HOW TO AVOID TAKING COLD.

HOW TO AVOID TAKING COLD.

A RECENT article in the Cosmopolitan on the best methods of resisting colds will be of peculiar interest to women. Autumn, according to the writer, is the most favorable season for cultivating the power of resistance to disease, and the cure may be wrought at home and without expense.

The first important point to be considered is the skin, for the skin supplements in functions almost every organ of the body. So intimately related to the vital processes is the skin that a burn of even slight severity extending over more than three fifths of the body is usually fatal. The influence of cold upon the skin causes a temporary blanching of the surface. The minute blood vessels contract and the blood recedes and accumulates in deeper and more protected structures. The circulation, usually sluggish, is profoundly disturbed, the nervous system is profoundly impressed, and various undesirable symptoms indicate an imminent illness. These results attend because there is failure to react at the point of exposure, and prompt reaction presupposes pure blood and plenty of it circulating in a healthy skin. Pure blood can only be made from proper food—not medicine—as assimilated during exercise in pure air not too warm. A healthy skin is a clean skin, one from which all the organic debris has been removed by thorough washing, not by moistening the greasy impurities and then distributing them evenly over the surface—as we polish a shoe; nor, if it be permitted to add to the picture, by wiping off, woman fashion, with the corner of a towel through the week and taking a half-hearted sponge bath Sunday. Now, the month's treatment recommended by the physician who wrote the article should be commenced immediately and consists in keeping the skin clean by frequent, thorough, and energetic bathing, followed by much friction. At the beginning it is well to employ massage occasionally until the skin becomes hardened to rough usage.

Immediately upon rising move leisurely about the room for a few minutes, day by day increasing the exposure of the body, until soon you can take an air bath of five or ten minutes' duration without discomfort. This exposure should always be followed by brisk rubbing before dressing. Soon the body may be dampened all over with the hand moistened in water which has stood exposed over night and is nearly the temperature of the room. Next use a sponge slightly moistened; then one which is not so dry. Soon the cold bath may be taken with impunity and may become more prolonged and more beneficial as the skin becomes accustomed to it. These baths must be followed in all cases by brisk and prolonged rubbing of the skin, and they are merely the skin gymnastics, not taking the place of the thorough cleansing bath, which must be attended to at some other hour.

As the weather becomes colder the morning temperature of the room and the bath should become gradually lower, until when you are habituated to them you may venture to open the window a little on warmer mornings and expose the nude body to a slight draft. During the night the mucous membrane should be hardened by leaving the chamber windows open, guarding only against drafts. Keep the feet warm and dry, the body dry, and during the day remain outdoors as much as the weather will permit, resisting the impulse to put on heavy clothing. Avoid violent changes and the long-continued cooling of a single part of the body. Remember that the draft through a two-inch aperture is often more dangerous than the wind through an entirely open window, and that the Thanksgiving dinner is as active in causing a cold as the November blasts.

After a careful test with cut and wire nails in the Watertown arsenal, it was found that cut nails hold into wood about twice as hard as wire nails. Builders should take notice of this fact, and look into it.

The total value of exhibits at the World's Fair in bonds was $14,500,000.

INCOME OF WIVES.

There is no greater injustice that can be inflicted upon a mother than for a mother to allow a daughter to enter womanhood or widowhood without practical knowledge of a household and its requirements, writes Edward W. Bok in "At Home with the Editor" in the January Ladies' Home Journal. I care not how easy her beginning may be made for her, how everything may be provided her by generous parents when she begins her new career, nor how many servants she may have at her call, a woman is cruelly handicapped who comes to her own home without an intelligent conception of its management. It is a popular thing in certain "smart sets" to scoff at the utility of housekeeping, but nothing more surely stamps the intellectual calibre of a girl than an indulgence in such feather-brained commonplaces. The girl who believes she becomes fashionable by being untrue to the best instincts of her sex is the girl who some day wakes up to wonder why other women are so happily married, and she still retains her single blessedness (?). Wealth does not lessen the necessity of a knowledge of home-making and home-keeping on the part of a girl. The largest retinue of servants requires a head, and an intelligent one, just as the largest business requires a master, and servants, whether in a home or in an office, are quick to discover incapacity and take advantage of it. The woman who comes closest to the solution of the servant-girl problem is the woman whom her servants know is as capable of doing their work as they are themselves. Servants of any kind work best and only under direction, and proper direction requires knowledge. No study is more vital to a girl than this. Many a girl, after marriage, has wished that she knew less of conic sections and more about cooking. The strongest love of a husband for a wife is not a safeguard for the discontent which is sure to enter a home where the wife betrays constant domestic incapacity. If the husband be the master of his business he expects his wife to be the master of her home.

Writers and public speakers have done much harm in referring to cooking as a homely art; on the contrary no practical art exists which is more graceful. A woman who fills her home in every sense of the word elicits more true applause, worthy at all of the having, than the women gifted of any other quality. This fact cannot be too strongly impressed upon our girls.

AMUSING IRISH BULLS.

About seventy years ago the grand jury of the county of Tipperary passed the following resolutions:—

1. That a new courthouse shall be built.
2. That the materials of the old courthouse be used in building the new courthouse.
3. That the old courthouse shall not be taken down till the new courthouse is finished.

Here is a bull, or rather a mixed metaphor, which appeared in an English newspaper. In a leading article in the Morning Post in 1812 occurs the following passage: "We congratulate ourselves most on having torn off Cobett's mask and revealed his cloven foot. It was high time that the hydra head of faction should be soundly rapped over the knuckles."

Irrigation companies are forming to build canals from rainy regions to the sandy deserts. In Eastern Oregon and Washington, over three million dollars are to be invested in this way.

Abstract of Evidence

TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

A limited edition of this timely work has been issued. Every elder and every one interested in advocating and defending the general and specific claims of the church should have a copy of the evidence it contains.

It is compiled from the sworn testimony of Plaintiff's and Defendants' witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickite faction for the title to and possession of the Temple Lot property at Independence, Missouri.

The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, is given; also their statements under cross-examination and re-cross-examination.

Evidences from the three standard books, from other publications of the original church, from those of the Reorganized Church, from the Hedrickite faction, and from the published works of the Utah Church, are presented.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

Price in advance, including arguments, $3.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

WAS IT TEN OR TWELVE?

TEMPLE, Tex., Dec. 15, 1893.

Editors Herald.—Please give information through the Herald by answering the following questions:—

1. Were all the eight witnesses to the Book of Mormon ever ordained elders in the church?

2. If so, when, or at what date?

3. At what date and time was Martin Harris, one of the three witnesses, ordained an elder?

4. Also the Book of Commandments, chapter 15, verse 7, reads: "And now behold, there are others which are called to declare my gospel both unto Gentile and unto Jew: Yea, even unto twelve."

I have underlined a few words to call attention. Now did the Lord mean in this verse that those who had been called and ordained were included in the quorum, and that the two, Oliver and David, were to search out others, just enough more to make it even unto twelve?

Please answer through the Herald and oblige.

Respectfully,

ELIAS LAND.

Replies:—

1. We have not the data at hand from which to answer whether all the eight witnesses were ordained elders or not; but from the fact that the most of them officiated in callings requiring such ordination it is evident that they were. For instance: Christian Whitmer was ordained to the high priesthood in Missouri in 1833, and was chosen one of the High Council in Missouri, in 1834, which office he held at his death, November 27, 1835. Jacob Whitmer was driven from Jackson county, Missouri, with others in 1833, and was with the church in Clay and Caldwell counties, where he filled the office of a high councillor, and was also on the building committee at Far West. Peter Whitmer, Jun., was "called" as a preacher in June, 1829, and we presume was ordained. In September, 1830, he and O. Cowdery were called together, and in October, he accompanied P. P. Pratt, O. Cowdery, and Ziba Peterson on the mission in which Sidney Rigdon joined the church. These four with F. G. Williams held a council at Independence, Missouri, in February, 1831. He was with the church till his death, September 26, 1836.

John Whitmer was one of the earliest and most active missionaries; was with Joseph Smith in the first mission to Colesville, and was at the meeting at Harmony, Pennsylvania, when the revelation on the sacrament was given, August, 1830. He was "called" in September, 1830, to preach and labor continuously; and chosen historian in 1831. He was afterwards one of the seven sent up to stand at the head of the church in Jackson county. In 1834 he was ordained "assistant president of the church in Clay county." He was at the dedication of the temple at Kirtland, and assisted as a representative of the church in Missouri. Joseph Smith, Sen., was ordained Patriarch and President of the High Priesthood, in 1833, and was a member of the first High Council, organized February 17, 1834. Hyrum Smith was an active missionary with others from his baptism in June, 1829, and was chosen counselor to Joseph Smith in 1837; so that he must early have been ordained to the eldership.

Samuel H. Smith was ordained April 6, 1830, being one of the six present at the organization of the church.

2. Answered as above.

3. We have not the data from which to reply.

4. It is evident that the Lord did not mean that Oliver Cowdery and David Whitmer were to be included in the Quorum of Twelve, apparently there provided for; as the revelation in the Book of Commandments, referred to, chapter 15, verse 28, further states: "And the twelve," that is, these twelve to be chosen as directed, were to be called "the twelve;" in contradistinction to those whom he had already stated were like his ancient Apostle Peter. "And the Twelve" are again named in verse 29; and in verse 33 the Lord addressed himself directly to that Twelve.

And that the two were not intended to be so included, but the twelve were to be the full complement of twelve others besides the two is clearly shown in verses 42 and 43:—

And now behold I give unto you, Oliver, and also unto David, that you shall search out the twelve which shall have the desires of which I have spoken; and by their desires and their works, ye shall know them; and when you have found them you shall show these things unto them.

We have long failed to see how anyone reading a document like chapter 15, in the Book of Commandments, can be so easily bewildered by an isolated and unfinished portion and build a presumptive argument upon it, as the question and underscored portion of the chapter quoted seem to imply.

David Whitmer and Oliver Cowdery as the ones to whom the instruction was given, and Joseph Smith through whom it was given, must certainly have understood what was meant, and acted accordingly; hence, the name of neither of the two who were commanded to seek out and appoint the Quorum of Twelve appears in the list of disciples chosen as "the twelve." It is simply incredible that so grave a blunder as the leaving those two leading witnesses out of the twelve would have been had it been the intention of the divine mind that they should have formed a part of that quorum, would have been permitted. And it is about as incredible for one to believe that had it been the design to have had these two men included in the quorum, the twelve, that the language of the direction to these two to choose the others should have been so clearly, definitely exclusive of themselves. If the language had been something like this: Ye are mine apostles, and ye shall choose others besides yourselves, even ten, who with you shall be the twelve; then there could have been no mistake. It is to the credit of both David and Oliver, for modesty and the absence of a spirit of self-exaltation that they did not mistake the Lord's words and presumptuously select themselves as being within the meaning of the direction.

The questioner quotes from the Book of Commandments, the unfinished production of 1833; as if it were a fully accredited and accepted work; which it is not. But, take the sentences as they stand in that work and the Doctrine and Covenants; and the meaning as we have given is clear. "Even unto twelve," in the Commandments; "Even twelve," in Covenants. What is there in this suggestive of fatal difference? What is there in the first that is not in the second? The limit was twelve in the first; and that is what it is in the second.

"There are others who are called." How many others? "Even twelve." "Even unto twelve." And, they, these others, twelve others, shall be my disciples. "And they are they who are ordained [chosen] of me to baptize in my name, according to that which is written; and you [David and Oliver] have that which is written before you." Here are "they," the twelve; and "you," Oliver and David, in the same sentence, one in the third person, the other in the second, showing clearly that the office work of the two bodies, and the persons composing them were different, and not to be confounded together. This followed by the direct command, "and now, behold, I give unto you, Oliver Cowdery, and also David Whitmer, that you shall seek out the twelve, who shall have the desires of which I have spoken;" all the while keeping the distinction clear as to whom the Lord meant to do the seeking and who were to be the ones sought out.

The subsequent filling of the quorum, while yet the church was in Missouri; the marvelous attestation of the work done by it in its first organization, all indicate the correctness of the rendition of the command here given, and the action of David and Oliver on it years ago.

JUSTICE IN ILLINOIS COURTS.

SR. JENNIE RANDOLPH, writing from Kibbie, Illinois, December 19:—

A debate between Bro. E. Curtis and Elder Inman of the Christian faith, has just been closed here in which we have been able to see 2 Timothy 3: 3-4 literally fulfilled. Inman made but little effort on his proposition; he seemed not to be satisfied with what he had done with Bro. Curtis' proposition and kept going back on it. The work has met with much opposition here. The adversary don't like light nor truth. About two years ago, when the gospel was first introduced here, he raged and sent his army to mob, or capture us; but they were reported to the Grand Jury, and a bill found against them, which has been baffled along, until last week they stood us for trial, in which they proposed to show us that the Latter Day Saints was not a religious body recognized by the law of our land. Quite a number of us stood in defence of the truth, and our rights, which were granted. The fine and cost awarded against the rioters amounted to $65 each. Their lawyer, one of the leading lawyers of our county made but little plea against us, and treated us with respect, did not call us Mormons nor charge us with polygamy; and after trial took the Voice of Warning, and asked where he could get our literature. The sheriff told us afterward that some of our elders could preach in the court house when court was not in session. I think this matter ought to be looked after at once; for it is our county seat and much good could be done there now. If any of the elders can come write us at once and arrangements will be made. So the good work moves on. Surely the Lord's hand has been over us all the while.

GOOD, BRO. PARRISH.

WE commend the spirit of the following notice taken from the Sharon, Pennsylvania, Daily Telegraph, for November 27, to some of those who think the editor of the HERALD is a little too set in his idea of mild pulpit treatment of those holding different faiths adverse to ours:—

EVANGELICAL MEETINGS.

Elder Parrish, of Kirtland, Ohio, who has been holding a series of gospel meetings at the Latter Day Saints' church on Elm street the past week, closed the series last evening. The services were well attended, and the doctrines of primitive Christianity clearly set forth. Some more are beginning to believe. As stated heretofore, this church is not at all connected with Utah Mormonism; on the contrary its ministers are preaching pure Bible truth; and it is therefore an evangelical church. One very good feature about these gospel sermons has been that the speaker has not arraigned, directly or indirectly, any other church, but spoke of all, when he did refer to them, kindly, showing that both he and his church desire all to be saved. In delivering his closing lecture he took occasion to say that he felt free, when not engaged with his own meetings, to attend any other church he saw fit, and to add somewhat emphatically, that his flock had the same privilege. He is not such a man as, either in public or private, would speak derogatively of any other church's doctrines. It would be well, indeed, if that could be said of every minister of all denominations. Elder Parrish will preach next Sunday night. He is in Hubbard this week.

THE HERALD.

OUR readers will notice that the HERALD enters upon another year with some improvements in its mechanical make-up. It is stapled, and trimmed, and appears in a white cover, the latter permitting the binding of the covers with the regular pages; a necessary change, as many of the articles on the cover are valuable and worthy of preservation.

The HERALD will be further improved from time to time as found practicable. Its policy is a progressive one; improvement is one of its mottoes.

The traveling ministry, district and branch presidents, and Bishop's agents, are requested to solicit subscriptions for the HERALD, the official publication of the church.

The Saints everywhere are also requested to sustain the HERALD.

To work for the HERALD is to work for the general interests of the church. It is a church publication.

BRO. JAMES CAFFALL grows indignant now and then at the theory and practice of bad lying and gets after the libelers in a characteristic way; the following from the Independent Era, published at North Platte, Nebraska, of December 15, 1893, tells just what he means when he defends when assailed by senseless charges of false worship.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

Editor Independent Era.—That we advocate, indorse, and practice religious rites, to which others are opposed, we readily confess. But that we have or do advocate that Joseph Smith was an angel, or that the said Joseph Smith was crucified, hence the Savior in lieu of Christ, is as false as God is true. Yet, sir, I have learned that the above silly twaddle has been circulated in the vicinity of the Mylander schoolhouse, and solicit the privilege to make an unqualified denial in the event of such a claim having obtained in public or private.

I recently delivered three discourses in the above schoolhouse from a Biblical standpoint, but had not the remotest thought of, much less essaying the advocacy of such debasing doctrines. But, sir, if indulging in such hypocritical cant affords anyone pleasure, I would not want to deprive them of such pleasure.

Further, there is a small church building at Cottonwood Springs, Lincoln county, Nebraska, erected by a few hard-fisted sons of toil, without the aid or influence of Utah Mormons, church fairs, bazaar, etc., which on a timely application to Mr. F. E. Knapp, Cottonwood Springs, Nebraska, may be obtained by any respectable person, in the above locality who really believe us so ignorant and depraved as to believe as above stated, with a guarantee of due deference while essaying to raise us to a higher plane of thought, with a pledge that we will not descend to the low moral grade of misrepresentation after his departure. Still further should anyone essay the task after night's shadows have settled around, we will provide shelter or hospitality as far as ability permits, as we would expect if on a similar errand.

JAMES CAFFALL,
Elder in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

EDITORS HERALD:—We read that there is a period when laborers are sent into the highways and byways to compel them to come into the kingdom. Has that time arrived, and is now, or is it yet to come, and how are they to be compelled? This has been so long a subject of thought that an answer through the Herald would be thankfully received.

We are not certain as to the period of missionary work referred to by the questioner; but from the fact that those to whom the gospel message is being proclaimed, still have the will and power to say it nay, we conclude that the "compelling time" has not yet come.

We anticipate some other features of prophetic history to transpire first; such as a wider and more systematic appeal to the Gentile and Jewish, the old as well as the new world; by competent, chosen ministers, and a more complete organization of the Lord's people in the land of Zion, before the compelling time.

REBUILDING WASTE PLACES.

FROM the Haverhill, Massachusetts, Daily Evening Bulletin, for Monday, December 18, sent us by some good brother or sister, we learn that the work of rebuilding in the spiritual "waste places," continues. There were Saints at Haverhill years ago, and the reflection that once again the gospel is preached there, is encouraging. Bro. George Robley is a stirring young elder and deserves commendation for the steady effort he is making.

LATTER DAY SAINTS.

REORGANIZED CHURCH OF CHRIST IN THE MORMON FAITH.

There has recently been organized in this city a Latter Day Saint Church of Christ, having a membership of eleven. Elder G. W. Robley of Providence, R. I., is the preacher but not a resident pastor. Sunday services are held in a private residence, No. 146 Water street and are attended by a small but apparently earnest number of people. The church is called the Reorganized Church having been formed on the principles laid down by Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism in this country and repudiates polygamy. Converts are being made and on Sunday two, a man and woman, were baptized into the faith by immersion in Merrimac River near the engine house, Water street. In order to secure water space sufficient for performance of the rite the ice had to be cut away. Quite a large number of people assembled on the shore to witness the ceremony. The converts were appropriately costumed and the rite, accompanied by singing and devotional exercises, was performed by Elder Robley. At the close the company repaired to the house, where the usual service was held. The elder preached a sermon in defence of the faith held by the church, during which he endeavored to prove that the latter saints were the descendants of the lost tribe of Israel spoken of in the Old Testament.

In proceeding the elder, who is a young and gifted speaker, referred to the plate dug from the earth by Joseph Smith in the town of Palmyra, New York, about the year 1828, upon which was written in an unknown language the Book of Mormon, and which was translated by Smith under guidance of a heavenly influence. This new found revelation as spoken of in the twenty-ninth chapter of Isaiah eleventh and forty-second verses. The elder had his theme well under control, and backed all his statements with passages of Scripture. The services were of a somewhat novel and interesting nature to the hearers whether believers or not.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. J. W. WIGHT says in note to resident brethren:—

We have had some remarkably hot weather here for time of year. Commercial and financial depression has passed the "bedrock" stage, hence brighter times are apparent. By the time this reaches you we will be on the point of leaving, if not gone. Gomer is mastering the situation manfully and will doubtless do well in this land. All are well.

BRO. I. M. SMITH was at Chester Station, Michigan, December 19, whence he wrote as follows:—

I am, at present, at Chester Station, Michigan, battling for the truth. I came here three weeks ago last Friday; expect to leave for Ray, Indiana, next Friday. There is quite an interest here. Am preaching in the First Congregationalist church to large and attentive audiences. The work is entirely new here: no Saints at all. Bro. E. C. Briggs preached two or three times in this neighborhood some twenty years ago, and that is all. Am hopeful of good results.

BRO. L. W. WALLS wrote from Latah, Washington, December 17:—

Myself and family were baptized four years ago and still feel to stick to the truth. At that time the Christian Church here was prosperous in numbers and influence. They persecuted Bro. Haws and us, saying he ought to be hung. Dissensions arose among them soon afterward and they are now divided worse than ever, and their church has been sold to the Baptists. Bro. John Davis has done good work here of late. We are poor folks and can do but little. Times are hard in Washington. Wet seasons have spoiled most of the crops. Farmers are in some cases out of seed which will cause great distress. But, thank God, the Saints in these parts are blessed with enough to eat and I think they have seed for next crop. We would be pleased to have any of the elders call here.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE holiday week has brought us an unusual supply of letters. We are obliged to summarize their contents because lacking space to insert them in full.

BRO. J. W. WHITLEY wrote from Bridgeport, Douglass county, Washington. He has found many good-hearted people among his neighbors, to whom he strives to impart the word. He rejoices in the work and labors that others may learn and know the truth. He expresses love for the Saints and manifests earnestness in his work.

Sr. Emily Keeton is the only Latter Day Saint in Buchtel, Ohio, a city with a population of one thousand, to whom she tries to impart the doctrine of Christ. She loves the work of God and works and prays for its success.

Bro. Thomas M. Parr, of Spokane, Washington, writes of the hard times prevailing in the Northwest. Though crippled by sickness and out of employment, he is cheerful and does what he can to preach the gospel. Some are believing his message. He expects to take the field and remain in it if the way opens.

Sr. Sarah P. Carrell, of Pittsfield, Illinois, wishes to remind the ministry laboring in that field that there is a good chapel belonging to the Saints, at Pittsfield, but no one to occupy it. She hopes an elder can labor there.

Bro. W. S. Taylor wrote from Sherwin Junction, Kansas, recounting blessings in healing bestowed upon the faithful in that field. There had been much sickness, but many blessings had been received through administrations.

In his late tour in the Galland's Grove and Little Sioux districts, Bro. Heman C. Smith occupied twenty-four days and preached twenty-four times. In Persia, three; Panama, three; Galland's Grove, five; Dow City, two; Moorhead, two; Woodbine, two; Magnolia, three; Logan, two; and Missouri Valley, two. He reports excellent liberty and good attention.

There is an institution in New York, called the National Conservatory of Music, the object of which is the advancement of the musical art. The managers offer prizes for musical themes; have the best of talent engaged for teaching, charge moderately for tuition, those able to pay; and persons who may have a remarkable talent, but without means, are taught free of charge. All kinds of instrumental music, and whatever attaches to successful singing are taught in the Conservatory, Nos. 126 and 128 East 17th Street, New York. Charles Inslee Pardee, Secretary, will send catalogue on application.

We acknowledge receipt of good letters from Sr. Tena Martin, Walnut Hill, Massachusetts; Bro. G. H. Dunn, Tama City, Iowa; Bro. F. H. Barrett, Reyno, Arkansas; Sr. C. H. Vincent, Applegate, Michigan; Sr. E. L. Van Why, Newton, Pennsylvania; Sr. Sweetland, Charlevoix, Michigan. Press of matter has limited us to the number that appear. We hope these sisters and brethren will write again.

Bro. D. L. Shinn was at Lough, Calhoun county, West Virginia, December 20, wrestling with lagrippe and the combined opposition of Methodists and Disciples. The latter are strong in numbers and influence in that State. One of them is reading up with the intention—as supposed—of giving him battle. Bro. Shinn sends a reprint of an article written by him and published in the Glenville Pathfinder, in which he corrects some misstatements and popular errors concerning the faith, and upon which the editor comments in a friendly spirit. He is getting the faith before the people both by pulpit preaching and press correspondence.

Bro. Fred A. Smith left Lamoni for the Des Moines district on Saturday the 30th ult. Brn. Heman C. Smith and William Waterman depart for Iowa points during the week of the 1st inst.

President Joseph Smith and Bro. R. M. Elvin delivered the discourses on the last Sunday of the year at Lamoni. The usual Sunday school and social services were held, all being well attended.

The HERALD is now dated Wednesday, the day on which it is mailed. It will reach the homes of most of the Saints in time for Sunday reading. With that object in view Wednesday has been retained as its "mailing day." It wishes for all the Saints a happy and prosperous New Year.

TO THE HERALD PATRONS.

WITH this number we begin volume 41 of the SAINTS' HERALD and at the outset ask you to examine it closely and critically and then answer each for himself the following questions:—

1. Can such a paper be gotten up without labor, money, the best and latest improved machinery, and a commendable degree of skill?

2. How is it that the HERALD is able to furnish to its readers 1,040 main pages of reading matter, 624 pages of Sermons and Leaflets, reading matter, and an Extra Supplement containing complete report of General Conference minutes for each year for only $2.00 per year for each subscriber?

3. Is it possible the HERALD has done all this and yet the subscription price has not been paid? Look at the label containing your name and see.

4. If your subscription is not paid and you cannot send the money at once, will you notify the office if you wish the paper continued?

The past year we received complaints from some because when the time to which their subscription had been paid a year or two before was up, the HERALD was continued, as papers often are, thinking to accommodate the parties; but imagine our surprise then, under such circumstances, at receiving a communication demanding to know if we thought it right and just for them to pay when they had not asked the paper continued?

SUBSCRIBERS MUST TAKE NOTICE THEN; and send us a postal card and say CONTINUE HERALD, if you cannot renew at once. The office will feel it a pleasure and duty to aid and accommodate any subscriber at any time who is trying to do his best to pay his subscription. We know that no Latter Day Saint can grow with the church and keep pace with the work unless he READS THE HERALD, hence we have a double purpose in this—the actual good of the body as also the individual subscribers.

If we do not receive your subscription or card notifying us to continue, your name will be dropped from the subscription list. Please DO NOT FORGET THIS!

To our patrons, we desire to say further, that we need money to run the paper. If possible for you to send in your subscriptions, do so at once. We are determined to give you full worth and over for the subscription price. If, however, the subscriptions come in and swell the fund, the balance is not ours but yours. Every member has an individual interest in the Herald Office. Shall this interest be kept full up at par?

THE NEW YEAR.

I see not a step before me
As I tread on another year,
But the past is still in God's keeping,
The future his mercy shall clear,
And what looks dark in the distance
May brighten as I draw near.

—Mary G. Brainard.

THE FUTURE.

It is true, dear fellow workers, that before the future God kindly hangs a curtain no human hand can lift and that upon life's journey we know not what a day or an hour may bring forth; but it is equally true that we are to apply ourselves to the working out of the great principles of righteousness and truth, with just as much zeal, fidelity, and patience as though the panorama of the future lay before us, with all of its triumphs—all of its seeming defeats clearly marked out.

Faith demands of us to "Cast our bread upon the waters." Can we trust the promise that, "We shall find it after many days"? We must, or life work becomes for us a failure, for we are not working in faith hence are not working in harmony with God. We have called them seeming defeats, using the term advisedly, for to those who are working in harmony with God, there can be no such thing as defeat. The clouds may lower and the heavens gather blackness and our plans all seem to fail, but above all these and in them all steadily the purposes of God move on to victory and triumph. Let us move with them keeping step and pace with the onward march of truth, until the grand consummation is reached. It may be that some of us are destined to fall in the midst of the conflict and that, too, before the year draws to its close. What matter! If we fall at our post, who may say that our freed spirits will not rejoice in seeing the cause we love steadily moving on to conquest and victory.

WILL THEY LOVE US THEN?

When we close our eyes in slumber
For the last time here below,
There is something I have wondered,
And would so much like to know.

We shall know each other surely,
For the Scriptures so explain,
But the question is unanswered:
Will our loved ones love us then?

There will be such perfect pleasure
In the rest we shall obtain;
Not one single cloud of sorrow,
Not a shade of mental pain.

When we reach that land immortal,
Free from all our earthly care,
While surrounded by such glories,
Will our loved ones love us there?

When I ponder on this question,
And I think it may not be,
All my hope and pleasures vanish,
Dark despair hangs over me.

Then in fond imagination
I can see them calmly wait,
Feel their tender, fond caresses,
As I enter at the gate.

Back to earth I soon am carried,
Back to mortal pain and care,
But my burden's not so heavy,
Or my cross so hard to bear;

For my sorrows are but earthly,
And with patience I could win,
Were I only sure my loved ones,
Faithful still, would love me then.

Should I when my days are numbered,
Reach this bright and happy sphere,
If just one wish God will grant me,
I shall have my loved ones there.

PRAYER UNION SUBJECTS.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JANUARY.

"When gathering clouds around I view,
And days are dark and friends are few,
On him I lean who not in vain
Experienced every human pain.
He sees my wants, allays my fears
And counts and treasures up my tears."

HELPING HAND.

INDEPENDENCE, Missouri, Dec. 21.

Dear Sister Walker:—According to appointment fifteen sisters met this afternoon. On looking at the little gathering, we failed to see a few who were accustomed to meet with us, joining in the exercises of the hour and giving us the benefit of their experience as mothers and daughters in the church. At another place, a short distance from where we were assembled, was another group of earnest, devout sisters met to pray and testify to the truth of the work; and the query with some of us is, after similar exercises having been engaged in at the branch prayer meeting, Would it not require a little sacrifice on their part to meet occasionally with the Daughters of Zion and add their kindly aid and sympathy?

To-day, after the programme was carried out, the suggestion in the Herald as to uniting our work with that of the Prayer Union was read, and with a few it is evident that there is a difference of opinion as to changing the day of our meeting so as to conform to the subject of prayers. In some of the branches, prayer and testimony meetings are being held regularly every Thursday afternoon, yet they do not fully indorse the idea of the Prayer Union to pray for certain objects on certain days. They cannot see the benefit of being thus restricted. Where this is the case, little inducement is offered for the Daughters of Zion to unite their efforts with the work of local sisters' prayer meetings.

We hope all will soon see the wisdom of meeting on the second Thursday in the month, and that ere long every sister in sympathy with the Prayer Union will meet with us. Several more have added their names to the roll and we continue hopeful of excellent results following our humble efforts.

Already some of our number have been rewarded for their perseverance in attending our meetings, and signified their approval of what the work of the Daughters of Zion has done for them, and believe it will prove to be a source of inspiration to every lover of truth.

Your sister in the glorious cause of the latter days,

ABBIE A. HORTON.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SISTER SARAH E. BOUTON, in sending her name to the Daughters of Zion, says: "I am confident this noble work among the mothers and daughters of Zion will be the means of great good to the rising and unborn generations. It is a subject I have thought a great deal upon for the last few years, and I assure you that you have my prayers and best wishes in your grand undertaking."

Sr. Lou Thomas, writing from Illinois, says: "I feel most deeply interested in the Daughters of Zion movement. It surely is what was needed. I believe the work, or those who instigated it, were inspired of God and that he will bless their labors. I have been surprised at the opposition; and yet it is not surprising when we remember how every good work, even including the work of Christ, has been opposed, and that, too, by pious people."

Sr. L. M. Richards, of North Platte, Nebraska, writes: "I have carefully watched the Home Column and am convinced that the thought moving the hearts of many is to do something to-day that will make families and children better. I have been pained over the wickedness of the people. Children taking the name of God in vain, quarreling, fighting, lying, and parents seem to be perfectly at ease. I have stood near a large school when the scholars were dismissed and the language was enough to make one heart-sick. This is the case everywhere I go, there is no nearly about it. When you tell people of their sins they get very angry, and what I wonder over again and again is, how are these people going to be made better. I am well pleased with the work the Daughters of Zion are doing. May God bless all the efforts of the pure in heart. I see in Herald the leaflet, "A talk with mothers." I said then it was the best thing I ever heard. If a mother is bad it would seem a freak in nature that she would or could raise a good man or woman. I was glad indeed to hear James Caffall and M. H. Bond speak in such a sensible way of woman's work in the church."

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Brother J. E. Gunsolley, of Mondamin, Iowa, requests your faith and prayers in his behalf, that his eyes may be healed and his eyesight restored, if it be God's will.

Sr. Orrel Young, of Clatskaine, Oregon, solicits your prayers for her little daughter, Lillie, who has long been afflicted with a troublesome disease, that God may be pleased to restore her to health and that her family may be blessed with health.

THE IDEAL WOMAN.

FROM a recent sermon by the Rev. J. W. Richardson, of Plainfield, N. J., on "The Ideal Woman," we quote the following:—

"Young women may mingle with those about them in parlor, office, and store, and yet increase that dignity of virtue which repels anything that verges on boldness and indecency. O young woman! Suffer social ostracism rather than stain the white of a pure womanhood. Avoid any reading, any conversation, and association, that will draw black lines on your soul. Much of the current literature is too trashy for a clean mind. Much of the society gossip is flavored with the suggestive and impure. Many of the customs and costumes of modern society are fearfully compromising. But the ideal woman is brave enough to defy any custom and costume that would compromise her womanhood. One young lady said to another, 'Why did you not take my brother's arm last night?' And the second young lady frankly replied, 'Because I knew him to be a licentious man.' And the first, with a sneer, responded, 'Pooh! if you undertake to refuse the attentions of all licentious men, you will soon be without any attention at all.' And with the color rushing through her cheeks, and a bright sparkle kindling in her eyes, till her rather plain face looked majestic, she replied, 'Then I will go without the attentions.'

"God bless her! She is an ideal woman. And to-day society is yearning for a host of true women like her—who will rise to the tall stature of a true womanhood—boldly resist current customs—and thus purge the parlor and public hall of the presence of immoral men."

THE COMING WINTER.

All the usual signs, as observed from the Missouri to the Yukon by the farmer, the hunter, and the Indian, seem to indicate a hard winter in the west. The Alaskan Indians are agreed with the Indians of Oregon and Washington that the snows will be heavy and the frosts keen and long. Already the snowstorms have killed large numbers of sheep in the mountains of Klickitat county, Washington, and in Missouri the farmers, now that hog-killing has begun, are telling that the lard runs jagged, an infallible sign, they agree, of a coming winter of unprecedented severity.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, Dec. 20.

Editors Herald:—As the Herald is the accredited organ of the church to bear the good tidings of the progress of God's work in these last days to the Saints and friends interested in the same, I wish to contribute my mite to its columns. I am not able to report very glowingly, but I can vouch for the truthfulness thereof. The work in the Pottawattamie district might be much improved, if all who claim an interest in it would do their duty; first, at home in their families; second, in the world, in their dealings with mankind; third, in the church, by prompt attendance to the means of grace therein provided, and by strict observance of the instruction given by the Spirit of God, through the appointed officers, and by prompt obedience to the temporal law of the church. I am satisfied that a strict observance of all these duties would bring greater blessings to us as individuals, and greater prosperity to the cause at large. I do not charge that there are none who are trying with all their might to discharge those several duties, but I do say that all are not thus diligent; hence our lack of many of the graces and gifts that embellish the true Christian life.

"It is written," "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." How can I live by the word of God unless it enters into my being, becomes a part of my nature, and controls my conduct? When this is the case my whole nature will be transformed and closely resemble the nature and character of Christ, and the graces that adorned his life will adorn mine, and I shall need no outward "badge" in the shape of a "three-leaved clover" to show to my fellows that I am a Latter Day Saint; but the "threefold badge" of "faith, hope and charity" will stand out in bold relief, bearing witness of my relationship to the world's great Exemplar and Redeemer; and unless that word does control my being all the badges of gold, silver, or brass, will be vain, empty, meaningless baubles. May God help us to let our light so shine, that men seeing our good works, may be led to glorify our Father which is in heaven.

On October 22, according to previous arrangement, Brn. H. N. Hansen, J. P. Carlile, and Robert McKenzie assisted me in organizing a branch with eleven members, including one elder, one priest, and a secretary, in the vicinity of Hazel Dell, Pottawattamie county. Some of these were old members, others were the results of the labors of the above-named brethren and others. The branch was named the Boomer branch; Delorma Parrish presiding elder, John Lytham priest; Richard Gillings is the secretary. Two more members were added to them by baptism on the 29th of October, and many more profess to be deeply interested, and I trust will ere long show "their faith by" their "works." While laboring in the vicinity of Neola two young people came forward to dedicate their lives to God, and were baptized and confirmed November 21, and the prospect there is good for additions at an early day.

Our quarterly conference was well attended, and a pleasant and profitable time was had. S. V. Pratt of Crescent City was called and ordained an elder and Samuel Underwood of Neola township was ordained a priest. Bro. George Needham of Wheeler was appointed to assist Elder Butler in Adair and Cass counties. Elder Butler reports the work in Adair as being injured by lack of love and unity among the Saints there; interest among the outsiders not great at time of report. Elder T. W. Williams reports condition of the work in Council Bluffs as fair, yet susceptible of improvement. He had been called to preach a funeral sermon last Thursday at Loveland, and on my visiting that place on Saturday and Sunday, I heard that expressions of surprise had been largely indulged in by the citizens; they seemed astonished that a Latter Day Saint should be capable of telling so much truth in so masterly a manner. Similar expressions were made upon the effort of A. M. Fyrando who visited that vicinity a few Sundays ago.

The writer was permitted to occupy the Methodist pulpit in that place last Sunday night, which occupation was the result of the labors of the two brethren named. Elder S. V. Pratt and Priest John Evans were appointed at the last conference to labor in that vicinity, but they had not found their way there up to the time of my visit.

I trust the brethren will honor their appointments, lest another take their crown; and what I say to these brethren I say to every officer in the district; and I trust each one will labor in the field allotted to him as much as conveniently possible. Let the presidents of branches see that regular meetings are kept up in their branches as far as can be. Let every officer do his duty in building up the Saints, and warning the world, not forgetting the obligations of the temporal law. Prove by your works that you honor the appointment of the Bishop which was made according to your recommendation; viz., John P. Carlile as Bishop's agent.

At my request Elder Joshua Carlile was appointed assistant president of the district. Please respect your own appointment, Saints, by giving him your prayers and confidence. May the new year bear a record of the faithful diligence of every child of God, and bring heavenly blessings to our souls, is the earnest prayer of your brother and coworker, CHARLES DERRY.

TUNCURRY, N. S. W., Nov. 23.

Editors Herald:—After writing last we maintained an increasing interest in Sydney, baptizing one more, with others ready, but withheld by their better (?) halves. Gomer performed the rite.

From witnessing a very remarkable healing of a child, a young lady had desire that we should solemnize her marriage. This we did at the home of Bro. and Sr. Flood, Gomer acting as one of the "best" men. During the day Bro. F. took us in his cab all through the principal streets of Paramatta,—at one time the capital of New South Wales,—and all over her beautiful park. We thoroughly enjoyed ourselves, save perchance when the horse was stopped opposite the asylum for weak-minded; and as we watched their peculiar and varied antics we thought how awful such misfortune must be.

The most interesting item of historical and past misfortune pointed out was the small monument marking the last resting place of the one-time wife of a former governor, who had been thrown from her carriage and instantly killed while passing through the gateway leading to the government house.

The Sydney Saints seconded our every effort with commendable zeal. Some have given their names for baptism since our arrival here. As we expect to leave either in January or February for the States the Herald readers will note that no letters can reach us here after they see this. Honolulu, Hawaii, care C. H. Luther, or San Francisco, care C. A. Parkin, will reach us.

As ever,

J. W. WIGHT.

WASHBURN, W. Va., Dec. 18.

Editors Herald:—I have been working in Doddridge county. I baptized two there recently. The work is in good condition; the fight has been long and fierce there for years past, but the walls of the enemy's forts are at last crumbling, and the victory is the Lord's. One lone sister, Mrs. Eliza Leason, who joined the church in the Western States somewhere under the ministrations of Bro. I. N. Roberts, called for an elder in the year 1880, and Bro. L. R. Devore being at Clarksburg at the time went to her rescue and opened the fight on Cabin Run. Your humble servant followed him to keep up the good-begun work, and the result was a public debate with an M. E. preacher by the name of E. J. Taylor, "Dock." Our preaching and the debate together "broke up" the Methodist class at that point, and Mr. Taylor himself was so shaken that he quit the church and has since belonged to the "Invisible Church." Not long after this Bro. T. J. Beatty came to our assistance and some thirteen souls went into the water of regeneration, and subsequently the Cabin Run branch was organized with Bro. C. G. Ruly president. In referring to the history of this branch, by the way, I would state that among the people of this section there was a hard time owing to drought, followed by sickness during one summer and winter, so that many families were reduced to want and suffering. An appeal for aid was made to the Saints through the Herald and many of the Saints responded with money and our brethren and sisters of the Cabin Run branch received the timely aid as if by the special interposition of divine providence. Some time afterward jealousies arose in the hearts of some and evil things were said about Bro. Ruly and others. This was all wrong, and never should have been done. Bro. Ruly and the Saints who kindly responded with their donations have laid up treasures in heaven, for great good was done, and that too just in time. The Herald, it would seem, from that time to the present, refused to print other such appeals, but gave instructions to Saints in need as they were, to write direct to the Bishop. Whether this was the proper thing to do or not I will not venture to say, but one thing I mean to say is, that there was no wrong done on the part of Bro. Ruly or the branch in this matter. What I say I am able to prove.

I am now at Bro. and Sr. Huffman's, on Indian Creek, Ritchie county, hard by the meetinghouse of the "true Christian Church" late of "the wilderness," "clear as the sun, bright as the moon, and terrible as an army with banners"—that is, the Campbellite denomination. We have set the time for the convening of our conference on the 17th and 18th of February, 1894, but we learn that our brethren of the Ohio district have the same time set for their conference. If they would advertise their meeting we would know how to miss them in making our arrangements. We read in the minutes of their last August conference that the next conference would be held at a certain place the first Saturday and Sunday after the full moon in February, etc., a queer way to make an appointment. Hope they will say by their secretary just when they intend to meet.

ANGOLA, Kan., Dec. 13.

Editors Herald:—I have just arrived home to kiss my dear mother, loving wife, and sweet babe; to stay one day at home, then start to Webb City conference. They laugh at me because my little boy did not recognize me, and say that he will not lay his little head on my satchel and cry when I leave home, for he won't know me if I do not come home oftener, or stay at home longer when I do come.

I am pleased to report the baptism of Bro. John D. Kelley, Jr., the head of a pleasant and happy family; his noble wife (whom I baptized in October) and three bright, cheerful girls. The place of baptism is in the beautiful Grand River, Delaware district, Indian Territory, at their ferry, the loveliest place I ever saw.

I arrived there late the 9th inst., making a trip of from thirty-five to forty miles that day; and as I had an appointment seventeen miles distant at eleven o'clock the next day, we went to the water that night. As we started we beheld in the sky a large and most glorious body of light, with a distinct perpendicular light, perfect in shape and exquisite in beauty and grandeur, pointing to the heavens. Under the light was a cloud of inky blackness. It was situated in the direction of the ferry and remained until the ordinance was over. It answered for our guide. Bro. Kelley said, "When you left the last time you had not been gone but a short time when I began to wish many times that I had been baptized before you left. I thought I had sufficient evidence of the work, but now I have tenfold more." I am surprised to find them progressing so fast since I first met them in August. He opposed the work quite bitterly at first, keeping his wife from uniting. One seldom sees a more happy being than she was when he said he was ready to follow her.

In their vicinity there seems to be quite a number of generous and fair-minded people, some of whom it is hoped will trouble the water as they seem to be inquiring after truth and righteousness. Their conversion is mostly due to the noble and saintly life and persistent efforts of Sr. Susan Duncan. Others have declared their intention to join. Two south of here anticipate coming and trying the water where I had the privilege of baptizing five others this summer. If there are any friends or Saints who desire an elder to visit their locality in the Indian Territory, write me at Vinita, Indian Territory, and I will endeavor to answer.

In bonds,

A. C. HART.

GROVE HILL, Io., Dec. 12.

Editors Herald:—The question has been asked me, "Should we always wait in testimony meetings for the promptings of the Holy Spirit before testifying?" The thought prompting the individual to ask this question, has no doubt arisen from the oft-repeated declaration from our elders "Speak as you are prompted by the Holy Spirit." As a people we believe that by "one Spirit" we have all been baptized into "one body." We will understand by this language of the apostle, that the Spirit prompting Paul to enter the church also prompted Peter and the rest of the apostles. While Paul's conversion was of a miraculous character in that the Holy Spirit said unto him, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" we would not infer that the same degree of inspiration is required to bring others into the church or convince them of the truth. Paul says, "As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." So we see, that if we have been properly led into the church we will know of our adoption and be ready to give a reason for the hope we entertain.

How many times the elders in Israel have been pained at heart while presiding over meetings to see God's children sit dumb, without one word to say in relation to their hope, only waiting for Jesus to again command them to testify of him, while indeed they have known him, being led by his hand to walk through the "gate" into the church.

Dear children in the kingdom, would it not be very unjust for us to expect our earthly parents to bless us every time we would call them our parents, after bestowing temporal blessings upon us all through life? What the elders in Israel mean by saying, "Speak as you are led by the Spirit," is this: When the Saints are assembled and one is especially endowed, that person should not sit still and quench the Spirit; for as Paul says, "If Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin, but the spirit is life because of righteousness." That is, we should be alive, having obeyed the righteous law of God.

As an elder in Israel I believe that the Saints many times give occasion for the evil one to step in their meetings and display his power. If we always wait for a prompting of the Holy Spirit, Paul says Satan himself is transformed as an angel of light, therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed; and in order to appear as the minister of righteousness, he will give signs that so closely resemble the gifts of God that he will be very hard to detect. Therefore, as the children of light, let us walk in obedience to Christ's commands, and have the light of life to be our guide, for he that will not own him before men will not be owned before the Father.

J. R. SUTTON.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 20.

Editors Herald:—Our city is being visited by an epidemic of lagrippe. The health officer reported a thousand cases in the city. The Saints have had their portion, many being stricken by it; yet by prayer and the ordinance they have passed through and we are now having fair health again. It is the best policy possible for the Saints to use the means God has revealed and patiently "bear the burdens of body of which the Spirit of healing from the Lord in faith, or the use of that which wisdom directs does not relieve or remove, and in cheerfulness do whatever may be permitted you to perform that the blessing of peace may be upon all."—D. and C. 119: 9.

By observation I learn that those who follow this injunction the nearest come out the best in the end. So much complaining about health of body or unfavorable circumstances tends only to add to the burden and lessen the amount of sympathy from others.

Sr. Bronson is still very feeble and growing no better, from cancer on inside of throat. We are completing our auditorium and will begin using it about the first of the year. Bro. Joseph Luff and the Bishop have promised to give us a protracted effort which will commence January 7.

Our conference of the 16th and 17th inst. passed very pleasantly. It was well attended. How nobly the Saints did in caring for the visitors. Twenty-one at one house Saturday night and others in proportion. We sympathized with the sisters. Not a murmur was heard but it was with them like the street cars in our city, "always room for one more." When we bade good-bye to one she turned away in tears because of the separating time. May the good Father bless the Delano branch and bring them off victors at last. Bro. Hilliard did all the preaching. He hewed to the line and laid "righteousness to the plummet." Words of commendation were heard on all sides. He will visit each branch of the district after the holidays.

There is a strong tendency with the Saints to live better and do more. The visit of Bro. Hilliard to the district will do good. His teaching both by example and precept is calculated to build up the Saints. May God bless him and all his faithful ministers.

Yours for truth,

J. M. TERRY.

MAURINE, Mo., Dec. 17.

Editors Herald:—It may be of some interest to some to hear from this place. Maurine is located on the K. C. A. and S. Railroad in the northern part of Henry county, about fifteen miles northwest of Clinton. It is a small town of about fifty inhabitants and has fine farming land all around it. Big Creek runs about one mile west of town with lots of good timber. Wood is worth from one dollar seventy-five to two dollars per cord delivered, yet there is lots of wood going to waste that can be had for cutting and hauling from grounds.

There is plenty of coal which is worth nine cents per bushel delivered, but the demand is light. We have a saw mill, also a grist mill for grinding corn and chopping feed for stock. Farmers are well to do and the most of them out of debt. Land is worth from twenty-five to forty dollars per acre and rents for two fifty to three dollars cash. There is a good opening here for a doctor with small line of drugs, as neither are here.

Myself and family moved here November 1, and opened up with a general line of merchandise. I shall try to arrange my affairs so I can give part of my time to the ministry. The gospel has never been presented in this region of country and there seems to be a large field waiting for the true ministers of the Lord. The spiritual condition of the churches seems to be at a low ebb, and those calling themselves Christians have nothing but a dead form left.

I have preached once since here and conducted one funeral service. Have an appointment out for to-night and have made application at other points, and expect to soon have the work started in which to labor. I was here only about two weeks until I was chosen superintendent of the Sunday school. This I must surrender as I must be gone on Sundays. I pray God to give me wisdom to open up the work throughout this region of country, that when once established it may continue until Zion is redeemed. There must be a radius of fifteen to twenty-five miles that the restored gospel has never been sounded, except at one or two points, and that north of Clinton about five miles. Blirstown, Petersburg, Huntingdale, Ulrich, Norris, and Garland are small towns from three to eight miles from here, and none of them has had any preaching near or in them by our people. Who will be the elder that will come and assist me in opening up the work? I have written Bro. I. N. White if he could send one, but the answer is, "The field is great and the laborers few, and no one to send." I have felt that the Lord has guided me in coming here that salvation might be offered to this people. I desire to do God's will. May he help me to perform it to his glory.

Yours in Christ,

D. C. WHITE.

SNYDER, Okla., Dec. 5.

Editors Herald:—I fear your readers have concluded, from my long silence, that I am either dead or doing nothing; but I am neither. I am still struggling to keep the glorious ensign of our great Captain and King to the front.

It has been so long since my last letter that I scarcely know where or how to begin this; but presume that I will have to imitate most of the elders in writing from their several fields of labor, in telling of their battles, their struggles, their charges, their toillings, their maneuvering, and (shall I say it?) once in a while their retreats; and then, after the smoke of conflict has cleared away and the battle ground is surveyed, tell of the vast number of "prejudices" that have been slain and lie promiscuously around, the enemy having all safely escaped; which, of course, means a renewal of the conflict, and that the same ground is to be fought over again; which battle will very likely end as did the preceding one, by laying a few more of those wicked "prejudices" under the valley sod. So it goes, and so they write, and I presume I must write as they do.

In view of this I will here remark that I feel truly thankful that ours is not a warfare in which the victory depends upon the number of the enemy slain or captured; for if it was, I fear many of our crowns would be devoid of jewels, many of us would go hence laden with but few sheaves for the Lord's garner, as trophies of our success. If I comprehend the matter rightly the victory does not so depend. It is to the true, faithful, reliable soldier; the one that is true to duty, faithful to his God, to his fellow man, to himself, and reliable under all circumstances, in all places, and at all times. To such a one the lacking sheaves and jewels will be supplanted by a plain, solid crown bearing upon its forepiece in living letters of light these words: "Faithful in all things."

I often get discouraged and downhearted when seeing the reluctance of the people in obeying the gospel of Christ; to see them turn away from its blessed light and feed greedily upon the husks and barren pastures of modern sectarianism. I sometimes think that I have not a sufficient amount of the Apollos about me to do the necessary watering; but when I consider that I have done the best I could, and that by the power and approval of God's Spirit, I feel that my work is done and that the result of their choice must remain with themselves.

Since last writing I have opened up several new places besides laboring a part of the time in places opened before. Have labored in six different counties at various places. I have, as a general thing, had fair audiences and good attention, but poor success as to baptizing, having administered the ordinance to but three persons. I have just returned from a short trip to the Chickasaw Nation, Bro. R. H. Wolf having sent for me to administer St. James' ordinance to Sr. Wolf, she being seriously sick. I found her much better. I held four meetings in this vicinity with fair attendance, good liberty, and attention. Bro. M. Settle, a member of the old Armstrong Academy branch, (now defunct,) lives near here. While here I was convinced more than ever that a person never gets too old to learn. I have in my lifetime learned of a good many ways of men being called to the ministry to preach the gospel; I have heard of them being called by the Scriptures, by impressions, by dreams, by visions, by angels, by the Holy Ghost, and being called "as was Aaron;" but a good old Campbellite preacher here eschewed all these and said he did not claim any such foolish calling, but his old woman had "trigged" him up and told him to go and preach the gospel. There now, you "as-was-Aaron" called men, what do you think of such a calling as that?

I visited Keokuk Falls, a small town in the Sac and Fox country, a short time since. Your readers will probably remember this place as it was written up by Bro. J. N. Perkins some twelve months ago, as a very tough town, and I judge correctly too, from what I have since learned of it. Here I saw another instance of that innate principle in every human heart; that of shielding his or her own dear reputation from reproach. When I began meetings here it was almost impossible to get anyone out to hear me, although the place of meeting was right in the main part of town and the meetings had been thoroughly announced by Bro. Perkins. Do you ask what the matter was? They were afraid of their sweet reputations. They could very easily affiliate with the robber heroes, the Jameses, the Youngers, the Daltons, the Starrs, etc., and readily associate with the barroom set, the manslayer, the horse thief, and the lady of Magdalenish proclivities; but they dare not go and hear a Latter Day Saint preach for fear of their reputations! After a few days preaching and a great deal of coaxing by Bro. Perkins, they partly came to themselves, and no doubt concluded that they "could not spoil a rotten egg," so I had some fair audiences after that. I held several meetings here and left a few interested, one or two deeply. I hope for good results in the future. I found the two Brn. Perkins, father and son, kind, sociable, and composed of the right material for true Latter Day Saints. May the good Father be as kind to them as they were to me.

I stopped on my way home from Keokuk Falls, at Jay post office, and enjoyed the kind hospitality of Bro. Eri B. Mullin for a few days, and held a few meetings, but with little interest. Bro. Mullin desires the prayers of the Saints that the good Lord will bless him in his isolated and lonely condition.

Am holding meetings here now with some interest. Trust that good may result from our efforts. Am laboring here in connection with Bro. S. Butler.

But my letter is getting too long, so will have to close for this time. Will write again ere long and give more of my experience in Oklahoma.

As ever,

IS SCIENCE QUACKERY?

Against the proposition that science does not appeal to faith and is not dependent on it, the Christian Commonwealth, London, says:—

"Besides the extraordinary mania of Mr. Drummond for evolutionary fantasies and Mr. Stead's spookological caprices, this age has been treated to some singular displays of scientific and metaphysical bungling. The medical world ran mad after Dr. Koch immediately that his consumption cure was announced. Who now says a kind word for Dr. Koch? And why is the name of the notorious Pasteur now suggestive of a blank negation of any use at all in attempting to cure hydrophobia? It is so in all directions. Modern science is every whit as dependent on the faculty of faith as is religious teaching, and it is as fatally prone to abuse that faculty as is the popular religious propaganda. The time is approaching when there will be a crisis in the conflict between religion and science. Now, it is a popular error to suppose that the collision is between faith and science. Not so, for science is constantly appealing to faith, and is as dependent on it as is religion. Scientific sneers at faith are scientifically suicidal."

A STATEMENT.

EDITORS HERALD:—In the issue of the Herald for December 2, page 769, is contained the insertion of the minutes of the Pittsburg and Kirtland district conference. In preparing and condensing the minutes for publication the clerk did not copy in the report of the Bishop's agent, thinking that a mere reference to it and the action had was quite sufficient. The agent thinks an injustice was done him by the report being left out, and requests that it be printed in full, which is as follows:—

Will report in detail next conference. I am very sorry to report this condition of the treasury, but attribute it to the shabby treatment our district has received at the hands of the ministry since last conference, and partly to the dullness of the times.

FRANK CRILEY, Bishop's agent,
Pittsburg and Kirtland district.

Copy of report as submitted to district conference held at Kirtland, Ohio, October 14 and 15, 1893. D. H. PROPER, Sec.

This report speaks for itself! And it may readily be seen why the conference acted as it did. The ministry laboring here were General Conference appointees, and were under the direction of the presidents of the mission, who were under the direction of the First Presidency. The conference took the ground that if the agent or anyone else had accusations to make against the ministry, they should lodge their complaints with the missionaries in charge, unless they too were involved; and in the latter case they should be sent to the First Presidency, and not to a district conference. That while it is proper to respect the judgment of every one who is laboring in the interest of the work so far as practicable, yet the ministry is not laboring under the direction of the Bishop's agent, and may or may not labor in harmony with his judgment as to what is first and most important to be done. It is obvious that the ministry cannot labor to suit the judgment of every one. It is an easy matter for one looking on to criticise and find fault with others' work and methods. The conference held that the agent drew largely upon his imagination when he presumed the right to castigate the ministry before the district conference by open charges.

There was no personal ill feeling manifest towards the agent at the conference, but rather a feeling of regret that he had taken that occasion to report as he did; and no one had been made aware, that the writer is informed of, of any discontent. The agent was sustained by the conference by unanimous vote as Bishop's agent, showing that it had confidence in his ability and integrity, but held that he had not the right more than others to make such a sweeping dash at the ministry because their labors did not comport with his idea of things; and even if he did have the right the conference possessed the right to dispose of it as it saw proper, which it did.

Respectfully,
WM. H. KELLEY.

MAN NOT BORN IN SIN.

BEHOLD, I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me.—Ps. 51:5.

This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief.—1 Tim. 1:15.

The first of these passages has gone the rounds of the civilized world, to the intent and for the purpose of convincing all men and women that they were born in sin although it is asserted that God made them. Yes, the question is asked of all children in orthodox Sunday schools, "Who made you?" If the child is not able to answer the question the teacher is supposed to know, and answers the question in a manner suitable and agreeable to his faith.

The answer invariably is, "God made you," and in almost the next breath the child is told that it was "born in sin;" and yet God is the Maker! Should the child be old enough to think reasonably on the matter it would wonder how that could be, and should the question and the answer puzzle the child, the teacher seizes the opportunity of reading the fifty-first Psalm. If the parents of the child happen to be members of the same faith as the teacher, when the child states the case to its parents they of course agree with the same. The child grows up under this teaching and by and by it becomes a teacher and hands out the same kind of food to other children.

But they, certainly, read God's word to little benefit or comfort to themselves who deal out such stuff as an encouragement to their offspring. Now, if the parents have been born again, as they profess, if their sins are all pardoned, and if, after this new birth a child is born to them, is it in truth a little sinner? born in sin? If so, when is it relieved from the burden that attaches to it at birth? Answer, In the formula of sprinkling, no doubt. But they do not know even then that the child is free from sin. They are still of the opinion the child is a sinner; for the same instructions are given after the child grows up to be able to go to church and Sunday school. It is impressed by the lessons from the pulpit as well as the lessons in Sunday school that it still is a sinner. Then, what good in sprinkling?

Again, it is supposed by all professed Christians that God joins together in wedlock through his appointed means all that are married; and it is remarked, "That which God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." See—shall I say it? Yes, I will—the imbecility of minds professing to know God, but in deeds denying him and his glorious gospel. They dare not say that Isaac was born in sin, neither John the Baptist, nor our Savior. That might create a difficulty. Yet, it was God who promised Abraham a son, also Zacharias, and Mary the mother of Jesus. The same being is said to be the Maker of all the human family; and yet we are born in sin. So far as your writer is concerned, he says nothing of those who never were born again—born of God, born of water and the Spirit; but the children of those who have been born of God and retain their sonship by faithful, holy lives must be clean, pure, and in a condition to pass to the paradise of God, should they die in infancy.

Now, as regards the words of Paul at the head of this paper, we can hardly think that the apostle to the Gentiles wished to convey the idea that he was the chief of sinners. Your writer has believed for many years that Satan was and is the chief of sinners; but, like the sweet singer of Israel, Paul could look back to the time when he was a bitter enemy to the church of Christ. Not that David ever was an enemy to God; but he too could remember when the heavenly Father raised him from a very low condition to the highest position of an earthful character that it was possible for a man to attain; namely, to be king over all God's chosen people. He felt very humble, as many of his psalms prove; hence in his humility he could say, as he no doubt felt, that he was conceived in sin and shapen in iniquity.

So, with the apostle, looking back on the past, to the time he persecuted the church and was accessory to Stephen's death, he could not but think seriously of what he then was, and what, by the grace of God, he became after his conversion. Hence, his sincere humility was so great that he felt that he never could wipe out the past of his sins, but that God in his loving-kindness had rescued him, and by his grace saved him and placed the high and holy calling of an apostle upon him, so that what he once destroyed he now was engaged in building up.

David in his own estimation was very small when contemplating the wonderful works of God; the fact of having been raised from the herding of sheep and cattle to be king over Israel was certainly enough to make any honest man humble. When David was under the influence of the Holy Ghost he was a man powerful for good; but when not under that power he was, to a certain extent, arrogant in his ways, as for instance, in the case of Uriah; also in his sin of numbering Israel.

He was then out of his place either as a king or as a man that professed veneration for God's laws, as he had. But, he showed his sincerity, in that when confronted by the prophet charging him with the sin he had committed, he humbled himself, and God finally accepted of his humility; not like some of the kings of Israel, who the more the prophets reproved them the more hostile to God and his prophets they became until, finally, their wickedness culminated in the destruction of their city and their captivity under Nebuchadnezzar, not to say anything of their final dispersion and the destruction of their city by the Romans.

Then, the doctrine of total depravity is no good; for if God created us, we must be good at birth, and until we reach the years of accountability, when we know right from wrong; and should we then choose the wrong we must expect to be answerable to God for our wrongdoing.

We cite believers in total depravity to Paul's sayings in 1 Corinthians 7:14 as regards believers; that is, true saints:—

For the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband; else were your children unclean; but now are they holy.

One would think that orthodoxy would blush at its ignorance when reading such good sound sense from the pen of a man it so much venerates. By the same fiat that ordered man to propagate his species, the cattle of all classes upon ten thousand hills, the denizens of the waters, and the birds of the air, great and small, were ordained to do the same thing. Are they born in sin? I must say, No.

I am willing to admit that man, made in the image of God and endowed with faculties of intellect far superior to any of his earthly creatures, is the first one to violate the sacred trust committed to him, and the last one to yield obedience to the author of his being. The cattle and beasts of all kinds know their appointed times. The feathered tribes prepare their nests, as has been the case since the command went forth to multiply; they build their nests, lay their eggs, and faithfully perform the duty assigned them. So with the fish of rivers, lakes, and the mighty deep; all loyally fulfill the duties assigned them. But man, poor, puny man, can and does raise his heel against the Builder and Maker of all things that are good; he has been so prolific in inventions in spiritual things, such as he claims to be spiritual, that it would puzzle a wise man to enumerate one half of them.

MORMONISM AND CHRISTIANITY.

WE frequently hear the boast being made, even in the pulpit, "I am a Mormon;" "I believe in Mormonism," etc. Now if the entire congregation understood that "Mormonism," so-called, was nothing else save the purest and best phase of Christianity it would not sound so much out of place; but alas! the common idea is that Mormonism is the opposite of Christianity and as antagonistic to it as is Mohammedanism. Mormonism or the teaching of the Book of Mormon, is pure, Christian doctrine or the doctrine of Christ and is Christianity as much so as is the teaching of Paul, or Peter, or James, or John; and what Nephi, Alma, Mormon, or Moroni taught is as pure Christianity as the teaching of Peter or Paul, and is no more Mormonism than Peter's teaching is Peterism, or Paul's doctrine is Paulism. And Christ first, last, and all the time, was the theme of all of these preachers of righteousness. Paul would know nothing among the people "save Christ and him crucified;" nor did Mormon, or Moroni, or any other of the writers of the Book of Mormon. It is because the world does not believe that the Book of Mormon or Mormonism is the doctrine of Christ is where the harm is done by our calling ourselves "Mormons" or believers in Mormonism. But we should ever make prominent the fact that the teaching of the Book of Mormon is the doctrine of Christ, and ever hold Christ up as the grand theme of the book, and his exaltation and honor the chief object of the book, which is the fact. It is because it exalts and honors Christ so much that furnishes the chief attraction of the book. Take Christ out of the book and it becomes a dry narrative. It is because a true believer in the teachings of the Book of Mormon is made a better Christian thereby that the chief value of the book is found.

It detracts from the glory of Christ to call ourselves "Mormons" so long as the world thinks and believes that Mormonism is the opposite of Christianity. And not until we can show that we are Christians and better Christians than others will the world see that the Book of Mormon is any advantage to us. Mormonism is Christianity in the best form and shape. Did it teach a different or conflicting doctrine I would have no use for it, but my faith in Christianity as taught in the Bible is increased four-fold by the harmony between the two books. The fact that the Bible teaches that Jesus had "other sheep" than the Jewish fold or the tribe of Judah at Jerusalem, which should hear his voice and should with Judah become "one fold" under "one shepherd" (John 10: 16), and that the Book of Mormon reveals that Christ came to this land and taught the same gospel as he did to the Jews at Jerusalem, proves the oneness of the gospel and his consistency. Had he taught differently, we would either have doubted his divinity and consistency, or questioned the authenticity of either one or the other of the records. But how could he have taught differently and be "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day, and forever"? If the people on this continent had heard a different doctrine than did those at Jerusalem, they could never have become "one fold," and yet the enemies of the Book of Mormon call the similarity of the teaching a "plagiarism," yet if the teaching did not agree they would have denounced the Book of Mormon as being false. But even if copied from the Bible, if it is truth in the Bible it is truth in the Book of Mormon if precisely the same. It cannot be the gospel truth in the Bible and falsehood in the Book of Mormon and yet precisely the same language and the same doctrine. A truth is a truth whether printed in the Bible, or written on a blackboard or printed in an almanac. Whether the Book of Mormon be a true record of events and truths recorded by true prophets and apostles on this land from sixteen hundred to over two thousand years ago, or was the creation of the brain of Joseph Smith, whatever truth found in the Bible and discovered also in the Book of Mormon,—if ever a truth it remains a truth still; although in one case it might be a prophetic and in the other case a historical truth or prophetic or historical in both cases.

Truth is truth wherever found,
On land or sea the wide world round.

Mormonism, whether rightfully or wrongfully, is associated in the eyes of the world with polygamy, and for the time at least he that calls himself a Mormon is supposed to be at least a believer in that abomination.

If a man cannot be a Christian and believer in the Book of Mormon neither can he be a Christian and be a believer in the Book of Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, or in the Westminster Confession of Faith of the Presbyterian Church, or in the Church of England Prayer Book. If these books teach Christianity they do not do so a whit more nor so clearly nor so fully as does the Book of Mormon. If the world really believes that the Book of Mormon was Reverend Solomon Spalding's romance, so fond of novel reading is it that ten thousand copies would be read to one that is now read; but they are afraid that it is true and its record undeniable and impeachable, and its doctrine pure and gospel like, and such a rebuke to their carnal minds that they will have nothing to do with it. But much of it being the words of Christ it will judge them "in the last day;" but if they believed it was a novel they would speedily and greedily devour its contents. The inconsistency of the world is seen, for even as fond of novel reading as it is, it will not read the Book of Mormon, a romance, as they hold it to be, nor as a religious historical work as it really is, and a true history of its times as the discovery by archaeological researches of cities, towns, temples, etc., described by it amply proves. In fact the external evidence of the truthfulness of the record is far beyond in volume that found in favor of Bible history.

The Book of Mormon being true, and the Bible also true, it is not strange that the two books corroborate and sustain each other as they do. No, I am not a Mormon, nor a Paulite, but what is far better, a Christian or follower of Christ.

EPHRAIM IN PROPHECY.

IN order to fully understand the great work to be performed by Ephraim in the last days, and the special blessings to be enjoyed by him, it will be necessary to notice briefly some of the purposes of God in the distribution of man upon the earth, in connection with his directing and overruling providence in the same. By reading Acts 17:24-27, Deuteronomy 32:8, Genesis 15:18-21, Exodus 23:31, Numbers 34:3-12, and Acts 10:34, 35, it is made clear that God takes cognizance of all nations; that he sets the "bounds of their habitation" and hath "determined the times" when they shall dwell thereon; that he commands all to "seek the Lord," and promises that they shall "find him;" and that he is "no respecter of persons," but is willing to accept and bless all that "fear" him and work "righteousness," regardless of their nationality.

But while accepting and heartily indorsing the foregoing facts, we are forced to admit that in the execution of the great purposes of God certain nations, tribes, families, and even individuals, have been prophetically called to fill special positions, the nature of their work and the blessings promised being pointed out and described long before the persons so-called were born. And notably among the nations and tribes who seem to be thus specially favored are the tribes of Israel.

God chose Abraham for the purpose of blessing all the families of the earth through him and his seed. And, although he gave him the land of Canaan for an "everlasting inheritance," and set the "bounds of their habitation," "from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates" (Gen. 15:18), yet he tells us through the prophets that the posterity of Abraham (Israel) is to be scattered all over the earth:—

My people hath been lost sheep. . . . Israel is a scattered sheep.—Jer. 50:6, 17.

Yea, my flock was scattered upon all the face of the earth.—Ezek. 34:6.

Thou hast increased the nation, O Lord, thou hast increased the nation: thou hadst removed it far unto all the ends of the earth.—Isa. 26:15.

As all nations are to be blessed in Abraham, it is only natural that his posterity should be scattered to all parts of the earth, that the knowledge of the God of Abraham might the more readily be communicated through his posterity to all of earth's nations. True, Christ is the seed (Gal. 3:16) through whom the nations are to be blessed; but the knowledge of the Christ comes to the nations through Israel, for the Jews have much advantage, Paul says, and the chief advantage is, "because that unto them were committed the oracles of God." (Rom. 3:2.)

Again, in speaking of his brethren "according to the flesh," he says:—

Who are Israelites; to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises.—Rom. 9:4.

And this statement is confirmed by that of the Savior when he said:—

Salvation is of the Jews.—John 4:22.

Yes, Christ is "the seed" through whom the nations are to be blessed and saved, but the nations cannot be saved in Christ until they believe in him, and they cannot believe in him until they hear of him. They hear of him through the gospel, and the gospel comes to them through the Jews (for "the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God" pertain to Israel), and hence it is that "salvation is of the Jews."

But our subject has to do with the posterity of Joseph, more particularly with that branch of it known as the tribe of Ephraim. Jacob, just before his death, tells his sons "that which shall befall you in the last days" (Gen. 49:1), and in doing so he compares Joseph to a "faithful bough by a well, whose branches run over the wall." He says he shall be blessed with the "blessings of heaven above," and that, too, at the "utmost bound of the everlasting hills," in a land that is "above" (superior to) the blessing given to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (the land of Canaan), and that these blessings are to be on the "crown of the head" of

Joseph. (Gen. 49:22-26. See also Deut. 33:13-17.)

Both Ephraim and Manasseh (Joseph's two sons) are to share in these blessings, for Jacob, in blessing them, said:—

God . . . bless the lads; and let my name be named on them, . . . and let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth.—Gen. 48:15, 16.

And Moses says of them:—

His horns are like the horns of unicorns: with them he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth.—Deut. 33:17.

Both are to be blessed. The name of Jacob is to be "named on them." It is together that they are to "grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth." Both are to be used as instruments to push the people together to the ends of the earth." But still it seems that the chief blessings promised to Joseph are to be "on the crown," or "top," of his head. And the "crown" of Joseph's head would evidently be that one of his posterity who stands out preëminently above the rest; and, if so, Ephraim is the "crown," as is shown in the prophetic blessing of both Jacob and Moses. Jacob in blessing the two sons of Joseph put his "right hand" upon "Ephraim's head" and told Joseph that "he shall be greater" than his brother, and he "set Ephraim before Manasseh." (Gen. 48:14, 19, 20.) And Moses says of them, "they are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh" (Deut. 33:17), thus making Ephraim greater than Manasseh as ten to one.

But his greatness consists not alone in being "set before Manasseh" but in standing "in the last days" at the head of the whole house of Israel. Jacob adopts those two sons of Joseph as his own and says of them, "As Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine." (Gen. 48:5.) And in verse 16 he says, "Let my name be named on them." This of course places them only on an equality with the other tribes,—as Reuben and Simeon,—but the writer of Chronicles says that the "birthright" was taken from Reuben and "given to the sons of Joseph." (1 Chron. 5:1, 2.) This, while it places the two sons of Joseph above the other tribes, leaves them on an equality in holding the birthright. Not so, however, with the following:—

Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth; . . . I will cause them to walk by the rivers of waters in a straight way, wherein they shall not stumble: for I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my firstborn.—Jer. 31:8, 9.

This establishes Ephraim's claim to the "birthright" in the "last days," in the days of the gathering of the children of Israel "from the north country," and from all "the coasts of the earth." It is then that he is to be the "firstborn;" that is, the first to be born into the "new" and "everlasting covenant." And, as he is to be the first to embrace this new covenant in the gathering dispensation, we want to find out, as nearly as possible, where he will be at that time; and this will help us to understand where God's work will commence.

Let us keep in mind that Joseph's "branches" are to "run over the wall," receive a greater blessing than Jacob's progenitors, and that too at "the utmost bound of the everlasting hills;" and that it is there they are to be blessed "in the last days" with the "blessings of heaven above." In connection with those things please read the following:—

And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their heart shall rejoice as through wine; yea, their children shall see it and be glad. . . . I will hiss for them, and gather them. . . . And they shall remember me in far countries; and they shall live with their children, and turn again.—Zech. 10:7-9.

"In far countries," from Jerusalem.

I will not return to destroy Ephraim. . . . They shall walk after the Lord: he shall roar like a lion: when he shall roar, then the children shall tremble from the west.—Hos. 11:9, 10.

"From the west."

The lords of the heathen have broken down the principal plants thereof: . . . her branches are stretched out, they are gone over the sea.—Isa. 16:8.

"Over the sea."

Now the "principal plants" of Israel are evidently the "branches" of the "fruitful bough," the ones that have the "birthright," hence Ephraim and Manasseh, Ephraim being the greater, the "crown of the head," the "firstborn." And "in far countries," "over the sea," "from the west" at the "utmost bound of the everlasting hills," from Jerusalem, could be none "other than the two Americas. Hence, to America we look for the land of Joseph. And truly it is a land "above" the land of Canaan; a land blessed with the "precious things of the earth" and the "chief things of the ancient mountains," and also with the "good will of him that dwelt in the bush." It is here then that Ephraim and Manasseh are to "grow into a multitude;" it is here that the Lord is to "hiss" for Ephraim; it is here that Ephraim is to "remember the Lord," "turn again" and "live." And, as he is to be the first to "turn," the first to "live," the "firstborn," it is here that the great work of God must commence in the gathering dispensation.

But some will say, "If this is Ephraim's land, and he is here, why don't we know him?" For the best of reasons:—

Within threescore and five years shall Ephraim be broken, that it be not a people.—Isa. 7:8.

Ephraim, he hath mixed himself among the people. . . . Strangers have devoured his strength.—Hos. 7:8, 9.

Ephraim is smitten. . . . And they shall be wanderers among the nations.—Hos. 9:16, 17.

They of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man. . . . I will sow them among the people.—Zech. 10:7, 9.

The reason then that Ephraim is not known is because he has been "broken," has been "sown among the people," has "mixed himself among the people," become "wanderers among the nations," and thus lost his national identity. His genealogy is lost, and he does not even know himself. But "in the last days" his posterity are to be made known, and they are to be among the people," as is witnessed by the following:—

But ye shall be named the priests of the Lord: men shall call you the Ministers of our God . . . I will make an everlasting covenant with them and their seed shall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people.—Isa. 61:6, 8, 9.

This, of course, is spoken of Israel, but it is to be in the day when God shall make an "everlasting covenant" with them that they "shall be known among the Gentiles," and, as Ephraim is to be the "firstborn" in this "everlasting covenant," his seed will be the first to be made known "among the people." How they are to be made known is not so plain. But as God is the "same yesterday, to-day, and forever," it is to be presumed that he will always act like himself; and if he does, he will cause to stand up," in the gathering of Israel, "a priest with Urim and Thummim" through whom the genealogy, not only of Ephraim but of all the tribes of Israel, shall be made known. (See Ezra 2:63 and Nehemiah 7:65.)

Having located Ephraim, let us now turn our attention to the lifting up of the "ensign" in the last days. From the evidence already adduced, one would naturally expect to find that the ensign is to be lifted up on Joseph's land. We shall see:—

And he will lift up an ensign from far, and will hiss unto them from the end of the earth: and, behold, they shall come with speed swiftly.—Isa. 5:26.

"From far" would certainly be "in far countries," where Ephraim is to remember the Lord when he is gathered. (Zech. 10:7-9.) "From the end of the earth" would be at the "utmost bound of the everlasting hills," where Ephraim is to receive the "blessings of heaven above" "in the last days." (Gen. 49:25, 26.)

Again:—

Woe to the land shadowing with wings, which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia; that sendeth ambassadors by the sea, . . . saying, Go, ye swift messengers, to a nation scattered and peeled. . . . All ye inhabitants of the world, and dwellers on the earth, see ye, when he lifteth up an ensign on the mountains; and when he bloweth a trumpet, hear ye.—Isa. 18:1-3.

According to this the Lord is to lift up "an ensign" and blow "a trumpet," and "all the inhabitants of the world" are to be called upon to "see" and "hear." This ensign is to be carried by "swift messengers" to a nation "scattered and peeled," the messengers to be sent from a land "shadowing with wings, which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia." But what countries were included under the head of "Ethiopia" in ancient times?

Originally, all the nations inhabiting the southern part of the globe, as known to the ancients; or rather, all men of dark-brown or black color were called Ethiopians (Gr. aithe—ops, sunburned). Later, this name was given more particularly to the inhabitants of the countries south of Libya and Egypt, or the upper Nile, etc.—Chambers' Encyclopedia.

"Beyond the rivers of Ethiopia," "as known to the ancients," would be "over the sea" in "the west," or southwest, of Jerusalem; and, as the ensign is to be lifted up at the "end of the earth" from Jerusalem, we find ourselves again landed in America, the land of Joseph.

If any are in doubt as to what is meant by the ensign, please read the following:—

There shall be a root of Jesse [Christ], which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek.—Isa. 11:10.

Read also verses 11 and 16. Christ is the "ensign," and he is held up to the nations by preaching the gospel to them. Peter says:—

This is the word [the living word, the word that was made flesh, the Christ] which by the gospel is preached unto you—1 Peter 1:25.

Hence it is that we find the expressions, "preached Christ," "preached the word," "preached the gospel," used synonymously in the Scriptures. If Christ is the ensign, and if he is presented to the nations through the gospel, then, when we read that God will "lift up an ensign to the nations," we are to understand that he will preach Christ unto them, proclaim the gospel to them, and that the lifting of the ensign in the last days is simply the restoration of the gospel of Christ. This being true, we will now hear how this work is to be commenced:—

And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come.—Rev. 14:6, 7.

The gospel then is to be brought from heaven by an angel. When the gospel is thus restored it is to be "to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people." And when the ensign is lifted up "all ye inhabitants of the world, and dwellers on the earth" are commanded to "see" and "hear." (Isa. 18:3.) When this angel brings the gospel he is to declare that "the hour of God's judgment is come;" and when the ensign is lifted up, "with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked." (Isa. 11:4.) Surely this too is the hour of judgment.

Hence it is clear that the angel bringing the everlasting gospel to preach to them that "dwell on the earth," and the lifting up the "ensign to the nations," is simply one and the same thing.

For further evidence as to how this work is to be commenced and carried on please read the following:—

Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets.—Amos 3:7.

Putting the foregoing scripture together we see that a prophet must be raised up in the day of the gathering of Israel, to whom this angel shall come and who shall make known the secret of the Lord; and that this prophet, under the direction of God, must then lift up the ensign (Christ) to the nations of the earth by preaching the gospel to them.

Is there any evidence that this prophet will be of the tribe of Ephraim? We think there is.

1. This ensign is to be lifted up "from far," at the "end of the earth," the very place where Ephraim is to remember the Lord when he is gathered.

2. The "priests of the Lord" and the "ministers of our God," in the gathering dispensation, are to be Israelites.

3. Ephraim is to be the "firstborn" in the new covenant, hence the "chief priest" or principal minister "of our God" in the great latter-day work.

4. "In the last days," at the "utmost bound of the everlasting hills," Ephraim is to be blessed with the "blessings of heaven above;" and the gospel of Christ, committed to him by an angel, would certainly be among heaven's most "precious things."

5. The great things of God's law are written to Ephraim, and are to be "counted as a strange thing."

6. When Israel is again gathered into one nation "the stick of Joseph" is to be "in the hand of Ephraim," and is to be called "the stick of Ephraim," even as the Bible is called "the stick of Judah." (Ezek. 37:15-20.)

7. "His horns are like the horns of unicorns; with them he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth; and they are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh."—Deut. 33:17.

This last quotation puts it beyond question that Ephraim and Manasseh are the ones that God will use in the last days to "push the people together to the ends of the earth," and that Ephraim is to be superior to Manasseh in this work as ten is to one. Hence he is the "chief priest," the "principal minister," the "firstborn," first to receive the "everlasting gospel" at the hand of the angel, the prophet to whom the Lord "revealeth his secret."

To the foregoing please add the following:—

Manasseh is mine; Ephraim also is the strength of my head; Judah is my lawgiver.—Ps. 108: 8.

And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man.—Zech. 10: 7.

Yes, "Ephraim is the strength of my head." He is indeed "like a mighty man."

We will notice when this is to be done, what is its object, and the peculiar events that are to transpire at and shortly after its commencement.

Behold the Lord God will come. . . . Behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.—Isa. 40: 10.

Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.—Isa. 62: 11.

Though the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant shall be saved; for he will finish the work, and cut it short in righteousness: because a short work will the Lord make upon the earth.—Rom. 9: 27, 28.

The work then is to commence just before the coming of the Lord, at the "hour of his judgment," and is to be, in part at least, for the salvation of the "remnant" of the "children of Israel," and more particularly to prepare them, with all God's people, for his coming.

Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way of the people; . . . lift up a standard for the people.—Isa. 62: 10.

See also the eleventh verse, in connection with Isaiah 59: 19, 20.

Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple. . . . And I will come near you to judgment.—Mal. 3: 1, 5.

Just before the Lord comes "to judgment," just before the "offering of Judah and Jerusalem shall be pleasant unto the Lord," he shall send some one to "lift up a standard" (ensign) to "prepare the way before him." It is to be then a work of preparation. And we are told that "in the day of his preparation" "the chariots shall be with flaming torches," "shall rage in the streets" and "jostle one against another in the broad ways," and shall "run like the lightnings" (Nahum 2: 3-5), and that when he shall "lift up an ensign . . . from far" and "hiss unto them from the end of the earth," they shall come "with speed swiftly" and their "horses' hoofs [iron horses—steam engines] shall be counted like flint, and their wheels like a whirlwind," and that "their roaring shall be like a lion" (Isa. 5: 26-29); also that the ambassadors, sent to scattered Israel from "beyond the rivers of Ethiopia," are to be termed "swift messengers." (Isa. 18: 2.) Another peculiar characteristic to accompany this work is that, when God shall commence it, it will be only "a very little while and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field." (Isa. 29: 14-17.) This is to be a "marvelous work and a wonder," and the great things of God's law written to Ephraim are to be "counted as a strange thing," the same work, but called by different names.

Now, reader, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ claims that this great work has already commenced, that it commenced a few years before 1830, and that Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery were the "firstborn."

Which commandments were given to Joseph Smith, Jr., who was called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the first elder of this church; and to Oliver Cowdery, who was called of God an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the second elder of this church, and ordained under his hand.—D. and C. 17: 1.

Also that they are of the tribe of Ephraim, "and they [the ten tribes of the north countries] shall bring forth their rich treasures unto the children of Ephraim my servants. . . . And then shall they fall down and be crowned with glory, even in Zion, by the hands of the servants of the Lord, even the children of Ephraim." (D. and C. 108: 6). This claim that Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery, who were the "firstborn" in this work, were of the tribe of Ephraim, is strictly in harmony with the foregoing prophecies, and also verifies Paul's statement that the "covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises" pertain to Israel.

Now, reader, please allow me in conclusion to show you how beautifully this work, in its claims, place, time, and conditions, harmonizes with the prophecies of the Bible.

1. Joseph Smith's claim of being an Israelite harmonizes with Isaiah 61: 6 and Romans 9: 4.

2. His claim that he is of the tribe of Ephraim (he being the first to receive this work) accords with Jeremiah 31: 9.

3. His being in "far countries," at the "utmost bound of the everlasting hills," "west" of Jerusalem, when the Lord called him, strictly harmonizes with Zechariah 10: 9, Genesis 49: 26, and Hosea 11: 10.

4. His lifting up the ensign (proclaiming the gospel) "from far," at the "end of the earth," from Jerusalem, corresponds with Isaiah 5: 26 and 18: 1.

5. His being "mixed among the people" at this time agrees with Hosea 7: 8 and 9: 17.

6. His being made "known among the Gentiles" at the time one did "stand up with Urim and Thummim" is in harmony with Isaiah 61: 9 and Nehemiah 7: 65.

7. His claim that God did place the "stick of Joseph" (Book of Mormon) in his hand is in perfect agreement with Ezekiel 37: 15-20.

8. His claim that this "stick of Joseph" contains the "great things of my law" written to Ephraim (not by him), and it being "counted as a strange thing," a "marvelous work and a wonder," agrees most beautifully with Hosea 8: 12 and Isaiah 29: 14.

9. His claim that it was a "sealed book," and came "out of the earth" corresponds to Isaiah 29: 11 and Psalms 85: 11.

10. His being "not learned" accords with Isaiah 29: 12 and 1 Corinthians 1: 26-29.

11. His being a "young man," in connection with his claim that the angel told him the ten tribes should soon come from the "north country" and inhabit Jerusalem again, agrees with Zechariah 2: 3-6.

12. His claim that the "everlasting gospel" was restored to earth by an angel, and his preaching that the time is near when Christ will come in judgment, harmonizes with Rev. 14: 6, 7 and Malachi 3: 5.

13. His proclaiming this gospel as "a standard for the people," and calling on them to "prepare" for the coming of the Lord, agrees with Isaiah 62: 10 and Malachi 3: 1.

14. His commencing this work in a day when the chariots "seem like torches" and "run like the lightnings;" when "their wheels" are "like a whirlwind" and "their roaring" "like a lion," agrees with Nahum 2: 3-6 and Isaiah 5: 28, 29.

15. It being the earliest period of the world's history when those sent to "scattered" Israel could be termed indeed "swift messengers," corresponds with Isaiah 18: 2.

16. A railroad having been built to Jerusalem since the commencement of this work, so that Israel can "come with speed swiftly," is in perfect accord with Isaiah 5: 26.

17. His commencing this work only "a very little while" (twenty-two years) before the "former and latter rains" were restored to Israel's land, thus causing it to "yield its increase" and once more be "turned into a fruitful field," is in exact fulfillment of Psalms 85: 12 and Isaiah 29: 17.

18. His claim of being a prophet, called of God to bring forth and establish this great latter-day work for the gathering of the children of Israel, is in harmony with the following: "Like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord God."—Ezek. 20: 36. "And by a prophet the Lord brought Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet was he preserved."—Hos. 12: 13. In like manner, in the same way; hence "by a prophet." "Surely the Lord will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets."

19. His organizing the Church of Christ according to the New Testament pattern, and preaching the same gospel, with all of its ordinances, blessings, promises, and powers, stamps him a man of God according to the following: "He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son."—2 John 1: 9.

Could worldly wisdom or human ingenuity get up an imposition and make it harmonize so beautifully with God's word? Could it be possible that Joseph Smith "just happened" to be in line with all these prophecies, and the remarkable events that have transpired since this work commenced? No! No!! Surely God's hand is in the work. God is at the helm directing, overruling, and overturning; hence the beautiful harmony, hence the complete and perfect adjustment of the work, in all of its parts, to the word of God as contained in the Bible.

PROPOSED CHANGE IN SELECTING SUPERINTENDENTS OF ASSOCIATION AND SCHOOLS.

One of the most important items of our work in the church is the proper indoctrinating of our children in the pure principles of the restored gospel. God requires that we shall see that our offspring become obedient unto the first steps in the gospel principles, and it is not left optional or discretionary with us, for he says: "And again, inasmuch as parents have children in Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized, that teach them not to understand the doctrine of repentance; faith in Christ the Son of the living God; and of baptism and the gift of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands when eight years old, the sin be upon the head of the parents; for this shall be a law unto the inhabitants of Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized; and their children shall be baptized for the remission of their sins when eight years old, and receive the laying on of the hands; and they shall also teach their children to pray, and to walk uprightly before the Lord.—D. C. p. 200.

Man's home is his "castle," and there more than any other place may he expect to enjoy the greatest freedom and authority, especially in the government of his family; nevertheless the law has laid the responsibility upon certain church officers to visit this sacred retreat, the home, and there in the privacy of the family, exhort each and all to the discharge of duty. The church being the family, and the Sabbath school the minor child, all being under the same divine government, and it being clear, that the parent being responsible for the instruction of the child, the analysis in this case leads me to the conclusion that, as the Sabbath school work is church work, therefore the church, in her several divisions, as branch, district, and the body in general, should have supervisory watchcare over the work minor—the Sabbath school. But whereas there are those who think quite differently to me, and whereas I believe the time has fully come when we should unite in all church work, that our unselfishness be increased in greater good in the future than it has been in the past, with a view to an amicable adjustment of adverse opinions, I will submit for the consideration of the next session of the conference of the Decatur district, a resolution as follows:—

Resolved, That it is the judgment of this body that the superintendent of the Sabbath school should be chosen by the branch, and the superintendent of the district association, by the district conference.

I have no personal end to serve, other than to seek for the good of the cause of Christ. As our faithful ministers become aged and are relegated to the list of the superannuated, their successors will be recruited from the ranks of those taught in the things of God in the family and the Sabbath school. To give all who are interested in this subject ample opportunity for consideration and be prepared to act, is my excuse for this publication.

For truth,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

CAIN.—At the house of her daughter, Sr. Susannah Atkinson, in Lamoni, Iowa, at 6:30 p.m., December 19, 1893, of acute pneumonia, Sr. Susannah Cain, widow of Bro. Peter B. Cain, formerly of Nortonville, California. Sr. Cain was born July 31, 1819, at Healey, Cambridgeshire, England; was baptized at Antioch, Contra Costa county, California, September 20, 1868, by Elder Orrin Smith. At the time of her departure from this life she was aged 74 years, 5 months, 18 days. She was the mother of six children; one son died in infancy, one was killed while working in the mines of British Columbia; she leaves four daughters, two being present at her funeral; twenty-five grandchildren, and eleven great-grandchildren. She was a woman of great faith, integrity of purpose, and purity of thought and life. She was buried in the Saints' church, in Rose Hill cemetery, Bro. Asa S. Cochran in charge; President Joseph Smith pronouncing a short eulogy on her character and life, December 21.

TURNER.—At Manchester, England, September 30, 1893, John Turner, Sr., teacher of the Manchester branch, aged 61 years. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him as a reliable and honorable man, and to the Saints as a humble servant of the Lord, a wise counselor, a faithful brother, and friend. He was received into the church by baptism July 11, 1882; ordained teacher April 5, 1885. He lived a faithful and consistent life, and departed in peace to rest with the justified in the paradise of God, until the resurrection of the just. Was much esteemed by all who knew her, as evidenced by the many beautiful floral tributes placed upon her grave at the interment, while the sweet songs of Zion there sung raised the thoughts of those present from the scene of sorrow and death, to the glorious reality of the resurrection of the Saints. The funeral services and sermon by Elder Joseph Dewsnap, Sr., who in a sympathetic and touching discourse showed the certainty of the faithful Saint passing through the death of the body into the paradise of God, to come forth again, in the resurrection of the just.

BAILEY.—Near Davis City, Iowa, December 15, 1893, of pneumonia, Brother George H. Bailey, aged 56 years, 9 months, and 8 days. From his childhood he was known as a lover of truth; and as a man he was noted for his honesty and for keeping his agreements, if within possibility to do so. He was baptized May 1, 1861, in Dodge county, Minnesota. Bro. E. C. Briggs officiating; was ordained a teacher in 1864 by his Brother Samuel, and in 1871, when the Sherman branch, Mason county, Michigan, was organized, he was chosen to preside. In 1880 he and his family removed to Decatur county, Iowa, and here his wife, Susan, died in 1882. On Sunday morning, December 17, his funeral sermon was preached by Bro. H. A. Stebbins, in the Lamoni chapel, and his form was laid to rest. His wife, two sons, one daughter, and his brothers, Samuel and Oliver, were present at the services, as also a large congregation of Saints and others.

She married in 1866 and became the mother of three sons, two of whom survive her. By nature she was a woman of excellent qualities of heart and mind, and, after her acceptance of the gospel in 1877, (being baptized by Bro. Emsley Curtis,) she became and continued to be an earnest and faithful lover of the work of God. She was a member of the Lamoni branch, and her body was brought here for burial. According to the wish that had been expressed by her, Bro. H. A. Stebbins preached her funeral sermon, this and the sermon for Bro. Bailey being combined in the one service. Bro. A. S. Cochran assisted in the ceremonies.

ORR.—At Shingle Springs, California, November 15, 1893, Thomas Orr, Sr. He was born in Scotland, December 18, 1800; emigrated to America in 1833, remaining in New York with his family four years, at the end of which time they removed to Illinois, which place they left in company with the Saints, in 1846, reaching Utah with the first emigration in 1847. In 1848, accompanied by a number of families, they removed to Utah Valley. Arriving in California in 1850, they settled at Salmon Falls, at which place he lived until one year before his death. He was baptized into the church in 1839 or 1840, and admitted into the Reorganized Church in San Francisco on his former baptism, in 1889. He leaves one son and two daughters to mourn his departure, his wife and two sons having passed on before.

RICHARDS.—At Higbee, Missouri, December 14, 1893, Ida May, daughter of Bro. William and Sr. M. A. Richards, aged 5 years, 1 month, and 17 days. Fire was the cause of her death. She had been learning the 117th Psalm to compete for the prize in Sunday school, and while in the most terrible agony she repeated this Psalm.

MCCUTCHEON.—Sr. Rose McDavid was born May 26, 1812, at Kilbarchan, Renfrewshire, Scotland. She was married to John McCutcheon, November 20, 1835, at Johnstone, Scotland. The family born to them was two daughters and three sons, who were called away in infancy, except one, now Sr. John H. Lake, the eldest one. The father died in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1854, since which time the mother has remained a widow. Sr. McCutcheon was baptized August 17, 1840, in Bridge of Weir, by Elders Wright and Millner, missionaries from America to Scotland. She died firm in the faith; and as she had lived a most consistent and upright life, she had nothing to fear at her departure, but looked forward with a bright hope of sharing in the joys of the redeemed. She died in Kirtland, Ohio, December 9, 1893.

KEOWN.—At Lamoni, Iowa, September 25, 1893, Silvia Ellen, daughter of Bro. John and Sr. Mary E. Keown, aged 10 months and 14 days. Prayer at the house by Elder S. V. Bailey, and burial at Pleasanton, Iowa. A promising child called home ere its feet had trod the thorny path of life.

Bro. B. F. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, has succeeded in establishing an excellent business in useful specialties. Meritorious articles and business energy combined have brought him success.

MESSRS, ORDWAY & Co.,

Peoria, Illinois:—

This is to certify that early in the spring of 1893 I took an agency for the sale of Ordway's Portable Bed Springs in Jackson county, Tennessee. I commenced under the most discouraging circumstances, on foot, and the country had been overrun with bed spring agents, but I soon sold fifteen sets and started out to put them on, and as I delivered them I took orders at nearly every house. Then the panic came, but it did not effect the sale of Ordway's Bed Springs much, for I and my sub-agents have sold springs right on through the hard times, selling up to the above date over three hundred sets, and now orders are coming in from other territory by mail. So put me down as being in the bed spring business for a long stay. I have taken as high as thirteen orders in one day.

W. F. JENKINS, General Agent.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Bradstreet's weekly report dated December 22 estimates the number of men out of work at 3,000,000.

Brazilian rebel forces from Santa Catalina were defeated by government troops at Itajahy December 19. The rebels lost 400 men but they had the government troops so badly penned in that surrender seemed unavoidable. The rebels are well armed. President Peixoto is gaining at other points. Admiral de Gama who commands the insurgent fleet in Rio harbor when Admiral Mello is at sea, has done great harm to the insurgent cause by his open advocacy of the restoration of the empire. Officers have deserted because of his monarchical views.

VIENNA, Dec. 23. — Intelligence has been received here from Constantinople that the Porte has dispatched troops to Asia Minor, owing to the troubles caused there by Armenians. It is also said the directors of Turkish newspapers have received copies of an imperial tirade directing them henceforth to notify the Porte of the source of any news they may receive.

London cablegrams say the Pope is in feeble health; that those about him do not expect him to live through the summer. Speculations are indulged in concerning his successor.

Throughout Europe there is estimated to be 130,000 more men under arms than at the same time last year.

Berlin advices say that rumors circulated in foreign newspapers that the position of Chancellor Caprivi is critical are unfounded.

The Brazilian Minister of Foreign Affairs, acting for President Peixoto, has given out a statement to the effect that the Brazilian revolt has been reduced to a small space in Rio Bay. The rebel blockade of the port of Rio Janeiro seems to be of little effect.

ROME, Dec. 23.—The latest news as to the fight between Italian troops and Dervishes near Agordat Thursday is that, exclusive of officers, 102 were killed and 125 were wounded on the Italian side. All the killed and wounded were natives. In the artillery, which was manned partly by Italians, nobody was killed or wounded. It is impossible to learn exactly the loss of the Dervishes, although their killed and wounded are known to number more than 1,000. The Italian warship Voltorno, which was at Aden, was ordered yesterday to proceed at once to Mas-sowah. The newspapers express elation, but for financial reasons deprecate any expansion of Italian interest in Africa.

RIO JANEIRO, Dec. 24.—The report of a bloody battle at Itajahy, state of Santa Catharina in which 400 insurgents were said to have been killed, has no foundation in fact. It was discredited generally from the first and is now authoritatively denied. All foreigners but Americans and Germans are said to be aiding the revolutionists. President Peixoto has ordered a draft for 12,000 men in five provinces. General Telles, prominent in the government service, has died of his wounds.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 24.—The Berlin correspondent of the Independence Belge says the construction of a military camp at Malmédy on the Belgian frontier is the first step toward the general transfer of the army maneuvers from the interior to the frontiers. The object of this change is to avoid the damage done to crops by the concentration of troops in the most fruitful districts in the German Empire. Similar fortifications will be constructed probably near the boundary between Bohemia and Saxony and on the frontiers of Pomerania and Posen. This explanation is regarded here as a subterfuge. France is expected to begin fortifying its northeaster frontier to counterbalance the effect of Germany's action at Malmédy. This action will compel Belgium to maintain an army of 30,000 on the German and French frontiers.

Kansas bandits robbed passengers and mail and express matter of train No. 32 on the Missouri Pacific Railroad near Coffeyville, Kansas, December 24. Much valuable property was secured. Masked men stopped a Southern Pacific express train north of Los Angeles, California, on the 23d, and forced open the express car, but failed to open the treasure safe.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—The British steamer Eton from Soolina, at the Danube's mouth, for Rotterdam, has been detained at Gravesend for twenty-four hours for fumigation and examination. There have been three cases of cholera aboard it. The man who was stricken last had recovered December 13.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 24.—There were twenty-seven fresh cases of cholera and fourteen deaths here yesterday.

ROME, Dec. 24.—Great disorder prevails in Sicily. Anti-tax agitation has led to rioting and several persons have been hurt. Troops have been called out to suppress disturbers of the peace.

Berlin advices say the Greek government is practically bankrupt and is said to be contemplating a virtual repudiation of its debts. The nonpayment of Greek coupons on the gold loan of 1890, due January 15, has resulted in the appointment of a committee which has asked the Foreign Office to interfere in Athens. The committee holds that Greece will be virtually bankrupt if it refuses to pay the interest on its debt, despite the fact that its resources are sufficient to meet all claims if it reduces at once its army and navy. The question of Greek finance has assumed a distinctly political aspect, as, if the powers unite to compel Greece to pay, it will be obliged to abandon its military preparations.

Russia and Germany have reciprocated in lowering tariff duties.

MADRID, Dec. 25.—The Epoca estimates the indemnity Morocco ought to pay Spain in view of the difficulties at Melilla at 60,000,000 francs. The ministerial newspapers consider the attitude of Muley Araaf, the Sultan's brother, who conducts the negotiations with Gen. Campos at Melilla, as satisfactory, yet recommend the retention of the large force at Melilla and the concentration of another in Andalusia until the payment of the indemnity shall have been fully guaranteed through the receipts of customs duty. The Spanish Minister in Tangier telegraphed to-day that the Sultan was expected to arrive at Markesch to-morrow.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 25.—The Congress of Dutch Socialists in Grohingen quarreled all to-day over the constitutional question submitted by the Executive committee. A motion of "no confidence" in the leader of the Dutch Socialists, M. Nieuwenhuis, was lost by a few votes. The congress adopted resolutions to the effect that Dutch Socialists ought to shape their course independently of the French and German Socialist parties and that only reporters for Socialist papers should be allowed to attend the sittings of the delegates.

ROME, Dec. 25.—The French Ambassador last evening congratulated Baron Blanc, Minister of Foreign Affairs, upon the victory of the Italians over the Dervishes near Agordat last week. To-day the British Charge d'Affairs called upon Baron Blanc and congratulated him and the Italian Government in behalf of the Queen. In diplomatic circles the opinion is that the victory will strengthen the relations between Italy and England in the Egyptian Sudan.

Trouble is brewing in Madagascar. French influence is on the increase. It is said that the dissatisfaction is so great with the despotic acts of the premier that 5,000 men might take the whole country if the people were assured of religious freedom.

The Austro-Hungarian government will prolong coercive measures in Bohemia until excitement and opposition among the young Czechs subside.

ROME, Dec. 25.—An entente between Russia and the Vatican has been formed on the nomination of Bishops of Poland. Russia has removed its interdiction of Catholic Bishops going to Rome and Friday the Pope gave an audience to a Polish Bishop.

On December 24 the Brazilian minister at Washington informed the United States government that President Peixoto's forces were in control of every island in Rio Bay except Villegaignon, Las Cobras, and one other, an unimportant one. The government expects to soon crush them. It entertains no fear except from the cruiser Aquidaban. The minister states that Senator Barbosa and Admiral Mello may leave the insurgents because displeased with De Gama's scheme for a monarchy.

The State of Georgia has passed a law prohibiting mob violence and prescribing punishment therefor.

The city of Chicago has provided that applicants for help who will not labor on the public works must leave the city.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 26.—The Government of Nicaragua has been collecting forced war loans from American citizens resident here in violation of the treaty. United States Minister Baker made a vigorous protest against such proceedings.

Policarpo Bonilla, who returned to Nicaragua December 17, has gone to the frontier, near Somotillo, to head off the Hondurian insurgents who have invaded Honduras. Manuel Bonilla has laid siege to Choluteca, and the Nicaraguan troops are massing at the north to lend assistance.

Bedford and Huntington, Pennsylvania, experienced shocks of earthquake sufficient to awaken sleepers, on the 24th ult.

Secretary Gresham has instructed Minister White at St. Petersburg to inform the Russian government that "assisted" immigrants will not be allowed to land in the United States.

Judge Caldwell, of the United States Circuit Court of Minnesota, has issued the following injunction against employees of the Northern Pacific Railroad: "The officers, agents, and employees . . . of the Northern Pacific Company, and the engineers, firemen, trainmen, train dispatchers, telegraph operators, conductors, switchmen, and all other employees of said railroad, and each and every one of you and all persons, associations, and combinations, voluntary and otherwise, whether employees . . . or not, and all persons generally, and each and every one of you in the penalty which may ensue, are hereby strictly charged and commanded that you desist and refrain from disabling or rendering in anywise unfit for convenient and immediate use any engines, cars, or other property of said Northern Pacific Company, and from interfering in any manner with the possession of locomotives, cars, or other property of the said receivers or in their custody, and from interfering in any manner, by force, threats, or otherwise, with men who desire to continue in the service of said receivers, and from interfering in any manner by force, threats, or otherwise with men employed by the said receivers to take the places of those who quit the service of said receivers, or from interfering with or obstructing in anywise the operation of the railroad, or from any interference with the telegraph lines; and from interfering with any and all property in the custody of the said receivers, whether belonging to the receivers or shippers or other owners, and from interfering, intimidation, or otherwise injuring or inconveniencing or delaying passengers, freight, and mails being transported or about to be transported over the said railroad until the further order of this court."

LONDON, Dec. 26.—The Times to-day contains one of its series of articles on the situation in Sweden and Norway. It says if the coming elections in Norway result in a large and militant Radical majority the Conservative ministry will be bound to retire. The King will find himself face to face with the necessity of accepting the Radical interpretation of the act of union, thereby surrendering the unity in the foreign policy, upon which the alliance of the kingdoms consists, or of enforcing the Swedish reading of the act. Against the determination of the Norwegian people Sweden, it appears, is prepared to use force. The King is confident of the support of the Swedes, and he will not surrender the Norwegian crown nor sacrifice the union, which he believes to be indispensable to the safety and prosperity of both Sweden and Norway. Opinion in Norway is in the meantime raised on only two issues—union and monarchy or separation and a republic. But among the contingencies acute observers detect a third course—the creation of a throne in Norway, with Prince Waldemar, youngest son of the King of Denmark, as King.

The order enforcing the full levy of men for the Italian army is not well received by the people. The government recognizes the need of maintaining the strength of the garrisons in upper Italy.

RIO JANEIRO, Dec. 26.—The government has established a new fort on Governor's Island, recently captured from the insurgents, and is daily increasing the cannon at other points. That Admiral de Gama, who commands the insurgents' vessels in the harbor, is in a critical position is admitted even by his friends. It is believed there will be a decisive struggle in the near future.

The United States government will have five war vessels at Rio Janeiro to protect American interests.

CAPE TOWN, Dec. 26.—A dispatch from Maj. Forbes, commanding the field forces of the British South African company, says the Matabele have been completely subjugated. King Lobengula has fled and apparently has no intention of returning.

Paris Anarchists threaten to destroy public buildings.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—According to mail advices from the Congo the tribes along the Upper Welle, under the command of the Sultan of Samio, have defeated the Soudanese Mahdists, driving them toward the Upper Nile. The Mahdists threaten the Bahr-el-Ghazel district.

A teacher at Raymond, Illinois, has been requiring all pupils to stand every morning and repeat the Lord's prayer with her. In obedience to instructions from Father Daugherty the Catholic children remained in their seats and refused to repeat the prayer. The teacher then appealed to the principal and the school board to compel the children to repeat the prayer, but they refused to sustain the teacher's action.

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 27.—Agent W. D. Hutchinson, representing the Russian Government and the Amoor Steamship Company states that the Russians will equip a fleet of steamers in connection with the Siberian Transcontinental Railway. It has purchased C. P. Huntington's Rio steamers and will build twenty more, besides some barges. The headquarters of the company are now in New York, but the chief officers will be located on the Pacific coast. The company will do a general freight and passenger business in connection with the railroad and the navigation of the Amoor River.

It is said that President Carnot, of France, will probably have little or no opposition in his candidacy for reelection.

JOHANNESBERG, South Africa, Dec. 27.—A conflict has occurred between the natives and the Europeans employed at the Witwatersrandt mine. Sticks and stones and assegais were used by the combatants, and 100 men were wounded, six of them seriously. The police dispersed the rioters.

The Berlin Tageblatt prints an article by Eugene Wolf, based on letters received from Uganda to July 15. He says that the Mohammedans have again been expelled from Uganda, and that he believes their power in that country is ended. He predicts, however, that a war between the Christians and Mohammedans is probable, and that Unyoro will be the scene, also that peace between the Protestants and Catholics is not likely to endure, as the Protestants have failed to carry out their share of the agreement and are demanding exclusive possession of the country.

Advices from Rio Janeiro and other Brazilian ports dated December 27, state that the Brazilian Government is endeavoring to arrange with the insurgents for regulations that will permit unrestricted commerce and prevent international complications from damage to merchandise or ships.

Peixoto's sailors abroad are not discharged. Admiral Mello is reported as losing ground.

San Salvador advices of the 27th ult., say that Honduras rebels have been defeated in battle.

The Central Relief Association of Chicago is dealing successfully with the problem of relieving the poor and unemployed. Charitable associations have been asked to cooperate, and relief stations have been established throughout the city, each of which is under the management and control of the committee. Begging from house to house is discouraged. Men are furnished tickets for food on condition that they labor on the public works. It is expected to so systematically deal with the trouble that all who will work will be helped while those who can and will not will be compelled to leave the city. Visiting workers are investigating the home conditions of poor families. Business men are raising the funds to sustain the effort. The object is to prevent suffering, encourage self-help, and prevent riot and trouble. The plan adopted is businesslike and gives satisfaction.

French and English marines lately destroyed villages and punished the cannibals of Pentecost Island for murdering American and French traders.

The Atchinson, Topeka, and Santa Fe Railroad is unable to meet the interest due on its bonded indebtedness, and has passed into the hands of a receiver.

ROME, Dec. 28.—The anti-tax agitation in Sicilian cities and villages continues to spread. At Travanusa, a town of 8,000 inhabitants, 400 men supposed to be members of the Fascio secret society, a revolutionary organization, attacked the villa of Prince Trabia, drove off the servants, and took possession of the building and grounds. Infantry has been sent from Caltanissetta to dislodge them and restore order in the neighborhood. The revolutionary movement has spread throughout the whole Province of Palermo. Socialists are exhorting the peasants to resent the action of the government in sending the military to put them down and to answer force with force.

Giuseppe de Felice, Socialist Deputy for Catania and founder of the Fascio, has arrived at Palermo, where he will take part in a Socialist congress of all Italy. This congress will meet January 1, and will sit three days. The chief subjects of the discussion will be the injustice of the tax system in Sicily and the general discrimination of the authorities against the poor. It is feared this congress will greatly accelerate the progress of the revolutionary movement. In several societies of the mainland the infection of the Sicilian unrest is beginning to be apparent. Naples is already threatened with street riots.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—A deputation of unemployed workmen waited upon Mr. Gladstone to-day and asked that the government provide work for the unemployed by building light railways in London. Mr. Gladstone said it would be difficult for the government to engage in work that was beyond its usual powers. There were parties that desired the government to become the owner of all the railways. To a certain extent he shared in this desire, but it was a complex question which could not be decided without mature consideration. For the present it was impossible to consider the question, but he promised to do so when the time was opportune.

The Rothschilds have conveyed their shares of the Borinage mines to the Belgian Societe Generale, which, it is supposed, aims to nationalize the mines.

Trouble exists between Albanians and Montenegrins.

MADRID Dec. 28.—General Campos has been appointed special envoy to the Sultan to arrange with him the terms of the settlement between Morocco and Spain. The bulk of the Spanish troops now at Melilla will leave camp forthwith, but will be massed at strategic points along the southern coast of Spain and the north coast of Africa, pending the final settlement. Two of the Riffian chiefs are in the custody of General Campos.

Bismark is ill again.

RIO JANEIRO, Dec. 26.—The insurgent cruiser Almirante Tamandare was worsted to-day in an engagement with the government forts at Nietheroy. The loss of the insurgent steamer Meteor is also confirmed.

are said to be strained because Pope Leo has complained of the persecution of Catholics in Poland.

Emperor William and his ministers have reached an understanding on financial problems.

THIS number closes the sixth volume of AUTUMN LEAVES. We issue our January, or holiday, number about the 20th of December and our patrons will save us both time, trouble, and expense by renewing before their names are dropped from our mailing list. Your name will be retained up to January 1, 1894, but no magazine will be sent until it is paid for, or until you have written us asking us to send it and promising payment. To the friends of the magazine we say, This plan is the better one, and even if it was not, we have been forced to adopt it or to discontinue the magazine.

Heretofore we have been giving our profits to those who did not care enough for the magazine to read it when it reached them; hence did not know when their time expired, and in many cases changed their post office, leaving it uncalled for. Every such number we have been paying for with the money sent us by our friends, and which should have gone to our account as profit. Now we propose to stop this arrangement and share our profits with the friends of our magazine. If we were sending to interested readers, we could afford it, but it is too high a price to pay for waste paper.

You have been wanting your magazines bound. Send us before January 1, 1894, $2 and the volume you wish bound, and we will return the volume to you bound in roan back and corners, cloth sides, sprinkled edges, and send you AUTUMN LEAVES for 1894.

Send us $2.20 and the volume you wish bound, and we will return your volume bound in imitation morocco back and corners, sprinkled edges, and send you AUTUMN LEAVES for 1894; or for $2.40 we will send it bound in morocco back and corners, sprinkled edges, and send you AUTUMN LEAVES for 1894. Should you prefer gilt edges, add 25 cents to above prices in each instance.

That none may misunderstand our offer we repeat. We will send you:—

AUTUMN LEAVES for 1894, and bind one volume in half roan for $2.

AUTUMN LEAVES and your volume bound in half morocco for $2.40.

In addition to this when you subscribe yourself and wish to send another volume to a friend, or one each to several friends, we will furnish them to you for that purpose for $1 per volume. This offer is only for our patrons and for the purpose of sending to those who are not subscribers.

When sending volumes of AUTUMN LEAVES for binding, always be sure that your name and address is on them plainly, and write to the Herald Office at the same time, saying you have sent them, otherwise they are in danger of being lost, as well as causing annoyance and loss of time to the Herald Office management.

Let us here repeat what we have before said, that we desire every one who wants the LEAVES to have them. If you want them and have not the money to send, write us to that effect and they will be sent to you.

NOTICE.

Upon more mature consideration and for valid reasons we deem it best to withdraw our offer of sending the Herald and AUTUMN LEAVES together for $3.00. Our patrons will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

THE RECORD OF 1893.

ON THE eve of a new year it is both pleasant and instructive to take a retrospect of the old year, to show what has been accomplished, whether the world has progressed or retrograded in certain directions—in short, to give a comprehensive record of the year's doings, which not only may be of interest to the general reader, but of profit to those who are specially or professionally interested in mundane movements. This The Tribune has done for its readers and its columns this morning attest the results, made up as carefully and accurately as the circumstances allow.

In what may be called the world's moral departments some of the statistics have a hopeful look, so far as this country is concerned. The number of murders and homicides of various kinds, amounting to 6,615, shows a slight falling off as compared with 1892, when there were 6,791, whereas for ten years previously they showed a steady increase. The record of suicides on the other hand is not so encouraging, as it numbers 4,436 as against 3,860 in 1892. For the last fifteen years indeed suicides in the United States have increased steadily and out of proportion to the increase of population. The enormous disproportion between males and females is shown by the fact that while 858 of the latter took their own lives there were 3,578 of the former, which opens up the question whether women are not braver than men in bearing the burdens of life. A curious feature of this record is the large number of physicians who have committed self-murder as compared with clergymen and lawyers. During 1893 no less than fifty-three physicians have shuffled off their mortal coils by their own hands, while the number of clergymen and lawyers combined is only fifteen, and the record of physicians increases each year. Perhaps some one in the profession may state the cause and suggest a remedy. As the outcome of murders and other crimes 126 persons have been executed legally, as against 107 in 1892, and 200 have been lynched, as against 236 in 1892. The increase in legal and the decrease in illegal hangings would indicate healthier conditions in the operations of justice, for it is the first time in fifteen years that the record of lynching has shown a decrease. The statistics, as usual, point to the South as the favorite locality of Judge Lynch and mob law. While 17 have been lynched in the Northern 183 have been lynched in the Southern States, and of these 183 no less than 154 were colored men. Notwithstanding these suggestive comparisons there is room for hope that respect for law is increasing and that the popular sentiment of the country, joined to the efforts of some of the Southern Governors in securing legislation and penalties against mob law, is beginning to have some influence. A peculiarly discouraging feature of the moral record is the huge aggregate of public and private stealings by fraud, forgery, embezzlement, and bank wrecking, amounting to nearly $20,000,000, as compared with $8,837,547 in 1892, and this only takes account of large sums. It is a black picture, but its gloom is offset by that other bright picture of public and private philanthropy and of earnest effort in behalf of religion, education, charity, and popular entertainment. While nearly $20,000,000 has been stolen, over $33,000,000 has been contributed, where each individual donation was $10,000 and upwards. In this great and good work Chicago has done more than its share, having contributed about one tenth of the total amount.

Disasters by sea and land have been frequent and in many cases have involved serious loss of life, but the general showing of 1893 is more favorable than that of 1892. Disasters in the Old World which were of importance enough to be telegraphed have occasioned the loss of 34,775 lives, mostly in China and Japan, where human life always is insecure. At home there have been 6,638 lives lost by miscellaneous accidents and 4,603 persons have been killed in railroad casualties which were unusually numerous during the last month of the World's Fair owing to the crowded condition of the roads. Those who go down to the sea in ships have been specially unfortunate. The ocean has been strewn with wrecks and over 6,000 sailors and passengers have been lost in its depths. The pestilence has added over 66,000 to the grim list, though its ravages have not been nearly as severe as in 1892, and in battle, though there have been no great wars, over 11,000 have perished. Conflagrations in this country have wiped out property to the value of over $188,000,000, a large increase over the losses of 1892. In reaching this estimate the Tribune has taken cognizance of every loss, however small, that has been received by mail, exchanges, or telegraph.

Death, as usual, has been busy in the ranks of the world's active workers. Among those who have passed away are Benjamin F. Butler, ex-President Hayes, Justice Lamar, the Rev. Phillips Brooks, James G. Blaine, Taine, the French historian; Emin Pasha, the explorer; Booth, Mrs. Kemble, and Murdock, actors; Hamilton Fish, Marshal MacMahon, Tyndall, the scientist; Eichberg, Dwight, Cusins, Gounod, Hellmesberger, Tschaikowsky, and Wachtel in the musical world; the artists Beard, Mueller, Casilear, Yvon, and Madox Brown; Dr. Norvin Green, Rufus Hatch, Allen Manvel, Leland Stanford, and A. J. Drexel in the business world; Lucy Larcom, De Maupassant, Jowett, William Smith, Dr. Schaff, and Francis Parkman in the literary field. Such is the record of 1893. What will 1894 bring forth?—Chicago Tribune.

INDECENT AND OUTRAGEOUS.

The many worthy men known as evangelists are often brought into discredit by the intemperate utterances of a few of their numbers. For instance, one of them named Munnhall in Chicago the other day denounced the World's Fair as a curse of God. And another in Baltimore declares that the killing of Mayor Harrison was a judgment inflicted on him by God to punish him for his course in politics. Such utterances are becoming altogether too common and they are doing much to bring about that alienation from the churches which Prof. Briggs so graphically describes. They are an outrage not only on Christianity but on common sense and decency.—New York Tribune.

Abstract of Evidence

TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

A limited edition of this timely work has been issued. Every elder and every one interested in advocating and defending the general and specific claims of the church should have a copy of the evidence it contains.

It is compiled from the sworn testimony of Plaintiff's and Defendants' witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickite faction for the title to and possession of the Temple Lot property at Independence, Missouri.

The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, is given; also their statements under cross-examination and re-cross-examination.

Evidences from the three standard books, from other publications of the original church, from those of the Reorganized Church, from the Hedrickite faction, and from the published works of the Utah Church, are presented.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

Price in advance, including arguments, $3.

1853 TO 1887.

In the House of Representatives of the United States, pending the discussion upon the bill admitting Utah to statehood, delegate Rawlins, of Utah, in his speech favoring the adoption of the bill, among other things said:—

The leaders of the Mormon people had for years said to them that this thing had been commanded by the Almighty, and that they would be protected if only they would conform to this tenet or doctrine of their faith. In spite of all the propagandism of polygamy that was brought to bear among the Mormon people from its establishment in 1853 down to the cessation of its teaching in 1887, it even having been urged that this practice was essential to the salvation of the members of the church, there was never but a small percentage of those people who practiced this doctrine, as is shown by official reports which have been made from time to time to the President or to the secretary of the interior.

Speaking of himself and his motive in representing Utah, and favoring her admission as a State he said:—

I say that the former applications for the admission of Utah into the Union have been largely made on the part of the Mormon people or the representatives of the Mormon people. I come not here as the representative of the Mormon Church or any other church. I come not here as an advocate of the practice of polygamy, for I believe it is vicious and ought to have been suppressed as it has been. But I do come here, I am proud to say, as the representative of the people of Utah, irrespective of religion, creed, or politics, and if there is any opposition in that Territory now to the admission of Utah into the Union I have been unable to discover it.

As it has been intimated by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Morse] that the present Delegate from Utah has some sinister motive in advocating the admission of Utah under the bill favorably reported by the committee, I would like to invite his attention to the fact that it is very cheap and easy to stand up and denounce a thing which all around you condemn, when you are in the popular current, when there is nobody opposed to what you say; but the highest evidence of sincerity is that when the current of popular sympathy is against you, you are outspoken in your convictions. I was born in the Territory of Utah; I have witnessed all the stages of its progress and development. And I did not wait until it became popular to say that polygamy ought to be discontinued and that the church ought to take its hand out of politics.

In 1885, at a public meeting in the theater in Salt Lake City, I said to the Mormon people themselves that polygamy must and should be given up, that it would be suppressed, and that they would save themselves much misfortune and suffering if they would acquiesce in the sentiment which so thoroughly prevailed in the nation that it would not be balked or thwarted. I said to these people then and there that the union of church and state in so far as it had existed must cease to exist. And in 1887, when I was invited to participate in the constitutional convention as the chairman of a Democratic club, I said that that club was in favor of the admission of Utah upon these conditions, that the sentiment of the people of the Territory should become predominant in favor of obedience to the law and the cessation of the practice of polygamy, and that the church cease its interference in political and civil matters. I stated that when I was convinced that this condition existed in the public sentiment of the Territory, I would gladly cooperate and do what I could to procure for the Territory admission into the Union.

Now, when those utterances were made they were made in sincerity. In 1885 many of those with whom I had been associated believed differently. I was subjected to some criticism. I recur to that occasion to make this allusion. When any gentleman intimates or hints to me that I have any covert purpose here in advocating the admission of the Territory of Utah in order that polygamy may be revived, I ask him to read the history on this subject. I will compare records with him or anyone.

Now, Mr. Chairman, in conclusion let me say that a change has taken place in Utah. How that change has been brought about may be interesting to gentlemen who are not familiar with its history. The making and the enforcement of the laws by Congress has had something to do with it. There is no question about that. But there has also been developing for many years past in the Territory of Utah a sentiment among the people who have been born and brought up there, which has had a great deal to do with this change. The eradication or discontinuance of polygamy is perhaps due first to external pressure, but still more largely to the efforts of people within the Mormon Church itself to bring about the reform of the organization in that respect.

It should be borne in mind that but a very small proportion of the Mormon people have ever practiced polygamy. Those who did not practice it saw the evil consequences which flowed from its practice, the unhappiness which it caused in families, and that it rendered the people of Utah obnoxious to the prevailing sentiment of the age. Its practice disturbed the tranquility, impeded the progress, retarded the growth, darkened the character, and destroyed the prosperity and happiness of the people.

Thousands of non-Mormons have come into Utah and made their homes there. Our schools are free; attendance is required; they are nonsectarian. Education has been freely disseminated. Under such conditions, polygamy having once been suppressed or extirpated, is not likely to be revived.

Mr. Van Voorhis of New York: I would like to ask the gentleman whether there has been any revelation on the subject of polygamy recently; or does the head of the Church claim there has been?

Mr. Rawlins: The Mormon people claim that their duty with reference to the practice of polygamy has been defined by a revelation. The present President of the Mormon Church on the 26th of September, 1890, issued a manifesto in which he forbade the Mormon people from contracting marriages in violation of law. At a great conference of the Mormon people, ten or fifteen thousand being present, embracing all the various organizations of the church, it was moved that this declaration of the President of the church be regarded by the church as authoritative and binding; and that motion was unanimously adopted by the vote of that great congregation.

The Elders of the Mormon Church got up and said that this came to the people with all the force of a revelation, and was binding upon them; and many of the Mormon people have testified in court when occasion has arisen, when such testimony would be relevant, that they regard that as a revelation from Almighty God; that they no longer believe polygamy and its practice to be right; and in effect it is not only discontinued as a practice, but so far as the great mass of the Mormon people is concerned, it is eradicated as a belief. But the people of Utah—I think I can speak for them on this question—mean, I believe, what they say. They are engaged in no scheme of fraud or treachery by which to deceive the nation. Having made this pledge and on this pledge asked this action by the American Congress, I think I can say for them that they will stand by it though the heavens fall.

What we have quoted above is taken from the speech of delegate J. L. Rawlins as the same was reported and published in the Deseret News for December 22. We call attention to a few points in the statements of Mr. Rawlins, which are strongly corroborative of the positions taken by the Reorganized Church, on the subjects named. First; Delegate Rawlins makes the date of the establishment of polygamy to be 1853, and its rule as a dogma to run until 1887. Second; That there was never but a small percentage of the people that practiced the dogma. Third; That he was born in Utah, is thoroughly acquainted with the territory, its people, and its history, having lived there all his life. Fourth; That he does not appear in congress as an advocate of polygamy, because he believes "it to be vicious and ought to have been suppressed, as it has been." Fifth; That the protestations of the Church and people of Utah in regard to the abandonment of the dogma and its practice are made in sincerity and that they, the people, mean what they say. Sixth; That a great and radical change has taken place in the sentiment in Utah in regard to polygamy. And in accounting for that change he enumerates two causes; one, outside pressure; the making and enforcing of the laws of Congress; the other, the growth and development of a sentiment against it among those born and brought up in Utah. Seventh; That the practice of plural marriage, polygamy, "disturbed the tranquility, impeded the progress, retarded the growth, darkened the character, and destroyed the prosperity and progress of the people."

On these several points Mr. Rawlins speaks as if from the book; but it reads queer as published in the Deseret News, under headlines of strong commendation, which the editor in his comment says were sincerely felt and deserved. Years ago when the Reorganized Church charged that the belief and practice of plural marriage were destructive of the peace and prosperity of the people, it was alleged by the defenders of Utah's religious policy, that we were laboring in darkness and ignorance: but the events happening in Utah and among the people there since 1885, when Mr. Rawlins began his career as a politician, seem now to justify our conclusions; and the testimony of such a public representative, made before one of the highest legislative assemblies in this world, carries weight with it, commensurate in its degree with the object had in view by him for making the statement, and the august body before which it was made.

We were in Utah in 1885 and spoke in the Opera House several times; in some of which addresses we suggested that the younger element on which the cares and burdens of the State would soon rest, had the power to control the minority and finally to compel the cessation of polygamy, and that in our judgment it was the duty of such younger element to do what was suggested.

Of course it is not likely that what we said had anything to do with shaping anybody's action politically in the territory, we being accounted as a foreigner and an enemy; but it is gratifying now to look back and see that similar thoughts as those suggested to us from a consideration of the situation were made to others as well, and in them have borne legitimate results.

The question of Mr. Van Voorhis, whether there had been any revelation received upon which the abrogation of polygamy had been determined, is a characteristic one. In 1882, parties appeared before Congress and upon examination before proper committee claimed that the people of Utah practiced polygamy by reason of a revelation from God to them enjoining it; and now when Mr. Rawlins states that the same people had ceased the practice the question rises pertinently; if instituted by revelation, has it been abandoned for the same reason. Mr. Rawlins answered, Yes; that the present head of the church, Wilford Woodruff, so declared, and the declaration was accepted by the people; therefore, as sacredly as they had adhered to it before, so were they now bound to refrain from it. So it rests. Utah becomes a State; with the pledges of the people, Gentile and Mormon, that the dogma and practice of polygamy, so long the cause of contention, is eliminated forever from the faith of the church and the constitution and laws of the State.

I KNOW!

IN nothing, perhaps, is the contrast between Saints and others more conspicuous to the outward observer than the manner and character of their testimony in social assemblies. The frequent and confident use of words which indicate an absence of doubt regarding the doctrine accepted, sometimes impresses the listener unfavorably at first and he is disposed to ascribe it to fanaticism or bigotry. Upon mature reflection, however, he is led to ask whether or not the fulfillment of Christ's promise made in John 7:17 would not make all the favored ones fanatical or bigoted in the same sense, and after weighing the reasons assigned by those testifying, he inwardly confesses that the contrast between them and those of other faiths is decidedly in favor of the Saints. If they do not know, after obedience to the primitive doctrine, how can Christ be relied on further? If they do know, why should they not testify? This kind of reasoning within the mind of an honest hearer is invariably followed by a desire to share in the knowledge referred to, and to such a one the gospel story is good news indeed, by whomsoever told. Pride of name, position, and other forces may combine to outweigh the conviction of duty that follows, and may delay or prevent obedience, but the case is settled as to where that duty lies. The theory is indisputable, and now a determination is born to watch the development of that theory as it finds expression in the lives of those to whom such unquestionable assurance has come.

Surely those who know their faith and church to be God's direct creation will voice that certainty by an investment of interest, whether material or moral, without hesitancy or question. Surely no man, thus convinced, will consider any contribution extravagant or any effort wasted, that gives support to such a system. Others may give, or toil, or endure, in limited ways, to build up what they hope will be approved of God, and their hesitancy in moving beyond those limits may be excused because they lack that element of absolute certainty which is here announced. They experiment on the basis of popular assent and figure on recompense if the institution they support shall be favorably regarded of Christ in the crowning day; but these have received from heaven direct the information that annihilates doubt and leaves no ground for fear. Happy people! They may invest safely and count with certainty on returns in the shape of "treasure in heaven." An entire life, a social position, an immense fortune, may all be sacrificed at this shrine, for they know! Let us note carefully the voicing of this absolute certainty in the contribution of wealth and talent and compare it with the things without, where uncertainty prevails.

Not only does the observer from without thus soliloquize; but as we sit and listen we are carried forth in thought and some questions intrude themselves upon us persistently as we hear the oft repeated words, "I know this is God's work." Perhaps the reader has not indulged such thoughts and does not care to, but we submit a few of them at the risk of having them footballed:—

Is the acquisition of knowledge concerning the divinity of the doctrine to be the limit of our ambition, or is that knowledge designed to be the basis upon which we shall invest, without fear, all our moral and material interest for the advancement of the truth of which it gives us assurance? Will the possession of that knowledge by us stand to our credit at last or will it stand to the credit of him who furnished it? Will we be rewarded then for the credit belonging to God or our own? Will the question asked in the accounting day be, "How much did you know?" or will it be, "How much better was the world made because of what you knew?"

Undoubtedly the Son of Man had knowledge that the work he entered upon was of God, and that certainty helped make toil and sacrifice for others a delight. There was no limit to his investment—all he possessed was tendered as a cheerful contribution toward the accomplishment of the work he entered upon, and lastly, life itself was yielded. In the course of his ministry he invited others to share his burden, and his baptism of suffering; but to all the obedient ones he offered an assurance which he considered was sufficient: "He shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God." It is a fair presumption that like assurance will inspire like confidence and service in all good men. It was intended that all should know that the doctrine for the advancement of which they were called to labor and endure, was of God, and it was not unreasonable to expect that once that knowledge was imparted, it would inspire men to imitate Christ in the consecration of all things at their command for its promulgation.

Latter-day Israel delights to bear testimony of knowledge in contrast with belief and speculation in others. How much better will this world be made by that knowledge, unless it leads to freer consecration of our means to the extension of the truth than a mere belief would inspire? If we know—absolutely lutely know—can there be any risk taken in any investment we may make? Is a tenth of our means a venture? Is a donation of our "surplus" an experiment? Is consecration a lottery? Is our talent, time, moral prestige—our life itself—an extravagant contribution? Do we really know that we are yokefellows with Jesus the Christ, that we are not our own, but are bought with a price—the precious blood of the only begotten Son of God? Do we remember that love does not wait to know how much is exacted by written law, but moved by that law which is graven in the heart gives all it is able?

Of him to whom much is given, much will be required. This is admitted in our common reasoning; but too often we confine its application to the question of money. Why should not the man to whom the most knowledge is given, be expected to do more than the one who labors by faith alone? If we compare our positive and undoubted evidence of our work, with the doubtful and irregular impressions of others who have had no communication from heaven, we find cause for glorying, but to whom does the glory belong, and how do we ascribe it? If the men of other faiths do equally well with less evidence than we possess, wherein does our Father in heaven receive more honor from us because of the knowledge of which we boast? Will the very blessings of which we speak so decidedly and confidently prove a partial cause for condemnation hereafter?

It may be well to remember that it is not so much what a man gets as what he uses properly, that brings credit to him. The money hoarded in banks by a millionaire may be a source of gratification to him in a carnal way; but what comfort is there for the starving thousands to-day in the thought that somebody has wealth locked up in vaults. The necessities of suffering ones suggest a way by which that wealth may be made a means of good to the world and of honor to the possessor. It is the use and not the ownership of capital that brings credit. And this is not only true of money in the hands of those without the fold; but of capital—wealth within—wealth of knowledge—moral prestige, influence, position, or whatever else may be at our command as so much capital ready for investment. The man to whom a treasure of knowledge concerning this work has been committed is under divine obligation to invest that treasure, as much as the man who has money beyond his household needs. Nor is that obligation discharged by rising in prayer meeting to say, "I know this work is of God." There are neighborhoods and homes where our personal influence may be brought to bear, though no elder would be received there as a preacher for the present. How many of us are silent in such places upon the gospel theme, while communicative on everything else. Are we nursing our knowledge and hiding it lest it escape, or are we investing it in hope of returns that will honor him who gave it? How many of us are afraid that our social standing or society position will be affected by a testimony for Christ and the restored gospel, hence have little to say about it except when among Saints?

We expect the brother who is wealthier in money to-day than he was a few years ago to give more now than he did then. If he fail to do so, we would not be surprised to hear him say that he did not enjoy his religion as well as he once did. If he should ask us for a reason, we would tell him that God expected more of him now than before, in proportion to his increase; that he must not expect as much of the blessed Spirit now as a reward for giving five dollars as for the same amount before. When he could give no more, God did not withhold because of the smallness of his offering, because it was the best he was able to do. God will bless us in like manner to-day if we do our best—but our best ten years ago and our best to-day are not alike in the amount contributed.

Will not this argument apply with equal force to capital other than money. If with the limited knowledge and influence we possessed shortly after entering the church, we did all we could, and were blessed abundantly, was not that abundant blessing an increase of our capital, and if so do we not know more to-day than we then did? Are we investing as much of our capital in proportion now as we did then? What of the increase? May not more of sacrifice, toil, and endurance be lawfully expected of us now than before? Are we doing our best if we fail to meet that expectation? If not is that not reason enough why we do not enjoy ourselves as well as when we did our best? If we have more knowledge, understanding, influence, ability, and hold better position in consequence, do we take any more risk in investing the increase than in volunteering the little we started with? While the books on high have been piling up entries of credit to God for the increase of knowledge of which we testify, have the credit entries on our private account been equal, because of the faithful employment of the increase as it came?

The exhortation of the Spirit to "come up higher," implies that we shall rise with the increasing privileges and ability, above the level of our former limited estate, that God may be more fully reflected in our enlarged condition than before. It is the reflection of God in us that gains the conquest. All that we own or control is a part of us in the sense of obligation and every element therein, whether of moral or material character, can be made to represent the image we carry in our hearts. With disinterested love in our hearts, absolute knowledge of truth in our minds, and Christ as an acknowledged character model before us, we become an invincible army, and every item of experience or knowledge added makes the conquest more certain and speedy if it be but consecrated forthwith to the end for which we have enlisted.

With every increase of knowledge of Christ, there should be a proportionate elimination of self. With every receipt of divine love there should be a corresponding loss of love for pleasures of the world. With every inlet of the Spirit there should be an increase of power, wisdom, peace, and truth, and a corresponding outlet of folly, strife, and wrong. These changes give full and free course to the entering graces and in due time the new occupants direct the life and we witness the improvement in deeds of charity and services of love, in visiting and ministering to the sick and needy, in purer tone of conversation, in an absence of bickering, enmity, fault-finding, in holy activity everywhere, in a replenished treasury, all of which evidence a proper use of our increase in righteousness. All these are indications of growth in grace, and all tend to the culmination desired, when the beauty of Zion shall woo the Savior back to earth to abide with the pure in heart.

If the testimony of our lips agrees with that of our life service and both bear evidence of an intimate acquaintance with Christ, then it may be truthfully said that to know God is life eternal to us. Otherwise knowledge may be possessed to our shame and discredit. Others with less divine favor may show a better record as the product of their belief. Let us, therefore, seek to know of the truth of the work, then act so that heaven and earth, as witnesses, may agree that our lives are hid with Christ in God. We would not have Saints receive less of knowledge, but would rejoice in the consecration of their increased measure that fruit in proportion might abound unto life eternal.

THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT.

The Independent Patriot, of Lamoni, in its issue for January 4 devotes its second page to a description of Lamoni and a statement of its trade, population, business houses, wants, general prospects, together with prices of lots and farms, its schools, prospects for a college, etc.

The description and growth of our young city as given in the article are reliable, and presented in compact, readable form. Those interested in the new city of the Saints can rely upon the statements and data furnished as conservative and trustworthy.

The Independent Patriot is a high class family and general newspaper, and as such we commend it to our people as worthy of their patronage and support. It is a newspaper that can be freely circulated in any family because its policy is to properly educate and elevate its readers. It is ably conducted, and is nonpartisan in tone politically and religiously. It advocates broad views and correct principles.

The Patriot differs widely from the general weekly newspaper. Its policy is liberal; its treatments of social, political, and general questions are intelligent and conscientious; its moral tone is first class.

In his conduct of the Independent Patriot Bro. D. F. Lambert is doing a good work and in a sphere where such work is greatly needed. We bespeak for the Patriot the patronage usually accorded the ordinary newspaper. Its subscription price is one dollar per year. Address the publishers, Lambert Brothers, Lamoni, Iowa.

QUERIES AND REPLIES.

IS THE president of a branch a transgressor of any law of the church because he calls the brethren holding the priesthood together, and suggests to them that they go two and two, including himself, and visit the Saints of the branch and give them a word of encouragement, and teach them their duty as saints of God, and the brethren all agree to go and do so, and afterward report being blessed in so doing; those brethren holding the office of elders, priests, teachers, and deacons?

No; none that we are acquainted with.

Has a deacon a right to preach and invite men and women to come to Christ?

The seventeenth section of Doctrine and Covenants says that the deacon's duty is "to warn, expound, exhort, and teach, and invite all to come to Christ." (D. C. sec. 17, par. 11.)

Is it the duty of the teacher to visit the houses of the members of the branch? If not, how is he to find out whether there is iniquity or hardness with each other, or lying, or backbiting, or evil speaking? And how can he see that all the members do their duty and see that the church meet together often if he does not visit the houses of the members of the branch?

The teacher is not a visiting officer made so by the law. There are plenty of ways and methods by which he can do what his duty in the law requires him to do, without visiting from house to house hunting for gossip, backbiting, lying, scandal, and as a consequence, hardness with each other. If the teacher is a visiting officer by the law so is the deacon, as the law says the teacher is to be assisted by the deacon in all his duties if occasion requires. The teacher may visit the house of a member, or the houses of the members in the pursuit of his calling, and discharge his duty if he chooses, or finds it necessary; or he may be requested to act as a visiting officer by the branch, and may consent so to act.

MYSTERIES OF LIFE.

THE mysteries of vegetable life are not all yet explored. An Indian botanist has made experiments which induce him to say that some plants can see. Whether the inference can be accepted or not, these experiments go to show that the plants made an effort to reach supports placed at a little distance, and grew towards the supports, wherever placed. The plant was convolvulus, and when a long pole was placed near it, and in such a way that the tendrils would have to turn away from the light to reach it, they invariably did so, and within a few hours twined about it. That certain plants have the sense of touch is well known.—Medical Times, New York.

It was Thomas A. Edison who expressed the belief that all nature—inanimate, so called, as well as animate—was permeated by or endowed with a life principle; that in the course of his investigations and experiments as a practical physicist and general scientist that conclusion had been forced upon him. This, with the above clipping, is in striking harmony with the statements of Genesis concerning the creation; that God had created both plant and animal life spiritually before placing it in the present state.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

L. A. HILL, Stafford, Kansas, December 24:—

You will please put this notice in the Herald, as Bro. Brown, of Leon, Iowa, was the first to offer his services to come to Kansas to preach and open a new field. I have received several communications from elders in the Latter Day Saints church in regard to the offer I made. Will say, am very thankful to those offering their service in the cause of Christ.

Bro. J. L. Boyd, Grouse Creek, Box Elder county, Utah, December 25:—

I love this latter-day work. I hope the people here will have a chance to hear the truth. They are an honest-hearted people of the Utah faith.

Bro. I. N. Roberts wrote from St. Peter, Minnesota, the 29th ult.:—

I am here holding meetings every night. But few come to hear, but the few are interested. Much sickness prevails; la grippe is the disease. Three deaths have occurred here this week; more are very low.

Bro. I. N. Roberts, St. Peter, Minnesota, January 3:—

I am sick, but am preaching every night. La grippe is the trouble. Five deaths here in ten days; others are quite sick.

RULED BY SCOTLAND.

The British Empire at the present moment may be said to be practically ruled by Scotland, and Lord Rosebery remark to the effect that wherever the world over there was a good thing there would be "a Scotchman sitting by it," is borne out by the appointment of a Scotch peer to the post of Viceroy of India, the most lucrative office in the gift of the crown. There are no less than six Scotchmen in the Cabinet, and every one of the Australasian colonies is at the present moment under the rule of a Scottish Governor, among the most conspicuous being the Earl of Kin'ore, the Earl of Hopetown, and Sir Robert Duff, while the Governor-General of Canada, the Earl of Aberdeen, is likewise a Scot.

What shall I do to be forever known?
Thy duty ever.
This did full many, who yet slept unknown.
Oh! never, never!
Thinkest thou, perchance, that they remain unknown
Whom thou know'st not?
By angel trumpets in heaven their place is blown,— Divine their lot!
What shall I do to gain eternal life?
Discharge aright
The simple dues with which each day is rife,

OUR DUTY.

DEAR reader, if you had been looking over our shoulder a short time since, you might have read: "Dear Sister Walker:—I have something unpleasant to communicate and wish to get it off my mind before the old year dies. I am not going to find fault with anyone. Everyone must answer for themselves and no doubt have a right to their opinions, but I must confess that I felt mortified when some weeks ago I broached the subject of the Daughters of Zion to the sisters of a neighboring branch and was met in such a way as to fully convince me that the worst foe the organization will have to meet, his Satanic majesty excepted, is ignorance."

If we had seen you peeping over our shoulder just here, we would have closed the letter lest by some chance the name of the writer might become known and so the wrath of some have been kindled against her. We may say to you, however, that she is a modest, unassuming woman. A true daughter of Zion and withal so timid and retiring that nothing but a sense of duty would ever have impelled her to approach the subject, and when she was met with indifference by some, with ridicule by others, and with but two or three expressing the slightest interest in the matter, you may perhaps imagine her feelings.

And now the question comes to us, Ought she, ought we, to be discouraged?

Let us answer, It is not they who do their duty, that should feel discouraged. There were more in that room at the time of this occurrence than the sisters of the branch. The angels of God were there, as well as the powers of evil, and how they must have felt to hear the laugh of ridicule raised by mothers who should have esteemed it their highest, holiest privilege to seek to shield their little ones from the evil influences by which they are surrounded in this world!

Sister, be not discouraged, neither let the hot teardrops of mortification wet your cheeks, but thank God that you had the courage to do your duty, even while feeling your own weakness, and if they reject the good you would have done them, the loss is theirs, the gain is yours.

"And now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers," was said by one of old, and from the morning of creation to the present time history repeats itself. There is not a worse foe to the cause of truth and humanity than ignorance; hence the Saints have been exhorted by the Spirit to "come up higher." Let us climb to a plane where God may meet with us, for his glory is intelligence. Let the timid ones take heart and let those who feel the needs of this work stand at their post, for the battle is on and there will be no compromise with the foe.

CODY, NEBRASKA.

Dear Sisters:—How eagerly I read all your writings on the home and the training of our children, for it has always been my greatest desire to have my children grow up to be God-fearing men and women and to love right and truth. I feel that I am not equal to the task of instructing them aright without help from those of riper experience, and also from above. I sent for Silver Thimbles, but it does not quite meet the wants of the little ones that are not old enough to comprehend so long a story. Cannot some sister tell me where to find a selection of short Bible stories such as the little ones, from three to seven years of age, love to have repeated to them at bedtime? I am not good at telling stories, consequently would gladly avail myself of a work illustrative of the truths contained in the Bible, yet clothed in language suitable to the understanding of the little ones. I am the mother of a large family and realize it to be a field for missionary work, indeed, to train them for the Master's kingdom. When I read of the sisters being organized into a society called the Daughters of Zion, I very much regret that circumstances prevent me from joining this organization, for it would be a great comfort and help to me to be able to meet with the sisters, and in exchange for what little good I might be able to do, receive the benefit of their experience and instructions.

We have been so long away from the Saints that sometimes my soul cries out in anguish for the associations of those of like experiences, and were it not for the blessed privilege I have of reading the Herald and Autumn Leaves I would feel like giving up;

but when I read your comforting letters, knowing there are a great many in the same circumstances as myself, I take courage and press on, hoping that if I am never permitted to associate with the Saints in this world I may so live that I may have that privilege in the "sweet by and by."

Yours in the hope of eternal life,

SISTER SARAH.

[DEAR SISTER:—Is it not possible for you to order one of the books we are reading and either to read it by yourself or interest some of your neighbors and friends to read it with you? It is just what its name implies "Hints" on this most important subject of "Child-Training," but you will find it (if we mistake not) one of the best helps you ever found. Don't hesitate a moment to strive to interest others, because they are not of our faith. This work is for all who love their fellow man and desire to save the children from the evils which are in the world. Will some of the sisters please notice and answer through the Column the question asked about Bible Stories. "The Story of the Bible" is an excellent work for older children.—Ed.]

Dear Sisters:—I congratulate you on the good you are receiving by reading the column especially devoted to the sisters. I am sure it has made a great advance since last General Conference and we know not what it will be only that as its authors strive to follow Christ in doing good, they will grow more like him and their teaching approximate more and more to his.

Do not be discouraged because all the sisters do not approve of the mothers' society. All they want is careful and persistent teaching, and that work is yours and mine. Let us be up and doing, sowing the good seed with a liberal hand lest the enemy occupy the ground before us and we have a war to wage to get possession of the soil. There is not one of you, it seems to me, but what knows some Saint will need the teaching the society can give and many an innocent life hangs in the balance, waiting for your hands to clear the way that it may come here and have the experience of probation. Oh! my heart is sore to think the world is full of ignorant mothers who work not in the perishable material of earth, but in the durable one, of heaven! Let us strive to encourage all the sisters to read. This to me seems the first step. When I see a sister piecing a crazy quilt, embroidering every seam and yet she insists that she has not time to read the Herald, I think to myself, It is well called "crazy" work, for would sane people spend their time that way? Let us lay aside some of this work that so easily tempts us, and let our garments be plain and our bedding also.

Try to induce all to read the church publications and all the other good books and papers they can find time for. Try to save a little time by having a very few kinds of food at each meal. Have a good variety in the course of the week, but only a few kinds at once. Serve the fruit fresh or cooked as sauce and leave constant pie baking to those who find nothing better to do. It is said we are a nation of pie eaters, and we are also a nation of dyspeptics.

In villages could not those busy sisters who nearly starve spiritually and intellectually get together with mending or sewing and let one read the Herald aloud? Study some way to help not only yourself but your neighbors.

Did you ever read that little poem, the refrain of which was, "Do something for somebody quick"? Well, it's the best way to cure your own trials and sorrows that I know of.

You remember in the description of the judgment it is said, "I was hungry and ye fed me not, naked and ye clothed me not, sick and in prison and ye visited me not." Not one word about what you believed. While believing right, goes before doing right, the doing must follow the believing or the believing will be of no worth. Faith without works is dead. Earnest, faithful, persistent work is what will bless our children and those about us.

I am interested in the children of all the Saints, but particularly those of the missionaries, and I pray that their mothers may be endowed with special wisdom that they may fill a father's as well as a mother's place to them. I want to see them grow up noble men and women who will be able to more than fill the places left vacant when their parents shall have passed on to their reward.

One thing that greatly hinders the progress of the mothers' society is the aversion of women to meeting together to consider matters. Go around to try to organize a prayer union or a mothers' society, and everywhere you are met by the objection of, "Want of time to attend what meetings are already held by the branch." May it not be possible you are doing some unnecessary work? Carefully consider the matter and try to gain a little time. Remember it is better to starve bodily than spiritually.

