destroying that little life. The same child is born and grows to be a man, and sometime in his life commits some terrible deed, perhaps murder. Can we wonder at it, when he partook of his mother's thoughts? and can we blame him altogether? We think not.

Oh! then, you who are mothers, shun all such evil thoughts and let us bear our burdens patiently. We have the privilege of molding the characters of noble men and women, and let us see that our work is done well.

"There's a work for me and a work for you, Something for each of us now to do"

It is, to the writer, one of the noblest works we can be engaged in, that of training the young minds. Patience is needed (which is lacking too often, individually speaking). May God bless the "Daughters of Zion" in their work, and we think that to make things balance well, we need the "Sons of Zion." Are the young men of our day so much more enlightened than the young ladies, that they need no instruction in these matters? I think not. Remember "Eve sinned, being deceived, but Adam willfully."

We think the "Sons of Zion" are needed just as much as are the "Daughters of Zion," and who will take the first step? Trusting that our aim will be to "come up higher," and that we may all strive to be pure in thought, word, and deed, I am,

Yours in gospel bonds,

L. WIGHT.

LAMONI, November 2, 1894.

DES MOINES, Iowa.

Dear Sisters:—It has been a long time since I wrote a letter for the Herald. I was then a girl and very young in the cause. I was living at Fulton, Iowa; was a member of that branch, having been baptized about a month previous to my writing. Now I am married and the mother of a little girl fourteen months old. To us, of course, she is the dearest baby on earth; but day by day as she grows older, I realize more the great responsibility resting upon us to raise her in the way God would have her to go, and teach her the things most pleasing unto him. It is my daily prayer that he will give me knowledge and wisdom to teach her those things, and for strength and grace to overcome my own weaknesses and imperfections that I may say or do nothing that I would not have her imitate. Our baby is very bright and quick to imitate for one of her age, therefore we have all the more need to be mindful of ourselves. It seems I make so little progress in the right way and am so often led by the pleasures of this life, that oftentimes I am almost discouraged with myself. But I never lose faith in the work, for with each new trial comes the thought that God's people are to be a tried people.

To-day I have been reading the Mother's Home Column, and the tears start unbidden from my eyes when I read of each mother's love and concern for her darling children. I never before realized how much God must have loved his only Son; yet he gave him that we might have eternal life. I ask myself the question, Could you or I give our child, whether we had only one or more than one, to save the world? I answer, I'm afraid not; we are yet too mortal.

We moved to Des Moines last October; found the Saints here very friendly and kind. I belong to the sister's mite society and Prayer Union, but I regret to say I have not been able to attend much this summer. I have been in poor health through the hot weather. I have always derived much strength spiritually from the prayer meetings. I trust I shall be able to attend more regularly in the future.

Your sister,

LILLIE V. GOREHAM.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SR. HANNAH E. CAIRNS of Elmira, Kansas, requests your faith and prayers in her behalf that she may be healed of a troublesome affliction.

Bro. J. Armstrong of Nebraska City, requests your faith and prayers in behalf of Bro. Cornelius Meyers who is sorely afflicted. (Note.—We regret that the above request has been delayed. It was accidentally slipped under some papers and failed to reach the office.—Ed.)

Sr. Mary Hobart of El Reno, Oklahoma, earnestly requests your faith and prayers in her behalf that she may be healed.

Sr. Rachel La Rue of Davenport, Iowa, requests your prayers in her behalf that she may be healed.

DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

PITTSBURG, Pennsylvania: Alice Hulmes, Maggie Martin, Annie Martin, May Burris, Edith Morgan. Clarksdale, Missouri: Edith Revel, Hattie A. Rollett.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR NOVEMBER.

"He liveth long who liveth well!
All other life is short and vain,
He liveth longest who can tell
Of living most for heavenly gain.

"He liveth long who liveth well!
All else is being flung away,
He liveth longest who can tell
Of true things truly done each day."

Thursday, Nov. 15.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verse.—Alma 15: 11.

Thursday, Nov. 22.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verse.—Doctrine and Covenants 108: 5.

Thursday, Nov. 29.—The gathering of Israel to their land, and the restoration to them of the pure gospel in its fullness, and its acceptance by them to their everlasting peace.

Memory Verses.—Joel 3: 1, 2, 12, 16.

Letter Department.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 29.

Editors Herald:—The conference of the Southern California district just closed was in some respects one of the best ever held in the district. The preaching was good, the prayer and testimony meetings were very spiritual and edifying, while the business sessions were marked by the spirit of peace and earnestness. The reports from branches and ministry show marked advancement all along the line, in increase of labor, spirituality, and numbers. The report of the Bishop's agent indicates a marked growth in the financial department of the work, notwithstanding this has been one of the most distressing financial crises ever passed through by the church on this coast. The branch reports show an increase of sixty-six in the district and the work is spreading on every hand, and the ministry are being greatly blessed in their labors. The conference voted to continue meetings in the tent as interest seemed to demand, and Elder R. R. Dana and the writer were selected to occupy. There is a noble band of Saints in Los Angeles, and they deserve great credit for the earnest zeal manifested; but there! I am afraid I am showing partiality; for the Saints everywhere are good, and I thank God that my lot has been cast among God's people.

The work has received an impetus in this district since General Conference that is truly encouraging, and this should inspire the heart of every Saint in praise to God and to greater efforts in doing his part in rolling on the great work. The German sisters of the Los Angeles branch are untiring in their efforts for the spread of the truth, and the fruit is being manifest in many additions to the church from among their countrymen.

As ever, for truth,
W. P. PICKERING.

PLANO, Ill., Oct. 29.

Editors Herald:—This town has been stirred to its circumference during the past three months, but more especially the last five weeks, because we were like a certain city spoken of in the Scriptures that dwelt at ease, thinking it was secure. So of this city of Plano in regard to the Sabbath question. But, lo, and behold! the Sabbatarians under the nom de plume of Adventists, came and pitched their tents in Mr. Steward's park and held a camp meeting about two weeks, and set forth their doctrines of soul-sleeping, anti-papacy, seventh-day Sabbath, and other pet ideas of theirs; and having, as they thought, met with success sufficient to warrant, they decided to hold forth in the town, and so pitched a tent and left one Elder J. W. Scholes to invest the city with their peculiar theories. He began his bombardment of the place in true Advent style, but nothing seemed to tell on the citadel as much as the seventh-day Sabbath; for those who had been church members and, as they supposed, Christians, were so dazed that they began to think they were all sinners because they had failed to keep the Sabbath of the fourth commandment which God gave to Israel at Sinai, which this elder told them was for Jew and Gentile. One of those named Latter Day Saints was drawn out of line by a promise of being made a preacher by them and has gone over and driven his family with him. We do not feel the loss much, yet are loth to see anyone, even if he is weak, drawn into such a vortex of false doctrine.

Well, when the excitement seemed at its height, and the Methodists and Baptists seeming afraid or indifferent to what was going on, or at least making no effort to meet the errors presented, I thought that as presiding elder of the Plano branch of the Church of Jesus Christ I would not be worthy of the name of pastor if I did not do something to keep the flock together, therefore I would look the Sabbath question up and preach on it the third Sunday in September. During the week following I prepared for the effort, and so on Sunday when I reached the church I found Bro. A. J. Keck prepared for the same work, and as I preferred to hear him than to speak myself, I told him to go ahead, which he did and preached a discourse that ought to have satisfied any honest mind on the Sabbath question, using as a text Colossians 2: 16. Elder Scholes was present and heard the brother's sermon and that same afternoon he said it was preached through spite. At the close I announced that the next Sunday morning I would speak on the Sabbath question, and asked those present to advertise it as far as possible, as I wanted all interested to hear it. When Sunday came the "stone church," as it is called, was filled with listeners. I spoke for one hour and a half and then was not through.

Elder Scholes had announced my appointment to his people and told them to attend and learn all they could; he also came and took notes, and, at the close, handed me a notice to read to the effect that he would review my discourse on the next Monday evening at their hall. I attended his meeting and noticed that he reviewed only a few of the points that I had made, but took back what he had said a little over a week before; namely, that the ten commandments were for Jew and Gentile, saying God never gave the law to the Gentiles; "for," said he, "the Gentiles were in rebellion against God and he could not give them the law." Beside this, he expressed a great deal of pity for me, and said something offensive about Salt Lake. But as the citizens took this up in my behalf the next day, he was willing to take it back, made an apology the next evening, and said he would "make the plaster as large as the wound."

At the close of Elder Scholes' review on Monday evening, I announced that I would review his review; but feeling myself incompetent for the work, I, like the Saints of Plano were doing, prayed the Lord for help, and to send some one to help me, and to defend the work. I was so much in earnest that, on Friday I wrote the Herald Office to know who, if anyone was coming from Lamoni to attend district conference soon to convene at Plano, and to wire me. I took the letter to the office and as I handed it to the postmaster he handed me a card from Bro. W. W. Blair stating that he would be in Sandwich the next Saturday and Sunday and could come to Plano to aid me in meetings through the week prior to conference. O, how glad I was! I then knew the good Lord had heard our prayers. Well, Bro. Blair heard at Sandwich what was going on at Plano and came in time to hear my review of the review, and at its close announced that he would speak on the Sabbath question on the following Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings, which he did, building up an impregnable wall of argument in support of Sunday being the Christian rest day. Elder Scholes was present and took notes, and at the close announced that he would review Elder Blair on the Monday evening after the conference, to continue until he had reviewed Elder Blair's three discourses. Elder Scholes got out posters headed as follows:—

"He who will not reason is a bigot."

"He who cannot reason is a fool."

"He who dares not reason is a coward."

When we read this we thought there was a fair chance to get the mooted question fairly before the people. But, alas, we were doomed to disappointment; for notwithstanding the writer went to Elder Scholes' meeting on the Sunday before his review of Bro. Blair's discourses and asked him when he would be through the review, telling him that Bro. Blair would commence on the subject again on Thursday, (as he, Scholes, assured me he would be through on the previous Wednesday evening,) and Bro. Blair met him on the street next day and told him he would review him, beginning Thursday evening, Elder Scholes at the close of his review, announced that Elder Curtis who had come to his help, had been a missionary in the South Sea Islands and Australia, and would give a free lecture on his travels on Thursday evening, the same time of Bro. Blair's appointment. Bro. Blair, anxious for all to have a chance to hear his reply to Elder Scholes, put off his meeting till Friday. But, O, the cunning of the Devil! Elder Curtis gave a part of his lecture on Thursday evening and announced the balance for Friday evening and then kept up meetings on the same time of Bro. Blair's meetings; all to keep his people away. Elder Scholes had left town on the previous Thursday. Where, O, where is he who will not reason? and he who dares not reason? and where is the coward? and who put up the bars to shut out discussion? and who kept his people away so they had not a fair chance to hear? But so is the proverb: "The wicked flee when no man pursueth; but the righteous is bold as a lion."

Bro. Blair remained and gave those who came to hear the facts on the Sabbath question, showing from the New Testament and authentic history that the first day of the week is the Lord's day and the stated day on which the early Saints met for public worship, and therefore it was and is the Christian's Sabbath or rest day. His labors among the Saints and people of the city were timely, and they so settled the question that very few will give way to seventh-day errors again, and the Saints are now the better prepared to battle with these grave errors.

We will, with the help of the Lord, hold the fort. In bonds,

W. VICKERY.

WEST BAY CITY, Mich., Oct. 29.

Editors Herald:—Our meetings in this place are a success. We have taken down the tent and rented a hall near the center of the town on Walnut, near Midland street. Last night there was not seating room. The hall when seated closely will hold two hundred and fifty people. They are coming from all parts of the city to hear the gospel. I expect to go into the Eastern district in about ten days or two weeks, and will try and answer to some of the many calls for preaching. In bonds,

R. E. GRANT.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, Nov. 1.

Editors Herald:—The pleasure of attending the Logan Reunion was duly appreciated. While there I endeavored to bear my part to make it of benefit to the cause we love so well. Only one special disappointment hindered my full enjoyment; which was, the absence of several of those depended upon to assist in Sunday school exercises, and for that reason several of the children expressed themselves as not satisfied. Nevertheless what exercises we were privileged to enjoy were profitable and interesting, even those who previously thought that it was a waste of time to use any of the reunion time for Sunday school work, being the judges. The experience of this reunion is followed in memory by instruction that will I trust be of future benefit.

On Wednesday following the reunion I started from home to again resume service for the Master in tent work, stopping on my way at Moorehead and Little Sioux to act as peacemaker as per previous arrangement. When peace shall cover the earth and God's will done here as it is done in heaven, such labor as this will no more be required with the Saints of God; and how I long for it to come when nothing shall hurt nor destroy!

I began tent services at Anthon under very unfavorable circumstances; wind, rain, and cold combined to hinder us from holding services in the tent but a few times. However, the M. E. church was secured for three services through the kindness of three of the trustees, the pastor not being there. On the second night, one of the trustees whom we had not seen, presented himself and objected to our using the church longer than the following night, as "he had heard" we were not worthy of Christian forbearance. We held two services at Oto, following our labor at Anthon, but the people concluded they did not care to hear, so we left them to their own decision and enjoyment of it; however, for two nights we preached in the country west about ten miles, and found interested congregations.

From Oto we came to Smithland, where there was a different influence entirely, as much so in contrast with Oto as Egypt and Canaan, for there we found a hospitable, kind people, apparently anxious to learn the way of the Lord; while at Oto the opposite exists, with a very few exceptions. Bro. and Sr. G. F. Waterman and Bro. and Sr. John Bower with their Daughter Effie, are trying to hold on to the faith, with very strong irreligious influence against them. Sr. Waterman is yet quite poorly, but has hopes that she may be relieved so as to be useful in the building up of the work of God. She desires an interest in the faith and prayers of the Saints.

Several at Smithland are almost persuaded to step into the light of God. I look for quite an ingathering there in the near future, and a branch organization effected. Left this place with many requests for a return soon, stopping on the way home at Moorehead, where a large assembly greeted us, and listened while I tried to point them to the necessity of each honoring the gifts of God, and the sustaining of each other in the exercise of them that the work of God may move, in order and with power.

Arriving home on Saturday I occupied the morning and evening hour of the following day. Had fair attendance considering the weather, and a much better spiritual influence than has been noticeable for some time past. Find that a greater interest exists as shown by a humbler spirit and a more godly life. Bro. J. W. Wight was the "we" at Anthon, Oto, and Smithland. His manner seems well suited to the disposition of the people, and under his supervision I hope to see much advancement in all departments of the work in this mission, for I believe God's blessing attends him.

On to-morrow I expect to start to Monona county, at Maple Landing, to hold a series of meetings, being governed as to the number by the interest shown, and the direction of the Spirit.

I have tried in this communication to satisfy the appetites of those who like the discouraging features of the labor of the ministry, mingled in with the encouraging when writing to the Herald. I have written of both as I have thought wise, and trust the words penned may be of some satisfaction.

Ever a brother in Christ,

J. F. MINTUN.

SOLDIER, Iowa, Nov. 5.

Editors Herald:—As Bro. Mintun will or has likely reported our conjoint labors, it is needless for me to make any note of them. Since our separation I have been trying to do gospel duty at Moorhead and some school-houses higher up the river. There is a faithful band of Saints at Moorhead, and as an excuse for laboring in the branch, there was an opportunity to reach "outsiders" that could not otherwise have been "reached;" besides, the "little ones" of the branches need strengthening at times.

With regard to a statement recently made by a Herald correspondent, concerning "what may appear to be their weaker points" in some of the "revelations;" it occurs that all discussion on such matters should properly be relegated to the precincts of a council of the ministry or a "General Assembly," and not permitted to enter the Herald columns, thereby destroying the equanimity of both the investigator and many in the church. Discussion, controversy, and true criticism, are both right and necessary in their place. Removed from that into the confines of other realms, they serve to injure, retard, and finally destroy, rather than to promote unity.

With a desire for Zion's welfare,

J. W. WIGHT.

HANFORD, Cal., Oct. 21.

Editors Herald:—Perhaps a communication from us in this far western land would be of interest to your many readers, especially to those of our immediate acquaintances in Missouri. As was noted in the Herald nearly two years ago, myself and family came to California with a view to making it our home. We landed at Lemoore, California, near where I have a brother living whom I had not seen for twenty-four years. Soon after our arrival here our daughter, Mollie, was taken down with a severe spell of rheumatism, she having been subject to it before coming. Since her recovery we have all enjoyed good health, my own being better than for several years before.

We soon found and became acquainted with the Saints at Tulare, and have united with that branch of the church. We have also found several others of the faith living some six miles north of us. Tulare is thirteen miles east of us. We are living in a community which has a number of church faiths, —Catholics, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, United Brethren, etc., all of whom have treated us as a family with the best of respect and neighborly feeling.

We were soon invited to come out to their place of worship, to attend preaching and to take part in Sunday school, etc., the church-house having been built as a union church, and free for all religious denominations. After several meetings had passed, we taking part in Sunday school and class meeting, I proposed that if agreeable we would on the following Sunday talk to the people a while. But before the next Sunday came the United Brethren minister called at my home and said that Mr. B., one of the directors, had requested him to call and state that he did not want any Mormon preaching in the church: the minister thus making himself the willing tool in the hands of the said director to bar us out of the church. On application to the directors for permission to use the church three of the five refused to give their consent, so we were left out in the cold. But we distributed tracts, Heralds, etc., to quite a number of the neighbors, trusting that an overruling providence would make a way for the opening up of the work. The U. B. minister on his first acquaintance with us,—before we applied for the use of the church,—seemed very anxious to hear our elders preach. I gave him some tracts, "Presidency and Priesthood," etc., and he soon showed a disposition to not want to see or hear any of our elders, and would not come near when he had the opportunity and was invited to do so.

As time passed on, Brn. Haws and Brown came to Tulare with the tent, and Bro. Haws came over and preached in our house to small but attentive audiences, and afterward moved the tent over to within a half mile of the Union church, where they held meetings for several weeks, having as attentive and orderly audiences as one could wish for. One night when Bro. Haws spoke on the question, "Was Joseph Smith a prophet sent of God?" the tent was full, with some on the outside. Some of those in attendance during the meetings told Bro. Haws they had been counseled not to come to hear, but to stay away, and not go near, their advisers thinking, no doubt, that that was the best way to beat us. But notwithstanding the counsel given we had a good hearing, and we believe much prejudice was removed, and many friends made for us as a people.

During the time the meetings were in progress some one over the signature of "Vidi" took up the matter of our holding tent meetings and the refusal to allow us to use the church, in the Hanford Sentinel, and threw a pretty hot shot into the camp of those who would not let us have the church. So, upon the whole, the refusal to let us have the church has resulted at least in giving us quite an advertisement, and we hope good will come out of it in the end.

The above-mentioned U. B. minister met Bro. Haws one day and charged us as a people with being guilty of many evils, but finally told Bro. Haws, "If you will show me a miracle, I will come into the church and bring many more in with me." Bro. Haws told him that Christ said: "A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign," and that we did not want that kind. Bro. Haws met him again in a few days and in my presence asked him to take back what he had said about us as a people, but he declined, and then left us. Surely history is repeating itself as it did in the times of the apostles, "Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and perish: for I work a work in your days, a work which ye shall in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you."—Acts 13: 41.

I hope that truth and right may always prevail and that we may be found among those who will receive a righteous reward.

JOSEPH FLORY.

BRUSH CREEK, Iowa, Oct. 30.

Editors Herald:—I closed my meeting about four miles northwest of town last night. Had a good interest, with large crowds from the very beginning. Five were baptized, and about ten more are fully convinced of the truth, but had not the courage to step out and obey; but I still have hopes for them. One young lady has been on the M. E. porch waiting to get in for six months; but on the day she was to be taken in I baptized her into the Church of Christ. I spoke between twenty and twenty-five times there. I took a bad cold and will have to lay off a few days for repairs. I will then go to Floyd county whence an urgent call comes for preaching.

It is truly encouraging to hear the calls for preaching, yet discouraging when we cannot fill half of them. The prospects look bright ahead. Since the first of May I have baptized thirteen in Eastern Iowa, eighteen in the Des Moines district, and thirty-two at Logan,—sixty-three in all.

Bro. Kephart is at work four miles west of town; and O. B. Thomas is somewhere in Clayton county. I have not heard from him for a week. I think to go home a few days till I get better of the cold in my head; for it troubles me very much. I find that the best way is, when a place is opened for preaching, to give them from twenty to forty sermons. By that time they know what we believe and teach.

In bonds,

J. S. ROTH.

CENTRALIA, Kan., Oct. 31.

Editors Herald:—Since the conference held at Netawaka, Kansas, the 13th and 14th inst., I, in company with Elder J. Arthur Davis, held a series of meetings at two different points near Holton, Kansas, where, for the first time, I believe, the gospel was introduced. Our meetings turned out to be very interesting and profitable, for they were the means of removing much prejudice, etc., our congregations increasing until the close, with pressing invitations to come again, and many other commendable remarks. We were materially aided in the singing service by members of the Munns and Parker families of the Netawaka branch, for which we were very thankful. Much good was done. J. Arthur will visit there again.

I am directed by the officer in charge to labor in the Northwestern Kansas district the balance of the year. This will explain to my friends and brethren of the Northeastern district the reason that I cannot meet my promises in regard to preaching in different points. Am now negotiating for a church at this place, on my way west.

In gospel bonds,

J. ALFRED DAVIS.

BYER, Ohio, Oct. 10.

Editors Herald:—At the Highland, Ohio, conference of August 10 the district tent was placed at the disposal of the missionary in charge, and your humble servants were appointed to use it in opening new places in the general field. As the tent was already at Byer, and this place having been fortified against the Saints having a hearing, by religious bigots and sectarian prejudice, all public houses being closed against us, we thought a more opportune time would never present itself than to set the tent there as an opening of the fall campaign. We commenced with fair audiences and good liberty, and poured in the "pure testimony" with such telling effect, that a "boycott" was soon decided upon, and meetings held every night by the M. E. people, and part of the time by the "Campbellites," which left us but comparatively few in attendance. However, the few were very regular, and anxious to hear, and we opine much good will be the final result, as some of the best citizens declare their intention to obey.

From there we moved to Glen Roy, where we had formerly occupied in June, and remained one week, and baptized one, and blessed some children, and administered to some sick, leaving a permanent good feeling and spirit of further inquiry. The few Saints of Glen Roy are endeavoring by their godly walk and association to prove the work honorable.

From there we shipped for Lawrence county. When we arrived we found no tent, though we supposed it shipped two days before we started. However, after a few days we got the work to move and we occupied the Paddle Creek and La Grange schoolhouses till the following Monday, when the tent arrived, and we located on Aaron's Creek, about fifteen miles from Ironton. We had scarcely spread our sail to get under good headway, ere we snuffed the breeze of persecution, and the second night they began their annoyance by cutting some of our ropes and otherwise drawing the attention of the speakers and hearers from the subject matter under consideration and continued this manner of disturbance for a week. We thought we ought to be protected by the law of good society and the statutes from such depredators, and so expressed ourselves, when on making inquiry as to whom we might depend upon for assistance against the despoilers of peace and good order, we found that those who offered to assist us in procuring the names of the "anarchists" were themselves the hinderers of our intentions and liberties and the ringleaders of the riotous mob. On Tuesday, September 25, they came with full intent to rout us. They began by throwing rocks on the tent from the adjacent hillsides, and making nefarious speeches, and threatening to cut and burn the tent; going so far as to attempt to build a fire of sticks near by for that purpose. The entire congregation were finally on the outside, and with the aid of sisters and other lady members of the congregation who placed themselves between the tent and the mob, the latter were kept at bay, though they made several charges with open knives and hideous yells to "cut 'er down,"

"cut 'er down," "burn her," etc. They continued this kind of a racket for more than an hour, when they finally withdrew, with open threats and avowals that if we let the tent stand till the next night they would burn it at any cost. On the 26th we boxed the tent. That night the mob returned, furiously intending to carry out their nefarious threats; and so closed the tent work on Aaron's Creek, Lawrence county, Ohio.

We have many invitations to occupy elsewhere, promising houses and good order, and very anxious to show us that the conduct of the "Aaron Creekers" is not a sample of the society of Lawrence county hills. However, it is due the Saints there to say that they are pearls of the first water, and two or three other families deeply sympathized with us. We held two services in private houses, then moved to Paddle Creek schoolhouse, where we had good attendance and attention. May God bless the pure in heart in that place, and comfort them in their trials, and abundantly bless them for their constant watchcare and protection of his missionaries.

H. R. HARDER,
J. L. GOODRICH.

LEAVENWORTH, Ind., Nov. 1.

Editors Herald:—I arrived at this place on the 24th of October, and baptized two yesterday and two the day before. Others are making preparation to be baptized on Sunday. Those baptized are all heads of families. I began the work here the 9th of September, preaching nine sermons, with good interest, which has been increasing ever since. The Campbellites are fearful; they say I am tearing up the other churches, and of course their church is the one they don't like to see fall; but Babylon must tumble to the ground. One man told them if this doctrine was not right, to bring on their man and meet me in a public discussion. They said "no;" they would not do that, for Jenkins was an educated man and knew the Bible by heart. He told them to keep quiet then, and quit throwing slang. The outlook promises a large branch here. This point is three miles north of Leavenworth; not right in the town, but the people are trying to get me a place to preach in the town, and prospects are fair that they will succeed. May the Lord continue to bless the work.

GEORGE JENKINS.

ANAHEIM, Cal., Oct. 28.

Editors Herald:—I desire to state to the brethren and sisters of the church in general through the Herald, that Bro. and Sr. Luther have not left the church; that they never have thought of such a thing, or had any such idea in heart or mind.

It has come to us several times and in several ways that we had, and we take this way and opportunity to say that we were never more in earnest in our endeavors to do right, and strive to live up to the teachings of the gospel than now; and we shall continue to do so in our weak way, with God's help so long as life shall last. We desire to overcome the flesh and bring ourselves into subjection to the Master's will, whatever that may be.

We are only human, and we may err, and may have erred in the past; but we are not tired striving. If we have wronged anyone at any time we ask to be forgiven, and shall go on doing the best we can at all times and under all circumstances. We are more anxious to do our mite to advance the work of the church than ever in our lives.

God bless the work everywhere is our wish and prayer. Yours in hope,

CLARENCE H. LUTHER.

TABOR, Iowa, Nov. 7.

Editors Herald:—Our work in this and the adjacent district is still slowly progressing. On October 6 I went to the Nodaway district and found all still rejoicing in the truth, with a strong determination to press onward in the good work. Found our worthy collaborators and fellow servants in the Lord, Brn. J. R. Evans and M. P. Madison, still strong in the faith. Bro. Evans has done good, reliable work in the district with the tent, assisted ably by M. P. Madison, James Thomas, and others of the brethren, who have zeal and interest in the spread of the gospel.

The conference held October 13 and 14 was well attended, fully represented by the Saints of the district, making the hearts of the Saints and friends at Ross' Grove happy by filling their houses full and keeping the kind sisters busy preparing the temporal necessities of life, while the business sessions and prayer and preaching services were well attended. God's Spirit was with us in power and much assurance, making all hearts glad. All returned to their homes thankful to God that they lived in the latter days. One was baptized.

On October 15, by the kindness of Bro. R. K. Ross, we were transferred to Mount City, and to Biglow by Bro. Smith, from thence by rail to Hamburg for three nights. We met in conference with the officers and Saints of this district on Saturday and Sunday, October 20 and 21. Here we had the best representation from the branches we have had the pleasure of meeting for many years. The large church of the Saints on Plum Creek was packed at each service. The Holy Spirit was abundantly poured out upon us, and all expressed themselves amply rewarded for putting forth the effort to be there. The preaching was done by Bro. D. Hougas, president of district, John Carlile, of Underwood, Iowa, and W. W. Waldsmith, of Nebraska City. We continued our preaching until Thursday the 25th.

On Sunday, Oct. 28, we preached the funeral sermon of John Densdon, at Bartlett, and continued three nights that week. On Sunday, November 4, we were at the Shady Grove schoolhouse, and two nights this week. We are now bound for Shenutt, Iowa, by way of Shenandoah. In all of these places the interest is good, and we are making many good, reliable friends to the cause wherever we preach in this district. Prejudice is almost a thing of the past in most places. The local brethren are doing well in most of the branches, and we trust they will be honored in their respective places by the members; for these brethren who labor for the sustenance of their families and spend what time they can in preaching the word, are worthy of double honor.

To my collaborators, let me say, Move onward to the victory; all hold on to the faith; pray for the spirit of endurance.

God speed the work to its ultimate triumph. Your brother,

HENRY KEMP.

Original Articles.

THE STORY OF SIDNEY RIGDON AND THE BOOK OF MORMON.

EDITORS HERALD:—Certain facts touching the old story connecting Sidney Rigdon in some mysterious way with the authorship of the Book of Mormon, I had expected to have published ere this, in connection with other matters in an "Examination of the Claims of the Book of Mormon," but for want of time to perfect, the publication has necessarily been delayed. It will convenience many, however, to have a few of these now, and I offer the following extract for the columns of the Herald:—

The charge upon Sidney Rigdon of having been in league with Joseph Smith in projecting in any way the Book of Mormon, was treated by him as being so unreasonable and palpably false as to be undeserving of the notice of honorable men, not to say Christian gentlemen. From the first he treated the story with scorn and contempt, as did also his friends.

They did not take into consideration, at the time, however, that they were religious zealots who were circulating the story, and the avowed enemies of Elder Rigdon, as he had up to the very time of this new conversion long been the leading and most successful minister of the "reform" movement pioneered by Scott, Campbell, Rigdon, and others, in Pennsylvania and Northern Ohio. To change attitude all at once, as did Saul of Tarsus, and appear in the role of a convert to the gospel in its fullness, as preached by the apostles, with all its powers and blessings, was more than his old associates could endure; and, although like Saul, he sought occasion to earnestly recount to them the reasons for his change, many who were wedded to the abandoned cause persisted in the cry:—

Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not fit that he should live.

That old story, "His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept," which has come down to us notwithstanding the contentions of eighteen centuries, and which is yet credited by the larger part of those who adhere to the faith of the people who started it, ought to be a warning to all lovers of truth to question critically and fairly, any and all tales circulated to the injury of a minister or church, by the religious partisans of a different faith and belief.

When Elder Rigdon and his friends gave their statement touching the Spalding story, they boldly and openly denounced it as being false in every particular; that he not only took no part in the getting up of the Book of Mormon, but that from the very surroundings and circumstances of the case it was impossible for him to have done so, granting for the purpose of the argument that the Book of Mormon was a gotten-up affair.

During the years immediately preceding, and at the time of the publication of the Book of Mormon; that is, 1826-1830, Elder Rigdon was constantly engaged as a minister, as pastor of the church at Mentor, and as time permitted, preaching and proselyting in a score or more of the churches in the Western Reserve; while the scene of the translation and publication of the Book of Mormon was far away in the State of New York, with no railroads or speedy means of transportation to be used by him to further his schemes, did he have any.

Elder Rigdon claims that he not only made no visit to New York State, and had no acquaintance with Mr. Smith during such period, but knew nothing of any such man until late in the year 1830, about the time of his conversion to the gospel as taught by the Saints, and that he neither had time nor opportunity of meeting Mr. Smith, had he known of him.

The enemies of Elder Rigdon and of the claims of the Book of Mormon refused to accept his plain statements and those of his family and friends in this, and defiantly pushed the stories, and went as far as to fix certain dates at which some "mysterious stranger," according to the story, was seen in the neighborhood of the Smiths in New York State, which "mysterious" personage, they were ready to conclude, for the story's sake, was Elder Rigdon. Unfortunately, however, for the relished bit of gossip, the record proofs are of such character as to be competent evidence in any court, and show beyond question that Elder Rigdon's whereabouts at the very times fixed for the "mysterious stranger" in New York, were, as claimed by himself, in the State of Ohio. This, with unbiased investigators, must not only settle the story of the appearance of Elder Rigdon in New York State at the time, but overcast that story of the "mysterious stranger" with such grave doubts as to place it in the category of work performed by those, who, through a misguided zeal, "set up false witnesses" to destroy Stephen of holy mien and blessed memory.

Whatever may have been the opinion of the enemies of Elder Rigdon touching his bold denunciation of the story implicating him in plotting or aiding in anywise in the production of the Book of Mormon, it must be admitted that all subsequently discovered facts corroborate the statements of the witness, Rigdon, and are at variance with the questionable yarns hawked about the world by the enemies of this man, who hoped to accomplish by these tales his overthrow, together with the new faith which he had espoused.

The times and places definitely settled by this corroborative evidence, as to the whereabouts, occupation, and business of Elder Rigdon during the years mentioned, are as follows:—

1. November 2, 1826. Solemnized a marriage contract between John G. Smith and Julia Giles, in Geauga county, Ohio.
2. December 13, 1826. Returns and record of marriage.
3. January, 1827. Held public meetings in Mantua, Ohio. ("Hayden's History of the Disciples of the Western Reserve," page 237.)
4. February, 1827. Preached funeral discourse of Hannah Tanner, Chester, Ohio.
5. March, April, 1827. Held protracted meetings in Mentor, Ohio, baptizing Nancy M. Sanford, William Dunsen and wife, and others.
6. June 5, 1827. Solemnized marriage between Theron Freeman and Elizabeth Waterman, Geauga county, Ohio.
7. June 15, 1827. Baptized Thomas Clapp and others, Mentor, Ohio.
8. July 3, 1827. Solemnized marriage between James Gray and Mary Kerr, Mentor, Ohio.
9. July 19, 1827. Solemnized marriage between Alden Snow and Ruth Parker, Kirtland, Ohio.
10. August 23, 1827. Meeting with the Ministerial Association, New Lisbon, Ohio. (Hist. Dis., pp. 55-57.)
11. October 9, 1827. Solemnized marriage of Stephen Sherman and Wealthy Matthews, Mentor, Ohio.
12. October 20, 1827. Ministerial Council at Warren, Ohio. (Hist. Dis. p. 137.)
13. November, 1827. Preaching at New Lisbon, Ohio. (Hist. Dis., pp. 72-75.)
14. December 6, 1827. Solemnized marriage of Oliver Wait and Eliza Gunn, at Concord, Geauga county, Ohio.
15. December 13, 1827. Solemnized marriage of Roswell D. Cottrell and Matilda Olds, Concord, Ohio.
16. January 8, 1828. Return of marriage made at Chardon, Ohio.
17. February 14, 1828. Solemnized marriage between Otis Herrington, Lyra Corning, Mentor, Ohio.
18. March, 1828. Instructing class in theology in Mentor, Ohio, Zebulon Rudolph being a member; also held great religious meetings in Mentor and Warren, Ohio. (Hist. Dis., p. 198.)

19. March 31, 1828. Returns made to Chardon, Ohio.
20. April, 1828. Holds great religious revival at Kirtland, Ohio. (Hist. Dis., p. 194.)
21. May, 1828. Meets Campbell at Shalersville, Ohio, and holds protracted meetings. (Hist. Dis., p. 155.)
22. June, 1828. Baptized Henry H. Clapp, Mentor, Ohio.
23. August, 1828. Attended great yearly association at Warren, Ohio.
24. September, 1828. Solemnized marriage between Luther Dille and Clarissa Kent.
25. September 18, 1828. Solemnized marriage between Nachore Corning and Phoebe E. Wilson, Mentor, Ohio.
26. October 13, 1828. Returns made to Chardon, Ohio.
27. January 1, 1829. Solemnized marriage between Albert Churchill and Anna Fosdick, Concord, Ohio.
28. February 1, 1829. Solemnized marriage between Erastus Root and Rebecca Tuttle.
29. February 12, 1829. Returns made to Chardon, Ohio.
30. March, 1829. Protracted meeting, Mentor, Ohio.
31. April 12, 1829. Protracted meeting, Kirtland, Ohio.
32. July 1, 1829. Organized church at Perry, Ohio. (Hist. Dis., page 346.)
33. August 13, 1829. Solemnized marriage between John Strong and Ann Eliza Moore, Kirtland, Ohio.
34. September 14, 1829. Solemnized marriage between Darwin Atwater and Harriet Clapp, Mentor, Ohio.
35. September, 1829. Meeting at Mentor, Ohio; baptized J. J. Moss, disciple minister of note.
36. October 1, 1829. Solemnized marriage between Joel Roberts and Relief Bates, Perry, Ohio.
37. October, 1829. At Perry, Ohio. (Hist. Dis. pp. 207-409.)
38. November, 1829. Wait Hill, Ohio; baptized Alvin Wait. Hist. Dis., pp. 204-207.)
39. December 31, 1829. Solemnized marriage between David Cloudler and Polly Johnson, Chagrin, Ohio.
40. January 12, 1830. Returns to Cleveland, Ohio.
41. March, 1830. Mentor, Ohio.
42. June 1-30, 1830. Mentor, Ohio. (Millennial Harbinger, p. 389.)
43. July, 1830. Protracted meeting at Pleasant Valley, Ohio; baptized forty-five.
44. August, 1830. With Alexander Campbell at Austintown, Ohio. (Hist. Dis., p. 209.)
45. November 4, 1830. Solemnized marriage between Lewis B. Wood and Laura Cleveland, Kirtland, Ohio.

46. December, 1830. Was converted to the faith of and united with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, under the preaching of P. P. Pratt and Oliver Cowdery.

The following certificates of the proper officers, touching the record—evidence of the marriages, will show the correctness of transcript as to these dates:—

The State of Ohio, }
Geauga county. } SS—Probate Court.

I, H. K. Smith, Judge of the Probate Court in and for said county, hereby certify that the above and foregoing certificates, numbering from one to sixteen were truly taken and copied from the record of marriages in this county, preserved in this office, where the same, by law, are required to be kept. In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said court, at Chardon, this 27th day of April, A. D., 1891.

(Signed) H. K. SMITH, Probate Judge.
(SEAL)

IN THE PROBATE COURT.

State of Ohio, }
Cuyahoga County. } SS.

I, Henry C. White, judge of said court, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct transcript take from the marriage records in this office, where the same is by law required to be kept.

(Signed)
HENRY C. WHITE, Probate Judge.
By H. A. SCHWAB, Dp. Clk.
(SEAL)

The fact that one may, after the lapse of more than sixty years, by reference to the histories of the times, and an examination of official records, thus definitely locate Sidney Rigdon in his work and duties, should forever put at rest the unreasonable tales set afloat with a view of detracting from his work and casting discredit against the loyalty and faithfulness of the man to his convictions and people.

The foregoing citations of places and duties as a minister, however, are but mere drops to the great work accomplished at the time by this man. His converts were numbered by the thousands and his baptisms reached the total of eight hundred in a single year. Certainly, "the accuser of the brethren," has most malignantly followed Elder Rigdon in this world, and what is more strange in the case, is the lamentable work of Encyclopedias and pseudo-religious histories, in accepting as true the tales of his enemies, when the proofs of their falsity were readily accessible.

The discovery of the old manuscript of Spalding a few years ago, under circumstances which precluded every doubt of the genuineness of the paper, identified beyond question as Spalding's work, and which failed to contain the slightest resemblance in any particular to the Book of Mormon, struck down the principal bulwark which the enemies of the Book of Mormon had builded to overthrow its claims.

Now that it is further shown that the association of Elder Rigdon as the "mysterious stranger" is also clearly unsupportable, those who have offered these as a reasonable solution for the production of the Book of Mormon must without any doubt face the consequences of placing their structure upon a very sandy foundation.

No worthy historian will, in the future, be so rash as to risk his reputation for truthfulness and fairness by attempting to account for the production of the Book of Mormon through the work of Sidney Rigdon and the "Spalding Romance." However false or pretentious the claims of the Book of Mormon may have been, one thing is evident, that the original statements put forth in behalf of the book are yet unmoved; while the theories and tales of its enemies have, as if hung about with a millstone, been plunged into the depths of darkness.

Very respectfully submitted,
E. L. KELLEY.

LAMONI, Iowa, November 7, 1894.

"UPON THIS ROCK."

AND I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.—Matt. 16: 18.

The late General Conference, which we were fortunate enough to attend, was, and is, in our judgment, to the observant, full of suggestion; and it has occurred to us to speak of some of the thoughts resultant from experiences had through the sessions of that gathering. Evidently, Jesus Christ is at the head of this church. If not evident, we are simply floating along with the great flood and tide of the world's uncertainties in religious affairs. Like them, "blind followers of blind leaders."

Over the portal of the churches in all the world to-day, so far as certainty or intellectual permanency is concerned, to the thoughtful mind, is written, "Ichabod,"—"the glory has departed." The widespread criticism of the agnostic goes almost unanswered, and brazen-faced infidelity, Goliathlike, thunders its challenges to the weakened, and frightened, or careless hosts who travel under the banner upon which is inscribed the name of Jesus Christ and the titles of the churches of men. Jesus Christ to the rescue of his name! Was, and is it not time, if the old affirmations are to be maintained? If the brain of this disquiet world is to be stilled; if the hungry heart and the thirsty soul of humanity are to be fed; they must be fed from the uncovered supply. Its source and supply are now hidden from the gaze and grasp of the world.

Upon this rock I will build, etc.

If there was such a man as Jesus Christ, can stability be claimed for the record that announces himself as the Christ of God, the Savior of the world? So far as the statement is concerned, the boldness and unequivocal character of the statement made for him in the record, no uncertain criticism is allowable. He, Jesus Christ, intended permanency for his establishment, for his work. That which is now claimed by men as growing out of his life, his commandment, his instruction, is not permanent, not established. For instance: we need not discuss the statement made and indorsed by the largest body of professed Christians in the world to-day; viz., that the Catholic Church

Subsists in all ages, teaches all nations, and maintains all truth. . . . She comes down by a perpetual succession from the apostles of Christ, and has her doctrine, her orders, and her mission from them. . . . She cannot err in matters of faith.

"From the Catholic Church of God," we are informed in the apostles' creed we are to "know the things which we are to believe." Wonderful paradox, to know a thing first, and afterwards believe it!

Her recalcitrant, Protestant progeny, however, while more modest in their claim and deportment, yet have lost even the tone and statement of a certainty; and now, amid the Babel of the nineteenth century, the claim of the reappearance of the original patterned church appears. The authority from and the immediate direction of the living Christ is asserted.

Is it true? is it indeed so? If it be true indeed, then come thou new evangel; come near to our hungry hearts, our longing souls! Smite thou our brain with thy power to compel, and to draw us toward the light of the now dead past through the living present! Open thou the eyes of our understanding, and breathe upon these dried bones of the creed-slain that they may live!

The vision, and impressions, and experiences of the General Conference of the Church of Jesus pass before me like a dream, a confirmation, a benediction, and a peace.

Upon this rock will I build my church.

God is calling through and to his church to "come up higher;" to come nearer, and yet nearer to him. Come where his voice may be heard; not far away, with sound distant and indistinct, like as the trumpet's uncertain sound; but coming closer, drawing nearer to the living fountain; and not through a dead letter of centuries gone, but with the warm, living breath of his own life, for hear the Master's voice repeating and reaffirming:—

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.

Is Jesus Christ alive? Is he speaking to-day? Did you, if you were at the General Conference, hear him speak? I think I did. Praise God! I feel quite certain that some of us did!

Upon this rock I will build my church.

What then? This: Prophets may go, or may err; prophecies may fail, or prove defective; false prophets may, as they have in the past, "arise," and may "deceive many;" but they will not harm, they cannot deceive us, if we, or the church, are built "upon this rock." Nay! The church itself may be removed from its foundations, and be covered from the gaze of the world in apostasy, but the foundation of Christ's own laying, the eternal "rock of ages," and of God's appointment, can never, never, no never be moved! Then, O my brethren, let us hasten, there to plant our feet and our faith, and so when stars grow dim, and the nether worlds between us crumble, like veritable sons of God we shall forever and forever abide!

The late General Conference; how full of food for thought and sober reflection! Many things to encourage, very, very many; some things to try us; and, is it not right that it should be so? We need a steady and a trusting mind amid life's discordant sounds and imperfections while we grow toward the perfect stature and attainment. To the church was presented a document, a revelation, from,—somewhere, some source. Do you know? Do we know where it came from? Do some of us think? Have many of us seriously thought where it came from? You know I mean by "thought" an attempt, at least, of a mental, rational analysis of all that legitimately bears upon the question in hand; and also to ask as well, "Is man's mental endowment alone sufficient for our need in order to arrive at a safe and sure conclusion?"

In the world, with its centuries of opportunity, we have seen that it is not. Is the case different though a man may be named and numbered with the Church of Christ? No, verily no! Our highest and best thought and best reason is to go hand in hand with, and yet be supplemented by something else. Indeed, it becomes our highest and best reason to admit this; and no record of past attainment, no persuasive eloquence, no force of human will, no power of human authority, should ever be allowed to lead us into forgetfulness of this.

To embellish the thought as much as we would like, would lead us perhaps upon ground by good taste forbidden; but the manner of the reception of the document referred to, presents a school, we think, for legitimate and profitable study. Immediately upon its delivery, it is not an assumption to say, there was upon the part of individuals an immediate disposition to test the strength of their faith and their confidence in God and the church, to accept it as a revelation from God without even a reading of the document. To others, a single cursory reading was sufficient to dispose of their agency concerning it. We, as a church, through our representatives especially condemn the world for asserting their belief in a Bible of whose contents they know too little or nothing. Will the criticism apply to Latter Day Saints? And if this danger besets us, what is our remedy?

With all charity, and with a love for this church, and a fervent desire for its permanent establishment and growth,—which must be our apology for writing, if any is needed,—we say that these form the most dangerous class that the world or the Church of God has ever had or will have to deal with. It is that kind of a constituency that betrays or permits the betrayal of the good cause of truth and of God in all ages into the hands of its enemies, into the clutches and maneuvering power and generalship of the Devil. But for it, false prophets, from the days of the first Pope to Brigham Young, would have been shorn of their power to raise themselves to heights of infamous renown and left but to fall at last into the pit and hell which ignorance and cupidity in every age have dug for the heedless professor of a faith for which he could give no reason.

The genesis of our faith, what is it? We prove from the Book that God's church has in it apostles, prophets, evangelists, etc., and are we not in a church that makes that claim? To be sure; and so does the Roman Catholic, the Episcopal, and the Irvingite Church. Yes, but they hav'n't the "sealed book," the prophetic argument, etc., that we have. No, but Brigham Young had, and his followers have.

"Upon this rock," not of apostles, prophets, nor the whole of a letter that may be used as a weapon to kill, in the hands of the intellectual giant, the sensual or ambitious sophist; but in the presence of that "Spirit that maketh alive" in Christ must our appeal be settled in the hour of danger and of necessity, for safe places for our feet to rest upon.

We must not say or think of this church which the letter of a world-accepted word indorses so clearly, like as is said of the Church of Rome, "She can never err; that in matters of faith she is invulnerable, infallible." O no! we are wiser, all wiser than that, we say. Let us hope so. Then the church is not infallible; the material which composes it may not be indestructible. Absolutely incorruptible? Of course not! Jesus Christ did not challenge the hosts of hell in an assault against his church as a test of its everlasting duration and indestructible certainty. What, then, is left to us save the foundation upon which we (who are, or may constitute the Church of Christ) may stand? "Upon this rock," and though we may be insured by a word of prophecy (Daniel 2) that the visible form of the church will no more disappear, yet this will be of small comfort to us who might allow our feet to slip from the rock and out of the church perhaps, or into darkness and apostasy, and thus our interest and hope in the matter wholly disappear.

Upon this rock I will build.

And upon this rock and in this church God hath set "some, apostles; some, prophets; some, evangelists," etc.

Is that all? Heaven forbid; O, heaven forbid! My reason and knowledge of history of this world warn me in thunder tones that the Magna Charta of my liberties and of a well-grounded hope forbids this construction of belief, or assumption of Satan's device. Not so; for St. Paul has told us how it is.

In whom ye also [apostles, prophets, lay members] are builded together for a habitation of God through the Spirit.—Eph. 2: 22.

For ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.—2 Cor. 6: 16.

Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are.—1 Cor. 3: 16, 17.

"Immanuel," "God with us," "Jesus Christ, the head" of this church, we have by a general voice in conference affirmed. "If any man hear my voice,"—no proxy business about that!

We thank thee, O God, for a prophet, etc.

To that I am willing to say amen, but I do not want, if I do say, or sing it, to be misunderstood by Jew or Gentile, Saint or sinner.

I was glad in my heart to be near enough to the President of the Church at the General Conference, when the proposition was made at the conclusion of the general vote upon the late revelation by some one that we all sing,

We thank thee, O God, for a prophet, to hear him say that he felt doubtful about the propriety sometimes; that it sounded too much, as he thought, of adulation, or words of that import. I love and respect this man too well to be a party, knowingly, to anything that will hinder his service toward us from being a complete success. The certainty of his calling only renders my eternal friendship for him to be built upon eternal foundations more and more a necessity.

And that loyalty to God or my highest convictions, will be my best indorsement of love and good will to men,

In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men's hearts by Jesus Christ, according to the gospel.

Two extremes, two thoughts, however, in conclusion, present themselves for our consideration.

"Let the elders who rule well be counted worthy of double honor," says Paul. Honor every man in his station, and for his calling's sake until God relieves us from this service; but to retain our agency, and our thought, and remember that while "the law of the Lord is perfect," its administration, even in the highest counsel of man may be imperfect, and that our liberties are in the law, and not necessarily always in the "ipse dixit," or decrees of men.

Paul, though an apostle, and "not a whit behind the chiefest of the apostles," spoke "as unto wise men;" and thus will all apostles who are wise do. And if there be not a residue of wisdom in those to whom they appeal, who may be beneath them in place or official station, then, by so much are they of a necessity forced to "put their trust in man," and make "flesh their arm;" and by so much are they dependent for the preservation of their liberties upon the intelligence, honor, and wisdom of their superiors in office only, and not, of a necessity, their superiors before the law.

But the laity cannot; the necessities of their secular life, the provision by manual or mental toil for the support of their families, the support of the church through the "affairs of the men of business," etc., forbid a deep and comprehensive analysis of these things, we say. Well, not so much as we may have supposed, perhaps; for "where there's a will there's a way." A disposition will hunt for opportunities and will find them. At any rate, we shall never all be free until we learn that our liberties are in the law, and this fact makes a study and knowledge of the law an imperative necessity upon the part of those who would be free from the evil effects of a maladministration of it.

And to teachers, and to those who are called to be shepherds over the flock of God, how great the responsibilities to which God has called them, to "feed the flock of God" and not themselves; to "preach the word," and not to avoid the truth or to suppress when it cries for utterance; to stand for the highest good and to fear God, rather than any earthly power or force; to remember that the wisdom that cometh from above is first pure, then peaceable;" and not for ease nor friendship's sake reverse this order.

In view, then, of the uncertainties that attach to human conduct, the automaton-following is an open door, a standing invitation to the Devil to effect the overthrow of the kingdom of God. We should have faith in our fellow men, and in our leaders; but our friendship, and loyalty to them, and our service toward God, will never be a perfect one until we learn, lovingly, yet anxiously to watch their way and walk, as especially, they approach those points in our journey that call for ceaseless vigil and unwavering constancy to God and his law. When the time for the general sessions of the church draw nigh, let us, with one eye upon them, and the other upon the chart and charter of our liberties, watch as they affirm the law's construction with reference to the intent of God's meaning in the word to us.

"Would that all the Lord's people were prophets," was the wisdom of Moses; and great wisdom it was, too. How much trouble it would have saved Moses had it been so!

Having gifts differing.

To some it is given to believe on your words, etc.

That is a safe and profitable gift. It is the gift of God, and does not necessarily imply a second-handed, or manmade testimony. God is no respecter of persons at all, and when God speaks to us again, let us endeavor to see if possible that it is a revelation from God — through his mouthpiece to us. God has given to us apostles, prophets, etc., etc., who, when acting as such, are designed for "the perfection of the Saints," and not their destruction. But the gift of the Holy Ghost to all will, in its attainment and possession, lead us, if we will be led, and guide us, if we earnestly follow after and seek its counsels, "into all truth." It will arm us against the common foe, and enable Christ at last to "present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing."

M. H. BOND.

DIAMOND, Ohio, June 2, 1894.

A CORRECTION.

IN my article, "The Revelation of April, 1894," as found in Herald for August 22, occurs the following statement:—

And so far as I know, last spring was the first time in the history of the Reorganized Church when it was sought to order the publication of a revelation at the time it was given.

I was kindly informed by the editor of the Herald, a short time ago, that the above statement is incorrect; that upon two different occasions revelations were ordered published in the Doctrine and Covenants at the times when they were given and accepted by the church; and that one of the times referred to was April, 1887, at Kirtland, Ohio, I being present at the time.

I hereby express my thanks to the editor of the Herald, and only regret that the mistake was not discovered, or made known to me, before the article went into print. I also apologize to the readers of the Herald for the unintentional blunder made.

A moment's reflection ought to convince anyone that it was a mistake of the head and not of the heart. First, my statement is modified by the words, "So far as I know." To have known the facts in the case when I wrote, and yet to have penned the false statement as I did, would have been, figuratively speaking, putting the knife to my own throat. Strange as it may appear, I had no recollection of the event which I denied having transpired, but thinking it possible that I was mistaken, I introduced the modifying words, "So far as I know."

Second, the statement made was not at all necessary as a means of support to any of the cardinal points sought to be made in the article. When I made the statement, I was defending the action of the conference against a seeming insinuation that the action implied that the revelation is not divine, and that the conference was inconsistent in delaying the order for publication in the Doctrine and Covenants; but even this defense (if indeed any defense is needed) can be easily made without the thing which is affirmed in the statement referred to above.

It always pains me to find that I have made a wrong or false statement, hence I hasten to set myself right. In gospel bonds,

J. R. LAMBERT.

LETTER FROM ELDER R. J. ANTHONY.

EDITORS HERALD:—Will you permit me to say a word in reference to the revival of polygamous marriages and the practice thereof by the Mormon Church. In Herald of September 5 I have read the extracts published from the Salt Lake Tribune, giving the opinions of the wise men of the West in reference to the probability of a resumption of the doctrine and practice. I have no disposition to criticize the editorial that prepares the mind of the reader for what follows. After reading the opinions of those who have expressed themselves, I am prepared to say that I do not believe there would be an attempt on the part of the church to receive polygamous marriages; but for me to say that polygamy was not practiced now, and believed in just as firmly as ever by the church, would be in direct conflict with my experience and knowledge of existing facts. I do not wish to be understood to say that polygamy is practiced as a church measure to-day, but it is being practiced by church members, largely, too.

The statement of George Q. Cannon, Heber J. Grant, and Willard Young may satisfy some people, and may be the expression of the Presidency of the church; but it does not express the minds of a great many of the church people. In different parts of Utah and Idaho I have met the issue publicly and privately, and in almost every case they have taken the position that the manifesto did not require the cessation of the practice, but that the church was to refrain from entering into that relation. Pres. G. Q. Cannon, as well as H. J. Grant and Willard Young, know that polygamy is practiced to a degree by men and women of the church, and that the church has not publicly dealt with any for the crime. What is done privately we don't profess to know. The talk about there being no more danger of the resumption of the practice than the "burning of widows," is all gush. Of course there is no need to resume when they have never stopped. If Mr. Cannon does not know that there have been babies born to women who lived in that relation since the passage of the manifesto, and in the last two years, it is because he did not want to know. I heard a man who presides over a stake in Utah, in a public discourse before a young people's conference, declare that there was no power on earth or in hell that could make him give up his families; that he held the keys of the resurrection and that he would have them now and in eternity; and that not long ago. Besides, I have heard others publicly declare that the time was near at hand when they would be able to live up to their covenants. That is about the only covenant they are prevented from keeping publicly.

The statements of Judge C. S. Zane and ex-Governor Arthur L. Thomas, coming from men occupying the position they did, could say no more than they did. My experience and that of J. W. Judd is quite different. He says: "The overwhelming majority of the Mormon people were opposed to the practice of polygamy at the time of the publication of the manifesto." I know from my experience that the opposite of that was the fact,—that a very large majority of the church believed in the doctrine. At the time the manifesto passed George Q. Cannon said he had been appealed to "many scores of times to get out something, and to announce something. Some of our leading brethren have said," etc. (See Deseret News of Oct. 11, 1890.) He then goes on to tell what some of the leading brethren said, and that was, to get out something to save the people from further prosecution. It was the leading men who saw the danger line, and not the common people.

I believe the majority of the people of the church to-day would do what the priesthood would advise; and I find the young men in my travels to be just as firm believers in polygamy as the older men ever were. I don't believe the church will ever attempt to proclaim that as the doctrine of the church again. When one reads the statements of C. S. Varian, W. S. McCormick, and C. E. Allen, it is plain to see the light in which they regard the matter, and especially that of Mr. Varian. He gives very pungent reasons why there need be no fears of revival of the practice as a church measure.

If things don't appear tempestuous around about in the political arena after Utah becomes a State then I will confess I have seen through a glass very darkly. I shall be pleased to see everything run along smoothly, and hope it will; but when high church dignitaries take such an active part in politics as they have done, and denounce the course pursued by one man in Castle Valley, as was done once upon a time, there would be music in the air, or words to that effect.

Ex-Judge J. W. Judd pays a compliment to the people when he says they are a "hospitable" people. I have formed the acquaintance of some good and kind people, and I have nothing to say against the people on that score at the present time. But I do say, that so far as my observation goes, the majority of the people are just as completely under the influence of the priesthood as ever, and if they chose to advise, their counsel would be heeded, not in reference to the reestablishment of polygamy, because of past experience; but that the leaders will not do. From the time the People's party was disorganized and the church men divided on political lines I have favored statehood for Utah. I believe it is just to them that no privilege should be denied them that has been granted to others. When the church members publicly professed to abandon the doctrine of polygamy they should be dealt with as any others who make professions of loyalty as a body and publicly as they have done. I hope the political hatchet is buried for all time, and that the great sachems on both sides may smoke the pipe of peace until they see visions of happier days, and where they all may have a grand jubilee in the "happy hunting grounds," where political honors and the love for shekels shall be known no more forever. May great peace, prosperity, and blessings be unto Utah and her people.

WOODSIDE, Montana, September 12, 1894.

ABIDING IN CHRIST.

IF ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you. Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples.—John 15: 7, 8.

This statement of our Savior is one which should engage our earnest consideration.

If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, [the result will follow that] ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you.

And, of course, if we do not abide in him the opposite will follow, or in other words, we will not be able to obtain "what we will." Hence, if we desire eternal life, we must abide in him, and not only so, but his word must abide in us. This applies to all people, whether in the gospel covenant or not, because if not in the covenant, you do not abide in his words, neither do his words abide in you; consequently you are outside the terms. Because:—

He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me.

Or, by keeping his commandments we prove that we do love him. What a glorious promise this is; just think, all you have to do is to put yourself in harmony with him—obey his commandments—and whatever is for your good and benefit you can have by asking! All is left to you, if his holy will finds echo in your heart, if you respond to that will as fast as it is made known to you, all that is for your good, you can obtain. If you are sick you can call for the elders of the church, and they will administer the ordinance of anointing with oil and laying on of hands, and God will raise you up.

If you are in the world—"a foreigner"—and the glorious gospel is presented to you, you accept of it, and cease doing evil and learn to do well, God will confirm the truth of the gospel to you by his Spirit, that you may not henceforth be "tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine;" but you will know that your feet are planted on that sure foundation which the "gates of hell shall not prevail against." You will have knowledge which man cannot give you nor take from you; and you will never fail, if you continue in his word to the end of life. If you are a saint, you are in his word, and now it remains for you to continue to be one. For:—

Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.—2 John 9.

Here we see the same truth told by another in different words, but very pointed and easily understood. This statement, like the one at the beginning of this article, applies to all alike:—

Whosoever [any person at any time] transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ hath not God.

What is the doctrine of Christ? What did Christ teach? He taught Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews, that a man must be born of water and of the Spirit. He taught that it was for the express purpose of offering to mankind the terms of salvation that he came into the world:—

Thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day: and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations.— Luke 24: 46, 47.

As much as to say that all nations must repent, or in other words, stop doing wrong and do right. Putting these two statements together, it is plainly shown that all nations are to repent and be born of water and of the Spirit. Paul said to the saints that before they obeyed Christ they were "strangers and foreigners," "without God in the world." But said he:—

Now, therefore, ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets.

We find what that foundation was by reading Hebrew 6: 1, 2; as follows:—

Therefore [not] leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith towards God, of the doctrine of baptisms [water and Spirit], and of laying on of hands, and of the resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment.

You will observe these doctrines of Christ are the foundation, and "other foundation can no man lay." (1 Corinthians 3: 11.) "We are laborers together with God," and we are to build on this foundation. Reader, are you standing upon this foundation? These are the doctrines of Christ, no one will deny and at the same time claim to believe the Bible. Well, if these are the doctrines of Christ, they were his teachings, his words; do they abide in you and you in them? If a man does not abide in these doctrines of Christ, he must be a doer of evil deeds, so John said, 2 John 11.

I have heard people say, "O, you can prove anything by the Bible; all sects predicate their faith on the Bible." But when you come to put them to the test of proving their doctrines by the Bible they are somewhat in the position of the man who claimed to be a Christian and was arrested for stealing. The judge said to him, "Can you sustain your act by the Bible?" And the man answered, "Yes," and he quoted, "Let him that stole, steal." (Eph. 4: 28.) And that is about the way the Bible sustains justification by faith without works, and a number of other popular doctrines. They seem to be sustained by the Bible, but an examination of the context shows to the contrary. This text is made to prove the opposite of what the writer of the New Testament intended.

To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them.

That is, they do not abide in his word and his word does not abide in them, though at first sight it may have the appearance of doing so. We are to abide the whole law, not a part of it. The whole testimony must sustain us. We are to "live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God," and so may we do and be found spotless at the judgment seat of Christ.

C. A. PARKIN.

Conference Minutes.

DECATUR.

Conference met at Lone Rock, Missouri, October 13, 1894, at 10:22 a. m.; William Anderson president; Edward L. Page clerk, R. M. Elvin assistant. Branch reports: Lucas 159; 6 baptized, 2 removed, 2 died. Cainsville 46; 5 baptized, 6 received. Pleasanton 116; 1 baptized; 38 absent. Greenville 37; 1 baptized, 1 removed; 8 absent. Davis City 75; 3 baptized, 1 removed; 16 absent. Leon 45, gain 2. Lamoni 995; 16 baptized, 23 received, 4 removed, 3 died. Hiteman 29; 1 baptized, 7 received; 2 absent. Allendale 93; 1 baptized, 1 expelled. Lone Rock 83; 5 baptized, 1 received, 1 removed. Wirt 45; 1 removed; 14 absent. Ministry reporting: Elders J. W. Gillen, J. A. Whitehead, W. Anderson, R. M. Elvin, H. A. Stebbins, J. S. Snively, C. Scott, C. H. Jones, W. Thompson, F. A. Smith, H. Case, M. Haskins baptized 4, D. W. Wight, S. V. Bailey, M. Shaw, J. McDiffit baptized 3, H. Bartlett, E. L. Page, E. Keeler, F. M. Weld, H. N. Snively baptized 2, J. Johnston; Priests, W. T. Shakespeare, G. Brown, J. Vinnerd, J. A. Gunsolley, E. E. Marshall, A. E. Shaw, C. Dillon, C. Blakesley; Teachers, H. E. Pinkerton, W. E. Evan, J. Harp, A. K. Anderson, T. Cole; Deacon J. Sandage. Report received of Decatur district Sabbath school association. F. E. Cochran superintendent, D. A. Anderson secretary. Application for teacher's license for Conard F. Cone granted. Application for the ordination of Isaac Phillips to the office of elder, was granted. A request from Lone Rock branch that G. F. York be ordained a priest was granted. A vote of the Lone Rock branch that Price McPeck be ordained an elder was considered and his ordination ordered. Motion carried that when we adjourn we do so to meet in Lamoni at call of district president. William Anderson on tent committee, reported $50 on hand and that efforts were still in progress. Report accepted and committee continued. Authority was given the committee to use their discretion in the purchase of a tent. Columbus Scott spoke of his appointment to confer with the district regarding reunions. Spoken to by several, when motion carried that the president of this district appoint a committee to confer with others on the subject of reunions. Sunday service at 10:30 a. m. as follows: Sang hymns 61 and 771. Opening prayer by H. A. Stebbins. Sang hymn 764. President Anderson referred to the rearing and completing of this house of worship, on which had been expended about $600 in money and material, as also $300 in labor. He referred especially to the good work done in its erection by Bro. Thomas Sandage who has passed beyond, as also to the sisters in their work towards this enterprise. James W. Gillen read Psalms 121 and 122. The speaker, Columbus Scott, read from Exodus 20: 24 and Deuteronomy 12: 5 on the building of the tabernacle, characterizing this movement as in harmony therewith. His discourse was replete with timely suggestions and was listened to by an audience of three hundred and eighty-nine persons, filling the room to its capacity, while numbers remained outside. Dedicatory prayer at the close by R. M. Elvin.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Conference convened with Los Angeles branch as per adjournment at ten a. m., October 26, 1894; D. L. Harris president, A. Carmichael assistant; W. P. Pickering secretary, Sr. Hermina Adams assistant. Ministry reporting: Elders D. L. Harris baptized 9, W. M. Gibson baptized 10, R. R. Dana baptized 7, C. Baly, A. Carmichael, W. P. Pickering baptized 7, C. W. Earle baptized 2, A. E. Jones; Priest J. Morris; Teachers S. Penfold, F. W. Burton. Branch reports: San Bernardino, gain 11; Newport, gain 32; Los Angeles, gain 22, referred back for correction. Santa Maria, Laguna, and Valley Center not reported. The office of church historian having been made vacant by the death of D. S. Mills, R. R. Dana was elected church historian for Southern California district, the object of which is to collect and record all items of interest in regard to all noteworthy manifestations of God's power and goodness among his people through the Spirit or otherwise; and all officials and members were by resolution requested to assist in this work by collecting and forwarding to R. R. Dana all such items as come under their observation. D. L. Harris was sustained president of district, Wm. M. Gibson assistant, W. P. Pickering secretary, Charles Baly Bishop's agent. Bishop's agent's report was read and referred to an auditing committee, who reported it correct as follows: Receipts $1,413.90; expenditures $1,220.09; on hand October 26, 1894, $193.81. Resolved that this conference heartily enjoy upon the Saints of Southern California district the necessity of taking the church publications, especially the Herald. A. Carmichael was elected district treasurer. A. A. Goff and Vina H. Goff were elected delegates to General Conference of 1895. Resolved that this conference declare the Valley Center branch disorganized, and request the president and secretary of the district to grant letters of removal to all members of said branch, and all books and papers belonging to said branch be turned over to the district secretary. All the spiritual authorities of the church and all the conference appointees of this mission were sustained. Adjourned to meet with the Newport branch on or before the full moon in October.

NORTHEASTERN ILLINOIS.

Conference convened with the Plano branch October 13, 1894, at 10:30 a. m.; F. G. Pitt presiding, M. J. Danielson secretary. Branch reports: Mission 103, gain 1; DeKalb 29, gain 11; Chicago 101, gain 5; Unity 31, no change; Plano 214, gain 1; Sandwich 62, loss 1; Braidwood 55, gain 5. Ministry reporting: Elders F. G. Pitt, C. G. Lanphear, W. Vickery, A. J. Keck, W. Strange, J. S. Keir, J. B. Roush, C. D. Carter, S. J. Stone, G. Scheideker; Teacher J. L. Cooper. Bishop's agent's report: On hand at last report $271.76; received since $60.50; paid out $235; balance due church $97.26. A committee of three was appointed to audit Bishop's agent's books and report to next conference. Report of the Northeastern Illinois district Sunday school association read in compliance with article seven of Constitution and By-laws of district associations: "We beg leave to report that the association held a convention October 12, 1894. Number of schools in district 7; total membership 317; total number of officers 39; total amount collected for association $7.38; treasurer reported on hand $17.65. Superintendent offered his resignation on account of other duties, which was accepted. The assistant on account of contemplated removal was also released. The vacancies were filled by choice of F. G. Pitt superintendent and Lester Wildermuth assistant. All the schools appear to be in a prosperous condition and the outlook encouraging. J. B. Roush superintendent, E. E. Johnson secretary." The president made a statement in reference to the Briggs and Good case of Chicago, and in order that the district records might show that the case was ended, reported that through the aid of three members of the High Council the entire matter was amicably adjusted. The report was read and accepted and ordered spread upon the district record. Resolved that the Northeastern Illinois district does hereby petition the General Conference to take in hand and decide the place and time of the meeting of the General Reunion of the church for the year 1896 and thereafter. F. G. Pitt was sustained district president, M. J. Danielson secretary, and Thomas Hougas Bishop's agent. Preaching by Elders A. H. Smith, C. D. Carter, and W. W. Blair. Adjourned to meet with the Sandwich branch the second Saturday and Sunday in February.

Miscellaneous Department.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Officers and Saints of Pottawattamie District, greeting; Beloved in the Lord.—You are hereby reminded that the quarterly conference of this district will convene at Boomer, this county, and all are respectfully invited to attend, on the 24th and 25th of this month (November). Come one and all, and bring with you a good degree of the Holy Spirit, that we may be aided in our deliberations to the success of the work and the glory of God.

Respectfully,

CHARLES DERRY, Pres.

Notice is hereby given that the Southern Missouri district will meet in conference at Yonker, Missouri, Friday, November 30, at four p. m. Branches and ministry will please send their reports to Yonker in care of C. Edwards. Delegates coming from the south by rail will please come on the local freight train Friday morning, the 30th, to Mountain Grove, and from the north on same day on passenger, and the brethren will meet you at the depot with teams.

JOSEPH WARD, Clerk.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints in the Mobile District.—Believing that the time has come when the Saints of this South land should make a special effort, I call upon you to come forward with your tithes and offerings. Let us make a united effort to assist in the "work entrusted to all."

Our brethren in the North have done a great deal for us. Their tithes and offerings have sustained the families of elders sent into this field for the past fifteen or twenty years. Yes, more; have paid much of their traveling expenses. God bless them. He has blessed them. Would we who have taken his name upon us in this Southern land be blessed? Then let us follow the counsel of the Lord and move forward in the line of duty. Let us be willing to make sacrifices and God will be willing to bless us.

The South in the main is a great untried field, and I believe a promising one. We have the truth; let us assist in sending it to the thousands of waiting ones in this land unto whom it will be glad tidings indeed.

We hope to see our sister districts of this southern land wheel into line, their prayers united with ours, ascending to him who blesses all, whilst the watchword of Zion's children, "Come up higher," is on our lips; then the resolutions born of holy desires and the love of God in our hearts will be seen in our lives and conduct. Onward, then, in the strength of Israel's God, victories over self, victories over the enemy of righteousness will be won. Truth will conquer. Then let us be found marching under its banner, not recreant deserters, but noble soldiers of the cross. Work, work! Let us shake off the lethargy that has bound us these many years. The angels are ready to assist in breaking the shackles. Blessings await us, spiritual and temporal; let us prepare to receive them.

Send tithes and offerings to my address, Scranton, Mississippi.

In the hope of prayers and God's blessings,
Your brother in Christ,
FRANK P. SCARCLIFF,
Bishop's Agent.

October 29, 1894.

BORN.

LEWIS.—To Bro. William and Sr. Mary Lewis in St. Joseph, Missouri, June 23, 1894, a daughter, and named Ruth. By this name she was blessed November 4, 1894, by J. M. Terry and R. A. Marchant, at her home in St. Joseph, Missouri, being too sick to take to church.

MEE.—At San Bernardino, California, September 30, 1893, to Mr. S. and Sr. Emma Mee, twin boys, and named Lie and Lesley. Blessed July 29, 1894, at San Bernardino, by Elders M. H. Forscutt and William M. Gibson.

MARRIED.

WHITEHOUSE—HIGGINSON.—At Kewanee, Illinois, on the evening of November 1, at the home of the bride, Bro. Alma Whitehouse and Sr. Emma Higginson, Elder John Chisnall officiating. The popularity of this estimable young couple was sufficient to bring together a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who joined them in the after festivities, composed of a bounteous repast followed by most excellent orchestral music and the usual conversational topics on such cheerful occasions. The many beautiful presents gave substantial tokens of the interest felt in the young couple's future, while all joined in most hearty congratulations.

DIED.

WARNER.—At the home of her aunt, Kansas City, Missouri, October 24, 1894, Ida Warner, aged 23 years and 6 months. She died strong in the cause of Christ with a hope of eternal glory. Father, brother, and sister mourn. Many friends were there to pay their last respects to the one they so dearly loved. Funeral sermon by Priest George Edwards. Interment in Union cemetery October 26.

DUSDON.—At Bartlett, Iowa, September 29, 1894. John, eldest son of Bro. James and Sr. Marion Dusdon. Deceased was born April 6, 1877. Funeral service conducted from the house to the beautiful cemetery of Gaylord's and Green's, near Tabor. In consequence of the sickness of some of the family the funeral sermon was deferred until Sunday, October 28, and was then preached in the large schoolhouse at Bartlett by Elder Henry Kemp to a large and very attentive audience of mourners and kind friends. Johnny had not yet been baptized into the church, but was a model youth, highly respected and greatly beloved by all. A loving father and mother, five affectionate sisters, two brothers, a large circle of relatives and friends mourn their loss.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 3.—If the labor trouble now in progress pursues its natural destiny by Thursday night New Orleans will be in the throes of the most bitter race riots the State has ever experienced. The trouble is really an attempt on the part of the merchants and ship agents to break up union labor on the levee. Until two weeks ago the whites and the colored laborers worked peaceably together, but the white screwmen expelled from their midst the colored screwmen, and the latter began at once to cut the regular rates in order to secure work. Therefore the colored men now represent nonunion labor and they are backed by the whole mercantile community. To-day stevedores who had been sent to Mobile and Galveston to secure more colored screwmen, returned and reported satisfactory results. The labor unions declared they would order a general strike of all white labor on the levee and then seek to have the entire white labor of the city refuse to work alongside of the colored laborer in every branch of industry. By their acts of last Friday and Saturday the screwmen have shown themselves to be well armed and well organized, and will undoubtedly use force in attempting to drive the negroes away from work. The trouble is now definitely fixed for next Wednesday, when rioting on the river front will begin without doubt if the colored screwmen dare go to work. Gov. Foster has served notice on the labor people that he will order out the militia the moment violence begins. Altogether the crisis is the gravest that has threatened the city in many years.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 5.—Developments in the labor troubles to day show the desperation of the white men who work along the levee and indications are that the worst is not yet over. Yesterday the torch was applied to the wharf of the West India and Pacific Steamship Company on the levee at the foot of Nun street, and before the flames were subdued there was a loss of $200,000 in merchandise, cotton, and damage to one of their steamships. About half was insured.

GUTHRIE, Ok., Nov. 4.—Meager particulars have been received here of a desperate running fight between the Cook outlaws and United States Deputy Marshals near Sasabka. Two officers and one bandit killed and two bandits wounded.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—There was an outpouring of Salvation Army soldiers at the Pennsylvania depot to-day to greet General Booth, Commander in Chief of the army. Members of the District Auxiliary Leagues, the Rev. S. M. Newman, pastor of the First Congregational Church, the Rev. L. B. Wilson, Methodist Presiding Elder of the district; Mr. H. B. F. MacFarland, and others extended a welcome to him in behalf of the people of the district. There was an army parade on Pennsylvania avenue, and General Booth was escorted to the house of W. R. Woodward, a merchant, where he is being entertained. This afternoon General Booth met the clergymen of the city at the Congregational church, and to-night he addressed an immense audience in Convention Hall.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 3.—A number of deaths occasioned by earthquake are reported, crushed by falling walls. News from the interior shows the shocks were severe. The earthquake showed its greatest force in a north and south direction, though the upward shock was violent. Probably no city less strongly built than this could have resisted its immense force. Buildings everywhere are cracked. Even the massive rock wall of the cathedral is in a perilous condition. There was a panic in Balem prison, where the beams in the roof cracked and the building threatened to come down on the heads of the prisoners, over 2,000 in number. The city government building was slightly injured, the glass roof being wrecked. Suburban towns felt the shocks and some casualties are reported this afternoon. The weather was windy yesterday afternoon. Just before the shock the valley was enveloped in clouds of dust. This usually precedes earthquakes.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5.—The earthquake extended to a number of towns in the States of Vera Cruz, Hidalgo, Puebla, and Mexico.

The damage in this city is estimated at $250,000.

The press here as a unit declare too much forbearance has been shown toward Guatemala.

President Diaz and a number of prominent military men have attended a trial test of the new Mondragon rifles. The results under experienced experts were most satisfactory.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The French Government has received a dispatch from M. Lemire de Vilers the special envoy sent by the French Government to Madagascar with the ultimatum of France to the Hova Government, announcing that the left Antananarivo October 26 without receiving the reply of the Hova Government to the French demands. The French envoy informed the Hovas he would receive communications from them until the day he arrived at Tamatave.

Later advices report that the Hovas will yield only to force.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The annual conference of the National Constitutional Workmen's League was held to-day at Durham. A resolution was adopted condemning the government for sending contracts abroad while the unemployed of Great Britain, walking four abreast, would make a procession 100 miles long.

BOMBAY, Nov. 3.—The delimitation of the Waziristan Punjab frontier, in accordance with Sir Mortimer Durand's agreement with the Ameer of Afghanistan, is causing serious fighting. The warlike Waziri tribesmen made an attack early this morning upon the camp of the political officers' escort in the northern part of the Spin county. After a short fight the escort, which is a strong body of troops commanded by Col. A. H. Turner, repulsed the Waziris, inflicting heavy losses upon them. No details of the fighting have been received.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 3.—Surgeon Fairfax Irwin, at London, reports a decrease in the status of epidemic diseases in Europe and Asia. Particularly has this been true of the cholera in Germany, Holland, and Russia. Snow has fallen in several of the infected districts in Germany, and all the mountains of the Thuringian Forest and the Swabian Alps are covered with it, and it is hoped the epidemic in Germany is practically at an end.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 3.—The remains of Alexander III. are expected here November 15. They will lie in state at Odessa, Kieff, and Moscow on their way to the city, and will finally repose in state at the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul. The remains will afterward be placed in the imperial mausoleum.

Rings were exchanged yesterday between the Czar Nicholas and Princess Alix of Hesse-Darmstadt. The wedding of the Czar and Princess Alix will take place a few days after the funeral. It is expected the Czar will upon this occasion, grant an extensive political amnesty.

LIVADIA, Nov. 3.—A special service to celebrate the accession of Nicholas II. to the throne of Russia was held to-day in the Palace Church. It was attended by the Czar, the Czarina, the Queen of Greece, the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, Princess Alix of Hesse-Darmstadt, the Grand Dukes and Grand Duchesses now at Livadia, and the chief officials of the district.

ODESSA, Nov. 5.—A firm belief prevails here that Czar Nicholas will abolish the press censorship.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 5.—The Emperor's manifesto issued upon his accession is held here to promise a milder and less autocratic reign.

LIVADIA, Nov. 4.—Princess Alix was received into the orthodox church Friday. The ceremony took place in the chapel of the imperial palace. After the ceremony of confession she received the orthodox sacrament.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from Vienna says that the Russian Nihilist, Prince Peter Alisoff, residing at Lugato, avers that the Czar was gradually poisoned with the small doses of phosphorus administered to him by Nihilists since March 1, until his disease was established. Those who managed to spice the Emperor's dishes are safe away. He added the whole Romanoff dynasty is doomed to a similar fate.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A dispatch to the Standard from Berlin says that a telegram from St. Petersburg reports that changes among the Russian Ministers and the Russian Council are impending. It is believed that M. de Giers, the Foreign Minister, will resign, but nothing definite is known.

Premier Sagasta, of Spain, has formed a new ministry, which has been accepted by the Queen Regent.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—The government will Tuesday ask the Chamber of Deputies for a credit of sixty thousand francs for the expenses of an expedition against the Hovas, the ruling tribe of Madagascar. The hostile operations will be under the direction of the Ministry of Marine. Col. Borgoise des Bordes will hold the chief command.

Eight cotton laden vessels set afire at Savannah, Georgia, November 5 and 6, supposedly by striking stevedores. Phosphorous was used to ignite the cotton.

AKRON, O., Nov. 6.—The corps of engineers appointed by the United States Government to survey the various routes for the proposed ship canal between the great lakes and the Atlantic Ocean will begin its work in this city to-morrow, starting on the preliminary survey of the Ohio Canal and Muskingum River. The canal is to be seventy feet wide and seven feet deep.

YOKOHAMA, Nov. 3.—It is announced here that the investment of Port Arthur by the Japanese forces by land and sea has been completed, and that the forward movement of both the Japanese armies in the direction of Moukden is being rapidly pushed. It is added that a portion of Field Marshal Count Oyama's force is attacking Kin Chow on the Gulf of Liatung, which is occupied by the Chinese troops. In the meanwhile Gen. Nodzu's advance column is approaching Fung Wang, a fortified town on the main road between Wie Ju and Moukden, to which place all the Chinese troops retreated after leaving their positions north of the Yalu River. The Japanese expect to defeat the Chinese at both places, and there unite their columns before the walls of Moukden.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—A short cablegram received by Secretary Gresham to-day from United States Minister Denby at Peking chronicles another important forward movement by the Japanese. It says: "Japanese have taken Foo Chow, in the Gulf of Liastano, approaching Shan Kai Khan. No campaigns against Moukden and Tien Tsin. DENBY." All of this means, according to the interpretation arrived at by the State Department officials, that the Japanese have seized the important strategic port of Kin Chow, near Newchang and on the railroad leading in one direction toward Tien Tsin and in the other toward the Manchurian capital, Moukden. The latter is thus threatened from two sides, as the Japanese forces which have crossed the Yalu River from Korea are advancing rapidly from the southeast upon this doomed capital, and according to Minister Denby's cablegram another force will start northward from Kinchow to join them. The distance from Kinchow to Tien Tsin is only about two hundred miles and the roads are the best in China. Tien Tsin is well fortified, but should it fall the way to Peking, the Chinese capital, would be open to the invaders.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—A dispatch from Tien Tsin, which will be published to-morrow, says the representatives of all the powers were assembled by the Tsung-Li-Yamen to hear the Chinese Government's statement respecting the critical situation of affairs. Prince Kung, president of the Tsung-Li-Yamen, calmly avowed the impotence of China to withstand the Japanese attack, and appealed to the powers to intervene, saying China was willing to abandon her sovereignty over Corea and to pay a war indemnity. The Ministers applauded the frankness of this confession and promised to support China's appeal to their respective governments, with a view to restoring peace, in order to avert the dangers threatening all interests.

Attorney General Olney, of Pennsylvania, has written a letter to Judge Dallas of the United States Circuit Court, before whom the case between the receivers of the Reading Railroad and members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen is being tried, expressing the opinion that no court should oppose organized labor unions; that labor unorganized is practically powerless; that a workingman cannot be deprived of his right to belong to such organization. The letter is an exhaustive discussion of the question.

Twenty infantrymen among a regiment of mutinous troops were shot at Rio Janeiro, for taking part in a demonstration against Peixoto.

The volcano of Colima, in Mexico, is again in active eruption and people in the vicinity are fleeing.

The late election in New York State resulted in a victory for the project for "the greater New York," by which an area 317.77 square miles will be included in one municipality, while the present city has only 38.85 square miles. The new city will have over 3,000,000 inhabitants and will rate the second city in the world.

A severe blizzard raged throughout New England on the 8th. Wires are prostrated and shipping is endangered. The storm is the severest since 1888.

As a result of the late general November elections the next House of Representatives will comprise the following: Republicans 250, Democrats 97, Populists 9. The Senate: Republicans 43, Democrats 38, Populists 7.

Members of the Cook gang plundered the town of Lenapah, Indian Territory, November 9, killing one citizen and wounding another.

Alabama colored men have sent an advance committee to Liberia, with a view to arranging for extensive emigration to that country. The President of that country has written a letter encouraging the project by an offer of twenty-five acres of land and a temporary house to every immigrant.

Benton Harbor, Michigan, reports earthquake shocks, November 9.

Extensive storms, accompanied by sleet, and snow, and high winds, prevailed throughout the northwest on the 9th inst. Connecticut points report damage by storm to the extent of $100,000 on the same date.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 9.—The Chinese army of the north has retreated to the mountains, where the soldiers are reported to be starving and suffering severely from cold and exposure.

The Japanese army is reported to be encamped at Fang Wang Cheng. The Japanese are pursuing some 15,000 Chinese, mostly raw recruits.

Port Arthur is not expected to make a determined stand against the Japanese. Admiral Sir E. R. Fremont, in command of the British fleet, considers Port Arthur will probably be the scene of the last engagement of any importance between the Chinese and Japanese.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Standard says there is little hope of united action by the powers in response to China's appeal to them to intervene to bring about a peace between it and Japan. Russia and France are willing, but Germany's reluctance will prevent action.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa.

Subscription price $2 00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free.

The traveling ministry, district and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to David Dancer, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

Advertising rates, forty cents per inch each insertion, subject to the following discounts: One month's insertion, five per cent; three months, fifteen per cent; six months, twenty-five per cent; one year, forty per cent. All advertising conditioned on insertion upon the first or last pages of cover, will be charged an advance of twenty per cent upon the regular rates. For reading notices, (on outside pages of cover, unless otherwise accepted,) ten cents per line. Editorial notices, twenty-five cents per line; discount as above.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

By the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church at the Herald Publishing House, LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA. Sent postpaid at prices named.

(Complete descriptive catalogue mailed on application.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

THE GOSPEL QUARTERLY.

SENIOR GRADE.

A Sunday School Quarterly containing lessons for each Sunday in the year; prepared by the Lesson Committee of the General Sunday School Association; designed for the use of both teachers and scholars.

The Home Study with Questions, Introduction, Comparative Texts from King James' and the Inspired Translations, Study of Words and Phrases, Questions on Lesson Text, Sidelights, and Afterthoughts, are designed to aid scholars and teachers by bringing them into direct contact with the Scriptures, and furnishing historical and general information from first-class supplementary aids to Bible Study, thus giving accurate knowledge of the Bible and bringing out the doctrines of the gospel. Each quarterly contains a Map of Palestine, also a Lesson Dictionary.

Bound in paper covers; price 10 cents per quarter; 35 cents per year.

INTERMEDIATE AND PRIMARY GRADES COMBINED.

This grade contains the lessons of the Senior Grade in simplified form and for corresponding dates. The Bible Practice Work, To the Teacher, The Lesson Story, Questions on the Lesson, etc., are the leading features. "Afterthoughts," the Names, Order, and Number of the Books of the Bible, Notes for Teachers, and a Map of Palestine are also included.

Bound in paper covers; price 5 cents each; 20 cents per year.

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

Inspired Translation: Sheep binding, $1.25; Imitation Morocco, $1.75; Morocco, $2.25; Flexible covers (similar binding to Oxford Teachers' Bible), $3.75. All styles but the sheep binding are finished with gilt edges.

King James' Translation: Four sizes of American Bible Society's low-priced editions: With marginal references, two sizes, 60 and 80 cents each. Plain, two sizes, 30 and 50 cents each.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Byre and Spottiswoode's ministers' and Sunday school teachers' Bible. Flexible binding, Levant, silk sewed, kid lined, thin paper. This edition forms a book about one inch thick, and contains the "aids to the student," including concordance, maps, etc. Many prefer this to the Oxford edition. Price $4.75.

ENVELOPES.

Small envelopes for collections; per 100, 15 cents; one thousand, $1.25.

NEW TESTAMENT. INSPIRED TRANSLATION.

Cloth sides, leather back, 50 cents each. Cloth binding, 30 cents each; $3.30 per dozen net. A special, cheap, pocket-size edition for Sunday schools; same type as the 50 cent edition.

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION.

Three sizes: American Bible Society's editions; cloth binding. Brevier type, 18 mo., 25 cents each net; the same per dozen. Agate type, 32 mo., (smaller) 15 cents each; $1.60 per dozen net. Pearl agate type, 32 mo., 10 cents each; $1.00 per dozen net.

These books are kept in stock to supply schools and other patrons with good, cheap Testaments at very low prices.

SECRETARY'S RECORD.

A book of complete systematic record of the entire proceedings of the Sunday school, including, in addition to the record of regular sessions, space for recording minutes of business meetings. Ruled for two years. Paper boards, leather back.....1 35

TEACHER'S CLASS RECORD.

A short, simple, and systematic method of recording the essential items of class work, together with Helpful Hints to Sunday school officers and teachers. Ruled for one year.

Paper, each, 8 cents, per dozen..... 75

REPORTS.

Blank statistical reports of Sunday schools to District Association; per dozen, ten cents.

The same for Districts to General Association; per dozen, fifteen cents.

WINNOWN SONGS.

Each 40c., half dozen $2.25, per dozen.....4 50

CARDS AND TICKETS.

Fancy cards, large, five kinds, per 50..... 75
Fancy cards, small, ten kinds, per 100..... 50
Good Behavior tickets; per 100, 15c.; 1,000...1 00
Prompt Attendance tickets; 100, 15c.; 1,000...1 00

INTERMEDIATE QUESTION BOOK.

Limp muslin, 25 cents; per dozen.....2 50

PRIMARY QUESTION BOOK.

Limp muslin, 15 cents; per dozen.....1 25

THE SILVER THIMBLES.

A story for young children, by Sr. C. B. Stebbins, Price 20 cents.

COMBINATION OFFER.

One Sunday school Secretary's Record1 35
One dozen Sunday school Teacher's Class Record 75
One thousand collection envelopes1 25
One dozen statistical reports 10
All for.....3 15

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

(Inspired translation by Joseph Smith.)

Sheep or Library Binding, sprinkled edges...$1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges1 75
Morocco, gilt edges..... 2 25
Flexible covers (similar binding to Oxford Teacher's Bible)3 75
New Testaments, see Sunday school supplies.

NEW TESTAMENT.

INSPIRED TRANSLATION; LARGE TYPE EDITION.

A special new edition in pica type; a book of 374 pages, size seven by ten inches. It is printed on superfine paper; a book similar in size and style of binding to the large type edition of the Book of Mormon. Leather backs and corners, cloth sides.....$1 00
Roan, sprinkled edges.....1 25
Seal grained Russia, gilt edges.....1 50

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION.

BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS.

(See Sunday school supplies.)

BOOK OF MORMON.

Roan, sprinkled edges.....1 00
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges1 25

New Edition in Large Type. This special edition forms a book of 500 pages; its size seven by ten inches. It is printed on superfine paper, and issued in large pica type, a feature especially acceptable to aged persons. The paragraphs are shortened, thus making it more perfect as a book of reference than former editions. The index is rearranged, the subjects and citations for wishing complete synopses of the contents. Cloth, leather backs and corners.....$1 50
Seal grain Russia.....1 75
Seal grain Russia, gilt edges2 00

CONCORDANCE TO THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Paper covers, 32 pages..... 10

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

(Music and Hymns combined.)

Leather back, muslin sides.....2 00
The Harmony contains all the hymns in the Saints' Herald; also 555 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes, with full instructions on choir and anthem music. The same (music only).....1 25

MINISTRY AND BRANCH CARDS.

Neat cards for Ministers or Branches, with name and address, or place of worship and hours of services on face, and Epitome or "What we Believe" on reverse side. An excellent aid. Two sizes: 2 1/4 x 4 inches, price 75c. per 250, $2.50 per 1,000. 3 x 5 1/2 inches, $1.00 per 250, $3.50 per 1,000.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.
Paper covers..... 35
Muslin binding..... 50

BRADEN-KELLEY DEBATE.

Propositions:—(1) Is the Book of Mormon of Divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to the respect and belief of all Christian people? (2) Is the Church of which I, Clark Braden, am a member, the Church of Christ, and identical in faith, organization, ordinances, worship, and practice, with the Church of Christ, as it was left perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and accepted with him?
Muslin boards, 396 pages.....1 50

DISTRICT RECORDS.

Printed and bound similar to Branch Records...2 50

MISCELLANEOUS.

In addition to the following list, the Herald Office will purchase any obtainable book desired by its patrons.

Young's Analytical Concordance of the Bible, containing every Hebrew and Greek word and its English equivalent.....4 75
The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall, 544 pages, muslin1 50
Universalism Against Itself, 336 pages, muslin, by A. Wilford Hall1 00
Josephus, complete, library leather2 25
Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, muslin boards, 5 volumes.....4 00
Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated)1 80
Rollin's Ancient History, two volumes in one...4 00
The Koran, library leather.....2 25
The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Caesarea and Palestine....2 00
Cruden's Complete Concordance of the Bible...1 50
Apocryphal New Testament1 25
Eliens' Diary, by Joseph Luff 30
Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size 85

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.

Branch Statistical Reports; per doz 40
Annual Statistical Reports; two for..... 05
Certificates of Baptism and Membership; per doz. 12
Certificates of Removal; per doz 12
Marriage Certificates; per doz 25

GOSPEL TRACTS.

In paper covers, 128 pages, each 15c., per doz. .1 50

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE SAINTS' HARP.
(Hymn Book.)

Roan, sprinkled edges..... 1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 25

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

Muslin binding..... * 0

COWDERY LETTERS.

Written on the subject of the Rise of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by Elder Oliver Cowdery. They contain valuable matter concerning the Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and Translation of the Book of Mormon, and the Angelic Bestowal of the Priesthood.

In paper covers, 40 pages, each..... 8
Per dozen..... 75
Without covers, 5 cts. each; per dozen..... 50

THE RUINS REVISITED AND THE WORLD-STORY RETOLD,

Is a book of 240 pages, written by Elder Samuel F. Walker. The purpose of the writer is to show that the main facts of scientific teaching concerning the origin, growth, and development of the Universe, of human tradition and history, and the revelation of Christianity have a common origin, and are evidences of one design in the creation, and in the history and growth of the ages. Theological conclusions are reached from scientific deductions, and by comparison with human tradition, archæology, and other sources of information the writer aims to present a scientific defense of Christianity. The later chapters of the work contain evidences from American aboriginal traditions that Jesus is the Christ and was known and worshiped by the ancient inhabitants of the Western Continent.

Cloth bound, boards, price..... $1 00

AUTUMN LEAVES.

A religious monthly magazine published for the youth of the church, by Mrs. M. Walker, issued from the Herald Office. Price $1.50 per year. It contains, in addition to its general matter, the following departments: Observations; Department of Correspondence; Editor's Corner; Domestic Department; Round Table. Its series of biographies and autobiographies of leading ministers of the Church past and present have been widely read and greatly appreciated. It presents many features of the world's progress, of use alike to young and old. Illustrated, 48 pages, size 7x10.

PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD;
THE APOSTASY, REFORMATION, AND RESTORATION.

By Elder Wm. H. Kelley. New, Revised, and Enlarged Edition. It contains 421 pages of closely written matter, with autograph and likeness of the Author and is printed in good, readable type, with neat binding. The work is a library within itself; a marvel of trenchant criticism and logical deductions from his torical facts; a key to the right understanding of the Bible and modern diverse systems of faith and worship. It discusses the issues of theology that are to the front to-day. It treats largely of Ministerial authority as associated with the Melchisedek and Aaronic Priesthoods, and the Ideal Church of New Testament times is conspicuously set forth in striking contrast with the creeds and systems of church building since the days of the Apostles. Also the claims for the Restoration of the Gospel at a later day than the Apostolic age are critically examined in the light of prophecy and history, which is a subject of great moment to men of every faith. A historical resume or brief is also inserted of the rise and development of the "apostate church," and an exegesis of the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the revelation of the "sealed book." Also the origin of modern churches and creeds, etc.

Price..... $1 25

SPIRITUAL GIFTS, AND THE SEER OF PALMYRA.

BY ELDER M H BOND

Modern Prophets after ancient types. Who was Joseph Smith? Was he a religious impostor? Was he a "Spirit medium?" What does the Bible say about Joseph Smith?

The Truth by Three Witnesses—Christianity in the First and Nineteenth Century—The Ancient and Modern Pharisee—The Revelations of Emanuel Swedenborg—Modern "Spirit Mediums," and Hypnotic Religious "Revival," as Against Reason and Bible Testimony, and in Contradistinction to the work of "The Latter Day Seer," Examined in the Light of Facts and Human History—A Rational and Scriptural Exposition or Explanation of Old and New Testament Prophecy and Doctrine.

A Revision of "Spiritual Gifts," with supplement and appendix.

Paper covers..... 25
Full cloth binding..... 50

LICENSES, NOTICES, ETC.

Elders', Priests', Teachers', and Deacons' Licenses, each per dozen..... 12
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate Books.... 25
Blank Preaching Notices; per 100..... 40

GERMAN HYMN BOOK.

A collection of one hundred original, selected, and translated hymns in the German language; carefully compiled by Caspar and Temme Hinderks, of Stewartsville, Missouri.

Imitation Morocco, sprinkled edges..... 40
Ditto gilt edges..... 60

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE,

WITH INTRODUCTION BY ELDER W. W. BLAIR.

A book in which is traced the intimate connection between the history of Protestantism and the founding of the Government of the United States with the advent of the restored Gospel; interwoven with which is a tender story from a real life, telling of the efforts of one to find the Kingdom of God, its object being to trace God in modern history, and to show that his dealings with men are as clearly discernible now as in ancient times.

A book for Sunday school libraries and the home. Price..... $1 14

RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE.

A manual of parliamentary practice for all deliberative assemblies of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Each chapter is headed, each section has its subhead. The book contains rules for the government of General and District Conferences, Branch Business Meetings, and other assemblies. Its parliamentary rules are based upon the latest and best works of accepted authorities. The Articles of Association of the Reorganized Church, also the General Conference Rules of Representation are included. Instructions and rulings concerning General, District, and Branch Records, the holding of Elders' Courts, etc., are also embodied in the work. Revised and republished in 1891. A book of 200 pages, cloth bound, exhaustively indexed; price 40 cents.

THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH, OR WEEKLY REST DAY.

By Elder Columbus Scott. This is a work of 147 pages, divided into fifteen chapters, in which the "Sabbath" under the Mosaic Law, and "The Lord's Day," "First Day of the Week" or "Christian Sabbath" under the Gospel Dispensation are fully treated from Scriptural and historical standpoints. The work is concise and able, and clearly refutes the arguments of the Seventh day Sabbatarians, establishing the first day of the week as "The Lord's Day." An added supplemental chapter by Elder W. W. Blair is included.

Paper covers..... 25
Muslin binding..... 40

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH.

For the use of higher classes; also for the ministry and others. It contains, under proper headings, Scripture proof texts on the various principles of the gospel; also much other valuable historical and general matter. Sprinkled leather... $1.00. Muslin boards... 75

A MANUAL OF THE PRIESTHOOD.

This is a work by Elder Charles Derry, in which is set forth the order and nature of the Priesthood. The writer also defines the duties and prerogatives of all Church Officials, from the First Presidency to the Deacons inclusive. It is compiled from the Standard books of the church and the History of Joseph Smith as published in the Millennial Star. Indexed for ready reference, 132 pages, cloth bound, 25 cents.

TRACTS.

ORDER BY NUMBERS.

2. Truth Made Manifest; per doz. 15c., 100.. $1 00
 3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per doz. 5c., 100 30
 4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3c., 100 15
 6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per doz. 15c., 100..... 1 00
 7. Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 5c., 100. 30
 8. Fullness of the Atonement; per doz. 15c., 100 1 00
 9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per doz. 20c., 100..... 1 30
 10. The Narrow Way; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 11. The Plan of Salvation; per doz. 20c., 100... 1 20
 12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per doz. 15c., 100. 1 00
 14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per doz. 15c., 100... 1 00
 16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 17. The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; per doz. 15c., 100 1 00
 20. The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c., 100..... 1 00
 21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 22. Faith and Repentance; per doz. 10c., 100.. 50
 23. Baptism; per doz. 10c., 100..... 65
 24. The Kingdom of God; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
 25. Laying on of Hands; per doz. 5c., 100..... 30
 27. The Sabbath Question; per doz. 15c., 100.. 1 00
 29. Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
 31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 32. Which is the Church; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
 36. The Spalding Story Reexamined; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 42. Rejection of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100 50
 43. One Wife or Many; per doz. 15c., 100.... 1 00
 44. Crooked Paths; per doz. 15c., 100..... 1 00
 45. The Reorganized Church in Succession from 1830 to the Present. A thirty-one page pamphlet containing statements of faith and practices rules and usages of the Church and of heresies, and departures from it. Important papers and statements from leading church authorities past and present are reprinted. Each 5c., per doz. 30c., 100... 2 00
 46. The Pure Gospel of Christ. A list of questions and answers, with blank form preaching notice on the back, same size as Epitome; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 47. The Future State; per doz. 15c., 100..... 1 00
 - Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection of Jesus Christ; each 5c., per doz..... 50
 - Prophecy on the Rebellion; per hundred..... 10
- Special prices furnished on application for tracts in lots of one thousand.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 21, 1894

No 47.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:
"John C. Whitmer Dead".....	741
A Few Comments.....	742
Another Straw.....	742
Decision in a Church Lawsuit.....	742
Apostolic Succession.....	742
Great Events.....	743
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Influence.....	744
Our Gospel Boat.....	745
LETTER DEPARTMENT:	746
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Woman.....	750
The Resurrection.....	752
ORIGINAL POETRY:
A Prayer.....	754
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Chatham.....	754
Alabama.....	754
Western Maine.....	754
Northeastern Kansas.....	755
Montana.....	755
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Ohio Reunion.....	755
Pastoral—Heman C. Smith.....	756
Evangelia Views.....	756

THE GREATNESS OF RELIGION.

The autumn Chicago University convocation address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. John Henry Barrows, Professorial Lecturer in Comparative Religions in the University of Chicago. Dr. Barrows' theme was "The Greatness of Religion." Popular interest in the subject chosen was intensified by the fact of the prominent position given the speaker in the World's Parliament of Religions, held in Chicago last year. Dr. Barrows will in the near future preside over the Museum of Oriental Religions, to be built upon the university campus and endowed by Mrs. Caroline E. Haskell of Chicago.

Dr. Barrows said in part:—

I speak to those who believe that hierology or sacred science should keep abreast of the times. This university was founded with a Christian purpose, its character, freedom to all research, its faith, that the divine is everywhere, and that no truth clashes with other truth. It welcomes whatever facts have been discovered by the pioneer students in comparative theology, although it may not receive their philosophic theories. We all believe Christian men ought to be alert in exploring every department of knowledge, that the Spirit of God is back of the material creation, that he is the energy in all the evolutions of the past, that he is present with the human spirit to-day. We believe the scientific knowledge which omits the science of religion leaves out the most lustrous domain of human thought. We have gone far beyond the doctrine of absentee gods and mechanical theories of creation, and reverently accept the divine immanence, working in every biological law, active in the lowest forms of life and in the latest evolutions of society. Religious development has not proceeded along one line only. Environments have been various and changing, and in accordance with phylogenetic laws we behold in religion, as elsewhere, multiform evolutions, fossil, extinct faiths, and degenerate descendants of higher spiritual types—for development is not always progress. While science is inspiring in us a tenderer feeling toward the animal creation, with which we have had so long a history in common, it is also showing that even between types of worship so far apart as fetichism and Christian theism there is, as Dr. Fairbairn has said, the common bond of faith in the supra-sensible.