And now I must draw to a close lest I take too much room. Whenever you feel like speaking a word in the Column don't fail to do so. I have always felt as if I could not put my own name to my poor little letter and so when I have come I have signed it "A Sister;" but now I am too much in earnest to stand on personal preference.

Love to you all,

LIDA HULSE CAMPBELL.

MONDAMIN, Iowa.

Dear Sisters:—I have felt for some time that I would like to write you of my thanks for the good you bring. I am one of the lonely ones who have not the privilege of meeting with the Saints very often, but I have been cheered from time to time, however, by the presence of the Holy Spirit which helps me to feel how utterly dependent we mortals are. A dear little sister said to me once, "I have been thankful so many times that I ever met you." When first we met she was not a member of the church. I could not think of much I had done, only to read a little of the Bible with her and answer a few questions in my clumsy way; but if that little was a help to her, may we not keep doing the little things, which, when they are all gathered together, will make one grand whole that will weigh in our favor at the day of reckoning?

We belong to the Little Sioux branch, and can go to church once in awhile on the train. There have been ten precious souls born into the kingdom there in the past few weeks among whom is Dr. Miller. Bro. J. W. Wight in far away Australia will remember a lonely little party that went with him from this place a few miles distant, to baptize the Doctor's wife some six years ago. I presume he will also remember that he told me that the Doctor would come too, after awhile. My heart rejoices in this work, and I feel very thankful for all God's mercies to me. I hope that I may be able to do good, keep the faith, and endure to the end.

Your sister in Christ,

C. A. STUART.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SISTER C. WEST writes from Turkey, Ohio, wishing to bear her testimony to the truth of this work and thanking God that he ever brought her to a knowledge of the same. She enters a strong plea for the Saints to put forth every effort for the spread of the gospel and asks them to remember how glad they were when it was preached to them, and when they remember this to bring in their tithes and offerings that it may be sent to others.

Sr. Hannah Gilbert writes from Riverside, California, that she feels she must bear her testimony to the good she is obtaining from the Home Column, and would like to take each one by the hand and thank them for their untiring efforts, and adds, "I do thank our Father for the gracious words he gives to his servants who have left home and families that they may preach this gospel. I pray God to bless them that they may bring many into the kingdom that they may know the peace and joy the Spirit brings." She mourns the loss of a dear grandson who had recently removed to California, but her trust is in God. She speaks of his dear hands which once trained the roses and vines as,—

Thy hand is very cold, Bertie,

It answers not our clasp;

Full many a schoolmate long will miss,

Its free and friendly grasp.

Be comforted, Sr. Hannah, for you mourn not as those without hope.

THE FREETHINKER.

This is the way the Presbyterian, Philadelphia, describes the man who claims entire freedom in regard to religion:—

"The Freethinker is a mere negationist. His liberality consists in denying the religion of his fellow men. He regards all as superstitious but himself. They are tied down to creeds; he can think as he pleases; and that goes no further than to repudiate Christianity and to take up Agnosticism or infidelity, all of which are the religion of negation in some form or other. In all this there is nothing to be proud of. It requires no special genius, no great talent, no unusual discernment, no remarkable power to merely deny this and that. . . . Those who prate most about their independence of priestcraft and creeds are the veriest slaves—slaves to their own opinions. They are also the most illiberal of men, for they recognize none free to think and act religiously but themselves."

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 23.

Editors Herald:—My last communication to your columns was written from Birmingham. From there I went to Stafford, followed in a few days by Bro. Thomas Taylor. During my sojourn there I preached six sermons to fair-sized and interested audiences, the results of which, of course, I am unable to predict; but hope that some good was effected. I was kindly received by the brethren there, and was domiciled at the house of Bro. and Sr. J. Dicke, whose kindness will not readily be forgotten. Elder George Greenwood is president of this branch; his Brother Joseph is of great assistance to the work of the church there. Our next stop was at Manchester. The work, I am glad to say, is making considerable progress of late owing to the faithful labors of the local elders in that city. Especially would I mention Brn. Joseph Dewsnup, Sr., and Elder Greenwood, president and vice president respectively, James Baty, president of the branch, Mather Armstrong, Jr., Bruton, and others; also many of the priests are actively engaged in rendering assistance to their superior officers. In the week preceding our arrival in the city, twelve were baptized by Bro. Joseph Dewsnup, Sr., and on the night of Thursday the 16th inst., I immersed six, the fruits of other men's labors.

On the 10th, Bro. Taylor and myself paid a visit to Wigan branch and remained with them over the Sabbath. In the meantime we preached four sermons between us. We truly experienced a good and profitable time. Bro. Spargo, his son, and grandsons having formed an orchestra, rendered some delightful music. The brother is carrying out the divine injunction regarding the "instruments of music of the reed and of the string" named in the revelation of 1887, and is worthy of every encouragement. He intends being present at the forthcoming Manchester conference, and will render valued and useful musical aid. Sr. Spargo, with whom we made our temporary home, spared no pains to make our visit enjoyable. If there was any fault to find with this good sister it was that she insisted upon our overburdening the digestive organs. On the morning of the 18th inst. I arrived in this city (London), and on the Sabbath met with the Saints in their place of worship. I came on a cheap excursion ticket with the intention of returning on Monday, but the Saints insisted upon my remaining another week at least. On Monday evening last I baptized Sr. Matilda Hewlatt, a fine and promising young woman who has been in almost constant attendance upon the meetings in London for a year past.

The branch is in fair condition, with ample room for improvement. I must confess that the branch has made considerable growth in spirituality within the last year; and it is to be hoped that every member will strive earnestly to do his duty before the Lord.

I find from experience I have had during the last sixteen years in the ministry that one of the greatest evils we have to encounter, and which seems to retard greatly the growth and spirituality of the Saints, is the weakness that many have of finding fault with and depreciating their brethren. Some persons never seem to be happy but when pointing out the deficiencies of their brethren, forgetting that they themselves have shortcomings which are as equally apparent to others as their brethren's faults are to them. Of course oftentimes there are discrepancies in those who are supposed and expected to be examples to the flock, but these are to be borne with patience until the law governing such cases has had its course. No one is justified in making threats that if this or that thing is not done they will forthwith leave the church, etc. The Apostle Peter, writing with regard to Christ, informs us that "when he suffered, he threatened not, but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously."

The question is, Are we engaged in the work of the Lord? and have we received testimony of its being his work? If so, it is both our duty and interest to hold on tenaciously to the iron rod. The writer himself has been tried to the quick, and has often felt discouraged at heart while under a heavy cloud of despair and gloom, and he has naturally looked around for a gap to get out from the environment of duty and responsibility; but in such seasons the question invariably arises, Where, and to whom shall I go for peace, light, and liberty? And sweetly comes the gracious and divine answer, Thou, O Christ, "art the way, the truth, and the life." My testimony is that whenever I have felt that I was forsaken by both the Lord and earthly friends, and have gone to him in true humbleness, frankly confessing my weakness, and acknowledging my entire dependence upon him, that he has always come to my rescue by lifting the dark cloud both from mind and brow, and has given me the sweet assurance of his Spirit that my dependence upon him has not been in vain, and that he will ever prove my eternal refuge inasmuch as I continue to do his righteous will.

The following verse is expressive of a grand truth, and conveys a germ of heavenly comfort to our tried and stricken souls:—

God is the refuge of his saints,
When storms of deep distress invade;
Ere we can offer our complaints,
Behold him present with his aid.

Beloved brethren, let us press forward with faithful diligence toward the prize that is held forth to those that have come up "through great tribulation." May God bless his striving and struggling people, and the efforts and labors of his ministry; that Zion may be redeemed and the church be gloriously triumphant, and that to the honor and glory of him who dwells in the highest.

I am pleased to be able to announce that the great and disastrous coal miners' strike has come to an end; but not before it has inflicted untold distress on thousands of the suffering poor and destitute, of men, women, and children. Of course, much time must elapse before the dire effects of this calamitous movement have passed away.

We expect a large representation of elders at our European conference to be held at Manchester, December 23-25. The reason of our convening the conference at this time is that owing to the greatly increased facilities for travel at a reduced expense it is much more advantageous than upon other and ordinary occasions, and the fact of its being a time of general holiday. My health remains good; and for this country especially at this time of the year, the weather is remarkably fine.

Bro. Evans writes that all is well in Wales. Bro. Sorensen writes from Denmark that he is sick. Will the Saints please remember him in their prayers.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I bring my lengthy epistle to a close. Yours for eternal life,

GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

PILOT OAK, Ky., Dec. 5.

Editors Herald:—I have been sick, but the Lord has raised me up. I am thankful for it. I was able to drive twelve miles to the Christian church to enter a discussion with a Mr. Cabe of their faith, each one to affirm his church as being the true Church of Christ, but when I got there he failed to put in an appearance, so I suppose I was not the one he was looking for. I hardly thought he would meet me, for this reason: About two months ago he had a meeting where I had been preaching, and being encouraged so by his brethren as to his ability he decided to send for me and challenged the church for a debate. When I got there I found a large congregation, so I informed him that I was willing to compare churches with him. He said if his brethren would indorse him he was ready. This was done readily by his brethren, they also informed him that I was an honorable, upright gentleman and worthy of his respect, so the propositions were signed by us. I then opened the meeting for him, when he arose he said, "I will attack the Latter Day Saints to-night as they have a man here to defend them, and I shall expect him to reply and score me just as hard as he can, for I intend to give it to him." He read the twelfth chapter of First Corinthians, and gave us to understand that the spiritual gifts there spoken of were under the Mosaic law; he also told us that there was no church until the day of Pentecost, for as the man was the head of the wife so was Christ the head of the church; and as there was no Christ until then, there could not be a church. He made many other blunders which I will not mention. When it came my turn the tide turned the other way to the satisfaction of the Saints and friends, and I think some of his folks as well; his brethren had to call him to order.

Well, I have been trying to teach the Saints that we could not afford to live on bread alone, but by every word of God. This district has never done much in tithes and offerings, but seems to think that it ought to have two or three elders from the north sent here; but its membership does not stop to consider that it takes money to bring them here. Some seem to think they will hide behind some elders and say they don't pay tithes; but, brethren, let us not do this any longer, for we cannot hide behind them in the day of judgment. If those that do not pay tithing will reign in the celestial kingdom of God, pray tell what will those that keep that law gain by so doing? I understand that those that abide a celestial glory will have to abide a celestial law.

The chance was never better here for preaching the word than now. There have not been many baptized here this year. It may be that we elders have not done our duty. Brethren, let us lay aside tobacco and horse trading and seek to build up the kingdom of God. Let us all strive to come up higher, in my prayer in Jesus' name. Amen.

C. L. SNOW.

WELLINGTON, Utah, Dec. 19.

Editors Herald:—I arrived here on the 3d inst. Bro. Fausett took me to the settlements south in this (Castle) Valley. We called on Bishop Johnson at Huntington and had a pleasant chat. He is a brother to our Bro. Johnson at Burlington, Iowa. I asked him for the privilege of preaching in the meeting-house, to which he consented, but said the house was occupied every evening and on Sunday, so that gave us no chance.

At Orangeville I was permitted to preach twice in the meetinghouse to good and attentive audiences, and while there was the guest of Bro. and Sr. Jewks, the latter having been a member of the Reorganization for many years. Bro. Jewks has not united with us, but treated me with much kindness and respect. A Mr. Curtis undertook to reply to me last Sunday night. He is a fluent speaker, and succeeded in making the work of the Reorganization appear insignificant and without foundation, to the uninformed, while the work of Brigham Young and his associates was lauded to the skies; but in his effort he shamefully misrepresented facts and wrested the Scriptures to suit his purpose. He made use of various yarns that have been spun to injure the work. For instance, he said that years ago when George A. Smith visited the President of the Reorganized Church the latter had said that there was more money in being the leader of the church than in practicing law, and that was the reason he assumed the position. I obtained permission to make a few remarks, but as soon as I got fairly started in correcting the misrepresentations I was stopped by the Bishop, who wanted no arguments on Sunday. I would much liked to have remained and followed him but other arrangements prevented, and it was not likely that the house could be had again for several days, as it was occupied most of the time. I trust the Lord will help the honest in heart that they may be made to see the truth.

I preached five times at Molen, where there seems to be some interest, and left some believing who intend to unite in the near future. While there I was cared for by Bro. A. P. Larsen and wife, who did all they could to make my stay pleasant, Bro. Larsen conveying me with team to this place, a distance of forty-five miles. I expect to preach here to-night, and perhaps to-morrow night, and then go to Provo. The meetinghouse here could not be had, as Apostle Lyman had counseled the Bishop to not let us have a house more than once; and as Bro. Anthony had preached here in October several times, they concluded that that was enough. We got the schoolhouse for to-night, however, and feel content, satisfied that the Lord will care for his own work. In bonds,

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Jan. 1.

Editors Herald:—One week ago to-night, I arrived home after an absence of about seven weeks, during which time I have busied myself in trying to get a footing established in new localities for the cause I love; that is, where this gospel has never been preached before; and my short experience confirms to my mind the suggestion offered and urged by our present missionary in charge, Bro. Caffall, the importance of moving out into new fields, and to thoroughly work those fields, instead of wasting so much valuable time with the branches, where preaching has been done for the last twenty or twenty-five years. It seems as if all have been gathered into the gospel net that are worthy to be, for in some places a great deal of preaching, and good preaching too, has been done by some of our most efficient elders, with but little success.

On Sunday, the 24th, I had the pleasure of leading into the waters of baptism at Agnew, Nebraska, two former residents of Lamoni, Iowa; Bro. Gottlieb Keller and his estimable wife, whom I left on Christmas day, both rejoicing in the gospel of the Son of God.

I found one more lost sheep of the house of Israel at Agnew; a Sr. Stales; her maiden name I do not now remember. She was baptized by Bro. Leonard Scott, in Michigan some years ago. This sister was also made glad to know that she was no longer alone in the gospel, for as long as she had lived here, and as long as Bro. and Sr. Keller had lived here, neither knew there were Latter Day Saints near. So we find in all this broad State of Nebraska (or at least in the Southern district) that there are in almost every county a little group of one or more families scattered and isolated from the church who are famishing for the word of truth, which makes a nice opening for the preaching of the word in new localities.

That I may ever be found faithful and be able to assist in the further promulgation of this gospel, is my prayer.

J. W. WALDSMITH.

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 28.

Editors Herald:—I have been at home since the 17th of November, recruiting my health and strength by a rest and some simple restoratives, as my old troubles will return whenever I overdo myself. But, thank the Lord, I am feeling some better and shall leave here on the first day of the new year for Santa Cruz and other places, as wisdom and circumstances will permit; and I assure you and all of my brethren that I never was more in earnest in my labors and confident in the ultimate results of this work than at present.

Confinement at home worries me more as I get older, for I see more and more the need of every officer and every private being in the field doing all they can as the troublous times so long looked for are upon us. It behooves every one to be on the watchtower, keeping a double watch; first, upon himself, to see that he does his duty; second, upon the enemy of all souls, that he does not hinder us from performing our whole duty. And I pray that the Lord will send more means and more laborers into the field, for it is evident that these troublous times are shaking Babylon from center to circumference, and with it everything else is being shaken, and the field is ripening and preparing for the harvest. Then let us not only pray, but also labor that none of us may be found wanting at the great roll call.

I can also see far enough ahead to know that the church will feel the effects of these troublous times, especially in her financial department. I can see that in this time of financial trouble that the church will be forced to economize time, labor, and means to a greater degree than ever before; for when I look back for thirty odd years and compare what has been done in comparatively peaceful and prosperous times with what must be done in these hard and troublous times, I feel like making a few suggestions for the consideration and benefit of all.

First, every individual, and every family, and every officer in the church should put into practice the strictest economy possible with physical laws and good health. This should be done in eating, drinking, and in wearing apparel; and especially in all superficial wants and habits this should be done from free will and good will towards the great work that we all profess to love and that we so frequently say we are willing to sacrifice for.

My next suggestion is that all conference appointees be required to do less traveling and more thorough and systematic labor, for we many times hear through the church papers of our missionaries having crowded houses and working up a great interest and then having appointments or some other excuse for going off and leaving the interest and those interested to be caught by the wolves in sheep's clothing. This is bad economy and a waste of time and labor; and the General Conference and its missionaries in charge should not only hold themselves responsible, but every officer that is known to work in this loose way should be instructed to never have an appointment ahead that would interfere with and hinder the progress of the work.

My third suggestion is to stop in the future what has been almost unavoidable in the past; to stop our missionaries from running over so much ground and baptizing a few in a place, and then going off and leaving them before they are sufficiently strong to withstand their surroundings. This has been a great drawback to the church in the past; but I now believe the time and circumstances have arrived that will force our ministers from an economical standpoint to confine their labors more to the many little nucleuses where there are a few members and then broaden their labors, working all the ground as far as possible from each one of these centers. In order to do this tents should be provided for the summer and means should be supplied to run them as long as the season will permit. Two speakers, as nearly equal in ability as possible, should be placed in each tent. These should be the best and ablest exponents of our doctrine that we have, and they should be supplied with plenty of books and tracts. In this way they would become independent of other churches and schoolhouses, and I know from a two summers' experience and from talking with those who have had long experience in tent work that we can reach more than ten hearers to one and that too with less expense to the church in that way. It also works a great benefit to scattered members. Tents can be used in California for over half of the year by using a small stove.

I hope that the General Conference will see to it that two able men are sent to Oregon, two more into Nevada with a tent, and at least six or eight into California; as a tent can be run for five years right in Oakland and its environs. Every tent should have a contribution box, and people should be told to put in freewill offerings. This would give many honest, free-hearted people a chance to help us, and to help themselves, when it shall be said to them, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

May God in his infinite mercy set all of my brethren and sisters to thinking, and may their thoughts be strong enough to produce wise actions in these as well as many other important matters.

Your brother in Christ,

A. HAWS.

BUNGAY, Ill., Dec. 25.

Editors Herald:—I have just closed a protracted meeting here; have preached eight sermons to large crowds with excellent interest and attention; I baptized three and another has given her name for baptism; all heads of families. The Newlights also have a congregation here. I expect to see more obey the gospel in the near future. There is also a large Sunday school, carried on by the wise direction of Bro. Henry Rankin. The people are very much interested in the Sunday school work. This is as it should be, and we can but say, God bless the Sunday school. I would be very glad to see many of our brethren and sisters more interested in this department of work. I think if many of them were permitted to visit this school but once it would be a grand lesson for them. It would at least stir up their pure minds by way of remembrance.

I go from here to other points. I am feeling well and am in the faith.

Your brother,

FRANCIS M. SLOVER.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, Dec. 12.

Editors Herald:—Since last correspondence I labored at Moorhead, Brown, and Oliver schoolhouses previous to quarterly conference. I had excellent liberty at all three places, but the attendance was small, owing to the people being extremely busy in corn gathering. One was baptized at Moorhead, a young man who promises to become useful to the cause. His conversion was truly a marked one. None know him but to recognize a godlike change having been wrought.

Our quarterly conference and Sunday school convention held at Persia were both profitable and soul-satisfying. While the weather was extremely cold and stormy, yet a goodly attendance showed a commendable zeal. The evening exercises of the convention consisted of an entertainment given by the Sunday school at Persia wherein was shown a thorough preparation, and in the selections rendered an acquaintance with what edifies and instructs was shown. The conference was blessed with an earnest, peaceful spirit, in which all showed a devotion to the best interests of the wondrous work of salvation. During the time of conference I was taken with a severe cold, or as some called it, la grippe. This prevented me from making any arrangement for present labor, although while yet quite bad, but slightly better, I complied with a dying request to preach a funeral sermon, and so far as I could determine I received no injury.

On Monday the 11th inst. I begun services at Woodbine, continuing until Wednesday night, when I was followed on Thursday and Friday nights by Bro. Heman C. Smith. On account of sickness and stormy weather small audiences greeted us. Bro. Heman and I then held services at Magnolia, Logan, and Missouri Valley, he doing the preaching, closing on the 21st. At Magnolia and Missouri Valley an excellent audience greeted us, and yet on account of sickness and death many others were deprived from attending who would have desired to. I returned from Missouri Valley to care for the sick at home, and am still confined there, my wife's mother being at this writing very sick, for whom I request the prayers of the Saints.

I notice during the three years' missionary work in this mission that while some branches and members are ever thoughtful of the needs of the missionary, local as well as visiting, yet others have been very thoughtless, especially of the needs of those who have been appointed to labor in this mission; so much so that the Bishop or agent has been under necessity to help. This need not occur if a proper consideration of duty was presented, for the district has had only two missionaries to look after the personal interests of. Personally, I have been well cared for most of the time, having no cause for complaint any of the time, not having been under the necessity of calling upon the Bishop or agent; but some of the branches have been thoughtless in regard to the personal needs of the missionary, and for this reason I pen these lines, for I am satisfied that had it not been thoughtless, all would have been equally anxious to respond to the recurring needs of the missionary without a special request being made, for it has been learned that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Probably no district has more cheerfully responded to the urgent requests and righteous instructions of our devoted Bishop's agent in the payment of tithes and offerings to sustain the families of the missionary, for which the name of God is praised: but I feel that the missionaries who labor should not be forgotten, but that they should receive sufficient to pay for clothing so they will always honor the cause by being the representatives of neatness, and for traveling expenses and postage so that their influence and power for good may not be hindered.

Many calls await answering on account of lack of laborers and opportunities of the few who are laboring of doing all they would desire. I pray that God may send forth more laborers, and that the way may be opened up before them, so that the good they would do may not be prevented. May God bless all in this mission who have so kindly remembered me in the past, and remembered the needs of the missionary and his loved ones; and may he grant that all may feel an equal interest, and that those who minister may honor the position they are called to occupy, and thus show a practical appreciation of the kindnesses conferred and the assistance rendered. With love to all, and a desire for the salvation of all who desire salvation, I am,

Your brother and friend,

J. F. MINTUN.

GRIZZLY FLATS, Cal., Dec. 17.

Editors Herald:—As I was compelled to leave my field of labor—Oregon and Washington—I feel it my duty to inform my brethren of it. I left the field November 12; that is, I arrived here on that date to work on the mine for awhile. I don't know how long I will have to remain here. I will return as soon as possible to labor with my Master for the salvation of the souls of men.

The Lord was with me while in the field; I had better or larger congregations, on an average, than ever before. I met with a great deal of opposition, but the Lord will stand by his servants and carry on his glorious work. Sr. Rush sent me ten dollars to pay my fare to Heppner, Eastern Oregon. She was the only Saint in that part of the State, but through her good conduct and by distributing books and tracts she was able to get the Baptist church for me. I spoke in it eleven nights to good congregations. The minister challenged me for a debate, but wanted to speak five nights before entering into the discussion. I attended, and when he got through I wanted him to sign a proposition agreed to the night before, but he would not. I wanted him to sign the proposition to insure me that he would debate at the end of five nights or when he got through, but he would not. He misrepresented us so badly that I went out on the street and talked with some of the citizens. I told them I wanted a chance to reply to the reverend gentleman. They told me they would see that I had a building to speak in. They got the courthouse, which seats double the amount of people that the church does, and I had it crowded full, and the reverend was there. I spoke over an hour with good liberty, and next morning he came early with a proposition drawn up to suit himself. I looked it over and concluded to accept it; I did not want to be branded as a coward; I remembered our instructions at the last conference held at Lamoni.

We debated four nights for two hours each night. I think he was educated by the same teacher or governed by the same spirit as Clark Braden. He said he had a devil in him and wanted me to cast him out. I replied that I did not doubt the truthfulness of his statement, but if I should cast him out there would be nothing left but his boots and clothes. The last night he railed on Joseph the Martyr and the Book of Mormon. I challenged him to debate ten nights on the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith and the divine authenticity of the Book of Mormon.

I told him before that large congregation that I would bind myself in writing to produce two witnesses to prove that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God to any one prophet spoken of in the Bible, but he did not have time.

Suffice it to say, I preached seventeen times in that vicinity, debated four nights, and baptized seven. I made my home with Sr. Rush and her husband, who is one of the noble men of the earth and a friend to the cause. He says he knows that the Book of Mormon is true. He invited me to return. His team and carriage I had the use of whenever I wanted them. May God bless him and his companion.

I baptized eighteen since last conference. I am sorry to leave the field, but feel that I cannot very well do otherwise. I pray that I may soon be free to raise my voice to warn the people to prepare to meet their God.

Yours in bonds,

THOMAS DALEY.

P. S.—My address is, Grizzly Flats, El Dorado, county, California.

BRANT, Mich., Dec. 25.

Editors Herald:—I came here in October and confirmed two that were baptized by Bro. Dickhout, of Niagara Falls, Ontario. Before the brother returned to Ontario (as he was only here on a visit) he wrote to me and said that he would like to have me come and confirm Bro. F. P. Jubb and wife, whom he baptized; so I came, but my circumstances were such that I could stay only long enough to deliver four discourses.

In the latter part of November I returned and have since spoken in five different places. I baptized two shortly after my return, and yesterday I had the pleasure of baptizing eight more. The interest is good and many openings can be made in this county (Saginaw).

One of the ministers living here attacked us from the pulpit; and I announced at the close of his meeting that I would speak upon his subject at our next regular appointment, which would be the third evening following. At this time this man and another were holding a series of meetings in the Wilson schoolhouse, we only occupying the house for two regular appointments each week; and although he and his brother minister visited the people at their homes, I had the pleasure of talking to a full house and the interest seems to be on the increase. I expect to labor in this region all winter. I feel thankful to my heavenly Father for a perfect restoration of health. Your brother,

L. PHELPS.

HARLAN, Iowa., Dec. 22.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Peterson and myself labored according to our appointment by Bro. Lambert, in Pottawattamie district in November, until after our quarterly conference which convened at Hazel Dell. We had a time of rejoicing long to be remembered.

From there we started to Harlan, on the 9th of December. When we arrived we were made welcome by Bro. and Sr. Chatburn, as if we were their sons in very deed. Bro. Butterworth was laboring in Harlan at the time of our arrival. We staid over Sunday, then went out east of Harlan about ten miles to a Danish settlement, where we held two meetings with good attention, but owing to not having any place to stay we came back to Harlan. Our meetings were quite well attended and with good attention, more so than usual in that neighborhood, and we think good was done. We will return after New Year's Day and renew the work.

Bro. Peterson left for home after our return, having some business to attend to. I have preached three times in Harlan in the Danish language, once in a private house, and twice in our church. Bro. Butterworth spoke a little the first night, and Bro. Chaburn assisted me the last night. I think there is an interest among the Danish people to hear more of our preaching. We will try and labor more in Harlan on our return. The brethren and sisters in Harlan are very kind to us, and with the help of the Master we hope to do a good work in Shelby county among the Danes. Your brother,
J. J. CHRISTENSEN.

MISSOURI VALLEY, Iowa, Dec. 27.

Editors Herald:—On November 5 Bro. David Chambers, assisted by Bro. A. M. Fyrando, organized a branch here with sixteen members. Since then seven have been added by letter and certificate of baptism, while there are yet twelve or fourteen whose membership should be with us. We hope ere long to have a strong branch, one that will be known for its spirituality as well as its numerical strength. Our greatest drawback to success here has been the lack of a place to hold meetings, but we have overcome that, for the present at least; having rented and seated a good commodious building, we are prepared to give a warm welcome to any elder who may chance to pass this way.

On the evenings of December 20 and 21, Bro. H. C. Smith gave us two excellent discourses, which were well received by both members and nonmembers, judging from the favorable comments heard from all. Some predicted that because our church was so far away, on the outskirts of the town, our congregations would be small, but on Bro. Heman's nights there were good crowds, notwithstanding the fact that the building was yet unfinished and was cleaned and seated less than twenty-four hours before the first meeting. And I am confident that had he staid a week our house would have been full to overflowing.

We are now suffering some inconvenience on account of all public gatherings being prohibited in an effort to stamp out that dread scourge, diphtheria, which has of late assumed terrible proportions, quite a number of children having died in the past ten days. La grippe is also with us again, and now and then claims a victim; but with the exception of Sr. Eliza Parker and Bro. Myron Hirst, the health of the Saints is good. Bro. Hirst is suffering with something of a rheumatic nature; Sr. Parker is troubled with asthma. Will the Saints kindly pray for their recovery.

Bro. Alma Fyrando has done most of our preaching for a year, and has been continued here for another quarter. He is well liked, and while his teaching may have no immediate, visible effect, yet we are satisfied that the truths he has spoken have found lodgment in many hearts, and that the harvest will come in due season; especially if we who have embraced the work demonstrate by our lives that there is a power in the gospel to make men and women better.

At our branch organization the following officers were chosen and ordained to their respective offices: T. H. Parker, president, ordained to the office of elder; A. L. Parker, priest; W. H. Kinder, teacher; H. L. Fry, deacon. May God grant that they may receive grace and strength sufficient for their work; and may we, the membership, be ever ready and willing to sustain them in their efforts that the grand work may roll on to ultimate triumph. Your brother,

W. F. DONALDSON.

SELIGMAN, Mo., Dec. 27.

Editors Herald:—Bro. I. N. White and the writer came here last Saturday, occupying Saturday night, Sunday afternoon, and last night. On Sunday Bro. White outstripped any effort I ever heard him make before. Two preachers were in the congregation. One of them replied to him Sunday night. Was at the Christmas tree Monday night; Bro. White trimmed him last night.

Bro. White left for Rich Hill this forenoon, and I stay here and occupy the house to-night. The holiness people begin a revival in the same house on Thursday, and I go two miles into the country to a schoolhouse where I will stay till first Sunday, when will fill regular appointment in Seligman. Saints are desiring a Sunday school, and we will organize one Sunday. One was baptized on Monday; others are near. Hopefully,

W. S. MACRAE.

WESTPORT, Mo., Jan. 1.

Editors Herald:—Although no one that I am aware of has yet publicly sanctioned the vision called "One hundred years hence," I wish to state that I for one am an indorser of it, but not without the idea that lunar measurements and lunar years are intended.

In the beginning God appointed the sun and moon, "for signs, and for seasons, and for days, and for years;" which means, of course, that the moon has its way of measuring off the years for our earth, as well as the sun.

In the Book of Abraham, that patriarch is made to say, that the moon's reckoning of time as compared to the earth's reckoning of time, is not so many "as to its number of days, and of months, and of years;" and which means, of course, that there are not as many lunar years as there are solar years, counting through a given space of time.

For example; if from a given point in the earth's orbit, 365½ days are required for it to make a complete circuit of the sun, how many days would it take the moon, starting from the same point, to complete the same circuit, that is, in how many solar, not lunar days, does the moon make a complete circuit of the sun? While the earth in making its circuit of the sun, counts off 365½ solar days, the moon counts off only 354 of its own days, which of course leaves it 11½ solar days behind the earth in the said circuit; and as the sum of 365½ and 11½ solar days equals 376½ solar days, therefore a lunar year comprises that many solar days.

Or, to get at the matter somewhat chronologically. If from the commencement of the Christian era to the present year, inclusive, there have been 1,894 years, counting 365½ days to the year, how many years has it been for the same space of time, counting 376½ days to the year? Not as many as 1894, certainly.

But how many solar days has it been, counting from the nativity of Christ to the present year inclusive? Just as many evidently as 1,894 multiplied by 365½ will express, which is 691,783½ solar days. But how many lunar years will that many solar days make? Just as many, evidently, as 376½ solar days are contained times in 691,783½ solar days, which are a little more than 1,837 times; and which means simply that this present year, solar time, is only the year 1837, lunar time.

But what year, solar time, will the lunar year 1845 be? It will be the year 1902 approximately, and which is found by multiplying the lunar year 1845 by 376½, the number of solar days in the lunar year, and dividing the product by 365½, the number of solar days in a solar year.

Also, What year solar time, will the lunar year 1945 be? It will be the year 2005, approximately, and which is found by multiplying the lunar year 1945 by 376½, the number of solar days in a lunar year, and dividing the product by 365½, the number of solar days in a solar year.

And now, as the intent of all this must mean, that that visional one hundred years hence has not yet begun, and will not begin before the close of the solar year 1902, and also that it will not end before the close of the solar year 2005, it is therefore meant that there is plenty of time left for its fulfillment, so far as that is concerned.

But what is there about the vision itself that would lead to the idea that it is all yet in the future? Inasmuch as the author of it is made to say that when his understanding began to be quickened, he found himself one hundred years ahead of "common life," it would seem that whatever year shall turn out to be the limit of common life to him, that same year will end just where his one hundred years hence will begin.

But what is the limit of common life? Threescore and ten years, of course, a fact that would seem to imply, in regard to the vision, that if the author of it is yet alive, and should live that long, he will be seventy years of age in 1902, and which would date him, of course, as having been born no further back than 1832.

As for my own part, I like the vision, and feel so impressed with its divinity that I do not seem to hesitate at all to hope for its fulfillment in every particular, and in the most literal sense.

OUR PROBATION.

WHEN we look back to the beginning of the world and see the effect of the influence that caused our first parents to be expelled from the beautiful garden of Eden where peace and happiness prevailed; and when by tracing the course of history from that time to the present we see that this same influence, evil, has caused so many human beings to be plunged into the depths of what is called hell, we are led to ask why this was then and is still permitted? Why does our heavenly Father whom we believe to be a being of justice, mercy, and love, permit a thing that causes so many of the objects of his creation to be lured into degradation and consequent woe? Why were not good, pure, and ennobling influences alone permitted to prevail so that we might remain in the pure and innocent state in which we are when ushered into this life? If we believe him to be a God of love, as the book we accept as his word pictures him to be, it is hard for us to believe that it is according to his will and pleasure that so much misery and woe should be caused; and we are told that such is not his will, but rather that such should not be the lot of one of the objects of his creation; and we are informed that there is more joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety and nine just persons that need no repentance. Then it is not God's will that any should perish.

To find the proper solution of this question, it will first be necessary for us to learn to what use the Master intends to put humanity in the world to come. What will be our duty when we obtain the fullness of his glory, when we are accepted as worthy citizens of his kingdom? When we read that we shall be made kings and priests unto God (Rev. 5: 9, 10), and that we shall judge angels (1 Cor. 6: 3), it seems to me that it is quite reasonable to believe that we will be put to a very high and noble use.

The question is, Why was and is this evil influence permitted to prevent so many of us from fitting ourselves for this high calling? While it is true that we have to depart this life in order to pass into the next, the question still remains, Why is this evil influence permitted in our midst when God has the power to prevent it? I think it will not be doubted that it is for some good and wise purpose; for, can we believe God to be a being of infinite wisdom, justice, mercy, and love, and also entertain the idea that he would permit a thing that would not in some way be for our good? If he be unable to prevent this influence from having place here, is that a sign of infinite wisdom and power on his part? Or, if he be possessed of the wisdom and power to prevent it, and permits it, is that a sign of justice, love, or mercy on his part, if there be no purpose other than to satiate his vengeance upon the objects of his creation? Unless there be a wise purpose for which this evil influence is permitted, if he have the wisdom and power to prevent it, it seems quite reasonable that at the beginning God would have installed us in the position of glory, honor, and power that is promised the faithful; for if there had been no evil influence none could have been unfaithful, and all would have been entitled to the fullness of his glory. My conclusion is, that we are placed here to prepare ourselves for what is promised; we are placed here to learn to appreciate it.

It will be unnecessary, I think, to produce evidence to show that we must obey God's law before we will be permitted to abide his glory. The Apostle Paul informs us that this law consists of love:—

Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good. Be kindly affectioned one toward another with brotherly love; in honor preferring one another; . . . rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer. . . . Bless them which persecute you: bless, and curse not. Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep. . . . Recompense to no man evil for evil.—Rom. 12: 9-17.

Owe no man anything, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law. For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.—Rom. 13: 8-10.

This, then, is the law we have to obey; and Paul says, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." It is far beyond human comprehension in its greatness, grandeur, and fulness. On the other hand, we are informed that a reward quite in keeping with the power they love, awaits those who love the opposing, evil power.

The question now arises, Why in the face of these facts does mankind love that opposing power? Why do men violate the law of God and thus bring upon themselves to a greater or less degree, a misery the depth and breadth of which we cannot fully comprehend, a misery that how hard to bear we know not? I ask, why do they do this, when the opportunity is before them to earn a reward and glory that in its fullness, greatness, and grandeur, is inconceivable by mortal intelligence? The highest glory possible for man to enjoy on this earth is but a mere foretaste compared with this. I ask, Why does man do this? Is it because he prefers misery to glory? No; it is very far from that; it is because that without the knowledge of both we are unable to comprehend either. Without the knowledge of one we are unable to comprehend the other; for it is by comparison that we learn what a thing is—by comparing it with something different. A person that is born blind has not the slightest idea what light is, or what darkness is, but a person who can see comprehends both light and darkness.

It is generally believed by the Christian world that when we are ushered into this life we are as innocent and guiltless as Adam was before the fall; and it is evidently so, else why does Jesus say, "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven;" and, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God." We are ushered into this life in pure and unstained innocence, and we then comprehend neither good nor evil, but it is only by comparing one with the other that we learn that the good is the more desirable.

I do not take the position that it is necessary to engage in evil in order to be able to distinguish it from good, for they are both before us from the cradle to the grave; but we are informed by our Savior that a tree is to be known by its fruits. Thus it is that by observing the fruits of an influence or power we may ascertain whether that influence or power is good or bad. That which is good is in accordance with God's law, and Paul tells us that "love is the fulfilling of the law." "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor." Then that which worketh ill is not good. If it worketh ill to nothing, but worketh to the contrary, it is good; and that is the way we may distinguish good from evil.

As stated before, I do not consider that it is necessary to engage in evil in order to learn to distinguish it from good; for they are both before us, and we may learn by observation. It is of course true that if every individual in existence would entirely abstain from evil we would have nothing upon which to base our observations, and my position would be without a foundation; but present indications are that such is not to be the case right away, and therefore my position, I think, will stand good for the present. And further; if the above-mentioned state of things should occur, the evil would be mustered out—we would have no more use for it; the millennium would be ushered in and we would leave off writing articles on this subject. But, alas, poor human nature! the difference between good and evil is too often learned by actual experience. Good may be likened unto a rose and evil unto a thorn. Too often we feel the thorn and thus learn by actual experience that its effect is different, far different, from that of the rose. If one of us were living in a world alone (but just think of such an existence), it would be necessary for us to learn the effect of the thorn by experience; for there would be no other way by which it could be made manifest. But we are surrounded so much by its results—pain and sorrow—that by observation and comparison we may distinguish the rose from the thorn. And further; there is a portion of pain and sorrow that comes upon each of us that we cannot avoid and for which our own acts are not responsible; for instance, those whom we most dearly love, those for whom we would willingly give our life, are by death taken from us, and our bosoms are thus rent with the deepest anguish that can be visited upon us in this life; yet we are not responsible for it; no act of ours brings it about. It comes to the just as well as to the unjust; it is unavoidable that all must become acquainted with pain and sorrow.

Let us go back on the wings of memory to the days of our childhood; who of us that were fortunate enough to have kind parents and a happy home were entirely satisfied with our position? The ever watchful care of our parents was over us; no thought of trouble or care crossed our fair path; and sorrow seldom entered our domain, though sorrow is a visitor that will come; but when it did our first thought was of our parents. They were always ready and willing to sweep every obstruction from our pathway regardless of the cost to them; yet we were not satisfied. We thought the position of those who were always by our side at the approach of danger, the ones who would have forfeited their lives to save our own, was rather more desirable. We appreciated not the rose, for we had not known the thorn. But as we press on through life the care of our parents is gradually withdrawn from us, and we are thrown upon our own resources, and in the course of time we tread the thorn; and when we do so we learn to know and appreciate the rose that invariably hangs opposite it. Thus we learn to distinguish the rose from the thorn, and learn to love the rose, and to press forward with zeal to obtain it.

As I said before, no one will doubt for a moment but that we must abide the law of God before we can abide his glory; and before we can intelligently abide the law of God we must know why it is necessary for us to do so, we must know what would be the result of yielding obedience to the opposing law; and that is why this opposing law or the law of sin and death is permitted to have a place where it is possible for mankind to yield obedience to it; for when we receive the glory of God, when we are partakers of its fullness, we must be able to protect it; that is, protect ourselves in it; we must know the opposite of the celestial glory that will then be ours, and we must be able to repel the influence that would bring that about. While here on this earth good and evil are both placed before us that we may learn the difference between the two. Unless we learn both good and its opposite we will not be able to maintain the high position to which we may be exalted; for we would not know what conduct would bring upon us its opposite,—degradation,—as was the case with our first parents in the garden of Eden.

I do not suppose for a moment that if a person who had lived and obtained a perfect knowledge of good and evil, —knowledge, the object in view in Adam's case,—one who in Paul's language, "had fought a good fight," should be placed in the garden of Eden, in the presence of God, to walk and talk with him, and should have the fruit placed before him that would work such a change as the one wrought in connection with our first parents, that he would partake of it. Too well would he know and realize the consequences that would follow; that knowledge would be no longer wanting.

The idea is quite prevalent in the orthodox world, I believe, that when we get to heaven or the place of our reward, wherever that is, it will be utterly impossible for an evil thought to be conceived by anyone, and that if a person who is disposed to do evil could just get into heaven that disposition would leave; that is, it could not enter there; but I believe that we will be our own agents there just the same as we are here, for we are told by John the Revelator that a contest was once waged in heaven for we know not how long; a rebellion led by one who had been very near the Father; one who had been so bright that he had been called a son of the morning; and was opposed in his rebellion by the Son of God. That rebellion against the highest powers of heaven brought about a contest that engaged the entire hosts of heaven, and resulted in one third of them—Lucifer and his followers—being cast down to earth; expelled from their station of glory to wander in darkness with their leader. This is why I believe we will be our own agents there; for if Lucifer had not been his own agent how could the evil design that caused his downfall ever have entered his brain? And if that third of the hosts of heaven that followed him had not been their own agents; if they had not been permitted to exercise their own pleasure in regard to whom they would serve in that contest, could they have advocated and defended the cause of the usurper? If they had been entirely subject to God, and had been able to do his will only, could they have opposed him? Would it have been possible for them to do so? I hold that it would not have been possible. Hence we will be our own agents, and before we will be permitted to enter our Master's domain, we must show ourselves competent and willing to defend it if there should be an attempt made to injure it as was once the case.

We are here engaged in a contest quite similar to the one I have just described. The circumstances may be different, but it is a contest between God and that fallen Son of the Morning. As our own agents we make our choice as to whose ranks we will serve in, and this matter of making choice is not a difficult matter, but the question is whether humanity alone can cope with so formidable an adversary as the one who drew away one third of the hosts of heaven. It does not seem reasonable to believe that we can, but that to conquer we must receive light and strength from the being we wish to serve. It is to God we look for this divine light and strength, but we must expect to give him something in return for it. He asks obedience to his law, and we must enter into a contract or into articles of agreement with him, agreeing to give obedience in return for what we ask. He asks us to enter into an agreement to dissolve all allegiance to foreign powers and become subject to his law, but it is not an agreement of slavery that he wishes us to enter into.

For complete obedience to his law he promises us power over all opposing forces. He said through Jesus Christ, as recorded in Luke 10:19 in speaking to the seventy, Behold, I give you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing shall by any means hurt you.

Thus we are given power over all that opposes God. In the sixteenth chapter of Mark the promise is recorded thus:—

In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

What more would we like to have in return for obedience? God, as the party of the first part, agrees to give us this power on condition that we, as parties of the second part, give him obedience. It is plain that before we enter into this agreement we must have faith, according to the following:—

He that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him."—Heb. 11:6.

After this we must cast off all allegiance to foreign powers and turn our steps in another direction; viz., we must repent. Then come the articles of agreement the first of which is baptism. In Mark sixteenth chapter and sixteenth verse Jesus Christ in his last charge to his disciples, after he had triumphed over death, is recorded as saying, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." It might be inferred from these words that all that is required is simply belief and baptism, that no further obedience on our part is demanded; but by reading the preceding verses we find the same individual saying, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," showing that it is the gospel we must believe; and we must not only believe, but obey it. Salvation is not promised on God's part unless obedience is given on our part: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." And by an examination of the record it will not be found from the time of the ushering in of the Christian dispensation as far as the sacred record carries us that one person was accepted as a member of the Church of Christ without baptism. Thus baptism is a very essential article in our agreement with God, and one that will impede further progress if not taken.

The next objective point is the gift of the Holy Ghost. The Holy Ghost is the medium through which the light and strength we seek is to come; for Christ says:—

The Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.—John 14:26.

And in John sixteenth chapter and thirteenth verse he says:—

When he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will show you things to come.

The question now is, How is this Comforter to be obtained; what article of agreement will entitle us to receive it? In Acts 8:14-19, we read:—

Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John: who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost: (for as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.) Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost. And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, saying, Give me also this power, etc.

In Acts 19:1-6 we read:—

And it came to pass, that, while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the upper coasts came to Ephesus; and finding certain disciples, he said unto them, Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. And he said unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? And they said, Unto John's baptism. Then said Paul, John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus. When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them; and they spake with tongues, and prophesied.

And Ananias went his way, and entered into the house; and putting his hands on him said, Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Ghost.

From these examples it is clear that the Holy Ghost, the Comforter, was given through the laying on of hands; for, in regard to the first case herein referred to, if it could have been given otherwise, why was Peter and John sent all the way from Jerusalem to Samaria, a distance of many miles, simply to lay hands on those people? It does not seem reasonable that those men were sent all that distance for nothing, and it seems that it was for nothing if it was not necessary for them to lay their hands on those people in order that they might receive the Holy Ghost; for we notice that the only thing they did at Samaria was to pray for those people and lay their hands on them; and their prayers, so far as they are concerned, would have been as effectual if offered from Jerusalem as from Samaria. In the second case the persons referred to had been baptized unto John's baptism and were then and there baptized in the name of Christ, but they did not receive the Holy Ghost immediately after that baptism, and did not receive it at all until after Paul "had laid his hands upon them;" and the language there used indicates that that was the regularly ordained way for the Holy Ghost to be bestowed.

These two cases might lead us to believe that the Holy Ghost was given by the laying on of the apostles' hands only, but the third case shows that such authority was not limited to them, for Ananias was not an apostle.

It is generally believed by the Christian world that few, if any, of these articles of agreement, as we have been pleased to call them, are any longer a part of the plan of salvation. They believe that the necessity of observing them ceased at the death of the apostles. Now if the law requiring them to be observed was repealed, it was done by the one who made their observance a necessity in the first place. The last intelligence coming from that One that we have any record of in what the Christian world accepts as the divinely inspired Scriptures was through the apostles and John the Revelator. Thus if this law was repealed it was done previous to the death of those persons; but it is not stated by any of them that it was so repealed, and the sole and only reason that we have to warrant us in believing that such was the case is the mist of tradition that has come to us from the dark ages of apostasy; no history, sacred or profane, informs us that this law is repealed. And now even these mists of tradition are being dissipated. The light that has burst upon the world in these latter days is slowly but surely lifting the clouds of darkness, and men are again beginning to believe that if we will make and keep this agreement with God, that "even the devils are subject unto us through thy [Christ's] name," and that the promise is to us also that we shall have power "to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy;" and that "in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover." And it is further promised that "if any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I [Christ] speak of myself." (John 7:17.) Here is a promise that if we do his will we shall realize the fondest dream of mortal mind, we shall receive the intelligence from heaven (for it can come from nowhere else) "that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ." (Rom. 8:16, 17.)

With this assurance of the divine light and strength we seek, we shall be able to triumph over all opposition. We will be given a foretaste of power and glory, a fullness of which will be given to the faithful in the end (Heb. 6:4, 5); and by comparing this foretaste with what Satan offers for obedience unto his will (which we have already tasted), we shall know and appreciate the more desirable of the two (that which God offers in fulfillment of the promise), "He that overcometh shall inherit all things" (Rev. 21:7), which would not be the case if we could not make this comparison, for we would not know what the opposite of that inheritance would be; we would not know what gain it would be to inherit "all things;" for if you do not know where the bottom of the ladder is you cannot tell how far it is to the top. That foretaste will be an incentive for us to press forward to obtain the entire inheritance, and the more we strive the greater incentive will there be given; and when the inheritance is obtained we will know how to keep it, for we will know how we got it, that it was by constant endeavor and sacrifice.

For the sake of receiving this grand and glorious inheritance we read that some "had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover of bonds and imprisonment: they were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword: they wandered about in sheepskins and goatskins; being destitute, afflicted, tormented; of whom the world was not worthy: they wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth." (Heb. 11:36-38.) I say again, when our inheritance is obtained we will know how to keep it; and more, we will know why we want to keep it, for we will know what it is to be without it. This we learn by experience, and in no other way.

BEGINNINGS OF HISTORY.

"Recent discoveries in Egypt and Chaldea," says Mr. Boscawen, "indicate that, although the monuments there carry us back about 5,000 years before the Christian era, they do not constitute the limit of our sources of history. They indicate the origin of these people to have been in Western Persia. Kurdistan and Luristan show more ancient remains than have been studied in any part of the world. The old Babylonian civilization and Chinese civilization both came probably from this region, and it may yet yield us knowledge of times far earlier than any that we yet know of."

Sunday School Associations.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Resolved, That we request the First Presidency to publish their views in relation to this matter in the Herald, and that the secretary forward to them the above resolutions.”

The chapel has been furnished with new seats throughout, a new platform, with banisters and pulpit, a four-foot wainscoting all around, and lighted by two brass chandeliers. It has also been painted and varnished, and supplied with new water conductors, and cemented on the outside. Any contribution which you would feel led to give will be very thankfully received. We feel very grateful to the few who have already responded, the which we will acknowledge through the Herald in due time.

Yours in bonds,

LAMONI, Iowa, Jan. 5, 1894.

Bro. B. F. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, has succeeded in establishing an excellent business in useful specialties. Meritorious articles and business energy combined have brought him success.

WHITLEYVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 6, 1893.
 MESSRS, ORDWAY & Co.,
 Peoria, Illinois:—

This is to certify that early in the spring of 1893 I took an agency for the sale of Ordway's Portable Bed Springs in Jackson county, Tennessee. I commenced under the most discouraging circumstances, on foot, and the country had been overrun with bed spring agents, but I soon sold fifteen sets and started out to put them on, and as I delivered them I took orders at nearly every house. Then the panic came, but it did not effect the sale of Ordway's Bed Springs much, for I and my sub-agents have sold springs right on through the hard times, selling up to the above date over three hundred sets, and now orders are coming in from other territory by mail. So put me down as being in the bed spring business for a long stay. I have taken as high as thirteen orders in one day.

W. F. JENKINS, General Agent.

GLADWIN.—At Council Bluffs, Iowa, Horace G. Gladwin. He was born December 21, 1810, and died December 14, 1893. He united with the church at Clinton, Connecticut, being baptized by W. I. Appleby, December, 1844. He and his family came to Council Bluffs in 1850 intent on going to Utah, but the glaring evils and inconsistencies of Brighamism opened his eyes and he left the church. He united with the Reorganization at Keg Creek, Iowa; was baptized by J. M. Putney. He has been a confirmed invalid for over five years. He leaves a wife and several children. Funeral sermon by T. W. Williams; subject, "Christian hope."

JONES.—At his home near Loveland, Iowa, December 13, 1893, Daniel W. Jones, aged 51 years, 3 months, and 28 days. Deceased was born at Richland, Ohio; was married February 25, 1866, and moved to Iowa, March, 1866. He served three years in the United States' army. Some twenty-six years ago he was injured while felling timber, and obtained an internal wound which baffled the physicians' skill. She was baptized into the old church in Missouri in the fall of 1835 by Elder Hervey Greene, and passed through much of the Missouri persecutions, being present at and an eyewitness of the Haun's Mills massacre. While the Saints were camped on the Missouri bottom lands in the winter of 1838-39 en route to Illinois, and before her sons were born, Joseph the Martyr told her that two of her sons would preach the gospel, a prediction that has been fulfilled in the Reorganized Church. She joined the Reorganization at Middletown, Ohio, in 1874. She leaves three sons and three daughters to mourn their loss. The funeral services were conducted by Bro. Bruce Jones.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The United States Circuit court of Wisconsin has served an injunction on John H. Sovereign, Grand Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, restraining him from ordering a strike on the Northern Pacific Railroad. It is understood that a like injunction has been served upon the head officers of every labor organization of any prominence in the country, whether it could affect employees of that road or not.

A few of the mines on the Gogebic range in Michigan will resume operations. Wages are reduced, but the miners gladly accept work.

LAHORE, Dec. 30.—The resolutions adopted by the National Congress of India declare 50,000,000 people are on the verge of starvation, and urge the government to take immediate steps to succor them. The closing of the mint, it is claimed, further burdened the people with indirect taxation and disturbed important trades and industries, notably cotton spinning.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 30.—During a charity carnival that was being held on the Volga the ice broke and a large number of people fell into the river. Twenty-eight persons were drowned before assistance could reach them. It is thought some of those who were rescued will die from the shock and exposure.

France and Spain have agreed upon a commercial treaty.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—The shoemakers at Northampton will go on a strike Monday to compel the masters to erect workshops in connection with the factories in order to prevent work being done in dwelling houses.

HAMBURG, Dec. 30.—An outbreak of the foot and mouth disease among the cattle here has resulted in the issuing of a prohibition against the export of cattle and swine. All cattle and swine brought into the country will be killed.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 30.—The Chamber of Deputies has passed a bill modifying the tariff.

The losses by fire in the United States for the year 1893 aggregate $188,356,940, a large increase as compared with the losses of 1892.

MADEIRA, Dec. 31.—A thousand deaths from cholera have occurred at Teneriffe, one of the Canary Islands, since the beginning of the outbreak. The officials have divided the island in quarantine districts, and have vigorously enforced their sanitary measures. The streets have been washed with lime, and residents and travelers have been constantly fumigated. Trade has been paralyzed as ships have avoided touching at the island.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—A dispatch from Cetinje, Capital of Montenegro, says: "The Albanians and Montenegrins are disputing as to certain territory near Zen which the mixed Turco-Montenegrin Commission awarded to Montenegro and which has already been occupied by the latter. Several Albanian tribes recently massed near Tusa, and, being watched by the Montenegrin troops, exchanges of musketry between the outposts resulted in two Albanians being killed and one Montenegrin wounded. The affair as yet has not reached national proportions. A bloody fight seems inevitable unless higher authority intervenes."

The Finance committee of the United States House of Representatives has agreed upon an income tax bill which provides for a tax of two per cent. on incomes exceeding $4,000.

The new steel railroad bridge across the Missouri River at Leavenworth, Kansas, has been opened to traffic.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 1.—At municipal elections held throughout Ontario to-day a vote on a plebiscite was taken on the question of total prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor in this province. A majority of over 10,000 was given in favor of prohibition. There was a majority in Toronto alone of over 2,000 for prohibition and the vote in the whole province was in favor of the measure by about two to one. It is expected a prohibitory liquor act will be passed by the Ontario government in accordance with the vote, making it illegal to manufacture or sell intoxicating liquors.

ROME, Jan. 2.—The anti-tax agitation is making rapid progress in Sicily. Several days ago the discontent in Campobello had become so threatening that the town council abolished the wheat octroi. As protests against this action the millers refused to reduce the price of flour and the bakers announced an increase in the price of bread. When these measures became known over a thousand men, women, and children gathered and set fire to all the public buildings, except the town hall. The fire spread to private houses. The police were powerless to suppress the mob, which freed all prisoners and set fire to the soldiers' barracks. The military were called out, but were forbearing, driving the mob slowly back at the point of the bayonet. Nearly a third of the town is in ruins.

At Salemi and Pietra-Perzia, towns of 15,000 and 11,000 inhabitants, similar uprisings occurred, but the soldiery succeeded in suppressing the rioters and stopping the burning of buildings. At the latter place the troops fired upon the mob, killing five and wounding many. Like disorder and uprisings took place at other points.

A mass meeting of all classes in Palermo appointed a deputation to report formally to the government what reforms were most needed in Sicily.

The distressing condition of affairs is attributed by some to two causes; the unions and brigandage. It is said that the laborers are uneducated and live like beasts, ignorant of their social duties and law. The signors live in Palermo and let their lands to the gabellotti, who sublet them to sub-gabellotti, who relet them to peasants, the contract system enabling them to suppress the latter.

The penal statistics of Sicily are the worst in Italy. The extreme verge of labor tyranny has been reached in the cases of the carusie, or mine boys, under twelve years of age, who carry sulphur out of the pits, climbing steep, narrow gangways more than 300 feet high. The picconieri, who extract the sulphur, engage the boys by advancing to their parents flour or corn worth 50 francs. So long as the parents are indebted the boys remain slaves, their masters being able even to kill them without risk. Recently one boy was killed by eight strokes of a pick and another by a kick in the stomach. Brigandage is the direct result of all this, the people having reached the limit of endurance. Those more honestly inclined have taken refuge in the fasci. Women have become the soul of the movement. They all aim at an equal distribution of houses and land. The fasci has established schools for children and adults wherein the value of money, the duties and rights of workmen, and the theories of socialism and collectivism are taught. Many members have abandoned church-going, hating the priests as tyrants. The movement so far is purely nonpolitical, aiming only to secure decent means of livelihood and freedom from tyranny.

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—In November last the Vossische Zeitung of this city published a story from Kovno, capital of the government of that name in Russia, that the imperial authorities had ordered the Catholic church at Krosche, in that government, to be closed. With the purpose, it was said, of preventing the order from being carried out a large number of Catholics took possession of the church and held it, day and night, against the authorities. The Governor at last sent a troop of Cossacks to dislodge the defenders of the church and a desperate conflict resulted. Twenty of the Catholics were said to have been killed with swords or lances, while one hundred were reported to have been wounded. Those who were unhurt or only slightly injured fled from the church, pursued by the Cossacks, who drove them into a river, where many of them were drowned. The orthodox peasants were said to have aided in the massacre.

To-day the Volks-Zeitung publishes mail advices from Krosche, bearing out in every particular the first story of the killing of the Catholics.

Abdur Rahman Khan, G. C. S. I., Ameer of Afghanistan, has been created a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath by Queen Victoria.

A conference of the Scottish Labor party has adopted a resolution approving woman suffrage and another declaring the government should provide work for the unemployed.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 2.—The Russian Agricultural Gazette takes a gloomy view of the prospects for 1894. The remarkable mildness of the winter so far and the absence of snow are regarded as of evil augury. The mild frost which set in lately continues, threatening the total destruction of the crops. Specialist Ivanonstchenkoff writing to the Grajanin predicts a widespread famine in 1894. This fear is largely shared in by well-informed persons.

An attempt was made to poison the Czar of Russia at a banquet held to celebrate the anniversary of the imperial order of St. George.

BUDA PESTH, Jan. 2.—Premier Wekerle yesterday received a deputation of liberals who declared their absolute confidence in the government. The Premier replied the government desired to execute reforms in a liberal spirit, but such as would not offend religious susceptibilities or infringe the church's rights. He forecasted further reforms.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—The police all over France searched the dwelling places of all supposed Anarchists last night. They visited 10,000 houses in all and arrested a number of persons, chiefly in St. Etienne, Lyons, Marseilles, and Paris.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The Pall Mall Gazette publishes a letter from a well-informed correspondent saying a great change may be expected in the Brazilian situation in a fortnight's time. The Peixoto government, he says, is awaiting the arrival of five torpedo boats, which are expected to put an entirely different aspect on the naval situation in Brazilian waters. These boats, though built in Germany, were negotiated for by a British firm. Three of them left a southern English port Friday and the other two the day following.

Three shocks of earthquake were felt in Somersetshire, England, on the night of January 1.

Thomas Wilson, a well-known India tea planter just arrived at Victoria, British Columbia, from Siam, is authority for the statement that war may break out at any time between China and France, the Chinese finding in the French occupation of Siam an excuse for wiping out the score left standing since the Tonquin affair.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 3.—A cis-Mississippi commercial congress is to be held in this city February 13. The Governor of each State has the right to appoint ten delegates, county commissioners or judges, one to each county. Mayors of towns and cities, and commercial bodies may appoint delegates. The Congress will embrace all United States territory west of the Mississippi River and a portion of Louisiana lying east of that river.

SAN SALVADOR, Jan. 3.—A messenger arrived here to-day with news of a battle between Honduran rebels and a troop of regular forces. The report says that the regulars were forced to retire with heavy loss from their position in Escotillonos. Telegraphic communication with Nicaragua and Honduras is interrupted. Salvador will endeavor to maintain a neutral position. President Ezeta has not received news whether his mediation will be accepted by Honduras and Nicaragua.

London advices of the 3d inst. state that commanders of foreign vessels have requested the insurgent admiral not to bombard the city of Rio Janeiro unless first attacked by the government forces.

ROME, Jan. 3.—The situation in Sicily is regarded with increasing alarm by the government. Gen. Mocceni, War Minister, has called under arms another section of the class of 1869. This section is 6,000 strong. The troops now in Sicily number 40,000. Two hundred reserve officers also are reported to have been called out for service.

It is estimated that the area of the countries of the world where women have some suffrage is over 18,000,000 square miles, and that their population is 350,000,000.

PALERMO, Jan. 4.—Owing to the disturbed condition of Sicily and the fears that the Fasci del Lavoratori, the powerful secret Socialist society, might attempt to make further trouble a state of siege has been proclaimed throughout the island. Gen. Morra di Livriano, who was ordered to this city to take Sig. Colmana's place as Prefect, has been endowed with full power, both civil and military.

Great distress prevails among the poor in the Compartimento of Apulia, composed of the provinces of Bari, Foggia, and Lecce, and it is feared bread riots will occur. Every precaution has been taken to preserve order, but many of the people have been rendered desperate by hunger.

A severe blizzard prevails throughout Northern Europe including England. Traffic is seriously interrupted; business is almost suspended at some points. There is much suffering among the poor in some cities.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The seventy-first and last of the original clauses of the parish council's bill was passed by the House of Commons this evening. The announcement of the fact was received with loud ministerial cheers.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 4.—the town of Cholulteca was taken by storm to-day. Gen. Vilella made a heroic defense. The loss in killed and wounded is said to have been 150 men. Vilella retreated on Rancherias, where battle was begun with the vanguard of the invaders, who hourly expected reinforcements. Gen. Ortiz, commanding the Nicaraguan forces, has been ordered to await a Honduran attack, and if made immediately to invade their country. The government has levied a forced loan of $350,000 on merchants.

MONTEVEDIO, Uruguay, Jan. 4.—There is a pretty general feeling in Rio that the revolution will surely end this month and either through the result of a general naval engagement between the royal and rebel fleets or by means of a conference between representatives of both sides. The resignation of Senor Chaves, Peixoto's Minister of Marine, caused much comment, coming as it did just when the naval conflict was expected at any time. It did considerable damage to the government cause in public estimation. Rear Admiral Coelho Neto was appointed yesterday to fill the vacant position. The government has sent forces to relieve the siege of the town of Bage. There is considerable suppressed feeling in favor of Admiral Mello at Pernambuco. President Peixoto has made a public statement of the condition of affairs in Brazil in which he denies that De Gama has been able to land any of his forces near Rio Janeiro and that reinforcements are coming to the aid of the insurgents.

The Russian Government will grant 200,000 rubles yearly for the purpose of promoting the colonization of Siberia and the Russian possessions in Central Asia.

Advices from Belgrade deny that there has been an outbreak in the Montenegrin-Albanian frontier. The recent reports of bloody fights refer to disturbances that occurred two months ago.

The Spanish Ministerial Council has instructed Gen. Martinez de Campo to make no extravagant demands of the Sultan of Morocco, as Spain wishes not to create the idea that it is seeking to cause a rupture with Morocco.

Washington dispatches dated January 5 report that United States Minister Willis called upon the Provisional Government at Honolulu, Hawaii, and made a demand for the restoration of Queen Lilioukalanui, which the Provisional Government refused. Its answer, which will go into the details of the trouble, is expected soon. The Queen is willing to grant amnesty to all who took part in the revolution and in subsequent acts of the government, in case she is restored.

The commission engaged in revising the constitution of the State of Louisiana has adopted an amendment which provides that males may vote at the age of twenty years.

PALERMO, Jan. 5.—The presence of large bodies of troops in Sicily and the establishment of martial law have not had the effect of quieting the disorderly element. At Marineo a bloody riot occurred. A band of men estimated to have numbered 9,000 gathered there in one of the low quarters of the town and started to parade the streets. Many revolutionary cries were uttered, and threats to loot the town were frequently heard. A strong force of troops was dispatched to disperse the mob. When the troops appeared they were attacked by the rioters, many of whom were armed with rifles or revolvers, and a desperate fight took place. Volley after volley was poured into the mob, and thirty of the rioters were killed. Fifty others were wounded. Owing to the strict enforcement of military law it is hard to obtain full details of the affair.

ROME, Jan. 5.—Dispatches received from Palermo late this evening say the proclamation of the state of siege in Sicily has made a good impression upon the people, and has been especially reassuring to the lawabiding citizens, who had become alarmed by the apparent impotence of the local authorities.

The arrest of Giuseppe de Felice, Socialist Deputy for Catania and the founder of the revolutionary Fasci dei Lavoratori, is regarded as a wise act, since by his personal influence alone he has been able to bring all Catania to the verge of rebellion.

Riots were reported to-day from Catania, Ragusa, Monteciaro, Leonforte, Gibellina, Salemi, and Naro.

A British captain and twenty-seven soldiers have been shot by French troops in the interior of Sierre Leone, South Africa. The attack took place in a district where the boundary line between French and British possessions is in dispute. Details are meager.

LISBON, Jan. 5.—In a fight at Rio Negro, in the State of Santa Catharina, Brazil, between the government forces and the insurgents the former were victorious. The insurgents lost forty killed and nineteen prisoners. The date of the engagement is not given. A number of guns and a quantity of munitions of war fell into the hands of the government forces.

December 15, 16, and 17, three insurgent warships, aided by three launches, bombarded Rio Janeiro. Many persons were killed or wounded. The yellow fever season has set in at Rio Janeiro. There were seven deaths from the disease on January 2.

Traffic in England is almost suspended because of heavy snowstorms. Severe cold continues throughout Northern Europe.

The newspapers of Berlin say the recent massacre of Catholics at Krosche, Russia, by Cossacks was due to the express order of Gen. Kakhanoff, Governor of Vilna.

Advices from Apia, capital of Samoa, show that since the departure of the warships from Apia the natives have again become restless, and further trouble is feared.

Autograph letters on the religious situation have been exchanged by the Czar and the Pope. The disposition on the part of Russia and the Vatican to reestablish a religious entente is apparently firmer than ever.

The United States District Court at New Orleans has decided that war ships armed and equipped in this country to put down revolutions elsewhere shall not be forfeited. The decision has direct bearing on the Brazilian boats which recently sailed from New York to fight Admiral Mello.

THIS number closes the sixth volume of AUTUMN LEAVES. We issue our January, or holiday, number about the 20th of December and our patrons will save us both time, trouble, and expense by renewing before their names are dropped from our mailing list. Your name will be retained up to January 1, 1894, but no magazine will be sent until it is paid for, or until you have written us asking us to send it and promising payment. To the friends of the magazine we say, This plan is the better one, and even if it was not, we have been forced to adopt it or to discontinue the magazine.

Heretofore we have been giving our profits to those who did not care enough for the magazine to read it when it reached them; hence did not know when their time expired, and in many cases changed their post office, leaving it uncalled for. Every such number we have been paying for with the money sent us by our friends, and which should have gone to our account as profit. Now we propose to stop this arrangement and share our profits with the friends of our magazine. If we were sending to interested readers, we could afford it, but it is too high a price to pay for waste paper.

You have been wanting your magazines bound. Send us before January 1, 1894, $2 and the volume you wish bound, and we will return the volume to you bound in roan back and corners, cloth sides, sprinkled edges, and send you AUTUMN LEAVES for 1894.

Send us $2.20 and the volume you wish bound, and we will return your volume bound in imitation morocco back and corners, sprinkled edges, and send you AUTUMN LEAVES for 1894; or for $2.40 we will send it bound in morocco back and corners, sprinkled edges, and send you AUTUMN LEAVES for 1894. Should you prefer gilt edges, add 25 cents to above prices in each instance.

That none may misunderstand our offer we repeat. We will send you:—

AUTUMN LEAVES for 1894, and bind one volume in half roan for $2.

AUTUMN LEAVES and your volume bound in half morocco for $2.40.

In addition to this when you subscribe yourself and wish to send another volume to a friend, or one each to several friends, we will furnish them to you for that purpose for $1 per volume. This offer is only for our patrons and for the purpose of sending to those who are not subscribers.

When sending volumes of AUTUMN LEAVES for binding, always be sure that your name and address is on them plainly, and write to the Herald Office at the same time, saying you have sent them, otherwise they are in danger of being lost, as well as causing annoyance and loss of time to the Herald Office management.

Let us here repeat what we have before said, that we desire every one who wants the LEAVES to have them. If you want them and have not the money to send, write us to that effect and they will be sent to you.

NOTICE.

Upon more mature consideration and for valid reasons we deem it best to withdraw our offer of sending the Herald and AUTUMN LEAVES together for $3.00. Our patrons will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

The regular subscription price of AUTUMN LEAVES is $1.50 per year.

SCIENTIFIC ASPECTS OF THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

A. E. T. LONGHURST, M. D.

FIRST, let us ask, Does alcohol exist ready-made in nature, or is it formed within the body as the result of changes in the food taken for nutrition? The only scientific answer to these questions must be, No.

If we look to the properties of alcohol, we find scientists agreeing that in large doses it is a narcotic poison, killing by suffocation through its paralyzing influence on the respiratory nerve-centres; and in smaller, but continuous, doses, by the structural changes which it exerts in the several organs and tissues of the body. Chemically, it is hydrocarbon, devoid of nitrogen, hence can give no real or permanent strength.

By its action on the blood-cells it checks oxidation by limiting their power of absorbing oxygen and eliminating carbonic acid, and by its strong affinity for water it dries up the tissues, causing thirst. Alcohol, therefore, in any quantity, interferes more or less with the purification of the blood and the healthy oxidation of the tissues.

It is a common idea that alcohol produces a warming effect in cold weather. This feeling of warmth depends, in the first place, on the fact that the paralysis of the central nervous system causes an increased blood-supply to the surface of the body; and, secondly, in all probability, on the blunting of the sensibility of the central organs which are concerned in the sensation of cold.

The stimulating action which alcohol appears to exert on the physical functions is also only a paralytic action. Again, there is a strong belief that alcohol gives new strength and energy after fatigue has set in. The sensation of fatigue is one of the safety-valves of our machine; to stifle the feeling of fatigue in order to do more work, is like closing the safety-valve so that the boiler may be overheated and explosion result.

It is commonly thought that alcoholic drinks aid digestion, but in reality the contrary would appear to be the case, for it has been proved that a meal without alcohol is more quickly followed by hunger than a meal with alcohol. If, then, we ask definitely what is the most recent testimony of science as to the use of alcohol as a food, we very properly inquire what constitutes a food? The answer is, that the food employed for the nourishment of the body must have the same, or nearly the same, chemical composition as the body itself. The result of scientific research up to the present time is more and more against assigning any definite food-value, direct or indirect, to alcohol.

In connection with the sanitation of armies, thousands of experiments upon large bodies of men have been made, and have led to the result that, in peace or war, in every climate, in heat, cold, or rain, soldiers are better able to endure the fatigue of the most exhausting marches when they are not allowed any alcohol at all. A similar result is observed in the case of the natives.

That mental exertions of all kinds are better undergone without alcohol, is generally admitted by most people who have made the trial.

It appears certain that from 70 to 80 per cent of crime, 80 to 90 per cent of all poverty, and from 10 to 40 per cent of the suicides in most civilized countries, are to be ascribed to alcohol. Surely the day is past when upon dietetic grounds there is any indispensable case for the moderate or habitual use of alcoholic beverages. If we summarize the most recent scientific conclusions as to alcohol and its action on the human system, they will be somewhat as follows:—

It is not found in Nature, nor provided by her as a necessity of animal life.

It predisposes to disease; deranges the constitution of the blood; unduly excites the heart and circulation; paralyzes the minute blood-vessels; impairs the function of the digestive organs; disturbs the regularity of nerve-actions; lowers the animal temperature; lessens muscular power; is not a food; the highest health and longevity are attainable without it.

With so much evidence of the evils of alcohol, and such scientific expressions against its use in the animal economy, it is high time that the profession of medicine should speak about it from the scientific aspect of the question.

For a man to say that he takes alcohol because he likes it, regardless of the consequences to health which it entails, or the possibility of a drunkard's grave, is at any rate honest; but when he says he takes it as a food, because his doctor tells him it is so, and is a necessity, then he defies science and brings a reproach on the profession of scientific medicine.—Condensed from Westminster Review for Literary Digest.

CHICAGO INTER-OCEAN.

Perhaps never in the history of modern journalism has any newspaper gained so rapidly in public favor as the Chicago Inter Ocean. Within the past two years it has, by adopting progressive methods and injecting push and enterprise in all its departments forced itself into the very front rank of great Chicago newspapers. That this popularity is deserved is beyond question. The publisher during this time, Mr. H. H. Kohlsaat, has spared neither expense nor effort to attain his ideal—and he has succeeded.

Uncompromisingly Republican on all National issues, The Inter Ocean does battle for what it believes to be the true faith in a manner that at once commands the attention of the public and respect of all. It can be recommended to those who desire a clean, reliable, enterprising metropolitan family newspaper.

MR. W. T. STEAD, the distinguished London editor, has been in America for some weeks, a part of which time has been spent in Canada. Mr. Stead has long been a warm friend of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, and his recent sojourn at Ottawa as the guest of the Governor-General has resulted in a very readable and complete character sketch of Lord Aberdeen and his accomplished wife, which appears in the January number of the Review of Reviews. The article is one which will be interesting in North America on both sides of the boundary line and interesting also in Great Britain. The article is profusely and attractively illustrated. It is followed by a summarized report of the address given by Mr. Stead in Toronto upon the mission and destiny of Canada, in which Mr. Stead dwells especially upon the position of Canada as a connecting link between the British and American halves of the English-speaking race.

PECAN CULTURE IN MISSOURI.

A farmer in Mississippi county, Missouri, has ten acres of pecan trees that yield an income of $1,000 every year. The cost of gathering the nuts and caring for the trees is said to be not over $50 annually. Five years ago he cleared his land and secured his trees by digging the saplings out of the woods. In two years he had a crop large enough to pay for all the trouble incurred, and now the farmer is so tickled with his success that the orchard will be enlarged. In Southwest Missouri an experiment of like nature will be tried, but in that case the Italian qualities of the climate will be tested by an attempt at systematic chestnut culture.—Kansas City Times.

CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL.

I sell the Carbolic Smoke Ball, which I have never known to fail to cure Catarrh. It is compiled from the sworn testimony of Plaintiff's and Defendants' witnesses in the suit of the Reorganized Church versus the Hedrickite faction for the title to and possession of the Temple Lot property at Independence, Missouri.

The testimony of old Latter Day Saints who were with the church in its early days, who are now in the Reorganized Church, and in the Utah Church, besides that of leading officials of both churches, is given; also their statements under cross-examination and re-cross-examination.

Evidences from the three standard books, from other publications of the original church, from those of the Reorganized Church, from the Hedrickite faction, and from the published works of the Utah Church, are presented.

The arguments of counsel for Complainant, now in print, accompany the Abstract until the supply is exhausted.

FAITH OR REPENTANCE; WHICH IS FIRST?

In another column will be found a letter from Bro. Harry M. Atwell, in which the above question is asked, and we are requested to furnish scriptural warrant for the custom obtaining among elders of presenting faith first in their pulpit ministrations.

Several quotations from church standard works are made, which, to the brother's mind, convey the conviction that repentance has first place by right; hence his expressed "doubt," and appeal for a "thorough exegesis of the matter."

This latter request we may not be able to meet to the brother's satisfaction; but we venture a few thoughts as reasons for believing that faith leads. Before doing this, however, we frankly confess that so far as we have been able to see, the success of preaching does not depend upon a settlement of the question. Whatever view may be taken, if both the faith and the repentance be genuine, the mere fact of either having been named first in the elder's sermon cannot prove detrimental to the hearer who is moved to obedience thereby. If, on the other hand, obedience is not a result with the hearer, simply because of supposed irregularity in the order of the preacher's presentation of the two principles named, it may safely be concluded that such hearer is of the class who "make a man an offender for a word."

The brother has kindly given us Webster's definition of repentance in part. We here add another part from the same authority, which while agreeing with the first, furnishes the significant emphasis that rightly belongs to the word as found in the Bible:—

(Theological.) To be sorry for sin as morally evil, and to seek forgiveness; to cease to love and practice sin.

Webster further gives as an illustration the following quotation from Rambler, which we believe to be directly in point and correct:—

Repentance is the relinquishment of any practice from the conviction that it has offended God. Sorrow, fear, and anxiety, are properly not parts, but adjuncts of repentance; yet they are too closely connected with it to be easily separated.

In support of this we quote Paul to the Corinthians:—

Now I rejoice, not that ye were made sorry, but that ye sorrowed to repentance. . . . For godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of: but the sorrow of the world worketh death. For behold this self-same thing, that ye sorrowed after a godly sort, what carefulness it wrought in you, what clearing of yourselves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, what vehement desire, yea, what zeal, yea, what revenge! In all things ye have approved yourselves to be clear in this matter.

Here a distinction is made between sorrow and repentance, one evidently leading to the other, and the definition of the latter being simply reformation. The context also shows that the moving factor which resulted in their sorrow and reform was a letter which the apostle had written the Corinthians. Their confidence in what that letter contained developed the after conditions of regret and improvement, or of obedience, as the fifteenth verse reveals. The natural "intelligence" of the Corinthians was not affected by what Paul wrote; but their faith regarding certain matters was either begotten or revived, and the exercise of it produced "godly sorrow," which in turn led to "repentance"—reform. Which then was first?

Peter, on Pentecost day, commanded his hearers to repent, by which he evidently meant reform; for they were "devout men out of every nation under heaven," but without confidence concerning Jesus. The Holy Spirit through the apostles threw new light on the Scriptures. David's prophecy took on new significance under the preaching, and "when they heard this they were pricked to the heart and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?" Then came the command to "Repent, and be baptized." Doubtless these people would rank with those of whom Brother Atwell says, "Every man has been given intelligence and a sufficient amount of it to enable him to distinguish between good and evil;" yet after all the signs, and wonders, and miracles wrought by Christ among them, they had taken him "and with wicked hands had crucified and slain" him, not believing him to be the Lord. It remained for the preaching on Pentecost to produce that belief. "When they heard this" they became convicted—they believed.

How significant here the words of Paul to the Romans:—

Faith cometh by hearing.—Rom. 10: 17.
It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe.—1 Cor. 1: 21.

Believe what? Why, the preaching. But what were they to preach? Our brother quotes, "say nothing but repentance." If, then, they were to preach "repentance," and salvation comes by believing the preaching, it would look as though faith in the preaching preceded action upon it, or repentance. That "they were pricked to the heart," implies conviction; conviction implies faith in what they heard. Pursuing this thought further we read:—

For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach except they be sent? . . . So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God.

Observe the order here: First, the minister is sent to preach. (Suppose repentance to be his theme.) Second, upon hearing the word preached, the hearer believes. Third, he calls upon God (repents) and is saved. If faith comes by hearing the word of God and the word of God is "repent," is a man likely to repent before he believes the word? It would seem to us that the very command to preach repentance implies a necessity for such preaching, and if the necessity exist, it must be because men will not understand it without preaching. This conclusion presumes that ordinary intelligence in man is only the quality or element upon which it is intended to operate by preaching, in order to beget faith in the necessity for repentance—the thing preached. No honest man will be likely to repent, or do what the preacher advises, until he believes it to be proper or necessary, hence faith must precede in the hearer; and if so in fact, why not in order of preaching? This reasoning is upon the assumed position that repentance is the first theme of preaching; but we do not admit the assumption for we read that "without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him."

It will readily be conceded that the "coming to God" here referred to can only be by obedience; hence we conclude from this passage that faith is an absolute necessity in inspiring the obedience of which repentance is a part. All intelligent effort, looking to the salvation of the party engaged, bases its hope upon the idea of pleasing God and reaping results. This presupposes faith in his existence, justice, and benevolence. We can hardly conceive of intelligent repentance without motive or incentive, and it is equally difficult for us to conceive of the latter without faith. But, admitting its possibility, it could not be acceptable, for we read that "whatsoever is not of faith is sin."

We submit this from the Book of Mormon:—

And now as I said concerning faith: Faith is not to have a perfect knowledge of things; therefore if ye have faith, ye hope for things which are not seen, which are true. And now, behold, I say unto you; and I would that ye should remember that God is merciful unto all who believe on his name; therefore he desireth, in the first place, that ye should believe, yea, even on his word. . . . Now as I said concerning faith—that it was not a perfect knowledge, even so it is with my words. Ye cannot know of their surety at first, unto perfection, any more than faith is a perfect knowledge. But behold, if ye will awake and arouse your faculties, even to an experiment upon my words, and exercise a part of faith; yea, even if ye can no more than desire to believe, let this desire work in you, even until ye believe in a manner that ye can give place for a portion of my words.—Alma 16: 21, 22.

Here we have Alma as a preacher, enjoining repentance (see verse 20, line 5), but explaining that faith was desired of God in the first place. The preacher then, in the following verses, represents the word as seed sown in the heart, which is admitted by faith on the part of the hearer, and which swells and germinates, yielding fruit in obedience.

Many of Alma's hearers came to him after his sermon and asked for further instruction, desiring among other things to know how they should begin the exercise of their faith. (See verse 25.) This called forth a lengthy reply in which they were urged to "begin to believe in the Son of God, that he will come to redeem his people, and that he shall suffer and die to atone for their sins." (Verse 26.) A "personal acquaintance with 'Jesus' in the strict sense of the word is nowhere insisted upon, either before or after repentance, by any preacher with whom we are acquainted. All that is required, as in the day when Philip instructed the Eunuch (Acts 8: 37), is that men shall believe in Jesus as the Christ. Such faith, if genuine, accepts the words of Jesus as authority, and "Repent, and be baptized," is obeyed, thus revealing the fruit of faith. The question of time—before or after Christ's appearing—does not affect the case, for we read:—

And the Lord God sent his holy prophets among all the children of men to declare these things to every kindred, nation, and tongue, that thereby whosoever should believe that Christ should come, the same might receive remission of their sins, and rejoice with exceeding great joy, even as though he had already come among them.—Mosiah 1: 14.

Should anything more explicit be required we offer the following:—

And there is none other salvation save this which hath been spoken of; neither are there any conditions whereby man can be saved, except the conditions which I have told you: Believe in God; believe that he is, and that he created all things, both in heaven and earth; believe that he has all wisdom and all power, both in heaven and in earth; believe that man doth not comprehend all the things which the Lord can comprehend.

And again:—

Believe that ye must repent of your sins and forsake them, and humble yourselves before God; and ask in sincerity of heart that he would forgive you; and now, if you believe all these things, see that ye do them.

Comment on this is really needless, for it is the order of reason to believe in God, as having authority to command, before we honor his commands. It is the part of nature to wait for some inducement before investing in any enterprise, religious or otherwise, and some degree of confidence or faith must be reposed in the proposition before the mind, else the inducement would not inspire activity. The man who repents in a gospel sense, does so from conviction that God has required it. It is one of the ways by which he comes to God obediently, and if the apostle wrote correctly when stating that "he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him;" then faith in God and in the reward of obedience is the impelling force, otherwise it is vain service. For a man to pretend to "repentance toward God," without believing that God is, if such a thing were possible, would be sin, for as we have shown, "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin." From Romans 2: 4, we learn that the "goodness of God leadeth . . . to repentance;" we believe gospel repentance to be an intelligent service, and if it is inspired by the goodness of God, it must be preceded by a consciousness of that goodness. Such consciousness is to us inseparable from faith in the being whose goodness is appreciated. But again we read:—

For the gate by which ye should enter is repentance and baptism by water: and then cometh a remission of your sins by fire, and by the Holy Ghost. . . . And now, my beloved brethren, after ye have gotten into this straight and narrow path, I would ask if all is done? Behold, I say unto you, Nay; for ye have not come thus far, save it were by the word of Christ, with unshaken faith in him, relying wholly upon the merits of him who is mighty to save.—2 Nephi 13: 4, 5.

Here the order of Paul's writing is repeated. They had heard the word of Christ, then faith came, "unshaken faith," "wholly relying upon the merits" of Christ. By this they had been led "thus far;" viz., to repentance, baptism, and confirmation. We might settle the matter right here if desired by presenting the words of the verse following those above cited:—

And now behold my beloved brethren, this [as above shown.—Ed.] is the way, and there is none other way or name given under heaven, whereby man can be saved in the kingdom of God. And now behold, this is the doctrine of Christ, and the only and true doctrine of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost which is one God, without end. Amen.

Before turning from the Book of Mormon, however, we submit another passage for consideration:—

And behold this is the whole meaning of the law; [of Moses.—Ed.] every whit pointeth to the great and last sacrifice; and that great and last sacrifice will be the Son of God; yea infinite and eternal; and thus he shall bring salvation to all those who shall believe on his name; this being the intent of this last sacrifice, to bring about the bowels of mercy, which overpowereth justice, and bringeth about means unto men that they may have faith unto repentance, . . . while he that exercises no faith unto repentance is exposed to the whole law of the demands of justice; therefore only unto him that has faith unto repentance is brought about the eternal plan of redemption. Therefore may God grant unto you my brethren that ye may begin to exercise your faith unto repentance, that ye may begin to call upon his holy name that he would have mercy upon you.—Alma 16: 28.

That in some instances, perhaps many, the word repent occurs before the word believe we admit; but in many cases, also, the word believe is not mentioned at all. The command to believe, however, may be found just as often, where repentance is not named, and the same may be said of baptism; but this fact cannot safely be employed as a reason for believing that faith is secondary as an operative principle leading unto salvation, any more than as an evidence that neither faith nor baptism is necessary at all because not named in all places where repentance is commanded. The conditions attending each instance justified the utterance used. There can be no use in talking "repentance toward God" to one who believes not in God or Christ. Baptism would be equally out of place. The command for either of these brings no consciousness of obligation to a disbeliever in their author; but once a man is made to believe that God is, repentance may consistently be taught him, then baptism and the laying on of hands as a means of pleasing God and confirming himself in his belief.

Thus the apostles proceeded. Peter needed not to teach belief to the inquirers at Pentecost, for belief was discerned in them, in that they "were pricked in their hearts" because of faith in what he had preached. It was wise, however to tell them what came next, hence he said "repent." Ananias was not under the necessity of teaching either repentance or faith to Saul, for both of these were clearly discernible in him, hence the command to be baptized and wash away his sins was in regular order. Peter and John needed not to preach faith, repentance, or baptism to the Samaritans (Acts 8) for all these had already been developed, hence the laying on of hands was their theme and observance.

It is folly to preach faith in God's existence to a man who is a believer therein, it is equally foolish to talk the need of repentance to one whose life is already made sad by consciousness of wrongdoing, and whose hourly struggle is to reform. Nor is it any less inconsistent to exhort a man to be baptized and confirmed by the laying on of hands who is already legally within the fold. "Wisdom is justified of her children."

We confess to a little surprise, however, at our brother quoting 2 Nephi 6: 9 in support of his position. And our surprise is heightened at the suddenness with which he stopped. We find fault with our friends on other faiths for stopping too soon when making quotations, because they rob the texts of their signification thereby; but any of them might easily, and to good effect, retaliate upon the brother in this instance. He quotes, "and he commandeth all men that they must repent and be baptized in his name." Will the brother please notice that only a comma appears at the end of his last word in the Book of Mormon, and the rest of the sentence continues, "having perfect faith in the Holy One of Israel, or they cannot be saved in the kingdom of God." By giving the sentence complete, the position he is inclined to question would have been supported. "What God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." Hence as faith in the text referred to, is wedded to repentance, and evidently did the wooing, we will not divorce them.

Jesus did not seem to observe any particular rule of precedence in the naming of these two principles, for we find him saying on one occasion:—

I bear record that the Father commandeth all men everywhere to repent and believe in me.—Nephi 5: 8.

Yet in the course of the same address he repeats himself thus:—

And behold I have given you the law and the commandments of my Father, that ye shall believe in me, and that ye shall repent of your sins, and come unto me with a broken heart and a contrite spirit.—Verse 10.

This variation or reversal proves, if anything, that the order of presentation is not vital to the issue involved, at least under such circumstances as then confronted him. Those present had seen him and the wounds in his body.

By reference to Jonah 2: 5 and Matthew 12:41, in connection, we find the order to be, first preaching, then faith or belief among the hearers, then repentance and salvation from calamity. In Acts 19:18, 19, we find Paul preaching, many believing, and then repentance manifested, (destroying their unholy property,) to be the order.

Hebrews 6: 1-3, cited by the brother, is part of an address written to believers—saints—who had become to some degree slothful or negligent. The verses preceding and those following evidence this fact. The counsel given, in which repentance is first named, is couched in peculiar language. "Not laying AGAIN the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God." We take it that the "foundation" referred to was sin in returning to "dead works" under the old law from which they had once been delivered. Their first duty therefore was repentance, on the basis of which they might have "faith toward God" that he would restore them to his favor. The apostle simply exhorts them to avoid the necessity for such things by advancing instead of retrograding. This ought not to be considered as a condition similar to that occupied by those to whom the gospel is first presented, and in whom faith in that gospel must first be begotten by "hearing." We so think, at least.

The brother cites from the Inspired Translation verses 54, 61, 62, and 63, of Genesis, chapter 6. We give the verses below in their order:—

54. And our father Adam spake unto the Lord, and said, Why is it that men must repent, and be baptized in water?

61-63. Therefore I give unto you a commandment to teach these things freely unto your children, saying, that by reason of transgression cometh the fall, which fall bringeth death; and inasmuch as ye were born into the world by water and blood, and the Spirit which I have made, and so became of dust a living soul; even so must ye be born again into the kingdom of heaven, of water, and of the Spirit, and be cleansed by blood, even the blood of mine Only Begotten; that ye might be sanctified from all sin; and enjoy the words of eternal life in this world, and eternal life in the world to come; even immortal glory. For, by the water ye keep the commandment; by the Spirit ye are justified; and by the blood ye are sanctified.

This time we will need to go back a couple of verses in order to find the part affecting the question under discussion; viz.: Which principle comes first—faith or repentance. Beginning with verse 51 we read:—

But God hath made known unto our fathers that all men must repent. And he called upon our Father Adam, by his own voice, saying, I am God; I made the world and men before they were in the flesh. And he also said unto him, If thou wilt turn unto me and hearken unto my voice, and believe, and repent of all thy transgressions, and be baptized, even in water, in the name of mine only begotten Son, who is full of grace and truth, which is Jesus Christ, the only name which shall be given under heaven whereby salvation shall come unto the children of men; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, asking all things in his name and whatsoever ye shall ask it shall be given you.

Then follows verse 54, as above.

Here we have Paul's order again: first hearken, then believe, repent, and be baptized. We see no difference between this announcement and the one made on Pentecost, except, perhaps, that this one was made by God's voice direct and the other by the Holy Ghost through Peter. But we are asked, "Did these folks in Adam's time or in Nephi's time have a faith begotten in them by a personal acquaintance with Jesus?" We answer that nothing has been presented to show that any man's faith was ever begotten by a personal acquaintance with Jesus. The word is that "no man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost."—1 Cor. 12: 3.

The Holy Ghost, as shown, comes after baptism; baptism follows repentance; repentance is the product of faith; "faith comes by hearing;" hearing the word is a consequence of preaching; preaching is done by those sent. But we are told, in effect, that if no "personal acquaintance with Jesus" created the faith in those in Adam and Nephi's time, then "down goes that theory so deftly adhered to by a great number." What theory? Why, that "when Peter stood up and said, 'Repent and be baptized every one of you,' he was talking to a people who had already begotten a faith in Christ." It may be even so, but if so, we are too obtuse to sense it. If one case is affected by the other we fail to see wherein.

Matthew 3: 17, is offered in evidence. It reads:—

From that time Jesus began to preach and to say, Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

We had always thought that this presupposed a faith in the people as to the kingdom of heaven's approach at some day, and the object was to convince by evidence available that that day had arrived. It is admissible to believe that when Jesus "began to preach" he set forth facts for their consideration regarding that kingdom and his connection therewith. These things they were required to believe, and repentance was to be in attestation of their faith.

It is hardly supposable that the command to "repent" would be heeded by those who believed not in the authority of the commander. The commission given to the apostles, when sent into all the world, was to "preach the gospel to every creature." Suppose we conclude that they were to preach "repentance," for that certainly must have been part of the gospel. Then what follows? "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Believeth what? Why, the gospel they heard these apostles preach. Well, what had they heard? Repentance! So it resolves itself thus: "He that believeth in repentance, and is baptized shall be saved." Will that give repentance first place in the hearer? It would look as though he must at least believe that repentance was right first, and if so, what was there in Christ's and the apostles' preaching to show the hearer that repentance was right? Can we leave God or Christ out of preaching and yet show need for repentance? If we do, it is not gospel preaching; if we do not, then God and Christ are the objects of faith, towards whom repentance is shown, and faith in their existence and authority must precede obedience to their command to repent.

As fitting texts to place alongside those referred to in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants by the brother, we suggest the following:—

Wherefore the almighty God gave his only begotten Son, . . . that as many as would believe and be baptized in his holy name, and endure in faith to the end should be saved: not only those who believed after he came in the meridian of time in the flesh but all those from the beginning even as many as were before he came, who believed in the words of the holy prophets, who spake as they were inspired by the gift of the Holy Ghost, who truly testified of him in all things, should have eternal life, as well as those who should come after. . . . And we know that all men must repent and believe on the name of Jesus Christ . . . or they cannot be saved in the kingdom of God . . . and the Lord God has spoken it.—D. C. 17: 5, 6.

For this very purpose are these plates preserved which contain these records, that the promises of the Lord might be fulfilled which he made to his people, and that the Lamanites might come to the knowledge of their fathers, and that they might know the promises of the Lord, and that they might believe the gospel and rely upon the merits of Jesus Christ and be glorified through faith on his name, and that through their repentance they might be saved.—D. C. 4: 6.

And behold, whosoever believeth on my words them will I visit with the manifestation of my Spirit and they shall be born of me, even of water and of the Spirit . . . for a desolating scourge shall go forth among the inhabitants of the earth . . . if they repent not.—D. C. 4: 3.

I will gather mine elect from the four quarters of the earth, even as many as will believe in me and hearken to my voice . . . open your mouths and they shall be filled, saying repent. . . . Behold, verily, verily, I say unto you, this is my gospel, and remember that they shall have faith in me or they can in no wise be saved.—D. C. 32: 2, 3.

I am Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who was crucified for the sins of the world, even as many as will believe on my name, that they may become the sons of God.—D. C. 34: 1.

In each of these the order of the brother's references is reversed, and we think sufficient evidence is found in them to at least remove the "doubt" under which he has labored; but lest such is not the case, we offer the following which to us are clear cut and explicit:—

Take upon you mine ordinances, even that of an elder, to preach faith and repentance, and remission of sins, according to my word, and the reception of the Holy Spirit by the laying on of hands.—D. C. 54: 2.

Wherefore I give unto you a commandment that ye go among this people and say unto them like unto mine apostle of old, whose name was Peter: Believe on the name of the Lord Jesus, who was on the earth, and is to come, the beginning and the end; repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, according to the holy commandment for the remission of sins; and whoso doeth this, shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, by the laying on of hands of the elders of this church.—D. C. 49: 2.

We have extended this "exegesis" beyond the ordinary limits of editorials for the reason that we were aware of the brother's statement being correct; namely, that the Saints generally have observed the order set forth in the last quotation we have given above, and for the general good we were anxious to show to what extent the books supported it though we have not made a complete canvass. We are now confirmed in the opinion that such order has had and will have the sanction of the Spirit, though as stated in the beginning, we do not believe that the success of gospel preaching is made dependent upon the invariable observance of that order when enumerating the first principles in our ministrations. We do believe it however to be the legitimate order of their acceptance by all who are made rightful heirs under the gospel covenant, and are glad to know that the teaching of the ministry is almost uniformly in accordance therewith. In this lengthy article we may not have met the request of Bro. Atwell fully; but we have at least assigned our reasons for thinking differently from him and that too in good faith and with cheerful feeling.

"TO THE MINISTRY."

BRETHREN in the field under General Conference appointment are requested to not overlook the notice of Bro. H. A. Stebbins, Church Secretary, in this issue of the HERALD, entitled, "To the ministry."

Bro. Stebbins calls attention to the action of last conference which provides that ministry reports shall be sent to the Church Secretary before the conference convenes, in order that they may be issued by the publishing department as a supplement to the HERALD and be placed in the hands of members of the General Conference in printed form.

We repeat his statement that prompt compliance with the action of conference will be necessary to insure the insertion of all reports, and in their order. Reports should be in the secretary's hands not later than March 15. The General Conference season is a busy time at the Herald Office. The brethren will assist the office in its work and insure the publication of their reports by sending them in good time. Otherwise they may be omitted.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. J. H. WELLS, Knobnoster, Missouri, January 6:—

In am in the field all the time, preaching to these old mossbacks. Good interest and big crowds.

Bro. D. L. Shinn wrote from Adamston, West Virginia, the 1st inst.:—

I have been having excellent times in Doddridge and Calhoun counties. Two of excellent repute were baptized, and from all appearances many more are coming over to us. I am more firmly established than ever in the faith, if anything.

Sr. M. Woodstock, Johnstown, Wisconsin, January 4:—

We are some of the isolated ones, being about fourteen miles from the place of meeting. We prize the church publications which we loan to our neighbors, hoping they will learn and obey the gospel. I hope and pray to be guided in training my boys—five of them—in the way they should go, and bring them into the fold. If when they were small I had had such precious advice as we now have in the Home Column, perhaps I might have done better; but I was then too prejudiced to read. I hope God will forgive and help me.

Bro. R. M. Miller, Olathe, Kansas, January 6:—

I am where I cannot get to church. I would like to be where I could meet with the Saints. I am a poor boy and have a hard time.

Bro. C. G. Lanphear, Sandwich, Illinois, January 6:—

I am trying to do what I can in the gospel cause when called upon by officials of the branch and ministry.

Bro. J. Scott wrote from San Bernardino, California, December 30:—

The work is improving here. I think the officers are realizing more the importance of occupying in the positions to which they have been called. The sisters have organized a branch of the Daughters of Zion. There is a great work before them.

Bro. C. H. Jones was at St. Louis, Missouri, the 9th inst., whence he wrote thus:—

We are getting along nicely here; the Lord has been with and has favored us. Brn. Luff and Bozarth were in the city and we held forth for some two weeks. The word was spoken in power and an interest has been awakened. Eight were baptized, the Saints were strengthened, and we are all encouraged. Our conference was a pleasant one. Bro. M. T. Short was with us and spoke words of cheer. We are now at Cheltenham where Bro. Short speaks for us to-night. He leaves for his field to-morrow. I shall remain if the interest continues. I trust the elders will be upheld by the prayers of God's people.

Sr. Y. Shannon orders Sunday school supplies to Stratford, Ontario. She writes January 8:—

Bro. R. C. Evans, his wife, and family were with us for a few days during the holiday season. He organized a Sunday school for us and preached one of the best sermons that it has ever been our privilege to listen to. Some who never heard the gospel were greatly pleased with it. He is to return in the near future and remain some time, when we expect much good will be done. There are about eighteen Saints here, and all are very much in earnest.

Sr. Polly L. Hyde wrote January 6 from Belmont, New York:—

I am alone in the faith here, but am encouraged to read how the work is gaining ground. I joined the church when young, being confirmed by Father Smith, father of Joseph Smith the Martyr. I wish the elders would come into this part of the State. My soul is in the work. I request your prayers.

Bro. W. B. Weston, Phoenix, Nebraska, January 7:—

I have baptized three since August 19; two at Clearwater, one in my neighborhood, at Turner. Two of them are heads of families.

Bro. F. L. Thompson, Springdale, Arkansas, January 10:—

We have found quite a community of Adventists and they propose to convert us. We do not propose to yield easily.

Bro. John Smith wrote from New Bedford, Massachusetts, January 10, as follows:—

There is considerable sickness in this vicinity at present; many suffering from lagrippe, which brings in its train other diseases, and an unusual number of aged persons are its victims. My wife is very feeble from its effects at present; but I thank God that he through Jesus Christ "hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." The times are perilous in industrial centers, with no visible prospect of any improvement.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. HEMAN C. SMITH wishes us to state to the brethren of Western Iowa and others that he will commence a series of meetings on the 14th inst. at Persia, Iowa, to continue a week or more, and will spend the remainder of the winter in Western Iowa and Eastern Nebraska. Any of the brethren needing and desiring his help can address him through the post office at Lamoni, or until the 20th inst. at Persia, Harrison county, Iowa.

Bro. Nicholas Stamm is filling appointments near Grimes, Polk county, Iowa.

Bro. Henry Sparling wrote from Cabool, Missouri, the 6th inst. He is laboring in Willow Springs, Burnham, and at points near by. Some of our people are suffering from lagrippe, but those who keep the Word of Wisdom have the lightest attacks. The work is onward.

Bro. Hubert Case, of Moorhead, Iowa, writes, wishing to inform co-workers that the Lord is raising up an army of young men and women to carry on the work. Wise and efficient labor by Brn. J. F. Mintun and F. A. and H. C. Smith, has increased their ranks and greatly strengthened the Saints in that part of the field.

Letters from Bro. E. A. Erwin and Sr. S. Richardson state that the Saints of the Manchester, Texas, branch intend to build another house of worship, their chapel having been destroyed by fire some time ago. The faith is being better understood and the influence of the Saints is constantly increasing as prejudice disappears.

Bro. James Peat, of West Berkeley, California, writes of his conversion and obedience to the faith; of his present spiritual enjoyment in contrast with what he once experienced in other religious bodies. He will do what he can for others who are without light.

Bro. Isaac Vernon, of New Straitsville, Ohio, writes for the HERALD. He was baptized in September by Bro. H. R. Harder. We are obliged to omit his excellent letter with many other good ones that have been crowded out.

Sr. Melissa Wasson, residing at Linden, Guthrie county, Iowa, wishes the Iowa ministry to labor there.

Bro. M. J. Brunson, of Hannah, Michigan, appreciates the work and writes of the good it constantly brings to him.

Bishop E. L. Kelley arrived home from Kansas City on Friday, the 6th inst. He states that the Temple Lot suit has been postponed until February 6.

Bro. Roderick May, Bishop's agent of the Independence district, requests the Saints of that district to take notice that he has arranged to receive tithes and offerings of produce and other merchandise as well as of money. See his notice in the Miscellaneous Department.

Sr. M. P. Matthews, of Fort Madison, Iowa, presents that place as one in need of missionary labor by elders passing between Burlington and Montrose.

Bro. D. H. McKown, of Anthon, Woodbury county, Iowa, requests a visit from some of the Iowa missionaries. The Christian church can be had for services. He wants a "good" elder; one well prepared to meet the probable opposition of the Christian or Campbellite philosophy.

A number of good letters have been crowded out of the present issue of the HERALD. They will be published or noted in our next number, as demands upon our space permit.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Whatever your work and whatever its worth,
No matter how strong or clever,
Some one will sneer if you pause to hear,
And scoff at your best endeavor."

But if we are firm in the cause of truth,
Remember the Lord has spoken:
And the countless ages of God are hers;
His covenant cannot be broken.

REPRESENTATIVE MEN AND WOMEN.

THE world to-day numbers her representative men and women by scores. High up on the roll of fame—fame won upon various fields and in many ways—these names are enrolled, but preëminently among these stand out a few like bright glittering stars in the midst of clustering thousands gathering around them. These men and women have blessed the world in their day and generation, and have not only spoken for the thousands who could not speak for themselves, but have bent all the energies of their minds, bodies, and souls, to the task of cheering and helping others over the rough places of life and encouraging them to do and to dare.

The Lord sent deliverance to his captive, enslaved people by the hands of Moses and Aaron, but were they ready when delivered to enter the promised land? History tells us of forty years' wandering in the wilderness, before they were permitted to enter it. In this day also God sends out his servants to gather in from the world those who will yield obedience to the gospel. What, then; are his people ready for his coming? Let the condition of the church answer. Has not the commandment been given, "Come up higher"?

To deliver his ancient people God sent only his servants Moses and Aaron, but when it became necessary to prepare them for entering into the promised land we learn through Micah, the prophet, that God sent before them Moses, Aaron, and Miriam. (See Micah 6:4.) Miriam was but the representative of the part and work required of woman in that dispensation, just as Moses and Aaron were representative men. In the gospel dispensation, Phebe, and a host of others who might be mentioned, were representative women and in this last dispensation, Emma Smith was chosen of God and ordained under the hands of her husband for a like work, and we are firmly persuaded that if the church had sustained her in the position to which God called her, the latter-day apostasy never could have taken place.

We have referred to these facts as indicating basic principles in regard to God's plan of redemption; and in that plan we find ever, that when the church was closest in communion with God, then woman was recognized as a help, not only in the sacred relations of home, but also in the work of the gospel. But upon the other hand, when in any dispensation the church departed from God, then the position of woman was changed and she was more or less looked upon as being the inferior of man.

God sent Miriam before his ancient people. Paul commanded the saints to assist Phœbe in her work (and we understand by this that they were to honor her in her calling), and in this last dispensation again as in the time of Moses, God sent Emma Smith to go before the sisters of the church to do among them the work needing to be done by woman, and she was just as much to be honored in her calling as was Joseph in his, and her work was just as important in its place as was her husband's; and if she and her work had been honored the church might have been saved from apostasy.

Your earnest faith and prayers are requested by Bro. and Sr. Edwards, of Charter Oak, Iowa, in behalf of their little daughter, Olive, who is greatly afflicted.

Bro. Teagarden, of Beaver, Texas, earnestly requests your faith and prayers that God may restore the members of his family to health and strength. They have been sorely afflicted for months with typhoid fever and some of the children are still suffering.

BURNHAM, Missouri.

Dear Sisters:—I have been a member of the church two years and a half. My husband and I were baptized the same day. He is an elder and spends all his time in the ministry, and that leaves me very lonely. I have received many blessings from our heavenly Father since I embraced the gospel, for which I am very thankful. We have a branch here of several members and have preaching semi-monthly, prayer meeting semiweekly, and Sunday school every Sunday. We have no sisters' Prayer Union or Daughters of Zion organized in our branch. I would be glad if we could have both, and would do all I could to keep them up. I send you my name for enrollment with the Daughters of Zion, and if we never have enough here to organize my prayers will be with you.

I am the mother of four small children, and as my companion is only at home on visits, it leaves me the greater responsibility of training our little ones in the way they should go. I feel that I need much instruction and I think if the mothers of each community would confer together in regard to child-training we might avoid many mistakes. My prayers are for all God's people, but especially for the missionaries' wives and children. Pray for me. Your sister,

JUDAH WARD.

[If there are but two, there are enough to meet, pray, and take up the work of Daughters of Zion. Think it over, read our programme in the HERALD of January 3, and try it.—Ed.]

A VISION AND ITS FULFILLMENT.

IN the year 1883 I was taken very sick and could not rest or sleep. I had lain awake for thirteen days and nights with the exception of one day while they were eating dinner I went to sleep for a few minutes, but that evil power that was trying to overcome me soon awoke me. I had the elders administer to me several different times, but seemingly without much effect. I would feel better for awhile but would soon be worse again. The thirteenth night as I lay awake, (all having retired except my husband, he being very weary with watching by my bedside, said he would lie down awhile to rest, but he went to sleep,) the room being quiet, and I, feeling no better, began to pray to our heavenly Father to know why I was so held down with sickness and why I could get no relief or sleep. While I was praying there came into the room three persons. They were in the images of men and wore dark clothing, but wore no hats. They were crowned with a bright halo or light around and above their heads which filled the room with light on the side where they were (the lamp having been turned down shone very dimly). They arranged themselves along the wall on the opposite side of the room from where I was. I watched them, wondering what they were going to do or what they came for. I had no fear of them and thought they looked beautiful, but yet there seemed to be something that was not right about them. Of the first one that came in I could see his whole body, of the second one I could see only from just below the hips up, the third only from the waist up. They were all smiling and looked very pleasant. The one with the whole body reached out his hand and came toward me to shake hands with me; but while he was advancing I again prayed to God that he would give me the gift of discernment that I might know whether these were angels of light or of darkness (for I was impressed that they were angels). As soon as I had prayed for this gift there came a light streaming in at the window by my bedside, much clearer and brighter than the other, and bringing such a calm, peaceful influence with it. While I was looking at this grand sight I heard a voice in the midst of it which said, "I am your God. Put your whole trust in me. Though you will be brought nigh unto death's door, yet if you will put your trust in me I will raise you up." When I again looked toward the three persons they were no longer smiling, nor was the light around them shining any more, but all had turned to darkness around them. They looked very angry and turned to go. The first one as he turned to go out of the room shook his fist at me in rage and he seemed to be in great agony, so much so that his face became black and horrible to look at. He said to me, "As you see my body suffer so you shall suffer." He then went out.

The next one acted much the same and said, "As much of my body as you see suffer so you shall suffer." I could see his body only from just below the hips up. The last one acted about as the others, only I could see his body from the waist up. He also shook his fist at me as he turned to go and said, "As much as you see of my body suffer, so you shall suffer." And the impression that I received was that I would have to pass through three spells of sickness or burning fever before I would be raised from my bed of affliction.

The first seige came on me the next evening about sundown. I suffered terribly from my waist up, just as much of my body suffered as the last one that went out suffered. The fever lasted until the next evening, when it left me and I was better until the next evening. Then the second spell came over me and I suffered just as the second one did that went out from just below the hips up. It lasted until the next evening, and I was again better until the following evening. All this time relatives and neighbors were coming in to see me. I called for the elders to administer to me again. The folks were becoming alarmed at my condition. I was getting so weak that I could scarcely move my hands. I had up to this time told no one of what I had seen or heard concerning my sickness, but seeing my husband was getting very uneasy about me I told him that I had one more trial to pass through before I would get well, and that I knew I would get well if I did not put my trust in man, and call a physician, but would put my trust in God. He wanted to know how I knew I had another trial to pass through. I then told him it had been shown to me in a vision, and that the last one would be the most severe of all. That evening the last trial began with a burning in the soles of my feet which soon spread all over my body, except my eyes and ears. I could see and hear, but by the next day could not speak or move except my head just a little, enough to say no when my husband asked me whether I wanted a doctor. The neighbors tried to persuade my husband to send for a doctor, but he told them no, not unless I gave my consent. They told him that I was unconscious of what I said, and that if he did not get a doctor I would not live until night. He asked me again if I wanted a doctor but I shook my head. He told them he could not go against my will. They said I would die without any help (of course they did all they could for me). I could see and hear but could not make any sign to them to let them know that I was not unconscious. They were expecting my death any time but when evening came, to their great surprise I began to get better. I knew that I had been very near death's door, but I felt that all would be well with me if I trusted in my heavenly Father. And so it was, for in a short time I was up and able to do housework and take care of my three little children, the youngest then being only about six weeks old. To our Father in heaven be all the honor and praise for saving me from the evils of the adversary and from death. I was at that time twenty-one years old and had belonged to the church only three years. I have no relations who belong to the church.

CHILDREN'S RIGHTS.

MAY I enter your columns and say a few words? Not long ago I was called to visit a sick woman, and while there my heart and conscience were appealed to until every nerve was moved in sympathy for the children. Since then my mind has been drawn out in this direction, and I have felt impressed to write on this subject.

While there I was led to exclaim, "What right have you over your child? You have no right, not even the semblance of a right, to force the child into your own impulses, your own whims. You have no selfish rights at all, even if it be your own child. You have only received this innocent child into your temporary keeping, and the only right you have is to treat with reverence the trust committed to you, which you are to fill with the highest and noblest sense of responsibility which you can attain.

Some still cling to the idea that they have the sole right to the service of the brain and physical strength of a child as a source of their income.

Again, what rights have parents in regard to exacting immediate obedience on the part of the child and inflicting punishment? I think if parents (and when I speak of parents I mean father as well as mother, for the father has a great influence at home, or should have; then why blame the poor mother for all?) will look back carefully on their lives some will confess to themselves that where they have quickly said "yes" or "no" to a child, it has been a matter of thoughtless impulse instead of thinking what was best for the child or for the child's best interest.

I think you have only to train the child by love. Even force if it must be used, should be the expression of love, and to teach the child the noblest and highest ideas of right. Let the child feel that your example is the highest, the noblest, and that it is those qualities you wish to develop and cultivate in him. The matter of punishing children has in the past been carried to extremes, so much so that it could be classed with barbarism. Again we hear, "Spare the rod and spoil the child." This has been the cause of many an unhappy home. Do not take me to mean that I think the rod should not be used, but we should use it with wisdom, or I would rather reverse the saying if a parent is to punish a child merely because he feels like it.

Again, many parents confess that they punish their children under the impulse of anger, out of personal spite, and not as a result of the calm, deliberate judgment that they were doing for the child what was best and most beneficial to him. Before we punish a child we should tell him the reason and explain why we are going to do it, and the evil to result to him if we do not. Some may differ from me, but I have seen children who were never allowed to grow up, but were absorbed by the selfishness of parental love (?).

I have noticed mothers who stood in the way of their children's best future out of what they called love, but it was selfishness, there was no love about it, but was just sacrificing the welfare of the boy or girl for the desire to see them forever by their side.

Firmness has a great influence over a child. If they find out we will not yield when we tell them anything or make them a promise, the result is good. Should we not be just as careful to fulfill our promises to our children? Children are very keen and intelligent and can understand more than we give them credit for. Bind them by love that they may have the memory of a happy home in childhood. Consecrate them to their Maker. Teach them to have faith and trust him.

Your sister,
ALVA LEEA.

Dear Sisters:—I would like to say a few words for the Sabbath school. As there are so many excuses made by some for not attending the school I will just mention a few. One does "not like the way the school is conducted. The superintendent has done something I do not like, and while he is superintendent I won't go, and do not care to have my children go."

Another does not think the teacher worthy. "He has broken the Sabbath, or don't do just right in all things and I do not want him to teach my children."

Yet another, "My children are just as good as those that attend the school." Another, "The hour is too early. I cannot get up early enough to get my children ready. I work hard all the week and want to rest Sunday morning."

Now I believe that if we were as much interested in educating our children in the principles of the gospel as we are in getting a big day's work done on a week day, we could get up just as early Sunday mornings as of a week day, and we with our children would be on time for school, and ready to take a part in the school and help to make it interesting.

To those who stay at home because the school is not conducted right, I would say, Go to your schools and help conduct them. Give your counsel and advice in a brotherly way that the school may be conducted right.

To these who have children just as good as those that attend, Send them and let them help the school along and it will help them to improve and perhaps their good conduct will help others, for there is more taught by example than precept.

Then there are some of the Saints who think that if a person belongs to the Sabbath schools and they in company with a church member go astray and do things that are not right, they have done worse than the one that does not belong to the school, or at least they will say, "They are pretty Sunday school scholars!" Now I believe it is just as wrong for one as the other, and one has just as much to do as the other to overcome this fault.

As I understand it, it is a church work and is just as much one member's duty to be a Sunday school scholar as another's. Then I would say, Come and join the school. Put your shoulder to the wheel and help roll on this good work of studying the word of God and teaching it to our children and others that they may be better prepared to teach it in time to come than we are.

I wish the school had been organized years ago, then I believe we would be better prepared to defend the cause of Christ than we now are.

I think the Quarterlies should be in the house of every Latter Day Saint in the church, as they are such a help in studying the Scriptures, and I think also that every Latter Day Saint who is in reach of a Sabbath school, whether they are old or young, should be in that school.

Some claim we have no revelation concerning it; if we have not what did the Lord mean when he spoke to W. W. Phelps in 1831 concerning the selecting and writing of books for schools in the church, "that little children also may receive instruction before me as is pleasing unto me."

Well, I will close, hoping to hear from others who can do better than I, for I do not think we can say too much in favor of it.

I sign myself,
A FRIEND to the SABBATH SCHOOL.

Letter Department.

SHINNSTON, W. Va., Dec. 31.

Editors Herald:—I have been a reader of your columns since between two and three years before the death of Bro. Blakeslee. He sent it to me free, and I have been reading it and my good old Bible ever since. Dear Saints, I am nearing the shores of the great river of death and will soon cross over to rest with the dear ones gone before into the paradise of God.

I am strong in faith and can still testify that God has restored the authority to preach the gospel by the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven by sending a holy angel to Joseph Smith and others. This fact was confirmed to me by the Lord to my satisfaction about fifty-three years ago. I was told by one of the elders that the authority was restored to the earth, and that if I would call on the Lord I could learn this fact for myself. He said the Lord had heard and answered the prayers of others and would also hear me; and so I decided to call on the Lord for knowledge in humble prayer, and the Lord did hear and answer me. This is the way I became a Latter Day Saint. The first opportunity I got I called upon the elder to baptize me. His name was Samuel James. I was ordained an elder by him and Samuel Ewing. This was in the year 1840.

I continued to try in my weakness to fill the office of my calling. Elder George D. Watt was at my home when Joseph and Hyrum were killed, and when he got the news he started home for Nauvoo. After that the church appeared to be reorganized under Brigham Young, and we all fell out with him on account of polygamy.

I tried to stand faithful all through the dark days, until in 1880 I met with Elder Josiah Ells at my son's house in Clarksburg, West Virginia, and I united with the Reorganization on my original baptism. I am now in my eighty-first year and I am still comforted by the Spirit of the Lord, though I am so deaf I cannot hear preaching of any kind.

I am confident that this glorious gospel of our Lord and Master will triumph to the glory of God our heavenly Father and the eternal good of many of the honest in heart. I have only one son in the work, and now I cannot hear him preach any more at all. I am almost helpless, and poor in this world's goods. I cannot work to earn my living any more, and I am dependent on my children and friends. I ask the sympathy and prayers of God's people while I am permitted yet to tarry. "God hath chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom."

The dear Herald is a great help and comfort to me. This is the first (and it may be the last) that I have ever attempted to write for its columns; but my prayer is that it may long continue to cheer and instruct the children of God until the evening of the age comes on and the Lord of glory "shall descend from heaven with a shout and with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God."

In bonds of faith,

LAMONI, Iowa, Jan. 5.

Editors Herald:—With the opening of the new year, so near the conclusion of this notable century, a survey of the condition of the world, socially, politically, and religiously, may note plainly to all the increasing ominousness of the signs of the times. Remarkable events succeed each other with increasing rapidity the world over, and we cannot fail to see that we are being carried along to some destiny at a speed hitherto unparalleled. The agitation and fearful unrest take in their range all classes alike, both Gentiles and Jews.

South America, with its continually repeated revolutions, its mad rush to arms, renders it impossible for it to find rest. Blood and death, with all the horrors of war, rest over it like dark storm clouds with no intervening sunlight rays of hope or peace. In other parts of the earth where the war fiend is not so active, famine, as in Russia and Austria, is going forth conquering and to conquer, and taking by the hand epidemics; and death and hell are following in their wake causing not merely local but national disaster.

The whiskey demon is abroad, defying all "the powers that be" to bring him to armistice. Sorrow, tears, woe, and want, and crime, following in his wake. Anarchy is gathering strength, enlarging its borders, occasionally revealing its dark, devious course with riot and bomb, threatening the foundations of good government and peace; while the capital-labor problems and the financial stagnation now prevalent so unsettle business interests that great uncertainty and serious apprehension prevail almost entirely throughout the commercial world. These great problems so baffle the ablest statesmen of the nations that we are forcibly reminded that Jesus' prediction, "There shall be . . . distress of nations with perplexity," is being signally fulfilled, also the statement of Joseph the Seer; "All things shall be in commotion" (D. & C. 85: 25); and as the scandalous criminality in high and low places is developing, with governmental authorities, as recently in Germany in the robbing of the "Guelph fund," the Panama Canal scandal of France, whereby entire nations are involved, and political intrigue that everywhere manifests itself, we cannot fail to see the fulfillment of the prophecy: "And it shall come to pass, that there shall be a great work in the land even among the Gentiles, for their folly and their abominations shall be made manifest, in the eyes of all people, for I am God, and mine arm is not shortened."—D. & C. 34: 3.

These things, together with the quite universal agitation that prevails in religious circles,—that feeling for the foundation of religious superstructures, that realization by the people that something is lacking, the feeling of uncertainty,—convince us that a culmination is approaching, known, no doubt, as the "hour" of God's "judgment" on great Babylon; that it is at hand. One of the elements of judgment, and purpose, is a revelation, a bringing to light of hidden evils. "Their folly and their abominations shall be manifest [revealed] in the eyes of all people," as declared above.

The general state of the world is not encouraging, in many respects. Disintegrating elements are at work, separating, and dividing the people, bursting their political, and religious, and social bands asunder. The iron and clay will not mix. (Daniel 2.) Pulverized iron will not adhere as "mortar" anyway.

In the midst of all this babel, what of the fortunes and progress of the "little stone"? How is the latter-day work being affected by the present state of the world? Are the evil influences at work drawing the interest of the Saints from the gospel work, or does their interest in the cause deepen and intensify as the work moves on and the lines between "the two kingdoms" grow more intense and sharp? The children of the kingdom are armed with "the whole armor of God" and are in array "against the rulers of the darkness of this world." The war is one of holiness, righteousness, and godliness, against unholiness, unrighteousness, and evil of every character.

A greater degree of vigilance is demanded of all desiring to be Saints. Strict attention to the manual is demanded of all who would share in the victory awaiting the faithful. Shall we become "faint in our mind" or slacken our diligence, because the forces of evil are becoming more bold and desperate, more aggressive and determined? One thing is certain, comrades, the demand for labor is increasing. The widening field calls for "more laborers;" more honest and valiant-hearted men are needed. Labor for all departments of the Lord's army is demanded. Let us never forget, however, for a moment, that only those who strive lawfully are crowned. Let all Saints anxiously inquire, Can this increasing demand for laborers be to any extent supplied? Do we pray the Lord of the vineyard to send forth more laborers into the vineyard? and as we pray, Do we believe we are laborers together with God? And, are we laboring with him harmoniously with the law to the desired end? God is to "build up Zion" (Ps. 102: 16), but God will not build with "untempered mortar." He builds of living stones; "Zion shall be redeemed with judgment, and her converts with righteousness." "And Zion cannot be built up unless it is by the principles of the law of the celestial kingdom." The Lord's fiat is declared on this subject in these references. Shall we labor, then, in such a way as to not suffer loss at "the day" of fiery trial? (See D. C. 64: 5.)

Events in the great world are hastening, and results aggregating. Confidence in men generally is weakening; mistrust is at high tide in the world. This is proven by commercial wreckage. Government has not the power, morally and civilly, as hitherto.

Sixty per cent invested in armies and armor with only forty left for recuperative and staying purposes, is not an encouraging showing for governments on averaging things; yet such is the showing of recent statistics.

But is it the predicted "hastening time" of the church? Are we in haste to keep the divine commands, or do we receive them with doubtful hearts and observe them slothfully? How can the work hasten with us except we act diligently? Ancient Israel probed in the wilderness for forty years. Have we wandered a longer period? Much good has come to the church in the last year; experiences have been varied, but profitable, I believe. Her numbers have increased. Have knowledge and spiritual power been added? Has her unity been enlarged and strengthened? Her efforts of the near future will answer some of the foregoing interrogations, and far more decisively than can any stroke of the pen at this time. But what I wish to ask in brief, is, Are we as a church more able morally, mentally, spiritually, and financially to more nearly and fully respond to the demand required of us by darkened, benighted human souls who are longing with the intensity of those lost for the light and redemption that only the gospel in its fullness can bring to them? Let each Saint ponder this question and then answer to God and to himself, in the light of individual responsibility, with the knowledge that Christ has made us "the light of the world." And please remember that right here, with one stroke, Jesus comprehends every character of motive, and action, and word.

Are we "the light of the world"? and are we letting the gospel "light shine"? The eternal interests and welfare of human souls are here suspended. Right here the tide of the battle, so far as we are concerned, turns, and the direction it takes depends upon our acts. Here the ultimate weal of the church is hinged; and we are the church. Shall we act at once, decidedly, and accelerate the progress of the cause, or remain less active and retard the advancement of our glorious cause, and of God and of truth?

Of recent individual effort but few lines need be added. On October 12 I went to Afton, Iowa, where I labored till November 12, making headquarters at Bro. H. C. Hughes, who, with his faithful wife, stand for the defense of the work in every way available, having the respect of all who know them. Under the circumstances it was easy to preach there. I preached almost every evening while there, and twice on Sundays, except the last one. I occupied two schoolhouses in the vicinity, speaking some five times in the Seventh-day Adventist chapel in the village. Attendance at the services was fair and the attention excellent. I tried to give them the gospel as restored to ponder over. Some there are investigating; further results are awaited, anxiously.

On returning from Afton I called at Lucas, where I preached twice and attended a very pleasant branch business meeting. Regular appointments there are well attended, so the brethren inform me.

On November 15 to December 3 I was at Davis City and at Leon, assisting Elder J. R. Lambert at former place, as referred to by him some time since in a letter to the Herald. During the eight days at Leon I preached eleven discourses and attended two good social services, something I have been physically unable to do before since the opening months of 1883. It seems marvelous to me. I was greatly blessed of the Spirit in labors at Leon, unusually so for some reason; so that none of the efforts failed so far as presenting the word was concerned. To God belongs the glory. Bro. John Denio presides there, and the Saints seemed united. I was kindly and considerably entertained by all the Saints at Leon.

On December 16 I went to Des Moines, Iowa, and remained till January 1. I preached every night except two while there. On those evenings other church work claimed our attention. Brn. O. B. Thomas, sub-missionary in charge, and Bro. J. W. Morgan, of Angus, Iowa, were there part of the time, assisting in the work.

A cloud has been shadowing the branch there for a long time, owing to chronic wrongdoing of some; but I believe that if wisdom governs the difficulties may be largely obviated, and brighter days await the Saints and work of God there. It is remarkable how the Saints have held up so well in the cause and what a goodly degree of power and spirituality attended their social and prayer services during the crisis they have lately passed through. I felt much blessed while laboring there. Brn. D. M. Rudd and Fred A. Smith are laboring in the Des Moines district with commendable zeal and with satisfaction to the Saints, so far as I was able to learn.

I go to Cainsville, Missouri, to-day, to aid in the work there as the way opens up. Desiring the welfare of the work,

Your brother,
C. SCOTT.

LIMERICK, Ohio, Dec. 27.

Editors Herald.—The numerous friends of Bro. T. J. Beatty will be pleased to know that he is steadily and rapidly improving, and is likely to soon be out in the ministry again. The Lord showed me when in Creola, before going to Limerick, the peculiar condition of the brother, and enabled me to see that now his full recovery and future welfare depended upon his cheerful trust in the love and power of God to bless and save to the uttermost, also in his strict compliance with the laws of life and health which the ministry so often, through unwise zeal, violate in overdoing and exposure.

I have preached here four times, had fair-sized audiences and excellent interest. Met Brn. James Moler and H. R. Harder who are battling away in fine spirits with good prospects for some additions to the church in this region. Before coming here I preached in Creola twice to very attentive audiences and felt assured the good word of God was leading souls to enter by the door into the sheepfold. Doors for preaching the word are opening on every hand; many of Christ's sheep are wandering on the mountains and are lost, and who will go forth and gather them into the fold!

When at the Parliament of the World's Religions I saw the deep yearning for the knowledge of God, and also saw the great conflict of religious opinions, I felt as never before the need of the full proclamation of the gospel in power, in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance.

DETROIT CITY, Minn., Jan. 2.

Editors Herald.—I arrived home from a month's visit in Minneapolis the 26th of December. While there I was the guest of Bro. and Sr. A. J. Smith. I had the pleasure of again meeting Brn. E. C. Briggs and E. A. Stedman. My time was well spent in visiting the Saints, in preaching and taking part in their other meetings. I found Bro. Stedman a genial "comrade" and one beloved by the Saints. My first acquaintance with him was four years ago when he made a short visit here. He had at that time but little liberty in preaching, but the Lord has blessed him by his Spirit, and I receive instruction and pleasure in listening to him. It seems to me that the city is his field for labor.

I also renewed acquaintance with Bro. and Sr. Hawkes, former members of this branch, and visited them at their pleasant home. Sr. Hawkes is superintendent of the Sunday school. Bro. Charles Shallbetter is president, the right man so say the Saints; Bro. Hilton priest. I find him out of work but not cast down, spending his time in reading and study; in fact I find most of the Saints trying to live as Saints should.

On Saturday the 23d inst., the Saints' Sunday school had a Christmas tree. The hall was well filled with Saints and their friends. The exercises for the most part were by the children speaking and singing. The hall was beautifully decorated and appropriate mottoes were hung on the walls. The writer was disguised as Santa Claus and everyone received an appropriate gift, and I received some gifts, for which I most heartily thank the givers. It reads, "It is more blessed to give than to receive;" but it is also good to receive. Some of the young Saints knowing my love for the children gave me two dolls which gave others as well as myself much pleasure. The evening passed very pleasantly and many an older school could pattern after this one in the getting up of an entertainment.

On December 21 we were surprised by a visit from Bro. and Sr. Roberts. It was prayer meeting night and Bro. Roberts' experiences were of that character to encourage and help all of us. They left for St. Peter the next evening. May God help and bless them in their labor of love. On Sunday the 31st I met with the Saints at Cormorant. It was a good meeting; in the testimony meeting everyone took part and the best of feeling prevailed. The thought expressed was, "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." I pray that we may all gain the prize. There is some sickness but the Saints are all pretty well. Your brother,

T. J. MARTIN.

KNOX, Ind., Jan. 8.

Editors Herald.—I came here one week ago and have spoken a dozen times, including a funeral discourse and an address to the G. A. R. on the eve of public installment of officers. Large audiences with apparent intense interest have been attending these meetings, and I really feel that something beneficial will result. Last eve we spoke upon the nature and relation of the social and economic problem to this latter-day work; subject advertised four days, chapel literally jammed; necessary to carry seats from the Christian church; aisles were packed, and a large congregation, I am told, returned to other churches for lack of room. I am glad there is such a revolution in Knox. May it achieve a magnificent victory for the cause of Christ. On Thursday eve, we left the voice ten miles south of Knox, and return for Sunday.

Christmas passed pleasantly with the Saints at Coldwater; an arch being constructed, the advent of Santa Claus being preceded by a sweet programme of a musical and literary character. Kriss Kringle remembered me very substantially from head to feet. I render unmitigated thanks to Saints and friends for the coöperation they gave Kriss in the matter. And may the loaf cast by them upon the waters return redoubled ere the tide of life is low. Saints in line of duty and much rejoiced in the blessings of faith.

Hopefully,
S. W. L. SCOTT.

ARKANSAW, Wis., Jan. 3.

Editors Herald.—Bro. C. H. Burr and I have just closed a four weeks' constant preaching at Porcupine schoolhouse. Our attendance was grand; the least number we have had out to hear us was seventy-five, and at our closing meeting last Sunday night we had two hundred present. One week ago Sunday was set for baptism, but the rain hindered three from coming who would have been baptized. Bro. Burr baptized one before a congregation of twenty-five in spite of the constant heavy rainfall. Quite a number seem to be ready now and will probably come in due time. We have the usual hindrances to contend with. Some of our Christian friends and their shepherds are thoroughly aroused, but to no avail. We were taken home with an M. E. brother on Sunday where a sumptuous dinner awaited us. We are making friends by scores.

Rev. Allen Brown, a spiritualist lecturer of Minneapolis, Minnesota, ran into us. I gave him as a subject to lecture from, "Who is Jesus Christ?" Here are a few of his sayings as I have them noted: "Christ is one that was sent before his time; he was a great medium." "He came as the Son of God, as all of us are sons of God." "Jesus performed not miracles but only used natural laws, of which men were ignorant." "Those he raised from the dead were not dead but in a trance state." "Spiritualism is built upon natural, scientific laws, not upon miracles." "What your own common sense tells you to do is that to do." "The places you call heaven and hell are not places but conditions." "You have no need to fear a personal Devil, as there is none." I replied to the gentleman on the following night to an overcrowded house and to everybody's satisfaction. The event made us friends far and wide.

Elder Connor, of the M. E. Church, publicly attacked our tract, "The Kingdom of God," and labored hard to make the people believe they had to get the kingdom into them instead of getting into the kingdom. I had good liberty in defending the little leaf in the evening.

One of the local scribes of the Pepin county Courier misrepresented us badly last week; but, thanks to the editor he gave us a column in his paper to reply and to set forth the true teachings of the church.

We are now holding meeting in Cooley schoolhouse. It won't hold all the people. Four other places are awaiting us. If we stay a month in each place and preach every night it will take time. Bro. Burr and I both firmly believe in preaching the gospel thoroughly where we go, and then go back and preach it all over again until God calls his people out. I have an attack of lagrippe, but am getting better.

Yours in bonds,

H. P. CURTIS.

RICH HILL, Mo., Nov. 20.

Editors Herald:—Having for a long time cherished a doubt in regard to the consecutive order in which the Latter Day Saints teach the first principles of the gospel, and never having been able to satisfy myself on the subject, I thought it best to address you, give you my reasons for doubt, and await a thorough exegesis of the matter. The Latter Day Saints teach faith, repentance, etc. Now referring to Hebrews 6: 1-3, it reads: "Therefore not leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God."

In this quotation we have repentance named first. Now, some will say that faith must necessarily come first; that unless we have faith in the divine Being we could not repent. Such argument as this is of no effect, from the fact that every man has been given intelligence, a sufficient amount to enable him to distinguish between good and evil. Say, for instance, that I should avail myself of an opportunity to swindle my fellow man, and should continue this for a certain length of time, and after awhile I would repent of this; repent meaning, according to Webster, "To feel pain, sorrow, or regret, for what one has done or omitted to do;" "to change the mind, or the course of conduct on account of regret or dissatisfaction with what has occurred;" "to feel pain on account of, to remember with sorrow."

Now would I have to have faith in Christ and in God in order to feel sorry for what I may have or have not done? I answer no.

We have another theory advanced like this. When Peter stood up and said "Repent and be baptized every one of you," he was talking to a people who had already begotten a faith in Christ.

"And our father Adam spake unto the Lord, and said, Why is it that men must repent and be baptized in water?"—Gen. 6:54.

"And he commandeth all men that they must repent, and be baptized in his name."—2 Nephi 6:9.

Did these people in Adam's time or in Nephi's time have a faith begotten in them by a personal acquaintance with Jesus? I have never found an account of any such thing; so down goes that theory so deftly adhered to by a great number.

"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent," etc.—Matt. 4:17.

"Call upon the nations to repent."—D. C. 43:5.

"Say nothing but repentance unto this generation."—D. C. 10:4.

"And of tenets thou shalt not talk, but thou shalt declare repentance and faith on the Savior."—D. C. 18:4. (See also D. C. 32:2.)

"And this is my gospel: repentance, and baptism by water."—D. C. 39:2.

"And unto him that repenteth and sanctifieth himself before the Lord, shall be given eternal life."—D. C. 108:11.

By faith we are sanctified; so repentance precedes again. Now, I shall not attempt to add any more to this but would like to see the proof taken from the books to establish the order adhered to, with such comments as would be necessary.

Yours for truth,

HARRY M. ATWELL.

BRADEN, Ill., Jan. 2.

Editors Herald:—Sometime in October Rev. E. Barnes and I signed certain propositions for a discussion to be held in the vicinity of Xenia; and I then assisted on fixing the necessary arrangements, as there were three propositions; but he stated that he did not have the time. Afterwards I employed Bro. J. D. Stead, of Xenia, to write him, suggesting the amount of time necessary for each proposition. He did so but received no answer, only that he could not set an earlier date than the second Tuesday in December. At the close of my discussion with W. A. Inman I wrote Bro. Stead to know if further arrangements had been made with Elder Barnes. He answered that none had been made, that he had only succeed in getting the promise of a hall in Xenia at nights.

Just at this time I received a letter from home informing me that my boy twelve years of age was quite sick and other affairs demanding my attention. I at once wrote to Bro. Stead that if Elder Barnes came to arrange the discussion with him for some time in January, providing we could get him to agree upon a reasonable length of time to each proposition; and I took the train for home. Elder Barnes came, but made no arrangements for further time, nor was he willing to discuss with any but Curtis, notwithstanding the brethren proposed to get Bro. Hilliard, and to the joy of the brethren Bro. Hilliard came in just as Elder Barnes was leaving, and announced himself ready in my absence to meet the issue. But the Rev. Barnes took train for home, while Bro. Hilliard remained and preached until over Sunday; and on the 23d I arrived in Xenia, explained why I could not be present, informing them that I was willing and ready to meet the Rev. Barnes at any time when proper arrangements could be agreed upon between us, notwithstanding some had rumored that it was a backdown on my part.

From Xenia I came here in company with Bro. I. A. Morris, who brought me thus far on the way to Tunnel Hill. Here we stopped at Dr. Ray's. The Doctor's wife had attended the dedication of Parrish church and became very much interested in the gospel, and shortly afterwards wrote me to come and preach, as she was anxious to be baptized; therefore we came to the Doctor's. He is one of those big-hearted men, having a noble family, and he received us gladly and made an effort to get us a house for preaching, and on failing to obtain it, opened up his dwelling house for preaching. The Doctor owns a good farm, and is a leading physician, and has a large practice. We commenced meetings last Friday night, closing last night, occupying two large rooms. We had excellent liberty in preaching. Yesterday was a warm and beautiful day, and at two o'clock in the afternoon I baptized Dr. Ray's wife. She has been afflicted for seven years and her disease is one that has baffled the skill of the best physicians. She is a woman of great faith in the Lord, and has lived a consistent life in the Missionary Baptist Church for twenty-one years. In her confirmation, on being administered to, the Spirit declared that if she was faithful she should be healed and blessed of the Lord.

We closed our meetings here last night, as we have been solicited to go six miles south to Rural schoolhouse, where we will hold forth for a time. In bonds,

EMSLEY CURTIS.

CURLEW, Iowa, Dec. 31.

Editors Herald:—I write in regard to the feeling of the people here toward the Saints. I am a barber and have been here but a short time. Since I came Bro. C. J. Hunt held meetings here and the people seemed quite anxious to hear him and promised him the church. He held services one evening, then gave it up until after Christmas, and then nobody knew where to find the key; but after a long search Bro. Hunt and Bro. Ford ran it down, but those holding it refused to give it up. Bro. Hunt then left for Marathon where he expects to hold meetings.

I have done some talking here in Sunday school and in my shop. I have not belonged to the church very long, but I feel a great interest in its welfare. While I am now writing the lady in the adjoining room is reading to her husband regarding the faith and practice of the Saints. And, dear readers, you would be surprised to hear what some people conjure up to turn persons' minds and stop them from further investigation.

Since Bro. Hunt left, the people have found I am a Latter Day Saint (for which I am not ashamed), and my work as a barber seems to be decreasing. It looks as if they were trying to run me out because I am one of the "Mormons," as the world calls us; but I pray God that I may be firm, let come what may. Let us put forth an effort to do our duty, and God will bless us.

Yours for truth,

A. J. COOK.

FRUITA, Colo., Jan. 4.

Editors Herald:—I came here from Montrose county where I have been holding services for about four weeks, blessing quite a number of little children; so I am gathering in the lambs. I arrived here December 29 and was kindly received by Bro. and Sr. Tomlinson, whom I baptized here one year ago. They are still firm in the faith.

On Saturday, the 30th, we went to see the Congregational minister to get the church to hold services. He said if I had come to win souls to Christ I could have the use of the church. I told him that was my mission. He then said he would hold up both hands for me to have the church; so we commence services Monday night, January 1, and will keep it up as long as they let us use the church; and if they close doors against us then we can get the use of a hall. I am also holding services in a schoolhouse about four miles from Fruita. I shall stay here as long as the interest keeps good. I am trying to push the work along in Colorado.

Yours in bonds,

JAMES KEMP.

JACKSON, Ohio, Jan. 5.

Editors Herald:—We are still laboring in the interest of the great work in this part of the vineyard. Though we are not baptizing great numbers, we are trying to make many of them believe that they need to be baptized. On the 22d of November Bro. H. R. Harder returned from a visit to his family. He began labor in Perry county, where he baptized one, making fourteen gathered in at that place by him and H. E. Moler. On December 12 Bro. Harder and I met at Sand Run, where we held one interesting meeting with the Saints. From there we went to Limerick, where Bro. Harder preached some interesting sermons. From there we went to Beecher, a new place in Ross county, where we held five meetings and presented the word to attentive audiences.

Returning to Limerick we found Bro. W. W. Blair, and had the pleasure of hearing him dispense the word of truth. On Friday, December 29, we began meetings at Pine, where we held nine meetings. Here the congregations were generally large and very attentive; many were convinced of the truth. Bro. Harder preached some very able sermons at this place, his preaching was well received. One (a young lady) was baptized last evening. The Spirit of the Lord was present in power, especially at the confirmation, where many were in tears during the service. Four or five others were arranging to be baptized last evening, but the enemy entered in while they tarried, and they became discouraged, and the adversary got the victory. To-morrow night, if the Lord will, Brn. J. L. Goodrich, H. R. Harder, and I will begin meetings in the city of Wellston.

The work in this district is in fair condition. Although we have not gathered in great numbers, all have labored diligently to roll on the work. Bro. Goodrich has been hindered the past month by sickness in his family. I find Bro. H. R. Harder to be a very agreeable companion to travel with; a willing, earnest, and able defender of the faith.

May he live long to lift the warning voice.

I see in Herald of January 3, that Bro. D. L. Shinn says, "We read in the minutes of the Ohio district conference that they were to meet at a certain place Saturday after the full moon in February." Well, if he did so read he has read something that I never read; and if he did read it he read a mistake, as the Ohio district adjourned to meet at Vale's Mills, Ohio, Saturday before the full moon in February. It certainly is a "queer way" to read in the minutes of our conference when they have not been published.

I am sorry to see that some of the Saints are introducing fairs and box suppers in their churches. I think Babylon ought to be allowed to enjoy those institutions without infringement. May the Lord bless his people, and may they walk wisely and bring forth much righteousness.

Yours for purity,

JAMES MOLER.

THE QUESTION OF USURY.

EDITORS HERALD:—I ask space in your paper for the following letter which explains itself. I have thought a good deal pro and con on the subject before I decided to write it, knowing it would not be looked upon favorably by a great many; but the matter seems to me to be a duty, so I have concluded to write it and ask for space in the Herald.

The question is one on the taking of usury by brethren in the church from one another, and is founded on Deuteronomy 23: 19:—

Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of anything that is lent upon usury.

Without stopping to define the meaning of the word usury, further than to say we understand it to mean the taking of interest either little or big, we go on to the question at issue; viz., the practice in the church. Is it right? Well, if we may judge from the passage above-quoted, it is wrong. To me it is a very strange thing that a practice so much at variance with that other scripture, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," should obtain so universally in the church, and that church too that claims to be the only church over and above all those who make similar claims. It seems to me that her light on this question should be a great beacon amid the Egyptian darkness of the world, and especially of the sectarian churches who are clamoring to be recognized as having something more than everyone else. But instead of showing a great light on this question the church has not shown any; she has not even an apology for a light. Perhaps she believes it is all right for brethren to take usury from one another, or, if she holds another opinion, concludes she does not want to meddle in an awkward matter. If so, why should there be any church government at all?

If this were not a fundamental principle it might be passed over lightly and dismissed, but it will not admit of any such tinkering. Interest on money is a question of mathematics, and is now at the present time the cause of the stagnation in commercial matters; and the great numbers of idle men who have to be fed would not be in such a sorry plight if righteousness on this question had been the rule in the past.

Did anyone ever stop to consider that when one agrees to pay interest on money that in order to carry out his obligation it is necessary to create that interest? that it is not in existence? and though you may manage to meet your obligation some one in the world somewhere has to lose just the amount you agreed to pay? Such is the case, however, and until every child in the land is educated up to the knowledge of it there will be times such as we are now passing through; certain ones will be rolling up wealth at the expense of the balance of the population.

Interest, like the principal, is created by the fiats of governments; all the people can do in the matter is to send the best men to represent them in the government. Perhaps some one will say, What has the church to do with such matters? Well, I reply, she should not be ignorant of things that cause so much sorrow in the world; she should be posted in order that she might help her children over such hard times. Perhaps she will take the ground that the passage from Deuteronomy does not apply now. If so, I ask, Can principles of righteousness ever pass away? And in answer I cite our Savior's own words:—

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

St. Paul said, "Love is the fulfilling of the law;" and Jesus also said:—

A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another.

And if the Jews were commanded not to take usury of one another, how much more we who are under the new commandment; and in these days, too, when the overthrow of all earthly governments is expected soon, and that too, for their iniquity, the church should be a pattern to the unbelievers instead of dragging along in the old rut that the world has made. Her light should prove that she makes a truthful claim to be the true and only Church of God. Now I do not say that she is not doctrinally correct; perhaps the ground may even be covered by doctrine, but what is the good of it if the practice is wrong seeing her reward is to be according to her works? In this hour when she is crying, Come out of Babylon, she should be free from Babylon's errors herself; and this interest question which has worked such ruin in all the civilizations of the past was one that the Lord sent the children of Israel down into Egypt to learn by hard and bitter experience, that they might never forget it, and that we through them might learn of it and avoid the rock which has wrecked the spirituality of every church and brought poverty to the rank and file, and will still continue to do the same thing as long as allowed to remain.

Yours in the faith once delivered to the Saints,

WILLIAM IMRIE MURRAY.

LAMONI, Iowa, December 1893.

IN WHOSE CHARGE?

At the business meeting held August 1 the Lamoni branch proposed to place the jurisdiction of the house of worship under the unlimited control of the branch presiding officer. This proposition is called in question because of what seem to be very valid reasons. First, the revealed will of God to us contemplates that the presiding officers—especially of large branches—shall be members of the high priesthood, the prerogative of which is "authority over all the officers in the church . . . to administer in spiritual things;" "to hold the keys of all the spiritual blessings." The lesser or Aaronic order holds the ministration of "outward ordinances." Teachers and deacons are appendages—additions to the original Aaronic order—in the same sense that the offices of bishop and elder, were appended to the Melchisedec order, each of them for a specific purpose. We read of elders in the Mosaic economy, but not of teachers, deacons, nor bishops. In the New Testament a number of facts and hints are given suggestive of their establishment and purpose, yet with all these doubly assured testimonies, confirmed by the brilliant light of present revelation, we yet appear to be unable to appreciate and fully comprehend the spirit and scope of their intent and value as aids in perfecting the work of these last days.

But it is cheering to realize that a gleam of light is now being manifested, enabling us to realize that the Bishopric is the presidency of the Aaronic order, and that to it belongs the right to the care of all the temporal concerns of the church.

At the call of the district president last spring, the ministry of the Decatur district convened in Lamoni for counsel and instruction, and were addressed by President Joseph Smith, in which he presented the priest as the visiting officer of the church for the moral and secular instruction of the membership in their duty. He presented the teacher as not a visiting officer, but as the policeman to see that all moral and social obligations be properly discharged, and that the deacon is the legitimate and proper custodian of the local church property. If, then, it is the duty of the ministry for each to learn his duty and to magnify the office whereunto he is called, it is no less the duty of each and all to recognize and respect the right and office work of each department.

If the two orders are God-given, one for jurisdiction in spiritual things, the other the jurisdiction over temporal things, can we expect to be fully benefited without being fully cognizant of and obedient to the oracles as presented for the care of property and finances as well as the spiritual?

These four; elder, priest, teacher, and deacon are official representatives or agents of the local body, and when organized in proper council capacity form a committee or board of directors (so to speak) to work in harmony with each other, enforcing the will of the body in their respective departments; for when they act each one in the sphere of the ordination whereunto he was ordained, yet ever amenable to the powers that ordained and authorized them to act in this capacity, they are in duty bound to neither exceed nor fail in the performance of the instructions and the specific requirements of the various duties assigned them.

For many years the deaconship has been ignored and treated as though it were more ornamental than useful, but that position begins to loom up as an important factor in the house of God and is demanding the recognition it deserves. Then it stands us in hand to awaken to vigilance in the endeavor to honor the Lawgiver by a recognition of the means placed at our disposal for the perfecting of the Saints, the edifying of the body, and the perfecting of the work of the ministry. To whose charge, then, should we confide the local church property, the elder or the deacon?

THE CLOUD OF WAR.

The great European war, which has been feared for twenty years, is still apprehended by no less a personage than Lord Salisbury. In a recent address before the National Conservative Union of Great Britain, sitting at Cardiff, he viewed with alarm the condition of the naval armament of his country, and pictured the danger of an unforeseen foreign combination securing possession of St. George's Channel. The resulting calamity to English commerce, he said, would not be recovered from in generations. Possibly if a fraction of the cost that Europe is incurring in preparations of war were expended in the interests of peace occasion for alarm would disappear.—New York Mail.

LIFE AND A CREATOR.

THE materialistic claim that all the phenomena of living things are explained readily by reference to purely physical forces has met with assent by some and bitter denial by others, the latter being much the more numerous. These occupy extreme positions, with few in the middle ground between them, unless those who are indifferent to the matter may be classed as mediants. On the one side "the reign of adamantine and unalterable law" is insisted on, and alleged "mistakes of nature" cited as proving the absence of intelligent creative act. On the other there is some admiration of the argument of design, stated by Paley, but the principal appeal is to revelation. It is held that the Bible tells us of a Creator and justifies denunciation of all who may dispute the authority or deny its statements.

In a recent number of the Fortnightly Review an English professor of chemistry tells of the progress made by chemists in reproducing synthetically a number of organic compounds. He says the discovery by Wohler that ammonium cyanate can be transformed artificially into urea "virtually gave the death-blow to the notion that the operations which are concerned in the formation of the chemical products of the organic world are fundamentally different from those which take place in the inorganic world." By demonstrating that urea can be made synthetically by ordinary laboratory processes and from substances inorganic in their origin, Wohler is alleged to have proved that vital force is only another name for chemical action, and that an animal is nothing more than a laboratory in which a multitude of chemical changes similar to those which occur in our test-tubes and controlled by essentially the same conditions continually is taking place.

This position is attacked by the (Philadelphia) Medical News as not only unsound but suicidal. That is, it disproves itself. "The facts knock the theory into infinite and utter smithereens." For it cannot be denied that the glorious synthetic chemist in making these poor end-products of vital katabolism, was possessed of and did verily exercise marvelous intelligence in his work. And the logical conclusion from this should be that to make the amazingly complex anabolic products of living tissues "requires a wee bit of intelligence also." To the ordinary unscientific observer the argument which is designed to degrade all vital processes to the level of mechanical forces really seems to demand of the creator of living tissues of astounding and unimagined complexity a proportioned intelligence of awful and unfathomable degree. If the chemist should succeed in making protoplasm synthetically our admiration of him would be profound. If he should make artificially a ganglionic center, a whole nervous system, or a living organism even of a low order the veneration for him would be limitless. But there is a chemist who makes protoplasm easily and fills the earth with a million varieties of palpitant, beautiful organisms. The old name for that wonderful chemist was God. Caught in the crux of the illogical absurdity here suggested the scientist has found himself in an unenviable predicament. If thought and consciousness are the products solely of molecular changes in the brain, then right and wrong and freedom and religion disappear in the exceptionless laws of the conservation of energy and of rigid necessity.

Following the statement of this line of thought the News makes several quotations from well-known medical authors to show that the science they expound is the first to break through the unscientific dogmatism which assumes that the living and the non-living being are one, and that the facts of vital action are to be explained by physics and chemistry. One of these citations is from a lecture by Prof. Lionel Beale of King's College, London: "So far from any such life, properties, or powers having been proved to exist in any non-living matter whatever the direct contrary remains true, at least up to this very day; and the advocates of the unity of life and non-life have been driven to take refuge in the further assertion that the tendency of thought of the time is in the direction they indicate. But tendencies are not scientific."

It should be observed that all this is far stronger than any mere protest against the atheistic materialism which its leading exponents claim to be commending itself more and more each year to the common sense of educated thinkers. It strikes at the assumption as untrue, not being in harmony with known facts or accepted principles of logic. And this theological support from the medical schools should be all the more welcome, as the class furnishing it was for many ages frowned on by the churches as having no theological right to exist.—Chicago Tribune.

TO PURIFY MECCA.

The world's greatest pest hole is at last to be cleansed. The Sultan of Turkey has resolved to put Mecca into something like a healthy condition. The decision is the effect of an intimation from the British Government that unless the Holy City is cleansed it will take means to prevent the annual pilgrimages from India. The Sultan has decided not only to cleanse the town, but to erect at his personal expense a great lodging-house, capable of containing 6,000 persons.

Original Poetry.

HOW WE LOOK IN THEIR DRESS.

(TUNE WANTED.)

Elder V., who'd labored with zeal for the cause

He loved as his life,
Was moody one day at the conference, because Of unsaintly strife.
He had counseled and prayed
And enjoyed for his aid
The good Spirit;
But spite his endeavor
Some members would never Revere it.

At least so he thought, and he wondered how long

'Twould take to redeem
Fair Zion, if first his untractable throng
Must wisdom esteem;
For no matter what care
He would take to declare Facts only,
Their objections they'd pelt
At his talk, till he felt Quite lonely.

"I wonder," said he, "if the Master should send

Direct from his throne,
An angel to teach, would these cavillers bend
Their wills and be one;
Or would they undertake
To point out some mistake
And decide
They knew better than he,
And they would not agree
Though they died?"

"To make man a carper requires no grace—
Any man can pick flaws;

But once let these critics step into my place
To better the cause—
Their sermons might glisten
With truth as we'd listen,
Still I fear
There'd be some who would say
'Twas a new fangled way, Rather queer."

"O, could they but learn," he exclaimed with a sigh,

"That none can please all;
For what's sweet to one, to another's well nigh
As bitter as gall:
And no preacher can span
The extreme views of man
And be true.
Plant your feet where you please
And the corns you will squeeze
Of a few.

"If Saints would but learn to do to each creature

As they'd be done by—Observing the rule that I, as their preacher,
Urge them to apply—
They'd utter no word to Disparage the virtue
Of his way;
But uphold what of good
They may have understood,
And then pray.

"But despite all my effort, each one again
To idols has turned:

I'm troubled in heart and I'm weary in brain
Withal; but I've learned
That the army of God
Has its real "awkward squad"
Where they are;
While the brave serried ranks
In the royal phalanx
Are elsewhere.

"Thus encouraged, I still hope for patience and strength

T' endure as I ought.
If heaven can furnish those shelter at length

Who've brought good to naught,
I will sure say, Amen:
But just give me till then
To declare
That I haven't got use
For their polished abuse Anywhere."

Then, except Brother J., the ministry near
All coincided,
And freely gave vent to their feeling sincere,
While J. presided.

They could not comprehend
Why the Lord should extend Probation
To those who by croaking
Were always invoking Damnation.

Rather than descend to such depths they would quit

Making profession.
Faultfinding, they said, was a gift from the pit;

For its suppression
With what should be ample
Of word and example
They had wrought,
And still so intended
E'en though they offended
The whole lot.

The president then made announcements ahead

And meeting adjourned,
And for lunch to a Saint's house near by they sped,

Where everyone learned
That the HERALD had come,
And, with eagerness, some Sought to read.
But one copy would not Reach all round, so, by lot,
'Twas agreed

That good Brother J., who was still with the crowd,

Should entertain all
By reading the articles in it aloud,
Until luncheon call.

So he read them all through
And the interest grew
With each word,
Then one, without waiting
For turn in debating,
Cried, "ABSURD."

Then there followed: "That beats me!"

"Wonder what next!"

"Where are we drifting!"

"With this marvelous work I'm deeply perplexed!"

"Pretty clean sifting!"

"He's out, there, just the same;"

"But, he's hardly to blame, He's so pressed."

"O, its really too bad—

The best paper we had!"

"Well, I'm blessed!"

"If that aint heresy, then I'm not a judge!"

"Lamoni's a trump!"

"Guess neuralgia owes our old faith a grudge!"

"I'm all up a stump!"

"I don't care if he is
A Twelve, 'tis not his biz.

To review,

After once he receives
What the prophet believes

To be true!"

"Law me, I'm just sick; its no wonder the Saints

Don't like the paper!"

"That's so, Brother K., there's good ground for complaints!"

"Well, well, what a caper!"

"If I managed that sheet
I'd soon make a complete

End of such!"

"What we want is plain food;
All that truck ain't no good!"

"No, not much!"

"Don't care if they do think they're right; I do not!"
 "That will all depend!"
 "I've no use for so and so, after such rot!"
 "You need not defend!"
 "My brother I'm not green!
 Why, it's plain to be seen
 What they're at;
 But they'll never budge me
 By such authority
 As is that."

"Yes, taffy it over, if you've such a mind—
 It may suit your taste—
 But I for such balderdash am not inclined—
 It all goes to waste."
 This last speech—the word
 Of Brother V.—was heard
 By the crowd
 And to it about ten
 Of the lot said, "Amen!"
 Right out loud.

The few who persisted in holding the view
 That open debate
 In the paper was right, were divided, too;
 And they did orate
 On the merits revealed
 And the motives concealed
 On each side
 Of the subject discussed,
 Till a trace of distrust
 Was descried.

Meanwhile they'd partaken of luncheon, and all Expressed a desire
 That old Brother J., who'd not spoken at all,
 Should grant their require,
 And tell them what feeling
 Had o'er him been stealing
 To impress.
 "I will do it," said J.,
 "But first let us pray
 God to bless."

They knelt; and he thanked God for men good and true,
 In charge of affairs,
 Who'd courage to tell what they hoped or they knew;
 And who by their prayers
 Would prevail, and thus learn Ev'ry good in its turn
 Till the free
 Sons of God would uphold,
 As more precious than gold,— Liberty.

For the editors, too, he feelingly prayed,
 That they might not faint
 Because of cruel thrusts by faultfinders made
 In ruthless complaint;
 And then for the croakers—
 Those wicked provokers
 Of evil—
 Who, in heart, good desired,
 Though their work was inspired
 Of the Devil.

He asked that the Presidency and the Twelve,
 Might draw from on high
 The wisdom into all mysteries to delve
 And "see eye to eye:"
 That the High Priests might each,
 With the Seventies, teach
 The same thing;
 And the Elders and others,
 Like Saints and true brothers,
 To them cling.

That as we'd be done by, so might we all do
 Toward each creature;
 Having no use for polished abuse, eschew
 Its ev'ry feature.
 As we could not please all,
 (For to some sweet was gall,)
 We might not
 Be vexed if those higher
 Overstepped our desire
 When they desire.

Only those without fault should cast the first stone
 At vice when revealed;

But some had been pelting where wrong was not shown,
 At virtue concealed:
 While, meantime, exposing Themselves, and disclosing
 Unfitness
 To stand up and declare
 God's pure truth anywhere,
 As witness.

He then said, "Lord, I fear if an angel mote
 Thy counsel direct,
 Some whom thou hast called would be ready to vote
 His word to reject;
 And it must needs be long E'er the untoward throng
 Can attain
 To the standard of right
 On which Zion's bright light
 Doth remain."

"But, have mercy," he cried, "and open our eyes
 To dangers within,
 That we may become, and help others be wise—
 Amen, and amen!"
 Then the company rose
 And straight down his own nose
 Each man looked,
 As though he'd inspected
 And somehow detected
 That it crooked.

Then good Brother J., lifted his voice and said:
 "In ans'ring your call I'll ask that Romans, second chapter, be read—
 A part, if not all.
 Verses one, two and three,
 Will be plenty for me
 For a start;
 Still I'd like twenty-one,
 Two, and three, to be run
 In as part.

"And as reader, this time, we'll have Elder V,
 If he don't object;
 After which my remarks, I promise, will be Few, plain, and direct."
 So V. read; but each verse,
 Like Pharaoh's third curse,
 Unsettled
 All, at least in the head,
 For they scratched like "old Ned"
 When rattled.

When the Book was closed, Brother J. said he knew
 (By vision he'd had While they were debating) what they'd said was true;
 For surely he'd been
 With a most awkward squad
 In the army of God
 On that day;
 But beheld serried ranks
 In the great church phalanx Far away.

Each man of the "squad" had a glass in his hand,
 All spotted and greased,
 Through which he gazed at the disciplined band
 Whenever he pleased;
 But the dirt on the glass
 To the object would pass,
 (So it seemed,)
 And the looker would cry
 As the spots he'd espy,
 "Unredeemed!"

"Now, let some one interpret this, if he can,
 Is my conclusion:
 Don't be in a hurry away, every man!
 Why this confusion?"
 But they all made a start,
 For, "'Twas time to depart, Anyway."
 And each one, as he'd pass,
 Said he'd polish that glass
 Right away.

And, dear reader, this mirror, made with design
 For use anywhere,
 Will stand any climate, in rain, or in shine,
 If handled with care.
 It won't hurt to use it,
 But please don't abuse it,
 Nor hide it;
 And when it, as it should,
 Gives a hint that is good—Abide it.

TO THE MINISTRY.

BLANKS FOR REPORTING.

Early in February the ministry may expect to receive blanks upon which to make their annual reports. According to the action of the last General Conference these reports are to be published as a supplement to the Herald before the next assembling. In order to make this possible it will be necessary, I am informed, for your reports to be mailed by March 15, or earlier, so that there may be time for their being prepared as copy, and their putting in type and printing so as to go out with the issue of Herald dated April 4.

And they should be sent early enough to be put in their official order in the pages of the pamphlet, each quorum, beginning with the First Presidency, being arranged consecutively. They can then be referred to more easily, be more quickly found, but it is also proper that they should be so arranged, instead of their being mixed. But, to so arrange the reports, they must come in time.

Not having the field addresses of all the brethren it will be necessary for me to send many blanks to their home addresses, unless they shall write me where to send in the field. Where such blanks are sent to their homes will their families or friends please to forward to the brethren, but they cannot be forwarded under the one cent stamp.

There are others whose addresses I have not, and the following are invited to write me where to send their blanks; namely:—

Evan A. Davis, J. B. Lytle, J. L. Mortimer, Fred Gregory, J. L. Bear, Senterlow Butler, W. S. Macrae, C. J. Spurlock, F. J. Sawley, G. M. L. Whitman, R. W. Davis, W. J. Booker, L. L. Wight, Geo. Eaton, J. A. Currie, W. H. Kelley (Indiana), Swen Swenson, R. M. Maloney, J. B. Roush, J. B. Heide, H. P. Curtis, B. J. Scott, W. R. Armstrong, and Adolphus Edwards.

If others besides the above fail to receive blanks by February 15 they may know that they have been lost in transit, or have not been forwarded from their home address.

Having been called upon by the Union Pacific, the Chicago and Northwestern, the Chicago and Rock Island, and the Burlington Cedar Rapids and Northern, for lists of those solely engaged in ministry work, I sent a list of those under General Conference appointment, whose addresses I knew. But if any have failed to receive the permits, or the blank upon which to apply for them, and they can use such permits in their fields then inform me and I will write the companies and endeavor to obtain permits. In Iowa the Rock Island and the Cedar Rapids and Northern are upon one permit. Also the Northwestern permit includes the Union Pacific system.

HENRY A. STEBBINS,

General Church Secretary and Recorder.
LAMONI, Iowa, January 12, 1894.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Independence, Missouri, District.—In consequence of the demand made upon the church to provide for the families of the elders who are laboring in the field, and also the worthy poor Saints among us that need help in these distressing times, I will receive, at Independence, tithes, offerings, and donations in products of all kinds, also live stock, as well as money.

We are commanded by the Lord, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."—Mal. 3:10.

If the Saints will do as the Lord has commanded, we will see that there is a storehouse provided, and the Lord will perform his part of the promised blessing.

R. MAY, Bishop's agent,

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The London correspondent of the Chicago Tribune in his telegrams of the 6th calls attention to the subordination of political to social questions in the House of Commons. He calls Mr. Foster's bill for the reorganization of local government throughout England "a distinct and avowed effort to put power into the hands of the laboring classes, not political only or mainly, but social, economical, fiscal, and much else. The compulsory power of taking land for allotments is an example of the spirit in which the rights of property are dealt with. It is not the spirit of confiscation, for compensation must be paid at the market price, but it is the new spirit of state socialism, not yet openly avowed as a principle, but acted on in details.

"Mr. Burns' claim for further government supervision in trades dangerous to life or health and Mr. Asquith's promise to legislate next session are claimed by the Socialists as another step in the same direction. It is nothing of the kind; it is simply an extension of the principle long since embodied in the factory acts, the Railway Servants' act, and others. Mr. Asquith is pretty radical, but he is not John Burns" (the labor leader), etc.

The war department has agreed upon forty-eight hours as a week's work for employees in the Woolwich arsenal; in effect, eight hours as a day's work, without overtime or reduction of pay. This is a great victory for the trades unions. Socialism has made no such leap as that abroad, and anarchy none at all.

Two thousand anarchists are under arrest in France. The government is dealing vigorously with them.

The situation in Sicily is serious. Every day brings tidings of new disturbances. Attacks of the peasantry on municipalities are so numerous that something like a revolution has seemed imminent. Brigandage flourishes, and there are grievances agrarian, municipal, and otherwise. The Italian government has suspended the civil functionaries, proclaimed a state of siege, placing a general in command with unlimited authority, and increased the garrison to 40,000 men, will restore order at any cost. It will then inquire into the grievances. The French are charged with fomenting the troubles and the old time enmity between Italy and France is being reawakened.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Times to-day publishes a dispatch announcing the failure of Porty & Bressy, bankers of Saluzzo, Province of Coni, North Italy. The liabilities of the firm amount to 8,000,000 lire. Sig. Porty has committed suicide.

There is much suffering throughout Great Britain because of the intense cold. Railway, canal, and sea traffic is greatly impeded. Many sheep and cattle have been lost. Heavy snowfalls are general.

Berlin dispatches of the 6th say that rumors of irreconcilable differences between the highest officials of the empire and state governments continue to find credence, the intricacy of the situation serving to sustain them. To carry the project of tax reform the Prussian Minister needs the votes of the Conservatives, while the chancellor of the empire must fight these same Conservative agrarians to the utmost if he hopes ever to consummate the Russian treaty. The coming session of the Reichstag is expected to be an exciting one.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The country was genuinely aroused to-day by news of the killing of British officers and men by French troops in West Africa. The affair is regarded on all sides as of grave international import. The affair has created a decided sensation in European diplomatic circles. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 6.—A sailor of the U. S. Cutter Corwin states that deadly encounters have occurred in the streets of Honolulu. Captain Munger declines to say anything of Hawaiian affairs.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The returns issued by the Board of Trade show that during the month of December, 1893, the imports decreased in value to the extent of £1,113,000 as compared with those of the corresponding month of 1892. The exports also decreased in value, the falling off compared with the exports December, 1892, amounting to £2,040,000.

A dispatch from Cape Town says Lobengula has appeared on the bank of the Zambesi River with 2,000 well-armed Matabele warriors.

ROME, Jan. 6.—At Rocca di Papa, fifteen miles from Rome, with 3,000 inhabitants, situated at an altitude of 700 meters, the snowfall is tremendous, reaching the second stories of the houses. A special relief service has been organized to provision the inmates of the snow-blocked houses.

Anarchists and Socialists paraded the streets of Rome and Naples on the 7th, shouting "Down with the taxes!" "Hurrah for the revolution." The Reading Railroad Company is reported to have lost $606,000 and the Reading Coal and Iron Company $195,000 in 1893.

Fire broke out in the World's Columbian Exposition buildings at Chicago on Tuesday, January 9. The Casino, Peristyle, and Music Hall were destroyed, and the Manufactures building was damaged. SAN SALVADOR, Jan. 9.—Gen. Ortez attacked a force marching to the aid of the defense of Amapala and routed it. Fighting has been going on since yesterday on the road leading to Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras. The forces of President Vasquez to-day succeeded in flanking the rebels, who began a retreat, but Vasquez got between the Nicaraguans and the rebels, who taking advantage of his bad position, compelled him to seek safety, with a loss of more than 100 killed and many others wounded. Vasquez also lost 100 men, who were captured by the rebels.

GUATEMALA, Jan. 9.—Gen. M. Omez has decided to defend Amapala, where there is a garrison of 1,000 regulars and 600 volunteers. The populace favors President Vasquez.

ROME, Jan. 9.—A general raid was made on Anarchists' haunts yesterday by the police here and in the large provincial towns. Much literature was secured, and information obtained concerning past outrages and plans for others. Agitation in the Province of Bari is becoming worse. Rioting has been suppressed only by force of arms.

The bonded debt of New York City has increased nearly $12,000,000 during the past year.

The vote on the Wilson tariff bill will be taken January 29.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10.—News received here to-day from confidential sources confirms the report that the Provisional Government is hereafter the Hawaiian Government. The Hawaiian Government stands as an independent sovereignty. It will be as its representative that Minister Thurston will continue diplomatic relations in Washington. Threatened danger at Honolulu is now believed to be past, and if any loyalist uprising is attempted it will be put down. It is understood that foreign governments have been instructed that their cooperation will not only not be required to restore the Queen, but also that interference with the Hawaiian Government will not be tolerated by the United States. This is regarded by many as equivalent to a protectorate.

Lagrippe prevails at Vandalia, Illinois, in a new form. In many cases it attacks children while at play, rendering them unconscious, in which condition they remain until death.

Premier Crispi denies absolutely that any foreign influence is being brought to bear in Sicily.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 10.—The correspondent in Rio sends word that the Dirigible balloon which President Peixoto ordered constructed for use in the campaign is almost completed. It differs from other war balloons in having an electric motor. This balloon is made of silk in spherical form. No metal other than aluminum is used in its construction. Dynamite bombs will be dropped from the balloon onto the rebel fleet. A messenger from Admiral de Gama carrying a note to Admiral Mello has been arrested in Rio. President Peixoto has fortified the coast line and is preparing to attack Islas das Cobras. Many sailors from Admiral de Gama's fleet have deserted because of the monarchical views of the Admiral. LONDON, Jan. 11.—In the House of Commons to-day William Byles, Liberal, asked if the government, before it embarked upon costly naval expenditures, could see a way to communicate with other European powers with a view to establish a policy of mutual disarmament.

Mr. Gladstone replied that the question was one of great importance. He added: I am not sure whether the House was aware of that when the Earl of Clarendon was Foreign Secretary he made an attempt in this direction. I do not know that it was done in a strictly official sense, and it was therefore not made the subject of a document communicating the fact to Parliament. He received an encouraging answer from one great European government. He was unable to carry the matter further. I am bound to say I am doubtful whether the present occasion is one when such representations could be advantageously made.

Emporer William and his family will probably visit at Alsace-Lorraine early in June. The Emporer will make short stays at Metz and Strasburg.

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 12.—Admiral Mello's flagship, the Aquidaban, is again in the bay before Rio. It ran the gauntlet of the forts at the entrance to the harbor this morning as safely as it did when leaving it some weeks ago.

THIS number closes the sixth volume of AUTUMN LEAVES. We issue our January, or holiday, number about the 20th of December and our patrons will save us both time, trouble, and expense by renewing before their names are dropped from our mailing list. Your name will be retained up to January 1, 1894, but no magazine will be sent until it is paid for, or until you have written us asking us to send it and promising payment. To the friends of the magazine we say, This plan is the better one, and even if it was not, we have been forced to adopt it or to discontinue the magazine.

Heretofore we have been giving our profits to those who did not care enough for the magazine to read it when it reached them; hence did not know when their time expired, and in many cases changed their post office, leaving it uncalled for. Every such number we have been paying for with the money sent us by our friends, and which should have gone to our account as profit. Now we propose to stop this arrangement and share our profits with the friends of our magazine. If we were sending to interested readers, we could afford it, but it is too high a price to pay for waste paper.

We will send you a copy of the book, "Ruins Revisited," for four new subscriptions or for six renewals; or the magazine one year for five new subscriptions or seven renewals, or credits on yours according to the amount you send in.

Let us here repeat what we have before said, that we desire every one who wants the LEAVES to have them. If you want them and have not the money to send, write us to that effect and they will be sent to you.

NOTICE.

Upon more mature consideration and for valid reasons we deem it best to withdraw our offer of sending the Herald and AUTUMN LEAVES together for $3.00. Our patrons will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

Address all business communications pertaining to AUTUMN LEAVES to David Dancer, Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

The regular subscription price of AUTUMN LEAVES is $1.50 per year.

FAULTS IN READING AND PREACHING.

"SOME of our Faults" is the concluding article on the "Art of Reading," in The Religious Review of Reviews, by the Reverend James Fleming, its talented editor, who was a student of elocution under Macready the great actor, and was regarded by the late Lord Baconfield as the most correct and cultivated speaker and reader in the English Church. Canon Fleming says the clergy must guard against provincialisms, for it is an old adage, "No man's tune is displeasing to himself," and peculiarities arising from provincialisms often pass unnoticed by the individual who has contracted them.

Nervousness is also a common fault in the preacher, and it is difficult to say who is to be most pitied—the audience or the speaker.

Every speaker must determine, by an indomitable effort of his will, that he will, at least, control his nerves and fight the battle which, by degrees, will make him master of himself. The easy, self-possessed speaker imparts confidence to his hearers by his very manner. His natural utterance finds its immediate way to the sympathies of his audience.

Another fault is mannerism. This is generally the result of bad teaching. Those who are conscious of their shortcomings betake themselves to some teacher of elocution. Mr Macready warned Fleming, when he was a young clergyman, against putting himself into the hands of any teacher of elocution. The result of a course of reading and elocution is usually a fictitious style of stilted, artificial, non-natural speaking and reading. The pupil does not speak or read, but declaims what he utters.

Yet another form of mannerism is that fatal habit, into which the clergy fall, of having two voices, or rather two tones—one the natural, in which they speak to their friends; the other, the non-natural, in which they preach to their fellow men the most solemn and moving truths. So complete is this mannerism that it would never be supposed that it was the same man whom you met in the parish on Saturday, who on Sunday gets into the desk or pulpit, and speaks to you in what may be called the "clerical voice." If he could only drop this mechanical and unmeaning tone, and adopt that conversational style in which yesterday he told you that good story, when you met each other in the street, he would be once more himself. The cure for mannerism is to be yourself, for simplicity holds as high a place in elocution as it does in every other art.

A third very common fault is apathy. To speak or read as if you were getting through something that must be done, and were wholly indifferent to the result. If our souls are not aroused by what we utter, how can it be expected that we should arouse or touch others? Earnestness is the language of the heart, and the very condition of persuasion. It is the direct product of the soul, and nothing can take its place. The mere parrot-reader of the printed page strips truth of its reality, and leaves nothing but the sound of words which die on the ear as quickly as they are uttered. Unlike the Apostle Paul, who, as he "reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come," caused Felix to tremble.—Literary Digest.

THE WEALTH OF THE WORLD.

EDINBURG Review: Few people, even among professional politicians, have much idea of the wealth of the world, or of the manner in which that wealth is growing. Still fewer have any notion of the potentiality of wealth to increase. M. Jannet quotes the elaborate calculation of an ingenious author to show that 100 francs, accumulating at 5 per cent compound interest for seven centuries, would be sufficient to buy the whole surface of the globe, both land and water, at the rate of 1,000,000 francs ($200,000) the hectare. The actual growth of riches has not hitherto assumed such inconvenient proportions.

M. Jannet cites various authorities to show that the wealth of the United Kingdom exceeds $50,000,000,000; that of France, $40,000,000,000; that of all Europe $200,000,000,000; that of the United States $70,000,000,000. If we place the wealth of the rest of the world at $130,000,000,000 we shall arrive at an aggregate of $400,000,000,000. We should have, we may add, to multiply this vast sum 30,000 times before we reached the total to which, according to M. Jannet's ingenious authority, 100 francs accumulating at 5 per cent compound interest for 700 years would grow.

The figures are so vast that they convey no appreciable idea to the ordinary reader. It may assist the apprehension if it be added that France on an average possesses more than $1,000, the United Kingdom more than $1,250, for each member of the population. Just 200 years ago Sir W. Petty estimated the entire wealth of England at only $1,250,000,000. Two centuries, therefore, have increased it forty-fold. But the chief additions to it have been made in the last fifty years, and we believe that we are not far wrong in saying that the sum which is annually added to the United Kingdom amounts to $1,600,000,000, or in other words is nearly equal to its entire wealth at the time of the revolution of 1688.

COLD WEATHER RULES.

Never lean with the back upon anything that is cold.

Never begin a journey until breakfast has been eaten.

Never take warm drinks and then immediately go out into the cold.

Keep the back, especially between the shoulder blades, well covered; also the chest well protected.

In sleeping in a cold room establish a habit of breathing through the nose, and never with the mouth open.

Never go to bed with cold or damp feet. Never omit regular bathing, for unless the skin is in active condition the cold will close the pores and favor congestion and other diseases.

After exercises of any kind never ride in an open carriage or near the window of a car for a moment; it is dangerous to health or even life.

When hoarse speak as little as possible until the hoarseness is recovered from, else the voice may be permanently lost, or difficulties of the throat be produced.

Merely warm the back by the fire and never continue keeping the back exposed to the heat after it has become comfortably warm. To do otherwise is debilitating.

When going from a warm atmosphere into a cooler one keep the mouth closed, so that the air may be warmed in its passage through the nose before it reaches the lungs.

Never stand still in cold weather, especially after having taken a slight degree of exercise, and always avoid standing on ice or snow, or where the person is exposed to cold wind.

Since the conquest there have been twenty-four wars between England and France. In the last war, between 1803 and 1815, it is estimated the total destruction of human life amounted to 1,200,000.

Francis Murphy, the temperance worker, has induced over 600 persons to sign the pledge at Tuscola Iowa.

LAMONI, IOWA, JANUARY 24, 1894.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

PERHAPS there is no passage of Scripture more frequently quoted by our ministry and laity, in their intercourse with the world, than that found in Mark 16:17, 18: "These signs shall follow them that believe," etc. By its employment it is hoped to show the contrast between the religious experience common among worshipers at modern religious shrines and that which is possible under the true Christian regime. As a divine promise it is held up in conspicuous ways and places to advertise the fact that the gospel was originally designed to comprehend within its redeeming scope the physical, mental, and moral, as well as the spiritual in man. It is a convenient and effective factor in such service, and when applied within the bounds prescribed by wisdom, its use is to be commended, having the sanction of the Spirit and the confirmation of excellent fruitage.

After frankly admitting the above, we nevertheless confess ourselves committed to the fear that many have extended their authority beyond the limits referred to, and have made the receipt of the blessings named an occasion for odious comparisons and occasional, perhaps continued, boasting before the world; and this to their own loss and the injury of the work.

While to the mind of those who have been highly favored with the "signs" referred to it may seem the part of gratitude to often tell of them in public, and while it may appear that their testimony of such things will be the most convincing evidence they can furnish of the gospel's truth to the outer world, it should nevertheless be sufficient for them to know that the Master has commanded otherwise. It is our delight always to fall back upon the Savior's words, "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world," when we are engaged in an effort to convince the world that nothing less than all that Jesus commanded will do. We should remember, therefore, that some of those commands are restrictive when touching on the subject before us, and that possibly as much divine wisdom may be lodged in them as in those which authorize us to labor. By turning to Matthew 8:4; 9:30; Luke 8:56; and 9:36, we find that the persons healed of infirmities by the Son of man were forbidden to publish the news of those things abroad. It is true that some of them disregarded this counsel when given; but of those who bear the name of Christ's disciples something better than disobedience is expected. We are supposed to accept the Master's judgment in preference to our own, and if we fail to do so, it is just possible that we may be left to suffer the consequences of our refusal, or of our mental reservations.

When Saul brought back the best of the cattle and sheep which he had taken in his victory over the Amalekites, his motive is said to have been, that he might sacrifice to the Lord his God. Doubtless this was an excellent intention, judged as a single matter disassociated from every other fact. But there was one thing connected with the affair which robbed it of whatever virtue might thus attach, and that one thing was the fact that God had commanded otherwise, and Saul had undertaken the mission with a distinct understanding of what was required of him. Probably there lives no Saint to-day who has not used at some time the text containing Samuel's arraignment of Saul upon his return with the spoils:—

Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice and to hearken than the fat of rams.—1 Sam. 15: 22.

Saul was rejected from his kingly trust because he abused it. God was not averse to burnt offerings; but an offering that involved disobedience could not be accepted. We often employ this circumstance, and connect with it the fact that God is unchangeable, in order to make effective our appeals to men to become obedient to the gospel. We have given them to understand that their oblations and sacraments were vain where disobedience was involved.

Are we ready to be measured by this standard? Let us see. Jesus has spoken to the church and from one of his revelations we have quoted quite frequently the words:—

And your minds in times past have been darkened because of unbelief, and because you have treated lightly the things you have received, which vanity and unbelief hath brought the whole church under condemnation. And this condemnation resteth upon the children of Zion, even all; and they shall remain under this condemnation until they repent and remember the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon and the former commandments which I have given them, not only to say, but to do according to that which I have written.—D. C. 83: 8.

These words we have applied with varying emphasis, when contending against the evils of Utahism. This is right, and we would that the erring ones might be moved to repentance thereby, but it is possible for us to thus apply its force, and yet be under condemnation ourselves by the very judgment we render. What is it to "treat lightly" the things received? We offer a suggestion, and in doing it, use verse eleven of the same revelation as an illustration:—

In my name they shall do many wonderful works; in my name they shall cast out devils: in my name they shall heal the sick: in my name they shall open the eyes of the blind, and unstop the ears of the deaf; and the tongue of the dumb shall speak: and if any man shall administer poison unto them, it shall not hurt them: and the poison of a serpent shall not have power to harm them. But a commandment I give unto them, that they shall not boast themselves of these things, neither speak them before the world: for these things are given unto you for your profit and for salvation.

Is it not a practice quite common in some places, at least, for Saints to make the appearance of strangers among them, an occasion for the public relation of such marvelous manifestations as have been granted them in their past lives? Are not striking cases of healing, miracle, divine interposition, revelation, prophecy, etc., brought to the front and elaborated in testimony, to the intent that the strangers present shall learn that God is working with his people to-day? If so, does such course honor the above command? or may it not be considered one way of "treating lightly" the counsel of heaven which says: "Neither speak them before the world"? Will our intense zeal to influence the minds of our visitors favorably toward the truth be accepted of God as a sufficient reason for ignoring the above command? If so, what lesson can we learn from Saul's experience, and how can we consistently quote the words addressed to him by Samuel: "To obey is better than sacrifice," etc.? Would it be cruel in us to suggest right here that Romans second chapter and first verse be now read? Those who think not may read it at their leisure.

Substantially the same admonition as is contained in the revelation cited above may be found in section 102:7, and it may not be entirely amiss if we drop a hint here for the benefit of those who may be ready for it: We become entitled to further favors and continued trust in proportion as we rightly use what has been confided in and to us. If we have, to any extent, abused that trust as above suggested, may that fact not account for another that some complain of; viz., that they are not receiving as many of such blessings as they once did. If Saul was deposed for abusing a trust, on what ground ought we to claim immunity from like sentence? If, as shown in the revelation above cited, these things are given for our profit and salvation, or as Paul announces in 1 Corinthians 12:7, "to profit withal," will not God take care of the influence he intends they shall exert upon others through us, if we take care that our characters make full exhibition of the divinity these blessings convey to us?

The wise man has declared there is a time for all things, hence we believe there may be time and place for the recounting of these blessings; but we are forbidden the belief that a parade of them before the world is to our profit or the sanctification of the world. It is true that "by the word of their testimony" some "overcame"; but it will hardly do for any to suppose that it was the testimony of Saints on earth concerning "signs" that is referred to where those words occur. (See Rev. 12:7-12.) If, however, those inestimable blessings are rightly utilized by us, the receipt of them will make us rich in charity, and prepare us to hasten the fulfillment of the Savior's prophecy, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." Thus they "profit withal," and their voicing in our service, as Saints, will be the testimony of virtue, the development of righteousness, the adornment of humility, the fragrance of truth. In fine, it will be the God-character in the church: the guarantee of the world's safety within its fold; the salt that seasons unto life eternal; the celestial treasure in the earthly vessel. Against such testimony as this there is no commandment or law.

THE St. Joseph Gazette for January 6 presents the religious belief of a peculiar body of people represented by one Mrs. Lockland, of Portland, Oregon, operating of late in the Missouri city. Their theory is that the human body is the dwelling place of Satan, hence purification by long seasons of fasting, called by the faithful, "going through the wilderness," is necessary. According to the account given, believers in the strange creed starve themselves and their children, even infants,—quit their employment, and neglect other interests while preparing for the final crack of doom, a few months distant, when they will be the only ones saved from the crash of matter and the wreck of worlds. Mrs. Lockland had just finished her second journey "through the wilderness" and expected to soon announce the exact time and nature of the end of the world, which, according to the belief of the sect, will be sometime in the spring of the present year; the city of Chicago being the place where the great conflagration is to begin. We have kept track of some of the peculiar prophetic characters and queer sects that appear from time to time, and so note this one.

THE CONFLICT IN MICHIGAN.

BRO. C. G. LEWIS has sent us a copy of the Michigan Christian Advocate for January 6, published at Detroit, which contains a bitter and lengthy article against the Reorganized Church, written by one D. B. Reed of Freesoil. It appears that Bro. J. J. Cornish and others have been laboring at Freesoil where they have baptized about sixty into the church. This of course has stirred up some of the local lights of the various denominations, who secured "Rev. W. L. Laufman of Ludington, Michigan," "Rev. Andrew Brodie of Manistee," and "Rev. J. R. Bowen," who delivered a series of lectures on Mormonism.

It is not difficult to discern the spirit actuating this writer, for while repeating the old list of stories concocted by the enemies of the work in early days, he has added a number of his own invention, and, as usual, has overdone it to the evident injury of himself and the society he represents. He does not hesitate to denounce the Reorganized Church, equally with the objectionable features of Utah Mormonism, uttering the usual cry, "Beware of false prophets," etc.

It is probable that Bro. Cornish and others in that field have much to encourage them, even in this opposition. The angel's declaration to Joseph Smith that the work would increase the more opposed has been fulfilled on similar occasions, and notably so in their field of labor. It is generally an indication for good when the enemy rages in any particular locality. In such cases the fire must go through and sweep away "the refuge of lies." So it has been on the Western Reserve and in other sections where the Reorganized Church has reoccupied and rebuilt the waste places. The rising generation is not in bondage to creeds to the extent that its fathers were. Those among it who love truth and fairness will step out and affirm it as the elders make plain the character of the work the ministry are sent to teach.

Our Michigan brethren have found the battle a hotly contested one, but so far results have been decidedly in their favor; and it is significant that wherever the members of the Reorganized Church have reoccupied the waste places—those from which the early Saints were wrongfully driven—they have been welcomed. This in itself is a confession that past misrepresentations and persecutions were untrue and unjust and that the church membership are regarded as useful additions to the moral and material interests of those communities. We have nothing to fear from any source in affirming the work; its position is invulnerable, and its advocates can be invincible. A false position only is to be feared. This fear the opponents of the work make manifest when resort is had to misrepresentation.

LATTER DAY SAINTS.

THEY TAKE THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION AS PREACHED BY THE DISCIPLES.

THE first meeting in Detroit of a new religious sect, called the "Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," was held last evening in Lincoln hall, 263 Dix avenue, and was addressed by Elder E. C. Briggs. About fifty persons were present. No doubt several of those present had come through curiosity, thinking it a propaganda of the Mormon Church of Utah. If so, they must have been greatly disappointed, for the sermon of Elder Briggs, outlining the doctrine of the new denomination, was a simple grouping of biblical passages showing the character of the theology taught by the one hundred and twenty disciples of Christ who, after waiting fifty days in Jerusalem before receiving the Holy Spirit, went forth on their mission of founding the Christian Church. The principles of the doctrine represented by Elder Briggs are "faith, repentance, baptisms, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment." The sect is founded to teach the Christian religion just as it was preached by those early saints, and to follow implicitly the teachings of Christ, with the whole Bible as the creed. Preachers or expounders of the gospel are not graduated and trained, but are called by revelation. The whole study and duty of the pastor should be to ascertain the will and the ways of God and reveal them to the people. "God's thoughts and ways are not thoughts and ways of men," said the elder, and illustrated this by the sacrificial offerings of Cain and Abel. Each brother brought an offering that he sincerely believed would be acceptable, yet God commended Abel's and rejected Cain's. Abel conformed to the will of God; Cain consulted his own judgment in the matter and expected God to indorse his taste. One was of God, the other of man, and when the man-made theology was rejected the first act of religious intolerance occurred. When Paul was a zealous follower of a godless religion, he delighted in deeds of cruelty and persecution; but the moment he became a convert to the true religion, all his savagery left him and he became tender and merciful to all, not even harboring bitterness against those who shamefully abused him.

The elder and those of his faith believe that the preaching of Christ's teachings in their early purity and simplicity will bring a return of the baptisms of the Holy Spirit, just as at that time and in the same power; and the reason such results are not now attained is because man-made creeds have been substituted for the will of God, as in the case of Cain and Abel.

Elder Briggs says the new denomination has about forty thousand followers in the United States, and as many more in various parts of the world. The headquarters are at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa. Lincoln Hall has been engaged for a year, and services will be held every Sunday evening at 7:30.

In the foregoing article the Detroit, Michigan, Free Press of January 15 favorably advertises the efforts of Bro. E. C. Briggs who has opened up the work in Western Detroit. Compensation comes in various ways and at opportune times. While the Methodist Christian Advocate, elsewhere referred to, contains an attack upon the church, its statements are refuted and more than counteracted by the Press article. In one case the work is misrepresented in a sectarian journal of limited circulation; in the other, a popular daily of extensive circulation throughout the State, if not the nation, the faith is presented correctly. Thank God for a free press, locally and nationally. To both we are indebted for justice and fairness in many instances when religious prejudices would have denied to us the right of correct representation. In the spirit of the above article the Free Press evidences the correctness of its name. Its title thereto is clear.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. J. S. ROTH is in the field again. He wrote from Amber, Iowa, the 14th inst., as follows:—

I am in the field again, for which I feel thankful. I will be at Amber over Sunday, the 14th; then I expect to be at Osterdock over Sunday, the 21st; then to Brush Creek; and then to Canton, as the interest may demand, and my health will permit. On Monday I will go to Fulton to see Bro. John Sutton who is very low with consumption. I expect to be in my field now till General Conference.

Bro. John Kaler was at Balmain, New South Wales, the 18th ult., whence he wrote thus:—

Seven have been baptized here (Sydney) since the branch was organized last January, and some are interested and attend preaching. Sr. Carr died last week, nearly seventy-seven years of age. She was the first woman baptized into the Reorganized Church in Australia. She was a faithful Saint, and loved by all. We go to Tuncurry to the conference to-morrow.

Bro. W. S. Montgomery, Parker, Colorado, January 10:—

I am trying to do what I can for the cause. Am not holding any meetings, but am talking of the work every opportunity I have. I am past seventy-three years of age; health not very good, am afflicted with deafness. I desire an interest in the prayers of the Saints.

Bro. T. W. Chatburn, Clarksdale, Missouri, January 15:—

Bro. G. H. Hilliard is with me, doing noble work, the results of which will be seen as well as appreciated.

Bro. A. J. Layland wrote from American Falls, Idaho, January 6:—

I left my home in Montpelier, Idaho, December 11, and have been laboring since in the Snake River country. The opportunities for presenting the truth in this section of country are good, and the people—both Gentiles and Mormons—are willing to investigate, and some are ready for baptism. All goes fairly well here, but how badly we need more laborers! I hope that the church may be able to send and sustain a number of missionaries in this part of the Rocky Mountain mission in the near future.

Bro. A. W. Kriebel, Wellston, Ohio, January 13:—

Brn. James Moler, H. R. Harder, and J. L. Goodrich are laboring here holding meetings in the G. A. R. hall with increasing interest. Five were baptized to-day.

Bro. John Smith, New Bedford, Massachusetts, January 14:—

Thanks to our heavenly Father Sr. Smith seems to be improving.

Bro. Henry Hart wrote from Broughton, Kansas, inclosing the obituary of Sr. F. Sannaman, which appears in this issue. He says:—

I ask for the family the prayers of the Saints, as this affliction is very grievous. There is considerable sickness, but among the Saints all that have called for administration have received help except the sister who was called away.

The brethren at St. Joseph, Missouri, assisted by Bro. Joseph Luff, are holding a series of meetings, of which Bro. J. M. Terry wrote the 15th inst.:—

Our meetings are continuing this week. We had a splendid audience and sermon last night; "Beware of false prophets," etc., the subject. Expect Bro. Joseph to-day or to-morrow. Our general attendance is good. Papers notice us nicely. Bro. Luff is feeling quite poorly.

Bro. William Strange reports of the work in Chicago as follows:—

Elder J. B. Roush preached very acceptably to us last Sabbath, the 14th inst., in Elder Pitt's unavoidable absence to Independence. The work is progressing favorably here, although much to contend against and overcome. We are pleased to note that there are a few of the thinking class of other organizations who are regular attendants at our services and, we think, not far from obedience. Our prayer is that they may increase.

Bro. R. Etzenhouser, Provo, Utah, January 15:—

Finding North Platte is not between Denver and Kansas City I shall not call there. Let others on whose line of travel I may be take notice, and do service there if practicable. I authorized no one to report for me to Herald, where, or when, I should start from, go to, or stop at. The other points mentioned in current issue of Herald I shall do service at if practicable. When I have items that I think will be of interest in Herald will send them.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. JOHN SMITH was holding a series of meetings at Herndon, Iowa, January 15, though the Methodist friends had captured the "Union" church from which he and others were excluded. He has good congregations.

President W. W. Blair arrived home from Little Sioux, Iowa, and eastern points on Tuesday, the 16th inst. He reports conditions very prosperous and promising at Mission, and quite fair at Plano, Illinois. The outlook at Little Sioux was excellent.

Bro. and Sr. J. F. Leverton, of Flint, Michigan, wish to make the acquaintance of other Saints who may live in that city. Their address is No. 125 Fenton street.

Conference of the Northern Nebraska district will convene at Decatur, Nebraska, on Friday the 26th inst., at 7:30 p. m. We note it by request of Bro. G. M. L. Whitman, district president.

On Sunday the 14th inst. Bro. Frederick B. Blair, assistant cashier of the Lamoni State Bank, was united in marriage with Sr. Bessie Cobb, at the home of the bride's mother, Little Sioux, Iowa; President W. W. Blair officiating. Bro. Fred is the youngest son of Bro. and Sr. W. W. Blair; his bride the third daughter of Sr. Alice E. Cobb of Little Sioux, Iowa. They will make Lamoni their permanent home.

Those of the HERALD readers who may be interested in California farming lands should note the advertisement of Mr. B. Marks, of Omaha, Nebraska, in this issue of the HERALD. We understand the location to be in the western part of Central California.

Brn. G. T. Griffiths and J. R. Evans of the European mission arrived home on the 13th inst. Both are in good health.

Prospects for the cause in Denmark are improving. Bro. Marce Sorenson is regaining his health and is holding regular meetings in the city of Aalborg. This we learn from late advices to Bishop E. L. Kelley.

Letters from Bro. G. J. Waller dated Honolulu, Hawaii, December 30, report that progress has been less in the past year than that of former years. Brn. Clapp and Waller will write fuller particulars at an early date. All were well.

Sr. Emily Keeton, living at Buchtel, Athens county, Ohio, wishes the traveling ministry of the Southeastern Ohio district to occupy the pulpit of the Baptist Church, which has been tendered them at her request.

Bro. Joseph Menzies of Bunker Hill, Russell county, Kansas, wishes brethren who labor in that field to call on and aid him in his efforts to establish the work locally. He fills appointments in places near his home.

Bro. James Thomas has been holding meetings at Guilford and Rea, in the Nodaway, Missouri, district. He has good attendance, and frequent calls for preaching.

Bro. A. P. Cantrell, living at Langan, Missouri, writes that his neighbors are more disposed to give his message a hearing than when first he began to introduce the work among them. They like the message better as they understand it.

In HERALD January 10, page 41, in birth notice, read James Ivan Mowat; erroneously given as James Joan.

The Herald Office will shortly issue the articles written by Bro. J. R. Lambert, "Objections to the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants Answered and Refuted," together with several articles in defense of the Book of Mormon by Bro. William Woodhead, in book form. Particulars and prices will be given later.

Pres. W. W. Blair preached the morning sermon at Lamoni on Sunday the 21st inst. Bro. Duncan Campbell occupied the evening hour.

Bro. Jacob Hershey and four other Saints located at Shelton, Buffalo county, Nebraska, would be pleased to have the labors of an elder at that point. Buffalo is on the Union Pacific Railroad.

New subscribers for the HERALD can obtain all numbers of present volume.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Underneath the winter's snows,

The invisible hearts of flowers grow ripe for blossoming!
And the lives that look so cold, if their stories could be told,

Would seem cast in gentler mould, would seem full of love and spring."

"A CUP OF COLD WATER."

The Lord of the harvest walked forth one day,

Where the fields were white with the ripening wheat,

Where those he had sent in the early morn
Were reaping the grain in the noonday heat.

He had chosen a place for each faithful one,
And bidden them work till the day was done.

Apart from the others, with troubled voice,
Spoke one who had gathered no golden grain:

"The Master has given no work to me,
And my coming hither has been in vain;
The reapers with gladness and song will come,
But no sheaves will be mine in the harvest home."

He heard the complaint, and he called her name:

"Dear child, why standest thou idle here?
Go fill thy cup from the hillside stream,
And bring to those who are toiling near;
I will bless thy labor, and it shall be Kept in remembrance as done for me."

'Twas a little service, but grateful hearts
Thanked God for the water so cold and clear;

And some who were fainting with thirst and heat

Went forth with new strength to the work so dear;

And many a weary soul looked up,
Revived and cheered by the little cup.

Dear Lord, I have looked with an envious heart

On those who were reaping the golden grain;

I have thought in thy work I had no part,
And mourned that my life was lived in vain;

But now thou hast opened my eyes to see
That thou hast some little work for me.

If only this labor of love be mine—

To gladden the heart of some toiling saint,
To whisper some words that shall cheer the weak,

Do something to comfort the worn and faint—

Though small be the service, I will not grieve,

Content just a cup of cold water to give.

And when the Lord of the harvest shall come,

And the laborers home from the field shall call,

He will not look for my gathered sheaves,
But his loving words on my ear will fall:

"Thou gavest a cup of cold water to me,
A heavenly home thy reward shall be."—Sel.

SPEAK NO EVIL.

Nay, speak no ill; a gentle word

Can never leave a sting behind;

But O, to breathe each tale we've heard,
Is far beneath a noble mind.

Then let us reach a higher mood—

A nobler estimate of man—

And if but little good be known,

Let's speak of all the best we can.

Give me the heart that fain would hide,

Would fain another's faults efface—

How can it flatter human pride

To prove humanity but base?

For oft a better seed is sown

By choosing this the kinder plan;

And if but little good be known

Let's speak of all the best we can.

Nay, speak no ill but lenient be

To other's failings as your own—

If you're the first a fault to see,

Be not the first to make it known.

For life is but a passing day,

No lips can tell how brief the span;

Then, for the little time we stay,

Let's speak of all the best we can.—Sel.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Lizzie Cole, of St. Louis, writes: "I want to say a few words about the Birth Offering series Nos. 1 and 2. I think them grand little books and my two girls are delighted with them. We got one for each of them as a Christmas present, and I think if any of the sisters want to give their children a book either for a holiday or a birthday present, they should send for these. They are also very suitable for presents in the Sunday school."

STUBBLEFIELD, Ky., Nov. 18.

Dear Sisters:—I have just finished perusing your columns laden with spiritual food that is so nourishing and strengthening to me. I do so much enjoy reading the letters of my brethren and sisters from almost all parts of the world. I love to know how the good work is rolling on. I am young in the cause but I can truly say that the Lord has blessed me so that I greatly enjoy the work much more than words can express. I know that it is hard for us to give up the world, especially for the young. I have thought that when Satan has lost his hold upon anyone that he works harder than ever to get it back again, and he generally works in the dark, for he knows that if we could see where he was leading we would not be so apt to follow, and so he tries to entice us little by little, and every time we yield to him in little things it is much harder to resist in greater things. There have been times when I felt that there was no use in fighting against him, and those who have felt like that know nothing but the pure love of God can help us. "In the world ye shall have tribulations; but be of good cheer, for I have overcome the world." These words have been a great help to many in times of trial, and even so we can overcome the world but only by the help of God. Sometimes we are apt to think God has given us commandments hard to keep, but if we would only remember that those very commandments are given in love we would not find them so hard.

Many young members are anxious that God would give them some great work to do, and yet they find the petty trials of life almost too much for them. I am sure that God has work for every one of us, and if we will only ask him he will show it to us; and let us remember that our reward does not depend upon the kind of work we do, but upon the manner in which we do it. My dear young Saints, let us not be troubled by the sneers of the world for it not only sneered at Christ but crucified him. Let us thank God for the restored gospel. I ask the older members to pray for us younger ones and let us all try to purify ourselves and do what we can to aid the cause. I believe that we should not let little things keep us from church and prayer meetings. We can learn something of value at each meeting.

We are expecting Bro. T. C. Kelley to be here in a few days to preach some for us. We have prayer meeting every Sabbath evening, and although there are but few of us God's promise, "Where two or three are met together in my name there I will be in their midst and that to bless," is verified to us. I pray that God may call more laborers into the field and prepare the Saints to support them that his kingdom may soon come.

Your sister,

ANNIE SNOW.

MEDITATIVE THOUGHTS.

MOST high and holy One, we thine unworthy, isolated child desire thoughts that are from thee. Thou knowest that we have trials within and trials without, and observe trials of friends, and of the members of our branch. We have participated in them in a small degree; that is, have talked them over and over, and thereby woven the subtle web around our own soul, and have made the troubles no better, only worse. It reminds one of an insect that has spun out all its activity, its vitality into its cocoon and must lie dormant until it arises a new being. O Father, thou alone art able to bring in truth and right, and shut out error and wrong. We pray thee to lift up now thine almighty hand in behalf of justice in the various cases to which we refer, and in all similar cases in the whole world. May the wickedness of each person, whether saint or sinner, be brought to the light, and be consumed by thy power through his or her repentance. Thou art a consuming fire; thou hast no respect for persons; and thou canst not look upon sin with favor; then, O Father, help us all, every one, to come before thee in the depths of humility, and accept a full pardon, a full cleansing. Help us that we may no more wallow in the mire, but be lifted up into the pure road of Christianity, that the gazing world may know that we have that which we claim to possess, and that we may know that we are abiding in the Vine. May those who are innocent, be liberated from the chains of injustice which do bind them. How long shall they be withheld from doing the good they desire? Have they by great zeal and small knowledge placed themselves in a situation that tended to bring a curse instead of a blessing? If so, Father forgive them, forgive us, and help that no one may longer seek to devour another. May sin be vanquished and that Christlike love that once pervaded the bosoms of thy children be rekindled and fanned till it shall shine with a greater brightness than ever before.

We have not sinned that grace might abound, but have suffered ourselves to be led by the power of evil, and now are wallowing and chafing in the position we have placed ourselves. Thy watchful eye is still over us, thy hand is still stretched out to save us and we say: O, help us to grasp it, and henceforth lead us beside the still waters of righteousness and peace, till every one of us shall enter into that rest that remaineth for the children of God. May the clouds of darkness that have long hung over us pass on without harm to our souls, and may the power of the electric darts of sin be brought to naught and we each be more fully cleansed than ever before.

"How long, dear Savior, O how long Shall that bright hour delay!"

How long shall we wallow in the scenes of time and sense! A still small voice whispers, "Till the soul is purged of its iniquities. Weeping may continue for a night, but joy will come in the morning—will come when sin is dispelled and the glory of God bursts in upon the soul."

Dear reader, that can never be till we relinquish our hold on sin, and grasp anew the favors of God.

Your unworthy sister,
ALMIRA.

ALLENDALE, MO.

Dear Sisters:—I feel strong in the work I have enlisted in, although I have not done as much as I might have done. I feel my responsibilities as a mother to train my little ones as I should. I have four intrusted to my care. Two of them are in the faith. I was afflicted for five years but it pleased God to restore me that I could work for my family, and I give him the praise. I take great delight in reading the letters, especially on training children.

As ever your sister,
ALMIRA A. PINKERTON.

ANGOLA, Kan., Jan. 6.

Dear Sisters:—I never see any letters from the sisters in this branch, and have wondered many times what the reason is that none of them ever write. We have a Religio-Literary Society here and think it is doing good. I love to read the hints on child-training. They are such a benefit to me. I have five little children intrusted to my care and feel a great responsibility resting on me, and my daily prayer is that God will give me wisdom to train them aright. Would like to join the Daughter's of Zion if I thought that I could do any good. Would also like to see something of that kind started here.

Your sister,
L. A. RYAN.

HELPING HAND.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Jan. 10.

Sister Frances:—The sisters of San Bernardino branch met in the Saints' chapel on November 9, 1893, and organized a local branch of Daughters of Zion. Sr. Esther Rhorer was chosen president and Sr. Addie Mathews secretary. The second Thursday of each month was chosen as the day of meeting. The names of members are: Sisters Esther Rhorer, Nellie Holt, Angeline Ames, M. A. Mathews, Hannah Buck, Betty Harris, Sarah A. Roberts, Beckie Wixom, Orisie Lytle, E. Davidson, L. Motschmann, Sarah Teaters, Addie Mathews.

Yours in bonds,
ADDIE MATHEWS, Sec.

Sr. S. H. Wyman also writes from University, Los Angeles county, California, saying that the sisters of that place have formed a local organization of the Daughters of Zion in connection with a Prayer Union. We are much pleased to hear this, for the work we have undertaken requires the help of One who is strong and "Prayer moves the Arm which moves the universe." The sisters forgot to send for publication and enrollment the names of those who joined. Please let us hear again.

The work is gaining slowly but surely, and most decidedly. The outlook is clearer and brighter than ever before, and the field for the reapers spreads away, away one vast plain covered with bending grain ready for the reaper's sickle. But the zeal and courage of the laborers is rising equal to every demand made upon them.

Mothers, let us call your attention to two items which are intended to be helpful as means of teaching and training your children. We refer you to our Birth Offering volumes and to the Christmas Offering fund. We have often felt that neither of these were sufficiently encouraged and will have something more to say about them next week.

Leaflets No's. 1 to 4 and 5 can be had at Herald Office by inclosing a two cent stamp in payment.

LOCKHARTVILLE, N. S., Jan. 9.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Greene has written concerning my whereabouts since I last wrote until he left me at McAdam, Maine. I was sorry indeed to part with so enjoyable a traveling companion and feel that I had to face the cold winter months alone; but we cannot have everything as we want it. I spent two or three weeks in and around Calais. Once by special request I preached to the Orangemen, they walking in regalia to the church they had secured for this purpose. I endeavored to show them that it was the principle of the Protestant faith that their predecessors had pledged themselves to stand by, not simply their creeds; that when the Protestants had imbibed of the spirit of Romanism to the persecution of other religionists, they were bound to stand by the persecuted ones, no matter what their name was.

At Tower Hill I was requested to champion the Baptist cause in opposition to a rather positive Presbyterian minister who was preaching against their mode of baptism. I spoke some upon the mode but I am afraid I did not give the Baptists much more comfort than I did the Presbyterians, for I stated that it was unwise for that neighborhood to spend time and good will over a matter of so little importance as the mode, simply, of baptism while they were yet under a broken covenant; and if baptism was not performed for remission of sins, by authority, one mode was as good as the other, and either was as good as none at all. Then I preached the gospel.

I arrived home a few days before Christmas; found family and friends comparatively well. I spent a day or two at North Alton, where I generally have quite a large congregation of kind friends, but am not aware that there is one interested one in the place. Some have been until they are satisfied that our claims are all right and there they stand, not justified of God. For about ten days I have been holding a series of meetings at South Rawdon, and feel much encouraged regarding the young in and out of the church. The Saints for the most part are striving to retain the Spirit, and while they were kind in conveying me to and from the station and caring for me, they also remembered that elders cannot travel without money, of which those not belonging to the church were also mindful, God bless them. Yet there are some things that must be overcome before perfection can be attained, however, the outlook is better than for years, and I came away feeling more encouraged than I have for a long time. They have a nice, warm, well-lighted, and cozy little chapel to meet in, and with the Spirit's presence it is an enjoyable place to worship. May they have it, is my prayer. May heaven's richest blessings be poured out upon all the true and faithful Saints and friends all over the earth.

Yours in and for the truth,

HOLMES J. DAVISON.

FIFE LAKE, Mich., Jan. 15.

Editors Herald:—In the new opening I made at Joyfield, I baptized seven, also one at Lake Ann, and one at this place, making nine of late. There is more of an interest here now than ever before. I am expecting to be at Joyfield the 21st to preach and baptize some who are waiting my return. I am feeling well in the work, and do not feel at all discouraged.

I understand that the church at Coleman is to be dedicated, and I expect to attend that, and also be with Elder Cornish at Gilmore when the debate comes off between him and Elder Rogers.

I met with the Saints at Kingsley, on the 14th, and preached to them and gave them instructions how to live, what they ought to do, and what they ought not to do. We then had testimony meeting and every one rejoiced in the gospel of Christ.

F. C. SMITH.

SHERWIN, Kan., Jan. 3.

Editors Herald:—I came here on Saturday and opened up to a fair house. Interest is good in most places I have visited. The Saints in some parts need labor as well as those we call "the world." It would seem that there are not enough Simon Peters now to fulfill St. John 21: 15-17, nor enough of those spoken of in Luke 15: 4-6 to bring back that which is lost. We should love to "prose-lyte" but rather weep over our own people.

I am glad to be among those who would learn only by experience for when the lesson is learned we will not be so quick to forget. As the Saints in Paul's day were looking forward to the glorious day of the Lord, so are we, and we know it is soon to come. The day will soon dawn when we will be expected to have heeded the admonition of the Spirit to "come up higher." We are doing what we can in Spring River district for the good of the work, though the wheels move slowly.

Yours for the cause,

R. M. MALONEY.

BYRNEVILLE, Ind., Jan. 8.

Editors Herald:—The work in this part is advancing, notwithstanding I have had to meet the arguments of the world, such arguments as rocks, but not in as severe a way as did Stephen; but as stoning Stephen to death did not stop the work then, so throwing a few stones at one of God's servants will not stop the work of God now.

I began preaching here December 30, having a fair-sized congregation each night and as the meetings continue the interest grows greater. On the 3d of January I had the pleasure of leading two precious souls into the waters of baptism, and on yesterday M. K. Scott baptized another. I believe more will come in before the meetings close. Bro. M. K. Scott left for home this morning, but J. M. Scott is with me. He will do the preaching, as I cannot get out yet on account of a severe attack of lagrippe. I think I will get out by to-morrow night.

There is much demand for preaching in this part of the field. I am striving to do according to my knowledge and ability to get this work before the people in such a way that they may comprehend what God requires at their hands.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, January 11.

Editors Herald:—The fore part of November found us in the town of Cherokee, Iowa, where, through kindness of Brother Hayes and family, who reside seven miles south of town, we were privileged to occupy a hall for preaching eleven evenings. They were the first Latter Day Saint meetings ever held there so far as we know. I said "kindness;" so it was; hall rent, light, fuel, and board bill met by the above-named brethren for the work's sake, and it was a work of love and sacrifice; for they had financial obligations and tithing to meet and were paying all accordingly, and freely so. We went out into rural districts also and ministered, gathering scattered ones together and giving them of the "Lord's supper," and having them to meet on Sundays for social service under Teacher Hayes until such time as better arrangements may be had, as no branch exists in Cherokee county.

Having labored incessantly for several months, and in connection with preaching and other labor we were doing much of "literary work," nature admonished us that rest was becoming necessary. But as "rest" does not always mean doing nothing, but rather "a change of action," we have preached on Sundays the last three weeks and helped willing hands in other directions for entertainment during holiday season for Sunday school purposes. And not having been home for several Christmases a feeling of desire somehow found place to be with loved ones at that time. We leave to-morrow for the field again at daily service.

We feel thankful that we are able to say that the past year has added to our store of information upon God's work. New and harmonious ideas have come and enlightened the mind, gladdened the soul, inspiring and encouraging, filling the soul with divine joy. O, what a perpetual feast the spirit of the gospel provides! Is it any wonder Jesus spoke to the woman that "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give," etc? O, that the world would cry, "Lord, give me of that water!" "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." How ever-satisfying and refreshing it is; how very grateful we should be unto the Lord for the gospel and all it includes! So much to think about, to learn, to acquire; a constant schooling; "precept upon precept, line upon line, here a little and there a little;" always accumulating, never diminishing. "I am the bread of life." We know it; we have eaten, and are convinced; "blessed assurance."

Are we over-confident? How can we be. Are the promises true? Have we not obeyed the original gospel, the divinely inspired plan? Does not the record say, "He is faithful that promised"? Why not every one who has named the name of Christ be earnestly engaged in the good cause? Why not, if professing to be Saints, be willing, ready workers; instead, as we regret to say, murmurers, and complainers, and standers by, obstacle creators? How much happier they would be and make others so, whereas by contrary action they are unhappy themselves and make it unpleasant for all concerned. We make no personal reference hereby, for experience and observation have taught us that opposites are of universal existence. But we need not follow where Christ does not lead. If others' good was sought, less selfishness would surely be maintained. But we are to hope, labor, pray, trust for the best.

Respectfully,

J. F. McDOWELL.

BAGDAD, Fla., Jan. 10.

Editors Herald:—To say that the work here is flourishing at this time I cannot, but think it is holding its own. On account of so much sickness and bad weather it is difficult to get people together here during the winter season, but fireside and wayside labor is plentiful. Several who became attracted and interested by Bro. Turpen's labors here in the fall are investigating and believing, and we are anxiously waiting for more favorable circumstances, when I think much good can be done in Florida; not idly waiting, however, for we are doing what we can to keep things moving and to prepare for a summer campaign.

On the 20th of December death took from us Bro. Henry Hall of "Hinote" branch. Bro. Hall's life and membership have been varied, but he died firm in the faith and reconciled to meet his God. He was eighty-one years of age.

I spent Christmas with the "New Hope" Sunday school at Bay Point, where I conducted the exercises by request of the superintendent. A very enjoyable time would have been had but for the presence of intoxicants. O, when will the Saints learn that "strong" drinks are not good, neither meet in the sight of our Father in heaven! How long will they worship and serve the gods of the world rather than the God of heaven? Elijah said, "If the Lord be God, follow him;" or in other words, if we accept the Lord as our God we should serve and worship him and denounce all the gods or idols of the world, and if not, we should make no profession of worshiping him, but take upon us the name of that thing we follow after as our God. Are not money, liquor, tobacco, coffee, etc. gods or idols when they are foremost in our thoughts and our desires after them are allowed to come between us and the God of heaven? And are not those who allow such things to hinder the working of God's Spirit through them departing from the faith and given to idolatry? The Lord has said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve;" and, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." "Ye shall not make unto you gods of silver, neither shall ye make unto you gods of gold." God's Spirit will not dwell in unholy temples. How careful we should be, then, not to defile our bodies with the filthy and poisonous things of this world, nor our minds with unholy lusts and selfish and greedy desires, by which we defraud ourselves of the presence of God's Holy Spirit, the Comforter, in this life, and the crown of eternal life in that to come.

Your brother,
C. I. CARPENTER.

DERBY, Ind., Jan. 3.

Editors Herald:—Since last writing I have been busily engaged, with the exception of about three weeks at home, sick. I have labored in Crawford, Perry, and Davis counties, with varied success and to interesting assemblies. I have baptized one; Bro. John Robinson, at Marietta; a good man, who since his baptism has been called and ordained a priest, and is in charge of the branch at West Fork. We earnestly pray for the success of the work there. The Saints are few in number and opposition is strong against them, but if faithful they will overcome. We hope that by wise conduct they may gain favor with God and man.

The work is in very good condition where we have been, but the need is more laborers. We have very few local workers in Southwestern Indiana, and some are hiding their light. When will some learn that an ordination means something and that they will be called to account for it?

We had a good conference at Plainville December 23-25. It was a pleasure to meet the dear Saints at that place again. Over three years ago the writer baptized the first Saint in that county; the first sermon of the faith was preached at Thornhill by Bro. I. P. Baggerly and myself. However, Bro. Daniel had preached about thirteen miles from there. The branch now numbers seventy-eight and the work is still onward. Bro. Daniel baptized two while I was there. He and Bro. R. Etzenhouser have done a good work in that country.

We did not get to see Bro. M. T. Short, but learned that he was held in high esteem by many, and we rejoiced in that. Why should not God's ambassadors be held in high esteem by the world? The promise through the Choice Seer was that his people should find favor and grace in the eyes of the people. By right living God's people demonstrate the truthfulness of the work. Brn. I. P. Baggerly, J. M. Scott, and A. Barmore gave us good discourses; and the veteran J. G. Scott made us rejoice with his strong testimony of God's marvelous work. The conference was a success, the Saints are learning, and the Hoosier State may yet be noted for her good Saints. We hope so.

We left Brn. Baggerly and Barmore there and came home to preach a funeral sermon, stopping over night at Oakland City with Mr. James Edwards, a Saint in belief and practice so far as being good and kind is concerned. We hope to see him and his excellent wife in the church ere long. We visited a Mr. Woods who was formerly a member of the Disciple school, but who is now building a church free for all people; for us as well as others. He desires our brethren to occupy as soon as it is completed, which will be in about a month. His mother was baptized into the church at Nauvoo; so the Lord is working for the spread of his truth everywhere. Surely it is a marvelous work and wonder to us. May we prove worthy and gain the prize.

Yours in the faith,
V. D. BAGGERLY.

ALPHA, Mo., Jan. 15.

Editors Herald:—Brn. John Rounds and T. W. Chatburn were with us the first of last month, and while here the Baptist brethren kindly loaned them the churchhouse, which they occupied to their own credit and the good of the cause, being greatly blessed while presenting the word. Many are anxious for their return. There is no branch here, and the gospel story is new to the people. We with many others hope that Brn. Chatburn and Rounds will be assigned this same field at the next General Conference.

Your sister,
DORA MILLER.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 9.

Editors Herald:—I returned home from Indiana, my field of labor, December 6, and departed on the 30th ult. I spoke several times during my brief sojourn, and attended social meetings and the Sunday school, as well as the nice Christmas entertainment. I held forth seven times in Burlington, Iowa, in the new Saints' chapel. These services were fairly well attended with rival revivals to compete against. The festivities of the holidays were not entirely past and winter sports, traffic, troubles, contagion, hard times, and the usual round of a city life and other things too numerous and various to note or mention made and do make progress slow.

When people come out on the side of truth and right and believe, comprehend, and obey the gospel with all these manifold engrossing allurements, they are generally firm and steadfast in their most holy faith and worship. They have seen all phases of society, hence their choice. When many of our rural denizens who have a good record for morality change their abodes to the cities, they lose their heads, so to speak, in the vast fast throng. I would be too pleased if our church members invariably formed exceptions to the above rule. It takes integrity of heart, fixedness of purpose, a well-informed judgment, a vast amount of "Be sure you are right and then go ahead," or conscientious will force, with the grace of God, and faith, hope, and charity, to always rise above the siren chant of unseen agencies and the visible environments of a gainsaying world.

I came into this city on last Saturday to attend conference and both receive and impart good. The business was transacted by the few present. On Sunday morning at the Sunday school the neat chapel was well filled, almost to overflowing, and sure it was a grand sight. The morning and evening services were devoted to the proclamation of the word. I have been absent so long that they looked on me as a kind of a new broom. If I failed to do the occasions justice, it is said that the old broom is all right to clean out the corners. The afternoon sacrament and social meeting was well attended. Brn. Luff and Bozarth's recent protracted effort in the city was crowned with much success. They are had in grateful remembrance by many, while Charles Jones, the missionary that is present, is praised and extolled to—well, very high. He appears to be the right man in the proper place. This desultory talk that it takes a fine scholar and a man of refined culture for the work in the city is more seeming than real. Peter abode not in Rome, but in Jerusalem. The unlettered Galileans were to teach the whole world, but they and the true children of the living God were in turn all to be taught of the infallible God.

I spoke in Cheltenham last night to quite a good house, and am to hold forth in our church house there again to-night. To-morrow I will take the morning train for Vincennes, Indiana, and go thence north a short distance to Oaktown, both of which are in Knox county. Many of my kindred live in that vicinity, as also former acquaintances. They know but little about my belief as yet, but I am bent and determined to give them ample opportunity to learn the straight of the old old story, even the famous Jerusalem gospel, all, as in days of old.

So far I am not satisfied with the visible results of my year's toil, for work, anxiety, opposition, and disappointment have been my lot. I have striven to be patient, humble, hopeful, and industrious; and, forsooth, the sacrifice of the society of my family, the expenditure of means, the lonesomeness of my sojourn, the weariness of my frame, prejudice, ignorance, blind zeal, and other things have caused the missionary cross to rest heavily indeed by times and often. When, however, we are through the gauntlet of any such experience we feel a sense of gratitude arise in the soul and enliven the heart, that we have not only been enabled to stand, but we feel to renew our courage and redouble our diligence. I crave the thunder and lightning, the storm and fierce tempest if so be that I can remain unscathed and unsullied and stem the tides and the tempest. Let me have, dear Saints, your fondly cherished faith, and, in turn, I will strive to merit your love and esteem. My family and self are in usual good health, and we have not had to go unclothed or hungry, but behold, we practice decent economy, and strive not to want everything.

M. T. SHORT.

FANNING, Kan., Jan. 15.

Editors Herald:—I am preaching in a schoolhouse three miles east of Fanning, in connection with Bro. J. T. Davis. We will hold meetings in and around Fanning for a time. The Christians have converted nearly all, I understand, but we will try to convert what are left and some of the Christians. I have just come from Atchison. I held several meetings there, also in the neighborhood of Wellsville, Kansas, in Franklin county, and at Scranton and vicinity. Prospects are not very flattering for an ingathering where I have been. I have had good liberty in dispensing the word. I haven't got lagrippe; no, it is only a severe cold.

Yours in hope,
R. L. WARE.

MAGNOLIA, Minn., Jan. 16.

Editors Herald:—I am having a good, lively time here. The Methodists have closed their church against me, so I had to go to the schoolhouse. I am having good attendance and good liberty. The people who are not Methodists are standing by me. The opposition that I am meeting is of low character, and done behind my back. The Methodists are having some kind of doings every night so as to keep the people away from my meetings, but, thank God, it has but little effect; a good work is being done here.

I am now setting forth the mission of Joseph Smith and the coming forth of the Book of Mormon. Will continue on that subject over next Sunday. I am examining history that is written against us. The contrast is so great that the thinking people, yes, the best citizens are taking it all in. The house is full every night. This conference year has been one of great experience to me.

My health is not good. In justice to myself physically I should lay up for awhile, but it is hard to do that when the demand for hearing our doctrine is so great. Lagrippe is my trouble; there were nine deaths in St. Peter while I was there.

Yours in bonds,
I. N. ROBERTS.

St. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 10.

Editors Herald:—I am glad to say the work of the Lord in this part of the vineyard is still onward. The labors of Brn. Luff, Bozarth, and Jones have been greatly blessed; some have been added, but the greater benefit is the firm establishment of the Saints. Our young people are up to the mark and the older ones are not far behind; we have good spiritual meetings. Our late conference was a success; the peaceful Spirit of the Master was with the Saints; it was a time of rejoicing long to be remembered. There are and have been some sick, but in answer to prayer the spirit of healing and comfort has come, and some are rejoicing in the God of Saints.

I visited my niece, a member of the Whearso branch, near Linn, Osage county, and found the Saints there feeling well. I spoke of the necessity of a church house where the children could have Sabbath school, and regular meetings instead of meeting in private houses; I found the Saints in favor of it, also friends not members, and a friend not a member of the church is willing to give an acre of ground upon which to build a house. He is also willing to help build it. Surely the Lord is turning the hearts of the children of men Zionward. A meeting of Saints and friends was called and all expressed themselves as pleased with the idea, and all were willing to do what they could until finished; so a committee was appointed to build, various sums of money and material were offered and accepted, and thus the good work goes on.

Your brother,
NOAH N. COOKE.

Editors Herald:—Will you permit me to call the attention of my colaborers to the action of General Conference of 1893 which provides that hereafter all reports of the general ministry, the Bishopric, and the Presidency, be sent to the Church Secretary at least ten days prior to the time of assembling of General Conference.

I charge none with negligence, but it's just possible that such items may be overlooked, but if all have a lively remembrance none will be injured. The order of reporting to the missionary in charge will remain the same, not omitting to state the number of dependents, etc. Address, No. 213 Harrison street, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Dec. 29.

Editors Herald:—I was forcibly struck by the remarks of a sister in Herald of December 9: "God never gives material faster than it is made use of, and does not give other talents until the first have been wisely used." This to me has a world of meaning and supplies much food for thought individually and collectively. After I was baptized I too found myself thinking if I could speak like some I would take part in services. I felt so keenly about it that I went to one of the elders and told him I could neither bear testimony nor pray in the meetings. His reply was, "That is all right; you don't know anything yet; you have not been born very long; you are a babe in the kingdom." To use a common expression, I felt small. But since then I have always felt thankful for those words, for from that moment I determined by God's help to make the attempt to both testify and pray in every meeting. Now after nearly four years experience in this great and grand work I am fully satisfied that just so fast as we use the material we have the Lord will keep up the supply and lead us by his Holy Spirit into paths necessary for our development temporally, morally, and spiritually.

The work in Brooklyn does not advance as rapidly as we would wish; yet we take comfort in the fact that it is God's work and that in his time it will move forward. I am satisfied that man's efforts unaccompanied by the Holy Spirit's power will not avail much, at least in church work. The Brooklyn Saints have much to be thankful for. In this time of need God has been a friend indeed; babes have been restored to their loving parents, wives to their husbands, and husbands to their wives; some have been stricken down by epidemics, some by poison, and others by accidents; but in their helplessness they have appealed to their heavenly Father, through the ordinances of the gospel, and their prayers have been answered. Truly this gospel does not come in word only, but with power and much assurance. We should all feel thankful that we have part in this grand work, and make a proper application of its precepts to our individual lives, so that through us the gospel may become a power for good.

Last evening our Sunday school had their yearly entertainment and presents. Credit is due to Bro. Squire, superintendent, and those who worked with him in the Sunday school in making it a success; it being both instructive and amusing.

I feel very thankful for the many evidences of God's love while battling with self and striving to follow the Holy Spirit. The desire of my heart is that we may all so form our characters that they will meet the divine approval.

Your brother,
JAMES COCKS.

FARWELL, Mich., Jan. 11.

Editors Herald:—After reading the article in the Herald of January 3, about our church paper, I took the Herald to prayer meeting last night and read the article on page 2 and tried to show my brethren the good to be gained by taking the Herald; First, because it is the official paper; Second, because it belongs to the body; Third, because we cannot keep pace with the growth and advancement of the church without it. Times are close; three of the brethren, heads of families gave me their names for the Herald.

Yours for the advancement of the cause,
R. B. CAMPBELL,
President of Gilmore branch.

WELLSTON, Ohio, Jan. 15.

Editors Herald:—Please carry the following message to our brethren: Bro. H. R. Harder, James Moler, and myself have just closed a week's meeting at this place, it being the first opportunity we have had of "breaking the bread of life" in this city. Fair audiences, good order, and good interest generally prevailed. Bro. James will likely continue the effort after a week or so. After closing and benediction we were requested to continue, but the people having gone home, we thought best to let them digest the spiritual food already received. Bro. Moler will join Bro. Wilber Kriebel at Oak Grove schoolhouse, about three miles east of here, in a day or two.

We have also been holding meetings at the residence of Bro. Thomas Williams, in the western suburbs of the city, and in the eastern part of Glen Roy, at the residence of Bro. John Davis. There have been seven baptisms during the meetings round about, and there are several others much interested and hungering after the truth. Services continue at the residence of Bro. Williams. The way is gradually opening through Southern Ohio. Prejudice is surely, though slowly, giving way.

Bro. Harder and I expect to go to Pick-away county on the 22d, to try and effect openings. I lived there some fifteen years ago. If there are any Saints in that county, please write us, at Byer, Ohio, that we may know where to call upon you, if we have opportunity. We expect to remain in Pickaway county until our district conference at Vale's Mills, February 17.

Bro. H. E. Moler, has been in the West Virginia mission for a time, and has arranged for a debate to commence on the 22d, inst., at Grimm's Landing, in that State.

The Saints in Lawrence county, will come to Byer, Ohio, on Thursday where I will meet them, and provide for their needs, till we can get a train for conference. Be sure to come on Thursday, all that come on the Cincinnati, Hamilton, and Dayton Railroad, as you cannot make connections so as to get to Vale's Mills the same day.

THE LAW OF TITHING.

THE law of tithing, its proper place in the gospel economy, the practicability of and necessity for its observance, together with benefits designed by its Author, our heavenly Father, that should accrue to the observer, are among the things, according to the writer's observation, with which many, very many, if not a large proportion of not only the world but of the Church of God are unacquainted; and which may constitute our only apology, if any is needed, for writing.

It is written in the ancient Scriptures of the Jews and affirmed by the Savior that "man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

To "live," as defined by our heavenly Father, and as expressly represented by Jesus Christ, is to occupy in that condition of being that represents the highest, most exalted state of consciousness and happiness of which we are or to which we may be made capable of attaining. In other words, no commandment, counsel, or word ever given of God to his children can ever prove to be other than for their very best, and highest interest, no matter what the temporary or superficial aspect may be.

"Have faith in God;" "Believe also in me," were the words of him whom we call "our Savior." Faith in them—practical faith—we as a church teach to the world is always shown forth, manifested in God's sight and certified to men as demonstrated by our works.

Tithing, as defined in a word, is a tenth of one's increase; is applicable to and enjoined upon all who profess obedience to the gospel of Christ, and who understand the nature and expect to enjoy the fullness of its blessings.

What is the gospel of Christ? It is the power of God unto salvation. Salvation from what? We answer, from every ill, and in the supply of every need that flesh is heir to.

Life, as Jesus Christ found it here upon earth, and as we all still find it to-day, is, with even our ordinary ideals, very incomplete, unsatisfactory, and wanting. Few are satisfied, and in a sense ought not to be, obviously, because of its imperfections; so much so, that thousands take it, all that they are conscious of possessing, and by their own volition end it in suicide. Others, and many more thousands, drag out either an unhappy or indifferent existence, and are blindly waiting the eternal uncertainties or unconsciousness. With others the religious interest is struggling along with the uncertainties of a belief whose foundations in reason are to-day shaken by the challenges of the unbeliever. And yet, after all, the true idea and desire of all humanity we apprehend, is expressed by the poet thus:—

"Whatever crazy sorrow saith,
No life that breathes with human breath
Has ever truly longed for death.

"'Tis life, whereof our nerves are scant,—
O life! not death, for which we pant;
More life, and fuller that we want."

To answer this cry of his children we believe that our heavenly Father sent his Son into the world to say to us, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." For this purpose he has sent his angel with the gospel in our day. And this is the gospel of glad tidings, on earth peace. "good will toward men," "of great joy . . . to all the people." Is it so? Let us see.

It is the everlasting gospel. Yes; we read that it was preached unto Abraham; yes; if preached to-day it would be the same; yes. Let us then "to the law and to the testimony."—

We read in Gal. 3: 8, 9:—

And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed. So then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham.

What was his blessing? A landed inheritance. Where? Upon this earth. (Gen. 13: 14-17.) How are we under the gospel affected by this statement?

That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ.—Gal. 3: 14.

God has in our day sent forth the same gospel in fulfillment of the predictions of Jesus. (Matt. 20: 16; Luke 20: 18; Matt. 24: 14; Rev. 14: 6.)

That we might receive the adoption of sons. And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ.—Gal. 4: 5-7.

For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise.—Gal. 3: 26, 27, 29.

What then is salvation, gospel salvation? It is to be saved from every real want and to inherit a supply for every real need.

What, in a word, is the sum of human want? Man needs, first, salvation from sin:—

For sin is the transgression of the law.

All persons who have arrived at the age of reason are conscious of the fact that they have, do, and are liable to transgress law; to sin. Hereditary influences are often against us, which instinctive justice says we are not responsible for. This is met by the promise that "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."

If death has passed upon all by inheritance, so by the resurrection shall all—independently of anything good or bad they may do—be resurrected to a physical life.

Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation.—John 5: 28, 29.

And have hope toward God, which they themselves also allow that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust.

If we, through gospel obedience to law regulating our moral and spiritual life here, are expecting the promise of a part in the first or "better resurrection" for which the ancient martyrs suffered (Heb. 11), that resurrection morning will still find us possessed of wants even as we now are possessed of them. True, we are to be "equal unto the angels," being "children of God," and "of the resurrection" (Luke 20: 36), but they have wants which Abraham's bread and meat supplied, and by which also Lot's hospitality was tested (Gen. 18 and 19); and his heirs in turn were fed by them in the wilderness:—

Man did eat angel's food.—Ps. 78: 25, 27.

The promise of God, "who giveth food to all flesh" (Ps. 136: 25), will never fail. The fact that "this mortal shall put on immortality" will not disrobe it of its wants. If Job is in the latter day to stand, clothed in the flesh seeing his Redeemer upon this earth, it must still yield to his wants.

Is there a just law by which provision for the future under more equitable administration, by which all our wants are to be provided, and the kingdom of God on earth translated into our sense and comprehension in a practical way? We answer, Yes. What is that law? It is the law of tithing. Abraham obeyed it; Jacob also. It served as a basis for the supply of the priesthood anciently, and the needs of the poor; and the cause of Jewish failure, and disaster, and curse was laid by Malachi to a want of its observance.

Jesus enjoined it, and Paul without doubt taught it as a part of the gospel ministration. (See 2 Cor. 9:13; chapter 8, etc.) The New Testament record upon this subject is, of course, fragmentary and imperfect (John 21:25); but we who ought to "live by every word" that has proceeded "out of the mouth of God" are without excuse, for the volume of testimony is full and convincing to us who care to read and who have faith to believe. Nevertheless, we believe there is very much in both the Old and New Testament records that harmonizes with latter-day revelation upon this point. The parable of our Savior, as recorded in the sixteenth chapter of Luke is, we believe, in evidence; and as for illustration, we quote, and insert what we believe to be a rational explanation of the parable of our Savior as revealed in Luke 16:8:—

And he said also unto his disciples, There was a certain rich man, which had a steward; and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods. And he called him, and said unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? give an account of thy stewardship; for thou mayest be no longer steward. Then the steward said within himself, What shall I do? for my lord taketh away from me the stewardship: I cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed. I am resolved what to do, that, when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses. So he called every one of his lord's debtors unto him, and said unto the first, How much owest thou unto my lord? And he said, An hundred measures of oil. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and sit down quickly, and write fifty. Then said he to another, And how much owest thou? And he said, An hundred measures of wheat. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and write fourscore. And the lord commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely: for the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.

In what way was this steward commended? Certainly not for his injustice. What then, if not for the wisdom he had shown in making provision for his legitimate wants? No other interpretation in reason can be put upon this language of our Savior. Here is a man who found himself without goods or a habitation, and finding himself thus unprovided for, "said within himself, what shall I do?" "I cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed." What action does wisdom and forethought suggest? He makes friends with his lord's creditors, through the provision of what our Savior terms, the "unrighteous mammon." Fifty measures of oil, twenty of wheat, are turned into their account; all this, that he might for his forethought, wisdom, and service toward them be received by them into a temporal habitation and his wants be provided for; and with this illustration our Savior turns to his disciples and says:—

And I say unto you, Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations.

Now, what did he mean by the term "everlasting habitations?" We believe that he meant the same thing as was alluded to in the sermon on the mount, when he said, "blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth;" and the same thing as was also said to St. Paul:—

And he said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest. But rise, and stand upon thy feet; for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to make thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear unto thee; delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I send thee, to open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith that is in me. —Acts 26:15-18.

This was the idea, and the reward that Paul was commissioned to preach, and which we find him also teaching in turn to the Saints at Ephesus, thus:—

Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved. In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace; wherein he hath abounded toward us in all wisdom and prudence; having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure which he hath purposed in himself: that in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him: in whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will: that we should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ. In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory. Wherefore I also, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus, and love unto all the saints, cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers; that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him: the eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints.—Eph. 1:5-18.

Let us turn again to Luke 16:9-15:—

And I say unto you [the disciples], Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations. He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much: and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much. If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches? And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own? No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon. And the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things: and they derided him.

What is the mammon of unrighteousness? Earthly goods, treasures, property, money; is it not?

How shall we make unto ourselves friends of, or with these things in a way that we may be received into, or, in other words, secure for ourselves an "everlasting habitation"? If we can show, as we think we can, that it is through obedience and conformity to the law of consecration and tithing, let us be careful and let us not ignore or deride these things as did the covetous Pharisees:—

He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much: and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much. If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches? And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own? No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

Is it not so? Does not our gospel covenant enjoin upon us the keeping of all of his commandments? Or, can we serve ourselves, the world, and him at once? The unrighteous mammon must be made to serve God and us; it must become our servant, not our master.

He that is faithful in that which is least, etc.

If a man, and Saint especially, cannot endure a faithful, rational, and just proposition and law as pertaining to that which will perish with the using—if he cannot trust the word of God, if he has not faith in God's promises, if he cannot make wise insurance for the future, when this "earthly house" of his "tabernacle" is "dissolved," he can never be trusted with the true riches. If he is not faithful to his Lord in the use of that talent (it may be to make money legitimately, and use it for the building up of the kingdom of God), I am reasonably certain of the penalty that shall attach to him as referred to by our Lord and recorded in Matthew 25:24-30:—

Then he which had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not sowed: and I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that is thine. His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not sowed: thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury. Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents. For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath. And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

In Luke 19:11-26 we have warning and counsel upon this question:—

And as they heard these things he added and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear. He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. And he called his ten servants, and delivered them ten pounds, and said unto them, Occupy till I come. But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us. And it came to pass, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded these servants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading. Then came the first, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds. And he said unto him, Well, thou good servant: because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities. And the second came, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds. And he said likewise to him, Be thou also over five cities. And another came, saying, Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin: for I feared thee because thou art an austere man: thou takest up that thou laydest not down, and reapest that thou didst not sow. And he saith unto him, Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked servant. Thou knewest that I was an austere man, taking up that I laid not down, and reaping that I did not sow: wherefore then gavest not thou my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have required mine own with usury? And he said unto them that stood by, Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds. (And they said unto him, Lord, he hath ten pounds.) For I say unto you, That unto every one which hath shall be given; and from him that hath not, even that he hath shall be taken away from him.

The kingdom of God did not appear in its grandeur and power in that generation; and we have thought and have been looking and praying for it in this generation, and for half a century have thought, as did these, that it was soon coming and would almost "immediately appear," but it isn't here yet. As the promise is made that it shall come, what is the trouble?

A man who is unfit, and unfaithful, and covetous in the use of his talents, and fails to make the use and friendship of the unrighteous mammon with which God has blessed him will never rule in the realm of faith and wisdom over either five or ten cities.

To be able and willing to practice economy, foresight, prudence, etc., and by these means and gifts—or talents—secure to ourselves a goodly portion of the unrighteous mammon, may show character, ability, and worth; but to retain, hoard, or selfishly use this, is to negate character in the sight of God; to refuse to "lay up treasures where moth and rust do not corrupt."

To fail to remember those to whom has naturally been given fewer talents, the legitimately unfortunate, those more generous but less gifted perhaps, in these directions, to divide with those who work as hard and as necessarily, though not so successfully so far as accumulating is concerned, is to advertise our disbelief in the brotherhood of man and our want of faith in the revelations of God.

In Doctrine and Covenants 101: 2 we have this counsel again:—

Therefore, a commandment I give unto you that ye shall organize yourselves, and appoint every man his stewardship, that every man may give an account unto me of the stewardship which is appointed unto him; for it is expedient that I, the Lord should make every man accountable, as stewards over earthly blessings, which I have made and prepared for my creatures. I, the Lord, stretched out the heavens and builded the earth as a very handy work; and all things therein are mine; and it is my purpose to provide for my saints, for all things are mine; but must needs be done in mine own way; and behold this is the way, that I, the Lord, have decreed to provide for my saints; that the poor shall be exalted, in that the rich are made low: for the earth is full, and there is enough and to spare; yea, I prepare all things, and have given unto the children of men to be agents unto themselves. Therefore, if any man shall take of the abundance which I have made, and impart not his portion, according to the law of my gospel, unto the poor, and the needy, he shall, with the wicked, lift up his eyes in hell, being in torment.

The judgments of God are upon the nations. Our country, especially at this time, is feeling the burden of result of the selfishness and lack of wisdom on the part of our rulers. God's voice has been heard by his people, but his word has been forgotten, his counsel neglected, or not mixed with faith, as in the case of ancient Israel; and that same rest promised to them has been offered to modern Israel. But they failed, and fell, at least the most of them have, outside of the promised rest and inheritance, as did their ancient types through the same example of unbelief; and if the analogy is to be preserved, their children may only return and inherit the promises made to Abraham through obedience to the counsel which their fathers forsook.

It certainly was the design of God in the inauguration of this work to fulfill that which has been spoken by the prophets of old, and that this should be a gathering dispensation, whenever a people could be found who were ready and prepared to abide the conditions. The writer foresaw, or was made to understand by a study of the revelations of God as given to us in the records, the natural and logical necessities that were then arising for the test of God's law and promises. Time and human events have only served to confirm. The second advent of our Lord must be preceded by such an event. The Scriptures from first to last are full of this testimony. Paul in 2 Thessalonians 2: 1 affirms it thus:—

Now we beseech you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and by our gathering together unto him.

Then follows a description of the moral and spiritual conditions of affairs among men, whose prediction no age save our own has ever witnessed so literal and complete fulfillment, thus, in verses 7-13:—

For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming: even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders, and with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish; because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved. And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie; that they all might be damned who believe not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness.

The literal and exact fulfillment of this prediction as seen in the wonderful manifestations of occult force, the authority and origin of which are boldly announced as antichrist, anti-God, anti-Scripture, in our day and time indicate to the godly and reflective mind the wonderful and certain character of the influence that moved St. Paul in making these predictions.

In Doctrine and Covenants 98: 5 we have this:—

Behold it is my will, that all they who call on my name, and worship me according to mine everlasting gospel, should gather together and stand in holy places, and prepare for the revelation which is to come," etc.

There follows in paragraph 6 of this same revelation—to my mind—a wonderful and prophetic parable in which the work of the Reorganized Church is clearly foreshown. And in paragraph ten the Lord said this to the church:—

There is even now already in store a sufficient, yea, even abundance to redeem Zion, and establish her waste places, no more to be thrown down, were the churches, who call themselves after my name, willing to hearken to my voice.

And the cause of their failure in Zion and subsequent scattering and disappointment, was largely laid at their own door; thus, in paragraph 3:—

Behold, I say unto you, there were jarrings, and contentions, and envyings, and strife, and lustful and covetous desires among them; therefore by these things they polluted their inheritances, etc.

But the promises of a regathering and of comfort are made in paragraph 4; but let us not forget the past nor the conditions that necessarily must first be met.

The mind of our heavenly Father is again clearly revealed in the communication to W. W. Phelps, in September, 1832, thus:—

It is contrary to the will and commandment of God that those who receive not their inheritance by consecration, agreeably to his law, which he has given, that he may tithe his people, to prepare them against the day of vengeance and of burning, should have their names enrolled with the people of God; neither is their genealogy to be kept, or to be had where it may be found on any of the records or history of the church: their names shall not be found, neither the names of the fathers, the names of the children written in the book of the law of God, saith the Lord of hosts. Yea, thus saith the still small voice, which whispereth through and pierceth all things, and oftentimes it maketh my bones to quake while it maketh manifest, saying: "And it shall come to pass, that I, the Lord God, will send one mighty and strong, holding the scepter of power in his hand, clothed with light for a covering, whose mouth shall utter words, eternal words, while his bowels shall be a fountain of truth, to set in order the house of God, and to arrange by lot the inheritances of the Saints, whose names are found, and the names of their fathers, and of their children, enrolled in the book of the law of God. . . . And all they who are not found written in the book of remembrance, shall find none inheritance in that day, but they shall be cut asunder, and their portion shall be appointed them among unbelievers, where is wailing and gnashing of teeth." These things I say not of myself, therefore as the Lord speaketh, he will also fulfill.

This may sound severe to the covetously inclined, but it is, to my mind, one of the clearest things ever given by the inspired seer of latter days. I believe it to be true, and that the conditions will have to be complied with before the benefits of the gospel as preached to Abraham will ever be realized by us.

Let us remember the warning of Malachi:—

For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings; and ye shall go forth, and grow up as calves of the stall. And ye shall tread down the wicked; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet in the day that I shall do this, saith the Lord of hosts. Remember ye the law of Moses my servant, which I commanded unto him in Horeb for all Israel, with the statutes and judgments. Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord; and he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse.

"Remember ye the law of Moses my servant, . . . with the statutes and judgments." (See Joshua 18:11.) Latter-day revelation simply reaffirms the testimony of Malachi,

For I am the Lord, I change not.—Mal. 3:6.

And he will send another Moses, Joshua, or "mighty and strong" one, who shall fulfill all his word and will in this matter, and "set in order the house of God and arrange by lot the inheritances of the Saints."

The days of darkness are upon us; God is coming near to the world in judgment as affirmed in Revelation 14:7 and by Malachi 3:5.

He will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts. Even from the days of your fathers ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them. Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts. But ye said, wherein shall we return?

What ordinances? How did they depart and how have we departed from them, and how have they and we not kept them? How shall we return?

Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith; saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of hosts.

I believe these things are emphasized to and enjoined upon modern Israel, and are spoken to all of us.

How shall the kingdom of God come and his will be done on earth save through obedience to his counsel and law? Let the Bishop's or his agents' books be crowded with the names of those who expect a salvation that shall cover their necessities and real wants when the day of real need and want shall be revealed.

Five cents is tithing, as much as five thousand; the only difference is the conditions of the givers. The widow's mite was larger than the gifts of the rich because it was the gift of sacrifice; and that only, whether it be much or little, is an acceptable gift to the Lord. A gift of something for which we have no particular use or which the parting with constitutes no particular sacrifice, is no gift at all. God does not need the money or goods: "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof;" "and the cattle upon a thousand hills" are his. Outside of this spirit and design a million of dollars in money might hardly benefit the church or enrich the Lord, any more than would the blood of Isaac offered upon the altar of sacrifice; but "they that are of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham."

The law of tithing was not designed for the rich alone by any means. The inheritance is for all, through faith that is certified by works. For instance; a young man or woman earns from three to ten dollars per week, and an effort is to be made to comply with the law of God and the rule by which our inheritance is to be redeemed and secured; and from anything up and into the thousands may be made to fulfill the law. Gauge your legitimate wants and supply them, with a pledge to the Lord in this regard "As he shall prosper you;" always remembering that "the liberal soul deviseth liberal things," in this regard; and scores and hundreds will be astonished at the new and favorable environments and conditions with which they may find themselves surrounded.

There are very many in the church possibly, who, like the unjust steward, maybe, have, with worldly prudence and forethought, bound themselves to a worldly organization by the payment of a stipulated monthly or yearly sum for the purpose of securing themselves or a family against want or disaster. Such an insurance policy providing for accident or death, good as it may be, has all the uncertainties that attach to an earthly corporation and at the very best makes provision for fleshly wants and in this life only.

To permanently "inherit the earth" is to secure so much of it as we shall need for comfortable and joyous existence and the conditions referred to by Isaiah 65: 18, 25, and also in Doctrine and Covenants 63: 13, will never be realized by us in this provision made by our heavenly Father save through obedience to his law: "Thou shalt live by every word that proceedeth out of my mouth."

The most of mankind are only just about half living; but to God's covenant children, who are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ and heirs with him, the highest order of life is made a possibility only through obedience to all his counsel.

Let us all take out an insurance policy, whose premium and payment will never be forfeited by the failures of men, or the uncertainties that attach to their organizations.

Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. Sell that ye have, and give alms; provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.—Luke 12: 32-34.

One of the old church hymns runs thus:—

The heaven of sectarians is not the heaven for me,
So doubtful its location, neither on land nor sea;

But I've a heaven on the earth,
The land and home that gave me birth,
A heaven of light, and knowledge, etc.

This may not be the highest style of poetry, but it is as full of fact as gospel truth can make it. To those trained in the religious uncertainties of the past it may savor of materialism, but we believe in material things, present and to come. St. Paul says:—

But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God. Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God.—1 Cor. 2: 9-12.

That which was revealed to the ancients, and to the apostles of Jesus, has been reaffirmed unto us, in our day, showing the way of the kingdom of God upon earth and the manner of its establishment; the day of darkness is or ought to be past with us concerning these things.

For what does the missionary of the cross leave business, home, and its comforts? Some of us think at least that we could make money, and I know that I am so constituted that I can appreciate worldly enjoyments and the good things of this life, as well as others who do not go out from their own fireside. Why do we preach the gospel? I have faith in the recompense of reward. There are uncertainties attaching to all earthly accumulations, or their power to save, or to bring peace or happiness. I want a home and an inheritance under better surroundings and environments than are possible in the present condition of things. I am anxious, very anxious, that the Lord's prayer shall be answered, and that the order of things revealed by his Spirit shall be hastened toward an accomplishment, and that the legitimate and just honor attaching to a faithful and wise service in this calling shall be attained. (See Matt. 24:44-51; D. C. 98:8, 9.)

"Gather my Saints together unto me." Who are they? "Those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice."—Ps. 50:5.

Are we, or shall we become "workers together with God for the accomplishment of the work intrusted to all"?

M. H. BOND.

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio, December 27, 1893.

THE VOICE OF GOD.

UNIVERSAL nature is an immense telephone through which the Lord speaks the blessed mysteries of his sovereign grace, all in diversified variety. The language of budding roses and blooming flowers appeals to the hearing of the soul, the acoustics of the heart. The gentle zephyrs kiss our fevered faces and cool the throbbing, aching brain. When these wavelets of delight, these messengers of health, are turned into a terrific cyclone, then the voice of death ensues. Terror and dismay are proclaimed by the furious storm, the mad rush of the awful avalanche, and the rumbling earthquake.

The keyboard of emotion and the whole gamut of passion are awakened by the echoes that roll along and die away in the theater of life and the field of existence. The winter's embrace seizes halting nature and lays her on a pillow of snow for rest and repose. The frost, yea, the biting frost, is surcharged with chemical nutriment for the soil. The earth, rejuvenated and enlivened, says to the rural gentry, "Come on with your seed;" for, behold the south wind and the vernal showers announce all in readiness for the overture.

Vessels go out of port for a voyage when the tide serves, and while it is off the clam diggers and scallop hunters operate. These seafaring men and hardy fishermen all heed the divine hand, in matters of pelf and earthly gain, in order to successfully ply their avocations, or even live.

The rustic swain knows full well, not only the time to plant, but where and how to cultivate, as also to harvest and market. In all the walks of life our heavenly and divine, our eternal and supreme Benefactor speaks to us through a great multiplicity of avenues.

The ant is too wise to be indolent; the bee is too great a chemist to extract poison from the vegetable kingdom; the dove knows its mate. Birds, beasts, and fishes, and even serpents, bugs, and worms, are in their element and filling their destiny, while man alone is vile. The vultures police the land; the vivid lightning purifies the atmosphere; the silent night is the sleeping season, while the day is made for mental and manual toil.

Poor, puny man will often spend his last cent from his poverty-stricken family for tobacco, while the pig in the field would run through or around a tobacco patch to feast on the golden grain. Balaam's inspired animal knew more, at a certain time, than the wayward rider; and hence the ass became his instructor. When Omnipotence speaks by and through the lion, the king of the forest, the sound thereof is very unlike the twittering of the swallow or the chirping of the cricket. The hand of God may be seen in the vastness of the solar system, or in the exact completeness of the minutest organism. The seasons and the diurnal revolutions of the earth are rings and changes. Surely there are none so very blind and deaf as those who refuse to see and who do not wish to hear. In that a hen can call her brood to feast or warn the little velvety midgets to hide away from danger, our Father is quite able to supply our returning wants, and notify us to flee from the wrath to come. Whatever way he sees fit to speak his voice and words are clothed with all authority. When I can soil the rainbow and steal the seven hues therefrom; when I can dry up the deep, or take the brine out of it; when I can cool the sun, or even keep his rays out of the sky; then I may begin to doubt the Supreme Being, and call in question his very existence. The great I Am was, is, and ever will be; and having brought us forth, it stands to both analogy and reason that he can carry us along. Having given us the organs of hearing, he of course is capable of supplying us with the sound of his voice; which to hearken to is a tree and well of everlasting life.

Infinite resources are available by which the voice of revelation speaks through the visible organisms to the invisible occupant, the "inner man." The intelligent revealments from on high are wisely called "the precious things of heaven;" the "blessings of heaven above;" the "sure word of prophecy," etc. It is possible, probable, and certain; yea, it is desirable, essential, and necessary for God to herald forth his mind and will to mortals with no uncertain sound.

The book of nature is the primer for the race, but wisdom, knowledge, and understanding come largely from the fountain through the medium of devout, persistent, ardent prayer. When true piety, unfeigned love, and heaven-directed devotion characterize the worshipping Saints, even the alien is constrained to say, "God is in you of a truth."

It is both the privilege and duty of each and every son and daughter of the Lord to so think, walk, and act that the observer will detect in these the reflection and counterpart of the immaculate Lamb of God. They should be "living epistles," "lively stones," "the salt of the earth," and "the light of the world." "The word of God is quick and powerful;" it penetrates even the joints and marrow; it is the heart searcher; it abides all time; and Jesus Christ was the embodiment thereof. The Sacred Scriptures are but the record of the word, and that, too, only when faithfully transmitted and correctly translated. "We know in part, and we prophecy in part," committed to writing, is good as far as it goes, and "profitable to the man of God." Spiritual communications, whether written or spoken, need the attestation of omnipotence to place them, not in a book, but on the tablets of the heart. When they thus become indelibly written in the mind this engrafted word, this perfect law of liberty, is food and drink indeed.

The semi-barbarous peoples' conscience often either accuses or else excuses them; which is, relatively speaking, the voice of God to them. This monitor and guide brought the eunuch from the court of Queen Candace of Ethiopia to the Holy Land, and the Syro-Phœnician woman, from a far country to the presence of Jesus. When persons live up to all the light they have, and utilize all the means of grace at their command, their pathway will be lit up with glory from afar, and their march to an immortal destiny will be a blessed reality, an established fact. The great trouble is that there are too many lights under a vessel, or in some secret place. When we conclude that the Deity has had his say, or that he must communicate to and through some certain one, or in a given way and manner, or about this or that matter, we forget that as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are his thoughts and ways incomparably beyond all human conjecturing and worldly wisdom. Each day in the grand march of events proclaims forth, and the nocturnal hours confirm wisdom.

When we hear a strange sound we intuitively look for the source whence it proceeded. When we see any exhibition of nature, either great or small, from within or without, from beneath or above, now wooing and winning, or reproving, or rebuking, it is evidently the varied and manifold ways and means to call forth our attention and discipline the soul. The winter's cold is the forerunner of spring; the vernal days harbinger the summer season; the time of heat calls forth the flowers; while the autumnal period perfects the ripening grain. During the dreamy days, when the blue haze hangs over the varied landscape and the forest puts on airs with elegant hues; the swain looks well to the fruitage of fields, orchards, gardens, and the pasture where wild berries, grapes, plums, nuts, and the products of the forest reward his pleasing anxiety and cheerful toil. No professional man, merchant prince, artisan, or mechanic, can in his employment get so near the infinite as the employee in the raw, fresh, sweet, uncontaminated material. They who allow wit or wisdom, beauty or urbanity, the works of handicraft or the products of nature, the fine arts, and physical sciences, any or all such things to engage the time, talent, and entire attention, may, and doubtless will, become experts; but their much learning leads not to, but the rather from, the truth as it is in Jesus Christ.

Let the reader bear in mind that this scribe looks not with disfavor upon the anointed children of letters, but only so upon the extreme painstaking in the acquisition and the engrossing effect the possession and use of learning might and do have on many. Learning in the divine school brings absolute knowledge, and nothing less will produce happiness unalloyed and triumphant safety. As each bough will lead to the trunk of a tree, and each and every tributary will convey one to the principal stream, so in like manner will the faintest and feeblest voice of God, as manifest by his sovereign grace, bear the faithful adventurer through, across, beyond, and above, where all is serene peace.

In the absence of the gospel with its light, the people still have the avenues of prayer open to them for needed wisdom. The word, when discovered, is a light to man. The light is still and ever shining clear and bright. And that we may walk therein and persevere evermore in this workshop and treasure house of love, may the Lord grant.

Original Poetry.

THE INFINITE ATONEMENT.

BY O. F. HIATT.

Oh! hear the dying Savior groan
On Calvary's cruel tree;
The awful agony he bore
He suffered all for me.

My sins, the cause of all his pain,
For me his blood was shed;
For me the crown of thorns was placed Upon his weary head.

The scoffs and sneers of men he bore,
And took our sorrows, too;
He died to save us all, my friends,
He died for me and you.

Those hands that soothed the sufferers pain—
Those feet that walked the wave—
By cruel nails held to the cross
Our souls from death to save.

Hear'st thou the groan of agony?
See'st thou the suffering face?
See'st thou the thief on either side
Our Savior to disgrace?

Ah! from his lips bursts forth a moan
While nailed upon the tree,
"My God! my God!" oh! hear the cry,
"Hast thou forsaken me?"

At last, the cruel torture o'er,
The Savior bows his head,
"Father, forgive them," his last words—
The Son of God is dead.

But death o'er Christ no power hath,
He rose to life again,
And now on high with God he dwells
To intercede for men.

Can I not bear a little pain
Since he has died for me,
And suffered all that I might live,
My sin-bound life to free?

Ah yes, dear Lord, and as I am
I come in faith to thee;
I'll walk with thee from day to day,
Thy faithful servant be.

And when at last I've done this life
From care and sorrow free,
I pray thee, Lord, to take me home
To dwell in love with thee.

We are commanded by the Lord, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."—Mal. 3:10.

If the Saints will do as the Lord has commanded, we will see that there is a storehouse provided, and the Lord will perform his part of the promised blessing.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were visited by severe wind and snowstorms on the 13th of January. Business by land and sea was suspended. The sea ran the highest it has been for twenty years.

Dangerous gales raged off the Oregon and Washington coasts January 13. The storms inland have also been severe.

It is believed that Guatemala and Salvador will shortly be at war. There is no prospect of peace in Central America.

William H. Waddington, the English Ex-Premier of France, died at Paris, January 13.

Premier Crispi of Italy is credited with exhibiting great astuteness in the conduct of the government. He permitted the Sicilian revolution to grow and show itself, waited until the public had obtained a glimpse of what anarchy would mean, then suppressed the trouble. The ministry, hitherto divided, became united under the danger that threatened. The country is warmly sustaining him.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—A dispatch from Free Town, capital of Sierra Leone, says the British troops operating in the interior have defeated a force of 4,000 Sofas at Konno. Two hundred and fifty of the natives were killed.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The wages of the miners in the Northumberland mines have been advanced 2½ per cent.

Ex-Governor John H. Gear, of Iowa, was elected United States Senator, by the Iowa Legislature at Des Moines, January 16.

An American company is fitting out a new line of steamers which, it is said, will revolutionize transportation between Central America and the United States. The object of the company is to afford rapid facilities for conveying the products of the Republic of Guatemala, Spanish Honduras, Nicaragua, and Costa Rica to the United States, and also to export from this country such products as may be desired by Central America. At present these facilities are said to be inadequate.

PUEBLO, Colo., Jan. 15.—Indications are that Colorado will soon have another oil field. Natural gas with a strong odor and other indications of petroleum is flowing from an artesian well near Pueblo. Rich discoveries of gold, silver, and tellurium have been made in Clear Creek county.

DUBLIN, Jan. 16.—At a meeting of the National League Mr. Leamy, ex-editor of United Ireland, who presided, said he hoped the anti-Parnellite members of the House of Commons would insist that a bill for the relief of the Irish evicted tenants should be forced through the House at the earliest period next session. He added the Irish Parliamentary party would do nothing to imperil the government for a year or two, knowing it could turn the government out of office at any time it felt called upon to do so.

BUDA PESTH, Jan. 16.—Cardinal Vaszary presided to-day over a large meeting of Catholics called to demand the repeal of the new education and civil marriage laws. Resolutions in accordance with the views of the meeting were telegraphed to Emperor Francis Joseph and to the Pope.

Advices from Servia concur that another political crisis is probable in that country. The situation is reported to be serious. The King is at loggerheads with the Radicals and frequently consults with notorious opponents.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 17.—The Czar, in a telegram to the Government of Moscow expressing thanks for New Year's congratulations, says: "May God grant peace, rest, and general welfare to all nations, and more especially to my own dear country."

PLEASANTON, Kan., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Anna Austin was elected Mayor of this town yesterday by a majority of eight in a total vote of 338, of which women cast 123.

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 17.—An earthquake shock that rattled windows and made china-ware dance was felt here at 2:25 this afternoon. No damage was done, but in the office buildings the effect of the shock can only be compared to that of a two-ton safe falling through a floor.

SALEM, Oreg., Jan. 17.—Credible witnesses declare Mount Jefferson belched forth clouds of black smoke and steam at sunrise this morning. It was visible thirty minutes.

ROME, Jan. 16.—About 5,000 workmen have struck in Massa and Carrara. Both towns are occupied by troops. All the shops are closed. The inhabitants are frightened and many families are provisioning their houses as if for a siege. Bands of revolvers parade the roads making requisitions on the people for arms and food. Troops guard the railway at all points to prevent the tearing up of the rails. Some soldiers are in pursuit of bands in the mountains.

The Cabinet Council has given Premier Crispi a free hand as to the time when he shall declare the Province of Massa-Carrara in a state of siege. The proclamation will probably be issued to-morrow unless the situation improves in the meantime.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The Figaro to-day publishes an interview with Sig. Crispi on the troubles in Sicily. Crispi declares the Sicilian disturbances will be ended within a month. He says he places no credit in the allegations that French Socialists were intriguing with the Socialists of Sicily.

The Figaro also says ex-Prime Minister Di Rudini of Italy said yesterday that the likelihood of war was now more remote than ever.

VIENNA, Jan. 15.—Dispatches from towns in Saros county, Hungary, say thousands of peasants there are on the verge of starvation.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Dispatches which left Uganda August 4 arrived here last evening. They report fighting between Protestant and Mohammedan natives at Toro. The Protestants were trying to drive the Mohammedans from the country and pushed them to a river, where the fugitives were obliged to turn and fight. The Protestants were victorious, killing more than thirty and capturing 1,500 men, women, and children. Four Protestants were killed and many others were wounded. One of the British force afterwards offered his mediation and restored peace. A dispatch dated September 7 says the Mohammedans have desisted from all aggressions against the Protestants, that their leaders have fled, and quiet has been restored, and the country has been divided into districts among the Protestants, Mohammedans, and Catholics.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—The Prussian Diet was opened to-day by the Emperor in person. The ceremony took place in the White Hall of the Castle. It resembled that which marked the opening of the Reichstag, except that the dais behind the throne was decorated with the royal purple flag instead of the gold and red imperial standard. In the speech opening the session the Emperor declared the deficit in Prussian finances amounted to 25,000,000 marks. He added that an organic financial reform in the kingdom was necessary. The difficulties arising from agrarian distress must first be relieved. The present agricultural department was not pleasing, owing to the acrimony among those belonging to it. It was desirable to reconcile its workings with the welfare of the Fatherland. His Majesty announced that a bill would be introduced in the Diet to promote agricultural interests. The speech was received in silence by the members of the Diet.

Dispatches from Rome indicate that the efforts of Freiherr von Bulow, Prussian Minister at the vatican, and count Revertera, Austrian Ambassador, are likely to relieve the tension between the papal power and the Quirinal. Premier Crispi made the first advances by asking the Pope to assume a neutral if not friendly attitude toward the new Cabinet, promising at the same time to refrain from open or covert hostility toward the church. The Pope and Cardinal Rampolla, Papal Secretary of State, are said to be disposed to accept the truce, as his Holiness does not wish to hamper the legitimate efforts of the government to deal with the Sicilian revolt and the financial disorder.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10.—The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a circular inviting proposals for five per cent bonds to the amount of $50,000,000, redeemable ten years after date of issue. The bonds are issued by authority of the special resumption act of 1875. The action is taken to meet current government expenses.

The industrial outlook in the eastern portion of the United States is brighter. Many mills and factories are resuming, giving employment to thousands.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent reports an interview with a well-informed political suspect in that city. The man dilated upon the hunger and misery now prevailing in Russia. Millions, he said, were worse off now than they were during the active Nihilistic period. Many of the worthiest and best known men were aware of the existence of secret societies and cordially wished them success. He predicted that plots and societies would multiply henceforth more than ever, and he hinted that big events were impending.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—The Extreme Left in the Chamber of Deputies adheres unanimously to M. Goblet's resolution proposing a revision of the constitution. This resolution declares that the document retains a monarchical character and is to be changed so as to harmonize with democratic aspiration.

The government newspapers ignore the rumors of strained relations between France and England owing to the disorder in Madagascar.

ROME, Jan. 17.—A royal decree, dated yesterday, countersigned by all the ministers, has been issued proclaiming a state of siege at Carrara and Massa di Carrara, the cities in which certain classes of workingmen have been acting in a riotous manner for several days. Gen. Hulsch has arrived at Massa di Carrara to execute the decree. He has been invested with plenipotentiary power. The day passed without disturbance. Heavy and steady rain kept most persons indoors. Troops have continued to pursue the bands of Anarchists who fled. In one house eighty men were arrested this morning.

PRAGUE, Jan. 16.—The trial of the seventy seven members of the Omladina Society charged with high treason and the three accused of the murder of Rudolph Mova began to-day. Before court opened a band of men wearing red ties and immense hats made a demonstration and the troops had to disperse them. The courtroom is so small the Judges were compelled to ignore the law which grants to every accused person the right to have three trusted friends present at his trial. This caused a loud protest and turbulent demonstrations in the courtroom.

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 16.—Between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000 bushels of wheat have been destroyed in the wheat districts of Eastern Washington by continued rains. In 1892 the yield from that district was 12,000,000. In 1893 the acreage was increased, and it was expected the yield would reach 15,000,000 bushels. A party of large wheat land-owners have returned from the wheat belt and report that the farmers would have been better off if they had not planted any wheat last year. Many thousands of bushels rotted in the field, but the rains have continued up to date and have flooded the granaries and destroyed most of what was harvested and rendered the roads impassable.

DES MOINES, Io., Jan. 16.—Senator Palmer, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Woman Suffrage, to-day introduced a bill providing for granting municipal and school suffrage to women. He also introduced a bill proposing the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment granting suffrage to women.

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 15.—A La Junta delegation from the employees of the Santa Fé called on Governor Waite Saturday. They said the engineers, conductors, brakemen, switchmen, and trackmen have received no salary since last October, and many of the men and their families are on the verge of starvation. Salaries for November and December, they say, have been promised at different times, but in every instance the pay car failed to materialize. Through long waiting the patience of the shopkeepers became exhausted, and notices were recently given that no more credit could be had. To add to the unfortunate state of affairs it is claimed the railway company ceased supplying the employees with coal, and, as a result, cold and starvation stare heads of families in the face.

BUENOS AYRES, via Galveston, Jan. 17.—Telegrams received from Rio de Janeiro to-day say that the insurgent flagship Aquidaban again forced the passage of the bar forts, Lage, St. John, and Santa Cruz, and entered Rio harbor without suffering damages. Admiral Mello has on board fresh troops for the insurgents, how many it is not known. Information from the rebel leaders makes it clear that they propose to effect a landing soon, probably to the south of Nitheroy. President Peixoto has concentrated 5,000 men behind the defenses of Nitheroy. A decisive engagement seems imminent.

DEMING, N. M., Jan. 17.—Another skirmish between the Tenochian rebels and troops has occurred in the Boca Grande country about thirty miles north of Ascension. Last Saturday night while a company of nine gendarmes was encamped in the mountains near Espai they were attacked by a band of rebels numbering fourteen. Three of the gendarmes resisted and were killed. Troops were at once ordered out from Ascension but the rebels had escaped into the mountains. Campfires can be seen every night on the mountain peaks. Bands of rebels were seen along the boundary line between Las Palomas and El Paso and are supposed to belong to Ochoas' party. Rumor is current that another battle was fought yesterday near the Mexican Central railroad in the interior and twenty-five soldiers killed, although the reports brought in by couriers from Palomas say it has not been verified. Mexican troops will be massed along the international boundary.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres, dated yesterday, says that advices from Rio Janeiro have reached there showing that rumors are current in the Brazilian capital that many members of the National Guard are deserting and going over to the insurgents. Several persons, including a number of Italians, have been killed by shells fired by the insurgents into the middle of the city. The friends of the Italians killed have demanded that the government pay an indemnity for their deaths. The government has informed the foreign residents that it will not accept any liability. The government forts are bombarding the insurgent storehouses on Enchados Island. President Peixoto's fleet is reported to have left Pernambuco for Rio Janeiro. The insurgents have received fresh provisions and now have large supplies. Insurgent vessels are blockading Santos. The clergy generally are said to favor the insurgents.

LA LIBERTAD, Salvador, via Galveston, Texas, Jan. 16.—The latest dispatches from the seat of war in Honduras convey the information that President Vasquez defeated a body of the invaders under the command of Gen. Manuel Bonilla at Apacillagua yesterday. Gen. Ortez, who was chief in command of the invading forces, has requested of Gen. Antonio Ezeta Salvador's assistance in the fight. Gen. Ezeta, who is fully authorized to answer for Salvador, refuses to lend aid to the invaders of Honduras, and declares Salvador will maintain a strict neutrality, but would be willing to act the part of a peacemaker if invited.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—The railroad and river coal miners are going to make another attempt to strike. At a joint convention to-day it was decided to stop work until Monday, when a general and more representative convention will be held. At Monday's gathering another attempt will be made to establish a uniform rate of mining. If no agreement is reached with the operators by that time all the union men will be called out. There are between ten and fifteen thousand miners in the district, but not half of them will strike.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 16.—There was a meeting of the operators of the Masillon coal district this morning. It was decided to submit a proposition to the miners to cut the wages of the latter from twenty to twenty-five per cent in order to meet the cut in wages of Pittsburg miners.

The United States Senate has rejected the nomination of William S. Hornblower as Justice of the Supreme Court.

Another train robbery occurred at St. Joseph, Missouri, the morning of January 18. A Kansas City, St. Joseph, and Council Bluffs train was stopped and about $40,000 or $50,000 secured.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 18.—A dispatch from Rome says the intimate friends of Prime Minister Crispi believe, owing to the situation in Italy daily becoming worse, he will demand of the Chamber of Deputies that plenipotentiary power be conferred upon him for a year. Order is being restored in Carrara and Massa di Carrara by the military. The recent outbreak was due to the Anarchist propaganda, headed by desperate criminal classes in remote marble quarries, whom it is difficult to apprehend.

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Unemployed workmen assembled in a suburb of the city in answer to the call of an Anarchist. The police dispersed the gathering and arrested the leader. Several conflicts have occurred between the police and assembled crowds.

VIENNA, Jan. 18.—A majority of the timber-workers in Vienna struck to-day and attacked the men who refused to join them. Those who wished to continue working fought vigorously. Many on each side were wounded with sticks and stones.

MADRID, Jan. 18.—Affairs in the Cadiz district are in an alarming condition, owing to the great number of idle men there. The men have been rendered desperate by hunger and the pillaging of shops and farm houses is of frequent occurrence. It is thought most of the crime there is the work of Anarchists. An armed band of men recently entered the village of St. Enil and kidnapped a rich farmer, holding him for ransom. Others stopped and robbed a mail coach.

New York contains more Hebrews than there are in Jerusalem.

Smallpox is becoming terribly destructive in Cebu in the Phillipines. In one month 636 deaths occurred. There have been nearly 4,000 deaths since the epidemic started.

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Jan. 19.—Hawaii is to have a new government in the form of an independent republic. A constitution is being prepared and will probably be proclaimed, as was the constitution granted by the monarchy. Its form will be similar to the constitution of the States of the Union, with president and vice president and an Upper and Lower House of the Legislature. For voters in the Lower House the chief qualification is ability to read and write the English language. In this the native and half white vote will greatly predominate, and most of the Japanese will be excluded. For the Upper House there will be required of voters a considerable educational and property qualification, sufficient to secure the predominance of intelligent white citizens, who will also control the choice of the Executive. The government will not proclaim this constitution until after learning from Minister Thurston that there is no present prospect of any form of political union with the United States.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 19.—To prevent a general shutdown of the window glass factories the Workers' Union granted a loan of $50,000 to the Chambers Glass Company today. This is the only case on record in which labor was asked to loan such a large sum to capital.

The governments of the United States and Great Britain are said to be negotiating a new Behring Sea treaty.

Indefinite conflicts between Brazilian insurgents and government troops continue. No decisive movement is indicated. Reports are current that the difficulty will be submitted to arbitration.

Anarchists in the mountains of Italy are to be starved out. The government has prohibited the carriage of food of any kind to them.

British troops have routed the Sofa slave traders in Sierra Leone, South Africa.

French imports and exports decreased 251,330,000 and 251,116,000 francs respectively in 1893.

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 19.—Advices from China by the steamship Empress of Japan say: "An earthquake of great magnitude, devastating an area of 9,000 square miles, occurred in the Tibetan district of Kada and a bordering province August 29 last. Houses belonging to native and Tibetan soldiers and their families were buried. Seventy-four lamas (priests) and one hundred and thirty-seven Chinese and Tibetans were killed, and many were wounded."

Managua advices state that the Honduran army under General Vasquez was defeated and disbanded near Choluteca. The government claims to have discovered a conspiracy here to aid Vasquez. Many leading members of the Progressist party have been arrested.

VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.

A 48 page pamphlet, 32 pages of which contain an account of the angel's visits to Mr. Smith, the finding of ancient plates—the records from which the Book of Mormon was translated. It briefly recounts the leading events connected with Mr. Smith's early experiences up to the organization of the Church, in 1830. Three additional chapters describe American Antiquities, and Hebrew Relics, one containing the statement of Dr. Lederer, a converted Jew, etc., all corroborative of the claims of the Book of Mormon. Paper covers, 10c.

THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH, OR WEEKLY REST DAY.

By Elder Columbus Scott. This is a work of 147 pages, divided into fifteen chapters, in which the "Sabbath" under the Mosaic Law, and "The Lord's Day," "First Day of the Week" or "Christian Sabbath" under the Gospel Dispensation are fully treated from Scriptural and historical standpoints. The work is concise and able, and clearly refutes the arguments of the Seventh-day Sabbatharians, establishing the first day of the week as "The Lord's Day." An added supplemental chapter by Elder W. W. Blair is included.

VOICE OF WARNING AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL PEOPLE;

OR AN INTRODUCTION TO THE FAITH AND DOCTRINE OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

This work in its graphic review of the prophecies and history of God's dealings with his people in past ages, together with the abundant proofs concerning the work of the latter days, the gathering and restoration of Israel to their ancient home in Palestine, is a book for the times. The author presents the prophetic evidences of the restoration of the gospel in "the dispensation of the fullness of times," showing the evidences in favor of a restoration of primitive Christianity and the organization of the apostolic church with its apostleship and priesthood—its authority—its powers and gifts. This publication has always been a favorite one among inquirers for the truth. 150 pages.

Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

THE MORAL EFFECTS OF PHYSICAL EXERCISE.

It is rather late in the day to undertake to demonstrate the advantages of physical exercise in the education of youth. The wholesome precepts of antiquity in regard to the necessity of not only developing the body as well as the mind, but of developing the body in order to insure a good development of the mind, were sneered at and slighted in the middle ages. From those ages came down almost to our times a notion that while it was well enough as a means of health to take bodily exercise, it was a matter of secondary importance, and should be relegated to an inferior place in a course of education. That notion is no longer entertained in the leading civilized States. In fact, the pendulum of opinion has swung so far in favor of corporeal exercises that there seems some chance of its swinging the other way. In some countries, notably the United States and France, there are thinkers entitled to respect, who seem inclined to take the position that too much time is now given in schools and colleges to outdoor games and sports, and that it would be well to take measures in the interest of sound learning and thorough mental education, to abridge the hours devoted to trials of skill and open-air contests. Not sharing these opinions, we wish to point out one argument against them which seems to be too little considered.

Exercise, even violent, is not only good for the physical health, but also most excellent for the moral health. For there are moral qualities which reading and reflection do not develop, and these are the qualities which belong to the man of action—boldness, resistance to fatigue, coolness in the presence of difficulties and dangers.

In ancient times thinkers attributed to physical exercise a marked influence over the development of the moral faculties. Quite recently, a gentleman who writes with ease and elegance, M. A. Magendie, has elucidated this point in a little book, worthy of the most careful attention. He demonstrates in turn the excellent results of physical exercises from the point of view of the development of the attention, and that of perception of things exterior to the person. The child and youth are endowed with great aptitude for receiving impressions, that is, for perceiving things and instructing themselves. It is incontestable that games in the open air furnish varied and interesting means of exercising the superior senses. The mistakes made by any player are instantly perceived by his attentive comrades. Ordinarily, there is no need to call special attention to these mistakes; the awkward player himself recognizes them immediately, and almost at the instant discovers the way to avoid them thereafter.

From the point of view of interior perception, the effects of collective games are neither less sensible nor less favorable. The companionship and observation of his comrades enable the young scholar to study himself with more precision, by giving him occasion to make a rapid analysis of his own thoughts. Thence arises the influence of physical exercise on the development of the memory and the imagination. Games in the open air cause an active circulation of the blood, which, constantly purified, imparts intense life to the whole organism. Under normal conditions this increase of physical energy increases the force and vivacity of the imagination, and as, under the influence of feeling thoroughly well, the youth who plays is disposed to take a cheerful view of everything, his imagination becomes not only vivid, but filled with gracious and smiling images. Moreover, games in company favor the birth of generous sentiments among all the players and develop among them sympathetic inclinations, which are so closely allied to the imagination.

The case is the same in what concerns the judgment and the reasoning powers. By the force of things, each player observes attentively what is passing around him, in order to take, at the proper moment, steps useful for the game. The youth must take his resolution without an instant's delay, or his adversaries will derive profit from his hesitation. In the course of the game, the youth always reasons closely, he observes too nearly what is passing to allow him to be at a loss when it is a question of recognizing and defending his own interests. Undoubtedly the reasoning of the players has not for its object the demonstration or the discovery of profound truths of any very high order; but, if the youth is obliged to reason in his games and especially to reason justly, the importance of these exercises will be evident to every one.

It is hardly necessary to go further and point out how self respect, emulation, and, in a general manner, the sentiment of honor are increased and fortified by the same means. The associations formed for collective games offer the advantage of uniting in the same groups youths of different and even opposite characters; of combining energetic players with companions disposed to be indolent and effeminate, of bringing together players of vivacity, of inconstant humor, and comrades who are calm, patient, and tenacious. By neutralizing, in a word, the defects of some by contrary qualities in others, sociability and a feeling of the solidarity of humanity become more easy.—Condensed in Literary Digest.

A YEAR OF DISASTERS—1893.

New York Press: "This year surpasses any one in history for railroad accidents," Mr. J. D. Layng of the West Shore is reported to have said. "From November, 1892, to November, 1893, 2,318 persons have been killed on the railroads and 2,000 persons have been maimed and crippled. These figures include those persons who have met with accidents on street railways, and there are over 200 of them in the United States, Brooklyn heading the list with 15 persons killed on the surface tracks alone. The greatest accidents in which this country was concerned were the loss of three or four transatlantic steamers. It has been a year of great mourning, for the loss of lives and the financial panic have made it one of general suffering." But, in spite of the fact that it has been a year of so great sorrow, trial, and sacrifice, it has been without any great religious revivals. They are said always to follow close on the heels of great panics and disasters.

ANARCHY'S PRESS.

One hundred and fifty daily and weekly newspapers in various parts of the world constitute the organs of the Anarchist party. The most of them are published in Spain. In Belgium there is only one of any importance. In England there are four; at Venice and Rome, one apiece; in France, five, the most important being the Pere Peinard, the chief editor of which is an ex-convict.

The oldest statue in the world is of the Sheik of an Egyptian village. It is believed to be not less than 6,000 years old.

OUR DIVORCE LAWS.

THE Kansas City Journal of the 16th inst. contained extracts from a paper read by Judge John W. Henry, of the Jackson County Circuit Court, before the Kansas City Bar Association.

Judge Henry has for twenty years been upon the bench, is a close observer and a profound student, and his opportunities for acquaintance with the subject treated upon have been ample. From our acquaintance with him and his career as a judge we are disposed to believe that the paper voices his deliberate judgment and should not be considered a mere outburst of sentimentalism such as is sometimes indulged by men of shallow perception or limited experience. The phases of human life revealed almost daily in the court room where much of his life has been spent, together with the methods employed and the intrigue resorted to in seeking to secure a severance of the marital bonds, have led to the scathing denunciation contained in his paper.

It is unfortunate that society reveals such a condition. It is still more unfortunate that the very laws enacted ostensibly to protect and purify society should be contributors to the volume of corruption and infamy. Surely, when judges upon the bench, whose duty it is to execute the law, are aroused thus by the appalling exhibition resultant from the statutory provisions of the State, it is high time for those whose work lies within churches and institutions consecrated to works of moral reform, to "shake off the coals from their garments" and rise to meet and uproot this menace to our social integrity.

To the Church of Christ but one scriptural cause is known for divorce, yet within the church is sometimes seen the dire and reproachful effects of separation for other causes. While State laws permit and abet what the church deplures, it is a matter of extreme difficulty to deal with the conditions that follow. The mission of the church is to lift men and women so far out of self as to have them reflect the purpose of the divine law in their characters; but human law is interposed, drawing the lines of privilege and license much closer to the flesh than God had designed. Some take advantage of this leniency of human law which promises no sanctification of spirit, rather than abide the exactness of the higher law of self-crucifixion unto holiness, and thereby interpose barriers over which the church is powerless to lift them.

It is our duty, however, by force of moral suasion to discourage a course within the church which extols the human and ignores the divine law bearing on this question. It is our privilege further to help every movement that wisely aims to rectify the wrong on our State law books, and thus do what we can to prevent the conditions that retard the work within the church.

Could the celestial rule "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you do ye even so unto them," find honor and reverence at our hands, there would be few applications for a severance of the marriage bond. "Incompatibility of temper," as a ground for dissolving such sacred relations as should be sustained by husband and wife, would soon be relegated to the dark regions from whence its first suggestion emanated. Its mention in a church or court room would soon be accounted a disgrace to the one announcing it.

The apostle once asked the Galatians, "Are ye so foolish, having begun in the Spirit are ye now made perfect by the flesh?" and with no less pertinence might the same question be asked within the churches to-day. It is presumed when one enters the church that he or she thereby renounces the world and the flesh, surrenders self and accepts the divine rule of life government. The hope is to attain celestial glory and it is understood that only by observing a celestial law can this hope find fruition. That human law extended greater license to the flesh than did the divine was understood from the first; but it was renounced with a view to attaining unto higher good than it could confer. By what process of reasoning, then, can justification be found for accepting the overtures of human law in the matter under discussion wherein it reveals a conflict with the divine law, by which our hope of celestial life is to be realized?

The commandment to observe the law of the land does not impose upon us the necessity of stooping beneath the divine order. He who honors the divine law regarding divorce, breaks no enactment of the State; but he who resorts to the latter to avoid the stringency of the former ought hardly to expect as much honor for ignoring as for observing what God has enjoined. It is true the standard of Christianity has been set high; but he who aims at celestial life—"the highest glory of all"—should not complain if all the tendencies of its corresponding law are towards carnal crucifixion and spiritual elevation and excellence. If, as we believe, Judge Henry has not misrepresented the condition, it should be the glory of the church and its adherents to appear as the "city set on a hill," to let their light shine in brilliant contrast with the blackness of the scene around. Here is the clipping:—

There is no more sacred human relation than that of husband and wife. I do not consider marriage as a mere sacrament of the church, which is one, or as a mere civil contract, which is another, extreme opinion. It is in a sense a civil contract.

To that extent, and to that alone, there is an analogy between them, but there the analogy ceases. Other contracts may be rescinded at the pleasure of the parties, but no civilized country on the globe permits the parties to dissolve the marriage relation at will. Even among the Mormons, a man may take many wives, but he is not allowed to dissolve the relation with one, even with her consent and the consent of all the other wives of the much married husband.

It is a relation sanctioned and advised by Holy Writ, and the first marriage ceremony was performed by God himself in the garden of Eden and Adam, rather than ask to be divorced from Eve for her criminal act of eating the forbidden fruit, ate the same at her solicitation with his eyes wide open to the consequences rather than be separated from the magnificent beauty whom God had given him. The marriage relation has not only the sanction of the Almighty, but the New Testament contains the best divorce law ever enacted.

It provides that no man shall put away his wife except for adultery, and it is even doubtful if that law authorizes anything more than separation.

Judge Henry said the time was when in his native State, Kentucky, there was no divorce law, and a wholesome state of society prevailed, but now divorce laws have been enacted and the court dockets are full of divorce suits and the newspapers full of disgusting social and domestic scandals until the State is not much better in that respect than Illinois, where some wag has said when the train stops at Chicago, "Twenty minutes for divorce." He added: "I am afraid the same might with equal propriety be applied to Kansas City."

Judge Henry advocated a law by which the state should be represented in all uncontested divorce cases to defend the honor of the state and the welfare of society.

"To our miserable divorce laws and the laws tending to make wives independent of their husbands are traceable one half of the serious difficulties between husbands and wives," said he, "and if they are to be retained in our code of laws, a most stringent law should be enacted discouraging marriage, a law prescribing not only what persons should intermarry, but requiring, an application for a license, proof of the ability of the male party to the contract to maintain a wife, and of the fitness of the woman for the position of mistress of the household. I speak seriously on this subject.

"I have had an experience of twenty years on the bench which justifies every word I have uttered. I have known men and women divorced one day who married another man or woman the next under a pledge of marriage made before the decree of divorce was obtained. The whole system is an encouragement to perjury, perfidy, adultery, cruelty, and drunkenness. It should be whipped out as a reproach to the state, and an infamy in the sight of God and man. It is barbarous and inflicts misery and disgrace upon the innocent offspring of the divorced, and the best interests of society demand a radical amendment of the law. It has no warrant in the law of God. It is in contravention of the teachings of the apostles.

"It is condemned by every man who is familiar with its administration. It is a curse to society. It is worse than the worst of the plagues of Egypt. It makes the solemn vows of matrimony and its sacred obligations the merest farce. It is a standing encouragement to family discord and is the worst and most iniquitous and abominable law ever enacted by a legislative body.

"A young man leads to the altar his blushing bride; the parents are pleased that their daughter has married the man of her choice with their approbation; neighbors and kindred congratulate the couple and the family on the happy event.

"The bride and groom depart for their home in Illinois, Missouri, or some other State with equally liberal divorce laws, and after a brief honeymoon, during which semi or tri-weekly letters are received by the old folks from the happy couple, the correspondence wanes, finally ceases, and the first news the parents have of their daughter is probably the disgusting details of a divorce suit, instituted by her or her husband, published in some daily newspaper. Better for the parents that she had never been born if she is the defendant in the cause.

"I repeat it, and it cannot be too often repeated that the present divorce law of Missouri is iniquitous, un-Christian, barbarous, brutal, and beastly, adapted to no Christian community, but only fit for a people who regard the marriage contract as simply a civil contract which may be annulled by the parties at their pleasure. Woman's rights and the many newfangled misnamed religious theories and Bob Ingersollism are undermining the very foundation of civil government and steadily paving the way to anarchy and social chaos, and it behooves every patriot and every Christian to set his face against these damnable heresies.

"Our legislators think it more important to pass or amend stray laws, road laws, or stock laws than laws to secure good morals, domestic felicity, and the peace and good order of society, and politicians generally deem it of more consequence who shall hold this or that office than that fraud and perjury in obtaining the office should be punished and prevented. Reformers are sneered at, have been ridiculed from Christ to Wyckliffe, from Wyckliffe to Luther; and to-day a man who proposes a radical reform in any institution or law or custom is regarded as a crank.

"Such cranks have been the world's greatest benefactors, and a grander, more colossal figure than Martin Luther is nowhere to be seen in history. Such are the men to whom those who enjoy civil and religious liberty are most indebted, and if there is a country on God's earth which needs such men to-day it is the United States of America."

The denominations of this country amount to 143. Seventeen kinds of Methodists, twelve kinds of Presbyterians, twelve kinds of Lutherans, seven kinds of Catholics, and thirteen kinds of Baptists.

ASCRIBE to every man intention of honesty in his motive for action as a rule; and, do not deviate from the rule, except upon the best of proof.

Society demands of all the best there is in them in purpose, method, deportment, and action.

No man is fully prepared to act for others who has not integrity to act well for himself.

Few men are sufficiently secure in their own knowledge of themselves to confidently state what their action would be under supposed given conditions. Change of conditions far too frequently creates change of thought, desire, and purpose, hence change of action. The sun shines to-day, tomorrow may be cloudy; in the sunshine men see clearly, but the clearness of sight is dimmed by clouds; so in man's moral life, under the light of present conditions he may see clearly and act wisely and well, change the conditions and he will not see well, and will act foolishly, ill, or wickedly.

The medium through which men see material objects greatly affects the vision; those seen near by through clear air appear in true proportion and in just relation to each other; but those seen through disturbed atmosphere are distorted, not seen fairly, are out of proportion, and not in proper relation to each other; so in man's spiritual realm, the light of Christ which is the light of life, presents the things of the spiritual domain in their true existence, in proper proportion and in just relation one to the other; outside this light of life and without its influence the spiritual things are but dimly seen, their proportions are not discerned, and their just relation to each other cannot be recognized. Get into the light therefore, that you may see, is the best of wisdom.

COLONIZATION OF PALESTINE.

LONDON, January 20.—Nearly all the Hebrew leaders of Europe have united on a definite policy regarding the colonization of Palestine. They will not at the outset seek to attract Hebrews to the Holy Land. Their duty at first will be to establish order and discipline among the Jews already there. The Rothschilds have already done a little to secure this by the initiation of the system of technical training and by establishing well appointed schools. It is comprehended that if the flow of refugees from Russia be directed there the difficulty will be increased as a preliminary step, therefore an attempt will be made to regulate that flow, or even prevent it, until present objectionable features have been removed.

The Rothschilds and other conspicuous Jews in England approve of the policy of the conference just held in Paris by delegates from Jewish associations in Europe and America. The principal subject of doubt was the colonization of Palestine. The conference did not favor measures to stimulate the great flow of Jewish emigration, but was anxious rather to check it or regulate it, notably at Russian ports. The first efforts of the associations will be to establish order among the Jews already in Palestine, to find them work, and to control competition for the land. The Rothschilds are forming schools for the primary technical education of emigrants.

Those who believe in the promises of God and patiently await their fulfillment will find comfort and confirmation in the above items taken from separate press dispatches. The statement that leading Hebrews in Europe and America have united upon a definite policy for the settlement and education of their brethren in Palestine, and the character of the methods adopted, mean that the children of Israel will be so established in the land of their fathers that it will evidently become nationalized by them. Jewish devotion and money coupled with the businesslike methods of the Rothschilds and others are in themselves prophecies of what the result of such a movement must be. They represent some of the forces set in motion by him who declared that he would with everlasting kindness remember Israel, and reestablish him. The skeptic can scarcely find a pretext for doubting the divine character of the promises made to Abraham and repeated to his posterity.

DATE OF THE EXODUS.

TO LOVERS of Bible literature the following will be of interest, and may help the student to reach good conclusions touching the remarkable event referred to:—

Although the monuments and papyri give us no direct information upon the subject of the exodus, they do indirectly indicate a certain period within which it must have taken place, writes A. L. Lewis in the January Scribner. Thothmes III., who was the most powerful king of that dynasty (the eighteenth), which finally drove the Hyksos invaders out of Egypt and reunited the whole country under one scepter, extended his conquests as far as Mesopotamia, overrunning Palestine on his way; he left lists of the conquered nations, but does not mention the Israelites among them. Rameses II., of the nineteenth dynasty, the supposed oppressor, who reigned about two hundred years later, also subdued Palestine and left lists of the conquered peoples, but he, again, does not mention the Israelites among them.

What is perhaps still more important, is that while the Israelites have left records of invasions by Mesopotamians, Moabites, Canaanites, Midianites, and Philistines, they do not mention any invasion by the Egyptians, and the conclusion is that the Israelites were not settled on the west side of the Jordan till after the wars waged by Rameses II. at the commencement of his reign, which began not earlier than 1388 B. C., or, as some now say, 1266 B. C.

It has been attempted to explain this difficulty away by suggesting that Rameses II. kept close to the seacoast on his march through Palestine, and did not strike inland till he was some distance to the north of the Israelites; but it is inconceivable that he should not have secured his long line of communications by establishing posts so far inland that they must have been brought into contact with the Hebrews if the latter had at that time been settled in their own country.

The earliest date, therefore, at which the Egyptian history will permit the exodus to have taken place, even when full allowance is made for the time spent by the Jews in the wilderness and in conquering Palestine, would seem to be about 1430 B. C., while, if the shorter chronology be adopted, it could not have been much earlier than 1300 B. C.

CORRECTION OF DATE.

THE date given to the revelation in Doctrine and Covenants section 9 is clearly an erroneous one, as shown from the following, a footnote from tract No. 36—President Joseph Smith's pamphlet "The Spalding Story Reexamined." We reprint the footnote entire for the information of all concerned. It is clear that the revelation in section 9 should be dated "July or August, 1828." A note of explanation to this effect will appear in future editions of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants issued at the Herald Office.

THE SPALDING STORY RE-EXAMINED.

FOOTNOTE.

On page 15 of his pamphlet, Mr. Patterson urges an objection as follows:—

"To persons who accept Joseph Smith's statements in regard to his angelic visitants it does not seem at all incredible that Cowdery could in two months perform the stupendous task of writing out from dictation a manuscript about equal in magnitude to the Old Testament!"

This objection is doubtless based upon the fact that the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, section 9, contains a revelation directing Joseph Smith to begin the second time the work of translating the Book of Mormon, and this revelation is dated May, 1829; and that in August, 1829, the manuscript was delivered to the printer, allowing only the intervening time for the work of translating. It is founded upon one of those pernicious errors in dates, which creep in through the mistakes of writers or printers, and are often very difficult to detect; but happily in this case, the detection is both easy and certain. The error is in the date of the revelation which is found in section 9 of Doctrine and Covenants, and which directs Joseph Smith to renew the work of translating, the true date of this revelation being July or August, 1828. This is proven in two ways. By the contents of the two revelations, and by the history concerning their reception, given by Joseph Smith.

The two revelations upon examination are found to refer to the same thing, namely, the manuscript pages of the Book of Mormon which had been lost, and we would naturally expect, therefore, that they were received within "a few days" of the same time. The history of the matter, as given by Joseph Smith, is as follows:—

"In the meantime while Martin Harris was gone with the writings, I went to visit my father's family at Manchester. I continued there for a short season, and then returned to my place in Pennsylvania. Immediately after my return home, I was walking out a little distance, when behold the former heavenly messenger appeared and handed to me the Urim and Thummim again, (for it had been taken from me in consequence of my having wearied the Lord in asking for the privilege of letting Martin Harris take the writings which he lost by transgression,) and I inquired of the Lord through them and obtained the following revelation: Revelation to Joseph Smith Jr., given July, 1828, concerning certain manuscripts on the first part of the Book of Mormon, which had been taken from the possession of Martin Harris."

The revelation referred to is then quoted. This is the revelation found in section 2 of Doctrine and Covenants. Immediately after the quotation of this revelation, occurs the following:—

"After I had obtained the above revelation, both the plates and the Urim and Thummim were taken from me again, but in a few days they were returned to me, when I inquired of the Lord, and the Lord said thus unto me. Revelation given to Joseph Smith, Jr., May, 1829," etc. Then follows the revelation in full.

Here are two revelations which the historian informs us were given but a "few days" apart, but which, if the dates they now bear are to be trusted, were given ten months apart. That there is an error no doubt can exist. But where is it? In the revelation now bearing date July, 1828, or that bearing date May, 1829? Most certainly in the latter, as a further examination of the history clearly shows. Immediately after the quotation of the revelation last referred to by Mr. Smith, he says:—

"I did not however go immediately to translating, but went to laboring with my hands upon a small farm which I had purchased of my wife's father, in order to provide for my family. In the month of February, eighteen hundred and twenty-nine, my father came to visit us, at which time I received the following revelation for him:" Then follows the revelation referred to.