What study should broaden the bounds of intellectual and moral sympathy like the study of universal religion? Should it not give to the heart an expansion like that which astronomy has given to the brain? We ourselves are heirs of all that has been; we feel the touch of hands which became dust when Nineveh was destroyed, and hear the sound of pathetic voices that were stilled before the Argive keels grated on the shores of Ilium. The sceptered spirits of the past rule us from urns older than the Druidic circles of Stonehenge, as ancient as the burial places of the Egyptian dead. If our national life is not to pass through the stages which lead to social and moral decadence, the forces that will keep it strong and progressive must spring out of religion. National blight invariably follows the collapse of faith. "Fading as a leaf" is the pathetic inscription written on the forehead of national atheism. "What greater calamity," wrote Emerson, "can fall upon a nation than loss of worship? then all things go to decay." This university would never have been built had it not been for the conviction that it would prove a mighty spiritual force in the life of the world, a part of that American Christianity whose task it is to pour a celestial vitality both into cities where civilization is being divorced from morality and into the far-off land of the decrepit and despairing East; to overcome by light and love the power of a socialism which "attempts to solve the problem of suffering without eliminating the factor of sin," to infuse the spirit of Christ into the education of the young at a time when mental training is often conducted along false and perilous lines; to show the immeasurable superiority of the forces of the Bible and the Spirit of God over the various forms of mere ritualism; and, by making a Christianized manhood, to bring forth a Christianized nation.

The history of comparative religion is not a long one, but it is starred with great names and is finding a foremost place in some of the universities of Holland, England, France, and Germany. Scientific study of religion is recent. One of the inevitable effects of this study will be the re-writing of Christian theology. It must have a re-statement under the guiding principle of evolution and in the light of these comparative studies. Here are tasks for giants. We need not fear the results. Christ will be exalted while our conceptions of his activity are widened. When we remember the divisions of Christendom and recall how interest has been centered on minor doctrinal and other differences it is well that human thought should be enlarged to the boundaries of the globe. Sixty years ago, in the most cultivated parts of New England, men were fighting over the metaphysics of the divine decrees and living in spiritual isolation from Christian neighbors. But larger and more practical problems have been forced into view. The urgent needs of Christendom, endeavoring with divided forces to conquer mankind, press on the mental vision. And now new and vast continents of history and spiritual life and speculation loom along the horizon. The American and the Englishman, plentifully equipped with positive dogma and splendidly eager for good deeds, require intellectual broadening and spiritual emancipation. They need to escape from provincialism of thought and sympathy. They need religiousness in the Asiatic sense, contemplativeness, the upward and ennobling look, and the ear that listens for "the divine voice that wanders earth with spiritual summons." Studies like these should give us depth as well as breadth. They should add to our self-knowledge by enlarging our knowledge of what is without, for, as Professor Caird has said, "the inner life of the individual is deep and full just in proportion to the width of his relations with other men and things."

If it be said religion has largely been a record of intellectual and moral aberrations, we answer the same is true of every part of human knowledge and effort. Politics has its Catilines and Caligulas, science has its astrology, and its alchemy, and its thousand exploded theories; but even the mistakes of men have been stepping-stones to better knowledge. Bunsen rightly believed the temple of God in history towers above all other temples. Religion is not to be judged by its defects, is not to be estimated by its failures, its inquisitions, its heresy hunts and perversions, but by its highest manifestations. Human love which binds hearts together in families is not to be condemned on account of the misery which perverted love has engendered. Religion, having to do with the highest objects of knowledge, a personal God, gives the sanction of divine authority to the precepts of ethics. The sense of the divine, its nearness and awful power, and human responsibility and dependence—these are elements which have entered from the beginning into religion, and where some of them have temporarily been left out, as with Buddhism, perhaps in the revolt of the human spirit against sacerdotalism, superstition, or polytheism, they have been restored, in whole or in part, by the very needs of human nature.—Tribune.

KEEP THE SKIN CLEAN.

THE importance of cleanliness for the healthy performance of the functions of life is a subject of a lecture delivered at the London Institute by Professor Vivian Lewes, and published in Nature. We may, says Professor Lewes, live for days without giving our stomach any work to do, the liver may cease action for several days before death ensues, but it is impossible to survive for the same length of time if the functions of the skin are entirely stopped. Indeed, the Professor cites the case of a child which, being gilded all over to pose as a statue, died in a few hours. The sudoriferous ducts, of which there are about 3,500 to the square inch of skin, perform the important function of throwing off the moisture produced during the combustion of waste tissue by the oxygen of the blood, and secrete about twenty-three ounces of perspiration in the twenty-four hours, which evaporates without producing any sensible moisture of the skin. This throwing off the perspiration and its evaporation is a beautiful natural contrivance for regulating the temperature of the body, as the conversion of the perspiration into vapor renders latent an enormous amount of heat, which, being principally derived from the body, keeps it in a state of comparative coolness. A bath heated to 120° F. is almost unbearable, but one may be exposed for some time to a temperature of 325° F., in an oven. The perspiration keeps the body cool. The twenty-three ounces of perspiration secreted daily contain about one ounce of solid matter, which is left behind on evaporation. Apart from this there are sebaceous glands which secrete oily and resinous matters, of which the wax in the ear is a type; these, mixing with the solid matter and dirt adhering to the skin, form a compound which tends to clog the pores of the skin; and it is the removal of this, by the morning tub and rough towels, which is responsible for the refreshing influence of the bath.

PLEA FOR THE BIBLE.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 15.—The most impressive paper delivered during the National Baptist Congress, which has been in session here three days, was that to-day by President Harper of Chicago University on "The Interpretation of the Old Testament as Affected by Modern Scholarship." President Harper's whole plea was in favor of the acceptance of the Bible as handed down by the prophets. The higher criticism of Briggs et al., was given a blow with every sentence. President Harper began with the statement that while he realized the difficulty before the great scholars and honored leaders of the past in their stand, he believed no man had a right to express his opinions until he had thoroughly investigated every argument given on a stated subject. He then plunged into the midst of his subject thus:—

I hold, for one thing, that there were at least two Zacharias, separated by a lapse of at least two hundred years. Man lived once in a state of complete innocence. He sinned, and as a consequence fell. No man can accept the Bible without accepting this. No scholar who is a Christian can be a pessimist. Noah was accepted as the purest man of all the earth, and through him a new start was taken. Abraham carried with him the traditions of the past. Through him they were transmitted from father to son. Literary documents exist which have come down from early centuries, but they are only fragments. The Hebrews inherited these traditions. Many of the oldest traditions were rejected by the descendants of Abraham. The prophetic writers had before them a definite idea of the teachings which they promulgated. This idea came from God himself. The priestly theory of the Bible precedes the prophetic. A man of priestly habits undertook to make a collection of Biblical traditions. He covered the same ground as did the prophets. Which preceded, it is not necessary to discuss. When the whole was elided, these two complications were placed side by side. The advantage of having two distinct accounts of the same events is apparent. It was the best history that could at that time be given. There are many imperfections in the light of modern science, but it is divine history. Did not Moses, according to the New Testament, write the law? Is not a denial of this fact a denial of Jesus himself? A considerable portion of the law, under any circumstances, was Mosaic. The remainder is permeated by the Mosaic element. The essence of the law which was revealed to Moses was known during and before his time. The modern scholar, if he is a true scholar, believes in a God, but an ever-present and all-powerful helper. He is moved by the mighty thoughts with which every page of sacred literature abounds. True modern scholarship believes in supernatural revelation and supernatural agencies. Sacred history was compiled—it was not written. The Bible is not supreme to-day. You say it is, but you know that it is not. With the removal of misconception there is neither reason nor excuse for skepticism. The day will come when the Bible will be supreme, but I fear it is far distant. The supernatural can never be ruled out of it.

In the warm and exciting discussion which followed Prof. J. R. Sampey of the Louisville Theological Seminary, Dr. Howard Osgood of the Rochester Theological School, and Dr. W. C. Wilkinson of the Chicago University participated. The latter declared that he was a skeptic, in that he did not believe that many of the higher critics of the Bible were reliable. The whole criticism of the Bible is a literary and not a religious question. He said it might be better for the world if fewer people found fault with divine history. The congress closed this evening.

A FAMOUS SHOW OF BEAUTY.

The show of distinguished beauty, transfixed by famous artists, which is now taking place at the Academy of Fine Arts in New York, has been anticipated by the Cosmopolitan Magazine in its November issue, in an article by Wm. A. Coffin, with illustrations of some of the more beautiful faces. The "Great Passions of History" series has for this month's subject the romantic career of Agnes Sorel, who influenced the destinies of France under Charles VII. "The Art Schools of America," "The Great British Northwest Territory," "The Chiefs of the American Press," and the "Public Library Movement," are amongst the Cosmopolitan's table of contents. Survivors of the war and their children will find intense interest in "The Story of a Family," a personal narrative begun in this number by Albion W. Burgess, who tells in a graphic way, of a regiment which saw fierce service—in its organization, its marches, its sports, and its death-roll.

The Pueblo Indians are on the point of establishing an independent Territory. On their vast reservations they boast of 800,000 sheep, 250,000 horses, and 300,000 goats. Their wool averages 800,000 pounds annually.

□ Almost every human mutiny is connected, either by highway or byway, with the stomach.—Sir Francis Head.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.
"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."

Book of Mormon, page 116.

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 21, 1894.

No. 47.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
JOSEPH LUFF - - - CORRESPONDING EDITOR.

LAMONI, IOWA, NOV. 21, 1894.

"JOHN C. WHITMER DEAD."

EDITORS HERALD: Dear Brethren.—In the Herald for the 12th inst. under the above heading, before you give the biographical sketch of John C. Whitmer as published by the Republican, printed at Richmond, Missouri, for August 30, you say that "John C. Whitmer was the President of the Church of Christ, commonly called the 'Whitmerites.'" Now, either you are misinformed, or I have been kept in the dark; for neither John C. Whitmer, nor any other elder of the Church of Christ, commonly called Whitmerites, has ever been made the head or President of the Church of Christ on earth. We do not believe in one man to preside over the whole church, save the man Christ Jesus.

However, if the editors of the Herald, or anyone else, know of any proof that John C. Whitmer has ever been made "President of the Church of Christ commonly called Whitmerites," they will confer a great favor upon the writer and the so-called "Whitmerites" by giving said proofs. Certainly the editors could not have made such a blunder, as I conceive this to be, without, at least, some proofs to back their statements.

John C. Whitmer may have been presiding elder over the church at Richmond, but to say that he was "President over the Church of Christ, commonly called Whitmerites," is to develop the fact that the ones so stating it without proof are either misinformed or they intended to mislead in the statement.

Respectfully,

ELIAS LAND.

TEMPLE, TEXAS, September 14, 1894.

From the time that the "Appeal" was issued by Elder D. Whitmer, and for some time before, the general impression upon the minds of the editor of the HERALD and the eldership of the Reorganized Church, was that David Whitmer was the leading authority, the first and Presiding Elder of the organization called among Latter Day Saints, "Whitmerites," calling themselves "The Church of Christ." This impression prevailed from the reason that in the "Address" published by David Whitmer, in 1887, he assumes to write authoritatively for the Church of Christ, using the pronoun we—"we believe," and then declaring authoritatively what the Church of Christ believes. This impression was still further enforced by the fact that several who were members of the Reorganized Church went to Richmond and were there baptized and ordained by David Whitmer, with the understanding as expressed by some of them to us, that Elder Whitmer was the one left to build up and organize the church according to the primitive pattern, or as he claimed, that it was from 1827 to April, 1830.

In a conversation with John C. Whitmer at the time he with some others were visiting Lamoni, he directly averred, in answer to the question who was the Presiding Elder of the organization, the one who had the authority to call other elders belonging to the order to account for teaching false doctrine, or contrary to the general belief of the body, he replied that his Uncle David was the leading, or Presiding Elder of the church.

After the death of Elder David Whitmer, his nephew, John C. Whitmer, was understood to be such leading, or Presiding Elder, and was so addressed by the editor of the HERALD, in a conversation with him, during a ride on the railway between Bethany Junction, Iowa, and St. Joseph, Missouri, on perhaps the last visit made by Elder John C. Whitmer to Davis City and Lamoni. The conversation was general and free, and upon church topics, and included questions and answers upon the policy of his Uncle David before his death, and himself as his uncle's successor, in reference to church work. At that time John C. Whitmer so bore himself as to leave the impression clearly that he considered himself to be such successor.

In conversation with C. A. Wickes, now of Davis City, Iowa, since the reception of Mr. Land's letter, he admitted that we had had good grounds for our belief that John C. Whitmer was such leading, or Presiding Elder. And upon making inquiry of John W. Brackenbury, of Independence, Missouri, a man who has lived there since 1870, and has been fairly well informed in regard to the general opinion among those at Independence in regard to it, he stated that no other impression had obtained there except that David Whitmer, first, and J. C. Whitmer after him, each in his time, was understood to be the leading, or Presiding Elder of the "Church of Christ." We never suspected to the contrary until Mr. Land's letter.

In pursuit of inquiry we wrote to Mr. George Schweich, grandson of David Whitmer, nephew of John C. Whitmer, and the one into whose hands the publication of the Return, the paper started and published by Elder Ebenezer Robinson, at Davis City, Iowa, was intrusted; asking the following questions:—

1. Who was the leading Presiding Elder of the Church of Christ (Whitmerites, pardon the term), as understood by you folks at Richmond, prior to the death of your grandfather, David Whitmer?

2. Who was such leading Presiding Elder after the death of your grandfather, D. Whitmer?

3. Who is now the leading elder at present writing?

To this letter of inquiry we received the following reply:—

RICHMOND, Mo., Oct. 30, 1894.

Bro. Joseph Smith.—Your letter of inquiry duly here; without consultation and not authoritatively, will give only my opinion.

My grandfather was indefinitely first elder, or presiding elder, then John Whitmer; now I cannot say if P. A. Page occupies that office or not.

We make no comment on this letter further than this: that while Mr. Schweich does not attempt to say as by authority that his grandfather and uncle were each in his time first, or Presiding Elder, he does state that such was and is his opinion. If, then, one raised up right where these men resided, and whence their religious labors were directed and their church building prosecuted, should have become imbued with such an opinion, is it anything strange that those outside should have formed the same opinion, and for the same reasons?

We do not know whether Mr. Land has been kept in the dark, or not; but rather mistrust that somebody has blundered, and the information vouchsafed from headquarters to the rank and file of the "Church of Christ" has not been sufficiently clear to prevent misconception on the part of those to whom the "Address" was sought to be made applicable.

We had no intention of misleading anyone in what we stated in referring to the death of John C. Whitmer, but referred to him as holding position as the leading or Presiding Elder of the "Church of Christ, commonly called Whitmerites," from our understanding, and common rumor in regard to it.

We confess Jesus Christ as the head over all the church, on earth and in heaven; but believe that a visible body of Christ, the church, or people of God, on the earth,—the church militant, is not a complete body unless it has a visible head. Hence, if the "Church of Christ," which we did suppose Elders David and John C. Whitmer to represent, respectively, while they lived on earth after such "Church of Christ" (Whitmerites) was organized, had not and now has not a visible head, and is so properly represented to us by Mr. Elias Land, we are thankful to be so informed, and shall govern ourselves accordingly.

A FEW COMMENTS.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Two Swiss scientists declare that the Veddas of Ceylon fill the gap between man and ape. They have spent several years in Ceylon in order to study this little known but interesting race of pigmies. The Veddas are a distinct race and are more like apes than any other human beings. They live in small groups or families apart from one another, each family having its own part of the forest to hunt in. During the rainy season from October to December, when the forest is inundated, they take refuge among the rocks and live in grottoes. They are thus brought together and become sociable, and arrange marriages and make future plans. They recognize no chiefs, have no laws, and are quite devoid of ideas.

It is not stated who are the scientists (?) referred to, but it has become pretty well known that leading scientists, such as Virchow and others equally eminent, have given up "the monkey theory." We only note the above as showing the tendency of some minds to pick up and thrust upon the public what with them seems to have a shadow of proof against the position of Christianity concerning the origin of man. These Veddas, we note, arrange to live in peace, get married, and make future plans, but are "quite devoid of ideas"! How all that could be is not clear. It is certain, however, that some scientists, so-called, are not without ideas, but are in fact so prolific of them that the realm of speculation is ransacked from top to bottom and literally scraped bare in vain endeavor to drive the Almighty from his own dominions and exclude him entirely as a factor connected with the past and the hope of the present and future of the world. The scientific infidel is certainly unscientific; however, it cannot be said that he is quite devoid of ideas. His fertile brain is yet active, and will not cease to invent new theories in accounting for the origin, growth, and development of man and the universe. He serves a good purpose, however, at least with those who think. His negative work causes the positive truths of nature and revelation to be made manifest in their strength, and before them he must ever retire in defeat. And, it is due him to say that he has brought some religious dogmas from the realm of seclusion and mystery and thrown such searching light upon them that they too have not survived. But, the truth remains, as ever it will, unscathed, unmoved, and brighter and stronger after the application of each trying test.

Truth does not shun complete, open investigation. It invites and welcomes it. Its sphere is broad, and high, and deep. It demands candor and fairness in the investigation however; also the exercise of an intelligent, dispassionate judgment. The unfair, the prejudiced, the uncandid mind cannot receive the truth in fullness. "Strong prejudices" and incorrect habits of thought are opposed to breadth and comprehension of view. Such hindrances must be got rid of before the light can penetrate sufficiently to inform the mind and purify the heart. Illiberality—narrowness, and light are incompatible,—the latter with the former. Error is narrow, contracting; truth is both broad and critical in her verifications of what she affirms and examines. Truth, too, invades or seeks to occupy in every realm of creation; in the moral, the spiritual, and religious, as well as the material realm. She makes manifest; she brings to light; she weighs, she analyzes, and tests all theories and methods. Her advocates are untrammelled by fear, and unhampered by mistrust concerning the outcome of proper, impartial investigation. They invite it, they welcome it, and are willing always, if true men, to abide the consequences, — to conform to whatever correction investigation may prove necessary upon even their own part. They are not dogmatic, and do not claim infallibility in interpretation, conceding inerrancy only to the Divine Mind. What the God of truth has done and continues to do will remain unmoved. What men do in either the "scientific" or religious realm that is erroneous must fail and pass away, even though God be charged with its authorship. True religion and true science stand upon the broad eminence of truth itself,—all truth, and nothing but the truth.

ANOTHER STRAW.

In a sermon preached by Pres. George Q. Cannon, of the Utah Church, in the tabernacle at Salt Lake City, October 5, there occurs the following:—

The First Presidency have been led to advise the President of the European mission not to rush the people out here too hastily. We have suffered from this. Some of our elders in the south and in the northwest and our elders in Europe have seemed to think that as soon as a man is baptized into the church he must be rushed off to Zion. This is unwise, and we have cautioned the presidents of these missions not to do this. Let the Saints stay there and get a little knowledge and experience of the work, and not come here almost entirely unacquainted with the trials that Latter Day Saints generally have to contend with. Let them remain and be a sustenance for the elders who are laboring there, to comfort them and strengthen their hands, and not leave the mission wholly destitute of experienced members. There has been too much of this disposition manifested by many elders. You who have had experience know that to have new members immediately gather to Zion is not attended with good results. They come here unprepared to meet the trials that they have to contend with, and frequently apostatize. We do not want to bring people to this country to apostatize. We want to bring them here to be steadfast to the faith and to prove a support to the work of God. Their faith should be ripe through experience, so that they can endure the vicissitudes and trials which naturally have to be contended with in coming to a strange land. We believe that this policy will be attended with good results.

The above will very greatly surprise a host of those who were in the past hurried out of the Eastern States, and from the old countries, in a desperate and hasty attempt to "build up Zion."

We know of some who were so "hastily" rushed over the plains to the Utah Zion, that they were counseled, engineered, and marshalled by companies to "push" hand carts across the sandy and desolate wastes, many of them to leave their loved ones in half dug graves as witnesses to the folly of their leaders.

This later advice is good, however, and to be commended.

DECISION IN A CHURCH LAW-SUIT.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 18.—Justice Street in Court of Queen's Bench yesterday gave judgment in the case of the contending factions of the Church of United Brethren in Christ. The case, said Justice Street, was not quite plain. The church had united upon a confession of faith in 1885, and this was in existence in 1889, when the division took place, the dissentients adopting another creed which varied in certain important respects from the original confession of faith. The only way by which he could identify the right body was by the confession of faith, and there being two confessions, one of which was professed by the United Brethren at the time when the vote was taken, and one which was not, he must assume the body which held to the unaltered creed was the original body. He therefore gave judgment for the defendants with costs. Notice of appeal was promptly given and judgment was staid to allow of its being made.

The foregoing case, decided by a Canadian court, is practically the same in effect as the late Temple Lot suit case, in which the Reorganized Church was recognized as the legal successor or continuation of the Original Church, and lawfully entitled to the Temple Lot property. The Canadian decision is based on the same code—the common law of England—and its clear-cut statements emphasize the strength of the decision rendered in our favor by the United States Court in Equity. Both decisions indicate the strength of the position held by the Reorganized Church—its harmony with the accepted common statute "law of the land."

APOSTOLICAL SUCCESSION.

WHILE the bill for attaching the supremacy of the church to the Queen of England was pending in the British Parliament in the year 1558, the Archbishop of York in one of the debates on the bill said: "If the Church of England withdraws from the Church of Rome, she would, by that act, directly forsake and fly from all general council;" and he then proceeded to prove that the first four councils of Nice, Constantinople,

Ephesus, and Chalcedon, had acknowledged the supremacy of Rome. He then presented to their view this alternative for consideration:—

Either the church of Rome is a true or a false one. If she be a true church then we will be guilty of schism in leaving her, will be excommunicated by her, and the Church of England will be, of course, a false church. If the Church of Rome be a false church, then she cannot be a pure source of apostolical succession; and the Church of England must be false, because she derived her ordination and sacraments from that of Rome.

THE editor is no longer the one sole personality and power of the newspaper. He is a part of it, wielding no less power than before, but still only a part of the multiple mental machinery that makes the modern newspaper possible. Some remember when the counting room was unknown and the business manager's desk unthought of. Now they are usually essential with the editorial room, the managers of each having coordinate powers, and authority, and jurisdiction. Hence it is that the business means and methods of conducting the newspaper in every branch and department have come to be side by side with editorial management first essentials to a useful and successful career.—John T. Mack.

This reminds us that our subscribers need often to be reminded that the Business Manager is so important to the successful operation of a religious journal that he needs to be sustained by regular, prompt remittances of subscriptions, and book accounts; and that to fill his important sphere with credit to the publishing department and the general interests of the church, he should so be sustained by all who have its interest at heart. Those owing the office on any account lists are requested to consider its necessities and their obligations, morally and financially, toward it. We also request the traveling and local ministry, Bishop's agents, and such of the membership as can, to solicit new subscribers for the HERALD, beginning with the new year volume. Sample copies will be sent on application to any address.

Address all business communications to David Dancer, Business Manager, Lamoni, Iowa.

Address matter for publication to the editors.

GREAT EVENTS.

In the first thousand years was witnessed the fall of man; the building up of Zion, where Enoch with all his people walked with God three hundred and sixty-five years on earth, and then were taken up to heaven.

In the second thousand years, the world was deluged with a flood for its wickedness; the tower was built that men might go to heaven; the language was confounded; the earth was divided into continents and oceans; the people scattered upon the face of the whole earth; and America was peopled by the Jaredites.

In the third thousand years, Pharaoh and his host were swallowed up in the Red Sea; Israel, the chosen of the Lord, was overshadowed by his glory in the cloud by day, and a pillar of fire by night; and the temple of the Lord built at Jerusalem.

In the fourth thousand years, the ten tribes of Israel were led away captive out of the land of Canaan, and taken to a place by the hand of the Lord that has not yet been discovered by the Gentiles; the Jaredites were destroyed because of their wickedness; Lehi was guided by the matchless power of God to this continent.

In the fifth thousand years, the Savior of the world was born, crucified, and rose again from the dead; and most of the apostles were slain for preaching the gospel; and Jerusalem was destroyed.

In the sixth thousand years, America, the land of Liberty, choice above all others, was settled by the Gentiles; the fullness of the gospel of Jesus Christ came forth in the Book of Mormon, the church was established, and the gathering of the Saints commenced, preparatory to the second coming of their Lord, that in the seventh thousand years the earth may rest.—Evening and Morning Star.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

QUESTION.—Should the Prohibition, or any other party be allowed in the Saints' church to publicly discuss the necessity of their political growth?

ANSWER.—The care of the church building in any branch of the church lies with the officers and members of the church resident in the locality; and it is within the province and jurisdiction of the local officers to permit the use of the building for such purposes as they may choose, or deem wise, there being no rule of the general church, directing, or restricting them in their stewardship in regard to the use of the building in their care.

We are of the opinion that should the use of a church building be granted to one party in politics for the purpose of discussing political issues, each of the other parties should be also permitted such use of the building, if it was desired. It would hardly be consistent to permit one political party to use a building not erected for political purposes and refuse the use of the same building to any other party; especially, as the Saints are in nearly all localities pretty well divided on political questions. We therefore decline to say either yes or no to the question as asked.

The present title Holiness, as applied to the Pope, dates only from the fourteenth century. Before that time it was used by Kings and Emperors.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. W. C. CATHER, Forestburg, Texas, November 9:—

I am now on my way to Eastern Texas, where I will continue in the work. Where I have been working will be looked after by other elders. Baptized one since last writing, making three in Jack county.

BRO. JOSEPH WARD, POMO, MISSOURI, November 14:—

I was summoned home from Arkansas to see my sick wife. The good Lord has blessed her, and she is convalescing. I left the Saints feeling a stronger desire to press on in this glorious work than when I found them. There is quite an inquiry after the work by outsiders at Coats, but the rest of the places I visited in seemed to be as cold as a wedge. I will return as soon as circumstances will admit. I feel hopeful that if the work is kept up in Sharp county good will be the result.

BRO. T. J. SHEPPARD was at Springer, Indian Territory, November 9. He wrote from that point as follows:—

This is a new place; the gospel has never been preached in this section before. I learn that there are two elders of the Utah Church laboring through this country. I have not met them yet, but expect to. They have been preaching about Ardmore, Indian Territory for some time. There are three or four of our people near here, who have called for an elder, and I am here to help them. I have preached at this place three evenings to a very attentive and well-behaved congregation. Will close here to-night and go to Overbrook, near Ardmore, where I have an appointment for Saturday and Sunday. A daughter of Bro. Emsley Curtis lives near that point, who is doing all she can to get the truth before the people. On account of these Utah Mormons preaching in this section I would be glad if you will send me some tracts for distribution, especially such ones as show the difference between the two churches, to wit, Nos. 12, 14, 16, 42, 43, 44, 45.

BRO. E. WUNSCH, Tonawanda, New York, the 12th inst.:—

Am feeling quite encouraged of late. Some outsiders are trying to have me preach in the churches.

BRO. LEONARD SCOTT wrote from Maysville, Missouri, as follows:—

I leave for Coldwater this evening. In company with Bro. Chatburn we invaded this little peaceful city, but alas! that other fellow beat us here, and the popular Babylonian seal was rolled against the door of the religious sepulcher. We held forth at "Sunny Side;" crowded houses. Bro. Chatburn is the right spirit in the time and in the right place. Movement on foot to build church; I think it will be successful. Feeling moderate.

BRO. R. J. ANTHONY, Belgrade, Montana, the 12th inst.:—

The farmers are selling common or soft wheat for twenty-eight cents per bushel and hard at forty-five, and that is about all they have to sell. It is just about all they can do to pull through.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

PROF. O. T. MASON, a Smithsonian Institute anthropologist, after investigating the theories that hold to a European origin of the American Indians, has reached the conclusion, from a study of the manners and customs of the Indians, that they had their origin in Eastern Asia.

Bro. Emsley Curtis reports excellently of the work in his field. His associates, Brn. F. M. Slover and J. F. Hensen, have done well, and prospects are fair for good.

Sr. M. Davis reports an improved outlook for the work at Keb, Iowa.

Bro. J. A. Currie, Sen., writes from Pipe Creek, Texas, as about the last of the eldership in that region, some having gone in one direction and some in another, until but little is being done in the field. Bro. Currie seems to be of the opinion that if a missionary could be sent in there, some good might result. It should be a live, young, and persistent laborer, as he believes.

Bro. R. M. Elvin of Lamoni, in attempting to fill an appointment at the "Welcome" schoolhouse, in Grand River township, some twelve miles north of Lamoni, and in Decatur county, after speaking in the house on Saturday evening, was met on Sunday morning while on his way to his appointment by the school director, who forbade him the use of the house further. Bro. Elvin therefore wrote notices and spoke in a private house, the home of one of the brethren. This is a little singular, for the reason that the director is himself an unbeliever, and these are usually tolerant of differing religious beliefs.

Bro. Henry C. Smith of Lamoni has been appointed by concurrence of the Presidency and the Missionary in charge, to missionary labor in New Mexico and Southern Colorado. His address for the present Antonito, Colorado, care of C. B. Moyers. Scattered members in these fields, who may wish to correspond with Bro. Smith will address him as above directed. He will if practicable visit those desiring labor.

Bro. Henry C. Smith has been laboring at Antonito, Colorado, since November 3; prospects not flattering. The inhabitants are Mexicans and Spaniards, mostly Catholics.

The residence of President Joseph Smith and wife was the scene of a pleasant, friendly, social event on the evening of Monday, November 12, the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of the hosts. The company was large, and its spirit in entire keeping with the occasion. A literary and musical programme was rendered, followed by refreshments, after which the company departed, all extending warmest congratulations and expressions of sincere good wishes, and leaving behind them substantial tokens of the affection and esteem in which they held the recipients.

Bro. E. A. Blakeslee, Bishop's counselor, is arranging to labor in church work, and particularly in the department of the Bishopric, in the Eastern mission, during the winter.

Bro. George H. Hilliard, counselor to the Bishop, is now traveling in Ohio and Pennsylvania. Last Saturday and Sunday he was at Pittsburg and continued till Wednesday, the 14th. His dates for the Pittsburg and Kirtland district are as follows, in November: Youngstown, Ohio, 17-19; Sharon, Pennsylvania, the 20th; Conneautville, Pennsylvania, the 23d; Kirtland, Ohio, the 25th; New Philadelphia, Ohio, the 27th.

Sr. M. J. Beirly, residing at Seligman, Missouri, reports the few Saints at that point active in supporting the interests of the church, so far as in their power. They await the promised presence of Bro. I. N. White, and would also be pleased to see Bro. Joseph Luff among them. Opposition is strongly arrayed, hence their desire for aid from those brethren.

Brn. C. Scott and F. M. Weld came home from the Des Moines, Iowa, district on the 12th, on account of the illness of Bro. Scott. Bro. Weld returned north on the 19th.

Already has the euphony of the name "Evanelia" been recognized, and the enterprising baby blesser records it as a middle name in a birth notice. The fame of the gospel boat goes marching on.

The Evanelia was to again set sail on the twenty-fifth of October, weather conditions permitting. The voyage, under ordinary circumstances, would be completed in about four or five weeks.

The Herald Office management has decided to dispense with the Items of Interest department of the HERALD, the growing demand for space for regular church matter demanding the change. We trust our readers have found interest in and received benefit from the weekly resume of news in the past. Now that the secular newspaper must be looked to for the record of the world's doings, we commend to our readers the Independent Patriot, published by Lambert Brothers, Lamoni, Iowa, as an excellent general family newspaper.

The Sermon Supplement to the HERALD will also be a thing of the past. The sermons will hereafter appear in the body of the paper. These are the days that try men's souls—the days of retrenchment, economy; hence these changes in the HERALD.

Bro. A. H. Smith reached home, Lamoni, on Monday, November 13, enroute from the eastern to the western portion of his field.

Bro. A. J. Blakesley of Lamoni, has unbound HERALDS from 1885 to 1894 for sale. Particulars by addressing him.

Brn. Wm. Anderson, E. L. Kelley, and J. S. Snively held services near Lineville, Iowa, the 17th and 18th. Bro. Snively is continuing a protracted effort at Concord Baptist church, in connection with an elder of the Methodist persuasion.

Bro. Joseph Luff, Corresponding Editor of the HERALD, was at Lamoni on the 12th and 13th inst., in attendance at a meeting of the Board of Publication.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the Episcopal Church began its sessions on the 13th inst., at Boston, Massachusetts. Among the topics discussed were, "the exclusiveness so apt to creep into social church life, acting as a barrier between the rich and the poor;" "the church's duty in the matter of secular activities;" and, "the work of the various orders of laymen" in the church.

The National Congress of Baptists began its twelfth annual session at Detroit, Michigan, November 13. The day's topic for discussion was, "Tradition as a formative force in Baptist doctrine and church life."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Slow fell the pearly drops from out the fountain's brimming bowl

Upon the stone below,

And none gave heed; but when the years had brought appointed dole.

To men, of weal or woe,

And on the churchyard's mossy slates their carven names were dim,

Lo, in the granite gray,

A pool where swallows bathed, beneath the laughing fountain's rim,

The stone was worn away!"

INFLUENCE.

ONE by one like the raindrops or the pearly, distilled dews of night the drops of our influence are falling into the lives of others, making them either happier or adding to the heaviness of hearts which perchance may already have as much of sorrow as they can bear. As Daughters of Zion we are seeking to be helpful, seeking to benefit each other. But it may be as we look to see the fruit of our labors, we feel that slowly—very slowly the work is moving on. If this thought is oppressing any we ask you to stop for a few moments and reflect. Truth and right must eventually triumph, or the plan of God is a failure and he who holds the universe in his hand is dethroned.

Since Christ lived, suffered, and died, the years and centuries have rolled on. Stop in the midst of these, the very last years of the nineteenth century, and consider. Mark well how toilsomely, slowly, the cause of truth has labored on. Here a victory, there a defeat. Looking at it with the eye of skepticism, the defeats have been more than the victories. But it is not so. The very boast of the skeptic and infidel to day in this inherent good of humanity, is proof of the victory truth is gaining. Slowly, step by step she is winning the battle, and the final triumph will be, must be, complete. Like the water of the overflowing bowl of the fountain performing its work drop by drop, every wrong, every error must disappear before the light, and souls shall bathe in the waters of eternal truth—bathe and be satisfied. And the vaunting boasts of unbelief shall stand speechless and confounded before the simple majesty of that faith which God has required of his people—the faith which is to conquer.

How beautifully Whittier has expressed this thought in the following lines:—

The world, O Father! hath not wronged
With loss the life by thee prolonged;
But still, with every added year,
More beautiful thy works appear!

Let us not be content to leave anything undone for the advancement of the work which it is in our power to do, but certain that we have done all—then let us be content, for just as surely as we are working in harmony with the plans of God—the God of purity and truth—so certain is it that our labors will not be in vain, but await the hour of triumph and reward.

"The tares may perish but the grain
Is not for death."

Let us arouse, then, buckle on the armor, and fight the good fight of faith. The members of the local organization in Lamoni have been putting forth vigorous efforts to pay for leaflets already published and secure the publishing of others. Since the last conference the members have raised nearly fifty dollars, in addition to the regular monthly fees paid in. Some help has come in from abroad, and we feel confident that it only needs a strong, united effort upon the part of the membership (perhaps an effort costing some small sacrifice upon the part of the individual making it) to place the society in a position to resume the publication and sending out of leaflets.

THE Gospel Boat has started again upon her long and perilous voyage, followed by the prayers and benedictions of every true Saint of God, and we feel sure that every one who reads will say "Amen" to the sentiments embodied in the beautiful poem we publish this week. A long and interesting letter from Sr. Burton had to give place to the later one which appeared in last week's issue. We shall look anxiously for news from the Evanelia. She goes forth the very embodiment of faith and reliance upon God, hence was a fit target for the shafts of infidel ridicule when compelled to turn back temporarily for safety. This has been done all along the centuries by the largest and stateliest crafts which ever put to sea, and yet forsooth the secular press never thought of bending their manly (?) bows to shoot at them the arrows of ridicule. But this little vessel is going upon a peculiar errand. Her object is a peculiar one and far too sacred and noble to address itself with favor to those imbued with the spirit of the age, which sees nothing desirable outside of the pursuit of gain. But on board the Evanelia are those who count as dross the perishing things of this world and who like them of old, "are not careful to answer" anyone "concerning this matter," for their trust is not in the arm of flesh; and if it please God that they perish upon the mighty deep, still their trust is in him for they know him and by faith grasp the knowledge that not a sparrow (O, Saints, do we believe it!) falls without his notice.

God speed the Evanelia! But and if she come not to port remember that God's ways are not our ways. It would never have been the plan of a human mind that the Redeemer of the world should bleed to death upon a Roman cross. It was, however, God's plan, and it is the story of that cross—that death and suffering which is (in the words of another) "to transform the world." Let us "have faith in God."

OUR GOSPEL BOAT.

Farewell: God speed our Gospel Boat;
'Mong southern isles now may you float.
Nor storm, nor wind, nor calm belate,
But bear thee on to those who wait.

Sail on, spread wide thy white-winged sail,
'Neath frowning sky or threatening gale.
The One whose voice the sea commands,
Beside thy brave, true captain stands.

To-night I cannot sleep nor rest;
I'm on the smooth Pacific's breast;
I see that unknown, trusting bride,
My well-loved, faithful friend beside.

Thy star-lit path—above—below,
Where foam-edged waves, like jewels glow,
I follow; join in song and prayer,
And watch by night and morning share.

Thou bearest those we love away,
'Tis not for them alone we pray.
"God bless thee" and "God speed thee on"
To those who watch for thee to come,—

The faithful ones, who, working there,
Shall deem thou art an answered prayer,
And bless the hearts and bless the hands,
That sent thee to those far off lands.

And while we linger with farewells,
We hear afar the chime of bells.
The Christmastide draws near; ah, then,
Speed on, with "Peace, good will to men."

VIDA.

LAMONI, Iowa, November 1, 1894.

Dear Mothers:—The arguments produced in "Baby Sweethearts" struck me very forcibly as beginning at the right place in laying the foundation for proper matrimonial relations. Is it not a fact that much of the unhappiness that occurs in married life exists because both parties have been taught falsely, directly and incidentally, concerning this most sacred companionship? It seems sometimes to take years for the keenest observers and most loving companions to arrive at a real understanding of each other's natures, and their desires and aspirations. all because their minds had been previously filled with ideas gained from fiction, fragmentary bits of conversation, or direct teaching which, though varying each from the other in the kind of picture presented, were all equally false in the portrayal of real character.

The writer herself has not been free from misunderstanding of the opposite sex, chiefly because of false ideas imbibed from even the better works of fiction; but love, marriage, and maternity have ever been of too sacred a nature to be treated lightly by her, even at the earliest period of "company-keeping" with young gentlemen. And to-day no provocation will call forth a stronger rebuke than some flippant remark by an older person to her little girls, hinting at flirtation with boys, or the choice of the society of boys as such rather than that of girls.

Truly "If we would have a pure maturity we must have a sexless childhood." But when shall this childhood disappear? When may we openly speak of the individual association of the sexes, or permit our boys and girls to select companions of the opposite sex to share in social enjoyments or assist in social labors?

I say "openly" speak of these things, for of course each child should be privately taught all things pertaining to its life and relations to others as fast as its mind is able to comprehend and hold sacred the truths placed in its keeping. But there comes a time in the lives of the young when the desire to associate with others individually is eminently proper, and should be both admitted and permitted, without either the jesting which falsifies, or the disapproval which antagonizes that which has been ordained of the Creator. It is of the arrival of this period that we would inquire.

Plainly the answer must be, "If I do not wish the friendship of my child, which may sooner or later ripen into a lifelong love, treated lightly or trifled with, I must defer the possibility of the formation of such friendship until that maturity is reached which will enable it to discern with judgment the fitness of its associations, and decide with wisdom as to their continuance or discontinuance."

It is also a fact that intimate association, in spite of reasoning or judgment to the contrary, may develop into that pity which leads to blind, slavish love; and our children should therefore be taught that it is well to consider those points of a young person's character which are already generally known, before they permit themselves to be drawn into a closer relationship with them.

On the other hand, the general commingling of the sexes, where different characteristics are brought to light and may be compared and contrasted, is at all times beneficial; hence coeducation and social intercourse is to be highly commended. But let the associations be general and not specific until both young man and maiden are able to abide the consequences of a ripening love, or decide with wisdom as to their unfitness for each other.

That this view places the period of special companionship beyond the school age may be readily discerned; and with some experience in both public and private school-teaching, I can say that never have I seen the spirit of specialization in association enter within the hearts of my pupils, without its being a detriment to their mental development. With hope for wisdom,

Your sister,

VINA H. GOFF.

SOUTH ARM, Michigan.

Dear Sisters:—It has been impressed upon my mind for some time that I should write to the Herald. So this afternoon I thought I would try to do so. I always strive to live in such a way as to be willing to discharge anything that I think is my duty. I was baptized when I was about fourteen; have been in the church for six years, and never have regretted the step. I always find that our heavenly Father is our best friend, and always willing and ready to answer our prayers when we live aright before him. A week ago last Sunday we went down to the water's brink, while Elder C. G. Lewis (assisted by Bro. John Light, our teacher) administered the ordinance of baptism to his mother. I feel to pray for our aged sister that her last days may be her best ones, and that she may ever live faithful to the work she has enlisted in, that when she is called to leave us she may meet her heavenly Father with joy and not with grief. We had our last Wednesday night prayer meeting at Elder Lewis'. The Spirit of God was present with us and we all felt to rejoice and returned to our homes encouraged on in the good work of God.

I remain your sister,
ETTA DUNLOP.

OSKALOOSA, Iowa.

Dear Sisters:—This is the first time that I have made the attempt to say anything to the sisters through the Column, and perhaps I would never have made it but for a great blessing that I received from our heavenly Father, which, had I not have let it be known, I feel that I would not have done my duty.

I am seventy-four years of age and have been afflicted for over a year. I was administered to by God's servants, and although they were strong, spiritual, God-fearing young men, I received no relief. I was impressed to request the prayers of the Prayer Union, and then Satan would say, "There is nothing in it. You received no benefit from the elders, and it will be the same in this instance." But I finally made my desires known. During the week in which my request for prayers was published in the Herald I was entirely prostrated until Thursday. On Thursday morning I retired to my room and prayed that the prayers of the Union would be accepted and that God would bless his aged handmaiden with relief from her affliction. While I was on my knees I experienced a sweet, soothing influence such as I cannot express, which grew upon me all through the day, and I grew stronger both in mind and body. And now I am stronger than I have been for ten years. I am so thankful to our heavenly Father; my faith has increased tenfold, and I feel like praising him continually. My greatest desire is that I might be enabled to do something in helping roll this glorious work along. Go on, dear sisters, in well-doing, and may God bless and keep you is the prayer of your aged sister, ELIZABETH SWALM.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR NOVEMBER.

"He liveth long who liveth well!
All other life is short and vain,
He liveth longest who can tell
Of living most for heavenly gain.
"He liveth long who liveth well!
All else is being flung away,
He liveth longest who can tell
Of true things truly done each day."

Thursday, Nov. 22.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verse.—Doctrine and Covenants 108: 5.

Thursday, Nov. 29.—The gathering of Israel to their land, and the restoration to them of the pure gospel in its fullness, and its acceptance by them to their everlasting peace.

Memory Verses.—Joel 3: 1, 2, 12, 16.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SR. VIOLA RITTER of Macomb, Illinois, asks your faith and prayers in her behalf that it may please God to heal her.

Letter Department.

MOUNTAIN GROVE, Mo., Nov. 8.

Editors Herald:—Since leaving the reunion I have kept pretty well, busy first at Roger-ville, preaching six sermons, then fifteen miles southwest of here, where I preached the funeral sermon of Sr. Roberts, who died the 25th of last month. I had a large turnout. After that I came to Cabool, where I held a debate; spoke six times and baptized two. Others were ready, but ill health prevented at this time.

I went from there to Sr. Lane's, on North Fork, and spoke once; then came to Vera Cruz, where I spoke three nights to full houses. I go from there to Dit, Ozark county, where I intend to meet Walter Lloyd and assist him in a meeting among his wife's relatives. The Southern Missouri reunion is almost a sure thing for next year. Bro. W. H. Schofield has promised twenty-five dollars and will furnish us the grounds free. Sr. Schofield says she knows it will be hard on them, but she says they are both able and willing to do all they can to help get it here. Sr. Maple also lives here, and our acquaintance, so far, I am glad to say, has favorably impressed us. Mr. Davis of Cabool has promised something in favor of a reunion here, and we have many such noble men in Southern Missouri, both in and out of the church. Saints, please remember our conference, December 1, at Yonker. In bonds,
H. SPARLING.

COOKS' POINT, Texas, Oct. 10.

Editors Herald:—After reading and considering your reply to my letter concerning your article on rebaptism, I have concluded to write again that you may understand me better. I understood your position on the subject; that it is not a doctrine or practice of the church, but that you thought it permissible under certain circumstances. To this I object, as there is no law that justifies it in any of the standard books of the church. But you seem to think that as there was no law against it, it is better to follow the admonitions of the Spirit than to contend for the hard lines of law.

Now, the objectionable part with me is this: the practice of rebaptism to heal the sick, there being no precept or command from the Lord for it. We concede that you have the right to express your views as much as anybody else. I have no objections at all; but the point at issue is rebaptism to heal the sick. We say we have no precept nor command from the Lord to rebaptize anybody under any circumstances to heal them of sickness, and that none of us has a right to do so in the name of the Lord. We see by reference to the history of the church both ancient and modern, that after the innovations and heresies crept in in this way at first, somebody thought certain things were permissible and would work well, and so they tried their notions and claimed they did according to their views, and so after a time they became practices of the church and taught as doctrine. For instance, look at the introduction of pouring and sprinkling for baptism. Novatus was sick and was thought to die, and that without baptism, and those who were present knew it was essential to his salvation, and of all. They concluded to substitute pouring for baptism, instead of immersion, and so after awhile pouring was taught for the true mode of baptism. There was no law that said they should not pour or sprinkle water on Novatus and call it baptism, and so with regard to trine immersion, or three dips in the name of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, and call it one baptism, as the Dunkards do, there is no law that says thou shalt not dip three times, so why not do it? It seemed to work well to those who believed it; but did the Lord accept it? is the question,—no matter how well it worked with them. We say, No. We might mention many other instances of the introduction of many practices of such like that have been introduced into the church which were not introduced as doctrine, nor as commands from the Lord; but they thought it would work well, and so they claimed they did, and after awhile they were taught and practiced as doctrines of the Lord. So we see it is dangerous to preach and practice anything that is not taught in the word of the Lord.

Coming down to modern times we take the history of Latter Day Saintism, and what do we see? We see in the forties somewhere that there was an idea entered into somebody's head that it would be a good thing to be sealed for eternity to one or more women. The law of God did not say, "Thou shalt not be sealed to one or more women for eternity" and it seemed there could be nothing wrong in it, so it was permissible, and so they did it. What was the result? Polygamy and a great many other damnable heresies followed, and the church was rejected.

Now about that evil spirit that was baptized out of that brother at Nauvoo, that you thanked me for introducing, which you seemed to think was evidence in your favor; but I can't see it that way. I thought one about as unscriptural as the other; that is, your rebaptism to heal the sick and his to cast the Devil out.

As to your reference to what the prophets and Christ did to heal the sick, to try to justify rebaptism to heal the sick, we will try that by the law and testimony and see if it is in your favor or not. None of the things they commanded to be done was an ordinance of the church, so there is no analogy between rebaptism to heal the sick and what they commanded to be done, so what they did cuts no figure in argument at all. You ask some one to explain why the prophets and Christ did what they did in requiring the sick or afflicted to do in order to be healed. Now I will explain what I understand to be the reason why they did. The Spirit of God that was in them directed them to do so, and so they did as the Holy Ghost directed, and the dead were raised, and the afflicted were healed. Now have you as good reason for rebaptizing to heal the sick? Did the Spirit of God direct you to do it, or was it just an experiment of yours and others who have done the like before you? If you will say the Spirit directed you to rebaptize to heal the sick as the Lord directed the prophets and Jesus, we would conclude that you had the same right that they had, and then we would learn that the Lord had a twofold design for baptism or you were mistaken about the Spirit directing you. In your reasoning upon the subject at one time you seemed to think it was better to yield to the admonition of the Spirit than to contend for the hard lines of the law. I have been thinking that it was the Spirit that gave the law to the church for its government. If I am right, it seems to me the same Spirit would direct a preacher to live by it, and execute it, and not to give an easier way to do God's will than that which is written in the law upon any subject. There are many spirits gone out into the world, so John the apostle tells us, so we are to try them by the word and see of what kind they are. We are all liable to be deceived unless we stick closely to the word of God, yea, live by every word that proceedeth from God's mouth, and ask him to give us his Spirit to guide into all truth.

In conclusion I will say that I am determined by the grace of God to earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered to the Saints, and to prove all things and hold fast that which is good and reject that which is not, no matter from what source it comes.

Yours in bonds,

E. W. NUNLEY.

MANVILLE, Ind., Oct. 31.

Editors Herald:—I preach in the branch and at Canaan once a month; prejudice is removing fast there. I also labor at Eagle Hollow among the United Brethren twice a month, and on the 20th of this month I made a trip in Switzerland and Ohio counties, opening four new places. I spoke at Allensville, in the M. E. church, to a large audience, with an invitation to stay longer. I also spoke at New Hope, in the M. E. church, to a large audience with an invitation to stay longer, from the trustees. I also spoke in a schoolhouse on chapel Ridge, to a packed house. The appointment was announced to be in the United Brethren church, and one of the trustees said he would not have their church disgraced by a Mormon preaching in it; but one of the trustees was director of the schoolhouse, so he opened it and wanted me to stay a week. I promised to be back soon, and left there and went to Florence, on the Ohio River, and spoke in the M. E. church to a full house, with the same invitation to stay longer, with the promise of returning. I met with some little opposition at Florence from a Campbellite on continued revelation, but soon set him down. I have lots of connections there and it gives me a good chance to open up the work.

My desires are to see this latter-day work move and I will do all I can in its behalf. I ask the earnest prayers of all the Saints and colaborers.

Bro. M. R. Scott, Jr., held a debate with Dillard Whitom the other night, at Center Grove, one hour and fifteen minutes each, on the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith. Whitom was badly whipped.

Yours in the faith,

JAMES D. PORTER.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 6.

Editors Herald:—Although I cannot say with the poet, "Like doves to their window in clouds see them come," yet I can say that the work we love so well is onward in Minnesota. They are coming, one and two at a time, and I think that at the end of the year a good showing will be made. This is a hard State to do gospel work in from the fact that so many nations are represented here, and the most of those that come here belong to some church, and those that are born here are taught the religion of their fathers, and it is hard to get them to investigate any other faith.

The Lord is with us here, aiding in preaching the word and confirming the word spoken by the signs following, as promised of old and also in the latter-day revelations. There have been some marvelous cases of healing in the city since the work was begun here three years ago. As they may be of interest to the Saints I will give them. One was a little child, born a cripple. Its lower limbs had not developed or grown any from the time of its birth until the time it was administered to, when it was nearly two years of age. The parents had taken it to the best physician in the city and were told that he could do nothing for it; that they, the doctors, might as well doctor a dead child. The grandparents belonged to the church, and having faith in the promises of the Lord, they had it brought to one of our prayer meetings and Bro. T. J. Martin and I blessed it and administered to it, and it began to gain immediately, and in a short time could walk, and finally became as well as any child.

Another case was a woman, not a member of the church, that had been sick about nine years with what the doctors called the "rheumatic gout," and her suffering was so great at times that they gave her chloroform and laudanum, and kept her insensible for two days at a time. She had not been able to do her work for nine years. Bro. Charles Shallbetter and I administered to her, and in a short time she could do her own work and walk to our hall to meeting, sometimes twice on Sunday, the hall being a mile from her home. She is now a member of the branch here and rejoicing in the truth.

Another case is of late, also not of the church, a Swedish lady, who has been sick about three years with lung trouble and heart disease. Had been to city hospital for treatment, but they could not help her, and she was taken back home and confined to her bed. Hearing of our faith, she sent for me to come and see her, so Bro. Shallbetter and I called and she said that unless the Lord would heal her she must die. She said that she desired to live to raise her children, but she realized that she must leave them unless the power of God was manifested in her behalf. We administered to her on Friday night, and the next Friday she was walking out in the yard. Thus the Lord is working with us here. We feel to give to him all the praise, realizing how weak we are, and also our dependence upon him. Praise his name forever and forever.

I am feeling well in the work, and the more I defend it, the more I love it. I baptized one last Saturday; others were ready, but it was a very bad day, so they did not go. Expect they will come soon. Bro. Alexander H. Smith dropped in upon us last week, but only staid two days. He came alone, but I believe he had company when he went out of the city. Went from here to Burlington.

Yours in bonds,

E. A. STEDMAN.

BYRNEVILLE, Ind., Nov. 6.

Editors Herald:—I just closed my meetings at the Baker Schoolhouse, three miles north of Leavenworth. The first preaching was done there by the writer in September. A good interest was manifested. Having other points to visit I left then but went back on the 24th of October and began work again and baptized two on the 30th, and two more on the 31st. As I continued the interest became greater, and on November 4 I baptized three more, and on yesterday the 5th I baptized another, eight at that point; so there will be a branch organized there soon. All are heads of families but two. The interest grew to such an extent that on Sunday night last the house could not contain all who came to hear. Others there will come in before long. One said he would be baptized when I returned, and several others spoke similarly, so the work goes on.

In that part of the field where I have canvassed the prospects are good. Friends are being won to the cause. One U. B. preacher at the Baker schoolhouse opened the services for me, and said if that was Latter Day Saint doctrine he was a Latter Day Saint, for it was a Bible doctrine. He has preached for his society for about twenty years. He is convinced and will probably come in when I return.

In bonds,

G. JENKINS.

TECUMSEH, O. T., Nov. 9.

Editors Herald:—I would suggest an idea which I think would be a help to the bringing in of tithing, which is just now so greatly needed to help roll on the work of our Lord and Savior Jesus the Christ; that is this: when the Bi-hop or any of his agents appointed to receive tithes, makes a request or call upon their respective districts for the observance of this glorious principle of the divine law, that the one appointed to receive always give his address.

I can say for one that the observance of this part of the law is a power for good, and O, how sweet the blessings come back to the giver. And, dear Saints, when you give let your prayers go with the gift, and the Lord will surely bless you until you are satisfied. I feel that now is the time that our help is needed.

Let Bro. T. J. Sheppard give us his address. He also failed to have his address printed in his October letter, so we cannot forward our mites to him without his address.

In the faith,

ISAAC W. WOLSEY.

SOMERVILLE, Victoria, Sept. 28.

Editors Herald:—In a former letter I referred to the Presbyterian and Wesleyan conferences in New South Wales, in their attitude as churches toward the vexed labor problem. The Church of England in a late assembly in Victoria, held at Melbourne, took up the same task, in considering a motion which sought to define the duty of the church in regard to industrial questions. It brought out interesting statements on both sides. Those for the activity of the church in industrial questions urged, that it is the province of the church to act as peacemaker; it must have its say in social questions, for right and wrong are involved; if the church did nothing else, it should suggest that arbitration is better than war or bloodshed; the present attitude of the church is a disgrace to its Christian standing; it is regrettable that not one of the working class was represented in the assembly; working classes are being alienated, because of the church's apathy in this matter; social questions must be settled by Christianity. Those against urged, it tended to secularization of the church to take any action; the church should not mix up religious reform with social or labor reform; it should not act collectively, but individually; there is danger of schisms and factions as a result; what labor theory should the church espouse? or, if the cause of the poor or laboring class be especially espoused, it would offend the rich and cause class distinction. The motion prevailed, and the church will take action through a committee which will make suggestions from time to time to the Bishop or assembly.

Church raffles and bazaars continue to trouble the various conferences. At the above assembly an act was introduced to prevent it. Some regarded raffling and bazaars as a great evil, others could see no harm in it, while one Rev. Cook confessed to having participated in raffles for twelve years. He asserted that nearly every church and parsonage in the colony had been built by the proceeds of bazaars and raffles; and were clergymen who assisted in them now to confess that such a course was one of vice? One point of merit was that funds should be raised by a direct appeal to the people, cultivating proper benevolence, and avoiding any appearance of evil. Is it any wonder that a little agitation of this kind once came up in our own conference in Victoria and finally was referred to General Conference at Lamoni (April, 1893)? I am pleased to know, however, that raffles did not enter into the discussion, for we usually discountenance it individually, which rendered collective action unnecessary.

The writer has not felt at liberty to superintend concerts and entertainments for aid of chapel funds, etc., in Victoria, on account of a sentiment against such practice among some of our membership. The chapel at Hastings is a neat building, a credit to the branch, but far from being paid for. Members who promised to pay a shilling per week have forgotten or neglected to pay, and the burden now rests on two or three. Payments ought to be met, and a neat sum could be raised by a concert; yet the cooperation of all cannot be received. Rather than agitate the matter and be "mixed" in local affairs, I let it rest.

Personally, I prefer to see funds raised directly, believing that the greatest good comes to the giver, and liberality is fostered. In fact, money raised through bazaars and entertainments is not given at all; it is a matter of "value received." Nevertheless, when necessary funds cannot be raised directly, what is to be done? Probably this: Educate the people to the higher thought; and, since holding concerts and entertainments are not bad or sinful, per se, let us tolerate them until money can be raised by direct appeal.

Let me suggest to the stern opposers of entertainments, that, as they teach toleration, and exercise it in other things, why not in this, and thus save many unpleasant debates, and probably some disturbance? I tolerate many things which I do not wholly indorse, while I am trying to educate to a proper standard.

Because of a "cold" my throat is out of repair, so my extra energy is directed as above. Since my last, the Presbyterian bodies have been considering the question of "union," but not with the same hope of success as the Methodists.

GOMER WELLS.

ISLAND OF HAO, OCEANICA, May 12.

Editors Herald:—I have been busy since I arrived in Tahiti, July 24, 1894, either studying the language or teaching the people their duties to God and one another; trying to develop the gospel to them, that they might be enlightened spiritually and temporally; for they need lots of teaching, and patience, and forbearance. They are, as a people, very kind; you cannot deal with them archly or unkindly. You can lead, but not drive. You can be firm with them, and they will think the more of you, if you are right. Few of this people are trying to do their duty and I think are firm in the faith of the church; but I think there are very, very few that have any knowledge of this work. I cannot say that I have seen any of the Spirit manifest in any of the gifts of the gospel since I have been with them. Some have told some dream they have received. I have not seen a good meeting since I left America, neither have I received a manifestation in any of their meetings: yet I think they receive a joy, and sometimes a great joy.

There is also a great number in the church who, I believe, will never amount to anything. They are as dark as dark can be, they know nothing of the truth, yet many of them are holding office and some are presiding over branches, and hold other offices in branches; and sometimes I think it is time, labor, and sacrifice thrown away. They do not seem to see the need of sacrificing everything that is required by the law of God, or to leave off their sins, and be honest, and truthful, and virtuous, and decent. Leave them for a short time, and the most of them will be doing that which is not right, such as getting drunk and smoking, not paying their debts, committing adultery, etc., yet they belong to the church, and will make any kind of confession rather than be cut off. But they are not firm and can be drawn away from the church, and when you think you have them, they are gone to some other church, some one of another faith has drawn them away, although I do not think they are of much loss to the church in their present condition, when I consider their acts and doings.

I was informed just before our April conference, 1894, that the Mormon elder had gone to the island of Hao, about three hundred and ten miles from the island of Takapoto, where the conference was held, and had baptized sixty-two of our people belonging to the branch there. I felt then, and ever since, bad about it. It is said that there were almost five hundred that belonged to the church in this part of the Paumotu Islands some years ago. I ascertained that it was over seven years since they had been visited by anyone, and the missionaries from America never did visit them. I made up my mind that I would visit them as soon as I could and so stated to Bro. Devore, and he thought it would be a good thing: so at the conference I was appointed, and on the 11th of April I took ship to the island of Hikueru, about two hundred and twenty-two miles. The captain did not charge me anything, and he gave me his own berth and slept on deck himself. I could not be treated better. I hope God will remember them in mercy for their kindness to his Saints. We arrived there on the 16th and remained one week, doing some preaching and teaching. Bro. Gilbert was with me. I did most of the preaching while there, as I was going away, Bro. Gilbert to remain. So on Monday the 23d I took ship again for the island of Hao. Bro. Johnson with me as my interpreter. Nary Salmon was captain and owner. He is a half caste and related to the late king of Tahiti. He talks and reads good English and French, and is well informed with regard to most things. He is a great reader. He was very kind to us; he charged us but one dollar per day, which is very cheap. There were three Mormon elders on board with us, going to the same island, Hao. Two of them were mere boys, but they talked the native language well and preached all the time in it. That is where they have the best of us. Neither of our missionaries can talk it as yet.

I was reading the Saints' Advocate while on board. Elder Jones seemed quite uneasy to know what I was reading, so I informed him. He saw an article with Brigham's name to it, and he wanted to read it. I told him I would read it for him. I did not want to commence on board the ship, I did not know how the captain and mate would like it, and I was alone; so I read that they could all hear me. The captain with many others gathered around, and I explained as I went along. It made the elders feel bad. One of them is the one that baptized so many of our people; he felt very bad. They wanted to deny some of it. I also had on hand three volumes of the Journal of Discourses; 1, 2, and 4; so I asked them if they would deny these books and their teachings, and they said it was their teachings and the writing of their church. I then turned to various articles and teaching in them, such as the Adam-God teaching, blood atonement, polygamy, Jesus begotten by an earthly father, etc., and Cain and Abel. I showed them from the books that Brigham was not a prophet, was not ordained before the death of Joseph to lead the church, neither did he claim he did, nor did the church; and he was not of the seed of Joseph. I showed them from the books that the church was rejected and the Moses man was to be raised up to lead the church out of bondage. I showed them that they must be in bondage to be led out, and I showed them other heresies. They said that was all I was trying to do, to find out what I could against them. I told them I had had to bow my head hundreds of times on account of their devilish teaching, people thinking I was the same as them: to show me one principle that we as a church teach that is not in accordance with the perfect law or gospel, and I would teach it no more. They got quite mad. I also read the evidence of Wilford Woodruff in the Circuit Court of the United States, and the evidence of many claiming to be wives to the Martyr. I also read the evidence of President Joseph Smith. They were ashamed of the evidence of their own people.

After I had done, I, with the captain, called on them for a reply; but they could say nothing. The captain was wonderfully taken back when he saw they had nothing to say to defend their case, and he tells this all around. He has become a sound friend of ours. He has great influence among the natives and will tell it on the different islands as he goes from place to place.

On the 28th we landed at Hao. There were many there to receive us, and they seemed to be very cold towards us,—just a few came and made us welcome. The Mormon elders landed the same time as we did, but not in the same boat. There were many gathered around them, and they seemed to make great ado over them. We learned that they were not going to stop on the same side of the island, but going across, so the native elders asked of them if they would not stop and compare notes; but they would not, so they went across with all they had baptized. This was on Saturday, and on Monday many of the natives came back again to their work, but not the elders, so we got many of them together that night to see what we could do with them, and had a quiet talk. Most of them seemed to be sorry they had left us, and said they did not want their names taken from the church books. They stated that they had not been visited for over seven years, although five different missionaries had written them and promised to come, and none of them had done so. Bro. T. W. Smith was one of them, and they sent a boat to Tahiti for him about six hundred and fifty miles. He told them his wife was sick and he could not go, and one Bro. Johnson was sent. They state that Bro. Devore made the same promise, and was within one hundred miles of the place, and a boat was sent; but he claimed the boat was too small, so he would not go; and no one was sent. The same of William Manihi; he had also promised them, but did not go; and also two others. They also raised fifty dollars and sent for some one to come, yet all in vain. Now there are many large sailing ships going and coming to Hao every month, and Mapuhi never charges our ministers anything, and if the American ministers could not visit them, they could send native ministers, while some islands are visited a great deal more than is needed.

I consider that these people have been badly neglected, and they feel grieved and think the church does not care for them. Lots of young men and women that do not belong to the church, that would have belonged had they been visited when they were young and taught, now are grown to young men and women and do not belong to the church, and they do the work no good here, as they have learned to drink and smoke, and various other wrongs. Since we came we have blessed twenty-seven children and baptized twenty-two, nineteen of them children of different ages, and these young people would have been the cream of the church to-day if they had been attended to. Bro. Herman Johnson was the last to visit them, sent there by T. W. Smith, so I have learned since I commenced this letter. Last year he was not laboring, as the church could not give what he required to keep his wife. Now he is able to do much more good than I could, as he talks the language very good, and talks English fairly well.

There have been two marriages; I married one couple in the church. Now the people of Hao say we did not care for them; that we would not have come if the Mormons had not come. They say they will look after them, and they tell us that Joseph is not the prophet and leader, and, "We cannot read your language, and we do not know;" and they as a people feel grieved, and are not pleased that they are slighted, and there are no signs of any of them coming back to the church. I think some of them know or think they have done wrong, but at the present they will not come back. All the branch officers, and the chief of the island, and the police are with those that went from us. I have called what is left together and reorganized them into a branch, and they are in working order. I have formed a Sunday school and have a school for the children twice in the week. I have school or preaching every night in the week, and the Mormons can do no more harm at the present; but this people must be visited from time to time if we ever make anything out of them. And we must not leave them for so long a time in the future.

I cannot do for them as much as I should wish, as I cannot get what I should like before them, not knowing the language; and I do not think that I can learn it. I have tried my best and I am of little use without it. It takes young men to learn it, and they must be married men to come here, for various reasons. One will then have a companion to talk and reason with, and they cheer each other when clouds of darkness come over them, etc., and the hardships that we have to pass through are not understood by the church at home.

I have received no mail since last March and God alone knows when I shall, and I cannot send mail, and hardly ever have anyone that I can talk to. You never hear a sermon or a prayer that you can understand, or a hymn. Sometimes no chair, or table, or bed, but the hard stones to sleep on and no light, no fruit, nor vegetable; no fresh meat; sometimes canned meat; no pies nor cake. Sometimes I feel like looking back and I ask myself, What have I done that I should be banished in this manner? But I remember your last words to me, "Be a man," and I want to be. Those that came before me had their companions with them. There is no place in this world that can be worse than this place for a minister who wants to do right, but I think it is no worse for me than for some one else. I would not care so much if I could get the language and could hear from my family regularly, but I can have neither. Now a man of my age having so much hardships both by land and water, and no one to sympathize with him; and sometimes I think it is time, and labor, and all thrown away or in vain. But I shall try and do what I can and leave the results with my heavenly Father.

I love this work and all that are trying to do right.

Yours in bonds,

WILLIAM NEWTON.

SPRINGERTON, ILL., Nov. 9.

Editors Herald:—The good cause is moving on in this part of the country. It is in much better condition than it has been since I have been fully acquainted with the work. Our much beloved Brother Curtis is the man for this district. The branches, so far as I know, are in good condition. Many persons who have formerly opposed the progress of the church are at this time doing all in their power to aid in its advancement. Our beloved Brother Slover has aided much in this vicinity. Bro. Walker of Wayne county is visiting us at Springerton each month. When he was here two weeks ago he was in fine trim for preaching. His discourses were good. We have a Sunday school in operation in the Saints' church in Springerton, which we think will do much good. I must not forget to mention the visit of Bro. Short. On his way from the Curtis-Moore debate he stopped here and preached for a few nights. All enjoyed his eccentric manner very much.

While we love to see the good work go on we feel sad to learn that some of the elders sometimes show that they possess a jealous spirit. Why is it that some men cannot bear the thought of the brethren thinking that others excel them in point of ability? This spirit is not of the divine Teacher. God knows my heart, I love all the brethren. My desire is that each one may continue to grow in grace unto the perfect day.

Your brother in the Lord,

J. W. STONE.

DOUGLASS, Texas, Nov. 6.

Editors Herald:—I am still doing what I can to advance the gospel of Jesus Christ in the South. I have just closed a meeting seven miles below this place, and baptized four, others near the kingdom. I have found the field white for harvest everywhere I have been since General Conference. The people are perishing for the gospel. I have baptized seventy-two since conference. I have tried to get out into new fields as much as possible and open up new places. While I have had some trying things to contend with, the Lord has blessed me wonderfully. I have been busily engaged preaching all the time for the last six months, I need some rest, and as my busy time is over, I am going to rest for a month or so now.

I am expecting a debate to commence on the 19th inst. at Manchester, Texas, with one J. W. Chism of the Campbellite order to last one week, the claims of each church to be examined. I met this man at Pilot Point, Texas, last October, but he wants to try the fight over again. If I succeed in this debate as well as I did with the one held recently in Arkansas it will pay. I baptized thirty people after the debate in Arkansas and organized a branch of thirty-seven members. What a pity that we have no more elders in Texas and Arkansas. We need a number of working missionaries to devote all their time to the work and who delight in opening up new places. This work is growing everywhere.

In bonds,

J. D. ERWIN.

PLANO, Ill., Nov. 5.

Editors Herald:—I offer a brief report of my summer's labors in the Master's vineyard. I left Plano, Illinois, May 5, for my field of labor, and joined my associate, Elder J. W. Peterson, at Bradtville, Wisconsin. We labored separately for a week; he at Wyalusing, and I at Bradtville. He then joined me at Bradtville, and we continued our meetings there while we were preparing and making seats for our gospel tent. In the meantime I wrote for my wife to join us. Arriving at Bro. William Miller's, we found Elder Peterson had the tent and fixtures all snugly loaded in a lumber wagon. Hastily dispatching our noonday meal, we all (Bro. and Sr. Miller, Elder Peterson, myself and wife, and little Nellie Lee) got aboard and rode eighteen miles further through heat and dust, arriving at Flora Fountain about six o'clock p. m. Eating a hasty supper all hands and the cook joined forces and we set up the gospel tent with our banner afloat and had meeting that evening. This was the 2d of June. We remained there a little over three weeks, preached twenty-five sermons and baptiz'd five, all adults but one.

We then moved a distance of twenty miles and set up the tent in the Hake Settlement, remaining there about three weeks, and celebrated the Fourth of July by baptizing five more, all adults. Our next move was four miles to the village of Annaton, where we remained a little over three weeks. There we had the pleasure of inducting three more into the kingdom of God. We then moved six miles farther to Livingston, a railroad station, and there we held forth our usual three weeks. Although the interest and size of our audiences were all we could expect here, we were not crowned with as great visible success as at each of the other places; but there were quite a number very near the kingdom, whom, we trust, will in the near future enter in at the straight gate.

At the close of our efforts here, force of circumstances compelled us to part with our efficient and beloved associate, Elder J. W. Peterson. However, we were not yet left alone, for our old, genial friend and brother, Henry Southwick, joined us and accompanied us on our next move, which was a long one, a distance of forty miles; but we made it in one day. We selected a lovely spot by the side of the road in the grove belonging to our friend, Mr. John Frank. I assure you, dear Herald readers, that it was a feeling of pleasure to me to have the privilege of rearing the standard of the everlasting gospel right on the old stamping ground where the first meeting was held which tended to what is now known in all the world as the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints—Yellowstone, Lafayette county, Wisconsin. (By the way, I wish some one who is acquainted with the facts would write up a true history of the beginning of the Reorganization, for it has never been done yet.)

After a sojourn of a week, Elder Southwick left us and bled away to other parts, leaving the writer and Sr. Wildermuth to wage the war alone; yet not alone, for truly our heavenly Father was with us, fulfilling his promise that he would go before and prepare the way for his servants, the ministry. We tarried here until I had delivered thirty-four discourses and with increased interest to the very last, evidenced by the eager, earnest exclamation, why can't you stay longer? We inducted one dear soul into the fold of Christ and left a good opening for more preaching. Quite a number of good, noble hearted people there were almost persuaded to obey the gospel. It is indeed gratifying to find that right here where the Reorganization was started, and where many of its founders lived and some of them died, the people seem to be almost devoid of prejudice against our faith.

About the 1st of October teams came and moved us, this time a distance of fifty miles, to the Wilder district, in Rock county, where we again reared our tent and held the first quarterly conference of the Southern Wisconsin district. It was an enjoyable time; the Spirit of the Lord was felt in a marked degree. Elder C. H. Burr and myself continued the meetings about ten days after the close of the conference, and then closed the summer's campaign with the tent. We were tenting four and a half months—one hundred and twenty-seven days. We preached one hundred and forty-one sermons and baptized fifteen, the writer preaching eighty-four of these discourses and baptizing seven of the fifteen. And now having secured comfortable winter quarters for my family in Plano, I shall in a few days go to Pepin county, Wisconsin, and enter into my winter's campaign. In gospel bonds,

ELI M. WILDERMUTH.

Original Articles.

WOMAN.

In all the departments of this life there is a tendency, and it might with propriety be called a fatal failing, in the mind of mankind to run everything he undertakes to correct or ruin into its opposite extreme, whether it be from extremes of right to wrong, or wrong to right. That there has been in all nations and people since sin entered the world a greater or less degree of slavery entailed upon woman, no one can deny, and to a greater or less degree even among those who have been enlightened by the Spirit of God in the several dispensations of gospel light, not excepting the people whom God chose through whom his oracles should come; they also had their seasons of reaction, and their humanity cropped out in the same fatal failing. This failing, however, began its operations in the grand council held before the foundations of the earth were laid, when Lucifer, one of the sons of the morning, whether in the fullness of his desire to see all mankind saved even if it had to be accomplished by the destruction of man's agency, or whether there was a latent and inward ambition lurking in his heart to aspire the chief ruling power, his answer to the call of the Father for a volunteer redeemer is the best interpreter, Give me thine honor and I will go down and save them all.

But if the former feeling was his in the commencement of the discussions had upon that occasion and this question of the agency of man seems to have been one of the chief when Jesus the beloved one said, Father, send me, and thy will be done, the reaction took place in Lucifer's heart, and in his chagrin at the overthrow of his ambitions he became not only the enemy of God, but also took upon himself the task of overthrowing, if possible, all the decisions of that council, and also all the purposes of God in regard to man's salvation, and to destroy them, if possible, through their agency. Thus from the extreme of man's anti-agency to the extreme of man's agency, Satan has striven with all his power to conquer and subject mankind to his will. And to my mind this extreme failing is showing itself in one of its worst forms in what is now termed "the woman's rights question."

In the days when Israel served their God, and he alone was their king, and before they became contaminated with the curse of king-men, the greatest ambition of their women was to be indeed the helpmeets of their husbands, doing their part in making happy homes and raising sons and daughters who should be an honor to their country and their God, and exercising their portion of the presidency of the household to the honor and glory of God. But there came a change in due time, and their women began to think they were playing second fiddle too much, and they began to strive for what they termed their rights, and their position as second in the presidency of the household did not suit them; they demanded equality, and from the reading of their history as defined by the prophets they did not stop there, but strove for and gained the supremacy, so much so that they were one of the principal causes of the Jewish kingdom's overthrow. Read the third chapter of Isaiah, from which I quote a portion:—

For Jerusalem is ruined, and Judah is fallen: because their tongues and their doings have been against the Lord, to provoke the eyes of his glory. The show of their countenance doth witness against them; and doth declare their sin to be even as Sodom, they cannot hide it. Woe unto their souls! for they have rewarded evil unto themselves. . . . Woe unto the wicked! for they shall perish; for the reward of their hands shall be upon them. And as for my people, children are their oppressors, and women rule over them. O my people, they who lead thee cause thee to err, and destroy the way of thy paths.

Read the whole chapter, for it fully pictures their wrongdoings as the cause of their overthrow.

There is a favorite saying among us as a people, "Like causes produce like effects;" and when I think of some of the ideas and practices that have sprung up in the so-called Christian lands since the inauguration of the "woman's rights" theory, I am astounded at the correctness of the maxim and the fast approaching in these times of the picture drawn by the prophet of the condition of the people of Jerusalem and Judah. And now behold the difference between the picture shown of the time when women felt it to be their highest glory to inherit a position second only to a man of God in their own happy household and to raise children to the honor of their house and their God (as see Rachel, the legal wife of Jacob, and Hannah, the mother of Samuel, as samples) and the picture described by the prophet of the women of Judah and now beginning to be repeated in this age by women who crave their "rights," and instead of children being to many of them a heritage of the Lord, they are either looked upon as oppressors, or they are looked upon as a curse, and they are murdered before they are born.

The show of their countenance doth witness against them; and doth declare their sin to be even as Sodom, they cannot hide it. Woe unto their souls! for they have rewarded evil unto themselves.

It may possibly be thought by some on account of that which has gone before that I must certainly be one of those who believe that woman has no rights that a man is bound to respect, but such an idea has no foundation in fact. My mother was a woman, and in my estimation was one among the noblest of her race, a mother in Israel. But I must say that I have been astonished at some of the positions taken by some of my brethren whom I have read after; for if I have read aright, when woman was made, and given to man as an helpmeet she was placed upon an absolute equal footing with man, and there were no powers given to man that she was not an equal inheritor of. A late writer, however, has placed the matter in a clearer light when he says:—

And God is teaching mankind that woman is man's equal in all that is good, virtuous, lovely, and pure. All through the Scriptures the Lord recognizes the wife in her proper place as being coequal with man.

He also quotes 1 Corinthians 11:3:—

The head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God.

This and several other good things are quoted, but after awhile the brother mars the subject just because of two little words; namely, "Honor" and "Obey." I do not see anything very extraordinary in them, especially when I take into consideration two of the passages quoted by the brother,

Let the husband render unto the wife due benevolence; and likewise also the wife unto the husband.—1 Cor. 7:3.

What does this word "benevolence" signify? I find that it means disposition to do good, "kindness;" and its partner, the word "benevolent," signifies "kind," "having good will," which in my estimation means to "honor,"—nothing very bad about that word when properly applied, for it binds the man as much as the woman. But the other objectionable word is what cuts, "obey." So far as I am concerned I see nothing in it but what I am subjected to myself, the only difference being that I am subjected, not to the woman, but to Christ; and if I do not treat the woman justly, I am held accountable to my superior. Let us examine the second quotation:—

The head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God.—1 Cor. 11:3.

What does this imply? I find that the word "head" means, "principal person," "one to whom the rest are subordinate;" also, "to lead," "to influence," "to direct," "to govern." I find it also means, "to fit anything with a head." I have sometimes heard the expression used by people that they were going to "put a head on him." I suppose if a woman, she was going to put a head on her husband, and the probabilities are or might be, that he needed one.

But we will bring ourselves down now to the question at issue, and we will commence with the chief Head, God, notwithstanding he and Christ are one in purpose and design, yet each in his own place:—

The head of Christ is God.

That is, God leads, influences, directs, and governs Christ; and notwithstanding all power both in heaven and in earth was given by the Father to the Son, the Son came to earth not to do his own will, but the will of him that sent him; and all that he did do, is doing, and will do, is done for the honor and glory of the Father; and all that is done, and will be done, is done in obedience to the Father's will:—

For he [Christ] must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy, death, shall be destroyed. For he saith, When it is manifest that he hath put all things under his feet, and that all things are put under, he is excepted of the Father who did put all things under him. And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all.—1 Cor. 15:25-28.

Afterward cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the father.—Verse 24.

Thus we see that from the beginning to the end Jesus did and will carry out to his Head all the honor and obedience embodied in the sentence, "Thy will be done."

Next,—

The head of the man is Christ.

This expression of the Apostle Paul was directed to a body of people who were sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be Saints, and therefore if they were in Christ and he was their head, they were in him as he was in the Father, and of course under the same obligations to be led, influenced, directed, and governed by their head as Christ was under the leadership of God his head, and to be subject to Christ's will as he was subject to his Father's will, and to do all for the honor and glory of Christ as he did all for the honor and glory of the Father, and man find in his own case no fault with those terrible words, "honor" and "obey."

And now we come to the great bugbear, where woman is called upon to perform the same kind of duties to her husband. The best and only plan she can adopt that I know of in order to escape these requirements is, not to become entangled with a husband, and thus go through the world headless, and become a law unto herself, for the word is, "The head of the woman is the man;" that is, she must become subjected to his lead, influence, direction, and government, just as he becomes subject to Christ, and Christ to God. If it does not embody all that, then there is no sense or meaning in the quotation; and of course it would amount to nothing. But for my part I do not recognize it in that manner, but according to the rule, and if this makes me equal to a Russian emperor, I cannot help it.

But what, seriously, is the matter with these words, "honor" and "obey?" Supposing they had chanced to have been incorporated in the words of our marriage ceremony, would they have been more binding than they are now, seeing that we are commanded to take the Scriptures for our rule of faith and practice? Christ has to obey. Man has to obey, each under his proper head, or suffer the consequences; and is it any worse for a woman to do so under her proper head? I am not writing this to the world, because they have gone and will go in their own way, in spite of all I may say or do; but I am writing to those for whom Christ prayed, for those which the Father has given him out of the world to be witnesses of him in this the dispensation of the fullness of times, and for all them who shall believe on him through their words; for I believe that the same sentiments expressed by him eighteen hundred years ago for that people are the sentiments of his heart for his people to-day, when he has restored his truth to earth again; and if we are what we profess to be, "sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be Saints," this is written for the benefit of all such; and if the husbands are living according to the leadership and government of their Head, striving to obey the injunction and invitation from him to "come up higher" toward that perfection attained by him, the wives need have no fears in following the leadership of their heads. The only trouble that can possibly arise is in a neglect of the duties imposed upon each.

May we each, whether man or woman, ever strive to honor God by honoring those whom he has placed to be head over us, and all will be well. And may God bless woman in all her efforts for good.

I am, your brother,

WILLIAM HAWKINS.

VORIS, Missouri, November 8.

THE RESURRECTION.

FROM a selected article published in the Saints' Herald for June 27, 1894, I infer that some, and probably many, believe that the doctrine of the resurrection from the dead as preached by Jesus Christ was a new doctrine, as being a part of what is there spoken of as the new revelation. If any do so believe, they are quite mistaken, for, although life and immortality were brought to light by the gospel, the gospel plan itself, of which the resurrection was a cardinal principle, was not new. There were probably some features of it more perfectly developed by Jesus Christ, but the resurrection from the dead was not one of them.

What really was novel and startling in Jesus' proclamation to the people was, "I am the resurrection and the life;" and, "No man cometh unto the Father but by me;" as though he had said in so many words, This gospel of the kingdom which I preach unto you is not of my devising; the Father who sent me into the world gave me commandment "what I should say and what I should speak;" and "my doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me."

It was devised in heaven, and made known to mankind in the beginning; for God is no respecter of persons, so that it might be known to all the children, in all ages and among all people; that whosoever accepts and obeys the truth and works righteousness, is accepted of God.

But all this teaching of righteousness by the ancients points to and requires a Messiah to vitalize it. It calls for a Redeemer to redeem mankind from the power of death; therefore, the all-important question was, "Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?" "Art thou the Christ?" He answered those questions affirmatively when he said, "I am the resurrection and the life," which means that the expectation and desire of mankind from the beginning until now concerning a Messiah culminated in him. This expectation included, indeed was inseparable from, the resurrection of the dead.

The idea of the resurrection, therefore, was common among the people before Jesus was born, as is proved by the fact that openly expressed unbelief in it was peculiar to the Sadducees. And hundreds of years before Jesus was born in the flesh it was associated with the Messianic idea by Job. Now Job, presumably, was not of Hebrew stock. He was one of those wise men of the East, familiar with its learning and with the ideas then prevailing throughout those eastern countries, in regard to astronomy and other subjects; his utterances therefore in reference to the Redeemer and the resurrection may rightly be regarded as important, as expressing not only his own convictions and belief, but also the belief of many others of that time. He says in the nineteenth chapter:—

Oh that my words were now written! oh that they were printed in a book! that they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock for ever! For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God; whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another.

This statement and declaration of Job associates the hope of the resurrection with a promised Redeemer. And, so does Martha.

Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again. Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day. Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. . . . Believest thou this? She saith unto him, Yea, Lord: I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world.

So, then, the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ was required, not only to fulfill, but to vitalize the promise of God made unto the children of men from the beginning of time in regard to their redemption from sin and death.

Peter, in the third chapter of Acts, says:—

But those things which God before had shewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled. . . . And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.

That restitution of all things could not leave out the body, and be all things that was lost; for it was the separation of soul and body that constituted the punishment for Adam's transgression, and was called death; and until they are reunited it can never be truthfully said that there has been a complete restitution of all things which God had promised by the mouth of all his prophets since the world began.

Some people appear to think that that language of Peter's referred only to the Jewish or Hebrew prophets, but there were prophets long before the Hebrews existed as a nation. There was Enoch, who walked with God several hundred years, and was then exempted from the death penalty and God took him to himself; but while he lived on earth he taught men the true worship of God. Then there was Noah, a preacher of righteousness and that meant the hope of redemption from sin and death through the world's Redeemer. The effect of these teachings was that these traditions about the Savior of mankind and the inseparable resurrection from the dead, went down from generation to generation among all the kindreds of the earth with more or less distinctness; and I am of the opinion that human sacrifices, revolting and brutal as they appear to us, were due more to overzeal to anticipate the great atoning sacrifice of the Son of God, than to sheer brutality. But, be that as it may, Abraham, who went out from the land of Chaldea, showed his faith and hope in the resurrection when he offered Isaac upon the altar, believing as he must have done, that God was able to raise Isaac from the dead to fulfill the promises.

With these testimonies before us, what should be the reply to such statements as the following?

But none of these traditions, when carefully investigated, give any ground for believing that any part of the ancient world really grasped the idea of the resurrection of the body.

And this?

We may see this by the manner in which the philosophers at Athens received Paul's unfolding of his new doctrine.

Was it a new doctrine? No, it was not. But go now and present it to our great scientific men and our philosophers, would they show it any more respect? And would that be sufficient proof that nobody of our time really grasped the idea? Anyhow, when Paul preached the doctrine on Mars' Hill, it was the same then as it always is with a promiscuous crowd,—some believed and some did not; and so it proves nothing. But when we remember that there were quite large churches built up at Corinth, at Ephesus, in Thessalonica, and throughout Macedonia, at Rome, and in other Pagan gentile countries, it shows plainly enough that they had no difficulty in grasping the idea. And although their forefathers had turned away from the worship of the true and living God, who to them had become "the unknown God," and multiplied unto themselves gods innumerable, and their poets had in the wildness of their imagination peopled their elysian fields, like many Christian teachers do their heaven, with disembodied spirits, thus ignoring the resurrection; yet the way these gentile nations received the gospel, as preached by the apostles, whose taproot was the resurrection from the dead, shows that there must have been then, and doubtless has been all through the ages, a strong undercurrent of belief in the doctrine. As for the Egyptians, scarcely any writer attempts to account for the care they bestowed in embalming and otherwise at great labor and expense caring for and preserving the bodies of their dead from natural decay or any possible molestation, except by crediting them with a faith and hope which looked to a final resurrection of the body for its consummation.

The doctrine of transmigration of the soul when carried to the ultimate extreme of annihilation, or individual extinction as the final goal, most certainly blots out the hope of the resurrection. But, as I understand it, neither the Persians, the Egyptians, nor the Hebrews believed in that kind of transmigration. All their systems contemplated some kind of individual immortality for the righteous. And it was only the wicked, like the clay in the hands of the potter, which, failing to fulfill the design of the potter and being broken upon the wheel, had to be thrown back upon the lump and be worked over again.

There was also a belief among the people of the East that the spirit when separated from the body by death remained in the vicinity of the body to watch over it, and to be ready for the reunion at the resurrection; so the witch of Endor went to where Samuel's body lay to commune with his spirit.

In regard to the reasonableness of the resurrection of the dead; that is another matter. It is a doctrine which cannot be proved to be true because of its agreement with our reason. Our reason at first seems inclined to be distrustful of it, because we know that the human body dies and is decomposed, and in the process of decomposition those particles of matter which when united made it a human body are disunited and distributed so as to form parts of other bodies, animal or vegetable, and there is nowhere found a place where this changing and redistribution stops. How, then, can we in reason expect these same bodies to ever again clothe our spirits? Therefore, regarding it thus, we may say truly that to merely human reason the resurrection of the dead is not comprehensible; "for no man knoweth the things of God, but by the Spirit of God," and this is a spiritual law of life in opposition to the natural law of death; but the exact point, where eternal life intercepts and overcomes death, and proclaims the promised restitution, can only be known by revelation.

It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption. . . .

It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body.

I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.

We walk therefore by faith and not by sight.

Now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face.

We are not justified in doubting because everything is not revealed in perfect clearness. The hows, and the whys, and the wherefores, even concerning the common things of this life, are very imperfectly understood. Take, for instance, a small cutting of potato, plant it in the ground, and in a few weeks' time you can dig up from that plant several whole potatoes with the perfect form of the original set; can everybody explain that? Plant one grain of wheat in the ground, it will send up a stalk, and on that stalk a head, with probably one hundred grains of wheat on it; can everybody tell how that comes? Does it not suggest all possibilities in regard to the resurrection? It only needs the key, and anyone who has it can unlock the door. There are men, many men, in this and other lands, who are now and have been for many years working their bodies and racking their brains to the utmost of their physical and mental powers, and so far in a vain and fruitless effort, to find out perpetual motion. Now, why is it yet undiscovered? Not because it is necessarily impossible. The earth and all things thereon are constantly in motion. It is rest and not motion that is impossible. All rest is only comparative, and not real. Not only the earth, but all the planetary bodies; in truth, the universe, is in perpetual motion; and the man who finds out the law by which this ceaseless motion is kept up, will find the key to perpetual motion.

Again; we hear men say, "We don't want a religion which calls for a suspension of the laws of nature to sustain it; we want our religion to be in harmony with those laws." At the same time there are many educated men at work, and many others encouraging them to work for success, in seeming defiance of the law of gravitation, in accomplishing aerial navigation. And yet, although it does seem contrary to the law of weight or gravity, when man learns and understands the law by which the earth and all the heavenly bodies hang out in space upon nothing and by which they move through space with wonderful speed, exactness, and precision, then he will achieve aerial navigation; but until he does gain that knowledge, he is denied the good which that knowledge would bring.

Does it show superior wisdom or foolishness for men to sneer at the gospel of Jesus Christ because it not only promises the resurrection of the dead, but also promises, as a necessary preliminary part of it and as a voucher for its final and complete fulfillment, the power over all manner of sickness, disease, and bodily infirmities, and the harmful powers of nature? These diseases are neither more nor less than death's skirmishers. He throws them out to begin the work of destruction, and it is the imperative demand on him who came on earth to open up to man the way to life and immortality that he should give his servants power to begin the battle for eternal life by driving in death's skirmish line. "O, but," they say, "to make the deaf to hear, the lame to walk, the dumb to speak, the blind to see, to raise the dead,—all does violence to the laws of nature, and therefore cannot be true."

My opinion is that there is a great deal of talk—and most of it idle talk, too, and talk that has but little sound wisdom in it—about doing violence to the laws of nature. You might as well say that making ice by any other process than by the usual process of nature is doing violence to that law of nature, as to say that Jesus in making wine out of water did violence to any law of nature. It consisted only in knowing a more excellent and expeditious way. Did the laws of nature originate themselves, or had they a Creator? Is the law which was made greater than he who made it? I believe this may be stated as truth: that all laws of human or divine creation depend for their efficacy and continuance upon the power which is behind them; and that no law has so much fixedness or permanence that it cannot be changed or superseded by the assertion of a greater power. Laws that have filled the object for which they were created have to be changed, or adapted to other conditions. The earth on which we dwell, geologists tell us, has during its existence undergone very many changes and reformations. Doubtless what we call the creation was one of these new births, or reformations. And this working goes on without end, and those conditions which had prevailed through thousands of years, and had to all appearance become settled conditions—laws of nature, had in turn to yield to a mightier power, a higher law, which is eternally at work by natural and spiritual agencies, leavening the earth and all things pertaining to it, as we hope and verily believe, up towards perfection. For most surely the Spirit of God by which he garnished the heavens and moved upon the face of the waters, controlling and directing them to their appointed destination, which is in and through all things, the light and the life of all things, is so working in conjunction with matter, and guiding and directing all these changes, preparing and ripening them for a reconstruction upon a spiritual basis. When that day comes, there shall be a new heaven and a new earth,

For all old things shall pass away, and all things shall become new. And he shall send Jesus Christ . . . which before was preached unto you: whom the heavens must receive until the times of the restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.

CHARLES J. CLARK.

July 6, 1894.

THE ANCIENT NAME OF EGYPT.

The most ancient name of Egypt presented to us, according to the Evangelist, is Mi is-ri, or Misr, if we omit the last two i's. The name occurs in the first form in the syllabic (arrow-head) writing of Tablet five of the Tell Amarna letters, engraved on clay bricks in the fifteenth century, B. C., and now preserved in the British Museum.

The earliest books of the Bible date from the following century, the fourteenth B. C., the era of Moses, and Egypt is in them called M'sr. At that period the country was divided into Lower and Upper Egypt (Misr-aim, or the Two Misrs), signified by the double crown of the monuments of those monarchs who ruled both districts. Our English version of the Bible refers to this duality in verse eleven of the fiftieth chapter of Genesis. The ancient name of Egypt survives to-day in the modern Arabic phrase for the country, Belud-Misr, or Egypt land, belud signifying Earth.

Naval officers of the Bering Sea patrol report the regulations imposed by the Paris Arbitration Council are of little avail, and unless better protection is afforded the seals will be exterminated within five years.

If mortals would always stop long enough to think before they speak what a quiet world this would be.

Original Poetry.

A PRAYER.

Blessed Savior, let thy Spirit
Fill my anxious soul;
Help me struggling in my weakness,
Firm on thee to hold.
Worldly snares do often hinder
Me thy strength receive;
Still thy promise I rely on,
Look to thee and live.

In this mundane sphere of sorrow,
Trials hard oppress;
But my heart doth sing thy praises,
Filled with tenderness.
I have found heaven's greatest treasure—
Life eternal, joy;
And I want to do thy bidding,
Seek thy help and try.

O, how often do I stumble
From the narrow way!
Yet thy blessings thou dost shower
In abundance every day.
Thou dost teach me, not by preaching,
Not by eloquence alone;
But by holy, sweet example
Thou dost urge me on.

In thy service, O, my Father,
I most joys have known;
And I fear to live without thee;
Leave me not alone.
Earthly pleasures have no value
In the saintly breast;
Yet their dangers often threaten
Thy weak son to crush.

I desire then—hear me, Father—
To be used by thee;
Make me valiant in thy kingdom,
Setting captives free.
Here's my heart, my soul, my talents;
Take them, blessed Lord,
And O use them in thy service
Batling with the world.

J. D. HOWELL.

LONDON, England.

Conference Minutes.

CHATHAM.

Fall conference convened with the Petrolea branch October 6-8, 1894; J. H. Lake president, G. O. Green assistant; S. Brown secretary, Geo. McFadden assistant. Branch reports: Lindsley 42; 1 removed. Wallaceburg 32; 2 baptized. Ridgetown 34; no change. Wabash 28; no change. Battlehill 28; no change. Blenheim 51. Tilbury 44; 2 baptized. Petrolea; 5 baptized, 2 received. Buxton; 4 received. J. H. Tyrrell, Bishop's agent, reported. Receipts with balance $196 81; expenditures $183 60; balance on hand $13 21. Audited and found correct. Ministry reporting: Elders G. Green baptized 1, S. Brown baptized 4, E. DeLong baptized 3, A. Leverton baptized 8, L. Annett, B. Blackmore, J. Dent, Sr., B. St. John, G. Hampshire, J. H. Tyrrell, and R. Coburn. The motion passed at Wallaceburg in regard to members leaving the district in debt was reconsidered, and the following passed instead of it: Resolved that no member be granted a letter of removal when it is known they have debts unsettled unless agreement is effected by all parties concerned. The district secretary was granted $3.11 for expenses. The committee to whom some questions were referred reported as follows: First. From the law of the church we find that a secretary or clerk of a branch who has been regularly chosen by vote of the branch is with the elder, priest or priests, teacher or teachers, deacon or deacons, an officer of the branch and has the right to preside. We are of the opinion that due and proper courtesy should be shown priesthood when present; nevertheless a secretary or clerk has the right to preside in the absence of the other officers. Second. We are of the opinion that any man of the priesthood having a legal right to bless the emblems, or the sacrament, has a right to administer it to himself. Having heard a statement from the Bishop's agent, we beg leave to recommend that great care be had in releasing Bishop's agents or any other officers without sufficient cause, as this in the past has been the means of discouragement. We further feel to recommend that all General Conference missionaries should be released from all district work as far as possible, this we feel is in keeping with the law and Spirit. R. C. Evans, Arthur Leverton, George Green, and George Hampshire, committee. George Green was sustained as president, R. Coburn vice president, James H. Tyrrell Bishop's agent, and Richard Coburn secretary of the district. On Sunday the Petrolea church was dedicated. Preaching by Elders J. H. Lake, R. E. Grant, R. C. Evans, and Arthur Leverton. Adjourned subject to call of president.

ALABAMA.

Conference convened at Pleasant Hill, Butler county, Alabama, October 13, 1894, at ten a. m. Elder Heman C. Smith was chosen to preside, L. G. Parker secretary. Branch reports: Pleasant Hill 121, loss 3; Lone Star 105, gain 8. Elders reporting: G. T. Chute, J. G. Vickery, W. J. Booker, M. K. Sharp baptized 14, J. Reader baptized 9. Bishop's agent reported: On hand last report $52; received since $46.75; paid out $35; on hand $63.75. The committee appointed at the last conference to investigate the cases of members that had united with other churches reported and committee discharged. The recommendation of James Harper and James Miller for ordination to the office of priest was referred to president of district. By resolution a committee of three was appointed composed of W. J. Booker, M. K. Harp, and Lorenzo Vickery to solicit aid to procure a tent for missionary work, to be used in the Alabama, Florida, and Mobile districts. W. J. Booker was elected president of the district, L. G. Parker secretary. General authorities of the church sustained. Geo. O. Sellers sustained as Bishop's agent. Preaching by Elders M. M. Turpen, Heman C. Smith, and G. T. Chute. Adjourned to meet with Pleasant Hill branch, Alabama, Saturday before the full moon in March. Congregation large and attentive.

WESTERN MAINE.

Conference convened at West Ellsworth, September 15, 1894, at three p. m.; W. G. Pert chosen to preside, S. G. Cunningham clerk pro tem. Officials reporting: Elders J. C. Foss baptized 15, U. W. Greene, G. W. Eaton, O. C. Eaton, W. G. Pert; Priests C. E. Knowlton, S. G. Cunningham, H. R. Huntley; Teachers A. Hutchinson, J. E. Eaton; Deacon H. E. Saunders. Branches reporting, West Surry, Bray's Mountain, Green's Landing, and Dixfield Center. Bishop's agent's report read, referred to an auditing committee, and found correct: On hand last report $8.39; received $99.65; paid out $115.62; overpaid $7.58. The committee on the storehouse question was sustained until next conference. In the case of Bro. Charles Gray, it was moved to forgive Bro. Gray and sustain him as a member of the church. Ordered that W. W. Blanchard and E. E. Holman of the Dixfield branch be ordained elders. Voted that Brn. U. W. Greene and J. C. Foss be chosen a committee to confer with Eastern Maine on a Maine reunion. W. G. Pert was chosen to raise money to liquidate the indebtedness of the reunion. S. G. Cunningham and E. H. Pert were chosen a committee to visit the Brooksville branch and ascertain the condition of it and see if it would be the minds of the remaining members to disorganize the branch; and report to next conference. W. G. Pert was sustained district president for one year. The time and place of next conference was left with district president. Preaching by Elders G. W. Eaton, W. G. Pert, J. C. Foss, and U. W. Greene. A vote of thanks was extended to the Saints and friends of West Ellsworth for their hospitality.

NORTHEASTERN KANSAS.

Conference convened at Netawaka, October 13, at ten a. m.; Henry Green presiding, James Baillie clerk. Branch reports: Fanning 55, gain 7; Netawaka 57, loss 2; Centralia 18, no change; Atchison 52, gain 6; Baker 11, no change; Scranton not reported. Ministry reporting: Elders J. T. Davis baptized 2, J. Arthur Davis baptized 1, J. Alfred Davis baptized 3, W. Gurwell baptized 4, D. Williams, H. Parker, J. Buckley, D. Munns, R. L. Ware, W. Hopkins, H. Green, G. George, C. E. Guinand, J. B. Jarvis; Priests J. W. Hudgins, W. Thatcher, J. Cairns; Teachers W. Oxendale, J. Wise; Deacons J. Baillie, J. Patterson, J. W. Barnes. A vote of thanks to J. Baillie for his services rendered as clerk. Daniel Munns was elected clerk of district. The general and district authorities were sustained. Adjourned to meet at Netawaka, February 9.

MONTANA.

Conference convened at Deer Lodge October 19, at ten a. m. Branch reports: Victor 22; 10 baptized. Deer Lodge, and Anaconda not reported. Gallatin, a partial verbal report given. Ministry reporting: Elders R. J. Anthony, J. H. Wells, J. E. Reese, A. Christofferson, G. Reese, R. J. Jenkins; Priests A. Hansen, J. Eliason. Bishop's agent's report: On hand at last report $7.50; on hand at present $7.50. Report approved. J. E. Reese, Bishop's agent. Resolved that we sustain the authorities of the church; R. J. Anthony as president of the mission, and all his coworkers; J. E. Reese as district president and Bishop's agent; G. Reese as secretary. One was baptized. Preaching by Elders Gomer Reese and R. J. Anthony. Adjourned subject to the call of president and secretary.

Miscellaneous Department.

OHIO REUNION.

Editors Saints' Herald:—A reunion of the above district was held at Vale's Mills, Ohio, beginning October 26. Although at the beginning the weather was somewhat unfavorable, yet quite a number of Saints residing throughout the district were present. G. T. Griffiths was chosen chairman, G. H. Hilliard assistant, H. E. Moler secretary, Carrie Barstow assistant; H. E. Moler chorister; James Barber, Homer Bowen, and Sidney McLaughlin ushers.

We will attempt to give a brief report of the meeting with a synopsis of some of the sermons preached.

Friday, October 26, was devoted to prayer and testimony meetings and to organization. At seven p. m., preaching by G. H. Godbey; text, 2 Corinthians 7: 10: "For godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of." "Repentance" was the subject. The speaker said: Repentance is one of the principles of the perfect law which converts the soul. There is great division among the people regarding the meaning of repentance. When I was a boy I often inquired, What is repentance? And no one could satisfy me. Mourning at the anxious seat was not the kind of repentance referred to in our text. On the day of Pentecost, three thousand souls were added to the church in one day; how long did they have to mourn for the forgiveness of their sins? Not for days and weeks, but their sins were forgiven the same day. Repentance is godly sorrow for sin. Then we must forsake our sins. Next comes the law of retribution or restoration. Example: Zaccheus the publican was willing to "restore fourfold." If you rob your neighbor of one cent and can restore it and will not, it will keep you out of the kingdom of God. If I tell a story on you that injures your character, God will not forgive me till I make it right. If we are not able to restore, or repair the wrongs we may have done, and have a desire so to do, then God will take the will for the act; we are excused. Prodigal son: he could not restore, but he showed a desire to do so. "Goodness of God leads men to repentance." We cannot think of God's goodness without being sorry for our sins.

Saturday, Oct. 27.—Saints met at 10:30 a. m. for social meeting. Quite a number participated in the services; the good Spirit was present.