We have already seen that the revelation bearing date May, 1829, was given "a few days after the one bearing date July, 1828. We now see from the above quotation that it was given some time before a revelation which was received in February, 1829.

By following the historical account farther we discover that all the revelations which appear in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants from section 2 to section 9 were given after the one in section 9; and that those contained in sections 8 and 10 were given without any revelation between them. It is clear, then, that there is an error in dates, and equally clear that it is in the date of the revelation now dated May, 1829; and it is further clearly ascertained that this should be dated a few days after, sometime in July, 1828.

The history further shows that the work of translation was recommenced on April 17, 1829, which would allow four months for the work, the manuscript having been delivered to the printer the following August.

The historical references to which we call attention are found in the Times and Seasons, published at Nauvoo, Illinois, vol. 3, pp. 786, 801, 817, 832, 853, 854, 865, and 884.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. J. C. CRABB writing from New Canton, Illinois, January 22, says:—

I have been preaching in New Canton and vicinity, since the eighteenth of November, and have never before found so much interest manifested by so many people, as in this locality. The Union church in New Canton is occupied by the Christian Brotherhood who treated me very kindly indeed in announcing all of our appointments, when requested so to do. Three have been baptized up to date, and one has promised to be baptized when I return; and I think more will follow. I preach to-morrow night in Barry, and longer if a place to preach in is furnished by the citizens of that place.

A letter from Bro. J. R. Evans dated January 22 at Lucas, Iowa, states that he left Manchester, England, January 3 and reached home on the 13th. He reports the work in Wales as improved to some degree; a better desire being manifested among the elders for the advancement of the truth. He adds at the close of his letter:—

I hope the elders and Saints in both England and Wales will push the work forward, and that in so doing God will bless them.

This, latest news from the Australian field, we glean from a personal letter from Bro. Gomer Wells to Bro. F. E. Cochran. It is dated Tuncurry, New South Wales, December 19:—

I have received the books for the Lending Library. Please convey to the Lamoni Religio Society my thanks therefor. When I return to Sydney will place them in the Library, when you will receive due acknowledgments. I am pleased to get our books into the libraries for the reason that it is a very common thing in this country for ministers to tell that they are hard to obtain, and that only the "initiated" have access to them. I have just returned from a trip over on the Manning River with Bro. Wight. Found prejudice much allayed by reason of the late controversy in the Manning River Times between Bro. Wight and "Anti-Mormon." We baptized two and had a nice time. I enjoyed the winding roads round mountainous hills, and lakes, and rivers. The lovely ferns and tall, stately Gum trees were also attractive to my American eye. I am badly sunburned though. We are now in the midst of a hot summer; only for sea breezes and an occasional "southerly buster" it would approach the hotness of the fabled gehenna. When a southerly buster comes, though in midsummer, we feel like hunting our overcoats. It is to this country what a "Texas norther" is in the United States. Our quarterly conference is to convene this week. If we have two dozen delegates we will think it a large attendance. The country is rough, railroads are scarce and fare high, boats don't run conveniently; hence we have a hard time getting Saints together. The Forster district holds but one conference a year. Could we establish reunions here on the same plan as at home, the work would receive an impetus in a spiritual direction that it needs. The Author of the gospel knew what he was doing when he appointed prayer and other meetings in which the Saints are brought together. There is wisdom in it. The genius of the gospel is association, bringing appreciation. I can see the wisdom of the gathering principle. The conditions of this country (named above) prevent it being properly carried out.

Bro. E. F. Shupe reports the condition of the work at Denver, Colorado, in a late letter:—

The work in this city is in good condition spiritually, but I cannot say as much of the temporal condition. The times are fearfully hard, and the Saints have difficulty in getting along; however, we still manage to pay our hall rent and keep the meetings going. They have been very well attended of late; I think a number are very near the kingdom. Will the brethren passing from the west to the conference please give us a call? Come one and all; we need your assistance.

Bro. Henry Fetter wrote as follows from Glenwood, Iowa, the 23d inst.:—

I came here last May and started a Sunday school with three scholars, which soon numbered eighteen. Bro. J. B. Heide answered my call for preaching, and soon there were seven baptized. We now have a thriving branch of twenty-seven members and a Sunday school of twenty-three scholars. Brn. T. A. and D. Hougas and Henry Kemp have also preached for us. Elder J. B. Heide has been holding meetings in and about Glenwood for the past few weeks. He is blessed greatly, both in preaching and in administering to the sick. Five have been added by baptism; more are near the kingdom. Elders who pass through Glenwood are requested to call.

Bro. J. S. Roth, Osterdock, Iowa, January 22:—

Bro. J. R. Sutton is with me here battling for the good old way. It seems so strange to not find Uncle William B. Smith here any more. Every one has a good word to say for the old gospel veteran.

Bro. Frank Russell, Grinnell, Iowa, January 22:—

Bro. Fred A. Smith conducts services here every other Sunday in the Advent church. We had a crowded house one week ago last evening. Considerable interest has been awakened here; I believe we will soon do away with the terrible prejudice that has always existed.

Bro. I. P. Baggerly was at Plainville, Indiana, the 22d inst. He wrote as follows:—

Three have been baptized since our district conference, one will be baptized to-day; others are near the kingdom. Our meetings have increased in interest from the beginning. We reorganized the Plainville branch; the outlook is encouraging.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE acknowledge with pleasure receiving from Hon. Z. H. Gurley, member of the General Assembly of Iowa, Bulletin No. 16 of Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station, and the roster of the twenty-fifth (the present) Assembly. We understand that Representative Gurley is a member and chairman of the House Board of Charities.

Conference of the West Virginia district has been deferred to Saturday, February 24. See notice of district president.

We learn that Bro. Heman C. Smith has been holding a series of successful meetings at Persia, Iowa. The interest, as indicated, was good. He was to close there on the 24th, going thence to Galland's Grove.

Bro. Joseph S. Lee was at Pleasant Grove, Utah, on January 10, whence he wrote us. He spoke at Lehi on the 7th of January, and had a good audience. He obtained the local meeting-house, and the bishop gave out the meeting; and was promised the house for three more nights. He reports that the members of the Reorganized Church there are quite alive to the work.

Bro. John S. Lawton and Miss Isabel Paine were married at Provincetown, Massachusetts, January 3, 1894, Rev. Charles A. Stenhouse, officiating. We congratulate our brother and his bride.

We have omitted some obituary poetry sent us of late, because unsuitable to the purpose for which it was written. We may have failed to please the writers in so doing. We appreciate their sentiment, but cannot insert what does not contain sufficient merit to justify its publication.

A letter from Bro. J. W. Hudgens, of Baker, Brown county, Kansas, reports an excellent opportunity to reach the people of that place. A church, and a schoolhouse near by, await the coming elder.

Bro. Michael Rasmussen is doing local work at Beatrice, Nebraska. Bro. F. J. Chatburn has aided him at times.

Brn. Hubert Case and D. A. Hutchings baptized one at Smithland, Iowa, during a series of meetings held by them. Bro. Case commends Smithland and near by territory to the Iowa ministry as a promising field for missionary labor.

Bro. D. C. White, located at Maurine, Missouri, is laboring at Dunham, and Huntingdale, and other local points near home, on Sundays. He is arranging to preach the word every Lord's day. He has had more openings than he can supply since he began, a fact for local elders to consider.

Bro. A. McKenzie of Detroit, Michigan, is assisting Bro. E. C. Briggs in his efforts in the Michigan metropolis. He reports the outlook as promising.

Bro. D. M. Rudd has been preaching at Eagle Grove, Iowa. Congregations large, and "good liberty."

Letters are received from Bro. F. Hadley, Lawton, Michigan, and A. Worden, Hector, Minnesota.

HERE is a story of the clever Brahman. If true, the Western scholar is far behind him in some lines of mental development.

Speaking of the great power the Brahmans in India possess in localizing thought, Purushotam Aor Telang said the other day: "We would consider a game of chess as played in this country mere child's play. An ordinary Brahman chess player could carry on three or four games at a time without inconvenience. The usual game played by the Brahmans consists in checkmating with one pawn, designated when the play begins. I have seen a man perform a long problem in multiplication and division, at the same time noting the various sounds and discussions going on about him in the room. I have seen a man compose a triple acrostic in Sanskrit in a given meter, at the same time having three well versed men trying to overthrow him in his argument on religion."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

HOW THE BEE SEES.

We are so used to regarding the world around us from the standpoint of our own sight that it is hard to realize that to other creatures, far outnumbering us, and perhaps, quite as important in the economy of nature, it must look quite different. The honey bee, for example, is supplied with a pair of compound eyes with hundreds of facets, each capable of sight by itself, and several ocelli or little, simple eyes more closely allied to our own. How these eyes are used, what are their separate functions, what sort of images they can present to their owners, all remain questions as interesting and well nigh unsolved as they were before the days of our powerful microscopes. Notwithstanding the fact that hundreds of entomologists have been and are interested in this subject, we yet are only at the stage where we can affirm that the honey bee sees a very different flower from the one in which we observe her in search for sweets, although of what that difference is and how it is produced we can form but little idea.—Ex.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"If all the pity and love untold
Could scatter abroad its coins of gold,
There would not be, on the whole round earth,
One hungry heart nor one lonely hearth.

"And oh! if the kind words never said
Could bloom into flowers, and spread and shed
Their sweetness out on the common air,
The breath of heaven would be everywhere!"

NEWS FROM TAHITI.

I HAVE not felt like writing for a few months, but I am often prompted to duty and work by a proverb I heard when a child: "If no birds would sing in the woods only those that sing the best, the woods would be silent." A brother stopping here with his boat from the Tuamotos, took Bro. Forscutt, with others of us (in all 16), to the division conference of October 6, on the isle of Tikahau. After battling with contrary winds from Tuesday until Friday morning we hailed in the passage of Makahiva Isle to await for better winds and rest. This island is inhabited only at times when the cocoanut groves are ready to work by the people of Tikahau. They had built here a number of decent native houses, some of which we took possession of, where we abode until Monday morning, having had services for the Lord four times. Arriving at Tikahau we were met by a great number of Saints, also meeting with Brn. Devore and Gilbert, Bro. Newton having stopped here, expecting every day a boat to come from Manihi for him. When we returned we found he had gone. Our meeting was a delightful one with the glad news that Bro. Devore had preached twice in the native tongue, and two months from the day of his arrival here on Tahiti Bro. Gilbert bore his testimony in the native tongue. The conference was a profitable one to all. The brethren presented before that people during the conference in their preaching meetings and schools some very useful and needful things, establishing what had been before taught them by Brn. Smith and Devore, and leading their minds out in new and truthful avenues which caused their hearts to rejoice and gave them a better insight on many points of the law. We would expect something extra from the Brn. Mareko and Lutero. But Wilama or Bro. Gilbert being young in the cause and still younger in the ministry, was a surprise to all. I felt to praise and thank the good Father as I sat and looked at his clear, penetrating eye, and resolute mouth, and heard his ringing tones set forth in such a masterful way, the soul-stirring teaching of our divine Master, Jesus Christ, from Matthew fifth and sixth chapters. The subject was handled through an interpreter, but he seemed to catch the spirit of it and it went ringing in the ears of the natives, while every eye was upon him; awakened to a new interest, every soul felt the inspired teaching vibrating through and through their beings, while their minds expanded with new and beautiful thoughts upon the law that must be kept, the life that must be lived to gain an inheritance with the redeemed. There, with the eye of inspiration, I see him going from isle to isle clothed with the spirit of the work, the word of God in his hands, honored with being clothed with his priesthood, because he had not dishonored it. From his countenance rays of light streamed forth as a halo of glory around his head. Teaching, encouraging, drawing up higher, with a force and power brought to bear against the native minds that caused them to loosen their hold upon the past and become new creatures. His influence was of that nature and character that he was loved and honored by all here also in America. That his work here would inspire the hearts of young men in the church to have confidence and to go forth and do likewise or even better. But to do this grand work he must sacrifice the sweet companionship of the young of his own color and race, that he has hitherto enjoyed and appreciated. He steps forth alone from all former sweet pleasures; subduing all these fond desires, and goes as a servant of his divine Master to give his time and service to His cause. Goes to a people of another color, and tongue, and habits. How many hours of loneliness, sorrow, and pain must he pass through to gain such a glorious end. O, how noble, how sublime! Such a life of excellence is worthy to be noted; worthy to be honored. Yes, a thousand times yes! May God bless him in his arduous work.

Last at the conference, yet worthy of note was, through the sanction, approbation, and encouragement of the president in charge, I taught and instructed the sisters as never before. But the glad thought is, it seemed to have such a telling effect on them, and they were willing to profit by it. There is a great work to be done here among the sisters that only woman can do, and could there come to this mission an energetic, bright-minded young woman who could learn this language quickly, she could find a work that would occupy all her time.

Because of high winds all stopped over the second Sunday on Tikahau. I can see already the reinforcement of laborers here is having a telling effect for good. There is an uprising in a general way that bodes far better things in the future for this mission. Two years ago, again and again in answer to our earnest cry to God as we knelt together pleading for this people, his Spirit manifested to us that the Lord would do something for them. That time has now come.

Sisters, you who read these lines, do not forget that I am still here alone, as regards sisters' sweet communion. And from appearances, likely to be here awhile yet if the conferences in America still continue Bro. Devore in this mission. He is in better health, and is willing to stay longer, as he now preaches often in the native tongue. Since the ponderous weight of the mission has been removed from his shoulders he has been able to give his entire attention to learning the tongue, and the result is he is preaching and teaching the schools in it. He and Bro. Gilbert have been together three months. Two weeks ago they thought they could do more good to separate and fill the calls, as now Bro. Gilbert could also preach to the people. See what a bright young mind can do.

Bro. Forscutt with the great weight of the presidency and ill health has not been able to advance very far as yet. But he has laid a foundation to build upon and is building, though the press of duties on him, of a necessity will be slow, but sure in the outcome. When we last saw Bro. Newton he was giving all his time and energies to learning the language and was making considerable headway. As for me I hardly think I will ever be able to talk it correctly, and yet notice I am gaining a little and they understand me.

As I commenced to say above, a letter to me is just as precious as ever. A dear sister wrote me last mail. In it she says: "I wish I could write such words and thoughts as would help and comfort you. But you know I love you and that my prayers are for you and Bro. Devore that you may be able to do all that is in your hearts for the people that you have suffered so much for." O that she could know how much good her letter did me—it was full of comfort—and that she could fully know the weight those precious words carried with them. They are words easily spoken, but if spoken with a false meaning they are full of deceit and subtlety; but if spoken from a loving heart brim full of love for humanity, and especially for the tried, the lonely, the afflicted, the weary, the tempted, the tearful ones, then the words go straight home to the heart they were sent to, and accomplish their heavenly work. I think we should try to be more kind and affectionate one to another. Give a word of cheer, do some kind act, be it ever so small, so that the suffering one may feel and see that it is meant for him or her. A message of love sent from the heart to one's own self. Who can tell the wondrous good it does, or the space it fills? It does not stop and lie buried in that lonely, weary bosom, but creates thoughts, feelings, words, and acts that go out to others, blessing them, and goes on still widening and enlarging until thousands are blessed with its influence.

Below I give you a little gem that fell into my hands nearly three years ago. I picked up a scrap of paper which had been wrapped around something. In it I found the following:—

"KEEP A BRAVE HEART.

"Said somebody to a woman in my hearing the other day, 'My friend, I am afraid you are getting bitter. I can detect it now and then in what you say and write. Not much only enough to show some bee has stung the sound fibre of your nature and left the rankle of its bite.' If you have any spare prayers to offer, my dear, whoever you are who read this paragraph to-day, get right down on your knees and implore heaven to keep you from all cynicisms and bitterness. Try hard to preserve your faith in the ultimate victory of good over evil, and in the fair shining of an untroubled sun behind these flying clouds. When you and I let go our hold on hope we join hands with despair, and despair is a guide that leads the soul downward. No matter how hard life may be, how the storm may beat, or however unceasing the grind may be, hold fast to your faith in the Captain who never lost a battle yet, nor ever signaled the trumpets to call a retreat. Everything is coming out right in the end. Nothing can withstand the advance of an earnest soul,

There is not material force enough in the universe to keep it down. Difficulties vanish before a steady front. Was it not Thoreau who said, 'As soon as Atlas got his back made up that was all that was required'? Brave backs go a-begging for burdens."—Chicago Herald.

Let me place the picture before you. One overheard the few well-defined words spoken to another, and they make such an impression on their own mind that they felt to give expression to the thought that grew out of the words overheard, and to give weight to them, and that other person is in like manner impressed with them, and conveys to them the warning they held, that whoever might read would be helped to keep from sinking into despair and to do good.

The loving message is started broadcast upon earth's bosom on its mission. It finds its way at last seven thousand miles from where it was first penned, to an island in the Pacific Ocean. By accident it is carried to the home of a homesick, lonely, discouraged woman, wife of a missionary, because of her peculiar circumstances among a people whose language she knows not. But seeing the great work that ought to be done for them and with them, she is yearning but helpless to do it. This little gem catches her eye. She reads and reflects. Courage enters into her heart, vigor to her mind, light to her eye, and she starts again refreshed. She cuts it out of the scrap and pastes it in her hymn book where she can see it often, and as often it cheers her in her arduous work.

Nearly three years pass away. A young missionary enters her house, discouraged and cast down, fearful lest he would not be able to do the work required of him. She tries to cheer him up, but feeling her help lame, she thinks of her gem, gets it and places it in his hands to read. While he reads carefully and comments, letting it enter into his very soul, she sees it does for him the same work it did for her so long ago.

Two days later she feels impressed to start it on its mission of worth and love back over the same trackless ocean to its native land, trusting that it there may bless others as it has her, wondering how far it will yet go. Who will it yet bless? What work has it yet to do? What work has it done elsewhere? Who wrote it, and where are they, if they yet live? If so, she prays they may yet know some of what that bread cast upon the waters has done.

This is the rainy season in these parts.

With prayers and good wishes for all,

ELLA R. DEVORE.

Sister Walker:—You will please allow a few words in regard to editorial in Home Column of January 10, by the writer of the extract which it contained, as it seems that an injustice has been done, both to the sisters of the branch referred to, and myself.

If in the quotation,—which was hurriedly written, with no thought of its publication,—the words "lack of understanding" had been used, and then qualified as meaning ignorance in regard to the subject under consideration,—the Sisters' Society, its aims and endeavors,—they would have conveyed the idea, and better expressed the sense of the writer.

The injustice done her, is that the sisters fail entirely to recognize me in the "robes of perfection" or something akin, that you would clothe me in, and I assure you I myself would feel very uncomfortable and out of place indeed in them. I would that I were worthy of your kindly words, but those words of praise do not belong rightfully to one so very imperfect. But to resume. While I cannot see why, as Saints, some of us should ridicule, or the rather so strongly condemn, even without investigation, some things, I recognize, and am willing to accord to every mother, that though ideas in regard to our ways and methods may differ, the good and well-being of our children is the end sought by every one, and herein I feel an injustice has been done the sisters referred to, and this is the chief reason that prompts me to call your attention to the matter.

Again, I believe I speak advisedly, when I say that as a band of sisters there is not one of us, who would stand and pray, as did one of old, who thanked God he was not as others are, for our past experiences, and ups and downs have led us to the belief that we are very like others, and yet we seek to struggle on in the way of right, and when we wander from it, we retrace our steps to find it again, and shall we not, knowing our individual weaknesses and imperfections, bid each other welcome, and journey on toward the goal we seek?

The national malady of nervousness will be the subject of an important article in McClure's Magazine for February. Edward Wakefield reports a talk with Dr. Samuel Weir Mitchell, the eminent specialist, wherein Dr. Mitchell affirms that Americans outrank all other nationalities in their proneness to nervous break-downs, and explains, as far as he is able, why it is.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Dec. 5.

Editors Herald:—When last I wrote I was on the Island of Niau with Bro. Devore. We were then expecting a boat to come soon for us to go to the conference at Tikahau, October 6 and 7. It came in due time, and we packed our things and went on board; this being the first small boat the writer was ever on, that is, in which to put out to open sea, I thought it looked pretty small, but when my worthy brother assured me that he had been out in much smaller ones, I was not afraid, and bravely went aboard, although the wind was a little high and the waves still higher.

Up to this time I had not been sick enough at sea to vomit; but just before going on board I ate a lunch of bread and very strong butter (we have no good butter here), so when we got well out into the wind and waves, and our little-craft tossed around rather lively, that butter made known its whereabouts in a very aggressive manner, and I could not have any peace until I hearkened to its urgent call for more air. I felt as though it would never afterwards make any difference to me whether butter was high or low in the market. After I got rid of that butter I was all right, and have not been sick at sea since, not even in the least. Bro. Devore went below and lay down as soon as we went on board, for one does not get so sick in that position; but the writer always prefers to remain on deck, as there is a peculiar smell in all cabins that is more or less offensive. The waves soon began to throw water on deck; I put on my gum coat, but got wet notwithstanding; the boat rolling over on its side at times necessitated one being very careful to hold onto something, and not to watch too close to dodge the spray.

In six hours we landed at Apataki, greeted the Saints who stood on shore to meet us, and were conducted to a nice little house of two rooms, which we occupied exclusively. The next day being the first Sunday we took the sacrament with the Saints. On Monday three boat loads started for conference, one hundred miles away. As soon as we were fairly out of the harbor, or passage, the boats hauled up together, the jibs were lowered, and all sailed slowly while our worthy native brother, D. M. Pohemiti, raised his hands to heaven and in solemn prayer committed us all to God's care. It was a most impressive and beautiful scene; the winds seemed to half hush for a time and the boats to rock with animate carefulness upon the placid blue for fear of disturbing the solemnity of the occasion. The groups of Saints were seated on the decks with bowed heads, while the one supplicating the Deity stood erect in bold contrast. The gentle caroling of the waves greeted our ears with a seeming divinity, while the softest zephyrs fanned our cheeks; the pure blue of the azure sky was intensely reflected on the bosom of the deep, while the day-god gave a bright, silvery touch to the rippling waters in the distance. Truly the writer felt as though the angelic hosts had paused to take cognizance of the simple and childlike faith in which that prayer was offered, and to which all said amen. The beauty and solemnity of the occasion were such as to bid the crystal gems come forth from our eyes, to witness also. We realized that God did hear, for we had a most delightful journey, landing in Tikahau in just twenty-four hours. There we met Uncle Mark and Sr. Devore, who had landed an hour or two before, from Papeete. We here received two months' mail, the first we had had since leaving America.

Many were in attendance from the surrounding islands, and so a great crowd was on the beach waiting to shake hands with us when we landed. We almost got tired before we got around to all. They are great people to shake hands, just like the Saints in America. The gospel makes people good everywhere.

Everything passed off pleasantly and smoothly in the business sessions, but it was rather slow work, as every speech, comment, or remark of importance that passed from us to the native brethren, or from them to us, had to go through an interpreter; Bro. Johnson acting in this very important position. They desired Uncle Mark to preside, as the president of the division was not present, but he objected to that and requested that the counselor that was present should preside, thereby respecting and honoring him in his place. This seemed to rather surprise them, but it had a good effect, showing them that he had not come among them to usurp authority and domineer over them. They all have great respect for Uncle Mark. The writer was chosen as president of the Tahitian division, and Brn. Johnson (white) and Loui (native) as his counselors. During conference I preached four times. On Sunday six were baptized; one by Bro. Johnson, two by Uncle Mark, and three by myself. We had what we thought to be an important and successful conference.

On the 16th of October we took to the boats again; Bro. Devore and I going back to Apataki where we touched coming down, Bro. Forscutt, Sr. Devore, with others going back to Papeete. We had a very pleasant journey, only we were longer this time as the wind was against us and had "to beat." On Sunday, October 22, Bro. Devore preached again in the native tongue, I leading the testimony meeting. The people all seem delighted to have us with them. We are trying to prove ourselves to be workmen for the Master, our main effort being to learn the language. Bro. Devore is now preaching right along in "the native." My diary for November 5 says: "Sunday I was in charge of the Sunday school; taught a class and asked a few questions at the close with better liberty than ever before in the 'native.' Soon after coming back from conference Bro. Devore baptized four, after preaching in the morning with extra good liberty in the 'native.'"

My diary for November 12 reads: "Preached my first sermon in the Tahitian, by the help of God; after which baptized four persons, confirmed one of them in the afternoon." I am very thankful to God for his helping me to make a start; for I could feel the vivid sparkling of the Holy Spirit leading my mind while I read and commented for half an hour. But just let me say that before stepping into the stand my heart went like a leaf on a windy day. Most every night when there was nothing else going on we held schools in the church, reading and studying the Scriptures, dividing the Saints into two classes, Bro. Devore and I teaching one each.

On November 17 Bro. Devore and I separated; he going to Aratua, and I to Kaukura. Bro. Devore is a good man and a congenial companion, and I regretted leaving him; but we thought we could do more good to separate, as we can now both talk well enough to get along with the natives. We were together about four months; not an unkind word passing between us.

At Kaukura the Saints made me comfortable and looked after my wants well. When they found I could converse a little they gathered in, and, as it keeps me in a constant strain to talk and catch their words, they very nearly talked me to death the first evening. The next day, Sunday, November 19, they desired that I should preach to them in "Tahitian;" but not feeling capable on such short notice I chose to preach through the interpreter, Bro. Johnson, who resides at this place.

They have a neat and commodious church here, and it was crowded, with many standing on the outside. I wish those in America could all see what good attention these people give, and how they are hungering for more light. If they could, I don't believe we would read any more letters in the Herald speaking of these people as Heathen. I have seen less disorder here at meetings in all the time I have been here than I have seen in a single instance that I can recall in America. Not once have I heard whooping and yelling after services, like I have heard numerous times in civilized (?) America. To one who has seen and knows the facts in the case it is bordering on mental nausea to hear persons talk of these people as uncivilized and heathenish. I really believe there are more heathens, and of a deeper dye, right in the city of San Francisco than there are in all these islands put together. White members with whom I have talked have had the face to stand up and defame the moral character of the natives as being very loose sexually, when all it takes to see where the sin lies is to take a look at the many illegitimate half-castes that throng this city. It is an open and glaring picture of the immorality of the whites who have come to this place. When I consider all sides of the question, and the chances these people have had in the past, I am not discouraged in the least as to their future under elevating and educational conditions. If the natives of these islands were a big man, and the whites here another big man, and those two men were going to run a race for heaven, I would bet big on the native; yet there are a few very good white people here, and a few bad natives.

I was at Kaukura but two or three days when some of the brethren made ready to come to Papeete, and I, desiring to come anyway, came with them, promising to go back there from here. We landed on Tahiti just four months to a day from the time I first came to Papeete from America. I found a month's mail awaiting me in which was a letter from my young brother and coworker, R. W. Davis. It did my soul good to hear from one with whom I had tramped the prairies of Western Kansas in laboring for the Master. And here let me say that I believe he would be a good one to send next, to this mission, if some one would just put a bug in his ear first and give him a hint that it is "e mea maitai roa ia faaipoipohia" (a very good thing to be married) before coming here.

We are all so sorry the Gospel Ship has been delayed so long, for we need it so very badly; but this is a good place in many respects to cultivate patience and let it have its perfect work. On the 29th ult., I preached again in the "Tahitian" to the Saints here, in Papeete. On Sunday the 3d inst., Uncle Mark preached in English, which was a feast to our souls. He gave the references to the natives present in their own language.

At times our hearts yearn for the land over which the stars and stripes wave, but still we desire to stay and labor for the cause of truth and righteousness, and would not return now if we were given a free passage.

With hope and confidence in the final victory of truth over error, I am,

Your brother in bonds,

J. W. GILBERT.

MAGNOLIA, Minn., Jan. 18.

Editors Herald:—Since my last letter to you I have been busy presenting the word in different parts of my mission, leaving all apparently feeling well and interested in the gospel. I herein extend my sincere thanks to all the Saints and friends for their kindness to me and my wife where we have labored. We left Northern Minnesota on December 20 en route for St. Peter, stopping over one day with the dear Saints in the city of Minneapolis. We enjoyed their company very much, also a good prayer meeting in which much of the Spirit was enjoyed.

On Friday night we bade the Saints of the city good-bye and journeyed on to St. Peter where we enjoyed the kindness of Bro. and Sr. Weiler during the holidays. We put forth an effort while there to mete out the gospel to the people, but they were not much inclined to hear; however, we kept up meetings most of the time while there. On the 11th inst., we left St. Peter for this place, arriving the same day, where we found Bro. and Sr. Premo and many other friends waiting to receive us. Last fall I was defending our faith, using the church to speak in. But O, what a change since then! Our Methodist friends assumed the authority to shut me out. The schoolhouse being opened for holding service I had to occupy that, beginning on the evening of the 12th inst. I am having a full house each night with good interest and splendid liberty. The Methodist people are using the old Mother Grundy theory of opposing the truth. We have the majority of the town and neighborhood in our favor, so we are happy, and feel to thank God at all times for the fullness of the gospel. The church at this place was built by subscription with the understanding that it was to be a union church; but, as usual, one of the daughters of Babylon has assumed control, which has caused very unpleasant feelings with the sons of toil and labor. I understand there is a petition in circulation to have the church opened or the money subscribed refunded to those who are for union.

I am feeling much better in body than I have felt for some time, thank the Lord. I will continue here some time yet. I feel that a good work will be done in the near future. Yesterday morning we had the blessing of our Father made manifest in the healing of Sr. Premo, who by some means suddenly lost her mind so that she knew nothing nor anyone present. Bro. Premo fell the evening before and hurt his hip so he could not get around; but, thanks to our heavenly Father, when they were administered unto the blessings were given. May the good Lord hasten his work in its time, is my prayer.

KIRTLAND, O., Jan. 15.

Editors Herald:—Will you please inform the European Saints through the columns of the Herald that Bro. J. R. Evans and myself sailed from Liverpool January 3, and arrived in New York on the 11th inst., after quite a rough voyage, during which we were confined to our "bunks" four days, which seemed like four weeks. We were fortunate in being on one of the finest, most substantial steamers that cross the Atlantic, the Teutonic, ten thousand tonnage, and nearly six hundred feet in length, and were kindly cared for while on board.

We arrived home on the 12th inst. and found my family all well, except my wife, who is in a bad condition physically; and we trust that the Saints will remember her in their prayers. I must beg a little time of those to whom I promised to write on my arrival home, as my wife's ill health keeps me well occupied in caring for her and the little ones.

Yours hastily,

G. T. GRIFFITHS.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. Jan. 23.

Editors Herald:—To-day I am packing my grips, intending to start to Sherwin, Kansas, to-morrow; from there on to Angola, and then to Keighley, where I am to meet the Rev. Thomas H. Popplewell in debate, commencing February 6. Four questions are in the catalogue: Joseph Smith, the Book of Mormon, and the two churches. We expect to spend one half month in this conflict.

I shall anxiously and patiently wait to know what the end will be. I am glad to learn that I have the best talent to meet that the Christian Church can produce in the State of Kansas. The promise is, "No stone will be unturned, this time." I have passed through a few tornadoes, and trust to be found with mufflers on.

The storm has been brewing since early last spring, when Bro. M. M. Turpen passed through that part of Kansas. I understand questions were partly agreed upon; but after more mature reflection the Disciples concluded not to meet in a debate depending wholly upon their local talent. Bro. Turpen passed on, and time went; and yet the people agitated the question of debate. Mr. Popplewell was employed by the Christians to meet our man. I was written to and asked to consider the matter. I consulted with Brn. Luff and Caffall in regard to the affair, and now am billed to do this kind of work for the church. This is my apology.

I hope to be sustained and remembered by those who feel interested in my work for the Master. In gospel bonds,

I. N. WHITE.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 16.

Editors Herald:—My last communication was from New Park, Pennsylvania, where in company with Brn. Robley, Robinson, and Nelson we made our last effort in grove meetings with fair success, if hearers and attention paid the speakers is the rule for judgment. Since then my time has been mostly confined to Philadelphia, and Baldwin, Maryland. I made some effort to effect openings in different localities in country places, but the school laws of the States of Maryland and Pennsylvania will not permit religious services in school buildings, hence it is impossible to do much in the country during the winter months outside of cottage meetings, which in this part are poorly attended. I have had the pleasure of baptizing two at Baldwin this fall; others seem near. I fear some will wait too long and fail to enter into that relationship with God that shall entitle them to that blest estate. A tent we want this year if possible, so as to occupy the spring, summer, and fall months here and there, holding protracted efforts. A tent will attract many who will not go into a hall or even a church to hear the truth, hence I believe is one of the best means to reach the people and sow the good seed. The Saints and friends in Philadelphia have made a start in the right direction. They have a few dollars on hand for the tent fund that the sisters have raised by pluck and energy, besides helping to meet some other expenses connected with the work there. If the other branches in the district will do likewise a tent will be had this spring for district work.

Many a nickle which belongs not to the tithing list might go into this fund if proper efforts were put forth.

Bro. and Sister George Potts, of Ozono Park, Brooklyn, celebrated the twenty-fifth year of their married life on the 11th. This is called the silver wedding, and as hard as times have been and are, quite a few presents were made them. Some sixty odd were present, quite a few not members of the church, who apparently entered into the exercises of the evening as though they felt at home with Saints. To say the host and hostess made a fine appearance as a bridal pair, is putting it mildly. After a sumptuous repast, music, singing, and some innocent plays (for old folks) were indulged in, and a pleasant time had by all. Bro. W. H. Kelley came too late for this. However, he gave us one of those stirring sermons of his on Sunday evening to a full house, and left for other parts. He expects to be with the Saints in Philadelphia on next Sunday, thence southward into Virginia for gospel work.

Bro. Thomas Lester of East New York avenue, near Cowell street, Brooklyn, New York, would like those who can to remember him and send in their tithes and offerings that he may be able to do something in aiding the work along. It is wise on our part to contribute of that we are blessed with, let it be ever so small. It is not the amount we have to give that brings the blessings of heaven, the approval of God; but the willingness to do our duty according to our ability.

In hope of the ultimate when Christ shall reign,

PLAINVILLE, Ind., Jan. 16.

Editors Herald:—I spoke for the Saints and friends at Tom's Hill last Friday evening. On Saturday I met Bro. I. P. Baggerly here. He had been preaching, and had an appointment out to organize a branch. We accordingly met before the hour of preaching for the above-named purpose. Everything went off in unity and order, and thus a thrifty scion is planted. There were about a dozen charter members to be duly enrolled, who had received letters of removal from Washington branch. More are to be baptized, and many appear quite friendly to the Saints' cause. Elder D. O. Stites and Thomas Strange were elected as president and branch priest respectively, and Sr. Martha Persinger was chosen as clerk and treasurer. Cornelius Persinger recently bought a schoolhouse where the Saints can now worship on their own ground and in their own property. They have seated the fair-sized room, purchased a stove, and partially repaired the building, and intend to complete the good begun work in the near future. We are holding forth with good audiences. The little man far outstripped my most sanguine expectations last evening. For an inflated hour he poured forth a stream of clear-cut logic, pungent truth, and a rushing avalanche of inspirational eloquence, all pleasing and wondrous to behold.

Our contemplated debate that appeared so near when here last summer, is yet so far. Talk is cheap, and, sure there has been plenty of small chat. "Bark is a good dog, but Hold Fast is better." We were to baptize yesterday, but the forenoon's pourdown prevented. It had been dry and pleasant up to that time and it is still warm to-day. I wrote you so recently that I do feel constrained now to be brief. My missionary heart is comparatively happy.

Editors Herald:—In a recent issue of the Herald I noticed a clipping from the New Issue published at Bozeman, Montana, stating that David, Bro. John Pritchard's son, had committed suicide by taking poison. In justice to Bro. Pritchard and family I wish to state that matters have recently come to light indicating that his death was accidental. Please insert in the Herald.

In bonds, yours,

GOMER REESE.

SWEETWATER, Tex., Jan. 14.

Editors Herald:—I cannot boast of mighty works during the year, but I trust that while in the spirit of humility, for which I have striven through humble prayer, I have been able to do something for the Master. When I left San Antonio some months ago in company with Elder H. C. Smith I anticipated being in Indian Territory ere this, but on arriving in Bell county Bro. Heman was called home by sickness in his family. This was a sad blow to me, as I was daily receiving the long needed instructions for the work of the ministry, but when I saw that manly bosom heaving with emotion, all my interest was buried in sympathy in a moment; but oh! how lonely I felt when I watched the impatient iron horse bear him away to his loved ones; and my heart yet swells with gratitude to God when I think of the cheerful and liberal contributions of the brethren of the Central Texas district in the call for funds to carry him home.

After this I labored for some time in Bell and Milan counties, striving as best I could to cheer and gladden the hearts of the Saints and to spread the truth of the gospel. How much good was done remains at present untold, but I trust the efforts were not in vain.

I left Bell county for Ballinger, in answer to the second call of Bro. F. M. Oldham through the Herald, the first having been made some years ago. He and his father-in-law, Bro. Alexander, drifted into Taylor county several years ago in search of a home. The drouth so prevalent in the West had not been slack in laying a heavy hand on them, yet their surroundings show industry, and, judging from the good influence upon their neighbors, they have not been slothful about sowing the good seed; and I believe some of it has fallen on good ground.

My journey from Temple to Guion was not altogether pleasant; I went aboard the train at four o'clock in the afternoon and was all night among revelers; the conductor, engineer, and crew, with a large portion of the passengers, were on what they called a Christmas celebration, but which was in fact a drunken spree. I arrived at six in the morning, thankful that I was alive. A man was at the depot ready to take me to the best hotel, and seemed surprised to learn that I wanted neither breakfast nor bed. I soon found a wagon going to Guion, thirty miles distant, and when about half way out met Bro. Oldham and his little son coming after me. We arrived late at night and the good sister soon had a nice, warm supper. It had blown up quite cold and I enjoyed the fire and other comforts of a home.

I enjoyed the hospitality of Brn. Oldham, Alexander, and their friends for some eight days, in which I preached nine times to quite interesting congregations, and went away with their assurance that I left more friendly to the cause than were so when I arrived. I enjoy nothing better than opening the work in new places, and when I can have the assistance of such brethren as those named it makes it easier. Truly it has fallen to my lot a great many times to go entirely alone in my short experience. The return journey from Bro. Oldham's to Abilene was a very cold one. His boys, who brought me over, were out most of the night on the trip home. I have not heard from them, but the night must have been severe on them.

I am announced to preach in the Christian church here next Sunday; this by request of some of the members. I preached here last year. I expect to go hence into Indian Territory. I hope the way will open for me to attend the General Conference, though the way looks dark and gloomy now. However, I feel resigned to the will of God. It is my whole desire to see the work spread and prosper in this country. Sometimes it looks as if but a narrow strip had been opened in this the largest State in the Union, and that we are continually working over and over that strip without spreading out into the territory west. Calls now come in from counties but two or three tiers west that have called for the past year; and that I cannot reach. One I may and will try to reach on leaving here: that is, at Bro. Edmundson's, at Stevensville; and in the opposite direction is one of the old Lyman Wight company that my heart goes out after. I pause and pray God to send more laborers, with a prayer to God for the peace and prosperity of his people.

In the faith,

REDFIELD, Kan., Jan. 19.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Lloyd and the writer have been holding a series of meetings at Redfield, a little town on the Fort Scott and Wichita Railroad. I opened up the work here last August. The directors let me have the public school building. We commenced here January 9 and had good congregations. On Sunday night the house was packed, and many are interested, but on Monday night I received notice that we could not have the house any longer. Like the Saducees and Pharisees of old, too much doctrine for them.

One man, a back-slider of the M. E. Church, offered us an empty store building. Three quarters of the people did not like it because they closed the house against us. Mr. Leaton, who furnished us the house, assisted us in seating the building. We put in a stove, and went on with our preaching, and never lost a night; and are having bigger crowds than ever. It advertised the meetings.

I never had better liberty in preaching; the Spirit is working with the people; the whole country is stirred up. One who does not belong to our church says he will give $50 towards building a Latter Day Saint church; another outsider says he will give $100. The line is drawn so we can tell who are our friends.

Last night I preached about two hours on the divine mission of Joseph Smith, and O, how God did bless me! I feel that much prejudice was removed. Last Sunday I had the pleasure of leading a Christian preacher's son and his wife down into the watery grave. The young man, if faithful, will preach the gospel. This makes thirteen I have baptized into the Lebanon branch since May. This branch was organized by Bro. Caffall. I have been doing missionary work ever since March. I have been able to preach all the time except five days that I was laid up with lagrippe.

Through God's power my lungs and voice are as strong as ever; to him be the glory. How necessary it is that the Saints live pure lives before God and come up higher, as the admonition of the Spirit has been to the church. One thing that is a stumbling block to young members is to see some of the priesthood using tobacco. I have had this thing to meet in more than one place. I find that most of the Saints in this southwestern country are trying to live right. I have found them very hospitable and kind. May God bless them. With love to all,

Your brother and friend,

F. C. KECK.

ATTLEBOROUGH, Mass., Jan. 15.

Editors Herald:—It is encouraging in reading the word of God as revealed to his prophets in this century to find that every provision that could be rightly desired and every demand that might reasonably be made is supplied in the word which the kind Father has promulgated amongst us. This law of supply and demand which has been so wonderfully covered in the gospel covenant voices with louder accents than human tongue or mortal pen the divinity of this great latter-day work, hypocrites and devils to the contrary notwithstanding. What grand words are these: "And if any man among you be strong in the Spirit, let him take with him he that is weak, that he may be edified in all meekness, that he may become strong also." —D. and C. 83:19.

Do we follow out these instructions? Yes; some do, but it is binding upon all the ministry. We ought to feel glad that God has spoken to-day and that he has told his servants what their mission work was, and has revealed in the word to the church all of the ways in which the interests of the kingdom of God should now be advanced. I feel well in body, mind, and spirit; and at times my feelings are touched when I see those who are deprived of any of the faculties of the mind, or members of the body which the kind Father has preserved to some of us.

Before the close of '94 the writer will have experienced a decade in this glorious work, and I can say with all my ransomed powers, O how bright and pleasant the faithful hours in that experience. And yet how sad to think of the "might have been" and the mistakes of life; but, God helping me, (and he is always ready and willing to help all that come to him,) the coming decade will have a brighter fore and background.

The work is still onward here; if not among the people, it is in the hearts and minds of Saints. The seed has been sown, has been abundantly watered by the labors of wise, faithful brethren who have visited the Plainville branch, and it only remains for God to give the increase. It has not been long since there was an increase from his bountiful hand. We hope to keep toiling on and try to cooperate with the divine economy for the overthrow of evil and the establishment of right.

THE LAW SUPREME.

BY W. W. BLAIR.

IN these times when personal opinions, private interests, and sectarian prejudices govern largely the affairs of church and state, it is well to consider the safeguards needful to secure best conditions, prevent evil, and promote the general welfare.

Looking over the history of the past and present, reflecting upon the nature and constitution of government from the atom to the universe, and from man in his highest moods to the very lowest orders of intelligent creatures, the conclusion is inevitable that law—which is, in fact, authorized and established rule of action—is, and of necessity must be, supreme. In exact harmony with this view is found these words of revelation given through Joseph the Seer:—

That which is governed by law is also preserved by law and perfected and sanctified by the same. That which breaketh a law, and abideth not by law, but seeketh to become a law unto itself, and willetth to abide in sin [sin is the transgression of law], and altogether abideth in sin, cannot be sanctified by law, neither by mercy, justice, or judgment; therefore they must remain filthy still. All kingdoms have a law given; and there are many kingdoms; for there is no space in the which there is no kingdom; and there is no kingdom in which there is no space, either a greater or lesser kingdom. And unto every kingdom is given a law; and unto every law there are certain bounds also, and conditions. All beings who abide not in those conditions are not justified.—D. C. 85: 8, 9, 10.

There is a vast amount of significance in the above quotation. All inharmonies, all conflicts, all discords, all evil, all hindrances in rightful progress, all disappointments and failure of success, and all sin are the certain results of violated law. Man in the beginning transgressed the law given him of God, and evil followed. Israel ignored and rebelled against the law given them through Moses, and condemnation, curses, and calamity followed. These came upon priests and people without respect of persons, for priestly authority was no shield for him that dishonored and spurned the law of God. This we learn by the testimonies of God's servants, as in Daniel 9: 5-14; Jer. 9: 13; 26: 4, 5; 44: 10; Mal. 2: 1-9; Ezra 9: 4-12; Neh. 8: 1, 2, 3, 8, 14, 18; John 5: 46-48; Matt. 15: 3, etc., etc. Jesus denounced the Jewish teachers for having made void the law through the traditions and innovations of their elders. It mattered not that the law given through Moses was imperfect and ineffectual in some respects; it was nevertheless the law given to Israel to govern that people and to remain in force until Christ should come and the new covenant be given. No man, priest nor prince nor peasant, had authority to put forth the hand and steady the ark of God. The Lord would care for that; and no man should interfere however politic and needful it might seem to do so.

And what was true and ordained of God as to strict obedience to the law of God under the Mosaic covenant, was equally imperative under Christ and the gospel. "The law of the Spirit of life"—the gospel—was unchangeable. Neither elders, nor apostles, nor angels should change it, in much or little. It was the wisdom of God, the love of God, and the power of God, and yet Paul foreknew, and foretold that even some of the ministry would presume to change the order given of God, for he said:—

For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them.—Acts 20: 29, 30.

Paul said further:—

According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon; for other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—1 Cor. 3: 10, 11.

The foundation he had laid by the grace of God must not be changed. Jesus Christ as revealed in his law—his gospel, his doctrine—was the only and true and unchangeable foundation. Had the ministry always builded on that foundation according to the conditions and provisions of the gospel, there never would have been an apostasy; the church and its doctrines and its powers and blessings would have been perpetuated unbroken, and complete down to the end. But changes came; the doctrines and established usages of the church were corrupted little by little till finally Christ rejected the fallen church, and spiritual night fell upon the whole world till the dawn of the Reformation and the final restoration of the gospel by angel hands as promised in Revelation 14: 6-8, etc., etc.

Will the ministry and the membership of Christ's Church profit by the foregoing facts? Will the admonitions abounding therein prompt them to vigilance and faithfulness? Christ says to all, "Let no man deceive you;" and the Lord said to Israel, "To the law and to the testimony; and if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them."

Now when the Lord restored the gospel and organized his church under the ministrations of Joseph the "choice Seer" and his fellow servants, he saw it needful to give to the church his "law" to govern the ministry and membership until Christ comes in power and glory. And to emphasize the importance and unchangeability of that law the Lord said to the church in December, 1830:—

And again a commandment I give unto the church, that it is expedient in me that they should assemble together at the Ohio.—D. C. 37: 2.

And in January, 1831, the next month, he further said:—

And that ye might escape the power of the enemy, and be gathered unto me a righteous people, without spot and blameless, wherefore, for this cause I gave unto you the commandment that ye should go to the Ohio; and there I will give unto you my law; and there you shall be endowed with power from on high [which took place in 1835-36]; and from thence, whomsoever I will, shall go forth among all nations, and it shall be told them what they shall do.—D. C. 38: 7.

This promised instruction was given the ministry through Joseph the Seer, Oliver Cowdery, the councils, and the quorums in the General Assemblies, as history informs us. The fourth day of the next month, February, 1831, the Lord through the Choice Seer gave the following:—

Hearken and hear, O ye my people, saith the Lord and your God, ye whom I delight to bless with the greatest blessings, ye that hear me, and ye that hear me not will I curse, that have professed my name, with the heaviest of all cursings. Hearken, O ye elders of my church whom I have called; behold, I give unto you a commandment, that ye shall assemble yourselves together to agree upon my word, and by the prayer of your faith ye shall receive my law, that ye may know how to govern my church, and have all things right before me.

And I will be your Ruler when I come; and behold I come quickly; and ye shall see that my law is kept. He that receiveth my law and doeth it the same is my disciple; and he that saith he receiveth it and doeth it not, the same is not my disciple, and shall be cast out from among you; for it is not meet that the things which belong to the children of the kingdom, should be given to them that are not worthy, or to dogs, or the pearls to be cast before swine.—D. C. 41: 1, 2.

And on the 9th day of the same month he revealed many items of this promised and unrepealed and unrepealable law—the law which would enable the "elders" to "know how to govern" the Church of Christ "and have all things right before" the Lord—as is clearly stated in the foregoing quotation, which please turn and re-read and carefully consider.

With section 42 begins this most important "law." Note well the fact that the Lord commands his "elders" thus,—"ye shall see that my law is kept." This is a solemn charge, and how can Christ's "elders" properly comply with this command unless they carefully study that "law" and learn how to rightly explain and apply it? Shall anyone not authorized of God presume to act as a teacher and administrator of that law? Shall anyone not well instructed in that law presume to sit in judgment and seek to decide upon its meaning and application? Is not all this reserved to Christ's ministers in their regular order? If not, why does the Lord say in Doctrine and Covenants 43: 3 to the "elders" of his church, "I give unto you a commandment, that when ye are assembled together, ye shall instruct and edify each other that ye may know how to act upon, and direct my church, how to act upon the points of my law and commandments which I have given"? If not limited to the ministry, why does the Lord charge "the high council of the church" with the duty of deciding "cases of difficulty respecting doctrine, or principle" (D. C. 99: 10)? And why does he provide in Doctrine and Covenants 104: 11, 14, that the First Presidency, and the Quorum of the Twelve, and the Quorum of the Seventy, and "the standing high councils at the stakes of Zion," shall be "equal" in their decisions, "in the affairs of the church" where they have coordinate jurisdiction? And if God has not reserved to his ministry, in their regular order, the right and power, and responsibility of teaching and administering his law, why did he in Doctrine and Covenants 119:7 command his "elders," April 11, 1887, saying, "until further revelation is received, or the quorums of the church are assembled to decide concerning the law in the church articles and covenants, the Saints are to observe the first day of the week"? Does not all this teach that the Lord has placed his law and his church government in the hands of his ministry in their appointed offices, and quorums, and councils? And has he not appointed and graded the relative authority, and power, and responsibility of each officer, and quorum, and council in teaching, administering, and deciding upon his law and commandments? And inasmuch as he, through his law and commandments has done all this, is it not of first importance that this order be fully carried out in the government of the church? And in all these matters shall not each officer, each quorum, each council, be permitted and aided to exercise the full measure of authority and responsibility placed upon them of God? And shall not each one of them, and all of them, be honored and sustained in the order and measure appointed them in the law of the Lord?

In conclusion, how can the law of the Lord and the government of the church be honored, and made effectual, unless each officer, each quorum, and each council, be given the authority and the full measure of administrative power provided for in that law? For instance; when the law provides that the decision of the Quorum of the Twelve in the church affairs shall be "equal" to the decision of the entire Quorum of Seventy, is it lawful when thirteen of the seventy shall vote that decision down? And when the law provides that the decision of the First Presidency in these same matters is "equal" to that of the Twelve, or the Seventy, is it lawful when three of the Twelve or three of the Seventy shall vote that decision down?

And when considering matters touching doctrine, and principle, and church government, and the duties of quorums and councils, including their rights, and powers, and responsibilities, and jurisdiction, shall lay members be invited, and authorized, and permitted to vote, and perhaps vote down the First Presidency, or the Twelve, or the High Priests, or the Seventy, or the elders, etc., those with whom the Lord has placed the law and its administration? Is that system in harmony with "the law and the testimony"? Shall persons, male or female, not connected with the ministry, be invited and empowered to sit in judgment and decide by vote upon questions of doctrine, law, principle, and church government, when the law of the Lord has reserved that work to the ministry and made that ministry responsible therefor? Let us think prayerfully on these things and humbly seek to make the law of the Lord supreme.

EXPERIENCE AND TESTIMONY OF JOHN J. M'KEOWN.

(Written by himself.)

PETER SAYS:—

Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.—Acts 10: 34, 35.

Brethren and sisters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, I want to tell you what God has done for me; and in order to do so I must sketch a few incidents of my early life. I was born in Liverpool, England, March 9, 1843. My parents were members of the Roman Catholic Church. The number of their children was nine; five boys and four girls. We were taught, of course, that the Roman Catholic doctrine was the doctrine that Jesus Christ taught on earth, and we believed it to be so with all our hearts. One of my sisters evidently thought something was wrong; for after she was grown to womanhood she left the Roman Catholic Church and became a member of the Church of England. As a consequence she brought up her children in the Protestant faith.

One of her daughters is in my family at the present time.

At one time I attended a public school in Liverpool; afterwards I was sent to a school conducted by Catholic teachers. Then I was sent to a Roman Catholic school at Loughborough. There was a monastery on the same grounds so that I had a chance to notice how the monks lived. I observed that they lived in accordance with their belief; they were sincere in their religion and thought they were worshiping in spirit and in truth. It was evident that these people thought they were doing right; for hundreds, yes, thousands of them renounced the world and all its pleasures and entered monasteries, vowing to God to quit the world the remainder of their days.

I have known some of the best people that I have ever been acquainted with amongst the Roman Catholics; sincere, just, honest, good, merciful, and kind. Then there are some of them that are very ignorant and superstitious. After doing wrong for a time they go to the priest, make a confession of their sins, and receive absolution, the priest using the Latin language. The priest forbids their going inside of a Protestant church, telling them it is a sin in the sight of God; that they (the Protestants) are heretics, have departed from the fundamental doctrines of Christianity, and that hell will be their portion.

There is a patriotic element that is somewhat phenomenal in the Roman Catholic doctrine; and I say once more, that they are sincere in what they believe. I have seen the rich and the poor worshiping, and the poor seemed to be happy in their ignorance, poverty, and superstition; the blind were leading the blind. Probably some Catholic who reads this will say, "O the Catholic Pope, bishops, and priests cannot be blind! Why, they have such fine educations!" Yes, I will admit that in regard to education and worldly knowledge they cannot be surpassed; but the Book says that the wisdom of the world knows not God.

I will now return to my schooldays. I left the school in Loughborough and returned to my parents in Liverpool. Finally, after learning a trade, I left home again and in October, 1864, found myself in Australia, thirteen thousand miles from England. But being young, twenty-three years of age at the time, I thought I could face any kind of earthly trouble or hardships that any other man could. I did face some of them; and how I am here to write this experience God only knows. When I look back and see what saved me through the eight years of my stay in the Australian Colonies (for I wanted to see and I did see a great part of them), when I look back, I say, it makes me see the hand of God all through. Unexpectedly I received a letter announcing the death of my father. That brought me to a realization of my condition; and not long afterwards I found myself at home, in England.

In regard to the Roman Catholic doctrine, I could not be honest in heart and believe in it. What I had seen in England and other parts of the world made me indifferent to its teachings and I would not call myself a Catholic. Though I had been taught that the Roman Catholic Church was the Church of Jesus Christ, I came to the conclusion that it was not so now if it ever was. I find that the Roman Catholics have a veil over their eyes, and it will not be taken off until they go to God and ask for more light. God will then give them more light; he will take the veil from their eyes; he will open their understanding, direct them into all truth, and show them things to come. Then, and not till then will they find that man has led them astray. I would not be a member of the Protestant Church, as I had been taught that they were apostates; and in reading the Catholic history of the Reformation I found them to be so.

Finally I left England and came to America not intending to settle; no, that was not my intention. Despite my intentions I married and settled down, and God blessed me with two little boys. No earthly father could have been prouder of his sons than I was of these two boys; not that I thought them better than others, but they were my flesh and blood.

My wife believed in the Church of Jesus Christ as soon as she understood its doctrine, and was baptized about four years ago. She often asked me to go to church with her. I would tell her, no; I would not, but if she could get consolation in that sort of teaching to go but I could not. I was willing that my two boys should go to the Latter Day Saint Church and Sunday school.

Whenever I wanted any information concerning the latter-day work, I would not go to a member of the church. O, no; I would go to one of their very worst enemies. Well, that terrible plague, the lagrippe, entered our home and fastened its grip on one of my boys. It took away a son upon whom my best thoughts were concentrated, a son that I loved with the deepest affection. But how about my God? Oh! I neglected my God; the Catholic doctrine made me so unfeeling and hardened to religious belief that I was almost an infidel.

For six days and nights at his bedside I watched every movement and I noticed that nature was dealing gently with him. I would ask him if he were in pain. He would say, "No, papa." O, I was thankful to know that my boy was not in pain, and that he was left with his senses almost up to the time he died; so that we kissed him and bade him good-bye and he bade us good-bye, feelingly and affectionately, just the same as if he were never going to be with us again.

Oh! if ever a man's heart was torn to pieces, it was mine when he passed away. I thought if I only had the chance once more to take him to church and Sunday school as he had asked me. But that chance was gone never to come back. Finally funeral day came and I thought everything over. I knew it would be the last time that I would see his body on earth. Some one was wanted to officiate at the funeral; I did not seem to care whom.

Elder Joseph Lakeman was proposed, and I accepted him. In my deep affliction I listened to the sermon, and I could feel his words fasten on my heart as words never did before. Almighty God in his goodness chose this good man to bring me to the realization of my condition. When the sermon was over he came to me, shook my hand, and called me brother. I asked him if he thought I could meet my boy. He told me I could. Those kind words seemed to do me a great deal of good. I asked this question because the Roman Catholic doctrine teaches that anyone dying without baptism is lost.

In taking the last look at my boy in the casket I kissed his cold forehead twice, saying, "O Dan! can we ever meet again?" for it was the only thing that I wanted to know. That night I had to go to the woodshed to cut kindling wood for the next day. I remembered that the last place my boy and I held conversation was in that woodshed. I finished my work and thought it all over. I knelt down on the wood block, uncovered my head, and prayed to God: "O Almighty God, I have been a very wicked sinner. I am sorry and ask your forgiveness. I promise to keep your commandments in the future. I promise you, O Almighty God, to consecrate my life to you. There is one request I want you, O God, to grant me; for nothing is impossible to you. You know how I loved my boy. O send him to me in any shape, form, or manner, so that I will be convinced that he is happy, so that I will know that we can meet again; and in return, O God, I promise you that whenever I can bring a sinner to repentance and the knowledge of the truth, I will do so."

I arose from my knees; I felt like a different man. I returned to the house and after awhile retired for the night. We lay in the bed in which the little boys had always lain. As I lay there my thoughts were upon my God and my boy. Everything was still in the house; the rest of the family had gone to rest, as it was between eleven and twelve o'clock. A beautiful feeling came over me; I was perfectly happy. I cannot describe the feeling; there are not words in the mother tongue to describe it, and no one knows but those who have felt the same. My wife went off to slumber in the meantime. I awoke her, and told how I felt; I told her that if I could feel like it after death it was all the heaven I wanted. Presently I heard music. I tried to locate it; it was on my right, it was in the east, it was in space. It was from a stringed instrument, it was a harp. It became louder and louder to my hearing. O, it was so blissful! I made it known to her, she could not hear it; so she slumbered.

How long I lay there enjoying this agreeable sensation I do not know, but I think it was only a short time. All at once it stopped and the next instant my son was with me with his head resting on my arm. He looked so happy; he looked so pure; he looked so sweet and blissful! He smiled at me and looked so beautiful; I could not speak to him; I knew that God had sent him back to me. I knew that he would not be with me long, and with the greatest of tenderness I kissed him twice on his lips. I wanted my wife to see him too, and so I awoke her; but as soon as I awoke her and told her that Dan was with us, O, he was gone! But even then I could feel the imprint of his lips upon mine; it was not for her to see.

I then told my wife what I had done, what I had asked God to do for me. I told her that I had prayed to God in the wood shed and promised him to keep his commandments. She was overjoyed to hear it, and said: "John, my prayer is answered too. Many a time when you were fast asleep I have prayed to God for you. I have asked God to open your eyes and let you see and understand the truth." The next morning we talked the matter over, and I thought how good God was to answer the prayer of such a vile, sinful creature as I was. But still I had faith in God so that I knew he could help me:—

Without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him.—Heb. 11:6.

Christ says:—

Ask, and it shall be given you, seek, and ye shall find, knock, and it shall be opened unto you: for every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and he that knocketh it shall be opened.—Matt. 7:6, 7.

This vision was given to me on the night of April 11, 1892. I thanked God for what he had done for me; I found that I could worship a prayer hearing and a prayer answering God, and I was determined to be led by his Holy Spirit. I knew that having answered my prayer in one thing, he would do so in another. I made a change in my home, or at least God did. I remembered that I had one boy left, and I was determined to show him a good example and bring him up in the love of God. I knew that if he loved God he would keep his commandments; and as Jesus Christ says, "If you love me keep my commandments," I made God a solemn promise to keep his commandments; and I am determined to keep that promise with the help of his divine Spirit.

Now I know that God is no respecter of persons; he showed me my son; he let me see that my son was happy; and when my son's lips were pressed against mine, it was as much as to say, "Papa, I love you, and I know that you loved me; and by your keeping God's commandments we will meet again." I knew that I would not be left in the dark; I knew that by keeping his commandments his Holy Spirit would guide me safely.

In my devotions I asked God to enlighten me as to the doctrine I should obey. My prayer was, O, Lord God; you know what religion I was brought up in; and if the Catholic doctrine is not true, and if the teaching of Jesus Christ is preached in its purity on earth, I want to know it! I repeated my prayer morning, noon, and night, until the 24th morning, or thirteen days after the vision. As I attempted to rise from my bed I felt a heavy weight, as it were, on my head, and a great confusion over me. Above all the noise and confusion I heard a voice say, "I am the Lord thy God, and there is no other God but me." It then died away in the distance. I arose, awoke my wife, and told her what I had heard. In my morning devotions I was made to see that the Catholic doctrine was not right. As the hymn says:—

God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform.

God made it all plain to me. The first thing suggested was that the Catholic faith was wrong; its traditions, superstitions, and mode of worship were not pleasing to God. I wonder when I think of my younger days and how I was compelled to kneel and bow down before idols and images, the very thing that God speaks against. He says:—

Thou shalt have no other gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me; and shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.—Ex. 20: 3-6.

God knew the secrets of my heart; he knew I would be led by his Holy Spirit. When he spoke it was as much as to say, "I have answered your prayer. I have paid you in advance; now I expect you to keep your promises," and, I will serve him with all my might; I am willing to go through any kind of danger in this life in order to bring some one that stands where I stood to the knowledge of a true and living God.

In 1820 the United States had but three inhabitants to the square mile of area; in 1890 there were twenty.

It is estimated that there are less than 10,000 paupers in the Japanese Empire.

Conference Minutes.

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Conference convened in the Saints' meeting room, Manchester, England, December 23, and continued until afternoon of the 26th. The president of the mission, Apostle Gomer T. Griffiths, occupied the chair, assisted by Elders T. Taylor and J. R. Evans. The following appointments were made: Elders S. F. Mather and W. R. Armstrong as secretaries. Ushers: Brn. C. H. Barton, W. Maddock, F. M. Armstrong, E. R. Dewsnup, W. A. Greenwood, G. Towers, and Joseph Arber. Reporter, Elder J. D. Howell. Chorister, Bro. John Foden.

The president in opening the conference said that after consultation with the leading elders in the mission they thought it advisable to hold an elders' mission conference before he left for America, hence the present assembly. He stated that he was pleased to greet such a large representation of elders from all parts of the kingdom, and was still more pleased to realize that the Spirit of the Lord had met with them. He further stated that the main object of meeting together was not that there was a great amount of business to be transacted, but rather that the elders should have an opportunity of coming in touch with one another and arriving at a mutual understanding with respect to law, church usage, etc., and that he felt that the expense incurred would be far outweighed by the amount of good accomplished which he believed would affect the entire mission. The fact was also mentioned that it was impossible for any man to successfully preside over such an important mission without the full confidence and coöperation of his brethren.

The following missionaries, presidents of districts and branches, also presidents of branches not within districts, and elders reported condition of work within their jurisdiction: Gomer T. Griffiths, Thomas Taylor, J. R. Evans, Adolphus Edwards, J. Wahlstrom (by letter from Sweden). District reports: Manchester, Joseph Dewsnup, Sr.; Sheffield, John Austin; Birmingham, C. H. Caton; South Wales (Eastern), J. D. Edwards; South Wales (Western), J. R. Evans. Branches not in districts: London, J. D. Howell; Lidney, Thomas Griffiths; Plymouth, per G. T. Griffiths; Broadclist, per G. T. Griffiths. Elders' reports: J. Dewsnup, Sr., S. Platts, W. Seekins, W. Spargo, J. Baty, A. Pierce, Thomas Gould, T. Mather, A. Greenwood, J. R. Greenwood, Charles Cousins, John Edwards, J. D. Howell, J. R. Gibbs, William Davies, W. J. Davies, Richard Clift, Ephraim Webb. By letter the following: John Austin, C. H. Caton, C. Tyler, G. S. Greenwood, J. E. Meredith, F. Tubb, A. N. Bishop, Thomas Paxton, Joseph Dewsnup, Jr., A. T. Bradshaw, Joseph Matthews, C. D. Norton, G. Cope. The following elders did not report: Thomas Bradshaw, —Gerrard, William Kendrick, Joseph Tankard, Simon Holme, —Hill, John Lewis, Benjamin Davies, David Lewis. Upon motion the ordination of Brn. Thomas Taylor and George Leggett to the office of priest was ordered.

At this juncture of the conference Elder Thomas Taylor spoke very encouragingly of the condition of the work and of the hopes of its ultimate success, and expressed a great desire to do all he could to further its interests notwithstanding his advanced age. Elder J. R. Evans said that it gave him great pleasure to relate some of his experiences since his connection with the latter-day work. With regard to the work especially in South Wales he thought the use of tobacco and strong drink had been a great hindrance to the work, and was happy to report that the evils in question had almost disappeared from among the priesthood at any rate.

The following resolutions were passed and adopted by the body; viz.:—

1. That Bro. Richard Clift (London) be ordained to the office of an elder. (This was effected by Elders G. T. Griffiths, Thomas Taylor, J. R. Evans, and Joseph Dewsnup, Sr.)

2. Resolved that the report of the president of the Birmingham district be received but that we do not indorse the whole of it.

3. Resolved that this conference ask the Board of Publication to furnish us with a compilation of the Saints' Harp in such a form as to type, binding, etc., so as to enable them to furnish a hymn book at a less price than the ordinary and better class Harps now supplied.

4. (a) Resolved that a conference of elders of the British Isles shall be convened on the Saturday preceding the first Monday in the August of each year, for the purpose of transacting the business of the church within this portion, which may be necessary to be done at the time in connection with the aforesaid portion of the mission.

(b) Resolved that any other district or mission within the limits of the European mission may, with the consent and approval of the aforesaid conference, be added to and make an integral part of the same, with all the rights and privileges belonging to such conference.

(c) Resolved that the president of the mission for the time being shall preside over such conferences, and in the event of his absence the senior president of districts within said mission, then present, shall preside in his stead, except otherwise provided for by the assembly when convened.

(d) Resolved that a secretary of the conference be appointed from amongst the elders of said conference, whose duty it shall be to have charge of all books, documents, and accounts, and settle when due all claims authorized by the conference, and also send out the notices convening said conferences at such time and place as may before have been resolved upon at the conference last preceding the one to be convened.

(e) Resolved that a treasurer shall be appointed from amongst the aforesaid elders whose duty it shall be to have charge of all moneys that may be subscribed in aid of the expenses of such conferences, and shall when called upon by the presentation of an official requisition signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary of the conference, pay over upon such order such sums as may be necessary to meet the outstanding liabilities of such conferences.

(f) Resolved that the president of each district and of each branch not within limit of a district shall prior to the convening of each annual conference cause to be prepared a spiritual, statistical, and financial return ending June 30, each year, of said district, which return he shall cause to be forwarded to the secretary of the conference seven clear days before the convening of each such annual conference.

5. Resolved that it be and is hereby resolved that it be an instruction to the elders of this mission to encourage and support both by precept and example the attendance of all members of the churches of the aforesaid mission at the morning services of their several branches and also at the sessions of their respective Sunday schools.

6. Resolved that we heartily recommend Bro. S. Warren to the quorum of the Twelve for appointment as a traveling minister in the British Isles mission.

7. Resolved that we elect Bro. J. D. Howell as secretary and Bro. Thomas Taylor as treasurer of the British Isles mission.

8. Resolved that we the elders of this conference do hereby express our full confidence and high esteem in our European president, Apostle Gomer T. Griffiths, and that we highly appreciate his labors in our midst, and that we further wish him a pleasant and safe voyage across the Atlantic to the bosom of his family and the church.

9. Resolved that we also render a vote of sympathy to Elder J. R. Evans for his faithful labors in Wales, and wish him also a safe return home to his family.

10. Resolved that we sustain the following brethren: Elder Thos. Taylor, sub-missionary in charge of Birmingham and Sheffield districts; Elder Adolphus Edwards, missionary in Wales; Elder Joseph Dewsnup, Sen., president of Manchester district; Elder A. Greenwood, vice president of Manchester district; Elder John Austin, president of Sheffield district; Elder Samuel Platts, vice president of Sheffield district; Elder C. H. Caton, president of Birmingham district; Elder D. J. Edwards, president of Eastern district South Wales; Elder Thomas Gould, vice president of Eastern district South Wales; Elder J. R. Gibbs, sub-missionary in charge of (Western) South Wales district.

11. Resolved that we sustain the Bishop's agents in the mission and request them to report to next conference.

13. Resolved that we tender a vote of thanks to the Manchester Saints for their hospitality to all the visitors, also to the chorister, the brethren of Wigan (instrumentalists), and the choir for their musical services.

14. Resolved that the place of holding next conference be left in the hands of the president and secretary of the mission.

The president here rose and addressed the assembly on the duties of the officers of the priesthood, etc., and answered questions as he went along to those whom he permitted to have this favor. In the course of these remarks he said the higher authority in all cases directs the lower, the lower in no case having power to direct the higher. We ought to always give preference to those, young or old, who are able to perform duties when we are sure we cannot perform them. Presidents of branches should confine themselves to their own branches and rule and direct the same, they have no need to confide in those who have no right to supervision. If short of knowledge, advice, etc., let them go to their superior officers. If we legally criticize faults, let us do it in love, and not harshly. Let each man act in his office faithfully. God recognizes the office rather than the man, a fact that we are very often liable to overlook.

Resolved that the best thanks of the meeting be given to President Griffiths for the able and concise manner in which he had answered the various questions touching points of law and order, which he had been asked by those who had experienced difficulty in these matters.

The Sabbath services were as follows: Nine a. m., prayer meeting, in charge of Elder Thomas Taylor, assisted by Elder J. R. Gibbs. Very spiritual indeed, and soul edifying. Songs of praise and prayer in both Welsh and English were given. At 10:30 a. m., preaching in charge of Elders J. Dewsnup, Sen., and Joseph Greenwood; sermon by the latter, on the gathering of the dispersed of Israel. A truly eloquent discourse prompted all through by the Spirit of God, much to our instruction, upbuilding, and strengthening. At 2:30 p. m., testimony meeting in charge of Pres. Gomer T. Griffiths, assisted by Elder J. R. Evans, who addressed briefly in opening. Many testified. A good spiritual feast was had. At 6:30 p. m., preaching, in charge of Pres. G. T. Griffiths and Elder J. D. Howell. Sermon by the former, on baptism. A very convincing discourse, generally instructive, and appreciated by all present.

The general expression given by all towards the close of the conference, and more so at separating severally for home, was that the conference had been a most happy one throughout, that indeed a happy Christmas had been spent in the Master's service. All seemed sorry to have to separate, but hoped many such happy seasons would in the future be experienced. The whole session was one of peace, harmony, and love; in fact throughout, the Spirit of God prevailed to the great advantage of all who were assembled.

S. F. MATHER,
W. R. ARMSTRONG, } Secretaries.

[WE have taken the liberty to leave out from the foregoing minutes, resolution number 12, for the reason that it is personal in its character, and the issue really pending which would be affected by it.—ED.]

REQUEST.

TO ALL INTERESTED.

We, the committee appointed by the General Sunday School Association to compile and arrange a song book for the Sunday school, wish to again address the church at large in the interest of the work in hand.

Our request for contributions, published some time ago, has met with but a feeble response, but few having been sent in. The committee feels that the entire church is interested in the production of this work, and believe that if a better realization of the necessity of the work was had a more liberal response would be made. It has, therefore, been decided to repeat the request from time to time, urging upon all the necessity and duty of aiding in this work.

It is desirable that the book shall be expressive of Latter Day Saint sentiment, and, if possible, contain some original contributions from fellow members. It is to this latter end the committee earnestly requests and solicits contributions from members and friends.

Those who can and desire to contribute may send either original words, or music, or both, or selections from other works. In case the latter are sent the selection should be copied very carefully, or taken out entire. Name of work taken from should be given.

Contributions should be of a nature suitable for Sunday school children, and not on the "regular metre church hymn" order.

Original contributions should be of the best. However, let no one hesitate to send in contributions on account of a feeling of "inability."

Contributions may be sent to any member of the committee. They will not be returned unless accompanied by return postage. Those desiring words for which to compose music will be furnished a selection on application to secretary.

It is earnestly desired that those interested in the work will do what lies in their power. As the need of the book is universal the committee earnestly asks your aid and support.

F. G. Pitt, Chairman, No. 897 N. Halsted Street, Chicago, Illinois.

A. H. Mills, Secretary, Independence, Missouri.

R. G. Smith, No. 6113 Howe Street, E. E. Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Lucy L. Resseguie, Lamoni, Iowa.

Miss Dora Young, Dow City, Iowa.

A. H. MILLS, Secretary.

DEDICATION AT COLEMAN, MICHIGAN.

The Saints of the branch at Coleman, Michigan, have succeeded in building themselves a house of worship, and will dedicate it Sunday, February 18, 1894.

It is expected that Elders Joseph Smith, of Lamoni, Iowa, and J. J. Cornish, of Reed City, Michigan, will be present to conduct the services; and it is hoped that Elder E. C. Briggs, missionary in charge, and others of the local ministry will attend.

The number of Saints at Coleman is small, and hence, a uniform charge of thirty cents per day will be made for board; and if any choose to bring their lunch baskets, so much the better.

All expecting to attend will please notify Bro. J. H. Peters, Box 204, Coleman, that they may be provided with places to stay. The church is in sight from the depot. Should visitors not find any of the reception committee at station on arriving, if they will go over to the church, some one of the committee will be found there. A good attendance of Saints is wished for.

BY ORDER OF COMMITTEE.

January 23, 1894.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints and friends of the Nova Scotia district:—We are drawing near the close of another conference year, and I am reminded that soon I will have to make out my annual report to that body, and as I look over the book I see that over three fourths of the money to carry on the work in this field has come from the States this year; that not one half of the Saints have paid anything either as tithing or offering this year. Now please bear with me while I ask you if you think this mission can be run this way? If we were connected with any of the popular churches we would have a subscription paper laid before us every three months, and whether poor or rich, we would give something. Now the wise man says, "Honor the Lord with thy substance;" and is the Lord not to be honored in this church as well as in others? We, the Saints, are looking for great things in the future, and seeing we look for such things, what manner of people ought we to be? We know that God is at the head of this work, and he has offered us a great reward if we will carry on this work, and he has counseled us to be faithful over the few things that are intrusted to us now, with the promise that if we are he will make us rulers over many things, and we shall enter into the joy of our Lord. Now if we reject these counsels it will be against ourselves. If, as the word teaches, God is visiting the nations to-day for the purpose of taking out from among them a people for his name, he has the right to say what we shall do and how it shall be done. Now he has said, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse." There may be some who think they are so poor that the little tithes they could pay would not help much, still by doing that little they are subjecting themselves to God's laws. If we do what we can angels cannot do any more. If we are rich or well to do and our tithing quite heavy, we will have the more left after our tithing is paid. Since I set out to pay tithing I have had some quite drawbacks temporarily, but that is nothing. I know the law is of God, and if I do not get my reward now I will get it on the other shore. I have come into this work to stop in, and I can say with one of old, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." "There are none of us, I suppose, but what would pay a dollar to-day if we thought it would turn us two to-morrow. I take notice that the Saints that are trying in all ways to advance this work are the ones that are blessed spiritually. Elder Davison was with us all last week. Held meetings all the week at South Rawdon. He goes from here to labor in Kings and Cumberland counties, and we will remember that the trains will not carry him free. His clothes wear out after a time, and the world will not feed and clothe his family. My prayer is that we as a people may seek more earnestly to learn our duty, and remember that it is they who make themselves ready that will go into the marriage of the Lamb. (Rev. 19: 7; Matthew 25: 10.)

Yours for the truth,

J. W. DIMOCK,

Bishop's agent for Nova Scotia.

ARDOISE, Nova Scotia, Jan. 8, 1894.

TO THE MINISTRY.

All persons who are baptized and not enrolled in branches should have their names placed upon the General Church Record, with the items of birth, baptism, and confirmation; and of ordination, if they hold any office in the church. Local and traveling ministers are kindly requested to report such baptisms; also all members whom they find who are not known to be enrolled. District officers should see that all such members in their districts are placed upon record.

Please send in reports on or before March 1. If blank reporting forms are needed write a card and I will send them.

H. A. STEBBINS,

General Church Recorder.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

To the Saints in Idaho:—I have decided to call a conference of the Malad district, to be held in Malad, Idaho, March 3 and 4, 1894, and desire that we have a full report of branches and officers, either personally or by letter. All reports can be sent to me at Malad City, Idaho. We should elect a delegate to General Conference, and as there is no money in the hands of the Bishop's agent here to pay expenses of said delegate, we exhort all to respond as generously as they can with means as free will offerings for that purpose, that the burden may not fall upon the few. Bro. Henry Evans, Malad, Idaho, is our Bishop's agent, and he informs me that he has received no money for three or four years, either as free will offerings or as tithing. This is not as it should be, as we ought to be self-sustaining, and if we are not we ought not to expect General Conference to send us missionaries to labor in our midst, especially when we are able to be self-sustaining. The expenses of the mission would not be burdensome if each would do what he could, and we cannot expect to prosper unless we do all we can. Now do not wait one for another to move in this matter, but send in your mites and let us begin the new year with better prospects, and let your future missionary, whether it be your humble servant or some other one, feel that he has your hearty support in this matter.

Yours in bonds,

H. O. SMITH, Pres.

MALAD CITY, Idaho, Jan. 17, 1894.

Therefore it is necessary that district missionaries and local ministers should attend, as far as practicable, and branches should appoint and send delegates to represent them. An invitation is extended to general church officers, and ministers and members of other districts who can make it convenient to attend. Come and we will try and make you welcome.

They came to this country in 1862, settling in Kewanee. Ten children were born to this union, eight of whom are still living. About thirteen years ago his wife died, leaving him a widower for three years, when, on May 26, 1884, he was married to Mrs. Martha Wiggins, who survives him. Bro. Lamb will always be remembered as a peaceful and hard working citizen, honest in every respect, a good brother, and by his family as a kind father and loving husband. She died firm in the faith.

Farewell, dear mother, thou art gone,
But soon we too will follow on;
Watch o'er us, mother, while you wait
Our coming at the pearly gate,
And may in life our purpose be
To live beyond with God and thee.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 20.—The Minister of Foreign Affairs, acting in behalf of President Peixoto, states that the latter reports he has information that the insurgent admiral, Mello, has been deposed from his position as leader of the forces operating against the government because he failed to bring troops from the south to aid the insurgents in the bay here in making their proposed land movements.

The New York World has received advices from the Brazilian Minister of Foreign Affairs, who states that the triumph of the government is a question of but a short time. The revolt seems to be drawing to a close; the rebels have less than 800 men, and only the Aquidaban is able to pass the forts at the entrance to the harbor. "Father Joao Baptista, the guide and private secretary of the Papal Nuncio here, has issued a pamphlet for private circulation advocating the establishment of a monarchy. The pamphlet says Admiral Mello promised to restore the monarchy as well as the rights of the church under the monarchy. It is said that Admiral da Gama is beginning to consider the advisability of trying to obtain favorable terms of surrender."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—Official news has been received of the total defeat of the Honduras government forces at Choluteca, Nicaragua. General Vasquez is retreating. It is believed that the troubles in Honduras are only the beginning of what will involve all Central America.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—The financial difficulties of Prussia are treated with such frankness in the royal speech that the latter seems rather to have been intended for the Reichstag than for the Prussian Landtag, to which latter it was addressed. The finances of the individual States in their relation to those of the Empire will have to be placed on a different basis, as the Empire is becoming too costly for the separate States. The Empire, it is argued, should increase its revenues by levying new taxes and should expect less from the States directly. The Reichstag has thus far evaded this demand.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day approved the treaty between France and Siam. The Chamber approved, almost unanimously, a proposal to make a reduction in the pensions paid by the State.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 20.—Early this morning a violent wind and rainstorm, accompanied by hail and lightning, swept over this city and Oak Cliff, doing great damage to property. A cottage in this city was destroyed and a man was killed, and another was badly injured by falling timbers. About forty houses in this city were unroofed and many barns, outbuildings, and smokestacks were destroyed. The damage to property in Dallas is placed at $100,000. In Oak Cliff, the M. E. and the Christian church buildings were demolished, and eleven vacant houses wrecked.

DENISON, Tex., Jan. 20.—A small cyclone struck the town of Pottsboro, this State, early this morning. The Masonic Temple and several small buildings were destroyed. So far no loss of life is reported.

Ohio coal miners have refused to agree to a reduction in wages.

The Grand Duke George, second son of the Czar of Russia, is suffering from consumption in the Caucasus. His condition is critical.

England, Russia, and Afghanistan have agreed upon a settlement of the Pamir boundary. The State of Jakhan, which the dispute concerned, has been left to the protection of the Ameer. Russia has also settled with China its boundary dispute in the same region. It is reported that the British Secretary of Foreign Affairs has obtained China's sanction to propose to France a convention in which Siam's integrity shall be declared inviolable and shall be placed under the protection of France, Great Britain, and China.

ROME, Jan. 20.—Order has been restored in Carrara, Massa di Carrara, and the surrounding country. Valuable information has been obtained concerning the Anarchists.

ROME, Jan. 20.—There has been a persistent rumor that the Pope has sent a diplomatic note to the Nuncios for communication to European governments on the perils of the situation at Rome and the possible necessity of his Holiness having to leave the city. It is further reported there is a secret understanding that Spain shall provide an asylum for the papacy in case of need.

VIENNA, Jan. 20.—Ex-King Milan of Serbia arrived here this afternoon and is about to proceed to the Servian frontier. He will not enter Serbia until after the dissolution of the chamber. A military dictatorship in Serbia is regarded as likely. Milan and his son, King Alexander, fear the radicals will move in favor of the pretender of the old dynasty.

Dr. Talmage has resigned the pastorate of Brooklyn tabernacle.

The international Migration Society, incorporated at Birmingham, Alabama, with the object of furnishing transportation to southern negroes to Liberia, Africa, has chartered a steamer and has agents advocating the emigration. Two ship loads of emigrants have engaged passage.

VIENNA, Jan. 21.—Ex-King Milan, of Serbia, ultimately decided to proceed to Belgrade. The ministry resigned in anticipation of his arrival. He was welcomed joyfully by his son. The skuptschina will meet and decisive steps will be taken at once.

ROME, Jan. 21.—The rules of Anarchist societies have been found among the papers seized recently by the police. These rules require that all new members swear solemnly in the presence of their colleagues to labor mentally and physically to effect the triumph of the social revolution. Before the attainment of anarchic communism, however, the members must obey blindly the orders of their superiors, even at the risk of life and without respect of their dearest affections. They must recognize in advance the justice of punishing all who break their oaths to maintain the strictest secrecy.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The Chamber of Deputies Saturday approved the treaty between France and Siam. The Chamber approved, almost unanimously, a proposal to make a reduction in the pensions paid by the State.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The steamer *Nor-*mannia of the Hamburg-American Packet company, which sailed from this port on Thursday of last week for Genoa and Naples, returned to-day so severely damaged by a "tidal wave" which struck the vessel early on Sunday morning that she was rendered unseaworthy and had to put back to this port in order to secure the safety of the passengers. The damage to the ship is estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Another party of Mormon missionaries on their way to Europe is in town. There are three of them and they registered at the Cosmopolitan hotel as William Buckheld of Nephi, Utah; James Larson of Spanish Fork, Utah, and Christopher P. Thompson of Levan, Utah. All three are old men with long gray beards. Two weeks ago a party of nine sailed from New York for Europe, and these three are the rear guard of the same party. They will remain abroad for one year and will proselyte for converts in the Scandinavian countries.

BELGRADE, Jan. 23.—The proposed coalition cabinet has been abandoned and the king has charged M. Arkumovics to form a liberal ministry. It is understood that M. Arkumovics is meeting with serious obstacles in carrying out the task imposed upon him by the king.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—There will soon be a shower of Russian orders in connection with the Franco-Russian fetes and the conferring of them is only deferred until the Russian New Year's day in order to make the honor greater. Among the Frenchmen who will receive the grand cross of Newski is included M. Dupuy.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 23.—The expedition against the Abors is meeting with success. An engagement against the advancing columns of the Abors was fought on Sunday and two of the government forces were killed and twenty-one were wounded. On the other hand the Abors lost a large number of killed and wounded and the town of Dumbak was burned.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The naval estimates for 1894 will provide for the expenditures of £35,000,000. The decision to spend this amount of money in strengthening the navy is a great triumph for the Lords of the admiralty.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—An investigation into the report received from Vienna to the effect that King Alexander of Serbia had been murdered shows the story to be unfounded in fact.

A dispatch received here from Belgrade to-day says that the young king is alive and enjoying his usual good health.

BELGRADE, Jan. 22.—King Alexander of Serbia to-day summoned M. M. Cruics and Kotics, to whom he stated that he desired to retain the radicals in office if they consented to eliminate the anti-dynasts from their ranks and abandon the impeachment of the Avakumovics cabinet. The radicals refused to comply and left the king's presence.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24.—The executive committee of the Ohio coal operators, it has been learned from an authentic source, has decided to give the miners the alternative of working for fifty cents a ton or the closing of every mine in Ohio.

President Nugent of the Ohio miners' union, will call another convention of miners to pass on the ultimatum of the operators. A meeting of all operators of the State will be held soon.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 23.—After a long delay, puzzling alike to the people who continue loyal to the government and to the insurgent leaders, Peixoto has given orders to his new warships, purchased in the United States, to sail southward and begin the long-expected naval contest which in all probability will decide the struggle for supremacy between Brazil's chief magistrate and those who are seeking to overthrow him.

Word was received here to-day that the Nietheroy, America, Aurora, and Paranhyba reached Bahia to-day on their way from Pernambuco to Rio. They are reported to be fully manned and in better condition for fighting than it was supposed their officers would be able to get them, considering the fact that the crews are made up of mixed nationalities.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—The causes of the late conflicts between the police and the unemployed are attributed by the latter to attacks made upon them with the object of inciting to riot. Five meetings of the unemployed have been held in five of the electoral districts of the city and were addressed by prominent speakers. Methods of reform were discussed.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—It is now definitely announced that Prince Bismarck will arrive in Berlin at noon on Friday next. The prince will alight at the Lehrte or Hanoverian railroad station, where he will be received with great pomp. The route from there will be through the Brandenburg gate, at the west end of Unter den Linden, along the Unter den Linden to the imperial castle. Special trains will be run to Berlin on Friday and Saturday, and most of the cities of Southern Germany will be decorated for the occasion.

Berlin itself will be thoroughly decorated and brilliantly illuminated at night. The students have announced their intention of turning out en masse and windows along the route leading to the castle from the railroad depot at which the prince will alight are being hired at the highest prices. The different municipal bodies and very many of the Berlin societies are preparing to do honor to the chancellor, who, on his way to the castle, will be surrounded by military and princely pomp of the most elaborate description.

In short, the entry of Prince Bismarck into Berlin after so long an absence promises to draw immense crowds of people to this city and to be one of the most elaborate events ever witnessed in the German capital.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—It appears that Chancellor von Caprivi and Baron Marschall von Bieberstein had previously been informed of Emperor William's intention to send Col. Count von Moltke, his aid-de-camp, to Prince Bismarck with a conciliatory letter and a bottle of rare old wine and so bring about the reconciliation which followed the visit of Col. Count von Moltke to Friedrichsruhe.

At the castle preparations are being made to receive Prince Bismarck, who will be the guest of Emperor William during his stay in Berlin. It is understood the prince will cordially support the government, but anything like direct participation in government affairs is far from contemplation by any of the parties concerned.

CHIHUAHUA, Mex., Jan. 20.—For the last three days troops have been hurried into this city and there is every evidence that the government is preparing to resist a formidable force of insurgents. Officials no longer attempt to conceal their anxiety over the situation. The insurgents commanders, Santa Perez and Victor Ochoa, are showing great activity, and are reported to be within a few days' march of this city. Estimates of their strength run up from 800 to 3,000, said to be divided into three divisions. Scouting parties are constantly on the move and the aspect is one of actual war.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 22.—A special from Chihuahua signed Kettleton and Degatau says that the insurrectionists under Victor Ochoa were met near Santo Tomas by Cols. Pienado and Ortiz and routed. It is said Ochoa himself escaped, but that Lujan was killed. Santo Tomas is situated 130 miles west of the city of Chihuahua.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The admiralty authorities have completed the new ship-building plan calling for the expenditure of $35,000,000 and have placed orders for new fifty-ton guns to supersede the sixty-seven ton breech-loaders which are the principle armament of the existing battle-ships.

The new scheme of armament is based upon the principle that the next naval war will be a test of maneuvering skill and that coal endurance will play a prominent part in such tactics. As a result the new ironclads will be superior to any of the existing ships in regard to coal capacity, thus rendering them independent of coaling stations at a critical moment.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Brazilian revolutionists are reported to have made important gains at Moncague Island and Paranagua and to have received a large amount of supplies and some reinforcements. There is no confirmation of the report that the presence of five United States warships in this harbor is due to the proposal by the United States to interfere in the present quarrel. No such proposal has as yet been made either to the government or to the insurgents.

The epidemic of yellow fever in Rio city is increasing in violence.

After an absence of four years Prince Bismarck returned to Berlin on Friday, January 26, as the guest of Emperor William, who received him with every demonstration of affection. The people of the German capital and large delegations from other cities joined in displaying their satisfaction at his return. The Prince dined with the Emperor and Empress, received calls from German kings and diplomats, and returned to Friedrichsruhe, his home, in the evening. The reconciliation between the Emperor and Bismarck is complete.

The National Board of Trade, in session at Washington, adopted a recommendation in relation to a subsidy by the United States Government of $75,000,000 in support of the Nicaraguan canal.

It is stated that practically all of the 110,000 Chinese in this country are registering, under the Geary law.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Independence, Missouri, District.—In consequence of the demand made upon the church to provide for the families of the elders who are laboring in the field, and also the worthy poor Saints among us that need help in these distressing times, I will receive, at Independence, tithes, offerings, and donations in products of all kinds, also live stock, as well as money.

We are commanded by the Lord, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."—Mal. 3: 10.

If the Saints will do as the Lord has commanded, we will see that there is a storehouse provided, and the Lord will perform his part of the promised blessing.

R. MAY, Bishop's agent,
Independence, Missouri.

VOICE OF WARNING AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL PEOPLE;

OR AN INTRODUCTION TO THE FAITH AND DOCTRINE OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

This work in its graphic review of the prophecies and history of God's dealings with his people in past ages, together with the abundant proofs concerning the work of the latter days, the gathering and restoration of Israel to their ancient home in Palestine, is a book for the times. The author presents the prophetic evidences of the restoration of the gospel in "the dispensation of the fullness of times," showing the evidences in favor of a restoration of primitive Christianity and the organization of the apostolic church with its apostleship and priesthood—its authority—its powers and gifts. This publication has always been a favorite one among inquirers for the truth. 150 pages.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE, WITH INTRODUCTION BY ELDER W. W. BLAIR.

A book in which is traced the intimate connection between the history of Protestantism and the founding of the Government of the United States with the event of the restored Gospel; interwoven with which is a tender story from a real life, telling of the efforts of one to find the Kingdom of God, its object being to trace God in modern history, and to show that his dealings with men are as clearly discernible now as in ancient times.

OUR EDUCATED WOMEN.

DURING the last week a new and notable departure has been made by Harvard University in abolishing its "annex" as a separate institution and in accepting it, under the name of Radcliffe College, as a part of the university itself. Hereafter, therefore, women who successfully have completed the Radcliffe College course will be granted the Harvard degree instead of merely the somewhat empty honor of a "certificate." This fact, that the oldest and, as a whole, the best equipped and most distinguished university in the land now largely is thrown open to women, calls attention to a revolution in society which is perhaps the most significant change that is passing over the country. Less than thirty years ago Vassar led the way in offering a full college course to women students; Wellesley, Smith, and Bryn Mawr followed the example, each taking on special features while the opening of most of the leading universities of the West to women as well as men has resulted in making the higher education of women not only an accomplished fact but the legitimate ambition and aim of nearly every bright young woman in the country.

The question arises—What are all these educated women to do? Time enough now has elapsed since the first "sweet girl-graduates" startled the proprietors with their novel accomplishments to discover the actual results and tendencies of these new factors in the modern social order. At the first glance the answer to the question appears to be that large numbers of women are prepared for careers as teachers, editors, doctors, lawyers, ministers, and other positions that have opened in our complex civilization. While this is true, a closer examination of the situation and of statistics reveals the fact that much the larger proportion choose "career," but are absorbed again into their own homes, or are engaged in the formation of other homes of their own, which become centers of culture in the communities where they live. Thus they are elevating the standard of life throughout the country. This is the sphere in which the higher education of women is to be felt most widely and practically.

This may seem a small outcome for a large amount of special study, but it has a closer relation to our American development than commonly is supposed. In the early years of the present century, when cities were smaller, business and professional life less exacting, and distractions and excitements fewer, we read much of the delightful features of life in country towns, especially in New England. Social life in these localities was led and controlled by refined and intelligent women. Many men, leaders in thought and public affairs to-day, bearing testimony as to their "formative influences," have traced much of their achievement to the homes which were inspired by the well-rounded culture of these women, their mothers and sisters. But the great cities have absorbed the small towns, and with the process these delightful centers of choice and refined existence largely have disappeared. If the best influences are again to be brought to bear upon family and neighborhood life one of our chief hopes rests on the infusion of the women graduates from our colleges into general society. Society and the home are as important fields for the exercise of woman's intelligence as the lectureship or the professorial chair, and women who feel within them a passion for doing great things here will find ample scope for proving their powers.

The arguments of the opponents of the higher education of women have changed completely within a generation. First, it was declared to be indelicate, if not immoral, for a woman to desire to go to college; next, that she was mentally incompetent; then that she was physically inadequate. All of these theories in turn having been refuted by the logic of actual facts, a new bugbear was seen in the anticipation that it would destroy a woman's prospect of marriage and unfit her for social life. But this, too, must go. The larger number of college graduates prefer a home to a career. They carry into these homes and into the social circle their larger views of life and things. It is here, although but little noted at present, that the influence of women of the new order is likely to be most helpful and powerful.—Ex.

THE MIDWINTER ARENA.

The February Arena is another mammoth number of the great progressive Review, it contains 164 pages and filled with able papers, covering a wide range of topics of special interest to wide awake thinkers and earnest reformers. The opening paper will interest all lovers of Robert Browning's poetry, as well as persons who appreciate broad but profound religious thought. It is from the pen of Rev. M. J. Savage, and is entitled "Religious Thought in Browning's Poetry." A fine portrait of the poet forms the frontispiece of this issue. "The Relation of the Land Question to Other Reforms," by J. H. Bellangee is a thoughtful paper in The Arena series on the Land Question. "The New Bible," by Washington Gladden, D. D., is a very valuable contribution to the literature of Higher Criticism. A feature of this number is a profusely illustrated Symposium on "Rational Dress for Women," by a number of eminent American women. Dr. Heinrich Hensoldt's series of papers on "Indian Occultism" grows more and more absorbingly interesting with each issue.

In this number the German scientist occupies twenty pages recounting wonderful phenomena which he witnessed in India during his ten years sojourn in that far East. A very interesting, practical paper is from the pen of Rev. Hiram Vrooman of Baltimore, on "The Organization of the Moral Forces." It is in the line of a movement the Arena has originated and is pushing, to awaken the conscience of the people and unite moral workers for practical progress. Congressman Davis discusses "Honest and Dishonest Money." The fascinating series of philosophical papers by Stinson Jarvis on "The Ascent of Life" is continued. The editor contributes two striking editorials; the first is entitled "They Have fallen into the Wine-Press, or Illustrations of the Onward March of Uninvited Poverty;" the second is a strong argument against medical monopoly. Among the eminent thinkers who review the Books of the Day in this issue of the Arena are, Rev. M. J. Savage, Helen Campbell, Rabbi Solomon Schindler, Rev. Samuel D. Fuller, Elbert Hubbard, and the Editor. The publishers announce that the Arena will henceforth be enlarged to 144 pages instead of 128 as heretofore. This will make it the largest monthly Review published.

MYSTERIOUS GROWTH OF THE MUSHROOM.

One of the popular mysteries of fungoid vegetable growths is the development of the mushroom. Question the average Missouri farmer on this point and he will tell you that "mushrooms never have seeds," and that they "spring up in a single night." The "springing up" part is all right as far as the fungi's above ground development is concerned, but as a matter of fact the mushroom lies for days, and in dry times for weeks, just under the surface, fully developed, waiting for a warm, damp night in order to properly make his debut in open air. Then, too, they have seeds (spores), and not a few of them either, some species exhibiting as many as 10,000,000 in a single agaric, which develops on the under side of the fungus.—St. Louis Republic.

LAMONI, IOWA, FEBRUARY 7, 1894.

TRUTH—THOUGH TARDY.

By the kindness of a brother, who handed us a copy of the Iowa State Register for January 26, we clip from its Notes and Queries column this good bit of history in questions and answers:—

MORMONS, "LATTER DAY SAINTS," ETC.

VERONA, Michigan.—Please answer in Sunday Register:—

1. Was Joseph Smith, the Mormon leader, really a prophet?
2. Was he at any time convicted of a crime?
3. Is there any difference between the sects calling themselves "Latter Day Saints" in Utah and those who go under the same name and have their headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa?
4. Have the Latter Day Saints of Lamoni a special permit or any extraordinary authority from the United States government, in other words, any special privileges which other churches do not enjoy?

WEST.

Ans.—1. He claimed that gift, and made some predictions, which were startlingly fulfilled years afterward.

2. He was arrested between fifty and seventy-five times, once under the charge of "murder, treason, burglary, arson, and larceny," but was never, to the best of my knowledge, convicted of any of these crimes. He was in jail at Carthage, Illinois, at the time of his assassination.

3. The main difference between the "Latter Day Saints" of Utah and those of Iowa is that the latter never practiced polygamy. The Iowa branch is under the leadership of a son of "Joseph the Prophet," and is known as "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints."

It is a source of congratulation to the believers in the latter-day work that there is a marked growth in sentiment toward granting to the true Saints the due meed of commendation for the correctness of their acts as citizens of the United States. And when one of the leading journals of the State of Iowa states plainly to its readers such facts as are set forth in the foregoing answers, thus giving people to know that the misstatements of prejudice and partisan hate are poor things from which to judge of a religious body, it is showing a laudable spirit of fairness to which Latter Day Saints were for many a year strangers.

The State Register might have said with equal truthfulness that though Joseph Smith was in jail at Carthage, Illinois, at the time of his assassination, he was there as a precautionary measure to avoid threatened personal violence, upon the advice of the Governor, Thomas Ford, under the pledge of that chief executive officer, that he should be accorded a fair trial and be protected from unlawful violence; and with the acknowledgment of some of the very men that murdered him that "the law would not touch him; but powder and ball would." However, we are pleased to record so generous a statement of the real facts and give the Register proper credit.

TESTIMONY OF UNCLE WILLIAM B. SMITH.

IN a letter from Bro. J. W. Peterson to Zion's Ensign, and published in the issue of that paper for January 13, occurs the following, as being a part of an interview between Bro. E. C. Briggs, himself, and Uncle William B. Smith:—

Bro. Briggs then asked, "Did any others of the family see them?"

"Yes," said he, "Father and my Brother Samuel saw them as I did while in the frock. So did Hyrum and others of the family."

"Was this frock one that Joseph took with him especially to wrap the plates in?"

"No, it was his every day frock such as young men used to wear then."

"Didn't you want to remove the cloth and see the bare plates?" said Bro. B.

"No," he replied, "for father had just asked if he might not be permitted to do so, and Joseph, putting his hand on them said, 'No; I am instructed not to show them to anyone. If I do, I will transgress and lose them again.' Besides we did not care to have him break the commandment and suffer as he did before."

"Did you not doubt Joseph's testimony sometimes?" said Bro. Briggs.

"No," was the reply. "We all had the most implicit confidence in what he said. He was a truthful boy. Father and mother believed him, why should not the children? I suppose if he had told crooked stories about other things we might have doubted his word about the plates, but Joseph was a truthful boy. That father and mother believed his report and suffered persecution for that belief shows that he was truthful. No sir, we never doubted his word for one minute."

This statement has the appearance to some, as we have been told, of being in conflict with the testimony of Samuel H. Smith, who with seven others testified that they saw and handled the plates and saw the engravings on them, as their testimony is given in the Book of Mormon, published in 1829 and subsequently.

A moment's reflection, however, will show that Uncle William does not propose to make a statement for Samuel; but merely to say that while the plates were in the possession of his Brother Joseph, himself and other members of the family, Samuel included, were cognizant of the fact, and saw the packet as it lay on the table or stand and were satisfied without meddling themselves over curiously about the plates or their general appearance.

Emma, the wife of the prophet, made a similar statement in regard to the plates as this of Uncle William; that she saw them in the sack or wrapping in which they were kept; that she moved them from place to place on the small table on which they lay in her room while sweeping and dusting and making the room tidy; that she felt of them through the cloth and thumbed them as one does the leaves of a book at times; that they felt hard and smooth to the touch, and rustled like sheets of thin metal would; that she might have examined them more closely than she did, had she so desired; but being satisfied that her husband had the plates she had no desire to meddle with them, and no curiosity to uncover them for any close or critical examination.

The statement of Uncle William corroborates the one made by the wife of the prophet; and does not in any sense conflict with, discredit, or affect the testimony of Samuel and the rest of the witnesses to the Book of Mormon.

FAITH'S TESTIMONY.

THERE is, perhaps, no principle of the doctrine of Christ, except love, to which so wide a range of service has been appointed as faith, and there is no gift in the enumeration of the apostle in his Corinthian letter which is more important, yet less appreciated in its silent functions than faith. Baptism, the laying on of hands, the resurrection, and the righteousness of final judgment find ready advocates and defenders everywhere among us, and we carefully recount the special features connected with the office work and design of each; but the most of us content ourselves with a very brief dissertation upon faith, either as a first principle operating without, or a gift from God operating within the body of Christ.

It may be that the necessity of faith unto salvation being admitted almost universally, has led many of us to conclude that a discussion of its office work in our preaching to the world is unnecessary, and therefore we have failed to post ourselves as thoroughly in regard to its revelation and possibilities as upon other principles which are being controverted frequently; but it may also be that a degree of misunderstanding and unnecessary apprehension is entailed upon those who wait upon our ministry, by our neglect. We offer this as a suggestion, however, not as a complaint, and present a few thoughts in illustration.

He who builds wisely, labors with a view, not only to present returns, but to permanent results. The preacher who hopes only to baptize and lay his hands on those to whom he declares the word, does not fully represent the gospel object—the sanctification of the believer, the honor of the church, and the glory of God. If a failure in these points is chargeable to neglect on the part of the instructor he has proven himself an unwise builder. He who declares only that our gospel heritage is spiritual gifts here and celestial glory hereafter, as a result of receiving the Holy Spirit ought to be shown that Christ committed a wider trust than this. Paul wrote:—

For unto you it is given in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake.—Phil. 1: 29.

It may be that such notification, if served upon our hearers, would result in less baptisms; but the church is not honored by baptisms alone. If faith as exercised is always looking to receive, and only to receive, the character must fail of that superior good to which the Savior referred when he said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Faith is not seen in its divinest colors when receiving; but rather when enduring.

Elijah figures in history as a man of wonderful faith, because of the immediate and visible results of its exercise by him; but Job towers up before the mind as an illustration of the faith that works unseen and sanctifies the soul. The one brings around him the evidences of divine power that gratify the eye and delight the ambition; the other bends to undesirable reverses and losses that heaven has permitted. The one is found fretting and complaining because of adverse and threatening conditions and is only revived by fresh manifestations of miraculous energy, the other honors God by humble acquiescence in the divine arrangement, and, Christlike, drinks the cup of bitterness, saying, "Though he slay me yet will I trust him."

In Hebrews, eleventh chapter, the apostle mentions those "Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens. Women received their dead raised to life again." All these are doubtless desirable acquisitions of faith and with such a glowing record before us, it is perhaps no wonder that we grow enthusiastic when declaring that the signs shall follow them that believe and that faith is indispensable. It is but meet that we shall congratulate our brethren and sisters and praise God when similiar good testifies to the great faith of Saints to-day; but what shall be said of those who "were tortured, not accepting deliverance," and of those who "had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea moreover of bonds and imprisonments. They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain of the sword, they wandered about in sheepskins and goatskins, being destitute, afflicted, tormented; (of whom the world was not worthy:) they wandered in deserts and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth"?

Shall we conclude that these loved life, liberty, and home less than the others? Shall we decide that because they were left to become lions' food, to be burned to death, to be sawn asunder, to wander about destitute, afflicted, and tormented that they were therefore in less favor with God, or exercised less of faith in him than did the others? The apostle says of them,

"These all, having obtained a good report through faith received not the promise, God having provided some better thing for them, through their suffering, for without suffering they could not be made perfect."—(I. T.)

If it was a divine provision, did their faith shine less brilliantly in the midst of the tortures endured than did that of Moses or Elijah or Daniel or the three Hebrew children in securing deliverance therefrom? Is it not a comparatively easy matter to trust God when he answers every call and meets every demand? Is it not much harder to abide in faith when prayers go unanswered and there is but little upon which the human eye can rest to indicate that heaven is interested in us? We believe that Paul's faith in God was as great and as acceptable when he was receiving the "forty stripes save one" and when he remained a prisoner at Rome, as when he and Silas were liberated from prison by an earthquake. Paul wrote to the Thessalonians:—

We ourselves glory in you in the churches of God, for your patience and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations that ye endure.—2 Thess. 1: 4.

We have listened with interest sometimes to the testimony of Saints, who feared they were very unworthy because no spiritual gift had been conferred upon them as upon others. This self-condemnation resulted from a lack of understanding in many instances, and that defect in understanding was partly traceable to the teaching they had had. So much stress had been laid upon the necessity for visible gifts or open manifestations, that the importance of such invisible and silent ones as wisdom, faith, and knowledge, had not been recognized by the hearer. They had somehow been impressed with the thought that faith, as a divine gift, could only be manifested in what was openly received by its possessor. We have felt, on such occasions, like telling the sad ones that the object of all Christian experience, divinely appointed, is the making of character, and that the character which can endure the most for the sake of right and God, reveals most clearly the possession of the gift of faith and comes nearest the one that said, "Not my will but thine be done." Faith, as the gift of God, is manifested in human life within the church, in a willingness and ability to endure, regardless of environments, as well as in securing divine interposition and deliverance from trouble. It is seen in him who takes God at his word and stands as an anvil under the stroke, or as the iron which passes between the smiting hammer and the enduring anvil. While it may not be able to reason always as to the necessity or fitness of each stroke, it nevertheless accepts the process as divine and endures it meekly, hoping for a glorious outcome. We have sometimes thought that more of faith was discernible there than elsewhere.

We have seen faith at work, healing the sick, restoring the maimed, and preserving the property of Saints, and we have joined heartily in the chorus of praise that followed and in the smiles of delight. We have also seen its operation in those standing over the coffin of dear ones for whose lives they had earnestly prayed; we have read its lines in the hearts of others whose property had been destroyed by the ruthless tempest, and we have joined in the tearful voicing of resignation that followed. To us faith glistened in the teardrop that moistened the eye of the one at least as clearly as it shone in the smile that lit up the face of the other. We have taken comfort also from the words that tell of those who "come out of great tribulation," being "before the throne," from whose eyes the Lord "shall wipe away all tears."

Let us tell of the triumphs of enduring faith, of the sanctification that is wrought by disappointment, and denial, and suffering, and death, as well as of the miraculous demonstrations that are possible to the believer. Let us proclaim that the higher services of faith are performed in the Gethsemanes and Calvaries of life, and let the Saints know that a meek endurance of affliction and trial contributes as much to the glory of God, the stability of the church, and the sanctification of individual character as does the voice of prophecy or the miracle of healing. We do not say preach less of the latter; but we do say forget not the former when outlining the office work of faith as a gift from heaven. Faith is the incentive to all righteous service, it underlies success everywhere, it operates to secure every other gift, and yet has qualities peculiarly its own, by which it brings holiness to man and glory to God. Let us teach men as did Paul that "we walk by faith not by sight."

THE BLESSING AND USE OF OIL.

THERE is no rule of written law known to us directing what kind of oil shall be used in administering to the sick, or in blessing those who desire it at the hands of the ministry to whom this rite is made a privilege or a duty; or how, when, or why the oil should be set apart, consecrated, or blessed by the elders. It has become a custom in the church that the olive oil of commerce, commonly called sweet oil, is the proper oil to be used. We presume this comes from a consideration of the fact that the oil of the olive is a product indigenous to the land of Palestine, where it was used as a food, a medicine, and an anointment; presumably used in the rites of the church in that land from time out of mind.

It is traditional that the oil should be taken before the elders, and either before the church in a meeting assembled, or in the privacy of a room aside from noise and confusion, and by the elders solemnly and devoutly consecrated by offering to God and prayer and set apart to right and holy uses. It is not said how it shall be done, and may be by kneeling down, or standing uncovered in the presence of the church, or each other, holding the vessel containing the oil in the hands of those engaging in the rite. It is also said, traditionally, that the vessel holding the oil shall be unstopped, the cork or stopper being removed from the vessel during consecration.

The same kind of rule says that the best quality of olive oil to be had should be procured and used in the ordinance of administering to the sick and the rite of blessing; and that when once blessed, or consecrated, oil should not be used for any other purposes except those for which it was set apart.

All this is legendary, or the result and teaching of custom; but it is well said that "custom makes law;" and so far as there is any necessity for a rule of law to govern in the case the things which are not in contravention of direct written law, prescribed by long continued custom may be safely followed.

A good quality of oil made from the fruit of the olive tree will keep sweet and free from becoming rancid and sour for some time, if it is kept in a cool, dark place. But if the bottle, or vessel containing it is allowed to stand in a heated room, and exposed to the action of heat and light, the oil will become thick, fatty, and rancid, totally unfit to use, especially in the case of nervous and sensitive people. We have in the course of our ministry among the Saints during the past thirty years, used oil that had become so fat and rancid by reason of having been kept in an improper place, exposed to heat and light, the cork gone and the bottle open, that the rank, coarse scent of it stayed in our nostrils for many hours—the perfume of it was not like that which Moses poured on Aaron's head which "ran o'er his robes and down his beard its holy perfume shed."

A bill prohibiting the selling or giving of tobacco to a minor under sixteen years of age has been introduced in the Iowa Legislature. This effort to take higher ground through legislative enactment is a gratifying and hopeful indication. It might be well, however, to include the prohibition of the sale of tobacco to adults in the bill and protect some men from a perverted taste who will not otherwise protect themselves, and thus also protect others from the influence and effects of their example. We hope to see the day when men will do away with the tobacco traffic and its evil results by quitting the use of the "filthy weed," except as indicated in the Word of Wisdom.

"Anger, grief, rage, affect the bile, the saliva, and all the secretions, seriously affecting health of body and mind."—Trall.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"If any little word of mine
Can make some life the bright,
If any little song of mine
May make some heart the lighter,
God help me speak that little word,
And take the song I'm singing
And bear it to some lonely dale
To set the echoes ringing;
Echoes that thrill in joyous tone,
To some one comfort bringing."

OUR last Home Column was so crowded with other matter as to prevent our saying anything more in reference to the subjects mentioned in the previous issue; namely, our Birth Offering Volumes and Christmas Offerings. We said that these were both intended to be helpful in teaching and training your children in the gospel principles. The first is intended to produce a fund to be used by the church in furnishing the little children with reading matter—pure, simple, and filled with the principles of the gospel. The second is intended to teach them the blessedness of giving and the claims Christ has upon them to help in spreading the gospel. Children as you all know need both teaching and training and behind the child is generally found the mother. By this we mean that the child who with patience and success from week to week labors to earn an offering, as well as the one who denies himself and puts away his pennies and nickles for the same purpose, needs to be encouraged from time to time in his well doing. Who so fitted to do this as the mother? Think of it sisters—think of it now, before the spring time comes, and have your plans laid and then patiently, persistently, and carefully help your children carry them out. No one who has read the Christmas letters in the Hope this year can have failed to notice many touching incidents. For instance: One little girl writes how pain and sickness has debarred her from earning an offering. A few weeks passed and from a distant State comes an offering for her sent by two little girls who gladly worked to earn it. A sister writes that the death of her husband leaving her the care of a large family—the youngest born after his death—prevents her from sending an offering. This goes upon its way and soon a noble little fellow sends money he earned on purpose as an offering for the fatherless babe.

Sisters, can you afford to neglect helping to train your children in this way? It is not a good plan to wait until the last moment and then give them money which they have not earned, because they want to see their name in the Blue Hope with the rest, but make your plans and work to them.

Can you afford either to leave your little ones without mental and spiritual food? Think if just twenty-five cents were sent to the Hope to swell the Birth Offering fund, every time God sends a little one to your home, how many suitable books could be published by the church for them. Think of it and remember that we are not asking this of you if you are not able to afford it, but if you are able then we ask you to think of it.

Another matter demands your serious and immediate attention. It came to us this morning with great force when writing to introduce Sr. Ella J. Green to the little ones as editor of the fourth page of the Hope, in place of Sr. Anna Stedman, who has been compelled to give up the care of it. It is this: Many of you could write to help this department, but none of you do—no, not one. Here again let us not be understood as asking of anyone that which they are not capable of doing. It is a rare gift to be able to write in a way to instruct and interest little children. All cannot do it, but there are those in the church who can and it is to such we appeal to help Sr. Ella in her labor of love. Think of it! Make it a matter of prayer and remember God never gave a talent to be wrapped in a napkin. Here, now, and in his cause is the place and time to use it.

HELPING HAND.

SYNOPSIS OF READING, CHAPTER TEN.

HINTS ON CHILD-TRAINING.

TRAINING A CHILD TO SELF-CONTROL.

AT birth there begins in every person a struggle between himself and the powers that go to make up his individuality; and this struggle continues while this life lasts. On the result of this struggle depends the character of him who struggles. The result of the battle will be to him either bondage or mastery, defeat or triumph, failure or success, and, in truth, the issue of the lifelong struggle is ordinarily settled in childhood.

A child trained to self-control—as a child may be—is already a true man in his fitness for many self-mastery. A man who was not so trained in his childhood, is hopelessly a child in his combat with himself; and he has lost forever the vantage ground which childhood might have given him, in the battle which then began and still continues. In the child's early struggles help can easiest be given to him; and then it is that such help is of most worth for his own development of character. At that time a child does not know his need as he is sure to do in later years; therefore it rests with the parents to decide while he is still a child, whether he shall be a slave to himself or a master of himself.

A child's first struggle with himself ought to be in an effort not to give full play to his lungs and his muscles at the prompting of his nerves. The nerves making themselves felt, prompt a child to cry, to thrash his arms, to kick and to twist, at the slightest provocation, or at none. Acting in accordance with this prompting the child will exhaust himself, and increase his discomfort by the very means of showing it. It is possible for a child to control himself in this at an age when he is yet unable to talk or to understand what is said to him. If a parent realizes that a child must be induced to control himself, and seeks in loving firmness to cause the child to realize that same truth, the child will feel the parent's convictions, and will yield to it, even though he cannot comprehend his parent's words. The way to help a child will be found by the parent who wills to help him. To leave a child to himself in these earliest struggles is to put him at a sad disadvantage in his future combats with self; while to help him at this time is to give him help for all that are to follow.

As soon as a child can understand what is said to him, he should be taught and trained to control his impulse to cry and writhe under physical pain. When any accident befalls a child by which he is hurt, even though but slightly, it is natural for him to shriek with pain and fright and just as natural for his tender-hearted mother not to want to blame him just then for making such display of his grief. But even at such a time the mother has an unmistakable duty of helping her child to gain a measure of control over himself, so as to repress his cries and to moderate his show of disturbed feeling. A child can exercise self-control under such circumstances. His mother can enable him to do so; and it is better for both child and mother that he should have her help. From lack of such help, many a child is a sufferer through life because he is unable to control himself under physical pain. Because he was not trained to control his nerves, he is hopelessly controlled by his nerves.

Coaxing and rewarding a child into quiet is not what is needed; but it is that he should be encouraged into an intelligent control of himself. It is only choosing one of two evils to pay a child with candy to keep him from a noisy indulgence of feeling. The unwise way of inducing children to seem to have control over themselves is well illustrated in the story of the little fellow who threw himself on the floor kicking and yelling, and then cried out, "Grandma, I want to be pacified. Where are your sugar plums?"

Dr. Bushnell, protesting against coaxing a child out of a state of irritation, or a fit of ill-nature, by "dainties that please the taste," says: "It must be a very dull child that will not cry and fret a great deal when it is so pleasantly rewarded." It will soon learn to play ill-nature for the gratification of the sense of taste. "By what means can the great themes of God and religion get hold of a soul that has learned to be governed only by rewards of sensation, paid to affectations of grief and deliberate actings of ill-nature?"

A child should be trained in the habit of making his self-control, which he has gained, available to him in his lifelong struggle with himself. "I keep under my body and bring it into subjection," says the Apostle Paul, as if recognizing the fact that a man's battle with his body is a vital conflict, all his life through. Every child needs his parents' help in gaining control over his body, instead of allowing his body to gain the control of him. The appetites and passions and impellings of the outer man are continually striving for the mastery over the inner man; and unless one is trained to master these instead of being mastered by them, he is sure to fail in his life-struggle.

A parent ought to help his child to refrain from laughing, from crying, or from speaking when he ought not to do these things; from eating what he ought not to eat, even though the food be before him; from moving about when he ought to be quiet, to be ready to say and do just what he ought to do, even though his natural feelings prompt him to do otherwise. Self-control in all these things is possible to a child. Wise training by the parents can secure it. By self-control a child is made happier, and is fitted for his duties, both while he is a child and ever after, as otherwise he could not be. Many a man's life is saddened through hopeless lack of self-control, to which his parents could easily have helped him in childhood, if only they had understood his needs, and been faithful accordingly. COMMENTS ON SYNOPSIS.

WITH little children it is necessary to use caution when seeking to apply the principle set forth in this chapter, lest that which is intended as a help be only a punishment without benefit resulting from it.

That it is of the utmost importance to every human being to gain control over self, we cannot deny; and the earlier a child can be helped to gain this control the better it is; but good judgment is certainly needed in order to find the way in which this help can be given.

It is not often that a baby will cry unless it is sick or in discomfort from some cause. The natural outlet for pain is in crying or moaning, and it is said not to be good either for body or mind to repress these entirely when such conditions exist. Mr. Trumbull does not advise that a child's crying be checked entirely, but that he be helped to control the impulse to give full play to his lungs and muscles.

To give this help requires not a harsh, stern way which seeks to obtain silence by commanding, or by inflicting punishment, but on the other hand it needs loving tenderness, combined with firmness, which will soothe while it leads the child to endure patiently.

There are two extremes manifested by parents when their children would give way to unhappy feelings, and neither of them are good.

One parent, when a child begins to cry, from whatever cause, whether from being punished or from fright, from disappointment or from any accident which has caused him pain, will say, "Now, hush! hush! Don't let me hear you cry;" and the child is forced, contrary to nature, to crush back the exhibition of pain and distress, and he feels wronged, as in truth he is, because deprived of this natural means of relief. If there be any ill-nature behind the show of feeling, such treatment is sure to strengthen it; and a succession of such experiences cannot but have a hardening effect.

There are some parents who go to this extreme through lack of sympathy, but there are others who may make the same mistake because they believe that they ought to train a child to self-control and they think that this is the way in which to do it, then having made up their minds that it is necessary, they will not allow sympathy to stand in the way of doing what conscience demands of them.

The other extreme seems no better. The parent commences with a child when a baby, to show great sympathy for him at every little thing which disturbs his comfort. If he pricks his finger or bumps his head, every one must stop and hear how the poor baby is hurt. Every little injury is made the most of, and the dear little fellow sometimes cries out afresh on hearing expressions of sympathy, when by that time he might almost have forgotten that he had been hurt.

It goes on and his tender-hearted, sympathizing parent dreads to see him hurt in mind or in body. Anyone who hurts or troubles him is "bad," and anything on which he hurts himself is "naughty." "Whip the naughty old chair," or some like expression, is common enough for all to recognize. He gives full expression to his annoyance or pain, without chiding or advice to show him any better way.

Such a course will result, before his childhood is half over, in making him selfish and disagreeable, unhappy himself, and lacking sympathy in his noisy demonstrations of grief, from everyone except, perhaps, the parent who by unwise indulgence has brought him to this condition.

Avoiding either of these extremes, there are parents who, while they do not fail to show sympathy for their children, still, in a cheerful way, lead them to endure bravely and patiently the little ills that come to them, and to have such self-control as not to allow their feelings to hinder them from doing and bearing whatever it is right that they should do and bear.

The same man has also founded an asylum for destitute colored boys. His name is Thomie Lafon. "Alone and unaided Mr. Lafon has done this," said the Archbishop, "and in the name of God, of charity, and of the population I thank him for his generous gift."

GALIEN, Mich., Jan. 23.

Editors Herald:—In a recent issue of the Herald I noticed the announcement that a resolution would be brought before the Decatur district conference at its February meeting which provides for the election of the Superintendent of the district Sunday school association by the district conference, and the election of the superintendent of the local Sunday schools by the branches where the schools are located.

The only reason that I have for offering any comment upon this resolution is that it strikes a heavy blow at and will, if adopted, be the means of destroying one of the leading educational features of Sunday school work.

The Sunday school was instituted that the children might receive a more complete education; that their characters might be more thoroughly rounded out; that their mental and spiritual natures might be developed side by side. No child is prepared to meet successfully the varied influences of life unless he is thoroughly acquainted with the laws of God, and has the spirit of honor, justice, and truth, thoroughly implanted in his heart; neither is he prepared to overcome improper influences when he meets them if he is allowed to grow from childhood to manhood having never been permitted to assume or feel the true sense of responsibility during the growing years of his life.

I look upon children as being more than mere machines to be moved here and there at the will or pleasure of stronger minds, or placed under such conditions that they act more as machines than living, active individualities. Let those environments be thrown around the young that will tend to develop true manhood and true womanhood, and not destroy the very elements of true development by taking away what little interest and responsibility they already have in the selection of their presiding officers.

Children who attend Sunday school should feel that they have a voice in the selection of their superintendent, and should feel that they stand responsible for their vote and acts in all the business transactions of the school. Let them feel that they are an integral part of the school and that upon them rests the duty of assisting in the selection of suitable officers, capable of performing the full requirements of the offices. Children also grow to manhood under such influences, and early acquire the habit of studying character, and will soon be able to determine upon the fitness of individuals to act in the various places in their schools. If this is true,—and I firmly believe it is,—it certainly is better that the children should feel these responsibilities rather than to realize that some one is acting for them in all of these various capacities, and that they need not even think upon them. That, to my mind, is the true idea of education.

So far as I am able to learn the Sunday schools throughout the church are reaping splendid results under the present system. The rules governing Sunday schools require that superintendents of all schools shall be members of the church in good standing. Why is this not a sufficient safeguard against frauds? The church and the interest of the truth is surely protected, and the necessities of the case do not demand any such action as that proposed.

I heartily indorse the thought advanced that every member of the church should show an active interest in the proper instruction of the young; and, the tendency of the work is in that direction. Let us continue to work in the line of a broad, religious advancement, so that the young may reap of the benefits and learn to know that it is to our heavenly Father that they must answer for every act in this life. Thus they will develop into grand characters of true manhood fully prepared to weigh and decide upon questions of importance when they have them to meet.

MALAD, Idaho, Jan. 23.

Editors Herald:—Since writing from Albion I have visited the towns of Marion, Oakley, and Malta; preaching in each place to quite large audiences. At Oakley I spoke in the "Mormon" church to the largest audience I have had in the West, nearly all of them were Mormons. Unfortunately, as is usually the case, I could not get the use of their church but once; so I moved my stakes to Marion, a distance of about five miles.

I see in the Herald of a few weeks ago, a partial report of Delegate Rawlins' speech in Washington, and some very queer statements are made in regard to the abandonment of polygamy by the people here; that is, they sound queer to one who has been laboring here. In the first place, that doctrine is upheld and defended just as tenaciously to-day as it ever was, by old and young. While I was in Salt Lake City last winter I happened into Scott Anderson's office, and in conversation with several of the "elders" who happened there also, polygamy was brought into the discussion—and, you cannot avoid it; if you do not spring the question they will. I denounced it as an infamous doctrine, when one old white-haired man looked at me in astonishment and exclaimed, "I would not dare do what you have done; I should be afraid that God would strike me dead." In a lengthy conversation with another prominent elder in Ogden this fall, every argument advanced by him was in support of that doctrine. And so in the last-named place where I spoke: I spoke upon the succession, advocating the claims of "Young Joseph," and I did not make a ripple of excitement, but in my second speech I incidentally mentioned, or rather I read from the Book of Mormon God's denunciation of the doctrine, and such a storm of indignation as was raised is hard to describe. And so I find it everywhere I go: if you try to avoid mentioning it you will be forced into it.

The thought presented by Mr. Rawlin's that the feeling of the young was against and that the rising generations were not in favor of it, is contrary to my experience, as the most ardent defenders of the doctrine I have met have been the young men, and sometimes young women; but not many of them defend it. This is perfectly natural, especially among the offspring of polygamous families: if they admit that polygamy is wrong, both by the laws of God and man, they repudiate their own birth; so they will not give it up without a struggle. They may obey the laws of the land so far as their outward actions are concerned, but you cannot force their belief upon the subject. So I have concluded that in my future dealings with them I will content myself with a plain statement of our case and let them draw their own conclusions, so far as I can do so.

After preaching at Malta I returned to Ogden for the holidays and then to this place, and have work laid out for six weeks that will keep me busy almost every night. Since coming here I have been blessed above my expectations in speaking, although my congregations have not been as large as I could wish; this caused largely by the inclemency of the weather, snow having fallen almost every day since I came. Sleighing is fine, but few take advantage of it to come to meeting. I can remember when I was a boy that we considered it a pleasure to take a sleigh ride of five or ten miles to attend meeting but there is no energy in religious matters here: if it happens to come handy people go to meeting; if it does not, they do not go. I had hoped to start a Sunday school here, but the outlook is not very favorable.

I wish the young people in the East could know what effect dancing has had upon the young in this western country; I think it would need no resolutions of conference or sermons preached against it, as they could readily see the evils of the practice, and would at once, if they valued their future,—and not only future, but present welfare,—cancel it from their list of pleasures. Last spring one lady in Castle Valley was very much taken up with my preaching, and was a bitter opponent to polygamy and the Utah Church, but one day she asked me if we countenanced dancing. I told her we did not make it a test of fellowship, but discouraged it as a practice having a tendency to lead the mind from the true spirit of the gospel. From that time she began to oppose me, and began to search the Scriptures to prove that the Utah Church was right, and attempted to defend polygamy; preferring to have even that right than admit that dancing was wrong. There are about three dances per week, at least, and frequently more. They have dances upon every occasion. The following is a copy of a card I picked up in Ogden last year:—

Sunday school benefit. Grand Picnic and Ball. First ward meetinghouse, Friday eve, July 29, 1892; admission 25 cents. Admit one.

Bro. Derry wrote me when I first came to this mission that his experience in Utah had sickened his heart, and that it would sadden mine. Truer words were never uttered, and I think sometimes that I wish God had made me different.

Methinks the happy are those, whose hearts are too strong to feel a pang of regret for the woes that fate and misfortune reveal.

And yet I would not be different: every experience in life makes me less of a condemner and more of a sympathizer with my fellow man; and I trust that I may, by the prayers of myself and my brethren for me, become as Paul says in 2 Timothy 2:24-26: "And the servant of the Lord must not strive; but be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient, in meekness instructing those that oppose themselves; if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth; and that they may recover themselves out of the snare of the devil, who are taken captive by him at his will."

With prayers for Zion's weal, I am yours,
H. O. SMITH.

FULTON, Iowa, Jan. 17.

Editors Herald:—With a heavy heart we write these lines to the Herald, for on yesterday we were called to pay the last tribute of respect to our beloved brother, John W. Sutton, who died on the 15th. He was a noble young man, respected by all who knew him, as was manifested by the hundreds who attended the funeral; some, not relatives, coming as far as thirty miles. He was baptized six years ago by the writer. He had been teacher of the Fulton branch ever since it was organized. He lived a consistent life, and was ever ready to defend the faith. He died a firm believer in Christ and the restored gospel. With his last breath he spoke in an audible voice and delivered a prophecy, admonishing those present to not fail, etc., and then his last breath was, "Lord into thy hands I commit my spirit;" and his soul had fled, leaving his countenance shining, and a pleasant smile on his lips. O, may we all so live that we may have the blessed assurance that he had!

The writer preached the funeral sermon from 2 Corinthians 5:1, 2; John 11:25; Hebrews 9:27, 28, to a large concourse of very attentive listeners. I tried to show the mercies of a just God, in that he will reward every one according to the deeds done in the body, and that he is no respecter of persons. I tried to abolish the one heaven theory in the minds of the hearers. Bro. Sutton's wife died three months and fifteen days before him. They left one child, a girl, a little over three years old, who is now living with her grandparents, Bro. and Sr. Ed Trimble, of Lamoni. May our Father comfort the bereaved ones.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 27.

Editors Herald:—I have just made a tour through the Far West district, over which Bro. T. W. Chatburn presides. I find he has done noble work in his field, and has endeared himself to the Saints generally, everywhere I have been. They say they "want Chatburn sent back here next year." He seems to be a "rustler," although he always seems willing to "prefer his brethren," and let them do the preaching; yet he wants it done all the same. And one commendable feature in him is the absence of jealousy; he does not seem to be afflicted with the terrible evil. The Saints generally are satisfied that tithes and offerings as held and presented now is as much a duty as any other part of the gospel, and many of them consider it a great privilege to have the opportunity to help in this substantial way while others do the preaching, and all then work together in that way to "promulgate the gospel and fulfill the law." (D. C. 114.)

I hope all Saints everywhere may awake to a sense of duty as the Saints of this district have now, and then the Master would abundantly bless us, and the work would move rapidly. I pray God to bless every effort put forth by his people to advance the interests of the kingdom.

In the faith, and at work,
G. H. HILLIARD.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 15.

Editors Herald:—The Saints of this place have indeed had a time of rejoicing during the past few weeks. Elders Fred A. Smith, D. M. Rudd, and J. W. Morgan were here and spoke for us several times. Elder Columbus Scott was with us two weeks and held a series of meetings. Services were well attended by the branch, but although the meetings were advertised, not a great number of outsiders came. Bro. Scott had excellent liberty and spoke with power, awakening great interest in the minds of his hearers. Nor could the able sermons of the above-mentioned elders fail to be appreciated. The people were just beginning to recover themselves from their undue caution and attend the meetings, when calls from other fields took our laborers from us. I believe I am correct in making the statement that all the Saints have been encouraged and strengthened by the efforts of the elders and aroused to a better realization of the responsibility resting upon them.

For some time there has been a cloud overhanging the branch, but it is now beginning to break, and with God at the helm we are certain of steering clear of the shoals. What we need now is a good, energetic elder to take charge of the work. Several persons are near the kingdom and, in fact, admit the truth of the work; but for some reason they delay obedience. How earnestly the Saints should strive to keep the commandments of God and let their light shine before the world that their garments may be clean from their blood.

I was talking with a Presbyterian minister yesterday, and in the course of the conversation he made the following statement: "People who are ignorant of your teachings are prejudiced on account of the name Mormon and because of the stigma brought upon the church by the polygamous faction. What you teach is all right; I have no fault to find with that." He requested me to loan him a copy of the Book of Mormon as soon as the protracted meetings he is now holding are over, but not until then, as his time is now limited on account of ministerial duties.

I am a girl of eighteen, and attend high school. I try to let my light shine among my schoolmates, but many times I long for the society of the Saints. The only time I am privileged to meet with them is on Sunday, as most of them live on the east side of the river, and none of the young people attend school in West Des Moines. I seize every opportunity to present to my schoolmates the principles of the restored gospel; but I fear not much is accomplished by my efforts, as their minds are apparently occupied with things of the world and there is seemingly no room for thoughts of that dear Son of God who bled and died for them. Some of them say they want to enjoy themselves while they are young, and when they are older "turn good." One once made the remark, "I don't want to be old and prim now; I shall not join the church till I'm forty." She was a dear good girl, but gay and thoughtless. Three months had not passed e'er that blithe young heart was stilled and that slender girlish form lay cold and motionless beneath the sod. O, that the young could only know the peace and joy afforded by the presence of the Holy Spirit! No longer would they cling to the pleasures of the world. What can give more true happiness than to bask in the sunlight of God's love? And what is more blessed than the approval of our heavenly Father?

I would not give my knowledge of the truth and the precious blessings received in return for all the fame and riches that earth can afford. It is ever my desire to live humble and faithful before the Lord, praying unceasingly, that I may be the means of bringing others into the fold to the end that they may gain eternal life, and that God's holy name may be glorified.

Your sister in Christ,
O. F. HIATT.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 20.

Editors Herald:—I never was stronger in the latter-day work than at present. I trust I may hold out faithful to the end. The mission year thus far has been one of unusual blessings from the Master's hand in preaching the word and administering in the ordinances of the gospel. This is the experience of all the brethren in this mission. The outlook in Minnesota for our work is splendid; the greatest need is more men, as there is a demand for preaching on every hand. Every year adds noble people who are desirous of spreading the truth, which naturally gives the ministerial work greater territory.

Bro. E. C. Briggs gave this part of his charge a call, which did much good. He gave the Saints and others the word of life in a way that will be like bread cast upon the waters. I was not permitted to meet him while here.

After an absence of over six months from loved ones at home I returned for rest and spend Christmas. I preached for the Saints at Netawaka while with them. I think they are a good band of Saints, striving to build up the kingdom of God. I had the pleasure of uniting in marriage Sr. Daisy May Munns and Mr. George L. Williams, of Kansas City, Missouri. Sr. Daisy is a daughter of Bro. and Sr. D. Munns. I also united Miss Addie Parker and Mr. Harlo Sunnen, both of Netawaka. Miss Addie is a daughter of Bro. and Sr. H. Parker.

Bro. T. J. Martin, of Detroit, Minnesota, has given us some good ministerial work in the city of Minneapolis of late, which we are thankful for. Bro. E. A. Stedman and I are holding meetings this week with good interest, in the Saints' hall in the city. We are billed for Hutchinson, McLeod county, the coming week. My last letter from home said that two of the babes were sick with lagrippe. I trust all will be right soon.

Yours truly,
J. ARTHUR DAVIS.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Jan. 23.

Editors Herald:—After a long silence I wish to write a few words of testimony to the work. I know it to be true; that it is the power of God unto salvation to all who believe: by obedience to the gospel I have received the promised testimony of Jesus Christ; and this testimony is based upon the word and the Spirit of God. I have received evidences of the divinity of the work by the manifestations of the Spirit in the outward gifts, as many of my brethren and sisters know; in the gift of healing and the casting out of evil spirits by the power of God. I know all this and much more that I might state.

I will relate something that took place in my house in St. Clair county, Illinois, in 1869; and I am sure I was not mistaken: I was in my bed awake, when a light brighter than the noonday sun came into my room, when there appeared a man in bright raiment; and his body was white. I shook hands with him and he spoke to me very plainly; I understood all he said. I was passing through a severe trial at the time and he told me what to do, and that I should come out all right. He also told me that if faithful I should be saved in the kingdom of God. Many other things he told me that I have proved to be true, therefore I know them for myself. I did as he directed me in my trouble, and came out all right.

I have been told that the religion of the Latter Day Saints would do to live by, but would not answer to die by. I have been put to the test in this; for here let me say that I went to St. Joseph's Hospital January 3, 1893, and on the sixth had an operation performed that brought me near to death. While lying in that condition the Catholic sister who waited on me plead with me to become a Catholic, telling me that I must die; that all that could be done had been done for me, and that I could live but a few hours; that my family had been sent for and that what I had to say I must say it soon. She repeatedly urged me to renounce my faith, but I told her my faith had been good to live by forty years and that I would die in it. She urged me to permit her to send for a priest, but I said no; that I had a record to meet in the future as a Latter Day Saint, and that I was not troubled about meeting my God. She said she never saw anyone so firm as I so near death.

I knew that I was very low, but God knew my heart as I lay in that low state. I lay there until the 28th, when they took my limb off at the knee joint; and I was again told that I could not live. But I knew who was behind me, and that the dear Saints were fasting and praying for me. One dear brother came to the hospital, and the sister told him she did not think I would live till the next morning. I was very low, and I did not see much to live for at that time, as my dear wife fell and broke her right arm. But notwithstanding all this I trusted in God.

I thank the dear Saints of Armstrong, Kansas City, and Independence branches for their kindness to me and mine in all our troubles; also all who have helped us. I am not well yet but am mending, but very slowly indeed; and I am hoping for the best. As the good Lord has spared my life, it must be for some good purpose; and now, dear brethren, whatever the Lord or the church has for me to do I want to do it. I shall be ready and on hand just as soon as able. I trust that will not be long.

If any wish to write me my address is, No. 514 Cornell avenue.

With love to all, your brother,
GEORGE HICKLIN.

APPLEDORE, Ont., Jan. 13.

Editors Herald:—As we peruse the pages of the Herald and Autumn Leaves, we are cheered by the thought that there are many who are not weary in well-doing, and are willing to suffer being wronged rather than to do wrong. We find that a Saint has to be always on his watchguard, and prayerful, to do the duties which fall to his lot; for we find the adversary is ever on the watch to overthrow the good we desire to accomplish, but by the assisting grace of God let us not turn from doing good, but press on to win the prize which we started out for. Ever wishing the good of all,
Your sister,

MARY M. GREEN.

ALPHA, Oklahoma, Jan. 21.

Editors Herald:—In compliance with the promise in my last letter I will write again and give a little more of my experience in Oklahoma. Some time since, while in the eastern part of Cleveland county, filling appointments in a certain schoolhouse, I had an invitation to hold one of my meetings at a Methodist arbor meeting. One of my appointments and one of theirs came at the same hour, and to avoid dividing the congregation they invited me to preach at the arbor. At the time the invitation was given the preacher did not fully understand what church I represented, but learned it after the invitation had been given.

When Bro. Worthington and I made our appearance near the arbor at the time of meeting, the preacher met us, saying that he would like to have a word or two with us. He led us away off down into the woods, about a quarter of a mile, looking back every few minutes, I suppose to see if anyone was following us. I imagined we looked as if we had a bottle of "Paddy's eyewater" concealed down there, or else were going to steal a sheep or pig. After getting at what he judged a safe distance he took us behind a clump of small trees and sitting down in the tall grass made the announcement that he had heard we were Latter Day Saints, or what is called Mormons. I told him he had heard correctly. He then wanted to know what I was going to preach, saying that he would not like anything said that would divide the people. I read him our Epitome of Faith, telling him I would adhere strictly to that. Although he said he could not indorse it all, I could plainly see that it afforded him great relief. He told me kindly that I could have the stand, which of course, I was happy to have, and in all my life's experience I don't think I ever had greater liberty of speech than at this time. Many were the "amens" and "thank Gods" that dropped as it were, unconsciously, not only from the lips of the congregation, but those of the preacher also. This little occurrence let the way to another invitation to preach on the next Sunday—the dedicatory sermon of a new Union church that had just been built about 3 miles from the arbor mentioned above, which invitation I gladly accepted and complied with.

When I hear and behold the many foolish and ridiculous sayings and actions had among men in the name of religion, I often wonder that every reasonable and sensible person does not turn infidel. Man, naturally, must be a worshiping being, or else he would. I have often seen actions performed in religious meetings which if they had been performed in the saloon, the ballroom, or anywhere else save in a religious meeting, would have subjected the performers to arrest, fine, and imprisonment; or they would have been adjudged insane and sent to the lunatic asylum; yet the generality of mankind will stand and look on and think it all right.

At the arbor meetings mentioned, and near the close of the series, I heard a certain lady cry at the utmost limit of her voice for at least fifteen minutes these words: "Glory and honor, ran salvation through the blood of the Lamb." I presume she intended to say, "Glory and honor and salvation;" but being uttered at the top of her voice, and so rapidly, it sounded just as I have written it above. There were many, otherwise sensible people looking on and seeing the silly and ridiculous actions of the one repeating the words for at least forty times, yet they never thought of questioning the divinity of the source from whence the influencing power emanated.

At the same meeting an old man some seventy-five years of age, who had lost his last tooth and whose lips had fallen down so that he could scarcely talk intelligibly, becoming greatly moved by the power actuating the lady, quickly arose and repeatedly announced that he "felt shad in his heart" for the willful sinner who would not come to the anxious seat and get pardon for his misdeeds. He meant that he felt sad in his heart; but he was so wildly excited and his mouth so clearly out of talking order, it sounded just as I have written it. Now the effect of all such bedlamic harangues upon the truly sensible person is expressed in the words of a young man who was looking on at the time, "How did the old simpleton know whether it was 'shad' or some other kind of fish he felt in his heart?" The same young fellow wondered gravely if "Glory and honor had caught salvation," as the lady repeatedly announced they ran it "through the blood of the Lamb." But so goes the world, and we must do the best we can with it.

The Apostle Paul advises us to "mark those who cause divisions." I would like to put an addition to this advice by saying, Mark those who speak ill of God's people. If we will do this, I am satisfied we will find them, as the saying goes, "No better than they should be." In fact I know we will find them to be the worst class of people we have in the community. They may conceal their depravity of heart for awhile, but sooner or later it will work to the surface in some form or other. For the sake of illustration, I will refer to a case or two in hand which has come under my observation. A certain "divine" (?) of the Hardshell persuasion, operating east of Snyder, Oklahoma, has been telling all manner of falsehoods and stories about the Saints in that vicinity, prejudicing the minds of the people by telling them that the Saints are a very bad people, and warning all to have nothing to do with them. Some time since this model divine (?) and another one of the same fossilized faith were conducting a series of meetings in that neighborhood,—and while the second one was preaching at one of their meetings telling of the mysteries of God's decrees and the truths of predestination, how,—

God in misty ages past

With matchless love divine,

Had through the human family thrust
A fixed dividing line, this "traducer of the brethren" sat in the pulpit with him and smoked an old tar-colored pipe during the entire sermon! I know another "traducer" of this kind who spits amber and blows his nose (without a handkerchief) over the pulpit. But I must close else you may not believe if I write it all.

More anon,

THOMAS J. SMITH.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Jan. 25.

Editors Herald:—It is now seven months since I left historic Kirtland for my new mission field, Council Bluffs, during which time I have had ample opportunity to decide as to the wisdom of my coming West. I left the East with reluctance, because it was there I had labored for four years; I had grown up with the work and was acquainted with many of the particular needs of the mission, and I had learned to love the little bands of Saints, scattered over Ohio's "hills and dales;" and to cut asunder all these connections and, almost without warning, be called upon to go into a new field and among strangers, caused a pang of regret to vibrate my being; yet seven months' experience has familiarized me to a certain extent with the needs of the work here, and I have also learned that I can treasure the association of Saints wherever found. While I shall ever remember the Eastern Saints, there are many in Council Bluffs, who will always retain a fond place on memory's pages, and my association with them will be recalled with pleasure.

The membership here are not any more exacting than that of other branches. Having heard so many of the ablest representatives of the faith has had the tendency of making critics of some when one preaches contrary to what they have before heard, but if a man preaches demonstrable truths and not theories, and is willing to sail close to shore rather than steer his craft into the open sea of conjecture and uncertainty, he has nothing to fear. I would much prefer to address an audience who were so critical that they would canvass every thought presented, than a class of people who accepted everything without question, or who were not interested enough to know what was said. Proper criticism denotes interest. When one preaches a good sermon they have the honor to tell you, and if a poor one they have the prudence to come to you direct, or else say nothing about it.

A man can do little or much here in the city, as elsewhere; but one who is alive to the interests of the work can have the opportunity of preaching every night in the year, if he can stand it, with an additional sermon each Sunday morning and, counting funeral sermons, will thus be permitted to speak some four hundred and fifty to five hundred times per year. If he is a conversationalist he can always secure a number of listeners to whom he can dispense gospel truths. If a good counselor he has an unlimited field for operations in visiting, encouraging, and instructing the Saints.

Council Bluffs can well be proud of her young people, for here as elsewhere they are becoming the backbone of the church in activity and earnestness. We have a flourishing society of over forty members, and all seemed imbued with a desire to learn. So interesting have our sessions become that the aged attend. The Sunday services are quite well attended; the week service not so well. I have found quite a field in which to proselyte.

We conducted a series of tent meetings in September, the local brethren rendering good assistance. Brn. Charles Derry and M. P. Madison lent valuable aid for three evenings. Bro. Dodson and I conducted a week's meetings in Crescent City after the October reunion. In November I held meetings about five miles out of the city, also at the home of Bro. Liles, in the southern part of town. There was quite an interest, and some were convinced. We have now rented the Overton Mission church in the west end of the city for a month. So far the attendance is good and interest constantly increasing. I have frequently been called to points in Iowa and Nebraska to conduct funeral services. Last week I preached the funeral sermon of Sr. White, of Tekamah, Nebraska, and Mr. White writes that there is much interest and a desire on the part of many for more preaching. It would be well for the Nebraska brethren to follow up this opening. If any of the brethren are passing through our city we would be pleased to have them stop and deliver a few sermons.

I think the article by Oscar L. Ferguson in Herald of December 9, entitled, "Is the food wholesome?" should elicit the contributions of those who are qualified in a literary way so that the Hope may fully be a church paper. But what can our Sr. Walker do unless such assistance is rendered? Simply select the best she can get, as she has hitherto done. Such sisters as Etta M. Izatt, of St. Louis, Fannie Jones of Webster, Nebraska, and Emma Burton, of California, are well capacitated to write entertaining as well as instructive articles for the Hope. Sr. Izatt says: "The world needs mothering." If so, do not the lambs need the first attention? Do not neglect this for some less urgent work!

Yours in the gospel,

T. W. WILLIAMS.

MEMOIRS.—NO. 18.

BY W. W. BLAIR.

ON May 4, 1877, I finished the pamphlet Joseph the Seer in reply to Elder William Sheldon, and at once started for St. Louis where, and at West Belleville, Illinois, and their vicinities, I devoted much time in the ministry. On the 11th inst. met Bro. and Sr. William Clow, from London, Ontario, at Bro. William Anderson's, St. Louis. He related to me, in detail, the marvelous manifestation that himself and many others witnessed upon the baptismal occasion near London, Ontario, when a body of heavenly light encompassed them while Bro. John J. Cornish administered the ordinance of baptism.

Returning home June 4 after a prosperous mission, labored in Northern Illinois and Southern Michigan; attended conference near Coldwater the 10th inst., after which I proceeded on to Chatham, Ontario, via Detroit, and attended district conference at Blenheim on the 16th and 17th insts. Had a very profitable session, though indications at the start led us to think it would be a troublous one. On the 24th inst. assisted in the dedication of their new chapel.

Reached London on the 28th and was delighted to learn of the manner in which the Lord had planted and confirmed his work in that place and raised up able men and women to advance its interests. While in London I formed the acquaintance of many worthy brothers and sisters and found them in the enjoyment of the Holy Spirit and its gifts in a large degree. While there Bro. William Newton was called to the eldership and Bro. R. May to the office of priest. I next visited the Saints at Bothwell and was the guest of Bro. and Sr. Arthur Leverton. Here I labored for a short time with success. Bro. Norman L. Blakely was called and ordained to the office of an elder. Went thence to the Lindsley branch, near Chatham. Bro. and Sr. John Traxler received me with true Christian cordiality and I remained with them during my stay in the branch. Discord and division had nearly destroyed the work at that place, yet the chief part of the membership professed unyielding faith in the restored gospel, but some were headstrong and lacked charity and self-denial.

On the 23d of July left for home. The railway operatives throughout the land, generally, were supposed to be thoroughly organized and intending to enter upon a "strike" at once. Passing through Michigan at night, it was feared our train might be laid up at any station. I reached home on the 24th by good fortune, for by this time the strike had become universal in nearly all parts of the country. On the 30th of August learned by the newspapers that Brigham Young died the day before.

Sunday, September 2, assisted in the dedication of our new chapel at Sandwich. President Joseph Smith preached at 10:30 a. m., the writer at three p. m., and Bro. Zenas H. Gurley at 7:30 p. m.; congregations large and interest excellent throughout.

Wednesday the 5th inst. went to Kewanee. While there Bro. Robert Holt related his conversion and baptism into the Reorganized Church. He had formerly united with the church in Manchester, England; had presided over both branch and district, emigrated to Utah, going over the plains with his family in the hand-cart company; had suffered everything but death on that trip, and on reaching Salt Lake City and seeing and hearing the rank apostasy of Brigham Young and his followers, he was so disappointed and pained at heart that he wished he had died on the plains. Bewildered, saddened, and filled with doubtings, he rejected all forms of religion, became an infidel, and leaving Utah he first settled in Omaha, afterwards in Kewanee, but would have nothing to do with religion in any way. He prosecuted the boot and shoe business successfully in the latter place and won many friends. He was frequently invited to attend the meetings of the Saints, especially when some prominent ministers were holding services there, but always declined. By and by, at times, he would feel his heart melt to great tenderness, and his mind would be drawn to the subject of religion and his former joyful experiences in the faith in England. And then a measure of the same divine power he once knew and confessed was the Spirit of God would move his soul to draw near to God by prayer and to attend the meetings of the Saints. Sometimes this constraint was so powerful as to cause him to weep, and to cry out for joy, and to fill his heart with praise to God. Soon after these experiences began he mentioned the matter to his wife, who received the news with gladness, for she had long desired the communion and fellowship of the Saints, and so at his suggestion they went to the Saints' chapel to attend service. The first sermon he heard was to him "meat in due season" and its words "fitly spoken;" for it seemed to him that all of them were just suited to his case. He wept, and rejoiced in spirit, to the close of the exercises, and then hastened to request admission into the church and to enter anew upon the happy service of our blessed Lord.

After he and his wife united with the church they learned that, in the times when his heart was so drawn to the Lord and melted by the Holy Spirit, a noble band of sisters who had covenanted to make special prayer for them had, at stated times, besought the Lord fervently for their conversion and to draw them to fellowship with the Church of Christ. Here is an added lesson on prayer that should profit and encourage the Saints to do as Paul says:—

In everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known into God.

And as James says:—

And pray one for another that ye may be healed.

Bro. Holt and his faithful wife lived and died triumphing in the faith of Christ as set forth in the restored gospel and ministered by the Reorganized Church.

In the month of September the Board of Removal appointed to locate the business center of the church decided that Decatur county, Iowa, was the most eligible region in which to locate, and so reported to the ensuing semi-annual conference. Much of my time was devoted in the active ministry in various parts of Iowa and in Northern and Central Illinois.

After the death of Brigham Young, August 29, there was a great deal of speculation as to who would be his successor in the leadership of the Utah Mormon Church, and it was very generally conceded that it would be Brigham Young, Jr., or John W. Young, for it was understood that Brigham for some time before, had been craftily advancing one or both of these sons in that direction. When traveling with Bishop I. L. Rogers to Western Iowa, from September 14 to 20 we discussed the matter frequently and concluded that one of these two sons of Brigham would, without doubt, be chosen his successor. But in a peculiar night vision I was shown that Brigham would not have a successor from among his sons. In this vision I was made aware by common report that a notorious character, whose reputation was almost of world-wide notoriety, had suddenly died, and I knew I had some general acquaintance with the man and his history. By a sudden transition in the vision I was carried away and placed in a standing position by the side of his coffin, in a rather desolate, mountainous region. His coffin was plainly made, and was apparently of walnut. As I looked upon it it suddenly became transparent as the air, and I then saw it contained the dead Brigham Young in a state of absolute nakedness, and on his breast lay a man child just as naked and dead as himself, and a voice out of heaven, in a distinct, deliberate way, said to me, "That man died with cholera morbus." There had been various reports abroad as to what disease caused President Young's death.

I was given to know that the man child referred to Brigham's authority and that it died—terminated—with him. His nakedness and that of the man child I understood to signify unrighteousness in the sight of God. The next day I remarked to Bro. Rogers that Brigham Young's sons would not succeed him in the leadership of the Utah Mormon Church, and gave my reasons.

The Semi-annual Conference convened in Galland's Grove, Iowa, September 20, 1877. The session was largely attended and proved to be an excellent one. A question was sprung in conference as to relative authority in districts, and the matter was referred by vote to the presiding officer, Joseph Smith, and that with its answer is embraced in the following, copied from the Herald, page 312, volume 24:—

The question which was referred to the presiding officer, respecting the paramount authority in case of conflict between a member of the Quorum of the Twelve and local presiding officers, in those districts where the Twelve may be traveling, is answered as follows:—

In cases where the question upon which difference arises is of a general nature, affecting the church only in a general way, or in general assemblies of the church, the highest authority should be accorded the right of decision. In cases where the matter is of local, district, or branch character, local authority must be respected. We believe that no right of interference in local organized branches, or districts, accrues to any general officer of the church by virtue of his calling; and that all matters affecting those organizations deemed to be wrong, must be righted by traveling authority through proper church councils, conferences, or united quorum action. Traveling officers, discovering wrongs in organized districts should set these in order by calling the councils provided for in the law.

When in Harlan, October 10, attending a prayer meeting at Bro. Jonas Chatburn's, Bro. John H. Lake through the gifts of tongues and interpretation declared that men would rise up in the church, seeking to draw away disciples after them; but that no power raised against the church would prosper. This was very notable and timely, as was proved by subsequent events. Bro. Lake also said to me at the same time, that I would "write much for the church."

The Utah Mormon conference in October, placed its twelve apostles, John Taylor being president, at the head of that church, and the sons of Brigham Young were placed in subordinate positions and have retrograded in church affairs from then till now.

During the month of March, 1878, I held a series of profitable meetings in Mission and Pecatonica.

Annual Conference for this year convened April 6, at Plano. Spent the chief part of the month in auditing the books of the Herald Office, and attending councils of the church in regard to missions. During the month of May, preached the word in Northern Illinois and Michigan. June 1, President Joseph Smith and I attended district conference in the Coldwater branch, Michigan. Here baptized, on the 2d inst., Sarah Ellen Cosper and Levi, her husband. She claimed that in a dream it was made manifest to her many months before that I should baptize her. After consultation with Brn. Joseph Smith and Z. H. Gurley, I decided to publish a paper in the interest of the Rocky Mountain mission, Z. H. Gurley to be assistant editor, and on the first of July number one of volume one of the Saints' Advocate was issued from the Herald Office. This proved to be a very busy summer, my time being devoted in the interests of the literary affairs of the church, also in matters pertaining to the First Presidency, and in preaching the word as time and opportunity made it practicable.

About this time much was being said and written favoring the appointment of a man for Governor of Utah who should belong to the Reorganized Church. President Joseph Smith and myself were consulted in regard to this, and while we had some strong objections to anyone among our membership being named for that position, we nevertheless suggested to the inquiries made that Bro. Phineas Cadwell would make an excellent man for that office.

I spent considerable time during the month of August preaching the word in Maquoketa, Blue Cut, Iron Hill, and Canton, where there were a number of additions made to the church. Bro. Edward Larkey related to me the trying experiences through which himself and many Saints passed when they were mobbed out of Jackson county, Missouri, in November, 1833, and described in detail the wonderful display in the heavens when the stars seemed falling during the night the fleeing Saints were encamped upon the bleak prairies. This brother had long been a resident of Jackson county, Iowa, and was honored as one of its best citizens. He looked back upon his experiences with the Latter Day Saints in Missouri and elsewhere with much satisfaction, notwithstanding the bitter persecutions through which they passed. I spent some time profitably in Davenport and Buffalo, Iowa, also in Rock Island, Illinois, and then labored in Southern and Western Iowa until the meeting of conference, September 7, in Galland's Grove. The session closed on the 15th inst. after a very profitable and cheerful time. On the fourth day of the session Elder J. W. Briggs gave unmistakable evidence of his disbelief in some of the cardinal doctrines of the church. I was not at all surprised at this, for developments had been occurring from time to time in the past that plainly pointed in that direction.

The Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin district conference convened in the Mission branch, October 5. W. W. Blair was chosen president and Joseph Smith clerk. The former was continued president of the district. I labored chiefly in the Mission branch up to the 22d of October. On the 13th inst. Elder Thomas Hougas baptized fifteen, and on the 20th I baptized eleven more—twenty-six in all. We were greatly blessed in our services during this series of meetings and the Lord gave the increase. The night of the 21st inst. in a vision I saw myself in Utah; saw what appeared to be a museum on the outside of which there were many curious, singular things to attract people to go in. I perceived that I was on a straight road which led on directly before me. I then saw a very peculiar building into which I turned to my left, thinking I could keep my reckoning and get out safely again upon the straight road. But upon entering I soon found myself lost, confused, and bewildered, and so wandered from place to place, and from room to room, till at length, resolved to escape, I forced my way out and immediately entered again upon the plain, straight highway. I then found in my possession a large sack of sound, beautiful wheat which I was anxious to have distributed throughout Utah as seed and food for the people. Some of the wheat was old, though sound and good. I struggled to convey the sack, which was full to overflowing, and yet it did not contain all that I desired to distribute. The scene changed quickly and I found myself in an omnibus with Brigham Young and some anti-Mormons. The latter secretly, knowing who Brigham was, were making disparaging remarks about him, directly and indirectly, and in this way his character was being presented in a very unfavorable manner. Near him sat a lady, intellectual, stern, and of commanding presence, a veritable, living Goddess of Liberty. Turning to Brigham she said with authority, "Show your hand, sir!" Brigham complied at once, and she, after examining it critically, said to him, "I fully believe all that has been reported about you, and more." Brigham, then, to gain favor and grace of those present, boasted much of work done in Utah. Upon this, a man dressed in semi-official attire, riding on a black horse and following us, shouted out toward the east, the west, the north, and in all directions, against the lechery and numerous evils of Brigham Young. I then was shown that the Utah people were absorbed chiefly in temporal, worldly things. In due time I was given to understand that this manifestation related to affairs in Utah—to the bewildering endowments, my coming labors in that region, the searching, official inquiries into the peculiarities of Brighamism by Federal authority, the national condemnation that would be visited upon them, the world-wide publicity that would be given to Brighamite affairs, and the fact that the Utah Mormons would lapse into a great degree of worldly-mindedness, spiritual stupor, and heedlessness.

EXPERIENCE AND TESTIMONY OF JOHN J. M'KEOWN.

WRITTEN BY HIMSELF.

(Concluded from last number.)

SOMETIMES I thought I could serve God and follow the teaching of Jesus Christ without joining any church; then again, I would think of Joseph Smith, how God had answered his prayer. I told my wife that I wanted to join the Church of Christ. She told me to make inquiry in regard to the Latter Day Saint doctrine; to talk with some of the officials. I told her I would not, as I could not believe in it; except it were proved to me from above that it was the Church of God I could not join it. In my devotions I still besought the Lord to make known to me what church I should join.

On the night of the 29th, or five days after I heard the voice of God, I retired to rest for the night and I dreamed a dream: I thought I was standing outside looking at the works of God in the heavens, with my arms folded. Presently, a small space opened, and out of that small space there came in quick succession, edifices, mansions, and buildings until they formed a beautiful city above me. The splendor of that city, as it hung between the heavens and the earth, I cannot describe. The color of the mansions was like gold. Looking at it, suspended above the earth, I noticed I could see no sun shining, but there was great brightness and splendor. The brightness of it I cannot describe; it looked magnificent, and was beyond all description. As I stood looking at these hidden mysteries that came out of the heavens a thought came to me like a flash: "You see these hidden mysteries that you look at, you see them now; and the hidden mysteries that came out of the ground were the works of your God."

I looked around me to the right and found that I was standing on ground, raised like as if it were on a hill, and in a valley I could see hundreds of people looking at the things I saw. I lifted up my hands and proclaimed God's greatness, and they acknowledged the truth with me. I turned round and looked to my left, and saw hundreds of people looking at the same things. I noticed that they acted differently; wherever there was a building or a shelter for them in which to secrete themselves they did so; they would hide and peep out from behind these places; in fact, they hid themselves behind anything they could find and acted as if they did not want to acknowledge them. I noticed all these things in regard to them. I could see that the people on my right were God's people, and saw as I did, and acknowledged the truth with me; and the people on my left saw as we saw but did not want to acknowledge it.

In the morning I told my wife of this beautiful dream. She said, "John, you are called into the Latter Day Saint Church." I told her I could never be a Latter Day Saint; I could not believe in it; that I had heard all about Joseph Smith, and from what I had read and heard I reached the determination not to have anything to do with them. "But still," I said, "I have no reason to doubt that God answered Joseph Smith's prayer, for I know that he has answered mine; but still, I cannot believe as he believes." A terrible struggle was going on within me; I did not want to acknowledge the latter-day work.

I went into my shop to be alone; I walked up and down it; my feelings were terrible; I cannot describe how I felt. It was pointed out to me from my conscience to join the Latter Day Saint Church. O, I did not want to do that, and I thought I could not! But still I was willing to be led by God's Spirit. I went to God in prayer, and said, "O God, if the Latter Day Saint doctrine is the doctrine of Jesus Christ; and if I have got to join it, O God, send me a sign so that I will know that it comes from your hands!" Instantly the sign came to me: As I was seated looking at the door, my eyes closed, and outside of that door and shop I could see my son's casket, the same casket that was put in the ground, pass by the door without help of anyone's hands, slowly, with moderate motion. I was satisfied in regard to the doctrine. A few minutes after that Elder Joseph Lakeman came into my shop. I told him to baptize me the next day, as it would be Sunday, for I had received all the evidence from above that was needful. The terrible struggle that had been going on within me left me as soon as I made up my mind to be baptized.

Now, my dream was fulfilled when I was baptized; the people that acknowledged the truth on my right hand were the Saints waiting to bid me welcome; those on my left were people that I could see across the creek. They saw me kneel in prayer on the wet sand, with Elder Joseph Lakeman; and they heard me as I stood at the edge of the water utter a short prayer to God, stating that God had made known to me that this work was true; that I had taken an oath at one time to my wife that if ever I joined the Latter Day Saint Church I hoped that God would sever my right arm from my body, but that I said so in ignorance and when I was blind to the truth.

I noticed that those on the left were quite restless and did not want to acknowledge the truth. Then when I was buried beneath the water in baptism I will never forget as long as I live the feeling I had when I came out of the water. I know I was accepted above. And now I can say with Paul:—

I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith, etc.—Rom. 1: 16, 17.

A short time after my baptism it was made known to me that I was in the Church of Christ; and I am determined to serve God with all my mind, might, and strength as a Latter Day Saint.

Jesus says:—

If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, etc.—John 7: 17.

Yes, I can lift up my eyes to the heavens above and say in the presence of God that this work is true, it is of God; for if this church was not of God I could not be a member. In this church we can understand the gospel of Christ as it was taught by him on earth, when he took on himself the nature of man nearly nineteen hundred years ago. Now there is nothing that will make me break the promise I made to God. I know that I am weak, and face to face with all kinds of temptations, I can see them now, but I could not see them in the past. But in an instant I remember the promise I made on my knees to God, and I put my trust in him to help me.

James says:—

Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the Devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God and he will draw nigh to you. . . . Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord and he shall lift you up.

Jesus Christ says:—

And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

When the veil was lifted from my eyes, when God revealed himself to me I was compelled to tell the people what he had done for me. I stood up before the people in the Congregational church and told them my experience.

I told them that God was just the same to-day as he was in the days of old. He says (Mal. 3: 6), "I am the Lord, I change not;" so that it must be the people that have changed and not God.

Why, the people thought it so strange to hear me say that God had revealed himself to me that they said the death of my son had made me crazy, had deranged my mind and made me insane. But I soon demonstrated that I was not crazy, that I was not insane; but that I had been brought to a realization of my state, "That God is no respecter of persons," and as Paul says:—

And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us: for in him we live, and move, and have our being etc.—Acts 17: 26-28.

Paul also says:—

Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.—1 Cor. 2: 9, 10, 14.

For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift; and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame.—Heb. 6: 4-6.

Now God in his goodness and wisdom has let me taste of that heavenly gift; and when I look back and think of my past life and of what a sinner I have been, it makes me say with Peter:—

Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.—Acts 10: 34, 35.

O, how prompt the Lord was to pour out blessing after blessing spiritually upon me after I acknowledged him with an honest heart, after I was willing to be led by his Holy Spirit; after I complied with the laws of adoption, after I became a member of the Church of Jesus Christ!

It was made known to me by a voice whispering sweetly in my ear that I was a member of the Church of Christ. And I must state right here that I saw a personage by my bedside, pointing his finger at me and saying, "John, John, in the future you will have occasion to bless your boy." After that he vanished from my sight. Well, I have occasion to bless my boy now; through his death I was brought nearer to God, that God that I was a stranger to; that God whom I had often rebelled against in my past life. Now I rejoice to know that I can worship a true God, a God that will hear and answer prayer. When we are honest in heart and go to him in prayer he will not leave us in the dark. Jesus says:—

If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine.

I want to say that God holds me accountable for this knowledge that he has given me. Christ says:—

And that servant, which knew his Lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. But he that knew not, and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes. For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required, etc.—Luke 12: 47, 48.

So we are responsible for the light he has given us; when we meet him at the judgment seat we cannot plead ignorance, for he has given us a plan of salvation to work out. I am determined to keep the commandments of God and follow the teachings of Christ. Of course, I find that I am surrounded by all kinds of temptations, and I can see things that tend to draw me away from God. But in time I remember the covenant that I made with God to keep his commandments; I remember all these things, how he took me at my word and paid me in advance. I remember all these things, I say; and I am determined with his help to keep the promise that I made him.

Now, what appeared a very strange thing to me was, that after I stood up in the Congregational Church before the people that I was acquainted with, and told them my experience and gave my testimony to the truth, it came to my mind that mankind were unbelievers. But in looking through the Bible I noticed Jesus Christ's words were:—

If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.

James tells us, and I know it to be true:—

If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering: for he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. For let not that man think that he will receive anything of the Lord.—James 1: 5-7.

Now when my son was put in the grave, I was determined to find out if that would be the last of him. I knew that the Creator of this world knew the end from the beginning; and I knew that he could and would let me know what he had done with him. I thought of the words of Jesus:—

Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

So when I went to God in prayer, I believed that he was a rewarder of them that would seek him; and the faith I had pleased him, for without faith it is impossible to please God.

I was determined to solve the problem and know for myself, whether my son was happy or whether he was lost. Then the Creator opened my spiritual eyes so that I could see that my son was happy far beyond all description that I or anyone else on this earth can give. Now I can say of a truth that the people of to-day are teaching for doctrine the commandments of men. We find in St. Matthew 15: 8, 9, that Jesus says:—

This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoreth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. But in vain do they worship me teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

I know that this latter-day work is God's work; if it were not I would not be a member of this church. No, not all the money that the world has ever seen would make me join this church. Nothing but the power of God would do it; but suddenly I was converted to the truth, and a knowledge given me that I will retain as long as I live.

Now, there has been a great dispute as to the genuineness of sudden conversions; there are some who suppose that conversion is a gradual reformation by which a person leaving off one sin at a time will, in the course of time, be free from all of them. There is another view of the subject which holds that conversions are wrought by the power of God, wrought suddenly. Nothing but the great Creator could have brought me to my senses and made me believe that the latter-day work was his work. If I had been honest in heart and studied the Bible, or gone to hear the doctrine of Christ preached in purity, I would have seen into it as the true teachings of Christ.

When I look back and remember how hard it was for me to believe the truth, the truth taught by living apostles and prophets of to-day, the same doctrine preached by Jesus Christ and the apostles of old, I am amazed. O, I thank God that he has allowed me the privilege of hearing an apostle and a prophet speak in this day and age! Yes, brethren and sisters, we ought to remember that we have living prophets and apostles in our church to-day. But the fact is not appreciated as it ought to be. No more was it appreciated in the days of old when they put them to death for acknowledging Jesus Christ.

In closing I will say that my affliction in the loss of my son has turned out to be a great blessing, for it was the means of bringing me back to God: that God who created me; that God whom I had rebelled against. But now I thank that God that he has brought me out of darkness into brilliant light and put me into that straight road that leads to eternal life. I must say, however, before closing, that if this had not been shown to me from God as being the church that Jesus Christ established on earth, I could not have been a member of it. For the example that had been shown me in the midst of my deep affliction by one of the members, a few days before my conversion to the truth, made me think, that some people that professed religion showed bad fruits. So I will say that we must not look to man for purity, but we must look to Jesus Christ the author and finisher of our faith.

We have everything on our side to make us rejoice; and let us remember our duties to God, and our duties to man, and not be stumbling-blocks, but try and build up the kingdom of God. This is his kingdom that he is building up in these the last days, and he is calling people into that kingdom, but they are people that are honest in heart. Let us invoke the Spirit of God to dwell with us; and if it is with us we will show the fruits of that holy Spirit, which are love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, and faith. My prayer is that I may ever keep the covenant that I made with God; that is all I desire. May I live in this life so as to be always on the watch with prayer lest I may fall into temptation. I desire to be the humble means of bringing some to a realization of their situation, and finally, bring them into the fold of Jesus Christ. I ask it in the name of Jesus. Amen.

Conference Minutes.

ELDERS' CONFERENCE, EUROPEAN MISSION.

Christmas is looked forward to in England with much expectation, and everyone puts forth quite an effort to make the season as enjoyable as possible. The public idea of what constitutes enjoyment, however, differs very considerably. Some very foolish customs obtain in the land in connection with the Christmas festivities. A large section of the British public seems to think it quite impossible to enjoy the last holiday of the year without the—and in some cases the excessive—use of alcohol, and many a man who has throughout the year carefully avoided its use, is prevailed upon to take "just one glass" because it is Christmastide. Many a young man, I verily believe, who has subsequently found a drunkard's grave, could trace his first downward step to this foolish December custom.

The revelry of the drunkard unquestionably has attraction for some people, but thank the Lord it has no fascinations for the Latter Day Saint. Doubtless men differ constitutionally, but in a very great measure taste is a matter of education, and the consequence is that what is acceptable to some as the means of promoting pleasure, is altogether unappreciated by others. To the man of God there is no greater happiness than to be in the assemblies of the people of God: to the drunkard probably the "free and easy" of the tavern is the acme of pleasure. If we reverse the position of the two classes there can be only one result—utter misery, and this because the men would be, so to speak, out of their element.

The notice sent out by the president of the European mission, to the effect that it was intended to convene a conference in December was very welcome, and we candidly confess that when the morning of Saturday, the 23d of December, ultimately arrived, our hearts beat with quite a flutter of excitement as we prepared to pack up our satchel for the journey to Manchester. After a journey of about two hundred miles we arrived at the Saints' meeting room, just before the close of a formal business meeting. What a feeling of love and unity pervaded the whole place when the brethren got together after the termination of the meeting. What with the handshaking and good wishes for the season and coming new year—well, we felt that the attractions of conference had in no way diminished.

After arrangements had been made for the accommodation of the visiting elders we separated, each and every one being fully determined to have a good time at the prayer meeting which had been announced for the following morning. Nine o'clock on the Sabbath morning, therefore, found the elders assembled in the Saints' meeting room in Dickinson street, and the prayer meeting in charge of Brn. Thomas Taylor, of Birmingham, and John R. Gibbs, of Wales, was a time of much refreshing to all. The Spirit was present in power, and as we hurried at its termination to the Hulme Town Hall (which had been hired especially for the purpose of the meetings) we all felt that a grand time might be expected, and in this we are thankful to say we were not disappointed.

Upon entering the hall we were much astonished to hear the sounds of brass instruments discoursing sweet music, the strains of which were familiar to our ears. This was quite a new feature in the services of the church in this land, and upon making inquiries we were agreeably surprised to find that the instrumentalists were not hired musicians, as we at first thought, but real live Latter Day Saints from Wigan.

The morning service was in charge of Brn. Joseph Dewsnup, Sr., of Manchester, and Joseph Greenwood, of Stafford. After a short opening address by Elder Dewsnup, Bro. Joseph Greenwood preached a very able, instructive, and eloquent sermon, taking his text from Jeremiah 31: 3-26.

The humility of the ministry is sometimes proverbial, and we are especially thankful to think that however well the ministry may succeed from time to time in expounding the word of life and salvation, the glory is at all times ascribed to the Lord. The heart of the preacher can never be filled with pride and the influence of the Holy Ghost at the same time, and he that has been once left to his own wisdom and ability soon finds out that that one experience is quite enough for a lifetime. We are thankful to be associated with men whose desire it is to be used as instruments in the hands of the Holy One of Israel for his divine purposes; who have no thought for self further than to be the means of spreading the knowledge of the truth among men under the assistance of heaven, and who when they have succeeded in convincing men of the truth, return thanks to the God of Israel for standing by them and enabling them to do their duty. It is not our intention to report the sermon in detail, but as the opening remarks of the preacher were somewhat remarkable, and may be interesting to some friends not members of the church of our blessed Lord reading the Herald, I quote them verbatim in order to show the spirit of humility that prompted them. He said:—

"I do not come here this morning claiming any educational attainment. I do not feel sufficient of myself as of myself for the great work which is allotted to me, but I come before you in weakness, fear, and much trembling, like our beloved Brother Paul of old, realizing that I am dependent for the assistance of God and the guidance and dictation that that Spirit may afford to me, and ask an interest in your faith and prayers that God may bless me with light and wisdom from above, that I may at least say some word or words that may be of instruction and benefit to you."

The subsequent sermon in which the preacher dealt with God's dealings with the children of Israel in the past and his intentions with regard to their ultimate return to the knowledge of the Lord, was much appreciated by the assembly. Did space permit I would report it verbatim, but it must suffice to just quote a sentence or two of his words. In expressing his confidence that all the works of the Lord were subject to, and governed by, a divine law from which there could possibly be no variation, the preacher said:—

"I am fully persuaded as I learn more of the nature of this work, that God the Eternal Father does not do anything promiscuously, but that there is a divine purpose and beautiful design throughout all his works. No matter where we gaze, whether above or below, the result is the same. If we turn our attention to the heavens above, we see a beautiful purpose and a splendid design, and that this purpose and design is continually being carried out and fulfilled in the heavenly bodies. So in the earth beneath. There is a beautiful adaptation of part to part; of principle to principle; of works to works. There is a law running through all, whether it be above, beneath, or around, resulting in beautiful unity, which develops the divine purpose."

After the sermon George William Leggett and Thomas Taylor, of Manchester, were called forward for ordination to the office of priests, Brn. Gomer T. Griffiths, John R. Evans, and Thomas Taylor officiating, the former being ordained by Elder Thomas Taylor and the latter by Elder G. T. Griffiths. The Spirit was present in much power. We were unable to hear the words of Bro. Taylor. What Elder G. T. Griffiths said was quite audible, and as we think the words used very beautiful and appropriate we quote them verbatim as follows:—

"Bro. Thomas, in the name of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, we his servants impose our hands upon your head and we thus by the authority which God has committed to us, and we believe under the direction of his holy power, set thee apart and ordain thee to the office of priest in the Aaronic department of the priesthood. And O God our heavenly Father, we do humbly beseech thee to confirm this ordination by the presence of the Holy Spirit. Do thou give unto him of the spirit of his calling that it may be with him continually to qualify and fit him for the duties and functions thereof, and that under all circumstances in life it may be vouchsafed to him that he may stand as a man of God for the truth, and may labor with all his might in the interest of thy truth, thy church, and the salvation of men. Now dear brother thy duty will be to preach the gospel of the Son of God whenever opportunity offers, and it will be thy duty to admonish, teach, and instruct; and if called by the voice of God's people to act in the capacity of a branch officer, thy duty will be to visit the house of each member and ascertain that all do their duty as provided for in the law and the constitution of his church which he has given in the day in which we live for the guidance of his people. O God, as we feel the Spirit of Christ now resting upon us may it rest upon our brother. May it dwell in him like a living fire. Do thou illuminate his mind and inspire his thoughts, and may his motives be holy and of that kind with which thou wilt be pleased. O God, as he stands between thee and thy people, be thou his mouthpiece to point them to the Lamb of God and the plan of salvation, which is the means of redemption to the sons of men. We pray thee that thou wilt inspire him to do much good. Make him a strong and valiant soldier for Christ. And I say unto thee under the influence of God's Holy Spirit, the Lord has a great work for thee to do, therefore be humble, meek, and lowly, and put thy whole trust in God, and he will be thy shield, protector, and buckler, and will give thee support and strength if thou wilt seek it humbly at his hands. Wherefore be not exalted nor lifted up in the pride of thy heart, and the Lord will bless thee, and the day is not far distant when thou shalt be called to the higher priesthood, even the Melchisedec priesthood, in which also thou shalt administer successfully before him. And we pray that the Spirit of God may be with thee to the end, and we commit thee to the care of Christ. Even so. Amen."

The social meeting at 2:30 was in charge of Elders G. T. Griffiths and John R. Evans. The testimonies of the elder brethren who had passed through the dark and stormy days were especially interesting and instructive to the younger members of the church, and we are confident that when brought face to face with these men of God, those who had overcome such difficulties and passed through such trials, many a resolution was made to hold fast to the rod of iron and continue right along until the end of the journey was reached. What a revelation a good social meeting must be to men who may be prejudiced against the church.

The service at 6:30 in charge of Elders G. T. Griffiths and J. D. Howell was very well attended. The sermon delivered by Elder G. T. Griffiths from Titus 2:1 with Galatians 1:6-8 was a grand effort, powerful and convincing. A brother who had not long been in the church came to us at the close of the service and said, "If I never saw a miracle performed or had testimony in any other way, I am satisfied after hearing such a sermon that this is the work of God."

Nine o'clock on the morning of Christmas day found all the elders in attendance at the Saints' meeting room. Particulars of the business transacted will be furnished in the secretary's report. Priest Richard Clift, of London, was ordained by Elder G. T. Griffiths to the office of an elder.

At 7:30 on Christmas night a Saints' meeting was held, and without exception this was one of the grandest meetings we have ever had the pleasure of attending. Five-minute speeches was the order of the evening, and more than one tear-stained face was to be seen in that blessed assembly. The trials and difficulties of life were forgotten for the moment, and Bro. John R. Evans truly said that no position or money could secure such a grand feeling of happiness and absolute contentment as was experienced there. Paul wrote, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him," but truly this meeting was a foretaste of the glorious times in store for the faithful.

Although most of the brethren had returned to their homes in different parts of the country on the Monday evening, there was a Saints' meeting held on the Tuesday morning at which a goodly number were present. The conference session terminated with this meeting.

The object of the conference was to bring the brethren of the English and Welsh missions together and to establish such an understanding between them as had not hitherto existed, and we are thankful to say that the desired end was more than attained. A beautiful spirit of unity was present throughout the whole session, the members of the two missions feeling they were brethren in every sense of the word and that the question of nationality could have no place in their relationship as servants of the one God, and that in future it would be "we of England and of Wales."

They drink in one Spirit, which makes them all see They're one in Christ Jesus, wherever they be,
The Jew and the Gentile, the bond and the free.

May this brotherly love continue.

However successful a conference may be it has one exceeding great failing—parting at the close of it, but thank the Lord the great reunion at which the faithful will one day meet will not have this weakness. There will be no parting there.

You may sing of the beauty of mountain and dale,
Of the silvery streamlet and flowers of the vale;
But the place most delightful this earth can afford
Is the place of devotion—the house of the Lord.

NOTICES.

The members of the High Priests' Quorum are hereby reminded that the General Conference is drawing near, and we remind you of your duty to report promptly to your quorum your labors, your faith, and determination, and desires, together with your availability for labor wheresoever duty may call you. We would be glad to meet as many of our brethren as can attend the conference, and we desire to hear from every member of the Quorum. Please send reports to the secretary, H. A. Stebbins, Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa, by the 15th of March next.

Yours in bonds,

CHARLES DERRY, Pres. of Quorum.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, Jan. 26, 1894.

The members of the Second Quorum of Seventy are requested to send in their full report of labor performed during the present conference year before March 15. Please state the number of sermons preached, number baptized and confirmed, and number of children blessed. State whether you have been under General Conference appointment and whether you desire a mission next year or not. Also, give your present permanent address. Please state whether you expect to be at General Conference.

T. W. WILLIAMS.

286 Benton street, COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa.

IOWA, MISSOURI, ILLINOIS, CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN INDIANA MISSION.

To whom it may concern:—About the first of March for those who are not in charge, and about the tenth for those who are, are the times set for the last ministerial reports of the conference year. In these last reports, "all the items required by the quorum as a prerequisite to missionary appointment, must be furnished." (See minutes of conference for 1893, p. 68. The word "published," as found in the minutes, is a typographical error. It should be "furnished.")

We desire and request a full and prompt compliance with the rules by all the ministers who are under general church appointment in this mission. When the reports of those who are in charge of "fields of labor" do not contain the necessary items, it necessitates the expenditure of much time and many stamps by the general missionary in charge. Let each one do his own work, and then it is comparatively easy for all.

The extraordinary financial demands made on the church within the last year, together with the widespread depression in money matters, have made the situation somewhat trying, and it has been a hard pull on the church; but we have reason to be thankful to God that thus far it is as well as it is. How many we shall be able to place in the field, next spring, we are not able to say; nor can we tell who they will be. Those who apply for appointments must run their own risks without any guarantee of acceptance from us. However, we can say this: With God's help we will use what influence and ability we may possess for what we conceive to be the greatest good of the work.

As before, those who chew or smoke tobacco, at home or abroad, whether they use little or much, are not eligible for appointment. All ministers who are eligible to the law of tithing, but ignore its demands, cannot consistently and justly ask the church to support their families while they are in the field. The sacrifice which God demands for the carrying on of this work, and our eternal salvation, should be made by the ministers and members. "Are not my ways equal," saith the Lord?

Your coworkers in Christ,

J. R. LAMBERT,
JOSEPH LUFF.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The officials and members of the Pottawattamie district are requested to remember that our next conference will convene on the last Saturday in February at Crescent city. As that will be the last quarterly conference before the General Conference, it will be necessary that we have a full representation of every branch in the district, and from every official, including all the changes, and the spiritual condition of each branch. Will the presidents and secretaries of branches see that a proper report is sent in time? Reports may be forwarded to the undersigned at Crescent City, Pottawattamie county, Iowa, or to Thomas Scott, Underwood, same county. If addressed to the latter they must be sent in time for him to bring them to conference with him. Reports are frequently delayed through the neglect of branch officials. This works injury to the conference and work in the district, and should not be. There will probably be changes made in the presidential department of the district, besides other very important matters that must be considered. Come with the spirit of the work inspiring your hearts and minds, and let us use our privilege, and have a profitable time in waiting before the Lord.

CHARLES DERRY, Pres.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, Jan. 26, 1894.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The severest storm of the season prevailed along the North Atlantic coast to-day, accompanied by a heavy fall of snow. Many tales of danger upon the ocean were brought by the fleet of vessels that came into port. Ocean liners had a continuation of heavy gales during the entire trip across the Atlantic, and were compelled to slacken speed to prevent waves from dashing over their bows.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 27.—Striking miners took possession of the property of several coal companies near Mansfield, this county, to-day, burning and destroying it. One rioter was killed and a dozen or more badly injured. The trouble was caused by a reduction in wages. Nonunion men were beaten and stores looted by the strikers; coal tipples, cars, and other valuable property were destroyed by the rioters. A strong posse of citizens and deputy sheriffs have dispersed the rioters and are guarding the mines.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 27.—The Mid-winter Fair was opened to-day in the presence of 50,000 people.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 27.—A correspondent in Rio sends word that the insurgents in the bay fired yesterday on American barks. They also stopped a German vessel having powder on board for the government. A conference of foreign commanders in the bay was accordingly called.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 27.—Secretary Herbert received to-day a cable message from Admiral Benham at Rio, but it contained no reference to his having been asked to act as mediator between the Brazilian Government and its rebellious Admiral. Still less did it embody any statement to justify the rumor that a settlement of the revolutionary trouble had been effected through his instrumentality. The State Department and Navy Department concur in asserting that Admiral Benham has not been authorized to intervene, and that he certainly would not intervene without authorization.

PANAMA, Jan. 27.—The latest advices from Paris say Monchicourt is making tentative advances looking to the procuring of an additional extension of a year in order to offset his action that caused the collapse of the efforts to reorganize the canal company. The Government of Colombia is determined to put a stop to further nonsense, and reject American proposals and confiscate everything next October, when according to the terms the concession will lapse.

Fifty revolutionist were arrested in the State of Morelo, Mexico, and sent to prison at Las Vacas.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, January 27.—President Vasquez of Honduras has made a proposition for surrender, but his demands are regarded as excessive for one in his plight. It is believed he will surrender to-day or to-morrow morning. The government is sending troops to prevent further outbreaks in Leon and Granada.

GAUTEMALA, Jan. 27.—The conspiracy in Nicaragua is more extensive than the government there likes to admit. The conspirators have received large supplies of arms and ammunition from the United States.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 27.—According to a dispatch received at the State Department to-day from United States Consular Agent B. B. Seat at Bluefields, Nicaragua, the Honduras troops have entered the northeastern part of Nicaragua and a conflict between them and the Nicaragua troops is imminent. The consular Agent says American life and property are endangered and requests a man of war to be dispatched immediately to the eastern coast of Nicaragua. After consultation between Secretaries Gresham and Herbert, a dispatch was sent to Rear Admiral Stanton, now on board the Kearsarge at San Domingo, to proceed at once with that vessel to Bluefields. The department assumes that the American property endangered is the works connected with the Nicaraguan Canal.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Socialist members of the Chamber of Deputies became so turbulent during the sitting to-day that they defied the president, who called for a company of soldiers to clear the chamber. When they went out the disorderly Socialists went out shouting, "Vive la Commune." The trouble arose from the recent arrests of Anarchists. Men cursed one another and shook their fists under each others' noses.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Opinion at the Foreign Office points to the early deposition of the Khedive and succession of his brother, Prince Mehemet Ali. Lord Cromer obtained the submission of the Khedive and the retraction of his strictures upon the British officers in Egypt only after exercising strong pressure. Lord Rosebery, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, is still dissatisfied. The Khedive's hostility to Great Britain will raise the question of his deposition for consideration in the Cabinet immediately after the recess. Official opinion is that the Khedive will not cease intriguing against the English régime and will provide himself with an exclusively anti-British entourage. He has just decorated and rewarded the chief of the Abaddeh tribe, who was condemned by an English military court in 1888 to death for treachery.

Two large ocean steamships—for transatlantic service—the largest ever built in America—are being built at Philadelphia. The contract calls for their use in the navy in case of war.

The liquor element has been defeated at Kalamazoo, Michigan, in a test of the local option law. The test case goes to the State Supreme Court. Van Buren county has three times voted against the saloon.

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—As more details of Prince Bismarck's short sojourn in Berlin are learned it becomes plainer that the reconciliation was devised carefully of political import. Certain newspapers persist in enlarging on the probable political results of his reported conferences with Emperor William and Chancellor von Caprivi, but such a course is not warranted by the facts.

It is now known positively that Bismarck's private conversation with the Emperor lasted only ten minutes, and that Caprivi did not talk with him at all. The report that the Prince and the Chancellor had a conference arose from a case of mistaken identity.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 29.—The Czar is suffering from a severe attack of influenza, accompanied by bronchitis and inflammation of the right lung. Dispatches from the various continental cities say the bourses are dull in consequence of the illness of the Czar.

LISBON, Jan. 29.—The government has received information that an insurrection is expected to break out in Oporto. A fleet of war ships sailed from Lisbon for Oporto this morning to aid in suppressing any revolutionary movement that may be undertaken.

Exiles in Kingston, Jamaica, are preparing for an uprising.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 30.—The Hurontario Ship Canal and Power Company will petition the Ontario Legislature for incorporation papers to-morrow. The company proposes to build a water way between Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario capable of accommodating the largest lake vessels. The capital stock is fixed at $65,000,000, and the company pledges itself to spend $1,000,000 within eighteen months, $5,000,000 in five years, and to complete the project in ten years. Similar rights will be asked from the Federal Government. A number of New York and Canadian Capitalists are interested in the scheme.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 30.—The United States ship Detroit this morning fired on the insurgent ship Guanabara. A shot was fired across the rebel's bows as a warning that American merchantmen would be protected in moving up to the docks, and this having no effect the Detroit fired again, lodging a shot in the stern post of the Guanabara. Admiral de Gama realizes now that American merchantmen will be afforded the fullest protection.

The incident resulted from an effort to stop American vessels from landing at the city piers with merchandise. It is believed that the determined course pursued by the American Admiral, together with the probable protection of other foreign vessels in commercial transit will compel the insurgents to abandon the siege. The incident has had a good effect, for ships are coming up to the wharves without molestation. Saldanha de Gama announces that he yields the point only to superior force.

Another severe blizzard accompanied by heavy snow swept over the northern Atlantic coast on the 30th, seriously interfering with shipping interests. A small schooner was wrecked at Gloucester, Massachusetts.

Houses were unroofed and other property destroyed by storm at Baltimore and other Maryland points on the same date.

A St. Louis prelate is credited with the statement that Archbishop Ireland is to succeed Archbishop Satolli as Apostolic Delegate to the United States, and the latter is to be made Archbishop of Bologna.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 31.—The prompt and determined action of the sheriff and his forces in guarding mines and raiding and arresting the disorderly anarchistic element among the striking miners is bringing the mining troubles under control. There likely will be a national meeting of the miners called within the next week to bring existing troubles to a satisfactory adjustment. Most of the miners in the Mansfield district are at work again.

A prominent operator makes this statement: "The panic is the cause of the trouble. . . . There are in some of the mines a great many anarchists, revolutionists, and desperate men who have drifted in from all European nations. My latest dispatch informs me that nearly all our miners are armed, and tender us aid if we need any."

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—The amount subscribed for the proposed issue of government bonds exceeds $50,000,000, the amount required.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Pall Mall Gazette to-day announced that Mr. Gladstone will, within a few days, resign the office of Prime Minister of Great Britain. This announcement, if true, will have in many minds a portentous and mighty significance, not only for England, but for Europe and the world.

Sir Algernon West, the companion and close friend of Mr. Gladstone, has issued the following statement, which is as authorized by the Premier:—

"The statement that Mr. Gladstone has definitely decided or decided at all to resign is untrue. It is true, however, that for many months past his age and the condition of his sight and hearing have in his judgment made relief from public affairs desirable. Therefore his tenure of office has been at any moment liable to interception from these causes which are in their nature prominent.

"It remains exactly as it has been. He is ignorant of the course which events important to the nation may take even during the remainder of the present session of Parliament, and he has not said nor done anything which could in any degree restrain his absolute freedom or that of his colleagues regarding the performance of the arduous duties now lying or likely to lie before them."

The statement is regarded as a confirmation of the report. The news has created a profound sensation in political and general circles. It is feared that in the event of Mr. Gladstone's resignation the Liberal party would not continue to maintain sufficient unity to insure its continuation in power and the completion of the Home Rule and Parish Councils bills and other important legislation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 31.—It is understood that President Cleveland will submit to Congress the latest Hawaiian correspondence, including President Dole's reply to Minister Willis, after the tariff bill has been disposed of.

The Senate Committee on Naval Affairs is in accord with Secretary Herbert in the policy of adding further to the navy until it is thoroughly competent to protect American interests in all parts of the world.

The Wilson tariff bill, including the income tax provision, was passed by the House of Representatives, February 1, by a vote of 204 to 140.

Advices from Rio Janeiro dated February 1, state that the operations of the insurgents for the past few days have amounted to but little. Admiral Benham's course seems to have caused the rebels to lose heart, for a time at least, and much depression is also apparent among their sympathizers on shore. The government fleet has been ordered to combine and hunt up Admiral Mello and give him battle. Admiral Benham's course has been approved by the United States government. Foreigners regard this action of the United States as maintaining the policy of favoring republican forms of government and discouraging monarchical principles in Central and South American countries.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Pall Mall Gazette reiterates its statement that Gladstone will resign at no distant day. Those who disbelieve the report attribute it to the Tory proclivities of the Gazette.

DUBLIN, Feb. 1.—The Freeman's Journal, commenting on the report of Mr. Gladstone's intended resignation, says: "The cruel, cowardly canard did not need contradiction. It is lawful to hope and believe that Mr. Gladstone will be spared in the full vigor of his genius until the not distant day when he will see the greatest work of his great career effected."

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The representative in Lisbon of the United Press writes that the censor has refused to allow telegraphic messages giving details of the troubles in Oporto to be transmitted. He says January 29 there was serious rioting in Oporto. The trouble was due to the disaffection growing out of new and vexatious taxation, and the action of the government in forbidding the meetings called by the Chamber of Commerce, societies, shopkeepers, and the various industries to protest against the taxes. The disaffection spread to all large towns. It was only in Oporto, however, that overt acts were committed. Serious rioting occurred. It was partly quelled by the arrival of warships, but the disaffection continues.

It is announced that all danger to the Czar from his sickness is now past.

Anti-tax riots broke out recently in Gauhati and Mangaldai, Province of Assam, India. The police fired on the rioters, killing fourteen men and wounding many others.

CARSON, Nev., Feb. 2.—A meteor was seen southeast of here last evening. It fell between Hawthorne and Belleville, making a terrific report. The force of the explosion threw the station agent at Belleville to the ground.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 2.—A meteor, which seemed about half as large as the moon, fell from the sky last night, disappearing in an eastern direction. No report of an explosion was heard, and it is probable that the meteor did not strike the earth within some hundreds of miles of San Francisco.

FEBRUARY "COSMOPOLITAN."

The secret of the great success of the Cosmopolitan is not so hard to find, if one looks carefully over the number for February. A story by Valdés, the famous Spanish novelist, the first from his pen to appear in any American magazine, is begun in this number. Arthur Sherburne Hardy's story, "A Rejected Manuscript," is charmingly illustrated by L. Marold, who we believe makes his first appearance in the magazines on this side of the water. A profusely illustrated article on the designing and building of a war-ship appeals to the interest taken by all in the new navy, and a thrilling description of a naval combat under the significant title: "The Meloban and the Pentheroy," describes, after the manner of the Battle of Dorking, a possible sea-fight, the outcome of which is watched by the entire naval world. "Gliding Flight," is an interesting contribution to the problem of aerial navigation by one who has studied the flight of soaring birds in the East for twenty years. Elaine Goodale, who married a member of the Sioux nation, has some interesting information of Indian Wars and Warriors. T. C. Crawford, the Washington correspondent, gives the first half of a startling story, under the title, "The Disappearance Syndicate." The poetry in this number by Sir Edwin Arnold, Graham R. Tomson, and William Young, is unusually good. The Departments, "In the World of Art and Letters" and the "Progress of Science" continue to have as contributors men famous in both continents.

VOICE OF WARNING AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL PEOPLE;

OR AN INTRODUCTION TO THE FAITH AND DOCTRINE OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

This work in its graphic review of the prophecies and history of God's dealings with his people in past ages, together with the abundant proofs concerning the work of the latter days, the gathering and restoration of Israel to their ancient home in Palestine, is a book for the times. The author presents the prophetic evidences of the restoration of the gospel in "the dispensation of the fullness of times," showing the evidences in favor of a restoration of primitive Christianity and the organization of the apostolic church with its apostleship and priesthood—its authority—its powers and gifts. This publication has always been a favorite one among inquirers for the truth. 150 pages.

Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE, WITH INTRODUCTION BY ELDER W. W. BLAIR.

A book in which is traced the intimate connection between the history of Protestantism and the founding of the Government of the United States with the event of the restored Gospel; interwoven with which is a tender story from a real life, telling of the efforts of one to find the Kingdom of God, its object being to trace God in modern history, and to show that his dealings with men are as clearly discernible now as in ancient times.

ECONOMY IN LIVING.

THIS present season of great financial depression has called and will call for a reconstruction of the living in many households. Economy is the watchword of the hour, yet, facing it, all feel it to be the ugliest of the virtues. Which of our cherished indulgencies shall we resign in response to its inexorable demands?

The answer which each one makes to this pressing question is, to some extent, the measure of the person answering. In this unpleasant business of retrenchment we express ourselves by the things which we elect to forego. If we decide to give up the lecture, the concert, the pew in the church, we show that we value these less than material comforts; if, on the other hand, we hold on to these but content ourselves with plainer dress and plainer living, this is no less a declaration that the things of the intellect and the spirit claim our highest allegiance.

Looking at life and society at large, what things are easiest to spare from our present ideals and customs? What changes, if any, can be made in social observances without depriving them of their stimulus and charm? Certainly no one would wish to begin his economizing by cutting himself off from society, yet this is what many will have to do unless society can be made less expensive, and hospitality less luxurious. Stately receptions and formal dinners hold a rightful place in ceremonial elegance, but fortunately, there are other and really better ways for hospitality to manifest itself. These elaborate occasions may be dispensed with without any loss to genuine social life. Indeed, many a house whose formal entertainments are famous for magnificence and luxury is yet utterly barren of all the higher uses of social intercourse. A return to the "plain living and high thinking" of an earlier generation would be a gain on all accounts, especially to the children of our households. It is doubtful if any child was ever taught to think by the spectacle of ceremonial entertainments. But the atmosphere of ideas that is generated by the allusion, comment, and wit of bright and cultivated people is the most important of educative influences. In reading the autobiographies of such persons as Margaret Fuller, James Freeman Clarke, and Dr. Channing, we discover how much of their inspiration was gathered from each other. The simple and unpretentious character of their meetings provided the happiest atmosphere for mutual helpfulness, and one which society would do well to imitate.

Another department of living where we shall be not worse but better off through economy is the kitchen. America wastes enough yearly to feed the thousands now out of employment. Mr. Edward Atkinson has called attention to the fact that the saving of five cents per day in the cost of the subsistence of each adult in the United States represents in money over $1,000,000,000 a year. It is not enough for the workingman to practice economy at the butcher's and grocer's unless also it prevail in the kitchen. The French are far ahead of us in knowing how to get out of their food the most nutriment that belongs to it; a great advance would be made if, somewhere in the course of the education which the State gives to the people, it should teach girls how to extract the greatest amount of sustenance from the common materials of food.

In matters of dress, likewise, there are many ways which might be indicated where a judicious retrenchment can be made without loss to comfort or real beauty. The one thing of importance is that in cutting down expenditures thought shall be given to doing it wisely. Economy, rightly exercised, is not meanness, nor selfishness; it is simply making the most of what we have. Furthermore, it is the art of making the most of what we are. The intellect or the heart should not be robbed in some directions in order to conform to certain conventional requirements; self-culture should not be sacrificed to self-indulgence, and above all a margin should be left for charity lest care for self turn into wrongdoing toward our neighbor.—Chicago Tribune.

DELAWARE'S RELIC OF BARBARISM.

The whipping post and the pillory in Delaware are practically one piece of machinery. The post bears at rather more than the height of a tall man a small platform and above that two arms, each provided with three holes, one for the neck and the other two for the arms of the culprit. The man to be whipped stands at the foot of the post with his hands secured to it above his head. Sentences for some crimes in Delaware name, besides imprisonment, the penalty of receiving so many lashes on the bare back, "well laid" on, and the requirement to stand thereafter so many hours in the pillory. The sentence of the pillory is no longer specially effective as a terror to evil-doers in the northern county at least, because the culprit is invisible behind a high wall, where no gaping crowds can deny him the boon of solitude. It is not very many years since small crowds attended the whippings at New Castle, and one sheriff was embarrassed by a young woman who persistently requested the privilege of seeing the sight from a window in his house adjoining the jail.

BETTER TIMES ARE COMING.

A wave of depression has been sweeping over the world and we have not escaped, but the recuperative energies of our people have not so many burdens ahead to tax them as those of the inhabitants of other countries. Some of the causes of our own troubles have been removed, though the consequences of their past activity are still felt. This is a great country with a great future and a still present great demand for food, drink, and raiment, and the world is ready to take what we can spare from our tables. There are abundant grounds for hope for a revival of business, and one of the reasons for the belief that better times are coming is the unwillingness of the American people to sit down and trust to luck to better their condition. They usually prefer to do the bettering themselves, and it is not likely that the last year has changed their nature.—Boston Transcript.

The Review of Reviews for February is strong in all of its departments. In the "Progress of the World" the important political, social, and industrial events of the month are reviewed and their significance clearly and frankly set forth. This department alone contains fifty timely illustrations, chiefly portraits of well-known men and women. Among the portraits are those of President Dole and his cabinet and sketches, drawn from life, of Representatives William L. Wilson, of West Virginia; Charles F. Crisp, of Georgia; Thomas B. Reed, of Maine; Benton McMillan, of Tennessee; Thomas L. Johnson, of Ohio, and Julius C. Burrows, of Michigan. Apropos of the opening of the Manchester Ship Canal, the editor discusses that and various other waterway projects which are being considered by European governments.

COLLEGE MATTER.

THERE will be a strong effort made this coming spring to push the college enterprise. An institution of learning, such as a suitable college will be, is clearly needed by us as a people; for while we may not believe in a college bred ministry, we do believe that other things being equal, the educated man has the advantage in every vocation, that of a minister included.

No man should presume to boast of his ignorance or pride himself upon being an uneducated man. If he has had no opportunity he is not in moral fault and is not blamable; but if he has had an opportunity and has frittered it away, he is to be blamed; and is suffering loss from his own fault.

Education does not mean to be over-learned in any one direction; but does mean such a cultivation of the faculties that the man may lay hold upon almost anything he may need to do, and comprehending it, succeed in doing it fairly well. In the language of a successful teacher: "Education does not necessarily mean knowledge, but does mean the possession of the faculty of acquiring knowledge."

We know a little girl, that for a long time struggled along, almost hopelessly at times, it seemed to her parents, learning to read; apparently making no progress, and caring nothing about effort to do so; but, within the period of a few weeks, she seemed to emerge from a condition of dullness into one of comprehension; spelling was made easy, she learned to read and rapidly advanced until she was capable of reading quite extendedly. The difficulty was, the faculty of acquirement was tardily developed, when once roused, she went at once to a front rank in the actual acquirement of knowledge.

There are numbers of men now in the ministry, who, in a similar way, have almost suddenly developed from a condition of comparative ignorance to one of a mind seemingly well stored with information. And especially is this the case, with those who have been in active ministerial work, where they have been brought into contact with opposition and the men and forces outside of the church. It was needful that they should 'know,' and they bent their efforts and their inclinations to the exigencies of the occasion and enlarged development in the desired direction resulted.

Many of the Saints are anxious that their children shall have an opportunity to secure something of an education, and to this end are willing to make some sacrifices of money and ease, and are doing it, sending their children to schools, here there and everywhere, prayerfully trusting to native good qualities and home advice to prevail in the childrens' behalf against the allurements surrounding them in nine out of every ten of the educational institutions in the country. They would be pleased to send these children to an institution the conditions of which would give them assurances that proper moral influences would surround them during a secular training in school.

We need a college.

CHURCHLY DEBT.

THE Brooklyn Tabernacle, Rev. Dr. Talmage's church, owes to Russell Sage, one of the money kings of New York, $125,000, secured by a mortgage on the building. The mortgage has run four years, and Mr. Sage states that he has not received one cent of interest, though the loan when made was with the understanding that it was to run only for four months. Several promises to liquidate the debt have been made but have not been kept. It is now proposed to charge an entrance fee of ten cents for admission to this now famous building to aid in meeting liabilities. So it will be seen that even in so refined a religious court as the Brooklyn Tabernacle, the curse of debt and its handmaid, interest, or usury, are the skeletons at the spiritual feast.

Church promises to pay seem to be no better in one direction than another; the only safe policy for either man or church being to keep out of debt if it be possible.

Mr. Talmage has been absent from his flock lecturing, and returns to find the trustees figuring on an admission fee to meet the financial demands. It would be worth a dime to hear Dr. Talmage with his caustic tongue score the money grabbers, stock speculators, railway magnates, and money kings of Wall Street, New York; but what of those who "make merchandise of the people."

LIGHT SPREADING IN JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 1.—Yokohama advices are that an attempt made by the opposition in the House of Representatives to compel the government to enforce Japan's treaties with foreign powers led to the suspension of the House by the Emperor for ten days. In the imperial rescript the Emperor stated in unequivocal terms that the foreign policy of his reign was liberal and progressive and that anything tending to interrupt the consummation of that policy would be opposed to the imperial wishes. On December 29 the House reassembled, but the sitting was suspended again for fourteen days.

Some of the brethren who may have an eye upon Japan as a field for future missionary labor may be interested in the statement given above concerning the liberal and progressive policy of the Japanese Emperor. The events that of late have transformed the political and social conditions of Japan and the Flowery Kingdom from seclusion and stagnation to open intercourse with the world and adoption of Western civilization and ideas, and which are also transforming other nations, furnish striking proof of the rapid approach of the coming day when those without knowledge of the Christ shall be permitted to learn of him and enjoy the blessings of his universal reign of peace. "Of the increase of his kingdom there shall be no end," said the prophet; it is to grow—increase—until it becomes universal.

While the skeptic denies and doubts and will not see, the believer observes and understands the signs of the coming of the Son of God, who with healing in his wings will correct and heal the nations and give them rest and peace. The way is being prepared for the teaching of the gospel of the kingdom in all the world before the second coming of the Desire of all nations.

No demand in all the realm of nature is stronger than that which moves the race with longing for the reign of the One who shall bring in everlasting righteousness. The hope for Christ, for the reign of the all-powerful, all-wise, and all-knowing One among men, civilized and uncivilized, is the most reasonable, the most tangible demand apparent to-day. To ignore or deny it is to ignore or deny the most intelligent and apparent expectation and greatest need of the human family, the one nearest and dearest to the impulses of the heart of mankind. To cherish it, to make it manifest, is to do a divine work that will lift up all humanity by rightly directing the hearts and minds of men into the normal channels of hope, of love, and of life; brought near to all and manifested in the life-infusing power of the gospel of the Son of God.

The gospel—the word and power of God—is the interpreter of God to man, and, also, the interpreter of the nature of man himself; what he is; his place, present and future, in the economy of being. Infidelity is wrong, is blighting, and brings despair and death, because it is unnatural, untrue. The truth is the light and the life of men. It energizes man to hope for and attain because it teaches him of and leads him up to God. The word of God is a living word; it is a word of precept and of power. Jesus Christ as the teacher, as the Word, not only manifested the beauty of the word in teaching; he also demonstrated the power of the word in example, in fact: He was declared to be the Son of God with power by the resurrection from the dead. Blessed are they who have the light and the hope of life abiding in them. Such have passed from death unto life. Until the gospel which has come in word and in much assurance is proclaimed and lived in all the world, man will be in darkness and under the bondage of sin that now prevails almost universally.

Japan and other countries are opening their doors to light and progress. A touch of nature is making the whole world kin. Men without light and its liberty have been in a condition similar, somewhat, to the stupor of plant life in winter; their powers dormant, their godlike faculties undeveloped, asleep; or, worse, when partially awakened, obscured in great degree by misdirection and perversion. The sun and the dew cause the beauties of nature to awaken and give forth their fragrance and fruitage, adorning and enlivening the world as they speak their praise to God in benefit to man. The heart and mind of man—the image, the child of God—are also to unfold their marvelous goodness and wondrous powers to bless the universe as the ministrants of the Creator and Father. Earthly destinies are being shaped to that end. True science is facilitating intercommunication and traffic, broadening and enlightening the minds of men, bringing them into closer social and religious contact, and showing them that they are one—that there is unity in their natures and needs; and that there is one God and Father of all; who seeks to dwell and rule in all. The book of nature tells this truth as does the book of God's revealed word. Evil, from "the beginning" has sought to obscure these truths and pervert nature. But it is divine, like all truth, in its consistent adaptability, its "eternal fitness;" and it asserts itself and will be the victor over error and wrong. When the triumph is complete men will understand truth, not as a principle only, but its actual life, its force and power—its possibilities—it will have been demonstrated to man. Its permanence, its perfection will appear and be comprehended in the subjugation and destruction of lust, sin, and death. Death will be swallowed up in victory. God, nature, and man will then be in harmony; man and nature will be perfected with God. The sublimity, the completeness, the consistency, and comprehensive character of the truth must be conceded by every candid mind who examines and understands it. All benefits past and present have been proportionate to their rightness, all evils have been such in such degree as they have been erroneous.

While it is true that the spirit of man cannot comprehend the things of God, the power to comprehend them—the Spirit of truth—is bestowed by the gospel.

The past and present religious desires and efforts of Heathenism, so called, present a touching picture of the yearnings of the great heart of humanity for peace, and light, and truth; the longings and hopes of children for a Father's consideration and love. It has been and is a piteous appeal for instruction; a touching confession of dependence and need; a heart-plea, a cry for sympathy and care. The inner man has striven for heaven's recognition, has sought for a solution of the problem of existence and being. Socrates and Plato each voiced these aspirations of the heathen world in these respective declarations:—

We must of necessity wait till some one from Him who careth for us shall come and instruct us how we ought to behave towards God and towards men.

We cannot know of ourselves what petition will be pleasing to God, or what worship we should pay to him; but it is necessary that a lawgiver should be sent from heaven to instruct us. O, how greatly do I long to see that man! This lawgiver must be more than man, that he may teach us the things man cannot know by his own nature.

God through the patriarchs, the prophets, and through Israel was reaching down to humanity, striving to enlighten and save. Heathenism in its varied forms of worship was a stretching forth of the heart of humanity to God. Both God and man were united in the Christ; both lines of effort converged in his birth into the world: God so loved the world that he provided for its need, and in every respect, in the gift of his Son. The life and mission of Jesus Christ is the expression of God's wisdom for his children.

The message is unto "all people." We can go to the world with the same statement that the apostle to the Gentiles declared, viz:—

God who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son.

The church is the witness of good tidings unto all nations. We have, therefore, an especial interest in all that indicates the preparation for the preaching of the gospel in all the world and the execution of its educating work among men. As those to whom has been committed the message of reconciliation we hail with gladness the opportunities for action permitted and guaranteed by the dawn and extension of civil and religious liberty in Japan, in the Dark Continent, and elsewhere. The hand of God is visible in the governments of such liberal minds as the Emperor of Japan. Men who give freedom to the world, and foster it, are nature's noblemen. The mission of Christ is designed to bestow the freedom of self-government based upon an understanding of the principles of life and being. For this cause the law of the Spirit is to be engraven upon the heart and to be in the mind.

Civil liberty is the presage of the higher liberty in which the Son is to make men free from sin and ignorance, and from fear and death, by the gospel.

UNION OF CHURCHES.

THERE is an effort on foot, originating in Chicago, to organize a new church. Dr. H. W. Thomas, of the Peoples' Church, Jenkin Lloyd Jones, of All Souls' Church, Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, of Sinai congregation, all of Chicago will be among the chief movers in this effort to unite and create a church that will be broad enough in its religious platform to accommodate all classes of religionists—that is, those who are tired, or are tiring of the restraints that denominational lines necessarily impose.

The following will give an idea of what is expected to be the animus of the movement; and is taken from the Pittsburg Dispatch, for January 25, sent us by Bro. J. S. Parrish:—

These replies were from preachers of liberal religions in all parts of the country. The conference was held at the parliament. In the hustle and bustle of the great meeting it was unnoticed except by those most deeply interested in its deliberations. It was not a large meeting compared with the ones then being held, but it was composed of earnest men and recognized leaders in the liberal religions. They were greatly encouraged by the number of replies and their character that had been received, and the discussion was entered into with much interest. It was agreed that existing relations should not be disturbed, but that the members should stand together and when opportunity offered promote the organization of the new church. It is not proposed that a revolution should at once be instituted, each one of the conference remaining loyal to his own denomination, but it was urged that where there were not enough of one kind of liberal religionists all the liberals should unite and found the sort of a church outlined.

The projectors say that gradually and naturally the old churches will come into the new organization. The pastors of the old churches will be organizers of the new and it is believed that in time the churches now established will become members of the new organization. It is to be given out flatly that this new church is not and does not pretend to be a Christian church. It will not take all of its religion from the texts, but the Bible will not be thrown away. It will be taken from the pulpit and placed in the bookcase.

SAINTS IN NEW ENGLAND.

NOT long since we noticed that a work was being done at Haverhill, Massachusetts; Brn. G. W. Robley, Richard Bullard, and others, laboring there at intervals. The Boston Common, for Sunday, January 7, has a long and very interesting account of an interview of a reporter with Sr. E. L. Henward, formerly a resident of Addison, Maine.

We quote from that interview the bit following:—

Mormonism in New England has spread very fast in the past five years, and in fact for the past fourteen years. One of its first footholds was in Boston, where there are now about a hundred and twenty-five members. This is not so large a number as Boston has had in previous years, for since the work commenced here in 1840 members have been gradually going to other places to start branches. So that when at one time there were over two hundred members in Boston their attention was called to the needs of other places, and many received a "call from God" and hastened away to do their duty in strange fields.

About this time, twenty-five years ago, Providence heard of the Mormon faith for the first time. And Providence seemed to take to the faith with a swoop, so to speak. The two or three families who first went there soon convinced their neighbors that what they believed was not the belief of Brigham Young, and that it was the only true belief, and, as Mr. Bullard said to a Boston Common man, "straightway they forsook their nets and followed."

SEVERAL of the religionists from the far East who were in attendance and taking part in the Parliament of Religions at Chicago, are lecturing throughout the United States. Among them is Rev. B. Nogarken, of Bombay, who is filling engagements in many of the principal cities, lecturing on Hindu life, customs, and religions. He has spoken at Chicago, Milwaukee, Duluth, Des Moines, Rockford, and several other places; being at Cincinnati, Ohio, January 12 to 25. The following is said of his visit to Ann Arbor, Michigan:—

At Ann Arbor, Michigan, the university students thronged to hear him. One of them writes him: "A ray from the 'light of Asia' has come athwart our horizon and illuminated our campus and university like the 'search light' of the exposition. This 'missionary' from the orient, with, as some of the boys said, 'gentleness, earnestness, and tenderness beaming from his face,' captured us all—faculty and students." He adds that he spoke to crowded houses, largely students, and that "the 'message of the Brahma-Somaj' was received with enthusiastic interest, many lingering about him long after he had finished his lecture, with their queries on almost every word he spoke." His lectures are especially calculated to interest intelligent young people.

TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

THE Temple Lot case was opened in the United States Circuit Court at Kansas City, Missouri, February 7, before Judge Phillips. The Judge directed counsel for Complainant and Respondents to file their evidence, which he would go through at his leisure. It is not likely that a decision will be reached for several months. This we glean from a lengthy statement of the suit published in the Kansas City Journal, of February 7, sent us by President Joseph Smith.

The Journal article also contains these statements:—

The main point at issue in the present legal fight is the determination as to which of the contending branches is the real church, and upon that point alone hinges the ownership of the property in question.

The whole question hinges upon which branch of the church is the genuine and original one. The lot is now held by the Hedrickite branch, and the Iowa, or Josephite, branch is seeking to get possession of it. The question for Judge Phillips to decide is which is the original church of the Latter Day Saints. The entire day yesterday was devoted to arguments of counsel in the case. It is not likely that a decision will be reached for several months, for there are many intricate points to be weighed and determined.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Will Judas Iscariot be with Christ at his coming as mentioned in Doctrine and Covenants 28:3?

Ans.—No. Judas Iscariot lost his bishopric, or office in betraying Jesus; and Matthias was chosen in his stead. (See Acts 1:15-26.)

Of the disciples, Jesus himself said:—

While I was with them in the world I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition; that the Scripture might be fulfilled.—John 17:12. (See also Ps. 109:8; Acts 1:20.)

Q.—If not, what is meant by the twelve there mentioned?

A.—The twelve disciples, excluding Judas Iscariot and including Matthias; who remained true to him and his work to the end.

Q.—Is there anything in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants telling us to keep Sunday as Sabbath until further commands are given?

A.—In the latest edition of the Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 119; par. 7, revelation of April 11, 1887, is the following:—

And the Spirit saith further: Inasmuch as there has been much discussion in the past concerning the Sabbath of the Lord, the church is admonished that until further revelation is received, or the quorums of the church are assembled to decide concerning the law in the church articles and covenants, the Saints are to observe the first day of the week commonly called the Lord's day, as a day of rest: as a day of worship, as given in the covenants and commandments. And on this day they should refrain from unnecessary work; nevertheless, nothing should be permitted to go to waste on that day, nor should necessary work be neglected. Be not harsh in judgment but merciful in this, as in all other things. Be not hypocrites nor of those who make a man an offender for a word.

Q.—Where in Doctrine and Covenants is the revelation concerning music?

A.—In the same revelation, of 1887, paragraph six:—

The service of song in the house of the Lord with humility and unity of spirit in them that sing and them that hear is blessed, and acceptable with God; but song with grievous sadness in them that sing and bitterness of spirit in them that hear is not pleasing to God. Therefore, in all the congregations of the people of God, let all strife and contention concerning song service cease; and that the worship in the house of the Lord may be complete and wholly acceptable, let them who shall be moved thereto by a desire and the gift to sing take upon them the burden and care of the service, and use therein instruments of music of the reed and of the string, or instruments of brass in congregations that are large, and as wisdom and choice may direct. Let the young men and the maidens cultivate the gifts of music and of song; let not the middle-aged and the old forget the gladness of their youth and let them aid and assist so far as their cares will permit; and remember that Saints should be cheerful in their warfare that they may be joyous in their triumph. Nevertheless, let the organ and the stringed instrument, and the instrument of brass be silent when the Saints assemble for prayer and testimony, that the feelings of the tender and the sad may not be intruded upon. To facilitate unity in the song service of the church those to whom the work of providing a book of song has been entrusted may hasten their work in its time.

"THE AMERICAN HUMANE EDUCATION SOCIETY."

WE have received "The strike at Shane's," and "Nil Desperandum," two works published by the society above named at No. 19 Milk street, Boston, Massachusetts, in the interests of the effort to secure good, wise, and kind treatment to domestic animals. George T. Angell, the president of the society, is a most enthusiastic worker, and is doing an excellent thing in effecting a change in the treatment of all the useful animals found as accessories to civilized life.

Religion should make a man civil, kind, humane; but it does not always result that way; so, if the work of Pres. Angell and his co-workers can aid in abolishing inhumanity to man or animals we bid him good speed.

"The strike at Shane's," is a companion work to Black Beauty, and is a prize story from Indiana; price ten cents, post paid; address George T. Angell, 19 Milk street, Boston Mass.

THIS tribute to the memory of George W. Childs, the deceased philanthropist, is worthy of note. It bears witness to the worth of a life in which God's image has been reflected by a generous, benevolent nature:—

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 5.—A feeling reference to the death of Mr. Childs was made in the chaplain's opening prayer this morning in the Senate. He said: "While the tolling bell tells of the passing of a noble soul from earth we bless thee for the country and for the national life, through which a boy, born in poverty and obscurity, by industry, temperance, and frugality lifted himself to influence and power and shed beneficence on every hand, yielding happiness by the grace and kindness of his nature, enriching all men's lives with whom he came in contact. We render to thee devout gratitude that there is a land that produces, under the blessing of thy fatherly love, through Jesus Christ, such types and elements of character. We pray that the lesson of this man's life may be read with kindly and reverent hearts by the young men of the whole nation: and so may this man's death be richer in its effects than even the beneficence and sweetness of his life."

THE END OF THE WORLD ACCORDING TO ADVENTISTS.

OUR brethren of the Adventist faith, and who are located at Battle Creek, Michigan, are again being agitated by the idea of the soon coming of Christ. The following going the rounds of the news journals may give an idea of it:—

BATTLE CREEK, Michigan, Jan. 24.—Elder Uriah Smith, head of the Seventh-day Adventist Church here, speaking of the near approach of the end of the world, said: "The end of the world, a change of dispensation, we believe is near at hand. The gospel was to do a specific work in the world to gather out a people for the Lord. Acts 15: 14. This work is nearly accomplished and a change is at hand. The change awaiting the physical world is described in 2 Peter 3: 7. The world will be renewed and be the everlasting abode of the redeemed. Revelation 21: 1. Then will be fulfilled Christ's words in Matthew 5: 5. Mr. Smith also states that the Bible contains many consecutive prophecies, reaching from the remote past to the end, and that the fulfillment of these prophecies can be clearly traced in the history of the world down to the present time. Only the closing events remain to be fulfilled. All the prophetic periods have now expired and, according to the declaration of the Scriptures as they understand them, the end is near. Descriptions of the state of the world in the last days, in its political, social, and moral aspects, as given in the Scriptures, are accurately found in the present condition of affairs. See 2 Tim. 3: 1-5. They are fully persuaded that we have reached the time when these prophetic declarations apply, and that the end of this dispensation is at hand.

BRO. W. C. NUTT wrote from Vera Cruz, Missouri, January 23:—

I am located on the south side of the Ozark Mountains, the right side for successful fruit growing. Our peaches did well last year, when almost a failure elsewhere. Our climate is healthful, up to present date; comfortable without fire, and open doors a good share of the time. Our part of the country is well watered. It is hilly, yet large fields have been made and can be made on top of said hills, fields that lie level enough for all purposes. Good workers in the last ten years have made themselves good homes and good farms; men who plowed the first furrow, and put up the first log house on said farms now live well, have apples, peaches, small fruits, bees, honey. Wheat does well here; people only eat corn bread for a change, that being a matter of choice. Improvements on land not yet proved up can be bought cheap here. Some land is yet subject to homestead. Homestead fee on one hundred and sixty acres is fourteen dollars. Improvements can be bought cheaper than made by purchaser.

Our branch numbers forty-eight members.

About half its membership can meet together in this vicinity conveniently. For the last two weeks Bro. Atwell has been preaching for us. He says he is highly pleased to see the branch take so much interest in making efforts to acquaint the world with the gospel. Some are interested in the work in which we are engaged, and are closely canvassing the position we occupy. May we all work in accord with the law in practice, that our works may be justified, is my prayer.

Why is it that improvements on lands can be bought so cheap as is stated? This may be needed information by those who may think of going there.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

WE have the following from Bro. I. N. White, on the eve of his coming battle with Elder Popplewell at Keighley, Kansas. We take it from a letter to Bro. A. S. Cochran, dated Sherwin, Kansas, the 1st inst.:—

I feel satisfied that I will meet a hornet's nest this time. I feel as calm as a summer's morning; shall trust in Him who is able to direct in the work. On my way here I stopped at Rich Hill and spoke twice to large and interesting crowds. To-night makes four times that I have spoken at Sherwin, and with most excellent freedom. To-morrow I go to Angola; am booked every night till over Sunday, when on Monday I shall drop in onto the battle ground—Keighley. The work is slowly moving in these parts; but we have no preachers to keep up the interest. Bro. R. M. Maloney has been here for a short time, but must now accompany me to other fields. Bro. W. S. Taylor, a good man, is poorly, suffering with lagrippe. Cares of life keep him and others out of the active ministry, hence the work cannot advance as we would like to see it. Some noble Saints are scattered throughout this part of the country. Hope to be remembered.

BRO. R. ETZENHOUSER stopped at Cheyenne, Wyoming, enroute east, whence he wrote February 1:—

On Sunday, the 28th, I was permitted to water the first fruits of the Sunday school of Salt Lake City; two bright scholars of Bro. J. D. Wilson's class. He is also the enterprising superintendent of the school. Mrs. Isabelle Trieves was also baptized. On the 29th, I started east, stopping over night at Bro. Chase's, at Ogden; also with Bro. Frank Rudd, of Rawlins. Was royally entertained by each. I begin services here to-night in the South Side Congregational church. After one week my address will be, No. 55 West Cedar street, Denver, Colorado.

BRO. T. W. WILLIAMS, Council Bluffs, Iowa, February 2:—

We are having good success in our meetings; several are near the kingdom. Bro. C. Scott spoke twice for us during the early part of the week, and now Bro. J. F. McDowell is with us for a day or two. Both have delivered excellent sermons. Considerable sickness again prevails.

BRO. ISAAC N. ROBERTS writes well of the progress being made in his field of labor. In a letter dated Pipestone, Minnesota, February 3, he says:—

I came here from Magnolia, where we had a good meeting; five have given their names for baptism. Will begin here Monday night in the courthouse. My health is better.

BRO. T. W. CHATBURN, Kingston, Missouri, February 5:—

Bro. John Rounds and the writer have just closed a successful series of meetings here. Six were baptized and are rejoicing in the truth, and the Saints are much encouraged. We commence a series of meetings to-night in the M. E. church at Bonanza. Will remain at least one week. We are both well and rejoicing in the help we receive of the Master and in the sheaves gathered in. To God be the praise.

In a note from Temple, Ohio, the 4th inst. Bro. G. T. Griffiths says:—

My wife has been very sick the last few days, but is much better to-day. The brethren of the ministry are all out in the field except Bro. Powell, and he leaves soon. Please remember us in your prayers.

BRO. W. W. McLEOD, Cormorant, Minnesota, February 3:—

Bro. Swen Swenson is now preaching to the Swedish people every night with good interest. He is baptizing some.

BRO. W. C. FETTER, Glenwood, Iowa, January 31:—

Elder J. B. Heide was suddenly called away from us to his home. He left many in and around Glenwood interested in the work, and he will be greatly missed by the Saints and the many friends he has made. We hope to see him again.

BRO. F. M. SLOVER, Wabash, Illinois, February 8:—

Elder J. F. Thomas and I have closed a protracted meeting at this place. I have baptized four, all heads of families; others will follow in the near future. The work of the Lord is onward in this mission, and I am expecting to see many more obey the gospel. It is encouraging to see fathers and mothers, heads of families, receiving the truth. I can see that the way is growing bright, for a large ingathering in the near future.

BRO. HEMAN C. SMITH was at Underwood, Iowa, February 5. In a personal note he says:—

I closed a series of meetings at Galland's Grove on the 1st. The next day one received baptism at the hands of Bro. John Young. Have held three meetings here, which have been well attended; am to continue. Will go to Little Sioux next Saturday to hold forth next week.

R. L. WARE, Baker, Kansas, February 6:—

I just closed a series of meetings in Highland, Kansas, and vicinity. Bro. J. T. and J. A. Davis were present and assisted. Bro. J. R. Davis baptized three. I will hold a series of meetings at Baker.

BRO. C. F. MERRILL, Des Moines, Iowa, February 5:—

Bro. F. A. Smith has been holding meetings every night at Easton Place schoolhouse since January 23, to a full house, with splendid interest. Almost the entire neighborhood come out night after night. Much prejudice is being removed and the Saints are strengthened. We feel confident that some will obey soon. There are more calls for labor in and about Des Moines than ever before.

BRO. J. M. TERRY, St. Joseph, Missouri, February 5:—

We had a splendid social meeting yesterday. It was our sacrament day; a splendid attendance and spiritual feast. Had good audience last night and felt well in addressing them. Two more names for baptism, making four in all; will baptize next Sunday. We think others will also come. Bro. Luff will be glad to learn that Mr. Tadigan and wife are the two referred to—the direct fruits of our series of meetings.

BRO. HENRY KEMP wrote from Emerson, Iowa, as follows:—

Our work is moving along in pretty fair shape. We are busy, doing the best we can. Bro. Heide is making quite a stir in Glenwood of late. He has baptized some.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE list of letters received this week is so lengthy that we are obliged to omit quite a number. We always dislike to withhold a good word from any, but such is inevitable where space is limited. As the work progresses grateful responses of thankful testimony bear witness of the loving-kindness of its Author, in words of praise and wisdom.

The Saints at Freesoil, Michigan, now number seventy. They have opposition sufficient to bring them out and thus give them opportunity to do good and open the eyes of the opposer. Their Sunday school flourishes; they are canvassing for funds to build a house of worship. This Bro. Jacob Kaplinger wrote January 29, expressing a hope for patience in their efforts.

Bro. William M. Kendall lives twelve miles southwest of Hay Springs, Nebraska, to which point he invites elders of that field with the promise of care and good opportunities for work. He knows the work to be true and that others ought to know the knowledge that is power unto life. His letter is an expression of appreciation for the Spirit of truth and an earnest urging upon the scattered Saints to be prayerful lest they become careless and lukewarm. He refers to his mother being healed in answer to request made through the Home Column for prayer.

Bro. W. W. Owens reports unity among the Saints and the consequent blessings of God upon them, at Rhodes, Iowa. Brn. W. C. Nirk and O. B. Thomas have labored for their good in word and doctrine.

Bro. P. Pement and wife, late of Chicago, are now located at Rushford, Minnesota, from which point Bro. Pement writes that he has begun work among his new acquaintances. By vote of his branch he was to be ordained a priest. He awaits the action of those appointed to ordain, when he will begin to preach the word.

Sr. G. A. Thompson—her address Souris P. O., Manitoba—requests prayer that she may be healed of long-standing affliction that to her and her family is a serious detriment. She is far away from Saints and is also denied the privilege of administration of the elders. She would like to hear from any who would write to her.

Bro. John Smith closed a series of meetings at Herndon, Iowa, the latter part of January. He had sectarian opposition, but believes his efforts will result in permanent good for the people and the work.

Brethren S. V. Bailey and William Thompson were at Lineville, Iowa, February 5, holding preaching services.

Brn. J. R. Sutton and J. S. Roth were at Osterdock, Iowa, February 4. They will continue there and at points adjacent for some time.

We have received letters from Brn. James Kemp, Hutchinson, Colorado, and J. W. Vernon, West Oakland, California.

Bro. L. Z. Cook of Angola, Kansas, asks that some of the ministry in Michigan call on his sister, Mrs. Alvira Headley, who resides in Decatur, Van Buren county, Michigan, and who once belonged to a faction of the church.

Bro. M. M. Turpen of the Southeastern mission was at Lamoni during the week of the 7th. He will labor in Missouri and Iowa until General Conference.

Bro. I. P. Baggerly reached home on the 8th inst. He leaves shortly for Missouri points to do mission work.

Letters are received from Brn. J. S. Constance, Cameron, Missouri; J. D. Erwin, Manchester, Texas; M. R. Scott, Galena, Indiana.

Bro. Ray Potter, from Council Bluffs, Iowa, a teacher of vocal and instrumental music, has located at Lamoni with a view to making it his permanent home. He is well known by many of the western Saints and comes recommended as a competent instructor.

By letter from Bro. S. W. L. Scott, dated Knox, Indiana, the 8th inst. we learn that seven had been baptized at that point, the result of a late series of meetings held by Brn. Scott and W. J. Smith. Many others had heard the word with interest; prospects of further additions were good.

Bro. J. R. Lambert occupied the pulpit in the morning service of Sunday the 11th inst., at Lamoni, Bro. Alexander H. Smith preaching in the evening.

President Joseph Smith and Bishop E. L. Kelley went to Kansas City, Missouri, on the 5th inst. to attend the trial of the Temple Lot Suit. Bishop Kelley returned on the 10th accompanied by his brother, P. P. Kelley, Esq., one of the counsel for the Reorganized Church in the suit.

A personal letter from Bro. L. R. Devore dated Aratua Island, Oceanica, December 25, reports that he has been in the "low dangerous archipelago"—the "Tuamotio group"—since August. He says he is still on the go though his health is much shattered. Sr. Devore's health is also quite poor, so that she can no longer venture from isle to isle in the small native boats. Two or three years of such modes of travel will seriously affect the health of any woman, he thinks. This source of danger to health will be greatly modified if not corrected when the gospel boat is at the disposal of the missionaries. Sr. Devore is at work, teaching and interpreting in Tahiti as health permits. Bro. Devore has labored of late on islands seldom visited.

"We feed on husks, while fruits hang round us blushing in mellow fragrance; and our thirst we slake from foulest cesspools,

While cool well springs gushing
Lave our unconscious feet,
We toil and dream of future worlds of bliss
Ne'er thinking of our power to make a heaven of this."

OUR SOCIETIES.

DEAR SISTER WALKER:—We arrived here in our mountain home yesterday after an absence of eight months, and it is scarcely necessary to say how grateful and happy I feel, and how much I shall enjoy a few months of quiet and the relaxation that home affords. Yet I have enjoyed myself going from place to place, and mingling with the Saints of different branches. All were kind and extended a cordial welcome to us wherever we went. There is an awakening interest among the Saints of California as well as elsewhere, and because of the spiritual feasts enjoyed from time to time, we were reluctant to leave each community.

I was present with the Saints of San Bernardino at the organization of the Daughters of Zion, which took place the second Thursday in November. This day was selected for the purpose of combining the Prayer Union with the Daughters of Zion meeting, by having a short season of prayer for their families, etc.—in harmony with all others who met on that day for the same purpose,—and afterward to take up the programme for the Daughters of Zion. This was suggested and agreed upon before we learned that any others had adopted the same rule, yet in one locality they had preceded us; and now many others are following. (Right here I may say I see no reason why each subject set apart for the different weeks may not all be remembered in prayer by different individuals as they may be led, and thus unite the Prayer Union with the Daughters of Zion, and let the one meeting a month suffice. Thus much time would be saved also research in preparing the memory texts. I for one think it far better to unite the Prayer Union with the Daughters of Zion than with the Mite Society, since it is the aim of the Daughters of Zion to bring to pass, as far as in them lies, what the mothers are praying for concerning their families. I have given this simply as a suggestion for others to think of.)

There was a good degree of the Spirit, love, and unity enjoyed by the sisters at the organization of which I speak, and I felt as if I would like to remain and meet with them again; but our time was up and we left the day following for Santa Ana, thence to Garden Grove. During our entire stay at the last named places I was the victim of asthma and pneumonia, through which sickness I am indebted to Sr. Mary Betts for kind and careful nursing. The damp and heavy atmosphere of that region made it necessary for me to hasten away; so as soon as strength would permit, Mr. Burton and I went to Los Angeles. There too the good Spirit was with us, and with the Saints. The few young people of Los Angeles branch—sisters mostly—deserve credit and encouragement for their faithful attendance and the active part they have so steadily maintained in both church and Sunday school, even when the interest was at a low ebb. Of late there has been more to encourage. Two young women have been added to the branch who will, we have no doubt, be a great help to them. A few days before we left Los Angeles Mr. Burton was present at one of their Zion's Religion meetings and was invited to give them an address. Heretofore he had not given the subject much investigation, and though he approved of the move, was not so strong an advocate as many others. But while speaking, the Spirit of the work came upon him and he saw how great a work it was, and how necessary and how far-reaching. And also that of the Daughters of Zion. How I wish every daughter of Zion could have been present while the Spirit of the Lord unfolded some of the events of the future and revealed in part the magnitude of their work and its ultimate perfect system and organization. Be encouraged, Daughters of Zion, for surely the Lord has brought about this work. And who shall say the time and work have not been hastened by the fervent prayers offered up unitedly by the mothers in behalf of "their families and the families of each other"? Can we believe in a prayer-answering God, and go on from year to year praying for a certain end or condition without expecting that God will work by means to bring about those conditions? We believe that God is working in the hearts of his people to bring to pass much righteousness, "to will and to do of his good pleasure." And we hail with joy every system instituted for that purpose. Who is not ready to commend even a woman who seeks to lift up the fallen, to remove the burdens of pain and care, to visit the sick, and minister to the poor and needy? And if commendable in one, why not in many? Is it less the fruits of the gospel in the heart for a society to perform those duties than for an individual?

Christ said, "I will build my church," and the prophet of our day declares that the church is not yet builded, but that the work of building is still going on. Are the women any part of the church? If so they must be included in the "building." Do those who are ready to put their foot upon any movement in the church that is conducted or presided over by the sisters think that the whole female portion of the world are, and are to be as nonentities in the kingdom of God? It is only reasonable to conclude that they must (if a part of the body of Christ which the Apostle Paul compares to a human body) have their place and portion of work to perform in and for the sustaining of the "body."

Think of the hands of the human body, how many services they perform, and how crippled the body would be without them, yet they are not the head nor the eyes. I adopt the apostle's reasoning and say because the sisters are not of the priesthood, are they not of the body? And the apostle says farther, that "the eye cannot say to the hand, I have no need of thee." But if I believe that "those members which seem to be more feeble [the weaker sex] are necessary" to the perfecting of the body, is it a foregone conclusion that they are to rule, aggrandize, or usurp? Nay, but I trust that God is "tempering" the body with wisdom and knowledge. And I have had reason to believe that instead of the organization of the Daughters of Zion being an unprofitable or harmful innovation, it will eventually culminate into a working system (I will say, for want of a better word) honored of God and fruitful in its work of preparation, and that the Lord's workmen for the "building" of the church on earth, added one more timber when they in conference voiced their consent, sanction, and approval of the organization.

SISTER EMMA.

MOUNT OLIVET, California.

TEMPLE, Ohio, May 26.

Dear Sisters:—More than three years have passed since my last writing; I have received during that time, from your letters, great comfort and consolation in the hours of my affliction. I feel my indebtedness to God for his promise to me. It was this: "I the Lord God will be eyes, ears, and strength unto thee. Be thou patient and I will watch over thee for good." O how faithfully that has been fulfilled! In my admiration for the gospel of Christ I am often carried away to the bright future, when I with others shall have learned our duty by the things we have suffered. Then shall we come up higher, and higher; then will it be seen in our countenances that the word of God is established in our hearts.

To the aged mothers of Zion let me say, Be of Good cheer. Pray for the welfare of Zion. Pray for our children and the young people of God, and many of us will live to see the desire of our hearts fulfilled, yea, in families least expected. I have passed three-score years, and I am but now realizing the importance of the latter-day work. May God help us to contend for the faith once delivered to his people, even that which was manifested in the fiery furnace and the lion's den. May God speed the efforts of the brethren is the prayer of

Your sister in the one faith,
MARY GILLESPIE.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SR. LUCY BARROWS writes from Salt Lake, Utah, that a few of the sisters meet together every week. One week they give the time to sewing and the next devote it to prayer and testimony, and though they are few in number God meets with them and blesses them abundantly by the power of his Holy Spirit. She says: "My whole soul is in the work, and if it was not for the faith I have in God's promises, I would be discouraged indeed. It has been the uppermost thought in my mind ever since I was old enough to comprehend the gospel and its truth, to be counted worthy to be a child of God, and also to be gathered with his people on the promised land. What is this world's goods compared to a home in Zion with the pure in heart! I often feel that the time is very near when these blessings will be given to the Saints. If we are but willing to put away self and become humble in his sight and seek with full purpose of heart the sooner will the redemption of Zion be. If we but look around us we can see his predictions coming to pass upon every hand. Are we preparing for the hastening time? The Lord said he would cut his work short in righteousness, and truly we can see that the time is upon us.

"I often think if we were with the main body of the Saints, it would not be so hard to walk in the narrow way; but I realize that we do not always know what is for the best. I want always to be willing to do my part and leave the rest with God." Dear Sr. Lucy, has the thought ever come to you that in every army there must be those who are stationed upon the outposts? The army of the Lord forms no exception to the rule. This post of danger is the post of honor and those who occupy it are far less likely to sleep at their post than those right in the center of the encampment. We see this illustrated almost every day of our lives. Each position has its peculiar trials and temptations; but while the company of God's people is cheering and greatly to be desired, to our mind it is far better to be awake on the outposts than asleep in the city.

Sr. Maria Tankard writes from Kansas City expressing her deep interest in the Sunday school movement and the attention being given to the young, but feels the grave importance of fathers and mothers working in perfect harmony. She desires to be lovingly remembered by all her sisters, especially those in her native home, England.

KEIGHLEY, Kan., Feb. 8.

Editors Herald.—The war is on in earnest. Popplewell came loaded with a grip and a trunk full of such trash as Beadle, Stenhouse, Lee, B. Young's Nineteenth Wife, W. P. Brown, E. Robinson, Whitmer, et al. The moderators saw fit to let them "all in." I did not raise an objection because the Saints have been persecuted here and browbeaten by Campbellite lecturers exposing Mormonism, and everything from the slums of Brighamism down to other apostates have been hurled against them; I felt that it needed a man who did not fear to beard the lion in his den.

I am here to take no back seat, which they have learned already. Joseph Smith has been branded with everything a slanderous tongue could invent. Although I have completely flooded my opponent with argument from a Bible standpoint upon the question, "Do the Holy Scriptures teach that Joseph Smith was a true prophet sent from God," he has but little time to devote to that kind of argument. My Bible argument has been unanswerable and has at times completely captivated the congregation; but the flood of trash poured in benumbs the brightening influence, for the time being at least. We have dealt out some terrible blows against his vituperous allegations against Joseph.

I have notably felt the Spirit of my calling, and can but thank God that I have by him been thought worthy to represent his cause.

Popplewell stuck for only one session (night) each for our respective churches; and two sessions upon Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. Finally we came to an agreement for two and one half sessions for each proposition, making ten nights in all. Good house to speak in and house full.

Hastily yours,

I. N. WHITE.

KNOX, Ind., Jan 29.

Editors Herald.—We are still battling. Last evening the house was crowded, as it has been on most every occasion. My work was retarded somewhat by the grip attacking me. In the very height of interest I was sick. We sent for Bro. W. J. Smith. He came Saturday and baptized one yesterday. We go to-day ten miles east. Three are to be baptized there. I worked during my sickness to keep up interest. I am recovering strength rapidly.

Yours in hope,

S. W. L. SCOTT.

POCATELLO, Idaho, Jan. 23.

Editors Herald.—I am inclined to think that some of my letters might lead you and others to believe I was losing faith in this mission; but my hope and confidence in the ultimate triumph of our work here are as firm as ever; indeed, I see much to encourage.

In my former letters I have stated the facts as they appeared to me at the time, with the view to not inspire a hope that would not be realized as soon as some might expect, and produce different results from that hoped for. All the conversions that have been made by the church here are in our favor, and must be largely attributed to our work and its influences.

Our positions in relation to the laws of the land and polygamy were the correct ones. From the time we began to define the positions the church occupied on these two questions, every stroke counted, and when the liberal element in Utah got to see the true situation, they readily stood with us upon the legal status of the case.

When Governor Murray, Judge Rainsford Smith, of Ogden, and others held the "Josephites" up to the world as law-abiding people, and yet advocating the original faith and doctrine of the church, it began to be felt both in Utah and abroad. The line was so clearly drawn between church and state that the nation saw the course to pursue, and acted promptly in regard to polygamy, and prevailed. The Reorganized Church had clearly marked the way and made it plain. Polygamy was a crime, and the laws of the land alone must deal with that, for God had made it so.

I believe that through political agencies all the sweets of liberty are to be enjoyed, religiously and otherwise. In discussing national and other political questions, men begin to hear, think, and see; and as they hear and think they begin to reason, and talk, and act; and if questioned as to rights, they readily assert their liberty and declare themselves to be free. So when the time comes to discuss church matters, and that time is hastening on, men will discuss them just as freely as they do the political issues. Because of these agencies a pressure was brought to bear upon the church here until it abandoned polygamy.

You remember how on one occasion Elder John Nicholson accused you and the Tribune people with combining to persecute or overthrow them, and how you told them we were free from any combination, only as we stood with all American citizens. I remember the substance of that talk. It was in the Deseret News office. Now the tables are turned; the church has been converted to the fact that polygamy must be abandoned, and has acted, thus literally conceding that the Josephites were right.

And on the second proposition they have been converted to the political doctrines of the nation, and thus stand with us and the very people they claimed were seeking their overthrow. The church people now, apostles and prophets, have received all of the Liberal rank and file with open arms; and the Tribune, once denounced from the Presidency of the church down to the least as utterly unreliable and the vilest of the vile, is now quoted by Republicans, and the Republican press in Utah as authority. When those people saw as we did, and just as they still see to-day, it was a combination to destroy; but now the church is converted to the national side of the question. It has been sanctified by that conversion and by that will be crowned with Statehood. Judges Goodwin, Powers, and others, who but a few short months ago were regarded by all the church people, Democrats and Republicans, as almost next to his Satanic Majesty, have been raised to honor. Instead of "Boss" Powers, he is now "the Hon. O. W. Powers," the Grand Sachem of Democracy. To give the correct idea, I quote from a Republican paper, the Logan Nation:—

"So far, Allen and Varian have assumed the leadership of the Republicans in the House, and the Democrats unanimously acknowledge Powers as their champion. We can't help but note what a great change of heart some of the latter party must have undergone quite recently, for less than six months ago it was the unanimous verdict of them all that the Grand Sachem was little better than his Satanic Majesty. Of course it is right to forgive Powers if he has repented, but we can hardly reconcile the idea with that heretofore advocated by the Herald, 'Once a guerrilla, always a guerrilla.'"

The editor of the Nation is a Republican and member of the Utah Mormon Church, and this is what he says about Judge Goodwin.

"It is with pleasure we announce that Judge C. C. Goodwin, Editor of the Salt Lake Tribune, will deliver an address at the Agricultural College, Friday evening, the 19th inst., at three p. m. The Judge is one of the most pleasant speakers in Utah, always keeping his hearers in the best of humor and making every word count. . . . All past differences are buried. Let them be forgotten. Let us all meet on one common plane as American citizens and brothers."

All the past is to be forgotten; the hatchet has been consigned to the grave; those cruel enemies have smoked the pipe of peace with the apostles and prophets, have been cleansed from their war paint, absolved from all past offences, and promoted as the grand sachems of political liberty, honor, and virtue in Utah. It does one's soul good to hear and see the great things that are being done on the earth. In less than six months the people in Utah have surrendered to the chief they were once at war with, they have held a love feast, and are now living at peace. It is a source of comfort to me to see the rapid and radical changes that the church has made. Occupying the position we do we can surely see the hand of God in these wonderful changes.

While to all appearances there is no disposition upon the part of the church here towards us, there is a kindly feeling exhibited, and I am free to say that from the kindly spirit now manifest I hope for better things by and by. I find a disposition upon the part of many to post themselves in the history, faith, and doctrine of the church. I had a friendly chat the other day with Andrew Jensen. He told me he was getting up something for us to meet. I told him we would try to meet fairly whatever might come. He confidently expressed the thought that we would be converted to their side of the house. He thinks half our members are just barely holding on and will soon turn their way. I told him that the concessions had all been towards us, and I as confidently looked for conversions to come from that way. I do certainly look for a time when the faith and doctrine of the church here will be canvassed upon its merits, and tested by the standards of the church that both bodies have adopted: when all of these harsh and bitter sayings of Brigham and others will be left out. The weapons of contest should be the standards of the church, and let the victory be the Lord's.

Yours in bonds,

R. J. ANTHONY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 18.

Editors Herald.—I do not think there is a mortal on earth that appreciates more what the blessed Lord has done for him than I do. I thank him that amid the surroundings into which I was born and educated I did not fail to see the glorious light of the everlasting gospel when it came by the hand of those whom he had chosen. My heart swells with gratitude to God that he has condescended in his loving kindness to permit me to represent him among men.

It is no light thing to be a servant of the Lord, and we are unprofitable at best, "seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things."

We have nothing of our own, if this be true: "I, the Lord, stretched out the heavens, and builded the earth as a very handy work; and all things therein are mine; and it is my purpose to provide for my saints, for all things are mine; but must needs be done in mine own way; and behold this is the way, that I, the Lord, have decreed to provide for my saints; that the poor shall be exalted, in that the rich are made low; for the earth is full, and there is enough and to spare; yea, I prepared all things, and have given unto the children of men to be agents unto themselves. Therefore, if any man shall take of the abundance which I have made and impart not his portion, according to the law of my gospel, unto the poor, and the needy, he shall, with the wicked, lift up his eyes in hell, being in torment."—D. and C. 101:2.

According to this word of the Lord, we have more to do than to become members of the church. We have just put ourselves in a condition that we labor "according to the law of my gospel," which will bring to us happiness. "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed." "He became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me."

I feel more and more the need of doing every day I live. "Why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" applies to Saints as much as anyone else. A great many people seem to think that because they have been baptized and confirmed and have received evidence of the divine character of the work, that they are secure. A greater delusion never darkened the mind of man. "Whom he did foreknow, he did also predestinate," call, justify, and glorify. (Rom. 8:29, 30.) What did he know about them? That they would do the works that would entitle them to justification and to receive his glory. "So then everyone of us shall give account of himself to God." An account of what? Of his conduct, of course. "I declare unto you the gospel, . . . wherein ye stand; by which ye are saved . . . unless ye have believed in vain." "What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? Can faith save him?" "Wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?" "For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also." "Well, what can I do?" says one. Pay your tithing; do what the Lord says if you do not do he will condemn you for. "Brother so and so has lots of money and he does not help much." You do not have to answer for him; it would not alter your case if he gave all he had. Let us be wise stewards, but harmless as doves.

In the hope of eternal life,

NEVADA, Mo., Feb. 1.

Editors Herald.—I was at Rich Hill for fifteen days, and preached sixteen sermons. Bro. I. N. White came in on Saturday and preached twice. A much better feeling exists in the branch to-day. On Wednesday I baptized two noble men of the city, Thomas C. Welch and Jonas L. Oliphant. They have stood on picket guard for some time. Their noble wives obeyed some time ago and have stood steadfastly for the cause. Bro. Welch says his father belongs to the Christian Church, and but a few weeks ago his father told him that he was the last man he supposed that talked with Joseph Smith, as he lived near Carthage, Illinois; he called to see Joseph Smith in the prison, and the latter said to him, "I shall never leave this place alive." Mr. Welch replied, "O, I guess not." Joseph then said, "My time has come to leave this world." And then he said to Mr. Welch, looking out the window, "Do you see that squad of men down there?" Mr. Welch said yes. Joseph then said, "That don't mean anything good." Mr. Welch left the man of God, and before he got to the square he heard the reports of the guns. Mr. Welch's father says Joseph Smith was a good man.

Yours very truly,

J. C. FOSS.

AMADORE, Mich., Jan. 31.

Editors Herald.—We are having big times here; the whole surrounding country is ablaze with the gospel. There is good sleighing, and the people are coming for miles to hear what they call the new doctrine. Bro. J. A. Grant is with me.

The crowds got so large that one house would not accommodate or even furnish standing room for the hearers. The people concluded to get another, and accordingly secured the Black River schoolhouse; and this week we are holding meetings in both houses. They are three miles apart. Bro. J. A. occupies the Teet's schoolhouse, while the writer holds forth in the schoolhouse at Black River. Both houses are full each night.

The sectarian preachers are raging; they come to our meetings and at the close tell the people we are false prophets and deceivers, and that the Bible does not mean just as it reads, etc. One old Baptist preacher told the people he could explode the doctrine if he had a chance; so I told him I would give him a chance; I offered to enter into joint discussion at once and try titles from a scriptural standpoint. So a vote was taken to that effect, and nearly every hand went up; and lo, the would-be monster crawled into his shell and told the people that past experience had taught him not to hold joint discussions. Upon cross-examination it was found that Brn. W. J. Smith and J. J. Cornish had each met him in joint discussion. I then told the people that we ought to excuse him, for a burnt child was always afraid of the fire. The people saw he was afraid to face the matter, and accordingly let him go.

Every old Bible is hunted in these parts and is being searched daily to see if what we say is true. We are both enjoying splendid liberty and good health. Bro. John in his smooth way is fast making the people understand the gospel, while the writer in his clumsy way of handling the two-edged sword is very apt to cut off a preacher's head, especially if he is found trying to clog the wheels of the gospel train. But who can help it? The Lord made the sword, and it is sharp on both sides; and, wield it which way you may, it will cut.

In conclusion I will say the gospel banner is fast being planted in these parts never to be taken down by sectarian preachers. May it continue to unfurl, is the prayer of your brother.

RAY, Ind., Jan. 25.

Editors Herald:—I have just closed a two-weeks' meeting four miles east of Angola, the county seat of this county. I preached sixteen sermons during the two weeks, and although I cannot say as many of my brethren can that I have been blessed the past two years with extra power and liberty in presenting the truth, yet I do not remember ever preaching sixteen sermons in succession with as good liberty as the series I have just closed. Nor have I often seen as much interest manifested in a new place as was there. I shall try to follow the suggestion of Bro. Haws and, by making my circuit small, get around to those new places lately opened up before "the enemy" has time to sow and reap a crop of tares where wheat might just as well have been grown. I am not easily flattered, so far as expecting to see whole neighborhoods rush into the church is concerned, but I feel hopeful of seeing a few of the honest in heart obey the gospel in the near future. To this end I shall try to labor.

The Saints of Clear Lake branch are moving along; well, I should say "neither cold nor hot." There is plenty of room to improve, spiritually; but they are a generous, kind-hearted, whole-souled band of Saints, who know how to make it pleasant for the missionary. While life lasts I shall certainly remember with a grateful heart their kindness to me, and, if I should be so lucky as to reach the "golden shore," in the "sweet bye and bye," my happiness would be greatly increased by seeing them enjoy a rich reward for the same from the hand of my heavenly Father.

LEE'S SUMMIT, Mo., Jan. 31.

Editors Herald:—Being a constant reader of the Herald I feel a desire to contribute my mite before its many readers. It being an acknowledged fact that our church organ is improving in usefulness, I shall not attempt to weary anyone by describing my appreciation of it, but suffice to say that I consider the price of the Herald very meager indeed in comparison to the amount of knowledge that your humble brother has been able to gain therefrom for, I trust, future service in this latter-day work. I notice that the ministry take an active interest in the Letter Department, and I think that is the way it should be, for we thus get a fair estimate of how the work is progressing in the various fields.

As I read Bro. J. F. McDowell's late letter I realized a new inspiration to be more willing and zealous in active work for the Master. He said, "Why not every one who has named the name of Christ be earnestly engaged in the good cause? Why not, if professing to be Saints, be willing, ready workers, instead of being murmurers and standers by, obstacle creators, etc.?" We read of our Savior that he went about doing good, and that it was meat and drink for him to be doing the will of the Father who had sent him. It is quite evident that he was earnest and diligent in all things.

In noting Bro. James Cocks' letter in last Herald I find that his experiences were similar to mine when I came to this place a short time ago. To pray and to testify was a heavy burden to me, and oftentimes after having prayed I made an inward resolution that I would never attempt to pray again in public; but, thanks be to God, I did not give up but continued on in weakness, and through persistent efforts I have grown in grace and in the knowledge of the truth, and now instead of the service of the house of God being a burden on my soul it has become a pleasure; yea, a labor of love; and I can truly say with the Psalmist, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord." In this new year let us all renew our faith and strive to show ourselves approved of God.

Bro. C. Dupuy is our presiding officer, and I feel grateful to my heavenly Father for the liberty he has in presenting the word. May the Lord abundantly bless him in his labors, and also his amiable wife who is so kind and hospitable to all the Saints. We have an interesting Sunday school here, though the attendance has been small for some time owing to so much sickness. I consider the lesson leaves a grand help in studying the Scriptures, for they throw so much light upon the different subjects. I would be pleased to see the General Association adopt some appropriate series of songs for the benefit of the Sunday school work, as we need them very much in our school.

I feel to rejoice when I see so many little children attending the Sunday school, for then we older ones have an excellent opportunity to impart unto them the pure principles of the gospel in its fullness; and it is pleasing unto the Lord that the little children be instructed, as we find in Doctrine and Covenants. I hope to ever work in this department of the work, for it is honorable and as creditable as any other organization for good, and therefore fully entitled to the guidance of the Spirit of God in all its work.

Yours in the faith,

F. J. PIERCE.

KINGSTON, Mo., Feb. 2.

Editors Herald:—For three weeks Bro. G. H. Hilliard and myself have been "doing" our district, having visited all the principal branches. To say the district was ripe for his teaching is better evidenced by the fact that everywhere he captured the hosts, and almost without exception the brethren were aroused to duty. Over five thousand dollars will be the "beginning of tithing" in this district during the next year, at least. He is the right man in the right place, and we love his straightforward, manly way of presenting the word. The masterly manner in which he enters the fight soon conquers the enemy and sets our brethren to "chewing bark," "drinking water," and paying the Lord his dues. We pray God to give him strength to battle on until the final triumph shall have been realized. Come again, brother, and you will find a hearty welcome in the old Far West district.

We hereby extend our thanks to the officers of the various branches for their hearty welcome and response to our worthy brother, and also for the good condition of each branch, in that everything seemingly was prepared for the reception and occupying of higher ground. O, how it cheers my heart to see such unity, and to feel that we are "coming up higher," and that God is working with his people! May he help each to put into practice the grand resolutions made that the promised blessings may be ours to enjoy. The battle is on, brethren; be steady all along the line. Although the struggle may be fierce, 'tis only the foe's despairing; "for each other let us pray." Yours in bonds,

T. W. CHATBURN.

HUTCHINSON, Colo., Jan. 9.

Editors Herald:—When reading Bro. Davis' letter and I came to Bro. Holden's dream I saw the first stream and at its head the name in large golden letters, "Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." The archway is the power of God that established the church, and their crossing it is the connection they had with the Old Church; and when they went through the gate was when they drifted off among other churches.

I saw on the mountain at the head of the four streams in dark, dingy letters, "Churches." This mountain is the source whence these churches came, or in other words, the Church of Rome; and when he saw the daystar, it is the light that he is getting from the Reorganized Church. Before he came to the gate and passed through he had plenty of room to stay away from the churches, but when he passed through the gate he has to seek to the daystar that arises in his heart. If he does not return to the daystar he will run his chances of the mountain grinding him to powder.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Jan. 28.

Editors Herald:—I am much pleased to note the progress and improvements made from time to time in our bright and entertaining Herald. We look for its weekly visit upon which we feast our intellects, as regularly as we do for the necessary means to satisfy our physical growth, and if through some defect in "Uncle Sam's" mailing facilities it is delayed beyond the appointed time in reaching us, we are much disappointed and just a little impatient and annoyed; but we very seldom have any cause for thus feeling, and when we consider the matter it is really astonishing with what regularity they come to us. I know I but echo the sentiment of the great majority of our people when I say, "I do not see how we could get along without it."

Expression in differences of opinion, it seems to me, should not be held as objectionable and unwise, provided courtesy and brotherly love are manifested in the discussion. It stimulates thought and research, which is growth to every one exercised thereby. I am glad, however, that the management have decided that questions under discussion must be treated in an affirmative sense without reference to what another has said, leaving the reader to judge of the correctness or incorrectness of either or both positions taken. It seems to me the days of sarcasm and innuendoes should be relegated to the "dark ages" of the past; if one cannot sustain his point in a clear, straightforward statement of his case, it had better be left unformulated.

The work in this part of the district is moving ahead slowly; no great gains as yet; it seemingly being a time of sowing. Interest is increasing in the branches of Conneaut township, Pennsylvania, and Warren, Ohio, to which my individual labors are confined on account of my situation in a secular sense, and the failure of the different railroad companies to understand the necessities of the case in arranging their time tables to enable me to return to my work in time for Monday morning. Bro. Bond has lately been preaching to full houses in our church at Conneaut township, with apparently deep interest, until the roads became so deep as to make it too hard for teams. He is worthy of the high esteem in which he is held at that point, and I thank the good Father for such noble "defenders of the faith." The Saints at Warren are striving along under many discouragements, few in number, and because of bigotry and prejudice forced to meet in each other's houses, but they are doing a work that will sometime bear good fruit. It is to me a remarkable fact that in all the preaching I have been privileged to do there the past three years I have been signally blessed with liberty. If we only had a church building we could have the largest attendance of any people who hold divine services. I firmly believe that this fact was one of the causes leading to the closing of a church building against us which our elders obtained when first we began holding services there. We all sadly miss the companionship and influence of our departed sister, Carrie Shafer, who was always so active in the advancement of the cause so precious to her. She was a diligent student of the Scriptures and always watchful to wisely bear a witness for the truth. She did a good work, and her rest must be glorious. Bro. Parrish labored effectively in a week's visit there recently, not only confirming the Saints, but wisely visiting the strangers and endeavoring to interest them in the truth. He is a wise builder, full of charity, and withal a pleasant companion.

The Ensign and Autumn Leaves come to us filled with good things occupying spheres seemingly their own, and the record the good angel is making of their work must surely be a constant joy to those who read it as it is made. My heart is full of thanksgiving for such earnest, persistent, toiling laborers in the vineyard of the Lord. What a monument to the untiring energy, zeal, and devotion of Sr. Walker is the Autumn Leaves to-day; and this can well be said without a thought of disparagement to the faithful and efficient work of the Srs. Burton, Stebbins, Kelley, Robinson, and a host of brave, bright, gifted handmaidens of the Lord who are doing such telling work in our church publications. Future generations will call them blessed, should the present one fail to appreciate such services and sacrifices. I am thoroughly in accord with the thought that woman's work is fully as important as that of the sterner sex in the work of the Lord, and he is daily demonstrating that fact in bringing them into spheres of such prominence and usefulness by which the Saints both old and young are benefited and improved. The Daughters of Zion and Zion's Religio-Literary Society are both, in my estimation, "organizations for good," and as such approved and acknowledged of the Lord in the blessings and advancement being accomplished. Thank the Father for the disposition among his people to heed the call to "come up higher" as given through his chosen servant in these latter days.

My heart is in this work, and I greatly rejoice in the talent being employed in its service. Speed on the day when a redeemed people sanctified in the observance of the word shall inherit a city whose builder and maker is God. Hopefully,

W. H. GARRETT.

GUIDE ROCK, Neb., Feb. 2.

Editors Herald:—I arrived here two days ago in answer to a call from Sr. Fiske stating that her husband was very sick and desired to be administered to. He is now very much better. I preached last night to a fair congregation at Bro. Parson's, a few miles from Guide Rock, and expect to remain here a few days, and then go to a point near Chester where I effected an opening with the assistance of Bro. Ezra T. Bryant some time ago.

I have been at Wilber about four weeks superintending matters connected with the church at that place. It has only been built a few years, but it was sadly in need of repairs. The plaster was falling off the ceiling in large patches; several window lights were broken; we had no house for fuel; and, in fact, it needed a general fixing up. Hard times had set in, and money seemed scarce, but we concluded that something had to be done at once. On New Year's day a business meeting was held and a committee appointed with the writer as chairman to raise funds and repair the church as thoroughly as possible.

We feel that we have been greatly prospered in our effort. We solicited help not only from the members but also from our friends, and we succeeded beyond our expectations. We received not only money but many words of cheer and encouragement from people not of our faith. The newspapers noticed our efforts and commended us as a people worthy of assistance, and altogether we believe that the effort was a success not financially alone, but also as bringing our claims as a religious body more prominently before the people. We collected and expended in money and other donations nearly one hundred and fifty dollars. We now have a building that is a credit to the branch.

While at Wilber I preached two discourses in the Lutheran church by invitation of the pastor. I also preached twice at the Methodist church. I consider the prospect good at Wilber as also at many other points in the district. Your brother in Christ,

CHARLES H. PORTER.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South is making preparations to celebrate its jubilee. June 8, 1894, will make fifty years since the adoption of "the plan of separation," in pursuance of the provisions of which the Methodist Episcopal Church South became a separate ecclesiastical jurisdiction.

OUR LIBERTIES ARE IN THE LAW.

THE law governing the heavenly bodies, as taught by astronomy, is to us a system of grandeur, a type of perfection, a world of exquisite precision and beauty. Its untold billions of planets moving in their respective orbits at the rate of three to thirty miles per second, notwithstanding their ponderous proportions, fly through space without a jar or a quiver; each keeping its place; each performing the duties assigned it; and all in harmony, grandeur, and perfection.

We enter a modern manufacturing establishment where from fifty to a thousand persons are employed. We notice that every individual has his specific duties; he has no time to meddle with his neighbor's work, and indeed, if he should presume to do so, should suffer reprimand and perhaps discharge; the prosperity of the entire plant depends upon the individual performance of duty, and thus, the end sought is attained.

The human body is an example of supreme perfection and order; and in a normal condition a symmetrical workshop. All of its finely fashioned organs, glands, canals, and tubes with numberless aids blend in harmony to the one grand object; that is, to replenish the body, the house of the spirit from the earth, the water, and the air. Each organ is respected in its order, and is equally honorable and important; one organ cannot with impunity leave its own work to discharge the functions of another; each must individually play its own part or the entire body will suffer loss.

Therefore, if the mechanical energies of the body of man furnish us with a proper illustration of the body of Christ, the church, the law governing this spiritual body should, indeed, command our highest respect and most profound loyalty; for if the organic action of the body symbolizes the organic order of the church, how forcibly we must be impressed with the conviction that transgressing or trespassing the unity and order of such organization leads to disaster, confusion, and shame, and prevents the end sought from being realized, for the reason that the source of our nourishment and dependence is then withdrawn. The Lord does not dwell in unholy temples: "Know ye not," says Paul, "that ye are the temple of God?" "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy." Hence the imperative necessity of every individual member and quorum composing the body of Christ adhering strictly to the duties imposed upon him in order that a healthful organism may be maintained and perfected.

We are told that all members of the body are alike honorable in the sight of God. There is no personal superiority; every man who honors the law by adhering to it is entitled to all the honors concomitant with his service; for God is no respecter of persons.

Allow me to offer a few thoughts upon one of the important divisions or quorums of this spiritual body,—the twelve apostles,—and see if perchance we may not be disrespectful of their calling and thereby retard the progress of the good work. They are said to be, “a traveling, presiding high council” a body of presidents; their mission, under the advisory prerogatives of the First Presidency, is to unlock the door of the kingdom of God to all nations; first unto the Gentiles and then unto the Jews. They are to preach the gospel, plant churches, and regulate all the affairs of the same. They are to counsel, advise, and direct the spiritual movements of the church; and to be upheld, honored, and sustained by the body in righteousness; and where they cannot themselves go, they are to call upon the Seventy, who being endowed with the spirit of apostles, their work shall be alike binding.

Hence we see that the church is dependent upon the jurisprudence of this quorum (under the counsel of the First Presidency) for its life and vital energies; it holding not only the manufacturing and utilizing proclivities, but also the eliminating or casting off through their aids the poisonous infectives or worn tissue matter that may burden the body or impede its healthful action. If, therefore, the body be diseased in any of its parts, in limb, joint, or muscle—to whom should it seek for relief? Answer, to the traveling presiding high council—the Twelve. If questions should arise in any part of the body concerning the spiritual welfare of the same on doctrine, organization, fellowship, disorderly walkers, sacrament, or marriage, to whom should the body appeal for instruction? Answer, the Twelve. See the mission work of Paul the Apostle, giving instruction on all of these points mentioned; see his letters filled with answers to all the queries that might arise in his time, and hear him exclaim, “that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches.” Again:—

But as God hath distributed to every man, as the Lord hath called every one, so let him walk. And so ordain I in all churches.

So we see that in his day he had the same duties to perform that the apostles of our day have.

Allow me to quote Doctrine and Covenants 120:4:—

In both branches and and districts the presiding officers should be considered and respected in their offices; nevertheless, the traveling presiding councils of the church being made by the law, their calling and the voice of the church the directing, regulating, and advising authorities of the church, and representing it abroad, should when present in either district or branch be regarded and considered as the leading representative authorities of the church, and be respected as such, their counsel and advice be sought and respected when given; and in cases of conflict, or extremity, their decision should be listened to and regarded, subject to the appeal and adjudication provided for in the law.

Not long since we attended a meeting for the election of officers in a branch of the church where two members of the Traveling High Council were present, one of them being the missionary in charge. A resolution was offered directing the attention of the body to the revelation just quoted; but the motion was scarcely born before it was tabled; and while it still gasped for breath a panacea was administered, the proffered advice was hushed; not even swaddling clothes were permitted; and although formal courtesies were subsequently suggested to the member in charge, yet the spirit of the house seemed restless to advance in the usual form of selecting his or her candidates for office, so that the remarks made were seemingly lost. So that, instead of the body seeking “counsel” and “advice” from the legal authorities, they sought their own way by presuming to exercise their own discretion to the ignoring of the councils provided for in the law.

We were led to wonder if we had made a mistake as to the intention of the law as set forth in the books, and whether the Lord really cared who were appointed to watch over and feed his flocks, and whether these men having the care and oversight of all the churches were any more competent to select men or even advise in the choice of a shepherd than is a sister, a child of twelve years, or myself; and whether it is really God’s “will,”— that ye more fully honor and pay heed to the voice and counsel of the traveling ministry in spiritual things; which if ye do not, the office which they hold is not honored in my service.—D. C. 118: 3.

Now, if we disregard those whom God hath chosen, we dishonor God; and if we refuse to hear his servants in their respective callings we refuse to hear him. If we refuse to hear him, will he not refuse to hear us? And if we are slow in the recognition of his will concerning us, will he not be slow to hear our cries when in trouble and distress? And are we profiting by the lessons to be learned from the harmony and order of the heavenly bodies? are we each keeping within his own orbit? is the law of attraction emanating from the Son of God sufficiently strong to hold us to our proper position? or, are we allowing the centrifugal powers of darkness to draw us from it to seek the orbits of other celestial bodies? And have we forgotten the lesson of the mechanic’s plant where everyone must attend strictly to his own duties or suffer expulsion? Or, have we forgotten to appropriate the ideas suggested by the symmetrical order of the organs of the human body and to apply them to our several positions in the body of Christ?

In conclusion let me refer you to a few examples in the past that should not be forgotten concerning the assuming disposition sometimes manifest in mortals. Uzzah was smitten with death for presuming to steady the ark; Uzziah was smitten with leprosy for his presumption; Saul the king lost his kingdom for assuming the prophet’s office work. Why did not Jesus tell Saul of Tarsus what to do when inquiry was made? Why did not the angel tell Cornelius what he ought to do? Simply because God had men in his employ whose duty it was to answer such inquiries; and it teaches a lesson that we should never forget; viz., that neither God nor angels will presume to perform the duties assigned to men; but will move in their own orbits as the earth and all the heavenly bodies move in theirs and thus answer the end of their creation.

Wherefore, now let every man learn his duty, and to act in the office in which he is appointed, in all diligence.

HENRY C. SMITH.

LAMONI, Iowa, January, 1894.

NOMINATIONS AND COMMON CONSENT.

In the Herald for September 17, 1892, the editor speaks on this wise in reference to the famous Decatur resolutions:—

The resolutions in question are clearly an innovation on church custom and usage.

To this we reply that if church custom and usage is not in accord with the law of God as we have it in the three standard books, we have no use for such custom and usage. The principle embodied in the resolutions is as old as the gospel system. Ever since God gave a law to man he has employed men of his own choice to teach that law unto the race, and in no instance in the history of the past has he called upon men to make a selection of suitable or competent teachers of his law or the rules he intended to give; he calls men. The Lord knew the law he intended to teach was for the good of the race both temporally and spiritually; in every condition the law would be his safeguard. Joseph Smith was chosen as the mouthpiece of God to the church and the world; through him the Lord designed to reveal his will and purposes to man. Through him, as an agent, the church was organized and all its offices and officers were made known and appointed, the whole church machinery was set in motion, and its officers sent to teach the same gospel by the same authority as taught by Christ. The duties and prerogatives of the officers were clearly defined; the privileges and duties of believers were manifest; the law clearly set them forth, and while working harmoniously with it the membership prospered, and the Lord blessed them with not only the signs following, but with the fruits of the Spirit abundantly.

The Lord called Joseph Smith to be a seer and revelator to the church, a translator and a prophet, having all the gifts of God which he bestows upon his church. He was called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ. Doctrine and Covenants, section 17 says the church was regularly organized agreeably to the laws of our country by the will and commandments of God April 6, 1830. Commandments were given to Joseph Smith, the church was required to give heed to all his words and commandments as he received them from God. A conference was appointed, and the Lord told Oliver Cowdery, "My servant Joseph shall be appointed to preside over the conference by the voice of it, and what he saith to thee thou shall tell;" and it is only reasonable to suppose that Oliver told them that Joseph Smith was chosen of God to preside and explained to them their privilege to approve or disapprove, not of their selection, but to sanction God's appointment. The church, we are told, was organized with six members; thereby showing that where six persons in different localities desire fellowship that is the rule; they are part of the body, but detached for the sake of convenience.

Now, what is necessary for the growth and sustenance of such branches? They must be fed with the same kind of food, they must drink at the same fountain; then, teachers must be called of God or by his authority, must be ordained by the power of the Holy Ghost in the one so ordaining; and it is just as necessary that they be designated by the power of the Holy Ghost in those so appointing.

The law that holds good in reference to organizing is equally good and binding in reference to appointing and receiving. An intelligent and faithful observance of law guarantees to every man and woman the guidance of the Holy Spirit; and when the law is observed and proper officials are appointed or advised, the spirit of unity and common consent will be manifest.

I might run through the revelations given of God to the church since 1830 and show that to the Traveling High Council has been assigned the responsibility of preaching the gospel to the world, and under the direction of the First Presidency their business is to build up the church; to preside, to regulate, to set in order, and to ordain and appoint; for the word implies appointment as well as ordination.

It was their mission to set in order, and that does not necessarily imply that there is confusion, but to set to work in proper order so as to insure the best results. They were to be the judges of the calling and gifts of God unto men. The law says:—

It shall not be given to anyone to go forth to preach my gospel, or to build up my church, except he be ordained by some one who hath authority, and it is known to the church that he has authority, and has been regularly ordained by the heads of the church.—D. C. 42: 4.

The same principle runs through all the teaching and practices of the church. During the life of the seer the same principle and practice was observed in England, as anyone conversant with the history of those times, published by the church in the Times and Seasons during the life of the prophet, may see. Very frequently presiding officers of branches were appointed in the district conferences; the selection moved and seconded by the presiding officers of either mission or district. This system or rule was also in force during conferences held in this country where both Joseph and Hyrum Smith were presiding, and seems to run through all the usages of the church in early times. See Times and Seasons, vol. 2; minutes of conference held in London, February 14, 1841:—

Moved by Elder Kimball, seconded by Elder Pitt, that R. Williams be ordained elder to oversee the church at Bedford. Carried.

The same conference appointed Lorenzo Snow to the presidency of the London conference. At a conference in Philadelphia, October 17, 1840, John Robinson was unanimously chosen for a presiding elder. Joseph L. Robinson was chosen presiding elder over West Boonville branch at a conference held July 18, 19, 1840. At a conference held in Kirtland, May 22, 1841, an elder was appointed to preside at Gustavus, Ohio. On the 15th day of April, 1841, a branch of the church met in New York for the purpose of being more fully organized; George W. Harris, of Nauvoo, chairman, unanimously made choice of L. R. Foster president of branch, Addison Everett and George Holmes to be his counselors. They were ordained and set apart to their several offices under the direction of Elder Harris, he having been appointed and authorized by President H. Smith. Seven high priests sent from Kirtland, January 14, 1833, with the common consent of the branches comprising the church, were to appoint presiding elders to take the watchcare of the several branches as they were appointed. At a general conference in England, April 10, 1838, three men were ordained to the high priesthood and set apart by Elders Kimball and Hyde to preside over the churches in England.

These references show that the ordaining and appointing power was and is vested in these officials; they invariably appointed or advised in both district and branch, and the churches sanctioned by unanimous vote.

Now to say that it is an innovation is a serious charge. It proves one of two things; namely: if such a system of government existed as we have set forth, and proved beyond a doubt, it shows the innovation to be on the other side. There is no proof that Joseph Smith came so far in conflict with the law, as given in the revelations, as to call upon the members of either branch or district to select their officers. Section 41 of Doctrine and Covenants says:—

Hearken, O ye elders of my church whom I have called; behold, I give unto you a commandment, . . . and by the prayer of your faith ye shall receive my law, that ye may know how to govern my church, and have all things right before me.

Again I say, hearken ye elders of my church whom I have appointed; ye are not sent forth to be taught, but to teach the children of men the things which I have put into your hands by the power of my Spirit.—Doc. and Cov. 43: 4.

I know of no dividing line between general church officers and general branch officers. The law says they must all be called of God. Neither branch, elder, nor priest can preach the gospel without ordination, and appointment, and the power of the Holy Ghost assisting; neither can the President of the church. God is no respecter of persons, but every man stands in his own order according to his station and calling. The success of every man holding priesthood authority depends much upon his own efforts and faithfulness; all are alike necessary in the body. The Seer said it was the privilege of any officer in the church,—and if the branch belongs to the church the branch officers are not exempt,—it is their privilege to obtain revelations so far as relates to their particular callings and duties. And to further show that the heads of the church in 1833 did not recognize any marked difference between general church and general branch officers, we insert the following:—

Kirtland, Feb. 6, 1833: . . . It has seemed good unto the Holy Ghost and unto us, to send this our epistle to you by the hand of our beloved brother, Salmon, your messenger, who has been ordained by us, in obedience to the commandment of God, to the office of an elder to preside over the church in Thompson, taking the oversight thereof, to lead you and to teach the things that are according to godliness; in whom we have great confidence, as we presume also you have. We therefore say to you, yea, not us only, but the Lord also, receive him as such, knowing that the Lord has appointed him. . . . [Signed,] Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon.

It is evident from these official teachings that the Lord recognized the branch in its needs and so provided, and that in harmony with his law; and he further says:—

Ye shall see that my law is kept.—D. C. 41:2.

I know of no privilege to any one man or body of men to change what God has given and what has been accepted by the church in its early history. The Revelation of April, 1890, says:—

There is no conflict in the law.

The same revelation also says:—

The traveling presiding councils of the church being made by the law, their calling and the voice of the church the directing, regulating and advising authorities of the church, and representing it abroad, should when present in either district or branch be regarded and considered as the leading representative authorities of the church, and be respected as such, their counsel and advice be sought and respected when given.—D. C. 120:4.

Language cannot point out our duty in the matter more clearly; the law is our only safeguard. To comply brings blessings, light, and the guidance of the Holy Spirit; to neglect brings darkness and danger from every false spirit.

What I have written has been in what I consider the interest of law and truth. I have no wish to antagonize anyone; truth is what I seek. I will close this article by quoting from one of our own publications as taught by one in authority:—

It is a principle well known in civil law, and ought to be in ecclesiastical circles, that whenever a church is founded, its principles of faith formulated, its traditions fulminated from the forum and pulpit, those declarations become the constitution of its corporate and legal existence. If in the history of any church, anything out of harmony with, or antagonistic to that constitution is introduced, or a change is sought to be made in the creed and government, which is opposed and resisted, or denied by any of the members of the church, that portion of the membership that remains in adherence to the faith as it was before the change was attempted or made, is the church. Nor does it make any difference in law how few this adhering portion may be, or how numerous the changing membership, the church is that part of the members remaining true to the original tenets.—Tract No. 42, p. 5.

These thoughts and reflections passed through my mind after attending our late business meeting for election of officers. We had present the presidents of the church, mission, and district; the two latter as properly appointed officials. The missionary in charge acting under direction of the First Presidency and General Conference appointment and as one of the traveling presiding Counselors of the church, and being present, according to the revelation, his advice should have been sought. He was there by the voice of the church; he was there as called of God. The question is,

Did that body or branch as an important business meeting to elect suitable officers respect him that was sent? Did they respect the Lord who sent him? Let those interested answer to themselves and to God:—

With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.—Matt. 7:2.

After some debate a brother proposed that we listen to what the missionary in charge had to offer. I am willing to believe that few understood the spirit and intent of the law, and it would be good for all concerned to study the importance of law abiding; because the Lord says:—

I, the Lord, am bound when ye do what I say, but when ye do not what I say, ye have no promise.—D. C. 81:3.

And we show disregard to God, to his law, and to those he has sent to teach when we substitute any other system than the one he has given:—

He that heareth him that is sent heareth the Lord who sent him.

The law in this and similar cases is positive:—

All things shall be done by common consent.—D. C. 25:1.

Again:—

All things must be done in order and by common consent in the church and by the prayer of faith.—D. C. 27:4.

We have a sample of what is meant and implied by the term "common consent." The Lord chose Joseph Smith to preside, and instructed Oliver Cowdery that the church had a part to perform. Joseph could not preside unless the same spirit that chose him bore witness to them and they were called upon to approve or disapprove. With these examples before us we need not go astray.

VISION OF NAUVOO.

BY ELBERT A. SMITH.

To the Beautiful City, built of old,
Where the murmurous notes
Of the water floats
Through the woodland's circle fold on fold,
My spirit taketh its easy flight.
Turned back is the page
Of mouldering age,
And I enter the city calm and bright;
Where its broad streets lie on a wing of land,
And the river deep
Doth curve and sweep,
And bind it about on either hand
Like an arch of faith, like a bow of hope,
Like a wall of strength
In breadth and length;
Yea, a wall of light round a fruitful slope.
And I see God's temple, stone on stone,
With a glad new birth
Rise out of the earth,
So white and grand on the hill alone.
The word of God to his Saints insures,
As the pillars tall
And the solid wall,
A strength that unto the end endures.

And the people come, and the people go,
And cast their light
Afar in the night,
And sing of their joy, and sing of their woe;
And play, and labor, and grow apace;
For the fruitful land
Pours into their hand
The things of the world and the things of grace.
And one there comes, as I stand apart;
And I know his face,
By a token of grace;
'Tis one I have treasured in mind and heart.
He speaks to the people who stand around,
In a voice so clear,
Thrice loved, thrice dear;
He tells of the truth sprung out of the ground.
Ah! lovest the son his sire unknown?
Back slander! away
From the glory of day!
Thou prophet of God unspotted art shown!
But the vision is past, the page turneth back;
The mirror dimmed
By the breath that skimmed
Its polished surface and left it black;
The Beautiful City a desert land;
And the bow of hope
And the fruitful slope
A girdle of death, a hollow hand.
The temple is gone, and the people fled.
And the waters sigh
As they hurry by;
They think of the past; and the past is dead.

Adjourned to Plainville, second Saturday in July, at seven p. m.

GENERAL SECRETARY'S NOTICE.

This notice is to request the secretaries of districts belonging to the General Sunday School Association, to see that each school in each district is reported in full at the next meeting of the district association, if the association is to have a meeting during February or the first part of March, and to compile all reports so that they can be sent to me on or before March 15, 1894. If there will be no meeting of the district association during the time above stated, send me the reports that were given at the last meeting.

To the secretaries belonging to the General Association, but having no district organization: I wish you would kindly send me a statistical report of your school on or about March 1. Blanks for this purpose can be procured at the Herald Office. Address me at Independence, Missouri. 7feb2t W. N. ROBINSON, Gen'l Sec.

The total value of church property, parochial schools, convents, asylums, cemeteries, hospitals, and private colleges in St. Louis is $10,507,550. Of this the Roman Catholic property represents a trifle over one half, or $5,253,880.

Miscellaneous Department.

TO THE QUORUM OF APOSTLES.

As the time passes I am admonished that it is my duty to notify you that the work to be done at the coming conference will be of such a nature that it will necessitate our convening at an early date, that we may be able to accomplish our specific duties in time to take part in all the general meetings of conference.

The development of the work in the year just past has been of such a nature, with the increased demand for laborers in the field and the pecuniary stringency existing, as to require a serious and prayerful consideration of the situation. It may be necessary to decrease the number of missionaries, instead of sending an increased force into the field. I shall regret it very much if this should be the case, but if the necessity arises, or is upon us, I trust the ministry will see it in its true light, and assist all they can, by cheerfully submitting to the inevitable, and bend all their energies to local labor as God shall open the way.

The Bishop has made a laudable effort to keep all the appointees of last conference in the field the entire year, and would gladly help increase the list rather than cut it down; but, unfortunately, the hard times affect the Saints as well as other people, and the supply has hardly been equal to the demand. Some may have felt this more than others, but so far as possible he has sought to discharge his arduous duties equitably and conscientiously with an eye single to the glory of God and his work.

The consideration of the vast missionary interests of the church, extended as it is over so much territory, is no light work, and coupled with the consideration of important questions which grow out of the increase of the church, making necessary a better understanding of church government in all its intricacies, will require time. The success of the new system of reporting, as manifest last conference, encourages me; hence I think perhaps there will be time enough to permit us to accomplish the work allotted us if we can get together on the 25th of March.

I therefore request the members of the quorum to meet at Lamoni, March 25, 1894, and may the God of Abraham bless our councils, and give us the victory. Amen.

ALEX. HALE SMITH,
Pres. of Apostles Quorum.

LAMONI, Iowa, Feb. 5, 1894.

DELEGATE CREDENTIALS.

The attention of officers of districts (and of branches not in districts) is called to the necessity of their making out in March the credential certificates of those who are appointed to represent such districts and branches at the General Conference of 1894. They should be placed in my hands on or before April 1, in order that the roll may be prepared for acceptance by the Conference on the day it convenes. Then it can proceed to business without delay.

Do not issue a separate credential to each delegate, but place all names upon one sheet, and certify that they have been appointed by vote of the district named. Give the number of members, including those left upon the records of disorganized branches, and the scattering (unenrolled) members within its limits.

One vote is allowed for each 25 members, but not for a fraction of 25; and one delegate may cast 20 votes, that is, he may represent 500 members; or one delegate may be sent for each vote.

If the district desires that those of the delegates who are present at the conference should cast the entire vote (in case all of them are not present) then so state on the certificate; otherwise should there be a division in sentiment, upon the vote by yea and nay, all not being present, those who are present can only vote as individual delegates but cannot cast the district vote. And if the district numbers more than 500 members then more than one delegate must be present in order to cast the total vote of that district. Care should be taken to appoint those who are quite certain to attend conference, or else appoint a delegate for each vote, those who may possibly attend, so that there will be a chance for a fair representation to assist in doing the business of the church.

Send credentials by mail as soon after the conferences as possible; because there is need of time here to attend to these matters.

H. A. STEBBINS,
General Church Secretary.

Come, brethren, this is certainly worthy of your consideration. Twenty-five cents from each one will soon give us sufficient to mark properly the spot where our brave brethren fell; and in building up the "waste places" shall we not remember those heroes who gave their lives for the truth?

Yours in hope,

CLARKSDALE, MISSOURI.

SOUTHWESTERN MISSION.

May I request the ministry in the Southwestern mission to report their labors for the year to me not later than the 5th of March, as it is expected that I will report by the 15th to the missionary in charge. Some have not reported at all, and the reports of some have been sent to me so late that their reports failed to go to the missionary in charge. Report labor, where you desire to labor, the amount necessary for your family, etc. Address me at Beaver, Wichita county, Texas. AMOS J. MOORE.

NOTICES.

To the Fifth Quorum of Elders. Brethren:—The conference year is drawing to a close, and we must get ready, as a quorum, to report a year's labor. If any of the quorum have changed their addresses during the year, please notify me at once, as I will send you a blank upon which you will report to your quorum in due time; and should you not receive the blank report, write and give the result of your labors; i. e., the number of sermons, baptisms, etc.

You who are laboring under General Conference appointment, report to Bro. Stebbins not later than March 15; and you who desire a General Conference appointment for the coming year, should report to your missionary in charge; and if you cannot reach him, then report to the missionary in charge; and should you fail to reach him, report to the President of the Twelve, Bro. A. H. Smith, Lamoni, Iowa. State what your necessities will be and where and how you want to labor.

In your quorum report, state your wishes in order that your quorum may recommend you and know who and where our most active members are. As per resolution of the quorum at last conference, those who neglect to report labor for two consecutive years will be dropped from the roll, unless a good excuse is given. Age, sickness, financial embarrassment, etc., are good excuses. Now, brethren, let your watchword be, "Hastening Time." Direct all communications to me at Knobnoster, Missouri.

J. H. WELLS, Pres.

BEWARE OF HIM!

Otto Hessel alias some other name struck Clarksdale about three months ago. Description: He is about six feet high, of light complexion, thirty years old, a native of Sweden. He talks very broken English; a blacksmith by trade. He was baptized December 24, 1893. He is a wolf in sheep's clothing. He claims to be highly educated. Being baptized as he was, he ingratiated himself with the Saints. The writer not being acquainted only as he heard several of the Saints speak of him, he came over from town late Saturday evening one week ago, said he had bought the blacksmith shop and a dwelling house in town. He said he had drawn the money from the Cameron bank the day before, got the deed for both shop and dwelling house. He wanted to purchase a small steam engine to put in the shop. He lacked $28 of having enough. Said if I could let him have the money for two weeks it would be an accommodation to him. Not having the change I gave him $30. That evening he left the country to try his scheme on some other Saints. He left a month's board unpaid, and other minor bills.

Come with the Master's Spirit.

DIED.

BLOOD.—At his residence in Providence, Rhode Island, in the fifty-fourth year of his age, William Henry Blood. He was born in the old historic town of Concord, Massachusetts, one of a family of eight children born to J. Franklin and Eliza Butterick Blood. The family, of which William is the last one, has resided for several generations in Massachusetts. In early life he associated some with the Baptist Church, but never became a member. He heard the gospel by the Latter Day Saints in Providence, and together with his wife was baptized by Elder C. N. Brown, May 17, 1874. He was a man of industry and steady habits. He will be well remembered and much missed by the traveling ministry, who always found a warm welcome at his comfortable home during the twenty years of his membership in the church. "The elders' friend" has been very appropriately applied to him. It was so much in harmony with things that one of them (A. H. Smith) should stand by and minister brotherly love in his dying hour. His death was one of peaceful triumph in Christ. At the first call of his country he entered the army with the three months' men, after which he reenlisted and served during the war. So has passed from our midst to higher life the citizen, soldier, and Christian. Funeral sermon by Elder F. M. Sheehy, assisted by Elder A. H. Smith, at the Saints' place of worship. Music by Hugo Arnold, service of song by Brn. Bullard, Gates, and Leckney, and Srs. Bishop and Glover.

SPRAGUE.—At Providence, Rhode Island, December 28, 1893, Ida Luella Sprague aged 35 years. Deceased was born in Johnson, Rhode Island, and was the daughter of Stanton J. and Susan Corbin Smith. She married Albert G. Sprague, to whom she bore five children, all of whom survive her. She joined the Latter Day Saints when young, and remained true and faithful to her covenant in Christ, and highly respected by all who knew her. Funeral sermon by Elder F. M. Sheehy, at her residence.

LYISINGER.—Clay Ambrose, child of Mr. F. P. and Sr. Caroline Lyisinger, was born August 22, 1893, and died January 14, 1894. Funeral at the Saints' church, Head Grove, Iowa, January 17; sermon by Elder D. M. Rudd from 2 Samuel 12: 23.

DEPEW.—Sr. Charity Depew died at her home in Calhoun county, West Virginia, January 15, 1894, aged 39 years, 9 months, and 7 days. She was baptized January 11, 1888, by Elder L. R. Devore. She has been a constant sufferer for over three years. She bore her sickness without a murmur, and died firm in the faith. She left her husband and nine children to mourn their loss. On the 25th of January her little Daughter Ella, about eight years old, was burned by her clothes taking fire. The burn was not thought to be serious, but on the 28th she was buried, leaving Bro. Depew almost wild with grief.

GRANTHAM.—At Greenbush, Michigan, Sarah Sophia, infant daughter of Bro. William T. and Sr. Mary E. Grantham, aged 4 months and 23 days. She was blessed by Elder David Smith. Funeral sermon by Rev. Dunham, of the Methodist faith.

Call not back the dear departed,
Anchored safe where storms are o'er;
On the border land we left them,
Soon to meet and part no more.
Far beyond this world of changes,
Far beyond this world of care,
We shall find our missing loved one,
In our Father's mansion fair.

ALDEN.—At her home in Fontanelle, Iowa, January 25, 1894, Susan Alden, widow of the late Briggs Alden. Sr. Alden was born about 1813. She was baptized in October, 1863, by Elder James Blakeslee, at Batavia, Illinois. Was married to Briggs Alden May 8, 1864, at Plano, Illinois. She loved the latter-day work, and at all times did the best she could for the elders who represented the same in making them comfortable under all circumstances. If she had not much of this world's goods, she was willing to share with those who had less. She bore testimony of the truth of the latter-day work to her friend who came to see her in her sickness. She was laid to rest beside her husband in the Fontanelle cemetery. Funeral sermon was preached in the Advent chapel, to a full house, by Elder S. Butler, from Revelation 14: 13.

HEGEN.—At Coltrin, California, January 26, 1894, Robert Stanley, son of Phach and R. W. Hegen, aged 1 year and 3 months. Funeral sermon by Elder W. M. Gibson.

STEMPLE.—"Mrs. Nancy Stemple, wife of William S. Stemple, was born in the year 1829; died January 16, 1894, at East Jeannette, Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania. She always lived a Christian and a devoted mother. She died apparently in the triumph of a just faith, and has gone home to rest." Elders L. W. Powell and John S. Parrish, at that time conducting a series of meetings at that place, by special request conducted the funeral services. The funeral sermon, however, to be delivered later.

NELSON.—At her home near New London, Iowa, January 28, 1894, Sr. Mary Nelson, in the seventieth year of her age. Sr. Nelson was born in Gloucester county, New Jersey; was married to Na'han Nelson in 1848; emigrated with her husband to Iowa in 1850. To them were born seven children, her husband and two children preceding her to the land of spirits. She was a great sufferer for years, both in body and mind. She was baptized June 12, 1892, by Elder W. Waterman, and we believe she lived faithful. Funeral services at her late residence January 24; sermon by Charles E. Willey.

MORRELL.—Drusilla A. Morrell died January 24, 1894, aged 72 years, 3 months, and 1 day. She was born October 23, 1821, at Euclid, Cuyahoga county, Ohio. Received the gospel, being baptized at Kirtland, Lake county, Ohio. She was married to Isaac Sheen, at Kirtland, Ohio, in May, 1841, and was mother of three children, one son, and two daughters, the son, John K., and one daughter, Sr. Matilda Whitecomb, survive and mourn her. She passed through the dark and cloudy days of the church, consequent upon the apostasy of Brigham Young and his associates therein, but remained true to the gospel of Christ, and was found within its folds, when the "clouds rolled by," and firm in the faith and to which she clung to the end. Her first husband having died April 3, 1874, she was in January, 1877, married to Joseph Morrell, who survives her. She was afflicted with cancer for some three years prior to her death. Her desire was that President Joseph Smith should preach her funeral sermon, but circumstances rendering it quite impossible for him to do so at the time, by his request Elder C. Scott waited upon the services, which were held in the Christian church at Charleston, York county, Nebraska (near where she died), Sunday, January 28, 1894, at eleven a. m. The text was 1 Corinthians 15: 19-24. The house was filled to its utmost capacity, many being unable to get seats.

VANMETER.—At Lamoni, Iowa, Nellie VanMeter, daughter of J. H. and L. A. VanMeter. She was born at North Platte, Nebraska, October 8, 1887; blessed April 30, 1893, by Elders I. N. Roberts and William Waterman; died September 10, 1893. Funeral sermon by Elder T. J. Bell, November 12, 1893.

Farewell to Nellie. The brittle thread
Is snapped, and between us now is spread
The mystic veil that part the shores
Of time from whence her spirit soars,
No more to tread the venom'd breath
Of foul disease, the escort of death,
No more to feel the rankling smart
Of subtle sin's delusive dart.

SLATER.—At Crescent, Iowa, January 19, 1894, Sr. Louisa Caroline Slater, aged 58 years, 9 months, and 7 days. Funeral sermon preached by Elder C. G. McIntosh to a very large congregation.

MCINTYRE.—Mary B. McIntyre was born October 30, 1816, in Edinburgh, Scotland. She united with the church at or about the time of the death of the martyr. She emigrated to America in 1853. She has long been a resident of St. Joseph, and attracted to her a wide circle of very near friends. While not a member of the Reorganization, yet her faith in the gospel and its ordinances was unwavering. During her illness of near three months she received many blessings by administration, but not to final healing. She was cared for most tenderly by the hand of her daughter, Mrs. Collins, at whose house she lived, her husband, Elder John McIntyre, having preceded her to the other world about eight years. She fell asleep firm in the faith of the restored gospel on the morning of February 2, 1894. Thus she came to her grave "in a full age like a shock of corn cometh in his season." Funeral on February 4 at two p. m. from the residence. Sermon by J. M. Terry from Psalm 17: 15 and 1 Corinthians 15: 20. She leaves two daughters, seven grandchildren, and one great-grandchild on this side the river.

SPRAGUE.—At Randalia, Iowa, January 4, 1893, Carrie, daughter of Bro. Charles and Sr. Hattie Sprague, aged 12 years, 11 months, and 4 days. Thus another child growing towards womanhood has been taken from the mother's side and carried to a better world. But O how they are missed here! The funeral sermon was by Mr. Shoemaker, the Methodist minister of Randalia, no elders of the Church of Christ being near.