At 2:30 p. m. G. T. Griffiths spoke to the Saints from 2 Peter 1: 1-8. The speaker said he would not confine his remarks to any particular subject, but would give a general gospel chat. We are to "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints." What is faith? One says, "belief." It is that, and more; "the devils believe." It means to keep or do all of God's commands. God will hold us responsible for how we think, talk, and act. Praying with faith does not require many, or eloquent words, but to ask as if we knew that God had power to give, and would give. We cannot always have what we ask for; God knows what is best for us, and if we do not get what we ask for we should not go off and pout like some children do. We ask the Lord for things, sometimes, that we are not in a condition to receive; and if God would bestow them they would prove to our hurt. Don't put down your stake and ask the Lord to pull it up; you will be disappointed, and have to pull the stake yourself every time. Add to your faith virtue; virtue is to shun everything that would lead us to do evil. Our minds must be pure; unholy thoughts and desires will lead men to do unholy things. To be virtuous, we must be courageous. We have natural inclinations; natural for some to lie; for some to fight, etc.; but where our inclinations lead us to do wrong, we must rectify them. Add to our virtue knowledge. I find many Saints that lack in this regard, and some of the officers lack also. Some want to be excused from talking about religion, yet they can tell all about the latest novels out. Saints should read "all good books." Take the Herald and Autumn Leaves; the Ensign, too, if you can afford it. Some brethren take a number of county newspapers, and yet cannot afford to take the Herald, they say, because it is too high. Temperance: We should be temperate in all things; in thoughts; in habits; in eating, and drinking, etc.

At seven p. m., preaching by G. H. Hilliard; text, 1 John 3: 1-3: "Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." The speaker showed that it was possible for us to become like Christ; he was like other men, and as a man received no more power from God than other men can receive. To say otherwise would make God a respecter of persons. We can receive the same power that Christ received, if we place ourselves in a proper condition. The reason that people are living so far from God is because they prefer to do so. They love the world, and the things of the world, and therefore live far beneath their privileges. A dispensation of the gospel is committed unto this church; this may seem strong, but it is our claim and we have no disposition to cover it up. God looks after all things; arrays the lilies of the fields; feeds the sparrows; and the hairs of our head are numbered by him. God does all these things and provides us with what we need; now what do we in return? There is nothing that can be carried on without means. We always have the poor, the minister and his family to be looked after. There is more required than to simply go to meeting when we feel like it, or when the preacher is there; the temporal part of the work must be looked after. Ministers go forth without hire, and there are good reasons why they should thus go. One reason is, God has promised to care for them. They would not give him a chance, if they waited to get their pockets full of money before they went out. Another is, it gives the people a chance to support them, and assist in God's work and thus obtain a reward. They will be among them to whom the Savior will say, "Ye have fed," "clothed," and "visited me." Reward is given for works. The Lord requires us to keep the whole law. We cannot comply with all at once, but we should progress and "add to our faith." This temporal law is called the law of tithing—tithes means one tenth. The poor must be cared for. If you want to find the poor, just go to the elder's family; our ministers are all poor. Here the speaker referred to his own experience before he heard the gospel; how he loved strong drink and tobacco, but laid all aside after he obeyed the gospel and read the Word of Wisdom. He further said: How elders can teach the people to "live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God," and not keep the Word of Wisdom (for it is God's word) is more than I can understand. Abraham paid tithes; so did Jacob. It existed before the law of Moses. It was continued under the law as a means for caring for the poor and the ministry. It must be done systematically. No lack among the people of God. When Israel gathered manna, all were equal; he that gathered much had no more than he needed; he that gathered little did not lack. Now some object to paying tithes on goods accumulated while sinners. But what does God do for you? He goes back and pardons all the sins you have ever committed. Should you not be willing to go back as far as God does?

October 28.—At 10:30 a. m. G. T. Griffiths discoursed upon the subject of baptism. We were not present in time to get a synopsis of the sermon, but we learned that the mode, design, and authority were treated upon, and handled in an able manner.

At 2:30 p. m., preaching by G. H. Hilliard; text, Matthew 24: 14. Subject, Restoration of the gospel. He examined the claims of the Roman Church to be the church of Christ. Protestants claim that she is the "Mother of Harlots," etc. In making claims that any church is a continuation of the apostolic church, they should be able to give reasons for so doing. Claims are made that the church was set up on the day of Pentecost in fulfillment of Daniel 2: 44. But we find that many changes have been wrought. Catholics admit that baptism was performed by immersion in the early church, but that they had authority to change it; and they did change it. We read in Isaiah twenty-fourth chapter about a time when the people would transgress the law, change the ordinance, and break the everlasting covenant. The Church of Christ was organized with apostles, prophets, pastors, teachers, and deacons, with helps, governments, diversities of tongues, etc. What are the chief officers of the Catholic Church? Answer: Pope, Cardinals, and Archbishops; and you cannot find one of them mentioned in the Bible. Time was to come when men would make their own teachers. They have a boy no account for anything else, and they educate him, in some particular theology, for the ministry; God has had nothing to do with it. Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal, and others are offshoots from the Catholic Church. No man has a right, because there is nothing that suits him, to organize a church and call it God's church. Many of these have a "form of godliness" (there is a difference between "a form" and the form) but deny the power. What is the power? The blessings and gifts of the Holy Spirit. Because men see there has been a change, they think God will accept what they have invented, as a church. This is all a mistake. Isaiah 40: 1-5: "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God," etc., speaking of the restoration of Jerusalem and the display of God's hand in a wondrous way, did not have its fulfillment at Christ's first coming; for verse five says that "all flesh shall see it together." All flesh did not see the work performed at Christ's first coming. This proclamation was to be made in the last days. It is an absolute inconsistency for Protestants to claim authority unless they get it direct from God. If Catholics have authority, then Protestants are apostles. If Catholics had no authority, then Protestants could not get any from them. Message to be given to a young man: Zechariah 2: 4. Messenger to be sent: Malachi 3: 1-3; 4: 5, 6. Elias to come and restore all things: Matthew 17: 11. On May 15, 1829, the heavens were opened and Elias came down and ordained two men to the Aaronic priesthood, thus restoring authority that had not been among men for ages. We need not be deceived; false prophets will not tell you that you "shall know," as Jesus did. They promise the Holy Spirit, but tell you that no knowledge will be given. The first elders of this church taught that God's judgments would come upon the earth—that Lebanon should be restored. This is all being fulfilled, and yet people say, "Show us a sign." The church is coming out of the wilderness. The "gates of hell" cannot prevail against this thing; never did, nor never will.

At seven p. m. preaching by H. R. Harder, from Hebrews 13:8; Matthew 27:22. This speaker continued the subject of baptism, spoken on by Bro. Griffiths in the morning, and spoke on the laying on of hands. He showed that immersion was the mode; that Jesus did baptize. He said that some wanted to get the Holy Spirit before baptism. He referred to the Samaritans, Acts eighth chapter to show that baptism comes first. Apostles were sent out to preach the gospel; and if they went down to Samaria and taught and practiced a doctrine that Jesus never commanded them, they themselves were in a state of apostasy. The Holy Ghost could not be bought for money. If it could be bought for money to-day the church would soon become rich. If Simon's money perished with him, so with the money of every other man who attempts to buy the gift of God. Case of Saul; did he receive the Holy Spirit before baptism? He was baptized to "wash away his sins," therefore if his sins were not remitted, he could not receive the Holy Ghost. Some who have been immersed want to join the church and have hands laid on them for the reception of the Holy Spirit. But there is need of being baptized by authority. Disciples at Ephesus had to be rebaptized before they got the Holy Spirit. They had been baptized by some one that God did not send. Some claim the "Bible and the Bible alone." We say let them practice its teachings, and if they do not receive anything it will be because they are not right before God.

October 29—A ten a. m. two ladies were baptized by Bro. Griffiths. Saints' meeting at 10:30 a. m. The two candidates were confirmed, and two children blessed during meeting. Bro. U. M. Goodrich was called and ordained to the office of priest. The remainder of the time was devoted to prayer and testimony.

At seven p. m. preaching by James Moler. He read I Corinthians 15:35. Subject, Resurrection. The Bible teaches a resurrection of all men. Some deny this and say that only a part of mankind will be resurrected. Death came by disobedience, and affects all men; so by the obedience of Christ all are promised a resurrection. Some think it is too much of a miracle to claim that those mortal bodies will be resurrected; but it will be no more of a miracle than was the creation of man. In the beginning man had the privilege of partaking of the tree of life and living forever. But he partook of the forbidden fruit, and death was the result. Christ came to redeem mankind. He was veiled in flesh—both God and man in Christ. He was not the son of Joseph; had he been, he would have been wholly mortal, and would have been under the penalty of death himself; hence could not have redeemed man. The manner of the resurrection as taught by John 19:23-27; Isaiah 26:19; Ezekiel 37 and Philippians 3:21 is a literal coming forth of the body. One resurrection is already past. The Saints arose at Christ's resurrection. (Matthew 27:51-53.) There are two yet in the future—just and unjust. The resurrection is unconditional. Those who obey the gospel and live right will come forth at the resurrection of the just. They will reign a thousand years on the earth untempted by Satan. None but the pure in heart shall see God.

Tuesday, October 30.—Saints' meeting held at 10:30 a. m.

At four p. m. John Petty was baptized by James Moler. He was formerly a member of the Disciple Church.

As we have already occupied considerable space, we will not epitomize further. Suffice to say that the sermons were all excellent and directed of the Holy Spirit. The social meetings, too, were not a whit behind the preaching in life and spirituality. Social meetings continued throughout the week at 10:30 a. m. Preaching every night. Most of the Saints left for their homes on Tuesday and Wednesday. The following are the names of the ministry present: G. H. Hilliard, G. T. Griffiths, James Moler, Thomas Matthews, J. L. Goodrich, H. R. Harder, H. E. Moler, G. H. Godbey, J. W. Moore, E. Miller, A. B. Erwin, and S. J. Jeffers.

A profitable and enjoyable time was had, and the Saints returned home feeling that they had been wonderfully blessed and encouraged spiritually.

Bro. H. R. Harder remained over Sunday, November 4, and held services. The report of sermons as we have given them is very brief,—a mere outline,—yet we hope they may prove interesting to the reader.

H. E. MOLER, Sec.

PASTORAL.

To the Saints of New Mexico, Greeting:—I am glad to inform you that arrangements have been made for Elder Henry C. Smith to labor in your Territory the present winter. You will find in Elder Smith a true servant of the Master, and a man worthy your confidence and also any assistance you may be able and willing to render him in his labor.

I also hereby appoint him in charge of New Mexico as a "Field of Labor." Any advice or counsel needed may be sought of him, and any matters of adjustment properly coming before the president of the mission may be referred to him. Until otherwise directed by him you can address him at Lamoni, Iowa. Praying that the blessings of God may attend the prosecution of the work in your midst, I am, in bonds, your coworker,

HEMAN C. SMITH,

Missionary in Charge.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Quarterly conference of the Little Sioux district will convene at Logan Iowa, December 1 and 2, 1894. Branch clerks will please send reports; also local ministry.

A. M. FYRANDO Sec.

The Saints of the Far West, Missouri, district are hereby reminded that the quarterly conference of this district will convene at German Stewartville branch, Saturday and Sunday, December 8 and 9. All are respectfully invited. Come one and all and bring with you a good degree of the Holy Spirit that we may be aided in our deliberations to the success of the work and the glory of God.

T. T. HINDERKS, Pres.,
C. P. FAUL, Clerk.

The Eastern Maine district conference will be held in Jonesport, December 8 and 9. Business of importance. We desire a report from every official in the district. Bro. Gowell, the district president, returned to Kansas City seriously sick and left the appointment in my hands

U. W. GREENE,

Submissionary in Charge of Maine.

EVANELIA VIEWS.

The Bishop's office now has two very fine views of the new boat that has gone into missionary service in the Society Islands; one 8x10 inches in size, the other 10x12. The pictures may be had at fifty cents each, or the two for one dollar, postage prepaid; the net receipts to be applied on the Gospel Boat account.

Address all orders to E. L. Kelley, lock box 316, Lamoni, Iowa.

BORN.

FETTER.—To Bro. W. C. and Sr. Anna Fetter, September 7, 1894, a daughter, and named Bessie Evanelia, the latter name after the Gospel Boat. Blessed November 1, 1894, by Elder J. B. Heide.

FANNON.—To E. S. and Annie M. Fannon of Bedison, Missouri, July 29, 1894, a daughter, and named Myrtle Pauline. Blessed October 8, 1894, by Elders H. Kemp and J. R. Evans.

HILL.—August 26, 1894, at Barnard, Missouri, to R. S. and E. L. Hill, a son, and named Lester Warren. Blessed October 10, 1894, by Elders H. Kemp and J. R. Evans.

DIED.

HIRTH.—At Malad, Idaho, Bro. Pius Hirth, aged 69 years, 5 months, and 19 days. Bro. Hirth was born in Germany, May 5, 1825. Baptized into the Brighamite Church in 1855; came to Utah soon after, and found such a difference from what he expected that he held aloof from the church, and in 1871, hearing the elders of the Reorganization preach, he recognized their teaching as the gospel that he had been taught in his native land and was baptized by E. C. Brand, and lived a consistent member until his death, which occurred October 24, 1894. Funeral from his residence October 28; sermon by Elder H. O. Smith.

MCLAUGHLIN.—At Dixfield, Maine, August 12, 1894, Sr. Sarah McLaughlin, after a long, painful sickness, passed to the paradise of rest. She was born at Cornville, Maine, October 19, 1827; married to Bro. Munroe McLaughlin in 1857; baptized October 4, 1891, by U. W. Greene. She leaves a husband, brother, two sisters, son, two daughters, and four granddaughters to mourn their loss. Funeral at her home. Sermon by Elder U. W. Greene, in the presence of a large circle of friends.

VANDUSEN.—At Stanberry, Missouri, October 10, 1894, Ida Charlotte, daughter of Mr. Henry and Sr. Ida Vandusen, aged 2 months and 12 days. Born at Big Horn, Wyoming. Funeral service conducted by Elder J. R. Evans at her grandfather's residence in Stanberry, Missouri.

SAYER.—At her home at Maxwell, Iowa, October 24, 1894, Sr. Martha, wife of Bro. John Sayer. She was born in England March 31, 1826, where she was united in marriage to Bro. Robert Smith, and with him removed to America. She was baptized by G. E. Duell in 1866, lived a consistent Christian life, and passed away in the full hope of being permitted to come forth in the first resurrection. Husband, 4 sons, 1 daughter, and many friends mourn. The funeral sermon was preached at the Baptist church by Elder Wm. C. Nirk; text, Job 19:23-27.

The Saints' Herald.

(Established 1860.)

Published every Wednesday, at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa.

Subscription price $2.00 per year; six months $1.00; three months 50 cents; single copies 5 cents; sample copies free.

The traveling ministry, district and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents are requested to solicit subscriptions, make sales of church publications, and assist the publishing department.

Address communications for publication to the Editors.

Business letters, subscriptions, remittances, changes of address, etc., should be addressed to David Dancer, Business Manager. Remittances should be made by post office or express orders, drafts on Chicago, or lastly by registered letters. Do not send checks.

Advertising rates, forty cents per inch each insertion, subject to the following discounts: One month's insertion, five per cent; three months, fifteen per cent; six months, twenty-five per cent; one year, forty per cent. All advertising conditioned on insertion upon the first or last pages of cover, will be charged an advance of twenty per cent upon the regular rates. For reading notices, (on outside pages of cover, unless otherwise accepted,) ten cents per line. Editorial notices, twenty-five cents per line; discount as above.

(Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.)

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

By the Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church at the Herald Publishing House, LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA. Sent postpaid at prices named.

(Complete descriptive catalogue mailed on application.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

THE GOSPEL QUARTERLY.

SENIOR GRADE.

A Sunday School Quarterly containing lessons for each Sunday in the year; prepared by the Lesson Committee of the General Sunday School Association; designed for the use of both teachers and scholars.

The Home Study with Questions, Introduction, Comparative Texts from King James' and the Inspired Translations, Study of Words and Phrases, Questions on Lesson Text, Sidelights, and Afterthoughts, are designed to aid scholars and teachers by bringing them into direct contact with the Scriptures, and furnishing historical and general information from first-class supplementary aids to Bible Study, thus giving accurate knowledge of the Bible and bringing out the doctrines of the gospel. Each quarterly contains a Map of Palestine, also a Lesson Dictionary.

Bound in paper covers; price 10 cents per quarter; 35 cents per year.

INTERMEDIATE AND PRIMARY GRADES COMBINED.

This grade contains the lessons of the Senior Grade in simplified form and for corresponding dates. The Bible Practice Work, To The Teacher, The Lesson Story, Questions on the Lesson, etc., are the leading features. "Afterthoughts," the Names, Order, and Number of the Books of the Bible, Notes for Teachers, and a Map of Palestine are also included.

Bound in paper covers; price 5 cents each; 20 cents per year.

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

Inspired Translation; Sheep binding, $1.25; Imitation Morocco, $1.75; Morocco, $2.25; Flexible covers (similar binding to Oxford Teachers' Bible), $3.75. All styles but the sheep binding are finished with gilt edges.

King James' Translation: Four sizes of American Bible Society's low-priced editions: With marginal references, two sizes, 60 and 80 cents each. Plain, two sizes, 30 and 50 cents each.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Byre and Spottiswoode's ministers' and Sunday school teachers' Bible. Flexible binding, Levant, silk lined, kid lined, thin paper. This edition forms a book about one inch thick, and contains the "aids to the student," including concordance, maps, etc. Many prefer this to the Oxford edition. Price $4.75.

ENVELOPES.

Small envelopes for collections; per 100, 15 cents; one thousand, $1.25.

NEW TESTAMENT. INSPIRED TRANSLATION.

Cloth sides, leather back, 50 cents each. Cloth binding, 30 cents each; $3.30 per dozen net. A special, cheap, pocket-size edition for Sunday schools; same type as the 50 cent edition.

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION.

Three sizes: American Bible Society's editions; cloth binding. Brevier type, 18 mo., 25 cents each net; the same per dozen. Agate type, 32 mo., (smaller) 15 cents each; $1.60 per dozen net. Pearl agate type, 32 mo., 10 cents each; $1.00 per dozen net.

These books are kept in stock to supply schools and other patrons with good, cheap Testaments at very low prices.

SECRETARY'S RECORD.

A book of complete systematic record of the entire proceedings of the Sunday school, including, in addition to the record of regular sessions, space for recording minutes of business meetings. Ruled for two years. Paper boards, leather back. 1 35

TEACHER'S CLASS RECORD.

A short, simple, and systematic method of recording the essential items of class work, together with Helpful Hints to Sunday school officers and teachers. Ruled for one year.

Paper, each, 8 cents, per dozen. 75

REPORTS.

Blank statistical reports of Sunday schools to District Association; per dozen, ten cents.

The same for Districts to General Association; per dozen, fifteen cents.

WINNOWN SONGS.

Each 40c., half dozen $2.25, per dozen. 4 50

CARDS AND TICKETS.

Fancy cards, large, five kinds, per 50. 75

Fancy cards, small, ten kinds, per 100. 50

Good Behavior tickets; per 100, 15c.; 1,000. . . 1 00

Prompt Attendance tickets; per 100, 15c.; 1,000. . . 1 00

INTERMEDIATE QUESTION BOOK.

Limp muslin, 25 cents; per dozen. 2 50

PRIMARY QUESTION BOOK.

Limp muslin, 15 cents; per dozen. 1 25

THE SILVER THIMBLES.

A story for young children, by Sr. C. B. Stebbins, Price 20 cents.

COMBINATION OFFER.

One Sunday school Secretary's Record. 1 35

One dozen Sunday school Teacher's Class Record. . . 75

One thousand collection envelopes. 1 25

One dozen statistical reports. 10

All for. 3 15

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

(Inspired translation by Joseph Smith.)

Sheep or Library Binding, sprinkled edges. . . $1 25

Imitation Morocco, gilt edges. 1 75

Morocco, gilt edges. 2 25

Flexible covers (similar binding to Oxford Teachers' Bible). 3 75

New Testaments, see Sunday school supplies.

NEW TESTAMENT.

INSPIRED TRANSLATION; LARGE TYPE EDITION.

A special new edition in pica type; a book of 374 pages, size seven by ten inches. It is printed on superfine paper; a book similar in size and style of binding to the large type edition of the Book of Mormon. Leather backs and corners, cloth sides. . . . $1 00

Roman, sprinkled edges. 1 25

Seal grained Russia, gilt edges. 1 50

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION.

BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS.

See Sunday school supplies.)

BOOK OF MORMON.

Roman, sprinkled edges. 1 00

Imitation Morocco, gilt edges. 1 25

New Edition in Large Type. This special edition forms a book of 500 pages; its size seven by ten inches. It is printed on superfine paper, and issued in large pica type, a feature especially acceptable to aged persons. The paragraphs are shortened, thus making it more perfect as a book of reference than former editions. The index is rearranged, the subjects and citations for using complete synopses of the content. Cloth, leather backs and corners. $1 50

Seal grain Russia. 1 75

Seal grain Russia, gilt edges. 2 00

CONCORDANCE TO THE DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Paper covers, 32 pages. 10

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

(Music and Hymns combined.)

Leather back, muslin sides. 2 00

The Harmony contains all the hymns in the Saints Harp; also 555 pages of music, comprising about 120 tunes, with full instructions on choir and anthem music. The same (music only). 1 25

MINISTRY AND BRANCH CARDS.

Neat cards for Ministers or Branches, with name and address, or place of worship and hours of services on face, and Epitome or "What we Believe" on reverse side. An excellent aid. Two sizes: 2 1/4 x 4 inches, price 75c. per 250, $2.50 per 1,000. 3 x 5 1/2 inches, $1.00 per 250, $3.50 per 1,000.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to see in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

Paper covers. 35

Muslin binding. 50

BRADEN-KELLEY DEBATE.

Propositions:—(1) Is the Book of Mormon of Divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to the respect and belief of all Christian people? (2) Is the Church of which I, Clark Braden, am a member, the Church of Christ, and identical in faith, organization, ordinances, worship, and practice, with the Church of Christ, as it was left perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and accepted with him?

Muslin boards, 396 pages. 1 50

DISTRICT RECORDS.

Printed and bound similar to Branch Records. . . 2 50

MISCELLANEOUS.

In addition to the following list, the Herald Office will purchase any obtainable book desired by its patrons.

Young's Analytical Concordance of the Bible, containing every Hebrew and Greek word and its English equivalent. 4 75

The Protolom of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall, 544 pages, muslin. . . . 1 50

Universalism Against Itself, 336 pages, muslin, by A. Wilford Hall. 1 00

Josephus, complete, library leather. 2 25

Giocosa's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, muslin boards, 5 volumes. 4 00

Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated). . . . 1 80

Rollin's Ancient History, two volumes in one. . . 4 00

The Koran, library leather. 2 25

The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilius, Bishop of Caesarea and Palestine. . . . 2 00

Cruice's Complete Concordance of the Bible. . . 1 50

Apocryphal New Testament. 1 25

Elders' Diary, by Joseph Laif. 30

Dunbar's Ready Binder, Herald size. 85

CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.

Branch Statistical Reports; per doz. 40

Annual Statistical Reports; two for. 05

Certificates of Baptism and Membership; per doz. 12

Certificates of Renewal; per doz. 12

Marriage Certificates; per doz. 25

GOSPEL FRAGTS.

In paper covers, 128 pages, each 15c., per doz., 1 50

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

BLAIR MERCANTILE CO.

Our Specialties:—

Fancy Dry Goods,
Fine Shoes.

BEAUTIFUL CALIFORNIA

Parties contemplating coming to the Pacific Coast, Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Clerks, or Laborers (male or female) for employment, to purchase land or engage in business send 25 cents money order for Maps, Circulars, Illustrated Books, Papers, and General Information of the Pacific Coast. E. W. REID & CO.
126 W. First Street, LOS ANGELES, Cal.

FREE ONE DOLLAR Music Book.
In one hour you can learn to accompany on the piano or organ by using Clark's Lightning Chord Method. No Teacher necessary. Should be on every Piano or Organ. A limited number given away to introduce. The price of this book is $1.00, but if you will take it up and show it to your neighbors, we will mail you one copy free. Send one dime for mailing. Address: Musical Guide Pub. Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. Mention this paper.

THOS. TEALE & SON

Carry the largest and most complete line of

Dry Goods, Clothing, Croceries, & Hardware

in town. We buy in large quantities, and for cash, and can meet all competition.

THOS TEALE & SON.

Henry Stoddard, President. J. D. Briggs, Asst Cashier. Frank Stoddard, Cashier.

COMMERCIAL BANK, LAMONI, - IOWA.

Proper Attention given to all Branches of Legitimate banking,
Interest paid on time deposits. Correspondence Solicited.

OFFICERS. DIRECTORS.
Israel L. Rogers, President. I. L. Rogers, Robt. Winning,
D. F. Nicholson, Cashier. D. F. Nicholson, S. V. Bailey,
F. B. Blair, Asst Cashier. George W. Blair

LAMONI STATE BANK.

(Incorporated.)
Paid up Capital, $25,000
Liabilities of Stockholders, $50,000.
INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

Lots $200 each,

In my addition to Lamoni Shade trees, lawn, and sidewalks; ten minutes' walk from L. D. S. church
Terms one fourth cash, and balance yearly
Write for maps to D. F. NICHOLSON,
Lamoni State Bank.

HOMES AT LAMONI.

Land for sale, situated one quarter to one half mile southwest of Lamoni; in three, four, or five acre lots.
These plats will make nice homes; suitable for gardening, raising of small fruits, etc.
Prices reasonable; terms on application.
Address, J. W. GILLEN,
LAMONI, Iowa.

SONS OF ZION

BY ELDER T. W. SMITH.

Paper covers, 10c.; per dozen,..... $1.00

B. D. FLEET,
GENERAL MERCHANDISE,
LAMONI, - IOWA.

A. B. MAIR,
WHOLESALE FRUITS and PRODUCE.
General Commission.

Berries Apples, Potatoes, etc. Car lots a Specialty.
Consignments Solicited. Prompt Returns.
518 Pearl St. Council Bluffs, Iowa.

AGENTS WANTED.

Send 10 cents for box of Hoxie's Instant Lustre. Town or County given free. Secured by deed.

You can make a permanent business. Profits large. Address,
A. N. HOXIE, BOSTON, Mass.

Do Not Waste Money, Time or Patience.

If you need power for any purpose whatever, send at once for catalogue of H. rules Gas and Gasoline Engines. They are simple, strong, safe, and substantial. Their economy, reliability, strength and superior workmanship are beyond question, and we defy tests to the contrary. PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY, manufacturers, 405-407 Sansome Street, San Francisco.
Mardr. Luse & Co. Foundry, Agents, 1118 Howard Street, Omaha, Nebraska. 28Nov.

HOXIE'S AUTOMATIC Ice Cream Freezer

CAPACITY UNLIMITED.

For Hotels, Restaurants, and Family Use.
Will freeze Ice Cream, Lemonade, Sherbets, and all kinds of Ices instantly. Several Machines combined in one, with saving of 80 per cent of ice. Agents wanted.
Exclusive territory can be secured by addressing

HOXIE BROS.,
110 CHURCH ST., BOSTON, MASS.

Zion's Ensign. 52 SERMONS A YEAR.

Subscription price, 1 year.....$1 00
" " 6 months.... 50
" " 3 months.... 25
For introduction, 4 months.... 25

Address all communications and make all orders payable to

ZION'S ENSIGN,
INDEPENDENCE, MO.

TRACTS.

ORDER BY NUMBERS.

2. Truth Made Manifest; per doz. 15c., 100 .. $1 00
 3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per doz 5c., 100 30
 4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz 3c., 100 15
 6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design and Who Shall Administer; per doz. 15c., 100.....1 00
 7. Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 5c., 100. 30
 8. Fullness of the Atonement; per doz 15c., 100 1 00
 9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per doz. 20c., 100.....1 30
 10. The Narrow Way; per doz 10c., 100..... 50
 11. The Plan of Salvation; per doz 20c., 100...1 20
 12. The Bible vs Polygamy; per doz. 15c., 100.1 00
 14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per doz. 15c., 100...1 00
 16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 17. The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; per doz 15c., 100 1 00
 20. The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c., 100 1 00
 21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per doz 3c., 100..... 15
 22. Faith and Repentance; per doz 10c., 100 .. 50
 23. Baptism; per doz. 10c., 100 65
 24. The Kingdom of God; per doz 5c., 100 30
 25. Laying on of Hands; per doz 5c., 100 30
 27. The Sabbath Question; per doz 15c., 100...1 00
 29. Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; per doz 5c., 100.... 30
 31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per doz 3c., 100..... 15
 32. Which is the Church; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
 36. The Spalding Story Reexamined; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 42. Rejection of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100 50
 43. One Wife or Many; per doz 15c., 1001 00
 44. Crooked Paths; per doz 15c., 1001 00
 45. The Reorganized Church in Succession from 1830 to the Present. A thirty-one page pamphlet containing statements of faith and practices rules and usages of the Church and of heresies, and departures from it. Important papers and statements from leading church authorities past and present are reprinted. Each 5c., per doz. 30c., 100...2 00
 46. The Pure Gospel of Christ. A list of questions and answers, with blank form preaching notice on the back, same size as Epitome; per doz 3c., 100..... 15
 47. The Future State; per doz. 15c., 1001 00
 - Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection of Jesus Christ; each 5c., per doz..... 50
 - Prophecy on the Rebellion; per hundred . . . 10
- Special prices furnished on application for tracts in lots of one thousand.

A MANUAL OF THE PRIESTHOOD.

This is a work by Elder Charles Derry, in which is set forth the order and nature of the Priesthood. The writer also defines the duties and prerogatives of all Church Officials, from the First Presidency to the Deacons inclusive. It is compiled from the Standard books of the church and the History of Joseph Smith as published in the Millennial Star. Indexed for ready reference, 132 pages, cloth bound, 25 cents

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.
Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address
MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 28, 1894.

No. 48.

L. Campbell 12 1896

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:

Autumn Leaves for 1895.....	757
Advertising Church Services.....	757
Good Treatment.....	758
Question.....	758
Golden Wedding.....	759
Much Needed Corrections.....	760

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:

Which Was Right?.....	761
-----------------------	-----

ORIGINAL POETRY:

Blaspheme Not.....	763
--------------------	-----

LETTER DEPARTMENT:.....

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

The Resurrection.....	736
The Handwriting on the Wall.....	768
The Meridian of Time.....	769
A Few Thoughts and Questions for Thinkers.....	770
God did not Create Evil.....	771

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:

Dedication.....	772
Scattered Members.....	772

THE DECLINE OF DOGMA.

NOTHING is more marked in Protestant circles than the decline of dogma. Nearly every Protestant religious body that established itself a hundred years ago in this country brought across the water a theological system which was already hammered into shape, and was logical, and hard, and unyielding in the extreme. The Presbyterians, the Dutch Reformed, the Baptists, and the Congregationalists had each a current theological system which was believed to be perfect, and which was taught as if it could have no defect. For a hundred years or more these systems have been presented to the faithful, and have had great success. The clergy have believed in them, and have made the people believe in them, and have carried conviction by storm when it could not be obtained by reason. But, with the advent of the doctrine of evolution, and with the advance of the scientific method, people have come to look at religious truth very differently from what they used to, and the old theological systems were not constructed so as to be impervious to a large amount of truth which the new scientific view has let into them. It has been found impossible to believe the old theological dogmas as they were once presented.

The most conspicuous illustration of the decline of dogma is the change which has taken place in regard to the condition of the impenitent. The first notoriety which Archdeacon Farrar obtained was by standing up in an English pulpit and denouncing this whole business as inconsistent with truth, and a travesty on the teaching of the New Testament. It was at Indian Orchard, in this State, that a young clergyman first dared to say that he did not believe what was taught about the impenitent, and the council which was held to settle him was the beginning of an agitation which has hardly yet subsided. The Andover movement, in which Mr. Joseph Cook and Professor Egbert Smith were antagonists, was really a contest over this same question. It was mixed up with foreign missions, and the discussion went through the length and breadth of the Congregational denomination in all parts of the world. Like all such discussions, it was bound to win. The old dogmas were expressed in terms of severity and of logical absoluteness which men could not accept, but the fight in the American board, which was the stronghold of the old theology, was bitter and unrelenting, and uncompromising. It seemed as if it would never end. The adherents of the old theology had given up preaching it, but they could not bear to have it go, and yet it did go, and to-day it would be almost impossible to make some of its most strenuous advocates believe that they once held the extreme views about the future of the impenitent which was the staple of their sermons.

On another subject a great change has taken place, and that is the authority of the Bible. The Presbyterians have had to wrestle with this matter, and their theology contains dogmas about the Bible which intelligent Christian scholars cannot accept. The contest in that body is over the acceptance of truth as it is stated by competent scholars, and Dr. Briggs and Professor Smith have both been censured by the bodies to which they belong because they refuse to accept the old dogma about the authority of the Bible. The result of this discussion has been that the Presbyterian people are being educated in the later and more intelligent views of the authority of the Bible which the scholarship of the day has reached. Other Christian people, also, have been educated in the same way. And yet the Bible has not been overthrown or discredited. It is the same book that it always has been, but the dogmas about it are found to be insupportable, and are given up.

These are the two most distinct instances in the decline of dogma in our own day, but they have greatly changed the way of approach to the Bible and to practical religion. The Bible is no longer a fetish for the young, and its human side and interests are studied with more sympathy, with more intelligence and with better results. At the same time the motives for personal religion are very different from those which used to be presented. A religion of fear has been exchanged for a religion of duty. The basis of the faith is laid in the nature of things, and the true grounds of faith are taught and urged upon others. The old compulsions have passed away, and yet the additions to the churches are as numerous as ever, and the hold upon young people is marked by as tenacious a grip as it used to be. Revivals are not common, but the results in Sunday school and in Christian instruction are as marked as when the terrors of the Lord were employed to frighten young people into a religious life. The decline in dogma is chiefly a decline in the belief in the worn out dogmas which needed to be thrown away. Dogma has its place in every system of truth, and Christianity will always find its expression in Christian dogma, but it is necessary from time to time that the statement of these dogmas should be revised. It is the revision of the terms in which many of the old dogmas were expressed that an advance has been made in our own time in the teaching of the Christian faith, and the change that has been wrought in

New England during the last twenty years is a change for the better. It has made religion more attractive, and the holding of it more vital.—Boston Herald.

EVOLUTION AND MIRACLE.

It is a narrow and foolish thought, that because there has been evolution there can have been no miracle. Because we find in matter a force which we call chemical affinity does not tend to disprove the existence of another force, which we call gravitation. In a sense every one is an evolutionist. No one thinks deeply nowadays about the world without feeling that there is a certain "cosmic process" of orderly changes forever going on. At what point the vast world proceeding started, nobody knows, nor whereunto the consummation may attain. We ourselves are in the process and parts of the great procession. We cannot stop it; we cannot stop ourselves, if we would. Along with all the rest the evolutionary law holds us each one in hand. As Mr. Drummond has suggested, Galileo and Darwin agree: "the world does move;" it not only moves from west to east, it moves from lower to higher.

Since Darwin, and not a little because of his great, startling, timely, epoch marking word, we have all been set to thinking of the world as being not so much a thing done or made, as something still forever in the making. This indeed was not a new thought, only it was new to have it so generally impressed on the minds of almost all thinking people. Plato had stood in awe of Nature as of something always "becoming," always moving. Paul, with an immeasurably vaster scope of thought, was thrilled with hope as well as awe at sight of "the whole creation groaning and travailling in pain together until now," "in hope that the creation itself shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the liberty of the glory of the children of God." Darwin's thought, it is true, touched no such note of grandeur, or of hope as this. And yet, as we all gladly and gratefully acknowledge, Darwin's thought, once it got itself clearly uttered, did hit the mood of the world in a way to be, to an amazing degree, a true thought-awakener, and actually to seem to revolutionize, for the time, men's mode of thinking. Almost all earnest thinking has since been poured into the grooves and molds of some sort of "evolution," tentatively at least.

"Struggle for existence," "natural selection," "survival of the fittest," are terms that may have been somewhat overworked, yet no complaint need be made that they have been used for all they are worth. This was perhaps the only way in which it could have been made evident just what they really are worth, and how far they can go toward a satisfying explanation of things. For a great deal of the world's progress in knowledge and wisdom has come by means of mistakes, followed out to their legitimate conclusions, so as to let it be seen just how mistaken they were. But has "natural selection," the "struggle for existence," the "survival of the fittest," and so on, displaced God from the universe? Has nature disowned personality? Has no place been left in the world of things for the self-conscious will which personality implies? No one with any sanity of thought left pretends that evolution accounts for its own origin. If God is, and if at the beginning at least he did something of his own free intention and creative power, what hinders it—should occasion require it, some occasion connected with his dealing with reasoning beings made in his own likeness, with a view to possibilities of character and so for personal blessedness—what hinders, that he should now and again introduce, when the hour for it comes, some new and higher factor into the evolutionary process?

It is no part of rational thinking to assume to tie the hand of God to one single method of operation. Darwin did not ordain the world and have power to say to its Maker: "Thus far shalt thou go, and no farther; in this way mayst thou enact changes in the realm of things and of persons, and in no other way." Though the methods of Darwinism be accepted as true methods in nature, more or less helpful in accounting for very much of what we see going on, who knows enough to say that God has, therefore, ever disowned the right or the power, or the occasion and the fitness, for calling into use certain other methods of revealing himself or of putting forth his hand of love for the gracious helping of his children? How gratuitous, and monstrous, the assumption that even God's hand has been tied to what men have named Evolution, and that because of it, the Resurrection of Christ was impossible, and the miracles incident to his gracious teaching unbelievable and present day answers to prayer out of the question, and that there can be no such thing as the forgiveness of sin or the new birth by the Holy Spirit.—Chicago Advance (Congregational).

DRINKERS' CHILDREN.

A LONDON correspondent to the American Practitioner and News writes as follows:—

A distinguished specialist in children's diseases has carefully noted the difference between twelve families of drinkers and twelve families of temperate ones during a period of twelve years, with the result that he found the twelve drinking families produced in those years fifty-seven children, while the temperates were accountable for sixty-one. Of the drinkers twenty-five children died in the first week of life, as against six on the other side. The latter deaths were from weakness, while the former were attributable to weakness, convulsive attacks, or to edema of the brain and membranes. To this cheerful record is added five who were idiots, five so stunted in growth as to be really dwarfs, five when older became epileptics, one, a boy, had grave chorea ending in idiocy, five more were diseased and deformed, and two of the epileptics became by inheritance drinkers. Ten, therefore, of this fifty-seven, only showed during life normal disposition and development of body and mind. On the part of the temperates, as before stated, five died in the first weeks of weakness, while four in later years of childhood had curable nervous diseases. Two only showed inherited nervous defects. Thus fifty were normal, in every way sound in body and mind.

Peoria, Illinois, 123 South Adams street, corner Adams and Fulton streets, third floor. Services every Sunday. Sunday school at one p. m., preaching 2:30 p. m., prayer service at 3:30 p. m. Elder Adam J. Keck, pastor, residence 605 Illinois avenue.

ADDRESSES.

James Caffall, 17 Dawson street, Manchester, England.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.
"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."

Book of Mormon, page 116.

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 28, 1894.

No. 48.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
JOSEPH LUFF - CORRESPONDING EDITOR.

LAMONI, IOWA, NOV. 28, 1894.

AUTUMN LEAVES FOR 1895.

BEGINNING with the new year Autumn Leaves will be published by the Board of Publication, and solely in the interests of the church, as has previously been announced by Sr. M. Walker, its former publisher.

Autumn Leaves was issued to supply the young people of the church with a suitable literary journal, to furnish them with church literature especially adapted to their tastes and capacities, and to rightly direct and to assist in developing their literary tastes and inclinations; to develop in them, and to present a channel in which their genius and thought might flow, one to the other, under the inspiration of the Spirit of the work, the spirit of cultivation, of improvement, of service.

This work is to be continued, as it ought to be; for to fail to continue it by failing to sustain Autumn Leaves would be a backward step, a loss, and prove damaging to the interests of the church, and to the people. The magazine has filled a necessary place in the work of the church, and its good work should be increased, not diminished; should be supported by every family.

Our young people have, especially for the past few years, been awakening to a realization of their part of the responsibilities and privileges in the Master's work. As a result, they have recognized the necessity of an intelligent cultivation of their powers and a consecrated application of effort to aid in the great work of God. This has been brought to their attention and pressed upon them in a measure by the medium of Autumn Leaves, the Sunday school and other publications, in which they have been reached and encouraged to apply their powers for the general good and their personal development and advancement. The Leaves, therefore, as a factor in a necessary department of the church work ought to be sustained. It has well filled the place for which the magazine was designed, and a vacancy in that place should not be permitted. A weakening of effort, a loss to any department of the work, is a loss to the whole body. All the forces should be kept compactly in line, each with the other, and a unity, a constancy be maintained all along the line in an advanced movement, with faces set Zionward.

Sr. Walker has been retained as editor and will conduct the magazine with the same unflagging energy that has characterized her past efforts in behalf of the young people and the church in general. She will be assisted by a competent corps of department editors, and the aim will be to make each department a constantly increasing power for good. The Daughters of Zion, the Sunday school, the Religio-Literary and Correspondence departments will each be maintained in the interests of those phases of effort in behalf of the people of God.

The editor and her assistants and the publishing department ask that the Saints give this line of work that encouragement it deserves, by sending in ample subscriptions for Autumn Leaves, beginning with the New Year. With a united effort the magazine can be well sustained and its usefulness be increased and guaranteed. The price is as heretofore—$1.50 per year. The good the magazine may do a young person or young people in a family, or friends, cannot be measured by that amount of money. A moral force exerted in behalf of the young is practically beyond possible estimate. Place the magazine in their hands and it will lead them to think, to think good thoughts and to do good, and to avoid the follies of modern life. It will furnish to them some of the soul food of the kingdom of God. This the church should supply to its youth, if it would have them become stalwart men and women, spiritually and morally strong amid the alluring devices of modern Babylon. While the HERALD is recognized as a necessity to those of maturer years, let not the aged forget either the necessities or the special requirements of the young. Autumn Leaves has become one of the family of the church publications, and should so be sustained.

New features will be added to the already attractive list of the Leaves, as means permit. Its reliable character for good and special consideration of the needs of its readers can safely be guaranteed.

Address subscription orders to David Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa. Subscriptions are requested, beginning with the volume for 1895.

ADVERTISING CHURCH SERVICES.

ONE of the most striking contrasts between the way in which religious work is done in England and America is in the advertising of church services. Where the sentiment of reverence is more generally cultivated than in the United States, all denominations freely advertise, not only in newspapers, but still more by huge placards and posters placed where they are sure to attract the attention of passers. Perhaps the most aristocratic Presbyterian congregation in England is that which worships in the Sefton Park church in Liverpool. In front of the church is a large bulletin board, on which are the name of the church, pastor, and details of all the services. The plan keeps the public informed in regard to the work of the churches; it attracts many who would not otherwise attend; and it is a recognition of the duty of the churches to reach the people. Why should places of amusement do more to win the people than the church?—Outlook.

The above is from Printers' Ink, New York, a publication devoted to the development of advertising interests. It is reprinted as suggesting that something timely can and should be done to call public attention to what we have to say to the people. It is right to advertise religious services, and so long as the ordinary sensational methods of reaching the public are avoided, we may safely use legitimate methods of informing the people that we have matters of interest for them to hear. It is right to keep up with the times so far as we can keep strictly in line with the right.

GOOD TREATMENT.

WE received on the 16th of November the following characteristic letter from that gentle philosopher, Bro. Henry C. Smith, of Lamoni, now laboring for a time in Colorado and New Mexico; letter dated at Antonito, Colorado, November 13:—

I addressed a large congregation at Manasseh Stake, Sunday eve: Subject, Rejection of the church: Lineal order of succession, as shown by Doctrine and Covenants. Necessity of a return to former commandments, Rod of Iron, etc., in order to be saved; concluded by reading the call of '61 and bearing testimony to the truth as set forth in the claims of the Reorganization. Spoke sixty-five minutes with good liberty, and the best of attention. A good feeling was expressed by many and talk of baptism passed around. The officials were heard to say that "it would take a long time to undo that which had been done that evening." They gave me their time by my requesting the use of the house, not expecting them to waive their regular appointment for me. They used me respectfully and with courtesy, opened and closed the services.

I felt well in addressing them, and can but believe that good will come out of it. I am staying with Bro. C. B. Moyers; who, by the way, is doing much good among this people, as also his father, Felix Moyers, is doing. Their influence in favor of honesty and virtue is widespread.

It is but just that I mention the name of Albert R. Smith, President of Stake (who claims relationship with President Joseph Smith), for the genteel treatment received from him, and for extending an invitation to preach again at some future time. I feel a warmth in spirit toward these people, and can fervently ask God's blessings upon them.

I am expecting to move south soon; have preached four or five times at this point; not much interest apparent. Manasseh Stake is said to number one thousand. Their house has a seating capacity of some nine hundred. It is about eleven miles from Antonito.

Bro. Henry requested us, if using any part of his letter, to remember the people and deal kindly with them. The people referred to are of the Utah Church, Pres. Albert Smith being probably one of the Judge Elias Smith family, and thus a cousin to the HERALD editor.

In response to Bro. Henry's request we quote the letter itself, which is clearly kind and feeling in tone, evidently expressing the sentiments of his own loving disposition. It is, or ought to be needless for us to state that we have had no other than the kindest feeling toward the people of the Utah Church. We were in their territory in 1885 and 1889, preaching; and can safely challenge the record that we did not at any time nor in any place abuse nor traduce either the people or their leaders. The tenets of their faith having been publicly declared by them, we had the unquestionable right to examine and discuss in contrast with the teaching of the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants, and this we did honorably, and as forcibly as we could. We may believe that all have not done this, but all should. And we are pleased to learn that Bro. Henry C. Smith had a hearing, and that he was kindly treated. He is an honest thinker himself, and is willing to treat all men as himself would be treated.

QUESTION.

IN Matthew 11: 11 we find the following: "Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist: notwithstanding, he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he."

Referring more particularly to the part underlined, did Christ refer to himself? As he was the only one who, at that time had received the gift of the Holy Ghost by the new birth, was he therefore the only one really in the kingdom? John came preaching, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." Christ preached, saying: "The kingdom of heaven is among you."

Thanking you in advance for a reply,

F. ARMSTRONG.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

QUESTION.—Does a person properly and legally become a member of the Church of Christ when being confirmed, if the usual formula, "Receive the Holy Ghost," is not used by the elder officiating?

ANSWER.—The spirit of the action in confirmation rather than the mere form is what constitutes the validity and gives virtue to the rite. Hence, a person having been duly baptized by a properly accredited officer, the rite of laying on of hands is the formal action of confirmation for the conferring the Holy Ghost, and as no specific formula is given, as is the case in the rite of baptism, the omission of certain words the use of which has become a custom, does not vitiate the rite, or make it ineffective. Hence we must reply to the inquiry, Yes, such person does properly and legally become a member of the church.

There is another view and it is that persons really become members of the church when legally baptized, so far as formal reception into the church is concerned:—

All those who humble themselves before God and desire to be baptized, and come forth with broken hearts and contrite spirits, and witness before the church that they have truly repented of all their sins, and are willing to take upon them the name of Jesus Christ, having a determination to serve him to the end, and truly manifest by their works that they have received of the Spirit of Christ unto the remission of their sins, shall be received by baptism into his church.—D. C. 17: 7.

Behold, this is my doctrine: Whosoever repenteth and cometh unto me, the same is my church; whosoever declareth more or less than this, the same is not of me, but is against me; therefore, he is not of my church. And now, behold, whosoever is of my church, and endureth of my church to the end, him will I establish upon my Rock, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against him.—D. C. 9: 16, 17.

From this it may be gathered that the word "church" is made to include those who receive the word and are baptized, leaving the final reward to be given to those who "endure of my church to the end;" which, of course, includes the reception of the Holy Ghost, the engaging in and abiding with the internal working of the church, its official administration, doctrine, etc., during the lifetime of the disciple. This is undoubtedly the correct understanding of the formal reception into the church, and the nominal membership in the church. There remains, however, the living issue as to when the disciple is received into the membership of the "family of God in heaven," the "church and assembly of the First-born."

Of this we may confidently state that the attestation of an entire acceptance with God, the full certification and assurance of divine approval, lies with the Master, who by sending the Spirit, in the way his wisdom directs, testifies to the disciple that he is accepted and is accounted a child of the covenant, an "heir of God," "joint heir with Jesus Christ." We cannot say with absolute positiveness that this occurs when the legal, nominal connection with the church by baptism, or laying on hands, is consummated; for these rites may be performed in instances in a perfunctory manner, which remain to be acknowledged of the Lord, which acknowledgment by the Lord the church cannot enforce; because it depends upon the honesty, correct understanding, and purity of purpose of the person admitted; and, possibly, upon the proper discharge of duty on the part of the administrator, and its acknowledgment upon the part of the Spirit. All of which is the province and lies within the direct and only jurisdiction of the Lord, the director and finisher of the work; and over which the church nor individuals exercise power in it, only by delegated authority controlled in direct and well-defined limits.

Q.—If he does not use that formula what does he confer and what does the candidate receive?

A.—He confirms unto the candidate the rights and privileges appertaining to a membership in the church; and the right to these is what the candidate receives, whatever formula of words the one officiating may use. One of the privileges is that of receiving the Holy Spirit, or the "gift" of it, as may be directed by the Lord who giveth to "every man severally as he will;" this not being essentially dependent on the form of words used.

Q.—If you reply there is no law governing the case, where did the custom originate? I have no doubt the custom has been handed down to us as part of the unwritten law. I have no doubt the Seer taught it. The elders that were instructed by him and came to my native land, taught it; the elders that were sent out by their instruction taught it; and I have seen several cases of confirmation where the one confirming from some cause omitted to use the words, and the other one completed the confirmation by adding; "And we say unto thee, Receive the Holy Ghost. Amen." INQUIRER.

A.—It is said that "custom makes law;" but custom that becomes law must be in harmony and keeping with statute law, if there is any on the subject affected by the custom.

The language used by Peter, 2d Acts, 38th verse, promises the gift of the Holy Ghost to those who repent and are baptized; but the manner of its conferment is not named; nor is the form of words to be used given in either of the three books.

The laying on of hands for the bestowal of the Holy Spirit was a custom among the Twelve chosen by Jesus, and we are not left to infer it, as instance after instance is given in proof, but nothing connected with either instance occurring among them gives a clue to the form of words to be used; and it would seem that if any form was necessary to the actual giving of the Spirit, formal instruction of such form should have been given. The only instance on record in which a form is given is that of the laying on of Jesus' hand on the Twelve, where it is said,

He breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost.—John 20: 22.

But our inquirer would hardly allow that this passage should be taken as establishing the formula to be used in the rite of confirmation, as against Acts 8th and 19th chapters.

The supposition that the custom of using the formula "Receive ye the Holy Ghost;" or "Receive ye the gift of the Holy Ghost," grew out of the teaching of the Seer to those who were sent to England; and transmitted by them to others, may be correct; but, is that supposition a safe criterion upon which to base a rule of law, or to assume that a custom is law, and its observance essential as a matter of law? Unless the custom originated further back than with those elders directed by command of God, it might be open to objection; for that reason, we should be quite careful not to quote such supposition as sufficient authority for it.

It may be true that the inquirer has witnessed such administrations as he names, in which one of two or more elders were laying on hands, should have omitted the words "Receive ye the Holy Ghost;" and this omission was supplied by one of the others before the final amen was said. But this would only prove the forgetfulness, or the possible opinion of the one so omitting that the formula was not essential to the completeness of the rite, and the more careful remembrance, or possible opinion of the one supplying the omission that the ordinance was not complete and effective unless that formula was used.

We are not objecting to the use of the words, nor would we wish to be understood as desiring to substitute other words for those which custom has made so commonly understood, as they are clear, forcible, and beautiful in expression, and cannot be objected to on any ground as inelegant, inexpressive, or inappropriate; but, in answering the question asked, an explanation seemed to be necessary to avoid dogmatic assertion.

Q.—Is the motion to indefinitely postpone subject to amendment and debate?

A.—Yes; see Book of Rules page 76, Sec. 88, article, Postponement.

THE reform wave in New York City municipal affairs shows no signs of abating its vigorous efforts to cleanse the metropolis from its long-standing maladministration and corruption, as indicated from the clipping which follows. The good work ought to be prosecuted at all points and among all parties where such evils exist, without respect to persons or political creeds. The spirit of the hour demands that merit alone shall determine the right to occupy in positions of trust, and that constant improvement in method shall characterize the civil service. This is as it should be. True progress demands improvement upon the past and present, while perfection in the system and execution of government remains unattained.

Resolved, That the New York Board of Trade and Transportation believes the police force of the city of New York should be divorced from all political control and it should be constituted on some such basis as is the army of the United States or the militia of the State of New York, with a commander in chief and all grades of officers who shall rise from the ranks; that provision should be made for court martial and for appointments to the force by the strictest civil service rules, with provisions for promotions, based upon a civil service examination and the previous record of the applicant.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

THE Columbus, Nebraska, Telegram, for Thursday, November 15, comes to us marked at the notice of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding day of Bro. Henry J. Hudson and his Wife Sarah. After the full notice of the ceremonies which took place in Maennerchor Hall, Columbus, where Bro. Hudson lives, the editor writes:—

Judge Henry J. Hudson was born in London, England, November 28, 1822. He was married to Sarah Shefford, who is also a native of London, November 10, 1844. In April, 1857, this couple settled in Platte county, and endured all the hardships and privations of pioneer life. Judge Hudson has filled many official positions of note in Platte county, was a representative in the eighth legislature of Nebraska. He was ten years postmaster; he has been district court and county clerk; he was for ten years justice of the peace; county commissioner three years, and probate judge one term; and at present is police judge for the city. In all these positions his record has been a clean one. Honorable in all his dealings, and honest in his official duties, he has performed every trust put in his hands with credit to himself and honor to the community which selected him for the place.

Some four hundred guests were participants of the festivities of this pleasant and striking occasion.

MUCH NEEDED CORRECTIONS.

OUR brethren engaged in ministerial work have had no small task in refuting the unreliable statements published in encyclopedias and school histories concerning Joseph Smith, the Book of Mormon, and the faith and its adherents in general, etc., as such have been widely misrepresented, by both prejudice and ignorant writers. The statements in the clipping that follows will be appreciated and be found of use to the ministry in combatting the errors in statements referred to. We expect further corrections in this line from the work now being done by the General Conference committee appointed to secure correction of similar errors.

About a year ago Albert A. Pope, renowned for his persistent advocacy of good roads in the United States, addressed circulars to school-teachers inviting them to send him notes of any misstatements of fact that appear in any school book used throughout the country under the authority of a school committee. As a result he received notes of no less than 5,360 alleged errors, tabulations of which were sent to various publishers and authors. The errors admitted to be such by the publishers and authors themselves number 673, the rejections from the same 3,114, and no answers have been received in regard to 1,573. Mr. Pope states, what might have been expected, that those whose books appear to be extremely faulty have refused to assist in making corrections, but that many of the leading houses welcomed the criticisms in the friendly spirit and arranged to make corrections in their plates of such errors as they admitted to exist. It is not proposed at present to carry the matter any farther, though in many cases where the criticisms have been objected to the critics have urged that the case be submitted to a competent board. But it is fair to presume that 673 of the most glaring errors in the school books are in course of elimination, and that is no small reform to accomplish. It is said that one so-called first-class publishing house issued in the year 1892 a book containing nearly 300 admitted errors, and that this book is in use in many schools in different parts of the United States.—Chicago Tribune.

DISCUSSION AT OMAHA.

THE discussion between Rev. C. W. Savidge, of Omaha, and our brother, T. W. Williams, of Council Bluffs, heretofore noticed in HERALD, was begun on the evening of November 20. Of it Bro. Charles H. Porter, of Wilber, Nebraska, laboring in Eastern Nebraska, who was in attendance, wrote the 22d:—

The debate between Rev. Savidge, of Omaha, and Bro. T. W. Williams, is under good headway and is progressing finely. Bro. Williams has proven himself an able defender of the Book of Mormon in this discussion. The discussion of the first proposition closed last night. Rev. Savidge failed to meet the arguments of his opponent, or to present anything to offset them. He is a forcible speaker but appeals to the feeling rather than to the intellect of his hearers. He has presented but little argument thus far and what he has advanced has been easily met and successfully answered by Bro. Williams. The second proposition in which Bro. Williams affirms that he represents the church of Christ, will be discussed to-night, and the claims of Rev. Savidge for his church will receive consideration to-morrow night. It is regretted by the Saints that Bro. Williams could not prevail on his opponent to continue the discussion of these questions longer; but he pleads other duties. The church is said to seat four hundred. It was full last night and standing room was at a premium. Bro. Williams has announced that he will deliver a series of lectures on the Book of Mormon, in this city, next week. The announcement was received with applause by the audience.

On the 23d Bro. Porter wrote again:—

The debate last night was on the second proposition, viz.: "Resolved that the church of which I, T. W. Williams, am a member, viz., The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is the Church of Christ and identical in faith, organization, and worship."

It terminated disastrously for the Rev. Savidge so far as his position was concerned. He acknowledged his defeat and said he never before had experienced such feelings as had come over him during the debate. He said he was conscious that God was working mightily with him. He seemed unable to comprehend the true position of things. He didn't use all his time in his first speech, and in his second he humbly acknowledged his defeat. He said he was certain God had a purpose in this both for himself, the Latter Day Saints, and others. After using about thirteen minutes of his time he commenced to pray, and during his prayer he said, "O God, thou hast rebuked me! thou hast rebuked me! thou hast rebuked me!" It was a wonderful scene. The house was filled, and I think all felt the force of his remark when he said he had never experienced the like before. He said he slept but two hours the night before and he never had felt such a power upon his body, and spirit, before. He never before had been so that he had to speak with stammering tongue to his congregation. He was very humble but while he made his acknowledgement of defeat he asked with mildness, "Do you people live this religion? Is it not true that, such and such things, were done publicly by you people not long since?"

I confess that my face burned with shame when he asked the question, and I trust it will be a lesson not soon forgotten by our people.

Bro. Williams did excellently. His defence of Joseph Smith as against the testimony of Governor Ford was exceedingly good. Many of the Saints were present and I believe they all felt the power of God's Spirit. I hope this debate will prove of lasting good to the Saints as well as others; and I trust the Saints will endeavor to so live that when they are asked either privately or in public, "Do you live this religion?" they will be able to truly answer, By the grace of God we do. Your brother in Christ,

C. H. PORTER.

THE following from an "orthodox" minister is refreshing, in the light of what is ordinarily believed and preached by Protestant ministers. Light is penetrating even the circles of conservative Congregationalism—a hopeful sign.

OUR LORD'S RETURN.

Last evening Rev. T. B. Hyde of the Northern Congregational Church, preached to a large congregation on the how, where, and when of our Lord's return. The last condition of his visit was easily disposed of, for no one knew the time; it was locked in the heart of the Eternal. As to the other condition of his visit, there was some very clear information in the Scriptures. His coming was not the gift of the Spirit, nor was it the destruction of Jerusalem, as the predictions were not fulfilled when that event happened. It was not death, and between all these states and his return there was a marked distinction. Death was an enemy, and at death their bodies went to corruption. Christ's coming was their "blessed hope." He would come visibly and personally, as he went, and every eye would see him. "The same Jesus shall so come in like manner," and at that day "his feet shall stand on the Mount of Olives."—Toronto Mail, October 8, 1894.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. M. M. TURPEN, Reader's Mills, Alabama, the 13th inst.:—

I have been laboring in this vicinity since the 1st inst. Have been blessed, and some are interested in the truth and talk of obeying at no distant day. I met two men of the Utah Church on the 7th inst. in a discussion of the differences between us. Their man was a very weak representative, but their claims were still weaker, which was clearly made manifest to those present. It made friends to the cause of truth and I rejoiced that we did not have to even try to defend and make excuses for such a system.

R. E. Grant, Bay City, Michigan, November 15:—

The work here is onward; five were baptized last Sunday and four more last Wednesday, making nine in the last four days; many others deeply interested. I take the afternoon train for Bay Port, in company with my wife. The work is onward throughout Michigan.

Bro. Clarence Riley, Council Bluffs, Iowa, November 14:—

Council Bluffs branch is prospering nicely at present. Prayer meeting last evening was one of the largest in the history of the branch and a splendid interest taken. New members coming in have given impetus to the work here, because they are of that class that have an established moral character, having had Christian experience in other denominations. We believe that the souls of all men are alike precious in the sight of God and that none should be looked down upon by his people by reason of that that appears on the surface. If we do rejoice more over one than another it is only because of the help that the moral man or woman can give the work, while if one is taken from the slums, the work has to help him or her gain a standing before he can render assistance in pushing it forward. The work of Bro. C. Scott and others who have labored here is beginning to show up, it being followed and pushed vigorously by our present missionary, Bro. T. W. Williams, who, by the way, so far as we know, is giving entire satisfaction in his labors among us. Bro. Williams begins his debate with the Rev. Charles W. Savidge, of Omaha, on the 20th. It is looked forward to with much interest. Mr. Savidge at first wanted to continue the debate until he had sifted Mormonism to the bottom, but thinks now that three nights will be all he wants.

Letter from Bro. George M. Scott, of Little Sioux, Iowa, states:—

Just got a letter from Bro. D. Chambers. He and Bro. Hutchings propose carrying the war on along Missouri River from Missouri Valley north. May God prosper them. All is well. Come again, Bro. Joseph.

Bro. J. F. Henson, Orchardville, Illinois, the 19th:—

Myself and Bro. I. A. Morris have just closed a meeting at the Green schoolhouse. I baptized twelve, Bro. Morris baptized two. I also baptized one here the 11th. Our meetings here have been very spiritual. Bro. Slover is with me. We are feeling well in the good work. Pray for us that God may bless. My heart is in the work.

Bro. William Strange, Chicago, Illinois, November 20:—

We are much encouraged with the onward march of the work in this great city. Our growth is steady and apparently of a permanent character. This perhaps is attributable, largely, to the active, earnest, and harmonious efforts of the Saints. We are nearly every day finding somebody in search of truth, which gives us spiritual bone and muscle to fight on until the final victory.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. ASHTON WOOLLEY, located at Crib Point, Victoria, reports an increased desire to hear the gospel message at various points in that portion of the Australian field. He reports new and excellent openings, but the usual scarcity of laborers prevented answering all demands.

Brn. A. H. Parsons and T. H. Truman (the latter presiding elder of the branch) have been diligently striving to acquaint the people of Brooklyn, New York, with the latter-day message. A handbill sent us announces a series of chart-illustrated lectures, also class meetings, Religio society, etc., at the Saints' Tabernacle, Powell street, East New York avenue. That is right, brethren; let the people know what you have and where to find you.

Sr. Huldah Flinn reports a prosperous Sunday school at Amity, Missouri, where the young people are striving to devote themselves to religious and general study and improvement. Bro. John Rounds is preaching the word with good effect.

Bro. R. M. Elvin has for sale the first six volumes of the HERALD neatly bound in one volume. Address him at Lamoni.

Bro. T. W. Williams and Rev. C. W. Savidge, of the People's Church, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, are discussing the claims of the divine origin of the Book of Mormon, in the church named. The Omaha Bee and the World Herald of the 21st have reports of the first session of the debate, from which it appears that Bro. Williams was doing well. We await further particulars.

Bro. Heman C. Smith in charge of the Southeastern mission, reports from Milton, Florida, November 19. His report shows that the ministry, traveling and local, have been doing well, being faithful and diligent. The quarter closes with one hundred and forty-eight baptisms, and the organization of two branches.

The HERALD for 1895; new volume. Subscriptions solicited; price $2 per year, six months, $1. Now is the time to subscribe.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

OPPORTUNITY.

Master of human destiny am I!
Fame, love, and fortune on my footsteps wait;
Cities and fields I walk. I penetrate Deserts and seas remote, and passing by Hovel, and mart, and palace, soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate.
If sleeping, awake; if fasting, rise before I turn away
It is the hour of fate,
And they who follow reach every state
Mortals desire, and conquer every foe
Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate,
Condemned to failure, penury, and woe,
Seek me in vain, and uselessly implore,—
I answer not, and I return no more.

—John J. Ingalls.

WHICH WAS RIGHT?

Select reading for Daughters of Zion, December meeting.

"OH, mamma!" cried little Harold Brandon, "you should have heard Dick Stuart; he's been telling such an awful lot of stuff—just horrid—he says—" and then followed a brief account of a profane and really disgraceful conversation he had heard coming home from school a few minutes previous.

"Harold!" exclaimed his mother, with scarlet face and eyes flashing with mingled pain and anger, "never let me hear you speak of such things again! It is terribly wicked of Dick Stuart, and you are a very, very naughty little boy to listen to him. You have grieved me greatly by your conduct."

"But, mamma, Dick says such things are true and—"

"Not another word, Harold! Dick is a wicked boy. You must never listen to him again. Good little boys never speak of or listen to such talk as that. Now run away to your play, but remember what mamma has told you."

Ashamed, although not exactly penitent, Harold ran out of the room. He was an honorable and dutiful little fellow, and he tried not to think of what Dick had said, but occasionally it occurred to him in spite of his efforts.

"I shall ask papa; he will tell me; mamma always shuts me up so;" he thought a little indignantly; but this hope was nipped in the bud.

Mr. Brandon returned to dinner soon after, and Harold followed him at once to the library, where his mother was still sitting. He was wondering how he could secure his father's undivided attention for a few minutes, when Mrs. Brandon exclaimed:—

"Henry, do you know your little boy has been very naughty? He has been listening to such horrid talk and then came and repeated it to me."

She glanced at her husband as she spoke with an expression her little boy thought meant a great deal more than her words. Mr. Brandon was a quiet man, absorbed in his profession, and with unlimited faith in his wife's ability to train up their child in the way he should go. He rarely interfered, and on the present occasion contented himself with saying:—

"That was very wrong, my boy. You must not listen to anything you think your mother or I would be displeased with; neither must you repeat such words."

Certainly, to his mother Harold never did. However, his parents had not forbidden him to play with Dick Stuart, and in spite of his wickedness Dick was quite the pleasantest and jolliest boy in school; so, a little against his conscience, Harold continued to be very friendly with him. After a time he became quite accustomed to Dick's rough language, and although it hurt him a good deal at first, for he was naturally a refined little lad, the evident approval of many of the older boys had such an influence upon his plastic mind that he began to think that it was positively manly. A year later, could his mother have heard him discoursing to an admiring group of schoolboys, her heart surely would almost have broken. Innocent, pure-minded little Harold was sadly changed, yet neither of his parents noticed it. He grew to manhood tall, handsome, clever, and energetic. He was a general favorite, and greatly sought after, and although too high principled and self-controlled to be dissipated in any way, he yet found pleasure in the society of men who were called roués. When he was twenty-seven he fell in love with a beautiful girl of twenty-one, and was fortunate enough to win her affection.

Grace Bethune was as good and sensible as she was clever and pretty. She was so intensely refined that it was rather a wonder that she did not feel that Harold Brandon's mind was out of unison with her own, yet perhaps not either, for she was one of those women who instinctively bring out the best there is in their associates. Harold's own sense of unworthiness may have had a good deal to do with it. He felt that it should be the effort of his life to become worthy of her, and, happily for both, this feeling did not wear off after they were married.

One evening, a month or two after their marriage, he thoughtlessly expressed himself in a manner that made Grace shrink from him in horror.

"You do not really mean that? It cannot be possible that you really hold such views?" she said, tremulously. And it seemed to him as he looked into her white, pained face, and dark, horrified eyes, that he had not meant it, although it had been one of his pet theories among men for years.

"No—no! I merely give you the side most men take."

"Never speak so again, Harold," she said, earnestly. "Do not associate with men who are so immoral, for immoral they must be, at heart anyway, to hold such views. If—if you were to speak and think in that manner, it would almost kill me."

"If it did not kill her, it would at least slay her love for me to know me as I am. I must be careful and shun those hounds," her husband thought uneasily. The "hounds," as he called them, had for years been his dearest associates, and were considered very eligible young men by half the mammas in town, but Harold's mind was undergoing a great change. He and his wife were more constantly together than most husbands and wives, and he soon became thoroughly disgusted with everything unchaste and unrefined. Yet for years he had to watch himself, lest he should betray the bent his mind had been inclined in. Their married life was very happy. Grace had discovered ere the honeymoon waned that her husband was not quite so perfect as she had pictured him, but he was so devoted to her and so unselfishly anxious for her happiness that, like a sensible little woman, she kept her disappointment hidden, and seemed only to remember that in Harold's unfading devotion she was blest above others. She realized this more and more as she beheld the many unhappy homes, and unloved and neglected wives among her acquaintances. Then, too, she thought that perhaps her husband had been disappointed in her, although she fondly hoped and believed not.

Years after they had been married, Harold Brandon was lying on the lounge in his wife's pretty sitting room one afternoon, suffering with a neuralgic headache. His wife was sitting beside him, smoothing his aching temples with a soft, almost mesmeric touch. Just as she fondly hoped he had fallen asleep, the door was gently opened and their only son, a bright, handsome lad of nine years, came on tiptoe across the room to her.

Grace glanced anxiously at her husband; his eyes were closed and he seemed to be sleeping peacefully; he was not easily aroused; so she kissed little Earl and held a bright, whispered conversation with him.

"Mamma," he said presently, lifting a flushed, eager face to her fair, sweet one, "Joe Bruce is a very rude boy, he has been telling us such strange and wicked stories, and do you know he says good boys never grow to be men!"

Harold Brandon's eyes half opened and he glanced from his wife to his child a little uneasily. They did not notice him, so he feigned sleep again.

"Would you like to tell me about it, Earl?" Mrs. Brandon inquired, gently.

Earl looked at her doubtfully.

"Joe said if I asked you about it, you would punish me: I knew you wouldn't mamma," he said, after a moment, and then he went on to tell her very much the same story his father had told his mother nearly thirty years before.

"Oh, my dear little boy, I am grieved you have heard this," said his mother tremulously, and she drew him closely in her arms as if to shield him from some evil. Looking up, Earl saw that her eyes were full of tears.

"Oh, mamma, I am so sorry!" he exclaimed.

"Is there anything you would like to ask me about?" she inquired, gently.

"Yes." He asked her a question; she answered it wisely, in a way to satisfy his curiosity.

"You will not play with Joe Bruce or such boys, dear? Do not listen to such rough language. If you cannot help hearing, and anything excites your curiosity, do not repeat it to anyone else, but come straight to me. If I cannot explain it, papa will, if you are old enough to comprehend. You know, Earl, there are many things in your books you are too young to understand, and there will be just as much you will hear outside, probably."

"Mamma, why does Joe Bruce speak so?" he asked curiously.

"He must naturally be a bad boy, and he wishes to poison your mind as his own has been poisoned, I am afraid. You will remember, dear, and you will not listen to or repeat such language, unless, as I said before, you want to know what is true."

"Yes, mamma, I will try not even to think of it."

"You are mamma's own good boy. I am so glad my darling came straight to me with this poisonous stuff," his mother said. Then she kissed him and sent him away on some pleasant errand.

"Grace," Mr. Brandon said gravely, as the door closed after Earl. His wife started nervously; she had almost forgotten his presence.

"O, were you listening?" she asked, distressingly. "Was it not painful, Harold? Our dear little Earl to hear that!"

"It will not hurt him with such a mother," her husband said quietly.

"Harold, what should I have done? You will know better than I for you were a boy once yourself. Was I wrong in speaking to him as I did?"

"I think God gave you your intuition, dear," he said. "I went astray just where our boy stood awhile ago. If my mother had talked to me as you talked to Earl, your husband would have been more worthy of you, Grace. Another thing I am convinced of; if a man wants to keep his boys from going wrong he must be in every sense of the word a companion to them, and teach them by example as well as by precept. Grace, if our united efforts can save our boy from pitfalls and make a good man of him, I think he is, and will be, in little danger."—Mrs. S. H. Snider, in the Housekeeper.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SR. N. V. PEARSON, of Hamon, Texas, desires your prayers in behalf of her two daughters and their husbands, that they may be brought to a knowledge of the truth.

SR. MINERVA HISCOCK, of Mattawan, Michigan, requests your faith and prayers in behalf of Sr. Mary D. Welch, who has been afflicted for some length of time.

BRO. AND SR. NILES, of Purcell, Indian Territory, request your faith and prayers in their behalf.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR NOVEMBER.

"He liveth long who liveth well!

All other life is short and vain,

He liveth longest who can tell

Of living most for heavenly gain.

"He liveth long who liveth well!

All else is being flung away,

He liveth longest who can tell

Of true things truly done each day."

Thursday, Nov. 29. — The gathering of Israel to their land, and the restoration to them of the pure gospel in its fullness, and its acceptance by them to their everlasting peace.

Memory Verses.—Joel 3: 1, 2, 12, 16.

Original Poetry.

BLASPHEME NOT.

"Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain."—Ex. 20: 7.

On the mountain's cloudy summit,
Envelop'd in the burning light,
'Mid the lightning's dazzling flashes,
And the thunder's roaring might;
Far 'bove Israel's feeble vision,
In tones of trembling Moses heard
Sounds, as coming down from heaven;
For Jehovah spake the word.

I, the Lord, am God forever,
Creator of the land and sea;
My name is above all others;
I live throughout eternity.
Thou shalt not irreverently
Speak my holy name in vain;
For I will not hold you guiltless,
If you thus my name profane.

Lest throughout all future ages
Time should fail this word to bear,
Let it deep in stone be written,
That the world may know and fear;
It is written with God's finger
In the rock, severely plain,
"He shall not be counted guiltless
Who shall use my name in vain."

J. A. STROMBERG.

LAKE HONDA, California,
August 3, 1894.

Letter Department.

CLARKSDALE, Mo., Nov. 18.

Editors Herald:—Addressing you last from Lowry City, at the close of the first question of the Scott-Briney debate, I now in justice address you again to say that at the close of the first question Bro. Scott was forced to give up the battle because of sheer exhaustion brought on from overwork in speaking to that vast throng under adverse circumstances. On the night of the 2d of November the rain poured down, making much noise as it fell upon the canvas and added to by the confusion within, made it almost impossible for Bro. Scott to be heard, thus straining his lungs severely, and on the morrow his lungs were bleeding from the overstrain. Casting about for a man to throw into the breach, the lot fell upon Bro. Rudolph Etzenhouser, who without warning or preparation stepped to the front and donned the robe of battle. Briney, Braden, and Co. measured the boy with a smile of satisfaction, thinking that victory would now perch upon their banner and the battle would soon be over: but alas! they had reckoned without their host, for armed with the truth and clothed with the Spirit, backed up and supplemented by the faith and prayers of the Saints, every argument produced by Briney and Co. withered before the blast of truth as it fell from the lips of our noble brother. Chagrined, non-plussed, beaten, and battered, Briney slunk away into his hole of vituperation, slander, villification, and buzzardlike, preyed upon carrion and villified the dead; and, becoming pinched closely by the argument, he called Bro. Rudolph an infamous scoundrel, while Bro. R. calmly replied, "And you, Bro. Briney, are a venerable gentleman!" Suffice it to say that not many men in the church, in our humble opinion, could have taken up such a battle and handled it so nicely and victoriously as Bro. Etzenhouser; and if we do not mistake Bro. E. will be heard from along those lines of controversy with honor to himself and victory to the cause.

Yours,
T. W. CHATBURN.

VALE'S MILLS, Ohio, Nov. 11.

Editors Herald:—Our reunion is of the past, but its effects will be felt for many a day. We had a splendid time, considering some bad weather, and all seemed to enjoy themselves; and the good Spirit was manifest in all our meetings. The ministry were blessed with liberty in preaching, so much so that some who are not of us said, "Surely they must have help, or they could not preach as they do." Three were baptized, and more are near the water's edge, and would step in if it was not for the king (public opinion), for I am satisfied they believe the work to be true.

Brn. Griffiths and Hilliard came on the 25th and Bro. Griffiths staid till the 29th, when he left for home to see his sick ones. May the Lord be merciful to them. While here he gave us some grand counsel, and if we would only live by it we would surely please the Master. Bro. Hilliard staid a week and gave us grand and good preaching. Surely it can be said of him that he does not teach as the scribes but as one having authority. Bro. Harder staid with us over the second Sunday. He is not large in stature, but mighty in word; in fact there was not a sermon preached during the reunion but what was good and well received, both by those within and without the church; so we are made to rejoice more and more in this glorious work, and pray that it may move on till the honest in heart are gathered into the fold.

Yours in faith,
S. J. JEFFERS.

BROWNVILLE, Neb., Nov. 2.

Editors Herald:—I have been an earnest seeker after truth and have never found it unless I make a full stop under the Latter Day Saints' banner. Nearly two years ago I heard a Mr. Elvin preach a funeral sermon, and it struck me as forcibly as a slap on the shoulder. His method of explaining the future state was grand. Have you many such soldiers in your ranks? I am well pleased with all I have heard and seen. Am well acquainted with some of your members, and they are fine people, especially Mr. Redfield and family,—very upright and honorable in their everyday walk.

It would seem that where the seed has taken root it is there to stay deep down in the hearts of your people. The flickering light of the world-accepted religion has no more effect on the Latter Day Saints than water on granite. I do earnestly hope that the pride in my heart for this world's approbation will be plucked out by the roots, and a love for the truth spring up in its place. You have my best wishes for the spread of your well-begun work; and surely the harvest is ready for reapers fearless of this world's despising, willing to endure the scoffs and the scorn of those who fear not God nor the Devil.

The feelings of the people are much modified since the word has been preached in these parts. When Mr. Redfield came here six years ago the inhabitants were very bitter, but they are excusable, as the majority of them are quite ignorant on religious matters, and of the Bible in particular. I read your paper, the Herald, and have found comfort. Pray for me that I may see more plainly.

H. P.

PARK CITY, Utah, Nov. 12.

Editors Herald:—This is to certify that at the request of Sr. Keller I write to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, in Lamoni, Iowa, her statement and testimony. She was baptized September 5, 1875, into the Reorganized Church and confirmed the same day by Elder George M. Robinson, and she has been a faithful member since. She is a lover of the gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and she is striving to serve God with the full purpose of her heart. She was baptized into the Church of Christ in the days of Joseph the Prophet. She was married to her husband the day before the stars fell, and came to Utah, where she became dissatisfied on account of her husband going into polygamy, because it was abominable in the sight of God and contrary to the Doctrine and Covenants. She has great respect for the Reorganized Church. I feel satisfied the foundation of God stands sure.

Sr. Keller is very old and feeble at this time and she has heard very little preaching since she came into the church, but her faith is firm and unshaken. Her hope is bright and her testimony is good, God bless her. Her name is Roxey Keller. Sr. Keller's husband put four hundred dollars into Joseph's hands to purchase land in Caldwell county for the settlement of the Saints.

Your brother in the gospel,
THOMAS STREET.

STOUTLAND, Mo., Nov. 10.

Editors Herald:—The writer left New Franklin October 26 and arrived here the 30th, and planted our artillery and opened up the fight on the 31st, to a full house, and has continued every night since. The second night the Baptists opposed us some; the result was that propositions for discussion were formulated and signed by the writer and one of the ministers of the Baptist Church. They wanted an indorsement from our church for me. I sent the propositions to our Bro. I. N. White and the indorsement came; then the Baptists called a council and came to the conclusion that it was not best to meet the stranger in their meeting. They said he had just dropped down from heaven on them and they did not propose to let their man meet him. I was there and asked the privilege to speak. I told them I had not dropped from heaven, but had come here in a lumber wagon and if they did not want to indorse their man, for them to pick a man and we would furnish one to meet him; but they adjourned without selecting one. So you see it is a square back down; after all our trouble of sending for books and making preparations for the debate to commence on the 12th it is a failure.

We will "trouble the waters" on Sunday. How many will be baptized, we do not know; there has been but one who gave his name thus far, but there are many who are convinced of the truthfulness of the gospel of the Son of God.

This is a new place. This is the first time the gospel trump has ever been blown here. Brn. J. B. Gouldsmith and Willie Mannering came in yesterday to be on hand to assist in the debate, but how the mighty have fallen. More anon,

J. L. YOUNG.

XENIA, Ill., Nov. 17.

Editors Herald:—The writer in company with Elder J. F. Henson, president of the district, went to Green schoolhouse in Marion county, Illinois, October 11, and commenced preaching. We arranged to go south on the 1st of October to visit the different branches in the southern part of the district. We had the day set three different times, but were not permitted to go, being hindered in many ways until the above date when we decided that the Lord wanted us to go in another direction, and as we could think of no other place to begin work, we went to the above-named place; and the Lord was with us indeed and gave the Spirit in power in the preaching of the word. At the next meeting three gave their names for baptism. We continued the meetings there three weeks. The people were interested in their souls' salvation as never before in this place. We continued preaching every night, and visiting in daytime, and baptizing, till Bro. Henson had baptized eleven and the writer two, when we closed the meeting. The writer came home, attended prayer meeting, was impressed by the Spirit to give an invitation, when one, Sr. Kurtz, gave her name and was baptized on the 2d. A man who had attended the meetings at Green schoolhouse and being convinced we preach the ancient gospel, not feeling safe where he was, sent for Bro. Henson on the 7th, and was buried with Christ by baptism. One other, a lady, gave her name, and will be baptized sometime in the future. There are many more in that place interested, and I think there will be a branch of the church organized at no very distant day. For the present, the new members will be enrolled with the Brush Creek branch.

I preach to-night and over Sunday at old Fredricksburg, in Marion county; thence to Edgewood, Watson, and Arcadia, in Effingham county; thence to Richland, and on to Kibbie. The harvest truly is great and the laborers are few.

In the past year there have been five called and ordained to the office of elder and two to that of priest. The work in this district is now in better condition than it has been for several years.

I highly appreciate the labors of our missionary in charge, Bro. Emsley Curtis, who has fought nobly for the truth at Kibbie, at Oblong, and at Unity. When Inman and Moore came in like a flood, then Curtis stood in the breach to defend the work. May God bless all such noble defenders of his truth. I feel encouraged in the work. I have been united with the church more than twenty-seven years and never felt better in the work than now.

In gospel bonds,
ISAAC A. MORRIS.

STAFFORD, England, Nov. 3.

Editors Herald:—My experience in this field thus far has been similar to that in other localities, in one direction; for that for which I did not feel sanguine appeareth, while that for which I felt sanguine tarries. Can you solve this seeming enigma, or suggest a better method than waiting for that which tarries, the waiting to be construed to mean legitimate activity?

If excitement in the political arena, and in the spiritual realm, with assiduous labor, contriving, etc., to give prestige to their respective measures with a view to the perpetuity of their several organizations or societies; the love of horse racing, gambling, from the member of Parliament to the boot-black, ladies not excepted; the love and free use of intoxicants, theaters, fairs, feasts, novel reading, etc., constitutes modern Babylon; then, she shines here, with wonderful effulgence; and he or she who does not wish to be inveigled within her contaminating embrace, should neither touch, taste, nor handle.

Compacts, organizations, etc., are greatly desired; and yet, despite efforts for their perpetuity, disintegration seems to approach their threshold, and soon permeates the whole as if nothing savoring of adhesiveness is to be found among them, and so they soon become divided among themselves; which only furnishes additional evidence that perilous times have come because men are lovers of themselves, covetous, boasters, proud, etc.; all of which necessitates a greater godly zeal by the Latter Day Saints to practically labor, to give prestige to and extend the Savior's kingdom abroad, the only method, government, or body that can possibly survive the dividing power which is abroad in the land. The gospel strongly savors of heavenly adhesiveness, of which we may partake, just in proportion as we by righteous lives partake of the divine nature; in which event we will all become effective peacemakers, which will effectively prevent strife; thus making our spiritual growth visible, to each other and to a divided, distracted, and demoralized world.

The thought that self-examination may be made and judgment passed on one's self, with injury to none, is stimulating indeed. And if this had been more effectually done, our morbid sensitiveness had been less visible, and efforts to instruct, build up, and establish, might have been made more visible and the power of adhesiveness more sensibly felt. God is moving for the consummation of his contemplated designs; and we, according to our gifts and callings, must move too; not for the worse, but for the better, Surely he assumes a grave responsibility who responds to an appointment, by virtue of which he becomes an ambassador of Christ. For if admitting the verity of God's word, he must be amenable to God, for the use or abuse he makes of the power committed to him. If we recognize the reflection of God's will in placing the members in the body as it has pleased him, we can only show ourselves in harmony with that will, by intelligently moving according to the gifts and callings of God, as a preventive to schism, in that body. God's word is replete in itself, therefore restrictive and mandatory, given as a latitude for Spiritual activity as given and accepted law directs; and he or they who transcend or stop short of this law-given latitude, must either evince ignorance or willfulness; either of which would be reflective on any Latter Day Saint, to whom an opportunity has been offered to acquire a knowledge of God's law, reflective of his will. But despite the explicitness of God's word, we are all very largely what we desire to be. Hence as if to meet an exigency, the Lord in the inception of the latter-day work gave assurance that he had spoken to his servants in their weakness, after the manner of their language, that they might come to understanding. Priestly domination or the prostitution of a God-delegated power, to unholy purposes is terrible to contemplate, pernicious and demoralizing in its effects. But the advocacy and claim to absolute or unrestrained liberty would be an ineffective remedy to eliminate or prevent the evils of priestly domination. Christ, from the inception to the termination of his ministerial career, taught, defended, and governed himself by the written word, thereby subjugating his will to his Father's will, and was always right. But, you may think this prelude lengthy.

I left Manchester about the middle of August, visiting Leeds, Sheffield, Clay Cross, Leicester, Burton-on-Trent, striking Stafford October 24. I found zealous and God-fearing Saints, who seemed to anticipate and provide for my necessities, which I trust was duly appreciated. One was added in Leeds, and one in Clay Cross. The branch officials are sons of toil, and in the two former branches, members are scattered over a wide area of country, rendering it impracticable for one official to attend to the requisite visiting, and when approached on the matter, I suggested that when necessity demanded, an increase of visiting officials and sectionizing the branch, believing that branch officials should know the moral status of all the branch members, without making visiting obnoxious to members or burdensome to the officials. Some of the local ministry have been diligent in outdoor preaching, this being the only means of opening new places. No public schoolhouses are accessible here, nor free advertisement of Sunday nor any other day meetings. Big newspapers are sold for a penny, but advertising is expensive. The Saints in Clay Cross have an opportunity to purchase a building site at two shillings per square yard, which is cheap, as land generally sells in this country. The erection of the house of worship would help the cause much, but the Saints there are few, and sons of toil. They were considering the matter, and as I left I suggested a counting of the cost and cautious moving. Most of the branches are heavily taxed with rent for houses of worship.

Prejudice ran high here towards the latter-day work, and in essaying to know the needs of the mission no evidence appears that the spiritual birth of this nation is a near event; but the necessity for godly, persistent labor in preaching the gospel to find the twos of families and ones of cities is apparent. Fishers have to precede the hunters in this latter-day work, and until the hunters are sent, the fishers must be content with nibbles and an occasional substantial bite. We ought not to think present duties monotonous because of their sameness; for thereby we should jeopardize our spiritual growth. Diligence in present duty evinces our loyalty to and love for God, and supplies present spiritual necessities. Doubtless for a known purpose, Christ promised to be with the twos and threes that should meet in his name.

At Burton-on-Trent, the city of breweries, a lively branch of fifty members once existed; but removals, expulsions, etc., have reduced their numbers to but few. No meetings have been held for a long time. I held two meetings there and advised a weekly prayer meeting for the few. I very much enjoyed a brief visit with Bro. G. Potts, of Brooklyn, New York, who was visiting home after eleven years' absence.

I have preached here up to date three times in a chapel owned by the working-men's mission, twice in the Young Men's Christian Association room, four times in a private residence, and to-morrow twice in the Y. M. C. A.'s room again, which is rather an expensive arrangement for the few Saints here; but for the benefit of the cause they desired to have it so. Being sent, I am laboring here as best I can, feeling willing to leave the result with God and the people.

It is to be hoped that from this land the gospel may yet go to other lands. The rainy season is upon us; sunless and rainy days are numerous. Health good, and I, even I, can say that the good Lord has graciously condescended to aid me in presenting his word.

In bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 29.

Editors Herald:—The district meeting was held at Manchester, in the Saints' meeting room at Farnworth, Sunday, October 28, commencing at 10:30 a. m.; Joseph Dewsnup, Sen., in the chair, assisted by Henry Greenwood; James Baty secretary. There were also present, Elders J. Harper, W. Spargo, S. Spargo, T. Mills, D. Hope, F. Bruton, T. Hughes; Priests J. Eckersley, T. Coucil, W. Partington, W. Maddock, T. Coux, T. Spargo, T. Bryan, G. Leggett; Teacher J. Laycock; Deacon J. Spargo, and a large number of the unofficial membership of the Manchester, Farnworth, and Wigan branches. After the opening services the presiding officer addressed the ministerial brethren in reference to the needs and requirements of the district in its branch organization, etc. The meeting was afterward addressed by Brethren Coucil and Mills. At 1:30 p. m. a public meeting was held upon the market place; speaker, Thomas Bryan. Adjourned to the meeting room for fellowship at two p. m. in charge of Henry Greenwood. An excellent time was had; many testimonies borne to the truth of the work, the presence of the Holy Spirit being markedly manifest. At 5:30 p. m. held public meeting at the "Big Lamp," on the main thoroughfare of the town, Bro. Leggett speaking for a short time, but owing to a heavy rainstorm we had to retire to the meeting room, where meeting was opened and addressed by J. Dewsnup, Sen., and James Baty. The services of the day both in and outdoor were much helped and enlivened by the strains of sweet music discoursed by a band of reed, string, and brass instruments, composed of Brethren and Sister Spargo of Wigan, and two friends, assisted by Bro. Green and Bro. Coux of Manchester, some twelve or fourteen instruments altogether. At the close of the day's services a vote of thanks was accorded to the musicians and also to the brethren and sisters of Farnworth for the kind manner in which they had provided for and entertained the visiting brethren and sisters during our sojourn with them. I think we may fairly claim as a result of the meeting the publishing of God's work in that particular part of the vineyard and the spiritual helping and encouragement of the Saints.

Yours in bonds,

JOSEPH DEWSNUP, SEN.

CHARTER OAK, Iowa, Nov. 13.

Editors Herald:—The work in the Galland's Grove district is moving on nicely, all things considered. In addition to those baptized at Galland's Grove, as mentioned in the Herald recently, two were baptized by Elder J. T. Turner; one at, and the other near, Deloit where others were expected to follow soon.

While the writer was holding a series of meetings seven miles south of Cherokee, Cherokee county, Iowa, last June, the Saints there desired to be organized into a branch, as they had been holding weekly services for a year, more or less. The missionary in charge, Alex Hale Smith, was consulted, and permission secured, and the organization effected October 28, 1894, after an interesting and spiritual prayer and testimony meeting. The branch is to be known as the Pilot Rock branch, and it commences its existence with fifteen lively and worthy members, and the following officers: President, Priest Nelson Sheldon; teacher, Nathan H. Hayes; deacon, Albert Crippen; clerk, Lulu E. Hayes. They have a Sunday school in good working order, with Bro. Albert Crippen as superintendent and Sr. Lulu Hayes as secretary. They are using the Gospel Quarterlies, and though they have but few small children to attend, I was glad to notice that each Saint was in attendance and took hold with a will, evidently believing the Quarterlies contained information good for all. The Gospel Quarterlies are the best I every saw, and are indeed a credit to the church, and should be used by every Sunday school within the church. We now have ten branches in this district, in the most of which there is a flourishing Sunday school, and it is to be hoped that the few that are lacking in this particular will soon place themselves in line with the onward march and organize and sustain a Sunday school. I am pleased to say that the Sunday school is doing a good work in our district, and I hope the good work may continue.

In bonds,

C. E. BUTTERWORTH.

BANK, Md., Nov. 14.

Editors Herald:—Since writing from Pleasant Hill, Maryland, four Sabbaths and week-day evenings were spent near Barksdale Station, just above this village. During this time the district conference and Sunday school association convened. Brooklyn church was represented by Bro. Thomas Lester, and Philadelphia by more than a dozen of her earnest workers. Bro. F. G. Pitt, of Chicago, was present, giving vim and vitality to the exercises. Bro. Kent and the writer felt pleased to have his assistance, which greatly augmented our effort at that place. Come again. The tent was quite well filled most every session. A heavy storm prevailed Saturday evening and most all night, yet the Saints rejoiced and praised the Lord. At Chesapeake City we spent the last two weeks of our tent campaign of 1894. Here we encountered a heavy gale that lasted for five days. During this about all we could do was to keep things intact and listen to the flapping of the canvas, which became very monotonous. This place was a new opening. The weather being against us we could hardly tell what might have been done under more favorable circumstances; however, we took the hint, and when the squall subsided we folded our tent and laid it away for the winter; and well we did, for the weather has been too cool for tent work. Since then I have spent most of my time in Brooklyn, trying to assist in bringing the work before the people, delivering several lectures as per handbill. Quite a few strangers present. On October 18 I was called to Providence Mills, Maryland, to preach the funeral sermon of Bro. Hugh Carr. He cut a very small pimple while shaving on Sunday morning, and in a short time his face began to pain him and to swell. On the following Wednesday evening he expired. He was strong and hearty. This brother was with us when we set up the tent in Harford county, Maryland and the one who came so near being hit with a stone just after the close of the service; one night soon after Bro. Kent and the writer had caused two lewd fellows to be arrested for disturbing our meeting. The stone missed his head and struck a tree that he was standing near. So we go, one by one!

I returned home last night from Bellair, where we went to appear in court against those parties, but discovered public opinion was against us: that we were spotted as "Mormon ambassadors" direct from Utah. Having made a Sate case of it we went before the State's Attorney and outlined our faith and work. He told us it was just possible we would not get a hearing because the jury had been buttonholed by these parties and their minds poisoned against us, but with the understanding that we were not Mormons (polygamists) he would go before the grand jury and state our case. After waiting patiently for twenty-four hours we were permitted to appear before that august body and there gave testimony against those fellows we had arrested July 3. It is a long rope to pull to compel evil and corrupt men to give you a chance to worship God in peace. Next will be the court, if they make a case of it. So we wait, hoping and trusting that the millennium will hasten.

A. H. PARSONS.

MALHEUR, Oregon, Nov. 15.

Editors Herald.—It is with pleasure I write to let you know that Bro. H. L. Holt has been with us. He preached fifteen sermons with good liberty to a goodly number of people, removing much prejudice, and making many friends, who wish him to come again. This is the first seed sown on this ground. I feel hopeful of the near future, for there are those here who will make worthy Saints, and I sincerely ask the prayers of the faithful that I may be able by the help of our heavenly Father to do the work which is left here for one of his lonely handmaidens to do, that I may be able to live and work to the good of the good seed which hath been sown by our worthy brother. I will endeavor to be faithful, as I ever pray for the prosperity of Zion. Your sister, LIZZIE WEISE.

ARDOISE, N. S., Oct. 25.

Editors Herald.—Our conference came off on the 14th inst., and though it was not as large a gathering as some, still there were features about it long to be remembered. Bro. Davison and wife and three children were here, also Bro. Newcomb and wife. On Saturday afternoon we met for general conference business, at which time it was announced that there would be a lecture delivered that evening, on the past, present, and future of the Jews; so, sure enough, as we entered the chapel at seven o'clock we were faced on the opposite end by a large chart nearly the entire width of the building, enabling the speaker to show the people just what he was talking about. This chart was gotten up by H. J. Davison and reflects great credit upon him. It covers thirty-seven square feet and must have taken time and labor physically and mentally.

On Sunday morning a sacrament, prayer, and testimony meeting was held that will not soon be forgotten, at least by the writer. At two o'clock there was a Sunday school concert and although heavy rain prevented some of the children from coming, the affair showed that there had been an interest taken by the young people.

On Sunday evening the same subject was taken up, or continued, as on Saturday evening, and was handled in a way that had a tendency to wear off the idea of leaving out of religion the Jew question. We left for home accompanied by Brn. Davison and Newcomb. On Monday morning we were brought face to face with the fact that parting is a thing of the present, and as we go forth to the toil and battle of life alone, we ask ourselves, Ah, when and where shall we all meet again? Bro. Davison had to hurry home as he had to leave on Tuesday for Maine.

In the faith,

J. W. DIMOCK.

MILLERSBURG, Ill., Nov. 19.

Editors Herald.—A fortnight ago, even the 5th inst., I was thrown violently from a buggy, at the Evansville and Terre Haute depot, at Washington, Indiana, and forsooth, my left collar bone was broken and smashed! I regretted to have my plans for the season frustrated. "Man proposes, but God disposes." I am at home for rest and repairs; and, thank fortune, I am getting on fairly well. Our bodily health, as also that of my family, is all right. I have not lost a Sunday since getting hurt, and now I am happy to state that I am getting well and feeling quite hopeful.

My labors have been crowned with visible success to some considerable extent. I hope the broadcast sowing will bring rich returns, for, indeed, I have strewn with a willing, liberal hand. I know full well that many, very many, have heard my voice, in both the defense and advocacy of the gospel of peace and good will. It will do the average hearer but little if any permanent good to say of our ministry, "They are well posted in the Scriptures; they are in deep earnest; they are intelligent; they are honest;" etc.; unless they are led to accept the message of peace and pardon; of life, light, and immortality, that they freely bear. I heartily agree with Bro. Roth in the view he takes of delivering a score or so of discourses in a new opening when the interest will at all justify so doing. Seedtime, cultivation, and harvest form a trio. The culture of the orchard or field takes the major portion of the time.

The tender care of the lambs and the feeding of the sheep are factors in the Church of God. Law and order, discipline and government, are all necessary and essential in their place; without which, confusion, contention, darkness, and death would ensue. Presiding authorities are a blessing to any local organization.

The moneys that pass into the coffers of the church, and from thence to the ministry, are largely the accumulations from bone labor, muscular toil, and muscle work. Means contributed at the sacrifice of nerve force, domestic comfort, and personal convenience, are sacred gifts, and should be expended very judiciously. The missionaries that offer their time and talent to the church—the body that agrees with and appoints them, are under moral obligation to get into their fields hastily and stay there faithfully, nor run home for every trivial cause.

A man is not expected, nor yet is he fit to represent the great work who does not love his family with his whole heart, fervently. The closer the home tendrils cluster and cling around his devoted heart, the harder he will fight when engaged in carrying forward this holy war, and "don't you forget it." The family altar and shrine and the home adorers will be an incentive to do and dare when on the mountains, in the plains, amid the busy marts, in rural retreats, or down by the murmuring sea, or on a foreign strand.

An honorable war is far better than an ignominious peace; hence Elder L. F. Daniel and your humble servant had a few theological tilts not long since. These debates were by times hotly contested, but withal, bloodless battles. They were the entering wedges to many hearts. We need laborers to follow up the good-begun work. The field is indeed wide, but laborers are so very few they are not adequate for the needs and demands of the work scarcely anywhere. May the Lord our God raise up, call, qualify, and equip more valiant ministers, I do greatly desire.

M. T. SHORT.

DAMASCUS, Ont., Nov. 12.

Editors Herald.—I arrived here November 3, where I am holding forth. This is a new place. I opened it up last summer. Several are quite interested. I baptized a very promising man here, who formerly belonged to the Church of England. He is all alive to the work; others we expect soon. There is one gentleman who was an infidel until he heard me preach; so he stated to me the other evening, and now both he and his wife are strong believers and expect to join us ere long. So the good work rolls on. To God be all the praise. In bonds, ELDER S. W. TOMLINSON.

Original Articles.

THE RESURRECTION.

IT is not to incite controversy that I present a few thoughts on the subject of the resurrection, but to suggest the idea that God has provided that there shall be a resurrection of the dead of all mankind. Jesus, who is "the resurrection and the life," has declared that "all who are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth." Paul affirms, "as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive," and "that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust." And Jesus says that "they that have done good, shall come forth" in "the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." And Daniel declares:—

Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt. —Daniel 12: 2.

If the phrase, "Many of them that sleep shall awake," means that some may not awake, it would mean the righteous as well as the wicked; that is, that some of the righteous would not awake. It is said by some that the words, "So in Christ shall all be made alive," means that "all who are in Christ" shall be made alive; but this does not imply that those who are not "in Christ" shall not be made alive, but is simply an assertion that those who are "in Christ shall be made alive." But the statement is clear and positive that, "all that are in the graves shall hear his voice [the voice of Christ] and shall come forth," and equally unequivocal is the declaration, "that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust," and that, "as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." The words, "as in Adam all die," signify that by or through Adam all die, so in, or by, or through Christ shall "all be made alive." By disobedience of Adam all have sinned, or that all have sinned in, or by, or through Adam, who represented all. The phrase, "even so in Christ shall all be made alive" does not signify that all who are in Christ shall all be made alive, for it proceeds to say, "But every man in his own order. . . . They that are Christ's at his coming, and then cometh the end [the rest, or remainder, or balance], when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God the Father," at the close of his thousand years' reign, the same sort of phrase as John uses, when he says:—

The rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished.—Rev. 20: 4.

At the close of Christ's millennial reign, or thousand years' reign, the "rest of the dead," those who are not "Christ's" at his coming will be raised, so that those who were Christ's at his coming, and those who were not his then, will all have a resurrection, so all "shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live."

There is no doctrine more clearly taught in the books of the church than that there shall be a "resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust" and that whether a man is in Christ or not, he shall "live again" if he dies, but every man in his own order. Christ the firstfruits, or Christ and the firstfruits, then they who are Christ's at his coming, and the "rest of the dead" when the thousand years are finished.

The earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain. Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. And the earth shall cast out the dead.—Isa. 26: 21, 19, 20.

They who have done good shall come forth in the resurrection of life, while they who have done evil shall come forth in the resurrection of damnation; but to life or damnation all shall come forth. While no man can elect himself to resurrection (for all will live again whether good or bad), yet every one can secure a part in the first resurrection, or "the resurrection of the just," but he that misses that resurrection will "come forth" in "the resurrection of damnation," or the resurrection of the unjust, for "there shall be a resurrection of the just and of the unjust," and every man must take part in the one or the other; for all who do not have part in the resurrection of the just must surely partake of the other.

For there is no middle ground—a man must either be just or unjust, he must be either a saint or a sinner, or either a good or an evil man, and he must rise either to life or damnation; and he can choose which it shall be, but it must be either one or the other. Whether he will or not, he must be raised; as he must die in or through Adam, so he must live again through or in Christ; but whether to everlasting life or everlasting shame and contempt, it will be as he may choose to have it, but no man can be raised or left in the grave as he will. Doubtless the unjust would prefer to not rise, but rise he must. All must live again, "but every man in his own order;" but what that order may be every man must decide for himself. If he decides to be "in Christ" he will rise at his coming, but if he prefers to remain out of Christ he will be numbered with the "rest of the dead" who will not "live again until the thousand years are finished" and will come forth in that "order." Then "cometh the end" the consummation, the closing act, the conclusion as the words, "To telos" mean; or the last band, or regiment, or order, after Christ has reigned a thousand years, for "the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished." The last closing act will be the resurrection of those who are not Christ's, and this will include the whole world. By that time all will have been raised who have ever died.

No one can choose whether to be resurrected, or to remain in the grave; for all must come forth whether good or evil, just or unjust; but every one can choose to have part in the "first resurrection." Paul's statement, "If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead," should be more properly translated, "If by any means I may be resurrected out from among the dead ones," or in other words, "I might attain unto the first resurrection," for he could not desire to attain unto a resurrection when he knew that "there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust," and that whether he was in Christ or not he would be raised from the dead; but he sought to attain unto the first or chief resurrection. He could not be solicitous about a resurrection, but he was desirous so that "by any means" he might "attain" unto the resurrection of the just, not to any kind of a resurrection. Christ says that "all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." It is just as true that there are multitudes of the wicked who are "in their graves" as that there are any righteous ones who are in their graves, and all shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they who hear shall live. The world is composed of the "just" and the "unjust," all who are not "the just" are the "unjust," and "there shall be a resurrection of the just and the unjust," "but every man in his own order." "They that are Christ's at his coming," "then cometh the end," "to telos," the last band or regiment, when he shall have put down all rule, and authority, and power, or "the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished."

The books of the church—the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants teach fully and plainly the resurrection of all the dead. The last enemy death shall be destroyed. Death and hell are to "deliver up the dead that are in them." Death and hell (or the grave) are to be "cast into the lake of fire and brimstone," not to be tormented as they are not sentient beings—but to be destroyed. Death and hell or hades—the grave—being destroyed there will be no more death or hell; for all the dead are by this time resurrected, for "death and hell delivered up the dead that were in them." "The last enemy, death, shall be destroyed." "There shall be no more death," for death will then come to an end in that all the dead are made alive, but "every man in his own order." As in, by, or through Adam all die, even so in, or by, or through Christ shall all be made alive.

T. W. SMITH.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, February, 1894.

THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL.

MIGHTY empires, powerful dynasties, and governments, both great and small, almost innumerable, have arisen, figured, flourished, warred, waned, faded, and fallen. When they were marching up to the zenith of their development their steps were firm, proud, and stately. Martial prowess, heroic fortitude, military acumen, legislative, executive, and judicial strength, commerce and trade, mining and building, the task of subduing and cultivating the soil, all conspired to development and stability; but when the intellectual, moral, and spiritual traits were neglected, and due and becoming respect, reverence, and veneration for the Supreme Being were wanting, disintegration, decay, decline, inevitable downfall, utter ruin, and lonesome, perpetual oblivion were written in the very nature of things.

The corroding hand of time has penned the fate of the slumbering nations and extinct races. They writhed, so to speak, between the upper and nether millstones; but our grist is between the improved rollers that spin and whirl with incredible speed and Herculean force. The propelling power of remote ages was animate, physical force; the free, wild wind, and the rushing stream.

Skilled labor is now accurately and automatically performed by iron fingers set in motion by the power of steam, or the agency of the invisible electricity that sweeps over the land or rushes under the great thoroughfares of the world, the high seas. If humility and gratitude, adoration and praise, honesty and integrity, faith and devotion, love and mercy, truth and righteousness, holiness and godliness, and every other divine attribute, grace, virtue, qualification, and perfection would keep pace with the wonderful disclosures of science, the improved methods of learning, the facilities for education, intellectual development, and the march of human reason, all would be well.

In the mad race of life, in which the toiling masses have to work, scheme, and twist to keep their heads above water and gain a meager subsistence, the brain is stupefied from over-exertion, the heart is blunted in the sharp competition, morality is in the background, and the spiritual and divine nature and life are murdered in the relentless fray. Syndicates, combines, and trusts roll their massive juggernaut wheels over the helpless millions, while corrupt legislators are paid to connive at their sins and oil their tracks. Sordid avarice and a lust for wealth, honor, and power, when successful, are lauded to the skies, popularized, and deified. The moneyed power too often manipulates the affairs of church and state, whereas merit and adaptability should turn the scale.

Asia, the cradle of mankind, has been an olden battle field. The Assyrian hosts were assaulted by the Parthian archers. When pomp, splendor, haughty pride, royal extravagance, and voluptuous corruption animated to a wild delirium of drunken debauchery within Babylon, the queen city and magnificent capital of the world, the tramp of Darius' army was the muffled drumbeat and funeral dirge of the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the "Chaldees' excellency." Cyrus, the Persian, was a contemporary and coördinate king with the Median monarch. His highness more especially interested himself in the welfare of his Jewish subjects and their restoration to the Holy Land; and thus they were enabled to rebuild Jerusalem, reërect the temple, resume services therein, and rejoice before the Lord. The skill, valor, and conquests of the intrepid Greeks, and the successes, reverses, and death of imperial Rome have all gone into the history of the dying world.

God's government takes the good from out of every nation, tongue, tribe, and people. Gold and diamonds, rubies and pearls, the precious metals and the valuable ores, are not flung carelessly away because found among filth and dirt, worthless rocks and drift. The gems of purity and real worth, whenever and wherever beheld by the all-seeing eye that never slumbers and that can peer through the darkness as well as the light, are all noted and scheduled for the eternal kingdom.

All the rulers of men and the systems they have framed to protect property, foster commerce, develop the resources of all material wealth, administer justice, promote the happiness and usefulness of the people, that have existed, do and will exist by the will and permission of God. Righteousness exalteth an individual; and nations are composed of units and integral parts.

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord.—Ps. 33:12.

The nation and kingdom that will not love, obey, and serve the the Lord will waste away and utterly perish in their sins as heretofore. Persons and institutions that are wanting in merit will be placed in the balance, tried, and tested, and, lo, they will be as light and worthless as the thistle down. They will vanish like smoke and be quenched as tow; all when the great change shall come when our earth will be be resurrected.

They shall proceed no further.

Whose day is come, when their iniquity shall have an end.

For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be. But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace. For the Lord loveth judgment, and forsaketh not his Saints; they are preserved for ever.—Ps. 37: 10, 11, 28.

The merits, or supposed superabundant merits, of Jesus Christ, martyrs, canonized saints, elect angels, and the infinite love and mercy of the Lord of hosts, cannot deliver a wicked son, or a sinful daughter by imputed righteousness. This position is stated plainly in Ezekiel 14. Any theory that teaches to shift responsibility or evade the consequences of continual sinning, assails the free moral agency of the race, dethrones right reason, assassinates a noble manhood, and kills the soul.

The old trouble is that the many are content to let the few do the thinking; and so arrogant, cunning tyrants have molded and shaped public opinion. These wily knaves have defined the rights of man all to suit their own base and vile purposes, and have actually set metes and bounds to civil liberty. Not content to swim in the cesspools of political corruption, these fugitives and vagabonds have invaded the sacred precincts of the heart, and have prescribed how and how much or how little to believe of the word of God, in order to be popular. These parasites on the body politic; these running sores and spreading cancers; these vampire bats and blood leeches, with the doctrines and commandments of men; with cunning crafts and traditions of the elders; with confessions of faith, articles of religion, disciplines of church government, dogmas of belief, commentaries, catechisms, creeds, etc., have stolen away the key of knowledge; for, as in ancient times, they will not go into the kingdom of God themselves, and they that would enter in they have and do hinder. It is sad indeed, cruel in the extreme; damaging beyond calculation, and irreparably ruinous, for hirelings, hypocrites, fat shepherds, false teachers, wolves in sheep's attire, pulpit cowards, and blind guides, to flatter and cajole, to wheedle and gull, to dupe and cheat, to benumb and and debase, to deaden and seal, damn and deliver all into the care and clutches of the demons and fiends of the infernal regions of despair.

As the hottest battle harbingers the olive bough and balm of peace, the darkest hour presages the morning light and joy, the biting frost and the bitter cold invigorate the body and fructify the gardens and fields with unseen chemical magnetism, to loosen, enliven, and enrich; so the seeming evils of the age but tend to discipline, develop, and perfect the saint, and promote the glory, power, and wisdom of the longsuffering God of compassionate love. Our Creator, Benefactor, Preserver, Judge, and King has done, does, and ever will do right under any and all circumstances. Each phase of existence and our diversified experiences, are but parts of the whole; and as the Lord spoke to Job from out the whirlwind, so he has brought, can, and will bring order, peace, and blessedness from this endless variety of heterogeneous elements, if we will be submissive and obedient to his righteous and holy will. If, however, we sin, rebel, and walk in our own ways; and love, obey, and serve Satan, we array ourselves against Omnipotence. As long as heat melts ice and water quenches fire, truth will rebuke, defeat, and dethrone error; and virtue, fidelity, and purity will condemn, abominate, and abhor the slums of profanity, vulgarity, drunkenness, and debauchery.

If we let the incoming tide of evil bear us on its crest, the ebb will carry us away out on the wild, deep sea. Retribution will sooner or later overtake the persistent wrongdoer, and seal his doom, fell despair will be his lot, and eternal condemnation and everlasting contempt will be his heritage, according to the Scriptures. Inasmuch as the kingdoms, empires, and governments of the world are to be all overturned, demolished, and laid perpetually waste, it behooves us to cast about and become integral parts, live branches, and lively stones in that order of things that is perpetual, unshaken, and immovable. Let me entreat a sad, sinning, dying world to halt, repent, and become soundly converted to God and his kingdom, lest peradventure you may not fill the measure of your creation, and come to grief and shame. I would judiciously advise, humbly beseech, fervently implore, and vehemently urge you to not procrastinate till the ever elusive to-morrow what you ought to do to-day, lest the balances of justice indicate your worthlessness, lightness, and irretrievable ruin. Turn, O dying sinner, to the paths of peace and duty, and tread the King's highway of mercy and hope, faith and love, in order that you be not weighed and found wanting.

M. T. SHORT.

THE MERIDIAN OF TIME.

AND the Lord spake unto Adam, saying, Inasmuch as thy children are conceived in sin, even so, when they begin to grow up sin conceiveth in their hearts, and they taste the bitter, that they may know to prize the good. And it is given unto them to know good from evil; wherefore, they are agents unto themselves. And I have given unto you another law and commandment; wherefore teach it unto your children, that all men, everywhere, must repent, or they can in no wise inherit the kingdom of God. For no unclean thing can dwell there, or dwell in his presence; for in the language of Adam, Man of Holiness is his name; and the name of his Only Begotten is the Son of Man, even Jesus Christ, a righteous judge, who shall come in the meridian of time.—Gen. 6: 57-60, I. T.

1. On the proviso, that Christ was born in the year 1 A. D., and on the sixth day of the month now called April, then was such date the meridian of time, in some sense, whether discoverable or otherwise.

2. On the proviso, that it was four thousand years from the fall of Adam to the birth of Christ; and provided also that it was to be two thousand years from the birth of Christ until the millennium began; and as the millennium, from the meaning of the term, is to comprise one thousand years; and as the earth is to be destroyed not many years after the close of the millennium; and provided also, that the earth will not begin to be reconstructed until the end of one thousand years after the close of the millennium, then was the date of the birth of Christ the meridian of all that time that was to elapse from the fall of Adam on down to the time that the new heaven and the new earth will begin to be prepared.

3. On the proviso that Enoch began his ministry abroad about the time that Methuselah was born, it would then appear that Enoch uttered the prophecy that Christ would come in the meridian of time about three thousand and thirteen years before the time that he did so come. And as the earth is to be destroyed not many years after the close of the millennium, and supposing that number of years to be thirteen, it would then turn out to be also three thousand and thirteen from the birth of Christ to the destruction of the earth; thus placing his coming in the flesh in the meridian of all that time that was to intervene between Enoch's day and the destruction of the earth.

4. On the proviso that it was two thousand years from the call of Abraham to the birth of Christ; and provided also that it was to be two thousand years from his birth to the time when the millennium began, then was the time of his birth the meridian of all that time that was to intervene between the call of Abraham to the progenitorship of the race through which Christ was to descend as to the flesh and the time that all things are to be accomplished to a fullness in regard to that race as such.

5. On the proviso that the expression, "the meridian of time," may be construed to mean any point of time from which time may be reckoned either backward or forward, then was the time of the birth of Christ the meridian of time; for the one reason, if no more, that from thence, by a vast portion of mankind, the years are numbered both retrospectively and prospectively.

A. J. MAPES.

WESTPORT, Missouri.

A FEW THOUGHTS AND QUESTIONS FOR THINKERS.

1. IS IT wrong, or unwise, or unsafe, or contrary to the true policy of the church, to discuss, in a timely and proper manner, any part of our faith, through the Herald? If so, then why is it?

2. Should all controversy be excluded from the Herald? If so, then are we to consider the published views of those writers who may happen to be the first to get into print, as a proper representation of the views of the church? If we are, then what about the balance who have not been permitted to write or speak on the subjects treated upon? that is, not to the church in general, at least. Is this the best kind of representation that the church can secure through the Herald?

If it is wrong for any writer to controvert what another has written, when it has been published in the Herald, then would it not be the better way to exclude all articles except those which have been written by the editors? This would put all others in an equality in this respect; and would it not vest the right to represent the faith and doctrine of the church with these who are supposed to know what that faith and doctrine are? It would, too, have a tendency to still further preserve the "equanimity" of that class who are disturbed when they see different and conflicting views appear in our church organ; for, as it is, contributors not only differ to some extent among themselves, but it sometimes occurs that they differ from the editors of the Herald. And if it is necessary that the equanimity of all classes should be preserved, then these differences must not be expressed, neither through the Herald nor in conference capacity.

3. If the discussion of any particular part of our faith, including, of course, the merits and claims of its accepted revelations, whether those revelations are found in the Bible, Book of Mormon, or the Doctrine and Covenants, or somewhere else, by friends of the cause and believers in our faith, from the point of view that they are divine, when had through the Herald, will destroy the "equanimity of both the investigator and many in the church," then what will be the effect upon this same class of investigators and church members when they hear and read the unfriendly, unfair, bitter, but otherwise able, attacks of our many opponents? (Such as Clark Braden and his like, for instance.) Will "both the investigator and many in the church," be made better, or stronger, or thereby be better prepared to withstand these attacks from without, because of never having discussed these matters themselves, or never having heard or read the discussion of them by others who believe in all the revelations which have been accepted by the church? I think not. A friendly discussion of the revelations which we believe have come from God, is one important means of acquiring knowledge concerning them; and the more we know about that which God has given to us, the more we will know about him. If these revelations are actually divine, such discussion will tend to confirm both minister and member in the belief of their divinity. If they are not divine, we do not want to be governed by them at all, and the sooner we find it out, the better it will be for us. Is there a Latter Day Saint who will object to this sentiment? If so, let him hold up his hand. We may be told, right here, that some are not able to bear such strong food; that "strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil." Yes, but it should be borne in mind that the Herald is the church organ; in dealing out food to the needy ones, it is its province and duty to feed—not the church at Lamoni, or at Snyder, Oklahoma, alone, but the whole church of God, and all who are out of the church, who are willing to partake. How can it do this except it contain food which is adapted to all classes, both the strong and the weak? Children and dyspeptics need not partake of all the different kinds of food which is set before them. Let them eat that which they are able to assimilate and digest. But must the strong, hard working men and women be denied the privilege of a dish of beans and a piece of beef steak, because children and dyspeptics are seated with them at the same table?

4. Is it not a fact that some of the revelations contained in all the sacred books of the church, have what appear to be weak points? Now if these revelations are true and divine, these points will no longer appear weak to us when we understand them. But how shall we secure the needed knowledge? And who needs that knowledge? Is it the whole church, or the ministry only? If "all discussion on such matters should properly be relegated to the precincts of a council of the ministry or a 'General Assembly,' and not permitted to enter the Herald columns," how are the masses of the church to become informed concerning them? Is it sufficient to merely give them the benefit of the decisions of the councils of the ministry, or of a General Assembly? Please do not misunderstand me. The importance of these "councils," provided for in the law, I cheerfully concede; and that any matter, when thought proper by the body, may be referred to one of these councils, or to the "General Assembly," is not denied.

5. It is said that "discussion, controversy, and true criticism, are both right and necessary in their place," but "removed from that into the confines of other realms, they serve to injure, retard, and finally destroy, rather than to promote unity."

Are we to understand from this that all "controversy and true criticism," should be excluded from the Herald? It might be a pleasant thing to some "investigators and many in the church," to have such a church paper as that, but I think it would be one of the greatest calamities that could come to the church. The strength and unity resulting from the educational work of such a paper as that would be too much like the unity and strength found among the followers of Brigham Young and Co., and among the hosts of people who believe the Pope to be infallible! Such strength is weakness, and such unity is largely a concentration of ignorance which can never stand the test of time. Unity, proper, is that which results from an intelligent and voluntary belief in and obedience to the same truths. "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good," was written to members as well as ministers in the church, and it involves the necessity of examination, criticism; and sometimes controversy is a valuable aid in helping us to separate the chaff from the wheat. That proper "controversy and true criticism" have ever wrought ruin among the people of God, is, I think, a great mistake. Both their legitimate and final results are to extirpate errors, unite and make strong, in the truth, all intelligent and truth-loving people.

To exclude all controversy and criticism from the Herald, would, it appears to me, be taking a long step backward, and a very dangerous one too. But then I am only one. Herald readers and contributors, what do you think about it? Should our Herald contain but one set of views on all subjects connected with our faith? and if it should, who shall write them?

J. R. LAMBERT.

GOD DID NOT CREATE EVIL.

WE believe it to be the aim of all true Latter Day Saints to rightly divide the Scriptures. In this city of Manchester we have instituted a monthly priesthood meeting for this purpose, where intellectual subjects may be presented and discussed. The subject, "Did God create evil?" (which implies sin) as stated in Isaiah 45:7, Jeremiah 18:11, and other chapters, received a lengthened consideration at the above institute. There were some for and others against the writer's views, viz., that God did not create evil as defined above; hence the writer's great pleasure at the able manner the subject was handled by Bro. T. W. Williams in his article, "Higher Criticism" in the Herald of July 18, page 462.

The following are some of the proofs brought forward to show that God was not the author of evil:—

He is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living.—Mark 12:27.

He would be the God of the dead if he had created sin or evil.

God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man.—James 1:13.

Sin is the transgression of the law.—1 John 3:4.

Where no law is, there is no transgression. Romans 4:15.

By the law is the knowledge of sin.—Romans 3:20.

Without the law sin was dead.—Rom. 7:8.

The sting of death is sin.—1 Cor. 15:56.

God sending his Son, condemned sin in the flesh.—Rom. 8:3.

If he had created evil, he would not have condemned it.

Christ through death destroyed him that had the power of death. (Heb. 2:14.)

It was said that God in creating all things must have created evil, and Genesis 2:8, 9 was used to show that the tree of the knowledge of good and evil was planted in Eden. But God pronounced this with all other trees "very good." Sin only being manifest when the law was broken, in the first effects of the broken law, Adam and Eve perceived that they were naked, and from this point is brought into operation the wonderful power by which the sexes are drawn together, as seen in Genesis 1:28, to increase and multiply. It is said that this inherent power, when perverted, has moved armies, states, kingdoms, nations, and empires to war and contentions.

The Prophet Nephi in the Book of Mormon, page 58, tells us that if Adam and Eve had not fallen, all things created must have remained in the same state forever, "having no joy for they knew no misery: doing no good for they knew no sin. But behold, all things have been done in the wisdom of him who knoweth all things." On page 59 Book of Mormon, we are also told by the same prophet that "Adam fell, that men might be; and men are, that they might have joy," in the ultimate development and happiness of the human race. As evil or sin did not originate in Eden, we will have to trace it further.

In Luke 10:18 are these remarkable words:—

I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven.

Evil or sin must have been in operation there.

In Isaiah 14:12 there is something like a lament for this stupendous fall; viz.:—

How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning.

One cannot help joining in a lament over a fall of such magnitude, affecting as it does the destiny of worlds.

In 2 Peter 2:4 it is stated that the angels that sinned were cast down into chains of darkness to be reserved unto judgment. No doubt the sin or rebellion was brought about by the misdirection of their agencies, and thus sinning under the higher conditions of the celestial law appears to be an unpardonable sin, being against the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as seen above, by the offending angels being consigned to chains, or a state of darkness, until that final judgment of the great day. We look in vain for any mitigation or amelioration of the condition of those rebellious angels; the answer comes back, No probationary state admissible or possible. The punishment of those who took part in that terrible uprising against the great Majesty, God, appears to have been by degrees, according to the part they took in support of their leader, the Devil; but this does not prove that sin originated in heaven. Our research must therefore be extended.

Our Father, the great Omnipotent, who is above all—omnipresent, by his power, and omniscient, seeing all; the great, Eternal, self-existing being, called God, or good, the source of all light, life, power, excellence, and majesty; having no bounds nor limits to his domain, worlds without end—in these eternal conditions it is not possible that good could have had a beginning. This being so, the opposite to good, called evil, or, the knowledge of evil, must have existed eternally, the one not being appreciable without the other. The creation of sin is only possible by breaking a known law, and it appears to be the only thing that men or devils can create. God alone is the Creator. In our limited research to find out the source of evil, implying sin, we have traced the subject to the margin of eternal conditions, beyond which we may not proceed, and do hereby respectfully withdraw from further exploration; still earnestly hoping for a higher scholarship in the celestial school of our God.

F. ARMSTRONG.

October, 1894.

One fourth of what we eat keeps us, and the other three fourths we keep at the peril of our lives.—Abernethy.

Miscellaneous Department.

DEDICATION.

The dedication at Edgerton Junction branch, Missouri, took place November 11, in charge of T. T. Hinderks. At the appointed time, eleven a. m., the Saints gathered with a large crowd of people at their new place of worship. After singing, "We dedicate to thee this house," etc., William Lewis offered the dedicatory prayer. After another hymn had been sung, J. T. Kinnaman preached the dedicatory sermon. The vast crowd of people could not all be seated. At the close of the sermon the report of the building committee was read and the building was turned over to the branch complete and paid for.

The building is beautifully located, about one hundred yards north of Edgerton Junction, on the southeast corner of T. J. Mauzey's farm. The building is 26x40 on solid stone foundation; well lighted and neatly carpeted. Cost of building complete, nearly $1,000. This building was erected at a great sacrifice of a few, and now stands as a beautiful monument, a credit to the Saints.

Many were disappointed at not seeing President Smith, as it was announced through the county paper that he was expected.

At the close of the meeting dinner was announced. There was sufficient food to feed a thousand people, and all were invited to stay and partake of the good things that the sisters had prepared for that occasion. The sisters loaded three large tables in front of the church with the good things Missouri had produced. After the blessing was asked Saint and sinner partook of the bounties spread before them.

At 2:30 p. m., preaching by T. T. Hinderks to a crowded house of attentive listeners. At the close of the service, an old gray-headed Baptist said, "Well, we have this day been fed both temporally and spiritually." At 7:30 William Lewis addressed the audience. So was spent a profitable day with the Saints of the Edgerton Junction branch. Bro. J. T. Kinnaman remained to conduct a series of meetings.

SCATTERED MEMBERS.

Will the brethren and sisters whose names appear below who may see this notice report to the secretary, W. L. Gorton, or president W. Vickery, of the Plano branch as to their whereabouts, and if living in the vicinity of a branch of the church ask for your letters to unite there. And if any should know of those who do not read the Herald, or have died, will they please report, if possible give date of death, or post office address of those living, and oblige your brethren. Sarah L. Cramer, W. H. Pomeroy, Julia E. Willis, Harris Cook, Silas J. Cook, Candace L. Cook, Charles J. Roberts, Victoria Carver, Joseph S. Scott, Peter Moe (75), Joseph Rasey (94), Hans Anderson, Lillian R. Wilsey, Martha L. VanOrder, Elizabeth Wilson, Permelia Nelson, Ira Mack, John D. Briggs, Clarence E. Mason, John Baerman, Jesse M. Nance, Robert S. Warnock, Mary Elliot,

Susan Gable, Mary A. Nance, Clara Cole, Maggie E. Farlow, Elizabeth Miller, Bertha E. Young, Elizabeth Randall, Richard Randall, Edwin L. Skeen, Caroline S. Cays, Christiana Christian, William H. Barter, Mary Jones, Cora Luella White, Milo J. Wicks, Mercy Annetta Hogle, Lydia Mitchell, Christian Peterson, Abraham S. Hawks, Edith Irene Smith, Mary Harwood, Annie R. Northcutt, Benjamin Leland, Ellen J. Tucker. W. VICKERY.

PLANO, Illinois, Nov. 9.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The conference of Southwestern Texas district will meet at San Antonio, on February 22, at seven p. m.

W. H. DAVENPORT, Sec.

Conference of the Independence district will convene at Armstrong, Kansas, December 8 and 9. All the ministry of the district are requested to be present. The election of officers takes place at this session, also other important business will be transacted; therefore come.

R. MAY, Pres.

NOTICES.

To the People of Southern Oregon:—Parties desiring me to visit and preach for them will please write me to that effect addressing me at Drain, Oregon, care of William Taylor. Those not writing I will not call on, taking it for granted they don't think it advisable.

Yours respectfully,

HIRAM L. HOLT.

BORN.

COCHRAN.—At Lamoni, Iowa, May 10, 1894, to Bro. Frank E. and Sr. Emma R. Cochran, a son; named Wallace Edwin; blessed July 29, 1894, under the hands of Elders H. A. Stebbins, A. S. Cochran, and R. S. Salyards. Having a healthy body the bright spirit within gives promise of tarrying upon earth, and of living a useful and worthy life.

LIGHT.—Ila V. Light, daughter of George H. and Mary A. Light, was born at Wood River, Hall county, Nebraska, on November 30, 1890. Blessed at Lamoni, Iowa, April 22, 1894, by Elders J. H. Lake and J. R. Lambert.

DIED.

DUNCAN.—At his home, in Oakland, California, of typhoid malaria, Bro. George R. Duncan, one of the trustworthy and trusted men of spiritual Israel, whom family and church alike know not well how to spare. Our deceased brother's call is a solemn reminder to those remaining behind that the healthiest and strongest are powerless to resist the enemy's poisoned darts, unless the Great Victor interpose his mighty hand to shield, or pluck the weapon out, and extract the deadly venom from its wound. Stricken by the fell disease Monday, October 15, after every help that faith could give, and notwithstanding medical skill and loving hands of wife and kindred's gentle nursing, on Monday, October 29, our esteemed brother passed away to his rest, his sweet rest in the Savior he loved. Born March 31, 1857, he was in manhood's prime. A wife and one sweet daughter of thirteen remain for Saints to comfort. Elders M. H. Forscutt and C. A.

Parkin conducted the services at the house and in cemetery, both assured that his four years of earthly service end in deepest joy.

RYAN.—Angeline Ryan, whose maiden name was Gray, was born at Suresco, Lancaster county, Nebraska, May 24, 1874; was baptized at Lucas, Iowa, in 1890 by John Watkins, Sen.; was married to Michael Ryan at Keb, Iowa, December 20, 1893, by William Waterman; died November 9, 1894, at Keb, Iowa. The funeral services were held at the Keb schoolhouse November 11, 1894; sermon by Elder James McKiernan. The interment was at the Ottumwa cemetery. She was the daughter of Bro. and Sr. Robert S. Gray, of Lucas, Iowa, who, with her infant son, four sisters, and three brothers mourn her—seeming—untimely death. At the funeral service the house was crowded to the doors with her many friends, and eighteen teams formed the procession that wended its mournful way in the bleak November cold to the silent city of the dead.

SMITH.—At Denver, Colorado, November 7, 1894, Sr. Florence E. Smith, aged 36 years, 10 months, 28 days. Sister Smith came from the East about two years ago in hopes of improving her health; became acquainted with some of the Saints and thus interested in the true gospel, and was baptized by Elder John Kaler, and as long as life and strength remained, bore a faithful testimony to the truth of the latter-day work. She was blessed many times by being administered to, but not healed. She received the sacrament the 4th inst. and signified her willingness to depart this life at any time the call might come. Her passing away was peaceful and quiet. I don't think I ever looked upon a more peaceful corpse. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." Funeral services in charge of Elder E. F. Shupe, sermon by Elder James Kemp. E. F. S.

SMITH.—In Pleasant Valley, Washoe county, Nevada, November 4, 1894, Sr. Caroline, widow of late Elder George Smith. Deceased was born in Herts, England, May 4, 1813; baptized into the Reorganized Church in Nevada, March 1, 1868. After an illness of a few days she was stricken by the hand of death and her life passed away peacefully. God in his mercy had granted her the desire of her heart, to see the afflicted loved ones (husband and daughter) pass away first, and for one year she has been patiently awaiting the messenger of death, anticipating a glorious rest. She leaves seven children and numerous grandchildren. Funeral services in the Odd Fellows' hall, Washoe City, by Elders Thomas Daley and T. R. Hawkins.

CARR.—At Providence, Maryland, October 17, 1894, Bro. Hugh M. Carr. Deceased was born August 27, 1838, in Chester county, Pennsylvania; baptized July 31, 1893, at Nottingham, Pennsylvania, by A. H. Parsons. He passed away rejoicing in the gospel.

HARDY.—Albert L., son of William C. and Sr. Hardy, of Nevada, Iowa, was born in Cedar county, this State, October 11, 1887; died October 12, 1894. What a comfort we mourn not as those that have no hope. Funeral sermon preached at the Baptist church in Nevada by Elder W. C. Nirk.

SPECIAL GIFT LIST

FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

With the approach of the Holiday Season comes the spirit of Christmas—the spirit of giving. What shall one give to friends, relatives, or neighbors? Articles of merit, of true worth, certainly; whether great or small. Those worthy of affection and friendship; Gifts that are permanent in value; Remembrances that perish not with the mere using; Gifts that strengthen the sentiments that bind receiver and giver.

For Grandparents, for Parents, for Sons, Daughters, Children, and Friends,—for all, old and young, our book list has articles of value, such as will command appreciation and impart good.

THE BIBLE,

INSPIRED TRANSLATION,

is a gift worthy of any. For an elder in the field, for father, mother, sister, or brother, for anyone who reads to improve the mind and enrich the heart, this volume is a life-treasure.

Bound in four styles. Prices: Sheep, $1.25; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.75; Morocco, gilt edges, $2.25; Morocco, Flexible binding, gilt edges, (a very popular style, and much used by ministers and Sunday school teachers and scholars,) $3.75.

Name on any book in gilt letters 15 cts. extra.

THE BOOK OF MORMON,

a volume of equal worth to all who read and study the precepts of life, the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Large type edition, especially for aged readers, two sizes: Cloth, leather backs and corners, $1.50; Seal Grain Russia, $1.75; Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges, $2.00.

Regular size: Morocco Grain Russia, 1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25. Bound in any style—flexible or otherwise, and with blank leaves inclosed, as ordered.

THE

DOCTRINE and COVENANTS

contains the revelations of God to the church in this dispensation. Morocco Grain Russia, $1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25.

THE BIBLE,

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION,

Eyre and Spottiswoode's edition, thin paper, flexible binding, $4.75. (For Oxford and other editions, also New Testaments, see catalogue.)

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

Used throughout the church in song service and in the home. A popular gift for singers. It contains every hymn in the Saints' Harp, also 555 pages of music, about 720 tunes. A drill book; an instructor in vocal music. As the book is arranged, any hymn may be turned to any tune. Leather backs, cloth sides, $2.00; Red Morocco backs and corners, red cloth sides, with gilt edges entire, very handsome in appearance, $2.75. Music only, in plain binding, for instrumental performers, $1.25.

AFTERGLOW,

a volume of choice, selected poems. Handsomely bound, beautifully ornamented, elegantly illustrated.

Published in aid of the Gospel Boat fund.

A handsome and lasting present; a book that will be treasured by all lovers of poetry, 265 pages; Cloth, $1.50; White Vegetable Parchment, $1.75; Leather, $2.00; Morocco, colors red and black, gilt edges, $2.50.

HESPERIS,

POEMS BY DAVID H. SMITH.

The author's best compositions, many of them favorites with Latter Day Saints. A volume that will please all readers of exalted sentiment.

Beautifully bound and ornamented; Cloth, gilt edges, $1.50.

THE SAINTS' HARP,

WORDS ONLY.

1120 hymns, original and selected; those used throughout the church.

Morocco Grain Russia, $1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25.

WELSH HYMN BOOK.

393 hymns; Leather, 60 cents.

DANISH HYMN BOOK.

Cloth, leather backs, 75 cents.

GERMAN HYMN BOOK.

(ZION'S HARFE.)

100 hymns; original, selected, and translated. Leather, 40 cents; Morocco Grain Russia, gilt edges, 60 cents.

The Herald Office list of publications includes many other books of value, including, RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE, revised, price 40 cents; ABSTRACT OF EVIDENCE, TEMPLE LOT SUIT, with legal arguments of Counsel, bound in law sheep, $3.00; THE COMPENDIUM, prices 75 cents and $1.00; THE INSTRUCTOR, 75 cents, $1.00, and $1.50; JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS (Lucy Smith's History), 70 cents; JOSEPH THE SEER, His prophetic mission, and the Book of Mormon, 35 and 50 cents; BRADEN-KELLEY DEBATE, $1.50; PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD, $1.25; WHAT IS MAN? 35 and 50 cents; THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH OR WEEKLY REST DAY, 25 and 40 cents; RUINS REVISITED, $1.00; FORSCUTT-SHINN DISCUSSION, 25 cents; OBJECTIONS TO THE BOOK OF MORMON AND DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS EXAMINED AND REFUTED, 25 and 40 cents; VOICE OF WARNING, 10 cents; THE SILVER THIMBLES, THE HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS, two books for little children, 20 cents each. THE GOSPEL QUARTERLIES, Senior and Intermediate and Primary Grade Sunday School lessons; also a full list of Sunday school literature, tracts, branch and district records, blank forms etc.

For complete descriptive list with prices, see catalogue, mailed free to any address.

Address orders and remittances to

DAVID DANCER,

Business Manager,

LAMONI, Iowa.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

BLAIR MERCANTILE CO.

Our Specialties:—

Fancy Dry Goods,
Fine Shoes.

THOS. TEALE & SON

Carry the largest and most complete line of

Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries, & Hardware

in town. We buy in large quantities, and for cash, and can meet all competition.

THOS TEALE & SON.

Henry Stoddard, President. J. D. Briggs, Asst Cashier. Frank Stoddard, Cashier.

COMMERCIAL BANK,
LAMONI, - IOWA.

Proper Attention given to all Branches of Legitimate banking.
Interest paid on time deposits. Correspondence Solicited.

OFFICERS. DIRECTORS.
Israel L. Rogers, President. I. L. Rogers, Robt. Winning, D. F. Nicholson, Cashier. D. F. Nicholson, S. V. Bailey, F. B. Blair, Asst Cashier. George W. Blair.

LAMONI STATE BANK.

(Incorporated.)

Paid up Capital, $25,000.

Liability of Stockholders, $50,000.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

FREE ONE DOLLAR Music Book.

In one hour you can learn to accompany on the piano or organ by using Clark's Lightning Chord Method. No Teacher necessary. Should be on every Piano or Organ. A limited number given away to introduce. The price of this book is $.00, but if you will talk it up and show it to your neighbors, we will mail you one copy free. Send one dime for mailing. Address, Musical Guide Pub. Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. Mention this paper.

$3.50. EAR TRUMPETS. $3.50.

Why lose all the pleasure of a good conversation by hearing only half of it? Or why injure the throats and voices of those you love by compelling them to talk to you in an unnatural or strained voice, when you can get a conversation tube for $3.50 by mail, postpaid.

I have two sizes, one a yard long which can be coiled up—the one generally preferred. The other a foot long, and can be folded and put in the pocket. References, Elder J. F. Burton, San Benito, California, or Sr. M. Walker, Lamoni, Iowa. Address, A. C. GEER, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

Lots $200 each,

In my addition to Lamoni Shade trees, lawn, and sidewalks; ten minutes' walk from L. D. S. church. Terms one fourth cash, and balance yearly.

Write for maps to D. F. NICHOLSON, Lamoni State Bank.

HOMES AT LAMONI.

Land for sale, situated one quarter to one half mile southwest of Lamoni; in three, four, or five acre lots.

These plats will make nice homes; suitable for gardening, raising of small fruits, etc.

Prices reasonable; terms on application.

Address, J. W. GILLEN, Lamoni, Iowa.

B. D. FLEET,
GENERAL MERCHANDISE,
LAMONI, - IOWA.

A. B. MAIR,
WHOLESALE FRUITS and PRODUCE.
General Commission.

Berries Apples, Pistoles, etc. Car lots a Specialty.
Consignment—Solicitor Prompt Returns.

518 Pearl St. Council Bluffs, Iowa.

AGENTS WANTED.

Send 10 cents for box of Hoxie's Instant Lustre. Town or County given free. Secured by deed.

You can make a permanent business. Profits large. Address, A. N. HOXIE, BOSTON, Mass.

Be Economical.

Spend every dollar judiciously and to the best advantage. Be considerate. Study every question of economy on all sides. Do not jump at conclusions, but investigate. If you want power for pumping, sawing, or printing, send for catalogue of the Hercules Gas Engines. PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY, 405-407 Sansome Street San Francisco. Marder, Luse & Co. Foundry, Agents, 1118 Howard Street, Omaha, Nebraska. 28nov.

HOXIE'S AUTOMATIC
Ice Cream Freezer

CAPACITY UNLIMITED.

For Hotels, Restaurants, and Family Use. Will freeze Ice Cream, Lemonade, Sherbets, and all kinds of loes instantly. Several Machines combined in one, with saving of 80 per cent of ice. Agents wanted. Exclusive territory can be secured by addressing

HOXIE BROS.,

17 CHARLTON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

Zion's Ensign.
52 SERMONS A YEAR.

Subscription price, 1 year.....$1 00

" " 6 months.... 50

" " 3 months.... 25

For introduction, 4 months.... 25

Address all communications and make all orders payable to

ZION'S ENSIGN,
INDEPENDENCE, MO.

HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSION.

VIA C. B. & Q.

Date of sale November 20, December 4 and 19, 1894. Rate, one standard first-class fare, plus $2 for the round trip; minimum selling rate $7.

TRACTS

ORDER BY NUMBERS

2. Truth Made Manifest; per doz. 15c., 100 .. $1 00
 3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per doz 5c., 100 30
 4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz 3c., 100 15
 6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design and Who Shall Administer; per doz. 15c., 100..... 1 00
 7. Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 5c., 100. 30
 8. Fullness of the Atonement; per doz 15c., 100 1 00
 9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per doz. 20c., 100..... 1 30
 10. The Narrow Way; per doz 10c., 100..... 50
 11. The Plan of Salvation; per doz 20c., 100... 1 20
 12. The Bible vs Polygamy; per doz. 15c., 100. 1 00
 14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per doz. 15c., 100... 1 00
 16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 17. The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; per doz 15c., 100 1 00
 20. The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c., 100..... 1 00
 21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 22. Faith and Repentance; per doz. 10c., 100 .. 50
 23. Baptism; per doz. 10c., 100..... 65
 24. The Kingdom of God; per doz. 5c., 100..... 30
 25. Laying on of Hands; per doz. 5c., 100..... 30
 27. The Sabbath Question; per doz 15c., 100.. 1 00
 29. Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; per doz 5c., 100 ... 30
 31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 32. Which is the Church; per doz 5c., 100.... 30
 36. The Spalding Story Reexamined; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 42. Rejection of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100 50
 43. One Wife or Many; per doz 15c., 100..... 1 00
 44. Crooked Paths; per doz 15c., 100..... 1 00
 45. The Reorganized Church in Succession from 1830 to the Present. A thirty-one page pamphlet containing statements of faith and practices rules and usages of the Church and of heresies, and departures from it. Important papers and statements from leading church authorities past and present are reprinted. Each 5c., per doz. 30c., 100... 2 00
 46. The Pure Gospel of Christ. A list of questions and answers, with blank form preaching notice on the back, same size as Epitome; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 47. The Future State; per doz. 15c., 100..... 1 00
 - Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection of Jesus Christ; each 5c., per doz. 50
 - Prophecy on the Rebellion; per hundred ... 10
- Special prices furnished on application for tracts in lots of one thousand

PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS
COPYRIGHTS.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A book of information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free. Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Vol 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 5, 1894.

No. 49.

CONTENTS:
EDITORIAL:
A Heavy Load (?)	773
"Inform the People"	773
Boom or Boomerang!	774
Savidge-Williams Debate	775
Is this a Land of Liberty?	775
World Notes	776
A Valedictory	777
ORIGINAL POETRY:
Prophet of God	778
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Helping Hand	778
LETTER DEPARTMENT:779
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Rebaptism	783
Stockbridge Indians	783
Wise Counsel is Profitable to all Saints	784
Sermon by Elder C. Scott	784
Synopsis of Sermon by Elder E. L. Kelley	787
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Nodaway	788
London	788
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Evanelia Views	788

TWENTY-FIVE FALSE MESSIAHS.

THE following short sketches of the Twenty-five False Messiahs is translated from Danskeren, Copenhagen:—

1. Simeon, surnamed Bar-Cochba, "son of a star," appeared in the reign of Hadrian (A.D. 130) and claimed to fulfill the prophecy of Balaam. He took Jerusalem in 132 and was slain in 135. His enemies changed his surname to Bar-Cozeba, "son of a lie."

2. Moses Cretensis arose in the reign of Theodosius the Younger (A.D. 434), and pretended to be a second Moses sent to deliver the Jews of Crete. He was soon unmasked, but disappeared, before he could be punished.

3. Dunaan appeared in the reign of Justinian (A.D. 520) and called himself a son of Moses. He was captured and put to death by the Ethiopian general Elesban.

4. One Julian was set up as king by the Jews and Samaritans and looked upon as the Messiah. This was during the rebellion under Justinian (A.D. 529). He was captured and beheaded.

5. Serenus arose in Spain about 721. He had a large following.

6, 7, 8. The twelfth century produced very many false Messiahs. We have a report of one in France about 1137, one in Persia 1138, and one in Spain 1157. The Jews followed them in great numbers.

9. In Fez, arose (1167) David Alroi (Alray). He persecuted the Jews and ended miserably. Disraeli has taken the plot for his "Alroy" from the life of this pretender.

10. In this year there arose also a false Messiah in Arabia. He claimed to work miracles. A king demanded proof of the miracles. The prophet said that they might cut off his head, and he would come to life again. It was done, but no revival took place.

11. About 1170, a false Messiah arose among the Jews beyond Euphrates. He claimed as proof of his Messiahship that he had been cured in one night from leprosy.

12. In 1174, Persia again saw a false Messiah, who also brought great tribulations upon his followers.

13. The Cabalist David Almasser arose in Moravia in 1176. He pretended that he could make himself invisible. He was killed, and the Jews had to pay heavy taxes for his sake.

14. Persia was again, in 1199, afflicted with a pretended savior. David-el-David, a magician and a man of great learning, arose against the king. He was captured and beheaded, and great numbers of Jews were punished as his followers.

15. Ismael Sophus was a Spanish Messiah. In the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries the Messiah craze seemed to have died out. Yet the learned Saadia, Ibn Chija, Nachman, and Gerson calculated that the time for the real Messiah to arrive was in 1358. No pretenders seem to have arisen. Later, Abraham Abrabanel fixed 1502 as the date.

16. With the opening of the sixteenth century, the false Messiahs began again to appear. The German Rabbi, Asher Lämmlein, created much enthusiasm in Austria and converted many Jews and Christians to the belief that he was the Messiah. He promised to lead them under the banner of the Messiah, "the King of the Jews," to the Holy Land. He died suddenly, and his followers were scattered.

17. During the eventful reign of Charles V., David Reuben appeared and claimed to be sent to lead the Jews to Palestine. He gained favor at court and was even received with distinction by the Pope, Clement VIII. He was joined by Solomon Molchofia, a Portuguese apostate Christian, who became the prophet of the movement. When later these two attempted to convert the Emperor, they were taken prisoners. David escaped with his life. Solomon was burned at the stake.

18. In 1615, the first false Messiah in the West Indies appeared. He was successful among the Portuguese Jews. He promised to destroy Rome and overthrow antichrist and the Turkish Empire.

19. In the Low Countries a false Messiah arose in 1624, and made a great commotion. His name is not known.

20. The most successful of all the false Messiahs was Sabbathai Zebi, who took advantage of the peculiar expectations which in 1666 seemed to possess mankind like an epidemic. Rumor from the East told of great multitudes who from unknown parts marched to Arabia. They were supposed to be the lost Ten Tribes. From Arabia they were said to have sailed for Scotland "with sails and cordage of silk." The sailors were reported speaking Hebrew, and on the sails was this motto, "The Twelve Tribes of Israel." Zebi claimed to be "King of the Kings of the earth," and said that these events were signs of his coming. The Turkish government seized him as a dangerous agitator. To save his life, as he thought, he turned Mohammedan. He was finally beheaded. Zebi's influence lasts to this day. It is hard to account for it, but it is a fact.

21. Rabbi Mordecai, a German Jew, appeared 1682, and succeeded in imposing upon many. When proved to be an impostor he fled from Italy to Poland.

22. The most remarkable among all these impostors was Frank, afterward called "Baron" Frank, and said to be a relative of the Russian Emperor. He arose in the middle of the eighteenth century, and propagated a new creed. A sect which originated with him still exists in Poland. He was largely influenced by Zebi. His daughter led his followers after his death.

23, 24. Jakuthiel, King of Israel, vulgarly called Moses Chayim Luzzatto, appeared in Amsterdam about 1744, and Ari Shocher appeared at Siena. They both claimed to work miracles. The first was a learned man. The latter was waylaid and murdered.

25. The last impostor heard of in Europe was called Jakuthiel, King of Israel, like one of the former frauds. He appeared in 1872 and addressed the Jewish congregation of Berlin, and gave out as his motto: "Not with power, nor with force, but with my Spirit, says the Lord Zebaoth." His "diplomatic note" to the Porte demanding a peaceful cession of Palestine was laughed at, and he did not pour out the threatened "vials" because he was not obeyed. He appears to have disappeared as silently as he came.—Literary Digest.

SHUT YOUR MOUTH AND LIVE.

THE number of people suffering from nose and throat troubles is astonishing. Look around you and see how many of your acquaintances are unable to make full breath through the nose. You will be astonished to see how many of them breathe through the mouth. They do not realize it and would deny the statement even while drawing in air directly through the lips. No one can avoid so-called catarrh and throat troubles who persistently breathes through the mouth. The nose was made for breathing and the man who breathes through his mouth disobeys nature as surely as does he who tries to drink through his nose. It is only a difference in degree. A very large per cent of throat troubles is due to mouth breathing. The nose is supplied with what may be called a filtering device, but when drawn through the mouth the air strikes directly upon the throat and keeps it constantly irritated, just as the lower part of the eyeball would be if you constantly held the lid away from it and let in the light. "Shut your mouth and live," is the advice given by experts in throat diseases.

But look at the noses of many of your friends and you will see why they are mouth breathers. One or both of the nostrils are fallen in, "collapsed" as they call it. In some cases the nostril is almost entirely closed, in others it is but half as large as formerly. This is due to a lack of use—a person begins to breathe through his mouth and slowly the muscles of the nostrils fail through lack of exercise just as the muscles of the arm would fail if exercise were diminished or discontinued. The consequence is that such nostrils gradually "fall in," and you will notice many of your friends who cannot possibly take a good breath except through the mouth. Such people cannot long enjoy good health. They are breaking one of nature's laws—like the man who expects his stomach to do the work that belongs to his teeth. Sooner or later such people begin to suffer—it is "catarrh," "throat trouble," deafness, dyspepsia, but it all comes from driving cold and unfiltered air through the mouth. Had the air gone through the nose, as it should have done, all suffering could have been avoided. The simple remedy is, "Shut your mouth and live"—stop breathing through your mouth.—Selected.

CONTENTMENT.

AN editorial in the Annals of Hygiene for August, reads as follows: "One of the most sensible editorial expressions on the recent railroad strikes that we have read takes the ground that the spirit of unrest that is so characteristic of these days is due, in the main, to lack of contentment. We are entirely in sympathy with anyone who is laudably ambitious for self-improvement and self-advancement; we firmly believe that everyone has not only the right, but it is his duty, to better his worldly conditions in every possible way. But, while striving for betterment, it is of paramount importance that we should aim to be contented with what we have. But, you may say, if contented with what we have, where is the incentive of betterment. To the well-balanced mind, to the thoughtful man, present contentment and ambition for the future are perfectly compatible. He who cultivates contentment with his present condition is much more capable of future advancement than he who by fretting and dissatisfaction brings about an abnormal condition of his nervous system that is, in itself, antagonistic to his material prosperity. The history of our successful men of affairs reveals to us the spectacle of cheery, contented men, calmly and dispassionately striving, day by day, to better their condition; in their early days, before success had crowned their efforts, we did not find them fretting and fuming over their limited possessions: with what they had, they were, for the time being, satisfied and contented, but they were always full of the quiet determination to have more, and more they got.

"Contentment is an absolute necessary condition of physical health, and so is it, also, equally of financial health and success. The discontented man will never be a healthy, wealthy, or successful man. Contentment with his present standard of health need not debar a man from a determined effort to improve it, neither should contentment with his present worldly condition act as a barrier against an effort to improve it. Contentment and laudable ambition are compatible and they are essential to social welfare, and the sooner we all realize this fact the better will it be for all of us."

LITERARY NEWS AND NOTES.

The Arena with its big Christmas number of over 200 pages opens the eleventh volume, and its increasing bulk as well as the repute of its contributors and the standard and character of its literature, indicate its extending influence and prosperity. In the December issue there are contributions from some of the greatest writers of our day, and some of the most delightful and entertaining of the younger American essayists and fictionists. In the former class are Professor Max Muller, the great Oriental scholar and authority on language and comparative religion, of Oxford University, and Count Leo Tolstoi the famous Russian novelist and social reformer. In the latter are Hamlin Garland, the author of "Main Traveled Roads;" Will Allen Dromgoole, the Southern story writer; Rev. Minot J. Savage, the famous Boston preacher; B. O. Flower, the editor of the Review; Walter Blackburn Harte, the author of "Meditations in Motley;" Henry Lathford and Helen H. Gardener, the popular novelist.

What would a wicked man do amid absolutely good surroundings, meeting only rebuff on all sides for his wickedness? Only two courses would be open to him—reform or insanity.—Wright.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.
"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."

Book of Mormon, page 116.

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 5, 1894.

No. 49.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
JOSEPH LUFF - - - CORRESPONDING EDITOR.

LAMONI, IOWA, DEC. 5, 1894.

A HEAVY LOAD (?).

THE Christian Herald and Signs of our Times, for November 14, 1894, has the following in its column, "Our Mail-bag":—

Leon Brower, Manchester, New Hampshire. Where can I find any account of the size and weight of the Tables of Stone?

The Nedarim, one of the most ancient of Jewish books, says the tables of Moses were six ells long, six broad, and three thick. They probably weighed over twenty tons. According to our measurements, they would each be nine feet long, nine broad, and four and a half feet thick.

It will be remembered that Moses, after receiving the two tables of stone, threw them down in a fit of anger and broke them. The account is given in Exodus 32; and it appears there that God gave to Moses two tables, on the two sides of each of which the commandments had been inscribed by the hand of God. In descending the mountain he had these tables in his hands; and when he came in sight of the camp, saw the calf, heard the music, and saw the dancing, he was angry and threw the tables of stone from him and broke them "beneath," that is, near the foot of the mountain. After this, Moses was commanded to make two tables like unto the first, and on these God wrote again the commandments, and gave command in regard to them.

It will be remembered, also, that an ark was prepared in which the testimony (the commandments) was placed. This ark was called the Ark of the Covenant, and which contained, according to Paul in Hebrews 9: 4, the golden pot that had manna; Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the Covenant.

At one time this ark was drawn on a new cart by a pair of untried cattle, and because it was rudely jostled in crossing over a threshing floor Uzzah was slain for trying to steady it.

See 2 Sam. 6: 6, and 1 Chron. 13: 7:

It will be also remembered that the ark was to be borne on the shoulders of the priests and the Levites selected to this duty. See 1 Chron 15: 2-26.

And the children of the Levites bare the ark upon their shoulders with the staves thereon, as Moses commanded, according to the word of the Lord.—1 Chron. 15: 15.

The ark as commanded to be made was two and one half cubits long, one and a half broad, and one and a half deep. Ex. 25: 10.

The cubit was the length of an ordinary man's forearm measuring from the elbow to the tip of the middle finger, about eighteen English inches. This would make the ark about three feet and nine inches long, about two feet and three inches wide, and the same in depth.

Now, if the measurement and weight of the tables of stone were as the Christian Herald has given them; it was a heavy load for Moses to bear down the mountain side, a remarkable thing that they so easily broke when Moses threw them down; an extraordinary thing that they should go into an ark of not one fourth part of the dimension of either of the two tables; an extra large and strong cart upon which the attempt to carry it back was made; and a very heavy load for the golden lined ark, silver barred and silver studded staves to bear, and an onerous burden for the Levite children to carry.

We really wonder why the Christian Herald did not give us something easy to believe—twenty tons of stone story is most too much.

"INFORM THE PEOPLE."

"MORMONISM.

"IF Mormonism succeeds, Christianity will receive a mortifying blow. The question is, What ought to be done? The answer is, "Inform the people." We have looked upon it as a mere delusion, containing the seeds of its own dissolution. But there is order in this fanaticism, there is system in this imposture, and it carries with it an invisible spirit, by which the learned and the unlearned are strangely overcome." — Baptist Register.

Yes, Mr. Register, "inform the people;" that is just what ought to be done, and if Christianity, as now practiced by Christendom, from the Catholic with his beads, down to a Millerite with his picture of Daniel's vision, does not "receive a mortifying blow," there is no truth in the Bible.

Inform the people, and if Paganism, from juggernaut down to an Indian pow-wow, does not "receive a mortifying blow," then there is no virtue in the priesthood of the Son of God.

Inform the people, and if all nations in their present notions, embracing Jews, and Gentiles, and infidels, do not "receive a mortifying blow," then there is no God.

Inform the people, for information is the food of Mormonism, and power the life of it. Bless the discernment of the Register! there is "order and system" in Mormonism, and there is faith, virtue, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity. And again, there is a form of godliness and the acknowledgment and manifestation of power; because the signs, you know, were to follow the believer.

Inform the people, for Joseph Smith, like his brethren the prophets, has been killed, and you know the good book says it should be so. The first man that offered an acceptable offering before the Lord, was killed, and Christ was killed, and the promise was that his disciples should be served likewise.

Inform the people, and give the truth, for false information will disgust wise men, and then our "invisible spirit," full of revelation and prophecy, will overcome the learned and unlearned, and help bring to pass the strange act of God. Give the people information, do, and Mormonism is safe.

Inform the people, do, that Mormonism contains the seed of its own continuation, and the elements of its own exaltation. What bore Noah's ark triumphantly over the flood will bear Mormonism victoriously through the fervent heat of the last days. Mormonism embraces everything good in heaven, or on earth and it claims all truth in heaven, earth, and hell:—so do inform the people, that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, holds the keys of the kingdom, spoken of by Daniel, and the voice of the Spirit says, This is the way—walk ye in it!

Inform the people, that the “invisible spirit” of Mormonism, having the Book of Mormon and Book of Doctrine and Covenants for walls to support the gospel of the Bible, on one side, and the Melchisedek and Aaronic priesthoods on the other, for witnesses and messengers, is abundantly able to cope with the philosophy, wit, ambition, avarice, and aggrandizement of the priests of Baal since the apostles fell asleep, even the hireling clergy of the nineteenth century.

Inform the people that Mormonism is the stone cut out of the mountain without hands, and will continue to roll forth until it becomes a great mountain, fills the whole earth, and even the gates of hell should not prevail against it. So, Mr. Register, you perceive that Mormonism is a great leveling machine, high as heaven, deep as hell, and great as the earth, propelled by the “invisible spirit” of an all powerful God, and who can stop it?—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 727.

BOOM OR BOOMERANG!

LAMONI is enjoying at the present time what may be denominated a diminutive boom in real estate. Town lots are in demand and are bringing prices considerably in advance of the rates of one year ago. Houses are being built faster than has been customary, and land extending quite a distance in several directions beyond what was once thought to be a reasonable town limit, is being platted and sold in lots of varying size, at figures which would have been considered good for lots much “closer in” not very long since.

There can be no doubt that much of this phenomenal growth is owing to the fact that Lamoni is the present headquarters of the church and the home of quite a number of the leading ministry. Gathering into the “regions round about” seems also to be the inspiring motive in many instances. Every circular received or advertisement read, which tells of present strides, has its influence in awakening a desire in the reader to become possessed of a home site here before the advancing price takes the soil beyond his or her reach.

Frequently we are interrogated as to the probable stability of present conditions or security of investments; but hitherto we have refrained from any public expression on the matter, nor do we wish to be understood herein as attempting to stay any tide of real prosperity that may be flowing in this direction.

It seems to us, however, an opportune time to go on record (if in the minds of any we are not already there) regarding the position of the church in these matters, and to advise Saints and others accordingly. This we do in few and plain words:—

First. Neither the church as a church, nor the Lamoni branch, nor the Presidency are directly interested or engaged in the business of buying and selling real estate; nor are they in any sense to be considered responsible for the rise or fall of prices of lands bought or sold.

Second. Persons who contemplate buying property in Lamoni, should proceed upon strictly business principles and make careful investigation of all claims, representations, contracts, and offers, as well as values, precisely as if buying in any other locality or from any other dealers.

Third. The fact of Lamoni being headquarters for the church at present, should not be employed as a basis for figuring the safety of investments in real estate within its limits, nor as a guarantee that all representations made by men who live in the town are to be relied upon as absolutely correct.

Whether Lamoni shall continue to grow till it becomes a large city or not, remains to be seen, and those who invest must depend upon their own judgment and assume all risks for themselves. The present increase in prices is not a guarantee in itself of continued prosperity.

The record of booms, or rapid rises in real estate values, is one of loss to the many and gain to the few. Under the mania that seizes people at such times debts are contracted in a day or week that hang like an incubus for years. Depression and stagnation have followed in their wake everywhere, proportioned always by the dimensions of the cause preceding.

Steady growth, though it be slow, is more to be desired, as it usually contributes to the permanent well-being of those affected. Investors in Lamoni property will be affected to their loss or gain in precisely the same manner as if purchasing elsewhere. Association with a large body of Saints is very desirable; but it will not hinder financial reverses in the country nor supply bread to the hungry when they occur; nor will it of itself furnish employment to those needing it at any time. Neither large mills, manufactories, nor railroad shops have place in Lamoni yet, nor are they in prospect, so far as we know; nor have we special natural advantages to offer as an inducement for them to locate here.

Those of the Saints who have means with which to purchase land for farming or stock raising purposes, or upon which to subsist, should they reside in town, are reasonably safe anywhere; but those (should there be any) who buy for speculative purposes and those who, without reasonably certain prospect of steady employment, by which to earn a livelihood, are seeking to plant their hearthstone here, should be slow about encumbering themselves with heavy burdens of debt. They should stop and determine whether or not their faith and fortune would survive a reversal of present tides, should such set in, as is quite possible, unless Lamoni shall prove an exception to all places on record.

At the joint council of the First Presidency, the Twelve, and Bishopric, held in pursuance of the instruction given by revelation during the April conference, it was agreed to advise Saints everywhere to consult the Bishopric when contemplating a transfer of home locations with a view to permanent settlement. The advice was good and very timely. To observe it will be to escape the ill consequences of hasty changes otherwise in many instances.

We hope soon to see the college and the Saints' Home in course of construction and to thus furnish privileges to the Saints better than are afforded in any other locality by the church. These institutions, especially the college, will doubtless contribute their quota towards the town's support, but there is more danger of our advance thought magnifying than diminishing even their importance in that line. Their advantages lie in other than financial directions chiefly.

It is better to make personal inspection, if possible, of all claims, representations, and properties involved in contemplated investments, so that the responsibility connected therewith may attach to the investor. It is the part of wisdom to deal in all such matters upon business principles only, irrespective of the churchly relation of either buyer or seller (and herein we seek to cast no reflection, for we have knowledge of no cause to do so).

Towns and localities, like principles, have very enthusiastic admirers, and sometimes suffer so much or more from the intemperate zeal of those admirers as from the indifference or dislike of those abroad. We are desirous that Lamoni shall take up great dimensions, but would prefer a gradually attained and permanent healthful plumpness to a swollen or inflamed condition resultant from impatient haste and fraught with prospective discontent. We could perhaps enjoy a boom, but not a boomerang.

SAVIDGE-WILLIAMS DEBATE.

THE Omaha Bee, of the 23d, contains a lengthy article on the late Savidge-Williams debate, in substance about what was published in Bro. C. H. Porter's late report of the discussion. The following additional letter from Bro. Porter recounts the closing features of that conflict:—

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 24.

Editors Herald:—The Savidge-Williams debate closed last night. Rev. Savidge was at his best and made a good effort to prove that his church is the Church of Christ. He seemed to have caught his second wind, as the pugilist would say, and was in good fighting trim. He said the Lord had, the night before, "closed his mouth that he might open his eyes," and he declared his intention of using that as a text for next Sunday's discourse. He delivered an eloquent and forcible address to the congregation in support of his church; said they believed all the Bible; had the Spirit of Christ; that he believed he had been called of God, but had seen no angel, nor heard any audible voice; stated that he had called the church, and God had called him and given him a sign, etc. He said he thought as formerly concerning Mormonism.

Bro. Williams called his attention to the statement made the first night of the debate; viz., that "Mormonism was a blot on the fair white breast of this country," and requested him to withdraw the statement so far as the Reorganized Church was concerned. This he declined to do and signified his willingness to meet Bro. Williams at some future time in debate at Council Bluffs touching the character of Joseph Smith, etc. In reply Bro. Williams challenged him to meet him at Council Bluffs in a five nights discussion on the proposition, "Resolved that Joseph Smith was a true prophet of God." The house was filled to overflowing. Bro. Williams did well and succeeded in proving to a demonstration that many differences existed between the Church of Jesus Christ and the People's Church of Omaha.

The Rev. Savidge's greatest plea for his church was that they had the Spirit of Christ. The disputants seemed to vie with each other in courtesy, yet some very strong language was used. I think the Rev. Savidge has learned a lesson he will not soon forget, but it has not done him the good it might if his mind had been sincerely open to conviction. His closing speech showed clearly the condition of his mind. He had rather listen to the tales of irresponsible parties speaking against Joseph Smith, than be convinced by logic and evidence that he could not meet. He has not read aright the lesson of two nights ago, consequently he cannot enjoy the light which would have resulted if that conviction had been honestly received.

Your brother in Christ,

C. H. PORTER.

IS THIS A LAND OF LIBERTY?

THE following letter and the notice following, look a little as if there was still one place where there is not liberty of conscience. The notice is of course not signed; but it reminds one of the days of the Ku Klux and kindred societies, told of in Judge Albion W. Tourgée's "A Fool's Errand."

We have advised the brethren not to build hastily, but to wait till the prejudice passes, if such be possible:—

BAY MINETTE, Ala., Nov. 11.

Editors Herald:—We are trying to build a church here with only a few Saints who are poor people financially, but are willing to do all they can for the advancement of the latter-day work. There are five families of Saints living in Bay Minette, and a few others living close around. We have the lumber on the church lot ready for building as soon as we can get to it. There is quite an uproar about us building a church here as the people are very prejudiced against us. They have thrown out threats and hold secret meetings. The letter to my father, G. T., which I inclose, will give you an idea what they mean to do. They tell all manner of lies against him. I will mention some of them; to wit., (1) That he was run away from Butler county, and that he was whipped and made to leave. (2) That in Mobile county he called a meeting of the young ladies and insulted them. Those that are doing the worst persecution are leading members of the Methodist and Baptist churches, who pray in public and pretend to be very religious. If it is the Lord's will we will build a church here as we haven't any place to hold meetings.

Yours in bonds,

J. S. CHUTE.

BAY MINETTE, Ala., Nov. 3.

MR. G. C. CHUTE, Bay Minette, Alabama,

Dear Sir:—As we have been apprised of your intention to build a so-called church in our community, and as we are also in possession of facts concerning your conduct the past summer in Mobile county, and as we do not wish any such institution in our midst, we notify you not to attempt to build your so-called church in our midst, as we will not submit to it.

A BROTHER Thomas Dixon sends us the following clipping from an Australian paper. Bro. Dixon was the man who disputed the Baptist gentleman and it took place at Kaitangata, Otago, New Zealand:—

Nothing of any importance has happened during the last week except some slight excitement which occurred on Saturday evening at the crossing. It appears that a traveling preacher of the Baptist faith, who styles himself an evangelist has been holding forth at the railway crossing for the last three consecutive Saturday evenings, and last Saturday evening the said preacher was not content to preach the doctrines of his own particular sect, but unwisely and unchristianlike started to criticize other sects, especially the Mormons, which caused some dissent among some of his listeners (one of them being a Mormon), and the result was a religious argument between certain parties. It is to be regretted that those who profess to be Christians should allow themselves to be dragged into religious controversies which are not only inimical to the welfare of those who are standing around, but degrading in the extreme to those who profess to teach God's word.

THE editor of the Chicago Tribune in that paper for November 29, names among other things to be thankful for, the following, which we clip, and commend to all who entertain the notion that the world as a whole is growing worse:—

Hospitality and dinner-giving seems to have been a more lavish but also a cruder observance formerly than it is now. In one of his early social studies George William Curtis described the scene in a supper-room at a large evening party "where jellies, custard, oyster soup, ice cream, wine, and water gushed in profuse cascades over transparent precipices of tulle, muslin, gauze, silk, and satin, clumsy boys tumbled against costly dresses, and smeared them with preserves. When clean plates failed the contents of plates already used were quietly chucked under the table. Heel-taps of champagne were poured into the oyster tureens or overflowed upon plates to clean the glasses. Wine of all kinds flowed in torrents and particularly down the throats of very young men who evinced their manhood by becoming noisy, troublesome, and disgusting, and were finally led sick into the hat room or carried out of the way drunk." Such scenes as this are fortunately now thoroughly out of fashion and a more refined conception of the art of eating and drinking together prevails. On the whole, although we are accustomed to speak rather regretfully at times of "the good old days," there is room for congratulation that many of their customs are outworn. It must be conceded that in many ways life is richer and fuller to-day and that there is more cause for Thanksgiving than ever before.

WORLD NOTES.

THE steamer Mariposa, arriving at San Francisco, November 22, brought several Mormon elders from Samoa, the Friendly Islands, and New Zealand. They claim three thousand followers in New Zealand. They left twenty missionaries in that country.

The Illinois congress of liberal religions opened at Streator, Illinois, November 19. Representatives of Unitarian, Universalist, Reform Jewish, Ethical Culture, and independent societies were present. "The object is to unite those in a propaganda in the interest of humanity and in quest of knowledge, justice, love, and reverence."

Hundreds of lives have been destroyed, hundreds have been injured, and much property destroyed by the November earthquakes in the island of Sicily.

The official report of the great earthquake of October 22 in Northern Japan shows that 2,155 houses were overthrown, 2,006 houses were burned, 482 persons were killed, and 661 were injured. The damage to property is estimated at over 10,000,000 yen.

The committee on morals of the Civic Federation of Chicago has reported on a plan for the suppression of the social evil. In addition to the building of seven reformatory buildings, and other direct efforts against it, an educational campaign of one thousand speeches will be inaugurated in the city.

The Chicago Methodist Union at its late session discussed the following problems: "Relations of church to problems of modern society."

"Mr. Darrow's address was a vigorous protest against the attitude of mildness and tolerance on the part of the Christian churches of all denominations to the rich and selfish classes whose power was the principal factor in causing labor troubles and other social evils. Prof. Charles S. Little said it was the business of the law to deal with corporations, but the churches should have something to say to such members of corporations as, while posing as church members and pious Christians, used their immense power in their corporations selfishly and in disregard of the well-being of society. Prof. Graham Taylor said the weakness of the churches was that they were not worldly enough in the better sense—they are not sufficiently in touch with the living world and not well enough aware of its necessities."

A meeting of the Anglo-Armenian Association was held at London, November 27, to protest against the terrible cruelties inflicted upon and the massacre of large numbers of Armenians by Turkish soldiery. Reports showed that fully 12,000 Armenians, men, women, and children, had been subjected to almost every conceivable barbarity and afterward brutally murdered in the late outrages. Steps will be taken by various national societies to bring their respective governments to act in the matter.

A new city of cliff dwellers has been discovered in the Bradshaw Mountains, Arizona. It is estimated to contain 260 houses, and is said to be the largest ever discovered.

Czar Nicholas, of Russia, on the occasion of his marriage has issued a manifesto of clemency, remitting arrearages of taxes and modifying sentences. He is said to contemplate the granting of a constitutional government to his subjects. His reign gives promise of liberal reforms.

It is reported that the Emperor of Austria has agreed to approve the civil marriage bill and other religious reform measures adopted by the Hungarian Parliament, under the leadership of Dr. Wekerle.

Dr. Herzog, a Chicago physician, claims to have made discoveries that will greatly alter present methods of the treatment of diseases. He claims that smallpox and, indeed, all diseases are produced by amoeba-like bodies, similar to those produced by yeast fermentation that fasten themselves upon bacilli and produced fermentation of the blood; that each disease results from specific amoeba-like atoms that can be destroyed and disease be prevented or cured by specific inoculation. His discoveries are credited and attract much attention.

The new constitution of the State of New York separates State and municipal elections; the former being held in even years, the latter in odd numbered years. City and county offices, also civil justices are thus farther removed from political control and combinations. The revision is the most far-reaching one made in years.

WE take the following account of the burning of the Nauvoo temple, from the Canton, Illinois, Register, of November 24:—

BROUGHT TO LIGHT.

HOW THE FAMOUS MORMON TEMPLE AT NAUVOO WAS DESTROYED.

George W. Rudisill, of Bowling Green, Florida, writes a two-column article to the Fort Madison Democrat, giving what he purports to be the first authentic account of the burning of the Mormon temple. He was a resident of Fort Madison during the Mormon regime. He says that Judge Sharp, of Carthage, Squire McCauley, of Appanoose, and J. B. Agnew, of Pontoosuc, were the men that planned and carried out the destruction of the temple. He claims that Agnew confessed to him just before his death and asked him to not make it known until after the death of all parties concerned; as they had pledged themselves to keep the matter secret. Mr. Rudisill prints the confession of Agnew, giving it as near as he can in his own words. Agnew said that the reason for our burning the temple was that there were continual reports in circulation that the Mormons were coming back to Nauvoo, and we were afraid that they might take it into their heads to do so, and as we had had all the trouble with them we wanted, we determined the destruction of their temple, and by so doing they would not try to come back.

We met and journeyed toward Nauvoo on horseback, and hiding our horses about a mile from town, walked into town. We determined to destroy the temple if it cost us our lives. We arrived at the temple and persuaded the steward to show us through it. I stole the key from the door, and when we went we started away in a hurry pretending that we had to catch a boat. We watched only a short time until we saw the steward start away on a run, and we knew he was going after another key or some one and this was our chance. We ran back, Sharp and McCauley standing guard while I went in. I went into the upper story and lit the bundle of tinder that I had prepared. In endeavoring to get out I lost the way. I crossed the burning fire, my clothes were ignited and I was so seriously burned that I scarcely believed I would get out alive. However, after a desperate effort, I succeeded in finding my way out, and with the assistance of my companions I succeeded in reaching my horse. We all rode away in different directions toward our homes. I rode on a half mile and then looked toward Nauvoo and saw a flickering light and the next minute the flames burst through the roof and lit up all the country for miles around as light as day. I rode to Squire McCauley's residence, he having arrived home two hours before. He took me in and hid me away for a week, taking care of me, as I was badly burned and in a serious condition.

The above is only a synopsis of the confession, however, it embraces the main points. A few years ago a Nauvoo paper published an account of the burning of the temple, and told of the confession of Joseph Agnew, as some of the old settlers knew of it. But this is the first intimation that Judge Sharp and Squire McCauley were implicated in the matter.

When the temple had burned it aroused the greatest indignation in the whole community, among the Gentiles and Mormons alike. Nearly seven hundred dollars was subscribed among citizens as a reward to ferret out the perpetrators, but no arrests were ever made.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

QUES.—What effect does the disorganization of a branch have on those who are at the time members of it? Do they cease to be members of the church?

Ans.—No; the disorganization dissolves the local association but does not affect membership of the persons in the general church; they remain members of the church though their branch organization is broken up by disorganization.

A VALEDICTORY.

A COUNTRY minister in a certain western town took permanent leave of his congregation in the following pathetic manner: "Brothers and sisters, I come to say good-bye. I don't think God loves this church, because none of you ever die. I don't think you love each other, because I never marry any of you. I don't think you love me, because you have not paid my salary. Your donations are moldy fruit and wormy apples, and 'by their fruits ye shall know them.' Brothers, I am going away to a better place. I have been called to be chaplain of a penitentiary. Where I go ye cannot come, but I go to prepare a place for you, and may the Lord have mercy on your souls. Good-bye."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

THE London Times reaps $45,000 a year by its birth, marriage, and death columns.

The HERALD inserts birth and death notices free, but charges one dollar for marriage notices. However, its revenue from that source is quite limited in amount, possibly because some newly married men are too happy to think of remitting, but, probably, because such think they need the dollar more than does the Herald Office. Don't forget the dollar with the marriage notice.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. J. A. GUNSOLLEY writes from Salem, Massachusetts, November 22:—

I am laboring as I have opportunity. I am assisting in Boston branch in Sunday school and branch. I am assistant priest, and preach about once a week on an average. I think the work is onward here in Boston and vicinity. While in the cities not many have time for religion, in the country places many seem anxious to hear the message of peace.

Bro. Henry C. Smith, from Antonio, Colorado, the 21st.

I start to day for Flora Vista, New Mexico. Am quite disappointed in this climate; it does not agree with me.

Bro. Heman C. Smith, writing from Milton, Florida, the 19th ult., says:—

By constant care we can keep the work moving in the South, but it takes a persistent effort to keep it on its feet. Most of the missionary force are doing nobly.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRN. David Chambers and J. S. Strain report the results of the late Council Bluffs discussion, already reported by Bro. C. H. Porter. Both those brethren regard it as a signal victory for the right.

Bro. M. O. Erickson reports good results following the labors of Bro. Swen Swenson at Lake Park, Minnesota, and vicinity. Saints there hope for permanent fruits to appear in the obedience of some as the faith of the church is now better understood.

Bro. F. C. Smith was at Burdickville and Lake Ann, Michigan, and vicinity, preaching the word, meeting and prevailing against the usual opposition, to some extent. He found some who could "be saved without the Bible." Others, however, hear the word, and the work is "onward."

Bro. I. N. Roberts departed for St. Joseph and other points in the Far West district the week of the 25th.

Bro. F. M. Smith arrived in from Des Moines on the 27th and left for Leighton, Iowa, on the 30th.

Bro. G. H. Hilliard, of the Bishopric, is in the New England mission laboring in the general interests of the work. He will remain six weeks in that field, and may be addressed at No. 2710 Washington street, Boston, Massachusetts.

Bro. E. A. Erwin reports one added to the Manchester, Texas, branch by baptism. Bro. A. B. Moore was laboring at that point, November 22, when Bro. Erwin wrote, and would continue labor in that region. Bro. J. D. Erwin had returned from a successful trip in Arkansas, where he would soon return.

Who sent it? On the 24th of November we received two dollars and forty cents from some party in Indiana; as no letter was with it we have no means of telling from whom it came. Only the first two letters of the post office from which it was mailed were discernible—Ha—, Indiana.

Saturday night's mail brought us the latest account of the Savidge-Williams discussion, after our forms were made up, hence it appears in the letter department. See Bro. T. W. Williams' own version of the affair. We join with him and all who have heard this good news in thanksgiving to God for the victory. The work moves, and the Lord is moving it, as he will continue to press it on to final triumph over all opposing forces.

Bro. Truman B. Woods reports himself and wife at work distributing the printed word and presenting the gospel in conversation at their home, Santa Monica, California, where there are Saints, but no branch. He reports five baptisms by the elders with others ready, and prospects excellent, could labor be continued. He would like to see the work presented that the people be saved from the deceptions of spiritualism, now prevalent at the point. He will endeavor to continue circulating church literature.

HOW TO CROSS THE ARMS.—Not upon the chest; but behind the back; for the lungs must be given full play, and plenty of room allowed them for that purpose. The constant habits of life may be made either lengtheners of our days, or nails in our coffins.

Original Poetry.

PROPHET OF GOD.

BY E. J. RICHMOND.

Prophet of God! arise, go forth;
Strike down all sin before its birth.
Lead on thy cause; prevent the wrong;
Evil, at birth, is ever strong.

Prophet of God! if man thou art,
Aflame, alive, must be thine heart.
Go forth ablaze to stop the wrong,
Athwarting evil among the throng.

Prophet for aye! immortal souls
Like muffled drums each heart's beat rolls,
Beats ever on, beats strong and true;
Great things depend, ah friend! on you.

Prophet art thou? both brave and strong,
Use every weapon 'gainst the wrong;
Persuade, and argue, and exhort;
All Satan's devious ways abort.

The souls of those still yet unborn,
It can't be said are free from harm;
The tempter's shafts are poison-tipped;
While in the bud, the bloom is nipped.

Withered many an infant soul
Of sinful parents—Satan's goal;
Bloom of life all withered, and gone,
Born without morals, or health, or brawn.

O, what ruin black sin hath wrought!
The very air with germs is fraught.
Bacteria they; the microscope—
God's word—the only antidote.

Then spread abroad from shore to shore,
Peace and good will forever more,
'Till ever through the world amain
The King of heaven shall o'er us reign.

Thy mission done, lie down to sleep
With Saints redeemed at Jesus' feet;
In heaven around the celestial throne,
Hear this thy welcome, "Well done, well done!"

September 6, 1894.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

HELPING HAND.

SYNOPSIS OF READING, CHAPTER TWENTY,
HINTS ON CHILD-TRAINING.

GUIDING A CHILD IN COMPANIONSHIPS.

It is not easy for a child to go through childhood without companions, neither is it desirable that he should do so. Companions are a necessity to a child, and since he will have them and needs to have them, it is doubly important for the parent to guide in the choice of his companions, and in his relations with those whom he has without choosing.

No child can be rightly trained all by himself, nor with only grown people for associates. There are lessons which a child cannot learn so well from an elder teacher above him as from a younger teacher alongside of him. There are impulses which can never be at their fullest with a child only as they operate upon him as one of a little company of children. A child is entitled to the benefit of learning these lessons, and being swayed by these impulses with wisely chosen and fitting companions. Many a parent has been surprised—after seeking in vain to interest his child in some direction—to have the child come to him with new interest in that very matter, inspired by the words or example of a young companion. All that the parent had said had been of no value, in comparison with that which had come from the child's companion, as another self. Again, even through a brief and comparatively unnoticed companionship, which ought to have been guarded against, a parent may find, to his regret, that his child has received lessons and impulses directly opposed to his counsel and purposes. These are but illustrations of the instructive and swaying power of child companionships. Such a power as this ought not to be ignored or slighted by any parent.

Anyone can realize that unless a child has companions, he cannot be trained to be unselfishly considerate of his companions; to bear patiently with companions who are weak, or impatient, or exacting; to show sympathy for and to minister lovingly to companions who need such ministry. And no parent would think that a child would be as well off without these elements of character training.

An only child is naturally at a disadvantage in his home. He lacks the lessons which playmates would give him, the demands on his better nature, and the calls on his self-control and self-denial which would come from their requirements. Parents of an only child should seek to supply this lack, in some measure, with companionships of children from other homes. And even where there are several children in one family, each child has need of outside companions of his own age.

In choosing a neighborhood for residing either for a long or short period, in choosing a week-day school or a Sunday school, where a choice is open to parents, they should have prominently in mind the companionships to be secured to their child. And when the choice has been made, the responsibility is still upon the parent to see to it that the best available companionships there are cultivated and the most undesirable ones shunned by the child.

It is a parent's duty to know who are his child's companions, and to know the character, and conduct, and influence upon his child of every one of those companions separately. This is a parent's chief work in guiding and controlling his child's companionships. A parent must have his child's sympathy in order to gain this knowledge; and he must give his sympathy to the child in order to use this knowledge wisely. It is necessary to keep an open ear to the child's confidences concerning the sayings and doings of his companions, and it may be necessary to keep an open house for them as well as an open heart and hand to them personally. It is a pity there are not more who are willing to do all this in view of all the good it may accomplish for their children.

A parent ought to help his child to see the advantage of the worthiest companionships and the disadvantage of the unworthy ones.

It will not do for a parent to accept all companionships for his child just as they may come to him. He must feel responsible for the child's wise selection. And the parent should see to it that not his child alone is benefitted in his companionships, but that his child's influence is also for the good of his playfellows.

C. B. S.

SHELTON, Nebraska.

Dear Sisters:—Many times I am led to rejoice in the glorious work of the gospel since I joined it last spring. I feel very thankful for the privilege given me in attending General Conference at Lamoni, and after receiving the faith and light of the gospel, I was baptized by Bro. J. R. Lambert June 3. I'm now trying to walk in the footsteps of my Master, and obey his word and keep all his commandments. I shall never forget those cheering words which were given me by the Spirit spoken through Bro. R. M. Elvin at the time of my confirmation; they were so encouraging to one just starting on the Christian journey of life.

I have not the privilege of attending the meetings of the Saints as the greater number of you have. I fear I did not use my privilege as often as I should when I had the opportunity; but one does not always feel the need of her privileges until she is deprived of them.

There are very few Saints in this part of the State, but they are striving and living as best they can considering their opportunities. We are holding prayer meeting and Sunday school at the private dwellings of the Saints.

Your sister in the gospel,
HATTIE E. LIGHT.

RIVERSIDE, California.

Dear Sisters:—I feel this morning that I must say a few words to all the sisters who have contributed to help the "Column." The gracious words that have been said as helps to the poor, tired mothers—oh! how my heart goes out in thankfulness to God for them that he has given wisdom to his children in these the last days to help those who can only hear the gospel preached through the church publications. I thank the Lord that he has revealed himself to his children. When sickness and sorrow come let us go to Him who will hear his children when they cry. I can say, the more I trust him and go to him, the more I am blessed. When I have been so ill that I have thought I could not get up I have prayed the Lord to give me strength for this day, and the strength has come, so much so that I have been astonished at the work I have accomplished. Thus from "day to day" we get strength to bear with all the temptations that come in our way. I have been one who had a quick, fiery temper and it led me to do many things that were wrong and made my children unhappy, but thanks to God's power I have been able to overcome, and now have long suffering and patience.

Words cannot express what a blessing the Hope is to the dear little children. My little grandson is always ready to hear it read to him. I have distributed the church papers to different ones. Some are interested and say they are good, but don't seem to care to take the papers. Perhaps I don't urge them enough or talk as much as I should on the subject. I feel that I am so weak and afraid I may not do or say all that I should.

SISTER HANNAH.

HARDY, Nebraska.

Dear Sisters:—Since my last letter to you my soul has been filled with joy unspeakable, and I write to tell you that my prayer has been answered and how thankful I am to him who doeth all things well for sending help, also making known to me that there are other Saints near here besides myself. It had been my desire for some time to have an elder come, and I had prayed that help be sent here; but after that young lady asked if we couldn't have meetings at the schoolhouse, I spoke to the superintendent of the Sunday school about it. She knew of no one she could get to come, and asked if I knew of anyone. I knew of no one near whom I thought could come. I was deeply impressed and felt that good could be done if I could get some one to preach here, yet I knew not where nor whom to write to. I was still pondering upon this the next morning when the thought came to me to "write to the Herald." All the time I was doing up the morning's work those words, "Write to the Herald," were on my mind, so I wrote that forenoon, and just four days after my letter was printed in the Herald, I received a letter from Bro. C. H. Porter, of Wilber, Nebraska. He had just read my letter in the Herald, and had also received an urgent request to go to Guide Rock. He said he would stop with us while on his way there and hold meetings.

I received a letter the same day from Bro. G. W. Beebe, of Balm, Missouri. He also had read my letter in the Herald, and wrote to tell me of his two daughters living five or six miles from us, one of whom was a Latter Day Saint. This I did not know and would sometimes feel a little lonely. Thus you see the Lord had not only answered my prayer but had made known to me even more than I had asked for, and to him I am very thankful.

Bro. Porter arrived here the evening of the 3d inst., but as we did not receive his card in time no announcements could be made till Sunday forenoon. He preached two sermons to a house full of interested listeners. I think a good many have been set to thinking. Two families have borrowed papers and books of me to read. One Mr. Peters and wife, Adventists, seem greatly interested. They read the Voice of Warning and Herald, and sent to-day to borrow the Book of Mormon and Joseph the Seer. They liked the Voice of Warning and are going to send for one.

While there are some anxious to find out more, others seem indifferent, and are quite prejudiced. One lady said Bro. Porter thought his church was the only church. She also said she felt so sorry that I had been influenced to believe as I do. Nothing gives me greater pleasure than to know that I believe as I do, to know that I am a Latter Day Saint, and I shall ever be thankful that I have been led by the all wise Creator, who is ever willing to give wisdom to all who ask of him.

Pray with me, dear Saints, that the bars of prejudice may be rent asunder, and that each and everyone who has been walking in darkness may receive light. That the stumbling-blocks may be removed and that they at last may be led to walk the straight and narrow way which leads to life eternal. Some are anxious for Bro. Porter to return and we are looking for him in December. Hope not to be disappointed.

If there are any of the readers who have any of the church papers or tracts which they do not want I would be very grateful to them if they would send them to me to distribute around here. I think much good could be done in that way. Asking to be remembered in your prayers, and ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I remain,

Your loving sister,

JENNIE BARRETT.

CHICAGO, Illinois.

Dear Sisters:—This is a dark, rainy day and as I sat reading the Herald I thought how lonesome it would be if I did not have the church paper to read; the Autumn Leaves, too, I could not spare. Such splendid reading! I hope all the young in the church will appreciate the effort put forth in making it interesting. I, like many others, feel my inability to write, still I know it is my duty. I have been brought up in the church and my relatives belong. I was baptized in Independence, Missouri, by Bro. Warnky when about fourteen years old, and I have never regretted it, but rather rejoiced, for I know this is the everlasting gospel. My husband does not belong to the church, but his relatives do, and my fervent prayer is that he may ere it is too late.

In reading about the Gospel Boat setting sail my heart went out in prayer for a safe and speedy journey, for all on board. I rejoice also at the good work of the Daughters of Zion, and pray for their success.

Your sister,

MRS. EUGENE HORTON.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SR. ELLEN JONES, of Warren, Ohio, requests your faith and prayers in her behalf that if it is the Lord's will she may be restored to health. She is eighty-two years of age and very sick and weak and needs your faith and prayers that she may be healed of her affliction. There is no elder there at present.

Sr. Jennie Barrett, Hardy, Nebraska, requests faith and prayers in the behalf of her husband's mother, of Foolsland, Illinois. She was stricken two years ago with paralysis, and is worse again. She is not a Latter Day Saint. Never heard the gospel preached by them.

Religion is like muscle—if we do not use it we will lose it.

One of the worst resolutions in the world is a good resolution that has been broken.

Letter Department.

LAURELTON, Ohio, Nov. 19.

Editors Herald:—The truth has again covered its enemies with shame.

"Praise to the Lord for the great restoration Brought by the angel to Joseph the Seer."—Saints' Harp.
"Praise ye the Lord. . . I will praise thee, O Lord, with my whole heart."—Psalms.

After preaching the eighteenth time at Howenstine, Ohio, whence I last wrote, I spoke twice, by urgent invitation, at Slabtown, two miles north. The night after the first sermon I dreamed that my friends had given me a small snake; that I felt disposed to take good care of it, and accordingly covered it with dirt; that soon I observed the covering moved, and thought it was its tail, but on looking carefully saw it was its head. It crawled out, and I felt I should kill it; and, picking up a small stick, struck it once on the head. That seemed to kill it, but in a minute it partly revived, whereupon I wholly dispatched it by several blows. I then looked it over and discovered it to be a rattlesnake, and so venomous as that its rattles extended by nearly half the length of its body. I saved them.

I told this dream in the morning; when the man with whom I was stopping told a dream he had had, premising first that perhaps I could interpret it, to which I answered that I feared I could not; but he having told it, the Spirit showed me the interpretation, which he, his wife, and a neighbor agreed then was plainly correct, though theretofore neither had been able to at all understand it.

That evening was my second effort at Slabtown. There my dream was literally fulfilled in a figure; viz, a minister was introduced by my friends, and I afterwards invited him into the pulpit to pray. He did so. After I had finished preaching he asked to propound a question, and I gave him leave; whereupon he, instead of putting it, started to make an address; but I stopped him, reminding him of the question. He began the second time a harangue, apparently for the purpose of "throwing dust" into the eyes of the large congregation before me, which, it was evident, had received my sermon very favorably. Again I stopped him, kindly informing him that if he wished to ask a question he might do so, and I would answer it if I could; but that if he desired to reply at length to my effort, he might preach at any other time and at that or any other place, but that that meeting had been held long enough and must soon be closed. At this juncture he quoted the words, "Physician, heal thyself," (Luke 4: 23;) and premising that I had just taught that the signs follow the believer, requested me that poison might be sent for and that I take some to prove it. Here was the supreme moment of my twenty sermons and of Bro. True's faithful work and his persecutions and sacrifices. The Lord was with me. I replied that I could answer that; whereupon I immediately said that when Jesus was on a pinnacle of the temple the Devil said to him, "If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down: for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee; and in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone. Jesus said unto him, It is written again, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."—Luke 4: 6, 7. At this a distinct murmur of applause passed like a wave over the audience, and I calling the closing hymn, the reverend sat down in rather awkward grace. I thought that had killed the small snake but to my surprise after the meeting he would enter into a supplementary harangue, in which for bravado he announced his determination to debate, but upon my warm appreciation of the challenge, he cooled. The upshot of this was that as he is a believer and a minister I asked him to expound certain scripture, but he failing to do so the lamps were turned down just as the truth finally turned him down, and as they went out so his rattles were taken from him and his venomous qualities "went out;" for all reasoners saw who "had the horns and ate hay." One remarked of the sermon, "That's good; it cuts right and left." Another had "had no idea that a 'Mormon' talked that way."

After reaching home, one of my friends wrote me that this reverend had gone home concluding he did not want to debate. But the climax was only reached by announcement that another reverend was going to preach, a certain day, at Howenstine on the subject of "Mormonism, its history, its doctrine, and its fruits." As soon as this information reached me I hastily made preparations, and the next Sunday afternoon astonished my Howenstine friends by appearing personally on the ground with pencil and notebook to get the full benefit of the rare exposure, myself. It was another case of "mud throwing," and I announced a reply, and did answer it fully in two hours and ten minutes sermon last Sunday in which—God be praised—ignorance, superstition, and bigotry suffered, being covered with shame; and the fact became apparent to a number there that Joseph Smith was a good man and inspired of God to translate the Book of Mormon.

It is perfectly clear that God has souls in that place, and that he worked through me, Bro. True, and others, to bring them nearer him; and I believe those souls will shortly be his, according to the true gospel. I sold three more copies of the Voice of Warning, making seventeen in all, and one copy of Braden-Kelley debate, and secured three subscribers to the Ensign.

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Long live truth; namely, the restored gospel of Christ at Howenstine.

This is a conscientious statement of the facts. I recognize that if lasting good has come to some at Howenstine, it came by the grace of God. I found the Braden-Kelley Debate contains the "best evidence" in favor of the characters of both the Smith family and the early Saints. Bro. E. L. Kelley's article in Herald of November 14, which arrived two days before my effort, served me also in re the Spalding story.

J. W. Wight, Soldier, Iowa, has taken up my cudgel on the subject of "what may appear to be their weaker points" in some of the 'revelations.' All of this clash did not come by my desire. At first I merely requested the brethren not to discuss the revelation on account of the "little ones." I meant by that not to rehash the facts for and against its divinity. Of course an expounding of it on the basis of its truth would, as Bro. Lambert observed in reply, be a desirable thing. I did not intend to "rebuken an elder," or elders, but to "entreat him as a father."—1 Tim. 5: 1. Let it drop here; or at least before some one be hurt.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."—Ps. 133: 1. JOHN S. PARRISH.

NEW CANTON, Ill., Nov. 22.

Editors Herald.—This finds me still in the faith and trying to help to build up the kingdom of God. I have met with nothing so far during the conference year that has been especially encouraging. It may be because I do not see things as large as others do, yet from my standpoint I have met with no more discouragements than might be expected in the way of a minister for Christ laboring more or less among strangers.

This is where there seemed to be such a good prospect to build up the work last winter; but many who seemed interested then do not attend meetings now, although they are still here. It may be that the cares of life prevent their coming, but quite often I find it to be the case that some go to meeting until they find they must either quit going, or join the church, and they choose the former. Many more would come into the church if, when they got in, they could have church privileges; but to make the first start, and thus lead out, and stand the sneers and jeers of those who seem anxious to oppose, is more than they feel willing to do. To use a common expression, "They lack backbone." It seems that some people can so manifest, that what they lack in impudence they can make up in gall, while others do not seem to have the moral stamina to stand on their rights, although it be in free America.

I had often wondered while reading letters of the brethren, who seemed to have more or less opposition to meet with from preachers of other churches, whether it was not brought about by the use of what Joseph calls "meat-ax argument," until I struck a place in this county called Bee Creek. In company with Bro. Guthrie I went into the neighborhood as much like a sheep of the true Shepherd as I knew how, and opened up in my lamblike manner, and had only preached about five discourses, when, lo and behold, and it came to pass, that one of the shepherds of Babylon arose in the strength of his might and monopolized the appointed hour of their Thursday night prayer meeting in misrepresenting what I had said in a former sermon, not less than six times, telling the people what he knew [did not know] about "old Joe Smith and the Book of Mormon." And when I introduced myself to him at the close of the service, he was ready for debate. Question: "What do you want to debate?" Answer: "I will affirm that the church to which I belong is the church of Jesus Christ." Question: "To what church do you belong?" Answer: "To the Church of Jesus Christ." Question: "Will you not identify your church by inserting, 'commonly called or nicknamed Campbellites?'" Answer: "No." So not being anxious to deny that the Church of Jesus Christ is the Church of Jesus Christ, the matter was dropped for the present.

I occupied the stand the Friday and Saturday evenings following; and, lo and behold, it came further to pass that another one representing the "Bible-alone theory," without claiming any call, or rather disclaiming any call to so represent, came down on Sunday afternoon at an unusual hour, without any public announcement, so far as I had heard, and opened up his battery against "Joe Smith and the Book of Mormon" and informed us during his remarks that to understand scripture properly we need to read the "pro and the con." But in his remarks about "Joe Smith and the Book of Mormon" it was all con and no pro. So on the Monday night following I began answering number one and intended to answer number two; but at the close of my Monday night meeting, when I had announced further intentions of reviewing number one on Tuesday evening, a good brother bounced up and announced that number one would speak on Wednesday evening. So that by such Christianlike conduct I was prevented from answering number two at all.

Debate? Of course; number two even offered to send right away and get "I, Clark Braden" to debate with little me! I could not call to mind when I had ever had such a compliment paid to my talent as that was. When Mr. Ingersoll thinks that infidelity is a belief too sacred for him to enter into dispute upon with those who are infidel to that belief, I think it about time that the elders call a halt before entering into an agreement giving some one a wanted opportunity to vilify the character of the dead.

Says one: "What will you do then?" Do just as Bro. I. N. White did lately in Missouri; be present if you can, and answer if you have the opportunity, and so escape the responsibility of aiding in getting up a meeting in which you know beforehand that misrepresentation, vituperation, and bombast is the only stock in trade possessed by your opponent, and called discussion.

I have baptized but one so far this conference year, but do not feel at all envious of those brethren who have made a better report in this class of work. Let the good work go on, brethren, and I shall rejoice with you. There is not a local minister in all of what used to be the Pittsfield district, that is making any move whatever in church work, and as a consequence the Saints in the district do not meet in the absence of the traveling minister. Our church building in Pittsfield stands idle. It is thought by some of the Saints there that if Bro. Hilliard had staid there longer last spring, he might have done some more good. Bro. McKiernan was there during the summer, and I came from there here. Neither one of the two last named received any encouragement by way of a turnout by the towns-people, two or three being the most at my meetings, and but few from the country. There is a good turnout here, some of whom seem interested enough to listen to what the preacher has to say. I ordained Bro. William Guthrie, who lives in Calhoun county, Illinois, his post office address being Nebo, Illinois. Calhoun county is in the St. Louis district. The authorities of said district will please take notice. There are some good Saints in that locality, but are not organized into a branch; nor would it be advisable to do so at present.

Praying and working for Zion's weal,
Yours in hope,
J. C. CRABB.

SILVER CITY, Iowa, Nov. 22.

Editors Herald:—The latter part of September my wife and I went to Eastern Iowa to visit. I preached at Fulton, and then went to Muscatine, where I preached over two Sundays. Not much interest was manifested at first, for most of the people there, who are Dunkards or Quakers, are satisfied with their present religion, deeming it a liberal sufficiency. I felt signally blessed in presenting the word there. The interest increased some as the meetings progressed, and on the day before our departure I had the pleasure of baptizing Bro. and Sr. Rynearson. The Spirit was present in great power in their confirmation, and the intimation was given that others would yet embrace the truth in that place. These two uniting was a great testimony and encouragement to Bro. and Sr. Dykes, who were isolated there for a long time. May God bless them for their deeds of kindness.

From Muscatine we went to Boone, via Cedar Rapids, and met with the Saints twice; thence on to Silver City. I just closed a series of meetings out at the Mud Creek and Golden Hill schoolhouses. There was a fair attendance, and pretty good interest manifested. This is the boyhood home of our worthy Bishop. I was kindly cared for by Sr. Ryerson and her husband. I shall go to Shenandoah Saturday, and will continue in the field.

Yours hopefully,
J. B. HEIDE.

NETAWAKA, Kan., Nov. 28.

Editors Herald:—After some labor near Topeka and at Scranton I had the pleasure of being with the Saints at Atchison from the 17th to the 22d. I attended their Sunday school, and held sacrament and social meeting in the morning. The Spirit was with us to comfort. I preached four times in all, with but moderate attendance. The branch has striven hard and under trying circumstances to pay for their lot, on which stands their neat little meetinghouse; but am glad to say that from fifty to sixty dollars will clear it all now. Courage, brethren and sisters, you have done well.

I am to be at Blue Rapids for Sunday, December 2, and at Minneapolis, Kansas, on the third, to open up the work in that town and to consider the interest of the work in organizing a branch in that locality, etc., after that to Scandia and Cuba, in Republic county, and other places if I am able to reach them.

While at Atchison I met Bro. R. L. Ware on his way home from his field sick. Am sorry for this. Hope he will soon recover and be able to return to his field—North-western Kansas district. Bro. J. Alfred Davis has gradually worked his way up to that field since he left home in the forepart of October and will continue his labors in that vast territory for the balance of the conference year, and we pray the Master to bless him.

This morning Brn. J. Arthur and R. W. Davis set out for the vicinity of Topeka, Kansas, to fill a previous appointment left, and to look up others that are in view. May the Lord "send his angels" to prepare the way.

In best of bonds,
J. T. DAVIS.

MONROE CITY, Ind., Nov. 21.

Editors Herald:—Bro. A. C. Barmore and I came here on the 16th. The gospel had never been preached here. We set to work to procure a place to preach, but the whisper, "They are Mormons," was soon wafted on the breeze and the doors of the churches were closed and the ministry of the town are giving eager listeners private discourses and advising the people to not turn out to our meetings. We have procured the G. A. R. hall and have held two meetings, and will continue this week. We have had large crowds so far. We cannot tell what the outcome will be, but we intend to plant the standard of the gospel and leave results with him who ruleth all things well. To a human point of view it looks discouraging, but the Spirit of the Lord has been with us, so we are not in the least discouraged. May the Lord bless all laborers in Zion.

In gospel bonds,
CHARLES BARMORE.

NORMAN, Ok., Nov. 23.

Editors Herald:—The prospects are brightening a little. I am now at the Macedonia schoolhouse where we had the joint meeting with the Utah elders. They have not preached here since, claiming that it would "do no good." Interest is encouraging to begin with, and we hope it will increase. At the Blackburn schoolhouse, where there was no chance of preaching last summer, they are now calling for us to come. Some are quite favorable, and may obey.

I am encouraged by the attitude the church is taking, making more of an effort for purity and goodness, heeding the advice to "come up higher."

In bonds,
R. M. MALONEY.

OLDTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 22.

Editors Herald:—I am now holding meetings at the Morning Star schoolhouse, near here. This is a new opening. I have preached twelve times to large and attentive audiences; house packed every night, and the best of attention given. We will continue till over next Sunday, and then go to Jackson and Roane counties. Bro. Godbey did some preaching near here some time ago. People now are coming from far and near to hear. Hope some good will be done.

H. E. MOLER.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 22.

Editors Herald:—By the kindness of Bro. Ordway in giving employment, I have located in this city. Our branch, a month old, bids fair to prosper, and numbers at present about twenty members. We have Sunday school at one p.m., preaching at 2:30, and prayer service at 3:30 each Sunday. The Saints attend quite well and all seem alive and lively in spirit. A few "outsiders" lend us their presence, some of them their deep interest. Our meetings are held in a pleasant hall on the third floor at 123 South Adam's street. We extend a cordial invitation to any of the ministry who may be passing, not to "pass by on the other side," but to call and leave us a sermon.

Through Bro. Ordway's efforts (chiefly) our name is kept before the people, through the papers, and we hope some echo of the Shepherd's voice may in that way reach some of "his sheep" that they may no longer follow strangers. Trusting we may at least hold the fort in safety, I am,

Your brother,

ADAM J. KECK.

NETAWAKA, Kan., Nov. 26.

Editors Herald:—I desire to state for the benefit of the Saints and friends in North-western Kansas who have written me about preaching in their neighborhoods and towns, that by request of the missionary in charge I was placed in the Northeastern district. This will explain why I am not responding to the many calls.

I am sorry to be separated from the Saints of the west, for since laboring among them for the past three years I have found many of them as kind and hospitable as a father or mother could be, and oftentimes have been cheered, comforted, and sent on my way rejoicing with tokens of appreciation; all of which is indelibly stamped in memory and written (we think) in the "Lamb's book of life." May God reward them.

I rejoice in this latter-day work. To see the effect it has on the life of man is simply marvelous. Well was it called a marvelous work and a wonder. When properly accepted it operates upon the better nature of man and develops all that is noble and good, suppressing the selfish, carnal, and evil that is in him; thus making him Christlike. When I look at the extent of the teaching of the Christian world to-day, also at the effect it has upon the people who profess to believe, the question suggests itself, Is the proper Spirit with them? If it is, why do we see such fruits as appear? "By their fruits ye shall know them," said the Savior. If malice, strife, contention (evil speaking), and backbiting mark the line of march, shall we say the good Spirit ruleth? No. In turn, if the world see in us that that is not noble, grand, lovely, and virtuous, they can say, "Your works do not correspond with your teaching." Can we afford this? Not by any means. The Lord requires his people to live by every word that proceeds from him, and as we should be living epistles, our records should be as clear and open as the word that God has given us to form them by.

I frequently read of numbers being baptized in different places. This gives me great joy for I love to see our numbers swell. Then we say, "God bless the ministry." Well said, for they are indispensable to the progress of the work. But how the heart of the missionary swells with gratitude when he hears these words: "We are glad you came. If the gospel you preach will cause people to be as good as Mr. and Mrs. —, we would be glad if everybody were of your faith." Preaching in such places is generally effectual and the work there thrives. May the God of heaven bless us with unity, peace, and love.

My permanent address for the rest of the year will be, Angola, Kansas.