YOUNG.—Robert Young died April 5, 1893, at his home in Des Moines, Iowa, in his eighty-first year. He was born in Yorkshire, England. Emigrated to America in 1855, going direct to Salt Lake, he having embraced the principles of the gospel as it was taught by the Utah Church, in 1848. Soon becoming dissatisfied there he moved to Omaha, Nebraska, where he united with the Reorganization about the year 1865. He moved to Des Moines in 1866, where he remained until his death, loved and respected by all who knew him. A faithful, zealous, and consistent child of God, he passed to the abode of the righteous, leaving an aged wife, one son, and one daughter.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The report that Mr. Gladstone was about to resign is understood to have originated in a conversation between Mrs. Gladstone and an intimate friend in Biarritz. Mrs. Gladstone spoke with much feeling of the desirability of freeing her husband from his public burdens. Just before going to Biarritz Mr. Gladstone talked with several cabinet ministers about his growing infirmities and, despite their earnest protestations, insisted emphatically that he had lost much of his power as a leader. His hearing and eyesight are impaired. The Pall Mall Gazette had without doubt sound reason for circulating its report concerning him.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—In dealing with the parish councils bill the House of Lords has destroyed in two nights the constructive labors of the House of Commons in forty sittings. The measure has been so changed that it will be impossible for the government to adopt it. The conflict between the two houses may precipitate a dissolution and an appeal to the people.

George W. Childs, the Philadelphia publisher and philanthropist, died at his home, Philadelphia, February 3.

ROME, Feb. 3.—It is considered certain that immediately after the meeting of the Chamber, February 20, Premier Crispi will demand from the deputies the plenary power to proceed with numerous administrative reforms.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—So rapid has been the immigration of Italian Catholics to this country and to South America it has been deemed advisable by the Propaganda in Rome to delegate a representative to look after their interests in the Western world. It is understood this step has been taken on the advice of Mgr. Satolli. In pursuance of the plan, Father Joseph Vincentini of the Roman Catholic Order of St. Charles Borromeo has been sent from Rome. He has just arrived in this city and is looking over the ground preparatory to entering upon his work. He will later go to South America to investigate the condition of the church there so far as Italians are concerned.

made upon the Spaniards at Melilla by the Riffians. The Sultan, in the presence of officials and prominent inhabitants, listened attentively to the demands of the Spanish Government and then replied, saying he regretted the attacks made upon the Spaniards. He promised that he would inflict the most terrible punishment upon them and guaranteed that Spain would receive ample satisfaction for their attacks. The Sultan concluded by praising the moderation of the demands made by Spain and declared he entertained hearty good will towards the Spanish Government. This was the first time the Sultan has made a reply to an envoy or other official in the presence of officials and prominent inhabitants.

ROME, Feb. 6.—It is authoritatively announced that the Pope will shortly publish an encyclical on the union of the Western and Eastern churches. The encyclical indicates the political and theological obstacles in the way of effecting the desired end, and enumerates the advantages that would be derived by the Eastern Church through a union with the Western. The Pope declares he is strongly in favor of keeping intact the rites, prerogatives, autonomy, and discipline of the Eastern Church. The encyclical concludes with a pathetic and ardent prayer that this historical event will be accomplished soon. It is probable the encyclical will be published March 3.

Sir Algernon Edward West, Mr. Gladstone's friend and companion in Biarritz arrived here last evening. He said in an interview that he left Mr. Gladstone in the best health. Mr. Gladstone would return to London probably February 10. VOICE OF WARNING AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL PEOPLE;

OR AN INTRODUCTION TO THE FAITH AND DOCTRINE OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

This work in its graphic review of the prophecies and history of God's dealings with his people in past ages, together with the abundant proofs concerning the work of the latter days, the gathering and restoration of Israel to their ancient home in Palestine, is a book for the times. The author presents the prophetic evidences of the restoration of the gospel in "the dispensation of the fullness of times," showing the evidences in favor of a restoration of primitive Christianity and the organization of the apostolic church with its apostleship and priesthood—its authority—its powers and gifts. This publication has always been a favorite one among inquirers for the truth. 150 pages.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

DEATH OF GEORGE W. CHILDS.

It has been apparent from the day that Mr. George W. Childs, the well-known publisher and philanthropist, was stricken down at his desk that his career was at an end and that his death was only a matter of a short time, but this knowledge will not avail to lessen the general sorrow that will be felt at his removal from the ranks of the world's busy workers. As a publisher, bookseller, and newspaper proprietor he achieved great success and amassed a large property by legitimate and strictly honorable business methods. He stood in the front ranks of the prominent business men of the country and there was not a detail of his system that will not bear the severest scrutiny.

Successful, public spirited, and enterprising as he was, it is not as a business-man he will be the longest remembered. Much was given to him, but he gave much. His life was a benefaction to humanity. Many of his public acts of benevolence are known, but the full extent of his private beneficence probably never will be known. His generosity was unbounded and unquestionably grew out of a naturally kindly nature. He undoubtedly enjoyed giving quite as much as those who were his beneficiaries enjoyed the receipt of his gifts. If he had any vanities in this direction, as some have charged, no one will enter them up to his discredit in view of the good he has done and of the encouragement and assistance he has been to young men starting out in business. In his own establishment he considered his employes as members of his family, looked after their interests while they served him, and when incapacitated for work retired them on full pay. He was especially fond of commemorating the services of men who have been successful in their various departments of labor and his monuments of this kind are scattered all over this country and some of them are to be found abroad, but his best monument is the philanthropical work he has done for the living—to young men starting out in business, to newspaper men, and to the printers' craft, to charitable societies, and to individual strangers who did not appeal to him in vain. To all such his money was given ungrudgingly. In a word, he was a unique figure in the business world, for to a clear head for commercial and financial enterprises he joined a warm heart and open hand, a kindly nature, and a far-reaching philanthropy. The good that he has done will not be "interred with his bones." It will long live after him. He achieved great wealth and he used it well and wisely for the good of his kind. Greater praise no man can have.—Ex.

YOUNG AMERICA SHOULD BE BETTER EQUIPPED.

"WHAT in the world is the matter with Young America?" Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Michigan, and the founder of the Chicago Medical Mission, asked himself last night at Central Music Hall. It was at the first meeting of the series of congressional extension lectures to carry out the work of the World's Fair congresses. Having propounded the question the doctor proceeded to answer it. In the first place, Young America wasn't born right. Look at the great population of insane asylums and the growing army of cranks. This was all because fathers smoked the constitutions of their children away and the mothers drank strong tea and coffee and wore tight clothes. And, in the second place, how in the world was Young America going to make sound brains and strong limbs out of such food as is set on the average table? He told the story of a circuit rider who sat down to breakfast at the house of a parishioner and was requested to ask a blessing. He looked around; there were fried ham, hot saleratus biscuit, coffee, doughnuts, pancakes, and fried potatoes. "Friends," said he, "this breakfast isn't worth a blessing." The preacher was right. And yet this was the sort of breakfasts young men and young women were required to eat, with the addition of pickles, fried eggs, and sausage.

Young men disliked hard muscular work. The reason was they had not the muscles. It was said we were growing weaker and wiser. We were surely growing weaker and were growing wiser if we accepted the fact that we were growing weaker. Another thing that was the matter with Young America was that it smoked. Young men suffered the effects of the tobacco smoked by their fathers. They did not exactly inherit a specific desire for tobacco nor a specific desire for liquor, but they did inherit a craving for poisons, for unnatural stimulants. Another fault with Young America was that it drank. Smoking was a preparation for drinking.

Dr. Kellogg said mothers should know how to cook wholesome food. He proposed to start cooking schools as a missionary enterprise, where poor mothers could be taught to prepare good food out of cheap material. Many a mother was bringing her boy up to be a drunkard by giving him highly seasoned and badly selected foods. Mustard, ginger, and pepper were not fit to be taken into the stomach.

High living and high thinking did not go together. The old German proverb "As a man eateth so he thinketh," was a good one. Another thing to be done for Young America was to give him a chance to use his muscles. Many of the bicycle and other athletic clubs through the introduction of whisky and tobacco did more harm than good, but every Y. M. C. A. gymnasium was a missionary station from which the gospel of good health went forth.

At the conclusion of his remarks the doctor showed some experiments on frogs, illustrating the effects of nicotine, alcohol, and other articles habitually used by mankind.

Dr. Elizabeth Boynton Harbert introduced Mrs. N. A. C. Brightman, Ph. D., who spoke upon the "Mistakes of Ingersol" in answer to that gentleman's "Mistakes of Moses." Ingersol's chief mistake was in trying to adjust God to himself instead of trying to adjust himself to God.

The American rifle of the future is to be the Krag Jorgensen, a foreign invention. Our American inventors of small arms are not satisfied about it.

No tenable explanation of the manner in which the pyramids were built has ever been given.

LAMONI, IOWA, FEBRUARY 21, 1894.

THE TEMPLE SUIT.

THE case of the Reorganized Church vs. The Church of Christ for the possession of the piece of ground in Independence, Missouri, known to all classes of Latter Day Saints as the "Temple Lot," was called in the United States Circuit Court, at Kansas City, Missouri, Judge John F. Phillips presiding, on Tuesday, February 6, last, at ten o'clock a. m. There were present in court, Judge George Edmunds, of Carthage, Illinois, Judge L. Traber, of Kansas City, P. P. Kelley, of Glenwood, Iowa, and Bishop E. L. Kelley, as solicitors and counsel for the Plaintiff; and Colonel John N. Southern, of Independence, Missouri, and Charles A. Hall, president of the Church of Christ, solicitor and counsel for Defendants.

As soon as some necessarily previous motions had been disposed of the case was called, and the opening argument for Plaintiff was made by Judge Edmunds, who, in a clear and forcible statement, presented the claim of the Reorganized Church to the property in question, and detailed the line of proof in evidence to support the claim.

Judge Edmunds was followed by Judge Traber, in the part assigned by agreement; and he by solicitor P. P. Kelley; each in his turn making a fair statement and argument of the issues joined between the parties to the suit.

The Defendants' counsel, Colonel John N. Southern, then presented to the court the line of defense relied upon to defeat the claims of the Plaintiff, occupying the time until a late hour in the afternoon of Tuesday, and until nearly the noon hour on Wednesday, the second day. When he had closed his argument Bishop E. L. Kelley, in a most comprehensive and masterly way, summed up, refuting with remarkable facility the deductions and objections presented by Colonel Southern, occupying some two hours of the time of the court; and the cause was left with the judge, who stated that he could not state when he would be able to make a decision, as owing to the importance of the case, and the great amount of evidence to be examined he would require considerable time to give it the attention due.

So rests this important suit. In obedience to the command given of God, we have importuned at the feet of the judge, and now await the decision.

Of the merits of the case we have not at present a word to write. We have studiously avoided presenting it, or arguing it, or of making any predictions concerning the suit, or its ultimate result. For, however much we may feel the justness of our cause, we are aware that other men are equally as certain of their rights and assured of their claim to win justly as we may be; and the uncertainty of human affairs makes it to appear to be wise policy not to forestall in any wise the legitimate courses of litigation. One thing we may, however, assure the Saints of; and that is, that the cause was ably represented whether we shall be found to be entitled to the verdict of the court in our favor, or otherwise.

Judge Phillips seemed to wish to obtain a full knowledge of the case on both sides, and to be fair and impartial in securing it.

OH, THAT PARLIAMENT!

"COMPARISONS are odious," we have been told, and perhaps there is truth in the saying. At the late Parliament of the World's Religions there was a wonderful medley on exhibition. The patent Christianity of this country primped its hair and washed its face and hands, and after donning its Sunday clothes, mounted the rostrum for dress parade. There it was confronted with Heathenism of nearly every phase which had devoted at least as much time and attention to preparation for like display. Of course the Heathen had the advantage, for he was thousands of miles from home and there was no chance for Christians to point to his surroundings to confirm or dispute his representations, while he had Chicago—that home of the Y. M. C. A. and of churches of a score of names and faiths, all claiming the same Jesus as founder—to refer to, in order to 'point a moral or adorn a tale' of his own telling against Christianity. Those miles of saloons and volumes of profanity, and that record of crimes; the annual grist of court divorces issued to church attendants, and the common advertisement of easy virtue in some of the secluded streets, were too convenient to be ignored. And the Heathen was not on parade to lose. He had left his working toggery behind, while Chicago religion could be seen in week-day attire.

Then, again, he was accounted a small affair; but he had come with all the bigness acquirable, and where little was expected he created a surprise, and elicited applause. All of the nasty features of his system, if any, were ten thousand miles beyond the range of the vision of his spectators. Every remark that would have sounded tame on the lips of an American preacher came from him as a burst of almost divine eloquence. Much was expected of Christianity, and if it met the expectation, no surprise was credited. It was an old story to the hearers, while the voice from the lands of idolatry was new.

The contrasts made were not as gratifying to the apologists for home religion as they had figured on, and to some of them the applause that greeted the heathen utterances sounded like anything but music. Since then the dissatisfied ones have been writing and saying some high sounding things perhaps with a view to catching up and getting even by supplemental effort. After publishing an article on the abominations of Hinduism copied from The Christian of London, the editor of Truth thus writes:—

Yet this is the religion which the white-handed American women applauded to the echo, when they saw its priests appear on the Chicago platform in their pretty orange robes, and with their impudent palaver. It makes one's blood boil with righteous indignation to reflect upon the foul dishonor done by this wretched Parliament of Religions to the person, the work, and the word of our Lord Jesus Christ. It gave the lie direct to every revealed truth of the Bible, and to every distinctive claim and hope of the gospel. It bodily abandoned the attitude, which Christianity has always assumed, and must ever assume, of determined, unchangeable, uncompromising hostility to all the religions of the world, and it deserves the name which the Kirchenfreund gives it, "an empty and stupid comedy."

Bishop Campbell, who participated in the proceedings of the parliament, has, it is said, publicly expressed his regret for having permitted himself to be connected with such an affair, and the following from him rather supports that idea:—

Whatever profit may have been derived from the meeting, we have to face the fact that, by participating in it, Christians have stood upon a platform from which the Lord Jesus Christ as "the truth," "the true light of the world," and the only revelation of the Father, has been excluded. For the purpose of this gathering, followers of Jesus Christ as the only true God have practically admitted that Christianity is only one of many religious systems, and that Jesus was one of several religious teachers. The object of the congress seems to have been to find common ground upon which the religions of the world can meet, and this I conceive to be an impossibility, so long as the inclusive and exclusive claims of Jesus are admitted. This meeting placed Christianity on a level with the heathen religions.

The Japanese priests claim that Buddhism scored several points over Christianity at the parliament, and are jubilant in consequence, and from the above it would appear that they are not mistaken; granted, of course, that what they saw and heard in Chicago was Christianity. To the Saints, however, it is known that the gospel of Christ was not heard in the assemblies of that parliament.

WE make no apology for inflicting the "Parliament of Religions" on the readers of the HERALD, as we feel that there is a necessity that the eldership shall see what the actual result of the parliament was, if it can be discovered. Bro. Blair has given a fair statement of much of it; but the aftermath is worth the saving.

We notice with pleasure that Bro. David Devol, one of the Nauvoo Saints, long a resident of Council Bluffs, Iowa, has affiliated at last with the church, having joined the Council Bluffs branch.

The adhesion of the old time Saints to the work of the Reorganization is always a gratification, as to them came the testimony of the Spirit in those early days, and when the same Spirit assures them of our work it is a twice borne witness to the truth. Bro. Devol is and always has been a steadfast opposer of wrong, and an advocate of the right.

Five were baptized at St. Joseph, Missouri, February 11; two of whom were brought to hear the word by the conversation of Bro. Carl Kinnaman, a lay member. Who shall say that he who has been warned shall not warn his neighbor.

Bro. T. W. Williams writes from Council Bluffs:—

We are having success in our meetings. Brn. C. Scott and J. F. McDowell have both preached excellent sermons here of late.

Good; these are young men, and are carrying the war nobly. God bless all such.

While at Kansas City, Missouri, we visited General M. Brayman, in company with Judge L. Traber and Judge George Edmunds, and had a pleasant visit. The General was connected with Governor Thomas Ford, as Assistant Attorney-General, and visited Nauvoo in 1843, remaining there from July 7 to the 11th. He was there by the direction of Gov. Ford, to secure evidence and report as to the propriety of the Governor honoring the requisition of Gov. Reynolds, of Missouri, for the surrender of Joseph Smith to Missouri courts. It was on this report that Gov. Ford refused to grant a writ of extradition.

The younger element of the church at Independence are heartily engaged in an effort to secure good song service in the church. A large chorus has been organized, averaging about fifty in attendance at practice.

S. W. L. SCOTT IN INDIANA.

THE Stark county, Indiana, Republican, published at Knox, for February 1, has a good word for the labor of Bro. Leonard Scott, at that place; which we give below:—

Elder S. W. L. Scott, an able representative of the Latter Day Saint faith, finished his last discourse last Sunday night on the subject of "Mormonism," in a logical manner, proving by history and the doctrine of the church, and the acknowledgment of their enemies as well as the best men of our nation, such men as Doctor Thomas, of Chicago, and others, that many of the reports told on the Latter Day Saints were false, and that polygamy never was any part of the doctrine of the church. He proved by the Scriptures the necessity of the coming forth of the Book of Mormon and the truthfulness of the book by the internal evidences contained therein. The congregation was large and was held spellbound for nearly two hours. Everybody seemed well pleased except possibly a few fanatics who were made mad because the Saints are able to prove the falsehoods that have been told on them untrue, showing that the time has fully come spoken of in the Scriptures that men would love and make a lie; and you know there must be some of that class in order to fulfill the Scriptures.

A LISTENER.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. R. J. ANTHONY, Deer Lodge, Montana, February 8:—

In writing to you some time ago I stated that Bro. R. Etzenhouser would start East directly after January 13, as he wrote me he would do, and that he would stop at certain points on the way, which was published in the Herald, to which the brother takes exceptions and says he did not authorize anyone to publish his movements in the Herald, or words to that effect. I plead guilty to the charge, and if publishing his whereabouts has given the brother offense, I humbly ask his pardon.

Bro. William Sparling, Clifford, North Dakota:—

Am engaged in opening a new neighborhood, largely Presbyterian, with fair interest. Am announced to lecture on the life of Joseph Smith on the 19th.

Bro. J. S. Roth, Brush Creek, Iowa, February 14:—

Bro. Sutton and I began meetings here on the 7th and will continue over the 18th. We have a full house every night, and some nights an overflow, with good attention. A number are investigating our claim and some are ready for baptism, but are waiting on others, and others are waiting, but they don't know what for. Yesterday I organized a branch here, which will be known as the Brush Creek branch. Bro. B. F. Miller was chosen president, and Sr. George Eckhart as clerk. There is a noble little band of Saints here, and prospects are very favorable for more to come in. We are truly blessed in presenting the truth. From here we will go to Grove Hill. More calls for preaching than we can fill.

Bro. I. N. Roberts, Pipestone, Minnesota, February 13:—

Have just closed a good meeting here; have tried three years to make the opening but failed until now. The interest was good throughout. County officers let me have the courthouse free of charge and attended my meetings most of the time; and the Electric Light Company put in four lamps for the occasion free. Had several ministers out; invited them into the stand, but they declined. They are very much out of humor because I got a hearing; some of their members and spoiled, as such, and they feel bad about it. The people called upon them to come out and show that I was wrong, but they replied that nothing could be gained by debating. I feel well, and am sure we will get some good souls here if the work can be kept up.

Bro. H. N. Hansen, Glenwood, Utah, February 8:—

I preached here last night to a full house and had good attention. I find much room for labor in this mission and some prospects for good.

Bro. S. W. L. Scott, Knox, Indiana, February 10:—

Work moving nicely in these regions; good interest, good order, good congregations, good liberty, good cause, good Father.

Bro. A. J. Moore wrote from Beaver, Texas, February 8:—

I have been kindly treated by the people of the world. The Dallas News gave me space to reply to an article written against Joseph Smith and the work. I received an invitation to address the State Sunday School Convention at Wichita Falls. I baptized a young Baptist preacher of late, and am now telling the people of the restored gospel. All goes well.

Bro. D. M. Rudd, Eagle Grove, Iowa, February 14:—

Am holding meetings in a Lutheran neighborhood with good attendance, the best of attention, and excellent liberty. It is a new opening.

Sr. W. D. Ellis, Chase, Michigan, February 12:—

We have just organized a Sunday school in our branch, and have a good attendance for a school so young. The work is prospering here despite opposition.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. H. P. CURTIS has an interesting letter in this number of the HERALD, in which he refers to the interest awakened in Pepin county, Wisconsin, by the labors of Brn. Burr, McDowell, and himself. The Courier and Entering Wedge, county papers, sent us, bear substantial witness to the stir these live young brethren are making. Four articles and six paragraphs refer to their work. Three of the articles are unfair attacks upon them and their work, the leading one being unsigned; the other is an excellent tribute to their worth as men and an indorsement of their methods, and is signed by about thirty citizens; and the brethren say two hundred signatures would have been forthcoming if necessary. The brethren are evidently pressing the battle to a successful issue. "Young men for war," etc.

Bro. G. L. Spencer, of Elmore, Colorado, writes that the Saints of Trinidad, Colorado, will make an effort to build a chapel in the spring. They hope to then receive a hearing such as they are now denied.

Bro. John Barnes has baptized two at Excelsior, Iowa. He is engaged in local labor at Excelsior and points adjacent.

Bro. D. J. Davis, in attendance at the Otterbein University, at Westerville, Ohio, has started a Sunday school near by. He hopes to develop such an interest that the people will hear the word from some of the ministry.

Sr. L. Taylor, of Sherwin, Kansas, requests prayer in the interest of her aged father who is in poor health.

Sr. R. P. Warren, Clarkson, Illinois, requests prayer in her behalf that she may be healed of severe affliction.

Bro. Senterlow Butler is preaching at and near Fontanelle, Iowa. He has some requests for baptism and expects the organization of a branch as a result of his labors.

The Montrose, Iowa, Journal of February 9, publishes a half column account of a late programme rendered by our young people of the local Zion's Religio-Literary Society, which it commends.

Bro. Ed Fender of Goodland, Kansas, asks that some of the elders call there and preach awhile. Will those in charge of that field please take notice.

Bro. G. V. Moore, of Blaine, Kentucky, for many years a minister of the Baptist Church, writes recounting the experiences in his past and present religious life. He had for years been dissatisfied with his condition religiously, but since obedience to the fullness of the gospel has been confirmed by the Holy Spirit. He was baptized by Bro. G. H. Godbey. His wife obtained relief from illness by administration. His testimony is that of thousands who have likewise received the witness in themselves and who consciously believe.

Bro. R. May, of the Independence, Missouri, district, was at Pomeroy, Kansas, early in February, renewing his labors among people to whom he had preached ten years ago. He was well received. Bro. James Anderson and Joseph Emmett have held meetings there of late.

Elder U. W. Greene, of Green's Landing, Maine, is rejoicing in the prospects of new ministerial help. The hopeful began his career at eleven pounds weight.

Bro. A. B. Kirkendall secured the insertion of an article in the Ohio State Journal of December 28, published at Columbus, the State capital, under the heading, "True Mormonism." The brother corrects some misleading statements of a former writer and presents the faith in a temperate, manly spirit. Such articles do much to prepare the way for additional work.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins answered a call of the Young People's Society of Independence for a series of lectures on the Book of Mormon. He left Lamoni on the 12th inst.

Bro. J. L. Goodrich baptized two at Byer, Ohio, on the 14th inst.

President Joseph Smith arrived home on the 14th and left the day following to attend the dedication of the Saints' chapel at Coleman, Michigan.

The attention of the HERALD readers is called to the new work by Bro. J. R. Lambert "Objections to the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants Examined and Refuted." See advertisement on HERALD cover. This is an able work by a competent writer. Ready for mailing March 15. Orders solicited. Address the Business Manager.

The Sunday school association of the Decatur, Iowa, district held its twelfth convention at Lamoni, February 17 and 18. The sessions throughout were spirited and interesting. The young people are developing and accomplishing much good in this department of regular church work and care. Matters of importance to Sunday school workers in general were discussed, which we hope to present in detail at no distant day. The interest in this work has steadily increased. It promises to extend its operations into the missionary field, as the spirit of wisdom, and counsel, may direct.

THE following special to the Chicago Tribune is inserted for what it may be worth:—

MAPIMI, Mex., Feb. 11.—Malvern W. Cresworth, an English mining man well known throughout Southwest Mexico, arrived here to-day from a long overland journey through the Sierra Madre Mountains, his starting point being Culican, near the Pacific coast in the State of Sinaloa. He claims to have discovered a large and beautiful deserted city. He says it is situated about eighty miles west of Lake Colorado, in the very recesses of the Sierra Madres, and occupies a basin ten miles long by eight miles wide. Perpendicular cliffs surround the basin on all sides, rising to the height of hundreds of feet. The only entrance to the city is through a deep canyon thirty feet wide. Mr. Cresworth says he stumbled onto the secret entrance by accident. The buildings, he says, are constructed of blocks of red stone resembling granite. The business blocks are two and three stories in height and are different in architectural design from the structures built by the Aztecs and Spaniards. The streets are narrow, but are laid out in regular order. In the city is a small park, which is overgrown with rare flowers and tropical vegetation. He found many strange ornaments, but little of value. While no one in that section ever heard of the city, Mr. Cresworth's story is generally believed.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"Lo! in the midst, with the same look he wore,
Healing and blessing on Gennesaret's shore,
Folding together, with the all tender might
Of his great love, the dark hands and the white,
Stands the Consoler, soothing every pain,
Making all burdens light, and breaking every chain."

A SUGGESTED CONTRAST.

WITH the soul-moving letter from Sr. Ella Devore, which we give our readers below, there came a few personal lines to us. In the midst of all her trials and privations she has been thoughtful of the dear friends left behind and has been treasuring up the beautiful shells found by or given to her, to bring or send to them as keepsakes. Some of these she has put into a tin box in which butter came to them and says, "I thought you would treasure my poor scuffed butter box for the tale it could tell, the meaning it has. Put it by a beautiful, new, ornamental box, it is shamed and will strive to sink out of sight, but let it tell its story of suffering and love for humanity, then it rises far above, like God's holy truth over every ornamental thing which has no heart to feel for suffering humanity." Ah Ella, beloved sister, whom we have never met and may never meet in this world, we do not need to wait the coming of this box to learn the lesson it teaches—the lesson which in your humility you read not and which many, we fear, will never in this world take home to the heart. Beside your life of absolute self-renunciation and toil our own stands as the ornamental box, beside the scuffed and battered one, whose history is replete with service for the Master. O the humiliation which comes with the thought! Strange that we do not feel it more when we read of his life of travail and pain; his fastings and prayer; his buffetings, scourgings, and cruel death upon the cross! But how can those who never taste any of this bitterness, who know nothing of want and privation; how can they realize the full meaning of the sacrifice our redemption cost?

"O thou, who in the garden's shade
Didst wake thy weary ones again,
Who slumbered at that fearful hour
Forgetful of thy pain;
Bend o'er us now as over them,
And set our sleep-bound spirits free:
Nor leave us slumbering in the watch
Our souls should keep with thee!"

Truly it seems that it is time to awake—time to stand in holy places! We certainly believe that the time is near when the cup of the Gentiles will be full to the brim and there will come into remembrance before God his ancient covenant people. Already the promise is beginning to be fulfilled that the elders should by the power of the Holy Spirit speak the language of the people to whom they were sent, and to one who observes the things transpiring in the earth, the conviction must sooner or later come with force that stirring events are near. May God in his mercy help us to be wise in season. Help us to realize that the same measure of earnestness, diligence, self-sacrifice, and loving service is required of each one. It may not be the same thing—all may not serve at the same post of duty—but each must be alike faithful at his post.

Mrs. Ella, a woman servant of God. My beloved sister in the Lord Jesus Christ, the author of our salvation and the finisher of our faith. Greeting to you. Now I make known my affection for you, and at this time love you. I tell unto you this word. We have chosen a sister to lead us, again we choose another to assist. But I am first. This I say to you, Pray to God to help me in raising this work of the Lord, to lead me by the Spirit and hope. You read in Romans chap. 1: 8, 9, 10, 11, 12; that is my desires. Give my regards to Mark and Wilmer. Good-bye to all of you. Amen. A little word more to you: There is your little shells from Kaukura. That is all. Written by Mrs. Tiniatua, Tikahau.

There are nothing else but men servants and women servants in their language, neither do they brother or sister one another, neither have they surnames. They call us all by our first name. ELLA.

A VOICE FROM ACROSS THE SEA.

DEAR sisters everywhere, a New Year's greeting to you. The new year has come to us on the islands of the sea also, but my thoughts often go back to the year that is gone with all its joys and sorrows, its pleasures and pains. The woof and warp of each individual woven in his or her web, leaving its impressions either for good or evil, or for both, upon those whom we have associated with during the year. I would that we could each be permitted to see our web as we weave it. That it might pass before us slowly so that we could see every part, the smooth, and even the seams and knots, black or spotted threads, broken ends standing up, and some places missed either in the warp or woof altogether. To see the latter, shame would mantle our brows and we would be humiliated to the very dust; while the smooth and good only would cause us to lift our heads with joy and thankfulness. Most sincerely I would like to see this of my own weaving that I might profit by it and try in the year that is before me to weave a much better web.

We have grave fears that we will lose Bro. Forseutt from this mission, leaving his plans for the work here incomplete. His ill health since the middle of October has been of that nature that he could be of very little use, which for one of his peculiar temperament is galling and sorrowful, in addition to his intense suffering. We all feel so much like doing something to help him if we only could. All the church on this island is united in pleading with the Lord in his behalf. For seven mornings some of the elders have gone into his house early, before they go to their work, to administer to him, as he is always so poorly in the mornings. During the same week from four to twelve sisters repaired to the church at night after all was quiet and there we spent an hour or more together in prayer to our Father to heal our beloved brother, so that he may be able to stay in the mission to help us, for O we need him so much! His wise and loving counsel, his pure teaching, his directing hand and watchcare are all needed. Sometimes our sisters' hearts during our seasons of prayer were drawn so close together that at the close of our petitions we would embrace one another and leave the house of God linked arm in arm. I can never forget that week of prayer held by the sisters, or what followed at our sacrament meeting the 7th of the new year. Our brother asked for all the elders present to administer to him. There were twelve. They stood with one hand on him the other raised heavenward. It was as solemn, as grand, as pure a sight as my eyes ever beheld. These elders, feeling the solemnity of the occasion, administering in the house of God! But one pale face among them, whose voice was made tremulous by the Spirit as he prayed after the same manner that all had been praying. The congregation of their own accord, kneeling in silence, while the sacred ordinance was performed. Tears flowed freely from eyes of the tender-hearted ones, and we felt that the heavenly host took cognizance of such an impressive scene among the children of God on earth. Neither did it end there. Bro. Forseutt arose and went into the pulpit and knelt in secret prayer. All was silent. After a little time he arose and called us to prayer and then prayed in "Tahiti" to the joy of every soul present. Weeping could be heard all over the house. We all knew he could not talk ten words straight along in the Tahitian language of himself. It is an evidence of God's power of a twofold character, this just related, and the other, the natives weeping so freely; for by experience I have proven the words of our friend here, Mr. Henry, to be true. Three years ago when I first met this people and gave my first testimony, many wept then. He was interpreting for me, and when he saw them weep he turned to me and said, "That is very strange. You have reached their hearts. It is a rare thing to see a native weep in a meeting." So also on this occasion when so many wept. My very soul rejoiced. May God bless them. They had all so earnestly prayed for him, and then our loving Father permitted them to hear him pray in their own tongue, which melted them to tears of joy, humility, and thankfulness, yet it overwhelmed them with astonishment. That night ten sisters met at the church at the usual hour, and closed up our week of prayer, by placing our brother in our Father's hands, for his will to be done, and we would be submissive, for, with the elders' work, we had, with fasting unitedly, done all that we could. And now may the Allwise one do that which seemeth best to him.

Yours in hope of sharing eternal life with you,
ELLA R. DEVORE.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Oceanica, Jan 8, 1894.

Dear Sister Walker:—Having just read a letter in the Home Column from Sr. Sarah, in which she expresses a desire that some one tell her where to find a selection of short Bible stories suitable for children, I recommend to her a book called "Half Hours with the Bible," published by McLaughlin Brothers, New York. Another plan would be to take the Intermediate Grade of our Gospel Quaterlies which contain for each week a nice Lesson Story. Some of these may be too difficult for very young children, but they may be simplified by the parent or teacher and such portions used as the child may be able to understand. Your sister,

CASSIE B. KELLEY.

HELPING HAND.

SR. L. E. KELLEY in sending her name to the Daughters of Zion says: "I desire to send my name and to do all I can, but as we live six miles from other Saints, it is not possible to meet together. If I could in any way encourage you in your noble work, I would be so glad. I shall remember you in my prayers."

Sister Turnour writing from Hartford, Michigan, says: "I have received great help from the Daughters of Zion and from the Home Column in training my children. May the Spirit of God be with you and aid you in the well-begun work."

Sr. Vickery writing from Garland, Alabama: "It is the mothers who will have to see that the rising generation is trained in the purity of the gospel work. My experience is that women have more patience than men. I hope the homes of all who receive the leaflets will be benefited by them. I have read and reread No. 4. All my daughters have read it and I have sent it out on its mission to other mothers and when it comes home there are others waiting to read it."

Sr. Emily Davis, of Hollister, California, writes: "We have no organization of Daughters of Zion here, as it seems impossible for us for various reasons to meet together, but we are in sympathy with the movement and convinced it will soon be—if indeed it is not now—a power for good in the church reaching farther than human wisdom can estimate. May God prosper every effort put forth for its advancement."

In ordering back numbers of the leaflets, Sr. C. H. Derry says: "I have numbers five and six which came in the Herald. I think them the most perfect and helpful gems of thought I ever read. We are in a locality where there are no Saints and where I think much good can be done by handing out such reading matter. The school directors and teacher have tried to take a step in the school towards moral advancement, and as this opened the way, I embraced the opportunity of handing the teacher Leaflet No. 5, "Our Boys in the Public Schools." He accepted and read it. I pray its perfect moral lesson may be appreciated, advocated, and partially, at least, put into practice. May God bless the minds of contributors as well as readers of these little leaflets, is my humble prayer.

We are pleased to learn that the sisters of the Harlan branch met at the house of Sr. Chatburn on November 30 and organized a local branch of the Daughters of Zion. The second Thursday of each month was chosen as the day of meeting in connection with the Prayer Union. The sisters feel that if faithful, good results can but follow.

Sr. Frances Kemp, Hutchinson, Colorado, in speaking of the mothers' work says: "It is good and grand and it is bound to prosper. I know the work has to be accomplished by some one and if some will not take hold then others will. It is part and parcel of the gospel of Christ, and it will be with this organization as with the fundamental principles of the gospel if we don't teach and put in practice what we teach, God will raise up a people who will. These teachings have been put off too long already and much wickedness has been committed which might have been prevented had we as a people not been so dilatory in the matter. But we gain nothing by mourning over the errors of the past. Rather let us 'act in the living present.'"

Sisters of the Burlington branch met at the home of Sr. Maggie Wright on Thursday afternoon, January 18, 1894, to organize a society of the United Daughters of Zion. Meeting opened by singing hymn No. 392, Saints' Harp; prayer by Bro. Fred Johnson, then hymn No. 311 was sung. Organized with Srs. Wright, Morton, Jarvis, Winter, Craig, Stadlander, Burnham, Essig, Gregg, Ross, and Johnson present, Bro. F. Johnson in chair. Election of officers being in order, the following officers were elected: Sr. Morton president, Sr. Wright assistant, Sr. Ruth Johnson secretary. It was suggested and decided we use an hour or more after our meetings closed to sew, the benefit derived therefrom to go to the church. Moved and seconded we meet every Thursday at 2:30 p. m., for "Prayer Union" excepting every second Thursday of the month, when we meet in the capacity of United Daughters of Zion. Closed by singing first and last verses of hymn No. 52. Prayer by Bro. Johnson. Adjourned to meet at Sr. Wright's on February 8, 1894.

RUTH D. JOHNSON, Sec.

[TO THE names above have been added those of Sisters Otto, Lasy, Lark, Ortleb, and Fisher, also the encouraging word that thus far the Lord has been with and blessed them.—ED.]

In answer to Sr. Knipschild concerning barley for mild drinks: When parched real brown in the oven and ground and made the same as coffee it makes a wholesome, nourishing, and palatable beverage for breakfast, remembering the word "mild," not strong.

BUTTE CREEK, Cal., Jan. 17.

Editors Herald:—My loneliness to-day leads me to try and say a few words to the brethren and sisters. My thoughts go to them that are far from here where there are so many together, and I almost wish I were among them, although there are twelve Saints in this vicinity, ten being recently baptized. We have a nice little church. Bro. Pack is our minister, This is a hard place to preach in, but Bro. Pack still strives to do the Master's will, and watch over his little flock, and bring more to the fold. He is called upon to preach in different places so often that he cannot preach here as often as we would like.

The Saints all met at Bro. Pack's, at his request, on Christmas. We had a nice dinner, and preaching, and took sacrament. All enjoyed themselves. With God's blessing may we all be faithful and escape the snares of the enemy. Your sister, MARY J. AKIN.

GREENWOOD, N. Y., Feb. 9.

Editors Herald:—Leaving home the 1st of January I came to Conneautville, Pennsylvania, holding meetings every evening for about two weeks. On the 17th came to Meadville, stopping two nights at the pleasant home of Bro. and Sr. Garrett. Starting out before daylight the morning of the 19th we arrived the same evening via Olean, Postville, and by private conveyance to Obi, New York, where we held meetings every evening and on Sundays until February 1, when we left for Wellsville, calling on our way at the home of our aged sister, Polly Hyde. When I saw her note in the Herald, I did not know at that time that any of the brethren had ever visited her, and I thought that if some day, perchance, I might be old and separated from those of like precious faith as is this old pilgrim a visit from some one to whom the light of the latter-day message had come would be a grateful thing.

Heavy snow and bad weather and other hindrances prevented an attempt at preaching at Belmont, and we went on to Wellsville stopping over a day and two nights with Bro. Childs. From there we went to Andover, waiting at Sr. Updyke's for her son who met me and brought me in his sleigh nine miles to the place of this writing.

At Obi there are interested people and some near the door, and we have reason to believe that some good was done and friends made for the cause, which everywhere counts for something. Indeed, I have believed it a safer policy and more productive of lasting benefit to the church to make a good friend than a poor convert. Matters were decidedly against us when we went there and a very discouraging outlook presented itself; but remembering that motto of Napoleon's that "difficulties were made to be overcome," we started in to do what we could. The United Brethren were just closing a revival service when we got there but concluded to start up again when our meetings commenced, and sent for their third preacher, all on our account, so the friends said. Storm and heavy snows hindered, and nearly extinguished meetings at times, as it was impossible some nights for women to attend. There are people there, however, who should be looked after, and in the spring a Sunday school could be formed by us, and a church in my opinion with steady, persistent, wise labor.

This is in the center of the once famous Alleghany oil field. Oil derricks yet spread all around over the high hills, from some of which limited quantities of oil are yet being pumped into pipe lines and tanks owned and controlled by the Standard Oil Company, which pays about such price for this oil as it pleases, and sells or controls the market in about the same way. Very few people realize the power that this great monopoly-octopus exercises in the control in its own private interests of one of the necessities of the people. Remembering that this oil is bought where they do not own the territory or control its first production for from forty to eighty cents per barrel, and that what comes out of the waste in the process pays for the refining, it is very easy to see where the wealth of such men as Mr. Rockefeller, now probably the richest man in the United States, comes from. That "corporations have no soul" is evidenced by the remorseless way in which competition is crushed, wherever it has the power to do so; e. g., a private party undertook to make some money for himself as well as to help the people, near this place, and built a small refinery—selling refined oil at a little lower price than the Standard Oil Company has ordered that the laboring and poor people of the United States shall pay for it. Result! this company ordered oil there, and to be given away until through some manner this man's refinery was burned down, and this experiment of competition was stopped. The common people who live in the country have as yet their air and water free from tribute to the greed and selfishness of capital and corporations of men, but the good Lord only knows how long ere some invention or combination will be sprung upon the people to deprive them of these things without a tax being levied.

To-night we commence a series of meetings in the Christian church in this place; how long we shall continue is a matter of future development. We never feel sanguine under such conditions however; past experience won't allow it, two theatrical performances were given the night before and last night, for the purpose of raising funds for the ministerial back salary, which have hindered as that much; and a revival wave is liable to strike us next week, so the pastor informed us; so between the fires, it is not likely that "the way which they call heresy" is likely to become contagious or to spread very far. The members of our society are very much scattered in this neighborhood, but are a very nice class of people, and stand well in practical affairs in the community, though their religious belief is at a popular discount; and it is owing to these facts largely that we are able to procure the church for service, a significant thing for Latter Day Saints to notice.

We are comfortably cared for at the home of Bro. and Sr. Deremer. Sleighing has been good except upon the high hill roads, where snowdrifts compel the abandonment of the regular highway for the fields about one half the time. Bro. Wunsch, of East Buffalo, is trying to secure a hearing for us in that place and we have promised to make him a call.

In the faith,

M. H. BOND.

STAFFORD, Eng., Jan. 20.

Editors Herald:—I wish you and all readers of Herald a happy New Year.

The work in this district goes somewhat slowly. I think we are hardly so vigorous as we might be; I am afraid that amidst the noise and confusion our quiet ways are unnoticed. Prejudice runs high against the doctrine we hold, and when it becomes pretty well known that one is a Latter Day Saint he generally gets a fairly wide berth—is ostracised because he desires to follow the Lord Jesus Christ in spirit and in truth. This is the case in small towns like ours. I don't know how it may be in the large towns.

In this condition one does not get the opportunities for good he could desire, and if one must get the opportunity he has to make it. That way does not always please. In the matter of advertising meetings, we in this town have spent lots of money; but none come out, but if an army man says he is going to tell about a month in jail, well, they will fill the place; so it is evident that there are many who do not want gospel light; they are turned unto fables. Still we keep laboring and hoping we may bring in the honest in heart.

I was much pleased to read the testimony of the sister in Herald of December 30, in regard to her experience concerning the Word of Wisdom. It is so seldom one hears anything on her side of the question that I really do admire her courage in sending such testimony. I am not prepared to accept everybody's interpretation of the Word of Wisdom, and I am sure there are many who, like the sister referred to, are wise above that which is written. Total abstinence from flesh meat is not enjoined in it. The sister thought if temperance in eating of flesh was pleasing to God, how much more so total abstinence would be; but the Word of Wisdom does not call upon the Saints to totally abstain. That was an erroneous conclusion, and to my mind, like this would be: Because the Lord has enjoined men and women that they shall be baptized before they can become partakers of membership in his church and of his Spirit, how much more pleasing it would be to him were I to be baptized sixty times! Why, it is absurd. I do like to listen to and read after people who will use the good sense our heavenly Father has given them. It is a pity; I fear many are going over to fanaticism in these matters. It engenders the spirit of "I am holier than thou!" which is no Christian spirit.

I do feel and think that the Word of Wisdom teaches temperance and plain living as best suited to all who become obedient to gospel truth. I am at one and in sympathy with all the good, and desire to see the work go forth and prosper, and pray and labor to that end. May God bless all who put forth efforts in his work to raise the fallen and cheer the faint. Yours in bonds of love.

GEORGE S. GREENWOOD.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb 5

Editors Herald:—This leaves me in fair health, and still in this great city of Minneapolis. The work is advancing here, congregations are increasing and friends are being made to our faith. Bro. J. A. Davis leaves to-morrow for Dodge county to hold a series of meetings. From there he goes to Rushford to ordain Bro. Pement and open up the work there. The work in this State is onward and the indications are that in the near future a good harvest will be had. The Lord is working with his servants, confirming the word, and his children are rejoicing in the truth. I have administered to a good many sick this year and in nearly every case those afflicted have received relief.

There has been one remarkable case of healing here in the city. A lady, not a member of the church, had been afflicted with rheumatic gout for nine years, and her sufferings had been so severe that at times she could be heard for two blocks away. Ulceration had formed under the skin causing bunches about the size and color of grapes. Becoming acquainted with her, Bro. Charles Shallbetter and I administered to her, and the first night she slept like a child. And now she can walk to our meetings, sometimes twice on Sunday, and she lives about a mile away. The flesh has changed to its natural color, and she has no pain to speak of. She also had to take strong opiates and be kept unconscious for two or three days at a time. Now she has no need of them. Thus the Lord is confirming the word. She with several others are ready for baptism as soon as warm weather comes. There seems to be a dread of the water in the winter here. I expect to go home about the 1st of March as I have matters that must be attended to that I feel cannot be delayed longer. I feel well in the work, and am having liberty to my heart's content.

For truth,

E. A. STEDMAN.

ARBAUGH, Ohio, Feb. 7.

Editors Herald:—I have just returned from Buffalo, West Virginia, where I was engaged in a discussion with Rev. H. L. Poling of the United Brethren Church. Arrangements were made with Rev. J. M. Hart, the circuit rider, for debate, to commence January 22, but as the time drew nigh this gentleman concluded that he could not appear on the date set, but agreed to appear one week later. But the time arrived, and again our opponents did not appear owing to their champion not having heard of their arrangements. But finally, after a great deal of waiting and dispatching, their man appeared and debate commenced February 1, lasting four days.

Two propositions were discussed involving the faith of both churches. Poling is said to be the ablest man of the United Brethren Church in the State. Our hearers were composed mostly of United Brethren and Methodists, all anxious to hear something bad said about the "Mormons." In this they were not disappointed, for their man spent the most of his time in reading statements from books written against the Saints,—mainly from McKinney. When we called upon him to answer scriptural arguments his only attempt would be to laugh, ridicule, and sneer. We called upon him to confine his examination of our belief to our own works and the Bible, but he surely saw that we had the word on our side, and that he could not fight us with that. He often spoke very lightly of the Book of Mormon, but I advised him to stick to the proposition that we then had under examination, and promised him a chance to attack the Book of Mormon; but at the close when I submitted a proposition on the book, he refused, and said that the next time he wanted to meet Bro. Kelley. This, though, according to our observation, was only a vain excuse and an attempt at bluff. But we gave him to understand that we were able to handle all such champions as he.

Bro. J. L. Williams was with me and served as my moderator. We returned home feeling assured that the truth had not suffered, especially with those who seek for it. During the debate we were kindly cared for by Bro. H. J. Harris and family.

Prior to the discussion we met with two Brighamite elders, who were laboring in Putnam county, West Virginia. They were pleasant appearing and intelligent young men, and we had near a day's conversation with them in regard to the respective positions of the Brighamite and Reorganized Churches. These were the first members of the Utah Church I had ever met. They seemed willing to talk and reason, but were somewhat surprised and astonished when I presented the early teachings of the church under Joseph and Hyrum; yet they are firm in their positions, and think that the world combined could not move them. When I mentioned the probability of all factions of Latter Day Saints uniting in the future, their faces seemed to beam with joy, and they expressed themselves as being strong in the belief of and hope for such a union. They have eighteen or twenty missionaries in West Virginia, and are doing systematic work. Two of them take one county at a time, canvass it thoroughly, and then pass to another. In localities where they cannot get houses they visit every family and distribute tracts.

The Ohio district conference convenes at Vale's Mills, Ohio, February 17. We anticipate a profitable time. Let all come that can.

In the faith,

H. E. MOLER.

BEVIER, Mo., Feb. 9.

Editors Herald:—I left Bevier on the 8th of December and after a two-months' tour over the district, preaching in Carrollton—Bro. Knipschild's house, Higbee, Hardister, and Oak Ridge schoolhouses, stopped off at Bevier last evening to see how the work is moving here, and am proud to say, so far as I have learned, that all is moving along nicely. Bro. J. A. Tanner, since his ordination to the office of an elder and being chosen president of the branch, has been proving himself worthy of the place he occupies. Or, at least this is the way we think. The priest and other officers have been laboring in the branch, it seems with good results. A card from Bro. Luff stated he had changed my colaborer from this field to Southern Missouri; so I am left alone again. I found Bro. Foss to be a very agreeable companion, but we were only together a short time.

If my labor is to be estimated this year by the number I have baptized, I am afraid the church will say to me, "You can go home;" but if I can be an instrument in the hands of the Lord to sow, I am willing for others to do the reaping. We have our tent paid for, so it will require two good stout missionaries to use it.

On the night before starting to General Conference, April 6, 1892, I dreamed I saw a beautiful field of wheat; every head the same height and O, so heavy and so thick, and the grains were so large and plump! It seemed that I had charge of the field and that the field contained just fifteen acres. It was nearly ready for the sickle, and I and the brother with me were making preparations for harvesting it by cleaning out the fence row and setting up the machine with which it was to be reaped. Several men were standing by, making remarks about it being such a splendid piece of wheat, and one of them asked me how we managed to raise such a field of wheat. I told him, "by first properly preparing the soil and then sowing good seed." But they looked at me so very strange as if to say, "Your answer does not satisfy us." But I awoke before we harvested any or even got the binder started. So I say I am willing to sow if I can raise such wheat as that, and let others do the reaping.

I go to-morrow to the Menefee schoolhouse to hold a series of meetings, then to the Missouri River branch to try to revive the Saints there a little. They have not had meetings of any kind for some time, on account of sickness and no house to meet in. I also learn from a sister here who has lately been visiting relatives at De Witt that there is now an opportunity for preaching there in the Christian church, where I preached a few times some two years ago. Many years ago some five hundred Saints were driven from this place, from the homes they had purchased with hard-earned money. Let us toil on; we will soon gain the far hilltop.

Fraternally,

D. E. TUCKER.

AMBOY, Ill., Feb. 8.

Editors Herald:—I have been trying to present the gospel to the people of Coal City. By announcing the subject of "false prophets" in one of the churches and posting some similar announcements on the streets, (although I am opposed to sensational advertising of the gospel,) I received a fair hearing the first night; but the second and third nights witnessed such a decrease in attendance and absence of interest, that we closed, not caring to waste our efforts "on the desert air." Bro. Kier, at whose request I went to Coal City, assisted in these services.

From there we went to Wilmington and held three services in Sr. Bell's home, preaching to Saints and a few others. Thence I went to Mission and added four sermons to the testimony Bro. Roush had just been bearing. We had good attendance and attention there, but obedience does not seem to be in the minds of the people.

The Saints all minister very kindly to me, and I thank both them and their Inspirer therefor. However, it is a departure from my rule to praise individuals for their kindness to me, for many by such means secure for themselves esteem that they may or may not merit.

To judge from appearances, the fruits of my labors are discouraging, when compared with those of others. But I hope to be finally judged according to diligence, intensity, and lawfulness of effort, rather than from results that men see; so I labor on in hope.

Truly your brother,

ADAM J. KECK.

BLAINE, Ky., Jan. 31.

Editors Herald:—I have been in the missionary work since the 1st of June; I have been opening the work in new places ever since I have been in the work and have met with a great deal of opposition; but I have been patient with the people, and insisted that they investigate, and have succeeded to a good degree; and many good citizens have become friendly to the cause, and will unite with the church in the near future.

I was present on one occasion when a doctor was called to see an old man who had sore eyes and who told him he was afraid he had put it off too long, but fixed up some medicine and told him if he could see to work in two months he would be doing well. The old man had become a strong believer in the signs following, so I administered to him, and the next morning the swelling was all gone from his eyes, and in four or five days he went to work.

I have baptized five in West Virginia and one here in Kentucky. The one here was a very influential Baptist preacher. His wife presented herself for baptism last night. I intend to remain here until the 12th of February, then I will start to our district conference which meets with the Mount Zion branch, in Ritchie county, West Virginia. Priest W. R. Odell, from Centerville branch, came with me. He is a noble, Christian young man.

This seems to be the ripest field for Latter Day Saints I have ever been in; I have calls from every quarter to come and preach, and everybody comes to hear, rich and poor, Christians and nonchristians. The wife of the richest man in the county said that if I would convince her that Joseph the Seer did not teach and practice polygamy she would join the church.

I think it would be well for some of the Kentucky elders to come and stay in this county a month or two. Three days ago I was called upon to administer to a sick woman, and she was healed instantly. It created quite a sensation in the neighborhood. The Lord is working with his people, confirming the words with signs following.

ARKANSAW, Wis., Feb. 7.

Editors Herald:—Bro. C. H. Burr, W. A. McDowell, and myself are hard at work here, in Pepin county; we have a very effectual three horse team at work now. Bro. McDowell joined us two weeks ago, and we have just completed the sixth week of steady labor in Porcupine.

I had the pleasure of baptizing five beloved souls on Monday, the 5th. One hundred and forty-one people were present at the water, and two hundred and fifty were present at the confirmation meeting and preaching in the evening. Four children were blessed, and the Spirit was with us in power. This is only a commencement of the work; quite a number will be baptized next Sunday, and many are near the kingdom. A subscription paper is drawn up and soon will be in circulation for the purpose of building a church. Some have already promised fifty dollars, others twenty-five dollars, and so on. The lumber has also been donated, excepting some finishing lumber. The people have the means and will build a splendid church. We expect to organize a branch and dedicate our church all in the same day.

We have opened several new places in Pepin county around Porcupine; to-night we commence meetings on Maple Ridge. On next Monday and Tuesday nights we go to Arkansaw to review some articles on "Mormonism" a correspondent from that town has published in the county paper, in which he badly mixes us up with Utah and Brighamism and wonderfully misrepresents our belief. We challenged him to defend what he had published, but he failed to comply. □ He would rather stand behind the press and shoot us in the back.

The Methodist people are doing all they can in an underhanded way to thwart the interest of our meetings, but to no avail. Their elder went to the house of one of his good brethren to keep him from coming to our meeting, but it would not work. The latter invited the elder to come to meeting with him or do the other thing, and he and his family came, and we went home with them afterward. He gives fifty dollars toward our church, and wants me to make my home with him, and is very near the kingdom.

We have had splendid liberty in presenting the Book of Mormon and Joseph's mission; and everyone thinks the law of tithing the most beautiful and just method of sustaining the church; such a release from the old pass-the-hat-every-Sunday and want-money-all-the-time style. The people are sick of it. The law is received gladly by them. How beautiful is the gospel in its fullness! Brethren, we want to preach it all in our missionary work,—the law of tithing with it,—and not wait until we convert the people and then send a Bishop's agent around to preach it as a collateral doctrine. Shun not to declare the whole counsel of God.

Your brother in Christ,

H. P. CURTIS.

ANNATON, Wis., Feb. 5.

Editors Herald:—It was indeed a treat to see the bright pages of the Herald once more. It looks odd to see it in its new dress, though I cannot say I do not like the change. This is not the first time the Herald has changed its dress in its life of thirty-five years. I have in my possession the first three numbers of Volume 1, and I have been a constant reader ever since, except when I have been situated as we have been for the last three months, away from our base of supplies. Our friends at Bratville sent us a bundle of Heralds the other day, and we have been so busy that I have not had time to write for the papers; and even now while I write they are talking to me, asking questions concerning our faith.

Well, to begin at the first, I landed at Cassville, Wisconsin, November 6, and in a few days found Bro. Peterson. Bro. John Blackburn took us to Lancaster, where we gathered up our grips and struck out on foot, not knowing where we should stop. We tried at the third house before we found lodgings for the night, and the next day went on five or six miles further to the Dry Hollow district and announced a meeting for the same evening. After we had preached three or four sermons one of the school board informed us that we could not have the house longer, so we went three or four miles further to Buckwheat Ridge church and held some ten or twelve meetings. The weather was very bad and stormy, so our audiences were not very large. We then came five or six miles farther northeast to the Hake schoolhouse, and opened up our batteries, for indeed they were batteries against superstition, prejudice, and error; the people were full of such stuff, and we had to break our way through the phalanx of the enemy. We held forth at the Hake two weeks. Our audiences were large and the interest all we could wish. We then went over to Bratville to spend the holidays with Saints; we preached ten days there; in the meantime we received a card that the citizens of the Dry Hollow district had gotten up a petition and demanded that their schoolhouse be opened, so we returned there and commenced a series of meetings and preached twelve more discourses.

Meantime the people of Annaton sent for us. They have a large schoolhouse fitted with lamps, an organ, a bell, and everything convenient for holding meetings. We commenced there on Monday, January 15, and closed last night. The large schoolhouse was full each night, and last night it was literally packed. We went there entire strangers, but have made a host of friends to the cause and removed a world of prejudice. Several have expressed their intention of uniting with the church in the near future.

We preached two discourses on the Book of Mormon at Dry Hollow, and two at Annaton, and the result is we have sold eight copies of the book in one neighborhood. We commence to-night at the New California district, and then go on to Livingston, where they are anxiously awaiting us.

We have just learned from Bro. Pender that the Western Wisconsin district conference appointed Bro. Peterson and myself to take charge of the gospel tent the coming season, providing General Conference appoints us to Wisconsin next year. We intend to try to have a quartette of good singers and an organ, which we think will be interesting features in tent meetings. My health is good and I feel well spiritually. I baptized two at Buckwheat Ridge.

In gospel bonds,

E. M. WILDERMUTH.

WALLACEBURG, Ont., Feb. 8.

Editors Herald:—I have been holding meetings every night with good liberty for some time. There seems to be quite an awaking just now. On Tuesday I baptized a man and his wife, and yesterday I baptized two ladies, all heads of families. There was a good gathering at the water, and others are near. While passing through to Petrolia Bro. J. H. Lake stopped and gave us four able discourses; one on the temperance cause. All seemed to be satisfied.

Yours,

E. DELONG.

WEST OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 23.

Editors Herald:—I went last Sunday to Berkley, feeling after the Saints, fruits of the labors of Bro. Holt with his tent there. I found them gathered into one room; and there had lots of books on a table, and were busy comparing notes with different Bibles, Book of Mormon, Covenants, Voice of Warning, etc. They were glad to see me come and wanted to know if the Catholic Church was the great and abominable church or not. So after singing and prayer, I told them that no church, nor all the churches put together would fill the bill; it included everybody that was under the dominion of sin and Satan. The Book of Mormon says, there are but two churches; one under the dominion of Jesus, the Christ, or King Emanuel; the other, under the reign of the king of darkness. Then let us take care that we don't let sin reign in our mortal bodies, etc. One of them jumped up, saying, "The Spirit of God is here; my mind is full of light, etc." They all spoke one after another, their whole souls like a watered garden. Truly it was a sup at the brook of life by the way.

Yours in bonds,

J. W. VERNON.

Original Articles.

CHURCH HISTORY,—A REPLY.

No. 1.

BY W. W. BLAIR.

I REGRET having occasion to reply to the articles of Elder J. R. Lambert, found in Herald for July 8, August 26, and September 2, 1893, and had almost decided to let them pass unnoticed through the press, for the reason that some of the Herald readers dislike controversy between ministers of the church. But such should bear in mind that the church in all ages has witnessed conflicts of opinion among the ministry, as in Acts 15: 1-19, 39; Gal. 2: 11-14, etc., etc.; also that Paul said to the Saints:—

For there must be also heresies [schisms, divisions] among you, that they which are approved may be made manifest among you.—I Cor. 11: 19.

From this we may learn that controversy may not be without some good to those who love the Lord and seek to do his will. And a further reason for making a reply lies in the fact that, when meditating on the articles in question, on the 20th of December last, the Holy Spirit witnessed to me that I should "reply in the interest of the church." And to this I may add that, recently President Joseph Smith remarked to me that some evidently misunderstand me in regard to the history of the church. As to this latter statement I have to say, I intended to plainly set forth in my article in the Herald for July 22 last, that the history of the church contained in the Evening and Morning Star, Messenger and Advocate, Times and Seasons, and Millennial Star, (all of them the accredited organs of the church,) or found in any and all other accredited church documents, and published prior to the death of the Prophet Joseph Smith, ought to be accepted as genuine and reliable, and that only what was afterwards published by the Brighamite leaders was open to doubt and adverse criticism. In this way I sought to define, with much care and precision, just what portion of the history of the church should be free from condemnation, or suspicion, whether by individual Saints or by quorums, councils, or conferences. This essential distinction I emphasized repeatedly in my article in The Saints' Advocate for January, 1879, as may be seen on pages 432-3-4, of Herald for last year.

I now reassert what I have ever believed and taught; namely, that the history of the church as found distributed throughout the church papers and other authentic church documents, from 1829 to July, 1844, should be accepted as true and reliable; and that only those parts of purported church history published by the Utah Mormons, after the death of the Seer, were open to suspicion, doubt, and adverse criticism.

And I now further reassert what I have ever believed, and what I have ever taught; namely, that the authentic facts of history found in all the church papers and church documents, from 1829 to July, 1844, are of great value to the church, and are free to the use of all in all matters touching morals, doctrine, discipline, ordinance, ceremony, organization, and many other things connected with organizing and building the Church of Christ from the first up to 1844; also that I have never believed, and never taught, that facts of church history should, in the least, be preferred before, or be used as the commandments of the Lord, or in their stead, or to their disparagement or discredit.

I furthermore assert, that from changes I discovered as early as 1863, or before, in the purported history of the church published by the Utah Mormon leaders in the Millennial Star after 1845, I often warned the Saints, publicly and privately, that great care and wisdom and skill should be used in order to avoid deception and harm from that source. And in this connection I restate what I have said from the first; namely, that the resolution of last conference, in respect to church history, is improper, unjust, and condemns the entire history of the church when the resolution did not, and because it did not, define what parts of said church history are of "extremely doubtful character." Here is the resolution:—

Resolved, that in our judgment much of the church history contained in the Millennial Star and also in Times and Seasons, is of extremely doubtful character, and cannot be safely relied upon; therefore, it [the church history] should not be employed as authority in matters affecting the government of the church.

If it be said that this resolution prohibits the use of our church history only "in matters affecting the government of the church," then it must be remembered that the "matters affecting the government of the church" are found in all things that pertain to the church, whether of morals, doctrine, discipline, principle, ordinance, organization, quorum, council, with every means and every method of church work pertaining to the establishment and building of the church and kingdom of God in these last days. Therefore, prohibiting the use of church history to aid, and illustrate, and support, and confirm, in any and all of these "matters," it thereby prohibits its use for any church interest whatever. The "matters affecting the government of the church" are found in the facts of its origin, its rise, its organization, its work of upbuilding and development; and, as before said, they touch every department and every condition of the church from first to last, and notably its system of polity, mode of government, rules of regulation, methods and forms of administration, order of organization and management, as a whole, and in all its parts, including assemblies, conferences, councils, quorums, and whatever appertains to any and all of them. All these are embraced in the "matters affecting the government of the church;" and the said resolution prohibits the use of the church history in all these "matters," and hence it is entirely too sweeping, too prohibitory, and too condemnatory. Let those parts of the church history known to be faulty be pointed out and pronounced faulty, and be used with care, and discretion, and wisdom. And let those parts of our church history published during the administration of the "choice seer" and under his and his helpers' immediate notice, be free from discredit and condemnation, and be used for just what they are worth and no more.

We need the history of the church constantly, in defending and in advocating the interests of the church touching all "matters affecting the government of the church;" both as against the claims of Brighamites, Hedrickites, etc., etc.; also to successfully repel and defeat the base and cunning attacks of our enemies; likewise to show the Saints what were the official teachings and practices of the church from 1829 up to 1844. It was needed in the late suit for possession of the temple lot in Independence, and both the Times and Seasons and Millennial Star were placed in evidence on behalf of the church in many things. It is used freely in the Herald Office for various needs, as the Herald readers know. In view of these facts is it wise, and just, and in the interests of the Church of Christ, to not only throw a cloud upon, but actually prohibit the use of, our church history "in matters affecting the government of the church"!

After the foregoing introduction, I now undertake a more direct reply to some points in the articles of Bro. Lambert on church history, and other matters which he introduces therewith, and will further add that much of the controversy found in the Herald from 1885 to 1894 has arisen from attacks made by Bro. Lambert and two or three others upon editorials that did not suit their views on matters under consideration. Of these arraignments of the editors and first presidents of the church, the Saints and others have judged and will further judge, both as to their propriety and as to their merit. For one, as a church officer and an editor, I am quite content to abide my time and the just judgment of God and the faithful Saints.

On page 545 of Herald for 1893, Elder Lambert, when speaking of his former article in defense of the "resolution" in question, says:—

I endeavored to write carefully and guardedly, placing the resolution of conference and Bro. Blair's article from the Advocate in juxtaposition so that the reader might compare and decide in an independent and nonpartisan manner.

Now the facts are, Bro. Lambert first argued in defense of the said resolution and then added my article from the Advocate, saying:—

In this connection I present an editorial from the Saints' Advocate, for January, 1879.

But there is a striking want of "connection" between the said resolution, Bro. Lambert's arguments, and the said editorial, for they are in direct conflict in respect to that part of the church history published prior to July, 1844. The word "connection" signifies union, alliance, conjunction, correspondence, coherence, and the like; and in this sense the said editorial was received and understood and taught by some at Council Bluffs and elsewhere (as I came to know); thereby placing me in a false light and making my said editorial uphold what it in fact condemned. I objected then, and I object now, to such a misleading use of my writings, whether editorials or otherwise, and I do this in the interests of truth and right.

In the same paragraph, alluding to me, the brother says:—

Special pleading must be had in order, it would seem, to bring the Saints into certain lines of thought, whether or not, and at all hazards.

If the brother means by this grave charge that I use unfair and unscriptural "pleading," and that I seek "to bring the Saints into" my personal "lines of thought, whether or not, and at all hazards," my answer is, that my ministrations in the pulpit and through the press during the past thirty-seven consecutive years are a sufficient refutation. But if he means that my "pleading" is to "bring the Saints into certain lines of thought, whether or not, and at all hazards," and that those "lines of thought" are such as I deem to be of importance and clearly manifest in the word of God and authentic church history, then he is not far from right. For I intend "at all hazards," to firmly stand by and advocate and defend the law of God and also the lawful order of the church as founded and builded by Joseph the Seer, the history of which we find in the authentic records of the church from 1829 to July, 1844. I have done this in the past to some extent, as the history of the Reorganized Church shows, both as against sectarianism, the various factions of the church, and also against harmful innovations attempted within the church.

Bro. Lambert charges in paragraph 5 that I "practice" making the church history "more than a collateral witness;" but he utterly fails to prove it even by garbled extracts from my writings in Herald, page 462, for 1893. I there say:—

We are largely indebted to the facts of recorded history for knowledge concerning doctrine and principle in the government of the Church of Christ anciently and modernly.

And then I cite Matt. 28:20, also the "laying on of hands," likewise selecting and ordaining ministers, the rest-day of the church after the Lord's resurrection, the administration in temporal things, etc., etc., as cases in point. To this he evasively replies:—

It might do for one who believes that the Bible contains all that God ever said or intended to say concerning the gospel to use this argument; but it will hardly do for a Latter Day Saint. Was it history, or the word of God through Jesus Christ to the apostles which enabled them to know "how," "in what mode" "also with whom and for what purpose" the rite [baptism] was to be administered?

To this I reply that I said "we" (and had no reference to what "them," the apostles, anciently understood of such matters)—I said "we are largely indebted to the facts of recorded history for knowledge concerning doctrine and principle in the government of the Church of Christ anciently, and modernly." Had the brother quoted, fully, what I did say on the point, the reader would know how to judge correctly of my argument. I restate now what I then said, for it is not only just to me but it is of value to all Bible readers. Here is what I said on the point:—

We [not the ancient apostles] are largely indebted to the facts of recorded history for knowledge concerning doctrine and principle in the government of the Church of Christ anciently and modernly. For instance, Christ commanded his disciples to teach and baptize "all nations" (Matt. 28:19), and it is left for history to explain how, in what mode, and in what way this command was observed; also with whom, and for what purpose, that rite was administered.

Again: Christ required his disciples to teach their converts "to observe all things whatsoever I [Christ] have commanded you" (Matt. 28:20), and it remained largely for history to show what many of these "all things" were. This is notably true in regard to the "laying on of hands," selecting and ordaining ministers, the rest-day of the church after the Lord's resurrection, the administration of the temporal law of the church, etc., etc. All these matters are within and covered by the commission given the disciples by the Savior as before quoted, but nowhere in the Bible is found Christ's specific command touching the details in respect to the manner in which this authority and order of things should be carried into effect. It was left for church history to explain and illustrate much of that, and it follows, therefore, that that history is of indispensable value and authority, and of very high importance, in the government of the Church of God. In proper keeping with this, our ministry have, from the very first, quoted the facts of history in their teaching, expounding, and preaching the restored gospel and kingdom of Christ. And it was in exact keeping with this principle that the Herald editors, from 1885 to 1893, have quoted the facts of church history, ancient and modern, seeking to present those facts for what they were and are worth, applying them in such manner, at such times, and in such places, as seemed to them lawful and expedient, for the good of the church and the glory of Christ. In doing this they have studiously, vigilantly pointed out what appeared to be real, or probable, or possible defects in said history, giving reasons and explanations as best they could, that all might be duly instructed in the matters pertaining to the building and government of the church.

From the foregoing it will be seen that I did not state, nor intimate, as to what the ancient apostles knew of the "all things" commanded them by our Lord, but only that "we" were and are dependent, largely, upon church history for that knowledge. Neither did I say, nor intimate, that the Latter Day Saints are dependent on that ancient history for knowledge concerning baptism, its mode, etc., etc. All intelligent Saints know very well that the same gospel doctrines and rites and ceremonies and principles have been revealed anew in these last days through the "Choice Seer," and that we simply use ancient church history in advocacy, illustration, and also in defense of our claims in those matters; also that we use our modern church history published since 1830, as collateral to, and in connection with, the revelations given by our authorized prophets and seers, to show how, and by what authority, the Church of Christ has been founded, organized, and builded in these last days, and how it should continue to be builded in order to please God, fulfill the divine patterns given, and have the approval of God and the light and power of the Holy Spirit to abide and abound with it.

Bro. Lambert says:—

The New Testament fails to show, except by inference, that Christ placed any other order of apostles in the church than those placed in the Quorum of Twelve.

Replying to the above I cite the fact that our Lord, the head of the church, though not of the Quorum of the Twelve, was and is "the Apostle and High Priest of our profession" (Heb. 3:1); also that Paul and Barnabas (Acts 13:2; with 14:14); and Sylvanus and Timotheus (1 Thess. 1:1; with 2:6), and Andronicus and Junia

(Rom. 16:7), all were apostles, according to New Testament history; and yet it is nowhere in that history stated that they were at any time members of the Quorum of the Twelve. Indeed, it seems most improbable, if not quite impossible, that Paul was ever a member of the Quorum of the Twelve; for he says in Galatians:—

But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace, to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen: immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood: neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me; but I went into Arabia, and returned again unto Damascus. Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days. But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the Lord's brother.—Gal. 1:15-19.

Then fourteen years after I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took Titus with me also. And when James, Cephas, and John, who seemed to be pillars, perceived the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship; that we should go unto the heathen, and they unto the circumcision.—Gal. 3:1, 9.

From these historical facts it seems that Paul and Barnabas did not receive "the right hand of fellowship" from "James, Cephas, and John," until "fourteen years after" Paul's first visit to Jerusalem, which was "three years" after his conversion. In the light of these facts is it safe and proper to teach that Christ did not place "any other order of apostles in the church than those placed in the Quorum of the Twelve"?

Our theories should harmonize thoroughly with both the commandments of our Lord and the authentic history of his church.

In connection with the foregoing it is proper to say that modern revelation (and modern church history) teach that there were and are many apostles in the church who were not and are not "those placed in the Quorum of the Twelve," as see Doctrine and Covenants 16:3; 17:1; 19:1, 3; 26:3; 83:10; also that revelation placed some of these apostles, not of the Quorum of the Twelve, to preside over the entire church (D. C. 17:1; 19:1, 3; 26:3; 87:1, 2, 5; 107:39); and also that some of these apostles were called of God to preside over, counsel, direct, and lead those apostles placed in "the Quorum of the Twelve," as see Doctrine and Covenants 104:12; 105:6, 7, 12, and 117:3. And to this modern church history agrees.

THE REVELATION OF 1861.

MY views in brief, on this revelation, were published in the Herald for February 13, 1892, page 103, under the caption of "May I Speak?" I have no intention to repeat an expression of my views concerning the revelation, at this time, and if it has come to that pass that I cannot put my pen to paper to write on any subject for publication in the Herald without getting into controversy with somebody, I only ask that the Herald readers, who think all such controversy to be wrong, will place the responsibility where it properly belongs.

My leading object in writing this communication is that the church, and especially the ministry, may have their minds refreshed concerning the attitude of the First Presidency, the Twelve, and the Bishopric, together with the whole church, in conference assembled, toward the revelation designated above, and which now forms section 114 in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

Perhaps all are aware that the revelation has been indorsed by the church in General Conference capacity; but it seems that there was, as early as 1869, a strong sentiment in the church against the policy of the Twelve having anything to do with the execution of the law of tithing as enjoined in the revelation. In the minutes of the April Conference for 1869, we find the following:—

The following resolution was introduced, and after considerable discussion, passed.

Resolved, that it is not the true policy of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, that the Twelve shall control the funds of the church in the hands of the Bishop, but that the Bishop shall be amenable to the General Conference alone.—See Herald, Vol. 15, p. 281.

In the minutes of the Semi-annual Conference of September, 1871, less than one year and six months after the passage of the above resolution, occurs the following:—

On motion of Elders Forscutt and Blair, the following was offered and adopted:—

Whereas a diversity of opinion exists among the Spiritual authorities of the church in relation to a resolution which passed at the Annual Conference of 1869, which reads [then follows the resolution quoted above], it is hereby resolved that this conference reconsider that resolution.

On motion of Elders Forscutt and D. H. Bays, the following was presented and carried:—

Resolved, that the resolution of General Annual Conference of 1869, respecting the authority of the Twelve, in relation to tithing, be and is hereby repealed.

Resolved, that this conference does hereby affirm the appendix to the Epistle of the Quorum of the Twelve, given October 7, 1861, [that is, the revelation of 1861,] which reads: [then follows the reading of the revelation, which we omit,] and recommend to the Twelve and presiding Bishop the issuing of such instructions as they may deem proper for the more perfect execution of this law.—Herald, vol. 18, pp. 634, 635.

Thus we see that the resolution of 1869 became so distasteful to the body that in less than eighteen months after its adoption it was moved out of the way and others adopted in its stead. And from the action had when the objectionable resolution was repealed, we learn, that by affirming the revelation of 1861, the church then understood that they did thereby acknowledge that the Twelve, with the Bishopric, have authority to execute the law of tithing. To this understanding it would seem that no one ought to object, for the revelation teaches it as plainly as the New Testament teaches baptism for the remission of sins.

Next, we have the official action of the Twelve and Bishopric in defining "the scope and meaning" of the law, as set forth in the revelation, together with the adoption of certain "Principles and Rules of Action." This action occurred in April, 1878. In this effort to determine what part of the work enjoined in the commandment belongs to the Twelve, and what part to the Bishopric, these two quorums were ably assisted by the First Presidency, who presented the "Basis of Adjustment" which was finally adopted, and which reads as follows:—

1. The word "execute," as used in the revelation of 1861, is, in our view, to be construed to mean to "carry into effect," to set in motion legitimate forces, to put existing laws into active operation. To "execute" any given law may, and in this instance does, involve different offices, or the administration of different officers.

2. The charge to the Twelve is intended to define their duty as an advisory and judicial body, with whom lies the "regulating" of "the affairs of the church," according to law.

3. The part to be performed by the Twelve in carrying into effect the "Law of Tithing," is precedent and subsequent, and involves both teaching the law and administering it; administration and teaching to be upon principles agreed to by the Twelve and the Bishopric.

4. The Bishopric are the legal custodians of all the temporalities of the church, upon whom devolves the duty of gathering, safely keeping, and disbursing the moneys and properties of the church, in keeping with the law, and agreeably to the rules mutually agreed to by the Twelve and the Bishopric.

5. In the receiving and disbursing of church funds, all persons who may be intrusted therewith are in fact, or ex officio, agents for the Bishopric, and should account to the Bishopric; and in disbursing general church funds should do so by direction of the Bishop, or in accordance with an agreement and understanding with the Bishopric previously had; specific, in regard to objects before determined upon; general, in regard to objects incidental to the prosecution of missionary labor, for which, in the nature of things, no specific directions can be given.

6. The Bishopric being created by and responsible to the church for the proper administration of their duty, should not, in justice, be made finally responsible to the Twelve, in any other sense than all other church officers are responsible to the same quorum; that is, by proper charge and adjudication before the general church officers, or by decision of General Conference.

7. Discretionary power to receive and disburse church funds, and dispose of church property for the uses of the church, according to the laws of the church, and subject to inquiry by the Twelve and the church, must rest in the Bishopric only, as by law, the Bishopric only are legal custodians of such properties; but the Twelve may and should exercise such supervisory jurisdiction, according to previous arrangement and agreement with the Bishopric, as will prevent unnecessary delay and injury to the work of the ministry, and will facilitate the proper expenditure of funds in the church treasury for the purpose of carrying on the preaching of the word, in which is included the support of the families of traveling ministers in the field; the publication and distribution of such books and tracts as may be deemed expedient, for which no other provision is made; the erection of houses of worship; purchase of lands, together with the care and uses of them in missions assigned by conferences.

8. The Twelve being by law a traveling, spiritual, ministerial body, supposed to be in the missionary field, cannot in justice be expected to act as a council exercising local and decisive direction in the disbursement of church moneys, in the sense that no expenditure could be had, except upon their consent or order, first obtained; it is necessary that there be a full understanding between that quorum and the Bishopric as to the scope of the law demanding their attention to the temporal affairs of the church; also as to the rules which may govern both parties; which rules once agreed upon shall obtain until modified by mutual agreement and understanding; no power being given to either party to dictate those rules.

After the above document had been agreed to, nine distinct "principles and rules of action" were adopted by the two quorums.

In the years 1881 and 1882, some small amendments were made to the above rules; and in 1888 the whole ground was reexamined by the Twelve and the new Bishopric, and readopted. This is the record of the past, concerning this matter, and it clearly reveals the situation of the present. If good and sufficient grounds can be shown why we should go back on the record of the past, we certainly ought to be willing to do so; but if no such grounds exist, it seems right that we should continue to move along on the same line.

"THE QUESTION OF USURY."

IS IT right to take interest, Saint from Saint? This is a pertinent question. It is especially so, since, as we have an invitation to "come up higher," no means to attain to that condition can be neglected.

The meaning of the word "usury," as used in the Bible, appears to be the taking of property, or its equivalent, for the use of property or its equivalent. The meaning of the word "usury," as understood by the law of the land, appears to be the taking of an exorbitant amount of property or its equivalent for the use of property or its equivalent.

Usury; what is given for the use of; interest not exorbitant. (Matt. 15: 27.)—Rev. Evans' Glossary.

I will now show by the Bible that the meaning as given first above and as cited from Rev. Evans is correct:—

Take thou no usury of him, or increase. . . . Thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase.—Lev. 25: 36, 37.

This means that one should not lend to his brother, of the children of Israel, a certain amount of victuals, which appears to mean any kind of property, and when it was returned receive or require more in amount than was lent.

This explanation is confirmed by Ezekiel 18: 8:—

He that hath not given forth upon usury, neither hath taken any increase. (See also same chapter as last, verses 13 and 17; also Ezekiel 22: 12 and Proverbs 28: 8, to the same effect.)

The next thing to be decided is, was it wrong for the Israelites to take increase, as so understood, from one another? Let the Scriptures answer that question too. In Old Testament times it was; at least during and after Moses' time:—

If thou lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee, thou shalt not be to him as a usurer, neither shalt thou lay upon him usury.—Ex. 22: 25.

If thy brother be waxen poor, and fallen in decay with thee; then thou shalt relieve him: yea, though he be a stranger, or a sojourner; that he may live with thee. Take thou no usury of him, or increase: but fear thy God; that thy brother may live with thee. Thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase.—Lev. 25: 35-37.

Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of anything that is lent upon usury.—Deut. 23: 19.

To the same effect are the following: Nehemiah 5; Ezekiel 18: 8, 13, 17; Psalms 15: 5; Proverbs 28: 8.

We observe here that the restriction was that an Israelite should not take interest (for that is what it was, whether one or ten per centum) from his poor brother. It is said he might take usury from strangers. (Deut. 23: 20.) The conclusion that he might also lend to his brother at usury if not poor is not farfetched. It is not likely, however, that any borrowing was done except from mere necessity; and the mention that interest was not to be charged the poor brother in Exodus and Leviticus rather shows that the rule only was as to the poor, and not that one already having property sufficient for subsistence, and desiring to enlarge his holdings, should not be charged interest for borrowed money. Though in Deuteronomy the word "poor" is not found. The chapter, Nehemiah 5, refers to poor brethren in necessitous circumstances.

I shall be confronted, I know now, by the objection that that rule was under the Mosaic dispensation, but that will be overcome if it is shown that in the Christian dispensation the rule was the same. If in addition to that it appears to be the law in the last or present dispensation, then it certainly applies to us, as Saints.

First, Matthew 25: 27 and Luke 19: 23 should be noted. They do not state contrary to the rule that brother should not charge poor brother interest. "Exchangers;" this would indicate that money put with them had gained by the lawful rule of commerce, where it is borrowed for speculation, and by men who already have a living.

Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.—Matt. 7: 12. (See also Luke 6: 31.)

If I, for instance, should I be in poor circumstances, am willing for my brother to charge me interest upon money loaned, perhaps to buy something to eat and wear for myself and family; then I may likewise charge my brother interest if I should lend to him under the same, or substantially the same circumstances. Hardly a man would think it right to be charged interest in that way, perhaps none. Then that revives the Old Testament rule.

Again:—

A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another. . . . By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.—John 13: 34, 35.

If a brother is "waxen poor and fallen into decay," and I having property lend him for increase or interest when I know his condition is necessitous, is that showing him such love as would show "all men" that both of us were Christ's disciples? No. But if he already had a living and wanted to increase his holdings, would the case be different?

I know that among business men, and men, too, who do not pretend to be religious, much less to exceed the religion of what are called the "sects," it is thought to be eminently proper, for some motive best known to them (perhaps their idea of future rewards and punishments) to lend to men who are needy without interest. Such men, of course, loan, for speculation, or investment, at ruling rates of interest upon first-class security.

For I say unto you, that except your righteousness [right-doing] shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven.—Matt. 5: 20.

Does this not apply to the Saints now?

And the hand of providence hath smiled upon you most pleasingly, that you have obtained many riches; and because some of you have obtained more abundantly than that of your brethren, ye are lifted up in the pride of your hearts, and wear stiff necks, and high heads, because of the costliness of your apparel, and persecute your brethren because ye suppose that ye are better than they.—Jacob 2: 4.

This describes the condition of Saints whose righteousness does not exceed that of the scribes and Pharisees (sects). Would it also describe those who charge their poor brethren interest?

All things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets.—Nephi 6: 3.

While it appears that this rule that brother shall not charge brother, who is needy, interest, it does not appear that the Saint now is either justified in doing so with one not a brother in that condition. But in both cases much depends upon the particular circumstances of individual cases. No true Saint would do anything against good conscience, and all agree that conscience ought to be educated clear up to the highest standard set down in the New Testament and the Book of Mormon. I suppose there are Saints who feel that they have risen above a plain essay like this, so far as their conscience is concerned, and that they know better than Bro. Murray, or I, or others, what to do and how to render the passages quoted above, and those also given by Bro. Murray in his late article in these columns with the heading I have borrowed from him. Such men, however, are generally those who have means and do not desire to let any opportunity escape to increase them, whether against that sort of educated conscience mentioned above or not.

As far as the banker is concerned, he is trading in money; interest is the profit of his merchandise. Interest to him is as the storekeeper's margin. No merchant can afford to sell at cost; no banker can afford to lend without interest. It is just that the buyers should give the merchant a margin for the convenience the latter accords them by keeping in store a stock in a convenient locality; so is the interest to the banker just on account of the same convenience; namely, keeping money, the banker's merchandise, in a convenient locality. But there is no more in the way of the banker than the merchant to loaning a poor brother money without interest, in exceptional or rare cases, of course; the case to be judged of by the lender after the needy condition of the brother is stated.

I do not see how any other conclusion can be drawn. No matter in what business engaged, the brother who is able ought to loan to a needy brother without interest.

That is as far as justice permits us to go. Surely it cannot be said that if B., having one farm desires to get another, and borrowing money from A., to get present possession, ought not to pay a fair rate of interest for the accommodation. The money is worth something in the commercial world. If B. makes a judicious investment, which of course is supposed, he will make a profit out of the land. Now the land, after purchase with the money of A., stands in the place of that money. Money abstractly considered will not, of course, produce; but if it can be exchanged for that which will produce, as land in this hypothetical case, it does become a producer. If interest is then not paid by B., he is taking to himself the corn, wheat, etc., making a profit out of it, which the land produced purchased with A's money and giving A. no share of the profit. That is neither law nor equity; neither is it at all in accordance with the good conscience mentioned above.

Now if the case is this way: B., by some misfortune, whether his own fault or not, is in need of supplies for his family for a time; say six months, till crops are grown, and his brother supplies him, at interest, a schoolboy even would declare that against good conscience.

However, after all is said that can be said, the good conscience mentioned is always the criterion. The proposition, Will my brother make money with what I lend him? is a good one to be kept in view; but if the three books—"every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" (Matt. 4:4), teach us that that proposition is not the infallible rule, then it is right for us to follow God's word.

My opinion, then, is that every one should decide the question of interest or no interest for himself and herself, keeping, of course, in mind, "With what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again."—Matt. 7:2.

The Saints are weak. There is none more conscious of weakness than I am. Whether, however, their righteousness exceeds the righteousness of all others is not for me to say. I hope it does, and I think I can say I feel it does.

I further suggest that if anyone else desires to add to my suggestions upon this subject do so, but be meek. Do not do it with any desire merely to excel in reasoning or in display of biblical knowledge. Then I pray God to bless you, otherwise you will not be edified.

Kindly submitted as an attempt at elaboration of Bro. Murray's essay, above referred to.

PUNISHMENT FOR REFORMATION.

BY W. W. BLAIR.

IT is gratifying to see the progress being made in respect to the reformatory efforts of our penal institutions. This is in notable harmony with the teachings of Joseph the Seer and the sacred books of the church he organized and builded. The clipping below appended is from a late Omaha (Nebraska) Bee and sets forth some of the findings and suggestions of a committee appointed recently by the Nebraska legislature to inquire into the affairs of their penitentiary. They are worthy of special consideration:—

Your committee believes that some provision should be made whereby the ignorant convicts, as also those who may desire further educational advantages, may be taught such branches as are taught in the common schools of the State, and to do that we believe that a night school should be held not less than two evenings in each week, at which all those convicts who cannot read and write should be required to attend for instruction, and that others who should so desire, might attend for further instruction in the common school studies.

PUNISHMENT AND CRUELTY.

The question of the proper control of the criminal classes, and the general work of penal institutions, has from time to time required the attention of the ablest statesmen the world has produced. The one great problem confronting civilization in its advancing strides has been to properly define the limit between punishment and cruelty. The necessities of the government require the confinement and punishment of criminals for the protection of the public, and it cannot for a moment be assumed that the State, in the punishment of criminals, has any more right to be brutal than the criminal himself. Hence, the wise view of the question would determine that the State, not only on the ground of humanity, but on the ground of setting an example to the criminal classes, should itself use moderation in the punishments imposed.

THE QUESTION OF REFORMATION.

Your committee believes that while the distinctive character of the penitentiary as a penal institution should be maintained, that the question of reformation might be brought into good advantage; the evidence before your committee shows that there are a number of inmates in the institution who have been there several times before, which would indicate that there was something lacking in the system. Your committee would suggest that so far as can be done without injuring the character of the penitentiary as a penal institution, that reformatory work should be carried on in order to make the inmates better when they leave.

Your committee finds that much good work has been done by philanthropists and educational associations among the prisoners, and especially commends the work of the Lincoln Chautauqua association as shown in the mental and moral improvement noticeable in a number of prisoners.

Your committee would further recommend that the Secretary of State be instructed to have printed about one thousand copies of this report and the evidence herewith submitted, for distribution.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. M. CORRELL, Chairman.

Original Poetry.

IN RETROSPECT.

"Thy helpful hand, kind Father, now to me extend,
For I am weary of the load 'neath which I bend;
Self, and sin, and worldly care have long my soul engrossed, Emancipate me by thy grace, or I am lost."

So cried my burdened spirit once, when sorely pressed
With consciousness of guilt, and by remorse possessed.
My plea obtained, and by the grace revealed I knew
That those "far off" were welcome and the word was true.

The years rolled by and as they sped, delight was gained
In witnessing by word and work of good obtained.
Each year its increase brought of favor from above:
My heart of "stone" to "flesh" was changed—I lived to love.

Thus consecrated at the shrine where mother knelt—
My will subdued, my purpose changed, I each day felt

A joy in sacrifice, and oft a wish expressed
To bear in turn for him who thus my life had blessed.

But love had meaning deeper than I e'er had learned;
The import of these words I had not yet discerned:
"Who keepeth my commands, 'tis he that loveth me."
"Say not Lord, Lord, but do what I require of thee;

"'Tis better to obey than sacrifice." And when
At length these tidings, and "ye must be born again
Of water and of Spirit," did my ears salute,
I learned that meek obedience was love's first fruit.

And with this new evangel came what I'd desired—
The privilege to bear for Him my soul admired—
But, ah, love's test was more severe than I had thought,
And pride forbade me use the chance I long had sought.

For kith and kin and lucre-lust and love of fame
Must on the altar go; and I, henceforth, a name Must bear—the target of earth's cruel hate and scorn—
"A Mormon!"—"God of truth, have I to this been born?"

If so, give courage, and the tide I'll humbly breast—
Content if thou but own in me thy name confessed;
For Christ is dim-discerned where love entails no loss,
And Jesus ill-revealed in life without a cross.

And what I most desire is that thine image, Lord,
In me shall be discerned—be this my toil's reward:
Forward I move and yield to love's divine behest—
My will in thine I lose, and thus my faith attest."

Thus pleading and resigned I came into the fold;
Thus found I truth, more precious to the heart than gold;
Thus did my soul secure foundation for its hope—
Firm as the "Rock of Ages"—broad as reason's scope.

Now rests my life, with joy, upon the altar where
I trembling laid it in that solemn hour, and there,
Through varying vicissitudes, may it abide
'Till mirrored heaven therein proclaims it sanctified.

Nor will I murmur, though the cross-consuming fires
Burn deep to kill the stubble of my old desires;
Though keen the smart, each paroxysm only tells How close self lies, how sure the process that expels.

What though each carnal hope thus to its tomb be led;
With Christ enlarged in me, why should I mourn the dead?
Continue, Lord, 'till I, with holiness replete Am for thy presence and celestial glory meet.

This is to notify the members of this quorum that the rule requiring a report from each member each year is still operative; should this be neglected for two years it makes the member thus neglecting, liable to have his name dropped from the quorum. Please notice this, brethren, and send your reports or bring them. If sent, please send to me direct. If you have not blanks use common paper—be sure and give your address. The items necessary to be reported are: In what capacity serving, number sermons preached, baptisms, confirmations, ordinations, children blessed, sick administered to, couples married, funeral sermons, prayer meetings, and other services attended. If you desire blanks let me know and I will send them. Let us have a complete report that we come behind in no good work. I am still your brother and servant,

J. M. TERRY, Sec. Quorum.
No. 904 Woodson St., St. JOSEPH, Mo.

SECOND QUORUM OF ELDERS.

On the 14th day of February I mailed to each member of the quorum a blank report. You will please fill out statistically and also give present permanent address and return same not later than March 25. If any have not received blank report, if they will write me I will send them one. ARTHUR ALLEN, Sec.
No. 2,210 Wabash Ave., KANSAS CITY, Mo.

DELEGATE CREDENTIALS.

The attention of officers of districts (and of branches not in districts) is called to the necessity of their making out in March the credential certificates of those who are appointed to represent such districts and branches at the General Conference of 1894. They should be placed in my hands on or before April 1, in order that the roll may be prepared for acceptance by the Conference on the day it convenes. Then it can proceed to business without delay.

Do not issue a separate credential to each delegate, but place all names upon one sheet, and certify that they have been appointed by vote of the district named. Give the number of members, including those left upon the records of disorganized branches, and the scattering (unenrolled) members within its limits.

One vote is allowed for each 25 members, but not for a fraction of 25; and one delegate may cast 20 votes, that is, he may represent 500 members; or one delegate may be sent for each vote.

If the district desires that those of the delegates who are present at the conference should cast the entire vote (in case all of them are not present) then so state on the certificate; otherwise should there be a division in sentiment, upon the vote by yea and nay, all not being present, those who are present can only vote as individual delegates but cannot cast the district vote. And if the district numbers more than 500 members then more than one delegate must be present in order to cast the total vote of that district. Care should be taken to appoint those who are quite certain to attend conference, or else appoint a delegate for each vote, those who may possibly attend, so that there will be a chance for a fair representation to assist in doing the business of the church.

Send credentials by mail as soon after the conferences as possible; because there is need of time here to attend to these matters.

H. A. STEBBINS,
General Church Secretary.
LAMONI, Iowa. 14Feb24.

DIED.

SMITH.—At her home in Pleasant Valley, Washoe, Nevada, January 23, 1894, Sr. Sarah, wife of Lorenzo Smith, and the oldest daughter of Elder David R. Jones. Deceased was born in Carson Valley, Nevada, August 26, 1859. Baptized November, 1868, by Elder W. W. Blair. She lived an exemplary life, a loving and devoted wife and mother. In her last moments she expressed a desire that God would spare her life so that she could raise her infant children, otherwise the hope of a "better resurrection" buoyed her up while she passed through the "valley of the shadow of death." She died as she had lived, a true Saint. The departed sister leaves a husband and six small children, also father, mother, brothers, and a sister. Funeral service at the Odd Fellows' hall, Washoe City, by Elder H. L. Holt.

PETHOUD.—At Freeman, Nebraska, February 2, 1894, Bro. John T. Pethoud, aged 62 years, 1 month, and 26 days. Deceased was baptized in 1862 by Elder James W. Gillen. Bro. Pethoud leaves seven sons, two daughters, four brothers, one sister, besides grandchildren, nieces, nephews, and numerous other friends. He was held in highest esteem by all. Discourse to a large audience on the 4th inst. by Elder J. W. Waldsmith.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—The German Commissioners to negotiate the commercial treaty with Russia entertained the Russian Commissioners this evening at a banquet in the Kaiserhof. The banquet was intended to celebrate the signature of the treaty.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The Chamber of Deputies to-day, on motion of M. Casimir Perier, voted the sum of 400,000 francs for the benefit of the families of the Italians who lost their lives in the riots at Aigues-Mortes. There was no debate on the motion. The appropriation of this money is considered to be a stroke of diplomacy, as it will enable France to avoid discussion and disputes with Italy over the attacks of rioters on Italian subjects.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Mayor Gilroy in an interview to-day said the recent census of the unemployed made it clear that there are in the city a great body of working people with families who must be helped. Help by work or by such wise assistance as will bridge over the remaining months of winter must be forthcoming. It is the opinion, he said, of those best competent to judge, that special efforts in this direction must be continued for certainly not less than eight weeks longer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 10.—There will leave here to-morrow per steamer Monowai fourteen young Mormon missionaries, who will preach the doctrine of the Utah Latter Day Saints among the islands of the Pacific and Antarctic Oceans. Four of them are bound for Australia, six for Samoa, two for New Zealand, and two for the Sandwich Islands.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 10.—A negro named Collins, charged with enticing away servants, was taken from his home last night by white-caps, tied to a tree, and literally flayed alive. He lingered until this morning, when death ensued. There is no clew to the perpetrators, but the authorities are making every effort to apprehend the miscreants.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 10.—A petition for woman suffrage, signed by a number of Virginia women, was presented to the Legislature to-day. A leader in this movement is Miss Vanlew, who on account of her devotion to the Union cause was made postmaster of Richmond by President Grant.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—A dispatch from Cape Town says Lobengula, King of the Matabele, who was defeated and driven toward the Zambesi River by the British South African company's forces, is dead. The latest advices concerning Lobengula were to the effect that he had been deserted by his followers and was a fugitive in the bush, where he was suffering from gout.

GUATEMALA, Feb. 10.—The rebellion on the Atlantic coast of Nicaragua is causing that government serious anxiety. Priests are stirring up the Indians to join the revolutionists and are supplying them with arms and pledging them to rise against President Zelaya when the signal is given. Bonilla, the Honduras revolutionist, is reported to have shot all the prisoners that he took on his march to Tegucigalpa.

Frank Baker, the amateur rainmaker of Visalia, California, is said to be a phenomenal success in his art. It is said that during the months from January to June Baker continued his experiments with equal success; that he never failed to produce a storm within six or seven days during the months mentioned.

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—The banquet at the Russian embassy last evening is bound to provide food for reflection in all the capitals of the continent. Count Schouvaloff, Russian Ambassador to Germany, took advantage of the occasion to speak warmly of the commercial entente just accomplished and to add a few words pointing to a further understanding between Russia and Germany in the interest of the peace of Europe. His speech was a blow to France, defeating all the expectations aroused in Paris by the naval demonstration of the Russians at Toulon last fall.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 11.—The twenty-sixth annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association will commence here Thursday next and last till the following Tuesday. Miss Susan B. Anthony will preside, as she has for the last twenty-five years.

A blizzard accompanied by heavy snow set in in Kansas on the 11th and continued for forty-eight hours. It extended as far east as New York, including Wisconsin on the north and Oklahoma and Nebraska on the west, and Texas on the southeast. The heavy snowfall seriously impeded railroad and general traffic. A number of settlers perished in the Cherokee strip. Stock suffered severely throughout the west. The storm is the severest of its kind in years.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 12.—Advices received in this city to-night indicate that a cyclone passed over the States of Louisiana and Mississippi last night and this morning and left in its wake many casualties and a vast amount of destruction. Communication with the points most severely affected is interrupted. All the wires are down, and only the most meagre reports thus far have been received. The most alarming report is from Newtown, Louisiana, which place is said to have been wiped off the face of the earth. This has not been confirmed. Lexington, Kentucky, and other points in that State were also visited by the snowstorm.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Edeon Breton, 23 years old, threw a bomb in the café of the Hotel Terminus at the St. Lazare railway station this evening. The bomb exploded in the middle of the room and wounded twenty persons.

Shortly before nine o'clock Breton paid for a drink which he had taken at a table in the middle of the room and started to leave. When near the door he turned suddenly, drew a bomb from his coat, and threw it toward a group of persons who had sat next to him. The bomb struck an electric light fixture, then fell on a marble table and exploded. The great hotel and station were wrecked by the shock. The mirrors, windows, and doors were blown to atoms. The ceiling and floor were rent and walls were cracked. A dense, offensive smoke filled the café for four minutes, and in the obscurity the bomb-thrower escaped. He was afterwards captured. "Yes, I am an Anarchist," he exclaimed in response to reiterated questions, "and the more of the bourgeoisie I killed the better it would please me."

Great Britain was storm swept on the 12th inst. About a dozen people lost their lives, houses and churches were wrecked, and a number of vessels were lost off the north and west coast.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Five hundred of the men belonging to the Foreign Legion have been ordered to proceed to Senegal. They are intended to reinforce the French troops under Capt. Philippe, who is holding Timbuctoo against the Touaregs.

ROME, Feb. 12.—The Moniteur de Rome publishes a decree announcing the beatification of Joan of Arc. The Pope will to-morrow issue documents showing that the beatification is in accord with the private records of successive pontificates.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The highest Liberal authority contradicts the report sent to America that a dissolution of Parliament is probable within thirty days. Assurances have been given that the Ministry is entirely harmonious, that Mr. Gladstone comes back with renewed vigor and determination to carry through his great measures of reform, and that the recent action of the House of Lords has injected a new feature into the purposes of the Liberal party, perhaps the most important in its history, the ending or mending of the Upper House. Mr. Gladstone will not dissolve parliament until that issue is made perfectly clear before every voter in Great Britain.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The British steamship Iteria from Rio Janeiro January 28 brings advices from insurgent sources that the insurgent cruiser Republica came up with and rammed the government transport Itapu, which was conveying 600 troops and munitions to Santos. The transport, it is asserted, filled almost instantly and went down, carrying all on board with it.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 9.—The insurgent fleet attacked Armacao at eight o'clock last evening and continued the fight until daybreak. The insurgents landed troops and destroyed the beach and hilltop forts of the government. With six heavy guns and two magazine guns they swept the streets of Nictheroy, but finally were forced to retreat before the superior numbers of the government force. The government admits a loss of 200. The correspondent at Nictheroy says 500 is nearer the true loss. The insurgents succeeded beyond all hopes, having destroyed the government position most menacing to the fleet, and having lost but 270 men in all.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 11.—Dispatches from an official source at Rio de Janeiro say the government forces at Nictheroy have repulsed the insurgents and captured many prisoners, among whom are several naval officers.

In Rio Grande do Sul the insurgents have captured Basso Fundo, Alegrete, Monosay, Cruz Alta, and Sollad.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The commercial treaty between Russia and Germany is an event of the highest political importance. It has been signed, so far as Germany is concerned, because of the insistence and efforts of Emperor William, who, even after the visit of the Russian fleet at Toulon, did not lose hope that a closer relation between the great empires of Northern Europe might be brought about. When the diplomatic negotiations concerning the treaty seemed broken off the German Emperor continued, by means of his secret agents, to press the matter on the Czar, who was not anxious to conclude the arrangement, and who for a long time refused all propositions made to him. But Alexander II., in view of the advantages conceded to Russian commerce and agriculture, at last accepted Germany's proposals, and the protection ideas now so popular in France had also something to do with deciding him to take this step.

This commercial treaty between Russia and Germany will also have its influence on the general politics of Europe. The Czar, by developing the common commercial interests of Russia and Germany will also and of necessity be obliged to follow a pacific line of policy. By this rapprochement with Germany the relations between Russia and France will be welcomed. The mere fact that it is provided in the treaty that the subjects and vessels of the two empires are to be treated in the same way in each country as the subjects and vessels of that country gives almost a political character to the treaty, which gives grounds for serious reflection to European statesmen.

The Franco-Russian entente still exists, but hostility between Russia and Germany, which had no little to do with it, has greatly diminished, and the personal antipathy between the sovereigns of the two great Northern empires has almost entirely disappeared. It is possible that an interview between them may take place at Copenhagen during the coming summer. All this means that in the absence of any unforeseen event the peace of Europe is for the present assured and also that William II., Emperor of Germany, has scored a decided personal success.

A dispatch from Rome says the object of the present visit of Italian Ambassador Ressa-man to Rome is to receive instructions looking to the conclusion of friendly commercial relations between Italy and France.

The Trans-Mississippi Congress began its sessions at San Francisco, California, February 13. The Congress will discuss questions of importance to the business interests of the States represented.

Paris is considerably alarmed by the late Anarchist outrage. Breton, the bomb-thrower is believed to be the representative of an organized band of Anarchists.

There is a prospect of war between Peru and Ecuador.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The House of Commons was thronged to-day in anticipation of some important movement against the House of Lords. The employers' liability bill was under consideration. The bill with amendments to the amendments made by the House of Lords was passed.

The parish councils bill passed its third reading in the House of Lords to-day. The bill, however, was not in the condition it was received from the House of Commons, having been greatly mutilated by the amendments made to it in the Upper House.

The governor of French Guiana reports the English to be the aggressors in the late engagement between English and French.

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., Feb. 14.—The National Liberal Federation meeting to-day had a large attendance, which included a number of members of Parliament. Mr. Robson, Q. C., moved that the habitual disregard of the national will manifested by the House of Lords was an intolerable abuse, and assuring the ministry of the enthusiastic support of the Liberals for whatever measures were adopted to secure the Commons paramount authority.

Mr. Morton, M. P., in support of the resolution, asked what use there was in the House of Commons while the House of Lords was allowed to exist. The speaker said that the Peers used their political position for their own pecuniary interest and expressed the opinion that it was the duty of the people to end this fraudulent proceeding. What the people wanted, continued Mr. Morton, was first a quarrel with and then the destruction of their great enemy. The resolution was finally adopted unanimously, as were other resolutions embodying the Newcastle programme.

BELGRADE, Feb. 14.—A royal decree has been issued summoning the reserves to assemble for a three weeks' drill. The Radicals believe that a coup d'état is being prepared for March 6, the anniversary of the proclamation of the King. Ex-King Milan's influence with the army is invaluable to the government, which is aware that the crisis will culminate in a civil war.

VIENNA, Feb. 14.—Roumania and Bulgaria are discussing the wisdom of forming a military alliance for the purpose of defense in case of attack and of localizing the expected civil war in Servia, thus removing any pretext for foreign intervention.

WARSAW, Feb. 14.—The police claim to have discovered an extensive conspiracy to secure the freedom of Poland. The conspirators are said to comprise Nihilists as well as persons not in that sect. Many arrests have been made, including the entire editorial staff of two journals and many Catholic priests. The stipend of Bishop Kulinski has been suspended. At Kielce a police visit was made to the seminary and college, which resulted in the seizure of a large number of pamphlets calling upon the youth of Poland to rise and free their country from Russian oppression.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 15.—This afternoon Dr. Trueblood, Secretary of the American Peace Society, gave out the names of a committee which has been appointed to draw up plans for an international tribunal of arbitration. The committee is divided into American and European sections.

DEMING, N. M., Feb. 16.—Reports from Old Mexico state that the Temochian rebels were surrounded by government troops who killed seventy-five, and made others prisoners, whom they immediately shot; some few escaped. The troops suffered a loss of fifty.

KIEL, Feb. 16.—A terrible disaster occurred here to-day, owing to the explosion of a steam pipe on board the German ironclad Brandenburg. Forty-six men were killed instantly and nine others received injuries that will prove fatal. The vessel was damaged considerably.

Yellow fever is spreading rapidly at Rio Janeiro.

VOICE OF WARNING AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL PEOPLE;

OR AN INTRODUCTION TO THE FAITH AND DOCTRINE OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

This work in its graphic review of the prophecies and history of God's dealings with his people in past ages, together with the abundant proofs concerning the work of the latter days, the gathering and restoration of Israel to their ancient home in Palestine, is a book for the times. The author presents the prophetic evidences of the restoration of the gospel in "the dispensation of the fullness of times," showing the evidences in favor of a restoration of primitive Christianity and the organization of the apostolic church with its apostleship and priesthood—its authority—its powers and gifts. This publication has always been a favorite one among inquirers for the truth. 150 pages.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON

DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE,

FRANCIS PARKMAN.

A BIOGRAPHICAL article on the great historian, in McClure's Magazine, New York, for January, is especially valuable for its account of the difficulties Parkman had to contend with in composing his works. Of money, so essential to a historian in our day, Parkman had an ample supply. His grandfather, Samuel Parkman, was the richest merchant in Boston at the beginning of the century, and built an elegant mansion in Bowdoin Square, in which the historian was born, in 1823. He graduated at Harvard in 1844. Bent on understanding thoroughly Indian life and nature, he, in company with his kinsman, Quincy Shaw, spent the summer of 1846 among the Dakota Indians in the far west. This summer's experience cost Parkman his health for life. Up to this time, he had been a vigorous, atheletic person able to do whatever he willed. While with the savages, however, he became very ill, and, as the tribe was either hunting or fighting all the summer, and constantly on the go, it was impossible for him to get well. The rough Indian fare and the constant movement from place to place aggravated his disorder. To confess illness was to be tomahawked, to conceal it and bear up bravely was to command the respect and confidence of the Indians. Parkman was so ill that he had to be lifted into his saddle, and he rode many a day when it was with difficulty that he held on to the pommel. It was simply his unconquerable will that brought him out of this illness; but, when he returned to civilization, the strain he had been under left him permanently disabled.

He could not use his eyes for about three years, and it seemed as if all hope of carrying out the plans of his life must be given up. He had inherited a nervous affection which this illness had aggravated, and, from this time onward, he had a continuous trouble with his head and eyes, that could be humored, but not relieved. He could command for work not more than one twentieth of the time which other men have; and for ten years, from 1853 to 1863, he could not work at all. From his return from the west in 1846, to the day of his death, November 8, 1893, he never knew a day when he was an entirely well man. He spent some months at a water-cure in Northampton, without benefit. The physician urged him to prepare to die; but Parkman replied that he should not die, even if he did not get well. At a later day he went to Paris and consulted Dr. Brown-Séguard, who tested him for insanity, but finally told him that his head was perfectly sound, although the doctor could do nothing for him. The doctors all told him that he must not work, and he once said to the Reverend Julius H. Ward, that, if he had followed the doctors' instructions, he never could have written his books. The situation was desperate. For a greater part of the time, he could not read continuously for more than five minutes without straining his eyes, and it was impossible for him to write or read for long periods.

Yet, under these circumstances, Parkman became the author of twelve works of the highest authority and value, which gave him great reputation abroad, and which, by their accuracy and trustworthiness, their vitality and picturesqueness, have been accorded a place among the great histories of our time. He achieved all this by severe self-repression. He lived a hermit's life. He was fond of society, but did not dare to go into it. He could see only few friends in his own home. His own family had to shield him from excitement. His diet, his exercise, his day's work had to be regulated with great exactness, in order that he might get sleep. The least disarrangement of his routine induced wakefulness, and it was rarely that he could get sleep enough to restore his strength. His works are great, but his life was greater.—Literary Digest.

SURE CURE FOR SCANDAL-MONGERS.

It is told of Hannah More that she had a good way of managing tale-bearers. It is said that whenever she was told anything derogatory to another her invariable reply was: "Come, we will go and ask if this be true." The effect was sometimes ludicrously painful, says Harper's Bazaar. The tale-bearer was taken aback, stammered out a qualification, or begged that no notice be taken of the statement. But the good lady was inexorable; off she took the scandal-monger to the scandalized to make inquiry and compare accounts. It is not likely that anybody ever a second time ventured to repeat a gossipy story to Hannah More. One would think her method of treatment would be a sure cure for scandal.

JAP HAS THE FLOOR.

It may be of interest to the promoters of the World's Parliament of Religious Scheme to know, that while they were enjoying the opportunity of holding their heathen visitors under righteous scrutiny for a few weeks the Heathen himself was not asleep. Recent voices from Japan indicate that what passes here for Christian religion was undergoing as close an inspection by the priests of that country as was the imported philosophy.

Sanguine spirits have been flattering themselves that the way had been paved for an easier conquest in the distant lands of missionary service, and that reports from missionaries would tell hereafter of millions longing for the religion of our Christian country. To such we commend the following as being worthy of careful reading and thought. It is an extract from the speech of one of the returned Buddhist priests. It was inclosed in a letter written by a missionary in Japan and published in the New York Independent. The missionary says that much more of the same import was uttered. He believes that the effect of the parliament will be disastrous to Christian missionary enterprise in that country. The meeting where the speech was delivered was held in one of the largest theatres in Yokohama and the audience was addressed by ten of the Buddhists who had been present at the parliament. Two of them were distinguished priests and eminent scholars. Their utterances were received with wild applause by the large and enthusiastic crowd, and the meeting continued from ten a. m. to seven p. m. These priests are to travel throughout Japan, holding similar meetings, and the effect of them upon the lower classes, says the missionary, "will be to strengthen the power of Buddhism and to neutralize the influence of missionaries and native Christians."

Unfortunately, through the pious arrangements of those in charge, the Church of Christ was not represented at the Parliament, and neither the Buddhist nor any other visitors at the meetings had opportunity to hear even the theory of Christ's saving plan from the lips of one of his authorized representatives. Hence they had no fair opportunity to make comparisons.

Admitting the competency of the Heathen to judge fairly, still his testimony fails of effect as against the gospel of the Son of God, for Christ was not represented at the Parliament. However, here is part of what he said:—

When we received the invitation to attend the Parliament of Religions our Buddhist organizations would not send us as representatives of the sect. The great majority believed that it was a shrewd move on the part of Christians to get us there and then hold us up to ridicule or try to convert us. We accordingly went as individuals. But it was a wonderful surprise which awaited us. Our ideas were all mistaken. The Parliament was called because the western nations have come to realize the weakness and folly of Christianity and they really wished to hear from us of our religion, and to learn what the best religion is. There is no better place in the world to propagate the teachings of Buddhism than in America. . . . Christianity is merely an adornment of society in America. It is deeply believed in by very few. The great majority of Christians drink and commit various gross sins, and live very dissolute lives, although it is a very common belief and serves as a social adornment. Its lack of power proves its weakness. The meetings showed the great superiority of Buddhism over Christianity, and the mere fact of calling the meetings showed that the Americans and other western people had lost their faith in Christianity and were ready to accept the teachings of our superior religion.

DEDICATION.

SOMETHING over a year ago, the Saints at Coleman, Michigan, decided to build a house for worship, and in pursuance of the design, a committee consisting of Brethren J. H. Peters, Gordon Blasdel, John Moxon, Russell Yeager, and J. Cole Moxon was appointed to carry the design into execution. Different sites were examined, and one chosen; three lots somewhat centrally located were selected, the owners of which donated one, the other two being paid for at forty dollars per lot.

The building was completed within the year, the lots cleared of the stumps of the pine and other timber which had stood upon them, and inclosed with posts for a fence in due time if needed.

The site is a good one, situated on the north side of the Flint and Pere Marquette Railway that runs through the village from the southeast to the northwest from Saginaw City, forty miles distant. The site of the town originally lay in a dense forest; but the ax and the saw in enterprising hands have slowly but surely shorn the land of its forest crop, until there is little left, except the broken and half burned timber stubble. It is a lumber and supply producing town; boards, shingles, staves, barrel head linings, and other wooden necessities to commerce being here taken "from the stump," cut, turned, and twisted for the market, and thence shipped everywhere.

The town has about twelve hundred inhabitants, so far as we could see all busy in common industries of preparing useful and necessary products for the general trade of the States. England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, the Canadas, and the United States being fairly represented among the workers in the hive of human industry.

The house built by the branch is thirty-two by fifty-six feet in the main area, facing to the south, some four blocks from the railway station, and has an additional room at the back some sixteen feet wide and thirty feet in length, in which prayer, business, confirmation, and other meetings may be held. A storehouse for wood and coal, and other necessary outbuildings have been provided; a well near by supplies water for all purposes, including a font for baptismal purposes in the main building under the pulpit platform, large and commodious for its intended use.

It seemed to us that no better site could have been selected than the one chosen, and we take pleasure in stating the conviction that the location and building reflect credit on the wisdom, energy, and persistence of the committee and the branch as a whole.

The cost of the building, including the lots, was twenty-seven hundred and thirty-eight dollars and thirty-five cents. It is nicely seated with fixed chairs, and is well lighted. The platform is raised and has a neat reading desk, pulpit chairs, an organ, and chairs for the singers properly placed on it.

The house had been occupied for services about two months, when all things being ready for dedication, Bro. J. H. Peters sent an invitation to President Joseph Smith to be present and assist in the dedicatory services, fixed for February 18, 1894. Meetings had been held during the week preceding by Elder J. J. Cornish, and an interest created; so that when the editor reached the little town on the morning of Saturday, the 17th, he found that a goodly degree of anticipation and attention had been aroused.

Bro. F. M. Cooper, of Bay City, had been wired to come and assist, and he preached on the evening of the 17th.

A prayer and testimony meeting was held on Sunday morning from nine o'clock to 10:20, in charge of Brn. R. Davis and Jacob Kaplinger, of Freesoil; at 10:30 Bro. F. C. Smith opened the services and Bro. J. A. Carpenter, of Beaverton, preached to a house full, almost all of whom were members of the church.

At 2:30 in the afternoon Bro. J. H. Peters, branch president, was in charge; who gave out the hymns and led in opening prayer; and the sermon of dedication was delivered by President Joseph Smith. The house was filled to repletion, many standing in the aisles and vestibule and room at the end of building.

At the close of the sermon Bro. F. M. Cooper offered the prayer of dedication, with feeling and fervor of devotion.

There were present from Beaverton, Brn. J. A. Carpenter, Waters, Sylvester, and a number of the sisters; from Free Soil, Brn. Kaplinger, Schure, Bennett; from Farwell, Campbell, Stoddard, Pyre, Welch, and several others; from Gaylord, Richard Hartnell and wife; South Boardman, Bro. John Hansen, Sr. Jamison; Boyne City, George Washburn; from Brinton, John Tanner; Fort, James Beckley and wife, Bro. Thompson, and others; with others from different points in the State.

The branch at Coleman has eighty-one on its record of names; but some are scattered away from the place, leaving a working majority at the home center. The burden of work in erecting the house fell on Brn. J. H. Peters, John Moxon, and Russell Yeager; Bro. Gordon Blasdell having died, and Bro. J. Cole Moxon having removed to Missouri, before the building was done. There had been some little divergence of opinion as to the site, but the committee decided wisely for the present location; and the house is up and ready for use, offered to the Lord, and we doubt not accepted by him.

The song service was in the charge of Bro. John Moxon, assisted at the organ by Sr. Bessie Blasdell, and was well done considering the difficulties attending it. Bro. Moxon is doing all he can to give form and shape and life to the choral service of the branch; teaching twice a week.

Propos of the dedication: In the sermon the preacher remarked that his father's immediate family, including his father's mother, surviving brother, and three sisters, his wife, Emma, and her children, did not accept the rule and presidency of Brigham Young and the dogma of plural marriage, or go west to Utah. After the service, a citizen of the place who was present, overheard one to say that he did not believe the statement or that the preacher made it; so in the evening the citizen waited upon the preacher and asked the question whether the preacher did so state. The preacher restated it, and authorized the citizen to remake it whenever occasion seemed to demand it. He was much interested; and was afterward heard to defend the preacher and the Saints in regard to the statement of faith.

Bro. J. H. Peters has done what he could to advance the work at Coleman, and maintain services there; devoting much of his time and means to build the house of worship and avoid trouble.

In regard to the work in the mission Bro. Cornish states: "The work at Boyne City began about a year ago; George Washburn being the first, the Saints there now numbering about thirty. Boyne City is the county seat of Charlevoix county, and is the place where nearly all the disciples of Mr. J. J. Strang settled after the dispersion from the Island; but few of them remaining there; some of whom have united with the Reorganized Church. The Methodists have a congregation there, and are contemplating building a new house of worship, which if they do, will place the one now occupied by them for sale; the Saints are thinking to buy if it shall prove to be available and suitable for them."

The work began at South Boardman, about five years ago; Bro. Cornish meeting with strong opposition from the M. E., Free Methodist, and Baptist churches. There have been some thirty baptized there in the face of much and strong opposition, coming principally from the Free Methodist and the Baptist brethren. But whether as the result of opposing the truth or other causes, the former denomination has gradually lost ground until the Free Methodists hold no stated meetings, or have any considerable following. The branch has bought lots and is preparing to build a meetinghouse in the spring to be ready for the district conference in the summer.

About six years ago Bro. J. J. Cornish and others began work in Freesoil. The work was opposed, as usual, resulting in a discussion between Bro. Cornish and Rev. Snyder, of the M. E. Church, of six nights duration; twenty-eight being baptized into the fold at the close. Rev. B. S. Mills whom Bro. Scott met at Sherman, twelve miles away, lectured against the work there until he drove himself out of the field and left the coast clear. There was not much done after the first, until last fall when the work revived, through the opposing forces; men being brought in there from other places to lecture against it. The result so far has been an addition of thirty-three, five from the ranks of the M. E. people. The branch has six hundred dollars and some lumber subscribed towards a building.

Some six years since work was begun in Brinton, encountering trouble in obtaining a house to hold services. This was overcome by the brethren buying a vacated store building, moving it, and repairing and refitting it for worshiping uses; it is neatly seated and is a comfortable place.

Beaverton is a new place not yet down on the maps, but here work has been done, Bro. F. C. Smith and J. A. Carpenter being the ones that have bestowed the most labor there. Some additions have been made by members moving in while some five or six have been baptized. So close has been the opposition at this point that a citizen (not a religionist) being somewhat roused, offered a building site and some lumber to help build a house there, which the brethren contemplate doing at an early day.

Whittemore, Iosco county, has been made the scene of effort; begun about eight years since a branch has been organized; some twenty-five baptisms have occurred, a building about thirty by forty feet is being built, and is now so far advanced that meetings are being held in the basement, plastering yet to be done. No debt for it is yet incurred, and the committee has some forty dollars yet in hand. A Sisters' Aid society has provided much of the money towards the erection of the house.

Brn. Cornish and Cooper are quite pleased with the outlook in their fields, and propose to keep things moving if they can.

Excellent spirit prevailed during the meetings at Coleman. The editor spoke Monday evening the 19th, and meetings were to be held the rest of the week from the 18th.

Bro. Cornish states that Bro. F. C. Smith has been doing a good work in his field; having baptized about sixty since the last Annual Conference. Bro. Smith is calculated to do an excellent work if he continues to maintain his integrity and energy.

Brn. G. D. Washburn and F. H. Brooks, local laborers, are doing well in the work in Bro. Cornish's field, having baptized some twenty-five each since conference.

Brn. J. K. Soper and R. Hugill and others of the local force are accomplishing much, and are worthy of commendation.

Bro. C. G. Lewis, of East Jordan, though somewhat hindered, is keeping the branch together where he lives and bids fair to make a good record at an early day.

Bro. R. Davis, although eighty-two, and quite infirm, is still urging the battle forward, so much as he can. He will spend the rest of the season in Eastern Michigan.

There are about seventy of the church members at Bay City, but the names are not all on the branch record by reason of local causes, the effects of which have not yet been overcome. Bro. F. M. Cooper is hopeful; proposes to build up rather than tear down. Strong hopes are being indulged in that all at Bay City will in due time be enrolled, and a united effort be made for a grand movement in that city.

We believe as a rule the eldership should be very careful how they conduct their pulpit services when doing ministerial work. It is not well to be boisterous and rough in manner, nor to be boastful, arrogant, and overbearing, nor too confident and dogmatical, nor to be always charging folly, ignorance, superstition, willfulness, and maliciousness, on others, or challenging men of other faiths for discussion. And while we thus believe and counsel, we by no means wish to be understood as advising the elders not to advocate and defend the faith, under every condition that wisdom and necessity would require it to be done.

In all organized missions and districts set discussions should be arranged and provided for by or with the knowledge and consent of the president of district, or missionary in charge, neither should every challenge thrown down by others be snatched at and hastily entered into. Nor should any challenge be accepted by an elder in a district, or mission of a branch even, unless the challenge and propositions to be discussed are stated fairly for both sides; and this can be more readily secured by advising and counseling with the presiding authorities, one or more; they being likely from the nature of their work well calculated to avoid defeat through a mistaken wording of the challenge or propositions. Be always ready to defend the faith, but be not hasty in boisterously challenging everybody for debate. We are gaining moral ground and must maintain the standard. This can best be done by carefully and wisely, persistently preaching the gospel, without being personally aggressive upon the faiths, creeds, and organizations of other worshippers.

THIS we clip from the Farmington, New Hampshire, News, of February 6. We suppose it refers to Bro. R. Bullard:—

Elder Bullard's talks at Red Men's hall last Sunday were sound and logical and delivered in a convincing manner which was particularly pleasing. Each statement made by him was clinched by Bible references. All should hear him, as it would give them the opportunity for a larger scope of religious thought.

NO REDUCED RATES TO GENERAL CONFERENCE.

By letter from Secretary H. A. Stebbins to Bishop E. L. Kelley we learn that the Western Passenger Association declined to grant reduced rates to the April Annual Conference. Those interested should note this action. It means that delegates to the coming Sunday School Convention or General Conference must pay full fare, unless they are provided with clergymen's permits, or are able to secure special rates from local roads.

SALVATION.

THE testimony of a religion's worth may be read in the character and development of its devotees. That which does nothing for man is worth nothing to man. That which elevates and enriches his moral and general estate is worth much to the world. Theories may fascinate for a time, but if inapplicable to human conditions, they involve loss of time and energy and entail disappointment in proportion as they enlist attention. We need a philosophy that is eminently practical; that deals not alone in promises of glory and advantage after death, but with man as it finds him here as well.

If man is found defective, demoralized, and lost, he needs present help—help that rectifies the wrongs under which he suffers. If religion only asks him to have faith in better things in heaven it is not commensurate with his needs. If none of the damage wrought within his mind and body is repaired, then he receives but small assurance on which to base his hope, and society is not much bettered by his acceptance of religion.

If it be true that sin by our first parents entailed the conditions of depravity which we suffer affecting the mental, moral, and physical estate of man, then whatever is offered as a remedy, should reveal provisions commensurate with the demands of those conditions. It should cover every part that sin had affected and not confine its treatment to the spiritual ailment alone. As a redeeming agent, its contact with society should increase the measure of intelligence and lessen the amount of physical distress as well. And, indeed this is a part of the proposition Christianity, through its author, has made to the world. No man can carefully read the New Testament without making this discovery. Every city or neighborhood into which Christ or his chosen ministry entered and found believers, was benefited in these directions. There was a something in the message they carried that stimulated thought, study, reason, and furnished satisfaction and assurance to the aroused mentality, thus developing, by exercise, the latent force that otherwise would never have known its power of achievement. There was a means revealed in it by which the human was brought into contact with the divine, and by which disease and pain and physical infirmity were banished. While these were by no means the chief blessings conferred, they were, nevertheless, important enough to prove that the gospel as then proclaimed comprehended man in his entire estate, and dealt with him as he was.

A reference here to the last commission given by Christ to his ministry will convince the reader that it was intended that such blessing should abound after his departure. (See Mark 16:15-18.)

In fact it seems unreasonable to imagine that a wise physician would prescribe less. It is so like an omnipotent and all-wise Father to provide for all the necessities of his family. It would have been so unlike him to have done otherwise. What a pity he is not more generally represented thus to the world. If the world only had as much Christianity as it has religion how different would be the aspect of human affairs.

Salvation is talked of to-day as a process having for its object the preparation of men and women for death. Christianity's mission was to fit men to live. Its guarantee of excellent conditions after death was confirmed by the changes it wrought before death, by which its adherents were brought into communion with God, the source of life, and enabled to live as did Christ—a man in but not of the world. What is known as the Lord's prayer justifies the belief that God's will may be done on earth as in heaven. Without discussing the question of time when this shall have fulfillment, it is certain that it must be brought about by infusing the divine spirit into the human character, and allowing the potency of that dual existence to exert itself in sanctifying the elements around it. As the elements become pure the field widens for the operation of the agents which execute the will of God in heaven. Man becomes a fit companion for God's agents on earth, and in such condition is fit for the society of heaven. No man serves the divine purpose on earth fully who carries not with him the evidence that God resides with him. He who is "the habitation of God by his spirit" is fit to live, and whoever is fit to live is ready to die, and will be at home wherever he finds God and Christ, either in this life or that which is to come.

Christianity introduces man to God and furnishes the means and opportunity for that acquaintance to ripen into intimacy. It puts into man's hand the "power to become" a son of God, reveals the rights and privileges of sonship and makes it possible for man to hold "conversation in heaven"—to, like Enoch, walk with God. In the development of this work man is saved from sin—not from the consequences of sin alone; but from the disposition to sin—from the carnal mind, which is at "enmity with God." It is indeed a new birth, a new creation, a new life which is "hid with Christ in God," whereby the divine elements are made characteristic of the life lived on earth and become the influential factors therein.

Nicodemus was not capable of "seeing the kingdom," not having been born again, but even to his understanding the gospel power had appealed, and he bore witness that Christ was a "teacher sent from God." Miracles of physical healing had convinced him. The Pentecostal outpouring enabled the unlettered Galileans to speak in languages unknown to them. The selection of such men argued the divine purpose. As Paul declared, "Not many wise, not many noble" were chosen, the object being to allow the gospel to reveal its origin and attest its divinity in the transformation wrought in them. They became wise and noble without the help of such means as the world deemed essential, inasmuch that none were able to gainsay them. Thus, physically and intellectually, men were redeemed from the grasp of disease and ignorance and from the ignoble estate in which the gospel found them. Redemption and salvation are synonymous in this sense. When the Savior said to the victim of palsy, "Thy sins be forgiven thee," those present began to murmur at his apparent presumption to be a Savior; but when he said "that ye may know that the Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sin, I say to the sick of the palsy, Rise up and walk," it astonished them beyond measure to see the diseased man obey. It proved Christ to be a Savior, and, according to his own words, was intended for that purpose. This, coupled with the sermon on the mount and his sublime teachings throughout, evidences the design of his mission. It was to be educational and thus prove a Savior to the mind. It was a ministry of healing and thus brought salvation to the body. It introduced the philosophy of a new, or spiritual birth and thus made men "new creatures in Christ Jesus."

Salvation, in other words, meant rescue, enlargement, and sanctification in every department of human estate. Christianity's possibilities have been clearly demonstrated thus, and to preach less than this is to leave Christ partially unrepresented, and man ignorant of what divine mercy has provided.

THE AGE OF CONSENT IN IOWA.

IN this issue of the HERALD Bro. H. E. Jarvis calls attention to a bill now pending before the Iowa Legislature which, if passed, will raise the "age of consent" to eighteen years. He urges that petitions as described be circulated throughout the State for the signatures of voters, the same to be forwarded to the Representatives, together with personal letters, urging action to secure the passage of the present bill.

We trust our readers need no urging in the interests of this bill. Such movements deserve and should receive prompt, strong support from every lover of morality and religion. Our people have not been slow to act in the support of other moral reforms, and we believe they will not delay action in this case. The bill is right; the need is imperative.

It should be passed not only by the Iowa Legislature, but by that of every State. Its passage in one State will aid similar legislation in other States.

Petitions in favor of the bill are being circulated and signed in and about Lamoni.

HE that lives within the law of the land has no fear of the executors of the law; for, keeping the law he is not liable to be punished by it.

* *

He that is a true disciple of Christ lives within and keeps the provisions of Christ's law; hence has no fear of punishment, here or hereafter, for sin against the law.

* *

None feels the force of the law unless he be a transgressor; for the "strength of the law" is put in exercise against sinners; so of both laws, the law of God and the law of man.

* *

Innocent men sometimes suffer penalty imposed by law, enforced by men; but it is rarely. But no one will ever be made to suffer penalties unjustly inflicted by the executors of God's laws; they make no mistakes.

* *

He who depends upon self-righteousness, leans on a broken reed; he who trusts to the law of righteousness rests securely.

* *

Christ Jesus was the end of a broken law unto death, the beginning of a law of life never ending; he who will escape the first must live under the second.

* *

Absolute perfection is not attained in the flesh, not being a condition of fleshly life; but the way that leads to perfection begins in the life of the flesh and leads unto spiritual excellence and perfectness in the life to come—the life of the spirit.

* *

Few are either born to greatness, or become great, having the elements of greatness in them; but it is within the reach of all to become good, there being an element of goodness implanted in all. He that by overcoming the evil in himself has become good is in a degree great, and is better than he that is only great.

* *

The man who is conscious of his own worth—without egotism—may safely be trusted in an emergency.

WE are indebted to Bro. G. J. Waller for a copy of the the Pacific Commercial Advertiser of February 8, published at Honolulu, Hawaii.

We learn that the brethren appointed at last General Conference to secure correct representations of the church and its founders in encyclopedias, school histories, etc., have been successful, and will be able to report satisfactory progress at the coming conference.

Elder B. H. Roberts of the Utah church has issued a Book on succession, directing his attack against the Reorganized Church, the work being highly praised by the Deseret News, the organ of the church in Utah. It will be well for the elders to get the work and examine the positions and the reasons and argument by which they are sustained. We have not yet seen the work, but from the consideration that the writer is a man of ability, we should think that the book would be readable, and interesting, though its deduction may be erroneous and its arguments specious. We should not be either neglectful through prejudice, or fearful because of bigotry.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. J. S. ROTH wrote from Brush Creek, Iowa, the 19th inst:—

We leave here to-morrow. Had a splendid interest, and a goodly number are very near the kingdom, and some have requested me to return when the weather gets warmer. We go to Grove Hill till the 27th.

Bro. Heman C. Smith, Missouri Valley, Iowa, February 19th:—

Had an excellent series of meetings at Little Sioux. Full houses, intense interest, and fine liberty. Regretted to close, but appointments here made it necessary.

Bro. S. W. L. Scott has had good success from his efforts at Knox, Indiana. He wrote thus from Coldwater, Michigan, the 21st inst:—

We closed our meetings at Knox, Indiana, on Sunday evening last with an unusual attendance. The result was the addition of ten persons to the kingdom by baptism. Contrast is noteworthy; a few years ago five and six to eight and ten persons constituted the audience; now the chapel is not large enough to accommodate the people who come to hear.

I could feel the thrill of a revolution in Knox that would crown our cause with honor, at the start. A great work will be done in that region by wise and patient soldiering. May heaven bless the dear Saints and friends at that point.

Bro. A. Haws wrote from Santa Cruz, California, the 12th inst.:

I came here on the first day of the year and have held twenty-one meetings and a twelve nights' debate, which was well attended, under the circumstances; and I, of course, believe that our position lost nothing. The Saints here did their part nobly; as a little band without organization they are doing well. We baptized two good people who if faithful will be a benefit to the church. Bro. Daniel Brown did the baptizing, as my health is quite poor. I am trying to do all I can.

Bro. E. W. Nunley, Bastrop, Texas, February 1:

I preached last night to a small, attentive congregation. We expect good results and aim to continue over Sunday here. I then go to Lee county to a place where I was last week; good interest there; expect some will be baptized soon.

Bro. T. J. Mauzey, Atchison Junction, Missouri, February 19:

The branch here is in very good condition and there is considerable interest manifested. Brn. Hilliard and Chatburn were with us a few weeks ago explaining the law; they accomplished great good while here. We commenced work on a house of worship but have discontinued because of severe weather. The foundation is complete and, the Lord willing, we shall crowd the work as fast as possible. Bro. Summerfield was with us for good, but left because of sickness.

Bro. J. J. Cornish, Coleman, Michigan, February 19:

We had a grand good time at the dedication here.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

We have a number of requests for prayer for the sick, for the conversion of relatives and friends, and for other objects. Such as come to us addressed to the Prayer Union we have sent to the editor of the Home Column for insertion. The others we have presented as we could. We mention them that those who pray for others may remember these various requests.

Charles A. Hall, formerly president of the Hedrickites, at Independence, Missouri, and the leading defendant in the Temple Lot Suit, has lately denounced the Hedrickite faction and abandoned it, because it had "neither authority nor organization." This we learn from a letter to Bishop Kelley from Bro. R. May of Independence.

Sr. Celestine Rush, of Heppner, Oregon, requests that elders in Kansas will call on the following named persons, whom she reports to be interested in the work: Alfred Lynn, Admire, or Alen Station; James Beans, living nine miles west of Burlington; Mrs. Olsen, at or near Gridley. The one first named is a nephew to Sr. Heppner.

Bro. J. W. Wight and family were to sail from Sydney, New South Wales, February 19, for San Francisco. They expected to be present at the coming General Conference and intended making their home at Lamoni.

Bro. J. M. Stubbart reports successful meetings in and about Shelton, Buffalo county, Nebraska. He has been well received by the people who make numerous requests for preaching.

Bro. David Brand writes from Marengo, Illinois, that there is a prospect for additions to the church in that locality in the spring. He mentions it that some of the ministry may labor there if possible.

Bro. Samuel Simmons wishes to obtain the address of Bro. S. E. Russel who once resided near Cameron, Missouri, where Bro. Simmons may be addressed.

The Little Sioux district Sunday school convention convenes at Magnolia, Iowa, March 2. See notice on cover; received too late for regular insertion.

Conference of the Decatur district was held at Lamoni, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, February 22-24. The sessions were well attended and profitable throughout. Questions of importance to the work were discussed, in which both laity and ministry manifested a keen interest. Prospects for intelligent, substantial growth among the branches and for success in mission work in the Decatur district are excellent; this because of a closer study and a better understanding of the spirit and letter of the revelations of God. "Knowledge is power;" comprehension of the truth is essential to the success of the work "intrusted to all." Bro. William Anderson was reelected president, Bro. E. L. Page secretary, and Bro. David Dancer was sustained as Bishop's agent. Provision was made to place a tent in the field during the coming summer.

Bro. Joseph Snively was present at the late Decatur district conference, though still troubled with inflammation of the eyes. We regret to learn that his eldest son John met with a severe accident in which his arm was broken.

Bro. I. P. Baggerly, in charge of Central and Southern Indiana field, requests missionaries thereof to report to him by March 1, at Lamoni, Iowa. Regular notice too late for insertion.

We have letters from Brn. V. D. Baggerly, New Harmony, Indiana, F. Needham, Buffalo Prairie, and J. T. Curtis, Kibbie, Illinois.

"Bees and Fruit:" See advertisement of Bro. E. B. Morgan, of Lucas, Iowa, in present number of HERALD. Anyone wishing to purchase an apiary and small fruit farm will find the opportunity in this offer. Bro. Morgan wishes to dispose of his property in order to engage in ministerial work. His card appears on HERALD cover.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"If we must have heroes, and wars wherein to make them, there is no so brilliant a war as war with wrong, and no hero so worthy to be sung as he who has gained the bloodless victory of truth and mercy."

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI.

Dear Sisters:—The whole world is lying in wickedness and woe. A thousand wrongs, a thousand agonies, preventable agonies, are crying aloud to heaven for redress. The world is one great battle field, where right and wrong, good and evil, are fighting to the death. I feel that I must try to do something, however little, to help make things better, to make people think, see, and understand, for the awful sin, sorrow, suffering, and sadness there is in the world, makes my heart ache.

My work hitherto has not been very extensive. Not for lack of the will, but the ability to do what my heart desired. The world is in such a condition to-day that I feel it a sin for anyone to be idle (especially a Latter Day Saint). There are many using their time and talents for the benefit of this great gospel work, and my heart is constantly going out in sympathy and approval to those who are—both men and women—putting forth every effort within their power to suppress evil and establish good. God has called and sent out his servants to warn, exhort, and gather out of Babylon all who will come, and they are fighting manfully to accomplish the work of their Master. We feel to say to you, Keep on brothers, trust in God and do the right, and you will never fail. Our prayers are continually going up for you and your work. What we ask in return is that you will help and encourage us by your hearty consent and approval of our work. I have read so much of organizations, rights, and non-rights of women that I am heartily tired of it.

I am very much pleased to learn that the brethren are gradually becoming enlightened, and learning that the sisters have rights and privileges, and that they are graciously making room for them to occupy. It has been a struggle between right and the fear of doing wrong in conceding to women more ground on which to work and improve the time and opportunities of the present age of horrible wickedness and woe. We know your hearts are right, but the flesh is weak. We do not blame you, brothers. We don't expect you to believe—all at once—that we are capable of doing anything outside of the ordinary routine of dishwashing, scrubbing, sweeping, dusting, etc. That however was all very well in the past, but it has reached its limit. The Lord has spoken. The hastening time has come. He says, "Come up higher." What does that imply. It's a short sentence, but very significant. It calls for a concert of action; the united effort of the whole church. It sends out a warning that contentions and strife must cease. That we are approaching the end rapidly. It inspires the heart with a longing desire to work, to do some good somewhere or in some way. We cannot afford to be idle. Our future salvation demands the entire cooperation of the church.

Brethren, you need the help of the sisters. It is necessary. They are ready and willing to do what they can. It was so ordained from the beginning that woman should help. That is our aim and desire. Our whole soul is in the work. We would with you give up our life for the sake of it. We would not if we could, neither could we if we would, step over the line. It is the Lord's work, he will take care of his own, and see that it is not fraudulently executed.

There are some of our brethren who make light of our work, and hesitate to accept us as coworkers with them in a gospel sense. To those I would say, Hesitate no longer. Come out like men and gracefully submit to the inevitable. In union there is strength. Whatever good we can do will be so much added to your strength and accelerate your work.

Our work is necessarily different from man's, but is just as important, and will bring its reward. The sisters are accomplishing a great amount of good in spite of the opposition they have had to encounter. But their faithful, untiring zeal is insuring them success and grand results. Sisters, my sympathy and prayers are with you and for you. Your efforts to do good,—trying to bring the people to a clearer conception of their condition, creating a desire to attain to a higher standard of morality, making them better men and women, thereby clearing away obstructions to some extent, making it easier for the elder when he shall open the door and invite them in,—are appreciated and accepted by the church and the Master. Do not be discouraged. Never say fail. You are on the side of right, and right must prevail. If a word of encouragement will benefit you in any way you have it with all my heart.

Those little narrow platforms that have been such a source of uneasiness and perplexity which had to be traversed so carefully—for a misstep would have carried us over on forbidden ground—are gradually increasing in size and strength, upheld by willing hearts and hands bidding us come and do what we can in this great warfare for eternity. Those who cannot see clearly now, will by and by. Faith, hope, and patience can and will accomplish great things, with prayer for the keynote. Brothers, sisters, take courage. Never falter, for the Lord is with you, and the Spirit says, "Come." "Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh."—James 5: 8.

He is coming! Swell the chorus,
Strike the loud exultant strains;
He whose mercy hovers o'er us,
Comes to earth her promised King.
He is coming! Hail with gladness
Every sign in earth and sky.
Hear his voice in notes of warning,
He is coming by and by.

AUNT DOT.

[THE above is written by a sister growing gray in the service of the Master and who for long years has been faithfully, patiently toiling at home while she cheerfully sent forth her husband and sons to the Lord's harvest field that the ripening grain might be gathered in. Of this opposition to the work of woman in the church she writes us that she speaks advisedly and knows whereof she writes. Brave heart, be not discouraged and pay not the slightest heed thereto. God never yet was defeated, neither were his armies ever outflanked. In the words which Sr. Ella sent you from across the ocean, "No matter how hard life may be, how the storm may beat, or how unceasing the grind may be, hold fast to your faith in the Captain who never lost a battle yet, nor ever signaled the trumpets to call a retreat."

He is the Pilot standing at the helm of this work and when his house is fully set in order woman will occupy her divinely appointed place, standing side by side with man, as a held meet for him. Let not one single thought be given as to what that place may be. Place never can bestow honor, unless we are fitted to honor the place. Humility, faithfulness, and prayer, with diligent study to be vessels fitted unto honor, is what we need. We need to be united in love, as the praying group of whom Sr. Devore wrote, and this is one of the manifest fruits of each meeting of the Daughters of Zion. In writing to a friend recently we said: "If there was nothing else to convince us that the Lord approved of this movement, the love which is binding more closely together the hearts of the sisters who meet would be evidence enough for me."

"God is marshalling his army," for the day of battle is at hand. The watchword "Come up higher" has been passed along the line and it applies to each one—to man, woman, and child. Let our only concern be to obey the summons. It belongs to the Master of the house to seat his guests. Happy then is he who "begins not with shame to take a lower seat."—ED.]

VINCENNES, Iowa, Feb. 4.

Dear Sisters:—I would like to say to Sr. Sarah that a charming book of Bible stories is published by Hubbard Brothers, Philadelphia. Its title is, "Delightful Stories or Home Talks out of the Wonderful Book." A series of one hundred delightful fireside stories in the chatty, conversational style in which Grandpa Goodwin narrates the most wonderful occurrences recorded in the sacred volume in a manner to charm the young folks by the real romance they contain, and at the same time sow the good wheat of divine truth in fertile soil. By George A. Peltz, D. D., formerly associate editor Sunday School Times. It contains about two hundred engravings. This is a unique book. This home-style is that which childhood craves, which childhood understands. Not to be preached to is childhood's delight; but to be talked with, to have questions answered and explained. This book is brightened with queries and comments of wide-awake juveniles, and yet there is a scrupulous regard for truth and a constant pursuit of the profitable. Price is, I think, about two dollars. It was formerly and may yet be sold, only by subscription. These stories may be too difficult for very young children. I read it to my boy when quite young. By substituting familiar words for those more difficult, by omission of some parts which may not be understood at first reading, these stories may be comprehended by the very young. Then if the stories are reread,—after the child has grasped the main points of the story,—read it as it is in the book. If they don't understand some of the words, they will call on you to explain. If your child does not lose an interest in a particular story and wishes it, don't be afraid to read it over and over again. It sometimes takes a child's mind a long time to grasp the details.

Pictures are invaluable in teaching children. A family pictorial Bible forms good material for Bible talks with the very young. Gather the little ones around you. Let them ask questions about the pictures; you answer, and vice versa. My little son aged seven enjoyed having me read the "Pilgrim's Progress." I omitted a little of it. The contest with the giants, especially, delighted him.

Dear mothers, especially you who are denied church privileges, would it not be profitable to suggest through our beloved paper ways and means of teaching our children to keep the Sabbath holy, and at the same time inspire them to LOVE it?

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

A BROTHER signing himself C. R. D., of Blair, Nebraska, especially requests your faith and prayers in behalf of his aged mother who has lately united with the church. She has been sick for a long time, and desires that if it be God's will she may be healed.

Sr. Silvia Blanchard, of Springville, Utah, requests your prayers in behalf of her husband that he may be healed, and for herself that God will grant her the desires of her heart if it be consistent with his holy will.

Sister M. Dawson, of Ellensburg, Washington, requests your prayers in behalf of Sr. Annie Dawson, who is very sick; and also for her mother, who has been sick for over two years.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SR. SILVIA BLANCHARD writes from Springville, Utah, expressing her great desire to be a humble, faithful saint. She finds it very lonely, entirely away from any branch of the church, and is hoping that some of the elders will call on them. They will be made welcome to the best she has.

Sr. Lettie Dunn, of Tama, Iowa, writes of a plan she adopted with her little girl when she found that whipping did not help to make her good. She hung upon the wall a paper divided into two columns. At the top of one column she wrote Good, and at the top of the other, Bad. When the little girl was good she put a mark in that column and when she was bad the mark was put in the other column. It had a very happy effect, for the little girl watched it closely, and was soon very careful to avoid everything which would cause a mark to go in the bad column. This may seem very simple, but the effect it had was to make the child love to do right and take great pleasure in it. The Lord often uses very simple means for the accomplishment of great good. She also wishes to ask all parents if they are as careful to read slowly and distinctly when reading for family prayer as they should be, in order that the children may understand what is read; and thus grow to enjoy the time spent in this way.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Feb. 9.

Editors Herald:—Permit me to call the attention of the readers of the Herald to the fact there is now pending before the Legislature of Iowa a bill for the better protection of young girls, providing for the raising of the legal "age of consent" to eighteen years. It will no doubt surprise many of our readers to learn that, until April, 1886, the grand Commonwealth of Iowa had a provision upon its statute books, under which a girl child of ten years could legally consent to her own defilement; so that the vile wretch who, by means of threats, promises, or cajoleries, succeeded in gaining her ignorant consent to the surrender of her priceless jewel, whose value she was too young and inexperienced to understand or appreciate, could escape punishment for anything more than seduction, which means practically immunity from any punishment; for the cases are comparatively rare where a seducer receives any adequate punishment for his crime, even under the most aggravated circumstances.

At the session of the legislature in 1886 the Woman's Christian Temperance Union had introduced a bill to raise the age of consent from ten to sixteen years; but it encountered so much opposition among certain of our legislators, who were supposed to be sent to Des Moines to represent the interests of the fathers and mothers and children of our State, rather than those of the criminal class, that the best that could be done was to compromise on thirteen years, where it now stands; so that to-day our girls of thirteen years are at the mercy of the wolves among men. Who of the parents that read this would think it safe to allow a girl of that age to decide for herself even the trifling matters connected with her quiet, every-day home life? But in this country our laws are supposed to represent the will of the people; so that every voter in Iowa to-day practically says that at the age of thirteen a girl has sufficient maturity of mind and experience in the ways of the world to enable her to weigh intelligently all the consequences of an act which, if permitted, will surely bring her to ruin, body and soul; and that, if she does yield to the temptation, no matter under what circumstances, she has no redress and and deserves none! She cannot legally dispose of a piece of ground worth a dollar until she is eighteen; but our law holds her virtue of so little moment that it can be bartered away at thirteen. It is a burning disgrace to the manhood of Iowa that such a law is allowed to remain on our statute books for a day.

We can hardly conceive of a man so utterly depraved as to be unwilling to protect his own young daughter or little sister from the lust of evil men; yet the girls of Iowa are our neighbors' daughters or sisters; and the legislators who in 1886 made it impossible to raise the age of consent above thirteen years, by their action voluntarily arrayed themselves on the side of the lowest criminal class, as opposed to the interests of their own children and young sisters and the homes of Iowa, and insulted the wives and mothers who went before them asking for simple justice. They virtually said to them, "We don't care for you, or for the daughters or the little sisters of the men of Iowa. Neither you nor they can vote. We want votes. These hyenas who are prowling around your homes can vote, and can influence the votes of others. We propose to cater to their vileness; and you may take care of your children if you can." If the people of Iowa had understood just what their representatives had refused to do for the protection of their children, not a man who, by his vote or influence, partially defeated the effort to protect the weak and defenseless, would have ever again been permitted to cross the thresholds of their homes, but would have been cast out from society and pointed at as an unclean thing.