Your brother,

R. W. DAVIS.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Nov. 29.

Dear Brother Joseph:—I had thought to write nothing to the Herald concerning our debate with Rev. Savidge, preferring that others should do this, but to-day being Thanksgiving the question involuntarily came, What have I to be thankful for? I felt that inasmuch as God has fulfilled his promise in such a wonderful way, it is my duty to render due acknowledgement therefor. Rev. Savidge is quite an eloquent speaker; he is not much of a logician but quite an orator. In his effort to counteract the good impression made in behalf of the Book of Mormon he resorted to such statements as "Joe Smith;" "Spalding story;" "Mormonism all bad; whether in Utah or Reorganization;" "Mormonism is an ulcer on the white breast of the nation;" "I would rather die than accept it;" "I would suffer the Danites to cut my heart out first." Such a clear rebuke was I permitted to give him that he afterwards said "Joseph," and he acknowledged a difference between us and the people in Utah.

I need not weary the reader with a synopsis of the discussion, for I never read one that did justice to both disputants. During the week previous to the discussion our babe had been very sick with lung fever, and on Thursday it seemed that she could not live much longer. Oh, how sorely was I tried! "Shall I leave my child, not knowing whether she shall live until I return, or shall I neglect my work?" Alone, I could not stand the struggle, but my companion and I bowed before our heavenly Father and sought his guidance. I arose resolving that I would go, and leave the results with God, feeling that I could best expect his blessing if I was at my post. I had a ray of hope, but my wife was in the blackness of despair, not having a particle of evidence as to the recovery of the child, and as she says now, "Even the Spirit's presence was denied me." Yet while in this condition and with tears streaming down her cheeks she said: "Go, and God bless you." Thank God for such a noble wife! I went, and O, what a blessing did God bestow! In my second speech I was led to pray, "O Lord, if I am thy servant and preaching truth, loosen my tongue and fire my mind with thy Spirit that I may be enabled to present it; if I am in error, confound me in my utterance." Instantly the response came in a manifestation of power such as I had never before witnessed. The speaker was enveloped in the Spirit and the room was filled with it, and for half an hour I but gave utterance to the Spirit's prompting. In fact, the Saints testify that my contour, expression, and even my voice changed, so powerful was God's Spirit displayed that people all over the house were melted to tears. Yes, when I ceased speaking there was a power pervading the room the memory of which a majority of that audience will carry to their graves, whether they heed its bidding or not.

Rev. Savidge arose, but not to reply. His hands trembled and his face was ashen white. He stated: "God has dealt wonderfully with me to-night; he has confounded me! On Tuesday night I was blessed with liberty, but to-night I am all mixed up. I do not know why this is so. I prepared my arguments here on paper, but God has mixed them up. I believe God is teaching me a wonderful lesson!" The effect was electrical. My prayer was answered. God had given me liberty, and the enemy was confounded. The universal verdict was that we had gained a victory, and with more assurance did we realize that God had done it, when we noticed Rev. Savidge's tactics the following evening. He was confounded, but not convinced. O, how the Saints rejoiced, as I looked into their faces filled with a new light and with joy inexpressible, yet with the unbidden tear trickling down their cheeks as their souls were touched by the mellowing influence of God's holy Spirit, trials, crosses, and persecutions fell into insignificance, and I with many of the Saints felt that this one experience was enough to repay for all the sacrifices of a lifetime. God grant that the blessing thus given, affecting both saint and sinner, may bear fruitage in the reconsecration of their life's forces on the part of the Saints, and a full conviction and final ingathering of many honest souls for whose benefit God displayed his power! O, the insignificance of man, and how carefully should he guard his every act, for "it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of a just God."

As I saw my opponent cringing under the influence of a power that he did not understand I felt in my soul to pity him and pray God that he might see the light.

On the last night we were on the negative, his church claims being considered. He guarded his language well, spending his time in proving that the Holy Ghost should be in the church, laying on of hands for healing the sick, etc. I was forced to take the lead, and succeeded in drawing him out so that I had a fair groundwork for my second speech. During the first two speeches of my opponent this last evening one could see that his whole demeanor was changed. He stated that he had cast his last stone and that even if we had the Book of Mormon, if we had the Holy Spirit we could lift souls out of the pit, and prayed God that we might be enabled to win millions to Christ.

In his ten minutes speech he turned around and spoke of the Spalding Romance, Mormonism being bad, etc., and completely upset the good impression he had made upon the audience; for they were enabled to see his glaring inconsistency with no effort on my part. When he assailed the character of Joseph Smith I answered that in this limited time we could not consider all the claims of Joseph Smith, but announced that I would meet him either in Council Bluffs or Omaha and affirm that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God. He accepted this and said he would meet me in Council Bluffs sometime in January. Thus closed the debate. We lost nothing, unless it was the ill-will of many, and gained the confidence and respect of nearly all.

Your brother in Christ,

T. W. WILLIAMS.

P. S.—To show you the feeling of the people I submit a few things we heard.

Rev. Summerville, M. D., associate minister with Rev. Savidge, and who helped him organize the People's Church: "Bro. Savidge has been beaten worse than Sullivan. He has not answered a single argument made by Mr. Williams, but I am glad of it, as I counseled him not to go into the debate."

Mr. Skinner, moderator for Rev. Savidge: "This debate has done good. I have learned a great deal about your people."

The chorister: "I have learned something; I find you are not all Heathen."

A member of the Peoples' Church: "Why don't Bro. Savidge answer Mr. Williams' arguments? He must be sick to-night."

Another: "This will break up our church."

Another: "O, Bro. Savidge is all right; but he is not up to date like Mr. Williams."

Dr. Deford, member of no church: "Come and call on me; there is only one side to this discussion; the argument is all on your side."

An infidel, speaking of Thursday night: "This is the most wonderful manifestation I ever witnessed."

Another (non-member): "Why, that was wonderful; Mr. Williams' face changed while he was talking."

Rev. Mackey, Rector of Episcopal Church, Omaha: "Mr. Savidge ought to have known better than to have entered the discussion. This is a very deep subject."

From the Saints:—

David Chambers: "I never witnessed such a manifestation of God's power in my life. I have read of such things, but I never experienced such before. Bro. Williams' face and voice changed when the Spirit rested upon him."

J. S. Strain: "I will never be happier in heaven."

Henry Beecroft: "If ever God spoke through human lips he did through Bro. Williams."

C. A. Beebe: "This is a regular Pentecostal blessing. It is wonderful."

Sr. A. B. Mair: "I will never doubt God's power again."

Rev. Savidge: "God has confounded me; he has mixed me all up. He is teaching me a wonderful lesson!"

T. W. Williams: "To God be all the glory."

I have given sufficient to show you that Saints and others gave God the credit for the victory. May we live worthy of the good it has done us.

T. W. W.

HIGGINSVILLE, Mo., Nov. 25.

Editors Herald:—Please mention to the Saints that I am a poor lay member of the church, but that is no reason why the banner of Christ should not be unfurled in Higginsville, and I am distributing all the literature I can get. Some are very near the kingdom, and all the church literature sent me will be distributed with judgment and caution, and it will give those anxious to help the work a chance to send their old papers and tracts where they will do a good work, and while the sender will be far away, the silent preacher will be building us a stake in Zion,

Yours in the faith.

J. E. F. SMITH.

The engineer who stands by his engine when he knows he is rushing to early death, and the mother who gives her life away in particles to save her children, both emulate the character of Christ.—Parkhurst.

Simplicity of diet is the characteristic of the dwellers in the Orient. According to Niebuhr, the sheik of the desert wants only a dish of pillau, or boiled rice, which he eats without fork or spoon. Notwithstanding their frugal fare, these sons of the desert are among the most hardy and enduring of all members of the human family. A traveler tells of seeing one of them run up to the top of the tallest pyramid and back in six minutes.

Original Articles.

REBAPTISM.

THIS is not written with a desire or intention of being drawn into a discussion on the right or wrong of the practice of rebaptism, but merely to pen a few thoughts which may perchance be the means of easing the mind of Bro. Nunley, the author of the letter which appeared in the Herald of November 21, because he appears to be fixed in the idea that the Lord never gave a command for the performance of such a rite; and in order to undeceive his mind I desire that he should prayerfully please read for a description and the name of the personage who gave the instructions to John the beloved disciple to the churches as found in the first chapter of his Book of Revelation, commencing at the tenth verse. Afterward read chapters two and three and you will find the following in chapter 2, verse 5:—

Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent.

The Ephesian church, the first one spoken to, possessed some good characteristics. They could not bear them which were evil, and hated the deeds of the Nicolaitans (plural wife-ism and concubinage), which the Lord declared he also hated; but with all this there was one great wrong they had committed,

Thou hast left thy first love.

They had fallen, and in order that they might regain their lost position they were commanded to repent and do the first works. What first works? Most assuredly those works by which they first came into possession of their first love for the truth as recorded in Acts 19: 1-6; also referred to by the Apostle Paul in his epistle to this same Ephesian church in chapter 1, verses 13 and 14. That is, if they obeyed the command to repent they should then be rebaptized for the remission of their sins, and be again sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise, which was the earnest or assurance of their inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his (the Lord's) glory.

You will also discover that others of the churches admonished were guilty of far greater crimes than the Ephesians; they were guilty of crimes which the Ephesians hated, and they were commanded to repent; but instead of repenting "and doing the first works," it was said to them, "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches," which was its equivalent; and as he had said unto the Ephesians,—

Remember, therefore, from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent.

It had also been said through the Ephesian message as a notice to the other churches,—

He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

In most of the churches were those who were guilty of abominable acts, and certainly had lost their first love, and needed a renewal of that love like the Ephesians by repentance and a doing of the first works.

So far as a person being baptized as a help in case of severe sickness is concerned, there were, as the brother admits, some such baptisms performed in an early day, and in England in the early forties, and said to have been with good results; and I read:—

Verily I say, men should be anxiously engaged in a good cause, and do many things of their own free will, and bring to pass much righteousness; for the power is in them, wherein they are agents unto themselves. And inasmuch as men do good, they shall in no wise lose their reward. But he that doeth not anything until he is commanded, and receiveth a commandment with doubtful heart, and keepeth it with slothfulness, the same is damned.—D. C. 58: 6.

In the Book of Mormon I also read:—

For there is nothing which is good, save it comes from the Lord; and that which is evil, cometh from the devil.—Omni. 1: 12.

I therefore conclude that if good results followed those baptisms in cases of sickness, the Lord recognized them, and the good which followed came from him independent of a command.

The practices of sprinkling and pouring, which have become custom in the Christian world and called baptism, cut no figure in the case from the fact that there is and was a law which governs the mode, and the sprinkling or pouring a little water upon a person can never fulfill the law; for Jesus said:—

Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.—John 3: 5.

This was and is the established gospel law, and in order to its fulfillment the person must be immersed in and concealed under the water. Neither sprinkling nor pouring will fulfill the law, neither will trine immersion fill the bill, because it is contrary to the mode adopted by the Lawgiver and practiced by his immediate apostles and witnesses.

Praying that these few thoughts may be of benefit, I subscribe myself,

Your brother in the covenant of peace,

WILLIAM HAWKINS.

VORTS, Missouri, November 23, 1894.

STOCKBRIDGE INDIANS.

EDITORS HERALD:—In regard to the Stockbridge Indians, the following I glean from the "Panorama of Nations," by H. G. Cutler, contributor to the Magazine of American History:—

Early in the twenties remnants of the Narragansetts, Pequots, Moheicans, and other tribes of former power who had emigrated from the land of the Onondas near Utica, New York, removed to Green Bay [Wisconsin], and afterwards to the shores of Lake Winnebago, southwest of that locality. Here they formed the Brothertown Colony, proceeded to clear land, and establish churches and schools. Since then the inhabitants have generally kept pace with other portions of the county (Calumet) in material and mental improvement, having sent several representatives to the legislature, and developed, educated, and refined citizens. Others have become wealthy and sent their children to Universities. With the Brothertown Indians also came the Stockbridges, a New York tribe, who had been granted a small tract of land by the Oneidas, but who sighed for independence. The story of their advancement and incorporation into the body politic of a great State is similar to that of their friends and coworkers.—Page 392.

T. S. HAYTON.

PROSPERITY, MISSOURI, October 18, 1894.

WISE COUNSEL IS PROFITABLE TO ALL SAINTS.

Wise counsel giveth wisdom to the wise.

I am fearful that many who take the Saints' Herald do not take time to read all the good things and instructions found in print upon its pages, especially in respect to the qualification of the ministry. Secondly, I think young men zealously engaged in the ministry in the latter-day work cannot spend a more profitable moment in reading over gospel duties than to look at some of the rules that help to make up a good gospel minister before the public. But how many young elders of this latter-day ministry look at or study these necessary rules. One other point in the good instructions given in the Saints' Herald is how parents should teach and instruct their children in gospel principles while they are young and under parental care.

Young boys or young men who are still members of the church, after working hours are over, instead of going to study books or lessons on Christ's gospel resort to some playground, croquet, or checkers, for pastime. How is that for Latter Day Saint gospel-teaching in families where the head of the family is an elder in the church? Here, then, is the mystery. I wonder if all the good counsel given in the Herald both to young ministers and to Saints' families how they should teach and raise their children, is read and treasured up in good and honest hearts and practically observed. I fear not. I hope these few hints on the duty of a good ministry and the duty of families in teaching their children the good things of the kingdom of God may not be in vain.

Well, I will say that I am again at home, and that I have hopes, if life remains, to visit the conference next spring, if possible, at Lamoni. I did intend to visit Lamoni before returning home from Independence, but my business at home demanded otherwise. Godspeed to the Herald and to that Logan Reunion is my prayer.

Supplementary question:—

Is it commendable for brethren who profess the name of Latter Day Saints to join in the athletic sports of the day, betting, ball playing? Twenty years ago ball playing was nothing but little school-boy play, but the ball playing craze of late years has become most tremendous; whole towns and cities are more or less absorbed in the craze, while newspapers and magazines pander to the folly of this kind of sport in devoting a space in their columns for the ball playing interest.

From the interest that some newspapers take in this ball playing business one would suppose that some new science in ball playing had been discovered, almost equal to the power of steam or the telephone, great wages being paid for good ball players. The world is making gain on nonsense and Sabbath-breaking and some newspapers like to have it so.

Surely the world is on the toboggan downward slide when athletics and professed Christians have no respect for religious worship on the Sabbath day. The ball playground is no better than the saloon for the Saint visitor. Every idle work will be brought into judgment.

W. B. SMITH.

OSTERDOCK, Iowa, September 23, 1893.

SERMON BY ELDER C. SCOTT.

LAMONI, IOWA, 1894.

I ASK your attention for a short time to these words: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time."—1 Peter 1: 3-5.

It seems to me to be well, in the midst of the unparalleled agitations of the times, that the children of the Master should not lose sight of that for which we are hoping; that our attention should not be allowed to divert at any time from the consideration of the salvation brought to light through Jesus Christ. The future of the Saints is a subject worthy of all the attention that we may be able to bestow upon it. The conception of that inheritance; the idea that we may have with regard to it and how it is to be attained, is to us a matter of the first importance. If we are engaged in the service of, if we are giving a portion of our time, our best interests, and our means to the sustenance of a religious cause, it is essential that we know of its verity, of its reasonableness, of its harmony with the gospel, with the revelations of God.

There is something that to my mind is of a striking character with regard to the very conception of the inheritance of the children of God, the future inheritance of the Saints as we entertain it, compared with the idea entertained by the barbarian or heathen world—as it is sometimes called—and also the idea held by those who compose what is called Christendom. The ideas are different. And with regard to heathendom and Christendom we may remark that they have no definite idea or conception with regard to the future inheritance of the people of God, and it seems to me strange. The ideas held by both are, as we understand it, perversions. Should you refer to any religion of the ancient Heathen or the religion of those of more modern times, you will observe that they lay down no definite ideas with regard to where we shall be in the future or what our condition is expected to be. So far as I have been able to search, I have failed to find anything definite. It is true they have an idea, a settled conviction, we may grant, of a future for mankind, but as to its nature and character they are not in harmony with themselves in their various definitions; nor do they give any definiteness in any one of them, so far as I am now informed, with regard to what we should hope for in the future.

With regard to the Christendom of the age—I mean the popular religious ideas of the age—they present no definite heaven, and they are becoming so uncertain about it that they present no longer any definite ideas of hell—so far as it relates to those subjects—and they usually, when investigating this question, rather than move off into any thought that comes in the least in antagonism with their ideas, simply remark, "Well, we believe that we will be happy no matter where it may be located, or what the conditions of our heaven may be, or the little that we may know concerning it, and we are willing to move along with this vague indefinite idea before us, content with our condition as it is." I have been told this personally, both by the lay members and the ministry, and as you notice the public religious writings, very little is said with regard to the question in the popular Christian world now.

The Latter Day Saints have some degree of definiteness of conception, and to me this brings some degree of strength in favor of Christian power, which is simply as much above every other form of religion that I have been enabled to become at all, to the least degree, acquainted with. And when we come to consider the fact that there has been a vein of inspiration pervading the ages of the world, down to the present, as accepted by us, as to the idea of what the future inheritance of the children of God will be, that harmonizes with that general degree of inspiration, with those rays of light that have come to the world from time to time, and with the Latter Day Saints in those ideas that have come to them that have been connected with reference to heaven, what it is and where it shall be, and this harmonizing with the statement of revelation all the way down, it seems to me that it comes with an additional degree of strength, and support, and a conviction that the idea must be divine.

And then we may make the further observation, that when we appeal to the scientific world it does not directly give us any additional light with reference to what that hope is and what it shall be as we may expect to realize it. To make the idea that I wish to convey plain to your minds, I will state that in the developments of the electrical world, in the philosophical world, or in any part of the scientific world, I cannot find that the most gigantic minds have had a single ray of light with reference to Christ, and the Christ character, and the future hope additional to what the Apostle Paul entertained. If you and I have any additional ideas to what has been revealed through him, it is because subsequent revelation has come to us from that world whence this conception originated. The very fact that this idea of future bliss is not revealed through these various heathen forms of religion, the very fact that the more modern creeds of Christendom give no additional ideas and contain not the definite and plain revelations of the hope of the children of God, is evidence that those revelations given anciently and those of the present as accepted by us, contain such a reasonable and beautiful harmony which is additional evidence that the inspiration of the Almighty characterizes the development of this great latter-day work; that gives to you and me this superior advantage with reference to what we shall expect to attain to if we are indeed and prove to be the humble followers of Christ, the children of God as pointed out in the divine record. I only refer to this, this morning, that we may see the contrast between what we have been taught and the ideas of others not taught as we have been.

With reference to the place that shall be the inheritance of the children of God, we may open the Bible, and read plainly from the Psalms of David, and the Book of Isaiah, and from the sayings of Christ, who says, "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth." From that same revelation we may read that God created the earth for man to dwell upon.

We can read in other places that God proposes to adapt the earth in the future ages to the final conditions that are promised, so far as a definite place is concerned, for the habitation of his saints; hence the Apostle Peter could confidently say, "We, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness."

Another preverted idea with regard to how we shall attain to this future inheritance, exists in the mind of both the Heathen and the so-called evangelical Christian. The Heathen, knowing nothing of the demand, knowing nothing of the superabundant goodness of God through the Redeemer, subject themselves to the most excruciating penance in some regards, and attach whatever future glory or happiness may come to them altogether to such work as seems to them essential in order to attain to this inheritance. With them it is all works, and penance, and suffering, and expiation, with no grace.

Again we are told by modern Christendom that there is no work that we can do, in any regard, that will benefit us in securing a future inheritance. God does it all; there is nothing that we can do; it is all grace. Is not this the crystallized idea of the present hour? When we turn to the pages that reveal Christ and the Christian character, we are informed that, there is placed before us, the revelation of the infinite goodness of God as an incentive to lead men to works of righteousness, purity, and holiness.

And again we find ourselves, as a people, occupying neither the one extreme nor the other, but believing that we may be assimilated to the holy character of Christ, that we may become good, that we may become such as the Father would have us, by obedience to just such requirements as Christianity demands in the development of the moral and spiritual character. To my mind this is another evidence bearing strongly in favor of the inspiration of the revelations, both of ancient and of modern times, as they open up to us. And in this line of thought you may identify every man, in any age whether ancient, in mediæval, or in modern times who has been touched, in any degree, as a messenger of God with this holy inspiration, that he is in harmony with the idea all along; and these cardinal principles of the Christian character, Christian duty, Christian life are the means by which the future inheritance can be attained.

The nature and character of this inheritance we must not forget, for out of the very nature and character of it grows the practical idea. In the first place, we are told that this is an incorruptible inheritance. It does not fade away; it does not die; it is eternal, undying; it cannot corrode; this inheritance does not rust; no mildew can touch it; no foe can invade it; no strong man can carry it captive. It is an incorruptible inheritance, and if indeed we shall be placed in possession of it, you and I must formulate a character that shall be incorruptible. We must build morally and spiritually on those principles that will not corrupt, that cannot defile, that are eternal, incorruptible in their nature, in their character; for we are told that corruption does not inherit incorruption; that which is corruptible cannot inherit it, neither doth mortality abide long where immortality comes in and takes its place.

This very idea, it seems to me, would admonish us that we should shun and depart from all that is of a corruptible character, all that degrades, all that lowers, that tends to drag down and render us unworthy of this inheritance which is incorruptible. Being an inheritance that is incorruptible, it cannot be defiled; there cannot enter into it anything that defiles, neither that loves and makes a lie, neither that which is dishonest, nor that that leads astray, that tends to degrade the soul and the spirit of man; it must be not only incorruptible, but undefiled.

I want to call your attention to the statement of the Savior:—

“Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.

“Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.”

If we hunger and thirst after righteousness we have no inclination to seek to be engaged in the practice of that which, in its nature and character, is unrighteous.

“Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.”

Peacemakers! This character is a practical one; this life is a practical one. Again we are told:—

“Be holy: for I the Lord your God am holy.”

And again:—

“Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord.”

Paul, writing to Titus, says:—

“For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world.”—Titus 2: 11.

We should live righteously, godly, and holy in “this present evil world.” (Gal. 1: 4.) Yes, evil is always present in this world and we are liable to come in contact with it. The Lord knowing the inability of human nature, when left to itself, to rise above the evil influences which are in the world, has condescended in his goodness and in the richness of his grace, in bringing salvation to all men, to provide, that by the enlightening, instructive, and powerful aid and influence of his Holy Spirit, they will be drawn away from evil to resist it steadfastly. Now when we come to consider evil in its nature and character, it makes it so personal that I frequently refuse to go into details in regard to it. It strikes your humble speaker squarely in the face so often that it is enough to think about it without presenting the matter to any great extent, too often or too publicly. The evil of backbiting, for instance, how quickly before we think of it, we will find ourselves guilty of it, and how easy and natural it is to set up a standard by which to judge others, instead of remembering that the Savior, when evidently referring to the motives that move men, said, “Judge not, that ye be not judged;” or, “Judge not unrighteously,” says a later translation, and that simply leaves the position more closely defined. We cannot judge the motives of men; we may only judge the words, and not the motives. The Apostle Paul says, “I judge nothing before the time,” and James represents that the man that judges his brother is a transgressor of the law and not a doer of it. I refer to these merely as examples.

How easy it is to be engaged in evil and fail to exemplify the higher law, the more exalted ideas pointed out by the Savior, meekness, holiness, purity of heart. I do not know what it is to be holy—I can offer no conception of what holiness consists, unless it is daily observance of those things that the Lord says are holy, the holy commandments of God. There is a great deal said about holiness in the Christian world, and there is an idea that it is what they call the “second blessing.” The first blessing would be the blessing of pardon at the moment of conversion, as they present it. The second blessing would be to go on, and somehow or other and in some manner “get” this holiness. It comes to you in a moment, comes from God. Well now, to my mind, while holiness comes from God, as I believe, yet in the spiritual as in the natural world, it comes like the grape, or the fig, or any other fruitage or blossom that comes from God. There are principles and laws that God has set in operation in the natural world that produce fruit, and it is the product of the operation of those laws; light, heat, and attraction of the sun and the moisture and strength of the earth; the laws of condensation and evaporation and action of the atmosphere that produce the flowers and fruitage.

So there is in the spiritual realm, the divine law of the Sun of righteousness, the divine grace of the Holy Spirit, its showers and dews, and the beautiful and lovely example of Christ in the principles of righteousness; and we, by submitting ourselves to the operations of the law on the heart and the mind by this living godly, holy, and righteous lives, it will produce in our character this attribute called holiness.

This to my mind is how we become holy and attain to holiness in this world.

Therefore the practical ideas or the qualifications that are attached to our character, may serve to fit us for this hope that we are begotten unto by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. It seems that in this way we are begotten to the hope of living again by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, and it seems that so far as the revelations of God are concerned, in their intelligence, they reveal plainly that this hope of living again and the life which will come to us after the end of this life, comes only through Christ, “there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved.”

Are we preparing ourselves for this inheritance? Do you see the beautiful city, the palace divine, and the face of the earth all blossoming and rich with fruitage as it shall be? Can you look upon the starry crown that awaits you, secured to you by virtue of the infinite and divine right of Christ? Can you behold the earth divested of all that brings sickness, sorrow, and pain, and death, and forever exempt from misery? Can you behold by faith your own body changed from a corruptible being into that of an incorruptible one never more subject to pain and death as mortality suffers?

Again, you behold, as Peter says, the earth filled with righteousness, and as Isaiah says, “I will also make thy officers peace, and thine exactors righteousness”—only righteousness prevails—and then the various congregations of the Lord, from year to year, assembling in grand conference; they are evidently reporting their grand and exalted labors that they have done through the year previous, becoming better qualified for future works, going onward and onward in development and enlargement of the understanding of the principles of the kingdom of God. These are some of the things of which we have in our present condition but a faint conception, but in our immortal condition will fully comprehend. And as you place your minds on these things and contrast the condition of that life with what you hear sometimes and are made to feel because of the degraded nature of man in this life, don't you think it makes our present condition look contemptible and low in comparison? And then, when this conference shall adjourn, you will not say, “I will meet you here again next year if we live,” for that phrase, “if we live,” will be a thing of the past; there will be no more use for it, in the many mansions of our heavenly Father's house, who knows what extended missions there may be that we may be permitted to go on and progress in this inheritance that is incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fades not away, and is reserved for all those "who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time."

How I long for strength and endurance that I may attain to this inheritance. An aged brother who resides here, once in confirming a blessing on my head, told me that my trials would be stronger and more difficult as I moved on in the way of life. My experience has demonstrated the truthfulness of the statement. How great necessity there is that we have the grace of God and the help of his Spirit to enable us to set a good example before each other and the world. How many souls we might be instrumental in saving by this example, by not allowing ourselves to be drawn out of the way from this righteous and holy life that should constitute the character of a child of God, that like an enduring monument will stand as the ages roll on. I hope that we may be prepared for this inheritance that we may enter into its enjoyment.

—Reported by Bro. E. Stafford.

SYNOPSIS OF SERMON BY ELDER E. L. KELLEY

At Downey Reunion, California, 1894.

"NOW CONCERNING spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant."—1 Cor. 12: 1.

When we read any of the epistles, we must remember that the author did not write by chapter and verse, but as a friend to you and to me, that the divisions did not take place till eleven hundred years afterwards, and we should read the letter as a whole, not a passage here and there. In this letter he says:—

"Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; by which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain."

Now the apostle did not stay in Judea only, but went outside and in the little town of Corinth preached to the people whom he said were aliens and foreigners, and in this selection tells them the means by which they may escape death, if they keep in memory the means of which he has told them.

The other afternoon some one told us that many of the human family have been born into the world with evil organizations because of the sins of the parents; and that to bring well-organized beings into the world, we must go back fifty years before they are born. This is a suggestion that all ought to heed, but God, who knows the frailty of men, has not left them without means of release from their evil natures. "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." "They that are whole have no need of the physician." I call attention to this because we all see the evil organization of men and women, and does God leave the remedy for this unprovided for? Many infidels are made by misrepresentation of God. The gospel is able to change the evil organization to a righteous one; it is able to save from theft. A phrenologist says that in five years a man can become entirely changed by striving to overcome his evil tendencies. The recognition of right becomes settled.

Some ask, "How about the Sunday school defaulter?" We reply that he has said, Lord, Lord, on the Sabbath, and has not carried the principles of Christianity into his daily life. He has been a hypocrite for years. It is not that God is a failure but that the man has failed to follow God's laws. The man was born blind, not for his sins nor his parents, but that God's work might be manifest to lead his children aright.

Men and women have thought that an overwhelming influence would take possession of them, when they were converted, that would almost take their senses away, but the Holy Spirit does not take away judgment and reason. It did not take away Saul's understanding, for he asked, "What wilt thou have me to do?" It never takes away judgment, and we should use no one else's reason or judgment. If you cannot enter by reason and judgment into the kingdom, I ought not to scare you into it.

Christ told his disciples just before his ascension that they were to be baptized, not only by water, but by the Holy Spirit, and to tarry at Jerusalem till they received it. Why not go outside? They had been promised all things that pertain to life and righteousness. "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."—Acts 1: 6. So long as these early disciples were with Jesus, he was their comforter, but it must needs be their development could not be brought about without something besides Jesus. So the Holy Spirit was sent to guide them into all truth and righteousness. Some people govern, and some are led by others. Those in the civil world who have thought for themselves, govern and lead others who follow them blindly, so in the religious world, many follow blind guides, never reasoning. A true guide tells his followers to think for themselves and ask God to help them think and act for themselves. God has given man the ability to understand, and he has the right to test the message whether it be of God, man, or Satan.

Some say that Joseph Smith practiced polygamy. The people of Utah have tried hard to prove it, and have never been able to. I never have accorded that Joseph Smith was a polygamist. It is the same as though Abraham Lincoln was charged with the same crime. If you cannot prove it then it is a false charge, so with Joseph Smith. The judge in the late Temple case proved that Joseph Smith was innocent of this charge. But if it was so, Joseph Smith is not our standard; and if he committed this sin he was a violator of the law. It would make no difference to our religion. Do we throw away the Psalms because David went into sin in his later life? We have means of redress if the President violates the law, but no man accused him during his lifetime. It was not till seven years after his death, the supposed revelation was made known.

When God gives power it must be used aright. Moses had power given unto him but when he was angry with the children of Israel, he misused his power and so had to pay the penalty of the law and was not allowed to enter the promised land. Power is not given to break the law of God. Our text begins concerning spiritual gifts. How many have ever heard that preached? Should not all things be taught pertaining to our development? and unless they pertain to our development why not remain ignorant? but they are given us to understand, so as not to be led astray. "No man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed," "no man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost." It must needs be that Christ sent the Comforter to guide into all truth, and if we remain without it, we shall be ignorant of the word of God. When he comes he shall testify of me (Christ):

When the Holy Spirit came, it was with spiritual gifts.

The Pentecost was not the only baptism of the Holy Ghost, and the gifts were bestowed then and afterwards. Cornelius and his household were baptized with the Holy Ghost after Pentecost. Saul was called and baptized. Again in Acts 4:31 we read how a multitude assembled in the open air and were filled with the Holy Ghost. It was the same Spirit as on the day of Pentecost. In Acts 19 it is said Paul rebaptized some and they received the Holy Ghost and spake in tongues and prophesied. Acts 9:31 tells us that all the churches of Judea walked in the fear of the Lord and comfort of the Holy Ghost. Christ told his disciples to tarry till the promise was fulfilled, and the promise is to you and to all that are afar off.

The disciples received the promise, Cornelius received the promise, and Paul and all the churches in Judea were comforted and guided by the Holy Ghost. All were baptized into one body by the one Spirit,—the Holy Spirit.

Conference Minutes.

NODAWAY.

Conference was held at Ross Grove, October 13 and 14, 1894; M. P. Madison president, Eliza Byergo secretary pro tem. Ministry reporting: Elders J. R. Evans, H. Kemp, J. Thomas, W. Powell, R. K. Ross, F. J. Curtis, I. N. Roberts, M. P. Madison baptized 3; Priests R. K. Hill and N. N. Byergo; Teachers C. C. Nelson; Deacons H. Smith and R. Nelson. Branch reports: Platt 117, gain 4; Sweet Home 50, no change; Ross Grove 32, no change. Bishop's agent reported: On hand $46.15; received $12.30; paid out $17; on hand $41.45. All officers were sustained. Conference closed to meet at Guilford the third Saturday and Sunday in February.

LONDON.

Conference met with the St. Thomas branch October 27, 28, and 29, 1894; J. H. Lake president, associated with R. C. Longhurst, Wm. Corbett, and R. C. Evans; John Shields and S. Brown clerks. Branch reports: Cedar Valley 32; 2 baptized, 5 received, 1 died. Corinth 39. London 234, 5 baptized, 3 received, 2 died. Stratford 21; 1 baptized. Osborne 27. Garafraxa 87; 2 baptized. Proton 85; 3 baptized. Monmouth 54; 9 baptized, 3 removed, 3 expelled, 4 died. St. Mary's 42; 4 baptized, 1 died. St. Thomas 88; 1 baptized. Windham 46; 3 baptized. Irondale 21; 8 baptized, 1 died. Grand Valley 22; 1 received. Waterford 70. Cameron 60; 8 baptized, 2 died. Niagara Falls 32. Toronto 26; 1 died. McKillop 27; 2 baptized. Bishop's agent's report: On hand $469.40; receipts $295.41; expenditures, $386.66; balance $378.15. Ministry reporting: J. H. Lake baptized 4, R. C. Longhurst baptized 5, R. C. Evans baptized 9, J. Shields baptized 10, W. Corbett baptized 2, M. F. Derby, S. W. Tomlinson baptized 6, T. A. Phillips, R. B. Howlett baptized 1, G. C. Tomlinson baptized 1, D. McGregor, T. Hatty; Priests: A. F. Sherman, R. W. Tarzwell baptized 2, A. Knisley, W. H. Gray; Teacher D. Tarzwell. Preaching by B. St. John, John Shields, S. Brown, J. H. Lake, and R. C. Evans. Conference adjourned to meet in October, 1895, time and place to be decided by presidents of mission and district. It was resolved that a four days reunion be held in June.

Miscellaneous Department.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Conference of the Galland's Grove district will convene in the Saints' chapel, Dow City, Iowa, Friday, March 8, 1895, at 10:30 a. m., continuing over Sunday. Branch officers will please see that delegates are appointed and their branch reports made out and approved by the branch and forwarded to the district secretary, Sr. Nellie Rudd, Dow City, Iowa, in due time. As many of the missionaries and local ministers as can will please attend, as we have important business to transact. Saturday afternoon and evening will be devoted to the Sunday school work, under the management of the district superintendent, Bro. R. Wight, and others. A cordial invitation is extended to all, and everybody will be made welcome.

C. E. BUTTERWORTH,
W. W. WHITING,

Presidents.

BELL, Iowa, November 23.

BORN.

MCKEE.—Ina Evelend McKee, daughter of Bro. William and Sr. Ina A. McKee, was born August 5, 1894; blessed November 11, 1894, at Topaz, Douglas county, Missouri, by Elder C. J. Spurlock.

ALLEN.—To Bro. S. D. and Sr. Jennie Allen, at Milton, Florida: Jennie Celestine, January 30, 1888; Avery Marcella, April 16, 1890; Stephen Grover, June 19, 1892; and Joseph Turpen, November 11, 1894. All blessed on November 25, 1894, by Elder Herman C. Smith, at the family residence, near Milton, Florida.

DIED.

CARR.—Sr. Sarah Ann Carr departed this life November 7, 1894, at her home near Cameron, West Virginia, aged 62 years, 5 months, and 3 days. She died strong in the cause of Christ with a hope of eternal glory. Sons and daughters mourn. Many friends were there to pay their last respects to the one they so dearly loved. Services at the house by Elder J. B. Wayt; interment in Bruhn cemetery, November 8.

WELLS.—In Alpine county, California, September 23, 1894, Sr. Agnes A. Wells. Sr. Wells was born in Marietta, Ohio, December 26, 1834; baptized November 25, 1889, by Elder Thos. Daley. She died with the glorious anticipation of having part in the first resurrection. She leaves a husband, and son who has been baptized since her death. Funeral services by Elder D. R. Jones.

THIMBLEBY.—At Beaver City, Utah, November 14, 1894, Sr. Elizabeth Thimbleby. Deceased was born in May, 1811, at Lancashire, England; was baptized into the Reorganized Church December 31, 1870, at Salt Lake City by Elder R. Atwood. She lived a Saint, and died in full faith of a joyful resurrection.

OSBORNE.—At Lamoni, Iowa, November 23, 1894, Sr. Hattie M., wife of Mr. Charles A. Osborne, and daughter of Bro. Frank D. and Sr. Grace A. Young, aged 23 years and 6 months. The cause of death was a tumor, from which she suffered for two or three years, and especially during the last three months of her life. Although she longed to abide with her loved ones here, yet she endured her trials with much patience and resignation. By nature she had an unselfish disposition, a faithful heart to all that was noble and good, therefore she was greatly loved as a daughter, sister, wife, and friend. No children were born to her, hence no little ones are left to miss a mother's love. Sister Hattie was born in California and came with her parents to Iowa when she was five years old, and she was baptized at the age of ten by Bro. A. B. Moore. She loved her Savior and his gospel. By her request her funeral sermon was preached by Bro. H. A. Stebbins. Bro. A. S. Cochran assisted him, and her mortal form was laid to rest in Rose Hill to await the coming of the Lord at the first resurrection.

EVANELIA VIEWS.

The Bishop's office now has two very fine views of the new boat that has gone into missionary service in the Society Islands; one 8x10 inches in size, the other 10x12. The pictures may be had at fifty cents each, or the two for one dollar, postage prepaid; the net receipts to be applied on the Gospel Boat account.

Address all orders to E. L. Kelley, lock box 316, Lamoni, Iowa.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL GROUND.

At Athens the Greek government has recently declared the whole region lying between the Theseion and the monument of Lysicrates archæological ground, thereby compelling the proprietors to sell at prices to be fixed by a commission of sworn experts. It is believed that the American and German schools and the Archæological Society of Athens can easily raise the funds needed to buy it. The latter society, in its excavations at Epidaurus, has brought to light the stadium, which is apparently intact. On sinking trenches across the area to a depth of five yards or more, the rows of marble chairs, each with its inscription, which ran completely around the stadium, were found in their proper places. It will be the first Greek stadium yet known in its original state.

ADDRESSES.

James Caffall, 17 Dawson street, Manchester, England.

E. L. Kelley, Bishop, Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

SPECIAL GIFT LIST

FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

With the approach of the Holiday Season comes the spirit of Christmas—the spirit of giving. What shall one give to friends, relatives, or neighbors? Articles of merit, of true worth, certainly; whether great or small. Those worthy of affection and friendship; Gifts that are permanent in value; Remembrances that perish not with the mere using; Gifts that strengthen the sentiments that bind receiver and giver.

For Grandparents, for Parents, for Sons, Daughters, Children, and Friends,—for all, old and young, our book list has articles of value, such as will command appreciation and impart good.

THE BIBLE,

INSPIRED TRANSLATION,

is a gift worthy of any. For an elder in the field, for father, mother, sister, or brother, for anyone who reads to improve the mind and enrich the heart, this volume is a life-treasure.

Bound in four styles. Prices: Sheep, $1.25; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.75; Morocco, gilt edges, $2.25; Morocco, Flexible binding, gilt edges, (a very popular style, and much used by ministers and Sunday school teachers and scholars,) $3.75.

Name on any book in gilt letters 15 cts. extra.

THE BOOK OF MORMON,

a volume of equal worth to all who read and study the precepts of life, the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Large type edition, especially for aged readers, two sizes: Cloth, leather backs and corners, $1.50; Seal Grain Russia, $1.75; Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges, $2.00.

Regular size: Morocco Grain Russia, 1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25. Bound in any style—flexible or otherwise, and with blank leaves inclosed, as ordered.

THE

DOCTRINE and COVENANTS

contains the revelations of God to the church in this dispensation. Morocco Grain Russia, $1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25.

THE BIBLE,

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION,

Eyre and Spottiswoode's edition, thin paper, flexible binding, $4.75. (For Oxford and other editions, also New Testaments, see catalogue.)

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

Used throughout the church in song service and in the home. A popular gift for singers. It contains every hymn in the Saints' Harp, also 555 pages of music, about 720 tunes. A drill book; an instructor in vocal music. As the book is arranged, any hymn may be turned to any tune. Leather backs, cloth sides, $2.00; Red Morocco backs and corners, red cloth sides, with gilt edges entire, very handsome in appearance, $2.75. Music only, in plain binding, for instrumental performers, $1.25.

AFTERGLOW,

a volume of choice, selected poems. Handsomely bound, beautifully ornamented, elegantly illustrated.

Published in aid of the Gospel Boat fund.

A handsome and lasting present; a book that will be treasured by all lovers of poetry, 265 pages; Cloth, $1.50; White Vegetable Parchment, $1.75; Leather, $2.00; Morocco, colors red and black, gilt edges, $2.50.

HESPERIS,

POEMS BY DAVID H. SMITH.

The author's best compositions, many of them favorites with Latter Day Saints. A volume that will please all readers of exalted sentiment.

Beautifully bound and ornamented; Cloth, gilt edges, $1.50.

THE SAINTS' HARP,

WORDS ONLY.

1120 hymns, original and selected; those used throughout the church.

Morocco Grain Russia, $1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25.

WELSH HYMN BOOK.

303 hymns; Leather, 60 cents.

DANISH HYMN BOOK.

Cloth, leather backs, 75 cents.

GERMAN HYMN BOOK.

(ZION'S HARFE.)

100 hymns; original, selected, and translated. Leather, 40 cents; Morocco Grain Russia, gilt edges, 60 cents.

The Herald Office list of publications includes many other books of value, including, RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE, revised, price 40 cents; ABSTRACT OF EVIDENCE, TEMPLE LOT SUIT, with legal arguments of Counsel, bound in law sheep, $3.00; THE COMPENDIUM, prices 75 cents and $1.00; THE INSTRUCTOR, 75 cents, $1.00, and $1.50; JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS (Lucy Smith's History), 70 cents; JOSEPH THE SEER, His prophetic mission, and the Book of Mormon, 35 and 50 cents; BRADEN-KELLEY DEBATE, $1.50; PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD, $1.25; WHAT IS MAN? 35 and 50 cents; THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH OR WEEKLY REST DAY, 25 and 40 cents; RUINS REVISITED, $1.00; FORSCUTT-SHINN DISCUSSION, 25 cents; OBJECTIONS TO THE BOOK OF MORMON AND DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS EXAMINED AND REFUTED, 25 and 40 cents; VOICE OF WARNING, 10 cents; THE SILVER THIMBLES, THE HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS, two books for little children, 20 cents each. THE GOSPEL QUARTERLIES, Senior and Intermediate and Primary Grade Sunday School lessons; also a full list of Sunday school literature, tracts, branch and district records, blank forms etc.

For complete descriptive list with prices, see catalogue, mailed free to any address.

Address orders and remittances to

DAVID DANCER,

Business Manager,

LAMONI, Iowa.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

BLAIR MERCANTILE CO.

Fancy Dry Goods,
Fine Shoes.

Henry Stoddard, President. Frank Stoddard, Cashier.

COMMERCIAL BANK,

LAMONI, IOWA.

Proper Attention given to all Branches of Legitimate Banking.
Interest paid on time deposits.

OFFICERS.
Israel L. Rogers, President.
D. F. Nicholson, Cashier.
F. B. Blair, Asst. Cashier.

DIRECTORS.
I. L. Rogers, Robt. Winning,
D. F. Nicholson, S. V. Bailey,
George W. Blair

LAMONI STATE BANK.

(Incorporated.)
Paid up Capital, $25,000.
Liability of Stockholders, $50,000.
INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

THOS. TEALE & SON

Carry the largest and most complete line of

Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries, & Hardware

in town. We buy in large quantities, and for cash, and can meet all competition.

THOS. TEALE & SON.

Lots $200 each,

In my addition to Lamoni Shade trees, lawn, and sidewalks; ten minutes' walk from L. D. S. church

Terms one fourth cash, and balance yearly

Write for maps to D. F. NICHOLSON,

Lamoni State Bank.

A. B. MAIR,
WHOLESALE FRUITS and PRODUCE.
General Commission.

Berries Apples, Potatoes, etc. Car lots a Specialty.
Consignments Solicited. Prompt Returns.

518 Pearl St. Council Bluffs, Iowa.

AGENTS WANTED.

Send 10 cents for box of Hoxie's Instant Lustre. Town or County given free. Secured by deed.

You can make a permanent business. Profits large. Address.

A. N. HOXIE, BOSTON, Mass.

Zion's Ensign.
52 SERMONS A YEAR.

Subscription price, 1 year. . . . $1 00
" " 6 months. . . . 50
" " 3 months. . . . 25
For introduction, 4 months. . . . 25

Address all communications and make all orders payable to

ZION'S ENSIGN,
INDEPENDENCE, MO.

B. D. FLEET,
GENERAL MERCHANDISE,
LAMONI, IOWA.

HOMES AT LAMONI.

Land for sale, situated one quarter to one half mile southwest of Lamoni; in three, four, or five acre lots.

These plats will make nice homes; suitable for gardening, raising of small fruits, etc. Prices reasonable; terms on application.

Address, J. W. GILLEN,
LAMONI, IOWA.

Premium Guitars, Mandolins, Banjos & Viols
ONLY $5 FOR EITHER.

HOXIE'S AUTOMATIC
Ice Cream Freezer

CAPACITY UNLIMITED.

For Hotels, Restaurants, and Family Use.

Will freeze Ice Cream, Lemonade, Sherbets, and all kinds of ices instantly. Several machines combined in one, with saving of 80 per cent of ice. Agents wanted. Exclusive territory can be secured by addressing

HOXIE BROS.,

116 COLUMBIA ST. BOSTON, MASS.

PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS
COPYRIGHTS.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of Information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free. Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY

HOMESEKERS' EXCURSION.

VIA C. B. & T. Q.

Date of sale December 4 and 19, 1894. Rate, one standard first-class fare, plus $2 for the round trip; minimum selling rate $7.

TRACTS

ORDER BY NUMBERS.

2. Truth Made Manifest; per doz. 15c., 100 . . . $1 00
 3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per doz 5c., 100 30
 4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz 3c., 100 15
 6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design and Who Shall Administer; per doz 15c., 100 1 00
 7. Who Then Can Be Saved; per doz 5c., 100. 30
 8. Fullness of the Atonement; per doz 15c., 100 1 00
 9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per doz 20c. 100 1 30
 10. The Narrow Way; per doz 10c. 100 50
 11. The Plan of Salvation; per doz 20c. 100 . . . 1 20
 12. The Bible vs Polygamy; per doz. 15c., 100. 1 00
 14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per doz 15c., 100. . . 1 00
 16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz 10c., 100. 50
 17. The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; per doz 15c. 100 1 00
 20. The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz 15c. 100 1 00
 21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per doz 3c. 100 15
 22. Faith and Repentance; per doz 10c., 100 . . 50
 23. Baptism; per doz. 10c. 100 65
 24. The Kingdom of God; per doz 5c., 100 . . . 30
 25. Laying on of Hands; per doz 5c., 100 30
 27. The Sabbath Question; per doz 15c., 100. 1 00
 29. Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; per doz 5c., 100 . . . 30
 31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per doz 3c. 100 15
 32. Which is the Church; per doz 5c., 100. . . . 30
 36. The Spalding Story Reexamined; per doz. 10c., 100 50
 41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100. 15
 42. Rejection of the Church; per doz 10c., 100 50
 43. One Wife or Many; per doz 15c., 100 1 00
 44. Crooked Paths; per doz 15c., 100 1 00
 45. The Reorganized Church in Succession from 1830 to the Present. A thirty-one page pamphlet containing statements of faith and practices rules and usages of the Church and of heresies, and departures from it. Important papers and statements from leading church authorities past and present are reprinted. Each 5c., per doz 30c., 100. . . 2 00
 46. The Pure Gospel of Christ. A list of questions and answers, with blank form for preaching notice on the back, same size as Epitome; per doz 3c., 100 15
 47. The Future State; per doz 15c., 100 1 00
 - Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection of Jesus Christ; each 5c., per doz 50
 - Prophecy on the Rebellion; per hundred . . . 10
- Special prices furnished on application for tracts in lots of one thousand.

BOUND SET OF TRACTS.

Limp muslin 50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Eyre and Spottiswoode's ministers' and Sunday school teachers' Bible Flexible binding, Levant, silk sewed, kid lined, thin paper This edition forms a book about one inch thick, and contains the "aids to the student," including concordance, maps, etc. Many prefer this to the Oxford edition. Price $4.75.

AMBERGLOW

A book of choice selected poems; 265 pages, handsomely illustrated and beautifully bound. This volume is published in the interests of the Gospel Boat Fund,—for the purpose of aiding to build a vessel for the use of missionaries in the Society Islands of the Pacific Ocean. The cover design is an original one, especially engraved for the work. It is a special feature of this handsomely bound volume.

- Cloth boards $1 50
 - White Vegetable Parchment—white glazed, linen-like fiber very handsome 1 75
 - Full Leather 2 00
 - Morocco colors red and black, gilt edges . . . 2 50
- The cover design of all styles is stamped in gold or silver.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 12, 1894.

No. 50.

L. Campbell 12/2/96

CONTENTS:
EDITORIAL:
In Cities.....	789
Unity of Churches.....	789
The Gospel—Preached to the Poor.....	790
Worth Noting.....	790
Special Attractions.....	791
ORIGINAL POETRY:
“The Sweet Singer of Israel,”.....	792
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
What a Song Did.....	792
LETTER DEPARTMENT:793
SELECTED POETRY:
If I Knew.....	798
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Coöperation.....	798
Mercy and Justice.....	799
“Lord, is it I?”.....	801
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
West Virginia.....	803
Little Sioux.....	803
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:
Spring River.....	803
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Bishop's Agent's Notice.....	803
Notice of Appointment of Bishop's Agent.....	804
Evangelia Views.....	804

GLADSTONE ON THE ATONEMENT.

THE average theologian will be puzzled to understand why Mr. Gladstone regards the views of Mrs. Annie Besant as of sufficient value to combat them. But after reading Mr. Gladstone's article, “True and False Conceptions of the Atonement,” in The Nineteenth Century, September, we are convinced that Mr. Gladstone made choice of Annie Besant's belief or nonbelief, because what she has written in regard to the atonement represents those views antagonistic to the doctrine most largely held. Mrs. Besant does not, in her “autobiography,” write as a Theosophist; but she undertakes to show her reader how, after the most careful and painstaking investigation, she was compelled to reject the essential doctrines of Christianity. Mr. Gladstone takes her conception of the atonement as the representative “false conception.” She puts it in the form of a question:—

“What is the justice of God in accepting a vicarious suffering from Christ, and a vicarious righteousness from the sinner?”

It is this question or proposition that Mr. Gladstone combats. He puts aside for the present the acceptance of a vicarious righteousness from the sinner, and proceeds to discuss, “What is the justice of God in accepting a vicarious suffering from Christ?”

He says:—

“It is, then, obviously intended to suggest that God accepts from Christ the suffering which, but for Christ, would have been justly due to the sinner, and justly inflicted upon him; and that, Christ being absolutely innocent, injustice toward him is here involved.

“Let it be granted—

“1. That the ‘sinner,’ that is to say, man, taken generally, is liable to penalty, for sin ingrained and sin committed.

“2. That the Son of God, liable to no penalty, submits himself to a destiny of suffering and shame.

“3. That by his life and death of suffering and shame, men are relievable, and have upon acceptance of the gospel and continuance therein been actually relieved, from the penalties to which they were liable.

“4. That as sin entails suffering, and as another has enabled the sinner to put all penal suffering away, and, in effecting this, and for the purpose of effecting it, has himself suffered, this surely is in the full sense of the term a vicarious suffering, an atonement, at-one-ment, vicariously brought about by the intervention of an innocent person.

“This dispensation of atonement is part and parcel of the incarnation; and the incarnation, undertaken in order to suffer, by the man of sorrows acquainted with grief, is mystery, but is not injustice; does not involve the idea of injustice, and is not liable to the charge. Such is the contention which it will now be endeavored to make good. . . .

“The following propositions as they stand of course cannot pretend to the smallest authority; but they are meant to be, and I hope may be, conformable to the established doctrine of Scripture and the church at large:—

“1. We are born into the world in a condition in which our nature has been depressed or distorted or impaired by sin; and we partake by inheritance of this ingrained fault of our race. . . .

“2. This fault of nature has not abolished freedom of the will, but it has caused a bias toward the wrong.

“3. The laws of our nature make its excellence recoverable by divine discipline and self-denial, if the will be duly directed to the proper use of these instruments of recovery.

“4. A Redeemer, whose coming was prophesied simultaneously with the fall, being a person no less than the eternal Son of God, comes into the world, and, at the cost of great suffering, establishes in his own person a type, a matrix, so to speak, for humanity raised to its absolute perfection.

“5. He also promulgates a creed or scheme of highly influential truths, and founds therewith a system of institutions and means of grace, whereby men may be recast, as it were, in that matrix or mold which he has provided, and united one by one with his own perfect humanity. Under the exercising forces of life, their destiny is to grow more and more into his likeness. He works in us and by us; not figuratively but literally. Christ, if we answer to his grace, is, as St. Paul said, formed in us. By a discipline of life based on the constitutive principles of our being, he brings us nearer to himself; that which we have first learned as lesson distils itself into habit and character; it becomes part of our composition, and gradually, through Christ, ever neutralizing and reversing our evil bias, renews our nature in his own image.

“6. We have here laid down for us, as it would seem, the essentials of a moral redemption; of relief from evil as well as pain. Man is brought back from sin to righteousness by a holy training; that training is supplied by incorporation into Christ, who is God and man; and that Christ has been constituted, trained, and appointed to his office in this incorporation, through suffering. His suffering, without any merit of ours, and in spite of our guilt, is thus the means of our recovery and sanctification. And his suffering is truly vicarious; for if he had not thus suffered on our behalf, we must have suffered in our own helpless guilt.

"7. This appears to be a system purely and absolutely ethical in its basis; such vicarious suffering, thus viewed, implies no disparagement, even in the smallest particulars, to the justice and righteousness of God.

"8. It is not by any innovation, so to speak, in his scheme of government, that the Almighty brings about this great and glorious result. What is here enacted on a gigantic scale in the kingdom of grace, only repeats a phenomenon with which we are perfectly familiar in the natural and social order of the world, where the good, at the expense of pain endured by them, procure benefits for the unworthy. It may indeed be said, and with truth, that the good men, of whom we speak, are but partially good, whereas the Lord Christ is absolutely good. True; yet the analogy is just, and it holds, even if we state no more than that the better suffer for the worse. . . .

"9. The pretexts for impugning the divine character in connection with the redemption of man are artificially constructed by detaching the vicarious efficacy of the sufferings of our Lord from moral consequences, wrought out in those who obtain the application of his redeeming power by incorporation into his church or body.

"10. And now we come to the place of what is termed pardon in the Christian system. The word 'justification,' which in itself means making righteous, has been employed in Scripture to signify the state of acceptance into which we are introduced by the pardon of our sins. And it is strongly held by St. Paul that we are justified by faith (Rom. 3: 28, 5: 1), not by works. . . .

"11. I have said that, when the vicarious sufferings of Christ are so regarded that we can appropriate their virtue, while disjoining them even for a moment from moral consequences in ourselves, we open the door to imputations on the righteousness of God. But the epoch of pardon for our sins marks the point at which that appropriation is effected. . . .

"We have seen, then, that the atonement of Christ, so far from involving deviation from the established laws of divine justice, has its foundations deeply laid in the moral order of the world, and is an all-powerful instrument for the promotion of righteousness. It may indeed be alleged that it is a provision obviously exceptional, and that according to ordinary laws every individual stands or falls in the main by his own well or ill doing, and not by that of another. Nor can this be denied; it being indeed evident that the entire case of the human inhabitants of this planet has been made in most important respects exceptional through the introduction of sin into the world. Hence it is that, as we are assured by the apostle, we are ordained to be a spectacle for men and angels. In other words, it would seem that this world does not exist for itself alone, but is, in some manner which we cannot yet—unless most vaguely—conceive, to serve a most important purpose of example, warning, or otherwise, on behalf of other portions of God's intelligent creation. But the exceptionality, so to call it, of the Christian dispensation is not an argument against it being true. On the contrary, it is a substantive argument in favor of the gospel, if it be manifest that the remedy is one adapted to, and so far accounted for, by the disease. That it tends to repair the rent which has been made by disobedience in the fair order of the world, to restore that harmony of original creation which, as we are told, made the Sons of God shout for joy."—Literary Digest.

"The Simple Story of How to build a dynamo at Home" is the title of a serial which will commence in the Detroit Electrical Student of December 22. It tells in language a child can understand how a dynamo and battery which will run the sewing machine can be built by any boy. Give the boys a chance. Electricity will be the biggest breadwinner of the twentieth century. Perhaps your boy, if he gets a start, will make it his life work. The Student is a crisp little weekly for amateur students of electricity. One dollar a year. Detroit Electrical Student, 33 Lafayette avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

Philosophy triumphs easily over past evils and those to come, but present evils triumph over philosophy.

The Review of Reviews for December brings to the attention of its readers a remarkable state of things in South American international relations. It has been known for years that Great Britain has persistently encroached on territory belonging to the little republic of Venezuela; but few Americans have been aware of the extent of those encroachments. The editor of the Review of Reviews asserts that England is now occupying a vast region which only a few years ago she acknowledged to belong to Venezuela, and that in fact she has no lawful claim to any territory whatever west of the Essequibo River, although she has acquired the coast line as far west as the Orinoco. The editor's charges seem to be supported by the statements of reliable English publications; the Cyclopedia of Geography, for example, computed the area of British Guiana a few years ago as 50,000 square miles, while the present area is given as 109,000 square miles by all British statistical works, although there have been no cessions to England in that region. As Great Britain has refused arbitration of the points in dispute, the Review of Reviews advocates the appointment of a joint commission by the United States, Mexico, and the South American republics to investigate Venezuela's claims, and that such as may appear well founded be sustained by the united American powers against England.

The Burlington Route is now running weekly "personally conducted" California excursions. Pullman palace tourist cars of the latest model, with porter in charge, leave Chicago every Wednesday. For particulars, rates, etc., call on or address any Burlington Route agent. 12d3t

Dr. Holmes was our American Charles Lamb, so human, and so near to our human life; a singer and teacher to all men; one of the great brotherhood—the beloved physician whose healing went out to the whole world.—Collyer.

You have no right to be so busy attending to your own business that the public business can have none of your attention. You must remember that you are first Christians, next patriotic citizens, and then men of private business.—Wilson.

Character counts on earth to day and in eternity to-morrow. The value of gold is in what it does; the value of character is in what it is. Money may be stolen, but I defy the thief to touch what I am. Reputation is what you think of me. Character is what I am.—Myers.

PLACES OF WORSHIP.

Peoria, Illinois, Trades Assembly Hall, third floor, No. 123 South Adams street, Sunday school at one p.m., preaching 2:30 p.m., prayer service at 3:30 p.m. Elder Adam J. Keck, pastor, residence 605 Illinois avenue, second floor.

Council Bluffs, Iowa: Pierce street, three doors west of Glen avenue. Preaching at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.; Sunday school at 12 m.; Zion's Religio-Literary Society at 6 p.m. Prayer meeting every Wednesday evening. T. W. Williams, minister.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.
"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."

Book of Mormon, page 116.

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 12, 1894.

No. 50.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
JOSEPH LUFF - CORRESPONDING EDITOR.

LAMONI, IOWA, DEC. 12, 1894.

IN CITIES.

WE have numerous orders for the printed word for city distribution. We note with satisfaction the efforts of the brethren to bring the work to the attention of the people in the cities. They are the centers of population and influence, and from them the word has "sounded abroad" into remoter districts from the days that Jesus and the apostles began to bear witness, "beginning at Jerusalem." The Apostle Paul established church centers at Corinth, Thessalonica, Rome, etc., as well as in outlying districts. Cities are centers of thought, of movement, and discussion. The faith from the beginning has been a means of leavening the public mind and changing the current of religious thought. In these last days, these days of close scrutiny and earnest thought, the work is to change the face of the religious world; indeed to transform it generally, as in the days of the Master and his immediate co-laborers. This it has already done, to a great extent; but the work of greater transformation lies before it. The truth is to stand as an ensign to the people, to be placed and to remain aloft, unmoved, a sure refuge for the honest in heart throughout the world. It is and will continue to be an interesting, a sublime spectacle, the shaking process that will try all principles, that will leave none untried, untested, uninvestigated. Under such peculiar and favorable conditions the gospel "in word" and "in power" will be "made manifest to every man's conscience," every one who will hearken to the voice of the Good Shepherd. With this end in view, with an intelligent and appreciative conception of the sacred character of the trust reposed in us, each man and woman may enter upon the field of work as his conditions permit, remembering that the end in view is the building up of the branches into permanent centers of truth and light that the gospel may go forth into all the regions round about. Men and women who enter zealously upon this work, and who sink the petty hindrances that have so often retarded its progress, will find before them a life work and blessing of spirit unequalled by, incomparable with any other purpose. God awaits to bless the faithful of the scattered flocks with fuller assurances of his special watchcare and support as they grasp more firmly the rod of iron and with fuller purpose of heart press forward. Let us remember that right where we are are opportunities for work in the interests of the Master's cause. This gospel is too precious to the interests of the world to be confined to narrow limits and fraught with too great consequences to be retarded by lack of sacrifice and obedience in its interests. It is moving, but could move more rapidly with complete unity. The work is "intrusted to all."

UNITY OF CHURCHES.

THE question whether a union of churches on a basis satisfactory to all of the present contending factions is possible, is attracting almost universal attention. The late Parliament of Religions seems to have emphasized the feeling among many thinkers, both at home and abroad. The Melbourne Age, for September 29, sent us from Australia by Bro. Gomer Wells has an excellent editorial on the subject from which we quote:—

There seems to be a very real if somewhat incoherent desire for union on the part of all religious bodies. Not very long ago the venerable head of the Roman Church issued a formal invitation to all the sects of Christendom to reunite; and though not much heed has been paid to his impressive and stately encyclical by the West of Europe, we see now that the head of the Eastern Church has made a definite response to it. A short while ago such an invitation would in most Protestant countries have been looked upon as a Machiavelian design, promoted by Jesuitry, and a "no popery" cry would have been raised.

But to-day some at least of the bitterness of theological hatreds has worn off, though it may be an open question whether that is the result of our caring less about our religions or of our having found out that it is possible for others to be absolutely sincere and good men though they disagree with us. The Parliament of Religions at Chicago showed at least that it is now feasible for the representatives of diverse creeds to meet without trying to settle religious differences by the use of the rack and the firing of faggots. The world might gain a good deal from the spread of tolerance, and the cause of religion is more damaged by the bitter quarrels between the sects than to an impartial observer seem to hold almost precisely the same dogmas, than by any other one cause. That the reign of tolerance has not yet become an accomplished fact is shown by the proceedings at the English Church synod at Sydney, where a lay member denounces the clergy who have become members of the English Church Union as having betrayed their ordination vows by inclining towards a reunion with Rome. The Presbyterian Federal Assembly that has just closed its session in this city shows a genuine desire to effect an incorporated union of the various branches of that communion in Australasia, but the practical difficulties in the way are great, and the resolution finally come to entails a re-drafting of the scheme and its submission to the assemblies of the negotiating churches before the meeting of the Federal Assembly at Sydney next year.

There is one aspect of the matter which deserves the attention of all who take more than a sectarian view. Union is strength proverbially, but it may lead to a greater weakness later on. Union means the settlement of a fixed basis of doctrine, binding on all who unite. The mischief of the adoption of a settled creed is not apparent to men who feel convinced that they have arrived at final truth. But a large proportion of mankind is, on the contrary, convinced that theology is a progressive science, and that its tenets must be revised from time to time, or become wholly inadequate in a world which does not stand still. It sounds eminently satisfactory to obtain a union of belief and of action amongst religious bodies; but it is well nigh impossible to do so without shutting out new ideas. What Buckle calls "the deep slumber of a settled conviction" must surely fall over the minds of men who are tied down to a fixed and immutable creed. The revolt against such a state of things has been the origin of dissent in all its forms. One must fear—or should we say hope?—that an amalgamation of the churches must certainly be followed by a fresh outburst of dissent in a very short time, except on the one condition that the basis of the union is made so wide and so elastic as hardly to allow the amalgamation to be justly styled a union at all. The Church of England itself is probably one of the most tolerant religious bodies in existence at the present moment. Amongst her clergy are men of the most widely varying and even antagonistic views. Between her High, Low, and Broad sections there is a great deal more difference of opinion than exists between many of the Nonconformist sects that keep up separate organizations. But what she gains in unity from this tolerance she surely loses in definiteness of aim. Any churches that follow the example of catholicity that she gives must also lose much in the way of distinctness in the expression of belief. The only way out of this dilemma is the general acceptance by the population of one religious creed. This may not be impossible. We may cherish a respect for those who look forward to the time when it may happen. But until that time arrives a federation of religions is a dream, though, like many dreams of the same kind, its realization is hastened by all who work and hope for it.

A unity of the churches, in the sense of an agreement in regard to the doctrines of salvation authorized by Jesus Christ, and promulgated by the apostles; especially those beliefs an acquiescence in and active observance of which are essential to a holy life in time preparatory to a glorified life hereafter is desirable. There can be no question about the necessity for an agreement upon the point of toleration of religious beliefs, as between the churches themselves. The world, that is, the mass of men of no connection with or profession of belief or church relation, has long since given all the latitude to the nominal Christians that they deserve. Every favor that secularism can show to ecclesiasticism, safely, is shown; every opportunity for the display of church paraphernalia, scholarship in the pulpit, splendor of ritual, and heights of devotional exercises is afforded the churches, so-called evangelical, until to belong to some church is almost fashionable and a necessity to social distinction. As a rule in villages and towns of moderate size, the church elements are the leaders in nearly all gatherings; what they take up goes, what they frown upon fails. With this world intolerance is a crime; but in the sectarian bigot, in creed and philosophy and social standing, intolerance is a weapon of defence, and ostracism one of offence. To countenance or to tolerate an opposing belief, or those who profess it, is to abet heresy and foster evil with the average sect defender, and in these circles is the true persecutor found to live and flourish. It is time that this circle was broken up, and the religionist become as tolerant of his co-thinker and differing believer, as he himself asks the world to be tolerant to him and his beliefs. Men surely ought to agree that the arbitrament of the question of heresy cannot be had before any earthly tribunal known to man; and in the very nature of things can be had only at the final settlement of all earthly things in the judgment of the Divine to sit by and by.

What we have taken from the Age is timely and is worthy of a consideration.

THE GOSPEL—PREACHED TO THE POOR.

BRO. JOHN A. STROMBERG, who has charge of room 9, in the Almshouse, San Francisco, California, writes that there are some nine hundred people in the institution; and that they are visited at stated intervals by Catholic, Episcopalian, Salvation Army men, with a general assortment of other sects, who bring a varied lot of religious wares offering them to the poor, but that as yet no Latter Day Saint has been among them to offer the testimony of Jesus according to the New Testament plan. Bro. Stromberg is an officer of the lesser priesthood, but feels unable alone to make successful headway in preaching the word. Would it not be within the reach and motives of some elder to go to Bro. Stromberg's help, and if permission can be obtained from the secular officers in charge of the institution, give them short discourses, pithy and to the point. Long sermons and dissertations would not be tolerated by the officers, and should be specially avoided in such places. They are not effective, as a rule, in any place under ordinary circumstances, and in institutions of the sort where Bro. Stromberg is, would be quite out of place. Let the poor hear the gospel.

BRO. C. E. BUTTERWORTH sends us the following from "the Weekly Times and Eastern Ontario Dairyman," Rockville, Ontario:—

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—Benjamin Plowman, the Western tanner, did not commit bigamy when he married Matilda Dixon at Detroit in May, 1893, although at the time he had a wife living in Canada. Plowman was convicted by a jury at the York Assizes, but Judge McDougall reserved the case for the Divisional Court, and it came up yesterday.

The act says: Bigamy is an act by a person, who, being married, goes through a form of marriage with any other person in any part of the world.

Lawyer Du Vernet argued that the portion "in any part of the world" was beyond the power of the Dominion Government. The argument was followed by this remark from Chief Justice Armour: "This conviction should be quashed. It appears to me that the Government is powerless to punish bigamists when the second marriage ceremony is performed in a foreign country. The British Parliament might provide that if a British subject married in another country he could be punished if he returned. The Parliament is in a subordinate position. Its jurisdiction is territorially limited to within its own borders." Justice Falconbridge concurred.

This decision overrules the judgment of Chancellor Boyd in Queen v. Briery and has the effect of rendering unpunishable any married man or woman who desires to escape the cost of a Canadian divorce, marry in the United States and return.

WORTH NOTING.

THE proclamation of amnesty issued by the Czar on the occasion of his marriage includes the accused Lutheran clergymen of the Baltic provinces. It is expected that all such prosecutions will be dropped and that the order for the expulsion of German officials and workmen from Russia will be rescinded.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says, at the Czar's instigation, a bill is being prepared to introduce elementary education throughout all Russia.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—For the first time in the history of Union Theological Seminary, and probably for the first time in the history of any Protestant divinity school in this country, the lecture platform was occupied last evening by a priest of the Roman Catholic Church. It has been the custom during the last few years for the members of the Homiletical Society, an association of students of the senior class of the seminary, to invite clergyman of various denominations to address them at certain periods on subjects appertaining to the work of the ministry, to which the most prominent pulpit orators and thinkers of all shades of Protestant belief have responded. The Rev. Alexander P. Doyle of the Paulist Fathers spoke to day on "Methods of Preaching." The Rev. Dr. Charles A. Briggs, Professor of Biblical Theology, in introducing the priest, said:—

"I am glad to welcome Father Doyle here as the representative of the great mother church of Christendom, whose head recently issued a touching appeal for the reunion of the church. It became the head to show a spirit like that of the Master himself."

Father Doyle said:—

"I always have made it a settled purpose to sit on the same platform with my brethren of other denominations whenever it was possible without sacrificing any principle of dogmatic faith. I rejoice to-night that mine is the pleasure to be the first to pass over the bridge of religious toleration and join hands with you in Christian unity."

After the lecture the speaker was congratulated by the members of the faculty and students.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS.

WITH the next issue of the HERALD we shall begin a series of valuable and interesting articles by Brn. S. W. L. Scott and I. M. Smith. The first series, by Bro. Scott, "Notes on the Braden-Scott discussion," will contain a statement and review of the chief arguments of Mr. Braden against the Book of Mormon and the Reorganized Church; also his statement of faith and defense of the so-called "Christian Church"—the organization effected by Alexander Campbell and his coworkers. Both sides will be presented for what they are worth.

Bro. Smith's series, "The Book of Mormon Vindicated," will include a review of the Bible evidence in favor of the Book of Mormon, also of the prophetic evidences of the book itself. The treatment will be found original and somewhat new. Bro. Smith is a close, logical reasoner, and prepares his matter with the closeness of a lawyer's brief.

The readers will find these articles to contain much of real interest and value. Subscribe for the HERALD and get these contributions to the divinity of the work. They present in compact form what the elders are meeting in the world, and what they are presenting in advocacy of the truth. The HERALD, price, $2.00 per year.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

WORD from Bro. James Caffall dated 23 Wells street, Lozell, Birmingham, England, November 23, indicates that he is doing all he can. He says:—

My health is good, and I want to be doing my very best for the work in this land. Permanent address 17 Dawson street, Manchester, England, care Joseph Dewsnup.

Bro. H. O. Smith, writing from Salt Lake City the 27th ult., says:—

Will you please send me a supply of tracts. I would like a hundred of each kind anyway. I want just such tracts as you would supply for any other mission, and none on succession or polygamy. I have almost despaired of reaching the Mormon people, so am going to work upon a new basis. About half the population of the city are nonmormons, and we have to reach them with the gospel; and maybe in reaching them we may reach others that teach and believe in a perverted gospel.

Bro. Henry Resch, Minneapolis, Kansas, the 29th ult.:—

We are expecting to hold a series of meetings at this place, commencing next Wednesday evening, and would like to have some tracts for free distribution, if you have any for that purpose; something that would be suitable for a new opening. I would also like a dozen Voice of Warning to sell during the meetings.

Bro. F. M. Sheehy wrote from Boston, December 5, as follows:—

Bro. Hilliard has just arrived in the district. He preached in Boston yesterday. Will go to Providence for next Sunday, from there to Fall River and other points. He is in good health and spirits. We witnessed a beautiful sight yesterday; a mother and her three children going into the baptismal waters, attended by Bro. Bullard. We obtained the use of the Disciple church font for the purpose. All goes well with us in the hub.

Bro. G. M. L. Whitman, Omaha, Nebraska, the 3d inst.:—

The genial warmth of the Christ love is beginning to be felt, even in cold Omaha. We had the pleasure last evening of leading two into the waters of life in Christ, a young man and a young lady, both very worthy. There are more very near the kingdom.

Mr. J. L. Shaw, who subscribes himself "a friend for right," writes from Alcona, Michigan, December 3, commending the preaching of Bro. David Smith and deploring the opposition of sectarianism. He says:—

Will try and send you a few subscribers to your paper soon. Am interested in this matter and want a fair showing up of all the facts, without any feelings of prejudice from sectarian doctrines of other churches or creeds.

Bro. R. R. Dana, in a note from Los Angeles, California, states that there have been sixteen added to the San Bernardino branch since last conference, thirteen at Los Angeles, thirty or more at Newport, and some five outside of any of the branches. He adds:—

The branches are in fair condition, though the accuser of the brethren is making an attempt to counteract the success of the last year.

Bro. John Hawley, of Sheridan, Missouri, visiting at the home of his mother, "Grandma Hawley," wrote Dec. 4:—

A few thoughts upon the condition of my mother I think would be read by many of the members of the body of Christ with interest as she has been a member of the church for sixty years. Last July 23, she fell upon her hip and the doctor pronounced it broken; she suffered very much pain for two months. Her daughter, Priscillia Young, watched over her for some time, and since that time the care has been upon her Son Gideon's family, which is her original home. Her condition at the present writing is not very encouraging, her mind is somewhat impaired; her appetite is quite good; though it troubles her to think that she cannot converse with the family as once she could.

Bro. R. W. Davis, Atchison, Kansas, the 5th:—

Bro. J. Arthur Davis and the writer just closed a series of meetings near Topeka. Prejudice runs high there, but we think good was done. We were challenged to discuss the differences between us and the Christians, and so left propositions to that effect; time to be settled on in the future.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Bro. J. R. LAMBERT began a series of meetings at Leon, Iowa, county seat of Decatur, on Sunday, the 2d inst. Bro. C. Scott was expected to join him in the effort.

Bro. N. R. Nickerson, of North Plymouth, Massachusetts, reports success and fine liberty in opening the work at Middleboro. He was well received and felt very hopeful of good results.

Brn. A. H. Smith and E. C. Briggs left Lamoni for the mission field the week of the 2d; the former going to Western Iowa, the latter to Michigan.

Rev. I. L. Hicks, the St. Louis weather prophet, has sent us his Almanac for 1895, containing weather forecasts for the year, based on his astronomical calculations. The publication is valued by many. It may be had by addressing Word and Works Publishing Co., St. Louis; price twenty-five cents.

Note our attractive Holiday Book List, on cover page of HERALD. Treasures of Holy Writ, works of biography, of music and poetry,—all works of value because rich in the merit of true excellence, are included. In addition to our catalogue list the Herald Office will purchase any work obtainable desired by its patrons. Orders solicited, especially for church publications and general literature.

Letters are received from Brn. C. M. Fulks and J. M. Holcomb; the former writing from Manchester, Texas; the latter from Wichita county, same State. Both write appreciatively of the work, and commend the labors of Brn. Moore in that field.

ERRATUM.—In Bro. William Hawkins' article, "Rebaptism," in last HERALD, second column, third paragraph, it should read, "instead of repeating," not "repenting," as misprinted.

Original Poetry.

"THE SWEET SINGER OF ISRAEL."

BY ELBERT A. SMITH.

My God! my God! thou knowest how I love
this man
Who poured his soul in the glad singing of sweet song.
They called him "the prince" in his bright days of youth,
And prince he is to me o'er other men.
Whose kindly nature won him friends that time can never change.
Named by the prophet ere he saw the light
of day,
Meted his portion with thy chosen singers;
Thou heardst his music break, and sob, and die away.
The unstrung harp was hung to rest
Within the shadow of the cold stone wall.
One of the "three pillars" tottering fell;
But thou, we trust thee till thine own good time,
Canst string the harp with thy strong hand,
Open again the dumb lips unto song,
And build once more the pillar tall.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"A day is too long to be spent in vain;
Some good should come as the hours go by—
Some tangled maze may be made more plain,
Some lowered glance may be raised on high,
And life is too short to spoil like this,
If only a prelude it may be sweet;
Let us bind together its thread of bliss
And nourish the flowers around our feet."

WHAT A SONG DID.

AGAIN let it be said that it is simply impossible to compute the compass of one's influence. A single little act may transform a life—it often does. This anecdote bears in itself a sensible lesson which all might learn to advantage:—

The power of sacred song is strikingly exhibited by an incident of the Crimean war, told in a volume of Scotch anecdotes.

Duncan Matheson, a Bible reader to the soldiers in the Crimea, was returning one night to his lodgings in an old stable. Sickened by the sights he had seen, and depressed with the thought that the siege of Sebastopol was likely to last for months, he trudged along in the mud knee-deep.

Happening to look up he saw the stars shining calmly in the clear sky. Weariness gave place to the thought that in heaven there is rest, and he began to sing aloud the old hymn:—

"How bright these glorious spirits shine!
Whence all their bright array!"

The next day was wet and stormy. While going his rounds Matheson came upon a soldier standing under the veranda of an old house. The man was in soiled and ragged clothes, and his shoes were so worn that they did not keep his feet from the mud. The Bible reader drew him into conversation, cheered him by encouraging words, and gave him money to buy shoes.

"I am not what I was yesterday," answered man, his heart opening to Matheson's sympathy. "Last night I was tired of life and of this blundering siege. I took my musket and went down yonder, determined to blow out my brains. As I got round that hillock

I heard some one singing, 'How bright these glorious spirits shine!' It recalled to me the Sabbath school where I used to sing it, and the religious truths I had heard there.

"I felt ashamed of being such a coward. I said to myself, 'Here is a comrade as badly off as I am, but he is not a coward—he's bearing it!' I felt that that man had something which I did not possess to make him accept with such cheerfulness our hard lot. I went back to my tent and to-day I am seeking that thing which made the singer so happy."

"Do you know who the singer was?" asked Matheson.

"No."

"Well, I was the singer seeking comfort and hope in the song you heard."

The tears came into the soldier's eyes as he thrust the money into Matheson's hands, saying, "After what you've done for me, I can't take this from you."—Sel.

SOMERVILLE, Victoria, Australia.

Dear Sisters:—It has been a long time since I wrote you, but not because I have lost interest in the column. O no; I feel more interested and encouraged each time the Herald reaches us, and thank the Lord for the grand and noble thoughts expressed therein; thoughts which we feel assured are inspired of the Holy One to touch our wayward hearts and bring us closer to him.
How thankful we are for such an organization as the Daughters of Zion. What could be more needed in this day and age when the world is so full of iniquity and deceit? God bless the brethren and sisters who are not afraid to speak out the plain truth, and may they go on in their noble, God-given work.

"Be their zeal in heaven recorded,
In the better land rewarded,
God speed the right."

Yea, even till King Immanuel comes to claim his true and tried Saints who have fought the fight valiantly while sojourning on the earth.

On receiving the Heralds yesterday our hearts were made sad by learning of the death of our brother, T. W. Smith. His name and memory are cherished by many a Saint in this land; the good counsel together with prophetic words he often gave, will never be forgotten. Many an eye will shed tears because of his departure from us, but we hope to meet him, with all the good and faithful ones on the resurrection morn.

We rejoice to learn of the progress the work is making in Zion, and only wish we could make as favorable reports here. The work seems to move so slowly; so few are ready to listen to the old, old story, and fewer still to obey it. The field is large and the laborers few, hence much work must be accomplished to gather in the golden grain ere the coming of our Lord. I often think if we could only realize the duties we owe our God, who has so mercifully brought us into the fold, that we would endeavor more earnestly to live more consistent lives than we do, laying aside things of a worldly nature which tend towards drawing us from things pure and good, noble and refining, to those of a groveling nature. Let us, dear Saints, be beacon lights, sending forth the beautiful rays of the gospel, that some weary brother or sister may be encouraged (not discouraged) to press onward with more zeal than they hitherto have had, and thus obtain the love, joy, and peace, which are promised to all the faithful in Christ Jesus. Let us work, watch, and pray, for the night soon cometh when no man can work, when the cry will be heard,

"Behold, the Bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him." May we all be prepared and go out with joy, having our lamps trimmed and burning, is the desire and prayer of,

Your sister in bonds,

SARAH BUTTERWORTH.

CABOOL, Missouri.

Dear Sisters:—When reading the article on "Baby Sweethearts" in the Herald of October 31, I felt like commenting on it. I do think it is such an evil practice in parents and older persons to be teasing children about each other. It many times spoils all their enjoyment in each other's company. I know this from experience. I have a little girl past eight years old and innocent in all her ways, of a frank, loving nature, and full of play; she loves to interest all her company. But how often I have seen all her play spoiled for the time, simply by some one teasing her about the little boys who happened to be in the company, and many times it gives her such a distaste to them she will not go where they are. I have one neighbor who has a baby of two years, just beginning to talk plain, and she talks to him about his sweethearts as though he were twenty. It is just disgusting to me to hear her talk. I think this is one thing that is the trouble with the human race to-day—they have been pushed out too soon. I know it is one reason why we have so many fallen girls in the country. They are allowed to keep men's company before they know how to take care of themselves, and the men take advantage of this. It makes my heart ache to see how careless mothers are about their girls. They seem to think there is no danger until it is too late and those who are trying to care for their children have a hard time with such influences around them. I know what I am talking about for I have the trial, and because I am trying to care for my own and keep them from harm that they cannot see, it angers them and they call me a crank and other names which are not agreeable to hear.
But I have one consolation, the Lord is with me and I know we have to be firm to resist the evil in and around children as well as others, sometimes. Young girls, I would like to give you all a word of advice: Be careful of your actions in company, for you know not of the evil which is in the world. Especially if you belong to the church, don't let your conduct bring reproach upon it.

LUCINDA JOHNSON.

It is much easier to limit one's gratitude than one's hopes and desires.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR DECEMBER.

Pray always and I will pour out my Spirit upon you, and great shall be your blessing; yea, even more than if you should obtain treasures of earth and corruptibleness to the extent thereof. Behold, canst thou read this without rejoicing and lifting up thy heart for gladness? or canst thou run about longer as a blind guide; or canst thou be humble and meek and conduct thyself wisely before me; yea, come unto me thy Savior.—Doc. and Cov. 18: 6.

Thursday, Dec. 6.—The church, its ministers, and membership. That righteousness, love, and zeal in the work and spread of the gospel may increase and to this end the Saints with one heart and mind bring their tithes and offerings into the Lord's storehouse. That God will continue to reveal his mind to his servants in the direction of the affairs of the church.

Memory Verses.—Micah 6: 6, 7.

Thursday, Dec. 13.—Our families. Prayer for the members of our families by name, and for the families of each other and those of the ministry. For the youth of the church in general.

Memory Verses.—1 Timothy 2: 1, 2.

Thursday, Dec. 20.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses.—2 Timothy 1: 24, 25.

Thursday, Dec. 27.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verse.—Hosea 3: 5.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

MRS. CLARA ROBERTS, of Shenandoah, Iowa, earnestly requests your faith and prayers in behalf of her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Gaylord, who has been a great sufferer for years.

Letter Department.

AMADORE, Mich., Nov. 27.

Editors Herald:—I do not think I could pen words of more comfort or encouragement than to say that the work of our blessed Master is progressing nicely in Eastern Michigan district. I think I am safe in saying that the Saints with but few exceptions are doing the best they can spiritually, also temporally, considering the oppressing times they have experienced the last two years. Notwithstanding the hard times, the Saints of Huron Center branch are erecting a nice, commodious little chapel 26x40, on a site donated for that purpose by Bro. McDonald. According to a previous promise after the district conference this fall the writer hastened to assist them on their building and also do some preaching in that locality. The inclemency of the weather prevented my holding as many meetings as I had desired, but the outside of the chapel was nearly finished when the writer left, and my prayer is that the Lord will bless their efforts to the full completion of their chapel, which is so much needed in that locality on account of schoolhouses being closed against meeting by the enemies of the work, who have acted about like the dog in the manger,—could not eat himself, and would not let anything else eat; that is, they could not reach the people with their doctrine, and sooner than have them hear the truth they closed the buildings. We have much of this to contend with wherever we endeavor to establish the truth, but by the baptisms reported during the last four months we can see the Lord is adding to his church such as shall be saved.

I love this glorious work and feel blessed in telling it to others. I never felt more like assisting to push the work out in new fields than at present. We invite the cooperation and assistance of all the local brethren of this district, and hope they will do all they can this coming winter to push the work on to victory, and that branch presidents will take heed unto themselves and to all the flock over the which the Holy Ghost has made them overseers, to feed the church of God, that we may have it to say of the various branches in this district as Paul did of the Thessalonians, that from them the gospel had sound d out to others. Brethren, let us work while the day lasts, for the Savior has said the night will come when no man can work.

On the 26th, according to a resolution passed at the district conference. Bro. R. E. Grant, sub-missionary in charge, and the writer, organized a branch at Black Creek to be known as the East Fremont branch. So the good work goes on.

Yours in bonds,

J. A. GRANT.

AGNEW, Neb., Dec. 3.

Editors Herald:—One week yesterday I spent the day with the Palmyra branch, holding three meetings. From there I came on to Lincoln on Monday, in order to see Bro. Baldwin, as he had written me to be there on Sunday; but I already had an appointment to be with the Palmyra branch. We held meetings at Lincoln on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and on Wednesday Bro. D. R. Baldwin took his leave of the Lincoln branch and has now gone to try his fortune in Arkansas; so by this move the Lincoln branch is left without an elder; but by vote of the branch they made a wise move, according to their circumstances, by choosing Bro. M. J. Schafer to preside, as he had been priest of the branch; so I hope that they may be able to keep up their meetings as heretofore.

From Lincoln I came on to Agnew, on Friday the last day of November, but on arriving at Agnew I found they had concluded to not hold any meetings at the present time, so by the kindness of Mr. Thomas States (a merchant there whose wife is a member of the church) I was brought to this place, some four miles west of Agnew; so we held meeting on Saturday evening, and Sunday morning and evening. We had a good turnout and good attention.

This is a new point. There never has been any preaching of our faith here before. We expect to continue on all this week, over Sunday the 9th, and longer if the interest demands.

I was within five miles of this place for a week last fall in September; had good, interesting meetings while there. When we commenced here the Methodists had been holding a protracted meeting for about three weeks, three miles south of here, and had announced that they would discontinue after last night; but I understand that they now are going to run their meetings for awhile longer; so we have concluded that opposition is the life of trade; that they can run their meetings and we will run ours. There seems to be a good opening through this whole country for the preaching of the gospel, if we only had the preachers to do the work. Bro. W. M. Self, of Bennet, is with me.

Fraternally,

J. W. WALDSMITH.

TEMPLE, Ohio, Dec. 3.

Editors Herald:—Meetings were held here yesterday as usual with good audiences in attendance. Brn. J. H. Lake and M. H. Bond discoursed, assisted by Bro. William Garrett and self. The sacrament meeting was well attended and a good interest was manifest in the services. Bro. George H. Hilliard, Bishop's counsel, preached here on Sunday the 25th last, morning and evening, effectively; also on the Monday evening following. Bro. George is a hustler and lays the law down uncompromisingly, and easily to be understood by any who desire to learn. Like all faithful warriors he is filled with confidence and hope. He left here on Friday for the East, Massachusetts, where I hope to join him the last of this week, or sometime next. But circumstances have stood in the way of me carrying out my programme of work for several weeks, so have been trying to adjust myself to the inevitable. The way looks brighter just now for executing plans.

A telephone line is being constructed through our village, which gives it a look of improvement, if nothing more comes of it. We will doubtless soon be able to talk to people at all principal points east and west of us, as it is to extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean and intermediate points.

Fraternally,

WM. H. KELLEY.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Nov. 29.

Editors Herald:—The work in this part is moving slowly. I have baptized nine in this district and three in the Northwestern Kansas district lately, and the prospects are good for nine more very soon.

I cannot write as encouragingly as some of our eastern brethren, but I am glad to report progress in the good cause. While we are in a very bad condition in this drouthy country for the bread that perishes, yet the poor have the gospel preached to them, and some are willing to accept it. One good thing the drought is doing here if nothing more: it is driving the hireling ministry out into fatter pastures, so we are not hindered by them in our work. We are not having so many loud revivals in these parts as usual at this time of the year. I expect to continue in this county until January, then go to Buffalo and Franklin counties, Nebraska. My address will be, North Platte, until January.

Yours for truth,

G. W. SHUTE.

KIBBIE, Ill., Nov. 28.

Editors Herald:—I opened my dwelling-house November 20 and Bro. J. F. Henson preached two nights to an interested audience, and the writer by the request of neighbors and friends preached once in his own house by his fireside from the text, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."—Matt. 4:4. It made our heart rejoice to meet our neighbors around our fireside and reason with them out of the Scriptures; for at the close of the meeting while singing the old familiar song,— "Am I a soldier of the cross,"

the wife of our worthy Brother M. G. Powell came forward and gave her name for baptism. She has been a member of the Christian Church for many years. She was baptized November 23 by Bro. J. F. Henson, after which we retired to the house of Bro. Powell for confirmation, where a lovely time was had with Saints and friends on account of the outpouring of the Spirit of God. A good dinner was prepared for all and thus not only was the inward man fed, but there was plenty of food for the outward man, and to spare. The Saints were all made glad to know that the good work is gaining ground, and that some of our worthy neighbors are coming into the church.

From Bro. Powell's I and Bro. Henson, my traveling companion, went to Green schoolhouse where he and Bro. Morris lately baptized fourteen. We preached four times, held one prayer meeting, and organized a Saints' Sunday school. The work is in fair condition in these parts. We came here today to do what we can in the way of teaching the perfect law. We were glad to meet Bro. Charles and A. C. Barmore here, who will remain a few days. Bro. Henson is suffering with throat trouble.

Yours in the faith,

F. M. SLOVER.

POWERSVILLE, Iowa, Nov. 30.

Editors Herald:—It makes me rejoice when I read in the Herald the progress my brethren are making in the gospel field. I opened up four miles west of Fairbank, in Blackhawk county, and spoke eight times to a large and attentive crowd. I had intended to continue about three weeks, but a man who lived half a mile from the schoolhouse went across the road to his neighbor and began a quarrel with him, and they got into blows and the latter was too quick for him and broke his jaws, and finally brought him to the ground with his head broken. He died three days later, and the excitement ran so high, and considering all the surroundings I saw it was better to close meetings for awhile.

I went to Oran where Bro. Kephart was at work, and assisted him in baptizing Mr. Hodges and wife on the 19th. Mr. Hodges was a deacon in the Baptist Church, but when he heard the gospel in its fullness it did not take him long to see that the church he belonged to had no authority or organization, according to the New Testament church. I left Bro. Kephart to work there and came, by request, to Blackhawk county to preach Sr. Hamilton's funeral sermon. O that we could all have the blessed assurance that she had of coming forth in the first resurrection. Our Father gave her a glimpse into the future. O how she wanted to describe what she had seen, but words failed her. Her desire was to go and enjoy what she had beheld.

After the funeral, on the 23d, Bro. John Heide, the energetic Bishop's agent of Eastern Iowa, assisted me in opening a series of meetings at the Key schoolhouse. I was with him till Sunday afternoon, when I turned the meeting over to him to continue for some time, and came here where I begin to-night, and continue here two weeks or more, then return to Dunkerton to baptize one or more. One young lady gave me her name for baptism just as I was leaving; she is an exemplary young lady. I hope we may get many more like her.

Bro. O. B. Thomas is still hammering away in Clayton county. I do hope Bro. J. R. Sutton will soon get into the field, for the people are perishing for the bread of life, and there are so few to break it to them. The M. E's., who shut us out of their church here a year or so ago, are dying out; they can't pay for the church now, and can raise only about half of the salary for the preacher. May truth and right prevail and the kingdom of God's dear Son be established all over the land. I feel encouraged in the work, for I am blessed by the Spirit in presenting the truth.

Your colaborer,

J. S. ROTH.

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 20.

Editors Herald:—We have in this portion of the Lord's vineyard a body of religious worshipers who designate themselves, "Saints gathered in the name of the Lord, in obedience to his word." They have quite a number of mission rooms which they designate "gospel halls," or "gospel tents." They appear to be a highly respectable body of worshipers and profess to be searchers after truth, but deny the necessity of priesthood, as an ordained ministry, and have no use for the gifts and graces of the gospel of Christ as enumerated by St. Paul in I Corinthians, chapters 12, 13, and 14.

About eighteen months ago several of our brethren here began to labor among them in the northeastern part of the city, and found a few who were willing to "prove all things," and who after a very careful and prayerful examination of the doctrine concluded to cast in their lot with us as advocates of the restored gospel. In their obedience they realized the promises, and with hearts full of gratitude to God sought to warn their former associates as they themselves had been warned. Several accepted the warning and withdrew from close fellowship with their former colleagues, and were received into the Church of Christ by baptism. At this the "chief shepherds" of this interesting flock took alarm and began an attack upon the doctrine of Christ as presented by the Latter Day Saints, taking care to exclude the possibility of any direct reply on the part of the representatives of the church they condemned. Ultimately a conference of their several congregations in Manchester was held, prior to which it leaked out that it was the intention of the leaders to attack "Mormonism" and warn their followers of the evil genesis (?) of the same. Representatives of our church were on hand to witness, and defend if needs be; but such as were known as Latter Day Saints were not permitted to enter the precincts of their meetinghouse, although the meetings were open to other outsiders. However, from statements made by some of those who were present at the meetings named, a grand and (as the leaders supposed, it may be assumed) a crushing (?) attack was made upon us and the doctrine we present. Very hard names were used: "anti-Christian," blasphemers, etc., and it was boldly asserted that no Latter Day Saint could enter heaven.

Under these circumstances the writer considered it his duty to call upon the gentlemen who were credited with these statements to make good their assertions, or withdraw them as publicly as they had made them. To this end the following notes were addressed to the leaders of the body, who by their followers are held up as men of Christlike conduct and reputation:—

MANCHESTER, June 10, '94.

MR. W. H. HUNTER; Dear Sir:—I have just been informed by a gentleman who was present this evening at a meeting held in the "gospel hall," Warwick street, Hulme, that you had in the course of an address to others as well as those of your own faith charged the Latter Day Saints with being deceivers, antichristians, blasphemers, etc. Now sir, I take exception to such statements, and call upon you to retract them in as public a manner as you have made them, unless you are prepared to prove them in a public discussion to be hereafter arranged betwixt yourself and a representative of the body you have so cruelly maligned.

I am, sir, Yours obediently,

JOSEPH DEWSNUP, Sen.,

Presiding Elder of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

TO THE MINISTER OF THE CONGREGATION WORSHIPING AT 43 WARWICK STREET, HULME; Dear Sir:—Having been credibly informed that a bitter attack was made by one or more of the speakers at your meetings on Saturday last upon the Latter Day Saints and their doctrines, I herewith inclose you an epitome of our faith and doctrine, with the intimation, that we are prepared to defend and vindicate the same (the Holy Scriptures being the standard of evidence) against all comers. I have already written to one of your speakers, (Mr. Hunter,) calling upon him to retract certain statements made by him or else defend them in public discussion to be arranged betwixt himself (or any other accredited minister of your body) and a representative minister of the body he has so malignantly attacked.

I have the honor to be the presiding elder of the Manchester district of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

JOSEPH DEWSNUP, Sen.

A month or more has now elapsed since the foregoing letters were dispatched by post to the gentlemen named thereon, and so far we have not had any reply thereto, by written message or otherwise. We are, however, quite satisfied. Results are, we believe, in our favor. We are still "plodding on," "defense, not defiance," being our motto.

The work of our Master is making rapid strides hereabouts. The Bradford and Salford missions with the local missionaries are in evidence, and are doing a grand, preparatory work; preparing and planting. The harvest will be by and by, if we work, and faint not. The former is in charge of Elder Henry Greenwood, who is assisted by Elders Joseph Dewsnup, Jr., and William Henry Greenwood, and Priests George Leggett and Thomas Taylor. The latter two were formerly members of the body with whose ministers we have had the before-written correspondence, and are both men who are valiant for the truth. A mission room has been hired; regular and set services have been announced, and present appearances speak favorably for excellent future results.

In connection with the above laborers I am in duty bound to mention the labors, untiring labors—in behalf of the cause of Srs. Knott and Rhodes, also of Father Clarke, who is now eighty-six years of age and still to the front as an example to younger men who have put on the armor of Christ.

Salford mission is in charge of Elder S. F. Mather, assisted by Elders William R. Armstrong, Fredrick Bruton, and Ernest R. Dewsnup; also Priest Frederick M. Armstrong and member Edward Nixon, a band of noble young men of excellent parts, educational and otherwise, who are filled with a noble zeal for the Lord's work, and who are unquestionably exercising an influence for good on all around them. In addition to these already named, mention must be made of Elder Barton, Priests Foden and Maddock (officers of the Manchester branch), Srs. Barton, Berry, Bruton, Nixon, Hickling, Greenwood, and Ridgeway; all of whom are more or less engaged in the different departments into which the work is divided in Salford; namely, the general work of the district, the Sunday school, and the Band of Hope. The Sunday school and Band of Hope are making excellent results in this part of the city; the former having an average of eighty scholars under the superintendence of E. R. Dewsnup; secretary, F. M. Armstrong. The latter is also well attended under the present chairmanship of Elder C. H. Barton; secretary Priest John Foden. The attendance is made up with very few exceptions of the children of those who are yet outside of the church, but some of whom, I am happy to say, are in deep sympathy with the work we represent. One name was given in for baptism on Sunday evening last. Another lady, who with her husband has been attending services for some time also expressed her desire to do so when her husband (who was present) was prepared to accompany her, or give his consent to the same.

The Manchester branch itself, under the presidency of Elder James Baty, is fully alive to the importance of its existence and is doing well. The morning meetings on the Sabbath are well attended and are excellent in tone and teaching. Quite a number of interested persons, who are yet outside the covenant are attending, and if we may judge by their works will not be long before they are added to the church. The branch is well officered, having a presiding elder, two assistant elders, a presiding priest, with five assistant priests, two teachers, and four deacons who are each using the time at their disposal in advancing the interest of the work. We look upon this branch as the center. We are working outwards from this, using it as our base of supply. Leeds, Wigan, and Farnworth branches under the presidency of Elders Seekins, W. Spargo, and Joseph Harper, are making live efforts to follow in the van and are helping much to spread the knowledge of our God-given message. Elder James Caffall, president of the mission, has been through the district with the exception of Wigan and Farnworth branches and we believe that he approves of the course which has been adopted in this corner of the vineyard. He is at present in Birmingham and neighborhood, having labored in Manchester, Leeds, Sheffield, Clay Cross, Leicester, Burton-upon-trent, Stafford, Wolverhampton, and Birmingham; speaking for Manchester and Leeds I have reason to know that he has endeared himself very much to the Saints in these places by his manly, straightforward conduct and his fatherly advice and counsel to us all. May his life long be preserved and his usefulness continued on behalf of this important section of the Church of Christ.

With a brotherly greeting to the whole household of faith, I remain as ever, in gospel bonds,

JOSEPH DEWSNUP, Sen.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Nov. 30.

Editors Herald:—I was requested to do some preaching at Byrneville and to speak on a particular subject. There was quite a large congregation present; and as I walked from my seat to the stand an elderly lady attracted my attention to such an extent that I did not present the line of thought as requested; but considered the subject, What must I do to be saved? with good liberty.

The brethren were somewhat disappointed. The next morning I continued the same line of thought; and after meeting the elderly lady sent for Bro. M. R. Scott and myself to take dinner with her, which we did. She told us that she was convinced of the truth of our claims and desired baptism, which was granted. She was at one time a bitter enemy to the work. There accompanied her in baptism her son and his wife, an estimable gentleman and lady. The confirmation meeting was held in her house, and such a glorious time we had. She was eighty-three years old last August. At the baptism some of her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren stood on the bank at the water's edge; and, O, Brother Joseph, the solemnity of that occasion and its importance gladdens my heart. How proud I was of this great work; and as I buried her in the liquid grave I remembered her past life as a gainsayer and as she arose there has not been a vestige of them left. She indeed is a new creature and as she was confirmed by Bro. M. R. Scott the one in particular against whom she used to speak, every one present was touched in their hearts as he prayed for her. O, what a contrast is the spirit of the work to that of the world. I am of the opinion that she is possibly the oldest one yet baptized into the church to my knowledge, if not, please correct me. Her name is Martha Kepley. That same evening I baptized another gentleman, the head of a large family. Those four were prominent members of the U. B. Church, and as a gentleman made the remark that those Mormons were not after sinners but they were taking all the best people in their church.

The good work is onward here. I have been active for over one month, and have just closed a ten days series of meetings. Some are very near in those parts where I have been laboring. I trust to be enabled to obtain and keep the Spirit of this great work for it is marvelous.

W. H. KELLEY.

AKRON, Ohio, Dec. 2.

Editors Herald:—Our little band of Saints here are still striving to keep the camp fire burning. We met at Bro. Jenkins' to-day for prayer and testimony meeting. Although few in number the Lord verified his promise by blessing us abundantly with his Holy Spirit.

I take great pleasure in reading the Herald, which comes to us every week freighted with the good news of Zion's weal and the onward, triumphal march of her mighty hosts. Four years ago I was baptized into the fold by Bro. L. Devore, and I have never regretted the step, for the Lord has blessed me many times with his Spirit. I am trying to live faithful. The Lord has given me visions that convince me this is his true church. The prize is at the end of the race. We will receive the crown that is reserved for us. May the Lord help us all to live faithful. Your sister,

ELIZA WIKE.

BEAVERTON, Mich., Dec. 1.

Editors Herald:—The work begun here eighteen months ago by Elder Francis Smith, followed by Elders J. A. Carpenter, J. J. Cornish, Cooper, Bailey, and others, gives striking evidence that it will speedily grow from the fact that Protestant sects and Catholics alike, while torn and divided by dissensions among themselves upon their human creeds, have combined to hinder the work. Twenty-four have been baptized into Christ. Elder J. A. Carpenter is laboring with us, and the skeptical sentiment has been allayed somewhat of late; but the poison of the counterfeit has been scattered broadcast in the minds of the people.