It would be a base insult to our manhood to suppose that anything more could be necessary to cause this law to be changed, as proposed, than to call attention to the facts. The men of Iowa love their children, and as soon as they realize how this matter stands they will arise in their might and put a stop to this vile pandering to the lusts of depraved men. All that is needed in this case is an awakened public sentiment, and that will be brought about as soon as the facts are known. If every man and woman who reads this will constitute himself or herself a committee of one to write personal letters to the senator and representatives from his county, requesting them to vote and use their influence in favor of this bill, and will supplement this by circulating petitions among their neighbors, and sending them on to Des Moines at once, the bill will be passed in very short order. The men who are continually telling us that woman does not need the ballot, because man, "her natural protector," will see that she has all her rights and more, and is ever ready to do the rough work of the world, while she remains in the seclusion of the home, might profitably bestir themselves in this work.

There is no man worthy of the name and most certainly no Latter Day Saint, who can conscientiously excuse himself from doing his utmost to have justice done to the young girls of Iowa in this matter. All that is needed is to write out at the top of a sheet of paper the few words of the petition, get your signatures, and send them with your own personal letters to your representatives. There is no need to write a long preamble—it is enough to say; "To the General Assembly of Iowa: The undersigned, residents of _____ county, Iowa, of lawful age, respectfully request the passage of the pending bill to raise the age of consent to eighteen years." Then get only the signatures of voters, and of women who have attained their majority, and who would vote if they were not legally classed with criminals, idiots, and insane persons, and thus rendered powerless to throw the protecting arm of the law around their young children.

Give your representatives at Des Moines to understand plainly that the people whom they represent propose to have their daughters protected, and that no man who dares stand in the way will ever hold office again in the State, and this bill will become a law as quickly as the the proper forms can be complied with.

LAURIETON, N. S. W., Dec.

Editors Herald:—Bro. Wells and self are endeavoring to sow the "seed" here. Our congregations yesterday were good, last night being very large for the place. By the energy of Bro. Wells the mission now has a horse and sulky. This will be a financial saving, as two can travel and carry their satchels at very little expense comparatively. The presenting of a subscription list to both Saints and friends was what accomplished the result.

By travel in the district it is learned that the recent newspaper controversy has favorably impressed many relative to the work. Who can forecast the good that may thus be accomplished?

January 11, 1894.—Before leaving Laurieton two were baptized. From there we returned home to prepare for conference and individually, to pack boxes for a "homeward" journey. The conference passed off very pleasantly at which eight were baptized; seven or eight others were expected to make their "covenant," but failed to materialize.

A picnic by Saints and friends on the Tuesday following proved a very enjoyable affair, and on the following Friday we embarked on a small steamer for Sydney, accompanied by Bro. Lewis and Daughter Annie, on their return from conference, and Sr. Josie Wright and Bro. Robert Taylor to come on with us to Victoria on a visit. The former expects to remain with us till we depart for America. On the little steamer Srs. Lewis, Wright, and Wight passed the afternoon very pleasantly, singing hymns, in which other passengers and the crew from time to time indulged. The sea was very smooth, hence Neptune held but little sway. From Sydney to Melbourne the ambition to sing was lessened by peculiar berth inclination incident to such surroundings. Remaining one night in Melbourne we were permitted to reach this place (Queensferry) next evening in time for convening of conference, which passed off very pleasantly.

By Heralds just received I am accredited with what does not belong to me. It was during the controversy therein noted that I received the injury to my eye, and while I was living in darkness,—both eyes being bandaged,—Bro. C. S. McLaren wrote the very letter copied by the Herald and to which my name is attached. I am under the impression that I mentioned this fact to the First Presidency in a private letter, with the thought in mind that the editor might incidentally mention such fact editorially. In justice to Bro McLaren these facts should be mentioned, and I am glad to know that the very letter of which he was the author was the one chosen as containing the "pith" of the controversy, as it will serve the double purpose of encouraging the brother and show to the church what an able defender with the pen she has resident here. In fact, it occurs that the trend of events are now shaping to show the line of future usefulness which the Lord has mapped out for this brother, on condition of a faithful life.

We are now in Victoria to see the wife's relatives and other Saints before starting for the States which we expect to do February 19, per Royal Mail Ship Mariposa. As yet, however, there is no word from the Bishop. Times are hard indeed, and were it not for the climate much worse suffering would be endured.

J. W. WIGHT.

PERSIA, Iowa, Feb. 7.

Editors Herald:—"To whom it may concern." This is the heading of a late article in Herald. It was concerning healing and the talking of it afterwards. I have been sick for nearly two years and have been administered to a great many times without effect, until I was administered to by Bro. Heman C. Smith sometime in January. I then received a great benefit from it. Some years ago I was administered to for a long standing illness and was perfectly restored to health in a moment of time. And I have often wondered in the last year why the Lord would not heal me. For several weeks past before that article appeared in the Herald it occurred to me that perhaps the reason was that the Lord would not trust me, for I had been very imprudent in talking too much about it; and when that article came out I was perfectly confirmed in the belief that I had done wrong in talking so much about it. I then said to the Lord that if he would forgive me I would try and be more careful how I talked about it. Since that time, and after I had been administered to, I have been getting better, and I now have faith that I will get entirely well.

I am glad I learned the lesson if it did cost me much to learn it. I often think of Christ's word to the leper that was healed; when he returned to give thanks to the Lord, Christ said, "Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine? There are not found that returned to give glory to God save this stranger." There is a great difference in returning thanks to God direct and telling it to the world.

Respectfully,

P. PELTON.

LOGAN, Utah, Jan. 23.

Editors Herald:—Last week we had a good and pleasant time in Logan. Bro. Anthony came to see us and remained five days, and in that time preached four good and instructive sermons. We are a few here, about 20, all Scandinavians; our membership the result of the work of Bro. Peter Anderson, now on a mission in Denmark. He was a good and faithful worker here, and we would like to get him back again. After he left us and Bro. Anthony was placed in another position in the mission we were entirely forgotten. We had to do the best we could to battle against opposition. Bro. Anthony has been good to us; whenever he has been in a position that he could he would take the trouble to come and preach, counsel, and advise, how to obtain eternal life.

Last General Conference Bro. Anthony was called to occupy his former position, and before he went home to his family he came to see us and remained with us three days, preached twice, and promised us that he would not forget Logan. When he got home he sent Bro. H. N. Hansen, and he staid with us three or four weeks and did us much good, although I missed a good many of his meetings on account of sickness. He is much liked both by members and non-members.

These brethren are earnest, active workers; they are moving around; they do not wait until Sunday to preach, but are ready and willing at all times to sound the trump calling souls to Christ. We all like those brethren; we are in need of them; they know us and we know them.

My wife and I became members of the Re-organized Church five years ago next June. We have been subscribers to the Herald and Autumn Leaves from that time, and I cannot be without the Herald and its supplements.

Your brother,

C. WICKLUND.

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 10.

Editors Herald:—Having crossed the eastern boundary line of my mission field two days since, I jot a few thoughts. It being needful for me to be at home about March 1, I started homeward earlier than I should have but for that. When arranging to leave Utah I expected to do service at Rawlins, Wyoming, but found it impracticable to do so. I held seven services at Cheyenne in the South Side Congregational church, where Bro. C. R. Duncan did acceptable service once. "Brother-in-law" Emery, his saintly wife, Myrtle, and the household of H. Hidy seemed to enjoy the services and to vie with each other as to who should contribute most to my comfort. The attendance was not large, but it grew to the end. Bro. H. N. Hansen is expected to second the effort.

One conclusion reached by my stay in Utah is that this has been the most difficult year within the range of our efforts there to effect anything. The completion of the temple, with its use, whatever that may include (Bro. H. O. Smith in current issue of Herald gives a true report of the visible; who can do so of the invisible in the temple), has cemented the Utah Mormon Church anew. The fame of the choir, World's Fair premium on Lehi's factory sugar, on the wheat of the "valleys of the mountains," and carriage manufacture of Salt Lake City, have all added their quota, swelling the sentiment, "Triumphant Zion lift thy head."

Now that polygamy is a dead (?) issue, houses are less accessible, for other churches who used to let us in now generally do as a good Methodist brother of Provo did, closing the deal with Bro. H. N. Hansen, whose energy disposed of more of my sole leather in accompanying him than I would be willing to donate again. The letter ran thus: "Dear Bro. Hansen: Under the conditions of our work it will be impossible to accede to your request," etc. Now isn't that much nicer than to say "no"?

Changes of some sort must yet take place ere much is accomplished in Utah, and but for what is said in the revelation of 1887, I would be of the opinion of an old "war horse," who in a letter to Bro. Hansen suggested "drawing off the forces." Those only who have labored there can appreciate the situation, and of them those of a few years ago are at a disadvantage now, till on the ground again. I scanned till my gaze became a vacant stare to see what I have heard and read for years about growing sentiment in our favor among the Utah Church.

In the opportunities open to my view I labored diligently; and the results, aside from the establishment of Sunday schools at Salt Lake City and Pleasant Grove, seem to me small indeed. The two schools are thriving; those enlisting in the Sunday school cause as workers have done nobly indeed. The work of the Mission Aid Society of Salt Lake City, under the supervision of humble, meek, quiet-spirited Sr. Barrows, is prospering.

When official position is understood to mean intelligent service, so that ministrations performed will be food in due season, help will come from where hindrance is now meted out. O, for that day!

"Then let us pray, that come it may."

My home was with Bro. and Sr. Barrows, whose hospitality, unlike a funnel, was the same size to the end. While we as three did not always agree, we did agree to disagree, and that is quite an achievement sometimes; and who can do better? May God bless them abundantly. I shall always be glad I have been to Utah, as it is an additional page in knowledge of mankind, and enables one to doubly appreciate the diamond truths in E. A. Blakeslee's letter of Herald issued February 7. Read again, everybody.

I shall hope not to be appointed anywhere in the arid region, as it has been so detrimental to my health and work.

Hard as times are, the Saints of Pleasant Grove, Utah, are in dead earnest to build a chapel; this I am informed since leaving there. They should be aided throughout Utah, especially from Union, Sandy, and Provo, in money and work, which should be returned for the same purpose. In my opinion chapel building should have been encouraged and urged more by the ministry than in the past; and if it had, better conditions would now prevail, including the retention of more there through the years, instead of their constant moving East. Why not build in Utah as elsewhere?

In bonds,

R. ETZENHOUSER.

HARTWELL, Neb., Feb. 15.

Editors Herald:—Subsequent to my last communication from Cottonwood Springs, Nebraska, the inclement weather militated somewhat against nightly gatherings; for plodding over western plains by the glimmering light of a lantern which at any moment may be extinguished by an extra gust of wind, is very different to gliding along on a level sidewalk, under the dazzling light of electricity in a fine city, with waymarks at every corner; yet the writer was at his post; for souls on the western plains are just as precious in the sight of God as those who live in splendid cities. Nor does the fact of a willingness, with the requisite grit to face the unpleasant circumstances, hard labor, etc., to secure a home on the western plains, necessarily make him or her an ignoramus because, forsooth, they may be deprived of city life, facilities, advantages, etc., any more than the fact of one living in a fine city makes him intelligent and refined. Hence special efforts to distinguish between country and city preachers would be incompatible with the true spirit and genius of Latter Day Saintism, or on the gospel plan, in its entirety. I drew on my spectacles a second time when reading in the Herald columns something about the World's Reunion eminent preachers, etc., and thought it a useless display; but then perhaps everybody else thought it just right, you know.

About December 20, in response to a request, I went to Lincoln, Nebraska, the capital, remaining with the little band of Saints, advising with and preaching at proper times over the 25th; and on the 26th, be it known to the readers of the Herald, I skipped from Lincoln's big city to No. 213 Harrison street, Council Bluffs, where for a few days I enjoyed home, rest, and peace; for a willingness to face the changes, etc., incident to the life of a traveling elder does not make one's heart callous or cold toward those he leaves in the sacred spot called "home."

On the last Sabbath of 1893, I preached at Omaha in the morning and at Council Bluffs in the evening; and in feeling a touch of the solemnity produced by the thought that '93 had flown to return no more, I wondered how the labors, hopes, fears, sorrows, joys, etc., of the past year would count for me in the coming time of retribution; and passed into the realm of repose, wishing my work had been more extensive and better done.

I enjoyed a visit with Bro. T. W. Williams, and thought him essaying to push the work with commendable zeal; nor did a brief visit with Bro. A. Hall, who has recently been honorably released from labor because of feebleness attendant on the length of his mortal life, lessen the enjoyment.

As per request of Sr. Gorman, of Omaha, whom I have known from girlhood, (a daughter of Bro. E. and Sr. Knapp, formerly of Wheeler's Grove, Iowa,) I baptized two of her daughters,—who are near their majority,—and a boy of nine summers, on the first Thursday in 1894, at which time four other maidens in their teens passed through the chilly waters of baptism, being assisted in their confirmation by Bro. N. Rumel, Sen.; and on the same evening as per request, I preached to the Omaha Saints, to which place I returned after visiting Fremont, Valley, Nebraska City, and Brownville, Nebraska, branches, and preached seven discourses, thence to Hartwell, Kearney county, Nebraska, preaching four discourses. The attendance and interest exceeded my expectations.

I left Kearney in time to attend to ministerial work at Cottonwood Springs, Nebraska, on the first of the present month, holding forth until the sixth and proceeding to the Baker settlement twenty-five miles southwest, where I began holding forth in a schoolhouse, which Sr. Richards had secured, but which was closed against us at the time. Bro. R. J. Anthony paused on his way to Utah last May, for ministerial work, which he effectively performed. We did not know but it was to remain closed for at least a long time, if not always; but the fastness with which we supposed it was closed gave way, the door opened, and we took possession for a limited time, and would doubtless have had a good attendance, but a cold wave struck us, and on the ninth the wind blew, snow flew, and it was cold; so our congregations were small, very small; and though clear, it is still cold.

Saying good-bye to the few Saints in the Baker Settlement I was whirled back to Cottonwood Springs in a western buggy (lumber wagon) on the 12th, preaching to and enjoying the company of the newly born Saints of Cottonwood Springs on Monday and Tuesday evenings. I left on Wednesday, reaching this point in safety, beginning preaching tonight; for on my former visit I noted this point as offering inducements for additional labor, hence hastened back as soon as I could fill previous appointments in the above places. I preached here a few times two years ago, and was followed by Bro. C. H. Porter, but circumstances appeared inauspicious at that time. A minister has been preaching at this same point one Sabbath in each month for ten dollars. I have been informed that the people have requested him to desist.

Labor at this point at this particular juncture seems necessary, yet too lengthy a stay would prevent the filling of other appointments in view of the approach of Annual Conference ordered by a majority of votes under the method of common consent. I wonder, if a majority vote obtained to adjourn a conference for two years, (for which there is no earthly prospect,) and an exigency should develop necessitating a General Conference, if the Presidency by virtue of their calling could call or order one? And now I think many evincing great surprise at such a question, unhesitatingly answer affirmatively; and if so, it follows that the Presidency's prerogatives, duties, etc., are superior to and above the method of common consent. And if this be a fact, why not demonstrate our faith in this particular by our works, and so adjourn conference subject to the call of the Presidency, and be consistent within ourselves?

Who should better know the needs of a branch, than a God-fearing, active, branch presiding elder? And on the hypothesis that all are to be powerful in their appointed spheres, who then is likely to know better when to call the whole church together than the Presidency? And in view of the consumption of time and money, and the great necessity that exists for both to push and speed the work, how can we think, much less believe, that this consumption of time and money necessitated by Annual Conferences is proper? It seems to me a prodigality of both time and money, for which somebody will be responsible.

What was the purpose of the integral parts of the human organism if some of those parts were prevented from the exercise of their functions? But as it is, is not the well-being of the whole organism effected by the constant activity of the integral parts? and is it not so with Christ's mystical body? If not, then what are we? Has not God placed every member in the body as it has pleased him, as a preventive to schism in the body? He certainly has, and there can be no guaranteed success which the Lord will approve save that secured by the legitimate activity of the several integral parts which the Master Builder has provided, to build the building as his habitation through the Spirit.

I know of no advantage that could accrue to me by lessening human rights, if possessing the power, as I could conceive of none by a failure to discriminate between human rights and God's decrees.

I think I love liberty, but liberty to culminate in eternal life is in Christ through a knowledge of truth; hence we are made its recipients by abiding in God-given conditions.

BLAIR, Neb., Jan. 1.

Editors Herald:—The Saints of Blair are alive in the work; we have prayer meeting twice a week and several are interested, one man regretting he was not baptized last fall when Elder Whitman was here. We expect to see three or four added to the church soon—heads of families. Do pray for us, Saints; we want to see a branch organized here; we have labored to that end since 1891 and now we have twenty-six members. Some are scattered; only about half can come regularly to church.

Tekamah has some Saints, Spiker a few, and others are in little towns and villages near us who I believe would unite their efforts with ours for good and would perhaps swell our number to forty members.

I wish some good elder would buy property and locate here. I have preached from time to time at Desoto and Blair, but I feel as if the Saints need an able man; besides, I have labored under great spiritual difficulty and I would like help that would stay here.

Your brother,

DINE CARTER.

COOK'S POINT, Texas, Jan. 31.

Editors Herald:—I am at home until next Saturday; I will then be at Central branch in Robinson county. Have been preaching of late in Bell county, at Elmwood and New Hope branches; splendid congregations and attention; Saints seemed much revived, and sinners interested. We expect good results. The Sunday school and prayer meetings seemed moving along finely at New Hope branch. Bro. E. D. Thompson and his members have built a good house for school and church purposes. He is president of the branch and superintendent of the Sunday school. He and all the members seem to be in line of duty. God bless them. Prospects are better in Central Texas for the good cause, in some respects at least.

I learned last night that Bro. William Dotson, of Texas Central branch, near Hearne, got his house burned and its contents, a great loss to him and his family. I hope the church and the world's people will replace house and household goods as before, soon. God loveth a cheerful giver, and if a man "seeth his brother in need and shutteth up his bowels of compassion against him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?"

Yours in the faith,

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio, Feb. 2.

Editors Herald:—I came here January 26 and found the work not in as good condition as I would like to have found it. I regret to see some members coming into the church who fail to reform their way of living. It has a bad influence on outsiders. It seems that some do not realize the need of conforming to the laws of God, and that repentance means a practical work necessary to constitute a genuine Christian. Members can tear down faster than elders can build up the work of God. It seems to my mind that some of the Saints fail to comprehend the times in which we are living.

We had a very pleasant conference near Plainville, December 23. All seemed well satisfied with the business transacted. The spirit of unity prevailed and I think good was done. A goodly number of the brethren were present: J. G. Scott, I. P. Baggerly, V. D. Baggerly, L. F. Daniel, and myself, of the missionary force; also Bro. James Knox, of Macy Mills, and others of the local officers.

The request of Bro. W. H. Kelley, of Kirtland, Ohio, conference was granted; viz., that the portion of Ohio (Butler county, the Middletown branch, State of Ohio) belonging to Southern Indiana be annexed to the Pittsburg and Kirtland district, that the boundary line of the States be the dividing line. It takes effect May 1, 1894; so after that date the Middletown branch will be under the supervision of the authorities of the Ohio district. Here are good Saints, and we hope that they will have good shepherds to feed them the spiritual food.

We feel grateful to the Saints of Middletown for their kindness towards us while we have labored among them, and trust that the change may be for good; especially that they may get more preaching. While it has been very difficult in the past to get a place to hold meeting in, of late the Saints have succeeded and have rented a very nice place in which to hold services. The Saints that were able have sacrificed a great deal; only two or three families carry the burden and some have done quite well in paying their tithing. They are a willing people. May God bless them all.

Editors Herald:—Bro. James Moler and I leave here this morning for Vale's Mills, Ohio. Meetings closed last evening. The Saints have been passing through quite a little trial of late, but the worst is over, and the present promises better for the future. There is a good people here, zealous for the work, and they have maintained themselves well. They need, however, an energetic and capable elder to be with them or at near call all the time. With a proper outlay of labor, good will result to the cause. The proverbial Southern hospitality is met with here, and the Saints rank with the best of the community. I have been here and in the vicinity over a fortnight and rather like Virginia. It is an attractive country, especially in this Shenandoah Valley.

I will be at Goose Creek, West Virginia, on the 24th inst., if all goes well; and then to Sharon, Ohio, and to Scranton, Pennsylvania, if time will permit. Bro. Moler is feeling first class.

Fraternally,

KEIGHLEY, Kan., Feb. 11.

Editors Herald:—Your coworker in the cause of Christ has many reasons to rejoice, for it has been his good fortune to be associated with the church since infancy and during my time in this world I have had many mercies extended me. Being naturally of unrelenting mind, my learning has been, to a great extent, from bitter experience. It had been whispered to me years ago that I would be called to the ministry, and later on came the call, with such force, too, that every one in the house agreed as to its source. The elder who spoke the words sat directly in front of me in the meeting, and to give me an evidence of my calling I was permitted to know before he arose to speak that he would deliver a prophecy concerning me and call me to the ministry. I knew before he arose just what he would say, and could see the words as plain as though they had been written in letters of gold. In the same meeting three other elders bore testimony of my calling, and many of the congregation gave words of encouragement to the same effect. What could I do but believe? yea, I knew.

But after all that my native land, Missouri and Kansas, was not home for me; I wandered off to the South and West, forgetting the message that came, forgetting all the hallowed influences of God's Spirit and the communion with Saints; forgetting home and friends, and like the prodigal son, wandered in the wilderness feeding swine. But even while in the darkness of sin and waywardness I could at times feel the inviting influences of God's Spirit working within, and the "still small voice" saying, "Have you not been called to preach my gospel?" It has been answered in tears while walking the crooked paths of life. Have I anything to be thankful for? In my early life my study was greatly from observation, rather than from reading, therefore when entering the ministry I was not well read, not even moderately so; but notwithstanding all my carelessness, God has blessed me beyond my expectation in my efforts to preach his word. And now as we are sure of being the chosen people of God we can say that "we know" we are right; we have great reasons to be thankful.

And last, but not least, I am thankful that God has placed in his church such noble men,—servants,—as Bro. I. N. White. Truly the Lord has blessed him.

We came to Keighley on Monday, the 5th, where Bro. White was to meet Rev. Popplewell of the Christian Church in debate. The hour came and with it a full house of perhaps two hundred.

I love experience; it has been my teacher; and this was my first time to hear a debate, so I listened carefully; I wanted to hear the objections to Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. Two propositions have been discussed; they closed on the Book of Mormon last night. To my mind it all proves how a drowning man will catch at a straw. Those of you who have heard debates would have heard the same old story of Joseph Smith being everything that was mean. I refrain from using the terms applied to the "Choice Seer;" they don't look well, nor do they sound well; especially coming from one who claims to be a minister for Christ. I have wondered during this discussion if the reverend brother once thought of the words spoken while Jesus was being mocked and scourged by his enemies, while his life was ebbing away and his soul was torn in the agonies of death: "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do."

The arguments used against the work in this debate are those common in the days of Christ and the apostles to disprove his divine mission and human nature is the same now as it was then; prejudice rules the people. There are many in this locality who would not know the light if they were brought face to face with it, they are so blinded. It will take nothing less than the power of God to move their minds, but prayers are being offered for them; and O, may we all pray more! And in a case like this where one of our brothers is to stand before the wisdom of the world in debate, be like the Saints of old when Peter was in prison; they were united in prayer so that their prayers were heard and God sent his angels to open the prison doors.

And now I want to say that God has been with us here, so that Bro. White has had wonderful liberty; yet notwithstanding the wisdom of the world and the smooth tongue of his opponent, he has won friends for the cause, and many can see the manner of his dealing with the word of God. The Saints here rejoice; we are glad the Lord has been with us in power. I am in the work for life by God's help. So may we all be.

Yours, rejoicing in the Lord,

R. M. MALONEY.

VALE'S MILLS, Ohio, Feb. 20.

Editors Herald.—The conference for the Ohio district closed its sessions at this place last evening. A good interest and excellent feeling was manifest all through. The house was crowded with attentive listeners at every preaching service. Meetings will be continued during the week. The Saints are feeling cheerful, the ministry is in excellent spirits, the weather good, and all is well.

CHURCH HISTORY,—A REPLY.

No. 2.

BY W. W. BLAIR.

ALLUDING to Herald "editorials which appeared from 1885 to 1893," Bro. Lambert says:—

It is evident that in the opinion of the Twelve and Seventy, many statements of church history were made to do duty for more than they are worth. That by using certain statements and putting a certain interpretation upon others, the plain statements of revelation have been made secondary; and in some cases, entirely ignored. . . . These quorums certainly had the right to express their opinion in quorum capacity; and in justification of the opinions expressed, it is only necessary to cite the fact that the duties of the Twelve have been treated upon; the duties of the First Presidency, High Council, and Bishopric, in relation to the law of temporalities, while at the same time, the last revelation given to the church on this subject, containing direct and positive statements, was not even quoted! I mean, of course, the revelation of 1861.

As to "the right" of the Twelve and the Seventy "to express their opinion in quorum capacity" on the merits and propriety of the said editorials and the use of church history made therein, any other quorum or council in the church has an equal right with them. Would it not have been fair, and charitable, to have waited in this matter until all the other quorums and councils could have carefully considered the matters in question and joined in rendering a decision? Why should the Twelve and Seventy lead in this matter against the editors and the Board of Publication? Where in the law, or the ruling precedents of the church, do they find authority for their action in the premises? Have not the rules of the church limited editorial control to the Board of Publication? Why should these quorums take "snap judgment" on the editors' supposed errors and hold them up officially and publicly in open condemnation? Why not first labor in a gospel way with the offending editors? Why adopt a method of dealing with the editors utterly unknown to the law of God and the history of the church? Why not wait until these quorums were certain they had divine authority to call the editors to an account for their editorial conduct, and then be sure that they had just cause for exposing assumed errors to public question and public obloquy? Had the editors (who are the First Presidents of the church) no rights which these two quorums should respect? Should not these editors have been questioned and intelligently investigated before being openly condemned? Is it just to condemn a man without first hearing him? In conclusion on this point it may be truthfully said that there is no law of the church, no rule of the church, neither is there any precedent in the history of the church, justifying such a course of procedure.

Yes, the duties of the First Presidency, High Council, and Bishopric, in relation to the law of temporalities, had been treated in the editorials. It was done after due deliberation, and by the direct leadings of the Holy Spirit, in the spirit of charity, and for the high purpose of laying before the ministry and membership the law of the church, and also the history of the church touching the administration of temporal matters during the lifetime of the "Choice Seer" and under his immediate teachings and the sanction of the general conferences of the church and its "grand councils" of the priesthood. It was done honestly and faithfully that all parties interested might learn the established order of God, get divine wisdom and understanding on the points treated, correct any mistakes that had been made and avoid mistakes in the future, and so attain and maintain needful unity in these matters and thereby prevent strife and conflict and open rupture. It is true I did not quote the revelation of 1861 on tithing, for I had learned by rumor, and by Bro. Lambert's article in the Herald for February 13, 1892, pages 103-4, that the Twelve held strange views as to their rights and duties in respect to the temporal affairs of the church. He there says:—

Heretofore, the Twelve and Bishopric, acting under the supposed authority of the revelation of 1861, have decided upon the respective sums of money to be used for the support of the families of the ministry. When the Twelve have assumed this responsibility alone, it has been because the Bishop failed to respond to their notice and invitation for him to be present. Is this practice an undue exercise of authority upon the part of the Twelve? If so, why has it been permitted for so many years?

Replying to the above I have to say, that the council of the First Presidency was never officially notified of the system mentioned by Bro. Lambert, neither was counsel and direction in favor of it ever sought of that council that I ever knew of.

I was an active member of the quorum of the Twelve from 1858 to 1873; was among the first to learn of and obtain the said revelation of 1861, and I know that that quorum never thought the said revelation gave them the right, and therefore they never attempted to control, or in any way decide the disbursement of the properties of the church in the hands of the Bishop; neither to the families of the elders, nor otherwise, during all those years. They only advised in connection with the Bishop as to temporal matters abroad. The Twelve, in 1861, were J. W. Briggs, Z. H. Gurley, Sen., Samuel Powers, James Blakeslee, D. B. Razey, Reuben Newkirk, E. C. Briggs, John Shippy, and W. W. Blair; and I repeat it, at no time did they, nor did the Twelve up to 1873, construe the revelation of 1861 to mean that that quorum had any special control, final direction, or decision as to how the properties of the church in the hands of the Bishop should be disposed of only when they acted with the other quorums and ministers in conferences or councils, but held that the revelation required them to teach it, and watch against misuse of tithings. During those times the Bishop acted (in the absence of the high council) under the counsel, largely of the First Presidency, when such counsel was needed. But it was understood that the high council of the church mentioned in D. C. 42:10, 19; 99:1, 6, 10; 104:35, 36, (of whom the First Presidents of the church is the presidency,) had the authority, duty, and responsibility, when organized, and operative, to act directly and decisively with the Bishop and his council in the disposition of all the properties of the church; and that, in the absence of the high council, its presidency, the First Presidency of the church, was the quorum and council to appoint and direct the Bishopric in respect to the disposition of the properties of the church, as in the case when the First Presidency counseled and directed Bishop E. Partridge, July 2, 1833, how to minister in the temporal affairs of the church (see Times and Seasons 6:801 and Millennial Star 14:450), and as is further uniformly attested by the history of the church from 1830 to 1844.

The then Twelve knew that the apostles after Christ said, "It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables" (Acts 6:2), and they also knew that Joseph the Prophet said, at the time of the endowment in Kirtland, when he set the quorums in order,—

The Twelve also are not to serve tables, but to bear the keys of the kingdom to all nations, and unlock them, and call upon the seventies to follow after them and assist them.—Mill. Star 15:727.

And they interpreted and applied the said revelation in accordance with these and other relevant texts. They therefore gave their attention strictly to preaching and directing others to preach the gospel abroad from the seat of the Presidency of the church, whithersoever that Presidency directed them, and the grace of God, his special providence and the power of the Holy Spirit attended their faithful labors in a marvelous manner, and many were added to the church, notwithstanding the great opposition encountered from the various factions of the church and a blinded and persecuting world. The ratio of the increase of the church in those times was far greater than for the past fifteen years, when measured by the number of ministers and the amount of money employed. The average spiritual condition of ministers and members in those years was also higher. All these are facts, crystallized into recorded history, in a large degree, and they are facts familiar to many witnesses now living.

The history of the Reorganized Church shows that the ministrations of its Twelve from 1858 to 1873 is the same in a general way as the ministrations of the Twelve under Joseph the Prophet as seen in the history of the church from 1835 to 1844. We claim to be the succession of the church founded and builded by Joseph the Seer and his helpers, and it is therefore needful that there should be consistency, identity, and uniformity in the teaching and practices of the faithful ministers under the presidency of the "choice seer" and his lawful successor.

I now proceed to present and discuss the revelation in question, for the action of the Twelve as set forth by Bro. Lambert results from their peculiar construction and interpretation and application of it. Here it is:—

Revelation given October 7, 1861.

1. In order to place the church in a position to carry on the promulgation of the gospel, and as a means of fulfilling the law, the Twelve will take measures in connection with the Bishop, to execute the law of tithing; and let them before God see to it, that the temporal means so obtained is truly used for the purposes of the church, and not as a weapon of power in the hands of one man for the oppression of others, or for the purposes of self-aggrandizement by anyone, be he whomsoever he may be.

2. As I live, saith the Lord, in the manner ye execute this matter, so shall ye be judged in the day of judgment.—D. C. sec. 114.

This revelation simply requires that the Twelve, in keeping with their authority and duty as previously made known in "the law," shall act "in connection with the Bishop," he also to be governed in his acts by "the law" of the church previously given concerning his duties, and thus "execute the law of tithing." It does not require nor authorize either the Twelve or the Bishop to act outside of nor in violation of their respective offices and callings as previously made known in the word of God. Whatever either did must be toward "fulfilling the law" already given concerning each quorum. Bear it in mind, that the acts of each of these officers must be in the direction of the "fulfilling of the law" of the Lord.

The object of the above command is (1) to obtain temporal means through "the law of tithing" in order to "carry on the promulgation of the gospel," and (2) be "a means of fulfilling the law" already given to the church. In order to obtain this needed "temporal means," the Lord charges the Twelve and the Bishop "to execute the law of tithing, and to then "see to it, that the temporal means so obtained is truly used for the purposes of the church." But this revelation does not command the Twelve to use or dispose of this "temporal means," nor to dictate or decide who shall dispose of it, neither does any other revelation in any of the standard books. But the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants do authorize and define where the temporal means of the church "obtained" by the law of tithing shall be placed, and who shall pay away and transfer the same, namely, the Bishop. And the same "law" provides as to who shall act with the Bishop and his council in appointing how and when and where the temporal means of the church shall be disposed of. It reads thus:—

And again, if there shall be properties in the hands of the church, or any individuals of it, more than is necessary for their support, after this first consecration [for the poor], which is a residue to be consecrated unto the bishop, it shall be kept to administer unto those [priest or people] who have not, from time to time, that every man [priest or people] who has need may be amply supplied, and receive according to his wants. Therefore, the residue shall be kept in my store-house [in the hands of the bishop], to administer to the poor, and the needy [priest or people], as shall be appointed by the high council of the church, and the bishop and his council, and for the purpose of purchasing lands for the public benefit of the church, and building houses of worship, and building up the New Jerusalem which is hereafter to be revealed, that my covenant people may be gathered in one, in that day when I shall come to my temple. And thus I do for the salvation of my people.—D. C. 42:10.

In the foregoing law of the Lord, given that the ministry "may know how to govern my [Christ's] church, and have all things right before" him (D. C. 41:1), it is fixed and established forever, that "the high council of the church, and the Bishop and his council," are jointly to dispose of all the properties placed in the hands of the Bishop, and that in this way "the poor, and needy," and "every man who has need, may be amply supplied, and receive according to his wants." Here then is "the law" under which and by which the "temporal means" obtained by the Twelve and the Bishop, when they "execute the law of tithing," should be disposed of in "fulfilling the law" as required in the said revelation. There is no conflict in the law and order of God.

Some have interpreted the word "execute" (twice found in the said revelation), to mean that both the Twelve and the Bishop have the authority to teach the law of tithing, collect the tithes, hold the tithes, and dispose of the tithes. This interpretation is bad, for "the law" of the church provides that the tithes shall be paid to, and be held by the Bishop, as see Doctrine and Covenants 42:8, 9; 106:1, etc., etc. And the same "law" provides that "those who have not," (including "the poor and the needy,") "and every man who has need, may be amply supplied, and receive according to his wants, . . . as shall be appointed by the high council of the church, and the Bishop and his council," as we have just seen. Then why not obey this law, and especially when "the high council of the church" is organized and active?

Various kinds of officers are required to "execute" the financial law of our towns, cities, counties, states, and the nation. These various officers, when they "execute" the financial law, have very different duties to perform; and they need not, and must not, conflict with each other. They are expected to be and are appointed to be mutual helps to each other as they proceed to execute the law given to govern each officer. When in our states the assessors and collectors have faithfully done their work, "the temporal means so obtained" goes into the hands of the treasurers, but the disposition and disbursement of such "means" is placed by law in the hands of duly authorized councils, boards, or commissions. The assessors must not perform the work of the treasurers nor collectors, neither can the assessors and treasurers perform the duties assigned by law to the councils, boards, or commissions. There must be no invasion of office in these matters. So also in the church there should be strict order, and "the law" provides for it. The Twelve, being a traveling presiding high council, having charge of the general missionary field under the counsel and direction of the First Presidency, and having the general oversight and direction of the missionary department of the church, are specially well situated and located and are authorized to teach the temporal law of the church abroad, and also see that it is taught and correctly taught. And for these same reasons they are the proper officers to watch over the temporal means in the hands of the numerous Bishop's agents, and other financial agents of the church, abroad in their fields, and "see to it" that "the temporal means so obtained" (by "the law of tithing") is truly used for the purposes of the church, etc. They and their helpers can have personal watchcare of these finances and financial agents of the church abroad, when and where it is not possible for the Bishop or the First Presidency to come, and they can "see to it," when and where needed, that "the temporal mean," obtained by the "law of tithing" is found in the hands of honest, wise, competent men and are used according to the law and order of the church. And if, after all this they think it needful, there is no law that I am aware of forbidding them watch the high council and Bishop and "see that they, too, do their duty in respect to the use of the temporal means of the church. But any other theory, and any interpretation of the revelation of 1861 that in any way interferes with the appointed duties of the Twelve as chief missionaries and presidents over the missionary department of the church abroad, is confusing, obstructive, and harmful. The First Presidency, high council, and other local ministers, ought to be fully competent and qualified to see that the Bishop does not misuse the temporal means placed in his hands, and especially is this true in regard to the First Presidency and high council who are supposed to be located at or convenient to the business center of the church, whereas the Twelve may be scattered abroad among the nations and not be permitted to meet with the Bishopric for months, and even years, at times.

The nations of Christendom, and in many places the heathen nations, are needing and waiting for the restored gospel, and the Lord God requires that the Twelve and their fellow missionaries shall carry it to them speedily in authority, in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance, and no revelation or commandment should be so interpreted as to in any way prevent or hinder the rapid and thorough accomplishment of that work.

In view of the fact that the Lord, in his law given "to govern the church," has provided that "the poor, and the needy," also that "every man who has need may be amply supplied, and receive according to his wants, . . . as shall be appointed by the high council of the church, and the bishop and his council," the First Presidency opposed the resolution offered by the Twelve in conference, at Kirtland, in 1891, which provided that "the quorum of the Twelve and the Bishopric be authorized to take such steps and provide such means as in their judgment shall be proper to relieve the members of the Presidency from their present financial burdens and incumbrances (if any shall be found) and provide for the support of themselves and families according to law," etc., etc., and they did so because they knew the said resolution was contrary to the specific law of God, and contrary to the order and usages of the church from 1830 to 1844, and from 1860 to 1876, or longer. It was for these reasons they voted "No," and they so explained at the time. They afterwards published in the Herald for 1891, page 289, a further explanation, saying,—

The Presidency voted against the resolution for the following reasons: First, it is their understanding that the control and management of the Herald affairs are vested in the Board of Publication, and that the Board must be left at liberty to provide for the editorial staff upon their judgment. Second, the Presidency objected to that portion of the resolution which made it to be a part of the duty of the Twelve to look after temporal affairs, directing and controlling the steps or measures necessary to be adopted to release the Presidency, deeming it to be within the duties of the Bishopric, assisted if need required by the High Council, which is now organized and in condition to perform the duties attaching to it by the organic law of the church.

In the foregoing is seen what has ever been the views of the Presidency on the matter under discussion, and the question naturally arises, Are the First Presidents authorized by the word of God, and are they qualified to judge correctly and teach properly in respect to these matters? Such as think they are not authorized will do well by reading D. C. 23: 3, 4; 27: 1, 2; 43: 2; 87: 2, 3, 5; 99: 10; 105: 6, 7, 12, with Mosiah 9: 9; 11: 12; Alma 3: 9, etc., etc.

The First Presidency have ever held that "the high council of the church" mentioned in D. C. 42: 10 is the same as that mentioned in D. C. section 99; 104: 35, 36; 120: 9; and President Joseph Smith has so decided, officially, in conferences and in councils, repeatedly, his counselor concurring.

That "the high council of the church," when organized and acting, is ordained of God to act with the Bishop and his council in the disposition of the properties of the church, and that strict compliance with that provision of law is essential to the welfare of the church, are not of recent discovery, not new ideas, nor are they claims but recently made. For with some they were always held. When propositions were made by the Twelve to the Bishopric in the fall of 1876, "that executing the law of tithing means collecting and disbursing the means so obtained," the Bishopric—I. L. Rogers, David Dancer, and H. A. Stebbins—rejected them and gave their reasons for it. And the first items of law cited showing how and by whom the properties of the church should be disposed of are in D. C. 42: 8-10; 51: 1-5; 57: 6; 58: 12; 70: 3; 83: 18-23; 87: 6; 104: 32; 106: 1, 2; 38: 8. See Herald vol. 23, pages 596-598.

I repeat the important fact, that the Twelve from the first up to 1873, never claimed that the said revelation of 1861 authorized them on their own motion to gather, hold, disburse, or in any official way control or dispose of "the temporal means" belonging to the store-house or treasury of the church, but they held it to be their duty to teach the law and order of the church concerning it, and this latter they did by epistles and in other ways, and at the same time exercised watchcare over the temporal affairs of the church, especially over its financial agents abroad.

It is true that the Twelve, acting jointly with the Bishop, at times instructed the financial agents in regard to financial matters such as teaching tithing, reporting to the Bishop, and ministering to the wants of needy traveling ministers and the poor, but at no time up to 1873 did they seek to dictate, decide, nor attempt as a quorum to control, or to use, or appoint the use of the temporal means placed in the hands of the Bishop, but acted as his agents in disbursing temporal means. What has taken place between the Twelve and Bishopric since, I know only from church records, personal observation, and common report. One thing is certain however, there has been since 1875 a large amount of hurtful friction and hindrance going on over matters pertaining to the "temporal means" of the church, notably in and since 1876 (see Herald vol. 23, pages 596-7-8 and 710-11; vol. 25, pages 142-3; vol. 35, pages 318-19, etc). As one harmful result of this, the presiding Bishop, I. L. Rogers, and his counselors—David Dancer and H. A. Stebbins—peremptorily resigned in the spring conference of 1882.

To my mind it has been clear for many years that the church will never be at rest, united and prosperous in its temporal concerns, until "every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" in the standard books of the church touching these concerns are strictly, joyfully obeyed by all.

The First Presidency was moved to ask for the reorganization of the high council many years ago, and April 17, 1888, in a joint council of the Presidency, Twelve, and High Priests, the Lord revealed his will through the President of the church, saying:—

There is necessity for a High Council, not only in Zion but also among Zion, the pure in heart, that the church may be prepared for matters that cannot be attended to by the Trav- eling High Council. It is acceptable that such high council be organized.

April 8, 1890, the Lord further commanded concerning this matter, saying:—

Those who were presented by the High Priests for ordination to their number, if approved by the council of the High Priests now present, and the conference, may be ordained; and from their number there may be selected by a committee of conference composed of one of the First Presidency, the president of the Twelve and one other to be chosen by the Council of Twelve, the president of the High Priests and one other to be chosen by that council of their number, a sufficient number to fill the vacancies now existing in the High Council, that the High Council may be properly organized and prepared to hear matters of grave importance when presented to them. And this committee shall make these selections according to the spirit of wisdom and revelation that shall be given unto them, to provide that such council may be convened at any General Conference when emergency may demand, by reason of their residing at or near to places where conferences may be held.—D. C. 120: 9.

In compliance with the foregoing, said High Council was regularly organized and is prepared to fulfill its duties and responsibilities as set forth in Doctrine and Covenants 42: 10, 19; 99: 1-15, and 104: 35, 36. Will the ministry and the members uphold and sustain this council in its lawful and appointed work? The Lord says:—

He that receiveth my law and doeth it, the same is my disciple; and he that saith he receiveth it and doeth it not, the same is not my disciple, and shall be cast out from among you.—D. C. 41: 2.

It will not do to take one portion of church law touching a given matter and so construe it as to make it conflict with other portions of the law pertaining to the same matter. Therefore, the revelation of October 7, 1861, must be interpreted in harmony with the law previously given concerning the "temporal means of the church," also the law previously given concerning the duties and responsibilities of the Twelve, the Bishopric, the High Council, and the First Presidency, as servants of Christ in the administration of his word.

Inasmuch as the Lord has appointed to the church a chief leader, a chief teacher, whom we have accepted as such, we should be consistent with our profession and let him lead and teach and counsel on these matters, in his proper office and calling, as did his predecessor, a history of whose leadership and teachings in the matters in question were presented in the history abounding in the Herald editorials up to May, 1893. I there quoted church history liberally as collateral evidence with the word of God to help bring about unity in righteousness with the ministry and to help forward the work of the church prosperously in all things. I did not handle said history deceitfully nor recklessly, nor without cautiously and prayerfully "comparing spiritual things with spiritual" and temporal things with temporal; and in all my research in history up to July, 1844, I found that, in the disposition of "the temporal means of the church," the First Presidency or the High Council of the church acted with the Bishop and his council, and that the Twelve aided in the execution of the temporal law only by teaching it and seeing it was correctly taught, and by carrying out in their mission fields this order of the church, and not in directing or controlling the temporal means in the hands of the Bishop. In all this the law of God, and the usages of the church under the administration of the "choice seer" and his helpers, are in perfect accord, and the revelation of October 7, 1861, teaches nothing to the contrary.

In concluding upon this point, I herewith present, as is fitting, the "Principles and Rules of Action" agreed upon by the Twelve and Bishopric in April, 1878, and published in the Herald for May 1st. This was at a time—mark it well—when "the high council of the church" was not in an organized and operative condition, and therefore a strict compliance with the letter of the law in Doctrine and Covenants 42:10, etc., was seemingly somewhat impracticable:—

1. We believe the duty of the Twelve to be to teach the law of tithing, viz.: Explaining to the church the necessity, and the mode of complying therewith, in order that the financial interests of the church shall be properly supported, and that they may receive tithing and forward the same to the Bishop, who is the acknowledged treasurer of the church, or to his appointed agents.

2. That it is devolvent upon the Bishopric and their authorized agents, to travel among the churches from time to time, to teach the law of, and collect tithing and free-will offerings, and see that the financial interests of the church are duly cared for, and the wants of the poor duly administered to, and use their best and earnest endeavors to keep the ministry in the field, as appointed by General Conference, especially the members of the Quorum of the Twelve and of the Seventy, and to see to it that the families of such receive proper support.

3. That officers in charge of missions appointed by General Conference, receive, necessary support in the prosecution thereof, from the agents of the Bishop in said missions, and that said agents in the disbursing of moneys be not subject to the direction of districts, Conferences, or branches, (yet said conferences may advise or recommend,) but should make itemized reports to said conferences, who may audit and approve the same, and said reports as certified to, be forwarded to the Bishop.

4. And that in all missions where there is no agent to represent the Bishop, the officer in charge of said mission may receive tithing and free-will offerings, and use such sums as shall be considered necessary for said mission, keeping an account thereof, together with the names of persons from whom received, and forward a quarterly account thereof, together with whatever moneys may remain in his hands as a residue, and not needed by him, to the Bishop; and upon receipt thereof, the Bishop should enter the same upon his books, crediting and debiting the church with said amounts, received and paid out, together with the names of those from whom received and to whom paid; and that all such itemized reports be published by the Bishop from time to time with his regular reports.

5. In all missions where the officer in charge cannot consult with the agent, (though one may have been appointed thereto,) he may receive tithings and freewill offerings and use the same, as hereinbefore provided for in Article 5, of Basis of Adjustment,* or only part thereof for said mission, accounting therefor to the agent and to the Bishop in his quarterly reports.

6. We advise the utmost care and economy in the expenditure of moneys; that the first of all objects to be attained by the church is the promulgation of the gospel, and all other interests are but secondary compared with it, which object must ever demand our first attention; next to which is the support of the poor. And believing that moneys have been extravagantly expended in the publication of books, and unnecessarily so, we advise the utmost care in that direction, and the strictest economy. And we recommend that the Bishopric encourage so far as seems wise and is practicable, the building of church houses, and that they take the advisory oversight thereof; and also the erection of storehouses in such localities where the interests of the church do now or may hereafter demand it; believing that through this channel the families of traveling elders would receive more ready support, and which means does not now come into the church treasury.

7. Members should be taught the moral obligation that rests upon them, to put forth an effort to do something of some moment, during the year, either in tithings, freewill offerings, or donations, according to their financial abilities.

8. Where branches, districts, or individuals wish labor in any special locality, the needed funds to sustain such effort should not be taken from the means designed for, or belonging to the general treasury.

9. When means are given to ministers of the church for their benefit, by persons in and out of the church, such "means" should be reported to the Bishop, that he may be cognizant of the help that each receives, and that said report be made to the Bishop on the first of March, annually.

*5. In the receiving and disbursing of church funds, all persons who may be entrusted therewith are in fact, or ex officio, agents for the Bishopric, and should account to the Bishopric; and in disbursing general church funds should do so by the direction of the Bishop, or in accordance with an agreement and understanding with the Bishopric previously had; specific, in regard to the objects before determined upon; generally, in regard to objects incidental to the prosecution of missionary labor, for which, in the nature of things, no specific directions can be given.

COLORED SCHOOLS.

There are 25,530 negro schools now in the South, where 2,250,000 negroes have learned to read and most of them to write. In the colored schools are 238,000 pupils and 20,000 negro teachers. There are 150 schools for advanced education and seven colleges administered by negro presidents and faculties.—Charleston News and Courier.

Those who have sent applications to me that do not contain the items nor a statement of the character of their labors, are requested to send a new application that will include these facts for the use of the quorums that receive and enroll you as members.

DIED.

MAIR.—At the home of his parents near Council Bluffs, Iowa, February 1, 1894, Bro. Luther G. Mair, aged 22 years, 9 months, and 2 days. He was born in Hardman county, Tennessee. He united with the church some two years ago and has been a consistent member ever since. His health was not good for several months; and about three weeks before he died he was prostrated with typhoid pneumonia fever from which he never rallied. During his sickness he was administered to frequently, but received no permanent relief, although the Spirit was present in power certifying to his acceptance with God. The funeral was held at the church in Council Bluffs. Funeral sermon by Elder T. W. Williams; text, "I am the way, the truth," "the resurrection, and the life."

NOBLE.—At Independence, Missouri, February 14, 1894. Sr. Maria C. Noble. She was born at Westfield, Massachusetts, November 13, 1826. Was baptized into the Reorganized Church by Joseph S. Lee, February 28, 1867, at Fairfield, Utah. Later she moved with her late husband and family to Independence, where she remained till her death. She was one of the first members of the Independence branch, and was known as a faithful member of the church, never wavering in her confidence or hesitating in her duty when she was made aware of it. Funeral services were conducted at the Saints' church under the direction of Elder J. A. Robinson, Bro. Joseph Luff preaching the sermon.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

RIO DE JANERIO, Feb. 17.—There were forty-five deaths here yesterday from yellow fever and fifteen deaths from other fevers. There are only seven foreign warships here at present and there is little doing. The spread of yellow fever is causing much alarm among the foreign population, as of those who die usually two thirds are foreigners and three quarters of those who die are men.

Much comment has been excited by the inaction of Peixoto's fleet. Inquiry has resulted in the following statements being obtained from a person who should undoubtedly be able to tell the true story of the affair:—

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Feb. 17.—President Peixoto's most ardent adherents now admit that all of the State of Parana is in the hands of the rebels. Admiral Mello's expedition from Parangua took Caritaba and has been since joined by 3,000 Federalist troops from Rio Grande do Sul and Santa Catharina. This combined force is now invading the State of Sao Paulo and is sweeping back the scattering forces which the government had guarding the frontier. These weak detachments make scarcely any resistance to the invaders. Already two engagements have been fought. There have also been six skirmishes. In every instance the government troops were defeated.

At present General Lapa's forces, with only sixty days' rations, defend the frontier. This force numbers but 1,200 men and it is expected Sao Pedro de Itarare will fall.

Notwithstanding the insurgent victories the people of the State are enthusiastic and show no inclination to fight. They openly urge President Peixoto to compromise with the enemy. Should the insurgents succeed in capturing the State of Sao Paulo they would then be dangerously close to the capital. This would transfer the scene of operations to Rio Janeiro, and the fall of the revolution would be decided there.

EL RENO, Okla., Feb. 17.—The Kiowas and Comanche Indians have assumed a warlike attitude and threaten to drive the cattlemen and stock from their reservation because they have received no grass lease payment since October. The wire fences are being cut and cattle butchered by the malcontent Indians, many of whom are desperate at the lessees. It is feared the situation will become alarming unless the money due them is paid, which amounts to $60,000.

FINLAYVILLE, Pa., Feb. 17.—The Carnegie Gas Company boring for gas near the Baltimore and Ohio station here struck oil to-day. It is spouting fifty feet over the derrick. The well is good for two hundred barrels an hour and is increasing rapidly. It is located on the Frye farm. The excitement is high.

PADUCAH, Ky., Feb. 17.—Spotted fever, or cerebro-spinal meningitis, has broken out again in Marshall county and threatens to be epidemic, as it was a year ago, when the county was almost depopulated. The people are preparing to leave the county.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—All the attention of the government is at present centered on the Anarchists. The investigation made concerning them shows that the Anarchist party in Paris numbers about two hundred persons, all of whom know each other personally. This had been proved, but it will be more difficult to prove the existence of a secret society, which, as a matter of fact, acts through groups of five or six persons. Henry, the man who threw the bomb in the café of the Terminus Hotel, was a member of a group of this sort, and the police have a description of five others who they are convinced belonged to this group. Henry has confessed that he intended to go to the opera in order to throw the bomb, but was refused admission because of his dress.

Anarchists met in London on the 18th and made inflammatory speeches, advising the use of explosives. The police are alert, watching suspects and foreign arrivals.

BARCELONA, Feb. 18.—Six of the leading Anarchists who have been arrested have confessed that they were accomplices in the attempt upon the life of the civil government. This attempt, they say, was an act of vengeance for the death of Pallas. They declared their comrades who have not been arrested would avenge them.

Anarchist conspirators against the life of Emperor Francis Joseph were placed on trial at Vienna, Austria, February 19.

MASSILLON, Ohio, Feb. 17.—Coal operators in the Massillon district have suspended operations because the miners refuse to accept a reduction in wages. Three thousand men are thus thrown out of employment. A convention of miners and operators has been called to consider the question.

The east wing of the Illinois State building at the World's Fair grounds Chicago was destroyed by fire February 18.

President Cleveland has nominated Senator Edward D. White of Louisiana for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. The Senate promptly confirmed the appointment.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 18.—The negotiations between China and Russia in regard to the Pamirs are meeting with serious obstacles. A satisfactory conclusion now seems improbable. The Chinese maintain that the Pamirs form part of their empire. The Russians insist that the country has been theirs since 1875, owing to their conquest of Khokand. Russia, it will be remembered, declined the proposition of a joint negotiation on the Pamir question with Great Britain and China, preferring to deal with each of these powers separately.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Two thousand merchants and manufacturers of the German Empire met here to-day. The assemblage was presided over by a prominent Liberal member of the Reichstag. It was resolved to congratulate the government upon the conclusion of the treaty with Russia.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—A telegram has been received from the French Governor in the Sudan stating that the collision between the British and French troops at Warina was due to Chief Korona of Ouema, deceiving both the British and French by telling each that the other was a band of Sofas. The British burnt Ouema and other villages as a punishment for this deception, and executed Korona. News of a reassuring character has been received from Timbuctoo.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Four thousand persons assembled in Trafalgar Square to-day in answer to an appeal for a manifestation against the House of Lords for destroying the clauses in the parish councils bill which called for a reforming of the London vestries. The meeting, with much show of feeling, adopted resolutions condemning the House of Lords for its action in this matter. The speakers, who were vociferously cheered time and again in the course of their remarks, were Joseph Arch, Dr. Charles L. D. Tanner, the Irish Nationalist, Dadabhai Naoroji, the well known Bombay merchant, and five other members of the House of Commons. Joseph Arch said Lord Salisbury had done a wonderful service when he made the rope wherewith to hang the Lords and put this rope in their opponents' hands. The meeting adopted resolutions declaring the House of Lords to be a mischievous and useless institution, and demanding that it be abolished forthwith.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—A telegram received from the Governor of the Sudan announces that when the Joffre column, en route to Timbuctoo, arrived at the Village of Niafouge, Jan. 23, it was menaced by the villagers. Before the soldiers could proceed they were obliged to storm the village, killing 100 of the inhabitants. The column then resumed its march, not having sustained any loss.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—In the Reichstag to-day the discussion of the Cameroons estimates was continued. Chancellor von Caprivi made an elaborate defense of the colonial policy of the government, during the course of which he announced the conclusion of a frontier agreement with France.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—The Bundesrath has approved the Russo-German treaty of commerce.

TOPEKA, Kas., Feb. 19.—The grain men all say the recent heavy snow will make a wheat crop of 100,000,000 bushels in Kansas despite the low price of wheat and the dry weather last fall. The area seeded was over 4,500,000 acres according to the latest report of the State Board of Agriculture. This is a greater area than produced the phenomenal crop of 1892. The area that year was 4,300,000 acres. The official crop estimate was 72,500,000 bushels, but many of the best grain shippers in Kansas do not hesitate to declare that the State produced 100,000,000 bushels that year. Wheat from that crop is still coming to market.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 19.—The unemployed of this city have been rioting at Garfield Park all day and but for the timely arrival of a squad of police Supt. Tallentire, who had the risky job of bossing the work on Garfield Park Lake, might have been butchered.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 20.—The "unemployed" troubles in this city culminated in a demonstration on the Common this afternoon, which for a time threatened to end in a riot. Five thousand men, hungry, ragged, and unruly, crowded into the State House and the adjoining grounds and vociferously demanded immediate aid in their distress. They were led by one Swift, an avowed Anarchist. The crowd refused to disperse after hearing from the governor who had expressed sympathy for their condition. Threats were made to clean out the State House when it was learned that under its rules no petition could then be considered. The mob was dispersed but reassembled in the afternoon when a committee of its number presented a petition reciting their troubles and asking the State to begin operations upon the proposed Cape Cod canal, and to provide for State farms and factories.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—There have been two bomb outrages to-day, one of them attended by an explosion which will probably produce fatal results, and they have produced a profound impression on the public mind, even though the number of victims is small. The fact that the explosion occurred in a house inhabited by people who are in poor circumstances indicates the abominable character of the Anarchist movement.

There was a marked excitement in the lobbies of the Chamber to-day and a strong movement is on foot for proclaiming martial law in Paris, in which event every Anarchist arrested in this city will be tried by a court-martial. If any new outbreak occurs it is probable that it will lead to the adoption of such a measure.

There were numerous house-to-house searches throughout the city yesterday, but they yielded no important results. The police have no clue to the authors of the explosions of to-day.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Premier Gladstone moved to withdraw the employer's liability bill from the House of Commons to-day. Mr. Gladstone stated he was convinced that a large majority of the working classes were opposed to the House of Lords amendments, the government therefore had no option but to withdraw the bill. The House adopted Mr. Gladstone's motion. The House rejected all the important amendments made by the House of Lords to the parish councils bill and accepted the unimportant amendments.

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, Feb. 20.—Nothing positive can be learned on the subject of the Emperor's private conversation with Prince Bismarck yesterday. Still information that has come to hand justifies the assertion that the Emperor spoke on various political matters, notably the course to adopt in case the Reichstag rejects the Russian treaty. The Emperor asked the Prince and Princess to visit him during the spring at Potsdam.

The reconciliation is now complete and Bismarck's influence will soon be felt again. But he never again will be Chancellor, although he could be to-morrow if he wished to. The Emperor will probably create an entirely new office for him at an early date.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 21.—Twenty-five members of the National Woman's Suffrage convention, which has been in session in Washington for a week, appeared before committees of the House and Senate and made pleas for legislation granting suffrage to women. Susan B. Anthony and other prominent women were among them. Miss Augusta Howard, of Georgia, who wore a reform costume, made a humorous speech, and Mrs. Stanbury of Colorado described the recent Colorado campaign for suffrage, which resulted in a victory for women.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres, dated yesterday, says that a battle has been fought at Itapeva, 160 miles west of the City of Sao Paulo, between the insurgents and government forces. President Peixoto's troops were defeated.

Labor troubles are reported from Denver and other points.

Twenty-five thousand coal miners resumed work in the Hocking Valley, Ohio, district, the operators conceding their demands.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 21.—The insurgents refused to-day to allow a water boat alongside the English merchant ship Nasmyth. The captain appealed to the commander of the British squadron for safe conduct, which the latter refused. He therefore appealed to the United States Admiral Benham who promptly granted the request, and gave the requisite orders to Lieutenant Kilburn, who conducted the water boat under the American flag. The rebels did not fire upon the boat.

This incident has created a profound sensation in British shipping circles. The British squadron is roundly denounced. It has come to be a common saying that all nationalities must seek protection in the bay from the commander of the American squadron.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 21.—The United States cruiser Detroit, which has been cruising south, has returned to Rio Janeiro. The government is in peaceable possession of all southern points except Desterro, where Admiral Mello has appointed a president and two ministers. The Detroit was unable to find Admiral Mello. At each port it visited the officers were informed that he had just left. Admiral Da Gama, who is in command of the insurgent forces here, says he has countermanded the order he had placed for supplies in the United States, for the reason that the war will be at an end before the order could be filled and delivered.

Church leaders, who have contracted with the insurgents, should they triumph, for the restoration of the church privileges that were abolished upon the establishment of the republic, and who have supplied the insurgent leaders with large sums in gold, have informed Admiral Da Gama that the supply of money furnished by them will cease unless decisive progress is made soon.

There is a deficit of 155,000,000 lire in the Italian budget.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 20.—For several nights circulars setting forth the principles of anarchy have been distributed all over the city of McKeesport. They are headed, "The Communist Anarchists to the Proletariat," and declare war upon private property and the church and state, the war having for its object their utter annihilation. An Anarchist was arrested in Pittsburg in an attempt to blow up the courthouse.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 19.—A story is printed here of a revolt on the Island of Riatea, one of the Society group in the South Seas. December 24 last the rebels pulled down the French flag on the newly-erected Government Building. The trouble grew out of the difficulty between the supporters of the French Colonial Government and native traders, who are daily growing more jealous of Frenchmen and their growing commercial influence. Immediately after the occurrence the French transport Durance was dispatched to the island from Papeete, and the commander ordered that if the man who hauled down the flag was not surrendered the town would be blown off its coral foundations. The rebel, who happened to be a wealthy citizen, was surrendered and taken on board the vessel.

The Czar will go shortly to San Remo or to the South of France, and will not go to Kieff. His journey is regarded as likely to have important results, as he may meet some of the rulers or chief statesmen of Europe.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, via Galveston, Tex., Feb. 23.—A correspondent in Santos sends word that it is expected the city will be in possession of the insurgents before the end of the week. There is great excitement in the city. The streets are filled with soldiers and the citizens are in terror. The insurgent forces there have won another victory. The loyal troops were defeated two days ago near Foxima, on the road from Stanare to Sao Paulo. Nearly every man in Peixoto's battalion was wounded. During the fight the national police deserted Peixoto and joined the rebels in a body.

Chicago newspapers have lately gone into merchandising in connection with their efforts to increase their circulation, to such an extent as to involve them in some difficulty with their large advertisers who object to the low prices and good values offered. The most notable instance of this is the Inter Ocean, which was compelled to dispense with its very popular Book Department for no other reason. It continues its World's Fair Portfolio Department, however, which is delivering about 11,000 per day at present and has just added a comprehensive series of "Views of the World," and a book of music called "Harmonized Melodies" on the same plan. They are sold at a certain price provided the purchaser presents a certain number of coupons cut from the paper.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit or Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Consciscus State? The views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death: his preëxistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

VOICE OF WARNING AND INSTRUCTION TO ALL PEOPLE;

OR AN INTRODUCTION TO THE FAITH AND DOCTRINE OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

This work in its graphic review of the prophecies and history of God's dealings with his people in past ages, together with the abundant proofs concerning the work of the latter days, the gathering and restoration of Israel to their ancient home in Palestine, is a book for the times. The author presents the prophetic evidences of the restoration of the gospel in "the dispensation of the fullness of times," showing the evidences in favor of a restoration of primitive Christianity and the organization of the apostolic church with its apostleship and priesthood—its authority—its powers and gifts. This publication has always been a favorite one among inquirers for the truth. 150 pages.

JOSEPH THE SEER.

HIS PROPHETIC MISSION VINDICATED AND THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BOOK OF MORMON DEFENDED AND MAINTAINED.

New and Revised Edition. This is a reply of Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, and a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. The author has gathered excellent matter from many sources and compiled in compact form much that is of interest and value to students interested in the Book of Mormon, the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the Bible. 200 pages.

JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET AND HIS PROGENITORS.

By Lucy Smith. This work is familiarly known as "Lucy Smith's History." It was written by the Mother of the Prophet, most of it previous to his death, and is said to have passed under his personal inspection. It is a book of 312 pages and contains biographical sketches and the genealogy of Joseph Smith and his ancestors. A history of the religious movement established under the ministry of Mr. Smith is given, with many remarkable incidents connected with the development of the latter day work not recorded in other publications. The reader is furnished a plain and truthful statement of facts concerning the Smith family, its origin, character, and history, in contrast with the mass of unreliable and untruthful accounts published and circulated by its enemies. It includes an account of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in 1844.

PATTIE; OR LEAVES FROM A LIFE,

INVESTIGATION, KNOWLEDGE, SALVATION.

BRO. I. N. WHITE favors the HERALD readers with a breezy report of the White-Popplewell discussion. It will be found in the Miscellaneous Department. Our readers will note its good points. We anticipate that the elders will have many such conflicts in sectarian strongholds as new fields and staid, conservative communities are reached with the gospel message. Our work in this direction may have but fairly begun, and it is well to know the methods of attack and defense peculiar to disputants on both sides. We heard a lady who seemed to be connected with the Christian Church exhibit at the World's Fair say, "Our church is not a sect," and that declaration is one the "Christians" would no doubt affirm; but Bro. White demonstrates the movement of Mr. Campbell and his associates to be strictly sectarian.

The spirit of the times plainly indicates that error is to be badly worsted in the "shaking" process. It in every phase and in every place is doomed to a handling without gloves, and this because it "resists the truth." In the work of exposing the false and emphasizing the true every man and woman has a vital interest. Error is always deceptive, always injurious. We are interested in seeing the truth fully and clearly revealed—made manifest, boldly outlined in strong relief, in its clear, vivid contrasts.

It is a mistake and a wrong to oppose complete and fair discussion. The people should be encouraged and stimulated to inquire, to examine, to critically analyze; to think and to act understandingly. That which anywhere and at any time discourages or prevents full and proper investigation is wrong, and tends to bind the conscience and enslave. God has ever invited men to "prove all things," to "reason together," to "think," to "examine," to "hear," and to "see." Such examining processes should not be restrained, but rightly directed and encouraged in general and in personal lines, until all that is false is seen and purged away.

The Spirit of truth is the Spirit of freedom; of intellectual, spiritual, and moral freedom. If the Son of God makes free, then men are free indeed. This freedom the Apostle Paul denominated "the glorious liberty of the children of God." It is a glorious liberty—a liberty in the Spirit that leads and guides into all truth; that imparts knowledge, comprehension of the principles and power of truth. It is life eternal "to know God the eternal Father and Jesus Christ" in this broad, comprehensive sense. We expect to see perfection when God's people are educated and disciplined to a perfect understanding and doing of the will of God, which is, in other words, the law of life—the principles of adaptability—those that bring about and preserve everything in the "eternal fitness" of things. It is strictly necessary that those principles be comprehended, otherwise there is no reasonable or consistent ground for hope of great advancement. For this cause the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus—its spirit and intent—is to be written in the heart and engraven in the mind.

We hope that the spirit of investigation will be cultivated among God's people and legitimate investigation be had, without hesitation, without fear, until we shall have become free from every measure of leaven and every precept of tradition that are not of "light and truth;" that are wrong, that are imperfect. Error among the people of God, general or personal, is worse than error in the world, because of our greater light and greater privileges. Let us turn on the penetrating search lights within and without, and if done in humility and devotion to God, and in reverent spirit, without servile fear or superstition, the Lord will direct and sanctify, and make strong in the truth:—

For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power and of love, and of a sound mind.—2 Tim. 1: 7.

"Knowledge is power:" no one was ever saved in ignorance; no one can attain the presence of God until "glorified in truth:"—

And truth is a knowledge of things as they are, and as they were, and as they are to come.—D. C. 90: 4.

This implies a perfect knowledge. Salvation without knowledge is inconceivable, unreasonable, unscientific; hence untrue. The children of God are to "inherit all things" by knowing all things.

Our nearness to God is proportionate to our knowledge. Without knowledge there cannot be spiritual capacity, enjoyment, or usefulness.

When men and women come to comprehend the mission of life to be a consecration of life powers here and hereafter as the brethren and sisters, the coworkers of Jesus Christ in the great work of God whose glory is to bring about the immortality and eternal life of man, they will more fully discern the necessity of knowledge, liberty, and consecration of life powers. Salvation is not to be secured upon the narrow plane of purely personal or selfish considerations; and complete capacity for enjoyment can only result from complete, absolute development in good. The soul must reach perfection to enjoy perfection; the human must receive of the divine to that complete extent that unity of purpose shall result, and the children of God be like him and therefore participate in work with him who is glorious because of his eternal interest in perfecting others.

The theme is a sublime one, intensely practical, and worthy of prayerful meditation. We have but suggested a few thoughts upon it as they have been presented while calling attention to Bro. White's effort to defeat error and declare the truth. Suggestions should lead to thought, should stimulate personal, independent action of the mind, that principles be brought out and more fully comprehended.

There can be no satisfaction equal to perfect knowledge, perfect consecration, and perfect service to God. Indeed, there is no real lasting satisfaction to be found outside of such, for therein lies the true destiny of man, therein are the eternal harmonies revealed. Evil men and evil spirits are restless or in torment; good men and women who know not the truth are dissatisfied and long for what their natures require and what they have been denied, amid the best that the world or worldliness produces.

In the conflict with sin, ignorance, and superstition in all their forms the nature of the true, the good, the pure, and the right is revealed. Principles, truths thus exhibit their strength and shine out in their brilliancy, solidity, and in power; and as understood and received, exalt and bless the soul. "Immortality and eternal life" are thus "brought to light" through "the gospel." The disciple is made acquainted with the nature and possibilities of life, of those things that are eternal; that cannot pass away because true, right, and perfect in their harmony and unity.

The privilege of bearing a part in so noble and sublime a work cannot be overestimated; the consecration of powers and means cannot be too complete. Let us hope that "the love of the truth" shall be perfectly received in the hearts of all God's people to the consecration of their lives and means that they may be "willing" in the day of his power, which is now at hand, and be made free in the glorious liberty of those who are God's husbandry, God's building. There can be no narrowness, no selfishness, no dwarfing of any of the powers of the soul in such a work. Neither God nor man can use belittled or ignoble agencies for great purposes.

He who withholds his service or his substance from God enfolds himself in that which binds and shuts out the reception of blessing and light. He who complies with the precepts of the law frees himself by opening his heart and mind to that which descends upon those who thus become one with God in lifting all mankind.

Our destinies are largely what we make them.

REPENTANCE.

REPENTANCE, as a gospel principle, is far-reaching in its influence upon those who hear the truth unto salvation. Those who limit its meaning to the existence of sorrow in the heart know but little of the real importance vested in it. One of the reasons why the impression made by religious people upon others is not as favorable as it might be, is because this principle has not a scriptural exemplification in their lives to the extent that it should. The man who makes a profession of conversion to Christ, yet uses none of the power he possesses to repair the wrong he has been guilty of prior to that time, deceives himself and intensifies the prejudices of the irreligious around him against churches and church work.

The sorrow for sin begotten in human hearts because of punishment expected is not repentance. The demand of the Baptist was, "bring forth fruits meet for repentance," and when he was inquired of as to what he would have men do, he answered in a way to show that repentance consisted in a correction of the wrongs discoverable in their lives and practice and doctrine. Hence he notifies some that it would be folly for them to be baptized, and still adhere to that fallacious doctrine that they were the special favorites of heaven and inheritors of the promises of life simply because they were literal descendants of Abraham. Reform in doctrine and faith was necessary, in such instances, in evidence of genuine repentance. When the publicans and the soldiers in turn came to him for explanation of his demand for "fruits meet for repentance," he referred each to his line of work or service in the world and requested that the fruit should be shown in reformation. To those who had more of clothes and meat than was needful he gave command to impart of their possessions to others less fortunate. This counsel was followed by the announcement that his baptism was of water, but that of Christ which was to follow, was of fire and the Holy Ghost, and only the wheat would be garnered, while the "chaff" would be burned with unquenchable fire. See Luke 3:7-17. Formal profession and acceptance of gospel ceremonies, if not prompted by holy desire and followed by reformation of life, is but chaff to be later exposed and burned.

Zaccheus comprehended the requirement, when he said to the Savior:—

The half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have taken anything from any man by false accusation I restore him fourfold.

Here is reparation promised for wrong done in evidence of true repentance. In Leviticus 6: 1-5, the Lord is represented as instructing Moses regarding the significance of this principle, and restitution is the one thing enjoined throughout.

To sit in sackcloth and ashes, because of consciousness of having done injury to another, will not repair the wrong, and if power to repair the wrong is in the offender's hand, his tears and sackcloth and ashes are vain till the restitution is made. All announcements of repentance are hollow sounds, chaffy, and valueless under such circumstances. The man whose bills remain unpaid while he has money in store may be a church member, but he is not "in Christ." The man who hastened his cholera stricken hogs to market and sold them to die on the purchaser's hands may become rich by such means; he may also join the church afterwards and announce his conversion; but if that purchaser's loss is never made good, where is the evidence of repentance? The means so accumulated may be applied in part to build churches and send missionaries abroad; but we doubt very much whether it can secure God's approval or can be sanctified in such uses.

Where there is no power to make right a wrong done of the character referred to, the mercy of heaven may cover the condition, but how a man can ask his fellow or heaven to forgive such debts, while in his own hands is lodged the power to make good the deficit, and yet claim to be repentant, we fail to understand. A few efforts at restitution by "converted" souls, would have a more salutary and convincing effect upon the world without, and go farther to prove genuine repentance than all the prayers, tears, and church donations of a lifetime. If religion does not point out, magnify, and honor these moral obligations, what does it do for its converts more than could be done without its help?

It is enough that God shall be appealed to to forgive what we cannot meet, without presuming upon his acceptance of a heart that retains its selfishness and forgets the obligations from which it has ample power to free itself. There will be sufficient found in all our lives that cannot be reached and repaired by ourselves, and which divine mercy alone must provide for, without adding to it such features or elements as we can cope with. He who does not what he has ability to do in clearing his own record, furnishes but poor certificate to God of the sincerity of his repentance upon which to base hope of divine recognition and celestial salvation. There is no real sorrow for a wrong done in the heart of a man who is able but refuses to correct that wrong and its effects, and a heart unmoved to genuine sorrow under such conditions can scarcely be a fit offering to make to God. Truly "Godly sorrow worketh repentance, not to be repented of, but the sorrow of the world worketh death." The principle advanced in the sermon on the mount is by right of general significance and should have general application. It enjoins as follows:—

If thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. Agree with thine adversary quickly, while thou art in the way with him; lest at any time the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison. Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing.

It implies, if we mistake not, that God is unwilling to excuse the debts we are able to pay or the wrongs we are able to make right, and is equally unwilling to accept the offering of those who refuse to make restitution to the extent of their ability. He who abases or humiliates himself by the acknowledgment and reparation of wrong so far as he can need fear no abasement or rejection at the hands of God when he offers himself at the altar of consecration; but he who repents not thus before baptism may later have to learn that his "first works" have remained undone, and "fruits meet for repentance" is still exacted of him ere he can possess a character free from blame and an unclouded title to celestial life. It is better to do than to weep in evidence of regret; but having done all we can, or having not the wherewith to do; we may commend our case to him who will exact no more than he has given us power to yield, and he will accept our life offering. In this particular as in others, our righteousness should exceed the righteousness of modern churchism, that we may be found approved, and that the world may learn that we are disciples indeed.

MODERN JERUSALEM.

EDITOR CHARLES A. DANA, of the New York Sun, has been to Jerusalem and reports his impressions in an interesting contribution to McClure's Magazine. Mr. Dana landed at Jaffa, the ancient Joppa, where Peter prayed from the housetop, and took the new railroad to Jerusalem. The road was built by the French, but uses American locomotives. The ascent from the sea to Jerusalem is two hundred and forty-eight feet in elevation, and fifty miles by rail. The train requires three and one half hours for the trip, and the fare is two dollars. There is one round trip daily, the train leaving Jerusalem at nine a. m., and on returning starts from Jaffa at two p. m. The traveling is therefore much more convenient in Mr. Dana's time than in the time of Peter and John, who called the trip a two days' journey.

The Oriental Jews have a notion that the coming of the railroad is to precede the coming of the Messiah. The idea is based on the last chapter of the prophecies of Isaiah, where the return of the Hebrew exiles is thus predicted: "They shall bring all your brethren for an offering unto the Lord out of all the nations upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon swift beasts, to my holy mountain, Jerusalem, saith the Lord."

The word "kirkaroth," which is translated "swift beasts," literally means, it is claimed by Dr. Mendes, a "swaying furnace." This is the only instance of its use in the entire Bible. The word is not used for dromedary, camel, or asses, or any other known species of animals. The early translators knew of no other meaning and therefore supplied "swift beasts." As Mr. Dana mentions, the phrase fits the locomotive exactly. The swaying furnace is a better term for the locomotive than the present term. The prophet could not have used a more appropriate name had he seen the swaying locomotive with its flaming furnace in full blast swinging on its way down the desert, over the hills and chasms, from Jerusalem to Joppa. The swaying furnace has not yet brought them a Messiah, but it is bringing them the fruits of Western civilization, whose message is almost Messianic.

Traversing the plains of Sharon and Jerusalem, from which Abraham was driven by bad crops, the traveler reaches the railway terminal one mile from Jerusalem's gate. In place of the antique and sacred, there loom up at the station new frame and brick buildings, and everywhere there are signs of a building and real estate boom, and before you a mob of squabbling cab drivers and hotel agents who want your baggage. On the way in "to town" the traveler crosses the ancient valley of Hinnom. "As we cross it in driving toward the town, we look down into that part of the valley where of old the pious King Josiah 'defied Tophet, which is in the valley of the children of Hinnom, that no man might make his son or his daughter to pass through the fire to Moloch;' and where, long afterward, as Jeremiah records, the heaven-defying children of Judah 'built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to cause their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire unto Moloch.' As we leave this ill-famed ravine and turn toward the east, the lofty wall of Jerusalem and the massive towers of the citadel are immediately before us. We are on the outer slope of Mount Zion, the sanctuary and abode of David!" Finally you reach the hotel, which is located on Mount Zion!

"Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth
Is Mount Zion, on the sides of the North,
The city of the great King!
Walk about Zion, and go round about her;
Tell the towers thereof,
Mark well her bulwarks,
Consider her palaces:
That ye may tell it to the generation following,
For this God is our God forever and ever;
He will be our guide even unto death!"

Mr. Dana estimates that Jerusalem at the period of its greatest glory was no greater in extent than now. The length of the walls as given by Josephus is four miles, which says Mr. Dana, is "not larger than the area of the Central Park below the reservoir." The population is about 40,000; half Jews, who live in their separate quarter, as do the Armenians, Greeks, and Protestants. The Hebrew quarters are marked by poverty, and lack of occupation. Rothschild gave the synagogue, and prosperous Jews all over the world contribute to the support of their pauper brethren in Jerusalem.

The great pilgrimage is to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, where thousands of devout believers from various climes throw themselves prostrate and kiss the stone pavement in front of the sepulchre. Critics maintain that the sepulchre was located outside the wall, instead of where the church is built. But such skepticism does not reach the breasts of the soul-stricken pilgrims. Opening into the church the Catholics, the Greeks, the Armenians, and the Copts have chapels of their own. Each denomination has an allotted time for the use of the central church for worship, and a Turkish guard of soldiers enforces order and keeps the different kinds of Christians from disturbing the public peace by contentions for the use of the church. Fifteen lamps are kept burning; five for the Greeks, five for the Catholics, four for the Armenians, and one for the Copts. The Protestants do not seem to be in it.

The sarcophagus in which the Lord is supposed to have rested is fitted with a cover of polished stone, which is constantly worn away by the kisses of the faithful and has to be replaced every few years. The stone manger at Bethlehem is likewise worn away with kisses every year or so and has to be replaced. Near the chapel is the place where Christ was nailed to the cross, another where his vestments were divided, another where the crown of thorns was placed upon him, and another where the impress of his feet is shown in the stone. The skeptic doubts the veracity of these things, but the pilgrims flock there in tens of thousands nevertheless.

Six miles west of Jerusalem lies Bethlehem, revered as the Savior's birthplace; but now a city with a population of 8,000. On the road you pass the sunny fields where the scene of the idyl of Ruth and Boaz was laid, and the Cave of Adullam where David hid from the Philistines. The streets of Bethlehem are torn up by the laying of sewers. The church is a vast mass of buildings, where, as at Jerusalem, it requires a guard of Turkish soldiers to keep the various kinds of Christians out of violent quarrels with each other.

Bethany is two miles east, on the slope of the Mount of Olives. As you drive from Jerusalem, you pass the grave of Lazarus, the house of Mary and Martha, the garden of Gethsemane; and, on reaching the Russian church at the summit, there is a distant view of the valley of the Jordan, of the Dead Sea, blue strip, and of Moab mountains and Mount Nebo, from which Moses viewed the promised land.

Modern Jerusalem is surely a strange admixture. The Holy Land is brought by railroads and cabs into vulgar and brutal proximity, and every curious and fickle sightseer "does it" as he would "do" Paris or the World's Fair. The ancient and sacred are intermingled with the modern and material, and the dreams and visions of the faithful are rudely broken by the jars and jolts of a hustling and bustling nineteenth century. The enchantment which distance lends, and the sacredness which solitude bestows, are rudely dispelled. But the many are enabled to make the pilgrimage and profit by the scenes brought under their gaze. Perhaps it is better that way.

The foregoing from the pen of so able a man as Mr. Dana, of the Sun, will be interesting to our readers, who are keeping the ancient holy city green in their memories. It seems almost sacrilege to read what a nineteenth century man has to say about the "city where David dwelt;" but it can only be by the use and exercise of everyday pluck and the measures of common sense that the Gentiles will aid in the restoration of the ancient covenant people. How queer it sounds, however, to read that heathen authorities have to set heathen guards within holy places to keep "Christians" (?) from fighting over the altars on which their devotional fires are lighted. Misguided, so-called Christian zeal would bathe the cradle place of the Savior of the world in human blood in spite of the statement of Holy Writ that 'his blood was shed once for all.'

It is to be hoped that no modern Yankee syndicate will be permitted to buy the sites to which Mr. Dana refers, to fence them in with a high board fence and set up a modern show of the places once made holy and sacred to pious people by the presence of the Son of God, and charge admission fees to both the devout and sacrilegious. Jesus whipped the money changers out of the temple; but who would oust such restless money catchers as the Yankee showmen would prove to be.

THE American Protestant, Boston, February 17, has this good word for the HERALD:—

The Saints' Herald, official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, published at Lamoni, Iowa, has commenced its forty-first volume. It advocates American principles in no half-hearted way, and because of this it deserves a continuance of the success that has thus far been with it.

WHAT is the teaching of this church on the subject of life insurance and secret societies? Do you consider the children of the kingdom justified in clinging to these men-made institutions, for the purpose of providing against any emergency that may befall them? If not, are those who have paid hundreds of dollars for such protection before becoming Saints, justified in sacrificing what they have paid to such institutions?

The church has not yet undertaken to dictate in matters of personal action in regard to the subjects named. They are matters upon which the individual is left to the exercise of his own discretion. The church as a body does not propose to interfere with the private conscience, or affairs connected with a man's citizenship, or his immediate duties and pecuniary efforts. As to secret societies, we leave all to judge of the propriety of burdening themselves with the extra labor and expense that accompany membership in any and all secret and beneficial orders. The church has not spoken with regard to them and is not likely to, as it borders too nearly on interfering with the right of individual responsibility and agency for the church to prescribe for personal conduct to be either permissible or profitable.

THE TEMPLE LOT SUIT.

WE received notice on the 2d that Judge Phillips of the United States Circuit Court, would hand down a decision in the Temple Lot Suit, on the 3d at ten a. m.

Bro. E. L. Kelley at once left for Kansas City, Missouri, where the court was held, to be present at the rendering of the decision.

At noon we received a telegram from Bro. Kelley stating that "Judge Phillips in United States Circuit Court this morning decided in favor of Reorganized Church; complete vindication on every proposition; decision sound in law and fact."

The text of the decision will be given the HERALD readers as soon as we can receive it.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

In a letter to Bro. W. W. Blair, Bro. David Chambers wrote as follows from Oto, Iowa, February 22:—

I came here with Bro. B. H. Case on the 14th. By the aid of Dr. Waterman we obtained the upper room of the large school building, with organ, and nicely seated. I billed the entire town with epitomes of faith, going from house to house inviting the people to attend our meetings, also giving them tracts. From seventy-five to one hundred came out. By the help of Bro. Waterman we obtained an organist and choir. The attention and interest were good, and have increased. I have been invited to pray with the people at their homes. I rejoice to see the word of God take root in their hearts. I look for an abundant harvest of souls in due time. Bro. L. Gamet, of Smithland, obtained the Advent church there, where Bro. Case was the principal speaker. I have invitations from several places to open up the work. I find a certain class of people who are not dead but sleeping—children of old Latter Day Saints who know the voice of the Good Shepherd—and him they will follow. I look for and am promised that there will be a great ingathering if energetic and faithful laborers are sent. This is the most inviting field I have ever entered. Dr. Waterman and wife are active in the work; their influence greatly helps us. Dr. McKeown, of Anthon, has promised to aid in every way he can to open up at Anthon. I feel happy and rejoice. Sr. Waterman is a great sufferer from cancer; she has been confined to her bed for eighteen months. Please pray for her.

Bro. R. J. Anthony wrote from Deer Lodge, Montana, February 24, as follows:—

I have held some very interesting meetings here and at Race Track, near by, but it has been so cold the last week that I am going to Anaconda to see what I can do there, thence to Butte. I expect to also do some work in Idaho before General Conference.

Bro. I. N. White wrote from Angola, Kansas, February 26:—

I am now holding a two-weeks' meeting at Angola, Kansas, assisted by Bro. R. M. Maloney; good interest and the Spirit of our Master with us. I am much fatigued and worn, having been in the pulpit nearly every night for more than four weeks; forced by reason of distance to keep late hours, missionary letters to write, etc., etc.

Bro. H. P. Curtis, Lost Creek, Wisconsin, February 24:—

The people at Porcupine have begun to build a church for us; size 24x36. Eleven have been baptized there. A number will be baptized one week from Sunday.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

UPON further consideration it has been decided to not include Bro. Woodhead's articles in the book written in defense of the Book of Mormon by Bro. J. R. Lambert. The matter in Bro. Woodhead's articles is not yet ready for publication in book form, but will probably be revised by him and republished, after the appearance of some later articles which will be published in the HERALD at an early day.

Sr. Lydia Walling writes of labor done by Brn. Fetter and Heide at Glenwood, Iowa, and the good results that have followed.

Bro. R. L. Ware has been preaching and baptizing at Baker, Kansas, during the latter part of February. His labors are commended in a letter from Bro. J. W. Hudgens.

Bro. G. M. L. Whitman, writing from Omaha, Nebraska, the 21st ult., expresses his thankful acknowledgments for care and administration to his wants during sickness, by Saints of the Northwestern Nebraska district. We omit letter because of lack of space.

Bro. Marce Sorenson of the Danish mission has improved in health and will continue his labors in Denmark for a time.

Bro. G. J. Jenkins writes from the Southern Indiana field, recounting the blessings of the Lord in strengthening him for service. He was in poor health before baptism, but is now able to endure the labor incident to journeying and preaching the gospel.

Bro. Joseph Ward is laboring in Southern Missouri and Northern Arkansas. He writes encouragingly of the general outlook. He baptized one in January and two of late. He was hindered for a time by an accident, but is again speeding the plow.

Bro. L. W. Walls, of Latah, Washington, writes that his neighbors who have heard some preaching require to know the way of truth "more perfectly." Their conversion to the doctrine of baptism has led to an increase in the membership of the Baptist Church. He makes a call for a protracted effort by some of the ministry.

Bro. J. M. Brown, of Leon, Iowa, went to Stafford Kansas, in response to a call from Bro. L. A. Hall. He reports having received kind treatment and respectful attention from the people. He preached at three places and will continue labor in that region.

One W. F. Switzler, an old-time Missouri editor and enemy of the Saints, has published lengthy articles in late issues of the St. Louis Republic and St. Joseph Daily News. The usual tale of falsehood and misrepresentation is reground and restated according to the stereotyped custom peculiar to those who hate the truth and are determined to oppose it in the same spirit that caused the Saints so much of hardship and cruelty from 1831 to 1844. Bro. J. M. Terry replied to the News article in a three-column rebuttal, which was published in the same paper, February 26. Further replies may be made to Mr. Switzler's articles; however, the preaching of the word and the good citizenship and general faithfulness of the Saints is steadily changing public sentiment in favor of the faith. By consistent conduct and intelligent representation of the faith the cause will be vindicated and the truth concerning it become known. Faith in God and good example will do the work effectually.

Letters from Brn. D. Hurbaugh, W. C. Marshall, E. Curtis, R. Etzenhouser, F. Severy, J. D. Erwin, D. R. Jones, A. Berg, and others are crowded out of the HERALD. Some may be inserted in next issue.

The Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, Dispatch of February 26, publishes an item dated Kirtland, Ohio, in which the work of the Reorganized Church and of President Joseph Smith is commended.

Bishop E. L. Kelley went to Kansas City, Missouri, on Friday the 2d inst.

President Joseph Smith arrived home from Michigan and Illinois on Friday, March 2.

Brethren under General Conference appointment are reminded of the action providing that ministry reports be sent to Bro. H. A. Stebbins, Church Secretary, March 15; such reports to be published before conference begins. See notice in HERALD of January 17. Brethren will insure insertion of reports by being prompt.

Elder James Brown of the Pittsburg and Kirtland district died recently at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. He became ill while in the field in Virginia and was brought home by Bro. Frank Criley, Bishop's agent, who gave him kindly care. Bro. Brown was a veteran in missionary labor, in which he continued active notwithstanding his advanced age. He died in full assurance of faith.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

He liveth long who liveth well,
All other life is short and vain;
He liveth longest who can tell
Of living most for heavenly gain.

He liveth long who liveth well,
All else is being flung away;
He liveth longest who can tell
Of true things truly done each day.

HELPING HAND.

INDEPENDENCE, Missouri.

Sr. Walker:—Our meeting of the Daughters of Zion, notwithstanding the bitterly cold air and deep snow blocking the roads, was well attended, there being present twenty-six, including two or three visitors, among them Sister C. B. Stebbins, who was cordially welcomed as coworker with us. The Prayer Union was well represented, the sisters having closed their meeting earlier than usual so as to meet with us. After singing and prayer, synopsis of chapter 10 on child-training, also the succeeding chapter in Trumbull's work were read, together with Leaflet No. 6, Bro. H. C. Smith's excellent discourse on Responsibility. Although the readings of the afternoon were lengthy, good attention and an increasing interest were apparent.

A timely and important suggestion was offered by Sr. Annie Flower, who expressed a deep solicitude for the welfare of the young and also urged the delivering of lectures for the benefit of the girls and boys of the church. The general remarks upon mothers' work were shortened on account of time; but we would mention Sr. Stebbins' earnest words of instruction in regard to the manner of reading the chapters on child-training. The reader, she thought, should pause occasionally to call attention to the special points of suggestion.

As to the question, "What is the object of these meetings?" sufficient had been given, as she thought, through the Home Column in explanation, and we believe there would be more benefit derived from our work would we heed well the ideas expressed in the same concerning the oft-repeated query, "When should we meet?"

"How?" is easily seen; for should it not be with love and unity in our hearts, words of peace and encouragement upon our lips, being of one mind as mothers in Zion; true citizens of the kingdom; and if we believe in an "active citizenship" ought we not to subscribe to its active duties; and that which most concerns us is the good of not only self but also that of every other.

As our sister, Maria Nobles, whose helpful work among the sick and in family circle is just now finished and her remains about to be laid to rest under the white mantle of winter, expressed it, "We have entered upon a great work;" and though we cannot see its culmination, the grand experiment in the "Art of living" will afford valuable lessons to those who learn them well.

Some of the problems we shall meet in our mothers' work will be satisfactorily solved, no doubt, when those who are now our young men and maidens shall have taken upon themselves the responsibilities of a true conjugal and parental relationship, and proved what shall be the result of a persevering and successful attempt to lead themselves, and impart to those who shall follow after, lives physically healthy and pure and with minds clothed upon with intelligence, equanimity, and true devotion.

Can we not see that the work we are doing is a great help to them by placing in their hands all knowledge attainable concerning these sacred things, to help them solve the problem of life? As the poet says:—

"Children of men: not that your age excel
In pride of life the ages of your sires,
But that ye think clean, feel deep, bear fruit well,
The Friend of Man desires."

HYGIENIC COFFEE.

Theodore F. Seward, a prominent philanthropist in New York City, gives us the following recipe for an economical and nourishing variety of hygienic coffee: "Buy three quarts of wheat bran, costing five cents. Pour in a cup of molasses and stir together thoroughly. Roast to a nice brown. Boil in a lace bag in a coffee pot till the strength is well extracted. The result, with cream or milk and sugar, is a beverage which can hardly be detected from the best coffee, and is far better than the decoction that is often used by families claiming to be refined."

The first Protestant missionary ordained as such, says Prof. Kruger, was Casper Wilten of Antwerp. He was ordained at Amsterdam for the Dutch East Indies December 20, 1610.

Editors Herald:—Since last writing we greatly enjoyed the good conference and school entertainment at Webb City, Missouri, December 15; and closed the year in work about fifteen miles southwest of Vinita, where there had previously been considerable interest manifested. When other appointments interfered I left several regretting I had to close. One Mr. Wm. Harrell, who has been a constant and generous friend to me, is helping now to distribute the word, both in print and by argument. He takes the Ensign, and I think will soon take the church papers. He says, "I don't see how anyone can read for themselves and believe anything else." Other prominent ones are believing there; so I have heard from him since, and a new building they are erecting has been declared to be free for all denominations, the results of my past labors.

From there I went sixteen miles southeast of Vinita where Bro. and Sr. Buffington had a Baptist preacher interested by kindness, reasoning, loaning the Book of Mormon, and promising him six or eight months before to get me to open up there. When I went the preacher sent his children to circulate the appointment. We had an increasing congregation until the close. The M. E. preacher gave way for me Sunday morning. The large crowd and excellent attention called forth many remarks. There are six ministers living in the neighborhood, some of whom attended every night. It was a locality where whiskey was sold in ambush, and for this reason the excellent attention was more marked.

A national guard with lights and bonfire outside watched the building every night. Two or three of the ministers have read the Book of Mormon; one of them, the pastor of a church in Vinita, referred me to some of their prominent members, saying I could have their church most any time. I also visited places between Clarmore and Chelsea, where I preached, leaving Heralds, supplements, etc., and where we feel sure of two more being baptized. I was glad, too, while there to hear from others of Bro. and Sr. Kelley's noble efforts in warning their neighbors, and that they await my return, expecting some three or four more will be baptized.

On January 26 we were called to Oswego, Kansas, where we were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Hodge, who are highly respected, he having long held places of trust in the county. We feel hopeful of a good opening there; but we did not have the time then, having previously been requested to be home on the 28th to marry a friend. But the prejudice of the bride's guardians against the faith caused the young man to ask for the license back, which I already had in my possession, and to explain why.

On February 2 we were overtaken several miles from the place we wished to reach by a dark, rainy night. My wife said, "Let us stop right here for fear we come to something worse;" but I said, "No; we will try to get some kind of shelter, for it may be many degrees below zero before morning," so we drove on, and, seeing a light, went to it and to our great surprise found a family of Saints—Bro. Homer, from Galland's Grove, Iowa, who had lived here about two years. They had heard of me through the postmaster after my meetings about six miles from them had closed and I had gone. They were overjoyed to see us; said they had prayed so long for the Lord to send his elders that they had begun to despair of ever having their neighbors preached to.

On the 7th we were expected to engage in debate with a Rev. Brown of the Baptist Church here, but when we arrived he had business in another place although he said he would stay with us as long as we wished. I then asked a Reverend Hedly to take his place, but he was also called away. They both spoke quite well the first night, however, and then left me "in charge." You do not know the strength it gave me to hear Sr. Homer tell her little girl and boy to "pray for us, for we are alone, and they are all against us," before we started to meeting. We felt thankful to God for the expressions we heard, such as, "We like the preaching;" "he explains things so well, things that have puzzled me for years." Bro. Homer's family and another zealous friend there are doing all they can for us and the work. May God bless them and all of Zion's workers. The severe storm stopped our meetings, so we came here and have been detained ever since. We expected to continue work there to-day, but cannot go until Monday.

On Sunday, the 4th, I had the pleasure of uniting in marriage a fair young couple at Mr. Frantz's, a Catholic, living on Big Creek—his daughter and a Mr. Hill. The usual happy time was had by the large crowd gathered to celebrate the occasion. That night found me preaching to a small but attentive audience at Bro. Edmonds' sixteen miles south, where four "were almost persuaded," which caused them to rejoice in spirit. They have kindly cared for us while there, trying to make our stay pleasant. By the kindness and untiring work of Bro. and Sr. William France we have been enabled to remain in the field all the time without much loss.

My address is Vinita, Indian Territory.

WIRT, Ind., Feb. 20.

Editors Herald:—I came from Plainville, Indiana, to this place three weeks ago, and have preached in the Union chapel and branch and vicinity the major portion of the time. I have had from fair to good audiences the most of the time, considering the muddy roads and the inclement weather. The Saints are in usual health with a few exceptions, which are rather on the decline. While a very few have weak constitutions and the infirmities of age to wrestle with, all appear to be sound, and well in spirit.

We have had a few men, in authority who have apostatized in years gone by, but the work is recovering from those sad reverses, and the silver bow of hope hangs in the horizon. Those old running sores are dried, and the scars are fast disappearing, while young blood and new vigor are animating, purging, purifying, and beautifying the word and work of the Lord in all these parts. Surely the indications harbingers forth a better time at hand to come.

Sectarian bias, cowardice, and meanness are not things altogether of the cruel past. When will men and women demonstrate the power and authority of the "golden rule?" This world was made for Cæsar as well as for Brutus; but religious bigots, hireling priests, blind guides, and their gullible votaries are loth to realize it.

As a sample of the animus and spirit of some of the dissenting children of "mother church," we relate as follows: The M. E. folks of Lancaster have a township building engaged for their meetings; they pay for it, and use it for regular services, but the balance of the time they have no jurisdiction. We obtained the promise of the room of the trustee, the custodian of the property. When we advertised a series of preaching meetings the above sect raised such a pious howl that the man in authority weakened, and giggered back; all to keep out of trouble. These "orthodox" threatened to haul out, and not use the house if we were allowed in. Some of the noble among the people are talking loudly of such injustice, wherein our people are taxed along with other citizens and are not allowed equal privileges with them, even some of the M. E. Church folks are on our side. The trans-atlantic, and monarchical doctrine of "taxation without representation" turned Boston harbor into a huge teapot, and crimsoned the tide of the Atlantic with the gore of patriots, and filled the land of the illustrious free with death and mourning, ere the insult and stain were washed from the New England seaboard. "Might makes right" only as tempered with justice. Sometimes a not overly good Saint feels more like fighting than praying, but we must be judicious, and more so when they "hold the fort."

Oliver Cromwell, it was, I believe, who said to his soldiers, "Trust in the Lord and keep your powder dry." Christ allowed that a wise king with ten thousand men ready for the battle seeing another with double that number would send an embassy of peace. It may be that I will get a hearing in the village yet, and in the controverted room. If not, we will kindle a beacon light as near by as possible and unfurl the old standard to the breeze; for, behold, this latter-day gospel is the liberator of the world. We ought not to sleep on our rights, nor loiter away the precious moments, but push the conquests of the cross, like antagonistic unicorns, to the ends of the earth.

I spent a week in what is known in these parts as the Hall's Ridge neighborhood. Eighteen years ago last December I got out and made public an appointment for Bro. C. Scott, which he filled with honor to himself and profit to the cause. This was the first preaching in that locality. Bro. William Marshall, presiding elder of Union branch, joined me Sunday, and on Monday we organized a branch of a dozen charter members, to be known as the Manville church. This being their nearest post office, the local organization takes its name therefrom. Bro. J. D. Porter, formerly teacher of Union branch, was ordained a priest and selected to be their presiding officer, while William H. Winscott was elected as teacher, and his son, William S. Winscott, was ordained and chosen as their deacon, as also secretary and treasurer. Bro. Marshall baptized eight there last fall, and many more have declared in our favor, and several state that they intend to unite at no distant day; and so the outlook is good. A number of the brethren have hitherto spoken in Bro. Porter's house, and, as usual, the rooms overflowed with attentive hearers. The missionary in sub-charge told me to take in the situation, and lo, it is a finished work so far as the organization is concerned.

M. T. SHORT.

SUPERIOR, Iowa, Feb. 17.

Editors Herald:—The debate between Elder Jacob Hinshaw of the Friends Church and Bro. J. F. McDowell closed at this place last night, satisfactorily to Bro. McDowell and the writer. The propositions were as follows:—

"Is baptism in water, by immersion, for the remission of sins, a part of the gospel of Christ, and essential to salvation? Elder McDowell affirmed.

"Do the Scriptures teach that the baptism of the Spirit is Christ's baptism and the only perpetual or Christian baptism? Elder Jacob Hinshaw affirmed."

Elder Hinshaw is acknowledged by the Friends as authority on ordinances; at least so we were told by his moderator, Prof. L. M. Parasho.

Mr. D. L. Wyldé acted as chairman, doing his part in a gentlemanly manner, for which he has our thanks. The writer acted as moderator for Elder McDowell.

Elder Hinshaw is an able debater and quite gentlemanly in discussion. Bro. J. F. McDowell defended the faith of the church, so far as these propositions covered it, in a very able, humble, and Christlike manner, thereby making friends to the church.

Some of the positions assumed by Elder Hinshaw were as follows: "There is no water in the commission, but the brother has to put it in every time. Peter did not command Cornelius and his household to be baptized in water; there is no water in the statement. The case of the eunuch was simply a case of permission, as Philip said nothing about water. Paul taught the Corinthians, 'For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel.' The birth of water referred to by the Savior in John 3: 5 was the natural birth; John's baptism was a Jewish baptism and belonged to the old covenant; water baptism was a part of the old covenant, and was abolished at the cross. Paul said to the Ephesians, 'There is one baptism;' and to the Corinthians, 'For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body.'"

Bro. McDowell took the position that Christ did send his ministers to teach and baptize all nations, as stated in Matthew 28: 19 and Mark 16: 15, 16. That Christ authorized no man to baptize with the Holy Ghost, but reserved that right unto himself; therefore he commissioned his disciples to baptize in water. He read nearly all the passages found in the New Testament which refer to water baptism. He took the position that the baptism of John and that administered by the disciples of Christ was a very different thing to the washings had under the law, as referred to by Elder Hinshaw, where the priests were to wash their hands and feet, and their clothes, some of which washings were for the benefit of women under peculiar conditions. God sent John; and as the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost were one, John's baptism was Christ's baptism. Christ gave the commission under the new covenant, and under that commission the apostles taught and practiced baptism in water for the remission of sins.

If water baptism is not a part of the gospel of Christ, what baptism did the apostles administer? How does Elder Hinshaw administer baptism of the Spirit? These questions Elder Hinshaw never tried to answer.

John, Peter, Mark, Luke, and others taught that baptism was for the remission of sins. John said, "And there are three that bear witness in earth, the spirit and the water and the blood: and these three agree in one." Therefore you cannot dispense with the water.

The Samaritans were baptized by Philip, and received the Holy Ghost afterward through the laying on of the apostles' hands, as shown by Acts 8:12-23; therefore they were baptized in water. Philip preached Jesus to the eunuch, and as a result the eunuch was baptized in water. Paul taught the twelve disciples at Ephesus, and baptized them in the name of the Lord Jesus, and afterward laid his hands upon them and they received the Holy Ghost (Acts 19: 1-7); showing that these men were baptized in water as well as with the Holy Spirit. It takes both the baptism of water and of the Spirit to fulfill the statement made by the Savior in John 3: 5: "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." In this baptism there is a blending of the elements of water and Spirit as shown by 1 John 5: 8. It takes both baptism of water and of the Spirit to complete the one baptism spoken of in Ephesians 4: 5.

Elder Hinshaw made what seemed to the writer a special effort to enlist the prejudice of the people by repeating many times a statement something like this: "I repudiate such religion as the brother teaches that damns Friends, Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, and nearly everybody else, just because they have not been dipped in water. You can never unite Christianity in this way. These outward ordinances are what have divided the church all along the line."

From what I could see and hear I feel sure that if a vote of the people had been taken, a majority would have voted in our favor, though I met one man and his wife who thought different. Superior is a small railroad town located in Dickinson county, Iowa, about five miles from Spirit Lake and about the same distance from the southern line of Minnesota. I heard several persons express wonder why such talent had been sent to so small a town. It was the understanding of

Bro. P. H. Atwood and a Mr. Pierson of the Friends Church with whom the controversy first arose that the debate should be held at Estherville, Emmet county, a much larger town; but Elder Hinshaw refused to go there, and we accepted his proposition to hold the debate at Superior. Of course it will be understood by the Herald readers that in the above I do not notice all the arguments made by either disputant, neither do I pretend to give their language, only where it is shown by quotation marks.

Bro. J. F. McDowell and myself were the first ministers of our church to visit and preach in this town. We arrived here on the 10th inst. Arrangements had previously been made to hold the debate in a poorly seated hall, but by request, the writer preached in the Baptist church at eleven a. m., and Bro. McDowell at 7:30 p. m., on the 11th inst., and our preaching so far removed prejudice from the mind of Mr. W. S. Gardner, the deacon of the church, and his excellent family, that they gave their consent to the holding of the discussion in the Baptist church. I was permitted to preach three discourses in the same house after the close of the debate. Mr. Gardner and family and a number of others, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. G. M. West with whom we lodged, treated us very kindly, for which they have our thanks. We feel that good has resulted and will result from the debate and the preaching of the word in this place.

Elder Heman C. Smith has done some good preaching in our district to the pleasure and comfort of the Saints. Elders J. F. McDowell and C. J. Hunt have done a good work in the district this year, and are still battling away for the truth. When last heard from Bro. John Smith was busy. Bro. J. M. Baker and other local brethren are doing all their circumstances will permit and I think I am safe in saying that as a district the work was never in better condition though there is still much room for improvement.

In gospel bonds,
CHARLES E. BUTTERWORTH.

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, Feb. 24.

Editors Herald.—Our conference held last Saturday and Sunday was all we could expect. The roads were bad, and much sickness in the district prevented many from attending who would otherwise have done so. We had a full attendance of Saints and friends at our preaching and prayer service, and some here are convinced of the truth and ready to obey, as expressed by themselves.

This branch is in good working order. Bro. Leadingham, president, and the officers are all trying to do their duty, taking the lead in the good work, while the Saints fully realize the necessity of moving forward in line of duty; thus the Spirit of God is with them, filling their hearts with joy and peace. The Sunday school convention was a success; both superintendent, teachers, and scholars did remarkably well; for one I was highly interested. May this good work still progress and increase until it shall fully accomplish its purpose. All these helps to the Master's work, tend to help us push this mighty cause intrusted to our care to its ultimate triumph. May God speed the energies put forth by his weak servants and hand-maidens.

All the local force of the district are trying to do what they can. The ground is being prepared; the seed sown in good soil we are fully persuaded will spring up and bring forth good fruit to the glory of God. Bro. J. B. Heide came here to attend conference, but sickness prevented him; however, he is now recovering and doing well.

To the Saints of this and the Nodaway districts, let me say, Let us not slacken our interest in the work intrusted to our care, either spiritually or temporally; the one is just as essential as the other. God will sustain those who sustain his cause, and such as make sacrifice for carrying on this work God will bless abundantly in this life, and in the world to come will give them a crown of eternal life that will never fade away. To my colaborers, let us hold fast to the rod of iron, the word of God, that will carry us safely through. Let us labor with an eye single to the glory of God that we may receive a reward from the Master, ever bearing in mind that if we have any selfish motive in view, our work is a failure. May God help us all to be faithful in the discharge of all duties.

Your brother in Christ,
HENRY KEMP.

CHURCH HISTORY

AS FOUND IN TIMES AND SEASONS AND MILLENNIAL STAR.

My only apology for asking Herald space for the consideration of the so-called church history question, is found in the fact of the repeated attacks during the year upon the action of the last Annual Conference and the forced prominence again of the question as we approach another annual meeting.

To correct the misstatements and, possibly, misapprehensions of some touching my remarks upon the question during its discussion by the conference, I submit, in its place, herewith my argument made at the time and furnished by the conference official reporter.

The only surprise that has occurred to me touching the question has been in finding any person opposing the position taken by the conference. The resolution is as follows:—

Resolved, that in our judgment much of the Church History contained in the Millennial Star and also in Times and Seasons is of extremely doubtful character, and cannot be safely relied upon; therefore it should not be employed as authority in matters affecting the government of the church.

Is not every statement of the resolution true? No one as yet has pointed out one that is not. Why then should there be so much contention about it? And who can rightly and properly say that what is found in these books should be used as "authority affecting the government of the church," even though much of it was not known to be doubtful?

Authorized law and usage in the church does not come as these books known as the Millennial Star and Times and Seasons came. The Lord in fixing the standards of authority for the church says:—

Thou shalt take the things which thou hast received, which have been given unto thee in my scriptures for a law, to be my law, to govern my church.—D. C. 42: 16.

He also enjoins with this the "Book of Mormon and the former commandments." (Sec. 83: 8.)

And again:—

All the commandments and covenants of the church.—Sec. 42: 21.

The church in conference, from its inception, has recognized and adopted the three books as the only standards of authority. In the Reorganization, the first conference in June, 1852, adopted as a standard of authority the following:—

Resolution 6: Resolved that the whole law of the Church of Jesus Christ is contained in the Bible, Book of Mormon, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants."

Resolution 9: Resolved that this conference believes it the duty of the elders of this church who have been legally ordained, to cry repentance and remission of sins to this generation through obedience to the gospel as revealed in the record of the Jews, Book of Mormon, and Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and to not faint in the discharge of duty.—Church Record, p. 6; Abstract of Evidence, p. 49.

Other works, whether of theology or history, are and have been used for what they were worth for the purposes used; and this whether they were of Roman Catholic, Protestant, or infidel production. The Thirty-nine Articles of Westminster, Methodist Discipline, teaching, theories, and practices in the original church of individuals, parties, or factions all being used for what they are worth, under the scriptural rule which enjoins the following of any such only so far as they follow Christ. (See 1 Corinthians 11: 1.) Shall we ask any more for Times and Seasons and the Millennial Star?

The character of the Times and Seasons as a publication is set forth by President Joseph Smith as follows:—

The Times and Seasons at the beginning of its career, was an individual concern published by Ebenezer Robinson, and Carlos Smith in partnership. . . . After it was purchased from Robinson and Smith, it was considered as an authority in the Church, and was so considered as an authority up to the time of the death of Joseph Smith, June 27, 1844; and I presume that by those who published it, it was considered an authority after June 27, 1844, but was never so regarded by the Reorganized Church.—Ab. Ev. p. 60, folio 79.

It was never an official organ of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, was not used by them, but was accepted by them from 1839 to 1844, that is, for what it purports to be.—Ab. Ev. p. 59, folio 77.

Of the special history of Joseph

Smith as published in Times and Seasons and Millennial Star, and referred to so much, President Joseph Smith testifies:—

There was a history of Joseph Smith written for the public, and published. The publication was begun in the Times and Seasons, and I am not sure but what it was in the paper published here, Independence, Missouri. I am not certain about the date, it must have been about 1833. It began to be published again in the Times and Seasons, very nearly at the start of that paper; I do not recollect the date. The publication was continued after the death of my father. It purported to be the life of Joseph Smith, as written by himself; that part of it which appeared after his death, June 27, 1844, is not accepted by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints as correct.—Ab. Ev., p. 60, fol. 80.

The Times and Seasons further shows that Don C. Smith succeeded E. Robinson and D. C. Smith in editing and publishing the paper; and then D. C. Smith and R. B. Thompson; and, Geo. Hills, in turn. After the death of D. C. Smith, Ebenezer Robinson was editor, and continued till March 1, 1842, when Joseph Smith became editor, as stated by President Smith, and continued in this position for the period of nine and one half months, when he was succeeded as editor by John Taylor.

From this is readily seen the tried and unstable condition of the periodical during this early time, and its errors and mistakes few or many should not be greatly wondered at. The Evening and Morning Star and Book of Commandments, published in 1832 and 1833, by Oliver Cowdery, John Whitmer, and W. W. Phelps, under and by the direction of the church, and with special effort to obtain correctness, are admitted to be very faulty, and on this account the Book of Commandments is not an authority in the church. We use it, however, as we should the Times and Seasons and Millennial Star, for what it is worth; but, not as an "authority affecting the government of the church."

It may be said that these are to aid us in properly interpreting the law. But it should not be forgotten that the policy of interpreting the law of God by what somebody else said and did has been the theological curse of the age and the weapon by which Satan has ever fought the Church of Christ. Let us practice what we sing and preach:—

God is his own interpreter,
And he will make it plain.

That by which we interpret the law should equally have the Divine sanction as the law itself. This sanction has never been given to the Times and Seasons nor Millennial Star. These books, then, are to be used, when at all, as additional evidence of the correctness of an interpretation of divine law when they agree with the same, and when they do not, they are discarded; hence, they are not an authority, as no member of the church is, nor can he be held to be, bound by them.

If it be said that the resolution reflects doubt upon the entire series, the answer is that it is no more than the truth, and it is necessary sometimes to warn brethren lest they drink in everything that makes claim to be in harmony with or a factor in the Church of Christ. This is in accord with the Scriptures:—

I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say.—1 Cor. 10: 15.

Prove all things; hold fast that which is good.—2 Thess. 5: 21.

Not giving heed to Jewish fables, and commandments of men, that turn from the truth.—Titus 1: 11.

Preach the word; be instant in season, who are out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine.—2 Tim. 4: 2.

It will be readily remembered that just prior to the passage of the resolution complained of certain articles had appeared in the Herald making numerous citations from the Times and Seasons and Millennial Star, OVER FORTY of which quotations are from those portions of these books which President Joseph Smith says, are "not accepted by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints as correct."

Many of these quotations are certainly in conflict with the law of Christ as it is contained in the standard books of the church, and for the church to adopt them as a guide would but change the Reorganization into a faction in common with other factions that broke off under leaders who disregarded the wisdom and judgment of the body, ignored or trampled upon the divine law of "common consent in the church," and supplanted instead thereof the heresy, "Obey counsel," or "Follow your file leader."

The citations from these books showing an encroachment upon the rights and duties of the Bishopric, and a prostitution of the rights, dignity, and duties of the standing High Council of the church at Kirtland, and elsewhere, are to my mind so glaringly inconsistent with the law that I have undertaken to point some of them out in a separate article entitled, "The Standing High Council of the Church," etc.

When the church was assailed by one Clark Braden for things done by the High Council, according to the Times and Seasons history, and which portion of history and act as charged no lover of right and truth can defend, I answered that these were statements of history made by Brigham Young and others, evidently for a bad purpose, and that we rejected the history as erroneous and incomplete. Was I right or wrong?

The pith of this controversy fairly put resolves itself into this: Is fallible church history (or church precedents overruled by the Lord) a proper guide for the interpretation of the law of God? Cannot the proposition be answered by every Latter Day Saint with an emphatic, No? Well, the full history of the transactions viewed from the attitude of the revelations reduces the question to the above proposition. The revelations given in 1832, 1834, and 1841, questioned and condemned the proceedings of the church. On the other hand, the Reorganized Church from its beginning adopted the law, rules, and precedents in the three books as the only guide and authority, and the Lord has recognized the correctness of the position by acceptance and countenance of the work done in giving further instruction in harmony therewith to the body. Shall we, like rebellious Israel, get tired with that which God has seemed to be entirely pleased with and have a yearning for the flesh pots and leeks and onions of Egypt?

Others may do as they like, but as for me, I hope to be found ever abiding by the injunction:—

To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them.

The following is the argument made at the General Conference referred to herein upon the question:—

“So far as being bound is concerned, I think there ought not to be anyone in this body who would say that we should be bound by any precedent that was established, or anything that took place that might be called or referred to as a precedent in the rejected organization. If we accept the law of God as true that is contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, should we undertake to be bound by the acts and doings of this former church, we would find ourselves in the situation of those of whom the Lord speaks in 1832 as being under condemnation. Just as soon as we accept what others have done for precedents whose acts were wrong, we are as liable to refer to what they did that the Lord condemned as to refer to what they did that he was pleased with, as a precedent. If it was our fortune (but it is not) to have had pointed out by the Lord the many things that were engaged in from 1831 to 1844 that were acceptable in his sight, we could refer to those as precedents and be willing to be bound by them; but since he has not pointed out what was pleasing to him in the work of that people specifically here and there, in their teaching publicly and privately, we are left no other alternative than to disregard them, so far as their being binding upon us in any sense; and to take the consequences and responsibility of our acts in judging of the law, as we understand it, with the risk of the Holy Spirit as our guide.

“As an individual in this church I am to be judged in the hereafter by my own actions and my relationship to God's law, as I understand it. It will not be asked of me hereafter whether Joseph the Seer or Joseph the present understood it so and so in dealing with these questions, but when I stand before the Master to give an account I must say, ‘I understood your law, and it read to me thus,’ and if I should undertake to tell him that somebody else thought different, he would say, ‘Why did you not take my word?’ We would not be excusable for having been guided by precedent, so far as matters of law are concerned, with which this resolution solely deals.

“I do not see, then, how any individual can stand up here and say that we shall be bound by any of the precedents of the past, unless these precedents have been pointed out specifically by our heavenly Father as being acceptable to him; but of the precedents that we have in the church from 1830 to the present that have not such indorsement I do not believe that I should be held and bound by them, if my judgment says they are contrary to the law of God; and in my duties in the church, wherever I see an act of the past that in my opinion is contrary to the law of God, I shall stand by the law of God as revealed, and disregard the precedent. Is there anybody here that does not stand upon that platform? Is there anybody that is willing to stand on precedent and what somebody said rather than the law of God, unless he is of the opinion that the doctrine of Jesus Christ as revealed by him is inferior in some respects to the opinions of individuals who have simply represented Christ in this world?

“Now I will read from Section 83, paragraph 8, Doctrine and Covenants, to show what kind of a situation we would be in to take the precedents and the acts of the church prior to 1832 as our guide and undertake to be bound by them. The Lord says:—

“And your minds in times past have been darkened because of unbelief, and because you have treated lightly the things you have received, which vanity and unbelief hath brought the whole church under condemnation.

“These condemned acts may be presented to us for acceptance as readily as others, but would we not be brought under condemnation if we did the same? If the church was brought under condemnation for its wrong work and we should follow these precedents, we would also be brought under condemnation. God is not different to-day to what he was then.

“But to continue the reading:—

“And this condemnation resteth upon the children of Zion, even all; and they shall remain under this condemnation until they repent and remember the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon and the former commandments which I have given them, not only to say, but to do according to that which I have written.

“So that this resolution as it comes from the Quorum of the Seventy, it seems to me is very timely if there is a disposition on the part of anybody to disregard the law of God as it is in the books, and take some individual's action, as their guide, whether it is the former President of the church or the present one, if it be contrary to the law, and such a resolution should be passed by this body.

“There is no individual in this church who is capable of giving a law to the body except as God gives the law to him. Our heavenly Father has stated in the revelations here, specifically, as you will find, that we are to receive commandments from the President of the church—referring to the original President—as he receiveth them from God. As Joseph Smith the Martyr received commandments from God, so we are under obligations to receive them; but when he said anything that was not a revelation from God, we are not; and here is a great distinction between the Reorganized Church and the faction that is out West: The position of the latter is that whatever Joseph Smith said or did was a binding precedent; that he was the law-giver, and that what he said they must obey. We made this a ground of departure in the Temple Lot suit that is now pending, showing that they had departed from the law and regarded man's dictum instead, and that they were willing to follow the dictum of individuals in right or wrong; and therefore departed from the law and God rejected them.

“The Reorganization from the beginning has said that it would stand by the law; the law was higher than Jesus Christ when he was here in this world; he had to abide the law. So when you cite me a precedent from Joseph the Seer, or any other individual in the church or out of it, the first inquiry I make is, Is it in harmony with the law of God, and if I cannot see the harmony, it is my duty as an honest man to say that I will disregard it; and you will always find me right on that platform, my friends.

“In section 42 Doctrine and Covenants the Lord tells us what we shall be governed by. It is not the precedents of anybody or the sayings or doings of anybody:—

“Thou shalt take the things which thou hast received, which have been given unto thee in my scriptures for a law, to be my law, to govern my church; and he that doeth according to these things, shall be saved, and he that doeth them not shall be damned, if he continues.

“We are to take the things that are written in the law, not what somebody human said or did; and the es-cutehon of the liberties of the Latter

Day Saints in their faith to-day is couched in the revelation here that some have spurned in days past, wherein God said to the church:—

“Thou shalt give heed unto all his words and commandments, which he shall give unto you, as he receiveth them, walking in all holiness before me.

“That is a bulwark of our liberties instead of binding us to folly. God has never said we shall receive the prophet's words whether they are from him or not, but, ‘as he receiveth them, walking in all holiness before me;’ and you must first convince me that they were received by commandment from our heavenly Father before you can cite any precedent to me and say that I shall be bound thereby.

“In connection with this, I wish to show you a statement with reference to the direction of the Bishop, one of the first that was made, which you will find in section 41, paragraph 3, Book of Doctrine and Covenants:—

“And again, I have called my servant Edward Partridge, and give a commandment, that he should be appointed by the voice of the church, and ordained a bishop unto the church, to leave his merchandise and to spend all his time in the labors of the church; to see to all things as it shall be appointed unto him in my laws, in the day that I shall give them.

“The Bishop was not to be directed by the President or any other individual in the church at will, but by the law of God; and he is held responsible to God for his actions under that law; and it would be my duty to disregard any counsel in the church that I thought was contrary to the law of God. I will take my chances in the hereafter in standing by his law. When I say this I am not arguing that we should disregard or treat lightly the counsels and opinions and advice of the Presidency, the Twelve, or any other body. We should respect them; but when they are given we must look closely and see if they are in accordance with the law. You are better able to determine what the law is when you have others' views and opinions than you possibly can without these. So I do not stand here ready to disregard the teaching and sentiments of my brethren; but if in my opinion they are contrary to the law of God, the law of God does not say that I shall hold to their opinions. So it is with the precedents that are referred to, and this is what is in the resolution.

“There are enough things that I might enumerate here which if held up as precedents to this body would destroy it if followed. This is a Reorganization. It is a body that is going forward as distinct and separate from the original body in many of its works, actions, and precedents as any other body that you might point to in this country. You may cite to enough of the things that took place under the regime of the old, that brought it under condemnation and rejection of God, and settle them upon us and cause our rejection too. The children of a great part of the individuals that lived in the former organization are in slavery to-day, are in bondage now by following what they believed to have been the precedents of the old day; and if we follow them, will not our children also be in bondage? I am not that kind of a man at all. I am here—God holds me responsible for going by the law that he has given us, and holds me accountable for a proper regard for his law; and I am to disregard everything that might be cited as a precedent that is contrary to that law. I am not bound to take the precedent. I am heartily in favor of the resolution, and I wish the amendment to be placed before the word ‘regarded’ instead of before the word ‘bound.’ so as to read ‘not necessarily regarded.’

“If we have precedents that will throw light upon the law of God, I am willing to accept them in that light; if we have precedents that will do so—those in keeping with the law of God; but I do not believe in citing precedents for men to follow instead of the law of God. The chances are that when we do that that we are leading in darkness rather than in the light; and instead of going back to Nauvoo and many other places that I might mention, this church should push forward in a different direction; and although individuals would dare stop it and point us to Nauvoo, they will never succeed. We are directed in a different way to that: pushing from the precedents, and the farther we get from the old precedents, the better God will be pleased with us.”

Believing that the Saints should critically and carefully consider every question touching their faith, with respect to all others and fear of none, I am,

Very truly and respectfully in the faith,
E. L. KELLEY.

LAMONI, Iowa, February 24, 1894.

COLLEGE.

FOR a number of years there has been under consideration the question of establishing somewhere an educational institution or college in which a liberal education might be acquired, free from all sectarian bias, but so located as to have all the advantages which a quiet, moral community would furnish; such institution, however, to be so far under the fostering care of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints that three fourths of the governing board of the trustees thereof should be members in good standing of that organization. Committees with that end in view were appointed by the church and an effort made to raise by popular subscription a fund of one hundred thousand dollars. The times were unpropitious and the efforts put forth proved fruitless.

One reason why the appeal for such a fund failed of response may readily be perceived in the fact that no location had been announced or determined upon, and men who are requested to donate or invest money generally desire to know where and how the funds contributed are to be expended.

After repeated and almost unsuccessful efforts on the part of various members of the committee, I am given to understand that a proposition from certain parties in Lamoni, Iowa, has been accepted. It is, in effect, an offer to donate forty acres of land eligibly located adjoining the town site of Lamoni, the joint contributors being Mrs. Frances Walker, Mrs. Minnie Wickes, and Mr. W. A. Hopkins—conditioned upon the establishment of a college thereon within five years; no stipulation, however, being made as to the character and extent of the improvements.

The donors of land are all members of the church, but some cash subscriptions, I understand, have been guaranteed from others on same general conditions.

The question naturally arises, From what quarter shall the money be obtained with which to make desired improvements. I would suggest as one method to that end the following: First, select say ten or more acres as a suitable site for the campus from the land referred to; second, lay out the remainder of the forty acres in attractive style—something in park fashion—around the campus, marking off handsome avenues planted with shade trees, and divide the grounds between into suitable building lots; third, offer these lots for sale at reasonable prices, making terms say one third in cash, one third in one year, and one third in two years, with interest at six per cent on deferred payments, said payments to be properly secured. To those desiring to pay all cash allow a discount of say five per cent on the entire purchase price.

The reasonable prices which might thus be paid for such lots, while promoting and aiding the establishment of the institution, should not prove any loss to the purchaser, but on the contrary, a fairly profitable investment, as the improvements made for college purposes would naturally make the ground intrinsically worth even more than had been paid therefor.

Methods of this character, it seems to me, would find favor with many who might be averse to making direct donations and yet be anxious to see such an institution established.

The people of Lamoni as well as others who may think of making their homes at that point, would do well to think seriously about this; nor would it be unprofitable for others who wish to see a college erected to do likewise.

Many desiring to have the full benefits of good church influences around their families have already moved to Lamoni, and doubtless many others will do so, if to the influences already named are added this educational institution. Can there be any more desirable location for such homes than the grounds surrounding the college campus? I think not. Yours,

R.

CHURCH HISTORY,—A REPLY.

No. 3.

BY W. W. BLAIR.

BRO. LAMBERT says:—

I am not anxious for controversy under the most favorable surroundings; and when superior position and the claim of superior qualifications are set forth as a meritorious argument, it is still less desirable. . . .

Why not discuss these questions on their merit, without dragging in, again and again, the supposed superior knowledge, inspiration, and general qualifications of the one who is so strongly in favor of the "more history part"? Is this anything less than begging the question? . . . Does not the highest type of controversy require a man to consider his opponent as his equal, in talent, knowledge of the subject matter in dispute, desire for truth, etc.?

To the above I reply: In my article on "Counsel," in Herald for 1893, pages 414-16, and 430-32, I claimed and still claim, that the official qualifications of Joseph the Seer, called and inspired of God to organize and to build up the church in these last days, were superior to those of his subordinate helpers. I also claimed and still claim, that the official qualifications of his successor are superior, in matters pertaining to his office and calling, to those of his subordinate helpers, and I gave abundant proof of my position from the word of the Lord. I made and still make a similar claim for "the second elder of the church." If these men have not superior official qualifications to fill their own respective offices and callings, and are only equal, or inferior, in this respect to officers of different and less authority and responsibility, then a bad choice has been made and should be remedied at once. What I had to say on these matters related almost entirely to the "Choice Seer" and his successor. And when the brother insinuates that I did anything of the kind "again and again" concerning myself, he is uncharitable, unjust, and grossly exaggerates, as those papers show. I repeat what I claimed in the said article, that the official teachings, decisions, and rulings of Joseph the Seer and his successor should be heeded, honored, and preferred by the Saints before those of officers of less official responsibility and less official authority in the church and kingdom of God. "If that be treason, make the most of it." If it be folly, show us wisdom.

I reply further, that "the highest type of controversy" does not "require a man to consider his opponent his equal, in talent, knowledge," etc. We may allow that opponents in discussion are equal in sincerity and "desire for truth," but if they were "equal in talent, knowledge of the subject matter in dispute," etc., there should be no grounds of controversy, and there would not be among sensible people. The only object to be rightly served in discussion is to bring to light facts and truths for the benefit of those who hitherto had not known and understood them. And this applies to editors with similar force and fitness as it does to church officers. Jesus and the first Christian ministers, in the great controversy on the government of God and the plan of redemption, did not consider that their opponents, Jew or Gentile, were their equals in "knowledge" and in understanding touching these matters. The same is true of Latter Day Saints. Paul and Peter and James and John knew that their testimony concerning Jesus and the gospel was true, and they did not admit, and were not required to consider, that their opponents were "equal in talent, knowledge of the subject matter in dispute," when discussing Christianity.

Elder Lambert captiously says of me:—

The good brother has repeatedly informed us that it was his good fortune to come into possession of the church history at an early day; how studiously and diligently he has applied himself to its pages, all of which we do not deny. But he goes a little farther and undertakes to tell us how little others know about this same history.

If in the above charges Elder Lambert had quoted or cited proofs of his allegations, such would enable the reader to judge far more safely. I am no boaster, and of this the Saints who know me well can testify—at least those whose judgments have not been perverted by splenetic bias. When at any time I have had occasion to say I at any early day procured and studied diligently the history of the church, that was not boasting but simply stating a fact and assuring Herald readers (many of whom I have not seen) that in treating my subjects by aid of historical facts I was not ignorant of those facts. Luke, when writing his history concerning Christ, said this:—

It seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, most excellent Theophilus, that thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed.—Luke 1: 3, 4.

Did Luke boast when asserting his information, his knowledge of the matters he treats?

Paul writes thus to the saints, 2 Cor. 11: 5, 6:—

For I suppose I was not a whit behind the very chiefest apostles. But though I be rude in speech, yet not in knowledge.

Again Paul says, Eph. 3: 3, 4:—

By revelation he made known unto me the mystery; (as I wrote afore in few words; whereby, when ye read, ye may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ.)

In 1 Cor. 3: 10 Paul further writes:—

According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise masterbuilder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.

Paul had knowledge concerning the great work he was engaged in, and in multitudes of instances he assures us of that fact. Does he boast when giving these assurances? Is there just grounds for anyone to adversely criticize his assuring words and seek to throw discredit upon him and his ministrations because of them? If the dead Paul and Luke and others of their kind, should be spared captious criticism of their numerous and emphatic statements touching their knowledge and their authority in things concerning their ministerial work, should not living ministers, when doing a little of the same, be also spared? If Christian charity demand it in the former case, why not in the latter?

George Catlin, who traveled extensively and learned much concerning Indian character, asserted his knowledge in these words:—

I fearlessly assert to the world, and I defy contradiction, that the North American Indian is everywhere, in his native state, a highly moral and religious being, endowed by his Maker with an intuitive knowledge of some great author of his being and the universe, in dread of whose displeasure he constantly lives, with the apprehension before him of a future state where he expects to be rewarded or punished according to the merits he has gained or forfeited in this world. I have made this a subject of unceasing inquiry during all my travels.—Herald, 1893, page 736.

Who accuses Mr. Catlin of boasting when he thus asserts, repeatedly, his knowledge in the matter he is treating! If it be unjust to subject him to cynical criticism, is it just and charitable to find fault with me for doing far less in the way of asserting my opportunities and my study of church history!

If a man has no knowledge in the things of God, he cannot be Christ's servant. If he is Christ's servant he will have some knowledge, and he must be left at liberty to use it as his judgment may direct.

I have never attempted to tell "how little others know about this same history" in question. What I said on that point I here repeat:—

And is all this [history] to be denied the church by the immoderate haste of a conference, one fourth of whom had never read that history, and many of whom never saw one half, if any, of the Times and Seasons and Millennial Stars? Indeed, I candidly question whether thirty men and women in that conference ever read the history in question, and yet the conference was asked to decide that much of the "said history" is of extremely doubtful character.

In the above I simply stated that but a few persons in that conference had been privileged with having "read the history in question." It is probable the Presidency (the then editors) were and are fairly well qualified to judge in this matter, they having been intimately acquainted with the church from 1860 and before, and having knowledge that, from the very first, it was difficult to obtain the volumes in question, and very much more so for the past twenty years. It seemed to me then, it seems to me now, unjust, unfair, and very dangerous for people to vote on matters they are not informed upon. It is simply a leap in the dark. There were many present, as some afterwards assured us, who would not vote on the resolution condemning the church history in question, for the very good and proper reason that they knew little or nothing of said history; and some who voted against said history, afterwards said they, on reflection, saw they did unwisely.

The church can stand fiery outside trials; it can endure bitter persecution from its enemies; it can stand poverty and adversity; but it cannot stand continued innovations, nor can it afford to go back on its genuine authentic history. That would ruin it.

Further on Elder Lambert has this to say:—

For years there had been a growing dissatisfaction with this brother's views of church history, and the use he made of it. Finally, and without any collusion, the Twelve and Seventy framed resolutions in quorum capacity and reported their proceedings to the body.

It is well that this record shall be preserved. Time is telling, and will continue to tell, where the merit in this history matter lies. I am content to trust all to the just judgment of the Saints "when the mists clear away." I am aware that some parties have not been pleased with the history I have used in my articles, for it conflicted with their theories and practices; and I am also aware that many others were and are pleased with it, some of whom have pressed me to publish some of the editorials in pamphlet form, which I hope to do at no distant day, for the common good. What I have hitherto presented to the church has been done in the interests of the church, and much of it was done by the immediate leadings and promptings of the Holy Spirit, and very notably and fully so when collating, compiling, and writing matter found in my articles on the duties, responsibilities, and official powers and authority of the leading quorums of the church. Especially was this so when writing concerning the First Presidency, Bishopric, High Priests, and the High Council of the church. It was my privilege, and my duty as the second elder of the church and as an editor to so write. And besides that, the Holy Spirit, in revealing power, made it my duty to so write. Of this I humbly bear testimony as in the presence of the Lord, and shall trustfully await the future and final outcome. I have no fears as to final results, for the Lord will overrule all for the truth and the right.

President Smith and myself quoted copiously from church history when exposing and refuting the errors of Whitmerism, Hedrickism, Brighamism, etc., etc. For this we were commended freely and highly. I quoted it largely and effectively when refuting the errors of Elder Gurley; and when in 1875-6 Elder Briggs attacked the claims of prophecies in the Bible I used the facts of authentic history and refuted his errors. For all this I was heartily commended. But conditions seem to have materially changed with some of late on these matters when my quotations of history don't fit their theories. What was highly commendable in the one case is very condemnable in the other!

The editorials containing church history seemed to please many of the readers very much, for in 1887 commendations of the Herald had poured in from correspondents to such a degree that Elder Lambert took alarm and protested twice, using about four columns of space, against their publication. And to this I may add, that during the times President Smith and myself used church history freely in our work in the Herald, its circulation increased from 3,800 copies in January, 1885, to 4,525 in January, 1893, notwithstanding three other papers having been started during that time; viz., Autumn Leaves, Glad Tidings, and Zion's Ensign, either and all of which hindered a greater increase in circulation, notably the Ensign and Autumn Leaves. These are facts by which may be properly estimated the popular esteem in which the Herald was held from 1885 to 1893. To this may be added the fact that the circulation has fallen off over one hundred the last year.

Further on Elder Lambert says:—

Notwithstanding the strong statements found in the Advocate article, the history published by the Brighamites has been copiously presented to us "from 1885 to 1893," in the Herald, as valid and authentic history. It is true, however, (and right here there may be serious danger,) that we sometimes find a word or two inclosed in brackets which changes the leading historical statement and makes it conform to the view held by the writer. To illustrate: In Herald for April 15, 1893, article, "The Twelve and Seventy," page 227, the writer presents the official decision which Joseph Smith gave concerning the Quorum of the Twelve. But by introducing the little (?) word "no," in brackets, he makes him to say that the Twelve "are to preside over all the churches of the Saints among the Gentiles, where there is a [no] presidency established. In the revised Tullidge History, page 159, this word "no" does not occur, though, I believe, the brother was one of the revising committee!

I was not one of said revising committee. The brother is at fault in this as in many other of his statements. And further, I never intended to use the history published by the Brighamites without much care, and at no time when it seemed to conflict with the history published prior to the death of Joseph the Seer, until I first pointed out said conflict or inharmony. And as to the word "no" placed in brackets, I have this to say: I found twice in history published eight years before that quoted from the Millennial Star, where the word "no" instead of "a," is used in the same item of teaching by Joseph the Seer. Once in Times and Seasons, vol. 5: 714, where "An old man of Israel" writes, saying:—

I take an extract from President Joseph Smith's charge to the Twelve on the evening of the 27th of February, 1835:—They are the Twelve Apostles who are called to the office of a traveling high council; who are to preside over [not in] ALL the churches of the Saints among the Gentiles, where there is no presidency established; and they are to travel and preach among the Gentiles until the Lord commands them to go to the Jews. They are to hold the keys of this ministry, to unlock the door of the kingdom of heaven unto all nations, and to preach the gospel to every creature. This is the power, authority, and virtue of their apostleship.

Apostle John Taylor, then editor of the Times and Seasons, indorses this quotation in these words on page 711, same volume:—

For the communication of an "Old man of Israel," and the letter of Elder Addison Pratt from the islands of the Pacific Ocean, we bespeak a hearty welcome. They are genuine.

John Taylor was doubtless competent to speak on the said "extract," for the Twelve then held the Apostolic record, and the "History of Joseph Smith" in manuscript, having taken the latter with other things, from Joseph's private office soon after Joseph's death.

And added to the above is the published testimony of Wm. E. McLellin concerning the Twelve. Here is what he says, in Messenger and Advocate, edited by Samuel Bennett, and printed by E. Robinson, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, 1845, pp. 149, 150:—

In a conference in Clay county [Mo.], held on the 8th of July 1834, I was chosen to accompany President Smith to Ohio, where he then lived. On the 14th day of Feb., '35, a General Conference was called in Kirtland, during which that part of the revelation given in Fayette, N. Y., 1829, relative to the choosing of twelve apostles, was taken into consideration; and it was determined that the time had come for them to be chosen. I acted on that occasion as one of the secretaries of the conference, and being chosen I had to record my own name among the number of the Twelve. On the 27th of the same month [Feb.], in a conference Orson Hyde and myself were chosen to act as the secretaries of that quorum, and we were required to keep a record of the most important matters touching the ministry, etc., of those Apostles.

Now for the benefit of your readers I wish to quote some items from this Apostolic record kept by Hyde and myself. During the above council, President Smith prophesied that, "if we would be careful to keep such record, it would be one of the most interesting and important ones ever seen." During this interview he [Joseph Smith] proposed the question: "What importance is there attached to the calling of the Twelve Apostles, different from the other callings and offices of the church?" After some observations by others, Joseph Smith, in his official capacity, gave the following decision, viz., The Twelve are called to be a traveling high council (not stationary), to preside over all the churches of the Saints among the Gentiles, where there is no presidency established. They are to travel and preach among the Gentiles, until the Lord shall command them to go to the Jews. They are to hold the keys of this ministry—to unlock the door of the kingdom of heaven unto all nations, and preach the gospel unto every creature. This is the virtue, power, and authority of their apostleship. Amen.

Both of the above quotations teach that the Twelve are "to preside over [not in] all the churches of the Saints among the Gentiles, where there is no presidency established;" and these facts were published, as before seen, eight years before the same items of history were published in the Millennial Star in which we find the word "a" inserted where the word "no" should be. This is my explanation for placing the word "no" in brackets. Was my action safe? Was it in the interests of truth and right? Did I not thereby vindicate the church? Was it I who "changed" the genuine history? Was it I who by putting the word "no" in brackets led the Saints into "serious danger?" Did I not, rather, thereby expose historical perversion and protect the Saints against danger? I am heartily glad the foregoing questions have been raised, for discussion of them cannot fail of doing good.

Here it seems well to note, that the President presides over the United States but has no authority to preside in any of the States. So also, when branch or district organizations exist, only their regularly chosen officers have authority—official right—to preside in them.

Finding church history of such great value in exposing error and leading to unity in important ministerial matters I quote further. Here is what Apostle McLellan says:—

I wish to make one more quotation from the record of the Twelve. Kirtland, May 2, 1835, a grand council of all the presiding authorities of the whole church was assembled, Joseph Smith in the chair. After the council was opened, he arose and made many observations, and among them the following. Now I want all your readers who have any doubts respecting the duty, calling, or power of the Twelve to preside, to hearken. Joseph Smith's words as authority are often quoted by those who think the Twelve can legally preside in Nauvoo. Listen and I will give you his own words, taken verbatim as he delivered them, as Elder O. Hyde and myself placed them in the record of the Twelve, the original copy of which is now in my possession. But now for the sentiment, here it is: "The twelve apostles have no right to go into Zion, or any of its stakes, where there is a regular high council established and there undertake to regulate the matters pertaining thereto; but it is their duty to GO ABROAD and regulate and set in order all matters relative to the different branches of the church." One more sentence he uttered immediately following the above, viz., "No standing high council has authority to go into the churches abroad and regulate the matters thereof, for this belongs to the twelve."—Mess. and Advo. 1:150.

The sentiment in the foregoing quotation is the same as in the history in the Millennial Star, volume 15:261, but the wording is slightly different. The two testimonies published eight years before the historical items in question were printed in the Star, I deemed a sufficient reason for putting the word "no" in brackets, thereby suggesting, in a regular, usual way, what was and is the correct rendering of the text in question.

Another justification for my action is seen in these words of law:—

The Twelve and Seventy are traveling ministers and preachers of the gospel, to persuade men to obey the truth; the High Priests and Elders holding the same priesthood [not office] are the standing ministers of the church, having the watchcare of the membership and nurturing and sustaining them, under the direction and instruction of the Presidency and the Twelve. The Seventy when traveling by the voice of the church, or sent by the Twelve to minister the word where the Twelve cannot go, are in the powers of their ministration Apostles—those sent—and in meetings where no organization exists should preside, if no member of the Twelve or Presidency be present.—D. C. 120:3.

By this passage we are taught that, in meetings where an organization exists, these officers have no authority to preside on their own motion, but that the duly chosen officers of such organizations have, and that is precisely what was taught by the "Choice Seer," as we have seen. The principle that applies to the Seventy in these matters, applies to the Presidency and the Twelve. When organizations exist, they must be left to the care of their own officers until they need the ministrations of others, and even then such ministrations cannot be forced upon them, but must be had by consent of those ministered to.

Elder Lambert says:—

Paul nowhere instructed the saints to receive his teachings because of the position he held in the church which enabled him to know what the word meant.

Wrong again; for Paul in almost every epistle asserts his ministerial "position" and authority thus:—

"Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle" (Rom. 1:1); "Paul, called to be an apostle" (1 Cor. 1:1); "Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God" (2 Cor. 1:1); "Paul, an apostle" (Gal. 1:1) "Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God" (Eph. 1:1); "Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God" (Col. 1:1).

Paul also authoritatively commands thus after asserting his official position:—

For I verily, as absent in body, but present in spirit, have judged already, as though I were present, concerning him that hath so done this deed.—1 Cor. 5:3.

Again, after asserting his official "position," Paul says:—

But though we or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.—Gal. 1:8.

Peter, James, Jude, and others of Christ's servants, each when writing authoritatively to the Saints assert their official "position." Officers in civil governments do the very same thing in all their legal transactions. It therefore is not sin nor folly for Christ's ministers to assert, meekly, their official "position" when teaching or ministering when and where there seems to be a demand for it. We assert the "position" of our Lord, the prophets, the apostles and other ministers for Christ, as evidences that they knew, and were entitled to know, the correctness of their official teachings and doings. On the same principle we assert the official "position" of Joseph the Seer as evidence of the correctness of his ministerial teachings and doings. We assert the same for his successor, and for every other minister in his order and calling. And I am sorry indeed that any one should be offended thereby and oppose it. The Lord made Joseph the Seer the "head," and the "leader" of his church on earth. Therefore let him lead! The Lord called his Son Joseph to succeed him in leading and in teaching the church, and for that reason I have always said, Let Joseph, by the grace of God, lead! Let him act as the "head" of the church on earth! His official "position" *demand*s this! Let no person, directly, or indirectly, attempt to lead the leader God has appointed! Don't do it by preambles and resolutions; don't do it by any species of coercion or undue influence; but on the other hand support him by faith, confidence, prayers, and in every other godly way. His responsibilities are great and numerous, and he should have no obstructions cast in his way by perverse or by over zealous persons. His official teachings and ministrations should be first among the ministry and the Saints. Let this be religiously observed by all, and unity, peace, power, and great progress will come to the church. And while I write the Holy Spirit testifies, Yea, saith the Lord God, let my people hear and heed my servant Joseph, and so will joy and gladness and prosperity come to Zion and her children.

The Rev. Charles F. Goss of the Madison avenue (N. Y.) Presbyterian church believes that churchgoers will attend Sunday services through the summer if they have a chance. He has been preaching two sermons every Sunday, and he has been gratified to see the attendance increased with every service.

WHITE-POPPELWELL DISCUSSION.

Your readers, some at least, may be interested in learning how the White-Popplewell debate came out. It closed on the 16th inst. with a full house. The Saints never felt more jubilant, and prejudice melted away like snow before a summer's sun. It might be thought savoring of egotism for me to say much about the debate; however, I can say that I left the battle field feeling well and praising God for the triumph of his work. I left a small band of noble Saints there; the two Brn. Abraham and wives, who furnished us with a comfortable home while there, Bro. Devore and wife, with Bro. Moses Turpen and a few others, comprised the number. They will all be remembered for their kindness. I baptized one estimable young lady during the debate and held three preaching meetings three miles west after it. The Campbellites had announced a protracted meeting before debate commenced at the house where it was to be held, to commence the next night after it closed. This was to capture the situation. If ever people needed an effort to capture what they lost during the debate they need it. We left the people interested all around. The field is open as it never was before for a good work in that vicinity.

Joseph Smith's claim to prophetic calling was vindicated, his good character maintained, and the slanderous, vituperous allegations heaped upon him met and hurled at the feet of my opponent to his shame and chagrin. The Book of Mormon (second question) was sustained in its claims to divine origin far beyond my most sanguine expectations. I proved that the question dealt largely with an American nation long since extinct. They were the custodians of a book something like our Bible. This land once teemed with its millions of inhabitants; men of culture, who practiced the arts and sciences and wrote their history upon plates and tablets; showed that such men as Professor Short, Rev. S. D. Peet, Baldwin, Catherwood and Stephens, Josiah Priest, Boudinot, Colonel James Smith once a prisoner among the Indians, Rev. Mr. Gass, Professor Putman, and others in their voluminous antiquarian researches had noted these facts and borne testimony to them; thus corroborating the claims of the Book of Mormon which came to the world with its claims prior to these men's researches and finds. Elder Popplewell a few minutes before the first session upon the Book of Mormon produced a large canvas covering probably more than sixty square feet. This was tacked up back of the pulpit by his ministerial friends. While this was going on Popplewell stood by the stand with his head bent forward making efforts to suppress a laugh, thinking, "Now I have them cornered." I read his very thoughts, and while his people tittered and laughed over such a marvelous preparation to everlastingly down the Mormons, my whole being was moved upon by God's Holy Spirit, and I breathed a silent prayer and asked God to care for his work. God heard that prayer.

This canvas contained on the left side in large print the many peculiar names of men, towns, rivers, and divisions of land found in the Book of Mormon. Above this were found the names, such as are generally found in antiquarian books. I supposed an attempt would be made to show a clash in names. But he went to sea before he "got there." One sickly inference was all that was attempted on that side of his sheet. The more central part of the sheet contained a fine map drawing of North and South America, the Amazon River being plainly marked, but the Magdalena River did not appear. This was a trick to try and make a clash in the Book of Mormon on pages 267, 319, and 321, aiming to show that the Amazon River was the river Sidon spoken of in the Book of Mormon.

The Amazon River running east and the Book of Mormon stating that part of the army was on the west and part on the east of the river Sidon, whereas the river Sidon is the Magdalena River and runs north. While I was on the floor speaking Popplewell cried out, "Tell how the army could be on the east and west of the river Sidon," and at the same time pointing to the Amazon River. I retorted by telling him I dared him to take that position and I would show him up as I did at the Rexford debate. He wilted, never once referring to it. We supposed this map would be used to show a conflict in the division of land, as attempted in Rev. Lamb's book, which book my opponent used extensively. But the map "hung on the wall" for better use as will appear further along.