We were lectured against by M. D. Rogers, a sectarian orator. Elder Carpenter also debated upon the work with him for three weeks. Of course the world had the majority on its side. The remarkable part of it all is that M. D. Rogers in his remarks one evening defied the Lord thus: "If they are called of God and are his, why does he allow me to follow them up and beat them out? Why does he not strike me dead? I defy them and their Mormon God?" Immediately after the debate he went home, was thrown into fever, took to his bed, and never left it alive. Thus ended the days of Rogers. Another persecutor of a severe nature made the remark that they would drive us out of here. Some one told him he should begin at once. He said they were going to starve us out. He, too, was immediately taken sick, and before he died saw his family without a crust in the cupboard, dependent upon public charity. Against all the persecutors of the work here the chastening hand of almighty God has been raised during the past four months; sickness, misery, and suffering has been the story; death and the doctors having a harvest, among them, while the Saints through faith in the Lord's hand to heal and obedience to the command to call the elders and anoint with oil and lay on hands and prayer, have had wonderful manifestations of his divine power to heal, being instantaneous invariably in each case.

There is a combination meeting in progress, dealing out ready-made salvation on the mourner bench route; no water, no laying on of hands, no revelation, no gifts,—all done away. The followers of Joseph Smith are all devils, they say, but dare not undertake to prove it by God's eternal truth. Several went to the bench and "got saved." They know they did. Ask them how they know it, and the answer is: "I don't know." Such nonsense!

There are about forty members of the body here, with a thriving Sunday school attended by from thirty-five to sixty, and a good interest is manifested. We are assured that the work will prosper and flourish here. The members are comparatively poor in this world's goods, yet nearly all own their homes and are rich in the spiritual and temporal gifts of a merciful Creator through the merits of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, who tasted death for every man. These gifts and blessings distinguish the Church of Christ from all other bodies, for without them we could not discern the Lord's body, and would be the same as those in the world; with no communion with God by revelation, no faith in his hand to heal, no nothing above our natural ambition and presumption. Upon this divine principle of communion in the body, the Church of Jesus Christ in its primitive purity embraced all his spiritual followers. They had no human creed, and it was the day of prosperity to the Church of Christ. No Greece nor Rome had given its hand to scatter the power of the holy people, while she remained as her Redeemer organized her; without human creed or discipline she conquered the world. She had no money, no colleges, little learning, and no influential support; but with the gospel of Christ and the power of the Holy Spirit she triumphed over the pagan world and was stronger in proportion to other religions than in the world than now. Since sectarianism took the helm with human creeds, she has been rejected by the religious world, and is humbled to-day by seeing the land of the Savior's ministry under the rule of Mohammed. Amid these blackened pages of the history of the human race the selfish hand of sectarianism can plainly be seen, written in the misery and suffering of millions of human beings. The black death of the fourteenth century was but oil poured out upon the troubled waters, yet went by unheeded. The man of Genoa went forth upon the breast of the western waters and unfolded to the world the fragrant mystery of the land shadowing with wings, giving to man a new field for his ambitions and activities, yet finding man-life existing in contentment, already worshipers of the Great Spirit. The mystery of that man-life was not to be unfolded until the time came for God to set his hand again the second time to gather his people, by the angel having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell upon the earth, calling the young man from obscurity; and Joseph Smith was chosen from the millions of the inhabitants of the earth to declare the message, "Fear God and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come." What consolation to the Saints in light in this nineteenth century to give glory to God in the highest, peace on earth, good will toward man! By this divine principle of communion in the body with their Creator by the Holy Spirit through the death and suffering and resurrection of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, what peace, purity, and pleasure; what loyalty, love, and light, hearts full of love, producing harmony; which combined make heaven! Our testimony to the world is, We know the work is of God. Pray for us, brethren.

JOSEPH MUSSER.

CREIGHTON, Mo., Nov. 25.

Editors Herald:—Three weeks ago to-day I got an opening to preach in the Smoky Row schoolhouse and have delivered six sermons. The attendance at first was quite small, owing to a revival held in a Baptist church about three miles away. Those meetings have closed now and to-night the congregation was about sixty. I am here alone in this section of country to do the preaching and I wish some of the brethren who happen to come near this place, if they have no more pressing calls, would come to my assistance, as I hope to begin a two-weeks effort every evening beginning December 9. I have no horse, but it is only about four miles to walk.

I must relate a dream I had about this place the night the announcement was made that meetings would be commenced here. I thought (in my dream) I was preaching in this very place. There were only three lights in the house, the audience was small, and presently I imagined I was near a river fishing. The water was very roily and muddy, with a thick, white foam on the surface of it. I thought I let down my hook and the fish began to bite vigorously. I pulled in quite a number of fine looking fellows and as I was in the act of going from the stream I came to what appeared to be a square box, but it was located in the ground, and in it I saw many beautiful fish. I let down my hook in this box and a beautiful one bit and I hauled him out, and immediately I awakened. Part of my dream came true the first night, as there were only three lights in the room. As for the catching of the fish, I must await developments. Praying for the success of the gospel let us "walk worthy of the vocation" wherewith we are called.

Yours in bonds,
PHILEMON PEMENT.

RAVENWOOD, Mo., Nov. 27.

Editors Herald:—Have just returned from a two weeks tour in Holt county, where Elders James Thomas and J. L. Gunsolley have been doing some preaching. While there Bro. Thomas held a debate with a Mr. Crosby, of the Adventist faith, which resulted in a complete victory for the cause of Christ. Many invitations were extended for Bro. James' return.

Our stay while there was made pleasant by the generous-hearted brother, R. K. Ross, his venerable companion, and others of the Saints. We felt in our hearts to say, "God bless such noble Saints."

Much good has been done the past summer with our district tent. In towns where we could not obtain churches Brn. J. R. Evans and James Thomas, assisted by others, have taken the tent and succeeded in removing a vast amount of prejudice, and made many warm friends for the cause, who otherwise could not have been reached. The work is moving in this part of the vineyard; some are convinced of the truth, others are investigating.

Your sister,
S. E. P. GUNSOLLEY.

KAITANGATA, Otago,
New Zealand, Oct. 22.

Editors Herald:—We are striving to keep the banner of truth afloat until help comes. We have had to defend the faith here. A Campbellite preacher has been preaching on the street here and he invited the people to come and bring their Bibles and ask questions in the church, and I went; but he said if anyone wanted to ask questions to stop till all the people went out, so I did not get the chance in the church on the Sunday, but I got a chance on the street on the next night. He said the prophecy of Joel was fulfilled on the day of Pentecost, but when I asked him, "Did anyone fall asleep and dream dreams, and was there blood, and fire, and vapor of smoke on that day?" he had to confess he was wrong. He told the people to come and bring their Bibles and ask questions, and I told the people I would be there, and I delivered a lot of our tracts. But he did the same; he told us to wait until the people went out, but I got a chance on Wednesday night and we labored an hour with him.

We challenged him to meet us on the public platform. He said he would not give Mormonism publicity, but he did the very thing I wanted him to do; he came out against the Saints and gave a lecture on Mormonism, and said we taught Adam-God, and blood atonement, and that Joseph Smith was the God of this generation, and our doctrine was damnable heresy. He was one of Clark Braden's kind. The people cried, "Shame on him." He told the people not to take any heed to the tracts, but I wish you had seen the rush for them. I could not give them out fast enough. I had to scatter them among them. When I got up to answer him the people cheered me. I told them that as it was late I would not attempt to answer him that night. The owner of the large hall had given it to me to reply to him, and I invited him to meet me. He told the people he would, and to bring their Bibles; but he was he that fights and runs away, who lives to fight another day. We replied to him and we never had as good a hearing; the large hall was full, and many had to stand. It is the first time I have had to defend the Book of Mormon and the divine mission of the seer as a prophet of God, and the Lord stood by me.

I never felt the Spirit the same as that night. It was the most mental strain I ever had to meet. We felt the need of help here, for the harvest is ripe and the laborers few. We have made friends to the cause in this place, and we want the faith and prayers of the Saints that we may not be a stumbling-block to any. We have a home for an elder with us now. Who will be the first to come? Whoever comes, there is plenty of work in the gospel field and we can get the people to come and hear us here better than in New South Wales. I go on the street when the weather permits.

We have received a letter from one of the Utah elders. He saw by the papers that I had been defending the Mormons and he wanted to know what standing we had in their church? I wrote him and told him my standing in the church, but not in their church. He wanted me to meet him at Milton, fourteen miles from here; but when he gets my letter I think he will change his mind. But I would like to meet him in public and let the people see the differences in our churches, and I will strive to get him to come here. But I think I will have to be very crafty to get him. We will soon be out of tracts, but I trust in the Lord and he will open the way that I will get some more. Will Bro. Dancer please send me some tracts? We will be glad to hear from Bro. J. F. Burton or Bro. J. W. Wight. We will write to both if we can get the address. If we could get either to come here, or Bro. Butterworth from New South Wales, the fare is only one pound ten to Dunedin and seven shillings by train to here.

Your brother in the faith,

THOMAS DIXON.

DOUGLAS county, Missouri, Nov. 10.

Editors Herald:—I am yet battling for the cause of truth in the Southern Missouri district. In October I had the pleasure of attending a reunion of the Saints in Cedar county, which was a spiritual feast to me. It was the first I have attended and I can truly say that such gatherings are of great benefit to the Saints, because in them we get a better understanding of the work in general. Furthermore, we are permitted to see the higher officers in the church; such as apostles, high priests, and seventies, and hear their counsel, thus causing us to better appreciate their labors. These reunions also help to create within us the Spirit of the gathering to the land of Zion, (or Missouri,) which we should all look to with great desire for its accomplishment. I hope to see this reunion work spread even to our district. This great latter-day work seems to be slowly spreading from north to south, and it appears that a few good reunions held on the line between these sections of country would constitute a connecting link between them that would forever bind them together in love and unity. Then, Saints of the Southern Missouri district, suppose we agitate the subject of reunion and see if the pebble thus "dropped in the water" will not have a good effect among us. One brother says he will give twenty-five dollars for a reunion, surely the rest of us can furnish the balance. If we would go to work in earnest and have a reunion in our district at some suitable point and get Bro. Joseph or some of the Twelve or Seventy to be with us for a week, it would doubtless be invaluable to us. Shall we have one? I wait for an answer.

I have recently been stopping with an English brother named Stevenson, who has a few volumes of the Times and Seasons. I will say for the benefit of those who know but little or nothing about this work that it was the name of the church paper published in the days of the Palmyra Seer. By a perusal of this excellent work one may gain valuable information relative to the early history of the church, which is not only interesting to the young Saints, but profitable as well.

It fills one's heart with pathetic and sublime emotion to see what a courageous and sacrificing spirit was exhibited by the Saints from the organization of the church in 1830 till the death of Joseph in 1844. By reference to the Times and Seasons we see that the church increased in membership in about one year from six to more than a thousand members; that the Saints were persecuted much more then than now; that Joseph Smith was arrested thirty-nine times, and was innocent in each case; that in November 1833, about one hundred and fifty of the sisters were expelled from their homes by mob violence and fled to the prairie where they remained for some time with only a few of the brethren to protect them. Yes, they endured most every cruelty that blind prejudice incited by Satanic agency could invent, yet amid all this they showed by their faith and works, that many were willing to keep the commandments of God notwithstanding they hazarded their lives in so doing. And yet amid great trials many of the Saints prospered for a time, but alas, he that thinketh he standeth let him take heed lest he fall. When we read on the pages of history after the death of Joseph we see that deceivers had crept in unawares who by following their own pernicious ways caused such division and apostasy in the church as is seldom recorded in the annals of history; to which the history of Brighamism will surely testify. What a lesson to proud men who love the praise of men more than the cause of Christ! But now as the church has been reorganized under the leadership of one "mighty and strong," we have great reason to lift up our heads and rejoice. Let us by closely observing the history of the past emulate our predecessors in church work in patience, zeal, and in everything they did that was good; but at the same time let us take warning by their vices and shun the same as we would the venom of the rattlesnake, and by so doing press steadily on to victory. Last night I began services at the Oak Grove school-house, near the place of the Sparling-Bradshaw discussion. Since this discussion two persons have been baptized and others are believing; but withal Satan is not bound, neither are his agents sleeping.

In the faith,

C. J. SPURLOCK.

LATHAM, Ill., Nov. 26.

Editors Herald:—I arrived in this section of country about one month ago. Since that time I have been endeavoring to open up the work in Clinton and Logan counties by laboring from house to house and holding forth one week in the hall at Mt. Auburn; and from there I came here and had the privilege of preaching two nights in the Christian church, and somehow the word got out that I was "a Mormon" and the brethren of the church came to me and one stated that he had quite a dispute about it, and he told them I did not preach Mormon doctrine. I informed them that I belonged to the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and was representing the doctrine of Christ; so the brethren counseled together for a short time and concluded that as the Baptist brethren were holding a protracted effort it would not be best for me to continue any longer; hence my friends have secured me the schoolhouse two miles south of town, and to-morrow night I shall commence there. Since leaving Mt. Auburn I hear there are several anxious for my return. Here and there the people have manifested a good interest.

I moved away from this place twenty-three years ago. The change in this country has been great. This is a very fertile country and, seemingly, the people think more about making money and the good things of earth than of the world to come. However, there are some good people here. Sr. Curtis has a number of relatives living in this section, and has been quite anxious that I should give them the privilege of the gospel, and by the help of God I shall endeavor to present the truth and leave the result with him who has all power.

On my arrival at Mt. Auburn I found a sect holding forth, which usually goes by the name of Faith Cures or Free Church of God. The ministers are Mr. and Mrs. Mooney. They invited me to attend their meetings, assuring me that the meetings were free for any and all to take part. I accepted the invitation. Mrs. Mooney opened the meeting. All stand up and sing the most sensational songs that can be selected, and after five or six have been sung, all bow in prayer and pray in rapid succession, or all pray aloud at once and ask for the Holy Ghost to come right down and slay them out on the right and left. Some are struck dumb while praying, others while singing, and others while bearing testimony. They fall over in a trance or a state of unconsciousness, stiff and cold, and thus they remain from thirty

Original Articles.

CO-OPERATION.

to forty minutes usually; but some remain for twenty-four hours. Some claim to have wonderful visions while in this condition. The second night, while Mrs. Mooney was reading the second chapter of Acts, when about half way through,—and by the way, I was much pleased, for I was just thinking how easily I could spoil all her theology by simply calling her attention to the answer given by Peter when they cried out, "What shall we do?" and Peter's answer, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost,"—while she was teaching that they could come to the mourner's bench and all come and lay hands on the convert, pray, and usually fall in a trance and declare him sanctified and fully saved, to my astonishment all at once by an unseen power the Bible went across the room while she fell prostrate on the floor and remained there for about thirty minutes. Her husband at once hallooed out, "Saved!" and several songs were sung, and others began to fall, while some danced, and when opportunity was granted me I took the liberty to tell them as a friend and brother that such manifestations were not of God, and gave them a number of quotations from the Bible. Finally she cried out, "That's Mormonism, and all of the Devil!" I informed them that if those citations from the Bible were Mormonism, then Jesus was the first one, and by him we would all be judged. At this juncture they commenced singing.

At the close I got into conversation with them and when unable to answer my argument, one of them holding the office of constable stepped forward and commanded me in the name of the State of Illinois to hold my peace or he would have me arrested for disturbing a religious meeting. I did so and quietly retired; but all this has caused quite a ruffle among them, and several have left them, and others who were almost ready to unite say they want no more to do with it.

All who may desire to write me may do so by addressing me at Illiopolis, Illinois.

Yours for the right,
EMSLEY CURTIS.

Selected Poetry.

IF I KNEW

If I knew the box where the smiles were kept,

No matter how large the key
Or strong the bolt, I would try so hard,
'Twould open, I know, for me.

Then over the land and the sea, broadcast

I'd scatter the smiles to play,
That the children's faces might hold them fast

For many and many a day.

If I knew a box that was large enough

To hold all the frowns I met,
I would like to gather them, every one,
From nursery, school, and street.

Then folding, and holding, I'd pack them in,
And, turning the monster key,

I'd hire a giant to drop the box
To the depths of the deep, deep sea.
—Maud Wyman.

THE wage system has been the source of much dissatisfaction and the cause of a great deal of strife and, sometimes, bloodshed. A more peaceful and satisfactory settlement of the question is demanded. It is said that every demand has its supply; so in this case, the want is supplied in what is known as coöperation. What is coöperation? It is the combining of men and women in a stock company or association where each has an equal share of stock, which may be paid for in money, labor, or material. It is divided into productive and distributive. Productive may be the raising of crops, etc., or the manufacture of goods, while distributive is the selling of the things produced. A well ordered and industrious community, whether coöperative or otherwise, attracts the admiration of all people.

If communities of honest, industrious Latter Day Saints could be established under the coöperative principle, it would furnish employment to many of our people and help dispel the dark forebodings which trouble some of the homes of the Saints. Such scenes as were brought to view in the Homestead and Pullman troubles ought to set some one to thinking and thus stimulate the working out of a more equitable plan, such as community of interests offers. If a careful selection of membership be made so as to exclude as far as possible parties having selfish tendencies, one of the greatest obstacles to success in coöperative work will be overcome.

It is this selfish tendency in men that has rendered unavailing every scheme of community of interests of which we have any knowledge.—Saints' Herald, 1892, p. 645.

The right application of this principle overcomes this adverse tendency.

Man is a creature of circumstance and takes his character and opinions from his environments, as the chameleon takes its color from the grasses and leaves in which it hides. Place man in a world of competition where he is taught that the ability to get and keep wealth should predominate over all other talents—where he finds he must either grind the faces of his fellow men, or have his own ground in a mad struggle for existence—and the selfish animal in his nature is bound to come to the front. But take him out of these competitive environments, place him amid surroundings where coöperation and interdependence have full play in social and industrial relations—where he is taught to look upon his fellow man, not as prey, but as his brother—and the better, unselfish side of his nature will be developed.—The Coming Nation.

Henry George speaking of coöperation says:—

But it seems to me that the only power by which such a state of society can be attained and preserved is that which the framers of the schemes I speak of generally ignore, even when they do not directly antagonize—a deep, definite, intense, religious faith, so clear, so burning as to utterly melt away the thought of self—a general moral condition such as that which the Methodists declare, under the name of "sanctification," to be individually possible, in which the dream of pristine innocence should become reality and man, so to speak, should again walk with God.—Social Problems, p. 95.

I believe that assured success would attend any effort where a due regard for God's law was had and man should be enabled to put in practice that part of the decalogue which requires us to love our neighbor as ourselves. Again Mr. George says:—

I believe that any great social improvement must spring from, and be animated by, that spirit which seeks to make life better, nobler, happier for others, rather than by that spirit which only seeks enjoyment for self.

Sr. Fanny Jones says:—

The real progress of a nation will be slow unless accompanied by that Spirit from above.—Saints' Herald, 1892, p. 735.

So, in order to succeed in coöperative methods, we must recognize that mutual advancement rests on higher ground than selfish interests. In coöperation the interests of the community should come before our own.

Improvement becomes possible as men come together in peaceful association and the wider and closer the association the greater the possibilities of improvement. . . . Thus association in equality is the law of progress.—Progress and Poverty.

An organization could be effected among the Saints and land could be purchased, part cleared and part woodland, either of which would furnish immediate employment, and homes could be built.

To illustrate the advantage of coöperation: ten men may have one hundred dollars apiece; but the sum that either may have, would not go far in the purchase of house and land, but let these ten men club or coöperate together and there would be one thousand dollars with which to buy a home. With the increase of membership, rent or interest on the first house would help towards building for the rest of the membership. There is an association in Boston that will build a house and buy the land for anyone wherever the individual may select for five dollars down and one dollar per week on one thousand dollars with interest at six per cent.

Again, we will suppose that ten men have not one hundred dollars apiece, but have labor and are willing to meet on mutual ground; in other words, coöperate with the ten men, first mentioned, with the money. Thus the money finds investment and the labor finds employment.

Still, again, we find another set of men that have not the money, nor yet the time to devote to labor, but have material or stock which is possibly lying idle and could be incorporated with the capital and labor. Capital and labor united and the stock of the third party added, would furnish quite a start. Money, labor, and stock are all necessary for successful business enterprise. Thus we would have a settlement of the vexed labor question. One writer says:—

Give labor a free field and its full earnings; take for the benefit of the whole community that fund which the growth of the community creates, and want and the fear of want will be gone.

ARTHUR B. PIERCE.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., October 5, 1894.

MERCY AND JUSTICE.

WHAT, do ye suppose that mercy can rob justice? I say unto you, Nay; not one whit. If so, God would cease to be God.—Book of Mormon, Alma 19: 13.

In perfect harmony with the above, the Savior said:—

Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.—Matt. 5: 7.

But the questions arise, How far shall mercy be extended? and when and where shall justice take effect? If, for accommodation, I lend a brother one hundred dollars for one year and charge him for the use of my money only six dollars, I am acting in strict harmony with the gospel of Christ. If, however, at the end of the year the brother should come to me and tell me that he had met with misfortune and could not pay me as he had promised, mercy comes to my relief and suggests, "You can extend the time one year longer if you wish, and that, too, without additional interest if you choose." You might throw off the interest that has already accrued, or you might forgive the brother half the debt, and you will receive no harm; or, if you think you can afford it, you might give the brother his note and tell him you forgive him his debt as you hoped the Lord would forgive your debts. If the brother is worthy and needy, you will thereby increase his confidence in you as a follower of Christ; and through your kindness may afford him and his family much relief, yet they will feel that they are much more obligated to you than they were before.

Jesus taught his disciples to pray:—

And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.

If we can walk through this world all our life long without making a mistake, without sinning against God or man, it may do for us to demand full justice from all without extending mercy to any; but if we are conscious that after we have done our very best we will need from time to time (and especially in the day of judgment) to plead for the mercy of God, we should be very careful to extend mercy to all men.

For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you; but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive you your trespasses.—Matt. 6: 14, 15.

In whatever way a person may sin against me, whether it is by lying, slandering, stealing; or their enmity toward me is manifest in abuse, though their envy and spite is under a cloak of hypocrisy; yet it is my duty to forgive them all and stand ready whenever opportunity affords to bless and do them good; for the Savior taught:—

But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.—Matt. 5: 44, 45.

God's love is universal, and should be imitated by all his children. The sentiment or truth taught in the gospel is, Love to all and enmity to none. I often wonder what the condition of things would be if God blessed only those who loved and obeyed him. And yet, I can understand how, in justice, special blessings are provided for and received by the obedient children of God. The Apostle Peter once thought upon the subject of mercy and justice; and said to Jesus:—

Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times? Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times: but, until seventy times seven. Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, which would take account of his servants. And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, which owed him ten thousand talents [$14,400,000]. But forasmuch as he had not to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made. The servant therefore fell down, and worshipped him, saying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all. Then the lord of that servant was moved with compassion, and loosed him, and forgave him the debt.—Matt. 18: 21-27.

Let us suppose, for the argument's sake, that this servant's condition represents the condition we were in when the gospel found us, and that the ten thousand talents, or fourteen million, four hundred thousand dollars, is used to represent the enormity of our sins, showing that if strict justice were done it would deprive us of happiness forever. Though we had no means of paying the debt, when we plead for mercy and accepted the conditions of the gospel, our heavenly Father was not only willing to extend our time, but gave his Son that through his sacrifice the debt might be canceled and we be the recipients of sanctification, redemption, and eternal life. The mercy of God toward us should teach us the lesson that it is our duty to have compassion on all men, but especially on those of the household of faith, lest we should be found wanting in the day of judgment. Let us see how it was with the servant referred to above:—

But the same servant went out, and found one of his fellow servants, which owed him an hundred pence [seventeen dollars]; and he laid his hands on him, and took him by the throat, saying, Pay me that thou owest. And his fellow servant fell down at his feet, and besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all. And he would not: but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt.—Matt. 18: 28-30.

Why did not this servant forgive his fellow servant as his Lord had forgiven him? Was it because his fellow servant owed him more than he had owed the Lord? No; for when you place seventeen dollars in juxtaposition with fourteen million, four hundred thousand dollars, the former sinks into insignificance, though one may be used to show the abundant mercy of God and the other as demonstrating man's lack of that attribute. Let us notice what will be the result of this lack of charity:—

So when his fellow servants saw what was done, they were very sorry, and came and told unto their lord all that was done. Then his lord, after that he had called him [in the judgment], said unto him, O thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt, because thou desiredst me: shouldst not thou also have had compassion on thy fellow servant, even as I had pity on thee? And his lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due unto him. So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespases.—Matt. 18: 31-35.

It does seem that we, through selfishness and a lack of charity, may become spiritually blind, and forget that we were "purged from our old sins," and pay the penalty for these sins, as well as our former indebtedness, in the prison house prepared for the transgressor. O Lord, deliver us from that unhappy condition by making us willing to apply thy truth to our thoughts, words, and deeds! We do not want to be among that number who in the day of judgment will say:—

Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works?—Matt. 7: 32.

Neither do we wish to be among that number to whom thou shalt say:—

Ye never knew me; depart from me ye that work iniquity.—Matt. 7: 33, I. T.

My disciples, in days of old, sought occasion against one another, and forgave not one another in their hearts, and for this evil they were afflicted, and sorely chastened; wherefore I say unto you, that ye ought to forgive one another, for he that forgiveth not his brother his trespases, standeth condemned before the Lord, for there remaineth in him the greater sin. I, the Lord, will forgive whom I will forgive, but of you it is required to forgive all men; and ye ought to say in your hearts, let God judge between me and thee, and reward thee according to thy deeds.—D. C. 64: 2.

In harmony with this was Jesus' statement while upon the cross,

Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do.

Influenced by the same spirit of love, Stephen, while being stoned by those whom he was laboring to save, cried out in pity,

Lord, lay not this sin to their charge.

But in the same section and paragraph above-mentioned, occurs another statement to which I call attention as revealing in part where justice comes in, so far as the church militant is concerned. It reads as follows:—

And he that repenteth not of his sins, and confesseth them not, then ye shall bring him before the church, and do with him as the scriptures saith unto you, either by commandment, or by revelation. And this ye shall do that God might be glorified, not because ye forgive not, having not compassion, but that ye may be justified in the eyes of the law, that ye may not offend him who is your Lawgiver.

If I understand the scripture just quoted, it means that it is our duty to forgive every sin that may be committed against us individually, whether the sinner repents or not; but while this is true, it also teaches that we cannot step into God's place and forgive those who have willfully transgressed his holy law. To illustrate: God has given to his church the fullness of the gospel and made it her duty to teach its precepts in clearness and fullness in the Spirit of God; and it is her duty to administer the sacraments or ordinances of the gospel in the fear of God, though she is authorized to both teach and administer in the name and by the authority of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Could the church, if she wished to, exercise more charity toward the so-called Christian world, change her teaching to suit the tastes of the people, or administer the ordinances to suit their conveniences without displeasing God? If so, why did the Lord state otherwise when such a disposition was manifest upon the part of the members, as follows:—

Behold, I say unto you, that all old covenants have I caused to be done away in this thing, and this is a new and an everlasting covenant; even that which was from the beginning. Wherefore, although a man should be baptized an hundred times, it availeth him nothing; for you cannot enter in at the straight gate by the law of Moses, neither by your dead works; for it is because of your dead works, that I have caused this last covenant, and this church to be built up unto me; even as in days of old. Wherefore enter ye in at the gate, as I have commanded, and seek not to counsel your God. Amen.—D. C. 20.

The following was given that the church might know how to govern herself in harmony with the divine will:—

And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints.—Rev. 19: 8.

Hearken and hear, O ye my people, saith the Lord and your God, ye whom I delight to bless with the greatest blessings; ye that hear me, and ye that hear me not will I curse, that have professed my name, with the heaviest of all cursings. Hearken, O ye elders of my church whom I have called; behold, I give unto you a commandment, that ye shall assemble yourselves together to agree upon my word, and by the prayer of your faith ye shall receive my law, that ye may know how to govern my church, and have all things right before me.

And I will be your Ruler when I come; and behold I come quickly; and ye shall see that my law is kept. He that receiveth my law and doeth it the same is my disciple; and he that saith he receiveth it and doeth it not, the same is not my disciple, and shall be cast out from among you.—D. C. 41: 1, 2

And that ye might escape the power of the enemy, and be gathered unto me a righteous people, without spot and blameless: wherefore, for this cause I gave unto you the commandment, that ye should go to the Ohio; and there I will give unto you my law.—D. C. 38: 7.

They obeyed the commandment just quoted, and the law which was to govern the church until Christ comes was given as promised, and section forty-two, which contains said law, reads:—

Hearken, O ye elders of my church, who have assembled yourselves together, in my name, even Jesus Christ, the Son of the living God, the Savior of the world; inasmuch as they believe on my name and keep my commandments; again I say unto you, hearken and hear and obey the law which I shall give unto you; for verily I say, as ye have assembled yourselves together according to the commandment wherewith I commanded you, and are agreed as touching this one thing, and have asked the Father in my name, even so ye shall receive.

In addition to the statement above, "And ye shall see that my law is kept," in paragraph five we learn something more concerning the minister's duties.

And again, the elders, priests, and teachers of this church shall teach the principles of my gospel which are in the Bible and the Book of Mormon, in the which is the fullness of the gospel; and they shall observe the covenants and church articles to do them, and these shall be their teachings, as they shall be directed by the Spirit; and the Spirit shall be given unto you by the prayer of faith, and if ye receive not the Spirit ye shall not teach.

As "God is no respecter of persons," his justice requires that these principles should be taught in all the world, and, so far as possible, to every creature without fear or favor, though in the spirit of meekness and love. He will receive, forgive, bless, and save all those who believe and obey, and punish all those who will not comply with these requirements, notwithstanding it is written, "For his mercy endureth for ever."

All beings who abide not in those conditions, are not justified; for intelligence cleaveth unto intelligence; wisdom receiveth wisdom; truth embraceth truth; virtue loveth virtue; light cleaveth unto light; mercy hath compassion on mercy, and claimeth her own; justice continueth its course, and claimeth its own; judgment goeth before the face of him who sitteth upon the throne, and governeth and executeth all things.—D. C. 85:10.

In section 42: 6, 7 we find this reading:—

And now, behold, I speak unto the church. Thou shalt kill; and he that kills shall not have forgiveness in this world, nor in the world to come.

And again, I say, thou shalt not kill; and he that killeth shall die. Thou shalt not steal; and he that stealeth and will not repent, shall be cast out. Thou shalt not lie; he that lieth and will not repent, shall be cast out. Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else; and he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit; and if he repents not, he shall be cast out. Thou shalt not commit adultery; and he that committeth adultery and repenteth not, shall be cast out; but he that has committed adultery and repents with all his heart, and forsaketh it, and doeth it no more, thou shalt forgive; but if he doeth it again, he shall not be forgiven but shall be cast out. Thou shalt not speak evil of thy neighbor, nor do him any harm. Thou knowest my laws concerning these things are given in my scriptures; he that sinneth and repenteth not shall be cast out.

The justice of God demands that this law should be righteously enforced against every transgressor, that the church might thereby be kept "without spot and blameless" before him; thus preparing herself individually and as a body to meet the Lord with joy at his coming.

Our government, glorious as it is, lacks very much of being what it might be, not so much because of the imperfections of her laws, as because few if any of her laws are as righteously enforced as they might be. There is too much favoritism; too many of her citizens who are not willing that certain of her laws should be enforced, because they are not in harmony with their thoughts and manner of life. Prohibition in many parts of the State of Iowa was a failure, not because the principle was wrong, but because too many of her citizens were unwilling to govern their appetites and step squarely upon the high platform of a citizen and render all the assistance in their power to enforce the law.

The fact that the Lord has, in his wisdom, invited his church to "come up higher" shows that there is still room for improvement on her part; and yet we would not dare to say it was because of the imperfection of her law, but rather incline to the thought that it is either because her laws are not as correctly understood, or as righteously enforced as they might be, or as closely observed as they could be, that this request is necessary. The law itself provides that members in transgression shall be kindly dealt with; that officers should make every possible effort to save them; that members in transgression who will repent and acknowledge their sin shall be forgiven, and it is just. When one is overtaken in a fault or finds himself a transgressor of the divine law, it is honorable to confess and ask forgiveness; but to confess and ask forgiveness when one is not guilty is both weak and cowardly. Justice makes no such demand.

Officers of the church are to be directed in their work very largely by the guiding influence of the Holy Spirit as to when, and where, and how their work can be best performed in harmony with the spirit and letter of the law. No one is as well qualified to know what an officer's work has been in any given case as he himself, unless it be superior officers or the court having jurisdiction who after a careful and full investigation of the whole matter have a right to decide as to the merit of the work or duty performed. For anyone to undertake such a task, unauthorized, is foreign to good government, and hinders true development in the body of Christ, and is intended only to thwart justice.

Are we all willing that the law of God should be righteously enforced? If so, there is no question but what a great spiritual and healthy growth may be made by the church, and "Zion will arise and put on her beautiful garments," and shine forth above the sins of the world as the sun in his noonday glory. We will have no disposition to plead mercy to the robbing of justice, for it is written:—

Now the work of justice could not be destroyed: if so God would cease to be God.—Alma (large edition) 19: 82.

C. E. BUTTERWORTH.

Willow township, Crawford Co., Iowa, September 22, 1894.

"LORD, IS IT I?"

THE watchword of this day seems to be progression. And he who would be up with the times must be actuated by this sentiment, or he must soon yield to the inevitable result of being left to bring up the rear of the onward march.

Now it matters not what one's occupation or profession may be, the same is true, that he must study to keep abreast of the times. Everything in the great business world is quite in advance of what it was twenty-five or fifty years ago. See the mighty strides which have been made in manufacturing and transportation. A rag picked up in the alley in the morning may be laid upon the table of a reading room in the form of a newspaper hundreds of miles away in twenty-four hours. Think of the vast improvements in lighting and heating which have been made. A hundred other things might be mentioned of this character, but sufficient.

In the political world it is the same. While we sometimes think our statesmen do not know nearly so much as our Puritan forefathers, we must confess, upon reflection, that we are to-day far in advance of any time in our history, in theory and in practice, generally speaking.

Then, too, in the social realm great reforms have been inaugurated, tending toward the amelioration of the race, and of the lower creations controlled by it.

When we come to the question of religion, there, too, we see evidences of progress. We see it in the growing demand for more liberal creeds, in the tendency toward the primitive Christianity as revealed in the Bible, and in the growing sentiment in favor of a union of the creeds upon one common system of faith. If the last means anything, it means that in the churches, among the leading minds, the belief is becoming more and more current that there should be but one church,—

One Lord, one faith, one baptism.

This is the very thing the "latter-day philosophy" has been trying to put before the world for the last sixty years and more, and the world is awakening to the fact.

But do you ask, Can we improve upon the gospel of Christ? Ah, no! But we can improve within the gospel of Christ from first to last. It is improvement in itself. Men have tried to improve upon the gospel until we have the great diversity of creeds of to-day. We read of men who improved within the gospel until God took them and their city unto himself. O glorious thought! And so may we so improve within the gospel until we shall be prepared to dwell with God and the angels.

How shall we then make this progression? First of all, by obeying the principles of the doctrine of Christ. And some there are who have supposed that nothing more was required of them after first principles; but Paul said, "Let us go on unto perfection;" and certainly no true disciple will be content to stop short of perfection. Paul did not mean perfection in the sense of God's being perfect, but perfection from the standpoint of mortality. The man who studies to know his duty the best he can know it by God's help, and then does it the best he knows, is a perfect man. This brings it within the reach of human attainment, and hence appeals to our judgment and inspires us to make the fight.

Probably every honest Saint has asked himself the question, when the Spirit has exhorted to come up higher, "Lord, is it I?" Probably, too, every honest Saint has discovered by the aid of that searcher of hearts—the same Spirit—that there are many weak places in his character that need strengthening. Probably too every honest Saint will avail himself of every means within his reach that will help him on to this perfection.

As one of the many means to help us on to perfection the Lord commands us to-day to study "all good books." Now some have supposed that "good books" means only the inspired records. But certainly the Lord understood our language, and knew that good books were such as were beneficial for us to study. Will anyone presume to say that authentic histories are not good? or that descriptions and travels are not good? or that biographies of our great and good men are not good? or that the pure rhythm and sentiment of the poet, lifting us, and inspiring to nobler thoughts and deeds, are not good? If the song of the birds is inspiring, much more so is the song of the poet? If the landscape stretching away before us is enrapturing and refining, so is the painting of the artist, whether with brush or pen.

Let us not, then, deprive ourselves of these great blessings, because of the false notion that they are of the world. We might as well condemn most of our music because it came from the world. Adam was told to partake of everything about him save of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. So we are privileged to partake of everything about us but the evil. We are commanded to come out of Babylon. Why? So that we be not partakers of her evil deeds. The Lord does not expect us to cease to associate with the people of the world, so long as he requires us to live among them. Neither does he expect us to refuse a good thing simply because perchance it may bear the stamp of the world.

Provision has been made by divine permission and sanction, if not by divine direction, whereby we may perfect ourselves. In the direction of the Holy Spirit to us as individuals, and through those whom he has set apart as our spiritual teachers, we are instructed in regard to our spiritual duties. By our parents and in the Sabbath school we are instructed in the word of God. In the Daughters of Zion movement means is provided for the better life in the family and social circle. In the Zion's Religio-Literary Society is provided the means for studying "all good books," and cultivating our literary attainments and social behavior, as well as the "gifts of music and of song."

What a happy thought it is that the Church of God recognizes in these different aids the hand of Divinity, and has given them a hearty Godspeed! But it is a sad thought that some whom we know and love are either indifferent or averse to them. There are some whom we know who do not see in the Religio that which is according to their idea of things; and while it is recognized by the Church of God of which they are members, they are carried away with a Chautauqua or some other literary society. We would not be harsh in our judgment, nor seem to be so; but the thought has come something like this: What a great help some of this same class of Saints would be to the Religio, if they would but expend in it their energies. When Jesus was upon earth he had not so much as a place to lay his head. Should he come to earth now he would not find a resting place with the popular churches, because of his simplicity and plainness. His church has always been plain and simple, too much so for many Latter Day Saints. How is it with us to-day? Are we turning our faces in other directions because the church does not come up to our ideal standard? Again let us answer the question, "Lord, is it I?"

When the trump shall sound, and the cry shall be heard, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him," we shall all want to have our faces toward the Church of God then. But let us remember that the Lord said:—

Many shall say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, etc.

It is a very serious matter to all claiming to be Saints. When we come to the judgment, suppose we were asked by the Father, "Son, did you make my cause your first effort?" It would be a terrible thing for us to have to say, "No, Father; I thought I could get more good out of this other society, and I made that first." How our heart would ache when the Father would say: "Very well, you shall have what you labored for; you may retire to second place. I have reserved my highest glory for those who have made my cause their first and best effort." We cannot comprehend the anguish that would be caused by that look of compassion and tenderness, yet of justice, as in response to our sentence we should turn away.

This reference is made more especially in behalf of the Religio, for the reason that there are a great many of the Saints in various localities where local societies exist, who could not only benefit themselves, but would aid greatly in the benefiting others by lending their assistance in this grand, good work. It sounds all very well to talk about what our church is doing, and is going to do; but the quesagain confronts us, "Lord, is it I?" Every one would like to have that question in this last connection answered in the affirmative. And the only possible way to have it so answered is to stand true to our duty and see to it that the cause of Christ does not suffer from our negligence or selfishness. The blessing comes oftener when we lose sight of ourselves and center our thought upon doing good to others, than when working for our own benefit.

J. A. GUNSOLLEY.

210 Essex street, SALEM, Mass.

Conference Minutes.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Conference met with the Wayne branch at Centerville, October 13, and 14, 1894, at ten a. m.; G. T. Griffiths was chosen to preside, G. H. Hilliard assistant; B. Beall was chosen clerk, W. R. Odell assistant. Branch reports: Clarksburg 26, loss 1; Fairview 34, gain 1; Buffalo City 36, no change; Union Grove 17, no change; Wayne 27, gain 2; Cabin Run 26, no change; Mt. Zion 19, no change; New Hope not reported. Elders reporting: J. L. Williams, J. Carpenter, G. H. Godbey, H. E. Moler; Priests B. Beall and W. R. Odell reported. B. Beall, Bishop's agent, reported: Due agent last report $27.70; in agent's hands $12.92. Report approved. G. H. Godbey was chosen president of the district, B. Beall was sustained Bishop's agent, and J. B. Russell was sustained clerk. Conference adjourned to meet with the Mt. Zion branch on the second Saturday in March.

LITTLE SIOUX.

Quarterly conference of the Little Sioux district convened at Logan, Iowa, December 1, at 10:30 a. m.; D. Chambers, Joseph Seddon, and J. W. Wight were chosen to preside; A. M. Fyrando and J. F. Mintun secretaries. Branches reporting: Missouri Valley, gain 8; Logan, loss 1; Woodbine, gain 12; Little Sioux, gain 6; Spring Creek, gain 8; Union Center, gain 4; Magnolia, loss 1. Ministerial reports: Elders J. R. Lambert, D. Chambers, C. Derry, J. W. Wight, J. F. Mintun, F. Hansen, W. Chambers, A. M. Fyrando, O. Case, H. Case, W. R. Davison, J. C. Johnson, D. A. Hutchings, M. Jensen, A. A. Baker, R. Farmer, J. Seddon, J. Donaldson, W. Donaldson, T. H. Parker, D. W. Palmer; Priests S. C. Diggle, J. Emmerson, W. T. Fallon, W. D. Bullard; Teachers E. C. Outhouse, J. S. McDonald, D. Goodman, S. B. Kibler, C. Kennedy. Bishop's agent reported: On hand September 1, 1894, $51.41; received $176.85; amount expended $236.41; due agent December 1 1894, $5.15. [Figures erroneous.—Ed.] Auditing committee reported account correct. Recommendation of Woodbine branch that S. B. Kibler be ordained an elder was presented. Motion made to so ordain, but upon request of Bro. Kibler for more time to consider the matter motion was lost. Warren W. Baker, on recommendation of Logan branch, was ordained a priest. Report of court of elders in case of John J. Conyers was read. The recommendations of the court were by motion adopted. Spiritual condition of branch was generally good and improved. Resolved that it is the sense of this body that ordinations should be recommended only when there is evidence that God has moved in such direction. On motion C. Derry was requested to give us as much labor as he could, and it would be thankfully received. Preaching by A. M. Fyrando, C. Derry, J. W. Wight, and J. F. Mintun. Adjourned to meet at Magnolia, Iowa, first Saturday and Sunday in March.

Sunday School Associations.

SPRING RIVER.

Convention met at Weir City, November 12, 1894; Sr. Mina Hart superintendent, Mirtie Jones secretary. Eight delegates were present. Superintendent reported her labors. The rule was suspended and officers were elected for one year and four months, as follows: G. W. Hobart superintendent, Sr. A. C. Hart associate, Mirtie Jones secretary, Fannie Davis treasurer. Following schools reported enrollment: Webb City 92, Angola 48, Seligman 29, Blendville 49. Voted to accept the Blendville school report and superintendent asked to instruct it in its duty. Blendville and Weir City schools were invited to join the association. The treasurer's report was referred back for correction. Srs. Barbridge, Mina Hart, Lillie Taylor, Martha Macon, and A. P. Free were appointed a committee on arrangements. Short talks on the benefit of the literary work and the help it would be to the work in general were given by A. C. Hart, O. P. Sutherland, O. Olsen, Bro. Stewart, and G. W. Hobart. On motion, a committee was appointed by the superintendent to collect Ensigns, tracts, sermons, etc., to be placed in the hands of the superintendent, to be distributed as he saw best; committee, Barbara Davis, E. E. Gilbert, Sr. English, Sr. Alma Cook, Sr. Brown, and J. W. Kern. Weir City Sunday school was received into the association. A very interesting and instructive programme was rendered in the evening. Adjourned to meet at Webb City, Missouri, Monday after the quarterly conference, at ten a. m.

It costs the people of the United States twenty-five million dollars a year to be born, three hundred million dollars a year to be married, seventy-five million dollars to be buried, and nine hundred million dollars to get drunk.

If a colored waiter carrying a roast turkey should drop it, what effect would it have on the nations of the earth? Answer: It would be the downfall of Turkey, the overthrow of Greece, the breaking up of China, and the humiliation of Africa.

He who thinks too much of himself will be in danger of being forgotten by the rest of the world.

Miscellaneous Department.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints of Minnesota; Dear Saints:— No doubt all will agree with me that there is no one better posted in church finances and temporal affairs than Bishop E. L. Kelley, of Lamoni, Iowa.

I this day have received from him an urgent request that all members, both old and young, respond to the pressing needs of the church. We are not forgetful of the very hard times we are just now passing through, but a small amount from each one placed opposite his name in the book is what is required of each member. Remember, many mickles make a muckle. By responding cheerfully as the Lord has blessed you to the demands now pressing on the work, you will be making the sacrifice necessary to your own good. No one of us wants to be found robbing God in tithes and offerings, (read Malachi 3: 8, 9, 10,) but we all want to be found helping and working for the good of others, as "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

I am in hopes to be able sometime in the future to visit each branch and talk this matter up. In the meantime I would request branch presidents to read this notice at branch meeting, explaining to the members the necessity of keeping the whole law, receive whatever may be given, place name opposite the amount, forward same to me, and I will receipt for same.

The scattered Saints can forward directly to me; receipt will be forthcoming. Remember the address.

W. W. McLEOD.

CORMORANT, Becker, Co., Minnesota, Nov 30.

NOTICES.

Saints of Southern California district, please take notice that at the late district conference, held at Los Angeles, California, October 26 to 28, 1894, the writer was chosen to act as church historian for said district, to fill the place of our beloved brother, D. S. Mills, deceased. The object of said office is to record in a suitable book, such remarkable or marvelous manifestations of God's power to his church and his people in these last days as shall be of sufficient interest and value to elicit the attention of all honorable and pious persons, who believe in the divine mission of our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. Therefore all persons who have received or witnessed any of the above-named blessings, also special answers to prayer, are hereby requested to forward to me (at the address named below) as plainly written and concise accounts of the same as possible, giving exact dates when you can, otherwise the nearest to the exact date. If your communication is under the head of healing, or prophecy, name some person or persons who were present at the time said manifestation occurred as witnesses. If they come under the head of dreams, the historian will claim the right to decide whether they are of sufficient importance to be placed on record as matters of history or not. Hoping that all who feel an interest in this work and who have anything of this character which they would like to have placed on record will forward them without delay, so that the record may become one of especial interest and value to the church, I subscribe myself,

Your humble servant in this cause,

R. R. DANA.

609 South Spring street, Los Angeles, California.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF BISHOP'S AGENT.

To the Saints of the Southern Wisconsin District:—Upon recommendation of late district conference of Wisconsin, the Western Wisconsin district has been divided, and Bro. C. C. Hoague recommended for appointment to act as Bishop's agent in the Southern Wisconsin district.

Bro. Hoague has been duly authorized to act in behalf of the Bishopric, and will receive tithes and offerings from the Saints living in that district, and they may communicate with him by addressing him at Fulton, Rock county, Wisconsin.

If each member in the district will take pains to see that his or her name is entered on the Bishop's agent's record for whatever amount of contribution they can properly make under the law, it will be a great advantage to the work in the district, and will furnish a recommendation for the necessity of work there to those outside so as to secure aid from other sources to carry on the work.

Bro. W. A. McDowell, the former agent of the Western Wisconsin district, is hereby tendered the thanks of the Bishopric for his faithful work as agent in the past.

Very respectfully,

E. L. KELLEY.

LAMONI, Iowa, December 4, 1894.

BORN.

ANDERSON.—Doris Zuleika, daughter of Benjamin and Audie Anderson, granddaughter of Pres. Joseph and Sr. Bertha M. Smith, at Lamoni, Iowa, born October 6, 1894, and named as above; blessed at Saints' chapel, November 25, 1894, by Pres. Joseph Smith and Asa S. Cochran.

FAUVER.—November 27, 1894, to Bro. William Fauver and wife, a son, and named William Leland. Blessed same date by Elders A. B. Kirkendall and A. B. Ervin.

MILLER.—At Fairbank, Iowa, October 2, 1893, to Bro. and Sr. H. D. Miller, a daughter, and named Sylva May. Blessed November 22, 1894, by J. S. Roth and John Heide.

RICHARDSON.—To George and Etta Richardson, of Tabor, Iowa, May 2, 1894, a son, and named Wayne Ross. Blessed November 29, 1894, by Elders H. Kemp and W. Leeka.

MARRIED.

DAY—BROWN.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Bro. and Sr. Emerson Brown, Keosauqua, Iowa, November 27, 1894, Mr. William B. Day to Sr. Bertha Brown, by Elder James McKiernan. After the magic words that made them "one" had been said, the company, about fifty in number, sat down to a bountiful banquet, presided over by Mr. H. H. Disbrow, master of ceremonies, who by his thoughtfulness showed himself an adept for such occasions. The company showed themselves appreciative of good cookery, presented a long list of useful and ornamental articles to the happy couple, and then departed with kind wishes for prosperity and happiness to them in their new relationship, which they now begin with brightest prospects of future success. May all their days be happy days.

HAWLEY—FORD.—Alma Hawley and Mary H. Ford were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents at Ravenwood, Nodaway county, Missouri, November 21, 1894, John Hawley officiating. After the ceremony about sixty guests sat down to dinner prepared by the bride's mother. Many useful and valuable presents were given, and all wished the young couple happiness and prosperity.

TOYNE—WHITING.—At Glidden, Iowa, November 29, 1894, Mr. Amos Toyne and Sr. Louisa Whiting, of Glidden, Iowa, Elder C. J. Hunt officiating.

DIED.

DUNCAN.—At Blue Rapids, Kansas, November 25, 1894, Rhoda E., youngest daughter of Sr. Jennie and Mr. James Duncan, aged 11 months and 20 days. Funeral sermon by Rev. Henry Clark, of Blue Rapids.

SHERRILL.—Robert C. Sherrill was born March 28, 1864, near Charleston, Mississippi; was taken with la grippe in the spring of 1891, whereupon he left his home and friends and came to Texas for his health, but continued to go down hill until August 3, 1894, when death came to his relief. He was baptized and confirmed by Elder E. W. Nunley in 1894. He was consistent in his life, and just before his death stated that he wanted to go.

FAY.—At Friberg, Minnesota, June 6, 1894, Sr. Anna H. Fay, aged 49 years, 6 months, and 9 days. Sr. Fay united with the Reorganized Church July 18, 1891, being baptized by Elder I. N. Roberts. She leaves a husband and four children to mourn. Funeral service by Elder William Barnhart.

Then friends shall meet with friends most dear,
Parents and children too,
No more to shed the parting tear,
Or bid the sad adieu.

HOWARD.—At Friberg, Minnesota, May 18, 1894, Bro. George W. Howard, aged 67 years. Bro. Howard was born in Vermont; baptized into the Reorganized Church at Silver Lake, Minnesota, July 18, 1889, by Elder B. B. Mosier. He had no relatives in this State, but leaves many friends to mourn. Funeral at the residence of Bro. J. H. Taplin, conducted by Elder H. B. Fay.

WEST.—Owen West was born April 15, 1852, at Sinking Spring, Ohio; baptized February 8, 1887, by Elder L. R. Devore; died November 6, 1894. He was a true Saint and will be missed by the Highland branch, of which he was president. Funeral sermon November 8, 1894, by Elder A. B. Kirkendall; text, Numbers 23: 10.

HAMILTON.—At the Grove Hill, Iowa, branch, November 20, 1894, Sr. Sarah A. Hamilton, aged 69 years, 7 months, and 6 days. She used to belong to the Baptist Church, but was not satisfied. On May 28, 1893, she was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by J. S. Roth, and notwithstanding the strong opposition she received from all her folks, she died strong in the faith. A short time before her death she saw the heavens opened and the joy and bliss that awaited her. She longed to go. With her last words she admonished her family to repent and obey the gospel. The sermon was preached to a large audience from Hebrews 9: 27, by J. S. Roth. That was her request when she took sick, seven weeks before she died. She suffered much, but was very patient.

HASKELL.—At his home in Little Deer Isle, Maine, November 28, 1894, Peter H. Haskell, aged 68 years, 10 months, and 2 days. He leaves a noble wife and several children to mourn. He served in the navy at his country's call, during the Rebellion, and had just been allowed a good pension, thus leaving his family in a good condition. He was well liked by all who knew him. Funeral services by Elder J. C. Foss; text, John 5: 25-29.

CARPENTER.—On the morning of November 26, 1894, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Selima Pack, Kamas, Utah, the spirit of Bro. John Sencere Carpenter took its flight peacefully and quietly as a little child might sink to sleep. "Father" Carpenter was born in Bavaria, Germany, March 10, 1821; came to America in 1823; became a Latter Day Saint in 1845; came to Utah in 1852; joined the Reorganized Church on his original baptism in 1886. He leaves a widow, five sons, and two daughters to mourn.

BENNER.—At his home in Thurman, Iowa, November 14, 1894, Bro. George F. Benner. Bro. George was born March 18, 1849, in Illinois. Came to Fremont county, Iowa, with his parents in 1850. Was married to Miss Elizabeth Study, in 1871. He united with the church August 25, 1888, and lived a devoted Christian life, highly respected by all. He was a favorite of young and old, kindhearted, and proverbially good-natured. He found a warm spot in the hearts of us all. Was a kind, loving, and affectionate husband and father. He leaves a true and loving wife, two affectionate daughters, an aged mother, four sisters, three brothers, and a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Funeral services conducted by the lodge of Oddfellows. Sermon by Elder Henry Kemp in the Saints' church, December 3, 1894, to a large, attentive audience of mourners and friends.

EVANELIA VIEWS.

The Bishop's office now has two very fine views of the new boat that has gone into missionary service in the Society Islands; one 8 x 10 inches in size, the other 10 x 12. The pictures may be had at fifty cents each, or the two for one dollar, postage prepaid; the net receipts to be applied on the Gospel Boat account.

Address all orders to E. L. Kelley, lock box 316, Lamoni, Iowa.

When a right principle so possesses men's souls that defeat only spurs them on and death itself cannot destroy their influence, which, therefore, finally issues in the complete triumph of that principle, then those baffled heroes are in Paul's view more than conquerors.—Scudder.

SPECIAL GIFT LIST

FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

With the approach of the Holiday Season comes the spirit of Christmas—the spirit of giving. What shall one give to friends, relatives, or neighbors? Articles of merit, of true worth, certainly; whether great or small. Those worthy of affection and friendship; Gifts that are permanent in value; Remembrances that perish not with the mere using; Gifts that strengthen the sentiments that bind receiver and giver.

For Grandparents, for Parents, for Sons, Daughters, Children, and Friends,—for all, old and young, our book list has articles of value, such as will command appreciation and impart good.

THE BIBLE,

INSPIRED TRANSLATION,

is a gift worthy of any. For an elder in the field, for father, mother, sister, or brother, for anyone who reads to improve the mind and enrich the heart, this volume is a life-treasure.

Bound in four styles. Prices: Sheep, $1.25; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.75; Morocco, gilt edges, $2.25; Morocco, Flexible binding, gilt edges, (a very popular style, and much used by ministers and Sunday school teachers and scholars,) $3.75.

Name on any book in gilt letters 15 cts. extra.

THE BOOK OF MORMON,

a volume of equal worth to all who read and study the precepts of life, the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Large type edition, especially for aged readers, two sizes: Cloth, leather backs and corners, $1.50; Seal Grain Russia, $1.75; Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges, $2.00.

Regular size: Morocco Grain Russia, 1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25. Bound in any style—flexible or otherwise, and with blank leaves inclosed, as ordered.

THE

DOCTRINE and COVENANTS

contains the revelations of God to the church in this dispensation. Morocco Grain Russia, $1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25.

THE BIBLE,

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION,

Eyre and Spottiswoode's edition, thin paper, flexible binding, $4.75. (For Oxford and other editions, also New Testaments, see catalogue.)

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

Used throughout the church in song service and in the home. A popular gift for singers. It contains every hymn in the Saints' Harp, also 555 pages of music, about 720 tunes. A drill book; an instructor in vocal music. As the book is arranged, any hymn may be turned to any tune. Leather backs, cloth sides, $2.00; Red Morocco backs and corners, red cloth sides, with gilt edges entire, very handsome in appearance, $2.75. Music only, in plain binding, for instrumental performers, $1.25.

AFTERGLOW,

a volume of choice, selected poems. Handsomely bound, beautifully ornamented, elegantly illustrated.

Published in aid of the Gospel Boat fund.

A handsome and lasting present; a book that will be treasured by all lovers of poetry, 265 pages; Cloth, $1.50; White Vegetable Parchment, $1.75; Leather, $2.00; Morocco, colors red and black, gilt edges, $2.50.

HESPERIS,

POEMS BY DAVID H. SMITH.

The author's best compositions, many of them favorites with Latter Day Saints. A volume that will please all readers of exalted sentiment.

Beautifully bound and ornamented; Cloth, gilt edges, $1.50.

THE SAINTS' HARP,

WORDS ONLY.

1120 hymns, original and selected; those used throughout the church.

Morocco Grain Russia, $1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25.

WELSH HYMN BOOK.

303 hymns; Leather, 60 cents.

DANISH HYMN BOOK.

Cloth, leather backs, 75 cents.

GERMAN HYMN BOOK.

(ZION'S HARPE.)

100 hymns; original, selected, and translated. Leather, 40 cents; Morocco Grain Russia, gilt edges, 60 cents.

The Herald Office list of publications includes many other books of value, including, RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE, revised, price 40 cents; ABSTRACT OF EVIDENCE, TEMPLE LOT SUIT, with legal arguments of Counsel, bound in law sheep, $3.00; THE COMPENDIUM, prices 75 cents and $1.00; THE INSTRUCTOR, 75 cents, $1.00, and $1.50; JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS (Lucy Smith's History), 70 cents; JOSEPH THE SEER, His prophetic mission, and the Book of Mormon, 35 and 50 cents; BRADEN-KELLEY DEBATE, $1.50; PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD, $1.25; WHAT IS MAN? 35 and 50 cents; THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH OR WEEKLY REST DAY, 25 and 40 cents; RUINS REVISITED, $1.00; FORSCUTT-SHINN DISCUSSION, 25 cents; OBJECTIONS TO THE BOOK OF MORMON AND DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS EXAMINED AND REFUTED, 25 and 40 cents; VOICE OF WARNING, 10 cents; THE SILVER THIMBLES, THE HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS, two books for little children, 20 cents each. THE GOSPEL QUARTERLIES, Senior and Intermediate and Primary Grade Sunday School lessons; also a full list of Sunday school literature, tracts, branch and district records, blank forms etc.

For complete descriptive list with prices, see catalogue, mailed free to any address.

Address orders and remittances to

DAVID DANCER,

Business Manager,

LAMONI, Iowa.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

FOR SALE.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, nearly new, well furnished, and contains TWENTY ROOMS. Is situated in the business portion of the town of Lamoni, and has a large and well-established trade. Address, L. J. BARR, Lamoni, Iowa.
Lock Box 287.

BLAIR MERCANTILE CO.

Our Specialties:—

Fancy Dry Goods,
Fine Shoes.

Henry Stoddard, President. J. D. Briggs, Ass't Cashier. Frank Stoddard, Cashier.

COMMERCIAL BANK, LAMONI, - IOWA.

Proper Attention given to all Branches of Legitimate banking.
Interest paid on time deposits. Correspondence Solicited.

OFFICERS. DIRECTORS.
Israel L. Rogers, President. I. L. Rogers, Robt. Winning, D. F. Nicholson, Cashier. D. F. Nicholson, S.V. Bailey, F. B. Blair, Asst. Cashier. George W. Blair.

LAMONI STATE BANK.

(Incorporated.)
Paid up Capital, $25,000.
Liability of Stockholders, $50,000.
INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

THOS. TEALE & SON

Carry the largest and most complete line of

Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries, & Hardware

in town. We buy in large quantities, and for cash, and can meet all competition.

THOS. TEALE & SON.

HOMES AT LAMONI.

Land for sale, situated one quarter to one half mile southwest of Lamoni; in three, four, or five acre lots.

These plats will make nice homes; suitable for gardening, raising of small fruits, etc.

Prices reasonable; terms on application.

Address, J. W. GILLEN,
LAMONI, Iowa.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.
Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

A BARGAIN.

A good House containing six rooms with pantry, hall, and bath room; good well of water, outbuildings, etc. Lot 140 x 150. Ten minutes walk from church or business center of town. For sale cheap if taken soon. Address "H."
Care of Herald Office, Lamoni, Iowa.

B. D. FLEET,

GENERAL MERCHANDISE,
LAMONI, - - IOWA.

A. B. MAIR, WHOLESALE FRUITS and PRODUCE.

General Commission.
Berries Apples, Potatoes, etc. Car lots a Specialty.
Consignments Solicited. Prompt Returns.
518 Pearl St. Council Bluffs, Iowa.

$3.50. EAR TRUMPETS. $3.50.

Why lose all the pleasure of a good conversation by hearing only half of it? Or why injure the throats and voices of those you love by compelling them to talk to you in an unnatural or strained voice, when you can get a conversation tube for $3.50 by mail, postpaid.

I have two sizes, one a yard long which can be coiled up—the one generally preferred. The other a foot long, and can be folded and put in the pocket. References, Elder J. F. Burton, San Benito, California, or Sr. M. Walker, Lamoni, Iowa. Address, A. C. GEER,
LAMONI, Decatur County, Iowa.

HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSION. VIA C. B. & Q.

Date of sale December 4 and 19, 1894. Rate, one standard first-class fare, plus $2 for the round trip; minimum selling rate $7.

Premium Guitars, Mandolins, Banjos & Violins

ONLY $5 FOR EITHER.

These instruments have received highest award for Tone, Finish and Material, and retail for $12.00, but in order to thoroughly introduce them in every locality, we will sell a limited number at above price. Simplified instructor free with every instrument when cash accompanies order. Also sent C. O. D., with privilege of examining. THE MUSICAL GUIDE PUB. CO., Cincinnati, O. Largest Manufacturer in the U. S. Illustrated Catalogue for 2c. stamp.

HOXIE'S AUTOMATIC Ice Cream Freezer

CAPACITY UNLIMITED.

For Hotels, Restaurants, and Family Use.
Will freeze Ice Cream, Lemonade, Sherbets, and all kinds of Ices instantly. Several Machines combined in one, with saving of 80 per cent of ice. Agents wanted.
Exclusive territory can be secured by addressing

HOXIE BROS.,
17 CHARDON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

Lots $200 each,

In my addition to Lamoni. Shade trees, lawn, and sidewalks; ten minutes' walk from L. D. S. church. Terms one fourth cash, and balance yearly.
Write for maps to D. F. NICHOLSON,
Lamoni State Bank.

AGENTS WANTED.

Send 10 cents for box of Hoxie's Instant Lustre. Town or County given free. Secured by deed.

You can make a permanent business. Profits large. Address,
A. N. HOXIE, BOSTON, Mass.

Zion's Ensign. 52 SERMONS A YEAR.

Subscription price, 1 year.....$1 00
" " 6 months.... 50
" " 3 months.... 25
For introduction, 4 months.... 25

Address all communications and make all orders payable to

ZION'S ENSIGN, INDEPENDENCE, MO.

TRACTS.

ORDER BY NUMBERS.

2. Truth Made Manifest; per doz. 15c., 100 ..$1 00
 3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per doz. 5c., 100 30
 4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3c., 100 15
 6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per doz. 15c., 100.....1 00
 7. Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 5c., 100. 30
 8. Fullness of the Atonement; per doz. 15c., 100 1 00
 9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per doz. 20c., 100.....1 30
 10. The Narrow Way; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 11. The Plan of Salvation; per doz. 20c., 100...1 20
 12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per doz. 15c., 100.1 00
 14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per doz. 15c., 100...1 00
 16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 17. The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; per doz. 15c., 100 1 00
 20. The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c., 1001 00
 21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 22. Faith and Repentances; per doz. 10c., 100 .. 50
 23. Baptism; per doz. 10c., 100 65
 24. The Kingdom of God; per doz. 5c., 100..... 30
 25. Laying on of Hands; per doz. 5c., 100 30
 27. The Sabbath Question; per doz. 15c., 100..1 00
 29. Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; per doz. 5c., 100..... 30
 31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 32. Which is the Church; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
 36. The Spalding Story Reexamined; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
 41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 42. Rejection of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100 50
 43. One Wife or Many; per doz. 15c., 1001 00
 44. Crooked Paths; per doz. 15c., 1001 00
 45. The Reorganized Church in Succession from 1830 to the Present. A thirty-one page pamphlet containing statements of faith and practices rules and usages of the Church and of heresies, and departures from it. Important papers and statements from leading church authorities past and present are reprinted. Each 5c., per doz. 30c., 100...2 00
 46. The Pure Gospel of Christ. A list of questions and answers, with blank form preaching notice on the back, same size as Epitome; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
 47. The Future State; per doz. 15c., 1001 00
 - Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection of Jesus Christ; each 5c., per doz..... 50
 - Prophecy on the Rebellion; per hundred 10
- Special prices furnished on application for tracts in lots of one thousand.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY

Flora L. Scott

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 19, 1894.

No. 51.

CONTENTS:
EDITORIAL:
Good Advice.....	805
Does God Favor his Ministry?.....	806
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:
Home.....	807
The Ideal Sunday.....	808
LETTER DEPARTMENT:809
ORIGINAL POETRY:
O, Come Away.....	813
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Notes on Braden-Scott Debate.—
No. 1.....	813
Doctors and Trained Nurses in the
Church.....	817
Proper Amusements and Recreations.....	818
CONFERENCE MINUTES:
Southern Missouri.....	819
Far West.....	819
Independence.....	819
Fremont.....	819
SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:
Sunday School Superintendents, Attention!.....	819
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:
Haun's Mills Monument Fund.....	820
Bishop's Agent's Notice.....	820

DEBASING ASIATIC FAITHS.

THE traveler and authoress, Mrs. Isabella Bird Bishop, recently delivered an address on the religions of Asia, in which she said:—

"As a traveler, and not as a mission worker, do I speak of what I have seen of the desperate needs of the unchristianized world. I have visited the Polynesian Islands, Japan, Southern China, the Malay Peninsula, Ceylon, North India, Cashmere, Western Thibet, Central Asia, Persia, Arabia, and Asia Minor. I lived much with the people in their own houses and among their tents, always with a trustworthy interpreter, sharing their lives as much as possible, and to some extent winning their confidence by means of a medicine chest which I carried. Wherever I went I saw sin, and sorrow, and shame."

"I think that we are getting into a sort of milk-and-water view of Heathenism, not of African Heathenism alone, but of Buddhism, Hinduism, and Mohammedanism, also, which prevails in Asia. Missionaries come home, and they refrain from shocking audiences by recitals of the awful sins of the heathen and Moslem world. When traveling in Asia it struck me very much how little we heard, how little we know, as to how sin is enthroned, and deified, and worshiped. There is sin and shame everywhere. Mohammedanism is corrupt to the core. The morals of Mohammedan countries are corrupt and the imaginations wicked. How corrupt Buddhism is! How corrupt Buddhists are!

"Just one or two remarks as to what these false faiths do. They degrade women with an infinite degradation. I have lived in zenanas and harems, and have seen the daily life of the secluded women, and I can speak from bitter experience of what their lives are—the intellect dwarfed, so that the woman of twenty or thirty years of age is more like a child of eight intellectually, while all the worst passions of human nature are stimulated and developed in a fearful degree—jealousy, envy, murderous hate, running to such an extent that in some countries I have hardly ever been in a woman's house or near a tent without being asked for drugs with which to disfigure the favorite wife, to take away her life, or take away the life of the favorite wife's infant son. This request has been made of me nearly two hundred times.

"The whole continent of Asia is corrupt. It is the scene of barbarities, tortures, brutal punishments, oppression."—Literary Digest.

CHRISTIANITY DID NOT COME FROM BUDDHISM.

WE find an article in the Danskeren, Copenhagen, which presents the strongest contrasts between Buddhism and Christianity, and, while not contradicting the premises of Dr. Carus, denies in toto the general trend of his paper. We give a translation of the most important passages:—

"Let it be noted, first of all, that it is not among serious scholars that the notion of a derivation of Christianity from Buddhism has arisen. They see parallels, but they do not think of deriving one from the other. All those notions which go to throw discredit upon Christianity come from the skeptics who desire to do away with Christianity.

"How can there have been any derivation of Christianity from Buddhism? Look at the contrasts! How can they be overcome? If Christianity be only a new form of Buddhism, what has become of the characteristics of the Oriental and so-called original source? Whence arose those remarkable differences between the two systems? Indeed there is no family likeness between the two.

"1. Christianity is a religion, while Buddhism claims to be a system of morality and philosophy only, the difference between the two being that the first reveals the Creator, makes man known to himself, and reveals the mode of union with God, while the latter does not.

"2. Buddha cannot rightly be called 'the Light of Asia,' for there are many other lights beside him. Christ has been proved to be 'the Light of the World,' for he lights for every man. Buddha can only help one who helps himself. He bids his followers to go and get rid of suffering; Christ rids those who follow him.

"3. Buddha had no idea of sin as an offense against God, and no true idea of holiness. Sin to him was only a demerit, which could be got rid of by good actions and by ascetic means.

"4. Buddhism says: Act righteously through your own efforts and you shall be saved. Christianity teaches: Be righteous through a power implanted in you from above.

"5. Buddhism is not exclusive. It tolerates other religions as means of salvation. Christianity holds that there is only one name under heaven given among men whereby a man can be saved.

"6. Buddha never claimed to be sent. He came in his own name and preached only his own experience. Christ claimed that the great I AM sent him and he proclaimed his message.

"7. Christ broke no moral law in order to set up as a teacher, Buddha deserted wife and family and denied them.

"8. Christ worked miracles which have been authenticated. Only in the Lalitta Vishara, the mystical records of the Northern School of Buddhism, do we hear of miracles in connection with Buddha. Christ's miracles were performed for the relief of suffering mankind. Buddha's are fanciful and 'metaphysical.' They nearly all relate to his own personality and glory.

"9. Christ died the death of a martyr. Buddha died peacefully among his friends and from an attack of indigestion at the age of eighty.

"10. Eyewitnesses testify to the resurrection of Christ's body. Buddha's body was burned, and its ashes distributed everywhere as relics.

"11. According to Buddha's own declaration he lives now only in the doctrine which he left behind him for the guidance of his followers. Christ promised: 'Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world.'"—Literary Digest.

LONGEVITY OF FEMALES.

The Medical Record says woman has the advantage of man as regards longevity; she suffers less from accidents, injuries, and many forms of disease; she is, in fact, more tenacious than man of the limited enjoyments allowed her. Dr. Brandreth Symonds has collected and studied a large number of statistics to illustrate this interesting fact (American Journal of the Medical Sciences.)

The comparative mortality of the sexes at different ages shows that in the first year of life the mortality of the female is much less than that of the male, being at birth 92.64 per 1,000 as against 112.80, and at the end of the year 31.87 as against 35.08. This difference continues up to the fourth year. From five to twelve the female mortality is greater than that of the male, being at the latter period 3.56 for males and 4.28 for females. At the age of 46 the male mortality equals that of the female, the latter having been up to this time slightly in excess. During the years 46 to 56, the period of the climacteric, the male mortality gains rapidly on the female, being 6.32 per annum for the one and only 3.47 for the other.

Hence the climacteric is really a much more serious time for man than for woman. After 56 the female mortality gains on that of the male, but is always slightly below it. Woman has not only a less mortality, but a greater longevity than man. There is, also, a plurality of female births.

Seneca, writing to a friend of his frugal fare which he declares does not cost a sixpence a day, says: "Do you ask if that can supply due nourishment? Yes; and pleasure too. Not indeed, that fleeting and superficial pleasure which needs to be perpetually recruited, but a solid and substantial one. Bread and polenta certainly is not luxurious feeding, but it is no little advantage to be able to receive pleasure from a simple diet of which no change of fortune can deprive one."

COOLING A ROOM.

Those who have tried the experiment affirm that a large sponge hung in the room at night or in the daytime, if it can be behind a convenient screen, and kept constantly wet, will greatly assist in keeping the room cool, or a cloth hung in the window over the blind will cool the room as if a shower had fallen. All know how fresh water, sprinkled on the pavement in front of all the windows and doors, will freshen the hot, dry air. This is something to remember when the hot nights are upon us.—Sel.

Breakfast! Come to breakfast!

Little ones and all,—
How their merry footsteps
Patter at the call!
Break the bread; pour freely
Milk that cream-like flows;
A blessing on their appetites
And on their lips of rose.

Dinner may be pleasant,
So may the social tea,
But yet, methinks the breakfast
Is best of all the three.
With its greeting smile of welcome,
Its holy voice of prayer,
It forgeth heavenly armor
To foil the hosts of care.

—Mrs. Sigourney.

ZION'S RELIGIO-LITERARY SOCIETY PROGRAM.

December 16-22.

Senior religious department; J. F. McDowell, superintendent, Magnolia, Iowa.

Instrumental music. "The wind over the chimney," Longfellow. Song, page 100, Winnowed Songs. Prayer. Song, page 72, Winnowed Songs. Essay, "Old and new year," ten minutes. Music, duet. Reading, pages 78-80, Emerson, First Series. Reading, paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5, section 85, Doctrine and Covenants. Quartet. "Life is too short," Poems of Passion. Essay, "What is life?" five minutes. Instrumental music. Reading, pages 193-196, Drummond's Natural Law. Song. Dismissal.

December 16-22.

Junior religious department; David J. Krahl, superintendent, No. 216-218 North Fourth street, St. Joseph, Missouri.

(Please use Senior program this week.)

December 23-29.

Senior historical department; F. M. Sheehy, superintendent, 2948 Washington street, Boston, Massachusetts.

Opening piece. Prayer. Paper on Vaca De Castro. Music. Sketch of Gonzalo Pizarro. Vocal music. Paper on Pedro De La Gasca. Written answers by every member: Name five points or features that have impressed you most in the study of the subject we have had under consideration. Report of critic.

December 23-29.

Junior historical department; Etta M. Izatt, superintendent, 4342 Vista avenue, St. Louis, Missouri.

Hymn, number 329. Reading, Psalm 107, a member. Invocation. Hymn, number 312. Quotation, secretary, "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts to wisdom." Response, society, "And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us: yea, the work of our hands establish thou it." Recitation, see hymn number 305. Reading, member, chapter 2, Judges. Three-minute talks on "the history of Israel." Roll call, response, one of the historical books of the Bible. Song, member. Business. Doxology. Dismissal.

December 30-January 5.

Senior temperance department, G. H. Gates, superintendent, No. 9 Pierce street, Providence, Rhode Island.

Instrumental selection. Hymn. Invocation. Hymn. Scripture reading by president, Proverbs 5. Recitation. Five-minute papers: "The origin of the theater." "The theater of Shakespeare's time." "Moral aspect of the modern theater." Instrumental music. Question box. Vocal duet. Reading. General discussion, "Should those who would be temperate in all things abstain from attending theaters?" Vocal solo. Critic's report. Business. Dismissal.

December 30-January 5.

Junior temperance department, R. B. Trowbridge, superintendent, Parsons, Kansas.

Organ voluntary. Invocation. Hymn by Society. Declamation. Roll Call. Paper: "The new year and improvements to be made in the temperance line." Vocal music. Discussion: Is prohibition right? Not only prohibition in whisky matters but also all intemperate practices? Responsive reading, Proverbs 8. Short talk by president. Doxology. Dismissal.

January 6-12.

Senior literary department, Dora Young, superintendent, Dow City, Iowa.

Song. Prayer. Instrumental music. Questions on the week's reading. Roll call, response from Whittier. Music, vocal solo. Book review, "Tale of Two Cities," by Charles Dickens. Recitation. Song by society. Paper, "Woman in Christian Work." Report of critic. Business. Dismissal.

January 6-12.

Junior literary department, Jessie Cave, superintendent, Lamoni, Iowa.

Song. Prayer. Biography of Daniel Webster. Recitation. Select reading from Webster. Oration. Solo. Short papers on the following: 1. Strong minds. 2. Great hearts. 3. True faith. 4. Ready hands. Roll call, respond with prose quotations. Song. Dismissal.

C. B. & Q. HOLIDAY RATES.

Christmas and New Year's Holiday Excursion Rates.—Tickets sold December 22 to 31 inclusive, and January 1, 1895, good to return on January 2, at one and one third fare, to any point within a radius of two hundred miles from selling station, continuous passage in each direction.

The Burlington Route is now running weekly, "personally conducted" California excursions. Pullman palace tourist cars of the latest model, with porter in charge, leave Chicago every Wednesday. For particulars, rates, etc., call on or address any Burlington Route agent. 12d3t

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.
"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."

Book of Mormon, page 116.

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 19, 1894.

No. 51.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
JOSEPH LUFF CORRESPONDING EDITOR.

LAMONI, IOWA, DEC. 19, 1894.

GOOD ADVICE.

It has been our endeavor, since coming to Lamoni, to impress upon the Saints the necessity of keeping in view the advice given by the Lord in regard to the methods of gathering; that is, "Let all things be prepared before you."

One of the things to be feared in a gathering is the hasty collecting together of elements from which to form the body corporate which in themselves have not the power of assimilation, lacking either ability or the disposition.

That there will be in every community some who care but little for law, as a restraining rule, or for the obligation to good behavior due from all to society, which should be acknowledged and kept by every member, is an unfortunate fact. These unruly members are all of them quite willing that others should bear the burdens of maintaining the public good, the keeping up of municipal existence and the expense of keeping the public peace, but are careful to keep out of the way when asked to bear their proper proportion.

In a community like the one at Lamoni, where a religious idea has gathered its hundreds, it ought to be expected that there should be no malefactors, and that with those whose religious convictions call them together, there should be great unanimity of opinion and effort to keep evil doers out, or to prevent an increase of crime by swift and sure punishment of those who break the laws. And it may be said that there is such unity of purpose in the town.

There are also conditions of real life confronting every community; the ways and means of meeting and providing for one's household; the securing of a competency—the penny for a rainy day—the caring for the support and schooling of young families, the discharge of the duties of citizens, in the various capacities of public service, all go into the calculation and everyday life of the average citizen of the commonwealth and the member of the society. In doing all this religion imposes it upon the Saints to be watchful and careful that in the necessary struggle to do what they conceive to be their duty in the temporal affairs of life, they are neither deceitful nor dishonest.

The age is rife with speculation, evil-minded men and seducers are waxing worse and worse. There is a seeming great increase in crime of all kinds, from petty lying, evil insinuation, and slander to the darkest type of murder. All classes are represented, until one hardly knows where safety is. Saints have no hope that there will be an actual cessation from crime and wrongdoing until the coming Savior shall ascend the throne in power, and bring all things into subjection, ruling in judgment, wisdom, and mercy. This does not, however, in any wise justify Saints as citizens in any sort of misconduct.

It behooves all then to be fervent in spirit, diligent in business, upright according to law, and blameless of evil in the gospel of Christ.

Lamoni is growing, and in some things taking on as a village the ways of the world. People are buying and selling, building and rebuilding, buying to hold and keep, or to trade, or sell, if prices suit; all of which lies within the confines of legitimate business, but near to the borders of speculation. Speculation, in proper directions, may be right; but the spirit of speculation does not always nicely discriminate between the legitimate in trade and the illegitimate—if there be money to come out of the transaction. We shall be sorry, indeed, if there be in Lamoni cause to believe that dishonest practices obtain among her promoters and forwarders in business affairs.

The proverb has it, "he that hasteth to get rich shall scarcely be innocent." Methods that one man employs are to another irregular; what one thinks proper another deems to be improper, and so all are left to follow the "golden rule" as each may interpret, "As ye would that others should do unto you, do ye even so unto them." The common standard of right dealing is known to all, but the finer lines are pursued by the few only. The rules for judging everyday transactions between business men and neighbors are fairly understood, but self-interest sometimes intervenes and distorts the line of sight and obscures the judgment, so that injury is sometimes done to the more innocent, or the unwary and unlearned in business.

We have heretofore cautioned the Saints in regard to changing locations hastily. The poet's lines,

Honor and shame from no conditions rise;
Act well your part, there all the honor lies,
may be paraphrased to say that

Riches and peace from place do not appear;
Do right, in doing which no man need fear.

Let all things be prepared before you, means that in changing localities Saints shall see to it that when they leave one place to seek and build up in another they shall deal honestly with those they leave in the places where they have lived and are leaving, and shall so provide that they shall not waste what they have sold their places for in profitless wanderings about looking for a home, or place to make one before settling. Some sell comfortable homes to change, and then fail to make due diligence in getting to their place of reestablishing themselves; until, by and by, their means is exhausted and they are left somewhere, stranded, and far worse off than when they started. Saints determining to go to Independence, Lamoni, or other locality where the people of the faith are settling in numbers, should make proper inquiry, or by actual visit and personal examination, find out whether the locality chosen is likely to suit them; whether the associations, means of obtaining a livelihood, and the surroundings are suitable to their enjoyment. Nor should they allow themselves to suppose that they can build up their spiritual homes upon the supposed or real merits and spirituality of those among whom they are settling; they must take the spirit of disciples, contentment, industry, and love of peace with them, or they will fail to make such a home as God intends Saints should have. Is a word to the wise sufficient?

DOES GOD FAVOR HIS MINISTRY?

APROPOS of the singular and peculiar manifestation of power during the Savidge and Williams debate, at Omaha, by which Rev. Savidge was confounded, and the tongue of Bro. Williams loosed to the good of the cause and the glory of God, Bro. Morgan D. Lewis wrote from Centerville of an instance in which Bro. William Thompson, who while living at Forbush, Iowa, had appointments at Union Church. One time when Bro. Thompson reached the church, he was a little late; but he called Bro. David Archibald into the stand with him, the hymn books were passed and the hymns given out when some one of the Baptist congregation rose and claimed the hour, and that their preacher would be there in a half hour. Bro. Thompson quietly, meekly took his seat, stating that he was not aware that there had been an appointment made conflicting with his. The preacher took the stand and undertook to preach on the subject of the "Kingdom of God," stating that he had made it a study for the past week. Bro. Lewis writes of it thus:—

Three distinct times he requested for everyone in the house to pray for him. I assure you I did pray with sincerity, and asked God to have mercy on weak and frail humanity and not let them be led into darkness by a man that did not know what the kingdom of God was. Three distinct times he tried to explain and could say nothing, and praying between effort. He finally said he could not preach on that. So he took his text from John, third chapter; read the whole chapter through, and made nothing out of it.

SR. SARAH ALLEN reports favorably of efforts made by Bro. H. L. Holt, at Baker City, Oregon. He was refused the use of a church building but preached in a dwelling house, being well received by the people. It is astonishing to note how many houses of worship are yet closed against our representatives in free America. One would think the spirit of liberality had by this time become so generally diffused that religious toleration was fully established in this land; but it seems not. We are thankful, however, to note the growth of broader sentiment; that much is encouraging, as indicating the trend of the popular mind. Our own people have been taught the lesson so often that it will never be lost upon them; that they shall stand always in the front ranks of those who court investigation and encourage progress. Superstition and error surround themselves with mystery and demand unquestioning homage; true faith and truth stand forth in the light and ask for intelligent examination.

Our faith and all methods employed in its advocacy is based on the principle of "Come, let us reason together;" and "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good." Our brethren can afford to fight it out on this line.

THE American Fork (Utah) Item for December 1 has this item among its local news:—

The Josephite chapel is looming ahead and will make quite an improvement to our town.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. I. M. SMITH, Galien, Michigan, recent date:—

Commenced a series of meetings here yesterday to last two weeks, if all goes well and prospects are favorable. My health is quite good now, for me; much better than in the summer.

BRO. F. H. BROOKS, McKinley, Michigan, December 6:—

The work is onward in these parts. The Saints are rejoicing in the gospel, and the people of the world seem to want to hear what we have to say. I have baptized thirteen since I last wrote the Herald.

BRO. E. M. WILDERMUTH, Ono, Wisconsin, the 7th inst.:—

I am trying to hold up the gospel banner, alone with the assistance of the Spirit of our Master. There is a fine opening and a good interest for gospel work here. I came here yesterday from Porcupine and found Elder W. S. Pender sick and unfit for duty. Bro. H. P. Curtis has been laboring here for quite a time and has succeeded in getting up a fine interest, and allaying much prejudice, and making many friends to the cause of truth.

He went to Porcupine to-day to look after the interests of the branch. I shall try to hold the fort.

BRO. W. C. CATHER, Percilla, Texas, the 9th inst.:—

The work is onward here; prospects good. I have just closed a series of ten sermons at Evergreen. The Lord has blessed my efforts in a powerful way, and through prophecy has promised that a great work should be done in this country. When I came here the work was in a dead condition, only one family of Saints. Quite an interest is manifest, and the work will move on over every obstacle, if we are faithful. If we control our pride and live humble and meek before God it will be an easy matter for us to be faithful. Thank the Lord for the gospel. That we may all be faithful in our sacred charge, is my prayer.

BRO. JAMES KEMP from Hutchinson, Colorado, December 5, 1894:—

Bro. F. J. Chatburn and myself are carrying on a series of meetings here with good interest, and I believe some will unite with the church ere long.

BRO. A. B. HANSON, of 613 Cavalry avenue, Detroit, Michigan, wrote December 8, sending the notice of the death of Bro. James A. McIntosh, at the "pesthouse" of small pox, December 5, which we greatly regret to hear. Bro. Hanson adds at the close of his letter:—

The work here is moving along nicely now. Elder J. A. Grant attended the branch election, December 1, and labored here during the fore part of this week.

BRO. R. M. MALONEY, Norman, Oklahoma, December 8:—

I have signed a proposition with L. H. Havill, of the Christian Church, to investigate Mark 16: 17, 18; whether the signs should follow the believer of the present day. I am encouraged in the work and hope to do what I can for its progress. This field needs more laborers. However, we are trying to let the people know what and who we are. Please send tracts, etc.

BRO. I. N. WHITE has succeeded in getting representatives of the Christian Church to agree upon fair propositions for discussion; those that involve that church as well as ours, as some of its representatives have sought to evade heretofore. Bro. White, writing from Independence, Missouri, the 10th inst., says:—

My plans are perfecting to lock horns with Braden early in January, and when once locked, when and where will it end? Hands full all around and can't see any place where I can be relieved. All well; things moving.

BRO. S. W. L. SCOTT, Angola, Indiana, December 12:—

Have been holding services at the battle point — South Scott — with large crowds, great interest, and good liberty. We are returning from a point two miles north of this city where we were privileged to address a deeply engaged audience last evening. We resume at South Scott to-night and the remainder of week, and take up the work Sunday and evening north of Angola. My health is some better, for which I am thankful. Deep interest in the work all over this country.

Bro. Joseph Luff, by card:—

Just returned from Blairstown, Missouri, where I spoke seven nights in succession in the U. B. church. Had large and very attentive audiences and enjoyed fair to excellent liberty. Blairstown is the home at present of Bro. D. C. White, and it was owing to his influence and that of a few other Saints there that we got the use of the house. The United brethren people treated me royally, though I gave them straight doctrine, right from the shoulder (Scriptures.)

Bro. J. F. McDowell, Eagle Grove, Iowa, the 10th:—

Am here for a discussion beginning this evening.

Bro. W. S. Macrae, writing from El Reno, Oklahoma, the 13th, says:—

Everything grandly moving in our work here. Bro. Thomas Smith is with me. Excellent interest; five baptized on Tuesday, all excellent people, and heads of families. "The morning light is breaking, the darkness disappears."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. J. B. GOULDSMITH reports the baptism of three in the waters of Starks Creek, at Cross Timbers, Hickory county, Missouri, husband and wife, and a young man, December 6. It is thought by him others will join the church there. So let the work go on.

Bro. W. N. Robinson, Secretary of the General Sunday School Association, has a card in this issue, addressed to superintendents of schools not identified with the General Association. It will be to the advantage of such schools and to the work in general to respond to his request.

Bro. William Thompson was at Foster, Iowa, December 8. Bro. R. Williams, who wrote of his labors, predicted a successful series of meetings. The people were attentive to the word.

Bro. W. H. Davenport, Bandera, Texas, requests correction in his announcement of time of meeting of the Southwestern Texas district. It will convene on Friday, February 8, at seven p. m., at San Antonio.

Bro. J. L. Gunsolley, writing from Ravenwood, Missouri, the 7th inst., commends the late efforts of Bro. James Thomas, who wrought successfully in the interests of the cause in a late discussion with an Adventist minister, and made a good impression upon his hearers. General prospects were better.

The Emperor of Austria has signed the civil ecclesiastical bills passed by the Hungarian Parliament. Thus another advance step is consummated. With Catholic Hungary advancing in liberal reforms, what may we not hope for in the line of civil and religious liberty. God reigns, and despotism is relaxing.

The Far West district requests that we publish, prominently, its resolution rescinding its criticism upon Bishop E. L. Kelley and asking pardon of him. We insert said action following its conference minutes.

Bro. J. R. Lambert returned to Leon, Iowa, on the 17th inst., to continue a series of meetings.

The January issue of Autumn Leaves probably will not appear until after Christmas. Paper manufacturers have failed to fill our orders on time, hence the delay.

Bro. G. M. L. Whitman, Omaha, Nebraska, reports the baptism of four, with another ready. Bro. A. H. Smith was with them, and all were pleased with his visit. Saints were repairing their chapel, inside and out.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Home is the crystal of society, and domestic love and duty are the best security for all that is most dear to us on earth."—Smiles.

HOME.

THE bulwark and protection of society and all which society holds dear is found in the homes of the people. Break up, destroy, or in any way corrupt the home life of a nation and you have corrupted the stream at its source, have poisoned the fountain from which the waters issue.

A strange bit of history has come to us in connection with this latter-day work—history which bears upon the work which the Daughters of Zion are essaying to do; namely, to help each other to understand and discharge the duties of home life; to realize that its every relation is sacredly binding and pure as God who instituted it is pure.

We use this bit of history the more gladly—yes, we mean gladly—because from time to time letters come to us which trouble the depths of our soul, not with the healing of an angel's touch, but with a sense of indignation, that such things should be. That into the dove-nest of home such serpents should creep. A sister writes: "I have been married eight years and I have five children. They make me lots of work and worry, but I enjoy it for all that, and every one has proven a blessing to me in more ways than I can mention. O if I only had the assurance of the Spirit that I could help them to become—that they would become—noble men and women! But I will trust and wait. I have felt most keenly the opposition brought to bear against those who bear children in these days. But I do not care if only I am right, for I rather enjoy being persecuted under such circumstances. Could you only know the way I have been talked to on account of my babies! But I honestly believe it is only because their consciences are troubling them on account of adopting methods of prevention. May I ask you one question? Do the Daughters of Zion think such practices right?"

This is only one instance from among many which is brought to our notice almost daily, thus proving beyond a doubt that the abominations of Babylon have entered into and are practiced within the fold.

To this sister we answer as to all others: What the Daughters of Zion believe is of small consequence unless their belief is in harmony with the law of the Lord.

The inspired Psalmist has said, "Lo, children are a heritage of the Lord, and the fruit of the womb is his reward." Can Saints despise God's heritage? Can they rob God of his reward and be guiltless? The apostle has said, "Marriage is honorable in all, and the bed undefiled." Is there defilement worse than such prostitution of the sacred relation of marriage? It is not strange that conscience troubles such, for is it not a very strong point of our doctrine that all blessings come through obedience?

Not long since, in conversation with Sr. Bertha Smith she related to us a conversation which she once had with Sr. Emma—wife of Joseph the Martyr. At our request she wrote it down as follows:—

In July of 1871 I made a visit to the city of Nauvoo, and was the guest of Sister Emma Bidamon, and during that visit many were the kind and motherly instructions which she gave me. At that time I held in my arms my firstborn, a baby boy nearly one year old. I listened attentively to all that noble woman had to offer by the way of advice to me. As a young mother I needed just such instruction as fell from her lips. The most of our conversations I can well remember, especially one which I will relate. It ran as follows:—

"I do love to see a family of children. I think it far more commendable to bear children than to do as some married women do, who appear to be ashamed to raise a family and will resort to prevention. I will tell you a vision I had many years ago. In the early days of the church my husband brought home some Egyptian mummies. They were placed in my bedroom and stood at the foot of my bed. I never was afraid to have them. One night my thoughts just before closing my eyes in sleep were something like this: I wondered what kind of lives those mummies had lived. Had they made a good record or had they done anything wrong, for which they would meet punishment? I wondered what kind of record as women of their age they had made during the probation that was allotted them.

"Seemingly I dropped asleep, but immediately there appeared at my side a heavenly messenger who pointed toward those mummies and said to me, in a very distinct tone of voice, 'Those women in their lifetime were guilty of murdering the infant in the womb, and this will be the greatest sin of the women of this generation.' Then the messenger disappeared."

At that time she told me that when this messenger told her this concerning the Egyptian women and the sin the women of this generation would indulge in, that this now widespread crime was scarcely known, "but," she added, "I have lived to see that declaration fulfilled in the world amongst my kind, and I am sorry to say I have reason to believe it is practiced in the church to a less or greater extent, and this heavenly messenger told me it was murder."

"Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city. For without are . . . murderers."

Let us earnestly commend to the reading of all mothers an article in the January number of Autumn Leaves, entitled, "A Christmas talk with mothers."

THE IDEAL SUNDAY.

SUNDAY, as it was almost universally observed twenty or even ten years ago, and the rigor of which still survives in many families, was marked by a severity of conduct and an uncompromising gloom that caused the young ones to dread the approach of the day, and even the older members of the family looked upon it as a period whose restraint was to be endured with resignation, and its end hailed with a sigh of relief.

The children who grew up under that iron rule are now managing families of their own, but, remembering their childish sufferings, seem determined that the present generation shall be spared the discomfort that is inseparably connected with the day in their minds. But they are apt to err too much on the other side. It is the swing of the pendulum, and, as a result of the reaction of sentiment, there is a wide latitude allowed in the present observance of the day that in effect will be incomparably worse than the former Puritanic severity. That harsh training that our fathers and grandfathers underwent, narrow and prejudiced as it was, made better men and women and more sensitive consciences than the present lax methods will turn out. In time, no doubt, the golden mean will be reached, and the ideal Sunday will be found in most American homes. It rests with each individual family, however, to bring this about, and the sooner the right way is found to do it, the better. This ideal day will be one of sweetness and rest, the one day of all the week that will be the home day, and people will realize that cheerful piety is not incompatible with propriety and reverence. Sunday is a festival in the church, and, indeed, all the names given to it are suggestive of joy and brightness. It is the day of the Sun, a holy day, a term that has given us our present word holiday; and even during Lent, the time of penitence and humility, Sunday is set apart as feast day. Just why it should be looked upon as a day of praise and thanksgiving in church, and a brief season of austerity and gloom at home, it is a little difficult to understand. In many homes, on the other hand, Sunday is either set aside for various little outings, in which each member of the family takes his pleasure in the amusement that suits his tastes and inclinations best, or a carelessness of the significance of the day prevails, and the house-mother considers her duty done when she has put the little ones into their "best" clothes and sent them to Sunday school. To bring about an ideal observance of the seventh day will require a little forethought and tact on the part of the mother or elder sister, but there will be ample compensation for the time snatched from engrossing cares by the knowledge that the memory of these golden hours will be a mighty safeguard from many a danger and temptation.

The housekeeper whose mind is concerned with many things, is often so wearied with the burdens and anxieties of the week that she has come to look upon Sunday as her one day of relaxation in which she must collect all energies for the labors of the coming week. The press of things to be done that takes up every waking moment of the Saturday has left her too exhausted, usually, to even think connectedly, and the least effort to exert herself is distasteful. But this state of things may be easily remedied by distributing much of the housework more evenly. Many precise housekeepers leave the scrubbing and polishing and general routine of putting things in order for the last of the week, so that on Sunday everything may exhibit a perfection of neatness, and the very fact that this order must not be interfered with is one of the most effectual means of taking away from the ease of the day. The method of one young housekeeper, who believes in making home so attractive that no one may have any desire to stray forth in search of recreation, is good enough to be imitated. She performs most of her household duties on Monday, if possible; this insures a freshness and neatness for the rest of the week, and restores the order that is sure to be upset in the general occupation of parlors and sitting room over Sunday. This is, of course, the commonplace working of the question. But, taking it for granted that the mother has so planned her many duties that she can wake up Sunday morning with the gratifying sense of a long, delightful day before her, she will be able to manage all the details of her plans with deliberation. It is not a necessary part of a proper respect for the day, and it is often quite cruel, to insist upon children spending five or six hours in church. That they should be taught to understand the meaning and importance of the services and of Sunday school is a duty that is absolutely required of every mother, but as the greater part of the church service is utterly without meaning to them, the strain of having to be quiet while limbs ache and active little minds wander in every conceivable direction is physical torture, and engenders a distaste for church going that would appall the conscientious, but mistaken mothers.

Something should be done to amuse little ones during the day that will at the same time mark it as distinctive from the rest of the busy week. Children are always eager for a story, and an hour might be set aside for the telling of one of the beautiful tales of the Old Testament that will hold the childish imagination and give an intimacy with biblical subjects and a culture that no maturer study can supplant.

And as for Sunday evening, that should be the essence of the whole day distilled. There is nothing more enjoyable and comforting than music. It is not essential that there should be a piano or organ; an instrument, while it sustains and undoubtedly adds to the singing; has none of the sweetness and sympathy of the human voice. It is not even necessary that the voices should have been cultivated, every one can learn by a little practice to sing simple tunes with ease and rhythm. Most of the old familiar hymns, those about which our most precious associations cluster, are simple in melody and not beyond the range of the average voice. Having tried this little service of song for awhile, it will not willingly be omitted from the pleasures of Sunday; there can be no closer bond of sympathy than this singing in unison, and the memory of those hours spent in sweet intimacy of home will be the dear recollection of a lifetime.—Sel.

Dear Sisters:—How often I have wanted to add my mite to help on this work, but always felt my inability; but in reading so many pieces on the subject of gravest importance to every true mother, the duties of motherhood, I felt I must say something, as I see so many who are shirking the duties and responsibilities of their position. Should we not be proud that God has thought us fit to bring a little soul into the world to rear and train? How careful we should be, not only from the time it first sees the light, but from the time we know that if all goes well we will be a mother. Where is there one of us that would give one of her little ones something to put it asleep, never more to wake in this world? Should we not then think as much or more of it while it is yet a part of ourselves and more dependent on us? Not only this, but should we shirk our duty of bearing children? Some excuse themselves by saying, "We are so poor it is more sin to bring them into the world than it is to keep from bearing them, and I won't have any more and if I was Sister ——— I would not either. They are barely able to get enough to eat;" or, "He is an elder and the care of the family falls on the wife, so I shall post her the first chance I have."

Think of it sisters! Pretending to worship a God we think cannot provide for us and the family he gives! How we should blush to talk such things as I have heard them talked. And above all, stop and think when you see some young sister about to cast in her lot for life with a young man, before you rush to post her. Can God's people practice such things? Perhaps some will think this is putting it pretty strong and plain, but isn't that what we need? Hav'n't we always fought too shy of these subjects heretofore? Isn't that where the trouble has come in?

I am only a young mother and the care of two little ones falls on me and much other care besides, for my husband is out preaching. Many who read this know what that means.

I never had these things brought before me when a girl as the young women of the church to-day have. One thing, I was a stranger to the church, and my mother had that false idea so common amongst the older women of to-day, that girls must be kept ignorant on those subjects and walk into matrimony blindfolded. The Daughters of Zion have my best wishes. A SISTER.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SR. CARRIE M. VARLAND, of Danway, Illinois, earnestly entreats your faith and prayers in her behalf, that God will touch the heart of her companion and lead him to repentance.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR DECEMBER.

Pray always and I will pour out my Spirit upon you, and great shall be your blessing; yea, even more than if you should obtain treasures of earth and corruptibility to the extent thereof. Behold, canst thou read this without rejoicing and lifting up thy heart for gladness? or canst thou run about longer as a blind guide; or canst thou be humble and meek and conduct thyself wisely before me; yea, come unto me thy Savior.—Doc. and Cov. 13: 6.

Thursday, Dec. 13.—Our families. Prayer for the members of our families by name, and for the families of each other and those of the ministry. For the youth of the church in general.

Memory Verses.—1 Timothy 2: 1, 2.

Thursday, Dec. 20.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses. 2 Timothy 1: 24, 25.

Thursday, Dec. 27.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verse.—Hosea 3: 5.

DO NOT SLEEP ON THE LEFT SIDE.

There is little doubt that an immense number of persons habitually sleep on the left side, and those who do so can never, it is said, be strictly healthy. It is the most prolific cause of nightmare, and also of the unpleasant taste in the mouth on arising in the morning. All food enters and leaves the stomach on the right side, and hence sleeping on the left side soon after eating involves a sort of pumping operation, which is anything but conducive to sound repose. The action of the heart is also seriously interfered with and the lungs unduly compressed. Hence it is best to cultivate the habit of always sleeping on the right side although Sandow and other strong men are said to invariably sleep on their backs.

Letter Department.

MINNEAPOLIS, Kan., Dec. 6.

Editors Herald:—I arrived at Blue Rapids, Kansas, on the 1st inst., and remained with the Saints there until the 5th, preaching four times with good liberty and moderate "turn out." Enjoyed one prayer meeting and held one elder's court in connection with Bro. J. S. Goble; rendered decision "according to evidence," we hope, to the good and satisfaction of all concerned; at least we tried to; but if we failed, will say, "Try, try again," by appeal.

I arrived here the afternoon of the 5th, according to previous appointment, and met our genial brother, Henry Resch, who had made all arrangements for meeting in the courthouse that night, and to continue. We opened up with a fair congregation. This place is about the center of the State from east to west, hence in the suffering district,—no crops to amount to anything for the last three years. Hence you may judge the condition of the people. It is sad, but many are hopeful, while others are entirely discouraged. Six miles south of town Bro. Resch, through his worthy efforts, has baptized about twenty-five members, in addition to himself and wife, making in all twenty-two; and I am here to help them in considering the matter of organizing a branch. Will report progress.

In bonds,

J. T. DAVIS.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 11.

Editors Herald:—I am glad to say the work of the Lord is onward in this part of the vineyard. Last month while on a visit to the western part of the St. Louis district I had the pleasure of assisting to set apart by dedication a neat church, 19 x 30 feet at Linn, Osage county, Missouri. There were a number of non-members present, the house was full, and during the exercises of the whole day the Spirit of the Lord was felt to a large degree. The Saints were made glad in the evening; text, "Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon;" good liberty and the presence of the Spirit. All felt renewed. On the following Wednesday the subject, "Joseph Smith a prophet of God." Good liberty was again had; the Saints thanking God for a prophet to guide them in these latter days.

Uncle John Mantle in the joy of his heart thanked God that he had the privilege of entering a house dedicated to the worship of God by the Latter Day Saints. I am glad to say it is a credit to the Saints. They had the privilege to prove the word of the Lord in the Doctrine and Covenants; that if the Saints lived their religion they should find favor with the people. The land, one acre, was donated by a nonmember, and he with others helped much to build the house and has since said he will do more. Thus the work rolls on.

On the 20th of November I organized Zion's Religio, of Linn, Missouri, with seventeen charter members; and with the Sunday school in good order a bright future is before them. May the Spirit guide. So our visit was very pleasant with but one thing to mar our peace; that was my wife (Sister Maria) was very sick for a few days, but by the blessing of God and the ordinance of the church she soon got around and was made glad to mingle her voice with the Saints. We had a time long to be remembered. Bro. Charley Jones still holds the fort in St. Louis; the meetings are spiritual and strengthening; the Saints as a rule are well. Our young people are a noble band. Zion's Religio has done and is doing much good.

Hoping the good work will continue until Christ shall come,

Your brother,

NOAH N. COOKE.

RADCLIFFE, Iowa, Dec. 1.

Editors Herald:—I feel it my duty to bear my testimony to what the Lord has done for me. I joined the church in 1863; repenting of my sins. I was broken down in health and could do no work. Had six children, a small farm, and was five hundred dollars in debt. I told this to the elder who baptized me; he answered: "Be faithful, brother, God will bless you in both body and spirit." I got the blessing. When the year came round I had earned a little money. I paid half of it to the church and the other half on my debt. I soon got better health and got out of debt. I have been trying ever since to pay my tithing. It pinches the old nature to do our duty. I told the Lord I did not want any more of the world, I had no room for it. I feel weak and unworthy before the Lord. The Lord has blessed my hands' labor, and I have always laid it to the tithing. I told the Bishop not to be afraid to get all the tithing he could; for it would make no man poor. I feel very lonesome and unworthy before the Lord. I hope I may not lose my little hope for my soul's salvation. If I should lose my hope for the final Sabbath rest, I will regret it much. I have no meeting to go to; and ask the prayers of the Saints.

ODEN JACOBS.

BENTON, Iowa, Dec. 7.

Editors Herald:—We are still alive and doing all the good we can, considering the chances. I came to Benton last December from Washington and have taught day school here most of the time during the week and on Sunday have taught in the Union M. E. Sunday school. I place the diagram on the blackboard in the church, which remains for one week during preaching and prayer meetings, and in this way am endeavoring to let my light shine. I was elected justice of the peace in the recent "slide," although I was teaching school all fall.

Rev. Brown, a holiness M. E., was discharged here Tuesday for his teachings. The members became enlightened and did not care to listen or pay for such holiness. I have tried hard to explain what the Scriptures teach about the Holy Ghost and can say it has had a good effect. I think Rev. Brown was allowed to retain his pastorate between Caledonia and Lamoni, seven miles west of you. By teaching the genuine Holy Ghost he can be routed. The new Seventh-Day Adventist church here is finished and will be opened on Sunday next by a sermon being preached on the Sabbath question by Rev. Richards. (His wife's people live near Davis City.) We can use their church when an elder can come and preach. I think the United Brethren will also build here immediately. "Come over and help us."

Your brother,

W. D. MCKNIGHT.

HARP, Ala., Nov. 29.

Editors Herald:—The Saints of Lone Star branch had four Brighamite elders with them last Sunday. I invited them to preach, and Elder G. V. Nelson talked upon the first principles of the gospel, then Elder Chariton Siegmilller followed by reading Matthew 7: 15, "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves." He tried to appear a true prophet; that is, in representing the Church of Christ. He read verses 16-20, including the words, "Wherefore, by their fruits ye shall know them."

I replied to them and proved that the books, the Holy Scriptures, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants condemn the Brighamite church. We had a very attentive congregation to witness the fight. It did good in putting down prejudice, for everyone could see the difference between us and the Brighamites. I treated them as kindly as I could. When I got through I asked if they wanted to say anything. They said, No; that it was no use.

I will relate a vision I had on Saturday night before. I saw a log house, and it was very old. I noticed it sitting on the sand and a ditch two feet deep and two feet in width around the house. I saw it was in danger and that those in it were not protected from the weather, for it was not ceiled and covered to keep the rain out. The house represented the Brighamite Church. I was glad to be in the right church, but sorry for those in the Brighamite Church; for that house fell, and great was the fall of it.

In bonds,

M. K. HARP.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 8.

Editors Herald:—I have just returned from a two weeks mission, part of the time in Merced county. I had for my traveling companion Elder J. M. Putney, and I must say that only for a little bodily inability the trip would have been one of the brightest in my ministerial experience. I spoke six or seven times at Dos Palos to good congregations and had the very best of attention; and I feel quite sure that good will come of our sowing. Brn. J. F. Burton and J. M. Putney had both preached at this point before. Bro. Putney, I believe, was the pioneer; and as these brethren have wisdom as well as zeal, they had left the field in good shape. It is always a pleasure for an elder to find that his predecessors have done wisely, then no time is lost in apologizing or smoothing over errors or blunders.

Dos Palos (which in English means two trees or posts) is a colony laid off by Mr. Miller, the great cattle and land king, and bids fair to be a very thrifty settlement. The land is very productive and will produce almost anything that can be raised in the United States. Bro. G. H. Hall, formerly of Shenandoah, Iowa, has a farm in the colony, and I doubt if the world can produce a larger growth of fruit trees for the age of them; it is simply wonderful. I do not know how much of the colony land would produce as his does; but I should judge that so good and productive land is small in comparison with that that is strongly impregnated with alkali. Bro. Steel who is a son-in-law of Bro. J. M. Putney, also lives in the colony, and is a meek and earnest Latter Day Saint. So with Bro. Hall and Bro. Steel and their families we have nearly enough to organize a branch. I am hopeful that a branch will yet be built up at that place, for at the close of the meetings Bro. Putney prophesied that some of them would find no rest in their souls till they obeyed the gospel.

We will take another trip further south soon. Bro. P. is a most genial companion and I am thankful that I can have the company of so wise and earnest a yokefellow. Zeal is good but must, in order to be effectual, be seasoned with wisdom.

Yours in Christ,

J. C. CLAPP.

FOSTER, Iowa, Dec. 11.

Editors Herald:—I have been laboring constantly since the 20th of July; at Allendale, McFall, Blythedale, Missouri, and other points, in connection with Bro. J. S. Snively, till the latter part of August, after which I labored alone at different points in Monroe and Appanoose counties, Iowa, baptizing one at Hiteman. After attending our district conference I preached a few times at Lone Rock and Green schoolhouse and sought to arrange matters temporarily, selling off everything I had to meet pressing obligations, the drouth forcing me thereto, after which I went to Lucas and held a series of meetings three miles south. A good interest was manifested. I enjoyed a sojourn with the brethren after an absence from them of ten years. There is a noble band of working Saints. Brn. Daniels, Evans, and Hopkins are doing much to open up the work in schoolhouses around, as well as laboring in the branch. I believe the branch to be in good condition.

I next went to Oakley, where I preached four times in the Christian church; no interest. I then went to Hiteman, preaching there two weeks to small congregations. Much prejudice exists. The Saints have been sorely tried, but the Lord remembered them and they appreciate his loving kindness. On December 2 I baptized Bro. John Hooper, husband of Sr. Hooper. I never saw a happier woman in my life. From there I went to Avery on the 3d inst., but a Methodist revival was in progress; so went and visited Sr. Roberts at Chisholm, a mining camp near Avery, preaching at night in private house well filled with neighbors. On the 4th I addressed the Christian Endeavor Society in the Congregational church by their request, on helps and hindrances to a Christian life, but could not get the church to hold preaching services; so came to this place, where I found Sr. Moyer and daughter. Mr. Moyer takes no interest in religion, does not wish to talk about it, don't go out to hear; but in acts of goodness exceeds many professors of religion. The M. E. class leader thought he could get us their church, he being one of the trustees, but failed. Mr. Chamberlin offered me use of his hall free for Saturday and Sunday, so I published meetings, and attended the prayer meeting on Thursday night at the M. E. church. A goodly number were present and through the kindness of Richard Williams, the class leader, I was allowed to speak twenty minutes on the lesson he had read from John 17. I felt blessed in the effort and believe it left an impression for good.

Returning from there Sr. Moyer met a Mr. Terry, a nonprofessor, who had a hall not in use, which he offered to us free as long as we wished to occupy. The hall contained seventeen chairs and four sixteen-foot planks arranged along the wall side, lamps, and table. There was no stove, and dust and quids of tobacco lay in profusion over the floor. I borrowed a large old cannon stove without feet, and cracked, from the Methodist people; then begged and borrowed sufficient stovepipe, and with the aid of bricks for feet, and liberal use of broom, I had things in order for meeting that night, and was greeted with a good, intelligent, and orderly congregation. The interest is growing. On Sunday night, notwithstanding there was meeting at the other church, our seats were all occupied and many standing. I borrowed thirty-two chairs yesterday of Mr. Chamberlain; last night seats all occupied and many standing. Met with some opposition after preaching; had several invitations to visit; have been wonderfully blessed in my efforts thus far. The Baptists have sent for a revivalist to commence meetings on the 13th inst. Well, I hope he will do good. Our faith has never been presented here before, and I am kept very busy between services as janitor, usher, and all-around man, visiting and teaching the people from house to house. I expect to baptize some before I leave, as a number are very near the kingdom; but I tell them not to be in haste; to "prove all things, hold fast that which is good."

Yours in Christ,

WILLIAM THOMPSON.

FULTON, Iowa, Dec. 11.

Editors Herald:—I started from home the last Monday of October to encourage the Saints in the law of tithing, as some had not been taught in regard to the temporalities of the church. I went to Bellevue, and tried for some time to get a place to speak in, but did not succeed. I was well cared for, but the Spirit seemed to say, Get out of this place; they will not receive your testimony; so I went to Osterdock. I spoke there four times, also once four miles from there; also presided over one sacrament meeting, as they have no male member in their branch. I found the Saints there trying to do their duty. I also found a daughter of Bro. W. B. Smith, who is about ready for baptism. From Osterdock I went to Brush Creek, where I found Bro. W. H. Kephart telling the gospel story. I spoke there twice, then on to Randalia, where I found the Saints almost discouraged; for they had had no meetings for nearly two years. I returned to Brush Creek and spoke there seven times; was kindly treated both by Saints and outsiders. There is a nice branch with Bro. B. F. Miller as president and superintendent of one Sunday school and assistant superintendent of another Union school.

From there I went to the Grove Hill branch; found Brn. Roth and Kephart there. Bro. Kephart had baptized a man and wife. I had the pleasure of confirming the brother. The Saints in this branch are much scattered. They have prayer meeting every two weeks, it matters not in what house they have their meeting, some have to go ten or eleven miles. I found most of them in pretty good spirits, but room for improvement. Elder Kephart is doing all he can for the work. Bro. Roth had been in this part of the country for a few weeks. We opened at the Key schoolhouse, west of Grove Hill branch about four miles. Elder Roth spoke on Friday, the 23d, also on Sunday morning. I continued, speaking nine times to a large crowd of attentive listeners. Many came as far as six miles, and after meeting bade me good-bye, saying "God bless you and give you success;" "Come and see us and we will treat you the best we know how." It makes one feel good when they leave with such good feeling. This is a German settlement, and I spoke to them in the German language part of the time. I did not like to leave, but duty called me home.

I left Bro. Russell Sutton a few miles from Fairbanks, showing the people the way of life. Bro. Kephart met me at Fairbanks. I left him at Oneida, about thirty-five miles from any Saints.

The elders make much sacrifice for the truth: more than many think. Lift up their hands, Saints, by your prayers and good words for them; also with your mites. It will cheer the weary elder. Try it. I got to Amber, Jones county, December 4, and spoke there twice. Bro. Daniel Dierks fetched me to the Canton branch, where I administered, visited, instructed, and encouraged the Saints, etc., getting home on the 7th and finding the family fairly well.

I forgot to say that on Halloween the Saints and friends gathered at our house while I was gone and left as a token of love and esteem a large and beautiful extension table, a set of chairs, table cloth, napkins, water set, glassware, and prepared a grand supper. May God bless all the givers, and may our love not grow less but rather increase. The Saints as well as those without the fold treated me with the best of respect. Saints and outsiders paid my traveling expenses and ministered to my wants better than I expected or deserved. May our Father bless them in basket and in store. May we all do God's will.

I think I made friends to the cause. The Saints want to do God's whole will even in the temporal law. May they bring all the tithes into the storehouse of God that many more may be sent forth to preach the word. O how many schoolhouses I saw where there has been no preaching done by our people! Arouse! arouse! why idly stand? Let us let our light shine and do God's will.

JOHN HEIDE.

WOODBINE, Iowa, Dec. 10.

Editors Herald:—The Pottawattamie district conference, held at Boomer on the 24th and 25th ult., was one of the best that have been held in the district. All the branches were represented, and full reports of the ministry, local and traveling, were given; and the writer had the poorest showing of all. The local ministry had done well; several additions by baptism; one new branch organized at Fon'anelle, Adair county, as ordered by a former conference. A committee was appointed to visit and consider the propriety of organizing a branch in the township of Neola, or vicinity of Ransome schoolhouse. Elder Derry tendered his resignation of the district, giving as his reason that during the winter he could not do justice to the work, and he thought some more available man should be placed in that position. His resignation was reluctantly accepted, and High Priest John P. Carlile was elected in his stead. Elder Joshua Carlile vice president; so that we trust the district will not suffer loss by the change.

There seems to be an awakening in Boomer since the organization of that branch. They have an excellent Sunday school which attracts the young from quite a distance around; and they mostly attend the church meetings and manifest the best of behavior. The heaven is working. Elder Williams' work in Council Bluffs and vicinity speaks for itself, and needs no eulogy. Elder Butler is doing what he can in Adair county. Elder Peter Anderson is working mostly among the Danes, but is efficient as a laborer among all classes. The writer is invited by the Little Sioux district to labor some in that district. He has so reported to the general missionary in charge. He will try and divide his time between the two districts. Other districts request some of his labors, but he does not think it wise to scatter his efforts too much. The outlook for the work is good in the Pottawattamie district, but more laborers are needed. I attended quarterly conference of Little Sioux district at Logan. Good order prevailed, with peace and unity, so far as the writer could discern. Still desirous of doing what I can, I need the prayers of all. I preached twice in Woodbine yesterday and once in Pleasant Valley, where Elder Lambert preached. If there was a good interest when he was there it appeared to be sadly diminished, or the wrong man was preaching there. Only two voted for further preaching. Does a poor preacher make a listless congregation? Perhaps that was the secret. I did the best I could with a listless congregation, and gave notice of a meeting in two weeks from yesterday.

Respectfully yours,

THE WRITER.

FORSYTH, Mo., Nov. 20.

Editors Herald:—I believe my faith is stronger than when I first believed. I don't think my zeal is as great as when God first revealed the Book of Mormon to me, but I believe I have greater wisdom, and I am thankful. My prayer is that God may bless his people Israel. My faith in regard to the Doctrine and Covenants is about the same as when I left the Valley branch, at Wakenda, but God is confirming the gospel with signs following. I have been preaching here for the last seven years, though I have never baptized one yet. This may seem strange, but I have had much to contend with. I had to give them milk, but now they are a little stronger. Bro. Atwell and son are here preaching, and I think some will obey. He preached last Sunday night, his Son Harry preached at another place the same night, and I preached at Forsyth at four o'clock and at night. I think I had as great liberty of speech as ever in my life.

I have been blessed in some respects since I came here, though I am crippled so that I can work but little; but if my circumstances were such that I could preach all the time I would be thankful; but I can do but little preaching. I have lost the use of my right hand since I came here, so have a hard time making a living.

I held one discussion, but that is the only chance I have had; but I tell them plainly that I am here to defend the faith. I have given out tracts and keep the Voice of Warning out on its mission the most of the time; also other books, and the Herald. Some don't seem to care whether they learn anything about the latter-day work or not, but I tell them they have to hear whether they believe or not; that the gospel has to be preached for a witness and a testimony to all nations, then the end will come; but, that it must be preached by the restored authority of Jesus Christ. They don't like to hear of the restored authority. I tell them they are laboring under a broken covenant, and that God has established the everlasting covenant, and that they must enter into it; for that is the gospel as when Christ first restored or established it; for that is the only way for the Gentiles to become grafted into the tame olive tree or house of Israel, and that they cannot receive the seal of God without the restored authority to administer the ordinances of the gospel of Christ. They are beginning to take some interest now.

Brethren, I cannot promise to do much preaching as I am in poor circumstances and cannot help myself. I have a good home, one hundred and sixty acres of land, but I suppose I will lose it, as I owe one hundred dollars on it, and I cannot pay out, as I am not able to work. But I will do some preaching along as I can. Let me tell you what the Lord revealed to me shortly after I came here; it may be good for all as it was to me. I was praying to know about a certain thing I thought it was my privilege to know, and I never received any light in regard to it, so I studied about it for some time, and one night in a dream it appeared that I was studying about the matter when a person appeared and said to me, "If you had been faithful you might have had as great privileges as anyone." So from this I understand that our privileges are in proportion to our faithfulness in the discharge of our duties before God. Would to God that I could do more to enlighten the people than I do, though I cannot excuse myself in anything. Brethren, pray for me that I may overcome my weaknesses, for they are many.

Yours in bonds,

W. C. KINYON.

HAMILTON, N. S. W., Oct. 28.

Editors Herald:—The Herald is one of the most welcome visitors we have in our home, and as we peruse its sacred pages we have to shed tears of joy and thank God for the Saints' Herald. You may think that as so few letters are sent we have no interest in its spiritual welfare, but if so, you err. As there are so many such able writers at home, we like rather to hear from them.

The work is of God. I have such clear knowledge of this through obedience to God's commands that I must speak that I do know and testify that I have heard, although but few receive that testimony. We many times look back to the time when Bro. and Sr. Burton were with us, also Bro. and Sr. Smith and Bro. and Sr. Wight. They were parents to us in a gospel sense and knew just how to feed the flock of God over whom the Holy Ghost had made them overseers. Happy moments indeed to reflect on such noble men and women. But changes have taken place, and dear Bro. and Sr. Smith have gone to their rest. Truly they were servants of the Most High and spake as they were moved upon by the Holy Spirit. O may we be faithful and meet them again where parting will be no more! I feel that if I were to omit speaking of Bro. Burton as a father to us in Christ the stones would cry out against us, as he was the best I have heard in counseling the Saints in testimony meetings. Our prayer is that they may be sent here again by the voice of the Lord. Bro. Wight was not least among the former, for if ever anyone had the qualities of a meek and humble spirit Bro. J. W. will rank with the foremost, for his superiors I have yet to meet; and "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth;" and when he stands to administer in the Lord's name, the Lord stands by him, as I can testify; and he has left many hearts to mourn his departure, in and out of the church, as a gentleman told me he could sit all day to hear him.

This latter-day work is a marvelous work, it is the savor of life or of death to all that hear it. It is the Lord's doings, and is marvelous in our eyes. May it spread and grow. And when we call to remembrance Bro. Butterworth and his first attempt to speak, and how he broke down, and after five or six years hear him again, the only just conclusion we can come to is, that his mission was ordered by the Lord; and he has stood by him, for as he stood and preached to us three weeks ago what a contrast, for he spoke as one having authority and not as the scribes! And we feel assured that our present missionaries are men of God, and know just how to adapt themselves to the hard times; for there is not half the means at their command as there was for past ones; and they are therefore rather handicapped, but are making their voices to be heard in the cause of truth.

Bro. Kaler has held one public discussion with one Charles Watt, of the Campbellite order, on the laying on of hands, and it has made it quite uncomfortable for his brethren as he used so much abuse. Many of his brethren are much upset over it and have told me that Bro. Kaler showed the Christian spirit of the two, and if it had lasted another night it would most likely have done a lot of damage to his large salary. Some have left, and more are on the verge of leaving, and are wanting rest. Two of these members attended our meeting last Sunday night and were well pleased. One said he believed that Joseph Smith was a true prophet of God. We should have been over to their stronghold to preach last Sabbath, but their Sunday school anniversary prevented us; but when the opportunity offers we shall attend and preach to them. The people are hard to reach here.

After reading the Temple Lot Suit and how the Lord has directed it through, I was led to praise him for it.

If any of the brethren or sisters have hymns they would like in the Sunday school hymn book, if they will send them to the above address, I will compose music for the same. Send at once.

In gospel bonds,

HENRY BROADWAY.

BOTHWELL, Ont., Nov. 18.

Editors Herald:—The good work is rolling on but slowly in this part of God's moral vineyard. I left home on the 6th of October for the Chatham district conference held at Petrolea, at which we had a very pleasant time. On Monday, the 8th, Brn. Lake, John and Robert Grant, and myself, started to attend the Eastern Michigan district conference at Buel Center. Leaving Bro. Lake and Bro. John Grant at Port Huron, Bro. Robert Grant and I traveled on as far as Blaine; and leaving him there, I went on to Lake Port, to Bro. John Cornish's. Not having seen Bro. Cornish for thirty-five years, we enjoyed ourselves together. The Saints of that branch met together, and I was requested to preach. While visiting the Saints there I had a pleasant time. I was at the house of my nephew, Richard Cornish.

On Friday we left for Buel conference. We had a peaceable waiting together. The Spirit of the Lord was enjoyed among the Saints. There was a large gathering. After conference Bro. William Hartnell and I left for Brown City, going from there to Juniata, where I visited Bro. John and Sr. Hartnell. Sr. Hartnell was one of the first that joined the church in Osborne branch. She was there when Brn. Haskins and J. J. Cornish and I were taken to the woods for a coat of tar and feathers. When the mob was taking us to the woods Sr. Hartnell and another sister were standing in the road and they asked the question, "Where shall we go, or what shall we do?" and I replied to go back to Bro. Jacques' and offer prayer in our behalf.

They did so, and their prayers were heard, and we met them at Bro. Jacques' at three o'clock in the morning.

The Saints of the Juniata branch met for prayer and testimony meeting on Wednesday evening and had a splendid meeting. On Thursday evening I preached. On Friday Bro. Richard Hartnell and I started for his home, near Gaylord, where he and two of his brothers live, and there met my granddaughter who had been visiting at her father's. There are not many Saints there. I had the pleasure of meeting with the Saints of Almira. Bro. John Hartnell and I drove over on Sunday and had a splendid meeting. I had also the pleasure of baptizing Bro. Thomas Hartnell's daughter.

My granddaughter and I came back to Juniata, where I spent a few days, and then went to Cass City, where I visited a week. I visited the house of Bro. Gilbert and family, also Bro. Alfred Thomas and family. Bro. Gilbert and family and I drove over to Hay Creek where I administered the sacrament on Sunday. There are quite a few young Saints there. I am satisfied there would be more if some one could labor there.

Bro. Gilbert and I drove out to see one of the wonders of the nineteenth century; what is termed the "large stone wall," supposed to be the wall of some city. It is counted to be about twenty miles long. It would not be so much of a wonder if there was other stone around, but there is none but what is in the wall. After leaving Cass City I went back to Juniata, where I had the pleasure of meeting Elder Phelps of that place. He and I spent a few pleasant hours together. Leaving the Saints well there we started for home, November 14, and found the folks all well.

Your brother,

JOHN TAYLOR.

MILL CITY, Oregon, Dec. 1.

Editors Herald:—We have received three or four copies of your valuable paper which I presume were sent as sample copies to us. We would like to take it very much. Times are very dull here. Elder Hiram Holt baptized my wife in September. I have not been baptized yet, but hope to be soon.

About fourteen years ago, I with my wife and family were living in a town in New Zealand. I always was religiously inclined from my childhood, but I had never joined a church. I could see that the different sects did not preach, neither did they practice religion as laid down by Christ. However, in the summer of 1881 two Mormon elders from Utah came to our town and I went to hear them. They preached on faith, repentance, baptism, and laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. They preached a splendid sermon; they made things very plain to my mind; in fact, I never heard anyone speak on and explain the Scriptures as they did, in my life before, so I invited them to my house. They appeared to be very sincere in their religion. One of them would not eat any kind of meat; he was a vegetarian. The owner of the hall would not let them have the use of it any more, so I let them have the use of a part of my house to preach in; and finally I, with all my family, were baptized.

After two years we sailed for Zion (Utah). It cost us about eight hundred dollars to get there. The church gave us four hundred dollars which was raised by subscription in Utah. Of course before we joined we wanted to know all about polygamy, blood atonement, etc., but they always tried to avoid those questions. They would answer them ambiguously by telling us we would learn these higher laws after we got to Zion; so in April, 1883, about forty of us new converts and three elders from Utah sailed from Auckland on the steamer City of New York for Zion. After a very pleasant passage of twenty-two days we landed in San Francisco, then took train for Utah, where we arrived in due course of time. After arriving at Ogden we all separated; some of us went north to Logan, others to Salt Lake City, etc. From Logan we went and settled in a small town a few miles out.

I went to work in the temple at my trade. I worked there for nine months at two dollars and seventy-five cents per day, and we liked the country very much. We heard polygamy every Sunday, but I could not see through it. I found out that the Lord condemned it in the Book of Mormon, also in the first edition of the Doctrine and Covenants; but in the second edition I found its condemnation was omitted. Of course I wanted to know the reason, and they told me that the Prophet Joseph received a new revelation—the revelation on celestial marriage; but I could not see through it. In fact, I did not believe it. I told them that one of the revelations must be false. Of course I was counted weak in the faith. However, I held on for two years, then I became an apostate. That was the signal for persecution. They threatened to destroy all I had. Some one took my cow out of my lot one night and I found it dead the next morning. They would not give me work; they intended to starve us out; they would insult my children on the streets. One day three big boys attempted to kill one of mine; another day two little boys tried to cut my little boy's throat, but they could not drive us out of town.

Some kind friends in Logan got the post office for us in the town we lived in, then they were more bitter against us than ever; but they could do nothing. Finally we got a piece of land by contest, then two men came one night and threatened to shoot me. One was the Bishop's second counselor. At last we came to Oregon, and a horrid country it is to live in. It rains about nine months in the year, and the other three are very hot and dry. I think I have said all for the present. I could fill a volume about Utah and its people.

Your brother in the gospel,

W.

ARDMORE, I. T., Dec. 9.

Editors Herald:—I have located my family at this place for the winter, with the hope of being able to open up the work at several new points in this section of country. I find all schoolhouses open for preaching and more invitations to come and preach than I can possibly fill. I would be pleased to hear from any Saints who may live within my reach, that I may visit them. My address for some months will be Ardmore, Indian Territory, Box 215. I hope to hear from all who are interested in spreading the gospel message through this part of the Indian Territory.

In bonds,

T. J. SHEPPARD.

Original Poetry.

O, COME AWAY.

We are waiting for the Master, for he said
he'd come and take us

To his home, his home in glory, far beyond
the distant hills;

Where his presence ever lendeth joy and peace that never endeth,

And his gracious loving kindness every ransomed spirit fills.

O, come away, were going soon, we long to reach that heavenly home;

The Angels whisper, Do not stay, O
friends and brothers, come away.

When we gain that wished-for country. O,
how happy there with Jesus

And the loved ones who before us entered into perfect rest.

There no parting on the morrow, joy shall banish every sorrow,

We shall dwell in peace for ever in the regions of the blest

O, come away, were going soon, we long to reach that heavenly home;

The angels whisper, Do not stay O,
friends and brothers, come away.

O the time is swiftly passing; only just a little longer

Then we'll hear the welcome summons,
Happy mortals, come away.

And our gracious Lord beholding, and the heavenly joys unfolding,

We shall pass beyond the shadows into everlasting day.

O come away, we're going soon, we
long to reach that heavenly home;

The angels whisper, Do not stay, O
friends and brothers, come away.

O 'tis worth the years of waiting to obtain that life eternal

When the warfare ends in vic'try and we cast the burden down.

No more weary toil nor sadness, we shall enter into gladness,

When life's troubled day is over and the cross becomes a crown,

O, come away, were going home, we long to reach that heavenly home;

The angels whisper, Do not stay, O
friends and brothers, come away.

FRANK SWANN.

TUTNALL, England, September 20, 1894.

A Bavarian hygienist advocates the wearing of coarse linen or sackcloth undergarments, to avoid taking cold; if flannel is found necessary, to wear it outside the linen, but never next to the skin.

Original Articles.

NOTES ON BRADEN-SCOTT DEBATE.—No. 1.

BY ELDER S. W. L. SCOTT.

EDITORS HERALD:—Can you permit an encroachment for the introduction of the above topic to your columns? It is a fact, the man with the big knife (?) dealing deathly blows to the undaunted, unsullied, and star-gemmed brow of the kingdom of Christ, with the questionable lever of extirpation to the very base rock of the divine home on earth, the church, has invaded the Michigan Southern district, and, like the cuttle fish, stirred up the marl and ooze, and retreated under the murky filth of his own creating. But why he deftly touched the border and planted his battery on the outskirts to fight a small division, instead of attacking the main army in chief, remains unanswered. Was it to embank against further intrusion of the obnoxious but invincible enemy? or was it through fear that his armaments were insufficient to cope in encounter with the formidable weapons of peace wielded so successfully by those whom he has sworn to theologically slay?

Mr. Braden introduced himself at South Scott and Knox, Indiana, in Napoleonic rôle, which, with the grace of his own right arm and his own brain, his own courage and dauntless ambition, permitted him (in his own mind) to stand with his foot on the throat of prostrate "Mormonism." But we opine that Mr. Braden is convinced that he too hastily rode down upon the bayonets of the "squares," and reposed too much confidence in his own puny, right arm; his own large brain; his own animal courage; his own misdirected ambition. And now his remains as a philanthropist, as a benefactor, as a theologian, as a spirit moving for the moral renovation of his fellow men, and as a giant debater (?) are impaled upon the blunt point of popular indignation and righteous censure with the citizens of both South Scott and Knox.

We were frank enough to inform Mr. Braden of our methods and line of attack and defense; that the issue was not a personal one, but of principle, distinct and apart from character; that Latter Day Saints were not on trial before the Christians or Campbellites; neither were the Christians or Campbellites on trial before the Latter Day Saints; but both Latter Day Saints and Campbellites as to the truthfulness of their doctrines, consistency, and divinity of claims and position, were on trial before a wise, great, and powerful tribunal, the enlightened conscience and judgment of a proud, candid people, and that wisest, greatest, most powerful tribunal from whose verdict there will be neither exculpation nor appeal,—the bar of God.

But notwithstanding this line was urged by us, Mr. Braden ignored it, and persisted in interpreting everything attaching to the Latter Day Saints' faith upon the basis of what the Campbellites believe, as though the decision had been made that their version was established before trial, and that they were right,—the very thing to be proven in debate. He also persisted in testing doctrine by trying men's characters, and even went so far as to suggest a court of lawyers to institute criticism to try a man and drag him up fifty years after he died! Wonder how Mr. Braden would take it to even now know that fifty years after he had been laid away his holy bones would be called up before a court of men's appointing, to be tried as to the doctrine he taught while living. But after a few citations from the Bible, of the failures and imperfection of men once pure, once holy, once "after the Lord's own" design, once high enough on the ladder of gospel righteousness to look into the untarnished regions where God and the angels dwell,—and the following excellent authority:—

A. Campbell visited Glasgow in 1847. Rev. James Robertson preferred a charge against him and had him arrested and imprisoned for ten days.—Dictionary of National Biography, Vol. 8, Ed. 1886,

(the charge preferred was "libel,") why, just here, when Mr. Braden found that his logic (?) was likely to clash against and beat down his impregnable fortress, and if character and report were to be the test of divinity and scripturalness of doctrine, then, when the church of which I, Clark Braden, am a member is poised and weighed in the same balance, that church as well as both the Old and New Testament institutions are "found wanting," and the people see it so clearly,—he then abandoned that line of attack and confined himself to some of the "beauties of the Book of Mormon."

In the discussion of the first proposition which involved the claims of the Campbellite Church to the legitimacy of the church established by divine authority by Christ and through his apostles eighteen hundred years ago, Mr. Braden devoted four evenings; and if at the close of the fourth session the large audience could have been called upon to relate what the church believed, or state its constituent and distinctive elements, they would have been compelled to state from the evidence (?), allowing Mr. Braden to be chief interpreter or representative, that it was a system of rank infidelity, of disbelief; for the entire four hours were monotonous with what "we don't believe." Reader, whatever your religious proclivities, do you not think the charge of infidelity hurled by such ministers at us, comes with moderately poor grace?

The usual argument on the "miraculous in creation" by analogy was applied to the miraculous or extraordinary in the Christian system.

God exerted miraculous power in the creation of man, animals, and plants in the beginning of creation, and then ceased; man, animals, and plants being continued by natural law.

But Mr. Braden failed up to the last moment to inform us when the "miraculous law" ceased its operations, and when the "natural law" was substituted in its stead. We informed him that whatever be the nature of the change, if any, the same results obtain, the same product is gained, by virtue of the operation of the "natural law," as by the operation of the "miraculous law." We called upon him to give some evidence of change. Are the results different? One thing is evident; we have sun, moon, stars, man, animals, and all perpetuated; and, applying his analogy to the church, "miraculous" apostles, prophets, with all the other endowments must be perpetuated, or the analogy does not fit the case. They must be perpetuated by law, or what? Is that law miraculous or natural? Calling his attention to Romans 1: 20:—

For the invisible [spiritual] things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made [the physical universe], telling him that God set up the beautiful planetarium—the constellated universe—as a mirror, reflecting the constitution and perpetuity of the invisible—the kingdom. As God, by the operation of law, in the beginning hung the radiant sun, and silvery moon, and twinkling stars in the physical, I "clearly" see that inspired apostles and prophets with all like divine illuminators were hung or "set" in the firmament of the spiritual kingdom; and as these physical appendages are perpetuated, I must "clearly" see the sun, moon, and stars of the divine institution glitter continuously in the orbits or spheres which the Divine hand has ordained by the very extraordinary or "miraculous" law of the "gospel." And where and when this gospel law is authoritatively administered, the same results must follow its operation. I thanked Mr. Braden for such nice analogy. He never noticed it afterward; but the people did.

On the "organic structure" of the church Mr. Braden put up the argument that prophets, apostles, evangelists, pastors, and teachers, as set in the church by divine authority, were simply "scaffolding" set around the structure by which to build; were temporary, to be taken or removed away when the building was completed. But he was reminded of one thing fatal to the whole theory; that,

God hath set some in the church [not around or under it], first apostles, secondarily prophets, etc.

And the church being the body of Christ, he was sufficiently divine and self-supportive, without Mr. Braden piling up "scaffolding" around him. But richer by far, while this miraculously constituted and divinely built structure was only provisional, temporary "scaffolding," and was superseded by the "more excellent way," and ceased at the death of the apostles, yet strange to say, Mr. Braden had seized hold of some of this temporary, provisional "scaffolding" timbers at Jerusalem, lugged them all the way over to Bethany, awakened them from eighteen hundred years of slumber, and stuck the same "sticks" "into" his church: evangelists, pastors, and deacons! "O no;" says Mr.

Braden, "they are not the ones set in the church eighteen hundred years ago." Well, if they are not the ones set in eighteen hundred years ago, then they are not set in by the authority of God, for the Record says:—

God hath set . . . evangelists, . . . pastors, . . . and teachers.

And if they are not the "timbers" God set in the church, then are they timbers that men have set in it; and that is just what I have claimed all the way through, that Mr. Braden's church is the result of a misguided judgment and a misdirected ambition on the part of Campbell, Scott, and Stone; who wrought to get a name, to the disparagement of the claims of Jesus Christ and his apostles.

The argument then is as follows: If the offices of apostle, prophet, etc., expired or run out by an act of limitation, then by the same process of reasoning the offices of pastors, evangelists, etc., run out also; for they are all included in the category of supernatural endowments. If they all expired or ran out by an act of limitation, they are, therefore, all intransmissible. None were therefore transmitted down into the Campbellite or Christian Church of to-day.

This barb fastened itself to stay, and the argument logically lead to the investigation of the question of authority, or as to whether Mr. Braden's church was invested with it. He more than once affirmed that "the word is our authorization to teach;" but he simply confounded the right to teach with the thing to be taught; that is all. Anyone can see that if the word or letter of the law is the authority to administer that law, then any and every person can pick up the constitution and assume the administration of the laws of the United States. Political anarchy would be the outgrowth in multiform modes, just as religious anarchy is predominant from the same cause to-day.

Mr. Braden stated repeatedly that the entire church was a reservoir of divine authority, and each member a priest, and quoted 1 Peter 2: 5:—

Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, etc.

But at no time did he even try to identify his church with the one Peter addressed as "an holy priesthood," in word, spirit, genius, or organization. We reminded him that the inspired

Peter was addressing this language to "lively stones" who were "called" and molded by that "form of doctrine" delivered unto them, in which they were "delivered" or cast, and constituted that building which Mr. Braden characterized as "scaffolding" and as "done away;" and that before he could claim and appropriate Peter's language to himself or church he would have to show up that he was one of the "lively stones" in the "scaffold-building."

But Mr. Braden "went back" on the theory of "all priests" and "equal authority" question; for when we introduced the founder and author of their church—A. Campbell—in an argument that sunk Mr. Braden, he said:—

Mr. Campbell's teaching is no more authority with us than any other man's opinion.

I guess Mr. Campbell was not the kind of a priest that Mr. Braden is. He could find no excuse for ignoring the teachings of their leading men (other than to concede that they had apostatized from the original theological foundations) aside from denominating them "opinions." But hold on, Mr. Braden; if your church is really the "royal priesthood," and every member a priest, and all have equal authority, are you not incurring the displeasure of God in lightly treating his "priesthood" authority, especially in such grave matters as a complete discrediting of the fulmination of laws governing the "spiritual house"? Think seriously; if all are endowed with equal authority, all have a right to speak and be heard, and must be honored. Then why this "partiality to the law"?

When the question was reached as to the divine direction and authority by which the so-called Christian Church sprang into being (if it has one), my opponent bursted another bubble which he formerly blew up, he went clear back on himself. Having stoutly affirmed that the authority was vested in the royal priesthood or congregations, (and, by the way, they have as many priesthoods as they have congregations—for they have no "general church organization," but just distinct and local ones "knitted together" (?) by no "bands" or "joints"—and the priesthood must be as varied, and distinct, and numbered with reference to the number of distinct local congregations, the authority being vested therefore in the body,) when the point was reached the question was asked, "Where was the authority where there was no congregation?" Mr. Braden's mind I think moved hastily back to that momentous time when the little bubbling, current, reformation trembled, while being born into the cold wave that beat along the lake shore, on the doubtful breeze of "If we have authority to preach, we have authority to baptize." You will note, kind reader, that Mr. Braden's "priesthood" has the most doubtful word in the English language labeled upon its orphan brow: "If." No wonder its sponsors work long and late to set a rose by its side to redeem it from the odium of early birth! It was at this stage of the battle that Mr. Braden tried to rally scattered forces, but the tides swayed him farther out from shore, till his craft struck the gulf current of continued revelation from God and was swept out on the great ocean of uncertainty; adrift, without compass, chart, or rudder to direct!

Here was Braden versus Braden. First, "The word is our authority." Forced out of this stronghold, he retreats to, second, "the authority is in the congregation;" the congregation is the priesthood royal and finding no priesthood royal at the time his reformation was conceived, what could Mr. Braden do? Like the uncautious animal caught in the trap with no hope of escape from this position, he beats the ground. We reminded him that the "winnowing shovel" or separator was in the "hands" of Christ; that he adjusted the machinery. The engine—the motor power—was in heaven, the thresher or separator on earth, and who has the authority to put on the belt and connect the machinery on earth with the motor power above, and set it to operating? Who?

Even Christ, who claimed "all power in heaven and in earth" (Matt. 28: 28) did not of himself adjust the Christian system.

I can of mine own self do nothing: . . . I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which sent me.—John 5: 30.

I have many things to say and to judge of you: but he that sent me is true; and I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him.—John 8: 26.

Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me.—John 8:42.

In this capacity Jesus wrought and his work was acceptable in heaven. In this “sent” capacity his preachers wrought.

Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you.—John 15:16.

And their work was accepted in heaven; hence Peter addresses that kind of a “royal priesthood” that offers to God work that is “acceptable.” (1 Pet. 2:5.) And on the basis of divine representation,—

Whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.—Matt. 16:19.

That which is done on earth is not ratified in heaven unless the authority to do is conferred by the ratifier; hence,—

No man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.—Heb. 5:4.

The quotation from Revelation 21:7,—

He that overcometh shall INHERIT ALL things, the promise made to the royal priesthood, was read for Mr. Braden's benefit, and the following questions, based upon the promise contained therein:—

1. How can we possess all things without heirship?

2. How can we obtain heirship without positive relationship?

3. How can we sustain this relationship without legal adoption.

4. How can we receive legal adoption without direct authority?

5. How can we receive direct authority without direct revelation?

6. Does not possession depend upon heirship?

7. Does not heirship depend upon relationship?

8. Does not relationship depend upon legal adoption?

9. Does not legal adoption depend upon legal authority?

10. Does not legal authority depend upon revelation from the head of the church?

These questions were, perhaps, considered unworthy of notice by Mr. Braden; but the people took them all in. They saw that I tried to trace the spiritual pedigree by abstract; but the chain consists of broken links and no links at all, and is not noticed as legal or legitimate on the statute records of heaven.

At this juncture we turn and humbly invite Mr. B., with all of like belief or unbelief, to Leave the poor old stranded wreck

And pull for the shore,

Mr. Braden, as is usual, advanced the idea of “only two instances of Spirit baptism,” and after affirming that it was “miraculous,” affirmed that the miraculous influence of the Holy Spirit did not benefit anyone, did not impart any moral influence; did not convert, but left the person or animal operated upon in the same condition as it found him. We asked, If the apostles received the baptism of the Holy Spirit, was it miraculous? did it do no good? was it of no benefit? The Holy Spirit manifests the “mind of God.” Is the mind of God of no good? Mr. B. was a little nonplussed here. We wanted information as to whether the atmosphere was beneficial to one just born into the world, and if the Holy Spirit was not to one born into the world-spiritual the Kingdom of God, what the atmosphere is to one born into the physical world? Question unanswered.

The Savior's teaching to Nicodemus (John 3:5) is a part of the general law, universally applicable:—

Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

It makes the promise of Spirit-baptism as general, as universal, as positive, as the baptism of water. It passes the recipient from a negative to a positive state of existence, and as the electric spark darts from one conducting medium to another, and is never attracted by substances foreign in their nature, so the baptism of the Spirit comes to every child of God who is “born of water” by legal authority, or passes from a negative to a positive relationship with God, who is a “Spirit.” So,

The promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even to as many as the Lord our God shall call.—Acts 2:39.

Of this promise, of being “born of the Spirit,” Jesus says:—

This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come.—Matt. 24:14.

It will here be noticed that the Savior makes the “miraculous” Spirit-baptism as broad as the race, as universal as faith in God, repentance from dead works, or baptism in water for the remission of sins. “This gospel” includes what Jesus taught when he instructed Nicodemus. He further says:—

Heaven and earth shall pass away; but my words shall not pass away.—Mark 13:31.

Mr. Braden “drops” the baptism of the Spirit, and endeavors to obtain divine sanction for so doing by torturing and misconstruing the “words” which “shall not pass away.” Even the inspired Paul is not authority for him, hence such glowing utterances as,

Our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance, were made to teach a different gospel then from the one we have now; thus contradicting Jesus Christ in his utterance of the permanency and unchangeability of the gospel or “my words,” as well as well as nullifying his divine “revelation” given to Paul,

But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.—Gal. 1:8.

But, Paul, are you not mistaken? Can you not afford to modify your sweeping revelations on the eternity and inexorableness of the gospel law, just to accommodate the unauthorized, powerless, spiritless, and un-Christ-like ideas of Mr. Braden and his fellows? Now do, Paul! Nay,—

Since we heard of your faith in Christ Jesus, and of the love which ye have to all the saints, for the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye heard before in the word of the truth of the gospel; which is come unto you, as it is in all the world; and bringeth forth fruit, as it doth also in you.—Col. 1:4, 5, 6.

How did it come to the Colossians and all ancient saints? In “word, power, Holy Ghost, and much assurance.” How is it to come to all the world, to “every creature?” “As” it came to the apostles. Here is the point at which preachers of the Campbellite Church present looked into each other's eyes. And Mr. Braden with all his sophistry and sarcasm could not set it aside.

Mr. Braden drew up his best equipped forces, and seizing Paul's statement,—

When that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away (1 Cor. 13:10), placed it between him and all danger, and challenged to a deadly combat or an instant surrender. The glove was promptly lifted and when the smoke from the altar of the battle gods rolled away, lo! at the time at which "that which is in part is done away," only three of the "partial" are gone! Prophecies fail; tongues cease; knowledge vanishes. Mr. Braden, three out of nine spiritual gifts are gone, admitting that eighteen hundred years ago is the divine date for their death. Sir, if yours is the Church of Christ, show up the remaining six?

The apostle says:—

Now we see through a glass darkly.

We mildly interrogated Mr. Braden that if Paul and the complete body of Christ—the church—with inspired prophets, apostles, revelation by the work of the Holy Ghost taking of the "things" of "the Father" and showing them "unto you;" visions of God, tongues, interpretations, discernments, with Jesus "walking in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks;" and faith, wisdom, and knowledge; with arms long enough to "open the very door of heaven;"—if, with all these media and fountains of inspiration opened, the church of the living God saw through a glass darkly, pray how do you, Mr. Braden, and your church, expect to see at all, being destitute of all?

Mr. Braden argued at some length that Paul referred to the New Testament or its manuscripts as "that which is perfect;" but when that came, these "parts" or "partials" did not cease; for authentic history relates the continuance of the gifts far away into the fourth, the fifth, and even the sixth century. Again; it must be remembered that they were already in possession of the "perfect law" and had been since Christ came into all the cities of the Galileans preaching the gospel of the kingdom. (Matt. 4: 23.) The law was perfect when Jesus taught, and it was perfect when he committed it to the apostles, and when he said:—

For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.—John 17: 8.

It was a "perfect law" in A. D. 60, for St. James wrote:—

But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, etc.—James 1: 25.

So far as the perfect or completed word of God is concerned, its perfection consists in the fact of it being a perennial fountain of light from God, flowing into the church through the channels of the very "gifts" Mr. Braden seeks to have Paul "do away." The apostles could not and did not teach the "perfect law" without teaching these "gifts," for the simple reason that the law was not and is not perfect without them. Pluck the sun or the moon from the solar system and then call it perfect? The first movement as if the earth were suddenly whirled round from the splendors of noon into the shades of midnight, or as if the silvery starrage of material heaven were chased by a celestial tempest from the sapphire sky into the invisible infinite. In the vast arrangement of the "upper spheres" not one wheel jars or creaks, not a single discordant sound disturbs the deep quietude of the empyrean. Smoothly and subordinately each flashing orb performs its sublime and accustomed revolution and reflects light upon the low footstool of earth. The great God shines through them. So God has placed each "gift" in the proper orbit to complete the perfect "man" or "church," and through them shines his glory, intelligence, and blessings to the gospel children, scattering shafts of ineffable goodness "to every man as he will."

Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades, or loose the bands of Orion?

O man! can he "whose breath is in his nostrils," and who is crushed before the moth unclasp the brilliant starry bracelet and crown which God's own hand has fastened on the fair form of the church? The Holy Spirit, age after age, like "Orion" sheds down its rays with cheering splendor in the manifest impartation of gifts, when the perfect law is authoritatively executed and the perfect system moves off under the direction of its author. But as the thunderbolt in dashing away to lower regions loses its light, its fire, its reflective qualities, so Mr. Braden's church has lawlessly rushed into darkness and is no reflector of divine light! Its origin "is of the earth, earthy," and therefore it needs to "be born again, of water and of the Spirit."

DOCTORS AND TRAINED NURSES IN THE CHURCH.

I MUST confess that I was a little astonished upon reading in Saints' Herald for November 7, current volume, the following sentence:—

We believe in having physicians, and educated, trained nurses in our midst as they were in ancient times, and in the early days of this church.

I have no objections to all such professions being in the church any more than blacksmiths and housecarpenters; and I have no doubt that there were those having all these professions in the church in the early days; but as the paragraph reads it makes the physician and trained nurses church necessities; and although I have been acquainted with the church all my life, I never heard that doctrine taught before, and when the writer said, "We believe," etc., he should have abridged a little and said "I believe," etc.

I, too, admire the spirit of Bro. Carter's letter; but at the same time I do not believe in mixing the ordinance of God with human wisdom and skill, any further than the law of God directs, and the nourishing that the Lord advises he gives full directions how it shall be done and who shall do it; and not a word is said about physicians or educated, trained nurses. And I fully believe if the Lord had intended it to be so he would have told us so; and I believe that as the Saints have been advised to seek the aid of the doctors and nurses when they have not faith to be healed, it would be but a little while till none would be found who had sufficient faith to be healed under the administration of the elders, and the ordinance that has brought so much joy to the household of the Saints would soon go into disuse.

I know of but one revelation that could be made to do duty in favoring the position taken by the editor, and this is the calling of Thomas B. Marsh; and in my judgment the calling of Mr. Marsh is evidence on the other side. Section 30, paragraph 2, Doctrine and Covenants says:—

The hour of your mission is come; and your tongue shall be loosed, and you shall declare glad tidings of great joy unto this generation. You shall declare the things which have been revealed unto my servant Joseph Smith, Jr., etc.

Now, does this look like he was to continue the practice of medicine? Was anything of the kind revealed to "my servant Joseph Smith, Jr.?" I repeat what I wrote in the former letter; that Doctor Marsh was called to be a physician to the church just as Peter was called to be a fisherman to the church, or perhaps Luke to be a doctor to the church. The above is the only revelation that I know of that can be made to do duty in that line; and as for the "educated, trained nurses," we know of no other revelation that can be pressed into the service. If T. B. Marsh was called to be a doctor because his medical skill was needed, why should not God call physicians now by revelation as in that case, or as he did then? He has not neglected to renew the command to call for the elders, etc.

Does the Lord say either in the ancient or modern records of truth, "If you have not faith to be healed call for the physician"? No; he says nothing upon which such a saying can be based but says: "They shall be nourished with herbs and mild food," but not a word is said about doctors or trained nurses.

In a sermon preached by President Smith at the Logan Reunion, October 15, 1892, published as a supplement to the Saints' Herald, is most conclusive proof that faith in the ordinance of the laying on of hands unmixed with human skill is the most effective in healing disease. He states that at one time there was an epidemic at Plano, and that those who employed the doctors only lost the greatest number of patients; those who had the elders and doctors lost the second greatest number; while those who had the elders alone had the fewest number of deaths. This very statement should be sufficient argument against the doctrine of physicians and trained nurses. He also stated that the same or much the same thing had occurred at Lamoni, Iowa. So I am thoroughly convinced that it would be more profitable to preach faith in the ordinances of the house of God to the Saints than to simply tell them "If you have not faith to be healed, send for the physician."

All things are possible to them that believe.

I know of cases where this advice to call for the doctors has done material harm. It may be said that such speaks but little for the stability of the one injured, but suppose it does, these tender plants will grow strong by proper care and proper cultivation.

Six doctors tackled Johnny Jones;
They blistered and they bled him,
With squills and anti-billious pills
And ipecac they fed him,
They stirred him up with calomel,
And tried to reach his liver;
But all in vain, the little man
Was wafted o'er the river.

J. C. CLAPP.

SAN JOSE, California, November 22, 1894.

PROPER AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

I WISH, as a lay member of the church, to enter an earnest protest against the extreme position taken by the writer of the article entitled, "Wise Counsel is Profitable to all Saints," in the Herald of December 5, in regard to innocent amusements and proper and healthful exercise and recreation.

We are seeking, through the Religion Society and the Daughters of Zion, and in other ways, to impress upon our young men and women the importance of properly caring for their bodies, as well as their minds, and are frequently counseled to the same effect in the Herald and Autumn Leaves. Most people are now satisfied that innocent recreation in moderation is beneficial, and that a reasonable amount of proper exercise is just as necessary for the proper and harmonious development of a sound mind in a sound body, as is proper food. It is hardly necessary to enter into any argument to prove this—it is self-evident. A man cannot be as good a Christian or as useful a member of society who is weak and sickly as if he were strong and healthy.

The writer says that a young man who is a consistent Latter Day Saint cannot "resort to some playground, croquet, or checkers for pastime." He asks,

Is it commendable for brethren who profess the name of Latter Day Saints to join in the athletic sports of the day; betting, ball-playing?

He says further:—

The ball playground is no better than the saloon for the Saint visitor.

By the use of this language, with no qualification whatever, he condemns almost every form of outdoor recreation, assuming that betting, Sabbath breaking, and intemperance are inseparably connected with every form of athletic sports, and condemns even the harmless games of croquet and checkers as inconsistent with "Latter Day Saint gospel teaching."

Such wholesale condemnation, without any discrimination even between that which is undeniably good and that which is confessedly bad, is, it seems to me, unfair and unchristian, and will tend to prejudice against us many who might otherwise be disposed to listen to the teachings of the church, and will also tend to confuse our own young people as to the real distinction between right and wrong, and to give them the gloomy ideas of religion which were held by the Puritans, but which we think are not taught in the Bible. The religion of Jesus Christ is one of hope and happiness, not one of gloom and despair. If the writer's strictures were confined to those things which deserve them, they would receive the approval of all right-minded persons; but when a whole class, good and bad, is indiscriminately attacked, not only is such approval withheld; but, in many, and especially those outside the church, a spirit of antagonism is aroused; so that, to my mind, such articles are likely to do great harm to many and very little good to any.

The time has long since gone by when it was thought that a Christian life was incompatible with robust health. People now understand that it is as necessary to take proper care of their bodies as of their souls, as, upon the condition of the body, that of the soul largely depends. No one, whether elder or layman, can have the strength of character, or can do as good work, or accomplish as much, with a diseased body as he can with a healthy one. In fact, it is as much one's duty to take proper care of his body as it is to attend a prayer meeting.

Of course no one disputes that there are many "athletic sports," so-called, that are simply a very thin cloak for gambling, drinking, and Sabbath breaking; but there is no more legitimate connection between such things and healthful exercise in moderation, than there is between the drinking of a glass of whisky and a glass of pure water. To discriminate between what is clearly right and proper, and what is clearly wrong or tends in that direction, is one thing; but to inveigh against all pastimes because evil men do wrong under the guise of athletics, is quite another. I am as strongly opposed to every form of wrongdoing, and to the wasting of time in frivolity or immoderate recreation, as is our brother; but I am just as strongly opposed to intemperate denunciations of innocent amusements and healthful exercise.

As I understand it, our religion teaches us to make the very best of ourselves in every way, that we may do our whole duty to others as well as to ourselves; but it does not debar us from innocent pleasures or healthful recreation; for it is as much the duty of a Christian to be healthy and happy as it is to refrain from evil.

H. E. JARVIS.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, December 8, 1894.

Conference Minutes.

SOUTHERN MISSOURI.

This district met at Zonker, Missouri, November 30-December 2; Henry Sparling president, C. J. Spurlock vice president, Joseph Ward secretary. Branches reporting: Vera Cruz 81; 12 baptized, 2 received, 1 died, 1 expelled. Burnham 38; no change. Woodside 15; no change. West Plains 66; 5 baptized. Willow Springs failed to report. Ministry reporting: H. Sparling baptized 10, C. J. Spurlock baptized 2, J. Ward baptized 1, C. M. Bootman, W. N. Currier; Priests A. M. D. McGuire, M. L. Davis, T. Hamilton, H. M. Atwell; Teacher R. A. Kincaid. Bishop's agent's report: Received $43; due elders' families, about $75. It was unanimously agreed to hold a reunion at Mt. Grove next summer. Preaching by H. M. Atwell, H. Sparling, C. M. Bootman, and J. Ward. The business all passed off without a jar.

FAIR WEST.

Conference convened with the German Stewartsville branch on December 7 and 8, 1894; T. T. Hinderks president, W. E. Summerfield vice president, C. P. Faul secretary. Branch reports: German Stewartsville 72, Edgerton Junction 36, St. Joseph 114, Wakenda 44, Stewartsville 112, Delano 94, Dekalb referred back for correction, Kingston 85, Pleasant Grove 86. Ministry reporting: Elders A. H. Smith, T. T. Hinderks, J. M. Terry, W. Lewis, T. W. Chatburn baptized 10, J. D. Flanders, T. Revel, W. E. Summerfield baptized 2, I. N. Roberts, J. Lampert, H. C. Bronson, J. Rounds baptized 8, D. E. Powell baptized 1, R. Archibald, B. Dice, J. C. Elvert, L. L. Babbitt, A. J. Cato, W. Moore, A. W. Head baptized 1, C. P. Faul, and F. C. Graham; Priests C. Householder, C. Hinderks, A. Nesser, Jr., F. Uphoff, J. S.

Constance, T. Curtis, P. Peterson; Teachers J. Lund, T. McKee, J. Middleton, W. Haden, J. Butler, L. Hovenga; Deacons J. Caley, G. Mauzey. Present officers were reelected for the coming quarter. Missionaries in the district were sustained. Whereas we believe that the presentation of matters deserving our best thought during the last moments of conference is not productive of the best good, therefore be it resolved that hereafter no new business be presented to our conference after the Saturday evening session. Carried. A recommendation from the Stewartsville branch that Bro. J. N. York be ordained to the office of priest was granted and he was so ordained. Preaching by J. M. Terry and A. H. Smith. Adjourned to meet with the St. Joseph branch March 9 and 10.

RESOLUTION.

The following was passed:—

Resolved that we as a conference deplore the action had three months ago, in reference to the Bishop having to do with the allowance of the ministry in our district to their disadvantage or improper discrimination between them; believing that these matters are carefully and prayerfully considered by the authorities of the church that have the finances of the church in charge.

We hereby ask pardon of Bishop E. L. Kelley for our hasty action.

INDEPENDENCE.

Conference convened at Armstrong, Kansas, December 8, at ten a. m.; R. May president, J. Cole Moxon secretary. Nineteen elders, priests, and teachers reported, all of whom are doing labor as best they can under the circumstances. Branch reports: Independence 839; first Kansas City 89; Armstrong 213; Pleasant View 15; Burtville 45; Lee's Summit 29; Holden 37. The Bishop's agent, R. May, reported: Balance on hand last report $392 85; collected $395 09; paid out $683.50; on hand $104 44. District treasurer, J. Cole Moxon, reported: On hand last report $2.22; paid out 35 cents; on hand $1.87. A collection was taken up for district funds and $4.15 was received. District officers, R. May president, J. W. Brackenbury vice president, J. Cole Moxon secretary and treasurer were sustained for six months. Sr. J. Cole Moxon was chosen assistant district secretary. Preaching by J. A. Robinson and I. N. White. Adjourned to meet at Independence, Missouri, the second Saturday and Sunday in March.

FREMONT.

Conference convened at Saints' chapel, Thurman, Iowa, October 20, 1894, at ten a. m.; D. Hougas in the chair, H. F. Durfey secretary pro tem. The president made a few remarks relative to the duties of the Saints. Branches reporting, Union, Hamburg, Elm Creek, Farm Creek, Plum Creek, Glenwood, and Shenandoah. Visiting brethren enfranchized. Ministry reporting: Elders G. Kemp, W. Gaylord, J. W. Waldsmith, John Carlile, H. Kemp, D. Hougas baptized 9, J. B. Cline baptized 1, J. Comstock, T. A. Hougas, S. Orton, A. Badham, W. Leeka, N. L. Mortimore, H. Hershey, W. D. Ledingham, G. F. Walling baptized 1, J. W. Calkins; Priests H. F. Durfey, F. G. Dungee, D. Comstock, L. C. Donaldson; Teachers S. Dike, Jr., J. C. Moore, J. Goode. Licenses were granted to Brn. James Comstock, S. P. Becksted, Frank Becksted, J. Felix Vanderpool, Charles Case, J. C. Moore, A. J. Davidson. The committee appointed to audit the Bishop's agent's account reported the account and report correct. The conference accepted the recommendations of the Plum Creek branch and ordained Brn. A. J. Davidson priest and J. C. Moore elder. Bro. S. J. Roberts, also all officers of the district, were permitted to labor as circumstances permit. The present officers of the district were sustained: President, D. Hougas, secretary, T. A. Hougas, and Bishop's agent, Wm. Leeka. The next conference was located at Shenandoah at call of the president. The committee appointed by the Southwestern Iowa reunion at Wheel-r, Iowa, to locate the reunion for 1895, reported that they had decided to locate it at Council Bluffs, Iowa. D. Hougas, John Carlile, and Henry Kemp committee. The preaching was by D. Hougas, H. Kemp, J. W. Waldsmith, and John Carlile.

Sunday School Associations.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS, ATTENTION!

If your school is not a member of the General Sunday Association we will esteem it a great favor if you will write us telling us why it is not; and when we receive your address we will write you giving you some reasons why we think it ought to be. That is fair isn't it?

If you are members and can suggest what you think would be improvements don't hesitate at all about it but write at once.

We want to progress in this work and want to add both schools and improvements. By giving this matter your earnest and prompt attention and address as indicated below, you will be adding your mite to the upbuilding of the cause we all so much love.

W. N. ROBINSON,

Sec. Gen. S. S. Ass'n.

INDEPENDENCE, Missouri.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

Programme for the convention of Galland's Grove district to be held at Dow City, March 9, 1895, commencing at two p. m.: Song 144; invocation; song 203; business of convention; song 174; speech by F. R. Schafer, subject, How to get the scholars more interested in studying their lessons. Three-minute speeches called by superintendent; song 184; benediction. At seven p. m., song 79; invocation; cantata by Dow City little folks, in charge of Jennie Baker and J. Pearsall; a training class by the district superintendent; song 74; blackboard exercise by Dora Young; paper by Sister Duckett; recitation by Emma Hain; vocal music by Galland's Grove choir; closing anthem 554 Harmony. Don't forget to bring your song books.

J. M. BAKER,
NELLIE RUDD,
JAMES PEARSALL, } Committee.

Miscellaneous Department.

HAUN'S MILLS MONUMENT FUND.

At last report.....	$15 95
Orra Reed.....	60
Frank Fitzgerald.....	15
Amy Fitzgerald.....	15
C. J. Hunt.....	25
Joseph Carlson.....	10
C. R. Duncan.....	10
Wm. Mannering.....	10
Cecelia Swenson.....	10
Mary Lyon.....	05
F. C. Keck.....	10
W. P. Crane.....	10
J. A. Roberts.....	10
E. F. Masterson.....	10
Walter Lloyd.....	10
Fred Scarcliff.....	15
L. A. Lyon.....	10
J. B. Schroeder.....	10
A. Lloyd.....	10
J. C. Foss.....	10
Ed Beebe.....	05
R. S. Reynolds.....	10
Mantela Wagner.....	10
J. R. Gauger.....	25
C. M. Jarvis.....	25
T. L. Flanders.....	50
J. A. Flanders.....	50
Ida M. Winner.....	25
Sarah Hudson.....	1 00
Mary Chatburn.....	50
Denver Saints by R. Etzenhouser.....	1 75
John Dias.....	25
C. P. Paul.....	25
James Limb.....	25
M. Peterson.....	50
D. Dawson.....	1 00
L. Moore.....	25
M. Trengove.....	25
Amount to date, November 1, 1894, ...	$26 70

This fund has grown so slowly, on account of hard times no doubt, that it is thought best to not try to put up a stone this winter, but as soon as sufficient is raised the stone will be erected. Moneys on hand will be put in bank for safe keeping. All remittances or advices must be addressed to,

T. W. CHATBURN,
Kingston, Mo.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

Saints of the Western Maine District:—I feel it my duty to call your attention to the necessity of bringing in your tithes and offerings as the Lord has ordained that his people should do. There is at the present time great need of money to provide for the families of the elders that are laboring diligently for the good of the work. Their families have been left to us as a district to care for. Shall we do it, brethren, and thus sustain the brethren that are in the field? God in his wisdom has made it a work intrusted to all; and the temporal law, when kept by the Saints, is a means of unity of work in all. There are some two hundred and twenty members at present in the district. Eighty-two of that number have their names on the agent's book as helpers in this temporal means for the spread of the gospel. Some of the brethren and sisters have done nobly, have given freely of their means for the work. God bless them; and he will bless them, and all that will so do. There is still quite a number whose pages in the agent's book are blank as regards tithes and offerings. Dear Saints, as we are to be judged out of the books, let it not be found there that we have not tried to keep that very necessary to be kept law of God. The widow's mite was as acceptable to the Lord as the larger sum of the rich. You who have but little to give, send it along. I assure you it will be acceptable. My address is, Sedgwick, Maine.

WM. G. PERT, Agent.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Conference of the Southwestern Texas district will convene at San Antonio, Texas, Friday, February 8, at seven p. m., not on the 23d, as erroneously announced.

W. H. DAVENPORT, Sec.

BORN.

TOMLINSON.—To Bro. and Sr. Tomlinson, at Fruita, Colorado, June 27, 1894, a daughter, and named Lena. Blessed at their home September 30, 1864, by Elder James Kemp.

SNOOKS.—To Mr. W. and Sr. C. Snooks, at Delta, Colorado, May 19, 1894, a son, and named Lobris Park. Blessed at their home October 27, 1894, by Elder James Kemp.

HUBBARD.—To Bro. L. and Sr. A. Hubbard, at Brown, Colorado, August 5, 1894, a son, and named Lutellus. Blessed October 29, 1894, at the home of Bro. Tom Park by Elder James Kemp.

PARK.—To Bro. T. and Sr. Eva Park, June 2, 1894, at Brown, Colorado, a son, and named Melvin. Blessed October 29, 1894, at their home, by Elder James Kemp.

SCHMID.—To Bro. M. and Sr. E. Schmid, at Brown, Colorado, April 6, 1894, a son, and named Cecil E. Blessed November 4, 1894, at their home, by Elder James Kemp.

ROBERTSON.—At Amber, Iowa, January 6, 1894, to Mr. Peter and Sr. Mary A. Robertson, a son, and named Lloyd Peter. Blessed December 5, 1894, by Elder John Heide.

GREEN.—At Onslow, Iowa, July 11, 1894, to Mr. Ed and Sr. Susie Green, a daughter, and named Ruth Agnes. Blessed December 6, 1894, by Elder John Heide.

MARRIED.

BRIGGS—GILLEN.—In Lamoni, Iowa, at the residence of the bride's father, on the evening of November 28, 1894, Bro. J. D. Briggs, son of Elder E. C. Briggs, and Sr. Nora, eldest daughter of Elder James W. and Sr. Nancy Gillen, all of Lamoni. President Joseph Smith officiated in the ceremony, the prayer being offered by Bishop E. L. Kelley. "And all went merry as a marriage bell."

DERRY—ANDERSON.—In Lamoni, Iowa, at the residence of the bride's father, December 12, at 7:30 p. m., President Joseph Smith officiating, Bro. G. H. Derry and Sr. Lottie Anderson, daughter of Elder William and Sister Isabelle Anderson, all of Lamoni. No pleasanter company need be expected for an occasion of the kind than was present and enjoyed the happiness of the young people and the placid contentment of the relatives and friends who witnessed the ceremony and the feast that followed.

DIED.

HEBNER.—Bro. Mark W. Hebner died September 3, 1894. His death was sudden and sad. He was a brakeman, and in some manner was thrown under the train. Bro. Hebner was born December 25, 1863; was baptized March 25, 1888, by J. J. Cornish. Funeral sermon by F. H. Brooks.

BAY.—John H., infant son of Bro. Lyman R. and Sr. Lizzie Bay, was born October 16, 1894, and died November 16, 1894, at Manchester, Texas. Funeral services conducted by C. M. Fulks, sermon by A. B. Moore. Interment in the Saints' chapel graveyard.

EVANS.—In Lamoni, Iowa, December 10, 1894, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Evans, wife of Mr. John B. Evans, aged 55 years, 1 month, and 9 days. Funeral services the 12th inst., in Saints' church; sermon by Elder W. W. Blair, assisted by Elder C. Scott. Text, "A good name is better than precious ointment; and the day of death than the day of one's birth."—Ecc. 7:1. Mrs. Evans was a worthy, Christian woman. Had health permitted, she would have obeyed the restored gospel, for such was her ardent desire. The Lord will judge and reward sincere souls "according to their works and their desires." Alma 15:11; 19:8, 13.

WATKINS.—At Columbus, Nebraska, November 22, 1894, Ethel, youngest daughter of Morgan and Sr. Susan Watkins, after a sickness of four days, lacking but three days of eleven years of earth life. She was of a gentle disposition, loved her Sunday school, being the farthest off, but usually the first at the school. Funeral service conducted by Elder H. J. Hudson at the cemetery.

GODFREY.—Captain John W. Godfrey died at Lamoni, Iowa, December 2, 1894. He was born in Pocasset, Massachusetts, March 19, 1818. Before the war he was engaged in the rice and cotton trade along the Carolina coast, and because of his familiarity therewith he was chosen sailing master and chief pilot for the South Atlantic squadron, serving under Admirals Dupont and Dahlgren at Hilton Head, Port Royal, and Charleston, 1861 to 1863. Disease attacking him prevented further service. Suffering all these years he finally died of the same disease, that of the kidneys. He was an honorable man, noble in life, upright in conduct, and faithful in heart. A member of the Baptist Church, yet during the year he lived in Lamoni he became attached to the place and the people. The aged wife and two daughters, one of them Sr. Mary A. White, of Lamoni, deeply feel the great and unexpected loss. Funeral sermon by Bro. H. A. Stebbins, assisted by Bro. A. S. Cochran.

CHURCH LIBRARY.

We thank the Ensign management for a copy of a neatly gotten up sixty-page pamphlet sent us, entitled, "Three Bibles Compared—or the Results of Scholarship and Inspiration." It also contains a chapter on "Important Facts from High Authority." The comparative texts are arranged in juxtaposition, hence are very readily compared, one with the other.

JOHN SCOTT, Librarian.

SPECIAL GIFT LIST

FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

With the approach of the Holiday Season comes the spirit of Christmas—the spirit of giving. What shall one give to friends, relatives, or neighbors? Articles of merit, of true worth, certainly; whether great or small. Those worthy of affection and friendship; Gifts that are permanent in value; Remembrances that perish not with the mere using; Gifts that strengthen the sentiments that bind receiver and giver.

For Grandparents, for Parents, for Sons, Daughters, Children, and Friends,—for all, old and young, our book list has articles of value, such as will command appreciation and impart good.

THE BIBLE,

INSPIRED TRANSLATION,

is a gift worthy of any. For an elder in the field, for father, mother, sister, or brother, for anyone who reads to improve the mind and enrich the heart, this volume is a life-treasure.

Bound in four styles. Prices: Sheep, $1.25; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.75; Morocco, gilt edges, $2.25; Morocco, Flexible binding, gilt edges, (a very popular style, and much used by ministers and Sunday school teachers and scholars,) $3.75.

Name on any book in gilt letters 15 cts. extra.

THE BOOK OF MORMON,

a volume of equal worth to all who read and study the precepts of life, the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Large type edition, especially for aged readers, two sizes: Cloth, leather backs and corners, $1.50; Seal Grain Russia, $1.75; Seal Grain Russia, gilt edges, $2.00.

Regular size: Morocco Grain Russia, 1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25. Bound in any style—flexible or otherwise, and with blank leaves inclosed, as ordered.

THE DOCTRINE and COVENANTS

contains the revelations of God to the church in this dispensation. Morocco Grain Russia, $1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25.

THE BIBLE,

KING JAMES' TRANSLATION,

Eyre and Spottiswoode's edition, thin paper, flexible binding, $4.75. (For Oxford and other editions, also New Testaments, see catalogue.)

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

Used throughout the church in song service and in the home. A popular gift for singers. It contains every hymn in the Saints' Harp, also 555 pages of music, about 720 tunes. A drill book; an instructor in vocal music. As the book is arranged, any hymn may be turned to any tune. Leather backs, cloth sides, $2.00; Red Morocco backs and corners, red cloth sides, with gilt edges entire, very handsome in appearance, $2.75. Music only, in plain binding, for instrumental performers, $1.25.

AFTERGLOW,

a volume of choice, selected poems. Handsomely bound, beautifully ornamented, elegantly illustrated.

Published in aid of the Gospel Boat fund.

A handsome and lasting present; a book that will be treasured by all lovers of poetry, 265 pages; Cloth, $1.50; White Vegetable Parchment, $1.75; Leather, $2.00; Morocco, colors red and black, gilt edges, $2.50.

HESPERIS,

POEMS BY DAVID H. SMITH.

The author's best compositions, many of them favorites with Latter Day Saints. A volume that will please all readers of exalted sentiment.

Beautifully bound and ornamented; Cloth, gilt edges, $1.50.

THE SAINTS' HARP,

WORDS ONLY.

1120 hymns, original and selected; those used throughout the church.

Morocco Grain Russia, $1.00; Imitation Morocco, gilt edges, $1.25.

WELSH HYMN BOOK.

393 hymns; Leather, 60 cents.

DANISH HYMN BOOK.

Cloth, leather backs, 75 cents.

GERMAN HYMN BOOK.

(ZION'S HARFE.)

100 hymns; original, selected, and translated. Leather, 40 cents; Morocco Grain Russia, gilt edges, 60 cents.

The Herald Office list of publications includes many other books of value, including, RULES OF ORDER AND DEBATE, revised, price 40 cents; ABSTRACT OF EVIDENCE, TEMPLE LOT SUIT, with legal arguments of Counsel, bound in law sheep, $3.00; THE COMPENDIUM, prices 75 cents and $1.00; THE INSTRUCTOR, 75 cents, $1.00, and $1.50; JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS (Lucy Smith's History), 70 cents; JOSEPH THE SEER, His prophetic mission, and the Book of Mormon, 35 and 50 cents; BRADEN-KELLEY DEBATE, $1.50; PRESIDENCY AND PRIESTHOOD, $1.25; WHAT IS MAN? 35 and 50 cents; THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH OR WEEKLY REST DAY, 25 and 40 cents; RUINS REVISITED, $1.00; FORSCUTT-SHINN DISCUSSION, 25 cents; OBJECTIONS TO THE BOOK OF MORMON AND DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS EXAMINED AND REFUTED, 25 and 40 cents; VOICE OF WARNING, 10 cents; THE SILVER THIMBLES, THE HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS, two books for little children, 20 cents each. THE GOSPEL QUARTERLIES, Senior and Intermediate and Primary Grade Sunday School lessons; also a full list of Sunday school literature, tracts, branch and district records, blank forms etc.

For complete descriptive list with prices, see catalogue, mailed free to any address.

Address orders and remittances to

DAVID DANCER,

Business Manager,

LAMONI, Iowa.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

FOR SALE.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, nearly new, well furnished, and contains TWENTY ROOMS. Is situated in the business portion of the town of Lamoni, and has a large and well-established trade. Address, L. J. BARR, Lamoni, Iowa.

Lock Box 287.

BLAIR MERCANTILE CO.

Our Specialties:—

Fancy Dry Goods,
Fine Shoes.

Henry Stoddard, President. J. D. Briggs, Ass't Cashier. Frank Stoddard, Cashier.

COMMERCIAL BANK, LAMONI, - IOWA.

Proper Attention given to all Branches of Legitimate banking.
Interest paid on time deposits. Correspondence Solicited.

OFFICERS. DIRECTORS.
Israel L. Rogers, President. I. L. Rogers, Robt. Winning, D. F. Nicholson, Cashier. D. F. Nicholson, S. V. Bailey, F. B. Blair, Asst Cashier. George W. Blair.

LAMONI STATE BANK.

(Incorporated.)
Paid up Capital, $25,000.
Liability of Stockholders, $50,000.
INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

THOS. TEALE & SON

Carry the largest and most complete line of
Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries, & Hardware

in town. We buy in large quantities, and for cash, and can meet all competition.

THOS. TEALE & SON.

HOMES AT LAMONI.

Land for sale, situated one quarter to one half mile southwest of Lamoni; in three, four, or five acre lots.

These plats will make nice homes; suitable for gardening, raising of small fruits, etc. Prices reasonable; terms on application.

Address, J. W. GILLEN, Lamoni, Iowa.

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.

Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., New York, 361 Broadway.

A BARGAIN.

A good House containing six rooms with pantry, hall, and bath room; good well of water, outbuildings, etc. Lot 140 x 150. Ten minutes walk from church or business center of town. For sale cheap if taken soon. Address "H," Care of Herald Office, Lamoni, Iowa.

B. D. FLEET,

GENERAL MERCHANDISE,

LAMONI, - - IOWA.

A. B. MAIR,

WHOLESALE FRUITS and PRODUCE.

General Commission.

Berries Apples, Potatoes, etc. Car lots a Specialty.
Consignments Solicited. Prompt Returns.

518 Pearl St. Council Bluffs, Iowa.

HOXIE'S AUTOMATIC

Ice Cream Freezer

CAPACITY UNLIMITED.

For Hotels, Restaurants, and Family Use.
Will freeze Ice Cream, Lemonade, Sherbets, and all kinds of Ices instantly. Several Machines combined in one, with saving of 80 per cent of ice. Agents wanted. Exclusive territory can be secured by addressing

HOXIE BROS.,

17 CHARDON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

JOSEPH THE SEER

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

Paper covers 35
Muslin binding..... 50

BRANCH RECORDS.

Leather backs and corners, muslin sides, printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, Marriages, Ordinations, Deaths, Removals, and other changes in systematic and concise form 1 50

DISTRICT RECORDS.

Printed and bound similar to Branch Records. . . 2 50

Lots $200 each,

In my addition to Lamoni. Shade trees, lawn, and sidewalks; ten minutes' walk from L. D. S. church. Terms one fourth cash, and balance yearly.

Write for maps to D. F. NICHOLSON,
Lamoni State Bank.

AGENTS WANTED.

Send 10 cents for box of Hoxie's Instant Lustre. Town or County given free. Secured by deed.

You can make a permanent business. Profits large. Address,
A. N. HOXIE, BOSTON, Mass.

Zion's Ensign.

52 SERMONS A YEAR.

Subscription price, 1 year.....$1 00

" " 6 months.... 50

" " 3 months.... 25

For introduction, 4 months.... 25

Address all communications and make all orders payable to

ZION'S ENSIGN,

INDEPENDENCE, MO.

TRACTS

ORDER BY NUMBERS.

2. Truth Made Manifest; per doz. 15c., 100 ..$1 00
3. Voice of the Good Shepherd; per doz. 5c., 100 30
4. Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and Kirtland Temple Suit; per doz. 3c., 100 15
6. The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design, and Who Shall Administer; per doz. 15c., 100.....1 00
7. Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 5c., 100. 30
8. Fullness of the Atonement; per doz. 15c., 100 1 00
9. Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; per doz. 20c., 100.....1 30
10. The Narrow Way; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
11. The Plan of Salvation; per doz. 20c., 100...1 20
12. The Bible vs. Polygamy; per doz. 15c., 100.1 00
14. Reply to Orson Pratt; per doz. 15c., 100...1 00
16. Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
17. The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; per doz. 15c., 100 1 00
20. The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; per doz. 15c., 1001 00
21. Truths by Three Witnesses, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
22. Faith and Repentance; per doz. 10c., 100 .. 50
23. Baptism; per doz. 10c., 100 65
24. The Kingdom of God; per doz. 5c., 100 30
25. Laying on of Hands; per doz. 5c., 100 30
27. The Sabbath Question; per doz. 15c., 100...1 00
29. Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
31. What is Truth? True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
32. Which is the Church; per doz. 5c., 100.... 30
36. The Spalding Story Reexamined; per doz. 10c., 100..... 50
41. The Gospel, and Epitome of Faith; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
42. Rejection of the Church; per doz. 10c., 100 50
43. One Wife or Many; per doz. 15c., 1001 00
44. Crooked Paths; per doz. 15c., 1001 00
45. The Reorganized Church in Succession from 1830 to the Present. A thirty-one page pamphlet containing statements of faith and practices rules and usages of the Church and of heresies, and departures from it. Important papers and statements from leading church authorities past and present are reprinted. Each 5c., per doz. 30c., 100...2 00
46. The Pure Gospel of Christ. A list of questions and answers, with blank form preaching notice on the back, same size as Epitome; per doz. 3c., 100..... 15
47. The Future State; per doz. 15c., 1001 00
- Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection of Jesus Christ; each 5c., per doz..... 50
- Prophecy on the Rebellion; per hundred . . . 10

Special prices furnished on application for tracts in lots of one thousand.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 26, 1894.

No. 52.

CONTENTS:

EDITORIAL:

Truths Told at Random.....	821
Autumn Leaves at $1.25.....	823
Practical-Impractical.....	823
Special notice.....	823
Reincarnation Theory in a Nutshell..	824

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN:

The Physical and Mental develop- ment of Children.....	825
The Evanelia.....	826

LETTER DEPARTMENT:.....

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Sermon by Pres. W. W. Blair.....	828
Corrections Late, but Needed.....	832
La Grippe.....	832

CONFERENCE MINUTES:

Southern Nebraska.....	833
Nevada.....	833
Pottawattamie.....	833

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS:.....

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT:

Notice of Appointment of Bishop's Agent.....	833
Scattered Members.....	833
One More call to Sunday School Workers.....	833
Index to Volume 41.....	834

PROFESSOR HUXLEY'S TEST OF RELIGION APPLIED TO SCIENCE.

In his latest book,* Professor Huxley undertook to test the claims of religion by the canons of science. The Rev. William Barry, D.D., writing to the Catholic World, November, says that Professor Huxley believed that "he has made an end, argumentatively speaking, of the Christian evidences," and then the Doctor undertakes to demonstrate that the Professor "has left the Christian evidences untouched." The Doctor states the case in this wise: "Either science is a dream or religion is true," but, he says, the Professor's book tells us that religion is a dream, because, according to Huxley's argument, the Christian sciences will not stand the test of logic. It is at this point that the divine takes issue with the scientist. He asks: "But what of science; will it stand the test of logic? Does it not, too, on the Professor's own admission, rest ultimately on faith?" Quoting Huxley's language, "It is obvious that the axioms upon which it [ratiocination] is based cannot be demonstrated by ratiocination," and also the assertion, "It is surely plain that faith is not necessarily entitled to dispense with ratiocination, because ratiocination cannot dispense with faith as a starting point," Dr. Barry replies:—

"No, I grant that it is not so entitled. But let us see where we are in this remarkable transformation scene. What is faith; what are its powers, and prerogatives, and limits; how is it related to logic, and by what kind of necessity is the intellect thus made its subject and follower?—these questions seem to spring up around us at the touch of Mr. Huxley's enchanted wand, and we find ourselves in a new world. Is faith, and not logic, the last guarantee of science? One 'great act of faith,' Professor Huxley admits—with an unwilling mind, I fancy. But he does, and it must be a legitimate source of certitude or else there is none. Let us inquire, then, whether this is the only act of faith admissible, remembering that upon it the whole 'objective reality' of science depends. Faith and certitude, so it would appear, instead of excluding one another, have turned out, when we consider them closely, to be the same thing. On what grounds, I ask again, does Mr. Huxley submit himself to this 'great act' which is the starting point, not only of all science, but of all experience? Not, he candidly answers, by reason either of experience or of demonstration. And yet all our knowledge of objective reality—that is to say, of truth as existing outside of us—depends on this faith which cannot be demonstrated. Agnosticism is shattered from the beginning by so large and formidable a concession. For it is manifest, I say, that all the so-called 'demonstrations' in which science indulges are thus, according to Professor Huxley, conditional on the truth of a principle that can never be proved; the conclusions of all its reasoning derive their strength from the premises, and of these the great major sentence is so far from being demonstrated that it is not even demonstrable. Is it true, then, that we arrive at our knowledge of things by a single method only? Or if there is not another method, no less certain than explicit ratiocination, although utterly different from it? And if agnosticism means, and may be summed up into, the recognition of one method and the denial of any other, what becomes of agnosticism on this showing?

"Let us be quite clear. Professor Huxley talks of one 'great act of faith,' viz., belief in the uniformity of nature. How great an act of faith it is, has been dwelt upon, in his usual nervous and forcible language, by David Hume, who has no difficulty in proving that the connection between past and future on which we rely when making our scientific prognostics cannot be in the facts taken by themselves, but must be in some principle which goes beyond simple experience. And in so contending he is undoubtedly well warranted, as a little reflection (to say nothing of Kant and the metaphysicians who have followed him) will show. But what I desire to lay stress upon is the immense number of 'acts of faith,' over and above that which regards the uniformity of nature, implied and admitted in Professor Huxley's recognition that the logical process, or ratiocination, is valid, and is dependent for its validity upon principles that, from the nature of the case, cannot be proved. He may call them by what name he pleases; but, if anything is evident, it is that, according to him, the whole universe of reasoning, like the whole universe of facts, is founded upon 'faith,' and not upon 'demonstration.' . . .

"Thus then, our agnostic, meaning to tie us down to one method, and thereby to make an end of theology—and in fact of religion altogether—cannot help admitting, for his own purpose, the faith he has so abundantly scorned. He believes in 'nature' and scoffs to believe in 'Supernature.' But he comes to nature by faith, exactly like the benighted multitude who, by faith, have attained to a knowledge of God. Were he a consistent agnostic, resolved to grant nothing which is not 'demonstrated or demonstrable', he could in the end grant nothing at all, and must remain dumb for want of self-evident, though undemonstrable, first principles. Where 'nature' is concerned, I have said, Mr. Huxley is a dogmatist. And what will he answer when his favorite Hume observes that 'no philosophical dogmatist denies that there are difficulties both with regard to the senses and to all science, and that these difficulties are, in a regular, logical method, absolutely unsolvable? . . . Professor Huxley maintains, with every possible variety of asseveration, that the science he has acquired is real knowledge, objectively valid and subjectively true. Yet, in the last analysis, it reposes, by his own candid admission, on faith, and nothing else but faith. Why, then, may not religion repose on faith also? And what becomes of the single method of arriving at the truth?

* "Essays upon Some Controverted Questions." By T. H. Huxley. London and New York: Macmillan.

"We have, therefore, according to Professor Huxley, a power within us, as a constituent part of our intellectual nature, by which things neither demonstrated nor demonstrable are certainly known to us. Nay, it is the source of every certitude, and, in Wordsworth's noble language, 'the master-light of all our seeing.' Take that power away, and our knowledge would sink into a heap or a drift of mere sensations, without connection, or scope, or solidity. The particular certitudes of which we boast are simply an outcome of those first general certitudes when applied to details, without which no science could for a moment exist. The logical faculty, dealing with conclusions, comes second. The faculty which deals with premises, which ascertains and secures them, comes first. It affords, not by reasoning, but by some altogether different process, the foundation on which all dogmatism, not excluding Professor Huxley's, is at length compelled to rest itself. We cannot prove that it is valid, without taking it for granted, but unless we do take it for granted, nothing whatever can be maintained against the assaults of the skeptic. Aristotle has distinguished it as the faculty, or habit, of first principles. And inasmuch as it contemplates self-evident truth, and holds within itself the guarantee of certitude, we shall do no lesser faculty wrong in calling this, which is the light and strength of all the rest, by the name of intellect or reason.

"Is it not manifest that agnosticism must be limited as soon as we perceive that there are ranges of truths not demonstrable, and yet certain, in mathematics, in physics, in logic, in biology—and why not in religion? Finally, though we granted our absolute powerlessness to 'demonstrate' the great first principles on which theism rests, and from which natural theology has been derived and to some extent enlarged into a system, which conclusions depending on axioms and postulates of their own, we should not be allowing thereby that religion was merely a sentiment, but likening it in its origin to science, and therefore not taking from its lawful influence upon our intellect. The pertinent inquiry is not whether the axioms of theism are 'demonstrable,' but whether the mind is necessitated, by their self-evidence, to affirm them."—Literary Digest.

WHAT JAPAN THINKS OF ENGLAND.

THE attempt of the British Government to bring about a joint action of the powers on behalf of China is fiercely resented in Japan. The Japanese will not allow the fruits of their exertions to be wrested from them by outsiders, and they intimate that they would sooner fight the whole world than submit to arbitration before China has been humbled. The offered mediation on the part of the President of the United States has, therefore, been politely declined by the Japanese Government.

The Boyeki, Tokio, thinks that British interference need not discourage Japan. The paper says:—

"Though Great Britain was once the most powerful nation in the East, there are now many rivals who are outdoing her. Moreover, the present Orient is not the same as in the days of yore, when Great Britain tramped down India and China. Small gunboats and intimidating measures of diplomacy are no longer effective. Britishers who look down upon Orientals with a haughtiness based on empty traditions are making themselves very unpopular. If they do not beware at the present moment, their downfall must be very rapid. In Europe Great Britain is not now supreme, and her dominion in the East, if it is to be effectively protected, requires more force than she could maintain. Her fighting strength is not in proportion to the extent of her dominions and the size of her mercantile navy, and it is to be wondered how she could be prepared for a storm, with unpopularity among Orientals and no allies among the European powers.

"Most probably her wily statesmen are awake to the danger of the situation. They must be endeavoring to escape both the encroachment of other European nations and unpopularity in the East; especially the latter, which must be dreadful to them, as their sole aim is to do business. A general strike in the way of business with England would be the most fearful of all strikes to her; hence, the first thing the Britishers ought to do is to shake off their vanity; the second is to make friends among the most powerful Eastern nations. But if they think they can retain their supremacy by remaining the friend of China, and continue to behave arrogantly toward the really most powerful of the Eastern countries, they will find—and they are already finding—themselves sadly mistaken."—Literary Digest.

LITERARY NOTE.

The relation which price bears to quality in literature is made obscure by the Christmas Cosmopolitan. Stories by Rudyard Kipling, Wm. Dean Howells, Mrs. Spencer Trask, Mrs. Burton Harrison, and Albion W. Tourgée, are interspersed with poetry by Sir Edwin Arnold, Edmund Clarence Stedman, and James Whitcomb Riley, while through the number are scattered illustrations by such famous artists as Remington, Toché, Reinhart, Turner, Van Schaick, Gibson, and Stevens. A series of portraits of beautiful women of society illustrate an article on The Relations of Photography to Art; a travel article by Napoleon Ney, grandson of the famous Field Marshal; one of the series of Great Passions of history, to which Froude and Gosse have already contributed, and half a dozen others equally interesting, go to make up the attractions of the number. The Cosmopolitan people say: "We might charge you more for this number, but, in all frankness, could we give you better material, better illustrated, if we charged you a dollar a copy?"

F. G. Pitt, 827 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.
J. C. Foss, No. 72 Crescent street, Rockland, Maine.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.
"Hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."

Book of Mormon, page 116.

Vol. 41.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 26, 1894.

No. 52.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - EDITOR.
R. S. SALYARDS - ASSISTANT EDITOR.
JOSEPH LUFF - CORRESPONDING EDITOR.

LAMONI, IOWA, DEC. 26, 1894.

TRUTHS TOLD AT RANDOM.

WE quote below from an editorial in the Deseret (Utah) semi-weekly News, for December 4, 1894, and from a sermon delivered by Francis M. Lyman, one of the apostles of the Utah Church. The extract from the editorial reads thus:—

As a universal rule, it is safe to place implicit reliance on the word of God, even when it at first seems obscure. When all errors due to human agencies are excepted, the revealed word remains, the rock on which to build for time and all eternity.

The extract from the sermon reads thus:—

Whenever an elder, a high priest, a seventy, or an apostle leads off on his own account and operates contrary to the rules and regulations of the church as the Lord has laid them down, Amen to that man's authority. There have been but about two of the Twelve who have gone off and undertaken to establish a church unto themselves—William Smith and Lyman Wight. President Ripdon led off also, but he was never one of the Twelve. The authority and power that apostles hold must be exercised upon the principles of righteousness and in accordance with church rule and discipline or their operations are void in the sight of God. . . .

We find that the "Josephites" claim that we have been cast out; that when we left Nauvoo and came into the wilderness we were going away from Zion; that Missouri is Zion and no other part of the country. But, fortunately, the Prophet Joseph, during the very last conference of the church that he attended—in April, 1844—announced that America, both North and South, is Zion, and on the following day the Prophet Hyrum Smith announced the same fact. It would be very small for our heavenly Father to be satisfied with the State of Missouri. Why, we would want the State of Missouri with just the few Latter Day Saints there are to-day. We occupy very much more country than there is in the State of Missouri. But this is the land of Zion; from one extreme to the other, as announced by the prophets of God. The "Josephites" hold that when we left Nauvoo we went wrong because we were going away from Jackson county, Missouri. I wonder if we had not good company when we left Independence. The Prophet Joseph was at the head of the people when they departed from Independence and went to Far West and to Adam-Ondi-Ahman, and on up to Nauvoo.

We quote also from a communication in the same copy of the Deseret News from which we take the extract from the editorial:—

The fathers in this territory were made farmers—many of them by compulsion. If they had wanted to they could not have got away from here; being exhausted on arrival; and deeming duty absolute they reluctantly remained, like the pioneers who "came here willingly because they were obliged," as President G. A. Smith used to say.

The issue indirectly raised by the quotation from the editorial quoted above is of considerable importance to everybody, but more especially to all classes of Latter Day Saints. To a rule so universal as the one referred to, that "implicit reliance" should be placed on the "word of God," there can be no radical exception. But inquiry may be made as to when and where the rule shall apply. To this of course the News would reply, Now, always, and everywhere. Let us see. The church was originated, planted, and organized in 1830 on the principle of direct and present revelation; and the church was taught, and in turn told the world that God was an unchangeable being, and in every age revealed himself alike on the same subject; so when in 1831 the Lord gave a revelation to the church in regard to an institution originating with himself, in the following plain terms, the church had no alternative, but was forced to the conclusion that God was at the beginning what he was in 1831, on the same subject.

And again, I say unto you, that whoso forbiddeth to marry is not ordained of God, for marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation; and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made.—D. C. 46 (Old Ed. 65).

Applying the rule here, we have the word of God, stated clearly as it was at the beginning; and several hundreds of years after the beginning, when God proposed to build up a church with a holy marriage institution, it is redeclared as the word of the Lord. It was then safe, in 1831, to place implicit reliance on that word, and it would have been always safe to have relied upon it implicitly from that time forward. Did our friends of the News do that? No.

We most cordially indorse the sentiment expressed by Apostle Lyman, in the foregoing, the sermon from which it was taken having been published in the News in July, last, we believe, where he states that whenever an elder, apostle, or other officer leads off and operates contrary to the rules as laid down by the Lord, then, "Amen to that man's authority." Joseph Smith the Seer, whom the men in the Valleys of Mountains claim to honor so much, said that much, years before, when writing from the jail into which he had been cast with others of his brethren, for their opinions' sake; and it was just as true when Joseph Smith wrote it as when Apostle Lyman said it; the difference if any being that Joseph Smith wrote it before any apostle had gone out taking any considerable number with him; and Apostle Lyman said it, after one of the chiefest apostles had led thousands of the church into a gross apostasy, directly contrary to the rule laid down by the Lord; by command in 1831, by solemn, "So be it Lord," said by the church in 1835.

Now, apply Apostle Lyman's rule,

The authority and power that apostles hold must be exercised upon the principles of righteousness and in accordance with church rule and discipline, or their operations are void in the sight of God, and what becomes of the authority and power held by Apostle Brigham Young, who so fatally fastened that gross and evil dogma and practice of plural marriage upon his followers, contrary to the rules of the church and in direct disregard of the command and will of God, found in the records accepted by the church?

Apostle Lyman either misunderstands what the "Josephites" hold in regard to the exodus from Illinois to Utah, or he misrepresents us, in regard to Zion. What the "Josephites" hold is this, that while the whole of America is the land of Zion, there was but one center pointed out, that center was Missouri. In that center a temple was to be built by command, and so far as one single locality could be designated as Zion, that locality was in Missouri. That when the Saints left the Missouri River and went farther west they were going away from, not to Zion; that the "mountain of the Lord's house" so much talked of by O. Pratt, and other Utah preachers, could not be at Salt Lake City.

Our heavenly Father was satisfied once with the land of Palestine; afterwards with Missouri to call it the "land of Zion;" it is frequently called in the Doctrine and Covenants "the land of Zion." The Lord revealing himself in regard to it in July, 1831, said:—

Wherefore this is the land of promise, and the place for the CITY of Zion.—D. C. 57 (Old Ed. 27).

Now, applying the rule laid down by the News, the organ of Mr. Lyman and his people, that "it is safe to place implicit reliance on the word of God," with what assurance can he claim that Utah is the place for the city of Zion, or in that sense be Zion.

Using the same rule, what should Apostle Lyman say of the word of the Lord given September, 1832?

Yea the word of the Lord concerning his church, established in the last days for the restoration of his people, as he has spoken by the mouth of his prophets, and for the gathering of his Saints to stand upon mount Zion, which shall be the city New Jerusalem; which city shall be built, beginning at the Temple Lot, which is appointed by the finger of the Lord, in the western boundaries of the state of Missouri.—D. C. 83 (4 Old Ed. p 1).

In this word of the Lord it appears that the State of Missouri satisfied the Lord in 1832; and as no word has been received from him since changing the designated locality, we would seem to be safe in relying on that word of the Lord.

In December, 1833, the Lord said:—

Zion shall not be moved out of her place, notwithstanding her children are scattered, they that remain and are pure in heart shall return and come to their inheritances; they and their children, with songs of everlasting joy; to build up the waste places of Zion. And all these things, that the prophets might be fulfilled. And behold, there is none other place appointed than that which I have appointed, neither shall there be any other place appointed than that which I have appointed for the work of the gathering of my saints, until the day cometh when there is found no more room for them: and then I have other places which I will appoint unto them, and they shall be stakes, for the curtains, or the strength of Zion.—D. C. 98, (Old Ed. 98).

If the word of the Lord is to be relied upon implicitly then we of the "Josephites" are clearly right when we say that when the fleeing Saints went to Utah they went away from, not to Zion.

The "Josephites" hold that the Utah people "went wrong" before they left the State of Illinois; and that for the reason that iniquity had crept into the church previously in the form of a "corrupt doctrine," according to Joseph the Seer; a "damnable heresy," according to Paul; and that by this as the cause, the children of Zion had forgotten and disregarded the "new covenant, even the Book of Mormon and the former commandments," which had been given them of God, "the word of the Lord;" and instead of doing "according to that which" the Lord had written, they had done that which polluted the place where they were dwelling, and merited the "scourge" and the "judgment," "to be poured out upon the children of Zion." (See Doc. and Cov. Sec. 83, Old Ed. 4.) And that as a result they who went to Utah, "willingly because they were obliged," had to go—God had decreed it, and their enemies executed the decree.

The "Josephites" do not hold that the going from the State of Illinois was in itself a "going wrong," in the sense in which Apostle Lyman uses the words "went wrong," for the Saints, the guilty leaders, and the innocently led, all were compelled to go; but the "Josephites" believe that had there been then, after the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, a proper reliance on the "word of God," and an obedience to it, the disastrous exodus might not have occurred. Now while the sin of driving people out of their homes for religion's sake, will rest heavily upon those who did the driving; this will in no way change the responsibility which was placed upon the apostles and elders to see that the law of God was kept, nor relieve the situation of those who, instead of keeping the law and relying on the "word of the Lord implicitly," disregarded and broke that law themselves and taught others that it was a virtue to do so.

The "Josephites" hold that the "word of the Lord," has promised that those of the Saints who were the "children of Zion" though they were "scattered" shall "return with songs of everlasting joy," and "rebuild the waste places of Zion." Now, relying "implicitly on the word of the Lord," they believe that in order for those scattered pure in heart to "return," there is, there must of necessity be a fixity of character about the place to which they may, and can return, a place that shall not be removed, or the promise is a vain one and trust in it foolish. Is Apostle Lyman prepared to say that to trust in the promise of the Lord is foolish? Hardly? Further, to return and rebuild the waste places, signifies the doing of a needed and legitimate work, and this work the "Josephites" are doing, and in the land of Zion at that.

Now, when Apostle Lyman and others of the Utah elders quote a purported prophecy of Joseph Smith, made in an informal conversation said to have taken place on the Iowa side of the river to a few men, that the "time would come that the Saints would go to the Rocky Mountains, and become a mighty people," and undertake to plead that exodus from Illinois which afterward took place, as having been purposely undertaken and provided for in view of that prophecy and to fulfill it, to the glory of the Saints and the prophet, it must be evident to those who hear and think, that they either mistake the spirit of the prophecy, forget the history of the event, or detract from the turpitude of the crime committed in driving them out, forgetting that for the Saints to claim great credit for doing an act predicted of beforehand, and at the same time claim that punishment should rest upon those who compelled them to fulfill the prophecy is a paradox, which those opposed to them will neither see nor try to solve.

No, Pres. George A. Smith was right when he said, "We came here willingly because we were obliged."

Apostle Lyman was not with the Prophet Joseph when he left Independence, Missouri, his father was. They were "obliged" to go. But not for flagrant disregard of God's divine law were those men robbed, beaten, maltreated, and imprisoned, nor their brethren murdered, nor themselves and their brethren driven from the State, whence they went to Illinois.

It is a fact that the elders of the Utah Church used to teach, and we do not doubt believed what they taught, that by and by Zion would be redeemed, and they who had once been driven thence would be permitted to return and occupy the land again, as the children of Zion returning to Zion, to build again the waste places and build the Temple of the Lord. Do they still teach and believe this? If so, why are the "Josephites" in fault for holding that Utah is not "the land of promise," nor Salt Lake City "the city of Zion"?

A safe answer to the assumption that Mr. Lyman and the elders of the Utah Church make, that the "Mountain of the Lord's house" predicted by Isaiah, chapter 2:1-5, and Micah 4:1-6, applies to the church and people established in Utah and in the valleys of the Rocky mountains, is found in the "Word of the Lord," in the appendix to the Doctrine and Covenants, Sec. 108, pars. 3, 4.

Send forth the elders of my church unto the nations which are afar off; unto the islands of the sea; send forth unto foreign lands; call upon all nations; firstly, upon the Gentiles, and then upon the Jews. And behold and lo, this shall be their cry, and the voice of the Lord unto all people: Go ye forth unto the land of Zion, that the borders of my people may be enlarged, and that her stakes may be strengthened, and that Zion may go forth unto the regions round about; yea, let the cry go forth among all people; awake and arise and go forth to meet the Bridegroom. Behold, and lo, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him. Prepare yourselves for the great day of the Lord.

Watch, therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour. Let them, therefore, who are among the Gentiles, flee unto Zion. And let them who be of Judah, flee unto Jerusalem, unto the mountains of the Lord's house. Go ye out from among the nations, even from Babylon, from the midst of wickedness, which is spiritual Babylon. But verily thus saith the Lord, let not your flight be in haste, but let all things be prepared before you; and he that goeth, let him not look back, lest sudden destruction shall come upon him.

An "implicit reliance on the word of the Lord," would teach Apostle Lyman as well as the "Josephites" that the mountains of the Lord's house referred to by these two prophets, Isaiah and Micah, were unmistakably Zion and Jerusalem.

There is no one that should doubt that Jerusalem in the text means the Jerusalem of the Jews; and there should be as little doubt that Zion of the text means "the Zion, the New Jerusalem" in the land of Zion, the land of America, and God himself seems to have located that Zion.

AUTUMN LEAVES AT $1.25.

CLUB LIST.

HERALD AND LEAVES AT $3.00.

WITH a view to place Autumn Leaves within the reach of all the membership of the church, the subscription price has been reduced twenty-five cents, making the present rate $1.25 per year, beginning with the new volume, for 1895. Those who have remitted the former price will be credited the amount overpaid.

As a further inducement to increase the subscription list the coming year an attractive series of valuable book premiums is offered to those getting up clubs. For particulars, see advertisement of club list on HERALD and Leaves covers.

Take notice, that to secure any of these premiums cash must accompany all orders.

The Herald Office also offers the HERALD and Autumn Leaves in combination for $3.00 cash in advance.

The foregoing special inducements are open to subscribers until March 1, 1895.

Send in your orders and get the benefit of this reduction in price.

PRACTICAL-IMPRACTICAL.

AT the risk of being censured for a bit of literary piracy, we give the following terse but happy hit at some of the difficulties lying in the way of ideal progression, taken from a gossip letter lately received from a good brother who may scold; but then, as we do not give his name, it won't hurt, for he can only reach us:—

From personal inclinations I regard coöperation in sentiment, as being almost angelic; but from observation and some experience in its application to human wants, I find the "unexpected" suddenly comes along and mars the angelic features, pushing me back into the hard but more practical lines of everyday life.