On the right and at the top was an attempt to reproduce the hieroglyphic writings found upon the paper that Joseph Smith sent by the hand of Martin Harris to Prof. Anthon of New York. Below this was the supposed Maya alphabet, as found in Rev. Lamb's Golden Bible. This certainly was a grand exhibition and afforded relief to the curious and lovers of the marvelous. I suppose this Maya alphabet was to be used against the hieroglyphics that Mr. Harris carried to Prof. Anthon, but Mr. Popplewell's theories melted away before truth and logic so fast that he never made such an attempt and rarely referred to the sheet at all, though it hung on the wall during the canvass of the whole question. The whole thing was right to my hand and at the close of that question I thanked Mr. Popplewell for his kindness in taking so much pains with such an outlay of expense for my accommodation; that if he had only named it I would have given him a dollar for the use of it. I produced the photographic view of the famous "sandstone tablet," and made a public and critical examination and comparison of the hieroglyphics found upon it, with that which Joseph Smith copied from the Book of Mormon plates in February, 1828, and sent to Professor Anthon, of New York, by the hand of Martin Harris and here reproduced by Mr. Popplewell upon his hanging canvas. I asked that a committee be appointed to examine my findings if there were any doubts lingering in the minds of any regarding the fairness of my examination.

My examination brought forth the following facts: The first letter or hieroglyphic found upon this "sandstone tablet" is found three times in the Book of Mormon manuscript, as here produced by Mr. Popplewell, upon his canvas. The second letter is found five times; the third once; the fourth five times; the fifth once; the sixth does not appear; the seventh four times with a shadow of variation; the eighth once, and five other times with a shadow of variance; the ninth once with a slight difference; the tenth not found on manuscript; the eleventh once, but opening declining slightly; the twelfth six times, but in five of these the top is a little sharper; the thirteenth once, but lacking the two dots found on either side.

The fact of this Book of Mormon manuscript being copied by Joseph Smith from the Book of Mormon plates in the State of Pennsylvania, in February, 1828, and this "sandstone tablet" being found by other hands in another State, and nearly one half century later, with many of its symbols, letters, or hieroglyphics agreeing with that of the Book of Mormon manuscript was an argument in favor of the divine authenticity of the Book of Mormon that my opponent never attempted to answer. Friends told me afterwards that they heard it talked of among the people that such evidence as that was certainly unanswerable.

There was a spirited fight upon the statement made in the Book of Mormon in regard to the gathering of the Jews after the book would come forth. Here my opponent made a bitter fight, claiming that the Jews would never gather, and even denying the Rothschild's being Jews, or any identity of a Jew now being found upon the earth. I read the Book of Mormon pages 106, 107: "And now, I would prophesy somewhat more concerning the Jews and the Gentiles. For after the book of which I have spoken shall come forth, and be written unto the Gentiles, and sealed up again unto the Lord, there shall be many which shall believe the words which are written; and they shall carry them forth unto the remnant of our seed. . . . And it shall come to pass that the Jews which are scattered, also shall begin to believe in Christ: and they shall begin to gather in upon the face of the land; and as many as shall believe in Christ, shall also become a delightful people."

In support of this I read the following from the "Hand of God in History" by Rev. Hollis Read, A. M., published in 1870. Page 348. "There is much at present in their civil condition that indicates the returning favor of Heaven. Nothing decisive or permanent was done to remove the disabilities of the Jews till the beginning of the present century. . . . In England, a single ray of light darted above their horizon, but was soon extinguished. An act passed in Parliament (1753), in favor of the Jewish emancipation, but was repealed the next year; and not till the year 1830 was the question renewed, and then only to be lost. Yet in the same year a bill in their favor was carried in France."

On page 352, he says: "Fifty years ago every Jew in the Turkish Empire might have been slaughtered, and no great sensation produced anywhere. But now, so changed is public feelings towards the Jews that let the foot of oppression attempt to crush them, or the bloody mouth of persecution to devour them, and ten thousand voices are raised in one general remonstrance."

"The 'pillar of cloud and of fire,' has long turned its dark side towards them, and God has treated them as aliens and enemies; and now that the light side is beginning to shine on them, we may indulge the delightful hope that God's former love is about to return. . . . Recent religious and intellectual movements among them indicate that the day of their redemption is near. The Jewish mind is everywhere awake. Never was there among them such a spirit of inquiry. A few facts will illustrate. . . . Some are anxiously looking for the speedy restoration of their nation to their beloved Palestine; others expect the immediate advent of the Messiah; others doubt whether he be not already come."—P. 353.

"The late Prussian Ambassador at the court of Rome, declared that 'throughout the vast dominion of Germany and Poland, there is a general movement of inquiry, and a long-expected abroad, that something will take place to restore them to the land of their fathers.' Rev. T. Grimshawe says; 'A vast number of Jews are preparing to emigrate from Germany and Poland to settle in Palestine; while throughout the whole of Europe and Asia a general expectation is raised among them that the time of their deliverance in drawing near. Throughout Italy the same uneasiness and expectation may be observed.' This movement of the Jews towards Palestine, whatever may be thought of it as an evidence of a literal restoration, is at least indicative of a state of mind not to be overlooked in our present discussion."—P. 356.

"Rev. Mr. Besson, a converted Jew and missionary in Posen, and late candidate for the Bishopric in Jerusalem; 'I am more than ever,' says he, 'impressed, that the Jews are hastening to a great crisis. It must be evident to any common observer that there is a great movement among them. This wonderful people, who for eighteen hundred years remained unaltered, have undergone a marvelous revolution within the last forty years, especially within the last twenty.'—P. 357.

"Rev. R. H. Hershall, by birth and honor a Jew, having extensively visited his brethren in Europe and Asia, and heard in their synagogues, their confessions of sin and their earnest cries unto the Lord in the land of their dispersion, says:—

"I found a mighty change in their minds and feelings in regard to the nearness of the time of their deliverance. Some assigned one reason, some another, but all agreed in thinking the time is at hand."—P. 360.

Much valuable and later evidence could have been produced but I brought this to show how soon after the Book of Mormon came forth these Jewish people commenced to be dissatisfied with their surroundings and their religion, and a growing tendency was to gather back to the land of their fathers and inquire whether the Messiah be not already come. In the fulfillment of the predictions of the Book of Mormon may we not soon expect that the sons and daughters of Judah will take their harps from the willows, and in the sweet lays of their own poet, sing:—

"Lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone;
The flowers appear on the earth;
The time of the singing of birds is come,
And the voice of the turtle is heard in our land."

The objections, "born at Jerusalem," "hole in the top and hole in the bottom," Christ being called God, etc., were readily answered. My opponent thought he would make fun for the boys if for no one else by reading the first verse of Nephi in a sing-song way, and sporting over the frequent repetition of "I" and "my." The laugh so completely went back on him when I read in the same tone Ezekiel 43: 11 and showed that the Bible was head and shoulders ahead of the Book of Mormon for "funny things" to make boys laugh. To offset this Mr. Popplewell arose with his Bible in his left hand and brought his right hand down with a slam on it, stating, "We do not believe that King James' translation of the Bible is the inspired word of God, and they do accept the Book of Mormon as inspired." Poor fellow, this was a thorn in his side during the rest of the debate.

The third proposition was our church. I have not the time, even if space would permit, to give a synopsis of the argument.

The fourth and last question was, "Do the Holy Scriptures teach that the Church of Christ (commonly called Campbellites) is in harmony with the New Testament church in organization, doctrine, and practice." My opponent in his first affirmative tried to impress upon the minds of the people that they were not Campbellites, as there had been an apostasy, and those believing in the practice of holding suppers, fairs, etc., had gone astray. That the words "commonly called Campbellites" were in parentheses and had no connection with the question. The question was complete by leaving it out; and the same in Elder White's question, "commonly called Mormons." They did not call themselves Mormons, and as for him nicknaming anybody, his father had always taught him that it was very low down in anyone to nickname. Mr. P. had certainly forgotten himself here, as his tirade was in unbecoming terms upon the name "Mormon." However, the storm was just gathering while he so cunningly poured in oiled words upon the words "Campbellites" and "Mormon" to evade the origin of his church with the Campbellites. His eye caught mine and I raised my head and smiled. He saw that I was onto his trick and had taken in the situation. Gracious! a maniac could scarcely have surpassed his raving. He entirely forgot his slick fifteen minutes speech over the nicknames that appeared in parentheses and that were foreign to the questions. Had I been of the timid and faint-hearted kind, and never have been there before, I do not know but I would have shown the white feather and asked upon what terms I could surrender. But let it be told in Gath and sounded in the valleys of Ajalon, that our God is Elijah's God; our cause is God's cause; our defense is God's defense, when at all humble and faithful to true and primitive Mormonism.

My second speech brought the fire; the mill was grinding too fine, and I was instantly called to order. Mr. P. had been very explicit in informing the people that none of their ministry or laity claimed any degree of inspiration. "None were inspired like these Mormons claimed." Inspiration had forever ceased at the death of John the Revelator. None but impostors, dupes, and fanatics claimed inspiration since the days of John. His church claimed that they had apostles and prophets in it, and they were now prophesying to them through their word—in the Bible. He wanted the people to remember that the question said the "Church of Christ" and not "Campbellite Church." His church—the Church of Christ—commenced in the days of Christ and the apostles; was the Mount Zion of Jerusalem, and the words "Campbellite Church" were a misnomer.

My first objection was: They dethrone Christ as head of the church and substitute Campbell. O, My! They wanted peace but it was not my piece that they cared for at this juncture. Mr. P. took the floor and I took my seat to await the decision of the moderators. They were asked to rule the words "Campbellite Church" out of order; he wanted a ruling that the name "Campbell" and his "writings" could not be introduced in the debate of this question.

For fifteen minutes the horizon was darkened with Mr. P.'s logic (?) and that of his moderator and ministerial "helps," but we did not scare at their concocted plan to break us down. During the fusillade, women shook their fists in a threatening manner and one man waved his hat and made an exit, acting the part of a wise man because his temper was about getting away with him. Others cried out: "Wipe the word Campbellite out if you can't stand it." (The question was written on the blackboard.) The chairman not being present that night and the two moderators disagreeing, Mr. Popplewell wanted to leave it to the house. This I objected to (although there was an abundance of evidence that the vote would have been largely on my side), upon the grounds that Mr. Popplewell had written the question himself and signed his name to it with his own hand, and I was determined to hold him to the question without any vote either for or against its change. If Mr. Popplewell was unable to withstand my argument of his church having its origin in Ohio and Pennsylvania with Campbell as its originator without a revelation from God, angel, or Holy Ghost, hence making Campbell its father and head in place of Jesus the Christ,—having its Jerusalem for origin in Ohio and Pennsylvania instead of Jerusalem of Pentecost day, let him arise and acknowledge it before this people and then I will agree to have the words "commonly called Campbellites" erased from the question. Finally I got the floor without any vote being taken. In honor to our people they kept their seats and held their peace and trusted their course to my moderator and myself. The Campbellites here lost their last grip; in place of crushing us as they intended, they crushed themselves.

I took the position that Campbell and others brought their church into existence without a single command from God, angels, or Holy Ghost, and formed it as unskillfully as did the boy his rude picture on the blackboard: after the boy had exhausted his skill on his supposed picture he stepped back from the board and asked his admirers if they would name the animal; the people gazed and to save their lives they could not recognize a single outline of any animal. The boy was not to be beat in any such way, and readily stepped to the board and wrote in large letters over his unskillful outlining, "a horse." Campbell, like the boy without a word from the great Architect, attempted to restore—build—the Church of God and flourishes it to the world with an unskillful outline of uninspired officials called "elders and deacons" and then to satisfy his admirers he pleased to write its name "The Church of Christ." I argued that it would be just as reasonable, logical, and scriptural for me to write the word "boy" upon a scrap of paper and then post it upon the stove standing before me and make an argument that the lifeless body of the stove was a living boy.

That Campbell was the sole originator of this so-called Church of Christ I read from the writings of Elder W. T. Moore, one of their leading evangelists now in England. Speaking of Mr. Campbell as an organizer he says:—

"In the short space of forty years the little band of disciples which he organized, upon the 'Bible and Bible alone,' [note the fact—not a word from God, angel, or Holy Ghost commanding such an organization] has grown to be one of the most powerful religious bodies in all the land. . . . But so far as human instrumentality was concerned, [Will this Campbellite church please point us to one single hint or whisper of a divine command from God, that any being higher than the instrumentality of Mr. Campbell had a voice in organizing this so-called Church of Christ?] it cannot be denied that Campbell was the man who conceived, organized, and made successful the present reformation."

The fact of Mr. Campbell and my opponent denying every means of a divine revelation from God, logically forces Mr. Campbell to father this whole concern as a creature of his own imaginary brain. Further; Mr. Charles V. Segor, a leading disciple of Campbell, in his "Life of Campbell," p. 25, says:—

"Alexander Campbell soon became chiefly and prominently known as the RECOGNIZED HEAD of a new religious movement, the purpose of which was to restore primitive Christianity in all of its simplicity and beauty."

Alexander Campbell said in Millennial Harbinger, volume 2, page 300:—

"The cause which we plead was not plead by Stone or anyone else twenty years ago."

Certainly if anyone should know the age of this child it would be its father and head—Campbell. Does this look like this child had its origin at Jerusalem and on the day of Pentecost? Shocking!

Again:—

"After the Baptists had in the year 1827 declared non-fellowship with the brethren of the Reformation, thus by constraint and not by choice, they were obliged to form societies out of those communities that split upon the ground of adherence to the apostles' doctrine."—A. Campbell in Rel. Enc., p. 463.

This gives no uncertain sound. Campbell tells when, and just how his church was formed. The "Baptists" "declared non-fellowship with the brethren"—excluded them in the year 1827 from their ranks. Who are these bad Baptists that gave birth to these good children and forced them out into the cold world to "organize" and "restore primitive Christianity" with Campbell at its head without a revelation from God, angel, or Holy Ghost?

Campbell says in Christian Baptism p. 15:—

"A reformation of Popery was attempted in Europe full three centuries ago. It ended in a Protestant hierarchy, and swarms of dissenters. Protestantism has been reformed into Presbyterianism, that into Congregationalism, and that into Baptistism, etc."

All is a "relic of Popery," as he claims.

Campbell was once a Presbyterian. Dissatisfaction arose, and on June 12, 1812, the Rev. Mr. Luce baptized him into the Baptist Church. Again dissatisfaction arose and the Baptists "declared nonfellowship" with Campbell and his admirers, and the old hive "swarmed" again; another "relic of Popery" makes its appearance,—not at Jerusalem headed by Christ,—but this time in Pennsylvania, headed by Campbell. This church leader makes his proclamation, "No more revelation from God." The day for inspired dreams, visions, and impressions are past. (See History of Disciples, p. 50.) "Prophecies fail, tongues cease, and knowledge vanishes away." Christ's "excellent way" eclipsed! No more inspired men needed; Holy Ghost forever must keep silent! Christ the great communicative Head must hold his peace upon earth! Campbell's more excellent way is now fully introduced. James' admonition (1: 5.) and Christ's (Matt. 16: 18) hung on the willow tree. Elder Jas. F. Tomson says in Mr. Popplewell's Primitive Christian, vol. 2, p. 8, speaking of Elder Logan, a Baptist minister:—

"I was now glad to inform them that Elder Logan was about converted; and at the same rate of advancement he was making since last evening that he would soon be a member of the Church of Christ [Campbell's "more excellent way"]—a divine institution—leaving a human institution which was unauthorized by God's inspired word.

Here we have the riddle solved; an immaculate child from a maculate mother! Alexander Campbell says in his "Christian System," page 8:—

"We withdraw from the ranks of the sects."

Elder Charles L. Loos, one of the brightest lights in their ranks, says:—

"It was in 1828. . . . This date may be regarded, for convenience' sake, as the historical beginning of the separate existence of the congregations that had entered into this reformatory movement. This refers especially to the work inaugurated by the Campbells, Scott, and others with them."—Christian Evangelist for October 6, 1892.

In the same organ for November 2, 1893, the Editor, J. H. Garrison, while writing upon the subject, "Disciples of Christ," says:—

"The religious body most generally designated by this name, though often in the South and West called also the "Christian Church," or "Church of Christ," had its origin in the western part of Pennsylvania, in the early part of the present century, under the labors of Thomas and Alexander Campbell. Hence they have sometimes been called Campbellites. . . . He [Alexander Campbell] threw himself heartily into the new movement, and by his ability, learning, and force of character soon became its recognized leader. It was not the intention of the Campbells at first to form a distinct religious body. . . . They found themselves compelled by the necessities of the case, to assume an independent position. Accordingly the Brush Run church was organized on the 4th of May, 1811, being the first congregation formed by the new movement. . . . The growth of the Disciples has been phenomenal, beginning with a single congregation of about thirty members in 1811."

Does this look like they had their origin at Jerusalem? yet that is the position nine out of ten will take when in a debate with the Saints.

I branded this so-called "Church of Christ" as the maculate granddaughter of the old mother of Revelation 17: 5, and wrote upon her brow her father's name, "Campbell;" and read her pedigree; not from the records of Jerusalem, but from their own acknowledged authors and works. This was the reason why I was called to order, and my fifteen minutes was spent in a hot contest with these disciples of Campbell, they trying to eliminate "Campbellite" and Campbell's writings from being used in the debate. Why should these disciples of Campbell's church deny their records? Why cannot they act the part of honorable disputants when affirming their church in harmony with the New Testament church? These are questions to be considered by all lovers of truth—honorable men and women who are seeking for a home among the so-called religious sects.

Elder Popplewell finally took a position that "The Church of Christ" (commonly called Campbellites) was the "more excellent way" spoken of by Paul in 1 Corinthians 12: 31.

The Church of Christ organized in the days of Christ and the apostles was the "excellent way." This was prominently paraded upon the blackboard, and every gun in his vocabulary placed in its defense. On this we ended our fight.

I placed on the blackboard, in juxtaposition to his, a diagram, which is partly reproduced here for the benefit of others who may have to meet the same kind of argument:—

ORIGIN OF CAMPBELL'S CHURCH; HIS "MORE EXCELLENT WAY."

Origin.—Here I quoted the different authors that have been introduced in the body of this article regarding the origin of Campbell's church.

Officers.—Elders and Deacons.

Their Authority to Administer God's Ordinances.—Mr. Stone, one of their reputed heads, says: "Some time after the new organization had been inaugurated, he became dissatisfied with his infant sprinkling; the brethren, elders, and teachers came together on the subject, for we had agreed previously with each other to act in concert and not to adventure anything new without advice from one another. At this meeting we took up the matter in a brotherly spirit, and concluded that every brother and sister should act freely and according to their conviction of right, and that we should cultivate the long-neglected grace of forbearance towards each other: those who were immersed should not despise those who were sprinkled, and vice versa. Now the question arose, Who will baptize us?"

"The Baptists would not, unless we would unite with them, and there were no elders among us who had been immersed. It was finally concluded among us, that if we had authority to preach, we had authority to baptize. The work then commenced. The preachers baptized one another, and crowds came and were also baptized."

Again: "But who would have thought it remained for any so late as 1827, to restore to the world the manner—the private manner—of administering to mankind the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, or which of you, brethren, would have thought, two years ago, of men coming from forty to a hundred and twenty miles to the ministers of the Mahoning churches for baptism! Yet these things have actually occurred; and who cannot see, that, by the blessings of God, the ancient gospel and ancient order of the church must prevail to the certain abolition of all those contumacious sects which now so woefully afflict mankind?"—Hayden's Hist. of Disciples, p. 173.

ORIGIN OF CHRIST'S CHURCH; "THE EXCELLENT WAY."

Origin.—"I will build my church."—Matt. 16: 18.

OFFICERS.

Twelve Apostles.—"And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles; Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew, Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor."—Luke 6: 12-16.

"Seventy.—"After these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come. Therefore said he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest. Go your ways: behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves. Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes: and salute no man by the way. And into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace be to this house. And if the son of peace be there, your peace shall rest upon it: if not, it shall turn to you again."—Luke 10: 1-6.

Elders.—"And when they had ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed."—Acts 14: 23.

Bishops.—"This is a true saying, If a man desire the office of a bishop, he desireth a good work."—1 Tim. 3: 1.

Teachers.—"And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers."—Eph. 4: 11.

Deacons.—"Let the deacons be the husbands of one wife, ruling their children and their own houses well."—1 Tim. 3: 12.

We ask, Who authorized all of this? "The people met in council." A decision was reached: "If we have AUTHORITY to preach, we have authority to baptize!" Here we have the corner stone of Campbell's "more excellent way"—the great fabric built upon an "if"! Not a word from God, angel, Holy Ghost, or Bible authorizing it. Nothing daunted—sword in hand to demolish these "contumacious sects"!

How fitting are Paul's words to Timothy here:—

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents [who is more disobedient than is this child to its parent, the Baptist Church?], unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away."—2 Tim. 3: 1-5.

Who is it that answers to every word and sentence of this prediction made by Paul? Let them that know, answer.

We charitably warned Mr. Popplewell in our closing speech of what Jude said of men in the "last time":—

"How that they told you there should be mockers in the last time, who should walk after their own ungodly lusts. These be they who separate themselves, sensual, having not the Spirit." Also of Paul's admonition:—

"Let no man beguile you of your reward in a voluntary humility and worshipping of angels, intruding into those things which he hath not seen, vainly puffed up by his fleshly mind, and not holding the head [Christ], from which all the body [Church] by joints [apostles, prophets, evangelists, teachers, bishops, deacons, etc. Eph. 4] and bands having nourishment [gifts of the Holy Spirit] ministered [to them by God through the Holy Spirit], and knit together, increase with the increase of God."—Col. 2: 18, 19.

I am reminded that the Herald is not alone for one man, and this article has been lengthened away beyond my expectations.

CALLED AND ORDAINED.

The apostles.—"Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain; that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you."—John 15: 16.

"And they prayed, and said, Thou, Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen, that he may take part of this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place. And they gave forth their lots; and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apostles."—Acts 1: 24-26.

"Now there were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers; as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. As they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. And when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away."—Acts 13: 1-3.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The Chronicle says that both the Queen and the Prince of Wales are strongly and even nervously opposed to Lord Salisbury's attitude both in regard to the local government and the employers' liability bills. The Chronicle adds that the reigning family has always had a keen and pertinent sense of its own interests and it is not the first time that it has exerted its influence to prevent the peers from entering into a conflict which might end in a total readjustment of the Constitution.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The House of Commons to-day by a vote of 212 to 161 rejected Lord Salisbury's new amendment in the House of Lords to the parish councils bill, enabling parishes of between 200 to 500 inhabitants to dispense with parish councils. The House also adopted, by a vote of 196 to 139, Mr. Gladstone's motion to reject Lord Salisbury's amendment regarding the proportion of elective trustees in the parish charities, Lord Salisbury having succeeded in having carried by the Lords a motion to restrict the proportion to one third.

Afterwards the House agreed to Sir William Vernon Harcourt's compromise that the restriction of the proportion of elective trustees to one third should be optional and not obligatory. After another minor amendment of the House of Lords to the parish councils bill had been compromised the Commons adjourned until Thursday.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The political world is once more greatly agitated by renewed rumors to the effect that Mr. Gladstone intends to retire from office. Of course the frequency with which these reports have been circulated of late has done much to discount any effect which they might have.

The Radicals are much disappointed that Gladstone does not initiate a more aggressive movement for the abolition of the House of Lords. They care little for employers' liability, or little in comparison with their campaign against the Lords. What they wanted most and first of all was a fighting speech from Mr. Gladstone against the hated House. He would not make it. He at least is not governed by mere passion or blind fury. He is not the man to make a strong speech on a weak motion or to sound the trumpet for a charge when he knows that he must draw off his forces.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Advices from the west coast of Africa tell of an encounter between a British naval force and slave-traders in which three British officers and ten men were killed. The British force, seems to have marched inland and to have been led into an ambush, for fire was suddenly opened upon it from all sides, and the sailors were routed before they were able to make any effective use of the machine guns. The latest dispatch from Bathurst says the marines landed from the warships, and a detachment from a West India regiment are still missing, and fears are entertained for their safety. On the arrival of the news at Bathurst the war vessels Aviso and Alecto were dispatched to the scene of the disaster. Three hundred men of a West India regiment are expected at Bathurst and the expedition against the slave dealers will be resumed immediately upon the arrival of these soldiers.

MOSCOW, Feb. 27.—A sensational story is current in military circles here that a fight has taken place on the Russo-German frontier between a detachment of the Russian dragoons and a number of Prussian Uhlans. Several are reported to have been killed on both sides. The Russian officers in this city who have been questioned on the subject decline to specify what either of the regiments are reported to have suffered, saying they do not wish to cause international complications. The fracas arose out of the fact, it is reported, that Prussian Uhlans were using the Russian eagle, fixed to a frontier post, as a target.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Feb. 24.—Ecuador has accepted Peru's proposal for the arrangement of the boundary question. This averts the threatened war.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 27.—Many contradictory rumors have been in circulation in regard to the happenings recently at Bahia. These rumors are set at rest to-day by the United States Consul at Bahia, R. P. McDaniel, who telegraphs that all is quiet at Bahia and that President Peixoto's fleet is still in that harbor. The rebel warship Tamandare is preparing to put to sea on some unknown mission. The election of March 1 seems to attract little attention here, and the general opinion seems to be that the government candidates will win wherever the government rules supreme.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.—Acting Secretary of State Uhl has received a cablegram from the United States Minister at Rio saying it is reported there that the insurgents have captured Lapa. This is supposed to mean the Town of Sapo, eight miles below Desterro. The minister also cables that the government has extended the state of siege at Rio until the 28th inst.

LA LIBERTAD, Salvador, Feb. 25.—Orders have been sent by Gen. Policarpo Bonilla, who is now supreme in Honduras, to all his forces and to all officials of the overturned government to pursue the conquered President Vasquez. When Vasquez fled from his Capital, Tegucigalpa, last Friday he took the La Paterique road to San Antonio or Reitoca, on the Salvadoran frontier. His escape seems almost impossible, and Bonilla has promised to have him shot to death.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Feb. 27.—Policarpo Bonilla's government has been installed amid great rejoicing. Bonilla has declared a general amnesty and promises a fair election.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—A violent hurricane passed near Mauritius Thursday, but its effects were only partly felt on the island. A train of nine carriages, while passing over the Port Louis bridge on the Midland line, was blown into the river and completely wrecked. Five of the passengers were killed and ten injured. All the people killed were railroad officials.

POMEROY, O., Feb. 26.—Eighteen inches of snow has fallen since yesterday and it is still snowing. Business is at a standstill. Fears are entertained of a repetition of the flood in the Ohio Valley of ten years ago.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—For variety and violence the weather in this region on yesterday has broken the record. There was wind—bleak, biting wind—followed by sleet that beat down furiously. Then came snow, and a blizzard snow. The wind began Sunday night. The mercury had been falling during the day previous, and the prophets said it meant snow, and lots of it. The storm was confined to the New England, Southern, and Eastern States. The wind, both morning and evening, was blowing at the rate of from forty to fifty miles an hour, and near night increased in velocity. In the morning six and one half inches of snow had fallen. This was increased to eight inches before nightfall. Further south fully a foot of snow fell.

VIENNA, Feb. 26.—A riotous demonstration of the unemployed took place here to-day. A meeting of the people out of work was held at which about 1,000 were present. The unemployed after listening to several fiery addresses upon the part of their leaders became uproarious and many of them afterwards attempted to march through the streets singing revolutionary songs. Eventually the police, who were trying to quell the disturbance, were reinforced by a strong detachment of mounted police and the latter charged upon the rioters and dispersed them.

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—Emperor William, in his speech at the annual dinner of the Brandenburg Diet Saturday evening, referring to the great Electors, said the fact that they were enabled to accomplish so much was due to the mutual confidence between ruler and people and above all to the knowledge that the ruling house of Hohenzollern was animated by a high sense of duty, derived from the conviction that it was only answerable to God and to its own conscience.

MUNCIE, Ind., Feb. 25.—The articles of association of the Muncie Society of Spiritualists were filed yesterday with County Recorder Harrington. The articles set forth the principles of the society, the first of which is that "the largest growth and the greatest development are attained by the union and communion of those of kindred belief." The creed and belief of the Spiritualists are contained in the articles of association as follows: "That there is no death, the spirit is immortal and eternally progressive; that spirit can return and commune with mortals through mediumship is an accepted fact; that individual moral responsibility is recognized." The seal of the society will consist of the name around a sunflower, signifying "sunshine and light of truth." The articles state that membership is open to any person of good moral character, indorsing the belief in spiritual communication. The society begins its career with seventy-four members, comprising the prominent spiritualistic believers of the city.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—The feature of the Methodist ministers' meeting yesterday morning was an address by Thomas Kane, the publisher, on the subject of tithing as a systematic and just way of contributing to benevolent objects.

On a report from a committee the Presbyterian Churches of New York City, through their deacons, will provide for their own poor, leaving other denominations to look after needy ones of their own churches. The non-church-goers are to be cared for by the undenominational and secular beneficial societies.

Another section of the Agricultural Building at the World's Fair was destroyed by fire yesterday. The crowning feature of the building, its graceful dome, fell in a heap of ruins into the center of the structure, and now scarcely anything remains of the once beautiful Diana-crowned edifice but scarred walls and blackened pillars. Again the source of the flames is ascribed to the incendiary's torch, though Columbian Guards or South Park police seem powerless to find the offenders and bring them to justice.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 27.—A Parkhurst movement was inaugurated in this city last night at a meeting of leading citizens. The meeting was so secret that nothing came to light regarding it until to-day. The idea is to either revive the old citizen's committee of fifty-five of two years ago, or to incorporate the good elements of that movement in a new organization which shall have for its object the emphasizing of the moral and law-abiding side of city life and the securing of city officials who will strictly enforce the laws. The movement has been organized on the lines laid down at the recent meeting of the National Municipal Reform Association in Philadelphia, which was an outgrowth of the Parkhurst movement in New York City. It was decided to appoint a committee of two from each ward to advise with the old Citizen's committee of fifty-five, and report to a meeting to be held in two weeks. It will then be determined whether to unite with and revise that old committee or to begin anew without old entanglements. This is to be an auxiliary of the national movement and similar to those being organized in other cities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 26.—It is the purpose of the Senate committee on Foreign Relations to take up Senator Morgan's bill for the reorganization of the Nicaragua Canal company during the present session. Senators Morgan and Frye are both known to be anxious to promote this enterprise. It is understood the President is convinced of the importance of the canal and that Secretary is also in accord with Senator Morhis subject. The publication of the any taken by this commission in the an investigation contains many allu-the canal brought out by quesions asked by these Senators to demonstrate the importance of controlling the islands in case the canal should be built and to show the dependence of one interest on the other.

ALBANY, New York, Feb. 27.—Senator
Coggeshall struck at the frisky college boy to-day by introducing a bill imposing a fine of from $10 to $100 or imprisonment of thirty days to one year on all persons who engage or aid in hazing, and making disfigurement from hazing mayhem, punishable by from three to fifteen years' imprisonment.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 27.—The National Executive Board of United Mine Workers met in special session to-day at the headquarters in this city to consider the serious condition of the mining interest in the country. The condition of miners in Ohio is deplorable, and unless something is done to relieve their distress and suffering, the result will be fearful. It is estimated that fully 15,000 miners are out of employment and there is no prospect of work.

The Rev. A. J. Warner has called a convention of negroes at Birmingham, Alabama, for March 21. The object is to discuss the general emigration of the race to Africa.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 27.—The steamer Rio Janeiro, from China and Japan, brings advices that smallpox is ravaging Nagasauki,
Japan, the disease being unusually fatal.

New York City will solve the transit problem by adding a second story to its elevated railway system.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The reports that Mr.
Gladstone has resigned will not down, and,
despite denials, the fact that he visited the Queen to-day is taken as evidence of the truth of the persistent rumors. Mr. Littleton, his secretary stated that the situation of affairs was the same as when the much discussed Biarritz dispatch was sent concerning his resignation.

The Edinburg Evening News to-day repeats emphatically that Mr. Gladstone has resigned and that the Premiership has been offered to Lord Rosebery.

Mr. Gladstone is understood to have made a proposal to his colleagues to revive the home rule question in the shape of a resolution pledging the House of Commons to deal with home rule for Ireland at the following session of Parliament. This proposal is said not to have found favor with the Cabinet Ministers.

Striking miners attacked other miners at work in the Kanawha Valley, near Eagle, West Virginia. A battle ensued in which hundreds, mostly armed, took part. One of the attacking party was killed, others will die, and many were injured. The fighting continues; troops have been sent to suppress the reign of terror that has ensued.

The Governor of New York has signed the State bill that provides for the consolidation of New York, Brooklyn, and adjacent municipalities under the name of the City of New York. The enactment will be submitted to popular vote.

Siegel Cooper & Co., the large Chicago retail firm, has adopted the profit sharing plan with its employees.

The Independent of Dublin accepts the reports of Mr. Gladstone's retirement as meaning that the movement in favor of home rule will be dropped. The Freeman's Journal party will continue to insist that the settlement of the Irish question be the controlling aim of whatever ministry governs.

The House of Lords to-day by a vote of 60 to 55 refused to accept the House of Commons' rejection of Lord Salisbury's amendment to the parish council's bill, enabling small parishes to dispense with councils if they numbered less than 200 to 500 inhabitants. On the other hand the Peers offered a compromise amendment.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 28.—The great naval battle, which President Peixoto hopes will end Admiral Mello's revolution, is expected to take place to-morrow. Admiral Benham has gone outside the harbor with his flagship, the cruiser New York, and has anchored in an advantageous position in order to witness the engagement. The elections for President and members of Congress will take place to-morrow. Indications are that they will pass off quietly.

Anarchists are active in London, Prague, and Paris. Bombs are being found and arrests are frequent.

SAN SALVADOR, Feb. 28.—Vice President
Antonio Ezeta met ex-President Vasquez of Honduras on the frontier and brought him to this capital.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 28.—A South American recently traveling through Central America reports that one consequence of the perpetual revolutions, which are demoralizing trade and nearly ruining agriculture, is an increasing sentiment among property-owners in favor of annexation to the United States.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 1.—The striking miners 1,500 strong rallied in the vicinity of Eagle, the scene of the late battle, with the intention of driving out the miners at work, but dispersed on the arrival of State militia. Troops are guarding mines at various points.

LONDON, March 1.—The Pall Mall Gazette announces in big type that it is definitely settled that Mr. Gladstone will have an audience with the Queen Saturday next, and that he will then officially tender his resignation. It is added that the public announcement of Mr. Gladstone's retirement from office will almost certainly be made Monday, and that Lord Rosebery will be summoned. It is possible that Mr. Gladstone may remain in the cabinet, and that a dissolution of the government may not follow his resignation of the premiership.

During the course of his speech the Premier said that the government felt that this operation of sending and resending a bill from one House to another had continued long enough. "To continue the process would be loss of dignity to both Houses, and the government has decided to stop the operation and take a decided course. The government had the choice of rejecting the House of Lords' amendments and abandoning hope of passing the bill, or to accept them under protest with the hope of soon reversing them. The government adopted the second course."

Mr. Gladstone then reviewed the action of the House of Lords in the past and said:
"We have now reached an acute stage. It appears that the House of Lords desires to annihilate the whole work of the House of Commons. In regard to the present bill the government desires to save nothing from the wreck and, therefore, accepted the amendments, but with the declaration that the difference between the Houses is not of a temporary or causal nature.

"This state of things, I am compelled to say, cannot continue. The issue raised between the assembly elected by the voices of the people and the assembly occupied by many men of virtue and talents are of considerable variety. When once raised they must go on to the issue. No doubt there is a higher authority than the House of Commons, namely—the authority of the nation which must in last resort decide. When that judgment is to be invited is a question which the government alone can decide."

An Associated Press dispatch dated Rome,
March 1, presents the views of leading minds in Italy concerning Italian internal affairs, in which predictions are made that Italy is rapidly moving toward a republic. The enormous increase of government expenditures incident to the conclusion of the triple alliance, the resultant decline in Italian securities, and the general distress and dissatisfaction are adduced to show that great changes are imminent. Even the abdication of the king is said to have been freely spoken of.

RIO JANEIRO, March 1.—The elections passed off quietly. Returns indicate the election of Senor Moraes, the candidate of the Constitutional party, as president.

MONTEVIDEO, March 2.—The correspondent in Rio Grande sends word of an engagement between the government troops and insurgents near Saranda, in which the rebels were defeated. They lost 400 men in the battle.
After a fight lasting many hours the rebels fled in disorder. The battle was, in fact, a horrible massacre. The government forces also captured many prisoners.

The author states and answers the leading criticisms made upon the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants that have been urged by opponents of the latter-day work since its inception.

In answering objections, other and general lines of defense are suggested.

The work is valuable, both as a specific vindication of the books named, and as a general defense of Christianity.

WHAT IS MAN?

BY ELDER J. R. LAMBERT.

Man's Nature and Destiny. The Spirit or Soul; Is it immortal? Does it Survive the Death of the Body in a Conscious State? The views of Mortal-Soulists Examined and Refuted. In two parts. Second Edition.

The author has closely examined the subject upon which he has written, both in study and in oral discussion, with those who differ from him in belief. The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. Christ as the true type of man, in life and in death; his preexistence, life, and death considered; the nature of man; the intermediate state of righteous and wicked; consciousness between death and the resurrection; the second death or future punishment; and the final conscious existence of all after the judgment; are leading features of the chapters of the volume.

MR. GLADSTONE'S RETIREMENT.

MR. GLADSTONE has resigned the British Premiership, the leadership of his party, and his seat in the Cabinet. He will retain his seat in the House of Commons a few months longer, probably until a dissolution of Parliament, which cannot be delayed beyond the present year. That the Grand Old Man gives up his post reluctantly is undoubted. His party never so much needed his leadership, and his retirement threatens it with speedy overthrow. Great and momentous problems confront it, and it requires able and wise, temperate but firm direction. The questions of home rule for Ireland, disestablishment throughout Great Britain, reform of the electoral system, and adjustment of the differences between labor and capital are ripe for solution. On all these questions, except disestablishment, which he shrank from, Mr.

Gladstone has already propounded a policy which must be followed sooner or later by his party. He has in addition bequeathed to the English Liberals the duty of ending or mending the House of Lords. His speech Wednesday evening outlined a policy on that question which must not be shirked, and he doubtless intended that it should not. He cut out the work for his party in the future. Had time and health permitted he would have sought to accomplish all the reforms himself. As he found that he could not carry them out he laid down the lines on which they have to be accomplished.

He retires now full of years and honors, with the reputation of having accomplished more for the common people of Great Britain and Ireland than any British statesman of any time or age. Entering Parliament sixty-one years ago as a nominee of a Tory Duke for a pocket borough he has advanced politically every year since that time. He has always been progressive. Hailed in his younger days as the rising hope of the stern and unbending Tories he quitted their service for that of the people when the reform of the corn laws was proposed. He became the associate of Cobden in that great agitation and soon outstripped Cobden and his more radical colleague, John Bright. He took a firm attitude in behalf of university reform, and was an eloquent advocate in favor of the removal of the Jewish disabilities in 1847 and 1848. Serving in the various Whig ministries between 1848 and 1860 he devoted himself to questions of finance, in which he became the acknowledged master. He surpassed Bright and Beale in the energy with which he urged the second reform bill. He championed the ballot act. He disestablished the church of the Irish minority. He cooperated with the late Mr. Forster in establishing the English public school system, and later with Mr. Acland in making that system free and popular. The Irish tenants owe him the greatest debt of gratitude. He gave them security of tenure at a fair rent and a proprietary interest in their farms. His crowning glory, as he himself thought, was the passage of the Irish home rule bill through the British Commons after sixty years' agitation in Ireland and seven in Great Britain. To say that he has been the greatest reformer of the age would be to express it inadequately. He has probably been the greatest reformer of the English speaking race.

But he has been more than a reformer in Great Britain. His sympathies went out to the Greeks and the Armenians in their struggles against the unspeakable Turk. He espoused the cause of the Bulgarians and was the friend and wise counselor of the statesmen who established United Italy. His early associations and education misled him as to the nature of the struggle against slavery in this country, but he has frequently expressed regret for his mistakes, and during recent years the Republic has had no more sympathetic and admiring friend than the Grand Old Man who now retires from public life in the eighty-fifth year of his age and in the sixty-second of his public usefulness.

Who shall take his place? Nobody now in public life can fill it, and there will be the usual squabble over the succession. This is inevitable. When Pitt died there had to be many experiments made before the Tories found a leader. There were contentions and jealousies as to the successorship to Peel. Mr. Gladstone himself did not spring into acknowledged leadership without a struggle. The Goschens, Lowes, and Hartingtons had their aspirations. The Liberal party contains many second rate men—second rate as compared with Mr. Gladstone. It has only two or three who can cope with Balfour or with Salisbury. Time will demonstrate their capacity. The party situation is critical enough to severely test it. At the same time it is a situation filled with great opportunities for the man who can take occasion by the hand to make the bounds of British freedom wider even than Mr. Gladstone has made them.—Chicago Tribune.

AN OLD COLONIAL HORROR.

At Freehold, New Jersey, a negro was once executed in a manner that would have made the tortures of the Middle Ages blush with envy. An old document in the clerk's office at that place tells the tale: ". . . Therefore the court doth judge that thou the said Caesar shall return to the place from whence thou camest, and from thence to the place of execution, where thy right hand shall be cut off and burned before thy eyes. Then thou shalt be hanged by the neck till thou art dead, dead, dead; then thy body shall be cut down and burned to ashes in a fire kindled for that purpose, and may the Lord have mercy on thy soul."

The railroad department of the Young Men's Christian Association now has a membership of 20,000 railroad employees, and is organized at over one hundred division points. The railroads appreciate the value of the Y. M. C. A. to the men and contribute over $100,000 annually to its support.

OPINION OF JUDGE PHILLIPS, IN TEMPLE LOT CASE.

FOR the benefit of the Saints, we give the text of the decision of Judge Phillips, on the main points in issue between the claimants in the Temple Lot Suit, as the same was published in the Kansas City Times, of March 4.

It is not the full text of the opinion, but is sufficiently full to give a good idea of the case as the judge saw it from the facts and the law.

It is the purpose to print the opinion in pamphlet form independently of the HERALD; so that any and all wishing a copy of it can be accommodated. Quite an amount of expense has been incurred in the prosecution of the suit, a part of which may come back in the sale of these pamphlets; one of which ought to be placed on the table of every family of the church; and as many of those outside as possible.

In one part of this report in the Times the name of John Q. Cannon, occurs, as one of the Presidency of the church in Utah; it should be George Q., not John Q.; let those who read bear this in mind.

Newspaper reports state that an appeal from the decision of Judge Phillips will be made; but the Journal, of Kansas City, has following its account of the case, the account of an interview with Bishop Hill, of the Hedrickite Church, in which Mr. Hill states that there will be none taken by them. Should there be no appeal, for which six months are allowed, then there is an end to litigation; but if there should be an appeal the end is not yet.

Some speculation has been indulged in among the Saints, as to why a resort to the law was had; and in some quarters, the course pursued by us has been condemned as unchristian, and uncalled for; these parties allege that the matter should have been tried by arbitration as between brethren; and let the good spirit of fellowship, or the revelation of God settle the dispute. It so happens that we were made to know that no sort of arbitration open to us, was available, and would have been temporizing in policy, a loss of time and effort and unavailing. The statute of limitations was running against us, if applicable to the case and an adverse possession was ripening its hold on the land. And, having known for years that the struggle must come in the courts of the land, we proceeded, as directed by the revelation and direction of God to the church to "importune at the feet of the judge." The result of this importuning the Saints may see. "To obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams."

THE OPINION.

Judge Phillips yesterday handed down a decision in the famous suit between rival factions of Mormons for possession of the celebrated "Temple lot" at Independence. Possession of the lot was awarded to the complainant, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. This name has, however, commonly been regarded as a waste of words, and the organization is much better known as the "Josephite" branch. Its headquarters are at Lamoni, Iowa, and Joseph Smith, Jr., son of the Prophet Joseph, is president of the church.

The defendant in the suit is the Hedrickite branch, with headquarters at Independence. The essential points of difference between the Hedrickites and the Josephites is that the former believes that after 1832 the Prophet Joseph lost his influence with the Lord because he led an armed host against his enemies, and after that date became a false prophet. They therefore reject all doctrines enunciated by Joseph Smith after that date. This sect takes its name from Granville Hedrick, who first denounced the prophet's later visions as inspired by the evil one.

The Josephites averred that they are the true successors of the original Mormon church, and that the land was bought and held in trust for them. The Hedrickites based their claim upon purchase, and also asserted that they were as much entitled to be called successors to the original church as were the Josephites. In both these claims the Hedrickites were defeated. Doctrinal questions entered very largely into the case, and Judge Phillips decided that the Josephite faction was the only true and Simon-pure Mormon church, and that the Hedrickites as well as the Brighamites were seceders and bolters.

The decision is an important one in that it holds that the doctrine of polygamy as practiced by the Utah branch was not sanctioned by the original church, and that the followers of Brigham Young have wandered away after false dogmas and doctrines. The Salt Lake Mormons have always contended that shortly before his death the Prophet Joseph, awakening from a trance in which he saw visions, gave unto them a new law, that they should take unto themselves a multiplicity of wives. The statement that the prophet authorized or even sanctioned polygamy has always been denied by the Josephites, who claim that plurality of marriage was instituted by Brigham Young and not practiced until after the prophet's death. This matter was brought out quite fully in the testimony. It was shown that all doctrine enunciated by the prophet was first approved by the apostles before it became a law of the church, and it was also clearly proven that no such doctrine was ever presented to them for their approval.

While the suit was between two factions of the church which do not accept polygamy, and while the Utah church was not represented in the pleading, it was quite conclusively proven that the doctrine of polygamy had no existence until after the death of Joseph Smith. Another doctrine introduced in the creed of the Utah church by Brigham Young is the tithing system, which is still enforced by that branch of the Mormon church.

The Josephites on the other hand proved to the satisfaction of the court that they hold to all the doctrines of the original church, as taught up to the time of the death of the prophet, while the Hedrickites rejected many and the Brighamites have added many doctrines. In view of these facts Judge Phillips held that the Josephite branch was the only true successor of the original church, and therefore entitled to possession of the "Temple lot" under the trust. By the decision both the Salt Lake Mormons and the Hedrickite faction are in substance declared to be heretical factions.

It has been claimed that the Utah Mormons were interested in the suit and that in the event of the Hedrickite faction establishing a clear title to the lot it would be bought by the Utah branch. This statement is denied, however, by the heads of both factions. Last summer when the Salt Lake Mormons visited the Temple lot, Hon. John Q. Cannon, one of the three presidents of that branch, said his church had no interest whatever in the suit. "We expect to build a temple there sometime," he said, "but it will probably be many years until this is done. The building of the temple will mark the coming of the millennium. We expect to obtain possession of the lot by purchase. We do not claim to have any shadow of title to the lot under the deed to Edward Partridge, and will not contest for possession in the courts."

In his decision Judge Phillips says: "The theory of the complainant is that this property was acquired originally with church funds, and was and is held in trust for the use of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, which later took the name of the 'Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.' This church, according to its ecclesiastical policy, rules and system of government, at its annual general conference, April 6, 1891, directed and authorized the articles of association and incorporation. This conference represented the ecclesiastical body in its entirety. And as stated in the deposition of Bishop Kelley, 'the church of Lamoni, Iowa, effected the articles of incorporation, because that is the central church, and all others are simply branches of that church.'

"The property in question was originally acquired by an agent of this church for the purpose of erecting thereon a temple designed to be the New Jerusalem of this religious order, from which the eyes and yearning desires of this people, through sixty years of exile and wandering, have never been turned nor diverted. To them it has been as the New Jerusalem to the Israelite, and as Mecca to the Moslem.

"For sixty-two years it has been known to this sect and the people of Western Missouri as the 'Temple lot,' on which, in the fulness of time and the fulfillment of prophecy, was to be erected a splendid temple for the gathering of the believers for religious worship and exaltation.

"Whether the two and a half acres contained in this lot be more than is necessary for the erection of such temple is a question the court would not undertake to determine on this collateral proceeding. Such question belongs to the State.

"Was this property in its acquisition impressed with a trust in favor of said church? As both parties claim under Edward Partridge, both are precluded from making any other source of title, and it is only necessary to inquire into the character of this tenure. Although the deed of Partridge did not on its face express any trust estate, the legal title may be impressed with a use for a third person by evidence 'aliunde.' That he bought this property with funds contributed by the members of the church, and held the title in recognition of the trust is too clear to my mind to admit of debate. In the first place its acquisition by him was in fulfillment of the revealed will of God, as accepted by him as a member of the church, in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

"He was a bishop of the central church, then at Kirtland, Ohio. As such he looked after its temporalities. After such a lapse of time it may be difficult to find this and that witness to testify to placing so much money in his hands. But the substantiative facts appear in this case in persuasive clearness. The stress of this religious sect's environments rendered it expedient that they should seek asylum in the then remote West, where, as they supposed, unvexed by those who despitefully used them, they might have a tabernacle in peace.

"Witnesses testify to the fact of making contribution to this fund, and to the common notoriety of raising the money for this purpose. It was discussed in public assemblies, and report was made to the church, showing that $3,000 had been raised for this purpose, and Bishop Partridge came to Independence, Missouri, to acquire lands for the temple and settlement of the people of his religion. From the day of the acquirement of this property by Partridge he and his church, to the day of his death, in 1841, recognized this lot as church property.

"It was known as the 'Temple lot.' Proof conclusive of this issue is furnished in the fact that Joseph Smith, the founder and head of the church, its recognized prophet and seer, himself came to Missouri, and, in 1832, held religious services on this site and solemnly dedicated it as the spot where the temple should rise. Partridge himself participated in this ceremony. And to 'make assurance doubly sure,' Partridge, on the eve of his expulsion and that of the people of his church from the State by military force at the command of the Governor, in 1839, made a deed, embracing the property, to the minor children of Oliver Cowdery, his co-worker in the church and companion in misfortune, in which he recited the fact that 'there was money put in my hands by Oliver Cowdery, an elder in the Church of Latter Day Saints, formerly of Kirtland, Ohio, for the purpose of entering the lands in the State of Missouri, in the name and for the benefit of said church.' This, no doubt, from the evidence, was the money placed in his hands and reported to the church at Kirtland, Ohio.

"It remains to be ascertained who are the true beneficiaries of this trust. It is a mere play on words, a clutching after shadows, for respondents to quibble about the precise name by which the Mormon Church was known in its early history. As well say that the denomination of Christians now known as the 'Christian Church' have lost their identity because in their early days they were called 'Campbellites.' The identity, unity, and sameness, from 1830 to 1844, of the Mormon Church are too clear for debate. Now and then, by this and that person, it was called 'The Church of Christ,' 'Church of Latter Day Saints,' and 'The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.' The terms were employed interchangeably. As applied to this issue, it is rather a question of identity of doctrine. The temple built at Kirtland, Ohio, the central rendezvous between 1830 and 1835, was inscribed on the portal with the words: 'The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.' This was the public authoritative recognition of the name by which they chose to be known.

"Beyond all cavil, if human testimony is to place any matter forever at rest, this church was one in doctrine, government and purpose from 1830 to June, 1844, when Joseph Smith, its founder, was killed. It had the same Federal head governing bodies, and faith. During this period there was no schism, no secession, no 'parting of the ways' in any matter fundamental, or affecting its oneness. No possible question could be made that had this church, with its central governing power resided at Nauvoo, asserted right of control over this property until 1845, it would have been recognized by the ecclesiastical body and by courts of chancery, as the beneficiary of the trust recognized by Edward Partridge from 1832 and declared by him in his trust deed of 1839.

"Joseph Smith was killed at Carthage, Illinois, in June, 1844. He was the president and inspiring spirit of the church. His violent death struck with dismay the hearts of his followers, and out of the confusion incident thereto was born disorder, schism, and ambition for leadership. Disintegration set in, and the church split into factions, which, under the lead of different heads, scattered to different parts of the country. Among the 'Quorum of Twelve,' representing the apostles, was one Brigham Young, a man of intellectual force, shrewd and aggressive, if not audacious. Naturally enough such a man gathered around him the greater number, and it was an easy matter for him to seize the fallen reins of the Presidency. He led the greater portion of Mormons out to what was known as 'winter quarters,' near Omaha, and thence to Salt Lake valley in Utah, then a dependency of Old Mexico. From this settlement has sprung the powerful ecclesiastical body known as the Salt Lake, or Utah, church. While the respondents are wary of claiming alliance with this Salt Lake church, it is evidently 'the power behind the throne' in the defense of this suit; and claim is made by respondents' counsel that it, in fact, absorbed the Mormon church, and is the real successor to the ancient church.

"There can be no question of the fact that Brigham Young's assumed presidency was a bold and bald usurpation. The Book of Doctrine and Covenants (printed in 1846), page 411, containing a revelation to Joseph Smith, January 19, 1841, gave unto them 'my servant Joseph to be a presiding elder over all my church, to be a translator, a revelator, a seer, and a prophet. I give unto him for counselors my servant, Sidney Rigdon, and my servant, William Law, that these may constitute a quorum and first presidency, to receive the oracles for the whole church. I give unto my servant, Brigham Young, to be president over the twelve traveling council.' So that Brigham Young was but president over the 'twelve,' a traveling council. The book clearly taught that the succession should descend lineally and go to the firstborn. Joseph Smith so taught, and before his taking off publicly proclaimed his Son Joseph, the present head of complainant church his successor, and he was so anointed.

"The book also contains the following when referring to Joseph Smith: 'But verily, verily I say unto you, that none else shall be appointed to this gift, except it be through him, for if it be taken from him he shall not have power, except to appoint another in his stead; and this shall be a law unto you, that you receive not the teachings of any that shall come before you as revelations or commandments; and this I give unto you that you may not be deceived, that you may know they are not of me. For verily I say unto you, that he that is ordained of me shall come in at the gate and be ordained as I have told you before, to teach those revelations which you have received, and shall receive through him whom I have appointed.'

"Brigham Young's assumption of this office was itself a departure from the law of the church. The Book of Mormon pronounced the severest anathema against the crime of polygamy, and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants expressly declared 'that we believe that one man should have but one wife, and one woman but one husband.' This declaration of the church on this subject reappeared in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants of 1846 and of 1856. Its first appearance as a dogma of the church appeared in the Utah church in 1852. The claim is made by the Utah Church that this doctrine is predicated of a revelation made to Joseph Smith in July, 1843. No such revelation was ever made public during the life of Joseph Smith, and under the law of the church it could not become an article of faith, until submitted to and adopted by the church. This was never done.

"The next important and interesting question is: Does the complainant church represent the beneficiaries of this property? In controversies of this character respecting the rightful ownership of church property the civil judicatories have nothing to do with the question as to which faction expounds the sounder theology or moral philosophy, and which best accords with reason and common sense. A good chancellor may be an indifferent theologian, and when he should lay aside the ermine for the surplice he might prove more bigot than justiciary.

"No matter, therefore, if the church at Nauvoo became a prey to schisms after the death of Joseph Smith, and presented as many frightful heads as did the dragon which the Apostle John saw in his vision on the Isle of Patmos, if there is one righteous left in Sodom, the promise of the covenant and the law of the land is to him. It is neither good law, nor Bible history, to say that because the Saints became scattered and without an organism, the faithful lost the benefit of the church property. Forsooth the children of Israel were carried captive to Babylon. 'The mother of harlots and the abomination of the earth,' they did not cease to be children of the covenant nor lose their interest in Jerusalem.

"Decree will go in favor of complainant, establishing the trust in its favor against respondents, removing the clouds from the title, enjoining respondents from asserting title to the property and awarding the possession to the complainants."

CONGRATULATIONS.

Hon. J. D. Miller, ex-judge of the Probate Court, Hancock county, Illinois, writes us March 3:—

I have just learned of the successful determination of the suit at Kansas City, in your favor, and send you my hearty congratulations.

The Judge was a Nauvoo raised boy and friend to us years ago.

A practical mechanical engineer some years since began a correspondence with us touching Mormonism, which correspondence caused him to make inquiry in several directions concerning the church and its work. From him we have as follows:—

WAMPUM, Pa., March 5, 1894.

MR. JOSEPH SMITH, Lamoni, Iowa;

My Esteemed Friend:—I wish to congratulate you on the successful issue of your suit at Independence, Missouri, not so much for the merely material value of Temple Lot, as for the bearing on the "great moral battle," as you stated to me some years ago, in which you are engaged. Impartial history can accord to Brigham Young no condoning circumstances to justify his arbitrary and revolutionary course after the murder of your father on June 27th, 1844. For nearly a half century the course and doings of this man have thrown a dark shadow on the memory of your father, in the view of the world in general, and though I differ from you most radically, I rejoice to see the truth vindicated, in accomplishing which, you have evidently borne the brunt of the battle.

Very respectfully,
H. NEIDIG, M. E.

IN DISCUSSION.

THE following is indicative of what is likely to be the accepted tactics of proceeding between the church in Utah and the Reorganized Church; provided the conflict goes on in any fashion. The affair is in the hands of Pres. W. W. Blair, and is having consideration.

As to the work of Rev. Martin, we have only this to say; the Reorganized Church has met Clark Braden on four occasions and is satisfied with results. If the Christian sect, at San Bernardino, may choose Clark Braden as their representative man, we do not; and, are under no moral or religious obligation to consent to meet him in debate on Christian topics anywhere. By the terms of Mr. Braden's own last challenge, we have during his lifetime to accept, or deny, and shall take whatever time we choose.

In the arrangement of propositions last discussed Mr. Braden declined to include a question involving the Christian Church. Besides this, he left Lamoni without fulfilling his signed agreement to affirm that Joseph Smith taught and practiced polygamy. When Mr. Braden performs what he agreed to do it will be time for his Christian brethren to propose him for the discussion of further issues.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Feb. 27.

Editors Herald:—We inclose clipping from San Bernardino Times-Index of February 24, a challenge, prepared by Elder David L. Harris and R. R. Dana in behalf of the Reorganized Church, in which we invited Apostle M. Lyman and Elder B. H. Roberts, of Salt Lake City, of the Utah Church, to arrange by representative men of their church to meet representative men of the Reorganized Church in discussion of the principles of succession in the presidency of the church and the gathering of the Saints of God in the last days; as you will see by the clipping. Our agreement with them, so far, is simply to send the paper containing said challenge, or the article itself, to the headquarters of each church for the indorsement of chief authorities; and the further arrangement and completion of the matter, if they consider it of sufficient importance and that it would be profitable.

Elder Roberts has been speaking in our chapel here during the last two weeks. His first four lectures were upon faith, repentance, baptism, laying on of hands for the Holy Ghost, apostasy, and divine authority of the Book of Mormon; all of which lectures were first class. Next, he took up the authority to preach, drawing the line very emphatically between the Utah and Reorganized churches. He also gave one discourse (by request) upon the subject of gathering. Being a good speaker, and of very pleasant address, he drew quite large audiences, many of whom were old-time members of the church, or children of them.

In speaking upon the succession he labored very industriously to try to prove that the originators of the Reorganized Church were of bad repute in the church prior to 1844, being apostates, traitors, etc., some of them very immoral persons, and that President Joseph Smith's life in secular matters had been an entire failure, and his alleged call to be his father's successor was so unlike the prophetic call of his father that it was of no importance whatever; also that his ordination at the Amboy conference was under the hands of apostates and men who had been proven to be traitors to the martyred seer, etc. A good many think his arguments cannot be set aside, so we, and our membership generally, believe that a discussion by leading men from both churches would result very favorably for our cause; hence our challenge.

Bro. Harris has reviewed Roberts in three discourses, and to the satisfaction of our people. He has simply demoralized the position taken by Roberts, who, by the way, will reply again this evening.

The citizens of San Bernardino and surrounding country are anxious to have the discussion come off, the disputants to be from the leading men of each church; and all agree that such an issue would draw immense audiences, which the County Pavilion alone would accommodate. Thus our faith and doctrine would reach the ears of hundreds, and possibly thousands of people who otherwise would never attend our regular services. Elders Lyman and Roberts appear to be about as anxious for the meeting as ourselves, but whether or not they will stand the test remains for the future to disclose.

A Christian evangelist, Rev. S. M. Martin, concluded a six-weeks' series of meetings here on the 25th inst. He baptized one hundred and fifteen persons, and knocked the bottom out of sprinkling and pouring as Christian baptism, the mourners' bench, probation, etc. They say they will pit Clark Braden against any of our ministry at this place, and affirm that Braden is a representative man; and they will indorse him in a discussion with us and say that they would like to debate with us at this place during the month of May next. So then if our Utah brethren dare pluck up sufficient courage to measure churchly swords with us about that time we might kill two birds with one stone and set many more to fluttering. Believing the present to be an opportune time (if our opponents will meet us) to unlimber one or two of our long range guns, and pour into the ranks of our adversaries a few rounds of our abundant store of grape and canister, we will anxiously await further orders from our gallant commanders.

With a firm desire to assist the speeding of the gospel plow, we remain,

Your collaborators in the faith,
R. R. DANA,
WILLIAM M. GIBSON,
D. L. HARRIS.

A CHALLENGE.

Messrs. M. Lyman and B. H. Roberts, Residents of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Representatives of the Mormon Church there:—

SIRS:—We, in behalf of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, respectfully invite your church, by its representatives, to meet representatives of said Reorganized Church in a public discussion of the following propositions; namely:—

First. Was Brigham Young the lawful and legitimate successor of Joseph Smith (the Seer) to the prophetic office and presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints?

Second. And is Utah the appointed place for the gathering of the Saints in the last days, as spoken by the prophets of God, including Joseph Smith the Seer?

Your church to affirm the above propositions, and the Reorganized Church to deny; but in denying said propositions the Reorganized Church agrees to affirm:—

First. That Joseph Smith, the present President of the Reorganized Church, is the legal and lawful successor of his father to the presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Second. Also that in denying the second proposition (the gathering) the Reorganized Church will affirm that Missouri is the only place appointed of God for the gathering of his saints in the last days.

Now, gentlemen, should you see fit to accept our offer to discuss the above propositions with one or more representative men of the Reorganized Church, the preliminaries for said discussion can be arranged hereafter.

Awaiting an early reply to this from you, we remain yours truly, in favor of the demonstration of all truth,

D. L. HARRIS,
R. R. DANA.

THE services at Coleman, Michigan, during the two weeks from the 11th to the 25th ult., were quite well attended. Bro. J. J. Cornish was in charge with Bro. J. H. Peters, and quite an interest was awakened. Bro. Peters telegraphed Bro. F. M. Cooper, at Bay City, and he came in time for the sermon on Saturday evening, the 17th.

The sermon on Monday evening, February 19, was by Bro. Cooper; on Tuesday evening by President Smith, on Wednesday evening by Bro. Cooper; Bro. Cornish filled the stand Thursday and Friday evenings, and Bro. Bailey of Coleman, Sunday evening, the editor being laid up with chronic neuralgia.

The people were pleased with the services, so far as heard from.

Bro. J. H. Peters has been unsparing in effort and means in pushing their house to completion. It is an ornament to the town, and is as comfortable as it can be made. A nucleus is formed for a good work there, and the outlook is good for increase.

Bro. Cornish and his coworkers are pushing the work in different places, and will be heard from before long.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

TAKE note of the following, going the newspaper rounds:—

LITTLE ROCK, Arkansas, March 2.—Governor Fishback has received a letter from Faith Doctor J. S. Willis of St. Louis, in which the doctor encloses some tracts which the governor is asked to study, with a printed circular enclosed in which it is stated that "Jesus is coming and the end of the world is near. The trumpet will sound Thursday, March 6, 1896, at three o'clock p. m., Jerusalem time. The abomination spoken of by Daniel the prophet, will stand in the rebuilt temple from Saturday, August 14, 1897, to Monday, February 25, 1901—twelve hundred and ninety days. Jesus will come in the clouds to the earth to reign a thousand years on the earth, Thursday, April 11, 1901, at three p. m., Jerusalem time. The beginning of sorrows commences this year, 1894, with a series of bloody wars and revolutions in Europe."

TEMPLE LOT SUIT DECISION.

THE decision of Judge Phillips in the Temple Lot Suit will be published entire, in pamphlet form, by the Herald Office; the proceeds to be applied to liquidating the expenses incurred in prosecuting the suit. This pamphlet will prove invaluable as setting forth the legally recognized position of the Reorganized Church as the only true successor of the Original Church. Send it to relatives and friends. Price 25 cents. Address orders to David Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

OF the faithfulness of one, and the effect resulting. Bro. Henry Sparling, writing from West Plains, Missouri, says:—

Bro. Bootman's faithful and honest dealing with all men, and his constant battling against sin and prejudice has had its effect—the heaven was good, and we begin to see the results. He is getting old, but his soul is in this work, and his desire is to die with the armor on. I shall not be able to be at General Conference, but pray God's blessing on those that are.

Bro. Sparling adds:—

The work is looking up in these parts.

Bro. A. L. Whiteaker writes from Twin Lakes, Wisconsin:—

The work is onward in Wisconsin. We need more laborers.

Indeed; but where are the laborers not needed?

Bro. D. L. Shinn, writing from Adamston, West Virginia, March 1, says:—

Our district conference was a good one. There was not a large attendance, but we had good order, and good feeling and harmony prevailed. Preaching by Brn. Godbey and W. H. Kelley. The Saturday evening discourse supplied a want long felt in that community. It was on the Sealed Book and the Stick of Joseph.

Bro. Shinn had written to Bro. James Williamson, at Elk Garden, West Virginia; but the letter was returned "unclaimed." He thinks that perhaps Elk Garden is not the correct address, and desires to know where Bro. Williamson's may be found, so that he can correspond with and visit him.

Bro. John T. Kinnaman, writing of a trip into Kansas, by request, says:—

I left home near the last of January for Cloud county, Kansas, by request of parties in Illinois, to do some missionary work, as it was feared that the Seventh-Day Adventists might get the family of my friend, who had planned a surprise, but sickness prevented him from coming. I was kindly received by the family. The Wesleyan Methodists hold forth here. Mr. Bean, my friend, gave the land and helped to build the house; he asked and obtained the consent of the directors for me to have it. Their minister did not like this, but I gave out my appointments; he objected, but could not prevent it. His questions in my meeting turned his congregation to me. You may think strange, but I kept calm, though I gave him one rebuke when speaking of "Book of Mormon and Old Joe Smith." I told him publicly (for he was asking questions at the close of my meeting) that good manners, to say nothing of Christianity, would require him to say "Joseph Smith." He did all he could, but he is so little and his doctrine so short, that he got left. I will send you some of his evidence he hunted up. Some of our brethren can look after this matter, those sixty converts that are led astray up there in Michigan. I preached nine times, and if the Seventh-Day Adventists or Wesleyan Methodists can do anything, all right. I would have baptized some if water had been plenty; but promised to come back after it rains.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE learn from Bro. George Spencer, writing from Elmore City Colorado, that a Sunday school had been organized in Trinidad, a house had been rented; the Saints thought to build a small house, if found practicable.

Two were baptized and three others gave their names for baptism at Oto and Smithland latter part of February, so writes Bro. J. F. Mintun.

By letter from Bro. James Wright, 1001 South 10th street, Burlington, Iowa, March 5, we learn that Bro. James C. Crabb, was taken very sick February 26, at that place. He was evidently too ill to attend the conference of the district held on the 3d and 4th, as those present may know; but at the date of Bro. Wright's letter he was much improved; the ordinance, and the "prayer of faith," with such careful nursing as Sr. Crabb assisted by the Saints could give, having resulted to his benefit.

Aunt Katharine Salisbury, surviving sister of the martyrs, arrived at Lamoni on Monday the 5th inst., to visit relatives and friends and attend the General Conference.

The HERALD should be read by every family in the church. It contains news of the general progress of the work and matter of specific interest to fathers, mothers, and children. Do you take it for your family?

We have a letter, asking information, from one George Strouse, who writes from some point in New England but fails to give his address.

Sr. Augusta Nichols, of Rankin, Michigan, asks prayer that she may be sustained under severely trying conditions. She desires that some of the Michigan ministry will call at Rankin, before April, and baptize two of her children.

The General Conference Reception Committee of the Lamoni branch has a notice in this number of the HERALD of interest to delegates and visitors.

Sr. Mary Money maker requests prayer of the Prayer Union for restoration to health, or resignation to God's will. Her request came too late for regular insertion.

Brn. William Anderson and Duncan Campbell, of the Decatur, Iowa, district, held Sunday school, preaching, and social services at Pleasanton, Iowa, on Sunday, the 11th inst. Bro. Thomas Bell preached morning and evening at Green schoolhouse, near Lamoni. Brn. M. B. Williams and N. Snively filled appointments morning and evening respectively at Lone Rock, Missouri.

An excellent writer long ago said: "Truth is, in everything, not only the shortest but the only road to excellence—the only foundation on which everything permanent can ever be raised; and all ways of evading, slighting, or opposing it are, in fact, only loss of time and hindrance of business in the affairs of men."

President Joseph Smith delivered the morning discourse at Lamoni, on Sunday the 12th inst. Bishop E. L. Kelley preached in the evening.

Letters from Brn. F. C. Smith, A. C. Hart, H. Lytle, H. N. Hansen, S. W. Tomlinson, and Sr. M. T. Taylor, will appear as space will permit. Unsigned or anonymous letters are not inserted.

The Hedrickite brethren of Independence have given notice that they will appeal from the decision of Judge Phillips in the Temple Lot Suit.

Bro. Joseph Luff was at Sandwich, Illinois, on Sunday, the 11th. He was to continue services during the week.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY FRANCES.

"He lives who lives to God alone,
And all are dead beside;
For other source than God is none
Whence life can be supplied."

A WORD TO MOTHERS.

MOTHERS, just one earnest word with you in regard to a matter in which you are all interested. We do not mean that you are all equal to that which we are going to ask, for we know you are not; because we all have "gifts differing," but we do know that many of you are fully competent to the work. In a letter received by last mail a mother writes: "Since my children are getting old enough to be interested in the stories in the Hope, I have realized the need of simpler reading for the 'Tots.' There is so little for the younger ones and it is such a task to simplify the other pieces, that I have determined if I attempt to write any more for the Hope, I will devote the little talent I have to that department."

You may not fully understand what pleasure it gave us to learn this, because you perhaps do not know how this want has been felt by us and has burdened us for years. And yet from time to time we have written of it, and have, by private correspondence, been unceasing in our efforts to enlist the interest of those who can write, in this matter of simplifying for the children. This simplifying is necessary not only for the "wee ones," but for older ones as well.

It is a rare gift to be able to instruct children; but when the fountains of mother love are opened it comes naturally to many mothers. The sister who wrote us can do it. Her mother can do it, and we could fill in a long list of names which come before us as we write, of those whom we know are capable of doing it and who yet do not do it. We know mothers who are so well qualified to be helpful and who eagerly scan the Home Column from week to week for helpful suggestions, but never—think of it—never contribute one line to Home Column or Hope to help those other mothers so burdened, and worn, and withal so helpless and inexperienced. Yes, we know you each one have your own cares, but we ask you to enter into the sanctuary of your heart and answer the question if you might not have spared a few moments of time—just one hour each week or each month—to have been helpful to your neighbor? What a volume of helpfulness would thus have been rolled into the highway of life, where the maimed, lame, halt, and blind are staggering along.

In writing us of one who has come to her help, Sr. Ella Green adds, "A better day will dawn when the mothers will take hold and teach!"

Yes, indeed—a better day! And while the Spirit of God is searching your hearts, convincing you of duty in this direction, let us entreat you to beware how you answer, "Go thy way, when I have a more convenient season I will listen" (or call for thee).

HELPING HAND.

SYNOPSIS OF READING, CHAPTER ELEVEN.

HINTS ON CHILD-TRAINING.

TRAINING A CHILD NOT TO TEASE.

FEW children never tease, yet none ever ought to tease. If a child does tease, the parent, not the child, is to blame. To realize this fact will stimulate the parent to train his child not to tease; and no part of child-training is simpler or surer of its result than this.

To tease is "to tug," "to pull," "to drag," "to vex (or carry) with importunity." A child teases when he wants something from his parents, and failing to get it at the first asking, pulls and tugs at them (with words) in the hope of dragging them to give consent by causing them to look at the matter as he does, or in spite of their different thinking. If a child could have what he wanted at the first asking, he would not tease. If a child never secured anything by teasing, he would not form the habit of teasing; he would have nothing to gain by it. When, therefore, a child is in the habit of teasing, it is evidence that he has been trained to tease, instead of being trained not to tease, and they who have thus trained him must bear the responsibility and blame of his teasing.

Many a child does not expect to get, without teasing, anything that is out of the line of his daily needs; therefore he counts teasing a part of his regular work in life, as some shoppers think that they must beat down the shop-keeper on his prices. A child knows that it is not necessary to tease for a piece of bread or meat at the table, or for a drink of water between meals. But if he wants to stay at home from school, or to take a tramp with schoolmates, or to have a new sled or bicycle, or to go to the circus, he is not so sure that his request will be granted at his first asking. So when he is answered, "No," he appeals, "Do let me. O, do!" and then he begins a nerve struggle for mastery over his parents, thinking that it is only a question of who shall be most persistent.

There are few children who always carry their point by teasing, but there are fewer who never succeed by this means. Most parents sometimes give way in such conflicts. They may be less determined than their children, and become tired out by their teasing. The earnestness with which their children plead may move them to yield through tenderness. Perhaps they answer thoughtlessly at first, and as they consider more fully they find it to be right to reverse their hasty decision. From whatever cause, if parents answer "No" to a first request, and "Yes" after more or less teasing, they train their children so far to tease, for they give them reason to believe that teasing is an advantage to them; and of course they are responsible if their children continue in the habit of teasing.

It is a misfortune to a child to suppose that he must tease in order to gain a point that he ought to gain. With such a view he looks for his guide in any questioned case of personal conduct, not to his parent's wisdom and judgment, not to principles held up to him by one in authority, but to his own positiveness and persistency, and to impulses within himself. No parent can have the truest respect of a child while the child knows that he can tease that parent into compliance with his wishes contrary to the parent's conviction of what is right and best. Therefore for the parent's sake, as well as for the child's, every child ought to be trained not to tease, and not to expect any possible advantage from teasing.

Susannah Wesley, the mother of John and Charles, used to say that all of her children learned very early that they could have nothing that they cried for, and so they soon learned not to cry for a thing that they wanted. Who will doubt that her sons were stronger men, and she more of a woman and more respected by them, than if she had often given way because of their crying to give them what she knew was not best for them. Any child who finds that he is never to have anything for which he teases will quickly quit teasing. How simple the rule for this important part of child-training.

It is not so simple and easy, however, to adhere to this rule; to be always positive in refusing a child anything for which he teases, and to be wise in doing it. But the trouble is with the parent, not with the child. A parent must do his thinking before he answers a child's request, if he would give a decision that may rightly stand against all entreaties. Too often a child's request is denied before the parent has considered the case in all its bearings; then when the child presses his suit he sees reasons for granting it, which he had not seen before. The child perceives this and knows that his teasing, rather than his parents' independent judgment, will settle the question, therefore he must tease in order to secure a correct decision.

Every parent ought to train his children not to tease, but in order to do this the parent must himself be trained. He must not reply to his child hastily or thoughtlessly, or without a full understanding of the case. He may question the child in regard to the matter, and if necessary postpone his answer until he can learn more about it. He must not reply quickly for the sake of pushing the request away. He must consider carefully what his answer ought to be, and then let the child accept it as final. The answer ought to be given with such kindly firmness that the child will have no thought of teasing.

CALLIE B. STEBBINS.

There is a lesson contained in the following bit of conversation which took place between two little girls.

Emma's mother had refused her some permission which both she and her playmate desired. They stood out in the yard looking sorrowful over it when Katie said:—

"Why don't you tease your mother? Just tease her and she will let you."

Slowly and impressively Emma replied:—

"I tell you, Kate, the more I tease, the more my mother won't."

There could be no question as to the different training of the two children in regard to teasing. The one had evidently been allowed to tease and to find that she could gain her desire by doing so, even though she received a refusal in the first place.

The other had learned, as she expressed, that she had nothing to hope for by teasing; and how much better off both she and her mother were because her training had been so effectual.

May not parents take courage from the words of this child, to know that they can succeed if they will set themselves not to allow their children to tease?

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

Dear Sisters:—Thinking perhaps some would like to hear what we are doing here in the far West I undertake the task of telling. We are striving to help advance the cause of Christ. There are a few here who are very faithful and always to be found at duty's post. We sisters have a Prayer Union and Daughters of Zion. We hold our meeting of the Daughters of Zion the second Thursday of each month just after the Prayer Union service. The time given to the work is well and profitably spent. There is not one of our number who in reviewing the past cannot record one or more requests answered which has been taken up in our meetings and made a special subject for prayer. In some instances the answers have been very marked. We have prayed earnestly for the conversion of members of our families and they have been gathered into the fold, also that the use of tobacco might be given up by some, and this also has been answered. So it is we all rejoice and praise the Lord. Our work in the Daughters of Zion being of shorter duration we cannot record any great work accomplished. We believe the originators were inspired to establish it and feel confident it will be a great blessing to our homes. We like the programmes marked out but wish the essays had not been dropped out. We believe these would have contained useful information and would have been published and thus benefited the whole organization. God bless and prosper the societies and help each and every one to see the necessity of sustaining them.

Bro. Gordon E. Deuel has been in our midst for some time past. He has preached for us several times, besides he has cheered, comforted, and instructed us by visiting in our homes and conversing on the gospel work. He has also visited Oakland, Berkeley, Irvington, and Santa Rosa during this time and all enjoy his society very much. Ever praying for Zion's welfare and the cause of Christ, I am,
Your sister,
M. A. SAXE.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

R. A. Burlingame, of Cumberland Hill, Rhode Island, requests your faith and prayers in behalf of Sr. M. P. Burlingame, who has for years been a great sufferer. She is the mother of two little girls and desires to live to raise them.

TO LOCAL SECRETARIES OF THE DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

It is desirable that each local organization be reported at the meeting to be held during the coming General Conference. Will each secretary prepare a report, including date of organization, number of members, interest manifested, and work done by the society, and forward to me at as early a date as possible. If names have been added which have not been reported for publication, please send these also. CALLIE B. STEBBINS, Sec.

Let us suggest that the sisters do not fail in observing a season of prayer for the blessing of God to rest upon our work, upon our own families, and the families of all Saints. Short but earnest and direct prayers should be offered by those who feel moved upon to pray while all may lift their hearts in earnest pleading to Him who is ever ready to hear the prayer of faith. It has been thought best that for the present the publication of leaflets be suspended. Provision will be made in the Home Column of the Herald of March 28, for the reading of the April meeting and in Herald of April 25 for the meeting in May.

QUESTION BOX.

It is to be hoped that each member of the different local organizations will be interested in bringing in questions which they would like to hear discussed. The committee has merely inserted "Suggestive questions" as a hint in the direction of such as may be discussed with profit. If more are brought in at one meeting than can be used at that time let them lie over to the next meeting.

VISITING COMMITTEE.

This committee should be appointed at each meeting. It is their duty to visit and interest in the society all whom it is possible for them to interest and secure their attendance, giving in their report at the next meeting, at which time they are released and others appointed in their place.

Letter Department.

OTO, Iowa, Feb. 24.

Editors Herald:—When last I wrote for publication, I anticipated doing much to advance the work of salvation by way of sowing the seed where I knew the ground was thoroughly prepared and waiting for the sowers, but I was doomed to disappointment; sickness entered our home and I was for several weeks called to wait upon the sick, when I was so I did not need waiting on myself, because of personal illness, the most severe of my life, in which my life was despaired of for a few hours. My wife's mother was for several weeks not expected to survive, and truly it seemed that death had come to claim one of the household; and marvelous as it may seem to many who knew something of the nature and severity of her illness, she is recovering, for which God's name is worthy of being praised; for it has been magnified by the manifestation of his saving power to call back the spirit to retain occupancy of the body.

While the affliction has been of itself a severe trial, yet to add to this many calls of an urgent character came inviting labor done, where loss has resulted by its not being done; yet I was powerless to comply with the request. I trust this will be sufficient explanation why I have not answered all calls for preaching, or correspondence promptly.

I find the work here and in this vicinity something as it was when we left it last fall after conducting a series of meetings in several places in this vicinity. Much interest exists resulting from tent work, in which I was ably assisted by Bro. F. A. Smith and some of the local talent. Bro. Smith is remembered for his devotedness and efficient labor.

During this winter the work has received the efficient assistance of Brn. H. C. Smith, Charles Derry, W. W. Blair, and others as they were passing through. Bro. Smith has rendered service that has resulted in a great awakening, especially at Little Sioux.

I came to Smithland day before yesterday and found some persuaded and others almost persuaded through the late efforts of Brn. Chambers, Hutchings, and Case; Brn. Chambers, Case, and Montague meeting me there; Bro. Chambers returning home yesterday. Brn. Montague and Case held meetings in the Adventist church at Smithland and I at this place last night. We continue here this week and part of next, returning home in time to attend the conference of this district held March 2-4 at Magnolia, Iowa. The Sunday school work in the district is far advanced to what it was last winter, and I look for much work to be done in that line the coming spring and summer.

I am more and more confirmed in the saving power and wisdom of God. The trying experiences of the last few weeks have aided me to see more of the wondrous yet mysterious workings of a loving Father than I could possibly have learned from any other source. God is moving upon the hearts of the young and inspiring them to a more thorough preparation of themselves for the work to which he has appointed them, and they are rendering excellent service and developing marvelously as efficient workers in the kingdom.

I trust I may hear from all who have a desire for general missionary work, and those of the general missionaries who have rendered service in this mission, so I can make up a complete report of all work done by the general ministry in this mission for the past mission year.

With love to all the readers of the Herald,
I am, Your brother in hope,
J. F. MINTUN.

BRADEN, Ill., Feb. 15.

Editors Herald:—Since I last wrote, Bro. I. A. Morris and I have preached a number of times in Hamilton county, at Rural Hill. From there we went to Parrish and labored for a week, trying to encourage and strengthen the Saints. While here the Lord blessed us to a very marked degree. The Spirit pointed out Bro. J. P. Madox for the eldership and Bro. A. H. Johnson for the office of priest. While here I baptized two.

From here we visited the Saints at Tunnel Hill. Here the Spirit directed the ordination of Brn. W. A. Kelley and William Smith to the office of elder. Here I baptized a sister of Bro. Isaac Smith. From here we returned to Rural Hill, Hamilton county, where we labored until the 13th inst. While here we awakened such an interest and had so many calls for preaching that we separated, Bro. Morris occupying at the Cantrell, while I occupied at the Odle schoolhouse. We held from one to three meetings a day.

While here by request and in company with Mr. Wal Flannigan I went some six miles to visit Rev. Wilson of the Christian Church, several being quite anxious to have us exchange views. I found him quite ready and free to talk, but he thought I needed two thirds of the time. I informed him that I only asked one half of the time, so I handed a gentleman present my watch, at the same time stating that we would have fifteen minutes speeches. The proposition we discussed was, "Resolved, that in the Church of Christ, apostles, prophets, etc., should be found to-day according to the New Testament pattern." We occupied over two hours.

Elder Wilson's position was as follows: That in Christ's time the church was the light of the world; it had power to bind on earth and in heaven, and was the salt of the earth. But no man occupied so high a position in our time. My answer was: I was fully satisfied that the Campbellite Church was in the condition as he described it, and if it had no power to bind on earth and in heaven, then all baptisms performed are farces. If it had no salt it could not save, and if lacking power to save it could not damn. If having no light it must be in darkness, hence Jesus said, "the blind lead the blind, and both fall into the ditch together." At the close of our discussion I asked him if he would discuss the matter publicly, but he declined on account of his age, saying he would get a man. This has been the cry ever since we commenced in this vicinity. While here

I baptized seven, mostly heads of families. Many more are almost persuaded to obey the gospel, and are among the most influential.

From here we came thus far on our way to Springerton, where we expect to meet many of the brethren. I never was more greatly blessed of the Lord than in the past six weeks. I feel determined in the work and ask the prayers of Saints. From Springerton we shall go to Kibbie, which is my permanent address while in Illinois.

Springerton, Ill., Feb. 23.—The Southwestern Illinois conference was held here last Saturday and Sunday. We had a good time, a number of the ministry being present; the Lord greatly blessed us with the presence of his Spirit.

Brn. I. A. Morris and F. M. Slover are holding forth four miles west of here this week, while I am holding forth in town at the Saints' church. Interest good; a full house. We hold prayer meetings every day, and preaching at night. I am having good liberty. I shall close my meetings here tonight. To-morrow I go to Dryfork, while Bro. Morris goes home for a week, to rejoin me at Kibbie, March 3.

In bonds,

EMSLEY CURTIS.

BUFFALO, Iowa, Feb. 22.

Editors Herald:—Elder J. S. Roth visited the few Saints here in the early winter, and while here was granted the use of the M. E. church, where he proclaimed the principles of the gospel in his usual forceful and demonstrative way, until failing health compelled him to seek rest and the comforts of home. Leaving the writer to fill remaining appointments he bade us good-bye and went to his home, where he wrestled with that Russian outrage, lagrippe, for awhile. We are glad to learn, however, that he is again in harness and field doing work for the Master.

Elder Roth's noise here woke up that "old mother"—stepmother in this case—who "knew Jo Smith at Nauvoo, and had seen and talked with several of his spiritual wives"! But, when invited to answer a few questions, we were informed that she was, "too good to talk to Mormons!" See? We are still hearing echoes from Elder Roth's home shots.

Elder J. B. Heide made the Buffalo Saints a short call on his way to Shenandoah, Iowa, where he was going to preach. All here were pleased to see this promising young elder, also to learn that he was well and in the best of spirits. He had preached at Maquoketa, Iowa, and woke up another "Christian elder," who sought to silence Elder Heide's guns with, "whether there be prophecies they shall fail," etc! But Bro. Heide sent Mr. Hillock to grass with one word—"When?"

Elder C. C. Reynolds, whose home is here, has preached nearly every Sunday this winter for the Daveport branch, over which he presides. For the last three weeks his health has been such that he has not gone from home, but Priest D. W. Clow writes Elder Reynolds that the members of the branch are active and moving steadily forward. Bro. Clow is superintendent of their Sunday school, which is in a prosperous condition.

Sister Rae La Rue is secretary and treasurer of the school, and "all goes well."

Locally, there is little doing. I have preached here a few times since Elder Roth left, but have not been able to leave home to help my brethren in Eastern Iowa, as I very much desire to do. That our heavenly Father may give to the elders in the field his Holy Spirit, and make them conquerors, is the prayer of their fellow laborer and brother, JEROME RUBY.

WIRT, Ind., March 5.

Editors Herald:—I have been striving to keep the gospel before the people in Boone, Dearborn, Franklin, Jefferson, Davies, Park, and Vigo counties. I am to meet E. G. Denney, of the Christian Church, in discussion in Sullivan county on the 13th of March. Elder M. T. Short will be my moderator, as also Elder James Knox, of Park county, to assist in taking notes, and otherwise.

The work in Central Indiana is strongly opposed: schoolhouses in some places are not accessible to us, but when we can get a house the people are generally interested; but the trouble in some places is that we can get halls and but few hearers; but good can be done by sowing the seed and waiting the harvest.

I closed a meeting in Franklin county, at Cedar Grove, and left some near the kingdom. One worthy gentleman promised to be baptized in April, and others will follow him. I think the work in that place is opening up nicely, also in Park, where I think some will obey, as Bro. James Knox is helping all he can. Bro. William Marshall, the wide-awake and worthy elder in Union branch, has been preaching and watering some where I opened up the work one year ago. He and Bro. M. T. Short had the privilege of organizing a branch near Mannville. That makes four branches that have been organized in Central and Southern Indiana in the last four years; so the elders have not been asleep at their posts. I have broken new ground these last four years and, thank God, the Giver of all, I am not weary of the work. But I have not had very good health since June; I have had malarial fever, and during this winter the lagrippe, which have hindered me from preaching as often as in previous years. But I hope to work on in Sullivan county after the discussion, if we can get places to preach.

I will not be able to attend the conference this year, but my prayers will ever be with the body, hoping that those who attend may have the Spirit of the Master, and that the conference will be a good one.

I want to return my thanks to all the Saints for their kindness to me these years of my ministry with them, and also to some of the worthy overseers of this grand work for their advice and criticisms, which I feel have been of much good to me; I speak of Elders Hilliard, Etzenhouser, and Short. I am making some advancement in humility and mildness, hoping to improve in meekness and charity, and to come up higher, as we are commanded. I feel very unworthy, but the promise is to the faithful at the end of the race, where we will all get a fair judgment and be rewarded in accordance to our works.

I often think of the Saints in Southern Illinois and Southern Indiana, where I have enjoyed many sunny hours; and I hope they will all remember me when they go to the throne of God's rich grace that I may be useful and meet them all in the sweet bye and bye, if not permitted to meet them on earth again. I am in this work because it is of God.

Your brother,

L. F. DANIEL.

STANDLEY, I. T., Feb. 26.

Editors Herald.—When I last wrote I was at Seligman, Missouri. I closed my meetings, baptized two in the chilly waters of the creek. Leaving Seligman I journeyed down to Rogers, Arkansas, and found Sr. Wickes, one of the Lord's noble Saints, engaged in the millinery business. We secured the M. E. church for five nights, but not having time to remain we could not accomplish what we desired. Before departing we had the pleasure of baptizing Bro. Elbert Wickes.

Leaving Rogers we came on to Coal Hill, Arkansas, where there are about ten or twelve members, preaching about two weeks around about. I baptized Sr. Ellen Jennings who is now in Kentucky. We mounted Nahum's chariot and landed safe at home for the holidays. I have been around home ever since, preaching at Standley, Big Mill, Antlers, and Keosoma. We have something near sixty members here. The majority have recently joined, hence need a good deal of teaching. I am doing all I can to get them to continue in the good work, urging them to maintain good works. I am living at this place now. I am glad of my home, as it is in about the center of the Southwestern mission. Hope the church will keep me on the same mission, as I am acquainted with it and the people. My desire is to accomplish more for the cause this year than I have in the past. I am in the work for life.

RUSHFORD, Minn., March 5.

Editors Herald.—In the issue of February 14, page 110, I have read with a degree of sadness a communication by the President of the Quorum of the Twelve to that body asking them to assemble on March 25. He says:—

"The development of the work in the year just past has been of such a nature with the increased demand for laborers in the field and the pecuniary stringency existing as to require a serious and prayerful consideration of the same. It may be necessary to decrease the number of missionaries instead of sending an increased force into the field. I shall regret it very much if this should be the case," etc.

Bro. Smith very truthfully says that the Saints are affected by the stringent times as well as others, and they too feel the grinding effect of depression's heel; but after all it must come as sad news to every Saint's heart to hear such news as our brother has written to the Quorum of the Twelve; and I doubt not that many will ask themselves, "Must Zion lower her standard, or shall she go forward conquering and to conquer?" To me, as I read my Doctrine and Covenants, I find that the means that the church is to have to carry on the work of the gospel among those who know not of it in all the world is to be obtained through the law of tithing and freewill offering. The law of tithing as I can make it out is as binding on every Saint as repentance, or baptism, or the laying on of hands. It is as old as Abraham's time, as can be seen from Hebrews 7: 1, 2; and we find this language in Doctrine and Covenants 41: 2:—

"He that receiveth my law and doeth it the same is my disciple; and he that saith he receiveth it and doeth it not, the same is not my disciple, and shall be cast out from among you."

Now, Saints, do not for a moment suppose I am wishing to assume authority that I am not called to execute. As far as my authority extends it does not go beyond the prerogatives of the Aaronic priesthood; but if without any authority whatever, that would not deprive me of a great desire to see the latter day work move forward and the stone cut out of the mountain roll till it fills the whole earth. But if the means to keep the stone rolling is not given, it will surely come to a standstill, as was the case in an earlier day:—"But I command you, all ye my Saints, to build an house unto me; and I grant unto you a sufficient time to build an house unto me, and during this time your baptisms shall be acceptable unto me. But, behold, at the end of this appointment, your baptisms for your dead shall not be acceptable unto me; and if you do not these things at the end of the appointment, ye shall be rejected as a church with your dead, saith the Lord your God."—D. C. 107: 10, 11.

The failure to comply with this law resulted in the rejection of the church and there is one assurance we have from the Lord Jesus himself as is found in Matthew 13: 42, 43, Inspired Translation:—

"For in that day, before the Son of Man shall come, he shall send forth his angels and messengers of heaven. And they shall gather out of his kingdom all things which offend, and them which do iniquity, and shall cast them out among the wicked; and there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth."

Look at Webster's meaning of the word "offend." Among other meanings he says: "To cause to sin or neglect duty." "To transgress the moral or divine law." Accordingly to transgress any of God's laws is to "offend." All things that offend in the kingdom (and to me that sounds like it meant Latter Day Saints) shall be cast "out among the wicked." "For he who is not able to abide the law of a celestial kingdom, cannot abide a celestial glory," etc.—D. C. 85.

O that God's Saints in every part of the world would put their whole lives in the forward march of Zion and comply with every principle of law given. Then would a great outcome await them, even a crown of everlasting life from the hand of their Savior. But the law of the Lord must be complied with to obtain the fulfillment of these promises:—

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it."—Mal. 3: 10.

Dear Saints, let us comply with the above command, and instead of Christ's apostles calling a meeting with the possibility of cutting down the force in the Lord's vineyard may we rally round the Bishop, the Lord's storekeeper, with our tithes and offerings to sustain the hands of the ministers of that God whom we have covenanted to serve till the end; and instead of a diminishing of the force may a new addition, as the heavenly Father may direct, be sent out. The gospel surely is worth all our lives; the Son of God gave his life for you and me.

PIERRE, S. D., Feb. 18.

Editors Herald.—I came here last summer on business, but owing to the financial crisis did not attempt anything, so canvassed some for church publications, but was taken sick, and when after a few weeks I was able to work again, I found it necessary to obtain employment. I therefore applied for and obtained a position in an Indian training school, where about one hundred and ninety of the Sioux children are being educated. They are sent to school one half day each day in the week, except Saturday and Sunday. On the other half day, also on Saturday forenoon, they are detailed to some kind of work, and being put on different details as they go the rounds they gradually learn all kinds of work. Some of them make rapid progress. I think they learn as fast as most foreigners who do not understand our language, and, also that they are much easier to manage. They agree better and are truer to each other than that number of white children would be when taken together, being schooled and boarded in the same building; and although it is sometimes hard to get along with them, the work does not become monotonous; and I like teaching them much better than teaching white children, except that it is very taxing. Their parents often come in to see them, although they camp outside in their tepees: they come to the building to see their children, and in that way I get a chance to see them.

The other day I went to see some who were camped outside in a tepee. They had a young son only a few days old; he was a grandson of Sitting Bull. I wanted to name the child Nephi, but they would not let me. I had to talk to them through the assistance of another son who is at school.

How much I wish I could speak their language, so I could talk to them; but the Indian language is not allowed to be talked here, and no system of religion is taught. We always meet in the assembly room at half past three o'clock, Sunday, when gospel hymns are sung, the Lord's prayer repeated, some simple Bible story read, each given a Sabbath school paper, and they are then dismissed. They do not comprehend what is read to them but if they were divided into classes and each class given a teacher, I think they could be brought to an understanding and would after awhile form some idea of our Savior and the teachings of the Bible. I am told that they have great faith in the power of God, according to their understanding.

My heart goes out in pity for these people and I pray God that the time will soon come when their minds will be prepared to receive the gospel and it be preached to them. This is considered a very bad tribe of Indians, but I believe there are many honest-hearted ones among them; they do what they have been taught to believe is right. They are afraid of the whites, one reason why we cannot reach them, and whatever they do against us I believe is done with a feeling of self defense.

I feel blessed with the presence of the Spirit much more since coming here than before, and I believe God is fast preparing these people to hear and understand the gospel; and I believe there are many among them who will obey. I cannot tell how glad I would be to see them rejoice with us in a knowledge of the truth. May God bless his true servants with wisdom, power, and strength to spread his gospel until it covers the whole earth that the honest in heart everywhere may be sought out.

GUILFORD, Mo., March 4.

Editors Herald:—Conference of the Nodaway district was truly a good one. The Saints turned out beyond our expectations from the different branches, notwithstanding the bad roads; there were over fifty present at business meeting, in ample time for the morning session. Our prayer and preaching services were well attended by both Saints and friends; a good spirit prevailed throughout. Brn. John Hawley, James Thomas, and your humble servant did the preaching of the word. The singing was truly first class; the Guilford and Long Branch Saints unitedly put forth a noble effort in this direction. They deserve much credit; may their voices still improve, their hearts be continually filled with the love of God, and under the inspiration of his Spirit, be able to long fill their places in this much desired and praiseworthy work. We are holding forth in this place until Sunday. Shall stop off at Coin, Iowa, where our worthy Sister Woods wants us to preach a few nights.

The Saints here have done well. They need encouragement. Their hearts are in the work; they have stood by it for years; Bro. M. P. Madison as missionary and president of the district has done a good work. Bro. James Thomas is lifting up his voice in defense of the truth. He says his heart is in the work and he has a great desire to labor for its interests. Brn. John Hawley, James Woodhead, Ole Madison, and Bro. Powell, of Sweet Home, are still determined to press forward in the line of duty. And I am happy to state that our young brethren and sisters are not one whit behind in good works and faithfulness for the Master's cause.

The visit of Bro. Joseph Smith and E. L.

Kelley—their words of cheer and comfort to the Saints and friends—did much good. They all say, "Come again."

Your brother,

Editors Herald:—Seeing R. J. Anthony and myself are up with the times, "having a tilt," a correction is in order. Had R. J. A. not withheld (whether unwittingly or not) the conditions upon which my departure from Utah on January 13, as to be determined, it would have been all right as a report of the matter. Not leaving till the 29th this unnecessary "proxy" work threw my work askew, but then it is a long way from Utah to Lamoni and the shaking may mix things written. I read in Herald that R. J. Anthony was orator of the day on July 4. I was told at Pleasant Grove that he spoke after several others. Some one had evidently made a partial report.

My leaving on January 13, depended on whether I fulfilled Bro. H. N. Hansen's request to visit Provo, which I also wrote to R. J. A. and he did not use, thereby misrepresenting me.

I have done service here over two Sundays, and shall one more, reaching home on the 27th. The Saints are alive in this city and toiling on nobly against the difficulties of adverse conditions. May it be propitious to heaven and the church to furnish them more constant and long needed help. Several other cities have been so favored, why not give Denver a turn? None have wrought against adverse conditions more nobly than Denver Saints.

WHITLOCK, Tenn., Feb. 26.

Editors Herald:—Our conference was held at the Farmington branch in Kentucky. Several from the Foundry Hill branch were present. We had the pleasure of meeting Bro. Ouldcott, of Metropolis, Illinois, and Bro. Rosson, of Kenton, Tennessee. Notwithstanding the rain on Saturday, quite a number of happy Saints came and mingled their voices in prayer and praise. The Lord was very kind to us, for Sunday was a lovely day overhead. While thus waiting before the Lord we were blessed with the Spirit. Many wept for joy, and we were made glad and our hope strengthened, in the prayer and testimony meeting. Many of the Saints bore strong testimonies in defense of the work. The sacrament services were conducted by Brn. Seaton and Ouldcott. Bro. T. C. Kelley, of Illinois, delivered an eloquent sermon on Sunday evening. After services Bro. W. D. Cook, of Stubblefield, Kentucky, was ordained a priest.

The Monday following was a beautiful day for our return home, accompanied by quite a number who came to attend a four days debate. Bro. C. L. Snow, of Pilot Oak, Kentucky, affirming "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is the true church of Christ in faith, organization, doctrine, and practice," Elder R. C. Hill, of Crossland, Kentucky, denying, for the first two days. Then Elder Hill affirmed, "The Missionary Baptist Church is the true church of Christ in faith, organization, doctrine, and practice." Bro. Snow denied. Hill came with his two hundred pound box of books and a bottle of "pepper sauce;" Bro. Snow came with the Spirit of Christ and the Bible. His first speech was very smooth and to the point, followed by Hill shooting his loudest gun and caving around as though he had already won the victory. Bro. Snow's speeches were gradually blessed with the Spirit more and more each time, until on Thursday morning it rested upon him in great power, and continued till after the debate closed, while Hill became weaker and weaker, although he partook of his "pepper sauce" very freely. When the Spirit was manifested so forcibly the Devil began to rage, and the third moderator (of the Christian faith) was called, who decided in our favor. Then they proceeded very quietly with the discussion. Hill's last speech was very poor indeed. He only read from a reference book and never spoke over three minutes; he simply had nothing to say. Bro. Kelley was moderator for Bro. Snow and manifested a gentlemanly principle. Elder Span, of the Baptist faith, was moderator for Mr. Hill.

The Saints did well in going out during the inclement weather, and a very good attendance was had throughout. It was strengthening to the Saints, for the cause of Christ was ably and nobly defended by our worthy brother. When he sat down from his last speech a young lady and gentleman marched up to the pulpit and the girl spoke in a very loud harsh tone, "Bro. Hill, we present to you this little book"—and that was all she could say, and the young man had to finish—"to represent that you have gained the victory." Bro. Kelley arose and said: "I am glad to tell you that Bro. Snow has a Testament, and prouder to say that he believes it." Then Bro. Snow said: "If any present think I have gained the victory, give God the praise; I do not want it." Hill wanted everyone to extend the hand of fellowship while we sung, but we could not afford to do that; so they changed it to "friendship." Our closing hymn was No. 1078 Saints' Harp.

Brn. Ouldcott and Kelly stopped with us over Sunday, and we had prayer and testimony meeting Sunday morning at the church, Bro. Ouldcott addressing us for about half an hour, warning us to be faithful over few things that we might be made rulers over many. In the afternoon sacrament services were conducted by Brn. Kelley and W. H. Griffin, after which Bro. Kelley advised the Saints for about an hour on tithing.

Brn. Kelley and Ouldcott left this morning for Metropolis, Illinois, and our parting was a sad one, for we have learned to love them so much. Our prayers and desires are that Brn. Kelley and Turpen will be sent back on this mission, for they are loved by all and have done a good work, and there remains much to be done. The work is in much better condition than when they first came here.

I am still in the warfare; sin sometimes overcomes my weak spirit, and I do that which I desire not to do. I pray you, dear Saints that you will remember a poor soul in your prayers, and present me at the Father's throne of mercy that he may cleanse and purify me through the great love of our blessed Redeemer, that I may become able to rule my life and to serve him in all righteousness. May God in much mercy remember us all.

Your sister,

ELLA ROBERTS.

WAS PAUL ONE OF THE TWELVE.

BY J. R. LAMBERT.

IT is my strong conviction that if any of the Herald readers suffer themselves to lose interest in the church organ, simply because conflicting opinions are expressed therein, they make a mistake, and one which will result in their own loss. Controversy frequently brings to us opportunities which nothing else does or can bring of seeing and understanding men and things as they are; and I see no good reason why it should be shunned or avoided, except by that class who have made up their minds that certain men are right, and that certain other men are wrong, and who propose to continue to believe that way whether or not. Or that class who are not at all inclined to investigate, examine both sides, and then decide for themselves, but who prefer that certain chosen teachers should tell them what is right, and they do not wish to have their peace disturbed by seeing an expression of opposite views from anybody else. "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good," had its primary application to saints; and this rule should be observed by us. When we take into consideration our present imperfect state, it is not difficult to see that a paper which only presents harmonious views, is a very poor educator indeed.

By the above caption I do not mean, Was Paul one of the first Twelve chosen? for we all know that he was not: but, Was he a member of that same "order," or quorum, of apostles? The preponderance of evidence, it seems to me, plainly teaches that he was.

1. The office of "Apostle" is a permanent office which was established in the church by divine authority:—

And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, etc.—1 Cor. 12: 28.

And he [Christ] gave some, apostles, etc. Eph. 4: 11.

And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles.—Luke 6: 12, 13.

Here we have the name of the office which the Almighty established in his church, and not the name of a certain calling in that office. Please note the difference.

2. Paul held that office. The term "apostle" or "apostles" is applied to him, or to him in connection with others, about twenty-three times, while it is only applied to the Twelve (the first Twelve, I mean) about fifty-three times. (See Acts 14: 14; Rom. 1: 1; 11: 13; 1 Cor. 1: 1; 4: 9; 9: 1; 9: 2; 9: 5; 15: 9; 2 Cor. 1: 1; 11: 5; 12: 11; 12: 12; Gal. 1: 1; 1: 17; Eph. 1: 1; Col. 1: 1; 1 Thess. 2: 6; 1 Tim. 1: 1; 2: 7; 2 Tim. 1: 1; 1: 11; Titus 1: 1.

3. Paul used no other term to designate his office and calling, but the term "apostle," with one possible exception, (1 Tim. 4: 14,) where he may refer to himself as one of the elders. But even if he did, it is no evidence that he was anything more or less than an apostle in the Quorum of the Twelve. The term "elder" is frequently employed to designate anyone who holds the Melchisedek priesthood. Peter and John called themselves elders. (1 Peter 5: 1, 2; 2 John 1; 3 John 1.) In the Doctrine and Covenants 17: 8, we read that "an apostle is an elder," etc. Apostles, seventies, high priests, are all elders, but all elders are not apostles. (D. C. 104: 1-7.) Notice, Paul never calls himself a prophet, high priest, or seventy, but simply an apostle.

4. The statements of Paul imply that he was numbered with the Twelve:—

For I think that God hath set forth us the apostles last, as it were appointed to death, etc.—1 Cor. 4: 9. (Marginal translation: "Us the last apostles.")

Have we not power to lead about a sister, a wife, as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas? Or I only and Barnabas, have not we power to forbear working?—1 Cor. 9: 5, 6.

After that, he was seen of James; then of all the apostles. And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time. For I am the least of the apostles, that am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God.—1 Cor. 15: 7-9.

For I suppose I was not a whit behind the very chiefest apostles.—2 Cor. 11: 5. (See also 12: 11.)

Neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me, etc. But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the Lord's brother.—Gal. 1: 17, 19.

In the above texts there is not the slightest indication that Paul belonged to any other order of apostles than the one represented by the Twelve. He claimed to be equal to the "very chiefest" among them, but he did not claim to be more than equal in his official capacity, nor in any other respect except in the amount of labor performed. (1 Cor. 15: 10.)

5. There is no evidence that Paul was one of the First Presidency, which is the only quorum above that of the Twelve. And even the First Presidency do not hold an office which is greater than that of the apostleship, but are simply chosen to be leading apostles—"the very chiefest apostles" —holding prophetic gifts, and the first presidency over the whole church.

6. Paul's ministerial work as recorded in the New Testament, plainly indicates his office and calling in the church. It is identical with that which the organic law, contained in the Doctrine and Covenants, assigns to the Twelve Apostles. He had leading supervision over the churches where he labored:—

Beside those things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches.—2 Cor. 11: 28.

By letter and word, he set in order, or regulated, among the churches:—

And the rest will I set in order when I come.—1 Cor. 11: 34.

He directed how men were to be separated, or set apart, for the work of the ministry, also ordaining men himself:—

For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee.—Titus 1: 5. (See also 2 Tim. 1: 6.)

Although there is no evidence to show that Paul left "the word of God and served tables," he did nevertheless perform an active part in connection with the temporalities of the church:—

Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come. And when I come, whomsoever ye shall approve by your letters, them will I send to bring your liberality unto Jerusalem. And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.—1 Cor. 16: 1-4. (See also 2 Cor. 9th chapter.)

Compare the above scriptures with Doctrine and Covenants 104: 12, 16, 17, 30; 120: 4, 6; 16: 5; 17: 8; 117: 3; 114.

Thus we establish harmony, one of the evidences of truth which exists among all the revelations of God.

Now if Paul was not an apostle of the Quorum of the Twelve, where does he belong? Will some one who believes he was not, please answer this question.

In a leading editorial of the Herald for June 4, 1887, pp. 353, 354, Paul is presented prominently as one of the same order of apostles as the Twelve, also the same as Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery. Here are some of the statements as found on page 353:—

He was recognized as an apostle in Romans 1: 1, and other of the epistles. And in the revelation referred to in which Oliver Cowdery and David Whitmer were commanded to search out those who were to be the Twelve, who were to be called to declare the gospel, it is stated that Paul was an apostle,—the Lord calling him "mine apostle Paul."

Whatever, then, was the calling and priesthood of Paul, that was the calling, and the priesthood unto which Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery, as well as the Twelve, whose duty it was to be to ordain elders, priests, and teachers, were called.

It is true that the word "apostle,"—the root meaning of which is "one sent forth,"—is sometimes applied to those who are specially called to some department of gospel work, without reference to the office held; but this by no means authorizes them to exercise all the apostolic functions which belong to that office, as defined in the organic law of the church. It was by virtue of the apostleship to which Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery were called and ordained, that they regulated and presided over the church from 1830 till January 25, 1832, at which time Joseph Smith was ordained to the Presidency of the High Priesthood, at Amherst, Ohio. (Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 624.) And when the Seer was ordained and chosen as the President of the Church, he did not lose any of his apostolic authority, but continued to exercise it in the special calling of Prophet, Seer, and Revelator, or President over the High Priesthood. His office, proper, was still that of apostle, though he was one of the "pillars," or "the very chiefest" apostle in the church of God. This view, it is believed, is the correct one, and, therefore, is in harmony with what is written.

A WORD OF DEFENSE.—No. 1.

BY J. R. LAMBERT.

In Herald for February 21, Elder W. W. Blair begins his second reply to me on the question of "Church History," etc.; also his second reply to my first article which appeared in the Herald for July 8, and which occupies but little more than one column, that is, aside from the article of Elder Blair which I quoted from the Saints' Advocate, and which occupies about three and one half columns.

Now, I ask, where are the grounds for complaint against me? No one can say, in truth, that my article is either radical or unkind. It was written in explanation and defense of the action of the church. Did I, as a general representative of the church, who had been placed in one of its leading quorums by the voice of God and his people have the right to explain and defend such action? If not, where did Elder Blair get his authority to explain and oppose the decision of the church?

But a strong protest is made against the use I made of his article. I quoted the entire article contained in that number of the Advocate. One reason why I did this was to leave, as I supposed, no grounds for complaint. If as the brother affirms, there exists no harmony between the Advocate article on the one hand, and the conference resolution and my argument on the other hand, could not the readers of the Herald discern that fact? I made no comment on the article, except to indorse it. But objection is had to my manner of introducing it. I said:—

In this connection I present an editorial from the Saints' Advocate, for January, 1879, pp. 67-70. I present this article without comment except this: It is a valuable treatise on the subject before us, and throws much light on the present situation.

Concerning my use of the word "connection," against which complaint is made, I used it in this sense: "In this connection;" that is, at this juncture; which is neither improper nor unfair. One of the synonyms of "connection" is "junction." Junction is defined to mean:—

1. Act of joining, or state of being joined; union. 2. Place or point of union, especially of two lines of railway.

The definition of juncture is:—

1. Joint or articulation, 2. A point of time; an exigency; an emergency.

So every intelligent reader can see that I had good and sufficient grounds for the use I made of the word "connection," and on this point I only have this to add: The brother, or anyone else for that matter, is at liberty to use my articles as I used his, at any time. More than this, he is at liberty to say whatever he pleases about my articles, so long as he places them in juxtaposition with what he says, so the reader can judge for himself. God being my helper to be liberal-minded, and do right, I will never complain at such use of my articles, "worlds without end." But if Elder Blair objects to my using his articles in that way, let him furnish me with a definite statement of his protest, over his own signature, and I will try, henceforth, to act in harmony with it.

I, too, believe that much good may come to us by reason of controversy through the Herald, if we only do our part. Let us not shun the responsibility of proper investigation and decision for ourselves. Under existing conditions, (much as we may wish it otherwise,) it is not only necessary, but to prohibit it would constitute an illiberal, unjust, and unsafe step. If in these controversies there appears that which is indeed good cause for offense, we can only say in the language of the Master:—

Woe to that man by whom the offense cometh!

Those who are in harmony with the doctrine of Christ, in letter and spirit, are right; those who are in conflict with it, are wrong.

Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ; but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple.—Romans 16: 17, 18.

I do not affirm that Elder Blair stands convicted under the above scripture, for I am on the defense; but should it be claimed that I am found guilty, under this rule, I shall challenge the proof at once.

In proof of the position that "the church in all ages has witnessed conflicts of opinion among the ministry," Acts 15:1-19, 39, with Galatians 2:11-14 are cited. From the first we learn two points: First, there were certain persons who were anxious to append to the gospel, as authority, that which did not belong to it, although they regarded it as of "indispensable value and authority." Well, it is hardly necessary for us to inform the brother that we do not represent that side of the question. Second, the apostles and elders considered the matter, in conference capacity, similarly to the manner in which we considered the question of "church history," last spring. They decided against circumcision, by "common consent," and that ended the matter so far as the general church was concerned.

The second scripture cited, shows that Peter, instead of standing by the decision of the General Conference, began to dissemble, and practically to favor them of the circumcision; and as it is now, so it was then, a very good man, Barnabas, "was carried away with their dissimulation."

Elder Blair undertakes to more fully define his position on church history. He says:—

As to this latter statement I have to say, I intended to plainly set forth in my article in the Herald for July 22 last, that the history of the church contained in the Evening and Morning Star, Messenger and Advocate, Times and Seasons, and Millennial Star, (all of them the accredited organs of the church,) or found in any and all other accredited church documents, and published prior to the death of the Prophet Joseph Smith, ought to be accepted as genuine and reliable, and that only what was afterwards published by the Brighamite leaders was open to doubt and adverse criticism. In this way I sought to define, with much care and precision, just what portion of the history of the church should be free from condemnation, or suspicion, whether by individual Saints or by quorums, councils, or conferences. This essential distinction I emphasized repeatedly in my article in the Saints' Advocate for January, 1879, as may be seen on pages 432-3-4, of Herald for last year.

As stated before, the conference resolution says nothing about the history contained in the Evening and Morning Star, and the Messenger and Advocate, or what is found in "all other acceded church documents, published prior to the death of the Prophet Joseph Smith," but is confined entirely in its wording, to the Times and Seasons, and the Millennial Star. Again: What are we to understand by the claim that all these publications contain the history of the church? Here the brother has left us all at sea on a very important matter, if the history contained in these periodicals is to "be employed as authority in matters affecting the government of the church." Are we required to wait until some more important discoveries are made, so that "individual Saints," "quorums, councils, or conferences," may know just what parts of the subject matter contained in these papers is indeed "authentic history," to be used as authority in the government of the church? The trouble with this position is, the more one undertakes to define it, the more he gets into the fog. It seems to me that the correct position is that these "accredited organs of the church" contain (largely, at least,) the material facts and truths out of which an authentic history may be made. But where do we have such a history? The nearest thing to it is the one written by the Seer, and published in the Times and Seasons; and that part which was published in the lifetime of Joseph Smith only runs to November, 1831, or a little more than eighteen months from the time when the church was organized!

Further: The church has never accepted any history to be used as an authority in matters affecting her government. Is it right to fasten something onto the church, as authority without her consent? Primitive church history, outside of the Bible, is more a history of the apostasy than of primitive Christianity. Outside of the history contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, is it not largely so with the restored church? I think so. The latter-day apostasy commenced long before the death of Joseph Smith, and the revelations show that its baneful influences permeated the church to an alarming extent. This being true, the history will, even if correct, show the blighting influences of this deadly, spiritual poison, in sermons preached, decisions rendered, as well as in other work done. Shall we accept such a record as this as a proper authority in the government of the church?

Still further: We are under no obligations to accept such an authority, to be used in the government of the church, from any injunction contained in the three sacred books; but we are expressly commanded to take the Scriptures, the Book of Mormon, and the later revelations, as our guide and authority. (D. C. 41:1, 2; 42:16; 83:8.) All who complied with this divine rule were to be saved; all who did not, were to be damned, if they continued. Does this cover the whole ground?

It must be admitted that church history, ancient and modern, is not always harmonious. The brother will have to admit this, or throw away the interpretations which he has placed on some of the teachings and decisions of Joseph the Seer. How, then, can we use for authority, in the government of the church, that which conflicts with itself?

After writing a lengthy introduction, Elder Blair states the following:—

After the foregoing introduction, I now undertake a more direct reply to some points in the articles of Bro. Lambert on church history, and other matters which he introduces therewith, and will further add that much of the controversy found in the Herald from 1885 to 1894 has arisen from attacks made by Bro. Lambert and two or three others upon editorials that did not suit their views on matters under consideration. Of these arraignments of the editors and first presidents of the church, the Saints and others have judged and will further judge, both as to their propriety and as to their merit. For one, as a church officer and an editor, I am quite content to abide my time and the just judgment of God and the faithful Saints.

When Elder Blair wishes to prefer charges against me for unministerial and unchristian conduct, because of these articles which I have written from 1885 till 1894, he is at perfect liberty to do so, so far as I am concerned. It will then be shown, by the defense, that I have simply and only expressed my opinion in a frank and decent manner, and occasionally, it has been in opposition to opinions held and expressed by one or both of the editors of the Herald, especially one of them. It will be shown that in some of the most important matters at issue, I was standing with and for the church. It will also be shown that in some minor points of difference which arose some years ago, my position has been vindicated, and announced as the correct one, by the Herald itself within the last two years.

The President of the Church has stated before the Quorum of the Twelve, Elder Blair being present, that an editorial written by himself was not, necessarily, the views of the President of the Church, but simply the opinion of the editor of the Herald. Will Elder Blair claim the right to express himself as often and plainly as he chooses, in opposition to views honestly held by subordinates, and at the same time inform these brethren of his, who love the work just as dearly as he does, and upon whom leading responsibilities have also been placed, that they must hold their peace? So far as I am concerned, I would be ashamed to deny to a subordinate the privilege of expressing himself in opposition to my expressed views. This is not my idea of the manner in which we should seek to govern the Church of God. In view of these facts, is it right to call my articles "arraignments of the editors and first presidents of the church"? I am glad that "the Saints have judged and will further judge" of these matters. It is their privilege and duty to do so. I only ask that they be very careful and "judge righteous judgment." I request this for their own good and safety; for my good, and for the good of the work at large. Concerning my final destiny, God alone knows what it will be. But should Elder Blair and myself meet before the throne of the great Judge, and at the same time, I expect to hold up my head, look them both in the face, and tell the Judge that in this matter I sought to do my duty in the interests of his work, by defending the truth and the right as I saw them, and that whatever my shortcomings may have been, I avoided acting the part of a coward or a slave. My brother, I am not the least afraid to risk my case with God.

Elder Blair quotes the following statement from my article:—

Special pleading must be had in order, it would seem, to bring the Saints into certain lines of thought, whether or not, and at all hazards.

I believe that I had abundant and good grounds for this statement, as I meant it, and have been recently and strongly confirmed in that view; but if it appeared to the brother that my statement impugned his motives I beg pardon for the offense given, believing that motive should not enter into this discussion. It is true, as I am able to show, that several statements of the brother's articles do strongly impugn the motives of my brethren and myself; but that is his lookout, not mine, and it is no excuse for a departure from gospel rules on my part.

Bro. Blair makes the following observation:—

Bro. Lambert charges in paragraph five that I "practice" making the church history "more than a collateral witness;" but he utterly fails to prove it even by garbled extracts from my writings in Herald, page 462, for 1893.

Will the brother show wherein I garbled his writings, or confess that he has done me an injustice by stating that which is not true? I know that I had no intention of doing so, and I am satisfied after looking the matter up, that I did not do it. As to the charge that he made history "more than a collateral witness," I made my point, and Elder Blair has not hurt it in the least, as yet. He calls my reply to him, on this point, an evasive one, and undertakes to support the claim by showing that he had no reference to the apostles, etc. He said "we," not "them," etc. Very well, who did he mean by this "we"? Did he not mean Latter Day Saints? And if he did, and I proceeded to show that neither former nor Latter Day Saints are dependent on history for the very things which he claims they are, is that an evasive reply? It is simply making my reply more sweeping than the claim made, which is neither evasive nor improper. If, as the brother affirms, "it is left for history to explain how, in what mode, and in what way this command [baptism] was observed; also with whom, and for what purpose, that rite was administered," and "we" are dependent upon history for all this, does he not herein, as well as in other respects, make it more than a collateral witness? Now if the revelations of God to us, in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants, clearly explain the "how," "mode," "way, also with whom, and for what purpose, that rite was administered," we are not at all dependent upon history for that information; but if these sacred books do not show these things clearly, and the history does, then the history becomes a principal instead of a "collateral witness."

I introduced my statement against the abuse of history in the following manner:—

Now let us, for the sake of the illustration, accept history, even the history in the Bible, for a principal witness, and see what the result will be.

Elder Blair denies that he uses history as a principal witness, and then proceeds to deny what I say would be the results of thus using it, which fact, of itself, gives strong coloring to the charge made. My first proof is from the New Testament on the practice which obtained in the primitive church of having "all things common." This first and leading example of the truth of my position, Elder Blair passes by unnoticed. If I furnish one example in support of my position which cannot be moved out of the way, my position is proved, even though I made a mistake in the selection of every other example. But we will see how well he succeeds with my second example. Elder Blair quotes the first sentence of an entire paragraph, (to which I do not object,) which reads as follows:—

The New Testament fails to show, except by inference, that Christ placed any other order of apostles in the church than those placed in the Quorum of Twelve.

Replying to this, Elder Blair proceeds to show, first, that Christ was an apostle. Did Christ take his priesthood authority and then place himself in the church?

So also Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest; but he that said unto him, Thou art my Son, to-day have I begotten thee. Called of God an high priest after the order of Melchisedec.—Heb. 5: 5, 10.

The order of Christ's priesthood is stated; but there is no more proof that his apostleship was of a different order from that of the Twelve than there is that his high priesthood was different from that possessed by all other high priests. Will the brother tell us what order of high priests Christ belonged to? If he stood alone both as an apostle and high priest, then did he constitute an "order"? Second, he mentions Paul, Barnabas, Sylvanus, Timotheus, Andronicus, and Junia, and adds,

It is nowhere in that history stated that they were at any time members of the Quorum of the Twelve.

Indeed! Does it state anywhere that they were members of any other quorum? No, it does not. How then will the brother prove that they were members of some other quorum? At the best, only by inference; and my statement admits that "by inference" it may be proved that Christ placed some other order of apostles in his church. If the brother is successful in his effort to prove that Christ placed some other order of apostles in his church than that of the Twelve, according to the New Testament, he will prove nothing more than what my statement admits may be done "by inference." Why does Elder Blair, after complaining against me, so misrepresent my statement? This, to me, is the unpleasant part of controversy. It does not disturb me at all that a superior or subordinate should express views different from my own, for if mine are right they will stand; and if wrong, I do not want them to stand; but there are some other unmentionable things which I greatly deplore, because of their baneful effects.

After referring to his proof texts from the New Testament, Elder Blair says:—

In the light of these facts, is it safe and proper to teach that Christ did not place "any other order of apostles in the church than those placed in the Quorum of the Twelve?"

My statement is that "the New Testament fails to show, except by inference, that Christ placed any other order of apostles in the church," etc. It does seem to me that it would be better for us to wipe off the dust and blow it away, where we find it, than to raise a cloud and hide the point at issue.

In conclusion on this point, Elder Blair presents the following:—

In connection with the foregoing it is proper to say that modern revelation (and modern church history) teach that there were and are many apostles in the church who were not and are not "those placed in the Quorum of the Twelve," as see Doctrine and Covenants 16: 3; 17: 1; 19: 1, 3; 26: 3; 83: 10; also that revelation placed some of these apostles, not of the Quorum of the Twelve, to preside over the entire church (D. C. 17: 1; 19: 1, 3; 26: 3; 87: 1, 2, 5; 107: 29); and also that some of these apostles were called of God to preside over, counsel, direct, and lead those apostles placed in "the Quorum of the Twelve," as see Doctrine and Covenants 104: 12; 105: 6, 7, 12, and 107: 3. And to this modern church history agrees.

The point at issue, just now, is not what "modern" or ancient revelation teaches, or does not teach; but is it safe to rely upon history as a principal witness. I am affirming that it is not. The brother says "that modern revelation (and modern church history) teach that there were and are many apostles in the church who were not and are not 'those placed in the Quorum of the Twelve.'" etc.

Will the reader please compare the words "those placed in the Quorum of Twelve," as they are made to do duty, with my statement, and then tell me whether the brother has garbled from my writings; and if he has not, how will he proceed to prove that I have garbled from his writings? My statement has direct reference to the "order" of apostles, whether they are in the Quorum of Twelve or out of it. Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery presided over the church, at the first, by virtue of their apostleship, and not because they were members of the First Presidency; for even Joseph himself was not ordained as President of the High Priesthood till January 25, 1832. (Times and Seasons 5: 624.) Let me inform the brother that we indorse all that these revelations teach; and that the issue before us is on the use that should be made of church history.

They reported as follows: "Whereas, in the death of our aged and respected brother, Elder James Brown, this district has lost a consistent Christian and Saint and a faithful laborer in the Master's vineyard; Therefore, be it resolved that while we mourn his loss, we rejoice in the testimony of his life for the Master as a man of quiet, unassuming character, whose love for the work and his fellow men prompted him to consecrate his life and energies to leading souls to Christ. Resolved that this conference extend its sincerest sympathies to his bereaved children and friends." AN APPEAL.

Saints of the Nodaway, Missouri, district. Brethren:—As one of a committee appointed last November to solicit means to purchase a gospel tent, I take the liberty to make this appeal. I am informed that the committee was continued by the conference just past with the power to purchase a tent as soon as there were sufficient funds to do so. If we have a tent this season we should have it in operation as soon as the weather is sufficiently warm to admit, and it seems to me that we have had time enough (four months) to obtain the required amount, $85.60, with bale, ring, block, and tackle, or $74.20 without, at the factory. This kind is oblong and 26 x 40 feet in size. I have, collected and subscribed, about $27, some of which is from members who subscribed with the understanding that it was to be paid about March 1, and I certainly think that April 15 is time sufficient to obtain the required amount, and unless it is so reported to me I shall take the liberty to withdraw from the committee and return the money to the donors at the risk of being called a kicker. The conference said by vote, Let's have a tent. Will we stand by the resolution? If not, there is no use of passing any, if it is only to be ignored?

In bonds,
J. L. GUNSOLLEY.

1867. Every opportunity permitting he bore a faithful testimony to the truth revealed and manifested in the gospel of the kingdom of God. About 1875 in a vision he saw the celestial sphere and was shown the beautiful temple and many of the ancient seers and many of the brethren and sisters of the latter-day faith. He heard the Savior deliver a discourse to the saints in the temple, and he was shown Joseph Smith the Martyr who held an eminent position and great honor among the ancient prophets. He also saw his departed wife, who gave him words of encouragement and advice. He wished to remain in that glory, but the messenger told him he must return to the earth and remain his allotted time, and if he remained faithful to the covenant, that he would be permitted to enter into that sphere of life and glory. The voice of the Spirit commanded him to arise and write the vision, to which he complied, and then returned to bed.

She departed this life September 9 at the ripe age of 81 years. Laid to rest in the Old cemetery, Kay Hill, Birmingham, England, September 14, 1893.

A VISION OF LIFE.

Sr. Catternole some years prior to her death in a vision saw the mountain of life with many paths and precipices, but there she entered a narrow and difficult path to climb. She traveled upward for many long years, but she became very weary and felt the dark almost insurmountable. She then took a rest and duly thought if it would be possible to continue onward. There she beheld an exceeding steep mountain too difficult to climb, but a messenger full of peace, and love, and encouragement invited her to try once more and continue the journey; the name of the mount was Victory and at the end of the path was the gate of peace, on which was written, "Here is rest for the tried and the true." She took courage again, and taking hold of the iron hand rail, she surmounted the task placed before her. She entered the gate of peace and beheld the paradise of God. In the midst thereof was the tree of life, upon which hung a great quantity of crowns of celestial life and glory, and to each crown a marriage robe. Every one who entered there had to put on the marriage robe, for the saints there were preparing for the great universal marriage of the beloved Son of God, which soon would take place at the final redemption of this earth. By the side of the gate of peace she saw her grave. She told the writer this vision about six months before her death. She was a woman of exceeding great faith, a mother in Israel, an example of truth and love, a loving mother, a dear sister, and a true friend whom we shall never forget.

E. A. WEBB.

A wife, eight children, a sister, and three brothers mourn their loss. Funeral services held at the family residence by Elder S. B. Robinson, assisted by Elder B. Robinson,

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The police of Barcelona, Spain, have found a cache of dynamite explosives, which it is supposed were to be used by Anarchists. Spanish Anarchists are supposed to be in league with others in various parts of Europe.

PARIS, March 3.—The week has been an exciting one in diplomatic circles because of the revelations concerning the Franco-Russian alliance which have been published by the Figaro. Although there are many details still lacking, those who are well informed know that an understanding exists between the Foreign Offices of St. Petersburg and Paris, but a period of six years may be necessary in order to fix the points as to when the military understanding will enter upon an active stage.

ROME, March 3.—It was expected that Sig. Crispi would secure a great majority in the Italian Chamber, but the result far exceeded all expectations, for the vote to-day on the question of proclaiming martial law in Sicily and Malta was 342 out of 409, with twenty-two absentees.

LONDON, March 3.—It was officially announced late this evening that the Queen had accepted the resignation of Mr. Gladstone and that her Majesty had summoned Lord Rosebery and offered him the post of Prime Minister in Mr. Gladstone's stead. It was further officially announced that Lord Rosebery had accepted the position. He is the choice of Mr. Gladstone and of the Queen. Were he not a peer there would be no question as to the fitness of his selection. He is the ablest man of the Cabinet after the retirement of Mr. Gladstone, and though he is a member of the House of Lords he is more trusted by the British democracy than any of his colleagues. He has served the people in many capacities, and they have implicit confidence in him. By the accident of birth he is a member of the House of Lords. His tastes are no doubt aristocratic. His associations are patrician. In politics, however, he is a Radical. In public life he has always been the champion of the masses. He is the adopted political son of Mr. Gladstone, and since he appeared on the hustings at Midlothian fifteen years ago with his leader he has been his unswerving and devoted supporter.

He served the democracy of London as the chairman of the County Council and as Alderman, and was as progressive as John Burns. Only a few months ago he aided the British miners by bringing a seemingly hopeless strike to a successful conclusion. He has supported Mr. Gladstone's home rule policy, his Parish councils bill, his eight-hours rule for the government workmen, and his employers' liability bill. The only objection to him as a leader of the British Liberals is that he is a peer, and, as he has said himself, that is his misfortune and not his fault.

While he is popular with the masses he enjoys the confidence of the classes in a greater degree than any other Liberal statesman. As Foreign Secretary he maintained British prestige in Europe.

BERLIN, March 3.—The Reichstag committee to-day adopted Art. 1 of the Russo-German commercial treaty by a vote of 13 to 8. The committee later also adopted several other articles of the same treaty.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 5.—No matter what action the Central Board of Education takes at its meeting to-morrow night week the American Mechanics will go into court and ask for an injunction to restrain the Charity nuns from teaching in the thirty-fourth Ward School.

MADRID, March 4.—A dispatch from Melilla states that Gen. Martinez de Campos, the special envoy who was sent to the Sultan of Morocco by Spain to present the Spanish demands for indemnity for the attacks made upon Melilla by the Riff tribesmen, has brought his negotiations to a successful conclusion. The Sultan will pay to Spain in settlement of its claims the sum of 20,000,000 pesetas.

BUENOS AYRES, March 5.—The elections for members of the Chilean Congress, according to a dispatch received here from Santiago, resulted in favor of the Liberal party.

PARIS, March 6.—Lord Dufferin's speech, made here yesterday evening, in which he declared that the prospects for European peace were even brighter than in 1893, has produced an excellent impression in France and in England. The French papers applauded the speech of the British Ambassador.

The examination of 106 Anarchists was completed yesterday, comprising nearly all arrested recently. Thirty-four were held and the others were released for want of evidence.

HURON, S. D., March 6.—Representative men from various parts of the State interested in artesian wells and irrigation are holding a convention here devising plans for securing a practical system. The laws of South Dakota relating to artesian wells and irrigation were discussed at length and several changes recommended, both State and national. Congressman Pickler telegraphed his willingness to assist in procuring Congressional action on such points as the convention may suggest.

BUDA PESTH, March 5.—This city was the scene to-day of a great gathering of people from all parts of the country. The object of the meeting was to declare in support of the government's measure providing for civil marriage, religious liberty, and recognition of the Jewish faith. It is estimated that at least 100,000 persons took part in the demonstration. Lines were formed in various parts of the city, and the processions, with bands playing and banners flying, moved to a central point, where all joined in one gigantic parade. Prime Minister Werkle and other members of the Hungarian Cabinet viewed the procession from the windows of houses. They were loudly applauded as the procession moved by. Many speakers addressed the crowd in favor of the government's measures and resolutions were adopted pledging those present to support the government in its effort to secure the approval of the Diet to the bill in question.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 6.—An Ottawa dispatch to the Colonist says the government has entered into a ten years' contract with James Huddard, subject to the sanction of Parliament, for a line of Canadian Atlantic steamers capable of steaming twenty knots an hour to connect with the Australian steamship line at Vancouver by the Canadian Pacific railway, Quebec and Halifax to be the Atlantic terminals. It is expected the British Government will handsomely subsidize the service.

WABASH, Ind., March 7.—Indian Commissioner M. H. Kidd of this city has been summoned to Muscogee, I. T., by a telegram stating that the Choctaws have consented to negotiate with the Dawes Commission looking to the abandonment of tribal relations and the acceptance of lands in severalty.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, March 7.—The delegates who have been attending the conference called to discuss the inter-colonial postal and telegraph service, have passed a resolution in favor of a Pacific cable to America, the route to be via Samoa, Fanning Island, and Honolulu to Vancouver. It is said that this route is likely to be supported by the Governments of the United States, of Germany, France, Great Britain, and Canada.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 7.—Much interest was expressed at the Capitol to-day concerning the news from Australia that the authorities there are moving to secure cable communication with the United States. The importance of this has been emphasized by occurrences of the last year in the Hawaiian Islands. There is now a proposition before Congress looking to the establishment of such a line, and Senator Morgan, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, said he had no doubt this government would be willing to cooperate with the Australian authorities in an effort in this direction.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 7.—Much feeling has been aroused in religious circles, and among freethinkers as well, over the resolution of Representative Morse of Massachusetts to secure recognition of the Deity in the Constitution. While petitions in favor of the measure have been received from many religious bodies, other petitions equally strong in their terms have been presented against the proposition by organized bodies of freethinkers. Having heard the statements of the church people, the committee is confronted with the question whether it shall afford a hearing to the antagonists of the resolution. Requests for hearings have been made by freethought societies of New York, Chicago, and Washington, and the question whether the freethinkers will be accorded a hearing will probably be decided by the committee at its next meeting.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 7.—The Attorney-General to-day rendered an opinion that a minister of the gospel residing in another State may legally celebrate the marriage ceremony in this State provided he complies with the law relative to making the return.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 6.—The brig Albert has arrived from Honolulu. It left there February 20, five days later than the date of last previous advices. At the regular meeting February 15 of the Government Council the Hon. F. M. Hatch read the report of the Judiciary committee on the petition for the enlargement of the Advisory Council recommending, as reported in the newspapers, that there be chosen delegates to fill up the councils and to prepare a Constitution for a permanent form of government. The report was adopted and a committee appointed by the President to prepare an act for the holding of the constitutional convention. At the same meeting Mr. Hatch was elected and took his seat as Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The mass meeting of the Chinese last night was largely attended. The newspapers report the attendance of 3,000. Vigorous resolutions against the proposed legislation of the government were passed.

RICHMOND, Va., March 6.—The Legislature to-day passed a bill to engraft the Australian ballot system into the existing election laws in Virginia. The measure has an educational feature and will practically disfranchise two thirds of the negro voters.

MONTEVIDEO, March 3.—Gen. Baretta has a force of 3,000 loyal troops at Santos and can hold the place against any land attack. The city is impregnable to assault by water. The people of Santos strongly sympathize with Admiral Mello, but they are powerless. The dynamite cruiser Nitheroy landed reinforcements at Santos and then sailed north, bound for Bahia.

The condition of affairs at Rio is terrible. The epidemic of yellow fever is the worst in five years. Three thousand political prisoners crowded into the castle prison are dying like dogs of the pestilence. On four foreign ships the captains and 400 sailors have died. The rebel transport Venus with all on board was lost off Porto Madama.

RIO JANEIRO, March 6.—It is reported here that the church party has been supplying Admiral Saldanha da Gama and the rebel fleet with funds, in return for which Da Gama has promised that in case the rebellion is successful State aid will be restored to the church. Rumors reached here to-day that the government troops have sustained defeat on the Sao Paulo frontier, but they lack confirmation. The government has prolonged the state of siege again, this time until May.

Returns from the polling places give the supporters of President Peixoto a majority in the next Congress.

The rebel fleet in the bay has been entirely inactive during the last week. This is considered fortunate because the authorities in Rio are busy enough fighting the yellow-fever epidemic.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 6.—Two gatling guns and a full supply of ammunition are on their way to Eagle. A large body of strikers has left Montgomery for Fayetteville for an attack on the county jail. The strikers will attempt to liberate their brethren confined there. They will be joined by another large body of men moving toward the same point from Mount Carbon. The crisis which was expected to come at Eagle last night failed to occur. Everything passed off quietly.

Two dead and thirteen wounded is the latest report of the result of last Wednesday's fray. The Governor say to-night there is no apprehension of further trouble among the miners GREENSBURG, Pa., March 7.—Information from a prominent official of the H. C. Frick Coke company is to the effect that within two weeks nearly every coke oven in the Connells-ville region will be fired up. The move will cover at least 90 per cent of all the ovens in the region—more, it can be said, than have been in operation for three years past. At the very lowest estimate 6,000 men who are now idle will be given employment. The Hungarian and foreign element in the Connells-ville region, it appears, was never so scarce as now, because hundreds have left within the last few months for their foreign homes. This fact will largely involve the employment of American labor at the work. This move on the part of the Frick company, it is also stated, is brought about by the great volume of orders coming from furnace companies and mills in various parts of the country. The McClure Coke company also will increase the percentage of working ovens fully 50 per cent, thus giving employment to about 1,500 men who are now idle.

THE HAGUE, March 7.—Dispatches have been received reporting that fighting has occurred between the Duch and the Achinez near Melaboch in the Island of Sumatra. The Duch loss amounted to five killed and seventeen wounded.

PORT NATAL, South Africa, March 7.—The Portuguese having obstructed the progress of the British parties engaged in telegraph construction, marines were landed to protect them. The Portuguese fired upon the British, when both engaged in conflict. Reinforcements are being sent to both parties.

BATHURST, March 7.—The English men-of-war are bombarding Gonjoy, the stronghold of Chief Fodisilah, to-day. After shelling the town from daylight until ten o'clock this morning a ship's boat approached the shore and attempted to make a landing. The occupants of the boat were received with a hot fire from the enemy, who were posted behind a sand bank which was surmounted by dense bush. Many of the enemy were armed with Martinis. The British boat was forced to retire and the bombardment of the stronghold was again begun, continuing until one o'clock in the afternoon.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March. 7.—It is said on reliable authority that the Central Board of Education, will reject the application for teachers' certificates filed by the Sisters of Charity who have been elected by the Riverside School Board. A straw vote has been taken, and only about five out of the thirty-seven members favor issuing the certificates. State Councilor Kerr of the American Mechanics has laid his plans carefully and is prepared to take the case into court as soon as the board acts. The sentiment stirred up among Mechanics all over the United States is evident from the voluntary offers of financial support received by the State Councilor. It is estimated that upward of $20,000 will be raised in Pennsylvania alone. It is the intention to carry the case through the highest courts should the nuns show a disposition to maintain their position. Whatever the result of the present controversy, there is a strong possibility that the State Legislature will be called upon at its next session to enact laws forbidding the employment of nuns in public schools that will be unmistakable in their interpretation. To this end the members of the Mechanics are already mapping out their campaign.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 4.—Six dynamite cartridges were found in the new Kent and Stanley building early this morning, with fuses attached in such a manner that when the engines started they would have exploded and wrecked the structure. The police can find no clew to the authors of the attempted outrage.

Three thousand unemployed made a demonstration at Toronto, Ontario, March 6.

Youngstown, Ohio, street car strikers resorted to violence and beat nonunion men and threw stones and other missiles through car windows on the 6th inst. The riot was a serious one.

LONDON, March 7.—Mr. Gladstone is seriously ill as a result of a chill. Late to-night his condition was improved, but it still made necessary the attendance of two physicians. His temperature, however, is only slightly above normal and his strength is good. He remains in bed.

HIDALGO, March 6.—The expulsion of the Jesuits from Mexico is causing much serious thought among those having the welfare of the republic at heart. The first blow has been struck at Jesuitism by the expulsion of the Jesuits in the college of this city by Bishop Montes de Oca, and to-day they are all out of power in San Luis Potosi and have been ordered to leave at once. Matters have been in an ominous state for many months. Many efforts have been made to bring peace again in the divided ranks of Catholicism, but have been unavailing. When the Bishop made announcement of his final decision of expulsion of the Jesuit fraternity every possible pressure was brought to bear and every known subterfuge employed to prevent the carrying out of the edict of banishment, but to no avail. It is freely predicted that it is the beginning of trouble, and that this is the first outbreak of a deep seated and growing opposition to Jesuit domination which is felt in all parts of the republic. It is thought the action of Bishop Montes de Oca will be the sign for an uprising in many parts of the country against the Jesuits, and that if they are not expelled they will be shorn of a large part of their power.

Gladstone is better.

A bomb was exploded at the corner of the Parliament building at Rome, March 8, while the Chamber of Deputies was in session. Eight persons were wounded. The police made some arrests.

BERLIN, March 8.—The Reichstag committee which has been considering the Russo-German commercial treaty passed that measure to-day by a vote of 16 to 12.

BATHURST, March 8.—The British forces are still meeting with a stubborn resistance in their attempt to rout the forces of Podisilah, the chief of the slavers. A flying column found Bakamar will fortified with stockades, and there was heavy firing on all sides. Finally the troops shelled the town and sent a number of rockets into it, setting fire to several houses and doing considerable other damage. The fight lasted an hour, after which the British destroyed the town.

The Brazilian insurgent Admiral Da Gama is reported to despair of success and to be seeking a chance to surrender to foreign naval commanders.

A detachment of British troops was surrounded by native tribesmen and annihilated in Assane, British India. Fears are entertained for the safety of an expedition sent to punish the tribesmen.

Trouble exists in the Dutch and Spanish ministries. Both may resign.

Denver, Colorado, police are massed at the city hall to resist the State militia should Governor Waite attempt to present incumbents and install police commissioners appointed by him.

The question is discussed from Biblical, Historical, and Scientific standpoints. WHY IS THE JEW HATED?

RABBI ADOLPH MOSES.

IN making an attempt to explain the existence of prejudices against the Jews, of hate open or covert, brutal or perfidiously insinuating, I will endeavor to do so in a spirit of calmness, without anger or bitterness, dealing with the matter as if it were no more nor no less than any other question in sociology. As the chiefest, the most mischievous, and the most abiding of all the causes of prejudice against the Jews, we must consider the pernicious influence which the preaching of most Christian ministers regarding Jews and Judaism has had on the mind and heart of young and old. Jew-hating and Jew-baiting are mainly the effects of seventeen hundred years of what is miscalled Christian preaching against the Jews. As long as the religion of holiness, of justice, of mercy,—as long as the gospel of the Prophet of Galilee was preached by the Jews and a few Gentiles of superior moral excellence, Christianity was indeed a religion of universal brotherhood and love. But, as soon as large masses of Romans and Greeks were converted, they inoculated the religion of love, of infinite pity for every human being, as taught by the lowly and holy Rabbi of Nazareth, with their own cruel pagan spirit, with the virus of their inhuman Jew-hatred. From the time that Christianity was made the state religion by the murderer Constantine, there was no peace for the Jew in the Roman world. That year there began a carnival of hate, calumny, and persecution against the Jews which has not ceased to this day. The ministers of the religion of love and broad humanity prevailed upon the Emperors to rob the Jews; first, of all their political rights, and soon, also, of all civil, of all human rights. They seemed to consider the persecution and degradation of the Jews the main task imposed upon them by the religion of Christ. Worship of Jesus Christ and hatred of Jews came to be interchangeable ideas with the priests of the church. The direful influence of the clergy succeeded in making the ignorant people believe that to oppress the Jew was the first duty of a good Christian; to heap insults on him was as meritorious as almsgiving or churchgoing; to make him wretched in body and soul was the dearest service one could render the Holy Trinity.

The sight of Jews marked by yellow spots on their garments; the sight of Jews moving in fear and trembling through the streets; the sight of Jews caged in narrow and filthy Ghetto's; the sight of Jews hooted and pelted by the rabble; the sight of Jewish women, with their innocent babies in their arms, hunted like wild beasts; the sight of whole Jewish congregations, driven into their synagogues and burned like rats—was, to believing Christians, an irrefutable demonstration that God abominates the fallen race. And the noble work of alienating the heart of the Christian, from his brother, the Israelite; of making the Gentile look upon the Jew as a social pariah, so successfully carried on by the priests of the past ages, is being valiantly continued by our modern preachers, in the name of religion, for the greater glory of Jesus Christ! I do not hesitate to declare, that but for the uncharitable and perverted views regarding Jews and Judaism, expressed Sunday after Sunday, year in and year out, by the great majority of Christian divines, there would not exist in the world, and least of all in America, one tenth of the inherited prejudice against, and of the traditional dislike of, the Jews. There are, to be sure, numerous exceptions among the Christian clergy. I know a goodly number of clergymen, whose sermons breathe the spirit of true religion, and, therefore, of true Christianity; who try to glorify Jesus without villifying Judaism and the Jews. But, the great majority of Christian ministers are guilty of the wrong we complain of, and under which we suffer so grievously. They sow, probably without being aware of it, the dragon's teeth of anti-Jewish prejudices.

You, ministers of religion, sit in the seats of the prophets. It is your office to spread peace and good will among men, to teach the brotherhood of all mortals, the divine sonship of all human beings. In the name of the prophets and holy singers of Israel, on whose spiritual manna Christians and Jews alike are feeding; in the name of the heroic Maccabee, who lived and died for you as well as for us; in the name of the great Master of Nazareth, I implore you to teach with fiery tongues, that the Jew is brother to the Christian, and that he is crowned with the attributes of God-like humanity like the Christian.—Condensed in Literary Digest.

DOGS SPREAD CONSUMPTION.

The medical profession in France is much stirred up over the great increase of the deaths from consumption shown by recent statistics. This disease carries off five persons out of each 1,000, or 170,000 a year in France, while in England the mortality from this cause has fallen to two per 1,000. The scourge is worst in Paris, where one death out of every five is due to consumption. At Marseilles it is one out of six, and at Dijon and Nancy it is one out of seven. Dr. Gilbert, a specialist on the disease, says that drunkards are specially susceptible to the disease, and that the tenement houses, where the poor live, are very hotbeds for its spread. In such places five out of twelve deaths are due to consumption. Prof. Cadiot, a prominent veterinarian, says that there can be no doubt that dogs very often communicate the disease. He says that a microscopic examination has shown that many dogs are infected with it. He has held post-mortem examinations of a large number of dogs, which were supposed to have died of cancer, and in every case found that tuberculosis was the cause of death. He says the people who keep infected dogs about them are almost sure sooner or later to contract the disease.

It is not generally known what a vast plant it requires to publish and circulate a metropolitan newspaper. The Chicago Inter Ocean has in its Circulating Department alone nearly one hundred men and women, not to mention the carriers who deliver the paper to all parts of the city before breakfast every morning. It may be mentioned that no kind of weather, however severe, is permitted to interfere with this delivery in any way. Of this large force, about one-half of them work through the day at ordinary office or clerical work and the other half begin late at night and work until about daylight, preparing and addressing the wrappers, counting and wrapping the papers, "routing" and mailing the bundles. Their work is of the most difficult nature and is done in the quickest possible manner, and yet so well is it done that it seldom happens that a single bundle or paper of its immense edition of nearly 100,000 reaches its destination on other than the right train and at the right time, unless delayed by accident. The system is wonderful and its operation almost perfect.