You doubtless remember the W. H. Godby movement, many years ago in Utah, and what appeared at the time their standard, or motto: "We are nothing, if not spiritual." I admired the sentiment at the time;

but now I would add, "Still nothing, if not practical."

The practical and the impractical are so closely interwoven in our lives that they become matters of everyday discussion; and the impractical, representing almost constant failure, is always ready with an excuse for the failure, regardless of the inexorable rule that an "excuse will not pay a debt."

Let me give an example. It is now upwards of nine years since Bro. — died, leaving a family of four; wife and three daughters, the youngest a mere child at school; all of them frail and delicate in health. A small house and lot worth perhaps four hundred dollars, was all that was left to them as a basis to start life anew upon their own resources. At this juncture, we make a speculation as to the chances in the race of life between this poor widow, and four of the brethren of the vicinity whom we will name A, B, C, and D; all of them hardy sons of toil, in good health, and with a fair proportion of bone and muscle to back them up in the battle of life. On the other hand, the widow must bend over the washtub, scrub floors, dig the garden, carry the little produce raised there in a small basket to market; accepting always such value for her services as her employers are willing to give, and call it charity, even to let her do this menial work; while the brethren can, and do enter the field of discussion upon the problems of government, capital, and labor; engage in strikes, and justify knockdowns generally. But, enough, perhaps, of this thought; suffice it to say that it is in no part overdrawn. So now for the sequence of the race. Sr. — comes out with a fair record. She took up the battle of life on the hard, practical lines, and at this writing has to her credit one thousand dollars at interest; her little home has been made into a veritable palace; her credit and name are "A 1," spiritually and in temporal things. And the brethren, what of them? Why, they represent the impractical; and so far as capital is concerned (of which they complain) Sr. — can buy the whole of them. Now for the query.

If these parties should be brought under the rule of coöperation as generally understood, what would be the relative value of their labors, presuming of course on a continuance of the same traits of characteristic dealings and labor in both the woman and the man. Common sense would say that in equity the sister should have more than they all.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

ATTENTION is called to the reduction in price of Autumn Leaves, to its clubbing list premiums, also to the offer of the HERALD and Leaves in combination at $3.00 cash in advance.

Have you noticed these special inducements to subscribers and those who get up clubs? Here is an opportunity to secure a choice premium and to also extend the usefulness of our church literature.

The list of books offered includes some of the choicest in the realm of literary productions. Some of our own publications are also offered. For particulars see advertisements on HERALD and Leaves covers.

REINCARNATION THEORY IN A NUTSHELL.

A BEAUTIFUL EXPLANATION THAT WAS PAINFUL IN ITS FINAL APPLICATION.

LANDLORD ALLEN is always looking for a good thing and always recognizes it when he sees it. This he found in a Washington paper, and the local application makes it the more interesting:—

If there is a good story born in Washington, it is a two to one shot that its cradle will lie in the back parlor of John Chamberlin's. Dr. Edward Bedloe came over from Philadelphia one night and sat therein entertaining a choice group of friends with tales of the far east. In the edge of the group sat a man from Pennsylvania, who had come over from Pottsville on some government contracting business. He was all ears and eagerness. His name was Strauss. Finally the restraint became too intense, and he broke loose.

"Tocotor," said he, "what is dot new reli-chun I hears off about China? My wife has got it ferry bad, und I don't understand it."

"Tell me the name," said Bedloe. "Is it Mohammedanism, Buddhism, Shintoism, Taoism, Confucianism, or what?"

"O, it is no isms, but der name is like a tramp's migrashun of der soul, ain'd it?"

"O, you doubtless mean transmigration of the soul."

"Yah, dot's it. You dell me about dot."

"Certainly. Transmigration of the soul is a very pretty poetic doctrine of metempsychosis which our friends of the Theosophical society have borrowed from the far east—"

"Here, here, toctor! Tell me vot dot means, so I can understand what you vos talking about."

"All right, I will tell you in plain language. Take yourself, for instance. You live to the allotted age of threescore years and ten, and then you pass away. Your soul goes into the body of a bird—a canary, we'll say—and from your gilded cage you fill a lady's boudoir with the melody, living a life of luxury and fed from the dainty fingers of beauty—"

"Oh, dot is peautiful, peautiful! I like dot!"

"And then you die again, and your soul goes into a lovely flower in a garden, and and you fill all the air with fragrance and delight the eye with your exquisite color and delicacy of petals—"

"Ah, dot is fine! I like dot reli-chun."

"As I was saying when you interrupted me, you live the life of a flower, until one day a donkey gets into the garden, and attracted by your loveliness he eats you, and your soul passes into the donkey—"

"Yah, yah."

"When some former acquaintance comes along, strokes your long ears and says: Why, Strauss, is it you? How little you have changed!"—Pottsville (Pa.) Republican.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. W. J. SMITH, writing from Detroit, Michigan, December 12, reports thus of the illness and death of Bro. J. A. McIntosh:—

Elder J. A. McIntosh died on the 5th inst. from confluent smallpox. I was called to administer to him and was with him two hours before he was taken to the pesthouse. The announcement of his death will be read with sorrow by hundreds in this church. For years he labored patiently in the interest of the work we love, enduring hardships, privations, and untold persecution, bringing hundreds to a saving knowledge of this great latter-day work; and although for the last three years he has not been in the ministry, and was somewhat careless in some regards, yet his interest in the progress of the work in general, and his confidence in the truthfulness of the restoration of the gospel, was as unabating as when in active ministerial work. He was a man of excellent ability, always ready with arguments of the most convincing nature; and in sympathy and kindness he was excelled by but few, if any. I am to preach his funeral sermon next Sunday morning. Bro. McIntosh had been employed as a disinfecter by the health board, and later did some work on the new eruptive disease hospital here. His wife lives at No. 67 Magnolia street, Detroit, Michigan. Bro. McIntosh was very widely known here in political circles, and had many very warm-hearted friends. There was quite a large number of the Saints here exposed to the smallpox by Bro. McIntosh, but as yet none of us has taken it. Even Sr. McIntosh, who was with him until he was taken away, has not come down with it. God has been very good to us in thus warding off the disease from us.

Bro. F. Tubb, wrote from 12 Paragon Road, Hackney, London, England, November 24. He had placed the HERALD in the wall rack of the West Ham Library Rooms, by courtesy of the librarian; for which we are all thankful. Of the work there he says:—

It is with the sincerest satisfaction that I inform you that the Lord's hand is still over his people here in Babylon. Six young people have been baptized by President Elder Howell within the last two months.

Bro. D. E. Tucker, Higbee, Missouri, the 17th.

I have been in Montgomery, Calloway, and Boone counties, trying to teach the people the way of life and salvation. I found it difficult to get a hearing, especially in the two last-named counties. In Montgomery I found it easier for it was there I spent my boyhood days. The old hills look natural, but a little higher than they did then. This is in Bro. W. T. Bozarth's jurisdiction. If I have done wrong in crossing the line I hope he will forgive me. However, I promised to return sometime.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. J. T. CURTIS, of Kibbie, Illinois, reports our people there as active in church work including the literary and social features of spiritual advancement. Large audiences attended their special thanksgiving day exercises, a good impression being made in behalf of the work.

Bro. J. H. Lawn, Mulberry, California, writes that he has been giving most of his time of late to gospel labor in Santa Cruz and Stockton.

Bro. James Huey writes from Rolfe, Phelps county, Missouri, asking that an elder be sent into that region. He says: "I think one could do lots of good and gather some into the fold." Who will go?

Bro. S. D. Payne requests those who can to send him HERALDS, Voice of Warning, sermons, tracts, and such church literature as they can spare, for distribution. Address him at North Platte, Nebraska.

Bro. P. Pement secured a good announcement of his meetings in the Creighton, Missouri, Champion of December 7.

Bro. J. F. McDowell has been holding a discussion at Eagle Grove, Iowa, with a minister of the "Church of God." Reports indicate a victory for the truth and a favorable impression made upon the people. We expect to publish a summary of the discussion.

Subscribe now for the HERALD and Autumn Leaves for 1895.

DISBURSEMENT OF CHURCH FUNDS.

Editors Herald:—Permit me to express my gratitude and thanks to the Far West, Missouri, district for the expression of the resolution passed by the district conference, as set forth in last week's Herald. The ready and hearty adjustment of former resolution will conserve the interests of the work, as it expresses the Christlike plan of adjustment, and lest there might be some misunderstanding touching the rights of any to inquire into the work of the Bishop at any and all times, permit me to state that it is certainly proper, should anyone in the church feel or believe that injustice in any matters touching finances is being done, to make inquiries and seek to obtain all the light possible to be reflected upon the matter, and if in a private way this cannot be adjusted satisfactorily, to present the matter to the proper quorums of the church.

Ever wishing the success of the gospel work, I am, very respectfully,

E. L. KELLEY.

LAMONI, Iowa, December 22, 1894.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Not in the clamor of the crowded streets,
Not in the shouts and plaudits of the throng,
But in ourselves are triumph and defeat."

Select reading for January meetings of Daughters of Zion.

THE PHYSICAL AND MENTAL DEVELOPMENT OF CHILDREN.

HOME INFLUENCES.

THE domestic circle naturally demands first attention in the consideration of our subject, since it is in the home that the foundations of character are laid. The mother is the guiding genius of the household as well as its ruler; she must be both high priestess and queen. Life is for a purpose, and she must teach her little subjects that this purpose should be made a good one. Health is the basis of a successful life, and the mother's care and influence are necessary to combat disease and establish wholesome habits. Equal development of the mind and body results in as close an approach to perfection as humanity can attain, and here again the mother's wise guidance and restraint are all-important. Napoleon may have made a mistake when he went to meet his fate at Waterloo, but he made none in his estimate of the maternal influence when he declared that the great need of France was—mothers. The same may be said of the whole world. Good mothers and good homes are the best securities for civilization and the elevation of humanity. And here let us add that apartments in a hotel, no matter how elegant and exclusive, can never be a home. The strange faces coming and going may be kindly, but they are not the familiar ones a man wishes to see around his table. The mother may be free from the monotonous cares and vexations of housekeeping, but with idle hands and thoughts she is liable to develop into a gossip, if nothing worse. The children become self-conscious or pert, and in every instance which has come under the writer's observation, little folks reared among such surroundings have lost the charming simplicity of childhood.

From the earliest times poets have written tenderly of home, and minstrels have sung of its delights; and the Savior himself gave us the hope that even in heaven we will have separate homes, when he said, "In my Father's house are many mansions." Getting a house, however, does not insure the possession of a home. The architect, mason, and carpenter construct the building, but the family who live in it make the home. Dryden said, "Home is the sacred refuge of our life," and anything short of that is a failure. The house may contain all the necessaries and many luxuries, and the family may be blessed with good health; yet it will not be a true home if there is even one discontented member in the household.

It is unfortunate that the happiness of an entire family can depend upon the smiles or frowns of any one person, but so surely as one drop of ink will cloud a glass of water, so surely will one discontented, envious nature destroy the peace and happiness of a home. If this nature belongs to the father or mother, only prayer and earnest endeavor will eradicate it; but if it appears in one of the children, wisdom and patience on the part of the mother will usually avail to destroy it. Many parents weep and grieve over the faults of a child without attempting to uproot them until it is too late. Few children are irretrievably bad, and while their hearts and minds are plastic the good work of precept and example must go on.

Of the two, example is the more effective teacher. Many parents may see themselves as others see them if they watch their children at play. If a little girl snatches up her doll, shakes it and says, "If you don't lie still, I'll shake the life out of you!" let the mother examine her own conduct carefully and see if she has not at some time used that very expression. Or, suppose a boy thrusts his thumbs into the armholes of his vest, glares down upon his little sister, who is playing she is his wife, and says sternly: "You must be more economical, Mary. The gas bill was twice as high this month as last, and your dressmaker's bill was enormous! No, you can't have that new bonnet. James, hand me a cigar." We may be sure that boy has heard somebody's father talk in very much the same fashion.

Justice must be administered as impartially in the home circle as in a court of law, if harmony is to be maintained. It is most unfortunate when, as sometimes happens, one or both parents take almost a positive dislike to one of their children and shower affection upon all the others. The science of pathology has never explained this phenomenon, although recognizing it as a fact. The unloved child may be the equal of any of the others in mental and physical endowments, but its heart will naturally be chilled and hardened by the parents' injustice, and its life will quickly become little short of a burden. Then, too, such a display of favoritism makes the other children tyrannical and indifferent to the rights of others.

There must above all be justice in the matter of punishments. If a child disobeys or is guilty of any other offense of sufficient gravity, punishment should be administered without hesitation—not angrily or hastily, but after explaining the reason to the child. Punishment, however, must never be inflicted when not deserved. Children discriminate closely in such matters, and although a dozen punishments may be taken in the same spirit in which they are given, one unjustly administered will rankle in the child's heart forever. The parents may forget it, but in the treasure-house of that child's brain it will remain as long as life lasts.

Overindulgence, the other extreme, is equally harmful to a child. The spirit of egotism is aroused, and the child believes itself possessed of superior traits of character, which entitle it to great consideration from everybody. The children either openly or else secretly foster the feeling that the parents are unjust. In either instance harmony is destroyed, envy and jealousy are aroused, and the home becomes an abode of strife. No wonder the ancients considered justice one of the cardinal virtues, for on it hinges the law of equal rights. In a case where all are equally entitled to favor, it is unjust to show partiality, and no philosopher knows this better than a child. John Stuart Mill said that justice was the most indispensable of all necessaries, after physical nutriment, and we know it is one of the firmest foundations of our government and constitution; but if it is so necessary for the welfare of men and women, it is no less an important factor in that little world inclosed by four nursery walls.

After the mother has, by her own example, taught her children justice, let her next practice and teach charity, which is only another name for generosity—that charity which hides a multitude of sins. If one child is shy, let her encourage him and show him a little extra attention. If he is homely and is conscious of it, point out his best traits and teach him how to strengthen them. If he is a little duller of comprehension than others, have a little more patience in explaining things. Justice gives equality, but charity gives more; it is the Golden Rule, which teaches us to do unto others as we would that others should do unto us. We cannot all be beautiful, bright, and attractive, but we can be kind and considerate. Those whom God has blessed with superior attributes should be particularly charitable to the shortcomings of others. Mothers must assume the responsibility of this by instilling the thought into the minds of their young children. Tastes for occupation and amusement will differ, but the world is made up of these diversities, and the mantle of charity is broad enough to cover them all.

It is an undisputed fact that the earliest scenes of our lives, after the development of memory, are the most lasting. We forget much of the ordinary routine of life after youth has passed, but the last impressions to fade from the failing mind of old age are those made by the home and friends of childhood. Herein lies one grave reason why the influences which surround children in the home should be good, pure, and true. Many a wayward man, hurrying along the downward road to ruin, has been checked and saved by the sudden recollection of a mother's face or some word of warning spoken by her. Home life gives us our deepest joys and our bitterest sorrows, because in no other phase of our existence do we come so near to other human beings—nowhere else can a smile or frown so lighten or darken our hearts.

If the home is not a happy one, let the father and mother try together to find out where the fault lies. If in themselves, surely they should be willing to rectify it; and if in one of the children, the little offender must be brought kindly and firmly to see the error of its way. Our idea of heaven is that of a perfect home, where we will be surrounded by our loved ones. Mother, home, and heaven—these three words suggest all the deepest joys of this world and of the next. That child who has been taught to love home and its elevating influences is on the high road to moral safety, for such love is one of the greatest stimulants to purity of life.

All thinking men have properly estimated the power of example in the home. Burk said, "Example is the school of mankind, and they will learn at no other;" and Sir Charles Bell once wrote, "A good deal is said about education, but they appear to me to put out of sight example, which is all in all." Parents should remember that children naturally imitate them, besides also inheriting their traits of character; and they must be sure that their example is worthy of imitation. The mother especially must consider this fact.

Woman is doubtless capable of filling almost any position in which she may be placed; and she should be allowed as much freedom as man in selecting any occupation she may desire; but in so doing, she must not neglect the home and its duties. A bright woman recently remarked: "I do not want any 'rights,' I want the privileges of a woman;" and she expressed the idea exactly. Give woman her privileges, and her judgment and instinctive sense of propriety are so good that she will naturally prefer the duties at home to a scuffle at the ballot box, which is really the essence of the term, "Woman's Rights." Not, of course, that a woman should be a slave and a drudge, but she should make her home so attractive to her husband and children that they will have no desire to go elsewhere for entertainment.

One cause for discontent with many a good and true woman is the desire to have a house as fine as some other person's. Envy thus destroys what would otherwise be an ideal home. The children quickly observe this fault, and nurture the same spirit against any of their playmates who possess a newer gown or hat or fine surroundings; for they have not been taught that these things do not make a home. What were the beauties and luxurious furnishings of Malmaison to Josephine after Napoleon divorced her? One of her ladies in waiting testified that she died of a broken heart, the cause of which was revealed in her last words — "Napoleon — Elba — Marie Louise." Our homes are only reflections of ourselves, no better and no worse, as far as the prevailing spirit in them is concerned. Wealth and luxuries cannot make happiness unless the heart is reflective, appreciative, and cultured. Happiness never comes to those who search for it; it is an elusive thing, springing up only in the path of some good deed. "Every man carries the entire form of the human condition within him," said Montaigne; and if this be true, our lives are certainly what we make them.

Why is it, when we enter one house, an air of refinement and happiness meets us at the door and bids us welcome, although there is nothing particularly handsome in the house itself or its furnishings; while in another, where wealth is lavishly displayed, we feel chilled and out of place? The cause is simply that in the first instance the family is contented with whatever life offers, while in the second contentment is wholly lacking. Comfort, another ingredient in the making of a happy home, is not necessarily a result of wealth. The home of a poor man, containing only the necessities of life, can be made comfortable if the parents bend their combined energies in that direction, but there must be discretion, justice, prudence, honesty, truth, and love as the foundations and pillars of the domestic structure.

The mother, being the center around which all the lives of her family revolve, must be sure that her influence is all it should be, for she is daily leaving an impression upon the young hearts and minds around her. She must be methodical in the division of her time, the performance of work, and the use of money; prudent in choosing a time and method for doing everything; punctual that no precious moments may be wasted; and persevering in the face of whatever difficulties may beset her. She must, moreover, be forbearing, cheerful, and polite. Politeness—not necessarily etiquette, which has a more worldly sense—is the one attribute of a beautiful home life which, more particularly than all others, can be best taught by example; and it is attainable by the poor as well as by the rich, since it is really only kindness of heart. There are difficulties which may, perhaps, limit the opportunities of the working classes in the cultivation of polite manners, but the idea well grounded in the minds of the children will bear fruit spontaneously.

Then there is the external adornment of the home, which yields so powerful an influence over the young. The furniture need not be expensive, but it should be neat and tasteful. The room in which the family usually assemble should be made bright and cheery. The dining-room should be kept scrupulously clean and the table linen immaculate; and a few growing plants and flowers, which can always be had for a trifling sum, will lend charm and sweetness to an otherwise shabby apartment. Pictures, also, make very cheerful ornaments and may be pretty without being costly. Artistic wood cuts, photogravures, and prints are now sold very cheaply, and, when framed in natural wood or white enamel, will harmonize with any room.

Above all these things, however, there must be absolute cleanliness, for its moral as well as for its physical influence upon the children, for it has been truly said that "Virtue never dwelt long with filth." Many diseases are attributable entirely to impure dwellings and surroundings. Much is said of the filthy houses in some of the large cities which are occupied by the humble classes, but one tidy woman who keeps her own house and children in order and her own person and clothing clean, may, to a great extent, reform a whole block. The poor have been told that "Cleanliness is next to godliness" without heeding it, but, perhaps, the old English proverb, "Cleanliness is the elegance of the poor," may prove more effectual.

There are a great many little things which go to make up the home, but every one must be considered as a necessary part of the whole. Every mother who wishes her children to grow into moral, truthful, cleanly, cultivated, and contented men and women, must see that the home influences are such as will develop these traits.—M. C. M., in Delineator.

DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

AMBER, Iowa: Cora Weir, Ora Nichols, Mary A. Robertson, Emma Steckel.

IN sending us the following poem Sr. Cobb writes:—

"To-day while I was thinking of the Evanelia, wishing I had a view of her and resolving that I would send right off and get one, a lovely view of her at sea was presented to me 'without money and without price,' and the words, 'As ye have freely received, freely give,' keep coming to my mind, so I send you a poorly pictured glimpse of her, to use as you choose, hoping that all suspense and anxiety concerning her will soon be over."

THE EVANELIA.

Upon the deep, dark, heaving sea,
Where ocean storms wild revels hold,
Great ships from every clime, I see,
By raging billows rocked and rolled.

And there, amid that sailing throng,
A luster-laden wavelet's crest
Evolves a boat; it scuds along
An atom on the ocean's breast.

No steam-forced wheels, no towing line,
Propelled and stayed by natal force,
This pygmy, through the foamy brine
Unswerved pursues its southern course.

'Tween sable surge and lowering skies,
From tiny masts, small pennants float.
Ah! looking now through spirit eyes
I see our little gospel boat!

Oh! precious, consecrated craft,
Launched out upon that vast domain,
May breezes soft our treasure waft
And bring our loved ones home again.

Her cordage new, strained tensions feel;
Her sails have never flapped before;
Untried her spars, her dipping keel
Hath touched none save its native shore.

Conceived in faith, faith born, she sails;
Her freight consists of trust divine;
Hence He whose promise never fails
Must round her his strong arms entwine.

His people built that mission barge,
He blessed it through his servants lips;
And while he keeps it in his charge
No power its glory can eclipse.

Old Ocean with her mystic wiles
Could not affright the valiant few
Who longed to visit heathen isles
And tell the gospel story—true.

Among them sailed a youthful bride;
Home, parents, friends, and country,—all
Were left to ills that might betide
While she met those that might befall.

The husband's anguish, too, was keen,
But parting pangs were held in check,
And bride and groom to-day are seen
Upon the Evanelia's deck.

Two other forms are kneeling there,
The captain and his faithful wife,
And though far off, I hear their prayer,
"God guide the ship and grant us life."

Hark! now I hear—like sweet refrain
Of music trilled by seraph's throat
The Saints' amen! it sweeps the main,
Inspires the crew, and buoys the boat.

Ah! now she glides dreamlike away,
Strange, deep emotions thrill my soul.

God bless her and her crew, and may
She safely reach her destined goal!

And throughout all her mission years
May shouts of conquest unsurpassed,
Fast follow up the gladsome cheers
That wait her when her anchor's cast.

ALICE E. COBB.

LITTLE SIOUX, December 14, 1894.

[WE trust that this poem may awaken in those who read it an earnest desire to help the cause at this holiday season by ordering a volume of Afterglow, or a view of the gospel boat. The proceeds of both will be applied to this fund.—ED.]

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

SR. HULDAH O. FOGG, of Plano, Illinois, desires your faith and prayers in her behalf, as she is sorely afflicted. She has two little children needing a mother's care, and desires God to spare her to them.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR DECEMBER.

Pray always and I will pour out my Spirit upon you, and great shall be your blessing; yea, even more than if you should obtain treasures of earth and corruptibleness to the extent thereof. Behold, canst thou read this without rejoicing and lifting up thy heart for gladness? or canst thou run about longer as a blind guide; or canst thou be humble and meek and conduct thyself wisely before me: yea, come unto me thy Savior.—Doc. and Cov. 18: 6.

Thursday, Dec. 20.—Missions and Sunday school work, and the church publications. Also for the poor, the sick, and afflicted.

Memory Verses. 2 Timothy 1: 24, 25.

Thursday, Dec. 27.—Zion, our country, its welfare and prosperity, and its speedy purification by the reception of truth. That the scattered remnants may be gathered in, and the kingdom of Christ be established.

Memory Verse.—Hosea 3: 5.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Amount to date, Sept. 22.....	$4,915 22
Mary A. Raymond, Mont.....	$ 1 00
Emma Burton, Cal.....	50
Lottie R. Wilcox, Mass.....	25
A Sister, Iowa.....	30
Olive A. Hubbard, Neb.....	2 00
Eliza A. Lester, Mich.....	1 00
Lucy Barrows, Utah.....	1 00
Ann Webster, Aus.....	2 40
M. J. Head, Mo.....	1 00
J. H. M., Iowa.....	5 00
Emma Rice, Cal.....	1 00
Irene Baughman, Iowa.....	50
Rachel Crompton, Mass.....	1 00
Kate M. Davison, N. S.....	75
Stella L. Weed, Neb.....	75

18 45

Amount to date, Dec. 21.....$4,933 67

DRINK AS A CAUSE OF INSANITY.—In Italy 2 per cent of all the insanity is caused by drink; in Austria, 15; in France, 20; in England 32; in Sweden, 50.

I do not see why that, when the soul thrills with the Spirit of God, it is not as reliable a test of his presence as if it came through the senses of smell or touch.—Stone.

Health is not quoted in the markets because it is without price.

Letter Department.

BLAIRSTOWN, Mo., Dec. 16.

Editors Herald:—A number of Saints have settled in this section of country, but some of them may see "close times," as they have but little money to buy land with, and it is very hard to rent farms only for cash. This is a fine country and excellent for farming. Land is worth from twenty to thirty-five dollars per acre. Saints must remember that it takes money to secure a home, and when they have carefully provided means to buy with, then it may be wise to "all go to Zion." Yes, "we will."

I obtained the use of the U. B. church of this place and Bro. Joseph Luff preached for us six evenings; good hearing and best of interest. Some admitted they never heard such preaching before. Almost every day we are asked, "When is Luff coming back?"

A few weeks ago Bro. John Hancock and I preached three times at the Hazel Mound schoolhouse about twelve miles northeast. We felt blessed with the Spirit on Sunday evening, the Lord granting us power and liberty. A number manifested their appreciation of the sermon by asking us home with them. We left another appointment to begin in about two weeks and continue for a week or more, but the Devil must do his part of the work, so in a few days we were informed that the school directors tried to close the house against us; but finding the law and a goodly number of the people against them, one of them visited the school-teacher, (her son being a Latter Day Saint) and told her he would take up arms against us, or rather than let us preach in the schoolhouse, they would tear it down. It is astonishing to one of reason that the very ones that declare mob violence on the ministers of the gospel are those who make such loud pretensions that they are followers of Christ the Lord. Many may say, "Lord, Lord," have we not prayed and professed thy name; but the answer will be, "Depart from me," etc. May the Lord care for the honest.

In bonds,
D. C. WHITE.

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 8.

Editors Herald:—I have been at home recruiting from old troubles, but expect to leave in a few days for Humboldt county, California, by permission and consultation of superiors. My health is somewhat improved, and I find rusting out is harder than wearing out; so I go for the front to battle for the right, as far as I know and understand it. My home address is No. 314 Third street, Oakland, California. Any wishing to correspond with me will please note this.

From some cause or causes the work in California is not keeping pace with the Eastern States, especially in baptisms. So far as I am informed I think California, and, in fact, the Pacific mission, a very hard field. It is not that there are not good, earnest seekers after religion and honest people on this coast, but there is so much excitement and so many religions, so many theaters and other things to bewilder and draw away the people, that our common old-fashioned way of advertising and conducting our meetings neither draws nor holds. Comparatively few come, especially when we head our posters "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will preach." This strikes with disgust about nine tenths of those who read these posters, and they say in their minds if not with their tongues from ignorance, "Mormons from Salt Lake;" and they stamp us as a thing of naught. This ignorance and this feeling, I am sorry to say, develops itself mostly among religionists and their ministers, who, with a very few honorable exceptions, prejudice their flocks against us and put the old stamp of "Old Joe Smith" and "Mormon" upon us. These conditions, with lack of means, of ministerial forces, and other appliances with which to reach the people, are some of the causes that make this Pacific mission a hard one; and until these with other causes can be removed legitimately and by self-sacrificing and willing men and women who will step to the front with their means and their whole lives consecrated to the work, the work will lag until the time which is not far distant when God will raise up willing men and willing women who will not only make sacrifices in words and tell in our prayer meetings what they are willing to do, but will be doers of the word, will warn their neighbors, preach the gospel, while those of us who have had the opportunity, and also had many and seemingly good excuses, will have to step down and out and wait and be satisfied with what we have earned, while we look on and see others step in and possess what we might have possessed.

My beloved brethren and sisters, now is the time to look into these matters; now is the time to work and to make sacrifices; for sacrifice brings the blessings. So if we want the blessings we ourselves must make the sacrifices, as others' sacrifices will avail us nothing. So mote it be.

Your brother,
A. HAWS.

ROMAN, Va., Dec. 10.

Editors Herald:—As I was reading the last Herald this morning I felt like praising and thanking God for the food it contains for our hungry souls. I wonder how any Saint can do without it.

There are still some here that are trying to hold on to the rod of iron, and my heart's desire is to do my duty. I have many trials to endure; still I feel like pressing on, and pray that the good Father may give me strength to overcome. I thank the Mothers' Home Column for the many words of encouragement it has brought to me. May the Lord bless the mothers and daughters of Zion, also the Prayer Union, and every effort that is put forth for the spread of this great latter-day work. Your sister,

F. MONEYMAKER.

In Holland railways are so carefully managed that the accidental deaths on them average only one a year for the entire country.

Swiss hotelkeepers complain that American travelers have been scarce this year, and no other customers spend so much.

Original Articles.

SERMON BY PRES. W. W. BLAIR.

LAMONI, IOWA, APRIL 30, 1894.

THE preacher read for the lesson of the hour Psalm 103 and then said: This is manifestly the language of David the sweet singer of Israel, and evinces a spiritual exaltation and consciousness obtained probably in a large degree by his early surroundings, his early friends, also by the direct inspiration of the Almighty that was upon him from the time when Samuel the prophet laid his hands upon him, prayed for him, anointed him and set him apart to be a servant of God; and arising largely also, no doubt, from his experience in after life in the things that appertain to God.

There is no book in all the Bible that manifests such a profound and universal spirit of devotion and adoration as do the Psalms of David. It is good that we can read them, ponder them, and be well affected by their lofty inspiration.

At the close of the conference it is well that we review the history of the past, the conditions of the present, and the prospects of the future in regard to the work that God has intrusted to our care. We might occupy many sermons, many hours in preaching upon this very fruitful subject. We can only pass hastily over it now, and perhaps be benefited by having our minds stirred concerning the things of the past, the present, and to come, those ordained of God, those we have always taught from the standard books of the church concerning the marvelous work begun in this nineteenth century through the administration of Joseph the Seer—a work ordained of God ages ago, and no doubt known in the councils of eternity before the foundation of our earth was laid, “when the morning stars sang together, and the sons of God shouted for joy.” We regard this work as one of the most important dispensations known to history, destined as it is in the economy of God to open the way for the second advent of Jesus Christ and usher in the millennial reign, when Jesus shall reign as King of kings, and Lord of lords; when “his dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth.” A wonderful, a marvelous dispensation it is, and we do well to carefully examine it in all its parts—what has been done, what is being done, and what has yet to be done in accordance with the mind and will of God to bring the dispensation to its final consummation.

We teach that one of the chief features of the great work intrusted to our care is the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ our Lord. It is a matter of so much moment that the Lord revealed it by his angel to his servant John, and to others, as an event of the utmost importance, as we may learn from the Revelation of John, chapter 14, verses 6 to 8. The gospel as there revealed by angel hands has to be preached to every nation, kindred, tongue, and people, to prepare the way for the second advent of Jesus Christ, the millennial reign, and the righteous judgment of God. The central thought, the leading work, is the building up of the kingdom of God by the preaching of the gospel, sending the word of life and immortality in power and in demonstration of the Holy Spirit to every nation, kindred, people, and tongue upon the face of the earth, that all may be warned, and that as many as will hear may hear and come into the church and become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ.

Now, in carrying out this work, provision after provision must necessarily be made for preaching the gospel and building up the church in unity, in harmony and concord, in all its parts; also in purity and in power, to prepare it as a bride adorned for her husband, awaiting the coming of the Lord Jesus in power and great glory.

We believe this work commenced as early as 1823, but more prominently a few years later on, in 1827. And as the years rolled by, one development upon another took place in carrying out this gospel work, in planting the kingdom for the last time among the nations of the earth. The work went on well, and gained rapidly under the administrations of the first elders. Many were the attempts of the enemies of the work to overthrow it and despoil the saints; but still the work prevailed and prospered throughout the United States, and the Canadas, and across the sea in foreign lands. The Lord went before his ministry by his angels, and scores and hundreds, nay, thousands were ready to receive the gospel messengers when they came. And so they triumphed, and continued to triumph, from victory to victory, until fourteen years after the church was organized it numbered about two hundred thousand souls.

The work came forth in the right time; it came forth in fulfillment of prophecy, and it is the only work we have any knowledge of since the days of Christ our Lord that has come forth in the manner indicated in Holy Writ. It came forth in the Scriptural way; it came forth in the manner foretold; it proceeded onward in the divine way, and it has moved along on the prophetic lines until the days in which we are now living.

The church was organized largely after the New Testament patterns. There were some changes, for there was more that appertained to the organization of the church in these latter days—so far as the record gives us information. It should be borne in mind that there were dispensations of the gospel prior to the days of Noah, and afterwards in the days of Abraham, then in the days of Moses, then came the dispensation in the time of Christ, and now this latter-day work, which seems to be a combining, a blending in one of the essential features proper to retain in this great latter-day dispensation, preparatory to the glorious coming of Jesus Christ our Lord.

One of the best features in regard to this work, is that it does not stand in word only. For whatever the provisions made in the order of God; however indicated as to the manner, by prophecy—which is all very proper, very essential—there is something that stands above that, and, in some sense, towers far beyond it. The fact is, God confirmed the work. As we have said, in some instances he went before the ministry and prepared the way by angel ministrations and by manifestations of the Holy Spirit. He confirmed it wherever the ministry bore that word in faithfulness. And we find that those who entered into the faith purely and truly, from honest conviction, upright in the sight of God, the Lord blessed them richly and freely by his Holy Spirit, and thereby confirmed them and enabled them to know that the doctrine they had accepted was divine; that it had the divine sanction because the heavenly powers had sealed it to their souls. We hear of this from every land where this gospel message has gone. Many of the old Saints have been gathered to their long home since I came into this work. The majority that I have conversed with were ever ready to bear testimony in respect to the manner in which they came to a knowledge of the work, and the marvelous manner in which God spoke to the heart when the words of this great salvation fell from the lips of the ministers whom God had sent, and how God confirmed the word by signs following in the manner indicated in his precious word. There was quite a number of old Latter Day Saints who used to live in this vicinity,—one, George Morey, who was at Kirtland during the endowment and was keeper of the temple there. In listening to the honest, ardent statements of that man, his words sank deep into my soul when he told of the manner in which that endowment was carried out and the power of God that was manifested on that occasion in the performance of the ordinances observed. I have heard the evidences of many others also who were there on that occasion, so that by written history, by the testimony of living witnesses, by our experiences personally, and by what is transpiring in various parts of the world, we find that God supervises this work; that he has done it from the beginning in proportion to the righteousness of the Saints, their faithfulness and reliance upon the Most High.

It was foretold that there would be an apostasy. God's people have always been opposed; many times they opposed themselves; Satan has opposed them, and even nations have been incited to fight against God and the saints, so that the history of the church established in this age cannot be expected to be bright and pleasant, or that it would always be smooth and gladsome. I am reminded of a revelation given through Joseph the Seer in August, 1831,—it was at the time some of the Saints went to the land of Zion to locate the center place from whence the Lord's work should go forth. I have talked with a number who were present on that occasion—one of them a brother, Calvin Beebe, who related some of the remarkable experiences that happened out among the forest trees near the "center place." He, with his brethren, (Joseph was at the head and Sidney Rigdon was with them,) went down into the forest and there engaged in prayer. The power of the Highest was present, the gifts of the Spirit were manifested. Brother Beebe and others spoke in unknown tongues. He, when speaking, came to a word that he said seemed as long as his arm, (and he was a tall man,) which, when it was interpreted, was found to relate to the Nephite name for our Lake Champlain in the State of New York. He mentioned instances of what took place when the land was officially set apart. The word of the Lord came; much of it was prophetic in character. Let us listen to it and profit by it. (See Doctrine and Covenants sections 58, 59, 60, 61, and 62.) And bear in mind that not more than two dozen Latter Day Saints had now come together. In those days, when they had to travel mostly by team, it was a long trip to go from Kirtland to Independence, Missouri. Or if they went down the Ohio to the Mississippi, and up that and the Missouri River it was farther. Any way it was a long and tedious journey; it was like going out of the world. But they had a great work intrusted to their care; and it was to locate Zion, "the center place," whence God would send forth his work to every nation, kindred, tongue, and people; and the word of the Lord was, "He that is faithful in tribulation," thus indicating at that early time that tribulation would come upon the people of God. From a human standpoint everything looked prosperous, and delightful, yet the Lord said:—

Ye cannot behold with your natural eyes, for the present time, the design of your God concerning those things which shall come hereafter, and the glory which shall follow after much tribulation.

The Lord then revealed the fact, for the first time, that I am aware of, in all the book, that tribulation, and "much tribulation," lay between the saints of that time (1831) and the period of "glory" that would finally come to the church. Note well what was said: "For after much tribulation cometh the blessings." And now comes the warning, "Remember this which I tell you before." Remember I have told you that "tribulation" lies ahead of you; you cannot obtain the "glory" before the church has passed through much tribulation.

Remember this which I tell you before, that you may lay it to heart, and receive that which shall follow. Behold, verily I say unto you, for this cause I have sent you that you might be obedient, and that your hearts might be prepared to bear testimony of the things which are to come; and also that you may be honored of laying the foundation, and of bearing record of the land upon which the Zion of God shall stand; and also that a feast of fat things might be prepared for the poor; yea, a feast of fat things, of wine on the lees well refined, that the earth may know that the mouths of the prophets shall not fail; yea a supper of the house of the Lord, well prepared, unto which all nations shall be invited.

Mark you, it is supper time now, a supper of the house of the Lord, "well prepared;" prepared for the great day to come: "For behold I the Lord have spoken it."

There was another object in going up to Zion at that time, and it was that the word of the Lord might go forth from Zion, that the law of the Lord might go forth from Zion in fulfillment of prophecy. If we turn to the Old Testament Scriptures we find that the Lord, in the last days, will establish Zion, and that the law of the Lord shall go forth therefrom and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. (Micah 4.) The word must first go forth from Zion. Eighteen hundred years ago, when Jesus Christ came into the world, salvation came unto the Jews, and the work that Christ established personally began at Jerusalem. It began in the land of Judea, close by the city of Jerusalem, for John was born in that region of country, and he began there to prepare the way of the Lord, and to make his paths straight;" and when Jesus came he began his work in that region of country, and he said afterwards, "Salvation is of the Jews." It was a Jewish work. John was a Jew; Christ was a Jew; and the apostles were Jews. When Christ arose from the dead, and was about to ascend on high, he commanded his disciples to tarry at Jerusalem; for the word of the Lord must go forth from Jerusalem. That was the order of God in that age of the world.

But, mind you, in these days, at the time when God's work, latter-day work, shall be fully established, when the nations will beat their swords into plowshares, in that time the work must commence in Zion; for,

The law shall go forth from Zion; and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem.

There is another purpose that we might examine as to why those men were sent of God to go and found Zion, which is,

And that the testimony might go forth from Zion; yea, from the mouth of the city of the heritage of God; yea, for this cause I have sent you hither, and have selected my servant Edward Partridge, and have appointed him his mission in this land, etc.

I now will pass to the closing paragraph of section 58 and we come to something still further:—

Let the residue of the elders of this church, who are coming to this land, some of whom are exceedingly blessed, even above measure, also hold a conference upon this land. And let my servant Edward Partridge direct the conference that shall be held by them. And let them also return preaching the gospel by the way, bearing record of the things which are revealed unto them; for, verily, the sound must go forth from this place [Zion] into all the world, and, unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

You discover, then, that God had a manifold purpose—so to say—in founding Zion at that time. It was that the Scriptures might be fulfilled; that the law of the Lord might go forth from Zion,

For verily the sound must go forth from this place unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

You discover, then, the character of this prophecy in regard to the "tribulation" that would come to the church, through which the children of God would have to pass before they could attain to the "glory" that would eventually come to them. Since then darkness covered the church; evil men and seducers waxed worse and worse, ending in a great apostasy, a very remarkable one, and one that we believe was foreshown by Paul to Timothy, where he says:—

This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, etc.

And where in another place he says:—

Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils, etc.

And so we might cite various other prophecies bearing upon the apostasy.

In a revelation given in 1833, the Lord revealed to his servant Joseph, that a cloud was hanging over the children of Zion, and he warned them that judgments would come against them "like a whirlwind," nevertheless the Lord said he would have compassion and he would "plead with her strong ones." In 1837, in section 105, the Lord declares that his wrath would go forth upon the nations of the earth "like a whirlwind," and that at the church it was to begin and many of them would fall, and that some of the Twelve would fall, which subsequent history shows did occur, and which we believe had a more complete fulfillment in 1844; for at that time came division and schism, the church was thrown into great disorder, reproach was brought upon everyone that bore the name of Latter Day Saint, and these conditions continued until about 1851, when individuals, moved by the Spirit of God, appealed unto the Lord for information as to what they should do, and he, by his Spirit, told them to "cast off all that claimed to be prophets," and also told them that the Lord would raise up a man to lead the church; that the Lord would redeem Zion; that his promises concerning Zion should not fail; and that the one to be raised up was Joseph, of the seed of Joseph the seer. All this occurred in 1851-52. I obtained a knowledge of this in November, 1856. Bro. E. C. Briggs (I knew him when he was a sickly boy, five or six years before) and Bro. Samuel H. Gurley came then with the tidings to me. I was very shy—afraid of being deceived—for divisions were numerous. I took the young men to my home and we talked their message over for some time before I was convinced. But finally the Lord took the matter in hand and it was but a little while before the question was settled to my entire satisfaction. Soon I became acquainted with the little band numbering probably forty or fifty—living away in Southwestern Wisconsin. In April, 1857, I became affiliated with them. Looking at it from a human standpoint we were a very insignificant number, but when we knew that God was the author of the work we could see that we had a large majority.

The work has been going forward from that time, notwithstanding a great variety of hindrances have been thrown in its way. The Apostle Peter said:—

Your adversary, the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour.

And he has had much to do in these latter days in hindering the work of God. We have had the world, the flesh, the Devil, and heresies, and divisions, and contentions, to hinder the work of God; we have had it clear down to the times in which we now live. There is one thing, however, growing out of all this, that is very cheering; and that is, that in the midst of all these trials and afflictions; in the midst of all this hindering, destructive work, we are getting valuable experience; we are being disciplined in the work of Jesus our Lord; we are getting to think less of ourselves; we are learning to think more of Christ and his law, and to think more of the church of God than of any man, or quorum, or council, or any number of people. We are learning this by the trials and discipline through which we are passing. God is purging out the dross, and the gold and silver will be purer for it.

Right here I may remark in regard to Satanic power hindering God's work. We go back to the morning of creation; Satan was in the garden of Eden at his subtle work; he influenced Eve and led her into sin; Adam also fell; and from that time forward Satan's power with mankind has been manifested.

In the days of Moses we find, by the record in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, that Satan appeared unto that man of God, and tried to entice him to worship him. The Psalmist David, a great man; he was taken from the sheepfold and Samuel anointed him king over the children of Israel; but his heart became proud and sinful from time to time; that man was influenced by Satanic power. We read in 1 Chronicles chapter twenty-one, where David permitted Satan to tempt him to number the children of Israel, which displeased the Almighty, for he had commanded that this thing should not be done. David repented of this great wickedness, but you see Satanic power was there seeking through this man, who was high in authority, to overthrow the people of God.

When God would deliver the Jews from their Babylonish captivity, among others of the Lord's servants, there was Joshua, the high priest—and he was a good man, or God would not have called him—and Zechariah was shown Joshua's condition; he was shown that Satan stood "at his right hand to resist him."

I mention these things in order that we may see the power of him we call Satan, the Devil, the adversary. He has a variety of names. All nations have had some knowledge concerning this adverse power; they have a variety of names for it, but it is all the same power, nevertheless.

In the days of the Master, and immediately after he was baptized, he was led by the Spirit into the wilderness, where he had forty days experience before he could enter upon his work, as the chief teacher of perfect truth. Here this power manifested again. Jesus, on one occasion, was showing his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and suffer many things of the priests and scribes and be killed, and Peter began to rebuke him, and said, "Be it far from thee, Lord." Jesus turned and said, "Get thee behind me, Satan; thou art an offence to me; for thou savourest not the things that be of God." Afterwards the Lord said to him, "Satan desires to have thee that he may sift thee as wheat."

In the fourteenth chapter of John's gospel the Master says:—

The prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me.

This prince was called Satan. Paul calls him "the god of this world," also "the prince of the power of the air." Jesus said to the apostles:—

The prince of darkness, who is of this world, cometh, but he hath no power over me, but he hath power over you.—I. T. John 14: 30.

And this power was manifest among them, from time to time; and so we trace it along in the Christian Church. Paul said he was "hindered" by Satan from going at one time to the Thessalonians. And from the Revelation of St. John we learn of this Satanic power being made manifest in hindering and opposing the ministers of God. And it was present with Joseph the Seer at the opening up of this work. Satanic power was manifested to such a degree that he was bound by it at one time and could not speak when he undertook to pray. But finally he was through faithful effort relieved from it, and he was filled with the Spirit of Christ; praised God. That experience with Satanic power I presume he never forgot. You and I cannot tell until the day of judgment how much Satan has opposed and afflicted us. We have had some strange experiences during these past years. Satan has tried to hinder the progress of this Reorganized Church; he is not dead yet, nor bound. John the revelator said:—

The devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time.—Rev. 12: 12.

And so it is we have this inspiration coming down from various quarters predicting the hindering of the progress of the church and kingdom of God.

Among the various points that we present for your consideration, is the fact that every prophecy concerning the work that has been given by Joseph the Seer, in this Book of Covenants which was to be fulfilled prior to this time, has had its most literal fulfillment. The Lord has spoken through that prophet, things that, from a natural standpoint, seemed impossible to take place, yet they have transpired just as indicated by the word of the Lord. He also prophesied in regard to the reorganization of the church, and the call of one of his seed to stand in his official place. I need not remind you that this has taken place. I might also tell you of many prophecies given to us in 1851 and since, concerning the man who, under God, would lead and build up the church in the most holy faith. That work he began in 1860, and it is being carried forward. Let God be true. Hindrances have come from a thousand sources, and in view of them we think the progress of the work has been very considerable and notable.

Another thing which has been brought to light, is, that God declared, in an early day, that the "waste places of Zion" should be rebuilt. We have lived to see that fulfilling. When I united with the church we could not, as Latter Day Saints, live in Missouri—a man's life, who was a Latter Day Saint, was not safe in Missouri. But since then change upon change has taken place; God has softened the hearts of the people until they, in the most of these waste places, are glad to have the Latter Day Saints come, locate, and live there. Indeed, in some of these places, as at Kirtland, and Nauvoo, and Independence, and Far West, and other places, the citizens have invited the Latter Day Saints to locate with them. Lands belonging to the church have been put into the courts for adjustment and decisions are in favor of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Well, all these things are in fulfillment of the prophecies touching the building up of the "waste places" of the saints.

We find in Doctrine and Covenants 42: 15 where the Lord, speaking to the church, about sixty-three years ago, revealed that the Inspired Translation of the Scriptures would be "preserved in safety," and that when the church received it "in full," then "you shall teach them unto all kindreds, tongues, and people." The manuscript of that work was left in the hands of Emma Smith the widow of the Seer, until the proper time came, and then the Lord moved upon the church and upon his servant Joseph and his mother, to have that work brought forth and printed. It is a master work in some respects, a most valuable work, and proves so in the adjustment of the latter-day work; because it condemns, emphatically, some of the things taught by some who claim to be Latter Day Saints, and condemns things that they claim were taught by Joseph the Seer. Who is it that has the publishing of that work, and the carrying out of the commandment to teach and preach the Inspired Translation to the nations of the earth? It is the Reorganized Church! It has had it printed; its ministry are publishing and sending it abroad and its elders are preaching its contents to the nations of the earth, thus fulfilling the revelation and performing the work committed to our charge.

Another thought: When the Saints were driven out of the land from Jackson county, the Lord commanded them to gather into "the regions round about," commanded them to buy lands in the regions joining Jackson county. Do you know that the county joining Jackson county was called Ray, the northern boundary of which then reached three miles north of this place—Lamoni? It is a fact,—bear it in mind,—that the land where now is Lamoni, was on the very land of Missouri at the time that that land was dedicated and set apart by command of God to the Seer. Lamoni is on the very land that was a part of Ray county in 1831, and continued to be a part of Ray county until in 1837 and 1838 Davis and Caldwell counties were taken from it. The Lord declares that the Saints should "gather into the regions round about;" and the last revelation touching that was given in 1873 and refers to one I have quoted which was given in June, 1834, which reads:—

And now, verily I say unto you, a commandment I give unto you who have come up hither, that can stay in the region round about, let them stay; and those who cannot stay who have families in the east, let them tarry for a little season, inasmuch as my servant Joseph shall appoint unto them; for I will counsel him concerning this matter; and all things whatsoever he shall appoint unto them shall be fulfilled. And let all my people who dwell in the regions round about be very faithful, and prayerful, and humble before me, and [that belongs to us to-day] talk not judgment, neither boast of faith, nor of mighty works; but carefully gather together, as much in one region as can be consistently with the feelings of the people; and behold, I will give unto you favor and grace in their eyes, that you may rest in peace and safety, while you are saying unto the people, execute judgment and justice for us according to law, and redress us of our wrongs. Now, behold, I say unto you, my friends, in this way you may find favor in the eyes of the people, until [mark the language] the army of Israel becomes very great. But firstly, let my army become very great, and let it be sanctified before me, that it may become fair as the sun, clear as the moon, and that her banners may be terrible unto all nations; that the kingdoms of this world may be constrained to acknowledge that the kingdom of Zion is in very deed the kingdom of our God and his Christ; therefore let us become subject unto her laws.—D. C. 102:6.

I have read this in conclusion, that you may see what God has ordained as a chief feature marking the outcome in respect to "the regions round about" the land of Zion, and what it is that God requires of his people when they gather into that one region, and that is, not to talk of judgment, neither boast of faith and mighty works; but to be very humble and faithful, and so continue, and build up, "until the army of Israel becomes very great;" until it becomes "sanctified" before the Lord; until her banners represent her proportion and quality of power with the nations of the earth. The church authorized the gathering at Lamoni. The Lord led in that matter by his Spirit, and the Lord by revelation April 15, 1894, indorses and confirms it.

When I look back to the time when I first became acquainted with this work, when we could hardly get a schoolhouse to preach this gospel in; when we were under the stigma brought upon the church by ungodly men; when I see we were few in number, humble in all our surroundings, and what the Infinite God hath wrought until the present conditions have obtained, I feel to say with the Psalmist,— Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me praise his holy name.

It is the Lord's work. No man may take the honor to himself. It is God's work, and it will keep gathering power and influence, from time to time, until the light shall sweep out to the uttermost parts of the world and the way be prepared for the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. God hasten that day!

When we see the distress abroad upon our land, in Europe, in Mexico, in Asia, in Central America, Australia, and many parts of Africa, where hard conditions exist; and when we look abroad and see the conflicts that are going on in all its departments, entering into politics, in forms of religion, and into theological opinions and faith; when we see all these things transpiring, the entire world in commotion, we can but pray that God would hasten the time when the gospel shall be preached unto all nations, when Jesus shall come in glory, and reign as King of kings, and Lord of lords. He will come, and the time draweth nigh. The means that God has been developing in ages past are concentrating rapidly now, and his people will find avenues opening up in places they never dreamed of. The Lord will have his church beautified, adorned, and prepared for the coming of the bridegroom, Jesus Christ, in power and great glory.

Brethren and sisters, let us labor to these ends, and though trials and afflictions come, be patient and wait upon the Lord and carry out all the precepts of the blessed Master. And if every minister and every member will do this, God will give them the final victory, and give to them a glorious crown. That you all may attain to this, is my prayer.

CORRECTIONS LATE, BUT NEEDED.

THOSE having "Book Unsealed," mark on page 10, quotation from Bancroft as volume 4, page 359, instead of as it is. This had been taken from Herald. Some edition may have it so. In the coming reproduction of "Book Unsealed," all matter not known to be true to original, is so marked, and but very little such used.

Those having "Books and Utah Mormonism in Contrast," mark on page 3, first citation, Doctrine and Covenants given as section 58: 5 to be 111: 4; same page, Alma 4: 3 should be 5: 3.

On page 4, at top, citation from Times and Seasons should be page 939. Other minor errors appear in both works, mostly typographical; but none misleading that I know of. President Joseph Smith generously and kindly called my attention to several. The Ensign Office is requested to correct books in stock.

R. ETZENHOUSER.

LA GRIPPE.

EDITORS HERALD:—Permit me to give to your readers a formula for the sure cure, as also prevention, of that terrible malady which we call "the grip." This specific was discovered by the celebrated specialist on inebriety, Dr. Leslie E. Keeley, and by him was widely published to the world about a year ago.

The formula for the cure is, Sixty-four grains of asafœdita with two grains of iodoform every twenty-four hours; to be taken four times a day, in doses of asafœdita sixteen grains, and iodoform one half grain.

Persons ordering it from the apothecary should get enough for seven or eight days, say five hundred grains of the asafœdita, with sixteen grains of iodoform. These must be pulverized and mixed, and can be taken in an open powder, though this makes a very nauseous dose. The better way is to have the whole put in capsules. It is also a sure preventive by taking about twenty grains daily. Persons in delicate health, or in a low state of vitality, are more liable to become victims to this dread disease than others; hence it would be the part of wisdom for this class to at once get the remedy and apply it.

The grip is a microbe disease, and is peculiar to the cold season. No one need fear taking the remedy, as the preparation is essentially harmless.

GEORGE BARRET.

LAMONI, Iowa, December 13, 1894

Conference Minutes.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.

Conference convened with the Nebraska City branch October 14 and 15, 1894; J. W. Waldsmith president, J. L. Diefendorf secretary. Branch reports: Blue River 151; 4 baptized, 6 removed, 3 died. Fairfield (first report) 28; 1 died. Haigler 35; 1 baptized. Hebron 23; 1 baptized. Lincoln 49. Nebraska City 135; 4 baptized, 1 received. Palmyra 38; 1 removed, 3 expelled. Brownville 21; 1 received, 1 removed. Union (first report) 11. Ministry reporting: Elders C. H. Porter baptized 3, J. W. Waldsmith baptized 1, R. C. Elvin, G. W. Shute baptized 3, J. Thompson, P. C. Peterson, J. Armstrong baptized 4, C. E. Blodgett baptized 11, E. D. Bullard, D. R. Baldwin, W. M. Self; Priests P. G. Bergsteen, J. Everett, Sen.; Teachers R. O. Self, O. Savage; Deacon J. Drury. Tent committee reported and was continued for four months. Bishop's agent's report: Due agent May 31, 1894, $10.64; amount collected $276.44; paid out $173.85; on hand and due church October 1, $91.95. Two-day meetings were held at Union, Auburn, Brownville, Nebraska City, Palmyra, Lincoln, Oak Grove, Agnew, and Hooker. The ordination of J. L. Diefendorf was laid over for future action, as his labors were such that he could not do the office justice at present. Brownville branch recommended the ordination of Bro. Jonas H. Drury to the office of priest, which was referred to the submission in charge and district president with power to act. The district officers were sustained for the next four months. Preaching by W. M. Self and Charles H. Porter. Adjourned to meet at Wilbur, Nebraska, February 9 and 10.

NEVADA.

Conference met at Fairview schoolhouse, Carson Valley, November 10, 1894; president, T. R. Hawkins. Thomas Daley, missionary in charge, being present, was invited to preside over the conference. Remarks to the Saints by T. Daley, instructing them in their duty, etc. Branch reports: Diamond Valley 44; 1 died. Mottsville 22. Dayton 15; 1 died. Carson, Elko, and Ruby Valley, no reports. Ministry reporting: Elders T. Daley baptized 2, D. I. Jones, D. R. Jones, and T. R. Hawkins; Priest Robert Trimmer; Teacher R. A. Trimmer. Bishop's agent, D. I. Jones, reported: Received since last report $183; sent to Bishop Kelley $160; on hand $23. The report was audited and found correct. T. R. Hawkins was chosen president and secretary of the district. The next conference to be held in Diamond Valley schoolhouse, May 5, 1895, at eleven a. m. Preaching by Thomas Daley.

POTTAWATTAMIE.

Conference convened with the Boomer branch the last Saturday in November, 1894; C. Derry in the chair, assisted by Joshua Carlile; Thomas Scott secretary. Reports of branches: Council Bluffs 250; 5 gained, 1 died. Crescent 139; 1 baptized, 1 removed. Hazel Dell 65, no change. Wheeler's Grove 92, no change. Boomer 17, no change. North Star not reported. Fontanelle 25. Fontanelle branch was lately organized by S. Butler under the direction of the district president, and Bro. Butler was chosen president. It was voted that Bro. Butler take a letter of removal from the Bluffs branch and join the Fontanelle branch. Ministry reporting: Elders C. Derry, J. Carlile, D. K. Dodson, R. McKenzie, T. W. Williams, D. Parrish, Bro. Chapman, P. Anderson baptized 1, S. V. Pratt, C. Carterson; Priests C. Larson, T. Scott, S. Underwood, J. Evans baptized 1, J. Lents; Teachers, A. Madson, B. Smith; Deacon C. Lapworth. Bishop's agent's report: On hand last report $72.60; received since $163.10; paid out $213; on hand $22.70. Audited and found correct. Voted that the elders, priests, and teachers labor in their former fields. By his request Bro. Derry was released from acting as president of the district and a vote of thanks for his faithful labor and words of comfort and cheer was tendered. J. P. Carlile was chosen district president, Joshua Carlile assistant, and Thomas Scott secretary. T. W. Williams, as missionary in the district, was sustained. J. P. Carlile, Bishop's agent, was sustained. Adjourned to meet with the North Star branch at Underwood on the last Saturday in February, 1895, at 10:30 a. m. Preaching by Joshua Carlile, Charles Derry, and Peter Anderson.

Sunday School Associations.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

The Massachusetts district Sunday school association will convene at Providence, Rhode Island, January 12, 1895, at 7:30 p. m. A full attendance is desired.

G. H. GATES, Supt.

Convention of the Clinton, Missouri, district will meet with the El Dorado Springs Saints on Monday, March 5, 1895, immediately after the district conference. There should be as much interest in the Sunday school business as the conference. Therefore come prepared to stay over Monday, and let all the schools come with reports, delegates, etc. A programme will be made at the time.

A special effort will be made with class drill work. The Quarterlies will be used.

G. W. BEEBE, Supt.

Miscellaneous Department.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF BISHOP'S AGENT.

To the Saints in Northern Wisconsin District of the Reorganized Church:—Please take notice that Bro. G. D. Hayes, of Chetek, Wisconsin, through the recommendation of district and missionaries, has been appointed to the position of Bishop's agent for the Northern Wisconsin district.

The Saints in that district may contribute through him of their tithes and offerings for the sustaining of the church work and all should remember to have some part or lot in this matter, and thus fulfill the law, which, if not kept, remains broken, and consequently we are that far unacceptable in our work.

Trusting that the blessings of the Master may be with all, I am,

Very truly and respectfully,

E. L. KELLEY.

LAMONI, Iowa, December 21, 1894.

SCATTERED MEMBERS.

Will the brethren and sisters whose names appear below, who may see this notice, report to the secretary, W. J. Richards, or president, W. H. Vincent, of the Higbee branch, as to their whereabouts, and if living in the vicinity of a branch of the church, ask for their letters to unite there? And if any know of those who do not read the Herald, or have died, will they please report, if possible, date of death, or post office address of those living. Please report by the 25th of January, 1895. Moses Griffiths, Robert H. Brown, Martha Griffiths, Charles B. Brown, Gomer Griffiths, Eliza M. Griffiths, Luther King, Benjamin Turner, Jennie Turner, Nettie Brown, Silas Winn.

W. J. RICHARDS.

HIGBEE, Missouri, December 17, 1894.

ONE MORE CALL TO SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

Your committee on Sunday school song book is still in existence and waiting for contributions in music to enable them to perform the work for which they were appointed. One thing appears very certain, and that is, unless they are favored in the future more than in the past with contributions of Sunday school songs, it will be a long time before our book is a realized fact. Comparatively few, thus far, have answered our many calls. It is said that some of our best musicians have yet to be heard from. Why this is so, we do not know. We wish we could make this call loud and strong enough to cause every member of our schools who has musical ability to put it into exercise, so that the committee could be furnished with the necessary material to make its work a success. Brethren and sisters, this is your work. Do you want a Sunday school book of your own? If so, you will have to make a stronger effort to that end in the future than has been done in the past; or the committee will have to conclude that we have not the talent necessary in the church or that the proper time for its employment has not arrived.

We urge upon all lovers of music and workers in the Sunday school to devote a part of their winter evenings to this work, and send to the committee the results of their best efforts, so that the committee will at least be able to report progress next spring and shall feel justified in continuing to act as your committee, should they be so continued.

In bonds,

F. G. PITT, Chairman.

BORN.

PARKER.—James E., son of Bro. George W. and Sr. Mary A. Parker, was born August 17, 1893; blessed December 14, 1894, near Thornfield, Ozark county, Missouri, by Elder C. J. Spurlock.

DIED.

GRIFFITHS.—William H. Griffiths was born December 3, 1890, and died December 3, 1894. He was the third son of Gomer T. and Hattie E. Griffiths. He was taken sick about five o'clock on the morning of the 3d instant with headache. He lay on the lounge during the day, his mother watching and caring for him, but she did not discover that he was seriously ill. He was at the Sabbath school the day previous and appeared to be well and stout. His father returned home in the afternoon of the 3d, from Cleveland, whither he had gone to fill engagements, for preaching, and neither of the parents thought the child dangerously sick, so they did not conclude to call the elders of the church, as is their custom in cases of sickness, neither send for a physician, but decided to wait and note further the developments of the disease, with the intention of summoning aid should the little one get worse. At bedtime the father lay down for awhile with the intention of taking the mother's place at watching in a short time, should it become necessary. He had been lying down but a little while when the mother observed that Willie was worse. She called, and the parents at once saw that the worst was at hand. They made haste to summon the neighbors, but the first to arrive at the house had only been there about five minutes when death had claimed its victim. It was all over by eleven o'clock. Death had come so suddenly and so unexpected that none scarcely knew how to express themselves, but gave way to the general feeling of grief. The family were all broken down. A physician was summoned,—Dr. Wall,—and he decided that death was caused by the bursting of an abscess that had gathered upon the liver. Willie was a beautiful and promising child as all know who had seen him, and his being called so suddenly away is another of those strange providences or fatalities past the mind of man to find out. But "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away." The funeral services were conducted by Elders William H. Kelley, J. H. Lake, and M. H. Bond in the Temple, at two p. m. on the 5th inst., a large congregation being present who felt deeply for the bereaved. The little body now rests in the cemetery near the Temple.

WILLIAMS.—Adelaid Priscilla, infant daughter of T. W. and May Williams, was born December 3, 1893; died December 9, 1894. She was a loving, trusting, affectionate child, and while it is a severe blow to the parents they feel to say,

"So be it.
So be it, then! We may not say,
Whether this thing be worst or best,
But God knows. Let it rest,
Yea, let it rest, and in our place
Let each do well some worthy deed,
Whereof the sickly world hath need.
So much, no more, our hands can do,
So much, then, let us do and wait
Though bitter be the heart's debate."

DAVIS.—At Beall, Indiana, Pearl May, infant daughter of Bro. John A. and Sr. Maggie Davis. She was born March 1, 1894, and died November 4. Her sickness was such as is common to infants and the last two months of her life she was very feeble and weak. The funeral was preached Sunday, December 9, at 2:30 p. m. from Matthew 18: 1-7, by Elder A. C. Barmore.

In the hour of night as we tearfully watched her,
An angel came from the celestial abode,
And bore her pure spirit away to the Master,
To bask in the joys of the kingdom of God.

We are not without hope of her bright resurrection,
For the promise of life is to all who are pure,
And innocents sweet do his face always greet,
For they certainly can his sweet glory endure.

We mourn not as those who're entirely forsaken;
We know we shall meet her in bright realms above,
And with her rejoice in the gifts of Jehovah,
As we join in the echoes of praises to God.

CHARLES BARMORE.

COOK.—Maggie May, daughter of Joseph James and Selena Cook, was born February 18, 1894, and died August 13, 1894. Funeral services were held at the home of the parents in Garner township, Pottawattamie county, Iowa, August 14; sermon by D. K. Dodson to a large assembly of Saints and friends. A long line of carriages followed the remains to Garner cemetery, the place of interment. She was a lovely child.

BROOKS.—Grace L., infant daughter of Bro. Samuel and Sr. Annie Brooks, passed away at their home in St. Joseph, Missouri, December 17, 1894, at the age of 3 months and 23 days. This little sufferer saw but few well days, having taken ill at two weeks of age. She was a precocious child, but her frail body forbade her staying. She was laid to rest in beautiful Oakland cemetery on the 18th, the funeral services being held at the church by J. M. Terry, assisted by R. Archibald. Bro. and Sr. Brooks have the sympathy of the Saints and friends.

INDEX TO VOLUME 41.

EDITORIAL.

- | | | | |
|--|---|--|---|
| Adoption, 274
Advertising church services, 757
Aged minister, an, 503
Age of consent in Iowa, 132
American Humane Educational Society, 99
Another exposé of spiritism, 663
Another heresy case, 614
Another object lesson, 469
Another prophecy gone wrong, 550
Another straw, 742
A. P. A., the, 289
Apostolical succession, 742
At agreement, 291
At El Dorado, 677
Autobiography of Elder Joseph Luff, 567
Autumn Leaves, 359, 757
Autumn Leaves at $1.25, 823
Baptist miracle, a, 613
Battle flag day, 470
Blessing and use of oil, the, 83
Boom or boomerang, 774
Brought to light, 776
Building temples, 421
Cardinal Vaughan washes feet, 211
Children of two covenants, the, 662 | Church attendance, 247, 275
Church decay, 454
Churchly debt, 97
Church row, a, 438
College matter, 97, 262, 273, 341
Colonization of Palestine, 66
Compulsory arbitration, 535
Conflict in Michigan, the, 50
Consider his circumstances, 662
Controversy, 193
Coöperation, 305
Correction, 694
Correction of date, 67
Cost of Herald, 374
Council, the, 273
Date of the exodus, 66
Daughters of Zion, the, 245
Death of Apostle T. W. Smith, 357
Death of Sr. Dancer, 567
Decision in a church lawsuit, 742
Dedication, 129
Department in the house of worship, 693
Deseret News in reply, 437
Deseret News on Temple Lot suit, 177, 597
Discussion, 274
Discussion at Omaha, 760
Discussion in Utah, 613
Does God favor his ministry? 806
Educating through the press, 631 | 1853 to 1887, 17
Elder James Crompton, 502
Election of B. Young to Presidency, 487
Encouragement, 360
End of the world according to Adventists, 100
End of the world, the, 163
Eternal life, 289
Exit C. A. Hall, 437
Facts versus sentiment, 614
Faith and faith, 501
Faith or repentance, which is first? 33
Faith's testimony, 81
Few comments, a, 742
Firebrand literature, 342
Folly or lie, which is it? 290
Fruit in its season, 325
General conference, the, 229, 241, 257
Gifts and fruits, 661
Gladstone's reply, 194
Goal of the Roman Church, the, 194
Golden wedding, 759
Good advice, 805
Good, Bro. Parrish, 2
Good life must be a gospel life, a, 726
Good treatment, 758
Good words, 631 | Gospel boat, the, 615, 662, 711
Gospel preached to the poor, the, 790
Gospel Quarterlies, the, 535, 662
Great events, 743
Hardly fair treatment, 582
Heavy load, a, 773
Herald's circulation increasing, 550
Herald, the, 2
Heroism, 210
I know, 18
In cities, 789
Independent Patriot, the, 19
Indian breastplate, 211
In discussion, 163
Indorsement of lynching by churchmen, 437
Inform the people, 773
Interesting reading, 455
Is the battle on? 178
Is this a correct theory? 581
Is this a land of liberty? 775
Investigation, knowledge, salvation, 145
Jap has the floor, 129
Jerusalem colony gone wrong, a, 694
Jesus from a Jewist standpoint, 246
Jewish colonization, 291
John C. Whitmer dead, 582
Justice in Illinois courts, 2 |
|--|---|--|---|

Kingdom in school, the, 359
 Labor and capital, 210
 Latter Day Saints, 50
 Lend us your ear a moment, 680
 Let the Herald hear from you, 289
 Let them alone severely, 389
 Let your light shine, 421
 Liberal religion, 390
 Light spreading in Japan, 97
 March on Washington, the, 390
 Marriage and divorce, 518
 Matters of personal action, 147
 Missionary work, 274
 Modern church, a, 325
 Modern Jerusalem, 147
 Moral courage, 234
 Mound builders, the, 275
 Much needed corrections, 760
 Murder of President Carnot, the, 454
 Mysteries of life, 20
 National song and music contest, 422
 Nauvoo items, 373, 517
 New healer, a, 290
 New republic probable, a, 550
 Nothing to lose, 421
 Oblations, 645
 Offering missionaries, 680
 Off to Tahiti, 677
 Of the Lambert-Treat debate, 502
 Oh, that Parliament, 113
 Olive oil, 248
 One more, Gabriel, 694
 On Utah statehood, 565
 Opinion changed, an, 517
 Opinion of Judge Phillips in Temple Lot suit case, 161
 Our divorce law, 65
 Paths to higher destinies, 645
 Paul to Timothy, 629
 Plea for Autumn Leaves, 567
 Plea for unity, 359
 Points on tent work, 549
 Polygamy and Mormonism, 694
 Practical-impractical, 823
 President Cannon's indorsement of Inspired Translation, 518
 President Cleveland right, 486
 Prof. David Swing's church, 662
 Publication interests at reunions, 517
 Queries, 726
 Queries and replies, 20
 Questions and answers, 99, 326, 453, 502, 535, 663, 743, 758, 777
 Read and respond, 341
 Reason of it, the, 454
 Rebaptism, 485, 535, 581
 Rebuilding waste places, 2
 Reform wave, the, 759
 Reincarnation theory in a nutshell, 824
 Religious debates, 405
 Reorganization, 289
 Repentance, 146
 Required to forgive, 178
 Reunions, 677
 Right of petition, the, 407
 Saints in New England, 99
 Salvation, 131
 Salvation Army, the, 614
 Savidge-Williams debate, 775
 Second Scott-Braden debate, 646
 Serious question, a, 710
 Similarity of belief, 533
 Smith, Bro. T. W., dead, 341, 357
 Some things to think about, 709
 Special attractions, 791
 Special notice, 823
 Sunday observance, 614
 Sunday School Convention, the, 226
 S. W. L. Scott in Indiana, 114
 Tea and coffee and general principles, 678
 Temple building and sealing, 725
 Temple Lot Suit, 99, 113, 148, 162, 164, 409

Testimony of Uncle William B. Smith, 81
 Thinking, writing, preaching, etc., 598
 To the ministry, 36
 To the Saints, 501
 To whom it may concern, 49
 Tracts wanted, 273
 Truths told at random, 821
 Truth, though tardy, 81
 Twin cities unearthed, 374
 Two admonitions, 453
 Union of churches, 98
 Union or no union, 549
 Unity of churches, 789
 Unchristian, 469
 Unemployed, the, 305
 Utah a State, 502
 Volunteers for mission labor, 422
 Was it ten or twelve? 1
 What does it mean? 711
 When is Christ coming? 373
 When will Christ come? 485
 Whitmer, John C., dead, 741
 Why be troubled? 630, 646
 Word in time, a, 409
 Work in Wales, the, 438
 World Notes, 776
 Worth Noting, 790
 Zion's Religio-Literary Society, 225

HOME COLUMN.

Address by Elder J. F. Burton, 263
 Baby sweethearts, 695
 "Bear ye one another's burdens," 410
 Children's rights, 38
 Clouds and sunshine vice versa, 276
 "Come up higher," 327
 Comments on synopses, 85
 Cruelty to children, 616, 665, 681
 Early perverting influences, 489
 Few hints, a, 293
 For the Column, 519
 Future, the, 4
 God's child, 456
 Gospel boat, the, 632
 Helping hand, 4, 53, 84, 116, 149, 165, 212, 292, 308, 345, 362, 424, 440, 504, 569, 648, 713, 778
 Home, 807
 Ideal Sunday, the, 808
 Ideal woman, the, 5
 If only, 211
 Influence, 744
 Instinct of activity, or the training of the muscles, the, 196
 In the hastening time, 248
 It is possible, 392
 Literature and vice, 551
 Little helpers, 292
 Love, 601
 Meditative thoughts, 52
 News from Tahiti, 68
 On board the Evanelia, 712
 Our duty, 21
 Our societies, 101
 Peace, 362
 Physical and mental development of children, the, 825
 Picture, a, 616
 Representative men and women, 37
 Sabbath for mothers, 504
 Suggested contrast, a, 115
 Talk with the Daughters of Zion, 633
 Thoughts on what we read, 180
 Undone, 375
 Vision and its fulfillment, a, 38
 Voice from across the sea, a, 116
 Ways and means, 361
 What a song did, 792
 What to do with the children during vacation, 471, 490, 505, 537, 569, 585
 Which was right? 761
 Word to mothers, a, 164
 Word to mothers, a, 537

ORIGINAL ARTICLES.

Abiding in Christ, 737
 Adieu, 448
 After the ball, 509
 Answers to questions from a missionary, 252
 Apostasy and the restoration, the, 382, 398, 415, 429, 445
 Being subject to Christ, 720
 Church history, a reply, 120, 139, 155
 Church history as found in Times and Seasons and Millennial Star, 151
 Church of Christ, the, 348
 Collections, 463
 College, 154
 Coming of Christ, is it near? the, 280
 Coöperation, 798
 Correction, a, 736
 Corrections late, but needed, 832
 Curtis-Moore debate, the, 669
 Daniel-Williams debate, the, 685
 Denominational barriers down, 703
 Doctors and trained nurses in the church, 817
 Ephraim in prophecy, 10
 Experience and testimony of John J. McKeown, 75, 91
 Faith as a perfect principle considered, 281
 Few thoughts, a, 190
 Few thoughts and questions for thinkers, a, 770
 Few thoughts on infidelity, a, 496, 653
 Fire and life insurance, 368
 Gates of hell, the, 495
 Genuine Campbellite miracle, a, 589
 God did not create evil, 771
 Gospel, the, 655
 Growing evil, a, 350
 Handwriting on the wall, the, 768
 "Hard times," 560
 Higher criticism, the, 462, 620, 638
 In whose charge? 44
 Is it wise to condemn before a hearing? 638
 Judge righteous judgment, 526
 Labor and capital, 297
 Laborers in the vineyard, 652
 La grippe, 832
 Law must be observed, the, 672
 Law of tithing, the, 57
 Law supreme, the, 74
 Letter from Elder C. R. Duncan, 429
 Letter from Elder R. J. Anthony, 736
 "Lord, is it I?" 801
 Love, 668
 "Mahicani," 562
 Man not born in sin, 9
 Man's future condition, 238
 Memoirs.—No. 18, 89
 Mercy and justice, 799
 Meridian of time, the, 769
 "Mr. Haweis among the Mormons," 271
 Mormonism and Christianity, 10
 Moroni's bogus (?) plates, 253
 Necessity for unity, 366
 Nominations and common consent, 107
 Notes on Braden-Scott debate, 813
 On the labor question, 269
 Our liberties are in the law, 106
 Our probation, 27
 Plea for the elders, a, 268
 Promises and commandments, 267
 Proper amusements and recreations, 818
 Punishment for reformation, 125
 Question of usury, the, 43

"Question of usury, the," 123
 Rebaptism, 783
 Religio-Literary Society, 561
 Remedy for existing evils, a, 718
 Resurrection, the, 606
 Resurrection, the, 685
 Resurrection, the, 752
 Resurrection, the, 766
 Revelation of April, 1894, the, 542
 Revelation of 1861, the, 122
 Review of bogus brass plates, 296
 Sermon by Elder C. Scott, 784
 Sermon by Pres. W. W. Blair, 828
 Shall we anoint? 218
 Short-Perkins discussion, the, 607
 Sign of Jonas, the, 718
 Some leaves from life's experiences, 590
 Southern Missouri, 574
 Statement, a, 8
 Stockbridge Indians, 461
 Stockbridge Indians, 783
 Stockbridge tribe again, 641
 Story of Sidney Rigdon and the Book of Mormon, the, 732
 Stumbling-blocks removed, 217
 Synopsis of sermon by Elder E. L. Kelley, 787
 Testimonies of the people of God, the, 558
 Thoughts on the resurrection, 543
 Treat-Lambert discussion, 477
 "Upon this rock," 734
 Voice of God, the, 61
 Was Paul one of the Twelve? 170
 Who or what is the rock? 655
 Who shall rise from the dead? 573
 Who wrote the Book of Mormon? 333
 Why not? 298
 Wise counsel is profitable to all Saints, 784
 Woman, 701
 Woman, 750
 Word of defence, a, 171, 186, 201
 Work for the Daughters of Zion, 186

POETRY.

Always a river to cross, 292
 Blasphemy not, 763
 "Cup of cold water, a," 52
Evanelia, 648
Evanelia, the, 826
 Exultation, 205
 He knows, 537
 How we look in their dress, 45
 If I knew, 798
 Infinite atonement, the, 62
 In retrospect, 125
 Labor for Christ, 307
 Lamoni, 423
 Mother, 665
 My Master's order, 665
 New Year, the, 4
 Nothing to do, 530
 O, come away, 813
 Once in a while, 506
 Opportunity, 761
 Our gospel boat, 745
 Petition for guidance, 616
 Prayer, a, 754
 Prophet of God, 778
 Solitude, 472
 Song of life, a, 477
 Song of the burden bearer, a, 457
 Speak no evil, 52
 "Sweet singer of Israel, the," 792
 "Take my hand," 471
 Thy will be mine, 632
 Truth's "Herald," 217
 Twilight musings, 521
 Under the snow, 392
 Vision of Nauvoo, 109
 What the world is, 728
 Will they love us then? 4
 Years, the, 519

SELECTED ARTICLES.

Ancient name of Egypt, 754
 Antecedent probabilities of a revelation, 511, 526
 Beginnings of history, 30
 British empire, the, 708
 Cardinal Vaughan washes feet, 211
 Card to the elders, 400
 Cause of gravitation is unknown, 221
 Chief Rabbi of Great Britain on the Christian faith, the, 284
 Contentment the only specific, 340
 Cure for smallpox, 506
 Differences in human nature, 687
 Exact sciences, the, 401
 Experiment in coöperation, 684
 For sleepless ones, 684
 Fountain of youth, the, 352
 Freethinkers, the, 22
 From God to man, 285
 Gleanings from Old Testament margins, 298
 Idea of the resurrection, the, 418
 Immensity of the heavens, 340
 Is science quackery? 8
 Kingdoms of this world, the, 673
 Languages of Palestine, 664
 Life and a Creator, 44
 New cure for nervous invalids, 336
 New recipe of longevity, a, 256
 Old age and hard work, 516
 Physical basis of knowledge, the, 687
 Poor teeth and the cause, 300
 Providence in Oriental history, 253
 Strange ruin, a, 221
 Valedictory, a, 777

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

Alabama, 385, 754
 Birmingham, 126
 British Isles mission, 688
 Central California, 418
 Central Nebraska, 143, 575
 Chatham, 449, 754
 Decatur, 173, 434, 738
 Des Moines, 30, 286, 401, 609
 Eastern Iowa, 206, 575
 Eastern Maine, 240, 688
 Eastern Michigan, 449, 720
 Elders' Conference, European mission, 93
 European mission, 77
 Far West, 14, 205, 449, 622, 819
 Forster, 143
 Fremont, 30, 206, 465, 819
 Galland's Grove, 206, 449, 705
 Independence, 14, 190, 481, 609, 819
 Kentucky and Tennessee, 174, 622
 Kewanee, 126, 498, 642
 Little Sioux, 175, 449, 803
 London, 481, 788
 Malad, 190
 Massachusetts, 401
 Mobile, 222, 481, 642
 Montana, 755
 Nauvoo and String Prairie, 46, 286, 529, 688
 Nevada, 833
 Nodaway, 14, 190, 481, 788
 Northeastern Illinois, 498, 738
 Northeastern Kansas, 30, 434, 755
 Northeastern Missouri, 222, 514, 705
 Northern California, 240
 Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin, 206
 Northern Michigan, 705
 Northern Minnesota, 498, 720
 Northern Nebraska, 128, 385, 657
 Northwestern Kansas, 190, 385, 592
 Ohio, 174, 591
 Philadelphia, 240, 688
 Pittsburg and Kirtland, 174, 609

Pottawattamie, 30, 175, 464, 657, 833
 St. Louis, 46, 190, 464, 657
 Southeastern Illinois, 174, 385, 642
 Southern California, 738
 Southern Indiana, 126, 433, 705
 Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, 514, 705
 Southern Missouri, 190, 433, 592, 819
 Southern Nebraska, 190, 642, 833
 Southern Wisconsin, 721
 South Sea Islands mission, 433
 Southwestern Texas, 174, 464, 688
 Spring River, 174, 434, 642
 Texas Central, 575
 Victoria, 143, 720
 Western Maine, 109, 465, 754
 Western Wales, 30, 609
 Western Wisconsin, 30, 109
 West Virginia, 174, 803

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS.

Decatur, 94
 Galland's Grove, 482
 General Convention programme, 126
 General Secretary's notice, 95, 110
 Independence, 222, 545, 623
 Little Sioux, 191, 465
 Manchester, 705
 Massachusetts, 110, 529
 Northern and Eastern Michigan, 482
 Philadelphia, 623
 Southeastern Illinois, 642
 Southern California, 31
 Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, 190, 705
 Southern Nebraska, 642
 Spring River, 126, 256, 575, 803
 String Prairie and Nauvoo, 126
 Sunday school superintendents, attention! 819
 Sunday school work at Logan Reunion, 575
 Sunday school workers, 450
 Texas Central, 222, 498

MISCELLANEOUS.

Church Secretary and Recorder's notices, 46, 47, 79, 110, 127, 143
 Council, 206
 First Quorum of Seventy, 143
 High Council, 286
 Important to tent workers, 309
 Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Central and Southern Indiana mission, 95
 Joint council, 286
 Listen to the Secretary, 418
 One more call to Sunday school workers, 833
 Proposed change in selecting superintendents of association and schools, 14
 Request, 78
 Scattered members, 833
 Shinn-Roberts debate, 657
 To all interested in the South Sea mission, 592
 To the High Priests, 465
 To the Quorum of Apostles, 110
 White-Popplewell discussion, 158

COMMUNICATIONS AND NOTICES FROM THE BISHOPRIC.

Annual report of receipts and expenditures, 313
 Appointment of Bishop's agents, 353, 418, 626, 642, 804, 833
 Auxiliary and corrections—Bishop's Annual Report, 353
 Cost of the Evanelia, 721

PASTORALS.

Anthony, R. J., 337
 Baggerly, I. P., 302
 Briggs, E. C., 309
 Burton, J. F., 402, 706

Butterworth, C. A., 529
 Caton, C. H., 529
 Curtis, Emsley, 337
 Derry, Charles, 337
 Griffiths, G. T., 302
 Holt, Hiram L., 385
 Kelley, W. H., 353
 Kemp, Henry, 354
 Kemp, James, 337
 Luff, Joseph, 310
 Moler, James, 310
 Montague, George, 675
 Peak, W. E., 354
 Pender, W. S., 370
 Porter, Charles H., 386
 Roberts, I. N., 353
 Smith, A. H., 301
 Smith, Heman C., 302, 756
 Spurlock, C. J., 287

REUNIONS.

Kentucky and Tennessee, 593
 Logan, 623
 New England, 546, 578
 Northern and Central California, 721
 Northern Missouri and Southern Iowa, 578
 Northwestern Kansas, 562
 Ohio, 755
 Southeastern Illinois, 610
 Southwestern Iowa, 576
 Southwestern Missouri, 674, 689

COVER ARTICLES.

	No.	Page
Abilities and responsibilities,	40	1
Abuse of grammar, the,	46	1
Alcohol as a medicine,	17	1
Bare feet and health,	27	1
Beauty of the mind,	21	1
Between father and son,	25	1
Bible compared with other sacred writings,	44	1
Bishop Vincent on temperance and woman's duties,	20	1
Boom in modern Jerusalem,	23	1
Bread reform,	29	1
Breathing movements as a cure,	14	1
Brotherhood of man,	22	1
Chemistry in the year 2,000,	25	1
Christianity did not come from Buddhism,	51	1
Christianity true and false,	21	1
Christian socialism,	31	1
Cold weather rules,	4	1
Communication with the planet Mars,	45	1
Comparative therapeutics,	41	1
Conjugal statistics,	26	1
Contentment,	48	2
Cooling a room,	51	4
Curative powers of the sun,	30	1
Death of George W. Childs,	8	1
Debasing Asiatic faiths,	51	2
Decline of dogma, the,	48	1
Delaware's relic of barbarism,	7	1
Dogs spread consumption,	12	1
Domestic service in England,	17	1
Drinker's children,	47	2
Economy in eating,	42	1
Economy in living,	7	1
Education statistics,	24	1
English clergymen appeal,	23	1
Evolution and miracle,	47	2
Evolution subject to law,	14	1
Explorations in Palestine,	43	1
Faults in reading and preaching,	4	1
Francis Parkman,	9	1
Gladstone on the atonement,	50	1
Gladstone's retirement,	11	1
Greatness of religion, the,	47	1
His theme is work,	35	1

How old is the earth?	18	1
How the ancients hardened copper,	25	1
How to avoid taking cold,	1	1
How to cultivate the body,	16	1
How to live long and be happy,	39	1
How to prevent consumption,	40	1
Incompetent wives,	1	1
Is the church a temperance society?	17	1
Jerusalem's returning prosperity,	35	1
Jews in Palestine,	20	1
Jewish movement from Europe,	15	1
Keep the skin clean,	46	2
Land in Great Britain,	34	1
Languages of Palestine,	45	1
Longevity of females,	51	2
Lord Salisbury on the mystery of life,	37	1
Luminiferous ether, the,	36	1
Making of a woman, the,	15	1
Mss. of the New Testament,	35	1
Meat eating and temper,	37	1
Mission of the church in the world,	33	1
Moral effects of physical exercise,	5	1
Municipal campaign in New York,	46	1
Of Asiatic origin,	42	1
One cause of shallow culture,	21	1
On Sunday afternoons,	19	1
Our educated women,	6	1
Pecan culture in Missouri,	3	1
Physical culture of children,	36	1
Plea for the Bible,	46	2
President Harper ably discusses higher criticism,	28	1
Professor Huxley's test of religion applied to science,	52	1
Record of 1893, the,	2	1
Religious views of great scientists,	45	1
Religion and education,	27	1
Remedial use of apples,	15	1
Rules in speaking,	41	1
Schaff on the Bible,	26	1
Scientific aspects of the temperance question,	3	1
Seven Bibles of the world,	38	1
Shut your mouth and live,	48	2
Sin of fretting, the,	29	1
Some Phœnician inscriptions,	20	1
Something new from Josephus,	39	1
Son of the carpenter and the common people, the,	19	1
Tolstoi's religion,	34	1
Tools of the pyramid builders,	13	1
Twenty-five false Mes-siahs,	49	1
Unamerican spirit,	24	1
Use and cost of stimulating beverages,	18	1
Virchow against Darwin,	44	1
Vitality of disease germs,	21	1
Wealth of the world, the,	4	1
Welsh Church disestablishment	22	1
What Japan Thinks of England	52	2
What some great men have said of the Bible,	13	1
What will remain?	38	1
When a man is a success,	42	1
Why is the Jew hated?	12	1
Why women break down,	17	1
Women and health,	36	1
Year of disasters, 1893, a,	5	1
Young of America should be better equipped,	8	1

AUTUMN LEAVES AT $1.25.

Special Book Premium Inducements for Club Lists.

THE HERALD AND LEAVES IN COMBINATION AT $3.00, CASH IN ADVANCE.

Beginning with the new year AUTUMN LEAVES will be published by the Board of Publication. The magazine will still be under the editorial management of Sr. M. Walker, who will be ably seconded, as heretofore, by competent department editors, who will endeavor to make the LEAVES of especial interest and value to the youth of the church. No reasonable efforts will be spared to sustain the reputation that the magazine has earned for itself and to make it a continued substantial success.

With a desire to increase its subscription list the coming year, AUTUMN LEAVES has been reduced to $1.25.

The attractive series of valuable premiums that follows is offered to those getting up clubs.

The HERALD and AUTUMN LEAVES are offered in combination for $3 per year, cash in advance.

Take notice, that to secure either premiums for clubs, or the HERALD and LEAVES at combination rates, cash must accompany orders in all cases.

The offer is limited to March 1, 1895:—

Your choice, with remittance of $2.50 for two subscriptions:—

HANDY CLASSICS OF THE WORLD,

Consisting of volumes selected from the most noted works in English Literature. Beautifully printed on good paper and bound in full embossed cloth, gold stamping. 16mo.

- A Book of Golden Deeds. By C. M. Yonge.
- Black Beauty. A. Sewell.
- Crown of Wild Olive, The. By John Ruskin.
- Emerson's Essays. Vol. 1.
- Emerson's Essays. Vol. 2.
- Epictetus, Discourses of, and the Enchiridion.
- Ethics of the Dust. J. Ruskin.
- Greatest thing in the World, and other addresses. By Henry Drummond.
- House of Seven Gables. By Nathaniel Hawthorne.
- John Halifax. By Miss Mulock. Vol. 1.
- " " " " Vol. 2.
- Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare. Vol. 1.
- " " " " Vol. 2.
- Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott.
- Light of Asia. By Sir Edwin Arnold.
- Longfellow's Poems.
- Lowell, James Russell. Poems.
- Lucile. By Owen Meredith.
- Mill on the Floss. By George Eliot. Vol. 1.
- " " " " Vol. 2.
- Mornings in Florence. Ruskin.
- Mosses from an Old Manse. By Hawthorne.
- Pleasures of Life, The. By Sir John Lubbock.
- Poe, Edgar Allan. Poems.
- Scarlet Letter, The. Nathaniel Hawthorne.
- Sesame and Lilies. By J. Ruskin.
- Thoughts from the Emperor Marcus Aurelius Antoninus.
- Twice Told Tales. Vol. 1. By Nathaniel Hawthorne.
- " " " " Vol. 2. By Hawthorne.
- Uncle Tom's Cabin. By Harriet Beecher Stowe. Vol. 1.
- " " " " " "
- " " " " " "
- " " " " " "
- Vol. 2.
- Whittier's Poems.
- Wide, Wide World. By Susan Warner. Vol. 1.
- " " " " " " Vol. 2.
- Everyday Cook Book. By Mrs. Neal, bound in oil cloth, the $1.00 edition.

(Additional copies, 40 cents each.)

Either of the following for a club of four subscribers and $5.

Selections from famous Poets.

This series is most attractive for the library, and the size of the volumes makes them specially desirable for leisure hour reading. They are excellent for gift purposes. 16mo.

- Arnold, Sir Edwin.....Light of Asia
- Aytoun, Wm. Edmunston,
- Lays of the Scottish Cavaliers
- Browning, Robert.....Selections
- Byron, Lord....Childe Harold's Pilgrimage
- Macaulay, Lord.....Lays of Ancient Rome
- Meredith, Owen.....Lucile
- Moore, Thomas.....Lalla Rookh
- Poe, Edgar Allan.....Poems
- Scott Sir Walter.....Lady of the Lake
- Tennyson, Lord.....Princess
- Tennyson, Lord.....Idylls of the King
- Tennyson, Lord.....In Memoriam

OR THE FOLLOWING

"HANDY VOLUME CLASSICS":

- Browning's Poems. Longfellow's Poems.
- Lowell's Poem's. Poe's Poems.
- Whittier's Poems.

Any one from the accompanying list with eight subscriptions and $10.

SUPERB CLASSICS,

consisting of the best works in English and American literature. Beautifully printed on fine paper and bound in full watered silk, gold stamping, gilt edges, silk headbands, ribbon marker, rich linings. Each of the volumes contains a photogravure and a photogravure title page. 16mo.

A beautiful edition of Classics for the Library, Boudoir, or Drawing-room.

- Brown, Dr. John.....Rab and His Friends
- Drummond, Henry,
- Greatest Thing in the World, and other Addresses:
- Eliot, George,.....Romola. Vol. 1
- " ".....Romola. Vol. 2
- " ".....Mill on the Floss. Vol. 1
- " ".....Mill on the Floss. Vol. 2
- Hawthorne, Nathaniel,
- " House of the Seven Gables
- " Scarlet Letter.
- " Mosses from an Old Manse.
- " Twice Told Tales. Vol. 1.
- " " Twice Told Tales. Vol. 2.
- Mulock, Miss,.....John Halifax. Vol. 1.
- " " " " John Halifax. Vol. 2.
- Sewell, Anna,.....Black Beauty.
- St. Pierre. Benardin de. Paul and Virginia.
- Tennyson, Lord.....The Princess.
- Yonge, Charlotte M.,..Book of Golden Deeds.

For ten subscriptions and $12.50:—

FAMOUS AUTHORS, SUPERB BINDING.

Dressed in a beautiful half calf binding. A nice edition for preservation in the home library. 16mo:—

- Eliot, George. Romola. Vol. 1.
- " " " " Vol. 2.
- " " " " Mill on the Floss. Vol. 1.
- " " " " " " Vol. 2.
- Emerson, Ralph Waldo. Essays. Vol. 1.
- " " " " " " Vol. 2.
- Hawthorne, Nathaniel. House of Seven Gables.
- " " Mosses from an Old Manse.
- " " " " Scarlet Letter.
- " " " " Twice Told Tales. Vol. 1.
- " " " " " " Vol. 2.
- Longfellow, Henry W. Earlier Poems.
- Lowell, James Russell. Earlier Poems.
- Meredith, Owen. Lucile.
- Ruskin, John. Crown of Wild Olive.
- " " " " Ethics of the Dust.
- " " " " Queen of the Air.
- " " " " Mornings in Florence.
- " " " " Sesame and Lilies.
- Scott, Sir Walter. Lady of the Lake.

- Tennyson, Lord. In Memoriam.
 - " " Idylls of the King.
 - " " Princess.
 - Thackeray, William M. Vanity Fair. Vol. 1.
 - " " " " Vanity Fair. Vol. 2.
- (Additional copies of any of the above, $1.00 each.)

For fifteen subscribers and $18.75 any of the following sets:—

THE CENTURY SERIES OF TWO VOLUME SETS.

Printed from large type on good paper and bound in handsome cloth, gilt binding. Written by authors of world-wide reputation. Very artistically bound.

- Ebers, George. Uarda. Egyptian Princess.
- Emerson. Emerson's Essays. Bacon's Essays.
- Dickens, Charles. David Copperfield. Goldsmith, Oliver. Vicar of Wakefield.
- Lytton, Bulwer. Last Days of Pompeii. Irving, Washington. Sketch Book.
- Creasy, Sir Edward. Fifteen Decisive Battles Plutarch's Lives.
- Smiles, Samuel. Self Help. Seneca's Morals.
- Mulock, Miss. John Halifax, Gentleman.
- Bronte, Charlotte. Jane Eyre.
- Drummond. Natural Law in the Spiritual World. Farrar, Canon. Life of Christ.

For twenty-five subscribers with $2.50 and $31.25 for subscriptions:—

[GLIMPSSES OF THE WORLD.

This work was arranged under the supervision of that prince of Travelers and Lecturers, John L. Stoddard. The illustrations are beautiful photographs and one may sit in his home, and see pass before him as on one Grand Panorama, England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Germany, Russia, Austria, Turkey, Italy, Spain, Asia, Africa, North and South America, The Old World, and the New. An object lesson in history, so simple that a child may understand.

Editions De Luxe, padded Levant leather binding, enameled paper. Regular price $15.

The following "church publications" are also offered:—

- For club of two:—
- What is Man? paper.
- The Christian Sabbath, paper.
- Objections to the Book of Mormon, paper.
- Forseutt-Shinn Discussion, paper.
- Watson-Blair Debate, paper.
- New Testament, I. T., cloth.
- Joseph the Seer, paper.

- Club of four:—
- Joseph the Seer, cloth.
- What is Man? cloth.
- Objections to Book of Mormon, cloth.
- Rules of Order.
- Bound set of tracts, cloth.
- Welsh Hymn Book, leather.
- German Hymn Book, leather.

- Club of six: Either of selections of "famous poets" offered for club of four; or,—
- Compendium, cloth.
- Instructor, cloth.
- Joseph the Prophet, cloth.
- The Saints' Harp, cloth.
- The Ruins Revisited, cloth.
- Danish Hymn Book, cloth.

- Club of eight:—
- New Testament, Large Type, cloth.
- Book of Mormon, Mor. Gr. Russia.
- Doctrine and Covenants, Mor. Gr. Russia.
- Saint's Harp. " " "
- Compendium, Sheep. " " "
- Instructor. " " "
- Pattie, or Leaves From a Life, cloth.

(Continued on page 4.)

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Trumbull's Teaching and Teachers, cloth.
" Hints on Child Training, "

Club of ten:—

Holy Scriptures, sheep.
New Testament, Large Type, Seal Grain Russia.
Book of Mormon Imitation Morocco.
Doctrine and Covenants, Imitation Morocco.
Saints' Harp, Imitation Morocco.
Saints' Harmony, music only.
Instructor, flexible binding.
Presidency and Priesthood.
Autobiography of Joseph Luff.
Hesperis, Poems by David H. Smith, cloth, gilt edge.

Club of fifteen:—

Holy Scriptures, Morocco, gilt edges.
Book of Mormon, large type, seal grain, Russia.
The Two Records, leather.
The Saints' Harmony, complete.
Afterglow, leather.
Braden-Kelley Debate, cloth.

Club of twenty-five:—

Holy Scriptures, Morocco, flexible binding.
Two Records, imitation Morocco, gilt edges.
HERALD and AUTUMN LEAVES one year.
Abstract of Evidence, sheep.
Any books on the list amounting to $3.75 in value.

Address all orders and remittances to

DAVID DANCER,
LAMONI, IOWA.

LAMONI FARM FOR SALE.

Good farm, 160 acres, well watered, 2½ miles from town. Good 7 room house, and buildings. Young, bearing orchard of 50 trees. Price $6,000.

For particulars address Box 7,
LAMONI, Iowa.

FOR SALE.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, nearly new, well furnished, and contains TWENTY ROOMS. Is situated in the business portion of the town of Lamoni, and has a large and well-established trade. Address,

L. J. BARR, Lamoni, Iowa.

Lock Box 287.

BLAIR MERCANTILE CO.

Our Specialties:—

Fancy Dry Goods,
Fine Shoes.

HOMES AT LAMONI.

Land for sale, situated one quarter to one half mile southwest of Lamoni; in three, four, or five acre lots.

These plats will make nice homes; suitable for gardening, raising of small fruits, etc.

Prices reasonable; terms on application.
Address, J. W. GILLEN,
LAMONI, Iowa.

A BARGAIN.

A good House containing six rooms with pantry, hall, and bath room; good well of water, outbuildings, etc. Lot 140 x 150. Ten minutes walk from church or business center of town. For sale cheap if taken soon. Address "H," Care of Herald Office, Lamoni, Iowa.

Henry Stoddard, J. D. Briggs, Frank Stoddard,
President. Asst. Cashier. Cashier.

COMMERCIAL BANK, LAMONI, - IOWA.

Proper Attention given to all Branches of Legitimate banking.
Interest paid on time deposits. Correspondence Solicited.

OFFICERS. DIRECTORS.
Israel L. Rogers, President. I. L. Rogers, Robt. Winning,
D. F. Nicholson, Cashier. D. F. Nicholson, S. V. Bailey,
F. B. Blair, Asst. Cashier. George W. Blair.

LAMONI STATE BANK.

(Incorporated.)
Paid up Capital, $25,000.
Liability of Stockholders, $50,000.
INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

THOS. TEALE & SON

Carry the largest and most complete line of

Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries, & Hardware

in town. We buy in large quantities, and for cash, and can meet all competition.

THOS. TEALE & SON.

B. D. FLEET,

GENERAL MERCHANDISE,

LAMONI, - - IOWA.

A. B. MAIR, WHOLESALE FRUITS and PRODUCE.

General Commission.

Berries Apples, Potatoes, etc. Car lots a Specialty.
Consignments Solicited. Prompt Returns.

518 Pearl St. Council Bluffs, Iowa.

HOXIE'S AUTOMATIC Ice Cream Freezer

CAPACITY UNLIMITED.

For Hotels, Restaurants, and Family Use.

Will freeze Ice Cream, Lemonade, Sherbets, and all kinds of Ices instantly. Several Machines combined in one, with saving of 80 per cent of ice. Agents wanted. Exclusive territory can be secured by addressing

HOXIE BROS.,

17 CHARDON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

Lots $200 each,

In my addition to Lamoni. Shade trees, lawn, and sidewalks; ten minutes' walk from L. D. S. church. Terms one fourth cash, and balance yearly.

Write for maps to D. F. NICHOLSON,
Lamoni State Bank.

AGENTS WANTED.

Send 10 cents for box of Hoxie's Instant Lustre. Town or County given free. Secured by deed.

You can make a permanent business. Profits large. Address,
A. N. HOXIE, BOSTON, Mass.

Zion's Ensign.

52 SERMONS A YEAR.

Subscription price, 1 year.....$1 00
" " 6 months.... 50
" " 3 months.... 25
For introduction, 4 months.... 25

Address all communications and make all orders payable to

ZION'S ENSIGN,
INDEPENDENCE, MO.

$3.50. EAR TRUMPETS. $3.50.

Why lose all the pleasure of a good conversation by hearing only half of it? Or why injure the throats and voices of those you love by compelling them to talk to you in an unnatural or strained voice, when you can get a conversation tube for $3.50 by mail, postpaid.

I have two sizes, one a yard long which can be coiled up—the one generally preferred. The other a foot long, and can be folded and put in the pocket. References, Elder J. F. Burton, San Benito, California, or Sr. M. Walker, Lamoni, Iowa. Address, A. C. GEER,
LAMONI, Decatur County, Iowa.

C. B. & Q. HOLIDAY RATES.

Christmas and New Year's Holiday Excursion Rates.—Tickets sold December 22 to 31 inclusive, and January 1, 1895, good to return on January 2, at one and one third fare, to any point within a radius of two hundred miles from selling station, continuous passage in each direction.

The Burlington Route is now running weekly "personally conducted" California excursions. Pullman palace tourist cars of the latest model, with porter in charge, leave Chicago every Wednesday. For particulars, rates, etc., call on or address any Burlington Route agent. 12d3t

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of Information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.

Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY

THE SAINTS' HARMONY

(Music and Hymns combined)

Latter back, music and sides

The Harmony contains all the hymns in the Saints' Harp; also 555 pages of music, comprising about 72 tunes, with full instructions on choir and anthem music. T - same (music only) 1 25